8 (a) FINDINGS.—Section 2(a) of the Technology-Related 9 Assistance for Individuals With Disabilities Act of 1988 (29 10 U.S.C. 2201(a)) is amended to read as follows:

11 “(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds as follows:

1           “(1) Disability is a natural part of the human 2 experience and in no way diminishes the right of in- 3 dividuals—

4                   “(A) to live independently;

5                   “(B) to enjoy self-determination;

6                   “(C) to make choices;

7                   “(D) to contribute to society;

8                   “(E) to pursue meaningful careers; and 9                   “(F) to enjoy full inclusion and integration 10 in the economic, political, social, cultural, and 11 educational mainstream of American society.

12           “(2) During the past decade, there have been 13 major advances in modern technology. Technology is 14 now a powerful force in the lives of all residents of 15 the United States. Technology can provide important 16 tools for making the performance of tasks quicker and 17 easier. For some individuals with disabilities, 18 assistive technology is a necessity that enables them to 19 engage in or perform many tasks.

20           “(3) The provision of assistive technology devices
21 and services enables some individuals with disabili-
22 ties—

23                   “(A) to have greater control over their own 24 lives;

1           “(B) to participate in and contribute more 2           fully to activities in their home, school, and work 3           environments, and in their communities;

4           “(C) to interact to a greater extent with 5           nondisabled individuals; and 6           “(D) to otherwise benefit from opportunities 7           that are taken for granted by individuals who do 8           not have disabilities.

9           “(4) Substantial progress has been made in the 10          development of assistive technology devices, including 11          adaptations to existing equipment, which signifi-
12          cantly benefit individuals of all ages with disabilities.
13          Such devices have increased the involvement of indi-
14          viduals with disabilities in programs and activities
15          such as early intervention, education, rehabilitation 16          and training, employment, residential living, inde-
17          pendent living, recreation, and other aspects of daily 18          living. Dual-use technology is critical to the further 19          development of assistive technology devices.

20          “(5) Many individuals with disabilities cannot 21          access existing telecommunications and information 22          technologies and are at risk of not being able to access 23          developing technologies. The inadvertent failure of 24          Federal and State governments, hardware manufac-
25          turers, software designers, information systems man-

1     agers, and telecommunications service providers to ac-
2     count for the specific needs of individuals with dis-
3     abilities not only results in the exclusion of such indi-
4     viduals from the use of telecommunications and infor-
5     mation technologies, but also results in unnecessary 6     costs associated with the retrofitting of devices and 7     product systems.

8             “(6) The use of assistive technology devices and 9     services by individuals with disabilities increases such 10    individuals’ ability to be independent, which reduces 11    expenditures associated with early intervention, edu-
12    cation, rehabilitation, health care, transportation,
13    telecommunication services, and other services re-
14    quired by such individuals.

15            “(7) A majority of States have technology-related 16    assistance programs. In spite of the efforts made by 17    such programs to provide comprehensive, statewide 18    services, there remains a need for—

19                    “(A) resources to pay for assistive tech- 20                    nology devices and services;

21                    “(B) trained personnel to assist individuals 22                    with disabilities to use such devices and services;

23                    “(C) information about the availability and 24                    potential of technology for individuals with dis- 25                    abilities and their family members, guardians,

1           advocates, and authorized representatives, rep-
2           resentatives of public agencies and private enti-
3           ties that have contact with individuals with dis-
4           abilities (including insurers), teachers and relat-
5           ed services personnel, technology experts (includ-
6           ing engineers), employers, and other appropriate 7           individuals;

8           “(D) aggressive outreach to under- 9           represented populations and rural populations;

10           “(E) coordination among State human 11           services programs, and among such programs 12           and private entities, particularly with respect to 13           transitions between such programs and entities; 14           and

15           “(F) capacity of such programs to provide 16           the necessary technology-related assistance.

17           “(8) There are insufficient incentives for the 18           commercial pursuit of the application of technology 19           devices to meet the needs of individuals with disabil- 20           ities, because of limited markets.

21           “(9) At the Federal level, there is a lack of co- 22           ordination among agencies that provide or pay for 23           the provision of assistive technology devices and serv- 24           ices. In addition, the Federal Government does not 25           provide adequate assistance and information with re-

1 spect to the use of assistive technology devices and 2 services to individuals with disabilities and their 3 family members, guardians, advocates, and author-
4 ized representatives, representatives of public agencies
5 and private entities that have contact with individ-
6 uals with disabilities (including insurers), teachers 7 and related services personnel, technology experts (in- 8 cluding engineers), employers, and other appropriate 9 individuals.”.

10 (b) PURPOSES.—Section 2(b) of the Technology-Relat-
11 ed Assistance for Individuals With Disabilities Act of 1988
12 (29 U.S.C. 2201(b)) is amended to read as follows:

13 “(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are as fol-
14 lows:

15 “(1) To provide financial assistance to the States 16 to develop and implement a consumer-responsive, 17 consumer-driven, comprehensive statewide program of 18 technology-related assistance for individuals of all 19 ages with disabilities that is designed to create sys- 20 temic change and foster advocacy by—

21 “(A) increasing the availability of, funding 22 for, and access to, assistive technology devices
23 and services for individuals with disabilities;

24 “(B) increasing the active involvement of 25 individuals with disabilities and their family

1        members, guardians, advocates, and authorized
2        representatives in the planning, development, 3        implementation, and evaluation of technology-
4        related assistance programs;

5                “(C) increasing the involvement of individ-
6                uals with disabilities and their family members, 7                guardians, advocates, and authorized representa- 8                tives in specific agency decisions related to the 9                provision of assistive technology devices and 10               services to individuals with disabilities;

11               “(D) increasing and promoting coordina-
12               tion among State agencies and between State 13               agencies and private entities that provide tech-
14               nology-related assistance, particularly assistive 15               technology devices and services;

16               “(E) increasing the awareness of laws, regu- 17               lations, policies, procedures, and practices that 18               facilitate the availability or provision of 19               assistive technology devices and services and by 20               promoting the change of laws, regulations, poli- 21               cies, procedures, and practices that impede the 22               availability or provision of assistive technology 23               devices and services;

24               “(F) increasing the probability that indi- 25               viduals of all ages with disabilities will, to the

1           extent appropriate, be able to secure and main-
2           tain assistive technology devices as such individ-
3           uals make the transition between services offered 4           by human service agencies or between settings of 5           daily living;

6           “(G) increasing the competence of personnel 7           who provide technology-related assistance, in- 8           cluding assistive technology devices and services;

9           “(H) increasing awareness and knowledge 10          of the efficacy of assistive technology devices and 11          services among individuals with disabilities and 12          their family members, guardians, advocates, and 13          authorized representatives, representatives of 14          public agencies and private entities that have 15          contact with individuals with disabilities (in- 17          personnel, technology experts (including engi- 18          neers), employers, and other appropriate indi- 19          viduals;

20          “(I) increasing the capacity of public agen- 21          cies and private entities to provide and pay for

1           “(J) increasing the awareness of the needs
2 of individuals with disabilities for assistive tech-

4           “(2) To identify Federal policies that facilitate
