3 rials that provide tensile strength and external pro-
4 tection.

5 “(4) INTERACTIVE VIDEO EQUIPMENT.—The 6 term ‘interactive video equipment’ means equipment
7 used to produce and prepare for transmission audio
8 and visual signals from at least two distant locations

6 MENT.—The term ‘telecommunications terminal
7 equipment’ means the assembly of telecommuni-
8 cations equipment at the end of a circuit, normally

12 otherwise prepare signals to be transmitted via such 13 telecommunications facilities, or that is used to mod-
14 ify, reconvert or carry signals received from such fa-
15 cilities, the purpose of which is to accomplish the
