The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. Hefley].

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

I hereby designate the Honorable JOEL Hefley to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NEWT GINGRICH, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAISE

The Reverend Dr. Kurt G. Jung, Lutheran pastor retired, Cape Coral, FL, offered the following prayer:

Almighty and gracious God. We begin this day with the Psalmist: “I will be glad and rejoice in You; I will sing praise to Your name, O Most High.”—Psalms 9:2.

Eternal God, You have blessed us and not failed us. We have every reason to be thankful, and we do glorify Your name today.

Lord, as we have faith in Your unfailing love and guidance, You can give us a positive vision of hope and life for our Nation. As You guided our Founding Fathers, so You can lead each one of us. Give us wisdom to make the decisions we know to be spiritual, right, and honorable. Help us to hear Your guiding voice amid the clamor of the masses.

In Your holy name. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The Speaker pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day’s proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Speaker pro tempore. Will the gentlewoman from North Carolina [Mrs. Myrick] come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mrs. MYRICK led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:
I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The Speaker pro tempore. The Chair will entertain fifteen 1-minute speeches on each side.

WELCOMING THE REVEREND DR. KURT GERHARD JUNG

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS, Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in extending a warm welcome to today’s guest minister, the Reverend Dr. Kurt Gerhard Jung. Reverend Jung is a constituent of mine from Cape Coral, FL, which is the largest city in my district, and I am delighted to introduce him to the House and to thank him for his inspiring words of opening prayer for today’s session.

Reverend Jung has devoted the better part of his life to public and spiritual service, both in this country and abroad. During his nearly four decades in Germany, in fact, Reverend Jung served as the adjunct chaplain to the American military forces in Berlin and presided as senior minister in several German churches. Although he describes himself as semiretired these days, he is certainly quite active in the southwest Florida community that I live in, teaching Bible study, filling in for other pastors, and doing all kinds of good works for our community.

He and his wife, Ruth, have three children and three grandchildren. One of his children, David, is known to many of our colleagues because he serves us well on the staff of the Committee on International Relations.

We are most pleased to have Reverend Jung and his wife, Ruth, and children, Nancy, Jonathan, and David, and grandchildren, Jan, Andreas, and Karsten with us today. We wish them a warm welcome and thanks.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr. Gilman], the chairman of the Committee on International Relations.

(Mr. GILMAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GILMAN, Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my esteemed colleague from Florida in extending a warm welcome to our guest chaplain, Dr. Kurt Jung, from Cape Coral, FL. Dr. Jung’s eloquent prayer is certainly a testimony to his many years of dedicated service in the ministry.

Indeed, our country needs to be reminded every day in prayer in our efforts to uphold the spiritual and moral principles that have guided our great Nation. Dr. Jung is no stranger to the challenges and dangers of the diverse world in which we all live. He served faithfully with the U.S. Navy during World War II, after which he calling to the ministry took him to higher education at both Princeton Theological Seminary and the Free University in Berlin. During the height of the cold war, Dr. Jung served as an adjunct chaplain and administered to the spiritual needs of the men and women in uniform in the divided city of Berlin and frontline between East and West. In addition, Dr. Jung worked as a senior pastor at several German churches where he was also founder of the first Special Olympics for the mentally impaired.

I am also pleased to welcome Dr. Jung's wife Ruth, who has been at his side in marriage for 43 years. They have three grown children, one of whom is David, who works on our Committee on International Relations and does some outstanding work for us.

Mr. Speaker, I hope my colleagues will take the opportunity to meet this distinguished American citizen, and I would like to thank him for taking the time to be here today.

REGULATION OF POLITICAL EXPRESSION

(Mr. SKAGGS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Speaker, this afternoon a hearing will be conducted that will be eerily reminiscent of the era of the House Un-American Activities Committee. The Committee on Government Reform will hold hearings on a proposal that would, believe it or not, regulate political expression in this country, the so-called McIntosh-Istook-Ehrlich proposal.

If anybody has any doubt that this is a calculated effort to intimidate many groups and individuals from full participation in American political life, then imagine the chilling effect of recieving the following demand for information from the chairman of a congressional committee: "In the past five years, has your organization engaged in political advocacy as defined in the attached legislation? If so, provide a description of the type of advocacy and an estimate of the expenditures on each such activity."

The idea that any Member of this House would dare—would dare—to call on free citizens of this Nation to account for every protected or constitutionally

SPENDING TAXPAYER MONEY ON PAC CONTRIBUTIONS

(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I could not sit back and listen to the previous speaker without responding to the American taxpayers. There are 40,000 organizations that receive over $39 bil-ion in taxpayer funded grants and so forth, and they are not subject to public disclosure or records of where the money went.

One group received 97 percent of its budget from the Federal Government and spent $450,000 to influence congressional candidates through their PAC. I do not think that is what the taxpayers want. There are plenty of good organizations who will continue to get funding and will continue to have political input. What we want to do is stop the abuse of taxpayer money for political purposes.

I have cosponsored an amendment to this bill that says that if you spend less than $25,000 a year on political activities, you are exempt from it. There is also a provision in the bill that exempts you if 5 percent or less of your money is spent on it.

This is not going after the small groups. This is going after the big pocitcal business groups. I urge my colleagues to support the Istook-McIntosh amendment.

HERSHEY FOODS MOVING CANDY PRODUCTION TO MEXICO

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, from Mars to the Milky Way, all of America has experienced the Kiss, the Hershey Kiss. Now, after the State of Pennsylvania gave them tax breaks, now, after we gave them concessions, Hershey is moving its factory that makes the Kiss to Mexico; from Mars to Milky Way to Mexico. Tell me, Mr. Speaker, will the Hershey Kiss become known throughout America as the Tijuanan Kiss?

Take it from an old Pitt quarterback who is kissed off. We have let NAFTA to Milky Way to Mexico. Tell me, Mr. Speaker, will the Hershey Kiss become known throughout America as the Tijuanan Kiss?

Take it from an old Pitt quarterback who is kissed off. We have let NAFTA to Milky Way to Mexico. Tell me, Mr. Speaker, will the Hershey Kiss become known throughout America as the Tijuanan Kiss?

MEDICARE, THE GOP'S WELL-MEANING RESCUE SQUAD

(Mr. GUTKNECHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, that is a tough act to follow.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to read this morning from an editorial which ap-ppeared in the Minneapolis Star Tribune. Anyone who is from the Upper Midwest would never say that the Minneapolis Star Tribune is a Republican propaganda organ. But I would like to read what they had to say last Sunday in an editorial called "Medicare, the GOP's Well-Meaning Rescue Squad."

Supporting the elderly already swallows up one-third of the Federal budget. Unless shifts are made soon, baby boomers will face a grim and threadbare old age.

There's no mystery to all this, of course. President Clinton knows that Medicare is a spending scandal, and so do the Democrats in Congress. You'd think the witness to such a calamity might be moved to join the rescue team—or at least yell helpful comments. No such luck. Uninterested, wet, the Democrats seem content to play on the vulnerability of the 37 million Americans holding on to the Medicare lifetime. Their chief contribution to the discussion is the accusation that Republicans are trying to "wreck Medicare."

Surely the Democrats have more to contribute than potshots like that.

The looming dangers for Medicare should revive the reform effort and spur earnest atttempts at compromise. Instead of sniping from the safety of the shore, the Democrats should wade in and help with the rescue.

OPPOSING CUTS IN MEDICARE

(Mr. HILLIARD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the proposed cuts in the Medicare Program by the Republicans. I am incensed that after months of talking on this issue, the Republicans are still hell-bent on making cuts in Medicare, so that they can give their rich supporters a tax break and balance the budget at the expense of senior citizens.

To ask one segment of our society to suffer unnecessary pain, so that the wealthy can receive an undeserved gain is just wrong. It is un-American. It is unfair.

The elderly must not be perceived as an unnecessary drain on this country's economic resources. Let us not forget that Americans who are now 60 years of age contributed to the largest economic boom in the history of this country. In short, they have paid their dues.

Mr. Speaker, please do not break the backs of our senior citizens by doing away with Medicare as we know it today, merely to give your rich supporters a tax break. The elderly deserve compassion, not vengeance. Leave Medicare alone.

REPEAL DAVIS-BACON ACT

(Mrs. MYRICK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MYRICK. Mr. Speaker, today, the Economics and Educational Opportunities Committee will mark up its reconciliation package—that includes the repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act.

The Budget Committee has already acted on this, and included it in the fiscal year 1996 budget resolution.

Repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act will be repealed not only for budgetary reasons—but for commonsense reasons.

This law serves no practical purpose in today's world.
September 28, 1995

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

This law has been protected for many years because it takes Federal taxpayer money and puts it in the pocket of a small, but powerful interest in the form of a wage subsidy.

The repeal of Davis-Bacon will open up the Federal construction market to fair and open competition and will eliminate the current monopoly on Federal jobs held by a few large companies.

It will open up more construction jobs to semiskilled workers who wish to break into the construction field but are now prevented from doing so.

The bottom line, Mr. Speaker, is the repeal of Davis-Bacon will give all Americans a tax cut on Federal construction costs.

The Budget Committee has acted on this mandate. It is time for the rest of Congress to do the same.

THE GINGRICH STANDARD

(Mr. LEWIS of Georgia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, both Common Cause and I insist that "in order to carry out the responsibilities of an outside counsel effectively, it is necessary for the counsel's authority and independence to be clearly and publicly established." The special counsel must have the "authority and independence necessary to conduct the inquiry in an effective and credible manner." The House of Representatives, as well as the American public, deserve an investigation which will uncover the truth. At this moment, I am afraid that the apparent restrictions placed on this special counsel will not allow the truth to be uncovered. "The rules normally applied by the Ethics Committee to an investigation of a typical Member are insufficient in an investigation of the Speaker of the House. Clearly, this investigation has to meet a higher standard of public accountability and integrity." Prophetic words, indeed, Mr. Speaker. Those are the words of the current Speaker of the House in 1988 referring to the investigation of a former Speaker of this House. This House cannot and must not tolerate a double standard. The Ethics Committee must follow the standard set by Speaker Gingrich.

We need an outside counsel to investigate Speaker Gingrich and we must not restrict the scope of that counsel's investigation.

Some 63 percent of the American people want us to do something about this, now. So why is it, how is it, that liberals fail to understand the urgency of this issue? The citizens are sick of Congressmen playing politics with vital programs such as Medicare. But still House Republicans offer a blank dementiga, or medagyoga as the Washington Post calls it.

Contrary to the liberal distortions, the Republican plan increases spending per beneficiary from $4,800 to $6,700. It gives seniors real choices in health care management by providing for medical savings accounts. But the liberals do not want the people to know that.

It is time to stop the half-truths, the fibs, and the fabrications. It is time to stop the scare tactics and dementiga. It is time for honest debate to take place. It is time to save Medicare.

NEW JERSEY STATE LEGISLATORS SEEK TO SHIELD MEDICARE

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I want to report how more and more conservative Republicans at the Jersey shore, which I represent, are coming out against Speaker Gingrich's Medicare cuts. If I could read from the Asbury Park Press in my district yesterday: State Senator Leonard T. Connors and Assemblyman Jeffrey W. Moran and Christopher Connors, all Republicans from Ocean County have written to Bob Dole and Speaker Gingrich to ask them to back off on the proposed cuts because of the impact they could have on senior citizens, and I quote: "Americans want Congress to cut the pork, but balancing the staggering Federal deficit or financing tax breaks for the rich on the backs of our elderly is morally bankrupt," the lawmakers stated in their letter.

Mr. Speaker, they also said, "Jack ing up Medicare part B coverage from $552 annually to $1,100 under your announced plan is signing a death warrant for millions of senior citizens across America. To save electricity, the seniors live in darkness. Their diet is poor. They scrimp and save for goods and services middle-class Americans often take for granted. A $564 increase in their Medicare premium is a stake in the heart," the Republican legislators wrote.

DEMOCRATS THREATEN VIABILITY OF THE PROGRAM THEY CREATED

(Mr. HOKE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOKE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to quote another publication this morning. This is the Washington Post, and this is written by our former colleague, who was with us last year, Mr. Tim Penny, former Democratic Representative from the State of Minnesota, and he says:

Medicare has been a success, helping to provide health care to millions of Americans who otherwise could not afford it. Yet today, with Medicare facing a financial crisis, Democrats are playing politics instead of coming up with constructive solutions. As the architects of Medicare, we have a responsibility to shore up the program before it collapses.

He goes on to say that:

Members of both parties should work together on this important issue, just as Republicans joined Democrats for Medicare in 1965. Unfortunately, Democratic leaders in Congress have decided otherwise, choosing to attack Republican Medicare plans rather than offering an alternative. By politicizing the issue, Democrats are threatening the viability of the very program they created.

Mr. Speaker, this is from former Representative, Democrat, Tim Penny of Minnesota.

What I would say, on top of that, is that not only is it bad policy what is being done here in terms of the Democrats attack, it is also bad politics. It is not going to work.

PRESCRIBE HEALTH CARE FOR ALL AMERICANS

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Speaker, last Friday eight Democrats remained steadfast listening to the hogwash in the Ways and Means so-called Medicare hearings. I regret to say that as the hearings ended there was a paucity three Republicans remaining expressing how little sincere interest they have in this so-called document that preserves Medicare.

Today I have just heard from my Republican colleague, the prior speaker, saying that Republicans joined Democrats in the 1960's to put Medicare forward. Let me tell Members that my historians tell me there was not one single Republican vote that helped past Medicare legislation, but yet there are today a whole bunch of votes to undermine it by cutting $270 billion from Medicare in order to put the blame on our senior citizens.

What is in this so-called Medicare prescription package sponsored by Republicans. Well, I will tell Members, it is to dispossess and put out senior citizens, who need long-term care in nursing homes. It is the blame game on Medicare. It is the the blame game on Medicare that is the blame game on Medicare. It is the blame game on Medicare. It is the the blame game on Medicare.
I want to save Medicare so that all Americans can have good health care like the Democrats provided for 30 years since 1965.

COMPARING APPLES AND ORANGES

(Ms. PRYCE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. PRYCE. Mr. Speaker, let us talk about apples and oranges. The Republican Medicare plan will increase funding for each Medicare beneficiary from $4,800 today to $6,700 in 2002. Let us call that fact our apple. House Republicans have also promised to provide tax relief to American families. Let us call that fact our orange.

The Democrats are comparing apples and oranges. The point is these two issues have nothing to do with each other. The tax cuts from working families are more than set off by reductions in discretionary spending and program savings. Medicare would still be broke in 2002 even if we did not provide those tax cuts.

Why are the Democrats trying to confuse things? To scare the American people. They have no plan, just scare tactics. It is shameful and, as the Washington Post said, it is just plain wrong.

REPUBLICAN MEDICARE PLAN DETAILS DELAYED UNTIL COLUMBUS DAY

(Mr. DOGGETT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DOGGETT. Well, the gentlewoman from Ohio [Ms. PRYCE] can call it broccoli if she wants to, but it is still a cut and the Republicans are still unwilling to level with the American people on these cuts. Now they come forward and tell us they will delay all the way to Columbus Day before they give us any details. It is incredible, but maybe it is not inconsistent. After all, Columbus set out on a voyage not knowing where he was going, even to get out of the basement. He did not know where he was when he got there, and he did it all with somebody else's money.

Our Republican friends are a little like that, using money for seniors to pay for a tax break cruise for the rich. As they dismantle Medicare to fund their tax breaks for the rich, there is one thing that is not similar, they have not discovered middle America. They have abandoned it. With the havoc they are wreaking with Medicare, maybe they should wait from Columbus Day to Halloween or perhaps, better yet, how about April Fool's Day?

VOTE FOR MEDICARE REFORM

(Mr. TIAHRT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, Medicare is a 1965 Blue Cross/Blue Shield program that was started by Lyndon Baines Johnson and is frozen in time. According to the trustees, it is going broke by 2002 and it does not matter if we had a balanced budget and we had no tax cuts, the plan is still going broke by 2002.

Now, health care in the private sector has improved in the last 30 years, but Medicare is frozen in time. We have a plan not only to preserve and protect Medicare, but we are also going to allow additional options to seniors. We also have a increase in spending from $4,800 per year to $6,700 per year.

Mr. Speaker, I think we not only need to have Medicare reform, but I think we need to have remedial math, too, because going from $4,700, excuse me $4,800 to $6,700 per year per beneficiary is an increase in spending and not a cut. I urge my fellow Congressmen to vote for Medicare reform.

SENIORS ABOUT TO TAKE A DOUBLE HIT

(Mr. WATT of North Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WATT. Mr. Speaker, the seniors in our country are about to experience what we call in North Carolina a double hit. Not only are the Republicans cutting Medicare by $270 billion, they are cutting Medicaid right behind it $182 billion. Medicare is for the elderly, Medicaid is for the poor, but 69 percent of the money in Medicaid goes to the elderly also, even though they represent only 28 percent of the people who are served.

Sixty-nine percent. A double hit they will be taking.

Medicare cuts on the one hand, Medicaid cuts on the other hand. It is un-American to be mean to our poor and our elderly and we should stop it right now before we get too far down the line.

KEEP HANDS OFF STOCK CAR RACING

(Mr. FUNDERBURK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FUNDERBURK. Mr. Speaker, on Sunday I was in Martinsville, VA, enjoying the Goody's 500 stock car race with 60,000 hard-working, law-abiding fans, drivers, and promoters. They sent a loud and clear message to the White House and the FDA: "Bill Clinton, keep your hands off racing."

As you know, Mr. Speaker, millions of car race fans are up in arms about Bill Clinton's plan to destroy auto racing by unconstitutionally banning legal, tobacco-based advertising at sporting events. Mr. Speaker, enough is enough. One driver summed it up before the race, " until they did this I really didn't know what the difference was between a conservative and liberal. Now I know. If we let big government get away with this, next they will ban Hardee's and McDonald's hamburgers and Coca-Cola, then they will be bashing down my door to take my guns."

Mr. Speaker, America's race car fans really do know what separates liberals from conservatives. If Bill Clinton had been in Martinsville with real America instead of partying through the night with his left wing buddies in Hollywood maybe he would realize that difference also.

WOMEN STILL HAVE A LONG WAY TO GO

(Ms. HARMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. HARMAN. Mr. Speaker, time is running out to move the statue of women suffragettes from the Capitol crypt to the Capitol rotunda. Despite the unanimous support of the Senate and wide bipartisan support from the House, no action has been taken. Is that where women's rights have been relegated this Congress, to the basement?

This Congress has already waged numerous assaults on women. During the appropriations process, choice opponents succeeded in restricting a woman's constitutional right to choose, and they threaten to take us back to the days of dangerous back alley abortions.

Congress has broken its promise to take violence against women seriously. Last Congress we passed the Violence Against Women Act, yet this year its funding was substantially reduced.

Education is one of the best ways to increase opportunities for women. Congress, however, recently eliminated the Women's Educational Equity Act and reduced job training programs for women.

The refusal to move the statue of Lucretia Mott, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and Susan B. Anthony is symbolic of this Congress' assault against women. If women cannot gain a reasonable place in the Capitol rotunda, what can we expect legislatively?

Women gained the right to vote 75 years ago, but we still have a long way to go, even to get out of the basement.

HIGHER TAXES, MORE GOVERNMENT, AND MORE REGULATION

(Mr. WHITFIELD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WHITFIELD. Mr. Speaker, over the past 40 years the National Democratic Party has shown without question they sincerely believe that higher taxes, more government, and more regulation can best solve the problems of the American people.

In 1993, the Clinton administration, with help from the Democrats on that side of the aisle, passed one of the largest tax increases in the history of this country. Earlier this year we passed a small tax reduction, which has been characterized as a tax for the wealthy. I would like to go over a few of those provisions for you.

If you are an American family and you have children today we are going to give you $500 per child tax credit. We are going to restore $1345 to remove the tax penalty for married couples in this country. We are going to restore IRA’s to help American families save for their retirement and we are going to allow small businessmen and women around this country to deduct up to $35,000 of their investments each year to provide more jobs and a stronger economy. We are going to provide a refundable tax credit of up to $5,000 for people who adopt children.

Is this a tax break for wealthy Americans? No, it is for the working men and women of this country.

SPIRIT AND LETTER OF LAW SHOULD BE OBSERVED

(Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, in an article in the Hartford Current dated September 27 of this year, the chair of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct reflected on the committee’s inquiry into the complaint against Speaker Newt Gingrich. I quote, “The letter of the law is not compelling to me,” she said, “I will work with our rules. Our rules have a certain degree of flexibility. My goal is to have a process that the committee members feel good about.”

Mr. Speaker, the work of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct is not about Members feeling good about themselves. If both the spirit and the letter of the law are not compelling and relevant and every inquiry undertaken by this important committee, then we have lost sight of the purposes of its function.

Mr. EHLERS. Regular order, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker, on March 8 of this year, Speaker Gingrich himself announced a new policy concerning speech on the House floor. Let me quote directly, for your consideration in making this ruling, his comments on March 8. He said, “I believe that the first fact is, Members of the House are allowed to say virtually anything on the House floor. It is protected and has been for 200 years. It is written into the Constitution.”

Mr. Speaker, it would seem to me, in view of the Speaker’s own words, that comments about the Speaker and about ethics on the floor of this House are certainly within the rules of the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from Michigan wish to be heard?

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, that point that the previous gentleman has made has been a number of times. The point is simply the rules of the House prevent us from speaking about matters which are under consideration in the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, and the speaker was out of order.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Does the gentleman from West Virginia wish to be heard?

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, yes, I wish to comment. As I understood the remarks of the gentleman from Florida [Mr. JOHNSTON], they were directed at the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct and the process it is undertaking. Those remarks also went to a general process and, as I think he specifically referred to, proceedings affecting any Member.

Mr. Speaker, certainly I would hope that the general conduct of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct is not about Members feeling good about themselves. If both the spirit and the letter of the law are not compelling and relevant and every inquiry undertaken by this important committee, then we have lost sight of the purposes of its function.

Mr. Speaker, are you ruling that we cannot speak about the process? Is that your ruling? The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair’s ruling speaks for itself. Let me repeat that ruling. Members are reminded not to refer to matters currently pending before the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, further points of order.

Mr. Speaker, I have a parliamentary inquiry. So, we can speak about the process? Is that your ruling? The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is it OK to speak about the process of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Members can speak about the process, but should refrain from speaking about matters that are pending before the committee.

ADVOCATING THE WITHHOLDING OF A MEMBER’S SALARY FOR DAYS MISSED

(Mr. METCALF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. METCALF. Mr. Speaker, today a Member of Congress will appear in court for sentencing due to his August conviction on charges of criminal sexual assault, child pornography, aggravated criminal sexual abuse, and obstruction of justice.

Mr. Speaker, he has not cast a single vote since June. Through the end of last week, he has missed 31 consecutive days of congressional session, including every day this month.

Mr. Speaker, I respectfully submit that no Member should be paid for a month in which he completely failed to report for work and was sentenced to jail. Under the law, the Speaker has the authority to deduct from Members’ salaries for each day they are absent from the House, unless the Member was absent for his sickness or family sickness.

Mr. Speaker, today I am submitting a letter to Speaker Gingrich, signed by quite a few Members of the House, requesting him to stop this Member’s collection of over $1,000 of taxpayers’ money for September’s salary. The National Taxpayers Union has led the investigation into the Speaker’s authority into this matter and strongly supports this urgent request.

ETHICS INVESTIGATION REQUIRES CONSISTENCY

(Mr. Wise asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, the credibility in this institution requires that both the public and the Members serving here know that there is consistency in the application of the processes by which Members are investigated for alleged wrongdoings. Specifically, that the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct follows the same process for each and every Member.

Simple due process for anyone requires that they know what to expect, and know what the procedures are. That is why I have some concern when I read that the gentlewoman from Connecticut, the present chair of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct, was quoted as saying recently that, and I quote from the Hartford Courant, “The letter of the law is not compelling to me. I will work with the rules. Our rules have a certain amount of flexibility. Our goal is to have a process that the committee members feel good about.”

Mr. Speaker, justice and Committee on Standards of Official Conduct investigations are not best conducted in a hot tub, feel-good atmosphere. I am concerned when an aide of hers quotes Speaker Gingrich in 1997, when he said that investigation requires a high standard. I urge it to be followed today.

READ ALL ABOUT IT

(Mr. Foley asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, read all about it. The Washington Post, Thursday, September 28. Democratic former Member of Congress, Tim Penny, “Medicare Mistake.” “My party is making a big mistake.” The Democratic Party is closely identified with Medicare, and rightfully so. Democrats first conceived of Medicare, put it into law. As architects of Medicare, we have a responsibility to shore up the program before it collapses.

Democratic Congressman Tim Penny says:

We cannot afford to ignore Medicare’s shaky financial situation or put it off until after the next election. It is just too important. Medicare trustees have given us a 7-year warning. Those 7 years shouldn’t be squandered in indecision, stall tactics and politicking. We should view this time as an opportunity to choose between creative solutions and destructive solutions. Democrats should be the leaders in this debate, not the obstructionists.

Mr. Speaker, my parents are on Medicare. I love my parents. As Republicans, we are promoting protecting and preserving Medicare for this generation and future generations. Democrats, take Mr. Penny’s comments seriously. Join us in the fight to protect it and stop the demagoguery.

THE EFFECTS OF A $270 BILLION CUT IN MEDICARE

(Mr. Payne of Virginia asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAYNE of Virginia, in a few weeks this House will have a profound choice. We can cut $270 billion from the Medicare Program, or we can scrap big tax cuts and move forward with a reasoned program of Medicare reform.

Many of my constituents have made that choice. I have spoken to hundreds of them, both elderly and young people, about Medicare. They have looked at this budget and decided that it is unfair to pay for big tax cuts at the expense of health care for the elderly.

Mr. Speaker, I toured hospitals that are typical of the 13 rural hospitals in my district. One administrator told me that 50 percent of his facility’s revenues are derived from Medicare and that Medicaid accounts for another 13 percent. This hospital is 50 miles from another acute care facility and, like many rural hospitals, it operates at the margins.

The hospital administrator told me that if cuts of the magnitude being proposed now in the Republican plan are adopted, they could well force this facility to close. Where will the elderly go then? If we move forward recklessly or cut too deeply just to pay for a tax cut, we will do irreparable damage.

Mr. Speaker, I urge this body to move responsibly and to reject $270 billion in cuts in Medicare.

DEMOCRATS: COME IN FROM THE RAIN

(Mr. Goodlatte asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Speaker, last week the Democratic leadership sat outside in the rain moaning and groaning and grandstanding for the television cameras about the Republican plan to preserve and strengthen Medicare and increase spending on Medicare.

What do others have to say about that? The Washington Post calls them “medigogues.” Former Congressman, Democratic Congressman, Tim Penny calls their tactic the “Medicare mistake.” He says:

There was a time when Democrats were willing to act responsibly, but by politicizing the issue, Democrats are threatening the viability of the very program they created.

He goes on to say:

We cannot afford to ignore Medicare’s shaky financial situation or put it off until after the next election. It is just too important.

So, what have the Democrats done? Nothing. Where is their plan? Nowhere.

Mr. Speaker, that is not surprising for people who do not even know enough to come in from the rain.

THE REPUBLICAN RECORD AFTER 7 MONTHS

(Miss Collins of Michigan asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Miss COLLINS of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to inform you of the Republican record after 7 months. The Republican agenda is strictly an agenda that caters to the rich and powerful special interest and alienates and belittles the rest of us.

For example, the Republicans have given families earning more than $100,000 a $245 billion tax cut while on the other hand they are cutting Medicare spending by $270 billion. Talk about robbing Peter to pay Paul—Paul must be an awfully happy camper.

Mr. Speaker, not only do the Republicans want to save the wealthy money—they want to give them money at the expense of our seniors that have worked so long and hard for their benefits.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, the Republicans want to hurt our educational system by making changes in our student loan program that would increase profits for banks and guarantee agencies while the spending cuts would make college students pay $4,500 to $7,500 more for each student loan.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues, does this sound like a fair agenda for our seniors that have worked so long and so hard?

Mr. Speaker, these uncalled for tactics show you why the American people are becoming more disgruntled with the Government.
HELP SAVE MEDICARE

(Mr. HERGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Speaker, Democrats have been playing a broken record for the last few months. It goes something like this: "Medicare is not really going bankrupt—Republicans only want to give a tax break to the rich."

What unmitigated drivel. I’ve heard a lot of tall stories in my time, but this takes the prize. It is true that Republicans advocate tax cuts. But the vast overwhelming majority of those tax cuts go to middle-income working American families. One of those tax cuts is the $500-per-child tax credit for almost every child in America.

Now, let me ask a question: Are there more millionaires in this country, or working families with children?

The most important point to realize here is that tax cuts have nothing to do with Medicare. Even if the budget was balanced and people were taxed 100 percent of their income, Medicare would still go broke in 7 years.

Mr. Speaker, Democrats need to fix their broken record and begin helping Republicans save Medicare.

WHY CUT $270 BILLION FROM MEDICARE?

(Mr. STUPAK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, there are philosophical differences between Democrats and Republicans on Medicare, and there is no doubt that the Republican party would like $270 billion in tax cuts out of Medicare and give it to the corporations. Do not corporations do that? Because they are allowed to pass on their tax cuts to the American people. They are allowed to do that, and yet it is illegal for the wealthiest 1.1 percent of all Americans and for tax breaks for the wealthiest 1.1 percent of all Americans and for tax breaks for corporations.

PEOPLE WANT THE LETTER OF THE LAW

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute, to revise and extend her remarks, and to include therein extraneous material.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Speaker, as an American, I feel very good about the fact that everybody is under the letter of the law. As a Member of this body during Watergate, I was very saddened by the fact that the Presidency was being attacked, but I also felt very good that we were showing the world that no one is above the letter of the law in this great and wonderful country, thanks to Thomas Jefferson and many of our forefathers and the rules they put together.

Yesterday, Mr. Speaker, I felt sick because I found an article in the Hartford Courant in which the ethics charges against the Speaker were being discussed. As the chairwoman of the Ethics Committee who said, the letter of the law is not compelling to me, that there is a lot of flexibility in our rules, and I wanted to put together a process that will make Members feel good.

I do not think people want that flexibility. I think they want the letter of the law.

Mr. Speaker, include for the RECORD the letter I sent for you to refer.

J OHN SON DEFENDS ETHICS CASE STANCE

(Washington.—Rep. Nancy L. Johnson, R &h District, confirmed Tuesday that she signed a 1988 letter to the House ethics committee urging if to conduct a “full inquiry” into complaints against then Speaker Jim Wright, a Texas Democrat.

The letter was circulated by Rep. Newt Gingrich, who at the time was a relatively unknown Republican from Georgia. Now, he is speaker of the House and is the subject of recent complaints under review by the ethics committee.

Johnson became the committee’s chairwoman when Republicans took control of the House in January.

In addition to the letter, Gingrich issued a press release May 28, 1988, in which he said it was a “vital” for the committee to hire an outside counsel to pursue the complaints against Wright thorough.

The letter and press release are significant because many people think they set a standard the committee has failed to meet in its Gingrich investigation.

Johnson asked why that was not happening. Johnson said: “This is Newt speaking, and you see some of our Democratic colleagues agree with him.... In signing this original letter, that didn’t mean I agreed with him on all this stuff...”

Johnson’s comments came during a wide-ranging meeting with Connecticut reporters.

The committee is considering complaints received in a book deal involving with media magnate Rupert Murdoch, the financing and promotion of a college course Gingrich taught in Georgia and whether the speaker allowed an outside consultant to perform official House business.

Johnson also defended the committee’s decision not to use an investigative procedure set out in the House Ethics Manual.

“The letter of the law is not compelling to me,” she said. “I will work with our rules. Our rules have a certain amount of flexibility.... My goal is to have a process that the committee members feel good about.”

Rep. Jim McDermott of Washington, the senior committee Democrat, has objected to the course the committee is following. According to the complaint that was not prepared to question key witnesses who appeared in July. Tuesday, Johnson complained that McDermott had not been in touch with the committee before making them public... McDermott did not respond to a request for comment.

As she has in the past, Johnson held up the possibility that the committee will turn to help an outside counsel, as many House Republicans and some several government watchdog groups have requested. But she said the 10-member panel, evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats, had not reached that point.

Responding to reports the panel was close to appoint an outside counsel, Johnson said: “It is absolutely true, without doubt in my mind, that the committee has made no decision.”

Johnson sought to portray the committee as struggling to find a way to achieve a consensus on how to complete its inquiry. “I’m position is certainly legitimate,” she said, referring to McDermott.

But, she went on, “Six-four decisions aren’t healthy. They don’t get you anywhere, particularly 6-4 procedural decisions. Six-four procedures have to set up 5-5 deadlock.” A 6-4 vote is the narrowest majority by which the 10-member committee can approve an action.

The letter Johnson and seven other House Republicans signed in 1988 was circulated in recent days by groups seeking an outside counsel with unlimited authority. It concluded: “The integrity of the House of Representatives and the American people require a full inquiry [into the Wright complaints].”
Johnson said Tuesday, "I don't see that as a contradictory of what I'm doing. I have every intention that this will be a full inquiry." She also said that naming an outside counsel could conduct a complete, impartial investigation.

Johnson disagreed with those who say the committee investigation is not an independent probe for Gingrich, and she defended the committee's action in setting aside the ethics manual in the speaker's case.

"My job, as I perceive it, is not to fulfill some sort of generic expectation," she said. "My job is to provide just consideration of the complaints that come before us.

The ethics manual says that once the committee decides a complaint meets certain criteria, it may begin a formal inquiry. The panel then is to split into subcommittees—one to investigate the complaints, and the other to hear sworn testimony and decide the validity of the complaints.

Instead, the committee has yet to vote to conduct an investigation while the full panel has taken sworn testimony from more than a dozen witnesses, including Gingrich and Murdoch.

Johnson said the committee's 1992 investigation of members who bounced checks on the now-defunct House Bank showed the ethics manual was an "utter and total disaster," and that the Subcommittee on the Ethics sub, that recommended making public the names of only 24 members who abused their banking privileges.

But Johnson and three other committee Republicans objected that all those who wrote bad checks should be named. Eventually, Johnson's position prevailed. She said the bank investigation unfairly harmed the reputations of many members, adding, "I don't want a result like that.

Government watchdog groups that have recently joined the call for an outside counsel could conduct a complete, impartial investigation.

A YES VOTE ON BOSNIA MEANS TROOP DEPLOYMENT

Mr. NEUMANN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.

Mr. NEUMANN. Mr. Speaker, this afternoon we will be addressing the Defense appropriations bill on the floor of the House. While the chairman, the gentleman from California [Mr. HEFLEY], and the chairman, the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. LIVINGSTON], deserve praise for hitting the budget targets, we need to be aware of one other happening because of this bill. We need to be aware of the fact that this bill allows President Clinton by himself to deploy United States troops, young men and women, United States men and women, to Bosnia.

Make no mistake, a "yes" vote on the Defense appropriations bill means United States troops will be deployed into Bosnia. If we deploy United States troops in Bosnia, we, the United States, must be prepared to accept the consequences. The Post this morning reports that the White House is now coming to ask for this deployment. If these troops are deployed, we must be prepared for our young men and women coming home in body bags, and we must be prepared for $2 billion price tag that goes with the deployment of United States troops in Bosnia.

The Defense appropriations bill originally contained an amendment that would have required the President to come to Congress for a vote of confidence and acceptance of the expenditure of these funds prior to deploying troops into the Bosnian arena. If we vote yes on the Defense appropriations bill today, we must be prepared to accept the consequences.

I do not even wish to advocate a yes or no vote but, rather, I would encourage my colleagues to be prepared for the consequences of the votes they make, and the consequences clearly are our young people being returned in body bags and a $2 billion expenditure.

EXTENDING AUTHORITY UNDER MIDDLE EAST PEACE FACILITATION ACT

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on International Relations be discharged from further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2404) to extend authorities under the Middle East Peace Facilitation Act of November 1, 1995, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HEFLEY). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

Mr. HAMILTON. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to object, and I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. GILMAN], chairman of the committee, to explain his unanimous-consent order.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2404 temporarily extends the Middle East Peace Facilitation Act of 1994, which otherwise would have expired on October 1, 1995. That act was previously extended by Public Law 104-17 and by Public Law 104-22.

H.R. 2404 extends the act until November 1, 1995, and includes a transitional period of 30 days after certain that there is no lapse in the act's authority.

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, continuing my reservation of objection, I do not intend to object, and I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. GILMAN], chairman of the committee, to explain his unanimous-consent order.

bill and other bills that have been proposed and also perhaps that our committee can formulate a bill.

Again, I see no reason why this House has to cede its authority on this important sphere to the Senate. Why should the Senate foreign operations bill be the core to any new Middle East Peace Facilitation Act that is proposed?

While Senator HELMS and Senator PELL are putting together their language and doing a good job, I think we have an equal role to play, not simply a role of following the Senate.

So I am wondering if the chairman can give me assurances that we will indeed have a markup in this House and that this House will come up with its own bill and not simply rubberstamp the Senate version in the foreign ops bill.

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, continuing my reservation of objection, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. GILMAN].

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, in response to the concerns of the gentleman from New York, we share those concerns. We will have an opportunity in the next 30 days to take a good, hard look at all of those problems. And hopefully our committee will be able to address some of the gentleman's concerns.

I thank the gentleman for raising this issue.

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the gentleman from Dayton, OH [Mr. HALL]. All time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the rule provides for consideration of House Joint Resolution 108, a continuing resolution making appropriations for fiscal year 1996 through November 30, 1995. The rule provides for consideration of the joint resolution in the House, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding.

Finally, the rule provides for one motion to recommit with or without instructions. The motion to recommit may include instructions only if offered by the minority leader or his designee.

CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 1996

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 230 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. Res. 230

Resolved, That upon the adop­tion of this resolution it shall be in order, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, to consider in the House the joint resolution (H.J. Res. 108) making continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1996, and for other purposes. The joint resolution shall be debatable for one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the joint resolution to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions. The motion to recommit may include instructions only if offered by the minority leader or his designee.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the rule provides for consideration of House Joint Resolution 108, a continuing resolution making appropriations for fiscal year 1996 through November 30, 1995. The rule provides for consideration of the joint resolution in the House, any rule of the House to the contrary notwithstanding, with 1 hour of general debate divided equally between the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Finally, the rule provides for one motion to recommit with or without instructions. The motion to recommit may include instructions only if offered by the minority leader or his designee.

Mr. Speaker, we are in the midst of an historic effort to change the Washington culture of deficit spending by balancing the Federal budget over a 7-year period. For the first time in three decades, the majority in Congress is insisting that Federal spending not take priority over the future of our children. We are implementing a budget plan that sets priorities within the $1.5 trillion Federal budget by slowing the rate of growth of most Federal programs while eliminating those that are clearly wasteful, duplicative, or unnecessary.

Balancing the budget is clearly not a simple job, especially when the President, sizable minorities in the House and Senate, and special interests that live off the fat of the bloated Federal Government stand in the way. The appropriations process is a central feature of that budget balancing struggle.

It is clear that the bills that meet the targets of the 7-year balanced budget plan will not be completed by October 1, the beginning of the new fiscal year. The continuing resolution that we are going to be considering here today gives Congress time to complete the regular appropriations bills.

Mr. Speaker, the administration supports House Joint Resolution 108, the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations appeared before the Committee on Rules yesterday and both supported both the rule and the measure. This continuing resolution is a bipartisan compromise that was the result of a long, sincere, and tireless negotiating process.

While this continuing resolution is a responsible bill, there should be no mistake the fact that continuing resolutions will not replace the regular appropriations process. House Joint Resolution 108 provides the time we need to do the work we need, and that is it. It is a temporary stopgap, and it is a fiscally responsible stopgap.

The spending level incorporated in this continuing resolution is below the level in the House-passed balanced budget plan. It should be made clear that this continuing resolution does not attempt to impose major policy changes on the Federal Government. Those policy changes will be accomplished through the regular legislative process, an effort, even a struggle in some cases, that I look forward to. But they will not be implemented today.

Mr. Speaker, with the beginning of the new fiscal year rapidly approaching, it is important that we act quickly. I urge my colleagues to support this rule and to support the resolution. It should be approved, sent to the other body for equally prompt and responsible consideration, and sent to the President for signature this weekend. Then we can get back to the critical work of balancing the Federal budget, saving the Medicare system from bankruptcy, ending welfare as we know it, and implementing a growth-oriented tax cut that will create more jobs and improve the take-home pay of American workers.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD a comparison of the rules considered by the Committee on Rules during the 103rd and 104th Congresses.
Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume. (Mr. HALL of Ohio asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 230 is a closed rule to allow consideration of House Joint Resolution 108, a bill making continuing appropriations for the fiscal year 1996.

As my colleague from California has described, this rule provides 1 hour of general debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Under the rule, no amendments will be allowed. A motion to recommit with instructions may be offered only by the minority leader or his designee.
The Rules Committee reported this rule by voice vote without opposition.

Too often in recent years, Congress has waited until the last minute to keep the Government going past the beginning of the fiscal year. With this ritual, there is a much greater fear of Government furloughs, shutdowns, and programs grinding to a halt.

This year, with loud threats being made not to compromise, the fears were stronger than usual. There was talk of a train wreck coming October 1. The American people deserve better.

What kind of a signal are we sending to the dedicated, public-spirited civil servants who work for the Government?

What kind of a signal are we sending to Americans who depend on Government services?

What kind of a signal are we sending to the people of other nations who are our allies and trading partners?

There has to be a better way.

During Rules Committee consideration of the continuing resolution, we heard testimony from our colleague from Pennsylvania, Mr. Gekas, who has proposed a bill that would provide an automatic back-up plan in case the appropriations bills are not passed before the end of the fiscal year. It is a sound idea that has merit.

I hope that the House will give serious consideration to his bill—or any proposal that will end this embarrassing ritual coming every year.

The rule under consideration is a closed rule. In general, I am opposed to closed rules. This institution usually does its best work when full and open debate is permitted, giving the American people an opportunity to hear complete discussion of the issues.

But there is a time when legislation is so urgent and so fundamentally important to our Nation that a closed rule is acceptable. This is such a time. We must pass this bill quickly to ensure the smooth continuation of Government services into the next fiscal year. Even more important, we must send a signal to the Federal workers at military bases, veterans' hospitals, air traffic control towers, national parks, and elsewhere that this House respects their work.

Mr. Dreier. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield such time as he may consume to my good friend, the distinguished former chairman from Glens Falls, NY [Mr. Solomon], the chairman of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. Solomon. Mr. Speaker, I certainly thank the vice chairman of the Committee on Rules for yielding me this time. The gentleman has very ably stated the necessity for this continuing resolution.

Mr. Speaker, let me first of all just praise the chairmen of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER], and other members of the Rules Committee, Mr. DREIER, for their leadership in bringing about reform in the legislative process to a halt, this rule and this continuing resolution should provide some encouragement. Today we have before us the product of good faith negotiation and practical cooperation between the Houses of Congress and up and down Pennsylvania Avenue. The continuing resolution reflects a bipartisan commitment to ensuring that the Government continues to function through the end of the fiscal year. Yet we must be perfectly clear—this continuing resolution is temporary—lasting no more than 6 weeks—and it is carefully designed to speak just briefly to the aspect of a closed rule.

This is not a typical closed rule. What this rule does is simply allow the Committee on Appropriations to bring a continuing resolution to this floor for the next several weeks. It is a budget for this body to negotiate between the Democrats and the Republicans, to negotiate between Republicans and the White House. I want to make one thing very clear: This in no way diminishes our effort to stay on a glidepath toward a balanced budget. This Member of Congress is voting for nothing that is going to in any way diminish that effort to bring about a balanced budget. As a matter of fact, the continuing resolution, as the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. Livingstone] has stated and will state in a few minutes, and the gentleman from California [Mr. Dreier], this continuing resolution actually keeps us on track that glidepath more than if we did nothing at all. That is very, very important.

For example, when various programs or projects or bureaus or agencies have been zeroed out, have not been funded, that they can continue at least at last year's 1995 levels, minus or not to exceed 90 percent; nor can they go ahead with any kind of expediting of programs that are not provided for. For all of the other programs, and this is very important, they will only be funded for the next 6 weeks at the average of the House and Senate, minus another 5 percent.

That means by passing this continuing resolution, we are actually saving the taxpayers' dollars. That is important to keep in mind. I hope everyone does support this continuing resolution so we can get on toward balancing this budget, which is desperately needed in this country.

Mr. Dreier. Mr. Speaker, Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida [Mr. Goss], a member of the Committee on Rules and the chairman of the Subcommittee on Legislative Process. (Mr. Goss asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. Goss. Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to rise in support of this rule and thank my friends, the vice-chair of the Rules Committee, Mr. Dreier, for yielding me time. I yield 3 minutes. I believe that partisan politics have ground the legislative process to a halt, this rule and this continuing resolution should provide some encouragement. Today we have before us the product of good faith negotiation and practical cooperation between the Houses of Congress and up and down Pennsylvania Avenue. The continuing resolution reflects a bipartisan commitment to ensuring that the Government continues to function through the end of the fiscal year. Yet we must be perfectly clear—this continuing resolution is temporary—lasting no more than 6 weeks—and it is carefully designed to squeezed discretionary spending enough so that all parties to the budget negotiations will have the incentive to get the real job done in passing—and signing—the 13 regular appropriations bills. This concurrent resolution reflects our commitment to bring about budget-cutting and Federal spending, while allowing us to work out some very deep philosophical differences on issues involving the size and scope of the Federal Government. That work lies at the heart of what must be accomplished in this Congress.

I hope that the House will give serious consideration to his bill—or any proposal that will end this embarrassing ritual coming every year.

be necessary to ensure that any con-stirring the rules of the House to require that a con-is continuing resolution would find pro-gam at the lower of the House-recomded level at, and in no case would funding exceed 95 percent of the prior year’s level. This proposal would mandate a minimum of 5 percent real cut in any continuing resolution.

Mr. Speaker, I intend to continue the fight to get this proposal enacted into our House rules so it can provide a guideline for any future continuing resolutions.

Today we have before us a continuing resolution that will temporarily fund most programs at the average of the House recommended level and the Senate recommended level with an additional 5-percent cut below that level.
I want to commend my colleagues from Louisiana for working on such a strong agreement with the administration.

This continuing resolution is consist-ent with the overall discretionary spending target established by the budget resolution. It would result in $24.5 billion in discretionary spending cuts if calculated on an annualized basis.

This represents real spending cuts. In addition, it will act as a catalyst to get the regular appropriations bills enacted into law as soon as possible. It is not a painless alternative for those who wish to preserve the status quo and block budget cuts.

This is a credible agreement and a good start to our 7-year balanced budget plan. It will let the American people know that we are serious about keeping our promises. It will let them know we are serious about eliminating defic-hit spending by 2002.

Mr. Speaker, I intend to support this continuing resolution, and I urge my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield 2 minutes to my good friend the gentleman from Harrisburg, PA [Mr. GEKAS].

Mr. GEKAS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, it is no secret to the members of the Committee on Rules that we have been working on this for some time now. We have therefore appealed before it to urge consideration of my proposal which we have called the instant replay, meaning that if on September 30 of every year, the end of the fiscal year, we do not have a budget in place, that automatically on October 1 would go into effect—instant replay mechanism—last year’s budget, or the lowest figure between the House and Senate, whichever is the lowest figure, for the remainder of the term, so that the House and the Congress could continue to operate without the fear of and without the pressure of a threat of or actual shutdown in Government.

That is all I ever intended, to prevent a shutdown of our Government. We had the anomaly, the sad state of affairs, where in 1990, as our youngster were gathering their military forces in Saudi Arabia—waiting for Desert Storm to occur, in forming Desert Storm Shield—but they were there, the Government supported the shutdown. That is unacceptable.

Well, Mr. Speaker, where are we? I should feel chagrined that the Rules Committee again struck me down and did not support my proposal, but, on the other hand, the sense of that instant replay has been incorporated in the current continuing resolution. It prevents shutdown of Government, does bring in the lower levels of spending for an appreciable time, but, the problem is that, after this 6-week continuing resolution’s life, the question recurs, the danger recurs, the specter of a shutdown in Government comes back to haunt us.

Mr. Speaker, my instant replay would have prevented that for all time.
But I am happy at least for 6 weeks to be able to debate the merits of instant replay again. There should never be a Government shutdown.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I would inquire of my friend if he has any speakers on the other side of the aisle.
Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I have no requests for time.

Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume, and I do not anticipate that I will take nearly all the time allotted to me.

First, I want to thank the distinguished gentleman from New York [Mr.
SOLOMON], chairman of the Committee on Rules, and all of the members of that committee for hearing us out and for bearing with us while we entertained the ongoing negotiations on this continuing resolution. We did have some last minute changes that we had to engage in with the administration but the Committee on Rules was most good in giving us the extra time so that we could put the final touches on this package. I am deeply appreciative of their consideration.

Likewise, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the representatives of the administration, Mr. Panetta, Chief of Staff over at the White House, and all of his people for working with us. We had some interesting moments, but I am glad to say that with their help we finally brought it to a conclusion.

I especially wanted to thank my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEY], the ranking member on the Committee on Appropriations. Without his help, I do not think we could have closed the loop on this package, and I do think that it is important that we have an additional 6 weeks of time to complete our processes on the appro-piations bills.

Mr. Speaker, we went through a very exhaustive spring when the Contract for America was working its way through the Congress and, obviously, the budget and appropriations process was put to the back of the line in terms of the agenda on the floor of the House.
We have had to take a little extra time at the back end, but we are in the process of completing our business, and I think that this 6-week continuing resolution will enable us to get over the hump without unduly stressing the work force of the Federal Government or the business of the United States of America.

I am very, very pleased then to bring to the House this fiscal year the 1996 continuing resolution, House Joint Resolution 108. We will not have all 13 appropriations bills enacted into law before October 1. A continuing resolution to keep the Government operating is, therefore, necessary.

This continuing resolution has been developed in consultation with both sides of the aisle, with our Senate counterparts, and with the joint leadership, as well as with the President. The President has indicated that he will sign it if it is presented in its current form. The passage of this continuing resolution will enable us to get over the hump without unduly stressing the work force of the Federal Government or the business of the United States of America.

Since there is no authorization in place, no appropriation could be provided for the next 43 days without this waiver, and international broadcasting operations would have to shut down.

There are already waivers in the continuing resolution for all the programs at the State Department, the Agency for International Development, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, and other programs at USIA, but it was not right, in my opinion, that their lawyers discovered that in the 1994 Act, a requirement was inserted applying to international broadcasting that requires a separate waiver.

Since then, the Director of USIA has called requesting this; the Office of Management and Budget says it is necessary; the chairman of the Committee on International Relations has requested it; and the ranking minority member of the committee has concurred.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ROGERS

Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment, and I ask unanimous consent that it may be considered at this point, and that the previous question be considered as ordered on the amendment and on the joint resolution in accordance with House Resolution 230.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk reads as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. Rogers: On page 2, line 16, after "1948", insert the following: "section 313 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103-236)",

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. Rogers].

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, while I rise in support of the continuing resolution, I want to express my deep regret that the leadership has waited until 3 days prior to the end of the fiscal year to bring this important bill to the floor.

For the last 2 months, the Federal Government has invested an enormous amount of time and effort preparing for a possible shutdown of Government operations beginning this weekend.

While I am glad that this scenario will not occur, I very much regret the leadership's decision to allow millions of dollars to be spent in preparation for such a shutdown.

In addition to the expense, this delay has caused unnecessary worry for Federal employees in Maryland and throughout our Nation who have children to feed and mortgages to pay. Some of my colleagues may have found it amusing rhetoric to talk about a furlough of many of our civil servants, but I believe it is the wrong way to treat those who have committed their lives to public service.

A private company that treated its employees this way could certainly not expect the best and the brightest to stay on staff.

In August I pressed for the Appropriations Committee to hold a hearing on a possible shutdown. While I can think of no more important issue for the committee to consider, we have yet to have a single hearing.

On September 13, during consideration of the Treasury, Postal Service, Government Accountability, and Education Appropriations Act, I offered a continuing resolution to keep the Government operating after September 30.

At that time it was clear that the Congress would not get all of the appropriations measures to the President by the end of the fiscal year. Despite the fact that it was clear then that a crisis was imminent, none of the Republican house conference supported my motion.

My intention in offering that resolution was to ensure that no Federal employee would be furloughed. I am pleased that the leadership has accepted my contention that no employees should be laid off even if the House or the Senate or both bodies have made substantial cuts in fiscal 1996 funding.

While I join in supporting this measure, I think we should have passed it several weeks ago. Federal employees should not have been forced to wait until today to find out whether they might next get a pay check.

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in strong support of the continuing resolution and to urge its swift enactment.

This resolution I understand is a compromise worked out between the White House and the congressional Republican leadership, will allow the Government to continue to operate after the beginning of fiscal year 1996, and through November 13, 1995. The resolution will also mean that Federal employees will be allowed to continue to go to work and collect their paychecks.

As the representative of tens of thousands of Federal employees, I can assure you that this resolution is welcomed news. And, although I support the resolution, I would like to take a minute to reflect on why I feel that we should really be doing more. We should be exploring possible options of ensuring that Federal employees are not put in the untenable position of not knowing if they are going to have a paycheck or a paycheck—after October 1 every year.

We may hear today that Federal employees are being used as "pawns in the budget battle." While I agree that there does appear to be some merit to that accusation, it has always been my sense that in order to use a person or a group in that fashion, you must at least be aware of their existence.

I am not convinced that the concerns of Federal employees are even being taken into account by the people who are leading the continuing resolution to its result in furloughs. From the Republican leadership, we hear strong words about not backing down and allowing the "train wreck" to go forward. Yet I have not heard from one of these "leaders" about trying to help, or at least abate the impact of a shutdown, on the people who would be most affected.

Combine the threat of furloughs with the other proposals that have been floated this year which would have an adverse affect on Federal employees and the result is an unwarranted disrespect for the men and women who have committed their lives to the service of this Nation. Rather than place these dedicated people on a situation of constant uncertainty, we should be thanking them for their efforts on our behalf and providing them with the benefits and security that they deserve.

There are Members, on both sides of the aisle, who have been working hard to try to ensure that Federal employees are not adversely affected by a Government-wide shutdown. I want to commend and to support them. I am sure that at some point in the very near future we will be successful and the budget problems that may exist between Congress and the White House do not result in sleepless nights and tension-filled days for Federal employees.

We may hear today that Federal employees are not the innocent victims of their convictions.

Until that time, I urge support of the continuing resolution and hope that my colleagues will join me in working towards its swift enactment.

Mr. LIVINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the joint resolution, as amended.

The joint resolution, as amended, was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

INTERNATIONAL SPACE STATION AUTHORIZATION ACT OF 1995

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Hefley). Pursuant to House Resolution 228 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 1601.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 1601) to authorize appropriations to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to develop, assemble, and operate the International Space stations, with Mr. Obey in the chair.

The Chair read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Wednesday, September 27, 1995, all time for general debate had expired.

The amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the bill shall be considered by sections as an original bill for the purpose of amendment, and pursuant to the rule each section is considered separately to be offered and read a third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SEC. 1. COMMENDED AS A SUBSTITUTE.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) the development, assembly, and operation of the International Space Station is in the national interest of the United States;

(2) the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has restructured and redesigned the International Space Station, consolidated contract responsibility, and achieved programmatic control and stability;

(3) the significant involvement by private ventures in marketing and using, competitively servicing, and commercially augmenting the capabilities of the International Space Station during its assembly and operational phases will lower costs and increase benefits to the international partners;

(4) further rescoping or redesigns of the International Space Station will lead to costly delays, increase costs to its international partners, discourage commercial involvement, and weaken the international space partnership necessary for future space projects;

(5) total program costs for development, assembly, and initial operations have been identified and capped to ensure financial discipline and maintain program schedule milestones;

(6) in order to contain costs, mission planning and engineering functions of the National Space Transportation System (Space Shuttle) program should be coordinated with the Space Station Program Office;

(7) complete program authorizations for large-scale programs shall promote program stability, reduce the potential for cost growth, and provide necessary assurance to international partners and commercial participants;

(8) the International Space Station represents an important component of an adequately funded civil space program which balances human space flight with science, aeronautics, and technology.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any amendments to section 1?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute be printed in the Record and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

The CHAIRMAN. As objection.
The text of the remainder of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

For the purposes of this Act—

(1) the term "Administrator" means the Administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration; and

(2) the term "cost treat" means a potential change to the program baseline documented as a potential cost by the Space Station Program Office.

SEC. 4. SPACE STATION COMMISSION COMPLETE PROGRAM AUTHORIZATION.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—

(1) The program reserves available for such fiscal year are estimated to remain available until expended, for complete development and assembly, of, and to provide for initial operations, through fiscal year 2002, of, the International Space Station, an amount not more than $2,121,000,000 may be appropriated for any one fiscal year.

(b) CERTIFICATION AND REPORT.—None of the funds authorized under subsection (a) may be appropriated for any fiscal year unless, within 60 days after the submission of the President's budget request for that fiscal year, the Administrator—

(1) certifies to the Congress that—

(A) the program reserves available for such fiscal year equal the total of all cost threats known at the time of certification;

(B) the Administrator does not foresee delays in the International Space Station's development or completion during any fiscal year delays relating to agreements between the United States and its international partners; and

(C) the International Space Station can be fully developed and assembled without requiring further authorization of appropriations beyond amounts authorized under subsection (a); or

(2) submits to the Congress a report which describes—

(A) the circumstances which prevent a certification under paragraph (1);

(B) remedial actions undertaken or to be undertaken with respect to such circumstances;

(C) the effects of such circumstances on the development and assembly of the International Space Station; and

(D) the justifications for proceeding with the program, if appropriate.

If the Administrator submits a report under paragraph (2), such report shall include any comments relating thereto submitted to the Administrator by any other agency involved.

(c) Neutral Buoyancy Laboratory.—The Administrator is authorized to exercise an option to purchase, for not more than $35,000,000, the Neutral Buoyancy Facility, containing the Sonny Carter Training Facility and the approximately 13.7 acre parcel of land on which it is located, using funds expended, for complete development and assembly of the International Space Station.

The Administrator shall—

(1) coordinate the engineering functions of the Space Shuttle program with the Space Station Program Office to minimize overlapping activities; and

(2) in the interest of safety and the successful integration of human spacecraft development with human spacecraft development with human spaceflight operations, maintain at one lead center the complementary capabilities of human spacecraft engineering and astronaut training.

SEC. 6. COMMERCIALIZING OF SPACE STATION.

(a) POLICY.—The Congress declares that a priority goal of constructing the International Space Station is the economic development of the space station into a single Space Station Program Office, an economic development which could supply, use, service, or augment the International Space Station.

(b) REPORT.—The Administrator shall deliver to the Congress, within 60 days after transmission of the President's budget request for fiscal year 1997, a market study that examines the role of commercial ventures which could supply, use, service, or augment the International Space Station. The specific policies and initiatives the Administrator is advancing to encourage these opportunities shall be summarized by the partnership from applying commercial approaches to cost-shared operations, and the cost reimbursements to the United States Government from commercial users of the Space Station.

SEC. 7. SENSE OF CONGRESS.

It is the sense of Congress that the "cost incentive fee" single prime contract negotiated by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for the International Space Station, and the consolidation of programs in the International Space Station are examples of reforms for the reinvention of all National Aeronautics and Space Administration programs that can be applied as widely and as quickly as possible throughout the Nation's civil space program.

SEC. 8. SPACE STATION ACCOUNTING REPORT.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the text of the remainder of the com-momnication in the C O MMONS RECORD Ð HOUSE}
Space station Freedom represents a challenge for the 21st century. Not since President John Kennedy challenged this country to land a man on the Moon has this country had such an opportunity to respond.

The space program has already given us new technological and products that have enhanced the quality of our lives. Technological spinoffs from space research have produced important benefits for our society. The development of high-speed computers and launch vehicles and software has improved industrial engineering. Other advances in computers, miniaturization, electronics, robotics, and materials have dramatically affected industrial production and U.S. technological competitiveness.

Advances in biomedical technology from the space program are abundant, particularly in the areas of monitoring, diagnostic, and testing equipment. Devices such as the electroencephalograph (EEG) and the electrocardiogram (ECG), pacemakers and medical scanners have their origins in equipment developed for the space program. Other medical advances include surgical tools, voice operated wheelchairs, and an implantable insulin delivery system.

New products such as photovoltaic power cells, the improved thermal underwear, digital clocks, battery-powered hand tools and scratch-resistant coating for glasses are only a few of the useful innovations that are a direct result of the space program.

All of these advancements have provided great benefits to our society, but as I said during committee consideration of the space station: The truth is we don’t know all of the innovations, discoveries, and prosperity the space station will bring to us.

Detractors of the space station will argue that during these times of tough budget decisions we just can’t afford it. We have problems in this country, and we need to tend to them. Having said that, I would point out that cutting the space station Freedom is not going to solve our problems.

Our country will not be stronger, greater, braver, or more prosperous if we pull back and retreat from human space exploration.

In fact, it will be just the opposite. It is during these times that we have to rekindle the human spirit and intellect. To look forward to the future with hope, daring, and vision. To do less would be to quit. Give up. That is not looking forward with hope, daring, and vision. To look forward to the future to solve them.

Mr. Chairman, our country needs a strong and balanced space program. The international space station needs stability once and for all. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1601.

Mr. DAVIS. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my support for H.R. 1601, the International Space Station Authorization Act of 1995. This bill gives NASA the authority to proceed with its current space station development plan, extending the authorization through complete assembly in fiscal year 2002. H.R. 1601 authorizes a total of $13.1 billion for the station, with authorizations not to exceed $2.1 billion in any 1 fiscal year. Importantly, the authorization is conditioned upon each year’s success, meaning NASA must be on time and on budget for this legislation to remain effective.

As you are aware the space station has gone through numerous redesigns since its inception in 1984, as the space station Freedom program. The redesigns and the on-again, off-again nature of space station budgets has led to increased costs. The bill before us is essential if we are to secure completion of the international space station, ensure reduced costs, and demonstrate to our international partners our commitment to completing this long-await project.

The international space station is the largest international scientific and technological endeavor ever undertaken. The project is taking shape not only here at home, but in 13 nations around the world. The space station will provide a permanent laboratory in an environment where gravity, temperature, and pressure can be changed and manipulated in such a way that is not possible on Earth. The opportunities for scientific and technical experimentation and for educational growth are unmatched. The station will be the scientific testbed for the technologies of the future. It will allow us to expand our existing capabilities in areas such as telecommunication, medical research, and new and advanced industrial materials. And the technologies we develop in space will have immediate and practical applications for our citizens on Earth.

Mr. Chairman, the space station project is essential for the United States if we are to maintain our commitment and leadership in space. It will serve as the driving force for the technical R&D that will keep us competitive in the 21st century. Further, it will inspire our children, and foster their interest in space and science. I urge my colleagues to support H.R. 1601.

Mr. GANSKE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in opposition to H.R. 1601, the International Space Station Authorization Act of 1995. The American people are tired of Washington wasting their money on frivolous projects. Projects that begin with good intentions. Projects that grow in size and price and begin with good intentions. Projects that begin with good intentions. Projects that begin with good intentions.

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause (b) of rule XXIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1170) to provide that cases challenging the constitutional validity of measures passed by State referendum be heard by a 3-judge court.

The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the judiciary. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. It shall be in order to consider as an original bill for the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule the amendment in the nature of a substitute recommended by the Committee on the judiciary now printed in the bill. Each section of the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be considered as read. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated in clause 6 of rule XXIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. Any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the bill or to the Committee amendment in the nature of a substitute. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER] is recognized for 30 minutes.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to my good friend the gentleman from Woodland Hills, CA [Mr. BEILENSON], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield the remainder of my time to the gentleman from Palm Springs [Mr. BONO], a new member of the Committee on Rules, and I look forward to rapid and bipartisan action on this bill.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, this is an open rule for consideration of the bill, H.R. 1170, legislation to bolster in American voters the confidence that their democratic system is fair and just. The rule provides for 1 hour of general debate divided equally between the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the judiciary. The rule makes in order the Committee on the judiciary amendment in the nature of a substitute as the original bill for the purpose of amendment, and each section will be considered as read. Under this open rule amendment process, Members who have preprinted their amendments in the Record prior to their consideration will be given priority and recognition to offer their amendments if otherwise consistent with House rules. Finally, the rule provides for one motion to recommit, with or without instructions.

Mr. Speaker, we are at a critical time in our Nation’s history. The very institutions of American democracy are threatened with increasing public discontent, or at least apathy. Too many Americans are losing faith in our system, threatening the very foundation of the democracy that has served our country well for the purposes of freedom and democracy around the globe.

H.R. 1170, the first legislation introduced by my California colleague, the gentleman from Palm Springs [Mr. Bowo], a new member of the Committee on the Judiciary, attempts to address in an exceedingly responsible fashion a legal practice that is undermining the faith that voters have in their State-wide referendum system. Basically, it is in the American system, threatening the very foundation of the democracy that has served our country well for the purposes of freedom and democracy around the globe.

H.R. 1170, the first legislation introduced by my California colleague, the gentleman from Palm Springs [Mr. Bowo], a new member of the Committee on the Judiciary, attempts to address in an exceedingly responsible fashion a legal practice that is undermining the faith that voters have in their State-wide referendum system. Basically, it is judge shopping.

As we have learned in the State of California, special interests often shop around to find an ideologically biased Federal judge to stop State referendum from taking effect by gaining a temporary injunction pending final court action. Of course, such final action can take many years. H.R. 1170 is not an indictment of any particular judge. Nor is it an indictment of any past legal decision which resulted in a referendum in California, or any other State, not taking effect after it was passed by the State’s voters. Instead, the legislation takes direct aim at the practice of judge shopping that stacks the deck in legal challenges in order to obtain an injunctive remedy in the State’s laws.

For example, and this actually was really the genesis of this legislation, when the people of California approved the highly emotional Proposition 207 by an overwhelming 3 to 2 margin, a single Federal judge in San Francisco issued an injunction when the polls had been closed for 24 hours keeping the measure from ever taking effect.

It does not matter whether the injunction in that case was technically warranted. The very fact that a Federal judge with a lifetime judicial appointment can single-handedly overturn the directly expressed will of the people of the State can, and does, undermine public confidence in our system.

Using a three-judge Federal panel to determine injunctions in cases of State-wide voter referenda, as they are currently employed in cases involving voting rights, is a sensible insurance policy to bolster public confidence in our democratic process.

Mr. Speaker, this open rule provides, as I said, for an open amendment process. It is a fair rule, respectful of the right of every Member of this House to participate in debate.

There was no opposition to the rule in the Committee on Rules, and I look forward to rapid and bipartisan approval of the rule now so that the House can get down to the very important business of considering this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the record the following material.

It does not apply to special rules which only waive points of order against appropriations bills which are already privileged and are considered under an open amendment process under House rules.

2 An open rule is one under which any Member may offer a germane amendment under the five-minute rule subject to an overall time limit on the amendment process and/or a requirement that the amendment be preprinted in the Congressional Record.

3 A modified closed rule is one under which the Rules Committee limits the amendments that may be offered only to those amendments designated in the special rule or the Rules Committee report to accompany it, or which preclude amendments to a particular portion of a bill, even though the rest of the bill may be completely open to amendment.

4 A closed rule is one under which no amendments may be offered (other than amendments recommended by the committee in reporting the bill).

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILenson. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding the customary 30 minutes of debate time to me.

Mr. Speaker, we support this open rule for H.R. 1170, the bill mandating that three-judge panels review constitutional challenges of State referenda.

With respect to the bill itself, we are somewhat mystified at the manner in which it has moved through committee and on to the House floor.

According to the dissenting views in the committee report, the Committee on the Judiciary moved through the hearing and markup of H.R. 1170 before the Judicial Conference of the United States had an opportunity to consider the bill and provide the committee with the benefit of its views.

The conference's official views would have been especially important to the Committee on the Judiciary in this case since the conference has consistently, since 1970, opposed three-judge courts except for certain reapportionment cases.

The 12 members signing the dissenting views noted that, and I quote them: not for the first time this year, the Judiciary Committee majority has ridden roughshod over the Federal judiciary, taking action on measures with profound impact on the workload of the Federal judiciary without waiting the short period of time it would take to permit the Judicial Conference to consider the legislation and give the Committee the benefit of its views.

Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Rules should have a fundamental concern about process, about the manner in which committees that come to us have considered the legislation under their jurisdiction.

We ought to ensure that there is no perception that the standing committees have given inadequate thought to the measures they report out to the floor for consideration by the full membership of the House, that there has not been a sufficiently deliberative committee process prior to consideration by the full House.

That is especially applicable in the consideration of legislation such as this, that has no need at all to be rushed.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 1170 was written because of frustration with the injunction granted by a Federal court preventing immediate enforcement of California's proposition 187.

As a Californian, I think it is fair to say that everyone in California, even those of us who voted against this very controversial immigration-related referendum, is anxious for a resolution of the matter.

It is also fair to say that many proponents of this referendum knew from the beginning that it had very serious constitutional problems and that those problems would hold up its implementation because they would have to be tested in court.

In fact, the major proponents of proposition 187 always described it as a means of sending a message to the federal government that they knew it would run into the very serious problems this bill is seeking to prevent, not only in Federal courts but also in the State courts, one of which, incidentally, has issued an injunction against its taking effect because it raised substantial questions about the State’s involvement in Federal areas of jurisdiction.

Members should also be very concerned, we think, about voting for legislation like this that would mandate an appeal to the Supreme Court from the decision of a three-judge court. The Judicial Conference has argued that this procedure bypasses the screening and fact-finding that occurs at the court of appeals level and circumvents the development of legal interpretations through the various circuits.

As the Judicial Conference recently wrote, and I quote them:

"Bypassing intermediate appellate review prior to the ultimate constitutional determination by the Supreme Court is an extraordinary measure that should be left to the Supreme Court in the exercise of its constitutional responsibilities."

Members should also carefully consider whether Congress should be saying, in effect, that one method of enacting a State law is preferred over another. The premise of H.R. 1170 is that a State law enacted by a ballot measure passed by the voters is somehow more worthy than one enacted by a State legislature, and that the Federal judiciary should be mandated to give preferential treatment to State laws adopted by referendum. As UCLA Law professor Evan Caminker recently said, and I quote:

"It ought to make no difference that it is a ballot measure, because the people have no greater authority to transgress the Constitution than does the State legislature."

Mr. Speaker, we do support this rule. It is an important rule, but we are concerned about the legislation and the need for it and the need to rush it to judgment here on the floor. We urge the adoption of the rule so that we can proceed today with the debate on this bill and, hopefully, a full discussion of what it entails.

Mr. Speaker, I have no requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, this is an open rule and does not seem to be controversial. I urge an "aye" vote on this rule. I am a strong supporter of the legislation of the gentleman from California, Mr. Bono, and should say that I believe it is a great day when Mr. Bono has seen something that he believes is wrong and needs to be corrected and has stepped forward and introduced this legislation before our Committee on Rules and will be in just a very few minutes speaking here on the floor for this legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the amendment.

The previous question was ordered. The resolution was agreed to. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

POSTPONING VOTES ON AMENDMENTS DURING CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1170. THREE-JUDGE COURT FOR CERTAIN INJUNCTIONS

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that during consideration of H.R. 1170, pursuant to House Resolution 227 the Chairman of the Committee may postpone until a time during further consideration in the Committee of the Whole a request for a recorded vote on any amendment, and that the Chairman of the Committee on the Whole may reduce to not less than 5 minutes the time for voting by electronic device on any postponed question that immediately follows another vote by electronic device without intervening business, provided that the time for voting by electronic device on the first in any series of questions shall be not less than 15 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Hefley). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

THREE-JUDGE COURT FOR CERTAIN INJUNCTIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 227 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 1170. 1151

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 1170) to provide that cases challenging the constitutionality of measures passed by State referendum be heard by a three-judge court, with Mr. Ewing in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill. The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, this gentleman from California [Mr. Moorhead] and the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. Schroeder] each will be recognized for 30 minutes.
10 cases in the Nation would have been eligible for review by the three-judge court procedure provided under H.R. 1170. Given that this statute would only require a three-judge panel in actions for injunctive relief which attack the constitutionality of a State statute, and that the burden on the judiciary as a result of this legislation is very small, The importance of this bill to Federal-State relations, however, is great.

H.R. 1170 will assure that State laws adopted by referendum or initiative, reflecting the will of the electorate of a State on a given issue, will be afforded greater reverence than measures passed generally by representative bodies because of their importance and their expression of the direct vote of the populace of a State.

The use of a three-judge court is imperative to the proper balance of State-Federal relations in cases such as these where one Federal judge can otherwise impede the direct will of the people of a State because he or she disagrees with the constitutionality of the provision passed. A three-judge court panel will help to provide fairer, less politically motivated consideration of cases.

Mr. Chairman, if a law passed directly by the majority of the people of a State is unconstitutional, then the people have a right to a final decision on the merits as soon as practicable. H.R. 1170, as reported by the Committee on the Judiciary, will safeguard the direct expression of democracy, and preserve individual voting rights.

I urge a favorable vote on H.R. 1170.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, this bill, can I just say to my colleagues, let us talk? I mean, this sounds like something very easy, but it is very complex and I think it is not a solution for the problem that some are saying it is.

My fear is, whenever we adopt something telling people we have just solved a problem and then they later find out we have not solved it at all, it only builds voter frustration.

It is very clear that this bill arose out of Californians' frustrations with having passed proposition 187 and then having had the Federal judge say that this proposition was unconstitutional. Listen to the words, that is what they are saying. So they are saying, well, that judge was probably biased and what we really need is a three-judge panel and that would not happen.

I like this issue and because this would not have solved, if we had this on the books at the time that proposition 187 went to the courts, this would not have solved that problem.

No. 1, the State court judge also held it was unconstitutional. This goes to the Federal court, so it would not have done anything about the State court.

No. 2, enough time has passed so the Federal judge who held it was unconstitutional has had the right of appeal to the court of appeals, which are three Federal judges, and they unani mously held it was also unconstitutional. So we have the State court saying it is unconstitutional, we have the Federal court saying it is unconstitutional. And to stand up and say that if we pass today a bill 1170, which will solve these kind of issues, is really, I think, not accurate.

Now, let me also say there are some other problems with this bill. We are saying to the States that if a legislation passes a bill to which citizens have a challenge on constitutionality, that will be treated differently than if there is a referendum.

Now, when an issue is constitutionality is the Constitution, and the courts are the courts, and why isn't a constitutional issue, whether it is passed by the legislature or passed by referendum, equally important to deal with in the same way? I mean, we pass a law, and we do as we think people would think there is an awful lot of arrogance if we start deciding one requires more judges than the other or whatever.

There are other problems with this. In 1976, both the Senate and the House, I believe unanimously, repealed this very same procedure on a three judge court. Why? Well, there was all sorts of rhetoric at that time about how the worst idea that ever happened, because what we are really doing today by going back and undoing what we did in 1976 is we are mandating that Federal courts have to act a certain way. Everybody talks about mandates, and one more time we have got one branch mandating on another branch how they are going to allocate their resources. On the one hearing that we did have, the Federal courts were very clear that these three judge panels are very difficult to deal with.

Why? Because each judge in every Federal circuit is up to here with their agenda. They have got drug cases, criminal cases, all sorts of cases. There is no American that does not know we have a terrific backlog and all sorts of pressure. There are any number of ways by going back and undoing what we did in 1976 is we are mandating that Federal courts have to act a certain way. Everybody talks about mandates, and one more time we have got one branch mandating on another branch how they are going to allocate their resources. On the one hearing that we did have, the Federal courts were very clear that these three judge panels are very difficult to deal with.

So this is a judicial mandate. The Federal courts have spoken very clearly. There was a bill to repeal the three-judge courts, it was introduced. It was introduced by Justice Rehnquist, who is not a left leaning liberal, for heaven's sake. They have spoken very clearly that they think this is not the right bill; this is the wrong bill. They hope people vote against this bill because of the tremendous management problems it will give the Federal courts.

When you look at many of the other issues around, you find that the other bill did not pass. And each of these coming from a referendum will go from the three-judge panel right to the Supreme Court, and that the Supreme Court will not have any option as to whether or not to take the case. They must take the case. We are also mandating the Supreme Court must have to do this. Now, this is also very critical, because I think, again, every American knows there are all sorts of issues that want to get to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court has a process. This will be much more complex for the Supreme Court to handle than any other case, because any other case comes to the Supreme Court with an appellate decision from an appellate court. This will be an appellate-type decision. This will be a district court-type decision with three judges trying to decide what the rules of evidence and every other issue must be.

I imagine three Judge Itos. That is kind of what you are going to have here, and that is a very different process. So you are going to get an entirely different kind of record that is going to be much more difficult for the Supreme Court to handle.

One of the great things in this country has been the Constitution has not been a rough draft. I always thought we in this body said we were to protect and defend the Constitution. Apparently some people think it is protect and amend. But I feel very strongly that, yes, it is frustrating sometimes; yes, we do not like to have to honor minority rights; and yes, there are some things in the Constitution that probably bother every single American citizen. But basically it has been a fair document, and we have said we are a government of laws and not of men, and that a majority cannot overrule the Constitution and impose its will on the minority.

I think that is really what the crux of this complaint is about. The crux of this complaint is about the question that the citizens of California wanted to override the Constitution when it came to proposition 187. A Federal judge said no, they could not, and, guess what? So
Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CONYERS], the distinguished ranking member.

(Mr. CONYERS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Chairman, this is the California against proposition 187 proposal that claims that there was forum shopping when there was, in fact, none. I see my California colleagues are in strong array here, and I was happy that the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono] did not mention proposition 187 as the bill that sent him into his first legislative activity. The fact of the matter is, that the people of California did not know that proposition 187 was unconstitutional. I did not either, but the State court corrected that. I would say to the gentleman, nobody was forum shopping there, and the Federal court supported it.

Mr. Chairman, can we not agree that these courts were not anti-Republican, were not against proposition 187, but that they found a fatal constitutional error that they were duty bound to profess and articulate as something that was not correct, even though 5 million, 10 million, 100 million sign it? That does not make it legal.

Let us be clear about this, Mr. Chairman, this is proposition 187 now coming to the House of Representatives. The proponents of this bill tell us we need to adopt three-judge panels to review constitutional challenges to State referenda to provide a more expedited review process. Did we not listen to the chief judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals who came and explained this to us at great length out of his very busy schedule, that if the one thing we wanted to do was to expedite an appeal is we should not put it in the courts.

Now, ladies and gentlemen, that is not awfully judicial concept to understand. We cannot take three judges and make something go faster than one judge. There was no forum shopping, so we are trying to fix something that is not broke. If anything, the bill will make it much more likely that the plaintiff will be able to tailor their lawsuit in an effort to obtain a favorable forum. How? knowing that the three-judge circuit judges have the discretion in selecting the panel members, the moving party can decide whether he or she is better off bringing their case in a State or Federal Court.

So, as a first effort, and as my very first bill, I am asking this Congress to vote for this bill and correct this injustice.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume, only to say my understanding was that while the gentleman is saying there was judge shopping, this case went to a district that had 25 judges, sitting judges, and that it was the circuit judge who was appealed that, I think, was the instance when there was a three-judge panel at the Court of Appeals, two of whom were known to be very conservative.

Mr. MOORHEAD. If the gentlewoman will yield, I want the gentlewoman to know that California situation is not the reason that I am so strongly in favor of this bill.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, re-claiming my time, what the other gentlewoman from California said he did this because of forum shopping. I know the gentleman knows that the districts in California are run the way Federal districts are supposed to be run.
to report. There can not be any in selection because it is random. So at the end of the day we are left here with the conclusion that it is not good policy to mandate greater use of the three-judge panels.

That is why this Congress, on a bipartisan basis, repealed almost all of the three-judge provisions in 1976. That is why the judicial conference, which must live with the burdensome requirements of this proposal before us, and the administration strongly oppose the bill. These judges that have ever heard of this proposition are outraged that we would be moving back to pre-1976 to try to get back at a proposal in California that we felt badly that it was improperly worded and we held unconstitutional.

Mr. Chairman, the real tragedy, however, is the bill's proponents would have the voters believe that we are taking some magic action that will allow for fair and more expeditious legal challenges of State referenda. When they learn this is not the case, the blame will rightly lay with this body, so oppose H.R. 1170.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. DREIER] (Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to reserve and extend his remarks).

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Chairman, I want to extend congratulations to the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO], my friend from Palm Springs, for the valiant effort he has put into the legislation. As I was saying during management of the rule, he saw a wrong and decided to right it and he stepped forward and I am pleased we are able to proceed with this legislation.

I have been listening to debate here, and one thing that needs to be underscored is the fact that the U.S. Congress has consistently maintained the use of the three-judge panels when it comes to issues of voting rights an voting procedure, and this legislation we are considering here today simply moves into a very small and limited areas that same provision.

Mr. Chairman, some have said this would be a tremendous burden. Well, we have seen 10 of these cases over the last 10 years. I think that as we recognize that, this is a very responsible route to take.

One of the questions that was raised, Mr. Chairman, and this was given to me by the gentleman from California [Mr. MOOREHEAD], the subcommittee chairman, was why should legislation passed by statewide referenda be afforded preferential treatment? The answer is in this concurring opinion in Baker versus Carr V regarding apportionment.

Justice Clark explicitly recognized the similarity between State referenda and the protection provided by the constitution against that of unfair apportionment. By use of a referendum, a State is reapportioned into a single voting district to vote directly on legislation. When the population exercises its individual vote, that process is revered as a cornerstone of our democracy. For that reason, apportionment cases go to a three-judge panel for the same reason the cases falling under H.R. 1170 should go to a three-judge panel.

This is very important legislation. I again congratulate the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] for having vision to introduce this measure and I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BUYER]. Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, it is almost comical to me, because the gentleman from California almost gave my speech. I think that as I sit listening to the gentleman from Michigan, Mr. CONVERS, even Mr. CONVERS, I do not think would advocate—matter of fact, I will ask the gentleman.

I do not think the gentleman advocates, whether he does or does not, setting aside the mandatory three-judge panel under the 1965 Voting Rights Act. Would the gentleman be in support of that or not?

Mr. CONVERS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield, no, I supported leaving it like it is.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman has indicated for the 1965 Voting Rights Act.

Mr. CONVERS. If the gentleman would continue to yield, does he?

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I do also. I listened to the gentleman's arguments, and I wanted to make that clear.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BUYER. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mr. Chairman, I thought it might be helpful for the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BUYER] to hear the historical and factual background in which the three-judge panel for voting rights cases was adopted initially. If the gentleman is interested in that, I would be happy to tell him. It had nothing to do with this kind of situation.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, the three-judge panel is important because not only do we have the nexus of the 1965 Voting Rights Act, but we have that of the 1970 Act, we have the decision of the California [Mr. DASSE] referred to when we have a State referendum. We have voters acting as one voting block, so there is a nexus. And I compliment the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] for drafting this legislation.

Mr. Chairman, this legislation recognizes the nexus and the needs for the three-judge panel. Whether we want to debate this issue about the forum shopping or not, I think when we have the people's voice, we have to respect the people's voice under the law.

So often, Mr. Chairman, people like to talk about the fact we have a democracy in America. We do not have a democracy, we have a republic, a nation of laws, not of people, for the preservation of the rights of the minority. When we have a State referendum acting with that nexus we are talking about, I think it is important to have the three-judge panel so we do not have this debate about whether they are acting as capricious or arbitrary authorities. I think it is imprudent and it would be an imprudent exercise of Federal power.

I compliment the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] for his legislation and urge its passage.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT].

Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time and being generous with her time, and I will try not to use the entire time but I think this is an important issue.

I rise in opposition to the bill which is under debate at this time. The gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] apparently thinks that because he does not like the result that a court gave changing the process by which the court got to that result is the appropriate thing to do.

I will submit to the gentleman that, first of all, I never, ever got a speeding ticket when I was growing up that I liked the result of, but I never had the opportunity to go back and say, I want three mothers or fathers to make this decision about whether I get a speeding or not just because I did not like the result.

Mr. Chairman, I do not like the result when I get stopped by a highway patrolman out on the highway and get a traffic ticket.

Mr. HOKE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. I will not yield. The other side has plenty of time over there. I will be happy to yield after I get through making the points I want.

I do not have the right to ask for three highway patrolmen to come out on the street and decide whether it was proper for me to get a speeding ticket just because I do not like the result.

Mr. Chairman, what the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] is proposing is totally amount to the same thing. We do not have the resources to bring to bear on the traffic ticket that I get out there.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman please stop interrupting me? I will yield at the end of my presentation.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. Ewing). The gentleman declines to yield. The gentleman from North Carolina has the floor.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mr. Chairman, I will yield at the end of my presentation. If the other side is going to interrupt me every time I get into the middle of a sentence, then I am going to do the same with them.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Chairman, I have asked the gentleman to yield one time.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I have no request to yield. If they want, I am not yielding at this time. I will be happy to yield if I have time left.

We do not have the resources. We are dealing with scarce resources right now. The Republicans tell us every day that we have scarce resources and here we come. We do not like the result so we have scarce resources and here we come. We seldom have a statewide referendum on any issue. That is what we elect State representatives for, to go and make public policy, and we ought not to give a referendum State any greater deference than we give the regular legislative process.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, and then I will be happy to yield to the gentleman, and I will be happy to engage in whatever dialog the gentleman wants, and I hope the gentleman will yield to me and we can engage in it on his time.

Mr. Chairman, let me talk to my colleagues about the historical background for having a three-judge panel in voting rights cases. The Voting Rights Act was adopted in 1965, in the midst of overt racial discrimination in the South.

It applies, primarily, to southern States. All of the judges in the South were from the process that was set up to try to get those racial biases out of the process by bringing more people to bear on it. There was a historic record of why it was necessary.

Mr. Chairman, there is no record of anybody discriminating against the State of California. Nobody has come in here and said that the judges have discriminated against the State of California.

The State court in California also held unconstitutional this proposition that you are concerned about the result of. The Federal court held it unconstitutional, and the State court held it unconstitutional.

So, are we asking for a three-judge panel in the State courts of California also? Are we accusing the State courts of discriminating against California?

There was a factual basis for a three-judge panel in voting rights cases. There is simply not that factual basis in this case.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], my friend, very much for yielding and I compliment him on his statement even though I have a disagreement with it.

We need to realize that in cases of voting rights, Baker versus Carr.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, are we going to have a three-judge panel in voting rights cases. There is simply not that factual basis in this case.

Mr. CHAIRMAN. Mr. Chairman, I yield the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Chairman, I was going to respond to the three mothers and the three highway patrolmen, but if the gentleman does not want me to, that is fine.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time, since the gentleman from California does not want to engage in a dialog; the gentleman wants to make a speech.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Hoke].

Mr. HOKE. Mr. Chairman, I want to respond to a couple of things the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. Watt] said. It is interesting, it is utterly appropriate that we would actually give a preference to referendum, popular referenda, State referenda, because that is the only instance in which the people speak themselves. It is the purest form of democracy that we have got, and we ought to do everything in our power to protect that, to give assurance to the people, to let them know, without any question, that that will be respected and that will be given a preference, if you will, and a larger standing and a better standing than the legislative process.

Mr. Chairman, what happens in the legislative body? People get elected and they make decisions as representatives, but in a referendum it is the only time that we actually have a referendum, a referendum in the way that we ensure that these Democratic institutions have the confidence of the people.

Mr. Chairman, the other thing I would like to say is that I find it a little bit silly to listen to the fiscal responsibility argument regarding this; that somehow we cannot afford—in the handful of cases that will be brought up under this across the country—we cannot afford a three-judge panel instead of a one-judge panel to decide these matters.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOKE. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman is saying to transport three judges to a central location. It is something that we actually have a preference to referenda, court reporters to a central location is not something that we ought to be concerned about? That is an expenditure of the taxpayers' money.
Mr. HOKE. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, of course I am not saying that. What I am saying is that the benefit far, far, far, outweighs the burden.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WARD. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, what I think we are seeing on this side of the aisle is that we had about 5 million Californians overridden by 1 judge. Proposition 187 was approved by an overwhelming majority of Californians, and a couple of other issues. We are just saying that is wrong and we would like to make sure that that does not happen again.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, could I inquire, please, of the remaining time on both sides?

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Ewing). The gentleman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER] has 6½ minutes remaining and the gentleman from California [Mr. MOOREHEAD] has 3 minutes remaining.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, could the gentleman from California use a little more of his time, because the remaining time is unbalanced.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to how many speakers the gentlewoman has?

Mrs. SCHROEDER. At least one, and maybe two.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I would like to get to the heart of the matter and the gentlewoman have 10 minutes remaining for one speaker to speak and we have nothing.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California [Mrs. SEASTRAND].

Mrs. SEASTRAND. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of H.R. 1170. As was mentioned, we talk about 5 million Californians speaking out last year in support of an initiative that passed by an overwhelming majority and 1 man silence. It is a matter of concern.

I hear on the central coast of California, our constituents are very concerned, whether real or not, about the shopping for a judge that is going to come out with a decision that is opposite the majority voice on this. Whether it is real or perceived it is there.

State referenda are special. They allow, more than any other process, the direct will of the majority of citizens in that State to be heard. I do not believe any single person without accountability to anyone should have the power to dismiss that will.

Mr. Chairman, under the current system, a single judge can suspend the direct will of the majority indefinitely without answering to anyone. This bill simply rectifies the unjust situation. It provides for three judges to come to a professional consensus on whether a radical action, such as the injunction, has merit. The judges’ consideration of the case is specifically limited to the State laws which are voted on directly by the entire populace of the State.

There are those who will say that this legislation will bog down the court review process with unneeded appeals, but I say do not believe them, because the Congressional Research Service did a survey that revealed that only 10 cases in the last decade would be eligible for review by a three-judge court under this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I just would encourage this bill to be heard and passed on. It recognizes that State referenda reflect, more than any other process, the one-person-one-vote system. It seeks of a fundamental part of our national structure that come directly from the people should not be easily set aside. We should not, and will not be held in legal limbo by those losing litigators.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Virginia [Mr. GODDLATTE].

Mr. GODDLATTE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California [Mr. MOOREHEAD] for the chairman of our subcommittee, for yielding this time to me. I want to compliment the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] for this fine piece of legislation that will simply give greater assurance to people participating in statewide referenda that they are not going to be overturned by a single judge who may be basing his opinion on something that is not sound judgment.

Mr. Chairman, this is something that is going to help prevent forum shopping. This is going to help prevent the kind of delays that are experienced in these cases. It has been nearly a year since proposition 187 was voted on by more than 5 million voters in the State of California and we still do not have a final resolution of this case.

Mr. Chairman, when millions of people take the time to vote, time away from work, time away from their families, significant inconvenience, sometimes significant cost, they have the right to be assured that their vote is being heard and carefully considered and a three-judge panel simply gives them that assurance.

Mr. Chairman, this does not apply in the case of proposition 187, but that is a good example of why we need to have kind of assurance, simply because of the fact that three judges will be more carefully looking at this right from the start, rather than as a situation that has dragged on for a considerable period of time.

In the 10 instances, there have been only 10 instances where this has been used. So when judges complain that this is a burden on the judiciary, that simply is not the case. When we add up the collective burden of millions of people going to vote in a referendum and then being told by one judge that their votes did not count for anything, I think we have a substantial justification for having a three-judge panel in those instances.

Mr. Chairman, each time this is used, it is used for very important and very significant reasons and I think it is highly justified and properly called for; very comparable to the other instances in which we use three-judge panels. Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. WARD].

Mr. WARD. Mr. Chairman, I wonder if I could ask the gentlewoman some questions. I have a copy of the bill. I wonder if the gentleman from California, [Mr. BONO] could answer some questions about the exact language of the bill.

Mr. Chairman, on line 11 of page 2 of the bill, the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] mentioned that these cases would be heard by a three-judge panel, and then appealed only directly to the Supreme Court. Is my understanding correct?

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. WARD. I yield to the gentleman from California.
Mr. BONO. As I said before, it is simple, very clear. If the gentleman wants to submit an amendment, fine. Otherwise, I really would like it to stand as it is.

Mr. WARD. Mr. Chairman, I understand it is a very clear bill. It is very straightforward. There are actually a couple other questions I might ask, if I can seek the gentleman's indulgence in that.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, what is being displayed before America right now is the thing that they hate. That is lawyers in Congress dealing with rhetoric rather than substance and discouraging Americans in believing in Congress.

Mr. WARD. Mr. Chairman, if I might respond to the gentleman, my only comment would be, first, I am not a lawyer. I am a citizen legislator, as I expect the gentleman is, but I think that we need not denigrate the decisions we are making by saying that only lawyers would care about these decisions. These are laws which will affect every American. We cannot say, this is just a simple law; let it slide through. What are we going to do about cases that also deserve to go directly to the Supreme Court?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. DOOLITTLE].

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to thank the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono] for bringing forth this proposal, because I think it really is a determining factor of the credibility of our democratic processes that we have not only here in the United States but I think we need to recognize in many parts of our States separately.

Mr. Chairman, this is not about 187. That is water under the bridge. But it is about the credibility of the Federal Government's commitment to the right of voters to have that right executed, the voting rights concept.

There is a right to deny a citizen the right to be able to express themselves through the ballot box. One way is the old way that was addressed in 1965. That is not allow them to the ballot box at all. Never let them drop their vote certificate in that. That was addressed in the 1965 law. But now we have this new insidious approach that says, let us wait for them to drop the ballot in the box and then let us erase every ballot in that box by going to one judge who will override the democratic process by that judge's own process.

For good reason in the 1970's, we pointed out that we needed, in 1976, that we needed to make sure that we defended this most sacred right of democracy, the right to express yourself at the polls by having a three-judge requirement. And we can talk all we want, about that it is only one part of this country that law was meant to apply to, the last part I read the law, it applies to us all, and it applies to California, Michigan, Connecticut, and, yes, to Louisiana.

We are asking, with this law that Mr. Bono has brought up, that we defend the whole foundation of democracy just as much after the ballots have been dropped as we have before the ballots. I think that it is appropriate that we follow up. And I am rather distressed that democracy, as we know it, can somehow be expendable. I ask those who claim to be from the Democratic Party to one time stand up and support the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono], in his rational and logical defense of the democratic process.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Colorado [Ms. JACKSON-LEE].

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman from Colorado both for her work and her sincere work on this issue.

I would simply like to note that members of the Committee on the Judiciary are entrusted with the responsibilities of justice, as well as the responsibilities of overseeing the full justic system, as it relates to the courts, both lawyers, nonlawyers and the courts are opposed to this particular legislation.

I would like to ask, if I could, the sponsor of this bill, my colleague, the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono], if he would again answer an inquiry that I have concerning this legislation. I would simply like to ask the gentleman a yes or no question.

If, in fact, this proposition had been ruled on, if the decision in the 187 proposition in California had been ruled on, I assume, in the gentleman's favor, the gentleman would have not offered this legislation? I ask that question because clearly the U.S. judicial conference has stated that this is a bureaucratic piece of legislation that would clog up the federal courts.

I know the gentleman to be a person that wants to unclog the courts, wants to ensure that people do have reasonable concern to justice.

My concern is, is this an isolated incident, or which the gentleman is now trying to create legislation to, in his opinion, correct?

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, if I understand the gentlewoman correctly, this certainly is not retroactive to prop 187; I think it is.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, but would the gentleman have promoted this legislation if the decision by that judge had been one that the gentleman would have considered favorable?

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, if the gentlewoman will continue to yield, would she restate that again?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Would the gentleman have promoted this legislation if in fact he had gotten what he would consider a favorable decision?

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, I would stand behind this legislation any time.

It is bipartisan, in my view, and it represents the public. So the referendum is a side issue.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I think the point is that the gentleman did not answer the question directly.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, I said I would support it.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Was the genesis of the gentleman's interest the fact of prop 187, which denies rights to those children and adults in California needed social services?

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, that is a whole other discussion.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, the Judicial Conference of the United States, the U.S. judicial policymaking group, declares that this would be a horror story for the Federal judiciary. The Conference stated that it would be difficult to manage. The legislation would cause scheduling problems, consume limited judicial resources, of which many of the Republican Congress say they would not support, and, frankly, it would clog the Supreme Court and take away from them the discretion of making determinations on which cases to hear.

I see no judicial basis in having this legislation passed other than disgruntled representation from one State suggesting that they want to have one court decision over the decision the federal court in their jurisdiction fairly rendered.

The other point that I would like to end on is that this is not forum shopping. The judge in the 187 case made a fair and impartial decision. We in the legislature now, with this legislation, are trying to detract from an independent, unbiased decision-making. I think that is poppycock. I ask my colleagues not to vote this bad bill down.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. DOOLITTLE].

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Mr. Chairman, I rise to support this very excellent legislation of the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono].

This legislation will enhance our system of checks and balances by establishing three-judge courts under limited circumstances, which are where injunctive relief has been requested regarding a voter approved initiative. As Thomas Jefferson said, Mr. Chairman, trust not to the good will of judges but bind them down by the chains of the Constitution. This bill takes us 10 steps in that direction.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. DOOLITTLE. I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, this was the judge's decision based on the Constitution in this case. Is the gentleman saying that we should disregard the judge's decision based on the Constitution?

Mr. DOOLITTLE. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I am saying it takes 10 steps in the direction of Jefferson’s quote because it gets three judges involved instead of one judge.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California [Mr. Riggs].

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill.

Our colleague, the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono], has authorized a bill I think we should all support. There is probably nothing more basic to the principles of fairness and democracy than the ballot. When a majority of the people vote, the people should decide. If a majority of the people vote for something, it is wrong for one activist Federal judge to issue an injunction thereby thwarting the will of the people.

H.R. 1170 will counter this imbalance. It will help restore public confidence in the judicial system, and it continues the process that we began when we passed the Common Sense Legal Reform Act.

Mr. ROYCE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this bill.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. Royce].

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of H.R. 1170. As a strong supporter of proposition 187, which was overwhelmingly passed by the people of California in 1994, I was deeply disappointed by the abuse of power 1 judge can have over the will of the people.

The question has been raised as to whether this procedure is too difficult. It is not. The procedure already exists for similar court difficulties and is used more in Voting Rights Act cases and apportionment cases than would be used in referendum cases. Under the Speedy Trial Act and heavy Federal caseloads, Federal judges have increased the Federal judiciary burden, and the referendum process is meant to bring up statistically each year. While some States use the referendum process more frequently, there is no reason to think that this will cause undue burden on the courts.

Mr. Chairman, districts who have been overburdened received the benefit of temporary judgships in 1990. Under the three-judge court statute, one judge may issue temporary restraining orders and make all evidentiary findings alleviating the three-judge court difficulties.

On balance, protection of the voters of a majority of a State’s electorate outweighs the relatively minor inconvenience caused to the Federal judiciary. I ask for an ‘aye’ vote.

Mr. KIM. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of proposition 187. Which was overwhelmingly passed by the people of California in 1994, I was deeply disappointed by the abuse of power 1 judge can have over the will of the people. Proposition 187 was a direct appeal to the Supreme Court.

I believe this legislation is necessary given the quick decision of a single district judge to reverse the strong voice of California residents who went to the Supreme Court to pass proposition 187 and eliminate the free giveaway of benefits for illegal immigrants. This is an issue of great importance to the State of California and the State taxpayers who must continue to pay for those who are blatantly in violation of the law.

The question of the unconstitutionality of proposition 187, although an issue for valid debate in the courts, should not be made by one judge. There must exist for voting rights cases because of the importance of an individual’s right to vote—a three-judge panel should exist for statewide referendum on the same principle—the right to vote.

Again, Mr. Chairman, I call upon all of my colleagues to act, to do good and return the right to vote to the people in California and all the States by passing H.R. 1170.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in the bill shall be considered by sections as an original bill for the purpose of amendment, and pursuant to the rule each section is considered read.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may postpone until 1 minute during further consideration in the Committee of the Whole a request for a recorded vote on any amendment made in order by the resolution.

The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may reduce to not less than 5 minutes the time for voting my electronic device on any postposed question that immediately follows another vote by electronic device without intervening business, provided that the time for voting by electronic device on the first in any set of questions shall not be less than 15 minutes.

The Clerk will designate section 1. The text of section 1 is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. 3 JUDGE COURT FOR CERTAIN INJUNCTIONS.

Any application for an interlocutory or permanent injunction restraining the enforcement, operation, or execution of a State law shall be considered by a three-judge court comprised of an appellate court judge and two district court judges.

I believe this legislation is necessary given the quick decision of a single district judge to reverse the strong voice of California residents who went to the Supreme Court to pass proposition 187 and eliminate the free giveaway of benefits for illegal immigrants. This is an issue of great importance to the State of California and the State taxpayers who must continue to pay for those who are blatantly in violation of the law.

The Clerk will designate section 1. The text of section 1 is as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. 3 JUDGE COURT FOR CERTAIN INJUNCTIONS.

Any application for an interlocutory or permanent injunction restraining the enforcement, operation, or execution of a State law adopted by referendum shall not be granted by a United States district court or judge thereof upon the ground of the unconstitutionality of such State law unless the question for the injunction is heard and determined by a court of 3 judges in accordance with section 2284 of title 28, United States Code. Any appeal of a determination on such application shall be to the Supreme Court. In any case in which this section applies, the additional judges who will serve on the 3-judge court shall be determined under section 2281(d) of the United States Code, as soon as practicable, and the court shall expedite the consideration of the application for an injunction.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute be printed in the Record and open to amendment at any point.
The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The text of the remainder of the consideration of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

SEC. 2. APPLICABILITY. As used in this Act—
(1) the term "State" means each of the several States and the District of Columbia; and
(2) the term "law" means the constitution of a State, or any statute, ordinance, rule, regulation, or other measure of a State that has the force of law, and any amendment thereto.

SEC. 3. EFFECTIVE DATE. This Act applies to any application for an injunction that is filed on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mrs. SCHROEDER: In the first sentence of section 1, strike "Any" and insert "(a) GENERAL RULE. Subject to subsection (b), any application for an injunction that is filed on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, and (b) APPLICABILITY. Subsection (a) applies only to—"

(1) any case filed in a judicial district, or a division in a judicial district, that has only 1 sitting judge; and
(2) any case that is filed in a judicial district with more than 1 sitting judge but is assigned to a judge in any manner other than on a random basis only.

Mrs. SCHROEDER (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be considered as read and printed in the RECORD. There was no objection.

Mrs. SCHROEDER asked and was given unanimous consent to revise and extend her remarks.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, I want to congratulate the gentleman from California [Mr. Boxo] for initiating this excellent piece of legislation. I cannot imagine anything more startling than to learn that a referendum or an initiative, in which 5 million people have participated has been set for naught by one judge who, as we all know, being people in the real world, judges can be wrong. Judges can be wrong, and if they are wrong, and if the referendum is correct, and one judge who decides against 5 million people, or a large percentage thereof, is really an anomaly.

Now what the gentleman from California [Mr. Boxo] and what we are seeking in this Bill is a fair chance at justice. It is not forum shopping to say that collective wisdom is better than individual wisdom. When my colleagues have surgery, they would like a second opinion, a third opinion, and they would get an opinion from those who are skilled, and who have the judgment and have the knowledge that is important in this field. So, if we are dealing with something of such dignity, and such importance, and such weight, and such significance as a statewide referendum, what in the world is wrong with asking that a three-judge panel decide whether it should be operative or it should be set aside? I think that is just.

Now the gentlewoman, for whom my admiration is boundless, and I mean that, says we are going to close down three drug courts. I suppose she means two; they have to slow one down anyway for the judge who is going to hear the case, but I do not see this as either/or proposition, and I do not see an individual drug case being delayed a week or two so that the wishes of millions of people can be adjudicated in a reasonable way, as a bad tradeoff. So I think this is a fine idea.

The gentleman obscures and obfuscates the neat simplicity of this proposal by requiring qualifications where there is only one judge or other procedures for random selection. I think it clutters up the bull. The Bill is very plain and very direct, and I think it is the quickest way to justice for millions of people who take seriously their role in a statewide referendum.

I yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER], my dear friend.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I think my chairman for yielding.
Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, I was reading her mind and assuming that is what she really wanted.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Absolutely I am delighted, and I think the gentleman would admit that people do have that right to have a three-judge panel. They could appeal it to the Court of Appeals, and of course in this case on 187 they did. So at this point they have had four Federal judges, and all four Federal judges have agreed.

Mr. HYDE. Is the gentlewoman saying an appeal is as good as winning the case in the first instance?

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I think, if one does not win it in the first instance, as the gentleman also knows, one has an immediate right; if they think that that injunction was unfairly granted, one has an immediate right to move on that, and I think that is the insurance that a person has.

Mr. HYDE. But that is costly and cumbersome, and maybe the people who do not like this do not have the resources that some of the special interests who want to set it aside do. But an appeal is never as good as winning it in the first place; the gentlewoman knows that I am saying.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. The gentlewoman knows that we always want to win it the first time, but I want to say also I want to make sure that people have those rights and they have the right to immediately go up, and I think the gentleman knows that all the Federal courts have randomly assigned judges and that, unless there is only one judge on the circuit, one cannot forum shop really in the Federal courts.

I guess the other question I have is: If you have a constitutional issue that comes out of a legislature, why should that have a lesser right, if you think this is a higher right, than one by referendum?

Mr. HYDE. Reclaiming my time, that is another issue, and we can debate that on another day, but one of the things that I have never particularly felt favorably toward is no change of venue in the Federal courts, and one can get a budget that they are not at all comfortable with, and perhaps with good reason, and there is no way one can change a venue from him if he or she does not choose to grant it on their own.

So that is another reason that one can go to a process more readily by the collective wisdom of a three-judge panel than one, and I am sure the gentlewoman has much more to say, and she can do it on her own time, and I will listen to her with interest.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment offered by the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. Schroeder] to the bill. I obviously oppose this bill. The amendment would make it slightly better, probably not well enough for me to vote for it even if it passes because I just think this is a bad idea, and I think the American public and my colleagues need to understand why this is a bad idea and why we have not done this in more circumstances. I mean if it was a wonderful idea, why is the only case in which one gets a three-judge panel is in voting rights cases? Why is that? Why is that? If judges are whimsical, as the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary indicated, and they are; I mean I practiced law for 22 years, I know judges are whimsical.

But that does not mean that this is a good idea. There is a reason that we have not done this in other areas of the law.

You should know that we had this process in the Federal law from 1948 to 1976. We repealed this process in 1976. The reason we repealed it was that the bench, the Federal judiciary, lawyers, subject judicial action, and this is from a report that was filed, that "This was the single worst feature in the Federal judicial system."

Now, as if we have forgotten this history, we are going to go back and institute it again. Well, if we do it for this line of cases and it is a good idea, where are we going to draw the line? We are going to get on this slippery slope, and next week we are going to want it for, I guess, traffic offenses or legislative things that are subject judicial action. Or, hey, certainly if the Congress of the United States passes a law, should it not require three judges to declare it unconstitutional, as opposed to just one judge, even though we can appeal it up through the process and go through the normal routine?

This is a bad idea. This is a bad idea. This is not about having an adjudication in a reasonable way, as the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary has said. If this were reasonable and this were the only way to get a reasonable adjudication or deal with adjudications in a reasonable way, then we would be doing it for all of the cases.

There is a reason that we have not adopted this process for other cases. It is costly to have three judges come in and decide something that one judge, who is open to an appeal if he is wrong, can decide, it is costly.

Mr. Chairman, under this proposal the judges of the Committee on the Judiciary have said that if this were reasonable and this were the only way to get a reasonable adjudication or deal with adjudications in a reasonable way, then we would be doing it for all the cases.

There is a reason that we have not adopted this process for other cases. It is costly to have three judges come in and decide something that one judge, who is open to an appeal if he is wrong, can decide, it is costly.

Mr. Chairman, under this proposal the judges of the Committee on the Judiciary have said that if this were reasonable and this were the only way to get a reasonable adjudication or deal with adjudications in a reasonable way, then we would be doing it for all the cases.

This is a bad idea. This is a bad idea. This is not about having an adjudication in a reasonable way, as the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary has said. If this were reasonable and this were the only way to get a reasonable adjudication or deal with adjudications in a reasonable way, then we would be doing it for all of the cases.
We are bringing more democracy to the American people, who have feelings on one side or the other. And I think that the bill, as it is written, is much better than if you lock out certain parts of the country because the judges are not or there are not as many in one district, where there are several districts in the State.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I hold in my hand a document that many of us hold extremely dear, and that is the Constitution of the United States. Our Founding Fathers wisely designed a form of government that established the executive, the legislative, and the judicial branches, and in that I think their wisdom was that it was important for the American people to have access to government in three separate and distinct branches. It also offers an opportunity for mutual respect, and also, to a certain extent, some cross-pollination, with basic factual premises.

I think the difficult concepts that need to be evidenced here as I rise to support the Schroeder amendment are important. This is a very carefully crafted amendment which would eliminate the very burdensome, costly and time-consuming procedures, and answer the so-called question of forum shopping. The concepts are that while we are here discussing a judicial issue, we are really talking about a political question in the State of California and a legislative undoing of an important judicial decision.

I do respect and appreciate the people's right to vote, and I do believe that the people of California were heard by a randomly selected district judge, federally appointed, who would have the freedom and the independence to make a constitutional decision based upon the Constitution and the responsibilities of three separate and distinct branches of government.

We now find ourselves here in this legislative body disturbing that sacred process by suggesting that a few disgruntled citizens did not get their way in California, partly to put poor people out in the street, denying educational rights to children and health benefits to the elderly that are in this country, a whole other story, a whole other issue. But because that was not a decision made by a court, in this body appreciated, we now want to alter the Constitution of the United States.

The Schroeder amendment gives some dignity to the Constitution, for what it says is if we determine there is a problem, then in fact this process can be one that we would adhere to. If there is documentation that there has been a real problem in a jurisdiction, then this three-court panel can be established.

Right now we have no documentation. The irony is we have a disgruntled bunch not willing to accept the ruling of the court, and we now want to distort the Constitution and clog up the courts, in direct opposition to a letter from the Judicial Conference of the United States of America.

How interesting. How interesting. In contrast, my colleagues on the Committee on the Judiciary wanted to undermine just a California, by just one individual. It does not go in massively, all over the Nation, and upset the apple cart, and upset the three branches of government, executive, legislative, and judicial, sanctioned and confirmed by the Constitution of the United States of America.

Mr. Chairman, I would suggest that we support this amendment, which would allow those who have a sincere concern with judge shopping to respond to their problem, while at the same time preserving precious judicial resources. It allows us to go in where there is a problem and fix it. I hope my colleagues who have mentioned this issue of forum shopping, and I do respect the chairman of this subcommittee, I hope that they can understand that we are doing great damage, great damage, to this judicial process, and I frankly cannot understand why we would completely ignore the Judicial Conference of the United States of America which opposes this legislation strongly and firmly.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to comment that this case has not been heard. Everything that has occurred has simply been on technicalities. But the case itself has not been heard and it still not heard.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. There has been an order.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE] has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Ms. JACKSON-LEE was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, if I may make one point, there has been a temporary restraining order.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, all I want to say is our committee does have a major responsibility. The Judicial Act of 1789 set up the Federal courts. Our committee, our Subcommittee on Courts, does have the responsibility of providing the judicial procedure that is followed. This bill is strictly in accordance with the responsibilities that we have in carrying out that duty that we have.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I appreciate the duty, but I would also hope we would do it on the premise that we have a duty to correct. I am not convinced and I do not think the American people can be convinced that this is not just an isolated incident. We do not need additional jurisdiction for three-judge courts and a further clogging of the court system.

Mr. Chairman, I want to say to the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono], there was a preliminary injunction against proposition 187 that was affirmed on appeal.

We have not gone on the premise where there is something to fix. We are just in the clogging of the courts. This amendment will in fact help isolate the problem and solve the problem where there is one, and not broadly disregard the Constitution of the United States.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, just to review the purpose of this legislation, and I rise in strong opposition to the Schroeder gutting amendment and in support of the Bono voting rights bill, but I ask the Members if they can imagine this scenario? Last November an overwhelming number of Californians voted, almost 60 percent, supporting the passage of proposition 187. What proposition 187 would have done is eliminate social services for illegal aliens. Not legal aliens or citizens, but for a people who are in this country illegally in the first place. An overwhelming 5 million California taxpayers said enough is enough.

They said that they have problems enough taking care of their own citizens and they voted to put a stop to this spending that costs California taxpayers over $200 million every year. But, amazingly, this overwhelming will of the people in California was snubbed by just one individual.

Mr. Chairman, referendums, more than any other electoral process, reflect the direct will of the people and should not be easily cast aside. Under the current system, opponents of a referendum can go judge shopping to find one single judge that will stop the referendum. This legislation, the Bono voting rights legislation, will replace that practice with a three-judge panel from all parts of the State so that the referendum, the will of the people, gets a fair shake.

I urge support of the voting rights bill and I urge opposition against the gutting Schroeder amendment.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?
Mr. HERGER. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman yielding to me so I can respond to the previous speaker on the other side of the aisle. The gentleman from California [Mr. LeLoup] referred to the 5 million California voters, who, as she points out in her remarks, overwhelmingly voted to approve proposition 187 as a disgruntled few.

I would like to tell the gentlewoman that when I have my town meetings back home in my district, I am approached by constituents all too often who inquire about proposition 187 and they ask why proposition 187 is not the law of the State of California today. I have to explain to them about the Ninth District Court, about a very liberal and activist judiciary we have in that court.

Mr. Chairman, I really believe what we are talking about here is correcting a flawed municipal system and correcting this bad practice, this precedent of thwarting the people's will by, in fact, venue shopping, or forum shopping. I want to point out again that these 5 million disgruntled few are the voters who are disenfranchising by the law today.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HERGER. I yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado.

Mr. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I keep hearing these allegations of forum shopping. My understanding is that the district that this went to had 25 Federal judges and they are randomly assigned. My question is, Does the gentleman have some evidence of forum shopping we do not know about? And does random assignment in circumstances with more than one judge not prevent that type of forum shopping.

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Chairman, to respond to the gentlewoman, again, what we are attempting to do is get the will of the people. We still have a situation where 5½ million, right at 60 percent of those who who are elected to public office simply do not have the courage to explain the facts to the people they represent. In the State of California, that I represent, along with many of my colleagues in this body, we use the initiative process like some people change their clothes or change channels. It is not a pure process, it was put in as a reform, but now anybody who can came up with about 5½ million, I can guarantee, can get the signatures for an initiative in California and they can get their way. They do not desire to have put on that ballot.

Many have ridiculed the California initiative process. Many people say it is crazy, it is out of bounds, whatever, but it is a means by which the people get to express their views on various issues. But it is not always the people that put it on the ballot. Very often it is a commercial interest. It is the tobacco industry that puts an initiative on. And then people who do not like smoking, put on an initiative.

The farm bureau put one on so nobody could regulate farm workers. The people turned that down. Then the farm workers put one on that said everybody has to regulate the farmers, and the people turned that down.

When they got to putting a smoking initiative on they said, the people who wrote that said, people can smoke in rock concerts but they cannot smoke at the opera. The people said, that sounds right, we turned that down.

The tobacco industry put on an initiative that said we will overrule all the local jurisdictions trying to eliminate smoking, and the people said that does not sound good, we will turn this down.

...Most of this happens because it gets stalled in the legislature. The insurance industry said we will have no fault insurance. Somebody else said, no, we will have fault, fault, fault insurance, and we passed both of those. The gun control industry, and the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono] maybe will remember this, I think they spent $20 million on this. This was about the will of the people? This was not about the will of the people.

Mr. Chairman, now along came 187 and people decided that they did not think they should any longer pay for illegal aliens in this country, residents in this country who had not come here legally. It made a lot of common sense. But if they got into it, they started writing it in huge and kind of overreaching, going further and further, and they went right past the U.S. Constitution. People were emotionally caught up so they voted for it and it passed overwhelmingly.

A lot of politicians were for it and a lot of politicians were against it. Most people reviewed it after the fact and said it probably was not the greatest legislation.

Mr. Chairman, then on that side said this is not good, we will appeal it. They appealed it. It went to a three-judge panel and they said, we think the lower court might be right and they upheld the injunction. Those are the laws of the United States of America.

Rather than tell people that some individual out there that might be impacted was petitioning the court to protect their rights under the Constitution of the United States, the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono] has decided he would make the Government the enemy. He has decided it was come corrupt judge who was not really giving him a fair shake; that was forum shopped.

What the gentleman is suggesting is that somehow the system let the people down; the system let the people down because the judge came from northern California instead of southern California. Were they disenfranchised during the vote? Should they be disenfranchised from reviewing it? Of course not. This is not forum shopping, this was testing the provision against the Constitution.

Mr. Chairman, this is not the first time this has happened. Not the first time in California. They have done it on handguns and other gun control measures. Sometimes we win and sometimes we lose. This is what the Constitution does, it protects the minority, it protects the unpopular, that they have a right to go and petition.

If that one judge had ruled in the gentleman's favor, he would not be here today. But we must understand something. Because 5 million people in this country vote for something, that certainly makes us take notice, and that is why we are on the floor today, but it does not make their vote right in terms of the Constitution.

Mr. Chairman, we have nine members across the lawn here that have overruled the desires many times and the wants of tens of millions of Americans when they decide cases, when the decide cases on abortion, or they decide cases on apportionment or on civil rights.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. Miller] has expired.

Mr. RIGGS. Without consent, Mr. MILLER of California was to proceed for 3 additional minutes.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, if Members want to know how we make cynical voters; if they want to know how to make people hate the system, it is that we mislead them about what the system did. Nobody was mistreated under this system. Those people that voted for Proposition 187 and those that voted against it were being protected throughout this process.

The initial question of whether or not we should enjoin the law before we find out its impacts and who it will hurt and is it the Constitution, one individual deciding that is not a crime. There may be better or worse, but that is not why we are here today. We are here today because people have chosen to trash the government rather than explain the Constitution and explain to people that sometimes might not do make right. We are one of the few countries where that is the case.

Mr. Chairman, 5 million people voted Their views are being acknowledged. We have changed our attitudes here. We have participated in the laws on immigration. The State legislature has done the same, and a lot of things have happened since that vote, but it does not necessarily mean that that vote is constitutional. People have a right to seek a review of that.

We would be a better government, we would better serve the people if we leveled with them that there is a process, and whether it is the work product of the initiative in California, where people go to the polls, or whether it is the work product of this Congress, there is a means by which it is reviewed so that people can protect their rights and enforce others' responsibilities. It is the judicial system. And that was not abused in this process.

Mr. Chairman, the judge did nothing willy-nilly. And I would not like to be this judge, overturning the views of a popular side of an election. But judges are there because they discharge tough issues. Issues that have been brought before them. They have to make that decision. We would probably want to have a hearing on it. We would probably want to send it to interim. We would want to hold it over till the next session, but that judge had to rule, and now the system is engaged.

We would be better served if we discussed that rather than trying to refight proposition 187 on the backs of the judges and the courts and the system in this country, because I think we do them as we mislead our constituents. We mislead the voters and mislead the citizens about what they can and cannot do under the Constitution of this country.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. Miller] has again expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. Miller of California was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from California [Mr. Bono].

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, first of all, if I understand the referendum system correctly, there is often a disillusionment on behalf of Government to the people, in that they do not act on things. They pontificate, but they do not necessarily act. At a certain point of frustration, the people themselves respond and get it done.

Mr. Chairman, all the gentleman has the same passion about proposition 174, where the CTA spent $25 million to prevent the freedom of school choice and vouchers?

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, and I will yield if the gentleman needs more time, but I would have the same passion. What I said at the outset, my point was this, if we want to represent that somehow the pure view and motives of the California voting public was overruled, and I am suggesting to the gentleman that we are all residents in California and we watched this process. The initiative process is the most manipulative process because usually it is millions of dollars by people who want to change the rules of the game one way or another because they were not successful in the legislature for one reason or another.

Mr. Chairman, this is not just Polly Purebreath and her friends coming out and saying, we want to do this for the good of society. It does not happen that way, because most of those people cannot gather the signatures because the legislature makes them get more and more signatures, which means citizens have to have more money, and the gentleman knows that.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, I just do not remember this argument when 174 went down. Nobody seemed to object at all.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, if you lose in the courts, you lose in the courts. A lot of initiatives have gone down and people have shrugged their shoulders. That is the process.

Mr. BONO. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would continue to yield, they lost at the ballot box.

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, again reclaiming my time, what is happening here is the trashing, the absolute trashing of the Government for political motives, which is about trying to lead people to believe that somehow they have been screwed in the process, because somebody exercised their right on the court.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MILLER of California. I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, this bill does not apply to proposition 187. My State of Virginia does not have initiatives, it just has referendums. But the State legislature can put a referendum ending the hot, millions of people can take time to go to the polls. The gentleman from California [Mr. Miller] pointed out that when millions of people were overruled by this nine-judge court, the Supreme Court, why is it not better to have a three-judge panel on these rare instances when millions of people participate in this process and want to have a little better assurance? It is a protection on both sides.

That judge could have ruled that it was constitutional and the gentleman from California might have thought it was not constitutional. Why not have a three-judge panel give better protection for the people?

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I am almost less concerned about the content than I am about the political motivation here. I think when we see a country that is more and more disenchanted with its institutions, we are suggesting here that when one side or the other, however it happened, whatever the reason is, and again, we have been through this numerous times in California, when one side exercises their rights, people want to run around and suggest that they cheated. That somehow the institutions let them down. That is what concerns me here more than anything else.

Again, there will be millions of people that will vote on initiatives this next election in California. We have several that are slated to come up. And in the gentleman's State of Virginia, they have the initiative process. That will happen, but that does not mean that the result of their work product, their voting and interest and involvement, is necessarily unconstitutional.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. Miller] has again expired.

(Advocating for the process, Mr. Miller of California was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, this is more about suggesting to them that their review was outside of the system; that they should have presented their plans. They were at the ballot box. The gentleman from Virginia [Mr. Goodlatte] knows, the gentleman is a lawyer, that is simply not the case. We do not get to do that.

Mr. GOODLATTE. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, look ahead prospectively. This does not apply to proposition 187. Whatever the politics of that is, leave it behind and look ahead prospectively and say in the future we are going to tell people when they participate hundreds of thousands or the millions that they have the opportunity to be assured they will have a three-judge panel.

Mr. Chairman, 10 times in 10 years is all this would have happened. Once a year. Very reasonable, I think to me, when you bring that many people out, you get that many people aroused about an issue. And you may be right. Sometimes they are ginned up over something that is not a good idea. Let us do it more carefully with a three-judge panel.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?
Mr. MILLER of California. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. MOOREHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I want to tell the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] that I love the court system, having practiced in it a great deal, and have served on the committee that has jurisdiction over the courts for many years. I would not trash the courts for any reason. I love this body that we are in, the House of Representatives, and I would not trash it in any way either.

I just ask the court system better, where our responsibility leads us in that direction.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER] has again expired.

(On request of Mrs. SCHROEDER, and by unanimous consent, Mr. MILLER of California was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, I think if I can answer some of the questions that I think the gentleman from California has so eloquently asked, and I really think this gentleman for taking the floor, had we this process in 1976, and this Congress unanimously did away with it, because they said it was so burdensome on the court.

Mr. Chairman, it takes three judges. You push them out of the courtrooms in different places. We know that the Federal system is absolutely overloaded with drug cases, crime cases. We do not want to give any more resources to the courts, so we are handing them another mandate.

Mr. Chairman, I think the other issue that has been raised is this gives them a direct access to the Supreme Court without an appellate record, because they do not go through the Court of Appeals. Other people do not get direct access to the Supreme Court. They have got to go and make their case and the Supreme Court picks and chooses the ones they want. But this gives them direct access and it is a wonderful way to just push everybody else out of the line.

Mr. Chairman, I think what my colleagues are doing is treating somebody unfairly, and so does J ustice Rehnquist and his group that has sent us a letter saying, "Wait a minute, wait a minute.

We have not heard horror stories about how terrible and how absolutely outrageous this process has been since then. It has worked for reapportionment.

Under J ustice Clark’s ruling, all the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] says is let us reflect the fact that the initiative process is a reapportionment issue and should be treated equal to with the same process that reapportionment has had since the 1940s and was specifically retained by this Congress back in 1976.

Mr. Chairman, I have to say to the gentlewoman from Colorado [Mrs. SCHROEDER], if it is going to cause so many problems to follow the lead of the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] on this thing, then why was this law not changed in 1976? Why did we not have these conditions?

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BILBRAY. I yield to the gentlewoman from Colorado.

Mrs. SCHROEDER. Mr. Chairman, it was changed in 1976. They had 3-judge panels from 1948 to 1976, and in 1976, the House and Senate changed it at the request of the courts. The courts today have written a letter. I am sure the gentleman from California [Mr. BILBRAY] has seen it, begging us not to do this again because it is so onerous. It really impacts on all of their different dockets that they have got that are so backed up and it does not end up with any result. They still get a 3-court panel, because they get to appeal to the Court of Appeals. So they are saying, “Wait a minute, wait a minute. This is very different.” And the voting rights case only happened once a decade. That is a little bit unique. That is once a decade. And that is a very different type of case from this. There are 20 referendums a year.

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, J ustice Clark was clarifying that it is not a totally different issue and that has not been overturned yet. The letters from the judges, as somebody who ran a county of 2.5 million full of judges, I know what the process likes to be and would like to be. They have to follow the Constitution too.

Mr. Chairman, this clarifies the fact that again, if the 3-judge process has been used and who supported having the three-judge process for reapportionment, then all parts of activity that relate to reapportionment should be following the same rule. Mr. Chairman, I insist that we recognize that the gentleman from California [Mr. BONO] is only reinforcing a ruling that the Supreme Court made and basically statutorily corrects an inconsistency that we have detected recently. And we not only have the right

My colleagues, this is a bad, bad bill. It is bad, bad public policy. We should be serious about it if we are interested in saving taxpayers money. We have been here trying to balance the budget, we say. Yet, in this one instance to play politics with one person from California and one from Texas and Mr. ROTH changed their vote from "no" to "aye." So the amendment was rejected. The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WATT OF NORTH CAROLINA

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment. The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. WATT of North Carolina: Page 3, line 3, strike "each of the several States and the District of Columbia," and insert "the State of California;". Page 3, line 4, strike "a" and replace with the". Page 3, line 5, strike "a" and replace with the".

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I am offering this amendment to restrict the effect of this bill to the State of California, rather than to the entire United States, because the bill is being offered to address a specific problem.

This is a terrible bill, my colleagues. If we have a terrible bill, it seems to me that the least we ought to try to do is limit it to as small an area as we can possibly limit it to.

This bill comes forward simply because some of the folks in California do not like the results of a lawsuit that was filed and a court decision that was entered in California which declared the results of a referendum unconstitutional under the Federal Constitution of the United States.

There is not but one other instance, one instance in the law now where a three-judge panel of judges is required, and that is in the area of voting rights. The effect of this bill would be to create a three-judge panel every time a constitutional issue was raised where a referendum has been conducted in a State. It makes no sense to do that.

We had a law on the books from approximately 1945 to 1976 which required three-judge panels. It was taken off of the books, repealed because the judiciary, lawyers, and the general public all concluded that it was the worst part of the judicial system that existed at that time.

Now we are being called upon simply because some of the representatives in California do not like the results of a lawsuit to put that law back on the books to apply to every State in the Union. The effect of this bill would be to require three judges to decide a case when one judge has been deciding it in the past.

Once we start doing it in referendum cases, then I am not sure how we restrict it.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD—HOUSE
September 28, 1995

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, I just want to say, sort of in passing, to my friend from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], who is one of the most valuable members of the House Committee on the Judiciary, but I was taken aback by his remarks about the extra cost and the burden on the courts. It was somewhat taken aback by the gentleman from North Carolina's concern about the extra burden on the courts for convening a three-judge panel to decide a State referendum or initiative that the constitutionality, that the gentleman from North Carolina would say, it would be very fat. I am not sure what the gentleman being at the point in habeas corpus reform where cases go up and down and up and down and up and down. I can think of one that lasted 34 years, with 52 appeals. I just do not recall the gentleman being a leader in trying to reform that burden on the courts.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I want to respond to the chairman that the last time I checked the Constitution, there is nothing in the Constitution that guarantees anybody a three-judge panel. There is something that talks about habeas corpus and the writ of habeas corpus.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, justice delayed is justice denied. If it takes 14 years to process a habeas corpus petition and 52 appeals, there is something very wrong. I would expect the gentleman who is sensitive about burdens on the court to help us lead that fight.

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BONDO] for giving the distinguished representative from North Carolina [Mr. WATT], who is sensitive about burdens on the court, the distinction of bringing forth the worst bill he has ever heard of in his life.

However, it is a bill that I am very proud of and simply for this reason: We are here to represent the people. And why do they have a referendum? Because sometimes people are not represented so they can do that themselves.

Five million people from a State speak and feel that they have been the victim of an injustice. And I have heard the Constitution brought up over and over and over. But nobody brings up that our State has been suffering from crime, from illegal aliens. That means against the law. So I think that carries a weight as well as the Constitution does.

So, we have people that continue to violate the law. The State is up to here with it. They wanted it ended. Governor Moore did not end it, he forced them to end it themselves. I respect their position. After they ended it, again they were duped. And now they are the victims of this dupe.
Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Chairman, I have a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Chairman, is it not parliamentary procedure that, when the time on one side has expired, the Chair acknowledges for recognition those seeking time on the other side?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman was the last member seeking recognition. The Chair will alternate. There was no committee member seeking recognition on the gentleman's side that came to the attention of the Chair.

Mr. MFUME. Mr. Chairman, if I might respectfully disagree with the Chair, the Chair's call for the culmination of the gentleman's time was so fast and the time that he recognized the other gentleman, that there were persons on this side that did not even know that the Chair was seeking other Members.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will alternate between sides.

The gentleman from Indiana [Mr. Buyer] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to make several points. I will not take the full 5 minutes.

That is, I think the 1965 Voting Rights Act rightfully mandates the three-judge panel to pass judgment on issues dealing with voting rights. When we have a State acting as one voice in a State referendum, there is a proper nexus between the State's voice and that of issues of voting rights under the Voting Rights Act. So with that proper nexus, I think it is a very good issue for this Congress to take.

So what we are saying here, if in fact we are going to always mandate in a voting rights case so that it be decided by three Federal judges and now the nexus, it is not also proper for us to have a three-judge panel decide the issues of a State referendum on the issues of constitutionality?

I would submit that, yes, it is, because we do not want to take such a paramount issue and allow it to be decided by one.

Now, some debate can either side whether it is arbitrary or capricious. I think it is very important to move to the three-judge panel, especially when we are talking about the people's voice. It is the people's voice under the law. The people's voice under the law is the protection of the minority, and I think that what is so wonderful about our country and society as a republic, a nation of laws, not people, and I compliment the gentleman from California. It is a side issue to talk about, well, what is the underlying reason.

I think that this is a good bill and should be applied across to all States.

Mr. Chairman, that is why I rise in opposition to the gentleman's amendment and say, oh, we are just going to allow it to apply to California. No, we should apply this to any State out there, so let us vote down the gentleman's amendment, and let us side with ration and reason and not with the side of politics.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. WATT].

The amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there further amendments?

If there are no other amendments, the question is on the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Hefley) having assumed the chair, Mr. Ewing, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, took the Chair, and read a third time, and was read the third time. The Committee rises.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to make several points. I will not take the full 5 minutes.

That is, I think the 1965 Voting Rights Act rightfully mandates the three-judge panel to pass judgment on issues dealing with voting rights. When we have a State acting as one voice in a State referendum, there is a proper nexus between the State's voice and that of issues of voting rights under the Voting Rights Act. So with that proper nexus, I think it is a very good issue for this Congress to take.

Mr. GUTIERREZ changed his vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. BARCIA changed his vote from "no" to "aye."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The title of the bill was amended so as to read: "A bill to provide that an application for an injunction restraining the enforcement, operation, or execution of a State law adopted by referendum may not be granted on the ground of the unconstitutionality of such law unless the application is heard and determined by a 3-judge court."

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The conference also recognizes the important role of trade associations in directing branded promotional activities in emerging foreign markets. The conference also agrees that the Department of Agriculture should not discriminate between cooperatives and small businesses in allocating Market Promotion Program funds.

Amendment No. 135: Authorizes $60,000,000 in savings resulting from Public Law 103-465 to be used to finance title II of Public Law 480 funding. The Senate bill proposes that $50,000,000 in credited savings be used for title III. The House bill contained no similar provision.

FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION

BUILDINGS AND FACILITIES

Amendment No. 136: Appropriates $122,500,000 for Food and Drug Administration Buildings and Facilities instead of $153,000,000 as proposed by the House and $8,350,000 as proposed by the Senate.

The conference agrees that the Senate language regarding the Food and Drug Administration's field office restructuring is not intended to impede consolidation efforts.

Amendment No. 140: Makes a technical correction changing the word "Agriculture" to "Agricultural" as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 141: Makes a technical correction changing the word "Market" to "Marketing" as proposed by the Senate.

Amendment No. 142: Restores language prohibiting the use of Market Promotion Program funds for assistance to the U.S. Bankruptcy Court instead of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 143: Restores House language prohibiting use of Market Promotion Program funds for assistance to the U.S. Bankruptcy Court because of the high cost of providing such assistance. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 144: Restores House language prohibiting the use of Market Promotion Program funds for assistance to any mink industry trade association. The Senate bill addresses this issue in Amendment No. 157.

Amendment No. 145: Restores House language prohibiting the use of Market Promotion Program funds for assistance to the U.S. Bankruptcy Court because of the high cost of providing such assistance. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 150: Provides that none of the funds in this Act may be used to develop guidelines, implement, or enforce poultry labeling regulations promulgated on August 25, 1995, until legislation is enacted directing the Secretary of Agriculture to promulgate such a regulation. The House and Senate authorizing committees receive and approve a revised proposal as proposed by the Senate. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 151: Deletes language proposed by the Senate prohibiting funds from being used for the salaries and expenses of the Board of Tea Experts. The House bill contained no similar provision. The conference agreement addresses this issue in Amendment No. 152.

Amendment No. 152: Provides that none of the funds appropriated or made available to the Food and Drug Administration in this Act shall be used to operate the Board of Tea Experts. The conference agreement does not repeal the Tea Importation Act as proposed by the Senate. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 153: Deletes the Senate language providing that the marketing assessment statute for the Tobacco program be amended to provide that administrative costs of the tobacco program. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 154: Provides that none of the funds shall be used that results in a loss or restriction and use of water from existing water supply facilities located on National Forest lands as proposed by the Senate. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 155: Deletes language proposed by the Senate providing for energy consumption measurements. The House bill contained no similar provisions.

Amendment No. 157: Deletes language proposed by the Senate prohibiting the funds made available in the Market Promotion Program from being used to carry out mink experts. The House bill and the conference address this issue in Amendment No. 145.

Amendment No. 158: Deletes the Senate language on United States-Canada cooperation concerning an outlet to relieve flooding at Devils Lake in North Dakota. The House bill contained no similar provision. The conference expects the Natural Resources Conservation Service to participate in a technical committee to address this problem.

Amendment No. 159: Deletes language proposed by the Senate repealing the Swine Health Advisory Committee and the Global Climate Change Technical Advisory Committee. The House bill contained no similar provision.

Amendment No. 160: Amends language proposed by the Senate directing the Secretary of Agriculture to not enforce final regulations promulgated on August 25, 1995, to implement the Forest Resources Conservation and Shortage Relief Act of 1990.
conferences expect the Secretary to take notice and public comment on these final regulations and make the appropriate revisions based upon that public comment. Such revisions should be based on any provisions in the regulations, including but not limited to, excessive log painting requirements, substitution and sourcing regulations, the transportation of private timber into or through sourcing areas; and provisions that discourage domestic use of private timber; among other provisions of the regulation.

(i) $500,000 or the total deferred participation share of the loan that exceeds $250,000, 3.5 percent of the difference between—

(I) $500,000 or the total deferred participation share of the loan; and

(II) $250,000; and

(ii) if the deferred participation share of the loan exceeds $500,000, 3.875 percent of the difference between—

And to the same extent that the Senate reenacted its disagreement to the amendment of the House to the title of the bill, and agree to the same.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE CONFERENCE COMMITTEE.

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 896) to amend the Small Business Act to reduce the level of participation by the Small Business Administration in certain loans guaranteed by the Administration, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

The conference agreement establishes new guarantee levels, program fees, and administrative provisions governing the Small Business Administration's 7(a) Guaranteed Business Loan Program and the 504 Certified Development Company Program.

The conference agreement lowers the guaranté rate for all 7(a) loans to 75%, except for loans of $100,000 or less, which will have a guaranté rate of 80%. As part of this overall change, the guarantee rate for Export Working Capital Program loans will be decreased to be consistent with other 7(a) loans. The conferees are aware of efforts by the Small Business Administration to coordinate the features and operations of the Export Working Capital Program with a similar program operated by the Export-Import Bank. The conferees are supporting the continuing joint efforts of the SBA and Export-Import Bank to encourage and facilitate small business participation in the export marketplace. In establishing the new guarantee rate under the Export Working Capital Program, the legislation should not be interpreted as expressing any intention or expectation that the guarantee rate for the Eximbank program be reduced to the same level. The conferees authorize the SBA, in consultation with the Export-Import Bank, to issue a report no later than 120 days after the enactment of this Act assessing the impact, if any, of the reduced guarantee rate on the Export Working Capital Program. The report should include a comparison of the 7(a) program with the working capital guarantee program of the Export-Import Bank, and shall include an analysis of the number and size of transactions concluded under the program, both prior to and after enactment of the new guarantee provisions.

Under the conference agreement, guaranté fees under the 7(a) program increase as the size of the loan increases. The conferees are aware of the concern expressed by the Small Business Administration that lenders and borrowers may seek to arrange a number of smaller, related loans in order to avoid the higher guaranté fee applicable to a single, larger loan. The conferences direct the Small Business Administration to implement the provisions described in the conference agreement with such instructions, definitions, rules regulations or guidelines as the SBA may deem necessary in order to prevent avoidance or evasion of these fees, including establishing a reasonable period of time during which related loans will be treated as constituting a single loan for purposes of calculating the guaranté fee.

The effect of the provisions included in the conference agreement will be to reduce the subsidy rate in 7(a) loan program and increase the availability of a guaranté authority under the program. The conference directs the SBA, promptly upon enactment of the legislation included in the conference report, to remove the temporary administrative limitations previously implemented by the SBA to limit demand for 7(a) loan guarantées. Any such administrative program changes in the future will be subject to the provisions of Section 5 of the new legislation.

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announces that the Senate has agreed to the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 896) "An Act to amend the Small Business Act to reduce the level of participation by the Small Business Administration in certain loans guaranteed by the administration, and for other purposes." A conference report is filed with the Senate upon enactment of this Act.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announces that the Senate has agreed to the amendments of the House to the bill (S. 896) "An Act to amend the Small Business Act to reduce the level of participation by the Small Business Administration in certain loans guaranteed by the administration, and for other purposes." A conference report is filed with the Senate upon enactment of this Act.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 231 is an uncomplicated, but very important rule which provides for the timely consideration of the conference report to accompany H.R. 1977, making appropriations for the Department of the Interior and related agencies in fiscal year 1996.

Specifically, the resolution waives all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration on the floor today. As a precautionary step, the blanket waiver includes a waiver of clause 2 of rule 20, regarding legislative or unauthorized items, and clause 3 of rule 28, regarding items which go beyond the scope of the conference.

The resolution was reported unanimously by the Rules Committee yesterday by voice vote, and I would urge my colleagues to give it their full support.

Mr. Speaker, the Interior appropriations bill is certainly no stranger to controversy. When such divergent issues as land use and mining claims are combined with Federal funding for the arts and humanities into a single spending bill, difficulties are bound to arise.

Yet, where there are difficulties, there is also potential for bipartisan compromise. A conference committee, under the strong leadership of my good friend from Ohio, Chairman REGULA, and the members of the conference committee—on both sides of the aisle—have worked very hard to finaize a balanced, responsible product in the face of competing interests, and limited Federal resources.

The American people have charged us with cutting Government spending, and this conferees' report responds to their calls for a smaller, more efficient Government. The bill is $1.7 billion below the President's budget request and $1.4 billion below the fiscal year 1995 level—a 12-percent savings from the 1994 level.

The conference report also meets our fundamental goal of reducing the size and scope of the Federal Government. In addition to eliminating certain agencies and programs and consolidating others within existing Federal departments, almost all agencies covered by the bill are funded below the 1995 level.

Mr. Speaker, in recent days we have heard that this conference report has attracted a potential veto threat from the White House. In light of our efforts to resolve funding differences in a bipartisan manner, I believe such a step would be very unfortunate, and even counterproductive as we work to finalize this year's appropriations process.

The Senate will soon consider the continuing resolution which the House passed earlier today to ensure that the Federal Government remains open for business as the new fiscal year begins on Sunday.

A Presidential veto at this time would just add to the challenges we face in providing the Federal work force the stability it needs.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, we have the responsibility to move this critical process forward and to complete work on each of the 13 regular appropriation bills. House Resolution 212 is a simple and straightforward rule providing for the timely consideration of the fourth conference report to come to the floor of the House. I urge my colleagues to support this reasonable rule and to pass this balanced conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we oppose this rule, and we oppose the measure that it makes in order, the conference report on Interior appropriations for fiscal year 1996. The rule repeals all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration. One major reason why the conference report needs such a rule is that it contains numerous violations of clause 2 of rule XXI, the rule which preserves all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration. One major reason why the conference report needs such a rule is that it contains numerous violations of clause 2 of rule XXI, the rule which preserves all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration. One major reason why the conference report needs such a rule is that it contains numerous violations of clause 2 of rule XXI, the rule which preserves all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration.

That is not the case here. The conference report contains far-reaching changes in policies governing the use of our Nation's natural resources, or, as the Los Angeles Times recently put it, it is, and I quote, Mr. Speaker, "swollen with hidden attacks on the public lands, national parks, and the environment."

This rule is what makes it possible for the House to move forward and to consummate those attacks.

To give some examples: This conference report includes a major change in the law governing mining patents. Nearly everyone agrees that this law, dating back to 1872, is in desperate need of reform. But rather than continuing the existing moratorium on issuing mining patents to give the policy committees time to draft a reform bill, as the House by a margin of 271 to 153 voted to do, the conferees approved a change in the price mining companies are required to pay for a mining patent from no more than $5 an acre to fair market value of the surface of the land. That so-called reform would enrich mining companies at a cost to taxpayers of tens of millions of dollars in lost royalties.

The legislation also includes a backdoor attempt to remove the Mojave National Preserve from the protection of the National Park Service by prohibiting the Park Service from spending more than $1 next year on the Preserve and shifting authority for it back to the Bureau of Land Management, whose rules are much more lenient than are the Park Service's rules on mining, grazing, dirt biking, and other potentially detrimental activities.

The conference report directs the Forest Service to change policy with regard to the Tongass National Forest in Alaska, our Nation's premier temperate rain forest, in order to dramatically increase logging in environmentally sensitive areas of the forest.

The conference report prohibits adding new species of plants and animals to the endangered species list, despite clear scientific evidence that hundreds of species awaiting listing are headed toward extinction.

The legislation cripples a joint Forest Service-BLM ecosystem management project for the Columbia River Basin to the Northwest, a project intended to allow a sustainable flow of timber from that region. This provision threatens the protection of salmon and other critical species and guarantees continued court battles over logging in that region.

In addition, Mr. Speaker, to all these troubling provisions, the conference report endangers resource protection by reducing spending for many critical activities. The conference report cuts funding for environmental protection and related agencies as a whole by 10 percent over this year's level. But within that reduction are much deeper cuts in many extremely valuable programs, including wildlife protection, energy conservation, land acquisition, support for the arts and humanities, and support for Native Americans.

Proponents of this legislation say that these cuts are needed to balance the budget. But in fact they are being used to help reorder priorities in ways favored by the Republican majority. After the House considers the interior conference report cutting $14 billion from resource protection and from cultural programs, we will consider a conference report on Defense Department appropriations that increases spending for the military by $7 billion over the President's request, and that includes funds for weaponry the military officials themselves say the Nation does not need.

In other words, if both conference reports are enacted, we will be spending five times the savings gained from this bill on additional unnecessary spending for the Pentagon.

Thus, the significance of this conference report is not its contribution to the Federal budget deficit as its proponents claim. Rather, its significance lies in its contribution to the multi-pronged assault on environmental protection that has been launched by the Republican leadership in the House.

When this legislation is viewed in the context of other anti-environmental measures this House has considered or will be considering, its negative impacts are even more apparent. This bill follows House passage of several so-called regulatory reform bills, the Contract With America bills, that would cripple Federal regulatory agencies' ability to implement and enforce environmental protection laws. It follows House passage of the amendments to the Clean Water Act that would permit more water pollution, the destruction of more than half the Nation's remaining wetlands. It follows enactment of a provision included in the fiscal 1995 rescission bill which will dramatically increase logging in National Forests. It follows House passage of an appropriations bill which cuts funding for the Environmental Protection Agency by one-third and includes numerous provisions preventing the agency from enforcing antipollution laws. And it follows the Committee on Resources' adoption of measures to be included in the budget reconciliation bill that would open Arctic National Wildlife Refuge to oil and gas drilling, that would provide sweeping exemptions of environmental laws in the disposition of Federal power assets, that would change concessions policy for our National Parks in a way that would discourage competition, that would allow the sale of National Forest lands in ski areas for development, and that would protect the interests of those who currently benefit from the use of Federal range lands for grazing.

Mr. Speaker, as Vice President Gore said recently, "This bill takes dead aim at this Nation's most cherished resources and will benefit special interests at the expense of the taxpayers.”

For those reasons, the President has announced his intentions to veto this bill. We have to put a stop to the wholesale giveaway of our Nation’s resources that has been taking place this year. This is the place to do it.

Rather than sending this bill on to the President at this time, I would urge the House to shorten the process by deleting and sending the bill back to conference for the numerous major revisions it needs.

Mr. OBÉY. Mr. Speaker, this bill deserves to be stopped dead in its tracks. It is an absolutely lousy bill. The best way to stop it is to defeat the rule that will allow its consideration.

There are a lot of things wrong with it, but the worst thing in the conference report is the provision which relates to the moratorium on mining patent claims which is an abomination under our law.

The conference agreement lifts the existing moratorium and allows mining companies, many of which are foreign owned, to gain title to Federal lands containing valuable hard rock minerals for a pittance. The result is billions of dollars being pocketed by mining companies without payment of any royalties to the owner of the land, the U.S. taxpayer.

This, in my view, is a travesty left over from the political stone age. The original law that permits this outrage, this outrageous raid on the Treasury, was enacted in 1872. If my old colleague Bill Proxmire were still representing Wisconsin in the other body, you can be sure that this provision would be the subject of one of his Golden Fleece awards. The magnitude of this giveaway is incredibly hard to grasp.

Let me give you one example. Just last year the Interior Department signed away land containing an estimated $10 billion in gold for less than $10,000. The so-called reform in this bill would mean that it will only cost $100,000. The land is now owned by a U.S. subsidiary of a foreign-owned corporation. Not only are we giving away the mineral rights for a tiny fraction of their value, we are also giving away title to the land.

Now, that is not the only problem with this bill. If you take a look at other sections of the bill, you will see, for instance, that it allows increased logging in some of the most sensitive areas of the Tongass National Forest in Alaska. It reverses key parts of the California Desert Act passed last year.

The conference also contains draconian revisions related to funding for the Bureau of Indian Affairs. It cuts funding for Indian education almost in half. It reduces the Department of Energy’s weatherization programs by one-half, while at the same time it provides these gigantic ripoffs, this huge glom of corporate welfare, to some of the largest corporations in this country, and in fact some of the largest corporations that originate outside the boundaries of our own country.

So for these and a variety of other reasons, some of which were cited by the gentleman from California, I would strongly urge a vote against the rule and a vote against the bill tomorrow if this House is ill-advised enough to pass this rule today.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California [Mr. MILLER], the ranking member of the Committee on Resources.

(MR. MILLER of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the rule and in opposition to the legislation. As both my colleague from California and my colleague from Wisconsin have pointed out, there is just so much wrong with this bill that it is unbelievable that we are considering it in this fashion. This bill does not do to the environment and the harm that it does to the American taxpayers. The deficiencies are complete, they are thorough, and this bill should not become law.

One of the most egregious provisions of this bill is that instead of maintaining the patent moratorium on giving away lands, western lands, to mining companies as this House has strongly advocated year after year, the conference committee chose to ignore the clearly stated House intent. Earlier this year the House voted 271 to 153 to support extension of the 1995 patent moratorium. We took this action in response to widespread concern that taxpayers were being cheated out of hundreds of millions of dollars because of an archaic law enacted in the days of Jesse James, the robber barons, and Jesse Pinkman.

Two hundred and thirty million dollars’ worth of mineral assets slip through our fingers in this fashion, and the American taxpayers of this Nation. We have endured this giveaway of public resources for over 100 years now. We have tried and again to amend this law, to reform this law, and we have been beaten back by the lawyers and the lobbyists of the mining companies, and it is time to call a halt to it. If we cannot come to reform the law, we certainly should not ask our public to endure the continued whittling away of their wealth and their assets at the expense of the mining companies’ special interests.

Mr. Speaker, I would hope that we would reject this legislation. If a motion to recommit the conference report to exclude this provision is offered, I would hope Members of the Congress would support that, as they did earlier this year in their motions to maintain the patent provisions of the bill.

Mr. Speaker, the flaws in this conference report are not limited to the failure to extend the moratorium on issuing mining patents. An egregious example of abuse of the taxpayers and an unprecedented attack on our natural resources is contained in the Senate rider dictating that timber interests dominate management of the Tongass National Forest in Alaska.

Without any public hearings, the Senate has insisted on sweeping language which will greatly increase taxpayer subsidized logging of the magnificent old-growth forest in Alaska. Over the past several years, the Tongass has earned the dubious distinction of losing more money—$64 million annually according to one economist’s study—than any other national forest. The Senate language makes things worse.

The Senate rider would abort the Forest Service planning process and congressional dictate that the Tongass be managed according to a discredited, draft 1991 plan. That plan—which has been rejected by the administration for relying on outdated science—would provide for at least 418 million board feet of timber annually, one-third more than the amount harvested on the Tongass over the past decade. Fully implementing this provision could cost an additional $18 million annually in Federal subsidies to support the increased logging.

Language added by the conference committee would forever constrain the Forest Service from amending the forest plan in any manner which would limit lands allocated to timbering. Moreover, the provision attempts to overturn a ninth circuit decision in a case brought by tourism, Native, and conservation interests and would insulate timber sales from environmental and subsistence use laws.

Mr. Speaker, the Tongass language has been highlighted as objectionable to the administration by Vice-President Gore in conveying the President’s veto threat. It is opposed by Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman. It is opposed by the Governor of Alaska, Tony Knowles. It is opposed by the Alaska Outdoor Council, a coalition of conservation hunting and fishing groups. It is opposed by every Alaska and national environmental group.

As an architect of the 1990 Tongass Timber Reform Act, I take special offense at this assault on our largest national forest. These permanent changes in law are not within the proper jurisdiction of the appropriations committee. Moreover, there is simply no justification for this outrageous abuse of public process and legal rights. Southeast Alaska’s jobless rate is lower than the national average. The economy is more diversified than ever before and is growing. The Senate language is an ill-advised attempt to turn back the clock and to manage these public lands to favor a heavily taxpayer subsidized special interest over all other competing users of the forest.

While the Tongass language alone provides sufficient reason for the conference report to be rejected by the House, there are many other fundamentally flawed provisions which undermine the 1994 California Desert Protection Act by giving the National Park Service only $1 to manage the Mojave National Preserve; unfairly target Indian tribes and people by cutting the Bureau of Indian Affairs budget $351 million, 19 percent below the President’s request and $184 million, 1 percent below the fiscal year 1995 funding level; derail the Columbia River Basin ecosystem management project; fund Department of the Interior scientific research at $35.7 million below the President’s request; prohibit wildlife species from being added to the endangered species list and the designation of critical habitat; fund the Land and Water Conservation Fund land acquisition programs at $71 million notwithstanding a $11.2 billion surplus in the fund;

Mr. Speaker, the list of objectionable provisions goes on and on. This conference report should be rejected by the House. If not, the President should veto it and insist that the Congress come up with a new bill which is not an insult to the American people and our natural heritage.

Mr. GEJSENSEN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to object to certain provisions in the conference report on H.R. 1976. While I am deeply concerned about the effect of cutting $1.4 billion from our natural resource management agencies, several individual items are especially egregious.

First and foremost, the conference report contains language which will dramatically increase logging in the Tongass National Forest. It is opposed by Alaskan Members because it was not in the House bill. It is a backdoor attempt to open the Tongass when scientific evidence and sound forestry management dictate limiting harvests overall and protecting important fish and wildlife habitat. The Tongass would be governed by a 1992 EIS provision, alternative P, which is deemed sufficient to satisfy all requirements of applicable law. By including sufficiency language, this provision relegates legal challenges and shuts off public comment.

Mr. Speaker, the Tongass language has been highlighted as objectionable to the administration by Vice-President Gore in conveying the President’s veto threat. It is opposed by Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman. It is opposed by the Governor of Alaska, Tony Knowles. It is opposed by the Alaska Outdoor Council, a coalition of conservation hunting and fishing groups. It is opposed by every Alaska and national environmental group.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Hefley). The question is on the resolution. The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appear to have it.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order a quorum is not present. The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 5 of the rule I, the Chair postpones further proceedings on this resolution and have it voted on the vote on House Resolution 232.

The point of no quorum is considered as having been withdrawn.

WAIVING POINTS OF ORDER AGAINST CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 2126, DEPARTMENT, OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1996

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee of Rules, I call up House Resolution 232 and ask for its immediate consideration. The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 232

Resolved, That upon adoption of this resolution it shall be in order to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 2126) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1996, and for other purposes. All points of order against the conference report and against its consideration are waived.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida [Mr. Goss] is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. Frost], pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yield is for the purpose of debate only.

(Mr. Goss asked and was given permission to include extraneous material in the RECORD.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, this is a very simple, very fair rule for the consideration of the conference report for H.R. 2126, the Department of Defense appropriation bill. We provide for an hour of debate, and all points of order against the report are waived. It is that simple. As we rapidly approach the end of the 1995 fiscal year, and it becomes clear that we will not be able to have all 13 appropriations bills signed into law by October 1, I am pleased that we are making defense a priority. The Constitution explicitly requires Congress to provide for the national defense, and it is entirely appropriate that we are moving this bill today. Many people, myself included, feel that this administration has allowed our military readiness to decline at an alarming rate. I am concerned that scaling our Armed Forces back too far in the name of peace may actually invite new aggression. Certainly the Soviet threat is gone, but in the wake of its passing, we are left with multiple problems. Mr. Speaker, the lessons of history serve us well here—allowing our defensive capabilities to be reduced too much could easily be an invitation to aggression against American interests abroad, or even here at home. The collapse of the Soviet Union and Warsaw Pact, United States troops have been far from idle—they have been actively involved in a major shooting war in the Gulf, and many hotspots such as Haiti, Somalia, and Bosnia have emerged, too. Many relatively small countries are gaining access to advanced equipment such as submarines and nuclear weapons. And international terrorism has reared its ugly head here at home. Mr. Speaker, being prepared means meeting our defense needs—from top to bottom. And the little things are important—it does an army no good to have thousands of soldiers, equipped with the latest weapons, if those soldiers do not have boots for their feet. My friend and colleague, Bill Young, chairman of the Defense Appropriations Subcommittee, vividly demonstrated for the Rules Committee all the small needs like boots, laces, and so forth, that were not currently being met by stretching a list of these items from one end of the Rules Committee hearing room to the other. I am pleased that we have made some real headway in correcting these problems in this bill, and I urge adoption of the rule and the conference report.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this rule which provides for the consideration of the conference report to accompany the fiscal year 1996 Department of Defense appropriation. The subcommittee chairman, Mr. Young, and his good and able colleague, Mr. Murtha, are to be congratulated for negotiating an agreement which should receive strong support both in the House and the Senate.

Mr. Speaker, I am personally pleased that the conference agreement contains $493 million for the continued production of the B-2 stealth bomber. I am a firm believer that in a troubled and dangerous world, a significant bomber capability is required to ensure our military preparedness and to protect our national interest. The B-2 stealth bomber is an important component in our overall national defense capability and the construction of additional aircraft in addition to the 20 already authorized will ensure the continued capability of our armed services to protect and defend our national interests.

I am also gratified that the conference report provides $159 million for the procurement of six F-16's as well as having been withdrawn.

I am also gratified that the conference report contains $758 million for an important addition to the Marine Corps arsenal.

Mr. Speaker, this conference report represents a great deal of hard work and hard bargaining and I believe that the rule merits the support of the House. I recognize that a number of my colleagues have reservations about the total amount of defense spending contained in the conference report. They will have an opportunity to express that concern by voting against the conference report itself and I urge that they support the rule. I urge my colleagues to support the conference agreement and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Obe]y, the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chair, I am personally pleased that the conference agreement contains $758 million for the continued production of the B-2 stealth bomber. I am a firm believer that in a troubled and dangerous world, a significant bomber capability is required to ensure our military preparedness and to protect our national interest. The B-2 stealth bomber is an important component in our overall national defense capability and the construction of additional aircraft in addition to the 20 already authorized will ensure the continued capability of our armed services to protect and defend our national interests.

I am also gratified that the conference report contains $758 million for an important addition to the Marine Corps arsenal.

Mr. Chair, this conference report represents a great deal of hard work and hard bargaining and I believe that the rule merits the support of the House. I recognize that a number of my colleagues have reservations about the total amount of defense spending contained in the conference report. They will have an opportunity to express that concern by voting against the conference report itself and I urge that they support the rule. I urge my colleagues to support the conference agreement and I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I have no speaker scheduled at this time and I continue to reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. Obe]y, the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we are being asked to swallow all of that, and yet we are being asked to swallow a defense appropriation bill which does the following: We have a half billion dollars in here as a downpayment for more B-2 bombers than the Pentagon wants to buy. I just the cost of one of those B-2 bombers would pay the tuition for every single undergraduate at the University of Wisconsin for the next 12 years.

We are having a big controversy in our State about whether or not the State should buy a new stadium for the Milwaukee Brewers. Just the cost of the new stadium for the Milwaukee Brewers. Just the cost of one of those B-2 bombers would pay for four of those stadiums with a dome, and yet we will go ahead and build and buy those new B-2 bombers.

We have a half billion dollars extra in here for star wars that the Secretary of Defense says is unneeded. We have another $350 million for C-130 aircraft built in Georgia for which the military cannot even identify a military requirement. We have a number of other items. We have $2.4 billion for a new fighter to be built in Georgia, the F-22, which the GAO has repeatedly recommended should be put on hold for at least 7 years because we already have hundreds and hundreds of F-15's, the best fighter in the world.

And speaking of F-15's, Mr. Speaker, this bill also buys six new ones that the Pentagon did not ask for at a cost of $300 million. And yet the supporters of this bill pretend that they are going to abide by the budget limits in the Kasich budget resolution. And so what this bill represents is the first shot fired in the effort to blow the lid off the budget ceilings in the Kasich budget resolution. And so what this bill represents is the first shot fired in the effort to blow the lid off the budget ceilings in the Kasich budget resolution.

There is a very well kept secret in the defense portion of this bill. The secret is that the Kasich budget resolution in the 7th year winds up taking the military budget below that of President Clinton. The problem is, if we buy every new weapon system in this bill, we will never be able to live within that budget ceiling imposed by the Kasich budget resolution. And so what this bill represents is the first shot fired in the effort to blow the lid off the budget ceilings in the Kasich budget resolution with respect to military spending in this country over the next 7 years.

Mr. Speaker, I would suggest there are an awful lot of reasons to vote against this bill. The best reason is simply that we cannot seriously uphold the budget limitations in the Kasich budget resolution for the defense portion of the budget if we vote to pass this bill and turn it into law. The White House is absolutely correct to say that this bill is going to be vetoed in its present form. I think the President has no choice if he wants to impose fiscal prudence on all parts of the Federal budget.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to my colleague, the distinguished gentleman from Florida [Mr. YOUNG], the chairman of the appropriations subcommittee.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time, and I take this time just to maybe clear up a misperception that the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEXER] might have created in his statement.

We are within the budget limits. As a matter of fact, if the gentleman will recall when the bill was on the floor, we were $2.2 billion below the armed services allocation level. When we went to conference, actually during the conference, we were presented with an additional cut in our 602(b) allocation, so we have been coming down, since the first of the year, from the numbers that we thought we should have. We have been coming down in a very dramatic way.

The gentleman talked about several areas where we could do this or that if we did not build a particular airplane or ship, but let me turn in the wake of this case. If we were to freeze the level, as he suggested, what that would do is keep us basically at last year’s level and provide for the pay raise that we have promised our men and women who serve in the military. If he wants further cuts, the Defense Department would like to cut the program for breast cancer. They do not want to spend the breast cancer money for the purposes you are appropriating. We are going to insist that there be a 1 in 1 ratio.

Mr. Speaker, just in the interest of time, and the Members have other things to do today, I would like to say this. We can stand here with a long list of things that we could do if we did not have a Defense Department or if we did not build a ship or if we did not buy an airplane or if we did not pay the troops an increase in their salaries. But most of those things can actually be done by the State governments through block grant programs with their own funds or by the local governments. But, Mr. Speaker, if there is one thing that State governments cannot do, or one thing that local governments cannot do, that is to provide for the national defense, the national security and the intelligence requirements of the United States of America. The Congress and the President, as Commander in Chief, that is our obligation. And the bill that this rule provides for that obligation in a very straightforward way.

Mr. Speaker, this is not a political bill. There are no big pork projects in here. There was a rule that I applied at the subcommittee level that any item in this bill had to have military application, number one, or there had to be a requirement. Military application by itself would not do it, there also had to be a requirement.

Mr. Speaker, this is actually a good bill. This is a good defense bill, and there is no reason why it cannot pass the House and the Senate and be signed by the President, who, incidentally, his press aide today, in a press conference, indicated they had not decided to veto this bill. We have reason to believe that we can persuade the President, who claims to be a strong national defense President, to sign this bill. We have reason to believe that we can persuade the President, who claims to be a strong national defense President, to sign this bill because that is what this bill is.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. OBEXER] has requested 1 additional minute in response to some remarks that the previous gentleman just made, and I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEXER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. YOUNG], compulsively mentions the question of military pay every time someone dares to question the total dollar amount in any of these appropriation bills. Let me stipulate I know of not a single person in this House who does not want to see the full military pay increase go through. It will. We have $243 billion in this bill.

We are suggesting this bill is $7 billion over where it ought to be. That still leaves $236 billion in this bill. The first dollars that will go out under that bill, whenever it is signed, will go for pay. There is no action that any Member is going to be taking to eliminate in any way any of the contemplated pay increase for our military personnel, and the gentleman ought to know better than to suggest otherwise.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I do not have any further comments at this time.

Mr. FROST. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time and I urge a vote for the rule.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I will only say that this vote is about the rule. It is not about the bill. It is a fair rule. They do not get any simpler or better, when we come to rules.

Mr. Speaker, I urge support for the rule.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Hefley). The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The Speaker pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 294, nays 119, not voting 11, as follows:

[Roll No. 694]

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Hefley). The pending business is the question de novo on agreeing to House Resolution 231. The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were ayes 251, noes 171, and vacating 1.

The vote was ordered nay, 251; aye, 171; and vacating 1.

Mr. BEILENSON. Mr. Speaker, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

August 28, 1995

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — HOUSE

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky, Mrs. SMITH of Washington, and Messrs. BRYANT of Tennessee, HILLARY of LUTHER, OWENS, EWIN, ISTOK, FAZIO, and ORTON, California, and ORTON, Ms. PELOSI, Mr. SALMON, Ms. JACKSON-LEE, Mr. BARCIA, and Mr. EMERSON changed their vote from "nay" to "aye.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE, Ms. CLAYTON, and Messrs. WAMP, ENSIGN, and CHRISTENSEN changed their vote from "nay" to "aye.

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.
My legislative proposal addresses these concerns, and it puts the patient first, not the doctor, not the insurance company, but the patient. My bill is designed to improve and enhance health care to our country's senior citizens. It will not add to the cost of the Medicare program. Under the legislation, all patients will have the option to seek the out-of-network treatment they desire no matter what health care plan they select.

True freedom of choice for patients can only be achieved by making out-of-network medically necessary treatment and services available for all health care plans. Real health care security is the freedom for patients to choose their own primary and specialty care provider, and then to continue to access these same caregivers. All patients should have the option, at an additional copayment known in advance, to seek the out-of-network treatment they desire. This point-of-service feature should be built into health care plans, and not just offered as an option at the time of enrollment.

Patients, especially seniors, are acting with less than perfect information about their health status at the time of enrollment. In reality, they are unable to access their health care needs, until they actually get sick or need specialty care. Consequently, the broadest possible patient protection is to build choice of health care provider into every health care plan.

The most effective check against abuses in this changing marketplace is the patient's power to go outside the network established by the health plan and obtain medical services. Health plans that provide good service to their enrollees will not be troubled by this requirement. Only health plans that fail to meet the needs of their subscribers will be affected.

Making out-of-network treatment and services available for enrollees in all health care plans provides a very good quality assurance check. It ensures that all health care plans provide seniors with the health care they need and deserve. If a Medicare enrollee is not satisfied with care, he or she could pursue other treatment for a reasonable, but not cost-prohibitive price.

Today, the fastest growing health insurance product is a managed care plan with the availability of out-of-network coverage. Patients are demanding this freedom to choose, and the marketplace has responded. Requiring this type of plan for any senior is not intrusive, but rather advances a developing trend.

Building a point-of-service feature into all health plans under Medicare will not affect any health plan's ability to be aggressive in their cost-containment activities, nor will it limit their efforts to encourage providers and patients to use health care resources wisely. Instead, it will simply put pressure on health plans to keep the patient's welfare uppermost on their agenda, ahead of dividends and the bottom line.
The managed care industry has consistently claimed that a point-of-service feature in all health plans would greatly increase the cost of doing business. This assertion is simply not true. The point-of-service feature is not costly. According to a cost-impact study released this year by the actuarial firm of Milliman and Robertson, Inc., at the request of the Patient Access to Specialty Care Coalition, a point-of-service feature built into all managed care plans would place no financial burden on these plans.

Moreover, in testimony before the Congress this year, the Congressional Budget Office stated that requiring a point-of-service feature would not add to the Federal Government's cost of the Medicare Program. Instead, the cost is covered by patients, who expect to bear some additional expense for this point-of-service feature. This cost, however, is not great, and it is a simple actuarial calculation to determine a reasonable copayment. My legislation calls for the managed care plan to share with its potential enrollees the cost schedule for going out of network.

My legislation contains additional provisions to ensure that patients receive the full range of health care services to which they are entitled. It assures access to specialty care, and provides Medicaid patients with a Medicare information checklist so they can have adequate and important information to compare the quality of all health care plans offered to seniors. Also, it includes several Medicare patient rights provisions, and a streamlined rapid appeals process within a health care plan, when there has been a denial of care. Finally, my bill places a ban on provider financial incentive schemes which result in the withholding of care or a denial of a referral.

My legislation does not include any provider provisions dealing with the contractual relationships between health plans and providers of medical services. The focus of my bill is on patient choice and the health care rights of Medicare enrollees.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2350, the Patient Choice and Access Act of 1995, offers Medicare enrollees real choice and real patient protection. It will give the Medicare patient effective protection against the potential for restricting access to medically necessary health care services. Finally, it will provide a quality assurance check on all health care plans to make sure that they are providing the full range of health care services to their enrollees.

I urge my colleagues in the Congress to co-sponsor this bill, and to join with me in my efforts to include these provisions in a Medicare reform proposal. Only if this patient component is included in Medicare reform legislation can we be able to say that we have worked to achieve quality health care and Medicare enrollees, protection, and preserved patient freedom of choice in selecting health care providers.

SUPPORT REPEAL OF THE DAVIS-BACON ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. BALLENGER] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, Congress is under increasing pressure to balance the budget. The taxpayers are demanding that Government be more efficient and held accountable for the expenditure of their hard-earned tax dollars. The Davis-Bacon Act is the perfect example. It is expensive, unnecessary, and difficult to administer. The act must be considered in light of its economic effects as well as its objectives.

The Davis-Bacon Act has long since outlived any usefulness it may have had. The rationale for special wage protection was never very persuasive but the act remains law, adding millions and millions of dollars to Federal construction costs.

Davis-Bacon was enacted to discourage non-local contractors from securing Federal construction jobs by hiring cheap labor from outside of the project area. Proponents of the legislation complained that this practice was disruptive to the local wage structure. When the act was passed, there was no Federal minimum wage or other labor laws with protections for workers. Since that time, Congress has enacted numerous laws to protect the wages and working conditions of all workers, including construction workers.

The taxpayers are the real losers under the Davis-Bacon Act. Some $48 billion of construction spending annually falls under the Act's coverage. In effect, Davis-Bacon is a tax on construction. For example in Baltimore, the Davis-Bacon requirements add between 5 and 10 percent to the costs of inner city housing. Davis-Bacon effectively wipes out much of the good that banks do when they provide lower interest rate loans to such projects.

Clearly, Davis-Bacon drives up construction costs. Electricians in Philadelphia who are working on a Davis-Bacon project are paid about $37 an hour compared with electricians on a private contract who are paid an average of $13.75 an hour. Companies cannot stay in business paying $12 to an employee who is worth $6. If companies have to pay $15 per hour, they are going to hire skilled workers, thus effectively shutting out those who need the opportunity to acquire job skills and work experience.

The total cost of Davis-Bacon extends to State and local government construction programs, this having the same practical implications as an unfunded mandate. Davis-Bacon is particularly burdensome in the area of school construction, by restricting the ability of school districts to reduce construction costs. For example, the cost to build two schools and an academic center in Preston County, WV, could have been reduced by one-third or $1.9 million dollars, had the projects been exempt from Davis-Bacon. The savings could have been realized for the taxpayers or used in other ways through the educational system.

There are additional costs to Federal agencies, which must collect, process, and disseminate thousands of wage rate data. Likewise, there are direct costs to contractors who must comply with the recordkeeping and paperwork requirements under the Copeland Act. Compliance costs to the industry total nearly $100 million per year, money which could be better spent creating additional jobs.

Recently, an investigative report was released which detailed fraud in the Davis-Bacon procurement process used by the Department of Labor to determine prevailing wages in certain areas in Oklahoma. The report uncovered numerous instances of interested parties claiming phantom projects and ghost employees, all with the intent of inflating Davis-Bacon wage rates issued by the Department of Labor. In some cases, employees were allegedly paid $5 to $10 an hour more than actual market wages in the area. After repeated demands by local authorities and the involvement of members of the Economic and Educational Opportunities Committee, the Department of Labor revoked the wage determinations in Oklahoma City and Tulsa because of the allegations of fraudulent Davis-Bacon activities.

The act remains law, adding millions and millions of dollars to Federal construction costs. There are additional costs to Federal agencies, which must collect, process, and disseminate thousands of wage rate data. Likewise, there are direct costs to contractors who must comply with the recordkeeping and paperwork requirements under the Copeland Act. Compliance costs to the industry total nearly $100 million per year, money which could be better spent creating additional jobs.

Repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act would have the taxpayers $2.7 billion over 5 years. It would allow the Federal Government to get more construction for the money, or to get the planned construction done for less money. Over 4,000 petitions were sent to Congress from taxpayers across the country supporting repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act. Last November, the voters sent a message to Washington. They want to end Government that is too big, costly, and intrusive. I urge my colleagues to support repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act.
The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. Bun of Oregon). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

CERTAIN POLITICAL METHODS DESTRUCTIVE TO CONGRESS

(Mr. Johnson of South Dakota asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. Johnson of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, recently it became publicly known about an e-mail directive from the leadership of the Republican Party that sheds light on the political methods being used as we work on our agricultural portion of reconciliation. It lays bare political methods which, frankly, are destructive to this institution, destructive far beyond simply the agricultural issues which it directly addresses. It is the leadership saying, "You must pass our version of agricultural reconciliation, one that involves three times the cuts that are needed to reach a zero deficit, and if you don’t, individual Members will lose committee memberships. The committee could well be lost. In fact, the entire House Committee on Agriculture could be abolished."

This is the sort of heavy-handed leadership that does not serve this institution well. We have difficult decisions to make, but if we pull together in a bipartisan fashion, using the strengths of House Committee on Agriculture, I am confident that through the course of the debate this year we can in fact arrive at a point where we are helpful to family farms, helpful to the budget deficit, and it is done in a fair and open manner.

THE GINGRICH MEDICAID PLAN WILL PAY FOR TAX CUTS FOR THE WEALTHY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Brown] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Brown of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, late last week the Committee on Commerce passed the Gingrich Medicaid plan. There were no hearings on this bill similar to the restricted small number of hearings, one hearing in fact, that there were not public, on the billings on the Gingrich Medicaid plan. The plan was given to us, the actual legislative language, was given to us less than 24 hours before the hearing. There was no public input, because no one anywhere from the country really knew much about this plan, and members of the committee on both sides, Republicans and Democrats, had little opportunity to read the bill and to become familiar with the details of the Gingrich Medicaid plan.

Unfortunately, though, Mr. Speaker, that Gingrich Medicaid plan cuts Medicaid money that goes for nursing homes for the middle class and all of our parents, many of our parents and grandparents. It is money for children in Health Hill Hospital in Cleveland, many poor kids, many middle-class kids, upper-class kids that have been injured in tragic accidents, with serious brain damage, whose families are saddled with $20,000 a month hospital bills. That is paid for with Medicaid. It is funding for poor children for prenatal care, for well baby care, for all the kinds of things that are important in our society.

Nonetheless, that $180 billion cut in the Gingrich Medicaid plan is going to be used to pay for tax cuts for the rich. Equally as unfortunate, this bill and this Gingrich Medicaid plan in the committee on commerce, everything passed by a party line vote. They eliminated breast cancer services, again on a party line vote. They eliminated breast cancer services, again on a party line vote. They eliminated prenatal care and well baby care and protection for children, again, those programs on a party line vote, all ratifying what the Gingrich Medicaid plan had written.

There is an old Mark Twain line said many years ago, that when two people think alike all the time, one of them ain't doing much thinking. Unfortunately, that is what this Gingrich Medicaid plan is all about. It was a plan not written by the committee, not written with public input, not having any hearings held for the public to understand it, to learn about it, to talk about it, to persuade Members of Congress that this might be good or that might be bad. It was simply a piece of legislation handed down and voted on quickly.

What is particularly of concern to a lot of us on that committee that opposes this $180 billion in cuts for Medicaid in order to pay for tax breaks for the wealthiest Americans is that these quality care standards for nursing homes were eliminated; where we can remember 10 years ago, 20 years ago, reading in the paper almost every month some scandal in a nursing home, some number of patients were abused and restrained and medicated, and people that were about as defenseless as any body in society, people that were very old in nursing homes. The Gingrich Medicaid plan had written.

Now we are saying it is OK for the States, it is OK for local governments, it is OK for these nursing homes, to not live up any longer to these Federal standards.

The same with breast cancer services. My part of America, northeast Ohio, has one of the highest breast cancer rates in the country. I am concerned when the Federal Government says, “No longer is Medicaid going to cover breast cancer services, mammograms.” First, that is inhumane, not to cover mammograms. Second, it is just stupid. The Republicans simply have failed Economics 101. If you do not detect breast cancer early, you are going to pay a lot more for a lumpectomy or a mastectomy, and the Government is going to end up paying for it. It is inhumane, and it is just bad economics not to move forward and continue to cover those breast cancer services.

This money will be turned over to the States in the form of block grants, this money, again this shrinking number of dollars, in order to pay for tax breaks for the wealthy. This shrinking number of dollars will be grabbed up by as many interest groups in the States as possible. Nursing homes will have the first round, the first shot, at so many of these dollars as they shrink. And because nursing homes are better organized and better lobbyists and more effective and a stronger interest group on the State level than are groups that might advocate breast cancer services or groups that might advocate on behalf of nursing home patients, that money will likely go to those interest groups that fight for a wealthy group of people rather than people that really do represent those women that have breast cancer, represent those people that are victims of problems and care in nursing homes.

Mr. Speaker, it simply does not make sense to make these cuts all to pay for tax cuts for the wealthy.

WITHDRAWAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COPs THAT FIGHT FOR A WEALTHY GROUP OF PEOPLE RATHER THAN PEOPLE

Mr. Saxton. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that my name be withdrawn as a cosponsor of H.R. 497.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey? There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Washington [Mrs. Smith] is recognized for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio [Ms. Kaptur] is recognized for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Indiana [Mr. McIntosh] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. McIntosh addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.
The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Norwood] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. NORWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I come to the well today for a very pleasant task, to honor a friend of mine, but I cannot even come and do that without correcting the comments of the previous speaker.

I, too, am on the Committee on Commerce. We held so many Medicaid hearings. I am not sure of the number, but I think it was 8 to 10, somewhere in that area. The gentleman talked of cuts that I cannot tell the Members something. The State of Georgia is going to get a 7.2-percent increase next year in Medicaid spending, and in 1997 a 9-percent increase in Medicaid spending, so I apologize that I have to bring that up, but I would like for the American people to hear the truth.

Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor today to talk about a great American. Next week, Dr. Don Johnson will end his reign as president of the International College of Dentists. It is the crowning achievement of one man's tremendous career, a man I am very proud to call my friend.

Don is a Georgian through and through. He was born and raised in Atlanta. He graduated from the Emory University School of Dentistry in 1961 and has been a practicing dentist ever since. He continued to contribute to his alma mater as a member of Emory's Board of Visitors.

The two things that have always amazed me about Don. He has been a visionary in the dental field, and he has a boundless energy to contribute to his profession.

I recently had the opportunity to go back and read an interview with Don that appeared in the Georgia Dental Association's Newsletter. I was astounded at how insightful his comments were. Don was able to see in 1966 where the dental profession needed to be in the coming years. He saw the problems in dentistry today that were only smoldering 10 years ago.

Don is a man with tremendous energy. He has run a successful dental practice for many years, yet he has still found the time to volunteer in service to his profession. He is a former president of the Georgia Dental Association, a former president of the Northern District Dental Society, and a former president of the Hinman Dental Society. He is a fellow of the American College of Dentists, the Internal Collegiate of Dentists, and a member of the eminent Pierre Fauchard Academy. In 1988, he was named the "Man of the Year in Dentistry" by the Northern District Dental Society. He has published numerous scholarly articles and presented many technical papers at dental conferences. He has done all this while running his practice and raising two daughters, serving in his church, and on top of all that he is an accomplished airplane pilot.

Mr. Speaker, it is my pleasure today to bring before you the accomplishments of Dr. Don Johnson of Atlanta, GA, president of the International College of Dentists, and a great American.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Florida [Ms. Brown] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. BROWN of Florida addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

TOO MUCH GOVERNMENT DOESN'T WORK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Duncan] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, a few days ago Ann McFadden, of the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, wrote this: "Americans are right to be disgusted with government right now. Events of recent days are alarming. They should be a warning to all politicians, police officials, and anyone hired by government." That woman has walked the straight and narrow, do not take short cuts, do not rationalize. She said, "It is time to rethink the role of government." She was writing primarily about the horrible events at Waco and Ruby Ridge. But let me read her words again. "Americans are right to be disgusted with government right now. Events of recent days are alarming." She said, "It is time to rethink the role of government."

William Raspberry, the very fine syndicated columnist for the Washington Post, wrote several months ago about some travels he had made around the country. He said, what were the people saying to him as he went around the Nation. He said this:

"It sounds very much like it doesn't work. Government doesn't work. It costs more and becomes more intrusive with each passing year, but hardly anywhere can it be said that it is performing better. The trash cans get bigger, the failure separation rules more onerous, but the streets and alleys aren't any cleaner. Criminal justice costs keep going up, but the neighborhoods aren't safer. Schools become increasingly expensive, and increasingly ineffective. Government doesn't work."

Those are the words of William Raspberry. They are the words of any conservative Republicans.

I grew up in a political family, and I have been following governing and politics closely since my early teenage years. I do not believe; in fact, I am certain that I have never seen a time where there has been so much dissatisfaction, disgust, disappointment, disenchantment, frustration, resentment, even anger, toward government, in general, and toward the Federal Government, in particular, as there is today.

As a conservative Republican, I have two reactions to this. First, I am sorry that things have gotten to the point that they have that so many people feel this way. But secondly, I also must tell you that in a way, I believe this is a good sign for our future. If government can solve all of our problems, the Soviet Union would have been heaven on Earth. Instead, every place where the people have allowed the government or their governments to get too big, they have ended up suffering and living under horrible conditions.

So perhaps it is a good sign that so many people in such a clear, strong majority no longer believe in big government or no longer believe that government can solve all of our problems.

Why are people so angry toward government today? Well, I believe it is because the Federal Government has become one that is of, by, and for the bureaucrats instead of one that is of, by and for the people. Too often today our public service has become public high living, high salaries, high pensions, plush offices, short hours. Most importantly, and perhaps worst of all, unaccountability for huge and very costly mistakes. Our servants have become our rulers. The people are really fed up today. They are disgusted with the waste, the lavish spending, the arrogance.

Paul Greg Roberts, another nationally syndicated columnist, wrote this recently. He said:

"Six months after the inauguration of the new Republican Congress, it has become apparent that the most important issues facing the country are not economic. Without a doubt, high taxes, government spending and welfare dependency are problems sorely in need of the attention focused on them. But the real question is whether Congress can reclaim the law from unelected bureaucrats and judges.

He also said this:

"In the 20th century, there has been a coup against self-rule by bureaucrats and judges. Federal bureaucrats have usurped statutory law with regulations that lack legislative basis."

I think these words of Paul Greg Roberts are right. He went on in this column to say:

"In the coming months we will discover whether the Republican Congress can do something that the Democratic Congress failed to do for 40 years: Hold government accountable to the people. This, not the size of the Federal budget, is the ultimate test of whether it matters which party controls Congress."

He said:

The problem in America is not that the budget is out of control, but that the government is
There are so many examples that I could give of the fact that the government has come under the control of bureaucrats. One of the best came up recently in regard to the National Reconciliation Office. It came out last year that they had spent $310 million building a housing project that nobody wants, about a 1 million square foot building, $310 a square foot.

I would simply say this. It is time that we give the government of this country back to the people of this country and stop the Federal bureaucracy that they are working for us, and not for them.

IT IS TIME TO REPEAL THE DAVIS-BACON ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BUNN of Oregon). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. HOEKSTRA] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the opportunity to address the House this evening.

Earlier today the Education and Economic Opportunity Committee did something that the General Accounting Office suggested we do in 1979. We began the process for eliminating the Davis-Bacon Act. Davis-Bacon is not right for America in the 1990's. It might have served a role in 1931 when it was originally formatted, but today, it is an outdated law. It has to be changed.

What Davis-Bacon requires is that workers on Federal construction projects be paid a wage at or above the level determined by the Department of Labor to be the prevailing wage in the area. Since 1937, the prevailing wage provision has been extended by many statutes to involve construction, financed in whole or in part by the Federal Government.

In 1981, the General Accounting Office recommended the repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act. They stated that it appeared to be impractical to administer. Davis-Bacon is impractical to administer due to the magnitude of the task of producing an estimated 12,400 accurately and timely generated prevailing wage determinations.

Mr. Speaker, what we have here is the Department of Labor trying to determine prevailing wages in specific job categories around the country for every country. It does not make any sense in 1995. Prevailing wages can be determined very effectively through the competitive bidding process.

I would like to yield to my colleague from Michigan [Mr. SMITH] to give us an example of what happens when the Department of Labor tries to determine prevailing wages throughout the country.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, it would like to give a quote from George Will. He says:

"Although there is stiff competition for the title, 'Dumbest Thing the Government is Doing,' a leading candidate is the government's refusal to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act."

Mr. Speaker, guess who said this?

Milton Friedman:

"Davis-Bacon is not outdated; it never made sense in 1931. It was special interest lobbying by the unions to provide a subsidy in concealed form to members of the construction unions and to the union leaders. It never should have been enacted, and it should be repealed."

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Mr. Speaker, let me also just inform some of my colleagues of what is happening. In the State of Oklahoma, two wage analysts have been responsible for handling the data submitted to and generated by the Department of Labor for the 11-state region that includes Oklahoma. What has happened in Oklahoma?

In mid August the U.S. Department of Labor faxed copies of 49 WD10s. This is the form that various people voluntarily submit to the Federal government. It was indicated that several of the projects were entirely bogus and virtually all of the submitted forms contained grossly inflated or otherwise inaccurate information. The end result: Taxpayers end up paying more for construction than they otherwise would have to.

Among the bogus WD10 forms is a form indicating the use of seven asphalt lay-down machines and seven roller finishers for an Internal Revenue Service building in downtown Oklahoma City. In reality, the paving lot is very small, fewer than 30 total spaces, and is made of concrete, not asphalt. A bogus form intended solely to drive up the rates on the prevailing wage scale.

Specifically in the case of the asphalt lay-down machine operators, the bogus wage and fringe benefits were 44 percent higher than the union collective bargaining agreement and 30 percent higher than the prevailing wage rate in existence at that time. A clearly fraudulent attempt to take money from the American taxpayers.

At best, in 1995, the Davis-Bacon wage rates reflect a 7-year-old reality. The average prevailing wage study is 7 years old. At worst, they reflect a fraudulently manipulated wage well above market rates.

We do not need to reform Davis-Bacon. It cannot be reformed. It cannot be fixed. It does not make sense in 1995. It did not make sense in 1931. Mr. Speaker, I yield to my colleague from Michigan.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, for example, electricians in Philadelphia average $15.76 per hour on private contracts, but the prevailing wage for them is $37.97. There are many similar examples, as you point out.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Mr. Speaker, we need only use the same wages determined as in the Private sector, which is supply and demand. Only the market can accurately set wages that reflect reality.

Mr. POMEROY addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. MINGE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

CONGRESS NEEDS MORE HEARINGS ON MEDICARE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. BARCIA] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, the debate on Medicare has spiraled out of control. To cut $270 billion from this senior program, without proper debate and substantial information, will only hurt the future of the program.

Medicare is one of the most critical issues that Congress will consider this year. It only makes sense to hold hearings, and discuss changes with not only Members but also with seniors who will be greatly impacted by these changes. It is unthinkable that a senior's access to health care will be reduced or eliminated without allowing them a chance to voice their opinions.

I continue to hear from hundreds of seniors in my district, urging me to protect their benefits. They are worried their small monthly incomes will not allow them to pay higher fees for Medicare. I have even heard from older Americans who are not yet eligible for Medicare. They are telling me that health care must be changed in this country, but that the budget cannot be balanced on the backs of the elderly.

If we increase the monthly premiums of Medicare, then we must also be prepared to address the issue of seniors who cannot pay these premiums and how elderly Americans will have access to health care. I am afraid too many will have to go without.

I have also heard from hospitals in my district, many of them in rural areas. Most of the revenue for these hospitals comes from Medicare patients. These hospitals are already struggling with soaring costs and to lose them would be devastating to the rural communities in my State. If Medicare reimbursements are cut even further they will have no other choice but to simply go out of business.

I feel Congress must make efforts to save Medicare by strengthening and improving the system, not destroying it. For many seniors, Medicare has not only improved the quality of their lives, but for many it has extended their life. With 99 percent of Americans over 65 currently having access to health care, Congress must not forget the extraordinary success and impact this program has had on our country. Any changes that are made hastily will be devastating to the program and to the seniors who depend on Medicare. Although this program is in need of reform, it must not be done without debate and discussion and it must not be done by taking away health care from seniors who depend on it for their survival.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. Wise] is recognized for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Gene Green] is recognized for 5 minutes.

COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE MUST BE ALLOWED TO PERFORM ITS WORK

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Stenholm] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, yesterday a very alarming happening occurred in the House Agriculture Committee. For the first time in recollection, the leadership of this House took away the prerogative of the Agriculture Committee for doing its work, in this case on a reconciliation bill. It was not that the Agriculture Committee was not trying to do its work, and I take great exception to a statement that was made by the chairman that says, "This situation, which has caused the differences of opinion, has been made more difficult because our Democratic colleagues have opted for a destructive role in the process." I do not see how anyone could make that statement with a clear conscience.

Mr. Speaker, we had a Democratic alternative, we have a Democratic alternative, and we will fight for that alternative, and that alternative for the budget reconciliation process says that basically we think $400 billion in cuts from Medicare and Medicaid are excessive, that the additional cuts in education being proposed are excessive, and that the $13.4 billion in cuts from agricultural programs are excessive when they are used for purposes of granting a tax cut. We will show on this floor that there is an alternative and we hope that there will be 21 votes for that alternative.

However, yesterday the leadership of this body decided that unless the Agriculture Committee reports a politically correct solution, we do not want to see it. That is disturbing.  □ 1800

No witnesses have ever been called on the Freedom to Farm Act. I am the ranking member of the Subcommittee on General Farm Commodities. I was never informed that there were ever considered to be hearings on the Freedom to Farm Act. The only time we heard about it is when it came from the leadership of this body in suggesting that that is the way we ought to go to the reconciliation committee.

We have a Democratic alternative. It was voted on in the Agriculture Committee and it was voted down predictably because we do not have the votes and I understand that. But I think it stretches the point when we say when there were 2 Republicans who offered an alternative and some of us who even disagreed with the 13.4, the majority of Democrats voted for a bipartisan solution but we were unable to get votes from the Republicans for that. It stretches the imagination and it stretches the truth when we read and we hear what is going on.

It bothers me greatly when the leadership of this House suggests to the Committee on Agriculture that unless you do our will, our bidding, we may even consider eliminating the Committee on Agriculture, and put it in writing.

Now, I do not know what is going on, but as a Member of this body who has traditionally participated in bipartisan action, who shares the frustration of the American people that we are constantly fighting Democrats and Republicans, I do not know what is happening in this body now when the hand of bipartisanship is not being offered, in fact it is being cut off regularly.

When we look at what happened yesterday in the Committee on Agriculture, it is a very disturbing trend. I hope that as we proceed now to the budget reconciliation that the general public will begin to understand there are alternatives out there, there are ways to balance the budget by the year 2002 by not cutting rural America, health care, it does not require an absolute total change in philosophy of farm programs.

Let us never forget for a moment, are we not all blessed to live in a country that has the most abundant food supply, the best quality of food, the safest food supply at the lowest cost of any other country in the world, warts and all? All of the criticism we are hearing from the editorial boards that agree with the Freedom to Farm Act because they want to eliminate farm policy, should we the American people not stop for just a moment and say, maybe just maybe American agriculture is doing a few things right? And not have to follow blindly a philosophical leadership of this House that does not have a clue about farm policy and agriculture but has a great philosophical belief that somehow, someway by eliminating farm programs we are going to do better?

It is not a budget question, it is a philosophical question. The sooner we start debating these things on this floor and in the Committee on Agriculture and not getting mad and taking our bait and the sooner we will get on with the kind of policies required for this country to see that we continue to have this abundant food supply.

REPUBLICANS PROPOSE CUT IN MEDICARE PLAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. Bunn of Oregon). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. Hilliard] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HILLIARD. Mr. Speaker, the general public is outraged at the Republicans' scheme to destroy Medicare, especially since it is common knowledge that the Republican proposal is cutting $270 billion from Medicare just to give wealthy persons a tax cut.

The new and fresh Republicans are supposed to represent the people, not the Republican Party. Several recent polls indicate that the American public is highly skeptical of Republican efforts to cut Medicare.

Let us listen to what the American people are saying as set out by a series of independent polls that have recently been taken. Seventy-one percent of Americans have very little or no trust at all in House Republicans to handle the Medicare financing problems. This was a poll taken by the Associated Press.

Sixty-eight percent of Americans place no trust in the Republicans on the issue of Medicare. This is by a Time/CNN poll.

Fifty-three percent of Americans oppose the Republican plan to offer vouchers to seniors as a way of reducing costs. This is an NBC/Wall Street Journal poll.

Only 19 percent of Americans offered support for a Republican plan to make large cuts in Medicare. Yes, this is by Time/CNN, right in the heart of the South.

Seventy-five percent of Americans oppose cutting Medicare to pay for tax breaks. Once again, NBC/Wall Street Journal.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, 76 percent of Americans believe it is more important to maintain Medicare as it is than reducing the budget deficit. That needs to be repeated; 76 percent. That is from CBS.

All of these polls are independent in nature. None of them have anything to do with the Republican or with the Democratic Party.
Mr. Speaker, the message is clear. The message from our fellow Americans is also clear. Americans throughout this country insist that the current Medicare plan that is in place be preserved as is. This is a message to each one of us as a Member of this body, disregarding party.

MEDICARE ALTERNATIVE HEARINGS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. SCOTT] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, all Americans should be concerned about the proposed massive cuts in the Medicare Program—not simply because they may affect current and future benefits under the program, but they will affect health care cost for all of us.

A large percentage of the $270 billion reduction comes from cuts in payments to health care providers. All employers should be especially concerned about such massive reductions, because ultimately they will have to pay for them.

The problem is that the same number of people will get sick and require the same amount of care, regardless of how their care is paid for. Paying providers less for that care under the Medicare Program does nothing about costs other than to pass them on to Medicare beneficiaries and other paying patients. There is a big difference between controlling costs and simply not paying the bills.

Last year, we learned from our efforts to reform the health care delivery system in this country that it is like a balloon—if you squeeze it in one place, it pops out in another. Likewise when health care providers give care to patients who cannot or do not pay the full cost, those providers shift the cost of that care to patients who pay the going rate, thereby making them more expensive to make up for the uncompensated care.

We will see those higher costs in our insurance premiums and in higher copays, deductibles, and prices for medical procedures.

Higher health care costs will also mean more costly care as people avoid addressing minor problems to save money and those problems become emergencies or require acute care. Thus, we will all pay more and get less if the proposed Republican plan goes into effect.

Of course, there is one group who is not worried about the cost-shifting and the higher medical costs. That group is the upper 20 percent of high income taxpayers who will receive 80 percent of the $250 billion dollar tax cut funded by the Republican plan to reduce Medicare.

While we all agree that we need a long-term fix of the Medicare financing plan, we will not put those dependent upon Medicare in jeopardy to do so, especially if the reason is to pay for a tax cut to benefit mostly wealthy individuals. We have made adjustments in the program before to keep it viable; we can do that now for a lot less than $270 billion if we do not have to make room in the budget for a $250 billion tax cut.

The real solution to the Medicare financing issue is to fix it in the context of universal health care. Neither Medicare nor any other part of the health delivery system can be permanently fixed on a stand-alone basis. That is why hearings are needed to hear from experts, not just politicians, on what is needed to fix the program in a fiscally sound manner that does not impose unnecessary hardships on beneficiaries.

The current approach to fixing Medicare is a cure worse than the disease. Taking $270 billion from beneficiaries to justify a $250 billion tax cut to mostly benefit wealthy individuals is certainly not the way to do it.

WHY CUT $270 BILLION FROM MEDICARE?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from South Carolina [Mr. CLYBURN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Speaker, we have heard quite a bit of debate in recent weeks over Medicare and then $270 billion cut that we are proposing to make in Medicare.

Of course every time I begin discussion of this with various people, I am asked time and time again to give the difference in what we are talking about as we talk about part A and part B.

I want to take just a moment, Mr. Speaker, to talk about those two separate parts, to explain the difference so that people out there listening will get an idea of what we are talking about, because it is very important for them to understand that all of this debate that we are undertaking here sometimes has nothing to do with what really ails them.

Medicare has two separate parts, Medicare part A and Medicare part B. Medicare part A is the Medicare hospital insurance program which mostly covers inpatient hospital stays. Medicare part A is financed through the Medicare trust fund. Like Social Security, employers and workers pay into the Medicare trust fund while an individual is working through a dedicated payroll tax, a 1.45-percent tax paid by employers and a 1.45-percent tax paid by workers.

Medicare part B is the Medicare medical insurance program which covers such other medical services as doctor services, hospital outpatient services, clinical laboratories, and durable medical equipment. Medicare part B is financed in a completely different way than Medicare part A. Medicare part B is financed through a combination of premiums paid by Medicare beneficiaries and the Government.

As we listen to all this debate about insolvency, the American public must understand that it is only the Medicare part A trust fund that faces an insolvency problem in the year 2002. However, we recently heard from the administrator of this program that the insolvency problem could be solved with a modification or a correction or a fix that, if you will it, that, of $96 billion. That would keep this program solvent through the year 2002.

We must then ask the question, if the administrator says that that is all that is required, why then are we pushing $270 billion in modifications to this program?

I say, Mr. Speaker, that we are doing that simply to cover the cost of this $240 billion tax cut that we are proposing to give to those who do not need it. In fact, the bulk of that tax cut will go to people who make over $100,000 a year, most of whom that I talk to as I visit my district tell me they are not asking for a tax cut, they do not need a tax cut, and they do not want a tax cut.

So, then, why are we doing it?

There are two things being lost in all of this. One, of course, is Medicaid, a $182 billion cut in Medicaid, programs for the poor.

THE FIGHT FOR A FAIR DEAL FOR FARM PRODUCERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. BISHOP] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BISHOP. Mr. Speaker, when jurisdiction over farm commodity programs is transferred from the Agriculture Committee to the Budget and Rules Committees, it is an unprecedented attempt by the Republican leadership in this body to stifle the influence of Members who represent the interests of our farmers.

It is an abuse of power.

It is a slap in the face of America's farmers.

It should outrage everyone who is concerned about the future of rural communities.

There is one thing you can say about this development: It may be an abuse of power, and it is bipartisan abuse. It not only seeks to shut out the voice of Democrats on the Agriculture Committee, like myself, it shuts out the voices of Republican Members who also oppose radical changes that would effectively destroy critically needed commodity programs.

Reforms are needed. We need to cut the costs of these programs. We need to make them more market oriented. Farmers understand this.

The area of Georgia I represent grows more peanuts than any place in the world. So from the neighboring Eighth District and I have introduced a new peanut program that eliminates Government costs. It represents dramatic change. But, evidently, this is not enough. The majority leadership will evidently not be satisfied until commodity programs that give our farmers a more level playing field in the world marketplace are destroyed.

Members of the Agriculture committee represent agricultural areas. They have had the experience in the new era of farmers and agribusiness. Just like other committees dealing with other areas of the economy, they have always had a key role to play in shaping farm policy.

That role is now under attack.

Mr. Speaker, we will not be silenced. Members who represent farm-belt areas will continue the fight for a fair deal for the country's farm producers.

THE FREEDOM TO FARM ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Smith] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. Smith of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, several issues have come up, but I would like to start out with agriculture, what the Federal farm policy should be in this country and the advantages and disadvantages to the farmers and agribusiness.

Since the early 1930's, we decided that by controlling production we could guarantee a stable supply of food in this country. However, what has happened in the last 30 years is the consumer interests, the White House, the consumer interests in Congress have started dictating farm program policy, and what has happened is we have driven more and more of the small family farmers out of agriculture. Here is how farm programs have worked: We tell the farmers if they will grow a certain amount of crop and slightly have a policy that encourages overproduction, we will give those farmers subsidy payments. So what we have done, in effect, is encourage slight overproduction, keeping the prices down, which has been good for agriculture in this country because it has become lean and mean.

But in the process, we have disadvantaged small family farmers in this country. That is why, and I as a farmer from Michigan, I am now suggesting that we move to the market economy to give the rewards to the producers of this Nation so that the farmers and ranchers can make their own farm management decisions based on their own interpretation and understanding of what the market is demanding for those special crops.

By doing that, environmentalists and economists that have been advising us on freedom to farm have said that farmers will end up better off as we make this transition to the marketplace.

Make sure, it is a difficult transition, that as we move farmers to be more and more dependent on farm subsidies during the last 40 years. So their cash flow, in many cases, depends on it.

What we have got to do as we make this transition to a market economy, and that is what the Freedom to Market Act does, is make the kind of transition that is going to keep America agriculture the strongest in the world.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Smith] yield to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Kingston].

Mr. Smith of Michigan. I yield to the gentleman from Georgia.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, now let me ask the gentleman about this freedom to farm bill because as I understand from a previous speaker tonight, that did not get included in the Committee. Is it dead? Are you going to try to move it out of the Committee on Agriculture a second time? What is the status of that?

Mr. Smith of Michigan. That now becomes, because of the failure for that committee to enact legislation consistent with the budget resolution, a new proposal will be offered by the chairman of the Committee on the Budget that achieves the same kind of budget reductions.

Let me tell you what has happened in the U.S. Congress, as I observe it, and that is Members traditionally members of the Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities that wanted to spend more money on education, say, "I want to be on the Education Committee." Members that want more roads in their districts want to be on the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure. We have got Members on the Committee on Agriculture that would like more money for their farmers.

If we are going to phase out agriculture in a smart way and not make that farmer continuously dependent on the Government and, hopefully, end up with a larger income for that farmer, then we have got to move to a market economy.

Mr. KINGSTON. Well, I think that the gentleman is walking on the very delicate balance, as you said, between farm programs that work and moving toward an economy that is more free-market oriented, and I know that is a tough road for you.

I have some provincial concerns; cotton, tobacco, soybeans, etc., but I do think what is important is that our farmers are involved in this process and stay involved in this process as things start changing, because I know the peanut farmers have come a long way in their work and the cotton folks are trying to work for something that is a suitable solution.

There are some concerns I have on the sugar program. As you know, America is a net importer of sugar, and even though the taxpayers are not paying the difference, the world cost of sugar is about 11 cents a ton, but the domestic price is 24 cents a ton. We have an 18-cent-per-ton price support.

Mr. Smith of Michigan. Reclaiming my time, I think we are on the same track. The question is how do we achieve the same result in making the transition for farm programs. We have got to do it smartly, simply, because other countries are subsidizing so heavily.

ISSUES CONCERNING A BALANCED BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Kingston] is recognized for 50 minutes as designee of the majority leader.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, tonight we wanted to talk about a number of issues that stand between this Congress, the American taxpayers, and a balanced budget. There is a smorgasbord of issues, of course, that fall in that category. We are going to be touching base on the Davis-Bacon Act and some of the student loan programs, this so-called Istook amendment, and Medicare reform.

I have with me, of course, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Fox], and always on special orders sharing his wisdom with us, the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Smith], who has just given us a description of where we are in the ag program.

Let me ask you gentlemen, and I say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. Fox] I am going to start with the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. Smith] because he and I were freshmen together. We came here in 1992, along with a new President of the United States, trying to balance the budget and do everything we can. We did not, in the 103rd Congress, get very far in that effort.

How do you think we have done so far? Do not pat yourself on the back. People are tired of that.

Mr. Smith of Michigan. The House has done very well. Now we need to finalize our ambitions, get these bills enacted into law. You know, it should be frightening to everybody in this country, how big this Government has grown to be.

After World War II, in 1947, we were spending 12 percent of our gross domestic product to run the budget of the United States. That is what we spent as a percentage of gross domestic product. 12 percent. Today we are almost twice that.

Every day the United States writes out over 3,200,000 checks. Can you imagine a government, in talking to Secretary Rubin, Treasury is not even sure of all of the points that they make these electronic transfers, these payments, these checks? But the estimate is someplace around 12,000 different locations.

Mr. KINGSTON. Let me give you a statistic. The reason why I wanted to mention this is because I want to contrast the 103d Congress to the 104th Congress that the gentleman from Pennsylvania of Fox is a Member of. In the 103d Congress, before the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. Gingrich] and the gentleman from Texas [Mr. Armey] started running this House, 95.7 percent of all witnesses at the congressional hearings advocated more spending. Only 0.7 percent were for less spending, and that is a statistic from the National Center for Public Policy Research.

So now, I say to the gentleman from Pennsylvania Mr. Fox, you were not even in the environment 2 years ago. Do you think we are moving toward balancing the budget?

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. I think we absolutely are, thanks to your efforts and that of the gentleman from Michigan. So I think the fact is the 104th Congress, fired up by 86 new freshmen, 73 Republican, 13 Democrat, I think it is pretty evident that we have an accountability issue out here where the people are saying, OK, you say you are going to make us more accountable, you say you are going to hold the line on taxes and spending, let us see if you can do it, and if you can, you may come back, if you do not, then maybe you are just like past Congresses that said one thing and did another.

If I could just add to that point, I think we have certainly set the tone by passing the balanced budget amendment, line item veto, unfunded mandates, mandating the reform, deficit lockbox reduction where we are going to have the savings go into taxpayers having to pay less interest on the national debt, those kinds of programs which the people of the United States want, Mr. Speaker, which are, in fact, what they have gotten. So I think that we are on our road to putting our fiscal house in order just like State governments do, just like county governments and school boards, but the Federal Government, we have had a 4.5 percent increase in those important programs for our children, we have also said we are going to block grant that program to the Federal Government, what is the government closest to the people doing the best job? It may be local government, it may be county government. The government of last resort that should be working on a program is probably the Federal Government. You have already seen we have recommended in the House the WIC program, the food nutrition programs, while we made sure there is a 4.5 percent increase in those important programs, we have also said we are going to block grant that back to the Governors. We used to spend 15 percent to administer the programs. We told the Governors you can only spend 5 percent. With the extra 10 percent, you have to feed more kids, more meals. That is meaningful reform. We are getting more direct services to the people, but less waste.

And that brings us one more point, if I can, Congressman KINGSTON and Congressman SMITH.

Mr. KINGSTON. You bet it gets the point, and now the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. Hayworth].

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania, OK.

Mr. KINGSTON. Will not get a chance.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. OK. The other point is this:

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. At least in Michigan, they are saying you are not going fast enough, you are not going far enough. You know, we are not doing the traditional tax-and-spend anymore. I mean, the voters of this country have said, “Look, we are paying over 42 percent of what we earn in taxes. Now, that is enough.” So what Government has done is they have decided that they can go out and borrow the money and expand those programs and they find the help of this bureaucracy by borrowing more and more money. The interest just of servicing the Federal debt, the interest on the debt subject to limit this year was over $330 billion, almost 22 percent of our budget and so the borrowing has got to be stopped. We have got to bring down the size of this Government if we want individuals to have the freedom and independence that the founders of our Constitution designed.

Mr. KINGSTON. So what the people in Michigan are saying is keep going and do not chicken out. What are they saying in Pennsylvania?

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. In Pennsylvania they are very happy about the fact we are holding the line on wasteful spending. They want to make sure, however, the direct services that can be handled by the Federal Government should be handled by the Federal Government, and so in a meaningful manner. By this I mean we are looking at the whole budget this year in the right way. If it should be the private sector that should be doing what the Federal Government is not doing, give it to the private sector, that should be done by the Federal Government, what is the government closest to the people doing the best job? It may be local government, it may be county government. The government of last resort that should be working on a program is probably the Federal Government. You have already seen we have recommended in the House the WIC program, the food nutrition programs, while we made sure there is a 4.5 percent increase in those important programs, we have also said we are going to block grant that back to the Governors. And that brings us one more point, if I can, Congressman KINGSTON and Congressman SMITH.

Mr. KINGSTON. You bet it gets the point, and now the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. Hayworth].

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania, OK.

Mr. KINGSTON. Will not get a chance.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. OK. The other point is this:

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. At least in Michigan, they are saying you are not going far enough, you are not going fast enough. You know, we are not doing the traditional tax-and-spend...
Mr. KINGSTON. Well, now the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SMITH] is on the Committee on the Budget. Why are we doing this at all? I hear some folks in the Congress and Government in Washington saying this is unnecessary to even do anything.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Well, you know, it is only partisan for those individuals that think they have a target to shoot down something, to criticize rather than being constructive to help develop the best solutions to save, preserve, and keep Medicare available to the current recipients and the future recipients, so, as far as a budget consideration, the trustees of Medicare came to the Committee on the Budget, and they said Medicare is going to be going broke. We are going to take in less money than is needed for payout starting next year. Something has to be done.

Mr. KINGSTON. One second. Were those Republican trustees?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. No. Thank you, Mr. KINGSTON, no. These were the trustees actually, were three of the Cabinet Members that the President appointed.

You know, the President has even said as we look at the Medicare B provisions, he—this is—what he expects recipients to pay for their share of the premium ends up to be $7 less than what the Republican proposal is, so we have $7-a-month difference in the President’s proposal and the Republican proposal. Everybody that is honest about this knows that we have got to do a better job, and I do not want to talk too long here with these good ideas, but look what the private sector has done, look what the private sector has done in terms of lowering their medical health care costs. We have actually had negative cost increases in the private sector while we have had 11 percent in the public sector.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. FOX, I could tell you what your interest is.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Well, Congressmen KINGSTON and Congressman SMITH, also Congressman HAYWORTH, I think it is very important to understand. You pointed out the President had a proposal, and you have heard a Republican proposal, but there has been nothing from the Democratic Congress in the way of a proposal, and it is not responsible, I would submit, for us to debate the issue of how we are going to save Medicare unless we have a proposal from more than one side of the aisle, and frankly American people deserve a fact that we are going to come to a resolution, every good idea from Congressman HAYWORTH’s district, Congressman SMITH’s district, Congressmen KINGSTON’s district; we want to hear those ideas. That is how this Congress can do a better job, and I have invited my senior citizens and others interested in health care to come forward with those good ideas, and—

Mr. KINGSTON. Well, I do think it is also important to point out that there are—there is bipartisan support on it. Now there is some partisan criticism, but we do have a lot of bipartisan support saying. Don’t let this thing go broke in 6 years. Let’s roll up our sleeves and try to get something done, and that is what is best and what is fair, and what is simple, and what is best to protect and preserve the system.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Can I just say that I understand from the Committee on Rules that, if the Democrats do propose a plan that meets the budget guidelines, that will be made in order for debate.

Mr. HAYWORTH. And if the gentleman would yield, I think it is important for us again for purposes of full disclosure, and again to bring some element of bipartisanship to this debate. Now I understand that Members of the new minority are taking their own fledgling steps toward coming up with a plan, and I welcome what in essence, according to newspapers, is no amount to a, a quote unquote, deathbed conversion after months of raving and ranting when we were willing to abandon politics as usual and say no. It is always better for a professional politician to try and explain away problems. No, we rather not confront this, the fact that we have come from different walks of life to serve here as citizens and say to the American public this is an issue too important to play politics as usual, and so I think even though we had months and months of reticence, to put it diplomatically, from our friends from the new minority, now even they are understanding that the American people are not going to be satisfied with just people sitting on the sidelines moaning, complaining, about very serious policy questions.

So to their credit in fairness I am glad to see that many Members of the minority now say that they want to come up with a plan. However, it is important to remember this. Mr. KINGSTON. I have never seen the gentleman speechless.

Mr. HAYWORTH. And you shan't during my time here. Although it is very good to listen to my friend, the gentleman from Georgia, outline the paramount importance of legislation which passed this House overwhelmingly, and we look forward to seeing it enacted into law, and I realize quite often this is the function of State government. But when many highway projects that were included in this bill, I was growing up, you would see that famous slogan, "Your tax dollars at work."

Mr. Speaker, I think it is just important for the American public, who has seen so much of its income, the American families have seen so much of their income, taken in taxation by this Government, to the point, as my friend, the gentleman from Georgia, pointed out a few moments ago, in 1948 the average family of four paid roughly 3 percent of its income to the Federal Government. By last year, almost one-quarter of the average family of four's income was surrendered to the Federal Government in terms of taxation. I believe the hardworking people of America now realize that off time there is fiscal advocacy here on the bank of the Potomac, rather than any charitable or philanthropic endeavor, is where their tax dollars were at work.

Are we here to suffocate or strangle or silence public debate? Of course not; certainly not here in the well of this Congress, where we preserve everyone's right to have a diversity of opinion and to express that opinion.

However, the point is, pure and simple, it is an inappropriate use of tax money for groups to come to this Congress and ask for the largesse which is the money of the American taxpayer, to take that money and go out and be involved in political campaigns, or to take that money and come back here to lobby in the halls of the Congress for yet more and more money.

Mr. KINGSTON. I served in the State legislature before I was elected to Congress and served here one term, and then got put on the Committee on Appropriations this year. I cannot tell you how many tax-funded lobbyist schemes come across our desks in our office every day. You know doggone good and well people are there at tax-office every day. You know doggone schemes come across our desks in our appropriations this year. I cannot tell then got put on the Committee on Appropriations, Mr. KINGSTON, who are on the Committee on Appropriations. I think the gentleman from Arizona [Mr. HAYWORTH] is going to speak out about how this is going to go the right direction.

Mr. HAYWORTH. And you shan't have an agency that can be eliminated because the State government is already handling it, that is OK, too."

I think we are going to have this resolution because of the work of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SMITH] and others, and if you have an agency that can be eliminated because the State government is already handling it, that is OK, too."

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, because the vernacular of Washington, and especially the liberal press corps, has really taken over. Two years ago it was the notion of gridlock. Now it is the notion of a train wreck.

It is important to note, just borrowing that phrase right now, that I believe, as our good friend, the gentleman from Illinois, Mr. DANHY HASTERT, has the state so well, I believe the American people firmly have their train on the tracks toward lower spending, lower taxes, reshaping this to be a limited and effective government for the next century.

With that train on the tracks, the challenge now exists in the executive branch for the President, who came on television in a brief 5-minute speech a few months ago, who again asserted the importance of a balanced budget, for the President to come along with us in a bipartisan fashion to move to balance this budget in 7 years. And if the President is willing to do that, and if the President is willing to come along with us in a bipartisan fashion, along with the members of this balanced budget, then the American people's train will stay on track.

However, if others who cannot seem to part from an almost pathological respect for taxpayer money, to make government larger and larger, if they cannot abandon those outmoded notions, then the responsibility for any wreck will be on them.
Mr. SMITH of Michigan. I would like to ask a test question. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the question to the American people to give me your best guess, of all of the money lent out in the United States last year, how much of that money you thought was borrowed by the Federal Government? I will give you the answer. Think about it a second.

The answer is 42 percent of all of the money lent out in the United States was borrowed by the Federal Government. It is why Greenspan says if we can just do what we should do and not spend more than we are taking in, interest rates will go down 2 percent. How do we cut down on some of this wasteful spending of the Federal Government? I think that is a question for the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. KINGSTON]. Let us all pitch in some ideas on wasteful spending.

Mr. KINGSTON. I am going to throw some things out at you. I have a constituent from Atlanta, Kenneth Richardson, actually from Atlanta, and he came up with this figure. He said that every minute in the U.S. Government, under their calculations, we waste $2,152,207, and they show what our interest is and what our fraud and waste is in various government programs year in and year out. That is a scary thought.

He said, "What are you going to do about it, because every minute you are costing the taxpayers $2.1 million." There are so many things that we have done in the appropriations process that, even though the Senate did not pass the balanced budget amendment, it is clear the American people want a balanced budget.

So I think the number one thing that we are doing is every bill that we pass, 13 different appropriations bills, we are moving a balanced budget.

Mr. Speaker, there are a couple of things that I want to point out. There are 163 different Federal job training programs. Sitting in on the hearings, many of them do the exact same thing. You cannot get the agencies to agree to consolidate, but if you sit there and you are not involved in the program, they sound like they are doing just exactly the same.

I would submit to my colleagues that out of 163 different Federal job programs, certainly we can combine many, many of them. I am not going to give a number, but I would say substantially most of them.

Let me yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX].

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, talking about what we have tried to do so far, two items come to mind. First, the line-item veto which is the President's way that we have given him, at the House and Senate versions are agreed upon, to line-item out pork barrel legislation, which will take out those programs which have been in prior Congresses to get people re-elected. They are not items that are of regional value or permanent value. That line-item veto is one item.

No. two, the Lockbox Act which we passed is going to guarantee that the money that is saved from the elimination of a program through appropriations is actually going to deficit reduction.

We have the problem that the gentleman from Florida [Mr. FOLEY] identified. They took out $25 million for a superturbine program which was requested to be pork. He took it out in committee. The next day it was in someone else's district already reassigned as pork somewhere else. It is moving around, and we cannot catch all of this pork.

Well the Lockbox Reduction Act which we passed last week is going to be one more way to make sure that the savings that the American people want in the least amount, but the question and the items that do not belong in the Federal Government will in fact be eliminated permanently.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman went on to think it is very important, and indeed, Mr. Speaker, as Americans join us via C-SPAN to be part of this process, many folks have spoken about the intent of the new majority to consolidate some roles and to eliminate various cabinet level agencies.

I was involved in an interview with a national magazine yesterday where the question was put to me saying, Well, you have yet to eliminate a cabinet level agency. We realize you are working very hard in the Commerce Department, and certainly there is great merit to the elimination and consolidation of some worthwhile programs, and ultimately the elimination of that cabinet level agency.

I think that is a question for the gentleman from Arizona. I think again, this cannot be stated very well, from the journalist, why have you not done more?

I think again, this cannot be stated enough, Mr. Speaker, to the American public. It is the span of 9 or 10 months to reverse the inexorable trend of the previous 40 years. We are working very hard to reduce the size of government, to rein in waste in spending, to eliminate not only waste, but the average wage actually paid by private contractors is $15 an hour. That has resulted in an overcost to the American taxpayer, and with the expenditures that we borrow from the United States, of $3.2 billion. That is why Greenspan has said that every single dollar of this country's money, because every place that government does have any money in a State contract where the State may be paying the majority share of that contract, the State is now required to pay those prevailing wages instead of the market wages that could tremendously reduce the cost of schools and any other construction.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I also wanted to mention another way that we can save money on the budget, which is to crack down on illegal aliens and their uses of the marketplace for anything that govern-
Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Georgia would yield, yes, I am very familiar with the story of what transpired in San Luis and indeed would like to thank the Arizona Republic newspaper for bringing that story to the prominence to citizens of our country with these young women, who now 30 percent of the births in the United States are out of wedlock.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, I believe it is a point made quite well by Marvin Olasky in his book, "The Tragedy of American Compassion." Somewhere along the line in this country we have decided it would be substituted for caring, and so enjoined has it become in the subconscious of the body politic that it is pervasive almost to the point that we gauge caring by examples of care taking through federal largess.

Now, are we saying that people should just be cut off, tough luck? No, not at all. What we are saying is this: as we transform this welfare state into an opportunity society, we should take care to make sure that what we truly have is a safety net instead of a hammock. That is the challenge we face as we move to confront a new century, and as we engage in open and honest debate with those who may have a different point of view.

Mr. KINGTON. Mr. Speaker, recalling my time, I think what we want with welfare reform is a program that has a work requirement, if you are able to work, a program that lets States have flexibility, because in Georgia we are going to do it differently than you do in Arizona, different than in New York City and San Francisco, and that is the way it should be.

Let us decide how we are going to deal with our poverty. Give us some guidelines, but give us the flexibility that we need, and then there is that illegal immigration component. We do not want money being used to attract people to come to America just so that they can enjoy the public benefit.

Then finally, as the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SMITH] said, you want to have a program that does not reward irresponsibility, particularly when it is not age appropriate for 16 and 15-year-old to be parents.

Mr. Speaker, we are coming to a close. I do want to say on the subject of welfare reform and all of the things that are going on in my hometown, Savannah, GA, where there is a group called the Chatham Citizen Advocacy, Tom Kohler. I believe Tom Kohler leans led by a good friend of mine, Tom Kohler. I believe Tom Kohler leans Democratic, but I was kidding him because he works for an agency who I think the philosophy is Republican, because No. 1, it does not take any Federal dollars or local dollars.

What Tom does is he matches up somebody who is established, prominent, better off, upper middle class with somebody who is unfortunate, who has had some hard knocks, who is down on the ground. He matches the two together. Not so that the wealthy one can write a check and feel good about it, not that, but that it brings people into friends. The wealthy person says to the poor person, let me help you. What are your problems? How can I help you get a job? How can I get you to the hospital today? How can I help you kick the habit, or whatever it is.

Tom says that the benefit to society of course is economic. The benefit to the two individuals when they come together with human compassion is immeasurable.

Mr. HAYWORTH. The gentleman brings to mind a program in Arizona, known by its acronym, WOW - Work, Opportunity, Welfare and Off Welfare, which employs many of the same notions that you describe in the program in your home district in Georgia.

Let us hope for our society that we never go down the road where Government has grown so large, where it has taken over acts of kindness and charity to such a great extent that we denigrate those who would step forward through traditional notions or innovative notions of charity that offer perhaps the most elemental and the most significant contribution that can take place, one-on-one caring, not care-taking.

For indeed as we see, who cares more about children? Their parents. Not someone employed by the Federal Government in Washington.

I do not call into question a government employee's dedication. But it will never take the place of a parent's love, it will never take the place of mentoring that most parents can provide, and indeed as we confront a new century, it is important that that Uncle Sam is our uncle, he is to be big brother, nor is he to be Mother and Dad, but surrogate family to the American people.

Mr. KINGTON. I think you have wrapped it up real well. I am going to add one last line. A lady named Charlie from Denton, TX wrote me and said on the subject of the public debt, which is of course what has been our central theme today, saving money, cutting back on the size of Government and so forth, she says:

I'm very upset that some people think it's okay to tax my grandchildren, 17 years to 3 months old, for things other people have already used up.

We have got to balance the budget, we have got to give a promise so that Charlie's grandchildren and your grandchildren and my grandchildren will have a bright, great America as we know it and should be.
FURTHER MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A further message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed with amendments in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 4. An act to restore the American family, reduce illegitimacy, control welfare spending and reduce welfare dependence.

The message also announced that the Senate insists upon its amendments to the bill (H.R. 4) "An Act to restore the American family, reduce illegitimacy, control welfare spending and reduce welfare dependence" and requests a conference with the House on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses therefore.

RADICAL LEGISLATIVE CHANGES ON HORIZON

The SPEAKER pro tem (Mr. Bunn of Oregon). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to associate myself with the remarks of some colleagues of mine who were here earlier speaking about the Medicare cuts and the Medicaid cuts. Nothing is more important now on the legislative agenda than the rape of Medicare and Medicaid.

Many people have focused on Medicare and do not even know that Medicaid is being cut even more drastically than Medicare. Medicaid is being cut by $180 billion over a 7-year period. But it is a smaller program and the percentage of the cut is much greater.

Of even greater significance than that is the fact that there are proposals on the table to eliminate the entitlement for Medicaid. Medicaid at present offers a means-tested entitlement, that is, if you can prove that you are poor and needy, then you qualify for Medicaid if you are in the category which on the basis of this means-testing process makes you eligible.

This means-tested entitlement, as we call it, is now on the chopping block. It is being proposed that it be eliminated.

We have a precedent that has been set in the last few days. We have witnessed the Senate follow the pattern of the House and eliminate the entitlement with the "Deficit Reduction Act to Families with Dependent Children." That is welfare mothers in popular terms.

Welfare mothers, welfare families, welfare children, under the law that has existed since the Social Security laws were enacted, under the New Deal, under Franklin Roosevelt, have had an entitlement. That is, if you can prove that you are really in need and you are poor and you qualify under the means-testing, then you are eligible for the benefit. This is the entitlement to Families with Dependent Children.

That is gone now. It is only a matter of the President signing it into law.

The Senate has passed a bill which removes the entitlement. The House had already removed it before. It is a barbaric act.

I have used the word "barbaric" before. I have defined barbarians as those who have no compassion. If they have no compassion for anyone except their own kind and kin, then they are barbarians. They are incapable of having compassion.

Barbarians are a threat to society, especially when barbarians have power. When barbarians are able to make decisions and they do not have any compassion, they are a threat to any society. They are a threat to America, because they are making these horrendous cuts and taking away entitlements like the entitlement of a needy child to help from their Government.

They are threatening to take away the entitlement from Medicaid, the entitlement of a person who is sick or families who are in need of medical attention and pay for that medical attention themselves. They are going to take it away.

They are going to leave the elderly out on the hillside to die, in symbolic terms, because when you get Medicaid and you take away the Medicaid entitlement, what you are doing is cutting nursing home care, because two-thirds of Medicaid goes to nursing home care and care for people with disabilities. Two-thirds. One-third is for families who are poor, but two-thirds goes for nursing home care for the elderly and for people with disabilities. So you are going to take away the nursing home care from the elderly people when you remove that entitlement.

The Federal Government is going to get out of the responsibility of promoting the general welfare in that respect and leave it all up to the States who would not do it before. Before we had Medicaid, they would not do it. Before we had Medicare, they would not do it. So there is no reason to believe the States are going to take up that burden once the Federal Government gives them that responsibility and slowly the amount of money made available by the Federal Government is decreased.

I want to loan any support and certainly associate myself with the remarks of my colleagues who spoke earlier about this problem of Medicare and Medicaid being number one on our agenda. Everybody has to be concerned about it. It is a snapshot of our civilization.

Where are we in America right now? If the American people sit still and allow this to happen, are we? If we allow coverage for health care to instead of going forward to become universal coverage as we were discussing just a year ago, just a year ago we had plans on the table to move forward universal health care coverage, where eventually 95 percent, at least, of all the people in America would be covered with some kind of health care plan. Now instead of moving forward, we are going to take away the coverage which is currently guaranteed to those who are eligible for Medicaid and move backwards.

There will be many fewer Americans who are covered with any kind of health care plan after this Medicaid entitlement is removed. We are going to take great steps backwards, and the American people must focus in and take a close look at who are we, what are we, where are we?

Are we so desperate that we have to act as barbarians? Are we so desperate that we have to sit down as the voters and the citizens and approve of such barbaric acts? Are we going to swallow the arguments that we are on the verge of bankruptcy and there is no other way to get out of this threat of bankruptcy to do mean and extreme things to each other, to the least among us, those who are unable to help themselves?

Please try to stay with it, because the pace of change over the next 3 or 4 weeks will be quite rapid. Next week we will have a week off, but the pace will go forward even though the Congress will not be in session, because the negotiations now on the appropriations bills, the negotiations and the details of the health care plans and Medicaid, the welfare reform, a number of things are happening, and they will go forward while Congress is not in session next week.

But once we return, then all other things will have to be wrapped up in a matter of a few weeks and the pace will be mind-boggling. This is the time of rapidity, the speed with which legislative changes are happening. We are not just finishing up the first half of the 104th Congress.

The agenda for the 104th Congress requires, because of the way the leaders have structured it, that we pass radical legislative changes before this half of the session ends. That means that in the next 3 or 4 weeks, you are going to have to follow very closely while some very mean and extreme changes are made rapidly. Under the cover of the rapidity, the swiftness with which things are done, much will be lost unless we follow very closely.

We did pass a continuing resolution today. A continuing resolution, I have explained before, is a resolution necessary to keep the Government going when the appropriations bills have not been passed to cover programs and activities of the Government. Most of the appropriations bills have not been passed by both the House and the Senate.

I would like to applaud our leaders in the House, our leaders in the Senate and our leaders at the White House for not indulging in melodrama. We did not have any melodramatic showdown... at this point. Because to have any attempt to stop the Government or even pretend to stop the Government at this point would be ridiculous.

There is so much to be done, there are so many appropriations bills that have been passed by the Senate. There is so much, it would be ridiculous to pretend that we could stay here over the weekend or work out some kind of solution in such a short period of time. There will be still a problem later on. We have expanded it until November 13, and the continuing resolution ends on November 13.

The train wreck that has been talked about, the train wreck that is coming will definitely occur at that time. I assure you. There will be a clash between the President and the Republican-controlled Congress, because the President says he will not accept certain bills. He has made it quite clear. On some he says he may not accept them, but on one or two he has said he will not accept certain bills. One of them is the human services, education and job training appropriation bill. If it comes out of the Senate and comes out of the conference process and looks the way the bill looks in the house, with $4 billion in education cuts and $5 billion in job training and human services cuts, then the President has made it quite clear he will not sign the bill, he will veto it.

Probably he will veto a Medicare bill which I think is outrageous as those that are being proposed. I hope the President will shortly, in the next few days, make a clear statement that he will veto any bill which ends the entitlement for Medicaid. We have lost the entitlement for Aid to Families with Dependent Children. We have lost the entitlement for people who are poor and are in need of assistance. It is lost. Overwhelmingly the Democrats joined the Republicans to vote against the Senate. They can never override in Presidential veto. The power of the actions of the Senate has come back to influence the people in the House. It is a lost cause.

The House stood up firmly, Democrats in the House stood firmly on the principle of entitlement. I congratulate my Democratic colleagues, the conservatives, the liberals. Everybody got together on the bill that we offered as a substitute. We offered a substitute bill which would have provided job training, would have provided a longer time for people to be educated and get job training. It would have provided some kind of program to help create jobs. In addition to that, most important, the bill that was offered by the Democrats on the floor of the House at the time of the welfare reform bill consideration kept the Federal entitlement. The Federal Government stands behind individuals who are in need when a hurricane happens. We take it for granted. It is not written in the legislation that automatically you will get Federal aid; it is going to be there no matter how rich you are. If your house is blown down by the winds, no matter how many times you build your house in a place where the winds are likely to blow it down, when they come again, you will get Federal help. No matter how close you build your home to the river, no matter how many times you keep building your home close to the river, no matter how well-off you are, when floods occur, you are going to get help from the Federal Government. Earthquakes, $7 billion, $8 billion for the California earthquake. You can expect, regardless of the state of a person's income, everybody who is affected by the earthquake will get some help from the Government.

That is a civilized government. That is a government designed to promote the general welfare. That is the way it should be. But it should also be that way for people who have economic difficulties and need help.

Oh, yes, there are abuses in the welfare program. There are abuses in the earthquake relief program. Have you heard? There are abuses in the flood relief program. There are abuses in programs that relieve hurricanes and tornadoes. Wherever human beings exist, they promulgate abuses of programs. Some people take advantage of the situation. There are going to be abuses. I am going to talk in a few minutes about two sets of abuses, abuses that are in the welfare reform program that enrage so many citizens and abuses that took place in the savings-and-loans program, which seem to be forgotten already although they cost more than $250 billion. That is a most conservative estimate. I will make a comparison in a few minutes.

Before I do that, I just want to end my alert on Medicare and Medicaid. Among people, please, keep your eyes on Medicaid and the Medicaid entitlement. Do not let the Medicaid entitlement be wiped away. We can only mourn now for the entitlement for poor people, public assistance, and only mourn now for the entitlement for children, dependent children. We can only mourn because it is almost all over. The agreement has been reached. There is very little we can do politically to roll back the clock and get a better bill. We cannot maintain an entitlement that was instituted by the Social Security Act under Franklin Roosevelt. We cannot bring it back.

But we can stop the escalation of the barbarity. We can stop the barbarians from taking away the Medicaid entitlement. We can act. Let your Congressmen know. Let your Senators know. Let everybody know you do not want to move further away from universal health care. The notion that brings us closest to health care for poor people is the Medicaid Program. You do not want to take health care away from seniors who, after they exhaust their income, they exhaust whatever assets they have, go from Medicare to Medicaid. You do not want to do that. Too many of our senior citizens would be left on the hillside to die, in symbolic terms.

Let us move for a minute to take a look at the fact that Americans are outraged by abuses in welfare and the welfare reform has certainly been in response to some ridiculous kinds of things that have occurred. I would criticize the welfare profession. I would criticize the public policy planners for allowing a lot of little things that could have been corrected to mushroom. But I assure you that welfare, as a system, is far more honest, the system for providing public subsidy to children who are dependent is far better run and far more honest than most Federal programs that exist today. Let me repeat that: There are abuses in any program that has ever been conceived by the Federal Government, State government, or local Government, any government, any programs that have been conceived of by any government anywhere in the world. The human mind is such that there are people who are so greedy and begin to find places to take advantage of the system. The abuses are inevitable because of the fact that human beings are so intelligent and some of them who are very intelligent are not very honest. There is always the guy who is looking, the hustler who is looking for a way to take advantage of the system.

So welfare has had its abuses. The abuses, again, are minuscule compared to the abuses that we have seen in some other programs. Let me just stop for a moment and read a couple of clippings to you. Let me just stop for a moment and take advantage of some recent developments which you might have missed. You might have missed the fact that in the New York Times, on September 25, and many other papers in the last few days, there has been a big discussion of the fact that the CIA had more than $1.5 billion for objectives that are not known to you.

You know, you think in millions, and hundreds of millions, but when you get to billions, people just cannot understand a billion dollars and what you can do with that. You know, a billion dollars, I assure you, would pay for a lot of nursing home time for hundreds of thousands of people. A billion dollars would cover a lot of food for a lot of school lunch programs. A billion dollars is a lot of money.

The school program, lunch program, was cut by about $2 billion over a period of 7 years. We could give back that $2 billion and say:

School lunch program, you don't have to worry about searching out the immigrant children. You don't have to worry about driving out the immigrants, legal immigrant children, by the way. You do not have to worry about looking for the illegal ones. You do not have to deal with draconian cuts that are going to be squeezed as you move the program down to the State level.
and cut back on the amount of funds, because you have a $1.5 billion windfall here in the CIA.

The CIA has secreted. They have so much money and there are so many abuses, and the administration is so loose until $1.5 billion had secreted away in a slush fund without the Members of Congress being informed. The heads of the agency, the agency heads, the people in charge said that they did not know about it. The President, the Speaker of the House, that is also did not know about it: $1.5 billion. Put that down. You know, that is an estimate of the New York Times. It is secret, of course. It probably was more, but it is a secret figure. The conservative estimate is $1.5 billion.

Mr. Speaker, what I am trying to do is demonstrate that there are widespread and very costly abuses throughout the Government. There are many at the city level and State level which never get the visibility that the Federal programs get. But occasionally there are some secret programs in the Federal Government, like the CIA slush fund that I am talking about. They discovered $1.5 billion in a slush fund that nobody knew about except, I guess, the people who keep the money. I mean, how can they not know? How did it not show up on the books? What welfare recipient could ever get away with a few hundred dollars not showing up in the system? Here we have $1.5 billion.

What is going to be done as a result of finding that there were people who were keeping $1.5 billion or more out of the reach of their supervisors and out of the reach of Congress and the President? What is being done? Excuses are being made. All kinds of excuses are being made. Now, this is in an agency which has been guilty before, ladies and gentlemen. This is the spy satellite agency. You know, in popular terms, this is the Nation's spy satellite agency. It is the National Reconnaissance Office. The National Reconnaissance Office was cited, you know, not too many months ago for having a building under construction which cost $317 million, more than $3 million. This was a building under construction for more than, and I have it here, $347 million last year.

land in Idaho for $275. I did not make a mistake, my colleagues, $275 for 110 acres of land.

Now I would say that $275 for 110 acres of land is a bargain almost anywhere, you know, even in a swamp. Well, you know, that is the kind of deals, quote, "increasingly distasteful". It is an 1872 law that requires the Government to sell Federal mining rights for as little as $2.50 an acre. It is an 1872 law that requires the Government to sell Federal mining rights for as little as $2.50 an acre. Do you hear? It was sold to a Danish company, a foreign company.

Mr. Speaker, they are on the floor bashing immigrants and talking about how terrible it is that immigrants come in and they take jobs and do horrible things. Here we have given away to a foreign company 110 acres of land for $275, and the estimated mineral yield of that land is a billion dollars.

Now you might say, "Well, it's very generous of us. There's nothing bar- ricab about that." You know, it is Americans who are compassionate enough to give to foreigners a great gift. Foreigners are not their kind and kin, so, if they are going to give to for- eigners, the Danish owners, this kind of bargain, this kind of gift, then that shows that they are not barbaric. These are very generous people. They may be naive, but they are very generous, because, after all, they are giving it away, and they will not gain any- thing.

Well, life is a bit more complicated than that. Economics is a bit more complicated than that. Business is more complicated than that. Probably no American company thought they could stand up and take the heat from the American people of having gotten away from that kind of deal. So they have gotten a foreign company, but I assure you the people that owned this company are not all Danish. I assure you that the conditions which led to keeping this law would not be there just to benefit a foreign company.

Congress has sought for years to change the law according to the New York Times again. Congress has sought for years to change the law, but under the strong pressure from the mining in- dustry, western lawmakers have repeat- edly blocked the legislation. Support- ers of the law maintain that it helps to promote mining in the United States and preserve jobs. To promote mining in the United States and preserve jobs you have to give away 110 acres at $2.75 an acre. Congress has sought for years to change the law under strong pres- sure, but under strong pressure from the mining industry.

Who is the mining industry? You know, I assure you it is not just this little Danish company, not foreigners. The mining industry has stockholders. The mining industry has very powerful people in very powerful places.

Western lawmakers have repeatedly blocked the legislation.

Western lawmakers? Who are the western lawmakers? They are not for- eigners. We do not elect foreigners to office, so western lawmakers, whoever they may be, have blocked legislation which is sought to correct this 1872 law. Probably made sense in 1872 that everybody—you would have to be a fool to believe it made any sense now. Any child can tell you this does not make any sense except if you want to rip off the American people.

Land is owned by the American peo- ple until it is conveyed to the mining company, and they say it helps the United States to promote mining in the United States and preserve jobs. If you charge a thousand dollars an acre, you cannot pro- mote mining and preserve mining jobs? You know, if it is a billion dollars that is expected, a billion dollars worth of minerals, you certainly could get a higher price.

We are back to that old issue of tax- ation and revenue. I proposed before that we have a revenue commission, you might recall, a revenue commis- sion to look at ways to get revenue more creatively instead of continuing to tax families and individuals so heavily. You know families and individuals are heavily taxed; 44 percent of our tax- burden is borne by families and individ- uals, and only 11 percent is borne by corporations.

Now these are not the only sources of revenue. There are other kinds of reve- nue that help make up the total pack- age. When you take a look at some of those other kinds of revenue, we can get revenue from mining lands that are sold, as the President proposes, but here we are up against lawmakers, westem lawmakers, who are not insist- ent, enraged by the fact that somebody is ripping off the Government. No, they are the kind of people, one out of every hundred who might be a hustler, who might be taking advan- tage of the Government programs. These are not people using food stamps who might buy cigarettes for food stamps instead of buying food. These are not those kind of people. These are people who are taking millions of dol- lars away from the American people that could go into our revenue coffers. Let me just read on a minute because it is a bit sickening, the whole story, and you get the flavor of how sick it is by just reading.

The wimpish way we react, the wimpish way our policymakers deal with these outrageous abuses, is enough to give you a heart attack. It is outrageous.

Quote from the New York Times article-

But Mr. Babbitt, in conveying the Federal tract in Idaho, said he found making such deals, quote, "increasingly distasteful", increas- ingly distasteful, and he called the law, the law that does this, whose intent origi- nally was to promote development of the West, outdated and exploitative, exploita- tive, exploitative of taxpayers. Mr. Babbitt found it increasingly distasteful, and he said the law outdated and exploitative of taxpayers.

Now I am not criticizing Mr. Babbitt except I think his language is much too wimpish.

You know, I am reminded of the quote from King Lear. King Lear, after his daughters have betrayed him, said, "Fool me not to bear it tamely. Touch me with noble anger." Somebody ought to have said "noble anger" when the CIA builds a building near the airport and the Sen- ators and the Members of Congress do not know about it, and the building cost $347 million. Somebody ought to be outraged.

They tremble and they shake when they talk about welfare people. You heard them before saying they stand in line, and they get with their food stamps, and they get behind them who is working all day. That is outrageous, and they tremble and they shake when they say that, but they can let the white males, educated in many cases, rich, promulgate a system. Any lawmaker who is part of promulgating this system is not dumb. Somewhere there are benefits that his constituents are getting in larger amounts if you want to keep selling the land of the people of the United States for $2.50 an acre and you know you know billions of dollars are going to be made.

The 110 acres in Clark County, ID, are believed to contained an estimated 14 million tons of high-quality travertine, a mineral used to whiten paper. I am quoting from the New York Times article again. Last year, quote, "when American Barrick Resources, a Cana- dian mining company, used the law to buy a mine with $10 billion in gold de- posits for about $10,000, Mr. Babbitt called it the biggest gold heist since the days of Butch Cassidy.''

Let me read that again. Last year, when American Barrick Resources, a Canadian mining company, used the same law to buy a mine with $10 billion in gold de- posits for about $10,000, Mr. Babbitt called it the biggest gold heist since the days of Butch Cassidy.

Mr. Babbitt, I am glad you have such strong language for it, you know. If you get $10 billion from the people of the United States for $10,000, you think somebody would be on television screaming about it. They could do nothing else except tell the American people about it.
The President and his campaign said we want to end welfare as we know it. Why does somebody not say we want to end the giveaway of billions of dollars mostly to foreign companies, but they have American backers? We want to stop that too. We are angry and agitated at this thievery. Why does somebody not have the guts to stand up and be outraged about stealing money which could provide coverage for thousands of people on Medicaid? For hundreds of nursing home people?

I continue to quote from Babbitt. I find this process where my hands are tied by a law signed by Ulysses S. Grant increasingly distasteful. Mr. Babbitt likes the word “distasteful.”

He said that, “While Congress is cutting programs across his department.” Mr. Babbitt is upset about his department being cut, as he should be, the Interior Department, he said, “While Congress is cutting programs across my department, the government is losing $21 million a year from royalties from hardrock mining.” One hundred million a year in royalties for hardrock mining. How many school lunches could you buy with $100 million a year? How many prescriptions for Medicaid recipients can you fill for $100 million a year?

I quote again from the article: “The bill to overhaul mining laws would require companies to pay fair market value for the surface land, but nothing for the minerals.” In other words, as we sit here today, as we talk today, there are Members of Congress in the Senate and in the House of Representatives who are protecting the thievery that is going on right before our very eyes. This is a Federal program that should have radical reform, radical change, but nobody is moving because the people who are rich, well educated males benefit from it. They protect themselves.

I talked before about the end of entitlement for Medicaid. I said, “The end of entitlement for Medicaid is on the table.” It is not here yet. Medicaid is a patient in the emergency room, on the operating table. Medicaid is about to be butcheted. Aid to Families With Dependent Children is on its way to the morgue. They have cut the entitlement all across. What would Franklin Roosevelt say? I am sure that the spirit of Franklin Roosevelt is quite angry and quite agitated tonight. Over the last few months, I am sure that spirit has been quite angry and agitated at the wholesale destruction of the programs which he began to put in place.

Franklin Roosevelt was the architect of the Social Security Act, which created Social Security, and later Lyndon Johnson said he would go on to create Medicare and Medicaid. They are all related. I am sure Franklin Roosevelt, having created entitlements for the poor, he also created farm subsidies for poor farmers. Farm subsidies for poor farmers now have become farm market subsidies for rich farming businesses, agricultural businesses, so I am sure the spirit of Franklin Roosevelt is a little upset about that.

As he looks at the end of entitlements for people who are poor and need public assistance, for children, mostly, Aid to Families With Dependent Children is just that. If you do not have poor children, you do not qualify. We are ending Aid to Families With Dependent Children, the entitlement.

In 1952, when Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal Congresses that surrounded him, were also the architects of the savings and loans program. They were the architects of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for banks and savings and loan agencies. I wonder what the spirit of Franklin Roosevelt is doing as it beholds the kind of abuse that took place in the savings and loan program, the kinds of abuses that have taken place in the program that he started; because when Franklin Roosevelt stabilized the economy and the banking industry by creating the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, he brought into the equation every American taxpayer. The taxpayers stand behind the banks. Every American can put their money in the bank, knowing that up to a certain amount of money, it is insured, backed up by our great Federal Government. Franklin Roosevelt started out with the taxpayers, saving banks with the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation dollars, so they made a killing in Texas. Not only did they oversee the situation and let it get out of hand any way they wanted to, they made millionaires, they made billionaires, most of whom have never gone to jail.

Then when it all collapsed, we set up the Resolution Trust Corporation. That was the device we set up. We did not wipe out the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. We did not do anything as radical as what we are doing to poor people on welfare. No, we set up a Resolution Trust Corporation, a very complicated animal, and most of the offices of the Resolution Trust Corporation, the greatest percentage of the offices of the Resolution Trust Corporation, had to be based in Texas. That is where the greatest problem was.

California was next, and they spread it around. Denver had its Silverado Bank, the famous bank. The son of the President of the United States sat on... the board of the Denver Silverado Bank. It was spread around, but Texas had the greatest concentration. After they had regulated their own banks to make rich those they wanted to make rich, they got the benefit of hav- ing a large GNP, and the large GNP was there because the banks had spread money there and hire people there. Many people who were hired in the Resolution Trust Corporation had formerly worked in some of the banks that had gone, that failed, some of the savings and loan associa- tions, so they got this program as a result of swindling the American people out of a large part of that $250 billion to $300 billion.

This is happening in America. This happened recently in America, the largest swindle probably in the history of mankind, right before our eyes, and we reacted by coddling and taking care of those who were guilty.

Let me be more specific about guilt. You be the judge. The Silverado Bank in Colorado, in Denver, CO, the Silverado Bank made a deal with a per- son who was a loan officer. One hundred people who came for a loan wanted to buy a building. The building was as- sessed to be worth $13 million, $13 mil- lion. The bank said, “Look, we will ac- cept an assessment of twice that much for the building, $26 million, if you will deposit in our bank the extra $13 million, so we will give you a loan of $26 million for a building worth $13 million on the condition you will deposit that $13 million back in the bank, because we know the auditors are coming and we have problems.”

If that is not a criminal action, I do not know what is a criminal action, but that was done by the Silverado Bank. That is just one of the things they did. They lost almost $2 billion. They are not the largest offender. We all know that the largest offender was Texas, the largest offender, but Silverado lost more than $1 billion, and on the board of Silverado was the son of George Bush, Neal Bush. This kind of trans- action took place, and later on as they sorted it out, a recommendation was made that Neal Bush should be barred from sitting on any boards of any other banks. He protested vehemently.

Later on, I think secretly, out of the eye of the cameras, he even was made to pay some kind of fine, along with the other board members who had been a part of that situation. But nobody has said he should be put in jail or any other board members of Silverado should be put in jail. Two hundred fifty billion dollars, at least, and there are some estimates that it is twice that amount. You cannot get decent figures because the white males, the educated white males who run the banking sys- tem and the accounting system and the lawyers system related to it, they come so complicated that you cannot get clear figures as of right now as to what the savings and loan swindle has cost the American people.

This is a Government program: wasteful, blundering, billions of dollars down the drain. Nobody has ever said, “Let us get rid of all savings and loans, let us get rid of the Federal Deposit Insur- ance Corporation.” No, we have a profit care of the needs of the white middle-class wealthy who are involved in the abuse that have wrecked the savings and loan associa- tions.

This is strong language, I know, but the barbarians do not hesitate to drive their spears through the bellies of bab- ies. The barbarians come to the floor of the House and they talk about the need to streamline Government and the need to have a balanced budget by the year 2002. But the barbarians come to the floor of the House and they will not cut the B-2 bomber, which might cost us $33 billion over the lifetime of the pro- gram. The barbarians with a straight face said, “We must continue the B-2 bomber.” Then they get on the floor and they win the votes to keep the B-2 bombers. The barbarians want to in- crease the funding for star wars, a sys- tem that has always been questioned by scientists.

The barbarians come to us and say that they want to give a tax cut, and I am all in favor of a tax cut, but if the tax cut is close to the same amount as the Medicare cut, the tax cut is, I think, $200 billion over a 7-year period, and the Medicare cut is $270 billion over a 7-year period; $240 billion for the tax cut, $270 billion for the Medicare cut. The barbarians look at us with straight faces and say, “We must have a tax cut. If that means that the elder- ly cannot have nursing homes, then so be it. If that means that prescriptions are going to be limited because people cannot afford to pay for their prescrip- tions, and of course when they cannot get their medication many will die, so be it.”

The barbarians are not afraid to make their case forcefully. The barbar- ians want to end Davis-Bacon, which was created to stop bringing in slave labor. It was created by two Repub- licans to stop people from bringing in slave labor and undercutting the wages of working people. We are going to have to save some other kind of Davis- Bacon to stop the nations like India from bringing in computer program- mers who are Americans to work for one-twelfth the amount of money computer program- mers who are Americans work for.

We are in a situation where the civil- ization, the society, must take some steps to do what is rational to make for an orderly transition, where people do not disrupt things by allowing hustlers to take advantage of the situation by bringing in outsiders who can undercut the labor market. The labor market that we may be protecting tomorrow may be our physicists and our chemists and our college professors. We had bet- ter take a look at the logic of Davis- Bacon, the invention of two Republican Members of Congress.

We must take a look at this chart, which I will have in the future when I speak, I will have a larger ver- sion of it. This is the chart I have been talking about on several occasions.

This shows corporate versus family and individual share of Federal reve- nues. The share of the revenue burden that is born by corporations went down from 39.8 percent in 1943 to 11.2 percent today, while the share of the individual and family tax burden went up from 27.1 percent to 48.1 percent, and now it is at 42.7 percent.

This chart is one I bring to every ses- sion to let my colleagues see the rem- edy. If my colleagues want to balance the budget, here is the remedy. Balance the tax burden, raise the tax burden, the percentage of the tax burden borne by corporations. We can lower the per- centage of the tax burden borne by in- dividuals at the same time. We can do justice to the American people and American families who have paid enough high taxes. At the same time, we can balance the budget by having a rational basis.

The tax burden, the percentage of the tax burden borne by corporations, is at 42.7 percent, I know, but I want to promote solutions, and I ask the American people to keep their eyes on activities in Congress for the next few weeks. It is your money, it is your civilization. We do not want to be accomplies to barbaric acts. We want to promote the general welfare. We want to take America forward, out of the spirit of Franklin Roosevelt and the spirit of Lyndon Johnson. We want to continue to have a great society. We want to take care of the majority of the people that need to be taken care of. We are Americans, we are not barbarians.

FRENCH NUCLEAR TESTING

The SPEAKER pro tempore, Mr. Bono of Oregon, under the Speaker's announcement, is the gentleman from American Samoa Mr. Faleomavaega. Mr. Faleomavaega is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. Faleomavaega. Mr. Speaker, earlier last week I shared with my colleagues and the American people some observations on the crisis that has occurred on the island of Tahiti in French Polynesia, as a consequence of the French President Jacques Chirac's recent decision for the Government of France to resume testing of nuclear bomb explosions on the Pacific island atolls of Moruroa and Fagaitua.

Mr. Speaker, despite thousands of petitions and the pleadings from leaders of countries from Europe, from South America, from Asia, and especially from the Pacific island nations, asking France to refrain from conducting nuclear bomb explosions under these Pacific atolls, President Chirac went ahead and ordered the use of nuclear bombs on the under these atolls in the Pacific. The French have been exploding their nuclear bombs in the Pacific for the past 30 years.

Mr. Speaker, with the cold war at an end and the Berlin Wall down, there has been a tremendous sense of relief and anticipation of the end of the cold war. As a result, a moratorium was called by the leading nuclear powers, including France, 3 years ago to suspend nuclear testing altogether.

Mr. Speaker, in one of this year, the newly elected President, France Jacques Chirac, announced that France would explode eight more nuclear bombs—one a month, beginning this month of September until May of next year. And each nuclear bomb explosion, Mr. Speaker, is said to be 10 times more powerful that the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima, Japan.

Mr. Speaker, despite extensive efforts made by citizens' organizations and government leaders, including petitions and pleadings from all over the world to persuade President Chirac not to push that nuclear button—the Chirac government still went ahead and detonated their nuclear bomb.

Mr. Speaker, President Chirac said recently that he needed additional wire services that the eight nuclear bomb explosions were absolutely necessary to improve France's nuclear weapons capabilities and that the matter was in the order of the highest national interest of the French Government. However, nuclear physicists contend that the safety and reliability of nuclear weapons could be ensured by non-nuclear tests and have suggested that what France is really pursuing with renewed proliferation of a new warhead design. This new warhead is supposedly an advanced generation of neutron bombs designed to destroy life, while leaving property intact. Dr. Hutton, a Monash University physicist told the Weekend Australian that what France is not telling the public is "the kinds of new weapons they are planning to use those simulation techniques to build." Why do they want simulation programs? "So they can go beyond the thresholds which will be defined in the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty," he states.

Mr. Speaker, there are some very serious and troubling issues that now need our national attention, and the international attention of other countries, as well. In my opinion, Mr. Speaker, France has now initiated the nuclear arms race again, and I would nominate Mr. Chirac as the world's leading nuclear arms proliferator. Additionally, Mr. Speaker, I raise another serious problem—if I were Chancellor Kohl or any citizen of Germany, I would feel very uneasy and uncomfortable about the idea that President Chirac has his finger on a nuclear trigger that he has not put more lethal. I would also wonder as a German citizen or as citizens of other European countries what assurances there are that French nuclear-armed missiles shall never be pointed at Bonn, Munich, or Berlin, or other cities in Europe?

If I were Chancellor Kohl or a German citizen, I would further wonder what absolutely ensures that Mr. Chirac's nuclear forces would be used to defend Germany against an enemy country that might be an ally or a foe. Mr. Speaker, believe, Mr. Speaker, we find ourselves in an interesting dilemma, and I am reminded of a Middle Eastern proverb that states that sometimes the friend of my friend is also my enemy.

Mr. Speaker, every country in Europe should feel somewhat uneasy about the possibility that France is the only country among the continental European nations with a nuclear trigger that may be pointed against any one of them.

Mr. Speaker, this is the kind of tension and uncertainty that Mr. Chirac has raised since the re-opening of its nuclear testing program last week. The implications are obvious, Mr. Speaker, and if Mr. Chirac's motive is to raise fear and apprehension about France's nuclear capabilities among its European allies, I must say, President Chirac has succeeded in this endeavor.

Mr. Speaker, the irony of this is that while 62 percent of the people of France do not approve of nuclear testing in the Pacific, the same majority of the people of France also want France to be recognized as a world leader and as a member of the nuclear club like Great Britain, the United States, Russia, and the People's Republic of China.

The problem, Mr. Speaker, is that among the permanent members of the United Nations Security Council and the world's nuclear club are two nations that are considered as having the second and third most powerful economies in the world. Mr. Speaker, I am making reference to Japan and Germany, respectively.

Mr. Speaker, if there is ever a time to examine regional and international conflicts as we confront them today, there is no way that we can deny the presence and considerable influence of Japan in the Asia-Pacific region and France throughout Europe. I certainly both nations to be directly involved with the affairs of the entire world.
Mr. Speaker, about 3 weeks ago I was in Tahiti in French Polynesia. I was joined with some 40 other parliamentarians from the Pacific, from Japan, from Asia, from South America, and from Europe. Led by the mayor of the town, the leading Pacific islander, Mr. Oscar Temaru, we joined together for a demonstration in the streets of Papeete, Tahiti to oppose the resumption of French nuclear testing on Moruroa and Faurotau atolls. We were also joined by the Minister of Finance of Tahiti, Mr. Vito Haamatau, and myself. We traveled to the island of Tuare which is located about 60 miles away from Moruroa where the nuclear bomb had already been placed in a shaft about 3,000 feet under the atoll. We were also joined later with the arrival of the Rainbow Warrior launched about six inflatable zodiacs at about 3 in the morning—in the dark, right under the nose of the French naval warships.

What is remarkable about these zodiacs, Mr. Speaker, is that they were manned by young men and women who were from New Zealand, from Italy, from Australia, from the United States, from France, from Portugal—kind of a mini United Nations representation. Mr. Speaker, I commend these young people. They were not commandos or soldiers. They were just ordinary citizens, committed to a nuclear free world. It is no secret that the world is suffering tremendously as a result of this sheer callousness in destroying the ecological balance between nature and all forms of plant and animal life.

Mr. Speaker, I want to share this basic item of fact again with my colleagues and with the American people. The fact is, Mr. Speaker, that the French Government has now exploded 176 nuclear bombs on Moruroa island. One hundred and seventy-six nuclear bombs exploded on one tiny island atoll. And President Chirac has the gall to say that this atoll is ecologically safe? Mr. Speaker, there are reports of hundreds of Tahitians who were subjected to nuclear contamination but were never properly tested after exposure.

As a consequence of these explosions, British scientists have confirmed that the atoll underneath Moruroa Atoll is "becoming a web of vitrified cavities, from which an unknown number of cracks are spreading like a spider's web." Areas of Moruroa atoll have already sunk by one meter or more. In fact, Mr. Roger Clark, a seismologist at England's Leeds University, has said that one more test could trigger the atoll's collapse, leading to huge cracks opening to the sea, threatening the fish and other marine life, and ultimately threatening our marine environment throughout the Pacific.

As early as 1958, the world-famous oceanographer and marine environmentalist, Jacques Cousteau, who I personally commend for his opposition to nuclear tests in the Pacific and for his appeals to the Secretary of the Navy, also found spectacular rock and fissures in the earth as well as the presence of radioactive isotopes, in the form of iodine 131, plutonium 239, and cesium 134, more commonly known as nuclear leakage.

Mr. Speaker, there is also a strong link between ciguatera poisoning and military operations involving nuclear testing in French Polynesia. Ciguatera poisoning occurs when coral reefs are destroyed, releasing toxic marine organisms which are absorbed by plankton and, therefore, by fish that are ultimately consumed by humans.

Mr. Speaker, even if France stopped its nuclear testing today, the untold amounts of radioactive encased in Moruroa Atoll will require scientific monitoring for centuries. Yet France refuses to allow complete and unhindered scientific studies and health assessments to take place.

Another fact remains, Mr. Speaker. As media coverage gave voice to evict French diplomats around the world, as well as to France's position that nuclear testing was necessary to its national interest, the senselessness of the testing went untold. What the media failed to tell the world is that France did not need to update its technology via nuclear explosions. The United States had already offered France the technology it sought. Yet American journalists have not given this fact the same amount of airplay that French diplomats have gotten in asserting their insane claim that exploding eight more nuclear bombs in South Pacific waters is necessary to France's national interest.

The media in foreign countries, including Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Germany, and others have done a far better job of covering the global implications of France's resumed nuclear testing than has the American media. How ironic that this should be the case for a country that has zealously protected and promoted the right to free speech and press, and the widespread dissemination of information; and yet there was hardly any media discussion and debate in America concerning French nuclear testing. Just a few editorials here and there and that was it.

Mr. Speaker, the irony of it all—while just about every American household has a television tuned in for the Superbowl Orchestra and for the fate of one man—Mr. O.J. Simpson, we have turned a deaf ear to health and welfare and even the lives of some 200,000 men, women, and children who are totally helpless and are not capable of withstanding the military might of the French Navy and the French Foreign Legion—as the French Government has literally forced the Polynesian Tahitians to accept such as awful fate, and a future with no promise to enable them to live their lives.

And, Mr. Speaker, if and when the French colonial power ever does leave these islands, what a sad commentary for writers to state that France's gifts to these Polynesian Tahitian's are contaminated islands that are contaminated as a result of French nuclear testing for the past 30 years.

Mr. Speaker, I would have hoped that the French could have learned from America's experience with nuclear testing in the Pacific. In 1954, on Bikini Atoll, the United States exploded the most famous hydrogen bomb of that time—a 15 megaton bomb, 1,000 times more powerful than the atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima. The sad part of this story is that before the bomb was exploded, the officials who were concerned this explosion—the "Bravo Shot"—discovered that the winds had shifted and that the 300 men, women, and children living on the nearby island of Rongelap would be put at risk by the explosion. They exploded the bomb anyway, subjecting 300 innocent people to nuclear contamination. The accounts of their suffering are well-documented.

Though our Government is making every effort to resettle this island and offer monetary compensation to these people, the reality is, no amount of money can compensate for one's health. The women of Rongelap gave birth to what many termed "jelly babies," babies that were born dead and did not appear to look human. The people of Rongelap have suffered from cancer, leukemia, and all manners of disease associated with nuclear contamination.

Yes, we conducted these tests, but then realized the horrors associated with these tests. We realized how harmful these tests were to the atolls and to the Pacific Islanders way of life. So the United States stopped its nuclear testing program in the Pacific and moved its testing sites underground in the desert plains of the State of Nevada.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend President Clinton for his policy on nuclear testing. He has committed the United States to negotiate an absolute ban on all nuclear tests, and has rejected the argument that small-scale testing is necessary to ensure weapons reliability. This decision, serving as a model for the world, is a major step toward stopping nuclear proliferation.

On the other hand, Mr. Speaker, I must express my disappointment that Congress has failed to take a strong statement condemning France after the explosion on Moruroa Atoll on September 1, 1995. While other countries vigorously denounced France's detonation, the response of the United States was understated and weak. So I stand here in the well today, Mr. Speaker, to declare what our own State Department would not. Chirac's decision to promote nuclear proliferation, at the expense of a peaceful people, is an atrocity for which the French government is not only of the least but also of the greatest consequence.

In a statement to the Associated Press, France's resumption of nuclear testing, especially on soil other than its own, is nothing less than a classic example of colonialism in its worst form, and as such, an old ideology politicized by dominant Western cultures as a means to marginalize and oppress. Every enlightened French citizen should be ashamed that such atrocity reigns in the hands of its current leader, and that those Polynesian Tahitians are simply being forced against their will by the French government to accept nuclear testing, like it or not.

What President Chirac has done is inexcusable and offends the sensibilities of decent people throughout the world. This madness must stop, Mr. Speaker, and it must stop now, and again I urge any fellow Americans, as a gesture of your support, to oppose this mean-spirited policy by President Chirac—don't purchase French wine and French goods and products—this is the only way President Chirac will get the message.

Mr. Speaker, within the coming weeks and months, if there will be more violence and even loss of lives in Tahiti because of nuclear testing, I cannot see how President Chirac can passively take this issue without any concern to the lives of those people who live on those Pacific Islands.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I make this appeal to my colleagues and on behalf of thousands of people throughout the world, to the citizens of Japan, the citizens of Germany—to my fellow Americans, to show our compassion and concern for the welfare of the 200,000 Polynesian Tahitians who are being forced to accept French colonial policy to conduct nuclear tests in the Pacific—a world citizenry movement.

Mr. Speaker, I include newspaper articles on the subject of my special order for the RECORD, as follows:

Tahitian Government Leader Asks Chirac to End Tests Before Elections

_Papeete, Tahiti—_Tahiti has asked France to suspend its tests in the Pacific, which have prompted huge riots and fueled the independence movement on the largest island in French Polynesia. Tahitian Government President Gaston Flosse said he has asked French President Jacques Chirac to complete the tests before March so elections scheduled that month can be held "in a calmer atmosphere." France's first nuclear blast at Mururoa Atoll on Sept. 5 set off two days of riots in Papeete, the capital of French Polynesia. The test was the first in three years anywhere except China.

Protesters set fire to buildings, looted shops and burned the data of access to two sophisticated new U.S. nuclear weapons research facilities that Washington has quietly offered French weapons experts. In addition, France has begun building a mammoth $4 billion laser facility near Bordeaux for weapons-related research—nine stations per day are to be used to help the United States conduct its own tests.

Many of the rioters were members of Tahiti's pro-independence movement, called out on the streets by a pro-independence radio station after police confronted peaceful protesters.

Opponents of the testing have threatened to hit the streets again this week when France is expected to set off a larger nuclear warhead at Fangatufa, another atoll in the South Pacific.

Chirac has said he plans to conduct as many as eight tests by the end of May. France says it needs the tests to update its nuclear arsenal and develop computer simulation to replace testing. However, France has said it supports an eventual global ban on nuclear testing.

Also Tuesday, the European Parliament said it plans to break possible links between the first blast and a volcanic eruption more than 3,000 miles away in New Zealand. Some members of the 626-seat legislative suspects that the French underground tests on Mururoa Atoll may have sent shock waves along underwater fault lines and caused the eruption of New Zealand's Mount Ruapehu.

That mountain continued to spew ash and boulders Tuesday in what could become New Zealand's biggest volcanic eruption in 50 years.

FRENCH NUCLEAR PROGRAM CLOSELY TIED TO WAY TO SHARE SENSITIVE CODES, ACCESS TO CALIFORNIA LABS TO EXPAND

(William Drozdiak and Jefry Smith)

When President Clinton traveled to Hawaii early this month to celebrate the 50th anniversary of the end of the war in the Pacific, his aides dispatched an urgent message to the French government: Please do not conduct the first in your controversial series of nuclear blasts under a Pacific atoll while Clinton is in the region.

Even though French President Jacques Chirac was eager to proceed with the nuclear tests the United States monitors, he realized he was in no position to turn down such a request from a special friend. Reluctantly, Chirac put off the politically embarrassing blast until Clinton had returned to Washington.

Chirac's gesture was partly a token of respect for the close relationship he has nurtured with Clinton during his first four years in office. But even more, say French and American officials, it was a tip of the hat to the new U.S. government support and assistance provided by the United States to the French nuclear weapons program.

Despite its claims of developing an independent nuclear deterrent, France has long relied on the United States for some of the most sophisticated technologies needed to upgrade and maintain its modern nuclear arsenal, these officials say.

Although known to specialists, the U.S. nuclear links have been little discussed over the years. With the French nuclear tests generating opposition around the Pacific and among environmentalists everywhere, however, the details of the collaboration are getting scrutiny.

In fact, even though the United States is no longer making its own bombs and has publicly criticized the French tests, U.S. officials say the cooperation is scheduled to expand to unprecedented degree.

Washington and Paris are currently trying to negotiate an arrangement in which the French government, under which the two sides will begin to share sensitive computer codes that describe how bombs behave when they are detonated. In addition, France has begun building a mammoth $4 billion laser facility near Bordeaux for weapons-related research—nine stations per day are to be used to help the United States conduct its own tests.

The Clinton administration says maintaining a close U.S.-French relationship is essential to ensuring French support for the comprehensive test ban treaty and other tests technologies next year. Although French aircraft routinely are allowed to ferry military equipment and personnel to the tests in the South Pacific across U.S. territory, according to a senior State Department official, the flights "are not supposed to carry" plutonium for nuclear weapons and "to the best of our knowledge do not."

The cooperation between the two nations dates from the Cold War, when for more than two decades the United States offered assistance in building up a French nuclear arsenal as an important adjunct to the American strategic umbrella that shielded the European allies from those Soviet warheads aimed at the West. U.S. officials helped France design some missiles that carry its warheads and to develop devices that prevent an accidental nuclear detonation.

The new U.S. facilities to be opened to French weapons scientists include the $1 billion National Ignition Facility in Livermore, Calif., which is to simulate the flow of radiation in a nuclear weapons fireball by firing 132 lasers—each more powerful than any laser elsewhere in the world—at a pellet of special nuclear material.

They will also be able to participate in experiments at the new Dual Axis Radiographic Hydrodynamic test center at Los Alamos, N.M., which is meant to snap two-dimensional or time-sequence photographs of the inner workings of mock weapons as they are detonated.

The experiments at these two facilities will not produce fission, making them non-nuclear to comply with the terms of the test ban treaty. But U.S. scientists acknowledge that the resulting data are applicable not only to studies of aging weapons in U.S. and French stockpiles, but also to the potential design of new weapons.

A delegation of U.S. energy and defense officials was dispatched to offer this access to France, it was said that the existence of U.S.-French nuclear collaboration be made public—which it was... in August. A similar deal had been proposed earlier to Chirac's predecessor, Francois Mitterrand, but Mitterrand refused to allow Washington to make any statement referring to nuclear cooperation between the two nations.

In some quarters of the French government, the deepening American connection has stirred considerable consternation. Foreign Minister Herve de Charette has warned that once France embraces the American simulation technology, it will jeopardize its own self-sufficiency. But whatever else it offers France, the American offer will not affect the French ability to develop French technology. But Mitterrand, who has been so pleased with the United States' decision to support the French bomb and to block French development of the bomb, the United States was troubled by the specter of nuclear proliferation and sought to block French development of the bomb. But French scientists and Defense Ministry officials believe cooperation between France and the United States is so great that the claim of self-sufficiency is a charade. These officials say even more American help will be needed if France pursues its ambition of developing a more robust nuclear force by fitting its warheads on new air-to-ground rockets — something that only the United States has mastered.

French officials also argue that the cost of thermonuclear research in the post-testing era will become so enormous — at a time when Western countries are striving to slash defense spending — that sharing state-of-the-art technology will become an absolute necessity. The United States and France have not always approached the issue so amicably. When Pierre Mendes-France gave the green light in 1964 to develop a French atomic bomb, the United States was troubled by the specter of nuclear proliferation and sought to block French development of the bomb. French determination to build a nuclear force of its own was awakened after it began rearming itself and the United States expedited the flow of American assistance to France to cope with such complex matters as ballistic missile guidance systems and multiple warhead technology. High-speed computers also were supplied to the French on an exceptional basis.

When France shifted its testing site from the Algerian desert to the Muroujo atoll in the South Pacific, the American connection became even more critical. U.S. weapons scientists - who had helped the French learn to diagnose their test results — French scientists, equipment and even nuclear bomb components were flown in DC-8 transports from Paris to the Tahitian capital of Papeete across American territory, with a refueling stop in Los Angeles.

Without American cooperation, French officials say their country's nuclear program would have been stopped dead in its tracks. But in 1987, the United States, Congress became so alarmed about the risks of nuclear proliferation and spent $1 billion to block French development of the bomb. French officials also argue that the cost of American assistance to the French in developing a nuclear force would have been prohibitive had it not been for the United States' support. French officials also say that the United States is so dependent on the United States for its bomb parts.

The bill tacitly recognizes the limited value of an antiballistic defense system, because it also calls for creating new cruise and missile defenses (which could be equally costly) and for spending at least $50 billion more on so-called theater missile defense systems that would protect armed forces and allies overseas. In addition to its huge expense, this package would all but destroy the possibility of new gains in nuclear arms control, starting with the as-yet-unratified second Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty. President Boris Yeltsin of Russia has said that Start II "can be fulfilled only provided the United States preserves and strictly fulfills the bilateral Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty."

Besides, if we build the antiballistic missile system, Russia would probably begin building its own. This bilateral buildup would preclude future reductions of strategic weapons below the levels called for in Start I. Faced with expanded Russian defenses, Britain, China and France would not likely consider reductions in their nuclear forces and might even seek increases.

The proposed system is a much less effective defense than the agreements it would wipe out. Start I and II call for eliminating missiles and aircraft that could deliver at least 7,000 nuclear warheads; the proposed antiballistic missiles would be lucky to knock down a hundred such warheads in a full-scale assault.

Finally, a new American buildup would give belligerent countries grounds for withdrawing from the Nuclear Nonproliferation Treaty or demanding changes in it. The Clinton Administration deserves some blame for this dangerous new turn. Last year it advocated a theater missile defense system that itself undercut the Anti-ballistic Missile Treaty. President Clinton can atone for this mistake by vetoing the Pentagon authorization bill unless the commitment to set up the antiballistic defense system is dropped when the House and Senate prepare the final version this fall. If he signs the bill because Congress is certain to override a veto, he must make clear that he will not deploy the system or seek any changes in the ABM Treaty.

Why risk restarting the arms race at a time when America has never been in less danger of a nuclear attack?

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray:

Here is an exciting Biblical promise to start our day:

“God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that you always have all sufficiency in all things, may have an abundance for every good work”—II Corinthians 9:8.

Gracious Father, we thank You for Your amazing grace, Your unqualified love and forgiveness, and Your limitless strength that flows from Your heart into our hearts, filling up our diminished reserves. It is wonderful to know that You have chosen to be our God and have chosen us to belong first and foremost to You. We clarify our priorities and commit ourselves to seek first Your will and put that above all else. It is liberating to know that You will supply all we need, in all sufficiency, to discern and do what glorifies You. Grant us wisdom, Lord, for the decisions of this day.

We ask this not for our own personal success but for our beloved Nation. America deserves the very best from us today. Experience has taught us that America deserves the very best from us today. Experience has taught us that We have Prime Minister Rabin and Foreign Minister Peres and Chairman Arafat coming to the White House today to sign this historic agreement. During the course of the past several weeks, Senator Harkin Brown of Colorado and I have had occasion to travel, including a trip to the Mideast to talk to the leaders of the nations there. After being there, Mr. President, I have a sense of guarded optimism about the future of peace in the Mideast. I have traveled into that region extensively, going back to my first trip there in 1964. I do have very substantial reservations as to the adequacy of the PLO, the Palestinian response, and the response of Yasser Arafat to eliminate terrorism in the area. Last year, Senator Shelby and I introduced an amendment to the foreign operations bill which would have cut off United States aid if the PLO and Chairman Arafat did not take steps to curtail terrorism, and also to amend the PLO charter to eliminate the provisions which called for the destruction of Israel. Frankly, Mr. President, I am not satisfied with what Chairman Arafat has done in either regard.

There has been the explanation, really an excuse, that they could not amend the charter because there was not a convening Palestinian authority at that time. Also, Chairman Arafat has said that he has taken certain action to declare those provisions null and void, but I think realistically much more could have been done. Similarly, on the critical issue of stopping terrorism, I think a great deal more could have been done by Chairman Arafat on that important aspect.

Senator Brown and I had an opportunity to meet with Chairman Arafat, and we asked him those questions very directly. We asked him why he did not do more to control Hamas, why he did not turn over individuals in the Palestinian group who were suspected of murder.

HISTORIC WHITE HOUSE CEREMONY

Mr. Specter. Mr. President, in the absence of other Senators in the Chamber to debate the motion to proceed, and I know my colleagues will be arriving shortly, I think it appropriate to take a few minutes to comment on a historic ceremony which will take place at the White House at 12 noon today when the leaders of Israel and the Palestinian Liberation Organization are scheduled to sign a historic agreement.

I well recall the day, a little over 2 years ago, 2 years and 15 days ago, on September 13, 1993, when Prime Minister Rabin and PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat signed the initial agreement. I must say that was a difficult day for me personally to watch Yasser Arafat honored at the White House after the long record of terrorism in which the PLO had engaged, including being implicated in the murder of the charge d'affaires at the United States embassy in the Sudan in 1974, the No. 2 United States official in that country, the hijacking of the Achille Lauro and the death of Mr. Klinghoffer, and many other acts of terrorism. It seemed to me, as I think it did to most other Americans, that if Israel—the prime victim of the terrorist attacks by the PLO—through its leaders, Prime Minister Rabin and Foreign Minister Peres, were willing to shake hands with Yasser Arafat under those circumstances, that the United States should do what it could to facilitate the peace process. That is in deference to the leaders of that sovereign state.

I also recall when a letter was circulated on the floor of the U.S. Senate criticizing then Prime Minister Shamir for refusing to give land for peace. I was one who refused to sign that document on the proposition that U.S. Senators thousands of miles away from turmoil ought not to try to influence, let alone dictate, policies to the leaders of other sovereign states under those circumstances.

Now, after many protracted negotiations, we have Prime Minister Rabin and Foreign Minister Peres and Chairman Arafat coming to the White House today to sign this historic agreement.
When we went over a detailed list, for each one there was an explanation, really an excuse. Some of the acts of terrorism or murder occurred before the agreement was signed; in other cases, the appropriate Israeli officials had not filed the cases. In other cases, the presentation was not precise.

We challenged Chairman Arafat on why he made speeches condemning terrorism in English and not in Arabic, and although it is plain he has made the speeches in English and not in Arabic, we believe the presentation was not precise, and made the contention that he had, in fact, made the speeches in Arabic. He continues to make speeches which poison the atmosphere in which both parties seek a peaceful resolution to the conflict.

When pressed as to why he did not do more to control Hamas, he made an explanation that he himself was under threat of assassination from the Hamash who are in part directed from Syria. Later in the conversation we discussed the Syrian Government and President Assad of Syria. Chairman Arafat said President Assad was a good friend of his, which led to the inevitable question: How could threats of terrorism continue to come out of the Hamas in Syria when President Assad was a good friend? And Chairman Arafat, in an effort to smile, said, "Well, that's his style," confirming the great difficulties which are present in the Middle East.

Mr. President, I would like to make some additional comments about the historic meeting which is scheduled in less than an hour at the White House where a very significant agreement will be signed between the State of Israel and the Palestinians, the PLO. I had commented earlier about a trip which Senator Brown and I had made recently, including a stop in the Middle East. I have been a student of the issues there for many years, having made my first trip there in 1964, and in the last almost 15 years I have been a member of the Foreign Operations Subcommittee of Appropriations and have done considerable work there and am cautiously optimistic about the prospects for peace in the Middle East.

It is a matter of grave concern, however, to note the continuous, horrible terrorist attacks on Israel which have been maintained, notwithstanding efforts of the Israeli Government to stop them and the pressure which the United States Government has tried to apply to Chairman Yasser Arafat and the PLO to contain those terrorist attacks.

Last year, Senator Shelby and I offered an amendment, which was adopted, which conditioned United States aid to the Palestinians on the PLO making every conceivable effort to stop the terrorist attacks and also for the PLO to take out the language from the charter calling for the destruction of Israel.

I considered renewing that kind of an issue in the legislation which was recently passed in the foreign aid bill and decided not to press the matter at this time when the negotiations were so sensitive and so near agreement. But it is with considerable reservation that I see U.S. aid going forward. There are conditions that exist in law which will require the PLO to do their utmost to stop terrorist attacks. Nobody can ask them to be a guarantor or with absolute certainty to stop those terrorist attacks, but it is an issue as to whether they are making their maximum effort.

Frankly, I have doubts about this. To reiterate my earlier remarks, when Senator Brown and I were in Israel, we visited with Chairman Arafat in the Gaza and asked him a number of very direct, pointed questions.

First, on the subject as to why he spoke in English and not in Arabic when he was condemning terrorism, Chairman Arafat denied that he always spoke in English and said that his English was not good and made the contention that he had, in fact, made the speeches in Arabic. We then challenged him on a number of alleged murderers who were being protected by the PLO, as to why they were not turned over to Israel.

Chairman Arafat then deferred to one of his subordinates who raised one explanation, really, one excuse after another saying that some of the incidents had occurred prior to the time the agreement was signed and some the Israelis had not made the proper demands, the proper papers were not filed.

But it seems to me, Mr. President, that Chairman Arafat could do a great deal more than he is doing at the present time to restrain terrorism. I believe that the U.S. Congress, certainly the executive branch but also the Congress, must be alert on this very, very important issue.

On the issue about speaking Chairman Arafat speaking the language of terrorism for the Hamas, Chairman Arafat responded the Hamas had even threatened his life coming out of Syria or coming out of Iran. He later said that President Assad was a good friend, which led to the obvious question about how a good friend would be tolerating the Hamas which made threats on Arafat's life. Arafat said, well, that is President Assad, hardly an understandable explanation.

Also as part of their trip, Senator Brown and I visited a number of other countries, and wherever we went, we were struck with the greatest respect and admiration that the United States has held all around the world. There is enormous prestige, there is enormous power, there is enormous good will for the United States to be an intermediary and a broker for peace.

When Senator Brown and I were in India, for example, we talked to Prime Minister Rao, who said that he would like to see a settlement for nuclear free in the 10 to 15 years.

The next day, I talked to President Benazir Bhattu and told her of the Indian Prime Minister's statement. She said, "Do you have it in writing?" She was very surprised.

We then wrote to the President telling him of our conversations and suggesting that he take the initiative to broker a peace between these two nations, where there is such enormous hostility.

I compliment President Clinton and Secretary of State Christopher for their leadership, which has been instrumental in bringing about the agreement which is scheduled to be signed within the hour at the White House and for their efforts and success in the agreement which was signed back on September 13, 1993. And I do believe that an activist President, who really exerted leadership on a worldwide basis, could do a great deal around the world, as, for example, in bringing the Prime Ministers of India and Pakistan together.

I see that my distinguished colleague, Senator Nickles, has come to the floor. I shall conclude, Mr. President.

I ask unanimous consent that a text of my report on the foreign travels, some of which I have commented about this morning, be printed in full in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD; as follows:

SENATOR SPECTER'S REPORT ON FOREIGN TRAVEL

During the period of August 20-September 2, 1995, Senator Hank Brown and I traveled to ten countries in two weeks and met with heads of state of eight of these countries.

TAIWAN

We departed on August 20, 1995 and arrived in Taipei, Taiwan on August 22, 1995, after having crossed the international date line. At 5:00 pm, we had a lengthy meeting with Taiwan's President Lee Teng-hui. We discussed President Lee's private visit to the United States to visit Cornell University from June 6-10, 1995, and the People's Republic of China's (PRC's) retaliation for that visit by conducting live missile tests. Later in the evening, the PRC targeted 85 miles north of Taiwan's coast—2 missiles from Manchuria, 2 missiles from Manchuria, and 2 missiles from China.

President Lee also detailed the "One China" policy, under which both Taiwan and the PRC believe that there is only one China. The PRC and the Taiwan have a position, however, in that the PRC insists Taiwan is part of China and that there can be two systems operating in one country. Taiwan, on the other hand, has taken the opposite position, that the PRC must recognize certain political and economic reforms before the unification may occur.

We also discussed our concerns regarding the current trade imbalance between Taiwan and the United States. President Lee assured us that he has been working hard to reduce the trade imbalance. He noted that his efforts have led to a drop in the trade deficit from $65.5 billion to $6 billion and that he is personally committed to reducing the deficit by at least 10 percent per year by expanding Taiwanese purchases of U.S. exports and reducing tariffs on imported U.S. products.

The evening of August 22nd, we had a working dinner with Taiwanese Foreign Minister and former Ambassador to the United States Frederick F. Chien. We discussed Taiwan's political reforms and its movement toward freedom of the press, open elections and democratization. We also discussed at greater length China's policy and its relations with the PRC.
Mr. Sen further opined that the Cambodian government is not like the democracies of the West; that the Cambodian People's Party (CPP) withdrew from its alliance with the National United Front for an Independent, Neutral, Peaceful and Cooperative Cambodia (FUNCINPEC), the government would collapse, and conversely, if the FUNCINPEC party withdrew from the alliance, the government would remain in place. Since according to Mr. Sen, in Cambodia the two top political parties must cooperate together to ensure that democracy continues.

After our meeting with Mr. Sen, we met briefly with several prominent representatives of human rights organizations in Cambodia, along with some Cambodian elected officials. The discussion was on the importance of protecting human rights. In

When pressed on the importance of ensuring constitutional and democratic governance, the 1st Prime Minister responded that Cambodia needs political stability to ensure the two parties united together. If someone wants to oppose the party and the government then that party should leave the party and join the Cambodian government through free elections.

Mr. Sen said that the current government must be compared to the previous autocratic and ruthless regime of Pol Pot and the Khmer Rouge. In addition, with the small but continued threat of the Khmer Rouge insurgency and the limited threat posed by the Khmer Rouge in Phnom Penh.

We were also briefed on the tremendous problem with narcotics trafficking in Myanmar. Our reports indicate that over 600,000 people in the "golden triangle" of southeast Asia passes through Burma on its way to distribution in the United States and across the world. The government has apparently sought to combat the narcotics trade by limited incursions against known drug lords. The U.S. Drug En-mforcement Agency (DEA) has provided training to Burmese police to assist it in its efforts at detection and eradication of narcotics.

Mr. Sen expounded at some length about the benefit of a political alliance before and after an election rather than a divisive fight before and after an election and an alliance afterwards. Such a system, Mr. Sen argued, is the most secure and the most democratic. We suggested that when opposite parties combine in elections, it does not matter that the voters are not given a choice of differing platforms. Mr. Sen responded that his main objective is political stability and that the Cambodian system does not end pluralism, but instead, ensures pluralism with cooperation. He also noted that in a country without democracy and many actively oppose the government, all without criminal penalties. The 1st Prime Minister noted rue-fully that many of the cartoonists seem to take great pleases in lampooning him.

We departed Cambodia and arrived in Yangon, Myanmar, where we were briefed by U.S. embassy personnel, led by Chargé d'A-fairs Marilyn Meyers. There is currently no U.S. ambassador to Myanmar, nor has there been since December, 1990, when the U.S. responded to the government's refusal to honor the results of a free election.

We were briefed on the poor condition of democracy and human rights in Myanmar.
In the 1990 elections, the State Law and Order Restoration Council (SLORC) refused to recognize the results of a landslide electoral victory by the National League for Democracy (NLD) led by Aung San Suu Kyi. In that election, opposition parties won 80% of the seats in eight legislative chambers.

We emphasized to General Nyuet the importance of human rights as the linchpin to warmer relations between Myanmar and the U.S., and advised the General that Congress is considering an embargo on Pakistan for the purchase of nuclear material. We pressed him to use his intermediary role between the two countries to move the nuclear threat from the subcontinent.

We related to the Indian officials Aung San Suu Kyi and Pranab Mukherjee, India’s Ambassador to the United States, that the U.S. would closely monitor progress on a Constitutional Convention and the release of all political detainees. When I pressed him whether Aung San Suu Kyi would not be allowed to be a delegate to the Constitutional Convention, Dr. Pranab Mukherjee, India’s Prime Minister Rao, said that all the delegates had already been chosen.

We also discussed that status of peace negotiations with Pakistan. We expressed genuine surprise over the lack of progress in the Pakistan government’s willingness to engage in talks and open trade with Iran. We expressed our concern that Pakistan’s nuclear program presents a critical role as a third party mediator between India and Pakistan on nuclear as well as conventional weapons. We advised General Nyuet that Pakistan should not be allowed to be a delegate to the Constitutional Convention and the release of all political detainees.

When asked if Pakistan had developed nuclear capabilities, Mr. Sharaf denied any complicity in the acts of terrorism by Hamas and the Jezbollah, or any training by these groups in Syria. Interestingly, Mr. Sharaf expressed his concern, but noted that Pakistan would not likely detonate a nuclear device because any such use, in a region where the nations are so close together, would affect Israelis as well as Syrians. When asked if Pakistan had developed nuclear capabilities, Mr. Sharaf responded that it was important that nations develop nuclear capabilities for peaceful uses and acknowledged that Syria is moving in this direction, while remaining a party to the Non Proliferation Treaty and cooperating with international inspections.

At a press briefing, we commented on our discussions with the Prime Minister of India and Pakistan on possible discussions to re-

Shortly thereafter, the Indian government tolerated its embassy in Washington, D.C. to open negotiations on nuclear disarmament. We did discuss the importance of establishing peace in the region.

On the issue of terrorism, we expressed our concern that the U.S. is fostering revolutionary and religious fervor, manifesting themselves in acts of terrorism. President LeGhari stated his belief that Iran still contains extremist elements and that the voices of moderation predominate. He noted that opening trade and dialog with Iran will help to reduce its insecurity and bring it back into the international community.

On Wednesday evening we met with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. In our meeting with Mr. Rabin, he declared his dedication to utilizing this unique moment in history, which began with the announcement of the fall of the former Soviet Union, to bring about peace in the Middle East. He noted in particular the advantage to removal of the Soviet umbrella over the heads of Arab leaders.

In response to my question on the peace talks between Israel and the Palestinians, Prime Minister Rabin expressed optimism about the possibility of bringing about a resolution. He noted that he wishes to see Israel as a Jewish state, without bilateral governance. However, Mr. Rabin also expressed concern that he believes Arafat is a Jewish state if racism will be the governing policy. Instead, he prefers peace within Israel with rights for Palestinians. As part of this peace, Prime Minister Rabin talked of new priorities, under which Israel will no longer expend resources on settlement of the West Bank, where only 3% of Israelis live.

I asked him if there is any way to control terrorism. He commented first about the recent bus bombing, noting that although the bombing was carried out by Hamas, it was done in an area under Israeli control. The elements supporting this terrorism, he continued, are seeking to bring down the Israeli government. He said that the process will not come to an end under a Likud government.

According to Prime Minister Rabin, many of these same forces of terrorism are established on receiving U.S. aid. He noted that Arafat has been working practically when he calls for a "Jihad". He further noted that Arafat has taken minor steps to crack down on terrorists, but that he has refused to extradite known terrorists in his own police force.

Regarding peace discussions with Syria, Mr. Rabin stated that Israel is ready to negotiate, but that the Syrians want the U.S. to remain involved as a third party mediator to these talks. He expressed his concern over the breakdown of talks over the issue of Early Warning systems before the talks could proceed.

We were advised at this point that, then, the Israeli government has turned its attention to its peace talks with the PLO, and away from the Syrian negotiations. The negotiations with the Palestinians have moved at a rapid pace, with the agreement 90% complete.

We then had lunch with key Palestinian leaders, including Faisal Hussein and Hanan Ashrawi, to discuss their perspectives on the peace talks with Israel. They expressed optimism about the negotiations, however, they also expressed their deep concerns about the situation in Jerusalem and the rights of Arabs and Palestinians in the city. They suggested that Jerusalem become the capital of two states, with the provision that Jerusalem would be under the exclusive sovereignty of NO state.

Later on the afternoon of August 30th, we met with former Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir. He discussed his opposition to the recent peace talks with the PLO and his concerns over terrorism and internal security. He noted pointedly that the difference between Israel and Syria is not a fight between Israel and Egypt and the talks with the Palestinians is that the peace talks with the Egyptians were with an external entity, whereas the negotiations with the Palestinians are more insofar as they involve people currently living in Israel.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

Arafat is not complying with the conditions attached to that aid. He responded that the U.S. should stick to the requirements set forth in the law and force Arafat to comply with them. Mr. Weitzman also commented that he would not go to the U.S. to sign an intergovernment agreement between Israel and the PLO because in its current form this agreement is not the final agreement.

After meeting with President Weitzman, we drove to Gaza for a meeting with PLO President Yasser Arafat. Mr. Arafat emphasized again and again the importance of a resolution of the situations in Hebron and Jerusalem as critical factors in ensuring peace and the success of the peace talks with Israel.

We asked Arafat if it is possible for the U.S. to exert more pressure on Hamas to re-nounce acts of terror. He responded that pressure must be brought to bear on Iran and Syria. He noted, however, that the PLO has stopped 11 attempted acts of terror, with the latest coming just 2 days prior to our meeting. He also noted that as a result of his peace efforts, he has received death threats by Hamas groups operating out of Syria.

In response to allegations that he only condemns terrorism when speaking in English, but not Arabic, Arafat denied the claim, stating that he is doing all he can do to combat terrorism, pursuant to the conditions of the peace process. Mr. Arafat noted that Arafat is working practically and on the ground level to stop terrorism, and that forces such as Iran are the ones supporting Hamas and other Arab groups. He also stated that as a result of his peace efforts, he has received death threats by Hamas groups operating out of Syria.

We also discussed our concerns about Saddam Hussein and the situation in Iraq. President Mubarak related that he has worked hard to try to influence Saddam to relinquish power and leave Iraq, including his offer to grant Saddam asylum in Egypt if Saddam renounces his support for the Palestinians. We expressed our appreciation for his efforts, but his efforts have not been successful.

We also discussed our concerns about Somalia and the situation in that country. President Mubarak related that he has worked hard to try to influence Saddam to relinquish power and leave Iraq, including his offer to grant Saddam asylum in Egypt if Saddam renounces his support for the Palestinians. We expressed our appreciation for his efforts, but his efforts have not been successful.

Finally, both Mr. Sendov and Mr. Zhelev expressed an interest in NATO membership if the Parliament supports such membership, with Mr. Zhelev stating his firm desire that such membership should occur.

We discussed at length the current situation in the former Yugoslavia, and its implications on Bulgaria. Finally, both Mr. Sendov and Mr. Zhelev discussed the importance of foreign investment and the need for the U.S. and U.S. support for Bulgaria's membership in the World Trade Organization and GATT.
From Bulgaria, we traveled to Brussels, Belgium, where we were briefed by the U.S. representatives to NATO on the situation in Bosnia, including the recent bombing raids on Serb positions. They advised us of the negotiations and cooperation between our NATO allies and the UN command in orchestrating the military operations after the Serbian attack on Sarajevo. Significantly, they noted that these air strikes were focused on the Serb heavy weapon positions and on all lines of support for those weapons, including communication and control centers.

We also discussed the negotiation strategy for NATO, including the status of talks with Serbians, on his sub-Gen. Ratko Mladic. They expressed hope that these talks will be productive, although they noted that Mladic does not appear terribly cooperative. They also noted NATO's intention to proceed with the air strikes if Mladic and the Serbs do not remove their heavy weapons from around Sarajevo.

We returned to the United States on September 2, 1995.

Sincerely,

ARLEN SPECTER
help families caring for Alzheimer’s patients at home. The statistics are enormously impressive, Mr. President, that if we could delay the onset of Alzheimer’s disease, we could save billions of dollars.

On women’s health, in 1995, 182,000 women will be diagnosed as having breast cancer and some 46,000 women will die from the disease. The investment in education and treatment advances led to the announcement last year that the breast cancer death rates in America have declined by 4.7 percent between 1989 and 1992, the largest such short-term decline since 1950.

And while this was encouraging news, it only highlighted the fact that the Federal Government investment is beginning to pay off. While it was difficult in a tight budget year to raise funding levels, the subcommittee placed a very high priority on women’s health issues. The bill before the Senate contains an increase of $25 million for breast and cervical cancer screening, increases to expand research on the breast cancer gene, to permit the development of a diagnostic test to identify women who are at risk, and speed research to develop effective methods of prevention, early detection, and treatment.

Funding for the Office of Women’s Health has also been doubled to continue the national action plan on breast cancer, and to develop and establish a clearinghouse to provide wide health care professionals with a broad range of women’s health-related information. This increase has been recommended for the Office of Women’s Health, because of the very effective work that that office has been doing.

On Healthy Start, Mr. President, children born of low birthweight is the leading cause of infant mortality. Infants who have been exposed to drugs, alcohol, or tobacco in utero are more likely to be born small for gestational age or low birthweight. We have in our society, Mr. President, thousands of children born each year no bigger than the size of my hand, weighing a pound, some even as little as 12 ounces. They are human tragedies at birth carrying scars for a lifetime. They are enormously expensive, costing more than $200,000 until they are released from the hospital.

Years ago, Dr. Koop outlined the way to equip every house by pregnant women. The Healthy Start Program was initiated, and has been carried forward, to target resources for prenatal care to high incidence communities; it is funded as well as we could under this bill with increases as I have noted.

On AIDS, the bill contains $2.6 billion for research, education, prevention, and services to combat the scourge of AIDS, including $379 million for emergency aid to the 42 cities hardest hit by this disease.

When it comes to the subject of violence against women, it is one of the epidemic problems in our society. The Department of Justice reports that each year women are the victims of more than 4.5 million violent crimes, including an estimated 500,000 rapes or other sexual assaults.

But crime statistics do not tell the whole story. I have visited many shelters, Mr. President, in Harrisburg and Pittsburgh and have seen firsthand the physical and emotional suffering so many women are enduring. In a sad, ironic way the women I saw were the lucky ones because they survived violent attacks.

The Family Violence Prevention and Services Act provides $150 million for domestic violence prevention and services, which was increased this year to $176 million, to support emergency and long-term services.

On nutrition programs for the elderly, the bill provides $2.75 billion within the Department of Agriculture, which is maintenance of the level provided in 1995. We would like to have had more money, but that was the best we could do considering the other cuts.

In closing, Mr. President, I want to thank the extraordinary staff who have worked on this program. On the Senate side, Bettilou Taylor and Craig Higgins have been extraordinary and professional in taking inordinately complicated printouts and working through a careful analysis of the priorities.

We received requests from many of our colleagues. And to the maximum extent, we have accommodated those requests. We have received many requests from people around the country. We have accommodated as many requests for personal meetings as we could, both with the Senators and with their staffs. And we think this is a very significant bill.

There are people on both sides who have objected to provisions of the bill. When a motion to proceed is offered, it is my hope that we will proceed to take up this bill and that we will pass it. We are aware that there has been the threat of a veto from the executive branch, and I invite the President or any of his officials to present arguments if they feel they can do it better.

There is a commitment in America to a balanced budget and, that is something we have to do. We have structured our program to have that balanced budget within 7 years by the year 2002. The President talks about a balanced budget within 9 years. I suggest that our targeting is the preferable target.

To the extent people have suggestions on better allocations, we are prepared to listen, but this is our best judgment. We urge the Senate to proceed with this bill.

At this time I yield to my distinguished colleague, Senator Harkin.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I inquire of the Presiding Officer, how much time does this side have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 27 minutes 46 seconds remaining on your side and there are 18 minutes remaining on the side of the Senator from Pennsyldania.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I again thank my colleague, Senator SPECTER, for his kind and generous remarks on my behalf, and I so appreciate this kind of support. Senator SPECTER is right, we have worked together for many years. We have switched places, majority/minority, but that has not in any way lessened or in any way changed our relationship. It is one of, I think, mutual respect, as well as respect, and it has been a pleasure for us to try to fashion the best bill we possibly could, having been dealt a bad hand. So I commend Senator SPECTER and his staff for doing the best possible job with the bad hand of cards that was dealt to us.

I especially want to draw attention to Senator SPECTER's efforts to restore funding for rural health care and the health and safety protections for workers, and especially his dogged determination that that has resulted in the situation we find ourselves in today. I reluctantly agreed to this approach suggested by Senator Dole because I am strongly opposed to the striker amendment and because, on the floor, the bill would have attracted scores of additional extremist legislative riders.

So, for the benefit of Senators, what we face right now is a vote on the motion to proceed that will take place at 10 o'clock. This has, really, is a vote on whether or not we will have within this appropriations bill a rider that says that President Clinton cannot execute his Executive order which bans corporations—and I will get into the details of it later—bans companies having business with the Federal Government, contracts with the Federal Government, from replacing legitimate strikers with permanent replacements.

We had a vote on this earlier this year and the vote failed, the cloture vote failed on that vote. So this is the same issue we have before us, whether or not the President can implement his Executive order on striker replacement or whether we will have this rider on the appropriations bill prohibiting that implementation. So, that is what is facing us right now, and that vote will take place at 10 o'clock.

Before I yield on the issue of striker replacement to my colleague from Minnesota, and my colleague from Massachusetts, let me get a couple of words about the bill in front of us. As I said, Senator SPECTER did a commendable job with the bad hand we were dealt, but I think this chart really points out the problems that we have in dealing with education, with health, with workers protection, with summer youth employment, with low-income home energy heating assistance—all the things that we need in probil that help advance our country educationally, socially, and try to make life a little bit better and give more opportunity to more people.

What we say is, over 1992, 1993, 1994, 1995, our allocations and budget autior from Minnesota.

And the context is simple. The bottom 75 percent of the population feels the economic squeeze—low wages, wages that are not living wages, working people losing their bargaining power, more and more mergers, banks buying Mr. HARKIN. I thank the Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. President, I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from Massachusetts. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH). The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. I thank my friend and colleague from Iowa for yielding the time, and I would yield myself 13 minutes.

On March 8, 1995, President Clinton took a dramatic and long overdue step to put the federal government on the side of fair and efficient labor relations. He issued an Executive order which makes it the policy of the executive branch to prohibit Federal contractors from requiring employees to be told they didn't have to join a union—were never enacted by Congress. But when those orders were issued, were there any protests from my Republican colleagues? The answer is no. In fact, many of my Republican colleagues took to the floor and applauded those actions. It is clear that the objections that are now being raised to President Clinton's action are not based on principle, or a consistent view of the President's authority with respect to labor relations or Federal procurement. They are part of a persistent and unconscionable Republican attack on basic protections for working men and women.

We see it in the relentless efforts by Republicans to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act, which helps to assure decent wages for hard-working construction workers who make, on average, $27,000 a year. We see it in the Republican proposal now making its way through the Congress to roll back the earned income tax credit, and raise taxes for 39 million low-income working Americans to pay for tax breaks for the wealthy. We see it in the attempt to open gaping holes in the pension laws to allow companies to raid billions of dollars from workers' pension funds. We see it in the refusal of the Republican leadership to even allow a vote on increasing the minimum wage, which in real terms is lower now than it has been at any time in the past 40 years.

Seven times since the enactment of the first Federal minimum wage law in 1938, bipartisan majorities of the Congress have reaffirmed the Nation's commitment to working families by voting in favor of increasing the minimum wage. Increases have been proposed and supported by Republican as well as Democratic Presidents. Six years ago, 89 Senators—including all but 8 of the Republican Senators—voted for a minimum wage increase of 90 cents, an increase identical to that which has been proposed by President Clinton. Yet now we are not allowed to even vote on the issue. Republicans are for a minimum wage all right—the minimum wage possible.

Republicans are for the right to strike, as well—as long as striking workers can be permanently replaced—which means no real right to strike at all. We are prepared to move forward to consideration of important spending issues in this bill, and we should do that. But we are not prepared to acquiesce in letting this bill be used as a vehicle for an unconscionable Republican attack on working families. And let us be clear—that is what this vote is all about.

The basic principle behind the President's action has strong public support.
had reached agreement on a contract that preserved health benefits with a reasonable cost-sharing arrangement for coverage of family members and for the first time gave workers a retirement program.

Instead of the pain, economic hardship and emotional suffering for workers, their families and their communities that inevitably occurs when strikers are permanently replaced, union officials report that what has been gained is a mutual respect between the company and a resumption of normal relations with a firm foundation for the future.

That is a perfect illustration of why it is both important and appropriate for the President to use his executive authority to ban the use of permanent replacements by federal contractors. Hiring permanent replacements encourages intransigence by management in negotiations with labor. It encourages employers to replace current workers with less experienced workers willing to settle for less—and to accept smaller paychecks and other benefits. Clearly that practice has a negative impact on the efficiency and quality of performance on Federal contracts.

The Executive order helps restore the balance that has been lost in recent years. It is particularly distressing for us to be spending this time debating an ill-conceived rider on labor law, instead of addressing the important challenges on issues that belong in this appropriations measure. I want to address two of these issues here—the unacceptable cuts in education, and the cuts in job training proposed by our Republican colleagues in this bill.

These are difficult days for children, students, and working families. On Tuesday of this week, Republicans slashed college student loans by $30 billion over 7 years. Now they propose to close the books for funding by an additional $2.4 billion next year and $40 billion by the year 2002—all to help pay for a $245 billion tax break for the wealthy.

This is no time to be cutting education. Our schools are filling with more students than ever before. Total public school enrollment is projected to rise from 45 million in 1995 to 50 million by 2005—an increase of 10 percent. In the face of this surge in enrollment, it makes no sense to slash funding for education. Increased funding is necessary just to maintain the same level of services, let alone provide the wise investment we need to improve education and build a stronger future for the Nation.

We should not turn our back on education just as the nation is beginning to reap the benefits of a better educated work force. More students are finishing high school, more students are going on to college, and more students are graduating from college than ever before. The Bureau of Labor Statistics estimates that about 20 percent of income growth during the last 20 years can be attributed to students going further in school. We can build on this record by investing more in education, not less.

Slashing education in today’s economy is like cutting defense in the mid-1970’s when we were successful in the years ahead, young men and women need communication skills and problem-solving skills. They need a grasp of basic scientific and math concepts. They need a familiarity with computers, and the ability to work as part of a team.

As technology changes and economic competition brings the world closer together, the demand for better-educated workers is growing, and the demand for workers with lower skills is declining. In the last decade, jobs for those with low levels of education grew by only 7 percent, while employment in high-skilled occupations increased by an impressive 32 percent. These wise investments will affect real students in real schools in real communities throughout the country.

As States across the Nation recognize the urgency of school reform, it makes no sense to reduce Federal funds designed to encourage such reforms. The reduction of the 9,000 schools participating in the Goals 2000 program will lose funds under this Republican amendment.

Drug use by students is on the rise and too many students are victims of crime in their schools. Yet Republicans are cutting funds that support 97 percent of communities and make it possible for 39 million students to learn in safe and drug-free schools.

Preschool enrollment has doubled, giving children a better chance to enter school ready to learn. Yet Republicans are cutting $132 million from Head Start.

The achievement gap between students in poor and wealthy schools is narrowing. Yet Republican cuts will deny assistance to 650,000 disadvantaged students.

High school graduates are obtaining better job training, finding better jobs, and earning more in those jobs. Yet Republicans are cutting $83 million from vocational education and $867 million from summer jobs to help youths and adults gain job skills and pursue more productive careers in a changing economy.

The issue is priorities. It makes no sense to reduce education investments needed to improve the lives of students and working families. It makes even less sense to do so in order to pay for tax breaks for the wealthiest individuals and corporations in our society.

As was pointed out earlier in the course of this debate, over the period of the last months there has been a series of attacks on the rights of working men and women in this country. First, Congress attempted to cancel out the Davis-Bacon Act. That attempt would effectively guarantee for construction workers, who work 1,700 hours in the course of a year, that their average income of $27,000 will diminish, and attacks their livelihood.

There has been a resistance by our Republican colleagues and friends to raise the minimum wage so that men and women who work 40 hours a week, $2 workers able to provide bread on their table, a roof over their house, the mortgage payments, and clothes for their children, to make work honorable, respectable, and to make work pay. They supposedly want to turn back on the earned income tax credit. Who is eligible for that? Those working families that are prepared to work, are working, and they make less than $26,000 a year.

Attack on the Davis-Bacon Act; attack on the minimum wage; attack on the EITC; and an attack on educating the children of those working families, as we saw in the Labor Committee this past week, by putting an additional tax on the heads of these working and decent people. That is what is happening in the workplace, the higher the tax is on them and on their schools. That is fundamentally wrong.

We are attacking the parents of those working families in the Finance Committee by decreasing the coverage of their parents under the Medicare system. That will mean more copayments, more premium increases, and an increase in the deductibles. That is what is happening for working men and women in this country at the hands of this Republican Congress.

President Clinton has stood up for them with this particular provision, and now we have the attempt to try to deny those individuals who are trying to provide work for their families their right to be able to be included in the job market.

Finally, Mr. President, I think we ought to recognize what has happened to the Nation's commitment to education in the underlying bill. The job done by Senator HARKIN and Senator SPECKER has been superb in trying to take scarce resources and focus them on the areas of greatest need in terms of our national investment.

But there is still a serious cutback on the basic Head Start Program, which tries to enhance the opportunities for young children to develop the kinds of competence and skills to project them into the early years of education.

Cutsbacks on the chapter 1 program that targets needy children for special help and assistance that was reshaped last year with strong bipartisan support;

The denial of the 90 percent of the Federal funds that would be available to the States at the local community level to help enhance the academic achievements at the elementary and secondary education level with Goals 2000;

The reduction in the School-to-Work Program to take three-quarters of the kids that do not go on to college, and to give them some additional opportunity to get into gainful employment. All of these programs have been reduced.

The absolute abandonment of the commitment for the Summer Jobs Program—this is in the wake of the debate on the Welfare Reform Program, where we are talking about trying to get people off welfare and into employment. Under President Bush, we had 872,000 summer jobs. They have been zeroed out under the Republican program, zeroed out.

How can we, on one day, talk about getting people off welfare, building a work ethic, and trying to get them involved in jobs, and on the next day effectively wipe that program out? In the wake of what this Congress did in the welfare debate and the kind of commitment we had to summer jobs under President Bush, how can we zero out this program now? It makes no sense whatsoever. This program has done in the appropriations recommendation.

So, Mr. President, the issue that is before us is fundamental and basic to working families, to their education, to their own income, and to the future, I believe, of this country.

It is difficult to exaggerate the shortsighted Republican priority that would short-change education. Education has been the essence of the American experience and the core of the American dream and the core of the American experience from the beginning of the Nation.

Mr. President, there is one wonderful quote that I came across and, as a matter of fact, reread yesterday, by the former Senator from Massachusetts, Daniel Webster, when he made this extraordinary speech in Faneuil Hall to give testimony upon the deaths of J ohn Adams and Thomas Jefferson. He made this point—I came across it again yesterday, and it was appropriate at a time that our Human Resources Committee was denying and making it more difficult for the children of working Americans to obtain a higher education. But it is also applicable as we consider the appropriations bill now that is before us.

Over a century and a half ago, Daniel Webster made the point about the importance of education in his famous oration on the lives and service of J ohn Adams and Thomas Jefferson. Both of those two great Presidents died on the same day, on J uly 4, 1826. On August 2 of that year, Daniel Webster spoke about them in Faneuil Hall in Boston, about their leadership and example on education;

But the cause of knowledge, in a more enlarged sense, the cause of general knowledge and of popular education, had no warmer friends, nor more powerful advocates, than J ohn Adams and Mr. Jefferson. On this foundation they knew the whole republican system rested; and this great and all-important truth they strove to impress, by all the means in their power. In the early publication already referred to, Mr. Adams expresses the strong and just sentiment, that the education of the poor is more important, even to the rich themselves, than all their other rights. On this great truth, indeed, is founded that unrivaled, that invaluable position and moral influence, the blessings and the glory of our fathers, the New England system of free schools.

That was true for New England schools in the early years of our Na tion; it is true for the schools of America today, no bill that contains deep cuts in funds for schools deserves to pass.

This bill also deserves to be defeated for a further reason. It is an unconscionable attack on the dreams and aspirations of millions of working families across the country and their hopes for the future. I am talking about the fundamental tools, the building blocks, we have crafted in a bipartisan manner in good faith, to provide a realistic hope of the opportunity that comes with a decent job.

This bill breaks that faith. For example it proposes drastic cuts in the Summer Jobs Program—this is in the wake of the debate on the Davis-Bacon Act; at a time when it reached its highest level of assistance to young people under President Bush in 1992, when it provided summer jobs for 782,000 young men and women.

At this high water mark, we were barely beginning to meet the real need that exists. With over 8 million eligible youth across the country, serving participants are far more numerous than we have positions for. In recognition of budget constraints, the current program is already 25 percent smaller than it was under President Bush. In 1995 we are serving 600,000 youth, and we anticipate reaching 550,000 in 1996 under President Clinton's funding request. That level represents jobs for only 6 percent of the eligible population. It is a priceless opportunity for the few who get to participate. We ought to be doing more, not less. It is unconscionable to do nothing.

All Senators know in their States that there are communities, towns and cities full of youths looking for this ray of hope. The Summer Jobs Program reaches out and provides their first experience with a job. Many have parents who are not working. Many live in areas where there are few opportunities to find employment, even for a short time. These summer jobs can make all the differences in their lives.

In our recent debate over welfare reform, there were many harsh comments about welfare dependence and lack of responsibility and the need to get these people a job. Everyone agrees that these people, as they are callously described, need employable skills so that they can get a job and provide for their families. It is one of the first pieces of legislation we consider after the welfare debate, the Republican majority proposes to tear down a program which can provide the very skills we all agree are needed for successful employment. They call their reform tough love—but it would more appropriately be called tough hate.

Some of the most virulent and most ideological Republicans claim that all programs like the Summer Jobs Program are ineffective.

They think Government has no business spending tax dollars on welfare for individuals—the only welfare they support is corporate welfare. Look at what the Republican Labor Secretary said after his office analyzed the Summer Jobs Program.

The work projects are worthwhile. Summer jobs are real, not make-work. Kids were closely supervised, learned new skills they could apply to their school work, and took pride in their employment.

Westat, Inc., a private research company, reported similar positive findings after undertaking a study of the program. Supervisors involved with the program indicated no serious problems relating to behavior, attendance, or turnover by the youths in the program. The bottom line is, this program works and yet it is now facing elimination by the Republican majority in Congress.

In Massachusetts, we will lose over 13,000 summer jobs. Boston youth will lose over 1,500 job opportunities. Springfield teenagers will lose another 1,200 jobs. What will they turn to? The private sector plays an important role in providing summer employment—but they are the first to tell us they cannot possibly fill the gap for the hundreds of thousands of young men and women looking for work and experience. The youth who don't get jobs will more likely turn to the very elements we are hoping they can avoid—crime, gangs, drugs, welfare, and unemployment.

Where is the hope for the youths on the street with nothing to do but hang out on the corner and watch the drug buys occur? Where is the hope for the teenager who is fighting the temptations of the gangs but is unemployed? Where is the hope for the young men and women who want to graduate from high school and get a job—but have no idea what it takes to get a job and keep it?

So far in this Congress we have seen the Republican majority turn its back on the Nation's youth in many ways. Unemployment survey cuts in student aid, the elimination of funds for the AmeriCorps National Service Program, deep cuts in the School-to-Work Program, deep cuts in education funds for disadvantaged pupils, the elimination of summer jobs. Again and again we ask, Where is the hope? Where is the heart?

This bill should be a creator of hope, not a destroyer of hope. It is a deeply flawed bill that doesn't deserve to pass, and I urge the Senate to oppose it.

Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Massachusetts for his eloquent remarks and for his long-standing and strong support for the working people of this country.

There is no one in this Senate and in this Congress who has stood up more over a longer period of time and who has been more forceful and eloquently for the working people than the Senator from Massachusetts. What the Senator just said in his closing remarks regarding the leadership ofThomas Jefferson and John Adams is education really had to bring it home to us again today what we are doing.

Mr. President, again, to repeat for Senators, what we are facing right now is a vote at 10 o'clock on a motion to proceed. I am opposed to that motion to proceed because of the inclusion in the Labor, Health and Human Services appropriations bill of a rider, a rider that says that President Clinton cannot implement his Executive order regarding permanent replacement of striking workers.

Mr. President, I strongly oppose this amendment restricting the implementation of President Clinton's Executive order regarding permanent replacements for striking workers. First of all, the President's order is completely lawful, fully within his authority, and conforms with the practice of previous Republican Presidents in labor issues. And perhaps more importantly, instead of passing such an amendment we should be saluting the leadership of the President in providing a good degree of protection for workers that Congress failed to enact last year in the striker replacement bill.

Under the Executive order, American workers in companies doing business of over $100,000 with the Federal Government can finally be assured that they will not be permanently replaced if they go out on strike. While that represents only 10 percent of all contracts, it is 20 percent of all Federal contract dollars.

The proponents of the amendment to nullify this claim that they are trying to maintain the power of the Congress over this matter. But it is clear that Congress has already acted to give the President this power, in the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949. We have spoken on this issue and this amendment is just an attempt to second-guess the President on an issue that is fully within his authority. President Clinton used the same statutory authority to issue two Executive orders concerning labor. Yet we didn't hear our colleagues on the other side of the isle complaining then.

Furthermore, the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia rejected a challenge to the President Clinton's Executive order on striker replacement on July 31, 1995. Specifically, the court held:

First, President Clinton acted within his procurement authority;

Second, there is a close nexus between the Executive order and efficient procurement; and Third, Executive Order 12954 does not conflict with the National Labor Relations Act.

In other words, the court rejected all of the major arguments that have been made against the Executive order. The President has the power, and he has the authority—he has the power, given him by Congress in the procurement laws, to deny Federal contracts to employers who use permanent replacements for strikers.

In addition, there's no merit to the argument that he has done an end run around the Congress by trying to accomplish what the striker replacement bill had failed to do. President Clinton's Executive order is much more limited than S. 55, and deals only with how the Government chooses its suppliers of goods and services. The order does not attempt to change the National Labor Relations Act or outlaw the use of permanent replacements for strikers. It governs their use only with respect to the narrow class of Federal contractors.

Nobody has a right to receive a Federal contract. As one contracting party, we can insist on any conditions we choose. The findings of the Executive order state that prolonged labor disputes adversely affect costs of operations. Employers who want to insist on their right to permanently replace striking workers can do so—they just can't get Federal contracts.

Executive orders simply raise the stakes in a company decision, and will hopefully convince some companies to rethink their decision to hire permanent replacement workers. It is too easy for companies to think that they can help their bottom line by taking advantage of their workers. This only says that there is a price that must be paid.

Sometimes I wish the majority would go ahead and propose a law banning this entirely—it's more honest than what they are trying to do here, again, today. A right to strike is a right to be permanently replaced. Every cut-rate, cutthroat employer knows they can break a union if they are willing to play hardball and ruin the lives of the people who have made their company what it is.

Workers deserve better. Workers aren't disposable assets that can be thrown away when labor disputes arise. When we were considering the striker replacement bill last year, the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources heard poignant testimony about the emotional and financial hardships that are caused by the hiring of permanent replacement workers. We heard of workers losing their homes and going without health insurance due to the costs of COBRA coverage, as well as the feelings of uselessness that workers often feel when they are permanently replaced after years of loyal, and efficient service.

The right to strike—which we all know is an action taken as a last resort, for no worker takes the financial risk of a strike lightly—is fundamental to preserving workers’ right to bargain for better wages and better working conditions. And recent studies have shown that the stagnation we have seen in middle-class standards of living is closely correlated with the decline of unions and the loss of meaningful bargaining power.

At the same time, workers are losing the benefits that unions were able to negotiate. Since 1981, fewer workers have health insurance, pensions, paid vacations, paid sick leave, paid holidays, and other benefits. Without the bargaining power of a union, companies provide these benefits only out of the goodness of their hearts. And without the right to strike—a right that is theoretically guaranteed by law, but that, in fact, is totally undermined by permanent replacements—the unions have no bargaining power either. What does it mean to tell workers, “you have the right to strike,” when exercising that right means that you can be summarily fired?

This is not about whether a company has to close its doors in the face of a strike. This only concerns the permanent replacement of strikers. Permanent replacements are given special priority in their new jobs—placing new hires above people with seniority and experience. We aren’t suggesting that replacement workers can’t compete for jobs—they just should not get special rights, over and above those of the workers who have devoted their lives to the company.

As a nation we have a choice—continue down the path of lower wages, lower productivity, and fewer organized workers or to take the option pursued by our major economic competitors, of cooperation, high wages, high productivity. If we want to pursue that high skill path, we must do it with an organized work force. We can’t do it with the destructive management practices of the past decade such as the threat of hiring replacement workers.

Federal contractors must have stable and productive labor-management relations if they are to produce the best quality goods in a timely and reliable way. The use of permanent replacement workers destroys cooperative and stable labor-management relations. Research has found that strikes involving permanent replacements last seven times longer than strikes that don’t involve permanent replacements.

Using permanent replacements means trading experienced, skilled employees for inexperienced employees who labor at the bottom of the learning curve. For Federal contracts, we don’t want the industrial equivalents of rookies and minor leaguers making tires for our next Desert Storm.

So, I urge the Senate to oppose this amendment. I think it is a distraction from this important appropriations bill before us. I intend to fight this effort every step of the way, to return the right to strike to at least some of America’s workers.

Under this Executive order, American workers and companies doing business over $100,000 with the Federal Government can finally be assured that if they go out on strike, they will not be replaced if they go out on strike. While that represents only 10 percent of all contracts, this order will affect 90 percent of Federal contract dollars. Opponents of the amendment can nullify this, claim that they are trying to maintain the power of Congress. But Congress already gave the President this power in the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949. The Senator from Minnesota said every President since President Truman has exercised this authority. President Bush used the same authority to issue two Executive orders concerning labor. Yet, we did not hear our colleagues on the other side of the aisle complaining at that time.

As the Senator from Massachusetts said, the U.S. district court rejected a challenge to President Clinton’s Executive order on July 31 of this summer on the grounds that President Clinton acted within his procurement authority; second, there is a close nexus between the Executive order and efficient procurement; and, third, that Executive Order 12994 does not conflict with the National Labor Relations Act. In other words, the court rejected all of the major arguments that have been made against the Executive order.

The President has not abused or exceeded his legal authority. He has the power, given by Congress, to deny Federal contracts to employers who use permanent replacements for strikers.

In addition, there is no merit to the argument that he has done an end run around Congress by trying to accomplish what S. 55, the striker replacement bill, tried to do and which did not pass here.

I might point out again for the record, S. 55 had a majority of votes on the Senate floor, enough to pass, to ban the permanent replacement of strikers. We just could not get the 60 votes to break the filibuster. Again, this order does not attempt to change the RLA or the National Labor Relations Act, or outlaw the use of permanent replacements for strikers. It is used narrowly affecting only Federal contracts.

Mr. President, no one has a right to receive a Federal contract. As one contract party, the Federal Government can insist on conditions, and that is the condition that President Clinton has insisted on, that if you do business of over $100,000, if it is a contract over that amount, permanently replace legitimate, legal strikers.

Mr. President, how much time do we have remaining on this side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa has 1½ minutes remaining.

Mr. HARKIN. I will reserve that minute and a half.

Mr. SPECTER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, it is my hope that we will proceed to take up the pending bill. It is obviously difficult procedurally to complete this bill before the end of the fiscal year, and it is already a matter of public record that arrangements have been made between the executive branch and the Congress so as to make a continuing resolution, which is to be considered by the House of Representatives today and probably by the Senate today, to cover, on a temporary basis, the matters within this appropriations bill. And it is obvious that even if we could complete the Senate bill before the end of the fiscal year on September 30, we could not finish a conference in time. So the continuing resolution is the way that we will have to resolve these matters.

Still, as a matter of protocol and as a matter of form, we in the Senate sought to take up this bill at some point and debate the measures and come to a resolution. With respect to the provisions concerning striker replacement, I think it is obviously the case that even if we could have completed the Senate bill, we could not finish a conference in time. So what I want to address is a question as to the Executive authority on striker replacement in the context that the Congress has refused to act. But whatever that situation may be, it is my view that it is not appropriate to deal with this matter on an appropriations bill. The reason is that the striker replacement provision was reinstated in the bill to prohibit the use of any Federal funds to implement or enforce the President’s Executive order.

And it is unlikely that there are sufficient votes to change the President on this. My own sense is that the issue will have to await action on another day. As I say, I think it preferable that such legislative matters not be taken up on an appropriations bill. The current situation is difficult procedurally.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, as I understand, Senator HARKIN has about 1½ minutes, and then there is the time on the other side. I understand we are going to be voting at 10 in any event. I would like to—if there are other speakers, obviously they could speak—but I would like to talk, perhaps enter into a dialogue with the Senator from Iowa, just about some of the education provisions of the legislation. But I am more than glad to, if there are other Senators that want to address it—
Mr. SPECTER. I yield to Senator HARKIN and Senator KENNEDY 4 minutes of my time.

Mr. HARKIN. I appreciate the Senator yielding.

I yield to the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. I was just interested in something the Senator from Iowa pointed out during our markup in the Human Resources Committee on the issue of education. In this legislation we are talking about the support of the Federal Government for elementary and secondary education. This past week we talked about higher education. And the Senator, I thought, made a very interesting point about where we were in this country in terms of the deficit versus GNP at the time of the end of World War II when we went ahead and provided education grants to the sons and daughters of working families under the GI bill. I think it is certainly not that uncommon, exercise of the good faith by the Federal Government to stand behind the concerted and joint effort of the States and local governments one-third for elementary and secondary education. The Federal Government, as I said at that time, was about 12 percent of total. You know what it is today, Mr. President? Less than 6 percent. We are going in the wrong direction. It has been going down ever since. We wonder why? We wonder why our schools are not producing better students? Why are we not becoming more competitive in the world markets? Why are we not reducing the deficit? Talk about the dumbing down of America. It is because Congress is not fulfilling its responsibility to invest in the education of this country. The Senator from Massachusetts is right.

Mr. KENNEDY. Would the Senator agree with me that money is not necessarily the answer to all our education problems, but it is a clear indication of our priorities. What are our priorities? And that every dollar that we cut back, whether it is reaching out to a Head Start child in trying to help and assist them develop confidence and skills or reaching out to helping teachers and parents at the local level, or providing the income contingency payments for college loans, that for every dollar we cut from them, that we will be expending more in terms of social services to try to deal with the social problems that we now have.

Mr. HARKIN. The Senator is right.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair informs the Senator from Iowa that the 4 minutes yielded to the Senator have expired.

Mr. SPECTER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. I note the arrival of the Senator from New Hampshire on the floor. I had yielded time earlier, but we do have a speaker. I now yield 5 minutes to my distinguished colleague from New Hampshire.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Senator for yielding time on this issue before us which arrives here because of the concern of Members from the other side of the aisle over the issue of the President's order on striker replacement. That is why we are having this not necessarily unique, but certainly not unlevel but had reached a rather good equilibrium between management and labor. It does not lie in the President's position that since 1938 we have had laws unfair to labor and they should have been changed for the last 50 years or so since they have been in place. The fact is, those laws have been in place for the last 50 years. Labor has functioned rather effectively in this Nation as a force for its organized membership, and management has also been able to function under the cloak of the present law as it existed for the last 50-some-odd years. Therefore, it seems to me that the playing field was not unlevel but had reached a rather good equilibrium between management and labor.

What the administration is trying to do in this unilateral act is to create an unlevel playing field, not for the purposes of protecting some beaten down group of individuals, but rather for the purposes of protecting its own interest in running for reelection and getting contributions and support from what happens to be a very specific special interest group in this Nation.

So this is purely special interest pork-barrel politics is what it amounts to essentially. So if you want to vote against what is to labor pork or social pork, as it might be defined here, then you should not be supporting the administration's position...
Mr. SPECTER. I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Oklahoma.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized for 2 minutes.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I am a little distressed. I understand we are not going to be able to take up some amendments that I believe should be taken up on this bill. I, at least, want to get into the RECORD, in the hopes some of them will be addressed in conference, my strong feeling about a couple amendments.

The Exon amendment, Coats amendment, and the Smith amendments address the same thing, and that is just a modest and overdue measure to get Government out of the business of promoting and subsidizing abortions. It is my understanding that under section 512, if not enacted, obstetrics and gynecology residents' programs will be required to perform abortions including late-term abortions. Residents with moral or religious objections who wish to opt out of performing abortions should be required to explain why in a way that satisfies stringent and explicit criteria. I am very much concerned about that. We have debated this issue over and over again. However, I am hoping this is something that will be taken up in conference.

The second thing is the amendment to defund Goals 2000, the Education Act. Under this program, Federal intrusiveness reaches a new height. The Goals 2000 creates tighter and more definite links between State, Federal and local levels and makes it easier for the Department of Education to tamper with local schools. The Goals 2000 is the idea that the Federal Government should be involved in creating and certifying standards for education and determining official knowledge.

I think if there is anything that has been very evident during the elections of November, it was a trend to get Government out of things, not in things, to get the Washington influence out of our lives instead of in our lives.

I certainly hope that we will be able to take up some measure at some point, perhaps in conference, to do away with the Goals 2000 program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Oklahoma has expired.

Mr. SPECTER. How much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. Inhofe). All time has expired.

Mr. DASCHLE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The minority leader is recognized.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I would like to use a few minutes of leader time prior to the vote.

Mr. President, I want to commend Senators SPECTER and HARKIN for the effort they have made to do what they could with this piece of legislation. At the same time, I think everyone needs to be put on notice that this bill will be voted on.

I believe that there is no other alternative but to veto this legislation. Frankly, while we have given some thought to trying, in as many ways as we could, to improve the legislation, in our view, it is beyond improvement. They have done the best they could. But this problem started when we passed the budget in the first place. This problem started when the allocation to Health and Human Services was provided in the budget resolution and by the Appropriations Committee. As the chairman of the subcommittee, Senator SPECTER, stated, the allocation “is totally insufficient.” It cuts $9 billion from the President’s request. So there is no other word to describe this piece of legislation, in my view, than the word “extreme.”

Cuts in health, education, job training, and all of the cuts that are provided in this piece of legislation will devastate kids, young people, and destroy the opportunities for families and workers, all in the name of providing a tax cut that we do not need this year. The majority has proposed $245 billion in tax cuts. In order to finance those tax breaks that benefit our wealthiest citizens, they have proposed the extreme measures in this bill. As I stated, over $9 billion is cut from the President’s request in this legislation in areas that directly affect the strength,

The NLRA also established unfair labor practices forbidden by the Act. Among other prohibitions, no interference with the formation of a labor union was allowed, and employers could not interfere with employees engaging in collective bargaining or strike collectively. After the NLRA was enacted, union membership grew from 3,584,000 in 1935 to 10,201,000 by 1941.

Before the 1930's—some of the Senators may not be able to remember what it was like before the 1930's—some of them had not yet discovered America. But I remember very well.

Before the 1930's, Federal and State laws favored management, and union activity was discouraged. Efforts by the United Mine Workers [UMW] to expand their membership in West Virginia during the economic depression brought on by World War I resulted in a level of violence seldom seen in the annals of American labor history. In an effort to bring the benefits of unionism to the southern West Virginia region during the postwar years, the UMW mounted a determined effort to organize this region. The coal operators mounted an equally determined effort to keep out. Employers used some instances of force to prevent unions from coming into their plants or businesses. In West Virginia, every mine operation had its armed guard—in many instances two or more guards. Mine guards were an institution all along the creeks in the non-union sections of the State. As a rule, they were supplied by the Baldwin-Felts Detective Agency of Roanoke, Virginia and Bluefield, West Virginia. No class of men on Earth were more cordially hated by the miners than were these mine guards. Seemingly hired to keep the peace and guard company property, these guards spent much of their time harassing UMW officials and evicting thousands of union sympathizers from company housing. If a miner became too inquisitive, if he showed too much independence, or complained too much about his condition, he was likely beaten by one of these mine guards.

County sheriffs and their deputies were often in the pay of the coal operators, and the State government itself was clearly in alliance with the employers against the mine strikers. Scores of union men were jailed, and Sid Hatfield and Ed Chambers, two union sympathizers, were shot dead—dead—by Baldwin-Felts detectives on the courthouse steps at Welch, West Virginia, in McDowell County on August 1, 1921. At Blair Mountain, in Logan County, a three-day battle was fought. The Federal Government moved to end the struggle and President Harding issued a proclamation instructing the miners to cease fighting and return home. Military aircraft and a force of regular Army troops were sent to West Virginia. Partly as a result of the military's intervention, the UMW's effort to organize that part of the coalfields lost most of its momentum. The southern West Virginia coal establishment was saved.

This failure of the UMW underscores the long odds organized labor faced at a time when workers' rights to form and join unions had not yet been formally recognized. It also underscores the key role Government involvement played in the efforts of many employers to keep unions out of the workplace prior to the passage of the NLRA in 1935.

In 1938, the Supreme Court ruled in NLRB versus Mackay Radio and Telegraph Co. that employers may "permanently replace" striking workers. In effect, this provided a legal way to "fire" these striking workers. Owen Bieber, former President of the United Automobile, Aerospace, and Agricultural Implement Workers of America [UAW] echoes this sentiment as follows: "The permanent replacement of protected strikers is a contradiction in terms. It is pure double talk to say that although workers are discharged for striking, the worker can be permanently replaced. This distinction may have some meaning to lawyers, but all the ordinary worker knows is that he or she is not going back to work with the struck employer in the foreseeable future."

The ability of an employer to convert a narrow limited collective bargaining dispute into a prolonged and divisive dispute about the right to representation and the future of the unionized workforce is reminiscent of the bitter disputes that preceded enactment of the NLRA and led to passage of the Act. When striking workers are permanently replaced, the strike turns into a confrontation about retention of jobs and the right to union representation. Strikes should be about working conditions and wages, not about the fundamental right of union representation.

Although the hiring of permanent replacement workers was not common for many years, the practice has escalated in recent years, and its use or threat of use occurs in one out of every three strikes.

More and more, during labor negotiations, union members are fighting for benefits such as health care, pensions, and safety. Wages are not necessarily the big issue. Due to the threat of overseas competition and downsizing, unions are fighting for their benefits, many of which are not provided by companies overseas. It should be noted, however, that our major trading partners and competitors—Canada, France, Germany, and Japan—all have laws that prohibit the use of permanent replacements. In addition, the newly restored democracies of Eastern Europe prohibit this practice as well. The laws in these countries reflect the importance of collective bargaining in relation to economic performance. Their laws encourage long-term bargaining relationships. In these countries, collective bargaining has been central in building the stable workforces of skilled long-term employees that are critical to success.

Although the President's Executive Order only applies to Federal contracts in excess of $100,000, it is important that the United States Senate does not back down by supporting the provision to overturn the President's Executive Order. The Federal Government should set an example not only for all businesses operating in the United States, but for overseas companies as well. We do not want to send a message that we believe it is fair to tip the balance of power in favor of business with collective bargaining. Both sides should have tools to work with in order for bargaining to be effective. An employer would still have the ability to continue operation during a strike by using temporary replacements, by subcontracting or transferring the struck work, or by operating with management personnel.

This provision, which we are debating here today, would return us to the days of widespread practices of unfair and unsafe working conditions. More and more is expected of our workers these days, and they deserve to work in a safe environment with health and retirement benefits and job security. The practice of hiring permanent replacement workers has adversely impacted the lives of many people and destroyed many communities and lifetime friendships. Many who have invested years with a company have lost their jobs due to a legal strike and have been permanently replaced. Savings accounts have been depleted, college funds have been used up, homes have been lost, health benefits no longer existed, and hope for a secure future has been diminished. Advancing age makes it difficult for many longtime workers to find new jobs.

Mr. President, we are talking about real lives here—real people who want to live in an honest fashion for their families and their futures. These people are the backbone of our great nation, and we cannot afford to toss them aside and replace them with inexperienced, unskilled employees.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to vote no on this again on the motion.

Mr. President, I yield back whatever time I may not have consumed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I oppose in motion to proceed to consideration of the appropriations bill for the Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services and Education. I do so because I support the President's Executive order to ban the use of permanent striker replacement workers on Federal contracts. I oppose the provision in this bill that prevents enforcement of the Executive order.

Some say that banning of permanent striker replacements will tip the balance toward labor unions. The balance has already been tipped against workers. In 1970, only 1 percent of strikes involved permanent replacement workers. By 1992, employers were hiring permanent replacements in 25 percent of strikes.

If Congress repeals this order, we tell workers that they are disposable. We are telling working men and women that they can be tossed out onto a scrap heap of economic indifference.

Permanent replacement workers weakened the collective bargaining power of unions and that will bring down U.S. wages and living standards.

Strikes using permanent replacements last seven times longer than strikes that do not use permanent replacements. Strikes involving permanent replacements are more contentious and bitter, and that means that no one wins. Replacing strikers means replacing skilled workers with unskilled workers, experienced workers with inexperienced workers.

Some argue that this expands Presidential authority, I disagree. In 1992, George Bush issued an order that required all unionized Federal contractors to post notices in the workplace informing all employees that they did not have to join the union. President Bush did this even though legislation to include this notification, cosponsored by Congressmen Gingrich, Armey and Delay, was pending in Congress and was not passed.

Other Presidents have used their Presidential authority to issue Executive orders. In 1941, Franklin Roosevelt issued an Executive order banning racial discrimination by defense contractors. In 1964, Lyndon Johnson ordered an end to age discrimination by Federal contractors, and in 1969, the Nixon administration expanded this order to require affirmative action programs and goals.

President Clinton's Executive order is limited and reasonable. It seeks only to level the playing field for workers in Federal contracts. The Executive order applies only to contractors who try to permanently replace workers. It seeks only to protect workers who are engaged in a legal strike; it does not apply to illegal strikes. In addition, the Secretary of Labor must conduct a case-by-case review before any contract is terminated, and any order to terminate is subject to the review and approval of the contracting agency. This action is a modest step by the President. It is not an attempt to create new Presidential authority. I support this Executive order to protect collective bargaining, unions, and U.S. wages.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, this is the second time the Senate will vote on the President's striker replacement Executive order and, I hope, the second time the Senate affirms the Executive order.

Our laws should grant workers the right to strike and ensure that they cannot be fired during the course of a strike. To tell a worker who may have given many years of dedicated and loyal service that he or she has not been fired but permanently replaced is no consolation to that worker or their family.

In my many years as a businessman, I negotiated numerous labor contracts. I always knew that the workers were motivated, on behalf of themselves and their families. On some occasions, I stood firm. On other occasions, I gave way. On all occasions, I believe, both sides made concessions. We reached an agreement and went back to business. That was the process.

Mr. President, not once during those strikes did it ever occur to me that those workers would lose their jobs for striking. Not once did it occur to me that permanently replacing them was an acceptable practice. And yet today, you can see advertisements for permanent replacement workers even before the expiration of a labor contract.

The key to collective bargaining, Mr. President, is balance and good-faith negotiation.

The President's Executive order does not deny that labor disputes are going to occur. But it does acknowledge that such disputes should be fairly negotiated.

The Executive order is not unprecedented and is justified by helping to improve the quality and efficiency of Government contracts. It does so by encouraging companies that contract with the Federal Government to maintain a professional work environment with their employees. And stable working conditions lead to increased productivity.

Contractors that choose to permanently replace lawfully striking employees during a workplace dispute not only risk damaging labor-management relations. They also risk disrupting the quality and progress of their Federal contract.

In simple terms, it is just bad business policy to lock the club of permanent replacement over the heads of employees. History shows that strikes involving permanent replacements last up to seven times longer than strikes that do not involve permanent replacements. It is common knowledge that such strikes tend to be much more contentious, often changing a limited dispute into a broader, more antagonistic struggle.

Most importantly, it is common sense that replacing strikers means trading experienced, skilled employees for inexperienced ones. Inexperienced replacement workers start at the bottom of the learning curve, a circumstance that can sometimes have grave consequences in productivity and stability. Within the President's Executive order, we can avoid such grave consequences under federally funded Government projects.

I urge my colleagues to remove the restrictions and to legitimate Presidential Executive orders.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, we find ourselves today debating once again the use of striker replacements.

This morning, we will conduct two test votes to determine, ultimately, whether or not we will allow the President to enforce Executive Order 12954, which prohibits the Federal Government from contracting with firms using permanent replacements in cases of legal strikes.

Although many of us have addressed this issue in the past, I would like to briefly outline my position on this important issue.

If we should vote to allow that it is illegal to fire a worker engaged in a legal strike. We also all know that the Supreme Court Mackay Radio decision in 1935 made significant inroads into this protection from dismissal by allowing the hiring of permanent replacements for striking workers. In the last 15 years or so, the increased use of such workers has been one of many factors that have undermined a healthy relationship between workers and employers.

I believe that this country is slowly waking up to the idea that we cannot continue down a path where employers look only at short term profits, and trade in the prospect of our future for expediency today. We are not making the long term investments in capital and human resources that cost now, but will have tremendous payoffs in the future in terms of both profits and wages. We are also not creating the sort of working partnerships between employees and employers that are necessary for our long-term success in the world economy. We simply cannot be competitive in the world if we continue to trade our future for our short term gains.

Yet, the use of permanent replacements, I believe, is too often one more step on that path. Rather than address differences with legitimately bargaining representatives, thus developing partnerships, employers too often simply replace these workers. For that reason, I believe that we must discourage the use of permanent replacements, and I support the President's decision to do not business with firms employing this practice.

The President has found that the use of permanent replacements erodes labor-management relations, and thus adversely affects the cost, quality, and timely availability of goods and services procured by the Federal Government. I am confident that the President is taking an important step to discourage such practices, which have an adverse effect on our Nation's long-term economic prospects.

For these reasons, I will vote "no" on cloture.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, the issue before us is not striker replacement, but education. I supported the striker replacement provision in committee and hope it survives.

However, I continue to fight to cut the line item education, which has gripped this Congress. I want to cool that fever and break it. Both parties have supported education funding in the past, but now the Republicans think they have a mandate to cut reading and math assistants for kids in school. They find a mandate to reduce college student aid while tuitions rise faster than inflation. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Specifically, today, the Senate debated and passed a budget resolution that would cut education by 33 percent over the next 7 years while delivering a tax cut before the next election. During the debate, I, along with Senators Harkin, Kennedy, and others, offered an alternative that better fits with what the American people want. We proposed to protect the 2 percent of the budget now devoted to education by providing a smaller pre-election tax cut.

Unfortunately, our proposal to protect education was voted down, and today we are considering an appropriations bill that takes the first step to implement the wrongheaded budget plan that passed. Specifically, the bill cuts $2.1 billion in fiscal year 1996 from the discretionary education budget. It cuts Head Start, college grants, vocational education funds to help high school students move into higher-wage jobs, subsidies targeted largely to elements of a disparity with disadvantaged children, and school reform funds. It cuts antidrug education in the schools, magnet schools, adult literacy funds, and grants to improve the academic programs at 2- and 4-year colleges that are strapped for funds and that serve many lower-income students seeking to improve their economic independence. In short, it takes a $2.1 billion step backward while everyone knows we have to press forward in the current economic climate. Because of these cuts, I am opposing the motion to proceed to this bill.

Many of our constituents have felt the sharp edge of economic downsizing. In the government sector, we are cutting the Kennedy dyspepsia. The private sector has done even more to downsize and cut benefits. Traditionally, Americans have relied on a system of public education and college assistance to prepare them and their children to weather such transitions and gain economic independence. We learned after World War II that it pays to help people attend college, and we have learned for more than the past century that free public schools are essential.

Congress now seems to have forgotten these lessons of history, despite continuing evidence that education spending has been critical for economic growth. The Department of Labor estimates that 20 percent of U.S. economic growth since 1963 has stemmed from increased education in our work force. Where would our country be now, relative to Japan and Europe, if its economy were that much smaller? Congress should be ensuring that the engine of growth in the future, not fighting to cut education and give families making over $100,000 per year a tax cut before the next election. After rushing to bail out Mexico and refusing repeatedly to stop exporting American jobs, we should now work hard to invest in the future, not to give away the public store as a political goodie.

On the individual level, too, voters know the difference for the future. A recent study of identical twins found that the more educated twin makes 13 percent more on average. Why is this Congress implementing plans to cut back on the achievement of the 44 million children in U.S. public schools and the more than 6 million college students receiving student financial aid in order to quickly provide tax cuts to a smaller set of people who already have made it? No political payoff is worth such a plan that will hurt individual achievement and the economic potential of this Nation.

Aside from denying history and current research, this plan flies in the face of the basic facts about school enrollment and achievements. It is ironic. The number of children is rising. There will be 5 million more children in school in the United States 7 years from now. Thus, public school attendance will rise more than 10 percent, but Congress would contemplate cutting by 33 percent. At the college level, not only are enrollments rising, tuition is going up faster than inflation while we debate $10 billion in cuts to student aid on reconciliation.

I do not know what else I have to say to prove that the education part of the current budget plan is perverse. We do not need a pollster to tell us that it is not the best effort that this Congress should make for the people. The average voter probably would find it hard to believe that we are really pursuing it. Far from keeping a Contract With America, this bill represents a broken promise to educate our children.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today to urge the Senate to prohibit a strike, from the bill. There are several reasons why this provision should be struck. First, product quality will be jeopardized if Government contractors are permitted to permanently replace striking workers. In issuing this Executive Order the President recognized that workers have few powerful tools at their disposal. The right to strike is one of those tools. Permitting employers to permanently replace striking employees throws the labor system out of balance. The Executive Order restructures that imbalance.

Second, the striker replacement provision of the Labor and HHS appropriations bill seeks to obstruct implementation of this vital order. Therefore, I oppose the motion to proceed to the Labor, Health and Human Services appropriations bill until the striker replacement provision is struck from the bill. There are several reasons why this provision should be struck.

First, product quality will be jeopardized if Government contractors are permitted to permanently replace striking workers. Firms which permanently replace their workers have, by definition, terrible management-labor relations. This in turn creates a poisonous atmosphere which can't help but damage product quality.

Second, quality and workplace safety will also be threatened. Replacement workers possess fewer skills and less experience than the strikers whose positions they fill. The President has a responsibility to ensure that Federal contractors provide a safe working environment as well as only the highest quality goods and service. This Executive Order will help achieve those goals.

September 28, 1995 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S14451

This week the Senate debated and passed a budget resolution that would cut education by 33 percent over the next 7 years while delivering a tax cut before the next election. During the debate, I, along with Senators Harkin, Kennedy, and others, offered an alternative that better fits with what the American people want. We proposed to protect the 2 percent of the budget now devoted to education by providing a smaller pre-election tax cut.

Unfortunately, our proposal to protect education was voted down, and today we are considering an appropriations bill that takes the first step to implement the wrongheaded budget plan that passed. Specifically, the bill cuts $2.1 billion in fiscal year 1996 from the discretionary education budget. It cuts antidrug education in the schools, magnet schools, adult literacy funds, and grants to improve the academic programs at 2- and 4-year colleges that are strapped for funds and that serve many lower-income students seeking to improve their economic independence. In short, it takes a $2.1 billion step backward while everyone knows we have to press forward in the current economic climate. Because of these cuts, I am opposing the motion to proceed to this bill.

Many of our constituents have felt the sharp edge of economic downsizing. In the government sector, we are cutting the Kennedy dyspepsia. The private sector has done even more to downsize and cut benefits. Traditionally, Americans have relied on a system of public education and college assistance to prepare them and their children to weather such transitions and gain economic independence. We learned after World War II that it pays to help people attend college, and we have learned for more than the past century that free public schools are essential.

Congress now seems to have forgotten these lessons of history, despite continuing evidence that education spending has been critical for economic growth. The Department of Labor estimates that 20 percent of U.S. economic growth since 1963 has stemmed from increased education in our work force. Where would our country be now, relative to Japan and Europe, if its economy were that much smaller? Congress should be ensuring that the engine of growth in the future, not fighting to cut education and give families making over $100,000 per year a tax cut before the next election. After rushing to bail out Mexico and refusing repeatedly to stop exporting American jobs, we should now work hard to invest in the future, not to give away the public store as a political goodie.

On the individual level, too, voters know the difference for the future. A recent study of identical twins found that the more educated twin makes 13 percent more on average. Why is this Congress implementing plans to cut back on the achievement of the 44 million children in U.S. public schools and the more than 6 million college students receiving student financial aid in order to quickly provide tax cuts to a smaller set of people who already have made it? No political payoff is worth such a plan that will hurt individual achievement and the economic potential of this Nation.

Aside from denying history and current research, this plan flies in the face of the basic facts about school enrollment and achievements. It is ironic. The number of children is rising. There will be 5 million more children in school in the United States 7 years from now. Thus, public school attendance will rise more than 10 percent, but Congress would contemplate cutting by 33 percent. At the college level, not only are enrollments rising, tuition is going up faster than inflation while we debate $10 billion in cuts to student aid on reconciliation.

I do not know what else I have to say to prove that the education part of the current budget plan is perverse. We do not need a pollster to tell us that it is not the best effort that this Congress should make for the people. The average voter probably would find it hard to believe that we are really pursuing it. Far from keeping a Contract With America, this bill represents a broken promise to educate our children.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today to urge the Senate to prohibit a strike, from the bill. There are several reasons why this provision should be struck. First, product quality will be jeopardized if Government contractors are permitted to permanently replace striking workers. In issuing this Executive Order the President recognized that workers have few powerful tools at their disposal. The right to strike is one of those tools. Permitting employers to permanently replace striking employees throws the labor system out of balance. The Executive Order restructures that imbalance.

Second, the striker replacement provision of the Labor and HHS appropriations bill seeks to obstruct implementation of this vital order. Therefore, I oppose the motion to proceed to the Labor, Health and Human Services appropriations bill until the striker replacement provision is struck from the bill. There are several reasons why this provision should be struck.

First, product quality will be jeopardized if Government contractors are permitted to permanently replace striking workers. Firms which permanently replace their workers have, by definition, terrible management-labor relations. This in turn creates a poisonous atmosphere which can't help but damage product quality.

Second, quality and workplace safety will also be threatened. Replacement workers possess fewer skills and less experience than the strikers whose positions they fill. The President has a responsibility to ensure that Federal contractors provide a safe working environment as well as only the highest quality goods and service. This Executive Order will help achieve those goals.
Third, the President’s order sets a high standard for cooperative labor-management relations at a time when the increasingly competitive global economy demands it. Management and labor must join in a common quest to produce a product at a competitive price. Hopes for that kind of cooperation are dashed when management permanently replaces its employees. The President’s Executive Order puts the Federal Government on record opposing such tactics.

If our Republican colleagues succeed in blocking the President’s Executive Order on permanent replacement workers, they will send a message to ordinary Americans. And that message will be that if you are in business and prosper, you can pay and benefit, they could lose their jobs—solely for exercising their fundamental right to strike. They will send a message that the Federal Government rewards with Federal contracts who create hostile work environments. Basically, they will send a message which tells working Americans, “tough luck.”

That is the wrong message to send. The point has been made by a bipartisan American labor policy for six decades. It is illegal to fire an employee for exercising that right. Permanently replacing strikers is a loophole in the law. With the striker replacement provision, we would permit the Federal Government to take advantage of a loophole which allows employers to circumvent the law.

What is the right message to send? That the Federal Government recognizes and respects the law. That we want to help American workers.

Several labor-related Executive Orders made by Presidents Reagan and Bush provide ample precedent for President Clinton’s action, and I hope my colleagues will support the President and do something positive for working Americans.

I urge my colleagues to join me in opposition to the motion to proceed to the Labor, Health and Human Services Appropriations Bill until this provision is stricken from this bill.

Mr. SIMON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. SIMON. If there is no demand for time on the Republican side, I yield myself 8 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, let me comment on two aspects. One is the intrusion of the striker replacement into this, and then on the dollars themselves.

What we know from studies, and particularly the Harvard study, is that union workers by and large are more satisfied, and more satisfied workers produce quality work, and that union workers stay at a job longer.

This moves us in the opposite direction. That we need in our society is balance.

I see the distinguished senior Senator from West Virginia. He has seen more of our history and certainly studied it more than I have. But over the years, since the 1930’s, we have tried to have a reasonably good balance. Frankly, when there is a Republican President, the National Labor Relations Board tilts a little bit in the direction of the management. When there is a Democratic President, it tilts a little bit in the direction of labor. But when President Reagan came in—and he did many good things—the balance was lost. And while, for example, at one time the Governor of West Virginia was both about 33 percent of our work force belonging to labor unions, Canada has gone up to 36 percent, and in the United States, we are down to 16 percent. And if you exclude the governmental unions, it is down to 11.8 percent.

It was very interesting for me to pick up the New York Times and read an article by George Shultz, who most recently was Secretary of State under a Republican administration but at one point was Secretary of Labor, and George Shultz said things are getting out of balance; we have an unhealthy small percentage of our work force belonging to labor unions.

Now, part of the balance was self-restraint. Through most of our history, no industry just permanently replaced strikers. And then we have had a few instances of it. Greyhound did it, and we had Bridgestone/Firestone, and that came up on the floor of this body. It is very interesting because Bridgestone/Firestone is a Japanese-owned corporation today. Permanently replacing workers in Japan is illegal, but they did it with their United States entity. The only places where it is legal in industrialized democracies are Great Britain, Hong Kong, Singapore, and the United States of America. In all the other Western European nations and Japan, it is illegal.

I believe the President’s Executive order has brought just a trifle amount of balance here. We need more. We need to be doing a lot of things to provide some balance. And what we also have to do as we provide balance is to try to get labor and management working together. I am pleased to say that in the State of Illinois it looks as if Caterpillar is moving toward resolving that problem.

Let me second, Mr. President, talk about the appropriation and where we are. We have under this proposal said—this is compared to the 1995 appropriations, and this is assuming that the Senate bill passes; the House bill is even worse—in the State of Illinois, 42,395 fewer people will be helped.

Let us take West Virginia because West Virginia is like my home territory of southern Illinois—good, fine people but below average education and below average earnings. In West Virginia, 11,413 people will be helped. Let us take Puerto Rico. Mr. President, we forget about here frequently. The citizens of Puerto Rico are all American citizens. They contribute in terms of Armed Forces and bloodshed more than almost all of our States. In Puerto Rico, 39,924 fewer people are being helped. The average income in Puerto Rico is less than half the average income in Mississippi, the bottom of our 50 States. Puerto Rico gets the short end of the legislation stick because there is no one in the Senate to defend them. We have what we call Commonwealth States. Old fashioned colonialism is what it is. One of these days inevitably Puerto Rico will either become part of the United States or a separate country, and that choice I think should be up to the people of Puerto Rico, whatever their decision.

Let us take dollars now. In the State of Illinois, $94,747,000 less than the 1995 appropriation under this bill; West Virginia, $21 million less. This is money for education for people who need help, for summer jobs for youth. Puerto Rico—I mentioned $84 million for the State of Illinois. Puerto Rico, roughly one fourth of our population, $70 million less.

These programs, Mr. President, do good for people. Let me just mention one—title I. It used to be called Chapter 1. This is for the more impoverished children. People say we are not going to solve our problems. There is no question, money alone is not going to solve our problems. But without the resources we are not going to do it.

What has happened to 9-year-old black children who take the SAT? An 18-percent increase in math scores, a 25-percent increase in verbal scores. Those are good kinds of things.

Head Start. I do not know anyone who believes Head Start does not help these young people. I will never forget visiting the Head Start Program in an impoverished area in Rock Island, IL. Almost every Head Start Program, every one I know of, has a waiting list. We are not providing enough help. One group of young people comes in Monday, Tuesday morning; another group; Wednesday morning a third group, and so forth. I asked the woman in charge, what would it mean in the lives of these young people if they could be in here every day instead of 1 day a week? She smiled and she said, “You could not believe the difference it would make in their future.”

Oh, we save money when we do not provide help to them, like you save money when you build a house and you do not put a roof on it. But you do not save money in the long run. We have to invest in our people.

When I was in the fourth or fifth grade, something like that, I read in my geography book that the United States was wealthy because of its natural resources, our oil and coal and all of these other things. And then all of a sudden about 15 years ago, I got to thinking about it. The countries that were rich and getting richer were the United States was moving ahead, much more rapidly than we were—Sweden, Japan, Taiwan, South Korea—why were they moving ahead? They were investing in their people.
Mr. President, the issue concerning the cuts that are in the appropriations bill in terms of education has been debated and discussed. I want to just take a few moments here to put into perspective this whole issue about undermining the opportunities for working families. It is a livable wage in the context of other actions that are being forced on the working families of this country by the majority Members of this body.

We saw President Clinton's State of the Union reports on March 15 of this year when the attempt was made to undo what the President has done to protect workers' historic and legitimate right to strike and to prevent their permanently replacement by Federal contractors.

We have to look at the mosaic that is being created, not only back in March, but during the period of the summer. What we have seen is a basic assault on working families. We have seen the assault on the Davis-Bacon program. Why do Republicans want to attack the Davis-Bacon program? The average income of the Davis-Bacon worker is $26,000 a year—$26,000 a year for hard work. Why are we denying those men and women who are in the second or third most dangerous occupation, outside of mining and perhaps logging, that work on Federal building projects, the third most dangerous work, the opportunity to be able to gain a decent wage of $26,000?

Next came their opposition to increasing the minimum wage. Republicans and Democrats alike have fought for increases in the past. This is not a partisan issue. President Bush signed the last minimum wage increase of 90 cents. Nonetheless, we have resistance to help men and women prepared to work 40 hours a week a week 52 weeks a year to be able to have a livable wage so that they are not in poverty. We heard a great deal about the importance of work in these times. Here are men and women who want to be off welfare, want to work, being denied the opportunity to have a livable wage. That is No. 2.

No. 3. In the budget, the cutting back of the earned-income tax credit. Who does that affect? Needy workers below $26,000, to help and assist them when they saw the increase in the cost of Social Security and expanded family obligations so that they could be able to support their children—a worthwhile program. And yet we find our Republican friends trying to squeeze that back, effectively squeeze it so that working families with less than $26,000 are going to have to pay more in taxes. A tax increase on this working poor.

What do we have yesterday over in the House? We have the Republican proposal to open up all the pensions again, $40 billion of retirees' pension money that will be available to corporate raiders. And what happened in the 1980's when we had the plundering of the pensions. Those pensions belong to workers, not to corporate raiders. Those pensions have been paid in and paid in as a result of sacrificing increases in wages and health benefits. And now under the Republican proposal, we would permit the corporate raiders to reach in there for $40 billion to increase their salaries, their bonuses and their stock options.

There is a continuous assault on the working families of America. And beyond that, Mr. President, is the slashing of the various training programs for workers that have been displaced by defense downsizing, of the mergers that have taken place. We saw just the other day the merging between the Chemical Bank and the Chase Bank, and Wall Street go euphoric in terms of that merger. Twelve thousand Americans are laid off. Who is going to speak for them?

I yield myself the last minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. KENNEDY. I thought I yielded myself 4 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. SPECTER. Senator Kennedy may have 1 minute of my time.

Mr. KENNEDY. I thank the Senator. Who is going to speak for those kids? You cannot pick up a newspaper today without finding massive layoffs, not just of needy blue collar workers, but also the white collar workers and men and women who have worked in these companies and corporations for years. We have to speak for them.

Mr. President, this is just one additional part of that puzzle. This appropriations bill should be stripped of the provisions that are basically an attack and assault on the President's statutory and constitutional rights that have been upheld in the Federal courts. And then we should get about the debate on the substance of the appropriations issue.

Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Pennsylvania, and I yield the floor.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania has 24 minutes remaining.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask my Republican colleagues who may be listening to come to the floor if they wish to speak in support of the motion to proceed.

The distinguished Senator from Wisconsin has asked for 5 minutes, I yield him 5 minutes at this time, with the request to my colleagues on the Republican side to come to the floor if they wish to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Thank you, Mr. President. And I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania very much.

Mr. President, I voted ‘no’ on the motion to proceed to consideration of the Labor-HHS appropriations.

A number of problems in this measure have been highlighted in the debate, but I would like to focus on one...
Mr. President, earlier this month, just a few weeks ago, I had the painful experience of meeting with workers who had just gone on strike against a large employer in a rural Wisconsin community. These workers came to one of the listening sessions or town meetings that I hold every year in each of Wisconsin’s 72 counties.

I would like to read, to highlight this issue, from a statement of Jim Newell, the principal officer for the Teamsters Union, on this issue. I can think of no more eloquent testimonial than the words of Mr. Newell that day, in a small townhall in Wisconsin, just a couple of weeks ago.

He said:

Sir, you have entered into a community today that has been infected with a disease that has become much too prevalent in American society over the past few years. Just a few blocks from here, there are more than 100 hard-working men and women engaged in a struggle with this community’s largest industrial employer. The flashpoint of this struggle, the traditional economic issues of higher wages and benefits—although Lord knows they are desperately needed here and will be at issue before this battle is over.

He continued to say:

This controversy was ignited by issues which transcend price tags; the issues of fairness, safety, job security, and basic human rights, self respect and dignity on the workshop floor.

Mr. President, Mr. Newell continued by describing what is happening all too often across this country in the use of strike breakers.

Three (3) years ago, this community faced a major loss of employment at this facility brought on by its intended closure by a national conglomerate which owned and operated it at that time. The work force gave tremendous concessions, both in economics as well as job security provisions, to allow present ownership to acquire and build the business and to preserve those jobs in the Owen Valley, after we have done our part and contributed to the new company’s success, we are told that some of our basic requests for a return of rights previously given up is somehow un-American in light of global competition and the employer’s interest in maximizing profits.

Mr. Newell described in his statement about the events that followed. He testified that since the confrontation began.

We have not been greeted by any desire from this employer to return to the bargaining table and work out these disputes, but rather by the employer’s unilateral cancellation of the economic sessions this past week and the veiled threat of canceling a third (3rd) session scheduled for the coming weeks. We have seen our lost wages cessing unionized; the unnecessary insulating security guard force. We have witnessed safety shortcuts being implemented at the potential peril of those few who are still working in the plant. And, perhaps most outrageous of all, we have witnessed this employer stoop to the level of enticing high school students—to cross the picket line and perform the work. We wonder what kind of society we have evolved into when schoolchildren can become pawns to break labor disputes.

Mr. President, Mr. Newell concluded with an observation about what is happening acros.

He said:

What is happening in this community today is a microcosm of what has been slowly eating away at the American fabric for years... Progress and efficiency cannot be had at the expense of basic human dignity.

Over the past few days, the workers became aware that plans were being made by the company to bring on permanent replacement workers. Those hired during the strike are going to be considered permanent. The strike ended. There is little doubt that the threat of hiring permanent replacement workers shifts the balance at the bargaining table. That is an unfair leverage that was imposed upon this community. That is not what bargaining is supposed to be about. When one party is given a tool like this, there is little realistic hope that a fair result will ensue.

It may mean higher profits today, but in the long run, it is a bad result for a community, for America’s work force and for our entire country. America’s workers, Mr. President, should not be treated like disposable goods. I yield the floor.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania has 10 minutes 39 seconds.

Mr. SPECTER. How much time does the Senator need?

Mr. SPECTER. I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. SPECTER. I thank my friend and colleague from Pennsylvania for yielding the time.

Mr. President, I urge our colleagues to vote to proceed to this appropriation bill. I cannot recall an instance it may be that we have done it—somebody objecting to a motion to proceed to an appropriations bill. Maybe a couple years ago in dealing with an Interior bill, which I was actually a manager of, that had on it an issue on grazing, and there was some legislation on that bill. Maybe that happened and we wrestled with it for a couple of days. But I do not recall anyone objecting to proceeding on the bill, too.

I have heard a couple colleagues on the other side of the aisle saying they had problems with one of the provisions in the bill relating to prohibiting President Clinton’s Executive order dealing with striker replacements. If they do not like that language, if we proceed to the bill, they have the opportunity to amend it and strike that language if they have the votes. That is fine.

That is the way we usually handle appropriations bills. There are some things in this appropriations bill I do not agree with and on which I plan on having an amendment. Not everything does it committee I agree with. So I understand that that side of the aisle are not happy with the bill or want to see some changes, some amendments. Other people on this side, would like to see some changes. Maybe we can come to an agreement on the one side of this issue, and hopefully pass this bill. We will be running out of time. We are supposed to have all appropriations bills done by the end of this month. We lack two. This is one of them.

Let us find out where the votes are concerning this one provision dealing with the President’s Executive order. The House put in language that denies funding to implement the President’s Executive order, which prohibits companies from hiring permanent replacement workers during strikes. The Senate kept that language in. I happen to agree with that language. Somebody might say, why is that language necessary? Well, the President, by Executive, is trying to pass legislation. I really disagree with that. I disagree with the substance of the legislation, and I also disagree with Executive orders that try to legislate.

In this case, there was legislation introduced that was very high on President Clinton’s priority list. The Democrats controlled Congress for the first 2 years of his administration. They introduced legislation that would state companies from hiring permanent replacement workers during strikes. The Senate kept that language in. I happen to agree with that language. Somebody might say, why is that language necessary? Well, the President, by Executive, is trying to pass legislation. I really disagree with that. I disagree with the substance of the legislation, and I also disagree with Executive orders that try to legislate.

So after the change in the control of Congress, President Clinton said, well, I will bypass Congress and do it by Executive order. Basically, it states that if any company or any branch of any company does any contracting with the Federal Government, therefore, they will be denied access to Government contracts if they hire permanent replacement workers during a strike. That is clearly legislation.

Again, I hope that our colleagues, Democrats and Republicans alike, will take exception to the executive branch if they are legislating. The Constitution, in article I, says Congress shall pass “all” laws. It does not say “some” laws; it says “all” laws. It does not say that if the President cannot get his legislation through Congress he can do it by Executive order. That is exactly what this President is trying to do.

He is trying to legislate. I hope and think that people from the legislative branch would take exception to this. I disagree with the substance of his Executive order or his legislation that he is trying to enact through Executive order.

So, again, I understand and respect that we have differences of views on this legislation. That is fine. I might say it is not totally partisan on this one issue, but we should vote on it. We should legislate on it. If colleagues wanted to pass a prohibition, they should introduce legislation and let Congress work it out. We have the right to pass this prohibition. For Members to say we are not going to take up the Labor-HHS appropriations bill because it has an amendment that we do not like—this bill has total funding, of $263 billion in budget authority for the Department of Labor, Health and Human Services. That is a big bill. To say we want to totally deny taking up this bill because we disagree with one funding prohibition, I think, is not very mature. I hope that we would not do it.

Again, I cannot remember Congress doing it. In my opinion, also, it is not a responsible way to legislate. Congress should legislate and we should enact our will. I should have a chance to offer my amendments on some things that I disagree with and find out where the votes are. Maybe I will win, and maybe I will lose. I doubt, when you have a bill this large, that everybody is going to agree with everything. So we should work together with the hope of being able to amend this bill, and we should finish this and all appropriations bills by the end of this month. I think we are being somewhat irresponsible if we do not.

I urge my colleagues on the Democratic side, all of whom voted against the motion to proceed, to allow us to proceed to this bill and have Congress work its will and hopefully pass this and the Commerce, State, justice bill before we adjourn this month.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 4 minutes 5 seconds remaining.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, it would be my hope that we would proceed to consider this bill. It is, obviously, a party line matter at this point.

As I had said earlier, when the bill came out of the subcommittee, we struck the legislative provisions, because in my view and the view of the members of the subcommittee, we ought not to take up legislation on the appropriations bill. That was the policy of the Appropriations Committee as a general rule on all matters endorsed by our distinguished chairman, Senator HATFIELD. But it is my hope that we will take up the bill.

As a practical matter, it is difficult to proceed to finish this bill before the end of the fiscal year. Certainly, we could not have a conference even if we could finish it on the Senate floor, if this subject is going to be comprehended within a continuing resolution.

I invite my colleagues on the Republican side, who wish to come to the floor to speak in favor of the motion, to do so.

How much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania has 3 minutes 30 seconds.

Mr. KENNEDY. May I have a minute?

Mr. SPECTER. I yield a minute to my distinguished colleague from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I think the membership understands what is at stake. As the Senator from Pennsylvania pointed out, there was a stripping away of all the other add-ons to the appropriations, with the exception of one. There was a refusal to strip that aside. That particular amendment was targeted on the constitutional authority of the President of the United States. And that issue had been resolved in the courts of this country in support of the President of the United States.

So it does seem to me that that issue should be stripped off before we get back into the debate on the other priorities. I thank the Senator for yielding. I join with others in saying that I think Senator SPECTER and Senator HARKIN did as well as could possibly been hoped for in terms of trying to take scarce resources and focus them on education. But I do think that it would be appropriate to have a reexamination of where we are as a nation in the light of the consideration of the appropriations to underscore the fact that this provides billions of dollars less in terms of investing in young people in this country at a time when their needs are as great as they are.

I thank the Senator for the opportunity. I hope that the motion to proceed will not be accepted and that the "no" vote will carry.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I suggest one correction to what the Senator from Massachusetts said, and that is, that all of the legislative proposals were stripped by the subcommittee. When they got to full committee there was a vote 14-12 to reinsert this with respect to the striker replacement.

It was my hope we would bring the bill to the floor solely in the context of an appropriations bill.

I thank the Senator from Massachusetts for his statements about doing the course of the consideration of the legislation. That is fine. I might say the motion to proceed and go ahead with this very important bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 45 seconds remaining.

Mr. SPECTER. I yield the balance of the time to Senator NICKLES.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I want to clarify one thing that my colleague from Massachusetts just mentioned; he said the courts have upheld the President in this matter.

I might mention that the district court upheld the ruling but it is pending still before the court of appeals, and recognizing this case was unprecedented, the district court judge suspended implementation of the Executive order until the court of appeals acts. The courts have not made a final decision.

Many think this is clearly legislation by Executive order, and the President exceeded that. The President has taken several actions by Executive order. This is one. It is not the only one that is really legislation that many feel very strongly about.

We should vote and we cannot vote unless we move to proceed to the Labor-HHS bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 11:20 having arrived, the Senate will now vote on a motion to proceed on H.R. 2127.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the years are 54, and the nays are 46. Pursuant to the previous order, 60 Senators not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was rejected.

Mr. BREAUX. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the time agreement on a motion to recommit is a debatable motion.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the motion was rejected. The reason I did not wish to do that is that it sets a precedent. As long as I have been here, I do not recall us moving to recommit a judicial nominee unanimously reported out of the Judiciary Committee.

The second point that I make to my friend is that I have no intention of doing anything to delay the vote on this motion to recommit.

I would add at the appropriate moment to explain why I believe Justice Dennis is qualified and should be confirmed and why there is no need to recommit. My colleagues from Louisiana, who have a genuine interest in this nomination, are here, and I would look to them to speak to the qualifications of Justice Dennis and why a recommittal motion would be in effect a very bad precedent.

I wish to make it clear to my friend from Mississippi that the Senator from Delaware does not have any other agenda. I do not have any intention of slowing up a vote on this. This is a slightly different procedure from the general tradition of the Senate that sometimes has come up to committee the Senate debates and votes on the nominee. However, I will not object to this motion to recommit Justice Dennis because it seems to me a very strong one.

That is the point we will address this morning. We hope the Senate will agree with us that this is clearly a situation where the committee ought to reconsider the nomination.

Mr. BIDEN. If the Senator will yield without losing his right to the floor—

Mr. COCHRAN. I will be happy to yield for a question.

Mr. BIDEN. The way the Judiciary Committee has operated for the roughly 20 years, I guess, that I have been on it is that the investigative staffs of the majority and minority work together and share all information. I wish to inform my friend from Mississippi that in addition to the Senator from Mississippi and the chairman of the committee, Senator HATCH, the Senator from Delaware has also been briefed on all of the investigatory matters including the one to which the Senator refers.

I have been briefed by the staff on the findings of that investigation, and I was advised at the time I was briefed that no other Senator had requested a briefing, no member of the committee had been briefed, other than the chairman and the members of the committee. I am convinced on the basis of what I heard that the Judiciary Committee should reconvene and reconsider the nomination.

That is the reason this motion is being made. If this were just a debate on the merits of the nominee or the fitness of this nominee on the basis of the record as already made by the Judiciary Committee—whether or not one was being overly represented on the Court—these are all facts that we would debate at that time, and it may be a subject, a proper subject, for discussion at a later time. But this motion is directed to the fact that after this committee reconvened and reconsidered the nomination, information became available which brought into question the fitness of this judge to serve and whether or not he should have disqualified himself from participating in a case before the Louisiana Supreme Court and related matters.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I am prepared to describe to the Senate the basis of the motion to recommit. I have no problem with his describing the qualifications of Justice Dennis and why a recommittal motion would be in effect a very bad precedent.

Mr. BIDEN. The committee has been advised by the staff on the basis of the newly discovered information that Judge James Dennis is a member of a Louisiana law firm that represents 15 of the 17 Louisiana organized crime defendants. The information was not made available to the committee when it made its decision on Judge Dennis because it seems to me a very strong one.

That is the point we will address this morning.
He was nominated by President Clinton to serve on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. That nomination was made during the 103rd Congress, the previous Congress.

The Judiciary Committee had a hearing. The hearing on Judge Dennis appeared. No witnesses appeared other than Judge Dennis, as I am advised. There were four questions asked of Judge Dennis at that time. The committee reported his nomination to the Senate. No action on the nomination during the last Congress, and this year his name was resubmitted to the Senate by the President. No other hearings were held, no other inquiries were held, and he was reported out in due course to the Senate.

One day after the nomination had been reported by the Judiciary Committee, a Times-Picayune story revealed that Judge Dennis possibly committed a serious ethical violation by participating in a court decision involving Tulane tuition waivers under an existing authority that goes way back to the last century in that State. The issue was that Judge Dennis had a son who was given a judicial waiver by a member of the legislature for 2 years going to law school. Then he went to law school for a year, and he was going to go back to law school, and he contacted the legislator who had given him the waiver in the first instance and asked that he be reinstated. There was some question about the extent to which Judge Dennis may have been involved in contacting or trying to influence the legislator to grant that waiver for his son.

Anyway, Judge Dennis knew this story was being written. He had been contacted by the paper. He had been questioned by the reporter. Obviously, it was something that was getting a great deal of attention in the State of Louisiana. This issue had been in the papers. There was some talk about whether this was a practice that needed to be changed, whether it was sort of a buddy system there in the State where legislators were giving friends of theirs tuition waivers. This abuse should be revisited.

Well, that is all really beside the point. The point is Judge Dennis knew he was right in the middle of this story being written, and he did not bring it to the attention of the Judiciary Committee, which was about to take action on his nomination to the second highest court in the land, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit that is based in New Orleans. There is an obligation on the part of the committee's distinguished ranking member of the committee to acknowledge this—there is an obligation and understanding with all nominees who come before the Judiciary Committee in situations of this kind for confirmation for a lifetime appointment to the Federal judiciary that, if they know of any circumstance or facts that would affect the consideration of the committee or the action that the committee is about to take about the nomination, they are obliged and under an obligation to bring such facts to the attention of the committee. Judge Dennis did not do this. There is no question in the record Judge Dennis did not do this.

There is a suggestion that Judge Dennis contacted someone in the Justice Department. I do not have a copy of any of the transcript, whether it was a letter, whether it was a fax, whether it was a phone call. I do not have the phone log or exactly what was said or to whom. But I am advised that there was contact made.

But, nonetheless, the Judiciary Committee proceeded to act without any further information. It was true that this issue had arisen and certainly not of the fact that it was going to be big news in Louisiana. The point is Judge Dennis knew his ethics were in question and did not bring the knowledge of this to the Judiciary Committee.

The ethics of Judge Dennis were being questioned by the reporters who asked the questions. And the reason it was an issue is because the Supreme Court of Louisiana had been called upon to rule on a Freedom-of-Information request where a request had been filed by the newspaper asking legislators to provide records from their offices to show which citizens of Louisiana had been given these tuition waivers by them under the authority of existing Louisiana law.

Well, you can imagine some of the legislators did not want to reveal this information. They did not want to disclose what was recorded. It was filed by the paper, and that was decided in a lower court and worked its way up. It finally got up to the supreme court. Judge Dennis participated in a decision on the issue affirming a lower court decision that the paper had to make that information available.

Judge Dennis did not disclose his potential interest in this case at the time the case was decided by the Supreme Court of Louisiana. He participated in the case. He did not disclose this information to the Judiciary Committee or the fact that this issue was an issue and a controversy in Louisiana that might be perceived as affecting his fitness to serve on the second highest court in the land. He knew—he knew—that he had a continuing obligation to reveal any information to the committee which might affect his nomination or the committee's decision in this case. He had that obligation. He did not report that the story was coming out. He then knew his nomination had been voted out of the committee. There was some communication after he had been report out of the committee and the nomination was pending here in the Senate.

The significance of this story, I think, can be best described in terms of its notoriety and its importance in Louisiana with the headline that was used in the Times-Picayune the next day, drawing attention to this. As a matter of fact, it had in bold headlines: "Hall of Shame, Public Confidence in Judge Dennis Is Destroyed."

I think loss of confidence in a member of the judiciary, of course, affects the judicial system and not just at the circuit court, but throughout the country. The question that I think the committee ought to properly answer, and has not had an opportunity to address in any formal way, is: Was Judge Dennis' conduct an ethical violation? I think it was. I think it clearly rises to the level of improper conduct that would affect this committee's decision to report the nomination to the Senate.

I frankly do not believe after the committee reviews all the facts, hears all the evidence, calls witnesses who are familiar with this entire situation, I do not believe the committee is going to favorably report this nomination back to the Senate.

I am disturbed about is that there has been pressure to call the nomination up, take action on the nomination. I do not want to personally, just because I am from a neighboring State and we have had discussions about whether this is a seat that should be filled by a Mississippian or a Louisiana person—I do not want that to cloud the real issue here, and that is the fitness of this nominee to serve on the court. That is why I have decided to move to recommit the nomination to the committee.

I am prepared to let the committee look further into this in an orderly way and in a deliberate way to determine whether my suspicions are correct, whether the suspicions of many people throughout the Louisiana-Mississippi-Texas area, where this circuit court has jurisdiction, are correct. We have been getting phone calls and letters; people are disturbed about this. And we think that the committee ought to look further into the situation.

The Judiciary Committee ought to be given the opportunity to review its decision and either decide to report the nomination in light of this new information—I think the information reveals that Judge Dennis, first of all, failed to recuse himself properly in a case resulting in such an impropriety as to warrant public disapproval and the disapproval of the committee of his nomination.

Mr. President, I do not know what the procedure is in terms of being able to speak again, but I am unanimous in the conviction that I am permitted to yield the floor to other Senators who want to speak and then to speak again at some point under this motion. I do not want to lose my right to the floor by so yielding. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SHELBY). Is there objection? Mr. BIDEN. Reserving the right to object.

Parliamentary inquiry. The Senator has an opportunity to regain the floor at any time under any circumstance, is that not correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator from Mississippi gives up the floor, it may be rerecognized at the proper time.

Mr. COCHRAN. I do not want to violate the two-speech rule. You cannot under the rules of the Senate make two speeches on one legislative day. Is it because we are in executive session that the legislative day two-speech rule does not apply, I ask the Chair?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If the Senator wants to waive the two-speech rule, he can do that affirmatively without keeping the floor. You can make the unanimous consent request at this time, or—

Mr. COCHRAN. That is why I made the request.

Mr. BIDEN. I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Hearing no objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I love to hear the Senator speak. If the two-speech rule applied to this place, I imagine we would have only one or two Senators who ever spoke. I will be delighted to hear him again.

I would like to make several points to him, and I will not take long. I would like to ask him a question, if I may.

If I may ask the Senator from Mississippi, is it his— I realize there is no unanimous consent in any of this—but just as he postulated what he hoped would happen in terms of procedure here this afternoon, is it the Senator's intention that, if his motion to recommit were to fail, it would go to a vote up or down on the nominee?

Mr. COCHRAN. I have no objection to proceeding to voting on the nomination. As I understand it, though, it would be subject to debate.

Mr. BIDEN. No, it would.

Mr. COCHRAN. I do not want to foreclose any Senator's right by any agreement like that. My personal inclination would be to proceed to vote in due course whenever Senators—if they want to talk about it, they could, but there is no agreement to proceed to a vote at that time.

Mr. BIDEN addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. I know there is no agreement. What I am asking, does the Senator know of anyone who would have an interest in not allowing us to get to a vote today?

Mr. COCHRAN. If the Senator would yield to know Senators are interested in this subject. Two or three have come up to me and said, “You are not going to let this proceed to a final vote today if this motion is defeated?” I said, “I am not going to stand in the way of that. But if you want to speak you can. You have the right to do that.” So I do not know what other Senators may do. I do not intend to filibuster the nomination, I say to my friend.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, let me make a few points before I respond to the specific concerns of the Senator from Mississippi. I am aware that the facts are that to the best of my knowledge, only myself and Senator Hatch have availed ourselves of the investigative report done by minority and majority staff on the question that has been raised by the Senator from Mississippi.

Senator Hatch notified all Republican members on the committee, which is our practice, that follow-up work was conducted on a matter that had come up after we had voted and that professional staff who had done the due diligence was ready, willing and able to brief people on it. My staff briefed the staffs of the Democratic members of the committee.

I will tell you why most people did not think it was so important. Justice Dennis had little to do with Justice Dennis' integrity, competence and forthrightness and ability to be on the bench, but had to do with a legitimate dispute—I guess any dispute between and amongst States is legitimate—about whose seat this should be.

It happens all the time. It happens in the first circuit, it happens in the second circuit, it happens in the third circuit. We had a debate in the third circuit about whether or not a seat should be a Pennsylvania vacancy or a New Jersey vacancy. I am not saying this only happens in the South. It happens all across the country, and Senators fight very hard for the prerogatives of their States to have folks represented on the circuit courts in numbers that they believe are appropriate.

That has, up to now at least, been the major impediment, at least from the perspective of the Senator from Delaware, of Justice Dennis getting a vote on the floor of the Senate.

Having said that, let me speak specifically to the question raised by my friend from Mississippi. It has been argued that Justice Dennis should have recused himself from a case that came before the Louisiana Supreme Court involving a suit by a newspaper against five State legislators.

Under Louisiana law, a judge may be recused for five reasons. I might point out that the Federal rules of recusal, and most State rules of recusal, are not designed to encourage judges to recuse themselves automatically. Otherwise, judges would be able to avoid all the tough decisions. So the presumption is that you should not recuse unless you meet a certain standard.

Let me tell you what Louisiana law says, because that is the law that Justice Dennis, then on the Louisiana Supreme Court, was obliged under his oath of office to follow.

There are five reasons for which a Louisiana judge may recuse himself or herself: First, he or she is a material witness in the cause of action before him or her; second, he has been employed or consulted as an attorney in the cause of action prior to being on the bench; third, he has performed a judicial act in the cause of action in another court; fourth, he is related to one of the parties involved in the suit; or fifth, and this is the important piece here, he has an interest in the cause.

Justice Dennis is making the case that Justice Dennis should have recused himself because of the fifth provision in Louisiana law—that Justice Dennis had an interest in the case because he was on the case—could possibly provide grounds for Justice Dennis to recuse himself from the Times-Picayune case. As the nominee explained to the committee, he had absolutely no interest in the case brought by the Times-Picayune.

Let me go through the facts, because I think it is very important to know what the specific facts are.

For over a century, since 1884, each Louisiana State legislator has had the right to nominate a Louisiana citizen to receive free tuition to Tulane University for 1 year. I might note parenthetically, that this is not something in the last several decades that the press has thought is a good thing. It happens in the last several decades that the press has thought is a good thing. But I do not minimize the importance, the importance, the importance of the right to nominate a Louisiana citizen, no one questioned this practice for a long time. Along comes the Times-Picayune, which is their right, and they wanted to know who had appointed whom to Tulane University under this 1884 law.

Again, no one is questioning whether or not the law of Louisiana permitted a State legislator to nominate a Louisiana citizen to receive free tuition to Tulane University. These tuition waivers are, under Louisiana law, as we understand it, privately funded.

In 1985, Justice Dennis' son—now, this is 1985, 10 years ago—Justice Dennis, received a tuition waiver from his legislator, a gentleman named Representative Jones. At that time, Justice Dennis' son, Steven, was a 26-year-old married man, financially independent of his father, and living apart from his father.

And, I might add, he lived in Representative Jones' district. Now, Steve Dennis received tuition waivers to attend Tulane law school in the years Times-Picayune application for review and refused to consider the untimely application of one defendant who challenged the newspaper's standing. Remember what is being laid out, the predicate: That Justice Dennis committed some act and he did not tell the committee about it, either. First, he was hiding something from us, the Judiciary Committee, and, second, he was hiding it because it was unethical behavior.

I might add, I doubt whether there is a member of either party who would be willing to let his or her reputation be ultimately written in the great book based on only the headlines he or she has received throughout his or her life. I doubt whether there is a single, solitary person who holds public office who has not spoken to an editor and heard the editor say, "I am sorry, BENNETT, but I don't write the headlines." "I am sorry, THAD, but I don't write the headlines." What my good friend from Mississippi means is that somewhere there is Justice Dennis, through written and oral statements to our staff, gave three reasons why he determined that there were no grounds under which he should recuse himself.

One, he had absolutely no interest in the outcome of the only issues before the court. The only issues before the court were the writ of mandamus and attorney's fees. He had absolutely no interest in that at all or in the petition by a later legislature of the Times-Picayune which I do not know means anything, except it is unintentionally, in my view, misleading about the character of Justice Dennis.

Second, his son had no interest in the case's outcome. His son was long out of law school. His son was a married man, 26 years old, living on his own in the district of a legislator who was not named in the lawsuit. What possible interest could his son have had in the outcome of this case?

The third point Justice Dennis makes is that Representative J ones, who nominated Steve Dennis for the tuition waiver, did not have an interest in the outcome of the case.

Let me review each of these reasons and then I will sit down. First of all, Justice Dennis had no interest in the outcome of the issues before the court. He had no relationship to either party, the newspaper or any of the five legislators.

Second, Justice Dennis' son had no interest in the outcome of the case. Steve Dennis did not receive the tuition waiver by a Monroe legislator in 1985. 8 years before the suit was filed and 10 years before it came to the Louisiana court. Steve Dennis had no interest in the Times-Picayune application before the State supreme court because the public record status of the nomination forms had already been reversed. The fact that they were public documents meant anybody could go and find out whether or not in 1985 Steve Dennis had been nominated by Representative J ones.

Further, Steve Dennis had no interest or stake in the remaining issues: The mandamus order for the defendants to turn over the documents or the attorney's fees awarded. The court also awarded attorney's fees to the Times-Picayune.

The supreme court's denial of the Times-Picayune writ application was simply a decision not to review the mandamus and attorney's fees issues at all. The court did not decide any question of law or fact. It established no supreme court precedent that could affect future cases. Nor did the rejection by the court of appeal of the Times-Picayune suit for attorney's fees in any Tulane fees awarding.

Once the court of appeal decision became definitive on March 17, 1995, no writ of mandamus could have been granted that would have provided grounds for nondisclosure by the Representative J ones, or any other nonparty.

Mr. BIDEN. Surely, I will be happy to respond to a request by an adult person for the records, he or she was subject to mandamus and attorney's fees awards against him.

Justice Dennis has explained clearly why he did not recuse himself in this particular case. He made a thoughtful decision deciding all the facts into consideration. And his record shows that he does not have a blithe disregard for Louisiana's recusal law. In fact, there were two cases in which Representative J ones was a party, and from which Justice Dennis did recuse himself. Both cases were bar disciplinary matters against Representative J ones that came before the Louisiana Supreme Court under its original jurisdiction over proceedings relating to discipline.

Mr. COCHRAN. Will the Senator yield for a question on the point of what was at issue in the case before the supreme court? I just a question.

Mr. BIDEN. Surely, I will be happy to respond.

Mr. COCHRAN. One question I have that has not been brought out here was that this suit not only requested a ruling as to these five legislators, but, more important, with respect to J udge Dennis, it involved Tulane's records, as to whether or not they were public records. And the reason this is important as far as J udge Dennis is concerned—and did the committee
Mr. BIDEN. If I can respond to my friend, the factual statement he made about Justice Dennis having been a legislator, that this affected all legislators, and the writ of mandamus would have reached all legislators, is absolutely accurate except for one big problem. That issue was not before the supreme court on which Justice Dennis sat.

Mr. COCHRAN. It was if they did not overrule the fourth circuit. The fourth circuit had reversed the lower court. The lower court ruled that was public property and that all legislators had control over the files that were held by Tulane. And the Tulane custodian of records—Blaine Teeter—on the request of the lower court that, on the request of legislators, she and Tulane would make those records available. So the question was whether all legislators would have this responsibility.

Mr. BIDEN. I may have to respond to my friend, he is again partially correct. That was the issue in the lower court. That was the issue in the court of appeal. But that was not an issue which was appealed to the Louisiana Supreme Court. The Supreme court did not speak to, nor was it asked to rule on, or affirm or overrule the question of whether or not these were public records.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, will the Senator answer one other question?

Mr. BIDEN. Certainly.

Mr. COCHRAN. I do not want to delay this inordinately. I think there is a question that ought to be clarified; that is, at the point when the case reached the supreme court, none of those legislators, except one, had voluntarily requested Tulane to release the information they had regarding the appointments that legislator made to the scholarship privilege at Tulane. That was Peppie Bruneau. The others—even though the court had ruled at the district court level, and the fifth and the fourth circuit, the intermediate court had confirmed were public records—none of them had acted to respond to the Times-Picayune request. And, as a matter of fact, is not it true that it was only after all of these cases had been acted on did the paper realize they had won the case but they still did not have the records, and they had to sue again to compel delivery of the records? They had to sue Tulane because none of the legislators, including Judge Dennis or any of his colleagues who had given out these scholarships, had asked for the records.

So the point is Judge Dennis, in my view, certainly had an interest in whether he acted on it in deciding the case and the ruling. He did not disclose the interest, but he went on and acted on it nonetheless. It seems to me—does it not seem to the Senator from Delaware—that would be a proper inquiry for the Judiciary Committee to make.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, if I can respond, we did make that inquiry and we reached the same conclusion than the Senator from Mississippi. Again, let me make clear why.

First, there was no question. The records were public documents. The issue was whether a mandamus should be issued.

Second, the fact that only one of the five legislators, turned over these records further underscores the point that they were the only five people involved in this matter. No one was asking for, in this court, case records from any other legislator.

Third, the question that the intermediate court responded to differently than the upper court was whether or not the vehicle to get these records from Tulane would be a writ of mandamus. That was the issue; not just how do you get the records. And that issue did not go to whether or not they would have to be produced, but when and under what legal document would they have to be produced. And it says Dennis affirmed the intermediate court's ruling along with five other justices.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for one more question?

Mr. BIDEN. I would be happy to. But let me finish this point.

I respectfully suggest, if the Senator looks at what the law says, what the court had said and what was before Judge Dennis, the matter that concerns him most, as it should, was resolved.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, if the distinguished Senator will yield, the distinguished Senator said that the committee had looked into this issue and had come to a conclusion different from the one I came to.

Mr. BIDEN. Correct.

Mr. COCHRAN. How could you have done that if the information about this nomination to Tulane and the scholarships did not come to the attention of anybody until the day after the Judiciary Committee reported the nomination to the Senate?

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, that is a legitimate question. Let me respond to that. How we do it in every single case. The standard operating procedure is, if we get something that even has the potential color of conflict, the majority and the minority get together. The standard procedure is they go back and investigate. Sometimes we call the FBI back in. "Would you take a look at this? Is it specious? Is there anything to it? Is it real or not real?"

Staff may also call the person making the allegation. And the staff makes a judgment, all different. It is specious, whether it warrants further investigation, or whether or not they have enough information to make a recommendation to the committee.

The third thing we may do is call the nominee. We call the nominee and say, "OK, look. This was raised. Here is the deal. These are the facts as we know them. Explain yourself."

That is what we did here. The explanation was given. The nominee wrote a letter to the committee and he was interviewed by staff. We read the briefs that were filed and the newspaper accounts.

The staff concluded that Judge Dennis made the right decision, that he did nothing unethical.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. BIDEN. Yes.

Mr. COCHRAN. I think the staff has now concluded in another way. I do not know whether there is any evidence that the Senator can give the Senate about what the staff has concluded. There is a statement from a reporter who called and talked with staff members of the Judiciary Committee.

And it says, "At issue is Dennis' vote in a 6-to-1 Supreme Court decision in March to deny'' the newspaper's "request for access to the . . . forms." And it says one staff member says that there was nothing new discovered. Another says there are questions raised about whether he should have recused himself.

So the paper has discovered that committee staff has a difference of opinion. I was briefed and I can say that my impression was there is a serious question and that is why this motion is being made.

Mr. BIDEN. Let me respond to the Senator, if I may. I have not seen today's Times-Picayune. However, it is not unusual for staff, as well as Members of the Senate, to have different perceptions of a given situation but I am not sure that is relevant.

Let me explain the procedure. What happens is the majority staff goes to a nominee and names him, and has been on the staff for a long time, first-rate lawyer. He goes and speaks to the chairman of the committee. Karen Robb, a seasoned lawyer, who has been here a long time, comes to me and says now this is what the facts reveal. I then ask what I expect Orrin also asks: What do you think? My staff shows me the information. I look at it, and I say I think there is nothing here.

The next step in the procedure is to make this information available to committee members directly or through staff. Again, this is standard operating procedure. And I am the one who as chairman initiated this rule. ORRIN has followed the precedent—whatever investigative information we have, from the FBI, from any source, where there is any question raised. We notify members of the committee, and we say, hey, folks, there was a new issue raised or an old issue raised. We have looked at it. If you want to know about it, come here, look at the information.

A lot of this information is FBI-related material on which we only briefly Senators. And a lot of it is non-FBI material, like this on which we brief staff. This is all non-FBI stuff here. It's not confidential.

And so I say to my friend there is nothing unusual about this case. There has never been a time since I have been on this committee that I can think of where we have not voted somebody out and after having voted on it received new information. The most celebrated case? A Supreme Court nomination.

Were we to reopen a full committee hearing and a full committee vote every single time after we voted anybody raised an allegation, we would effectively shut down the nominating process. Every single time, if we had to reopen a hearing, have a new public hearing and have a vote, we, the Democrats, would effectively be able to keep nominees from being on the bench. And the Republicans could do the same. It is just not a way we could possibly operate. Nobody says one other point.

If, for example, we came forward and the information received after we voted we believed was of such a consequence, Senator Hatch and I, or any member of the committee, that it warranted further hearings, we would have them. Case in point: a Supreme Court nomination.

They have to be issues where the staff, Senators, or the ranking member and chairperson, somebody says, "This is a big enough matter to take a look at this thing." Nobody said that here because nobody that I am aware of believes that here. So that is why we did not open up a new hearing.

Mr. COCHRAN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. BIDEN. I will yield for a question.

Mr. COCHRAN. If a member, who is a senior member, of the Judiciary Committee staff tells a Senator like I was told last night, [Redacted] about an issue that the committee had had the information that came to light after the nomination had been reported, the committee would not have reported the nomination, does that not seem to the Senator to be sufficient grounds to request reconsideration of the issue by the committee?

Mr. BIDEN. The answer is no, if in fact the chairman of the committee, the ranking member of the committee and other members of the committee who had that information made available to them did not reach that conclusion.

I am confident that I could find in the Agriculture Committee, in every other committee here, a staff member who would say after we voted something out, if they knew all of that information they probably would not have voted that way. If we operate with that as the basis for whether or not it is worthy to refer back to a committee a nomination or a piece of legislation that we have voted on, I get very factious.

Again, I am not in any way—please let my colleague understand and the record show—I am not in any way ques- tioning the motivation of my colleague from Mississippi. What I am suggesting is that a close look at the facts and the law makes an overwhelming and compelling case that Justice Dennis did exactly the right thing when he concluded that there was no need to recuse himself.

I see my other friend from Mississippi and my two colleagues from Louisiana, who are very interested in this, are here. I will be available if they want to ask me any more questions.

So I will yield the floor and stand ready to answer questions if anybody has them.

Mr. J JOHNSTON. Mr. President, I have looked into this matter in great detail, and I think the Senator from Delaware is exactly correct. I have read the decisions and read the letters. I think he is exactly correct. I must say that it is a very fine legal point. Even with what my friend from Mississippi said, it is hardly the kind of matter that the court ought to deny a person a role on the court.

The question of whether or not this issue was really at issue before the supreme court—[Redacted]—this had not been appealed on actually what we call a writ of certiorari. So this question was not really before the supreme court. What was really before the supreme court was whether the Times-Picayune was entitled to its attorney's fees and whether or not the writ of mandamus was premature.

But, Mr. President, I daresay, if we gave our colleagues a pop quiz on this question nobody, save those at least on the floor, could answer the question, it is such a complicated legal matter.

Suffice it to say the matter has been, I believe, effectively and thoroughly decided by the Judiciary Committee. This matter was pending for a long time. I really do not think that is the real issue behind whether Judge Dennis ought to be on the fifth circuit or not.

Mr. President, the real question is should Judge Jim Dennis be on the circuit court of appeals? Mr. President, I have known him for over 30 years. We served in the State legislature together. He is one of the most distinguished jurists the State of Louisiana has ever produced. His life has been marked by excellence in every single thing he has done. In law school, he was in the Order of the Coif; that is, a top scholar. He was on the Law Review, again a top scholar.

He was in the State legislature, where he made an outstanding record. He has been on the bench in every level—the district court, the court of appeals, and the supreme court—for many years. He is one of those gifted legal scholars who can write things in ways that are clear and he can marshal the English language and make it march, as someone said about Winston Churchill. He is that good, and recognized as such. He was a favorite of both the bench and the bar in Louisiana. Mr. President, he would be an enormously popular judge.

Now, he has certainly come within the cross hairs of the Times-Picayune, no doubt. I must say, he is in very good company in that, Mr. President. You see, Paul Tulane, when he made his bequest to Tulane University, went to the legislature and said, "We want a little financial help. Will you pass a law that says legislators are entitled to name people to Tulane tuition free?"

The legislature passed that law over 100 years ago. For over 100 years, it was in place in Louisiana and never questioned. I think my colleague said for 80 or 90 years. No, it was for over 100 years. But it has to be a real hot issue with the Times-Picayune. They have gotten Members of Congress in both Houses, in both parties—some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle and in the other party are also in these cross hairs—and a former Republican governor, one of the most honest and best we ever had, in my view. I liked him a whole lot. All of you know him and served with him. He is one of those in the cross hairs. Also a State treasurer and State legislators in both parties. We submit to this law. It is a legal, ethical, proper thing. That is really what is involved.

The Times-Picayune, though, has a good story, and they are pursuing it. This judge ruled against them. I do not know whether that has anything to do with it, but I will tell you one thing: If this were an opinion, rather than a newspaper story, they would certainly be recused because they certainly had an interest in this matter.

Be that as it may, Mr. President, this is a good Judge. He is a good man. This is a complicated legal question.

The staff has looked at it, majority and minority. Look, it is not something where Joe Biden is our Democratic head of this thing, and sort of squelched this matter. That is not it at all. Mr. President. That is not it at all.

This is a good man. He is not ethically deficient, I can guarantee you that. He ought to be confirmed to the fifth circuit. He deserves it.

Mr. LOTT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. LOTT], is recognized.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I will rise in support of the motion to recommit the nomination of Justice James Dennis to be a member of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals back to the Judiciary Committee for further review. And I also am going to go ahead at this time and express my opposition to Judge Dennis for other reasons. I think clearly this nomination has not been sufficiently and properly reviewed by the Judiciary Committee.

There has been information that has been unearthed so far. This motion was approved by the Judiciary Committee in July that has not been reviewed by the full committee, by many members of the committee.
As a matter of fact, I understand from what was said a few moments ago, that while the Senator from Delaware reviewed the accusations with regard to the Tulane matter, and perhaps the chairman of the committee, Senator HATICK, and I reviewed it, as a matter of fact, what happened after the information was given to the Judiciary Committee, I understand, is the staff sent a letter to Judge Dennis asking him to respond. Then there was a conversation by telephone regarding the alleged on top of that was that actually having an opportunity to interview him in person.

He did not come back before the committee. And, as a matter of fact, the staff members on the two sides of the committee do not agree on what we should have done or how this matter was handled by Judge Dennis.

So I do think there is very good reason to recommit this nomination. Before I talk about the specifics of the case, I note that, in my view, the Senate Judiciary Committee, I think, perhaps gave some nomination only cursory consideration. When the hearings were held, only five questions were asked of this nominee, and only one member asked the needed.

So I really would have thought since there have been questions raised about this nominee almost from the beginning—in fact, I think from the beginning—that there would have been a fuller more complete process. And I think about how that would have been asked. And the questions certainly did not go into much probing detail. So I think just on that basis there is justification to ask the Senate Judiciary Committee to review the matter further.

The committee staff that conducted the investigation in this case, as I understand it, determined that Judge Dennis should have recused himself in this matter. Now, at least on the majority, that is the information that I received. So maybe there is a disagreement by the staff on the other side. But I wonder, when you have staff coming to that conclusion that he should have recused himself in this case involving Tulane University and the scholarships should not the full committee have reviewed their recommendation?

This matter was reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee on July 20, 1995. It was 3 days later that this matter appeared in the Times-Picayune. I believe Senator COCHRAN, not Cochrane, already asked that this be printed in the RECORD. He has not.

I ask unanimous consent that the Times-Picayune article of Thursday, July 23, be printed in the Record in its entirety.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Times-Picayune, July 23, 1995]

JUDGE DEFENDS HIS TULANE RECORDS VOTE
(By Tyler Bridges)

What the Supreme Court justice accused Dennis, whose son obtained a tuition waiver, of is that he did not come back before the Senate Judiciary Committee last week to respond to a request by the Times-Picayune for review of a lower court decision in the newspaper's suit seeking access to five New Orleans legislators' Tulane scholarship nomination forms.

The newspaper subsequently received the scholarship nomination forms of all Louisiana legislators by filing a subsequent lawsuit against Tulane.

The records obtained from that suit showed that Stephen Dennis was awarded Tulane tuition waivers for three years in the late 1980s by then-state Rep. Charles D. Jones, D-Monroe.

An associate justice of the Louisiana Supreme Court since 1975, James Dennis last year was nominated to a federal judgeship by President Clinton and subsequently sent to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday night and may now go to the Senate floor.

But Dennis now faces strong opposition from Mississippians' two senators, who argue that an appointee from their state deserves the judgeship and that Dennis is soft on crime. The appeals court hears cases from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Prior to his election to the Louisiana Supreme Court, Dennis, 59, a native of Monroe, was a state district judge, an appellate judge, and a state representative.

The Tulane scholarship that Dennis' son received is awarded under a century-old program that permits legislators to award a tuition waiver every year.

Jones, now a state senator, declined to explain why he nominated Dennis for the waiver.

In a written statement to the newspaper, Dennis said that his son in 1985 had sought the scholarship on his own, "without my suggestion or help . . . At that time, Steve was 26 years old, married, and a resident of (Jones') district. He and his wife were struggling but fully self-supporting and financially I asked Steve to assist Brother Dennis in going to law school because of my obligations of support owed to my wife and three younger children. I did not ask (Jones') one to nominate Steve for the waiver. I believe that the nomination was made on the basis of Steve's academic record, his financial need of educational assistance and his outstanding extracurricular and other achievements."

Dennis in March 1995 voted in the majority of a 6-1 decision to deny The Times-Picayune's request for review of the newspaper's suit against the New Orleans legislators.

In a written statement to the newspaper, Dennis said the case did not pose a conflict of interest for him because the appeals court already had upheld The Times-Picayune's primary contention that the nominating forms were a public record. Dennis said further that the "collateral issues" raised by the Times-Picayune's request for review was not warranted.

While the appeals court upheld the newspaper's position that the forms were public records, it also ruled that legislators were not required to turn over their scholarship nomination forms from Tulane if they did not have the forms in their possession. This issue was important to the newspaper because numerous legislators had declined to identify their recipients, no longer held the forms themselves and had declined to get the forms from Tulane. In fact, even after the appeals court ruling, four of the five defendants refused to obtain their forms from Tulane and make them public.

"I did not participate in the outcome of the only issues to come before the Supreme Court," Dennis wrote the newspaper. He would not answer questions beyond his written statement.

Under the Louisiana Code of Civil Procedure, a judge may recuse himself when he is biased, prejudiced or interested in the cause or its outcome or biased or prejudiced toward or against the parties. . . . to such an extent that he would be unable to conduct fair and impartial proceedings.

After the Supreme Court denied the Times-Picayune's request for review, the newspaper filed suit to force Tulane to release the forms of all Louisiana legislators. Civil District Judge Gerald Federoff ruled in the newspaper's favor in June, and Tulane released the records that month.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, so it was 3 days after the committee had acted when this whole issue started coming to the forefront and questions were being raised about Judge Dennis and his involvement in that ruling on the Louisiana Supreme Court.

Clearly, while you can argue that it came to the supreme court in a very narrow way, I think clearly this is a question of judgment. That is very key here. We are fixing to put a nominee on the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, a Federal court, for life, and a nominee's judgment is very critical in whether we vote for or against him.

He knew about the practice in Tulane. He knew about the Times-Picayune investigation. He had, in fact, participated in this process. I do not judge it, prejudge it, or condemn it. I know it went on. What was really involved here was a decision about whether or not this information should be made available, as I understand it. Clearly, he had had an involvement as a legislator and his son had been involved. It appears to me judgment would have dictated that he would have recused himself.

As a matter of fact, the Louisiana rules of court, canon 2 says:

A judge should avoid impropriety and the appearance of impropriety in all activities.

Surely there was at least an appearance of impropriety in this matter.

I have experienced some unusual things with respect to this judge. In the 7 years I have been in the Senate, this is, I think, maybe the only second time I have spoken against a judge, the only time where I have gotten into it to the degree that I have on this one. So it is unusual for me, and I do not take great pleasure in it. I am sure he is a fine man with a good education. Obviously, he is a good friend of the senior Senator from Louisiana and Senator Breaux from Louisiana. They are both outstanding Senators and good personal friends. I do not make any pleasure in raising questions about a judge that they are recommending. There is nothing personal involved with them. In fact, I will always bend over to try to be cooperative with these two fine Senators.

But in this case, I think there are many reasons why this nomination should be recommitted to the committee and, furthermore, why this judge should not be approved for the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals.
September 28, 1995

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE S 14463

Louisiana from all stations in life saying that this nominee should not be confirmed—small business men and women, executives of corporations in Louisiana, just private citizens, prosecutors. We have a file that is probably 6 inches thick of letters from people raising questions about the qualification of this nominee.

I have been struck by that. I started off, quite honestly, being opposed to this nominee because it did damage to the proper balance on the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals. But as I got into the merits, or demerits, of this nomination, I found that there were a lot of questions that surrounded this nominee.

I am just going to read some of the excerpts from some of the letters I received. One says:

As a justice on the Louisiana Supreme Court he has been notorious for writing law from the bench. His actions have had a serious negative impact on the Louisiana economy.

This is a person who apparently is in the printing business.

Another one from the Louisiana Association of Business and Industry. I just pulled this from this letter:

In the area of expansion of government, taxation and tort law, he is far out of touch with both legislative intent and the sentiments of most Louisiana citizens.

From a college official, it says:

Justice Dennis is an enemy of not only small business, but of Louisiana’s workers’ compensation program.

From an attorney:

Justice Dennis is the type of judge who is not content with following and applying the law to the facts of the case before him. Rather, he is the kind of judge who desires to bring about a specific result, and then conjures up dubious theories of law to reach that result. Justice Dennis is not the kind of judge who hesitates to “make law” when existing law does not suit his philosophy.

I think one of the most striking things came from an assistant district attorney in Louisiana who has had obvious experience in criminal law practice in Louisiana. His letter was lengthy and gave example after example, citing specific cases where this is a judge that he felt should not be moved to a higher court.

I will read two paragraphs from his letter:

I have been a violent crimes prosecutor for the past 20 years, beginning as an assistant district attorney in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, in 1974. Also for 2 years, I was dispatched all over our State prosecuting as an assistant attorney general. For the last 12 years, I have been the chief felony prosecutor in the rural but large parish of St. Landry, which lies between Baton Rouge and Lafayette. I wholeheartedly agree with statements that I have seen ascribed to you that James Dennis is a bright jurist, and you will see it in his opinions. They are very interesting in the way they are written. However, the intellectual energy he devotes to the law fails to lead to consistent rulings of justice and compassion for the victims of crime. You do not need to look far to see that when it comes to ruling on violent crimes, Judge Dennis is not the victims’ judge.

So I would like to cite some of the cases that I think are really important.

At 5 p.m. on July 2, 1977, the defendant, Dalton Prejean, and three other people left a nightclub in a stolen 1966 Chevrolet. They had been drinking heavily for the entire evening in Lafayette Parish, LA. Prejean was driving. The vehicle was a four-door State Patrol car. State Trooper Donald Cleveland—the car’s taillights were not working.

Prejean, who was driving without a license, attempted to switch places with an occupant in the front seat. State Trooper Cleveland saw the driver attempt to switch places and ordered the driver out of the car. Dalton Prejean emerged from the car with a .38 caliber revolver and shot Trooper Cleveland twice. Trooper Cleveland later died from his wounds.

Prejean was convicted of first-degree murder in the Fourth District Court of Louisiana and was sentenced to death. Prejean appealed on four issues, including his claim that he was due a new trial because one juror had failed to disclose his relationship with law enforcement officers on the voir dire. Justice Dennis dissented from the court’s refusal to grant a rehearing, arguing that a “proportionality rule” should be applied. That is, Judge Dennis argued that the sentence of death should be imposed on the defendant, the sentence should be compared to sentences in all similar cases throughout the State of Louisiana.
intellectual foundation of Judge Dennis' argument was found not to be proper and it was reversed.

The U.S. Supreme Court has repeatedly affirmed the use of the death penalty, and the U.S. Congress has repeatedly supported the death penalty, particularly on crimes of wanton and reckless violence, particularly against law enforcement officers.

So I thought this was an extreme stretch to try to say that we should have an overruling of the death penalty based on some sort of proportionality rule. We have heard that theory discussed, but it has never been accepted as one we should go forward with.

Now, going to the business area. In a case entitled Billiot versus B.P. Oil, Billiot, while working in a B.P. Oil refinery, was burned with a valve when it failed and sprayed a hot substance on Billiot. His subsequent injuries were not the result of exposure to the substance, but to the heat of the substance. B.P. Oil company sought compensatory relief under the workers compensation law, and punitive damages under a law allowing punitive damages to individuals injured by the storage, transportation, or handling of hazardous substances.

On September 29, 1994, Judge Dennis wrote a majority opinion for the Louisiana Supreme Court on the case. In his ruling he, in effect, interpreted two State laws—workers compensation law and the law allowing punitive damages to individuals injured by hazardous materials to seek punitive damages.

Dennis breathed new and fictional life into a 1914 workers compensation statute by postulating that the exclusive remedy provision of the Louisiana workers compensation law did not apply to punitive damages. In addition, he interpreted that Billiot could sue for punitive damages under the hazardous materials damage law—even though the injury was not caused by the hazardous material.

The impact of this ruling was disastrous for business in the State of Louisiana and equated to the mother lode of case opportunities for lawyers in that State. The landmark ruling did not crack the dike of tort litigation—it blew it wide open, and thousands of small business owners stood downstream of these flooding waters. That ruling was a shining example of judicial activism at work, one where two laws were interpreted anew from whole cloth, creating this new area for litigation.

There are a whole series of cases where Judge Dennis has ruled in ways that can be of great concern to those who are interested in getting fair rulings and doing business. We have a whole list of these cases. I will submit these as part of the RECORD. I think we have about 15 cases.

I ask unanimous consent that the list of cases be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the list was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:
John Dennis is universally regarded as one of the brightest and most effective judges in the State of Louisiana. His opinions as a judge, his record as a voter, and on every court in Louisiana: the Louisiana Supreme Court, the information that we have by stream jurist. I point out that in the 20 cases in which an opinion was published. He voted with the majority in 7,148 cases. That is 93 percent of every case they wrote an opinion on, he agreed with the majority.

All of these judges are elected, from all parts of our State. If he was out of touch with the people of my State of Louisiana, he would have said so. If he was out of touch with the other members of the judiciary, he would not have voted with them in deciding the majority of the opinions in 93 percent of 7,655 cases.

To somehow allege that he is not part of the mainstream I think is totally contrary to the record in the case.

Some say that he is not strong enough on crime, and we have some letters from some nameless people who write and say that he is weak on the death penalty or not good for law enforcement.

I have a letter from the attorney general of the State of Louisiana, the highest elected law enforcement official in our State, Richard Ieyoub. He says:

John Dennis is universally regarded as one of the brightest and most effective judges in the State of Louisiana. His opinions are excellent examples of legal scholarship and reasoning. I have carefully monitored the decisions of the Louisiana Supreme Court relative to victims' rights and the operation of the criminal justice system in general, and I feel very comfortable with the decisions rendered by Justice Dennis on these matters. His opinions on law have generally benefited law enforcement.

One of the sheriffs of one of the largest areas in our State, greater New Orleans, Jefferson Parish, a distinguished sheriff, Harry Lee, who, probably more than any other sheriff in Louisiana, is noted for being tough on crime and good for victims of crime and tough on criminals. Harry Lee, the sheriff, says:

In my opinion, Justice Dennis has done an excellent job, objectively speaking, of law enforcement and individual citizens. He has faithfully followed the law as written by the legislature. He is generally regarded as a fair-minded, scholarly, hard-working and effective jurist. In short, he is extremely well-qualified, perfectly suited, and well able to serve with distinction as a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals.

This is probably the toughest sheriff in the State of Louisiana. Would he say a respected jurist on the fifth circuit is an outstanding person and well-qualified if he was weak on crime and weak on the rights of victims of crime? Of course not. He has staked his public reputation on the fact that this person is just the type of judge we need.

My friend from Mississippi, Senator LOTT, distinguished majority whip, has cited two cases he says are evidence of his judicial activism or taking positions that is not in keeping with what we want in members of the judiciary.

I respectfully disagree with his conclusion. He has been in six cases that he has cited given up exactly the opposite result. He cited one case, the Billiot versus B.P. Oil Co. where victims were protected by the law of the State of Louisiana, and there are some who were penalized because they violated the law of Louisiana and are now raising opposition to Judge Dennis because he interpreted the law as it was written.

When someone disagrees with the law, you do not criticize the judge for applying the law. You try and give the law a change if you disagree. That is what legislative bodies are for. In this case, it was a workmen's comp case. The person was injured and he was injured very, very severely.

The law of Louisiana, the State law passed by a majority of the people in the legislature, allows for punitive damages in limited cases, in limited categories, involving wanton or reckless conduct or disregard of public safety in the handling or transporting or storage of hazardous or toxic substances.

In this case, it involved hazardous material that ended up—because it was mishandled—injuring a person very severely. In this case, the State supreme court said that the law does not preclude a worker from being able to get punitive damages for the wanton or reckless conduct or reckless disregard of the rights of the victim. They applied the law properly and correctly.

It was not a judge's fault, if you will, that the case did not come out as some of the defendants would have liked it to come out. That is what the law said. If Judge Dennis had been an activist judge, he could have said, 'I don't think the law should say that; therefore I will come to a different conclusion.' The exact opposite was true. Not only was he being asked to rewrite the law, he applied the law. For those that do not like the law, go change the law.

Mr. President, it is interesting, that is exactly what happened. They put a question together in the last session of the Louisiana legislature and they got the legislature to change that law because they made the argument, and a number of the members of the legislature agreed with them, that the law was too generous in that opinion—not mine, but in theirs. They changed the law.

But you do not get mad at the judge for interpreting it correctly. If you do not like the law, you think it is not correct, you change the law. Do not criticize the judge who carefully interpreted it. That is what happened in the Billiot case.

In addition, the case was decided by a 5 to 2 decision of the supreme court of the State. Were all the judges wrong? I think not. I think they correctly interpreted the law as it was.

The State versus Prejean case that the distinguished Senator LOTT cited, Justice Dennis voted merely to grant the defendant a rehearing based on a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision that set out the parameters under which a death penalty can be instituted by court. The only thing that Judge Dennis was saying is that he wanted to have a rehearing in light of the new supreme court decision to see if it affected this particular case. It has nothing to do with Judge Dennis' support of the death penalty or being tough on crime.

In fact, I point out that Judge Dennis has repeatedly voted in court to uphold the death penalty. Since the death penalty was reinstated, Louisiana Supreme Court has heard or directly appealed the capital cases of some 98 defendants, affirming 84 percent and reversing 16 percent of those capital convictions on lower court. Judge Dennis sat on 93 of those cases and voted to confirm the convictions 80 times, 86 percent, just about the same average of everybody else on the court.

In the cases where Judge Dennis has dissented, it is interesting here because if you say that he is out of step with the majority of the court, he clearly is not. When he has dissented, however, his dissent has been upheld by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge Dennis, the facts speak, authored the dissenting opinion in six cases since he has been on the supreme court. In six cases he dissented from the majority, six cases, three subsequently reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court, in all six cases, the U.S. Supreme Court reversed the Louisiana
Supreme Court. It said, "Justice Dennis, you are right. The supreme court of your State made an error in all six cases."

I think when you look at this man's record, his distinguished record in every court. In Louisiana, I think you would have to go back to him to find that this person deserves a seat on the fifth circuit court of appeals. He would make an outstanding judge, an outstanding jurist, as he has all his life.

I want to go into an argument as to whether it should be a Mississippi judge or a Louisiana judge for this vacant seat because I think the record is clear. You determine what area justices come from based on the caseload. I think the caseload between Texas and Louisiana and the State of Mississippi is very clear; very, very clear. I do not think there is even an argument. This vacancy should be from the State of Louisiana.

In 1993, the last year we had numbers, there were 1,309 appeals filed from district courts in Louisiana to the fifth circuit court of appeals. There were only 450 appeals filed from district courts in the State of Mississippi. That is a 2.9-to-1 ratio—essentially a 3-to-1 ratio. If the present vacancy is filled with Judge Dennis, Louisiana would have six seats on the fifth circuit; Mississippi would have two seats, a 3-to-1 ratio. The ratio is as close to being proper, when you look at the caseload, as is reasonably possible to remain.

Louisiana has 34 active and senior district judges in our State. Mississippi has only 10 district judges, a 3.4-to-1 ratio.

So, when you look at very objective numbers on where should this seat come from, I think it is very clear that the caseload and the number of judges clearly indicate that a judge from Louisiana is the proper recommendation.

Second, I would argue very strongly, and I think it is very clear, the back ground, the history of this judge has been carefully, carefully scrutinized by the Judiciary Committee, and I think we should all support the ranking member and chairman of that committee in voting against the motion to recommit. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks recognition?

The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. Cochran].

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I understand there may be one or more other Senators who wish to speak to this motion to recommit the nomination, so I will yield to any of you.

The case proceeded to a trial. The legislators refused to provide the information, so a district court judge at the trial level ruled that these records were public. The legislators and public access was a matter of right.

A second question that had been asked—and relief demanded—was that the legislators be made to turn over those documents to the newspaper. The district court held that the judge had made a part of its judgment an order granting a writ of mandamus. A writ of mandamus requires a public official to do what they ought to do under the law. Having ruled that this was public information, public records to which the Times-Picayune were entitled, the court followed it to the next step and ruled that the legislators who had access to these documents should be required to turn them over to the newspaper. And the judge also ruled that they were entitled to attorneys' fees. So the case, because the legislators disagreed with the ruling, was appealed to the next step. It was a fourth circuit court of appeals in the State of Louisiana.

That court decided the district court had ruled correctly in the first instance, that these were public documents, but they did not grant the writ of mandamus. So they reversed the decision of the district court as to the writ of mandamus and they also reversed on the question of attorney's fees. So in this situation, the Times-Picayune disagreed with that ruling and they appealed, or filed for a writ of certiorari for a hearing before the State supreme court.

Enter Judge Dennis. Judge Dennis' son had been granted a tuition waiver. Of course his name would be among those in the records held by Tulane University. These tuition waivers had a value to his son of about $60,000. Judge Dennis himself had been a member of the legislature and, as such, had the right to grant scholarships himself when he was a member of the legislature, so the records of his own decisions were also among those records that would be subject to disclosure to the public, not only as a matter of right that the public would have, but as it relates to the responsibility of each legislator. If the supreme court sided with the district court, it would actually rule that the legislators were required to make this information available on request to newspapers such as the Times-Picayune. And, of course, the issue of attorney fees was also raised before the supreme court.

Now the Judiciary Committee, not having had any opportunity to see this before it but simply the nomination from the President—President Clinton nominated Judge Dennis in the last Congress—had a cursory hearing. Judge Dennis was asked five questions. There was no witness who appeared for him or against him to testify to any other matters. The committee did not inquire into any of these issues raised by that suit, by Judge Dennis' participation in the proceedings on that suit. Any one had heard about it. Judge Dennis knew about it. He had not questioned by the newspaper about it. He did not tell the Judiciary Committee that.
So the Judiciary Committee reported out the nomination. And after they had done that, then the Times-Picayune wrote this story based on the information they had obtained as a result of this lawsuit and other and independent investigations that had dealt with the propriety of this nomination.

So the issue it seems to me is, whether or not Judge Dennis adhered to the rulings of the courts, adhered to the standards of ethical conduct, adhered to the code of judicial ethics that he had to be aware of, that was in effect at the time, and which is in effect for all U.S. courts throughout the land. I am going to read from canon 1 of the Code of Conduct for Federal Judges.

An independent and honorable judiciary is indispensable to justice in our society. A judge should participate in establishing, maintaining, and enforcing high standards of conduct, and should personally observe those standards so that the integrity and independence of the judiciary may be preserved.

In the commentary below it says:

To the judgments of rulings of courts depends upon public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary. A judge should not allow family, social, or other relationships to influence judicial conduct or judgment.

Mr. President, I submit that the circumstances of this case involving the tuition waivers in Louisiana, the legislators and their rights under the law — this case that was filed asking for information about the records and past practices of legislators was acted upon by Judge Dennis in disregard of the canons of code of conduct of judges — that should be reviewed and considered by the Judiciary Committee.

I am hopeful that Senators will approve the motion to recommit this nomination to the Judiciary Committee to give the committee an opportunity, each member of the committee an opportunity, to become familiar with the facts, to ask questions of Judge Dennis or others who may have information touching on this subject, so that we in the Senate will have a full report and can base a decision about whether or not to vote to confirm Judge Dennis on a full and complete inquiry, which, in my judgment, ought to be undertaken by the Judiciary Committee at this time.

Mr. President, I understand that Senator Kyl is here and is interested in addressing this issue.

I am a member of the Judiciary Committee. But, as is the Presiding Officer, I am a freshman and, therefore, was not present when the Judiciary Committee considered this matter in September 1994. There are five new members of the Judiciary Committee. So roughly one-third of the committee is new and did not have an opportunity to review the application, to question the witness, and to resolve matters that may have been raised at that time.

I understand that most of the questions have actually been raised since then. But I suggest that probably raises the question of perhaps having an additional hearing to deal with these questions.

I have the greatest respect for Senator Breaux and Johnstone, and I certainly admire their support for this nominee. I believe Senator Hatch has thought long and hard about this as chairman of the Judiciary Committee, trying to abide by his commitment to the administration to move these nominees along with a minimum of difficulty. But, given the fact that about one-third of the members of the Judiciary Committee have not had an opportunity to question Judge Dennis, and, second, that the transcript from the hearing where that opportunity was afforded is very meager to say the least, I do not mean perfunctory questions. I do not mean to demean his questioning. They are the same questions that I have asked nominees after I have satisfied myself that they possessed the requisite qualifications for the position. The questions were simply to the point of would he follow precedent, would he abide by the Supreme Court law, and so on. Of course, the judge answered yes. So those five minimal questions really do not establish much of a record upon which to make a decision.

Since then we have these allegations — again most recently in the newspaper — that, perhaps, some very serious questions about whether the judge should have recused himself in an extremely important matter in his own State.

I first became aware of this nomination because of the question in my mind about whether or not the proper relationship of judges in Mississippi and Louisiana was being satisfied as a result of the nominee from Louisiana as opposed to a nominee from Mississippi, and very conscious of the proper relationships that exist within the circuits. We are in the circuit of California, and, obviously, California is a very big part of the ninth circuit. We always want to make sure that we have the proper relationship there, and, if there is an Arizona position available, that position be filled from within Arizona.

I understand that issue has essentially been worked out based on commitments that have been made about future nominees, and I may be wrong in this. But I also understand that Judge Abner Mikva was the person from the White House who wrote the letter expressing the commitment.

In any event, it seems to me, the concern, which illustrates the fact that commitments are important between people, but sometimes circumstances change and it is not always possible to fulfill those commitments. So I thought that was resolved. I am not sure that it is. I would like to satisfy myself on that as well.

But, Mr. President, in view of the fact that these allegations are new, they were not before the committee at the time, and, therefore, certainly the Judiciary Committee cannot be blamed, but given the fact that a third of the committee has not participated in hearings on this judge, it seems to me that we would all be better served by having another hearing allowing the judge to come before us so we may question him about these matters.

And I would feel much better about the decision that I would have to make later on as a member of the Judiciary Committee having that knowledge before me. Then, when colleagues who are not on the Judiciary Committee ask me what I think as a result of the fact that I participated in the nomination process, I would be in a better position to with some confidence say to them I reviewed it, we had him before us, I am convinced he will be just fine, or perhaps I still have some questions about it. But I will not know that unless we have this kind of an opportunity.

So I support the motion that has been made to recommit by the Senator from Mississippi reluctantly because it is more work for our chairman and our committee. But I think that is probably the proper thing to do with such an important nomination as a member of the fifth circuit court of appeals.

Again, I appreciate the Senator yielding the time.
issue was. This is just simply something that has not been discussed around the Senate this year. It may have been remembered by some Senators who were here last year. But it is a matter of first impression, and that is why I am taking a little bit of time to explain why the concerns are being raised and why the motion to recommit this nomination to the committee is being made.

The Senator from Delaware was good enough to discuss this nomination, from his point of view as a former chairman of the Judiciary Committee and his recollections and his information from his staff about this case, but his attitude about it obviously is different from mine on the question of whether or not this is a serious issue and should be carefully considered by the Judiciary Committee after the new information about whether the judge should have recused himself in that case involving the Times-Picayune or whether it was proper for a court to remand a case to a lower court.

That is not the kind of judgment that we want to see reflected by judges who occupy the second highest court in the land.

The Court of Appeals is just beneath the supreme court in terms of power and position in the hierarchy of our Federal judicial system. Most cases are disposed of at the court of appeals level which are appealed from the district court. So those cases go beyond the court of appeals to the supreme court. So this court, for all practical reasons, is the court of last resort for most litigants, and so the power and the influence of courts of appeals are immense in our judicial system.

So those who are nominated to serve on that court should be subjected to the most careful scrutiny to determine their qualifications to serve on that court, their quality of judicial temperament, how they would approach the role of an appeals judge, and third, their adherence to the code of conduct of judges, their own personal judgment about ethical standards and the extent to which they should set a very high standard and an example, so that persons having business before the courts in our Federal judicial system will have confidence in the integrity of the judges, in their impartiality and in their abilities to be able to discharge these responsibilities at a high degree of excellence.

That is a pretty tall order when you have cleared laid out here a situation where Judge Dennis refused or neglected to let the Judiciary Committee after the new information about whether the judge should have recused himself in that case involving the Times-Picayune or whether it was proper for a court to remand a case to a lower court.

That puts at issue the interests of Judge Dennis as a legislator. Forget about the fact that his son has gotten a scholarship from another legislator worth $60,000, and his name is in the records and that will be subject to being produced by that legislator upon request from the Times-Picayune newspaper.

That was the question before the court. He was on the court, and he participated in ruling that they did not want to hear that case. The supreme court did not grant the right of appeal on this case to that court.

And so the net effect was to affirm or not disturb the decision that had been made by the intermediate court. And one aspect of that intermediate court’s decision was not to require legislators to provide that information to the paper. The district court said they had to and they should and granted a writ of mandamus requiring legislators to respond affirmatively to requests and provide that information. They did not have the records in their custody.

The testimony at the trial level from the custodian of records at Tulane University was that Tulane did not give that information was asked for it. They gave the information to the legislators who wanted their records that were kept there about whom they gave these scholarships to, but Tulane was not going to respond to a request from the legislature. And the legislators were not cooperating. They were not asking Tulane to give them the information so they could give it to the paper. So the question was whether these legislators could be compelled by a court of law or under a writ of mandamus to provide that information to the paper when it was requested.

That was the issue. And the distinguished Senator from Delaware says that was resolved before it got to the supreme court. It was, it was decided but it was not resolved.

I wish to read from the brief of the appellants who were asking the supreme court to take jurisdiction and to hear this appeal in assigning the errors committed by the intermediate court of appeals on page 9 of their brief.

Assignments of error. The Fourth Circuit errorfully reversed that portion of the District Court’s judgment which ordered that a writ of mandamus issue directing the respondent legislators to produce to the Times-Picayune those of the legislators’ scholarship nomination forms in the possession of the Legislative Fund in the possession of Tulane University.

That puts at issue the interests of Judge Dennis as a legislator. Forget about the fact that his son has gotten a scholarship from another legislator worth $60,000, and his name is in the records and that will be subject to being produced by that legislator upon request from the Times-Picayune newspaper. Forget that. Set that aside. I am talking about the judge’s personal interest is not the assignment of error. For the Senator from Delaware today that that issue was settled, it was not before the State supreme court, is just not true.

I am not suggesting it is an intentional misrepresentation, but I am reading from the brief where the assignments of error are laid out, and this is to the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana. And all supreme court justices reviewed it and decided to hear it, and Dennis decided to vote on that case without revealing his personal interests, without discussing his personal interests with litigants. That is an erroneous view of the responsibilities of a judge, under my state of reference, with the code of conduct clearly spelling out here about the duty to remain impartial, the duty to disqualify oneself in cases where there is a personal interest. That is a personal interest. The Judiciary Committee did not know at the time it reported out this nomination that this was even an issue. They did not know about this case. They did not know that it was becoming a controversy. After they reappointment in the last Congress did this issue really become public. And because this new information came to light after the Judiciary Committee has acted, it is incumbent upon the Senate, in my judgment, to approach the question to recommit the nomination to the Judiciary Committee and allow Senators like the Senator from Arizona, who spoke, who are new members of the committee, who never had an opportunity to look into these issues, to do so, and, I suggest, to have a hearing, to have a hearing that goes beyond five pernicious questions that were asked of this nominee when he was before the committee in 1994.

The Senate ought to demand that more be done to satisfy us as to whether or not this nominee has the kind of attitude about judicial ethics and personal responsibilities of judges in cases in which they have an interest to determine information to a lifetime appointment on the second highest court in the land.

Mr. President, that is just as clear to me as anything can be, that to require the Senate to vote up or down on this nomination at a time when we have not had a full review of this issue by the committee in a hearing, if that is the disposition of the chairman and other members—and to give them that opportunity, we ought to vote for this motion.

I hope that Senators will look on their desks. I have put a copy or asked the pages to put a copy of an article that was written today by the Times-Picayune on this issue. I did not know the article was going to be written when this was published to be brought up. But it has been written, and we made available copies. There are other newspaper articles that have been published by the Times-Picayune on this issue, and they all point to the fact that the state of reference, with the code of conduct, with the importance and the importance and the importance and the importance and the importance and the importance and the importance in Louisiana.

I think it is a case that we should take a more active interest in than we have up to this point, and hence the opportunity today for the Senate to review the situation under this motion to recommit. I hope the Senate will look with favor on the motion, and I urge approval of the motion to recommit the nomination.

Mr. HATCH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I had not planned to speak on this, but there have been some issues raised by both sides that I would like to clarify and put to rest.

One of the most difficult committees in the Congress is the Judiciary Committee. Its work is very important. We handle the confirmation of all judges in the Federal courts and confirmation of many, many other officials.

Nobody takes this responsibility any stronger or any more significantly than I do. Since I have been in the Senate, 19 years, a high percentage of judges who currently sit on the Federal bench have come before the committee while I have been a member. I consider the review of judicial nominees to be one of the most important functions of the Senate.

The committee has completed its investigation of Judge Dennis and into Justice Dennis’ decision not to recuse himself from a lawsuit involving a Louisiana newspaper. Additionally, we have already investigated the nominee’s failure to notify the committee of the newspaper’s inquiry.

In my humble opinion, a case can be made that Justice Dennis should have recused himself pursuant to canon 2 of the Louisiana Code of Judicial Conduct. I do not believe that he intentionally violated any code of conduct. But, having said that, a case can be made that he should have recused himself in order to avoid the appearance of impropriety.

Now, this is a point Senator Biden and I may disagree on. Nevertheless, so everyone understands this, the committee has completed its investigation. Given the evidence before us, I am not satisfied that this isolated incident warrants Justice Dennis’ disqualification from the Federal bench. In this instance, I do not think it does. Justice Dennis has provided answers on these questions to the Committee. It depends on whether he accepts his answers or not and whether you will give him the benefit of the doubt. I accept his answers.

As chairman, I instructed my staff to offer to brief every member of the committee or members of their staff who wanted to be briefed on this matter prior to it coming to the floor. Additionally, we offered to brief anyone else who wanted to be briefed on this prior to the floor consideration.

I just want to make it very clear that, if the nominee is recommitted, it is my intention that the committee take no further action. I am not going to look into this any further. Everyone knows what there is to know about this. We are not going to hold any further hearings on the matter. If the nomination is recommitted, that is going to be it, as far as I am concerned. Accordingly, I am going to oppose the motion to recommit.

Now, I want to point out that the distinguished Senators from Mississippi believe there is an imbalance on the fifth circuit. I think Mississippi has not been treated as fairly as it should have been. In that regard, I have gone to the White House and made it very clear that the very next vacancy that is created, if we pass a new judgeship bill, that Mississippi is going to get that vacancy. And I will personally try to correct that deficiency.

But let us have nobody miss any bets here. The fact is, there is no excuse for anybody saying that we should recommit this and have rehearings and redo this all over again. We are not going to do that. That decision is going to be made right here, right now. And if the motion to recommit is granted, that is going to be it for Justice Dennis.

I am going to oppose the motion to recommit because we have come a long way. I have seen the judge testify, whether a Republican administration or a Democratic administration, who had some problem in their lifetime that somebody can find a fault with. Some problems are valid to a degree. Judge Dennis claimed that he had voted the right way. Said that it was an oversight on his part, and basically he has an answer for it. Whether you agree with the judge's opinions or not, this justice appears to be an honorable, decent justice.

Frankly, I just want to make that clear so everybody knows as they vote here what is going to happen. There were no dissenting votes against the nominee from the committee. Justice Dennis was favorably reported out by unanimous consent. These questions came up afterwards. The committee reviewed this matter, and we offered every Senator or their staff members an opportunity to be briefed on the findings. I do not think there is any reason for anyone to think that this is something that is a first impression that has to upset this particular nominee.

I am willing to abide by the decision of the Senate in this matter, however I want to make the record clear. I am going to vote against this motion to recommit.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the motion?

Mr. COCHRAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I do not intend to prolong the debate. I do want to make on the record a copy of the newspaper article that has not been printed. I know Senator Lott put a copy of an article from the Times-Picayune in the RECORD. I think he put in the article dated September 25. There is another article, July 23. I ask unanimous consent that both articles, to be sure we have them in the RECORD, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the articles were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Times-Picayune, July 23, 1995]
JUDGE DEFENDS HIS TULANE RECORD VOTE
(By Tyler Bridges)

State Supreme Court Justice James Dennis, whose son received Tulane tuition waivers, said the newspaper, in a suit against the Times-Picayune for review of a lower court decision in the newspaper's suit seeking access to five New Orleans legislators' Tulane scholarship nomination forms.

The newspaper eventually received the scholarship nomination forms of all Louisiana legislators by filing a subsequent lawsuit against Tulane.

The records obtained from that suit show that Stephen Dennis was awarded Tulane tuition waivers for three years in the late 1980s, when then-state Rep. Charles D. Jones, D-Monroe.

An associate justice of the Louisiana Supreme Court since 1975, James Dennis last year was nominated to fill the judgeship by President Clinton. That nomination, to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, was approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday night and now awaits Senate floor.

Dennis, however, continues to face strong opposition from Mississippi's two senators, who argue that an appointee from their state state deserves the judgeship and that Dennis is soft on crime. The appeals court hears cases from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

Prior to his election to the Louisiana Supreme Court, Dennis, 59, a native of Monroe, was a state district judge, an appellate judge and a state representative.

The Tulane scholarship that Dennis' son received is awarded under a century-old program that permits every legislator to award a tuition waiver every year.

Jones, now a state senator, declined to explain why he nominated Stephen Dennis.

In a written statement to the newspaper, Dennis said that he did not want to discuss the scholarship on his own, "without my suggestion or help." At that time, Steve was 26 years old, married, and a resident of his district. He is struggling but fully self-supporting and financially independent of me. I was unable to assist Steve in going to law school because of my obligations of support owed to my wife and three younger children. I did not ask (Jones) to nominate Steve for the waiver. I believe that the nomination was made on the basis of Steve's academic record, his financial need of educational assistance and his outstanding extracurricular and other achievements.

Dennis in March 1995 voted in the majority of a 6-1 decision to deny The Times-Picayune's request that the Supreme Court review an appeals court ruling in the newspaper's suit against the New Orleans legislators.

In a written statement to the newspaper, Dennis said the case did not pose a conflict of interest for him because the appeals court already had upheld The Times-Picayune's primary contention that the nominating forms were a public record. A further review of the 'collateral issues' raised by The Times-Picayune's request for review was not warranted.

While the appeals court upheld the newspaper's position that the forms were public records, it also had ruled that legislators
On Wednesday, Bette Phelan, spokeswoman for Breaux, said both her boss and his son received one of the tuition waivers. "I think it was a good deal," said Stephen Hayes, the senator's spokesman.

Cochran referred to revelations that Dennis voted to deny a request by the Times-Picayune for review of the lower court decision in the newspaper's suit seeking access to Tulane scholarship information; even though his son received one of the tuition waivers. Cochran said that the papers had no right to read the scholarship information, "because of information that came to light after the committee acted," said the senator.

One of the head notes in that case is as follows:

Under the disqualification statute, recusal is required even when a judge lacks actual knowledge of the facts, indicating his interest or bias in the case, if a reasonable person knowing all the circumstances would expect that the judge would have actual knowledge.

It strikes me in reading that and then looking at the underlying decision of the court of appeals — incidentally, this case came out of the State of Louisiana itself — in which the obligation of judges to disqualify themselves in cases in which they have a personal knowledge is one that the court takes very seriously.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the motion to recommit. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Under the previous order, the question occurs on the motion to recommit. The yeas and nays have been ordered.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now resume legislative session. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Mr. DOLE. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now resume legislative session.

Mr. DOLE. I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate turn to the consideration of the State-Justice-Commerce Appropriations bill. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE, JUSTICE, AND STATE, THE JUDICIARY, AND RELATED AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 1996

Mr. DOLE. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate turn to the consideration of the State-Justice-Commerce Appropriations bill. The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, I will just give my colleagues an update on where we are on the items to be completed before the recess. The State-Justice-Commerce Appropriations bill. I understand there is some great progress being made on that bill.

The interior appropriations conference report is coming from the House on Friday. We did have a rollcall vote on the bill. I am not certain we will need a rollcall vote on the conference report. We have had a request for a vote on one or the other. The DOD appropriations conference report is coming from the House Friday. A rollcall vote was taken on that bill, too. If somebody requests a vote, obviously we will have one.

The continuing resolution arrived from the House this afternoon. We hope to pass that by unanimous consent.

Then the adjournment resolution, which I do not think there will be a vote on.

Then the Senate Finance Committee needs to complete action on their portion of the reconciliation package, and I could announce to members of the Finance Committee right now we have staff on each side going through a number of amendments to see if they, staff, can agree, Republican and Democratic staff, and put them in a little "cleared" pile and a "rejected" pile and then "above our pay grade" pile, which will be for Members' consultation. We hope to save a lot of time that way. The chairman has indicated that he will call us back to the Finance Committee meeting as soon as that has been completed.

So it seems to me there is no reason for us to be anything but optimistic about this point. Much will depend on the leadership of the distinguished Senator from Texas [Mr. GRAMM] and the distinguished Senator from South Carolina [Mr. HOLLINGS].

Mr. DASCHLE. Will the Senator yield?

This Act may be cited as the “Department of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1996’.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, we have before us a very complicated bill, a very controversial bill. We are attempting to establish a sequence of activity with a goal of trying to expedite its consideration.

In order that we might try to get all this to come together in an orderly fashion, because I know many of our colleagues hope to gone this week-end—everybody is hoping I would be managing the bill, I plan to be here tomorrow and Saturday, so I am in no hurry; I want to be sure my colleagues understand that—but in order to try to expedite our consideration here, we have put together an amendment that will be offered by Senator HATFIELD, the distinguished chairman of the full committee, an amendment that is co-sponsored by Senator HOLLINGS.

It has to do with adding to our 602(b) allocation; that is, allocating additional money to the subcommittee and then disbursing that money in such a way as to deal with some of the concerns that have been raised against the bill. And so that we could deal with this in as orderly a fashion as possible, I would like to propose a unanimous-consent request that we have opening statements by the distinguished ranking member of the subcommittee, by myself, by any other Senator who would like to make an opening statement; that then it be in order for us to submit for consideration managers’ amendments that have been agreed to on both sides and any debate there might be on them; and then I would like it to be in order for the distinguished Senator from Oregon, Senator HATFIELD, to offer his amendment with Senator HOLLINGS because it addresses numerous issues.

If we do not do it in that way, we are probably going to simply use up time as we try to deal with those issues by one. We can certainly proceed without this unanimous-consent request, but I hope our colleagues will indulge us since our objective is simply to try to expedite consideration of the bill.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, this procedure has been agreed to, so I hope we can proceed along that line.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, would the distinguished Senator from Texas yield?

Mr. GRAMM. I would be very happy to yield.

Mr. BYRD. The distinguished chairman spoke of a reallocation of resources.

Mr. GRAMM. Yes, I did.

Mr. BYRD. The chairman of the committee and the ranking member of the full committee are authorized to approve such reallocation. Nobody has proposed this to the ranking member as yet about such a reallocation of resources.

Would the Senator inform me as to whether or not I am going to be contacted on that matter?

Mr. GRAMM. Well, if I might say to the distinguished Senator from West Virginia, he is not my amendment. There has been a series of discussions among Members. Basically what the Senator from Oregon has been doing is trying to find a way through our impasse.

As I am sure our colleagues are aware, our appropriations bill has $4.26 billion less than requested by the President for our subcommittee. It has $1.9 billion less than a freeze. And it has $870 million less than the House.

Senator HATFIELD has been working with Senator HOLLINGS and others to try to allocate funds to this subcommittee. I was unaware, I must say, that that had not been discussed with the distinguished Senator from West Virginia.

I have an outline of the amendment. But probably what I should do under this circumstance is simply ask unanimous consent that we be able to opening statements, that we be able to proceed. If technical amendments we have agreed to, give the distinguished Senator from West Virginia an opportunity to discuss this with Senator HATFIELD, who is in a meeting with the Secretary of Energy on something very important in his State right now.

When the agreement has been reached and the ranking member, Senator BYRD, is satisfied, then we can proceed with it. And, again, this is not my amendment; I have not been directly involved in it even though I have concluded that this is a prudent thing for us to do.

Mr. BYRD. Well, I certainly thank the distinguished Senator. I know that it is an oversight, an inadvertent one. I want to make clear that such authorizations of reallocation of resources are to be made by both the chairman and the ranking member of the full committee.

And we make those after contacting various and sundry subcommittee chairmen. And I do not anticipate any problem along that line. But I thought I had better make mention of this before it becomes a problem.

Mr. GRAMM. Well, Mr. President, let me just then ask unanimous consent that we have opening statements by Senator HOLLINGS and myself and any other member who would wish to make an opening statement, that it also be in order for us to offer managers’ amendments where we have agreement on both sides of the aisle, and that when an agreement is reached between the distinguished chairman of the full committee and the ranking member, Senator BYRD, that at that point we be in order for Senator HATFIELD to offer his amendment which deals with some 20 different subjects. I think by doing it that way, we can expedite consideration.

So I ask unanimous consent that it be in order to have opening statements, that it be in order for me to offer, on behalf of myself and Senator HOLLINGS, managers’ amendments where there is agreement on both sides of the aisle, and that it then be in order, when Senator BYRD has agreed, for the distinguished chairman of the full committee, Senator HATFIELD, to offer an amendment on behalf of himself and Senator HOLLINGS.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I am not sure I heard the entire request. I apologize to the Senator from Texas. We would certainly have no objection to opening statements at this point. Because no one has had the opportunity to see these amendments, we have had requests on our side that prior to the time we agree to any kind of unanimous-consent agreement which would involve these amendments that Senators have the opportunity to look at them.

So, we would have to object to anything beyond the opportunity to make opening statements at this point.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, we are certainly narrowing it down to opening statements.

So with that, I ask unanimous consent that we begin opening statements and that in order to offer an amendment until those opening statements are completed; at that point—let me state it this way: I ask unanimous consent that it be in order now to have opening statements; that at the conclusion of the opening statements, subject to the agreement of the minority leader, at that point that it be in order for the distinguished Senator from Oregon, Senator Hatfield, to offer an amendment on behalf of himself and Senator Hollings.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, let me try to explain opening statement on a very complicated bill without getting into too many of the details but in such a way as to basically cover the issues that are involved in this bill.

I think there are many reasons why this is a very complicated and a very controversial bill. One reason is money. This bill, probably more than any other appropriation that we will consider this year, has a very tight budget, and that provides $4.3 billion less for Commerce-State-Justice appropriations than was requested by the President.

It provides almost $2 billion less than a nominal freeze in the current level of appropriations for Commerce-State-Justice. And I remind my colleagues that, compared to some of the larger appropriation accounts, this is a fairly small appropriations bill in terms of actual dollar outlays. So when we are talking about a billion less this fiscal year 1996 than we are spending this year, we are talking about a substantial reduction in the ability to expend money for the carrying out of functions in the Department of Commerce, the Department of State, and the Department of Justice.

The bill also has almost $900 million less than our counterparts in the House had. And this is the first point I want my colleagues to understand. When the President presented this bill for not providing funding for purposes for which he requested funding, it is important for our colleagues—and, quite frankly, it is important for those who are following this debate—to understand that this funding for half of this bill was not the President's plan. And this has to be understood under a totally different budget than the President proposed.

Our budget comes into balance in 7 years. Our budget substantially reduces discretionary spending. Our budget imposes very real constraints on spending money.

The President, in proposing $4.3 billion more for these three Departments of Government than we proposed, does so in a budget that will not be in balance by the second coming. It does so in a budget that will not bring the deficit below $200 billion in a decade.

So the fact that the President, in his budget, has for many of the functions that we do not fund is simply a testament to the fact that our budget is a binding budget that is balanced over 7 years and the President's budget is not.

There are several ways to approach the writing of an appropriations bill where you have to cut $4.3 billion. One way—and, quite frankly, in no way being critical, but I want people to understand why this is such a controversial bill—one way is to take the approach which has been taken in most other appropriations bills, and that is to simply take the level of savings that is dictated, nick a whole bunch of programs a little bit and, basically, take the approach that you are going to sort of hunker down and not fundamentally change anything.

It seems to me, Mr. President, that this is roughly equivalent to an action that a family which is running out of money might take at the end of the month: 'We're not going to spend all that money running out of money and what we're going to do is spend a little bit less going to the movie and spend a little bit less on milk for the children.'

As we know, families set priorities. Families decide toward the end of the month when they are running out of money that they are not going to go to the movie, but that they are going to continue to buy their children milk. As chairman of this subcommittee, I decided that if we were shooting with real bullets, if we were going to write an appropriations bill now that set out a path to balance the budget over 7 years, that we ought to recognize, to begin with, that we are going to have less money next year than we had this year, less in each successive year for the next 6 years.

So I made the decision to terminate programs, to set priorities. My original recommendation terminated some 12 programs outright. It also set very strong priorities. It was my decision as chairman of the subcommittee that not all programs in the Commerce, State, Justice appropriations bills were created equally. I believe that the American people have very strong preferences, and what I have tried to do within the monetary constraints that I have had as chairman, and this has been supported by the majority in both the subcommittee and the full committee, is to try to fund the President's effort in fighting crime. I am very proud of the fact that this bill fully funds the FBI and the DEA. It fully funds our efforts to incarcerate violent criminals. It provides for strong funding increases for the critics to be hounded by procurators to provide the system of criminal and civil justice that we need to deal with the problems that we face.

This bill provides a substantial increase in funding for the Justice Department, funding for our effort to fight violent crime, funding for our effort to fight drugs.

I will come back in a moment and talk about how the Justice Department would function, but let me make this point. While we provide, basically, the same level of funding requested by the President, we have in subcommittee and full committee on this bill changed the allocation of funds in the crime area. We spend more money on social programs, we spend more money building prisons. It is a belief of the subcommittee and the full committee that we need to get tough on violent crime, and we try to do that in this crime bill.

The second area that we fund in this bill has to do with the Department of State. I have to say, Mr. President, that I have been somewhat disappointed. I visited with the Secretary of State; I explained to the Secretary of State the simple arithmetic of this bill, and the simple arithmetic of this bill is as follows:

If we provide roughly the level of funding requested by the President for the State Department, we provide funding for half of the increase requested by the Federal judiciary, what that means is, given the amount of money we have left, that we have to cut every other program by an average of 20 percent. This is the cold reality that we are looking at.

I tried to explain to the Secretary of State that that was basically where we were and that that meant that we were going to have to reduce the level of funding for the State Department by roughly 20 percent. That is actually better treatment than we provided for the Commerce Department in this bill.

We have not adopted the authorization bill for the State Department, but a majority of the Members of the Senate have voted for that authorization. It has been filibustered. We have been unable to get 60 votes and, as a result, what I did in writing the appropriations bill is I took the authorization bill which has received a majority vote in the Senate on a cloture motion and I used it as the blueprint to write funding for the State Department.

The basic reductions that occur in the State Department budget have to do with American payments for membership in world organizations. The distinguished Senator from North Carolina, Senator Helms, in his authorization bill, dramatically reduces the amount of taxpayer funding that goes to world organizations to promote objectives that, at least in the minds of the majority of the Members of the Senate, did not reflect the will of the American people.

I think it is important to note, and I would like to be sure that the Congressional RECORD, that despite all of the moaning from the State Department that somehow not a sufficient account is taken in this bill that representing America abroad today is a dangerous business, something that I understand, I appreciate the sacrifice that is made by people who work in the State Department.

As a result, I have fully funded every penny requested by the President in his budget for such expenditures. Even though he spends $4.3 billion more in his budget than we are allowed to spend in ours, I fund every penny the President requests for security abroad for both our Embassies and our personnel.

So the criticism of the State Department that somehow we are underfunding the State Department and the needs of its people is simply verifiably false. This is a tough budget. It does reflect the fact that the American people do not believe that we are getting our money’s worth with all of these world organizations where we pay the bulk of the dues and have a relatively small say in how they do and on how our money is spent.

I think the plain truth is the American people understand that in the postwar period, America has been like a little rich kid in the middle of a slum who has looked at this cake and wanted a piece of it. We literally have run all over the world handing out pieces of this cake. Nobody has loved us for it. In fact, in many cases, they have not loved us, thinking they should have gotten more.

The fundamental philosophy behind this appropriations bill is we need to stop sharing the cake, and we need to start sharing the recipe we used to bake the cake, which is free enterprise, individual liberty, and private property.

So in the State Department appropriations bill, we provide $4.4 billion. The President requested $5.6 billion. Much of this reduction is taken in membership in world organizations. And quite frankly, while this can be debated forever, I would be perfectly content to take my appropriations bill, the President’s budget, to tear the tithe page off, to put each of them on the table in every kitchen of every working American and let them decide whether they want money spent funding the war on violent crime in America, the war on drugs, gaining control of its borders, or, whether they want the money going to organizations around the world where the United States is now a member of these organizations and, in many cases, is paying the bulk of the dues.

I do not think there is any doubt that the American people would choose the position that I have chosen. It seems to me that is why the State Department has not wanted to debate the real issue here.

In terms of the Commerce Department, let me remind my colleagues that the budget that we adopted in the Senate was a budget that called for the elimination of the Commerce Department. I have listened to my colleagues talk about eliminating departments, and I then look at their willingness to vote to actually cut the programs, and I often see a gulf between the rhetoric and the reality. It is almost as if when people are talking about eliminating departments they go down and take down the flag and take down the plaque off the wall, but they want the Government to keep doing the things the Department has been doing.

When we put forward that called for the elimination of the Commerce Department, when the Government Operations Committee reported a bill to eliminate the Commerce Department, I, as chairman of this subcommittee, believed that they were serious. And, as a result, we dramatically reduce spending in the Commerce Department. We set up a procedure to provide funds for current employees, and we provide the mechanism that would allow us, if in fact we pass the President’s bill, to terminate the Department, and to do it in an orderly fashion.

Now, many of the people who voted for the budget to eliminate the Department want to preserve some of its programs, they say. But we are going to have votes on those. There are many programs within the Commerce Department that this bill eliminates outright. But, basically, it is a bill that begins the process of dramatically reducing the level of expenditures for activities where the Government is attempting to pick winners and losers in the American economy. There is a fundamental philosophical difference between the two parties on this issue. The party which I represent—the philosophy I believe in—believes that the market system ought to be the basic determining factor of who gets money to invest; that Government does not have the wisdom to make that decision and, quite frankly, even if it had the wisdom to make that decision, since it is inherently a political decision, it would not make that decision very well.

That is an outline of the expenditures of the bill. As I said, the bill eliminates some, but not all, of the programs from the Minority Business Development Agency to the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration, to the Technology Administration, to the information infrastructure grants, to the Death Penalty Reform and Competitive Policy Council, the Ounce of Prevention Council, and the bill eliminates Legal Services as a Federal program.

Now, let me talk about the language changes in the bill, because almost every one of these provisions is controversial. So let me try to tick through basically what the bill does.

The House appropriations bill appropriated to their crime bill, which was different. I believe that the Senate’s appropriations bill is better. The Senate has not passed a crime bill. The crime bill passed in the House contemplated and, in fact, provided a dynamic change in the President’s program to provide funds to State and local governments. We had no corresponding bill pass in the Senate, but we do have a bill that has been introduced by Senator Hatch in conjunction with Senator Dole. To make the House and Senate crime bills comparable, it was decided by the subcommittee and the full committee to write in the allocation formula from the Dole-Hatfield proposal, so that both appropriations bills are moving in the same direction toward block grants. Needless to say, with Senator Biden, this has been a very controversial subject, and we have worked out an agreement where Senator Biden will offer a substitute for this provision.

Senator Hatch and Senator Dole would like to change their proposal, which was written into the bill, and so they will basically put the ball in the air. Each will submit alternatives, and we will determine, based on a vote on the floor of the U.S. Senate, what direction we move in.

But let me be sure that everybody understands what the bill before us does in this area. The bill before us would allow communities to carry out the community policing programs exactly as the President has proposed, if they choose to. The objection that has been leveled against this block grant is not that they cannot do what the President has proposed we do, but that they have the option of doing it in a different way. The objection to the language is not a dispute about the President’s program so much as it is a dispute in the ability of local government and local chiefs of police to decide to use the money in a different way if they think that will work better for them.

We have set out a guideline on how the funds could be used. If people chose to do community policing, to put more policemen on the beat, as our crime bill last year proposed, and as the President supports, they could do that. If they decide that they want to have more policemen on the beat, but they want to use the funds for training, they could do that. If they decide that they want to work overtime to get better police on the street now while they bring new trainees into the police academy, they could do that. If they decide they need to use the funds to buy equipment to make their system more efficient, they could do that. But they have the capacity to carry out the program as the President has proposed, if they choose to.

The second change in language has to do with the Legal Services Corporation. It is not news to any of my colleagues, and I believe that the Senate and the Legal Services Corporation. It is not news to any of my colleagues, and I believe that the Senate and the

Legal Services Corporation today has a lawsuit underway against every State in the Union that has tried to reform welfare. Every time any State in the Union has had a mandatory work requirement, the Legal Services Corporation has filed a lawsuit against them.

The Legal Services Corporation has a long history of using taxpayer funds to promote causes which are not taxpayers' causes. My view is, Mr. President, if someone wants to file a lawsuit against the State of New Jersey, they ought to have a right to file that lawsuit. But they ought not to use taxpayers' money to do it.

In any case, after many years of battling on this issue, this year I proposed—and was successful—in the initial bill to eliminate the Legal Services Corporation. I did not have the votes in subcommittee to do that. An agreement was reached where we eliminate the Federal Legal Services Corporation. We take roughly half the money that it is now spending and we give that money in a block grant to State governments. Then State governments, within a set of guidelines which limit the ability of organizations that take Federal taxpayers' money to engage, basically, in the promotion of class action suits, opposing welfare, and a series of other restrictions based on past concerns—have block grants to spend on legal services. It provides roughly half the funds that the existing programs receive.

Another controversial area of language in the bill has to do with prisoners' work. This is an issue which I feel very strongly about. I do not have much doubt in my mind that when the votes are counted on the floor of the Senate, I am going to lose on this issue. But I want the American people to know about it. Part of my reward for being chairman is that now people have to take this provision out.

Let me use what I learned. To keep someone in the Federal penitentiary this year is going to cost the Federal taxpayers $22,000. We could send somebody to Harvard for what we are going to have to pay to keep them in the Federal penitentiary. We are paying more to keep someone in the Federal penitentiary than they would make if they could earn twice the minimum wage working.

Now, why is that so? Part of the reason is because the way we build prisons. I have tried in this bill to begin moving us in the direction of stopping the building of Federal prisons like Holiday Inns, taking out the air conditioner, the color television, the weight room. The key ingredient in this direction is requiring Federal prisoners to work.

Now, this is where we run headlong into greedy special interests. This is not just the greedy special interests of organized labor. It is also, quite frankly, the greedy special interests of corporate America. It is the greedy special interests of big business, and it is the greedy special interests of small businesses.

We have three laws in effect that basically criminalize working Federal prisoners. It is basically criminal in America for prisoners to work in any conventional sense of working. Most Americans have not the foggiest idea this is true, and they would go absolutely berserk if they understood it.

These three laws basically go back to the Depression era when we took a criminal justice system wherein prisoners were working, where they were to a substantial degree paying the cost of their own incarceration, and in the Depression era we started eliminating their ability to work.

Now, some people could argue—though I would never make the argument—that it may have made sense in the Depression because by not having prisoners do something, someone else could do it and it would create a job. If one could have made that argument in the Depression, they cannot make that argument today.

We have one Federal statute that makes it illegal for prisoners to produce anything that is sold within the State in which it is produced. Then we have another provision that sets out guidelines where, if prisoners did produce something that was sold in the private market, they would have to be paid.

Let me translate all of those amendments and what they mean. What that means, in essence, is you cannot make prisoners work in producing anything to sell in the private sector of the economy.

All over the country we have 100,000 people in the Federal penitentiary. We have 1 million people incarcerated in America. By and large, except for producing a handful of things that are relatively insignificant in value as compared to the total economy, they cannot work.

Now, we have a bunch of prisons in States where prisoners produce car parts for GM in Wisconsin, where they produce furniture for the Federal Government. But by and large these laws prevent us from putting prisoners to work. I would like prisoners to work 10 hours a day 6 days a week. I would like to turn our Federal prisons into industrial parks.

What I have done in this bill is I have overturned these three laws, and I have set out a simple guideline. What the bill says is that it is legal for prisoners to be required to work so long as the President certifies that what they produce is not sold in such a way as to glut a local market or to glut the national market.

What I foresee under this provision, if it becomes law, is that we could turn our Federal prisons into industrial parks. Many of the goods that are produced abroad, component parts from everything from air-conditioners to wheelbarrows to automobiles, we could produce some of those component parts with prison labor.

If we stopped building prisons like Holiday Inns, we could probably cut the $22,000 in half. If we required prisoners to work, we could probably cut the $11,000 of net cost in half. I believe that within a decade we could cut the cost of incarcerating people by 75 percent. But we are probably not going to do it. Let me tell you why. Because of organized labor and industries that do not want any competition will support the offering of an amendment that will continue to criminalize prison labor in America.

Now, I offered this provision in our bill because I think it is needed. I think when you have 1 million people incarcerated, it is inhumane not to have an orderly system where they can work. I will not drag this dead cat across the table too many more times. I want to remind my colleagues that when Alexis de Tocqueville came to America in the 1830's and went back home and wrote "Democracy in America," one part of American life that he commented on was our prison system and how enlightened it was because we worked prisoners hard. Prisoners at that time were working 12, 14 hours a day 6 days a week, and de Tocqueville noted how enlightened it was because by making prisoners work it made life in prison bearable.

If we made prisoners work today, not only would we save money, but people when they got out of prison would have a skill that they learned working in prison. If we made them go to school at night, they would know how to read and write, and having worked 10 hours a day 6 days a week, they would get out of prison they would not want to go back.

That is not going to happen because this provision is going to be stricken out by special interests. I know it, but I want people to have to vote on it, and I want people to be able to look at their vote. Prisoners in America should be required to work. They should be allowed to work in producing things that we can sell.

Every year our dear colleague, Senator Helms, offers an amendment to bad-taste welfare conditions that make prisoners work. Every year I wonder why we cannot make our prisoners work. How is it that we have people who are working two and three jobs, struggling to make ends meet, and we are paying $22,000 a year to keep somebody in prison, and then we cannot force them to work to produce something of value to pay for their own incarceration?

It is called greedy, petty, special interests. The world ought to know about it. I hope to awaken them by putting this provision in this bill that somebody has to take out.

Now let me talk very briefly about two other language provisions in the bill. One has to do with the 8(a) program. The 8(a) program is designed to help disadvantaged businesses. The basic idea of the 8(a) program was that there are some businesses that are disadvantaged and that we want to try to help them get on the playing field and be more competitive.

The problem is that over the years, disadvantaged has come to mean minority or female. You cannot be disadvantaged, under the 8(a) contract, if you are not a minority and if you are male. So what I try to do is open up the 8(a) contract and say, no matter what your gender is, no matter what your race is, if you are operating in a depressed area, if you are a small, struggling small person who live in a distressed area, you ought to be treated exactly the same way as someone doing exactly the same things you are from a different ethnic group or from a different gender.

We do not eliminate the 8(a) program, we simply open it up to people who are disadvantaged because they are small business people in depressed areas with high unemployment and they are hiring people from those areas.

This is a controversial subject. I understand that. But I believe, again, if we could put this proposal on the kitchen table in every kitchen in America we would see if somebody is a small business person, if they are operating in an area of high unemployment, if they are hiring people who are from a high unemployment area, why should they be discriminated against based on race or gender? I think America has asked that question and I think America has answered it. They are paying $22,000 a year to keep someone in prison, and we are not paying them a dime for what they are producing. So, I think we should be able to do the same thing about people who are on the playing field. But it requires that, once people are on the playing field, when it comes to being hired, being promoted, or getting a contract, that must be done by merit.

So this is a very controversial bill. It is no accident that we have kept it to the end. I am quite proud of the bill. Obviously, others oppose it. And the way democracy works is that we propose and we debate, and I accept the outcome of it. But I think this bill represents a dramatic change and, quite frankly, I have been disappointed in the other appropriations bills that we have committed to a budget that calls for a dramatic change but every body seems to say, we will do this next year or the next year or the next year to make these changes. I wanted to make them now. I may not be here 2 years from now. I do not know. I may not be on this committee next Monday—I do not know that either. But I do know that I believe this represents a dramatic break with the past.

This bill terminates programs. This bill dramatically changes the way we operate the Federal Government. And I think it gives people a very clear choice. It defines a movement in the direction that I would like to see us go. I am proud that the subcommittee and full committee supported the effort to bring the bill to this point. I know there are some people on the subcommittee and full committee who, at what we are on the floor, will abandon us on some of these issues. But I think we have before us a good bill and, Mr. President, I appreciate the indulgence of the Chair as I outlined the bill.

Let me yield the floor for the distinguished ranking member, a man who has served on this subcommittee as both chairman and ranking member, a man for whom I have very great respect, the distinguished Senator from South Carolina.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GORE) announces the Senator from South Carolina as Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. President. Mr. President, I rise today to speak against H.R. 2076, the fiscal year 1996 Commerce, Justice, and State appropriations bill. For me, this is unprecedented. Never in my 25 years on the Appropriations Committee—or my 18 years as serving as either the chairman or ranking minority member of this subcommittee—have I opposed this bill. And never in my career here have I seen an appropriations bill prepared in such a partisan manner and voted out of committee on straight party lines.

I am against this bill because I simply cannot go along with its recommendations and because of its extreme nature. This bill represents a 180-degree departure from the way we have worked together on our job when senators Rudman, Weicker, Pastore, Laxalt, and DOMENICI and I were chairman or ranking member. In the past, we focused on the business of governing. We worked together to ensure that the agencies under our jurisdiction were adequately and properly funded. Our job always was to see to it that the taxpayers' dollars were well spent. If a program was worth it, we sought to fund it adequately. At the same time, we conducted budget scrubs to be sure that we were throwing money at winners and losers. It is about throwing money at one part of this bill, the Department of Justice, and about wreaking havoc on the rest of the bill. In many ways, this bill seeks more like a body-slap resolution than an appropriations bill.

Mr. President, government is not a dirty word. I know that there are some who have come to Washington intending to have a fire sale. Well, those people will probably like this bill because it is a bonfire. Agency after agency is eliminated or subjected to unprecedented reductions of 20 percent or more. This bill slashes programs with little description or detail of what is being cut. For example, the International Trade Administration is cut by $47 million below a freeze. But the report does not direct how the reduction should be made. Should it be from the Import Administration that protects U.S. industry from foreign dumping? Or should it come from the foreign commercial service that promotes U.S. industry overseas or from trade and industry sector analysis? This bill just does not say. It is a wholesale elimination of agencies. And we will have wholesale reductions in force and offices closures. They are not being highlighted in this report, but mark my words on that.
Take the Small Business Administration. My friend SBA Administrator Bill Lader tells me that his appropriation for salaries and expenses means that the SBA will have to lay off 1,200 of their 3,100 employees.

Mr. President, maybe I am old fashioned, but I will not join in this fad that denigrates public service. In the 25 years I have worked on this bill, I have learned that much of it supports what we in the budget game call salaries and expenses. What means is that most of this bill funds people. And I have come to have great respect for the dedicated public servants who work hard to serve the people of this country.

I think of Emilio Iodice, of the International Trade Administration, our senior commercial officer in Madrid, Spain, who is hustling day in and day out to get contracts for American business. I think of Dr. Neal Frank and Bob Sheets, of NOAA, who has run the hurricane center in Miami, FL, and who worked around the clock to warn us of killer storms. I think of Ambassador Princeton Lyman in South Africa who is helping that nation build a lasting democracy. And of the many foreign service officers I have met. In my view, these State Department and USIA foreign service officers truly are the best and the brightest. I sometimes wonder how many of us could pass their professional competency requirements.

And of course, I think of the many professional comptrollers who with us on a day-to-day basis—people like Mike Roper at Justice, Mark Brown at Commerce, and Stan Silverman at USIA.

With this bill, I worry about the message that we are sending to these dedicated public servants and young people who might want to enter government service. I think we should be praising these people for their service, not denigrating them.

Justice Increases

In the Commerce, Justice and State hearing room in the Capitol, there is a painting of Edmund Randolph, our first Attorney General. I think about him when I look at what is happening to this Justice budget in this bill. We are throwing money at a problem without being responsible. Do my colleagues know when funding for the Justice department hit the $3 billion level? It was 1983. In other words, it took 194 years for the department's budget to reach $3 billion. And that is how much the increase is for Justice in this bill for just 1 year. That is nothing short of amazing.

I think most of us who were around in the early 1900s realize that we tried to throw too much money at Defense too quickly. And as some will remember, I was one of those who pushed hard to increase Defense in 1980. But, I fear that this is exactly what we are doing with Justice. The 1980s. This year, the Federal Bureau of Investigation is unable to spend almost $50 million that we gave it last year to hire more agents. Of course, the bureau will find other uses for the money. But this bill before us plans to give the FBI an increase of almost half a billion dollars above this year—an increase of 20 percent in one year. I am all for my good friend Judge Freeh and the dedicated agents of the FBI to a 20 percent increase in 1 year. And when I look at the Immigration Service, we are adding 1,300 border patrol agents per year, which again, is more than a 20-percent annual increase.

Now I am second to none in my support for the Justice Department. During the span that I last served as subcommittee chairman of this appropriations subcommittee, the Justice Department grew from $3.9 billion in 1986 to $13.7 billion in 1994. In the Senate, Attorney General Janet Reno probably does not have a bigger fan than me. But we have got to slow down and take a look at where all this money is going. We have got to stop the professional accounting firms who can throw more money at law enforcement to rack up political points.

Mr. President, this bill is largely the story of two bills. For Justice and judiciary, it represents the House's Continuing Resolution and for the remainder of the bill it will cause destruction. It did not have to be done this way. I would urge my colleagues to look at how much more reasonable and moderate the bill is that the House sent to us. The Contract With America crowd developed a much more responsible bill.

I would like to describe some of the recommendations for my colleagues.

For the Commerce Department, the bill: Eliminates entirely several Commerce technology programs: the Technology Administration, new Advanced Technology Program and manufacturing extension program grants. It eliminates previous funding to modernize National Institute of Standards and Technology laboratories.

The bill eliminates the Minority Business Development Agency, a program created during the Nixon administration to encourage minority entrepreneurs, and to expand minority-owned businesses.

The bill eliminates the U.S. Travel and Tourism Administration.

The bill cuts the International Trade Administration by $45 million or 17 percent below a freeze. This would result in office closures around the country and overseas, and debilitate our trade promotion efforts for U.S. industrial products. It cuts the Economic Development Administration (EDA) from its current level of $410 million to $100 million. It reduces one of the only programs with a direct charter to assist communities impacted by defense base closures and realignments.

It severely reduces the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) operations, the public broadcasting authorization, and it terminates the information infrastructure grant program and the children's educational television program.

Mr. President, the bill authorizes and appropriates funds for a new Commerce Reorganization transition fund which finances personnel separation costs and termination costs for the various agencies proposed for elimination.

It provides $350 million in economic statistics and the Census Bureau, an increase of $84.5 million above the House bill, and $70.4 million above this year.

It provides $1.867 billion for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), a decrease of $45 million below the current year, but $92 million above the House bill. Like the House, the NOAA fleet modernization program is terminated.

For the State Department and international affairs agencies, the bill severely cuts State Department operations funding $340 million below this year's level. This will result in the director of many rather than the Secretary of State to consolidate programs under State, USIA and ACDA.

Funding for international organizations is cut by 37 percent below current levels. This year they paid $873 million to the United Nations, the Organization of American States and 49 other international organizations. These assessments are based on treaty obligations. In 1996, the administration requested $923 million for these obligations. The bill provides only $550 million. We would have to pull out of a lot of international organizations or simply refuse to pay our bills.

The U.S. Information Agency (USIA) is devastated under the recommended bill, USIA is cut $364 million below the current year and $53 million below the House bill.

This bill cuts international educational exchanges, like the Fulbright program, by $43 million below the current year. The bill provides $355 million for international broadcasting—the Voice of America, Radio Free Europe, Liberty, and Radio and TV Marti. It is far below last year's level, but above the House.

For independent and regulatory agencies, the bill terminates the Legal have already accomplished, resulting in a long list of restrictions on the use of these fees often were created to enhance operations. The recommended bill will result in significant reductions in personnel and operations.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) is proposed to receive $79 million instead of $98 million as proposed by the House and provided currently. The FTC is charged with consumer protection and anti-trust duties. Again, we are looking at a third reduction in staff and cancellation of many important programs such as the FTC's efforts to combat telemarketing fraud.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) is proposed to receive $166 million instead of the current level of $166 million. We keep giving new responsibilities to the FCC under the communications bills, but here we are cutting them below current levels.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) is funded at $238 million instead of the current level of $297 million. Similarly, the bill reduces charges to individuals registering securities and shifts $60 million in costs to the federal taxpayers. So I guess that says we want to combat violent crime in justice, but white-collar crime by Ivan Boesky is fine.

The Competitiveness Policy Council is eliminated.

The Maritime Administration is funded at $70.6 million instead of $94.7 million, the current level, and far below the administration's request of $309 million.

The Small Business Administration (SBA) is funded at $558 million, $359 million below this year, and $73 million below the request. SBA says that they will have to reduce over a third of their workforce based on the committee's report language direction to fund grants and loans instead of personnel. This ignores many of the streamlining efforts that the Administration and Congress and the President have already accomplished, resulting in reduction of 500 positions during the past 2 years.

Finally, I oppose this bill because it proposes to terminate the successful Cops on the Beat program and other authorized Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund programs.

The Cops on the Beat or Community Oriented Policing program is one of the most efficient crime prevention programs that has ever been created. Within a year of passage, 25,000 additional police are on the street in America. We will be debating this program soon, in more detail. But I must say that I simply do not understand why any member would want to terminate this program.

Drug courts is another authorized program. It was an act of Renó's creation, based on her experience in Miami. This is not a soft prevention program. Drug courts work and are getting non-violent defendants off of illicit substances and back into society.

This bill is block grant crazy. Legal services—They say, "Let us make it into a block grant." Community policing and drug courts they say, "Let us make it into a block grant." I guess I do not understand. I remember the Republican filibuster against the President Clinton's stimulus package in the spring of 1993. As I recall, the principal argument against that bill was that it was unfunded. And recipients had a wide discretion of how they could use block grants. In law enforcement in the past, we had a block grant program—LEAA—and it was a disaster.

Mr. President, this bill contains many other pieces of legislation. It takes the limits off of sales from prison labor, and it changes affirmative action and procurement regulations.

I hope that my colleagues will carefully examine this bill. Many have said, "Yes, in principle, but the President will veto it." That may be true. All indications are that it could not be signed in its current form.

I, for one, hope that the Senate will not go on record by supporting such an extreme, irresponsible measure. I hope we can make some changes to this bill and improve it.

Mr. President, obviously I am not disposed to speak at length, but I have to comment about my distinguished colleague. He is present on two or three items. I just in closing, he said: This is open. This is the way we do it. It is open to debate. We debate these things, and we vote on them and we make decisions.

Unfortunately, having been on this committee for over 25 years, in this subcommittee we did not debate, we did not discuss, and we did not do anything other than vote. That is why the bill comes on a bipartisan split, so to speak, of 15-13. I stand with the distinguished former Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, Justice Powell, when he was President of the American Bar Association. Here is a corporate entity, the Legal Services Corporation, worked in by the private sector, by the professional attorney sector and by the Federal Government in a most successful fashion, but it is not within this bill. That endeavor that has been going on successfully for years is totally overturned and repealed. A new program is put in. It is not authorized.

The prize, the parliamentary tactic is to raise a point of order. But in the spirit of trying to move along, we can have some votes around here on points of order and everything else. But I am not trying to turn back anything parenthetically. I am trying to turn it back on the basis of merit.

But if you go through this particular measure, they come down real hard on the future of this country with respect to, for example, the programs within the Department of Justice, the Justice Department and the Department of State. The Department of State is not really left with an operating budget. We have been closing consulates and closing down various endeavors on behalf of the Department of State over the last 15 years. Somehow, somewhere, people have forgotten that, after all, we had President Reagan come to town with spending cuts, and then President Bush. After 8 years of Reagan and 8 years of President Bush for 4 years, we had 12 years of spending cuts. Then we had, of course, President Clinton come to town and cut out another $500 billion in spending cuts.

So what we are on to is the tail end, so to speak, of 15 years of various spending cuts whereby programs like WCIC, Head Start, title I for the disadvantaged, and many others, are only half funded, as are many programs in health research. That is the reason we just rejected, by way of extended debate, the Labor, Health, and Human Resources appropriations bill. For every dollar we spend over at NIH, we save the taxpayers $13.50.

So these money-saving programs have been the main assault of a so-called political contract that is devastating to the functioning of our society.

I almost wish when it comes to the Department of Commerce, the whole business community—of that business community that President Clinton had said we ought to get rid of the Department of Commerce. If President Clinton said we have to get rid of the Department of Commerce, the whole business community—all of that business community that runs under the white tent for NAFTA and for GATT, and all the Republican crowd, all of those executives, that Business Round Table—would come running up here: "What do you mean this Democratic President is trying to do away with the voice of business at the Cabinet table?" You cannot find them today. Why? Because the Republicans thought of that idea.

Yes, labor is to have a voice at the Cabinet table, but not commerce, the business leadership. Agriculture is to have a vote on the Cabinet table, but they want to do away with the Department. You will not find agriculture in the Constitution. You will not find the Labor Department there. But you will find, under article I, section 8 of the Constitution, that the Congress is hereby authorized to regulate foreign commerce. We are doing away with constitutional responsibilities in a willy-nilly contract fashion. Now with the fall of the wall, we really look upon the Department of State to promote our values the world around and capitalism the world around along with the Department of Commerce.

Very interestingly, that is exactly what they are doing. Secretary Christopher and Secretary Brown have been doing an outstanding job, but there is no acknowledgment or recognition of it whatever in this particular appropriation. Rather, they tried to do away with the technology, the advanced technology program, the manufacturing centers, the Office of Technology and all, as we go on down the list—these various endeavors to keep America competitive.

Our foreign policy, our security as a nation, our success in this global competition, rests like a stool on three legs. We have, on the one leg, the values of a nation which are very strong and are unquestioned. America volunteers. We try to feed a hungry Somalia, volunteers will try to set up democracy in Haiti, and now is trying to help, of course, in Bosnia and in the Mideast where they are meeting right now. With respect to our values, it is very strong, and with respect to our military, President Bush did. But when we get it right with respect to the economic leg, over the past 45, almost 50 years, it is fractured and willingly so.

We set up the Marshall plan. We sent our money and our technology and our expertise to countries abroad in the conflict between capitalism and communism, and capitalism has won out. And we are all very grateful for that. But during that 50-year period, what we had to do was sort of sacrifice our market share to countries that were only willing to buy at our doorsteps with the assault on market share. We had to give up markets to our friends in the Pacific rim, in Europe, and otherwise around, with a sort of nuttish trade policy—running around here like nineties civilization in the in the trade wars. And every time there was not any such thing, and it is not now. We all understand that.

But now with the fall of the wall comes the opportunity to rebuild the strength of the economy. Yes, in many states today, industry is the major government. I want a Senator to say that on the floor of this U.S. Senate. What we need is more in education, more in the inner-city restructuring, more in transportation, more in science and technology, and more in medical research. That is exactly what we are not doing in this particular measure here.

Let me go right to the point about the President's budget for which we get a gratuitous statement from our distinguished leader in the minority. He said again that the President's budget would not be in balance at the second coming, and had $200 billion deficits as far as the eye can see. If you want to read the gratuitous statement, you just look at the committee report of State, Justice, Commerce, and on page 4. I will quote this one sentence:

The administration's request in a budget that made no attempt to balance the budget, not in 7 years, not in 10 years, not ever.

Here comes a committee report from a crowd that we could not get a single vote from to cut $500 million in spending and raise revenues to pay for some of these programs. Yes, we raised taxes on Social Security, and $2.5 billion of the increased revenue on Social Security we gave to what? To Medicare. They are running all over the Hill. "It is going broke. It is going broke." Last year they said, "What is the matter? Nothing is wrong with America's health programs. It is the best health system in the world. What is the matter?"

I can show you the same crowd that they quote now as saying it is going broke in the year 2002. Last year, that same entity reported it was going broke in the year 2001. At least we got one year's grace out of the discipline that we set for spending cuts and revenue increases and forgoing programs.

Now they have a grading chart at the time was called the then majority leader a "riverboat gamble," the then Vice President as "voodoo," and now we have "voodoo" all over again—going on all over this Hill. We do not have a sense of history whatever. I opposed that voodoo and proposed instead a budget freeze like the mayor of a city or the Governor of a State. What they do is just take this year's budget for next year. We would save billions. We could not get seven votes.

I then joined with the distinguished chairman of our subcommittee in Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, and we said let's have not only freezes, but we are going to have automatic spending cuts across the board. And it worked. Mr. President, it worked, until 1990, when they repealed it. And at 12:41 a.m., October 19, 1990, I raised a point of order against the repeal. And let the Record show who voted to repeal it. And here around and saying it did not work. They repealed it because it was working. It was going to cause cuts across the board. I went along in 1988 with tax reform in order to close loopholes.

So we had budget freezes, we had budget cuts, and we had loophole closings. And then, if you please, Mr. President, I came with increased taxes, a value-added tax proposed in the Budget Committee where I got eight votes, and I did not get one Republican or the Governor of a State. What they do is just take this year's budget for next year. We would save billions. We could not get seven votes.

I do know that as a result the interest costs for the fiscal year beginning on Sunday, October 1, fiscal year 1996, the interest costs on the national debt—as a result of that voodoo and the riverboat gamble—is $30 billion. We only have a budget surplus, so that is $1 billion a day practically that we go down to the bank the first thing in the morning and borrow—$1 billion a day.

None of these plans, neither the Republican nor the Democratic plan, saves $1 billion a day, running, running.

I try my best to keep pointing this out to get level so we all speak the same language. Only this past week, I wrote the Congressional Budget Office. I said that my friends on the other side of the aisle continued to talk in terms of a balanced budget by the year 2002. I ask unanimous consent that I may include the letter in the Record dated September 25 from the Congressional Budget Office, June E. O'Neill.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

Hon. ERNEST F. HOLLINGS,
U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C.

Dear Senator: This is in response to your letter of September 20 concerning CBO’s scoring of the budget resolution for fiscal year 1996 adopted by the Congress. Because a budget resolution represents a general plan for future Congressional action rather than specific legislative proposals, CBO cannot provide estimates for a budget resolution in the same sense that it estimates appropriation bills or bills that provide changes in direct spending or revenues. CBO has compared the spending, revenues, and deficits proposed by the budget resolution with those projected by the Treasury. The August 1995 report, The Economic and Budget Outlook: An Update, a copy of that report has been enclosed.

If you wish further details about this comparison, we shall be pleased to provide them. The staff contact is Jim Horney.

Sincerely,

JAMES L. BLUM (For June E. O'Neill).

Mr. HOLLINGS. The Republican budget, the Kasich budget, the Gingrich budget, or whatever budget you want to call it that they are talking about balancing, has never been scored. The distinguished chairman of the Committee is here and we worked together when he was ranking member and I was chairman. I can tell you here and now, after we passed that budget in May, we sent over the assumptions, so that the Congressional Budget Office could score it. Those scores have never been sent over. From time to time they have asked questions: If we do this, will we save that; if we do this, will we save that?

But we do not have a CBO-scored figure for President Clinton’s budget and we do not have a CBO figure for the Republican budget.

Watching all of this as it occurs, at this particular time, I can guarantee you that it will not be balanced in the year 2002 by anyone who wants to bet me, pick out the odds and the amount. I will jump off the Capitol dome if this budget is balanced by the year 2002. I can tell you that here and now.

What happens is exactly what happens, as the distinguished President Officer and I viewed it this morning in the Committee of Commerce. We were allocated $15 billion. What did we do? We took $8.3 billion that we have already allocated to the telecom bill. So we double-counted that already. I talk about smoke and mirrors. We are not going to have smoke and mirrors. I understand, of course, that in the Finance Committee they were $80 billion shy last week.

Someone said, no, they got up, meeting last night, to about $15 billion, and they are still trying to find it. But if they go through with the contract and they do away with the gratuitous tax increase, they will have to find another $25 billion. They are shy there.

I can go to welfare reform. We passed welfare reform. It was a $63 billion savings. The budget says it is going to have to be balanced for $131 billion savings. That is $50 billion shy there. The agricultural and everything crowd said, no, we have not met our figure. It is smoke and mirrors.

So what you see now is the moment of truth. And I only mention this to get that moment of truth out. We ought to level with each other. You cannot get on top of this cancer of interest costs on the national debt unless you do all of the above. There was the tax cut that included spending cuts, spending freezes, loophole closings, tax increases, and denying new programs.

We just voted earlier this week—hate to say it. The distinguished Senator from Maryland, Senator MIKULSKI, and her AmeriCorps Program—but I can tell you now that that program was going to cost billions and billions. I did not think we ought to start new programs that we could not afford and specifically not start an AmeriCorps Program for education whereby in order to get 25,000 scholars we had to do away with 346,000 student loans.

That is what we did. We took the money from the student loans and put it into a new program and talked about voluntarism. I happen to have been down there the Sunday after Hugo hit us in our own backyard in South Carolina. There was the mayor and me and we had 1,500 to 2,000 volunteers that were working in the rain. We asked for a show of hands and we had them from 38 States. People volunteer.

When little Mr. Segal called me about this particular program and said we already have 2,000 out there working in the flood year before last, I said, “Young man, you have 2 million out there working without this program. You do not need a program at the Federal Government level to start voluntarism.”

So the pressures brought on this particular budget are really politically manufactured where we are not going to balance the budget. We are not just going to get rid of the Government. That has been the cry of the contract—that the Government is not the solution, the Government is the problem, the Government is the enemy. So what we have is a $283 billion estimated deficit for 1995. That is the accurate figure as between what we will take in and what we will spend. So let us not get high and mighty and start criticizing about Social Security. We got a balanced budget 7 years from now when people will be lucky to be around 7 years from now and they will know good and well they will come again.

I remember when we used to balance the budget year to year. In fact, President Reagan said, “I’m going to balance the budget in a year.” He got into Washington and said, “Whoops, this is going to take me 3 years.” I did not realize it was so bad.

So the pressures brought on this particular budget are really political manufactured where we are not going to balance the budget. We are not just going to get rid of the Government. That has been the cry of the contract—that the Government is not the solution, the Government is the problem, the Government is the enemy. So what we have is a $283 billion estimated deficit for 1995. That is the accurate figure as between what we will take in and what we will spend. So let us not get high and mighty and start criticizing about Social Security. We got a balanced budget 7 years from now when people will be lucky to be around 7 years from now and they will know good and well they will come again.

Within the field of law and law enforcement, we have had our experience. We have what you call the assistance enforcement program, LEAA, and that particular program gave block grants back to the States and communities. And when we looked around, we had—please, my gracious—down in Hampton, VA, they bought a tank and put it on the courthouse lawn and thought the courthouse was going to be attacked. The sheriff down in Alabama, he bought a tank because he was going to have crowd control. The Governor in Indiana, he bought an airplane so they could fly up to New York. And they had all kinds of embarrassments where the money never got through to the policemen on the beat.

Now, there is no education in the second kick of a mule. We learned from hard experience. So we came around with community policing and policemen on the beat and said, in order to qualify, you have to come with a match of 25 percent. And it is working extremely well.

So the pressures brought on this particular budget are really political manufactured where we are not going to balance the budget. We are not just going to get rid of the Government. That has been the cry of the contract—that the Government is not the solution, the Government is the problem, the Government is the enemy. We got a balanced budget 7 years from now when people will be lucky to be around 7 years from now and they will know good and well they will come again.

We are going up, up, and away; 15 years. Say anything except to do the job and tell the American people that we have to deny programs and we have to raise taxes. We have to cut spending. We have to freeze spending. We have to close loopholes. We have to do all of the above to save $1 billion a day. This particular budget that we have that is going on at this particular time does not come near to saving $1 billion a day to get us really rid of any kind of deficit at any time during that 7-year period.

Now, Mr. President the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee talks about philosophy—and I must touch on that and then we can go to these amendments—the philosophy here that they are trying to justify these programs to get things back to where they can do it as they please.

They said, if they really want to buy equipment, then they can do that. If they want to put policemen on the beat, then they can do that. It is the old adage that the best government is that closest to the American people, the Jeffersonian philosophy. And I generally adhere to that except through hard experience.

We have what you call the assistance enforcement program, LEAA, and that particular program gave block grants back to the States and communities. times. But I am referring to the stimu-

lum bill where when President Clinton came to town, we were going to stimulate the economy. And the distinguished chairman of my subcommittee, now who believes in block grants, said, heaven forbid we would ever use such for cemeteries, for whitewater canoe-ing, for fisheries, atlases, for studies of the sickle fin chub," and all these dif-fierent other programs back at the local level. And the Senator slaughtered President Clinton's stimulus program—just as I am doing in its track's here on the floor of the U.S. Senate.

Now we come with the philosophy:
Whoopee, let us get the money back to the Government; we are not smart enough to do anything here in Washington; only the people back home are smart enough. So here we go again.
Here we go again, changing the formative law and making it into block grants. Taking working programs like policemen on the beat and the Legal Services Corporation. Abolishing these laws in that sense and providing monies for a program that has already been derided in the most expert fashion by my distinguished chairman.

can tell you now that we could not possible do anything here with the block grants. I think the President said he is going to veto that particular approach.
Maybe we can reconcile it. I hope some of the defects of this particular bill can be cared for in Senator H ATFIELD's and my amendment, and I hope we work until I in the morning on this particular amendment. I think it will meet generally with the approval of the colleagues.

And a reallocation here, I am grateful for that help. Of course, there are fundamentals still involved. And I will say it right to the point. We will be debating these things, as the distinguished chairman says. What we have done is really savaged Commerce and its programs, the State Department, and, of course, force-fed a gooses Justice. When I say "force-fed a goose in Justice," I look at the particular figures.

I can see that it took us from 1789 to 1983 or 1984 to get to a $3 billion J ustice Department budget. But it has only taken us the last 15 years to quadruple, quintuple—excuse me—and go up, and away to $16.95 billion in this particular 1996 appropriation. I know we have had various crime bills. I know we have had the problems and evils in else of that kind. But I can tell you now that we have, with all the budgetary constrictions, to get a little bit better balance in this particular measure.

And in some of these, I am definitely of a mind where the Senator from Texas and I agree that you should not abuse the use of legal services money to sue the State and Governor and Leg-sislature of New J ersey over welfare reform. We agreed that we could work the prisoners. I have worked prisoners as a Governor. I put in a laundry program. I put in a furniture repair program. I even had a J aycee chapter as well as our educational programs be-

We agree on many, many things. But generally speaking, we did not have a chance to debate these things. Unfortunately, we had not conformed the appropriations to the basic statutes, whatsoever. We have just run willy-nilly through the programs trying to abolish departments and the working programs that have done so much for our society.

I yield the floor.

Mr. PELL addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. PELL. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, the Senate is considering the appropriations bill for the Commerce, J ustice and State Departments.
It would be tempting to address this bill in the same fashion as I have other measures during this session which I have not carried a copy of the request for the foreign affairs agencies.

There will be dramatic reductions in spending for the administration of for-egnance affairs, for the acquisition and maintenance of buildings, for the U.S. assessed contributions to the United Nations, for U.S. contributions to U.N. peacekeeping, and for international exchange programs.

I understand that the chairman of the Appropriations Committee may offer an amendment to increase these, additional funds to the foreign affairs account—which I applaud and will support. I must speak now, however, to the bill as reported by the committee.

Many different programs in now that these are programs and functions that are extremely important to me. When I recently announced my intention not to seek reelection to the Senate, some of my fellow Senators graciously came to the floor to say some very kind things about me. For that I am deeply grateful, and indeed humbled. One thing that struck me that day was how many of my colleagues mentioned my support for the United Nations, and the fact that I have carried a copy of the chairman's bill for years.

I have not carried it with me all of this time just for show and tell. I carry it because I believe in it, and I think that it has represented—and continues to represent—one of our best hopes for international peace and security. If we proceed with the reductions in funding for the U.S. contributions to the regular and peacekeeping budgets, however, the charter will become nothing more than pretty words. There will be no point, and no joy, in carrying it in my pocket.

I have also been a consistent advocate of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency [ACDA]. More than decades ago, President K ENNEDY and the Congress decided to create by statute the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency—which was then and remains now the only separate agency in the Government; we are not smart enough to do anything here with the block grants. I think the President said he is going to veto that particular approach.

As I said moments ago, it would be tempting to continue at length about the impact of this and other bills on programs such as arms control, the Today, however, I want to discuss this bill in broader and more far-reaching terms. Whether or not the Senate cares to admit it, our decisions and actions this year are going to have a direct and notable impact on our peace in the world, and on our fundamental relationships with other world powers.

I am very proud of the U.S. record of leadership, achievement, and engagement in international relations. Twice in the 20th century, our Nation stood with its allies to fight on a global scale against aggression. During the cold war, the United States took the lead to contain the hegemonic designs of the former Soviet Union. In the early 1990's, the United States led an international coalition of forces in turning back Iraq's illegal grab of Kuwait.

Equally as important, however, are the battles we did not fight—the con-licts that we avoided, the crises that we averted through diplomatic discussion and pressure. Even if we made mistakes from time to time, we were successful in all of these endeavors because of our belief in principles, our commitment to do what we thought right and our willingness to be actively engaged. Our decisions, policies, and programs were often across both human and material terms, but they made our world a safer place, and our Nation a better and more profitable place to live.

Our motivation sadly seems to have changed. Decisions are being made out of political expediency rather than sound judgment. Our impulse as politicians—particularly this year—is to rush willy-nilly to make budget cuts for their own sake, without regard to the consequences. Instead of using reason and analysis to construct our foreign policy, we are using calculators.

We must stop, think, and take a good hard look at how the United States can expect to project its power and influence under the circumstances now proposed. The State Department and the foreign affairs agencies of our Nation's executive branch have willed to the world—it cannot carry out its mission if they haven't the personnel, resources, and infrastructure required by the times.
It is not just a matter of doing more with less. I know the fiscal imperatives of our time, and appreciate that we are required to spend less and consolidate functions and responsibilities. The spending reductions in this bill are so severe, however, that the US is isolationism. We will be forced to close dozens of critical posts overseas, to renege on treaty commitments, and simply disengage from diplomatic activity. That is not sound fiscal policy, and it is certainly not leadership. It is isolationism. We are shutting ourselves off from the world, and our Nation’s security and economy will suffer.

I do not use the term isolationism lightly. It is a serious charge, but one that I think is accurate. We must acknowledge the impact of this bill on our ability to work with other nations, and understand that by violating our international commitments, we will undermine our own national security. And make no mistake, this bill will force us to rethink our international commitments and will have an adverse impact on virtually every aspect of the quality of life of our citizens.

Allow me to give some examples. In 1990, the Clinton administration declared that the United States would meet its treaty obligation to pay its U.N. dues in full, and that we would pay off our arrears. This bill would violate that pledge, and we will become the world’s biggest deadbeat. At a certain point, which is fast approaching, we will lose our vote in the U.N. General Assembly because of the size of our arrears. This bill will also affect our obligations to NATO, to the International Atomic Energy Agency, to the International Telecommunications Union, and to the World Health Organization. In other words, we will have a diminished role to play in the critical fields of international security, nuclear non-proliferation, global communications, and international health.

We would be hamstringing the work of lesser-known but important organizations such as the Hague Conference on Private International Law and the International Institute for the Unification of Private Law. Both of these are making vital contributions to simplifying and unifying the international legal system. How many times have we interceded on behalf of constituents in international adoptions, or in cases of parental abduction, or in cases of international health. This bill will affect our constituents’ protection in such matters, and we will be responsible.

As a broader, practical matter, American citizens will be far less able to travel abroad as a result of this bill, whether they are seeking medical treatment, human rights groups, or perhaps even tourists who are interested in where we have just seen in Bosnia, have made the supreme sacrifice of giving their lives in service to the country.

Mr. President, we should honor these men and women and give them our full appreciation. At a minimum, we should see that they have a basic level of support to handle their ever-increasing responsibilities. We would never send our soldiers to war without support in depth; why would we send our diplomats on official business, if not noble or patriotic than that of any soldier—to do political battle with virtually no support at all?

Mr. President, we are forsaking the lessons of history for political opportunism.

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

think it is a very historic budget resolution. In all respects, it does what the Senator suggests, save one. In all respects, it does the kinds of things we said we ought to do. It just does not raise taxes. The rest is there—the reform and the elimination of programs, the suggestions, the freezes—they are all part of this very difficult effort.
I yield the floor.
Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD at this point the actual record of the gross Federal debt beginning in 1945 going right on down to the estimated 1996 debt, and the real deficit going from 1945 down to 1996 with the gross interest costs, which has only been computed to be included since 1962.
There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee is talking and the Senator from South Carolina is talking, but the facts speak more loudly than each of us. For example, the gentleman talking then was the President when he came to town. In 1980, we were paying interest costs of $74.8 billion on a national debt of over 200-some years of history, with all the wars from the Revolutionary War up to and including World War
I, World War II, Korea and Vietnam.
Now, it is estimated to go to $348 billion just in interest costs. That was the crowd that came and talked and said they were going to save us from waste, fraud, and abuse. In fact, I got an award from the Grace Commission, working with them. By 1989, we had to report it, and 85 percent of the Grace Commission recommendations had been implemented.

However, wanting to do away with waste, as we talked—look what actually occurred. It has gone to the greatest waste in the history of the Government—from $74.8 billion to $348 billion.
Over $200 billion just in increased in costs for nothing. If we had the twohundred-seventy-some billion dollars here now for these things, you would not have extended debate on labor, health and human resources. We would have the money for those programs.
You would not have an amendment on Legal Services. We would have provided for it and for cops on the beat and for the State Department, and the strengthening of our technology, and all.
My point is that we keep on talking, and we get estimates from the CBO and all of these econometric models and all the economists that we keep following and, as old Tennessee Ernie said, we are another day older and deeper in debt.
I yield the floor.
Mr. SIMON. Will my colleague yield for a moment?
Mr. HOLLINGS. Yes.
Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I simply want to acknowledge that the person who educated me on gross interest over against net interest was the Senator from South Carolina.
Administrations like to put net interest into their budgets. We do not do that with any other function of Government. We do not say the Justice Department took in so many dollars in fines and everything, therefore, their budget is that much less. It is the gross expenditure of the Justice Department.
But because administrations like to fuzz things up a little bit, they were using net interest. The real figure is gross interest. I want to acknowledge Senator FRITZ HOLLINGS for having educated me on this. And I hope he is educating a lot of other people, too.
Mr. HOLLINGS. I thank my distinguished colleague.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks recognition?
Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, in a moment we will have an amendment by the distinguished chairman of the full committee, which is going to shift the allocation among the subcommittees providing additional funding for Commerce, State, Justice and in the process solving many of the problems that hold this bill up.
While we are waiting on that—and I understand the distinguished Senator from West Virginia has now signed off on that amendment—I want to say, as the new chairman of this subcommittee, that I have had an opportunity, for the first time, to work with the distinguished Senator of the full committee,

S 14501

Senator HATFIELD, in that capacity. I think it is fair to say that the success that I have had in bringing the bill to this point is, in no small part, due to the assistance that I have had from the distinguished Senator from Oregon. I simply want to say that the Senator from Oregon has not only been very helpful to me in this bill, but I think he epitomizes what the skilled and dedicated legislator is all about.
I had a great deal of respect for Senator HATFIELD before we started trying to put together this very difficult bill.
I have even more respect for him now.
In case we have the miracle of miracles and we work out an agreement and this bill quickly becomes law and everybody scatters to the far ends of the continent, and maybe in some cases to the far ends of the world, I just wanted to say how much I appreciate the distinguished chairman for the personal help and council he has given to me. He certainly is deserving of our thanks and our appreciation.
Let me, in waiting for the amendment to be ready, simply suggest the absence of a quorum.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The
clerk will call the roll.
The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.
Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. GRAMM. I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be temporarily set aside for the purpose of considering a technical amendment which has been cleared on both sides.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.
AMENDMENT NO. 2813
(Purpose: To make certain technical corrections)

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I send a technical amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.
The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:
The Senator from Texas [Mr. GRAMM] proposes an amendment numbered 2813.

unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.
The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.
Mr. HOLLINGS. I move to lay that amendment on page 2, line 9, through page 3, line 19, in its immediate consideration.
Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of the committee amendment beginning on page 2, line 9, insert the following:

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, first I want to express my deep appreciation for the kind words expressed by the chairman of our subcommittee, Senator Gramm. In response that it has been one of those wonderful occasions and experiences that sometimes happen in the Senate, and that is when we get down together one-on-one to negotiate and to try to find, for the other person's perspective, the other person's priorities, and come to a new appreciation that this indeed, is one of the strengths of this institution—its diversity. And at the same time there is diversity in this institution, it does not mean that it means stalemate. It does not equal stalemate diversity.

I could find no person with greater sensitivity and words indeed than that the person. I Gramm in working out the differences and also at the same time, working for the same goal.

I come to appreciate, from time to time, the strength of diversity. I sometimes also think that if I listened more, spoke less, I would hear what the other person might be saying a little more clearly than depending upon imagery or upon labels such that we oftentimes use in shortcut methods.

That also does not build for personal relationships.

Mr. President, I have sent to the desk an amendment on behalf of Senator Hollings, myself, and on behalf of the Appropriations Committee in general.

I filled an amended application for the Commerce, Justice and State bill that allowed us in a very high item in budget authority and $325 million in outlays to be spent on the bill.

Now, this begs for, again, a quick description again of our process. I know beyond the beltway that is not necessarily as obvious as in a very high item interest. For our own colleagues to understand that at the beginning of any appropriations cycle that the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, along with consultation and along with staff and so forth, creates what we call the 602(b) allocations.

Now, we do not follow the House of Representatives. In other words, we have our own methods and our own priorities and so forth. So that reflects basically, once the committee has adopted the chairman's mark, that represents basically a committee action.

In this particular case, we had $1 bil-ion—I am talking now in round numbers—$1 billion in a 602(b) allocation to this subcommittee. That is a very high item under this bill. We also have reiterated that a lesser possibility than it is representative of another type of handling of these additions.

In the case of the Small Business Administration, we propose to add an additional $30 million, which should be consistent with budgetary trends for the loan volume recommended in the committee bill.

Again, we refer back to not only our previous work but to authorizing commitees as well. There are many committee demands in this bill and it makes it very difficult, even with this amendment.

Let me make very clear, this amendment does not solve all of our problems. But I do think it can solve sufficient problems to get this bill wrapped into the CR, down to the White House, eventually to be vetoed. I have to be straightforward. My impression, maybe this amendment is going to help in some way alleviate that probability that the President intends to veto this bill.

Maybe we can again, hopefully, make that a lesser possibility than it is under the bill that we have before us.

So, Mr. President, I am not going to say that it has been through the cooperative spirit of the leadership of this committee and the leadership of the full Senate that we are hoping, today to pass this amendment that it adopted, and thereby move on to address other issues in this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, let me rise in gratitude to our distinguished full committee chairman and also the subcommittee chairman for allowing us to proceed, and to note a softening and thawing on behalf of the distinguished subcommittee chairman, was very, very, very important.
President Clinton oxygen. I feel like, in this amendment, which I am proud to cosponsor, we are getting oxygen. It keeps some very important programs alive.

The distinguished full committee chairman, Senator HATFIELD, has been very sensitive and very understanding and very realistic. There is none of this kind of pork or any of these other kind of things. This amendment adds back funds to high priority commerce programs—$45.5 million for the International Trade Administration and the Special Trade Representative. We are trying to get more competitive and more realistic in a trade policy in this country, and we need these additional funds to just bring them up to where they would be at a freeze.

There is $32 million for the Minority Business Development Agency; $25 million for NIST—the National Bureau of Standards, manufacturing centers, the information technology centers; $8.1 million for the Export Administration; and finally for the front line—after the fall of the wall—namely, our State Department, the Business Development Agency; $25 million for the Export Administration; $25 million for the USIA operations, international broadcasting, and technology modernization. And for the independent agencies like the Federal Trade Commission, the Small Business Administration and others, we have added back certain funds that could be available now with this new allocation.

I think particularly the staffs on both sides, Mark Van Der Water, David Taylor, Scott Corwin, and Steve McMillen, who worked until about 2 o'clock this morning, trying to bring this about.

I am very much appreciative to Senator HATFIELD, and I hope we can adopt this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I express my gratitude to the chairman of the full committee, Senator HATFIELD, the distinguished ranking member, Senator PELL, has just addressed. $177 million is added to their operating accounts to bring them back to the level proposed in S. 908, Senator HELMS' Foreign Relations Authorization Act.

For the USIA, we are adding back $20 million for international education exchanges, including $10 million for the Fulbright program. We also add back funds for the USIA operations, international broadcasting, and technology modernization. And for the independent agencies like the Federal Trade Commission, the Small Business Administration and others, we have added back certain funds that could be available now with this new allocation.

I thank particularly the staffs on both sides, Mark Van Der Water, David Taylor, Scott Corwin, and Steve McMillen, who worked until about 2 o'clock this morning, trying to bring this about.

I am very much appreciative to Senator HATFIELD, and I hope we can adopt this amendment.

The East-West Center is important now more than ever. The Asia-Pacific region is the fastest growing region in the world. Today, over half of the population of the world is in Asia. This region has about 20 percent of the land surface, but over 60 percent of the gross product of the world.

For every jumbo jet that flies over the Atlantic Ocean, four fly over the Pacific Ocean. Our trade with Asia is four times larger than our trade with Europe.

It has become the fastest growing economy. Trade with Asia provides nearly 3 million jobs to Americans and, by the year 2003, our exports to Asia will be more than double those to Europe.

I would like to share two concrete examples of the East-West Center's success in the Asia-Pacific. There was a time when our relations with Indonesia were next to nil. Our Ambassador was recalled. There were no exchanges or any formal conversation. Indonesia cut off all ties with the United States. It would not permit any of its citizens to become Fulbright scholars, but it continued to send men and women to the East-West Center. Our relationship with Burma over the years has been hot and cold. At one time, Burma sent our Ambassador home and closed our consulates. But Burma sent students to the East-West Center. This was a unique spot on the globe where men and women could freely discuss issues of the day.

The East-West Center now has 42,000 alumni globally; a network of distinguished colleagues in government, business, the media, academe, and the professions.

The student degree program, with 4,000 graduates, is a major component of cultural and technical interchange at the Center.

As you can see, the East-West Center is a national resource that must be funded at a responsible level. I ask my colleagues to support this national institution.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I am pleased to join the senior Senator from Hawaii, the senior Senator from Utah, the distinguished ranking member of the subcommittee, and the chairman of the subcommittee, in offering this amendment to restore funding for the East-West Center.

Over the past 35 years, the East-West Center has established its reputation as one of the most respected and authoritative institutions dedicated to the advancement of international cooperation throughout Asia and the Pacific. The Center plays a key role in promoting constructive American involvement in the region through its educator, dialogue, research, and outreach program. The Center addresses critical issues of importance to the Asia-Pacific region and United States interests in the region, including international economics and politics, energy and natural resources, population, the environment, technology, and culture.

The achievements of the East-West Center bear repetition. Since its creation by Congress in 1960, the Center has hosted over 4,000 leaders from over 60 nations and territories on research, education, and conference programs.

Scholars, statesmen, government officials, journalists, teachers, and business executives from the United States and many nations of Asia and the Pacific have benefited from studies at the Center. These government and private sector leaders comprise an influential network of East-West Center alumni throughout the Asia-Pacific region. I continually encounter proud Center alumni in meetings with Asian and Pacific island government officials and business leaders.

The success of the Center as a forum for the promotion of international cooperation and the strength of the personal relationships developed at the Center are reflected in the prestige it enjoys in the region. Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Indonesia, Fiji, Papua New Guinea, Pakistan, and other American allies in the region—over 20 countries in all—support the Center's programs with contributions. The Center has also received endowments from benefactors in recognition of its contributions and value.

Mr. President, the countries of Asia and the Pacific are critically important to the United States and our political and economic interests into the next century. By the year 2000, the Asia-Pacific region will be the world's largest producer and consumer of goods and services. The markets for energy resources, telecommunications, and air travel are fast becoming the world's largest.

Future economic growth and job creation in the United States is closely linked to our ability to identify and secure opportunities in the world's fastest growing economies. The East-West Center provides leadership and advice on economic issues, including APEC [Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation] and the U.S.-Pacific Island Joint Commercial Commission.

Mr. President, given the strategic and economic importance of the Asia-Pacific region to U.S. interests, and the credibility and trust enjoyed by the East-West Center in the region, I believe it is unwise to slash funding for the Center. We have closed, or are in the process of closing, AID offices in the region. These actions are sending signals to our friends and others in the region that our interest is waning.

For over 3 decades we have invested in the East-West Center, creating an important resource that provides understanding and cooperation, provides expertise on complex regional issues, and advises U.S. foreign policy decisionmaking. If we fail to provide the Center adequate funding and a reasonable transition period to self-sufficiency, we will discard a valuable resource—a first-class institution that has earned an international reputation for its research scholarship and academic freedom. Given the importance of Asia and the Pacific Islands to our interests and security, such action is short-sighted and ill- advised. I urge my colleagues to support our amendment.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, one of the things that is deficient, in my view, about the legislation before us—and I will shortly send an amendment to the desk about it—is that I think we have worked out—and that is, in fairness to my friend from Texas, the chairman of the committee, in his, if I have this correct, 602(b) allocation. Initially, he got less money on that allocation, I am not being critical of the chairman. He got less money in that allocation than was needed to fund some of the things I think he believes should have been funded, and I strongly believe, along with Senator HATCH and a number of my Republican as well as Democratic colleagues, should be funded.

In this case the present appropriations bill before us funds the Violence Against Women Act law at $75 million less than what was needed. It is funded at $100 million. I am going to shortly send an amendment to the desk to increase that funding. I ask to be corrected if I am mistaken here, but I will, on behalf of Senator GRAMM and myself, send to the desk, along with Senators HATCH and WELLSTONE and others, an amendment that would restore the $75 million in this account.

I understand the reason we have been able to work this out is a consequence of the cooperation of the distinguished chairman of the full committee and the ranking member of the subcommittee, this subcommittee, who have come up with this agreement that, in turn, has had the effect of providing an additional $75 million for the violent crime trust fund. It is that from which this is funded.

Of all the legislation I have ever worked on here in the Senate, this one, the Violence Against Women Act, has been, in my case, my first priority and proceeded on its accomplishment. When I passed the Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support I was hopeful that support would be maintained. Frankly, I lost faith there for a little while when the appropriations bill first came out. I am actually waiting for the amendment so I can send it to the desk. I will explain the rest of it while I am waiting.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield for an observation?

Mr. BIDEN. I will be happy to yield for an observation.

Mr. DOMENICI. I do not raise this officially, but I do not believe the Senator can offer an amendment at this point. I do not believe this amendment is amendable at this point.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I say to my friend from New Mexico, I have overwhelming confidence in his parliamentary ability. If he says it, there must be a likelihood he is correct, in which case I make a parliamentary inquiry: When is it appropriate for the Senator from Delaware to introduce an amendment that would, in fact, restore the $75 million to the violence against women account?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. When we dispose of the Hatfield amendment.

Mr. BIDEN. That is a very useful piece of information, Mr. President. I thank him very much, and, if it is appropriate, I ask unanimous consent that, upon disposal of the Hatfield amendment, I be recognized to offer my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DOMENICI. Reserving the right to object, I will not object if I can add my unanimous consent to it that immediately thereafter we have a Domenici amendment on legal services.

Mr. BIDEN. I ask unanimous consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I will just take a moment, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I say to my colleague from New Mexico, I will just take a minute.

Mr. DOMENICI. No problem.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I want to just emphasize what the Senator from Delaware said, including being an original cosponsor to this amendment. I will wait. I am very pleased an agreement has been worked out. I will wait until the Senator from Delaware introduces this amendment. My understanding is we have a good agreement here. At that point in time I would like to talk about the importance of what we have done.

So I just ask unanimous consent I be included as an original cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Is there further debate on the amendment?

The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I would like to ask Senator HATFIELD, the sponsor of the amendment, a clarification question.

First of all, I strongly compliment my colleague on the amendment. I certainly intend wholeheartedly to support it. Under Small Business Administration you have an overall $30 million add-on. Am I correct that in the specifics, that for women's outreach programs, you have increased that to $4 million?

Mr. HATFIELD. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. And for the information centers, women's counseling, $200,000. Is that correct?

Mr. HATFIELD. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Senator.

Mr. HATFIELD. Those are within the overall 30.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Senator for his answers. I want to commend him for that.

I want to suggest that, if there is any area that we are being successful as a nation in encouraging new entrants into the business field, it is women ownership of business. It is skyrocketing in America, and some of it has to do with very effective programs when you are bringing women in and they are talking about what they might want to do in business, and providing a lot of information about how to obtain loans and the like. I think we ought to maximize that effort at this point. I thank the Senator for that.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate on the amendment? If not, the question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Oregon.

The amendment (No. 2814) was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I thank Senator GRAMM, and Senator HOLLINGS particularly for his cosponsorship.

I also want to thank Scott Gudes, Scott Corwin, David Taylor, and Mark Van de Water, four members of our respective staffs who sat up and worked well out in detail until about 2 a.m. this morning.

They certainly deserve the accolades and appreciation of the whole Senate.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I want to particularly thank Mark Van de Water of Senator HATFIELD's staff. We really appreciate it very, very much.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from Delaware is recognized.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I would like to ask unanimous consent that anyone who wishes to be added as a cosponsor on this amendment be able to do so.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2855

(Purpose: To restore funding for grants to combat violence against women)

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Delaware (Mr. BIDEN), for himself, Mr. HATCH, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr.
Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 25, line 19, strike "$100,900,000" and insert "$175,400,000".

On page 25, line 22, strike "$24,350,000" and insert "$6,000,000".

On page 26, line 1, strike "$51,000,000" and insert "$30,000,000".

On page 26, line 7, strike "$56,000,000" and insert "$7,000,000".

On page 28, line 3, after "Act:" the following: "$1,000,000 for training programs to assist probation and parole officers who work with released sex offenders, as authorized by section 40152(c) of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994; $5,000,000 for Federal victim's counselors, as authorized by section 40114 of that Act; $50,000 for grants for televised testimony, as authorized by section 1001(a)(7) of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968; $200,000 for the study of State databases on the incidence of sexual and domestic violence, as authorized by section 40632 of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994; $1,500,000 for national stalker and domestic violence prosecution reduction, as authorized by section 40603 of that Act."

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I offer this amendment to restore $75 million in funding for the Justice Department programs contained in the Violence Against Women Act, and I am pleased that many of my colleagues, including Senator GRAMM of Texas and Senator HATCH of Utah, are cosponsors of this amendment.

Of all the legislation I have ever worked on here in the Senate, this one—last year's Violence Against Women Act—has been my first priority and my proudest accomplishment. When it passed with overwhelming bipartisan support, I thought we were well on our way to making a significant commitment to the women of America. I thought we made more than a paper commitment. But passing the law, without following through and providing the funding is meaningless.

For too long, we have looked the other way when it comes to this kind of violence. For too long, we have turned our back on the women injured by men who say they love them. For too long, we have considered this kind of violence a private misfortune rather than a public injustice.

Last year, we took a historic step in the right direction when we passed the Violence Against Women Act. We made a commitment to the women and children of this country. We said: We will no longer look the other way—the violence of our future will no longer be yours alone. Help is on the way.

And just in case my colleagues have forgotten, let me once again remind them of the dimensions of this problem:

The No. 1 threat to the health of America's women is a violent attack at the hands of a man. It is not breast cancer, it's not heart attacks, it's not strokes. Its violence against women by men.

These attacks have many names. They are called rape, assault, felonies. And the attackers have many faces. They are friends, relatives, spouses, and strangers.

The statistics are terrifying: Every 18 seconds, a woman is beaten by her spouse, boyfriend, or other intimate partner.

Every 5 minutes, a woman is raped. Nearly two out of three female victims of violence are related to, or know, their attackers.

As many as 35 percent of all women who visit emergency rooms are there because of family violence.

This violence also takes a tragic toll on our children:

Three million children each year witness violence in their homes. Studies show that these kids are more likely to drop out of school; abuse alcohol and drugs; be violent to their peers; and, sadly, grow up to be abusers themselves.

The violence against women is a matter of our Nation's collective moral conscience as it does the failure of our Nation's laws and regulations.

How else can we explain the results of a study of junior high school students conducted in Rhode Island a few years ago?

In the study, the students were asked: When does a man have the right to have sexual intercourse with a woman without her consent? It seems like an outrageous question doesn't it? But 80 percent of the students said that a man had the right to use force on his wife, 70 percent said he had the right to use force if the couple was engaged, and 61 percent said force was OK if the couple had already had sexual relations, and 30 percent said force was justified if the man knew the woman had had sex with other men.

And the appalling answers do not stop. About 25 percent of the boys said it was OK to force sex on a girl if the boy had spent $10 on her—and, astonishingly, 20 percent of the girls who were interviewed agreed.

If these are the attitudes we have communicated to our youth, it is hardly surprising that we tolerate a level of violence against women unprecedented in our history.

Somehow, we seem to forget that a society suffers what it tolerates.

That's why we cannot retreat from the commitment we made last year with passage of the Violence Against Women Act. The act, let me remind my colleagues, has four basic goals: To make our streets and homes safer for women; to make the criminal justice system more responsive to women; to start changing attitudes—beginning with our kids—about violence against women; and to extend to women the equal protection of our Nation's laws.

The Senate, the House, and the President—we all agreed last year that Federal dollars should be committed to these goals. Specifically, we authorized funding to:

• Hire more police and prosecutors specially trained and devoted to combating family violence.

• Train police, prosecutors, and judges in the ways of family violence—so they can better understand and respond to the problem.

• Implement tougher arrest policies, including mandatory arrest for anyone who violates a protection order—so that the burden of seeking an arrest does not fall on the women who may fear further violence.

• Expand and improve victim-service programs and provide specially trained family violence court advocates.

• Fund rape crisis centers and open more battered women shelters; and

• Fund family violence education courses in our schools.

In the past 12 months, the Violence Against Women Act has already been put into action. In States and communities all across the country, Federal dollars are helping coalitions of police, prosecutors, judges, and victim service organizations work together—to make arrests, win convictions, secure tough sentences, and offer women the information and practical resources they need.

As many of you may already know, the first conviction and sentencing under the act took place recently in West Virginia.

It is a case about Christopher Bailey and his wife, Sonja, and it is enough to take your breath away. Christopher Bailey severely beat Sonja, forced her into the trunk of his car, and drove aimlessly across West Virginia and Kentucky for 6 days.

Sonja suffered massive head injuries and severe kidney and liver dysfunctions. Her face was black and blue, and her eyes were swollen shut. She had bruises on her neck, wrists, and ankles.

Today, Sonja remains in a coma. Christopher Bailey was convicted under a new provision in the Violence Against Women Act, and for kidnapping.

Early this month he was sentenced to serve the rest of his days in prison.

Obviously, Bailey's conviction won't bring Sonja out of her coma. But it does send a clear message all across our land: violence against women will not be tolerated—it will be punished, and it will be punished severely.

Today, we here in the Senate must send that same message. We must keep the promise we made last year, and restore funding for the Justice Department programs authorized by the Violence Against Women Act.

Last year, the Congress authorized over $176 million for the Violence Against Women Act Justice Department programs. The funding was cut by the Senate Committee by $76 million from these programs.

The most devastating cut was made to the grant program at the heart of... the act: The program to bring together State and local police, prosecutors, and victims advocates to target family violence and rape.

Last year, we authorized $30 million for that program. This bill only allocates $21 million—so $9 million dollars were cut. Police, prosecutors, and victim services grants—that means more than 1 out of every 2 dollars were cut. This is money for more police and prosecutors to crack down on violence against women; to train police, prosecutors so they can understand better and respond more effectively to violence against women; and to develop, enlarge and strengthen programs for victims of violence—like rape crisis centers, battered women’s shelters, and special victim advocates.

This bill also cuts $1 million earmarked especially for rural areas to combat family violence, and the bill completely eliminated the $1.5 million targeted to combat stalking against women.

In restoring $75 million in funding for the Violence Against Women Act, this amendment does not take any new money out of the taxpayer’s pockets. Instead, the money comes out of other places in the bill—where there’s much more money appropriated than was requested by the President.

These cuts would have had a devastating impact on the lives of women and children in America. I am pleased that so many of my colleagues are joining me in restoring virtually all of the funding for the Violence Against Women Act.

Let me also point out: the Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, chaired by my distinguished friend and colleague from Pennsylvania, Senator Specter, has recommended full funding for the Violence Against Women Act programs within the jurisdiction of the Department of Health and Human Services for rape education and prevention, domestic violence community demonstration projects, a domestic violence hotline, and battered women shelters.

In fact, recognizing the urgency of this problem, the subcommittee wrote in an additional $2.4 million for battered women shelters—shelters which serve as a refuge for women and their children when they are hurt and most vulnerable—and in greatest need of our compassion and support.

I applaud the subcommittee’s efforts to honor the commitment that we made last year to the women and children of America. And I hope that when the HHS appropriations bill comes to the floor, the full Senate will honor that commitment as well.

But right here, right now, we must not walk away from this fight. We cannot—we must not—turn back now. For too long, our society has turned its back on the nightmare that is violence against women.

Obviously, we cannot legislate humanity and kindness. And we cannot outlaw hatred and ignorance. But we can help make America a safer place for women—and I call on everyone here to help do just that. I hope all of my colleagues will join me in restoring full funding to the Violence Against Women Act programs. The women and children of America are counting on us.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an original cosponsor, and Senator Kerry of Massachusetts, Senator Gramm of Texas is already the original cosponsor, Senator Hatch, Senator Boxer, Senator Wellstone, and others who will come to the floor I am sure who wish to be part of this amendment. I ask unanimous consent that they be added.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Biden. Mr. President, in the interest of time because there are other amendments and a lot more to do on this bill, let me briefly explain this amendment and then yield to the chairman of the subcommittee for any comments that he would like to make, and I surely know the mechanics of this better than I.

Mr. President, in order to restore every single piece of the Violence Against Women Act funding, there is a requirement that would be required that we would have to have had $76.7 million.

Just to give my colleagues an idea what I mean about that, the violence against women grants; pro-arrest policy; rural domestic violence, court-appointed special counsel, national stalker reduction, training programs, Federal victims counselors, grants for televised testimony, State databases, national baseline study for campus sexual assault, equal justice for women in courts, training for Federal and judicial personnel, Federal Judicial Center, and Administrative Office of the Courts, are all recipients of some portion of the violence against women funding.

Unfortunately, all we have available is $75 million, not $76.7 million to make this account totally whole.

So my amendment lays out which portions of all of those functions that I have just read are fully funded and which are not able to be funded with this addition of $75 million.

I want to put this in context. We are going to be funding $175 million out of $76.7 million. This is a $75 million increase. I wish it were a $76.7 million increase, but then again, as my friend, the chairman of the full committee is saying, I am being a little greedy in that regard. I realize every program has to take a little bit of hit.

So what it all adds up to is we add $75 million in the accounts that we may call the violence against women grants, pro-arrest policy, the rural domestic violence, court-appointed advocate programs, national stalker legislation, training programs, Federal victims counselors—we are not able to fully fund the grants for televised testimony. That was originally in our legislation—$250 million. It is funded at only $50 million. We fund the legal aid fully for the National Legal Aid and Defender Corporation.

So that is what the additional $75 million goes to make whole.

I would be delighted to yield to the chairman of the committee for any comments, and thank him, by the way, for keeping—as he always does with me and with everyone else I know—a commitment. He told me that if he had the money he would make this account at least mostly whole. He got the money, and he did just that. And I thank him for that.

I yield the floor.

Mr. Gramm addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. Gramm. Mr. President, let me thank Senator Biden for working with me on this amendment. We had provided in the appropriations bill a tripling of funding for violence against women, which represented our largest increase in expenditure in the bill. Our problem was that, given the overall financial constraint we had, there was no way we could fund the authorized level of the program.

So Senator Biden and I were in a position that we both wanted to provide more money. This has been one of the top priorities of the bill. But yet we were still short of the full program that the Senate had authorized.

When the distinguished chairman of the committee allocated additional funds to the subcommittee, as he did in his amendment that was just adopted a moment ago, it allowed us to go ahead and to fully fund this program.

I am, therefore, very happy to join my colleague from Delaware in this amendment. I think given the funds that are now available that this represents a wise expenditure of money.

I join my colleague in supporting this amendment, and urge our colleagues to adopt it.

I yield the floor.

Mr. Wellstone addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. Wellstone. Mr. President, I would like to thank both of my colleagues, the Senator from Delaware, and the Senator from Texas and, of course, the Senator from Oregon, Chairman Hatfield.

I yield the floor to the Senator from Utah whom I think has been a real leader in this area. I am really pleased that we have come together in a bipartisan way on this issue.
Mr. President, I could take a tremendous amount of time. But I think there are other Senators who want to make some brief comments on this as well. So let me just try to summarize several hours worth of what I would like to say on this issue.

In my State of Minnesota I think a lot of people are lighting a candle in this area. The statistics nationally are really grim. I think the FBI statistics is something like every 15 seconds a woman is battered in our country.

Mr. President, I think that we are taking this seriously now in a way that we have not before as a country, both as a crime and also in terms of the kind of things that we need to do to prevent it.

Mr. President, I think what this Violence Against Women Act funding does—I am so pleased that we were able to go up from $100 million to $175 million—is it provides funds to communities who can make good and positive things happen.

Mr. President, I think this is not bragging to say that Minnesota really is one of the leaders in the Nation—I think I would probably argue leader in the Nation. I think the general view that we have in my State is we are never going to be able to reduce the violence in our communities unless we are able to reduce the violence in our homes. It spills out into the streets. It spills out into the neighborhoods. It spills out into the community.

I think the second view that we have in Minnesota—and I think it is a view around the country—is that, whereas, when I was a kid, if we knew something was wrong in another home, whether it be a woman who was battered or a child—sometimes a man, but unfortunately mainly women and children, not that I think it is good that men are battered—I think it is awful that so many women and children have to pay this price. I think now we have reached the conclusion, as opposed to a point in time when we said it was no one’s business, I think we are now seeing it as everybody’s business. This is the kind of problem that could be tackled at the community level. It is the kind of problem that could be tackled by the law enforcement community. It is the kind of problem that could be tackled by the clergy. It is the kind of problem that can be tackled by women and others who are working there in the trenches in the battered women’s shelters. It is the kind of problem that can be tackled in our schools where children learn alternatives to violence as a way of solving disputes. We really think as a country we can take this problem on.

I think this amendment which has been accepted by both sides is an extremely powerful, an extremely personal, and an extremely important message by the U.S. Senate that we are not going to back down from this national commitment.

I am proud to be a cosponsor. I thank the Senator from Delaware for his very fine remarks.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise in support of this amendment. I thank my colleagues, Senator Biden, for his leadership in this area.

Mr. President, this really has a dramatic imprint on America. It is already starting to put people in jail that are violating the rights of women in our society. Frankly, it is a tough law. It is a good law. It is one that needs to be fully funded, and I am happy that we have the cooperation and the support of the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee in this matter as well.

As most of my colleagues are aware, I have long opposed programs I believed were mere pork projects. In fact, I led the battle against last year’s crime bill. I remember that it had ballooned in terms of unjustified costs.

The Violence Against Women Act, however, is an important program that deserves to be fully funded. The act provides for: Rape prevention education; battered women shelters; grants to encourage prevention of domestic violence; prosecution of domestic violence cases; the investigation and prosecution of domestic violence and child abuse in rural areas; treatment and counseling for victims; and for developing community domestic violence and child abuse programs.

These programs are important. Prosecutors and police officers must become more sensitized to the problem of violence against women. Women who are abused by their spouses must have a place to stay and must have counseling available to repair their shattered lives. Resources need to be channeled to stem the tide of violence directed against women.

Mr. President, no matter what anybody says, violence against women is a problem in America today. According to the Justice Department data, nearly half a million women were forcibly raped last year—a half million, in the greatest society in the world.

Some studies estimate that the total number of rapes including those not reported to the authorities exceed 2 million women a year. That is outrageous and it has to stop.

Indeed, according to a recent report by the Bureau of Justice Statistics, a woman faces four times the chance of being raped today than in 1960. Similarly, domestic violence strikes at the heart of the most important political unit in America, and that is the family. The family should be a safe harbor for those tossed about by the storms of life, not a place of abuse or of degradation. It is a sad fact of life, however, that the reports of domestic violence have been on the rise.

To this end, Senator Biden, Senator Specter, and I worked last year to see that the Violence Against Women Act was signed into law. According to both the House and Senate Appropriations Committees, however, the Justice Department has only spent $2 million of the total $25 million provided for fiscal year 1995. We have to restore this funding. The act is a small, albeit vital, step toward addressing the problem of family violence and violence against women generally.

So I certainly urge all colleagues to be supportive of this amendment. I am pleased to stand and support this excellent bill, and I compliment my friend and colleague from Delaware for his leadership in this bill as those in the Chamber and others who have contributed to the bill and to the funding of it. And I particularly thank my colleagues on the Appropriations Committee for their willingness to fully fund this bill.

I yield the floor.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I join my colleagues in saying a few words in support of this amendment. I particularly thank the Senator from Delaware, Senator Biden, for negotiating on our behalf on this side of the aisle, his conversations with the administration, and with all of us, the dialog that he engaged in an effort to try to achieve a sensible strategy to save some of the programs in a bill that to many of us is still flawed.

The Senator from Utah just talked about rape and the problem of violence with respect to rape in particular, but the truth is that family violence, as we have all learned, is the No. 1 cause of all kinds of physical injury to women in this country. And when you translate the effect of family violence into the impact on several million young children, that impact plays out in a way that diminishes the capacity of those children to be able to learn, to be able to go to school, to be able to carry normal relationships, and that flows into their adolescence and subsequent adulthood in ways that simply diminish the capacity of people to be able to participate as good citizens.

We all deplore the implosion within a large segment of America’s population with respect to a fundamental structure—the family. Finally, with the Violence Against Women Act, we gave people hope that a particular kind of behavior was going to be properly singled out and treated. To have even thought of doing away with it was astonishing to me.

We do not need to talk further about that because we are restoring it. I am glad that the Senate has come to its senses with respect to it.

I might mention that the Violence Against Women Act not only speaks to the problem of the physical abuse against a woman. We just had a very long debate about welfare and the family cap. And my good friend from New Mexico, Senator S 姓氏, spoke extraordinarily eloquently in the Chamber about the problem of punishing innocent children and creating further problems in the cycle but also about the problem of increased incentive to have abortions as a consequence of illegitimate pregnancies.

Mr. President, when you consider violence against women, the truth is—and it has been ignored by prosecutors across the country—that one-half of all women murdered in America were killed by a man, and a woman's life is at stake when you take a look at the serious crimes committed by those who have committed domestic violence. A 10-year study found that over one half of all women murdered in America were killed by a man, and a woman's life is at stake when you take a look at the serious crimes committed by those who have committed domestic violence.

A Congressman has just been tried on charges of murder and sexual assault of a 7-year-old girl. The last time most of us looked, that constituted statutory rape in this country. And the truth is, if there was a stronger capacity within the welfare system to identify those people, we might begin to hold people accountable for their actions, but not do it in a way that creates a huge problem for the totally innocent child born as a consequence of those actions.

So, Mr. President, I congratulate the Senator from Delaware. I think this is a very important outcome. And I thank the Senator from Texas for acknowledging that this act that only recently went into effect is working, it is having a profound impact and it is healthy for this country to allow it to continue to work.

Mr. BRADLEY. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Biden amendment to increase by $75 million the appropriation for enforcement of the Violence Against Women Act. As an original co-sponsor of the amendment, it is vitally important that Congress does not waiver in its commitment to ensure that women in America are free from the devastation of domestic violence.

Domestic violence is a social sickness, and women and children are its most common casualties. Violence against women in the home is a heinous crime being committed behind locked doors and pulled shades in cities and towns across America. By committing this additional funding to the Violence Against Women's Act, Congress will give women the tools to bring this crime out of the shadows.

Mr. President, a policeman recently said, "The most dangerous place to be is in one's home between Saturday night at 6 p.m. and Sunday at 6 p.m." He forgot to add, "Especially if you're a woman." A 10-year study found that in cases where the identity of the killer is known, over one half of all women murdered in America were killed by a current or former partner or a male family member. Studies have also shown that violence against women in the home causes more total injuries to women than rape, muggings, and car accidents combined.

In my home State of New Jersey, there were 66,248 domestic violence offenses reported by the police in 1993. Overall, women were the victims in 83 percent of all domestic violence offenses. Mr. President, 41 women lost their lives as a result of domestic violence disputes in my home State in 1993. These are not nameless, faceless statistics, Mr. President, these are women who endured torture and abuse for years during their marriages and were violently murdered.

Mr. President, I have introduced a bill to create community response teams around the country. Community response teams work in tandem with police to help victims of domestic violence right when a crisis occurs. By working together, community response teams and police can provide victims with the services so essential to them after they have been battered or beaten in their homes.

Mr. President, an increasing number of jurisdictions in the State of New Jersey are employing community response teams. For example, in Middlesex County, which includes South River, New Jersey, the community response teams with community response teams. South River, with a population of approximately 15,000, has a community response team employing 7 community volunteers. In Woodbridge, a community response team employing 30 volunteers is serving a population of 100,000. These community response teams, serving both large and small communities, are effectively assisting women who are suffering physical and mental abuse.

Mr. President, Violence Against Women's Act funding is available for these successful programs in New Jersey to continue to aid victims of domestic violence. In addition, Violence Against Women's Act funding will assist in the fight against domestic violence by providing needed resources to prosecutors and police officers.

Mr. President, if domestic violence is to be obliterated in our society, we need to provide communities with the resources they need to prevent instances of violence and protect victims from further abuse. By providing additional funding to the Violence Against Women's Act, Congress will strengthen the lines of defense in the battle against domestic violence.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Biden amendment, which restores the $75 million shortfall in funding for programs designed to prevent violence against women.

After years of hearings, reports and statistics we learned that our society and our criminal justice system has been ignoring violence against women, often with tragic consequences for women, their children, and ultimately, for society.

We learned that one-fifth of all aggravated assaults in the United States occurred in the home; 3 to 4 million American women a year are victims of family violence; one-third of all American women who are murdered die at the hands of a husband or boyfriend; one-third of all women who go to emergency rooms in this country are there because of family violence; an estimated one-half of the victims of rape never see their attacker caught, tried or imprisoned; over half of all rape prosecutions are either dismissed before trial or result in an acquittal; and almost half of all convicted rapists can expect to serve an average of a year or less behind bars.

The solution to the problem is not to treat women as victims—it is empowerment. And that is what the act does. It allows women to take control of their lives, such things as rape prevention programs or counseling provided at federally funded battered women's shelters.

The Violence Against Women Act is the first comprehensive approach to all forms of violence against women. The law made a substantial commitment of Federal funds over a 6-year period to combat family violence and sexual assault. The commitment made funds resources and support to those devoted to responding to and preventing violence against women.

I urge every Senator to support this amendment. Let us not go back on our promises made to the women of this country.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise in support of Senator BIDEN'S amendment to restore full funding for the Violence Against Women Act. This amendment would restore $76 million to programs in the Violence Against Women Act that include help for police, prosecutors, and victims advocates to target family violence and rape; programs to reduce sexual abuse and exploitation of young people; training for judges and prosecutors on issues as rape prevention programs or counseling provided at federally funded battered women's shelters.

This amendment was promised to the women of this country.

Last year, $240 million was promised by Congress for the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) programs for fiscal year 1996—$176.7 million for VAWA programs administered by the Department of Justice, and $61.9 million for VAWA programs administered by the Department of Health and Human Services.

All of this is funded out of $4.2 billion provided by the crime trust fund in 1996. Funding in the crime trust fund comes from eliminating 123,000 federal jobs and cutting domestic discretionary spending. Full funding of the Violence Against Women Programs has no effect on the budget deficit and requires no new taxes. Now, I want my... colleagues to clearly understand what this all means. Last year, as a country we decided that addressing crime was a top priority. We decided that savings from streamlining the Federal Government and cutting other domestic programs might not be worth the tradeoff.

As a country we made a commitment to breaking the cycle of violence and see that a person's home is the safest place it should be. Last year, as part of the crime bill Congress passed the Violence Against Women Act, we made a bipartisan commitment to address domestic violence. But now, only a year later, we are considering a bill to cut funding for these programs.

I must, at the same time, commend my colleagues on the Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor/HHS for their efforts and wisdom in more than fully funding the Violence Against Women Act Program under their jurisdiction.

But we must remember all the programs in the Violence Against Women Act, and Senator Biden and others worked for years on this piece of legislation. All the pieces of it fit together. They all must be in place for it to work effectively. For example, we can encourage arrests by police officers but if law enforcement officers are not properly trained to understand the dynamics of domestic violence, an arrest could make the situation more explosive. Likewise, if batterers are being arrested but judges are not trained to understand or take domestic violence seriously, batterers are likely to go free or charged with lesser offenses.

Violence Against Women Act programs must be fully funded. Anything less would result in a betrayal of the bipartisan promise Congress made. Domestic violence should be a priority for national crime-fighting efforts. But without adequate funding we cannot address this serious problem.

We know all too well that it is the violence that seems to have disappeared from our streets. If we do not stop the violence in the home, we will never stop it in the streets. We knew this when we passed the crime bill last year and it is still true today.

Domestic violence is one of the most serious issues we face. It knows no borders. Neither race, gender, geographic or economic status shields someone from domestic violence. As a matter of fact, next week my wife, Shelley, is sponsoring the display of 50 photographs by Donna Ferrato, an award-winning photojournalist. These photographs provide powerful and graphic evidence of this crisis, and I invite my colleagues to view them. I am only disappointed that these photos could not be displayed while we debate this issue.

Mr. President, nationwide, every 15 seconds a woman is beaten by a husband or boyfriend, over 4,000 women are killed every year by their abuser, and every 6 minutes a woman is forcibly raped.

We know that the majority, 70 percent, of men who batter women also batter their children. Or children may be injured during an incident of parental battery. We also know that 25-45 percent of all women who are battered are battered during pregnancy. Batterers during pregnancy is the most common cause of birth defects.

Children are also battered or abused emotionally by witnessing the abuse of their mothers. They are traumatized by fear for their mother and their own helplessness in protecting her. They may blame themselves for not preventing the violence or for all the other messages they get. This can manifest itself in aggression, sleeping disorders, or withdrawal.

When a woman and her children are struggling to leave violent homes, they face many barriers. Many people ask why she does not leave? Often the response to this question is merely another question: why does he beat her? I feel that particular response ignores the realities of women's lives. One reason women do not leave is fear. If she leaves, the abuser will kill her. Batterers often threaten to harm or take the children away to force her to stay. Leaving him never guarantees safety for a woman or her children. In almost three-quarters of reported spousal assaults, the victim was divorced or separated at the time of the attack.

Women are also dependent on the abusers for financial resources. If they decide to leave, often they can not afford housing or food for themselves and children.

Abusers also play on emotions to trap victims into staying. He will threaten to kill himself. This plays on many victims desires not for the marriage to end, just the violence.

Domestic violence is a community issue. It is no longer an issue for women; it is an issue for all women, men, and children. Communities need to work together. It was the Violence Against Women Act that was intended not only to strengthen the laws concerning general violence, it was to provide some of the necessary resources to communities to address the violence in their own communities.

It was intended to help law enforcement officers to make responsible arrests and understand the dynamics of domestic violence—to learn not ask her what she did to make him mad. It was to help train judges to treat domestic violence as a crime and hold the abusers accountable for their violence.

How ironic it is that last year around this time we were celebrating the passage of the Violence Against Women Act. We were celebrating because, finally the Federal Government had taken a very bold step to make the protection of women in their homes a top priority for this Nation. And now, 2 days before the beginning of Domestic Violence Awareness Month we are considering a bill that cuts the funding for these important programs.

As I travel and meet more and more women and children who are victims of domestic violence, I become even more outraged that a woman's home can be the most dangerous, violent, or deadly place she can be; if she is a mother, the same is true for her children. It was with the passage of the Violence Against Women Act that Congress said loudly and clearly it is time to stop the violence, it is time to make homes safe again, and it is time to help communities across the country deal with this crisis.

Without full funding, Congress will turn its back on women and their families. And it will turn its back on the communities struggling to deal with increasing crime.

I urge my colleagues to support the Biden amendment.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I would first like to thank my colleague from Delaware, Senator Biden, for crafting and offering this amendment as well as my colleague from Utah, Senator HATCH, for his leadership.

Mr. President, I want to speak to you today not just as a U.S. Senator, or a citizen of Maine, or even as a Republican. I want to speak to you as a woman, and I want to speak to you on behalf of the 135 million women of America about an issue that has more likely than not touched each of our lives at some point in time.

Let me just say that it is not an uncommon occurrence in Congress for either Chamber to authorize funding for a particular program but not to fully fund that program at the authorized levels. It happens often, and, in some circumstances, there may be justifiable reasons to take such a course of action. By not fully funding some wasteful programs, we might even save the taxpayers of America some of their hard earned tax dollars and use them towards programs that work and that make a difference in the daily lives of America's families.

But I think it would come as a great surprise to many Americans—especially to those 135 million women—to know that a program such as the Violence Against Women Act, which was passed as part of last year's crime bill in Congress, has not yet been fully funded.

Now, I think it is safe to say that the Violence Against Women Act is one program that deserves its full funding. It is not wasteful. It is not unnecessary—and should not be—a target of waste watchers. And it is not to be overlooked. But it has been.

Fortunately, today, we have an opportunity to correct this oversight.

For those who may be wary of its funding—or who may doubt its necessity in this era of penny-pinching and budget scrutiny—let me just take a moment to paint a picture of life in America's streets and homes for some women.

It is a picture where more than 2.5 million women annually are victims of violent crimes.

It is a picture where an estimated 5,000 women are beaten to death each year.
It is a picture where in the 1990's, one out of every eight women have been the victim of a forcible rape.

It is a picture where every 15 seconds in America, a woman is battered—and where every 6 minutes, a woman is raped.

It is a picture where, between 1969 and 1993, the number of known rape offenses increased by 11 percent—despite more awareness of violence against women.

It is a picture where a woman in our country is more likely to be assaulted, injured, raped, or killed by a male partner than by any other assailant.

It is a picture where at least a third of all female emergency room patients are battered women, while a third of all homeless women and children are without shelter because they are fleeing domestic violence.

And the litany of tragedy and violence goes on to paint an even fuller, starker, and more disheartening picture.

This is an issue about a woman’s safety, a woman’s rights, and our ability as a nation to protect those inalienable rights as guaranteed under the Constitution.

But how can we defend a woman’s right to “life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness” when we cannot protect her from “rape, battery, and the onslaught of violence.”

Mr. BIDEN. The Violence Against Women Act is a critical tool in our fight to combat domestic violence across America. It is an essential bill for our mothers, our daughters, our sisters, our relatives, our friends, and our coworkers.

It contains provisions that enhance penalties for sex offenders; provides grants to States to improve law enforcement, prosecution, and victims services in cases of violent crimes against women; authorizes over $200 million for rape prevention and education programs; provides funds for the creation of a national domestic violence hotline as well as battered women’s shelters; and does much more.

These provisions will help become a shield for women and deliver justice to victims of hateful and brutal assaults. Already, within the past year, two individuals have been imprisoned for life terms under this act for beating their spouses or girlfriends.

While I will be the first to say that violence knows no gender barriers and is clearly a threat to both men and women alike, no one can turn a blind eye to the fact that women are especially to be found in the scope of danger and crime.

Consider that women are six times—6 times—more likely than men to experience violence committed by an intimate. Consider that women and girls are victimized by relatives at four times the rate of males. And consider that a third of all known 95 percent of violence victims are, in fact, women.

But the men of America have a stake in this legislation as well, which is why the fight here on the floor has been joined by such men as Senators BIDEN and HATCH. Namely, the fathers, sons, and brothers of the women of America who face the threat of violence each and every day. They deserve to know that they mean the most to them and their lives are safe on the streets of our cities.

It is for these reasons that I and 29 of my Senate colleagues requested that we fully fund the Violence Against Women Act in an August 9 letter to the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The Violence Against Women Act should be fully funded as it is supposed to be fully paid for out of the crime trust fund that Congress created last year. But the bill before us does not provide for it. Rather, the moneys within the crime trust fund have been what they call “re-prioritized,” which in English means that the Violence Against Women Act has been short-changed to the tune of about $75 million.

In fiscal year 1995, total funding for this program was $26 million. The House Appropriations Committee appropriated 30 percent of the program for fiscal year 1996, and the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee funded $100 million—a threefold increase over current funding, but still far short—woefully short—of what American women need and deserve to combat violence and domestic abuse.

Today, we are proposing a remedy to meet this crisis of funding head-on.

The amendment offered by the Senator from Delaware and the Senator from Texas provides the additional $75 million needed to fully fund the Violence Against Women Act.

Mr. President, let me conclude by saying that—as a former Cochair of the Congressional Caucus for Women’s Issues—I understand and know first-hand the importance of making women’s health and women’s safety a priority for Congress, because we must speak out for the 135 million women and girls of America.

We cannot let them down. We can no longer treat the Violence Against Women Act as a political football and simply fumble away women’s needs and concerns.

I urge my colleagues to support the Biden-Gramm amendment.

Mr. BIDEN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I was taught by a fellow from South Carolina when I first got here 23 years ago that when you won, sit down. I mean, we won in the sense that everyone wins here. Women of America win.

I would like to point out unanimous consent—I will be very brief—that the following Senators be also added as original cosponsors: Senator INOUYE, Senator AKAKA, Senator KOHL, Senator LEAHY, Senator HARKIN, and Senator SANTORUM, the Presiding Officer, from Pennsylvania.

Let me just say in closing, and then I will ask for the yeas and nays at that point, that there are certain facts people should keep in mind. I think of all the facts that affect women in this Nation as a consequence of violence, the thing that surprises me, that surprises most Americans most often are the following.

That family violence is the No. 1 cause of injury to adult women in America—No. 1, No. 1—not breast cancer, not heart attacks, not strokes. The No. 1 cause of injury to women in America is family violence, in almost every instance the fist of a man, supposedly someone who loves them.

The second point that people should keep in mind is that this is so important: Every 18 seconds a woman is beaten by her spouse, boyfriend, or other intimate partner in the United States, making the home the most dangerous place in the world to live for being a woman in a democracy. As many as 35 percent of all the women who will visit an emergency room in our cities tonight, one third of all the women who will walk into an emergency room in Washington, DC; Wilmington, DE; Boston, MA; Butte, MT, one third of them tonight who walk in will be there as a consequence of the fist of a man. How will it be there because a man has injured them.

Three million children a year witness family violence in their homes. And as a consequence, the statistics are overwhelming. I will not bore you, but these children significantly have a greater likelihood of dropping out of school, becoming alcohol and drug abusers. They are the highest percentage of suicide attempts, and, most frightening of all, they become abusers—abusers. They become the abusers.

So, for these and 1,000 other reasons we could all speak to, I think this is very, very important error we are correcting in this bill.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. BIDEN. I yield the floor.

Mr. GRAMM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I think we are going to decide to stack votes. So what I would like to do, unless someone else wants to change this amendment, is to suggest the absence of a quorum until we can decide if we are going to do that, in which case we would simply make this the first vote when we do the stacked votes.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, before the Senator suggests the speaking on a quorum, I want to make it clear it is perfectly fine with me whatever way the Senator wishes to proceed.

Mr. HATCH. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask if it would be permissible then to proceed simply to speak on some issues with respect to the crime bill instead of putting in a quorum call.

I know, Mr. President, that discussions are going on now. We are negotiating, and Senator Biden is representing us with respect to the issue of cops, police. I would like to talk for a few minutes, if I may, Mr. President, about this issue of cops. It is one that I have been deeply involved in and concerned about for all the time I have been in the Senate. And in the last few years we finally have been able to elicit a response to try to meet one of the great needs of the country.

There is not one of us who has not been touched at one time or another in one way or another and sometimes very personally. I remember listening to the Senator from North Dakota in his own personal tale of what happened to his wife right here over on Capitol Hill. There are dozens of other examples. We have had a Senator randomly shot while he was in Washington. We have had countless citizens in this city right around us shot. It is a war zone. It is the murder capital of the country. And it ought to have set a better example for what response should have been from the U.S. Congress.

Such a random act of violence occurred just a couple days ago in Massachusetts to a young prosecutor, Assistant Attorney General Paul McLaughlin, the son of a friend of mine, former Lieutenant Governor and U.S. attorney. But this young assistant attorney general, himself involved in working to fight the problem of gang warfare and gang criminal activity, was simply gunned down going to his car coming home in the evening after his normal 12-hour day in a prosecutor's office. A hooded young person walked up and blew him away.

I talked this afternoon with his father. And there is no way to express the sorrow that he and his family feel and no way for us to express our sorrow on their behalf.

But I can say, Mr. President, with clarity that what the State and local entities have been doing over the course of the past years and the Federal response to that is truly unConnellable because we have literally been disarming in the face of an increasing threat on an annual basis, a threat that is measurable. And all of us have come to understand, I hope finally, that nothing is more important in terms of really fighting crime than to put police officers on the streets of the country.

Mr. President, I have quoted the statistics before, but somehow they do not always seem to break through. But 15 years ago in this country we had 35 police officers per violent crime. Today we have, depending on the statistics, a range of 3.5 to 4.6 violent crimes per police officer. You can go into any of the major criminal activity communities in this country and you will find they are operating with less police today with a greater threat than they were 10 or 15 years ago with a lesser threat.

Ask anyone in those communities about the relationship between the community and police. By and large the police come in, they drive through in a car, they do not know them. It is a sign of transient authority, not the sign of a present authority that makes an impact on people's lives. The word "cop" came from the British concept of "constable on patrol." Does the police officer know the community? Does the police officer know the people? There was a relationship with the police officer. The police officer was a role model. So, indeed, criminal activity rarely took place right under the nose of a police officer on patrol.

Now, in recent days, we have sent a message to people in this country that this is a lesser threat. It is a much greater threat than they were 10 years ago. And it is an inadequate response. I say to my colleagues today that 100,000 police officers is an inadequate response. And what is really bizarre in this new equation we are debating in Washington, the two greatest public crises in America today—public safety—are already today 100 percent and 95 percent controlled at the local level.

So here we are with an implosion of capacity to resolve these problems at the local level, and we are busy saying we are going to go back to the local level more responsibility with less resources. If that does not underscore the need for more than the 100,000 police officers, I do not know what does. Here we are, for the first time in American history, the Federal Government is paying for local police officers.

Now, I hear some people around the country say, "What a fakery. You are only going to provide 20,000 police officers because you are not paying for the whole thing." Since when was it the responsibility of the Federal Government to pay for the whole thing? Every time we have had a Federal grant program, it would be with a matching grant requirement, 90 percent, 50 percent, or some percentage. Sometimes we continued the 90 percent-10 percent relationship for 10 years, 15 years.

In this particular case, we have decided that this is a local crisis that we want to ask the local communities and the States to accept what is already their responsibility—to put police officers on the street. We did not say we want to put floodlights on the jail, we want to put computers in the station, we want new cruisers on the road. We want to put police officers on the streets of this country because that is what we need to begin to regain and take back control over our communities and our streets.

In recent weeks and months, I have toured a lot of Massachusetts and gone into the communities that, because of our effort, have community policing. I can tell you about Northampton, MA. I can tell you about Gardner, MA. I can tell you about a host of areas, such as Boston and Lowell, where they now have community policing, and where they have been able to put it into effect and literally reclaim the community.

I was in a housing project where you now have community police officers on bicycles who ride around through the entire community, who walk around and play with the kids, who started basketball with the kids. The kids run up to them when they come into the area, instead of running away from them, which is what they used to do. These officers have helped literally to give that community hope.

In Lowell, on Bridge Street in Somerville, recently about a couple of years ago, druggies and prostitutes had taken over the street. Citizens were afraid to come out of their homes in the street because of the vermin that were in the street. I talked to storeowners who said that as a result of those druggies and prostitutes, their earnings have gone down and people would not come into the store anymore. Lo and behold, with a grant from the Federal Government, we opened a storefront police officers in that area; they are there all the time. The druggies are gone, the prostitutes are gone, the community has been reclaimed, and it is coming back to life.

Mr. President, in addition to that, the police officers have been able to intervene before crimes are committed. They have been able to get to know people, to know who the troublemaker is, who identify who belongs in the community, to be able to make determinations about who needs to be watched more closely, who needs help. By virtue of their intercessions, they have literally directed people into various human service treatment facilities or... functions where those people left to their own devices might well have pulled out a knife, a gun, or been one of the people in the statistics that the Senator from Delaware talked about earlier.

Mr. President, it works. It is working in America. Countless people have said, “You are not going to put more than 5,000 police on the street within a year. You are not going to put 15,000, you are never going to get to 20,000.” Well, more than 25,000 new police are on the streets and the particular emergency, we have tried to do it in a way that is administratively inexpensive. In fact, it is less expensive to implement the direct justice grant program of the crime bill with a cost of about 0.8 of a percent administratively than to administer the 2.5- to 3-percent administrative costs that will go with a block grant.

Moreover, under the block grant, there is absolutely no guarantee whatsoever that police officers will get to the street rather than the floodlights to the jails or the new cruisers to the station, or the new computer. And that is not to say those things are not important. It is not to say that people do not have a right to ask for those things and that they do not need them. But when 95 percent of the crime is a local jurisdiction, and the Federal Government is singling out a particular need and the particular emergency, we have a right to expect that that emergency is going to be met. And if one community does not need those police, Mr. President, I guarantee you there are 10 other communities in America that will gladly use the money to put police on the streets and make their citizens safer.

So, again, it is my hope that we will succeed in doing what we have already done, and no other community will be done in this fashion, that the amendment will not be undone in this legislation.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, unless someone suggests otherwise or to the contrary, I believe that the debate on the pending amendment No. 2815 is completed. A rollcall vote has been asked for by Senator BIDEN.

So I ask unanimous consent that the vote occur on amendment No. 2815 at 9 p.m. this evening, and that that amendment be temporarily laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from New Mexico is recognized to offer his amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield to the Senator from Arizona who has an inquiry to make.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized for 10 minutes to propose an amendment, at which time the amendment be set aside for the purposes of the Senator from New Mexico to propose an amendment, and ask that at least 20 minutes be reserved after the disposition of the amendment of the Senator from New Mexico that 20 minutes be allocated to the Senator from Colorado [Mr. Brown], and 10 minutes for the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. DORGAN].

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 2816

(Purpose: To Ensure competitive Bidding for DBS Spectrum)

Mr. MCCAIN. I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

I want to thank my friend from New Mexico for allowing me to propose this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

"The Senator from Arizona [Mr. MCCAIN] for himself and Mr. DORGAN, proposes an amendment numbered 2816."

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of the Pending Committee Amendment, insert the following new section:

SEC. 12. COMPETITIVE BIDDING FOR ASSIGNMENT OF DBS LICENSES.

No funds provided in this or any other Act shall be expended to take any action regarding the applications that bear Federal Communications Commission identification numbers DBS-94-1011EXT, DBS-94-1051ACCP, and DBS-94-1071MP; Provided further, that funds shall be made available for any action taken by the Federal Communications Commission to use the competitive bidding process prescribed in Section 305(j) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. § 305(j)) regarding the disposition of the 27 channels at 110° W. orbital location.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to be recognized for 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, this amendment ensures that the American people benefit from the sale of this spectrum.

The amendment does not choose winners or losers. It does not allow ACC, the corporation that sat on this spectrum for 10 years and did nothing to make a profit.

The amendment does not change the rules in the middle of the game. ACC never owned this spectrum, it received a license under certain terms—terms it never lived up to. The FCC therefore correctly withdrew ACC’s license and permission for it to construct a DBS system.

Most importantly for consumers, this amendment will not prevent new service from being offered to the general public, including service to those who live in Alaska and Hawaii. Those living in rural areas are also not adversely affected in any way by this amendment and the I want to note that the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association strongly supports this amendment.

Mr. President, let me lay out the facts surrounding this specific block of spectrum.

In 1984, the FCC divided a segment of the spectrum to be used for the broadcast of direct broadcast satellite [DBS] services. Under the terms of the agreement, spectrum would be allocated to the companies at no charge and in return, the companies would proceed diligently toward the construction of a DBS system.

Of all the spectrum allocated, only 3 blocks of spectrum—located at 101°, 110°, and 119°—cover the continental United States. These blocks are known as full-conus blocks and are considered by industry experts to have the highest dollar value.
DirecTV and Echostar were given two of the coast-to-coast U.S. blocks of spectrum.

Advanced Communications Corporation [ACC] was given the third full conus block, which consisted of 16 channels. The license grants a monopoly and shortchange the American people. ACC paid nothing for the sole use of this spectrum.

In November 1991, the FCC altered its spectrum allocation scheme and gave ACC at total of 27 channels at 110° W.L., making the block even more valuable.

DirecTV is currently up and running and available to the consumer. Echostar is expected to be operational earlier next year.

During this time, ACC was repeatedly warned by the FCC that it was not acting in compliance with the due diligence standard.

In the summer of 1994, due to congressional mandate, the FCC began the process of auctioning spectrum. The PCS spectrum auction, which is now about half complete, has generated approximately $8 billion for the Treasury and the American people.

On September 16, 1995, ACC entered into an agreement with TCI to sell its spectrum to TCI for $45 million. Such a sale would have meant that ACC would actually have profited from warehousing spectrum for 10 years.

Only 3 months later, in December 1994, ACC applies for a second extension of its construction permit.

The International Bureau of the FCC determined that ACC had not proceeded with due diligence and issued an order on April 26, 1995 that concludes “Advanced [Communications Corporation] must now return the public resources it holds to the public so that these resources can be put to use by others.” This decision was based on the fact that 16 months before TCI applied for the extension it had done nothing by warehouse the spectrum.

The bureau felt compelled to use a new, tougher definition of due diligence due to the congressional mandate regarding spectrum auctions.

After the International Bureau decision, the full Commission began consideration of a plan to allow TCI to give up some of its allocated DBS spectrum and in return receive the ACC spectrum at a cost of $5 million. This $5 million is to pay for costs incurred by ACC. The spectrum being given up by TCI is valued at a substantially lesser value than the ACC spectrum. TCI would give up 11 channels at 119° and spectrum that allows DBS service to be provided to Latin America, the Pacific rim and China. No industry experts believe at this time that those markets will be nearly as lucrative as the U.S. market. It could be decades if not longer before the spectrum TCI offered up would be worth the value of the full conus U.S. spectrum.

Mr. President, the FCC is at a standpoint regarding this issue. It is looking to the Congress for guidance. And I believe it is appropriate for us to let the FCC know that the Senate believes that the spectrum should be disposed in a manner that brings about the greatest amount of benefit to the American people. Adoption of this amendment would ensure such an outcome.

Mr. President, let me clarify, this is not about helping one company or hurting another. It is not about determining winners or losers. It is about protecting the American people’s interests. And faced with the staggering debt we have left for our children, we must act in a manner that ensures this spectrum is sold for the highest amount possible.

Further, if this spectrum is auctioned, any company. TCI, Hughes, a telephone company, anyone, can bid for the spectrum. The auction alone will determine who is the winner and loser. Not only is it the right thing to do, but it is the fairest way.

There will be some issues raised I would like to address quickly.

First, TCI chose to purchase these two space system/Loral DBS satellites in 1990 for use by TEMPO, a cable consortium, for use at TCI’s high-power DBS system located at 110° west longitude.

In 1993, TEMPO asked the FCC to modify its DBS system and disclosed that it had granted Primestar an option on the same satellites to enable Primestar to operate with its own DTH system in the fixed service satellite high-power density arc. This is different from where most DBS satellites are located.

At this point the same two satellites had been proposed to be used in two different locations.

Now Primestar distributors are circulating a memo that states that if the ACC deal does not go through, that TCI has other options for satellite deployment.

Mr. President, we must put aside corporate interests and think about what action will best serve the American people. In this case, I think there can be no doubt that the public will benefit most from auctioning this spectrum.

Mr. President, the Citizens Against Government Waste, Consumer Federation of America, the National Taxpayers Union, and the National Rural Telecommunications Cooperative have all sent letters in support of this amendment.

I ask unanimous consent that the letters be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

CONGRESSional RECORD — SENATE
September 28, 1995

The $26.5 billion spending bill prioritizes the budgets for each agency under its jurisdiction. For example, the Justice Department receives $35 billion for FY 1996, almost $3 billion more than in FY 1995, to fight our nation’s crime problem. But with a nearly $5 trillion national debt, there is always more to cut from spending bills.

CCAGW supports the following amendments:

The McCain amendment to mandate the Federal Communications Commission to auction the one remaining Direct Broadcast System spectrum. If this spectrum is auctioned, communication industry experts believe it will sell for between $300 to $500 million. It is in the best interest of the American people that the spectrum be sold at public auction.

The Grams amendment to eliminate the East-West Center and the Northern South Center, saving taxpayers $11 million next year.

CCAGW opposes the following amendments:

Any attempt to restore or increase funds to the Legal Services Corporation.

The Inouye amendment to restore funds to the Federal Maritime Administration.

The Bumpers amendment to restore funds for the Small Business Administration.

The Bumpers amendment to restore funds to the Death Penalty Resource Centers.

CCAGW urges you to support these amendments and H.R. 2076. It prioritizes cuts while ensuring that state and local law enforcement agencies are properly funded. CCAGW will consider these votes for inclusion in our 1995 Congressional Ratings.

Sincerely,
THOMAS A. SCHATZ,

this spectrum. TCI would turn around and lease it to Primestar Partners, a consortium of the nation's largest cable monopolists including TCI. Giving away what is perhaps the single best part of the high powered DBS spectrum to the largest cable monopoly is an entirely wrong-headed policy. It is both anti-competitive and anti-consumer.

This proposed amendment would allow TCI and its cable brethren to essentially jump ahead in line. There are a number of non-cable parties who are interested in providing DBS services to compete with government policy that would be foreclosed from using this prime slot because of this "sweetheart" proposal. In direct contrast, Sens. McCain and Dorgan have circulated an amendment which would provide valuable spectrum to the highest bidder. This could raise hundreds of millions of dollars for the national treasury and help insure greater competition for cable in the market that would protect consumers.

Don't slam the door to cable competition and don't reach into consumers' pockets to enrich private monopolists in America. We urge you to defeat the amendment to transfer Advanced Communications' DBS license to TCI. Sincerely, BRADLEY STILLMAN, Consumer Federation of America.

Hon. John McCain, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR MCCAIN: The 300,000-member National Taxpayers Union (NTU) supports your amendment to require competitive bidding for awarding the last block of Direct Broadcast Satellite (DBS) spectrum held by the Federal Communications Commission.

National Taxpayers Union has long supported privatization of many public assets. The onset of the Information Age has created an extremely lucrative market for advanced communications, in turn dramatically increasing the potential value of the spectrum remaining under government control.

Given the economic potential of the communications sector, Congress should rely on competitive bidding and other market mechanisms to allocate federally owned spectrum. By providing a competitive auction for DBS spectrum, your amendment will ensure a fair market price for this property, not an arbitrary settlement negotiated by bureaucrats and special interests.

Previous spectrum auctions have benefited taxpayers and have allowed dynamic new businesses to develop their cutting-edge technologies. Charges and counter charges from interested corporations aside, a competitive bidding process is the best way to establish ownership at a fair price for this DBS spectrum.

Enactment of your amendment would allow the market to decide the price for this resource. Many members of the 104th Congress have resolved to end business as usual in Washington, and allow market forces to have a greater impact on government policy. They have the perfect opportunity to demonstrate their resolve by supporting your amendment to auction DBS spectrum.

Sincerely,

DAVID KEATING, Executive Vice President.

Hon. John McCain, U.S. Senator, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR MCCAIN: I am writing to let you know that the National Rural Telecommunications Cooperative has been and agreement with its rural electric and rural telephone system members nationwide are alarmed about a pending action by the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) which would allow the nation's largest cable operators to undermine satellite communications as a true competitor to cable.

Today, nearly all its rural utility system members are actively providing digital satellite service to more than 200,000 rural consumers living outside of and within cable service areas. Our ability to do so comes through a major investment in Hughes Electronic's DIRECTV which gave us the right to bring digital satellite services to rural Americans.

Today, our rural utility systems provide more than 150 channels of digitally transmitted satellite programming service to consumers who lease them for new services and products. Today, we lease, rent and sell Digital Satellite Systems and we are providing local service and support to a rural subscriber base that grows by more than 100,000 new customers a day. And we are doing so in competition currently with PrimeStar and are aware that next year we will have an additional competitor—DBS licensee Echostar.

We are very concerned that the FCC will give the PrimeStar partnership, led by majority owner TCI/Tempo, a DBS license that had been "warehoused" by Advanced Communications Corporation (ACC) for 10 years. As we understand, not only will the FCC give TCI a license without it soliciting bids for it without opening this unused spectrum to a competitive bidding process. An FCC give-away of DBS frequencies which are conservatively valued at more than $300 million, will seriously hamper competition inside and outside cable areas. Further, it will do nothing to decrease the nation's budget deficit and, while forcing a company that sits on its DBS license and did nothing to provide service to consumers.

NRTC is in support of your proposed amendment to H.R. 206, the Commerce, Justice, State and Judiciary Appropriations bill. It is the proper response to heavy-handed efforts by an entrenched industry interested in continuing to stifle competition and free-market access to telecommunications services. NRTC has previously endorsed auctioning all the DBS spectrum involved in this FCC proceeding in a letter to the FCC.

Thank you for your support.

Sincerely,

Bob Phillips, Chief Executive Officer.

Mr. McCain. Also, interestingly, I have received numerous letters from small cable companies and electric cooperatives all over America.

The Williams Cable Services, Phoenix, A.Z.; Eastern Illinois Electric Cooperative; the Little OCMUCLG Service in Georgia; Agate Mutual Telephone Co. in Colorado; the Volcano Vision Co. in Pine Grove, CA; Oklahoma Telephone Co., Davenport, OK; Turner Vision Co., Flint Hills Rural Development Corp.; South Alabama Electric Cooperative, Adams Telepohone Co., and others who are all in favor of giving the American taxpayers $300 to $700 million and make this a competitive process.

Mr. Gramm. If the distinguished Senator has time, let me ask a question to be sure I have this back. When we used to give spectrum away, we gave spectrum to a company that took it and used it, but they would use it, that they would initiate construction, that they would begin to broadcast on that signal.

The date that they agreed to is now past; is that right?

Mr. McCain. I would say to my friend, first of all, they were going to sell it to TCI for $45 million instead of $5 million, and they were awarded this license in 1984. Mr. President, 10 years later, in 1994, they had still not done a single thing in order to comply with the purposes of the license, in other words set up a DS system. The monetary value between $300 and $700 million would be the price of this spectrum at an auction. There are several major competitors.

The reason why there is such a huge spread, between $300 million and $700 million, is because the amounts we have already received from other spectrum auctions have doubled the original estimates that we received from other spectrum auctions.

Mr. Gramm. So the request is, having not fulfilled their commitment to the taxpayer, they want the right to sell it to somebody for $45 million, when, if we exercised the contract on behalf of the taxpayers and took it back, we would get between $300 and $700 million—$300 million?

Mr. McCain. Million. Mr. Gramm. Between $300 and $700 million for it. In essence, the Senator's amendment is trying to protect the taxpayer from losing a minimum of a quarter of a billion dollars by simply enforcing our end of the contract.

Mr. McCain. I would say to my colleague in response, he is correct. That is why the Citizens Against Government Waste, the Consumer Federation, National Taxpayers Union, and others are all in favor of this amendment, because of the enormous benefit, of $700 million.

Mr. BURNS. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MCCAIN. My friend from New Mexico was kind enough to yield time to me, I will be reluctant to use even that time because he has an amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BENNETT). The time of the Senator from Arizona has expired.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have no objection if they want to use some additional time.

How much time would the Senator like, Senator McCain, another 5 minutes?

Mr. MCCAIN. The Senator from Montana wanted to speak.

Mr. BURNS. I ask unanimous consent I have 1 minute just to ask a question in response, because I think it is important this body understand this

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator, I listen to you frequently and you need 2 minutes.

Mr. BURNS. I need 2 minutes?

Mr. DOMENICI. Yes.

Mr. BURNS. I may need more than that. I think it is important for this body to understand that the spectrum has already been reclaimed and is owned now by the FCC. It is available for sale. Is that not correct, I will ask my friend from Arizona?

Mr. MCCAIN. That is correct. But the contract that was entered into 3 months before the license was revoked is still a pending item before the FCC.

Advanced had over 10 years, including one 4-year extension, in which to construct and launch its DBS system. It failed to do so. It failed to meet the Commission’s due diligence rules, imposed a decade ago to ensure the public received prompt service thereafter, if the channels have gone unused. Only by enforcing the progress requirements of the Commission’s rules can we ensure that allocated resources will be efficiently and expeditiously put into productive use.

Mr. BURNS. I appreciate that. The only reason I ask the question is I think we should be very sure of our grounds here. Who actually owns that spectrum? Is it still in the hands of the original owner? Or is it owned by the FCC? I think that is a question we should ask before we consider this amendment. I am just trying to clarify that.

Mr. MCCAIN. Let me try to clarify it one more time. Because the company did not exercise due diligence over 10 years, the FCC reclaimed it. Now it is up to the FCC as to how they want to dispose of it.

Mr. BURNS. If the Senator is correct, then that clarifies my question. I thank the Senator from Arizona.

Mr. BROWN. Will the Senator from Arizona yield? I ask unanimous consent to have 5 minutes to ask the Senator from Arizona a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BROWN. I ask the Senator from Arizona, he has indicated his amendment will have a positive revenue impact, save millions of dollars. Has the amendment been reviewed by the Congressional Budget Office? And what is their estimate of how much money it raises?

Mr. MCCAIN. It has been scored as zero because it does not change the baseline. But I can tell my friend, it is patently obvious that if a spectrum is going to be auctioned off for something where between $300 million and $700 million, there is going to be an impact.

Mr. BROWN. The Senator has indicated—or the literature here indicated these channels may be available for auction. Let me ask, has the Commission made a final ruling as to whether or not these are to be forfeited?

Mr. MCCAIN. The Commission has not and is looking for guidance from the Congress.

Mr. BROWN. I might indicate what my sense of the amendment is. First of all, it does not raise anything because CBO has not looked at it. And, No. 2, it is disposing of property someone else ostensibly has a title to and the FCC has not cleared.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, Senator Brown is here. I do not know if Senator McCain, accurately, Senator Brown, described the time you would need. He suggested 10 minutes? Is that 10 for you and 10 for somebody else?

Mr. MCCAIN. I suggested, and I would like to modify it concerning the desires of the Senator from Colorado, 20 minutes for the Senator from Colorado and 10 minutes for the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. GRAMM. My colleague needs to get some time for himself. And 10 minutes for you.

Mr. BROWN. My understanding was the discussion involved some intermittent time so I might become familiar with the needs of the Senator from Arizona. My hope is the distinguished Senator from New Mexico might go ahead. Obviously, I am agreeable to an appropriate amount of time for the Senator from Arizona to respond to whatever is raised on the floor.

The time someone may wish, I would have no problem to work out something.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator McCain, I assume now from your vantage point from getting this up things are under control and I can proceed? You are all right?

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank the Senator from New Mexico for his courtesy and patience.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I discussed with the distinguished Senator from Texas, the manager of the bill, and the Senator from New Mexico a unanimous-consent request I would like to offer; that I be allowed to set aside the pending business for 2 minutes, present the uniformed nays, and go back immediately to the business of the distinguished Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, has a unanimous-consent request been proposed?

Mr. KERREY. Yes. The Senator from Nebraska asked to have 1 minute to propose an amendment.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, 2 minutes.

Mr. GRAMM. Has that unanimous-consent request been agreed to?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

Mr. GRAMM. Parliamentary inquiry. This amendment will be, after he presents it, it will be set aside and be fully debateable at that point, is that right?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. GRAMM. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Nebraska [Mr. KERREY], for himself, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. LEAHY and Mr. LIEBERMAN, proposes an amendment numbered 287.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill insert the following: “The amounts made available to the Department of Justice in Title I for administration and travel are reduced by $500,000.”

On page 73, between lines 4 and 5, insert the following:

INFORMATION INFRASTRUCTURE GRANTS

For grants authorized by section 392 of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended, $38,000,000, to remain available until expended as authorized by section 391 of the Act, as amended: Provided, That not to exceed $3,700,000 shall be available for program administration and other support activities as authorized by section 391 of the Act including support of the Advisory Council on National Information Infrastructure: Provided further, That of the funds appropriated herein, not to exceed 5 percent may be available for telecommunications research activities for projects related to the development of a national information infrastructure: Provided further, That notwithstanding the requirements of section 302(a) and 302(c) of the Act, these funds may be used for the planning and construction of telecommunications networks for the provision of education, health care, public information, public safety, or other social services: Provided further, That in reviewing proposals for funding, the Telecommunications and Information Infrastructure Assistance Program (also known as the National Information Infrastructure Program) shall add to the factors taken into consideration the following: (1) the extent to which the proposed project is consistent with State plans and priorities for the deployment of the telecommunications and information infrastructure; and (2) the extent to which the applicant has planned and coordinated the proposed project with other telecommunications and information entities in the State.

Mr. KERREY. The amendment I offer on behalf of myself, Senators LEAHY and LIEBERMAN, is a very straight-forward amendment. It restores $18.9 million to telecommunication and information and infrastructure assistance programs.

This program has been highly successful with thousands of applications for this. It is a matching program to get at least 2 for 1 for every dollar that goes out. It is community-based. Communities all over the country have used this program to increase the educational effort in the telecommunications effort. It has created jobs. It has created real advance-ment of understanding of how this tele-communications revolution can produce benefits at the local level.

Mr. President, I understand that some of the objections have been raised to this program; talked about it being something that has not proven up. I urge my colleagues to look at not only the success we have but the backlog coming up. We have enjoyed a tremen-dous success with this program. It is not a program that is just throwing money out there. It is a program that requires the community to contribute. It is a program that empowers citizens at the local level to make dec-sions about how they want to increase jobs and education in their own communities. It has a fully funded offset. I hope that my colleagues will con-sider and support a program that will create jobs, and will create more empowerment for the American people at the local level.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. Domenici addressed the Chair. Mr. HATCH. Could I just ask that of the manager of the bill?

Mr. DOMENICI. Reserving the right to object, I say to the Senator, I have a few inquiries. It is my amendment being set aside here.

Mr. President, let me ask Senator GRAMM, there is an accommodation we would not 10 minutes. I am not prepared to proceed with my amendment. I told the Senator I had been working on it because it is complicated, and we did get switched signals in terms of the money we had available. But I am pre-pared now. So I do not want to delay it the longest possible time. I wish to get it up soon. So when would the Senator from Texas be ready to discuss the Do-menici amendment? Would the Senator be ready at 8 o’clock?

Mr. GRAMM. I would be perfectly happy to have the Senator bring the amendment up, offer it, lock in his off-sets, if he has them, and I think that is a legitimate concern. What I would like to do, given that we had talked about having the debate on the Biden amendment begin at 7, is, if the Sen-ator offers the amendment now, to come back to it.

This is a very important amendment to me. I am strongly opposed to it. And I do think it will be something that will be debated at some length. Clearly, the distinguished Senator from New Mex-ico has the right to the floor under the unanimous-consent request. So if he wants to exercise that now, he can. And perhaps we might look at the fol-lowing potential unanimous-consent request—that he would bring up the amendment and debate it for up to 20 minutes. Then it would be set aside. Senator Biden would be recognized to bring up his omnibus amendment, 2 hours equally divided. At that point we would have reached the hour of 9 o’clock and we will have the first vote. We at that point could either go back to the McCaın amendment and dispose of it or we could go back to the Domenici amendment and debate it. Either of those things I would be agree-able to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I say to the Senator from Texas and Senator HOLLINGS, what I would prefer to do—

Mr. HATCH. Could I just ask that of Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

Mr. GRAMM, there is an accommodation we would not 10 minutes. I am not prepared to proceed with my amendment. permitted to offer his amendment; that it be debated in full, whatever time that takes, and that it be voted on immediately following—it be the next vote following the Biden vote. That gives the Senator plenty of time, Mr. President, as he desires.

Mr. GRAMM. If the distinguished Senator will yield, I have no objection to what the Senator is doing, but it may well be that we might have an extended debate.

Mr. DOMENICI. Sure.

Mr. GRAMM. And we might decide for some reason that we might want to go ahead and consider other amendments intervening.

Mr. DOMENICI. We might do that in due course.

Mr. GRAMM. So I am reluctant to lock us into voting on the Domenici amendment next.

Mr. DOMENICI. I did not ask for that. I said the next amendment we vote on would be the Domenici amendment. The Senator can have some other amendments he wants to bring up. Get unanimous consent for that. I think that is fair. I have been accommodating everyone.

Mr. McCAIN. With the Senator from New Mexico agreeing to have a vote on my amendment following the Biden amendment? The yeas and nays have already been ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. The problem I have is I would like to debate tonight the Domenici amendment. There are a lot of Senators who want to debate it. Senator Gramm has a lot of people. I have been accommodating. The Senator's amendment will get voted on very soon but mine would precede that. I just ask that as a request.

Mr. GRAMM. Will the distinguished Senator yield?

Mr. DOMENICI. Of course.

Mr. GRAMM. I would like to get an agreement that allows the distinguished Senator from New Mexico to bring up his amendment now, speak on that amendment as long as he chooses to, then Senator Biden would be recognized to offer his omnibus amendment, which is a crucial element to the completion of this bill, that there be 2 hours of debate equally divided, that would get us somewhere close to 9. I would have the pending vote. We would have the vote on the Biden amendment. Then the Senator's amendment would be the pending business and we would vote on it. And we would not vote on anything else until we voted on it.

Mr. DOMENICI. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President, all I want to do—I do not want to put my amendment down and debate it for 10 or 15 minutes. Just change the request so that I bring mine up immediately following the Biden amendment, and it is debated as long as necessary and then you have the pending business.

Mr. GRAMM. All right.

I ask unanimous consent that the next amendment to be considered be the Biden amendment; that there be 2 hours equally divided on that amendment; that if a vote is ordered on that amendment, it occur immediately after the pending amendment, which will be voted on at 9 o'clock; that the distinguished Senator from New Mexico be recognized at that point to offer his amendment.

Mr. McCAIN. Reserving the right to object, what does that do to the McCain amendment?

Mr. GRAMM. It will simply be pending and will be the order of business when the Domenici amendment is disposed of.

Mr. DOMENICI. Which is what I thought we had in mind when I permitted the Senator to bring up his amendment. I think that is fair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. McCAIN. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I permitted the Senator's amendment to come up.

Mr. GRAMM. That is right.

Mr. McCAIN. And we debated it and all we need to do is have a vote on it, it seems to me.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, that is all right with me. Get him in, too. No more debate.

Mr. McCAIN. I withdraw my objection.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Senator.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I ask Senator Gramm, there will be no amendments to the Biden amendment?

Mr. GRAMM. I am not in a position that I can commit to that, I say to the Senator, because we have not checked on our side. We have not seen the final form of the Biden amendment. Whatever I am trying to do is just have it considered. I assume there will not be—I assume we have the votes, but we want to look at it.

Mr. HOLLINGS. We cannot agree to the time limit.

Mr. GRAMM. There is not a time. We are just saying it will be debated between 7 and 9, and that if it is completed, that it would be the vote after 9. If it is not, it would be pending.

Mr. HOLLINGS. All right. Get it up.

Mr. BRYAN. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, if I might inquire of the floor managers, I just came to the floor a few moments ago, so I have not heard the colloquy. I want the managers of the bill to know that Senator Burns and I have an amendment concerning USPTA, and I just want to make sure that the terms of the unanimous consent would not preclude us from having an opportunity to offer that amendment and perhaps have a vote. We do not need to do it this evening. We can go tomorrow. I want to assure my colleague that I am willing to cooperate and work with him. I do not know the terms of the agreement.

Mr. GRAMM. If the Senator will yield, nothing in this unanimous-consent request would in any way limit the Senator's ability to offer his amendment or any other amendment.

Mr. BRYAN. I appreciate that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I say to my friend from Texas, I do not remember the word he used—how did he oppose my amendment? Perfectly? What was the word?

Mr. GRAMM. With rightous passion. Mr. DOMENICI. I want to say I oppose what he is for in terms of doing away with legal services with whatever passion he just described. So we know it all even.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. PRYOR. I have a question, Mr. President. And I will be glad to yield. Mr. GRAMM. It sounds to me as if we have a pretty full schedule for the rest of the evening. My guess is that tomorrow morning would be a good time. But it may well be at some time tonight perhaps. I will decide to get finished, at which point obviously the Senator could offer the amendment.

We are basically set now in terms of unanimous consent on two amendments. One is a fairly comprehensive amendment by Senator Biden where we will have 2 hours equally divided. Then we are going to Senator Domenici on trying to bring back the Federal Legal Services Corporation, which will be debated, I would think, pretty extensively. We have an amendment pending by the Senator from Arizona. So I cannot tell the Senator that he would not get to offer it tonight, but if I were the Senator, if we are here tomorrow, I would try to do it in the morning.

Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, if I could respond to my colleague, my friend from Texas, I have no problem offering the amendment tomorrow if I have just as much certainty as possible in the time sequence, because I have three amendments that I must file in the Finance Committee markup on Medicare-Medicaid, and I am just trying to sort of find out where I should be and which time I should be there.
Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I am sure that the same is true for Senator HOLLINGS. We would try to accommodate the Senator in every way we can. Mr. PRYOR. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished Senator.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, as I understand now, in the unanimous consent agreement, Senator BIDEN will commence at 7 o’clock. To try to save a little time, I was off the floor momentarily at the time of the presentation of the amendment of the Senator from Arizona. The amendment of the Senator from Arizona as he relates it could be very accurate. On the other hand, I have heard different facts.

What occurs here is, as the Senator from Arizona has outlined the amendment, the FCC is asking for guidance. Whenever that occurs, beware, for the simple reason that we have an FCC to have full hearings to hear both sides of a particular case and issue and thereafter make a decision.

I have heard from both sides spasmodically. I have not called the FCC myself. I wanted to stay out of the case. But right to the point, it is my understanding there is sort of a split down there. And there is a definite difference. And I would question with respect to the diligence being used on the granting of a particular license to an entity out there, I think, in Arizona.

The Arizona folks, it is related, did use due diligence, went to the Federal Communications Commission and were granted on both occasions extensions, because what is involved here is a satellite spectrum usage encompassing quite a commitment of financial support.

That commitment of financial support was finally obtained and committed, and there is related $1 billion that has been committed, and there is a launch date for that particular satellite in April of next year.

Now, Mr. President, I am pleased, did as the Commission was temporarily making a ruling, the parties involved appealed that particular ruling. And it is now under appeal. So what happens is that the case comes to the Congress, and some of us Senators on the Commerce Committee who are interested, of course, and disposed to Federal Communications matters, but without any hearing, and without knowing what is best to be done, I have always come down, because this occurs every time we get up to a particular bill or something, somebody brings up a fix, if you please, Mr. President, of a case down at the FCC.

I have been very cautious and astute not to join in those particular fixes. Specifically, I was asked if I could go along with an amendment that would do as is indicated by Senator MCCAIN. And I said no. I think we ought to leave it with the Commission.

The reason why, Mr. President, is if I would go along with an amendment on the other side. Go along with it and allow them to set fees and whatever it was. I said no. We are not giving authority for the FCC to become more or less a Congress setting fees. And I withheld my approval of that.

I said simply, think, under the circumstances, that it is best that the Congress not be involved in a half-a-hair-cut decision whereby we have not had a single hearing.

The Chairman of the Commission has not asked my guidance. If somebody says they are asking guidance, I do not have any written letters or anything else like that on any particular matter. Therefore, I am opposed to the amendment. I want to talk it out with the distinguished Senator from Arizona. I know his intent is sincere. But I think this is the kind of amendment that ought to be tabled.

I only state this to use up some of the time. I see others want to use some time prior to 7, but I wanted to say that I am sorry I could not respond at the particular time that the Senator from Arizona presented his amendment. I left the floor with the understanding that the Senator from New Mexico was going to present his. I yield the floor.

Mr. SIMON addressed the Chair.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I am pleased with the negotiations that have taken place with Senator HOLLINGS, Senator HATFIELD, Senator BIDEN, Senator GRAMM, and others. They have improved this bill.

Let me add one concern I do have. This bill authorizes $250 million for U.N. peacekeeping. The request from the President was $445 million. The House figure—in most areas the House is, frankly, worse than the Senate—the House figure is $425 million. Again, our figure is $250 million. The authorization figure from the Foreign Relations Committee, for Senator HELMS, is $445 million—and we have $250 million here. This is on top of what we have been doing to not pay our dues in the United Nations. We are the No. 1 deadbeat in the world.

Yesterday’s New York Times has a story “To Pay Some Debts, U.N. Will Try Borrowing From World Bank.” We owe $1.2 billion to the United Nations. They would not have to be going to the World Bank if we paid our debts.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

STATEMENT IN SUPPORT OF U.N. PEACE OPERATIONS

The United Nations is playing an increasingly critical role in preventing and resolving conflicts that have broken out across the globe. We welcome this expanded mission envisioned in the original U.N. charter but impeded by the Cold War. While the U.N. has not proved a panacea, it has achieved remarkable successes in countries such as Namibia, in El Salvador and in Cambodia.

International peacekeeping is not an altruistic endeavor; it directly serves U.S. security, political and commercial interests. As U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. Richard Albright has stated: “Whether measured in arms proliferation, refugees on our shores, the destabilization of allies, or loss of exports, jobs or investments, the cost of runaway regional conflicts sooner or later comes home to America. In 1993, the U.N. will spend over $3 billion to stem or stop those conflicts, and we will pay one third of that. But without the U.N., both the costs and the conflict would be far greater.”

However, the fate of peace operations hangs in the balance, in part due to crippling funding shortfalls and decreasing national political support for the United Nations as it seeks to reform and to meet new challenges. Although there is often a first flush of enthusiasm response overseas, the United States and other nations consistently fail behind in paying dues and peacekeeping assessments. These failures serve to cripple the U.N.’s ability to respond rapidly to crises and implement needed reforms. In addition, Congressional critics have singled out U.N. peacekeeping as a vehicle for expressing their dissatisfaction with broader issues, from the defense budget and military readiness to U.S. interests abroad, and have sought to curtail almost limited participation of U.S. armed forces in U.N. peace operations.

We endorse multilateral, burden-sharing approaches to preventing and resolving conflicts. In particular, we support strengthening the United Nations’ ability to conduct peace operations. We encourage the United Nations to expand its peacekeeping operations, with emphasis on conflicts that threaten to escalate into regional ones. The United States must avoid the costs and dangers of a unilateral role as world police.

A policy that provides only weak financial and political support for peacekeeping jeopardizes the United Nations’ long-term future. If the U.N. is not given the resources and encouragement to improve its capabilities, confidence in it will be undermined. The world community will have sacrificed the chance to establish a truly effective multilateral peacekeeping process, with emphasis on prevention. The world will become more dangerous, to the detriment of our own security.

We should take advantage of the post-Cold War situation and apply the lessons of peacekeeping from the past several years to reform and expand U.N. peace operations and make them more effective. Peace operations, which serve the U.S. an opportunity to help in reducing the worldwide level of armed violence with minimum risk and cost, are squarely in our national interest.

September 28, 1995
The greatest threat today to the U.N.'s effectiveness and even survival is the cancer of financial insolvency. Countries slow to pay their share include many that are small. But it is the massive delinquencies of the United States that have plunged the Organization into chronic crisis and sapped its capacity to respond to emergencies and new needs.

The services provided by international organizations are, objectively, quite cheap—especially in comparison with the sums we spend on other dimensions of national security, such as the military, as backup in the event that diplomacy and the U.N. machinery should fail. The annual U.S. assessments for peacekeeping worldwide are less than the police budget for the nation's largest city. Total American costs for the U.N. system amount to $7 per capita (compared to some $1,000 per capita for the Defense Department).

Some object that U.N. peacekeeping costs have exploded over the past decade, from a U.S. share of $53 million in 1965 to $1.08 billion for 1995. But the end of the Cold War that sparked that increase, by freeing the U.N. to be an effective agent of conflict management, also allowed for far larger and more productive expenditures. Over the same decade, Pentagon budgets have fallen $34 billion. Increased reliance on U.N. collective security operations coincided with downsizing of defense expenditures. Moreover, U.N. costs are spread among all member states, and constitute a truly cost-effective bargain for all.

However, at the same time that budget choices, many national politicians see U.N. contributions as an easy target. They are misguided. In asserting that national parliaments can unilaterally set their nations' assessment levels, claim offsets from assessed obligations for voluntary peacekeeping contributions, and impose policy conditions for payment, nations threaten to undermine the U.N.'s effectiveness and siphon off much of the collective security the U.N. was set up to provide. The U.N. system is not perfect. But neither does unilateral policy—whether in the form of unilateral intervention, it spreads costs and risks among all members of the international community and a framework for solving conflicts that have turned to the U.N. for collective action in the past. The five permanent members of the Security Council have an inherent advantage in being permanent members of the Security Council. They are able to maintain control over the U.N. budget, and they are able to influence the budget in ways that would be impossible for any other nation.

The U.N.'s mandate to preserve peace and security was long based on the assumption that the United States, whose end has allowed the institutions of global security to spring to life. The five permanent members of the Security Council meet and function as a collective group, and what the Council has lost in rhetorical drama it has more than gained in forging common policies. Starting with the Reagan Administration's efforts to establish the Strategic Defense Initiative, the Washington politicians jeopardized the institutional underpinnings of the world community. No multilateral organization—whether the U.N., the World Bank, or NATO—can long survive if member states play by such rules.

In ratifying the U.N. Charter, every member state acknowledged the financial obligations of U.N. membership. Virtually all of America's allies in the industrialized world fulfill those obligations to the United States. But American contributions, under conditions. Until relatively recently, so did the United Nations. It must do so again.

America's leaders must recommit this nation to the U.N. and related organizations, including prompt retirement of arrearages accumulated over the past decade. Financial unreliability leaves our institutions of common purpose vulnerable and inefficient. We must sustain—and, where needed, increase—our voluntary support of the U.N.'s many vital activities in the economic and social fields as well as peace and security. We should press for as-the job and do it right. Without a Soviet threat, some Americans imagine we can renounce "foreign entanglements." Growing hostility to U.N. peacemaking in some polit-cratic circles reflects, in large measure, the shortsighted idea that America has little at stake in the maintenance of a peaceful world. In some quarters, resentment smolder-s beneath the surface, and understandable, but in a country founded on the rule of law, the notion that law should rule among nations ought not to be controversial.

The political impulse to go it alone surges at precisely the moment when nations become deeply interconnected. The need for international teamwork has never been clearer. Goods, capital, news, entertainment, and ideas cross national borders at astonishing speed. So do refugees, diseases, drugs, environmental degradation, terrorists, and currency crashes.

The institutions of the U.N. system are not perfect, but they remain our best tools for concerted international action. Just as Americans often seek to reform our own government, it is only fair we seek improvement of the U.N. system. Fragmented and of limited power, prone to political paralysis, bureaucratic torpor, and opaque accountability, the U.N. system suffers—but not withstanding. Governments and citizens must press for changes that improve agencies' efficiency, enhance their responsiveness, and make them aware of what the world's publics they were created to serve. Our world institutions can only be strengthened with the informed engagement of national leaders, press, and the public at large.

The American people have not lost their commitment to the United Nations and to the rule of law. They reaffirm it consistently, whether in opinion surveys or UNICEF campaigns. Among the public's top priorities is the sense of a quorum. The United Nations Association of the United States calls on the people and government of the United States, and those of all other U.N. member states, to join in strengthening the United Nations system for the 21st century.

In particular, we call for action in five areas, which will be the top policy priorities of UNA-USA as we enter the U.N.'s second half-century: Reliable financing of the United Nations system; strong and effective U.N. machinery to help keep the peace; promotion of broad-based and sustainable world economic growth; vigorous defense of human rights and protection of displaced populations; control, reduction, or elimination of highly destructive weaponry.

Mr. SIMON. And then the next is a letter, a policy statement by the United Nations Association of the United States of America, sent to me—I am sure to all Members of the Senate—by the former Deputy Secretary of State John Whitehead, who many of us had a chance to respect and recognize a great deal. He was the Deputy Secretary of State under Jim Baker. I ask unanimous consent that his fine statement be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

UNITED NATIONS ASSOCIATION OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,
July 26, 1995.
Hon. Paul Simon,
Washington, DC.
DEAR SENATOR SIMON: I am writing to share with you a policy statement of the United Nations Association of the United States (UNA-USA) on the U.S. stake in the United Nations and U.N. financing, adopted in late June by UNA-USA's national convention on the occasion of the 50th anniversary
It is a serious yet succinct statement on an issue that is of great importance, with major implications for the Congress. We hope you will find it of interest. UNA-USA is eager to make a constructive contribution to the policy debate.

We should be pleased to share any reactions with UNA-USA's 25,000 members.
Sincerely,
John C. Whitehead,
Chairman of the Association.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I am not offering an amendment on this because, real candidly, I know what the results would be. But I hope that in conference on UFOs colleagues will keep in mind that even the House, conservative as they are, put in $425 million for U.N. peacekeeping compared to our $250 million. I hope we will go to the House figure on this.
Mr. President, I yield the floor.
Mr. HOLLINGS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The
clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.
Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to set aside the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.
Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. Without

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without
objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, I have sent an amendment to the desk. I withdraw any further request for unanimous-consent request on time. I am just going to utilize the void that exists here on the floor and take up what time I wish.

This amendment, Mr. President, if approved, I think would greatly improve our national security. My amendment, which is identical to a freestanding bill, the code of conduct on arms transfers, would place restrictions on arms transfers to nations which pose potential threats to the United States or to our allies.
I do not want to go into my long drawn-out speech reciting the very sorry record of this country in being the biggest arms peddler in the world today. Merchants of death is about what you should more accurately tite our role in these matters of providing armaments. Third world countries that cannot even develop a subsistence agriculture to feed their own people, and using up 85 percent of their own national budgets to fill their lust for arms that we have infected them with.

I think we should try to draw some kind of parameters around this come-one-come-all big arms sale today in the United States.
Sending out our Secretary of Commerce to hawk arms at the Paris arms show, informing our diplomatic posts around the world that certainly they would help facilitate any arms trans-sfers they can create in their country.

What we are offering here is this amendment to the Justice-State-Commerce appropriations bill on behalf of Senator PELL, Senator DORGAN, Senator BUMPERS, and myself.

I acknowledge that this is not the perfect vehicle for a discussion on the issue of arms transfers. After all, the issue of arms transfers is virtually the only time Congress provides its input on military aid to other countries, and at least some oversight ex-isits in the programs funded by yearly appropriations. My amendment is very easy to explain. It is very straightforward. The focus of the code of conduct on arms transfers is not what may be sold or transferred to another nation; but rather who should receive U.S. arms.
Sending out our Secretary of Con-
Abbreviations should not be a threat to our security.
Our world is awash in conventional weapons. This is conventional weapon focus. Even as we celebrate another major victory in nuclear arms control, the permanent ratification of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty, and come closer to reaching agreement on a permanent ban on underground nuclear testing, we cannot ignore the death on caused by conventional arms. Over 40 million people killed by conventional weapons since World War II. That is a pretty sizable part of the world's population.

More than anything else, we cannot ignore the last four times the United States has called significant numbers of troops to combat. Our soldiers faced adversaries which had received U.S. arms, training, or military assistance. I am talking about Panama, Iraq, Haiti, Somalia.

In other words, our arms transfer policy has backfired, particularly in those instances. It has created the boomerang effect where U.S.-provided weapons are used against our own military. Clearly, a new policy is needed.

The public has been polled on the question of arms transfers and resoundingly—over 95 percent—said that no U.S. arms should go to dictators. Yet the United States continues to provide arms to nations which are not democracies.

The Clinton administration undertook to review the arms trade policy last year. That process took many months and the announcement was made in February of this year, 1995, that the United States had in fact changed its policy. The truth is there was nothing new about the administration's policy. It represents no real departure from the arms transfer policy program our Nation has followed for the past 15 years.

We can go back and say this whole idea emanated out of post-World War II France when General de Gaulle needed to try to replenish the military arms arsenal of plans and found the best way to do it was to sell arms to other parts of the world, and in many cases to make money off of them to fill his own arms needs.

If we want to go with the President, President Kennedy in 1961 saw that as a policy and began to launch that policy, provided a waiver authority, so that the President may come to Congress with a request to provide arms transfers to a nation which does not meet the criteria when it is in the interest of our national security.

Should dictators be rewarded with weapons? Of course not. Early this past summer the Catholic Bishops of the United States approved unanimously a major statement calling upon the United States to undertake "more serious efforts to control and radically reduce" its role in the arms trade.

Many of you know that I have been a longtime critic of arms sales to the developing world. I see arms transfers—a code of conduct on arms transfers. The United States can and should exert its leadership by stating explicitly that it does not sell arms to dictators.

Mr. President, one closing remark. We have problems today in Bosnia and the Balkans. I stood on this floor 2½ years ago and warned about the flow of arms coming in both directions on the Danube. The Danube River was literally a river full of arms going into that very part of the world, from allies, from friends as well as from people of different kinds of relationships to the United States. These are now coming home to roost.

I want to say what else can we do but to say "stop?" What else can we do but to bomb? If we would choke off the supply of arms into that area of the world, we would be saving lives and we would be going to the source of the conflict and the source of the destruction and the source of the violence. But, unfortunately, arms have become too big an economic enterprise in our Western World, particularly in the United States. So it is much easier to call out the troops and send them into trouble spots of the world than to choke off arms. We act on what is perhaps one of the largest peddlers of such arms to the world. We are now, as I say, one of the largest peddlers of such arms in all parts of the world.

Mr. President, I made my pitch. I want to say I appreciate being able to inject this at this moment. If the time is such that Senator Bumpers and other cosponsors of this may have a moment to speak, I will hold it in suspension. I am ready to close off and call for a vote. I recognize the ultimate defeat, but nevertheless I feel constrained to make this pitch at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.
Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, is the Senator from Oregon waiting now to call for a vote on his amendment or has he yielded the floor?

Mr. HATFIELD. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma, the Honorable Mr. Inhofe, is now recognized.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, tonight we are going to be voting on some amendments that are very significant, and I want to take an opportunity to express some views concerning those amendments. One is going to be offered to refund to its 1995 fiscal year level— I believe it is $415 million—the Legal Services Corporation.

This is a place we should draw the line, go back. In fact, this is one area where the Senate came out with a better proposal than the House came out with. It is my understanding the House suggested reducing the funding to $278 million. The Senate would reduce it down to $210 million and have that block granted out to the States.

I really believe the Legal Services Corporation was conceived as a part of the Great Society program, understandably, perhaps, at the time, to offer legal services to the poor. However, over a period of years, this small agency has turned into an agency that is trying to reshape the political and legal and social fabric of America. In fiscal year 1995, the taxpayers spent $415 million to operate the Legal Services Corporation. However, the cost, the $415 million, is only a very small part of it when you consider the extensive class action suits and frivolous litigation that has followed.

There are so many examples that have been given here on the floor, and that I have given myself, concerning the activities of the LSC. The negative effects of the LSC's attempts to reoder society permeate our culture, from the business community to government to homes to churches. Perhaps the most telling is the role of legal aid in challenging parental involvement statutes, so-called children's rights advocates such as Mrs. Clinton, who turned into an agency that is trying to reshape the political and legal and social fabric of America. very anxious to get to that. However, I think we are all aware that we have some appropriations bills to get out of the way. And, in the order of things, I am sure it will be expedited.

Mr. BIDEN. I am happy to hear that. But let me add to that, with this bill for months and months before we started the appropriations process.

I do not stand for that reason. I rise to speak to an amendment that I have. Let me very briefly describe it before I send it up to the desk.

Mr. President, the crime bill—which we passed, and is now the crime law—was in many ways authorized in this appropriations bill. My good friend from Texas, Senator Gramm, for whom I have great respect and I have never underestimated his abilities, was very effectively able to, in the appropriations process, essentially change the authorization process by dealing with a number of the provisions in the crime laws that are in place and functioning. When they little attempt to do is go back and undo—whether the Senate will agree is a different story—essentially what was done in the subcommittee on appropriations. I am not speaking to each part of the amendment, but I will give you the major points.

One, it reinstates money for the drug courts. The Appropriations Committee eliminated the funding for drug courts, something that we passed a year ago into law and is now the crime law.

Second, it eliminates money for drug treatment in prisons. I might note for those who might think that is sort of a silly, soft-headed notion that the States in the United States of America in the year 1993, after releasing prisoners from the jail—prisoners who had served their time in the State penitentiary—as they walked out the gate from a State penitentiary with the clothes they wore in and a bus ticket and the money in their pocket, 200,000 of them in one year walked out of that penitentiary drug addicted, drug addicted, drug addicted, drug addicted, addicted to drugs after having served their time as they walked through the portal.

So what the evidence shows is that drug treatment in prisons is as effective as drug treatment out of prison, and it makes a big difference because you have 154 crimes a year committed by a drug-addicted person. If you have 200,000 prisoners in the State of Utah, 154 would have been 256,000. Without drug addiction, and if they had not walked out of jail, still drug addicted as they walked out the gate, we have a problem. But unfortunately, the meager amount of money that was in the crime bill, in the crime trust fund, which should have been spent and would have been spent in this upcoming year, that also was zeroed out.

In addition, there was in the crime law a provision that a vast majority of my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans, supported when we debated the crime bill 2 years ago, and that was rural drug enforcement grants. I have spent a lot of time with the Presiding Officer, my colleague from Utah. And, as a consequence, I do not pretend to know the State of Utah, but I have become much more familiar with it. I need not tell the Presiding Officer that drug trafficking in methamphetamine with the gangs from Los Angeles moving into rural Utah, drive-by shootings occurring in the yards that never occurred before, the influx into the large intermountain States of drug deals, drug cartels, and drug organizations primarily dealing in synthetic drugs and methamphetamine—all of that is going to be, on all of those things and have put an incredible burden on the rural law enforcement agencies in the small towns in the State of Utah, in New Hampshire and in Delaware.

I mentioned those States because the three Senators representing those States are on the floor. We represent States where the vast majority of their cities are very small. The largest city in the State of Delaware is 85,000 people. Now, I realize Utah is larger than that, and I think Manchester, NH, is larger than that. But the point is, we do not have that many big metropolises. We have tens, scores of small towns of one sheriff or one police officer or two or three. And what every rural law enforcement agency said to us when we were writing this bill was that we need help, particularly, we need help in the area of dealing with methamphetamine, because the problems that are visited upon those small towns are not just the kids selling marijuana in the schoolyard; the real problems that have occurred in the last 10 years is these drug organizations move into those small towns, or they move into the outskirts of those small towns that in effect are incapable of being dealt with across State borders by small, rural law enforcement agencies.

Unfortunately, the subcommittee on appropriations saw fit to zero out that function as well. I attempt in this amendment to restore that money.

In addition, I also restore another thing that was cut totally, and that is the Law Enforcement Family Support Act.

Now, most people do not know what that is, but a number of us have participated, and I expect my colleagues on the floor tonight will participate in the event at the White House to build boot camps. But implicit in that is we have, especially implicit in that is we have said as a matter of policy that we do not know federally as much about the specific needs of the States and the localities as the States and localities know.

So I find it curious that my colleagues, at least the majority on the appropriations committee, decided to tell the States they do not have the option to build boot camps. I do not quite understand that. Everybody stood on this floor and talked about how valuable and important boot camps are. But the language that I have in this amendment—and I will go back to this in a moment—restores the State option. No requirement, no State has to build a single, solitary boot camp. They can all go build maximum security prisons. They can do whatever they want to do with the money as it suits them. But implicit in that is we should have the option of being able to build a boot camp, as my State has decided. And there are several other changes that this amendment contains for the families that come from all across America, that come from Idaho, Utah, Montana, Maine, Florida.

You speak to the families of those slain officers, and you will tell us this counseling that they get as to how they must deal with this deal with other families who have been through it is one of the most helpful things that happens to them. It matters to them.

What this $1.2 million we cut does is to provide that very counseling. So I hope when my colleagues vote on this amendment, they will remember that next year when they are invited down to the law enforcement memorial ceremony and they see and, God forbid, it will occur we know, another 25, 50, 100 families down there where officers have been slain in the calendar year doing their duty, we will realize that in failing to put this money back in the thing that those families valued the most we will in fact not be available to them because they will choose to do it. The argument that we heard on the floor, Democrats and Republicans, for the past year is that we want to allow more local control. We do not want the Federal Government telling people what they should do.

We passed, with my support and the overwhelming support of the people in this body on both sides of the aisle, the mandate legislation saying we should not be mandating to the States what they must do with the money. But implicit in that is we have also said as a matter of policy that we do not know federally as much about the specific needs of the States and the localities as the States and localities know.

So I find it curious that my colleagues, at least the majority on the appropriations committee, decided to tell the States they do not have the option to build boot camps. I do not quite understand that. Everybody stood on this floor and talked about how valuable and important boot camps are. But the language that I have in this amendment—and I will go back to this in a moment—restores the State option. No requirement, no State has to build a single, solitary boot camp. They can all go build maximum security prisons. They can do whatever they want to do with the money as it suits them. But implicit in that is we should have the option of being able to build a boot camp, as my State has decided. And there are several other changes that this amendment contains for the families, purpose of making sure that we in effect put the crime law back together.

This amendment is supported, I might add, by I believe every single major police organization in the country. The legislation relating to law enforcement and family support is specifically supported by the National Association of Police Organizations.

As I said, everyone may remember a year and a half ago there were a rash of police shootings across the country, including what personal toll was taken on America’s law enforcement officers and their families as a consequence of them being shot or wounded or killed. This amendment on the Family Support Act helps deal with that.

So let me speak a little more specifically to each of the general areas that I try to restore. Again, $100 million for drug courts, $20 million—and by the way, we authorized $150 million.

I said that that was an interesting thing. We are dealing with moneys from a trust fund. These are not any new taxes. What we all decided to do under the leadership of Senator Gramm of Texas, Mr. Byrd of West Virginia, when the crime law was being debated a year and a half ago, was to say, look, why not make sure this is not funny money. Why not make sure we can pay for what we say we want to do. I wholeheartedly agreed.

And under the leadership of Senator Byrd, with the strong concurrence of Senator Gramm of Texas—and quite frankly, with the ingenuity of John Hillyer, who was then the administrative assistant to Senator Mitchell—they came up with a unique idea. Never before, to the best of my knowledge, did the Senate ever set up a trust fund for law enforcement. And the way that was funded, the Senator from Texas [Mr. Gramm], insisted that the commitment that we made to reduce the Federal work force by 272,000 people over a 5-year period be written into the law. It had not been legislated before.

And as of the crime bill was more legislated, the President would have to reduce the present work force by 272,000 people. OMB calculated how much the revenue that was now being paid out of the Treasury to pay those folks’ salaries would be. And we agreed that as that attrition took place—and we have cut now by 170,000 some Federal employees. We have done that. That is real. That has been done. Their paychecks would go into this trust fund and that from the trust fund the funding for the crime bill would come.

Now, someone could have argued legitimately that when I say, “No new taxes,” they say, “Biden, you could have taken those savings from the reduction in Federal work force and you could have lowered the deficit or lowered taxes.” That is true. We could have done that. But the majority of us—and I for one strongly felt it was a higher priority to fight crime in America and give localities the resources to do that.

So I want to make it clear what we are talking about here is trust fund moneys. So what I do in this amendment is I reinstate $100 million of the $150 million for drug courts, $27 million for drug treatment in prison, $10 million for rural drug enforcement, and $1.2 million for the Law Enforcement Family Program. And then change the other language—no reallocation of funds for making sure that States have the option dealing with being able to use prison money to build boot camps.

Now, let me speak to what I think the single major piece of this amendment is, first, in more detail, and that is the drug courts. The Federal Government has long focused on the fight against illegal drugs, but few of its efforts have shown the promise already demonstrated by drug courts. The key to the drug court program is to punish and control offenders in the most efficient way possible.

In fact, it is precisely because of the success of the drug courts seen in model States, that I worked with the Attorney General to include the Federal support for drug courts in the 1994 crime bill signed into law a year ago.

Drug courts represent an innovation in how we fight crime. The system deals with low-level, first-time drug offenders. Throughout the Nation nonviolent drug offenders are simply released back into society with no punishment, no treatment, no supervision. Nationwide, the most recent estimates are that 600,000 such offenders are on the streets; 600,000 people convicted of abusing drugs and committing crimes sent back out into the streets with no reason not to return to more drugs and more crime and with no punishment, no treatment, and no supervision—1.4 million of these nonviolent drug offenders are convicted every year, and 600,000 of them get absolutely no treatment, no supervision, no punishment.

Now, let me tell you how the drug courts work. The drug courts work so that what happens is the States, with the money provided by the Federal Government as seed money, this $100 million, set up drug courts where they take those first-time, nonviolent offenders into the courts. They adjudicate their cases very rapidly, usually within 30 days. They then sentence that offender to something, including all of the following:

First, if you are in school you must stay in school.

Second, if they have a job they must keep a job.

Third, they must be subject to random drug testing.

Fourth, they actually must report two times a week to a probation officer and a counselor.

Fifth, they are required to enlist in drug treatment and stay in drug treatment.

If they violate any of those things, they go straight to jail. They do not pass go—straight to jail. In Dade County, FL, which, unfortunately, probably has more experience with drug trafficking and illegal drugs than any other county in America, it was put into effect several years ago.

The rearrest rate prior to the institution of drug courts was about 34 percent. Thirty-four percent of all the people who were convicted the first time of a nonviolent drug offense ended up rearrested and reconvicted and back before the courts. When the drug court program was put in place—and it has been there now about 5 years, I believe, maybe a little longer—the rearrest rate dropped to around 3 percent—3 percent.

I can say to the Presiding Officer and others who are listening that in my State, the State of Delaware, a Republican attorney general named Richard Gebelein became a superior court judge and wanted to set up a drug court like this—strict, strict, strict rules for nonviolent offenders once they are convicted, requirements of treatment, requirements of public service, requirements of random drug testing, with a stick to be kept up for a job, very strict requirements. They were literally required to sign a contract. And when they violate any of those provisions, they go to jail. It is amazing what an incentive it is. It is amazing what an incentive it is.

In my State they are going to be going to boot camps because boot camps cost 40 percent less to run than the prison system does, than building bricks and mortar. So they work. I say to my friend from Utah and others who are here, they work. And, unfortunately, we are now working with them trying to find money for other purposes in the bill, they were zeroed out. So what I do in this legislation is I restore $100 million of the $140 million that has been authorized.

Again, drug courts combine a carrot of drug treatment and the helping hand of mandating drug testing and the gavel of a judge that says you go back to prison if, in fact, you violate any of the provisions.

For example, as of about 1 month ago, the Delaware drug court had worked on 481 offenders in my small State in what it calls its track; one program that is, 481 people had completed the program and were on their way to being productive citizens; 80 were, to use the Delaware judge’s phrase, “terminated.” In other words, they were sent back to jail. And the remaining 288 are presently working their way through the program.

But an interesting thing, I say to the Presiding Officer. Guess what? Of those 481 people who were in the system, committing an average of 154 crimes a year, the crime rate has gone down precipitously among those people. And the only way the drug court system were, to use the phrase of the former attorney general—now judge—Gebelein, they were terminated. They were sent to jail.

Absent the drug court system around the country, what happens now is they get any treatment, they never get any punishment, they never get sent to jail; 600,000 of them a year are out there walking around after having been convicted.

So I say to my friends, as they look at this, ask their judges in their home state and they will tell you the same thing. Thirty-four percent do not work; 3 percent, 3 percent do work.
State, ask their probation officers, ask their police officers, ask their prison officials, and I can tell you, they will find almost without exception that the drug court innovation is viewed as one of the best hopes law enforcement has to deal with this problem. And to paraphrase a phrase used in a Presidential campaign last time around, "It's drugs, stupid. It's drugs." Crime is drugs. "It's drugs, stupid. It's drugs."

Now, on the point of drug treatment in prison, I will again merely make the point that it works. Last week the Department of Health and Human Services released preliminary estimates from the 1994 national household survey on drug abuse. And its report is alarming.

The survey found that among youth age 12 to 17, the rate of illicit drug use increased between 1993 and 1994 from 6.6 percent to 9.5 percent. In the past year, nearly 10 percent of our youth were using drugs. Marijuana use among 12- to 17-year-olds has nearly doubled from 1992 to 1994.

Perhaps even more frightening than the upsurge in use trends is the increase in the perceived availability of illicit substances in all age groups. The percentage of youth reporting that marijuana was easy to obtain increased by over 10 percent. Fifty-nine percent of the young people in America said marijuana is easy to obtain and they know how to get it. There was an increase in the perceived availability of LSD, PCP's, and heroin for all age groups.

The percentage of people age 35 and older who claim that cocaine was easily obtainable increased from 36 to 41 percent. Clearly, despite the progress we made in drug abuse prevention and treatment and law enforcement, there is still a great deal more to be done.

Mr. GREGG. Will the Senator from Delaware yield to the Senator from Missouri at the request of the Senator from Missouri?

Mr. BIDEN. Sure.

Mr. GREGG. Will the Senator from Delaware yield to the Senator from Missouri at the request of the Senator from Missouri?

Mr. BIDEN. Yes, I believe so. I would like to ask, how much time would I have left under such an agreement?

Mr. BIDEN. Yes, I believe so. I would like to ask, how much time would I have left under such an agreement? The PRESIDING OFFICER. The one hour and a half, from 7:30 until 9, equally divided. The Senator has since used 35 minutes out of his 45-minute allocation.

Mr. BIDEN. I am happy to accede to the suggestion of the Senator from New Hampshire, if he wishes, that the time on this amendment extend until 9 o'clock and that the Senator from Delaware would have approximately 12 minutes remaining.

Mr. GREGG. I have just been advised that if that is the case, we end up locking in the offsets here, which is something we would rather not do. Why do we not continue to proceed.

Mr. BIDEN. That is what I thought. One hour and a half. I am happy to yield to the Senator from Missouri at this time. Then I will seek recognition when he finishes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I am not going to take up a great deal of time. There are a number of things to work out on this amendment. I could not pass up this opportunity to come and tell this body that the concept of a drug court has been in place in Kansas City, MO, for about 2 years, and it is too early to say that this is the real solution. But the results, to date, are very spectacular.

In Kansas City, drug offenses were clogging up the court system. We did not have the court resources available to provide full trials. We were getting citations. We did not have the prison space for the minor offenders. The drug court has been used with, apparently, a great deal of success for the nonviolent minor drug offenders in Kansas City.

As the Senator from Delaware has already described, this is a program in which they go before a judge—and I talked at length with a judge—Judge Mason—who had the pleasure of appointing when I was Governor of Missouri, and the county prosecuting attorney, Clara McCaskie, who said this was one of the best ideas they had seen for trying to get people off on their own. If, after they started taking drugs, off of drugs and off of a life of crime.

There have been about 200 people in the program in 2 years, only 10 have been re-arrested. Some of them failed. The reason is not about a drug court is that if you fail the program, that is it, you go into jail. There is no question about it. But 60 people have completed the program. Only one has been re-arrested. That is a significantly higher success rate than most of the other programs I have seen for dealing with the minor drug-related offenders.

This, obviously, applies only to non-violent offenders, who have not used a weapon in their crime. We think this kind of tough supervision by a concerned judge—and it requires a judge who is willing to devote his or her time to these cases, to give the drug offender the attention and discipline needed to get them off of the drug habit and get them out of a life of crime, offers a great degree of promise. I had asked that the drug court at least be made a permissible use under the block grant program. Frankly, I think making it a permissible use is not enough. Based on what we have seen, I would like to see the drug court procedure in the law in some form.

I look forward to working with my colleague from Delaware and my colleague from New Hampshire to see if we can include provisions for drug courts. I can tell you, from the heartland where we have a drug problem, the drug courts seem to be one of the most promising ways of dealing with the problem. Anything in this area that holds out a chance of working I think should be given a chance. At the very least, the drug court program should be made an option used under the block grant program. I would like to see us go further. I would like to see us say that drug grant programs should be entitled to a certain percentage of the block grants.

I look forward to working with the managers on both sides.

Mr. President, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, in keeping with our informality here, let me finish up. I thank my friend from Missouri for speaking to the efficacy of drug courts.

Let me speak to two other pieces of this amendment. One is the rural drug enforcement grants. The latest reports from rural America tell a bitter story of violent crime, murder, rape, aggrava ted assault. It is rising faster in rural America. Most of our colleagues from rural States do not realize this. It is rising faster in rural America than in urban America.

From 1992 to 1993 alone, the violent crime rate in rural areas increased 7.4 percent; violent crime among juveniles in rural areas—violent crime now—rose 15.2 percent in rural areas.

Drug trafficking and addiction are also skyrocketing in America's rural States, especially among our young people. Drug abuse rates increased by nearly 30 percent among young people, especially those in rural areas, between 1988 and 1993.

Drug courts. The latest reports speaking to the efficacy of drug courts. The latest reports on drug courts indicate that drug courts seem to be one of the most promising ways of dealing with the drug problem. Drug courts are places where drug offenders are held out a chance of working I think is the most promising things in this area.

These grants, which place a special emphasis on drug enforcement over the 32 million people living in rural areas, give the protection they need and deserve. These dollars can be used for the same purposes State and local officials use their Byrne grant money; specifically, funding will support the highly successful multijurisdictional State, local, and Federal drug enforcement task forces.

These joint efforts have proven that they work. They have a proven track record of reducing drug trafficking in rural America.

Put this in commonsense terms. How can a rural sheriff, a rural chief of police in a town of 800 or 1000 or 1500 or 5000 people, with one officer or maybe as many as three or four, how can they possibly deal with the sophisticated drug operations that come into their areas? They cannot do it.

In the good old days when I was chairman of the Judiciary Committee, many of my colleagues, Republican as well as Democrats, would come to me and say, "Joe, can you help me get an extra DEA agent in Montana? Can you help me get an extra DEA agent or two of them in Idaho or North Dakota, South Dakota, Vermont, Maine?" Small States, but rural States. They are big geographically.

The reason they needed them is their local sheriffs, their local police officer comes to me and says, "We need some expert help and advice." We even went so far as to allow for the providing of training for local law enforcement officers from rural and small police departments down at the FBI training facility. They need the expertise.

These are brave women and men who are outnumbered, outgunned and outsmarted because they are dealing with something that goes beyond the town limits or the county limits that they have the jurisdiction over.

Ten rural States are eligible for these grants statewide. These States include Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Colorado, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Vermont, and Wyoming.

I will note that Delaware is not on that list. These States that I mention, these 19 rural States are eligible for statewide grants, although all the remaining States, the remaining 31 States could benefit in their rural areas. Rural areas of all other States were not overlooked by Federal agencies in making sure this provision was in the law.

Senator HATCH was one of the leaders of the judicial committees. He said:

"We need to get more officers to rural areas where the violent crime problem is increasing at a greater rate . . . crimes, crime, and violence are national problems facing both urban and rural America. Unfortunately, the crime problems faced in rural America have been overlooked by Federal agencies in Washington. They have focused on the crime in urban areas. Yet the problems of rural states is greater Federal funds well . . . if there is a place where additional Federal expenditures is warranted, it is to fight crime and violence in rural States."

That was what my colleague said from the floor to hear me that. These States that I mention, these 19 rural States are eligible for these grants must be removed from the unfocused block grant and funded separately. If they are to remain in the block grant scheme, they will have to compete with a great many programs for limited funds.

Let me ask all who are not in the 19 States, what do you think of the possibility your rural law enforcement officer is going to get this money? What do you think the possibility your Governor will send it your way? Do you think maybe it will go where the population centers are?

I bet it surprises even some of my colleagues here on the floor to hear me say that violent crime is increasing at a greater rate in the rural parts of your State than it is in the urban parts of your State.

In the block grant, I very much doubt and I believe you would be hard pressed to convince me or yourself that this monies funded specifically earmarked for rural areas and States that are rural in nature, they need the help. So I would like to point out that rural areas often come up last when it comes to these so-called block grants in each State. This fact has not escaped my colleagues in previous years.

The need for special targets of anticrime funds to rural areas was also expressed by my colleague, Senator HATCH, on February 10, 1994, while he was speaking in support of the Biden-Hatch rural crime amendment, when he said:

"We need to get more officers to rural areas where the violent crime problem is increasing at a greater rate . . . crimes, crime, and violence are national problems facing both urban and rural America. CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

Control Act which I authored and passed in 1991. I believe areas experiencing growth in violent crime and drugs are areas to which enforcement funds should be targeted, especially when those areas are already underfunded and their enforcement efforts such as in rural areas are undermanned. That is why I am asking the rural drug enforcement block grants receive direct funding, so they can guarantee rural areas their fair share of help from the Federal Government in ridding their communities of drugs and crime related to drugs.

Again, I daresay if you go ask your rural law enforcement people what they would rather have, why they think they have of getting any adequate funding out of this when it goes into one big pot and it goes into the State legislature and is distributed by the Governor, I wonder if they think they are going to get a fair share. I predict they will not.

If the Dole block grant is adopted, the block grant amendment introduced by Senator Dole gives targeted aid to urban areas. The formula for the block grants, the Dole amendment formula, weights population in its equation for determining crime rates, and the formula guarantees that urban areas will receive targeted funds while assuming that most rural areas will not receive such aid.

In 1993, the most recent year for which data is available, the murder rate grew 3.4 percent in rural America and it decreased 2.8 percent in the Nation’s largest cities. Similarly, the violent crime rate rose 1.4 percent in rural areas, while it decreased 3.4 percent in the largest cities.

But the Dole block grant proposal is that in this bill targets aid to the most populous areas. It clearly does not target funds to those areas most in need, rural America. While violent crime rates, including homicide, forcible rape and assault, are declining in urban areas, they are clearly on the rise in rural America. And rural America does not receive the funds under this block grant proposal. Rural areas have historically had the hardest time producing funds for law enforcement, and it seems to me we should not allow these areas to continue to receive less attention and less anti-drug-related money than urban areas just because they are less populous.

This is just another example of the cuts that are going into the States. By providing opened-ended block grant funds which may be used for this or any other program, while at the same time significantly cutting the amount of total funding available, my friends are learning to play the usual budgeting games that are going on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:
The Senator from Delaware [Mr. BIDEN], for himself and Mr. BRYAN, proposes an amendment numbered 2810.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 28, line 10, after "Act:" insert the following: "$27,000,000 for grants for residential substance abuse treatment for State prisoners pursuant to section 1001(a)(17) of the 1996 Act; "$150,000,000 for grants for rural drug enforcement assistance pursuant to section 1001(a)(9) of the 1968 Act;".

On page 28, line 11, before "$25,000,000" insert "$150,000,000 shall be for drug courts pursuant to Title V of the 1994 Act;".

On page 29, line 6, strike "$750,000,000." and insert "$278,800,000".

On page 29, line 15, after "Act:" insert the following: "$1,200,000 for Law Enforcement Family Support Programs, as authorized by section 1003(a) of the 1996 Act;".

On page 34, lines 8 and 9, strike "convictional correctional facilities, including prisons and jails," and insert "convictional correctional facilities, including prisons and jails," and the following: "at the Federal and State levels, that have implemented community-oriented, community-based correctional models with proven track records of positive results and other low cost correctional facilities for nonviolent offenders that can free conventional prison space;".

On page 36, line 16 strike all that follows to page 20 line 19 and insert: "Section 245(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1255(i)) is amended—(1) in the second sentence of paragraph (1), by inserting before the term "five" the term "ten"; and (2) in paragraph (3), by inserting before the term "Act;" the term "Act;".

The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to funds remitted with applications and other proceedings for adjustment of status which were filed on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

For activities authorized by section 130086 of Public Law 103-322, $10,300,000, to remain available until expended, which shall be derived from the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund.

Mr. BIDEN. I recognize this is a mildly backward way of doing it, speaking to it before I send it to the desk, but I did it, and I yield to the Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I appreciate the presentation of the Senator from New Hampshire. There is some which I agree with and some which I do not agree with. I would like to point out that I agree with his comments relative to boot camp. We have used the boot camp process in New Hampshire, and it has been quite successful. I have to believe that the decision to drop the boot camp was inadvertent. I hope we will correct it.

If the Senator at some point wishes to divide his amendment and bring that up separately, I would certainly be supportive. I have in mind that we can at least work out that part of his amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.
The home, do not believe for a moment that we are going to stop the cycle of violence.

Mr. President, I believe that a highly trained police, highly motivated, community-based, sensitive to the people in the communities, can make a difference. These are the people who are needed. But the bill we are considering today will do nothing to prevent the criminal of tomorrow. And indeed without more cops on the beat it may not do much to fight the criminals of today.

Every 5 seconds a child drops out of school in America. This is from the Children's Defense Fund study. Every 5 seconds a child drops out of a public school in the United States of America. Every 30 seconds a baby is born into poverty. Every 2 minutes a baby is born with a low birthweight. Every 2 minutes a baby is born to a mother who had no prenatal care.

Every 4 minutes a child is arrested for an alcohol-related crime. Every 7 minutes a child is arrested for selling drugs. Every 2 hours a child is murdered. Every 4 hours a child commits suicide, takes his or her life in the United States of America. And every 5 minutes a child is arrested for a violent crime.

Mr. President, if we do not continue to be serious about the prevention part, we are not going to stop the cycle of violence.

All too many young people are growing up in neighborhoods and communities in our country where if they bump into someone or look at someone the wrong way they are in trouble, where there is too much violence in their homes, where violence pervades every aspect of their life. And people who grow up in such brutal circumstances can become brutal. And that should not surprise any of us.

Prevention and law enforcement—both essential elements of any crime fighting effort. And, as I stated earlier, it has not even had a chance to be implemented. This coming year would be the first year funding will actually go to help communities.

I cannot emphasize enough how important crime prevention is—especially now. And, under this appropriation bill very little, if any, funding would go to prevent crime.

If we were to listen to people in the communities that are most affected by the violence, they would say to us you have to have the money in prevention. But how interesting it is that those who would essentially eliminate these prevention programs do not come from those communities, do not know the people in those communities, and I do not think they asked the people in those communities at all what they think should be done.

Mr. President, I can just tell you that in meeting with students, students that come from some pretty tough background—students at the Work Opportunity Center in Minneapolis, which is an alternative school, young students who are mothers and others who come from real difficult circumstances, all of them said to me: You can build more prisons and you can build more jails, but the issue for us is jobs, opportunity. You will never stop this cycle of violence unless you do something that prevents it in the first place.

Then I turn to the judges, the sheriffs, and the police chiefs, and I call them on the phone in Minnesota, and I ask them what they think. And they say yes we need community police and yes we need the other parts of the crime bill, but they all say, if you do not do something about preventing crime, if these young people do not have these opportunities, if we do not get serious about reducing violence in the home, do not believe for a moment that we are going to stop the cycle of violence.

Mr. President, I believe that a highly trained police, highly motivated, community-based, sensitive to the people in the communities, can make a difference. These are the people who are needed. But the bill we are considering today will do nothing to prevent the criminal of tomorrow. And indeed without more cops on the beat it may not do much to fight the criminals of today.

Today, as I stand in this Chamber, there are over 25,000 officers that would not be out there—protecting citizens in communities across this country—if it were not for the COPS Program.

If we eliminate this program and turn the funding over to the States in block grant, as the Appropriations Committee has proposed, there is no guarantee that a single additional police officer will be hired. Not one. We made a commitment to the American people when we passed the crime bill. All of us, Republicans and Democrats alike, made a commitment to the citizens of this country that we would work with them to reduce crime. The promise made inside the police officers will be on the beat in towns and communities across the country.

Mr. President, of the 100,000 new police officers promised, almost 26,000 have already been hired in Arkansas alone. Our police departments are made up of men and women who put their lives on the line every day to make our streets safer—not just in big urban areas, but in small towns and rural areas. With a block grant, funds may not filter down to small towns that desperately need the extra help. They are being asked to do more with less as crime rates continue to rise rapidly. Gangs and drug dealers are migrating out of the larger, more sizable cities into the smaller towns at an alarming rate.

It is our duty, Mr. President, to assist the prevention of crime in our country. The major law enforcement organizations in my State of Arkansas, as well as across the country, have united in support the COPS Program. They tell us that this program is working, that it is getting more officers on the streets. So why are we eliminating a program that is working?

For example, the Danville Police Department in Danville, Arkansas, has, through the COPS Program, been able to hire an additional officer to patrol the streets at night. In the month since Mike Pyburn has been hired, he has already made a drug arrest. As he was patrolling the streets one night, Officer Pyburn spotted an individual with a warrant out on a misdemeanor. In this person’s possession at the time of the arrest was 14 individually wrapped bags of marijuana. The COPS Program enabled this officer to be on the job and get these illegal drugs off the streets of Danville. This is one of many arrests this officer has made. Having additional night patrols has not only improved public safety, it has relieved the people's fears. The citizens of Danville can now sleep at night feeling a little safer because Officer Pyburn is on duty.

Colonel John Bailey, the Director of the Arkansas State Police, put the importance of the COPS Program into simple terms. He said that “This program put the resources where the problem is. In five years, anyone in Washington can come down and I’ll say, ‘This is what your money provided for us. Here he is,’ and introduce them to my new officer.” You can’t necessarily say that with block grant funds, Mr. President.

This program is effective, and it is easy for law enforcement agencies to...
Steve Russell, administrative commander of the Rogers Police Department, said Tuesday, "It's given us ... the opportunity to have additional personnel we wouldn't otherwise have had."

The COPS FAST program operates under the Office of Community Oriented Policing Services of the U.S. Department of Justice. The grant program is designed to help law enforcement agencies immediately increase their available manpower. The three-year program will allow the Rogers Police Department to add two new officers with the federal grant of $132,337 added to $44,113 in local funds to cover the cost in salaries and benefits of $176,450 over the three years of the grant. After the grant ends, all of the costs will be borne by the local agency.

Russell said the COPS FAST grant program is an example of how the Federal Government can make it easier for local agencies to reap the benefits of federal programs. "This was one of the fastest programs we've seen, in terms of the time from the application to us getting the money," Russell said. "That just allows us to put more police on the streets faster, which we certainly needed. The application process was very simple, unlike most federal grants."

Russell said the Rogers department currently has 59 certified law enforcement officers, with one approved slot remaining open. The department has four officers who are just completing their 10-week training at the Arkansas Police and Law Enforcement Training Academy in Camden. Another five are scheduled to start the course Monday. Officers who successfully complete the academy training course will have to complete another 12 weeks of field training with the department, he said, giving new officers about six months of initial training. According to Chief Russell, the Rogers Police Department's staffing levels are below national average for law enforcement agencies. Rogers has 1,820 officers for every 1,000 people. The national average is 2.65 officers per 1,000 people. To reach the national average, he said, Rogers would need 87 officers.

The Rogers Police Department will reap the benefits of President Clinton's campaign promise to put 100,000 more law enforcement officers on the streets with the receipt of a $132,337 COPS FAST grant that might have happened to these innocent children if it hadn't been for Officer Hanson's presence on the police force.

The Morning News of Northwest Arkansas reported in July how valuable the COPS Program has been to the Rogers Police Department and the citizens of Northwest Arkansas. Two new officers have been added to their force.

According to the article, Capt. Steve Russell of the Rogers Police Department said the grant program has given his agency the opportunity to add additional personnel that they would not have had otherwise. Captain Russell said the COPS FAST grant program is an example of how the Federal Government can make it easier for local agencies to reap the benefits of Federal programs.

I ask unanimous consent that the letters I have received on the benefits of President Clinton's campaign for the American police force. What the American people want is to feel safe in their homes, and on the streets of their neighborhoods. They deserve this safety and the COPS Program is delivering it to them.

POLICE DEPARTMENT, CITY OF BULL SHOALS, Bull Shoals, AR, August 1, 1995.

Sincerely,

DAVID PRIOR, Mayor of Bull Shoals, AR, August 1, 1995.

Mr. Pryor,

Mr. President, putting an additional 100,000 officers on the streets is a promise that this body made last year when it passed the crime bill. It is our duty to continue this vital program that represents an approximate 20 percent increase in the American police force. What the American people want is to feel safe in their homes, and on the streets of their neighborhoods. They deserve this safety and the COPS Program is delivering it to them. I urge my colleagues to stand with me in protecting what is important to our country. I urge you to vote to save the COPS Program.

LEGAL SERVICES TO NATIVE AMERICANS

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I seek a few moments in order to seek clarification from my esteemed colleagues. Senator HATFIELD, with regard to language that is contained in an amendment proposed by my colleague. When the Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, and State and the Judiciary met to consider H.R. 2076, the appropriation bill for fiscal year 1996, Senator STEVENS proposed an amendment to the amendment proposed by the esteemed chairman of the full committee, Senator HATFIELD, relating to the provision of legal services as it affects Native American households.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, my amendment, which was adopted by the Committee on Commerce, Justice, and State and the Judiciary on September 7, 1995, provides that in States that have significant numbers of eligible Native American households, grants to such States would equal an amount that is 140 percent of the amount such States would otherwise receive. My amendment was adopted in order to prevent a serious reduction in legal services to Native Americans. Under current law, there is a separate, additional appropriation for legal services to the Native American community. The Legal Services Corporation has given itself the flexibility to allocate additional resources to States like Alaska, which experience increased costs due to the difficulty of providing legal services to remote populations, many of which are composed of Native Americans. Given the fact that the Legal Services Corporation, including the separate Native American appropriation, was eliminated the committee's bill, my amendment was necessary in order to ensure the continued provision of legal services to the Native American community.

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I wish to express my deep appreciation to my colleagues from Alaska for their efforts in this area, and for recognizing that the significant needs for legal assistance in Native American communities span a broad range of issues, from housing and sanitation to health care and education. In my own State of Hawaii, Native Hawaiians comprise less than 13 percent of the population, but represent more than 40 percent of the prison inmate population. Native Hawaiians have twice the unemployment rate of the State's general population and represent 30 percent of the State's recipients of aid to families with dependent children. Over 1,000 Native Hawaiians are homeless, representing 30 percent of the State's homeless population. Native Hawaiians have the lowest life expectancy, the highest death rate, and the highest infant mortality rate of any population group in the State. Moreover, they have the lowest education levels and the highest suicide rate in Hawaii.

Mr. President, in my State, we have the Native Hawaiian Legal Corp. [NHLC], a nonprofit organization established to provide legal services to Native Hawaiian community. NHLC has a 20-year history of providing quality legal services to Native Hawaiians, and it has long been affiliated with the Native American Rights Fund. Fifteen percent of NHLC's annual funding comes from the Native American portion of the Legal Services Corporation. My amendment is consistent with the current situation under the Legal Services Corporation. My question of my colleague from Alaska is whether it is in the interest that Native Hawaiians would continue to be eligible to receive funds appropriated for the provision of legal services under your amendment, consistent with the current situation under the Legal Services Corporation?

Mr. STEVENS. I thank the Senator for his earlier comments. My colleagues from Hawaii, in his capacity as the former chair of the Affairs Committee, has traveled many, many times to my State of Alaska, and I know that he has come to appreciate the very difficult circumstances under which the vast majority of our native villages are challenged. The Senator from Hawaii faces in trying to meet the needs of native communities in the State of Hawaii, and I therefore understand full well his desire to clarify the meaning of "Native American households". When I proposed this language, it was my intention to ensure that those Native American communities, including native Hawaiian households, currently being served by the Legal Services Corporation would continue to receive legal services under the block grant approach proposed by Senator HATFIELD. Have I sufficiently addressed my colleague's concerns?

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I wish to thank my colleagues from Alaska, for clarifying this matter for me. I am certain that the native Hawaiian community will be most appreciative of the Senator's clarification.

Mr. BREAUX. I would like to raise an issue that is of concern to several members of this committee on both sides of the aisle.

Previously, as chairman of this committee and of the Appropriations Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, I have been instrumental in establishing spectrum auctions for new PCS services, and was a guiding force in developing the rules that were adopted by the FCC governing relocation of microwave licenses out of this spectrum.

He is also discussed, that certain enterprises individuals have recruited a number of microwave incumbents as clients and now seem to be manipulating the FCC rules on microwave relocation to leverage exorbitant payments from new PCS licensees.

I am advised that if this practice continues, more and more microwave incumbent will be induced to employ these unintended tactics. More importantly, it will reportedly devalue spectrum in future auctions to the tune of up to $2 billion as future bidders factor this successful gamesmanship into their bidding strategies. Previously scored revenue for deficit reduction will be unfairly diverted instead to private pockets.

Would the Senator agree with me that this first that this type of relocation negotiations was unintended, is unreasonable, and should not be permitted to continue unchecked?

Second, that the affected parties should attempt to agree on a mutually acceptable solution to this problem?

Third, that if an acceptable compromise cannot be brought forth by the affected parties within a reasonable time period, then either Congress or the FCC should address an order as quickly as possible with appropriate remedies?

Mr. HOLLINGS. I thank my colleagues for raising this issue. As he noted, I offered an amendment on the State, Justice, Commerce Appropriations bill in 1992 on this issue. The electric utilities, oil pipelines, and railroads must have reliable communications systems. The FCC initially proposed to move these utilities' communications systems from the 2 gigahertz band to the 6 gigahertz band without ensuring that the 6 gigahertz band would provide reliable communications.

My amendment, which the FCC subsequently adopted in its rules, guaranteed that the utilities could only be moved out of the 2 gigahertz band if they are given 3 years to negotiate an agreement, if their costs of moving to the 6 gigahertz frequency are paid for, and if the reliability of their communications at the new frequency is guaranteed.

Now I understand that some of the incumbent users may be taking advantage of the negotiation period to delay the introduction of new technologies. It was certainly not my intention to give the incumbent users an incentive to delay moving to the 6 gigahertz band purely to obtain more money. I agree with Mr. Hollings that the parties involved in this issue should try to work out an acceptable solution to this issue. If the parties cannot agree to work out a compromise, I believe that Congress or the FCC may need to revisit this issue.

WOMEN'S BUSINESS PROGRAMS

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I would like to address an important portion of the Hatfield amendment, preservation of Small Business Administration funding for women's business programs.

I believe the issue of women in business needs to be placed in the clearer context.
The new dynamics of the American economy have brought about a sea-change in society. Thirty years ago, when most women entered the work force, they did so to supplement their families' incomes. Most often, women worked in clerical and support roles. Today many cannot.

Economic restructuring and societal changes have accelerated the entry of women into the work force, into the professions and into business. We see the challenges these changes have generated all around us.

Nothing has been more exciting and challenging, though, than the emergence of women as business builders and entrepreneurs. Without exception, every aspect of business offers extraordinary opportunities for women.

Women own an increasingly dynamic sector of our economy.

According to the most recent census data available—1982-87—the number of women-owned firms increased by 57 percent—more than twice the rate of all U.S. businesses.

These businesses employed 35 percent more people in the United States than the Fortune 500 companies employed worldwide, and had a payroll of nearly $42 billion.

More women-owned businesses have staying power—over 40 percent have been in business for 12 or more years.

Businesses owned by women tend to hire more women. It is not unusual to find that two-thirds of their employees are women.

In 1993, the Small Business Administration's flagship lending program, the 7(a) program, guaranteed 25,000 loans totaling $6.4 billion to women-owned businesses. Women-owned businesses accounted for nearly one-third of all small businesses, they only made up about 10 percent of loan recipients that year. In 1994, that total rose to 24 percent.

In spite of their successes in getting started in providing employment, one of the biggest impediments that women-owned businesses face today is constraints on their growth—they remain small. Women-owned businesses average $27,361 in annual sales of 567,000, compared to $134,000 in sales for all small businesses.

That is why, Mr. President, the National Women's Business Council and the Women's Business Ownership Development Program are so important.

The National Women's Business Council monitors plans and programs developed in the private and public sector which affect the ability of women-owned businesses to obtain capital and credit. The council also develops and promotes new initiatives, policies and plans designed to foster women's business enterprises.

The Women's Business Ownership Development Program is a broad-based, private-sector supported initiative that will help start-up and growing women-owned businesses. One of the areas on which they will concentrate is Government contracting opportunities for women.

Four million dollars will help establish demonstration sites like the one in Dallas in cities all across this country. Programs like the National Women's Business Council and the Women's Enterprise Development Program—modest in scope but breathe-taking in the possibilities they hold out to those willing to work hard—have the potential to turn America around. I am pleased my colleagues saw the value and agreed to continued funding.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I would like to express my concern about the programs that are suffering as a result of the appropriations in this bill. The programs that I am referring to are critical to the future of the U.S. economy. Economic security, competitiveness, jobs. That is what is at risk.

Technology development is slated to be the victim of our budget axe. Investments in technology are investments in our future and should not be terminated. In our enthusiasm to make cuts to balance the budget we are losing sight of the reason we want to balance the budget in the first place—to make our economy stronger. The irony is that by cutting technology programs we are cutting programs that are already making our economy stronger. We will be defeating our own purpose.

I am particularly concerned about the integration of technology and trade functions in the Department of Commerce. Within the Department of Commerce there are programs that work with the private sector to foster new ideas that may underpin the next generation of products. One of the few places where information channels are developed that make sure that the ideas generated in our world class research institutions find their way into the marketplace. Previous Administrations had the foresight to realize that we are entering a new era, an era where economic battles are as fiercely fought as any previous military actions. New kinds of technology programs were begun with bipartisan support to make sure that the United States was well armed for these economic battles. I do not want to see us lose our technology edge in the marketplace, because this edge translates directly into jobs for our work force, new markets for American business, improvements in our balance of trade, and from this economic success, desperately needed revenues for our treasury. The home of technology programs is with our trade programs where they will have the most impact and do the most good for our economy. The Technology Administration is a critical component of the Department of Commerce and we need to make sure that its key functions are maintained.

Making changes in technology and trade functions at this time must be done extremely carefully. New markets are emerging in developing countries. Conservative estimates suggest that 60 percent of the growth in world trade will be with these developing countries in the coming decades. The United States has a large share of imports in big emerging markets currently, in significant part because of the efforts of the Department of Commerce. While we are making changes in the Department of Commerce, our foreign competitors are increasing their investments in their economies. Competing advanced economies are just waiting for us to make a move, to weaken our economic capacity. We cannot afford to have the success that manufacturers have had with little successful programs that are making and keeping the United States competitive. We should be sure that changes we make will be improving the Government's efficiency and improving the government on investment.

The kind of technology programs that I am advocating are not corporate welfare or techno pork. I find these terms not only inaccurate and derived from ignorance, but offensive. American industry is not looking for a handout. Quite the contrary. These programs are providing incentives to elicit support from the private sector for programs that are the responsibility of the Government. Times are tough and the Government needs to cut back, so we are looking for the handout from private industry, not the other way around. Let me explain.

Everyone agrees that when markets fail, it is legitimate to have the Government step in. For example, so-called basic research, the Government funds, because no one industry can capture the benefits of the investment. Basic research is described as research that is so far reaching that it will impact a wide array of applications in a variety of different industries on a timeframe that could be quite long. No one expects a single company to make an investment, when it can not capture a sufficient return on its investment, or when the investment would be too risky or too long term. That would be bad business. I agree with this definition of basic research and I agree with these criteria for the appropriate role for government investments. These criteria apply equally to investment in technology research, as long as the technology research is precompetitive, high risk, and long term.

So-called basic research has also been defined as research that does not have any clear application. This definition is puzzling. One could legitimately ask, why perform research that deliberately has no application? In reality, research is rather fickle and difficult to predict. With one can plot a nice logical progression from basic research, to applied research, to product development, but this is usually not the case. Often what appears to be basic research turns out to be product development, or applied research results in a fundamental breakthrough with farreaching results, or as most commonly happens, at the end of an experiment, the research scientist must go back to the drawing board and try one more experiment before she claims success. Thus, the research scenario is complicated and trying to make clear distinctions is artificial at best.

Our goal should be, not to try and categorize research, but to make investments that are appropriate, and that strengthen our economy. I believe that there is an important and legitimate role for government to play in technology research. The National Association of Manufacturers has spoken out strongly in favor of the kind of technology programs that are run by the Department of Commerce. I would like to read some quotes from their statement about Federal technology programs.

The NAM is concerned that the magnitude and distribution of the R&D spending cuts proposed thus far would erode US technological leadership. A successful national R&D policy requires a diverse portfolio of programs that includes long- and short-term science and technology programs, as well as the necessary infrastructure to support them. The character of research activities has changed substantially in the past decade, making hard and fast distinctions between basic and applied research, or between research and development increasingly artificial. R&D agendas today are driven by time horizons not definitions. In particular, "bridge" programs that focus on the problem of transitioning off the lab to market, yield greater payoff to a wider public than programs aimed at technology creation. Newer programs address current R&D challenges far more effectively than older programs and should not fall victim to the "last hired, first fired" prioritization.

In particular, partnership and bridge programs should not only not be singled out for elimination, but should receive a relatively greater share of federal R&D spending because R&D accounts for approximately 5 percent of federal R&D spending. The NAM suggests that 15 percent may be a more appropriate level. Given the critical nature of R&D, far too much is being cut on the basis of far too little understanding of the implications. The world has changed considerably in the past several years, and R&D is no different. The federal R&D policy must account for new and emerging applications.

The conclusion is clear. Short-term focus will lead to technological inferiority in the future. Our economy will suffer. Some of my colleagues in Congress believe that basic research is more important than applied research. I believe that both are necessary to create new generations of high-technology products. On the contrary, we have seen historically that basic research performed in a vacuum, that is without communication with the industry, is unlikely to lead to products.

In this country, we have the best basic research anywhere in the world. There is no contest. Yet, we continue to watch our creative basic research capitalized by other countries. We must improve our ability to transfer our brilliant ideas to market. Basic research focuses on a time horizon of 10 to 20 years. Product development focuses on a time horizon of 1 to 3 years.

September 28, 1995
S 14535

Dr. Alan Bromley, President Bush's Science Advisor in 1991, determined a list of 20 technologies that are critical to develop for the United States to remain a world economic power. There has been very little disagreement among analysts and industry about the list. No one company benefits from these technologies, rather a variety of industries would benefit with advances in any one of these areas. These are the kinds of areas that should be the focus areas of the ATP. The focus areas are determined by industry, not by bureaucrats, to be key areas where research breakthroughs will advance the economy as a whole not single companies.

There is no doubt that industry benefits from its partnership with the Government. The nature of the marketplace has changed, and technological advancement is a crucial component in maintaining our stature in the new world marketplace. Product life cycles are getting more and more compressed, so the development of new products must occur at a more and more rapid pace. The market demands products faster, at higher quality and in wider varieties—and the product must be delivered just in time. Innovative technological advancements enhance speed, quality, and distribution, to deliver to customers the product they want, when they want it. Ironically, the competitive market demands that companies stay lean and mean, diminishing the size that are now so much a part of our society and programs that foster the kind of innovation necessary to stay competitive. Because of all of these pressures, industrial R&D is now focused on short-term product development at the expense of long-term research to generate future generations of products.

The conclusion is clear. Short-term focus will lead to technological inferiority in the future. Our economy will suffer. Some of my colleagues in Congress believe that basic research is more important than applied research. I believe that both are necessary to create new generations of high-technology products. On the contrary, we have seen historically that basic research performed in a vacuum, that is without communication with the industry, is unlikely to lead to products.

In this country, we have the best basic research anywhere in the world. There is no contest. Yet, we continue to watch our creative basic research capitalized by other countries. We must improve our ability to transfer our brilliant ideas to market. Basic research focuses on a time horizon of 10 to 20 years. Product development focuses on a time horizon of 1 to 3 years.
horizon of less than 5 years, and sometimes much shorter than that. It is the intermediate timescale, the 5 to 15 year time-frame that is critical to develop a research idea into a product concept.

We have a responsibility to make sure that our private sector does not fall behind in the global economy. Diminishing our technological preparedness is tantamount to unilateral disarmament, in an increasingly competitive global marketplace. Government/industry partnerships stimulate just the kind of innovative research that can keep our technological industry at the leading edge. These partnerships help fill the gap between short-term product development, and basic research.

American companies no longer survive by thinking only about the national marketplace. They must think globally. Familiar competitors like Japan and Germany, continue to compete aggressively in global markets. New challenges are coming from India, China, Malaysia, Thailand, some of the leading Latin American nations and more. We cannot afford to let jobs and profits of new scientific concepts, technology, and products. Now when you consider the infrastructures that insures that manufacturing jobs by the millions. Manufacturing which once was the lifeblood of our economy is bleeding jobs overseas. We need to provide the environment for the American manufacturing industry to flourish.

As I look at our manufacturing competitiveness, I am struck by how little we do to support this critical component of our economy. In the United States we are used to being the leaders in technologies of all kinds. Historically, English words have crept into foreign languages, because we were the inventors of new scientific concepts, technology, and products. Now when you describe the manufacturing practices you use words like "kanban" and "pokaoke." These are Japanese words that are known to production workers all over the United States. Kanban is a word which describes an efficient method of inventory management, and pokaoke is a method of making part of a production process immune from error or mistake proof thereby increasing the quality of the end product. We have learned these techniques from the Japanese, in order to compete in the global marketplace.

In a global economy, there is no choice, a company must become state-of-the-art or it will go under. We must recognize that our policies must change with the marketplace and adapt our manufacturing strategy to compete in this new global marketplace. The Manufacturing Extension Program (MEP) is a big step forward in reforming the way we manufacture.

The focus of the MEP Program is one that historically has been accepted as a proper role of government: education. The MEP strives to educate small- and mid-sized manufacturers in the best practices that are available for their manufacturing processes. With the MEP we have the opportunity to play a constructive role in keeping our companies competitive in a fiercely competitive, rapidly changing field. When manufacturing practices change so rapidly, it is the small- and mid-sized companies that suffer. They cannot afford to invest the necessary time and capital to explore all new trends to determine which practices to adopt and then to train their workers, invest in new equipment, and restructure their factories to accommodate the changes. The MEP's act as a library of manufacturing practices, staying current on the latest innovations, and educating companies on how to get the best results. At the heart of the MEP is a network of experts with strong private sector experience ready to reach small firms and their workers about the latest manufacturing advances.

Another benefit of the MEP is that it brings its clients into contact with other manufacturers, universities, national labs and any other institutions where they might find solutions to their problems. Facilitating these contacts incorporates small manufacturers into a manufacturing network, and this networking among manufacturers is a powerful competitive advantage. With close connections, suppliers begin working with customers at early stages of design and engineering. When suppliers and customers work together on product design, suppliers can provide the input that makes manufacturing more efficient, customers can communicate their specifications and time-tables more effectively, and long-term productive relationships are forged. These supplier/customer networks are common practice in other countries, and lead to more efficient and therefore more competitive, design, and production practices.

The MEP is our important tool in keeping our small manufacturers competitive. We are staying competitive in markets that have become hotbeds of global competition, and we are beginning to capture some new markets. More importantly, we are applying the lessons learned about the MEP in a way that is forcing tough choices regarding the Department of Commerce, however the laboratories operated by NIST and funded by the Department of Commerce are vital scientific resource for the Nation and should be preserved in the process of downsizing the Federal Government. These scientists are the leaders of the scientific community and we should not disregard their advice.

This amendment restores funding for NIST and its programs at a time when we cannot afford to cut the ATP. Each Federal dollar invested in a small- or mid-sized manufacturer through the MEP, there has been $8 of economic growth. This is a program that is paying for itself by growing our economy.

The ATP and the MEP are critical technology investments. They are both run under the auspices of the National Institutes of Standards and Technology, [NIST]. In addition to these NIST programs, NIST itself is at risk. We would like to bring to my colleagues' attention, a recent letter sent by 25 American Nobel prize winners in physics and the presidents of scientific societies. As the New York Times put it "Budget cutters see fat where scientists see a national treasure." These scientists are shocked and appalled that we could think of making cuts in NIST and its programs. According to the scientists "It is unthinkable that a modern nation could expect to remain competitive without these services" and they continue "We recognize that your effort to balance the budget is forcing tough choices regarding the Department of Commerce, however the laboratories operated by NIST and funded by the Department of Commerce are vital scientific resource for the Nation and should be preserved in the process of downsizing the Federal Government. These scientists are the leaders of the scientific community and we should not disregard their advice.

This amendment restores funding for NIST and its programs at a time when we cannot afford to cut the ATP. Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I would ask unanimous consent that the vote scheduled for 9 p.m. this evening be postponed to occur at 10 a.m. tomorrow, Friday, and that immediately follow the granting of the request, Senator DOMENICI be recognized to offer his amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. HOLLINGS. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President, is it also understood that we will not agree to the proposal that we originally intended to stack the Domenici vote, namely, after the 10 a.m. vote on the Biden amendment, we would have the Domenici vote?
Mr. GREGG. That, to my knowledge, has not yet been agreed to with Senator DOMENICI. He will be here at 9 to begin debate on his amendment. And at that time I would hope that such an agreement could be reached with Senator DOMENICI.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I would hope so. Pending that, Mr. President, I would have to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the vote scheduled for 9 p.m. this evening be postponed to occur at 10 a.m. Friday, and immediately following the granting of this consent that Senator DOMENICI be recognized to offer his amendment.

I further ask unanimous consent that at 9 a.m. the Senate resume consideration of the McCain amendment No. 2816 with 60 minutes equally divided, that a vote occur following the Biden vote with 4 minutes equally divided between the two votes, and that following these votes, the Senate resume consideration of the Domenici amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DOMENICI. Reserving the right to object, did the Senator say I would offer my amendment tonight or tomorrow?

I have no objection.

Mr. GRAMM. Immediately following this, the Senator would do it tonight.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, will the Senator be kind enough to yield for 30 seconds?

Mr. DOMENICI. Certainly.

AMENDMENT NO. 2818, AS MODIFIED

Mr. President, the amendment which I sent to the desk numbered 2818, my omnibus amendment, I made a mistake in two places in it in terms of numbers. They were as described but different than written, and it has been cleared with the majority and minority.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is so modified.

On page 20, line 16, strike all that follows to page 20, line 19, and insert:

“Section 241 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1255(i)) is amended—

(1) in the second sentence of paragraph (1), by striking “five” and inserting “ten”; and

(2) in paragraph (3), by inserting before the period at the end the following: “or, notwithstanding any other provision of law, may be deposited as offsetting collections in the Immigration and Naturalization Service “Salaries and Expenses” appropriations account to be available to support border enforcement and control programs.”

The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to funds remitted with applications for adjustment of status which were filed on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

For activities authorized by section 13006 of Public Law 103-322, $10,300,000, to remain available until expended, shall be derived from the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

AMENDMENT NO. 2819 TO THE COMMITTEE AMENDMENT ON PAGE 26, LINES 18 THROUGH 20

(Purpose: To improve provisions relating to appropriations for legal assistance)

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am going to send an unprinted amendment to the desk which is a one minute amendment. This amendment is an amendment to the committee amendment beginning on page 26, line 18 wherein we add the following. I want to state before I send it there that my cosponsors as of now—and I welcome any others that would like to join—are Senators KASSEBAUM, HOLLINGS, D’AMATO, INOUYE, HATFIELD, KENNEDY, and SPECTER.

Mr. President, the only thing I want to put in the RECORD tonight after I have introduced the amendment, I will put in—I did not. I do not have to send it up until I am ready to send it up. Right? I think that is the rule. I will send it up shortly.

I am putting a list in of the prohibitions that are found in this amendment, with reference to what the Legal Services Corporation will be prohibited from doing. So overnight, if anybody has any concern about my not getting rid of class action lawsuits and the like, I would like them to peruse this list and give me their advice.

Therefore, Mr. President, with that explanation, I send the amendment to the desk and ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending question will be the amendment on page 26.

The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Mexico (Mr. DOMENICI), for himself, and Mr. HATFIELD, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, Mr. D’AMATO, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. INOUYE, Mr. KENNEDY, and Mr. SPECTER, on August 29, 1995, made an offer of an amendment numbered 2819 to the committee amendment on page 26, lines 18 through 20.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I believe the Parliamentarian might have had in mind that I sought unanimous consent that there be cosponsors when there was no amendment there.

I now ask that the those cosponsors that enumerated a while ago be added as original cosponsors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I send the amendment to the desk and ask for its consideration.

The amendment restores the Legal Services Corporation, provides $340 million in funding for fiscal year 1996 and adopts House Appropriations restrictions on use of funds. Appropriate offsets will be found throughout the appropriations bill.

FUNDING

Provides $340 million in FY 1996, $225 million through August 31, 1996 and $115, to be provided upon the September 1, 1996, implementation of a competitive bidding system for grants, as outlined in the amendment.

RESTRICTIONS ON USE OF FUNDS BY CORPORATION AND RECIPIENTS

Native Americans will receive additional consideration under the act but no special earmarks are provided as have existed in the past.

Restrictions shall apply only to new cases undertaken or additional matters being addressed in existing cases.

Additionally, there are a number of clarifying and special provisions:

- Competitive bidding of grants must be implemented by September 1, 1995, and regulations must be proposed 60 days after enactment of the Act. Funds will be provided on an “equal figure per individual in poverty.”

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield the floor.

Mr. SARBAZ. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the Legal Services Program in opposition to the pending appropriation bill. Pursuant to this legislation, and the Legal Services Program—as it has existed for more than two decades—would be abolished and replaced with a legal assistance block grant program, funded at a level that is drastically lower than current funding for legal services.

The Legal Services Corporation has been at the forefront of our efforts to give real meaning to the words enshrined in stone above the portals of the Supreme Court: “Equal Justice Under Law.” The Legal Services Program has provided critically needed services to millions of poor, elderly, and disabled citizens who otherwise would not have access to the American legal system and the protection it affords the many basic rights we enjoy in this country and which so many of us take for granted.

The Legal Services Corporation provides funds to State legal aid programs throughout our Nation. It has been described as one of the most effective and worthwhile Federal programs in existence, while also being one of the least known. The Corporation has provided needed legal assistance to approximately 17 million clients annually, benefiting about 5 million individuals living in poverty in this country, primarily women and children. LSC accomplishes this using only about 3 percent of its total funding for administration and management. That means that 97 percent of the appropriation goes directly to the local programs that provide the services, clearly illustrating the efficient operation of this valuable program.

Maryland’s Legal Aid Bureau, which receives by far the largest portion of its total funding from the Legal Services Corporation, has done an outstanding job of representing Maryland citizens in all the cases. With the funding received from LSC, the 13 legal aid offices located throughout Maryland provide general legal services to approximately 19,000 families and individuals annually, assisting Marylanders in such routine problems, such as consumer problems, housing issues, domestic and family cases, and applying for and appealing the denial of public benefits.

Because the Republican measure prohibits grants to be made to individual attorneys, and appears to exclude current legal services programs from eligibility for funding under the program, the Maryland Legal Aid Bureau could lose some of even all of this critical Federal funding. This would leave Maryland citizens without access to these vital services to the many thousands of clients currently represented—who, in fact, represent only a small percentage of Maryland’s poor citizens—unless alternative funding can be provided at the State and local level.

Mr. President, the Legal Services Corporation has operated an effective and efficient program in representing citizens, who without this assistance, would never have their day in court. Although cases involve routine legal disagreements related to housing, consumer issues, family and domestic matters, and employment, these routine matters often become insurmountable when coupled with the other pressures of a complex society that weighs on families unable to afford legal representation.

The Republican proposal would replace the Legal Services Corporation with a block grant program administered by the Department of Justice, through which funds for civil legal assistance would be allocated to the States. The bill severely reduces funding for legal services, cutting the funding from the $400 million appropriated to the Legal Services Corporation for fiscal year 1995 to $210 million—a reduction of nearly 50 percent.

Not only does the bill slash funding for legal services for the poor, it also establishes several restrictions on the type of services that may be provided under the new block grant program. This program would drastically limit qualified services to 10 specific causes of action. As a result, low-income individuals would be denied representation with respect to matters critical—and basic—legal matters.

Under the measure, qualified services appear to exclude representation in essential legal matters such as applying for or appealing a denial of statutory benefits, including Social Security benefits, veterans benefits, unemployment compensation, food stamps or medical assistance; obtaining or refinancing home ownership; housing discrimination; claims based on consumer fraud; prisoner litigation; discrimination in hiring; wage claims; problems with public utilities; immigration; unfair sales practices; preparation of wills; paternity; and patient rights.

Most of the excluded causes of action are significant legal matters that routinely arise out of everyday problems faced by many Americans. Under the committee bill, legal assistance with respect to these routine types of cases would be denied arbitrarily to low-income individuals and families.

Additional restrictions would prohibit legal service providers from using funds under the program for representation in cases related to matters such as redistricting, legislative and administrative advocacy, and prison litigation. Class action lawsuits against the Government or private parties—which, contrary to the myth currently being perpetuated, actually encompass less than one-tenth of 1 percent of all legal services cases—would be barred, as would lawsuits challenging the constitutionality of any statute.

Another particularly disturbing provision in the bill would require that any qualified client, as a condition for receiving services under the program, waive the attorney-client privilege and the attorney work product privilege. This clearly interferes with the ethical obligations that all lawyers have to their clients.

Mr. President, the drastic cutbacks and restrictions in this bill would strike a devastating blow to many of our citizens who would find access to the courts blocked and would be unable to assert the rights to which they are entitled by our Constitution and our laws.

I strongly urge my colleagues to oppose these attempts to dismantle this vital program and to support the continuation of the Legal Services Corporation and the current legal services delivery system, as well as increased funding for legal assistance for the poor over the level proposed in this appropriation measure.
An editorial appearing in the September 15 New York Times eloquently addressed the current Republican attack on funding legal services for the poor and the importance of maintaining the Legal Services Corporation. I ask unanimous consent that this editorial be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

[From the New York Times, Sept. 15, 1995]

SHOWDOWN FOR LEGAL SERVICES

Equal justice for all may be an American ideal but not to the Republican-controlled Congress, where measures advanced ominously this week to abolish the Legal Services Corporation, the federally funded program to help poor people with legal problems.

The corporation, which was created in 1974, managed to survive previous attacks on its mandate and financing during the Reagan and Bush Administrations, aided by powerful Democratic friends in Congress and some Republicans, including Senator Warren Rudman of New Hampshire. But its continued existence is now in jeopardy. Not satisfied with the disabling funding cut already approved by the full House, or pending provisions in both chambers that would greatly restrict the types of cases that may be handled, the Republicans who control the House and Senate are moving to dismantle the program entirely.

The House voted in July to slash the corporation's budget from $400 million a year to $278 million. By an 18 to 13 straight party-line vote on Wednesday, the House Judiciary Committee approved a measure pushed by Representative George Gekas of Pennsylvania that would carry the demolition further. It would break up the corporation and its expert network of poverty-law specialists and replace them with a more bureaucratic, fragmented and inefficient system of small block grants to fiscally hard-pressed states. Some states have shown little interest historically in providing civil legal services that empower the poor, and may not bother to apply for the dwindling amounts of money allotted. In the Senate, meanwhile, a similarly unwelcoming funding scheme proposed by Senator Phil Gramm of Texas has passed the Appropriations Committee and is due to hit the Senate floor perhaps as early as today. It would reduce the budget to as low as $250 million, and funnel it through block grants.

The program's critics complain that the corporation uses the courts to push "a liberal agenda." But, clearly, what is driving the attack is their own ideological opposition to what poverty lawyers do, which is to protect the legal rights of the poor. This mandate and financing during the Reagan and Bush Administrations, aided by powerful Democratic friends in Congress and some Republicans, including Senator Warren Rudman of New Hampshire. But its continued existence is now in jeopardy. Not satisfied with the disabling funding cut already approved by the full House, or pending provisions in both chambers that would greatly restrict the types of cases that may be handled, the Republicans who control the House and Senate are moving to dismantle the program entirely.

Mr. President, the distinguished chairmen of the subcommittee has indicated his support for this measure. I thank him and ask that we move on this simple issue expeditiously.

COMMONFUNDING OF PENALTIES, NO. 2825

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate on United States-Canada Cooperation concerning an outlet to relieve flooding at Devils Lake in North Dakota)

On page 124, after line 20, insert the following:

SEC. 6. SENSE OF THE SENATE ON UNITED STATES-CANADIAN COOPERATION CONCERNING AN OUTLET TO RELIEVE FLOODING AT DEVILS LAKE IN NORTH DAKOTA.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) flooding in Devils Lake Basin, North Dakota, has resulted in water levels in the lake reaching their highest point in 120 years; and

(2) basement are flooded and the town of Devils Lake is threatened with lake water reaching the limits of the protective dikes of the lake;

(b) the Army Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation are now studying the feasibility of constructing an outlet from Devils Lake to the Red River of the North water shed that the United States shares with Canada; and

(c) the Treaty Relating to the Boundary Waters and Question Concerning an Outlet to Relieve Flooding at Devils Lake in North Dakota.

Chapter 8 of the Eisenhower Exchange Fellowship Act of 1950 is amended in the last sentence by striking "fiscal year 1995" and inserting "fiscal year 1999".

Mr. President, the distinguished chairmen of the subcommittee has indicated his support for this measure. I thank him and ask that we move on this simple issue expeditiously.
meet Canadian concerns with regard to the Boundary Water Treaty of 1909.

AMENDMENT NO. 2023
On page 72, after the word "grants," insert the following: "Provided further, That of the amounts provided in this paragraph $76,300,000 is for the Manufacturing Extension Partnership program."

MANUFACTURING EXTENSION PROGRAM
Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I want to commend the chairman of the Appropriations Committee for including in his amendment an additional $25 million for the Industrial Technology Services account at the National Institute of Standards and Technology [NIST]. That funding is for the Manufacturing Extension Partnership [MEP] program, which supports locally run manufacturing extension centers around the country.

I would like to enter into a brief conversation with the chairman to clarify that this funding is provided for three purposes. First, $22 million is provided to support new centers that are now close to be chosen, under an ongoing competition. The amendment restores funding that had been provided in the fiscal year 1995 Appropriations Act for new centers but which the present bill would shift to other purposes. This amendment therefore overrides the committee report language which says that no funds can be used to open a new center during the coming year.

Second, $3 million is provided for fiscal year 1996 support services for the existing 42 manufacturing extension centers. These are services such as materials for training extension agents, provided to centers through MEP's National Programs account. This $3 million is in addition to funds which the bill already provides for fiscal year 1996 support of the existing 42 centers, including the eligible centers originally supported by the Defense Department's Technology Reinvestment Project.

Third, with this amendment the amount of new appropriations for the MEP program now totals $76.3 million, and the amount of prior year appropriations and new appropriations for meeting prior Advanced Technology Program [ATP] commitments totals $109,138,000. The ATP is intended to receive $107 million in prior year appropriations and $25.3 million in new appropriations. I would like to ask the chairman if this three-part interpretation of the MEP portion of his amendment is correct.

Mr. HATFIELD. The Senator is correct.

Mr. HOLLINGS. I thank the Chairman.

AMENDMENT NO. 2024
Table the Committee amendment on page 79, lines 1 through 10.

On page 79, line 22, delete "$42,000,000" and insert "$37,000,000".

AMENDMENT NO. 2025
On page 115, line 2 after "equipment," insert the following: "Provided further, That not later than April 1, 1996, the headquarters of the Office of Cuban Broadcasting shall be relocated from Washington, D.C. to South Florida, and that any funds available to the United States Information Agency may be available to carry out this relocation."

AMENDMENT NO. 2026
At the appropriate place, insert the following new section:

SEC. 405. (a) Subject to subsection (b), section 15(a) of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1995 (22 U.S.C. 2808(a)) and section 701 of the United States Information and Educational Exchange Act of 1948 and section 313 of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, fiscal years 1994 and 1995 and section 53 of the Arms Control and Disarmament Act, to make appropriations available for the Department of State in this Act.

(b) The waiver of subsection (a) shall cease to apply December 1, 1995.

WAVER OF AUTHORIZATION
Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, the pending amendment authorizes the Senate and House committees on appropriations to waive the requirement in section 15 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1995 that appropriations must first be authorized. This waiver applies through December 1, 1995.

As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which has the responsibility of authorizing the activities of the Department of State and its related agencies, I am reluctant to agree to this waiver. However, because the administration and certain Members of this Senate have refused to allow a vote on the committee's authorization bill—S. 908, the Foreign Relations Authorization Act of 1995—and since Senate consideration of S. 908 bill is still pending, I have agreed to allow the State Department's funding to go forward without authorization through the first of December.

This window will allow adequate time for the President and his representatives to advise their friends in the Senate that no further efforts on their part should be made to forbid a vote on the authorizing legislation S. 908.

Mr. President, I reiterate now what I have asserted on numerous occasions since the Democrats' filibuster against S. 908 began; the Senate Foreign Relations Committee will resume consideration of and action on all nominations, treaties, and legislation pending before the committee once the administration urges Senate Democrats to vote on our legislation.

I thank the distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. RUDD, for his cooperation on this issue. I thank him also for his continued support of our efforts to consolidate three anachronistic Federal foreign affairs agencies into the Department of State which, he and I agree, will help balance the Federal budget.

AMENDMENT NO. 2028
(Purpose: To make available for diplomatic and consular programs funds collected from new fees charged for the expedited processing of certain visas and border crossing cards)

On page 93, line 7, after "Provided," insert the following: "That, notwithstanding the second sentence of section 140(a)(3) of the Foreign Relations Authorization Act, Fiscal Years 1994 and 1995 (Public Law 103-236), not to exceed $125,000,000 of fees collected during fiscal year 1996 under the authority of section 140(a)(1) of that Act: Provided further, That all fees collected under the preceding proviso shall be deposited in fiscal year 1996 as an offsetting collection to appropriations made under this heading to recover the costs of providing consular services and shall remain available until expended: Provided further,--"

MACHINE READABLE VISA FEES
Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, this amendment will permit the Department of State to continue to charge and collect a fee for the issuance of machine readable visas in specific countries around the world through fiscal year 1996. The Department may collect up to $125 million worth of fees this year alone.

It also authorizes the Department of State to use the money collected to offset the costs of diplomatic and consular activities overseas.

In the fiscal year 1994-95 State Department authorization bill—Public Law 103-236—the Committee on Foreign Relations authorized the Department to charge and collect these fees up to a total of $107 million. The Department almost met that ceiling this past year and expects to exceed that amount this fiscal year in as much as this relatively new program is now being implemented in more countries and, is thereby, made available to more people. Therefore, the Department is authorized to collect approximately $18 million more in fees this year.

Mr. President, this amendment does not cost the American taxpayer a penny. It is, in fact, a tool for sound fiscal management the Department will be able to utilize this year, especially in light of budget cuts affecting the Department of State.

I understand the able chairman of the subcommittee agrees with this measure and I thank him for his support.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, these amendments have all been cleared on both sides.

I ask unanimous consent that they be agreed to en bloc, and that statements accompanying the amendments be printed in the Record, as ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendments (Nos. 2820 through 2828) were agreed to.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, on advice of Senator HOLLINGS, who is unable to be here at the moment, I understand that these are acceptable to him on this side.
MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period of up to 5 minutes of speaking by any Senator. Without objection, it is so ordered.

OKLAHOMA'S MISS AMERICA

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, it is with great pleasure and pride that I congratulate Miss Shawntel Smith, who was crowned Miss America 1996 recently in Atlantic City on her 24th birthday.

Shawntel is the fourth Oklahoman to be named Miss America in the pageant's 75 years. She joins three other Oklahomans who have also been honored: Norma Smallwood in 1926, Jane J ayroe in 1967 and Susan Powell in 1981.

Shawntel is a native of Muldrow, Oklahoma, a town of about 3,200 residents who are by all accounts very proud and supportive of this young lady. When she was crowned Miss Oklahoma earlier this year, the town erected road signs along the Eastern Oklahoma roads leading into Muldrow.

It seems, now, however, those signs are a little outdated.

During the next year, Shawntel will represent Oklahoma and all of America as she travels to special events and speaking engagements as Miss America.

Her platform is to raise awareness for the need to prepare students for the job market. Shawntel believes that "by exposing students to potential careers and making them aware of the education needed, students can make their dreams become realities."

And Shawntel obviously has a little something about making dreams become realities.

Education has been an important part of Shawntel's own life. Through competition in pageants she has been able to earn enough in scholarship money to put herself through Northwest Oklahoma State University, where she is now working as a marketing director. Shawntel's winnings from the Miss Oklahoma and Miss America pageants will allow her to continue her education. Her goal is to obtain a master's degree in business administration from Oklahoma City University, and I have no doubt she will.

Section 20a(2) of the Act also requires the Board to issue three separate bodies of regulations which shall apply, respectively, to the employees, the house and its employees and all other covered employees and employing offices. b. Notice Posting and Recordkeeping Requirements

The CAA does not expressly make reference to the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the various statutes applied to covered employees and employing offices. In the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of section 106(b) and 109 of the FMLA and the Secretary’s regulations promulgated at 29 C.F.R. sections 825.300 and 825.500, are not expressly referenced in section 202 of the CAA, which applies the rights and protections of the FMLA to covered employees and employing offices. Similarly, the FLSA recordkeeping requirements, 29 U.S.C. section 211(c), and the Secretary’s implementing regulations at 29 C.F.R. sections 516.0-516.34, are not expressly referenced in section 203 of the CAA, which applies the right and protections of the FLSA to covered employees and employing offices.

It could be argued that notice posting and recordkeeping requirements are an integral part of the rights and protections of the applied statutes. That is, they are implicitly included within the requirements of the CAA or that ‘good cause’ exists to modify the existing substantive regulations by including some notice posting and recordkeeping requirements.

Notice postings inform covered employees of their rights and protections under the statutes and remind employing offices of their responsibilities. Recordkeeping enables an enforcement authority to determine the extent to which an employing office has complied with applicable law and, even in the absence of such authority, recordkeeping is helpful to an employing office that may be faced with a complaint from one of its employees.

Alternatively, it could be argued that the lack of specific reference in the CAA to the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the various statutes applied to covered employees impugns the Congressional intent not to impose notice posting and recordkeeping requirements on employing offices as part of the CAA. Moreover, there are indications that even the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements might impose a significant and unforeseen costs on employing offices in creating and maintaining the required reports and would, thereby, undermine the goals set by Congress. The Board requests comment on whether notice posting and recordkeeping requirements should be imposed on employing offices as part of the CAA.

The Board invites comment on whether the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the various laws made applicable by the CAA are incorporated as statutory requirements of the CAA and, if so, whether and to what extent the Secretary’s regulations implementing those requirements should be adopted.

The Board further invites comment on whether, assuming notice posting and recordkeeping requirements are incorporated as statutory requirements of the CAA, the Board (a) can and should develop its own notice posting and recordkeeping requirements to its own notice posting and recordkeeping requirements or its own notice posting and recordkeeping requirements or (b) should propose guidelines regarding the types and forms of records employed officials may wish to keep in order to comply with recordkeeping requirements of non-employees. Commenters are encouraged to suggest formats and contents which would be made available to employing offices for their consideration.

2. Specific Issues Under Individual Sections

In addition to the preceding issues that arise under all five sections of the CAA, the Board also requests comments on the following matters arising under individual sections of the Act:

a. Issues Under Section 203 (Fair Labor Standards Act)

The Fair Labor Standards Act sets forth specific criteria as to whether employees are or are not exempt employees. Exempt employees overtime pay of one and one-half times their regular rate for each hour worked in excess of 40 hours per workweek. The regulations of the Secretary set forth specific criteria as to whether employees performing specific job responsibilities are bona fide executive, administrative or professional personnel.

(i) Employees Employed in a Bona Fide Executive, Administrative or Professional Capacity

Section 13(a) of the FLSA provides an exemption from its minimum wage and overtime provisions for any employee employed in a bona fide executive, administrative or professional capacity as those terms are defined in regulations of the Secretary. 29 C.F.R. Part 541 contains those regulations.

In addition to the regulations, the Department of Labor has issued interpretive opinions and regulations which shall apply, respectively, to the employees, the house and its employees and all other covered employees and employing offices. Certain employment practices and categories of employees may be unique to one or more of these bodies.

The Board invites comment regarding under what circumstances, if any, such modifications would warrant a substantive difference in the applicable regulations.

The Board further invites comment on whether and to what extent it may be feasible to modify the regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor.
The Family and Medical Leave Act generally requires employers to permit covered employees to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid, job-protected leave for a 12-month period that includes any time lost during pregnancy, childbirth, or adoption, to care for a child born to the employee or to care for the newborn; placement of a child for adoption or foster care; care of a spouse, child, or parent who has a serious health condition; or other family or medical leave that the Department of Labor deems eligible. The FMLA and the Secretary's regulations thereunder contain provisions concerning the notice of benefit entitlements and other requirements. Pursuant to sections 504(b) and 506 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, eligible employees are entitled to take up to 12 weeks of FMLA leave in a 12-month period. The FMLA leave year is the 12-month period beginning on the first day of the first month during which the employee is first entitled to FMLA leave. The FMLA leaves of eligible employees are effective immediately preceding the commencement of leave, job restoration after leave, notice and medical certifications of the need for FMLA leave, and to other leave-related matters, including other employment laws including the Americans With Disabilities Act, Workers Compensation, and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

(i) Previous Application of the FMLA to Certain Employees.

The Board notes that Title V of the FMLA made specified rights and protections under the FMLA available to certain employees of the House of Representatives and of the Senate. On August 5, 1993, the House Committee on House Administration of the 103rd Congress promulgated regulations implementing the FMLA in the House of Representatives. Title II of such House regulations provided different FMLA rights and protections to employees of the House of Representatives and of the Senate than are provided under the CAA. For example, under Title V, "any employee in an employment position" of the House of Representatives and any employee of the Senate who has been employed for at least twelve months on other than a temporary or intermittent basis was eligible for FMLA leave. Thus, Title V provided FMLA leave to House employees immediately upon employment and to Senate employees who had worked at least twelve months on other than a temporary or intermittent basis.

Conversely, Section 202(a)(2)(B) of the CAA defines an "eligible employee" for the purpose of FMLA leave as any employee who has been employed in any employing office for 12 months and for at least 1,250 hours of employment in the 12 months immediately preceding the commencement of leave. Consequently, the CAA establishes different leave eligibility requirements than Title V. The Board further notes that Section 504(b) of the CAA repeals Title V of the FMLA effective January 23, 1996.

Section 202 of the FMLA as applied to the House of Representatives and to the Senate under the CAA entities "eligible employees" to take up to 12 weeks of FMLA leave in a 12-month period. Section 202(b) of the regulations promulgated by the Secretary provides that the employer may elect to use the 12-month period. Section 825.200(b) of the regulations promulgated by the Secretary set forth factors to be considered in determining whether a one-employer, "integrated employer" or "successor in interest", respectively, relating to the determination of whether a one-employer or "successor in interest", respectively, relating to the determination of whether a one-employer or "successor in interest" would be provided under the CAA if the regulations promulgated by the Secretary were made applicable to such employees.

(ii) Employment by More Than One Office.

In the context of the FMLA, the term "covered employer" has not been construed as to mean a single employer; it may include two or more employers of the same employee. Sections 825.106, 825.106(c)(2) and 825.107(b) of the regulations promulgated by the Secretary set forth factors to be considered in making a determination of whether a "joint employment", "integrated employer" or "successor in interest", respectively, relating to the determination of whether a one-employer or "successor in interest", respectively, relating to the determination of whether a one-employer or "successor in interest" would be provided under the CAA if the regulations promulgated by the Secretary were made applicable to such employees.

The Board invites comment on whether and, if so, how the definitions of "joint employer", "integrated employer" or "successor employer" set forth in the regulations promulgated by the Secretary should be applied and/or modified to implement FMLA rights and protections under the CAA with respect to covered employees employed simultaneously or by more than one employing office during any relevant 12-month period.

Supplementary Information

Background and Summary

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA") was enacted into law on January 23, 1996. In general, the CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment laws to covered employees within the legislative branch. Section 204(a) and (b) of the CAA applies the rights and protections of the Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 (29 U.S.C. § 2021 et seq. ("EPPA") to covered employees and employing offices. Section 204(c) authorizes the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance ("Board") to establish regulations implementing the CAA to issue regulations implementing the section. Section 204(c) further states that such regulations "shall be the same as applicable regulations of the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsections (a) and (b) except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section."

The Capitol Police is the primary law enforcement agency of the legislative branch. The proposed regulations would provide the Capitol Police with specific authorization to use lie detector tests. The limitations on the exclusion of the proposed regulation are derived from the Secretary of Labor's regulation implementing the exclusion for public sector employers under Section 7(a) of the EPPA (29 C.F.R. §501.10(d)), which limits the exclusion to the entity's own employees. The Board issues concurrently with this proposed regulation a separate Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking which invites comment regarding a number of other regulatory issues, including what regulations, if any, the Board should issue to implement the remainder of Section 204.

Proposed Regulation—Exclusion for employees of the Capitol Police

None of the limitations on the use of lie detector tests by employing offices set forth in Section 204 of the CAA apply to the Capitol Police. This exclusion from the limitations of Section 204 of the CAA applies only with respect to Capitol Police employees. Except as otherwise provided by law or these regulations, this exclusion does not extend to contractors or nongovernmental agents of the Capitol Police, nor does it extend to the Capitol Police with respect to employees of a private employer or an otherwise covered employing office with which the Capitol Police has a contractual or other business relationship.

Recommended Method of Approval

The Board recommends that this regulation be approved by concurrent resolution in light of the nature of the work performed by the Capitol Police and the fact that neither the House of Representatives nor the Senate has exclusive responsibility for the Capitol Police.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on this 27th day of September 1995.

RATIFICATION OF THE CONVENTION ON THE ELIMINATION OF ALL FORMS OF DISCRIMINATION AGAINST WOMEN

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I offer my congratulations to the convenors and participants of the Fourth World Conference on Women, held in Beijing this September, and the parallel NGO Forum on Women for promoting the human rights of women around the world. I would especially commend the members of the U.S. delegation to the Women’s Conference, particularly First Lady Hillary Clinton and Ambassador Madeleine Albright, as well as the many others who contributed to its success.

The goal of this conference was to promote the advancement of women by identifying and overcoming the obstacles still facing women. In many parts of the world today, discrimination against women results in forced abortions, in the trafficking or forced prostitution of young girls, and in the denial of nutrition or health care, even to the point of infanticide. Women are also the primary victims of domestic violence or rape, and rape is increasingly being used as a weapon in the conflicts such as Bosnia, Cambodia, Liberia, Peru, Somalia, and Rwanda.

In many parts of the world, women are denied education, job training, or employment. Today, 64 percent of the world’s illiterate and 70 percent of the world’s population that lives in absolute poverty are women. Even when employed, women frequently face pay discrimination in the workplace. In too many countries, women are excluded from participating in policy-making or prevented by law from voting in elections.

Mr. President, the Women’s Conference addressed all of these issues and called upon governments to commit to specific actions that would advance the status of women. The United States delegation made commitments that continue the long-standing tradition of U.S. leadership in the fight for equality for women and men. American commitment is reflected in the position of a White House Council on Women to coordinate the implementation of the Platform for Action within the U.S.; a new Justice Department initiative to fight domestic violence; increased resources for health; improved access for women to financial credit; and continued support for the human rights of all people.

Mr. President, I commend the Clinton administration for its continued efforts to promote the status of women at home and abroad. This year marks a historic point in the fight for women’s equality. 1995 is the 50th anniversary of women’s suffrage in the United States. It is also the fiftieth anniversary of the United Nations Charter, which recognizes the equal rights of women and men. And of course, the success of this year’s Fourth World Conference on Women has set a new agenda for the advancement of women. In this spirit, Mr. President, I believe it is time for the United States Senate to give its advice and consent to the ratification of the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women.

The Women’s Convention is the most comprehensive and detailed international agreement that promotes the equality of women and men. The Convention legally defines discrimination against women for the first time and establishes rights for women in areas not previously covered by international law. Today, 147 countries have ratified the Convention. The United States is the only industrialized democracy in the world that has failed to ratify the Convention.

Under my leadership, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee held three hearings on this important convention. On September 29, 1994, with my whole-hearted support, the Committee voted 13 to 5 to report favorably the Convention with a resolution of ratification to the Senate for its advice and consent. Despite support for ratification from many Members of Congress on both sides of the aisle, from the White House and from the American public, opponents of ratification succeeded in blocking the Convention from reaching a vote in the Senate last year.

Mr. President, I believe the U.S. ratification of this Convention is important to demonstrate American commitment to eliminating all forms of discrimination against women both at home and abroad. Equally important, the United States should ratify the Convention in order to underscore the importance we assign to international efforts to promote and protect human rights. By failing to ratify the Women’s Convention, the United States has rightfully encouraged criticism from allies who cannot understand our refusal to uphold rights that are already found within the provisions of our great Constitution. The United States cannot criticize other countries’ violations of women’s rights if we have not recognized those rights as international legal standards. The Women’s Convention is an important human rights document that is consistent with the existing laws of the United States. Senate advice and consent to this Convention will demonstrate U.S. leadership in the fight for women’s equality.

Finally, Mr. President, as we consider the appropriations bill for the State Department budget, I would emphasize the difficulties that funding cuts will produce in the work to promote human rights. Without adequate funding, the U.S. will be unable to continue to play a leadership role in the international effort to promote women’s equality. The ability of the State Department to monitor human rights abuses, to participate in the work of the U.N. Human Rights Commission, to support NGOs in their human rights work, and to gather information on human rights violations would be severely threatened. Clearly, it is in the best interests of the United States to promote human rights and democracy in every country. Let us not lose our leadership role in the protection of human rights.

Mr. PELL. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the extraordinary impact of the National Endowment for the Humanities on my home state of Rhode Island. Rhode Island has long had a special relationship with the Endowment. Ever since, as a resident of Brown University, my old friend Barnaby Keeney, formed a Commission to investigate the possibility of a national support for study in the humanities.
The Commission returned with a forceful recommendation for the creation of such a program and in 1965 we created the National Endowment for the Humanities. Since that time, the Humanities Endowment has supported scholarly research, education and public programs connected with history, literature, philosophy, language and other humanistic disciplines, and have helped to make the United States a leader in these fields of study. Programs have included both popular and scholarly works characterized by their singular excellence, including the Pulitzer Prize winning Slavery and Human Progress and programs such as "The Civil War," "Columbus and the Age of Discovery," and "Baseball."

Barnaby Keeney, a decorated veteran and a medieval historian, left Brown University to become the first chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Since then, Brown University has been in the forefront of research and scholarship in humanities, recognized for its extraordinary excellence with repeated fellowships and grants for humanities research over the last thirty years. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited from the last thirty years. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited the last thirty years. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited. Rhode Island and the Nation as a whole have benefited.

The Nation as a whole have benefited from the Humanities Endowment. Since that time, the Humanities Endowment has been the greatest favor upon the proposal [issued the National Endowment for the Humanities]. President [Barnaby] Keeney's Commission for the National Foundation for the Humanities.

In language suggestive of another era, the Keeney Commission had recommended the creation of a federal foundation to support "whatever understanding can be attained . . . of such enduring values as justice, freedom, democracy, virtue, beauty, and truth." Within months of Johnson's address, with the help of Sen. Claiborne Pell (who is regarded as the father of both endowments) in the Senate and J ohn Brademas in the House, Johnson pushed through Congress the act that established both NEH and NEA.

In 1966, Keeney, a decorated veteran and a medieval historian, left Brown's presidency to become the first chairman of NEH. After Vietnam and Watergate, few intellectuals characterized by their enduring excellence, including the Pulitzer Prize winning Slavery and Human Progress and programs such as "The Civil War," "Columbus and the Age of Discovery," and "Baseball." "A great nation (and a great civilization) feeds upon the depth of its scholarship--as well as the breadth of its educational opportunity." So said President Lyndon Johnson at Brown University in 1964. Today, in sharp contrast, the new Republican majority in Congress has targeted, among many other legislative accomplishments of Johnson's Great Society, the National Endowment for the Humanities. While President Clinton's budget would increase expenditures for the endowment by 3 percent, to $338 million, House Republicans, led by Newt Gingrich, who are assisting secondary school teachers' effort to integrate Arabic language and culture courses in local high schools. What these projects have in common is that they make our nation stronger through the advancement of knowledge, culture, and education.

In brief, we need to understand--and we need to make our elected representatives understand—that if NEH is disproportionately cut, America's cultural institutions will not be kept strong. They will bleed.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND J OINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. MCCONNELL:

S. 1282. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide all taxpayers with a 50-percentage deduction for capital gains, to index the basis of certain assets, and to allow the capital loss deduction for losses on the sale or exchange of an individual’s principal residence; to the Committee on Finance.

S. 1281. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to issue a certificate of documentation with appropriate endorsement for employment in the coastwise trade for the vessel Sarah-Chr; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

J O N E S A C T W A I V E R L E G I S L A T I O N

• Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleague, the distinguished senior Senator from Massachusetts, in introducing a bill to allow the vessel Triad to be employed in coastwise trade of the United States. This vessel was originally built in a foreign shipyard in 1982, but since 1992 it has been owned and operated by American citizens, repaired in American shipyards, and maintained with American products. The owner of the vessel now wishes to start a small business, a charter boat operation, seasonally taking people out for cruises. After reviewing the facts in the case of the Triad I find that this waiver would not compromise our national readiness in times of national emergency, which is the fundamental purpose of the Jones Act requirement. While I generally support the provisions of the Jones Act, I believe the specific facts in this case warrant a waiver to permit the Triad to engage in coastwise trade. These include the facts the vessel is more than 10 years old, the owner has invested significant funds in vessel maintenance and restoration in the United States, and the vessel has a relatively small passenger-carrying capacity. I hope and trust the Senate will agree and will speedily approve the bill being introduced today.

By Mr. MCCONNELL:

S. 1283. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Agriculture to regulate the commercial transportation of horses for slaughter, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry.

S. 1284. A bill to amend title 17 to adapt the copyright law to the digital, networked environment of the National Information Infrastructure, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

S. 1285. A resolution relating to expenditures for official office expenses; considered and agreed to.

S. 1286. A resolution to employ the vessel Triad; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

S. 1287. A bill to authorize the Secretary of Transportation to issue a certificate of documentation with appropriate endorsement for employment in coastwise trade for the vessel Triad; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

S. 1288. A bill to amend title 17 to adapt the copyright law to the digital, networked environment of the National Information Infrastructure, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND S E N A T E R E S O L U T I O N S

integrity concerning the commercial transportation of horses to slaughter facilities.

I am pleased that my bill is supported by the American Horse Council, and the American Horse Protection Association. Organizations that support this legislation include the American Association of Equine Practitioners, the American Humane Association, the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and the Humane Society of the United States.

Cutting horses and stallions being transported for long periods in overcrowded conditions without rest, food, or water. Some vehicles used for transport have inadequate headroom and are not intended to transport large animals. Further, some of the horses transported have serious injuries which can be severely aggravated by the journey. This legislation would give the Secretary of Agriculture the authority to correct these practices by regulating those in the business of transporting horses to processing facilities.

I want to make it clear that it is not my intention to either promote or prevent the commercial slaughter of horses. This industry has been in existence for some time in this country, and I expect that it will continue to operate long into the future. My purpose in this legislation is to protect horses from unduly harsh and unpleasant treatment as they are transported across the country.

Horses occupy a central role in the traditions, history, and economy of Kentucky. Thousands of Kentuckians are employed either directly or indirectly by the horse industry. Horses have been good to Kentucky; and we should try to apply the maximum practical extent to be good to horses.

This bill would require that horses be rested off the vehicle after 24 hours, with access to food and water. Vehicles used to transport the horses would have to have adequate headroom and interiors free of sharp edges. Transporting vehicles must be maintained in a sanitary condition, offer adequate ventilation and shelter from extremes of heat and cold, be large enough for the number of horses transported, and allow for the position of horses by size, with stallions segregated from other horses. Finally, in order to be transported, horses must be physically fit to travel.

Enforcement of the Act is placed with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which presently regulates the slaughter process itself under the Humane Methods of Slaughtering Act. The Department would be authorized to work with State and local authorities to enforce the provisions of this bill. This bill, while correcting abuses that exist, will not be an excessive burden on the processing facilities, auctions, or the commercial transporters of these horses.

Unlike other livestock, the transportation of horses to processing facilities is often a lengthy process, because there are fewer facilities that handle horses and they are located in only a few areas. Moreover, not all of them operate on a full-time basis. The result is that the transporting of these animals requires special protection.

The provisions of this bill that have passed legislation to regulate the transportation of these horses, but most of the travel is interstate, across wide areas. This is why Federal legislation is needed. The shipment of horses over long distances in inappropriate trailers without food or water, is unacceptable. This bill would extend Federal regulation to the commercial transport of horses to slaughter and assure the humane and safe conditions of that transport.

I invite all groups that are concerned about these horses to work with me in passing this legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the Record.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

By Mr. HATCH (for himself and Mr. LEAHY):

S. 1284. A bill to amend title 17 to adapt the copyright to the digital, networked environment of the National Information Infrastructure, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE NATIONAL INFORMATION INFRASTRUCTURE COPYRIGHT PROTECTION ACT

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, today, together with my distinguished colleague from Vermont, Senator LEAHY, I am introducing the National Information Infrastructure Copyright Protection Act of 1995, which amends the Copyright Act to bring it up to date with the digital communications age.

The National Information Infrastructure is the fancy name for what is popularly known as the "information superhighway." Probably most people today experience the information highway by means of their computers when they use electronic mail or subscribe to a bulletin board service or use other on-line services. But these existing services are only dirt roads compared to the superhighway of information-sharing which lies ahead.

The superhighway will link not only computers, but also telephones, televisions, radios, fax machines, and more into an advanced, high-speed, interactive, broadband, digital communications system. Over this information superhighway, data, text, voice, sound, and images will travel, and their digital format will permit them not only to be viewed or heard, but also to be copied and manipulated. The digital format will also ensure that copies will be perfect reproductions, without the degradation that normally occurs today when audio and videotapes are copied.

The NII has tremendous potential to improve and enhance our lives, by providing quick, economical, and high-quality access to information that edu-ates and entertains as well as informs. When linked up to a "Global Information Infrastructure," the NII will broaden our cultural experiences, and allow American products to be more widely disseminated.

Highways, of course, are meant to be used, and in order to be used, they must be safe. That's why we have "rules of the road" on our asphalt highways and that's why we need rules for our digital highway. No manufacturer would ship his or her goods on a highway if his trucks were routinely hijacked and his or her goods plundered. Likewise, no producer of intellectual property will place his or her work on the digital super-highway if they are routinely pirated.

We might end up having enormous access to very little information, unless we can protect property rights in intellectual works. The piracy problem is particularly acute in the digital age where perfect copies can be made quickly and cheaply.

Protecting the property rights of the owners of intellectual property not only induces the creation of new products available, it also encourages the development of new products. Our copyright laws are based on the conviction that creativity increases when authors can reap benefits of their creative activity.

But the NII also promises to increase creativity in a more dramatic way by providing individual creators with public distribution of their works outside traditional channels. For example, authors who have been unsuccessful in finding a publisher will be able to distribute their works themselves to great numbers of people at very low cost.

The bill that I am introducing today begins the process of designing the rules of the road for the information superhighway. It was drafted by the Working Group on Intellectual Property Rights of the Information Infrastructure Task Force. Chaired by the Honorable Bruce A. Lehman, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks, the Working Group labored for 2 years examining the intellectual property implications of the NII to determine if changes were necessary to intellectual property law and to recommend appropriate statutory language.

The Working Group drew upon the expertise of 26 departments and agencies of the Federal Government; it heard the testimony of 30 witnesses and received some 70 written statements from all interested parties. On July 7, 1994, it produced a preliminary draft ("Green Paper"), which opened another period of extensive testimony and comment. The Final Report, containing a draft of the legislation that I am introducing today, was unveiled on September 9, 1994.

The length and scope of the Working Group's investigation would alone command its recommendations to serious attention, but I have also studied the legislation and find it an excellent framework for the Congress on the Judiciary to begin its own examination of the issues with a view to fine-tuning the solutions proposed by the Working Group.

The bill deals with five major areas:
(1) transmission of copies,
(2) exemptions for libraries and the visually impaired,
(3) copyright protection systems,
(4) copyright management information, and
(5) remedies.

In general, the bill provides as follows:

Transmission of Copies. The bill makes clear that the right of public distribution of copyrighted works under the Copyright Act applies to transmission of copies and phonorecords of copyrighted works. For example, this means that transmitting a copy of a computer program from one computer to ten other computers without permission of the copyright owner would ordinarily be an infringement.

Exemptions for Libraries and the Visually Impaired. The bill amends the library exemption to allow the preparation of three copies of works in digital format, and it authorizes the making of a limited number of digital copies by libraries and archives for purposes of preservation.

The bill adds a new exemption for non-profit organizations to reproduce and distribute to the visually impaired—at cost—Braille, large type, audio or other editions of previously published literary works, provided that the owner of the exclusive right to distribute the work in the United States has not entered the market for such editions during the first year following first publication.

Copyright Protection Systems. The bill adds a new section which prohibits the circumvention of copyright protection, manufacture or distribution of any device or product, or the provision of any service, the primary purpose or effect of which is to deactivate any technological protection which prevent or inhibit the violation of exclusive rights under the copyright law.

Copyright Management Information. "Copyright management information" is information that identifies the author of the work, the copyright owner, and other rights owners of the work, and other information that the Register of Copyrights may prescribe. The bill prohibits the dissemination of copyright management information known to be false and the unauthorized removal or alteration of copyright management information.

Remedies. The bill provides for civil penalties for tampering with copyright management information—a fine of not more than $500,000 or imprisonment of not more than 5 years or both.

There is widespread support for the general thrust of the bill among interested parties. However, in the hearing process, I am sure that issues will arise that no one has yet anticipated. Already, some potential discussion points have been identified: the scope of the library exemption and the exemption for the visually impaired, the absence of criminal penalties for circumvention of copyright protection systems, the use of encryption as a copyright protection system, the application of the doctrine of fair use, the development of efficient licensing models, and the liability of on-line service providers.

In the interest of time, it may be that fuller discussion and solution may have to be deferred for those points not covered express in the bill. The fully commercial information superhighway is not yet here, and we must resign ourselves to a period of experimentation. We want to be on the cutting edge, not on the bleeding edge of new technology.

Once again, I would like to commend the Working Group on Intellectual Property Rights of the Information Infrastructure Task Force for providing an excellent model for us to work with. I also want to thank all interested parties that they read the full report of the Working Group. Without endorsing any of the specific language of that report, I believe that it provides useful background material for the recommendations.

In conclusion, Mr. President, I would like to thank my colleague from Vermont, Senator Leahy, for joining me in introducing this important legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

12. COPYRIGHT PROTECTION AND MANAGEMENT SYSTEMS.
Government ought to be using technology to make itself more accountable and government information more accessible to the public. Individual federal agencies are already contributing to the development of the much heralded Information Infrastructure by using technology to make government information more easily accessible to our citizens. For example, the Internet Multicasting Service (IMS) now posts massive government data archives, including the Securities and Exchange Commission EDGAR database and the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office database on the Internet free of charge. Similarly, FedWorld, a bulletin board available on the Internet, provides a gateway to more than 60 Federal agencies.

The Electronic Freedom of Information Improvement Act would contribute to that information flow by increasing online access to Government information, including agency regulations, opinions, and policy statements, and therefore-released records that are the subject of repeated requests. This bill passed the Senate in the last Congress and I hope to see it through both Houses of this Congress.

Our increasing reliance on networked computers for business and socializing also makes us more vulnerable to hackers and computer criminals. Anyone who has had to deal with the aftermath of a computer virus knows what havoc can be. Having previously been active in legislation to prevent computer crime and abuse, I have this year introduced the National Information Infrastructure Protection Act, S.982, with Senators Kyl and Grassley to increase protection for both government and private computers, and the information on those computers, from the threat of criminal attack. This bill would increase protection against computer thieves, hackers and blackmailers and protecting computer systems used in interstate and foreign commerce and communications from destructive activities, and also serves to increase personal privacy, a matter on which I feel most strongly.

Finally, I note my recent introduction with Senator Feingold of the Criminal Copyright Improvement Act of 1995, S.1122. This bill is designed to close a significant loophole in our copyright law and encourage the continued growth of the NII by insuring better protection of the creative works available online.

Under current law, a defendant's willful copyright infringement must be for purposes of commercial advantage or private financial gain to be the subject of criminal prosecution. As exemplified by the recent case of United States v. LaMacchia, this presents an enormous loophole in criminal liability for willful infringers who can use digital technology to make exact copies of copyrighted software or other digitally encoded works, and then use computer networks for quick, inexpensive and
The Report of the Working Group recognizes that the LaMacchia case demonstrates that the current law is insufficient to prevent flagrant copyright violations in the NII context. It includes recommendations for the copyright law and the criminal law (which sets out sanctions for criminal copyright violations) set forth in S.122, introduced in the 104th Congress by Senators L. E. G. and Feingold following consultations with the Justice Department. This increasingly important problem must be solved and the Copyright Improvement Act of 1995, S.122, is a necessary component of the legal changes we need to adapt to the emerging digital environment.

Today I join in sponsoring a bill that will help update our copyright law to the emerging electronic and digital age by revising basic copyright law definitions to take electronic transmissions into the Internet and remote computer information databases, are leading to important advancements in accessibility and affordability for the public. Further it endorses the use of copyright protection systems that can be used to protect copyright and provide incentives for creativity. The bill provides for enhanced penalties for copyright violations in the NII environment. That is the tradition that I intend to continue in this bill, the NII Copyright Protection Act of 1995.

SUPPORT OF FUNDING FOR THE COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FINANCIAL INSTITUTION FUND [CDFI]

Mr. INOUYE. Mr. President, I rise today to join my esteemed colleague from Vermont, Mr. LEAHY, to express my concern that by voting for final passage of H.R. 2099, we in the Congress are voting to eliminate funding for the Community Development Financial Institution Fund [CDFI]. The CDFI fund was established in the Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act of 1994—an Act which passed the Congress with overwhelming bipartisan support. In fact, this body voted unanimously for the measure, which sought to stimulate community lending and empower local communities by increasing access to credit and investment capital.

But Mr. President, I stand before you to offer another perspective on the importance of the CDFI which is the significant potential it holds for improving the economic conditions in Native American communities. Native American communities face some of the harshest living conditions in this country, and we are called on to draw comparisons with conditions in Third-World countries. Fifty-one percent of Native American families live on reservations live below the poverty line, with unemployment rates on some reservations as high as 80 percent. Moreover, a recent study conducted by the Department of Housing and Urban Development found that over half of American Indian and Alaska Native families live in substandard housing, compared to the national average of 3 percent. Seventy percent of American Indian and Alaska Native households are overcrowded or lack plumbing or kitchen facilities, compared to a national average of 5.4 percent; and approximately 40 percent of Native households were overcrowded compared to a national average of 5.8 percent.

Mr. President, these conditions, under any circumstances, are unacceptable. And it is even more unacceptable that we in Congress would turn our backs on an innovative program which would stimulate economic activity in these communities by leveraging private sector resources into permanent self-sustaining locally controlled institutions. Each $1 million in the fund would have a substantial impact, and could create 65 to 135 new jobs; provide 100 loans to micro-enterprises and self-employment ventures; assist 20 first-time homebuyers; or construct 20 units of low-income housing. It is my understanding that there are at least 13 Indian controlled financial institutions which would be eligible for assistance from the fund, and an additional 16 tribal entities that have expressed an interest in becoming CDFI's.

Earlier this year, I joined Senators BEN NIGHTRIGHT CAMPBELL and MCCAIN in sponsoring a bill, the Native American Financial Services Organization Act [NAF50], which emanated from a recommendation of the independently chartered Commission on American Indian, Alaska Native, and Native Hawaiian Housing, and from a multi-agency Federal working group with tribal input, and was designed to dovetail with the CDFI fund, with NAFSO serving as a technical assistance provider to a second tier of primary lending institutions, or Native American Financial Institutions. The elimination of funding for the CDFI fund will have devastating ramifications for this NAFSO model.

Mr. President, I realize full well the climate within which we operate today, and that we in the Congress must exercise great fiscal restraint. And I commend the outstanding efforts of my esteemed colleagues, the chairman of the VA-HUD appropriations subcommittee, Mr. BOND, and the ranking member, Senator Mikulski, for producing a bill which seeks to address our national concern with attempts in many ways to address the housing needs of Indian country. I only wish to point out that we in the Congress must ever be cognizant of our national responsibilities to the native people of this Nation, and that we must endeavor to improve the conditions under which the vast majority of our Native families live.

I feel compelled to take note of the irony that over the last few days, within the context of drastic reductions to funding for Indian tribal governments under the Interior Appropriations bill, that one of the justifications offered for these severe reductions was that tribal governments must become less dependent on Federal resources and become self-sufficient. And yet, today, we are poised to eliminate funding for the Community Development Financial Institution Fund—a fund which could have made tremendous strides in enabling tribal governments to realize greater economic independence.

Mr. President, I thank you for this time, and I thank my colleague from Vermont, Mr. LEAHY, for his leadership on these matters.

DEDICATED U.S. SERVICE MEN AND WOMEN

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I rise today to thank our brave U.S. service men and women who with total dedication serve around the globe, but most importantly to pay tribute to four individuals who recently died in the service of our country. On August 15, 1995, Chief Warrant Officer Michael R. Baker, Chief Warrant Officer Donald J. Cunningham, Specialist Crew Chief Robert A. Rogers, and Specialist Crew Chief Dale Wood perished when their U.S. Army Blackhawk helicopter crashed into the sea off the shores of Cyprus. The crew was on a routine humanitarian mission to bring supplies and mail to the U.S. Embassy in Beirut.

U.S. service men and women worldwide are frequently responsible for humanitarian and lifesaving missions which often go unnoticed by the American people. These missions are often fraught with danger attributable to health concerns or often insurgent occupation. The Cyprus airlift is just one example where our U.S. service men and women are tasked to put themselves in harm's way.

In addition to Cyprus being needed as a strategic point to support our Middle East efforts it has also become a strategic point for United States involvement in several areas of international concern—from the dangers of terrorism to the threat of nuclear proliferation and the international war on drugs.
JUDITH COLT J JOHNSON

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize and pay tribute to a distinguished Marylander, committed environmentalist, and model citizen—Judy Colt Johnson. Judy recently stepped aside from a long and distinguished career as president of the Committee to Preserve Assateague Island. I want to extend my personal congratulations and thanks for her many years of hard work and dedication to both the environment and the stewardship of Assateague Island. Judy Johnson founded the Committee to Preserve Assateague Island in 1970, the year I was first elected to the U.S. Congress, and served as its president for the past 25 years. Her accomplishments are many and remarkable. Among other things she: led the successful campaign to amend the organic act of the National Seashore to remove provisions calling for construction of a road the length of the island and 600 acres of development; developed a grass-roots membership of over 1,300 people representing 36 states; blocked construction of a sewage outfall pipe across the island; sponsored an annual beach cleanup marshalling larger volunteer efforts each year; and convened the first-ever conference on the condition of Maryland's coastal bays which initiated the current efforts to protect these sensitive waters.

Judy not only organized and led these efforts, but gave selflessly of her time and energy to make Assateague a better place for all of us. She has done this through activities such as cleaning trash from the beach and helping plant stems of beach grasses and seedlings to protect valuable wildlife habitat. She also contributed substantially to the successful campaign for a larger volunteer effort continues its successful efforts to locate and recover the remains of the Blackhawk crew in order to return them to their families. I am sure that Judy will be remembered by all my colleagues when I thank him for all his efforts.

We all are aware that international criminal activity is expanding and the only way to counteract this growth is through closer cooperation and increased activity between the United States and its international neighbors.

THE AMERICAN PROMISE

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I rise today to speak briefly about an important new PBS series entitled "The American Promise", which will premiere on October 1, 2, and 3. "The American Promise" celebrates community-based democracy—the individual efforts of countless citizens throughout America who work every day to make their communities stronger and more vital.

There is no question that our actions in this Capitol represent democracy's most visible work. It is the face of democracy most studied in classrooms and most reported nationally by the media. And as we face our legislative world, Mr. President, has increasingly, in my judgment, become a world of partisanship and competition. The focus too often turns to who wins and who loses rather than how we can work together to reach a positive goal. I believe this partisanship is making our citizens more frustrated and cynical.

So we can not forget that our work in Washington is but one form of American democracy—and that American democracy is larger and more diverse than the business conducted here in this Capitol.

In communities throughout our Nation, in ways both large and small, citizens decide every day to become a valuable part of the democratic process. Through this by taking responsibility: by bringing others together to improve or expand an existing service; by asking how a practice that does not work can be changed; by engaging in a civil and respectful debate; by considering this by taking responsibility to make a hard decision which will make a community better.

When this happens, Mr. President, everybody in the community wins. When a community development bank is opened where none existed before, when individuals cooperate so that dry land can be irrigated, score keeping becomes irrelevant. Through action and energy, participation and deliberation, taking responsibility and seeking common ground, American democracy comes to life.

"The American Promise", a new PBS television series, reminds us of the community-based democracy that is alive and well beyond this Capitol. And in doing so, it both strengthens our faith in our democracy and teaches our citizens how they can personally be a part of the democratic process in their own communities. And because "The American Promise" will be made available to high school and junior high school classes through the United States, young Americans will be able to have it as they study civics and government.

In roughly fifty story segments taken from every region of the country, lessons are offered on the skills and values needed to bring our democracy to life. These vignettes illustrate core American values such as freedom, responsibility, opportunity, participation, and deliberation.

Each 3 hour segment contains select historical reenactments, which serve to establish important contexts through which the remaining vignettes take on new meaning. The first of these reenactments, which appears at the beginning of the documentary, is set in 1762, when individuals cooperate so that dry land can be irrigated, score keeping becomes irrelevant. Through action and energy, participation and deliberation, taking responsibility and seeking common ground, American democracy comes to life.

When this happens, Mr. President, everybody in the community wins. When a community development bank is opened where none existed before, when individuals cooperate so that dry land can be irrigated, score keeping becomes irrelevant. Through action and energy, participation and deliberation, taking responsibility and seeking common ground, American democracy comes to life.

The efforts of Judy Johnson over the past 25 years have earned her the respect and admiration of everyone with whom she has worked and the visitors to Assateague Island who benefit from her labors for years to come. I join with her many friends in extending my best wishes and thanks for her leadership and commitment.

S 14561

George Washington, Peyton Randolph, George Mason, Richard Henry Lee, and others, took the first steps toward freedom. In the House of Burgesses, on the streets of Colonial Williamsburg, in a local tavern, the group drew up Virginia’s first English law.

We hear Washington’s words, “How far their attention to our rights and privileges is to be awakened or alarmed by starving their trade and manufacturers remains to be tried.” The view- ers of “The American Promise” see our Founding Fathers starting an rebellion that will gather strength for 7 more years before the Declaration of Independence is written.

Although we sometimes think of our freedoms as a Nation being won at Concord, Bunker Hill or Yorktown, these freedoms were also the result of years of meetings and debate and consensus building. This serves as a true re- minder of the communal instincts that helped create our great Nation.

Mr. President, would the Senator from Missouri, the chairman of the VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies Subcommittee, yield a few moments for me to address an issue of great importance to the people of Hawaii and the Pacific?

Mr. BOND. I would be happy to yield to the junior Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, I am concerned that the disaster needs of the Pacific are not being adequately addressed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency [FEMA]. In par- ticular, I am concerned that FEMA lacks adequate staffing for its Pacific Area Office in Honolulu, to address fully this mitigation, training, and emergency response needs of this large and diverse area.

As the Senator from Missouri knows, FEMA’s Region IX, based in San Francisco, is currently responsible for administering emergency management assistance programs and responding to disasters throughout the Pacific—including American Samoa, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of Palau, and the Republic of the Marshall Islands—as well as in California, Arizona, and Nevada. It is by far the largest of FEMA’s regions, covering an area greater in size than the U.S. mainland. But the current grouping of Hawaii and the Pacific Islands within Region IX results in the Pacific islands receiving less than adequate attention.

The Pacific insular states are seven jurisdictions that are culturally, economically, and politically distinct from mainland states. The esti- mated 110 FEMA employees who staff the San Francisco office are too re- mote, both geographically and culturally, to provide the full range of dis- aster-related assistance to the unique Pacific insular states. Quite understandably, they are pre- occupied by the vast emergency needs of the populations who live closer at hand, in California, Nevada, and Arizona.

The Republic of Palau, for example, is 5,500 miles from San Francisco—a 2-day journey from the continental U.S. by jet. Moreover, when FEMA officials visited an area ravaged by a disaster that has occurred in the Pacific, they must contend with major differences in language, facilities, food, climate, and communications not to mention the idiosyncrasies of local political systems and administrative practices.

The establishment of the Pacific Area Office in Honolulu 2 years ago vastly improved FEMA’s ability to re- spond quickly to disasters in the central and South Pacific, if only because the Pacific is located thousands of miles closer to potential disaster sites. And, while the office has made a serious effort to maintain ongoing contact with the more remote insular jurisdic- tions, it is seriously limited in its ability to provide critical training, technical assistance, and hazard miti- gation services that could significantly minimize loss of life and property.

So, given the foregoing, I might ask the Senator from Missouri if he would consider the Pacific’s emergency needs when the pending measure goes to con- ference.

Mr. BOND. What is the Senator from Hawaii’s specific request?

Mr. AKAKA. After extensive consultation with emergency management officials and representatives of the Pacific insular states, I have determined that the service limitations I have de- scribed can only be overcome by aug- menting the Pacific Area Office with a permanent and additional personal staff. Of these, six, (6) are needed in the Pacific Area Office itself to support preparedness training, plan- ning, mitigation, and logistical func- tions, and six (6) others are required as permanent liaison officers assigned to, and physically based in, each of FEMA’s insular Pacific jurisdictions.

Mr. BOND. So the Senator from Hawaii requests assistance in securing conference report language directing FEMA to assign 12 FTEE to the Pacific Area Office?

Mr. AKAKA. That is my request. The vital assistance provided by such staff could save millions of dollars in prop- erty and economic activity, not to mention human lives. I would under- score the fact that I am not proposing the establishment of a new regional of- fice, only that the existing satellite of- fice in Hawaii be provided with the re- sources to meet the full range of our emergency management obligations in the Pacific.

Ms. MIKULSKI. If I may interject. My colleagues may recall that as chairman of the VA, HUD, and Inde- pendent Agencies Subcommittee in the 102d Congress, I supported the original establishment of the Pacific Area Office. At that time, the subcommittee set aside $500,000 in the Senate report accompanying the FY92 VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies Appropriations bill for this initiative.

The subcommittee’s action reflected a concern that a permanent FEMA presence was needed in the Pacific. Until the office was opened in Honolulu in 1993, the agency had no forward-based staff or facilities in these jurisdic- tions; instead, all disaster activities were conducted directly from FEMA’s Region IX office, located in San Fran- cisco, thousands of miles from these jurisdic- tions.

While the creation of this office has clearly improved FEMA’s ability to deal with the many disasters that occur in the Pacific, the agency still falls short of fully providing for the extraordinary needs of the millions of citizens and friends in the Pacific. I think we need to consider seriously making the Pacific Area Office a full-service office, one that can provide robust mitigation, training, and emergency management services in a timely, appropriate fashion.

So, I would support the Senator from Hawaii’s request that we consider tak- ing this matter up in conference.

Mr. BOND. The Senator from Mary- land has ably summarized the essence of this issue. I appreciate her comments as well as her key role in origi- nally establishing the Pacific Area Of- fice.

Mr. BOND. I also appreciate my col- league from Maryland’s helpful com- ments on this issue. Given her support, and in view of the unique circum- stances that exist in the Pacific, I would be pleased to consider seriously raising this issue in conference. The Sen- ator from Hawaii should, however, bear in mind that any efforts we make, if any, must be made in the context of FEMA’s overall budget.

Mr. AKAKA. I think the managers of the bill for their thoughtful consider- ation of this matter. Any accommoda- tion that can be achieved in conference regarding the emergency management needs of the Pacific would be very much appreciated. I yield the floor.

RECOGNITION OF BERNARD L. BARELA

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today in recognition of the retirement of Bernard L. Barela, District Director for the Albuquerque District after 34 years with the Internal Revenue Serv- ices.

Mr. Barela is a native of New Mexico whose family has been here for over 200 years. His mother, sister, and numerous family members still reside in the New Mexico area.

Mr. Barela served in the U.S. Navy from 1957 to 1959. Upon receiving an honorable discharge he returned to Albu-querque where he was a civilian em- ployee.
Mr. Barela began his IRS career as a grade 3 mail clerk in the Phoenix District Office on 1961. He then became an office call interviewer in Phoenix until 1966.

After that he transferred to Las Vegas as a revenue officer until 1969 whereupon he became revenue officer group manager in San Bernardino, CA. In 1971, he moved to San Diego as chief of office branch and was selected as one of the first grade 13 group managers in collection in the Los Angeles District.

Mr. Barela moved to the field branch chief position in 1972 in San Diego and in 1973 marked his first return to Albuquerque as a collection and taxpayer service division chief. 1973 also marked another promotion for Mr. Barela as the collection division chief in New Orleans District. Mr. Barela served as executive assistant, to assistant regional commissioner, central region office in Cincinnati from 1975 to 1981. In 1981, Mr. Barela became assistant director, service center in Atlanta. In 1989, Mr. Barela became assistant District Director in Fort Lauderdale where he assisted during the recovery after Hurricane Andrew. In 1991, Mr. Barela returned home to Albuquerque as the District Director, the highest State office with the IRS.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY ACT OF 1995

Mr. NUNN. Mr. President, I rise to address H.R. 4, the Personal Responsibility Act of 1995, a bill to reform the Nation’s welfare system.

H.R. 4 is a radical departure in Federal welfare policy. This bill would end a 60-year-old Federal entitlement to poor families with children under the Aid to Families With Dependent Children Program (AFDC). In the place of AFDC, the Senate bill would create a Federal welfare block grant that will give almost $17 billion annually to State governments over the next 7 years to provide cash assistance, child care, job training, and other services to our Nation’s poor. The States will have nearly complete flexibility to design and carry out these programs. The Federal Government requires only that the States impose a 5-year lifetime limit on welfare benefits and begin moving welfare recipients to work as rapidly as possible between now and year 2000.

Opponents of H.R. 4 have talked extensively about this bill’s flaws. It is said that the Federal money contained in the H.R. 4 is insufficient to meet the work requirements. We are told that funds for child care will make it impossible to care for the children of welfare recipients who go to work. Others have argued that States will cut welfare dramatically and set off a reverse bidding war as States reduce and eliminate benefits to avoid becoming welfare magnets.

Mr. President, I supported amendments to this legislation that address many of these concerns. I voted for the Senate amendment, which would have provided an additional $6 billion in Federal child care subsidies. We reached a compromise to increase Federal child care spending by some $3 billion. The Senate also agreed to require the States to continue spending at least 80 percent of their 1994 welfare dollars. I believe these amendments have significantly improved H.R. 4 and increased the likelihood that it will succeed in reducing welfare dependence.

The Senate also took up an amendment offered by Senator DOMENICI on the issue of limiting welfare benefit increases for women who have additional children while on welfare. When H.R. 4 emerged from the Finance Committee it allowed States to impose the so-called family cap but did not require it. The Dole substitute amendment made this policy mandatory. The Domenici amendment reinstated the state option on the family cap.

New Jersey, Georgia, and several other states have imposed family caps based on the premise that increases in benefits for new births encourage illegitimacy. My instincts tell me this is probably true at the State level. I would have voted for this experiment. At this point, however, there is simply no firm analytical evidence to support it. A Rutgers University study published earlier this year found that the New Jersey family cap had no effect on illegitimacy rates and may have increased the State’s abortion rate. Until the States have accumulated enough experience with the family cap to show it is effective in reducing illegitimacy, I believe it should remain a State option but should be mandated by the Federal Government.

Mr. President, I voted for the Dole substitute amendment to H.R. 4. I understand the concerns expressed by those who fear this legislation will not do enough to protect children whose parents have reached the end of their welfare time limits. If this bill becomes law, I believe its effects on the well-being of children should be monitored carefully. Further steps will likely be needed by Congress and the States to assure that children are adequately cared for.

Mr. President, H.R. 4 is unlikely to be the last word in welfare reform. The problems we are trying to address in this legislation—welfare dependency and the illegitimacy, violence, and drug abuse that it engenders—are probably the most complex, troubling, and intractable problems facing American society. Anyone who believes that they can wave a magic wand and solve these problems is wrong. As UCLA sociologist James Q. Wilson argued late last year in an essay entitled, “A New Approach to Welfare Reform: Humility,” what is really needed is the kind of State-based experimentation that might yield innovations that could be replicated by other States. I voted for H.R. 4 because I believe it offers the best opportunity to encourage this kind of experimentation. I hope that the conference between the Senate and the House will produce a compromise that I can also support.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the essay by James Q. Wilson be printed in the Record.

The essay follows:

FIRM FOUNDATIONS: A NEW APPROACH TO WELFARE REFORM: HUMILITY

(By) James Q. Wilson

We are entering the last years of the 20th century with every reason to rejoice and little inclination to do so, despite widespread prosperity, a generally healthy economy, the absence of any immediate national threat, and extraordinary progress in civil rights, personal health and school enrollment. Despite all this and more, we feel that there is something profoundly wrong with our society.

That communal life is thought to be deficient in many respects—crime, drug abuse, teenage pregnancy. WELFARE dependency and the countless instabilities of daily life. What these problems have in common is the growing feeling that they result from the weakening of the family.

Having arrived at something approaching a consensus we must now face the fact that we don’t know what to do about the problem. The American people are well ahead of their leaders in this regard. They doubt very much that government can do anything at all. They are not optimistic that any other institution can do much better, and they are skeptical that there will be a spontaneous regeneration of decency, commitment and personal responsibility.

I do not know what to do either. But I think we can find out, at least to the degree that we can become humanely and fully understanding some of the most profound features of our condition.

The great debate is whether, how and at what cost we can change lives. If not the lives of this generation, then of the next. There are three ways of framing the problem.

First, the structural perspective: Owing to natural social forces, the good manufacturing jobs that once existed in inner-city areas have moved to the periphery, leaving behind decent men and women who are struggling to get by without work that once conferred both respect and money. Their place is now taken by street-wise young men who find no respect and money. Their place is now taken by street-wise young men who find no respect and money. bring under prudent control a culture of radical self-indulgence and oppositional defiance, fostered by drugs, television, video games, street gangs and predatory sexuality. Now, another characteristic of this discourse might say that obviously all three perspectives have much to commend themselves and, therefore, all three ought to be actively pursued. Public debate, it tends to emphasize one or another theory and thus one or another set of solutions. It does this because we, or at least people who are informed by the political climate, define problems so as to make them amenable to those solutions that they favor for ideological or moral reasons. Here roughly is what the analysis pursued separately and alone implies:

(1) Structural solutions. We must create jobs and employment programs in the inner city areas, by means either of tax-advantaged enterprise zones or government-subsidized employment programs. As an alternative, we may facilitate the relocation of the inner-city poor to places on the periphery where jobs can be found and, if necessary, supplement their incomes by means of the earned-income credit.

(2) Rationalist solutions. Cut or abolish AFDC or, at a minimum, require work in exchange for welfare. Make the formation of two-parent families attractive through single parenthood and restore work to prominence as the only way for the physically able to acquire money.

(3) Cultural solutions. Alter the inner-city ethos by means of private redemptive movements, supported by a system of shelters or group homes in which at-risk children and their young mothers can be given familial care and adult supervision in safe and drug-free settings.

Now, let's make my own preferences in this menu of alternatives, but it is less important that you know what these preferences are than that you realize that I do not know which strategy would work, because so many people embrace a single strategy as a way of denying legitimacy to alternative ones and to their underlying philosophies.

Each of those perspectives, when taken alone, is full of uncertainties and inadequacies. These problems go back, first of all, to the structural solution. The evidence that links the breakdown of the nuclear family with the deterioration of job is, in fact, weak. Some people—such as many recent Latino immigrants in Los Angeles—notice that jobs have moved to the periphery of the city and begin to wonder how they will find work.

Now, even if a serious job mismatch does exist, it will not easily be overcome by enterprise zones. If the costs of crime in inner-city neighborhoods are high, they cannot be compensated for if the low labor costs are too high.

Moreover, employers in scanning potential workers will rely, as they have always relied, on the most visible stability and skills, manners, speech and even place of residence. No legal system, no matter how much we try to follow the jobs. Other people notice the same thing and stay home to sell drugs.

Today it is appropriate to correct such a record, having to do with information presented to the Subcommittee on National Security Economics of the Joint Economic Committee, meeting at 10 a.m. on Wednesday, December 21, 1988. The record of the hearing was published in a collection of hearings of subcommittees of the Joint Economic Committee, Senate Hearing 100-1059 beginning at page 559.

The hearing in question concerned trafficking in classified documents of the Department of Defense, and the Department of Defense and the Department of Justice dealt with those problems during the period 1983-88.

A staff report prepared by the staff of the Joint Economic Committee Subcommittee on National Security Economics and the investigative staff of my office was included in the record. The staff report contains some information, supplied by officials of the Defense Criminal Investigative Service, that is not correct.

It has been brought to my attention that some of that information may have cast an undeserved cloud upon one of the persons named in the report. Two individuals are named in this information, on page 2 of the staff report, in the following paragraph:

The investigation revealed evidence of widespread trafficking in classified documents, involving at least ten contractors and 30 Pentagon officials, including high level civilian and military officials. The investigation resulted in the indictments of two officials, John McCarthy, who was then director of NASA Lewis Research Center, and James R. Atchison, an Air Force employee at Wright-Patterson Base in Dayton, Ohio. McCarthy plead guilty in 1983 to a charge of filing false reports in connection with travel to Washington, D.C. Atchison resigned from the government and was not brought to trial.

Mr. President, I would like to correct several of the statements about Mr. James R. Atchison.

Mr. Atchison has never been indicted on any charges. This is confirmed in a letter to the Joint Economic Committee dated September 6, 1992, from Mr. Derek J. Vander Schaaf, Deputy Inspector General of DOD.

Mr. Vander Schaaf notes that the focus of the investigative effort that led to Mr. Atchison was the unauthorized trafficking in classified documents. But there was no evidence resulting from any DOD or NASA investigation involving Mr. Atchison in any wrongdoing relating to classified documents. The Air Force took an adverse employee action against Mr. Atchison for other reasons.

Mr. Atchison has asked that the statements about him be corrected in the record, to the extent possible. I agree, Mr. President, that the record must be corrected, and that is what I have attempted to do here today.
Regrettably, it would take more than a decade before additional efforts to find a formula that would hold out the possibility of resolving the complex issues with Israel’s other Arab neighbors would bear fruit. Certainly the break up of the Soviet Union and the gulf war were defining moments that totally reshaped the political landscape in the Middle East and improved the prospect for peace. The seeds of today’s agreement were clearly sown during the 1991 Madrid Conference with the road map outlining both the bilateral and multilateral issues within the context of the Madrid Framework.

The key provisions of the interim agreement include elections of an 82-member Palestinian Council that will oversee most aspects of Palestinian life in the West Bank and Gaza, the elimination of offensive clauses from the Palestinian covenant that call for the elimination of Israel, assignment of responsibility for religious sites, the temporary deployment of an international observer delegation to Hebron, the redeployment of most Israeli troops from Palestinian cities and towns, and the staged release of prisoners. This interim agreement is to remain in force through May 1999 and builds upon the September 1993 Declaration of Principles, in which Israel and the PLO exchanged mutual recognition, and the May 1994 Cairo agreement, which established a framework for Palestinian self-rule in the Gaza Strip and Jericho. We can all be justly proud of the enormous progress that has been made to undo the destruction and distrust that are the byproduct of decades of hatred and havoc. For one am confident that the trust and good will that has been created by the peace process thus far will energize all parties to resolve all the remaining issues that stand in the way of a permanent agreement.

I do not seek to minimize the difficulties of the issues that remain to be resolved. They include matters related to boundaries, to the nature of the Palestinian entity, to the future of Jewish settlements in Palestinian areas, to the disposition of refugees, and finally to the status of Jerusalem. However, it is clear to me that the people of the Middle East are committed to finding a comprehensive solution to all the disagreements that stand in the way of a permanent and lasting peace. I believe that we in the United States stand ready to do all that we can to facilitate that effort.

WORLD MARITIME DAY 1995

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, as you may know, World Maritime Day 1995 will be observed this week, and the theme this year focuses on the achievements and challenges of the International Maritime Organization [IMO]. The IMO was created under the auspices of the United Nations in 1948, and over the past 47 years has led the way to significant improvements in safety in the maritime industry and reductions in marine pollution around the world.

I ask that the letter sent to me by Coast Guard Capt. Guy Goodwin, which brought World Maritime Day 1995 to my attention, be printed in the RECORD.

Captain Goodwin provided me with a copy of the message delivered by IMO Secretary-General William O’Neill to commemorate World Maritime Day, and I ask that this, too, be printed in the RECORD.

I believe both Captain Goodwin and IMO Secretary-General O’Neill make important points about the need to continue to strive for safer shipping and I encourage other Senators to read these messages.

The material follows:

Dear Mr. Goodwin:

The International Maritime Organization has announced that World Maritime Day 1995 will be observed during the week of September 25 to 29, 1995. The theme for this year’s observance is “50th Anniversary of the United Nations: IMO’s Achievements and Challenges”. As you know, Mr. Chairman, IMO has succeeded in winning the support of the maritime world by being pragmatic, effective and above all by concentrating on the technical issues related to safety at sea and the prevention of pollution. IMO’s priorities are often described in the slogan “safer shipping and cleaner oceans.”

Until recently the indications were that IMO’s efforts to improve safety and reduce pollution were paying off. The rate of serious casualties was falling and the amount of all and other pollutants entering the sea was decreasing quite dramatically. But recently there has been a disturbing rise in accidents and our fear is that, if nothing is done, the progress we have diligently fought for over the last few decades will be lost. To avert this danger, IMO has taken a number of actions including establishing a sub-committee to improve the implementation of the International Safety Management Code, and adopting amendments to the convention dealing with standards of training, certification and watchkeeping for seafarers. When these actions are added together, they make an impressive package that should make a significant contribution to safety and pollution prevention in the years to come. The Coast Guard has been an active player at IMO regarding these and other matters.

Enclosed is a message from the Secretary General of the IMO, Mr. W. A. O’Neill, marking the observance of World Maritime Day 1995.

Sincerely,

G. T. GOODWIN, Captain, USCG,
Chief, Congressional Affairs.

Encl: World Maritime Day Message of Secretary General O’Neill.

WORLD MARITIME DAY 1995

Fifty years ago the United Nations was created. When people consider the United Nations today, most think only of the headquarters in New York or peacekeeping missions around the world. Very few people know that the United Nations indeed has another side.

This side, of course, consists of the specialized agencies of the U.N. system which deal with such matters as the development of telecommunications, the peaceful uses of nuclear energy, the improvement of education, the world’s weather, and international shipping, the particular responsibility of the International Maritime Organization.

IMO was established by means of a convention that was adopted by the states members of the United Nations in 1948 and today has 152 Member States. Its most important treaties cover more than 98 percent of world shipping.

IMO succeeded in winning the support of the maritime world by being pragmatic, effective and above all by concentrating on the technical issues related to safety at sea and the prevention of pollution from ships, topics that are of most concern to its Member States. IMO’s priorities are often described in the slogan “safer shipping and cleaner oceans.”

But today I do not want to focus on past successes. Instead I would like to talk to you about the future. Not to precisely what will happen in the shipping world during the next few years but there are indications that, from a safety point of view, we should be especially vigilant.

The difficult economic conditions of the last two decades have discouraged shipowners from ordering new tonnage and there is evidence that, in some cases, the maintenance of vessels has suffered. The combination of age and poor maintenance has obvious safety implications. Shipping as an industry is also undergoing great structural changes that have resulted in the flesht of the traditional flags declining in size while newer shipping nations have emerged.

IMO has no vested interest in what flag a ship flies or what country its crew members come from. But we are interested in the quality of the operation. We certainly can have no objection to shipowners saving money—unless those savings are made at the expense of safety or the environment. If that happens then we are very concerned indeed.

Until recently the indications were that IMO’s efforts to improve safety and reduce pollution were paying off. The rate of serious casualties was falling and the amount of all and other pollutants entering the sea was decreasing quite dramatically. But recently there has been a disturbing rise in accidents and our fear is that, if nothing is done, the progress we have diligently fought for over the last few decades will be lost. To avert this danger IMO has taken a number of actions.

We have set up a special sub-committee to improve the way IMO regulations are implemented by flag states.

We have encouraged the establishment of regional port State control arrangements so that all countries which have ratified IMO Conventions and have the right to inspect foreign ships to make sure that they meet IMO requirements can do this more effectively.

We have adopted a new mandatory International Safety Management Code to improve standards of management and especially to make sure that safety and environmental issues are never overlooked or ignored.

We have recently adopted amendments to the convention dealing with standards of training, certification and watchkeeping for seafarers. The Convention has been modernized and restructured, but most important of
In fact realized. Way that our objective of maximum safety is up to us to conduct the voyage in such a course is known, the destination is clear. It is exacted for challenging the wrath of the sea, to make the voyage in a condition which will not endanger the lives of the ship and those on board than to undertake and pay for the cost of carrying out the repairs they know to be necessary. No Government can be happy to take the fees for registering ships under their flag, but fail to ensure that safety and environmental standards are enforced.

The idea that a ship would willingly be sent to sea in an unsafe condition and pose a danger to its crew is difficult to believe and yet it does happen. The reasons for this are partly historical. We have become so used to the risks involved in seafaring that we have come to see them as a cost that has to be paid, a price which is exacted for challenging the wrath of the ocean. This attitude is perhaps acceptable. People assume that students with disabilities are the recipients of community service initiatives, but through the generous contributions of the local community which has supported the institution, the program has been made possible. Currently during the 1994-95 school year, the institution is implementing the Stars for Others Program. The goal, once again, is to let students be the leaders they can be in their respective communities. The school expects this year to log over 5,000 hours of staff and student volunteer hours of public service, and I am quite proud of this initiative.

In addition to the regular educational programs offered on campus, the school also introduces their families to receive services through special outreach programs. More than 450 students with visual disabilities throughout our State receive Braille and large print materials through the Instructional Resource Center. Over 250 individuals receive talking books through a loan program coordinated by the Library of Congress. Captioned films are made available through the Captioned Film Depository. Each year, many children with hearing impairments and visual disabilities participate in the Preschool Diagnostic and Evaluation Program and in the summer enrichment programs.

This is a tremendous institution striving to improve its services and enhance the quality of life for students with disabilities so that they can live as independently as possible. It is supported by every administrator, every teacher, and every individual who cares about the institution. The West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind have opened many doors to people with disabilities, and given them opportunities for jobs and freedom that they may not have otherwise. The schools have stressed that a physical impediment should not be a wall that blocks students from the life, but that they can overcome challenges and play a vital role in our society. I share this view and am proud of the tremendous progress made by our society in recognizing the potential of individuals with disabilities. This institution has contributed a great deal to helping ensure that every American, regardless of disability, should have the chance to be part of our productive, active communities.

The West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind make a very real difference in the lives of students and their families. With great pride, and on behalf of all of West Virginia, I send my warmest congratulations on such a special anniversary, as well as best wishes for more years of service.

SCHOOLS FOR THE DEAF AND THE BLIND

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to commend the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind for 125 years of service to students with disabilities in my home state.

On this very day, September 28 in 1870 the doors of the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind were first opened in the small community of Romney, WV. At that time, 25 deaf and 15 blind children were enrolled. It was the first year in classes in a modest facility. Since that time, literally thousands of men and women of all ages with hearing and/or visual disabilities have passed through the hallowed halls of the West Virginia Schools for the Deaf and the Blind.

Today, hundreds of individuals receive a variety of services through programs offered by these schools—programs like Be Best. I would like to introduce a national recognition in the 1993-94 school year as a model for hearing and visually impaired youth as volunteers. People assume that students with disabilities are the recipients of community service initiatives, but through the generous contributions of the local community which has supported the institution, the program has been made possible. Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 2399 just received from the House.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The PRESIDING OFFICER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2399) to amend the Truth in Lending Act to clarify the intent of such act and to reduce burdensome regulatory requirements on creditors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. D’AMATO. Mr. President, I rise today in support of S 14566. S 14566 the Truth in Lending Act Amendments of 1995. Our colleagues in the House recently passed this legislation. It is the product of bipartisan cooperation between the Senate and the House. The bipartisan support that this bill has attracted is evidence of the urgency of the situation that it addresses. As chairman of the Banking Committee, I believe that immediate action

S 14566

CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — SENATE

September 28, 1995
Mr. President, H.R. 2399 is intended to curtail the devastating liability that threatens our housing finance system in the wake of the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals’ recent decision in Rodash versus AIB Mortgage Co. The Rodash case produced an onslaught of over 50 class action suits. The majority of these suits demanded the most draconian remedy available under Truth in Lending. That remedy is rescission. A bank that receives money from a refinance, only to discover later that the loan is subject to rescission, is in legal parlance referred to as a ‘remorseless’ lender. The Rodash decision, in my view, went beyond fixing the Rodash problem. It would have weakened the Truth in Lending Act and undermined critical consumer protections.

In order to enact a solution to the Rodash problem before the moratorium expires, agreement was reached to try to move the Rodash package as a separate bill. Negotiations were undertaken between the House and Senate, and a compromise was reached which is contained in H.R. 2399. The House passed H.R. 2399 on Wednesday by unanimous consent. The Senate will do so today.

The threat of wholesale rescissions presents a real danger to our modern system of mortgage lending: prepayment potential liability that could reach into the billions. Last spring we enacted H.R. 1380, a class action moratorium. We enacted this moratorium to allow both Houses time to craft a solution. The moratorium expires on October 1—now the time is at hand.

Mr. President, I cannot overemphasize the threat to our mortgage lending system and the secondary markets that provide the mortgage market with liquidity. We cannot forget that the liquidity of the mortgage markets has helped millions of Americans obtain their dream of homeownership at lower costs.

H.R. 2399 is the result of much hard work and represents a commonsense compromise to a highly technical problem. H.R. 2399 provides greater certainty for lenders without eliminating the substantive protection available to consumers. I would like to summarize some of the important provisions of this bill:

First, this bill provides retroactive relief from Rodash-styled class actions that are pending certification. H.R. 2399 also clarifies the treatment of certain fees for the purposes of the Truth-in-Lending disclosures. This legislation provides greater flexibility, or tolerance, for honest mistakes that result in technical violations and can produce a litigation morass. The and we cannot forget that the liquidity of the mortgage markets has helped millions of Americans obtain their dream of homeownership at lower costs.

Two tolerances are established for rescission purposes. The tolerance formulas are based on the size of the loan in question. A smaller tolerance is established for standard nonpurchase money mortgages. If a borrower receives money from a refinance, only that money is subject to rescission. A larger tolerance is available in direct money refinancings. No new money refinancings are used by consumers to take advantage of declining interest rates. In these refinancings, no advancess—other than loan proceeds that might be used to finance closing costs, which are not deemed to be new advances—are received by the consumer.

H.R. 2399 clarifies the liability of assignees and loan servicers under Truth in Lending. H.R. 2399 will provide greater certainty for the secondary market and help enhance liquidity of the mortgage market in general.

H.R. 2399 also contains substantive protection for consumers. It retains the 3 day right of rescission, and creates a right of rescission in the mortgage foreclosure context.

The Truth in Lending Act requires lenders to provide consumers with notice of their right to rescind in certain transactions. However, the requirements concerning the form of notice to be provided are ambiguous. This bill eliminates liability when the incorrect form of rescission notice was given to the borrower in a closed-end transaction. As long as the consumer received a completed form, whether the form was one of the model forms published by the Federal Reserve Board or a comparable form. The addition of the requirement that the lender otherwise comply with all other requirements of this section regarding notice is intended to make clear that the lender will continue to have liability for any violation of this title that is unrelated to the form of notice, such as a misrepresentation of the APR that exceeds the tolerance. However, the lender will not be penalized for the form of notice it provided.

While any of us might take issue with any of the particular provisions in this bill, on balance it represents a workable solution, and demonstrates congressional resolve in the face of a tremendous problem. I urge all my colleagues to support this important legislation and pass it immediately, without amendment.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I rise in support of H.R. 2399, the Truth in Lending Act Amendments of 1995. This bill represents a solution to the so-called Rodash problem.

I would like to begin by commending the chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, Senator D’AMATO, the chairman and ranking member of the House Banking Committee, Representative LEACH, and Representative GONZALEZ. They also worked very closely with Representative VENTO for their cooperation in working out a bipartisan resolution of this problem. In my view, it responds to legitimate concerns raised by the financial industry but preserves the basic consumer protections of the Truth in Lending Act.

The Rodash problem arose from a court decision last year in which small violations of the disclosure requirements of the Truth in Lending Act trigger a rescission provision of the act. That decision, in turn, resulted in the filing of class action lawsuits against creditors for small violations of the disclosure requirements. The Congress placed a moratorium on such lawsuits in order to provide time to sort out this issue and clarify the statute. The moratorium expires on October 1. It is therefore important for the Congress to act before the moratorium expires.

The House Banking Committee included a response to the Rodash problem in a larger banking bill reported out of the committee earlier this year. The bill, in my view, went beyond fixing the Rodash problem. It would have weakened the Truth in Lending Act and undermined critical consumer protections.

In order to enact a solution to the Rodash problem before the moratorium expires, agreement was reached to try to move the Rodash package as a separate bill. Negotiations were undertaken between the House and Senate, and a compromise was reached which is contained in H.R. 2399. The House passed H.R. 2399 on Wednesday by unanimous consent. The Senate will do so today.

The bill before the Senate today improves significantly the measure passed by the House Banking Committee. Under the original House bill, consumers would have lost the right of rescission for a whole class of loans even if the most egregious violations of the Truth in Lending Act were committed. The bill before the Senate retains that vital consumer protection.

The original House bill also would have eliminated, for an entire class of mortgage loans, the borrower’s right to a 3-day cooling off period after closing on a loan. The bill before the Senate retains that cooling off period.

Moreover, the bill before the Senate protects the most vulnerable citizens from abusive lenders. It provides consumer protections when faced with foreclosure. This bill will help many elderly people keep their homes.

This bill increases the tolerance for statutory damages that determines what constitutes a violation. This bill does not increase the tolerance as much as the original House bill. This is important because a low tolerance is needed to ensure that consumers are receiving accurate information about the cost of credit.

This increased tolerance for errors is intended to protect lenders from the small errors in judgment that occurred in the Rodash case. It is obviously not intended to give lenders the right to pad fees up to the tolerance limit of $10,000. For example, if a delivery associated with the closing cost on a home mortgage costs $30, $30 should be charged and disclosed as part of the final charge. A lender would not arbitrarily raise the charge an additional $70 simply because there is a wider tolerance.

The purpose of the Truth in Lending Act is to require disclosure to consumers of the cost of their credit. An outstanding problem remains that there are too many exclusions and exemptions that blur the bottom line. The
This legislation is critical to avert what could be a financial disaster in the mortgage industry. I appreciate the bipartisan effort to fix the problems with the Truth in Lending Act while still protecting the rights of the consumers and I urge the adoption of this bill.

Mr. GRAMM. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be deemed read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements related to the bill be printed in the Record at the appropriate place.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

So the bill (H.R. 2399) was deemed read a third time and passed.

SMALL BUSINESS LENDING ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 1995—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on S. 885 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The report will be stated.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Mr. GRAMM. I ask unanimous consent that the conference report be included in the Record at the appropriate place.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the conference report be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statement related to the conference report be included in the Record at the appropriate place.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

So the conference report was agreed to.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be deemed read a third time, passed, and as a result of the investigation if the investigation does not result in adverse action against the attorney, agent, or employee if—

'(B) in the case of a disciplinary investigation, the investigation does not result in discipline or results in only discipline less serious than a formal letter of reprimand finding actual and spending.

'(3) The Attorney General shall provide notice in writing of the conclusion and result of an investigation described in paragraph (1).

TRIBUTE TO JUDGE ROBERT O. YOUNG ON HIS RETIREMENT

HON. ESTEBAN EDWARD TORRES
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. TORRES. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Judge Robert O. Young. Judge Young retired on August 15, 1995, from the Citrus Municipal Court after more than 20 years of judicial service on behalf of the residents of the San Gabriel Valley.

Before beginning his professional career, Judge Young served in the U.S. Army as a member of the German Occupation Force during World War II. Soon after returning to the United States, he married Sylvia, his lovely wife of 46 years. They have two daughters and four grandchildren.

Judge Young received his bachelor of arts degree from Pepperdine College and his master of science degree from University of California at Los Angeles. In 1963, he graduated from the University of Southern California Law Center and was admitted to State Bar of California.

In addition to his contributions on the bench, Judge Young has for many years played an active role in the community, including serving as a councilmember and mayor of the city of West Covina, a trustee of Azusa Pacific University and as an active member and an elder in the Community Presbyterian Church of West Covina. Judge Young is also a past recipient of the Equal Justice Award presented by the NAACP San Gabriel Valley chapter.

Judge Robert Young’s career shows that through hard work, determination and dedication one’s goals can be achieved. His commitment to community service should be regarded on the highest level.

Mr. Speaker I ask my colleagues to join me in saluting Judge Robert O. Young on his retirement from the Citrus Municipal Court.

THE CONTRACT WITH AMERICA

HON. RON PACKARD
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, today marks the 1-year anniversary of perhaps one of the most ambitious contracts ever signed. One year ago today, more than 300 Republican candidates for Congress signed the Contract With America, which indicated their commitment to end business as usual in government and their desire to restore the bonds of trust between the American people and those who represent them in Washington.

One year later, the contract has been an unqualified success. Within the first 100 days of the 104th Congress, House Republicans brought to a vote all 10 of the items contained in the contract and passed all but one.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to commend my Republican colleagues for a job well done. Since the signing of the contract, this Congress has worked harder than any other in recent history. We have done the job the American people sent us here to do—change the way government works and spends.

WILLIE EASON—1995 FLORIDA FOLK HERITAGE HONOREE

HON. C.W. BILL YOUNG
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, on Saturday, October 7, the 1995 Florida Folk Heritage Award will be presented to my constituent Willie Eason of St. Petersburg, FL, at a program at the Norwood Baptist Church. This award is presented by the Florida secretary of state to outstanding folk artists and advocates whose contributions have added to Florida’s culture and heritage.

Born in Georgia in 1921, Willie Eason began playing his brother’s steel guitar at an early age, and quickly distinguished himself as one who makes the guitar talk. Willie Eason used that talent to become not only one of the most influential steel guitarists in the House of God, a Holiness-Pentecostal Church, but also the one person who directly or indirectly influenced most of Florida’s gospel steel guitarists.

Willie Eason’s career includes recording several records, and he has participated in a countless number of concerts, benefits, andrevivals. Although his personal life includes tragedy, personal pain, and sacrifice; Willie Eason is filled with faith, with courage, and above all with love.

While it is hard for Willie Eason to explain the impact his music has on those who sing with him or just clap their hands to the beat of his music, what is readily evident is that it comes from God. Even in retirement, Willie Eason serves as a model, his music an inspiration for other purposes:

THE 100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SACRAMENTO METROPOLITAN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

HON. ROBERT T. MATSUI
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. MATSUI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce.

On September 27, 1895 the city of Sacramento and State of California incorporated an organization called the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce. As the chamber grew in numbers, reach, area, and issues it subsequently changed its name to the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce to reflect its size as the largest business association in the area and its regionwide influence.

The goal of the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce through the last century has been to enhance the development and growth of the business community in California and the Sacramento region.

This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.
The Sacramento region has grown from an agriculture-based economy in 1895 to a highly diversified one that has a leadership role in the State and the Nation in high technology, entertainment, agriculture, trade, and more.

The Sacramento region is a growing economic force in California, the capital of the eighth largest economic power in the world and a developing partner within the Pacific rim.

Congratulations as the Sacramento Metropolitan Chamber of Commerce celebrates its centennial anniversary and recognizes 1995 as a year of celebration on Sacramento's past and being part of the future.

DEMONCACY'S DICHTOMY IN SLOVAKIA

HON. CHRISTOPHER H. SMITH
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my concern over recent events in Slovakia.

Since coming to office last winter, members of the current ruling coalition in that country have been forced to limit public discourse, control public debate, and quash public criticism of the government. They have portrayed those who disapprove of the government's policies as enemies of an independent Slovakia, and those who disagree with Prime Minister Meicar are depicted as "anti-Slovak." The media and the right of free expression have been special targets of the current regime.

A few weeks ago, I, along with the co-chairman of the Helsinki Commission, Senator ALFONSO D'AMATO, and the ranking Members, Representative STENY HOYER and Senator FRANK LAUTENBERG, sent a letter to Slovak Ambassador Lichardus to express our profound concern regarding this trend. Unfortunately, events since then raise even more concern regarding this trend. Unfortuately, events since then raise even more FOURTHS TO OBTAIN ADDITIONAL FUNDING TO EXPAND THE FACILITY. THIS FACILITY WAS A REAL WORK OF LOVE FOR ELMER, AND HE DEVOTED MANY HOURS TO ITS OPERATION.

Mr. Speaker, the passing of Elmer J. Whiting, Jr., brings to a close a life committee to serve others. Those who had the privilege of knowing Elmer will always remember him as a pioneer and champion. I take this opportunity to extend my deepest sympathy to Carmel. I also extend my sympathy to Elmer's sons, Elmer J. III; David; Steven; and other members of the Whiting family. We hope that they will find comfort in knowing that our prayers are with them during this difficult period, and that others share their loss.

NOTICE: THE PASSING OF ELMER J. WHITING, JR., FIRST BLACK CPA IN OHIO

HON. LOUIS STOKES
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Speaker, I am saddened to report the recent death of Elmer J. Whiting, Jr., a respected member of the Cleveland community. Mr. Whiting passed away on September 15, 1995, at the age of 72. I join in offering our sympathy to Mr. Whiting's colleagues throughout the Cleveland business community. During his career, he was elected to the presidency of the American Association of Attorneys-CPAS.

In addition to his professional career, Mr. Whiting maintained an outstanding record of service to civic organizations throughout the greater Cleveland area. He was the longest standing trustee and treasurer of Eliza Bryant Center. Mr. Whiting also served on the boards of the Cleveland Playhouse, Karamu House, American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, and Blacks in Management, just to name a few.

Mr. Speaker, I first met Elmer J. Whiting, Jr., when we were both students at Cleveland Marshall Law School. He was 2 years behind me and attended classes with my brother, Carl. Elmer and I got to know one another and became good friends. He was an individual whom I greatly admired and respected. I recall that everyone was very proud of Elmer when he became the State's first black certified public accountant. I also recall that both Elmer and his wife, Carmel, were active in Carl's first campaign for mayor of Cleveland.

Shortly after coming to Congress, I had occasion to work with Elmer and the trustees at the Eliza Bryant Center. I supported their efforts to obtain additional funding to expand the facility. This facility was a real work of love for Elmer, and he devoted many hours to its operation.

Mr. Speaker, the passing of Elmer J. Whiting, Jr., brings to a close a life committee to serve others. Those who had the privilege of knowing Elmer will always remember him as a pioneer and champion. I take this opportunity to extend my deepest sympathy to Carmel. I also extend my sympathy to Elmer's sons, Elmer J. III; David; Steven; and other members of the Whiting family. We hope that they will find comfort in knowing that our prayers are with them during this difficult period, and that others share their loss.

THE RCRA

HON. SAXBY CHAMBLISS OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Speaker, on September 14, I introduced a bill to correct a problem which has caused great difficulty for industry in general, and the wood preserving industry in particular. Wood preserving is an important industry in my home State of Georgia, as well as in the home States of many of the bill's co-sponsors.

Under current Federal regulations, many industries, including the wood preserving industry are required to report as generated hazardous wastes, large quantities of reused materials. These materials are never disposed of, yet are considered wastes. This bill provides a balanced, reasonable, and fair solution by amending the statutory definition of solid waste—under the Resource, Conservation, and Recovery Act [RCRA]—to clearly exempt material that is maintained and reused within the manufacturing process.

RCRA was designed to encourage recycling and conservation. My bill would do this by recognizing industry's extensive efforts to reuse materials. Any regulation promulgated under this act that discourages recycling should be eliminated.

Only materials that are discarded should be regulated as wastes. My bill exempts recycled material from the definition of solid waste. These materials would only be subject to the solid waste regulations, and thus the hazardous waste regulations, only if they are discarded. In the wood treating industry, materials not completely reused on site are either treated and discharged under stringent Clean Water Act standards, or are removed from the process and appropriately managed under RCRA. However, materials that are not intended for disposal, and do not become part of the waste disposal problem, should not be considered a hazardous waste.

The hazardous waste designation creates a two-fold problem. First, it presents an incorrect picture of the waste generation trend of manufacturers, such as wood preservers. In public documents, it appears as if small plants generate millions of gallons of hazardous waste when, in fact, the majority of the material is recycled and reused in the production process. Second, some States repeatedly tax the recycling of the hazardous waste each time it is reused, resulting in large tax liabilities that do not reflect the true generation of hazardous waste.
My bill would ease the administrative burden on wood preserving facilities in my district and around the country, on the EPA, and on the States. It would also recognize the extensive environmental recycling efforts of not only the wood preserving industry, but of all affected industries. To give full support to bring this legislation to the House floor under the Regulatory Corrections Day process.

OCTOBER 6 IS GERMAN-AMERICAN DAY

HON. MICHAEL PATRICK FLANAGAN
OF ILLINOIS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. FLANAGAN. Mr. Speaker, October 6 is German-American Day. Today, more than 57 million Americans trace at least part of their ancestry to Germany.

German-Americans have, since the arrival of the first German immigrants in Philadelphia, PA, on October 6, 1683, distinguished themselves by their loyalty to their new homeland and their contributions to the cultural and economic life of the United States of America. German-Americans have supported America's democratic principles and have dedicated themselves to the promotion of freedom for all people everywhere.

The German-American Friendship Garden in Washington, DC, stands as a symbol of friendly relations between the Federal Republic of Germany and the United States of America.

We in Congress call upon all citizens of the United States of America to acknowledge the services and contributions of our German-American citizens and to celebrate German-American Day on the 6th of October.

WORLD MARITIME DAY 1995

HON. BUD SHUSTER
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to inform my colleagues that World Maritime Day 1995 is being observed this week. The theme for this year's observance is "50th Anniversary of the United Nations: International Maritime Organization's Achievements and Challenges."

The IMO was formed by an international convention in 1948, under the auspices of the United Nations, and today has 152 member States.

Since 1948, the IMO has worked to protect human life and the environment by promoting specific international programs focused on safety of life at sea and the prevention of pollution from ships. The U.S. Coast Guard, our country's representative at the IMO, has tirelessly worked through the IMO to bring international maritime safety and pollution laws up to our high standards. In order to honor the past successes of the IMO and better educate the American public about the continuing efforts of this international organization in promoting safety and environmental protection in the seas, I would like to submit the statement of Mr. William A. O'Neil, secretary-general of the International Maritime Organization, for the RECORD.

Mr. O'Neil's remarks on this important occasion discuss past IMO programs and the current challenges it faces in continuing to save lives at sea and reduce marine environmental damages.

A MESSAGE FROM THE SECRETARY-GENERAL OF THE INTERNATIONAL MARITIME ORGANIZATION

(By Mr. William A. O'Neil)

Fifty years ago, the United Nations was created. When people consider the United Nations today, most think only of the headquarters in New York or peacekeeping missions around the world. Very few people know that the UN indeed has another side.

This side, of course, consists of the specialized agencies from which deal with such matters as the development of telecommunications, the safety of aviation, the peaceful uses of nuclear energy, the improvement of world weather, and international shipping, the particular responsibility of the International Maritime Organization.

IMO was established by means of a convention which was adopted under the auspices of the United Nations in 1948 and today has 152 Member States. The treaties cover more than 98% of world shipping.

IMO succeeded in winning the support of the maritime world by being pragmatic, effective and altruistic on the technical issues related to safety at sea and the prevention of pollution from ships, topics that are of most concern to its Member States, and which are often described in the slogan "safer shipping and cleaner oceans."

But today I do not want to focus on past successes. Instead I would like to talk to you about the future. Nobody can predict precisely what will happen in the shipping world during the next few years but there are indications that, from a point of view, we should be especially vigilant.

The difficult economic conditions of the last two decades have discouraged ship owners from ordering new tonnage and there is evidence that, in some cases, the maintenance of vessels has suffered. The combination of age and poor maintenance has obvious safety implications. Shipping as an industry is also undergoing great structural changes that have resulted in the fleets of the traditional large size while newer shipping nations have emerged.

IMO has no vested interest in what flag a ship flies or what country its crew members hail from however, this changes the quality of the operation. We certainly can have no objection to shipowners saving money—unless those savings are made at the expense of safety or the environment. If that happens then we are very concerned indeed.

Until recently the indications were that IMO’s efforts to improve safety and reduce pollution were paying off. The rate of serious casualties was falling and the amount of oil and other pollutants entering the sea was decreasing quite dramatically. But recently there have been disturbing rises in accidents and our fear is that, if nothing is done, the progress we have diligently fought for over the last few decades will be lost. To avert this danger IMO has taken a number of actions.

We have set up a special sub-committee to improve safety and environmental regulations are implemented by flag States.

We have encouraged the establishment of regional port State control arrangements so that all countries which have ratified IMO Conventions and have the right to inspect foreign ships to make sure that they meet IMO requirements can do this more effectively.

We have adopted a new mandatory International Safety Management Code to improve standards of management and especially to make sure that safety and environmental issues are never overlooked or ignored.

We have recently adopted amendments to the convention dealing with standards of training, certification and watchkeeping for seafarers. The Convention has been modernized and restructured, but most important of all, new provisions have been introduced which will help to make sure that the Convention is properly implemented.

When these and other measures are added together, they make impressive package that should make a significant contribution to safety and pollution prevention in the years to come. But I think we need something more.

IMO’s standards have been so widely adopted that they affect virtually every ship in the world. Therefore, in theory, the casualty and pollution rates of flag States should be roughly the same, but in practice they vary enormously. That can only be because IMO regulations are put into effect differently from country to country. The measures that we pass here in this House will help to even out some of these differences, but they will only really succeed if everybody involved in shipping wants them to.

That sounds simple enough. Surely everybody is interested in safety and the prevention of pollution and will do what they can to support them? To a large extent perhaps they are—but the degree of commitment seems to vary considerably. The major shipowners accept their responsibilities and conduct their operations with integrity at the highest level.

Some others quite deliberately move their ships to different trading routes if Government regulations introduce strict trading regimes and controls; they would rather risk losing the ship and those on board then to undertake and pay for the cost of carrying out the regulations know to be necessary. Some Governments are also quite happy to take the fees for registering ships under their flag, but fail to ensure that safety and environmental standards are enforced.

The idea that a ship would willingly be sent to sea in an unsafe condition and pose a danger to itself, is difficult to believe and yet it does happen.

The reasons for this are partly historical. We have become so used to the risks involved in seafaring that we have come to consider them as a cost that has to be paid, a price which is exacted for challenging the wrath of the ocean. We have become so used to this passive acceptance of the inevitability of disaster. When a ship sinks we should all feel a sense of loss and failure, because accidents are not inevitable—they can and should be prevented.

The actions taken by IMO during the last few years will undoubtedly help to improve safety and thereby save lives, but they will have an even more dramatic effect if they help to change the culture of all those engaged in shipping and make safety not just a vague aspiration but a part of every day life and conduct of their operations.

Fifty years ago, when the United Nations was being planned, few people believed that this concept— the inter-national organization devoted to shipping safety and pollution rates of flag States should be roughly the same, but in practice they vary enormously. That can only be because IMO regulations are put into effect differently from country to country. The measures that we pass here in this House will help to even out some of these differences, but they will only really succeed if everybody involved in shipping wants them to.

TO HONOR THE TWENTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BAYWOLF RESTAURANT

HON. RONALD V. DELLUMS
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. DELLUMS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to acknowledge the 20th anniversary of the BayWolf Restaurant, a vital and vibrant part of our Oakland and East Bay community.

On any given night, a winemaker whose wine appears on the list, the artist whose painting hangs on the wall, the graphic artist who designed the menu, the fish purveyor who provided the evening’s fish and the florist who arranged the flowers may all be dining in one of BayWolf’s two intimate dining rooms. Regulars and newcomers alike enjoy superb food, wine and a warm and inviting atmosphere in the handsome wood frame house on Oakland’s Piedmont Avenue. The creators of this scene are Michael Wild and Larry Goldman, childhood friends who, with Michael Phelps, opened BayWolf in 1975 as a means of making the shared values and passions for food of their community of artists, artisans, academics and hippies, a way of life.

Michael Wild was born in Paris, in 1940, to German and Russian Jewish refugees who relocated to Hollywood when he was 7 years old. Even amidst wartime scarcity, Wild remembers delicious food, and when presented with plentiful the family’s food got much better. While much of America was reaching into the freezer, the Wild’s special outings were to the San Fernando Valley in search of fresh eggs and produce from small farms for Sunday gatherings of Germans, Hungarians, and Russians. The social glue for those Europeans, he recalls, “Food was the main event.” When he met Goldman in 1953, there was instant affinity: his new friend carried a bag of oranges, real food, rather than candy as a snack.

During the sixties, Wild and Goldman re-united in San Francisco and roomed together in the Haight Ashbury District. While Goldman dropped out of dental school in favor of teaching literature and English at San Francisco State, Goldman taught world religions and produce from small farms for Sunday gatherings of Germans, Hungarians, and Russians. During the sixties, Wild and Goldman re-united in San Francisco and roomed together in the Haight Ashbury District. While Goldman dropped out of dental school in favor of teaching literature and English at San Francisco State University, their flat was the site for legendary, impromptu dinners shared by counter-culture friends. Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, on Tuesday, October 10, 1995, the House in Committee of the Whole House of Representatives will have before it H.R. 1526, the CAREERS Act, which passed in this body last week. A concern is that the funding stream envisioned in this legislation to support the enhanced State and local LMI also supports the production of our national economic data including employment and unemployment statistics.

I want to point out that this legislation clearly authorizes continued access to the traditional source of funds for national and subnational labor market information. Of course, the Bureau of Labor Statistics will have to continue to justify funding levels through the appropriations process, including its request for non-trust fund money which is used to prepare employment and unemployment statistics.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, on Tuesday, October 10, 1995, the House in Committee of the Whole House of Representatives will have before it H.R. 1526, the CAREERS Act, which passed in this body last week. A concern is that the funding stream envisioned in this legislation to support the enhanced State and local LMI also supports the production of our national economic data including employment and unemployment statistics.

I want to point out that this legislation clearly authorizes continued access to the traditional source of funds for national and subnational labor market information. Of course, the Bureau of Labor Statistics will have to continue to justify funding levels through the appropriations process, including its request for non-trust fund money which is used to prepare employment and unemployment statistics.

REPUBLIC OF CHINA NATIONAL DAY

HON. SOLOMON P. ORTIZ
OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. ORTIZ. Mr. Speaker, I encourage the Members of the House of Representatives to join me in extending my best wishes and congratulations to the people of the Republic of China, Government of Taiwan, on the occasion of their forthcoming National Day.

As the world knows, the Republic of China on Taiwan is a genuine democracy and its people enjoy one of the highest standards of living in the world. As one of our largest trading partners and friends in the Far East, it is my belief that the Republic of China on Taiwan deserves much greater international recognition.

In the meantime, I wish to express my concern about reports of the U.S. involvement in the dispute between the Republic of China on Taiwan and the People’s Republic of China. It is my belief that the United States should stay out of Taiwan’s final reunification with the Chinese mainland. The Chinese people should be left to solve this issue, through peaceful means, by themselves.

Meanwhile, best of luck to President Lee Teng-hui and Foreign Minister Frederick Chien of the Republic of China on Taiwan. I am sure they will be able to meet all the challenges that lie ahead.

TRIBUTE TO MAYOR TONY INTINTOLI

HON. GEORGE MILLER
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the Honorable Anthony J. Intintoli, Jr., mayor of the city of Vallejo, CA. On December 5, 1995, Mayor Intintoli will have completed 8 years of public service as mayor of the city of Vallejo.

I have had the good fortune of representing the cities of Vallejo and Benicia in the Seventh Congressional District since 1993, which was when I met Tony Intintoli. Right after I started representing Vallejo, the Base Realignment and Conversion Commission put the Mare Island Naval Shipyard on the closure list, which was a major economic blow to our community as Mare Island Naval Shipyard has been the cornerstone of the Vallejo community for 147 years. On the heels of this devastating news of closure in 1996, Mayor Intintoli immediately put together a team of community, political, and military leaders which very forcefully and eloquently fought the closure. When that effort did not succeed, the mayor immediately transitioned the focus to a future conversion of the base. He skillfully brought together the community to adopt a closure plan in record time, and convinced the city council to hire the Urban Land Institute to provide a future blueprint for the city. Vallejo was the first base in the nation to address the myriad of social impacts from a closure and has just completed a “Blueprint for Action—A Community Responds to the Closure of Mare Island Naval Shipyard”.

Mayor Intintoli has effectively lobbied State and Federal legislators for conversion assistance, and has worked tirelessly with the Department of Defense to obtain the most favorable lease conditions for the city and the shipyard. The city has been successful in bringing the first civilian tenants to Mare Island—before closure—and providing the first jobs that will lead to the economic revitalization of Vallejo and the region.

During his tenure as mayor, the doors of the Vallejo City Hall were always open and residents felt they were part of the process. The makeup of city commissions became more balanced and reflective of the diverse ethnic makeup of the entire community. Mayor Intintoli improved the dialog between city hall and neighborhood organizations and focused on community concerns. His style of leadership was to work with and build consensus with constituents and his colleagues on the council.

During his two terms as mayor from 1987–95, the city focused on substance abuse prevention and was awarded a $3.2 million grant from the Robert Woods Johnson Foundation to implement a comprehensive program to address the issue. This was the first time representatives from the entire city worked in a collaborative effort to address a problem that affects every individual and family. The Fight Back Program has received numerous awards for its innovative efforts which can be credited to Mayor Intintoli’s support and encouragement.

I am proud to call Mayor Tony Intintoli my friend and wish him all the best in his early retirement. I know this is the start of a beautiful friendship.

CARING BY DOING

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA
OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, there are times in life when people need the help of others in order to continue with endeavors that have a great impact on their lives. Insight Recovery Center of Flint, MI, has for 50 years provided vital and successful substance abuse and mental health treatment services to people suffering from alcoholism, drug abuse, and mental health problems.

This Friday, Insight Recovery Center will begin celebrating its thirtieth anniversary with a number of community leaders who all share Insight’s goal of trying to provide necessary help for needy people, especially at a time when government resources are scarce.

The event in Flint will highlight the wonderful work done by 225 people for an organization that over its history has helped more than 100,000 people.

The work that has been done to help people with alcohol problems, including a joint program started in the 1970s with the Michigan Secretary of State, and other cooperative efforts involving General Motors and the UAW, have been most important. The growing concerns about substance abuse over the years has resulted in Insight’s construction of the first residential substance abuse treatment facility in Michigan that was not part of a hospital.

This wonderful program has operated without Government funds, except for some resources provided to Community Recovery services, a separate facility for the indigent. It has raised funds from a variety of sources, including fees for services, insurance proceeds, and from the profits of Axxon, a computer company it owns.

We need, Mr. Speaker, to appreciate the fact that a variety of resources and innovative solutions are needed to deal with the problems that many people face. Programs like Insight have made a mark, and established a reputation for truly caring for people at difficult times. I urge you and all of our colleagues to join me in wishing the men and women of Insight Recovery Center the very best on their thirtieth anniversary.

275TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE INCORPORATION OF THE TOWN OF BOLTON

HON. BARBARA B. KENNELLY OF CONNECTICUT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mrs. KENNELLY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to recognize a milestone in the First Congressional District of Connecticut: the 275th anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Bolton.

Bolton was originally fertile hunting ground for the Podunk Indians. European settlers from Bolton in Lancashire, England were some of the earliest residents of Bolton, CT.

On October 9, 1720, residents petitioned the general court of Connecticut requesting town privileges. The men involved in this landmark event included Cullott Olcott, John Bissell, Stephen Bishop, Abiel Shaylor, Timothy Olcott, Joseph Pomerory, Nathaniel Allis, Edward Rose, John Clark, Charles Loomis, Samuel Bump, Daniel Dartt, John Church, Thomas Marshall and Samuel Raymond. Bolton then became one of the oldest towns in Connecticut.

During a town meeting in 1721, residents voted to construct a meeting house, which established the foundation upon which the town of Bolton was built. On May 27, 1723, Jonathan Edwards was invited to serve as the first minister of Bolton. The Reverend Edwards accepted this position, then moved on to serve as a tutor at Yale, becoming one of the most celebrated writers and speakers of Colonial America. In 1725, Rev. Thomas White became Bolton’s minister.

In 1774, the residents of Bolton continued to affirm their loyalty to the King of England while simultaneously voting at town meetings to cooperate with other colonies in defending the liberties of British America. Bolton residents also voted to offer relief to Boston residents who were suffering from the harsh measures of the British Parliament. Finally, the people of Bolton agreed to create a committee of correspondence. The members of the committee included Thomas Pitkin, Esq., Ichabod Warner, Isaac Fellows, Samuel Carver, Jr., and Benjamin Talcott.

Today, Bolton is a thriving Connecticut town that has retained much of its historic character. The residents are proud of the town’s rural beauty with its rolling pastureland, its unspoiled town center and its historic homes. Above all, the residents cherish the intangible virtues of Bolton: the school system that emphasizes individual instruction, the hard-working residents who contribute so much to the community, and the direct democracy of the town meeting form of government first adopted in 1720.

Mr. Speaker, I am honored to celebrate the 275th anniversary of the incorporation of the town of Bolton, CT. I know they will continue their proud tradition on into the next century.

INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 2735, THE FEDERAL EMPLOYEE BASE CLOSURE RETIREMENT ACT

HON. TOM LANTOS
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, the House voted recently to approve the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission’s recommendations to close additional military bases in California with little opposition from much in the California Congressional Delegation. We opposed the Commission’s recommendations because we have very serious concerns about the economic impact—particularly on California—will be enormous.

We opposed the Commission’s recommendations because we have very serious concerns about the effect of base closures on California’s economy—particularly since our State has sustained a disproportionate number of job losses stemming from previous rounds of military base closures. Although there are no military bases slated for closure in my congressional district, I oppose the closures out of concern for the citizens of California who are being asked to bear a disproportionate burden of military downsizing.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to address an issue which I do not believe has received enough attention by the Congress. I am concerned that in the rush to close military bases we are forgetting about the impact of these decisions on the civilian employees who have dedicated their lives and their careers to strengthening and maintaining our Nation’s defense. I am concerned about the impact of base closures on thousands of families of Federal workers who will lose their jobs as a result of downsizing. We must ensure that these employees receive job training and assistance in finding new jobs in the private sector.

We must also ensure that when we require employees to retire early we treat these employees in a fair and equitable manner. I am particularly concerned about the fairness of forcing workers to retire early because of a base closure. Many of these workers will stand to lose substantial pension benefits through no fault of their own.

Mr. Speaker, we must look for ways to help soften the blow to families who will be adversely affected by military base closures. H.R. 2735, would ease some of the pain for Federal employees who are forced to retire early because of a base closure. My legislation would change language in existing law that penalizes Federal workers who are forced to retire involuntarily. As you know, current law requires that a Federal employee who retires early loses a considerable amount of his or her retirement earnings for each year he or she is under the age of 55. My legislation would reduce the penalty by one-half of an employee is forced to retire early because of a base closure.

I urge my colleagues not to forget the thousands of Federal workers who have dedicated their lives and careers to Government service. I urge you to support this important legislation.

BICENTENNIAL OF RANDOLPH COUNTY, IL

HON. JERRY F. COSTELLO
OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. COSTELLO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the bicentennial anniversary of Randolph County, IL; 200 years ago, on October 5, 1795, Gen. Arthur St. Clair, the Governor of the Northwest Territory, proclaimed the southwestern one-third of present day Illinois as Randolph County, with Kaskaskia as the county seat.

Randolph County, IL, is recognized as the oldest organized government west of the Allegheny Mountains. The county has sent forth numerous legislators and leaders to serve in the early days of both the State of Illinois and the U.S. Government. Its rich history also reflects a strong French influence. The two oldest French forts in the United States are located within Randolph County. Fort Kaskaskia and Fort de Chartres both overlook the Mississippi River and the city of Kaskaskia. In addition, the Liberty Bell of the West, cast in France in 1741, is located on Kaskaskia Island.

I ask my colleagues to join me in acknowledging Randolph County and celebrating its historic heritage on the event of its 200th anniversary.

IN HONOR OF THE CATHEDRAL OF THE PINES 50TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. CHARLES F. BASS OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 27, 1995

Mr. BASS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commemorate the Cathedral of the Pines in Rindge, NH on its 50th anniversary. This beautiful site is located on 450 acres of land in the southern part of my congressional district offering an incredible view of Mount Monadnock in the distance.

The Cathedral of the Pines was founded in 1945 by Dr. and Mrs. Douglas Sloane, in honor of their son, Lt. Sanderson Sloane. Lieutenant Sloane died in the service of his country in World War II. To commemorate his life, Dr. and Mrs. Sloane donated the land for a memorial that was erected in his honor and in honor of all who served their country.

The non-denominational Cathedral of the Pines sits atop the site where Lt. Sanderson Sloane had planned to build a home after the end of the war. Today, 50 years later, over 100,000 people a year visit this beautiful site to admire and experience the beauty, the calm, the splendor, and the grace of this wondrous site.

I was honored to participate in a recent ceremony commemorating the golden anniversary of the Cathedral of the Pines. This event featured the participation of 70 members of Lt. Sanderson Sloane’s old unit, the 379th Bombardment Group. It was an event I will not soon forget.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all of my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to the memory of Tocqueville was one of the first Europeans to recognize how different America was from other democratic republics. The series’ producers went to Mystic, CT, to recreate the scene of de Tocqueville marveling at the busy seaport. Noting the clipper ships in port and the energy and enterprise of their crew, de Tocqueville determined that in a free country, all is activity and bustle, and that such energy in the conduct of commerce typifies our democracy.

America’s rush to prosper financially was reflected in other areas of life as well; in the whirlwind of American grassroots politics and the restless activity and energy of civil society. Americans were constantly involved in all facets of public life. According to de Tocqueville, Americans deprived of such involvement and reduced to occupying themselves only with their own affairs would become incredibly unhappy. He believed that no country could work harder to be fulfilled.

This attitude, de Tocqueville claimed, was a direct result of the nature of American freedom. Freedom’s achievement must be to forge a moral good as well as their own, and where each individual concerns and collective thought and action, Americans deprived of such involvement and reduced to occupying themselves only with their own affairs would become incredibly unhappy. He believed that no country could work harder to be fulfilled.

The American Promise, which airs October 1, 2, and 3, shows us that the nature of American freedom has not changed very much over the years. We may have to look harder for it because stories of carving a carousel as a community project and channeling graffiti artists into painting murals that celebrate the community do not often make front page news. It is still there, but must be nurtured in each individual and in every community.

I applaud PBS and the series underwriters, the Farmers Insurance Group of Companies, for bringing the American Promise to television. This partnership reflects de Tocqueville’s theory of public spirit in America, where individuals are as interested in the public good as well as their own, and where each person takes an active part in the government of society.
Mr. CLAY. Mr. Speaker, the fight for fair housing is far from over. But tragically, those Americans who suffer the indignities of housing discrimination are about to become the victims of an unnecessary bureaucratic nightmare. The legislation moving all fair-housing enforcement from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to the Department of Justice is a travesty of justice.

When will the leadership of this Congress halt its attack on programs enacted to end discrimination against blacks and Latinos?

I would like to share with my colleagues a timely editorial which appeared yesterday’s St. Louis Post Dispatch.

HUD MAY LOSE FAIR-HOUSING FUNCTIONS

The Senate may take up as early as today a proposal to give the Justice Department fair-housing enforcement responsibility, essentially that it doesn’t want and shouldn’t be required to accept.

Up to now, the Department of Housing and Urban Development has been the lead agency in enforcing this section, known as Title VIII, of the Civil Rights Act. HUD is charged with investigating fair-housing complaints and seeking voluntary conciliation in each case. The agency has settled disputes before they reach litigation and work with the housing industry for voluntary compliance with the law.

The HUD appropriations bill in the Senate includes a rider to shift all fair-housing enforcement to the Justice Department. Assistant Attorney General Andrew Fois has urged the Senate to reject this change, and he is right.

He notes that his department is being asked to undertake a new function for which it is ill equipped. The new responsibilities would require the agency to set up a bureaucracy to handle the nearly 10,000 fair-housing complaints filed annually. Moreover, Mr. Fois notes that these changes would take time and might harm victims of housing discrimination.

The bill also would prevent HUD from addressing insurance red-lining, a problem that the agency has pursued as part of its fair-housing responsibilities. The Senate bill says that, at the end of this month, HUD would be barred from continuing settlement negotiations in current fair-housing and insurance red-lining cases.

HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros argues that both housing bias and red-lining are major problems in urban areas. He cited HUD’s role in housing-bias cases in Missouri, Mississippi, and California in trying to bolster his argument for keeping fair-housing functions under HUD’s umbrella.

Typically, Senate Republicans held no hearings or made no analysis before voting in the Appropriations Committee earlier this month to strip HUD of its fair-housing responsibilities. The GOP-controlled Senate may well ignore Mr. Cisneros’ advice even though these riders would do unnecessary harm to victims of housing bias and insurance red-lining.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, today, this Member would like to recognize the 25th anniversary of Volunteers in Overseas Cooperative Assistance, known as VOCA. Since 1970, VOCA has been indispensable in promoting sustainable development throughout the world by harnessing the American spirit of volunteerism to teach people in developing countries how to help themselves. Thousands of VOCA volunteers, including agricultural, commercial, and environmental experts, have donated their time and expertise in 112 countries in the last 25 years. These volunteers, from this Member’s congressional district and many others, are in Washington this week to take part in their organizations’ 25th anniversary “Celebration of International Cooperation.”

VOCA’s ambassadors of good will represent a growing cadre of Americans who have participated in a small, but powerful program to provide technical assistance to the developing world and emerging democracies. In 1985, this Member led the congressional effort to authorize the Farmer-to-Farmer Program, and in 1986, it began as a pilot project focusing on development efforts in Latin American and the Caribbean. Because of its early success, the Farmer-to-Farmer Program, still modestly funded, has since mushroomed into a program of global dimensions that is also now a major component of United States assistance to the struggling republics of the former Soviet Union.

At a time when our taxpayer dollars are scarce and our foreign assistance programs are under increasing scrutiny, VOCA and the Farmer-to-Farmer Program represent a cost-effective and efficient delivery mechanism for important U.S. aid. The Farmer-to-Farmer Program is simple in execution and avoids Government red tape by contracting the administration to VOCA and similar organizations. Federal funding goes a long way because administrative costs are limited to volunteers’ travel expenses, food, and lodging. Therefore, while U.S. foreign assistance efforts generally remain controversial, the Farmer-to-Farmer Program and VOCA’s volunteers have demonstrated that U.S. foreign aid can achieve enormous successes and build international goodwill with a relatively small investment of taxpayer dollars.

Usually volunteers are encouraged to live with host families—not just to cut costs—but as another means of building friendship bonds and maximizing the likelihood of success. The short-term nature of the assignment has also encouraged the volunteers to begin work immediately and maximize every day until the job is done. But for VOCA volunteers, the work never seems to be done. Often these outstanding individuals return from their assignments and continue to assist their overseas clients at their own expense.

VOCA volunteers have come from every sector of the farming and food community: cattlemen, ranchers, dairy farmers, vegetable and fruit growers, peanut farmers, canners and food processors, beekeepers, and agricultural cooperative representatives. Some are active farmers at the time they volunteer for the program; others are retired from farm or land grant universities, eager to share a lifetime of experience with their counterparts in host countries.

VOCA volunteers inject a spirit of private enterprise into the farming community. By suiting personal initiative and individual responsibility, volunteers support private enterprise activity as opposed to government activity. They encourage farmers to assume responsibility for their own operations, rather than depending on Government support or control. Sometimes, involvement of the local people in a farmer cooperative is their first and crucial experience in participatory democracy.

Quite amazingly, small or simple suggestions by VOCA volunteers often achieve significant results in lesser developed countries. For example, the late John Tesar of Bellevue, NE, went to Honduras in 1988 to help the El Marrano Company—The Little Pig—improve its processing techniques and help them introduce new products into the local market. Within a few weeks of his arrival, the company had reduced its spoilage losses by 100 percent. How? Tesar discovered that the fans on the back walls of the plant were clogged with grease, thus cutting cooling efficiency and causing pork fat to become rancid almost immediately. A simple recommendation to clean the fans solved the temperature problems.

The generosity of VOCA volunteers helps both their overseas clients and the United States. It isn’t accidental that some of our largest customers for U.S. agricultural commodities are former beneficiaries of this program. For example, the California raisin industry now sells $500,000 of raisin concentrate each year to Uruguay because a VOCA volunteer provided information to a United States business colleague on marketing opportunities.

Over the years, this Member has spoken to many returning volunteers. Their stories are more than heart-warming and inspiring. They reinforce this Member’s belief that the strength of our American democratic and economic system can best be demonstrated through positive contacts between individual American citizens and our foreign neighbors. VOCA and the Farmer-to-Farmer Program give people around the world an opportunity to meet and work side by side with ordinary Americans who are generously putting their special talents and experience to work helping them in their struggle to survive, prosper, and escape oppression.

Since 1985, VOCA has implemented more than 1,200 Farmer-to-Farmer Program assignments. As the author of that original legislation, this Member strongly supports that successful partnership and will try to ensure that it continues. Congress certainly appreciates the enormous efforts of the VOCA volunteers and staff who have given many Members a reason to say they support this country’s efforts to help those less fortunate throughout the world.
Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to highlight the great work being done at Ohio Northern University by both the staff and students which has recently won the school an outstanding rating as one of the premier institutions in the Midwest. Ohio Northern was ranked fourth in the Midwest by U.S. News & World Report in its ninth annual “America’s Best Colleges.” This has been the second straight year Ohio Northern has been ranked fourth in the Midwest. The ranking includes 144 similar institutions in 12 States. Institutions are evaluated through various statistical measures with a survey of academic reputation by 2,700 college presidents, deans and admissions directors. Data measure student selectivity, faculty resources, financial resources, retention rate and alumni satisfaction. Ohio Northern continues to have a talented student body, capable faculty, strong academic programs, and high standards. For example, 1 out of 10 ONU students is a high school valedictorian. This year, 262 valedictorians are enrolled at the university. Incredibly, it should not be overlooked that ONU has been operating with a balanced budget for more than 30 consecutive years. For these reasons and numerous others not mentioned, I would like to extend my congratulations and best wishes to this fine institution which really is an asset to the people and State of Ohio.

THE FOREST BIODIVERSITY AND CLEARCUTTING PROHIBITION ACT OF 1995

HON. JOHN BRYANT
OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Speaker, with my colleague Christopher Shays, I am reintroducing today the Forest Biodiversity and Clearcutting Prohibition Act of 1995. For years I have sought to protect native forest biodiversity by ending clearcutting and other forms of even-age logging and allowing only selection management of federal lands that are logged. This is the moderate approach toward forest protection. It does not reduce timber production.

This year’s legislative agenda, particularly the timber salvage rider, makes this forest management approach all the more inappropriate and necessary.

Forests are under assault from expanded salvage logging and the weakening of environmental protections. The Forest Biodiversity Act we are introducing is a moderate reform that allows logging while avoiding the wasteful destruction of forest resources.

Most Americans who are aware of them are appalled by clearcuts. But many of our citizens still don’t know that these Government agencies then bulldoze and replant, resulting in even-age timber plantations of only one species or two.

If current plans are followed, the remaining diversity in the 60 million acres available for commercial logging on Federal land will be eliminated and each of those acres transformed into timber plantation within the next 15 to 20 years.

The Forest Service and other agencies are using even-age logging in spite of substantial evidence that selection management—cutting individual trees, leaving the canopy and undergrowth relatively undisturbed—is more cost-efficient and has a higher benefit-cost ratio.

Selection logging is more labor intensive, creating more jobs for timber workers, but it avoids the high up-front costs of site preparation and planting. The result is productive logging operation without the elimination of native biodiversity diversity in the forest, without the indiscriminate mowing down of huge stands of trees, leaving only shrubs and bare ground. The Forest Biodiversity and Clearcutting Prohibition Act would ban clearcutting in its various forms. It would require that Federal land managers maintain the native mixture of tree species, would create a Committee of Scientists to provide independent scientific advice, would ensure that Federal agency regarding logging, and would ban logging in roadless areas, in order to save them intact so Congress may decide their permanent status.

My proposal is aimed at protecting the diversity of our nation’s forests, and the habitats they provide to wildlife, while demanding sound, proven forest management activities. Mr. SHAYS and I invite every Member to join us in seeking this badly-needed reform.

REPEALING THE DAVIS-BACON ACT

HON. NICK SMITH
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, the time has long since passed for the repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act. Yet, this outdated piece of legislation, along with all of its adverse effects, is still a bulwark of the United States labor law. The Davis-Bacon Act should be repealed for several important reasons:

First, it violates Americans’ right to contract freely with one another.

Second, it has iniquitous effects between people of different races.

Third, it serves no interest other than to protect the wages of white unionized construction labor.

Fourth, it adds over a billion dollars each year directly to Federal Government expenditures.

The Davis-Bacon Act was passed in 1931 amidst a sharp decline in construction activity and falling wages and prices that characterized the Great Depression. Its intent was twofold: First, it aimed to halt the decline of wages. Second, Davis-Bacon intended to prevent blacks, migrant workers, and carpet-bagging contractors from competing for contracts that had typically been awarded to local, white unionized labor.

How did the act attempted to achieve these objectives? By requiring that construction workers on federally financed projects be paid the local prevailing wage rate. This prevailing wage, as determined by the Department of Labor, is nothing more than the union wage. In other words, this act gives the Secretary of Labor the authority to set the minimum wage for construction workers at a rate greater than that determined by the forces of supply and demand. In effect, this requirement to pay an artificially high wage precludes most minority-owned and nonunionized firms from bidding for government construction contracts since they cannot afford to pay union wages. Consequently, the Davis-Bacon Act serves to protect the jobs and inflated wages of predominantly white unionized labor by insulating them from lower cost competition. It effectively grants the higher cost, unionized contractors their own private monopoly over federally funded construction projects.

But there is another effect that follows directly from the required payment of prevailing wages. Since the Federal Government is prohibited by law from awarding contracts to lower wage, lower cost construction firms, it necessarily spends an excess of what it needs to in order to get the job done. And guess who is paying the difference? The Davis-Bacon Act adds over a billion dollars each year directly to Federal Government expenditures, not to mention the additional billions added to private expenditures on projects that are partially federally funded. That means you and I are forced to subsidize the multitude of artificially and unnecessarily expensive construction projects because back in 1931, the Government granted a monopoly over the contracts to such projects to a small group of unionized construction workers.

The claim by some of my colleagues and supporters of the act that Davis-Bacon simply recognizes existing wages as determined by the local market, and therefore, adheres to free market principles, indicates a serious misunderstanding of the process through which the free market works. A free market, with competitively determined wages and prices, needs neither government recognition nor enforcement in order to properly function. These are the prices and wages that would exist in the absence of the Department of Labor. The very fact that the Davis-Bacon Act was deemed necessary to require and enforce the payment of prevailing wages indicates that these are not the wages that would prevail in the free market.

If the only group of people whom this legislation benefits is a small number of predominately white, unionized labor, while imposing significant costs on minority and nonunion construction workers, as well as every taxpayer in the form of increased Federal Government expenditures, then you might ask, how long has this act lasted? How many years? The act has stubbornly survived precisely because it has a highly unified, powerful constituency. Organized labor groups lobby... through large campaign contributions, persuasion, and the votes of their members to influence labor policy in their favor. On the other hand, opposition to laws like Davis-Bacon is diffused and unorganized, simply because these very real costs, which fall lightly on each American, go largely unnoticed.

Finally, and perhaps most importantly, congressional mandates that prohibit arrangements between the buyers and sellers of labor that would otherwise be mutually agreeable directly interfere with freedom of contract. Our Founding Fathers believed that the free marketplace, unobstructed by government interference, was the best source of progress and prosperity for all people. They believed that the role of government was to protect liberty by acting as an impartial umpire, not to manage outcomes by interfering with every play. The time has come to repeal legislation created for this end. The time is ripe to repeal the Davis-Bacon Act.

Charleston ABF, SC—Twelve C-17 Globemaster III's XVII airlifted more than 2,250 hours and transported 11 million lbs. of cargo, personnel, and equipment during an important 30-day evaluation ending today. Aircrews and support personnel from Charleston ABF, S.C. flew and maintained the high-technology airlifters for nine days of peacetime operations, followed by a seven-day simulated multi-regional conflict airlift scenario, then 14 days of return operations.

During the RM&E, Air Force personnel exercised the C-17's full spectrum of capabilities. The planes were used to transport personnel, equipment and palletized cargo of up to 250,000 lbs. for a period of nine days. The over-the-water airdrop, the C-17 demonstration sortie, was flown from seven sites, six in the U.S. and one overseas. Mr. TALENT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to ALIVE, Alternatives to Living in Violent Environments, a not-for-profit organization which has served the St. Louis area for the past 14 years.

ALIVE's goal is to provide accessible and affordable alternatives to violence for abused women and their children. This organization offers a variety of community services and educational programs designed to empower the abused to take control of their lives and enable them to realize their own strengths and abilities. Thus far in 1995, ALIVE has increased its service to the St. Louis area by 45 percent, having served over 12,000 women and children.

As part of National Domestic Violence Awareness Month, ALIVE has planned a number of special events throughout October to educate the public and recruit support in the fight against domestic violence. On October 2, the organization is sponsoring a march and rally followed by a dinner, featuring guest speaker Denise Brown of the Nicole Brown Simpson Foundation. They are also hosting several luncheons later in the month on October 18 and one on October 27 which will feature guest speaker Sarah Buel.

Mr. Speaker, it is an honor and a privilege for me to pay tribute to this fine organization, and commend them upon their efforts toward the elimination of family violence in this country. I join them in calling upon all citizens to participate in this national awareness campaign.

Mr. Speaker, it is an honor and a privilege to help developing countries such as Haiti. In the past 14 years, the ministry at the church has been in-...
SAULITE TO DETACHMENT 10, AIR FORCE SPACE AND MISSILE SYSTEMS CENTER

HON. GEORGE E. BROWN, JR.
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. BROWN of California. Mr. Speaker, today I would like to draw attention of the Congress to the men and women who have worked for the U.S. Air Force and its related contractors at Detachment 10, Air Force Space and Missile Systems Center in San Bernardino, CA.

Detachment 10 will close shortly and its deactivation ceremony is taking place today in San Bernardino. Detachment 10 has had a long history in San Bernardino going back over 30 years under various names, including the Ballistic Systems Division, the Ballistic Missile Office, and the Ballistic Missile Organization.

What has remained the same all these years is the dedication to mission, the pride, and the professional service to our Nation provided by the men and women who have worked for Detachment 10 and its contract partners.

Mr. Speaker, the deactivation of Detachment 10 brings a sense of sadness and loss to the San Bernardino area and to me. Detachment 10 and its contractors have been longtime, very valued members of our community.

However, I have great faith that the men and women affiliated with Detachment 10 will continue to be valuable members of our community and our Nation, using their skills, their knowledge, and their personal character to enhance themselves, their families, and our country. I look forward to continuing to work with them and to hear from them in whatever new activities and work they pursue.

Mr. Speaker, I urge the Congress to join me in saluting the men and women of Detachment 10 and in wishing them the best of luck in the future.

CELEBRATING 50 YEARS OF SERVICE TO BAY AREA RESIDENTS

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, this Sunday, Kaiser Permanente Health Plan will celebrate its 50th birthday. Although Kaiser dates back to 1933, it was on October 1, 1945, that the plan was opened to public membership in the San Francisco Bay area.

Back in 1933, Dr. Sidney Garfield, the founding physician of Kaiser Permanente Health Plan, developed the principles of modern prepaid medical care in southern California when he provided health care to 5,000 workers who were building the aqueduct to carry water from the Colorado River to Los Angeles.

Five years later, Henry J. Kaiser was leading a consortium of companies building the Grand Coulee Dam in Washington State when he realized that labor unions were unhappy with the fee-for-service care being provided to the 10,000 workers and their families. Kaiser's son, Edgar, who was directing the project, invited Dr. Garfield to come to Washington and form a medical group to furnish health care to the workers and their families.

In 1942, Henry Kaiser and Dr. Garfield transplanted the principles and vision of the Kaiser Permanente Health Plan to Richmond, CA, and the Portland-Vancouver area. They then expanded it to the Kaiser steel mills in southern California. With the end of World War II and the closing of the shipyards, the health plan was incorporated into a nonprofit public trust and opened to the general public.

Today, Kaiser Permanente serves more than 6.6 million people—making it both the world's oldest and largest nonprofit integrated health care system. Mr. Speaker, I ask you and my colleagues to join me in celebrating the birth of Mr. Kaiser and Dr. Garfield's idea, which has since developed into one of the most influential forces in the delivery of modern health care and a model for others to follow.

TRIBUTE TO DULCIE ROSENFELD

HON. SANDER M. LEVIN
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize Dulcie Rosenfeld, who on October 2, 1995 will receive a prestigious and high honor, the Fred M. Butzel Memorial Award for Distinguished Community Service. The Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Detroit is understandably pleased to present this award. Dulcie Rosenfeld embodies the concept of service to the community. Joining the roster of illustrious citizens who have received the Butzel Award, she follows in and has enriched the tradition which is signified by this award.

Ms. Rosenfeld's work on behalf of her community embodies leadership, esteem, and commitment to improving life for all people. Mrs. Rosenfeld's accomplishments include serving as a board member of the Jewish Home for the Aged, the Jewish Community Council, the Agency for Jewish Education, and Sinai Hospital Guild, just to name a few. She is also a past vice-president of the Jewish Federation, as well as a past member of the federation's board of governors for 22 years.

Dulcie Rosenfeld also has served as vice president of the Detroit Historical Society and has been active with the Hilberry Theater at Wayne State University. Her outstanding initiative in the field of community service is apparent as she is the founding chairman of the advisory board of the Jewish information and referral service. She also founded the Greening of Detroit. I am confident that all involved in these organizations are indebted to Dulcie for her dedication and incomparable talent.

The recipients of Dulcie Rosenfeld's accomplishments exemplify her wisdom, leadership, and talent. All of us share in the joy of her receipt of the Fred M. Butzel Memorial Award.
a moment of silence before the school day begins in all of the Lawrence public schools. With the help of Mr. John Housianitis, vice chairman of the Lawrence school committee, Lawrence School Superintendent James F. Scully, and Lawrence Mayor Mary Claire Kennedy, Mr. Harb was able to convince the school committee to establish a moment of silence in the schools as a way of fostering a more positive atmosphere in the classrooms.

Since its adoption in March of 1994, many students have expressed their gratitude for the moment of silence before their school day begins. Many have used this period as a time for personal reflection and thought. Others have used it as a time for prayer. Regardless of religious denomination, students in Lawrence public school system now have the opportunity to take a moment to express themselves through reflection, thought, or prayer before each school day begins.

Today in our country, our children face many challenges at school. Not only are there academic rigor, but there are also social pressures that our young people must constantly adapt and deal with. A moment of silence and reflection will not eliminate these pressures, but it can ease them.

Again, I applaud the efforts of Mr. Harb and the other community leaders who have been at the forefront of this movement. I hope other communities will follow the lead of the Lawrence public school system and institute a moment of silence before each school day. It has benefited the students in Lawrence and it will benefit others.

THE C-17 DOES THE JOB

HON. STEPHEN HORN
OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. HORN. Mr. Speaker, real-world events continue to demonstrate why the nondevelopmental aircraft alternative (NDAA) as part of our strategic airlift solution is a bad idea. The recent disaster in the Caribbean caused by Hurricane Marilyn underscores our nation’s continuing need for humanitarian airlift and, likewise, demonstrates the nation’s need for the unique capabilities of the C-17. The humanitarian relief activity in the U.S. Virgin Islands performed by the C-17 validates the very reasons we are buying this magnificent airplane. Simply, it does the job we bought it to do, and does it when conditions preclude the use of other, less capable aircraft.

At the airfield in St. Thomas, where ramp space is extremely limited, landing and then unloading a large commercial freighter would essentially close to airfield to other aircraft. We witnessed these same circumstances in Goma, Zaire, where aircraft with desperately needed supplies circled overhead and were forced to turn around because the airfield was out of service for hours awaiting the unloading of a B747. The C-17’s unique ground maneuverability—routebacking and the ability to turn around in fewer than 90 feet—allows for a continuous flow—greater throughput—of humanitarian relief through the small St. Thomas airfield.

Also the C-17 can carry more than people, meals, and blankets. In the case of St. Thomas—17's carried an entire 150-vehicle U.S. Army light infantry truck company, including 2.5- and 5-ton trucks loaded with relief supplies and flatbed semi-trailers. It is relief equipment such as this, which cannot be carried by the so-called nondevelopmental aircraft alternative—a Pentagon word for an airplane which is not a C-17. Such a capability is very costly, and it increases the risk for a disorganized disaster. The outsize cargo capability of the C-17 allows the Army to stack-load many of its trucks directly atop the flatbed vehicles, increasing the load density and reducing the number of required flights. Such outsize loads can be delivered directly to where they are needed only by the C-17.

As we have seen again in St. Thomas, whether airlifting firepower for the soldier or humanitarian aid for a neighbor, the C-17 is living up to its promise—it delivers. The C-17 is demonstrating it is indeed the most versatile airlift aircraft in aviation history. It is this capability our Nation must have to meet its global military and humanitarian airlift needs.

As we begin to replace our aging C-141, a dollar spent for airlift should be a dollar spent for airlift modernization, increased capability; NDAA—the nondevelopmental aircraft alternative—does neither. If a force mix solution is considered to satisfy our nation’s military and humanitarian airlift needs, the correct number of NDAA must be zero. I urge your continued support of the maximum funding in the fiscal year 1996 budget for the C-17 as our single and most capable airlift solution.

TRIBUTE TO ED WUJEK AND LARRY CALCATERA

HON. DAVID E. BONIOR
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, the March of Dimes is an organization with a noble mission: To fight birth defects and childhood diseases. We all share the March of Dimes dream which is that every child should have the opportunity to live a healthy life.

For the past 12 years, the Southeast Michigan Chapter of the March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation has honored several Macomb County residents who are outstanding members of our community and have helped in the campaign for healthier babies. This evening, the chapter will be hosting the 12 annual "Alexander Macomb Citizen of the Year" award dinner. The award, instituted in 1984, is named after my home county’s namesake, Gen. Alexander Mecomb, a hero of the War of 1812.

This year, the March of Dimes has chosen Ed Wujek and Larry Calcaterra as recipients of the March of Dimes dream which is that every child should have the opportunity to live a healthy life.

Ed and Larry, the Wujek-Calcaterra family, has played a central role in the March of Dimes for more than 10 years. Both families have been in the business since the early 1900’s. As everyone knows, their families have accomplished more than one of these fields, as well as in their personal and spiritual lives. I would like to mention each award recipient personally.

Ed Wujek has been a leader in the automobile industry and owner of the Wujek Funeral Home in Grosse Pointe. Ed has been a leader in the March of Dimes for more than 10 years and has contributed millions of dollars to the March of Dimes. Ed has also been active in community service, especially in her involvement with youth organizations. She is a bona fide scholar as well, with a graduate degree in Greek and Latin as well as an M.B.A.

Larry Calcaterra is a retired businessman with a remarkable record of public service. He has been a leader in the March of Dimes for more than 10 years and has contributed millions of dollars to the March of Dimes. Larry has also been active in community service, especially in his involvement with youth organizations. He is a member of the March of Dimes and Ed Wujek and Larry Calcaterra and their families the job of protecting babies would be that much more difficult.

I applaud the Southeast Michigan Chapter of the March of Dimes and Ed Wujek and Larry Calcaterra for their leadership, advocacy, and community service. I am sure that the Wujek and Calcaterra families are honored by the recognition and I urge my colleagues to join me in saluting them as the 1995 recipients of the "Alexander Macomb Family of the Year Award."

HON. MARK FOLEY
OF FLORIDA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to insert into the RECORD a speech by Ms. Marion P. Hammer. Ms. Hammer addressed the American Legion at their National Education Award Program. This speech discusses the Eddie Eagle Gun Safety Program for Children. The program was recognized by the American Legion for educating our Nation’s youth about right and wrong when it comes to firearms. I applaud Ms. Hammer for this program and for her excellent presentation.

SPEECH BY MARION P. HAMMER TO THE EDDIE EAGLE GUN SAFETY PROGRAM FOR CHILDREN

The American Legion and the National Rifle Association of America are perhaps the two most dedicated, patriotic, country-flag-Constitution-and-freedom loving organizations in America. And I am deeply honored to have an opportunity to stand before one of those organizations to represent the other. These organizations, founded in the bedrock of Liberty by former officers and enlisted men, dedicated themselves to principles of FREEDOM, PATRIOTISM and JUSTICE. Both organizations have become a part of the fiber and fabric of our nation’s history. The National Rifle Association of America, founded in November, 1871, has a distinguished history of education and training. Established to teach the skills of marksmanship and training to defend and protect our great nation and the Freedom provided by our Constitution, the NRA is the nation’s leader in firearms safety and training.

And, the NRA is the entity that stands watch over the Second Amendment—the amendment that guarantees our right to keep and bear arms and assures our ability to defend our nation and ourselves.

The American Legion, was conceived in March, 1919, at the Caucus in Paris, France by battle weary patriots waiting to return home from the physical battle to preserve the independence of the United States. Men and women who had given so much of themselves to our nation, were destined to continue their sacrifice as they organized to preserve our nation’s future in peace time as well as in battle.

The spirit and love of America beats strong in the hearts of our two great organizations that are committed to the future through the programs we provide for the youth of America.

In 1918, the words of William Tyler Page were adopted by the United States House of Representatives as the “AMERICAN CREED.” And within that creed are some very moving words. William Tyler Page wrote that this Nation was:

‘‘[E]stablished upon the principles of freedom, equality, justice and humanity for which American patriots sacrificed their lives and fortunes. I therefore believe it is my duty to my country to love it, to support its Constitution, to obey its laws, to respect its flag, and to defend it against all enemies.’’

Defend it against all enemies. Strong words with deep meaning. Because our forefathers carved America out of the wilderness, our nation has faced many enemies. American patriots for generations, have made many sacrifices for freedom. In 1918, in enemy Germany, my father added his name to the long role call of American patriots who have paid the ultimate price—who have given their lives to the cause of freedom. The role call is long, the sacrifices are many, and those of us who breathe freedom’s air today, owe them. And we owe the men and women who came home because the scars of battle were too great to continue in their footsteps. We owe it to them to carry America’s flag against our enemies until we can hand it over to the next generation.

Today, America has new enemies. Enemies that are tearing at the fabric of our heritage and our society. Those enemies are moral decay, disrespect, parental neglect, dependence on government, and phony quick fix government solutions to complex social problems.

America’s children are the victims of those enemies.

Because we love our country, our flag, our Constitution and our future, we have a duty to America’s youngsters. They are the future of America. We must love and nurture them. We must teach them values and strengths. Teach them discipline, self-reliance, respect and honor. Teach them to love America and what it stand for.

Through our youth programs and our youth programs, we are making a difference. And working together with other community groups we can make an even bigger difference.

The NRA’s Eddie Eagle Gun Safety program for young children is about much more than just teaching safety.

Youngsters learn safety but they also learn responsibility for guns and at the same time they learn respect for themselves when they gain knowledge.

They learn to resist temptation and not to touch a gun left carelessly unattended—that's discipline.

They learn to leave the area and make their friends and playmates leave the area—that's leadership.

They learn to quickly find and inform an adult of an unsafe situation—that's responsibility.

And when an adult has removed the gun and the area safe again, they learn pride and
Mr. Speaker, over the years, the Cleveland Council of Black Nurses has been a driving force in the health care arena. The organization has provided educational programs for nurses and the general public, and coordinated health-related community service activities. The organization has sponsored town hall meetings, health workshops, and screenings. These events have focused on diabetes education, cancer awareness, glaucoma and cardiovascular screenings, and other health issues which impact the black community. From a historical perspective, it is interesting to note that the blood pressure screening tests which are now conducted on citizens around the country, were first utilized in Cleveland by the Council of Nurses.

The Cleveland Council of Black Nurses has also played a leading role in the education field, providing scholarships, tutoring, and mentoring for students enrolled in nursing programs. The organization was the recipient of the 1994 Community Service Award for its extensive service to the Cleveland community.

Mr. Speaker, as I rise to salute the Cleveland Council of Black Nurses, Mattiedna Johnson, a dynamic and self-known individual who has devoted her life to greater health awareness and research, I also salute the organization's current president, Rachel Freeman, and the many members of the Council of Black Nurses. I am proud of my close association with this distinguished organization, and I extend my best wishes as the Council of Black Nurses marks this important anniversary.
of coal and steel production, two world wars requiring the greatest manufacturing efforts of the people and resources, were all challenging times during which South Park citizens endured and even relished each challenge. The area witnessed firsthand the rise of the common laborer in pay standards, working conditions, and safety in the workplace through the efforts of trade and labor organizations in the industries that continue today in South Park. Throughout its remarkable history the community of South Park has been known as home for many generations of hardworking and honorable citizens. The times have changed, but the people have remained true to their ideals and principles.

It is my wish that the people of the township of South Park recommit themselves to retaining all of the attributes unique to this historic part of America. I know this Congress and the Nation join me in saying: Congratulations, South Park, on the occasion of the 150th anniversary of the township. I encourage you to maintain your community pride and wish you well on the occasion of 150 years as a historically successful community which future generations will certainly emulate.

TRIBUTE TO MARY DYWER

HON. FLOYD SPENCE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to bring to the attention of my colleagues an article that appeared in the September 20, 1995, edition of The Lexington County Chronicle. I believe that this account of the impressions of a recently naturalized citizen, who resides in the Second Congressional District of South Carolina, is an eloquent statement of what it truly means to be an American.

ON BECOMING AN AMERICAN CITIZEN

(Mary Dywer, a Pirelli Cable employee in Lexington, shared these thoughts on her family’s naturalization at a recent Lexington County Toastmasters meeting.)

I am proud that I am a naturalized, certified, 100% American! It seems like just yesterday that my husband and our then 15-month-old son and I arrived at the airport in Atlanta on a 90° day and thought that the days couldn’t get hotter. How wrong we were!

We had gone through the bureaucratic machinery of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. We had completed reams of forms, been checked by the FBI, had provided police reports from every city we had lived in since we were 16 years old. We had gone through the complete medical exam including an AIDS test. We had prepared for our interview with the American Embassy by studying the geography, history, and current affairs of the United States. The only question we were asked was if we intended to go on welfare.

We paid hundreds of dollars to process our paperwork. We had sold our home, our cars, our furniture, packed our clothes, our books, our special memories, quit our jobs, waved good-by to our friends, kissed our families, and with mixed emotions embarked on our journey to the New World, as so many millions had done before.

We stood in line at the Atlanta airport, my son tired, hungry and crying in my husband’s arms while I held the envelopes containing our chest x-rays which we were told not to bend. I thought to myself the future was, how disheveled we were after the long eight-hour flight, and how humiliated I was standing like this waiting to be fingerprinted and issued a green card giving me the status of "resident alien." I questioned my adequacy as a mother. But the decision had been reached, the commitment made. It was time to extricate myself from self pity and face the consequences and responsibilities.

Then an Immigration and Naturalization Service agent picked us out of the long line and brought us to the INS office. She was a kind lady—an unbureaucratic bureaucrat. I had dreaded dealing with the INS. I recalled how nasty some INS agents at Kennedy Airport had been. An INS agent in Atlanta began my ever evolving understanding of the differences between Northerners and Southerners.

Since then, our understanding of several aspects of American life has been enhanced. I have eaten grits and okra, watched people shag, and been introduced to "Saturday Night Live" and "Gilligan’s Island." I’ve learned that a football game is not an oversize toilet. I gained first hand knowledge of medicine in this country after my husband severed his hand, our son, then three, had his finger severed, and one of the birth of our second son at Richland Memorial Hospital five years ago. I’ve volunteered with the Boy Scouts, Sistercare, United Way, and the March of Dimes. I’ve learned to drive on the right side of the road and how to express my dissatisfaction with other drivers. Through experience, I have realized that South Carolina is my home and I never want to stray.

We felt confident when we applied for our American citizenship in 1994. We completed reams of forms and sent lots of money to the INS. We attended classes and were tested on such things as: "Do you intend to overthrow the government of the United States of America?" We studied for our interview. In Charleston, a professional, competent and likable gentleman determined our ability to read and write English and told us he could find no reason why we could not become American citizens. We were thrilled and celebrated with Wendy’s hamburgers while we rushed back so that my husband could get to school on time. Education is important to us. That my husband could finish his degree part time was a major factor in coming here.

After about four months, we received notification that we would be sworn in as citizens in Charleston on July 26, 1995. We arrived early, only to be informed that we had neither family nor friends with whom to share this important day. How delighted and grateful we were to see that Louise Farley, of the Lexington County Toastmasters, and her daughter had made the journey from Lexington to add to our joy. This was the moment we had been waiting for for eight years.

The wonderful people of this country have made us feel welcome. But becoming an American cements that feeling of place and acceptance. I feel privileged that I can vote and will take every opportunity to do so.

TIMOTHY C. MCCAGHERN
CUSTOMS ADMINISTRATIVE BUILDING

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation to name the Ysleta/ Zaragosa Port of Entry after Timothy C. McCaghren, a Customs inspector who was tragically killed in the line of duty.

Customs Inspector Timothy C. McCaghren would be honored by having the U.S. Customs Administrative Building at 797 South Ysleta in El Paso, TX designated as the "Timothy C. McCaghren Customs Administrative Building."

Customs Inspector Timothy McCaghren, assigned to the Ysleta Port of Entry in El Paso, TX, attempted to stop a van at the port February 19, 1990. The driver of the van accelerated and ran the port, dragging Inspector McCaghren until he was flung from the vehicle.

Inspector McCaghren died the following day from a head injury sustained in the incident. He is survived by his wife, Dedra, and his children, Chastity and Brandt.

As the Speaker knows, I have fought to obtain law enforcement status for Customs inspectors. Customs inspectors are often our first line of defense against terrorists and the smuggling of illegal drugs. Many inspectors carry firearms and face a constant threat of severe bodily injury and death. A recent study showed that more Customs officers die due to service-related injuries than any other group with the exception of Drug Enforcement Administration and Bureau of Prisons officers. Earlier this session, I introduced legislation that would grant Customs inspectors a 20-year law enforcement retirement package. It is presently being considered by the House Committee on Government Reform and Oversight.

Customs Inspector Timothy C. McCaghren, a devoted father, will be remembered as a courageous, dedicated public servant. With every drug seizure Inspector McCaghren made, he would say, "That’s one load that won’t reach my kids." His passing is a tragic loss, not only for his family, but for the Nation.

Mr. Speaker, Timothy C. McCaghren deserves to be honored. The federal building named in his memory. I urge my colleagues to pass this legislation.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION.

The United States Customs Administrative Building at the Ysleta/Zaragosa Port of Entry located at 797 South Ysleta in El Paso, Texas, shall be known and designated as the "Timothy C. McCaghren Customs Administrative Building."

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the building referred to in subsection (a) shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Timothy C. McCaghren Customs Administrative Building".
TRIBUTE TO ST. MARY QUEEN OF PEACE CHURCH

HON. BART STUPAK
OF MICHIGAN
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer my sincere congratulations to St. Mary Queen of Peace Church in Kingsford, MI, as it celebrates the golden jubilee. This is certainly an important milestone in the history of St. Mary's, as well as the Kingsford community. I was pleased that I could be in Kingsford on August 12, 1945, with Bishop Garland, Bishop Schmitt, Father Nomellini, all clergy, and the parish community to celebrate 50 years of honoring God and serving God's people.

When St. Mary Queen of Peace Church was dedicated on August 12, 1945, amidst the splendor of a Catholic ritual, it was the culmination of many years of efforts by the local community. Prior to that time, there were two downtown parishes in Iron Mountain, St. Mary and St. Joseph. Local parishioners found that the distances that had to be traveled to St. Mary Mary Queen of Peace Church were a serious obstacle to attendance. It soon became clear, as the Kingsford area became more populated, that there was a need for a separate parish for Catholic families.

In 1946, working with the permission of his bishop, Rev. Arnold Thompson, Reverend Pelieser established a mission station in Kingsford Heights and placed in charge his assistant—your friend, my father's friend, and later the pastor of this parish—Rev. Arnold Thompson. As many of you know, and as I mentioned at Father Thompson's jubilee celebration in September, my father and my father were in seminary together. I am living proof that my father did not complete the seminary. My connection with this parish goes back even further, because my father taught Father Joe Gouin. Because of these ties, the Stupak family is always welcomed and made to feel part of the St. Mary Queen of Peace Family.

It was Reverend Thompson who impressed upon the people of this pioneer congregation their obligation in being the ground work for the future parish. In 1941, five lots were purchased, and by 1942, mass was being offered every Sunday in a local community building. When built in 1941 by the school, a school building was constructed in charge of the parish. In 1944, St. Mary Queen of Peace Church was dedicated, and Rev. Gerald Harrington was appointed as its first pastor.

The work of excavation began in August 1944 on the lots purchased in 1941, and the decorative cornerstone, containing documents of parish and national history, was laid in October. Many distinguished clergymen from the Midwest were present to celebrate the occasion.

On August 12, 1945, the beautiful church of St. Mary Queen of Peace Church was dedicated. Future pastors, including the second resident priest, Rev. Thomas Anderson, contributed to the internal decoration of the church, such as the striking stained glass windows.

Fifty years later, we are celebrating not only the construction of this church, but more important, we are paying tribute to the profound effect this church has had on the Kingsford community. This church and its theological leaders have provided spiritual guidance and religious education to this community for 50 years, and that is truly something to celebrate.

In 1995, this Nation is faced with a variety of problems that affect our families and our young people. That's why it is so important to have a center of worship. This church provides a foundation of faith that is necessary in today's society.

So today, I am pleased to pay tribute to the leaders of this church and its parishioners for the enormous contributions they have made to the Kingsford community and Marquette diocese. And I hope my family and I are invited back to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the St. Mary Queen of Peace Church.

I know my colleagues join me in honoring the parish community of St. Mary Queen of Peace Church as they celebrate their golden jubilee.

Passage of Team Act Makes Sense

HON. ROB PORTMAN
OF OHIO
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. PORTMAN. Mr. Speaker, yesterday the House passed H.R. 743, the Teamwork for Employees and Managers Act of 1995. This legislation represents a symbolic end to the era of confrontation between worker and employer and the dawn of a new era of mutual participation that will help secure our status as a world leader for decades to come.

Gone are the days when management's greatest adversary was located on the floor of its own company. Today, corporations, such as IBM, Texas Instruments, and Eastman Kodak, indicate that they could not compete internationally if it were not for tapping the creativity and knowledge of their own labor forces.

Unfortunately, rulings issued by National Labor Relations Board prohibited labor-management cooperation under the National Labor Relations Act. In essence, the NLRB barred employees from participating in the decisionmaking processes for issues that affect them directly. This, Mr. Speaker, is a throwback to the 1930s where union busting was common practice and employees were merely cogs in the machine. It is inconsistent with the 1990 workplace where the benefit of employee management cooperation is widely recognized by both sides.

The TEAM Act was created in an attempt to clarify to the NLRB and other Federal agencies the legality of these employee involvement structures. It permits an employer to interact with employees on matters of mutual interest. This legislation does not impede the right of employees to select their own representatives or their own bargaining agent. In fact, provisions were included in the act that specifically state no labor-management cooperation committees under the NLRA barred employees from participating in collective bargaining nor act as exclusive representatives of the employees.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be a cosponsor of legislation that will increase communication between management and employees. This can only enhance the reputation and productivity of companies and their employees. I believe the TEAM Act is a well-crafted vehicle to usher in a new era in employee management relations and congratulate my colleagues for writing and passing this legislation.

THE MEDICARE DEBATE

HON. BRIAN P. BILBRAY
OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. BILBRAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask that the following editorial from the San Diego Union Tribune, dated September 22, 1995, be inserted in the RECORD.

THE MEDICARE DEBATE
(By Brian Bilbray)
The current radio and television ad campaign employed to derail Medicare reform efforts renders one of media— a ridiculous script, unbelievable characters and a wildly exaggerated villain. If the big-labor-financed advertisements running against me in San Diego weren’t so distorted and outrageous they would be humorous.

But there is nothing funny about the impending bankruptcy of the health-care system upon which our American seniors now depend. However, the distortions and scare tactics surrounding the debate do a great disservice to seniors and those of us in Congress who wish to arrive at a reasonable solution to preserve the system.

As we begin to debate the specifics of Republican proposals to reform Medicare, we will keep in mind what the opponents of Medicare reform have forgotten. The future of Medicare depends upon a dialogue, not a shouting match. The real villains are those who cheapen the debate and contribute no ideas or solutions of their own.

The Medicare Preservation Act of 1995, introduced in the House of Representatives this week, is a starting point for debate, not the final product for reform. Since April, when President Clinton’s trustees warned that the system would be bankrupt by the year 2002, I have met with seniors, doctors and hospital administrators in San Diego. They provided me with input and ideas, which have become part of the proposal we are now debating in Congress.

The Republican plan is based upon the belief that individuals will make better choices about their health-care plans for the government. Seniors will be able to choose from the same types of health-care plans now found in the private sector. If a senior is now spending a great deal of out-of-pocket expense on MediGap insurance to cover prescription drugs, he or she can choose not to enroll in “traditional” Medicare and may instead want to pick a plan that includes drug coverage.

Seniors also will have an option of a “MediSave” program, in which a high-deductible policy and the government deposits money to cover that deductible in an interest-bearing account in a bank of their choice. This gives them complete control over their own decisions, without worrying about an insurer’s or Medicare’s payment policies.

The bill introduced this week also exposes the shamless use of scare tactics of the past few months which have alleged that premium costs for seniors enrolled in Medicare Part B will drastically increase. Today, seniors pay premiums that are 31.5 percent of Part B costs.

Under our proposal, doctors and hospitals will be allowed to form provider-service networks to cover Medicare benefits, without the insurance company or managed-care company as an intermediary. A group of doctors or hospitals functioning as a network will be required to make claims at a specified rate to market their services. Per-beneficiary contributions will be adjusted for age and other factors so that Medicare is providing funds according to need.

The health-care dollars spent by a senior in San Diego may be drastically different than those spent by a senior in Nashua, N.H.—our plan provides for this flexibility. Every Medicare provider must agree to take all patients and allow participants to stay in the plan as long as they want; no one will be shut out due to an illness or a pre-existing condition.

How do Republicans reduce Medicare’s rate of growth—one that has been running at hyperinflationary levels? Two ways: Increased health-care choices for seniors who will spend their dollars more efficiently, and increased competition between providers.

In addition, the Medicare Preservation Act will shrink the subsidy Medicare currently provides to more affluent seniors.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, a 65-year-old couple, both retiring this year, will collect $126,000 more from Medicare than they paid in during their working years.

For millions of seniors, this subsidy is vital to their retirement income security, but this is a luxury the taxpayers cannot afford for wealthier seniors. With incomes over $75,000 and couples with incomes over $150,000 will begin to pay higher premiums instead of receiving a subsidy from the taxpayers.

The scare tactics and misinformation campaign designed to derail Medicare reform will work in vain. How long can the system know that doing nothing to save Medicare is not an option. The calls I have received from seniors in San Diego have been overwhelmingly against the “Mediscare” advertisements.

As one woman from La Jolla asked, “How gullible do the labor unions think we are? Preservation of Medicare means reform, and as long as reform continues to involve dialogue with San Diegans, I have more confidence in the process.” I agree, and I urge opponents of Medicare reform to focus on the process of debate, don’t further debate the process.

IN MEMORIAM: THE OFFICE OF TECHNOLOGY ASSESSMENT, 1972-95

HON. AMO HOUGHTON
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. HOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, the Congressional Office of Technology Assessment [OTA], which served the Congress with such great distinction for more than 20 years, will close its doors on September 29, 1995. On behalf of all the Members of this body, I would like to express my deep appreciation to the more than 200 dedicated and talented individuals at OTA who served the Congress so well.

And I want to share with you a brief summary of their accomplishments.

As you know, OTA’s job was to provide the Congress with an objective, thorough analysis of many of the critical technical issues of the day. And that it did, providing cutting edge science in medicine, telecommunications, agriculture, materials, transportation, defense, indeed in every discipline and sector important to the United States. The agency appraised the costs and benefits of diverse technological systems: The computerization plans of Federal agencies; satellite and space systems; methods for managing natural resources; systems for disposing of wastes. The list is endless. But to mention a few:

OTA evaluated the environmental impacts of technology and estimated the economic and social impacts of rapid technological change. The agency offered sound principles for coping with, reaping the benefits of, that technological change, with a focus in the Federal Government’s work-place, and in our schools. The agency took on controversial subjects, examining them objectively and comprehensively for our benefit. It helped us to better understand complex technical issues by tailoring reports for legislative users. It provided us with early warnings on technology’s impacts and it enabled us to better oversee the science and technology programs within the Federal establishment.

While pulling issues down to practical grounds, OTA has usually revered the optimistic side. For example, OTA regularly spelled out its belief in the power of technology to improve our lives and help solve the Nation’s problems. It worked through a basic understanding of how technology works, how institutions need to change to accommodate new technology, how resistant to change such institutions can be when the conditions are wrong, and how swiftly they can adapt when the conditions are right. OTA helped us discover the conditions for change.

A SCENE WIDE AND DEEP

Once OTA was underway, it had 30–60 projects in progress published up to 55 reports, and started approximately 20 new projects each year. Its work ran the gamut of subject matter, with approaches tailored for each topic and congressional request. For examples:

In 1975, one OTA program began a comprehensive policy analysis of the Nation’s energy future, which it provided incrementally throughout the energy crisis. Between 1975 and 1980, another OTA group examined each key mode of transportation, in the context of the technology assessment of health care by demonstrating the inadequacy of information on which decisions about technology were made; laying out the strengths and weaknesses of methods to evaluate technology; and crystallizing the process by which economic tradeoffs could be incorporated in decisions.

In 1979, OTA expanded its work in agriculture to include all renewable resources and laid the foundation for others’ efforts on sustainable development and, later, ecosystem management.

One OTA group examined each key mode of transportation in turn, focusing especially on urban transportation; better and less expensive ways to move goods; and technologies which used less petroleum. Another OTA program tracked materials through their total life-cycle—from exploration and extraction through production to use, reuse, and eventual disposal. A third investigated policies related to the private use of Federal public lands and other resources, addressing questions of public equity, the responsibility of industry, and the long-term protection of the environment.

In sum, OTA brought new, old important science into the center of many congressional discussions. At times, OTA took part in high-profile debates on major pieces of legislation such as the 1980 Energy Security Act; Superfund; the Clean Air Act; and the Foreign Assistance Act. Also, the agency contributed to specific technical issues that puzzled non-technologists. For example, OTA worked to reform long-term African development; from acid rain to dismantling nuclear weapons; from the Strategic Defense Initiative to policy body armor. One study on global climate change helped Congress evaluate more than 313 pieces of legislation. At its busiest, OTA’s testimony for various committees averaged more than once a week.

The executive branch and State governments were not outside the OTA reach. OTA published the landmark work on computers in schools. This eventually led to support for teachers as the way to make the best investment in technology—a key policy change in education. OTA’s repeated work on the farm bill prompted important changes in the U.S. Department of Agriculture. And OTA’s comprehensive reports on nuclear waste management set out issues of technology and policy for both industry and the military.

CAREFUL ANALYSIS, SHARED WITH THE WORLD

In the course of every study, OTA accumulated vast amounts of raw information. By a rule of thumb, each project created a report with “value-added.” OTA staff excelled at identifying the principal strands of analysis, weighing the evidence of each, and synthesizing essential pieces. The creed of OTA was to come as close as possible to objective analysis. It was a point of pride when OTA’s reports were cited both by an issue’s defenders and its detractors, as happened most recently in debates regarding the North American Free Trade Agreement and Oregon’s Medicaid program.

The public and private sectors have recently discovered the benefits of organizing work around functional teams. OTA started with this model. It was used in every project. Team members came from different disciplines and backgrounds, with different experiences and perspectives, yet they always seemed to share a commitment to their product and not incidently to the American people.

When work took OTA into new subject areas, staff broke ground for new intellectual pursuits. This was true when OTA developed the apoint for methods to identify priorities for agricultural conservation. During OTA’s lifetime, “international interdependence” changed from slogan to reality. OTA was ahead of the curve, conducting international case studies and exploring the consequences of international security. In fact, between 1985 and 1990, OTA’s studies of the impacts of technology on the economy, environment, and security of the U.S.S.R. and Eastern Europe made clear that the demise of centrally planned economies is inevitable. As a result of all this, OTA gradually became recognized worldwide as the top institution of its kind. Representatives from about one-third of the world’s nations visited OTA one or more times to learn how OTA worked; how it became so valuable to Congress and the American people; and how these foreign nations might develop their own “OTAs.”

Austria, Denmark, the European Community, France, Germany, Great Britain, the Netherlands, and Sweden have copied or adapted the OTA style. Similar organizations are being discussed or formed in Hungary, Japan, Mexico, the People’s Republic of China, Russia, Switzerland, and Taiwan.

The above is simply the most visible aspect of OTA’s international impact. Visitors from other countries stopped by OTA almost every week to discuss specific technologies or technology-related issues. Several OTA staff spoke frequently about OTA in other countries. A number accepted temporary details to academic or government positions overseas. And students traveled abroad to teach short courses on technology assessment.

THE WRITTEN WORD

In its 24 years, OTA published nearly 750 full assessments, background papers, technical memoranda, case studies, and workshop proceedings. OTA reports were recorded as being “remarkably useful,” “thorough,” “comprehensive,” “rigorous.” At their best, OTA reports were among the most cited references on their subjects. “Landmarks,” they were called, “definitive,” and the “best available primers.” From 1992 to 1994, twelve assessments won the National Association for Government Communication’s prestigious Blue Pencil Award, successfully competing against as many as 850 other publications in a single year. In the same 3 years, 12 additional reports were named among the 60 Notable Government Documents selected annually by the American Library Association’s Government Documents Round Table—representing the best Federal, State, and local government documents from around the world.

In typical comments, the journal Foreign Affairs claimed that, “The Office of Technology Assessment does some of the best writing on security-related technical issues in the United States.” A former Deputy U.S. Trade Representative called OTA’s 1992 report on trade and the environment, “the Bible.” A Senator described OTA’s work on the civilian impacts of defense downsizing as “…a superb study and the standard by which all similar efforts will be judged.” And the head of one state’s plant protection agency described OTA’s study of non-indigenous species as “…a benchmark which will be the most heavily referenced document for years to come.”

OTA’s reports were often bestsellers at the Government Printing Office and the National Technical Information Service: GPO sold 48,000 OTA reports in 1980 alone. Commercial publishers reprinted at least 65 and translated two reports all or in part. The Superintendent of Documents selected 27 OTA reports to display in the People’s Republic of China in 1981. And OTA itself reissued reports that had unusual staying power. For example, OTA’s 1975 report on tanker safety and the prevention of oil spills was reissued in 1990 after the Exxon Valdez accident. Likewise, OTA combined the summaries of two particularly popular reports—on tropical forests and biological diversity—and reprinted them in 1992.

THE PEOPLE BEHIND THE PROJECTS

OTA staff represented every major field of science and technology, ranging from board-certified internists to Ph.D. physicists. OTA staff were sought out to serve their respective professional associations. A number were elected to offices or boards—the International Society for Technology Assessment, the International Association for Impact Assessment, the Association for Women in Development, the Ecological Society of America, etc. Two staff formed the Risk Assessment and Policy Association and others went on to found their own companies.

Above all else, OTA staff were teachers. As a result of their efforts, hundreds of thousands of people are better informed not only about science and technology but also about the structure and function of Congress. OTA served 60 staff to congressional committees and subcommittees each year. Thirty-one Senators and Representatives had the privilege to serve on OTA’s Technology Assessment Board and we became among the Congress’ most knowledgeable members on issues of science and technology.

Each year, at least several hundred advisory panelists and workshop participants also took part in OTA’s work. Some years, OTA tapped as many as 1,500 leaders from academia, non-governmental groups, State and local governments, and industry. OTA’s advisors were of different experience and said it made them more fit for decisionmaking in their own fields. Some were experts; some were stakeholders. Still other were members of the larger public. As early as 1975, OTA incorporated public participation and stakeholder involvement into a major study of offshore energy development. Nearly 15,000 people were involved. Later approximately 800 African farmers and herders were included in an evaluation of the United States-funded African Development Foundation.

In addition, OTA provided 71 scientists and engineers with a challenging and memorable year on Capitol Hill as Morris K. Udall Congressional Fellows or congressional fellows in health policy. Many of OTA’s younger employees gained a taste for research—and for public service—at OTA and went on to graduate school to become the next generation of business leaders, scientists, engineers, and policy analysts.

OTA’s record depended upon remarkable support staff as much as it did on the agency’s advisory staff. Their work was the standard against which other Government agencies were measured—and often found lacking. People came from around the world to attend OTA meetings—and often commented that OTA’s workshops were the most well supported, best organized, and most productive they had ever attended. Contractors were gratified by the ease with which their travel arrangements and invoices were handled. OTA processed hundreds of security clearances efficiently and without incident—without which OTA could not have continued working to the end. More than 30 reports will be delivered to requesting committees even after the doors are closed.

OTA soon will be a memory, and we will discover what is lost. But we can salvage something. Those of us who have used OTA reports know that most of them have long shelf lives. The really important issues—the issues OTA worked on—do not get solved and go away in one Congress. In January 1996, all of OTA’s reports will be issued on CD-ROM—OTA’s final legacy. We should be proud of it.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY SYSTEM DESIGNATION ACT OF 1995

SPEECH OF
HON. JOSEPH P. KENNEDY II OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, September 20, 1995

The House in Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2274) to amend title 23, United States Code, to designate the National Highway System, and for other purposes.

Mr. KENNEDY of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Lowey zero tolerance amendment to the national highway bill. At last, we have an amendment which will provide a Federal standard for making driving laws consistent with drinking laws. By restoring sensibility to our impaired driving laws, zero tolerance provisions make it illegal for underage persons to drink any amount of alcohol and then drive.

Driving inexperience and risk-taking behavior often leads teens to dangerous driving situations. If alcohol is introduced in the equation, it often becomes a deadly mixture. Research shows that young drivers are particularly susceptible to impaired judgment when driving under the influence of even small amounts of alcohol. A survey of Massachusetts teenagers who admitted consuming five or more drinks showed they were twice as likely to drive 20 miles over the speed limit, run red lights, and make illegal turns—and many without wearing their seat belts.

As of May 1995, 32 States and the District of Columbia have established lower blood alcohol contents [BAC’s] for youthful drivers. Such provisions should be indiscriminately applied across all State lines, sending a clear message to our Nation’s teens: If you are under 21 years old and are driving with any level of blood alcohol consumption, you will be considered impaired, and your driver’s license will be temporarily revoked.

Each year for the past decade, between 2,400 and 5,400 youths aged 15 to 24 were killed in alcohol-related crashes. If this amendment were adopted, it is estimated at least 375 single vehicle night fatal crashes would be prevented each year. These are more than just numbers—these are lives.

I applaud my colleague from New York, Ms. LOWEY, for her leadership in offering this amendment. I believe the time has come for us to engage in a national debate over the merits of formulating a new comprehensive alcohol policy. To that end, I am planning to offer a comprehensive alcohol bill in the coming weeks and would encourage my colleagues to lend their support. One provision of this bill parallels the ideas conveyed in the amendment we are debating today—establishing a national zero tolerance law for underage drinking drivers.

Responsible legislating can be manifested in various forms. Passing the Lowey zero tolerance amendment is the responsible thing to do. I urge my colleagues to adopt this amendment.

FLOWER SHOW SPONSOR EXHIBITS
MORE THAN LOVE OF FLOWERS
HON. SHERWOOD L. BOEHLERT
OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. BOEHLERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend to you John Hordines, who sponsors an annual flower show in my district at his farm in East Branch, NY. In his third year of running this flower show, which he does at his own expense, Mr. Hordines will have 31 entries from as far away as Florida and California. He does it for the love of flowers. And it’s evident that plenty of people in this country share his enthusiasm, since 20 million Americans raise flowers.

Mr. Hordines shows some qualities that I greatly admire: initiative, self-reliance, and generosity. His flower show, which is only open to amateurs, is a great example of these attributes. I encourage everyone to attend this year’s flower show, which will be on October 1.

MORE BEIJING THREATS
HON. DAVID FUNDERBURK OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. FUNDERBURK. Mr. Speaker, earlier in the year the House shamefully handed the aging rulers of Communist China another bloodless victory. The House, the Senate, and the President gleefully renewed legislation granting most favored nation trading status to Red China.

I said then and I say now that kowtowing to the old boys in Beijing is a stain on American honor. Communist China has murdered millions. It runs the world’s most sinister and extensive gulag. Its slave camps turn out textiles which put people in my State out of business. It continues systematic persecution of religious and political dissidents. The Beijing rulers even had the gall to arrest Chinese American freedom fighter Harry Wu and then threaten retaliation against American interests because President Lee’s response to the PRC: In a September 1 interview with Thomas Friedman of the New York Times, President Lee makes clear that “he is not seeking international recognition of Taiwan . . . to . . . heighten the threat that has been hanging over Beijing and Taipei.”

Results of the missile tests and personal attacks on Lee: Fear and panic throughout Taiwan. The stock market plummeted to a 20-month low. Land prices sagged. Also, the Taiwan dollar was hit a 4-year low of 27.38 to the U.S. dollar.

PRC’s motives: cutting support for President Lee Teng-hui and creating tensions in the Taiwan Straits before the island’s December parliamentary elections and next March’s presidential elections. Warning Taipeii not to try to raise its world status such as returning to the United Nations or practising “pragmatic diplomacy.”

PRC threats continue: The worst nightmare in Asia is a Chinese invasion of Taiwan. PRC regards Taiwan as a renegade province, and repeatedly warns that it reserves the right to use force to recover Taiwan.

Clinton administration’s response to China’s abandonment of the arms missile modernization program of any nation in the world. They are building and buying a blue water navy. They have recently completed a series of offensive missile tests off the coast of Taiwan.

Taiwan poses a military threat to the Beijing dictators. There is only one reason for the Communists to embark on a missile buildup. They are deathly afraid that free China, with its robust markets and its expanding democracy, will provide the world with a stark contrast to the crimes and deficiencies of the Communist dictatorship. They believe that their missile tests will intimidate free China and force it off the world stage. Of course, they don’t understand the mettle of free people.

Mr. Speaker, our State Department has turned a blind eye to the threat posed to all of Asia by Beijing. While the Communists arm, Fogg Bottom does business as usual. Enough is enough. It is time to finally take a stand and draw a line in the sand against Communist aggression before it is too late for our friends on Taiwan and across Asia.

Mr. Speaker, I have included for the House’s Consideration a chronology of Beijing’s latest series of threats against free China.

September 28, 1995 CONGRESSIONAL RECORD — Extensions of Remarks E1871
The Federal Government—and Congress—have a legitimate interest in knowing what is happening on a Federal transportation system. We are not preventing States from doing what they want, but we and the States have a responsibility to know and squarely face the consequences. We and the States need the facts. This report will provide the data and help guide future decisions. I urge my colleagues to support the amendment.

TRIBUTE TO FRANK REDMILES

HON. ROBERT A. BORSKI
OF PENNSYLVANIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. BORSKI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of Frank Redmiles, a man who has dedicated 45 years of his life to bettering his family, his community, and the lives of tens of thousands of working men and women throughout Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and New York.

Frank Redmiles is retiring from four decades of toil and service in behalf of the men and women of the United Auto Workers. And while he may have had the active service, his legacy is certain to live on and inspire future generations of labor advocates.

From the very beginning of his working life, in 1950 at the former ITE Circuit Breaker Co. in Northeast Philadelphia, Frank Redmiles was a union man. He began in the then-independent union, the ESU, which later affiliated with the United Auto Workers.

He started out, like so many advocates, as a shop steward. He served 12 years on the United Auto Workers' negotiating committee. He became chairman of that committee.

Frank Redmiles was in the forefront of the affiliation of the ESU with the United Auto Workers in 1969. He served as a trustee and as shop chair, and then was elected president of UAW Local 1612—a post he held for 7 years.

In 1979, Mr. Redmiles was appointed as an international representative of the UAW for southeastern Pennsylvania, and in 1985, he reached the pinnacle of his union advocacy when he was appointed Pennsylvania area director of region nine of the UAW—a post from which he represented the interests of more than 75,000 working men and women.

The 1980's, as we all know, were difficult economic times for working men and women in the United States. The constant pressures from foreign companies and foreign competition fell particularly hard on the automobile industry, and the workers of the UAW felt those pressures and hard times.

But through every one of those difficult days, months and years, Frank Redmiles never stopped fighting. He never stopped fighting for fair and equitable contracts for his rank and file. He never stopped fighting for a living wage. And he never stopped fighting to save the jobs of American workers.

And, while Mr. Redmiles was serving as such a tireless advocate for UAW workers, he was also finding time to serve his larger community and his state. He served on the Pennsylvania Mayor's Scholarship Advisory Committee, and he served on the city's zoning board as well, eventually as chairman. In addition, he served on the board of the Ben Franklin Partnership, and in 1992 he was appointed to serve on the transition team of Mayor Edward G. Rendell.

Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for the opportunity to bring to the House's attention the life story and public service of Frank Redmiles, a man whose 45 years of advocacy are an inspiration to the working men and women of the United Auto Workers do much justice to the historic legacy of a proud American labor organization.

I told the agency heads back in January that Alaskans had suggested the type of proposal that I am making today. I told them that I was considering a proposal that would transfer their lands. I asked that they improve their policies and decision making on our national forests and public lands so that we improve the Tongass and the lives of Alaskans. I asked that they improve their policies and decision making on our national forests and public lands so that we improve the Tongass forest in south east Alaska.

As shop chair, and then was elected president of UAW Local 1612—a post he held for 7 years.

Mr. YOUNG of Alaska. Mr. Speaker, throughout the West, a growing frustration with Federal land barons and their policies is rekindling the sagebrush rebellion. Nowhere are Federal land decisions more destructive to families and hard working people than in the 17 million acre Tongass forest in southeast Alaska.

In a forest that large it should be easy to balance the uses and make people happy, but the Federal Government has failed miserably.

The bill that I am introducing today gives Alaskans a chance to take control of their future in the Tongass National Forest. Today I propose a way to end the continuing Tongass brawl and give Alaskans a chance to resolve their differences at home.

When this bill becomes law, and the Alaska State Legislature and our Governor take advantage of the transition and in the bill, the forest owner of the Tongass National Forest automatically transfers to the State of Alaska. One year later when the transition period expires, management of the Tongass will be in the capable hands of Alaskans. Everyone will have a better chance of stability.

I have no choice but to make a proposal to liberate the Tongass and the Alaskans so adversely affected by the current Federal policies and requirements in the Tongass.

Since statehood, it has never been worse in the Tongass.

Nobody is happy. It takes 3 years for tourism operators to get access permits in a 17 million acre forest. Leaders in fishing groups complain existing protection for fisheries are not enforced. Crabbers fight for space and permits to store their crab pots. Cabin permits become Federal issues when simple improvements are made. Millions of dollars are spent on studies that produce no conclusions and call for more money for more studies. Even the environmentalists are so unhappy with decisions in the Tongass that they continually appeal and sue the agency.

Time after time, the Federal Government has failed those who rely on the Tongass. Congress has withdrawn 6 million acres in the Tongass only to have the agency propose even more land withdrawals. A series of new Federal laws and more impossible regulations are added.

Alaskans in the Tongass are frustrated with the leadership of the U.S. Forest Service, particularly the political appointees who control it. While they are appointed by the President, Alaskans, their decisions produce no real benefit to the environment or to fish and game and do not consider the needs of people.
timber, any federally controlled property currently held within the states admitted to the Union since 1802.

Just last week, the Southeast Conference passed a resolution supporting the concept of transferring the Tongass to the State of Alaska. This Southeast Conference resolution stated:

Now, therefore be it resolved, that Southeast Conference supports the concept of transferring the Tongass National Forest to the State of Alaska, thereby allowing maximum self-determination by the people of Alaska in resolving existing conflicts and bringing stability to our region.

I also heard from Alaskan families who now suffer as a result of Federal policies in the Tongass. People like the Gardners wrote me. They said:

Dear Don Young: My husband and I moved here to Alaska about 6 years ago so we would not have to worry about him losing his job in the logging industry, and every since . . . it seems like a lot of really good people are being put out of work. It just doesn’t make a lot of sense to me why (the mills are closing.) If we only logged 4% of the Tongass National Forest in 40 years, don’t you think there is plenty to go around? Please help us keep the logging and mills and all of the families working.

Sincerely,

SHANNON, STIVE, AND AMBER GARDNER.

My proposal is in line with what the Governor desires, is more modest than the Alaskan Legislature urged, brings decisions in the Tongass closer to those like the Gardners, and is exactly what the Southeast Conference urged in a resolution adopted last week.

This bill is a starting point. Critics and supporters of this fact. It is a draft, a discussion piece so to speak, but it is a serious proposal. It is a proposal that I am making because the Federal Government has failed those like the Gardners and hundreds of others who write to me about what is going on in the Tongass. I have included at the close of my remarks a sampling of other letters from timber families in the Tongass.

The business of transferring an entire 17 million acre forest to a State is a complex matter. How to make the best transition to State ownership raises complicated issues. It may take some time to refine the details and I do not want to leave anyone with the impression that this is a quick fix solution.

We have talked to Alaskans about many issues raised by my bill and arrived at the draft proposal that I am introducing today. My staff and I will talk further with Alaskans at this draft proposal circulates.

We may not have thought of the best solution for every issue, but I am anxious to hear thoughtful suggestions from Alaskans and others on how to best modify the bill to ease the transition.

To be clear, we aim to get the Federal Government out of our business in the Tongass, to give decisions to Alaskans, and to accomplish this with a minimum of Federal strings attached.

Before my committee takes action on the bill, we will hold hearings. We will give Alaskans and others a chance to provide thoughtful analysis of how the transition from Federal to State ownership should work. I look forward to this hearing. It is an important one.

So that my proposal for Alaskans is understood, the following summary of the bill may be useful. In addition, I ask for unanimous consent that the full text of the bill and other material appear in the RECORD immediately following the summary.

SUMMARY OF THE TONGASS TRANSFER AND TRANSITION ACT

TONGASS TRANSFER PROCESS

Within 10 years of enactment, the State of Alaska shall make a transfer of all of the Tongass National Forest lands.

The election is made when the legislature passes and the governor signs a bill that says: (1) the transition to statehood takes place, (2) the land is transferred subject to valid existing rights, (3) the procedures and transition provisions of the Act apply to the transfer, and (4) the state will respect the rights guaranteed under ANCSA.

Once such a bill is passed by the legislature, signed by the governor, and the Secretary of Agriculture, transfer of all of the United State’s interest in the Tongass National Forest is automatically transferred to the State of Alaska.

At the Forest Service one “transfer-transition” period begins, during which a patent (title) to the Tongass is prepared by the Secretary and several transition issues are worked on between the State and other parties. Finally, at the end of the transfer-transition period, the Secretary delivers the Tongass patent on the “patent date.” During the transfer-transition period, the Forest Service still manages the Tongass and federal law still applies. Beginning on the patent date, the State of Alaska manages the forest and Alaska law applies to land in the Tongass with limited exceptions. On the patent date, the State generally becomes responsible for handling federal obligations (such as leases, permits, licenses, and contracts). Basically, the State assumes federal obligations.

TRANSITION ISSUES

Several specific issues are also addressed during the transfer-transition period:

Forest Service Employees—During the one year transfer-transition period, the State of Alaska must interview each person employed by the Forest Service for purposes of reemployment with the State of Alaska’s new administrative management system for the Tongass.

Timber Receipts to the Federal Treasury—For ten years, 25 percent of the net timber receipts for all timber sold in the Tongass is paid to the U.S. Treasury by the State of Alaska.

Alaska Pulp Corporation Contract—During the one year transfer-transition period, the State of Alaska is required to negotiate a new APC contract with APC and within six months of the patent date, conclude an agreement that reinstates the APC contract. The agreement must include provisions that do not change the APC lawsuit against the federal government and it requires the sale of the contract to a private third party who agrees to construct a manufacturing facility in southeast Alaska that utilizes pulp-graded logs.

Landless Natives—The State of Alaska is required to negotiate with the landless native communities and to reach agreement that allocates between 23,040 and 46,080 acres to the native communities. This land will be transferred for purposes of historical, cultural, economic, and subsistence use. Any timber harvested from such lands must receive priority over non-natives.

Subsistence—The transfer of the Tongass will not affect subsistence use or management under title VIII of ANILCA. The bill requires federal management of subsistence on transferred Tongass lands until Alaska state law complies with title VIII of ANILCA.

Landless Natives—The State of Alaska is required to negotiate with the landless native communities and to reach agreement that allocates between 23,040 and 46,080 acres to the native communities. This land will be transferred for purposes of historical, cultural, economic, and subsistence use. Any timber harvested from such lands must receive priority over non-natives. If it is exported from Alaska, Agreement must be reached within one year of the patent date.

Tongass Timber Receipts For Local Governments.—For ten years after the patent date, the State of Alaska must allocate 5 percent of the net timber receipts from the Tongass directly to the boroughs, municipalities, and local governments for schools, educational materials, and community roads.

Ketchikan Pulp Contract—Beginning on the patent date, all federal obligations arising from the KPC timber sale contract shall become obligations of the State of Alaska. All benefits resulting from the KPC timber sale contract shall become benefits flowing to the State of Alaska.

Mining Claims—Federal mining claims are given the option, for 15 years, of holding title to the claims under the State of Alaska’s mining law. The claimholder can then apply to the State to convert such a claim to a State claim.

Timber Road Fund—All timber receipts collected during the one year transfer-transition period are paid to the State of Alaska for a timber road program fund.

Timber Exports—The State of Alaska must prohibit export of unprocessed saw, utility, and pulp logs originating in the Tongass for a minimum of ten years.

SOUTHEAST ALASKA PUBLIC OPINION SURVEY—A SURVEY MEASURING PUBLIC OPINION ON THE TONGASS NATIONAL FOREST TIMBER INDUSTRY TRANSFERRING OWNERSHIP OF THE TONGASS TO THE STATE

Transferring ownership of the Tongass from the federal government to state government is an appealing idea for most Southeasterners. Across the region 55% favor transferring ownership to the State. One in ten (11%) are unsure, probably reflecting uncertainty about how management priorities would change.

Among all areas of the region, supporters of the transfer outnumber those in opposition. Juneau offers the lowest level of support (47% in favor versus 40% who oppose), Outside of Juneau, supporters outnumber opponents (60% versus 29%). Wrangell and Ketchikan lead the supporters with 76% and 65% in favor, respectively. Southeast’s rural areas support the transfer with 59% in favor versus 31% opposing.

A resolution relating to federally held property in those states, including Alaska, admitted to the Union since 1802.

Be it resolved by the legislature of the State of Alaska:

Whereas the original 13 colonies and the original 31 states, including Alaska, admitted to the Union since 1802, and (4) the state will respect the rights guaranteed under ANCSA. It is a proposal that I am making to assure that this is a quick fix solution.
WHEREAS all but two states admitted to the Union since 1802 were denied the same rights of land ownership granted the state admitted earlier, and

WHEREAS art. 1, sec. 8, of the Constitution of the United States of America makes no provision for land ownership by the federal government, other than by purchase from the states, "for the erection of forts, magazines, arsenals, dock-yards, and other needful buildings"; and

WHEREAS acting contrary to the provisions of art. 1, sec. 8, of the Constitution of the United States, the federal government withheld property from the states admitted since 1802, making them land poor and unable to determine their own land use and development policies; and

WHEREAS this action has made those states admitted since 1802 unequal to other states and subject to unwarranted federal control; and

WHEREAS restoration of property to which they are historically and constitutionally entitled would empower the land poor states to determine their own land use policies;

Be it resolved, That the Alaska State Legislature urges the 104th Congress of the United States to rectify this wrong and to transfer to the states, by fee title, any federally controlled property currently held within the states admitted to the Union since 1802; and be it Further resolved, That the Congress is urged to then purchase from the newly empowered States land needed to meet the provision of art. 1, sec. 8, United States Constitution.

Copies of this resolution shall be sent to the Honorable Strom Thurmond, President Pro Tempore of the U.S. Senate; the Honorable Robert Dole, Majority Leader of the U.S. Senate; the Honorable Newt Gingrich, Speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives; to members of the delegations in Congress of those States admitted to the Union since 1802; to the Honorable Ted Stevens and the Honorable Frank Murkowski, U.S. Senators; and to the Honorable Forrest McClellan, U.S. Representatives, members of the Alaska delegation in Congress.

SOUTHEAST CONFERENCE, Juneau, AK.

A RESOLUTION SUPPORTING THE CONCEPT OF TRANSFER OF THE TONGASS NATIONAL FOREST TO THE STATE OF ALASKA

RESOLUTION 95-12

WHEREAS, the existing 1979 Tongass Land Management Plan has been under revision since 1989, and;

WHEREAS, this lack of finality in the planning process has lead to instability in the economy and communities of southeast Alaska, and;

WHEREAS, national political input to the Tongass land management planning process has been a key problem in efforts to resolve conflicts on the Tongass;

WHEREAS, southeast Alaska households believe the timber industry is an important part of the region’s economy, and;

WHEREAS, Southeast Conference believes that transfer of the Tongass National Forest to the people of Alaska is an important element in the quality of life in southeast Alaska;

Now, therefore, be it resolved, That Southeast Conference supports the concept of transferring the Tongass National Forest to the State of Alaska, thereby allowing maximum self-determination by the people of Alaska in resolving existing conflicts and bringing stability to our region.

PUNCH DRUNK AFTER ONLY ONE ROUND?

HON. CYNTHIA A. MCKINNEY
OF GEORGIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Ms. MCKINNEY. Mr. Speaker, I am outraged and dismayed that the Voting Rights Section of the United States Justice Department seems punch drunk after only one round. Is it that the lawyers over there have forgotten the rich and violent heritage that resulted in their employment?

The Voting Rights Act was won only after tears had been shed and blood had been split. People died for the passage of the Voting Rights Act. And that our country could survive the turmoil and emerge a better place for all of us is a tribute to our strength.

But the Justice Department is about to let us down. The headline in yesterday's Atlanta Constitution just about tells it all: Another majority-black district in jeopardy.''

Anybody can be a star when times are good. It was adversity that made Dr. Martin Luther King the strength of a nation. It was adversity that made John Lewis a hero to us all.

Dr. Turner has been honored by many community groups, including: the NYC Bureau of Child Welfare, the United Builders Association, the Boy Scouts of America, and the YMCA.

Dr. Turner has a B.A. from Gordon College, an M.S. from Biblical Seminary of New York City, an M.T.S. from New York Theological Seminary; and a D.Min. from Drew University. He is the author of "Compassion for the City," used throughout the country as a textbook for students pursuing urban ministry.

STATEMENT OF CAROL ANN DEVINE AS READ BY BIANCA JAGGER AT THE CONGRESSIONAL HUMAN RIGHTS CAUCUS ON SEPTEMBER 27, 1995

HON. ROBERT G. TORRICELLI
OF NEW JERSEY
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Thursday, September 28, 1995

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following statement and recommend it to my colleagues:

On June 8, 1990, my husband, Michael Vernon De Vine, was kidnapped and almost beheaded as one of the victims of the Guatemalan military. Michael was a kind, gentle, and honest man. He devoted himself to our family and our business, and was a good friend to our neighbors in Pop„n, Peten, where we lived. He was not politically active.

After Michael's assassination, many wonderful people supported our children and me in our efforts to find out who killed Michael and why, and to bring to justice those responsible for his murder. Remarkably, six soldiers were convicted and sentenced to 30 years in prison. One officer, Captain Hugo Contreras, was also convicted. The day that he was sentenced, Captain Contreras was allowed to escape from the military base at which he was held. As far as I know in Guatemala, no other officer was held responsible. Anyone at all familiar with Guatemalan justice knows that it would be impossible for a group of low-ranking Guatemalan soldiers to travel by army vehicle 100 kms, as Michael's killers did, to murder a U.S. citizen without orders and promises of protection from their superiors. Several officers, including Colonels Guillermo Portillo Gomez, Julio Roberto Alpirez, and Mario Roberto Garcia Cataluna, were clearly ordering the murder or the attempted cover-up, but they were never brought to justice.

In March of this year, I was stunned to learn that Congressman Robert Torricelli received information that Colonel Alpirez, whom we had always suspected of involvement, had indeed been a paid asset of the CIA, and had been involved in the assassination and why, and to bring to justice those responsible for his murder. The full implications of what he said and why the CIA continued its relationship with Colonel Alpirez after having information that he was connected to Michael's assassination. We also do not know why the CIA eventually decided to terminate its relationship with Alpirez.

In addition, the summary report makes no mention of facts which have already been publicly established, such as Alpirez's role in facilitating the murder by providing the assassins with a place to stay, and attempting to cover up military responsibility. This omission is quite misleading, and appears to be, indirectly, to be cast Alpirez in a positive light. I also believe that it is misleading for the CIA to say that it is not aware of any information that its 'employees' were involved, while failing to mention paid assets such as Alpirez.

Equally troubling is the CIA's failure to release its full report. It is obviously impossible to form conclusions in the summary report without knowing the basis for those conclusions. How can I or anybody else be confident that there was no involvement of Colonel Alpirez's role in ordering Michael's murder, or that there is no other information about CIA wrongdoing, without at least knowing what the full report contains? The full implications of what he said and why the CIA continued its relationship with Alpirez.

In March of this year, I was stunned to learn that Congressman Robert Torricelli received information that Colonel Alpirez, whom we had always suspected of involvement, had indeed been a paid asset of the CIA, and had been involved in the assassination and why, and to bring to justice those responsible for his murder.
I gather that a number of people who have seen the full CIA report believe it to be unsatisfactory in many respects. Based on the contents of the CIA’s summary report, I can well imagine that the full report is seriously flawed. I hope that all of you here today will encourage the CIA to conduct further investigations and to release publicly the full 700-page report so that answers can be provided to the many unresolved questions in the case.

The inadequacy of the CIA’s investigation and its failure to disclose the basis for its findings makes me seriously doubt how much I, or the United States and Guatemalan people, will ever really learn about what happened, and the role of the United States or its intelligence assets. One of the unfortunate effects in Guatemala of the CIA summary report is that Colonel Alpirez is now being publicly vindicated of all involvement. In addition, last month a Guatemalan appeals court upheld a military court ruling that cleared Colonel Garcia Catalan of any connection to Michael’s murder. Despite strong evidence that Garcia Catalan authorized Michael’s kidnapping and assassination or at least participated in the cover-up, the appeals court held that since an earlier trial had already resulted in convictions, there was no basis to proceed with charges against Garcia Catalan.

The results of my FOIA requests have been as discouraging to me as the CIA summary report. I have received complete denials, on a variety of grounds, from the DEA, Interpol, and the Attorney General. The DEA has acknowledged that it has documents on Colonel Alpirez, but that it still will not release them because, for example, disclosure “may constitute an unwarranted invasion of personal privacy,” reveal the identity of a source, or relate to internal practices or policies of the DEA. I have received nothing, other than receipts for my requests, from the Department of Defense, the State Department, and the National Security Council. To date, the only documents I have received from any agency are a transcript from the CIA of William Studeman’s statement at the open hearings held on April 5th by the Senate Select Intelligence Committee, and copies of two cables from Interpol which explain nothing.

I love Guatemala, but many terrible things happen there to innocent people. I believe that terrible things will continue to happen, and that there will never be real peace until the guilty parties are held accountable for their acts. For the sake of the people of Guatemala and the United States, as well as for my family. I ask all of you here today to press the Clinton administration for meaningful investigations, the fullest disclosure possible, and the declassification of all documents related to Michael’s assassination.

Although my once unshakeable faith in the U.S. Government has been deeply challenged, I still want to believe that the government will do the right thing. I can see no good reason why my children and I should be prevented from knowing at least what our government knows about the facts of my husband’s murder, and all those who played a part in ordering his execution, carrying it out, or covering up the true circumstances.

Thank you for your interest and support.
