CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Expressing the commitment of the Congress to continue the leadership of the United States in the United Nations by honoring the financial obligations of the United States to the United Nations.

Whereas the United States has a long and distinguished history with respect to the establishment of, and participation in, the United Nations;

Whereas Democratic and Republican Administrations in the United States have supported the goals of the United Nations and have played a leading role in setting the priorities of the United Nations;

- Whereas the United Nations continues to promote important foreign policy objectives of the United States in the protection of human rights, the control of weapons of mass destruction, the building of democratic forms of government in countries throughout the world, the promotion of development initiatives, and the prevention of global conflict, the spread of disease, and environmental degradation;
- Whereas the United Nations is the only international organization that counts among its Members all sovereign States dedicated, as stated in the United Nations Charter, to saving "succeeding generations from the scourge of war" and to promoting "social progress and better standards of life";
- Whereas the United States and other Members of the United Nations have successfully worked to achieve reform and efficiency in the United Nations and wish to see the trend toward further reform and efficiency continue;
- Whereas ongoing reform efforts in the United Nations are jeopardized by serious financial crisis, caused in part by late dues payments by Member States;
- Whereas the United States is the leading debtor of the United Nations, owing more than $1 billion for the regular budget and peacekeeping operations of the United Nations;
- Whereas the assessed share of the United States for the regular budget of the United Nations in 1995 was just over $300 million, or slightly more than $1 for each citizen of the United States;
- Whereas Article 17 of the United Nations Charter states that "[t]he expenses of the Organization shall be borne by the Members as apportioned by the General Assembly", of which the United States is a Member; and

Whereas countries other than the United States which are Members of the United Nations, including important allies of the United States, look to Congress for signs of willingness to fulfill commitments of the United States to help achieve reform in the United Nations and move the United Nations to more solid financial ground: Now, therefore, be it

- 1 Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate 2 concurring), That the Congress—
- 3 (1) recognizes that payment by the United 4 States of its assessment for the regular budget and 5 the peacekeeping operations of the United Nations is 6 a solemn treaty obligation, voluntarily undertaken 7 through the ratification by the United States of the 8 United Nations Charter;
  - (2) believes that resolution of financing and reform issues in the United Nations can lead to the capability of the United Nations to meet the challenges of the 21st century;
  - (3) concludes that the leadership of the United States in meeting financial obligations to, and working with other countries to achieve reform in, the United Nations is indispensable to the future viability of the United Nations;
