7 Congress finds that—

1 (1) several reputable publications have reported

6 tives to support special projects or undertake admin-
7 istrative actions for the benefit of districts rep-
8 resented by those Members, at the expense of United 9 States taxpayers and consumers;

10 (2) the large number and notoriety of these 11 deals is unprecedented in recent history; and

12 (3) such practices erode public confidence in the 13 integrity of the legislative process, contribute to a 14 growing climate of suspicion, cynicism, and scorn for 15 elected representatives, and impede the ability of the 16 President to win support for his programs on the 17 basis of their intrinsic merit.
