PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 141

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1995

No. 188

House of Representatives

The House met at 12:30 p.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore [Mr. BARR].

DESIGNATION OF SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
November 28, 1995.

I hereby designate the Honorable BOB BARR to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

NEWT GINGRICH,

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

MORNING BUSINESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of May 12, 1995, the Chair will now recognize Members from lists submitted by the majority and minority leaders for morning hour debates. The Chair will alternate recognition between the parties, with each party limited to not to exceed 30 minutes, and each Member except the majority and minority leader limited to not to exceed 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] for 5 minutes.

WHAT IS AT STAKE IN BALANCING THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. GOSS] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, much has been said on this floor and on TV screens in American households—and much has been written in newspapers across the country—about the alleged dangers of shrinking Government and cutting spending. The rhetorical warfare playing itself out among the partisan politics and the Presidential ambitions understandably has many Americans concerned. Big changes can be scary—and that fact has given comfort to those whose mission it is to preserve the status quo, whether the status quo is working or not, whether status quo is affordable or not. But I am convinced that most Americans are ready for the big changes we need to bring our Federal budget into balance. I am also convinced that most Americans see the real danger before us—the danger of doing nothing. Americans understand what is at stake in this debate. The facts are indisputable: We are on an unsustainable trend, spending more than we have. We are more than $5 trillion in debt. Seventy years ago, at his inaugural, Calvin Coolidge said:

The men and women of this country who toil are the ones who bear the cost of the Government. Every dollar that we carelessly waste means that their life will be so much the more meager. Every dollar that we prudently save means that their life will be so much the more abundant. Economy is idealism in its most practical form.

I am mindful of my new grandchild, born just a few weeks ago. Because we failed to heed the advice of Coolidge and so many of our Nation's greatest leaders, that baby already carries on his tiny shoulders a lifetime share of the interest payment on the national debt totaling $187,000. That's the bill we are sending to every baby born this year just to pay the debt service for our failure to bring spending into line. Spending is the problem. We spend too much. Looking at it from another view, think about this: If we don't take the steps necessary to make annual deficits a thing of the past by 2002, as we are trying to do, we will be paying more every year for interest on our debt than we spend for our national defense.

The President of the United States went on television last night to talk to us about what a tough place the world is, and we are having a great debate about how we spend, but nobody denies we need moneys for national defense and we are spending more on interest payments than we are on national defense. The new leadership in this Congress has signaled that enough is enough. We must control spending. We have gone to the mat in order to implement the big changes needed to bring the budget into balance within 7 years. Balancing the budget will mean that Americans will see lower interest rates—making homes and cars and higher education more affordable. Unshackling the economy from its massive debt will boost productivity—creating millions of new jobs. Per capita incomes will rise and Federal revenues will increase as a result. There should be no need for tax increases—in fact, we will have more opportunities to reduce the Federal tax bite so that Americans can keep more of their hard earned tax dollars.

Mr. Speaker, no one enjoyed the partial Federal shutdown we saw before Thanksgiving. All agree that we must settle our major philosophical disagreements before the next major deadline of December 15, so we can avoid a repeat of that anxious time. But we cannot paper over the very real differences that exist between those of us who believe we must balance the budget within 7 years and those who do not see any urgency about reaching that goal. It is something like the irresistible force of reform hitting up against the immovable object of status quo. Given the tendency of this administration to watch the public opinion polls, the best way to bring about the right conclusion is for the American people to make their voices heard about their commitment to balancing the budget.

Certainly the cards, the letters, the calls that are coming into my office are overwhelmingly in support of the concept of getting our spending under control and balancing our budget in 7 years. I think that is probably true in every congressional office. I hope it is true at the White House, and I hope Americans will not lose patience and will keep sending those messages, because now is the time we are going to balance the budget for the United States of America and get spending under control so every baby is not born with the prospect of $187,000 of interest payments alone in his or her lifetime.

ENGLISH-ONLY LEGISLATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Guam [Mr. UNDERWOOD] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I want to address the House on the issue of English only, making English the official language of the United States.

Mr. Speaker, mandating English as the official language of the United States is unnecessary, resolves no particular problem of Government, and communicates a negative divisive message to the society about people who speak other languages. We all acknowledge that English is the common language. In fact, 97 percent of Americans over the age of 5 speak English. And every immigrant to this country recognizes this also. In fact, today's immigrants learn English faster than previous immigrant generations.

A variety of official language legislation has been introduced in the 104th. Some of these bills are less intrusive than others, but most of them include provisions similar to section 2 of H.R. 739, the Declaration of Official Language Act, which states that all communications by Federal officials and employees with U.S. citizens "shall be in English." This implies that English-only improves Government efficiency. In fact, just the opposite is true. Language restrictions will make carrying out the functions of Government more cumbersome in the few instances where languages other than English are used. In fact 99.96 percent of all Federal Government documents are printed in English according to GAO.

Members of this House would feel the burden of this legislation if it ever became law. Under English-only provisions I would be breaking the law if I wrote a letter to one of my constituents in the indigenous language of our island of Guam. My staff would be breaking the law if they spoke to a constituent in a language other than English. Many of our congressional offices would become less effective if forced to speak only English.

English-only advocates further claim that language is what binds us together as a nation. I maintain rather that our unity as a nation is rooted in common beliefs and values, as well as a common language. It is these distinctive American values that bind us together as a people.

There are those in this country who feel it necessary to declare English as an official language in a symbolic way, but I want to remind Members of this House that most of this English-only legislation goes far, way beyond symbolism.

English-only legislation solves no real problem either in the Government or among U.S. citizens. What this kind of legislation does is stigmatize users of other languages as somehow not being quite American enough and discourages the cultivation of our linguistic resources. How can we value multilingualism, and simultaneously discourage the environment which would allow it to flourish. This country needs to develop not stifle our linguistic resources to compete in a global economy. This legislation communicates the wrong message. It tells citizens to speak only English while at the same time, American businesses seek persons with foreign language skills in order to maintain a competitive edge in today's global economy, and higher education degrees mark the truly educated as those who are multilingual.

In Arizona, English-only legislation has already been determined unconstitutional because it required all government officials to "act" only in English. This clearly inhibited the free speech of these employees. I find it ironic that those who fight for devolution, States rights, and limited government, also fight for English-only which takes power from the States and hands it over to the Federal Government. Further, it mandates that the Government infiltrate our private lives by regulating how we talk. This is the ultimate in Government intrusion and runs counter to the mood of the country which is to deregulate Government, to get Government out of our lives as free citizens. Nowhere did I hear a cry to regulate language, to regulate speech.

H.R. 739 also states that the Government "shall promote and support the use of English for communications among U.S. citizens." Provisions like this go far beyond encouraging the learning of English and move toward English-only, not English first but English-only. We make a distinction between attitudes. Frivolous litigation, which would no doubt follow such a law, would flood our already overburdened court system with claims such as: "I was spoken to in Spanish by a Government employee." "I heard them talking in Chinese on Government time." "The Government isn't doing enough to promote English." And on and on. Citizens will be permitted to sue for monetary relief based on these claims of linguistic abuse.

Because it solves no problems, English-only legislation which seeks to regulate language seems to be giving life to the social forces of resentment.

This resentment could stem from a rise in the number of foreign accents we hear day-to-day or the increase in the use of languages other than English. This kind of resentment is not based on a need to improve communications between individuals or their Government, but is based on a fear of the growing foreignness in our midst.

Recently, proponents of English-only have tried to frighten us by comparing America with Canada. They tell us that if we reject English-only, portions of America will again attempt secession from the United States. Every country has a different history and those who attempt to draw this comparison display an ignorance of the Quebec situation. In Canada, official languages were written into the original legal framework. It is because of legal language restrictions on languages that Canada finds herself divided. I doubt Americans want to create a bureaucracy to enforce language policy like our northern neighbors have.

English-only legislation is potentially dangerous because it encourages nativism, raises constitutional issue about free speech and empowers the Federal Government to regulate—for the first time in our country's 219-year history—how Americans speak. The message of English-only legislation cannot be that English should be America's common language because it already is. Is the message then that we are less than those who speak only English? For those of us with different mother tongues, it is not at all incompatible to practice the continuance of a mother tongue, to be a good American, and recognize that the lingua franca is English.

As Congress considers English-only measures, I urge my colleagues to consider the implications of such legislation and the message it will send to this Nation of immigrants.

Mr. Speaker, I urge every Member to take a close look at this legislation and examine it, and see it for what it is worth.

RECOMMENDING A LOBBYING DISCLOSURE BILL WITH NO AMENDMENTS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, today the House will resume consideration of the Lobbying Disclosure Act. As we resume consideration of this bill, we have a historic opportunity to pass a lobbying disclosure bill and send it to the President for his signature. We need to do that. For 40 years the Congress has been grappling with this issue unsuccessfully. We have seen 40 years of gridlock on the subject of lobbying disclosure reform. It is time that we end this gridlock and move forward.

When the House begins its consideration later today of this bill, we will vote on four amendments. I want to bring the Member's attention to the substance of these amendments and urge that the Members reject these and all other amendments to the lobbying reform bill.

The Washington Post summed the situation up in an editorial that appeared yesterday. The headline says "Amending Lobby Reform to Death." The editorial says, "The question now is whether the House will pass this bill and send it to the President or gum it up with amendments that would force a House-Senate conference and delay enactment indefinitely. The Senate lobbying bill is worth passing, as written, and its enactment should not be delayed any further. The House should vote down the various amendments and send the bill straight to the President.

We need to focus on the task that is before us. That is the task of passing lobbying disclosure reform. I have some comments on the particular amendments. The first amendment we will vote on is an amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX]. The gentleman from Pennsylvania has good intentions with his amendment, which would prohibit lobbyists from giving gifts to Members of Congress, but his amendment is unnecessary because we have already passed comprehensive gift reform in the House and in the Senate.

Furthermore, his amendment is dangerous because it contains a definition of "gift" which is different from the definition contained in the gift reform that the House passed. The only thing that will result from the adoption of the Fox amendment is confusion and trouble for Members of the House.

Furthermore, the amendment is unfair. It will create a double standard under which a lobbyist can be fined up to $50,000 in a civil penalty for giving a gift to a Member of Congress that is prohibited, while a Member of Congress does not face a similar civil penalty. Is that fair? Should we have one standard for imposing fines on lobbyists and exempt Members of Congress for fines? I do not think that is consistent with the spirit of reform. The Fox amendment does that, and it should be rejected for that reason alone.

Another amendment that we will consider is offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER]. The amendment of the gentleman from Pennsylvania deals with an important issue of lobbying by executive agencies. I believe there have been some abuses there which should be corrected, but the amendment of Mr. CLINGER is poorly drafted, it has not been through the committee process, and it will create all sorts of problems.

Under the Clinger amendment, agency press officers would not be allowed to answer inquiries from the press regarding the agency's position on legislative proposals. Does that make any sense I do not think so. This proposal goes too far. Mr. CLINGER should take this back through his committee, which has jurisdiction of the issue, and come forward with a refined proposal to really address the abuse. This amendment by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] is designed and calculated to ensure a veto of this bill.

The President is bound to veto this bill if anything like the Clinger amendment is attached to it. We should not derail lobbying disclosure reform by adding extraneous amendments such as this.

There are other amendments that will be considered; some of them have some merit. Some of them, standing alone, are amendments that I would support. But this is not the time; this is not the place. We need to get on with the business that has occupied the Congress off and on for more than 40 years, and if we can pass this bill and send it to the President I believe that we will demonstrate to the American people that things really have changed here in Washington, that we can accomplish things in this Congress that other Congresses have been unable to deal with.

So I would encourage the Members to support lobbying disclosure reform and oppose all amendments to the lobbying disclosure reform bill. These amendments all have one thing in common. They will derail this effort to reform this law, which everyone admits desperately needs reforming.

THE SHUTDOWN OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARR). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia [Ms. NORTON] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, if we ask the average American what got shut down 25 days ago, they will say that the Federal Government got shut down 25 days ago. Well, I am here to tell my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, that the city in which the Congress does its business got shut down completely 25 days ago. The city got shut down with its own money.

Mr. Speaker, because of limitations on home rule, our entire budget has to come here, although 85 percent of that budget is raised in the District of Columbia from District taxpayers. The District got shut down with its own money, although the District of Columbia is second per capita in taxes paid to the Federal Treasury among the 50 States and the District of Columbia.

Suppose you represented people who paid that much tax and got shut down because they got caught in the middle of a debate that had nothing to do with them? I think you would be pretty mad, and so am I.

Mr. Speaker, I am asking on day 18, as we move toward December 15, that whatever quarrels the Federal Government and the President get in among themselves, that you not shut down my city again. This is a city in the midst of an awesome financial crisis, and the most that the Congress of the United States has been able to think to do to it is to allow it to be shut down.

Our appropriation is caught up here, 85 percent of that money, of course, being our own. What the Federal Government contributes is not a grant but is only a payment in lieu of taxes, because we cannot build on land occupied by the Federal Government and because we cannot build very high because of limitations put on us by the Congress of the United States. So who in the world would shut down people who are already in the midst of a financial crisis, except people who are unaccountable to the people in that city, the 600,000 people that I represent?

Of course we, like the Federal Government, had to pay our employees, because they were put on forced administrative leave; and, thus, we have to pay for all of that lost productivity. Mr. Speaker, because of the fiscal crisis, these employees had already given back 6 furlough days and had already given back 12 percent of their pay because the city is in crisis.

This city is not a Federal agency. We are demanding that we be treated like a city and not like a Federal agency—like a city that pays its own way.

Mr. Speaker, I am asking that if we get to Day Zero and another continuing resolution is necessary, that D.C. not be put in another short-term continuing resolution. Do you realize what it is like to have to calibrate on a 2- or 3-week basis so that you do not overobligate your own money?

My continuing resolution will say look, you can spend your own money; we are holding back part of the Federal payment. That is the least you can do if you want to insert onto our appropriation stuck up here on provisions you want to insert onto our appropriation that have been undemocratically put there by Members unaccountable to the voters of the District of Columbia. Free the D.C. appropriation.

The chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. DAVIS has cosponsored an independent D.C. continuing resolution with me. Congress has already done damage, incalculable damage in shutting the District down. All I am asking now is if you cannot get our appropriation out, and I would not bet on getting it out by December 15, that the Congress not do more to hurt the innocent bystanders.

Those are the people who pay the highest taxes, barring none, if you combine local taxes and Federal taxes in the United States. Those are the people who contribute more to the Federal Treasury than Members who represent any jurisdiction in the United States, except New Jersey. We are second in Federal taxes only to New Jersey. So if you are not from New Jersey, you have to get behind the people I represent, get way behind them.

Let us keep our city open. Can you imagine that the Federal Government was delivering mail, but we could not pick up the trash in the District of Columbia for a week because of a dispute between the President and the Congress? That is your business. Stay out of our business. Let us keep our city open. Do us no harm. Do not get caught in the middle.

Shut down the Federal agencies if you must. That is your money. Do not shut down D.C. We have already paid for our city.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN BOSNIA A DANGEROUS PROPOSITION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BUYER] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Speaker, I am compelled to come to the House floor today, being a leader in this Congress, to speak against placing United States ground troops in Bosnia. Having listened to the President's address last night, I feel compelled to speak to not only the Members listening back in their offices but to the American people as well.

On October 30, 1995, this House voted overwhelmingly in a bipartisan fashion on the Buyer-McHale resolution, and it was approved by a vote of 315 to 103. Ninety-three members of the Democratic caucus, almost half, supported the proposition that expressed a sense of this Congress that U.S. ground troops should not be a part of a peace agreement in the Balkans. This resolution passed because the President's plan is ill-conceived, poorly defined, and highly dangerous.

It is ill-conceived because, over 2 years ago, the President promised 25,000 U.S. troops to enforce a future peace agreement. The President made this commitment without knowing the mission or the conditions of a peace agreement.

Peacing 25,000 United States troops on the ground to implement an agreement and to make an enforced peace is ill-conceived because the United States forces have lost the protection of neutrality after having bombed the Bosnian Serbs and promising to arm and train the Bosnian Moslems. U.S. troops, having lost this protection of neutrality, will become targets and casualties on the ground.

The implementation plan has been poorly defined. What is the mission of the NATO force? We need very clear objectives. What are the criteria for success? What is the exit strategy? A date set for withdrawal in 1 year is no exit strategy. Will the rules of engagement allow the force to accomplish the mission? How do we prevent the "mission creep" that we learned in Somalia that may escalate United States involvement in the Balkans beyond the time period which the President has set, and how do we keep United States troops from conducting nation-building exercises?

This implementation plan is also highly dangerous in that the United States and NATO forces will enforce an agreement that is politically unsustainable in a region of the world that has a long history of all sides exercising vengeance and retribution on one another. This is a long-term ethnic and religious conflict that could take generations to cure.

That is why the President of France has indicated that NATO's involvement in the Balkans could be 20 years, 20 years. Now the President is saying, we are only going in for 1 year, and we have this exit strategy. Twenty years. Think of this. It is generational.

Now, the President last night made a good speech, but I would submit a good speech does not make good foreign policy. Whether it is mass murder or ethnic cleansing, the rape and the pillage and the plunder, the destruction are all violent to America's values. But if our foreign policy followed our heart and emotion, then U.S. troops would become the world's policeman and we would find ourselves in over 67 hot spots throughout the world. I do not believe America wants U.S. troops to be the world's policeman.

That is why, Mr. Speaker, we tie U.S. troops and their commitments on foreign soil to vital national security interests. Mr. Speaker, that is a lesson we learned in Somalia, that when a nation, when one of our own, our finest sons or daughters take an oath to lay down their life for this country for liberties and economic freedoms that many people take for granted, we in this Congress must ensure, and that we believe in their solemn oath to make sure that their life is not given in vain, that it is tied to national security interests.

I am extremely disappointed to be standing here and have the President of the United States ignore the will of this Congress, for we have voted twice on this issue of Bosnia in saying no to sending troops. I resent the position that the President of the United States has placed the American people in, I resent the position in which he has placed these American troops, and I resent the position that he has placed this U.S. Congress in. I remain highly skeptical of this deployment, and I recognize that the President, as Commander in Chief, can send these troops.

The Framers of the Constitution created friction between the legislative body and the President. Do we have to have the friction? We are going to. We are going to, because the President has on the blinders. He has ignored the will of the American people and this Congress, and he is sending the troops.

We control the purse strings. So what are we going to do? Well, I do not agree with the President's foreign policy with regard to placing ground troops in Bosnia. I believe that we have a key and vital role to play in the peace process and that we should be providing our air power and sea power and logistics on the ground in Bosnia but not sending the troops; and we have a duty to support our troops, but will narrow the parameters, define the criteria to minimize the loss of life.

REJECT ISTOOK AND MCINTOSH ON LOBBYING REFORM LEGISLATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. SKAGGS] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. SKAGGS. Mr. Speaker, as the gentleman from Florida mentioned a few minutes ago, we will be resuming debate later today on the lobbying reform legislation. And, as he put it so well, I hope this House will reject all of the many amendments that are pending on this bill. Some have merit, but as the gentleman indicated, they will doom this bill. We do not need to risk that, and we should not.

As we resume consideration later today, it is especially important, I think, to understand what the amendments to be offered by my colleagues from Indiana and Oklahoma would do. I think once those amendments noticed by the gentleman from Oklahoma [Mr. ISTOOK] and the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MCINTOSH] are understood, they will be rejected. However, we need to read them as they were once proposed, as a single legislative proposal. We can now not unscramble that egg.

Let me refer my colleagues to a statement made by that noted conservative columnist George Will about this proposal. He said, "It would make lawyers happy; it would erect a litigation-breeding regulatory regime of baroque complexity regarding political expression."

Now, why in the world would George Will say that about a proposal like this? Let me just give you a few examples of the terribly burdensome effect, the red-tape-breeding provisions of this legislation as it would affect what private organizations in America can do with their private money.

For example, the University of Georgia would be limited in how much contact it could have with Georgia's State government. That is because State colleges and universities that receive Federal grants would be regulated under this proposal and could only spend a limited amount on any kind of contacts with other governmental entities. The definition of governmental contact is very broad and includes State and local governments.

Another example. If the National Association of Counties has any contact with a Federal official about legislative or policy matters, then no county that is a member of NACO could receive Federal funds. Why is that? Well, under the McIntosh language, if a 501(c)(4) nonprofit like NACO engages in any lobbying, then it and all organizations that are affiliated with it are prohibited from receiving any kind of Federal grants, loans, or contracts.

Another example. A zealous, vigilante-type person could bring harassing lawsuits against State and local governments under this provision, as well as against universities, nonprofits, you name it. A cut of treble damage verdicts would be available to anybody that might wish to pursue such a lawsuit for violation of the McIntosh-Istook provisions under the False Claims Act. That is what would be put into the law by the McIntosh private citizen enforcement amendment.

A Federal grantee like General Motors, obviously a private company, would have to account to the Federal Government for every time any of its thousands of employees had any contact with a Federal, State, or local government official about virtually any issue, whether it is local zoning or fuel efficiency standards.

Looking at another well-known and worthy nonprofit organization, Mothers Against Drunk Driving would not be able to carry out its mission if this were to become law, because under the amendment's formula for the maximum allowable government relations expenditures, Mothers Against Drunk Driving could spend only 3 percent of its entire budget on contacts with all levels of government. It would simply cripple MADD's efforts to get stricter Federal, State, and local laws and enforcement against drunk driving.

But do not take my word for this. Let me read to my colleagues from a letter sent out yesterday in behalf of the presidents of 34 major research universities in this country from the Association of American Universities. And I quote:

The Istook-McIntosh-Erich legislation would impose a burdensome, new record-keeping mandate on our universities, some of which receive thousands of Federal grants for diverse purposes. For each grant, this legislation would require detailed and duplicative reports on political advocacy—even if the amount of advocacy did not exceed the prohibited threshold.

Mr. Speaker, I could go on and on, including a recent communication from the Red Cross about this. Let me just conclude by pointing out what our former colleague Mickey Edwards of Oklahoma had to say about this recently: "This is big brother with a vengeance." My colleagues, we should defeat these amendments.

AMERICA BETTER OFF WITH BALANCED BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARR). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. HOKE] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. HOKE. Mr. Speaker, I want to address the House this morning about an article that appeared yesterday in USA Today. It was entitled "What Life Would Be Like In 2002 With A Balanced Budget." It is a survey of a number of different economists and analysts and consultants who have been asked about what the impact would be on our economy over a 7-year period of coming into balance with the Federal budget.

It starts out by saying,

Mortgage rates near 5 percent. An economy that purrs along with a steady jobless rate around 5.5 percent. A standard of living that's on the rise again because wages are finally growing at a decent rate. A trade surplus.

Economists are nearly unanimous in their answers that for most people, in fact 80 percent or more, life would be better. Says Michael Erlund, who is chief economist at consultants MMS International, "I have to believe a rising tide does raise all boats. Probably 80 percent or more would gladly benefit" with a balanced budget that helps bolster the economy.

Todd Buchholz, author and economist who is the author of a book entitled "From Here to Economy" says, "I can tell you things will only get worse if we don't balance the budget or come close to that."

Now why is that? What is at the bottom of this? At the bottom of it is the ability of the Government to borrow in a way that sucks capital out of capital markets that would go to productive activity in the economy.

In other words, if there is a deficit that is running, right now the deficit is about $164 billion, then it has to borrow that money in the capital markets. That means that that money is not available to be borrowed by individuals for the purchase of homes or consumer goods, or by businesses for capital investment that would create more jobs.

Because we do spend more than we collect, the Federal Government has to borrow from investors to pay its bills. The article goes on by saying it borrows by selling Treasury bonds, notes and bills on which it pays interest. That borrowing, most economists agree, keep interest rates higher than they would be otherwise.

I can tell you that the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank, Mr. Greenspan, testified before my committee, the Committee on the Budget, earlier in this year, and said that on average he believed that interest rates would drop 2 percent as the result of balancing the budget.

"The government is tapping into our savings pool," says Nancy Kimelman, chief economist at Investment Advisors Technical Data in Boston. It lures investors' money the only way that a borrower can, by offering tempting yields on bonds.

When you subtract the Government from the competition for investors money by balancing its budget, then the effect would be immediate and interest rates would head down. Here are some of the estimates.

Lawrence Meyer and Associates, which is a St. Louis-based economic consulting firm, estimates that by 2002 short-term interest rates would be close to 3 percent, as opposed to 5.4 percent today, and long-term rates would be just about 5 percent, versus 6.2 percent today.

With rates that low, the economy would surely be far better off. Businesses would invest more because they could borrow more at lower rates. Investment in computers, in buildings and equipment, would boost productivity even further.

There is another issue at stake here besides all of these economic benefits that would inure not only to the economy generally but to individual people, both in terms of lower interest rates that they would pay for mortgage payments and car payments and school tuition payments as well as the capital formation aspects that create a lot more jobs and a lot more opportunity. The other issue that I want to talk about with respect to a balanced budget is the one that goes to the question of how we define what Government should be, what its appropriate role is, and what its appropriate role ought to be in the American scene.

The way that this idea of a balanced budget comes into play with respect to that is that the most perfect way, the most compelling way, the most clarifying way to define as a people what we believe government's role ought to be is what we as a people are willing to pay for it on a pay-as-you-go basis. So that if we say to each other, to ourselves, look, we are only willing to spend what we are willing to pay for, then that is the most perfect way to define what this Government should be and should do. It also has the added benefit of not putting on our children the borrowing that we enter into and engage in today. It very perfectly defines what we ought to be as a government.

DEFEAT ISTOOK AMENDMENT TO LOBBY REFORM BILL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. MENENDEZ] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise to express my outrage with the Istook amendment we will be voting on that will impede with the fundamental right of Americans—particularly nonprofit organizations to advocate with their Government—their Representatives.

Let me first make it clear that I find this whole censorship effort reprehensible. But what makes it truly despicable is that it is specifically crafted to deal only with certain kinds of grants from the Government—the kind that go to people they do not like. People who might dare to oppose their extremist agenda.

What I mean is this: Mr. ISTOOK's own testimony on behalf of his original amendment cited two Supreme Court decisions in which the court specifically stated that there are two kinds of Federal benefits that put taxpayer dollars in an organization's pocket: Grants, and tax exemptions and deductions. The Supreme Court came right out and said it point blank. Both Mr. ISTOOK's original and more controversial amendment and the one he offers here today allegedly rely on these decisions. But when it came time to put this amendment down on paper, he decided he was only interested in one kind of benefit—the grants—completely ignoring the court's specific finding that tax-exemptions are a form of subsidy which have much the same effect as a cash grant. What a curious oversight. The court names just two things—just two—but when Republicans wrote the bill, they managed to forget half of that short list.

What is the effect of this oversight? The American Heart Association is restricted. The American Red Cross is restricted. The Girl Scouts are restricted. They are restricted because they get grants. But the Speaker's network of think tanks and pet projects—such as the Progress and Freedom Foundation, Earning by Learning, National Empowerment Television and the like—can take tax-deductible donations and keep their money tax-free. And do they take money? Yes, millions from the Speaker's political supporters. And what do they do with it? They videotape Mr. GINGRICH's speeches and sell them. They use the money to produce a weekly television show starring the Speaker. In short, the Speaker uses their activities to promote his political agenda—and it is all done on the taxpayer dollar. All tax-exempt.

What did the Supreme Court say about that? Mr. ISTOOK has told us that they said tax-exemptions were the same as cash grants. If so, then why is there no mention of tax-exemptions in this amendment? The Progress and Freedom Foundation gets no grants, so this amendment will not stop them from sending every Member a so-called "briefing" on why the telecommunications industry needs reform, and coincidentally that it should be reformed in precisely the way Speaker GINGRICH suggests. But the Supreme Court, and more importantly Mr. ISTOOK, said their money is just as much "welfare for lobbyists" as a grant is.

All of you have received numerous briefings from the National Center for Policy Analysis supporting Medical Savings Accounts, an idea which actually wormed its way into the bill which cut Medicare by $270 billion. Has anyone figured out why? The Republicans said they were impressed by the savings these accounts could achieve. But the CBO says these accounts will actually cost the Government $3.5 billion. Of course, the savings were based on numbers produced by the think tank itself, and were then used to lobby Members. This think tank, by the way, is a tax-exempt organization. Distribution of their briefings was essentially lobbying. That means that the National Center for Policy Analysis lobbied Members with taxpayer dollars.

But what does this amendment do about it? Nothing. Why? Does it have anything to do with the fact that the National Center for Policy Analysis is heavily funded by a major backer of the Speaker's Progress and Freedom Foundation, the shadowy GOPAC organization, and others of the Speaker's funds?

Consider also that this big-time financial backer is also the CEO of the Golden Rule Insurance Co., the country's biggest marketer of medical savings accounts. In other words, a big financial backer of the Speaker's has used his tax-deductible contributions to fund a tax-exempt lobbying campaign designed to result in legislation that would bring huge profits to his company. Later this week, they will try to rake in still more by including medical savings accounts in the Federal employee health benefits plan. Ironically, the hearing on the subject will be before the Government Reform and Oversight Committee—the very committee which has written and promoted the Istook language. Does this bother anyone?

It bothers me, but it apparently does not bother the supporters of the Istook amendment. They do not protest while big money buys out American politics, piece by piece. In fact, they now offer legislation designed to facilitate the process.

This Istook amendment is a sham. It deserves defeat. Let us not stop the Association for Retarded Citizens, the YMCA, and other voices of the little guy from advocating with their Government while we let fat cat special interests lobby to maintain huge profits, and then write off the expenses as tax deductions.

NO UNITED STATES TROOPS DEPLOYMENT TO BOSNIA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANZULLO] is recognized during morning business for 5 minutes.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, the United States Congress will within a very short period of time take up the very delicate issue as to whether or not American fighting troops should be positioned in the country that we know as Bosnia and Herzegovina. For the past 3 years, our President has, without consulting Congress, made a commitment that somehow he is going to send 20,000 to 25,000 American troops to Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Now we find ourselves at this point in American history where this body has to make a reasoned decision as to whether or not we should put these young men and women in harm's way. We have to take a look at the historical background of this country as we know it.

One can go back 1,000 or even 1,500 years to see continuous fighting on either side of the Balkans as the various tribes from the areas that we know as the former provinces of Yugoslavia, now independent nations, have risen up, engaged each other in mortal combat, then been quiet for a period of time only to have these types of prejudices flare up again and result in killing.

The question is this: Does America have such a strategic interest in Bosnia and Herzegovina so as to commit our young men and women into combat? And that other question is this: If there is, indeed, a peace treaty, then why should our young men and women, as part of a NATO force, be sent in heavily armed for the purpose of killing to keep the peace?

As I examined last night the very thick document that sets forth the memorandum of understanding among the parties to this horrible conflict, several points stood out, and I think the American people have a right to know the terms upon which American troops would be sent into this country.

Let us take a look at the nature of the country that will be set up. There will be an elected house. There will not be a president; there will not be two presidents; there will be three presidents. Can you imagine a constitution that has a troika for a presidency and is able to rule? And, incidentally, each of these presidents have to come from each of the three warring factions, the Moslems, the Croats, and the Serbs. So now you take one of each, put them into a government and say, "You rule."

What is even more ironic is that in the constitution that will be set up is called the country of Bosnia and Herzegovina, and yet it is legally split, one country that is already split, and this is supposed to be a peace agreement.

How is this peace agreement formed? Well, a demilitarized zone is set up. American troops have to pour in, and the language of the agreement says that the troops will use whatever force is reasonably necessary in order to carry out the peace plan. So that if the warring factions do not clear out of the DMZ, then after some type of a warning, presumably NATO forces will be called upon to shoot in order to secure a peace.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the question: What type of peace is this? And that is not all. The agreement says that within a year the troops are to be withdrawn.

So everybody gets together for a year, possibly acquiesces in a DMZ zone, and then knowing at the end of the year they can pull out only to have the fighting resume.

But there is more to it than this.

Mr. Speaker, I would encourage my colleagues to examine very closely the agreement before they vote in favor of this type of peace plan.

MOVE RESPONSIBLY AND PASS THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from the Virgin Islands [Mr. FRAZER] is recognized during morning business for 1 minute.

Mr. FRAZER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to come together. The time is now for us to represent our constituents in a responsible manner.

We all agree that a balanced budget is possible. The manner in which we get there is our dilemma. We need a balanced budget that is fair and equitable. This equality is based on a set of principles wherein all areas of Government are affected proportionally.

Our children are the future. Our Government must continue to provide a safety net for mothers and children who are least able to provide for themselves. Programs such as child nutrition and Head Start are essential to our national interest. We must also invest in education and job training so that our Nation will be able to effectively compete in the global marketplace.

We must also honor our commitment to the elderly. They have the right to live in this country and enjoy the security and comfort of retirement without the fear of Government reducing their benefits to the point they must sell all of their assets to qualify for governmental assistance.

We can achieve a balanced budget without devastating cuts in Medicaid, Medicare, education, and without raising taxes on working families.

Therefore I urge my colleagues to move responsibly and pass the budget.

EPA APPROPRIATIONS CONFERENCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. PALLONE] is recognized during morning business for 4 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, this week, we will be addressing the remaining appropriations conference reports, including the VA-HUD appropriations conference report which provides funding for the Environmental Protection Agency.

Unfortunately, our environmental laws have taken blow after blow in the 104th Congress as bills spiked with antienvironmental measures pass the House floor, both out in the open as in the Clean Water Act reauthorization or through more mischievous measures, as through appropriation and budget bills like the VA-HUD conference report that we will be voting on this week, most likely tomorrow.

No other Government agency is facing the kind of cuts that are included in this bill for the EPA.

The bill cuts funding for the EPA to set and enforce environmental and public health standards for air pollution, pesticides, and clean and safe water by 17 percent from what the President proposed.

Hazardous waste site cleanup is being cut by 25 percent, slowing efforts to make the Superfund Program faster, fairer, and more efficient.

And EPA's enforcement funding is being hit even harder, with a 27-percent cut in enforcement of all environmental programs.

On top of all the direct cuts to EPA's budget, this bill cuts by 30 percent funds that go straight to the States to help keep raw sewage off beaches and out of waterways.

And State loan funds for use in protecting community drinking water nationwide are reduced by 45 percent in this bill.

Restricting the EPA's ability to implement environmental protection programs and reducing funding to the States, in my opinion, is nothing less than an unfunded mandate on the States to maintain environmental quality.

In the majority of cases where adequate Federal funds are not made available, State funding just is not there.

This means that a virtual environmental protection vacuum will be created by this bill, where polluters get off scot free at the expense of environmental quality, and human safety and health.

One must ask why funding for environmental protection is being targeted or why after three votes to remove restrictive riders from the VA-HUD appropriations bill, the majority of the riders were simply moved to report language and several riders still remain as actual legislative language in the bill.

For example, incorporated in this bill is a rider that prevents EPA from stopping dumping of potentially harmful fill into wetlands.

EPA is by no means overly zealous in its use of this authority over wetlands, and only 11 times in the history of the wetlands program has it stepped in to veto this type of dumping.

Even in New Jersey, a State with one of the most stringent wetlands programs in the country, 94 percent of all wetlands permit applications are approved. So why is it necessary to put a rider in this bill prohibiting the EPA from protecting wetlands?

Another measure that does not belong in this bill is the prohibition of EPA's authority to add hazardous waste sites to the national priority list under Superfund.

The Superfund listing process is strictly scientific now.

There are those in this Congress, however, who seem determined to politicize the process by placing all sorts of restrictions on listing Superfund sites.

My committee, the Committee on Commerce, is now reviewing the Superfund Program, and I maintain the legislative process should simply be allowed to run its course.

If this conference report is passed in its current form, the EPA's hands will be tied and the quality of the air we breathe and the water we drink will suffer dramatically.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this bill and send it back to conference in order to restore the EPA's ability to effectively protect the health and safety of our environment and our constituents.

Essentially, if we send the bill back to conference again, those who represent the House and the Senate can get together and come up with a better bill that does not cut enforcement for environmental protection as much, that provides sufficient funding to the States so that they can continue to maintain a quality environment. This is what we should be doing in this Congress instead of passing this bill.

RECESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 12, rule 1, the Chair declares the House in recess until 2 p.m.

The recess having expired, the House was called to order by the Speaker at 2 p.m.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

As we gain more knowledge about the workings of our world, we pray, gracious God, that we will sense more fully the wonder and the awe and the marvel that are about us and which have been provided by Your creative hand. May we live each day with a reverence for the miracles that are before us, with an appreciation of the mysteries of the universe and with a greater awareness of the ambiguities of the road ahead. Give us pause to reflect on Your majesty, the power of Your love, and the marvelous occasions we have to serve You and the people of the land. In Your name, we pray. Amen.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE CLERK OF THE HOUSE

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following communication from the Clerk of the House of Representatives:

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: Pursuant to section 2702(a)(1)(B)(vi) of Public Law 101-509, I hereby appoint as a member of the Advisory Committee on the Records of Congress the following person: Roger Davidson, 3510 Edmunds Street, NW, Washington, DC.

With warm regards,

ROBIN H. CARLE, Clerk.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair desires to announce that pursuant to clause 4 of rule I, the Speaker signed the following enrolled bills on Monday, November 20, 1995:

S. 440, to amend title 23, United States Code, to provide for the designation of the National Highway System, and for other purposes; and

S. 1328, to amend the commencement dates of certain temporary Federal judgeships.

TIME TO BALANCE THE BUDGET

(Mr. WELLER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, as one of the Republican freshmen, one of the new Members of this body, I came here with a commitment to change how Washington works. I now as a privilege of serving as a Member of the House carry a voting card, a piece of plastic with which to record my vote.

For the last 26 years, Members of the House have used this card and made it the world's most expensive credit card, running up a $4.9 trillion debt. We think about our own families, when someone runs up a massive credit card debt, what that means and how it needs to be paid off.

I have with me a bag full of play money, but this bag represents the $19,000 that every Illinois citizen, that very American citizen currently owes as their share of the national debt. If we had to pay off the national debt today, every American citizen would have to write a check for $19,000.

It is time to change how Washington works, to balance the budget. The President has now agreed with the Congress that we should do it in 10 years.

Republicans have a plan to balance the budget in 7 years by reforming welfare, strengthening Medicare and providing tax relief to working families, but the President has failed to show us his plan. Now he is going to leave the country for 6 days. All he issues is a press release saying he would like to do it in 7 years.

Mr. President, I think it is time, before you leave the country for 6 days, when we need to provide a balanced budget by December 15, that you show us the specifics. Show us, Mr. President, if you do not like our plan to balance the budget, how you would do it. We need to see the fine print.

REPUBLICAN TAX PLAN IS UNFAIR

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I have been very critical of the Republican budget plan because I believe that it cuts Medicare in order to provide major tax breaks primarily for wealthy Americans. This of course is disputed by some of the Republican leaders, most notably the gentleman from Texas [Mr. ARCHER], who is the chairman of the Republican, or in this case, the House Committee on Ways and Means, the tax-cutting committee.

The New York Times last week put out an editorial based on the Treasury Department's figures. Basically the Treasury Department shows that in fact the tax breaks are primarily for the wealthy in this Republican bill.

It says in the New York Times editorial that the Treasury estimated that the richest 1 percent would rake in almost twice as much, or 17 percent of the tax cut under the bill. Indeed, under the Republican bill the poorest 20 percent of families, taken as a group, would pay higher taxes as a percentage of their income. The Treasury figures are solid evidence that the Republican tax cut is heavily weighted toward the rich.

As we proceed over the next 2 weeks in this budget battle, in negotiating a compromise, I am very hopeful that we will see a lot of money brought back into Medicare, to make sure that the Medicare Program is viable, and that we cut back on these tax breaks for wealthy Americans. It is not fair to cut Medicare and essentially destroy it at the expense of the average American in order to finance tax breaks primarily for those wealthier members among us.

PRESIDENT SHOULD SIGN BALANCED BUDGET ACT

(Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, if the President is honestly looking for a plan that balances the budget in 7 years, uses legitimate numbers, and protects his priorities, he need look no further than the Republican Balanced Budget Act. Let us consider some of the areas the President says he has problems with our bill.

Medicare—our plan increases Medicare spending every year and ensures Medicare's solvency through at least 2010. There are no cuts.

Education—there are no education cuts in the Republican bill. The dollar volume of student loans increases 50 percent during the next 7 years. More student loans will be available next year than ever before.

The environment—not a single environmental protection program is touched in the Republican Balanced Budget Act. There are no environmental cuts in the Republican bill.

Mr. Speaker, the Republican Balance Budget Act is a good bill. It balances the budget while preserving the American people's priorities. The President should sign this bill.

SAYING NO TO GROUND TROOPS IN BOSNIA

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I oppose sending ground troops to Bosnia. All military experts agree that Bosnia is not a military threat to the United States. Also, they agree that Europe has more than enough military capability to handle the peacekeeping problems in Bosnia.

But there is another argument that keeps popping up, and that is that we must protect the integrity of NATO. My colleagues, NATO was created to protect Europe from Soviet invasion. I say it is time that America stop subsidizing Europe's protection. It is time to disband NATO, let them create their own military alliance that they can support.

Let Congress not forget, in the 1960's the Johnson administration asked Europe to help us in Vietnam. Europe said, "It's too costly. There's too much killing. It's your way, America."

I say, look, we have all come to know him as Uncle Sam. Now we are letting him be treated like Uncle Sucker. They have enough money. They have enough military capability. This is in Europe's backyard. Let them send their troops to the front. We can provide support with air strikes, with training, with advisers, but not with ground troops.

COLONIAL BEACH VOLUNTEER FIRE DEPARTMENT 100TH ANNI- VERSARY

(Mr. BLILEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, the Colonial Beach Volunteer Fire Department got its start in March 1884, with a resolution passed at the 35th meeting of the town council, promising cooperation with property owners in raising funds to purchase a fire extinguishing apparatus to be operated by a volunteer fire company. A committee was appointed in October 1895, to ascertain the cost and to determine how much money interested citizens would contribute toward its purchase.

A request was received in July 1896, from the Howe Pump and Engine Company of Indianapolis, IN, to demonstrate a piece of fire apparatus in Colonial Beach, VA. The apparatus was to be drawn by a team of two horses, and would be operated by eight men, four on each side of the pump by cantilever action. It would be capable of dispensing 60 gallons of water per minute and was equipped with 500 feet of 2¼ inch hose. One of the rear wheels had a striker, which hit a gong with each revolution of the wheel. The apparatus was purchased in August 1896, for $875, a far cry from the $250,000 to $500,000 required to purchase one today. Since the fire department did not own any horses, it was agreed to purchase a set of double harnesses and that a premium of $2 be given to the first person to reach the fire house with two good fast horses and hook up to the apparatus.

Today's fire sirens, beepers, and radios are a far cry from the way fire alarms used to be sounded. The first alarm used in Colonial Beach, was by striking a metal triangle with a hammer and later on a large ring was struck with a sledge hammer. Both the triangle and the ring are displayed at the fire station on Colonial Avenue.

In August 1896, a bid was submitted by Charles Pfeil to build the first fire house for a sum of $24. A year later, Pfeil was appointed fire chief at a salary of $3 per month. His duties were to keep the apparatus, fire house, and fixtures clean and in ready condition. The fire house was moved to the old town hall in March 1907 and did not move again until another fire house was built in 1940. In 1952, a second story was added with the help of the Ladies Auxiliary. A brand new building was built in 1961 on Colonial Avenue and is the current fire house.

The first 100 years of the Colonial Beach Volunteer Fire Department have been an exciting time of service and growth. The department has always stayed one step ahead of its peers with new, innovative thinking and proactive programs. Their members have committed themselves for over 100 years now with a sense of pride, tradition, and service to all those in their community. The Colonial Beach Volunteer Fire Department vows to continue to carry the high level of professional service that has become their hallmark into the next century, protecting the citizens of the community through the next 100 years.

SUPPORT THE BOSNIA PEACE PLAN

(Mr. RICHARDSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker, for the past 4 years Bosnia has witnessed atrocities not seen on the European Continent since the horrors of World War II. Among these are concentration camps, women and girls raped as a tool of war, documented instances of mass murder, and the nightmare of ethnic cleansing becoming a reality.

A quarter of a million people have been killed in this war, many of them defenseless civilians. This number includes women and children. Two million people, about half the population, have been forced from their homes and are now suffering the miserable life of refugees.

For 4 years war has raged in Bosnia, and the United States has rightly stayed out of the war. The United States could not force peace on the warring factions. Now the situation is different. Due primarily to American leadership, peace has been brokered between the war-weary combatants.

Mr. Speaker, let us say thanks that the war and the killing has ended. Genocide has stopped and the war is over because of American leadership. We should thank the President, Secretary of State Christopher, Madeline Albright, Richard Holbrook, and the man that probably had the most to do with this peace, Robert Frazier, who gave his life to this process. I would also like to particularly acknowledge the key role played by National Security Adviser Tony Lake in securing the peace agreement. The peace process was initiated during his trip to Europe in late July.

The United States now has the historic opportunity to help Bosnia return to normalcy and bring stability to this troubled region.

THE PRESIDENT HAS NOT MADE THE CASE IN BOSNIA

(Mr. HEFLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, last night the President came to the American people to convince us it is a good idea to send ground troops to Bosnia. He says he will come to Congress. Both of these things are the things he should be doing. We have been asking him to do it.

I sat there in front of my television half wanting to be convinced, because you do not want to embarrass the President, you want him to be right, you want him to represent the country in the right way. What I found with his speech was a great deal of emotion. He talked about rapes and concentration camps and mass executions, all things that we would like to stop if we possibly could, but he was short on substance.

He talked about vital American interests but he does not tell us what that was. He talked about American leadership and he seemed to be saying that the only way we can have American leadership is if we pay the bill, if we pay the price with our blood and with our money. I found myself wondering, I wonder if it is so bad if in some cases if someone else takes the leadership. Do we have to lead in everything? Is this not a European problem? Could we not rely on Europe to take the leadership in this?

I wonder how the President is going to respond to the families who lose children in this conflict, and they will lose some. Is he going to say, "Your son died for the future of NATO?" Is he going to say, "Your son died because we might stop World War III?" Is he going to say, "Your son died for American leadership?" I do not think he has made the case.

THE LESSON OF HAITI

(Mr. GOSS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, as the subject of Bosnia has come up, Haiti has somehow crept into the conversation as some sort of a model.

I think people should know that things are not so good in Haiti. Public security there is literally falling apart. There is violent rioting through the country, mob rule, the streets are unsafe. This past weekend a 6-year-old school girl waiting for a schoolbus was shot dead. Businesses are closed and shuttered.

I do not know how many people have been burned to death or hacked to death, but I know it is more than one. The police station in the major city has been burned down. A drive-by shooting took place at city hall. Fear is pervasive. You can measure it; you can feel it.

The wave of unrest and violence that is going on is not something that is caused by citizens from the ground up. It was unleashed by the democratically elected President, President Aristide, 2 1/2 weeks ago at a funeral.

The new police force that is supposed to protect and provide law and order there was disassembled and disarmed by the mob and chased out. The judiciary is in hiding. The presidential elections that we are supporting and paying for are in doubt.

□ 1415

Certainly, even if they come off, they will not be full, fair, and free. Investment is not happening. Privatization is not taking place. Corruption is not being taken care of.

But refugees are starting again. The drownings are happening again. This is not a model for success.

Let us not hope we are going to do in Bosnia what has happened in Haiti.

SUNDRY MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Sundry messages in writing from the President of the United States were communicated to the House by Mr. Edwin Thomas, one of his secretaries.

A BALANCED BUDGET: GOOD FOR NEW YORK AND NEW YORKERS

(Mrs. KELLY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to extend her remarks.)

Mrs. KELLY. Mr. Speaker, many of my colleagues have talked generally about the national merits of our achieving a balanced Federal budget. However, I want to talk about the balanced budget and what the subsequent lower interest rates mean for my friends and neighbors in New York's Hudson River Valley.

Lower interest rates will be good for homeowners. In fact a reduction in interest rates will not only help middle-class families save on their home mortgages, but it will also help those first-time home buyers make that crucial first step on the path toward long term financial security.

Because of this, experts agree that the average New York family will achieve annual mortgage savings of at least $2,643. And the Federal Reserve has stated that it is quite possible that once we achieve a balanced budget, we will see mortgage interest rates drop even lower to 5¼ percent—a rate which hasn't been seen in generations.

Another benefit of a balanced budget is an increase in the overall affordability of college education. The average New York student loan is $2,783, and a 2.7-percent drop in interest rates would mean that students would save $557 over each year of the life of their loan.

Mr. Speaker, President Clinton agreed to help us balance the Federal budget. The country will hold him to this promise. And I believe that New Yorkers need him to keep his promise. Our children's futures are at stake, and the President must remember it.

BOSNIA

(Mr. FUNDERBURK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FUNDERBURK. Mr. Speaker, I served as the United States Ambassador to Yugoslavia's next door neighbor, Romania. Bill Clinton is talking about 20,000 soldiers, many of whom will come out of North Carolina, for peacekeeping. This is not peacekeeping, it is peace enforcement. But there is no peace to enforce. Just 2 days ago the Bosnian Serb leader said he did not like the agreement.

So what artificial peace are we going to enforce? Last night we heard Orwellian doublespeak: war is peace, peace is war. Clinton has gotten bad advice.

What could we possibly hope to accomplish? Our troops stand guard for 1 year, then we are out. We lose some lives, we leave maybe, then full-scale war breaks out again. What is the purpose? What is 1 year in 600 years of ethnic warfare in the area? And what about the cost to the taxpayer for this folly?

We have spent the last 50 years defending our European allies in NATO from the Soviet threat; now wealthy Western Europe should use its resources to try to keep the peace in its backyard.

Our vital national security interests are not at stake in Bosnia and Herzegovina. First of all, there is no real Bosnian nation, no Bosnian people, no Bosnian language; there are Croats, Serbs, Muslims fighting each other since the 1300's. If Bosnia's ethnic strife and people killed are in our national interest, then why not go into every place on the earth where people are fighting and being killed?

This is a tragic mistake. American lives will be sacrificed. And for what? Can we not learn some lessons from history?

THE PEOPLE'S INTEREST, NOT SPECIAL INTERESTS

(Mr. WARD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WARD. Mr. Speaker, I hope every American reads yesterday's Washington Post article on the Republican's real approach to campaign reform. This is sleight of hand and sleight of tongue, taken to its highest level.

While talking like the revolutionary, good government leader, GINGRICH has engineered the most aggressive quid pro quo ever seen in this city. We have seen lobbyists actually writing legislation and hear tell of the Republican list that determines which special interests get taken care of.

I challenge all freshmen Members, Democrats and Republicans, to join together and demand real reform now. None of us came here to be a part of a government that is for sale. The Republican majority has taken deception to a new high and government integrity to a new low. Mr. Speaker, this House should be more concerned with the people's interest than the special interest.

PRESIDENT HAS NOT MADE THE CASE FOR DEPLOYING TROOPS TO BOSNIA

(Mr. SMITH of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Speaker, American service men and women should not be asked to risk their lives in Bosnia unless national security interests are threatened and military deployment would protect United States interests. President Clinton made a strong statement last night, describing the horrors in Bosnia. But he did not define what American national security interests are involved in Bosnia. And his statement did not establish that U.S. ground troops would resolve the Balkan conflict.

The people of the 21st District of Texas are committed to a strong American defense that protects our Nation's security interests around the world. Thousands in the 21st District have risked their lives to serve our Nation in World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam and the gulf war. But America's leaders have a responsibility to ask for their service only when it is essential to protect our Nation's national security interests.

Before committing U.S. troops, the President should demonstrate that American national security interests are at risk and that U.S. military deployment can decisively advance our interests. President Clinton has not made this case.

LISTEN TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, we spent $2 billion going on $3 billion in Haiti, and it is a mess.

We tried to do nation building in Somalia. We lost 18 young Americans, and we left Somalia, and the dictators, the warlords that were in charge, are still in charge over there. We spent hundreds of millions of dollars, and nothing was accomplished.

That foreign policy led to disaster. Now the President that got us into those two messes is going to send 20,000 to 30,000 young Americans into Sarajevo, into Bosnia. There are 60,000 people around Bosnia, Bosnian Serbs that say they are not going to abide by the treaty. Some of them said, "You saw Americans dragged through the streets of Somalia dead and naked. You are going to see the same things around Sarajevo." They are telling us what is going to happen.

There are 6 million land mines over there. We only know where 100,000 to 500,000 of them are, 6 million land mines.

This is a recipe for disaster.

We saw a terrible tragedy occur in Beirut when I first came to Congress. We saw 240-some marines blown to smithereens. The same thing may very well happen in Bosnia.

The President is making a monumental mistake. I do not think the American people want this to happen. I know they do not, and the President should listen to them.

FACTS ABOUT BENEFITS OF A BALANCED BUDGET

(Mr. KIM asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIM. Mr. Speaker, over the past few months, congressional Democrats have used every scare tactic possible to attack the Republican balanced budget proposal. They accuse Republicans of taking away health care for senior citizens, trying to frighten senior citizens. Later they found out at the end of 7 years the part B premium, the Republican proposal is $87, Mr. Clinton's proposal is $84, only $3 difference.

Then senior citizens find out, and they are really upset. This is what they call a deep cut?

Second, they are accusing that we are stealing school lunches from children. Later they found out that actually we are doing more money to local districts by eliminating bureaucrats. Then suddenly they quiet down.

Finally, we are throwing poor people out in the street for talking about earned income tax credit. Again, what we are trying to do is eliminating waste and fraud, actually allowing people who have actual children to receive benefits. People again quiet down.

Now in the last few days, guess what is happening now, Democrats are trying to scare students by saying Republicans are cutting student loans. Oh, come on now, the fact is that our plan increases spending on student loans. Under our plan, total spending on student loans, listen to this, increased from $24 to $26 billion by the year 2002. That is a 48-percent increase.

REPUBLICANS ARE DOING WHAT DEMOCRATS FAILED TO DO

(Mr. RIGGS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. RIGGS. Mr. Speaker, the refrain we hear about Washington these days is everybody wants to balance the Federal Budget. We even hear that claim coming from some of the more liberal Members of Congress who traditionally in years past have supported more deficit spending and higher taxes.

Well, let us remember a few important facts. First of all, candidate Bill Clinton pledged to balance the budget in 5 years, and we Republicans are proposing to do that in 7 years.

Second, the President stated unequivocally in his State of the Union Address, no less from the podium right behind me, that the Congressional Budget Office estimates should be used when formulating the budget, the same numbers that Republicans are using and that he now disputes.

Third, the Democratic Party controlled Congress for the last 2 years, the first 2 years of the Clinton Presidency, and nothing even remotely approaching a balanced budget plan evolved. In fact, many Americans got a tax hike despite the President's campaign promises of tax cuts.

We ought to remember the truth when we are having this debate, Mr. Speaker. If Democrats had us on a glidepath to a balanced budget within the first 2 years of the Clinton administration, not only would the Government shutdown have been avoided, but they would more than likely still be the majority party in the Congress.

Now the President is simply playing politics trying to block the Republicans from doing what his party has failed to do.

IS BOSNIA WORTH DYING FOR?

(Mr. ROTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROTH. Mr. Speaker, last night I listened very attentively to what the President was telling the House and the Congress and also the American people. I listened to the President, and he did not answer the question: Is Bosnia worth dying for?

I think that is the core question we have to ask ourselves. Therefore, I think the people in the Congress are not going to follow the President's wishes and back him going into Bosnia. Going into Bosnia is not a smart move.

Every lesson we learned in Vietnam has either been forgotten or ignored. Secretary of State Christopher's own doctrine says before you can put troops anywhere in the world you have to ask yourself four questions: First, what is the mission? The President did not give us a clear mission.

Second, is there a reasonable chance for success? There is no reasonable chance for success in Bosnia.

Third, the support of the American people. The American people do not support this adventure.

And, fourth, what is the exit strategy? There is no exit strategy.

Going into Bosnia is a very bad idea, and if we do, we will rue the day that we have done it.

CONTINUING NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARR) laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read and, without objection, referred to the Committee on International Relations and ordered to be printed:

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby report to the Congress on developments since the last Presidential report of May 18, 1995, concerning the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared in Executive Order No. 12170 of November 14, 1979. This report is submitted pursuant to section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, 50 U.S.C. 1703(c) and section 505(c) of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985, 22 U.S.C. 2349aa-9(c). This report covers events through September 29, 1995. My last report, dated May 18, 1995, covered events through April 18, 1995.

1. On March 15 of this year by Executive Order No. 12957, I declared a separate national emergency pursuant to the International Emergency Economic Powers Act and imposed separate sanctions. Executive Order No. 12959, issued May 6, 1995, then significantly augmented those new sanctions. As a result, as I reported on September 18, 1995, in conjunction with the declaration of a separate emergency and the imposition of new sanctions, the Iranian Transactions Regulations, 31 CFR Part 560, have been comprehensively amended.

There have been no amendments to the Iranian Assets Control Regulations, 31 CFR Part 535, since the last report. However, the amendments to the Iranian Transactions Regulations that implement the new separate national emergency are of some relevance to the Iran-United States Claims Tribunal (the "Tribunal") and related activities. For example, sections 560.510, 560.513, and 560.525 contain general licenses with respect to, and provide for specific licensing of, certain transactions related to arbitral activities.

2. The Tribunal, established at The Hague pursuant to the Algiers Accords, continues to make progress in arbitrating the claims before it. Since my last report, the Tribunal has rendered four awards, bringing the total number to 566. As of September 29, 1995, the value of awards to successful American claimants from the Security Account held by the NV Settlement Bank stood at $2,368,274,541.67.

Iran has not replenished the Security Account established by the Accords to ensure payment of awards to successful U.S. claimants since October 8, 1992. The Account has remained continuously below the $500 million balance required by the Algiers Accords since November 5, 1992. As of September 29, 1995, the total amount in the Security Account was $188,105,627.95, and the total amount in the Interest Account was $32,066,870.62.

Therefore, the United States continues to pursue Case A/28, filed in September 1993, to require Iran to meet its obligations under the Accords to replenish the Security Account. Iran filed its Statement of Defense in that case on August 31, 1995. The United States is preparing a Reply for filing on December 4, 1995.

3. The Department of State continues to present other United States Government claims against Iran, in coordination with concerned government agencies, and to respond to claims brought against the United States by Iran, in coordination with concerned government agencies.

In September 1995, the Departments of Justice and State represented the United States in the first Tribunal hearing on a government-to-government claim in 5 years. The Full Tribunal heard arguments in Cases A/15(IV) and A/24. Case A/15(IV) is an interpretive dispute in which Iran claims that the United States has violated the Algiers Accords by its alleged failure to terminate all litigation against Iran in U.S. courts. Case A/24 involves a similar interpretive dispute in which, specifically, Iran claims that the obligation of the United States under the Accords to terminate litigation prohibits a lawsuit against Iran by the McKesson Corporation from proceeding in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. The McKesson Corporation reactivated that litigation against Iran in the United States following the Tribunal's negative ruling on Foremost McKesson Incorporated's claim before the Tribunal.

Also in September 1995, Iran filed briefs in two cases, to which the United States is now preparing responses. In Case A/11, Iran filed its Hearing Memorial and Evidence. In that case, Iran has sued the United States for $10 billion, alleging that the United States failed to fulfill its obligations under the Accords to assist Iran in recovering the assets of the former Shah of Iran. Iran alleges that the United States improperly failed to (1) freeze the U.S. assets of the Shah's estate and certain U.S. assets of close relatives of the Shah; (2) report to Iran all known information about such assets; and (3) otherwise assist Iran in such litigation.

In Case A/15(II:A), 3 years after the Tribunal's partial award in the case, Iran filed briefs and evidence relating to 10 of Iran's claims against the United States Government for nonmilitary property allegedly held by private companies in the United States. Although Iran's submission was made in response to a Tribunal order directing Iran to file its brief and evidence "concerning all remaining issues to be decided by this Case," Iran's filing failed to address many claims in the case.

In August 1995, the United States filed the second of two parts of its consolidated submission on the merits in Case B/61, addressing issues of liability and compensation. As reported in my May 1995 Report, Case B/61 involves a claim by Iran for compensation with respect to primarily military equipment that Iran alleges it did not receive. The equipment was purchased pursuant to commercial contracts with more than 50 private American companies. Iran alleges that it suffered direct losses and consequential damages in excess of $2 billion in total because of the United States Government's refusal to allow the export of the equipment after January 19, 1981, in alleged contravention of the Algiers Accords.

4. Since my last report, the Tribunal has issued two important awards in favor of U.S. nationals considered dual U.S.-Iranian nationals by the Tribunal. On July 7, 1995, the Tribunal issued Award No. 565, awarding a claimant $1.1 million plus interest for Iran's expropriation of the claimant's shares in the Iranian architectural firm of Abdolaziz Farmafarmaian & Associates. On July 14, 1995, the Tribunal issued Award No. 566, awarding two claimants $129,869 each, plus interest, as compensation for Iran's taking of real property inherited by the claimants from their father. Award No. 566 is significant in that it is the Tribunal's first decision awarding dual national claimants compensation for Iran's expropriation of real property in Iran.

5. The situation reviewed above continues to implicate important diplomatic, financial, and legal interests of the United States and its nationals and presents an unusual challenge to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. The Iranian Assets Control Regulations issued pursuant to Executive Order No. 12170 continue to play an important role in structuring our relationship with Iran and in enabling the United States to implement properly the Algiers Accords. I shall continue to exercise the powers at my disposal to deal with these problems and will continue to report periodically to the Congress on significant developments.

SEC. 7. EFFECTIVE DATES AND APPLICABILITY.

This Act and the amendments made by this Act shall apply in all administrative and judicial actions pending on or commenced after the date of enactment of this Act, as a defense to any claim that any person, security, interest, or participation of the type described in this Act and the amendments made by this Act is subject to the provisions of the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, the Investment Company Act of 1940, or the Investment Advisers Act of 1940, or any State statute or regulation preempted as provided in section 6 of this Act, except as otherwise specifically provided in such Acts or State law.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY] will be recognized for 30 minutes, and the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY] will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY].

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. BLILEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2519, the Philanthropy Foundation Act of 1995.

Mr. Speaker, the far-reaching, bipartisan support of the legislation before this body today underscores the importance of the Philanthropy Protection Act of 1995 to our Nation's charitable organizations and the many people they serve.

While the genesis of this legislation is in a misguided lawsuit pending in Texas, the impact of that lawsuit has already been felt across the country—from Georgetown University to the Salvation Army. Universities, hospitals, religious groups, and other philanthropic organizations that exist to help others have been forced to cut back their planned giving programs as a result of that lawsuit.

The impact is especially devastating at this time of year—when charitable organizations normally receive a significant portion of their funding through yearend gifts.

While charitable income funds permit donors to contribute assets and receive income from the investment of those assets, there is a vital distinction between a charitable income fund and an investment company. That distinction is the intent of the contributors to the fund. A person who invests money in an investment company has one primary goal: to make money. A person who contributes through a charitable income fund also has one primary goal: to give money away. These different goals mandate regulation that recognizes the distinction between the two.

The Philanthropic Protection Act will make it clear that charitable income funds are not investment vehicles. But the act will not open any loopholes for those who would dress up a fraudulent scheme in benevolent clothing. The antifraud provisions of the Federal securities laws will continue to apply to charitable organizations and income funds—so that criminals who create Ponzi schemes like the new era fraud will continue to be prosecuted.

The amendment in the nature of a substitute that I have offered clarifies and makes more efficient the exemption from the Federal securities laws that this legislation provides.

The amendment adds two additional categories of revocable assets to the types of assets that exempt charitable income funds may hold under this legislation.

The Securities and Exchange Commission staff has expressed concern in the past that a person who donates revocable assets may not have donative intent, but, rather, the intent of an investor.

However, under certain circumstances, the donative intent of donors who give revocable gifts is reasonably certain. The amendment prescribes two circumstances in which the donative intent of a donor is not put into doubt by a gift's revocability.

This amendment will make compliance with the terms of the legislation's exemptions less costly to charitable organizations and the Securities and Exchange Commission by eliminating the need for the Commission to promulgate a rule or process an exemptive application to address situations where there really is no question as to donative intent of a donor.

This act is one component of a two-fold legislative effort by the Commerce Committee and the Judiciary Committee, and I applaud Judiciary Committee Chairman HYDE for introducing H.R. 2525, The Charitable Gift Annuity Antitrust Relief Act of 1995, to complete this effort.

The Judiciary Committee's legislation correctly excludes the application of its terms to the prohibition in section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act against deceptive acts or practices. That prohibition lies within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Commerce Committee.

For the same reasons we have maintained the applicability of the antifraud provisions of the securities laws in the Philanthropy Protection Act of 1995, the Federal and State laws that prohibit deceptive acts or practices should continue to protect charitable organizations and the donors who contribute to them.

However, the use of joint annuity rates by charitable organizations is not, in and of itself, a deceptive act or practice for purposes of the Federal Trade Commission Act and similar State statutes. It has been brought to my attention that plaintiffs have sought to use consumer protection statutes similar to the deceptive acts or practices prohibition of the Federal Trade Commission Act to attack antitrust conduct where antitrust remedies are not available. At least one State supreme court has dismissed such a case, refusing to reward creative pleading at the expense of consistent application of legal principles.

The Federal Trade Commission Act is not intended to serve as a back door through which plaintiffs may seek to revoke charitable donations by disguising antitrust allegations as consumer protection claims.

I would like to take a few moments to thank Congressman FIELDS for bringing this legislation to the attention of the committee. I also would like to thank ranking members Congressman DINGELL and Congressman MARKEY for their hard work and co-sponsorship of this legislation.

I also commend you, Mr. Speaker, for your work in bringing the Corrections

Calendar to fruition to enable this Congress to consider matters such as the Philanthropy Protection Act of 1995 on this streamlined and expedited basis. Congresswoman VUCANOVITCH should also be recognized for her excellent work in making the Corrections Calendar such a success.

Finally, I would like to thank Linda Dallas Rich, Steve Cope, and Brian McCullough of our staff for their diligent and excellent work on this initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2519, the Philanthropy Protection Act of 1995. I am very pleased to have cosponsored the legislation, along with the gentleman from Texas [Mr. FIELDS], the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY], the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. DINGELL], and I want to compliment at this time the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE] and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CONYERS] for their work on the companion piece of legislation which is moving through the House this afternoon on the same subject.

Mr. Speaker, H.R. 2519 clarifies the exemptions provided in the Federal securities laws for charitable organizations. Under existing law, companies organized exclusively for religious, educational, benevolent, fraternal, or charitable purposes traditionally have been exempted from the registration and reporting requirements established for investment companies, investment advisers, and issuers of securities. These exemptions have reflected a longstanding congressional intent that such organizations should not be asked to comply with the comprehensive scheme of investor protection regulations designed to protect investors in the securities of for-profit corporations.

Over the years, the SEC staff has issued a series of interpretive no-action letters that have spelled out the precise contours of these exemptions, thereby giving assurances to the charitable community that their fundraising activities would not result in any SEC enforcement action being brought against them. This arrangement worked quite well until very recently, when a class action lawsuit filed in the State of Texas placed a cloud of uncertainty over the exempt status of charitable donation funds.

This lawsuit has alleged that the charitable donation funds maintained by the defendants are operating illegally as unregistered investment companies and that the gift annuities offered by these charities are illegal unregistered securities. While there is good reason to believe that this lawsuit ultimately would not prevail on the merits, its very existence has created great uncertainty, confusion, and concern within the philanthropic community.

At the subcommittee's hearing last month, we heard testimony from several charitable and educational organizations, including the Massachusetts General Hospital, that the lawsuit in Texas has already had a chilling effect upon its donations. We also heard from the president of the Boston-based National Council of Planned Giving that this lawsuit was having an adverse impact on charities throughout New England.

H.R. 2519 would eliminate the legal uncertainties raised by the Texas lawsuit by writing into the statute the longstanding SEC staff interpretive report of the nature and scope of the charitable organization exemptions. To ensure that the exemptions in the bill would not provide a loophole that would permit fraudulent activity, the legislation provides that the antifraud provisions of the Federal and State securities laws apply to charitable donation pools and the organizations that operate them.

Again, I am pleased to be a cosponsor of this bipartisan consensus piece of legislation. I applaud the gentleman from Texas [Mr. FIELDS] and the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY] for their expeditious bringing of the legislation to the floor before the end of the year when so many Americans make their decisions as to whether or not they are going to be making large charitable donations.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD an editorial in this matter which recently appeared in the Boston Globe.

The document referred to is as follows:

[From the Boston Globe, Oct. 16, 1995]
AN UNCHARITABLE LAWSUIT

Federal Judge Joe Kendall has a choice to make. Sitting in his Dallas chambers, he will soon decide whether to expose America's charitable institutions to an ignoble lawsuit that could cost them billions of dollars.

In 1988, Louise Peter, now 90, of Wichita Falls, Texas, gave her $800,000 estate to the Lutheran Foundation in an arrangement known as a charitable gift annuity. At regular intervals the foundation pays Peter a certain sum based upon the value of her donation. In return, the charity keeps the Peter fortune upon her death.

The annuities make sense. Donors minimize taxes and are able to enjoy their philanthropy while still alive. Charities, whose burdens burgeon with each pass of Washington's budget buzzsaw, enjoy greater and more consistent revenue.

The only people who have reason to feel less than happy about the annuities are some of the would-be heirs who are passed over. The family of Louise Peter wants her money.

Peter's grandniece, Dorothy Ozee, sued the Lutheran Foundation for issuing the annuity without an insurance license and for administering the Peter estate without license as a trust company. Ozee also accused the foundation of breaking federal antitrust laws by following the payout recommendations of the nonprofit American Council on Gift Annuities. Judge Kendall's preliminary ruling favored the greedy niece. Now he has to rule on her petition to make the lawsuit a class action against almost the entirety of America's philanthropic community. If the class is certified and the suit succeeds, the charities may be required to return billions in contributions plus treble damages.

That is absurd. Charitable gift annuities have represented a legitimate way to help others for more than 100 years. Congress should quickly follow the Texas Legislature's lead and reiterate that the regulations in question were never meant to apply to charities. Judge Kendall's duty is to put an end to Ozee's bitter agenda of revenge.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to be an original cosponsor of H.R. 2519, the Philanthropy Protection Act of 1995, and I rise in support of the bill. I commend the chairman of the subcommittee, Mr. FIELDS, for his strong leadership in introducing this bill and shepherding it through the hearing and markup process so promptly. I also commend the chairman of the Commerce Committee, Mr. BLILEY, for bringing this legislation to the House floor today. I want to thank both gentlemen for the bipartisan and cooperative manner in which this bill has been handled by you and your able staff.

Time is of the essence. As spelled out in our committee's report (104-333) on this bill, abusive litigation currently pending in Texas poses a grave threat to numerous charitable organizations who have been appropriately operating in compliance with the terms and conditions of no-action letters granted by the Securities and Exchange Commission. H.R. 2519 is part of a twofold legislative effort that includes H.R. 2525, the Charitable Gift Annuity Antitrust Relief Act of 1995, which has been reported to the House by the Judiciary Committee. This combined legislation will eliminate the bases for antitrust and securities law claims against charitable organizations who make legitimate use of joint annuity rates.

With respect to matters under the Commerce Committee's jurisdiction, H.R. 2519 would codify current SEC practice under the Federal securities laws and confirm Congress' intent—that the Federal securities laws apply to investments in securities, not to gift giving. Members should note that this bill does not affect the reach or scope of the antifraud provisions of the Federal securities laws and that those laws would continue to prohibit "Ponzi" schemes and any other frauds perpetrated under the guise of charitable activity. In other words, H.R. 2519 will not cut back in any way the authority or ability of the SEC to prosecute to the fullest extent activity such as that widely reported earlier this year in connection with the Foundation For New Era Philanthropy.

Finally, the Federal Trade Commission Act is not intended to serve as a back door through which plaintiffs may seek to revoke charitable donations by disguising antitrust allegations as consumer protection claims.

In closing, I believe that this bill strikes an appropriate balance between protecting investors and consumers and facilitating the ability of philanthropic entities to manage their donations.

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. FIELDS], chairman of the Subcommittee on Telecommunications and Finance of the Committee on Commerce.

(Mr. FIELDS of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FIELDS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, the goals of the Philanthropy Protection Act of 1995 before this body today echo the spirit of this season. This legislation will ensure that Americans may continue to help one another not just at holiday time, but throughout the year through gifts to charitable income funds.

We have all seen examples of the extraordinary work philanthropic organizations do. We must not allow ourselves to take this good work for granted. The funding that is provided through charitable income funds is essential to institutions like my alma mater, Baylor University—not just for providing scholarships, but for paying the bills to keep its doors open. Hospitals need the funding provided by charitable income funds not only to provide care for the sick, but also to conduct research to keep future generations healthy. Many other organizations rely on charitable income funds as a key element of their planned giving programs.

But right now many of these organizations are being forced to spend their resources on legal fees rather than the people who need their help.

The lawsuit in Texas that has given rise to the immediate need for this legislation alleges that charitable income funds are illegally unregistered investment companies. But the Investment Company Act of 1940, the Securities Act of 1933, the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 were adopted to regulate investment activity—not gift-giving.

Charitable gift annuities, charitable lead trusts, and other charitable income funds permit donors to structure gifts to suit their financial capabilities. These planned giving vehicles permit every person—not just the wealthy—to make a significant donation to an organization he wishes to support.

At the same time, it is important to note that this legislation will not affect the reach or scope of laws that guard against securities fraud—because charitable organizations and the people who give to them should be protected from disreputable people who prey on good will.

I want to emphasize my agreement with the point made by Chairman BLILEY regarding the Charitable Gift Annuity Antitrust Relief Act of 1995, introduced by Judiciary Committee Chairman HYDE and numerous distinguished cosponsors. That legislation, together with the Commerce Committee's Philanthropy Protection Act, will eliminate the basis for antitrust and securities law claims against charitable organizations that legitimately use joint annuity rates.

The exemption the Judiciary Committee's bill provides from Federal antitrust law should not be vitiated by a clever lawyer who couches an antitrust claim as a deceptive trade practice claim under section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act or any similar State law. The Texas Supreme Court, in Abbott Laboratories versus Crystal Segura, threw out a claim that used exactly this tactic. The Federal Trade Commission Act's prohibition against deceptive trade practices does not extend to antitrust claims, regardless of how those claims are manipulated.

I thank Chairman BLILEY for cosponsoring this legislation and shepherding it through the Commerce Committee so expeditiously. I also thank Congressman DINGELL for joining the bipartisan effort, as well as my good friend, Congressman ED MARKEY. I also want to thank the many other distinguished cosponsors of this legislation—the legislation's popularity speaks highly of its significance to all Americans.

I also would like to commend you, Mr. Speaker, for creating the Corrections Calendar. The expedited fashion in which the Corrections Calendar has enabled this legislation to receive the consideration of this body is invaluable to the thousands of charitable organizations that are waiting with baited breath for the threat to their funding to go away. I thank Congresswoman BARBARA VUCANOVICH for her excellent work in developing this important new tool, which will be invaluable to this Congress as we seek to accomplish our goals as efficiently and effectively as possible.

Finally, I want to thank our staff, Linda Dallas Rich, Steve Cope, and Brian McCullough, for their dedication and hard work on this initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. WAXMAN].

Mr. WAXMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am a member of the Corrections Day Advisory Group, and I support this bill that is before us today and the other bills that are going to be considered on the Corrections Calendar.

I last spoke about the corrections day on the House floor in June when we considered setting up a correction day. At that time, I raised the concern that the calendar would become a fast track for special interests to stop regulations to protect public health and the environment. Today, I am here to say that this has not happened and to commend the corrections day process.

The guidelines we developed for the Corrections Day Advisory Committee say that a corrections bill should address laws and regulations that are ambiguous, arbitrary, or ludicrous. The bill should be noncontroversial and have broad bipartisan support. The idea was to provide a forum for correcting silly, burdensome regulations that might not otherwise get the attention they deserve.

The Chair of the advisory group is the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH]. Under her leadership, we have been learning how to apply these guidelines to the many bills that come before the Corrections Day Advisory Group.

The advisory group in general, and Chairman VUCANOVICH in particular, has been doing an excellent job in managing this Corrections Calendar. We have truly been identifying needless, burdensome regulations that can be corrected on the Corrections Calendar without controversy and with broad bipartisan support. At the same time, we have been rejecting bills that do not meet the corrections day criteria because they are controversial or address significant policy issues that should be considered under regular legislative procedures.

There are many examples of worthwhile corrections day bills that the House has enacted or is considering. The bill before us right now is an excellent example. Earlier this month, we passed a corrections bill that eliminated a duplicative reporting requirement relating to cardiac pacemakers, the Committee on Commerce reported a corrections bill that eliminates duplicative warning notices for products containing saccharin, and I hope we will also be able to deal with the issue of ride-sharing under the Clean Air Act in a way that meets the criteria of the Corrections Calendar.

I am particularly pleased to report that the existence of this Corrections Calendar has persuaded agencies to correct problems on their own. Let me give an example.

In September, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. NUSSLE] brought a bill to the advisory committee that addressed a technical problem in the Clean Air Act. The problem was that the grain elevators that operate seasonally were being treated by air pollution regulators as if they were operated year round. The result was that these elevators might be classified as a major pollution source subject to permitting requirements.

Congresswoman VUCANOVICH and I wrote the EPA Administrator Carol Browner about the issue, informing her that this appeared to be a candidate for the Corrections Calendar. The Administrator investigated the issue, agreed that there was a problem that needed correcting, and promised to issue new guidelines correcting the grain elevator problem.

On November 14, the EPA fulfilled its commitment and issued the new guideline. The National Feed and Grain Association commended EPA on this action and estimated that the savings would be $10 to $20 million annually.

In closing, I particularly want to commend the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH]. When the Corrections Day Advisory Committee first met, she said she wanted to feel her way step-by-step in establishing fair and appropriate procedures for Corrections Day. She has done an excellent job feeling her way. Speaking as one who initially had doubts about how the Corrections Day process would be handled, I am pleased to be able to say that it has been handled very fairly and productively under the leadership of the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH].

The bill that is before us right now and the other bills on the calendar today under this procedure deserve the support of Members of the House. I hope that the Corrections Day Advisory Committee will present other worthwhile measures for the House to consider and to pass through this expedited procedure.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY] for giving me this opportunity to address this subject.

Mr. FIELDS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentlewoman from Nevada [Mrs. VUCANOVICH].

Mrs. VUCANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I would also like to thank the gentleman from California [Mr. WAXMAN] for the nice comments that he made just a few minutes ago.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2519 and H.R. 2525, which address a critical need of the charitable community.

When we were working to establish corrections day we included in our definition of a corrections bill matters relating to court decisions. There was some discussion about the need for corrections day to deal with court decisions, and a general concern that we were designing a system to override, in a capricious way, all decisions we didn't agree with. At the time, it was difficult to cite an example of the type of case we had in mind. Now, here today we have the perfect example.

A court in Texas is considering Richie versus American Council on Gift Annuities in which it is alleged that the use of the same annuity rate by the various charities constitutes price fixing, and is thus a violation of the antitrust laws. This case has been certified as a class action suit greatly expanding its potential impact on the charitable community.

I think this is a clear example of a court case and possible decision that will have serious harmful impact. There is no evidence that this system of fixing annuity rates among charities causes any harm, in fact, the fixing of rates insures that giving decisions are made based on the merits of the charity rather than on the merits of the investment.

The House should put a stop to this misguided effort immediately, and I hope the other body will take up this legislation without delay.

Before I end today I would like to say a few words about corrections day in general and the progress we are making in perfecting the corrections process.

Last week this House passed a bill sponsored by Mr. WAXMAN and me to delete the heart pacemaker registry. As most Members know, Mr. WAXMAN and I seldom find ourselves on the same side of any issue. Despite our different outlooks, I must say that we have worked together very well over the last several months in getting corrections day to fulfill its purpose.

We have a very good group of people on our advisory group, who have been toiling away in anonymity and not always with much appreciation. The 12 of us, Mr. ZELIFF, Mr. MCINTOSH, Mr. SOLOMON, Mr. DREIER, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. EHRLICH, Mr. WAXMAN, Mr. COLLIN PETERSON, Mr. CONDIT, Ms. RIVERS, and Mr. BECERRA have been meeting regularly since mid-July. During these months we have listened to many Members of Congress present their proposals for corrections day and worked diligently to get a flow of bills to the floor. I'm proud to say that we have made great progress.

Today marks the 5th corrections day. The House has passed a total of seven bills under this procedure and today we will pass bills eight and nine. One bill, the Edible Oil Regulatory Reform Act, has been signed into law by the President.

An additional benefit to this process has been the attention corrections day has brought to the regulatory process. We have found that by our advisory group looking into an issue we may be able to resolve the differences between the Federal agency and the constituent who is having a problem. As an example, Mr. WAXMAN mentioned our intervention on behalf of Congressman NUSSLE and his constituents resulted in a positive resolution of a problem between the grain elevator operators and the EPA.

In a time when the media is characterizing this institution as gridlocked, and the public view is that we are unable to solve the Nation's problems, it is encouraging to see that our legislative system can be made to work for the benefit of the average American. Again, Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank the gentleman from Virginia [Mr. BLILEY], the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], and especially the gentleman from California [Mr. WAXMAN]. Also, I would like to thank the various staff members who have worked on this corrections day process.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. STARK].

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MARKEY].

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2519 and again to repeat from the previous week my urge that there is nothing we need more around here than corrections.

I would like to explain that the most correcting that is needed is not entirely addressed by H.R. 2519 by charities alone but also is to do away with the approach that the congressional Republicans have taken in their budget.

Referring to H.R. 2519, we clearly need to encourage more charitable giving. A summer study of 100 charities showed that, based on the Republican budget, they alone would cause the Nation's charities a $250 billion shortfall between 1996 and 2002. Now, it may just be coincidental that that is almost the amount of the tax cut that the Republicans intend to give to their rich friends. However, the head of the independent sector, Dr. Sara Melendez, says that the Nation's nonprofits will not only be unable to provide services at their current levels but their capacity will be so reduced that they will be incapable of meeting the increasing services that are projected for the new needs created by the Federal reductions in entitlement programs by 2002.

Now, H.R. 2519 takes a small step in correcting that. However, when we look at the huge problem that has been created by the Republican budget, and I quote here; for example, the study shows that the Lutheran Social Services of Michigan will have a shortfall of almost 280,000 days in nursing homes for the elderly.

The Crittendon Family Services in Columbus, OH, will serve 13 percent fewer people in their Family Preservation Services program.

The Arkansas Easter Seal Society will serve 20 percent fewer children in its early intervention program for children with disabilities.

In Houston, TX, the Family Resources Society will have to turn away 20,000 children from its Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment program, all because of the Republican budget cuts.

The Jewish Family Service of Los Angeles, CA, will be unable to meet the needs of some 80,000 meals for its Meals to the Elderly program.

If the participating organizations are to make up their program revenue with private giving, which H.R. 2519 will help them do, the contributions would have to increase by 125 percent from the previous year over and above expected increases.

Now, when we are going to cut services to the elderly from 17 to 9 percent, nursing homes for the elderly from 42 to 30 percent, community development programs from 50 to 31 percent, home health care from 39 to 27 percent, legal services from 40 to 4 percent, food services from 46 to 40 percent, we need H.R. 2519.

Because the Republican draconian cuts that impact the poor and the disadvantaged, which these charities under H.R. 2519 are designed to serve, and where that money is being given, the $245 billion that is being cut and given to the very rich in tax cuts, we can only hope that H.R. 2519 will encourage those same rich Republicans who get the $245 billion in tax cuts to give a little bit of it back. The harm they are causing the poor, the elderly, the disadvantaged, the disabled in this country and the young children is so huge that one wonders if this little correction is going to be enough to overcome that awful, heartless cutting and gutting of the social programs that protect the needy and the disadvantaged in this country.

While I urge my colleagues to vote for H.R. 2519, I urge them to remember that we cannot let this budget that the Republicans have suggested go through, giving all of this $245 billion in tax cuts to rich, taking it out of the hides of the poor. H.R. 2519, while it is a good bill, will do a little bit but not nearly enough to correct the egregious error and hurt that the Republicans are inflicting on American society.

Mr. RICHARDSON. Mr. Speaker I would like to voice support for this bipartisan legislation and I would like to commend Mr. BLILEY, Mr. FIELDS, Mr. MARKEY, and Mr. DINGELL for expediting this important bill.

Some years ago the New Mexico Boys Ranch, Inc. became a member of the Committee on Gift Annuities—now American Council on Gift Annuities—because they were told that the Securities and Exchange Commission and the U.S. Treasury Dept. utilized the committee to ensure that charities were properly trained and equipped to issue and administer charitable gift annuities to their donors. They were told that being a member was essential to demonstrate to both government regulators and donors that as a charity they were qualified to participate in this area of deferred giving.

This legislation will clarify that the American Council on Gift Annuities has not violated the law. It will dismantle a pending lawsuit that would otherwise limit the ability of the new Mexico Boys and Girls Ranches to provide services to children and potentially bankrupt and close the ranches permanently.

Because the future of philanthropy in the United States as we now know it is at stake and the future of the New Mexico Boys and Girls Ranches and many other new Mexico charities is threatened, I am wholeheartedly supportive of H.R. 2519.

NEW MEXICO

BOYS RANCH & GIRLS RANCH,
Albuquerque, NM, October 30, 1995.

Congressman BILL RICHARDSON,
Rayburn House Office Bldg.,
Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE RICHARDSON, Years ago the New Mexico Boys Ranch, Inc. became a member of the Committee on Gift Annuities (now American Council on Gift Annuities) because we were told that the Securities and Exchange Commission and the United States Treasury Dept. utilized the committee to ensure that charities were properly trained and equipped to issue and administer charitable gift annuities to their donors. I was told that being a member was essential to demonstrate to both government regulators and donors that as a charity we were qualified to participate in this area of deferred giving.

I learned recently that a federal lawsuit had been filed in Texas that alleges that the American Council on Gift Annuities violated antitrust laws by providing actuarial tables to charities to assist them in determining the annuity rates for charitable gift annuities and that commingling of more than one charities' trust funds in a pooled income fund is a violation of the Investment Company Act of 1940, and other securities laws.

To my astonishment I learned last week that now the attorneys for the plaintiff have been granted class action certification to expand the suit to charities in every state. The plaintiff attorneys want to force charities to return all charitable gift annuities to the donors plus treble damages. With New Mexico Boys and Girls Ranch Foundation as a member of the American Council on Gift Annuities in the past, this would obviously greatly limit the ability of the New Mexico Boys and Girls Ranches to provide services to children and has the potential of bankrupting and closing the ranches permanently.

Because the future of philanthropy in the United States as we now know it is at stake and the future of the New Mexico Boys and Girls Ranches and many other New Mexico charities is threatened, I am urgently asking you to co-sponsor (if you have not already done so) and support HR 2519, introduced jointly by Representative Thomas Bailey of Virginia, Chairman of the House Commerce Committee and Representative Jack Fields of Texas, Chairman of that committee's subcommittee on Telecommunications and Finance. I also urge you to co-sponsor and support HR 2525, introduced by representative Henry Hyde, Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

I would deeply appreciate hearing from you as soon as possible. I thank you in advance for your help in addressing this crisis. I honestly feel that the work of the charitable community throughout this nation will be seriously damaged if this legislation is not passed very soon.

Sincerely yours,

MICHAEL H. KULL,
President.

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of H.R. 2519, legislation to modify our federal securities laws to preclude litigation that is threatening the future funding of our Nation's numerous philanthropic organizations.

Philanthropic organizations are some of the most important organizations in the United States today. These charitable, religious and educational groups have the laudable goal of providing assistance, support and hope to those in society that may need a helping hand.

When an individual makes the generous decision to contribute to a charitable donation fund, the charity should not be prevented from enjoying the benefits derived from that contribution because some disgruntled relative, feeling that the money should go in their pockets, makes a claim on the money. Such relatives should not be allowed to initiate lawsuits on these grounds especially when the donor made a valid gift with sufficient donative intent.

Charitable donations funds fall outside the purview of our securities laws for the simple reason that donors do not intend to reap high returns on their investments. Instead they are seeking to make a gift to charity.

I urge all my colleagues to support H.R. 2519 to prevent contributions intended for charitable donation funds out of the pockets of selfish relatives.

CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITY ANTITRUST RELIEF ACT OF 1995

The Clerk called the bill (H.R. 2525) to modify the operation of the antitrust laws, and of State laws similar to the antitrust laws, with respect to charitable gift annuities.

The Clerk read the bill, as follows:

H.R. 2525

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Charitable Gift Annuity Antitrust Relief Act of 1995".

SEC. 2. MODIFICATION OF ANTITRUST LAWS.

(a) EXEMPT CONDUCT.—Except as provided in subsection (b), it shall not be unlawful under any of the antitrust laws, or under a State law similar to any of the antitrust laws, for 2 or more persons described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 501(c)(3)) that are exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code to use, or to agree to use, the same annuity rate for the purpose of issuing 1 or more charitable gift annuities.

(b) LIMITATION.—Subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to the enforcement of a State law similar to any of the antitrust laws, with respect to conduct described in subsection (a) occurring after the State enacts a statute, not later than 3 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, that expressly provides that subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to such conduct.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

For purposes of this Act:

(1) ANNUITY RATE.—The term "annuity rate" means the percentage of the fair market value of a gift (determined as of the date of the gift) given in exchange for a charitable gift annuity, that represents the amount of the annual payment to be made to 1 or 2 annuitants over the life of either or both under the terms of the agreement to give such gift in exchange for such annuity.

(2) ANTITRUST LAWS.—The term "antitrust laws" has the meaning given it in subsection

(a) of the first section of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 12), except that such term includes section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 45) to the extent that such section 5 applies to unfair methods of competition.

(3) CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITY.—The term "charitable gift annuity" has the meaning given it in section 501(m)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 501(m)(5)).

(4) PERSON.—The term "person" has the meaning given it in subsection (a) of the first section of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 12(a)).

(5) STATE.—The term "State" has the meaning given it in section 4G(2) of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 15g(2)).

SEC. 4. APPLICATION OF ACT.

This Act shall apply with respect to conduct occurring before, on, or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE] and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CONYERS] each will be recognized for 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE].

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on H.R. 2525.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Illinois?

There was no objection.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 2525, the Charitable Gift Annuity Antitrust Relief Act, which provides antitrust protection for nonprofit organizations that issue charitable gift annuities. H.R. 2525 has been crafted in an extremely narrow manner, so as to protect only very limited conduct and to avoid application to any potential anti-competitive conduct. I am pleased to be joined by the ranking member of the Judiciary Committee, Mr. CONYERS, in sponsoring this bipartisan measure.

Charitable gift annuities are one of the oldest and most commonly used planned giving vehicles in existence today. Many charities, including relatively small ones, issue dozens of gift annuity contracts each year, and they do so within rules established by the Internal Revenue Code. You have all probably seen the advertisements for charities that promise to "pay you an income for life." This is what a gift annuity does, and it is the kind of giving that H.R. 2525 is designed to protect.

When a person enters into a gift annuity agreement, he or she is actually doing two things—making a charitable gift and purchasing a fixed income for life. Probably, if the donor could afford to do so, he or she would turn over to the organization as an outright gift the entire amount paid for the annuity; but the donor needs to make some provision for income while alive. The important thing to remember is that gift annuities are not arms-length commercial insurance transactions. Donors expect charities to benefit from their gift, and they know the charities will pay less income than banks or insurance companies.

The annuity rate applied to the value of the gift is the critical element in ensuring that the transaction will result in a meaningful gift to the charity. The American Council on Gift Annuities, a nonprofit organization representing more than 1,500 charitable organizations and institutions, assists its members in determining annuity rates which will produce an average gift to the organization of between 40 and 60 percent of the amount originally donated under the agreement.

H.R. 2525 addresses the application of the antitrust laws, and of similar State laws, to the issuance of charitable gift annuities and the publication and distribution of suggested annuity rates for charitable gift annuities—the activities of the American Council and other charitable organizations. In defining the application of the law as it pertains to charitable gift annuities, the bill addresses issues raised in a class action lawsuit brought in the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Wichita Falls Division. This lawsuit charges that use of the annuity rates recommended by the council constitutes price fixing, and thus violates the antitrust laws.

Mr. Speaker, I believe in the vigorous and nondiscriminatory application of the antitrust laws, and as a general matter, I do not favor exemptions or exclusions from the antitrust laws. In this limited instance, however, it would serve no public policy purpose to subject the calculation of charitable gifts to antitrust scrutiny.

First of all, it is not at all certain that the use of consistent annuity rates would be found to be a violation of the antitrust laws. The answer depends on whether the issuance of gift annuities is deemed “pure charity” or a “commercial transaction with a public service aspect.” If it is considered “pure charity,” the conduct is not trade or commerce, and therefore not within the scope of the antitrust laws.

Even if the issuance of charitable annuities were considered trade or commerce, a court might well find that use of the same annuity rates is not anticompetitive in effect. It is particularly difficult to see what anticompetitive effect the supposed setting of prices has in a context where the decision to give is motivated not by price but by interest in and commitment to a charitable mission. Furthermore, it is unclear whether the selection of an annuity rate could be characterized as the setting of a price: in this instance an annuity rate merely determines the portion of the donation to be returned to the donor, and the portion the charity will retain. Donors are not primarily buying an annuity; they are making a gift.

Notwithstanding the serious doubts as to whether the alleged conduct would be considered a violation of the antitrust laws, the current litigation is causing charities to expend massive amounts of time and resources on defending their positions. It is also forcing these organizations to make public information about their donors, a fact which makes people who guard their privacy reluctant to give. In addition, the class action certification makes donors—people who want to help their charities—into unwilling adversaries, causing the charities to expend donated funds opposing those who gave the funds in the first place.

If the plaintiffs in the class action lawsuit prevail, thousands of charities nationwide would be required to refund donations and to pay treble damages. This would mean that virtually every charitable organization in America is threatened with losses which could total billions of dollars.

Our goal should be to encourage gift giving through legitimate means, and particularly through instruments which the IRS approves and regulates. Gift annuities carry this imprimatur. Regardless of the outcome of the suit, there is no denying that it has had and will continue to have a chilling effect on gift giving and that it is consuming financial resources which would otherwise be allocated to charitable millions. This loss to society far outweighs any possible benefit from the application of the antitrust laws to the setting and use of charitable annuity rates.

To eliminate the uncertainty raised by this litigation, and to ensure the proper public policy result, H.R. 2525 makes clear that charities' use of the same annuity rates when they issue gift annuities does not violate Federal or State antitrust laws. The antitrust protection provided by H.R. 2525 is intended to extend to attorneys, accountants, actuaries, consultants and others retained or employed by a person described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, when assisting in the issuance of charitable gift annuities or the setting of charitable annuity rates.

I urge my colleagues to join me in protecting the charities of this country by voting in favor of H.R. 2525. I also urge my colleagues to support complementary legislation introduced by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. FIELDS] which addresses allegations of securities and insurance law violations contained in the class action suit. Enactment of that bill, H.R. 2519, along with H.R. 2525, will ensure that the vital work of charitable organizations can continue without the threat of crippling lawsuits.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. CONYERS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased this day to join with the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. HYDE], the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary, in cosponsoring legislation that will help our non-profits solicit charitable gifts which are so vital to their long-term operation and exclude them from being subjected to the possibility of unnecessary antitrust litigation.

As the Members of this body know so well, I support antitrust laws and their vigorous exercise thereof, and I am pleased to note that the ever-watchful Assistant Attorney General Anne Bingaman of the Antitrust Division has not had anything to do with the bringing of this case. This case was not brought nor was the Department of Justice involved in it in any way.

I favor the enforcement of antitrust laws and normally am very careful about exclusions or exemptions to the antitrust law. This limited instance, however, I believe, is one so important and so vital to public policy purpose that to subject the calculation of charitable gifts to antitrust scrutiny is something that we might want to avoid. Moreover, the bill has been crafted in an extremely narrow manner, and so it will not apply to any potential anticompetitive conduct.

The measure before us will overturn a legal action brought in a Federal court challenging the actions of the American Council on Gift Annuities in recommending annuity rates for non-profits. These annuity rates represent complex calculations which allow donors to receive a reasonable future income and a tax deduction while preserving much of the gift's value for the charity. If the courts find the antitrust laws apply to these actions, it would cost our charities billions of dollars in resources and this would come at the expense of urgently needed civic and charitable needs at a time when they are more vital than ever to those who need them.

I would like to point out that the case that has been referenced has not been concluded. No decision has been rendered. And so we are acting in a very zealous fashion to make sure that no outcome that would cast a doubt over many of the activities of non-profits could ever occur.

I must make one observation, though, that we are here under the corrections day calendar, Mr. Speaker. There have been 5 correction days and 7 bills so far, but might I point out that this measure could have perhaps more properly been brought under suspension of the rules. We have bipartisan support, there is little opposition, but to suggest that the Sherman Act and the Clayton Act, the antitrust laws of the Federal Government, should be subject to a corrections day revision I do not think speaks very thoughtfully about the importance of our bill, and the fact that the amendment we are making is neither ludicrous nor arbitrary. It is a serious change that we are making. We are making it in anticipation of a decision that nobody knows what would have happened. I think we are quite properly removing a cloud from over charitable gifts in the first place.

With that very minor and I hope not too nagging technicality, I also, as an original cosponsor of the legislation, urge Members to support the passage of this measure.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California [Mr. STARK].

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his kindness.

I want to support H.R. 2525, granting antitrust relief to charitable gift annuities, because we are going to need some more charitable gifts.

Now, to my modern-day pharisees on the other side of the aisle, I would point out it is, indeed, a Christian thing to do to encourage giving. The Bible uses the word "give" 862 times, and the phrase "stop giving" does not appear at all. But the Republicans are stopping giving.

H.R. 2525 may help that. But I wonder, and I am not a lawyer so I would have to rely on the Committee on the Judiciary, low-income energy assistance is being cut. Should we, therefore, give an exemption to the oil companies?

Food stamps are being capped and cut 20 percent.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, point of order. Should the gentleman's remarks be confined to the bill and not to extraneous matter that may be lurking within his fertile imagination?

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARR). The gentleman is correct. The Chair would admonish the gentleman from California to limit his remarks to the subject matter of H.R. 2525 currently pending before this body.

Mr. STARK. I thank the Speaker, and I shall continue to talk about granting of antitrust relief to encourage gift annuities, which I believe is the bill, the nexus of the relationship.

For instance, Medicare, which is being cut where it pays for debt for low-income seniors, the hospitals very much want an antitrust exemption, which is really the nexus of this bill.

Would it not be wise to correct the Republican mistake of cutting Medicare and to give hospitals an antitrust exemption?

Or, in the same vein, H.R. 2525 allows antitrust relief. Would it not be good to give antitrust relief to the landlords of Macy's and Wal-Mart because of the $33 billion in earned income tax credits being cut out of low-income people while rich people will not need it? I suggest that is within the nexus of H.R. 2525 and antitrust relief.

Finally, college aid is being cut $5 billion. Last weekend Muskingum College in Ohio was dropping tuition from $13,000 a year to $9,000 a year. I remember when MIT and the Ivy leagues were clamped for antitrust for getting together on student aid.

Why not give the college antitrust relief? Then we will not need the college loan program that the Republican are gutting.

So I say support H.R. 2525. Start a movement. Replace the $254 billion in charitable cuts the Republicans are making with a Thousand Points of Light.

I urge support of the bill.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to add my support to the effort being made to assist our Nation's charities, universities, hospitals, and other organizations that hold as their sole objective assisting the needy. The Philanthropy Protection Act and the Charitable Gift Annuity Antitrust Relief Act are necessary steps toward restoring the interpretation of the purpose of charitable gifts. Without these two pieces of legislation, the foundation for donating charitable gifts and trusts will be eliminated.

Because of a lawsuit filed in my district, organizations ranging from the Girl Scouts of America and the Southern Baptist Foundation to the Red Cross and Texas Tech University will be in true danger of losing their primary source of revenue. In an era when we are asking Americans to take greater responsibility for themselves, their families, and their neighbors, we must protect charitable organizations' ability to continue their work.

The two acts offered on the House floor today will establish charitable gift annuities as an exemption from Federal antitrust and securities laws that require interest return at market rates. This will enable charitable organizations to continue to accept planned giving donations from individuals, pay out reasonable annual returns to the donor and provide the excess interest to benevolent activities.

People who give charitable gifts do not do it to get rich—they do it mainly to help others. Using charitable gift annuities and charitable trusts makes it possible for donors to make a contribution, while still retaining some income from their gift. This flexible arrangement allows the funds to be used to care for and educate the less fortunate while at the same time providing investment income for the donor.

In light of the immense benefit of these kind of gifts, it is only unfortunate that these bills were precipitated by some heirs seeking to retain the donations for their own use. Although this originated in the 13th District in Texas, the effects of these two acts will benefit the entire Nation. It is for these reasons that I am proud to join in this bipartisan effort.

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, I just want to say how pleasant it is to have the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. CONYERS] on our side.

Mr. Speaker, I have no further requests for time, and I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the previous question is ordered.

EXPRESSING THANKS AND GOOD WISHES TO HON. GEORGE M. WHITE ON HIS RETIREMENT AS ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL

Mr. THOMAS of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the Senate concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 33) expressing the thanks and good wishes of the American people to Hon. George M. White on the occasion of his retirement as the Architect of the Capitol, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate concurrent resolution.

The text of the Senate concurrent resolution is as follows:

S. CON. RES. 33

Whereas at its inception, the Capitol of the United States of America was blessed to rise under the hand of some of this Nation's greatest architects, including Dr. William Thornton, Benjamin Henry Latrobe, and Charles Bullfinch;

Whereas prior to the Honorable George Malcolm White, FAIA, being appointed by President Nixon on January 27, 1971, it had been 106 years since a professional architect had been named to the post of Architect of the Capitol;

Whereas Mr. White has served the Congress through an unprecedented period of growth and modernization, using to advantage his professional accreditation in architecture, engineering, law, and business;

Whereas Mr. White has prepared the Capitol Complex for the next century by developing the "Master Plan for the Future Development of the Capitol Grounds and Related Areas";

Whereas Mr. White has added new buildings to the Capitol grounds as authorized by Congress, including the Thurgood Marshall Federal Judiciary Building, the Philip A. Hart Senate Office Building, and the Library of Congress James Madison Memorial Building, and through acquisition and renovation, the Thomas P. O'Neill and Gerald R. Ford House Office Buildings, the Webster Hall Senate Page Dormitory, and the Capitol Police Headquarters Building;

Whereas Mr. White has preserved for future generations the existing historic fabric of the Capitol Complex by faithfully restoring the Old Senate Chamber, the Old Supreme Court Chamber, National Statuary Hall, the Brumidi corridors, the Rotunda canopy and frieze, the West Central Front and Terraces of the Capitol, the House Monumental Stairs, the Library of Congress Thomas Jefferson and John Adams Buildings, and the Statue of Freedom atop the Capitol Dome;

Whereas Mr. White has greatly contributed to the preservation and enhancement of the design of the District of Columbia through his place on the District of Columbia Zoning Commission, the Commission of Fine Arts, the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation, and other civic organizations and commissions; and

Whereas upon Mr. White's retirement on November 21, 1995, he leaves a legacy of tremendous accomplishment, having made the Capitol his life's work and brought to this century the erudition and polymath's capacity of our first Architects: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That the thanks and good wishes of the American people are hereby tendered to the Honorable George M. White, FAIA, on the occasion of his retirement from the Office of the Architect of the Capitol after nearly a quarter-century of outstanding service to this nation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARR). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

Mr. FAZIO of California. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, and I will not object, but I yield to my friend, the gentleman from California [Mr. THOMAS], who might like to make some comments on the legislation.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, after almost 25 years the Architect of the Capitol, George M. White, has retired. His retirement date was November 21. This resolution was passed in the Senate on the 20th of November, and we are just now getting around to giving the recognition that Mr. White deserves. We may certainly be recognizing his retirement after the fact, but at least it is not posthumously.

Mr. White was appointed Architect of the Capitol in 1971 by President Richard Nixon. He was only the ninth Architect of the Capitol in the history of the United States. Mr. White's credentials were virtually unique. He holds both a bachelor and master's degree of science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He holds a master's in business administration from Harvard, and he has a law degree as well, a juris doctorate.

In the time that George White has been Architect of the Capitol, the Capitol as we now know it evolved. There was no Hart Building. George White oversaw the construction of the third Senate Office Building. Anyone taking a tour of the Capitol today may not know that George White was responsible for the restoration of the old Senate Chamber or the old Supreme Court chamber, the restoration of the sandstone on the west front of the Capitol, and currently the renovation of the east monumental stairs in front of the House wing of the Capitol. Visitors may not realize how much he has contributed to the ongoing preservation of the Capitol.

The most well-publicized and perhaps unique event occurring under George White's tenure as Architect was the removal from the Capitol dome of the statue Freedom by helicopter, placing it on the east front, and carrying out a restoration on this very identifiable symbol of the Capitol. Then, after restoration, with great precision and accuracy, placing Freedom back on the Capitol to be preserved for an open-ended amount of time, the first time the statue had been refurbished in 130 years.

So, although it may be after the fact, our sincerity in wishing George White many happy years and many pleasant memories goes from this body to him. I thank the gentleman from California for yielding time to me.

Mr. FAZIO of California. Mr. Speaker, if I could continue to speak on my reservation briefly, I want to add my congratulations to George White, who perhaps had more impact on this monument that we work on here, this entire complex in Capitol Hill, than many, many Members of Congress of greater renown.

George White was the last Architect of the Capitol to be appointed by a President, without any advice or consent of Congress, to an open-ended term. His 25 years here already marked by many accomplishments: the Madison Building of the Library of Congress, the effort to house the new Senate Office Building, and to build buildings for all judicial offices, all of which were contemporary buildings of real merit.

I believe his greatest contribution was to restore the Library of Congress to a jewel-like facility, which I think is one of the most appreciated buildings in the country, and certainly one of the most important period pieces in American architectural history.

Mr. White has seen a transition in the office that he headed, and now he will be succeeded by an individual who will have a new challenge, the management and maintenance of the facilities as well as the architectural development of the Capitol. They will be a seminal element in the development of this city and the Capitol complex. He deserves the commendation this resolution provides.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Senate concurrent resolution was concurred in. A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the legislation just considered.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

PROVIDING ADDITIONAL DEBATE TIME ON AMENDMENTS ON WHICH VOTE WAS POSTPONED ON H.R. 2564, LOBBYING DISCLOSURE ACT OF 1995

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that in the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2564, in the Committee of the Whole, prior to the votes on the four amendments which were considered on November 16 upon which further proceedings were postponed, that the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER], the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. ENGLISH], and the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER], each be recognized for 2½ minutes in support of their amendment, and that I be recognized for 2½ minutes in opposition to each amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

LOBBYING DISCLOSURE ACT OF 1995

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 269 and rule XXIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill, H.R. 2564.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the bill (H.R. 2564) to provide for the disclosure of lobbying activities to influence the Federal Government, and for other purposes, with Mr. KOLBE in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. When the Committee of the Whole rose on Thursday, November 16, 1995, the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER] had failed by voice vote and a request for a recorded vote had been postponed.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, there will be a period of further debate on the following amendments on which further proceedings were postponed on Thursday, November 16, 1995:

No. 1, the amendment by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX].

Second, the amendment by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

Third, the amendment by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. ENGLISH].

Fourth, the amendment by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER].

Further debate on each amendment will be limited to 5 minutes equally divided and controlled by the proponent and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY]. Such further debate shall occur at the point of the debate.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FOX OF PENNSYLVANIA

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to debate the subject matter of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX].

The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX] will be recognized for 2½ minutes, and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] will be recognized for 2½ minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX].

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

My colleagues, we have a very important mission tonight to look at some important amendments. I regard the first rule of safety in any matter as self-defense, and my amendment provides that security in a bipartisan fashion.

We passed a rule not long ago which requires that we not take gifts from lobbyists. My amendment makes sure lobbyists do not give us gifts so that we are not caught in a catch-22, being guilty of receiving gifts, not knowing about it, not disclosing it, having an ethics violation, when in fact it should not exist.

Now, there have been some erroneous arguments presented by the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY], my good friend, and I would like to explain why they are not correct. My amendment will not derail this important legislation, it will strengthen it so that we can finally attain lobby reform in a strong and logical way, and this will make sure we have true gift reform as well.

It is necessary because a ban of lobbyists presenting gifts to Members of Congress will protect Members of Congress from an unintentional failure to reject gifts. It is consistent with the Gift Reform Act that we passed under House Resolution 250. My amendment will provide reform without risk, and any differences there can be clarified within the conference committee.

It is fair because it makes lobbyists and Members equally responsible, and it makes sure that in fact they will be protected. As representatives of the people, we need to give the kind of reforms not only for lobbyists but for ourselves which the public wants.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. FRANK].

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] for yielding me this time and for his contributions on this important issue.

The issue here is whether or not we are going to have a lobbying bill. We have a history here of legislation getting killed because it gets caught up in House-Senate fights. I have filed a bill today, along with the gentleman from Texas and the gentleman from Connecticut, it is bipartisan, leaders in this fight, that take many of the amendments that will be offered that have a lot of merit and make them into a separate bill. Because if we amend this bill, the certainty is that it goes to the Senate; and the likelihood then is that no bill emerges and it becomes a way to kill it.

Mr. Chairman, the preferable way is to send this first very good step to the President and have him sign it and then for us to deal with this amendment and others in a vehicle that will soon follow.

I would ask the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY], the chairman of the subcommittee, who has done such a good leadership job in this, if he would agree, as he has told me, that we would have such a vehicle.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I would say to the gentleman that I am committed to moving forward with other aspects of this reform issue early next year, and I will certainly work with the gentleman from Massachusetts and other Members who are concerned about strengthening this bill at the right time and the right place.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER].

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, very often we have good bills that come to the floor and the chairman and the ranking members and many others have worked well to come forward with a bill that is a good bill. We have an amendment here which improves the bill, and frankly, my colleagues of the House, this is an amendment to protect Members of the House.

We all know that there are those out there who want to set up and entrap Members of Congress and their staff. This amendment will protect Members of Congress and their staff from entrapment by our political enemies who solely want to file ethics charges for campaign purposes.

Mr. Chairman, I say to my colleagues, I urge a "yes" vote. The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX] is right on the mark.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. FOX of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman and my colleagues of the House, I especially understand the importance of the lobby disclosure bill, and all Americans want to see us pass it, but I think also they want to see that we do it right with the gift ban.

When we pass a rule, there is nothing like teeth in a bill like this bill, making it better, making sure that lobbyists do not try to give us gifts: and, frankly, this is what the American people want. We want to make sure we have true reform that is meaningful. This amendment is necessary, it is consistent, it clarifies, it is fair, and it will help make the Canady bill better, not worse.

Mr. Chairman, I ask for passage of this bill and this amendment.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, let me first say that I have the utmost respect for the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX]. He is a valuable Member of the House. However, I believe that the amendment before the House today is a seriously flawed amendment, and Members should pay close attention to its flaws.

The definition of gift contained in the amendment is different from the definition of gift contained in the gift reform rule adopted by the House. Look at the two versions and you will see they are different. This inconsistency will create a mess for Members. It will not protect Members.

For example, under the gift reform rule, Members may accept food or refreshments of a nominal value, other than as part of a meal. However, under the Fox amendment, lobbyists would be banned from providing such food and refreshments of nominal value.

Under the Fox amendment, lobbyists are permitted to make donations of home State products to Members, but under the gift reform rule, Members are prohibited from accepting gifts of home State products.

These and other inconsistencies will only lead to confusion and trouble for Members, not to protection for Members.

Even more troubling, and I ask the Members to pay close attention to this, is the double standard set up by this amendment under which lobbyists who give unlawful gifts will face a civil penalty of up to $50,000, while Members are exempt from any civil penalty, no matter how many prohibited gifts they accept. Is that what we want to do in this House today? It is patently unfair.

How can we explain to the American people that we will hammer lobbyists with fines for giving gifts while we are exempt from the same fines if we accept gifts? Any attempt at an explanation to the American people will fall on deaf ears. The double standard should be rejected. This amendment should be rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. All time has expired.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CLINGER

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to debate the subject matter of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] will be recognized for 2½ minutes, and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] will be recognized for 2½ minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER].

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, the amendment we are considering at this point is an important amendment, and it is a commonsense amendment. I would not be offering this amendment, obviously, if this were a closed rule, and it would not be allowable for me to offer that, but this is an open rule.

Second, if this were not a germane amendment, I would not be offering it. They are asking for waivers, but it is a germane amendment.

The fact is I think all of us know that we have a problem in this area. Too many Federal agencies, both now and in the past, have been using taxpayer dollars to produce propaganda, lobbying material in the form of brochures and folders and flyers, et cetera, which then are disseminated out into the grassroots, out into the field and come back to us in the form of grassroots lobbying. That clearly is an impermissible activity. It is clearly one that should be illegal; and, in fact, it is illegal.

Under a law passed in 1919, it is a criminal offense to do just that, but nobody, nobody, no agency has ever been prosecuted under that criminal offense. What we would propose to do in this amendment is create a civil problem in saying, look, it is a civil offense; you cannot do this.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. FLANAGAN].

Mr. FLANAGAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, with great respect to the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER], and there is no greater foe of Astroturf lobbying and abuses of grassroots lobbying on the floor than myself, having spoken on it several times, but I would still urge a no vote on this amendment and every amendment to this, because the purpose we have today is to try and get a clean bill through to the President.

We can handle it in separate legislation, offered in a bipartisan way. We can amend what will be a law later to include great ideas like this. There are many ways that we can have these sorts of advances in the law without having to do it by clogging up this bill and actually stopping the process cold today. I urge a "no" vote.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT].

(Mr. BRYANT of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I urge Members to vote against this.

We have asked all Members to vote against these amendments so we can send a clean bill to the President and be signed.

This amendment would in effect say that the President of the United States and the Cabinet members are the only ones that could communicate on television about any matter of public importance.

What it in effect says is that they would have to answer every single press inquiry and nobody in the agency could legally talk to a radio or television reporter or to the press.

I think it is very, very overbroad, it is probably unconstitutional, and if it is important enough and deserves our action, the bill is now in the committee of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER]. He could bring the bill to the floor standing alone.

Vote against the amendment.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Louisiana [Mr. TAUZIN], a strong supporter of this amendment.

Mr. TAUZIN. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the amendment. This is the right bill for this amendment.

This bill is about inappropriate lobbying. If there is a form of inappropriate lobbying that is most pernicious, it is the use of taxpayer dollars, which are supposed to be spent to carry out Government programs, instead using those taxpayer dollars to lobby this Congress and to work in collusion with outside groups to lobby this Congress. That is an act that ought to be prohibited in the civil statutes just as it is in the criminal statutes.

By the way, this practice is not a Democrat or Republican one. It has been going on for years. We need to make it illegal.

Mr. CLINGER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time just to underscore a couple of points the gentleman from Louisiana made.

No. 1, this has been accused of being a partisan effort. It is not. Clearly this activity has gone on in many administrations. I can cite examples from the Reagan administration.

It is an amendment that will continue to be alive and well in the next administration, which those of us hope will be a Republican administration.

Second, we cannot worry always about what the other body is going to do. If we were going to circumscribe our activity by what the other body was going to do, we would never do anything over on this side. I think that is somewhat of a spurious argument.

This amendment is strongly supported by NFIB, the Chamber of Commerce, the National Taxpayers Union, Citizens Against Government Waste, and the House leadership, I might point out.

I would suggest, Mr. Chairman, that it is a good amendment, an amendment that clearly fits within this bill. It has to do with lobby reform, it has to do with inappropriate lobbying. Nothing could be more inappropriate in the way of lobbying than to have an administrative/executive branch agency producing documents which then are used in the field for grassroots lobbying. Let us put a stop to it. Let us vote for this amendment.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Although offered with the very best of intentions to address a real problem, I believe that the Clinger amendment is the wrong approach at the wrong time.

I am afraid to say that it is a poorly drafted proposal which will have an exceptionally broad impact. For example, under the Clinger amendment, agency press officers would not be allowed to answer inquiries from the press regarding the agency's position on legislative proposals. Do we really want to do that?

Agency press secretaries would not be allowed to issue press releases regarding pending information. Do we really want to do that?

Agency legislative liaison personnel would be prohibited from making public statements regarding the merits of legislative proposals. Do we really want to do that?

No hearings have been conducted on this proposal even though the issue is within the jurisdiction of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, the committee that he chairs.

This proposal involves a conflict between the legislative branch and the executive branch and is calculated to provoke a Presidential veto. Although there have been lobbying abuses by Federal agencies, we all understand that, it has been a bipartisan matter, the Clinger amendment simply goes too far. The proposal of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] should be considered and refined by the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight which the gentleman from Pennsylvania chairs. It should not be allowed to threaten this Lobbying Disclosure Reform Act. We have waited too long.

I urge Members to vote against this amendment so that we can end 40 years of gridlock and send a lobbying disclosure reform bill to the President for his signature.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. ENGLISH OF PENNSYLVANIA

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to debate the subject matter of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. ENGLISH].

The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. ENGLISH] and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] each will be recognized for 2½ minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. ENGLISH].

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1¼ minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the English-Traficant amendment and ask that the House do the right thing and slam the revolving door for all U.S. trade officials who then try to go to work for foreign interests.

The underlying bill here, which I strongly support, includes a life ban on people leaving the position of U.S. trade representative or deputy trade representative and going to work for foreign interests. It also applies a ban on individuals being hired for those positions who have previously worked for foreign interests.

I believe that it is very important that we extend this restriction to the Secretary of Commerce and to the members of the International Trade Commission. This is a clear conflict of interest. I think this is a fundamental reform necessary to protect American companies and American workers and preserve the integrity of U.S. trade law enforcement.

Mr. Chairman, we cannot allow these people to serve on one side of the table negotiating on our behalf, learn our secrets, learn our strategies, learn the inside, and then move over to the other side.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. DOGGETT].

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, this legislation presents us with a rare opportunity in this Congress to work together as people of good will, Democrats and Republicans, in a bipartisan effort to provide reform that people really want. We know that this is a statute that has not been significantly rewritten since 1946 when it was enacted. There has been one failed effort after another.

Now is not the time to let the perfect become the enemy of the good. This particular amendment is not a bad idea. In fact, I would support it as a freestanding piece of legislation, and there are numerous opportunities to put this kind of legislation on other legislation. But to put it on this particular bill at this time is to cripple and to defeat this bill.

There is only one way to get this legislation passed and to avoid the never-never land of a perfect bill, and that is to defeat this and every other amendment and to put this bill on the President's desk now and get it in place and signed into law by January. That is what we need to do tonight.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Youngstown, OH [Mr. TRAFICANT], one of the most distinguished trade warriors in this Chamber.

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Chairman, I have heard the discussion that now is not the time, we can add this to some other piece of legislation. There is no other legislation. We will not see it.

Let me make this point. If a Government official left the Department of Defense to go to work for our enemies during war, they would in fact be jailed and charged with espionage and treason. But today high-ranking officials, once they leave our service, work on behalf of foreign interests.

Now the bill recognizes that. With a lifetime ban, U.S. Trade Representative and other deputy representatives. What about the Secretary of Commerce? What about the members of the International Trade Commission, folks?

I think this amendment speaks right to the point. There have been people wheeling and dealing in high places and when they leave, they go right to work for our competitors.

This is the bill, this is germane, this is the time to pass it. Support this amendment. It makes sense.

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I think it is essential for American workers and American companies that every Member of this Chamber who supports fair trade, who supports protecting our economic interests, who opposes economic quibblings supports this amendment. It is essential. Ladies and gentlemen, let us get this one done.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Texas [Mr. BRYANT].

(Mr. BRYANT of Texas asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BRYANT of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I urge Members to vote "no" on an amendment that I would on any other day in any other situation support.

I strongly support the English of Pennsylvania and the Fox of Pennsylvania amendments to the lobby reform bill. I strongly agree with the purposes of these amendments. I have supported the concepts contained in them for years and I continue to do so.

But I deeply regret I am compelled to urge Members to vote against them—just as we have urged Members to oppose all amendments to the bill—so we can send the bill on to the President to be signed into law.

We know any amendment to this bill—even those as meritorious as these two—will doom the bill to conference with the Senate, where it will surely die as all other attempts to reform lobbying for over 40 years have died.

Make no mistake about it, if we have to go to conference again on this bill, we will be stuck there—just as we were stuck at the adjournment of the last Congress when the original bill died. This bill is too important to meet the same fate in this Congress.

The chairman of the Constitution Subcommittee, Mr. CANADY, and its ranking member, Mr. FRANK, have promised to move a separate lobby reform bill through the Judiciary Committee early next year. I will cosponsor that bill and will do everything I can to ensure it becomes law with these two amendments in it.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Washington [Mrs. SMITH].

Mrs. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Chairman, I think what we see before us today is what some of us call loving a bill to death.

In the State legislature, we used to call it Christmas treeing. You get enough on the Christmas tree that it crumbles by its own weight. Loving it to death just means that you keep doing good things to the bill until it dies.

Today we could be loving this bill to death if we pass any of these very good amendments. What we have got is some amendments that are good but at the wrong time. If we pass amendments on this bill, the chances of the underlying bill not becoming law go up substantially.

I believe inside, and from what I am hearing from the Senate and the President, there is a good chance that we will kill this legislation by hanging one amendment on it.

Since I have gotten here, I have found that a lot of people say a lot of good things about reform but then they find a lot of good ways to kill it. Do not kill this bill. Vote "no" on all the amendments.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I rise in opposition to this amendment, although I am very sympathetic to the goal of this amendment and I believe that the amendment has substantial merit. This proposal and others relating to representation of foreign interests will be considered by the Subcommittee on the Constitution early next year.

I do not believe, however, that it should be allowed to interfere with the passage of this bill and sending this bill to the President for his signature. We have waited 40 years and we should not allow this good proposal to get in the way of our goal of enacting lobbying disclosure reform.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. WELLER

The CHAIRMAN. It is now in order to debate the subject matter of the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER].

The gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER] and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] will each be recognized for 2½ minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER].

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, this is basically a pretty simple issue on this amendment, and that is: Do taxpayers have the right to know?

Earlier this year there was a poll that was taken, and the national news media was actually held in lower esteem by the taxpayers than the Congress. I believe that the public deserves the right to know.

This amendment gives the public the opportunity to know that journalists are being paid speaking fees and honoraria by special interests. The Senate has already made clear its intentions by urging members of the media to disclose it.

Well, this amendment places the burden on the lobbyists when they disclose their paperwork every year. All they have to do is say what honoraria they pay to which journalists and when they pay it. It still allows journalists to collect the fees. It still allows journalists the right to go out and speak. It just gives the public the right to know.

I ask for a "yes" vote.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Oregon [Mr. DEFAZIO].

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I was to offer an amendment tonight that would require disclosure of paid lobbyists' contacts with Members. I thought it would be extraordinarily valuable to the public and the lobbyist community. But in the interests of getting this bill passed and getting some improvement in this situation here in Washington, I will withhold that amendment tonight and would urge everybody to oppose all amendments because it is a ruse to kill the bill.

We have got to get this bill, begin reform, and then we can come back with more significant reforms later in a second piece of legislation that we will bring up after the first of the year.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Washington [Mr. TATE].

Mr. TATE. Mr. Chairman, I want to commend the gentleman from Illinois for his leadership in regards to reform issues.

This Congress has truly been cleaning house about rebuilding faith in our institutions. We have already done many of these reforms. There is more to be done.

There are some in the media, as was stated, that do receive honoraria for their speaking engagements. They then get the opportunity to report in regard to these industries on television.

The public has the right to know who these industries are. This amendment does not prohibit, does not limit. It simply requires the disclosure by the lobbyists who provide this honoraria.

The taxpayers have a right to know. We owe it to them.

Mr. CANADY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS].

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, if Members want to kill lobby disclosure, just amend it. Find the best amendment and just amend it, and you have killed lobby disclosure.

The last meaningful bill we had was in 1946. Then the Senate gutted lobby disclosure. We have 660,000 to 780,000 people who lobby. Only 6,000 are registered lobbyists.

I urge my Members to wake up and see what is happening here. This is, in the end, an attempt to kill lobby disclosure.

Defeat all amendments. Send this to the President. Get this signed into law, and then bring out these bills after they have had public hearings.

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I stand in strong support of the bill the gentleman from Florida [Mr. CANADY] has brought forward. He is my friend. He has worked hard on this. I understand his intent.

Let us make a good bill better. I believe the process works. We need to add good amendments.

I also believe the American public has the right to know when those who are providing information and determining what information is shared with the American public on issues that are so important to American taxpayers that those who are the gatekeeper on information are receiving speaking fees or honoraria.

Let us give the public the right to know. What this amendment does is require a registered lobbyist to disclose speaking fees and honoraria that they pay to journalists, when it was paid, how it was paid and how much, and let the public know. Otherwise, journalists can continue receiving these fees.

It does not prevent them from being on the speaking circuit. It just gives the public the right to know journalists are receiving speaking fees up to $60,000.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I urge a vote against the Weller amendment on the grounds it raises serious first amendment concerns.

I believe that targeting the media in the way that this amendment does is not something we should do, and would urge Members to vote against it on that basis.

But I would also urge Members, focus on what is at stake here. Tonight the House has a historic opportunity to end 40 years of gridlock, 40 years of inaction and stalemate and 40 years of failure. The bill we are considering is identical to the bill which passed the Senate 98 to zero. The President has said he will sign it.

It is time we got the job done. The American people want lobbying reform. We should listen to them. We should listen to them. We should not let this opportunity pass us by.

Let us send a bill to the President, no more delay, no more promises, no more excuses. Let us give the American people lobbying reform tonight.

I urge that the Members vote against all the amendments and support this bill.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. Speaker, lobbying reform needs to be enacted now. If there is any delay, it may be another 40 years before anything gets done.

The United We Stand organization has written all of us that amendments on this bill should be opposed so that lobbying reform does not get caught up again in legislative gridlock. My colleagues SMITH, BRYANT, CANADY, FRANK, and others have argued passionately and convincingly that amendments would only mean that once again the enemies of lobbying reform would prevail. This is why I chose to oppose any amendments to this legislation.

I do want to emphasize, however, that under any other circumstances, I would support the Fox amendment to prohibit lobbyists from giving gifts to Members of Congress. Already, as of January 1, 1996, Members will be prohibited from accepting gifts, and we ought to make this a two-way street.

Additionally, I would strongly support Representative ENGLISH's amendment which would impose a lifetime ban on the Secretary of Commerce and the Commissioner of the International Trade Commission from lobbying for a foreign interest.

Representative CANADY has promised that these amendments will be brought up in a second piece of legislation. I intend to be a part of the effort to move these amendments and will work for their passage.

While I think there are many ways to further improve lobbying reform legislation, it is time to end the gridlock on lobbying reform. The time is now. The place is here. At long last, let's send a lobbying reform bill to the President.

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, I support the amendment offered by Representative BILL CLINGER to put an end to the lobbying activities of executive branch employees.

Too much of the information the executive branch distributes is designed not to educate or inform but to generate public opposition or support for matters before Congress. Currently, there is a law on the books to prohibit such political lobbying activity. However, the statute is so vague, no one has ever been held accountable.

The Clinger amendment clarifies the existing law to make sure that Federal employees are administering Federal programs and assisting the American people rather than spending their time involved in partisan politics. Executive branch officials such as the President, Vice President, and officials approved by the Senate are exempted, but other public servants involved in the day-to-day operations of this Nation would be prohibited from playing politics with taxpayer money.

I have witnessed first-hand this irresponsible and inappropriate behavior by Ohio employees of the Department of Agriculture [USDA]. Ohio State directors of USDA programs issued a press release making outrageous claims mimicking the shrill, partisan attacks we have heard from full time politicians in Washington.

The antics of these employees, at taxpayer expense, degrade the term "public servants." These politically appointed bureaucrats with the USDA should have been spending their time and our tax dollars helping Ohio's farmers instead of attacking for partisan gain efforts to balance the budget. No administration, Democrat or Republican, should be allowed to use publicly paid employees to further blatantly partisan and political agendas.

I urge my colleagues to support the Clinger amendment.

Mrs. COLLINS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, my Republican colleagues are a little thin-skinned. They do not like criticism. Faced with it, their instinctive reaction is to try and silence it.

That is what the Istook amendment was all about—silencing the criticism of the Red Cross, the Girl Scouts, the Boy Scouts, the YMCA, and countless other nonprofit groups that oppose Republican cuts in education, nutritional programs, and health care.

They especially wanted to silence the National Council of Senior Citizens that had the nerve to oppose Speaker GINGRICH's cuts in Medicare and Medicaid. Republicans even went as far as to have senior citizens arrested when they tried to make their views known at a committee meeting.

The amendment of my colleague from Pennsylvania is also aimed at silencing opposition—this time it's the opposition of Federal agencies.

Isn't it interesting that the Republicans, who are so fond of reminding us that the Government belongs to the people, propose in this amendment to prohibit, I repeat prohibit, Federal agencies from talking to anyone except Congress? I ask my Republican colleagues, why do you want to prevent the people's Government from speaking to the people?

This amendment strictly prohibits, and I quote, "the preparation, publication, distribution, or use of any kit, pamphlet, booklet, public presentation, news release, radio, television, or film presentation, video, or other written or oral statement, that is intended to promote public support or opposition to any legislative proposal * * * on which congressional action is not complete.", end of quote.

Mr. Chairman, we had a President, not so long ago, who prided himself on being a great communicator. President Reagan took his case directly to the people. He had his whole administration out convincing the people of the correctness of his policies.

He went around Congress in order to build public support for his legislative agenda, and without that public support he would never have gotten Congress to do what he wanted.

I sincerely doubt President Reagan, the great communicator, would have wanted his administration restricted to communicating with Congress. While I was not a fan of many of President Reagan's policies, I firmly believe that he, and every President, not only has the right, but the duty to make his case directly to the people.

Mr. Chairman, let's get one other thing clear, too. The amendment we are now considering seeks to remedy a nonexistent problem.

Federal law already prohibits agencies from using appropriated funds to engage in lobbying.

If the proponents of this amendment believe agencies have engaged in grassroots lobbying, then they can take action under existing laws that already prohibit this activity.

So, why are new restrictions needed?

Mr. Chairman, the answer is: they are not.

I urge my colleagues to vote no on this amendment. True democracy can only exist where trust, not deceit, binds the people to their government and the government to its people.

Mr. LEACH. Mr. Chairman, I rise to explain a series of votes on lobby reform under consideration today. Amendments, several of which meet thorough-going commonsense standards, have been introduced which I expect to vote against because they will precipitate the bill going to conference where those leading the reform movement are convinced I will be buried.

National organizations from Common Cause to Ralph Nader's advocacy groups, as well as major newspapers such as the New York Times, Washington Post, and Des Moines Register have expressed concern that unless this lobby disclosure bill is passed without amendment exactly as the Senate has already approved it, lobby disclosure will wither in this Congress.

Hence, it is my intention to vote against amendments to this bill with the understanding that I would expect to support the precepts underlying them in discreet, separate bills which can be brought to the floor at another time.

As for now, if we pass this bill unamended, it can go to the President's desk for signature this week. If we amend it with any of the well-intentioned amendments before us, a strong possibility exists that the underlying bill will never become law. Let us thus pass the bill as is and then bring forth the approaches contained in the amendment in another context at another time.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the Lobbying Disclosure Act of 1995 and in opposition to the amendments that will be offered for consideration today.

Mr. Speaker, the bill before us today is identical to the legislation passed by the Senate by unanimous vote. If we approve this legislation without amendment, the bill will be sent to the President and signed into law. If, on the other hand, the House adopts even a single amendment, the bill must be sent to conference, where history has taught us that the enemies of lobbying reform will delay, obstruct and effectively kill this breakthrough legislation.

Therefore, I will vote against the amendments offered today not because the bill is perfect or because all of the amendments are without merit, but because Congress can no longer afford to delay meaningful lobbying reform.

I appreciate the commitment of Chairman CANADY and Mr. FRANK to strongly advocate for the expeditious consideration these amendments in separate legislation. In this way, Congress will have the opportunity to evaluate the merit of these amendments without endangering the enactment of lobbying reform.

I congratulate the chairman and ranking minority member for their work on this legislation and strongly urge its adoption.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for further debate on these amendments has expired.

Pursuant to the order of the House of Tuesday, November 16, 1995, proceedings will now resume on those amendments on which further proceedings were postponed in the following order: The amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX], the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER], the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. ENGLISH], and the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. WELLER].

The Chair would advise Members that he will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the time for any electronic vote after the second vote in this series. The first and second votes will be 15-minute votes. The last two will be 5-minute votes.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. FOX OF PENNSYLVANIA

The CHAIRMAN. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. FOX], on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the noes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

(ii) In determining whether a gift is provided on the basis of personal friendship, the Member, Senator, officer, or employee shall consider the circumstances under which the gift was offered, such as:

(I) The history of the relationship between the individual giving the gift and the recipient of the gift, including any previous exchange of gifts between such individuals.

(R) Opportunities and benefits which are—
(i) available to the public or to a class consisting of all Federal employees, whether or not restricted on the basis of geographic consideration;

(ii) offered to members of a group or class in which membership is unrelated to congressional employment;

(iii) offered to members of an organization, such as an employees' association or congressional credit union, in which membership is related to congressional employment and similar opportunities are available to large segments of the public through organizations of similar size;

(iv) offered to any group or class that is not defined in a manner that specifically discriminates among Government employees on the basis of branch of Government or type of responsibility, or on a basis that favors those of higher rank or rate of pay;

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. CLINGER

The CHAIRMAN. The unfinished business is the demand for a recorded vote on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] on which further proceedings were postponed and on which the ayes prevailed by voice vote.

The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. CLINGER: Beginning on page 25, redesignate sections 8 through 24 as sections 9 through 25, respectively, strike "this Act" each place it occurs and insert "this Act (other than section 8)", and insert after line 2 the following:

SEC. 8. PROHIBITION ON USE OF APPROPRIATIONS FOR LOBBYING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subchapter III of chapter 13 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"§ 1354. Prohibition on lobbying by Federal agencies

"(a) PROHIBITION.—Except as provided in subsection (b), until or unless such activity has been specifically authorized by an Act of Congress and notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds made available to any Federal agency, by appropriation, shall be used by such agency for any activity (including the preparation, publication, distribution, or use of any kit, pamphlet, booklet, public presentation, news release, radio, television, or film presentation, video, or other written or oral statement) that is intended to promote public support or opposition to any legislative proposal (including the confirmation of the nomination of a public official or the ratification of a treaty) on which congressional action is not complete.

"(b) CONSTRUCTION.—

"(1) COMMUNICATIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not be construed to prevent officers or employees of Federal agencies from communicating directly to Members of Congress, through the proper official channels, their requests for legislation or appropriations that they deem necessary for the efficient conduct of the public business or from responding to requests for information made by Members of Congress.

"(2) OFFICIALS.—Subsection (a) shall not be construed to prevent the President, Vice President, any Federal agency official whose appointment is confirmed by the Senate, any official in the Executive Office of the President directly appointed by the President or Vice President, or the head of any Federal agency described in paragraph (2) or (3) of subsection (d), from communicating with the American public, through radio, television, or other public communication media, on the views of the President for or against any pending legislative proposal. The preceding sentence shall not permit any such official to delegate to another person the authority to make communications subject to the exemption provided by such sentence.

"(c) COMPTROLLER GENERAL.—

"(1) ASSISTANCE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL.—In exercising the authority provided in section 712, as applied to this section, the Comptroller General may obtain, without reimbursement from the Comptroller General, the assistance of the Inspector General within whose Federal agency activity prohibited by subsection (a) of this section is under review.

"(2) EVALUATION.—One year after the date of the enactment of this section, the Comptroller General shall report to the Committee on Government Reform and Oversight of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Governmental Affairs of the Senate on the implementation of this section.

"(3) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Comptroller General shall, in the annual report under section 719(a), include summaries of investigations undertaken by the Comptroller General with respect to subsection (a).

"(d) DEFINITION.—For purpose of this section the term 'Federal agency' means—

"(1) any executive agency, within the meaning of section 105 of title 5; and

"(2) any private corporation created by a law of the United States for which the Congress appropriates funds."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for chapter 13 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 1353 the following new item:

□ 1941

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. CHRYSLER) having assumed the chair, Mr. KOLBE, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 2564) to provide for the disclosure of lobbying activities to influence the Federal Government, and for other purposes, had come to no resolution thereon.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. CANADY of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the amendments just considered.

Mr. SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

PRIVILEGES OF THE HOUSE—REQUEST FOR REPORT FROM COMMITTEE ON STANDARDS OF OFFICIAL CONDUCT REGARDING COMPLAINTS AGAINST SPEAKER

Mr. JOHNSTON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 2(a)(1) of rule IX, I hereby give notice of my intention to offer a resolution, on behalf of myself and the gentleman from Florida [Mr. PETERSON], which raises a question of the privileges of the House.

The form of the resolution is as follows:

Whereas the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct is currently considering several ethics complaints against Speaker Newt Gingrich;

Whereas the Committee has traditionally handled such cases by appointing an independent, non-partisan, outside counsel—a procedure which has been adopted in every major ethics case since the Committee was established;

Whereas—although complaints against Speaker Gingrich have been under consideration for more than 14 months—the Committee has failed to appoint an outside counsel;

Whereas the Committee has also deviated from other long-standing precedents and rules of procedure; including its failure to adopt a Resolution of Preliminary Inquiry before calling third-party witnesses and receiving sworn testimony;

Whereas these procedural irregularities—and the unusual delay in the appointment of an independent, outside counsel—have led to widespread concern that the Committee is making special exceptions for the Speaker of the House;

Whereas the integrity of the House depends on the confidence of the American people in the fairness and impartiality of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct.

Therefore be it resolved that;

The Chairman and Ranking Member of the Committee on Standards of Official Conduct should report to the House, no later than December 12, 1995, concerning:

(1) The status of the Committee's investigation of the complaints against Speaker Gingrich;

(2) The Committee's disposition with regard to the appointment of a non-partisan outside counsel and the scope of the counsel's investigation;

(3) a timetable for Committee action on the complaints.

□ 1945

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CHRYSLER). Under rule IX, a resolution offered from the floor by a Member other than the majority leader or the minority leader as a question of the privileges of the House has immediate precedence only at a time or place designated by the Speaker in the legislative schedule within 2 legislative days of its being properly noticed. The Chair will announce the Chair's designation at a later time.

The Chair's determination as to whether the resolution constitutes a question of privilege will be made at the time designated by the Chair for consideration of the resolution.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE HON. DANA ROHRBACHER, MEMBER OF CONGRESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Hon. DANA ROHRBACHER, Member of Congress:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
November 15, 1995.

Hon. NEWT GINGRICH,
Speaker, U.S. House of Representatives,
Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER. This is to formally notify you, pursuant to Rule L (50) of the rules of the House of Representatives that three staff persons in my Huntington Beach, California District Office—Cindy Hoffman, Lawrence Jones and Kathleen Hollingsworth—have been served with subpoenas issued by the Municipal Court of Orange County, California, in the matter of the People of the State of California v. Michael James Perry.

After consultation with the Office of General Counsel, I have determined that compliance with the subpoenas is consistent with the precedents and privileges of the House.

Sincerely,

DANA ROHRBACHER,
Member of Congress.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

RECOGNITION OF VOLUNTEER TOUR GUIDES AT BULL SHOALS DAM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arkansas [Mr. HUTCHINSON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, far too often the work of the men and women who choose to volunteer their time and talent goes unnoticed. These individuals, most of whom are busy with families, full-time jobs, and daily tasks, are rarely recognized for the invaluable service which they provide to their communities.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to seven such individuals from my own congressional district of northwest Arkansas, who are better known to the folks back home as "The Fabulous Seven." All local residents of Lakeview and Bull Shoals, AR, Mr. Pete Ehmen, Ms. Shirley Spitzer, Mr. Bob Olmo, Mr. Curt Schlueter, Mr. Bob Koenig, Mr. Carl Wilhelm, and Mr. Neil Underhill took precious time out of their already-busy summers to conduct guided tours of Bull Shoals Dam, when Federal budget constraints threatened to end public tours of the local Corps of Engineers dam.

Mr. Speaker, I commend these individuals for coming forth with such a brilliant solution and putting it into action! At a time when Federal downsizing is necessary, and Federal funds are very limited, citizen volunteers are indispensable in keeping the wheels turning in our communities. Throughout the entire summer, over 7,000 tourists had the opportunity to see things, which otherwise would not have been possible, without this "Fabulous Gang of Seven."

According to Mr. Bill Self, Chief of the Corps of Engineers' hydropower facility in Mountain Home, it was quite routine to hear tourists exclaim, "This was the best tour we have ever been on!" after their tour of the dam. Mr. Self is particularly proud that his office did not receive one complaint all summer regarding the tours.

Mr. Speaker, while I am recognizing these individuals today on the floor of the U.S. House of Representatives, I would also like to point out that the corps formally honored "The Fabulous Seven" this fall with a brunch, and presented them with certificates of appreciation for their invaluable contributions throughout the summer. In the very words of Mr. Self, "The volunteers did a fabulous job this year!"

To "The Fabulous Seven," thank you for your dedication and hard work for Bull Shoals Dam, for northwest Arkansas, and for our great State of Arkansas.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mrs. CLAYTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mrs. CLAYTON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Colorado [Mr. MCINNIS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. MCINNIS addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mrs. MALONEY addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

CLINTON FOREIGN POLICY

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BURTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I would like to talk tonight about the Clinton foreign policy. The President has been asking us over the past couple of days to support him in sending troops to Bosnia. Before we start doing that, we ought to look at the record of the administration in dealing with foreign policy issues. So let us start with Haiti.

Mr. Aristide down there said he was going to become a true lover of democracy. He said that he was going to privatize a lot of the Government agencies down there, Government functions. He said he was going to have free and fair elections and step down as President. We found out just recently that he is not going along with the privatization program that he promised.

There have been a lot of killings recently, and he has used some very harsh rhetoric when speaking to crowds, which has led to additional killings. He said that he may not step down as President, may try to keep an extra 3 years. We have been putting pressure on him, and now it appears as though he will put in a puppet to replace them to keep control for the next 6 years and, during this time that we have been giving him hundreds of millions of dollars and keeping American troops down there, he has spent $1.8 million of American taxpayers' money to lobby the Congress of the United States to get more money. He is using our taxpayers' dollars to get more money.

This has been a total failure by the administration. It has not completely manifested itself yet, but it is getting there. Things are getting out of control. Mr. Aristide has paid one firm $48,000 a month. Ira Kurzban, a Miami attorney who has worked for Castro, who has worked for the Communist Sandinistas, who has worked for Mr. Aristide, in fact, his wife, Kurzban's wife, was so enamored with Castro, the Communist dictator in Cuba, she kissed him. And this is the man who is representing him in getting $48,000 of American taxpayers' money to represent him to lobby Congress.

There is another firm getting $50,000 a month. Another getting $41,000 a month. Another getting $12,500 a month. Another getting $10,000, another getting $5,000. All United States taxpayer money to support a failed policy in Haiti.

Then we talk about Somalia. In Somalia the President went over there and said he was going to nation build, to bring democracy to Somalia. He said he was going to bring the horrible Mr. Aideed, the tribal leader over there, to justice. Mr. Aideed used his forces to kill 18 American military people. What happened? A year later, after spending hundreds of millions of dollars to stabilize the situation in Somalia, we pulled out. Aideed is still there. Another foreign policy failure. And it cost the taxpayers hundreds of millions of dollars and a lot of American lives for nothing.

Now the President says he wants to send 25,000 troops into Bosnia to nation build, to stabilize the situation, to bring about peace and democracy there in a country that has a history of hundreds of years of war between religious factions and various ethnic groups.

Our troops are going to be put right smack-dab in the middle. Sixty thousand of the Serbian, Bosnian Serbs around Sarajevo have said they do not like the agreement, they are not going to go along with the agreement, and they have guns and weapons. And our troops are going to be there to maintain the peace. This is a recipe for disaster, another in a series of failed foreign policy programs pushed by the Clinton administration.

Do you know how many land mines there are in Bosnia? Six million. Six million. It is almost like you could not walk anyplace without stepping on a land mine. Do you know something even worse than that? We only have a map showing where between 100,000 and 1 million of them are. That means at least 5 million land mines are out there that we do not know about.

Our troops are going to be put there in between warring factions who hate each other, and we are supposed to keep the peace. If they break across the 2½-mile-wide line that we are going to be patrolling, then we have, we will be able to defend ours, shoot to kill. But when we do that, there is going to be retaliation. There is going to be a lot of Americans killed.

It is unfortunate that the President, time after time after time has had failed foreign policy, and we in the Congress of the United States have been unable to do anything about it. As Commander in Chief, he does not listen to the will of the Congress of the United States. We did not want him to send troops into Haiti, but he did it anyhow. We did not want him to nation build in Somalia, but he did it anyhow. We do not want him, by a vote of over 300 to less than 125, we did not want him to send troops into Bosnia, but he has said last night on American TV we are going to do it anyhow.

To heck with what the people in the Congress of the United States want; to heck with what the American people want. So I just like to say to my colleagues we ought to send the President a very strong message, try to stop him any way we can from sending troops over there. Once they get there, we have to support them because they are our young men and women. We cannot leave them in harm's way without proper military equipment.

But the President bears the responsibility. He said last night he bears the full responsibility. You bet he does.

"SEC. 27. PRIVATE SECURITIES LITIGATION.

"(2) CERTIFICATION FILED WITH COMPLAINT.—
 "(A) IN GENERAL.—Each plaintiff seeking to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class shall provide a sworn certification, which shall be personally signed by such plaintiff and filed with the complaint, that—"(i) states that the plaintiff has reviewed the complaint and authorized its filing;

"(ii) states that the plaintiff did not purchase the security that is the subject of the complaint at the direction of plaintiff's counsel or in order to participate in any private action arising under this title;

"(iii) states that the plaintiff is willing to serve as a representative party on behalf of a class, including providing testimony at deposition and trial, if necessary;

"(iv) sets forth all of the transactions of the plaintiff in the security that is the subject of the complaint during the class period specified in the complaint;

"(v) identifies any other action under this title, filed during the 3-year period preceding the date on which the certification is signed by the plaintiff, in which the plaintiff has sought to serve, or served, as a representative party on behalf of a class; and

"(vi) states that the plaintiff will not accept any payment for serving as a representative party on behalf of a class beyond the plaintiff's pro rata share of any recovery, except as ordered or approved by the court in accordance with paragraph (4).

"(B) NONWAIVER OF ATTORNEY-CLIENT PRIVILEGE.—The certification filed pursuant to subparagraph (A) shall not be construed to be a waiver of the attorney-client privilege.

"(3) APPOINTMENT OF LEAD PLAINTIFF.—

"(A) EARLY NOTICE TO CLASS MEMBERS.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 20 days after the date on which the complaint is filed, the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall cause to be published, in a widely circulated national business-oriented publication or wire service, a notice advising members of the purported plaintiff class—

“(I) of the pendency of the action, the claims asserted therein, and the purported class period; and “(II) that, not later than 60 days after the date on which the notice is published, any member of the purported class may move the court to serve as lead plaintiff of the purported class.

“(ii) MULTIPLE ACTIONS.—If more than one action on behalf of a class asserting substantially the same claim or claims arising under this title is filed, only the plaintiff or plaintiffs in the first filed action shall be required to cause notice to be published in accordance with clause (i).

“(iii) ADDITIONAL NOTICES MAY BE REQUIRED UNDER FEDERAL RULES.—Notice required under clause (i) shall be in addition to any notice required pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“(B) APPOINTMENT OF LEAD PLAINTIFF.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date on which a notice is published under subparagraph (A)(i), the court shall consider any motion made by a purported class member in response to the notice, including any motion by a class member who is not individually named as a plaintiff in the complaint or complaints, and shall appoint as lead plaintiff the member or members of the purported plaintiff class that the court determines to be most capable of adequately representing the interests of class members (hereafter in this paragraph referred to as the ‘most adequate plaintiff’) in accordance with this subparagraph.

“(ii) CONSOLIDATED ACTIONS.—If more than one action on behalf of a class asserting substantially the same claim or claims arising under this title has been filed, and any party has sought to consolidate those actions for pretrial purposes or for trial, the court shall not make the determination required by clause (i) until after the decision on the motion to consolidate is rendered. As soon as practicable after such decision is rendered, the court shall appoint the most adequate plaintiff as lead plaintiff for the consolidated actions in accordance with this subparagraph.

“(iii) REBUTTABLE PRESUMPTION.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subclause (II), for purposes of clause (i), the court shall adopt a presumption that the most adequate plaintiff in any private action arising under this title is the person or group of persons that—

“(aa) has either filed the complaint or made a motion in response to a notice under subparagraph (A)(i);

“(bb) in the determination of the court, has the largest financial interest in the relief sought by the class; and “(cc) otherwise satisfies the requirements of Rule 23 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“(II) REBUTTAL EVIDENCE.—The presumption described in subclause (I) may be rebutted only upon proof by a member of the purported plaintiff class that the presumptively most adequate plaintiff—

“(aa) will not fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class; or “(bb) is subject to unique defenses that render such plaintiff incapable of adequately representing the class.

“(iv) DISCOVERY.—For purposes of this subparagraph, discovery relating to whether a member or members of the purported plaintiff class is the most adequate plaintiff may be conducted by a plaintiff only if the plaintiff first demonstrates a reasonable basis for a finding that the presumptively most adequate plaintiff is incapable of adequately representing the class.

“(v) SELECTION OF LEAD COUNSEL.—The most adequate plaintiff shall, subject to the approval of the court, select and retain counsel to represent the class.

“(vi) RESTRICTIONS ON PROFESSIONAL PLAINTIFFS.—Except as the court may otherwise permit, consistent with the purposes of this section, a person may be a lead plaintiff, or an officer, director, or fiduciary of a lead plaintiff, in no more than 5 securities class actions brought as plaintiff class actions pursuant to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure during any 3-year period.

“(4) RECOVERY BY PLAINTIFFS.—The share of any final judgment or of any settlement that is awarded to a representative party serving on behalf of a class shall be equal, on a per share basis, to the portion of the final judgment or settlement awarded to all other members of the class. Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to limit the award of reasonable costs and expenses (including lost wages) directly relating to the representation of the class to any representative party serving on behalf of the class.

“(5) RESTRICTIONS ON SETTLEMENTS UNDER SEAL.—The terms and provisions of any settlement agreement of a class action shall not be filed under seal, except that on motion of any party to the settlement, the court may order filing under seal for those portions of a settlement agreement as to which good cause is shown for such filing under seal. For purposes of this paragraph, good cause shall exist only if publication of a term or provision of a settlement agreement would cause direct and substantial harm to any party.

“(6) RESTRICTIONS ON PAYMENT OF ATTORNEYS’ FEES AND EXPENSES.—Total attorneys’ fees and expenses awarded by the court to counsel for the plaintiff class shall not exceed a reasonable percentage of the amount of any damages and prejudgment interest actually paid to the class.

“(7) DISCLOSURE OF SETTLEMENT TERMS TO CLASS MEMBERS.—Any proposed or final settlement agreement that is published or otherwise disseminated to the class shall include each of the following statements, along with a cover page summarizing the information contained in such statements:

“(A) STATEMENT OF PLAINTIFF RECOVERY.—The amount of the settlement proposed to be distributed to the parties to the action, determined in the aggregate and on an average per share basis.

“(B) STATEMENT OF POTENTIAL OUTCOME OF CASE.—

“(i) AGREEMENT ON AMOUNT OF DAMAGES.—If the settling parties agree on the average amount of damages per share that would be recoverable if the plaintiff prevailed on each claim alleged under this title, a statement concerning the average amount of such potential damages per share.

“(ii) DISAGREEMENT ON AMOUNT OF DAMAGES.—If the parties do not agree on the average amount of damages per share that would be recoverable if the plaintiff prevailed on each claim alleged under this title, a statement from each settling party concerning the issue or issues on which the parties disagree.

“(iii) INADMISSIBILITY FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES.—A statement made in accordance with clause (i) or (ii) concerning the amount of damages shall not be admissible in any Federal or State judicial action or administrative proceeding, other than an action or proceeding arising out of such statement.

“(C) STATEMENT OF ATTORNEYS’ FEES OR COSTS SOUGHT.—If any of the settling parties or their counsel intend to apply to the court for an award of attorneys’ fees or costs from any fund established as part of the settlement, a statement indicating which parties or counsel intend to make such an application, the amount of fees and costs that will be sought (including the amount of such fees and costs determined on an average per share basis), and a brief explanation supporting the fees and costs sought.

“(D) IDENTIFICATION OF LAWYERS’ REPRESENTATIVES.—The name, telephone number, and address of one or more representatives of counsel for the plaintiff class who will be reasonably available to answer questions from class members concerning any matter contained in any notice of settlement published or otherwise disseminated to the class.

“(E) REASONS FOR SETTLEMENT.—A brief statement explaining the reasons why the parties are proposing the settlement.

“(F) OTHER INFORMATION.—Such other information as may be required by the court.

“(8) ATTORNEY CONFLICT OF INTEREST.—If a plaintiff class is represented by an attorney who directly owns or otherwise has a beneficial interest in the securities that are the subject of the litigation, the court shall make a determination of whether such ownership or other interest constitutes a conflict of interest sufficient to disqualify the attorney from representing the plaintiff class.

“(b) STAY OF DISCOVERY; PRESERVATION OF EVIDENCE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In any private action arising under this title, all discovery and other proceedings shall be stayed during the pendency of any motion to dismiss, unless the court finds, upon the motion of any party, that particularized discovery is necessary to preserve evidence or to prevent undue prejudice to that party.

“(2) PRESERVATION OF EVIDENCE.—During the pendency of any stay of discovery pursuant to this subsection, unless otherwise ordered by the court, any party to the action with actual notice of the allegations contained in the complaint shall treat all documents, data compilations (including electronically recorded or stored data), and tangible objects that are in the custody or control of such person and that are relevant to the allegations, as if they were the subject of a continuing request for production of documents from an opposing party under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“(3) SANCTION FOR WILLFUL VIOLATION.—A party aggrieved by the willful failure of an opposing party to comply with paragraph (2) may apply to the court for an order awarding appropriate sanctions.

“(c) SANCTIONS FOR ABUSIVE LITIGATION.—

“(1) MANDATORY REVIEW BY COURT.—In any private action arising under this title, upon final adjudication of the action, the court shall include in the record specific findings regarding compliance by each party and each attorney representing any party with each requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure as to any complaint, responsive pleading, or dispositive motion.

“(2) MANDATORY SANCTIONS.—If the court makes a finding under paragraph (1) that a party or attorney violated any requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure as to any complaint, responsive pleading, or dispositive motion, the court shall impose sanctions on such party or attorney in accordance with Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Prior to making a finding that any party or attorney has violated Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the court shall give such party or attorney notice and an opportunity to respond.

“(3) PRESUMPTION IN FAVOR OF ATTORNEYS’ FEES AND COSTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraphs (B) and (C), for purposes of paragraph (2), the court shall adopt a presumption that the appropriate sanction—

“(i) for failure of any responsive pleading or dispositive motion to comply with any requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is an award to the opposing party of the reasonable attorneys’ fees and other expenses incurred as a direct result of the violation; and

“(ii) for substantial failure of any complaint to comply with any requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is an award to the opposing party of the reasonable attorneys’ fees and other expenses incurred in the action.

“(B) REBUTTAL EVIDENCE.—The presumption described in subparagraph (A) may be rebutted only upon proof by the party or attorney against whom sanctions are to be imposed that—

“(i) the award of attorneys’ fees and other expenses will impose an unreasonable burden on that party or attorney and would be unjust, and the failure to make such an award would not impose a greater burden on the party in whose favor sanctions are to be imposed; or

“(ii) the violation of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure was de minimis.

“(C) SANCTIONS.—If the party or attorney against whom sanctions are to be imposed meets its burden under subparagraph (B), the court shall award the sanctions that the court deems appropriate pursuant to Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“(d) DEFENDANT’S RIGHT TO WRITTEN INTERROGATORIES.—In any private action arising under this title in which the plaintiff may recover money damages only on proof that a defendant acted with a particular state of mind, the court shall, when requested by a defendant, submit to the jury a written interrogatory on the issue of each such defendant’s state of mind at the time the alleged violation occurred.”.

(b) SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT OF 1934.—Title I of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (78a et seq.) is amended by inserting after section 21C the following new section:

“(3) APPOINTMENT OF LEAD PLAINTIFF.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 20 days after the date on which the complaint is filed, the plaintiff or plaintiffs shall cause to be published, in a widely circulated national business-oriented publication or wire service, a notice advising members of the purported plaintiff class—

“(9) ATTORNEY CONFLICT OF INTEREST.—If a plaintiff class is represented by an attorney who directly owns or otherwise has a beneficial interest in the securities that are the subject of the litigation, the court shall make a determination of whether such ownership or other interest constitutes a conflict of interest sufficient to disqualify the attorney from representing the plaintiff class.

“(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR SECURITIES FRAUD ACTIONS.—

“(1) MISLEADING STATEMENTS AND OMISSIONS.—In any private action arising under this title in which the plaintiff alleges that the defendant—

“(A) made an untrue statement of a material fact; or

“(B) omitted to state a material fact necessary in order to make the statements made, in the light of the circumstances in which they were made, not misleading;

the complaint shall specify each statement alleged to have been misleading, the reason or reasons why the statement is misleading, and, if an allegation regarding the statement or omission is made on information and belief, the complaint shall state with particularity all facts on which that belief is formed.

“(2) REQUIRED STATE OF MIND.—In any private action arising under this title in which the plaintiff may recover money damages only on proof that the defendant acted with a particular state of mind, the complaint shall, with respect to each act or omission alleged to violate this title, state with particularity facts giving rise to a strong inference that the defendant acted with the required state of mind.

“(3) MOTION TO DISMISS; STAY OF DISCOVERY.—

“(A) DISMISSAL FOR FAILURE TO MEET PLEADING REQUIREMENTS.—In any private action arising under this title, the court shall, on the motion of any defendant, dismiss the complaint if the requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) are not met.

“(B) STAY OF DISCOVERY.—In any private action arising under this title, all discovery and other proceedings shall be stayed during the pendency of any motion to dismiss, unless the court finds upon the motion of any party that particularized discovery is necessary to preserve evidence or to prevent undue prejudice to that party.

“(C) PRESERVATION OF EVIDENCE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—During the pendency of any stay of discovery pursuant to this paragraph, unless otherwise ordered by the court, any party to the action with actual notice of the allegations contained in the complaint shall treat all documents, data compilations (including electronically recorded or stored data), and tangible objects that are in the custody or control of such person and that are relevant to the allegations, as if they were the subject of a continuing request for production of documents from an opposing party under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“(ii) SANCTION FOR WILLFUL VIOLATION.—A party aggrieved by the willful failure of an opposing party to comply with clause (i) may apply to the court for an order awarding appropriate sanctions.

“(4) LOSS CAUSATION.—In any private action arising under this title, the plaintiff shall have the burden of proving that the act or omission of the defendant alleged to violate this title caused the loss for which the plaintiff seeks to recover damages.

“(1) MANDATORY REVIEW BY COURT.—In any private action arising under this title, upon final adjudication of the action, the court shall include in the record specific findings regarding compliance by each party and each attorney representing any party with each requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure as to any complaint, responsive pleading, or dispositive motion.

“(2) MANDATORY SANCTIONS.—If the court makes a finding under paragraph (1) that a party or attorney violated any requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure as to any complaint, responsive pleading, or dispositive motion, the court shall impose sanctions on such party or attorney in accordance with Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Prior to making a finding that any party or attorney has violated Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, the court shall give such party or attorney notice and an opportunity to respond.

“(3) PRESUMPTION IN FAVOR OF ATTORNEYS’ FEES AND COSTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraphs (B) and (C), for purposes of paragraph (2), the court shall adopt a presumption that the appropriate sanction—

“(i) for failure of any responsive pleading or dispositive motion to comply with any requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is an award to the opposing party of the reasonable attorneys’ fees and other expenses incurred as a direct result of the violation; and

“(ii) for substantial failure of any complaint to comply with any requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure is an award to the opposing party of the reasonable attorneys’ fees and other expenses incurred in the action.

“(B) REBUTTAL EVIDENCE.—The presumption described in subparagraph (A) may be rebutted only upon proof by the party or attorney against whom sanctions are to be imposed that—

“(i) the award of attorneys’ fees and other expenses will impose an unreasonable burden on that party or attorney and would be unjust, and the failure to make such an award would not impose a greater burden on the party in whose favor sanctions are to be imposed; or

“(ii) the violation of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure was de minimis.

“(C) SANCTIONS.—If the party or attorney against whom sanctions are to be imposed meets its burden under subparagraph (B), the court shall award the sanctions that the court deems appropriate pursuant to Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“(d) DEFENDANT’S RIGHT TO WRITTEN INTERROGATORIES.—In any private action arising under this title in which the plaintiff may recover money damages, the court shall, when requested by a defendant, submit to the jury a written interrogatory on the issue of each such defendant’s state of mind at the time the alleged violation occurred.

“(e) LIMITATION ON DAMAGES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), in any private action arising under this title in which the plaintiff seeks to establish damages by reference to the market price of a security, the award of damages to the plaintiff shall not exceed the difference between the purchase or sale price paid or received, as appropriate, by the plaintiff for the subject security and the mean trading price of that security during the 90-day period beginning on the date on which the information correcting the misstatement or omission that is the basis for the action is disseminated to the market.

“(i) whether such person violated the securities laws;

“(ii) the percentage of responsibility of such person, measured as a percentage of the total fault of all persons who caused or contributed to the loss incurred by the plaintiff; and

“(ii) the amount paid to the plaintiff by that covered person.

“(8) CONTRIBUTION.—A covered person who becomes jointly and severally liable for damages in any private action may recover contribution from any other person who, if joined in the original action, would have been liable for the same damages. A claim for contribution shall be determined based on the percentage of responsibility of the claimant and of each person against whom a claim for contribution is made.

“(9) STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR CONTRIBUTION.—In any private action determining liability, an action for contribution shall be brought not later than 6 months after the entry of a final, nonappealable judgment in the action, except that an action for contribution brought by a covered person who was required to make an additional payment pursuant to paragraph (4) may be brought not later than 6 months after the date on which such payment was made.

The amendments made by this title shall not affect or apply to any private action arising under the securities laws commenced before and pending on the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 203. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act or the amendments made by this Act shall be deemed to create or ratify any implied private right of action, or to prevent the Commission, by rule or regulation, from restricting or otherwise regulating private actions under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

TITLE III—AUDITOR DISCLOSURE OF CORPORATE FRAUD

SEC. 301. FRAUD DETECTION AND DISCLOSURE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (15 U.S.C. 78a et seq.) is amended by inserting immediately after section 10 the following new section:

“SEC. 10A. AUDIT REQUIREMENTS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Each audit required pursuant to this title of the financial statements of an issuer by an independent public accountant shall include, in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, as may be modified or supplemented from time to time by the Commission—

“(1) procedures designed to provide reasonable assurance of detecting illegal acts that would have a direct and material effect on the determination of financial statement amounts;

“(2) procedures designed to identify related party transactions that are material to the financial statements or otherwise require disclosure therein; and

“(3) an evaluation of whether there is substantial doubt about the ability of the issuer to continue as a going concern during the ensuing fiscal year.

“(b) REQUIRED RESPONSE TO AUDIT DISCOVERIES.—

“(1) INVESTIGATION AND REPORT TO MANAGEMENT.—If, in the course of conducting an audit pursuant to this title to which subsection (a) applies, the independent public accountant detects or otherwise becomes aware of information indicating that an illegal act (whether or not perceived to have a material effect on the financial statements of the issuer) has or may have occurred, the accountant shall, in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, as may be modified or supplemented from time to time by the Commission—

“(A)(i) determine whether it is likely that an illegal act has occurred; and

“(ii) if so, determine and consider the possible effect of the illegal act on the financial statements of the issuer, including any contingent monetary effects, such as fines, penalties, and damages; and

“(B) as soon as practicable, inform the appropriate level of the management of the issuer and assure that the audit committee of the issuer, or the board of directors of the issuer in the absence of such a committee, is adequately informed with respect to illegal acts that have been detected or have otherwise come to the attention of such accountant in the course of the audit, unless the illegal act is clearly inconsequential.

“(2) RESPONSE TO FAILURE TO TAKE REMEDIAL ACTION.—If, after determining that the audit committee of the board of directors of the issuer, or the board of directors of the issuer in the absence of an audit committee, is adequately informed with respect to illegal acts that have been detected or have otherwise come to the attention of the accountant in the course of the audit of such accountant, the independent public accountant concludes that—

“(B) the senior management has not taken, and the board of directors has not caused senior management to take, timely and appropriate remedial actions with respect to the illegal act; and

“(C) the failure to take remedial action is reasonably expected to warrant departure from a standard report of the auditor, when made, or warrant resignation from the audit engagement; the independent public accountant shall, as soon as practicable, directly report its conclusions to the board of directors.

“(3) NOTICE TO COMMISSION; RESPONSE TO FAILURE TO NOTIFY.—An issuer whose board of directors receives a report under paragraph (2) shall inform the Commission by notice not later than 1 business day after the receipt of such report and shall furnish the independent public accountant making such report with a copy of the notice furnished to the Commission. If the independent public accountant fails to receive a copy of the notice before the expiration of the required 1-business-day period, the independent public accountant shall—

“(A) resign from the engagement; or

“(B) furnish to the Commission a copy of its report (or the documentation of any oral report given) not later than 1 business day following such failure to receive notice.

“(4) REPORT AFTER RESIGNATION.—If an independent public accountant resigns from an engagement under paragraph (3)(A), the accountant shall, not later than 1 business day following the failure by the issuer to notify the Commission under paragraph (3), furnish to the Commission a copy of the accountant's report (or the documentation of any oral report given).

“(c) AUDITOR LIABILITY LIMITATION.—No independent public accountant shall be liable in a private action for any finding, conclusion, or statement expressed in a report made pursuant to paragraph (3) or (4) of subsection (b), including any rule promulgated pursuant thereto.

“(d) CIVIL PENALTIES IN CEASE-AND-DESIST PROCEEDINGS.—If the Commission finds, after notice and opportunity for hearing in a proceeding instituted pursuant to section 21C, that an independent public accountant has willfully violated paragraph (3) or (4) of subsection (b), the Commission may, in addition to entering an order under section 21C, impose a civil penalty against the independent public accountant and any other person that the Commission finds was a cause of such violation. The determination to impose a civil penalty and the amount of the penalty shall be governed by the standards set forth in section 21B.

“(e) PRESERVATION OF EXISTING AUTHORITY.—Except as provided in subsection (d), nothing in this section shall be held to limit or otherwise affect the authority of the Commission under this title.

“(f) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term ‘illegal act’ means an act or omission that violates any law, or any rule or regulation having the force of law.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATES.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall apply to each annual report—

(1) for any period beginning on or after January 1, 1996, with respect to any registrant that is required to file selected quarterly financial data pursuant to the rules or regulations of the Securities and Exchange Commission; and

(2) for any period beginning on or after January 1, 1997, with respect to any other registrant.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 1058) to reform Federal securities litigation, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report:

STATEMENT OF MANAGERS—THE “PRIVATE SECURITIES LITIGATION REFORM ACT OF 1995”

The overriding purpose of our Nation's securities laws is to protect investors and to maintain confidence in the securities markets, so that our national savings, capital formation and investment may grow for the benefit of all Americans.

The private securities litigation system is too important to the integrity of American capital markets to allow this system to be undermined by those who seek to line their own pockets by bringing abusive and meritless suits. Private securities litigation is an indispensable tool with which defrauded investors can recover their losses without having to rely upon government action. Such private lawsuits promote public and global confidence in our capital markets and help to deter wrongdoing and to guarantee that corporate officers, auditors, directors, lawyers and others properly perform their jobs. This legislation seeks to return the securities litigation system to that high standard.

Congress has been prompted by significant evidence of abuse in private securities lawsuits to enact reforms to protect investors and maintain confidence in our capital markets. The House and Senate Committees heard evidence that abusive practices committed in private securities litigation include: (1) the routine filing of lawsuits against issuers of securities and others whenever there is a significant change in an issuer's stock price, without regard to any underlying culpability of the issuer, and with only faint hope that the discovery process might lead eventually to some plausible cause of action; (2) the targeting of deep pocket defendants, including accountants, underwriters, and individuals who may be covered by insurance, without regard to their actual culpability; (3) the abuse of the discovery process to impose costs so burdensome that it is often economical for the victimized party to settle; and (4) the manipulation by class action lawyers of the clients whom they purportedly represent. These serious injuries to innocent parties are compounded by the reluctance of many judges to impose sanctions under Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 11, except in those cases involving truly outrageous misconduct. At the same time, the investing public and the entire U.S. economy have been injured by the unwillingness of the best qualified persons to serve on boards of directors and of issuers to discuss publicly their future prospects, because of fear of baseless and extortionate securities lawsuits.

In these and other examples of abusive and manipulative securities litigation, innocent parties are often forced to pay exorbitant “settlements.” When an insurer must pay lawyers' fees, make settlement payments, and expend management and employee resources in defending a meritless suit, the issuers' own investors suffer. Investors always are the ultimate losers when extortionate “settlements” are extracted from issuers.

This Conference Report seeks to protect investors, issuers, and all who are associated with our capital markets from abusive securities litigation. This legislation implements needed procedural protections to discourage frivolous litigation. It protects outside directors, and others who may be sued for non-knowing securities law violations, from liability for damage actually caused by others. It reforms discovery rules to minimize costs incurred during the pendency of a motion to dismiss or a motion for summary judgment. It protects investors who join class actions against lawyer-driven lawsuits by giving control of the litigation to lead plaintiffs with substantial holdings of the securities of the issuer. It gives victims of abusive securities lawsuits the opportunity to recover their attorneys' fees at the conclusion of an action. And it establishes a safe harbor for forward looking statements, to encourage issuers to disseminate relevant information to the market without fear of open-ended liability.

PRIVATE SECURITIES LITIGATION REFORM

Section 101 contains provisions to reform abusive securities class action litigation. It amends the Securities Act of 1933 (the "1933 Act") by adding a new section 27 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (the "1934 Act") by adding a new section 21D. These provisions are intended to encourage the most capable representatives of the plaintiff class to participate in class action litigation and to exercise supervision and control of the lawyers for the class. These provisions are intended to increase the likelihood that parties with significant holdings in issuers, whose interests are more strongly aligned with the class of shareholders, will participate in the litigation and exercise control over the selection and actions of plaintiff's counsel. The legislation also provides that all discovery is stayed during the pendency of any motion to dismiss or for summary judgment. These stay of discovery provisions are intended to prevent unnecessary imposition of discovery costs on defendants.

THE PROFESSIONAL PLAINTIFF AND LEAD PLAINTIFF PROBLEMS

House and Senate Committee hearings on securities litigation reform demonstrated the need to reform abuses involving the use of "professional plaintiffs" and the race to the courthouse to file the complaint.

Professional plaintiffs who own a nominal number of shares in a wide array of public companies permit lawyers readily to file abusive securities class action lawsuits. Floor debate in the Senate highlighted that many of the "world's unluckiest investors" repeatedly appear as lead plaintiffs in securities class action lawsuits. These lead plaintiffs often receive compensation in the form of bounty payments or bonuses.

The Conference Committee believes these practices have encouraged the filing of abusive cases. Lead plaintiffs are not entitled to a bounty for their services. Individuals who are motivated by the payment of a bounty or bonus should not be permitted to serve as lead plaintiffs. These individuals do not adequately represent other shareholders—in many cases the "lead plaintiff" has not even read the complaint.

The Conference Committee believes that several new rules will effectively discourage the use of professional plaintiffs.

Plaintiff certification of the complaint

This legislation requires, in new section 27(a)(2) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(a)(2) of the 1934 Act, that the lead plaintiff file a sworn certified statement with the complaint. The statement must certify that the plaintiff: (a) reviewed and authorized the filing of the complaint; (b) did not purchase the securities at the direction of counsel or in order to participate in a lawsuit; and (c) is willing to serve as the lead plaintiff on behalf of the class. To further deter the use of professional plaintiffs, the plaintiff must also identify any transactions in the securities covered by the class period, and any other lawsuits in which the plaintiff has sought to serve as lead plaintiff in the last three years.¹

Method for determining the "most adequate plaintiff"

The Conference Committee was also troubled by the plaintiffs' lawyers "race to the courthouse" to be the first to file a securities class action complaint. This race has caused plaintiffs' attorneys to become fleet of foot and sleight of hand. Most often speed has replaced diligence in drafting complaints. The Conference Committee believes two incentives have driven plaintiffs' lawyers to be the first to file. First, courts traditionally appoint counsel in class action lawsuits on a "first come, first serve" basis. Courts often afford insufficient consideration to the most thoroughly researched, but later filed, complaint. The second incentive involves the court's decision as to who will become lead plaintiff. Generally, the first lawsuit filed also determines the lead plaintiff.

The Conference Committee believes that the selection of the lead plaintiff and lead counsel should rest on considerations other than how quickly a plaintiff has filed its complaint. As a result, this legislation establishes new procedures for the appointment of the lead plaintiff and lead counsel in securities class actions in new section 27(a)(3) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(a)(3) of the 1934 Act.

A plaintiff filing a securities class action must, within 20 days of filing a complaint, provide notice to members of the purported class in a widely circulated business publication. This notice must identify the claims alleged in the lawsuit and the purported class period and inform potential class members that, within 60 days, they may move to serve as the lead plaintiff. Members of the purported class who seek to serve as lead plaintiff do not have to file the certification filing as part of this motion. "Publication" includes a variety of media, including wire, electronic or computer services.²

Within 90 days of the published notice, the court must consider motions made under this section and appoint the lead plaintiff. If a motion has been filed to consolidate multiple class actions brought on behalf of the same class, the court will not appoint a lead plaintiff until after consideration of the motion.

The current system often works to prevent institutional investors from selecting counsel or serving as lead plaintiff in class actions.³ The Conference Committee seeks to increase the likelihood that institutional investors will serve as lead plaintiffs by requiring courts to presume that the member of the purported class with the largest financial stake in the relief sought is the "most adequate plaintiff."

The Conference Committee believes that increasing the role of institutional investors in class actions will ultimately benefit shareholders and assist courts by improving the quality of representation in securities class actions. Institutional investors are America's largest shareholders, with about $9.5 trillion in assets, accounting for 51% of the equity market. According to one representative of institutional investors: "As the largest shareholders in most companies, we are the ones who have the most to gain from meritorious securities litigation."⁴ and that large investors might conspire with the defendant company's management. The Conference Committee believes, however, that with pension funds accounting for $4.5 trillion⁵ or nearly half of the institutional assets, in many cases the beneficiaries of pension funds—small investors—ultimately have the greatest stake in the outcome of the lawsuit. Cumulatively, these small investors represent a single large investor interest. Institutional investors and other class members with large amounts at stake will represent the interests of the plaintiff class more effectively than class members with small amounts at stake. The claims of both types of class members generally will be typical.

The Conference Committee recognizes the potential conflicts that could be caused by the shareholder with the "largest financial stake" serving as lead plaintiff. As a result, this presumption may be rebutted by evidence that the plaintiff would not fairly and adequately represent the interests of the class or is subject to unique defenses. Members of the purported class may seek discovery on whether the presumptively most adequate plaintiff would not adequately represent the class. The provisions of the bill relating to the appointment of a lead plaintiff are not intended to affect current law with regard to challenges to the adequacy of the class representative or typicality of the claims among the class.

Although the most adequate plaintiff provision does not confer any new fiduciary duty on institutional investors—and the courts should not impose such a duty—the Conference Committee nevertheless intends that the lead plaintiff provision will encourage institutional investors to take a more active role in securities class action lawsuits. Scholars predict that increasing the role of institutional investors will benefit both injured shareholders and courts: "Institutions with large stakes in class actions have much the same interests as the plaintiff class generally; thus, courts could be more confident settlements negotiated under the supervision of institutional plaintiffs were 'fair and reasonable' than is the case with settlements negotiated by unsupervised plaintiffs' attorneys."⁶

Finally, this lead plaintiff provision solves the dilemma of who will serve as class counsel. Subject to court approval, the most adequate plaintiff retains class counsel. As a result, the Conference Committee expects that the plaintiff will choose counsel rather than, as is true today, counsel choosing the plaintiff. The Conference Committee does not intend to disturb the court's discretion under existing law to approve or disapprove the lead plaintiff's choice of counsel when necessary to protect the interests of the plaintiff class.

The Conference Report seeks to restrict professional plaintiffs from serving as lead plaintiff by limiting a person from serving in that capacity more than five times in three years. Institutional investors seeking to serve as lead plaintiff may need to exceed this limitation and do not represent the type of professional plaintiff this legislation seeks to restrict. As a result, the Conference Committee grants courts discretion to avoid the unintended consequence of disqualifying institutional investors from serving more than five times in three years. The Conference Committee does not intend for this provision to operate at cross purposes with the "most adequate plaintiff" provision. The Conference Committee does expect, however, that it will be used with vigor to limit the activities of professional plaintiffs.

Limitation on lead plaintiff's recovery

This legislation also removes the financial incentive for becoming a lead plaintiff. New section 27(a)(4) of the 1933 Act and section 21D(a)(4) of the 1934 Act limits the class representative's recovery to his or her pro rata share of the settlement or final judgment. The lead plaintiff's share of the final judgment or settlement will be calculated in the same manner as the shares of the other class members. The Conference Committee recognizes that lead plaintiffs should be reimbursed for reasonable costs and expenses associated with service as lead plaintiff, including lost wages, and grants the courts discretion to award fees accordingly.

IMPROVEMENTS TO THE SETTLEMENT PROCESS

Restriction on sealed settlement agreements

New section 27(a)(5) of the 1933 Act and section 21D(a)(5) of the 1934 Act generally bar the filing of settlement agreements under seal. The Conference Committee recognizes that legitimate reasons may exist for the court to permit the entry of a settlement or portions of a settlement under seal. A party must show "good cause," i.e., that the publication of a portion or portions of the settlement agreement would result in direct and substantial harm to any party, whether or not a party to the action. The Conference Committee intends "direct and substantial harm" to include proof of reputational injury to a party.

Limitation on attorney's fees

The House and Senate heard testimony that counsel in securities class actions often receive a disproportionate share of settlement awards.

Under current practice, courts generally award attorney's fees based on the so-called "lodestar" approach—i.e., the court multiplies the attorney's hours by a reasonable hourly fee, which may be increased by an additional amount based on risk or other relevant factors.⁷ Under this approach, attorney's fees can constitute 35% or more of the entire settlement awarded to the class. The Conference Committee limits the award of attorney's fees and costs to counsel for a class in new section 27(a)(6) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(a)(6) of the 1934 Act to a reasonable percentage of the amount of recovery awarded to the class. By not fixing the percentage of fees and costs counsel may receive, the Conference Committee intends to give the court flexibility in determining what is reasonable on a case-by-case basis. The Conference Committee does not intend to prohibit use of the lodestar approach as a means of calculating attorney's fees. The provision focuses on the final amount of fees awarded, not the means by which such fees are calculated.

Improved settlement notice to class members

The House and Senate heard testimony that class members frequently lack meaningful information about the terms of the proposed settlement.⁸ Class members often receive insufficient notice of the terms of a proposed settlement and, thus, have no basis to evaluate the settlement. As one bar association advised the Senate Securities Subcommittee, "settlement notices provided to class members are often obtuse and confusing, and should be written in plain English."⁹ The Senate received similar testimony from a class member in two separate securities fraud lawsuits: "Nowhere in the settlement notices were the stockholders told of how much they could expect to recover of their losses. . . . I feel that the settlement offer should have told the stockholders how little of their losses will be recovered in the settlement, and that this is a material fact to the shareholder's decision to approve or disapprove the settlement."¹⁰

In new section 27(a)(7) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(a)(7) of the 1934 Act, the Conference Committee requires that certain information be included in any proposed or final settlement agreement disseminated to class members. To ensure that critical information is readily available to class members, the Conference Committee requires that such information appear in summary form on the cover page of the notice. The notice must contain a statement of the average amount of damages per share that would be recoverable if the settling parties can agree on a figure, or a statement from each settling party on why there is disagreement. It must also explain the attorney's fees and costs sought. The name, telephone number and address of counsel for the class must be provided. Most importantly, the notice must include a brief statement explaining the reason for the proposed settlement.

MAJOR SECURITIES CLASS ACTION ABUSES

Limits on abusive discovery to prevent "fishing expedition" lawsuits

The cost of discovery often forces innocent parties to settle frivolous securities class actions. According to the general counsel of an investment bank, "discovery costs account for roughly 80% of total litigation costs in securities fraud cases."¹¹ In addition, the threat that the time of key employees will be spent responding to discovery requests, including providing deposition testimony, often forces coercive settlements.

The House and Senate heard testimony that discovery in securities class actions often resembles a fishing expedition. As one witness noted, "once the suit is filed, the plaintiff's law firm proceeds to search through all of the company's documents and take endless depositions for the slightest positive comment which they can claim induced the plaintiff to invest and any shred of evidence that the company knew a downturn was coming."¹²

The Conference Committee provides in new section 27(b) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(b)(3) of the 1934 Act that courts must stay all discovery pending a ruling on a motion to dismiss, unless exceptional circumstances exist where particularized discovery is necessary to preserve evidence or to prevent undue prejudice to a party. For example, the terminal illness of an important witness might require the deposition of the witness prior to the ruling on the motion to dismiss.

To ensure that relevant evidence will not be lost, new section 27(b) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(b)(3) of the 1934 Act make it unlawful for any person, upon receiving actual notice that names that person as a defendant, willfully to destroy or otherwise alter relevant evidence. The Conference Committee intends this provision to prohibit only the willful alteration or destruction of evidence relevant to the litigation. The provision does not impose liability where parties inadvertently or unintentionally destroy what turn out later to be relevant documents. Although this prohibition expressly applies only to defendants, the Conference Committee believes that the willful destruction of evidence by a plaintiff would be equally improper, and that courts have ample authority to prevent such conduct or to apply sanctions as appropriate.

"Fair share" rule of proportionate liability

One of the most manifestly unfair aspects of the current system of securities litigation is its imposition of liability on one party for injury actually caused by another. Under current law, a single defendant who has been found to be 1% liable may be forced to pay 100% of the damages in the case. The Conference Committee remedies this injustice by providing a "fair share" system of proportionate liability. As former SEC Chairman Richard Breeden testified, under the current regime of joint and several liability, "parties who are central to perpetrating a fraud often pay little, if anything. At the same time, those whose involvement might be only peripheral and lacked any deliberate and knowing participation in the fraud often pay the most in damages."¹³

The current system of joint and several liability creates coercive pressure for entirely innocent parties to settle meritless claims rather than risk exposing themselves to liability for a grossly disproportionate share of the damages in the case.

In many cases, exposure to this kind of unlimited and unfair risk has made it impossible for firms to attract qualified persons to serve as outside directors. Both the House and Senate Committees repeatedly heard testimony concerning the chilling effect of unlimited exposure to meritless securities litigation on the willingness of capable people to serve on company boards. SEC Chairman Levitt himself testified that "there [were] the dozen or so entrepreneurial firms whose invitations [to be an outside director] I turned down because they could not adequately insure their directors [C]ountless colleagues in business have had the same experience, and the fact that so many qualified people have been unable to serve is, to me, one of the most lamentable problems of all."¹⁴ This result has injured the entire U.S. economy.

Accordingly, the Conference Committee has reformed the traditional rule of joint and several liability. The Conference Report specifically applies this reform to the liability of outside directors under Section 11 of the 1933 Act,¹⁵ because the current imposition of joint and several liability for non-knowing Section 11 violations by outside directors presents a particularly glaring example of unfairness. By relieving outside directors of the specter of joint and several liability under Section 11 for non-knowing conduct, Section 201 of the Conference Report will reduce the pressure placed by meritless litigation on the willingness of capable outsiders to serve on corporate boards.

In addition, Section 201 will provide the same "fair share" rule of liability, rather than joint and several liability, for all 1934 Act cases in which liability can be predicated on non-knowing conduct.¹⁶

In applying the "fair share" rule of proportionate liability to cases involving non-knowing securities violations, the Conference Committee explicitly determined that the legislation should make no change to the state of mind requirements of existing law. Accordingly, the definition of "knowing" conduct in the Conference Report is written to conform to existing statutory standards, and Section 201 of the Conference Report makes clear that the "fair share" rule of proportionate liability does not create any new cause of action or expand, diminish, or otherwise affect the substantive standard for liability in any action under the 1933 Act or the 1934 Act. This section of the Conference Report further provides that the standard of liability in any such action should be determined by the pre-existing, unamended statutory provision that creates the cause of action, without regard to this provision, which applies solely to the allocation of damages.

The Conference Report imposes full joint and several liability, as under current law, on defendants who engage in knowing violations of the securities laws. Defendants who are found liable but have not engaged in knowing violations are responsible only for their share of the judgment (based on the fact finder's apportionment of responsibility), with two key exceptions. First, all defendants are jointly and severally liable with respect to the claims of certain plaintiffs.

Such plaintiffs are defined in the Conference Report as those who establish that (i) they are entitled to damages exceeding 10% of their net worth, and (ii) their net worth is less than $200,000. The $200,000 net worth test does not reflect a judgment by the Conference Committee that investors who fall below this standard are "small," unsophisticated, or in need of or entitled to any special protection under the securities laws. Second, if a defendant cannot pay their allocable share of the damages due to insolvency, each of the other defendants must make an additional payment—up to 50% of their own liability—to make up the shortfall in the plaintiff's recovery.

The Conference Committee recognizes that private parties may wish to allocate attorney's fees and costs according to a formula negotiated previously by contract. Accordingly, the Conference Report provides that where authorized by contract a prevailing defendant may recover attorney's fees and costs. The Conference Report does not change the enforceability of indemnification contracts in the event of settlement.

Attorneys' fees awarded to prevailing parties in abusive litigation

The Conference Committee recognizes the need to reduce significantly the filing of meritless securities lawsuits without hindering the ability of victims of fraud to pursue legitimate claims. The Conference Committee seeks to solve this problem by strengthening the application of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure in private securities actions.

Existing Rule 11 has not deterred abusive securities litigation.¹⁷ Courts often fail to impose Rule 11 sanctions even where such sanctions are warranted. When sanctions are awarded, they are generally insufficient to make whole the victim of a Rule 11 violation: the amount of the sanction is limited to an amount that the court deems sufficient to deter repetition of the sanctioned conduct, rather than imposing a sanction that equals the costs imposed on the victim by the violation. Finally, courts have been unable to apply Rule 11 to the complaint in such a way that the victim of the ensuing lawsuit is compensated for all attorneys' fees and costs incurred in the entire action.

The legislation gives teeth to Rule 11 in new section 27(c) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(c) of the 1934 Act by requiring the court to include in the record specific findings, at the conclusion of the action, as to whether all parties and all attorneys have complied with each requirement of Rule 11(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

These provisions also establish the presumption that the appropriate sanction for filing a complaint that violates Rule 11(b) is an award to the prevailing party of all attorney's fees and costs incurred in the entire action. The Conference Report provides that, if the action is brought for an improper purpose, is unwarranted by existing law or legally frivolous, is not supported by facts, or otherwise fails to satisfy the requirements set forth in Rule 11(b), the prevailing party presumptively will be awarded its attorneys' fees and costs for the entire action. This provision does not mean that a party who is sanctioned for only a partial failure of the complaint under Rule 11, such as one count out of a 20-count complaint, must pay for all of the attorney's fees and costs associated with the action. The Conference Committee expects that courts will grant relief from the presumption where a de minimis violation of the Rule has occurred. Accordingly, the Conference Committee specifies that the failure of the complaint must be "substantial" and makes the presumption rebuttable.

For Rule 11(b) violations involving responsive pleadings or dispositive motions, the rebuttable presumption is an award of attorneys' fees and costs incurred by the victim of the violation as a result of that particular pleading or motion.

A party may rebut the presumption of sanctions by providing that: (i) the violation was de minimis; or (ii) the imposition of fees and costs would impose an undue burden and be unjust, and it would not impose a greater burden for the prevailing party to have to pay those same fees and costs. The premise of this test is that, when an abusive or frivolous action is maintained, it is manifestly unjust for the victim of the violation to bear substantial attorneys' fees. The Conference Committee recognizes that little in the way of justice can be achieved by attempting to compensate the prevailing party for lost time and such other measures of damages as injury to reputation; hence it has written into law the presumption that a prevailing party should not have the cost of attorney's fees added as insult to the underlying injury. If a party successfully rebuts the presumption, the court then impose sanctions consistent with Rule 11(c)(2).¹⁸ The Conference Committee intends this provision to impose upon courts the affirmative duty to scrutinize filings closely and to sanction attorneys or parties whenever their conduct violates Rule 11(b).

Limitation on attorney's conflict of interest

The Conference Committee believes that, in the context of class action lawsuits, it is a conflict of interest for a class action lawyer to benefit from the outcome of the case where the lawyer owns stock in the company being sued. Accordingly, new section 27(a)(8) of the 1933 Act and new section 21D(a)(9) requires the court to determine whether a lawyer who owns securities in the defendant company and who seeks to represent the plaintiff class in a securities class action should be disqualified from representing the class.

Bonding for payment of fees and expenses

The house hearings on securities litigation reform revealed the need for explicit authority for courts to require undertakings for attorney's fees and costs from parties, or their counsel, or both, in order to ensure the viability of potential sanctions as a deterrent to meritless litigation.¹⁹ Congress long ago authorized similar undertakings in the express private right of action in Section 11 of the 1933 Act and in Sections 9 and 18 of the 1934 Act. The availability of such undertakings in private securities actions will be an important means of ensuring that the provision of the Conference Report authorizing the award of attorneys' fees and costs under Rule 11 will not become, in practice, a one-way mechanism only usable to sanction parties with deep pockets.²⁰

The legislation expressly provides that such undertakings may be required of parties' attorneys in lieu of, or in addition to, the parties themselves. In this regard, the Conference Committee intends to preempt any contrary state bar restrictions that much inhibit attorneys' provision of such undertakings in behalf of their clients. The Conference Committee anticipates, for example, that where a judge determines to require an undertaking in a class action, such an undertaking would ordinarily be imposed on plaintiffs' counsel rather than upon the plaintiff class, both because the financial resources of counsel would ordinarily be more extensive than those of an individual class member and because counsel are better situated than class members to evaluate the merits of cases and individual motions. This provision is intended to effectuate the remedial purposes of the bill's Rule 11 provision.

REQUIREMENTS FOR SECURITIES FRAUD ACTIONS Heightened pleading standard

Naming a party in a civil suit for fraud is a serious matter. Unwarranted fraud claims can lead to serious injury to reputation for which our legal system effectively offers no redress. For this reason, among others, Rule 9(b) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires that plaintiffs plead allegations of fraud with "particularity." The Rule has not prevented abuse of the securities laws by private litigants.²¹ Moreover, the courts of appeals have interpreted Rule 9(b)'s requirement in conflicting ways, creating distinctly different standards among the circuits.²² The House and Senate hearings on securities litigation reform included testimony on the need to establish uniform and more stringent pleading requirements to curtail the filing of meritless lawsuits.

The Conference Committee language is based in part on the pleading standard of the Second Circuit. The standard also is specifically written to conform the language to Rule 9(b)'s notion of pleading with "particularity."

Regarded as the most stringent pleading standard, the Second Circuit requirement is that the plaintiff state facts with particularity, and that these facts, in turn, must give rise to a "strong inference" of the defendant's fraudulent intent. Because the Conference Committee intends to strengthen existing pleading requirements, it does not intend to codify the Second Circuit's case law interpreting this pleading standard.²³ The plaintiff must also specifically plead with particularity each statement alleged to have been misleading. The reason or reasons why the statement is misleading must also be set forth in the complaint in detail. If an allegation is made on information and belief, the plaintiff must state with particularity all facts in the plaintiff's possession on which the belief is formed.

Loss causation

The Conference Committee also requires the plaintiff to plead and then to prove that the misstatement or omission alleged in the complaint actually caused the loss incurred by the plaintiff in new Section 21D(b)(4) of the 1934 Act. For example, the plaintiff would have to prove that the price at which the plaintiff bought the stock was artificially inflated as the result of the misstatement or omission.

DAMAGES

Written interrogatories

In an action to recover money damages, the Conference Committee requires the court to submit written interrogatories to the jury on the issue of defendant's state of mind at the time of the violation. In expressly providing for certain interrogatories, the Committee does not intend to otherwise prohibit or discourage the submission of interrogatories concerning the mental state or relative fault of the plaintiff and of persons who could have been joined as defendants. For example, interrogatories may be appropriate in contribution proceedings among defendants or in computing liability when some of the defendants have entered into settlement with the plaintiff prior to verdict or judgment.

Limitation on "windfall" damages

The current method of calculating damages in 1934 Act securities fraud cases is complex and uncertain. As a result, there are often substantial variations in the damages calculated by the defendants and the plaintiffs. Typically, in an action involving a fraudulent misstatement or omission, the investor's damages are presumed to be the difference between the price the investor paid for the security and the price of the security on the day the corrective information gets disseminated to the market.

Between the time a misrepresentation is made and the time the market receives corrected information, however, the price of the security may rise or fall for reasons unrelated to the alleged fraud. According to an analysis provided to the Senate Securities Subcommittee, on average, damages in securities litigation comprise approximately 27.7%²⁴ of market loss. Calculating damages based on the date corrective information is disclosed may end up substantially overestimating plaintiff's damages.²⁵ The Conference Committee intends to rectify the uncertainty in calculating damages in new section 21D(e) of the 1934 Act by providing a "look back" period, thereby limiting damages to those losses caused by the fraud and not by other market conditions.

This provision requires that plaintiff's damages be calculated based on the "mean trading price" of the security. This calculation takes into account the value of the security on the date plaintiff originally bought or sold the security and the value of the security during the 90-day period after dissemination of any information correcting the misleading statement or omission. If the plaintiff sells those securities or repurchases the subject securities during the 90-day period, damages will be calculated based on the price of that transaction and the value of the security immediately after the dissemination of corrective information.

SAFE HARBOR FOR FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

The muzzling effect of abusive securities litigation

Abusive litigation severely affects the willingness of corporate managers to disclose information to the marketplace. Former SEC Chairman Richard Breeden testified in a Senate Securities Subcommittee hearing on this subject: "Shareholders are also damaged due to the chilling effect of the current system on the robust and candor of disclosure. . . . Understanding a company's own assessment of its future potential would be among the most valuable information shareholders and potential investors could have about a firm."²⁶

Fear that inaccurate projections will trigger the filing of securities class action lawsuit has muzzled corporate management. One study found that over two-thirds of venture capital firms were reluctant to discuss their performance with analysts or the public because of the threat of litigation.²⁷ Anecdotal evidence similarly indicates corporate counsel advise clients to say as little as possible, because "legions of lawyers scrub required filings to ensure that disclosures are as milquetoast as possible, so as to provide no grist for the litigation mill."²⁸

Technology companies—because of the volatility of their stock prices—are particularly vulnerable to securities fraud lawsuits when projections do not materialize. If a company fails to satisfy its announced earnings projections—perhaps because of changes in the economy or the timing of an order or new product—the company is likely to face a lawsuit.

A statutory safe harbor for forward-looking statements

The Conference Committee has adopted a statutory "safe harbor" to enhance market efficiency by encouraging companies to disclose forward-looking information. This provision adds a new section 27A to the 1933 Act and a new section 21E of the 1934 Act which protects from liability in private lawsuits certain "forward-looking" statements made by persons specified in the legislation.²⁹

The Conference Committee has crafted a safe harbor that differs from the safe harbor provisions in the House and Senate passed bills. The Conference Committee safe harbor, like the Senate safe harbor, is based on aspects of SEC Rule 175 and the judicial created "bespeaks caution" doctrine. It is a bifurcated safe harbor that permits greater flexibility to those who may avail themselves of safe harbor protection. There is also a special safe harbor for issuers who make oral forward-looking statements.

The first prong of the safe harbor protects a written or oral forward-looking statement that is: (i) identified as forward-looking, and (ii) accompanied by meaningful cautionary statements identifying important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those projected in the statement.

Under this first prong of the safe harbor, boilerplate warnings will not suffice as meaningful cautionary statements identifying important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those projected in the statement. The cautionary statements must convey substantive information about factors that realistically could cause results to differ materially from those projected in the forward-looking statement, such as, for example, information about the issuer's business.

As part of the analysis of what constitutes a meaningful cautionary statement, courts should consider the factors identified in the statements. "Important" factors means the stated factors identified in the cautionary statement must be relevant to the projection and must be of a nature that the factor or factors could actually affect whether the forward-looking statement is realized.

The Conference Committee expects that the cautionary statements identify important factors that could cause results to differ materially—but not all factors. Failure to include the particular factor that ultimately causes the forward-looking statement not to come true will not mean that the statement is not protected by the safe harbor. The Conference Committee specifies that the cautionary statements identify "important" factors to provide guidance to issuers and not to provide an opportunity for plaintiff counsel to conduct discovery on what factors were known to the issuer at the time the forward-looking statement was made.

The use of the words "meaningful" and "important factors" are intended to provide a standard for the types of cautionary statements upon which a court may, where appropriate, decide a motion to dismiss, without examining the state of mind of the defendant. The first prong of the safe harbor requires courts to examine only the cautionary statement accompanying the forward-looking statement. Courts should not examine the state of mind of the person making the statement.

Courts may continue to find a forward-looking statement immaterial—and thus not actionable under the 1933 Act and the 1934 Act—on other grounds. To clarify this point, the Conference Committee includes language in the safe harbor provision that no liability attaches to forward-looking statements that are "immaterial."

The safe harbor seeks to provide certainty that forward-looking statements will not be actionable by private parties under certain circumstances. Forward-looking statements will have safe harbor protection if they are accompanied by a meaningful cautionary statement. A cautionary statement that misstates historical facts is not covered by the Safe Harbor, it is not sufficient, however, in a civil action to allege merely that a cautionary statement misstates historical facts. The plaintiff must plead with particularity all facts giving rise to a strong inference of a material misstatement in the cautionary statement to survive a motion to dismiss.

The second prong of the safe harbor provides an alternative analysis. This safe harbor also applies to both written and oral forward looking statements. Instead of examining the forward-looking and cautionary statements, this prong of the safe harbor focuses on the state of mind of the person making the forward-looking statement. A person or business entity will not be liable in a private lawsuit for a forward-looking statement unless a plaintiff proves that person or business entity made a false or misleading forward-looking statement with actual knowledge that it was false or misleading. The Conference Committee intends for this alternative prong of the safe harbor to apply if the plaintiff fails to prove the forward-looking statement (1) if made by a natural person, was made with the actual knowledge by that person that the statement was false or misleading; or (2) if made by a business entity, was made by or with the approval of an executive officer of the entity with actual knowledge by that officer that the statement was false or misleading.

The Conference Committee recognizes that, under certain circumstances, it may be unwieldy to make oral forward-looking statements relying on the first prong of the safe harbor. Companies who want to make a brief announcement of earnings or a new product would first have to identify the statement as forward-looking and then provide cautionary statements identifying important factors that could cause results to differ materially from those projected in the statement. As a result, the Conference Committee has provided for an optional more flexible rule for oral forward-looking statements that will facilitate these types of oral communications by an issuer while still providing to the public information it would have received if the forward-looking statement was written. The Conference Committee intends to limit this oral safe harbor to issuers or the officers, directors, or employees of the issuer acting on the issuer's behalf.

This legislation permits covered issuers, or persons acting on the issuer's behalf, to make oral forward-looking statements within the safe harbor. The person making the forward-looking statement must identify the statement as a forward-looking statement and state that results may differ materially from those projected in the statement. The person must also identify a "readily available" written document that contains factors that could cause results to differ materially. The written information identified by the person making the forward-looking statement must qualify as a "cautionary statement" under the first prong of the safe harbor (i.e., it must be a meaningful cautionary statement or statements that identify important factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those projected in the forward-looking statement.) For purposes of this provision, "readily available" information refers to SEC filed documents, annual reports and other widely disseminated materials, such as press releases.

Who and what receives safe harbor protection

The safe harbor provision protects written and oral forward-looking statements made by issuers and certain persons retained or acting on behalf of the issuer. The Conference Committee intends the statutory safe harbor protection to make more information about a company's future plans available to investors and the public. The safe harbor covers underwriters, but only insofar as the underwriters provide forward looking information that is based on or "derived from" information provided by the issuer. Because underwriters have what is effectively an adversarial relationship with issuers in performing due diligence, the use of the term "derived from" affords underwriters some latitude so that they may disclose adverse information that the issuer did not necessarily "provide." The Conference Committee does not intend the safe harbor to cover forward-looking information made in connection with a broker's sales practices.

The Conference Committee adopts the SEC's present definition, as set forth in Rule 175, of forward-looking information, with certain additions and clarifying changes. The definition covers: (i) certain financial items, including projections of revenues, income and earnings, capital expenditures, dividends, and capital structure; (ii) management's statement of future business plans and objectives, including with respect to its products or services; and (iii) certain statements made in SEC required disclosures, including management's discussion and analysis and results of operations; and (iv) any statement disclosing the assumptions underlying the forward-looking statement.

The Conference Committee has determined that the statutory safe harbor should not apply to certain forward-looking statements. Thus, the statutory safe harbor does not protect forward-looking statements: (1) included in financial statements prepared in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles; (2) contained in an initial public offering registration statement; (3) made in connection with a tender offer; (4) made in connection with a partnership, limited liability company or direct participation program offering; or (5) made in beneficial ownership disclosure statements filed with the SEC under Section 13(d) of the 1934 Act.

At this time, the Conference Committee recognizes that certain types of transactions and issuers may not be suitable for inclusion in a statutory safe harbor absent some experience with the statute. Although this legislation restricts partnerships, limited liability companies and direct participation programs from safe harbor protection, the Conference Committee expects the SEC to consider expanding the safe harbor to cover these entities where appropriate. The legislation authorizes the SEC to adopt exemptive rules or grant exemptive orders to those entities for whom a safe harbor should be available. The SEC should consider granting exemptive orders for established and reputable entities who are excluded from the safe harbor.

Moreover, the Committee has determined to extend the statutory safe harbor only to forward-looking information of certain established issuers subject to the reporting requirements of section 13(a) or section 15(d) of the 1934 Act. Except as provided by SEC rule or regulation, the safe harbor does not extend to an issuer who: (a) during the three year period preceding the date on which the statement was first made, has been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor described in clauses (i) through (iv) of Section 15(b)(4) or is the subject of a decree or order involving a violation of the securities laws; (b) makes the statement in connection with a "blank check" securities offering, "rollup transaction," or "going private" transaction; or (c) issues penny stock.

The Committee intends for its statutory safe harbor provisions to serve as a starting point and fully expects the SEC to continue its rulemaking proceedings in this area. The SEC should, as appropriate, promulgate rules or regulations to expand the statutory safe harbor by providing additional exemptions from liability or extending its coverage to additional types of information.

This legislation also makes clear that nothing in the safe harbor provision imposes any duty to update forward-looking statements.

The Conference Committee does not intend for the safe harbor provisions to replace the judicial "bespeaks caution" doctrine or to foreclose further development of that doctrine by the courts.

The safe harbor and stay of discovery

The legislation provides that, on any motion to dismiss the complaint based on the application of the safe harbor, the court shall consider the statements cited in the complaint and statements identified by the defendant in its moving papers, including any cautionary statements accompanying the forward-looking statement that are not subject to material dispute. The applicability of the safe harbor provisions under subsection (c)(1)(B) shall be based on the "actual knowledge" of the defendant and does not depend on the use of cautionary language. The applicability of the safe harbor provisions under subsections (c)(1)(A)(I) and (c)(2) shall be based upon the sufficiency of the cautionary language under those provisions and does not depend on the state of mind of the defendant. In the case of a complaint based on an oral forward-looking statement in which information concerning factors that could cause actual results to differ materially is contained in a "readily available" written document, the court shall consider statements in the readily available written documents.

INAPPLICABILITY OF RACKETEER INFLUENCED AND CORRUPT ORGANIZATIONS ACT (RICO) TO PRIVATE SECURITIES ACTIONS.

The SEC has supported removing securities fraud as a predicate offense in a civil action under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act ("RICO"). SEC Chairman Arthur Levitt testified: "Because the securities laws generally provide adequate remedies for those injured by securities fraud, it is both necessary and unfair to expose defendants in securities cases to the threat of treble damages and other extraordinary remedies provided by RICO."³⁰

The Conference Committee amends section 1964(c) of title 18 of the U.S. Code to remove any conduct that would have been actionable as fraud in the purchase or sale of securities as racketeering activity under civil RICO. The Committee intends this amendment to eliminate securities fraud as a predicate offense in a civil RICO action. In addition, the Conference Committee intends that a plaintiff may not plead other specified offenses, such as mail or wire fraud, as predicate acts under civil RICO if such offenses are based on conduct that would have been actionable as securities fraud.

AUDITOR DISCLOSURE OF CORPORATE FRAUD

The Conference Report requires independent public accountants to adopt certain procedures in connection with their audits and to inform the SEC of illegal acts. These requirements would be carried out in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards for audits of SEC registrants—as modified from time to time by the Commission—on the detection of illegal acts, related party transactions and relationships, and evaluation of an issuer's ability to continue as a going concern.

The Conference Committee does not intend to affect the Commission's authority in areas not specifically addressed by this provisions. The Conference Committee expects that the SEC will continue its longstanding practice of looking to the private sector to set and to improve auditing standards. The SEC should not act to "modify" or "supplement" generally accepted auditing standards for SEC registrants until after it has determined that the private sector is unable or unwilling to do so on a timely basis. The Conference Committee intends for the SEC to have discretion, however, to determine the appropriateness and timeliness of the private sector response. The SEC should act promptly if required by the public interest or for the protection of investors.

²⁹ The concept of a safe harbor for forward-looking statements made under certain conditions is not new. In 1979, the SEC promulgated Rule 175 to provide a safe harbor for certain forward looking statements made with a "reasonable basis" and in "good faith." This safe harbor has not provided companies meaningful protection from litigation. In a February 1995 letter to the SEC, a major pension fund stated: "A major failing of the existing safe harbor is that while it may provide theoretical protection to issuers from liability when disclosing projections, it fails to prevent the threat of frivolous lawsuits that arises every time a legitimate projection is not realized." See February 14, 1995 letter from the California Public Employees' Retirement System to the SEC Courts have also crafted a safe harbor for forward-looking statements or projections accompanied by sufficient cautionary language. The First, Second, Third, Sixth and Ninth Circuits have adopted a version of the "bespoke caution" doctrine. See, e.g., In re Worlds of Wonder Securities Litigation, 35 F. 3d 1407 (9th Cir. 1994); Rubinstein v. Collins, 20 F. 3d 169 (5th Cir. 1994); *Kline v. CLINTON'S CASE FOR SENDING IN THE TROOPS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. DORNAN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DORNAN. Mr. Speaker, there is a remarkable column in today's Washington Times by its gifted editor/writer Wesley Pruden. It is titled "The Macabre Tribute to McNamara's Band." Some of us took to the floor here earlier this month to point out that Robert Strange McNamara was literally in Hanoi all but begging forgiveness and asking for a seminar on Vietnam in Vietnam where he could expiate his guilt on sending 58,700 American men to their death, 8 women, and try and go to his grave with some peace. He did this with Castro, a war criminal, down in Cuba, and now he wants to do it with the war criminals that prevail in Hanoi.

Listen to the opening of Mr. Pruden's column:

The man has no shame, but we knew that, and he is not talking about McNamara. He said:

Bill Clinton, who did everything but to defect to Hanoi to avoid doing his duty to his country 30 years ago, yesterday tried to make a case for sending young men to do their duty in Bosnia, and being Bill Clinton, naturally he cast it as something else. In the afternoon, as an opportunity to immunize little children against childhood disease—this is an extraordinary opportunity, the President said, announcing $2 million for needles and serum for the children of all of that tragic area of the world.

It says that this man has a problem that others do not. If Mr. Clinton truly loathes the military, and he used that word in his infamous letter to Colonel Holmes that he wrote from England on December 3, 1969, there is no better way to show it than to send upwards of 20, 25; 40 is the better figure, Mr. Speaker, of our loathsome sons to a wintry nonholiday in the mountainous wilds of Bosnia where sniping at Americans or planting land mines under their feet will be the season's sport. Mr. Clinton enlists all the bromides and cliches, many weathered in antiquity, to make his case.

But as I listened to that case last night, Mr. Speaker, Vietnam, the killing fields of Cambodia and the tragedy of Laos kept going through my head. Clinton mentioned in his remarks that Americans will do good things in the face of defending freedom, and he mentioned World War I, which began in Sarajevo, by the way, World War II, Haiti, Iraq, the Middle East, Northern Ireland; he even mentioned Korea, but he studiously dodged paying tribute to the American sacrifices in Vietnam, a sacrifice he acidly scorned in the past, and when asked about Mr. McNamara's disgusting book of self vindication, Clinton told CNN reporter Wolf Blitzer that he, Clinton, felt vindicated by the war criminal McNamara's insidious book.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to do a 1-hour special order tonight. I hope my friends, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BURTON] and the gentleman from California [Mr. CUNNINGHAM], who is going to speak after me, will join me.

Here is the problem in the Balkans, and any one of these can be defeated singly. We have threatened and killed Serbs from the air. Now we are going to act as peacekeepers on the ground. We have trained the Croatian Army. I witnessed it myself in August. We have armed the Bosnian military through the airport at Zagreb with Iranian arms. One out of every three airplanes loaded to the gunnels with arms going to the Croats, the other two to the Bosnian Moslems. Now we have conducted peace negotiations, and we claim we are going to see through the indictment of the 53-plus war criminals, all but one a Croat, and he is a Serb, and the Croat is in custody, none of the Serbs are; that we are going to see through the war crimes trials going on at the Hague in the Netherlands. How can we do all of this together unless it is some complicated, incoherent mess that is going to get young American men, and now women. According to the Aspin, Halperin, Clinton plan, women will be going in harm's way, and I will bring to the floor tomorrow night the photograph and cowboy hat, working at home, of Randy Shugart, Medal of Honor winner from the streets of Mogadishu, along with a picture of my dad the day after the war in France with about 20 children. That war that started in Sarajevo, my dad was hit once with shrapnel, twice poison gas with mustard gas.

Mr. Speaker, I question and I want proof that Pope John Paul II, whose advice Clinton has not taken on the sanctity of human life; I doubt he asked Clinton to send our young men to Sarajevo so we would not end this century with a war there. I have a call in to the papal nuncio. I will give you a report on the veracity of that tomorrow night.

3. Are you willing to extend the U.S. military commitment past one year to achieve success?
4. What do you consider a success in this operation?
5. What are the specific military and political objectives requiring deployment of 20,000? Why not more than 20,000 young American men and women?

24. In Annex 1A, Article II of the Dayton Agreement, the parties to the agreement commit themselves to disarm and disband all armed civilian groups, except for authorized police forces. How will this be monitored to ensure all sides comply?

25. What will be the consequences of non-compliance?

26. In Annex 11, Article I of the agreement, a U.N. International Police Task Force (IPTF) will be created to carry out the program of assistance for law enforcement. Who will comprise the IPTF?

27. Will the IPTF be armed?

28. If so, will there be IPTF officers in the American protected region?

29. According to the agreement, the IPTF officers will only be able to notify higher officials of failure by the parties to comply with IPTF mandate. What good will that be if IPTF officers come across severe human right violations or other criminal activities?

30. NATO Army commanders had counted on a zone of separation 12 miles wide between the Serb and Muslim-Croat sides to keep Serb artillery as far away as possible. Why did U.S. negotiators agree to just a zone of separation 2½ miles wide?

31. The Bosnian Serbs will be required to reduce their military potential to the level where it is no longer a threat to the Muslim-Croat Federation. How will it be determined if the Serb military potential is a threat?

32. If the Bosnian Serb forces do not comply, will U.S. forces be used to weaken the Bosnian Serb military potential or to strengthen the Muslim forces?

33. Will strengthening the Muslim forces include arming and training the Muslim forces?

34. Will the Croats consider such U.S. action a threat?

35. Will not the Bosnian Serbs consider the U.S. as its antagonist if we try to weaken their side or strengthen the Muslims?

36. Doesn't such a strategy place U.S. forces in the precarious position of being directly in between the Serbs and Muslims?

37. In Annex 1A, Article III, the agreement states that all foreign forces, including individual advisors, freedom fighters, trainers, volunteers, and personnel from neighboring and other states, shall be withdrawn from the Bosnian territory. How will this be carried out?

38. Will this require U.S. forces trying to prove every individual's true national identity in their sector?

39. How will it be determined who are foreign nationals in the Serb zone while there are no Implementation Forces in the Serb region?

40. Many officials in the region believe that without an accounting of the human rights abuses in the Balkans and just punishment for those acts, a long-term solution will not be achieved. Will U.S. forces be used to help account for the numerous violations?

41. Will U.S. forces be used to continue uncovering the evidence of mass killings in the Bosnian Serb regions?

42. The agreement states that 54 accused Serbian war criminals will not be allowed to hold democratically elected offices. What about the one Croatian accused war criminal General Tihomir Blaskic, now the top inspector in the Croatian army, indicted by the U.N. war crimes tribunal?

43. Will U.S. forces be used to chase down war criminals, like the failed Delta Force operation to arrest Aided in Somalia, which resulted in the death of 19 Americans and the mutilation of five of their bodies?

44. There were 400,000 Serbs; 90,000 Muslims and 20,000 Croats displaced from their homes just in 1995. How will the NATO forces guarantee that these people can have safe passage back to their original homes in Bosnia?

45. What will be done to ensure that Serbs who had lived in Croatia will be guaranteed safe return back into Croatia?

46. Ethnic Serbs control the Eastern Slavonia region of Croatia around the devastated town of Vukovar and are supposed to cede control back to Croatia. What if that does not happen?

47. A wider Posavina Corridor in Northern Bosnia, which links the western and eastern regions controlled by the Bosnian Serbs, is supposed to be surrendered to Bosnian Serb forces by Croatian forces. Will U.S. forces be used to ensure Croat compliance?

48. Will U.S. forces be used to protect the Muslim enclave of Gorazde in Eastern Bosnia, which is totally surrounded by the Bosnian Serbs?

49. The Dayton agreement stipulates that each side will be allowed to maintain their own army and parliament. What will be the makeup of the Muslim-Croatian confederation parliament and what will be the structure of the Confederation Army?

50. What is the exit strategy for U.S. forces?

Mr. Speaker, again I submit for America the Weinberger-Dornan 10 principles for committing U.S. combat forces:

1. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless the situation is vital to U.S. or allied national interests.

2. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless all other options already have been used or considered.

3. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless there is a clear commitment, including allocated resources, to achieving victory.

4. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless there are clearly defined political and military objectives.

5. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless our commitment of these forces will change if our objectives change.

6. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless the American people and Congress supports the action, therefore insuring that the American people have been represented.

7. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless under the operational command of American commanders or integrated allied commanders under a ratified treaty, thereby having insured joint training.

8. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless properly equipped, trained and maintained by the Congress.

9. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless there is substantial and reliable intelligence flow including HUMINT (human intelligence).

10. The U.S. must not commit combat forces unless the commander in chief and Congress can explain to the loved ones of any killed or wounded American soldier, sailor, Marine, pilot or aircrewman why their family member or friend was sent in harm's way.

WEIGHING U.S. ROLE: ARGUMENTS FOR, AGAINST SENDING TROOPS

Key arguments for and against a U.S. military role in Bosnia-Herzegovina peace plan:

PRO

The United States has a moral obligation to try to end the genocide and random violence.

The United States, as a guarantor of the peace pact, must send troops to separate warring forces and establish clear borders.

U.S. forces will represent only a third (20,000) of the 60,000-person NATO force.

U.S. forces will operate under NATO, not United Nations, command, and have broader authority to respond to threats than they did in Somalia and Haiti.

The United States must lead the Bosnia peace effort to maintain its leadership role in NATO and Europe.

The United States cannot go back on the president's pledge to send troops without losing credibility internationally.

U.S. forces can withdraw if the peace agreement is violated.

Keeping peace in Bosnia keeps conflict from spreading.

Bosnian Serb leaders indicted as war criminals will have no role in the new government.

U.S. troops will not be required to track down war criminals or cope with refugees.

The firepower of Bosnian Muslims, long outgunned by Bosnian Serbs, will be improved, helping stabilize the situation.

For the first time, three warring parties, the Bosnians, Croats and Serbs, have initiated an agreement that divides land and agrees to a central government, signaling their interest in peace.

CON

There is no vital U.S. security interest in providing peacekeeping troops in Bosnia.

About 45,000 to 60,000 dissident rebel Serbs object to the accord. Operating in small groups, they could kill U.S. troops in retaliation.

The deployment will cost $1.5 billion at a time of budget constraints.

The peace pact is suspect because it would not have been reached without the U.S. commitment to send troops as enforcers.

Bosnian Serbs who have been bombed by NATO may view peacekeepers as the enemy.

An estimated 6 million land mines threaten U.S. troops.

U.S. troops will be required to settle local disputes over the treaty, which may give them the appearance of taking sides, and lead to retaliation.

The fighting in Bosnia is based on age-old disputes unlikely to be resolved in the 12-month period the U.S. peacekeeping force would be in the region.

Using NATO forces as peacekeepers is a mission for which the defense alliance is not designed and was not created.

The number of U.S. troops—20,000—is too small to effectively police the peace agreement and puts soldiers at risk.

THE MACABRE TRIBUTE TO McNAMARA'S BAND
(By Wesley Pruden)

The man has no shame, but we knew that. Bill Clinton, who did everything but defect to Hanoi to avoid doing his duty to his country 30 years ago, tried yesterday to make a case for sending young men to do their duty in Bosnia and, being Bill Clinton, naturally cast it as something else—an opportunity to immunize little children against childhood disease.

"This is an extraordinary opportunity," the president said, announcing that he would commit $2 million for the needles and the serum.

"We have a very compelling responsibility," he said, stopping just short of announcing that Miss Hillary would accompany the troops as a Red Cross doughnut girl.

Anyone who objects to doing for Europe what European boys should be doing naturally despises children almost as much as the Republicans hate old folks, and probably roots for measles and chickenpox.

The bad news is that the commander-in-chief has the authority to send troops anywhere in the world, even to liberate Scotland from Di's daffy in-laws if such a notion pops into his head, and in the end Congress, skeptical or not, will have little choice but to stamp it "OK."

Once they're in place, there's not a man or woman among us—well, not many—who won't insist that they get everything they need to protect themselves and to make themselves as comfortable as possible.

Besides, if Mr. Clinton truly "loathes" the military, as he said he does, there's no better way to show it than to send upwards of 25,000 of our "loathsome" sons to a wintry holiday in the mountainous wilds of Bosnia, where sniping at Americans, or planting land mines under their feet, will be the season's sport.

Mr. Clinton enlists all the bromides and clichés, many well weathered in antiquity, to make his case: "We must not and we will not turn our backs on peace. The accord [signed in Dayton] offers the people of Bosnia the first real hope of peace in nearly four years. Now we have a responsibility to see this achievement through. That is who we are as a people. That is what we stand for as a nation."

This is remarkably like the fervent exhortations Lyndon Johnson employed to persuade young Bill Clinton three decades ago, and the mature Bill Clinton can only hope that it sounds better in a mock-sincere Arkansas drawl than in a tinny Texas twang.

From the snug comfort of their campaign headquarters, the president and his men, who were—in Mr. Clinton's youthful words—"too educated to fight," can live out the vicarious bang-bang enthusiasms they missed in Vietnam. Just as in Vietnam, the men the president sends to Bosnia will have to deal with the fierce ethnic rivalries and bitter suspicions that fragmented the countryside in the first place. In his speech last night, the president recited the scenes of other American attempts to do good in the face of fighting, in World Wars I and II, in Haiti, Iraq, the Middle East and even Northern Ireland. He studiously dodged paying tribute to the American sacrifice in Vietnam, a sacrifice he has acidly scorned in the past.

Mr. Clinton promises to go through the motions of seeking the support of Congress, and Congress will go through the motions of resisting. But in the end the troops will debark—unless the president changes his mind, and nobody is foolish enough to bet against that—and Congress will go along. How can it not, if we intend to redeem whatever shred of respect the rest of the world has for us three years into the Clinton era.

Bob Dole, who has seen the face of war up close and personal, understands this. "I want to be in a position to support the president," he says. "It seems to me, when it comes to foreign policy, if we speak with one voice, we're better off." He makes the point that the president "never thought foreign policy was important until now."

Congress has an obligation to the men and women it puts in harm's way to make it clear, since the president and his men won't, exactly who it is who's sending them there, and why. Defense Secretary William Perry, echoing Robert McNamara from the summer of '65, says the American role will be completed within a year. Warren Christopher, echoing Dean Rusk, dusts off the infamous domino theory ("the fighting could spread to Europe unless we act now").

Nicholas Burns, a State Department spokesman who will get no closer to Bosnia than Constitution Avenue, recites the "iron-clad" assurances of the Serbians that they intend to be nice when the Americans arrive, and he scoffs at Radovan Karadzic's grim promise to make Bosnia "bleed for decades" as being meaningless because "his best days are behind him."

Perhaps. And perhaps Bill Clinton's, too, as his chickens from Saigon come home to roost on Pennsylvania Avenue.

RAIDING SOCIAL SECURITY TO BALANCE THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Hawaii [Mr. ABERCROMBIE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Speaker, I am going to begin a series of, I do not know if they can be called lectures, tonight; this is by way of introduction; but certainly a series of observations on what is ostensibly taking place tonight, which is presumably the first meeting with respect to balancing the budget.

Mr. Speaker, I have been on the floor here previously indicating to you and to my colleagues and to the American people that the budget that has been presented to us is not going to be a balanced budget, certainly not a balanced budget in the sense that most Americans understand it to be. This is because we are going to have a category called off-budget spending.

Now the average person and the average household who has to deal with their budget does not begin to accept this kind of terminology, and the fact is that Speaker GINGRICH has indicated over and over again that he wants to have a balanced budget in 7 years, and he wants honest numbers. Well, I am perfectly willing to deal with that situation. I would like to approach it from a different perspective, and I will be discussing that in the days to come as well as to what that might be as an alternative.

But what is before us now very frankly is not honest numbers, not honest numbers as people understand them. I hope that we will be able to get a much broader discussion under way throughout the Nation as to what constitutes this balanced budget. If the Speaker wants to have honest numbers, then I think he needs to come down here on the floor and indicate that he is going to take money from the Social Security Trust Fund in order to do this balancing. That is where it is going to come from.

I will use the figures of the Congressional Budget Office. This is not something that I am going to be making up because it suits me. There has been an insistence that the Congressional Budget Office figures be used.

Now, I will indicate to you, Mr. Speaker, that the Congressional Budget Office will confirm that in order for the budget, as presented by the majority, to be balanced that it must take from the Social Security Trust Fund upward of $636 billion plus interest, so that in the year 2002, 7 years from now, when the majority is saying that the budget will be balanced, those of you who expect to be able to draw on Social Security will find that there will be a gigantic IOU for almost $1 trillion.

Now I am only one person so far, but I believe, if you have the truth on your side, that it will out. Dozens and dozens and dozens of Members can come down on this floor and say they are going to balance the budget in 7 years, and I will maintain that unless they can explain how they are going to pay the almost $1 trillion that they have taken from Social Security to pay for it, they cannot do it.

You need only look at the budget document itself and it will show every year a deficit. The budget document of the House indicates that starting this year there will be a deficit, and each year that deficit has to be accounted for.

No. 4; this is from the conference report of the 104th Congress, first session, concurrent resolution in the budget proposal for that year, 1996, presented in June of this year. The fourth sequence, deficits. For the purpose of the enforcement of this resolution the amount of the deficits are as follows: Fiscal year 1996, $245 billion, listing on up to the year 2002, $108 billion.

How is it possible for the Speaker or anyone else presenting the budget formula for the press, for the American people, to say that the budget is going to be balanced if by the conference report itself there is a $108 billion deficit? Very simple. You take $115 billion from Social Security, from the trust fund, and wonder of wonders, you come up with a $10 billion surplus.

In the days to come, Mr. Speaker, I am going to be examining what this is all about and what it means.

Now the average family, when they are being told that the budget is going to be balanced in 7 years and told that that is a good thing for the United States, has no idea that Social Security is being attacked, and as I have indicated, Mr. Speaker, and I appreciate this opportunity to make this introduction, in the days to come I will detail for you and for my colleagues and the American public how there is no balanced budget, how we are raiding the Social Security Trust Fund to mask the deficit that will actually exist in 2002.

IS BOSNIA WORTH DYING FOR?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. DUNCAN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, in 1961, President Kennedy said:

We must face the fact that the U.S. is neither omnipotent nor omniscient—that we are only 6% of the world's population—that we cannot impose our will upon the other 94%—that we cannot right every wrong or reverse each adversity—and that therefore there cannot be an American solution to every world problem.

President Kennedy was right then, and his words are good advice today.

We should follow this advice in regard to the situation in Bosnia.

Last week, the cover of Time magazine showed an American soldier and asked the question: "Is Bosnia worth dying for?"

I believe the overwhelming majority of the American people would answer with an emphatic "no."

It should be for Bosnians because that is their homeland, but not for young Americans.

This is a limited ethnic conflict that has been going on for hundreds of years, and will continue unless we pour many billions in to stop it. And as soon as we stop pouring in billions, the situation will go right back like it was.

We should not send young American soldiers onto foreign battlefields unless there is a serious threat to our national security or unless there is a very real and very vital U.S. interest at stake.

Neither of these is present in Bosnia. Yet now, the President, regardless of how the American people feel, regardless of how the Congress votes, is going to send 20,000 troops into Bosnia.

We will then have another 20,000 in immediate nearby support in Croatia, the Adriatic Sea, and other places.

I had one veteran who called me last night who said that he was always told in Vietnam that it took seven troops in the rear to support one in the field.

We are making a tremendous commitment here. The worst thing is putting so many American lives at risk.

Then there is the huge money involved. We are told right off the bat that this effort will cost a minimum of $1.6 billion for the troops in the field.

We have promised another $600 million in direct foreign aid. That is an initial $2.2 billion and that is just the tip of the iceberg.

I now am told that the Bosnian leadership says they will need $35 billion in loans or aid from the World Bank or other sources to rebuild their country.

Most of this will end up coming from the United States.

B.J. Cutler, the foreign affairs columnist for the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, wrote several months ago:

If guarding people from the savagery of their rulers is America's duty, it would be fighting all over the world, squandering lives and bankrupting itself.

He was not writing about Bosnia, but his words are certainly applicable here.

There are at least 15 or 16 small wars going on around the world at any time. Some people say many more than that.

Why then are we trying to solve this insolvable problem.

Well, I think in part it is because our national media focused on this one.

But, I think the larger reason is that some people in high positions in this country are never satisfied with just running the United States.

They want to make a place for themselves in history. They want to be described as, or thought of as, world leaders.

That is why I believe there is such a class division on this.

Many upper-crust liberal elitist types—many NPR devotees, are all for this—because they want to prove to everyone that they care about foreign policy and are concerned about world affairs.

Horror of horrors, they certainly don't want to be associated with low-class, unintellectual isolationists. That would not be fashionable, that would not be politically correct.

But, Mr. Speaker, even one American life is too many and all these billions it will cost is to high a price to pay just so a few people in our Government can display world leadership and show their superiority to their unenlightened fellow citizens.

We should not get involved in this Bosnian quagmire.

The potential dangers and costs are simply too high.

The United States leads the world in humanitarian and charitable aid for those in other countries.

No other nation is even a close second.

Most Americans want to help out in international tragedies. We are already doing far more than our share. France, Germany, Sweden, Japan, and others are not even coming close.

We have no reason to feel guilty.

And, I repeat, Mr. Speaker, what I said at the beginning. We do not need to get involved militarily in Bosnia or anywhere else unless there is a real threat to our national security or a vital U.S. interest at stake.

Neither of these is present in Bosnia.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES OF SENDING IN AMERICAN TROOPS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CHRYSLER). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANZULLO] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, the people of this country are about to be subjected to a situation where 20,000 American troops will be sent into very difficult territory in the area that we know as Bosnia-Herzegovina. Let us take a look at the circumstances under which they will have to do that. I am holding the Proximity Peace Talks, which is an outline of the circumstances giving rise to the exact language of the peace talks. Listen to the country created by these peace talks.

"The country will be known as the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina, but the country will be split in two because it will also have two entities comprised of the Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina and the Serb Republic. The Federation of Bosnia and Herzegovina will control 51 percent of the country."

I ask you, is that type of a situation tenable? Let me also throw something out here. There will not be one President on the new Constitution, there will not be two Presidents, it will be a troika, three Presidents, if that is correct. There will be three Presidents to run this country we know as the Republic of Bosnia and Herzegovina. That will be one Moslem, one Croat, and one Serb.

Do you really think that a troika comprised of these three who have been fighting essentially for the past 1,500 years can get along? But, Mr. Speaker, more important is the fact that American troops will be sent to Bosnia-Herzegovina for the purpose of killing, if necessary, to protect the peace. That is correct. The language in this report says that the troops should use "necessary force to ensure compliance."

What does that mean? That means they can use the big guns to clear out the 2½-mile-wide demilitarized zone, but it means something else. American troops actually under the NATO command will try to do one of two things. They will try to keep the big guns away from the Serbs, and if that does not work, then they will try to arm the Bosnians to try to bring about military parity.

Mr. Speaker, this does not make sense. This is a peace agreement? A peace agreement means people shake hands, repent, reconcile, and say, "Let's go on with our lives, and put the war behind us." But what has happened here is the fact our President is going to put American troops in the position of fighting the war that the Bosnians have not been allowed to fight themselves. That is right. The United Nations, with the approval of the President, has steadfastly refused to allow the Bosnians to have the weapons with which to defend themselves. That has caused the tremendous amount of carnage in that country.

Now we have this great peace plan, the peace plan where Americans will be authorized to kill in order to enforce the peace. True peace in that area can only be brought about if the Americans leave the area, if NATO leaves the area, and we allow the Bosnians to arm themselves. I ask this question: Is it right for American blood to be spilled in Bosnia when the American President has not allowed the Bosnians to fight their own war?

CONCERNS REGARDING AMERICA SENDING PEACEKEEPING TROOPS TO BOSNIA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. CUNNINGHAM] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I know Members on both sides of the aisle are anguishing on whether we send troops or not to Bosnia. Let me give a few of this Member's concerns. First of all, I have had not one constituent walk up to me and say, "Duke, send our troops." Quite on the contrary, it has been overwhelmingly "Duke, try to stop it if you can."

Second, General Boyd and General MacKenzie, both in charge in that portion of the world in Bosnia-Herzegovina have stated: "Stay out. It will be a disaster." These are the two generals that headed up our forces in that particular part of the world.

I look at the cost. NATO has said that it is not $2.2, but by the end it will cost us $3 billion to $6 billion. The President just signed a balanced budget in 7 years agreement. Where is the money going to come from? Even if you have a supplemental, you have to offset it. You have to pay for it. We cannot do that.

NATO is broke today, billions of dollars. France said just 2 weeks ago that we can plan on a 20-year commitment with NATO in that portion of the world. Who is going to end up paying for that, Mr. Speaker? We are. The President said that the primary source of nation building will come from Europe. It also leaves a lot of room for the United States. We are looking at billions of dollars when we are talking about a time when balancing a budget, providing for Medicare, and a lot of other things that the other side is arguing against it.

I also look at the $4,000, much of it deemed. These are not the Bosnian Muslims, but primarily those from Iran, Iraq, Pakistan, Albania, that are the radicals. If they are allowed to stay in that portion of the world, these are the ones that have sworn a worldwide Jihad against Jews, Christians, and all nonbelievers. They will attack our troops, and they have got to go. We have got to demand equal treatment.

That has not happened in the past. Have Serbs and Croats and Muslims committed atrocious acts? Absolutely, all three groups. But we need not to train one side. Can you imagine during this peace agreement, we go in and train any side or give arms to any side? If I was on any one of the other two, I would say that is an act of war. I think that is the plan.

Who would come in with arms? France, Iran, Iraq, Russia, and yes, Mr. Speaker, even the United States, to sell arms. I think that would be disastrous.

I have another concern. President Clinton is going to be in a campaign mode over the next year. During Desert Storm, President Bush was focused. Colin Powell was focused. Dick Cheney was focused on Desert Storm, not on political activities coming up. I feel that if you look at Secretary Perry, I think he is a fairly good Secretary of Defense, but with all due respect, he is not a tactician. He is a politician and a bean counter. He is not a Dick Cheney.

I look at the problems of what we could end up with, as we did in Vietnam with Johnson and McNamara, that we are ill-suited for the job of the defense of our kids. We could get bogged down in Bosnia. I also look at what could happen to Saddam Hussein, in North Korea, and other areas, and the terrorist activities that could pick up.

We are $200 billion below the bottom-up review in defense dollars. That is the bare-bone minimum to fight two conflicts. The GAO has said we are $200 billion, the Chairman of our Joint Chiefs said is our military ready; yes, we are, but it is a paper-thin readiness that will not last more than a few weeks. If we get bogged down there, Mr. Speaker, I am afraid we will be in big trouble.

I look at replies that we had from Turkey that said they would come in with 20,000 troops around Sarajevo, Russia would send in 20,000 troops to align themselves between the Croats and the Serbs, without a single U.S. soldier involved. Why has the President not taken them up on this, without committing our troops? We must not arm or disarm any party, we must not train or arm any party, we must not get involved in civil disobedience protests, we must treat all even-handedly.

We must demand that all Mideast radical 4,000 Mujahidin be eliminated, all foreign regular troops be eliminated. I would like to submit for the RECORD this article from the Associated Press on the death of an American citizen at the hands of the radical Muslims.

The material referred to is as follows:

AMERICAN SLAIN IN NORTHERN BOSNIA
SARAJEVO, BOSNIA-HERZEGOVINA.—An American man working for the United Nations has been murdered in Bosnia, and a U.N. official yesterday said Middle Eastern fighters backing the Bosnian government are suspected.

The body of the American citizen, whose identity was not immediately released, was found by Bosnian police Sunday evening near the town of Banovici, 10 miles northwest of Tuzla.

Tuzla is the biggest Bosnian government-held city in northeastern Bosnia, and would be the headquarters for U.S. soldiers taking part in a NATO peace mission in Bosnia.

A U.N. official said the body was found just 500 yards from where Norwegian peacekeepers were stopped last month by mujahedeen, fighters from Middle Eastern countries helping the Muslim-led Bosnian government. The official said investigators suspect the mujahedeen were responsible for the American's death.

These fundamentalist cutthroats must be out by the time our troops are in place.

CONCERN ABOUT DEPLOYING GROUND TROOPS TO BOSNIA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. RAMSTAD] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. RAMSTAD. Mr. Speaker, I too am deeply concerned about the President's announced commitment to deploy 20,000 United States ground troops in Bosnia. I do not believe, Mr. Speaker, that document has articulated a compelling national interest in Bosnia worth the loss of American soldiers. We have no overriding national interest in Bosnia, and there is absolutely no reason American troops should be placed in harm's way as part of an ill-defined mission there.

Mr. Speaker, calling this mission a peacekeeping mission is a misnomer. This is a tenuous peace at best, and a potential quagmire for our troops at worst.

This is clearly not a legitimate peacekeeping mission, or 240,000 troops would not be required. Yes, I say 240,500, as the spokesperson at the Pentagon was quoted in Defense News today, counting the support troops. We hear the number 60,000, including 20,000 American servicemen and women, but the total number of troops, according to this statement today, is 240,000 troops.

Mr. Speaker, this mission goes way beyond peacekeeping to nation building. History should have taught us that we cannot build a nation from the outside.

Mr. Speaker, I ask, how much longer can the United States be denying a one-one number for the rest of the world? This is a European conflict, and using United States troops as a global peace force is neither a defensible function nor a practicing pragmatic reality for our military. Using our troops as a global police force in my judgment, and I say this respectfully, but I believe that it reflects a basic misunderstanding of our military's historic mission and capabilities.

Mr. Speaker, this situation is fraught with danger. Our troops will be sitting ducks, literally, physically, sitting ducks, positioned between the two warring factions.

Mr. Speaker, I think we have to recognize what is going on, what the political realities are in this part of the world. This is a war that has been going on for ethnic strife for 4,000 years. The present fighting has been going on for 40 years and longer.

Just today, just today, the Serb leader, Karadzic, and the mayors of the Sarajevo suburbs held a protest march; and some of the things they were saying, and I am quoting now, that the Dayton Agreement has created a new Beirut in Europe, referring of course to Lebanon's 15-year civil war, and that there will be bloodshed for centuries to come, that the ethnic Serbs will not be dominated by the Croats and the Moslems, that this is a Balkan powder keg.

We all know, Mr. Speaker, there are 6 million land mines waiting in the former Yugoslavia for our troops. Sixty thousand ethnic Serbs, according to Karadzic, will have grenades in their pockets. Well, Mr. Speaker, we have to be aware of these dangers.

The President mentioned the unspeakable human rights' violations. Certainly these crimes against humanity are as loathsome as any in the history of the world. But, Mr. Speaker, similar crimes have been documented by Amnesty International in 58 other countries. Why not Afghanistan? Why not go to Rwanda, to China, to Cuba, and all of the other countries in which similar crimes are being perpetrated against humanity?

Mr. Speaker, this mission is a logistical nightmare and will be extremely dangerous for U.S. troops who will be potentially under fire from all three factions.

Mr. Speaker, what is the solution here in this very complex and difficult situation? I would ask unanimous consent to submit for the RECORD, and I would commend all of my colleagues' attention to this editorial from today's Wall Street Journal, November 28, 1995, by two former Under Secretaries of Defense. Let me quote from this very provocative and profound piece:

The goal of U.S. policy toward Bosnia should be Bosnian self-reliance. We should aim to make it possible for the Bosnian government to defend its own country militarily. Congress should oppose the deployment of U.S. forces to Bosnia unless the administration make clear and binding commitment to create, by arming and training Bosnian Federation forces, a qualitative military balance between Bosnian-Croatian and Serb forces in the former Yugoslavia.

Mr. Speaker, that criterion has not been met.

This article goes on to say, very wisely,

Unfortunately, the Dayton Accords lack clear commitments to equip and train the Bosnian forces. Administration statements are disturbingly ambiguous on this point.

This piece concludes by saying,

If we are unable to help put the Bosnian government in a position to defend itself, the administration will find, when it wants to withdraw our forces after a year or so, that if cannot do so without triggering a catastrophe.

This piece is written by two people who served in previous administrations in the Defense Department who know about what they are writing.

Mr. Speaker, I hope and pray that the Congress will have its say on behalf of the American people before this deployment is made. I fear that we will not have such a voice in this deployment. I think each one of us here in this body, in the people's House, needs to examine our consciences, needs to listen to the people we represent and press this issue in the people's House. I know in Minnesota, in the Third District, my calls in the last 2 days have run 178 to 2 against this deployment.

Mr. Speaker, I offer for the RECORD the following article which I referred to earlier.

[From the Wall Street Journal, Nov. 28, 1995]

THE ARGUMENT CLINTON ISN'T MAKING ON BOSNIA

(By Paul Wolfowitz and Douglas J. Feith)

Having committed an armored division of American "peacekeepers" for Bosnia with little analysis and even less consultation, the Clinton administration now contends that Congress has no responsible choice but to concur. To be sure, if it repudiates the president's troop commitment, Congress would be blamed for bringing about resumption of the war, a collapse of American leadership in NATO and perhaps of the alliance itself, and a dangerous perception around the world of the U.S. becoming isolationist and unreliable.

But even worse than not backing the president's commitment would be for Congress to approve uncritically a flawed policy that could fail disastrously. Congress has a duty to try to force the administration to define sensible goals for the mission. Americans remember Lebanon and Somalia, where we managed to lose both men and credibility. We remain dubious of the operation in Haiti, which may succeed in restoring dictatorship rather than democracy. If U.S. troops end their Bosnia mission without having achieved what they came to do, especially if they take significant casualties, the consequences will be graver by far.

LITTLE GUIDANCE

The administration acknowledges the problem by stressing that U.S. troops will not be deployed unless there is a peace to enforce. But this rather sensible condition for getting in gives little guidance for how and when to get out.

There is one compelling rationale for U.S. participation in the international peacekeeping force: Bosnia has been the victim of international aggression and of crimes against humanity that the Bosnian Serbs, supported by the Milosevic regime in Belgrade, have committed against hundreds of thousands of predominantly Muslim Bosnians. The U.S. and our European allies and others bear a large measure of responsibility for these horrors because we have maintained an international arms embargo on Bosnia. The Bosnian government's troops have numerical superiority over their enemies, but, as a result of the embargo, they have remained inferior in equipment, especially heavy armor and artillery.

The goal of U.S. policy toward Bosnia should be Bosnian self-reliance. We should aim to make it possible for the Bosnian government to defend its own country militarily. Congress should oppose the deployment of U.S. forces to Bosnia unless the administration makes a clear and binding commitment to create, by arming and training Bosnian Federation forces, a qualitative military balance between Bosnian-Croatian and Serb forces in the former Yugoslavia.

If the peacekeeping force is conceived as a means of keeping Bosnia subject to unrealistic arms limitation schemes, and therefore doomed to remain a ward of NATO or the U.S., Congress should oppose it. But if peacekeepers are intended to deter aggression for the year or so needed for the Bosnian government to move toward self-reliance in the defense field, then the strategic and moral case for U.S. participation should be easier for Americans to credit.

Unfortunately, the Dayton Accords lack clear commitments to equip and train the Bosnian forces. Administration statements are disturbingly ambiguous on this point. U.S. officials say they have assured the Bosnians that federation forces will be equipped and trained, but that assurance itself is hedged by a misplaced faith that new arms control agreements might make it unnecessary. According to the accords, no weapons will be delivered for 90 days and no heavy weapons for 180 days, pending arms control talks. Also, U.S. statements make it clear that we will try to get others to do the equipping and training. (It is not reassuring that we still lack a good estimate of Bosnian requirements, even though for three years the Clinton administration said that it aimed to lift the arms embargo.)

These limitations imply that moving quickly or openly to arm the Bosnians would be destabilizing, but the opposite is true. To ensure a stable Bosnia and to be able to withdraw our troops on schedule, we must be committed, publicly and resolutely, to a rapid equip-and-train program. (Defensive systems not covered by the envisioned arms control regime, such as anti-tank missiles and counter-battery radars, are needed with particular urgency, given the precarious position of Sarajevo.)

The administration's hesitations seem to reflect a belief that equipping and training federation forces would be inconsistent with a "neutral" role for American peacekeepers.

It is important, however, to see clearly the purpose of the peacekeeping force: It must uphold the peace agreement generally, but it is intended also to deter the Serbs from taking advantage of their current (temporary) advantage in armaments. It is not correct or constructive to talk of the peacekeepers as "neutral." They do not have to be neutral to perform their mission any more than police have to be neutral as between shopkeepers and robbers. In fact, pretending to be neutral when none of the parties so regards us actually increases the danger to U.S. forces at a tactical level, by making it more difficult for them to decide how to respond to provocations or ambiguous situations on the ground. It was this posture that helped produce the inadequate security precautions taken by U.S. Marines in Beirut. The best way to shore up the peace is through a policy that deters Serbian aggression and secures Bosnian compliance through American support and cooperation.

EXIT STRATEGY

If the administration is to allay public and congressional skepticism about the troop deployment, it must make clear that arming and training Bosnian Federation forces is not only consistent with our role in the peacekeeping force, it is also the key to the "exit strategy" for our troops. If we are unable to help put the Bosnian government in a position to defend itself, the administration will find, when it wants to withdraw our forces after a year or so, that it cannot do so without triggering a catastrophe.

BOSNIA, MEDICARE, AND THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. CHRYSLER). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. KINGSTON] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, having just returned from a series of meetings in Georgia and meeting with a number of constituents during the work recess period, there are three predominant things that people have on their minds back home, and I think this is probably true all over America, and that is Bosnia, Medicare, and the budget.

I would like to speak very briefly on Bosnia, because we are now in a new phase where the President, our Commander in Chief, has officially decided to embark in a new phase of the debate by sending and committing to send 20,000 of our troops over there. We all want to support troops who are anywhere fighting in the world at the order of the Commander in Chief, and yet certainly in Bosnia we have a lot of questions.

The questions that we had debated 2 weeks ago when we had a very critical vote on Bosnia, which in that vote Congress decided against sending troops over there, and our questions were at the time: What is our peril? What is the timetable that we will be there? What is the plan? Who are our allies? How long will we be there? How will we get out of being there? And what is the exact mission?

These questions need to be answered. I think within the next couple of weeks the President will be answering these through his staff members to Congress. Senate hearings, I believe, began today, Mr. Speaker. So I think it is appropriate that we look at this and continue this debate.

Mr. Speaker, as the previous speaker, the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. RAMSTAD] said, clearly the people of America at this point are not in support of sending troops to Bosnia; and I think, because of that, we need to define what the American peril is, and I have yet to hear what that peril is. It is very important for us to know before we send our sons and daughters over there.

Mr. Speaker, I was in Italy in August and had the opportunity to be briefed by NATO on the Bosnian situation. In August, when one talked about Bosnia, it was years and years away in terms of everything that has happened; and yet, in that discussion, one of the things that struck me was who are our allies. It is not just Bosnians and Croats and Serbians. There are all kinds of subgroups and counter groups and local warlords and so forth.

I know often when we try to take humanitarian supplies into one section another group down the road or up the road from them would block the supply trucks, even though they all had the same label as being Bosnians. Yet they were different, because they were from a different territory. So one of my main questions is going to be that I hope to find out in the next couple of weeks who will our allies be.

Then a question that has come up more and more lately as we debate balancing the budget is what is this going to cost us? Will we really be able to get out of there in a year or is it going to be like so many other peaces that we have won worldwide?

The peace that we got in Somalia, the peace that we got in Haiti, the peace that we got anywhere is really purchased peace. It is a matter of the United States of America pulling out the checkbook and buying off the warring factions. I would like to know what those costs are. I know our taxpayers back home would like to know also.

Mr. Speaker, we are going to have debates and we are going to have hearings, and this is a good process. The War Powers Act has been debated since the inception of our great democracy, and yet the Congress and the President still view these things differently. Again, we do want to support the troops individually. It looks like at this point they are going to go over there, yet at the same time we have congressional duties of our own and we will begin immediately in due diligence to answer some of the questions that we have been asking on the floor of the House.

Mr. Speaker, on Medicare let me just say this. The gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS], who is the budget expert, is down here. Our colleague, the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Mrs. JOHNSON] was able to come to Savannah this weekend and found the time to meet with a lot of our hospitals and nursing homes and home health care professionals and other health care providers, and we talked about the fact that in April the Medicare trustees said Medicare is going to run out of money in 2 years, it will be bankrupt in 6 years; it is the obligation and duty of the Congress to act to preserve and protect Medicare, which we have been doing.

We are trying to slow down the inflation rate of Medicare, the growth of it. It is right now at about 11 percent; regular medical inflation is more in the 4 to 6 percent range. We believe if we can get Medicare costs in that 4 to 6 percent range, we can save it. Yet at the same time, we are committed to increased spending per recipient from $4,800 to $6,700.

As I said that to the people back home, they said, well, that is not a cut. We said, well, yes, it is true. We are going from about $178 billion to $278 billion.

Mr. Speaker, let me yield back the balance of my time, and maybe the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] would yield a few minutes to me to complete that thought.

BOSNIA AND THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. KINGSTON] to complete his presentation.

INCREASING MEDICARE BENEFITS

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I will just say real quickly something that is very appropriate to the subject that the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] is going to address, which is the budget, and that is that in Washington, a decrease in the anticipated increase is considered a cut, which means if you are wanting to spend $15,000 and you only spend $10,000 more than you did last year, then that is a $5,000 cut instead of a $10,000 increase.

Therefore, so much of the debate I think is tainted by the fact that we use what are normal, every day, commonplace words, but we change them into an illegitimate-type usage so that the word "cut" again is a decrease in the anticipated increase.

Again, Mr. Speaker, I will say in that context we are increasing Medicare benefits per recipient from about $4,800 to $6,700 over a 7-year period of time, and we are doing that by giving seniors more options than normal Medicare. We are going to opt to have Medicare Plus, we are going to have managed care options, health maintenance organizations options; we will have medical savings account options and physician service network options, preferred provider organizations, all kinds of things which I think are very exciting. I have discussed these options with my parents and other senior citizens that I know, and they are excited about it and they are glad that we are going to move to protect and preserve Medicare.

Mr. Speaker, I now need to yield back to the gentleman from Connecticut his time, and maybe we can have a good discussion on the budget.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman and I would encourage him to participate in this special order. We are joined also by the gentleman from Maine [Mr. LONGLEY].

Mr. Speaker, this is obviously a time that many of us are focused in on Bosnia, and whether or not we are going to be committing troops. We are going to devote most of this special order to the budget, not Bosnia. However, I just want to put on the record that the vote on what Congress does and decides to do on the issue of whether we commit troops to Bosnia is going to be not a partisan debate.

Each member of a vote like that is going to look to his own conscience, is going to be checking and talking with people in the administration and outside of the administration to know ultimately what is the proper vote. I know that if I had to vote today, I would not be sending troops to Bosnia, but I have pledged to have a very open mind about this issue.

The President has committed our Government to send 20,000 troops, has made it very clear that he intends to work with NATO, and that obviously has to count for a lot. He is the Commander in Chief. However, then we have to wrestle with whether or not there is a defined national interest, whether we know exactly what that mission is, and if we know what that mission is, how we are going to carry it out and ultimately what will be our exit policy. We cannot be there indefinitely, how do we ultimately exit Bosnia and leave it better off than it is.

I am tempted to suggest to my leadership that we invite the participants who signed the agreement to come to Washington and convince us that they truly want peace. Because if we are just going there sending our troops, 60,000 sounds like a lot, ultimately, 20,000 Americans, but spread over such a wide part, a large area, there will not be a heavy concentration of troops practically in any one area, our troops will be at risk if the warring factions are not committed to the concept of peace.

So I want to start out this special order by just being on record as saying that I intend to keep an open mind, though if I had to vote, I would vote no, that it is not a partisan kind of decision, that we know we are talking about the lives of Americans, men and women who while volunteering trust us to engage them when there is a national interest and not when there is not a national interest. I do not know if either one of you would care to comment.

Mr. LONGLEY. If the gentleman would yield, I just would add to what the gentleman from Connecticut has said, that the most serious decision that any President can make is the decision to send American men and women into harm's way, and that I know that every Member of this body feels a very heavy responsibility to evaluate honestly and fairly the decision that the Commander in Chief is now presuming to make. As speaking for myself, I have been very skeptical about what the benefit and certainly any number of risks that American service men and women would confront on the ground in Bosnia but I also feel that the President needs to be given every benefit of the doubt. Again, that does not necessarily mean that we may ultimately agree with him but again we respect the fact that this is about the lives of young American men and women and our role in the world.

But I think it is also important to mention Bosnia in the context of the budget, as two of the many very serious issues that we are dealing with, and I guess it is, for whatever purpose or reason at this point in time we are not only faced with the prospect of American ground troops in Bosnia but we are also debating how we might best balance this budget and finally get this country on the track to a balanced budget over the next 7 years. Frankly as we debate in this Chamber, we still do not know whether or not, even though the President last night spoke to the country about his need or his feeling that we needed to send American ground troops to Bosnia, we still do not have a decision as to whether he is willing to accept the defense budget that has been passed by this body and the Senate and sent to him for his signature. Again there is a strange irony in the fact that the President as Commander in Chief is now planning to commit American forces overseas in Bosnia, yet we are faced with the possible veto of the defense bill that was passed by this body. Again given the issues in Bosnia, given the significance of national defense and the fact that we may be asking men and women to risk their lives in pursuit of what the President deems to be our national interest, given the issues that are underlying the need, I feel, for once and for all finally getting Washington to accept the discipline of a balanced budget, I have no doubt that the public is watching us very closely, in fact, perhaps far more closely and with far more scrutiny than sometimes we may come to appreciate.

Mr. KINGSTON. One of the things that I think the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] said that is extremely important and I wish we could really front-page bold-type your words about the warring factions asking for our troops to come there to help them keep peace. Because they are not asking. You had said that you were part of a group inviting them to come to Washington and assure us that it was their wish and desire to have American troops there as an integral part of them resolving their problems peacefully. They are not going to do that.

As you recall in Ohio last week, they would barely shake hands and they avoided eye contact. So I think you have really hit something very key to this whole debate. Are we thrusting our troops and our American, quote, good will on these folks, or are they saying, "We can't do it without you"? I am not sure. We need to find out.

Mr. SHAYS. The bottom line is that that is an important question to have answered along with what the President said, a well-defined mission after describing what our national interest is. That as yet has not been described to us. So we are going to be doing everything possible to get answers to those questions and then ultimately to vote intelligently. It is an extraordinarily important vote.

It is just one of many votes obviously that are important in the days and weeks and months to come. I am happy my colleagues have joined me to just have a dialog about kind of what we have seen happen in the last year, and what we might expect ultimately to be the result of this effort.

It seems to me that we have had as a majority party three primary objectives: One is to get our financial house in order and balance our Federal budget within the timeframe of 7 years, or less. Ideally less.

The other is to save our trust funds, particularly Medicare, from insolvency and then ultimate bankruptcy, and ultimately to work on the long-term savings. We have a short-term crisis, then we have a long-term, when the baby boomers start to enter in as retirees in 2010 to the year 2030. By year 2030, all the baby boomers will be in. There will be a gigantic group from age 65 to 85. The third issue, and it is a little harder to define but is probably as important as the other two and maybe even more important, and I describe it this way. We are looking to transform our caretaking social and corporate welfare state into what I would describe as a caring opportunity society where American citizens feel that this is truly the land of opportunity. Instead of giving them the food to eat, we give them the seeds and teach them how to grow the seeds into food, ultimately has to be our biggest interest.

We set out last year with a Contract With America and it has been amply described and we do not need to get into all aspects of it but what I was so proud about was that this was a positive agenda of what we wanted, of what we were going to do as a majority party, a firm commitment to the American people. A number of reforms in the opening day of the session, meaningful reforms, and then a long-term, 100-day effort with 10 major bills.

Nowhere in the contract did we criticize Democrats in Congress, and nowhere did we criticize the President. It was interesting that the Contract With America was criticized. Yet if you analyzed it, we were doing something that they say politicians do not always do and, that is, instead of criticizing the other side, we said, "This is what we stand for, this is what we are going to do," and none of it was negative. It was all positive.

Mr. KINGSTON. I was in the State legislature before I got here. One of the things I have always heard about politicians is you make one set of promises on the campaign trail and then you vote a different set of philosophies once you are in elected office.

This was the first time in my knowledge in my political experience that Members of Congress, elected officials, actually kept the campaign brochure in their front pocket. And as you remember, it was even read each day, the first 1-minute of each day was to read the Contract With America.

Again as you are saying, this is what we are going to do, this is what we promised we would do, this is what we are doing, and now after the first 100 days, that is what we did.

Mr. SHAYS. I notice we have been joined by a new Member, the gentleman from Kansas [Mr. BROWNBACK]. We welcome you here. I think of how important the new Members have been as a catalyst, obviously one to give us the opportunity to be in the majority but the second thing, a strong base of new Members that have been determined that we will fulfill the commitments that we made. I am happy to yield to my friend.

Mr. BROWNBACK. That is what I find out when I go home, that people are surprised that we are. That they go and say, "I really support and agree with what you guys are doing. You know what, I love it because this is what you said you were going to do and you're doing it." I even have had people that said, "I didn't vote for you but I'm going to this next time because you're doing exactly what you said you were going to do."

I do not know why this should be any great shock but it is in a political system that we are getting that done.

I would like to if I could compliment the gentlemen as well on the reform efforts we are getting done, gift ban passed 2 weeks ago, on the verge of lobby reform. Campaign finance next year. Those are key things that the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] has done a tremendous amount of work on.

Mr. KINGSTON. If the gentleman would yield a second, putting Congress under the same laws as the American people, the Shays Act, from the gentleman from Connecticut.

Mr. BROWNBACK. An amazing thing to think that we were not under the same laws but we were not. But right now we are about to engage in one of the most historic things in reshaping this Federal Government right now and that is balancing the budget. I do hope the administration is watching and going to participate in actually forming a 7-year budget that goes to balance, zero deficit in year 7, so that we can get rid of this deficit.

I get worried that the administration is not going to participate in this. I certainly hope that they are going to and that they are not just going to criticize the budget plan that we are putting forward. We have put forward a very specific budget plan and I hope the administration puts forward an equally specific budget plan of how we get to balance in 7 years. It is critical for our future, it is critical for our priorities, and we need to have a legitimate dialog and debate just about that.

Mr. LONGLEY. If the gentleman would yield, I would just like to point out again, we just celebrated the Thanksgiving holiday last week. Certainly all of us in our own way pause to give thanks for the great blessings that we have received as individuals, as families, and as a country.

I have been fortunate enough to live overseas for a year or two of my life, and it just really makes me realize how fortunate and how lucky we are as Americans to live in this country. But it also gives me an opportunity to kind of reflect back over the last 18 months, and one of the thoughts that came to my mind was, as important as the Contract With America was, the one aspect of the contract that really stood above all of the others is the need to get this country on the track to a balanced Federal budget.

I mention that because when I look at the 850 plus or minus votes that we have cast over the last 10 months, the dozens of issues that we have had very strong and maybe even very heated debates about, a lot of that has obscured the fundamental reason that many of us got into politics and decided to run for this office and to serve in this body, which is to get the country on the track to a balanced budget.

To pick up on what the gentleman from Kansas just said, I as a citizen, as a Member of Congress, as someone who is concerned about the welfare of this country, in listening to the President speak last night, in the back of my mind I am saying to myself, is the administration truly committed to balancing the budget in the 7-year time-frame?

Again, the President campaigned on the fact that he wanted to balance the budget in 5 years. We not have an agreement to do it in 7 years. Given the fact that he has been in office for 2 years already, effectively what we have done is provided a mandate of a 9-year balanced budget when in fact the administration, the President, campaigned on a 5-year budget.

The only reason I mention that is that I want to be positive and I want to believe that we can count on the President and his administration to deliver on this commitment. I say I thought about that last night because one of the feelings that I know any American soldier or marine will have, and I have to confess that I felt that myself, having served during Desert Storm in northern Iraq, you always wonder. You realize that your fate is in the hands of powers far greater than you are.

I hope that the administration is serious about working with us. We are going to have policy disagreements. Republicans and Democrats can disagree, but we need to disagree within the context of balancing the Federal budget and taking no more than 7 years to do it.

In my view, the President's commitment to that objective is just as sacred a commitment as his duties as Commander in Chief when he orders American men and women into service overseas. I see a linkage between the two issues.

I will feel, frankly, far greater confidence in the administration's commitment to send troops to Bosnia if I know that they are also serious about keeping their commitments in other areas. Because if they are serious about keeping their commitment on the budget, then I know that they are going to be serious about keeping their commitment to act in the best interests of our men and women who may be called to duty over overseas.

I would yield back to the gentleman, but I wanted to pick up on the point he just made so very well.

Mr. BROWNBACK. I appreciate that very much from the gentleman from Maine.

I yield to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SMITH].

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. We do not want to spend a lot of time eulogizing the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS].

Mr. SHAYS. Do not spend any time. We do not have much left.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. But I am proud to work with you, CHRIS. Everybody knows the guy that is just consistent, that is soft-spoken, that has good ideas and follows through on them. I am certainly proud to work with you on all of these issues, from campaign finance reform to balancing the budget.

See, we just need to shout out and say, look, does everybody realize what a predicament this huge, overbloomed Government has gotten us into and the imposition that it is placing on our kids and our grandkids.

You know, we say balance the budget, but even at the end of 7 years we are still borrowing $100 billion from the trust funds. And yet the whining and the moaning and the criticizing about our going too far, we are hurting our economic future and we are putting this load on our kids. You know, we have got unfunded liabilities in Social Security and Medicare, Medicaid, promises we have made to retirees. We have now guaranteed that we are going to hold harmless all the private pension funds just in our overzealousness to try to do good things to people so we will get reelected.

We have really made some commitments that are placing us in great jeopardy.

Mr. SHAYS. I thank the gentleman for how incredibly persevering he has been in waking us to the fact that we cannot continue to increase our national debt until we get our financial house in order, and this made an incredible difference making sure people recognize increasing the national debt is very much related to the deficit that we have every year. We have deficits because we spend more than we raise in revenue each year, and the end of each year they just keep getting added to the national debt.

I was thinking about my colleagues talking about Thanksgiving and how much we have to be grateful for. This is a very bountiful Nation, but we are mortgaging our children's future and we need to wake up to that fact.

Thirty years ago, as one of the documents that you gave us pointed out, we had a debt of only $375 billion, and as your document pointed out, we had World War I, World War II, the Korean War, Vietnam War that was financed by debt, and now, with no war basically, we have gone from $375 billion to $4,900 billion, a 13-fold increase in a short period of time.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. If the gentleman will yield, the interest on our public debt subject to the debt limit now is almost $330 billion. You compare that with 1977 of a total Federal budget of $370 billion, it is disrespectful.

Mr. SHAYS. We have been joined as well by the gentleman from Arizona. I would like to get us to begin to focus on what we are trying to do. What we are trying to do is get our financial house in order and balance the Federal budget at least within 7 years. There is nothing that says we could not do it in 6 or 5. We can talk about whether this is a difficult task or not.

In one sense, the gentleman from Kansas was pointing out people have said, you know, you vote for the balanced budget amendment, and there were over 305 Members who did that; and we are voting to balance it in 7 years, which is the balanced budget amendment said do it within 7 years. We are doing it for a logical reason. We just want to care about our children.

Mr. KINGSTON. Let me ask the gentleman a question. I am on the Committee on Appropriations. You guys are the budgeteers. I want to ask you something many constituents ask me, and that is you look at the Bush tax deal in 1990, look at Gramm-Rudman, you look at all these grand crescendos we had in Washington followed by a lot of bipartisan hugging and kissing, backslapping, are we not great? Then we wait. The budget is never balanced.

Is this going to be the case? Why 7 years? Those of us who are here in this Chamber tonight, we may not be elected in 7 years. Now we may cut the budget and start it. What is going to make sure that in the year 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000?

Mr. SHAYS. I would like to take a first crack at that. Basically, there are two parts of this budget we are focused in on. One is the appropriations the gentleman is very much involved in. That is only one-third of our budget.

Congress, for so many years, attempted to control the growth of spending by focusing on one-third of the budget. By entitlements, you fit a title, you are given a certain sum of money, a certain benefit, whether it is Medicare, Medicaid, welfare, food stamps, and so on. You get that benefit. Those entitlements have been growing. Gramm-Rudman never focused in on entitlements.

This is the first Congress, and the gentleman from Kansas was talking about those who said, you know, good, you are following through, and the positive response. We are getting some negative response. We have to be very up front about it. We are taking on a lot of special interests. It mostly focuses in on the entitlement side. I do not think people realize we are cutting some programs. We are eliminating some programs. The vast bulk of programs, most of them entitlements, will grow at significant rates. Medicare is going to grow at 7.2 percent, Medicaid at over 5 percent.

In some cases, we are seeing a lot of expansion. We are still trying to ultimately have spending slow the growth of spending so it ultimately intersects with revenue by the seventh year, and no balanced budget.

I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Arizona, who has joined us.

Mr. HAYWORTH. I thank my good friend from Connecticut. He raises a point that is absolutely valid and cannot be repeated too often. That is the fact in the span of little more than 40 weeks in a majority in this Chamber we are looking to reverse the course of 40 years of a philosophy predominated by the notion of bigger is better in a centralized government, in a centralized bureaucracy.

The gentleman from Connecticut is quite correct to point out that what we have decided to do at long last, after almost a half century, is to seriously evaluate the efficiency and the practicality of the entitlement programs in addition to discretionary spending.

I look in the well, I see my good friend from Michigan, and I know that he has been a watchdog on these issues. I know that at times he quite accurately, I believe, voices some frustration that we hear from many of our constituents saying it is not happening fast enough. What I would say, Mr. Speaker, to those who join us tonight here in this special order is we get the message.

But a journey of 1,000 miles, in this case a journey of $12 trillion, to mix metaphors here, begins not with a single step but in this single session dedicated to making the fundamental change necessary.

Mr. SHAYS. I did not answer the second part. Obviously, we have to be vigilant each and every year. We have to make sure we do the heavy lifting this year and next year and not ask the next Congress and the Congress after that one. But one thing that is quite significant, if we can make changes in entitlements, still allow them to grow but slow their growth, that becomes written in law and becomes an automatic process.

So if we can make some significant changes in entitlements today, they will be in law, not sunsetted. So that is our effort.

Mr. BROWBACK. If the gentleman will yield for just a moment, I think there is another pressure point here. I do not know how many people caught what Chairman Greenspan said yesterday of the Federal Reserve in front of the Senate Banking Committee. He said if Congress fails to balance the budget in 7 years, interest rates are going up, they are going up. This is the chairman of the Federal Reserve saying to Congress there are many incentives and one of the key ones is what will happen to this economy if you fail and what will happen immediately and directly as a consequence of your failure.

To just hook onto one of the points of the gentleman from Arizona, we are talking spending $12 trillion over 7 years. This is $12 trillion in Government spending. This is a lot of money that we are going to spend for the Government, $12 trillion. It is enough to run this Government on.

Mr. LONGLEY. If I could just add something to that, you know, and I respect the comments of the gentleman from Arizona, but we have built this Government up over 40 years, and there is not a single vote that I do not cast that I am not concerned about what is the impact of this vote, if it is in changing the funding pattern for a program or possibly eliminating a program, and I respect the fact that many of these programs, much of the spending that Washington now engages in, was built up in good faith on the assumption that we were going to be able to make positive changes in society. But I think what we have come to realize is that the money is not the issue.

Yes, money is part of the issue. But it is not the entire issue.

What has happened is that money and Government have become ends in themselves in Washington to the detriment of the values that make this country what it is, and the lack of accountability, the distance that Washington has from what is going on in local and State Government, and I have no doubt in my mind that we are making the tough decisions that we need to make because money is not the only issue.

It is now recognizing that individuals and local government and State Government need to have the authority and the responsibility to be able to do what only they can do and that much of what we have pretended Washington could do has not worked, and we have got to find new ways to do it.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. If the gentleman will yield further, I think, Mr. Speaker and colleagues, that the American people should know that we are now at a turning point. Will the President work with us in changing the welfare programs and the entitlements? Because those programs represent 60 percent of the savings that need to be made to finally achieve a balanced budget, and the President right now, I do not know if you heard the reports from leadership when they met with the White House, they are still discussing how CBO will do the scoring.

Is the President serious about having a balanced budget in 7 years? Will he work with Congress in developing the kind of changes for the welfare programs so that we no longer have welfare as we know it?

Mr. SHAYS. Maybe the gentleman would just explain the significance of what the Congressional Budget Office is, a nonpartisan office, not partisan office, that sets the economy, that determines where the economy is going to go. What is so significant about how CBO scores the budget?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. The Office of Management and Budget works for the President of the United States, takes their directions from him, and so they are able to say, look, the economy is going to expand by 3 or 4 percent. They are able to present a rosy scenario and predict tremendous amount of revenues coming into the Federal Government so that the President or anyone else that wants to say it, look, with all of these revenues coming in, we do not have to cut any spending and we will still achieve a balanced budget. So the danger is having somebody that is bipartisan, that is impartial, developing the projections for those 7 years.

Mr. SHAYS. That partly answers the question the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. KINGSTON] raised about how come we failed in the past. I can speak from direct experience. I voted for the 1990 budget agreement. The part I liked in it that said if you expanded an entitlement you either had to come up with revenue or cut spending to pay for an expanded entitlement.

What I failed to fully grasp was the budget being presented and being scored by the Office of Management and Budget, a Republican administration at the time, projected a tremendously rosy scenario which said the budget would be balanced in no time without a lot of heavy lifting. They said the economy is going to grow at a rate it never came close to growing.

The challenge we had, and the President when he addressed it in the State of the Union Address 2 years ago, said let us use the Congressional Budget Office, a fair referee for determining how the economy will grow. Obviously, if the Congressional Budget Office scores it less than the Office of Management and Budget, we will have to do greater heavy lifting, we will have to make greater cuts to some programs and slow the growth in others, which I think we really have to do.

Mr. KINGSTON. If the gentleman will yield, if we look at a private sector example, the big motor companies, the tractor manufacturers who are out there, they have all in the last decade had to downsize, and as a result most large United States manufacturers can produce more now at less cost and at a higher quality than they could in 1980, and the Federal Government has to go through this process as well. But it is not easy.

You know, it has taken the fuel of the freshman class and the votes provided by the freshman class to get this through. But, you know, long-term players like you know that if this was easy we would have had a balanced budget since 1969, and, you know, I think the Speaker, has said nobody said that when you are going to start cutting the programs they are going to come up here and say this is great, you are cutting out my job but you are balancing the budget, I am so proud of you. That is just not happening.

Mr. LONGLEY. The gentleman has made an important point. The Federal Government is the least changed major institution in the United States, and as tough as the decisions have been that we have had to make, and we are going to be asked to make more of them and very serious decisions, the fact also remains that we need to succeed at what we are doing. We need to work with the President to make sure this happens because if we are not successful in making these kinds of changes, as modest as they are, and when I say modest, you know, the gentleman from Kansas referred to the $12 trillion that we are going to spend in the next 7 years versus the $12.8 trillion or $12.9 trillion that the other party would like to spend, or, if you will, the big difference between the mean, cold Republicans and the warm-hearted Democrats is that the mean Republicans are only going to let the Federal Government increase spending by $3 trillion, whereas the Democrats are going to have to increase by $4 trillion. But that $1 trillion, that trillion-dollar difference in a $12 trillion or $13 trillion budget is all the difference in the world between adding $1 trillion in national debt on top of the trillions of dollars of debt that we already have or finally getting to a balanced budget and starting to work towards eliminating our debt and not just adding to it.

Again, I remind myself I was barely two aisles away I was sworn in in January, and I had my 7-year-old daughter, Sarah, and my 11-year-old son, Matt, and while I am being sworn in, it is drawing on me this government today is spending the money that my 7-year-old and my 11-year-old will spend their working lifetimes paying back, just paying the interest let alone retiring any of the debt.

Mr. SHAYS. Which raises the question, where are we headed right now? What we have is an agreement with the White House, and I take them at their word that they will work within the parameters of balancing the budget within 7 years and also, very important, that they will use real numbers scored by the Congressional Budget Office, not the bipartisan office, the non-partisan office.

So we have now the framework to have a meaningful dialog. We have presented our budget. Candidly, there are parts of that budget I do not like. I am proud of what we have done. I am in awe of what we have done. But there are parts I do not like.

Maybe some of the parts I like the gentleman from Michigan may not like or the gentleman from Georgia or the gentleman from Maine or Arizona. Even in that conference, we had our disagreements. Ultimately, we agreed as the majority party to do something no Congress has ever done, and that is take the initiative to balance the budget and get our financial house in order.

Now we have the right, and the President has the obligation to respond, we have the right to ask him where is his 7-year budget, where are your priorities, Mr. President, and then we will evaluate them and say we agree here and we disagree here. Candidly, I have some suggestions on how he could make our budget better. I would like to see it a little more friendly to urban areas. The gentleman from Michigan may want to see it more friendly to farming areas. We may be lobbying the White House to weigh in in a particular way.

Ultimately, if we can agree to balance the budget in 7 years, interest rates will not go up, they will go down. Maybe one of my colleagues would like to talk about the benefits of getting the balanced budget and what it means in terms of the interest rates.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, another situation I am sure that the people that want to spend more money have already started arguing is let us not have any tax cuts. So I think it is important to remind ourselves where we have been over the last 5 years, based on the tax increase over a 7-year span. In 1990, we had a tax increase of $235 billion. In 1993, a little over 2 years ago, we had a tax increase of $350 billion spread out over 7 years. Now the tax increase in this proposal is $222 billion. It is just a question that if you start increasing taxes too much, I mean, everybody knows and the economists all say that you start depressing the economy and depressing jobs. So the question is should we give some of those tax increases back.

Mr. LONGLEY. Mr. Speaker, is what the gentleman really saying is we are proposing a tax cut that is literally less than half of the two prior tax increases that were passed in this body?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. That is correct. And the goal has got to be to expand business and jobs in this country, at the same time that we achieve a balanced budget, to say, just like the gentleman said, the wages that your kids have not even earned yet are going to have to pay for our overindulgence as a Federal Government living beyond our means.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, coming back off of break and spending time at home reminds me of the fact that on Saturday, John Micah Hayworth turns two, our youngest child. And if we do nothing to change the culture of taxing and spending, if we are somehow able to hold this remarkable experiment together with the legislative equivalent of chewing gum and bailing wire, postponing the decisions we need to make, John Micah Hayworth over the course of his lifetime as a working adult will pay over $185,000 in taxes to the Federal Government just to service the debt. Just to service the debt.

The President, to his credit, a couple of years ago, in sending his budget proposals up to Capitol Hill, included a page called generational accounting, measuring the effects of expenditures in governmental services, projecting it on the next generation of taxpayers.

The results were astonishing. Mr. Speaker, I do hope that those who join us are seated at home when they hear the figures, because they are mind boggling and terrifying. To maintain the current culture of spending and governmental services at all levels, the average taxpayer of the next generation would be looking at surrendering 82 percent of his or her income in taxes to provide those services.

Now, look at the steady increase. In 1948, an average family of four surrendered 3 percent of its income in taxes to the Federal government. By 1994, it was almost one-quarter of income, 24 percent. Clearly there is nothing ignoble, there is nothing selfish, in saying and recognizing that the people of this country, liberal and conservative, Republican and Democrat and Independent, all work hard for the money they earn. They should hang on to more of it and send less of it to the Government, because, as the gentleman from Michigan points out, it is a matter of allowing the market to flourish and to prosper and to rekindle the economic engines that have driven this country so dynamically.

That is the challenge we face. It is not a matter of downsizing; it is a matter of right sizing. What is right for the future? Good honest debate can take place. The gentleman from Connecticut mentioned it. I championed the fact that the gentleman at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, the President of the United States, has put his signature now on what is in effect a contract agreeing to the parameters of a balanced budget in 7 years with honest numbers.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield, and I hate to stop his peroration. He is on a roll and sounding good, but I wanted to make a point that I think is very important. We do not discuss this as much when we talk about that middle class tax burden, which as the gentleman said, has gone from about 3 percent in the early 1950's to 24 percent now, and the gentleman from Maine points out how the middle class is just piling on more and more. The gentleman from Michigan talked about we got hit with new taxes under Bush, new taxes under Clinton, and this tax cut is less than those new taxes.

But the point is, there are also a lot of tax loopholes that this balanced budget bill actually stops. So often American people say, "You know, I don't mind paying my fair share, but I want to make sure everybody is paying their fair share." In many cases, there is a lot of fine print that it is stopping some of these loopholes in this balanced budget bill. A lot of this corporate welfare is stopped. But it never makes it into print or debate, but it is in there.

The gentleman from Connecticut talked about what the impact is on the middle class family of having a lower interest rate. If you have a $75,000 mortgage over a 30 year period of time, you save something like $39,000 with lower interest rates. That is big money for middle class America.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Will the gentleman repeat that? We have to amplify what is in effect a balanced budget bonus that will be there.

Mr. KINGSTON. This all comes back, and the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SMITH] mentioned it earlier as to why, Alan Greenspan, the chairman of the Federal Reserve, when he testified to the Congress, and it was actually months ago, he said that balancing the budget could bring down the interest rate as much as 1.5 percent. Other economists have said 2 percent. Most everyone agrees it will be at least 1 percent. That is 1 percent, 2-percent lower, on a student loan, a house mortgage, a car payment, your Visa bill, your MasterCard bill down the line. That is going to help the middle class of America.

Mr. SHAYS. Not to confuse the matter, it is rally one point down. If someone was paying 8 percent, they would pay 7 percent. It is a significant drop in the total amount they would have to pay.

I was thinking about the gentleman raising the issue of taxes. We could even in this group here have argument or discussion as to when the tax cut should take place. But we all know that we pay for tax cuts with spending cuts. They amount to 1.5 percent of the total revenue we are going to raise in the next 7 years. So we are just reducing the revenue flow by 1.5 percent. One of those, the capital gains exemption in the minds of many will create revenue rather than cause a loss. We have to score it by the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office as a revenue loss.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. If the gentleman would yield, everybody should still understand that revenues from taxes significantly increase over this 7-year time period, so there are going to be more revenues coming in from taxes, even though we have a modest reduction in the rate of some of those taxes.

Mr. KINGSTON. I wanted to say one of the things that people are overlooking so often are the cuts for the rich. Seventy four percent of the people who benefit from the tax cuts have a combined household income of less than $75,000. Last week I was speaking to the AARP. I said, "You know who the rich are getting this tax cut? It is you, the senior citizens. You are going from $600,000 to $750,000 on your estate tax exemption, from $11,000 to $30,000 as the exemption for Social Security earnings limitation. You or your family will be getting a $500 tax credit for having a dependent senior living in your home." These are helping senior citizens as much as anybody.

Mr. LONGLEY. If I could interject, I think all of us would agree we need to provide tax relief, particularly to the middle class and to working families. I think that the public has been served a tremendous injustice to the extent to which they do not understand that some of the provisions in this tax cut that we are looking at are heavily geared towards working families. Radical ideas like eliminating or easing the marriage penalty, so a couple that gets married does not pay more tax to be married than they would pay if they lived together without being married. We are going to provide a tax credit for adoptions, to increase adoptions and the incentive to adopt, hopefully to make that an easier process for people. We are going to give people a deduction to take care of elderly parents in their homes. What an outrageous idea, that we could actually let a family try to take care of a loved senior in their own home.

We are going to be providing an increased health deduction for health insurance for the self-employed. Medical savings accounts. We are going to give spouses the opportunity to have a full IRA if they stay home to take care of the children. We are going to allow additional interest payment deductions on student loan repayments.

It is just outrageous to me that the public is not being told the full extent of the types of measures that we are targeting, that this is not some big tax cut for the rich. Frankly, anyone that suggests that is not paying attention to the facts.

Mr. SHAYS. If the gentleman would yield, more than half of the tax cut is a $500 tax credit to families who, if it is a single mother, would be any family under $75,000, and a dual family, husband and wife, father and mother, $115,000. Not above that income level. It is focused in on truly those most in need.

To illustrate the argument for it, it is a very clear one. You were talking about families in the 1940's. I was 1945 baby. My three older brothers were raised by my family in the 1940's and 1950's. My parents were given in today's dollars the equivalent of $8,200 per child tax deduction off their income, an equivalent of $32,800 off their total income in today's dollars. A family today is given $2,500 as a deduction. My family raised me when they paid less than 15 percent of their income in taxes. Today a family raising children are faced with anywhere from 25 to 40 percent of their income going to taxes. So there is just no question why we want to do it.

Someone asked me this question. They said, "Isn't the most important issue balancing the budget and getting the economy moving again?" The answer is yes, I say taxes would be second to that. But if we are going to balance the budget and take 7 years to do it, we can afford a tax cut. If we agreed that we could balance the budget in 4 years, maybe we could not do it with a tax cut. But that is not what is before us. It is a 7-year balanced budget effort. So we clearly can reduce the burden on taxpayers over that period of time.

Mr. HAYWORTH. If the gentleman would yield, some of the debate has been characterized, and indeed some have talked about letting people hang onto more of their hard-earned money as if it were the equivalent of free candy. I have heard that expression used by some who would try to envelop themselves in a populist mantra.

Again, this is money earned by working Americans. It is their money. And, again, we come back to the central realization: This Government does not create the wealth. In our free market economy, this Government does not create the wealth. The wealth and the economic well-being results from the fruit of labor and work.

So what we are simply saying is for working Americans, you deserve to hold on to more of your money, because you know best how to care for your family. You know best the dreams and the aspirations of your children. You know best the dreams that you have for your children. You should have that money to spend as you see fit, to save, to invest, because in doing so, you will not only be caring for your family, you will be caring for your community.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. If the gentleman will yield, just the frustration so many Americans have felt that are working so hard for the dollars that they have to raise their families, and then if you go out to the check out counter at the grocery store, very often you see food stamps that are being misused for all kinds of non-nutritious food items. So as you look at the welfare recipients that may be have ended up with a snowmobile or whatever that you cannot afford, while you are paying taxes, you know part of your tax dollars are being wastefully spent in so many areas. So I think the only way we are going to achieve this is for the American people to say "Look, enough is enough. Just do it." I think that is what the American people are starting to say.

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield.

I am a Congressman in a car pool line. I have four kids. I drive a car pool every Monday before flying up to here. As I look at the other dads and moms in the car pool line and I think about that $500, I know where the money will go. It will go to buy new shoes, maybe a new book or two, maybe a downpayment on a computer or some software program. It will go to positive things.

And what happens is most of that money will be spent locally and it will be spent in small businesses. Those small businesses, as we all know, will expand, they will create jobs, and new people will be working. People will get off of public assistance benefits. And what will then happen? More revenue comes in.

I believe, Mr. Speaker, getting back to what the gentleman from Connecticut said, that the tax cut is very much in line with balancing the budget and will, in fact, grow the economy.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will yield.

This was a commitment we made to the American people in our Contract With America and we are fulfilling it. We did not say before the election we will cut taxes and afterward forget that pledge. That is an important part of this whole effort.

We talked about the significance of balancing the budget, and as the gentleman from Michigan, NICK SMITH, has pointed out, in that wonderful document I keep referring to, he points out that 42 percent of all of our savings goes to pay for our national debt. Just think if some of that could go somewhere else, like investing in new plants and equipment. We know that when interest rates go down businesses say, I can be competitive, I can afford to buy this new plant and equipment because the cost of money is less.

If we could, I want to get into this one area, we have about 9 minutes left, and it is the whole issue of what are we doing; are we cutting earned income tax credit, are we cutting the school lunch program, are we cutting the student loan program, are we cutting Medicaid and Medicare?

I would love to go through this list because it has been such a difficult thing for me to hear some Members say, well, of course, everyone wants to balance the budget, then they tell us what they do not want to cut or they accuse us of cutting things we are not cutting.

On the table, when we talk to the President, we want him to know the earned income tax credit is going to go from $19 billion to $25 billion. Only in Washington when we go up 28 percent do people call it a cut. The school lunch program, just within a 5-year period, will go from $6.3 to $7.8 billion in 5 years. That is an increase, but in Washington they call it a cut. The student loan program, and this really gets me, it goes from $24 billion to $36 billion. We are going to spend in the 7th year $36 billion. That is a 50-percent increase, but in this place some people call it a cut. Medicaid will go from $89 to $127 billion. Clearly an increase in spending, not a cut. Medicare from $178 billion to $289 billion. That is a 7.2 increase each and every year.

So the bottom line is we are cutting some programs and we are actually eliminating some. We are consolidating the Commerce Department and we are making some tough decisions. But on some of these programs, that are basically entitlement programs, they are going to grow quite significantly. In fact, some people are embarrassed to admit how much they are growing, but at least we have to say to people these are increases.

Mr. Speaker, I hope the President realizes that, and I hope he focuses in on where his priorities are. He has a tax cut he would like. It is a tax credit for families who are paying to have their children go to college and are giving them some benefit. Maybe that is something to be on the table and we talk about taking one of our taxes off.

Mr. Speaker, I would be happy to yield to my colleague.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Let me mention that the Speaker tonight for the U.S. House of Representatives is the gentleman from Michigan, DICK CHRYSLER. The gentleman just mentioned the Department of Commerce. Mr. CHRYSLER led the way to make a consensus that we are now moving towards cutting the waste in that department out, abolishing it as a named institution. He has introduced legislation now also that gives that tax credit for education. So my compliments to the Speaker.

I throw that in and will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. HAYWORTH. I thank the gentleman from Michigan for saluting the other gentleman from Michigan, who tonight serves as our Speaker pro tempore, and who, indeed, led the way with a tangible action to right size the government borne of his experience in the working world.

Mr. SHAYS. And, I might add, saved about $7 billion in the process.

Mr. HAYWORTH. That is real money, and I thank the gentleman from Connecticut for making that vital point.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is important to note, and my colleagues here gathered on the floor on both sides of the aisle, I think it is worth noting that in the wake of this historic shift, with the changes that have taken place, there has been a great deal of heat generated on this floor. We recognize the fact that good people can disagree, but, Mr. Speaker, I do not believe it is too much to ask the American people to join with us now to take a look simply at the proposals which we have outlined; coolly, objectively, yes, compassionately, divorced from the venom and vitriol and exaggeration that so often takes the place of sound public policy discussion.

Indeed, what has happened here, tragically, has been almost the utilization of political theater instead of rational policy discussion.

So, Mr. Speaker, I simply have a challenge to the American people and, indeed, to our friends on the other side and, indeed, to our President at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue, echoing what the gentleman from Connecticut has said. There are philosophical disagreements. There may be a different way of looking at what should happen in the future. We believe, in the new majority, that we have fashioned a plan that indeed complements very nicely, ironically, the path first endorsed by candidate Clinton in 1992, many of the objectives he said he had hoped to reach as a candidate.

Again tonight, Mr. Speaker, as we have done on so many occasions, recognizing that some things are nonnegotiable, the notion of balancing this budget in 7 years, the notion of providing adequate funding to reevaluate what transpires with entitlements to evaluate and better understand how to make sure that we have a safety net instead of a hammock in terms of social spending, but once again, Mr. Speaker, we would be remiss if we did not say again the hand is extended from this legislative branch to the executive branch, from the Congress of the United States to the White House.

Again, Mr. Speaker, we would simply ask the President of the United States to join with us and govern, to set the stage for a balanced budget in 7 years, because the American people deserve nothing less.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I would like to compliment the gentleman from Connecticut [Mr. SHAYS] for organizing this special order and would ask for his conclusion.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman. I know we have about 2 minutes left, and the bottom line is that what is not negotiable is getting our financial house in order within at least 7 years and to use real numbers scored by the Congressional Budget Office.

We are not saying the President has to accept our budget. We are eager to see his budget and then work out where our differences are. Obviously, we will have our differences. People have said to me this must be kind of tough being down in Washington, the polls are somewhat negative about what is going on both to the President and the Congress, even more so to the Congress. And I have responded in a like response to say we are doing some heavy lifting.

I am proud of what we are doing. If we just looked at the polls, I am reminded of thinking if Abraham Lincoln had looked at polls we would not be one Nation under God, indivisible, we would be two nations. When President Lincoln was bringing about change and fighting the great conflict, his poll ratings were, according to historians, practically nonexistent. He was considered a bumbler. He had to be snuck into the city. Ultimately, it was not until the fourth year people began to realize the significance of what was taking place.

The bottom line for us is we are going to get our financial house in order. We will do it ultimately, I think, on a bipartisan basis. We will do it with an extended hand, as the gentleman has pointed out, but we are determined. We have left the old world for the new world, and we are not going back to the old world. We burned our ships. We are either going to succeed or fail, but we are not going to return to business as usual.

With that I thank my colleagues who have joined us and thank you, Mr. Speaker, for your attention and your willingness to preside over this.

THE BUDGET NEGOTIATION PROCESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, as we have heard from previous speakers, the countdown has begun on the budget negotiation process. It is a countdown of greater significance than we have ever experienced probably in the history of the Nation. It is a countdown to the remaking of America.

We are not just talking about budgets and appropriations. We are talking about a drastic overhaul, a remaking of America. We are not just talking about reforms, we are talking about destruction. We are talking about the wrecking ball that has to precede any rebuilding that may take place.

As we move toward December 15, we have gone through a period where a gun was held at the head of the American Government. The Republican majority refused to allow a continuing resolution to go forward until it extracted certain promises from the Democratic President in the White House. That is a most unfortunate way to proceed.

The general way of proceeding is to have appropriations bills passed, the President acts on those, Congress reacts, and we go through an orderly constitutional process. But a crisis was created this time and we have gone through that, and now we have a new framework established. The new framework says that we have until December 15 to work out the budget process, and in the process we must adhere to certain parameters that have been established.

The framework is established. The environment for negotiations is set. We must negotiate within the parameters of the establishment of a balanced budget by the year 2002. In 7 years we must balance the budget. We must negotiate this. If we do not, we will not be able to continue the Government beyond December 15. The same kind of crisis that was artificially created a week ago will be recreated. So we are negotiating with a psychological bomb threat hovering over the process.

Is this a logical and scientific way to remake America? No, but it is the conditions that have been set by people who have enormous amounts of power, and the process goes forward. The engagement is on now. The engagement is between the Democratic President and a Republican controlled Congress. The crisis in a revolutionary atmosphere has been created artificially and does not improve the decisionmaking process. We cannot expect a better America to emerge under the kind of atmosphere that has been created, a kind of bomb threat hovering over.

I do not think the decisionmaking is going to be the best that we are capable of. I do not think the decisionmaking is going to be the kind of decisionmaking that the American people deserve, but that is the crisis and the revolutionary atmosphere that has been created.

Those that have created the crisis obviously do not trust a rational step-by-step decisionmaking process. They do not agree with the process. They think that we have to have a crisis, we have to have a bomb threat hovering over the process. They are intellectual cowards who have nothing but contempt for the deliberative process of democracy, but they are in power. They have created the situation. That is the way it has to go forward as we count down toward December 15.

Reform is not on the agenda of this controlling group. The Republican majority is not interested in reform. They talk about reform. They come to us in the clothing of reform, in the camouflage of reform, but what they really mean is they want to wreck and destroy. Wrecking and destroying is on the agenda of the Republican controlled Congress. They want to wreck what has been put together over the last 60 years. They want to wreck Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal. They want to wreck Lyndon Johnson's Great Society.

They want to wreck Medicare. They do not really want to save Medicare. There are quotes which clearly show that they never believed in Medicare. The Republican votes were never there.

Medicare was created 30 years ago. It is an infant program. In the life of nations, 30 years is a very short period of time. But now, Medicare must be slowly strangled. The reforms are not to save Medicare. It is hoped that Medicare, "would wither on the vine."

There are other people that felt that Medicare was an idea that never worked anyhow, so the fact that they are attempting to make drastic cuts in Medicare now should surprise no one. It is logical. They are wrecking and destroying.

The original Contract With America came camouflaged in the clothing of reform, but destruction is the objective. Destruction is the goal, and destruction is the mission of the present Republican-controlled Congress.

The framework has been established. The countdown has begun. But each American voter, each constituent out there is not condemned to merely be a spectator. They do not have to be merely a spectator in this process. Their common sense has a vital role to play. Their common sense is already having a profound impact here in the distorted world of Washington decisionmaking.

I want to thank the American people for raising their voices. I want to thank them for letting it be known that they can clearly understand the language of political used car salesmen. They can understand when they are being swindled. The public is far more intelligent than a lot of the professional decisionmakers here in Washington. I want to thank the American public.

There are people who say that, "Well, things are improving." Unfortunately, some within the Democratic Party. They say, "Things are improving, and the public is coming around to seeing things the way Democrats see them and, therefore, we should lower our voices and we should not be shrill."

Mr. Speaker, I do not understand that reasoning at all. I think that raising voices has led to American voters listening to each other. It has led to citizens out there waking up to the dangers that exist. It is not by accident that the polls now show that more than 60 percent of the American people do not want the cuts being proposed by the Republican majority in Congress. More than 60 percent. More than 70 percent do not want the Medicare and Medicaid cuts.

Common sense is prevailing. People raised their voices and they heard each other. I do not think anybody wants to be shrill unnecessarily. For God's sake, understand what is at stake here. For the sake of the American people, for the sake of our families and our children, and for the sake of the greatest Nation that ever existed in the history of the world, it is necessary to raise our voices, wake each other up.

Common sense is going to play a major role in what happens here. Common sense is going to be at the table in the White House, if it is kept highly visible and if the polls continue to record the truth of what the American people think out there.

We have a problem and common sense will help us with that problem. We have a collision of visions. I heard this phrase used on the floor by one of my Republican colleagues. I do not remember exactly who the gentleman is, I cannot attribute it to him properly, but I liked what he said. I wrote it down. Definitely, there is a collision of visions.

We heard the speakers before talk about their vision of America and one of them said that the government does not create wealth. The government has not created wealth. It has no role. Workers create wealth.

I am glad the gentleman gave workers some credit. That is the first time I have heard workers being praised by that side of the aisle. Well, I would like to think that it is great that workers are given credit for the creation of wealth, but wealth is created by a number of different forces, and where there is no government, there is no wealth. Government is the key component of the preservation of wealth.

Where would America be if there were no government to put the armies in the field to defend the principles of capitalism and the principles of democracy? Where would America be if we had no government to protect private property; if there were no government to maintain the kind of conditions which make it possible for some men to labor in the fields and sweat and others sit in their offices and earn their living by their ability to think of new kinds of ideas, and others to sit in offices and invest the money of other people?

There is a whole range of activities that would not go on unless we had the government. When we had no control over the process of investment on Wall Street, we had the Great Depression brought on by the collapse of the stock market which was the result of no government, no government properly controlling.

Of course, in all the wars that have been fought where American soldiers, ordinary people, sons and daughters of ordinary people have gone out to fight, if they had not gone out to fight those wars, we would have a different world. We would not have a world where America is basically economically in command and basically in a position of great privilege and advantage. That position is not there because some individual was able to use his mind and his advantages and his opportunities to create individual wealth. It all goes together.

The Constitution had the focus of the idea of promoting the general welfare. Had the Constitution not made a commitment to facilitate the pursuit of happiness, we would have a different kind of America and a different kind of government, and a lot of the wealth that exists would not exist.

The government also, in many other ways, has developed wealth. Science, technology, the organization and management of human resources; if there had been no American research and technology initiatives, if they had not been monumental, no individual corporation, no individual person could have financed and organized the kind of research and technology which went into the effort to win World War II and to maintain the edge, the technological and scientific edge on the Soviet Union following World War II.

That great effort, all the research that developed radar and computerization and miniaturization and all the kinds of things that private industry now uses as a matter of fact and takes advantage of, all that wealth would not exist if it were not for government.

So, the vision of those who say that government is in the way, and government is the problem, and government does not create wealth, that vision has to be challenged. Because if we do not believe that government is important, then we are saying that the great majority of the people who live in this society under the government are not important. Only those who can fend for themselves and are lucky enough to have reaped the benefits of all the previous efforts of government are worthy of existing. There is a collision of visions, definitely. And there is a collision of values.

There is definitely a collision of values. The values of the Republican Majority go in the direction of abstract, hypothetical children of the future. They say,

We are going to save the children of the future from having to pay debts. We are going to crusade and pressure the present system. We are going to create a crisis. We are going to make children go hungry in the present, so that the hypothetical children of the future will not be saddled with hypothetical debts. We are not going to recognize the fact that wealth is increasing geometrically. We are going to focus, instead, on the fact that there are scarce resources and create an atmosphere where it is believed that resources are scarce and there is not going to be enough for everybody and, therefore, we must squeeze the system and certain people will be squeezed out and thrown overboard.

There will not be enough for the elderly who need nursing homes and there will not be enough for all the children who need lunches. We are going to create a finite number of lunches available for poor children, and when that number runs out, then the rest will have to go hungry. We are going to subscribe to elitism.

The collision of values says that the Republican Majority believes that elitism is good for the country; a certain small minority has the right to control all the resources; they have a right to benefit from what is happening in America.

We have a great shift in wealth in America where a small percentage of the people control most of the wealth. That shift has gone on at an escalating rate. Great Britain used to be the place where the ratio of the wealthiest to the poorest was the greatest. They had this great divide between the wealthy and the poor. Now, America has taken over. It has surpassed all the other countries in that notoriety. The difference between the wealthiest Americans and the poorest Americans, their income, is greatest, and it is increasing at an alarming rate.

So, greed is good. If you have the value that greed is good and those that have the most should get the most and keep the most and not share and not even be bothered with a minimum amount of taxes; let the corporations continue to get away with paying the least amount of taxes, while individuals and families pay more and more taxes; then your value system certainly supports that of the Republican majority.

There is a collision. There are Democratic values which say we ought to have a minimum wage, as small as it may be. There are millions of people who are paid on the basis of that minimum wage and that minimum wage is way, way behind in terms of the cost of living. We only want to increase the minimum wage by 90 cents over a 2-year period and we cannot even get more than 110 cosponsors on the bill.

The Republican majority refuses to let it be discussed in committee. Increasing the minimum wage has not been discussed in my Committee on Economic and Educational Opportunities, which has jurisdiction. My Subcommittee on Workforce Protections has jurisdiction, but we cannot get the majority to even have a hearing on the minimum wage.

The value system is such that greed is great; those who have, let them have more. It has nothing to do with balancing the budget, by the way. Increasing the minimum wage does not impact on this great process of balancing the budget.

But, Mr. Speaker, the public is the savior of the situation, the American people, the voters out there. Their common sense should continue to be focused. They set their common sense against the monstrous blunders that continue to go on here.

Both Republicans and Democrats have to look over their shoulder and watch the polls. The polls reflect the common sense of the American people. As I said before, the polls have shifted. The polls show that the word is getting out. The double-talk is being understood. The used car salesmen are being exposed. The public's common sense will save us.

I urge those who are listening to continue to raise their voices and maintain a steady focus on the critical life-and-death situation that is taking place here. This is no ordinary congressional session. This is no ordinary year.

Keep focus on the budget. The Republican remaking of America is an appropriation and expenditure revolution. This is war without blood, but there will be many casualties through this process of the way we appropriate money and the way we expend money. Many people will suffer and die. The process is beginning to take place already.

So, Mr. Speaker, I say to those listening tonight, "Raise your voice and maintain your focus, because what is happening here is more important than anything else that is happening in America today, or anything else that is going to happen in a long time."

I think Bosnia is important and we must make some critical decisions about Bosnia, because our government is a part of a world of governments and we cannot exist as if we were on an island by ourselves. We have to deal with that situation. I am not saying it is not important, but nothing is more important than the budget negotiation process that has begun now between the Democratic White House and the Republican-controlled Congress.

Let common sense lead us to keep our eyes on the prize, and we should refuse to yield to any diversions. Between now and November 1996, "It's the budget, stupid." "It's the appropriations process, stupid." "It's the expenditure process, stupid."

How we spend the taxpayers' money is the issue of the 1996 campaign. The campaign for Members of Congress, the campaign for the Presidency, the campaign for the other body. That is the issue. Do not let anybody divert us from that issue. Keep the focus. Do not let Bosnia be used as a diversion. Do not let affirmative action, set-asides, voting rights be used as diversion. Do not let them abuse religion.

Come with a hypocritical focus on family values. We must not allow at this critical moment anybody to move away from the focus of the budget, the use of the American taxpayers' funds to provide for priorities that are determined by the American people. This countdown is everybody's business, and you can place yourself at the negotiation table. That is what I am trying to say. Keep your voices up, understand that you belong there. If you are not there, then terrible things will happen that will affect you right away and will affect your children and grandchildren, posterity.

The framework is established, environment for negotiations is set. I am happy that the chief of staff of the White House hugged the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives. I am happy that they hugged when this agreement was made and the parameters were set for the negotiations.

I wonder if we are not in a situation similar to that faced by the Greeks who made the Trojans happy when they said: Look, we are going to stop all this fighting and in order for us to show that we no longer have any animosity toward you, even though we came over here to take your gold and to plunder your fields and to do everything we could to enrich ourselves, we use family values as an excuse, somebody stole somebody's wife, so that was a great excuse, we did all that, we came over here. We have slaughtered your young people. We have killed your great hero, Hector. Now we have a stalemate. We would like to show you that we are no longer angry at you for all the terrible things you let us do to you. We want to give you a horse, and we have constructed a horse, and we will push it inside your walls.

So the Trojan horse was pushed inside the walls of the city of Troy. The Trojans who had fought against the awesome might of the Greeks for so long found themselves overcome by a situation where a few men slipped out, inside the Trojan horse slipped out, then locked the gates and all heck broke loose. Troy was sacked. Every male child was murdered, and so forth. The legend goes on and on.

I hope we understand that there is a danger that a Trojan horse is here, that the people who want to remake America are in a hurry to make a revolution and are not going to accept a mere balancing of the budget by standards that deal with accounting only. People who want to remake America want to destroy certain programs. They want to destroy aid to families with dependent children. They do not want to reform it.

The President came into office saying he wanted to reform welfare as we know it. But he did not say he wanted to destroy welfare. He did not say he wanted to destroy the part which deals with children. But we have now reached a point where the entitlement which says that every poor child who meets a certain criteria and shows that they are poor is eligible for Federal aid.

They have taken the entitlement away. Yes, the final has not been signed, it has not been, but on the President's desk, but the agreement was made. The agreement has been made by all who are concerned. We cannot bring back the entitlement for aid to families with dependent children. It is dead.

It is dangerous to expend a great deal of energy mourning for that entitlement because the entitlement for Medicaid is now on the table. I cannot stress it too much. The entitlement for Medicaid is on the table. The beast has devoured the entitlement for aid to families with dependent children. And now the beast is hungry. The taste of entitlements is too strong to resist. The beast wants to devour the Medicaid entitlement.

We have had discussions about trimming the budget and balancing the budget for the last 13 years. I have been in Congress for 13 years. Since my first year here, there was a classmate of mine named Tim Penny. His name has been used often in the last year. I saw his picture in the paper recently. Tim Penny is a part of a group that is trying to get together an independent run for the Presidency. So I take my hat off to Tim for his integrity. I take my hat off to Tim for his consistency. I take my hat off to him for his persistence, Tim Penny and the people who surrounded him and from the very beginning were pushing for more budget sense and wanting to trim the waste from the Federal Government and wanting to move toward a balanced budget.

Tim Penny always started his dialog by saying, we must trim the entitlements that are not means tested, the entitlements that are not means tested. He did not talk about the means tested entitlements. By means tested, I mean you have to show you are poor before you can qualify. You cannot get aid to families with dependent children unless you prove you are poor. You cannot get Medicaid until you have proven you are poor. Those are means tested entitlements.

I even think at one point our Budget chairman, Mr. KASICH, was a part of the same group. They always emphasized not going after the means tested entitlements. In the process of balancing the budget now and moving towards a balanced budget, all we hear about now is the destruction of the means tested entitlements, the destruction of aid to families with dependent children, an accomplished fact almost, and the destruction of the entitlement for Medicaid. We are not talking about the entitlement for farm subsidies, various farm credit programs, farmers' mortgage, all kinds of programs out there which go to farmers regardless of whether they are poor or not. In fact, there is no means test whatsoever.

On two occasions, Congressman CHARLES SCHUMER, a colleague of mine from New York, has offered amendments, and I supported those amendments which said: Look, let us take away the farm subsidies from any farmer who makes $100,000 or more. Farmers who make $100,000 or more should not be given a government handout.

Each time that bill was on the floor, it went down to inglorious, inglorious defeat. I think we got less than 70 votes out of 435. Recently, the last time the agriculture appropriations were on the floor, several bills were offered to take away subsidies for tobacco and for mines and for a number of things. They went down to defeat also.

The means tested entitlements have been put on the chopping block. One has been devoured already, and the others are about to be devoured. But the entitlements which do not relate to means testing—and there are some others that have not been put on the chopping block at all. The corporate welfare programs have not been put on the chopping block. The subsidies to corporations, the corporate tax loopholes have not been put on the chopping block. They are not even under discussion. They refuse to discuss my chart.

The best way to destroy an idea and to defeat an idea is to ignore it. Here is the most ignored chart in Washington. Here is the most ignored chart which is definitely a part, could be a part of the solution to the budget balancing problem. Here is a chart which says that the revenue stream in America which flows primarily from income tax comes in two directions. It comes from families and individuals. And it comes from corporations.

Yes, there are other taxes which make up the revenue, but the income tax comes from families and from corporations. Here is a chart that shows what has happened over the last 50 years. In 1943, this chart shows that families and individuals were paying a very small percentage of the revenue of the taxes; 27.1 percent was being paid by families and individuals; 39.8 percent was being paid by corporations. In 1983, that is the blue line, that is the families and individuals. And the red line is the corporate, corporations.

In 1983, under Ronald Reagan's regime, the amount of money paid by families and individuals jumped all the way to 48.1 percent. This is from 27.1 percent in 1943 to 48.1 percent in 1983; at the same time watch the red bar. The red bar dropped all the way down to 6.2 percent; corporations, their income taxes dropped drastically.

Do you want to know why we have a deficit? Do you want to know where your taxes went? Do you want to know why people are angry about taxes? They ought to be angry. Individuals and families have been swindled. I said this before and I will say it again and again, but nobody wants to talk about it.

Finally, in 1995, is the situation drastically improved? No. Watch the blue bar and the red bar, and you still have 43.7 percent being paid by families and individuals and 11.2 percent being paid by corporations.

This is fact that nobody wants to discuss in Washington. This is a fact that everybody wants to ignore. I invite you, the American public, the voters, to use your common sense and interpret what this means, especially in 1995.

In 1995, individuals and families are suffering drastically from downsizing and streamlining. People who lost their jobs in industrial enterprises have gone to work in service enterprises at much lower salaries. Individuals are suffering but the economy is booming. The economy is booming. So corporations are making tremendous amounts of money as a result of their application of the science and the technology which has been developed by the American government, building on telecommunications, radar, computerization, miniaturization, all the things which our space program and our military program helped to design. Corporations are able to take advantage of that. And nobody wants to begrudge them. Let them make money. That is what capitalism is all about, making money. Why do they not pay their fair share? Why do not corporations pay half the total revenue that is derived from income taxes? They are the one sector that could afford it. They are the one sector that would hurt the least if they were to pay.

So here is the kind of fact that is destroying the kind of idea that does not exist because it is ignored. I urge you, the American people, to use your common sense and put this back on the agenda. Ask the question. Ask the question everywhere. Ask the Congress the question. Ask the Members of Congress. Ask the President the question.

We are going into a situation now where the negotiations are going to take place within very narrow parameters. They will not even put this on the table. There are certain kinds of cuts that will not be on the table. The farm subsidies will not be on the table. The farm subsidies that go to people who are not poor, entitlements that go to people and they are not means tested, they will not be on the table.

In 1990, we had a similar situation where there was a gridlock between the Congress and the President. The President at that time happened to be a Republican, President Bush. And the Congress was controlled by Democrats. At that time you had the same kind of negotiations initiated at the White House.

On May 24, 1990, I entered into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the following extension of remarks, and I find it so relevant at this moment that I am going to bore you by reading part of it.

In Extension of Remarks I submitted the following.

Mr. Speaker, the White House budget summit now underway is a process saturated with pitfalls. These discussions generate great fear among those Americans who have been repeatedly neglected or violated by similar deal making.

Since 1981, under the cloak of sweet reasonableness, we have watched the Democratic leadership being swindled. Tax reform gave more breaks to the rich while payroll taxes increased, resulting in the poor paying a greater percentage of their income than the rich.

Let us not forget also that the Gramm-Rudman conspiracy almost drove a life threatening dagger into the heart of certain vitally needed, low-income safety net programs.

Remember Gramm-Rudman? Senator GRAMM is still around, Gramm-Rudman.

Vigilance by the Congressional Black Caucus thwarted the vicious intent of the Gramm-Rudman conspiracy. It was through the efforts of the Congressional Black Caucus that seven low-income programs were exempted from the budget cutting axe of Gramm-Rudman: AFDC, school lunch and dependent care food program, commodity supplemental food program, food stamps, Medicaid, SSI, and WIC. They were all exempted from the Gramm-Rudman cuts.

Remember the Gramm-Rudman cuts went across the board and cut everything equally, but we will manage to exempt these safety net programs.

Thank God for Tip O'Neill and his wisdom. He responded positively to our requests that the safety-net programs which are now under attack, which are now being destroyed, that they be exempt from Gramm-Rudman and not cut drastically.

Mr. Speaker, these same crucial low-income programs are now in danger. This I am reading from my May 24, 1990, entry into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD:

White House spokesmen have announced that they want to "close the Gramm-Rudman loopholes." Our interpretation of this threat leads us to believe that a tradeoff will be offered. Defense cuts will be on the table in exchange for low-income program cuts. Beggars will be robbed and all who are present will be pressured to accept this goal as a reasonable exchange.

Mr. Speaker, the fear of the budget summit process in the streets of my district is very real. I would like to use the language and the attitude of a street constituent to sum up this deeply felt concern.

And it is at this point that I entered a rap poem into the RECORD, a poem that I wrote from the point of view of a constituent in the street out there watching the process.

THE BUDGET SUMMIT

All the big white D.C. mansion
There's a meeting of the mob
And the question on the table
Is which beggars will they rob.
There's a meeting of the mob
Now we'll never get a job.
All the gents will make a deal
And the poor have no appeal.
Which housing for the homeless will they hit?

School lunches they will cut all the way to the pit.

There's a meeting of the mob!
Big bailouts they will cheer
Cause the bankers they all fear.
Closing loopholes is their role
But never mind the S and L hole
There's a meeting of the mob!
Medicaid is against the wall
Watch health care take a fall

There's a meeting of the mob!
 These good fellows won't be frisked
 But welfare children are being risked
 There's a meeting of the mob!
 Not a cent will be left for AIDS
 When they finish with their raids
 Let addict babies remain with their pain
 This gang will deal a budget that is certainly insane

There's a meeting of the mob!
 These bosses lack logic but they all have clout
 Old folk's COLA's will rapidly get rubbed out
 There's a meeting of the mob!
 At the big white D.C. mansion
 There's a meeting of the mob!
 Now we'll never get a job
 All these gents will make a deal
 And the poor have no appeal
 There's a meeting of the mob!

This was in May 1990. History has gone slowly, in unfortunate circles, and we are right back to where we were in May 1990, only the situation is far worse.

An agreement has been made already that the budget will be balanced in 7 years, and it is required that the beggars must be robbed. Nobody is talking about taking away anything from the entitlements that exist for the middle class. It is the beggars who must be robbed.

In my district right now there are poor people who are on welfare, home relief. The constitution of the State of New York requires that they take care of poor people, and home relief cannot be abolished, so there are people on relief, home relief, who are being forced to work for their welfare check. I have no problem with having anybody work for their check, their income. It is altogether fitting and proper that everybody should work who can work. There are able-bodied people who cannot find jobs and for various reasons are on welfare, and the workfare that has not been thrust upon them would be appropriate if they were being paid the minimum wage. But they are being made to work more hours than are necessary if they were making minimum wage to generate the equivalent of their welfare check.

What does that mean? That means they are working for less than the minimum wage, they are moving toward a situation which you might call semi-slavery. When you are forced to work for your food and your basic necessities, and arbitrarily you are told that you must do a certain amount of work, even if it is inconsistent with the minimum wages that would be paid for that amount of work, then you are in a very serious situation, and that is a situation that exists in New York City right now. We have no problem with the workfare programs; the streets are cleaner, there are a number of things that are going on as a result of people being put to work. It should have happened a long time ago, but why not compensate them to the level of minimum wage, minimum wages? It is so slow anyhow.

We are fighting to get minimum wages on the agenda here in the Congress. The President has stamped his approval on a minimum-wage bill, an increase of 90 cents per hour over a 2-year period, 45 cents one year and 45 cents the next year. The minority leader, the gentleman from Missouri [Mr. GEPHARDT], is the sponsor of the legislation, and yet we can only get 110 people signed on.

There is suffering already as a result of the double-barreled agenda which has a lot to do with more than balancing the budget. New York hospitals are suffering already as a result of the atmosphere that has been created. They know the cuts are coming. The mayor has moved to drastically overhaul the hospital system; privatization is on the agenda. Whether it improves health care or not is of no concern. It will save money, so large numbers of administrators and supervisory personnel of hospitals are bailing out. They are leaving the system already. We have a lot of chaos and confusion in the city's hospitals now that could be avoided if we did not have this revolutionary atmosphere created that frightens everybody at various levels of government.

Cost of Federal Government is a primary ingredient in the income of these hospitals. They are thrown into panic almost by the fact that so much change over such a short period of time is being projected.

Schools are crumbling literally. There was an editorial in the New York Times yesterday which talked about every time it rains New York City schools get washed away or a little bit more. That is on the editorial page, and you think, well, what kind of joke is this? You look at the article more closely, you read more carefully, and they are literally describing a process whereby every time it rains and the rain runs through the crevices of the bricks and washes away the remaining dry cement, the bricks begin to fall off, and they have falling bricks. At a lot of schools you have ceilings falling, you have literally brigades of people in New York City schools carrying buckets and various newly fashioned aluminum vessels that collect rain.

It is the truth described in the pages of the New York Times. Schools are crumbling, and there is no relief in sight in terms of new construction.

At one time we had a bill that was passed here that called for the Federal Government to begin a program of physical assistance to exist in the physical plants of schools. It was a small program by Federal standards. The authorization, and Senator CAROL MOSELEY-BRAUN and I worked on it, and we had an authorization of $600 million to begin a process of emergency repairs in various schools that had emergencies; $600 million, a small amount of the total Federal budget. Well, that was cut down in the appropriations process to $100 million, and when the rescission bill came, it was cut down to zero.

So the Federal Government might have stimulated a process, might have kept a process going and encouraged the State government and the city government to approach the physical plants of school buildings in New York differently, but it provided no stimulus. I cannot blame the Federal Government for what New York is failing to do or the State and city are failing to do, but the Federal Government certainly in education has been a stimulus and lost a great, we lost a great, opportunity.

In this crisis and revolutionary atmosphere no one is willing to make any decisions about building new schools. There is nothing on the drawing board of consequence. As I said before, the crisis and revolutionary atmosphere does not approve of decision-making. It panics people not only here in Washington, but at the local level and at the State level, the panic sets in, and we are not having the best government at any level as a result of the kind of crisis atmosphere that has been created.

Reform is not on the agenda. If it was reform, it would go at a slower pace. There would be a more deliberative situation. I am all in favor of getting rid of waste as fast as possible. It is the duty of every elected official, everybody who is in government at any level, to constantly try to get the maximum output for every dollar that is put into any program.

We are in favor of reform, but reform is not on the agenda. It is wrecking and destroying that is on the agenda. If we wanted to reform, we would not have to throw programs down to the level of the State government. One of the ways to destroy programs for the poor is to block grant them to the State level. The States had the responsibility before the Federal Government assumed that responsibility for most of the history of the United States of America. States have had the responsibility for programs for poor people. States have had the responsibility for health care. States have had the responsibility for nutrition programs.

When World War II came along and they had to enlist large numbers of men over a short period of time, they found thousands of American males not fit for the process of training to go into combat. They were malnourished, they were weak, they were undeveloped as a result of the tremendous crisis in feeding programs throughout the country. The States had ignored the fact that their populations were not receiving proper nutrition. The States had produced a situation which endangered the security of the Nation because you did not have healthy bodies to deal with the crisis created by World War II. The States were in charge, the States have been in charge of health care, and their charity hospitals kept us going for a long time, but we know there were great gaps in services provided by charity hospitals or by the Hill-Burton Act which later came on from the Federal Government level and offered funds.

The States had had responsibilities before, but they are now being handed back, and States have done a very poor job.

Now if we really wanted to make some improvements and to reform, we would not have this blanket determination that give it to the States and let them handle it. If you want to destroy programs, then give it to the States, and let them handle it. It is an ideological decision, not an administration decision. It is understood that the States will let Medicare wither on the vine. It is understood that the States will ignore large numbers of poor people, and welfare as we know it will certainly be gone in 5 to 10 years if the States are in charge. States have made monumental blunders. States have been guilty of horrific corruption.

I served in government at all three levels. I was commissioner in New York City government for 6 years. I was a State senator for 8 years. I have been in Congress now for 13 years. And I will tell you that the level of government which is the least efficient, the level of government which is most unreal, the level of government where you have the greatest amount of waste, is at the State level, not the municipal and local level where people in the government have to meet face to face with the people they are serving, not at the Federal level where you are forced to a process of competition. Believe it or not, 435 people from all over the country do generate a kind of creative competition in working out programs, and oversight, and a number of other things that we do right, but at the State level, this sort of in between, they have a lot of power and no responsibility, and if you want to cut out one level of government and save money, you find the State is a level you could cut out, and you would not miss it. Just give the money directly to the local governments, and you save a lot of money, but States have moved in to use their powers, the Governors are using their powers to grab a great segment of the American Treasury. We have a Balkanization of America about to take place. It is very dangerous when you start dividing up the responsibilities at the Federal Government and giving them to the States. You set in motion a process where States will begin to compete with each other, and in the case of services to the poor, Mr. Speaker, they will all strive to reach the lowest common denominator most rapidly.

In other words, the State which provides the least amount of services to the poor, the worst Medicaid that is provided will become the norm because every other State will be moving in a way to prevent citizens from one State which provides lower levels of service from moving to their State.

You will have a situation where Mississippi, which is at the bottom of the rung in so many ways, will set the level for the rest of the country. The States right around Mississippi in the South will be pushed into a situation where they have to lower their standards to keep Mississippians from moving out of their States, and then those States in the South, the surrounding States that surround them, will lower their levels, and it will go right across the country, where everybody will have the lowest possible level of service in order to defend themselves against people seeking better health care services trying to survive.

You may even have tremendous tension created between the States. There was a time in our history shortly following the Emancipation Proclamation and the 13th, 14th, and 15th amendments, where slaves were moving across the country, not wanted in any State or city, and large amounts of people were driven out with violence, large amounts were murdered, from one locality to another. They pushed them around because nobody wanted to take responsibility for poor people who had nowhere else to go. You may have that kind of situation. You may even have a situation which results in the largest States using their muscles to force the smaller States to not drop their people off on them.

You have a situation now where the United States of America is one America. You have a situation now where FDR, or Franklin Roosevelt, who started the New Deal, looked at the richest on the east coast. Franklin Roosevelt was a New Yorker. He clearly understood that New York is much richer than Georgia or Tennessee or Mississippi. He clearly understood if you create a new deal, if you have a Federal Government taking revenue from the richest States and you need to supply funds for programs in the poorer States, that it is going to come from the richest States and go into the poorer States.

Franklin Roosevelt was not stupid, not naive. He clearly understood that America is one America, and where there are riches and surplus, where people can give, they should not mind assisting the rest of America. That is what happened. It even endures until today, the unevenness in the distribution of Federal funds I have talked about previously.

There is a study that is done every year by the Kennedy School of Government and Senator MOYNIHAN, who originated the study in his own office. Jointly Senator MOYNIHAN and the Kennedy School of Government do a study of how the revenues of the Federal Government are distributed throughout the States. They list States which give more than they receive. They list States that receive more than they give also.

The pattern is shown, and I read from that booklet from this podium, and the pattern is clear. It is the Northeast States, it is the Midwestern States, the Great Lakes States, which even until today are giving much larger amounts of money to the Federal Treasury than they receive from the Federal Treasury.

The pattern is clear at the other end, the Southern States, all of them except Texas, and whether that is Southern or Western, it is not clear which category they fall in, but all of the Southern States are recipient States. They receive large amounts of Federal money, much more than they pay into the Treasury.

New York State, almost $19 billion in 1994, almost $19 billion more flowed from New York State taxpayers to the Federal Government than went back to the New York State people in terms of Federal services and expenditures; $19 billion.

Now, if you have a balkanization of America and every State is allowed to reclaim some of what they pay in, if you had a revenue justice program, a revenue justice act, maybe the New York legislators ought to join me in creating a revenue justice act, where every State will get back at least half of what it overpays.

New York would be receiving, if it got half of $19 billion, they would be receiving $9.5 billion. $9.5 billion would balance the budget of New York State. We could solve all of our budget problems if we had $9.5 billion. If we had the whole $19 billion, New York State would be a paradise. Prior to that, there was $16 billion more paid by New York State the year before than they received back. Prior to that, $23 billion more was paid into the Federal coffers than New York received back.

So, the question is, who benefits by the balkanization of America, if you start giving the States the power, if the States are going to run it. Where does it lead to? The Southern States receive $68 billion. The collective Southern States receive $68 billion more from the Federal Government than they pay into the Federal Government. The Southern States, they lose if you balkanize America.

What is the great advantage of this process of handing it down to the States with the hope that the States are going to destroy the programs? It is dangerous precedent. It is not needed to accomplish the process of balancing the budget, but it is part of the destruction of programs.

The framework has been established, the countdown has begun. But, as I said before, each American, each constituent out there, is not condemned to be merely a spectator. Common sense has a vital role to play. Your common sense is already having a profound impact.

Stop and consider what some of the commonsense impacts are. If you or your child who is a sophomore in high school, or maybe they are just in the fourth grade, were to take out a pencil and paper and look at the options, take a look at the chart that I showed you before, would you not consider that it makes a lot of sense to help balance the budget by lowering the level of income taxes for families and individuals while you raise the level of income taxes paid by corporations? Would not your common sense tell you that ought to be one of the answers to increase the amount of money paid by corporations into the Federal coffers? Corporations are making all the money. Let them pay more in revenue as a part of the way to solve the problem.

Using your common sense, would you not say that even though there has been an agreement to do all of this in 7 years, that there is no magic to 7 years? If you have to, in order to do it in a more humane way and lessen the suffering, if you have to do it in 10 years or 9 years, why not do it in 9 or 10 years? Your common sense would tell you that.

Yes, your common sense has told you over the years that something is wrong in Washington. You wanted to eliminate the high price toilet seats that the military was putting in their planes. You want to eliminate the $600 coffee pots.

Common sense has always been against waste. Medicaid waste, Medicare waste, food stamp waste, Embassies abroad wasting money, all of that waste, your common sense tells you to eliminate. So let us bring our common sense into this debate, keep it focused.

Look at the CIA. The CIA has blundered and is now a danger to our foreign policy, a danger to America. It makes so many blunders, until we would be better off if we did not have a CIA. Yet the CIA goes on.

Recently the CIA was exposed as having a petty cash slush fund that nobody knew about, the Director of the CIA did not know about it, the President did not know about it. It was at least $1.5 billion.

We have proposed on this floor several times that you cut the CIA budget by just 10 percent a year. If you cut it by 10 percent a year over a 7-year period, take out your pencil and paper, and you will see that the CIA cut by 10 percent a year, and the admitted amount is at least $28 billion, 10 percent is $2.8 billion a year, times 7 years, you will end up with $19 billion in 7 years. The CIA would still exist, but it would only be cut 10-percent a year over that seven-year period.

If you take that $19 billion that you get from the CIA cut of 10 percent over a 7-year period, and you add to that the $1.5 billion slush fund that the CIA discovered that it had and nobody knew about, you would have $21 billion, and $21 billion is more than you need to make up for the education cut. Education is being cut by $4 billion next year.

$21 billion is not quite enough. Take the B-2 bomber and add that. The B-2 bomber over the period of its life will cost about $33 billion. One-third of that is $11 billion. You add the $11 billion of the B-2 bomber to the $21 billion of the CIA, you have $32 billion. Education cuts are going to be $4 billion left over, if you take out your pencil and paper and use common sense and get rid of real waste. But nobody is discussing a cut of the CIA. The CIA goes on blundering and nobody cuts it.

We must raise our voices, maintain a steady focus on the critical life and death target here in Washington. It is the budget. The Republican remaking of America is an appropriation and expenditure revolution. This is a war without blood, but there will be casualties. The common sense of the American people is necessary to minimize the casualties and to save America. We must raise our voices. We must maintain a steady focus. Do not let anybody tell you to lower your voice. Scream and scream loud.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will remind all Members to direct their remarks to the Chair and not to the viewing audience.

NEW YORK TO BE DISPROPORTIONATELY HURT BY CUTS IN MEDICARE AND MEDICAID

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from New York [Mrs. MALONEY] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I believe we have the greatest health care system in the world and New York City has many of the Nation's best hospitals to support that great system, hospitals that have the enormous responsibility of caring for the citizens of America's largest city, that train a disproportionate number of our next generation of health professionals, that conduct the cutting edge research to save and improve our lives. Yet many of these hospitals will be decimated by Republican Medicare and Medicaid cuts that will cost these great New York City hospitals billions in reduced payments.

Where will these institutions be forced to make up these cuts? Conservative estimates put the New York City job loss at 107,000 health care positions, more than 2.3 percent of the city's total employment.

Doctors will be cut, nurses will be cut, janitors who keep our hospitals clean and sanitary will be cut. New York medical technology will not be purchased. Yes, this will hurt seniors; yes, this will hurt the poor; yes, this will hurt the health care of every New Yorker and every American.

The House of Representatives voted to cut Medicare spending by $270 billion over 7 years and to cut $170 billion to the Medicaid Program. There are several unique features of the New York City health care system which make it especially vulnerable to the type of targeted cuts in the spending contained in the Republican legislation.

The New York City metropolitan area trains 15 percent of the medical residents for the entire Nation. The New York biomedical system is a recognized world center of advanced science, medicine and education. New York hospitals reach these heights while simultaneously serving a high percentage of patients with special needs far exceeding the national average. These patients include the elderly, the disabled, the chronically ill, and the poor, and it is not only the health care we all receive that will be affected by the proposed cuts. New York's economy will also be hard hit due to the State and city's dependence on its large and complex health care system.

Cuts in the formulas for Medicare, graduate medical education, and disproportionate share payments, would create unacceptably severe reductions in payments for New York's hospitals. This is because indirect medical education and disproportionate share payments are based on percentages of overall medical payment rates. As the overall Medicare payment rates are reduced as a result of smaller inflation adjustments, payments for graduate medical education and disproportionate share are automatically reduced and their rates of growth are slowed. Thus, further reductions in graduate medical education and disproportionate share would amount to double cuts, which our hospitals, most of which are operating below the break-even point, simply cannot withstand.

Changes in Medicaid will also have a drastic impact on New York's health care providers, especially those providing long-term care. New York has received one of the lowest rates of Medicaid payment increases among the States. New York's nursing homes could lose 25 percent of the money necessary for their survival by 2002.

According to the Health Care Association of New York, New York State, with 7 percent of the Nation's population, would take 11 percent of the cuts in Medicare and Medicaid. New York City, with 2.9 percent of the Nation's population, would absorb 6.5 percent of these cuts, more than double its fair share. Over 7 years, cuts in Medicare and Medicaid payments to hospitals would cost New York State $20 billion and New York City $12 billion. Funding for long-term care and personal health services would decline by $11 billion in New York State and $7 billion in New York City.

The proposed cuts will dangerously damage health care services, but that is not all. The cuts would wreak havoc with New York's many health care workers, their employment and their income. New York City will lose 107,000 jobs, and New York State may stand to lose well over 200,000 jobs. Any budget plan must include everyone having to do their part to balance the budget, but I argue that any budget plan must treat all States equally.

I think the cuts to Medicare and Medicaid and the impact on hospitals and health care systems across the country is deeply disturbing. The disproportionate impact of these cuts on New York State and New York City is unacceptable. Protecting New York State's and New York City's hospitals, health care providers and medical educators helps to safeguard the health of our Nation while preserving the health and economic well-being of one of our country's most densely populated cities and States.

□ 2245

As the budget negotiations continue, I ask my colleagues to join me in fighting to reduce these cuts. I am proud to have voted against the reconciliation bill and I will oppose any future budget that cuts with the injustice and scope of the Republican proposal.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

JUSTIFICATION FOR SENDING UNITED STATES TROOPS TO BOSNIA

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. WELDON] is recognized for 60 minutes.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Speaker, I rise this evening to discuss an issue that is going to confront us for the next several weeks in regard to the President's intention to send 20,000 to 25,000 of America's sons and daughters to the Balkans to participate in living up to the terms of the agreement just recently initialed in Dayton, OH.

Mr. Speaker, like many Americans across the country, I sat before my television set last evening and listened intently as President Clinton gave his justification to the American people for sending ground troops into Bosnia. Mr. Speaker, 2 weeks from tomorrow I was invited to the Pentagon, where I had breakfast with Secretary Perry and the leadership of the Joint Chiefs, including General Shalikashvili, where they made a personal case to me and other Members of the Committee on National Security as to why we should commit our troops to Bosnia in light of the pending peace agreement, which had not yet been initialed.

Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to respond, first of all, to President Clinton's speech, because parts of it bothered me greatly, and to lay the foundation for a hearing which our committee will hold on Thursday when again Secretary Perry, General Shalikashvili, and Secretary Christopher will come before the House Committee on National Security and again make the case to us to support the President's efforts.

Mr. Speaker, as someone who has been on the Committee on National Security for 9 years and who chairs the Research and Development Subcommittee, I am vitally interested in any place or any time that we send our troops into harm's way, whether it be the time that we sent them to Desert Storm, or Haiti, or other operations around the world.

Mr. Speaker, I was taken aback by some of the comments President Clinton made in the speech yesterday evening and I have to respond to them, and this is the only opportunity where I can deal with them in a lengthy and involved format. I want to respond to three specific points that the President made to the American people and to Members of this body.

I want to, first of all, respond to his assertion that those who disagree with him are isolationists and want us to come back into our own borders and not be a part of the world community. The second issue I want to take exception to is the way that he characterized the moral argument involved in getting involved in Bosnia. And the third is the President's comparison of Bosnia and our potential involvement there to Haiti and Somalia as well as Desert Storm. Then I want to get into my own specific concerns relative to a potential vote that we may take in this body a week or two from now.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, let me respond to the contention made by President Clinton that those who may oppose his policy here are isolationists. Mr. Speaker, the fact is that for the past 3 years, a strong bipartisan voice in this body and the other body have voted repeatedly, have signed letters, have sent messages to the White House and the administration that we want to be a part of the process of helping achieve peace in the Balkans. And, in fact, Mr. Speaker, I, like many of my colleagues in this body today, would support the presence of the United States in a somewhat limited way in the Balkans, as we have done repeatedly over the last 3 years.

After all, Mr. Speaker, there were many Members of both the majority and minority parties that supported the President's use of our Air Force in terms of the air strikes. Many of us have supported logistical support to provide food and clothing and humanitarian support and relief to the people of the Balkans. So time and again over the past 3 years Members of this body and the other body have made it clear that we want to be involved.

And, in fact, Mr. Speaker, as I said to the Secretary of Defense 2-weeks ago, I am prepared to support American troops in Bosnia tomorrow, but not on the ground. And, Mr. Speaker, that is the key issue that President Clinton completely ignored last evening. He made it appear as if we are in disagreement with him on his policy; that, therefore, we must not want the United States to be involved at all, and that is absolutely totally wrong. I think it was really shortsighted of the President to make that statement to the American people.

In fact, what I proposed to Secretary Perry, I think, would be supported by many of our colleagues in this body; and that is, why should America have to put 20,000 to 25,000 ground troops in between three warring factions that have been at war not for 4 years and not for one decade but for decades and decades and centuries and centuries?

Why should the European countries, who are the bordering nations to Bosnia, not step up with that ground support force and let the United States involvement be what we do very well; airlift, sealift, air strikes, command and control, intelligence gathering and monitoring, and all the other ancillary support to make this mission a success?

In fact, Mr. Speaker, when the President talks about a U.S. commitment of 20,000 to 25,000 troops, he is not being realistic with the American people nor is he being realistic with our colleagues in this body. As a matter of fact, right now, Mr. Speaker, we have an estimated 15,000 troops who are providing support services in the theater around Bosnia.

These services range from airlift and sealift to intelligence gathering, to all kinds of functions that they have been assigned by the Pentagon, just to name a few of the assignments that our military is currently involved in in the European theater, and this is, by the way, not complete. We have Operation Able Sentry going on right now. We have Operation Deny Flight. We have Operation Provide Province, Operation Sharp Guard, and Operation Provide Comfort. All of those operations are, today, involving American troops in the theater that the President is talking about sending ground troops in.

In fact, along with the ground troops that President Clinton is proposing, we are going to have a carrier, the America, off the coast. We are going to have Navy pilots and Navy personnel available. So our total support forces, besides the 20,000 to 25,000 ground troops, is going to be somewhere between 13,000 and 17,000.

When I met with the Secretary 2 weeks ago, I tried to pin he and General Shalikashvili to a specific number, and I will do that again this Thursday. I asked them, how many other U.S. troops will be involved in this effort? They would not give me a specific answer. To the best of my ability, I have determined that number will be somewhere above 15,000. So when the President goes before the American people as he did last night and says, I want to send 20,000 troops in, that is our commitment, what he should have said is, I want to have 35,000 or perhaps 40,000 U.S. troops involved in the theater of operation that includes, as our overall mission, Bosnia and the maintaining of the peace agreement that was initiated in Dayton.

Now, many of us in this body feel that what the President should have done is said we will provide that support in the form of airlift and sealift and use of our aircraft for attacks, if necessary, on selected sites, and command and control and intelligence gathering, but should not have had American troops placed in harm's way in an area of the world so far away from our shore and which many of us feel that we do not have a direct national interest. Many of us feel that it is unconscionable that those countries that directly surround the Balkans are only putting in small tokens of troops.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we have not been able to get exact counts. These numbers have varied. But I went through the foreign media, through our FBIS reports we get, that we can request in our offices, to try to get a feel for what other countries are committing in the way of troops to this operation. I think it is important for our colleagues and for the American public to understand exactly what those commitments are and what, if any, strings are being attached, so that, when the President speaks about 25 nations being involved, we know really what he means and what these countries are actually saying.

Great Britain, the United Kingdom, always our staunch ally, is in fact going to put up the largest complement of troops besides the United States. The Most recent number we have is about 13,000 troops compared to our 20,000. Now, Great Britain is very close to the Balkans, certainly much closer than the United States, and is obviously a part of the European theater. So you would expect them to put in place a large presence of military forces.

Let us go to Germany. Here I have a problem, Mr. Speaker. The United States and the President are committing 20,000 ground troops and the ancillary support troops that I have just talked about numbering at least 15,000. The Germans have said that, and get this, Mr. Speaker, subject to the Bundestag's approval. In other words, we do not have to approve what the President wants to do in our Congress. He can send the troops on his own, without our vote of approval. But in Germany their commitment to send their troops will be predicated upon the support of the Bundestag.

And how many troops are the Germans going to send in? Not 13,000, not 10,000, not 5,000, but 4,000. So Germany, right next to the Balkans, is going to send a total of 4,000 troops to the Balkans as their part of this operation.

Now, quoting the minister in a German publication, the defense minister, who spoke on November 22, he went on to say that these 4,000 troops would be involved, and I quote, in terms of being logistical units, engineers, medical orderlies, transport units, helicopters, and aircraft to secure the airspace. Where is the commitment for the ground troops in the middle of the hostile parties? This is Germany's commitment.

Then we go on to France. I remind our colleagues, Mr. Speaker, that France has a very real threat from the spread of the Bosnian operation, and France is very near and close to the proximity of the Balkan conflict and you would expect would be willing to put up a sizable amount of soldiers for this operation. France's commitment is currently listed in a most recent French publication of November 22 as 7,500 soldiers. This would be a part of the overall NATO deployment, but 7,500 soldiers. This is the same France that is only putting up 7,500 soldiers to our 20,000 that denied the United States the ability to fly our planes over France when we were going after Mu'ammar Qadhafi when Ronald Reagan was the President, in response to attacks he had made on American citizens. So France's commitment right now is listed at 7,500.

Let us go to Spain, another European country. Let us see what Spain is talking about committing. This is from a radio network in Spanish in Madrid. Mr. Suarez Pertierra said it would be a tactical group of some 1,250 soldiers. So, while America is putting in 20,000 to 25,000 ground troops, Spain in talking about sending 1,250 soldiers to this operation.

Let us look at Sweden. Sweden, another European country that obviously has an interest in seeing peace in that part of the world, has said that it will be part of a Nordic brigade that would have 900 Swedes. Now, Sweden also has a condition placed on its commitment.

And that condition is that the United Nations shall be financially responsible for this operation. So, Sweden is saying, "Yes, we will go, but you pay our bill." I did not hear that said on the part of our commitment. We are going to pay the entire bill.

Mr. Speaker, my guess is that this will end up much like Haiti. We not only paid for our expenses, but we will end up paying for the housing costs, the feeding, and logistical support for a number of other countries, all of which will be borne by the American taxpayers. But Sweden's troop commitment is right now 900.

Then we go to Austria, and I will quote a news source from Vienna Television Network, November 21, where there is a quotation from the leadership of Austria about their commitment. Their consideration is for sending a force of 200 to 250 men. It goes on to say, quote, "Volunteers, of course. No one is going to be forced to go into this." Mr. Speaker, 200 to 250 are going to be volunteers and they will not serve as combat troops. They will be there as a transport unit.

Let us go on and talk about Italy, another European country that is expected to be a part of this operation. Look at what Italy's contribution will be. Initially, Italy balked when the press said that they heard rumors that 2,100 men would be sent, but now there is confirmation that the form will be 2,100. But Italian news media sources also go on to say that actually, and I quote, "Parliament still has to give its approval to send out Italian troops."

So, the United States Congress will not have the ability to approve the President's sending of not 20,000, but perhaps 35,000 troops into that theater; we will have the German Bundestag approve the German troops going in, and the Italian Parliament approve the Italian troops going in, but we will not have that ability in this country. The total commitment of Italy will be 2,100 men.

The Netherlands, another European country. The Netherlands, according to its population, is perhaps contributing a larger element that we would expect. The Netherlands Cabinet wants to make a decision about sending 2,000 troops to help with the peace accord.

Then we have Denmark. A Danish battalion is set to leave on January 8 as part of the NATO operation and they are talking about 807 men going from Denmark.

Mr. Speaker, these are not my reports. These are all sources that I will provide to anyone in this body in terms of what our European allies in NATO are going to commit to this operation.

Our point, Mr. Speaker, is not one of isolation. We want to be the leader of NATO, and we know we are. We continue to help our NATO allies every day. We have a strong presence in the European countries I have just mentioned. We have military bases there and Navy units deployed in the vicinity of those countries. We will be there for them.

But, Mr. Speaker, Bosnia is largely a European problem and many of us in this body feel that while the United States must play a role, and that role can be air strikes, air support, sea life support, command and control, intelligence gatherings, and all the other logistical help that we should not have to go beyond that and put 20,000 young American sons and daughters in the middle of what could be a very hostile environment; what certainly has been a very hostile environment.

So when the President talks, as he did last night, about isolationism, the President is totally, absolutely wrong. It is a slap in the face to every Member of this body that he would say his opponents are isolationists. In fact, many of us have said all along that we want us to be involved; we just do not want the United States to go it alone. That is what we think this President has gotten us into.

My opinion is the President, to some extent, put his foot in his mouth earlier their year when he said to the NATO allied leaders, "I will put ground troops in Bosnia if we get a peace agreement." What he should have said is, "I will make a commitment," and left that up to the final negotiations in Dayton. He did not do that.

Mr. Speaker, while the negotiations were going on, all of us in this body knew what was going to come out of those negotiations, and that was going to be taking the President up on his word, and that is to send 20,000 ground troops into Bosnia. That should never have been the negotiating position of this country in terms of our NATO involvement.

It certainly is not the position of this Member, and I know many of my colleagues, that we should not be involved, nor should we be isolationists.

The second issue I want to take up with the President is the way he characterized the morality argument here. He somehow tries to make the case that the Members of Congress who perhaps question what he wants to do here are not concerned about babies being killed, about ethnic cleaning, and about women being raped.

Mr. Speaker, nothing could be further from the truth. As a member of the Human Rights Caucus since I have been in this body, I have tirelessly, again and again, spoken out on behalf of human rights abuses. In fact, Mr. Speaker, in at least three votes in this body over the past 2 years, we have overwhelmingly told the President to lift the arms embargo so that the Bosnian people could defend themselves, so that they, in fact, could have a level playing field, so that we could stop the abuses and stop the ethnic cleaning and stop the rape and torturing.

Every time this Congress, in a strong bipartisan manner, told the President to lift the embargo, the President said, "no." Yet last night on national TV, the President tells the American people that he is really that one concerned about these kids being killed and these women being raped and the ethnic cleaning.

Well, Mr. Speaker, what were we doing the past 2 or 3 years with all of these votes and these letters and these issues where we came forward and said, "You have got to do something, Mr. President, about what is happening in the Balkans," and he did nothing. Now, all of a sudden the solution to all of these problems is to spend 20,000 of our kids into the Balkans on the ground in the middle of this controversy.

Mr. Speaker, there is absolutely no justification for the President to make the statement that he made last night that he is the only one concerned with the moral issue of why we should be involved. There are steps that we could have and should have taken over the last 2 years to help even the playing field in the Balkans and we did not do it. Not because the Congress would not act, but because the President would not listen.

These were not just Republicans speaking. These were Republicans and Democrats. Some of the most eloquent leaders on lifting the arms sanctions and the arms embargo were on the minority side of the aisle; not just on the Republican side.

What really bothered me about the speech that the President made last night, at the end, Mr. Speaker, was when he alluded to a conversation that he had with the Pope. I really thought it was grasping for straws when President Clinton basically said, The Pope told me to do it.

Mr. Speaker, I have the highest respect for the Vatican and for the Holy Father and for the leadership he provides for the world's Catholics. But, Mr. Speaker, to use a comment that supposedly have been attributed to the Pope as the political justification boggles my mind.

As one of our colleagues on the House floor said today, perhaps the President will tell us that he is going to change his stand on abortion, because I am sure the Holy Father talked to him about the sanctity of life, but I do not see President Clinton following the advice of the Pope on that issue, yet quoting the Pope in terms of taking this action in the Balkans.

The third issue I want to take exception with the President last night, Mr. Speaker, deals with his trying to compare the Balkans to what happened in Desert Storm and what happened in Haiti and Somalia.

First of all, Mr. Speaker, there are few, if any, similarities. In Desert Storm we have a figure who was destined to take over a major part of the world and threaten the security of not just one country but a freedom-loving people in the Middle East, including the State of Israel, and threatening to create anarchy in that part of the world.

President Bush went to great lengths to line up allied support. Mr. Speaker, remember, that the cost of Desert Storm was not just in American lives and dollars, because as every Member, every one of our colleagues knows, the entire cost of Desert Storm, over $52 billion, was borne by those nations that benefited from our involvement. It was not a case where the United States went over and paid the bill and enticed people to come in by saying, "We will pay your soldiers and provide them food and give them shelter, just be a part of the team."

Mr. Speaker, in Desert Storm the parties who benefited most provided the dollars. And, yes, we did have an interest and, yes, we responded. And, yes, President Bush came to this Congress and asked for us to have an up-or-down vote in both bodies.

I might add, Mr. Speaker, not one Member of the Democratic leadership at that time stood up and spoke for nor voted for the effort to send our troops into Desert Storm. Not one. Yet I am sure when we have a debate on this floor, every one of those Members will get up and support President Clinton's actions. There is irony in that statement.

The President compared it to Haiti. Mr. Speaker, Haiti is not turning out to be the success that he promised. What has happened is we have spent about $2 billion of the U.S. taxpayers' dollars, and while the President has boasted about the other countries being involved, when he fails to tell the American people is that we paid for the bulk of their housing, their food, and their allowance support, subsistence support, to come to Haiti to be a part of that operation.

So basically they were brought in because America agreed to foot the bill. The U.S. taxpayers agreed to foot the bill. And whether or not we have been successful in Haiti is still undetermined. There have been killings and assassinations down there on a regular basis. And many of us predict Haiti will go right back to the way it was once we have our presence totally removed from that country.

Let us talk about Somalia, because perhaps here is what scares me the most, Mr. Speaker. Somalia is probably that area where we have been involved militarily that I think causes certainly me and many of our colleagues to feel most uncertain and concerned about what President Clinton wants to do in Bosnia. I remember well, Mr. Speaker, a meeting in mid-September, held in one of the largest meeting rooms in the basement of this building, when Secretary of Defense Aspin and Secretary Warren Christopher came into a meeting room filled with Members of Congress only. There were about 300 House and Senate Members there, after we had lost 18 young Americans who had been shot down over Mogadishu and had their bodies dragged through the streets because we did not have the backup troop support to go in and rescue them. When Les Aspin was asked why this happened, he eventually acknowledged that the commanding officer of the Somalian operation had in August requested additional backup support for our troops in that theater but that he and the administration denied that support. When asked why, Secretary Aspin said it was because of the hostile political environment inside the beltway, the first time since Vietnam that a political armchair decision in Washington affected military action in another part of the world.

Mr. Speaker, I can guarantee you this, as a member of the Committee on National Security, President Clinton is not going to repeat what he did in Somalia. If he, in fact, is successful in sending 20,000 ground troops into Bosnia, which I am certain he will be, whether or not we have a vote, he has already said he is sending the troops in, we are going to be very careful and we are going to be strident that this President is not going to call the political shots of what our military officers do in that theater. Because if our troops are committed by this Commander in Chief, then those calls have to be made by the commanding officer in charge of the theater of operation in Europe.

Commander Joulwon who has the highest respect of most every Member of this body who knows him and the military leadership who serves under him should and will be making those calls. And the one thing that we will be focusing on, since we will probably not be able to stop the President from asserting troops in Bosnia, will be to make sure that General Joulwon gets every bit of support that he needs to maintain the safety of our troops. We want to make sure that there is no second guessing at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, as there was in Somalia, saying, General Joulwon, we cannot send in more troops, we cannot send you more equipment because it is not the right political climate in Washington. If this President follows through on his commitment to send 20,000 ground troops into Bosnia, then this President better be prepared to let General Joulwon call the shots in terms of what support he needs to protect our troops, even though many of us in this body, including myself, have great hesitation with any ground troops going into Bosnia whatsoever.

Mr. Speaker, as I said a moment ago, most of us have resigned ourselves to the fact that we cannot stop the troops from being sent over there. The President is in fact the Commander in chief of our military. I acknowledge that. He has that function. He has the ability to commit our troops to any part of the world, even though twice in my lifetime, it has been this Congress, under Democrats, who have cut off funding for our military as a way to bring our troops back home from Vietnam and from Somalia. So this President will in fact send our troops. Whether we have a vote or not here will not matter. He has already ignored the will of the Congress in terms of lifting the arms embargo over the past 2 years, and he has already ignored the will of the Congress three times in the last 2 months. Because three times since August, Mr. Speaker, this body and the other body have taken specific votes to say to the President, do not commit ground troops. Aerial support, logistical support, other types of aerial attacks and other types of support that we can provide, okay, but do not commit ground troops.

And those votes were overwhelmingly bipartisan. They were not Republicans. There were Democrats and Republicans together. What did President Clinton do? For the past 3 months he has ignored those votes. Even last week, the week before, before the agreement was initialed in Dayton, OH, this body again went on record saying, Mr. Speaker, do not commit ground troops. He is going to send ground troops whether we have another vote or not. But what we will do in this body is, we will make sure that we do not have a repeat of the Clinton Somalia debacle where American kids who were sent to a foreign country are allowed to be put at risk and, in the case of Somalia, 18 of them coming home in body bags after their bodies were dragged through the streets of downtown Mogadishu.

With every ounce of energy in my body, Mr. Speaker, that is not going to happen this time. The President may have his way in sending the troops in, but we who are on the Committee on National Security and those of us in the bipartisan manner in this Congress will work to make sure that our troops are given every possible means of support that they need with no second-guessing coming from the bureaucracy inside the Beltway here, letting our military leadership that has been assigned to this operation, in this case General Joulwon, make those decisions and have the full support he needs.

Mr. Speaker, there are many other articles that I want to put in the RECORD and will do so either tonight or in special orders I will be taking out this week from news sources around the world where those people inside of the Balkans are questioning this agreement. We have to be aware of what the leadership in those countries are saying, not just what the three signatories to that agreement out in Dayton said, because they are three individuals. The question is, do they in fact represent the majority of the people in the Balkans? Are the people going to adhere? Are they going to cooperate with this peacekeeping force? If you read some of the FBIS articles that have come out over the past several days, I have grave concerns.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask to enter into the RECORD an article that was printed in the Belgrade Nasa Borba in Serbo-Croatian, its November 22 edition, relative to the political parties and the peace accord and statements specifically that Serbian Radical Party President Vojislav Seselj exclaimed, and I quote, "The biggest betrayal of the Serbian nation has just been committed."

In stark opposition to the prevailing positive reactions to the agreement, Serbian Radical Party President Vojislav Seselj, according to BETA, exclaimed that "the biggest betrayal of the Serbian nation has just been committed."

I ask to include in the RECORD articles, again from FBIS reports, quoting a leading Bosnian Serb official Momcilo Krajisnik in terms of his refusal to sign on to the accord and explaining his opposition and how this agreement is a sellout of the Serbs.

[FBIS Transcribed Text, Nov. 21, 1995]
PLAN "NOT ACCEPTED" BY SERBS

SARAJEVO (AFP).—A senior Bosnian Serb official warned late Tuesday [21 November] that the peace accord agreed in Dayton, Ohio does not satisfy "even a minimum" of their demands.

Quoted by the Bosnian Serb official media, "parliamentary speaker" Momcilo Krajisnik said: "The agreement that has been reached does not satisfy even a minimum of our interests. Our delegation has not accepted the plan and we were unanimous on that."

I also ask to include articles, again from the FBIS reports, from the Banja Luka Srpska Televizija, a TV station in Banja Luka, relative to the explanation of the accord and saying that, "The people, the Serbs are not intimidated by the Dayton agreement, they are not intimidated by the Dayton agreement in terms of what it is going to do to their nation."

Further go on to quote in the same article, we will never give up Sarajevo, dead or alive, let everyone know that.

If I were able to talk to both Clinton and Christopher like our delegation that went to negotiate, I would tell them not to play with the Serbs.

It goes on to further say, there is no Serb who would leave this and leave the Serb land behind. And it further goes on to say, they will not be frightened of the signatures from Dayton, speaking of the Serbs in Bosnia.

SERBS IN SARAJEVO AWAIT "EXPLANATION" OF ACCORD

(Report by Draga Grubic)

The signing of the Dayton peace agreement has recently engrossed the citizens of Serb Sarajevo as the event on which they pinned their hope and survival. Now that the results of the talks have been revealed, the people of Sarajevo expect official explanation of the agreement that is to determine their destiny as well as the future of the second largest Serb town in former Yugoslavia. Neither the joint Croat-Muslim enemy, NATO jets, nor rapid reaction mortars managed to send the locals into exile and they are not intimidated by the Dayton agreement either.

[FBIS Translated Text, Nov. 23, 1995]
EXCERPT FROM "SARAJEVO SERBS OPPOSE DAYTON PEACE PLAN"

[Unidentified woman] What, to give them Sarajevo? It is Serb, and no one else's. We will never give up Sarajevo, dead or alive, let everyone know that. If I were able to talk to both Clinton and Christopher, like our delegation that went to negotiate, I would tell them not to play with the Serbs.

* * * * *
[Unidentified man] There is no Serb who would leave this, and leave the Serb land behind. I have buried 11 of my dearest here over the last year, and now I am expected to leave them behind. No way, God forbid.

[Correspondent] The population of the second largest Serb town in former Yugoslavia has not been driven away by the combined Muslim-Croat enemy, by NATO aircraft, or Rapid Reaction Force shells. And they will not be frightened of the signatures from Dayton. [end recording]

Then going on to an article that appeared in the November 27 FBIS report dealing with NATO, warning Karadzic about his bloodbath threat and NATO having to threaten him if in fact Karadzic was arrested for war crimes.

(Report by Angus MacKinnon)

BRUSSELS, Nov. 27 (AFP).—NATO on Monday [27 November] warned Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic that any attempt to intimidate the peace force the alliance plans to send to Bosnia would be greeted with an "extremely robust" response.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, another editorial, written by Bela Jodal, "Compulsory Hope," in a Budapest publication. This is a very important question he asks.

"Will it be the U.S. troops who left Somalia due to difficulties which were smaller than what can be expected in the Balkans?"

EDITORIAL DOUBTS FUTURE OF BOSNIAN PEACE ACCORD

* * * * *
Will it be the U.S. troops who left Somalia due to difficulties which were much smaller than what can be expected in the Balkans?

Mr. Speaker, the key question we have to ask is, is what we are about to do and what this President is about to do in America's best interest? More importantly, Mr. Speaker, we, as elected Representatives of approximately 600,000 people each across this country, have to be able to ask ourselves the ultimate question: Can we go into that family's home when their son or daughter or mother or father or brother or sister are sent home as a casualty of this conflict and be able to justify the job and the mission that they did?

I am a strong supporter of our military, Mr. Speaker, and proudly so, and I will be a strong supporter if the President deploys them there. But I do not support the President's policy, and I do not believe he has made the case.

Let me say in closing, Mr. Speaker, in coming to my conclusions 2 weeks ago I had to rely on a friend of mine who has been in Sarajevo for 3 years. His name is John Jordan. He is a Rhode Island volunteer firefighter. He went over to Sarajevo because he heard that the fire and emergency services personnel were being abused by the military even though they were trying to serve the Croats, Serbs, Muslims, all factions. He went over to volunteer to help them. He ended up staying 3 years.

Mr. Speaker, he was featured by ABC-TV as their person of the week for the work that he did as a volunteer. He brought 50 other Americans over with him to help the Serbian fire brigade with Keenan Slimmick, who was the fire chief before he was assassinated.

John Jordan was shot twice while he was in Sarajevo. He was beaten in the chest with the blunt end of a rifle. He had concussions, shrapnel wounds, but stayed there helping all of the various people in Sarajevo get decent medical protection and protection from fires and disasters.

We sent an airlift of supplies over to him a year and a half ago. We sent three or four fire trucks, rescue equipment that had been donated from around the country, to help him perform this mission in Sarajevo of humanitarian aid to these people during the time this President did nothing to satisfy those concerns he spoke of last night.

I asked John Jordan to come down to Washington to tell me what he thought we should do. John Jordan, American citizen, after 3 years in Sarajevo, gave me the following quote, Mr. Speaker, which appeared in an AP wire story on October 22 in regard to what we are going to face in Bosnia. Every one of us in this body have to understand in a context of the quotes I have given what John Jordan said will occur there:

"We're going to face some very, very ugly, heavily armed, prone-to-violence people who are totally unafraid of the United States," he said. "I've had more than one Serb commander say to me, 'I really wish the U.S. instead of the French were running the airport. If we can just get enough of you in one place at one time, we can kill 200 or 300 of you, you'll be out of this war forever, and you won't be a problem anymore. You'll leave just like you left Beirut.'"

Mr. Speaker, that is a question we have to wrestle with. Are our kids heading for another Beirut? I hope not, Mr. Speaker, and while I would like to think that this Congress would have the same ability that the Bundestag is going to have, that the other parliaments, like Italy, are going to have in approving of sending in of their troops, we are not going to have that because our President said our troops are going with or without the support of this Congress and with or without the support of the American people.

But, Mr. Speaker, I can assure you of one thing. He may send the troops, but we will make sure that we do not have a repeat of the debacle that occurred in Somalia because our kids are not going to be shortchanged, there is not going to be some political decision determining what we will or will not send once they are over there. If the commitment is made and the troops are sent, then they are going to get every bit of support that this body and our committees in Congress can muster to make sure that our troops are protected.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask our colleagues to consider what is about to confront us both this week and next week if, in fact, we have a vote. I am considering legislation right now that I may offer as an amendment if, in fact, we have an up-or-down vote on Bosnia, but again I would close by saying the vote is not really going to matter, Mr. Speaker, because the dice have already been rolled, and the President has already made up his mind, the troops have already been committed, and those of us who have concerns are not isolationists, we are not people who are immoral, and we are not people who think that there is not a proper role for America to help provide security throughout the world. We just question the way that we got to where we are and the decision of this President to put 20,000 kids in harm's way between these warring factions that have been at each other's throats not for 4 years, and not for one decade, but decade after decade and century after century.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

WASHINGTON, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1995

No. 188

Senate

The Senate met at 10:30 a.m., and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

We praise You, dear God. You are the same yesterday, today, and forever. Your love is constant and never changes. You have promised never to leave or forsake us. Our confidence is in You and not ourselves. We waver, fall, and need Your help. We come to You in prayer not trusting in our goodness, but solely in Your grace. You are our joy when we get down, our strength when we are weak, our courage when we vacillate. You are our security in a world of change and turmoil. Even when we forget You in the rush of life, You never forget us. When we feel distant from You, it was we who moved, not You. Thank You for Your faithfulness.

Filled with wonder, love, and gratitude, we commit this day to live for You and by the indwelling power of Your spirit. Control our minds and give us Your discernment. Fill us with Your sensitivity to people and their needs and give us empathy in caring for the people who are troubled. Give us boldness to take a stand for what You have revealed is the application of Your righteousness and justice for our Nation.

Thank You for the privilege of living this day to the fullest. In the all powerful name of our Lord. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able Senator from Idaho, Senator CRAIG, is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, today there will be a period of morning business until the hour of 12:30 with Senators permitted to speak for up to 5 minutes each. The following exceptions would be Senator DORGAN, or designee, for 45 minutes; and Senator THOMPSON, or designee, for 45 minutes.

Following morning business the Senate will recess from 12:30 to 2:15 for the weekly policy conferences to meet. At 2:15 today the majority leader has stated that the Senate will begin consideration of calendar No. 247, which is S. 1396, the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995. Rollcall votes are, therefore, possible during today's session of the Senate.

Mr. President, seeing no person here wishing to speak in morning business, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAIG). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KYL. I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business for up to 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KYL. I thank the Chair.

SENDING UNITED STATES TROOPS TO BOSNIA

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I wanted to speak this morning in response to President Clinton's address to the Nation last night regarding the sending of American troops to Bosnia. I think the President made a strong case for support for his position, but I do not think that he made a strong enough case to justify sending American ground troops to Bosnia. I would like to address that point this morning because, obviously, in the Senate and in the House we are going to begin a debate which could last a couple of weeks here. After there are hearings, after there are briefings, presumably we will be voting on the issue, and I think it is important for us to begin to lay out the various issues, to get response from the American people, to discuss the matter among ourselves, and then be able to make an informed judgment.

I would note that in checking this morning I found that since we began keeping track of it in my office, we have received 400 calls against sending American troops to Bosnia and 6 calls in favor. And I spent a fair amount of time during the Thanksgiving recess speaking with groups in Arizona and appearing on various radio programs. In each case, the response was similar to the one which I just indicated. That is not dispositive, but I think it is an important indicator of the fact that the American people do not sense there is a sufficient degree of interest here for the United States to participate.

It seems to me there are two basic criteria which need to be satisfied in order to justify the sending of a large number of American ground troops into a situation where, as the President and the Secretary of Defense have both acknowledged, there is certainly a danger of some casualties.

The first criterion which has traditionally been applied is that there is a national security interest of the United States at stake. Sometimes it has been expressed as a vital national security interest.

The second is more operational. It generally divides into about three sub-categories: that there is a very clear and important mission; that the rules of engagement are clear and agreed to; and that there is a clear exit strategy.

Let us talk about both of those in the context of the President's remarks last night.

I did not really hear a justification for the first point, that is to say, that there is a vital U.S. national security interest involved here. I heard some talk about the fact that it was important for the United States as a key participant in NATO to be involved in NATO operations, and I also heard that we wanted to prevent conflict from spreading throughout Europe. Both of those have a national security element to them, but neither goes directly to the question of vital U.S. national security interests. If, for example, someone could make the case that war in Europe was about to break out, while American lives may not be directly in jeopardy, I think few of us would deny that vital interests of the United States would be at stake sufficient for us to commit to not only ground troops but other kinds of military operations to try to prevent that. But that case is not made here.

The possibility that there will be some additional civil strife in Bosnia does not suggest the conflict is going to engulf Europe. The situation is very different than it was before World War I. The Austro-Hungarian Empire no longer exists. The conditions are simply not the same. So it seems to me a real stretch to say there may be some additional conflict break out, that that would necessarily engulf Europe in war and therefore at this point the United States needs to send these troops in order to conclude that. That is just not a credible argument.

As to the argument about NATO, it seems to me that either NATO is a strong alliance or it is not. I believe it is a strong alliance. If the President is suggesting that the difference between NATO continuing to exist as a strong alliance and its complete failure is whether or not 20,000 of the 60,000 ground troops in this operation are U.S. troops, if that is the difference between NATO existing and not existing, then NATO is in much worse shape than I thought it was, and I think, frankly, it just is not true.

NATO is strong. And since we are providing a great deal of the support for the existing NATO operation, and will continue to do so under this peace process which has been negotiated, in terms of the seapower that we have projected, the airpower, the reconnaissance, the intelligence, obviously, monetary support that we will be providing and material support and a lot of other things, since we have been doing those things and will continue to do them as part of the NATO operation, it does not seem to me that we are subject to criticism that we are not supporting the NATO operation. It is just a question of whether some of the ground troops are going to be U.S. troops or not.

My understanding is that the British and French and perhaps others in NATO insisted that part of the ground contingent be United States troops. That is not a justification for saying that therefore we must go. I would have to ask our allies, why? Why is it that you insist that not only do we pay for most of the operation and that we send our ships and our cargo planes and our jet fighters and reconnaissance planes, and all of the other equipment and personnel that we have in the region, in addition to all of that, a necessary component of this is that 20,000 of the 60,000 ground troops be U.S. troops? Why is that so essential? Is it because the Europeans do not have another 20,000 troops? No. That is not it. It is because they want us to be in the operation on the ground. And my question there is, why? Why is it that that is so essential? If this matter is so important to the Europeans, then it seems to me that they would pull out all of the stops to enforce this peace settlement including providing the necessary ground troops to make it work. And surely among all of the NATO countries there are 60,000 ground troops available.

So one has to answer the question I think, why do our European allies insist on this? I cannot think of a satisfactory answer.

So back to the first criterion. Is there a vital U.S. national security interest? The answer is no, and the President has not made the case for it.

Let me contrast this with the Persian Gulf war because a lot of people have tried to say that, like the Persian Gulf war, we need to follow the lead of the President and accede to his request for ground troops. The Persian Gulf war and this situation, it seems to me, are relatively close cases, both of them, but one falls on the side of supporting the operation and the other falls on the side of not supporting it. And here is why. Let us say on a scale of 1 to 10, vital national security interest being 10, Pearl Harbor created a vital national security interest for the United States to be involved in World War II. No question. That is a 10.

The Persian Gulf war was a situation in which most of our oil, a majority of our oil, came from the Persian Gulf. Its supplies were threatened. A foreign country had invaded another country, was occupying it and was threatening to invade other countries. At that point, it was important for the world community to come together and say to this aggressor, "No. Aggression will not pay. We will remove you from Kuwait, take you back to where you came from. You have got to stop threatening all the people whose oil supplies come from that region."

That is not the same as Pearl Harbor, but clearly vital U.S. interests were involved. And, in fact, worldwide, countries came together, even other Arab countries came together, in an effort to stop that aggression. And I guess on a scale of 1 to 10, I would say that is a 6 or 7. As I said, that is a much closer call than a Pearl Harbor, but still justified our action. And a majority of our people and the Congress supported President Bush's decision to engage in military operations against Iraq.

This case in Bosnia, I submit, falls on the other side of the line, if you want to say five is the middle ground. It seems to me there is only one reason why it rises to the level of maybe a three or four. That is the moral imperative.

Now, a moral imperative is not the same thing as a vital national security interest of the United States, but in certain instances it may call upon the United States to do something. That is why the United States has been involved in various humanitarian missions. It is why we went into Somalia with a humanitarian mission to begin with. It is why we were not justified in changing that mission as it later was changed.

The United States has done lots of things for a lot of people around the world in a humanitarian way for moral reasons. In addition to the humanitarian support that we provided, we also have supported some military operations in support of the humanitarian effort. But that is different from saying that in addition to air operations and sea operations and humanitarian operations and peacekeeping operations, in addition to all those things the United States must send 20,000 ground troops to keep the peace that has been negotiated at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

So, yes, there is a moral imperative. That is what makes this a relatively hard case. But it does not rise to the level of a vital national security interest. It says that we ought to be doing something. And we are doing something, and we will continue to do more.

I submit that the one thing that we should have been doing a long time ago is still missing from this peace agreement, and that is ensuring that Bosnia can defend itself. For a long time many of us in this body have argued for arming the Bosnians, the Bosnian Moslems, so they can defend themselves. We always believed that a rough parity would eventually be created sufficient to cause the Serbs to come to the bargaining table.

What happened when Croatia, after about 3 years, was able to build up its military forces sufficient to retake some of the territory that the Serbs had taken from them? At that point, the Serbs became defensive rather than offensive in their military operations. They also came to the bargaining table because they understood that it was a losing game for them, that the longer they persisted, the more territory likely would be taken from them.

So a military balance of forces of some sort was, in fact, created. That is what we have sought when we said we needed to lift the arms embargo and support rearming the Bosnian Moslems so they could defend themselves. And yet that commitment is not part of this particular peace agreement. So it seems to me that the one thing that we could do in this situation we have not done in this particular peace agreement.

Turning for a moment from the vital national security interest, let us go to the other part of the equation, the second part. The mission has not been clearly defined. The rules of engagement have not yet been established. And, third, there is no exit strategy. Tony Lake, the National Security Adviser, was quoted in the newspapers yesterday—I think he made the statement Sunday—that our first mission is self-defense.

Mr. President, the way you fulfill that mission is by not sending the people in the first place. That is not a mission. That is very muddled thinking to suggest that our first mission there is self-defense.

The mission has to be stated much more clearly, and it has not been, nor have the various contingencies been defined. What happens if various kinds of military conflicts break out? We have not decided how we are going to handle those things. And that has to do also with the rules of engagement. They have been only very generally stated up to this point. As my colleague, Senator MCCAIN, has pointed out, what is really glaringly missing is any kind of an exit strategy. A 1-year timetable is not an exit strategy.

What is to prevent mission creep, and what is to define success of the mission? Most observers have said for this peacekeeping mission to really succeed, it is going to have to be a commitment of years, perhaps decades. And that gets to the next point, Mr. President.

Perhaps the primary justification that the President has given for sending American ground troops to Bosnia is that if we do not do so, the war will reignite and there will be additional suffering. In other words, if you believe in war, you vote no; if you believe in peace, you vote yes. That is a false choice, Mr. President. That is a false choice.

If this peace that has been negotiated is so fragile, if it is so fragile that the only thing between peace and war is that of the 60,000 ground troops, and 20,000 have to be Americans, then this is a peace which is bound to fail. It is not a peace of the heart. It is not a peace that has been committed to by the belligerents, but rather a convenience that has probably been forced upon the parties and is probably doomed to, if not failure, at least a very rocky road, which means a lot of casualties on the part of the peacekeepers. And that is a situation we need to take into account before we support the President's decision to send the troops.

What is it that makes the 20,000 American ground force contingent sine qua non, to use that Latin phrase, that without which this peace agreement cannot succeed? We are already providing sea power and air power and reconnaissance and intelligence and humanitarian assistance, diplomatic assistance, monetary assistance. The President has committed to some additional monetary assistance. We are already providing a lot of things to promote peace in the region.

Our European allies have said we need a ground contingent of 60,000. They are willing to support that with 40,000. What is it that makes the additional 20,000 required to be American troops? Why cannot they be European? Is the President saying that if all 60,000 are European, the agreement will fail? That is what he said in effect. What is the magic of 20,000 of those being American? "Well, America has prestige, and American prestige is necessary to enforce this agreement."

American prestige will be demonstrated every time a U.S. fighter jet passes overhead. It will be demonstrated every time you look out to sea and see one of our carriers or destroyers cruising in the Adriatic. It will be present with the diplomatic presence of the United States, the power of the U.S. Presidency and our support for NATO, and demonstrated in 100 ways.

What is it that is so magical about one-third of the ground troops being American? Sure, that will demonstrate an additional presence, but is it absolutely essential?

It is the difference between war and peace, the President says. If it is—and I doubt that it is—but if it is, then this peace is too fragile, in the first place. We already have signs that that is true with some of the Serb leaders saying in effect, no, never, that blood will be spilled, that they are not going to go along with this.

So, if the basic criterion, as the President laid out, was that there would be peace, and we would simply be implementing the peace, one question whether that condition will even exist when our troops hit the ground over there, if they do.

There has been another justification, and I think that this is perhaps one of the most difficult for us to deal with because all of us support, not only the President, but the office of the Presidency. We generally try to defer to the President and the executive branch in foreign policy matters to a large extent, anyway. But the Senate has certain constitutional prerogatives. We have the advice-and-consent prerogative. We have the ability to ratify treaties, and so on.

The President, in effect, has invited the Congress to decide whether or not to support his action or not. So I do not think there is any question that we need to make an independent judgment here of whether or not the sending of these troops is a good idea. But the argument of the President in this regard goes something as follows. Up until the time that the agreement in Dayton was initialed, we were not supposed to debate the issue because, after all, there was not anything to debate. We had not decided what to do.

Well, the reality was the President had already committed to send the 20,000 troops, but we were not supposed to debate that because the agreement was not clear yet. So we did not. We basically deferred. There were many of us here, myself included, who wanted to speak much more specifically about it, to ask a lot of questions, and perhaps to lay down some conditions for the peace agreement, but we did not do that out of deference to the President.

But now the argument goes, once the agreement was initialed, "You would be pulling the rug out from under the Presidency, indeed from under U.S. foreign policy, if you did not approve my commitment to send 20,000 American troops."

That is a catch-22, Mr. President. You cannot argue about it before the treaty is initialed and as soon as it is initialed, it is too late to argue about it. So when are we going to have the debate as to whether or not this is good policy?

It is true, if the Congress turned its back on the President at this point, there would be some embarrassment to the United States. The question we have to ask ourselves is: Is the risk of casualties and is the precedent which is being set to send these troops outweighed by some temporary embarrassment to the United States?

I submit at this point, at least I have concluded that the answer to that is no, that the Congress has to make it clear to the President that he cannot simply go around making premature commitments without the advice and consent of the Congress, commitments which some of us believe not to be wise, and then justifying the support for that on the basis that the commitment was made and, therefore, cannot be questioned anymore.

Either you consult with the Congress in advance and have some sense that you have the support of the Congress and the American people and then argue, once the commitment is made, that it is too late to argue about it, or at least I think you have been estopped, to use a legal phrase, to argue there should not be a robust debate about it after the decision has been made. My point is, there is no argument to say, "I made the commitment to send the troops and now it would be embarrassing to the United States, it would diminish the leadership role of our country if I were not backed up in that commitment," to use the President's argument.

My point is very simple. The President should have thought of that before he made the commitment. He made a commitment, and I think at this point we have to debate it.

The bottom line is this: The President has not demonstrated a vital national security interest of the United States involved, nor has there been a clear delineation of the operational aspects, its mission, the rules of engagement, and the exit strategy.

Until those cases are made, I think the President is asking too much of us to commit U.S. ground troops to this operation. Therefore, Mr. President, it would be my hope that after we have had a full debate, after there have been hearings, after there have been briefings by the administration, and after we have had an opportunity to consider within this body and the House has had an opportunity to consider it, that we would have a vote on the matter; that we be able to express ourselves either to support the President's request or to reject it.

At this point, my own view is that we reject it. I invite any debate and any rationale that can be expressed in support of the President's position. As I said, at this point, I think it is far too serious a matter for the United States Congress to support the President's request that 20,000 ground troops be sent to Bosnia, in addition to all the other things which we have already done and which we continue to do.

I close with this point. Nobody wants this tragedy to continue. Everybody wants peace to succeed. We all commend the President and those who negotiated on his behalf for this peace agreement, and I would want to do everything we could to support that agreement, short of the commitment of these ground troops. They are not the necessary ingredient to make it work. If they were, it would be destined to fail.

Mr. LEAHY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMAS). The Senator from Vermont.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN BOSNIA

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, the debate over whether the United States should contribute its troops to a NATO peacekeeping force in Bosnia will be the focus of many speeches on this floor in the coming days. It is a subject all of us have anticipated and pondered and wrestled with for some months now, and it is one of those decisions that no one likes to make. It is fraught with uncertainties and the undeniable likelihood that Americans will be injured or killed.

There will be many chances to speak on this, but having thought about it for some time and discussed it with the President and Secretary of Defense and others over the past weeks, and after listening to the President's speech last night and the responses of some of those who oppose sending troops, I want to say a few words as the debate begins.

Mr. President, even before the peace agreement was signed at Dayton, the House of Representatives passed legislation to prevent the President from deploying U.S. troops to enforce a peace agreement without the consent of Congress. I believe the President should seek the approval of Congress before sending troops to Bosnia, although I do not believe the Constitution requires it in this instance where the parties have signed a peace agreement. I felt it was both unhelpful and unnecessary for the House to pass legislation in the midst of the negotiations and before a peace agreement was signed.

But just as President Bush sought congressional approval for sending U.S. troops to the Persian Gulf—although half a million were there before approval was given—President Clinton has sought congressional approval, and there will be ample time to debate it before the formal signing of the agreement.

The decision to send Americans into harms way is the most difficult and dangerous that any President has to make. It should be done only when a compelling national interest is at stake, and when there is no other alternative.

Like many or perhaps even most Senators, the majority of my constituents, at least of those Vermonters who have contacted me, do not believe that it is in our national interest to send Americans to Bosnia. They genuinely fear another costly, drawn out quagmire like Vietnam. Some of them fought in that war, or had family members who died there. Others fear a debacle like Somalia, where in a matter of days a well-intentioned humanitarian mission became a poorly thought-out, ill-prepared peacemaking mission that ended in tragedy.

It is the President's job to convince the American people that Bosnia is not Vietnam, it is not Somalia, and that our national interests compel us to take part. He made a good start last night. There are still important questions that need answers—the President said as much himself—but I am convinced that the case for sending Americans to Bosnia can be made, and I intend to help the President make it.

Mr. President, in the past 4 years, a quarter of a million people, the vast majority defenseless civilians, have lost their lives in the former Yugoslavia. We have all read the blood curdling reports of hundreds and even thousands of people being rounded up at gunpoint and systematically executed or even buried alive.

Countless others have had their throats cut after being horribly tortured. Some have been made to eat the flesh and drink the blood of their countrymen. Thousands of women have been raped. Men have been forced to watch their wives and daughters raped and killed before their eyes. All simply because of their ethnicity, or because they lived on land others wanted for themselves.

The war has produced 2 million refugees, victims of ethnic cleansing. Hundreds of thousands more have lived in squalor for years in the rubble of what remains of their homes, without electricity, heat, or running water.

There are many, including myself, who believe that NATO should have acted much earlier and with far greater force to stop the genocide in Bosnia. I opposed the use of American ground troops to try to win the war, but we gave too much deference to those who said that airpower would never compel the Serbs to negotiate peace. NATO should have been given the authority to use unrelenting force when U.N. resolutions were violated time and again with impunity.

Our greatest collective failure was to put the United Nations in charge of a peacekeeping mission where there was no peace to keep, and when it was unwilling or unable to back up its own threats. These failures, which caused grievous damage to NATO's credibility, will haunt us for years to come.

But the situation has changed dramatically since then. Sustained NATO bombing, coupled with gains by the Moslem and Croat forces on the battlefield, have shown the Serbs that they cannot win what they set out to achieve. The exhaustion of the warring factions, coupled with a period of extraordinarily forceful American diplomacy, has created an unprecedented opportunity to end one of the most brutal wars the world has seen in half a century.

There should be no mistake. The credibility of the U.S. Government is deeply invested in the success of the peace agreement, and success of the agreement depends absolutely on NATO's enforcement of it. The parties signed with that understanding. At the same time, NATO's own credibility and effectiveness depend on U.S. leadership. Indeed, without U.S. participation, there will be no NATO force, and the peace agreement will almost certainly collapse.

Mr. President, since the breakup of the Soviet Union and the end of the cold war, NATO's future has been uncertain. Some have suggested that NATO has outlived its usefulness. Others say that since the rationale for NATO—deterring a Soviet invasion of Europe—is gone, NATO should become a political alliance. Still others want to quickly expand NATO to include all or most of Eastern Europe, and perhaps even some of the former Soviet republics.

I mention this because NATO's future is one of the most compelling reasons why it is essential for the United States to participate in a NATO peacekeeping force in Bosnia.

I have been among the strongest supporters of assistance to Russia and the other former Soviet States. A democratic Russia is obviously a major foreign policy priority for the United States. Despite many setbacks, there has been remarkable progress in Russia, Ukraine, and elsewhere in the former Soviet Union. But who can predict the next decade? Who can say that the fervent nationalism that remains strong there will not increase to a point when it becomes threatening? It is simply too soon to say what lies beyond this transitional period.

I have been reluctant to support the rapid expansion of NATO without a thorough discussion of the implications, for fear that it could fuel the very nationalism in Russia that we seek to discourage.

But neither am I among those who see no role for NATO today. On the contrary, the United States has an enormous stake in preserving NATO's strength. While NATO's focus will undoubtedly shift over time, the future holds too many uncertainties, and there are too many areas of potential conflict around the world where important interests of the United States and our allies are at stake, to allow NATO's strength to erode.

There is no other alliance that comes close to NATO, in power, in readiness, and in importance to the United States. NATO may not have sought the role of peacekeeper in Bosnia, but neither can it avoid it.

Mr. President, I cannot say whether this peace agreement will survive the test of time. Perhaps no one can. There is ample reason to be pessimistic, given the history of broken promises and ethnic hatred in the former Yugoslavia. Since the agreement was signed, it has become clear that no party is completely satisfied, and some have expressed grave misgivings with some aspects of it. If the agreement unravels, NATO forces may be forced to withdraw, rather than be drawn into the fighting. Even withdrawal would be risky.

But virtually everyone knowledgeable about the situation there agrees that this is by far the best chance for peace since the war began 4 years ago. We and our European allies have an immense interest in preventing the continuation of a destabilizing war in Europe, and I believe we must take this chance.

The President has taken a courageous step, a step that reflects the best of this country. Every American should consider the alternative. More mass murder. More towns shelled and burned. More starving children. More orphans. More horrifying atrocities that are reminiscent of the dark ages. If this does not compel us to help enforce an agreement we brokered to end this calamity, what further amount of inhuman brutality would it take? Should we wait for the slaughter of another 100,000, or 200,000?

The President is right. We have a moral responsibility to take part. The Europeans were unable to end the war themselves. United States leadership was not the only factor, but without it there would be no peace agreement, and the war would go on indefinitely. We should be proud of it, and stand behind it.

Some have suggested that we can lead without sending troops. I disagree. We cannot maintain our credibility as the leader of NATO if we are not prepared to assume some of the risk. We should remember that two-thirds of the NATO force will be troops from our NATO allies and others.

Mr. President, our troops are the best trained in the world, but we cannot eliminate the risks. There are 2 million landmines in Bosnia alone, hidden under mud and snow. Each one cost only a few dollars, but one false step could mean the loss of any American soldier's legs or life. The Pentagon says that landmines are among the most serious threats our troops will face there.

This is ironic, since the Pentagon has been actively lobbying against my efforts to show leadership by halting the use of antipersonnel landmines, which claim hundreds of innocent lives each week. Two-thirds of the Senate voted for it, but the Pentagon refuses. In the past few months, several of our European allies have stopped their use and production of these indiscriminate weapons, but the Pentagon refuses.

A quarter of the Americans killed in the Persian Gulf died from landmines. A quarter of American casualties in Vietnam were from mines. I can only wonder how many more Americans will needlessly lose their legs or their lives from landmines before the Pentagon gets the message.

We cannot eliminate the risks, but President Clinton has established the right conditions before US troops can be deployed. If the mission is limited in time, clear in scope, and achievable, as the President has insisted, we should support it. Our troops must be backed by broad rules of engagement that enable them to defend themselves with whatever amount of preemptive force is needed in any circumstance. That does not mean waiting to shoot until they are shot at.

Mr. President, I expect to speak again as the debate on this unfolds. I intend to support the President, and I expect there will be Senators I deeply respect who are on the other side. But at the end of the day, if Americans are sent to Bosnia as I believe they will be, I have no doubt that we all will support them, and we will all be proud of them.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

TRIBUTE TO MAURICE "FOOTSIE" BRITT, AN AMERICAN HERO

Mr. BUMPERS. Madam President, I rise today to pay tribute to one of America's greatest heroes, and certainly one of Arkansas' greatest, if not the greatest, hero in the history of our State. He is Maurice "Footsie" Britt, born in the small town of Carlisle, AR, and raised in the small town of Lonoke, AR. He was a football star at the University of Arkansas and Honorable Mention, All American.

I first met Footsie in the barbershop of my hometown of Charleston, population 1,200. He had his campaign literature under his right arm—or his right stub. He did not have a right arm. He was running for Lieutenant Governor on the Republican ticket with Winthrop Rockefeller. He had all his literature under his stub and would use his left hand to pull it out and hand it to you.

As I got out of the barber's chair and paid the barber 50 cents for the haircut, this was 1966, Footsie Britt walked in. He had been a real hero to me, and I was honored to meet him. Winthrop Rockefeller became the first Republican Governor since Reconstruction in my State. In my opinion, he would have never been elected if he had not had Footsie Britt as his running mate.

But to go back, he was the first American to ever receive the three highest awards the American military can grant for valor and bravery in one war. He held the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Distinguished Service Cross, and the Silver Star. I do not know whether anybody has ever equaled that since then or not.

What happened to the right arm? It lay on the battlefield near Anzio, Italy, where he had been a lieutenant in World War II. As I walked around the battlefield at Anzio last year, as the President and numerous Members of Congress went to Normandy and Anzio, I thought "Where did Footsie lose his arm?"

Madam President, he not only received the three highest honors that our military can bestow, he received the highest honor that Britain bestows on any non-Englishman, the Military Cross, and the highest award that can be bestowed by Italy on any non-Italian, the Cross of Valor.

He was in charge of a platoon and leading a group of men near the beach at Anzio. He saw that some of his men were getting out in front of the others. He knew that the Germans were ahead of them and on either side of them. And as he had feared, the others got so far ahead of the rest of the group that the Germans had them surrounded. They knew it, and they surrendered.

The Germans took the American soldiers as shields, as hostages, and began to march them toward the other Americans that Footsie commanded. The Americans held their fire, obviously. And just as they got close enough, Footsie shouted, "Now hear this order by me. Hit the mud!" And every one of the American hostages immediately fell down and lay in a prone position. The Germans, not speaking English and being dumbfounded by the order, were confused just long enough for Footsie and his men to mow all the Germans down, saving all the hostages.

If Footsie Britt had an enemy in this country, I am not aware of it. He was a beloved public servant, not a strident partisan, just an all-around good guy. He saw his duty and did it. He was later appointed head of the Arkansas Small Business Administration where he served for 14 years. His wife, Pat, preceded him in death several years ago.

Two weeks ago I went to the John L. McClellan Veterans Hospital in Little Rock, as I do every Veterans Day. The first room I went to was Footsie Britt's. He had lost a piece of a foot as well as his arm at Anzio, and being an acute diabetic, 48 hours before had had one of his feet amputated. I walked into the room, and I could hardly believe that Footsie had had that foot operated on and removed just 2 days before.

He said, "Senator, I just want you to know I think Betty Bumpers was the most gracious First Lady the State ever had. She was always unfailingly polite and friendly to me. And I hope you will tell her that." Shortly thereafter, they had to amputate more of the leg, and his heart just gave out.

To youngsters I speak to in high schools and colleges, I always remind them of how lucky they are to live in this country, how many sacrifices so many brave men and women have made to provide them with the freedom, the rights they enjoy, all the protections of our sacred Constitution. They do not understand what I am saying. They cannot possibly understand what I am saying. But I say it again today, Madam President. They, you, I, and every American have lost one of our greatest heroes with the death of Maurice "Footsie" Britt, a true immortal.

TRIBUTE TO DON PEOPLES

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, in Montana, we call Butte the Can-Do City. And there is nobody who personifies Butte's can-do spirit more than its former chief executive, my friend, Don Peoples.

Butte's paper, the Montana Standard, recently ran an article about Don's career in Butte. Don is a modest person; a man of few words. And I suspect he is a little bit uncomfortable with all this attention. But it is attention he richly deserves.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Montana Standard article be printed in the RECORD. And I ask my colleagues to take a moment to read about how a remarkable man has made such a difference for his community and home State.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Montana Standard, Nov. 27, 1995]

PERSEVERANCE THAT TWARTED HARD TIMES

(By Erin P. Billings)

Don Peoples still remembers the day in 1983 that shocked Butte and sent its economy spinning downward without warning.

The former Butte-Silver Bow County chief executive was driving back from Seattle, and made a phone call to his office—word was the Anaconda Co. was shutting down its Butte mines and laying off nearly 1,000 workers. Peoples was devastated.

"Nobody thought it was going to happen," the 56-year-old Butte native remembers, shaking his head in disbelief. "That was a devastating day for a lot of people."

"I saw so many people hurting," he says.

Many long-time Butte residents were struggling to find work and flocking elsewhere for jobs. And Peoples, who was sitting at the helm of Butte's government knew it was up to him to restore citizens faith and turn the economy around.

In 1985, ARCO sold the Continental Pit mine to Missoula multimillionaire Dennis Washington—restoring the copper mining legacy and some 325 good-paying jobs to the area. Peoples, many say, was key in bringing that sale to fruition.

"The tax base was eroding, people were leaving—the major element of an economic decline," says Evan Barrett, executive director of the Butte Local Development Corp. "He kind of carried this city by its boot straps in a time that was really bad."

For example, Peoples successfully lobbied to exclude the mine from the boundaries of the active Superfund site; pushed for lower power and freight rates; and helped provide the company with a three-year tax break granted by the state.

In addition to helping resurrect the mining industry in the 1980s, Peoples was instrumental in creating Butte's small business incubator, the U.S. High Altitude Sports Center and the Urban Revitalization Agency, which provides grants to help renovate Butte Uptown buildings.

By 1988, nine years after Peoples took office, Butte's economy had begun to forge forward and the city received national recognition as a National Civic League "All-American City." More than 900 cities nationwide competed for the designation, which 10 cities received that year.

"Don has a dogged preserverance to get things done," says Jack Lynch, who has served as chief executive since 1990. "He's not someone who can sit and watch."

That and Peoples' positive attitude are characteristics Lynch says he tries to emulate as the county's current leader.

Peoples chose to trade his life in the public eye in 1989 for the private sector and a financially attractive opportunity to serve as head of a major Butte research and development firm—MSE Inc.

A decision, he says, he's never regretted. "You had to be places, when you didn't want to be there," the slender, 6-foot-2-inch Peoples says of being county chief executive. "Now, I have a choice."

Although Peoples no longer governs 34,000 residents in Silver Bow County, he is still active in the community and plays the role as a leader to some 200 employees.

And many of his associates say Peoples' dedication is as impressive as his resume. As a community leader, he holds positions with organizations such as the Deaconess Research Institute in Billings, St. James Community Hospital and the Montana Tech and Butte Central Education foundations. He also is active on the Butte-Silver Bow Chamber of Commerce board and an appointee to the Montana Commission on Higher Education for the '90s.

Each day, Peoples serves as chief executive officer and president of MSE, where he has successfully put the technologies firm on the map.

The company, which once boasted only one research and development contract and had a revenue base of about $12 million, today has tripled its revenue base and has more than 20 contracts.

Agencies including the U.S. Energy and Defense departments and NASA count on the firm for developments in areas such as mine waste reclamation, thermal technology and advanced aerospace technology.

But turning Butte's economy around, and helping to develop one of the county's largest businesses hasn't been easy.

Those who know Peoples quickly point to his tenacity, aggressiveness and work ethic—qualities which allow him to get things done. Part of what drives him, people remark, is his tireless devotion to Butte and the people that live there.

The lifelong Butte resident was born in 1939 to Jim and Marie Peoples, and was educated in local schools. His father went on to become Butte's public works director, a position that Don Peoples later held.

"He will do all that he can to fight for (Butte)," says Gov. Marc Racicot, who has known Peoples for about 15 years.

The two served on the board of trustees together at Carroll College in Helena, a position Peoples still holds. There, Racicot says, Peoples has fought to raise money and promote a code of ethics at the small private school.

"He's got a way of convincing people that anything is possible," says Alec Hansen, executive director of the Montana League of Cities and Towns. "You just keep pushing them and pushing them until something happens."

When Peoples served as president of the League in 1982, Hansen says, he fought hard in the state Legislature—pushing for workers compensation insurance programs for Montana cities.

"The guy doesn't scare easy," Hansen says. "Nothing is too big—you can do it."

Peoples says he welcomes a challenge, enjoys taking on big projects and likes to win. But with that, he and others admit, comes Peoples' biggest weakness—impatience.

"I have a fairly good temper," he concedes. "I find the older I get, the easier it is to spout off."

For example, Peoples says his patience has been tried over the proposed greenway project, which would turn the Silver Bow Creek Superfund site into a green corridor.

The state and ARCO, the company responsible for the cleanup, have battled over whether the mine waste should be removed and treated elsewhere or whether a less costly plan should be implemented that would treat mine waste in place—leaving enough money to develop a public greenway along the 25-mile site.

But Peoples' tendency to occasionally lose his patience hasn't hindered his ability to convince others to get things done, some say.

Barrett says Peoples has an ability to inspire those who work with him, as if he were a coach of a team.

"With Don there's no question that there's a coach and there's a team; he's always a team leader," he says. "He allows people on the team to get their best in."

"Leaders are far and few between" and Don Peoples is one of them, says Jim Kambich, director of corporate development and planning at MSE.

A modest Peoples quickly brushes off his success as a leader and credits those that have worked along with him. He attributes his achievements to an ability to find competent, hard-working and loyal players.

"He empowers the people under him to look at new ways to do things," Kambich says. "He doesn't ask anything more of you than he would ask of himself."

Peoples' team-oriented attitude shouldn't come as a surprise, as he is an avid sports fan, former athlete and 30-years-plus football referee.

On top of that—without missing a day in five years—he runs twice daily as part of a regimen that he says simply keeps him "feeling right."

And while Peoples will likely continue to jog daily, he says running for public office again is out of the picture.

"I become less political all the time," he says. Besides, "I think you have to have that fire in your belly."

RETIREMENT OF SENATOR NANCY KASSEBAUM

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise to offer my best wishes to our colleague, Senator NANCY KASSEBAUM. Although we will work together for one more year—and I am pleased about that—I want to take this time to express my gratitude to Senator KASSEBAUM for what she has meant to me, to the Labor and Human Resources Committee, and to the Foreign Relations Committee.

First, to me, Senator KASSEBAUM is a real class act. When I came to the U.S. Senate in 1986, Senator KASSEBAUM was the only other woman here. Together we served for 6 years as the only two women in this institution that represents the entire Nation. We were both elected to the U.S. Senate in our own right.

I have tremendous respect for Senator KASSEBAUM and her views on many issues. Senator KASSEBAUM thinks independently in her political and policy decisions. She understands the issues and is not afraid to stand up for what she believes in.

While we may not agree on every issue—no one around here does—we do agree on some pretty important ones. Senator KASSEBAUM favors the legal right to an abortion; she has voted for gun control measures; and she has supported many measures to improve American education. She has demonstrated great courage and conviction.

Second, I salute Senator KASSEBAUM for chairing the full Labor Committee. She is the only female chair of a U.S. Senate committee and she does the job well. I serve on the Labor Committee, and I know first-hand how effective Senator KASSEBAUM can be.

The Labor Committee controls some of the most comprehensive and controversial issues to come before this body. I am talking about welfare reform, health, education, job training and occupational safety—just to name a few. It is not easy. But Senator KASSEBAUM can really rally the troops—Democrat or Republican to make sure that work gets done.

When Senator KASSEBAUM brings a bill to the Senate floor, it is sure to pass. She has a thorough, prudent and reasoned approach to crafting legislation. She gives a great deal of thought to the issues, and she knows how to build consensus.

Together we have fought for the right of women to choice in reproductive health matters. We have fought to keep America healthy, and we have fought for education for this Nation's students.

Finally, as chair of the African Affairs Subcommittee, Senator KASSEBAUM fights for policy that represents our values and respect for human rights.

Senator KASSEBAUM fought apartheid in South Africa. She urged President Reagan to take action against the white-minority government. When he did not, she courageously endorsed sanctions against South Africa.

I want to thank Senator KASSEBAUM for what she has meant to foreign policy and for her commitment to Africa, to the Nation, and to the people of this country.

Senator KASSEBAUM says "the time has come to pursue other challenges." I want to wish her the best in that pursuit, and I know that she will set new standards wherever she goes.

THE BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, before discussing today's bad news about the Federal debt, how about "another go," as the British put it, with our quiz.

The question: How many millions of dollars in a trillion? While you are thinking about it, bear in mind that it was the U.S. Congress that ran up the enormous Federal debt that is now about $12 billion shy of $5 trillion.

To be exact, as of the close of business yesterday, November 27, the total Federal debt—down to the penny—stood at $4,988,885,320,472.65. Another depressing figure means that on a per capita basis, every man, woman, and child in America owes $18,937.89.

Mr. President, back to our quiz—how many million in a trillion? There are a million million in a trillion, which means that the Federal Government will shortly owe $5 million million.

Now, who is in favor of balancing the Federal budget?

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LANDMINES

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I will just speak very briefly. I have spoken many, many times about the dangers of landmines, especially indiscriminate antipersonnel landmines. I was very proud when the Senate went on record by a two-thirds vote supporting my moratorium on our own use of landmines. That is something designed to give the United States the moral leadership in arguing with other nations around the world to eventually ban the use of indiscriminate antipersonnel landmines.

It was, in my 21 years here, one of those rare occasions when people across the ideological spectrum joined together on one major issue, in this case one of the biggest humanitarian issues possible, but also something that could affect defense policies of nations well into the next century.

Earlier today I spoke of the dangers of landmines in the former Yugoslavia.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent an article regarding the debate in Congress on landmines, written by Bob Kemper of the Washington Bureau of the Chicago Tribune, dated yesterday, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Chicago Tribune, Nov. 27, 1995]
CONGRESS DEBATES LAND MINE BAN—110 MILLION MINES PLANTED IN 60 NATIONS SPARK OUTCRY

(By Bob Kemper)

They are trash, the debris of war, like burned-out tanks and bombed-out buildings. But long after peace treaties are signed and soldiers go home, land mines go on killing.

Bosnia may provide the latest example. There are an estimated 6 million anti-armor and anti-personnel mines there, only 1 million of which are mapped, according to the United Nations. UN peacekeepers already have suffered 100 casualties from mines in Bosnia.

Killing or maiming 70 people a day worldwide—26,000 each year—land mines are especially devastating to some of the world's poorest countries, according to the State Department and humanitarian groups. And with 110 million mines still buried in more than 60 countries, an international outcry has risen and is echoing in the halls of Congress.

Led by Rep. Lane Evans (D-Ill.), Congress is taking the extraordinary step of ordering the Pentagon to unilaterally disarm itself of anti-personnel mines, devices that in one form or another have been in the U.S. arsenal since the Civil War.

The House and Senate approved a provision in a foreign operations bill that would give the Pentagon three years to learn to fight without anti-personnel mines.

A one-year moratorium, which later could be extended, then would be placed on the use of anti-personnel mines by American forces, except along international borders or in clearly marked fields.

"The U.S. government ought to set a moral example, to lead the world to see the menace of land mines in a clear light," said Evans, who pushed the proposal in the House while Sen. Patrick J. Leahy (D-Vt.) worked the Senate.

No one is blaming the U.S. military for what the State Department dubbed "the global land mine crisis." American forces routinely use "smart mines" that self-destruct or turn themselves off after a month or so in the ground. When they do use long-life mines in the field, such as the claymore, the mines are typically removed as the soldiers withdraw.

However, Evans and Leahy say that by disarming its military, America sets an example and can prod other countries to follow suit.

Evans and Leahy used a similar strategy three years ago when they pushed for a moratorium on the U.S. export of mines. Two dozen nations have since followed the U.S. lead in banning or restricting land mine exports. The most recent, France, went further this fall when it announced that it also would stop making mines and destroy those already stockpiled.

Though launched by liberal Democrats, the ban gained new authority on Capitol Hill when pro-defense Democrats, like Virginia Sen. Charles S. Robb, and 25 Republicans, including Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole (R-Kan.), backed it.

"In Vietnam I had a number of my men killed or wounded by various types of mines or booby traps," said Robb, who had led a Marine platoon. "I have visited around the world, in combat areas, literally tens of thousands of amputees who were victims of mines and lots of those folks are just children, children who were playing."

Ban proponents say they are singling out the anti-personnel mine because, unlike other implements of war, it keeps killing long after the fighting ends. In Denmark, some areas are still unusable because of mines planted there during World War II.

Many of the 200-plus types of anti-personnel mines manufactured around the world are designed to maim rather than kill because a severely wounded soldier is a bigger drain on enemy logistics and medical resources than a dead soldier. Those same mines, ban proponents argue, are transforming farmers in developing countries into financial and emotional drains on their families and communities.

Still, the Pentagon is fighting to keep the mines.

The Army does not want to give up a weapon on which its field commanders have long relied. Anti-personnel mines are the perfect weapon for defending battlefield positions, protecting economic assets such as power plants, slowing enemy advances or detouring enemy troops into "killing zones."

Worried about the effect on the Army, Senate Armed Services Chairman Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) and Sen. John Warner (R-Va.), a senior member of that panel, plotted with House Republicans to kill the ban. They intended to place a provision in the defense authorization bill giving the Pentagon veto power over the moratorium. However, Warner said, he dropped that plan after being lobbied by Leahy.

"Let him have his shot at it," Warner said.

One remaining obstacle is the difficulty congressional leaders have had getting the foreign operations bill to the White House. The House and Senate approved the bill in early November, but remain divided over a separate abortion amendment, preventing the bill from moving forward.

Momentum toward a land mine ban has been building since a year ago, when President Clinton called for the eventual elimination of land mines. Three months later, the United Nations approved a U.S. resolution urging action. Last summer, 280 members of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops meeting in Chicago issued a statement singling out land mines as an indiscriminate killer whose production should cease.

Meanwhile, hundreds of humanitarian groups have spent months—and in some cases years—cataloging land mine atrocities and lobbying for a worldwide ban on the manufacture and use of land mines.

But this fall, the push for a ban fizzled when 42 nations at a UN-sponsored conference on conventional weapons failed to reach agreement.

"I don't think there were two minutes of serious discussion * * * on a total ban on land mines," said Stephen Goose, program director of Human Rights Watch's Arms Project and a delegate to the Vienna meeting.

Contrary to Clinton's call for the elimination of mines, many anti-mine groups say, the administration is actually perpetuating the use of mines by pushing for expanded use of "smart mines" rather than backing a total ban.

"There is no technological solution" to the mine problem, Goose said. "A self-destructing or self-deactivating mine is still an indiscriminate mine. It will still deny the fields to the farmer."

Evans said he hopes Congress's action will redirect the administration.

"The President is far too cautious," Evans said. "We're encouraging them to be bolder, to demonstrate leadership in encouraging other countries" to give up mines altogether.

But Robert Sherman, of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, defended the administration's push for advanced mines and other measures short of a ban, including requiring manufacturers to put at least eight grams of metal into each plastic mine so that they can be more easily detected. Such steps are a much more realistic way to protect civilians, he said.

"We know there will not be a total ban in 1996 or 1997 or whenever," Sherman said. "If mines are your concern, you say this is bad. If people are your concern, you say this is good."

Anti-mine advocates argue that "smart mines" often fail to self-destruct, compounding—rather than solving—what is already a daunting problem globally: detection and removal of mines.

Some anti-personnel mines sell for as little as $2 to $3 and hundreds of them can be planted in seconds by special artillery or trucks. In contrast, it takes 100 times longer to remove a mine at a cost of up to $1,000 per mine. And that's if the mine can be found.

Many modern mines are as small as a can of shoe polish and made of plastic. Their only metal part is the size of a thumbtack, making detection by the 1940s-style mine-sweepers, still in use today, nearly impossible.

Also, for every mine removed, 20 more are planted. In 1993, the UN estimated that 100,000 land mines were found and removed at a cost of $70 million. During that time, 2 million more mines were laid. Even if no more mines were planted after today, experts said, it would take decades and at least $33 billion to clear those still in the ground.

The State Department and the Vietnam Veterans of America, in separate studies, found that mines left behind after wars have taken a devastating toll on civilians. Once fertile fields are now too dangerous to plow. Cattle are killed or maimed. Roads and major utilities hampered by mines make producing and shipping goods difficult.

"Without a clear statement by the U.S. that demonstrates that we are opposed to their use, other nations will continue to sell and deploy them," Evans said. "This legislation, like the moratorium on exports, calls a 'time out' and puts us in the leadership position to challenge other nations to work with us and solve this global crisis."

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, are we in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes, sir, we are.

Mr. DORGAN. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. DORGAN pertaining to the introduction of S. 1427 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

THE RECONCILIATION BILL

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, the current Presiding Officer has spent substantial amounts of time on the floor talking about reconciliation, and he feels passionately and strongly, I believe, that we ought to balance the Federal budget. I share that with him. There is not disagreement in this Chamber about the goal.

I said back home last week—and I have said here—that in my judgment the Republicans deserve some praise for pushing and pushing for a balanced budget. I commend them for that. I do not commend them for the priorities on how they would get there. But, frankly, all of us ought to have more inertia to try to put this country's books in order. And the question is not whether. The question is, How are we going to balance the budget in 7 years? Negotiations will begin today or tomorrow between the Republicans in the Congress and the Democrats in the White House on how to do that in 7 years. I would simply ask the American people, and my colleagues in the Senate, to think through these priorities some because it is not just let us do it in 7 years and never mind the consequences. It is, let us do it in 7 years. Let us do it the right way, and the smart way for this country. Let us make the right choices for this country's future. It is not the only job in front of us. We should balance the budget. We must, and we will balance the budget. But we also must make sure that those who are disadvantaged in this country are not ignored. We must make sure that our education system works, and we must make sure that our air is clean and our water is clean. Those are other priorities as well.

But in the terms of choosing priorities by which we balance the budget, I would like to once again demonstrate that there is substantial difference and a legitimate difference in what we think will enhance our country's long-term interests. I happen to think that there is nothing more important in this country than investing in building the best education system in the world. I want, when all of this is said and done, for us to be able to say our generation, this group of Americans, made a commitment that we want to have the finest schools in the world. We want our kids to be the best they can be because they went to the best schools in the world. There is a little provision in the reconciliation bill, and the continuing resolution that was passed a week and a half ago, a tiny little issue called Star Schools.

It is a tiny little program, but it is designed to try to lift and enhance those schools that are focusing on math and sciences to bring our children up to international levels in math and sciences, to be competitive. This little Star Schools Program was cut 40 percent—40 percent.

Now, there is a bigger program, a kind of a giant tumor over in the Defense Department called star wars or national missile defense or SDI, depending on what name you want to call it. Because this proposal has a space-based component, I have heard it called star wars, but nonetheless it is a program that, in its infancy, costs hundreds of millions of dollars a year, and it is going to grow to billions of dollars a year and eventually cost $48 billion. The star wars program was increased in this process this year by 100 percent.

Now, the point is Star Schools you cut by 40 percent, star wars you increase by 100 percent. The question is, What do you think is worthy of a star here, schools or corporations that want to build a $48 billion star wars program, because that is what this is. This is about special interests that want to build a weapons system the Secretary of Defense did not order, did not ask for, and says he does not need. The priority is clear: Star Schools or star wars. Cut Star Schools 40 percent, increase star wars 100 percent. If you think that enhances America's future, then that is what you do. I do not think it enhances America's future. I think it is exactly the wrong choice.

I use that example as I have before simply to say the question is not whether, but how, do we balance the budget.

Two other tiny little issues. I offered an amendment, and it was defeated on a party line vote, regrettably. It is an issue that I think also describes the how in terms of what we believe in. We have in the Tax Code in this country a perverse, insidious, little tax incentive that says, move your plant overseas. Close your plant in America, move it overseas to a tax haven country, and we will give you a tax break. I offered an amendment that said let us reduce the deficit by getting rid of this insidious little tax break that says move your plant and jobs overseas and we will give you a break. I lost on a party line vote.

In terms of priorities, the priority, it seems to me, in balancing the budget is to do what works to help create jobs and opportunities in our country. How better to help create jobs and opportunities than to shut off the faucet on a tax break that encourages plants to shut down in America and relocate overseas and take the jobs that used to be U.S. jobs and turn them into jobs in a tax haven country.

That is a priority we ought to pursue. Again, it is not whether, it is how do you balance the budget. Let us balance the budget by getting rid of this little tax break that is wrong for our country, that weakens our country, that says let us move jobs out of our country. That does not make any sense to me.

The smart choice is, yes, Star Schools, education, investment in the future. It is, yes, jobs, shutting off tax breaks that persuade people to move out of the country, and it also is, yes, choosing between a tax cut for the very wealthiest of Americans and a cut in Medicare reimbursement for some of the poorest of Americans.

That amendment also was offered, and I hope that will be reconsidered in a reconciliation conference in the next week or two. What we said was very simple. Those of the upper income strata in this country have done very, very well. They have garnered a substantial portion of the income, regrettably, at the expense of the bottom portion of the income earners in our country. What we said with the amendment was very simple. We said, let us at least limit the tax break to incomes of a quarter of a million dollars or less, and then let us use the savings from that limitation to see if we cannot reduce the cut in Medicare that is going to affect some low-income elderly folks.

Once again, we lost, but again it is choices—what is important and what is not. Is it important to give the wealthiest people in our country a significant tax cut? Gee, I do not think so. It seems to me, if you look at the statistics, you will find that they have done very, very well, much better, with income growth that is substantial.

In fact, the top percent in our country have seen income growths on a real basis of something like 70 percent real income growth in a period of a decade, and the bottom 60 percent now sit down for supper at night at the family table and talk about their lot in life. What they discover is that they are working harder and earning less than 20 years ago when you adjust for inflation.

Our point is that we do not think it makes any sense to give big tax cuts to those at the upper one-half of 1 percent of the income earners at the same time that we are saying we cannot afford Medicare for some of the poorest of the elderly. And, again, it is a question of priorities.

I think that we are now on a track in the next week or two with respect to the reconciliation bill that will be constructive for this country.

I mentioned these three areas only because I think there are differences in priorities that are legitimate differences. On the other hand, it seems to me if Republicans and Democrats can sit down together in the next couple of weeks and if the President can sit down with Congress, out of the glare of the spotlights, a lot of agreement can result, and we can in fact balance this country's budget and put this country on solid financial footing for the years ahead.

This country, it seems to me, will be advantaged in a world in which we see increasingly competitive, shrewd, tough trade allies and others if we find some way to work more together, and I do not think that is an impossible circumstance. I know there is a lot of controversy floating around, and I get involved in it from time to time. I hear what the Speaker of the House says, and I may respond. But the fact is that with all of the controversy which circulates, we are still all on the same team. Our interest is the American economy. Our interest is American jobs and opportunities in the future.

It seems to me, even though we may belong to different political parties, our country will be advantaged if we can find a thoughtful, sober, reflective way of choosing the right priorities that all of us think will move this country ahead and build a better economy and a better future.

My hope and my expectation is that maybe, just maybe, as we approach the Christmas season, more of a spirit of cooperativeness will exist. We put this question behind us of whether, and the question now is how to balance the budget. And although these are not easy questions to answer, I think people of good will can get together and do what is right for this country.

Mr. President, I see no other speakers waiting. I yield the floor, and I make a point of order that a quorum is not present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ASHCROFT). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. THOMAS. I ask unanimous consent that I may speak for a few minutes in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

BALANCING THE BUDGET

Mr. THOMAS. Mr. President, the Senator from North Dakota spoke just a few minutes ago about balancing the budget. And I was interested and pleased with his remarks. Certainly I agree with him that probably one of the most important issues that we have before us, and have had for this entire year, is the notion of becoming financially and fiscally responsible in this body and in this country, and doing so by balancing the budget.

It seems to me that there is a great deal involved with balancing the budget. It is more than a function of arithmetic; it is a function of determining the direction we take in this Government.

It is a function of dealing with spending. There are a number of ways to balance the budget. One of them, which President Clinton choose last year, was to raise taxes and continue to spend, and I suppose you could do that. You could balance the budget by continuing to spend and increasing taxes.

I think that is not what the American people said in 1994. They said we have too much Government, the Government is too large, it costs too much, and we need to balance the budget, but we need to balance the budget by reducing the growth in spending. Therein lies one of the differences.

The Senator said we ought to balance the budget. I agree with that. We have not done it in 30 years. It is fairly easy to say we ought to balance the budget. The evidence is that it is very easy to say that and more difficult to do it.

He said we ought to balance the budget in the right way. I agree. I have the right way; he does not have the right way. That is the problem. The right way hardly gets to it. But I do agree we need to get together. There are differences—there are significant differences—in how we do it, and I think it is our responsibility, as trustees for this Government, to find a way to get the kind of agreement that is necessary to balance the budget. We should do that, and we should do it soon.

I think we made great advances the week before last by getting an agreement with the White House, getting an agreement in this Congress that we will balance the budget in 7 years, using real figures, CBO figures.

There are some other words there: We are going to protect the environment, protect Medicare, protect education. I do not know quite what that means. We may have a different view of what "protect" means. None of us wants to do away with those things.

It seems to me one of the real challenges we have, as we move forward with this idea of balancing the budget, which we must do, is we need to start dealing with some facts. It is too easy to roll over into scare tactics in the political response by saying, "Yes, I'm going to protect Medicare." The fact is, you have to make some changes in Medicare if you want it to continue. If you want to have a health program for the elderly over time, you cannot continue to do what we have been doing. So you have to change it. But it is too easy to go to the country and say, "Those Republicans want to do away with Medicare." It is not true. It is just not true.

"We are going to do away with education." Do you know how much the Federal Government contributes to elementary and secondary education? About 5 percent of the total spending. The Senator from New Mexico, who is more knowledgeable than anyone else about the budget, indicated that this budget would have reduced in his State Federal aid by six-tenths of 1 percent, and yet here we are going to gut education.

I was pleased to hear that the Senator wants to balance the budget. The unfortunate part is we hear that all the time and then we go on for another 30 minutes indicating why we cannot do it. The time has come. We have come to the snubbing post. It is time to make the decisions, and I think we will.

I wish we would have passed a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution. The principal sponsor and advocate is right here on the floor, the Senator from Illinois. I wish we had done that for the discipline that is involved in doing it. It would have said, "Yes, you can argue about how it is done, but you are going to balance the budget because that is the Constitution." It is in the Constitution in my State of Wyoming, and we do it. We do it. We do not talk about it, we do it.

So, Mr. President, I look forward to that. I hope we get with the program in the next 3 weeks. We need to do that. We need to pass the appropriations bills. We need to get this balanced budget bill out. We do not need another delay of Government on the 15th of December. We need to get at the task, and I hope that we do it very soon.

I yield the floor.

Mr. SIMON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, I confess I just got in on the tail end of Senator THOMAS' remarks. From what I heard, I agree. I hope we can move quickly, and it illustrates why Senator THOMAS is going to be an asset to the Senate. I was told by a House Member from Illinois, Congressman DICK DURBIN, he said, "You are really going to like the new Senator from Wyoming." I hope I do not get him in trouble in Wyoming saying this now, but I have found that to be the case.

BOSNIA

Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, we have been discussing the Bosnian situation. I was critical of President Bush for not responding right away. I was critical of Bill Clinton when he became President for not responding. I joined those who voted for lifting the arms blockade. But I believe the President is acting in the national interest now, and we have to recognize the great threat to the future of our country in terms of security is no longer nuclear weapons, I am happy to say, it is instability. We are not going to get stability in Bosnia without United States leadership and involvement.

To the credit of the President, Warren Christopher and others, there is a peace agreement, which evolved in Dayton, OH, the Midwest of the United States, and I think it is imperative that we move ahead.

Last night, I was reading the Weekly Standard, Irving Crystal's new magazine. I try to get a diverse readership, and I hope it will not shock him that I am reading his publication. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the lead editorial.

There being no objection, the editorial was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Weekly Standard, Dec. 4, 1995]

BOSNIA: SUPPORT THE PRESIDENT

Bosnian peace diplomacy, brokered by the United States, has passed a significant checkpoint in Dayton, Ohio. Now what? Administration advocates of the new accord oversell its merits. Secretary of State Christopher proclaims the agreement "a victory for all those who believe in a multiethnic democracy in Bosnia-Herzegovina." Another U.S. official calls it a "fantastic deal" for the Bosnian Muslims.

That's saying too much. U.S. policy has never been devoted to reversing all Serbian military encroachments on Bosnian government-held territory. The pact signed in Dayton ratifies most of those Serbian land-grabs—and, in effect, the demonically ethnicized regional politics that impelled them. The country is to be divided along ethnic lines. Its new central government begins life enfeebled. The agreement's free-movement and resettlement promises appear fanciful.

But what the peace plan can possibly accomplish—a pacification of Balkan brutality sufficiently complete and lengthy to take root—is good enough. And better than much of the surprisingly strident, even cavalier, Republican opposition to the plan allows.

Bob Dole and Newt Gingrich expect the White House to request a non-binding resolution of congressional endorsement for the U.S. peacekeeping deployment required by the Dayton accord. Both men have their legitimate questions about that operation's details and contingencies, and about Balkan diplomacy's ultimate prospects. But they are holding open their options, and seem seriously concerned to maintain, as best they can, a bipartisan and muscular American foreign policy under presidential leadership.

Not so some of their vocal Republican colleagues. Phil Gramm, revealing previously undetected powers of international prognostication, somehow just knows that an American troop presence in Bosnia can only bring total disaster. He has "no confidence" in the president, whom he bitterly mocks with quotes reprinted in every American newspaper. Aside from Dick Lugar, measured and diplomatic as always, the rest of the GOP's presidential contenders are quick to agree. All firmly oppose Bosnian troop deployment. The Republican House of Representatives has already twice voted to defund the troops if it is not first granted the power to block them outright.

If cooler heads are to prevail, they had better open their mouths fast. It is obviously true, as Alan Keyes pointed out in the Florida presidential campaign debate a couple of weeks back, that for Bosnia and the rest of the world "there is a God" and U.S. military forces "are not Him." It is also true that there is a serious case against the troop deployment. Charles Krauthammer makes that case elsewhere in these pages.

But he does so while candidly conceding the damage such a last-minute withdrawal would do—first to American international credibility generally, and also to the NATO-led European security arrangements in which our national interest is inextricably intertwined. We may not be God, but where global security arrangements are concerned, we are the closest thing there is. And the United States would be a niggardly superpower indeed were we to withhold our mastery and muscle when they are asked for and widely expected to help halt horrifying bloodshed in Europe.

We are in Bosnia already. A high-profile regional peace accord, husbanded by American diplomacy, concluded on American soil, and announced in the Rose Garden of the White House, calls for us to go in deeper. To prevent it, at this point, Republicans would be forced to provoke a presidential foreign policy humiliation the likes of which probably have not been seen since the failure of Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations. And they would inescapably signal, in the process, that America is badly confused about its global status. And that an American president can no longer reliably serve as representative of his nation before the world.

Such a drastic diminution of presidential authority is dangerous. The Bosnia operation is a judgment call. The strongest case made by Bosnia doves still can't make it anything more than a judgment call. And in foreign policy judgment calls, prudence dictates a prejudice for presidential prerogative. Mr. Clinton cannot make that argument all by himself. He can and should, as George Bush did before him during the Kuwait crisis, make a strong appeal to the American people that U.S. national interests are at stake—and that he has a reasonable strategy to fulfill them.

Congress, for its part, should hold its hearings and delineate whatever conditions on deployment it believes appropriate. But while they're at it, Republicans should remember why it is they have spent the past 15 years defending presidential leadership in foreign affairs. At the end of the day, the Republican Congress should support the president on Bosnia.

Mr. SIMON. The lead editorial, Mr. President, says: "Bosnia: Support the President." This is a magazine, as the Presiding Officer knows, that is primarily oriented to people of conservative view and primarily to Republicans. The final paragraph says:

Congress, for its part, should hold its hearings and delineate whatever conditions on deployment it believes appropriate. But while they're at it, Republicans should remember why it is they have spent the past 15 years defending Presidential leadership in foreign affairs. At the end of the day, the Republican Congress should support the President on Bosnia.

I was pleased last night, Mr. President, when I heard the interview on CBS, Dan Rather's interview with Senator DOLE. Senator DOLE, obviously, could benefit politically right now by denouncing President Clinton and the move that was made. Senator DOLE, to his credit, did not take that posture. It was a statesmanlike response.

I think insofar as possible—obviously, we all have to make judgments on these things, and I respect those whose judgments differ from me on this—but insofar as possible, we should have bipartisan foreign policy. That does require the President to work with Congress and, frankly, I think more than has been done up to this point by this administration.

But the lessons from Woodrow Wilson are that the executive branch has to work with Congress, but the other lesson is a lesson from right after World War II when we had a Democratic President and a Republican Congress, and President Truman, through General Marshall at the Harvard commencement, suggested the Marshall plan, which we look back upon with great pride.

After that was announced, the first Gallup Poll showed 14 percent of the American public supporting the Marshall plan, a plan that ultimately saved western Europe from communism and helped to bring about the demise of communism in Europe.

In the U.S. Senate there was a Republican Senator by the name of Arthur Vandenberg. The Presiding Officer is nodding as though he remembers that. He is too young to remember when Arthur Vandenberg was a member of this body, but I remember it well. Arthur Vandenberg did not take advantage of the situation but worked with the President for the best interests of this Nation and the best interests of the world.

I think that is what we have to do at this point, Mr. President. I hope we will. We are going to differ and differ strongly on this thing. That is the way it should be. I hope it will not be on a partisan basis.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Morning business is now closed.

RECESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the hour of 12:30 p.m. having arrived, the Senate will now stand in recess until the hour of 2:15 p.m.

Thereupon, at 12:29 p.m., the Senate recessed until 2:15 p.m.; whereupon, the Senate reassembled when called to order by the Presiding Officer (Ms. SNOWE).

Mr. PRESSLER addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota.

"SUBCHAPTER VI. RAIL—SHIPPER TRANSPORTATION ADVISORY COUNCIL
"§ 10391. Rail—Shipper Transportation Advisory Council

"(a) ESTABLISHMENT; MEMBERSHIP.—There is established the Rail-Shipper Transportation Advisory Council (hereinafter in this section referred to as the "Council") to be composed of 15 members appointed by the Chairman of the Transportation Board, after recommendation from carriers and shippers, within 60 days after the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995. The members of the Council shall be appointed as follows:

"(1) The members of the Council shall be appointed from among citizens of the United States who are not regular full-time employees of the United States and shall be selected for appointment so as to provide as nearly as practicable a broad representation of the various segments of the rail and rail shipper industry.

"(2) Nine of the members shall be appointed from senior executive officers of organizations engaged in the railroad and rail shipping industry, which 9 members shall be the voting members of the Council. Council action and Council positions shall be determined by a majority vote of the members or by a majority vote of a quorum thereof. A majority of such voting members shall constitute a quorum. Of such 9 voting members—

"(A) at least 4 shall be representative of small shippers (as determined by the Chairman); and

"(B) at least 4 shall be representative of small railroads (Class II or III).

"(3) The remaining 6 members of the Council shall serve in a non-voting advisory capacity only, but shall be entitled to participate in Council deliberations. Of the remaining members—

"(A) 3 shall be from Class I railroads; and

"(B) 3 shall be from large shipper organizations (as determined by the Chairman).

"(4) The Secretary of Transportation and the members of the Transportation Board shall serve as ex officio members of the Council. The Council shall not be subject to the Federal Advisory Committee Act. A list of the members appointed to the Council shall be forwarded to the Chairmen and ranking members of the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation and the House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

"(5) Each ex officio member of the Council may designate an alternate, who shall serve as a member of the Council whenever the ex officio member is unable to attend a meeting of the Council. Any such designated alternate shall be selected from individuals who exercise significant decision-making authority in the Federal agency involved.

“(b) TERM OF OFFICE.—The members of the Council shall be appointed for a term of office of three years, except that of the members first appointed—

“(1) 5 members shall be appointed for terms of 1 year, and

“(2) 5 members shall be appointed for terms of 2 years, as designated by the Chairman at the time of appointment. Any member appointed to fill a vacancy occurring before the expiration of the term for which the member's predecessor was appointed shall be appointed only for the remainder of such term. A member may serve after the expiration of his term until his successor has taken office. Vacancies on the Council shall be filled in the same manner in which the original appointments were made. No member of the Council shall be eligible to serve in excess of two consecutive terms.

“(c) ELECTION AND DUTIES OF OFFICERS.—The Council Chairman and Vice Chairman and other appropriate officers of the Council shall be elected by and from the voting members of the Council. The Council Chairman shall serve as the Council's executive officer and shall direct the administration of the Council, assign officer and committee duties, and shall be responsible for issuing and communicating the reports, policy positions and statements of the Council. In the event that the Council Chairman is unable to serve, the Vice Chairman shall act as Council Chairman.

“(d) EXPENSES.—The members of the Council shall receive no compensation for their services as such, but upon request by the Council Chairman, based on a showing of significant economic burden, the Secretary of Transportation or the Chairman may provide reasonable and necessary travel expenses for such individual Council members from Department or Transportation Board funding sources in order to foster balanced representation on the Council. Upon request by the Council Chairman, the Secretary or Chairman may but is not required to pay the reasonable and necessary expenses incurred by the Council in connection with the coordination of Council activities, announcement and reporting of meetings, and preparation of such Council documents as are required or permitted by this Act. However, prior to making any funding requests the Council Chairman shall undertake best efforts to fund such activities privately unless he or she reasonably feels such private funding would create irreconcilable conflicts or the appearance thereof, or is otherwise impractical. The Council Chairman shall not request funding from any federal agency unless he or she provides written justification as to why private funding would create such conflict or appearance, or is otherwise impractical. To enable the Council to carry out its functions—

“(1) the Council Chairman may request directly from any Federal department or agency such personnel, information, services, or facilities, on a compensated or uncompensated basis, as he or she determines necessary to carry out the functions of the Council;

“(2) each Federal department or agency may, in their discretion, furnish the Council with such information, services, and facilities as the Council Chairman may request to the extent permitted by law and within the limits of available funds; and

“(3) Federal agencies and departments may, in their discretion, detail to temporary duty with the Council, such personnel as the Council Chairman may request for carrying out the functions of the Council, each such detail to be without loss of seniority, pay, or other employee status.

“(e) MEETINGS.—The Council shall meet at least semi-annually and shall hold such other meetings as deemed prudent by and at the call of the Council Chairman. Appropriate federal facilities, where available, may be used for such meetings. Whenever the Council, or a committee of the Council, considers matters that affect the jurisdictional interests of Federal agencies that are not represented on the Council, the Council Chairman may invite the heads of such agencies, or their alternates, to participate in the deliberations of the Council.

“(f) FUNCTIONS AND DUTIES; ANNUAL REPORT.—The Council shall advise the Secretary, Chairman, and relevant Congressional transportation policy oversight committees with respect to rail transportation policy issues it deems significant, with particular attention to issues of importance to small shippers and small railroads, including car supply, rates, competition, and effective procedures for addressing legitimate shipper and other claims. To the extent the Council addresses specific grain car issues, it shall coordinate such activities with the Grain Car Council. The Secretary and Chairman shall work in cooperation with the Council to provide research, technical and other reasonable support in developing any documents provided for hereby. The Council shall endeavor to develop within the private sector mechanisms to prevent or identify and effectively address obstacles to the most effective and efficient transportation system practicable. The Council shall prepare an annual report concerning its activities and the results of Council efforts to resolve industry issues within the Council structure in lieu of seeking regulatory or legislative relief, and propose whatever regulatory or legislative relief it deems appropriate in the event such efforts are unsuccessful. The Council shall include therein such recommendations as it deems appropriate with respect to the performance of the Secretary and Chairman under this chapter, and with respect to the operation and effectiveness of meetings and industry developments relating to the Council's efforts, and such other information as it deems appropriate. Such annual reports shall be reviewed by the Secretary and Chairman, and shall include the Secretary's and Chairman's views or comments relating to the accuracy of information therein, Council efforts and reasonableness of Council positions and actions and any other aspects of the Council's work as they may deem appropriate. The Council may prepare other reports or develop policy statements as the Council deems appropriate. Each annual report shall cover a fiscal year and shall be submitted to the Secretary and Chairman on or before the thirty-first day of December following the close of the fiscal year. Other such reports and statements may be communicated as the Council deems appropriate.”

“(2) for movement of household goods described in section 13102(9)(A) of this title, only if the rate for such transportation or service is contained in a tariff that is in effect under this section. A rate contained in a tariff shall be stated in money of the United States. The carrier may not charge or receive a different compensation for that transportation or service than the rate specified in the tariff whether by returning a part of that rate to a person, giving a person a privilege, allowing the use of a facility that affects the value of that transportation or service, or another device.

“(b)(1) A carrier providing transportation or service described in paragraph (1) of subsection (a) shall publish and file with the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board tariffs containing the rates established for such transportation or service. The Transportation Board may prescribe other information that carriers shall include in such tariffs.

“(2) Carriers that publish tariffs under this subsection shall keep them open for public inspection.

“(c) The Transportation Board shall prescribe the form and manner of publishing, filing, and keeping tariffs open for public inspection under subsection (b). The Transportation Board may prescribe specific charges to be identified in a tariff published by a carrier, but those tariffs must identify plainly—

“(1) the carriers that are parties to it;

“(2) the places between which property will be transported;

“(3) terminal charges if a carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter III of chapter 135 of this title;

“(4) privileges given and facilities allowed; and

“(5) any rules that change, affect, or determine any part of the published rate.

“(d) The Transportation Board may permit carriers to change rates, classifications, rules, and practices without filing complete tariffs that cover matter that is not being changed when the Transportation Board finds that action to be consistent with the public interest. Those carriers may either—

“(1) publish new tariffs that incorporate changes, or

“(2) plainly indicate the proposed changes in the tariffs then in effect and kept open for public inspection.

“(e) The Transportation Board may reject a tariff submitted to it by a carrier under subsection (b) if that tariff violates this section or regulation of the Transportation Board carrying out this section.

“(f)(1) A carrier providing transportation described in subsection (a)(2) shall maintain rates and related rules and practices in a published tariff. The tariff must be available for inspection by the Transportation Board and by shippers, upon reasonable request, at the offices of the carrier and of each tariff publishing agent of the carrier.

“(2) A carrier that maintains a tariff and makes it available for inspection as provided in paragraph (1) may not enforce the provisions of the tariff unless the carrier has given notice that the tariff is available for inspection in its bill of lading or by other actual notice to individuals whose shipments are subject to the tariff.

“(3) A carrier that maintains a tariff under this subsection is bound by the tariff except as otherwise provided in this subtitle. A carrier that does not maintain a tariff as provided in this subsection may not enforce the tariff against any individual shipper except as otherwise provided in this subtitle, and shall not transport household goods described in section 13102(9)(A).

“(4) A carrier may incorporate by reference the rates, terms, and other conditions in a tariff in agreements covering the transportation of household goods (except those household goods described in section 13102(9)(A)(i)), if the tariff is maintained as provided in this subsection and the agreement gives notice of the incorporation and of the availability of the tariff for inspection by the commercial shipper.

“(5) A complaint that a rate or related rule or practice maintained in a tariff under this subsection violates section 13701(a) may be filed with the Transportation Board.

“§13703. Certain collective activities; exemption from antitrust laws

“(a) AGREEMENTS.—

“(1) AUTHORITY TO ENTER.—A motor carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 may enter into an agreement with one or more such carriers to establish—

“(A) through routes and joint rates;

“(B) rates for the transportation of household goods described in section 13102(9)(A);

“(C) classifications;

“(D) mileage guides;

“(E) rules;

“(F) divisions;

“(G) rate adjustments of general application based on industry average carrier costs (so long as there is no discussion of individual markets or particular single-line rates); or

“(H) procedures for joint consideration, initiation, or establishment of matters described in subparagraphs (A) through (G).

“(2) SUBMISSION OF AGREEMENT TO TRANSPORTATION BOARD; APPROVAL.—An agreement entered into under subsection (a) may be submitted by any carrier or carriers that are parties to such agreement to the Transportation Board for approval and may be approved by the Transportation Board only if it finds that such agreement is in the public interest.

“(3) CONDITIONS.—The Transportation Board may require compliance with reasonable conditions consistent with this part to assure that the agreement furthers the transportation policy set forth in section 13101.

“(4) INVESTIGATIONS.—The Transportation Board may suspend and investigate the reasonableness of any classification or rate adjustment of general application made pursuant to an agreement under this section.

“(5) EFFECT OF APPROVAL.—If the Transportation Board approves the agreement or renews approval of the agreement, it may be made and carried out under its terms and under the conditions required by the Transportation Board, and the antitrust laws, as defined in the first section of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 12), do not apply to parties and other persons with respect to making or carrying out the agreement.

“(b) RECORDS.—The Transportation Board may require an organization established or continued under an agreement approved under this section to maintain records and submit reports. The Transportation Board, or its delegate, may inspect a record maintained under this section, or monitor any organization's compliance with this section.

“(c) REVIEW.—The Transportation Board may review an agreement approved under this section, on its own initiative or on request, and shall change the conditions of approval or terminate it when necessary to protect the public interest. Action of the Transportation Board under this section—

“(1) approving an agreement,

“(2) denying, ending, or changing approval,

“(3) prescribing the conditions on which approval is granted, or “(4) changing those conditions, has effect only as related to application of the antitrust laws referred to in subsection (a).

“(d) EXPIRATION OF APPROVALS; RENEWALS.—Subject to subsection (c), approval of an agreement under subsection (a) shall expire 3 years after the date of approval unless renewed under this subsection. The approval may be renewed upon request of the parties to the agreement if such parties resubmit the agreement to the Transportation Board, the agreement is unchanged, and the Transportation Board approves such renewal. The Transportation Board shall approve the renewal unless it finds that the renewal is not in the public interest.

“(e) EXISTING AGREEMENTS.—Agreements approved under former section 10706(b) and in effect on the day before the effective date of this section shall be treated for purposes of this section as approved by the Transportation Board under this section beginning on such effective date.

“(f) LIMITATIONS ON STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—

“(1) UNDERCHARGE CLAIMS.—Nothing in this section shall serve as a basis for any undercharge claim.

“(2) OBLIGATION OF SHIPPER.—Nothing in this title, the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995, or any amendments or repeals made by such Act shall be construed as creating any obligation for a shipper based solely on a classification that was on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission or elsewhere on the day before the effective date of this section.

“(g) MILEAGE RATE LIMITATION.—No carrier subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title may enforce collection of its mileage rates or classifications unless such carrier or forwarder maintains its own independent publication of mileage or classification which can be examined by any interested person upon reasonable request or is a participant in a publication of mileages or classifications formulated under an agreement approved under this section.

“(h) SINGLE LINE RATE DEFINED.—In this section, the term ‘single line rate’ means a rate, charge, or allowance proposed by a single motor carrier that is applicable only over its line and for which the transportation can be provided by that carrier.

“§13704. Household goods rates—estimates; guarantees of service

“(a)(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (2) of this subsection, a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title may establish a rate for the transportation of household goods which is based on the carrier's written, binding estimate of charges for providing such transportation.

"(2) Any rate established under this subsection must be available on a nonpreferential basis to shippers and must not result in charges to shippers which are predatory.

"(b)(1) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (2) of this subsection, a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title may establish rates for the transportation of household goods which guarantee that the carrier will pick up and deliver such household goods at the times specified in the contract for such services and provide a penalty or per diem payment in the event the carrier fails to pick up or deliver such household goods at the specified time. The charges, if any, for such guarantee and penalty provision may vary to reflect one or more options available to meet a particular shipper's needs.

"(2) Before a carrier may establish a rate for any service under paragraph (1) of this subsection, the Secretary of Transportation may require such carrier to have in effect and keep in effect, during any period such rate is in effect under such paragraph, a rate for such service which does not guarantee the pick up and delivery of household goods at the times specified in the contract for such services and which does not provide a penalty or per diem payment in the event the carrier fails to pick up or deliver household goods at the specified time.

"§13705. Requirements for through routes among motor carriers of passengers

"(a) A motor carrier of passengers shall establish through routes with other carriers of the same type and shall establish individual and joint rates applicable to them.

"(b) A through route between motor carriers providing transportation of passengers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 must be reasonable.

"(c) When the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board finds it necessary to enforce the requirements of this section, the Transportation Board may prescribe through routes and the conditions under which those routes must be operated for motor carriers providing transportation of passengers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135.

"§13706. Liability for payment of rates

"(a) Liability for payment of rates for transportation for a shipment of property by a shipper or consignor to a consignee other than the shipper or consignor, is determined under this section when the transportation is provided by motor carrier under this part. When the shipper or consignor instructs the carrier transporting the property to deliver it to a consignee that is an agent only, not having beneficial title to the property, the consignee is liable for rates billed at the time of delivery for which the consignee is otherwise liable, but not for additional rates that may be found to be due after delivery if the consignee gives written notice to the delivering carrier before delivery of the property—

"(1) of the agency and absence of beneficial title; and

"(2) of the name and address of the beneficial owner of the property if it is reconsigned or diverted to a place other than the place specified in the original bill of lading.

"(b) When the consignee is liable only for rates billed at the time of delivery under subsection (a) of this section, the shipper or consignor, or, if the property is reconsigned or diverted, the beneficial owner is liable for those additional rates regardless of the bill of lading or contract under which the property was transported. The beneficial owner is liable for all rates when the property is reconsigned or diverted by an agent but is refused or abandoned at its ultimate destination if the agent gave the carrier in the reconsignment or diversion order a notice of agency and the name and address of the beneficial owner. A consignee giving the carrier erroneous information about the identity of the beneficial owner of the property is liable for the additional rates.

"§13707. Billing and collecting practices

"(a) A motor carrier subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 shall disclose, when a document is presented or electronically transmitted for payment to the person responsible directly to the motor carrier for payment or agent of such responsible person, the actual rates, charges, or allowances for any transportation service. No person may cause a motor carrier to present false or misleading information on a document about the actual rate, charge, or allowance to any party to the transaction. When the actual rate, charge, or allowance is dependent upon the performance of a service by a party to the transportation arrangement, such as tendering a volume of freight over a stated period of time, the motor carrier shall indicate in any document presented for payment to the person responsible directly to the motor carrier that a reduction, allowance, or other adjustment may apply.

"(b) The Transportation Board shall promulgate regulations that prohibit a motor carrier subject to jurisdiction under subchapter II of chapter 105 of this title from providing a reduction in a rate for the provision of transportation of property to any person other than—

"(1) the person paying the motor carrier directly for the transportation service according to the bill of lading, receipt, or contract; or

"(2) an agent of the person paying for the transportation.

"§13708. Procedures for resolving claims involving unfiled, negotiated transportation rates

"(a) IN GENERAL.—When a claim is made by a motor carrier of property (other than a household goods carrier) providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter II of chapter 105 of this title (as in effect on the day before the effective date of this section) or subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title, by a freight forwarder (other than a household goods freight forwarder), or by a party representing such a carrier or freight forwarder regarding the collection of rates or charges for such transportation in addition to those originally billed and collected by the carrier or freight forwarder for such transportation, the person against whom the claim is made may elect to satisfy the claim under the provisions of subsection (b), (c), or (d), upon showing that—

"(1) the carrier or freight forwarder is no longer transporting property or is transporting property for the purpose of avoiding the application of this section; and

"(2) with respect to the claim—

"(A) the person was offered a transportation rate by the carrier or freight forwarder other than that legally on file at the time with the Transportation Board or with the former Interstate Commerce Commission, as required, for the transportation service;

"(B) the person tendered freight to the carrier or freight forwarder in reasonable reliance upon the offered transportation rate;

"(C) the carrier or freight forwarder did not properly or timely file with the Transportation Board or with the former Interstate Commerce Commission, as required, a tariff providing for such transportation rate or failed to enter into an agreement for contract carriage;

"(D) such transportation rate was billed and collected by the carrier or freight forwarder; and

"(E) the carrier or freight forwarder demands additional payment of a higher rate filed in a tariff.

If there is a dispute as to the showing under paragraph (1), such dispute shall be resolved by the court in which the claim is brought. If there is a dispute as to the showing under paragraph (2), such dispute shall be resolved by the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board. Pending the resolution of any such dispute, the person shall not have to pay any additional compensation to the carrier or freight forwarder. Satisfaction of the claim under subsection (b), (c), or (d) shall be binding on the parties, and the parties shall not be subject to chapter 149 of this title or chapter 119 of this title, as such chapter was in effect on the date before the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995.

"(b) CLAIMS INVOLVING SHIPMENTS WEIGHING 10,000 POUNDS OR LESS.—A person from whom the additional legally applicable and effective tariff rate or charges are sought may elect to satisfy the claim if the shipments each weighed 10,000 pounds or less, by payment of 20 percent of the difference between the carrier's applicable and effective tariff rate and the rate originally billed and paid. In the event that a dispute arises as to the rate that was legally applicable to the shipment, such dispute shall be resolved by the Transportation Board.

"(c) CLAIMS INVOLVING SHIPMENTS WEIGHING MORE THAN 10,000 POUNDS.—A person from whom the additional legally applicable and effective tariff rate or charges are sought may elect to satisfy the claim if the shipments each weighed more than 10,000 pounds, by payment of 15 percent of the difference between the carrier's applicable and effective tariff rate and the rate originally billed and paid. In the event that a dispute arises as to the rate that was legally applicable to the shipment, such dispute shall be resolved by the Transportation Board.

"(d) CLAIMS INVOLVING PUBLIC WAREHOUSEMEN.—Notwithstanding subsections (b) and (c), a person from whom the additional legally applicable and effective tariff rate or charges are sought may elect to satisfy the claim by payment of 5 percent of the difference between the carrier's applicable and effective tariff rate and the rate originally billed and paid if such person is a public warehouseman. In the event that a dispute arises as to the rate that was legally applicable to the shipment, such dispute shall be resolved by the Transportation Board.

"(e) EFFECTS OF ELECTION.—When a person from whom additional legally applicable freight rates or charges are sought does not elect to use the provisions of subsection (b), (c) or (d), the person may pursue all rights and remedies existing under this part or, for transportation provided before the effective date of this section, all rights and remedies that existed under this title on the day before the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995.

"(f) STAY OF ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION.—When a person proceeds under this section to challenge the reasonableness of the legally applicable freight rate or charges being claimed by a carrier or freight forwarder described in subsection (a) in addition to those already billed and collected, the person shall not have to pay any additional compensation to the carrier or freight forwarder until the Transportation Board has made a determination as to the reasonableness of the challenged rate as applied to the freight of the person against whom the claim is made.

"(g) NOTIFICATION OF ELECTION.—

"(1) GENERAL RULE.—A person must notify the carrier or freight forwarder as to its election to proceed under subsection (b), (c), or (d). Except as provided in paragraphs (2), (3), and (4), such election may be made at any time.

"(2) DEMANDS FOR PAYMENT INITIALLY MADE AFTER DECEMBER 3, 1993.—If the carrier or freight forwarder or party representing such carrier or freight forwarder initially demands the payment of additional freight charges after December 3, 1993, and notifies the person from whom additional freight charges are sought of the provisions of subsections (a) through (f) at the time of the making of such initial demand, the election must be made not later than the later of—

“(A) the 60th day following the filing of an answer to a suit for the collection of such additional legally applicable freight rate or charges, or

“(B) March 5, 1994.

“(3) PENDING SUITS FOR COLLECTION MADE BEFORE DECEMBER 4, 1993.—If the carrier or freight forwarder or party representing such carrier or freight forwarder has filed, before December 4, 1993, a suit for the collection of additional freight charges and notifies the person from whom additional freight charges are sought of the provisions of subsections (a) through (f), the election must be made not later than the 90th day following the date on which such notification is received.

“(4) DEMANDS FOR PAYMENT MADE BEFORE DECEMBER 4, 1993.—If the carrier or freight forwarder or party representing such carrier or freight forwarder has demanded the payment of additional freight charges, and has not filed a suit for the collection of such additional freight charges, before December 4, 1993, and notifies the person from whom additional freight charges are sought of the provisions of subsections (a) through (f), the election must be made not later than the later of—

“(A) the 60th day following the filing of an answer to a suit for the collection of such additional legally applicable freight rate or charges, or

“(B) March 5, 1994.

“(h) CLAIMS INVOLVING SMALL-BUSINESS CONCERNS, CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS, AND RECYCLABLE MATERIALS.—Notwithstanding subsections (b), (c), (d), and (e), a person from whom the additional legally applicable and effective tariff rate or charges are sought shall not be liable for the difference between the carrier's applicable and effective tariff rate and the rate originally billed and paid—

“(1) if such person qualifies as a small-business concern under the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 631 et seq.),

“(2) if such person is an organization which is described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from tax under section 501(a) of such Code, or

“(3) if the cargo involved in the claim is recyclable materials. In this provision, ‘recyclable materials’ means waste products for recycling or reuse in the furtherance of recognized pollution control programs.

“§ 13709. Additional motor carrier undercharge provisions

“(a)(1) A motor carrier of property (other than a motor carrier providing transportation in noncontiguous domestic trade) shall provide to the shipper, on request of the shipper, a written or electronic copy of the rate, classification, rules, and practices, upon which any rate agreed to between the shipper and carrier may have been based.

“(2) In those cases where a motor carrier (other than a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods or in noncontiguous domestic trade) seeks to collect charges in addition to those billed and collected which are contested by the payor, the carrier may request that the Transportation Board determine whether any additional charges over those billed and collected must be paid. A carrier must issue any bill for charges in addition to those originally billed within 180 days of the receipt of the original bill in order to have the right to collect such charges.

“(3) If a shipper seeks to contest the charges originally billed, the shipper may request that the Transportation Board determine whether the charges originally billed must be paid. A shipper must contest the original bill within 180 days in order to have the right to contest such charges.

“(4) Any tariff on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission on August 26, 1994, not required to be filed after that date is null and void beginning on that date. Any tariff on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission on the effective date of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995 not required to be filed after that date is null and void beginning on that date.

“(b) If a motor carrier (other than a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods) subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title had authority to provide transportation as both a motor common carrier and a motor contract carrier and a dispute arises as to whether certain transportation that was provided prior to the effective date of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995 was provided in its common carrier or contract carrier capacity and the parties are not able to resolve the dispute consensually, the Transportation Board shall resolve the dispute.

“§ 13710. Alternative Procedure for Resolving Undercharge Disputes

“(a) GENERAL RULE.—It shall be an unreasonable practice for a motor carrier of property (other than a household goods carrier) providing transportation that is subject to jurisdiction of subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title or was subject to jurisdiction under subchapter II of chapter 105 of this title, a freight forwarder (other than a household goods freight forwarder), or a party representing such a carrier or freight forwarder to attempt to charge or to charge for a transportation service the difference between—

“(1) the applicable rate that was lawfully in effect pursuant to a tariff that was filed in accordance with this chapter, or with respect to transportation provided before the effective date of this section in accordance with chapter 107 of this title as in effect on the date the transportation service was provided by the carrier or freight forwarder applicable to such transportation service; and

“(2) the negotiated rate for such transportation service if the carrier or freight forwarder is no longer transporting property between places described in section 13501(1) of this title or is transporting property between places described in section 13501(1) of this title for the purpose of avoiding the application of this section.

“(b) JURISDICTION OF TRANSPORTATION BOARD.—The Intermodal Surface Transportation Board shall have jurisdiction to make a determination of whether or not attempting to charge or the charging of a rate by a motor carrier or freight forwarder or party representing a motor carrier or freight forwarder is an unreasonable practice under subsection (a). If the Transportation Board determines that attempting to charge or the charging of the rate is an unreasonable practice under subsection (a), the carrier, freight forwarder, or party may not collect the difference described in subsection (a) between the applicable rate and the negotiated rate for the transportation service. In making such determination, the Transportation Board shall consider—

“(1) whether the person was offered a transportation rate by the carrier or freight forwarder or party other than that legally on file with the Transportation Board or with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as required, at the time of the movement for the transportation service;

“(2) whether the person tendered freight to the carrier or freight forwarder in reasonable reliance upon the offered transportation rate;

“(3) whether the carrier or freight forwarder did not properly or timely file with the Transportation Board or with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as required, a tariff providing for such transportation rate or failed to enter into an agreement for contract carriage;

“(4) whether the transportation rate was billed and collected by the carrier or freight forwarder; and

“(5) whether the carrier or freight forwarder or party demands additional payment of a higher rate filed in a tariff.

“(c) STAY OF ADDITIONAL COMPENSATION.—When a person proceeds under this section to challenge the reasonableness of the practice of a motor carrier, freight forwarder, or party described in subsection (a) to attempt to charge or to charge the difference described in subsection (a) between the applicable rate and the negotiated rate for the transportation service in addition to those charges already billed and collected for the transportation service, the person shall not have to pay any additional compensation to the carrier, freight forwarder, or party until the Transportation Board has made a determination as to the reasonableness of the practice as applied to the freight of the person against whom the claim is made.

“(d) TREATMENT.—Subsection (a) is an exception to the requirements of section 13702, and for transportation prior to the effective date of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995, to the requirements of sections 10761(a) and 10762 of this title as in effect on the date before the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995, relating to a filed tariff rate and other general tariff requirements.

“(e) NONAPPLICABILITY OF NEGOTIATED RATE DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROCEDURE.—If a person elects to seek enforcement of subsection (a) with respect to a rate for a transportation or service, section 13708 of this part shall not apply to such rate.

“(f) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘negotiated rate’ means a rate, charge, classification, or rule agreed upon by a motor carrier or freight forwarder and a shipper through negotiations pursuant to which no tariff was lawfully and timely filed and for which there is written evidence of such agreement.

“§ 13711. Government traffic

“A carrier providing transportation or service for the United States Government may transport property or individuals for the United States Government without charge or at a rate reduced from the applicable commercial rate. Section 3709 of the Revised Statutes (41 U.S.C. 5) does not apply when transportation for the United States Government can be obtained from a carrier lawfully operating in the area where the transportation would be provided.

“§ 13712. Food and grocery transportation

“(a) CERTAIN COMPENSATION PROHIBITED.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, it shall not be unlawful for a seller of food and grocery products using a uniform zone delivered pricing system to compensate a customer who picks up purchased food and grocery products at the shipping point of the seller if such compensation is available to all customers of the seller on a nondiscriminatory basis and does not exceed the actual cost to the seller of delivery to such customer.

“(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that any savings accruing to a customer by reason of compensation permitted by subsection (a) of this section should be passed on to the ultimate consumer.

“CHAPTER 139—REGISTRATION

“§ 13901. Requirement for registration

“A person may provide transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title or be a broker for transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of that chapter, only if the person is currently registered under this chapter to provide the transportation or service.

“§ 13902. Registration of motor carriers

“(a)(1) Except as provided in this section, the Secretary of Transportation shall register a person to provide transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title as a motor carrier if the Secretary finds that the person is willing and able to comply with—

“(A) this part, the applicable regulations of the Secretary and the Intermodal Surface

Transportation Board, and any safety requirements imposed by the Secretary,

“(B) the safety fitness requirements established by the Secretary under section 31144 of this title, and

“(C) the minimum financial responsibility requirements established by the Secretary pursuant to sections 13906 and 31128 of this title.

“(2) The Secretary shall consider and, to the extent applicable, make findings on, any evidence demonstrating that the registrant is unable to comply with the requirements of subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (1).

“(3) The Secretary shall find any registrant as a motor carrier under this section to be unfit if the registrant does not meet the fitness requirements under paragraph (1) of this subsection and shall withhold registration.

“(4) The Secretary may hear a complaint from any person concerning a registration under this subsection only on the ground that the registrant fails or will fail to comply with this part, the applicable regulations of the Secretary and the Transportation Board, the safety requirements of the Secretary, or the safety fitness or minimum financial responsibility requirements of paragraph (1) of this subsection.

“(b) MOTOR CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS.—

“(1) REGISTRATION OF PRIVATE RECIPIENTS OF GOVERNMENT ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary shall register under subsection (a)(1) a private recipient of governmental assistance to provide special or charter transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 as a motor carrier of passengers if the Secretary finds that the recipient meets the requirements of subsection (a)(1), unless the Secretary finds, on the basis of evidence presented by any person objecting to the registration, that the transportation to be provided pursuant to the registration is not in the public interest.

“(2) REGISTRATION OF PUBLIC RECIPIENTS OF GOVERNMENTAL ASSISTANCE.—

“(A) CHARTER TRANSPORTATION.—The Secretary shall register under subsection (a)(1) a public recipient of governmental assistance to provide special or charter transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 as a motor carrier of passengers if the Secretary finds that—“(i) the recipient meets the requirements of subsection (a)(1); and

“(ii)(I) no motor carrier of passengers (other than a motor carrier of passengers which is a public recipient of governmental assistance) is providing, or is willing to provide, the transportation; or

“(II) the transportation is to be provided entirely in the area in which the public recipient provides regularly scheduled mass transportation services.

“(B) REGULAR-ROUTE TRANSPORTATION.—The Secretary shall register under subsection (a)(1) a public recipient of governmental assistance to provide regular-route transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 as a motor carrier of passengers if the Secretary finds that the recipient meets the requirements of subsection (a)(1), unless the Secretary finds, on the basis of evidence presented by any person objecting to the registration, that the transportation to be provided pursuant to the registration is not in the public interest.

“(C) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PUBLIC RECIPIENTS.—Any public recipient of governmental assistance which is providing or seeking to provide transportation of passengers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 shall, for purposes of this part, be treated as a person which is providing or seeking to provide transportation of passengers subject to such jurisdiction.

“(3) INTRASTATE TRANSPORTATION BY INTERSTATE CARRIERS.—A motor carrier of passengers that is registered by the Secretary under subsection (a) is authorized to provide regular-route transportation entirely in one State as a motor carrier of passengers if such intrastate transportion is to be provided on a route over which the carrier provides interstate transportation of passengers.

“(4) JURISDICTION OVER CERTAIN INTRASTATE TRANSPORTATION.—Any intrastate transportation authorized under this subsection, except as provided in section 14501, shall be deemed to be transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title until such time, not later than 30 days after the date on which a motor carrier of passengers first begins providing transportation entirely in one State pursuant to this paragraph, as the carrier takes such action as is necessary to establish under the laws of such State rates, rules, and practices applicable to such transportation.

“(5) SPECIAL OPERATIONS.—This subsection shall not apply to any regular-route transportation of passengers provided entirely in one State which is in the nature of a special operation.

“(6) REVOCATION OF AUTHORITY FOR INTRASTATE TRANSPORTATION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (3) of this subsection, intrastate transportation authorized under this subsection may be suspended or revoked by the Secretary under section 13905 of this title at any time.

“(7) PREEMPTION OF STATE REGULATION.—No State or political subdivision thereof and no interstate agency or other political agency of two or more States shall enact or enforce any law, rule, regulation, standard or other provision having the force and effect of law relating to the provision of pickup and delivery of express packages, newspapers, or mail in a commercial zone if the shipment has had or will have a prior or subsequent movement by bus in intrastate commerce and, if a city within the commercial zone, is served by a motor carrier of passengers providing regular-route transportation of passengers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title.

“(8) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection, the following definitions apply:

“(A) PUBLIC RECIPIENT OF GOVERNMENTAL ASSISTANCE.—The term ‘public recipient of governmental assistance’ means—

“(c) RESTRICTIONS ON MOTOR CARRIERS DOMICILED IN OR OWNED OR CONTROLLED BY NATIONALS OF A CONTIGUOUS FOREIGN COUNTRY.—

“(1) If the President of the United States, or his or her delegate, determines that an act, policy, or practice of a foreign country contiguous to the United States, or any political subdivision or any instrumentality of any such country is unreasonable or discriminatory and burdens or restricts United States transportation companies providing, or seeking to provide, motor carrier transportation of property or passengers to, from, or within such foreign country, the President, or his or her delegate, may—

“(A) seek elimination of such practices through consultations; or

“(B) notwithstanding any other provision of law, suspend, modify, amend, condition, or restrict operations, including geographical restriction of operations, in the United States by motor carriers of property or passengers domiciled in such foreign country or owned or controlled by persons of such foreign country.

“(2) Any action taken under paragraph (1)(A) to eliminate an act, policy, or practice shall be so devised so as to equal to the extent possible the burdens or restrictions imposed by such foreign country on United States transportation companies.

“(3) The President, or his or her delegate, may remove or modify in whole or in part any action taken under paragraph (1)(A) if the President, or his or her delegate, determines that such removal or modification is consistent with the obligations of the United States under a trade agreement or with United States transportation policy.

“(4) Unless and until the President or his or her delegate makes a determination under paragraphs (1) or (3) above, nothing in this subsection shall affect—

“(A) operations of motor carriers of property or passengers domiciled in any contiguous foreign country or owned or controlled by persons of any contiguous foreign country permitted in the commercial zones along the U.S.-Mexico border as defined at the time of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995; or

“(B) any existing restrictions on operations of motor carriers of property or passengers domiciled in any contiguous foreign country or owned or controlled by persons of any contiguous foreign country or any modifications thereof pursuant to section 6 of the Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1982.

“(5) Unless the President, or his or her delegate, determines that expeditious action is required, the President shall publish in the Federal Register any determination under paragraphs (1) or (3) together with a description of the facts on which such a determination is based and any proposed action to be taken pursuant to paragraphs (1)(B) or (3) and provide an opportunity for public comments.

“(6) The President may delegate any or all authority under this subsection to the Secretary of Transportation, who shall consult with other agencies as appropriate. In accordance with the directions of the President, the Secretary of Transportation may issue regulations to enforce this subsection.

“(7) Either the Secretary of Transportation or the Attorney General may bring a civil action in an appropriate district court of the United States to enforce this subsection or a regulation prescribed or order issued under this subsection. The court may award appropriate relief, including injunctive relief.

“(8) This subsection shall not affect the requirement for all foreign motor carriers and foreign motor private carriers operating in the United States to fully comply with all applicable laws and regulations pertaining to fitness; safety of operations; financial responsibility; and taxes imposed by section 4481 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1994.

“§ 13903. Registration of freight forwarders

“(a) The Secretary of Transportation shall register a person to provide service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter III of chapter 135 as a freight forwarder, if the Secretary finds that the person is fit, willing, and able to provide the service and to comply with this part and applicable regulations of the Secretary and the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board.

“(b) The freight forwarder may provide transportation as the carrier itself only if the freight forwarder also has been registered to provide transportation as a carrier under this chapter.

“§ 13904. Registration of motor carrier brokers

“(a) The Secretary of Transportation shall register, subject to section 13906(b) of this title, a person to be a broker for transportation of property subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title, if the Secretary finds that the person is fit, willing, and able to be a broker for transportation and to comply with this part and applicable regulations of the Secretary.

“(b)(1) The broker may provide the transportation itself only if the broker also has been registered to provide the transportation under this chapter.

“(2) This subsection does not apply to a motor carrier registered under this chapter or to an employee or agent of the motor carrier to the extent the transportation is to be provided entirely by the motor carrier, with other registered motor carriers, or with rail or water carriers.

“(c) Regulations of the Secretary shall provide for the protection of shippers by motor vehicle, to be observed by brokers.

“(d) The Secretary may impose on brokers for motor carriers of passengers such requirements for bonds or insurance or both as the Secretary determines are needed to protect passengers and carriers dealing with such brokers.

“§ 13905. Effective periods of registration

“(a) Each registration under section 13902, 13903, or 13904 of this title is effective from the date specified by the Secretary of Transportation and remains in effect for a period of 5 years except as otherwise provided in this section or in section 13906. The Secretary may require any carrier or registrant to provide periodic updating of carrier information.

“(b) On application of the holder, the Secretary may amend or revoke a registration. On complaint or on the Secretary's own initiative and after notice and an opportunity for a proceeding, the Secretary may suspend, amend, or revoke any part of the registration of a motor carrier, broker, or freight forwarder for willful failure to comply with this part, an applicable regulation or order of the Secretary or of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, or a condition of its registration.

“(c)(1) Except on application of the holder, the Secretary may revoke a registration of a motor carrier, freight forwarder, or broker, only after the Secretary has issued an order to the holder under section 14701 of this title requiring compliance with this part, a regulation of the Secretary, or a condition of the registration of the holder, and the holder willfully does not comply with the order.

“(2) The Secretary may act under paragraph (1) of this subsection only after giving the holder of the registration at least 30 days to comply with the order.

“(d)(1) Without regard to subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, the Secretary may suspend the registration of a motor carrier, a freight forwarder, or a broker for failure to comply with safety requirements of the Secretary or the safety fitness requirements pursuant to section 13904(c), 13906, or 31144, of this title, or an order or regulation of the Secretary prescribed under those sections.

“(2) Without regard to subchapter II of chapter 5 of title 5, the Secretary may suspend a registration of a motor carrier of passengers if the Secretary finds that such carrier is conducting unsafe operations which are an imminent hazard to public health or property.

“(3) The Secretary may suspend the registration only after giving notice of the suspension to the holder. The suspension remains in effect until the holder complies with those applicable sections or, in the case of a suspension under paragraph (2) of this subsection, until the Secretary revokes such suspension.

“§ 13906. Security of motor carriers, brokers, and freight forwarders

“(a)(1) The Secretary of Transportation may register a motor carrier under section 13902 only if the registering carrier (including a foreign motor carrier, and a foreign motor private carrier) files with the Secretary a bond, insurance policy, or other type of security approved by the Secretary, in an amount not less than such amount as the Secretary prescribes pursuant to, or as is required by, sections 31138 and 31139 of this title, and the laws of the State or States in which the carrier is operating, to the extent applicable. The security must be sufficient to pay, not more than the amount of the security, for each final judgment against the carrier for bodily injury to, or death of, an individual resulting from the negligent operation, maintenance, or use of motor vehicles, or for loss or damage to property (except property referred to in paragraph (3) of this subsection), or both. A registration remains in effect only as long as the carrier continues to satisfy the security requirements of this paragraph.

“(2) A motor carrier and a foreign motor private carrier and foreign motor carrier operating in the United States (when providing transportation between places in a foreign country or between a place in one foreign country and a place in another foreign country) shall comply with the requirements of sections 13303 and 13304. To protect the public, the Secretary may require any such motor carrier to file the type of security that a motor carrier is required to file under paragraph (1) of this subsection.

“(3) The Secretary may require a registered motor carrier to file with the Secretary a type of security sufficient to pay a shipper or consignee for damage to property of the shipper or consignee placed in the possession of the motor carrier as the result of transportation provided under this part. A carrier required by law to pay a shipper or consignee for loss, damage, or default for which a connecting motor carrier is responsible is subrogated, to the extent of the amount paid, to the rights of the shipper or consignee under any such security.

“(b) The Secretary may register a person as a broker under section 13904 of this title only if the person files with the Secretary a bond, insurance policy, or other type of security approved by the Secretary to ensure that the transportation for which a broker arranges is provided. The registration remains in effect only as long as the broker continues to satisfy the security requirements of this subsection.

“(c)(1) The Secretary may register a person as a freight forwarder under section 13903 of this title only if the person files with the Secretary a bond, insurance policy, or other type of security approved by the Secretary. The security must be sufficient to pay, not more than the amount of the security, for each final judgment against the freight forwarder for bodily injury to, or death of, an individual, or loss of, or damage to, property (other than property referred to in paragraph (2) of this subsection), resulting from the negligent operation, maintenance, or use of motor vehicles by or under the direction and control of the freight forwarder when providing transfer, collection, or delivery service under this part.

“(2) The Secretary may require a registered freight forwarder to file with the Secretary a bond, insurance policy, or other type of security approved by the Secretary sufficient to pay, not more than the amount of the security, for loss of, or damage to, property for which the freight forwarder provides service.

“(3) The freight forwarder's registration remains in effect only as long as the freight forwarder continues to satisfy the security requirements of this subsection.

“(d) The Secretary may determine the type and amount of security filed under this section. A motor carrier may submit proof of qualifications as a self-insurer to satisfy the security requirements of this section. The Secretary shall adopt regulations governing the standards for approval as a self-insurer. Motor carriers which have been granted authority to self-insure as of the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995 shall retain that authority unless, for good cause shown and after notice and an opportunity for a hearing, the Secretary finds that the authority must be revoked.

“(e) The Secretary shall promulgate regulations requiring the submission to the Secretary of notices of insurance cancellation sufficiently in advance of actual cancellation so as to enable the Secretary to promptly revoke the registration of any carrier or broker after the effective date of the cancellation. The Secretary shall also prescribe the appropriate form of endorsement to be appended to policies of insurance and surety bonds which will subject the insurance policy or surety bond to the full security limits of the coverage required under this section.

“§ 13907. Household goods agents

“(a) Each motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title shall be responsible for all acts or omissions of any of its agents which relate to the performance of household goods transportation services (including accessorial or terminal services) subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title and which are within the actual or apparent authority of the agent from the carrier or which are ratified by the carrier.

“(b) Each motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title shall use due diligence and reasonable care in selecting and maintaining agents who are sufficiently knowledgeable, fit, willing, and able to provide adequate household goods transportation services (including accessorial and terminal services) and to fulfill the obligations imposed upon them by this part and by such carrier.

“(c)(1) Whenever the Secretary of Transportation has reason to believe from a complaint or investigation that an agent providing household goods transportation services (including accessorial and terminal services) under the authority of a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title has violated section 14901(e) or 14912 of this title or is consistently not fit, willing, and able to provide adequate household goods transportation services (including accessorial and terminal services), the Secretary may issue to such agent a complaint stating the charges and containing notice of the time and place of a hearing which shall be held no later than 60 days after service of the complaint to such agent.

“(2) Such agent shall have the right to appear at such hearing and rebut the charges contained in the complaint.

“(3) If such person does not appear at the hearing or if the Secretary finds that the agent has violated section 14901(e) or 14912 of this title or is consistently not fit, willing, and able to provide adequate household goods transportation services (including accessorial and terminal services), the Secretary may issue an order to compel compliance with the requirement that the agent be fit, willing, and able. Thereafter, the Secretary may issue an order to limit, condition, or prohibit such agent from any involvement in the transportation or provision of services incidental to the transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title if, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing, the Secretary finds that such agent, within a reasonable time after the date of issuance of a compliance order under this section, but in no event less than 30 days after such date of issuance, has willfully failed to comply with such order.

“(4) Upon filing of a petition with the Secretary by an agent who is the subject of an order issued pursuant to the second sentence of paragraph (3) of this subsection and after notice, a hearing shall be held with an opportunity to be heard. At such hearing, a determination shall be made whether the order issued pursuant to paragraph (3) of this subsection should be rescinded.

“(5) Any agent adversely affected or aggrieved by an order of the Secretary issued under this subsection may seek relief in the appropriate

United States court of appeals as provided by and in the manner prescribed in chapter 158 of title 28, United States Code.

“(d) The antitrust laws, as defined in the first section of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 12), do not apply to discussions or agreements between a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title and its agents (whether or not an agent is also a carrier) related solely to (1) rates for the transportation of household goods under the authority of the principal carrier, (2) accessorial, terminal, storage, or other charges for services incidental to the transportation of household goods transported under the authority of the principal carrier, (3) allowances relating to transportation of household goods under the authority of the principal carrier, and (4) ownership of a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title by an agent or membership on the board of directors of any such motor carrier by an agent.

“§ 13908. Registration and other reforms

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 18 months after the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995, the Secretary, in cooperation with the States, industry groups, and other interested parties shall conduct a study to determine whether, and to what extent, the current Department of Transportation identification number system, the single State registration system under section 14505, the registration system contained in this chapter, and the financial responsibility information system under section 13906, should be modified or replaced with a single, on-line Federal system.

“(b) FACTORS TO BE CONSIDERED.—In conducting the rulemaking under subsection (a), the Secretary shall, at a minimum, consider the following factors:

“(1) Funding for State enforcement of motor carrier safety regulations.

“(2) Whether the existing single State registration system is duplicative and burdensome.

“(3) The justification and need for collecting the statutory fee for such system under section 145-5(c)(2)(B)(iv).

“(4) The public safety.

“(5) The efficient delivery of transportation services.

“(6) How, and under what conditions, to extend the registration system to motor private carriers and to carriers exempt under sections 13502, 13503, and 13506.

“(c) FEE SYSTEM.—The Secretary may consider whether to establish, under section 9701 of title 31, a fee system for registration and filing evidence of financial responsibility under the new system under subsection (a).

“(d) DEADLINE.—The Secretary shall conclude the study under this section within 18 months and report to Congress on the findings, together with recommendations for any appropriate legislative changes that may be needed.

“CHAPTER 141—OPERATIONS OF CARRIERS

“SUBCHAPTER I—GENERAL REQUIREMENTS

“§ 14101. Providing transportation and service

“(a) A carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title shall provide the transportation or service on reasonable request. In addition, a motor carrier shall provide safe and adequate service, equipment, and facilities.

“(b) A carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title may enter into a contract with a shipper, other than a shipper of household goods described in section 13102(9)(A), to provide specified services under specified rates and conditions. If the shipper and carrier in writing expressly waives any or all rights and remedies under this part for the transportation covered by the contract, the transportation provided under that contract shall not be subject to those provisions of this part, and may not be subsequently challenged on the ground that it violates such provision. The parties may not waive the provisions governing registration, insurance, or safety fitness. The exclusive remedy for any alleged breach of a contract entered into under this subsection shall be an action in an appropriate State court or United States district court, unless the parties otherwise agree.

“§ 14102. Leased motor vehicles

“(a) The Secretary of Transportation may require a motor carrier providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title that uses motor vehicles not owned by it to transport property under an arrangement with another party to—

“(1) make the arrangement in writing signed by the parties specifying its duration and the compensation to be paid by the motor carrier;

“(2) carry a copy of the arrangement in each motor vehicle to which it applies during the period the arrangement is in effect;

“(3) inspect the motor vehicles and obtain liability and cargo insurance on them; and

“(4) have control of and be responsible for operating those motor vehicles in compliance with requirements prescribed by the Secretary on safety of operations and equipment, and with other applicable law as if the motor vehicles were owned by the motor carrier.

“(b) The Secretary shall require, by regulation, that any arrangement, between a motor carrier of property providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title and any other person, under which such other person is to provide any portion of such transportation by a motor vehicle not owned by the carrier shall specify, in writing, who is responsible for loading and unloading the property onto and from the motor vehicle.

“§ 14103. Loading and unloading motor vehicles

“(a) Whenever a shipper or receiver of property requires that any person who owns or operates a motor vehicle transporting property in interstate commerce (whether or not such transportation is subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title) be assisted in the loading or unloading of such vehicle, the shipper or receiver shall be responsible for providing such assistance or shall compensate the owner or operator for all costs associated with securing and compensating the person or persons providing such assistance.

“(b) It shall be unlawful to coerce or attempt to coerce any person providing transportation of property by motor vehicle for compensation in interstate commerce (whether or not such transportation is subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title) to load or unload any part of such property onto or from such vehicle or to employ or pay one or more persons to load or unload any part of such property onto or from such vehicle, except that this subsection shall not be construed as making unlawful any activity which is not unlawful under the National Labor Relations Act or the Act of March 23, 1932 (47 Stat. 70; 29 U.S.C. 101 et seq.), commonly known as the Norris-LaGuardia Act.

“§ 14104. Household goods carrier operations

“(a)(1) The Secretary of Transportation may issue regulations, including regulations protecting individual shippers, in order to carry out this part with respect to the transportation of household goods by motor carriers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title. The regulations and paperwork required of motor carriers providing transportation of household goods shall be minimized to the maximum extent feasible consistent with the protection of individual shippers.

“(2) Regulations of the Secretary protecting individual shippers shall include, where appropriate, reasonable performance standards for the transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title. In establishing performance standards under this paragraph, the Secretary shall take into account at least the following:

“(A) The level of performance that can be achieved by a well-managed motor carrier transporting household goods.

“(B) The degree of harm to individual shippers which could result from a violation of the regulation.

“(C) The need to set the level of performance at a level sufficient to deter abuses which result in harm to consumers and violations of regulations.

“(D) Service requirements of the carriers.

“(E) The cost of compliance in relation to the consumer benefits to be achieved from such compliance.

“(F) The need to set the level of performance at a level designed to encourage carriers to offer service responsive to shipper needs.

“(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the Secretary's authority to require reports from motor carriers providing transportation of household goods or to require such carriers to provide specified information to consumers concerning their past performance.

“(b)(1) Every motor carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title may, upon request of a prospective shipper, provide the shipper with an estimate of charges for transportation of household goods and for the proposed services. The Secretary shall not prohibit any such carrier from charging a prospective shipper for providing a written, binding estimate for the transportation and proposed services.

“(2) Any charge for an estimate of charges provided by a motor carrier to a shipper for transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title shall be subject to the antitrust laws, as defined in the first section of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 12).

“(c) The Secretary shall issue regulations that provide motor carriers providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title with the maximum possible flexibility in weighing shipments, consistent with assurance to the shipper of accurate weighing practices. The Secretary shall not prohibit such carriers from backweighing shipments or from basing their charges on the reweigh weights if the shipper observes both the tare and gross weighings (or, prior to such weighings, waives in writing the opportunity to observe such weighings) and such weighings are performed on the same scale.

“SUBCHAPTER II—REPORTS AND RECORDS

“§ 14121. Definitions

“(1) ‘carrier’ and ‘broker’ include a receiver or trustee of a carrier and broker, respectively.

“(2) ‘association’ means an organization maintained by or in the interest of a group of carriers or brokers providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title that performs a service, or engages in activities, related to transportation under this part.

“§ 14122. Records: form; inspection; preservation

“(a) The Secretary of Transportation or the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, as applicable, may prescribe the form of records required to be prepared or compiled under this subchapter by carriers and brokers, including records related to movement of traffic and receipts and expenditures of money.

“(b) The Secretary or Transportation Board, or an employee designated by the Secretary or Transportation Board, may on demand and display of proper credentials—

“(2) inspect and copy any record of—

“(A) a carrier, broker, or association; and “(B) a person controlling, controlled by, or under common control with a carrier if the Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, considers inspection relevant to that person's relation to, or transaction with, that carrier.

“(c) The Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, may prescribe the time period during which operating, accounting, and financial records must be preserved by carriers.

“§ 14123. Reports by carriers, brokers, and associations

“(a) The Secretary—

“(1) shall require class I and class II motor carriers (as defined by the Secretary) to file annual reports with the Secretary, including a detailed balance sheet and income statement, information related to the ownership or lease of equipment operated by the motor carrier, and data related to the movement of traffic and safety performance, the form and substance of which shall be prescribed by the Secretary and may vary for different classes of motor carriers;

“(2) may require carriers, freight forwarders, brokers, lessors, and associations, or classes of them as the Secretary may prescribe, to file quarterly, periodic, or special reports with the Secretary and to respond to surveys concerning their operations; and

“(3) shall have the authority upon good cause shown to exempt any party from the financial reporting requirements prescribed by subsection (a)(1) or (a)(2).

“(b) Any request for exemption under paragraph (3) of subsection (a) must demonstrate, at a minimum, that an exemption is required to avoid competitive harm and preserve confidential business information that is not otherwise publicly available. Exemptions shall only be granted for one-year periods.”

“(c) The Intermodal Surface Transportation Board may require carriers to file special reports containing information needed by the Transportation Board.

“CHAPTER 143—FINANCE

“§ 14301. Security interests in certain motor vehicles

“(1) ‘motor vehicle’ means a truck of rated capacity (gross vehicle weight) of at least 10,000 pounds, a highway tractor of rated capacity (gross combination weight) of at least 10,000 pounds, a property-carrying trailer or semitrailer with at least one load-carrying axle of at least 10,000 pounds, or a motor bus with a seating capacity of at least 10 individuals.

“(2) ‘lien creditor’ means a creditor having a lien on a motor vehicle and includes an assignee for benefit of creditors from the date of assignment, a trustee in a case under title 11 from the date of filing of the petition in that case, and a receiver in equity from the date of appointment of the receiver.

“(3) ‘security interest’ means an interest (including an interest established by a conditional sales contract, mortgage, equipment trust, or other lien or title retention contract, or lease) in a motor vehicle when the interest secures payment or performance of an obligation.

“(4) ‘perfection’, as related to a security interest, means taking action (including public filing, recording, notation on a certificate of title, and possession of collateral by the secured party), or the existence of facts, required under law to make a security interest enforceable against general creditors and subsequent lien creditors of a debtor, but does not include compliance with requirements related only to the establishment of a valid security interest between the debtor and the secured party.

“(b) A security interest in a motor vehicle owned by, or in the possession and use of, a carrier registered under section 13902 of this title and owing payment or performance of an obligation secured by that security interest is perfected in all jurisdictions against all general, and subsequent lien, creditors of, and all persons taking a motor vehicle by sale (or taking or retaining a security interest in a motor vehicle) from, that carrier when—

“(1) a certificate of title is issued for a motor vehicle under a law of a jurisdiction that requires or permits indication, on a certificate or title, of a security interest in the motor vehicle if the security interest is indicated on the certificate;

“(2) a certificate of title has not been issued and the law of the State where the principal place of business of that carrier is located requires or permits public filing or recording of, or in relation to, that security interest if there has been such a public filing or recording; and

“(3) a certificate of title has not been issued and the security interest cannot be perfected under paragraph (2) of this subsection, if the security interest has been perfected under the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the State where the principal place of business of that carrier is located.

“§ 14302. Pooling and division of transportation or earnings

“(a) A carrier providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title may not agree or combine with another such carrier to pool or divide traffic or services or any part of their earnings without the approval of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board under this section.

“(b) The Transportation Board may approve and authorize an agreement or combination between or among motor carriers of passengers, or between a motor carrier of passengers and a rail carrier of passengers, if the carriers involved assent to the pooling or division and the Transportation Board finds that a pooling or division of traffic, services, or earnings—

“(1) will be in the interest of better service to the public or of economy of operation; and

“(2) will not unreasonably restrain competition.

“(c)(1) Any motor carrier of property may apply to the Transportation Board for approval of an agreement or combination with another such carrier to pool or divide traffic or any services or any part of their earnings by filing such agreement or combination with the Transportation Board not less than 50 days before its effective date. Prior to the effective date of the agreement or combination, the Transportation Board shall determine whether the agreement or combination is of major transportation importance and whether there is substantial likelihood that the agreement or combination will unduly restrain competition. If the Transportation Board determines that neither of these two factors exists, it shall, prior to such effective date and without a hearing, approve and authorize the agreement or combination, under such rules and regulations as the Transportation Board may issue, and for such consideration between such carriers and upon such terms and conditions as shall be found by the Transportation Board to be just and reasonable. If the Transportation Board determines either that the agreement or combination is of major transportation importance or that there is substantial likelihood that the agreement or combination will unduly restrain competition, the Transportation Board shall hold a hearing concerning whether the agreement or combination will be in the interest of better service to the public or of economy in operation and whether it will unduly restrain competition and shall suspend operation of such agreement or combination pending such hearing and final decision thereon. After such hearing, the Transportation Board shall indicate to what extent it finds that the agreement or combination will be in the interest of better service to the public or of economy in operation and will not unduly restrain competition and if assented to by all the carriers involved, shall to that extent, approve and authorize the agreement or combination, under such rules and regulations as the Transportation Board may issue, and for such consideration between such carriers and upon such terms and conditions as shall be found by the Transportation Board to be just and reasonable.

“(2) In the case of an application for Transportation Board approval of an agreement or combination between a motor carrier providing transportation of household goods and its agents to pool or divide traffic or services or any part of their earnings, such agreement or combination shall be presumed to be in the interest of better service to the public and of economy in operation and not to restrain competition unduly if the practices proposed to be carried out under such agreement or combination are the same as or similar to practices carried out under agreements and combinations between motor carriers providing transportation of household goods to pool or divide traffic or service of any part of their earnings approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission before the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995.

“(3) The Transportation Board shall streamline, simplify, and expedite, to the maximum extent practicable, the process (including, but not limited to, any paperwork) for submission and approval of applications under this section for agreements and combinations between motor carriers providing transportation of household goods and their agents.

“(d) The Transportation Board may impose conditions governing the pooling or division and may approve and authorize payment of a reasonable consideration between the carriers.

“(e) The Transportation Board may begin a proceeding under this section on its own initiative or on application.

“(f) A carrier may participate in an arrangement approved by or exempted by the Transportation Board under this section without the approval of any other federal, State, or municipal body. A carrier participating in an approved or exempted arrangement is exempt from the anti-trust laws and from all other law, including State and municipal law, as necessary to let that person carry out the arrangement.

“(g) Any agreements in operation under the provisions of this title on the date of enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995 that are succeeded by this section shall remain in effect until further order of the Transportation Board.

“§ 14303. Consolidation, merger, and acquisition of control of motor carriers of passengers

“(a) APPROVAL REQUIRED.—The following transactions involving motor carriers of passengers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title may be carried out only with the approval of the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board:

“(1) Consolidation or merger of the properties or franchises of at least 2 carriers into one operation for the ownership, management, and operation of the previously separately owned properties.

“(2) A purchase, lease, or contract to operate property of another carrier by any number of carriers.

“(3) Acquisition of control of a carrier by any number of carriers.

“(4) Acquisition of control of at least 2 carriers by a person that is not a carrier.

“(5) Acquisition of control of a carrier by a person that is not a carrier but that controls any number of carriers.

“(b) The Board shall approve and authorize a transaction under this section when it finds the transaction is consistent with the public interest. The Board shall consider at least the following:

“(1) The effect of the proposed transaction on the adequacy of transportation to the public.

“(2) The total fixed charges that result from the proposed transaction.

“(3) The interest of carrier employees affected by the proposed transaction.

The Board may impose conditions governing the transaction.

“(c) Within 30 days after an application is filed under this section, the Board shall either publish a notice of the application in the Federal Register or (2) reject the application if it is incomplete.

“(d) Written comments about an application may be filed with the Board within 45 days after notice of the application is published under subsection (c).

“(e) The Board shall conclude evidentiary proceedings by the 240th day after notice of the application is published under subsection (c). The Board shall issue a final decision by the 180th day after the conclusion of the evidentiary proceedings. The Board may extend a time period under this subsection, except that the total of all such extensions with respect to any application shall not exceed 90 days.

“(f) A carrier or corporation participating in or resulting from a transaction approved by the Board under this section, or exempted by the Board from the application of this section pursuant to section 13541, may carry out the transaction, own and operate property, and exercise control or franchises acquired through the transaction without the approval of a State authority. A carrier, corporation, or person participating in that approved or exempted transaction is exempt from the antitrust laws and from all other law, including State and municipal law, as necessary to let that person carry out the transaction, hold, maintain, and operate property, and exercise control or franchises acquired through the transaction.

“(g) This section shall not apply to transactions involving carriers whose aggregate gross operating revenues were not more than $2,000,000 during a period of 12 consecutive months ending not more than 6 months before the date of the agreement of the parties.

“CHAPTER 145—FEDERAL-STATE RELATIONS

“§14501. Federal authority over intrastate transportation

“(a) MOTOR CARRIERS OF PASSENGERS.—No State or political subdivision thereof and no interstate agency or other political agency of two or more States shall enact or enforce any law, rule, regulation, standard, or other provisions having the force and effect of law relating to scheduling of interstate or intrastate transportation (including discontinuance or reduction in the level of service) provided by motor carrier of passengers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title on an interstate route or relating to the implementation of any change in the rates for such transportation or for charter transportation except to the extent that notice, not in excess of 30 days, of changes in schedules may be required. This subsection shall not apply to intrastate commuter bus operations.

“(b) FREIGHT FORWARDERS AND TRANSPORTATION BROKERS.—

“(1) GENERAL RULE.—Subject to paragraph (2) of this subsection, no State or political subdivision thereof and no intrastate agency or other political agency of two or more States shall enact or enforce any law, rule, regulation, standard, or other provision having the force and effect of law relating to intrastate rates, intrastate routes, or intrastate services of any freight forwarder or transportation broker.

“(2) CONTINUATION OF HAWAII'S AUTHORITY.—Nothing in this subsection and the amendments made by the Surface Freight Forwarder Derogation Act of 1986 shall be construed to affect the authority of the State of Hawaii to continue to regulate a motor carrier operating within the State of Hawaii.

“(c) MOTOR CARRIERS OF PROPERTY.—

“(1) GENERAL RULE.—Except as provided in paragraphs (2) and (3), a State, political subdivision of a State, or political authority of 2 or more States may not enact or enforce a law, regulation, or other provision having the force and effect of law related to a price, route, or service of any motor carrier (other than a carrier affiliated with a direct air carrier covered by section 41713(b)(4) of this title) or any motor private carrier or any transportation intermediary (as defined in sections 13102(1) and 13102(7) of this subtitle) with respect to the transportation of property.

“(2) MATTERS NOT COVERED.—Paragraph (1)—

“(A) shall not restrict the safety regulatory authority of a State with respect to motor vehicles, the authority of a State to impose highway route controls or limitations based on the size or weight of the motor vehicle or the hazardous nature of the cargo, or the authority of a State to regulate motor carriers with regard to minimum amounts of financial responsibility relating to insurance requirements and self-insurance authorization;

“(B) does not apply to the transportation of household goods; and

“(C) does not apply to the authority of a State or a political subdivision of a State to enact or enforce a law, regulation, or other provision relating to the price and related conditions of for-hire motor vehicle transportation by a tow truck, if such transportation is performed—

“(i) at the request of a law enforcement agency; or “(ii) without the prior consent or authorization of the owner or operator of the motor vehicle.

“(3) STATE STANDARD TRANSPORTATION PRACTICES.—

“(A) CONTINUATION.—Paragraph (1) shall not affect any authority of a State, political subdivision of a State, or political authority of 2 or more States to enact or enforce a law, regulation, or other provision, with respect to the intrastate transportation of property by motor carriers, related to—

“(i) uniform cargo liability rules,

“(ii) uniform bills of lading or receipts for property being transported,

“(iii) uniform cargo credit rules, or

“(iv) antitrust immunity for joint line rates or routes, classifications, and mileage guides, if such law, regulation, or provision meets the requirements of subparagraph (B).

“(B) REQUIREMENTS.—A law, regulation, or provision of a State, political subdivision, or political authority meets the requirements of this subparagraph if—

“(i) the law, regulation, or provision covers the same subject matter as, and compliance with such law, regulation, or provision is no more burdensome than compliance with, a provision of this part or a regulation issued by the Secretary of Transportation or the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board under this part; and

“(ii) the law, regulation, or provision only applies to a carrier upon request of such carrier.

“(C) ELECTION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a carrier affiliated with a direct air carrier through common controlling ownership may elect to be subject to a law, regulation, or provision of a State, political subdivision, or political authority under this paragraph.

“(4) This subsection shall not apply with respect to the State of Hawaii until August 22, 1997.

“§14502. Tax discrimination against motor carrier transportation property

“(1) ‘assessment’ means valuation for a property tax levied by a taxing district;

“(2) ‘assessment jurisdiction’ means a geographical area in a State used in determining the assessed value of property for ad valorem taxation;

“(3) ‘motor carrier transportation property’ means property, as defined by the Secretary of Transportation, owned or used by a motor carrier providing transportation in interstate commerce whether or not such transportation is subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title; and “(4) ‘commercial and industrial property’ means property, other than transportation property and land used primarily for agricultural purposes or timber growing, devoted to a commercial or industrial use and subject to a property tax levy.

“(b) The following acts unreasonably burden and discriminate against interstate commerce and a State, subdivision of a State, or authority acting for a State or subdivision of a State may not do any of them:

“(1) Assess motor carrier transportation property at a value that has a higher ratio to the true market value of the motor carrier transportation property than the ratio that the assessed value of other commercial and industrial property in the same assessment jurisdiction has to the true market value of the other commercial and industrial property.

“(2) Levy or collect a tax on an assessment that may not be made under paragraph (1) of this subsection.

“(3) Levy or collect an ad valorem property tax on motor carrier transportation property at a tax rate that exceeds the tax rate applicable to commercial and industrial property in the same assessment jurisdiction.

“(c) Notwithstanding section 1341 of title 28 and without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties, a district court of the United States has jurisdiction, concurrent with other jurisdiction of courts of the United States and the States, to prevent a violation of subsection (b) of this section. Relief may be granted under this subsection only if the ratio of assessed value to true market value of motor carrier transportation property exceeds by at least 5 percent, the ratio of assessed value to true market value of other commercial and industrial property in the same assessment jurisdiction. The burden of proof in determining assessed value and true market value is governed by State law. If the ratio of the assessed value of other commercial and industrial property in the assessment jurisdiction to the true market value of all other commercial and industrial property cannot be determined to the satisfaction of the district court through the random-sampling method known as a sales assessment ratio study (to be carried out under statistical principles applicable to such a study), the court shall find, as a violation of this section—

“(1) an assessment of the motor carrier transportation property at a value that has a higher ratio to the true market value of the motor carrier transportation property than the assessment value of all other property subject to a property tax levy in the assessment jurisdiction has to the true market value of all such other property; and

“(2) the collection of ad valorem property tax on the motor carrier transportation property at a tax rate that exceeds the tax rate applicable to taxable property in the taxing district.

“§14503. Withholding State and local income tax by certain carriers

“(a)(1) No part of the compensation paid by a motor carrier providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title or by a motor private carrier to an employee who performs regularly assigned duties in 2 or more States as such an employee with respect to a motor vehicle shall be subject to the income tax laws of any State or subdivision of that State, other than the State or subdivision thereof of the employee's residence.

“(2) In this subsection ‘employee’ has the meaning given such term in section 31132 of this title.

“(b)(1) In this subsection, an employee is deemed to have earned more than 50 percent of pay in a State or subdivision of that State in which the time worked by the employee in the State or subdivision is more than 50 percent of the total time worked by the employee while employed during the calendar year.

“(2) A water carrier providing transportation subject to the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Transportation under subchapter II of chapter 135 of this title shall file income tax information returns and other reports only with—

“(A) the State and subdivision of residence of the employee (as shown on the employment records of the carrier); and

“(B) the State and subdivision in which the employee earned more than 50 percent of the pay received by the employee from the carrier during the preceding calendar year.

“(3) This subsection applies to pay of a master, officer, or sailor who is a member of the crew on a vessel engaged in foreign, coastwise, intercoastal or noncontiguous trade or in the fisheries of the United States.

“(c) A motor and motor private carrier withholding pay from an employee under subsection (a) of this section shall file income tax information returns and other reports only with the State and subdivision of residence of the employee.

“§ 14504. State tax

“A State or political subdivision thereof may not collect or levy a tax, fee, head charge, or other charge on—

“(1) a passenger traveling in interstate commerce by motor carrier;

“(2) the transportation of a passenger traveling in interstate commerce by motor carrier;

“(3) the sale of passenger transportation in interstate commerce by motor carrier; or “(4) the gross receipts derived from such transportation.

“§ 14505. Single State registration system

“(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section, the terms ‘standards’ and ‘amendments to standards’ mean the specification of forms and procedures required by regulations of the Secretary to prove the lawfulness of transportation by motor carrier referred to in section 13501.

“(b) GENERAL RULE.—The requirement of a State that a motor carrier, providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 and providing transportation in that State, must register with the State is not an unreasonable burden on transportation referred to in section 13501 when the State registration is completed under standards of the Secretary under subsection (c). When a State registration requirement imposes obligations in excess of the standards of the Secretary, the part in excess is an unreasonable burden.

“(c) SINGLE STATE REGISTRATION SYSTEM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall maintain standards for implementing a system under which—

“(A) a motor carrier is required to register annually with only one State by providing evidence of its Federal registration under chapter 139;

“(B) the State of registration shall fully comply with standards prescribed under this section; and “(C) such single State registration shall be deemed to satisfy the registration requirements of all other States.

“(2) SPECIFIC REQUIREMENTS.—

“(A) EVIDENCE OF CERTIFICATE; PROOF OF INSURANCE; PAYMENT OF FEES.—Under the standards of the Secretary implementing the single State registration system described in paragraph (1) of this subsection, only a State acting in its capacity as registration State under such single State system may require a motor carrier holding a certificate or permit issued under this part—

“(i) to file and maintain evidence of such certificate or permit;

“(ii) to file satisfactory proof of required insurance or qualification as a self-insurer;

“(iii) to pay directly to such State fee amounts in accordance with the fee system established under subparagraph (B)(iv) of this paragraph, subject to allocation of fee revenues among all States in which the carrier operates and which participate in the single State registration system; and “(iv) to file the name of a local agent for service of process.

“(B) RECEIPTS; FEE SYSTEM.—The standards of the Secretary—

“(i) shall require that the registration State issue a receipt, in a form, reflecting that the carrier has filed proof of insurance as provided under subparagraph (A)(ii) of this subsection and has paid fee amounts in accordance with the fee system established under clause (iv) of this subparagraph;

“(ii) shall require that copies of the receipt issued under clause (i) of this paragraph be kept in each of the carrier’s commercial motor vehicles;

“(iii) shall not require decals, stamps, cab cards, or any other means of registering or identifying specific vehicles operated by the carrier;

“(iv) shall establish a fee system for the filing of proof of insurance as provided under subparagraph (A)(ii) of this subsection that—

“(I) is based on the number of commercial motor vehicles the carrier operates in a State and on the number of States in which the carrier operates,

“(II) minimizes the costs of complying with the registration system, and

“(III) results in a fee for each participating State that is equal to the fee, not to exceed $10 per vehicle, that such State collected or charged as of November 15, 1991; and

“(v) shall not authorize the charging or collection of any fee for filing and maintaining a certificate or permit under subparagraph (A)(i) of this paragraph.

“(C) PROHIBITED FEES.—The charging or collection of any fee under this section that is not in accordance with the fee system established under subparagraph (B)(iv) of this paragraph shall be deemed to be a burden on interstate commerce.

“(D) LIMITATION ON PARTICIPATION BY STATES.—Only a State which, as of January 1, 1991, charged or collected a fee for a vehicle identification stamp or number under part 1023 of title 49, Code of Federal Regulations, shall be eligible to participate as a registration State under this subsection or to receive any fee revenue under this subsection.

“CHAPTER 147—ENFORCEMENT; INVESTIGATIONS; RIGHTS; REMEDIES

“§ 14701. General authority

“(a) The Secretary of Transportation or the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, as applicable, may begin an investigation under this part on the Secretary’s or the Transportation Board’s own initiative or on complaint. If the Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable finds that a carrier or broker is violating this part, the Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, shall take appropriate action to compel compliance with this part. If the Secretary finds that a foreign motor carrier or foreign motor private carrier is violating chapter 139 of this title, the Secretary shall take appropriate action to compel compliance with that chapter. The Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, may take action under this subsection only after giving the carrier or broker notice of the investigation and an opportunity for a proceeding.

“(b) A person, including a governmental authority, may file with the Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, a complaint about a violation of this part by a carrier providing, or broker for, transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under this part or a foreign motor carrier or foreign motor private carrier providing transportation registered under section 13902 of this title. The complaint must state the facts that are the subject of the violation. The Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, may dismiss a complaint that it determines does not state reasonable grounds for investigation and action.

“(c) A formal investigative proceeding begun by the Secretary or Transportation Board under subsection (a) of this section is dismissed automatically unless it is concluded with administrative finality by the end of the third year after the date on which it was begun.

“§ 14702. Enforcement by the regulatory authority

“(a) The Secretary of Transportation or the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, as applicable, may bring a civil action—

“(1) to enforce section 14103 of this title; or

“(2) to enforce this part, or a regulation or order of the Secretary or Transportation Board, as applicable, when violated by a carrier or broker providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title or by a foreign motor carrier or foreign motor private carrier providing transportation registered under section 13902 of this title.

“(b) In a civil action under subsection (a)(2) of this section—

“(1) trial is in the judicial district in which the carrier, foreign motor carrier, foreign motor private carrier, or broker operates;

“(2) process may be served without regard to the territorial limits of the district or of the State in which the action is instituted; and

“(3) a person participating with a carrier or broker in a violation may be joined in the civil action without regard to the residence of the person.

“(c) The Transportation Board, through its own attorneys, may bring or participate in any civil action involving motor carrier undercharges.

“§ 14703. Enforcement by the Attorney General

“The Attorney General may, and on request of either the Secretary of Transportation or Intermodal Surface Transportation Board shall, bring court proceedings (1) to enforce this part or a regulation or order of the Secretary or Transportation Board or terms of registration under this part and (2) to prosecute a person violating this part or a regulation or order of the Secretary or Transportation Board or term of registration under this part.

“§ 14704. Rights and remedies of persons injured by carriers or brokers

“(a) A person injured because a carrier or broker providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title does not obey an order of the Secretary of Transportation or the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, as applicable, under this part, except an order for the payment of money, may bring a civil action to enforce that order under this subsection.

“(b)(1) A carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title is liable to a person for amounts charged that exceed the applicable rate for transportation or service contained in a tariff filed under section 13702 of this title.

“(2) A carrier or broker providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title is liable for damages sustained by a person as a result of an act or omission of that carrier or broker in violation of this part.

“(c)(1) A person may file a complaint with the Transportation Board or the Secretary, as applicable, under section 14701(b) of this title or bring a civil action under subsection (b) (1) or (2) of this section to enforce liability against a carrier or broker providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title.

“(2) When the Transportation Board or Secretary, as applicable, makes an award under subsection (b) of this section, the Transportation Board or Secretary, as applicable, shall order the carrier to pay the amount awarded by a specific date. The Transportation Board or Secretary, as applicable, may order a carrier or broker providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title to pay damages only when the proceeding is on complaint. The person for whose benefit an order of the Transportation Board or Secretary requiring the payment of money is made may bring a civil action to enforce that order under this paragraph if the carrier or broker does not pay the amount awarded by the date payment was ordered to be made.

“(d)(1) When a person begins a civil action under subsection (b) of this section to enforce an order of the Transportation Board or Secretary requiring the payment of damages by a carrier or broker providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title, the text of the order of the Transportation Board or Secretary must be included in the complaint. In addition to the district courts of the United States, a State court of general jurisdiction having jurisdiction of the parties has jurisdiction to enforce an order under this paragraph. The findings and order of the Transportation Board or Secretary are competent evidence of the facts stated in them. Trial in a civil action brought in a district court of the United States under this paragraph is in the judicial district in which the plaintiff resides or in which the principal operating office of the carrier or broker is located. In a civil action under this paragraph, the plaintiff is liable for only those costs that accrue on an appeal taken by the plaintiff.

“(2) All parties in whose favor the award was made may be joined as plaintiffs in a civil action brought in a district court of the United States under this subsection and all the carriers that are parties to the order awarding damages may be joined as defendants. Trial in the action is in the judicial district in which any one of the plaintiffs could bring the action against any one of the defendants. Process may be served on a defendant at its principal operating office when that defendant is not in the district in which the action is brought. A judgment ordering recovery may be made in favor of any of those plaintiffs against the defendant found to be liable to that plaintiff.

“(3) The district court shall award a reasonable attorney’s fee as a part of the damages for which a carrier or broker is found liable under this subsection. The district court shall tax and collect that fee as a part of the costs of the action.

“§ 14705. Limitation on actions by and against carriers

“(a) A carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title must begin a civil action to recover charges for transportation or service provided by the carrier within 18 months after the claim accrues.

“(b) A person must begin a civil action to recover overcharges within 18 months after the claim accrues. If the claim is against a carrier providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under chapter 135 of this title and an election to file a complaint with the Intermodal Surface Transportation Board or Secretary of Transportation, as applicable, is made under section 14704(c)(1), the complaint must be filed within 3 years after the claim accrues.

“(c) A person must file a complaint with the Transportation Board or Secretary, as applicable, to recover damages under section 14704(b)(2) of this title within 2 years after the claim accrues.

“(d) The limitation periods under subsection (b) of this section are extended for 6 months from the time written notice is given to the claimant by the carrier of disallowance of any part of the claim specified in the notice if a written claim is given to the carrier within those limitation periods. The limitation periods under subsection (b) of this section and the 2-year period under subsection (c) of this section are extended for 90 days from the time the carrier begins a civil action under subsection (a) of this section to recover charges related to the same transportation or service, or collects (without beginning a civil action under that subsection) the charge for that transportation or service if that action is begun or collection is made within the appropriate period.

“(e) A person must begin a civil action to enforce an order of the Transportation Board or Secretary against a carrier for the payment of money within one year after the date the order required the money to be paid.

“(f) This section applies to transportation for the United States Government. The time limitations under this section are extended, as related to transportation for or on behalf of the United States Government, for 3 years from the date of (1) payment of the rate for the transportation or service involved, (2) subsequent refund for overpayment of that rate, or (3) deduction made under section 3726 of title 31, whichever is later.

“(g) A claim related to a shipment of property accrues under this section on delivery or tender of delivery by the carrier.

“§ 14706. Liability of carriers under receipts and bills of lading

“(a)(1) A carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title shall issue a receipt or bill of lading for property it receives for transportation under this part. That carrier and any other carrier that delivers the property and is providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 or chapter 105 of this title are liable to the person entitled to recover under the receipt or bill of lading. The liability imposed under this paragraph is for the actual loss or injury to the property caused by (1) the receiving carrier, (2) the delivering carrier, or (3) another carrier over whose line or route the property is transported in the United States or from a place in the United States to a place in an adjacent foreign country when transported under a through bill of lading and, except in the case of a freight forwarder, applies to property reconstituted or diverted under a tariff filed under section 13702 of this title. Failure to issue a receipt or bill of lading does not affect the liability of a carrier. A delivering carrier is deemed to be the carrier performing the line-haul transportation nearest the destination but does not include a carrier providing only a switching service at the destination.

“(2) A freight forwarder is both the receiving and delivering carrier. When a freight forwarder provides service and uses a motor carrier providing transportation subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I of chapter 135 of this title to receive property from a consignor, the motor carrier may execute the bill of lading or shipping receipt for the freight forwarder with its consent. With the consent of the freight forwarder, a motor carrier may deliver property for a freight forwarder on the freight forwarder’s bill of lading, freight bill, or shipping receipt to the consignee named in it, and receipt for the property may be made on the freight forwarder’s delivery receipt.

“(b) The carrier issuing the receipt or bill of lading under subsection (a) of this section or delivering the property for which the receipt or bill of lading was issued is entitled to recover from the carrier over whose line or route the loss or injury occurred the amount required to be paid to the owners of the property, as evidenced by a receipt, judgment, or transcript, and the amount of its expenses reasonably incurred in defending a civil action brought by that person.

“(c)(1) A carrier may limit liability imposed under subsection (a) by establishing rates for the transportation of property (other than household goods) under which the liability of the carrier for such property is limited to a value established by written or electronic declaration of the shipper or by a mutual written agreement between the carrier and shipper.

“(2) If loss or injury to property occurs while it is in the custody of a water carrier, the liability of that carrier is determined by its bill of lading and the law applicable to water transportation. The liability of the initial or delivering carrier is the same as the liability of the water carrier.

“(d)(1) A civil action under this section may be brought against a delivering carrier (other than a rail carrier) in a district court of the United States or in a State court. Trial, if the action is brought in a district court of the United States is in a judicial district, and if in a State court, is in a State through which the defendant carrier operates.

“(2)(A) A civil action under this section may be brought against the carrier alleged to have caused the loss or damage, in the judicial district in which such loss or damage is alleged to have occurred.

“(B) A civil action under this section may be brought in a United States district court or in a State court.

“(C) In this section, ‘judicial district’ means (i) in the case of a United States district court, a judicial district of the United States, and (ii) in the case of a State court, the applicable geographic area over which such court exercises jurisdiction.

“(e) A carrier may not provide by rule, contract, or otherwise, a period of less than 9 months for filing a claim against it under this section and a period of less than 2 years for bringing a civil action against it under this section. The period for bringing a civil action is computed from the date the carrier gives a person written notice that the carrier has disallowed any part of the claim specified in the notice. For the purposes of this subsection—

“(1) an offer of compromise shall not constitute a disallowance of any part of the claim unless the carrier, in writing, informs the claimant that such part of the claim is disallowed and provides reasons for such disallowance; and

“(2) communications received from a carrier’s insurer shall not constitute a disallowance of any part of the claim unless the insurer, in writing, informs the claimant that such part of the claim is disallowed, provides reason for such disallowance, and informs the claimant that the insurer is acting on behalf of the carrier.

“(f) A carrier or group of carriers subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title may petition the Transportation Board to modify, eliminate, or establish rates for the transportation of household goods under which the liability of the carrier for that property is limited to a value established by written declaration of the shipper or by a written agreement.

“(g) Within one year after enactment of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995, the Secretary shall deliver to the appropriate Congressional authorizing committees a report on the benefit of revising or modifying the terms or applicability of this section, together with any proposed legislation to implement the study’s recommendations, if any.

“§ 14707. Private enforcement of registration requirement

“(a) If a person provides transportation by motor vehicle or service in clear violation of section 13901–13904 or 13906 of this title, a person injured by the transportation or service may bring a civil action to enforce any such section. In a civil action under this subsection, trial is in the judicial district in which the person who violated that section operates.

“(b) A copy of the complaint in a civil action under subsection (a) of this section shall be served on the Secretary of Transportation and a certificate of service must appear in the complaint filed with the court. The Secretary may intervene in a civil action under subsection (a) of this section. The Secretary may notify the district court in which the action is pending that the Secretary intends to consider the matter that is the subject of the complaint in a proceeding before the Secretary. When that notice is filed, the court shall stay further action pending disposition of the proceeding before the Secretary.

“(c) In a civil action under subsection (a) of this section, the court may determine the amount of and award a reasonable attorney’s fee to the prevailing party. That fee is in addition to costs allowable under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

“§ 14708. Dispute settlement program for household goods carriers

“(a)(1) As a condition of registration under section 13902 or 13903 of this title, a carrier providing transportation of household goods subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title must agree to offer to shippers neutral arbitration as a means of settling disputes between such carriers and shippers of household goods concerning the transportation of household goods.

“(b)(1) The arbitration that is offered must be designed to prevent a carrier from having any special advantage in any case in which the claimant resides or does business at a place distant from the carrier’s principal or other place of business.

“(2) The carrier must provide the shipper an adequate notice of the availability of neutral arbitration, including a concise easy-to-read, accurate summary of the arbitration procedure and disclosure of the legal effects of election to utilize arbitration. Such notice must be given to persons for whom household goods are to be transported by the carrier before such goods are tendered to the carrier for transportation.

“(3) Upon request of a shipper, the carrier must promptly provide such forms and other information as are necessary for initiating an action to resolve a dispute under arbitration.

“(4) Each person authorized to arbitrate or otherwise settle disputes must be independent of the parties to the dispute and must be capable, as determined under such regulations as the Secretary of Transportation may issue, to resolve such disputes fairly and expeditiously. The carrier must ensure that each person chosen to settle the disputes is authorized and able to obtain from the shipper or carrier any material and relevant information to the extent necessary to carry out a fair and expeditious decision making process.

“(5) No fee for instituting an arbitration proceeding may be charged the shipper; except that, if the arbitration is binding solely on the carrier, the shipper may be charged a fee of not more than $25 for instituting an arbitration proceeding. In any case in which a shipper is charged a fee under this paragraph for instituting an arbitration proceeding and such dispute is settled in favor of the shipper, the person settling the dispute must refund such fee to the shipper unless the person settling the dispute determines that such refund is inappropriate.

“(6) The carrier must not require the shipper to agree to utilize arbitration prior to the time that a dispute arises.

“(7) The arbitrator may provide for an oral presentation of a dispute concerning transportation of household goods by a party to the dispute (or a party’s representative), but such oral presentation may be made only if all parties to the dispute expressly agree to such presentation and the date, time, and location of such presentation.

“(8) The arbitrator must, as expeditiously as possible but at least within 60 days of receipt of written notification of the dispute, render a decision based on the information gathered, except that, in any case in which a party to the dispute fails to provide in a timely manner any information concerning such dispute which the person settling the dispute may reasonably require to resolve the dispute, the arbitrator may extend such 60-day period for a reasonable period of time. A decision resolving a dispute may include any remedies appropriate under the circumstances, including repair, replacement, refund, reimbursement for expenses, and compensation for damages.

“(c) Materials and information obtained in the course of a decision making process to settle a dispute by arbitration under this section may not be used to bring an action under section 14905 of this title.

“(d) In any court action to resolve a dispute between a shipper of household goods and a motor carrier providing transportation or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title concerning the transportation of household goods by such carrier, the shipper shall be awarded reasonable attorney’s fees if—

“(1) the shipper submits a claim to the carrier within 120 days after the date the shipment is delivered or the date the delivery is scheduled, whichever is later;

“(2) the shipper prevails in such court action; and

“(3)(A) a decision resolving the dispute was not rendered through arbitration under this section within the period provided under subsection (b)(8) of this section or an extension of such period under such subsection; or

“(B) the court proceeding is to enforce a decision rendered through arbitration under this section and is instituted after the period for performance under such decision has elapsed.

“(e) In any court action to resolve a dispute between a shipper of household goods and a carrier providing transportation, or service subject to jurisdiction under subchapter I or III of chapter 135 of this title concerning the transportation of household goods by such carrier, such carrier may be awarded reasonable attorney’s fees by the court only if the shipper brought such action in bad faith—

“(1) after resolution of such dispute through arbitration under this section; or

“(2) after institution of an arbitration proceeding by the shipper to resolve such dispute under this section but before (A) the period provided under subsection (b)(8) for resolution of such dispute (including, if applicable, an extension of such period under such subsection) ends, and (B) a decision resolving such dispute is rendered.

TITLE VII—EFFECTIVE DATE

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. PRESSLER. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that Ellen D. Hanson, a detailee from the Interstate Commerce Commission to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, be granted floor privileges during consideration of S. 1396.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PRESSLER. Madam President, I rise to begin the full Senate's consideration of S. 1396, the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995. I am very pleased to be joined in this effort by the bill's coauthor and comanager, Senator EXON. This legislation is also cosponsored by Senator BURNS, HOLLINGS, INOUE, HUTCHINSON, and KASSEBAUM. It is a bipartisan bill and I urge my colleagues' bipartisan support in its swift passage.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY

Introduced on November 3, 1995, this legislation is in direct response to the fiscal year 1996 budget resolution which assumes the elimination of the Interstate Commerce Commission [ICC] and the fiscal year 1996 Department of Transportation appropriations bill, H.R. 2002, which provides no funding for the ICC effective December 31, 1995—Public Law 104-50. It is the product of nearly a year's worth of bipartisan study, discussion, and work.

S. 1396 addresses what is fast approaching an emergency situation, the imminent, congressionally mandated shutdown of the ICC, in just over a month. However, it does so in a manner that embodies a reasonable oversight structure for our Nation's surface transportation industries. The bill would eliminate scores of unnecessary regulatory provisions in a balanced manner, yet preserve necessary core regulations and allow for continued protection of shippers and the consuming public.

This legislation would sunset two Federal agencies, the Interstate Commerce Commission [ICC] and the Federal Maritime Commission [FMC]. The ICC would terminate effective January 1, 1996, and the FMC would terminate 1 year later, January 1, 1997. The bill would repeal over 70 obsolete ICC regulatory functions and transfer residual functions partly to a newly established independent Intermodal Surface Transportation Board [Board] within DOT and partly to the Secretary of Transportation. When the FMC sunsets in 1997, its remaining functions would be transferred to the new Board.

S. 1396 reflects a board consensus, as demonstrated by the Commerce Committee's unanimous vote reporting it during its November 9 executive session. That consensus is likewise reflected by the overwhelming 417 to 8 vote approving a similar House bill on November 14. These votes are the expression of the underlying agreement on fundamental substance that has emerged on both sides of the Hill and both sides of the aisle during the past year.

Madam President, it is imperative that this bill be approved promptly if we are to authorize an orderly ICC sunset and identify which functions should be continued and by what agency or agencies, within the constraints of the funding approved. Once authorized, the timely shutdown of our Nation's oldest regulatory agency will be ensured. It is likewise imperative that the bill's careful consensus structure not be undone by ill-considered amendments.

BACKGROUND

I do want to briefly explain some of the underlying philosophy that went into the drafting of S. 1396.

Throughout the process, Senator EXON and I have worked together very closely. In fact, much of this legislation initially was written by my good friend. Over the months, much compromise and cooperation have produced what I feel is a balanced bill, addressing the immediate and compelling needs driving this legislation.

Our staff members and those of other committee members have collaborated throughout the process. Many long hours have been spent in joint meetings with various interest groups and constituents who have raised concerns or urged revisions to the bill. We have worked very hard to address legitimate concerns, and have made numerous changes and revisions throughout the process in an effort to address those concerns. However, as hard as we have worked to please all parties, our policy decisions ultimately were driven by the need to produce a bill which could be passed and signed into law as soon as possible.

Madam President, this is historic legislation. The ICC is our oldest independent regulatory agency. Established in 1887—108 years ago—it was originally created to protect shippers from the monopoly power of the railroad industry. Throughout subsequent years, the ICC's regulatory responsibilities were broadened and strengthened, and expanded to other modes. However, in more recent years, particularly in the 1980's, a series of regulatory reform bills significantly deregulated the surface transportation industries, reducing the ICC's authority.

Even with the considerable deregulation of the surface transportation industries, the ICC continues to maintain a formidable regulatory presence. The ICC determines policy through its rule-making and adjudicative proceedings to ensure the effective administration of the Interstate Commerce Act [ICA], related statutes, and regulations. The ICC maintains jurisdiction over the rail industry, certain pipelines, barge operators, bus lines, freight forwarders, household goods movers, and approximately 60,000 for-hire motor carriers. Yet its remaining functions can and should continue to be reduced. The same could be said about every Government agency. Less Government regulation would be better. S. 1396 moves us significantly in that direction.

In my view, the positive and necessary adjudicatory role of the ICC should not simply cease to exist at the end of this year. Indeed, the ICC has performed and continues to perform important functions. For example, my home State of South Dakota would today have hundreds of miles less rail service than we presently enjoy if it were not for the abandonment public interest review authority of the ICC. Indeed, rail service to many smaller communities throughout the country might not exist without the work of the ICC.

As I stated when I introduced this bill, budget constraints and appropriations legislation which terminate the agency's functions at the end of this year render moot any debate over whether or not we should keep the ICC. Given the realities of the budget situation, the issue is not whether the ICC should be terminated, but how it will be dismantled.

Therefore, we are tasked with determining what ICC functions can continue to be effectively performed by a successor with a very limited budget. S. 1396 provides a reasoned approach designed to ensure continued protections against industry abuse while at the same time assure the economic efficiencies of our Nation's surface transportation system can continue.

Specifically, this legislation would sunset the ICC and transfer its necessary residual functions to an independent Board within the DOT. The Board would administer the residual regulations over rail carriers and pipelines and provide limited adjudicatory oversight over the motor carrier industry. The Secretary of Transportation would inherit the residual nonadjudicatory functions governing the motor carrier industry.

The overall approach taken in this legislation was to limit its scope to the most efficient and simplest sunset and transfer bill, as opposed to a wholesale rewrite of transportation policy. Numerous unnecessary functions were eliminated. In transferring the essential functions that remain, some changes to these functions also had to be made due to the budget constraints which will confront the successor agency. While some also advocated a number of changes I considered to be far more regulatory in nature than I could support, I also recognize those concerns remain.

For example, I am particularly concerned about the concerns of small rail shippers and operators in light of continuing industry trends toward overwhelming industry concentration. Some have urged us to reregulate the rail industry to remedy these concerns. They argue that since the Staggers Act greatly deregulated the rail industry, shippers have been faced with difficult if not impossible relief mechanisms. They point out that the potential for shipper abuse increases with industry concentration. Their argument merit our consideration. However, I am not convinced a return to a pre-Staggers approach is the answer.

Even though I voted against the Staggers Act 15 years ago, I must say it has proved to be extraordinarily successful in reviving a failing rail industry. It generally has had a positive impact on shippers and industry alike. Therefore, at this point, it would be unsound policy to attempt to reregulate, without a clearer identification of the problems and reasonable belief the proposed regulations would remedy those problems.

At the same time, we have attempted to address a few very critical shipper concerns in those areas in which the ICC's current administrative procedures do not enable a shipper to even bring a legitimate grievance and receive an effective remedy. For example, S. 1396 would instruct the new Board to complete the ICC's pending noncoal rate guidelines proceeding so that smaller shippers have a practical procedure available in which to bring a rate case.

Some in the rail industry say this is reregulatory. I strongly disagree. If the mechanisms available under the Interstate Commerce Act are so cumbersome and cost prohibitive that a shipper cannot afford to seek a remedy—and in fact, the ICC has recognized this for the 10 years in which it has attempted to provide an alternative procedure—isn't it our duty to direct the new Board to ensure the ICA is administered effectively? Yes, it is.

SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

Let me now turn to an overview of the bill's main provisions:

As a general principle, S. 1396 continues the deregulation theme of the past 15 years by providing further regulatory reductions in the surface transportation industries. Overall, the bill is designed to repeal unnecessary regulations and authorize the transfer of residual functions to DOT. As I previously mentioned, many broader transportation policy proposals viewed by the committee to be reregulatory were not included in this bill. The committee intentionally limited the bill to matters related to sunseting the ICC and FMC and transferring essential functions to a successor.

1. GOVERNMENTAL EFFICIENCY AND SAVINGS

In response to the increasing emphasis on intermodalism and providing seamless transportation via rail, motor, and water modes in the transportation industry, the bill proposes to house the remaining Federal Government oversight of these transportation modes within a single agency with the expertise and perspective to view the transportation industry as increasingly intermodal. Consolidating remaining ICC and FMC functions within the Board accomplishes this goal. Further, by placing the Board within DOT, the Board would be relieved of separate administrative costs currently borne by both the ICC and the FMC.

2. RAIL TRANSPORTATION

Beyond weeding out outdated and unnecessary provisions, the bill generally does not attempt to substantively redesign rail regulation. Rather, it would preserve the careful balance put in place by the Railroad Revitalization and Regulatory Reform Act of 1976 and the Staggers Act of 1980 that have led to a dramatic revitalization of the rail industry while protecting significant shipper and national interests.

The bill would eliminate many outdated, unnecessary, and burdensome regulatory requirements and restrictions on the rail industry. These include, for example, the elimination of all regulation of rail passenger transportation, all tariff filings, tariffs for nonagricultural commodities, special provisions favoring recyclable commodities, and restrictions against carriers transporting their own commodities.

S. 1396 would retain those provisions needed to preserve an efficient national rail network comprised of numerous individual carriers. These include Federal regulatory oversight of line constructions, line abandonments, line sales, leases, and trackage rights, mergers and other consolidations—under a broad public interest standard and with ongoing regulatory oversight—car supply and interchange, antitrust immunity for certain collective activities—including pooling of equipment and services—competitive access, financial assistance, feeder line development, emergency service orders, and recordation of equipment liens.

The bill would also retain provisions that are necessary to protect rail shippers. These include the common carrier obligation, regulatory oversight of the reasonableness of rail practices, maximum rate regulation for captive traffic, advance notice of rate increases, and rate tariffs for agricultural commodities and fertilizer.

3. MOTOR CARRIER TRANSPORTATION

With regard to motor carrier transportation, S. 1396 would eliminate all vestiges of restrictive entry barriers, based either on a gauging of public demand or need for the service or on protecting existing carriers in a market. However, the bill would retain needed safety oversight and insurance requirements, by converting the existing ICC licensing program into a DOT-administered registration program based solely on a carrier's fitness to operate.

The bill would eliminate the regulatorily created distinction between common and contract motor carriers. Such categorizations have lost their meaning, because most carriers now operate in a dual capacity. Under the bill, all motor carriers would have a common carrier obligation, but would be free to contract for individual shipments.

The bill would eliminate tariffs and rate regulation for general trucking. Such regulation, introduced in the 1930's when trucking was a new and struggling industry, has outlived all usefulness. The trucking industry today is a mature, highly competitive industry in which competition disciplines rates far better than tariff filing and regulatory intervention. Only two specialized categories of trucking operations would still require tariffs and be subject to potential rate regulation. These are residential household goods movements and certain joint motor-water shipments involving Alaska, Hawaii, or U.S. territories—where the water portion of the movement is generally not as competitive and where advance notice and certainty of rates is particularly needed.

S. 1396 would retain the collective activity provisions that allow trucking companies to pool and coordinate their services. It would also retain the existing useful background commercial rules for the trucking industry, involving such matters as owner-operator leasing, lumping, and cargo liability.

While the Federal Government would establish the background rules applicable to trucking operations, the ICC's traditional function of informally resolving disputes in these areas would not be continued. The bill enables aggrieved parties to take such disputes directly to the courts.

4. HOUSEHOLD GOODS TRANSPORTATION

The bill would retain special regulatory provisions for residential household goods movements in view of the special consumer impacts associated with them. Because the individual householder moves infrequently, usually has little market information about such moves, and generally lacks bargaining power, the householder has little self-help ability in a transaction with a large personal impact. To prevent unfair rate advantages and abuses against this least-sophisticated class of shippers, the bill would retain tariff and rate reasonableness requirements for residential household goods moves. It would prohibit carriers from circumventing fair and uniform rates for residential moves by offering contract rates when dealing directly with the householder. The bill would retain the highly successful binding-estimate provisions applicable to household goods moves.

Because the ICC's informal dispute resolution services would no longer be available, the bill would require household goods carriers to offer impartial arbitration of disputes arising out of individual residential moves. This would provide an inexpensive and effective means of dealing with the typical household goods loss or damage claim, which is often so small that any litigation requirement becomes unduly expensive and burdensome.

5. INTERCITY BUS TRANSPORTATION

The bill would remove most remaining regulatory requirements and restrictions from the intercity bus industry. The safety-oriented carrier registration and insurance requirements would be applied to the bus industry, and certain limited restrictions against subsidized carriers competing with unsubsidized carriers would be retained. Also, the bill would retain the special public-interest merger standards and advance approval procedures for the intercity bus industry.

6. TRANSPORTATION INTERMEDIARIES

S. 1396 would continue the licensing and bond requirements for transportation brokers, which are needed to protect the public from unscrupulous brokers. The bill would also apply the same requirements to all freight forwarders. Currently freight forwarders of shipments other than household goods are not required to obtain a license from the ICC, but they are required to maintain a minimum level of cargo liability insurance. The insurance requirement has been difficult to monitor and enforce without a Federal licensing requirement. By extending the registration requirement to all freight forwarders, the bill would fill an inappropriate regulatory gap.

7. PIPELINE TRANSPORTATION

The bill would retain regulation of pipeline transportation insofar as it involves commodities other than oil and gas—which are regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission—or water—which is not now regulated. Because the pipeline industry has the same monopolistic characteristics as the rail industry, such regulatory oversight must be retained to protect against abuses.

8. DOMESTIC WATER CARRIAGE

The bill would effectively deregulate domestic water carriage in the contiguous-States markets, where there is ample competition to render such regulation unnecessary. However, the bill would retain residual authority over such water carriage for preemptive purposes, to prevent this transportation from being subjected to regulation under other laws.

The extent of maritime regulation that would be transferred to the Board is as yet undetermined. We plan to produce intervening legislation within the next year paring back the FMC's functions before they are transferred to the Board. In fact, the bill requires the Chairman of the new Board to meet with the Chairman of the FMC to develop a plan for the orderly transition of FMC functions to the Board. The Chairman of the Board would then submit the plan to the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, and the House of Representatives Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure not later than 6 months after enactment of this bill. We expect this plan would address any changes in FMC functions that may be legislated after enactment of this bill, the effect of this transfer on Board funding requirements, personnel matters, and other matters relevant to the transfer of remaining FMC functions on January 1, 1997.

9. TOW TRUCK OPERATIONS

This bill also would correct a serious problem that has been an unintended consequence of legislation last year preempting State and local motor carrier regulation. Specifically, the bill would enable State and local governments to regulate the price and related conditions of nonconsensual tows by tow truck operators, so as to preclude exorbitant prices and unreasonable conditions from being imposed on unwilling parties.

10. INTERMODAL TRANSPORTATION

This bill would remove all existing restrictions that specifically limit or preclude intermodal ownership and intermodal operations. Moreover, by combining the remaining functions of the existing transportation regulatory bodies, the bill should further foster intermodalism.

11. TRANSPORTATION OF FOREIGN CARRIERS UNDER NAFTA

The bill would retain the registration and insurance requirements for foreign motor carriers operating in the United States pursuant to the North American Free-Trade Agreement. The bill would transfer the ICC's existing oversight and enforcement responsibilities in this area to DOT.

Madam President, I have just given a rather lengthy overview of this very detailed legislation. Obviously, the very nature of this bill—sunsetting an agency—requires study and review of the entire Interstate Commerce Act. We have done just that over the past year. We have worked to craft a sound legislative proposal. It may not be a perfect bill. Not all parties support every single provision. However, Senator EXON and I and others have worked and compromised to address concerns throughout this entire process. The time has come to move forward. The clock is running.

This authorization legislation must be enacted if we are to ensure an orderly sunset of the ICC. I urge my colleagues to support the bill.

Madam President, I will yield to the distinguished Senator from Nebraska, who introduced the original legislation and has worked as part of a team in getting this worked out. I thank him very much.

I will say this to the Members of the Senate who have amendments or speeches on this bill. This is a piece of legislation we must pass. We are participating in the closing of a governmental agency, the ICC, and we hear all about closing agencies, and so forth. This is actually happening. We are eliminating many of its duties and putting other functions into the Department of Transportation. Some say, well, you are just taking the functions from one place and putting them into another. But they have been streamlined, and they will have the efficiencies of scale, being in the Department of Transportation. And we have worked this out in response to the budget and appropriations legislation that has been passed zeroing out the ICC. So we must act on this piece of legislation.

I should like to yield to the distinguished Senator from Nebraska for his remarks. And let me commend him for his outstanding leadership on this bill.

Mr. EXON. Madam President, I thank my friend and colleague from South Dakota, the chairman of the Commerce Committee, for his kind remarks. He has outlined very adequately and completely the bill before us that we have worked very, very hard on in the Commerce Committee.

I have long been associated with the Commerce Committee, especially surface transportation, all during my years of service in the U.S. Senate. Certainly with the end of the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is very important that we transfer the duties that have been performed by that agency to a division of Government that can accurately carry them out without the expense that we had with the Interstate Commerce Commission during their days of reining over a whole series of very complicated issues, which I think they accomplished very accurately, very intelligently, and made the right decision for the public at large.

But, Madam President, I rise to support the landmark legislation to eliminate the Interstate Commerce Commission, ICC, and the Federal Maritime Commission, the FMC, and to transfer their responsibilities to a new independent Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, which we call ISTB for short. This will be recognized under and reorganized under the Department of Transportation under this act.

Madam President, this legislation builds upon legislation that I introduced earlier this year known as the Transportation Streamlining Act. Following the introduction of the act, Senator PRESSLER, the chairman of the committee, and I worked with our staffs long and hard to find broad areas of agreement and compromise.

The work product of that negotiation is S. 1396, which is before us, which the chairman of the committee explained very adequately. This legislation represents the latest chapter in a thoughtful and deliberate effort to reform and deregulate America's great transportation sector. The more we can deregulate it, the better it will be and the more service it will provide.

In recent years, the Congress has worked very hard to bring fairness, efficiency, and productivity to all modes of transportation, many of them cited by Chairman PRESSLER. The Negotiated Rates Act approved in 1993 has already saved American businesses billions of dollars in so-called undercharge claims and litigation, ending the undercharge crisis and providing for a fair and expeditious settlement of all undercharge claims.

The Trucking Regulatory Reform Act of 1994, which Chairman PRESSLER alluded to, enacted dramatic and revolutionary Federal regulatory reform in truck and bus transportation. These measures, combined with the intrastate truck rate and route deregulation provision contained in the 1994 airport improvement program reauthorization bill, represent a body of law which compromises one of the most important, dramatic, productive and meaningful regulatory reform in modern times. S. 1396, now before us, known as the Pressler-Exon bill, continues that tradition.

Some areas of compromise were difficult to come by. On labor issues, I believe we have found a fair middle ground. A fair middle ground is the best we could do in this area, but it does protect the public interest in continued rail service while recognizing the sacrifices and the hardships of those hard-working men and women in the rail industry. The House of Representatives took a similar approach, and in conference we will need to carefully reconcile the two bills. As a longtime defender and supporter of an independent Interstate Commerce Commission, I support this legislation with enthusiasm, although I see the end of the Interstate Commerce Commission with some sadness.

As one of the few Members of Congress with regular contact with America's oldest independent regulatory agency, I know well the dedication, the commitment, the hard work of the Commission and all of its employees. A grateful Nation should thank those dedicated public servants for over a century of hard work. In a different time, with different fiscal realities, it might have been possible to maintain a strong independent regulatory agency, but that decision has now been made, and we must move on.

That being said, I support S. 1396 with a great deal of pride and enthusiasm. This legislation opens a new chapter in Federal transportation policy. This legislative effort can also serve as a model for other agencies to achieve the efficiencies that people demand, but also do the work that the people expect.

One might ask why there is a need for a successor to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the FMC. Simply put, if there were no forum to resolve disputes, oversee standard contract terms, establish national standards and assure fair treatment for shippers and communities, the great, efficient and productive transportation sector would simply spin into chaos, and all members of that transportation system of the United States understand that.

Each State would develop its own rules, and transportation companies would become entangled in needless complicated litigation. The Intermodal Surface Transportation Board, ISTB, will assure that there is continuity and efficiency in transportation policy.

The new ISTB within the Department of Transportation will continue to be the fair referee among shippers, carriers and communities. It will provide interested parties with one-stop shopping and administer a significantly streamlined body of law which assures that the public interest is protected in transportation policy.

This transfer of responsibility and streamlining of authority will reduce costs both to taxpayers and the private sector and, at the same time, assure the key transportation safety responsibilities do not fall between the cracks.

This legislation represents only a first step to even greater consolidation and efficiency of transportation regulation and dispute resolution. I am delighted that the Senate Commerce Committee adopted an amendment which Senators LOTT, BREAU, PRESSLER, and I offered to sunset the Federal Maritime Commission and transfer their responsibilities to the new board next year. If enacted, this legislation will bring to reality my vision that the new ISTB become a true one-stop shop for all modes of transportation. That is efficiency. By having a staggered sunset of the ICC and the FMC, the Congress has time to thoughtfully review the Nation's maritime laws and to consider reforms in this body of law before the final transfer of responsibility to the ISTB.

Madam President, our Nation takes for granted the blessings of America's great transportation system. Every part of the Nation has accessible transportation service. As Congress continues its efforts to keep regulation to the minimum necessary to protect the public interest, let us not forget what a valuable asset we have and how critically important it is that Congress carefully choose the correct course. We have done that in this instance.

I urge my colleagues to vote today to modernize America's transportation policy and pass S. 1396 as it was reported out of the Commerce Committee under the dedicated leadership of the chairman, Senator PRESSLER from South Dakota.

Madam President, I yield the floor.

Mr. PRESSLER addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no objection, the amendment is agreed to.

So the amendment (No. 3063) was agreed to.

Mr. PRESSLER. And considered as original text.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PRESSLER. Madam President, it is my strongest desire or request, if Senators have amendments, that they bring them to the floor or give us notification. I would like to make a motion, if the Senator from Nebraska agrees, that this bill pass. As far as I know, on this side of the aisle, I do not believe we have been notified of any amendments, but I am ready to go. Of course, I want to preserve the rights of all Senators.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Madam President, I thank the chairman of the committee. I will simply say to him that I believe this bill can be moved rather promptly. If there are any Senators wishing to offer amendments, I suggest this be the final notice to them to appear now or forever hold your peace, and by that, I mean I will certainly suggest the absence of a quorum in just a moment and then possibly the chairman and myself could confer. If we have no appearance of anyone or advised by anyone wishing to offer an amendment, we might check with the majority leader and minority leader and consider going to third reading.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. EXON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. EXON. Madam President, I understand the Senator from Washington wishes to ask unanimous consent to go into morning business for a short period of time. Neither the manager nor myself have any objections to that.

I will say that this is the last appeal that this Senator is going to make for anyone that has an amendment on this bill, please come to the Senate now, or I suggest the Senate may set a model for doing things in the future. If we would go quickly, maybe after the remarks by the Senator from Washington, to final reading, if no one is here to offer an amendment.

Mr. PRESSLER. Madam President, I do not want to hold anyone up, but I join my friend in that effort. I know at my party caucus today—if I may admit that we have caucuses—I did announce we were starting this bill at 2:15 and asked anyone who had amendments to please be here.

We do not know of any amendments. We are ready to pass this bill. If any Senator or anybody listening within the reach of my voice knows of any amendment, please call the hotline now or we will pass this bill in a few minutes.

Mr. EXON. May I add, Madam President, please come forward now or forever hold your peace. Thank you.

Mr. GORTON. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent to speak as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

BOSNIA

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, last night the President of the United States spoke to the people of the United States in justification of his dispatch of some 20,000 American troops to Bosnia to enforce the agreement entered into last week in Dayton, OH, ending for the time being, at least, the war in Bosnia.

President Clinton, I believe, made the best possible case for keeping a commitment which he made some months ago. I believe that commitment was both unwise and improvident. Nonetheless, it was made by the President.

For me, and I think for most other Members of Congress, the American national security interest in Bosnia is difficult to discern. We will be there in the hopes that we can settle a civil war which has gone on in its present form for some 4 years, but in a more profound fashion for at least 600 years.

The temporary peace which we will be in Bosnia to enforce is not a just peace. In fact, it ratifies almost all of the gains made as a result of the aggression of the Bosnian Serbs, leaves essentially unchallenged the ethnic cleansing, the displacement of people, and the killing of tens of thousands of innocent civilians.

We will be in Bosnia to support a peace of exhaustion, not a peace of justice.

Having said all that, Mr. President, and having spoken on this floor on numerous occasions in favor of an American policy that would have repudiated the arms embargo and allowed the citizens of Bosnia the effective means to fight for their own freedom and independence, we as Americans, we as United States Senators, are now faced with a fait accompli.

The President of the United States has the constitutional authority, in my view, to send troops to Bosnia and has announced that he is going to do so. As a consequence, however unwise we may consider that decision to have been, we are essentially faced with the proposition that to oppose it, to try to put roadblocks in its path, is likely to increase the already considerable danger in which our troops will find themselves on the front lines in Bosnia.

This reaction is one that I think is fairly common among Members of this body. It was expressed by three former National Security Advisers and Secretaries of Defense before the Armed Services Committee this morning, and by many outside commentators who have felt this administration's position with respect to Bosnia has been wrong-headed almost from the start.

So, sometime in the next week or 2 weeks, we will be presented here on the floor with some sort of resolution with respect to Bosnia. I do not believe any Member, at this point, can say that he or she will vote in favor of it sight unseen or, for that matter, will vote against it sight unseen. I hope we will be able to come up with a resolution which will have at least a wide degree of support here in this body, a broader and less partisan degree of support than was the case a few years ago with respect to the war in the gulf. Such a resolution, I believe, will concentrate on the situation as it exists on the ground today, given the President's decision, rather than with the process that led the President to this decision, one which gives unequivocal support to our troops, to the men and women whose lives will be at risk, to the maximum possible extent without saying we necessarily agree with the policy that brought them there in the first place.

We can all hope that in a period of 1 year the civil passions which have been so brutally expressed during the last 4 years will be extinguished. We can be pardoned for believing that is a very considerable long shot and that our troops, a year from now, are likely to come home leaving behind them exactly the situation they found when they arrived.

Nevertheless, this is the point we have reached. The President has done his best to explain it to the people of the United States, and I am certain that most of them, while they may not like the decision, will certainly provide support for those troops themselves.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION SUNSET ACT

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, the Senator from North Dakota is about to offer an amendment, as I understand it, that he has shown me, and I am opposed to it. But, to accommodate this Senator and the time constraints that I have this afternoon, I wish to make a few appropriate remarks about why, in my opinion, we should not adopt the amendment that is going to be offered by the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. President, this amendment seeks to change the way mergers are handled by curtailing the current ICC rail merger review process.

Under the current process, and the process in the bill before us—the bill by the chairman of the committee and this Senator from Nebraska—the so-called Intermodal Surface Transportation Board will approve, disapprove, or condition rail mergers based on the public interest standard currently used by the ICC, not a narrow, Department of Justice-type of antitrust analysis. The public interest standard—which is part of the bill offered by the chairman of the committee and myself—allows the board to weigh the public benefits of a merger against its competitive harms. This standard allows the board to condition and approve mergers that are in the public interest even though they might violate some of the existing antitrust laws. This review has served my farmers, the farmers of South Dakota, and other farmers as well. This concept must be kept as part of our overall transportation network if we want it to run efficiently, especially with regard to rural areas.

The current process provides for the input of the Department of Justice. Let me repeat that. The bill before us, the Pressler-Exon bill, provides for the input of the Department of Justice. This amendment goes beyond that and gives the Department of Justice the final say—or the veto, if you will—on rail mergers.

Even though a merger might be approved by the Board because it is in the public interest, is protection of captive shippers, and is in the best interest of the transportation system, the Department of Justice with all of the lawyers, or some other third party, could still bring suit and force divestiture based on antitrust laws under the Dorgan amendment that is going to be proposed.

Mr. President, this amendment erodes the jurisdiction of the Commerce Committee, and the new ISTB board because it invests too much authority in the Department of Justice.

Lawyers are a very important part of our society, depending on your point of view. It seems to me, Mr. President, that, if we are going to turn the Department of Justice into a veto authority which they did not have under the Interstate Commerce Commission and take away the independent functioning of the board that we are setting up with the Pressler-Exon measure in the Department of Transportation, we are taking a significant step backward. I see nothing whatsoever wrong with the Department of Justice being the lawyer-adviser to the new board that is created. They should be consulted as to whether or not there is a serious violation of antitrust laws. But customarily in business, in my experience in business, and my experience as an individual, I have never let my lawyer make decisions for me. I consult with my lawyer, if I need one. I listen to his counsel and advice as to what is right and what is wrong. But I think the decision has to rest with me. Likewise, for the newly independent board that is created under the Pressler-Exon bill, which vests in a new department under the Department of Transportation, we do not need to hamstring that board and their efforts with regard to what should and should not be done with regard to mergers.

So I hope if the amendment offered by the Senator from North Dakota comes to a vote the Senate will overwhelmingly oppose it.

The Senator from North Dakota was involved in a similar effort with regard to the FCC legislation wherein he and some others felt that the Department of Justice should have the final say so in matters before the Federal Communications Commission. That measure was turned down overwhelmingly by the U.S. Senate because, if we have supposedly independent operating boards, such as the Federal Communications Commission, they should not be hamstrung or dictated to by the Department of Justice. It seems logical as to why we should not accept the amendment being offered by the Senator from North Dakota because it would essentially do the same thing that the Senate voted down with regard to the Federal Communications Commission.

Therefore, I hope that we will give these new independent boards the authority that they obviously need to make decisions based upon the public interest. If turned over to the Justice Department, I believe that too much of the decisions would be made on legal technicality rather than that it is in the best interest of the public, in this case transportation, especially with regard to small States.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DORGAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3064

(Purpose: To establish certain competition standards with respect to mergers by railroad carriers)

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk, and I ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota (Mr. DORGAN), for himself and Mr. BOND, proposes an amendment numbered 3064.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 319, strike lines 1 through 9 and insert in lieu thereof the following—

(3) striking subparagraph (E) of subsection (b)(1) and inserting in lieu thereof the following—

“(E) whether the proposed transaction will not substantially lessen competition, or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce in any section of the country.”;

(4) striking paragraph (2) of subsection (b) and striking “(1)” in the first paragraph of subsection (b);

(5) striking subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof the following—

“(c) The Commission shall approve and authorize a transaction under this section when it finds the transaction is consistent with the public interest. In making the findings under subsection (b)(1)(E), the Transportation Board—

“(1) shall request an analysis by the Attorney General of the United States and shall accord substantial deference to the recommendations of the Attorney General and shall approve the transaction only if it finds that transaction does not violate the standards set forth in subsection (b)(1)(E). The transaction may not be consummated before the thirtieth calendar day after the date of approval by the Transportation Board. Action under the antitrust laws arising out of the merger transaction may be brought only by the Attorney General, and any action brought shall be commenced prior to the earliest time under this subsection at which a merger transaction approved under this subsection may be consummated. The commencement of such an action shall stay the effectiveness of the Transportation Board’s approval unless the court shall otherwise specifically order. In any such action, the court shall review de novo the issues presented. Upon consummation of a merger transaction in compliance with this subsection and after termination of any antitrust litigation commenced within the period prescribed in this section, or upon the termination of such period if no such litigation is commenced, the transaction may not thereafter be attacked in any judicial proceeding on the ground that it alone and of itself constituted a violation of any antitrust laws other than section 2 of Title 15, but nothing in this subsection shall exempt any rail carrier resulting from a merger transaction approved under this subsection from complying with the antitrust laws after the consummation of such transaction;

“(2) may impose conditions governing the transaction, including the divestiture of parallel tracks or requiring the granting of trackage rights. Any trackage rights conditions imposed to alleviate anticompetitive effects of the transaction shall provide for compensation levels to ensure that such effects are alleviated;

“(3) may approve and authorize the transaction only if it finds that the guaranty, assumption, or increase is consistent with the public interest, when the transaction contemplates a guaranty or assumption of payment dividends or of fixed charges or will result in an increase of total fixed charges; and

“(4) may require inclusion of other rail carriers located in the area involved in the transaction if they apply for inclusion and the Transportation Board finds their inclusion to be consistent with the public interest.”;

(6) striking the last two sentences of subsection (d);

(7) striking subsection (e); and

(8) notwithstanding any other provisions of this Act, amendments under this section shall apply to all applications pending before the Transportation Board.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I listened with interest to the statement of the Senator from Nebraska [Mr. EXON]. He is always persuasive and never in doubt. He makes an interesting case on this amendment. He pointed out that I offered a similar amendment on the telecommunications bill, and he is correct about that. I would offer a similar amendment if I had the opportunity dealing with airlines. I wish to explain that because it is the reason I offer this amendment today dealing with railroads.

Let me go to the subject of airline mergers just for a moment. Since deregulation of the airline industry, we have had more and more mergers. We now have five or six very large airlines in America controlling most of the air transportation in our country.

Prior to 1989, when two airlines wanted to merge, the Department of Transportation determined whether they are able to merge or not. They gave the approval. The Justice Department was allowed to comment on it in terms of the antitrust effects: whether the merger would be good for the country and whether it would be good for competitiveness. But the Department of Justice is only allowed to comment. Then the Department of Transportation makes the judgment. And so often the judgment is made on issues other than whether this is good for the country in terms of competition.

In fact, I would make the case that a number of the airline mergers that have occurred have not been good for this country. And if you established an antitrust standard that was worthy, you probably would not have had a couple of these mergers and would not have a couple that will occur in the future. But we have a circumstance where those mergers were approved by the Department of Transportation and Justice is only asked to give its opinion.

With respect to the previous bill that came before the Senate on telecommunications, the Federal Communications Commission will determine when there is competition in the local exchange with the regional Bell systems. I and several of my colleagues said, well, what we would like to do is have the people who know about competition and who know about these standards establish the Clayton Act test over in the Department of Justice about whether or when there is competition.

That is why we have antitrust lawyers in this country. We have, incidentally, about 1,000 antitrust attorneys working for the Federal Government, or we used to have. There have been some cutbacks. One thousand of them. I used to at least threaten to put their pictures on the sides of milk cartons because I swore that despite the fact there were 1,000 antitrust lawyers, you could see no evidence that they lived. You could see no evidence they did anything. You could see no evidence that they cared at all whether there was antitrust activities in this country. In fact, the fewer companies competing, the better, according to some in our Government. I happen to think the more companies that are competing, the better for our free-market system.

Some speak of a regulating mechanism that is good in a free market economy. Well, I have felt this way about airline mergers. I felt this way about the competition issues with the telecommunications bill, and I feel this way about the legislation before the Senate today.

Let me begin by saying I support the legislation brought to the floor of the Senate by the Senator from Nebraska and the Senator from South Dakota. I commend the two of them as well as Senator HOLLINGS for writing a piece of legislation that I think has great merit and that I support.

I would like to make a change, which is the reason I am offering this amendment. I would like to make an addition to it, but that does not diminish the fact I think all three have done a good job and I compliment them for their work.

This piece of legislation in its larger form abolishes the Interstate Commerce Commission and creates a board over in the Department of Transportation that assumes many of the functions that the old ICC used to have. It does it in a thoughtful way, and it does it in the right way, and I support most of what the Senators have brought to the floor.

I said during the Commerce Committee consideration of the legislation that I have made the case for some years the Interstate Commerce Commission had died from the neck up, and then I found myself mourning its passage. When people said, "Let's kill it," I worried that if you do not put something in its place, all you have are larger and larger railroads, and then a bunch of shippers out here trying to deal with something that is closer to a monopoly than it is to pure competition. It seems to me that we need a regulatory mechanism in between, and that is the purpose for which this board is created in this legislation.

For that I commend Senator PRESSLER, Senator EXON, and Senator HOLLINGS and fully support them. I come to the floor with this amendment to say I think this bill would be improved with one addition, and the addition is offered in my amendment which provides that the Justice Department would have an opportunity using the Clayton Act standard on defining competition to review mergers of railroads.

I recognize that the Interstate Commerce Commission has had the sole purview for reviewing mergers for some 70 years. I understand that. In my judgment, that does not make it right. I would prefer to see the authority given to the Justice Department and the antitrust folks in the Justice Department to evaluate: Is this merger something that makes sense for our country, or, with the Clayton standard, will the proposed merger substantially lessen competition, or would it tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce in any section of the country? That is the Clayton 7 standard which I would like the Justice Department to be able to apply.

My amendment provides that the Justice Department would make that judgment and offer its assessment using that standard to the Department of Transportation. And that the Board in the Transportation Department would give substantial deference to the Justice Department antitrust analysis. The amendment also provides that if the Justice Department antitrust lawyers who evaluate this determine, using the Clayton standard, that it would lessen competition substantially, it would tend to create a monopoly, et cetera, and it is not in the public interest to proceed and the board would proceed anyway. This establishes a provision by which the Justice Department or the Attorney General would be able to bring an action for a stay.

That is essentially what this amendment does and what it is.

The amendment says that notwithstanding any other provision of this act, amendments under this section shall apply to all applications pending before the transportation board.

I would like to just talk for a moment about the consequences of this. There are some who are concerned because there is a very large proposed merger that has been filed or will be filed that deals with two very large railroad companies. I have no interest in that question at all. I do not have any of those companies in North Dakota. In fact, if the larger railroad company that serves our State were involved in a merger right now, I would still be in the chamber offering it, and I would not care what the larger railroad company that serves our State thinks about it. My interest is making sure that we have a seabed of competition that is enforced by evaluating a standard that is reasonable for ensuring competition. Because only in that manner will consumers, shippers and others reliant on a competitive system, only in that manner will they be able to see that this market system works to their advantage as well.

I wish to say that I was approached by a representative of one of the railroads today asking why I was doing this, and I explained it had nothing to do with their company. In fact, it is interesting in that one of the companies—and I shall not name the companies—involved in this that is very concerned about it is a company that I have great fondness for because when I was a State tax commissioner many years ago and we put together, through an interstate compact, joint auditing around the country of companies, which made a lot of sense from the taxpayers' standpoint but which angered a lot of big companies. That particular rail company which I shall not name was almost alone in standing up in this country saying what the tax administrators around the country are doing on behalf of many States makes good sense and we support it.

This company exhibited some strength and courage in doing that, so I have some fondness for this company because they stood up and said this was the right thing to do when almost all other corporations in the country were squealing and were angry because finally the States were getting from them the taxes that they had legitimately owed for many, many years.

I say that only to demonstrate that I do not offer this because there is any merger pending or because there is any railroad that has an interest in one thing or the other. I offer this because I offered the amendment on the telecommunications bill, and I would offer the same amendment on a piece of legislation dealing with airline mergers.

It seems to me that we ought not continue a circumstance where the regulatory body, that is the old ICC and now the transportation board, will make decisions about whether a merger is in the public interest based on a range of factors that is spelled out in current law, which include, for example, the effect of the transaction on the adequacy of transportation, the effect on the public interest of including or failing to include other rail carriers, the total fixed chargers that result from the proposed transaction, the interest of carrier employees affected by the proposed transaction, and whether the proposed transaction would have an adverse effect on competition among rail carriers in the affected region.

These are the criteria that the Board itself will use. But the Board might decide to give substantial weight to two or three of the top criteria when, in fact, you might have a Clayton 7 standard here which clearly on its face is demonstrated not to be in the public interest with respect to this merger. I am not talking about this particular merger that I referred to earlier. I am talking about any merger. The Justice Department might evaluate that and say, "This is not in the public interest if you use the Clayton standard." And yet the regulatory Board might say, "Well, we view the top three areas here, top three factors, as having sufficient weight, so that we think this makes sense for our country."

My point is that I want those who are experts in our Government in the area of antitrust enforcement to have a valid and legitimate role in measuring whether a proposed merger in the railroad industry meets the test, meets the test for all Americans and for consumers. Is this in the public interest? Will it substantially lessen competition and tend to create a monopoly in any line of business in any section of this country? If so, in my judgment, it should not happen. It might be good for a couple companies now or in the future. But if that is the case, if it does not meet that test, then it should not happen.

I want the Justice Department to be able to take that measure and provide that information to the transportation board, and to have substantial weight and deference given to the Justice Department's recommendation. That is all this does. It does not do any more than that. I hope that, as we talk through this here in the next half-hour or hour, colleagues will see fit to support it.

The Senator from Nebraska is correct, I offered a similar amendment to the telecommunications bill on essentially this same kind of issue. He is correct about that. But it is, in my judgment, the right thing to do for our country, the right thing to do to ensure vibrant competition in a free market system. I hope people will look at this amendment and think it has merit and decide today to support it.

Mr. President, I would be happy to yield the floor at this point. I see my colleague, Senator BOND from Missouri, is seeking the floor. Let me yield the floor to him.

Mr. BOND addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. I am very pleased to rise in support of the amendment by my friend and colleague from North Dakota. I have a very clear-cut philosophy on economic issues. Government regulation is the least desirable and the least effective way to make sure that the customers—you and I as customers; we may be customers down the line—but as customers of businesses which are buying from other businesses or seeking services from them, we are all best served if the free market, rather than Government regulation, tells us how the service or products are delivered, what cost they are, and how readily available they are.

Now, to achieve this, it requires there be competition. You cannot rely on the marketplace to regulate provision of services or goods or their cost if there is no competition. We have in law the Clayton Act, section 7 of the Clayton Act, which requires mergers in almost any other industry to be judged, and they cannot go forward if the proposed transaction would substantially lessen competition or tend to create a monopoly in any line of commerce in any section of the country. That is basic American philosophy going back almost 100 years. We need in this country to have the marketplace work. And the marketplace works when there is competition.

Right now we have a situation in rail mergers under the Interstate Commerce Act that competition is not necessarily a criteria. The role of competition in rail mergers, in my view, should be the same as its role in any other mergers. If it does not leave a marketplace which can work, then we should not permit it. That is why we have laws against monopolization in section 2 of the Sherman Act and section 7 of the Clayton Act. That is why we have the FTC. That is why we have the Department of Justice. That is why we have access to the Federal courts.

The amendment proposed by the Senator from North Dakota would just say that we have to apply this same test when it comes to rail mergers. It seems to me to make a lot of sense.

Mr. President, I really got involved in this when shippers in my State expressed concern about their ability to both ship grain out in small lots of several cars, not unit trains, and purchasers who purchase inputs coming in by rail said, "Hey, we need to have competition so we can get the best service at the best price."

We had our second joint hearing of the Senate and House Small Business Committees on November 8 in the House Office Building. I thought I would just share with my colleagues a couple of the points made by the witnesses. Obviously, we did not have jurisdiction over this, but as a matter affecting small business, we advised the distinguished chairman and my predecessor in the Republican slot on the Small Business Committee that we wanted to hear from the shippers and others affected. We tried to get a good cross-section. But several of the points made by those witnesses I think should be called to the attention of my colleagues.

Prof. Curtis Grimm, who is professor and chair of the Transportation, Business, and Public Policy, College of Business and Management at the University of Maryland, College Park, said:

Under current standards, the ICC could approve a significantly anticompetitive merger, based on claims of speculative efficiency gains which would outweigh competitive harms.

Mr. President, just because two companies want to merge and they say they can be more efficient, it does not necessarily mean that competition and the people they serve are going to benefit if we wind up with a monopoly situation. Sure, a lot of people would merge if they could take care of all their competition and be the only supplier in the marketplace. We have seen that before.

We have seen that in transportation. Did you ever try to buy a ticket on an airline flight between two cities where there is only one carrier? Wow. It is usually cheaper to go around the world, no matter how close those two cities are. There was a time when only one carrier served Kansas City and St. Louis. You had to mortgage the home to fly back and forth. When competition comes in, you are going to find the best price and the best service. The same thing ought to be true, I believe, in other forms of transportation and, in this instance, in rail mergers.

One of the witnesses testifying before us, Ed Emmett, is the president of the National Industrial Transportation League, the trade association representing over 1,000 shippers. He said:

We are at a critical juncture in U.S. rail transportation policy. It is essential that the Congress act now to change the standards for judging rail mergers to focus more on competition.

A fellow who relies on rail transportation for his inputs and his products, James F. Jundzilo, transportation manager, Tetra Chemicals in Texas, testified:

We must put more focus on competition, involve anti-trust laws, competition in the public interest will then be maintained and protected.

A manager of Lange Co. of Conway Springs, KS, William F. York, said:

The current merger standards should be revised to focus more on the loss of competition and less upon so-called "efficiency gains" or allow the Department of Justice to review rail mergers as they do for other modes, including airlines.

Finally, one other private sector witness, Fredrick D. Palmer, General Manager and CEO of Western Fuels Association, said:

I submit that a virtually deregulated railroad system in serving a virtually deregulated electric utility industry cries out for the sorts of antitrust regulation to which both the electric utility and telecommunication industries are subjected.

Finally, we were pleased to have testify before us the Secretary of Agriculture, the Honorable Dan Glickman, who said:

If this latest railroad consolidation is approved, there will only be two major rail carriers west of the Mississippi. This could have serious implications for the rates and availability of rail transportation for the agriculture industry because of the reduced level of competition.

It is for that reason that we should provide the Clayton Act section 7 standards to judge rail standards. I am advised the groups supporting this amendment include the National Industrial Transportation League, the Society of Plastics, the American Farm Bureau, Western Fuels Association, AFL-CIO, Railway Labor, Western Shipper's Coalition, the Chemical Manufacturer's Association, and I believe that the administration also supports this amendment.

Mr. President, I think as we move toward a leaner and more efficient, more streamlined Federal Government, many functions of the Federal Government are excess, we do not need them. And there is one real area where we can get rid of a lot of regulation. It is where the marketplace forces competing suppliers of services or goods to compete on the quality of the service and the price.

You do not need Government bureaucracies. You do not need rate setting. You do not need the whole plethora of rules and regulations for Government to run it if to make a buck they have to provide better service or better products at a better price than their competitors.

That is the way we get the best deal. That is where our country has been most successful in making progress. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. PRESSLER addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota is recognized.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the Dorgan amendment. Let me make some general remarks on the issues surrounding anti-trust and some of the standards that are used.

First, let me point out that this amendment is an attempt to change the way the ICC looks at the competition among rail carriers, particularly whether the reduction in number of railroads at any one point is harmful.

Changing the standards by which rail mergers are judged is very complicated. The current public interest standard is well established and has been in place for 75 years. Changing them now, particularly while two class one railroads are in a merger proceeding, without fully understanding how these changes affect railroads, shippers, States and even the financial markets, is not the approach this committee should take without fully understanding what we are doing. Unintended consequences could easily result.

We have one of the most efficient, if not the most efficient, transportation system in the world. A large part of the system is the level of competition that exists between the transportation modes and within the modes. Merely trying to guarantee competition in the rail industry by changing how the ICC looks at competition could easily backfire.

In the last 15 years, there have been roughly a dozen rail mergers, a tremendous increase in concentration when just measured by the number of railroads. However, at the same time, real rates have fallen up to 50 percent with the decreases occurring every year across all major commodity groups and in all major geographic areas.

This cannot just be attributed to deregulation, because without ongoing effective competition, the productivity gains that deregulation made possible for the railroads would not have been passed through to the shippers.

Without fully understanding what we are doing in this area, we could easily turn back this trend, even though we have the best intentions. As a result, I urge that this amendment be defeated. I urge my colleagues to vote against it as well.

Now specifically, the ICC does not apply or follow antitrust law, though it pays very close attention to competitive issues. The rail system is the underpinning of our entire economy, and many rail efficiencies can be achieved only through mergers. The ICC applies a public interest standard, under which the public benefits, competitive or otherwise, of a merger, are balanced against any detriments, again competitive or otherwise, of a merger. This process allows the Commission to approve consolidations, even if they otherwise would violate antitrust laws.

Rather than applying a narrow DOJ-type antitrust analysis, the Commission has consistently looked at all factors in deciding the competitive impact of rail mergers and has found pure concentration measures, such as the number of railroads serving a point, to be too simplistic a standard.

The UP/MKT merger is a good example. In that case, a number of markets went from three railroads to two. Various parties, including the Justice Department, argued that there would be a reduction in competition in those markets and that conditions should be imposed to introduce additional rail competition in them. The Commission rejected these arguments, finding that the continued competition from a strong second railroad, the increase in competition from the merged system's introductions of new single-line routes and other service improvements and other competitive constraints, such as modal and source competition, would keep competition vigorous.

In fact, the Commission was right. Union Pacific, at the request of an agency in California, had studied the rates in these 3-to-2 markets before and after the UP/MKT merger which was consummated in 1988.

What they found was that in all cases, rates had decreased significantly, confirming the Commission's conclusion that competition would be intensified by moving from three railroads—one of which, MKT, was a weak third—to two strong rail competitors.

The evidence is overwhelming that a mere reduction in the number of railroads does not stifle competition and, in fact, can enhance it where the effect is to add to the efficiency of the merged carriers and to their ability to offer new services.

Furthermore, there is ample proof all across the country that where markets are served by two railroads with broad, equivalent networks, rail competition is intense. Perhaps the best example is a precipitous drop in Powder River Basin, WY, coal rates following the entry of CNW into the basin as a competitor, in partnership with UP against Burlington Northern.

This experience of huge declines in the rates for the transportation of Powder River Basin coal is flatly incompatible with any theory that two railroads in a market will collude to keep prices at or near the level where other constraints, such as truck or product competition, would cause a loss of traffic. Other examples are the intense two-railroad competition throughout the Southeast, between Norfolk Southern and CSX, and for Seattle/Tacoma and other Washington and Idaho traffic between BN and UP.

The number of railroads alone is not what matters, it is the effect of the merger on competition. Absent some compelling reason for change, which has yet to appear, the current process should stand.

Mr. President, let me make a few more remarks, and if other Senators come to the floor, I will certainly yield to them, but I want to continue to state my opposition to the Dorgan amendment.

Since 1920, due to the unique place railroads hold in our economy, Congress has consistently found that applying a pure antitrust standard to rail mergers is inappropriate.

Railroads carry roughly 40 percent of the freight in this country. These include 67 percent of new autos, 60 percent of coal, 68 percent of pulp and paper, 55 percent of household appliances, 53 percent of lumber and 45 percent of all food products. Much of this material is delivered on a just-in-time basis.

What is impressive about these numbers is that, unlike the trucking, ship, barge, and aviation industries, which operate over national systems and which are built and/or maintained by Government and open to all operators, the goods that move by rail are transported over fixed, regional systems. Due to the regional nature of railroads, much more interchange occurs than in other modes of transportation. That is, railroads hand off cargo to one another while other modes of transportation have very little of this type of interchange—truck to truck, barge to barge.

As a consequence, there are natural efficiencies in these other modes that do not readily occur in the rail industry. To achieve these types of efficiencies in the rail industry, there must be consolidations. Mergers and consolidations allow the rail industry to maximize the use of its tracks, cut down on interchange points, get the most out of switching yards, consolidate terminals and, in short, provide better service to its customers at the lower cost.

In the past, Congress has recognized that rail consolidations cannot occur if rails are subject to the normal antitrust tests imposed on other businesses. What makes the ICC test different? There are three major components.

The first is the use of the public interest standard. When looking at a merger, the Department of Justice focuses almost exclusively on possible reductions in competition. Under a pure antitrust review, the Justice Department could deny all rail mergers, which is what happened before the public interest standard was adopted. The ICC, on the other hand, takes into account both the public benefits of a merger, in terms of increased efficiencies, better service and enhanced competition, and any harms, in terms of reduced competition and loss of service.

The ICC also has the power to condition mergers to take care of anti-competitive concerns, while the Department of Justice could try to negotiate conditions, it does not have the same power and discretion as the ICC. As a result, the ICC can condition and approve mergers that are in the public interest but might normally fail a review by the Department of Justice.

The second is the open and well-developed process the ICC has for reviewing rail mergers. The process includes discovery, the development of a detailed record and a full and fair opportunity for all affected parties, including Federal agencies, States, localities, shippers and labor to be heard.

The DOJ process, on the other hand, is a closed informal ex parte process in which DOJ speaks with only those persons it chooses to and hears only the evidence it chooses to. There is no opportunity for discovery and no opportunity to learn and to respond to what others are saying.

Taken together, these first two points are extremely important. Railroads cannot be duplicated. The lines that exist today are essentially it. While spur lines and short lines may be built, there will be no more railroads built from Chicago to Los Angeles or New York to St. Louis, not in the near future at least.

A fair, impartial system bound by rules and precedent where all parties can be heard is important in deciding how these systems are rationalized. A DOJ review is far more subjective. All parties may not be heard and DOJ can decide which types of traffic patterns to look at, thereby making the process unpredictable from one case to another, from one administration to another.

So I think, in looking at this, we have to look at what we are dealing with in the uniqueness of railroads. We will not have more railroad lines built in this country in terms of major routes from Chicago to Los Angeles or New York to St. Louis. We will have those remaining. But the question is a public interest standard allows some flexibility on the part of the rule-making body which will now be in the Department of Transportation.

The third component is the actual approval. The Department of Justice does not approve mergers, it merely indicates whether or not the Government will bring suit to stop it. I think now under the Hart-Scott-Rodino standard, companies can get an opinion before they actually go to the expense of getting together.

The ICC process brings with it a formal approval and preemption of other laws. This is important for a number of reasons. Without formal approval, abandonments or line sales contemplated by a merger will have to be approved by another agency. State laws designed to prevent or hinder mergers will not be preempted. This is particularly important to the free flow of interstate commerce. Further, private parties would not be prohibited from bringing suit to seek conditions or block the transaction.

Finally, the Rail Labor Act would not be preempted. This is critical. Most railroads have 13 different unions with hundreds of different contracts. Absent the preemption of the Rail Labor Act and the imposition of labor protection conditions, the merging carriers would be forced to negotiate implementation agreements with each union under the Rail Labor Act. Because rail transportation is so vital to the economy, this act was created "to avoid any interruption to commerce." The act achieves this goal by obligating management and labor to negotiate using a long, drawn-out process. Using this act to negotiate the implementation of a merger would take years. As a result, without a formal approval, even if a merger were approved by the Department of Justice it would more than likely be years, if ever, before it could be implemented.

At the heart of this debate is, What is best for transportation policy? The more than 500 railroads that are in existence today are an integral part of our country's transportation system and are a linchpin in our economy. We have the best rail system in the world. The long-established national railroad merger policy has served our country well. Absent some compelling reason, there is no basis for gambling with the future of an industry that is so important to our Nation. That is an important point.

The second point is, the Senator from South Dakota spoke of deregulation. I am probably much less a fan of deregulation than he or some others in this Chamber. There are certain areas in our country where regulation, I think, is critical, where, without regulation, you get price gouging, you get pricing outside of a free market that disadvantages consumers. I will give some examples of that.

While I say this, I am not opposed to all deregulation. Some of it has been just fine. But the Senator from South Dakota and I come from States that are sparsely populated, and we often, especially in the area of transportation, suffer the consequences of a deregulated environment in which, without competition, they extract prices that are unreasonable.

I used an example of the airline industry in the Commerce Committee that the Senator from South Dakota will recall. I held up a picture of a big Holstein milk cow, called Salem Sue. It is the world's largest cow. It happens to be metal, but it is the largest cow. It sits on a hill about 25 or 30 miles from the airport in Bismarck, ND, if you drive down Interstate 94. I pointed out, if you get on a plane here in Washington, DC—and I admit, there are probably not a lot of folks who have an urgent desire to go see the world's largest cow just for the sake of going to see the largest cow—but if your desire is to go from Washington, DC, to see the world's largest Holstein cow, 30 miles from the Bismarck airport, you will pay more money for that trip than if you get on an airplane in Washington, DC, and fly to London to see Big Ben.

Or, let us decide you want to see Mickey Mouse and decide to fly to Disneyland in Los Angeles. You fly twice as far and pay half as much as getting on an airplane here and flying to Bismarck. Question: Why would that be? Answer: Because we do not have substantial competition. We do not have the kind of competition in the airline industry that you have if you are in Chicago or Los Angeles. There, if you show up at the airport you have dozens of choices, all competing against each other, and the result is attractive choices at lower prices. But, with deregulation in the airline industry, we have fewer carriers, fewer choices, and higher prices.

Now, deregulation is not always a boon to areas of the country that are sparsely populated. When you talk about deregulation with respect to railroad carriers, you must find a way, it seems to me, to provide protections for consumers. My concern about all of this is that the consumers be afforded an opportunity to have a price in the open market system or the free market system that is a fair price. We can foresee circumstances, and we have already seen some in this country, where the prices charged in areas where there is not substantial competition are prices far above those that should be charged.

I mentioned earlier that my amendment is not directed at any carrier or any company or any merger. I mentioned I was interested in the telecommunications legislation, and I rose to offer an amendment including the Department of Justice there. I also have been involved in similar issues.

About 3 weeks ago, I asked the Banking Committee in the Senate to hold hearings on bank mergers. This is not a newfound interest of mine. I was on a program awhile back and they asked me about my interests in having hearings on bank mergers. We were talking about a specific merger where two very large banks were combining and merging to be a much, much larger bank. They said, "Does that not make sense? Two banks become one and you are able to get rid of a lot of overhead and lay off 6,000 or 8,000 people. Does it not make sense to be more efficient?"

I said, "Following that logic, it makes sense to have only one bank in America, just one. That way you do not have any duplication. Of course, you do not have any competition either."

Following this to its extreme, this notion of efficiency without caring much about what it does to the free marketplace and without caring much about what violation occurs to the issue of competition, I suppose you could make a case that in every industry the fewer companies the better, because the fewer companies the more efficient you are going to become. You can lay off people. Of course, it would not be very efficient for consumers, because you can then engage in predatory pricing and no one can do very much about it.

The point I am making is, I am not here because of a railroad or a merger. I have been involved in the issue of bank mergers, calling for hearings at the Senate Banking Committee in recent weeks on that. I have been on the floor on several other merger issues. I hope that the Senate will take a look at this and decide this makes sense. If it does not, at the next opportunity I will again raise this issue.

Frankly, there are not many people in the Senate, or the House, for that matter, who care to talk much about antitrust issues. First of all, it puts most people to sleep. You know, it is better than medicine to put people to sleep. Nobody cares much about it. Nobody understands it much. It is, to some people, just plain theory. But, if you are a shipper and you are somewhere along the line someplace and the company that has captured the competition and is now the only opportunity for you to ship says to you, "By the way, here is my price; if you do not like it, tough luck," all of a sudden, this has more meaning than theory.

If you are a traveler on an airline and you have no competition when you used to, but now the only remaining carrier that bought its competition and became one says to you, "By the way, here is my price; if you do in the like it, do not travel," then this is more than theory.

That is what persuades me to believe that in a free market system, if you preach competition but do not care very much about whether meaningful competition exists, or whether we have adequate enforcement of antitrust standards, then in my judgment you do no favor to the free market economy.

I hope people will consider this on its merits and consider that it would be wise for our country and for public policy to ask that this legislation be amended with the amendment I have offered, along with Senator BOND.

Mr. President, I yield the floor. I make the point of order a quorum is not present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMPSON). The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I rise to speak against the Dorgan amendment.

I do very much appreciate the chairman of the committee putting forward this legislation. Our budget resolution envisions that the ICC will go out of existence. I think it is important that we pass this legislation. But I do not think it was the intent of the committee to change all the rules under which we have been operating as it concerns mergers in this area. I think turning over the power to the Department of Justice and changing the criteria that are being used for antitrust purposes would not be a very good thing for us to do, and there is no reason to do it. We are talking about saving money here. We are talking about doing away with the duplication of administration. I do not think we have to also change all of the rules and the precedents that have been set for the last 70 years in railroad mergers.

There are many people who have legitimate concerns about some of the railroad mergers that are being considered right now. But these were brought into play before we brought this bill to the floor. And I think to change the rules is not necessary, nor desirable. I think we have the capabilities to judge any mergers. We have the ability to judge the issues under the standards that we have had before in transferring that to the Department of Transportation.

The second reason I think it is important to keep the standards we have is that the Department of Transportation and the new Board that will be created will have the transportation background. They will specialize in this area. That will be their area of expertise and concern. I do not think it does us any good to go to the Department of Justice, which has so many other areas of interest, and I do not think that having this transfer does anything for the merits of the issue, and it could hurt by changing precedent that has been in place.

One of the things that is so important in our judicial system is the value of precedent. We place a great deal of emphasis on being able to determine from what has happened in the past what will be allowed in the future. That is one of the ways that businesses make their decisions. They would look at a merger, they would look at a precedent, and they would make a business decision if this is something that would go through and what the concerns would be.

I think it is important we keep that value of precedent so that we will have an orderly business climate that allows people to make good business decisions without disrupting 70 years of precedent in this area.

So I hope that we can defeat the Dorgan amendment and stick with the committee bill. I think it is a good bill. It has many merits. It is certainly going to save money.

We are on the road to eliminating the ICC because it is not necessary. Let us not throw out the value of what has gone on in the past just because we are putting it into a more efficient system. I think it could cost us much more in the long run and certainly cost competitiveness and cost to customers if we increase the regulatory environment and therefore cause people to have to raise prices. So I hope we can defeat this amendment, and I yield the floor.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized as if in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SENDING AMERICAN TROOPS TO BOSNIA

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, I feel compelled today to make a couple of statements about the President's message last night.

I am very disturbed at what is happening, and I think all of America needs to know what is going on. I commend the President on giving a beautiful, persuasive speech, as he is very good at doing. However, I suggest, Mr. President, that as we are speaking now and as time is creeping by, our troops are on their way to Bosnia.

It is my understanding that the distinguished Senator from Colorado, who will be here in just a moment, made a trip over Thanksgiving, which is essentially the same trip I made the week before, into the northeast sector of Bosnia, which is the area where our troops are going to be. A number of people have gone over to Bosnia but have not gone beyond Sarajevo and do not really have a feel for the environment in which our President has this obsession of sending our American troops.

Mr. President, last night he talked about morality and about what our moral obligation is in Bosnia, and the fact that we have a moral obligation to see how many people we are going to be able to save from the brutality that could be taking place there.

He talked about our commitment to NATO. And I would like to throw out a couple of ideas, a couple of thoughts. Mr. President, when I went to Sarajevo it was the middle of a blizzard, a snowstorm. We had a hard time getting up there. There were not any Americans up there. There were not any Americans going to the northeast sector, that area around the Posavina corridor and Tuzla, and south of Hungary, which is an area where our troops are going to be deployed from the 1st Armored Division where they are being trained for this kind of deployment. And that may be happening and is happening, I suggest, as we speak.

I heard several people say that we need to wait until we have hearings and let some time go by. But each hour that goes by, the American people need to know the President has a strategy to get our troops over there, to put us in a position where we are going to have to, by denying the authorization of sending troops into Bosnia on the ground, we are turning our backs on troops who are already there. And this is a position that we are now getting into. And each hour that goes by we are getting in deeper and deeper.

I can recall not being able to get up there until General Rupert Smith, who is the successor of Michael Rose as the commander there of the U.N. forces in Bosnia, he agreed to take me up. And as we went up we went over almost every square mile of that area that is called the northeast sector, where our troops are going to be deployed, not more than 100 feet off the ground—because I have a background in aviation,

I know we were not anywhere higher than that—we were in the middle of a blizzard.

Mr. President, this is not the Rocky Mountains we are talking about. This is an area of cliffs and caves. For the first time I could see why during the Second World War that they were able to withstand the very best that Hitler had to offer on a ratio of 1 to 8 because of the very unique geography we are dealing with.

As I looked down I thought, there are not any roads down there, there are not any valleys, not the traditional valleys that you would have in the terrain that we think of as being mountainous terrain. And so all these tanks and all these armored vehicles would not really have any way to maneuver in that area.

And, Mr. President, I think the President of the United States is putting us in a position where it is going to be too late. You know, we could come back and talk about whether or not we should send troops over, whether or not there are strategic interests as far as our Nation's security is concerned. And by that time, we are going to have our troops over there.

I think the President is looking at—he has been talking about 20,000 or 25,000 troops for so long now, for 2 years, I think it is an obsession with him. He is no longer thinking of them as being faces of real human beings. I think it is a faceless gesture when he says, we want to send 20,000 American troops into Bosnia.

But I went up to where the 1st Armored Division was training these young men and women who will be the first to go, who I suggest—I had breakfast with many of them in the mess hall. And they are on their way to Bosnia right now as we speak. And those individuals all asked me, "What is our mission? We don't understand what our mission is." Of course, I tried to be as optimistic as possible. I said, "We're always behind our troops. Whatever happens, we're going to be supporting our troops." But as far as the mission is concerned, I do not know what the mission is.

In the speech last night the President kept using the term over and over again—he said, "The mission is clear and limited." But he never said what the mission was. It is a humanitarian mission. And I think we have about half the world that is covered with problems, with ethnic cleansing, with human rights violations. I am not sure whether we feel that we—or the President feels that we—have the resources and the military assets to go out and take care of all these problems. Obviously, we do not. We are operating on a defense budget now that is down comparable to what it was in 1980 when it could not afford spare parts. Yet we are taking on all these humanitarian problems around the world.

I had occasion to talk to James Tayrien. James Tayrien is from Poteau, OK. He would be one of the first ones to go. I came home and talked to his mother, Estella, down in Poteau. She asked me the same question. I cannot answer it. It is very easy to get engaged in these things and send troops in, but it is hard to bring them out.

Look at Vietnam. It was very easy to send them in. Look at the other cases that we have. Mission creep. If there was ever a classical environment for mission creep, that is it over in Bosnia. In fact, we have already crept. The mission was to be peacekeeping. Now it is peace implementation. There is a big difference, Mr. President, between peacekeeping and peace implementation. Peace implementation is the recognition there is no peace to keep right now.

The President last night said, of course, the war is over. The war is not over. We went up there. We were in Tuzla. We could hear the firing, the firepower that was going on. It has not stopped. And we are dealing with three major factions over there. And I suggest to you that one of the factions was not in Dayton, OH. Milosevic does not speak for the Bosnian Serbs.

It was my experience—and I see the distinguished Senator from Colorado is here. He is the only other Senator or House Member, to my knowledge, who has been in the northeast sector, in the Tuzla area. The point I am trying to get across here is that those people who are around that peace table are not speaking for the factions that were firing guns as we were up there just a couple weeks ago.

I mean, they are up there. They could be Croats. They could be Serbs. They could be Bosnian Serbs. They could be Moslems. We do not know who they are. They could be any of these rogue factions. We hear a lot about the major factions that are over there. We know that three major factions have fired on their own troops just to blame the other side for sympathy. Anyone with that mentality is going to be firing on American troops. But we do not say anything about the other rogue factions, such as the Black Swans, the Arkan Tigers. We have Iranians. We have all kinds of factions up there, more than just three major factions.

I would like to ask the Senator from Colorado, if that is the same environment as I have just explained that he experienced just this past week? I am sure he would have rather been doing something else on Thanksgiving. But it is my understanding he was up in that northeast sector during Thanksgiving. Is that correct?

Mr. BROWN. I did. We had taken a plane, U.N. plane into Sarajevo and got a U.N. crew, a Norwegian helicopter crew, to take us in that region. And we did a flyover over much of that area. I must say the Senator's description is right on.

What I found was in that area that is absolutely ideal in terms of guerrilla warfare. What I was surprised to find, and I think Members may be surprised to find, is that the plan is not to set up a border and patrol of that border. In other words, in fact, they indicated many of these areas where the line has been drawn, it simply does not even correspond to things on the ground. It is not the peak of a hill or the depth of a valley or the flow of a river. It is a line on the map that has not been translated on the ground.

And their plan is not to erect a fence or even to check people coming across. There would be free flow of people across it. But I found very rugged terrain, and I found the roads that were there were very narrow, and very heavy timber cover so that it would be very difficult to spot things from the air. And it would be almost impossible to get our armored personnel carriers and our armored vehicles, tanks, into full play in that region. It is as difficult a situation from a terrain point of view as I have seen almost anywhere.

Mr. INHOFE. Let me ask the Senator from Colorado, since this was about a 10-day period between the time I was in the northeast sector of Bosnia, south of the Posavina pass and south of Hungary and north of Tuzla, if he did have occasion to speak to any of those who were in command up in Tuzla, such as General Haukland?

Mr. BROWN. I did talk to the Norwegian general. He said he would be relieved when the U.S. troops came in. I also talked to Gen. Rupert Smith in charge of the U.N. forces there, as well as a discussion at the Embassy with all the U.S. forces. As the Senator knows, there is a number of U.S. military personnel who are stationed in Sarajevo. They indicated a couple of things. One, none of them expected this to be wound up within a year.

Mr. INHOFE. This is the question I was going to ask the Senator. Even last night we talked about 12 months.

When the Senator and I sat next to each other at the Senate Armed Services Committee, when we had Secretary Perry and General Shalikashvili, and we asked the question that they had written up, "Are you going to commit yourself to 12 months, to a time period after which we withdraw and we come back?" they said, "Yes, we are absolutely committed to that."

Did you find anyone, who were the military people, either with NATO, the United Nations, with any of our NATO partners, or anyone up there in the Tuzla area who felt there is even a remote idea or notion we could be out of there in a 12-month period as far as achieving peace?

Mr. BROWN. I talked to Norwegian personnel, military personnel from Iceland.

There were doctors there from Sweden. I talked to a general from Great Britain. I talked to U.S. military personnel. I talked to Embassy personnel. I talked to Bosnian officials. Nobody, not anyone, none of them thought this mission could be achieved or completed within a year.

Mr. INHOFE. That is exactly what they thought 10 days prior to that time. I have these horrible visions of what happened with Somalia. I can remember when we were trying to bring our troops back from Somalia, and we sent resolutions to President Clinton month after month to bring our troops back from there.

It was not until 18 of our Rangers were murdered and the mutilated corpses were dragged through the streets of Mogadishu that the American people finally woke up and said, "We want them back. We don't have strategic interests there that are worth this kind of a sacrifice." I see similar things like this are happening over there.

When you talk about the morality of the issue and the fact that we are, in a sense, rewarding those individuals who are guilty of the most serious war crimes, because we are now saying we are on their side and we are doing this, this is something that I think we need to talk about before a decision is made that we are going to go along with this, because I see that happening.

I see discussions taking place in this Chamber and outside the Chamber, "Well, let's wait until we have some hearings. Let's wait until this," and as this is happening, our troops are being deployed over there.

Mr. BROWN. Let me say to the Senator, if I can, in response, I think it is very analogous to what happened in Somalia in this respect: There is not a clear military plan. There is not a clear plan as to what we are going to do once we are there.

For example, one of the things you could do is put up a fence and man a border. That is not what they plan to do. One of the things you can do is you can stop people from moving from one side of a border to another, stemming terrorism, guns, ammunition. That is not what they plan to do. When I asked what they do plan to do with the troops there, there was no clear answer by anyone.

The reality is, the President is committing troops to that area for show. There is no clear military plan, and there is no clear, effective way to defend or protect those troops.

I might say, it is cold as can be right now in Bosnia. There is no structure there for our troops to stay in. There is no structure there for our troops to stay in. There is no supply of clean, healthful water. There are no normal sanitary conditions. There is no established supply line at this point. I suspect there will be at some point in the future. But this is a catastrophe in the making, and I believe it shows a reckless disregard for those who serve our country.

I think we have an obligation to people who put on the uniform of this Nation. You can agree or disagree with the mission, you can agree or disagree with the personalities, but we have an obligation when someone comes and puts on the uniform of the United States to make sure that we do not endanger their life without a real purpose.

Some will say we should not endanger their life. If you are not willing to put your life on the line, you should not be in the military. I understand how these men and women would risk their lives, and our freedom is important enough to do that. But, Mr. President, and I say to the Senator from Oklahoma, keeping our prestige high or avoiding an embarrassment because someone made a commitment they should not have is not a reason to commit American troops to a situation where they cannot defend themselves or cost American lives.

We have an obligation to people who put on that uniform to stand beside them and do all we can to protect them, and it is very clear—it is very clear—that we are not able to do that in this circumstance, and, moreover, we have not even supplied them with a purpose or a reason for them to sacrifice their lives.

If they were there to defend freedom, I think the Senator from Oklahoma and I would be right there with them to stand behind them and support them and to encourage this action to stand up for freedom. But this is not that effort. This is an effort to save face in the world community, and I think it is much more important to stand behind our troops.

Mr. INHOFE. Let me ask the Senator from Colorado—

Mr. PRESSLER. If my friends will yield for a split moment, we are trying to get a vote ordered at 5:15, and I have to make a unanimous consent request. If I can do that, then you can go back into your mode, because they are going to hotline this.

Mr. INHOFE. I yield to the Senator.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION SUNSET

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a vote occur on or in relation to the Dorgan amendment at 5:15 this evening and that the time between 5 p.m. and 5:15 be divided: 5 minutes under the control of Senator PRESSLER; 5 minutes under the control of Senator EXON; and 5 minutes under the control of Senator DORGAN.

Mrs. BOXER. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President, I would like to add to that that I have an opportunity to lay aside the Dorgan amendment and offer an amendment. I will only need 5 minutes to speak on it, and it, too, can be laid aside. If I have that opportunity, then I will not object.

Mr. PRESSLER. Can the Senator offer her amendment at 5 to 5? Would that be OK? I am trying to get to the first vote here. I want everybody to speak as much as they wish.

Mrs. BOXER. As soon as this consent request is agreed to, can I offer it right then and lay it down?

Mr. PRESSLER. My friends will finish their dialog probably by 5 to 5, I guess.

Mr. INHOFE. Yes.

Mr. PRESSLER. Why do you not offer it at 5 to 5?

Mrs. BOXER. So I will get it before the vote on the Dorgan amendment?

Mr. PRESSLER. Yes. I amend that by saying at the hour of 4:55 p.m., the Senator from California will offer her amendment, and then at 5 o'clock we divide up the time.

I want everybody to speak as much as they wish.

Mrs. BOXER. I will not object to that.

Mr. DORGAN. Reserving the right to object, and I will not object, I just observe that the 5 minutes allotted for myself and the 10 minutes allotted for Senator PRESSLER and Senator EXON make it 5 minutes for and 10 minutes opposed. I do not object, but I wish if Senator BOND wishes to come over for support, we could get a minute or two.

Mr. PRESSLER. I will give him half my time.

Mr. DORGAN. I will not object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. INHOFE. Did the Senator from South Dakota have a further unanimous-consent request?

Mr. PRESSLER. I further ask unanimous consent no amendment be in order to the Dorgan amendment and the amendment be laid aside at 5 p.m.

Mrs. BOXER. That is fine.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

BOSNIA

Mr. INHOFE. Mr. President, just a couple of other things I wanted to ask the Senator from Colorado.

In that there is a 10-day timeframe from the time he came back and the time I was over in that area, a concern was expressed to me at that time—and keeping in mind that the lines we have now seen on the map near Tuzla, which I am sure the Senator has had a chance to discuss, there is a problem that there are approximately 3 million refugees, if you count them from all throughout that area that those lines on the map are going to preclude at that time, they said more than 50 percent of them would not be able to return to their homelands.

Their concern was that this is going to increase the number of rogue elements that were there, that anyone who thinks there is a peace accord, first thing a refugee wants to do is go home. The fact that they would not be able to return home would increase the number of rogue elements that are around or that join other elements.

The second thing is their concern over what we refer to, and the administration refers to, has never really been defined as systematic violations. There are two ways we can get out of this. One is, 12 months goes by; and the other is if there is a systematic violation, meaning one of the major factions is violating the peace accord or whatever accord it is they have initialed and they are proposing to sign.

The fact that there is no way for the military, the soldier in the field, to know if there is an uprising of some type or a conflict, whether that is a systematic violation or maybe just some rogue element that is firing upon troops—did they express that concern when you were there?

Mr. BROWN. Those concerns were expressed, and added to this is the fact that the border will be free flowing. You will not have an interdiction at the border. It will be very difficult to tell if the people coming across the border are refugees and allowed to go back to an area that has changed hands, or if they are terrorists, or if they are a military element.

They also expressed great concern about a couple of other aspects. One was a conviction on the part of the military personnel that I talked to—U.S. military personnel—that none of the parties would abide. When I asked, they said, “Look, the normal pattern here is people sign agreements and then when spring comes, they go ahead and proceed with their plans afoot.” Frankly, our people who are on the ground were very skeptical that you would see any of the three parties follow these agreements.

The problem, of course, is that you have U.S. military personnel in a position that is very difficult to defend in between them at a point they have wholesale violations of the peace agreements.

At this point, it is very difficult for me to see what it is U.S. personnel accomplish in that area, other than being targets.

Mr. INHOFE. Certainly in a 12-month period, if we are, in fact, committed to a timeframe—and I do not know from my reading and, of course, my experience in the military, of any time we have gone into hostile conflict with a time-oriented departure—it is always a function or an action, something that has taken place.

It was General Hupmann, I believe, who used this analogy, and maybe he used it with you. He said, “Twelve months is like putting your hand in water for 12 months and you take it out and look down and nothing has changed.” Twelve months in the Balkans does not mean anything. If we are going to be out in 12 months, those individuals that would be warring factions would be in a position to start up again.

Mr. BROWN. One thing I might say, it will mean the expenditure of $1.5 billion to perhaps $3 billion. I say to the Senator, I suspect this body will face supplemental appropriation requests from the administration that exceed those numbers.

There simply is no way to put down the 20,000 people they are talking about in that region, or perhaps 25,000 they have talked about—my guess is it may be the higher figure—without the expenditures of huge amounts of money in roads, in clearing areas, in some sort of quarters for the personnel that will be there, and the whole infrastructure they are talking about as a backup.

What will be different 12 months from now is an enormous expenditure of U.S. Treasury in taxpayers' money on an enterprise that does not have a defined function or a defined date of accomplishment.

Mr. INHOFE. I think the Senator from Colorado is being very conservative when he quotes the figures of the administration of $1.5 to $2 billion. I have seen figures up to $4.5 to $6 billion.

I recall not too many weeks ago the administration came to this body for a $1.4 billion supplemental appropriation to take care of some of the past humanitarian gestures that were forecast to cost a third or a fourth of that amount. It is hard to talk about dollars when we are talking about human lives.

My concern is if we are concerned, as the President indicated he was last night, about NATO and the integrity of NATO, where is NATO going to be if we go in there and start this thing, the body bags start coming back to America and people start getting concerned as they were as the incidents of Mogadishu? Then we cut and run, which surely we would do at that time. Then, where is NATO and the integrity of NATO?

Mr. BROWN. I think the Senator has put his finger on the entire problem. Before we commit U.S. troops to a role where they are in danger, the Weinberger rules of engagement, I think, provide a good basis.

It seems to me for every American, just simple and basic understanding, before you send troops into combat, you ought to have a clearly defined military mission that is accomplishable, and without that, they should not go.

What we are literally seeing is the use of U.S. troops as international social workers. The fact is, U.S. armed services personnel ought to be used as soldiers to accomplish a military mission. That is what they are trained for. That is what they are accomplished at. That is what they are good at.

For U.S. troops to be used in this function without a clear mission, at least in this Senator's view, is an invitation to a tragedy of the first order.

Mr. INHOFE. I am very much concerned about it, and I know we are using up more time than we should.

Let me just conclude and speak only for myself. I have listened to the President. I thought the President would come out with something new that has not already been part of the debate. There was not one new argument or element introduced into the debate in the President's statement last night.

In the absence of that, knowing that each hour that goes by the President is deploying more Americans into that hostile area, I have to get on record right here in this body, Mr. President, as saying I will fight with every fiber of my being to stop the President from sending troops in on the ground into Bosnia.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMITTEE SUNSET ACT

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from California is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 3065

(Purpose: To provide for the comparable treatment of federal employees and members of Congress and the President during a fiscal hiatus)

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk, and I ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from California [Mrs. BOXER], for herself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. BRYAN, Mr. BUMPERS, and Mr. FEINGOLD, proposes an amendment numbered 3065.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following section:

SEC. . PAY OF MEMBERS OF CONGRESS AND THE PRESIDENT DURING GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWNS.

(a) COMPARABLE PAY TREATMENT.—The pay of members of Congress and the President shall be treated in the same manner and to the same extent as the pay of the most adversely affected federal employees who are not compensated for any period in which appropriations lapse.

(b) This section shall take effect December 15, 1995.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, the purpose of the amendment I have sent to the desk which is sponsored by myself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. BRYAN, Mr. BUMPERS, and Mr. FEINGOLD, simply says that Members of Congress and the President should be treated the same way as other Federal employees during a shutdown, a partial shutdown, during any period where there is a lapse in appropriations.

Now, Mr. President, the Senate has passed it a couple of times, but I hope it was not a sham when everyone said, “Yes, we are for it,” take it by voice vote. We put it on the D.C. appropriations bill. It seems to be stuck there. The other times we passed it, it has not seen the light of day.

I have been around here long enough to know when I am getting conned. This is not happening. Everyone says they are for it, it passes here, and it has not really gone to the President's desk. He supports it.

The reputation of this Congress is at a very low point. The approval rating of this Congress is in the 20's. I submit that one of the reasons, first of all, was the fact that there was a Government shutdown, that we could not get our job done. We failed.

This Congress did not get the appropriation bills out to the President. This Congress could not even pass a clean debt extension. Chaos is the name of the game around here.

During the Government shutdown, we know there was a lot of angst, anxiety, to Federal workers, for people who needed the Federal Government, for people who want to go to the parks, for veterans who could not get help, for new Social Security applicants who wanted to file their papers, but no sacrifice around here. Our own staff was not getting paid, but we were getting paid. No problem.

Yes, some Members of Congress felt bad about it and gave some money to charity. Some did not take their checks. Some gave their money back to the Treasury. But this was an institutional failure, Mr. President.

There was a poll done in San Francisco, a place that believes there is a very important need for a national Government, and 89 percent of the people responding to the poll of the San Francisco Examiner said Congress should not get paid unless they do their work.

What could be more fundamental than making sure that appropriation bills move forward or, in lieu thereof, a continuing resolution that keeps this Government running?

Now, Mr. President, we have deep divisions in this body on Federal priorities. The Republicans have laid out their budget. It is clear. Mr. President, $270 billion cuts in Medicare, huge cuts in Medicaid, education, the environment. The President says, "No way." We will balance the budget in 7 years, we all agreed, but we need to take a better look at priorities.

Well, that is all well and good, but the fact is we should not be playing games with people's lives, and if we do, we should get penalized just as other Federal employees would.

So we have our disagreements on the level of spending, but we should still get to work, get some compromises going, and move forward as a Nation.

So we have not passed the Boxer-Durbin bill. It is stuck in all sorts of committees. I intend to offer it every single chance I get, on every single bill that I can. I intend to get a vote on it. I will be persistent, and I know around here persistence is looked at in two ways: Some people love it, other people hate it. They especially like it if they agree with you; and if they do not, they hate it. But I am going to be persistent on this. I have been persistent on other things around here. And I will say this. This bill makes eminent sense. Let me read it to you. As an amendment it says:

The pay of members of Congress and the President shall be treated in the same manner and to the same extent as the pay of the most adversely affected federal employees who are not compensated for any period in which appropriations lapse.

This section shall take effect December 15, 1995.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Boxer amendment will be set aside.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you very much, Mr. President, for your patience.

AMENDMENT NO. 3064

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will resume deliberation of the Dorgan amendment.

Who yields time?

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes to say I urge all Senators to vote against the Dorgan amendment. We have taken care of the problems which the Senator from North Dakota raised in this bill. This is a carefully crafted bill which Senator EXON and I and others have worked out over months of negotiation and this is unnecessary additional regulation. I rise in strong opposition to the Dorgan amendment. I urge all Senators to vote against it.

I reserve the remainder of my time and, Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum and I ask unanimous consent that time be charged equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ABRAHAM). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order for me to offer an amendment at this time and to have it voted on immediately following the vote on the amendment by Mr. DORGAN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, reserving the right to object—and I do not want to object—some of the Members may want to have a chance to speak on the amendment. I am trying to find a way here to cooperate quickly. But we do not know what the amendment is.

Mr. BYRD. Very well. The Senator makes a good point.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that it may be in order for me to offer my amendment at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3066

(Purpose: To provide for a minimum penalty of 30 years of imprisonment and a maximum penalty of life imprisonment for the destruction of a motor vehicle or motor vehicle facility if a motor vehicle carrying high level nuclear waste or spent nuclear fuel is involved, or for wrecking or sabotaging a train that carries high level nuclear waste or spent nuclear fuel)

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, today we are considering S. 1396, the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995. For over a century, the ICC has protected shippers from unfair competition and monopolistic pricing by the railroad and trucking industries. The bill before us reflects the deregulation of the transportation industry, and the declining need for many of the functions of the ICC. But, even as we consider the changing nature of transportation, we must also consider that new threats have emerged against shippers and the Nation's rail and trucking industries. Those threats are not in the indirect form of predatory price gouging, but rather manifest themselves as direct acts of violence and terrorism that threaten innocent bystanders.

We are considering this bill in the wake of the sabotage of the Sunset Limited in the Arizona desert on October 10. That derailment is the latest act of terrorism against the American people, following on the bombings of the World Trade Center in New York City and the Federal building in Oklahoma City. When the ICC was first created, such acts of violence were unknown.

Today, we must act to deter terrorism, and in so doing, must think the unthinkable—namely, that a terrorist could target a shipment of the most lethal of all possible cargoes, high level nuclear waste. This is the most toxic substance known to mankind. Exposure to even the smallest amount—amounts so small that you could not see it—would result in death. High level nuclear waste is not simply lethal, but also long lasting. It can take up to a quarter of a million years for this waste to fully decay, and lose its lethal radioactive character.

My amendment would increase the penalties for an act of sabotage against a train or motor vehicle carrying spent nuclear fuel or high level nuclear waste. Current Federal law stipulates that the penalty for an act of sabotage against a train or motor vehicle is a maximum of 20 years—which means they could be given 5 years, or 10 years, or 2 years—or in the event of a fatality, a minimum of life imprisonment or the death penalty. Therefore, a terrorist who targets a train or truck carrying high level nuclear waste, but who fails in his mission to spread this poisonous radioactive contamination, might receive considerably less than 20 years in prison.

Under my amendment, any individual who commits a "willful" or deliberate act of sabotage against a train or motor vehicle used in interstate commerce transporting high level nuclear waste or spent nuclear fuel would receive a minimum penalty of 30 years to life. The current provision of law regarding a fatality would remain in effect.

My amendment is necessary because shipments of nuclear waste and spent fuel are already occurring. Furthermore, there is the possibility of a significant increase in the number of such shipments within the next few years. If that should occur, there would be increased public attention focused on these shipments. The public would be aware that, under my amendment, any act of sabotage would receive the certain and minimum penalty of 30 years imprisonment.

Past shipments of nuclear waste have crossed through the majority of our States, including my own State of West Virginia. These shipments traveled on many of the primary routes of interstate commerce, and passed within close proximity to major urban areas, and millions of American homes. Thus far, we have been lucky, with no recorded acts of sabotage against these shipments. But the possibility has always been present, since this toxic cargo is carried by both rail and truck.

From 1979–1994, there were 1,282 separate shipments of commercial spent nuclear fuel. Ninety percent of these shipments traveled on the Nation's highways, with only 10 percent traveling by rail. And it is important to note that this figure does not include classified shipments of high level nuclear waste from Department of Energy or military facilities, although my amendment covers those shipments, as well.

Even though more trucks were involved in this commerce than trains, over 70 percent of the total volume of radioactive waste was carried by rail. And, this volume could dramatically increase before the end of this century. Current plans call for this spent nuclear fuel, along with even more high level radioactive waste from Federal facilities, to be deposited in a permanent geologic repository. At the present time, Yucca Mountain in Nevada is under consideration as such a repository. The Yucca Mountain site is behind schedule, and the site suitability study is not due to be released until 1998 at the earliest.

In the meantime, pending legislation would authorize the construction of an "interim" storage facility at the Nevada Test Site. This interim storage facility would be used until Yucca Mountain, or an alternative site, is approved. I want to emphasize that my amendment does not address the issues posed by that pending legislation, namely, whether Yucca Mountain, or an interim storage facility, should be made operational.

My amendment, does, however, address the danger presented by the dramatic increase that would occur in the shipments of toxic nuclear waste to either of these facilities. Current proposals call for the shipment of 2,000 to 3,000 metric tons per year, from up to 79 commercial nuclear reactor sites that have spent nuclear fuel and waste stored on-site. Furthermore, this does not include DOE facilities. The interim site, if it is approved and constructed, would eventually receive up to 100,000 metric tons of spent fuel and high level nuclear waste, pending the opening of a permanent geologic repository.

The Department of Energy has not publicly announced which routes will be used in shipments to Yucca Mountain or an interim storage site. However, these shipments would originate at up to 79 commercial sites, as well as Department of Energy facilities, and would therefore likely travel across large sections of our Nation.

But our concern should not be only about the routes that will be used, but also the sheer number of shipments, and the quantity of highly radioactive waste involved. From 1979 to 1994, a total of one ton of spent nuclear fuel was shipped in the United States by commercial facilities. These proposals to build an interim or permanent nuclear waste facility envision shipments of thousands of tons in a single year.

Again, I am not commenting on whether a permanent waste repository or interim storage facility is needed, or whether such shipments should occur. This body has debated that issue in the past, and will do so again in the future.

Regardless of how that debate is resolved, the fact remains that we are currently shipping the most toxic substance known on our Nation's highways and railroads. And we may dramatically increase those shipments in the future. The very least that we can do is to increase the penalty for sabotage against such shipments, in an effort to deter such acts of terrorism from occurring.

Mr. President, I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from West Virginia [Mr. BYRD] proposes an amendment numbered 3066.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following new section:

SEC. . DESTRUCTION OF MOTOR VEHICLES OR MOTOR VEHICLE FACILITIES; WRECKING TRAINS.

(a) DESTRUCTION OF MOTOR VEHICLES OR MOTOR VEHICLE FACILITIES.—Section 33 of the title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following new undesignated paragraph:

"Whoever is convicted of a crime under this section involving a motor vehicle that, at the time the crime occurred, carried high-level radioactive waste (as that term is defined in section 2(12) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10101(12)), or spent nuclear fuel (as that term is defined in section 2(23) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10101(23))), shall be imprisoned for not less than 30 years."

(b) WRECKING TRAINS.—Section 1992 of title 18, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by inserting after the fourth undesignated paragraph the following:

"Whoever is convicted of any such crime that involved a train that, at the time the crime occurred, carried high-level radioactive waste (as that term is defined in section 2(12) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10101(12)), or spent nuclear fuel (as that term is defined in section 2(23) of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982 (42 U.S.C. 10101(23))), shall be imprisoned for not less than 30 years."

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I think we very much want to accept the amendment, and the Senator from West Virginia would like a rollcall vote on it immediately following this one. I should be clearing with my partner here. But as far as I am concerned we would be delighted to either accept it or have a rollcall vote immediately following this vote, whichever the Senator prefers.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished manager of the bill.

I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that this vote occur immediately after the vote on the Dorgan amendment which will occur momentarily, I understand.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, this amendment, the Dorgan amendment, was to be debated in this time period. There are some brief points that could be made, and I wonder if the floor manager would include 2 minutes for the proponents and 2 minutes for the opponents so that we may conclude discussion.

Mr. PRESSLER. Just to explain, the times were reserved between 5 and 5:15. Some Senators have to go on to other schedules. We now will have two rollcall votes starting almost immediately. As far as I am concerned, I would suggest we could yield 2 minutes to the Senator. The Senators who had that time were not here. It might inconvenience other Senators is my point, but as far as I am concerned, I have no objection to 2 minutes being added on at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, and I will not object, would the distinguished manager ask unanimous consent that there be no intervening debate on my amendment and that there be no amendment to the amendment?

Mr. PRESSLER. Yes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Missouri will now proceed to speak for 2 minutes on this amendment, after which there will be two consecutive rollcall votes without there being any discussion in between.

AMENDMENT NO. 3064

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I would ask to be notified when 1 minute is gone. I want to give the prime sponsor the final minute.

Basically, the amendment by the Senator from North Dakota says that the Clayton Act standards—will there be lessening of competition in any line of commerce—be applied to rail mergers. All of us have seen the case in airlines where there is no competition from one nearby city to another and find the cost of that travel is greater than the cost of travel coast to coast. That is because competition is not in effect.

I agree that we ought to get rid of Government regulation, but we need competition to protect the customers in the marketplace, and we can only have competition if the Transportation Board has to apply the same standards to rail mergers it does to other industries.

I urge support of the Dorgan amendment. I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed 2 minutes for closing argument.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I addressed this amendment earlier, and I hope that the Senate will vote it down. It is a violation of the basic principles that we put together with a near unanimous vote, if not a unanimous vote, of the Commerce Committee. This amendment would simply place in the Justice Department a veto over things that should be properly decided by the independent body that used to be the Interstate Commerce Commission and now will be a body under the Department of Transportation.

Once again I say, I think that the Justice Department should be a legal advisor, which they are, in the bill introduced by myself and the chairman of the committee, but this is a bad step in the wrong direction, and I hope the Senate will vote it down.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I move to table the Dorgan amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I might ask the sponsor of the amendment if he wishes additional time.

I yield back the remaining time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time for debate having expired, the question is on agreeing to the motion to table the amendment of the Senator from North Dakota. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. LOTT. I announce that the Senator from Virginia [Mr. WARNER] is necessarily absent.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Delaware [Mr. BIDEN] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 62, nays 35, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 3065

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending business is the amendment proposed by Mrs. BOXER for herself and Mr. HARKIN.

The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I am constrained to point out to the Senate that article II, section 1, clause 6 of the Constitution states very succinctly:

The President shall, at stated Times, receive for his Services, a Compensation, which shall neither be increased nor diminished during the Period for which he shall have been elected. . . .

In addition to that, the people of the United States have ratified the 27th amendment to the Constitution, which states:

No law, varying the compensation for the services of the Senators and Representatives, shall take effect, until an election of Representatives shall have intervened.

I intended to make a point of order that this amendment is unconstitutional. In the interests of time, I have been asked not to do that and to permit this amendment to be taken to conference. I want to put the Senate on notice that should this provision come back to the Senate in a conference report, I shall raise that point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I appreciate the fact that the Senator from Alaska is not going to have us vote on the constitutionality of the amendment that is pending. In fact, we have passed a version of this already at least twice in this U.S. Senate.

I think anyone who looks at the legislative history of why we moved not to change pay for Members of Congress until the next election knows it was because of pay raises, first.

Second, I would point out to my friend that we did talk with many various attorneys on this—Senate legal counsel, we talked to CRS.

Mr. STEVENS. Does the Senator have any such opinion from either of the agencies she just mentioned?

Mrs. BOXER. If the Senator will let me finish I will give him a synopsis of what they said and I will be happy to get that to the Senator in writing. There is divided opinion on this. It is a gray area. If the Senator read this amendment, which I know he has done, there is nothing in this to say we are changing the pay. As a matter of fact, if you look at the last shutdown, every single Federal employee was made whole. The issue was would they be made whole, and many Senators feel, I think on both sides of the aisle, including Senator SNOWE from Maine who actually wrote this with me, that it is very important we not treat ourselves in a different fashion.

So, I say to my friend, I will be happy to send him the opinions and I will, in fact, monitor this myself. Because, I have to tell my friend, this issue is not getting serious attention. It has been kicked around and everyone says what a good idea it is, but it is never becoming law. I will say to my friend, the Senator from Iowa and I are very clearly of a mind that we are going to make this stick. We will work to make this constitutional. We think there is nothing in this that says the pay is changed. We feel there is a way we can even make that point clearer.

But I will be glad to furnish my friend with these opinions over the next few days, as we get them, in writing.

Mr. HARKIN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. STEVENS addressed chair.

Mrs. BOXER. I yield to the Senator from Iowa for a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California has the floor.

Mr. HARKIN. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mrs. BOXER. I will be happy to do so, yes.

Mr. HARKIN. I will ask the Senator, since I am a cosponsor of this, am I of the understanding—this has passed before, has it not? At least twice before it passed in the Senate?

Mrs. BOXER. Actually a harsher version of this has passed twice.

Mr. HARKIN. And in both of those cases the President was not included, was he?

Mrs. BOXER. Yes. The President has been included because, when I put this out the first time, the other side made that point. The President said he wants to be included. As a matter of fact, he thinks that is the appropriate course. And we did put the President in because the other side said they would not take it unless the President was in it.

Mr. HARKIN. In other words, our friends on the Republican side said they would not take it unless the President was in it and now we are hearing the argument from the Republican side it is unacceptable because the President is in there, is that right?

Mrs. BOXER. Yes. It feels like a run-around, to me.

Mr. HARKIN. Article II of the Constitution says that the President's salary shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected. But amendment 27 is much different. The 27th amendment, we all know why that was adopted, and the language shows that deals with pay raises. Is that not correct?

Mrs. BOXER. I believe that is correct.

Mr. HARKIN. That is worded differently than article II of the Constitution because it states in there that the pay of Senators and Representatives, the compensation, shall not be varied during that period of time.

Mrs. BOXER. That is correct.

Mr. HARKIN. So there is a difference between the wording of the 27th amendment and article II.

The Senator answered my questions.

Mrs. BOXER. I yield the floor.

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, first of all, I want to commend my colleague from California for her excellent work and diligence in pursuing this important amendment.

For the life of me I cannot understand what this is really all about. Late last year and earlier this year a hue and cry went up that Members of the Senate and the House ought to be treated the same as other people in this country. OSHA laws and all of these other things ought to apply to us as well as everyone else so we would know what ordinary people went through. We all voted for that. So we covered the Congress with these laws. I think the people of this country thought that was wise.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. HARKIN. Yes, I am delighted to yield.

Mr. BYRD. Just to correct the RECORD, there is one Senator who did not vote for that. That was the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. HARKIN. I think the RECORD will show that I did not say it was unanimous.

Mr. BYRD. One Senator, no Member of the House voted against it. One Member of the Senate voted against it. I voted against it, and I do not regret my vote. I think time will prove me to have been at least partially right.

Mr. HARKIN. I appreciate that the Senator from West Virginia did not vote for it, but we may have a difference of opinion on this since I believe the Congress should have been covered by the same laws, just like I think this also should cover us the same way.

I find it more than passing strange that when the Government shuts down, as it recently did, that FBI agents, air traffic controllers, even our staff, all of our staff who work here, do not get paid. Most people thought that those who were not essential did not get paid, that the ones that went home did not get paid. I talked to a lot of my colleagues who did not know that those who were essential and went to work every day still did not get paid except for Senators and Members of the House.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. HARKIN. Yes, I am glad to yield for a question.

Mr. STEVENS. I assume the Senator knows it is because of a law passed by this Congress that put that into effect and that it was never exercised by any President before, but this President did exercise it. This President did, contrary to what President Carter did in 1977. He closed down the national parks. He closed down the various other essentials. But the concept was just to put pressure on Congress.

If you want to get into a political argument here, I thought that the understanding was that we would make a statement, and that if it came back I would raise a point of order. If the Senator wants to have this debate now and go into the evening, I am more than willing to get some documents in here and have the debate now. It was my understanding we would have it, if it came back from the conference.

Is what the Senator from Iowa saying is the Senator intends to say that the provisions I have raised do not cover this? I happen to be chairman of the Governmental Affairs Committee, and I share the Senator's feelings about putting people in the position where they are either told to go home or work and not get paid. But that is an act of Congress which I would like to get changed.

But I do not intend to get beat around the head because I want to raise a point of order based on the Constitution of the United States. Are we going to have this bill go to conference tonight or are we going to have this debate?

Mr. HARKIN. I do not know. I cannot answer the Senator's question. I know I want to speak on this. I went to some extent and length to get here to talk on this tonight. I intend to have my say on it. I have the floor, and I intend to speak on it. I do not know how long it is going to take me. It may take me just a little bit, but I am going to have my say on it because I feel very strongly about it.

Mr. President, once again the people of this country see Congress being treated differently than other people that work for the Federal Government. You know when you get laid off of a job and the plant closes down, you do not get paid. We have laws here that say when the Government closes down and we do not pass the appropriations bills, it is not a law. It is basically that we do not have any money to pay them.

So I really do not know what law the Senator was talking about. When we do not pass the appropriations bills—and that deadline occurs at the end of the fiscal year and we do not have any money to run the Government—for those appropriations bills that have not been passed, those agencies shut down unless we have a continuing resolution. When that runs out, then, of course, there is no money to pay it.

Well, there is a law that talks about essential personnel who have to show up. For the life of me, I still do not understand how you can demand that someone come to work every day and still not pay them. I thought slavery went out of existence 130 some years ago in this country. I tell people this, and they are dumbfounded by it. I say, yes, the Federal Government can order people to come to work every day and not pay them. Imagine that: Order them to come to work and not pay them. But that is exactly what is happening. It is unfair.

Quite frankly, I think it is unconstitutional. I do not know if anyone has ever tested it, but I do not think that is constitutional. Certainly, I think it is a violation of civil rights to have someone come to work and say, "However, you are not being paid for that period for which you work."

So I think that we ought to cover Congress just as well as we cover other members of the Federal Government. We passed it two or three different times here. It always goes to conference, and then it gets lost. We know what kind of game that is. We passed it, and everyone says, "Oh, yes, I voted to cover Congress just like everybody else, but something happened in that gray mist of the conference committee."

Well, I think the Congressional Accountability Act that we passed is a good bill. I know the Senator from West Virginia did not think so. But I think the vast majority of Congress obviously did think so. I think it is time that we cover ourselves the same way as other Federal workers. If there is a shutdown in the Government, and the appropriations bills have not been passed and other Federal workers are not being paid, whether they come to work or not, then I do not think Senators and Congressmen ought to be paid for the same period of time either.

It is a basic issue of fairness and equity. You can cloak arguments in constitutionality. I do not want to violate the Constitution. But I think a clear reading of the 27th amendment and the reading of the history of the 27th amendment shows clearly that it was not intended to cover this. It was only intended to cover pay raises enacted by Congress.

The Senator from Alaska may have—indeed, I think probably does—a valid point regarding article II of the Constitution. But I do not believe it is a valid point when it comes to the 27th amendment which talks about Members of the Congress.

The continuing resolution I know did stipulate that all Federal workers could be paid in the next pay period.

So, again, we have this odd system where we had the Government shut down and no one gets paid. They are not paid, but they are paid later. A lot of people get time off but still are going to be paid.

We may be facing another shutdown of the Government on December 15. I do not know. I hope not. But we will be in a situation there again where Federal workers could be told to come to work every day and not get paid. When? During the height of the Christmas season when they have their bills to pay and, as I said, earlier, their mortgages to pay, their car payments to make, and Christmas presents to buy. And, yet, we are going to tell them, no, they do not get paid. But that is all right; Senators and Congressmen will get paid.

It is, Mr. President, a basic issue of fairness and equity. I congratulate the Senator from California for pursuing this, and I am proud to be a cosponsor of it. I join with her in saying that, if it does not make it on this bill, there will be another one and another one and another one, and we will keep attaching it until finally we get something that must pass.

This is an issue we should not let go of because it has to do, as I said, with basic fairness and equity. And we should not be treated any differently than any other Federal worker, I do not care where that Federal worker works, for what agency.

I yield the floor.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I am not going to prolong the debate. Clearly, it is the intersection of the Antideficiency Act and our having reached the debt ceiling as enacted by Congress and the failure to have appropriations bills all occur at the same time that led to an Executive order of the President instructing Cabinet officers not to have other than essential people work. It was an act of the President of the United States himself in signing that Executive order that brought about everything that the Senator from Iowa has just complained about.

Now, we would be more than happy in my committee to consider changing the law. I have said before I think it should be changed. And I do not see any reason why we should have a situation such as existed. We are not in a position where we are borrowing money to pay those people, but it was just done to put pressure on the Congress.

At this time, however, I am not going to raise this point of order, but I again put the Senate on notice if it comes back from conference we will have a debate on the constitutionality and we will let the Congress and the Senate in particular determine whether it wants to enact an unconstitutional law.

I take it without any question that the article II concept applies. Under the 27th amendment to the Constitution, if the Senator from Iowa wants to know how that would work, if we have such a collision on December 15, as we think we will have, and it extends beyond December 31, the compensation of every Senator in this body would be varied because he or she would not have been paid the compensation we are committed to pay him or her for the year of 1995, and this would be a denial of the compensation to a Member of Congress in violation of the 27th amendment.

There may be a way we could do it, and I do not have any problem about doing it right, but it is not to be done by an amendment just thrown out in the Chamber every time something comes up to try and make the proposition that this Senate under our majority control is somehow or other treating Federal employees different than we are treating ourselves.

That is not true. The laws that we are following were enacted before. The President of the United States followed those laws and signed an Executive order, and that is why people stayed home when they were told not to report to work and we are paying them, as we should, under the laws. But they are not covered by the Constitution as is the President of the United States and Members of Congress.

I would be perfectly willing to continue the debate. I personally would like to vote on the amendment by voice vote, and we will discuss it later. But if the Senate wants to get into it, I will get a few tomes over here and we will get into chapter and verse of why this is unconstitutional legislation.

Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, I am not going to devote chapter and verse, and I look forward to working with my friend from Alaska to make this right if he feels it can be improved. I just want to point one thing out. This is not something that was just put together. This particular amendment is something I have been working on with my colleagues for a long time because I saw this train wreck coming.

A lot of people said, oh, it will never happen; everything will go smoothly. And I said, well, I am concerned because I had heard certain statements made, particularly in the other body, where I felt we were going to have a train wreck, and at that very moment when I had that sense I realized I wanted to make sure Members of Congress were treated the same way as other Federal employees.

So I just want to say this is not sloppy work, I do not believe, on the part of Members of this body, including the Senator from Maine [Ms. SNOWE], who actually really helped to write this. But I will work to make sure that every time we offer this up, because clearly we are going to have to do it again, we improve it in terms of clarity as far as its constitutionality.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. I just want the RECORD to be clear in response to my friend from Alaska. I do not think the RECORD will show I was saying it is because the Republicans are now in the majority. That is not the problem at all. I never said that and the RECORD will show I never said that. Basically, I have said all along this is an issue of basic fairness and equity, and it goes to the heart of whether or not we consider ourselves some sort of different class of people in this country above everything else, where we can continue to get paid while other Federal workers do not during a period of time when the Government is shut down. People in this country understand that. I do not care who is in the majority, whether Democrats or Republicans. It is not fair and it ought not to be done that way. That is my basic point and I will continue to make that point.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 3065) was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. PRESSLER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GORTON). The Chair asks that the RECORD show he opposes the Boxer amendment.

Are there further amendments to the bill?

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator GRASSLEY be added as a cosponsor to S. 1396.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, the managers' amendment accepted earlier today to the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act of 1995 will greatly assist Vermont in maintaining its intercity passenger rail service. I want to thank the managers of the bill for working with me on this important amendment.

Almost 1 year ago, residents of Vermont were informed that they would lose their passenger rail service. In an effort to cut costs and revitalize our struggling national passenger rail corporation, Amtrak announced a major restructuring. This effort included cutbacks in service, downsized management, streamlined operations, and retirement of older equipment. This plan also called for elimination of certain routes, including the Montrealer, which had served Vermont for many years.

Ending Vermont's connection to our national passenger rail system would certainly have hurt our small State. An integral component of our transportation infrastructure, Amtrak brought skiers, business people, and leaf peepers to our beautiful State. In addition, Amtrak allows residents of Vermont to travel economically to nearby destinations and across the country.

In an effort to save this service, I worked with Senator LEAHY, Governor Dean, the Vermont State Legislature, and many dedicated Vermont citizens to develop a plan to continue passenger rail in Vermont. Amtrak became an active partner in assisting with this goal, and early last spring the new Vermonter began service from Washington, DC to Burlington, VT.

The Vermonter has become a model for how Amtrak and States can work together to preserve passenger rail service. Monthly ridership on the Vermonter has increased over 60 percent since April. The train allows residents of New York City to reach the ski slopes of Vermont in a few hours. A baggage car was added to the train, with state-of-the-art ski and bike racks designed by Vermont crafts people and Vermont-made food products are served in the dining car. Vermonter's are proud of this train and we will do all we can to see it survive for the long term.

The plan establishing the Vermonter required the State of Vermont to pay any costs over and above the revenue generated by the train. For 1995, the State agreed to pay $750,000 to support the train. Like all States, Vermont responsibly maintains a balanced budget. This task is becoming more and more difficult, as there are increasing demands on the State to provide services.

To assist States such as Vermont, Senator ROTH offered an amendment to the National Highway System Designation Act, NHS, which would have granted States the flexibility to use highway funds to support Amtrak service. This effort had the strong backing of many State legislatures and the National Governors Association. When brought to a vote in June, the amendment passed by an overwhelming margin here in the Senate, giving States hope for preserving their passenger rail service. However, during conference negotiations on the NHS bill, Senate leaders were forced by the House to drop this important provision.

My amendment will allow Vermont to use unobligated highway funds to pay its portion of the Vermonter's operating costs. In fiscal year 1996, Vermont will obtain over $71 million under the Federal-aid highway program. This funding comes from the highway trust fund, paid for by motor fuel taxes. Vermonter's pay into the trust fund each time they fill their cars with gasoline. I believe these same Vermonter's would strongly support using this funding to maintain our passenger rail service.

All States should be granted this flexibility, and the success in utilizing this flexibility in Vermont should prove to skeptics the value of giving all States the authority to spend their Federal transportation dollars to support passenger rail.

Mr. President, I hope in the future we are successful in providing this flexibility to all States. But for now, without the authority provided by my amendment, Vermont may risk losing the Vermonter. This would be a tragedy.

I thank my colleagues for considering this provision, and I appreciate their support.

Mr. DOLE. Mr. President, throughout this Congress, a great deal of discussion has been devoted to a review of existing agencies and functions. The budget resolution and the Department of Transportation appropriations bill called for the elimination of the Interstate Commerce Commission. S. 1396 sunsets the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Maritime Commission and creates a new intermodal board within the Department of Transportation. I believe S. 1396 has taken the right steps to provide for reform while retaining a competitive atmosphere for railroad, motor carrier, and shipping industries.

I have been a strong proponent over the years for rail reform that provides an atmosphere for a strong rail industry as well as retaining a competitive balance for small shippers. I am particularly concerned about the impact of changes upon small shippers, including the small grain handlers, shippers and processors of Kansas and the Midwest.

The legislation before us retains important provisions that have been provided in the past to small shippers while reducing unnecessary regulatory requirements. I believe S. 1396 more adequately addresses the concern of small shippers by providing common carrier obligations, protections on agriculture contracting authority, notice procedures for rate increases, and abandonment procedures. In addition, protections are provided for individuals who lose their jobs due to mergers or acquisitions. For these reasons, S. 1396 has gained bipartisan support and deserves passage.

The railroad industry is going through some interesting times. The Burlington Northern/Santa Fe merger coupled with the proposed Union Pacific/Southern Pacific merger has created concern about the impact of these mergers on shippers. Shippers face unique challenges as railroads merge, creating less options and uncertain futures. Under these circumstances, it becomes increasingly important to ensure an atmosphere where economically viable competition is allowed to exist. The mergers being proposed are of great concern for several States, including Kansas. I believe these mergers can accomplish a strong base for the various industries and small businesses they serve, however, the impacts of the merger must be closely monitored. The reduction in the overall number of railroads should not mean a reduction in services to those who depend on these services the most.

I would like to thank Senator PRESSLER and Senator EXON for their efforts on this legislation and urge your support.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Interstate Commerce Commission Sunset Act, and I would like to thank the chairman, the Senator from South Dakota [Mr. PRESSLER], for his interest in, and assistance, in putting language in the bill that addresses the serious problem of trucker fatigue.

The bill would place the Federal Highway Administration [FHWA] on a time line for publishing regulations related to trucker fatigue. The purpose of this language is to move the decision-making process forward.

What this language in section 216 will do is require FHWA to issue an advanced notice of proposed rulemaking [ANPR] dealing with fatigue-related issues such as 8 hours of continuous sleep after 10 hours of driving, loading and unloading operations, and rest and recovery cycles no later than March 1, 1996. This would be followed by a notice of proposed rulemaking [NPR] within 1 year and a final rulemaking within 2 years.

It is estimated, Mr. President, that truck driver fatigue may be a contributing factor in as many as 30 to 40 percent of all heavy truck accidents.

FHWA has been looking at the issue of trucker fatigue since the 1970's. I believe it is time we moved from studying the issue to making decisions about what is to be done to reduce the number of accidents related to fatigue. I know that regulations alone will not stop these tragic accidents, we need increased education, we need increased awareness and better enforcement as well. But we can set an example and start making changes in laws and regulations—some of them adopted 60 years ago—to improve safety on our highways.

The Office of Motor Carrier Safety currently has six studies underway on tired truckers. Three of them will be completed this year: Fitness for Duty Testing, Multiple Trailer Combination Vehicle Driver Fatigue, and Stress and Rest Areas, and one, Driver Fatigue and Alertness Study will be completed next spring. And I would like to thank the chairman again for arranging a series of staff briefings on these studies, at my request. I believe it is important that this committee stay abreast of the work being done in this area so that we may better formulate legislative responses, where necessary.

In addition, the National Transportation Safety Board [NTSB] released a study in January, 1995 on trucker fatigue that called on FHWA to complete rulemaking within 2 years on issues related to trucker fatigue, so the bill's language is in keeping with NTSB's recommendation.

By establishing a time line for FHWA, we are requiring that the decisionmaking process begin on this important issue. There is a lot more to be done in this area, but the beginning of the rulemaking process is a big step in the right direction.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I urge any Senators who have any final amendments to come to the floor. I understand one Senator may offer an amendment, at which time I hope we can pass this bill by unanimous consent. I think we are prepared on this side of the aisle to pass this bill. But as I understand it, Senator ASHCROFT may have an amendment.

Mr. President, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 3067

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Missouri [Mr. ASHCROFT] proposes an amendment numbered 3067.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 413, after line 14, insert the following new subsection:

“(d) The remedies provided in this part, concerning matters covered by this part with respect to the transportation of household goods by motor carriers are exclusive and preempt the remedies provided under Federal or State law.”

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I offer this amendment to provide for a fair and uniform way of compensating individuals, shippers of household goods for damage to those goods and to ensure that there is a fair and uniform way of making sure that those damages can be received by shippers of household goods.

Interstate commerce involves the transmission of goods from one jurisdiction to another. Something shipped in California may well cross numerous States on its way to Connecticut. It is important that we do not have the responsibility for those who ship goods to try and prove where damage happened to the goods if there are damages to the goods. It is important that we do not have to try and impose on those who are the carriers of the goods some ability to defend about whether or not there was negligence.

There is in this amendment, and the meaning of this amendment, a requirement that if goods are damaged, that no person whose goods have been damaged has to prove that the damages were caused by the negligence of the carrier or, otherwise, by the improper activities of the carrier. There is an automatic right of the person who ships the goods to recover the value of the goods, and that would be uniform.

Absent that uniformity, there are other things which might exist. For instance, normally, in order to recover against someone who has damaged something, you have to prove negligence. And I do not think that people who ship goods are in a position to prove negligence. They were not in possession of the goods. They usually were not with the goods. They were not in the area where the goods were damaged. They would have a hard time proving that.

So, this measure would provide that you do not have to prove negligence, that if you deliver the goods to the shipper, the household goods were being shipped across the country, and they were damaged, that you could automatically recover the value of the goods without proving negligence, without having to show that there was a particular substandard way of dealing with the goods on the part of the carrier involved.

In return for the concession that the shipper of the goods, the person who sends the goods, does not have to prove negligence, the damages are limited to the value of the goods. You cannot recover emotional harm or pain and suffering because of the anguish of learning that your Aunt Millie's vase was crushed in the shipment. You can only get the value of the vase.

So, the carrier is protected from having to pay some very subjective damages, but the person who ships the goods is guaranteed that if the goods are damaged, that those goods can be replaced because of the strict liability on the part of the carrier. This is a good system. It is a system which has long worked. It ought to be enshrined in this statute.

Now, the alternative is to have States create different laws about what kinds of recovery could be made by individuals whose goods were damaged. You have the potential of someone who ships something from California to Connecticut trying to prove that their goods were damaged in the most generous State or that their goods otherwise were valuable so that if that State allowed for pain and suffering or emotional distress, that those kinds of damages ought to be considered.

In my judgment, such damages ought not to be considered because they provide an incentive for forum shopping, people trying to make sure and prove that goods were damaged in one State as opposed to another. They subject shippers to unreasonable requirements to try and prove where the damage happened or where it did not happen. And we would be well-served in regulating interstate commerce to say that the person shipping the goods does not have to prove negligence, but the person who is carrying the goods is not responsible for a level of damages which is above and beyond the value of the goods, which would include emotional distress or other kinds of subjective things which are very difficult to prove and the amount of which could go into very high levels of expenditure above and beyond the value of the goods.

It is with that in mind that I have proposed the amendment, and I believe the amendment would be something that should be included in this measure.

Mr. FORD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, we have on this side not seen the amendment before it was proposed tonight. As I understand it, there may be some on our side, particularly on the Commerce Committee, that would object to the Senator's amendment. I am put in the position of trying to secure some advice and counsel now from at least the ranking member of the Commerce Committee. So, we will be delayed for some time because he is in a conference, and we will have to try to reach him and see what we can do.

So, Mr. President, I have no alternative but to suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT 3063, AS MODIFIED

(Purpose: To modify the manager's amendment)

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk to modify the manager's amendment. This amendment just changes one word, and it has been agreed to by both sides of the aisle.

I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment is set aside.

The amendment is so modified.

The amendment, as modified, is as follows:

On page 3 of the amendment, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following: "On page 311, line 16, insert 'reasonable' after 'a'."

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

GOOD NEWS FOR ALASKANS

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I come to the floor today to say this is a good day for my State of Alaska. This afternoon President Clinton signed legislation which lifts the ban on the export of Alaskan North Slope crude oil and authorizes the sale of the Alaska Power Administration.

Alaskans have been fighting for both of these provisions for more than 20 years. The ban on the export of our own oil was unjust and unconstitutional, as I have said here on the floor many times. Before today, Alaska was the only State prohibited from exporting its most valuable product. There is no ban on the sale of oil from Texas or the exporting of apples from Washington State. I see the distinguished occupant of the chair is from my southern neighboring State.

Today's action by the President lifts years of discrimination against Alaska, and I think it proves that perseverance can overcome bad policy. Lifting this ban will promote domestic oil production, provide jobs, and make Alaska less dependent on foreign oil. The ban has had the unintended effect of actually threatening our energy security by discouraging further energy production in the south 48 and creating unfair hardships for a struggling oil industry in the United States.

Fundamentally, the existing export restriction distorts the crude oil markets in Alaska and on the west coast. The inability to export Alaskan North Slope crude oil depresses the open market price of Alaska North Slope crude on the west coast, which is essentially the only market for our oil. Some people will tell us that it makes no sense to lift the export ban while Congress is pursuing an effort to authorize oil exploration on Alaska's arctic coastal plain. And nothing could be further from the truth.

Lifting the export ban simply restores a true market price for Alaskan oil, and the west coast will still be the principle consumer of that product. What this new law does is allow an Alaskan product to be sold at a fair price, the same demand farmers in the Midwest make when they sell their crops or automakers in Detroit make when they sell their products.

The Department of Energy noted in a 1994 study of the export ban that the result of the export ban means "that the west coast generates the largest gross refiner margins in the world."

So what does this new law do? It puts fairness back into the economic system and removes an ugly vestige of protectionism.

One of the main reasons I have come to the floor is to congratulate the chairman of the Energy Committee, my colleague and good friend, Senator FRANK MURKOWSKI. I also congratulate Congressman DON YOUNG, chairman of the House Resources Committee. My two colleagues made great efforts to shepherd this bill through the legislative process.

Actually, Mr. President, I think the President signed the bill principally to help California because most of the jobs to be restored will be in California. And I do thank him and Energy Secretary O'Leary for their support of this bill.

The Department of Energy did issue a comprehensive report last year that proved once and for all that the ban on exporting Alaskan oil made no sense. Lifting that ban will create 25,000 jobs nationally, most of them in California, as I said, and could return substantial funds to the Nation and to the States of California and Alaska.

The sale of the Alaska Power Administration is another item, an item that I have worked on for more than two decades. During the Nixon administration, I introduced in the Senate the first bill to authorize the sale of this entity.

Today's actions restore some of the promise that was made when we obtained statehood for Alaskans. We always sought to be a full partner with other States. For too long, Alaska has been treated as a second-class citizen, and I think the export ban was one example. The refusal to pass the law to sell the Alaska Power Administration, as was requested by our citizens 20 years ago, is also an example of just holding up something that was good for Alaska because one Senator in the Congress opposed it.

I do believe that in a State where the Federal Government controls more than 70 percent of the land that we should have been able to export our oil as a marketable product. There would have been a great deal more demand for Alaska's oil exploration in the last period particularly since the discovery of oil on the North Slope. I think it was unfortunate that that was one of the provisions we had to agree to to obtain approval by Congress of the bill that gave us authority to grant the right-of-way for the Trans-Alaska Pipeline.

In my judgment, this has been a long time coming. There is still a long line of actions, Mr. President. The Alaskans have requested us to give them full rights of statehood, and I intend to come to the Senate and ask for those rights as the time goes by.

Thank you very much, Mr. President. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 5 minutes as in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from South Dakota is recognized.

OPPOSED TO SENDING TROOPS

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I am opposed to sending troops to Bosnia based on the information I now have. I base that judgment, in part, on my own experience as a lieutenant in the Army in Vietnam many years ago. It has been my observation that our soldiers have a very hard time in a civil-war situation in another country, and that is because our soldiers are frequently used essentially as shields. We value human life so highly that we react very strongly to any body bags coming back or to any casualties, as we should.

There is probably no other country in the world that reacts to its soldiers being killed or captured as we do in the United States, and again, Mr. President, we should act that way. Any action by our soldiers will be shown on television in living color. If there are any funerals, they will be a nationwide event. U.S. soldiers become shields and hostages and symbols very quickly.

If we had a vital interest that we could accomplish there, I would be for it. Unfortunately, it is my strong feeling that the various civil wars in Yugoslavia since the 15th century have been augmented by virtue of having foreign troops come into what is now Yugoslavia and enter into the civil war.

The current civil war there has been extended because foreign troops have come. Let us analogously consider our Civil War in the United States. There were not foreign troops involved, and it was settled. It was a bloody, gruesome war, but it was settled. Let us just imagine foreign troops had come to our Civil War. We probably would still be fighting it today.

What is happening in Yugoslavia is that they are on the border between East and West, between the Moslem world and Christian world, between all the empires of the East and West. Every time they have a civil war, foreign troops come and get involved, and we are part of that pattern. We are doing the same thing.

I do not believe our troops are going to be able to solve the problem there. I think they are going to be shields and hostages. I think, as occurred in Haiti, our best intentions will not result in our intended consequences. We are receiving reports that in Haiti, all the money our taxpayers spent, plus the presence of the U.S. troops, have been for nought, because now President Aristide is indicating he wants to stay on, or at least that has been the indication. There is rioting in the streets, and it does not seem we accomplished the objectives the taxpayers were asked to pursue.

So I know our President is acting in the best faith, but based on my personal experiences as a soldier in Vietnam, I believe this is a mistake. Some people have said to me, "Are you willing to support the President?" Of course, I want to support the President, but I have a great deal of difficulty because of my personal experiences. I served two tours of duty in Vietnam as a lieutenant and based on that experience, I am opposed to our troops going into Bosnia.

Mr. President, I yield the floor, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION SUNSET ACT

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 3067 WITHDRAWN

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I have conferred with individuals whose interest in the amendment which I had proposed has been expressed, and they have been very cordial in their willingness to work to try and accommodate the objectives which I have expressed in filing the amendment, and because we have an opportunity to work toward those objectives together—and I would hope that we can do so effectively—I at this time withdraw my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has the right to withdraw his amendment. The amendment is withdrawn.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, the distinguished Senator from Missouri does have a real problem, and some of that language looked as if he had a good solution but in some instances could have gone too far. The truth of the matter is I am not positive about it, but I am delighted to work with the distinguished Senator and I hope we can get that problem solved for him. I appreciate it.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, now that we are about where we were at 3 o'clock this afternoon, maybe we will be successful at this time. I think we are ready to pass this bill if the Chair would see fit to recognize the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I commend my colleague from Missouri for his leadership, and we look forward to him revisiting this issue again.

At this time, I ask that the bill be read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill is open to further amendment. If there be no further amendment to be proposed, the question is on agreeing to the committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended.

The committee amendment in the nature of a substitute, as amended, was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Commerce Committee be discharged from further consideration of H.R. 2539, the House companion, and that the Senate immediately proceed to its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be stated by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2539) to abolish the Interstate Commerce Commission, to amend subtitle IV of title 49, United States Code, to reform economic regulation of transportation, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask further that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the text of S. 1396, as amended, be inserted in lieu thereof and that H.R. 2539 be read a third time, and the Senate then immediately vote on passage of H.R. 2539.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. EXON. We have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The question is on the engrossment of the amendment and third reading of the bill.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall it pass?

The bill (H.R. 2539), as amended, was passed, as follows:

(The text of the bill will be printed in a future edition of the RECORD.)

Mr. EXON. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. PRESSLER. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. PRESSLER. I finally ask unanimous consent that S. 1396 be placed back on the calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. PRESSLER. Finally, Mr. President, I want to take just a moment to thank some of the staff and individuals who worked so hard to make this legislation possible. They have been working for many months and deserve our thanks. First, let me thank Chris McLean of Senator EXON's staff and Clyde Hart and Carl Bentzel of the committee's minority staff. On the committee's majority staff, I want to thank Tom Hohenthaler and Mike King for their hard work in bringing us to this point. Each of these staff members demonstrated the kind of bipartisan initiative that epitomized the process and the professionalism that made the legislation possible. Finally, I wish to give the highest praise to Ann Begeman for her diligent work on this bill. She displayed great persistence and leadership and I want to especially recognize her efforts.

Let me also thank Linda Morgan, chairman of the ICC, for all her guidance and expertise. Her efforts are much appreciated. I also want to thank a staff member of the ICC, Ellen Hansen, who was generously detailed to the committee by the agency and who has worked very hard, and provided the technical expertise necessary to produce legislation that provides a reasonable and orderly transition. I very much appreciate the professional work done by all these dedicated individuals.

Mr. President, I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period for morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

I. Background

A. Introduction

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), PL 104-1, was enacted into law on January 23, 1995. In general, the CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment law statutes to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch. Section 203(a) of the CAA applies the rights and protections of subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6, section 7, and section 12(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 206(a)(1) and (d), 207, 212(c) ("FLSA")) to covered employees and employing offices. Section 203(c) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)) directs the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance established under the CAA to issue regulations to implement the section. Section 203(c)(2) (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)(2)) further states that such regulations, with the exception of certain irregular work schedule regulations to be issued under section 203(a)(3), "shall be the same as substantive regulations issued by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section."

B. Advance notice of proposed rulemaking

On September 28, 1995, the Board of the Office of Compliance issued an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking ("ANPRM") soliciting comments from interested parties in order to obtain participation and information early in the rulemaking process. 141 Cong. R. S14542 (daily ed., Sept. 28, 1995). In addition to inviting comment on specific questions arising under five of the statutes made applicable by the CAA in the ANPRM, the Board and the statutory appointees of the Office sought consultation with the Chair of the Administrative Conference of the United States, the Secretary of Labor and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management with regard to the development of these regulations in accordance with section 304(g) of the CAA. The Office has also consulted with interested parties to further its understanding of the need for and content of appropriate regulations. Based on the information gleaned from these consultations and the comments on the ANPRM, the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance is publishing these proposed rules, pursuant to Section 203(c)(1) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)(1)).

1. Modification of the regulations of the Department of Labor

In the ANPRM, the Board asked the question, "Whether and to what extent should the Board modify the Secretary's Regulations?" The Board received 15 comments on the ANPRM: two from Senators, four from House Members (one from the leadership of the Committee with primary jurisdiction for the CAA and one from three of the sponsors of the CAA), one from the Secretary of the Senate and three from House offices (two from institutional offices and one from a Member's Chief of Staff), four from business coalitions or associations representing an array of private employers, and one from a labor organization.

Those commenters who expressed views on the ANPRM cited both the statute and the legislative history in taking the position that the CAA presumes that the regulations of the Department of Labor should not be modified. Illustrative comments included the following:

"[Section 304 of the CAA] evidences clear legislative intent that the Board apply these rights and protections to Congressional employees in a manner comparable to and consistent with the rights and protections applicable to employees in the private sector under regulations adopted by the Secretary (DOL). . . . The [CAA] requires that the regulations issued by the Board be the same as those issued by DOL unless the Board determines that modification would more effectively implement the rights and protections of the laws made applicable under the [CAA]."

"[I]f a law is right for the private sector, it is right for Congress; . . . Consistent with [this] principle, we would urge the Office not to deviate (except in those few areas where expressly authorized by the CAA) from applying the laws in the same manner in which they are applied to the private sector.

* * * * *

[W]e have not identified any situations in which modifications [of the DOL regulations] would be appropriate."

"There are no circumstances that justify 'good cause' for adopting regulations that deviate from those currently applied to private sector employers."

"[Section 203(c)(2)] confers on the Office of Compliance only very limited authority to deviate from the present DOL regulations. The legislative history to the 'good cause' exception likewise makes clear that this authority is to be used by the Office of Compliance sparingly."

* * * * *

"The legislative history of the CAA demands that the Office of Compliance apply to Congress the same regulations as those imposed on the private sector."

"[W]e urge the Board to refrain from modifying regulations promulgated by the Department of Labor and other Executive agencies. Use of established regulations will provide the Board, employees and employing offices with a body of instructive case law and interpretive documents."

"While the Office serves an important implementation and enforcement role, it must not place itself in the position of shielding Congress from substantive requirements imposed on private businesses."

Based on the comments and the Board's understanding of the law and the institutions to which it is being made applicable, the Board is issuing the Secretary's regulations with only these limited modifications: Technical changes in the nomenclature and deletion of those sections clearly inapplicable to the legislative branch.

2. Notice posting and recordkeeping

The ANPRM also invited comment on whether the recordkeeping and notice posting requirements of the various laws made applicable by the CAA are incorporated as statutory requirements of the CAA. The ANPRM inquired whether, if such requirements were not incorporated, could and should the Board develop its own requirements pursuant to its "good cause" authority. The ANPRM also invited comment on proposing guidelines and models for recordkeeping and notice posting.

Commenters were in agreement that recordkeeping and notice posting are important to the effective implementation of several of the statutes incorporated in the CAA. However, opinions as to whether the Board should require notice posting and recordkeeping were widely divergent. Several commenters expressed the view that the Board lacks the statutory authority to adopt notice posting and recordkeeping requirements and that the notice posting and record-keeping requirements of the FLSA do not apply to Congress. Other commenters expressed the view that the Board has the authority to issue regulations to impose recordkeeping and notice posting requirements and that such regulations should be, in substance, the same as those with which the private sector must comply.

The Board agrees with those commenters who took the position that, if employing offices are to be treated the same as private sector employers are treated under FLSA, they should have to comply with the statute's notice posting and recordkeeping requirements. Moreover, the Board notes that notice posting and recordkeeping promote the full and effective enforcement of these incorporated rights and protections. In the Board's view, notice posting and recordkeeping may well be in employers' interests both as a sound personnel practice and in order to defend against subsequent litigation.

But while the CAA incorporates certain specific sections of the FLSA, the CAA explicitly did not incorporate the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of Section 11, 29 U.S.C. §211 of the FLSA. Because the Board's authority to modify the Secretary's regulations for "good cause" does not authorize it to adopt regulatory requirements that are the equivalent of statutory requirements that Congress has omitted from the CAA, the Board has determined that it may not impose such requirements on employing offices. However, as various commenters suggest, the Board will provide guidance to employing offices concerning model recordkeeping practices as part of carrying out its program of education under section 301(h) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. 1381(h)).

The Board would also note that based upon their collective years of experience representing employers and employees with regard to various labor and employment laws, including the FLSA, the absence of recordkeeping and notice posting requirements may create a void which can only partially be filled by the program of education to be carried out by the Board pursuant to Section 301(h)(1) and the optional notice which will be distributed by the Board pursuant to Section 301(h)(2). The Board also would emphasize that employees will in many circumstances be able to establish a prima facie case simply by their own testimony estimating the hours worked by the employees where the employing office has failed to maintain adequate, accurate records. An employing office may find that its ability to respond to an employee's prima facie case is substantially burdened by its failure to keep accurate payroll and time-records. If Congress wishes to experience the same burdens as faced by the private sector and also to address these issues, it should enact recordkeeping requirements comparable to those of the FLSA. (Of course, like the regulations under those statutes, such recordkeeping requirements may leave to the discretion of each employing office the precise form and manner in which records will be kept.) But, in light of the text and structure of the CAA, the Board believes that it is up to Congress to decide whether to do so.

II. The proposed regulations

A. Background

Congress committed enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to the Department of Labor and its Wage and Hour Division, whose regulations and interpretations of that Act comprise almost one thousand pages of Chapter V, Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations. In enacting the CAA, however, Congress expressly refused to commit enforcement to the executive branch of the Federal government nor did Congress bring its employing offices under the FLSA itself. Instead, Congress carefully specified, through sectional references to the FLSA, the substantive rights and protections afforded to legislative employees, and precisely mandated procedures by which those rights and protections would be largely enforced by a new and independent office in the legislative branch, the Office of Compliance. Further, in granting the Board rulemaking authority with respect to the FLSA in Section 203(c)(1) of the CAA, Congress affirmatively commanded the Board to issue substantive regulations, with the important directive that they "shall be the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor * * * except as the Board may determine, for good cause shown * * * that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of rights and protections under" the CAA.

In the Board's view, and notwithstanding what has been urged by some of the commenters, this unusual statutory framework neither mandates nor allows an uncritical, wholesale incorporation of all the regulations and interpretive statements issued by the Labor Department under the FLSA. Rather, this statutory framework requires the Board to cull from the vast body of FLSA material found in the Code of Regulations only those items that constitute "substantive regulations" as the term is understood under settled principles of administrative law. (See Batterton v. Francis, 422 U.S. 416, 425, n. 9 (1977)). Moreover, the statutory framework authorizes the Board to delete those substantive regulations that either have no application in the employing offices of the Congress or that are not likely to be invoked. For these reasons, the Board is not proposing their adoption, unless public comments establish a justification to the contrary. Finally, by limiting itself to substantive regulations, the Board is not adopting those portions of 29 C.F.R. chapter V that constitute the interpretative bulletins or statements of the Department of Labor and its Wage and Hour Division.

B. Proposed regulations

1. General provisions

The proposed regulations include an initial Part 501 which contains matters of general applicability including the purpose and scope of the regulations, definitions, coverage, and the administrative authority of the Board and the Office of Compliance. In addition, a section explains the effect of interpretative bulletins and statements of the Department of Labor, and another section provides for the application of the Portal to Portal Act. These latter sections are discussed below.

It is noted that the definition section incorporates the general provisions of section 101 of the CAA which defines "employee," "covered employee," "employing office," and "employee of the House of Representatives." Section 203 of the CAA, which applies the rights and protections of the FLSA, also contemplates the promulgation of a definitional regulation that excludes "interns" from the meaning of "covered employee." The Board in a separate NPRM issued on October 11, 1995, proposed such a regulation, together with a regulation governing irregular work schedules and the receipt of compensatory time in lieu of overtime compensation. The Board is reviewing the public comments received in response to that NPRM and will issue a separate final rule on those issues.

It should be noted that section 225(f)(1) of the CAA provides that, except where inconsistent with definitions of the CAA itself, the definitions in the laws made applicable by the CAA shall also apply under the CAA. Thus, attention must be paid to those definitions found in the FLSA that are consistent with the CAA even if they are not expressly incorporated in the proposed regulations. In this regard, one commenter expressed concern over whether employing offices would be obligated to pay minimum wages and overtime compensation to individuals who do volunteer work, in light of the fact that under the FLSA "employee" may include certain volunteers. See 29 U.S.C. §203(e)(4)(A), which excludes from the definition of "employee" only certain volunteers who perform work for a State, political subdivision, or interstate governmental agency. Similarly, it is noted that, in enacting the CAA, Congress did make separate provision for excluding interns. Thus, the Board has concluded that, to the extent that volunteer activity would bring an individual under the coverage of the FLSA, similarly situated individuals would be treated in the same manner under the CAA.

2. Provisions derived from regulations of the Department of Labor

Those regulations of the Department of Labor that are being adopted in substance include:

Part 531, which governs the manner in which an employee's wages are calculated taking into account the reasonable cost to an employer of furnishing board, lodging, or other facilities. This Part is derived from Section 3(m) of the FLSA, which directs how the "wage" paid to an employee is determined. Section 3(m) must be treated as applicable under the CAA by virtue of Section 225(f)(1), which authorizes generally the inclusion of those definitions and exemptions that are consistent with definitions and exemptions of the CAA. However, it is noted that section 3(m) is inconsistent with the CAA insofar as the implementing regulations in Part 531, Title 29, C.F.R., provide procedures by which the Wage and Hour Administrator makes determinations in specific cases with respect to the furnishing of board, lodging, or other facilities. Because the Administrator has no role in the enforcement of the CAA by reason of Section 225(f)(3), and because the Board is not at this time is not authorizing the Office of Compliance to make such specific determinations, the Board proposes to delete the provisions setting forth those procedures. Similarly, the reference to "tipped employees" and the method by which their wages are determined are deleted because the applicable sections assign responsibility to the Administrator.

Part 541, which defines and delimits the bona fide executive, administrative, and professional employees who are exempt under Section 13(a) of the FLSA from the minimum wage and maximum hours requirements. The Board has determined that this exemption, commonly known as the "white collar" exemption, is applicable to employing offices of Congress by virtue of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA.

In the ANPRM, the Board solicited public comment on whether and to what extent it should modify the Labor Department's regulations regarding this exemption. Generally, the commenters did not question the applicability of this exemption to covered employees under the CAA, and several commenters urged the adoption of all of the Department's regulations in Part 541, 29 C.F.R., including the interpretative bulletins, without any modification. Two commenters contended that the Board's regulations should grant a sweeping exemption for nearly all staff employees working in elected members' offices because they exercise independent judgment and discretion in performing their responsibilities.

Other commenters urged the Board to modify the Labor Department regulations to take into account the unique job responsibilities of staff working for an elected member either in a personal office, in a leadership office or on committee. Recognizing that job titles alone cannot be dispositive of who is an exempt employee, these commenters urged the Board to identify with particularity those job duties which, if performed by an employee, would render him or her an exempt executive, administrative, or professional employee.

The Board is proposing to adopt the Labor Department's substantive regulations contained in Subpart A of Part 541 of 29 C.F.R. that set forth the fundamental criteria for satisfying each of the three exemptions. But, for the reasons explained below, the Board is not formally adopting the interpretative bulletins contained in Subpart B of Part 541 of 29 C.F.R., which discuss and illustrate through examples the Department's understanding of the exemption criteria.

With respect to some commenters' request that the Board modify the white collar exemptions, upon reflection, the Board has reluctantly concluded that such a modification would not satisfy the "good cause" requirement of Section 203(c)(2) of the CAA. The Board recognizes that the Secretary's regulations and interpretations were promulgated in a different era, with different employment paradigms in mind. Thus, the Board appreciates the many difficulties that employing offices will have in interpreting and reconciling these regulations to present day realities. Moreover, the Board is mindful of the significant impact the application of the administrative, executive and professional exemption will have on the structuring, functioning and expense of the Members' and Senators' personal offices and committee offices. However, the Board notes that private sector and state and local government employers face the same difficulties. And the Board has not found any sound, principled basis for modifying the exemption regulation for Congress and its instrumentalities. That resolved, the Board nonetheless wishes to make clear its intent to provide, as time and resources permit, appropriate general guidance to the Congress and its instrumentalities on how to identify and justify which employees are exempt. Such efforts made through the Office's education and information programs, will attempt to assist employing offices in determining which job duties will be considered exempt under the executive, administration or professional criteria.

Part 547, which defines, pursuant to Section 7(e)(3)(b) the standard that bona fide thrift or savings plans must meet in order not to be included within an employee's regular rate of pay for purposes of calculating overtime obligations under Section 7 of the FLSA. This is included in light of Section 203(a)(1) of the CAA, which specifically applied the rights and protections of Section 7 of the FLSA.

Part 570, which sets forth the limitations on the use of child labor. This Part implements Section 12(c) of the FLSA, prohibiting oppressive child labor, as defined by Section 3(1) of the same Act. The former section is specifically referenced in Section 203(a)(1) of the CAA, while the latter must be referenced by reason of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA. The inclusion of this Part in the separate regulations of the Senate is necessitated by the fact that the Senate allows for the appointment of congressional pages below the age of 16, unlike the House of Representatives, which by law sets a minimum age of 16 for such employees. For children under age 16, the FLSA regulations impose limitations on hours worked during the school year. Part 570 is also included in the separate regulations applicable to all other covered employees and employing offices. Given the hazardous nature of some of the activities of the support functions, such as maintenance and repair, Part 570 regulations are being proposed in the event that such instrumentalities employ children under 18 years of age. It is noted that the Board has not adopted regulations comparable to those set forth in the Labor Department's Subpart B (29 C.F.R. Sections 570.5-.27), authorizing the issuance of certificates of age. In addition, with respect to Section 570.52, governing the hazardous occupation of motor-vehicle driver and outside helper, the Board is not adopting the special exemption for school bus driving because by its terms no employing offices would satisfy the criteria of the regulation.

C. Secretary of Labor's regulations that the Board proposes not to adopt

In reviewing the remaining parts of the Labor Department's regulations, it is readily apparent that some have no application to the employing offices within the legislative branch. For this reason, the Board is not including them within its substantive regulations. Among the excluded regulations are: Part 510, which pertains to the application of the minimum wage provisions to Puerto Rico; Part 511, establishing a wage order procedure for American Samoa; Part 515, authorizing the utilization of State government agencies for investigations and inspections; Part 530, governing the employment of industrial homeworkers in certain industries; Part 549, defining the requirements of a "bona fide profit-sharing plan or trust;" Part 550, defining the term "talent fees;" Part 552, regulating the application of the FLSA to domestic service; Part 575, addressing child labor in certain agricultural employment; Parts 578, 579, and 580, implementing the civil money penalties provisions of the FLSA; and Part 679, dealing with industries in American Samoa. Unless public comments suggest otherwise, the Board intends including in the adopted regulations a provision stating that the Board has issued regulations on all matters for which the CAA requires a regulation. See Section 411 of the CAA.

Other substantive regulations could have application in the event that an employing office wished to avail itself of certain special wage rates, subminimum wage exemptions or overtime exemptions under the FLSA. These are found in: Parts 519-528, which authorize subminimum wages for full-time students, student-learners, apprentices, learners, messengers, workers with disabilities, and student workers; Part 548, which authorizes in the collective bargaining context the establishment of basic wage rates for overtime compensation purposes; and Part 551, which implements an overtime exemption for local delivery drivers and helpers. Unless public comments provide a sufficient justification to the contrary the Board is not proposing the adoption of regulations covering the foregoing subjects.

III. The Interpretive Bulletins and Other Relevant Guidance

In addition to the substantive regulations found in Subchapter A, the Department of Labor has issued, under Subchapter B, "Statements of General Policy or Interpretations Not Directly Related to Regulations." 29 C.F.R. Parts 775-794. Usually called Interpretive Bulletins, these statements make available in one place the official interpretations which guide the Secretary of Labor and the Wage and Hour Administrator in the performance of their duties. As the interpretations of an administering agency, such statements are usually given some deference by the courts. As the Supreme Court has observed: "the rulings, interpretations and opinions of the Administrator under this Act, while not controlling upon the courts by reason of their authority, do constitute a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. The weight of such a judgment in a particular case will depend upon the thoroughness evident in the consideration, the validity of its reasoning its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control." Skidmore v. Swift, 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944).

However, unlike "substantive regulations," these interpretations are not issued by the agency pursuant to its statutory authority to implement the statute and, more significantly, do not have the force and effect of law. See Batterton v. Francis, 432 U.S. 416, 425 n.9 (1977). The Board's mandate is only to issue substantive regulations that are "the same as the substantive regulations of the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provision [of the FLSA] applied" by Section 204(a) of the CAA unless modified for good cause (CAA Section 203 (c)(2)). Therefore, the Board, does not propose to adopt the non-substantive interpretations of the DOL and its Wage and Hour Division as substantive regulations under the CAA. Moreover, the Board is not proposing to issue the Department's interpretations as its own interpretations of the FLSA rights and protections made applicable under the CAA at this time. However, as discussed below, employing offices should be advised that, pursuant to the Portal to Portal Act, the Board will give due consideration to the Secretary's interpretations of the FLSA.

Application of the Portal to Portal Act.—The Portal to Portal Act, 61 Stat. 84 (1947), codified generally at 29 U.S.C. Sections 216 and 251, et seq. ("PPA"), contains provisions which affect the rights and liabilities of employees and employers with regard to alleged underpayment of minimum or overtime wages under the FLSA. Section 4 of the PPA excludes from the definition of hours worked both activities preliminary to or postliminary to the worker's principal activities and travel time absent a contract, custom or practice to the contrary. 29 U.S.C. Section 254. Sections 9 and 10 of the PPA provide the employer with a defense against liability or punishment in any action or proceeding brought against it for failure to comply with the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA, where the employer pleads and proves that the act or omission complained of was in good faith in conformity with and in reliance on any regulation, order, ruling, approval, interpretation, administrative practice or enforcement policy of the Wage and Hour Administrator of the Department of Labor. 29 U.S.C. Sections 258-259. The PPA also contains provisions which restrict and limit employee suits under section 16(b) of the FLSA. For example, section 11 of the PPA provides that in any action brought under section 216 of the FLSA, the court may in its discretion, subject to prescribed conditions, award no liquidated damages or award any amount of such damages not to exceed the amount specified in section 16(b) of the FLSA. 29 U.S.C. Section 260.

The Board has determined that the above provisions of the PPA are incorporated into section 203 of the CAA, either as an amendment to section 16(b) of the FLSA (which is expressly applied to the legislative branch under section 203(b) of the CAA), or by virtue of section 225(f) of the CAA, which applies the definitions and exemptions of the FLSA to the extent not inconsistent with the CAA. To that end, the Board will give due consideration to the interpretations of the FLSA of the Secretary of Labor. Moreover, employing offices may utilize these interpretations in attempting to understand the rights and protections under the FLSA that have been made applicable by the CAA. Unless and until the Secretary's interpretive statements are superseded or interpretative guidance or decisions to the contrary are issued by the Board or the courts, they may be relied upon for purposes of defending against claims brought under the CAA to the same extent as private sector employers may properly rely upon them in actions brought under the FLSA.

Joint Employer Doctrine.—The Board solicited comments in the ANPRM on whether and to what extent the joint employment doctrine as developed under the FLSA is applicable under the CAA. The comments generally advocated adoption of the doctrine to employing offices of the Congress. However, since the issue of joint employment is addressed through a DOL interpretive bulletin set forth in Part 791, 29 C.F.R., rather than a substantive regulation, the Board is not adopting it as such nor issuing it as its own interpretive statement. See discussion at Section III.

Equal Pay Act.—With respect to the Equal Pay Act (EPA), which is included in Section 6(d) of the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. Section 206(d), the Secretary of Labor promulgated interpretative regulations that were originally included in 29 C.F.R. Part 800. Pursuant to the provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978, as confirmed by the Congress in Public Law 98-532, 98 Stat. 2705 (1984), enforcement and administration of the EPA was transferred from the Secretary of Labor to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). The EEOC promulgated its own interpretations implementing the EPA at 29 C.F.R. Part 1620. Thereafter, the Secretary deleted its interpretations. 52 FR 2517 (Jan. 23, 1987). Thus, there are no substantive regulations implementing the EPA. Under the rationale previously stated regarding the Portal to Portal Act, the Board declines to incorporate the EEOC interpretations as substantive regulations under the CAA but will recognize them as is appropriate.

Opinion letters.—Commenters asked that the Board consider establishing a process under which the Office or the Board would issue opinion letters and upon which employing offices could rely, similar to the procedure followed by the Wage and Hour Administrator in sometimes providing such opinions at the request of private sector employers. The Board understands employing offices' desire for guidance and clarity regarding their obligations under the CAA.

To the extent that the Board itself can address issues through regulations or interpretations, it will do so. Moreover, the Office intends to provide appropriate education and technical assistance as part of its education and information responsibilities. But for the reasons stated here, the Board and the Office's ability to do so is limited by legal, resource and policy considerations. As is the case in the private sector context, many issues under these statutes can only be definitively resolved through case-by-case adjudication on particular facts. Moreover, except in the context of statutes subject to the Portal to Portal Act, it is doubtful that the Board or the Office has the statutory authority to issue guidance with legal effect (outside of the adjudicatory or rulemaking contexts); we are not aware of any such legal authorization for Executive Branch agencies to do so in the context of applying these same laws to the private sector. Further, the resources of the Board and the Office are limited: the first year appropriation is for $2.5 million. These resources are substantially less than those available to analogous Executive Branch agencies that administer fewer laws. Finally, public comment has not provided the Board with the facts necessary for yet making any of these determinations—and a detailed evidentiary record is necessary for such judgment to be made. In short, particularly in light of the various statutory responsibilities of the Office and the Board, it is not possible to give answers with legal effect to each individual request for information and guidance. While the Board will structure education and information programs to assist employees and employing offices, it is forced to respond that, like private employers, employing offices will generally have to rely on their own counsel and human resource advisors in determining their compliance with the Congressional Accountability Act.

IV. Method of Approval

The Board recommends that (1) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate be approved by the Senate by resolution; (2) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives be approved by the House of Representatives by resolution; and (3) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to other covered employees and employing offices be approved by the Congress by concurrent resolution.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on this 21st day of November, 1995.

GLEN D. NAGER,
Chair of the Board,
Office of Compliance.

SUBPART A—MATTERS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

§ 501.101 Purpose and scope.

(a) Section 203 of the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA) provides that the rights and protections of subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6, section 7, and section 12(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (FLSA) (29 U.S.C. §§206(a)(1) and (d), 207, 212(c)) shall apply to covered employees of the legislative branch of the Federal government. Section 301 of the CAA creates the Office of Compliance as an independent office in the legislative branch for enforcing the rights and protections of the FLSA, as applied by the CAA.

(b) The FLSA as applied by the CAA provides for minimum standards for both wages and overtime entitlements, and delineates administrative procedures by which covered worktime must be compensated. Included also in the FLSA are provisions related to child labor, equal pay, and portal-to-portal activities. In addition, the FLSA exempts specified employees or groups of employees from the application of certain of its provisions.

(c) This chapter contains the substantive regulations with respect to the FLSA that the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance has adopted pursuant to Sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA, which require that the Board promulgate regulations that are "the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) [of § 203 of the CAA] except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown . . . that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section."

§ 501.102 Definitions.

For purposes of this chapter:

(a) CAA means the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 (P.L. 104-1, 109 Stat. 3, 2 U.S.C. §§1301-1438).

(b) FLSA or Act means the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (29 U.S.C. § 201 et seq.).

(c) Covered employee means any employee of the Senate, including an applicant for employment and a former employee.

(d) Employee of the Senate includes any employee whose pay is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate, but not any such individual employed by (1) the Capitol Guide Service; (2) the Capitol Police; (3) the Congressional Budget Office; (4) the Office of the Architect of the Capitol; (5) the Office of the Attending Physician; (6) the Office of Compliance; or (7) the Office of Technology Assessment.

(e) Employing office and employer mean (1) the personal office of a Senator; (2) a committee of the Senate or a joint committee; or (3) any other office headed by a person with the final authority to appoint, hire, discharge, and set the terms, conditions, or privileges of the employment of an employee of the Senate.

(f) Board means the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance.

(g) Office means the Office of Compliance.

§ 501.103 Coverage.

The coverage of Section 203 of the CAA extends to any covered employee of an employing office without regard to whether the covered employee is engaged in commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce and without regard to size, number of employees, amount of business transacted, or other measure.

§ 501.104 Administrative authority.

(a) The Office of Compliance is authorized to administer the provisions of Section 203 of the Act with respect to any covered employee or covered employer.

(b) The Board is authorized to promulgate substantive regulations in accordance with the provisions of Sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA.

(c) The Board may in its discretion from time to time issue interpretative statements providing guidance to employees and to employing offices on the rights and protections established under the FLSA that are made applicable by Sections 203(a) and 225 of the CAA.

§ 5501.105 Effect of Interpretations of the Department of Labor.

(a) In administering the FLSA, the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor has issued not only substantive regulations but also interpretative bulletins. Substantive regulations represent an exercise of statutorily-delegated lawmaking authority from the legislative branch to an administrative agency. Generally, they are proposed in accordance with the notice-and-comment procedures of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), 5 U.S.C. § 553. Once promulgated, such regulations are considered to have the force and effect of law, unless set aside upon judicial review as arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law. See Batterton v. Francis, 432 U.S. 416, 425 n.9 (1977). See also 29 C.F.R. § 790.17(b) (1994). Unlike substantive regulations, interpretative statements, including bulletins and other releases of the Wage and Hour Division, are not issued pursuant to the provisions of the APA and may not have the force and effect of law. Rather, they may only constitute official interpretations of the Department of Labor with respect to the meaning and application of the minimum wage, maximum hour, and overtime pay requirements of the FLSA. See 29 C.F.R. § 790.17(c) (citing Final Report of the Attorney General's Committee on Administrative Procedure, Senate Document No.8, 77th Cong., 1st Sess., at p. 27 (1941)). The purpose of such statements is to make available in one place the interpretations of the FLSA which will guide the Secretary of Labor and the Wage and Hour Administrator in the performance of their duties unless and until they are otherwise directed by authoritative decisions of the courts or conclude, upon reexamination of an interpretation, that it is incorrect. The Supreme Court has observed: "[T]he rulings, interpretations and opinions of the Administrator under this Act, while not controlling upon the courts by reason of their authority, do constitute a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. The weight of such a judgment in a particular case will depend upon the thoroughness evident in the consideration, the validity of its reasoning, its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control." Skidmore v. Swift, 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944).

(b) Section 203(c) of the CAA provides that the substantive regulations implementing Section 203 of the CAA shall be "the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor" except where the Board finds, for good cause shown, that a modification would more effectively implement the rights and protections established by the FLSA. Thus, the CAA by its terms does not mandate that the Board adopt the interpretative statements of the Department of Labor or its Wage and Hour Division. The Board is thus not adopting such statements as part of its substantive regulations.

§ 5501.106 Application of the Portal-to-Portal Act of 1947.

(a) Consistent with Section 225 of the CAA, the Portal to Portal Act (PPA), 29 U.S.C. §§ 216 and 251 et seq., is applicable in defining and delimiting the rights and protections of the FLSA that are prescribed by the CAA. Section 10 of the PPA, 29 U.S.C. § 259, provides in pertinent part: [N]o employer shall be subject to any liability or punishment for or on account of the failure of the employer to pay minimum wages or overtime compensation under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, * * * if he pleads and proves that the act or omission complained of was in good faith in conformity with and reliance on any written administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation of [the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor] * * * or any administrative practice or enforcement policy of such agency with respect to the class of employers to which he belonged. Such a defense, if established shall be a bar to the action or proceeding, notwithstanding that after such act or omission, such administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval, interpretation, practice or enforcement policy is modified or rescinded or is determined by judicial authority to be invalid or of no legal effect.

(b) In defending any action or proceeding based on any act or omission arising out of section 203 of the CAA, an employing office may satisfy the standards set forth in subsection (a) by pleading and proving good faith reliance upon:

(1) Any written administrative regulation, order, decision, ruling, approval or interpretation, or any administrative practice or enforcement policy, of the Board.

(2) Any written administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation, of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor: Provided, that such regulation, order, ruling approval or interpretation had not been superseded at the time of reliance by any regulation, order, decision, ruling, approval or interpretation, or any administrative practice or enforcement policy, of the Board or the courts.

SUBPART A—PRELIMINARY MATTERS

§ 5531.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations at Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

531.1 Definitions.—S531.1.

531.2 Purpose and scope.—S531.2.

531.3 General determinations of "reasonable cost".—S531.3.

531.6 Effects of collective bargaining agreements.—S531.6.

§ 5531.1 Definitions.

(a) Administrator means the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division or his authorized representative. The Secretary of Labor has delegated to the Administrator the functions vested in him under section 3(m) of the Act.

(b) Act means the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended.

§ 5531.2 Purpose and scope.

(a) Section 3(m) of the Act defines the term "wage" to include the "reasonable cost", as determined by the Secretary of Labor, to an employer of furnishing any employee with board, lodging, or other facilities, if such board, lodging, or other facilities are customarily furnished by the employer to his employees. In addition, section 3(m) gives the Secretary authority to determine the "fair value" of such facilities on the basis of average cost to the employer or to groups of employers similarly situated, on average value to groups of employees, or other appropriate measures of "fair value". Whenever so determined and when applicable and pertinent, the "fair value" of the facilities involved shall be includable as part of "wages" instead of the actual measure of the costs of those facilities. The section provides, however, that the cost of board, lodging, or other facilities shall not be included as part of "wages" if excluded therefrom by a bona fide collective bargaining agreement. Section 3(m) also provides a method for determining the wage of a tipped employee.

(b) This part 531 contains any determinations made as to the "reasonable cost" and "fair value" of board, lodging, or other facilities having general application.

SUBPART B—DETERMINATIONS OF "REASONABLE COST" AND "FAIR VALUE"; EFFECTS OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS

§ 5531.3 General determinations of "reasonable cost."

(a) The term reasonable cost as used in section 3(m) of the Act is hereby determined to be not more than the actual cost to the employer of the board, lodging, or other facilities customarily furnished by him to his employees.

(b) Reasonable cost does not include a profit to the employer or to any affiliated person.

(c) The reasonable cost to the employer of furnishing the employee with board, lodging, or other facilities (including housing) is the cost of operation and maintenance including adequate depreciation plus a reasonable allowance (not more than 5½ percent) for interest on the depreciated amount of capital invested by the employer: Provided, That if the total so computed is more than the fair rental value (or the fair price of the commodities or facilities offered for sale), the fair rental value (or the fair price of the commodities or facilities offered for sale) shall be the reasonable cost. The cost of operation and maintenance, the rate of depreciation, and the depreciated amount of capital invested by the employer shall be those arrived at under good accounting practices. As used in this paragraph, the term good accounting practices does not include accounting practices which have been rejected by the Internal Revenue Service for tax purposes, and the term depreciation includes obsolescence.

(d)(1) The cost of furnishing "facilities" found by the Administrator to be primarily for the benefit or convenience of the employer will not be recognized as reasonable and may not therefore be included in computing wages.

(2) The following is a list of facilities found by the Administrator to be primarily for the benefit of convenience of the employer. The list is intended to be illustrative rather than exclusive: (i) Tools of the trade and other materials and services incidental to carrying on the employer's business; (ii) the cost of any construction by and for the employer;

(iii) the cost of uniforms and of their laundering, where the nature of the business requires the employee to wear a uniform.

§ 5531.6 Effects of collective bargaining agreements.

(a) The cost of board, lodging, or other facilities shall not be included as part of the wage paid to any employee to the extent it is excluded therefrom under the terms of a bona fide collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular employee.

(b) A collective bargaining agreement shall be deemed to be "bona fide" when pursuant to the provisions of section 7(b)(1) or 7(b)(2) of the FLSA it is made with the certified representative of the employees under the provisions of the CAA.

SUBPART A—GENERAL REGULATIONS

§ 5541.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations at Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

541.1 Executive.—S541.1.

541.2 Administrative.—S541.2.

541.3 Professional.—S541.3.

§ 5541.01 Application of the exemptions of section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA.

(a) Section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA, which provides certain exemptions for employees employed in a bona fide executive, administrative, or professional capacity (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in a secondary school), applies to covered employees by virtue of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA.

(b) The substantive regulations set forth in this part are promulgated under the authority of sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA, which require that such regulations be the same as the substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor except where the Board determines for good cause shown that modifications would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections of covered employees.

§ 5541.1 Executive.

The term employee employed in a bona fide executive * * * capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of the management of an employing office in which he is employed or of a customarily recognized department or subdivision thereof; and

(b) Who customarily and regularly directs the work of two or more other employees therein; and

(c) Who has the authority to hire or fire other employees or whose suggestions and recommendations as to the hiring or firing and as to the advancement and promotion or any other change of status of other employees will be given particular weight; and

(d) Who customarily and regularly exercises discretionary powers; and

(e) Who does not devote more than 20 percent, or, in the case of an employee of a retail or service establishment who does not devote as much as 40 percent, of his hours of work in the workweek to activities which are not directly and closely related to the performance of the work described in paragraphs (a) through (d) of this section: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply in the case of an employee who is in sole charge of an independent establishment or a physically separated branch establishment; and

(f) Who is compensated for his services on a salary basis at a rate of not less than $155 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities: Provided, That an employee who is compensated on a salary basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the management of the employing office in which the employee is employed or of a customarily recognized department or subdivision thereof, and includes the customary and regular direction of the work of two or more other employees therein, shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of this section

§ 5541.2 Administrative.

The term employee employed in a bona fide * * * administrative * * * capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of either: (1) The performance of office or nonmanual work directly related to management policies or general operations of his employer or his employer's customers, or (2) The performance of functions in the administration of the Congressional Page School or of a department or subdivision thereof, in work directly related to the academic instruction or training carried on therein; and

(b) Who customarily and regularly exercises discretion and independent judgment; and

(c)(1) Who regularly and directly assists the head of an employing office, or an employee employed in a bona fide executive or administrative capacity (as such terms are defined in the regulations of this subpart), or (2) Who performs under only general supervision work along specialized or technical lines requiring special training, experience, or knowledge, or (3) Who executes under only general supervision special assignments and tasks; and

(d) Who does not devote more than 20 percent, or, in the case of an employee of a retail or service establishment who does not devote as much as 40 percent, of his hours worked in the workweek to activities which are not directly and closely related to the performance of the work described in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section; and

(e)(1) Who is compensated for his services on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $155 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, or (2) Who, in the case of academic administrative personnel, is compensated for services as required by paragraph (e)(1) of this section, or on a salary basis which is at least equal to the entrance salary for teachers of the Congressional Page School: Provided, That an employee who is compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the performance of work described in paragraph (a) of this section, which includes work requiring the exercise of discretion and independent judgment, shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of this section.

§ 5541.3 Professional.

The term employee employed in a bona fide * * * professional capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of the performance of: (1) Work requiring knowledge of an advance type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study, as distinguished from a general academic education and from an apprenticeship, and from training in the performance of routine mental, manual, or physical processes, or (2) Work that is original and creative in character in a recognized field of artistic endeavor (as opposed to work which can be produced by a person endowed with general manual or intellectual ability and training), and the result of which depends primarily on the invention, imagination, or talent of the employee, or (3) Teaching, tutoring, instructing, or lecturing in the activity of imparting knowledge and who is employed and engaged in this activity as a teacher in the Congressional Page School, or (4) Work that requires theoretical and practical application of highly-specialized knowledge in computer systems analysis, programming, and software engineering, and who is employed and engaged in these activities as a computer systems analyst, computer programmer, software engineer, or other similarly skilled worker in the computer software field; and

(b) Whose work requires the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance; and

(c) Whose work is predominantly intellectual and varied in character (as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical, or physical work) and is of such character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time; and

(d) Who does not devote more than 20 percent of his hours worked in the workweek to activities which are not an essential part of and necessarily incident to the work described in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section; and

(e) Who is compensated for services on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $170 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply in the case of an employee who is the holder of a valid license or certificate permitting the practice of law or medicine or any of their branches and who is actually engaged in the practice thereof, nor in the case of an employee who is the holder of the requisite academic degree for the general practice of medicine and is engaged in an internship or resident program pursuant to the practice of medicine or any of its branches, nor in the case of an employee employed and engaged as a teacher as provided in paragraph (a)(3) of this section: Provided further, That an employee who is compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the performance either of work described in paragraph (a) (1), (3), or (4) of this section, which includes work requiring the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment, or of work requiring invention, imagination, or talent in a recognized field of artistic endeavor, shall be deemed to meet all of the requirements of this section: Provided further, That the salary or fee requirements of this paragraph shall not apply to an employee engaged in computer-related work within the scope of paragraph (a)(4) of this section and who is compensated on an hourly basis at a rate in excess of 6½ times the minimum wage provided by section 6 of the FLSA as applied by the CAA.

§ 5541.5b Equal pay provisions of section 6(d) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA extend to executive, administrative, and professional employees.

The FLSA, as amended and as applied by the CAA, includes within the protection of the equal pay provisions those employees exempt from the minimum wage and overtime pay provisions as bona fide executive, administrative, and professional employees (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in elementary or secondary schools) under section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA. Thus, for example, where an exempt administrative employee and another employee of the employing office are performing substantially "equal work," the sex discrimination prohibitions of section 6(d) are applicable with respect to any wage differential between those two employees.

PART S547—REQUIREMENTS OF A "BONA FIDE THRIFT OR SAVINGS PLAN."

S547.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

S547.0 Scope and effect of part.

S547.1 Essential requirements of qualifications.

S547.2 Disqualifying provisions.

§ 5547.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

547.0 Scope and effect of part.—S547.0.

547.1 Essential requirements of qualifications.—S547.1.

547.2 Disqualifying provisions.—S547.2.

§ 5547.0 Scope and effect of part.

(a) The regulations in this part set forth the requirements of a "bona fide thrift or savings plan" under section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (FLSA), as applied by the CAA. In determining the total remuneration for employment which section 7(e) of the FLSA requires to be included in the regular rate at which an employee is employed, it is not necessary to include any sums paid to or on behalf of such employee, in recognition of services performed by him during a given period, which are paid pursuant to a bona fide thrift or savings plan meeting the requirements set forth herein. In the formulation of these regulations due regard has been given to the factors and standards set forth in section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Act.

(b) Where a thrift or savings plan is combined in a single program (whether in one or more documents) with a plan or trust for providing old age, retirement, life, accident or health insurance or similar benefits for employees, contributions made by the employer pursuant to such thrift or savings plan may be excluded from the regular rate if the plan meets the requirements of the regulation in this part and the contributions made for the other purposes may be excluded from the regular rate if they meet the tests set forth in regulations.

§ 5547.1 Essential requirements for qualifications.

(a) A "bona fide thrift or savings plan" for the purpose of section 7(e)(3)(b) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA is required to meet all the standards set forth in paragraphs (b) through (f) of this section and must not contain the disqualifying provisions set forth in § 5547.2.

(b) The thrift or savings plan constitutes a definite program or arrangement in writing, adopted by the employer or by contract as a result of collective bargaining and communicated or made available to the employees, which is established and maintained, in good faith, for the purpose of encouraging voluntary thrift or savings by employees by providing an incentive to employees to accumulate regularly and retain cash savings for a reasonable period of time or to save through the regular purchase of public or private securities.

(c) The plan specifically shall set forth the category or categories of employees participating and the basis of their eligibility. Eligibility may not be based on such factors as hours of work, production, or efficiency of the employees: Provided, however, That hours of work may be used to determine eligibility of part-time or casual employees.

(d) The amount any employee may save under the plan shall be specified in the plan or determined in accordance with a definite formula specified in the plan, which formula may be based on one or more factors such as the straight-time earnings or total earnings, base rate of pay, or length of service of the employee.

(e) The employer's total contribution in any year may not exceed 15 percent of the participating employees' total earnings during that year. In addition, the employer's total contribution in any year may not exceed the total amount saved or invested by the participating employees during that year: Provided, however, That a plan permitting a greater contribution may be submitted to the Administrator and approved by him as a "bona fide thrift or savings plan" within the meaning of section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Act if: (1) The plan meets all the other standards of this section; (2) The plan contains none of the disqualifying factors enumerated in § 5547.2; (3) The employer's contribution is based to a substantial degree upon retention of savings; and (4) The amount of the employer's contribution bears a reasonable relationship to the amount of savings retained and the period of retention.

(f) The employer's contributions shall be apportioned among the individual employees in accordance with a definite formula or method of calculation specified in the plan, which formula or method of calculation is based on the amount saved or the length of time the individual employee retains his savings or investment in the plan: Provided, That no employee's share determined in accordance with the plan may be diminished because of any other remuneration received by him.

§ 5547.2 Disqualifying provisions.

(a) No employee's participation in the plan shall be on other than a voluntary basis.

(b) No employee's wages or salary shall be dependent upon or influenced by the existence of such thrift or savings plan or the employer's contributions thereto.

(c) The amounts any employee may save under the plan, or the amounts paid by the employer under the plan may not be based upon the employee's hours of work, production or efficiency.

Supplementary Information:

I. Background

A. Introduction

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), PL 104-1, was enacted into law on January 23, 1995. In general, the CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment law statutes to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch. Section 203(a) of the CAA applies the rights and protections of subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6, section 7, and section 12(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 206(a)(1) and (d), 207, 212(c) ("FLSA")) to covered employees and employing offices. Section 203(c) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)) directs the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance established under the CAA to issue regulations to implement the section. Section 203(c)(2) (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)(2)) further states that such regulations, with the exception of certain irregular work schedule regulations to be issued under section 203(a)(3), "shall be the same as substantive regulations issued by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section."

B. Advance notice of proposed rulemaking

On September 28, 1995, the Board of the Office of Compliance issued an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking ("ANPRM") soliciting comments from interested parties in order to obtain participation and information early in the rulemaking process. 141 Cong. R. S14542 (daily ed., Sept. 28, 1995). In addition to inviting comment on specific questions arising under five of the statutes made applicable by the CAA in the ANPRM, the Board and the statutory appointees of the Office sought consultation with the Chair of the Administrative Conference of the United States, the Secretary of Labor and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management with regard to the development of these regulations in accordance with section 304(g) of the CAA. The Office has also consulted with interested parties to further its understanding of the need for and content of appropriate regulations. Based on the information gleaned from these consultations and the comments on the ANPRM, the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance is publishing these proposed rules, pursuant to Section 203(c)(1) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)(1)).

1. Modification of the regulations of the Department of Labor

In the ANPRM, the Board asked the question, "Whether and to what extent should the Board modify the Secretary's Regulations?" The Board received 15 comments on the ANPRM: two from Senators, four from House Members (one from the leadership of the Committee with primary jurisdiction for the CAA and one from three of the sponsors of the CAA), one from the Secretary of the Senate and three from House offices (two from institutional offices and one from a Member's Chief of Staff), four from business coalitions or associations representing an array of private employers, and one from a labor organization.

Those commenters who expressed views on the ANPRM cited both the statute and the legislative history in taking the position that the CAA presumes that the regulations of the Department of Labor should not be modified. Illustrative comments included the following:

"[Section 304 of the CAA] evidences clear legislative intent that the Board apply these rights and protections to Congressional employees in a manner comparable to and consistent with the rights and protections applicable to employees in the private sector under regulations adopted by the Secretary (DOL). . . . The [CAA] requires that the regulations issued by the Board be the same as those issued by DOL unless the Board determines that modification would more effectively implement the rights and protections of the laws made applicable under the [CAA]."

"[I]f a law is right for the private sector, it is right for Congress; . . . Consistent with [this] principle, we would urge the Office not to deviate (except in those few areas where expressly authorized by the CAA) from applying the laws in the same manner in which they are applied to the private sector.

* * * * *

[W]e have not identified any situations in which modifications [of the DOL regulations] would be appropriate."

"There are no circumstances that justify 'good cause' for adopting regulations that deviate from those currently applied to private sector employers."

"[Section 203(c)(2)] confers on the Office of Compliance only very limited authority to deviate from the present DOL regulations. The legislative history to the 'good cause' exception likewise makes clear that this authority is to be used by the Office of Compliance sparingly."

* * * * *
 "The legislative history of the CAA demands that the Office of Compliance apply to Congress the same regulations as those imposed on the private sector."

"[W]e urge the Board to refrain from modifying regulations promulgated by the Department of Labor and other Executive agencies. Use of established regulations will provide the Board, employees and employing offices with a body of instructive case law and interpretive documents."

"While the Office serves an important implementation and enforcement role, it must not place itself in the position of shielding Congress from substantive requirements imposed on private businesses."

Based on the comments and the Board's understanding of the law and the institutions to which it is being made applicable, the Board is issuing the Secretary's regulations with only these limited modifications: Technical changes in the nomenclature and deletion of those sections clearly inapplicable to the legislative branch.

2. Notice posting and recordkeeping

The ANPRM also invited comment on whether the recordkeeping and notice posting requirements of the various laws made applicable by the CAA are incorporated as statutory requirements of the CAA. The ANPRM inquired whether, if such requirements were not incorporated, could and should the Board develop its own requirements pursuant to its "good cause" authority. The ANPRM also invited comment on proposing guidelines and models for recordkeeping and notice posting.

Commenters were in agreement that recordkeeping and notice posting are important to the effective implementation of several of the statutes incorporated in the CAA. However, opinions as to whether the Board should require notice posting and recordkeeping were widely divergent. Several commenters expressed the view that the Board lacks the statutory authority to adopt notice posting and recordkeeping requirements and that the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the FLSA do not apply to Congress. Other commenters expressed the view that the Board has the authority to issue regulations to impose recordkeeping and notice posting requirements and that such regulations should be, in substance, the same as those with which the private sector must comply.

The Board agrees with those commenters who took the position that, if employing offices are to be treated the same as private sector employers are treated under FLSA, they should have to comply with the statute's notice posting and recordkeeping requirements. Moreover, the Board notes that notice posting and recordkeeping promote the full and effective enforcement of these incorporated rights and protections. In the Board's view, notice posting and recordkeeping may well be in employers' interests both as a sound personnel practice and in order to defend against subsequent litigation.

But while the CAA incorporates certain specific sections of the FLSA, the CAA explicitly did not incorporate the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of Section 11, 29 U.S.C. §211 of the FLSA. Because the Board's authority to modify the Secretary's regulations for "good cause" does not authorize it to adopt regulatory requirements that are the equivalent of statutory requirements that Congress has omitted from the CAA, the Board has determined that it may not impose such requirements on employing offices. However, as various commenters suggest, the Board will provide guidance to employing offices concerning model recordkeeping practices as part of carrying out its program of education under section 301(h) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. 1381(h)).

The Board would also note that based upon their collective years of experience representing employers and employees with regard to various labor and employment laws, including the FLSA, the absence of recordkeeping and notice posting requirements may create a void which can only partially be filled by the program of education to be carried out by the Board pursuant to Section 301(h)(1) and the optional notice which will be distributed by the Board pursuant to Section 301(h)(2). The Board also would emphasize that employees will in many circumstances be able to establish a prima facie case simply by their own testimony estimating the hours worked by the employees where the employing office has failed to maintain adequate, accurate records. An employing office may find that its ability to respond to an employee's prima facie case is substantially burdened by its failure to keep accurate payroll and time-records. If Congress wishes to experience the same burdens as faced by the private sector and also to address these issues, it should enact recordkeeping requirements comparable to those of the FLSA. (Of course, like the regulations under those statutes, such recordkeeping requirements may leave to the discretion of each employing office the precise form and manner in which records will be kept.) But, in light of the text and structure of the CAA, the Board believes that it is up to Congress to decide whether to do so.

II. The proposed regulations

A. Background

Congress committed enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to the Department of Labor and its Wage and Hour Division, whose regulations and interpretations of that Act comprise almost one thousand pages of Chapter V, Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations. In enacting the CAA, however, Congress expressly refused to commit enforcement to the executive branch of the Federal government nor did Congress bring its employing offices under the FLSA itself. Instead, Congress carefully specified, through sectional references to the FLSA, the substantive rights and protections afforded to legislative employees, and precisely mandated procedures by which those rights and protections would be largely enforced by a new and independent office in the legislative branch, the Office of Compliance. Further, in granting the Board rulemaking authority with respect to the FLSA in Section 203(c)(1) of the CAA, Congress affirmatively commanded the Board to issue substantive regulations, with the important directive that they "shall be the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor * * * except as the Board may determine, for good cause shown * * * that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of rights and protections under" the CAA.

In the Board's view, and notwithstanding what has been urged by some of the commenters, this unusual statutory framework neither mandates nor allows an uncritical, wholesale incorporation of all the regulations and interpretive statements issued by the Labor Department under the FLSA. Rather, this statutory framework requires the Board to cull from the vast body of FLSA material found in the Code of Regulations only those items that constitute "substantive regulations" as the term is understood under settled principles of administrative law. (See Batterton v. Francis, 422 U.S. 416, 425, n. 9 (1977)). Moreover, the statutory framework authorizes the Board to delete those substantive regulations that either have no application in the employing offices of the Congress or that are not likely to be invoked. For these reasons, the Board is not proposing their adoption, unless public comments establish a justification to the contrary. Finally, by limiting itself to substantive regulations, the Board is not adopting those portions of 29 C.F.R. chapter V that constitute the interpretive bulletins or statements of the Department of Labor and its Wage and Hour Division.

B. Proposed regulations

1. General provisions

The proposed regulations include an initial Part 501 which contains matters of general applicability including the purpose and scope of the regulations, definitions, coverage, and the administrative authority of the Board and the Office of Compliance. In addition, a section explains the effect of interpretive bulletins and statements of the Department of Labor, and another section provides for the application of the Portal to Portal Act. These latter sections are discussed below.

It is noted that the definition section incorporates the general provisions of section 101 of the CAA which defines "employee," "covered employee," "employing office," and "employee of the House of Representatives." Section 203 of the CAA, which applies the rights and protections of the FLSA, also contemplates the promulgation of a definitional regulation that excludes "interns" from the meaning of "covered employee." The Board in a separate NPRM issued on October 11, 1995, proposed such a regulation, together with a regulation governing irregular work schedules and the receipt of compensatory time in lieu of overtime compensation. The Board is reviewing the public comments received in response to that NPRM and will issue a separate final rule on those issues.

It should be noted that section 225(f)(1) of the CAA provides that, except where inconsistent with definitions of the CAA itself, the definitions in the laws made applicable by the CAA shall also apply under the CAA. Thus, attention must be paid to those definitions found in the FLSA that are consistent with the CAA even if they are not expressly incorporated in the proposed regulations. In this regard, one commenter expressed concern over whether employing offices would be obligated to pay minimum wages and overtime compensation to individuals who do volunteer work, in light of the fact that under the FLSA "employee" may include certain volunteers. See 29 U.S.C. §203(e)(4)(A), which excludes from the definition of "employee" only certain volunteers who perform work for a State, political subdivision, or interstate governmental agency. Similarly, it is noted that, in enacting the CAA, Congress did make separate provision for excluding interns. Thus, the Board has concluded that, to the extent that volunteer activity would bring an individual under the coverage of the FLSA, similarly situated individuals would be treated in the same manner under the CAA.

2. Provisions derived from regulations of the Department of Labor:

Those regulations of the Department of Labor that are being adopted in substance include:

Part 531, which governs the manner in which an employee's wages are calculated taking into account the reasonable cost to an employer of furnishing board, lodging, or other facilities. This Part is derived from Section 3(m) of the FLSA, which directs how the "wage" paid to an employee is determined. Section 3(m) must be treated as applicable under the CAA by virtue of Section 225(f)(1), which authorizes generally the inclusion of those definitions and exemptions that are consistent with definitions and exemptions of the CAA. However, it is noted that section 3(m) is inconsistent with the CAA insofar as the implementing regulations in Part 531, Title 29, C.F.R., provide procedures by which the Wage and Hour Administrator makes determinations in specific cases with respect to the furnishing of board, lodging, or other facilities. Because the Administrator has no role in the enforcement of the CAA by reason of Section 225(f)(3), and because the Board is not at this time authorizing the Office of Compliance to make such specific determinations, the Board proposes to delete the provisions setting forth those procedures. Similarly, the reference to "tipped employees" and the method by which their wages are determined are deleted because the applicable sections assign responsibility to the Administrator.

Part 541, which defines and delimits the bona fide executive, administrative, and professional employees who are exempt under Section 13(a) of the FLSA from the minimum wage and maximum hours requirements. The Board has determined that this exemption, commonly known as the "white collar" exemption, is applicable to employing offices of Congress by virtue of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA.

In the ANPRM, the Board solicited public comment on whether and to what extent it should modify the Labor Department's regulations regarding this exemption. Generally, the commenters did not question the applicability of this exemption to covered employees under the CAA, and several commenters urged the adoption of all of the Department's regulations in Part 541, 29 C.F.R., including the interpretative bulletins, without any modification. Two commenters contended that the Board's regulations should grant a sweeping exemption for nearly all staff employees working in elected members' offices because they exercise independent judgment and discretion in performing their responsibilities.

Other commenters urged the Board to modify the Labor Department regulations to take into account the unique job responsibilities of staff working for an elected member either in a personal office, in a leadership office or on committee. Recognizing that job titles alone cannot be dispositive of who is an exempt employee, these commenters urged the Board to identify with particularity those job duties which, if performed by an employee, would render him or her an exempt executive, administrative, or professional employee.

The Board is proposing to adopt the Labor Department's substantive regulations contained in Subpart A of Part 541 of 29 C.F.R. that set forth the fundamental criteria for satisfying each of the three exemptions. But, for the reasons explained below, the Board is not formally adopting the interpretative bulletins contained in Subpart B of Part 541 of 29 C.F.R., which discuss and illustrate through examples the Department's understanding of the exemption criteria.

With respect to some commenters' request that the Board modify the white collar exemptions, upon reflection, the Board has reluctantly concluded that such a modification would not satisfy the "good cause" requirement of Section 203(c)(2) of the CAA. The Board recognizes that the Secretary's regulations and interpretations were promulgated in a different era, with different employment paradigms in mind. Thus, the Board appreciates the many difficulties that employing offices will have in interpreting and reconciling these regulations to present day realities. Moreover, the Board is mindful of the significant impact the application of the administrative, executive and professional exemption will have on the structuring, functioning and expense of the Members' and Senators' personal offices and committee offices. However, the Board notes that private sector and state and local government employers face the same difficulties. And the Board has not found any sound, principled basis for modifying the exemption regulation for Congress and its instrumentalities. That resolved, the Board nonetheless wishes to make clear its intent to provide, as time and resources permit, appropriate general guidance to the Congress and its instrumentalities on how to identify and justify which employees are exempt. Such efforts made through the Office's education and information programs, will attempt to assist employing offices in determining which job duties will be considered exempt under the executive, administration or professional criteria.

Part 547, which defines, pursuant to Section 7(e)(3)(b) the standard that bona fide thrift or savings plans must meet in order not to be included within an employee's regular rate of pay for purposes of calculating overtime obligations under Section 7 of the FLSA. This is included in light of Section 203(a)(1) of the CAA, which specifically applied the rights and protections of Section 7 of the FLSA.

Part 570, which sets forth the limitations on the use of child labor. This Part implements Section 12(c) of the FLSA, prohibiting oppressive child labor, as defined by Section 3(l) of the same Act. The former section is specifically referenced in Section 203(a)(1) of the CAA, while the latter must be referenced by reason of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA. The inclusion of this Part in the separate regulations of the Senate is necessitated by the fact that the Senate allows for the appointment of congressional pages below the age of 16, unlike the House of Representatives, which by law sets a minimum age of 16 for such employees. For children under age 16, the FLSA regulations impose limitations on hours worked during the school year. Part 570 is also included in the separate regulations applicable to all other covered employees and employing offices. Given the hazardous nature of some of the activities of the support functions, such as maintenance and repair, Part 570 regulations are being proposed in the event that such instrumentalities employ children under 18 years of age. It is noted that the Board has not adopted regulations comparable to those set forth in the Labor Department's Subpart B (29 C.F.R. Sections 570.5-27), authorizing the issuance of certificates of age. In addition, with respect to Section 570.52, governing the hazardous occupation of motor-vehicle driver and outside helper, the Board is not adopting the special exemption for school bus driving because by its terms no employing offices would satisfy the criteria of the regulation.

C. Secretary of Labor's Regulations That the Board Proposes Not to Adopt

In reviewing the remaining parts of the Labor Department's regulations, it is readily apparent that some have no application to the employing offices within the legislative branch. For this reason, the Board is not including them within its substantive regulations. Among the excluded regulations are: Part 510, which pertains to the application of the minimum wage provisions to Puerto Rico; Part 511, establishing a wage order procedure for American Samoa; Part 515, authorizing the utilization of State government agencies for investigations and inspections; Part 530, governing the employment of industrial homeworkers in certain industries; Part 549, defining the requirements of a "bona fide profit-sharing plan or trust;" Part 550, defining the term "talent fees;" Part 552, regulating the application of the FLSA to domestic service; Part 575, addressing child labor in certain agricultural employment; Parts 578, 579, and 580, implementing the civil money penalties provisions of the FLSA; and Part 679, dealing with industries in American Samoa. Unless public comments suggest otherwise, the Board intends including in the adopted regulations a provision stating that the Board has issued regulations on all matters for which the CAA requires a regulation. See Section 411 of the CAA.

Other substantive regulations could have application in the event that an employing office wished to avail itself of certain special wage rates, subminimum wage exemptions or overtime exemptions under the FLSA. These are found in: Parts 519-528, which authorize subminimum wages for full-time students, student-learners, apprentices, learners, messengers, workers with disabilities, and student workers; Part 548, which authorizes in the collective bargaining context the establishment of basic wage rates for overtime compensation purposes; and Part 551, which implements an overtime exemption for local delivery drivers and helpers. Unless public comments provide a sufficient justification to the contrary the Board is not proposing the adoption of regulations covering the foregoing subjects.

III. The interpretive bulletins and other relevant guidance

In addition to the substantive regulations found in Subchapter A, the Department of Labor has issued, under Subchapter B, "Statements of General Policy or Interpretations Not Directly Related to Regulations." 29 C.F.R. Parts 775-794. Usually called Interpretive Bulletins, these statements make available in one place the official interpretations which guide the Secretary of Labor and the Wage and Hour Administrator in the performance of their duties. As the interpretations of an administering agency, such statements are usually given some deference by the courts. As the Supreme Court has observed:

"the rulings, interpretations and opinions of the Administrator under this Act, while not controlling upon the courts by reason of their authority, do constitute a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. The weight of such a judgment in a particular case will depend upon the thoroughness evident in the consideration, the validity of its reasoning its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control."

Skidmore v. Swift, 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944).

However, unlike "substantive regulations," these interpretations are not issued by the agency pursuant to its statutory authority to implement the statute and, more significantly, do not have the force and effect of law. See Batterton v. Francis, 432 U.S. 416, 425 n.9 (1977). The Board's mandate is only to issue substantive regulations that are "the same as the substantive regulations of the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provision [of the FLSA] applied" by Section 204(a) of the CAA unless modified for good cause (CAA Section 203 (c)(2)). Therefore, the Board, does not propose to adopt the non-substantive interpretations of the DOL and its Wage and Hour Division as substantive regulations under the CAA.

Moreover, the Board is not proposing to issue the Department's interpretations as its own interpretations of the FLSA rights and protections made applicable under the CAA at this time. However, as discussed below, employing offices should be advised that, pursuant to the Portal to Portal Act, the Board will give due consideration the Secretary's interpretations of the FLSA.

Application of the Portal to Portal Act.—The Portal to Portal Act, 61 Stat. 84 (1947), codified generally at 29 U.S.C. Sections 216 and 251, et seq. ("PPA"), contains provisions which affect the rights and liabilities of employees and employers with regard to alleged underpayment of minimum or overtime wages under the FLSA. Section 4 of the PPA excludes from the definition of hours worked both activities preliminary to or postliminary to the worker's principal activities and travel time absent a contract, custom or practice to the contrary. 29 U.S.C. Section 254. Sections 9 and 10 of the PPA provide the employer with a defense against liability or punishment in any action or proceeding brought against it for failure to comply with the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA, where the employer pleads and proves that the act or omission complained of was in good faith in conformity with and in reliance on any regulation, order, ruling, approval, interpretation, administrative practice or enforcement policy of the Wage and Hour Administrator of the Department of Labor. 29 U.S.C. Sections 258-259. The PPA also contains provisions which restrict and limit employee suits under section 16(b) of the FLSA. For example, section 11 of the PPA provides that in any action brought under section 216 of the FLSA, the court may in its discretion, subject to prescribed conditions, award no liquidated damages or award any amount of such damages not to exceed the amount specified in section 16(b) of the FLSA. 29 U.S.C. Section 260.

The Board has determined that the above provisions of the PPA are incorporated into section 203 of the CAA, either as an amendment to section 16(b) of the FLSA (which is expressly applied to the legislative branch under section 203(b) of the CAA), or by virtue of section 225(f) of the CAA, which applies the definitions and exemptions of the FLSA to the extent not inconsistent with the CAA. To that end, the Board will give due consideration to the interpretations of the FLSA of the Secretary of Labor. Moreover, employing offices may utilize these interpretations in attempting to understand the rights and protections under the FLSA that have been made applicable by the CAA. Unless and until the Secretary's interpretive statements are superseded or interpretive guidance or decisions to the contrary are issued by the Board or the courts, they may be relied upon for purposes of defending against claims brought under the CAA to the same extent as private sector employers may properly rely upon them in actions brought under the FLSA.

Joint Employer Doctrine.—The Board solicited comments in the ANPRM on whether and to what extent the joint employment doctrine as developed under the FLSA is applicable under the CAA. The comments generally advocated adoption of the doctrine to employing offices of the Congress. However, since the issue of joint employment is addressed through a DOL interpretive bulletin set forth in Part 791, 29 C.F.R., rather than a substantive regulation, the Board is not adopting it as such nor issuing it as its own interpretive statement. See discussion at Section III.

Equal Pay Act.—With respect to the Equal Pay Act (EPA), which is included in Section 6(d) of the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. Section 206(d), the Secretary of Labor promulgated interpretive regulations that were originally included in 29 C.F.R. Part 800. Pursuant to the provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978, as confirmed by the Congress in Public Law 98-532, 98 Stat. 2705 (1984), enforcement and administration of the EPA was transferred from the Secretary of Labor to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). The EEOC promulgated its own interpretations implementing the EPA at 29 C.F.R. Part 1620. Thereafter, the Secretary deleted its interpretations. 52 FR 2517 (Jan. 23, 1987). Thus, there are no substantive regulations implementing the EPA. Under the rationale previously stated regarding the Portal to Portal Act, the Board declines to incorporate the EEOC interpretations as substantive regulations under the CAA but will recognize them as is appropriate.

Opinion Letters.—Commenters asked that the Board consider establishing a process under which the Office or the Board would issue opinion letters and upon which employing offices could rely, similar to the procedure followed by the Wage and Hour Administrator in sometimes providing such opinions at the request of private sector employers. The Board understands employing offices' desire for guidance and clarity regarding their obligations under the CAA.

To the extent that the Board itself can address issues through regulations or interpretations, it will do so. Moreover, the Office intends to provide appropriate education and technical assistance as part of its education and information responsibilities. But for the reasons stated here, the Board and the Office's ability to do so is limited by legal, resource and policy considerations. As is the case in the private sector context, many issues under these statutes can only be definitively resolved through case-by-case adjudication on particular facts. Moreover, except in the context of statutes subject to the Portal to Portal Act, it is doubtful that the Board or the Office has the statutory authority to issue guidance with legal effect (outside of the adjudicatory or rulemaking contexts); we are not aware of any such legal authorization for Executive Branch agencies to do so in the context of applying these same laws to the private sector. Further, the resources of the Board and the Office are limited: the first year appropriation is for $2.5 million. These resources are substantially less than those available to analogous Executive Branch agencies that administer fewer laws. Finally, public comment has not provided the Board with the facts necessary for yet making any of these determinations—and a detailed evidentiary record is necessary for such judgment to be made. In short, particularly in light of the various statutory responsibilities of the Office and the Board, it is not possible to give answers with legal effect to each individual request for information and guidance. While the Board will structure education and information programs to assist employees and employing offices, it is forced to respond that, like private employers, employing offices will generally have to rely on their own counsel and human resource advisors in determining their compliance with the Congressional Accountability Act.

IV. Method of approval

The Board recommends that (1) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate be approved by the Senate by resolution; (2) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives be approved by the House of Representatives by resolution; and (3) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to other covered employees and employing offices be approved by the Congress by concurrent resolution.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on this 21st day of November, 1995.

GLEN D. NAGER,
Chair of the Board,
Office of Compliance.

SUBPART A—MATTERS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

§ H501.101 Purpose and scope.

(a) Section 203 of the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA) provides that the rights and protections of subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6, section 7, and section 12(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (FLSA) (29 U.S.C. §§ 206(a)(1) & (d), 207, 212(c)) shall apply to covered employees of the legislative branch of the Federal government. Section 301 of the CAA creates the Office of Compliance as an independent office in the legislative branch for enforcing the rights and protections of the FLSA, as applied by the CAA.

(b) The FLSA as applied by the CAA provides for minimum standards for both wages and overtime entitlements, and delineates administrative procedures by which covered worktime must be compensated. Included also in the FLSA are provisions related to child labor, equal pay, and portal-to-portal activities. In addition, the FLSA exempts specified employees or groups of employees from the application of certain of its provisions.

(c) This chapter contains the substantive regulations with respect to the FLSA that the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance has adopted pursuant to Sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA, which require that the Board promulgate regulations that are "the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) [of §203 of the CAA] except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown . . . that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section.”

§ H501.102 Definitions.

For purposes of this chapter:

(a) CAA means the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 (P.L. 104-1, 109 Stat. 3, 2 U.S.C. §§ 1301-1438).

(b) FLSA or Act means the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (29 U.S.C. § 201 et seq.).

(c) Covered employee means any employee of the House of Representatives, including an applicant for employment and a former employee.

(d) Employee of the House of Representatives includes any individual occupying a position the pay for which is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, or another official designated by the House of Representatives, or any employment position in an entity that is paid with funds derived from the clerk-hire allowance of the House of Representatives but not any such individual employed by (1) the Capitol Guide Service; (2) the Capitol Police; (3) the Congressional Budget Office; (4) the Office of the Architect of the Capitol; (5) the Office of the Attending Physician; (6) the Office of Compliance; or (7) the Office of Technology Assessment.

(e) Employing office and employer mean (1) the personal office of a Member of the House of Representatives; (2) a committee of the House of Representatives or a joint committee; or (3) any other office headed by a person with the final authority to appoint, hire, discharge, and set the terms, conditions, or privileges of the employment of an employee of the House of Representatives.

(f) Board means the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance.

(g) Office means the Office of Compliance.

§ H501.103 Coverage.

The coverage of Section 203 of the CAA extends to any covered employee of an employing office without regard to whether the covered employee is engaged in commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce and without regard to size, number of employees, amount of business transacted, or other measure.

§ H501.104 Administrative authority.

(a) The Office of Compliance is authorized to administer the provisions of Section 203 of the Act with respect to any covered employee or covered employer.

(b) The Board is authorized to promulgate substantive regulations in accordance with the provisions of Sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA.

(c) The Board may in its discretion from time to time issue interpretative statements providing guidance to employees and to employing offices on the rights and protections established under the FLSA that are made applicable by Sections 203(a) and 225 of the CAA.

§ H501.105 Effect of Interpretations of the Department of Labor.

(a) In administering the FLSA, the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor has issued not only substantive regulations but also interpretative bulletins. Substantive regulations represent an exercise of statutorily-delegated lawmaking authority from the legislative branch to an administrative agency. Generally, they are proposed in accordance with the notice-and-comment procedures of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), 5 U.S.C. § 553. Once promulgated, such regulations are considered to have the force and effect of law, unless set aside upon judicial review as arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law. See Batterton v. Francis, 432 U.S. 416, 425 n.9 (1977). See also 29 C.F.R. § 790.17(b) (1994). Unlike substantive regulations, interpretative statements, including bulletins and other releases of the Wage and Hour Division, are not issued pursuant to the provisions of the APA and may not have the force and effect of law. Rather, they may only constitute official interpretations of the Department of Labor with respect to the meaning and application of the minimum wage, maximum hour, and overtime pay requirements of the FLSA. See 29 C.F.R. § 790.17(c) (citing Final Report of the Attorney General's Committee on Administrative Procedure, Senate Document No. 8, 77th Cong., 1st Sess., at p. 27 (1941)). The purpose of such statements is to make available in one place the interpretations of the FLSA which will guide the Secretary of Labor and the Wage and Hour Administrator in the performance of their duties unless and until they are otherwise directed by authoritative decisions of the courts or conclude, upon reexamination of an interpretation, that it is incorrect. The Supreme Court has observed: “[T]he rulings, interpretations and opinions of the Administrator under this Act, while not controlling upon the courts by reason of their authority, do constitute a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. The weight of such a judgment in a particular case will depend upon the thoroughness evident in the consideration, the validity of its reasoning, its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control.” Skidmore v. Swift, 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944).

(b) Section 203(c) of the CAA provides that the substantive regulations implementing Section 203 of the CAA shall be “the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor” except where the Board finds, for good cause shown, that a modification would more effectively implement the rights and protections established by the FLSA. Thus, the CAA by its terms does not mandate that the Board adopt the interpretative statements of the Department of Labor or its Wage and Hour Division. The Board is thus not adopting such statements as part of its substantive regulations.

§ H501.106 Application of the Portal-to-Portal Act of 1947.

(a) Consistent with Section 225 of the CAA, the Portal to Portal Act (PPA), 29 U.S.C. §§ 216 and 251 et seq., is applicable in defining and delimiting the rights and protections of the FLSA that are prescribed by the CAA. Section 10 of the PPA, 29 U.S.C. § 259, provides in pertinent part:

[N]o employer shall be subject to any liability or punishment for or on account of the failure of the employer to pay minimum wages or overtime compensation under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, . . . if he pleads and proves that the act or omission complained of was in good faith in conformity with and reliance on any written administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation of [the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor] . . . or any administrative practice or enforcement policy of such agency with respect to the class of employers to which he belonged. Such a defense, if established shall be a bar to the action or proceeding, notwithstanding that after such act or omission, such administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval, interpretation, practice or enforcement policy is modified or rescinded or is determined by judicial authority to be invalid or of no legal effect.

(b) In defending any action or proceeding based on any act or omission arising out of section 203 of the CAA, an employing office may satisfy the standards set forth in subsection (a) by pleading and proving good faith reliance upon:

(1) Any written administrative regulation, order, decision, ruling, approval or interpretation, or any administrative practice or enforcement policy, of the Board.

(2) Any written administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation, of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor: Provided, that such regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation had not been superseded at the time of reliance by any regulation, order, decision, ruling, approval or interpretation, or any administrative practice or enforcement policy, of the Board or the courts.

§ H531.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations at Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

531.1 Definitions—H531.1.

531.2 Purpose and scope—H531.2.

531.3 General determinations of “reasonable cost”—H531.3.

531.6 Effects of collective bargaining agreements—H531.6.

§ H531.1 Definitions.

(a) Administrator means the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division or his authorized representative. The Secretary of Labor has delegated to the Administrator the functions vested in him under section 3(m) of the Act.

(b) Act means the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended.

§ H531.2 Purpose and scope.

(a) Section 3(m) of the Act defines the term ‘wage’ to include the ‘reasonable cost’, as determined by the Secretary of Labor, to an employer of furnishing any employee with board, lodging, or other facilities, if such board, lodging, or other facilities are customarily furnished by the employer to his employees. In addition, section 3(m) gives the Secretary authority to determine the ‘fair value.’ of such facilities on the basis of average cost to the employer or to groups of employers similarly situated, on average value to groups of employees, or other appropriate measures of ‘fair value.’ Whenever so determined and when applicable and pertinent, the ‘fair value’ of the facilities involved shall be includable as part of ‘wages’ instead of the actual measure of the costs of those facilities. The section provides, however, that the cost of board, lodging, or other facilities shall not be included as part of 'wages' if excluded therefrom by a bona fide collective bargaining agreement. Section 3(m) also provides a method for determining the wage of a tipped employee.

(b) This part 531 contains any determinations made as to the 'reasonable cost' and 'fair value' of board, lodging, or other facilities having general application.

SUBPART B—DETERMINATIONS OF "REASONABLE COST" AND "FAIR VALUE"; EFFECTS OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS

§ H531.3 General determinations of 'reasonable cost.'

(a) The term reasonable cost as used in section 3(m) of the Act is hereby determined to be not more than the actual cost to the employer of the board, lodging, or other facilities customarily furnished by him to his employees.

(b) Reasonable cost does not include a profit to the employer or to any affiliated person.

(c) The reasonable cost to the employer of furnishing the employee with board, lodging, or other facilities (including housing) is the cost of operation and maintenance including adequate depreciation plus a reasonable allowance (not more than 5½ percent) for interest on the depreciated amount of capital invested by the employer: Provided, That if the total so computed is more than the fair rental value (or the fair price of the commodities or facilities offered for sale), the fair rental value (or the fair price of the commodities or facilities offered for sale) shall be the reasonable cost. The cost of operation and maintenance, the rate of depreciation, and the depreciated amount of capital invested by the employer shall be those arrived at under good accounting practices. As used in this paragraph, the term good accounting practices does not include accounting practices which have been rejected by the Internal Revenue Service for tax purposes, and the term depreciation includes obsolescence.

(d)(1) The cost of furnishing 'facilities' found by the Administrator to be primarily for the benefit or convenience of the employer will not be recognized as reasonable and may not therefore be included in computing wages.

(2) The following is a list of facilities found by the Administrator to be primarily for the benefit of convenience of the employer. The list is intended to be illustrative rather than exclusive: (i) Tools of the trade and other materials and services incidental to carrying on the employer's business; (ii) the cost of any construction by and for the employer; (iii) the cost of uniforms and of their laundering, where the nature of the business requires the employee to wear a uniform.

§ H531.6 Effects of collective bargaining agreements.

(a) The cost of board, lodging, or other facilities shall not be included as part of the wage paid to any employee to the extent it is excluded therefrom under the terms of a bona fide collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular employee.

(b) A collective bargaining agreement shall be deemed to be 'bona fide' when pursuant to the provisions of section 7(b)(1) or 7(b)(2) of the FLSA it is made with the certified representative of the employees under the provisions of the CAA.

PART H541—DEFINING AND DELIMITING THE TERMS "BONA FIDE EXECUTIVE," "ADMINISTRATIVE," OR "PROFESSIONAL" CAPACITY (INCLUDING ANY EMPLOYEE EMPLOYED IN THE CAPACITY OF ACADEMIC ADMINISTRATIVE PERSONNEL OR TEACHER IN SECONDARY SCHOOL).

SUBPART A—GENERAL REGULATIONS.

§ H541.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations at Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

541.3 Professional—H541.3.

541.5b Equal pay provisions of section 6(d) of the FLSA apply to executive, administrative, and professional employees—H541.5b.

§ H541.01 Application of the exemptions of section 13 (a)(1) of the FLSA.

(a) Section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA, which provides certain exemptions for employees employed in a bona fide executive, administrative, or professional capacity (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in a secondary school), applies to covered employees by virtue of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA.

(b) The substantive regulations set forth in this part are promulgated under the authority of sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA, which require that such regulations be the same as the substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor except where the Board determines for good cause shown that modifications would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections of covered employees.

§ H541.1 Executive.

The term employee employed in a bona fide executive * * * capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee: (a) Whose primary duty consists of the management of an employing office in which he is employed or of a customarily recognized department of subdivision thereof; and

(b) Who customarily and regularly directs the work of two or more other employees therein; and

(c) Who has the authority to hire or fire other employees or whose suggestions and recommendations as to the hiring or firing and as to the advancement and promotion or any other change of status of other employees will be given particular weight; and

(d) Who customarily and regularly exercises discretionary powers; and

(e) Who does not devote more than 20 percent, or, in the case of an employee of a retail or service establishment who does not devote as much as 40 percent, of his hours of work in the workweek to activities which are not directly and closely related to the performance of the work described in paragraphs (a) through (d) of this section: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply in the case of an employee who is in sole charge of an independent establishment or a physically separated branch establishment; and

(f) Who is compensated for his services on a salary basis at a rate of not less than $155 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities: Provided, That an employee who is compensated on a salary basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the management of the employing office in which the employee is employed or of a customarily recognized department or subdivision thereof, and includes the customary and regular direction of the work of two or more other employees therein, shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of this section

§ H541.2 Administrative.

The term employee employed in a bona fide * * * administrative * * * capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of either: (1) The performance of office or nonmanual work directly related to management policies or general operations of his employer or his employer's customers, or (2) The performance of functions in the administration of the Congressional Page School or of a department or subdivision thereof, in work directly related to the academic instruction or training carried on therein; and

(b) Who customarily and regularly exercises discretion and independent judgment; and

(c)(1) Who regularly and directly assists the head of an employing office, or an employee employed in a bona fide executive or administrative capacity (as such terms are defined in the regulations of this subpart), or (2) Who performs under only general supervision work along specialized or technical lines requiring special training, experience, or knowledge, or (3) Who executes under only general supervision special assignments and tasks; and

(d) Who does not devote more than 20 percent, or, in the case of an employee of a retail or service establishment who does not devote as much as 40 percent, of his hours worked in the workweek to activities which are not directly and closely related to the performance of the work described in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section; and

(e)(1) Who is compensated for his services on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $155 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, or (2) Who, in the case of academic administrative personnel, is compensated for services as required by paragraph (e)(1) of this section, or on a salary basis which is at least equal to the entrance salary for teachers of the Congressional Page School: Provided, That an employee who is compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the performance of work described in paragraph (a) of this section, which includes work requiring the exercise of discretion and independent judgment, shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of this section.

§ H541.3 Professional.

The term employee employed in a bona fide * * * professional capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of the performance of: (1) Work requiring knowledge of an advance type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study, as distinguished from a general academic education and from an apprenticeship, and from training in the performance of routine mental, manual, or physical processes, or (2) Work that is original and creative in character in a recognized field of artistic endeavor (as opposed to work which can be produced by a person endowed with general manual or intellectual ability and training), and the result of which depends primarily on the invention, imagination, or talent of the employee, or (3) Teaching, tutoring, instructing, or lecturing in the activity of imparting knowledge and who is employed and engaged in this activity as a teacher in the Congressional Page School, or (4) Work that requires theoretical and practical application of highly-specialized knowledge in computer systems analysis, programming, and software engineering, and who is employed and engaged in these activities as a computer systems analyst, computer programmer, software engineer, or other similarly skilled worker in the computer software field; and

(b) Whose work requires the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance; and

(c) Whose work is predominantly intellectual and varied in character (as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical, or physical work) and is of such character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time; and

(d) Who does not devote more than 20 percent of his hours worked in the workweek to activities which are not an essential part of and necessarily incident to the work described in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section; and

(e) Who is compensated for services on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $170 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply in the case of an employee who is the holder of a valid license or certificate permitting the practice of law or medicine or any of their branches and who is actually engaged in the practice thereof, nor in the case of an employee who is the holder of the requisite academic degree for the general practice of medicine and is engaged in an internship or resident program pursuant to the practice of medicine or any of its branches, nor in the case of an employee employed and engaged as a teacher as provided in paragraph (a)(3) of this section: Provided further, That an employee who is compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the performance either of work described in paragraph (a) (1), (3), or (4) of this section, which includes work requiring the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment, or of work requiring invention, imagination, or talent in a recognized field of artistic endeavor, shall be deemed to meet all of the requirements of this section: Provided further, That the salary or fee requirements of this paragraph shall not apply to an employee engaged in computer-related work within the scope of paragraph (a)(4) of this section and who is compensated on an hourly basis at a rate in excess of 1 1/2 times the minimum wage provided by section 6 of the FLSA as applied by the CAA.

§ H541.5b Equal pay provisions of section 6(d) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA extend to executive, administrative, and professional employees.

The FLSA, as amended and as applied by the CAA, includes within the protection of the equal pay provisions those employees exempt from the minimum wage and overtime pay provisions as bona fide executive, administrative, and professional employees (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in elementary or secondary schools) under section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA. Thus, for example, where an exempt administrative employee and another employee of the employing office are performing substantially "equal work," the sex discrimination prohibitions of section 6(d) are applicable with respect to any wage differential between those two employees.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

547.0 Scope and effect of part—H547.0.

547.1 Essential requirements of qualifications—H547.1.

547.2 Disqualifying provisions—H547.2.

§ H547.0 Scope and effect of part.

(a) The regulations in this part set forth the requirements of a "bona fide thrift or savings plan" under section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (FLSA), as applied by the CAA. In determining the total remuneration for employment which section 7(e) of the FLSA requires to be included in the regular rate at which an employee is employed, it is not necessary to include any sums paid to or on behalf of such employee, in recognition of services performed by him during a given period, which are paid pursuant to a bona fide thrift or savings plan meeting the requirements set forth herein. In the formulation of these regulations due regard has been given to the factors and standards set forth in section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Act.

(b) Where a thrift or savings plan is combined in a single program (whether in one or more documents) with a plan or trust for providing old age, retirement, life, accident or health insurance or similar benefits for employees, contributions made by the employer pursuant to such thrift or savings plan may be excluded from the regular rate if the plan meets the requirements of the regulation in this part and the contributions made for the other purposes may be excluded from the regular rate if they meet the tests set forth in regulations.

§ H547.1 Essential requirements for qualifications.

(a) A "bona fide thrift or savings plan" for the purpose of section 7(e)(3)(b) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA is required to meet all the standards set forth in paragraphs (b) through (f) of this section and must not contain the disqualifying provisions set forth in § H547.2.

(b) The thrift or savings plan constitutes a definite program or arrangement in writing, adopted by the employer or by contract as a result of collective bargaining and communicated or made available to the employees, which is established and maintained, in good faith, for the purpose of encouraging voluntary thrift or savings by employees by providing an incentive to employees to accumulate regularly and retain cash savings for a reasonable period of time or to save through the regular purchase of public or private securities.

(c) The plan specifically shall set forth the category or categories of employees participating and the basis of their eligibility. Eligibility may not be based on such factors as hours of work, production, or efficiency of the employees: Provided, however, That hours of work may be used to determine eligibility of part-time or casual employees.

(d) The amount any employee may save under the plan shall be specified in the plan or determined in accordance with a definite formula specified in the plan, which formula may be based on one or more factors such as the straight-time earnings or total earnings, base rate of pay, or length of service of the employee.

(e) The employer's total contribution in any year may not exceed 15 percent of the participating employees' total earnings during that year. In addition, the employer's total contribution in any year may not exceed the total amount saved or invested by the participating employees during that year: Provided, however, That a plan permitting a greater contribution may be submitted to the Administrator and approved by him as a 'bona fide thrift or savings plan' within the meaning of section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Act if: (1) The plan meets all the other standards of this section; (2) The plan contains none of the disqualifying factors enumerated in § H547.2; (3) The employer's contribution is based to a substantial degree upon retention of savings; and (4) The amount of the employer's contribution bears a reasonable relationship to the amount of savings retained and the period of retention.

(f) The employer's contributions shall be apportioned among the individual employees in accordance with a definite formula or method of calculation specified in the plan, which formula or method of calculation is based on the amount saved or the length of time the individual employee retains his savings or investment in the plan: Provided, That no employee's share determined in accordance with the plan may be diminished because of any other remuneration received by him.

§ H547.2 Disqualifying provisions.

(a) No employee's participation in the plan shall be on other than a voluntary basis.

(b) No employee's wages or salary shall be dependent upon or influenced by the existence of such thrift or savings plan or the employer's contributions thereto.

(c) The amounts any employee may save under the plan, or the amounts paid by the employer under the plan may not be based upon the employee's hours of work, production or efficiency.

I. Background

A. Introduction

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), PL 104-1, was enacted into law on January 23, 1995. In general, the CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment law statutes to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch. Section 203(a) of the CAA applies the rights and protections of subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6, section 7, and section 12(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 206 (a)(1) and (d), 207, 212(c) ("FLSA")) to covered employees and employing offices. Section 203(c) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)) directs the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance established under the CAA to issue regulations to implement the section. Section 203(c)(2) (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)(2)) further states that such regulations, with the exception of certain irregular work schedule regulations to be issued under section 203(a)(3), "shall be the same as substantive regulations issued by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section."

B. Advance notice of proposed rulemaking

On September 28, 1995, the Board of the Office of Compliance issued an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking ("ANPRM") soliciting comments from interested parties in order to obtain participation and information early in the rulemaking process. 141 Cong. R. S14542 (daily ed., Sept. 28, 1995). In addition to inviting comment on specific questions arising under five of the statutes made applicable by the CAA in the ANPRM, the Board and the statutory appointees of the Office sought consultation with the Chair of the Administrative Conference of the United States, the Secretary of Labor and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management with regard to the development of these regulations in accordance with section 304(g) of the CAA. The Office has also consulted with interested parties to further its understanding of the need for and content of appropriate regulations. Based on the information gleaned from these consultations and the comments on the ANPRM, the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance is publishing these proposed rules, pursuant to Section 203(c)(1) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. Section 1313(c)(1)).

1. Modification of the regulations of the Department of Labor

In the ANPRM, the Board asked the question, "Whether and to what extent should the Board modify the Secretary's Regulations?" The Board received 15 comments on the ANPRM: two from Senators, four from House Members (one from the leadership of the Committee with primary jurisdiction for the CAA and one from three of the sponsors of the CAA), one from the Secretary of the Senate and three from House offices (two from institutional offices and one from a Member's Chief of Staff), four from business coalitions or associations representing an array of private employers, and one from a labor organization.

Those commenters who expressed views on the ANPRM cited both the statute and the legislative history in taking the position that the CAA presumes that the regulations of the Department of Labor should not be modified. Illustrative comments included the following:

"[Section 304 of the CAA] evidences clear legislative intent that the Board apply these rights and protections to Congressional employees in a manner comparable to and consistent with the rights and protections applicable to employees in the private sector under regulations adopted by the Secretary (DOL). . . . The [CAA] requires that the regulations issued by the Board be the same as those issued by DOL unless the Board determines that modification would more effectively implement the rights and protections of the laws made applicable under the [CAA]."

"[I]f a law is right for the private sector, it is right for Congress; . . . Consistent with [this] principle, we would urge the Office not to deviate (except in those few areas where expressly authorized by the CAA) from applying the laws in the same manner in which they are applied to the private sector.

* * * * *

[We have not identified any situations in which modifications [of the DOL regulations] would be appropriate."

"There are no circumstances that justify 'good cause' for adopting regulations that deviate from those currently applied to private sector employers."

"[Section 203(c)(2)] confers on the Office of Compliance only very limited authority to deviate from the present DOL regulations. The legislative history to the 'good cause' exception likewise makes clear that this authority is to be used by the Office of Compliance sparingly."

* * * * *

"The legislative history of the CAA demands that the Office of Compliance apply to Congress the same regulations as those imposed on the private sector."

"[W]e urge the Board to refrain from modifying regulations promulgated by the Department of Labor and other Executive agencies. Use of established regulations will provide the Board, employees and employing offices with a body of instructive case law and interpretive documents."

"While the Office serves an important implementation and enforcement role, it must not place itself in the position of shielding Congress from substantive requirements imposed on private businesses."

Based on the comments and the Board's understanding of the law and the institutions to which it is being made applicable, the Board is issuing the Secretary's regulations with only these limited modifications: Technical changes in the nomenclature and deletion of those sections clearly inapplicable to the legislative branch.

2. Notice Posting and Recordkeeping

The ANPRM also invited comment on whether the recordkeeping and notice posting requirements of the various laws made applicable by the CAA are incorporated as statutory requirements of the CAA. The ANPRM inquired whether, if such requirements were not incorporated, could and should the Board develop its own requirements pursuant to its "good cause" authority. The ANPRM also invited comment on proposing guidelines and models for recordkeeping and notice posting.

Commenters were in agreement that recordkeeping and notice posting are important to the effective implementation of several of the statutes incorporated in the CAA. However, opinions as to whether the Board should require notice posting and recordkeeping were widely divergent. Several commenters expressed the view that the Board lacks the statutory authority to adopt notice posting and recordkeeping requirements and that the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the FLSA do not apply to Congress. Other commenters expressed the view that the Board has the authority to issue regulations to impose recordkeeping and notice posting requirements and that such regulations should be, in substance, the same as those with which the private sector must comply.

The Board agrees with those commenters who took the position that, if employing offices are to be treated the same as private sector employers are treated under FLSA, they should have to comply with the statute's notice posting and recordkeeping requirements. Moreover, the Board notes that notice posting and recordkeeping promote the full and effective enforcement of these incorporated rights and protections. In the Board's view, notice posting and recordkeeping may well be in employers' interests both as a sound personnel practice and in order to defend against subsequent litigation.

But while the CAA incorporates certain specific sections of the FLSA, the CAA explicitly did not incorporate the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of Section 11, 29 U.S.C. §211 of the FLSA. Because the Board's authority to modify the Secretary's regulations for "good cause" does not authorize it to adopt regulatory requirements that are the equivalent of statutory requirements that Congress has omitted from the CAA, the Board has determined that it may not impose such requirements on employing offices. However, as various commenters suggest, the Board will provide guidance to employing offices concerning model recordkeeping practices as part of carrying out its program of education under section 301(h) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. 1381(h)).

The Board would also note that based upon their collective years of experience representing employers and employees with regard to various labor and employment laws, including the FLSA, the absence of recordkeeping and notice posting requirements may create a void which can only partially be filled by the program of education to be carried out by the Board pursuant to Section 301(h)(1) and the optional notice which will be distributed by the Board pursuant to Section 301(h)(2). The Board also would emphasize that employees will in many circumstances be able to establish a prima facie case simply by their own testimony estimating the hours worked by the employees where the employing office has failed to maintain adequate, accurate records. An employing office may find that its ability to respond to an employee's prima facie case is substantially burdened by its failure to keep accurate payroll and time-records. If Congress wishes to experience the same burdens as faced by the private sector and also to address these issues, it should enact record-keeping requirements comparable to those of the FLSA. (Of course, like the regulations under those statutes, such recordkeeping requirements may leave to the discretion of each employing office the precise form and manner in which records will be kept.) But, in light of the text and structure of the CAA, the Board believes that it is up to Congress to decide whether to do so.

II. The proposed regulations

A. Background

Congress committed enforcement of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to the Department of Labor and its Wage and Hour Division, whose regulations and interpretations of that Act comprise almost one thousand pages of Chapter V, Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations. In enacting the CAA, however, Congress expressly refused to commit enforcement to the executive branch of the Federal government nor did Congress bring its employing offices under the FLSA itself. Instead, Congress carefully specified, through sectional references to the FLSA, the substantive rights and protections afforded to legislative employees, and precisely mandated procedures by which those rights and protections would be largely enforced by a new and independent office in the legislative branch, the Office of Compliance. Further, in granting the Board rulemaking authority with respect to the FLSA in Section 203(c)(1) of the CAA, Congress affirmatively commanded the Board to issue substantive regulations, with the important directive that they "shall be the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor * * * except as the Board may determine, for good cause shown * * * that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of rights and protections under" the CAA.

In the Board's view, and notwithstanding what has been urged by some of the commenters, this unusual statutory framework neither mandates nor allows an uncritical, wholesale incorporation of all the regulations and interpretive statements issued by the Labor Department under the FLSA. Rather, this statutory framework requires the Board to cull from the vast body of FLSA material found in the Code of Regulations only those items that constitute "substantive regulations" as the term is understood under settled principles of administrative law. (See Batterton v. Francis, 422 U.S. 416, 425, n. 9 (1977)). Moreover, the statutory framework authorizes the Board to delete those substantive regulations that either have no application in the employing offices of the Congress or that are not likely to be invoked. For these reasons, the Board is not proposing their adoption, unless public comments establish a justification to the contrary. Finally, by limiting itself to substantive regulations, the Board is not adopting those portions of 29 C.F.R. chapter V that constitute the interpretative bulletins or statements of the Department of Labor and its Wage and Hour Division.

B. Proposed regulations

1. General provisions

The proposed regulations include an initial Part 501 which contains matters of general applicability including the purpose and scope of the regulations, definitions, coverage, and the administrative authority of the Board and the Office of Compliance. In addition, a section explains the effect of interpretative bulletins and statements of the Department of Labor, and another section provides for the application of the Portal to Portal Act. These latter sections are discussed below.

It is noted that the definition section incorporates the general provisions of section 101 of the CAA which defines "employee," "covered employee," "employing office," and "employee of the House of Representatives." Section 203 of the CAA, which applies the rights and protections of the FLSA, also contemplates the promulgation of a definitional regulation that excludes "interns" from the meaning of "covered employee." The Board, in a separate NPRM issued on October 11, 1995, proposed such a regulation, together with a regulation governing irregular work schedules and the receipt of compensatory time in lieu of overtime compensation. The Board is reviewing the public comments received in response to that NPRM and will issue a separate final rule on those issues.

It should be noted that section 225(f)(1) of the CAA provides that, except where inconsistent with definitions of the CAA itself, the definitions in the laws made applicable by the CAA shall also apply under the CAA. Thus, attention must be paid to those definitions found in the FLSA that are consistent with the CAA even if they are not expressly incorporated in the proposed regulations. In this regard, one commenter expressed concern over whether employing offices would be obligated to pay minimum wages and overtime compensation to individuals who do volunteer work, in light of the fact that under the FLSA "employee" may include certain volunteers. See 29 U.S.C. § 203(e)(4)(A), which excludes from the definition of "employee" only certain volunteers who perform work for a State, political subdivision, or interstate governmental agency. Similarly, it is noted that, in enacting the CAA, Congress did make separate provision for excluding interns. Thus, the Board has concluded that, to the extent that volunteer activity would bring an individual under the coverage of the FLSA, similarly situated individuals would be treated in the same manner under the CAA.

2. Provisions derived from regulations of the Department of Labor

Those regulations of the Department of Labor that are being adopted in substance include:

Part 531, which governs the manner in which an employee's wages are calculated taking into account the reasonable cost to an employer of furnishing board, lodging, or other facilities. This Part is derived from Section 3(m) of the FLSA, which directs how the "wage" paid to an employee is determined. Section 3(m) must be treated as applicable under the CAA by virtue of Section 225(f)(1), which authorizes generally the inclusion of those definitions and exemptions that are consistent with definitions and exemptions of the CAA. However, it is noted that section 3(m) is inconsistent with the CAA insofar as the implementing regulations in Part 531, Title 29, C.F.R., provide procedures by which the Wage and Hour Administrator makes determinations in specific cases with respect to the furnishing of board, lodging, or other facilities. Because the Administrator has no role in the enforcement of the CAA by reason of Section 225(f)(3), and because the Board is not at this time is not authorizing the Office of Compliance to make such specific determinations, the Board proposes to delete the provisions setting forth those procedures. Similarly, the reference to "tipped employees" and the method by which their wages are determined are deleted because the applicable sections assign responsibility to the Administrator.

Part 541, which defines and delimits the bona fide executive, administrative, and professional employees who are exempt under Section 13(a) of the FLSA from the minimum wage and maximum hours requirements. The Board has determined that this exemption, commonly known as the "white collar" exemption, is applicable to employing offices of Congress by virtue of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA.

In the ANPRM, the Board solicited public comment on whether and to what extent it should modify the Labor Department's regulations regarding this exemption. Generally, the commenters did not question the applicability of this exemption to covered employees under the CAA, and several commenters urged the adoption of all of the Department's regulations in Part 541, 29 C.F.R., including the interpretative bulletins, without any modification. Two commenters contended that the Board's regulations should grant a sweeping exemption for nearly all staff employees working in elected members' offices because they exercise independent judgment and discretion in performing their responsibilities.

Other commenters urged the Board to modify the Labor Department regulations to take into account the unique job responsibilities of staff working for an elected member either in a personal office, in a leadership office or on committee. Recognizing that job titles alone cannot be dispositive of who is an exempt employee, these commenters urged the Board to identify with particularity those job duties which, if performed by an employee, would render him or her an exempt executive, administrative, or professional employee.

The Board is proposing to adopt the Labor Department's substantive regulations contained in Subpart A of Part 541 of 29 C.F.R. that set forth the fundamental criteria for satisfying each of the three exemptions. But, for the reasons explained below, the Board is not formally adopting the interpretative bulletins contained in Subpart B of Part 541 of 29 C.F.R., which discuss and illustrate through examples the Department's understanding of the exemption criteria.

With respect to some commenters' request that the Board modify the white collar exemptions, upon reflection, the Board has reluctantly concluded that such a modification would not satisfy the "good cause" requirement of Section 203(c)(2) of the CAA. The Board recognizes that the Secretary's regulations and interpretations were promulgated in a different era, with different employment paradigms in mind. Thus, the Board appreciates the many difficulties that employing offices will have in interpreting and reconciling these regulations to present day realities. Moreover, the Board is mindful of the significant impact the application of the administrative, executive and professional exemption will have on the structuring, functioning and expense of the Members' and Senators' personal offices and committee offices. However, the Board notes that private sector and state and local government employers face the same difficulties. And the Board has not found any sound, principled basis for modifying the exemption regulation for Congress and its instrumentalities. That resolved, the Board nonetheless wishes to make clear its intent to provide, as time and resources permit, appropriate general guidance to the Congress and its instrumentalities on how to identify and justify which employees are exempt. Such efforts made through the Office's education and information programs, will attempt to assist employing offices in determining which job duties will be considered exempt under the executive, administration or professional criteria.

Part 547, which defines, pursuant to Section 7(e)(3)(b) the standard that bona fide thrift or savings plans must meet in order not to be included within an employee's regular rate of pay for purposes of calculating overtime obligations under Section 7 of the FLSA. This is included in light of Section 203(a)(1) of the CAA, which specifically applied the rights and protections of Section 7 of the FLSA.

Part 570, which sets forth the limitations on the use of child labor. This Part implements Section 12(c) of the FLSA, prohibiting oppressive child labor, as defined by Section 3(l) of the same Act. The former section is specifically referenced in Section 203(a)(1) of the CAA, while the latter must be referenced by reason of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA. The inclusion of this Part in the separate regulations of the Senate is necessitated by the fact that the Senate allows for the appointment of congressional pages below the age of 16, unlike the House of Representatives, which by law sets a minimum age of 16 for such employees. For children under age 16, the FLSA regulations impose limitations on hours worked during the school year. Part 570 is also included in the separate regulations applicable to all other covered employees and employing offices. Given the hazardous nature of some of the activities of the support functions, such as maintenance and repair, Part 570 regulations are being proposed in the event that such instrumentalities employ children under 18 years of age. It is noted that the Board has not adopted regulations comparable to those set forth in the Labor Department's Subpart B (29 C.F.R. Sections 570.5-27), authorizing the issuance of certificates of age. In addition, with respect to Section 570.52, governing the hazardous occupation of motor-vehicle driver and outside helper, the Board is not adopting the special exemption for school bus driving because by its terms no employing offices would satisfy the criteria of the regulation.

C. Secretary of Labor's regulations that the Board proposes not to adopt

In reviewing the remaining parts of the Labor Department's regulations, it is readily apparent that some have no application to the employing offices within the legislative branch. For this reason, the Board is not including them within its substantive regulations. Among the excluded regulations are: Part 510, which pertains to the application of the minimum wage provisions to Puerto Rico; Part 511, establishing a wage order procedure for American Samoa; Part 515, authorizing the utilization of State government agencies for investigations and inspections; Part 530, governing the employment of industrial homeworkers in certain industries; Part 549, defining the requirements of a "bona fide profit-sharing plan or trust;" Part 550, defining the term "talent fees;" Part 552, regulating the application of the FLSA to domestic service; Part 575, addressing child labor in certain agricultural employment; Parts 578, 579, and 580, implementing the civil money penalties provisions of the FLSA; and Part 679, dealing with industries in American Samoa. Unless public comments suggest otherwise, the Board intends including in the adopted regulations a provision stating that the Board has issued regulations on all matters for which the CAA requires a regulation. See Section 411 of the CAA.

Other substantive regulations could have application in the event that an employing office wished to avail itself of certain special wage rates, subminimum wage exemptions or overtime exemptions under the FLSA. These are found in: Parts 519-528, which authorize subminimum wages for full-time students, student-learners, apprentices, learners, messengers, workers with disabilities, and student workers; Part 548, which authorizes in the collective bargaining context the establishment of basic wage rates for overtime compensation purposes; and Part 551, which implements an overtime exemption for local delivery drivers and helpers. Unless public comments provide a sufficient justification to the contrary the Board is not proposing the adoption of regulations covering the foregoing subjects.

III. The Interpretive Bulletins and other relevant guidance

In addition to the substantive regulations found in Subchapter A, the Department of Labor has issued, under Subchapter B, "Statements of General Policy or Interpretations Not Directly Related to Regulations," 29 C.F.R. Parts 775-794. Usually called Interpretive Bulletins, these statements make available in one place the official interpretations which guide the Secretary of Labor and the Wage and Hour Administrator in the performance of their duties. As the interpretations of an administering agency, such statements are usually given some deference by the courts. As the Supreme Court has observed:

"the rulings, interpretations and opinions of the Administrator under this Act, while not controlling upon the courts by reason of their authority, do constitute a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. The weight of such a judgment in a particular case will depend upon the thoroughness evident in the consideration, the validity of its reasoning its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control." Skidmore v. Swift, 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944).

However, unlike "substantive regulations," these interpretations are not issued by the agency pursuant to its statutory authority to implement the statute and, more significantly, do not have the force and effect of law. See Batterton v. Francis, 432 U.S. 416, 425 n.9 (1977). The Board's mandate is only to issue substantive regulations that are "the same as the substantive regulations of the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provision [of the FLSA] applied" by Section 204(a) of the CAA unless modified for good cause (CAA Section 203 (c)(2)). Therefore, the Board, does not propose to adopt the non-substantive interpretations of the DOL and its Wage and Hour Division as substantive regulations under the CAA. Moreover, the Board is not proposing to issue the Department's interpretations as its own interpretations of the FLSA rights and protections made applicable under the CAA at this time. However, as discussed below, employing offices should be advised that, pursuant to the Portal to Portal Act, the Board will give due consideration the Secretary's interpretations of the FLSA.

Application of the Portal to Portal Act.—The Portal to Portal Act, 61 Stat. 84 (1947), codified generally at 29 U.S.C. Sections 216 and 251, et seq. ("PPA"), contains provisions which affect the rights and liabilities of employees and employers with regard to alleged underpayment of minimum or overtime wages under the FLSA. Section 4 of the PPA excludes from the definition of hours worked both activities preliminary to or postliminary to the worker's principal activities and travel time absent a contract, custom or practice to the contrary. 29 U.S.C. Section 254. Sections 9 and 10 of the PPA provide the employer with a defense against liability or punishment in any action or proceeding brought against it for failure to comply with the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the FLSA, where the employer pleads and proves that the act or omission complained of was in good faith in conformity with and in reliance on any regulation, order, ruling, approval, interpretation, administrative practice or enforcement policy of the Wage and Hour Administrator of the Department of Labor. 29 U.S.C. Sections 258-259. The PPA also contains provisions which restrict and limit employee suits under section 16(b) of the FLSA. For example, section 11 of the PPA provides that in any action brought under section 216 of the FLSA, the court may in its discretion, subject to prescribed conditions, award no liquidated damages or award any amount of such damages not to exceed the amount specified in section 16(b) of the FLSA. 29 U.S.C. Section 260.

The Board has determined that the above provisions of the PPA are incorporated into section 203 of the CAA, either as an amendment to section 16(b) of the FLSA (which is expressly applied to the legislative branch under section 203(b) of the CAA), or by virtue of section 225(f) of the CAA, which applies the definitions and exemptions of the FLSA to the extent not inconsistent with the CAA. To that end, the Board will give due consideration to the interpretations of the FLSA of the Secretary of Labor. Moreover, employing offices may utilize these interpretations in attempting to understand the rights and protections under the FLSA that have been made applicable by the CAA. Unless and until the Secretary's interpretive statements are superseded or interpretive guidance or decisions to the contrary are issued by the Board or the courts, they may be relied upon for purposes of defending against claims brought under the CAA to the same extent as private sector employers may properly rely upon them in actions brought under the FLSA.

Joint employer doctrine.—The Board solicited comments in the ANPRM on whether and to what extent the joint employment doctrine as developed under the FLSA is applicable under the CAA. The comments generally advocated adoption of the doctrine to employing offices of the Congress. However, since the issue of joint employment is addressed through a DOL interpretive bulletin set forth in Part 791, 29 C.F.R., rather than a substantive regulation, the Board is not adopting it as such nor issuing it as its own interpretive statement. See discussion at Section III.

Equal Pay Act.—With respect to the Equal Pay Act (EPA), which is included in Section 6(d) of the FLSA, 29 U.S.C. Section 206(d), the Secretary of Labor promulgated interpretive regulations that were originally included in 29 C.F.R. Part 800. Pursuant to the provisions of Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1978, as confirmed by the Congress in Public Law 98-532, 98 Stat. 2705 (1984), enforcement and administration of the EPA was transferred from the Secretary of Labor to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). The EEOC promulgated its own interpretations implementing the EPA at 29 C.F.R. Part 1620. Thereafter, the Secretary deleted its interpretations. 52 FR 2517 (Jan.

23, 1987). Thus, there are no substantive regulations implementing the EPA. Under the rationale previously stated regarding the Portal to Portal Act, the Board declines to incorporate the EEOC interpretations as substantive regulations under the CAA but will recognize them as is appropriate.

Opinion Letters.—Commenters asked that the Board consider establishing a process under which the Office or the Board would issue opinion letters and upon which employing offices could rely, similar to the procedure followed by the Wage and Hour Administrator in sometimes providing such opinions at the request of private sector employers. The Board understands employing offices' desire for guidance and clarity regarding their obligations under the CAA.

To the extent that the Board itself can address issues through regulations or interpretations, it will do so. Moreover, the Office intends to provide appropriate education and technical assistance as part of its education and information responsibilities. But for the reasons stated here, the Board and the Office's ability to do so is limited by legal, resource and policy considerations. As is the case in the private sector context, many issues under these statutes can only be definitively resolved through case-by-case adjudication on particular facts. Moreover, except in the context of statutes subject to the Portal to Portal Act, it is doubtful that the Board or the Office has the statutory authority to issue guidance with legal effect (outside of the adjudicatory or rulemaking contexts); we are not aware of any such legal authorization for Executive Branch agencies to do so in the context of applying these same laws to the private sector. Further, the resources of the Board and the Office are limited: the first year appropriation is for $2.5 million. These resources are substantially less than those available to analogous Executive Branch agencies that administer fewer laws. Finally, public comment has not provided the Board with the facts necessary for yet making any of these determinations—and a detailed evidentiary record is necessary for such judgment to be made. In short, particularly in light of the various statutory responsibilities of the Office and the Board, it is not possible to give answers with legal effect to each individual request for information and guidance. While the Board will structure education and information programs to assist employees and employing offices, it is forced to respond that, like private employers, employing offices will generally have to rely on their own counsel and human resource advisors in determining their compliance with the Congressional Accountability Act.

IV. Method of approval

The Board recommends that (1) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate be approved by the Senate by resolution; (2) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives be approved by the House of Representatives by resolution; and (3) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to other covered employees and employing offices be approved by the Congress by concurrent resolution.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on this 21st day of November, 1995.

GLEN D. NAGER,
Chair of the Board, Office of Compliance.

SUBPART A—MATTERS OF GENERAL APPLICABILITY

§ C501.101 Purpose and scope.

(a) Section 203 of the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA) provides that the rights and protections of subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6, section 7, and section 12(c) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (FLSA) (29 U.S.C. §§ 206(a)(1) & (d), 207.212(c)) shall apply to covered employees of the legislative branch of the Federal government. Section 301 of the CAA creates the Office of Compliance as an independent office in the legislative branch for enforcing the rights and protections of the FLSA, as applied by the CAA.

(b) The FLSA as applied by the CAA provides for minimum standards for both wages and overtime entitlements, and delineates administrative procedures by which covered worktime must be compensated. Included also in the FLSA are provisions related to child labor, equal pay, and portal-to-portal activities. In addition, the FLSA exempts specified employees or groups of employees from the application of certain of its provisions.

(c) This chapter contains the substantive regulations with respect to the FLSA that the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance has adopted pursuant to Sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA, which requires that the Board promulgate regulations that are “the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) [of § 203 of the CAA] except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown . . . that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section.”

§ C501.102 Definitions.

For purposes of this chapter.

(c) CAA means the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 (P.L. 104–1, 109 Stat. 3, 2 U.S.C. §§ 1301–1438).

(b) FLSA or Act means the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (29 U.S.C. § 201 et seq.).

(c) Covered employee means any employee, including an applicant for employment and a former employee, of the (1) the Capitol Guide Service; (2) the Capitol Police; (3) the Congressional Budget Office; (4) the Office of the Architect of the Capitol; (5) the Office of the Attending Physician; (6) the Office of Compliance; or (7) the Office of Technology Assessment.

(d) (1) Employee of the Office of the Architect of the Capitol includes any employee of the Architect of the Capitol, the Botanic Garden, or the Senate Restaurants; (2) Employee of the Capitol Police includes any member or officer of the Capitol Police.

(e) Employing office and employer mean (1) the Capitol Guide Service; (2) the Capitol Police; (3) the Congressional Budget Office; (4) the Office of the Architect of the Capitol; (5) the Office of the Attending Physician; (6) the Office of Compliance; or (7) the Office of Technology Assessment.

(f) Board means the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance.

(g) Office means the Office of Compliance.

§ C501.103 Coverage.

The coverage of Section 203 of the CAA extends to any covered employee of an employing office without regard to whether the covered employee is engaged in commerce or the production of goods for interstate commerce and without regard to size, number of employees, amount of business transacted, or other measure.

§ C501.104 Administrative authority.

(a) The Office of Compliance is authorized to administer the provisions of Section 203 of the Act with respect to any covered employee or covered employer.

(b) The Board is authorized to promulgate substantive regulations in accordance with the provisions of Sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA.

(c) The Board may in its discretion from time to time issue interpretative statements providing guidance to employees and to employing offices on the rights and protections established under the FLSA that are made applicable by Sections 203(a) and 225 of the CAA.

§ C501.105 Effect of interpretations of the Department of Labor.

(a) In administering the FLSA, the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor has issued not only substantive regulations but also interpretative bulletins. Substantive regulations represent an exercise of statutorily-delegated lawmaking authority from the legislative branch to an administrative agency. Generally, they are proposed in accordance with the notice-and-comment procedures of the Administrative Procedure Act (APA), 5 U.S.C. § 553. Once promulgated, such regulations are considered to have the force and effect of law, unless set aside upon judicial review as arbitrary, capricious, an abuse of discretion, or otherwise not in accordance with law. See Batterton v. Francis, 432 U.S. 416, 425 n.9 (1977). See also 29 C.F.R. § 790.17(b) (1994). Unlike substantive regulations, interpretative statements, including bulletins and other releases of the Wage and Hour Division, are not issued pursuant to the provisions of the APA and may not have the force and effect of law. Rather, they may only constitute official interpretations of the Department of Labor with respect to the meaning and application of the minimum wage, maximum hour, and overtime pay requirements of the FLSA. See 29 C.F.R. §790.17(c) (citing Final Report of the Attorney General's Committee on Administrative Procedure, Senate Document No.8, 77th Cong., 1st Sess., at p. 27 (1941)). The purpose of such statements is to make available in one place the interpretations of the FLSA which will guide the Secretary of Labor and the Wage and Hour Administrator in the performance of their duties unless and until they are otherwise directed by authoritative decisions of the courts or conclude, upon reexamination of an interpretation, that it is incorrect. The Supreme Court has observed: "[T]he rulings, interpretations and opinions of the Administrator under this Act, while not controlling upon the courts by reason of their authority, do constitute a body of experience and informed judgment to which courts and litigants may properly resort for guidance. The weight of such a judgment in a particular case will depend upon the thoroughness evident in the consideration, the validity of its reasoning, its consistency with earlier and later pronouncements, and all those factors which give it power to persuade, if lacking power to control." Skidmore v. Swift, 323 U.S. 134, 140 (1944).

(b) Section 203(c) of the CAA provides that the substantive regulations implementing Section 203 of the CAA shall be "the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor" except where the Board finds, for good cause shown, that a modification would more effectively implement the rights and protections established by the FLSA. Thus, the CAA by its terms does not mandate that the Board adopt the interpretative statements of the Department of Labor or its Wage and Hour Division. The Board is thus not adopting such statements as part of its substantive regulations.

§ 501.106 Application of the Portal-to-Portal Act of 1947.

(a) Consistent with Section 225 of the CAA, the Portal to Portal Act (PPA), 29 U.S.C. §§216 and 251 et seq., is applicable in defining and delimiting the rights and protections of the FLSA that are prescribed by the CAA. Section 10 of the PPA, 29 U.S.C. §259, provides in pertinent part:

[N]o employer shall be subject to any liability or punishment for or on account of the failure of the employer to pay minimum wages or overtime compensation under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended, . . . if he pleads and proves that the act or omission complained of was in good faith in conformity with and reliance on any written administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation of [the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor] . . . or any administrative practice or enforcement policy of such agency with respect to the class of employers to which he belonged. Such a defense, if established shall be a bar to the action or proceeding, notwithstanding that after such act or omission, such administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval, interpretation, practice or enforcement policy is modified or rescinded or is determined by judicial authority to be invalid or of no legal effect.

(b) In defending any action or proceeding based on any act or omission arising out of section 203 of the CAA, an employing office may satisfy the standards set forth in subsection (a) by pleading and proving good faith reliance upon:

(1) Any written administrative regulation, order, decision, ruling, approval or interpretation, or any administrative practice or enforcement policy, of the Board.

(2) Any written administrative regulation, order, ruling, approval or interpretation, of the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division of the Department of Labor: Provided, that such regulation, order, ruling approval or interpretation had not been superseded at the time of reliance by any regulation, order, decision, ruling, approval or interpretation, or any administrative practice or enforcement policy, of the Board or the courts.

SUBPART A—PRELIMINARY MATTERS.

§ C531.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations at Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

531.1 Definitions—C531.1.

531.2 Purpose and scope—C531.2.

531.3 General determinations of "reasonable cost"—C531.3.

531.6 Effects of collective bargaining agreements—C531.6.

§ C531.1 Definitions.

(a) Administrator means the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division or his authorized representative. The Secretary of Labor has delegated to the Administrator the functions vested in him under section 3(m) of the Act.

(b) Act means the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended.

§ C531.2 Purpose and scope.

(a) Section 3(m) of the Act defines the term 'wage' to include the 'reasonable cost', as determined by the Secretary of Labor, to an employer of furnishing any employee with board, lodging, or other facilities, if such board, lodging, or other facilities are customarily furnished by the employer to his employees. In addition, section 3(m) gives the Secretary authority to determine the 'fair value.' of such facilities on the basis of average cost to the employer or to groups of employers similarly situated, on average value to groups of employees, or other appropriate measures of 'fair value.' Whenever so determined and when applicable and pertinent, the 'fair value' of the facilities involved shall be includable as part of 'wages' instead of the actual measure of the costs of those facilities. The section provides, however, that the cost of board, lodging, or other facilities shall not be included as part of 'wages' if excluded therefrom by a bona fide collective bargaining agreement. Section 3(m) also provides a method for determining the wage of a tipped employee.

(b) This part 531 contains any determinations made as to the 'reasonable cost' and 'fair value' of board, lodging, or other facilities having general application.

SUBPART B—DETERMINATIONS OF "REASONABLE COST" AND "FAIR VALUE"; EFFECTS OF COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS

§ C531.3 General determinations of 'reasonable cost.'

(a) The term reasonable cost as used in section 3(m) of the Act is hereby determined to be not more than the actual cost to the employer of the board, lodging, or other facilities customarily furnished by him to his employees.

(b) Reasonable cost does not include a profit to the employer or to any affiliated person.

(c) The reasonable cost to the employer of furnishing the employee with board, lodging, or other facilities (including housing) is the cost of operation and maintenance including adequate depreciation plus a reasonable allowance (not more than 5 1/2 percent) for interest on the depreciated amount of capital invested by the employer: Provided, That if the total so computed is more than the fair rental value (or the fair price of the commodities or facilities offered for sale), the fair rental value (or the fair price of the commodities or facilities offered for sale) shall be the reasonable cost. The cost of operation and maintenance, the rate of depreciation, and the depreciated amount of capital invested by the employer shall be those arrived at under good accounting practices. As used in this paragraph, the term good accounting practices does not include accounting practices which have been rejected by the Internal Revenue Service for tax purposes, and the term depreciation includes obsolescence.

(d)(1) The cost of furnishing 'facilities' found by the Administrator to be primarily for the benefit or convenience of the employer will not be recognized as reasonable and may not therefore be included in computing wages.

(2) The following is a list of facilities found by the Administrator to be primarily for the benefit of convenience of the employer. The list is intended to be illustrative rather than exclusive: (i) Tools of the trade and other materials and services incidental to carrying on the employer's business; (ii) the cost of any construction by and for the employer; (iii) the cost of uniforms and of their laundering, where the nature of the business requires the employee to wear a uniform.

§ C531.6 Effects of collective bargaining agreements.

(a) The cost of board, lodging, or other facilities shall not be included as part of the wage paid to any employee to the extent it is excluded therefrom under the terms of a bona fide collective bargaining agreement applicable to the particular employee.

(b) A collective bargaining agreement shall be deemed to be 'bona fide' when pursuant to the provisions of section 7(b)(1) or 7(b)(2) of the FLSA it is made with the certified representative of the employees under the provisions of the CAA.

SUBPART A—GENERAL REGULATIONS

§ C541.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations at Title 29 of the Code of Federal Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

541.1 Executive—C541.1.

541.3 Professional—C541.3.

541.5b Equal pay provisions of section 6(d) of the FLSA apply to executive, administrative, and professional employees—C541.5b.

§ C541.01 Application of the exemptions of section 13 (a)(1) of the FLSA.

(a) Section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA, which provides certain exemptions for employees employed in a bona fide executive, administrative, or professional capacity (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in a secondary school), applies to covered employees by virtue of Section 225(f)(1) of the CAA.

(b) The substantive regulations set forth in this part are promulgated under the authority of sections 203(c) and 304 of the CAA, which require that such regulations be the same as the substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor except where the Board determines for good cause shown that modifications would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections of covered employees.

§ C541.1 Executive.

The term employee employed in a bona fide executive * * * capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of the management of an employing office in which he is employed or of a customarily recognized department or subdivision thereof; and

(b) Who customarily and regularly directs the work of two or more other employees therein; and

(c) Who has the authority to hire or fire other employees or whose suggestions and recommendations as to the hiring or firing and as to the advancement and promotion or any other change of status of other employees will be given particular weight; and

(d) Who customarily and regularly exercises discretionary powers; and

(e) Who does not devote more than 20 percent, or, in the case of an employee of a retail or service establishment who does not devote as much as 40 percent, of his hours of work in the workweek to activities which are not directly and closely related to the performance of the work described in paragraphs (a) through (d) of this section: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply in the case of an employee who is in sole charge of an independent establishment or a physically separated branch establishment; and

(f) Who is compensated for his services on a salary basis at a rate of not less than $155 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities: Provided, That an employee who is compensated on a salary basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the management of the employing office in which the employee is employed or of a customarily recognized department or subdivision thereof, and includes the customary and regular direction of the work of two or more other employees therein, shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of this section.

§ C541.2 Administrative.

The term employee employed in a bona fide * * * administrative * * * capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of either:

(1) The performance of office or nonmanual work directly related to management policies or general operations of his employer or his employer's customers, or

(2) The performance of functions in the administration of the Congressional Page School or of a department or subdivision thereof, in work directly related to the academic instruction or training carried on therein; and

(b) Who customarily and regularly exercises discretion and independent judgment; and

(c)(1) Who regularly and directly assists the head of an employing office, or an employee employed in a bona fide executive or administrative capacity (as such terms are defined in the regulations of this subpart), or

(2) Who performs under only general supervision work along specialized or technical lines requiring special training, experience, or knowledge, or

(3) Who executes under only general supervision special assignments and tasks; and

(d) Who does not devote more than 20 percent, or, in the case of an employee of a retail or service establishment who does not devote as much as 40 percent, of his hours worked in the workweek to activities which are not directly and closely related to the performance of the work described in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section; and

(e)(1) Who is compensated for his services on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $155 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, or

(2) Who, in the case of academic administrative personnel, is compensated for services as required by paragraph (e)(1) of this section, or on a salary basis which is at least equal to the entrance salary for teachers of the Congressional Page School: Provided, That an employee who is compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the performance of work described in paragraph (a) of this section, which includes work requiring the exercise of discretion and independent judgment, shall be deemed to meet all the requirements of this section.

§ C541.3 Professional.

The term employee employed in a bona fide * * * professional capacity in section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA shall mean any employee:

(a) Whose primary duty consists of the performance of:

(1) Work requiring knowledge of an advance type in a field of science or learning customarily acquired by a prolonged course of specialized intellectual instruction and study, as distinguished from a general academic education and from an apprenticeship, and from training in the performance of routine mental, manual, or physical processes, or

(2) Work that is original and creative in character in a recognized field of artistic endeavor (as opposed to work which can be produced by a person endowed with general manual or intellectual ability and training), and the result of which depends primarily on the invention, imagination, or talent of the employee, or

(3) Teaching, tutoring, instructing, or lecturing in the activity of imparting knowledge and who is employed and engaged in this activity as a teacher in the Congressional Page School, or

(4) Work that requires theoretical and practical application of highly-specialized knowledge in computer systems analysis, programming, and software engineering, and who is employed and engaged in these activities as a computer systems analyst, computer programmer, software engineer, or other similarly skilled worker in the computer software field; and

(b) Whose work requires the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment in its performance; and

(c) Whose work is predominantly intellectual and varied in character (as opposed to routine mental, manual, mechanical, or physical work) and is of such character that the output produced or the result accomplished cannot be standardized in relation to a given period of time; and

(d) Who does not devote more than 20 percent of his hours worked in the workweek to activities which are not an essential part of and necessarily incident to the work described in paragraphs (a) through (c) of this section; and

(e) Who is compensated for services on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $170 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply in the case of an employee who is the holder of a valid license or certificate permitting the practice of law or medicine or any of their branches and who is actually engaged in the practice thereof, nor in the case of an employee who is the holder of the requisite academic degree for the general practice of medicine and is engaged in an internship or resident program pursuant to the practice of medicine or any of its branches, nor in the case of an employee employed and engaged as a teacher as provided in paragraph (a)(3) of this section: Provided further, That an employee who is compensated on a salary or fee basis at a rate of not less than $250 per week, exclusive of board, lodging or other facilities, and whose primary duty consists of the performance either of work described in paragraph (a) (1), (3), or (4) of this section, which includes work requiring the consistent exercise of discretion and judgment, or of work requiring invention, imagination, or talent in a recognized field of artistic endeavor, shall be deemed to meet all of the requirements of this section: Provided further, That the salary or fee requirements of this paragraph shall not apply to an employee engaged in computer-related work within the scope of paragraph (a)(4) of this section and who is compensated on an hourly basis at a rate in excess of 6 1/2 times the minimum wage provided by section 6 of the FLSA as applied by the CAA.

§ C541.5b Equal pay provisions of section 6(d) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA extend to executive, administrative, and professional employees.

The FLSA, as amended and as applied by the CAA, includes within the protection of the equal pay provisions those employees exempt from the minimum wage and overtime pay provisions as bona fide executive, administrative, and professional employees (including any employee employed in the capacity of academic administrative personnel or teacher in elementary or secondary schools) under section 13(a)(1) of the FLSA. Thus, for example, where an exempt administrative employee and another employee of the employing office are performing substantially "equal work," the sex discrimination prohibitions of section 6(d) are applicable with respect to any wage differential between those two employees.

PART C547—REQUIREMENTS OF A "BONA FIDE THRIFT OR SAVINGS PLAN"

Sec.

C547.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

C547.0 Scope and effect of part.

C547.1 Essential requirements of qualifications.

C547.2 Disqualifying provisions.

§ C547.00 Corresponding section table of the FLSA regulations of the Labor Department and the CAA regulations of the Office of Compliance.

The following table lists the sections of the Secretary of Labor Regulations under the FLSA with the corresponding sections of the Office of Compliance (OC) Regulations under Section 203 of the CAA:

Secretary of Labor Regulations—OC Regulations.

547.0 Scope and effect of part—C547.0

547.1 Essential requirements of qualifications—C547.1

547.2 Disqualifying provisions—C547.2.

§ C547.0 Scope and effect of part.

(a) The regulations in this part set forth the requirements of a "bona fide thrift or savings plan" under section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938, as amended (FLSA), as applied by the CAA. In determining the total remuneration for employment which section 7(e) of the FLSA requires to be included in the regular rate at which an employee is employed, it is not necessary to include any sums paid to or on behalf of such employee, in recognition of services performed by him during a given period, which are paid pursuant to a bona fide thrift or savings plan meeting the requirements set forth herein. In the formulation of these regulations due regard has been given to the factors and standards set forth in section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Act.

(b) Where a thrift or savings plan is combined in a single program (whether in one or more documents) with a plan or trust for providing old age, retirement, life, accident or health insurance or similar benefits for employees, contributions made by the employer pursuant to such thrift or savings plan may be excluded from the regular rate if the plan meets the requirements of the regulation in this part and the contributions made for the other purposes may be excluded from the regular rate if they meet the tests set forth in regulations.

§ C547.1 Essential requirements for qualifications.

(a) A "bona fide thrift or savings plan" for the purpose of section 7(e)(3)(b) of the FLSA as applied by the CAA is required to meet all the standards set forth in paragraphs (b) through (f) of this section and must not contain the disqualifying provisions set forth in § 547.2.

(b) The thrift or savings plan constitutes a definite program or arrangement in writing, adopted by the employer or by contract as a result of collective bargaining and communicated or made available to the employees, which is established and maintained, in good faith, for the purpose of encouraging voluntary thrift or savings by employees by providing an incentive to employees to accumulate regularly and retain cash savings for a reasonable period of time or to save through the regular purchase of public or private securities.

(c) The plan specifically shall set forth the category or categories of employees participating and the basis of their eligibility. Eligibility may not be based on such factors as hours of work, production, or efficiency of the employees: Provided, however, That hours of work may be used to determine eligibility of part-time or casual employees.

(d) The amount any employee may save under the plan shall be specified in the plan or determined in accordance with a definite formula specified in the plan, which formula may be based on one or more factors such as the straight-time earnings or total earnings, base rate of pay, or length of service of the employee.

(e) The employer's total contribution in any year may not exceed 15 percent of the participating employees' total earnings during that year. In addition, the employer's total contribution in any year may not exceed the total amount saved or invested by the participating employees during that year: Provided, however, That a plan permitting a greater contribution may be submitted to the Administrator and approved by him as a "bona fide thrift or savings plan" within the meaning of section 7(e)(3)(b) of the Act if:

(1) The plan meets all the other standards of this section;

(2) The plan contains none of the disqualifying factors enumerated in § C547.2;

(3) The employer's contribution is based to a substantial degree upon retention of savings; and

OFFICE OF COMPLIANCE

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995: Extension of Rights and Protections Under the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993

Notice of proposed rulemaking

Summary: This notice contains proposed regulations to extend rights and protections under the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 ("FMLA") to employees of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and certain Congressional instrumentalities listed below. These proposed regulations implement sections 202 (a) and (b) of the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), Public Law 104-1, 2 U.S.C. §§ 1312(a)-(b).

The CAA extends the rights and protections of eleven labor and employment laws to covered employees within the legislative branch. Section 202 governs the extension of the rights and protections of the FMLA to covered employees and employing offices of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and seven Congressional instrumentalities listed in paragraph (3) below. The purposes of the FMLA include entitling employees to take reasonable leave for medical reasons, for the birth or adoption of a child, and for the care of a child, spouse, or parent who has a serious health condition.

This notice proposes that substantially similar regulations be adopted for the Senate, the House of Representatives, and the seven Congressional instrumentalities; and their employees. Accordingly:

(1) Senate. It is proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate, and this proposal regarding the Senate and its employees is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Deputy Executive Director for the Senate.

(2) House of Representatives. It is further proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives, and this proposal regarding the House of Representatives and its employees is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Deputy Executive Director for the House of Representatives.

(3) Certain Congressional instrumentalities. It is further proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the Capitol Guide Board, the Capitol Police Board, the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, the Office of the Attending Physician, the Office of Compliance, and the Office of Technology Assessment, and their employees; and this proposal regarding these seven Congressional instrumentalities is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Executive Director.

Dates: Comments are due on or before the date 30 days after the date of publication of this notice in the Congressional Record.

Addresses: Submit written comments (an original and 10 copies) to the Chair of the Board of Directors, Office of Compliance, Room LA 200, John Adams Building, 110 Second Street, S.E., Washington, D.C. 20540-1999. Those wishing to receive notification of receipt of comments are requested to include a self-addressed, stamped post card. Comments may also be transmitted by facsimile ("FAX") machine to (202) 252-3115. This is not a toll-free call. Supplementary information:

A. Background.

Statutory background. The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), 2 U.S.C. §§ 1301 et seq., was enacted into law on January 23, 1995. The CAA extends the application of eleven federal labor and employment laws to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch.

Sections 202 (a) and (b) of the CAA apply rights and protections of the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 ("FMLA") to covered employees and employing offices. The FMLA generally requires employers to permit covered employees to take up to 12 weeks of unpaid, job-protected leave during a 12-month period for the birth of a child and to care for the newborn; placement of a child for adoption or foster care; care of a spouse, child, or parent with a serious health condition; or an employee's own serious health condition. The FMLA and the regulations of the Secretary of Labor ("Secretary") implementing the FMLA contain provisions concerning the maintenance of health benefits during leave, job restoration after leave, notice and medical certifications of the need for FMLA leave, and the relationship of FMLA leave to the rights under other employment laws including the Americans With Disabilities Act, workers compensation, and Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Section 202(d) of the CAA directs the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance established under the CAA to issue regulations to implement the rights and protections under section 202. Section 202(d)(2) further states that the regulations "shall be the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsection (a) [of section 202] except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section."

Offices to which the proposed regulations apply. As noted above in the Summary, the regulations proposed in this notice are to be adopted in three separate bodies of regulations: (1) one applying to the Senate and its employees, (2) one applying to the House of Representatives and its employees, and (3) one applying to the seven Congressional instrumentalities listed above in the Summary, and their employees.¹ It is proposed that there will be only minor, non-substantive variations among the three versions of these regulations. These proposed variations are set forth in the proposed regulatory language included in this NPRM.

B. The Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking, and Response to Comments

On September 28, 1995, the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance issued an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking ("ANPRM") soliciting comments from interested parties in order to obtain information and participation early in the rulemaking process. 141 Cong. Rec. S 14542 (daily ed., Sept. 28, 1995). In addition to inviting comment on specific questions arising under five of the statutes made applicable by the CAA, the Board and the Executive Director, and the Deputy Executive Directors of the Office of Compliance have consulted with the Chair of the Administrative Conference of the United States, the Secretary of Labor, and the Director of the Office of Personnel Management with regard to the development of these regulations in accordance with Section 304(g) of the CAA. Based on the information gleaned from these comments on the ANPRM and this consultation, the Board is publishing these proposed rules pursuant to section 202(d) of the CAA, 2 U.S.C. § 1312(d).

In response to the ANPRM, the Board received comments from a variety of sources expressing a wide range of views. The following discussion describes issues raised by the ANPRM and by comments in response to the ANPRM, and explains how the Board has taken these comments into account in developing proposed regulations. The Board invites further comments on the regulations proposed in this notice.

The first two issues—on whether the Board should modify the Secretary of Labor's regulations, and on notice posting and record-keeping—are generic issues that arise under several statutes made applicable by the CAA. The comments on these issues and the Board's conclusions are fully discussed in the Notice of Proposed Rulemaking (NPRM) regarding the application of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). The NPRM regarding the FLSA is being published today, in this issue of the Congressional Record. Therefore, the comments and analysis regarding these two issues are only briefly summarized in this notice, and the reader is directed to the ¹This notice does not apply to the General Accounting Office ("GAO"), the Government Printing Office ("GPO"), or the Library of Congress (the "Library"). Section 201 of the FMLA already applies to GAO, GPO, and the Library (5 U.S.C. §§ 6381 et seq.); section 230 of the CAA requires a study of the application of the FMLA to these three agencies; and section 202(c) of the CAA amends the FMLA provisions applicable to the GAO and the Library, effective one year after the study is transmitted to Congress.

NPRM regarding the FLSA for a fuller discussion.

1. Whether and to what extent the board should modify the labor department's regulations

The first question posed in the ANPRM was the general question of whether and to what extent the Board should modify the Department of Labor's regulations with respect to all of the statutes made applicable by the CAA.

Those commenters who expressed views on this issue cited both the statute and the legislative history for the position that the CAA presumes that the regulations of the Department of Labor should generally not be modified. As noted above, the comments received in response to this question are summarized and discussed in the NPRM regarding the application of the FLSA, which is being published today in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

Based on the comments and the Board's understanding of the law and the institutions to which it is being made applicable, the Board has decided to issue the FMLA regulations with only limited and necessary modifications to the Secretary's regulations. In making the FMLA applicable, the CAA changed the key definition of "eligible employee," and the Board therefore proposes to make a corresponding modification to the definition of "eligible employee" in the Secretary's regulations. Certain conforming amendments and technical changes in the nomenclature of the Secretary's regulations have also been proposed, and those sections that are clearly inapplicable have specifically not been proposed for adoption by the Board. These proposed modifications to the Secretary's regulations are discussed below.

2. Notice posting and recordkeeping

The ANPRM also invited comment on whether the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the various laws made applicable by the CAA are incorporated as statutory requirements of the CAA. The ANPRM inquired whether, if such requirements were not incorporated, could and should the Board develop its own requirements pursuant to its "good cause" authority. The ANPRM also invited comment on proposing guidelines and models for recordkeeping and notice posting. As noted above, the comments received in response to these questions are summarized and discussed in the NPRM regarding the application of the FLSA.

The Board agrees with those commenters who took the position that, if employing offices are to be treated the same as private sector employers are treated under the FMLA, they should have to comply with the statute's notice posting and recordkeeping requirements. Moreover, the Board notes that notice posting and recordkeeping promote the full and effective enforcement of incorporated rights and protections. In the Board's view, notice posting and recordkeeping may well be in employers' interests both as a sound personnel practice and in order to defend against subsequent litigation.

But, while the CAA incorporates certain specific sections of the FMLA, the CAA explicitly did not incorporate the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of Sections 109 and 106(b), of the FMLA. For the reasons discussed with respect to the FLSA, as the CAA has not incorporated the notice posting and recordkeeping requirements of the FMLA, the Board will not do so. Accordingly, the Board proposes not to adopt sections 825.300 and 825.500 of the Secretary's FMLA regulations.

For similar reasons, the Board is proposing not to adopt a provision of section 825.110(c) of the Secretary's regulations. Section 825.110(c) addresses the question of how to determine whether the 1,250-hour leave-eligibility requirement has been satisfied. This section states that the principles established under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) will be used, and states further that, if an employer does not maintain an accurate record of hours worked, the employer has the burden of showing that the employee has not worked the requisite number of hours. Section 825.110(c) further provides that, in the event the employer is unable to meet this burden, the employee is deemed to have met the test. Section 101(2)(C) of the FMLA states that, for purposes of determining whether an employee worked the requisite 1,250 hours, the legal standards established under the FLSA shall apply. Although section 101(2)(C) of the FMLA incorporates the recordkeeping requirements of the FLSA, the Board has concluded that section 101(2)(C) does not make the FLSA recordkeeping requirements applicable under the CAA. This is because, by excluding the FLSA recordkeeping requirements from the FLSA provisions of the CAA, Congress indicated its intent that those recordkeeping requirements should not apply with respect to any CAA requirement. Accordingly, the Board has concluded that the legal authority supporting the Secretary's regulatory provision regarding burdens was not incorporated into the FMLA provisions of the CAA, and this regulatory provision is not included in the Board's proposed regulations.

The Board notes, however, that, as a practical matter, implementation of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, requires an adequate system of keeping records. Such records will be needed, for example, for the employing office to know when employees have satisfied the 12-months and 1,250-hours of service for eligibility, and to keep track of how much FMLA leave each employee has taken during a leave year. As various commenters suggest, the Board will provide guidance to employing offices concerning model recordkeeping practices as part of carrying out its program of education under section 301(h) of the CAA (2 U.S.C. 1381(h)).

The Board would also note, as it did in the NPRM involving the application of the rights and protections of the FLSA, that the absence of recordkeeping and notice posting requirements may create a void which can only partially be filled by the program of education to be carried out by the Board. The Board also would emphasize that employees will in many circumstances be able to establish a prima facie case simply by their own testimony where the employing office has failed to maintain adequate, accurate records and an employing office may find that its ability to respond to an employee's prima facie case is substantially burdened by its failure to keep accurate records. If Congress wishes to experience the same burdens as faced by the private sector and also to address these issues, it should enact recordkeeping requirements comparable to those of the FMLA. (Of course, like the regulations under the FMLA, such recordkeeping requirements may leave to the discretion of each employing office the precise form and manner in which records will be kept.) But, in light of the text and structure of the CAA, the Board believes that it is up to Congress to decide whether to do so.

Finally, section 825.304(c) of the Secretary's regulations refers to the posting of notices without mandating such posting. Section 825.304 implements section 102(e) of the FMLA which requires that an employee give the employer at least 30 days' advance notice of any foreseeable FMLA leave. The regulation provides that, if such notice is not provided, the employer may delay the taking of FMLA leave until at least 30 days after the date of actual notice from the employee. However, in order for the onset of leave to be delayed for lack of required notice, paragraph (c) requires that it must be clear that the employee had actual notice of the FMLA notice requirements. Finally, the paragraph offers that "This condition would be satisfied by the employer's proper posting of the required notice at the worksite where the employee is employed." Because this regulation implements section 102(e) of the FMLA, the Board believes that it must be adopted, absent good cause to modify it. Only a minor modification is needed. Under section 301(h) of the CAA, the Office must distribute information to employing offices in a form suitable for posting, but there is no requirement that the information actually be posted. Accordingly, the Board proposes to refer not to the "required notice", but to the "information distributed by the Office suitable for posting".

3. May an employee aggregate months and hours worked at more than one employing office to satisfy the 12-months and 1,250-hours of work conditions for eligibility?

Both the FMLA and the CAA include definitions of "eligible employee" which require that, to be eligible for FMLA leave, an employee must first have been employed for 12 months and for at least 1,250 hours during the previous 12-month period. However, the wording of the two definitions is significantly different.

The FMLA definition of "eligible employee" requires employment for at least 12 months "by the employer with respect to whom leave is requested" and for at least 1,250 hours of service during the previous 12 months with "such employer". In contrast, under section 202(a)(2)(B) of the CAA, an "eligible employee" is defined as a covered employee who has been employed in "any employing office for 12 months and for at least 1,250 hours of employment during the previous 12 months". It is clear that the FMLA definition requires that the 12 months and 1,250 hours must have been worked for the same employer from which the employee requests leave. However, the CAA is ambiguous as to whether an employee who worked for more than one employing office can aggregate the months and hours of employment from more than one employing offices to satisfy the 12-month and 1,250-hour requirements.

Accordingly, the ANPRM asked: Whether and, if so, how the 12 months and 1,250 hours of work should be calculated for employees who worked for more than one employing office.

Commenters expressed opposing views on this question:

One commenter argued that each employing office, in practice and under the CAA, is a separate, independent employer. Therefore, "employing offices" under the CAA should be treated the same as "employers" under the FMLA. Under this view, except in unusual circumstances, an employee must have worked for 12 months, and for 1,250 hours within the previous 12 months, for the particular employing office from which leave is requested.

Another commenter argued that employing offices under the CAA should be treated the same as part of a single institutional "employer" under the FMLA. The Board should treat employing offices as part of a single employer. In this view, employing offices would be analogous to the separate "establishments" or "divisions" of a single corporate employer.

A third view, with respect to the 1,250-hour requirement, was presented by another commenter. For employees who are employed by more than one employing office, the Board should make clear that hours of employment in each employing office will be considered when determining whether or not the 1,250 hour threshold has been met.

The Board believes that the language of the CAA is ambiguous. According to the dictionary, among several possible meanings, the term "any" may mean "one (no matter which one) of more than two", or it may mean "every". Webster's New Universal Unabridged Dictionary (deluxe 2d ed., 1983). If the first meaning were applied, the 12 months and 1,250 hours would have to be accrued in one single employing office; if the second meaning were applied, the months and hours could be aggregated from every employment office where the employee worked.

The Board has concluded that the better understanding of the CAA language is the latter one. The FMLA definition is explicit that the 12 months must have been served with "the employer with respect to whom leave is requested", and the 1,250 hours of service must also have been with "such employer". However, in the CAA, Congress substituted the phrase "any employing office" in place of the FMLA's precise reference to the particular employer from whom leave is requested. It therefore appears that eligibility should be determined on the basis of months and hours worked for employing offices other than just the one from which the leave is requested.²

Based on the Board's understanding of the meaning of the CAA, the Board proposes to modify the regulations as promulgated by the Secretary—(1) to incorporate the definition of "eligible employee" as set forth in section 202 of the CAA, and (2) to include language clarifying that, where an employee works for two or more employing offices, the months and hours worked will be aggregated for purposes of determining eligibility. (See §§ 825.110, 825.800 of the proposed regulations.)

4. Should the Board's regulations retain the House of Representatives rule under which employees are eligible for FMLA leave immediately upon employment?

Title V of the FMLA has applied certain rights and protections to the House and Senate since August 1993. Section 502, which applies to the House of Representatives, and rules adopted in the House to implement section 502, provide that House employees become eligible for FMLA leave immediately, without any minimum months or hours of employment.

In response to the ANPRM, some commenters questioned whether the Board should retain this approach for the House. Certain commenters argued that making FMLA leave immediately applicable in the House is based on the maximum two-year employment period in the House, which comes to a discrete end in the House at the conclusion of each Congress. Immediate eligibility allegedly diminishes many of the anticipated problems and issues regarding the administration of the leave year, treatment of joint employer status, and inconsistency of application. Accordingly, they urged the Board to retain current immediate eligibility for the House. Other commenters urged the opposite—i.e., that the Board should retain the private-sector eligibility requirements of 12 months and 1,250 hours.

The Board recognizes that the two-year employment cycle of the House of Representatives creates terms and conditions of employment which differ from the private sector. The Board also recognizes that at least some within the House of Representatives believe that immediate FMLA eligibility is an important element of an appropriate FMLA program for the House. However, for the Board's regulations to make House employees immediately eligible for FMLA leave would go beyond the express terms of the CAA.

Of course, neither the FMLA, as applied by the CAA, nor the regulations being proposed by the Board, would forbid the House from establishing a more generous leave program under its own authority. See § 403 of the FMLA (applied by § 225(f)(1) of the CAA); § 825.700 of the proposed regulations. These provisions state that employing offices are not intended to be discouraged from adopting or retaining leave policies more generous than any policies that comply with FMLA requirements. Therefore, individual employing offices remain free to grant leave to employees immediately upon employment, and nothing in the FMLA, as applied by the CAA, should affect any ability of the House to mandate immediate leave-eligibility for all House employing offices under its own authority. This should enable the House to retain much of the value of its current FMLA program, if the House determines that it wishes to retain immediate eligibility for leave.

The Board recognizes that, if the House decides to grant leave to employees who do not satisfy the CAA definition of an "eligible employee," attention must be paid to the question of how such leave would be treated under both FMLA and FLSA, as made applicable by the CAA. For example, an employing office may wish to "dock" an employee's pay for leave taken for partial-day absences. However, § 825.206(c) of the Board's proposed regulations provide: "Hourly or other deductions which are not in accordance with [applicable requirements under FLSA regulations] may not be taken, for example, where the employee has not worked long enough to be eligible for FMLA leave without potentially affecting the employee's eligibility for exemption [from FLSA requirements]." Furthermore, in preamble language to the Secretary's FMLA regulations, the Secretary stated: "Leave granted under circumstances that do not meet FMLA's coverage, eligibility, or specified reasons for FMLA-qualifying leave may not be counted against FMLA's 12-week entitlement." 60 Fed. Reg. 2230, col. 1 (Jan. 6, 1995).

In light of all of these factors, the Board does not believe that good cause exists for the Board's regulations to make House employees immediately eligible for FMLA leave.

5. Should the Board designate a uniform leave year?

As noted above, title V of the FMLA made certain rights and protections under the FMLA available to employees of the House and Senate. On August 5, 1993, the House Committee on House Administration adopted regulations and forms to implement the FMLA in the House. Among other things, these rules designated the period from January 3 of one year through January 2 of the following year as the FMLA "leave year" for all employers of the House. (The term "leave year" is used here to refer to the 12-month period within which the 12 weeks of leave may be taken.) This regulation has been retained by the Committee on House Oversight. However, section 502 of the FMLA, upon which the House regulations were based, is repealed by the CAA effective January 23, 1996.

With this as background, the ANPRM posed the following question: whether there is "good cause" to believe that designating a uniform FMLA leave year would be "more effective" for implementation of the rights and protections of the CAA than the regulations promulgated by the Secretary. The Secretary's regulations provide considerable freedom to employers to designate the 12-month period appropriate to their office.

Several commenters supported the use of a uniform leave year, and urged the Board to retain a uniform year in its rules, at least for the House. Other commenters disagreed.

Favoring the uniform leave year:

Certain commenters argued that the January 3 through January 2 period is based on the maximum two year employment period in the House, which comes to a discrete end at the conclusion of each Congress. Because this two-year employment cycle is unique to the House, the Board's regulations should "retain" the current, uniform manner in which FMLA is applied to the House, as a more effective way to implement the FMLA than the various options for defining leave years available under the Secretary's regulations. Furthermore, the uniform leave year is much easier to implement and understand, so that employees are less likely to lose their rights.

Another commenter pointed out that joint employment is very common in Congress, and argued that applying different leave years will cause administration to be problematic.

Opposing a uniform leave year:

Other commenters were doubtful of the need for the Board to establish a uniform leave year for the House, and saw no reason why employing offices should be denied flexibility.

Another commenter clearly took a position opposed to establishing a uniform leave year for the Senate. Each employing office should be allowed to choose any method allowed by the Secretary's regulations, and there is no "good cause" to restrict employers' choice.

The Board recognizes that the use of a uniform leave year may have advantages. However, there is also value in allowing employing offices the flexibility to apply a leave year that is appropriate to the office's circumstances.

Much of the advantage of a uniform leave year, as described by the commenters, involves making the FMLA program easier for the employing offices and for the House payroll and administrative offices to administer. However, nothing in the FMLA, as applied by the CAA, or in the regulations being proposed by the Board thereunder, would forbid the House from retaining these benefits by retaining its uniform leave year under the House's own authority. Under the FMLA and the Secretary's regulations, each employer is free to select a leave year. The Board is unaware of anything in the FMLA or the Secretary's regulations that would forbid House employing offices from establishing a uniform leave year for themselves, either by voluntary agreement among employing offices, or by establishing a uniform year under the House's authority of self-regulation. (Senate employing offices would, of course, also be free to consider a uniform leave year for some or all Senate employing offices, if they so desire.)

The Board also recognizes that use of a uniform leave year may provide some benefits and protections for eligible employees. When employees transfer from one employing office to another, or when they work simultaneously for more than one employing office, the application of different leave years by different employing offices could cause confusion and, in some circumstances, could limit flexibility by forcing an employee to fit leave within the constraints of differently defined years. This concern is discussed below, under the topic of whether the use of different leave years would affect FMLA leave rights. As noted, when an employee works jointly for two or more employing offices that apply inconsistent leave years, the employing offices will have to apply a single leave year for the employee.

For these reasons, the Board does not believe that there is good cause to mandate a uniform leave year.

6. Should the definitions of "joint employer", "integrated employer", or "successor employer" be retained or modified?

In the ANPRM, the Board explained that, under certain circumstances under the Secretary's FMLA regulations, two or more employers of the same employee may be treated as a single employer. The concepts under which this may be done are set forth within the provisions applicable to "joint employers", "integrated employers", and "successor employers."

Accordingly, the ANPRM asked for comment regarding: Whether and, if so, how the definitions of "joint employer", "integrated employer", or "successor employer" set forth in the regulations promulgated by the Secretary should be applied and/or modified.

Commenters offered several varying proposals on how these definitions should be modified.

One commenter suggested that, where an employee works concurrently for more than one employing office, the employing offices might jointly decide which of the employing offices will be designated the "primary" employer for purposes of FMLA compliance.

Another commenter suggested that "joint employment" will occur in the House where an employee is under the actual direction and control of a Member, even if another employing authority, such as a committee, performs a ministerial function with respect to payroll administration.

A commenter stated that no two employing offices in the Senate are ever "under common control". A "joint employer" relationship was said to exist in the Senate in only three situations: (a) an employee supplied by a temporary or leasing agency or supplied by another agency on detail, (b) working in two Senators' joint home office, or (c) working on common issues or other matters for more than one employing office. Where there is no "primary" employer, all must designate a single leave year for all of their joint employees. The commenter also stated that the concepts of integrated employer and successors in interest are not applicable to the Senate.

Another commenter suggested that, in the case of joint employment, reinstatement rights should apply with respect to both joint employers.

Finally, a commenter suggested that the Board should adopt the Department of Labor's regulations and allow each employing office to interpret them.

Integrated employer. The Secretary's regulations use the term "integrated employers" to refer to employers that are so closely connected that they are deemed a single entity. Under these regulations, whether employers are an "integrated employer" is determined by review of the entire relationship, and the factors to be considered "include": (i) common management, (ii) interrelation between operations, (iii) centralized control of labor relations, and (iv) common ownership/financial control.

If two employing offices were to be considered an "integrated employer" under the FMLA as applied by the CAA, employee eligibility and employer coverage would not be affected because employing offices are covered regardless of size, and employees' months and hours worked for any employing offices are aggregated for determining eligibility. However, being deemed an "integrated employer" may have implications for the determining employing offices' compliance obligations, so the concept of "integrated employer" should not be discarded as irrelevant.

The first three criteria listed in the Secretary's regulation—i.e., common management, interrelated operations, and centralized control of labor relations—appear to be clearly relevant and appropriate to determining whether two or more offices should be considered a single employing office. One commenter argued that the fourth criterion—common ownership/financial control—is foreign to the Senate. The Board agrees that "common ownership" is inapplicable to employing offices and their employees, and proposes not to adopt it. "Financial control" would probably not be applicable to employing offices in ordinary circumstances, but, in light of the fact that this criterion might prove to be useful in dealing with some unanticipated circumstance, the Board sees no need to omit this criterion.

For these reasons, the Board does not believe that there is good cause to omit the regulation on "integrated employer," and the Board proposes only to delete the reference to "common ownership" from the regulation.

Successor in interest. Like the "integrated employer" provision, the "successor in interest" concept has no implications for whether employees are eligible or employing offices are covered. However, some situations may arise where the concept of successorship will be relevant. For example, if committee jurisdictions are restructured, it may be necessary to determine which, if any, of the surviving committees is the "successor in interest" to the former committee. Thus, determining the successor may be important in determining whether a remaining committee must grant leave for an eligible employee who provided adequate notice to the former committee, or must continue leave begun while an employee was employed by the former committee.

The concept of "successor in interest" is developed in section 825.107 of the Secretary's regulations. The regulations state that a determination of whether a "successor in interest" exists is determined by the "entire circumstances * * * viewed in their totality". The regulation also states: "The factors to be considered include: (1) Substantial continuity of the same business operations; (2) Use of the same plant; (3) Continuity of the work force; (4) Similarity of jobs and working conditions; (5) Similarity of supervisory personnel; (6) Similarity of machinery, equipment, and production methods; (7) Similarity of products or services; and (8) The ability of the predecessor to provide relief."

The Board is concerned that several of the factors listed in 29 C.F.R. §825.107 are largely inapplicable. Except for a few shops, employing offices do not have "business operations". Few employing offices have a "plant", "machinery, equipment, and production methods" or "products or services". Accordingly, the Board proposes not to adopt §825.107 of the Secretary's regulations. Although the Board would wish to provide guidance on how the concept of "successor employer" would be applied under the CAA, it is impossible at this point to foresee how successorship will arise in the unique context of employing offices covered under the CAA. Accordingly, the determinations as to successorship may be addressed in future rulemaking or in case-by-case adjudication. In the latter situation, litigants may raise the question of successorship, and the Board would expect that common-law or other recognized principles of successorship might be considered or applied by the hearing officer, the Board, or a court.

Joint employers. The "joint employer" definition also would not affect employee eligibility, because hours of work are aggregated for eligibility purposes. However, the concept of joint employment is important for determining which employing office or employing offices have responsibility for FMLA compliance. The Board proposes that the regulatory section on joint employment can be adopted with relatively little revision. Examples of joint employment described in comments could be appropriately evaluated with reference to the criteria set forth in the regulation. For example, where an employee on a committee payroll is under the actual direction and control of a Member of the House of Representatives or a Senator, it may be relevant to consider whether the committee is acting "in the interest of" the Member's or Senator's personal office in relation to the employee, or whether the committee and the personal office are under "common control" with respect to the employee's employment. (See §§825.106(a)(2)-(3) of these proposed regulations.) The Board therefore proposes to add to the regulation a reference to examples of joint employment proposed in comments.

Finally, the Board acknowledges the view expressed by some commenters, that there may not be a primary employer in every instance of joint employment, and that joint employers should, by agreement, designate which single employing office will be responsible for compliance with FMLA obligations with respect to the joint employee. However, any such agreement cannot relieve the other joint employing offices of any FMLA responsibilities that are not fulfilled.

7. Whether the use of different leave years by different employing offices would affect the FMLA leave rights of "eligible employees" who are employed by more than one employing office?

Finally, the Board in the ANPRM recognized that a uniform leave year might not be required under Board regulations, and therefore asked for comment whether the lack of uniformity could jeopardize employees' leave rights. The Board suggested that this question be considered in light of the definition of "joint employer", "integrated employer", and "successor employer".

A commenter distinguished the situation of joint employment from the situation of independent employment. In the case of joint employment, if there is no primary employer, all of the employers must jointly designate a leave year for the joint employees. If an employee works at separate times for separate, independent employers, the employers may designate different leave years without depriving the employee of any FMLA rights. If an employee moves from joint employment to become employed by only one of the employers, or moves from being employed by one employer to being employed by that and another employer jointly, and if the applicable leave year therefore changes, the procedure under §825.200(d)(1) would apply. (Under this section, when an employer chooses to shift from one leave year to another, the employee is authorized to take advantage of whichever leave year is more beneficial.)

A commenter suggested that the regulations should authorize joint House employing offices to designate which one will be the "primary" employer responsible for fulfilling FMLA responsibilities.

Furthermore, as noted above, commenters argued that a uniform leave year is easier to understand, so that employees are less likely to lose their FMLA rights through inadvertence or otherwise, and that, if employing offices adopt different leave years, administration of the FMLA requirements would be problematic.

The Board recognizes that the use of inconsistent leave years may make implementation of FMLA provisions of the CAA more complicated, and might have some impact on employees who transfer from one employing office to another or who work independently for more than one employing office. However, where an employee is employed jointly by employing offices that ordinarily use different leave years, commenters suggested that the joint employers either (1) designate one employer whose leave year will apply, or (2) jointly designate an applicable leave year. Another commenter suggested that, where an employee transfers between being jointly employed and being employed by only one of the employing offices, the procedures under §825.200(d)(1) could apply. These approaches would not appear to raise difficulties, provided the employee's FMLA entitlement is not compromised.

In light of these considerations, the Board does not believe that there is good cause to modify the Secretary's regulations with respect to the possibility that different employing offices will apply different leave years.

C. Other drafting issues

Finally, in developing the regulations proposed in this notice, in addition to the policy issues discussed above, the Board considered the following drafting issues:

1. Worksite eligibility. Section 101(2)(B)(ii) of the FMLA denies eligibility to any employee at a worksite where the employer employs less than 50 employees if the total number of employees employed within a 75-mile radius is less than 50. This criterion is a "size limitation" that, under section 225(f)(2) of the CAA, does not apply under the CAA. Accordingly, a number of regulatory provisions relating to this worksite eligibility criterion are not included in the regulations proposed by the Board. These omitted provisions include some or all of 29 C.F.R. §§825.105, 825.106(d), 825.110(a)(3), 825.110(f), 825.111, 825.206(c), 825.220(b)(1).

2. State and local law. The Department of Labor's regulations contain numerous provisions that address or touch upon the relationship between the FMLA and State or local law addressing leave or related matters. Since State and local law do not govern the employment relationship of covered employees and employing offices, these references to State and local law are omitted from the regulations being proposed by the Board. These omitted provisions include some or all of 29 C.F.R. §§825.200(d)(2), 825.201, 825.202(c), 825.204(b), 825.206(c), 825.701, and other sections.

3. Consideration of periods before the CAA effective date. The CAA takes effect on January 23, 1996. Under the Secretary's regulations implementing FMLA, employment with a covered employer before the effective date of the FMLA (August 5, 1993) is to be counted in determining whether an employee is "eligible" for FMLA leave. 29 C.F.R. §825.102. Similarly, the Secretary's regulations provide that leave starting on and after the FMLA effective date is considered FMLA leave which can be counted against an employee's 12-week entitlement. Such leave is qualifying under the FMLA even if the event occasioning the need for leave (e.g., the birth of a child) occurred before the effective date. 29 C.F.R. §825.103. See also 29 C.F.R. §825.200(b)(4).

The proposed regulations adopt the Secretary's general approach regarding the effective date; however, the applicable effective dates for application of the rights and protections of the FMLA in the Congress are somewhat more complicated. The CAA, and its application of the rights and protections of the FMLA, takes effect on January 23, 1996. Section 202(e)(1) of the CAA. However, certain rights and protections of the FMLA applied to employees of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and certain employees of congressional instrumentalities under Title V of the FMLA, effective August 5, 1993. The proposed regulations harmonize these preexisting applications of FMLA rights and protections with application of those rights and protections under the CAA.

The proposed regulations state that an employing office must consider periods of employment before January 23, 1996 when determining if its employees are eligible for leave. Similarly, a covered employee is entitled to FMLA leave if the reason for the leave is qualifying under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA, even if the event occasioning the leave (such as the birth of a child) occurred before January 23, 1996. However, leave taken before January 23, 1996, if it was FMLA-qualifying leave taken from an employing office subject to Title V of the FMLA, may be counted against the employee's leave entitlement after January 23, 1996. See §§825.102(b), 825.103, 825.200(b)(4).

The Board is cognizant of the principle that agencies may not promulgate regulations which have a retroactive effect unless expressly authorized by the enabling statute. Landgraf v. USI Film Products, 114 S.Ct. 1483, 1496 (1994). However, the Board concludes that consideration of periods of employment and events prior to the effective date of the CAA under the sections of the proposed regulations cited above does not constitute a retroactive application of the CAA. Unlike retroactive regulations, which "impair rights a party possessed when he acted, increase a party's liability for past conduct, or impose new duties with respect to transactions already completed," 114 S.Ct. 1505, these regulations simply "alter the future legal effect of past transactions—so-called secondary retroactivity," which does not violate the presumption against retroactivity. 114 S.Ct. at 1526 n.3 (Scalia, J. concurring). The regulations do not penalize an employing office for a refusal to grant an FMLA leave prior to the effective date of the CAA. They only state that employment and events occurring prior to the effective date of the CAA may be considered in determining the employer's obligation to honor a leave request on or after the effective date.

4. Minimally paid leave in the Senate. A commenter explained that the Senate currently provides minimally paid leave rather than unpaid leave under title V of the FMLA. The Secretary's regulations authorize providing greater benefits or pay than is required under the FMLA, and providing greater benefits and pay does not prevent the leave from being considered FMLA-qualifying leave. See section 825.700. Accordingly, the Board does not believe that the situation of minimally paid leave by the Senate needs to be addressed in the proposed regulations.

5. Local educational agencies and private elementary and secondary schools. Section 108 of the FMLA provides special rules for local educational agencies and for private elementary and secondary schools. Section 108 was not expressly referenced in section 202 of the CAA. However, the Board believes that section 108 establishes exemptions from certain requirements of those FMLA sections that are referenced in section 202. The provisions of section 108 therefore apply pursuant to section 225(f)(1) of the CAA. Accordingly, regulations implementing section 108 are included in the regulations being proposed by the Board.

6. Notices other than by posting of notices. As discussed above, the Board is not proposing regulations on the posting of notices because the statutory authority in the FMLA requiring notice posting was not incorporated into the CAA. However, the Board is proposing to adopt several regulations, based on the Secretary's regulations, that require both employing office and employees to provide notices to each other. The Board is proposing to adopt these notification requirements because they are based on regulations that the Secretary promulgated to implement section 101 through 105 of the FMLA, which are incorporated into the CAA.

For example, section 103(a) of the FMLA authorizes the employer to require that a request for leave be supported by a medical certification. This requirement is implemented by section 825.305 of the Secretary's regulations, which provides for the employer to give notice of any such requirement. Another example is FMLA section 104(a)(4), which authorizes an employer to have a uniformly applied "practice or policy" that requires employees to provide certification of fitness for duty upon returning from leave. The Secretary's regulations at section 825.310(e) require that, as part of a notice given to each employee who advises the employer of need for FMLA leave, the employer must advise the employee if a fitness-for-duty certification will be required. Furthermore, this section requires that, if the employer has an employee handbook, the employer must include in the handbook an explanation of the employer's general policy regarding any requirement for fitness-for-duty certification.

Section 825.301 of the Secretary's regulations requires the employer to provide a number of these notices in two consolidated formats. Under paragraph (b), the employer must provide a notice to each employee who informs the employer of need to take FMLA leave. This notice must inform the employee of whether the employee designates the leave as qualifying for FMLA leave, whether the employer requires certification of a health care provider, and numerous other matters. Paragraph (a) requires the employer to provide information on FMLA rights and responsibilities, together with a statement of the employer's policies regarding FMLA, as part of the employee handbook, if any. If there is no such handbook, the employer must include this information with the notice provided to employees who give notice that they need FMLA leave.

A Senate commenter suggested that paragraph (b) should not be adopted by the Board because there is no requirement in the FMLA, as incorporated in the CAA, for the employer to provide such notice. However, the Board believes that these notification requirements implement the general rights and protections of sections 101 through 105, which are incorporated in the CAA. The Board is not aware of good cause why these requirements should be excluded from the regulations under the CAA.

7. Medical and other benefits. In §825.209(a), in the definition of group health plans, the proposed regulations include an added reference to the Federal Employee Health Benefits Program, which applies to many covered employees. The Secretary's regulations identified certain laws governing benefits that may impose requirements above and beyond those of FMLA. However, other benefit requirements apply to covered employees and employing offices under federal statute and under rules and practices of the House, Senate, and Congressional instrumentalities. The Board sees no need to conform the FMLA regulations to the various laws and rules that govern employee benefits. Instead, the Board proposes to add to the regulations an explicit recognition that there may be other applicable laws. E.g., proposed §§ 825.209(f), 825.309(b). However, covered employees and employing offices must understand that these regulations do not set forth all applicable requirements regarding benefits for covered employees on leave. Other sources must be consulted to determine applicable laws and rules other than those applied by the CAA. The Board is not aware of any way in which laws or rules applicable to covered employees may interfere with the power of employing offices to fully comply with the requirements of the FMLA.

Furthermore, a commenter suggested that certain regulatory provisions regarding payment and reimbursement of insurance premiums should refer to the Senate as well as, or instead of, to the employing office. The Board understands that such financial transactions are not undertaken by Senate employing offices directly. This reality is briefly acknowledged in an introductory explanatory provision, at § 825.100(b). However, the CAA makes the employing office responsible for assuring that all requirements of the FMLA, as applied by the CAA, are complied with. For this reason, the disbursing or other administrative office of the Senate may be viewed as functioning as an agent for the employing office, and the Board does not believe that the regulatory requirements need to be modified to refer to the Senate directly.

Regarding another of the Secretary's regulations, the commenter suggested that a reference to "the insurer" should be deleted and replaced with a reference to the Senate. The Board recognizes that, in some situations, the Senate may serve as the intermediary between the employee and the insurer. In such circumstances, the employee would make arrangements with the insurer by means of making arrangements with the Senate. Accordingly, the Board does not believe that this suggested change is necessary.

The proposed regulations also omit, as inapplicable, a section on multi-employer health plans (§ 825.211) and a reference to the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (ERISA) (in § 825.215(d)).

8. Charging leave taken from a prior employing office against the employee's FMLA entitlement. A commenter urged that the Board's regulations should make it clear that, even when an employee transfers from one employing office to another, the employee does not become entitled to more than 12 weeks of leave in the applicable 12-month period.

To clarify this point, the Board proposes to amend the regulation that allows an employer to count an employee's FMLA leave against the employee's remaining 12-week FMLA entitlement. The existing Labor Department regulations implicitly assume that an employer may designate leave as FMLA leave and then count it against the employee's remaining entitlement. However, the regulations do not address the situation where FMLA leave taken from one employing office is counted by a subsequent employing office against the employee's total FMLA leave entitlement. This situation is not addressed in the Department of Labor regulations, because, in the private sector, no leave taken from a prior employer is of any relevance to a subsequent employer. The employee loses FMLA eligibility for at least 12 months after changing jobs, so leave taken from the former employer will be over 12 months old by the time the employee is eligible for any leave from the new employer.

Under the CAA, however, the employee remains eligible notwithstanding the transfer to a new employing office. Therefore, if the new employing office were not able to count any FMLA leave taken in the preceding months against the employee's entitlement, a covered employee could gain multiple FMLA leave periods, in excess of the entitlement under the FMLA, simply by repeatedly transferring from one employing office to another. Accordingly, the Board believes that good cause exists to clarify section 825.208 so that leave designated as FMLA leave by one employing office may be counted against the leave entitlement by other employing offices.

9. Definition of "employer". The definition of "employer" under the FMLA is different and far more varied than the definition of "employer" that applies under section 202 of the CAA. Therefore, several provisions in 29 C.F.R. part 825 that define who is an "employer" have been omitted. These include § 825.104(a)-(b) (persons engaged in or affecting commerce), § 825.104.(c)(1) and (d) (regarding corporations and persons acting for employers), § 825.108 (regarding "public agencies"), § 825.109 (regarding Federal agencies). References to "public agencies", e.g., in section 825.209(a), and first part of § 825.207(i) (which addresses compensatory time off for State and local employees), were also omitted.

10. Business/financial terms. Part 825 of the Secretary's regulations contain a number of references to business-related concepts—e.g., "profit sharing", "business", "firm", "plant", "company," "stock option", "profit sharing", etc. These terms were omitted and, if the context so required, were sometimes replaced with appropriate corresponding terms such as "employing office".

11. Persons other than covered employees and employing offices. Section 202(a) of the CAA extends rights and protections only to covered employees. Therefore, certain provisions of the Secretary's regulations that would extend beyond these categories, have been omitted. For example, provisions that protect employees of contractors (§ 825.216(b)) and employees of temporary agencies and leasing agencies (§ 825.106) have been omitted because such employees cannot be "covered employees" as that term is defined in the CAA.

Furthermore, section 105 of the FMLA, which prohibits interference with FMLA rights and interference with FMLA proceedings and inquiries, extends rights to persons who are not employees and extends prohibitions to persons who are not employers. The Secretary's regulations, at § 825.220, do likewise. To be consistent with the CAA, however, the proposed regulations have been modified to extend rights and protections only to covered employees, and to extend prohibitions only to employing offices.

12. Pre-existing collective bargaining agreements. Two provisions of the Secretary's regulations refer to collective bargaining agreements existing before the effective date of the FMLA. Sections 825.102(b), 825.700(c). Because collective bargaining agreements do not now exist within employing offices that are subject to these proposed regulations, these provisions have been omitted.

13. Determinations as to who is a health care provider. Section 101(6) of the FMLA defines "health care provider" as including, in addition to certain authorized doctors, "Any other person determined by the Secretary to be capable of providing health care services." This same requirement is incorporated into the Secretary's regulations as section 825.118(a). The Board does not believe that this provision for determinations by the Secretary should be adopted under the CAA, because this provision would authorize enforcement by the executive branch, which is not authorized under section 225(f)(3) of the CAA. The Board therefore proposes to modify this regulation to authorize the Office of Compliance to certify health care professionals.

However, the regulation would require the Office to follow any decisions by the Secretary granted to persons other than covered employees, absent good cause for the Office to conclude otherwise.

14. Enforcement procedures. Subpart D of the Secretary's regulations describes the enforcement mechanisms available under the FMLA. This has been replaced with a brief summary and cross-reference to the claims procedures available under the CAA.

15. Effect on other applicable law. Section 825.702 provides the Secretary's views about the interaction between FMLA and other applicable law. Because the nature of these laws' application, if any, under the CAA is not the same as their application discussed by the Secretary, certain language has been omitted from the section.

16. Definitions. In section 825.800, consistent with the changes discussed above, several definitions were omitted as inapplicable—e.g., Administrator, COBRA, Commerce, Person, Public Agency, State. Two were added—CAA and covered employee. And several were modified, including: eligible employee, employee, and employer.

D. Topics and organization of proposed regulations

The regulations being proposed in this notice are organized into subparts and sections that correspond to the subparts and sections promulgated by the Secretary at 29 C.F.R. Part 825. These regulations are divided into eight subparts:

Subpart A describes what the FMLA is and sets forth to whom it applies under the CAA.

Subpart B states what leave an employee is entitled to take under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA.

Subpart C sets forth notice requirements, and states what information an employing office may require of an employee.

Subpart D refers to applicable enforcement mechanisms.

Subpart E is reserved.

Subpart F establishes special rules that apply to employees of schools.

Subpart G sets forth how other laws, employing office practices, and collective bargaining agreements affect employee rights under FMLA as made applicable by the CAA.

Subpart H sets forth applicable definitions. Appendices included in the proposed regulations also provide certain forms and prototype notices.

E. Method of approval

The Board recommends that (1) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate be approved by the Senate by resolution; (2) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives be approved by the House of Representatives by resolution; and (3) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to other covered employees and employing offices be approved by the Congress by concurrent resolution.

Signed at Washington, D.C. on this 21st day of November, 1995.

GLEN D. NAGER,
Chair of the Board,
Office of Compliance.

§ 825.1 Purpose and scope

(a) Section 202 of the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA), 2 U.S.C. § 1312, applies the rights and protections of sections 101 through 105 of the Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (FMLA), 29 U.S.C. 2611-2615, to certain employees of the legislative branch.

(b) This part 825 contains substantive regulations that the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance has adopted pursuant to section 202 of the CAA. Section 202 provides that these substantive regulations should generally be the same as the substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor to implement sections 101 through 105 of the FMLA. (The CAA allows these regulations to differ from the regulations promulgated by the Secretary only insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under section 202 of the CAA.) The regulations promulgated by the Secretary to implement the FMLA are found at 29 C.F.R. Part 825.

(c) Under the CAA, the Board issues three separate bodies of regulations to implement the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA—one applying to the Senate and its employees, one applying to the House of Representatives and its employees, and one applying to other covered employees and employing offices. This part 825 applies to [the Senate and employees of the Senate/the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives/the following employing offices and their employees: (1) the Capitol Guide Service, (2) the Capitol Police, (3) the Congressional Budget Office, (4) the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, (5) the Office of the Attending Physician, (6) the Office of Compliance, and (7) the Office of Technology Assessment].

SUBPART A—WHAT IS THE FAMILY AND MEDICAL LEAVE ACT, AND TO WHOM DOES IT APPLY UNDER THE CONGRESSIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY ACT?

§ 825.100 What is the Family and Medical Leave Act?

(a) The Family and Medical Leave Act of 1993 (FMLA), as made applicable by the Congressional Accountability Act (CAA), allows “eligible” employees of an employing office to take job-protected, unpaid leave, or to substitute appropriate paid leave if the employee has earned or accrued it, for up to a total of 12 workweeks in any 12 months because of the birth of a child and to care for the newborn child, because of the placement of a child with the employee for adoption or foster care, because the employee is needed to care for a family member (child, spouse, or parent) with a serious health condition, or because the employee’s own serious health condition makes the employee unable to perform the functions of his or her job (see § 825.306(b)(4)). In certain cases, this leave may be taken on an intermittent basis rather than all at once, or the employee may work a part-time schedule.

(b) An employee on FMLA leave is also entitled to have health benefits maintained while on leave as if the employee had continued to work instead of taking the leave. If an employee was paying all or part of the premium payments prior to leave, the employee would continue to pay his or her share during the leave period. The employing office or a disbursing or other financial office of the House of Representatives or the Senate may recover its share only if the employee does not return to work for a reason other than the serious health condition of the employee or the employee’s immediate family member, or another reason beyond the employee’s control.

(c) An employee generally has a right to return to the same position or an equivalent position with equivalent pay, benefits and working conditions at the conclusion of the leave. The taking of FMLA leave cannot result in the loss of any benefit that accrued prior to the start of the leave.

(d) The employing office has a right to 30 days advance notice from the employee where practicable. In addition, the employing office may require an employee to submit certification from a health care provider to substantiate that the leave is due to the serious health condition of the employee or the employee’s immediate family member. Failure to comply with these requirements may result in a delay in the start of FMLA leave. Pursuant to a uniformly applied policy, the employing office may also require that an employee present a certification of fitness to return to work when the absence was caused by the employee’s serious health condition (see § 825.311(c)). The employing office may delay restoring the employee to employment without such certificate relating to the health condition which caused the employee’s absence.

§ 825.101 What is the purpose of the FMLA?

(a) FMLA is intended to allow employees to balance their work and family life by taking reasonable unpaid leave for medical reasons, for the birth or adoption of a child, and for the care of a child, spouse, or parent who has a serious health condition. The FMLA is intended to balance the demands of the workplace with the needs of families, to promote the stability and economic security of families, and to promote national interests in preserving family integrity. It was intended that the FMLA accomplish these purposes in a manner that accommodates the legitimate interests of employers, and in a manner consistent with the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment in minimizing the potential for employment discrimination on the basis of sex, while promoting equal employment opportunity for men and women.

(b) The enactment of FMLA was predicated on two fundamental concerns—the needs of the American workforce, and the development of high-performance organizations. Increasingly, America’s children and elderly are dependent upon family members who must spend long hours at work. When a family emergency arises, requiring workers to attend to seriously-ill children or parents, or to newly-born or adopted infants, or even to their own serious illness, workers need reassurance that they will not be asked to choose between continuing their employment, and meeting their personal and family obligations or tending to vital needs at home.

(c) The FMLA is both intended and expected to benefit employers as well as their employees. A direct correlation exists between stability in the family and productivity in the workplace. FMLA will encourage the development of high-performance organizations. When workers can count on durable links to their workplace they are able to make their own full commitments to their jobs. The record of hearings on family and medical leave indicate the powerful productive advantages of stable workplace relationships, and the comparatively small costs of guaranteeing that those relationships will not be dissolved while workers attend to pressing family health obligations or their own serious illness.

§ 825.102 When are the FMLA and the CAA effective for the Senate and its employees?

(a) The rights and protection of sections 101 through 105 of the FMLA have applied to certain Senate employees and certain employing offices of the Senate since August 5, 1993 (see section 501 of FMLA). The provisions of the CAA that apply the rights and protections of the FMLA will become effective on January 23, 1996.

§ 825.102 When are the FMLA and the CAA effective for the House of Representatives and its employees?

(a) The rights and protection of sections 101 through 105 of the FMLA have applied to any employee in an employment position and any employment authority of the House of Representatives since August 5, 1993 (see section 502 of FMLA). The provisions of the CAA that apply the rights and protections of the FMLA will become effective for the House of Representatives and its employees on January 23, 1996.

§ 825.102 When are the FMLA and the CAA effective for the employing offices covered by these regulations and their employees?

(a) The rights and protections of sections 101 through 105 of the FMLA already apply to certain employing offices covered by these regulations and certain employees of these employing offices (see, e.g., Title V of the FMLA, sections 501 and 502). The provisions of the CAA that apply the rights and protections of the FMLA to the employing offices covered by these regulations and their employees will become effective on January 23, 1996.]

(b) The period prior to the effective date of the application of FMLA rights and protections under the CAA must be considered in determining employee eligibility.

§ 825.103 How does the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, affect leave in progress on, or taken before, the effective date of the CAA?

(a) An eligible employee’s right to take FMLA leave began on the date that the rights and protections of the FMLA first went into effect for the employing office and employee (see § 825.102(a)). Any leave taken prior to the date on which the rights and protections of the FMLA first became effective for the employing office from which the leave was taken may not be counted for purposes of the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. If leave qualifying as FMLA leave was underway prior to the effective date of the FMLA for the employing office from which the leave was taken and continued after the FMLA’s effective date for that office, only that portion of leave taken on or after the FMLA’s effective date may be counted against the employee’s leave entitlement under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA.

(b) If an employing office-approved leave is underway when the application of the FMLA by the CAA takes effect, no further notice would be required of the employee unless the employee requests an extension of the leave. For leave which commenced on the effective date or shortly thereafter, such notice must have been given which was practicable, considering the foreseeability of the need for leave and the effective date.

(c) Starting on January 23, 1996, an employee is entitled to FMLA leave under these regulations if the reason for the leave is qualifying under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, even if the event occasioning the need for leave (e.g., the birth of a child) occurred before such date (so long as any other requirements are satisfied).

§ 825.104 What employing offices are covered by these regulations?

(a) As used in the CAA, the term “employing office” means—

(1) the personal office of a Member of the House of Representatives or of a Senator;

(2) a committee of the House of Representatives or the Senate or a joint committee;

(3) any other office headed by a person with the final authority to appoint, hire, discharge, and set the terms, conditions, or privileges of the employment of an employee of the House of Representatives or the Senate; or

¹This bracketed language contains three versions of regulatory language separated by slashes: the version for the Senate and its employees, the version for the House of Representatives and its employees, and the version for Congressional instrumentalities and their employees, respectively.

(4) the Capitol Guide Board, the Capitol Police Board, the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of the Attending Physician, the Office of Compliance, and the Office of Technology Assessment.

(b) The employing offices covered by the regulations in this part are:

(1) the personal office of any Senator,

(2) any committee of the Senate, and

(3) any joint committee that employs any employee of the Senate.

(1) the personal office of any Member of the House of Representatives,

(2) any committee of the House of Representatives, and

(3) any joint committee that employs any employee of the House of Representatives.

the offices listed in paragraph (a)(4) of this section.]

(c) Separate entities will be deemed to be parts of a single employer for purposes of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, if they meet the "integrated employer" test. A determination of whether or not separate entities are an integrated employer is not determined by the application of any single criterion, but rather the entire relationship is to be reviewed in its totality. Factors considered in determining whether two or more entities are an integrated employer include: (i) Common management; (ii) Interrelation between operations; (iii) Centralized control of labor relations; and (iv) Degree of common financial control.

§ 825.105 [Reserved.]

§ 825.106 How is "joint employment" treated under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA?

(a) Where two or more employing offices exercise some control over the work or working conditions of the employee, the employing offices may be joint employers under FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA. Where the employee performs work which simultaneously benefits two or more employing offices, or works for two or more employing offices at different times during the workweek, a joint employment relationship generally will be considered to exist in situations such as:

(1) Where there is an arrangement between employing offices to share an employee's services or to interchange employees;

(2) Where one employing office acts directly or indirectly in the interest of the other employing office in relation to the employee; or

(3) Where the employing offices are not completely disassociated with respect to the employee's employment and may be deemed to share control of the employee, directly or indirectly, because one employing office controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the other employing office.

(b) A determination of whether or not a joint employment relationship exists is not determined by the application of any single criterion, but rather the entire relationship is to be viewed in its totality. For example, joint employment will ordinarily be found to exist when:

(1) an employee, who is employed by an employing office other than the personal office of a Member of the House of Representatives or of a Senator, is under the actual direction and control of the Member of the House of Representatives or Senator;

(2) two or more employing offices employ an individual to work on common issues or other matters for both or all of them; or

(3) an employing office supplies an employee on detail to another employing office.

(c)(1) In joint employment relationships, only the employing office that is the primary employer, if any, is responsible for giving required notices to its employees, providing FMLA leave, and maintenance of health benefits. Factors considered in determining which employing office is the "primary" employer include authority/responsibility to hire and fire, assign/place the employee, make payroll, and provide employment benefits.

(2) When an employee is jointly employed by more than one employing office, the employing offices may fulfill their responsibilities under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, by arranging for these responsibilities to be performed by any one employing office or by a centralized payroll office. However, any such arrangement does not reduce any responsibilities of any of the employing offices if any of their responsibilities under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA is not fulfilled.

(d) [Reserved.]

(e) Job restoration is the primary responsibility of the employing office that is the primary employer. The employing office that is the secondary employer is, however, responsible for accepting the employee returning from FMLA leave. An employing office that is the secondary employer is also responsible for compliance with the prohibited acts provisions with respect to its employees. The prohibited acts include prohibitions against interfering with an employee's attempt to exercise rights under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA, or discharging or discriminating against an employee for opposing a practice which is unlawful under FMLA. An employing office that is the secondary employer will be responsible for compliance with all of the provisions of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, with respect to its regular, permanent workforce.

§ 825.107 [Reserved.]

§ 825.109 [Reserved.]

§ 825.110 Which employees are "eligible" to take FMLA leave under these regulations?

(a) An employee [of the Senate / of the House of Representatives / described in § 825.1(c)] is an "eligible employee" under these regulations if the employee has been employed in any employing office for 12 months and for at least 1,250 hours of employment during the previous 12 months.

(b) The 12 months an employee must have been employed by any employing office need not be consecutive months. If an employee worked for two or more employing offices sequentially, the time worked will be aggregated to determine whether it equals 12 months. If an employee is maintained on the payroll for any part of a week, including any periods of paid or unpaid leave (sick, vacation) during which other benefits or compensation are provided by the employer (e.g., workers' compensation, group health plan benefits, etc.), the week counts as a week of employment. For purposes of determining whether intermittent/occasional/casual employment qualifies as "at least 12 months," 52 weeks is deemed to be equal to 12 months.

(c) If an employee was employed by two or more employing offices, either sequentially or concurrently, the hours of service will be aggregated to determine whether the minimum of 1,250 hours has been reached. Whether an employee has worked the minimum 1,250 hours of service is determined according to the principles established under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) for determining compensable hours of work (see 29 C.F.R. Part 785). The determining factor is the number of hours an employee has worked for one or more employing offices. The determination is not limited by methods of record-keeping, or by compensation agreements that do not accurately reflect all of the hours an employee has worked for or been in service to the employing office. Any accurate accounting of actual hours worked may be used. For this purpose, full-time teachers (see § 825.800 for definition) of an elementary or secondary school system, or institution of higher education, or other educational establishment or institution are deemed to meet the 1,250 hour test. An employing office must be able to clearly demonstrate that such an employee did not work 1,250 hours during the previous 12 months in order to claim that the employee is not "eligible" for FMLA leave.

(d) The determinations of whether an employee has worked for any employing office for at least 1,250 hours in the past 12 months and has been employed by any employing office for a total of at least 12 months must be made as of the date leave commences. If an employee notifies the employing office of need for FMLA leave before the employee meets these eligibility criteria, the employing office must either confirm the employee's eligibility based upon a projection that the employee will be eligible on the date leave would commence or must advise the employee when the eligibility requirement is met. If the employing office confirms eligibility at the time the notice for leave is received, the employing office may not subsequently challenge the employee's eligibility. In the latter case, if the employing office does not advise the employee whether the employee is eligible as soon as practicable (i.e., two business days absent extenuating circumstances) after the date employee eligibility is determined, the employee will have satisfied the notice requirements and the notice of leave is considered current and outstanding until the employing office does advise. If the employing office fails to advise the employee whether the employee is eligible prior to the date the requested leave is to commence, the employee will be deemed eligible. The employing office may not, then, deny the leave. Where the employee does not give notice of the need for leave more than two business days prior to commencing leave, the employee will be deemed to be eligible if the employing office fails to advise the employee that the employee is not eligible within two business days of receiving the employee's notice.

(e) The period prior to the effective date of the application of FMLA rights and protections under the CAA must be considered in determining employee's eligibility.

(f) [Reserved.]

§ 825.111 [Reserved.]

§ 825.112 Under what kinds of circumstances are employing offices required to grant family or medical leave?

(a) Employing offices are required to grant leave to eligible employees:

(1) For birth of a son or daughter, and to care for the newborn child;

(2) For placement with the employee of a son or daughter for adoption or foster care;

(3) To care for the employee's spouse, son, daughter, or parent with a serious health condition; and

(4) Because of a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform the functions of the employee's job.

(b) The right to take leave under FMLA as made applicable by the CAA applies equally to male and female employees. A father, as well as a mother, can take family leave for the birth, placement for adoption or foster care of a child.

(c) Circumstances may require that FMLA leave begin before the actual date of birth of a child. An expectant mother may take FMLA leave pursuant to paragraph (a)(4) of this section before the birth of the child for prenatal care or if her condition makes her unable to work.

(d) Employing offices are required to grant FMLA leave pursuant to paragraph (a)(2) of this section before the actual placement or adoption of a child if an absence from work is required for the placement for adoption or foster care to proceed. For example, the employee may be required to attend counseling sessions, appear in court, consult with his or her attorney or the doctor(s) representing the birth parent, or submit to a physical examination. The source of an adopted child (e.g., whether from a licensed placement agency or otherwise) is not a factor in determining eligibility for leave for this purpose.

(e) Foster care is 24-hour care for children in substitution for, and away from, their parents or guardian. Such placement is made by or with the agreement of the State as a result of a voluntary agreement between the parent or guardian that the child be removed from the home, or pursuant to a judicial determination of the necessity for foster care, and involves agreement between the State and foster family that the foster family will take care of the child. Although foster care may be with relatives of the child, State action is involved in the removal of the child from parental custody.

(f) In situations where the employer/employee relationship has been interrupted, such as an employee who has been on layoff, the employee must be recalled or otherwise be re-employed before being eligible for FMLA leave. Under such circumstances, an eligible employee is immediately entitled to further FMLA leave for a qualifying reason.

(g) FMLA leave is available for treatment for substance abuse provided the conditions of §825.114 are met. However, treatment for substance abuse does not prevent an employing office from taking employment action against an employee. The employing office may not take action against the employee because the employee has exercised his or her right to take FMLA leave for treatment. However, if the employing office has an established policy, applied in a non-discriminatory manner that has been communicated to all employees, that provides under certain circumstances an employee may be terminated for substance abuse, pursuant to that policy the employee may be terminated whether or not the employee is presently taking FMLA leave. An employee may also take FMLA leave to care for an immediate family member who is receiving treatment for substance abuse. The employing office may not take action against an employee who is providing care for an immediate family member receiving treatment for substance abuse.

§825.113 What do "spouse," "parent," and "son or daughter" mean for purposes of an employee qualifying to take FMLA leave?

(a) Spouse means a husband or wife as defined or recognized under State law for purposes of marriage in the State where the employee resides, including common law marriage in States where it is recognized.

(b) Parent means a biological parent or an individual who stands or stood in loco parentis to an employee when the employee was a son or daughter as defined in (c) below. This term does not include parents "in law".

(c) Son or daughter means a biological, adopted, or foster child, a stepchild, a legal ward, or a child of a person standing in loco parentis, who is either under age 18, or age 18 or older and "incapable of self-care because of a mental or physical disability."

(1) "Incapable of self-care" means that the individual requires active assistance or supervision to provide daily self-care in three or more of the "activities of daily living" (ADLs) or "instrumental activities of daily living" (IADLs). Activities of daily living include adaptive activities such as caring appropriately for one's grooming and hygiene, bathing, dressing and eating. Instrumental activities of daily living include cooking, cleaning, shopping, taking public transportation, paying bills, maintaining a residence, using telephones and directories, using a post office, etc.

(2) "Physical or mental disability" means a physical or mental impairment that substantially limits one or more of the major life activities of an individual. Regulations at 29 C.F.R. §1630.2(h), (i), and (j), issued by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), 42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq. define these terms.

(3) Persons who are "in loco parentis" include those with day-to-day responsibilities to care for and financially support a child or, in the case of an employee, who had such responsibility for the employee when the employee was a child. A biological or legal relationship is not necessary.

(d) For purposes of confirmation of family relationship, the employing office may require the employee giving notice of the need for leave to provide reasonable documentation or statement of family relationship. This documentation may take the form of a simple statement from the employee, or a child's birth certificate, a court document, etc. The employing office is entitled to examine documentation such as a birth certificate, etc., but the employee is entitled to the return of the official document submitted for this purpose.

§825.114 What is a "serious health condition" entitling an employee to FMLA leave?

(a) For purposes of FMLA, "serious health condition" entitling an employee to FMLA leave means an illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves:

(1) Inpatient care (i.e., an overnight stay) in a hospital, hospice, or residential medical care facility, including any period of incapacity (for purposes of this section, defined to mean inability to work, attend school or perform other regular daily activities due to the serious health condition, treatment therefor, or recovery therefrom), or any subsequent treatment in connection with such inpatient care; or

(2) Continuing treatment by a health care provider. A serious health condition involving continuing treatment by a health care provider includes any one or more of the following:

(i) A period of incapacity (i.e., inability to work, attend school or perform other regular daily activities due to the serious health condition, treatment therefor, or recovery therefrom) of more than three consecutive calendar days, and any subsequent treatment or period of incapacity relating to the same condition, that also involves:

(A) Treatment two or more times by a health care provider, by a nurse or physician's assistant under direct supervision of a health care provider, or by a provider of health care services (e.g., physical therapist) under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider; or

(B) Treatment by a health care provider on at least one occasion which results in a regimen of continuing treatment under the supervision of the health care provider.

(ii) Any period of incapacity due to pregnancy, or for prenatal care.

(iii) Any period of incapacity or treatment for such incapacity due to a chronic serious health condition. A chronic serious health condition is one which:

(A) Requires periodic visits for treatment by a health care provider, or by a nurse or physician's assistant under direct supervision of a health care provider;

(B) Continues over an extended period of time (including recurring episodes of a single underlying condition); and

(C) May cause episodic rather than a continuing period of incapacity (e.g., asthma, diabetes, epilepsy, etc.).

(iv) A period of incapacity which is permanent or long-term due to a condition for which treatment may not be effective. The employee or family member must be under the continuing supervision of, but need not be receiving active treatment by, a health care provider. Examples include Alzheimer's, a severe stroke, or the terminal stages of a disease.

(v) Any period of absence to receive multiple treatments (including any period of recovery therefrom) by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider, either for restorative surgery after an accident or other injury, or for a condition that would likely result in a period of incapacity of more than three consecutive calendar days in the absence of medical intervention or treatment, such as cancer (chemotherapy, radiation, etc.), severe arthritis (physical therapy), kidney disease (dialysis).

(b) Treatment for purposes of paragraph (a) of this section includes (but is not limited to) examinations to determine if a serious health condition exists and evaluations of the condition. Treatment does not include routine physical examinations, eye examinations, or dental examinations. Under paragraph (a)(2)(i)(B), a regimen of continuing treatment includes, for example, a course of prescription medication (e.g., an antibiotic) or therapy requiring special equipment to resolve or alleviate the health condition (e.g., oxygen). A regimen of continuing treatment that includes the taking of over-the-counter medications such as aspirin, antihistamines, or salves; or bed-rest, drinking fluids, exercise, and other similar activities that can be initiated without a visit to a health care provider, is not, by itself, sufficient to constitute a regimen of continuing treatment for purposes of FMLA leave.

(c) Conditions for which cosmetic treatments are administered (such as most treatments for acne or plastic surgery) are not "serious health conditions" unless inpatient hospital care is required or unless complications develop. Ordinarily, unless complications arise, the common cold, the flu, ear aches, upset stomach, minor ulcers, headaches other than migraine, routine dental or orthodontia problems, periodontal disease, etc., are examples of conditions that do not meet the definition of a serious health condition and do not qualify for FMLA leave. Restorative dental or plastic surgery after an injury or removal of cancerous growths are serious health conditions provided all the other conditions of this regulation are met. Mental illness resulting from stress or allergies may be serious health conditions, but only if all the conditions of this section are met.

(d) Substance abuse may be a serious health condition if the conditions of this section are met. However, FMLA leave may only be taken for treatment for substance abuse by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services on referral by a health care provider. On the other hand, absence because of the employee's use of the substance, rather than for treatment, does not qualify for FMLA leave.

(e) Absences attributable to incapacity under paragraphs (a)(2) (ii) or (iii) qualify for FMLA leave even though the employee or the immediate family member does not receive treatment from a health care provider during the absence, and even if the absence does not last more than three days. For example, an employee with asthma may be unable to report for work due to the onset of an asthma attack or because the employee's health care provider has advised the employee to stay home when the pollen count exceeds a certain level. An employee who is pregnant may be unable to report to work because of severe morning sickness.

§ 825.115 What does it mean that “the employee is unable to perform the functions of the position of the employee”?

An employee is “unable to perform the functions of the position” where the health care provider finds that the employee is unable to work at all or is unable to perform any one of the essential functions of the employee’s position within the meaning of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), 42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq., and the regulations at 29 C.F.R. § 1630.2(n). An employee who must be absent from work to receive medical treatment for a serious health condition is considered to be unable to perform the essential functions of the position during the absence for treatment. An employing office has the option, in requiring certification from a health care provider, to provide a statement of the essential functions of the employee’s position for the health care provider to review. For purposes of FMLA, the essential functions of the employee’s position are to be determined with reference to the position the employee held at the time notice is given or leave commenced, whichever is earlier.

§ 825.116 What does it mean that an employee is “needed to care for” a family member?

(a) The medical certification provision that an employee is “needed to care for” a family member encompasses both physical and psychological care. It includes situations where, for example, because of a serious health condition, the family member is unable to care for his or her own basic medical, hygienic, or nutritional needs or safety, or is unable to transport himself or herself to the doctor, etc. The term also includes providing psychological comfort and reassurance which would be beneficial to a child, spouse or parent with a serious health condition who is receiving inpatient or home care.

(b) The term also includes situations where the employee may be needed to fill in for others who are caring for the family member, or to make arrangements for changes in care, such as transfer to a nursing home.

(c) An employee’s intermittent leave or a reduced leave schedule necessary to care for a family member includes not only a situation where the family member’s condition itself is intermittent, but also where the employee is only needed intermittently—such as where other care is normally available, or care responsibilities are shared with another member of the family or a third party.

§ 825.117 For an employee seeking intermittent FMLA leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule, what is meant by “the medical necessity for” such leave?

For intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule, there must be a medical need for leave (as distinguished from voluntary treatments and procedures) and it must be that such medical need can be best accommodated through an intermittent or reduced leave schedule. The treatment regimen and other information described in the certification of a serious health condition (see § 825.306) meets the requirement for certification of the medical necessity of intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule. Employees needing intermittent FMLA leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule must attempt to schedule their leave so as not to disrupt the employing office’s operations. In addition, an employing office may assign an employee to an alternative position with equivalent pay and benefits that better accommodates the employee’s intermittent or reduced leave schedule.

§ 825.118 What is a “health care provider”?

(a)(1) The term “health care provider” means:

(i) A doctor of medicine or osteopathy who is authorized to practice medicine or surgery (as appropriate) by the State in which the doctor practices; or

(ii) Any other person determined by the Office of Compliance to be capable of providing health care services.

(2) In making a determination referred to in subparagraph (1)(ii), and absent good cause shown to do otherwise, the Office of Compliance will follow any determination made by the Secretary of Labor (under section 101(6)(B) of the FMLA) that a person is capable of providing health care services, provided the Secretary’s determination was not made at the request of a person who was then a covered employee.

(b) Others “capable of providing health care services” include only:

(1) Podiatrists, dentists, clinical psychologists, optometrists, and chiropractors (limited to treatment consisting of manual manipulation of the spine to correct a subluxation as demonstrated by X-ray to exist) authorized to practice in the State and performing within the scope of their practice as defined under State law;

(2) Nurse practitioners, nurse-midwives and clinical social workers who are authorized to practice under State law and who are performing within the scope of their practice as defined under State law;

(3) Christian Science practitioners listed with the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston, Massachusetts. Where an employee or family member is receiving treatment from a Christian Science practitioner, an employee may not object to any requirement from an employing office that the employee or family member submit to examination (though not treatment) to obtain a second or third certification from a health care provider other than a Christian Science practitioner except as otherwise provided under applicable State or local law or collective bargaining agreement.

(4) Any health care provider from whom an employing office or the employing office’s group health plan’s benefits manager will accept certification of the existence of a serious health condition to substantiate a claim for benefits; and

(5) A health care provider listed above who practices in a country other than the United States, who is authorized to practice in accordance with the law of that country, and who is performing within the scope of his or her practice as defined under such law.

(c) The phrase “authorized to practice in the State” as used in this section means that the provider must be authorized to diagnose and treat physical or mental health conditions without supervision by a doctor or other health care provider.

SUBPART B—WHAT LEAVE IS AN EMPLOYEE ENTITLED TO TAKE UNDER THE FAMILY AND MEDICAL LEAVE ACT, AS MADE APPLICABLE BY THE CONGRESSIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY ACT?

§ 825.200 How much leave may an employee take?

(a) An eligible employee’s FMLA leave entitlement is limited to a total of 12 workweeks of leave during any 12-month period for any one, or more, of the following reasons:

(1) The birth of the employee’s son or daughter, and to care for the newborn child;

(2) The placement with the employee of a son or daughter for adoption or foster care, and to care for the newly placed child;

(3) To care for the employee’s spouse, son, daughter, or parent with a serious health condition; and,

(4) Because of a serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform one or more of the essential functions of his or her job.

(b) An employing office is permitted to choose any one of the following methods for determining the “12-month period” in which the 12 weeks of leave entitlement occurs:

(1) The calendar year;

(2) Any fixed 12-month “leave year,” such as a fiscal year, a year required by State law, or a year starting on an employee’s “anniversary” date;

(3) The 12-month period measured forward from the date any employee’s first FMLA leave begins; or,

(c) Under methods in paragraphs (b)(1) and (b)(2) of this section an employee would be entitled to up to 12 weeks of FMLA leave at any time in the fixed 12-month period selected. An employee could, therefore, take 12 weeks of leave at the end of the year and 12 weeks at the beginning of the following year. Under the method in paragraph (b)(3) of this section, an employee would be entitled to 12 weeks of leave during the year beginning on the first date FMLA leave is taken; the next 12-month period would begin the first time FMLA leave is taken after completion of any previous 12-month period. Under the method in paragraph (b)(4) of this section, the “rolling” 12-month period, each time an employee takes FMLA leave the remaining leave entitlement would be any balance of the 12 weeks which has not been used during the immediately preceding 12 months. For example, if an employee has taken eight weeks of leave during the past 12 months, an additional four weeks of leave could be taken. If an employee used four weeks beginning February 1, 1997, four weeks beginning June 1, 1997, and four weeks beginning December 1, 1997, the employee would not be entitled to any additional leave until February 1, 1998. However, beginning on February 1, 1998, the employee would be entitled to four weeks of leave, on June 1 the employee would be entitled to an additional four weeks, etc.

(d)(1) Employing offices will be allowed to choose any one of the alternatives in paragraph (b) of this section provided the alternative chosen is applied consistently and uniformly to all employees. An employing office wishing to change to another alternative is required to give at least 60 days notice to all employees, and the transition must take place in such a way that the employees retain the full benefit of 12 weeks of leave under whichever method affords the greatest benefit to the employee. Under no circumstances may a new method be implemented in order to avoid the CAA’s FMLA leave requirements.

(2) [Reserved.]

(e) If an employing office fails to select one of the options in paragraph (b) of this section for measuring the 12-month period, the option that provides the most beneficial outcome for the employee will be used. The employing office may subsequently select an option only by providing the 60-day notice to all employees of the option the employing office intends to implement. During the running of the 60-day period any other employee who needs FMLA leave may use the option providing the most beneficial outcome to that employee. At the conclusion of the 60-day period the employing office may implement the selected option.

(f) For purposes of determining the amount of leave used by an employee, the fact that a holiday may occur within the week taken as FMLA leave has no effect; the week is counted as a week of FMLA leave. However, if for some reason the employing office’s activity has temporarily ceased and employees generally are not expected to report for work for one or more weeks (e.g., a school closing two weeks for the Christmas/New Year holiday or the summer vacation or an employing office closing the office for repairs), the days the employing office's activities have ceased do not count against the employee's FMLA leave entitlement. Methods for determining an employee's 12-week leave entitlement are also described in §825.205.

§ 825.201 If leave is taken for the birth of a child, or for placement of a child for adoption or foster care, when must the leave be concluded?

An employee's entitlement to leave for a birth or placement for adoption or foster care expires at the end of the 12-month period beginning on the date of the birth or placement, unless the employing office permits leave to be taken for a longer period. Any such FMLA leave must be concluded within this one-year period.

§ 825.202 How much leave may a husband and wife take if they are employed by the same employing office?

(a) A husband and wife who are eligible for FMLA leave and are employed by the same employing office may be limited to a combined total of 12 weeks of leave during any 12-month period if the leave is taken:

- (1) for birth of the employee's son or daughter or to care for the child after birth;
- (2) for placement of a son or daughter with the employee for adoption or foster care, or to care for the child after placement; or
- (3) to care for the employee's parent with a serious health condition.

(b) This limitation on the total weeks of leave applies to leave taken for the reasons specified in paragraph (a) of this section as long as a husband and wife are employed by the "same employing office." It would apply, for example, even though the spouses are employed at two different worksites of an employing office. On the other hand, if one spouse is ineligible for FMLA leave, the other spouse would be entitled to a full 12 weeks of FMLA leave.

(c) Where the husband and wife both use a portion of the total 12-week FMLA leave entitlement for one of the purposes in paragraph (a) of this section, the husband and wife would each be entitled to the difference between the amount he or she has taken individually and 12 weeks for FMLA leave for a purpose other than those contained in paragraph (a) of this section. For example, if each spouse took 6 weeks of leave to care for a healthy, newborn child, each could use an additional 6 weeks due to his or her own serious health condition or to care for a child with a serious health condition.

§ 825.203 Does FMLA leave have to be taken all at once, or can it be taken in parts?

(a) FMLA leave may be taken "intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule" under certain circumstances. Intermittent leave is FMLA leave taken in separate blocks of time due to a single qualifying reason. A reduced leave schedule is a leave schedule that reduces an employee's usual number of working hours per workweek, or hours per workday. A reduced leave schedule is a change in the employee's schedule for a period of time, normally from full-time to part-time.

(b) When leave is taken after the birth or placement of a child for adoption or foster care, an employee may take leave intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule only if the employing office agrees. Such a schedule reduction might occur, for example, where an employee, with the employing office's agreement, works part-time after the birth of a child, or takes leave in several segments. The employing office's agreement is not required, however, for leave during which the mother has a serious health condition in connection with the birth of her child or if the newborn child has a serious health condition.

(c) Leave may be taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule when medically necessary for planned and/or unanticipated medical treatment of a related serious health condition by or under the supervision of a health care provider, or for recovery from treatment or recovery from a serious health condition. It may also be taken to provide care or psychological comfort to an immediate family member with a serious health condition.

(1) Intermittent leave may be taken for a serious health condition which requires treatment by a health care provider periodically, rather than for one continuous period of time, and may include leave of periods from an hour or more to several weeks. Examples of intermittent leave would include leave taken on an occasional basis for medical appointments, or leave taken several days at a time spread over a period of six months, such as for chemotherapy. A pregnant employee may take leave intermittently for prenatal examinations or for her own condition, such as for periods of severe morning sickness. An example of an employee taking leave on a reduced leave schedule is an employee who is recovering from a serious health condition and is not strong enough to work a full-time schedule.

(2) Intermittent or reduced schedule leave may be taken for absences where the employee or family member is incapacitated or unable to perform the essential functions of the position because of a chronic serious health condition even if he or she does not receive treatment by a health care provider.

(d) There is no limit on the size of an increment of leave when an employee takes intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule. However, an employing office may limit leave increments to the shortest period of time that the employing office's payroll system uses to account for absences or use of leave, provided it is one hour or less. For example, an employee might take two hours off for a medical appointment, or might work a reduced day of four hours over a period of several weeks while recuperating from an illness. An employee may not be required to take more FMLA leave than necessary to address the circumstance that precipitated the need for the leave, except as provided in §§825.601 and 825.602.

§ 825.204 May an employing office transfer an employee to an "alternative position" in order to accommodate intermittent leave or a reduced leave schedule?

(a) If an employee needs intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule that is foreseeable based on planned medical treatment for the employee or a family member, including during a period of recovery from a serious health condition, or if the employing office agrees to permit intermittent or reduced schedule leave for the birth of a child or for placement of a child for adoption or foster care, the employing office may require the employee to transfer temporarily, during the period the intermittent or reduced leave schedule is required, to an available alternative position for which the employee is qualified and which better accommodates recurring periods of leave than does the employee's regular position. See §825.601 for special rules applicable to instructional employees of schools.

(b) Transfer to an alternative position may require compliance with any applicable collective bargaining agreement, and federal law (such as the Americans with Disabilities Act). Transfer to an alternative position may include altering an existing job to better accommodate the employee's need for intermittent or reduced leave.

(c) The alternative position must have equivalent pay and benefits. An alternative position for these purposes does not have to have equivalent duties. The employing office may increase the pay and benefits of an existing alternative position, so as to make them equivalent to the pay and benefits of the employee's regular job. The employing office may also transfer the employee to a part-time job with the same hourly rate of pay and benefits, provided the employee is not required to take more leave than is medically necessary. For example, an employee desiring to take leave in increments of four hours per day could be transferred to a half-time job, or could remain in the employee's same job on a part-time schedule, paying the same hourly rate as the employee's previous job and enjoying the same benefits. The employing office may not eliminate benefits which otherwise would not be provided to part-time employees; however, an employing office may proportionately reduce benefits such as vacation leave where an employing office's normal practice is to base such benefits on the number of hours worked.

(d) An employing office may not transfer the employee to an alternative position in order to discourage the employee from taking leave or otherwise work a hardship on the employee. For example, a white collar employee may not be assigned to perform laborer's work; an employee working the day shift may not be reassigned to the graveyard shift; an employee working in the headquarters facility may not be reassigned to a branch a significant distance away from the employee's normal job location. Any such attempt on the part of the employing office to make such a transfer will be held to be contrary to the prohibited-acts provisions of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA.

(e) When an employee who is taking leave intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule and has been transferred to an alternative position no longer needs to continue on leave and is able to return to full-time work, the employee must be placed in the same or equivalent job as the job he/she left when the leave commenced. An employee may not be required to take more leave than necessary to address the circumstance that precipitated the need for leave.

§ 825.205 How does one determine the amount of leave used where an employee takes leave intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule?

(a) If an employee takes leave on an intermittent or reduced leave schedule, only the amount of leave actually taken may be counted toward the 12 weeks of leave to which an employee is entitled. For example, if an employee who normally works five days a week takes off one day, the employee would use 1/5 of a week of FMLA leave. Similarly, if a full-time employee who normally works 8-hour days works 4-hour days under a reduced leave schedule, the employee would use 1/2 week of FMLA leave each week.

(b) Where an employee normally works a part-time schedule or variable hours, the amount of leave to which an employee is entitled is determined on a pro rata or proportional basis by comparing the new schedule with the employee's normal schedule. For example, if an employee who normally works 30 hours per week works only 20 hours a week under a reduced leave schedule, the employee's ten hours of leave would constitute one-third of a week of FMLA leave for each week the employee works the reduced leave schedule.

(c) If an employing office has made a permanent or long-term change in the employee's schedule (for reasons other than FMLA, and prior to the notice of need for FMLA leave), the hours worked under the new schedule are to be used for making this calculation.

(d) If an employee's schedule varies from week to week, a weekly average of the hours worked over the 12 weeks prior to the beginning of the leave period would be used for calculating the employee's normal workweek.

§ 825.206 May an employing office deduct hourly amounts from an employee's salary, when providing unpaid leave under FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, without affecting the employee's qualification for exemption as an executive, administrative, or professional employee, or when utilizing the fluctuating workweek method for payment of overtime, under the Fair Labor Standards Act?

(a) Leave taken under FMLA as made applicable by the CAA may be unpaid. If an employee is otherwise exempt from minimum wage and overtime requirements of the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) as a salaried executive, administrative, or professional employee under regulations issued by the Board at [CAA regulations based on 29 CFR Part 541], providing unpaid FMLA-qualifying leave to such an employee will not cause the employee to lose the FLSA exemption. This means that under regulations currently in effect, where an employee meets the specified duties test, is paid on a salary basis, and is paid a salary of at least the amount specified in the regulations, the employing office may make deductions from the employee's salary for any hours taken as intermittent or reduced FMLA leave within a workweek, without affecting the exempt status of the employee. The fact that an employing office provides FMLA leave, whether paid or unpaid, will not be relevant to the determination whether an employee is exempt within the meaning of [CAA regulations based on 29 CFR Part 541].

(b) For an employee paid in accordance with the fluctuating workweek method of payment for overtime (see 29 CFR 778.114), the employing office, during the period in which intermittent or reduced schedule FMLA leave is scheduled to be taken, may compensate an employee on an hourly basis and pay only for the hours the employee works, including time and one-half the employee's regular rate for overtime hours. The change to payment on an hourly basis would include the entire period during which the employee is taking intermittent leave, including weeks in which no leave is taken. The hourly rate shall be determined by dividing the employee's weekly salary by the employee's normal or average schedule of hours worked during weeks in which FMLA leave is not being taken. If an employing office chooses to follow this exception from the fluctuating workweek method of payment, the employing office must do so uniformly, with respect to all employees paid on a fluctuating workweek basis for whom FMLA leave is taken on an intermittent or reduced leave schedule basis. If an employing office does not elect to convert the employee's compensation to hourly pay, no deduction may be taken for FMLA leave absences. Once the need for intermittent or reduced scheduled leave is over, the employee may be restored to payment on a fluctuating work week basis.

(c) This special exception to the salary basis' requirements of the FLSA exemption or fluctuating workweek payment requirements applies only to employees of covered employing offices who are eligible for FMLA leave, and to leave which qualifies as (one of the four types of) FMLA leave. Hourly or other deductions which are not in accordance with [CAA regulations based on 29 CFR Part 541] or 29 CFR §778.114 may not be taken, for example, where the employee has not worked long enough to be eligible for FMLA leave without potentially affecting the employee's eligibility for exemption. Nor may deductions which are not permitted by [CAA regulations based on 29 CFR Part 541] or 29 CFR §778.114 be taken from such an employee's salary for any leave which does not qualify as FMLA leave, for example, deductions from an employee's pay for leave required under an employing office's policy or practice for a reason which does not qualify as FMLA leave, e.g., leave to care for a grandparent or for a medical condition which does not qualify as a serious health condition; or for leave which is more generous than provided by FMLA as made applicable by the CAA, such as leave in excess of 12 weeks in a year. The employing office may comply with the employing office's own policy/practice under these circumstances and maintain the employee's eligibility for exemption or for the fluctuating workweek method of pay by not taking hourly deductions from the employee's pay, in accordance with FLSA requirements, or may take such deductions, treating the employee as an "hourly" employee and pay overtime premium pay for hours worked over 40 in a workweek.

§ 825.207 Is FMLA leave paid or unpaid?

(a) Generally, FMLA leave is unpaid. However, under the circumstances described in this section, FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, permits an eligible employee to choose to substitute paid leave for FMLA leave. If an employee does not choose to substitute accrued paid leave, the employing office may require the employee to substitute accrued paid leave for FMLA leave.

(b) Where an employee has earned or accrued paid vacation, personal or family leave, that paid leave may be substituted for all or part of any (otherwise) unpaid FMLA leave relating to birth, placement of a child for adoption or foster care, or care for a spouse, child or parent who has a serious health condition. The term "family leave" as used in FMLA refers to paid leave provided by the employing office covering the particular circumstances for which the employee seeks leave for either the birth of a child and to care for such child, placement of a child for adoption or foster care, or care for a spouse, child or parent with a serious health condition. For example, if the employing office's leave plan allows use of family leave to care for a child but not for a parent, the employing office is not required to allow accrued family leave to be substituted for FMLA leave used to care for a parent.

(c) Substitution of paid accrued vacation, personal, or medical/sick leave may be made for any (otherwise) unpaid FMLA leave needed to care for a family member or the employee's own serious health condition. Substitution of paid sick/medical leave may be elected to the extent the circumstances meet the employing office's usual requirements for the use of sick/medical leave. An employing office is not required to allow substitution of paid sick or medical leave for unpaid FMLA leave "in any situation" where the employing office's uniform policy would not normally allow such paid leave. An employee, therefore, has a right to substitute paid medical/sick leave to care for a seriously ill family member only if the employing office's leave plan allows paid leave to be used for that purpose. Similarly, an employee does not have a right to substitute paid medical/sick leave for a serious health condition which is not covered by the employing office's leave plan.

(d)(1) Disability leave for the birth of a child would be considered FMLA leave for a serious health condition and counted in the 12 weeks of leave permitted under FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. Because the leave pursuant to a temporary disability benefit plan is not unpaid, the provision for substitution of paid leave is inapplicable. However, the employing office may designate the leave as FMLA leave and count the leave as running concurrently for purposes of both the benefit plan and the FMLA leave entitlement. If the requirements to qualify for payments pursuant to the employing office's temporary disability plan are more stringent than those of FMLA as made applicable by the CAA, the employee must meet the more stringent requirements of the plan, or may choose not to meet the requirements of the plan and instead receive no payments from the plan and use unpaid FMLA leave or substitute available accrued paid leave.

(2) The FMLA as made applicable by the CAA provides that a serious health condition may result from injury to the employee "on or off" the job. If the employing office designates the leave as FMLA leave in accordance with §825.208, the employee's FMLA 12-week leave entitlement may run concurrently with a workers' compensation absence when the injury is one that meets the criteria for a serious health condition. As the workers' compensation absence is not unpaid leave, the provision for substitution of the employee's accrued paid leave is not applicable. However, if the health care provider treating the employee for the workers' compensation injury certifies the employee is able to return to a "light duty job" but is unable to return to the same or equivalent job, the employee may decline the employing office's offer of a "light duty job". As a result the employee may lose workers' compensation payments, but is entitled to remain on unpaid FMLA leave until the 12-week entitlement is exhausted. As of the date workers' compensation benefits cease, the substitution provision becomes applicable and either the employee may elect or the employing office may require the use of accrued paid leave. See also §§825.210(f), 825.216(d), 825.220(d), 825.307(a)(1) and 825.702 (d)(1) and (2) regarding the relationship between workers' compensation absences and FMLA leave.

(e) Paid vacation or personal leave, including leave earned or accrued under plans allowing "paid time off," may be substituted, at either the employee's or the employing office's option, for any qualified FMLA leave. No limitations may be placed by the employing office on substitution of paid vacation or personal leave for these purposes.

(f) If neither the employee nor the employing office elects to substitute paid leave for unpaid FMLA leave under the above conditions and circumstances, the employee will remain entitled to all the paid leave which is earned or accrued under the terms of the employing office's plan.

(g) If an employee uses paid leave under circumstances which do not qualify as FMLA leave, the leave will not count against the 12 weeks of FMLA leave to which the employee is entitled. For example, paid sick leave used for a medical condition which is not a serious health condition does not count against the 12 weeks of FMLA leave entitlement.

(h) When an employee or employing office elects to substitute paid leave (of any type) for unpaid FMLA leave under circumstances permitted by these regulations, and the employing office's procedural requirements for taking that kind of leave are less stringent than the requirements of FMLA as made applicable by the CAA (e.g., notice or certification requirements), only the less stringent requirements may be imposed. An employee who complies with an employing office's less stringent leave plan requirements in such cases may not have leave for an FMLA purpose delayed or denied on the grounds that the employee has not complied with stricter requirements of FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. However, where accrued paid vacation or personal leave is substituted for unpaid FMLA leave for a serious health condition, an employee may be required to comply with any less stringent medical certification requirements of the employing office's sick leave program. See §§ 825.302(g), 825.305(e) and 825.306(c).

(i) Compensatory time off, if any is authorized under applicable law, is not a form of accrued paid leave that an employing office may require the employee to substitute for unpaid FMLA leave. The employee may request to use his/her balance of compensatory time for an FMLA reason. If the employing office permits the accrual to be used in compliance with regulations, if any [CAA regulations on compensatory time off, if any], the absence which is paid from the employee's accrued compensatory time "account" may not be counted against the employee's FMLA leave entitlement.

§ 825.208 Under what circumstances may an employing office designate leave, paid or unpaid, as FMLA leave and, as a result, enable leave to be counted against the employee's total FMLA leave entitlement?

(a) In all circumstances, it is the employing office's responsibility to designate leave, paid or unpaid, as FMLA-qualifying, and to give notice of the designation to the employee as provided in this section. In the case of intermittent leave or leave on a reduced schedule, only one such notice is required unless the circumstances regarding the leave have changed. The employing office's designation decision must be based only on information received from the employee or the employee's spokesperson (e.g., if the employee is incapacitated, the employee's spouse, adult child, parent, doctor, etc., may provide notice to the employing office of the need to take FMLA leave). In any circumstance where the employing office does not have sufficient information about the reason for an employee's use of paid leave, the employing office should inquire further of the employee or the spokesperson to ascertain whether the paid leave is potentially FMLA-qualifying.

(1) An employee giving notice of the need for unpaid FMLA leave must explain the reasons for the needed leave so as to allow the employing office to determine that the leave qualifies under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA. If the employee fails to explain the reasons, leave may be denied. In many cases, in explaining the reasons for a request to use paid leave, especially when the need for the leave was unexpected or unforeseen, an employee will provide sufficient information for the employing office to designate the paid leave as FMLA leave. An employee using accrued paid leave, especially vacation or personal leave, may in some cases not spontaneously explain the reasons or their plans for using their accrued leave.

(2) As noted in § 825.302(c), an employee giving notice of the need for unpaid FMLA leave does not need to expressly assert rights under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA or even mention the FMLA to meet his or her obligation to provide notice, though the employee would need to state a qualifying reason for the needed leave. An employee requesting or notifying the employing office of an intent to use accrued paid leave, even if for a purpose covered by FMLA, would not need to assert such right either. However, if an employee requesting to use paid leave for an FMLA-qualifying purpose does not explain the reason for the leave—consistent with the employing office's established policy or practice—and the employing office denies the employee's request, the employee will need to provide sufficient information to establish an FMLA-qualifying reason for the needed leave so that the employing office is aware of the employee's entitlement (i.e., that the leave may not be denied) and, then, may designate that the paid leave be appropriately counted against (substituted for) the employee's 12-week entitlement. Similarly, an employee using accrued paid vacation leave who seeks an extension of unpaid leave for an FMLA-qualifying purpose will need to state the reason. If this is due to an event which occurred during the period of paid leave, the employing office may count the leave used after the FMLA-qualifying event against the employee's 12-week entitlement.

(b)(1) Once the employing office has acquired knowledge that the leave is being taken for an FMLA required reason, the employing office must promptly (within two business days absent extenuating circumstances) notify the employee that the paid leave is designated and will be counted as FMLA leave. If there is a dispute between an employing office and an employee as to whether paid leave qualifies as FMLA leave, it should be resolved through discussions between the employee and the employing office. Such discussions and the decision must be documented.

(2) The employing office's notice to the employee that the leave has been designated as FMLA leave may be orally or in writing. If the notice is oral, it shall be confirmed in writing, no later than the following payday (unless the payday is less than one week after the oral notice, in which case the notice must be no later than the subsequent payday). The written notice may be in any form, including a notation on the employee's pay stub.

(c) If the employing office requires paid leave to be substituted for unpaid leave, or that paid leave taken under an existing leave plan be counted as FMLA leave, this decision must be made by the employing office within two business days of the time the employee gives notice of the need for leave, or, where the employing office does not initially have sufficient information to make a determination, when the employing office determines that the leave qualifies as FMLA leave if this happens later. The employing office's designation must be made before the leave starts, unless the employing office does not have sufficient information as to the employee's reason for taking the leave until after the leave commenced. If the employing office has the requisite knowledge to make a determination that the paid leave is for an FMLA reason at the time the employee either gives notice of the need for leave or commences leave and fails to designate the leave as FMLA leave (and so notify the employee in accordance with paragraph (b)), the employing office may not designate leave as FMLA leave retroactively, and may designate only prospectively as of the date of notification to the employee of the designation. In such circumstances, the employee is subject to the full protections of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, but none of the absence preceding the notice to the employee of the designation may be counted against the employee's 12-week FMLA leave entitlement.

(d) If the employing office learns that leave is for an FMLA purpose after leave has begun, such as when an employee gives notice of the need for an extension of the paid leave with unpaid FMLA leave, the entire or some portion of the paid leave period may be retroactively counted as FMLA leave, to the extent that the leave period qualified as FMLA leave. For example, an employee is granted two weeks paid vacation leave for a skiing trip. In mid-week of the second week, the employee contacts the employing office for an extension of leave as unpaid leave and advises that at the beginning of the second week of paid vacation leave the employee suffered a severe accident requiring hospitalization. The employing office may notify the employee that both the extension and the second week of paid vacation leave (from the date of the injury) is designated as FMLA leave. On the other hand, when the employee takes sick leave that turns into a serious health condition (e.g., bronchitis that turns into bronchial pneumonia) and the employee gives notice of the need for an extension of leave, the entire period of the serious health condition may be counted as FMLA leave.

(e) Employing offices may not designate leave as FMLA leave after the employee has returned to work with two exceptions:

(1) If the employee was absent for an FMLA reason and the employing office did not learn the reason for the absence until the employee's return (e.g., where the employee was absent for only a brief period), the employing office may, upon the employee's return to work, promptly (within two business days of the employee's return to work) designate the leave retroactively with appropriate notice to the employee. If leave is taken for an FMLA reason but the employing office was not aware of the reason, and the employee desires that the leave be counted as FMLA leave, the employee must notify the employing office within two business days of returning to work of the reason for the leave. In the absence of such timely notification by the employee, the employee may not subsequently assert FMLA protections for the absence.

(2) If the employing office knows the reason for the leave but has not been able to confirm that the leave qualifies under FMLA, or where the employing office has requested medical certification which has not yet been received or the parties are in the process of obtaining a second or third medical opinion, the employing office should make a preliminary designation, and so notify the employee, at the time leave begins, or as soon as the reason for the leave becomes known. Upon receipt of the requisite information from the employee or of the medical certification which confirms the leave is for an FMLA reason, the preliminary designation becomes final. If the medical certifications fail to confirm that the reason for the absence was an FMLA reason, the employing office must withdraw the designation (with written notice to the employee).

(f) If, before beginning employment with an employing office, an employee had been employed by another employing office, the subsequent employing office may count against the employee's FMLA leave entitlement FMLA leave taken from the prior employing office, except that, if the FMLA leave began after the effective date of these regulations (or if the FMLA leave was subject to other applicable requirement under which the employing office was to have designated the leave as FMLA leave), the prior employing office must have properly designated the leave as FMLA under these regulations or other applicable requirement.

§ 825.209 Is an employee entitled to benefits while using FMLA leave?

(a) During any FMLA leave, the employing office must maintain the employee's coverage under the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program or any group health plan (as defined in the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 at 26 U.S.C. 5000(b)(1)) on the same conditions as coverage would have been provided if the employee had been continuously employed during the entire leave period. All employing offices are subject to the requirements of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, to maintain health coverage. The definition of "group health plan" is set forth in §825.800. For purposes of FMLA, the term "group health plan" shall not include an insurance program providing health coverage under which employees purchase individual policies from insurers provided that:

(1) no contributions are made by the employing office;

(2) participation in the program is completely voluntary for employees;

(3) the sole functions of the employing office with respect to the program are, without endorsing the program, to permit the insurer to publicize the program to employees, to collect premiums through payroll deductions and to remit them to the insurer;

(4) the employing office receives no consideration in the form of cash or otherwise in connection with the program, other than reasonable compensation, excluding any profit, for administrative services actually rendered in connection with payroll deduction; and

(5) the premium charged with respect to such coverage does not increase in the event the employment relationship terminates.

(b) The same group health plan benefits provided to an employee prior to taking FMLA leave must be maintained during the FMLA leave. For example, if family member coverage is provided to an employee, family member coverage must be maintained during the FMLA leave. Similarly, benefit coverage during FMLA leave for medical care, surgical care, hospital care, dental care, eye care, mental health counseling, substance abuse treatment, etc., must be maintained during leave if provided in an employing office's group health plan, including a supplement to a group health plan, whether or not provided through a flexible spending account or other component of a cafeteria plan.

(c) If an employing office provides a new health plan or benefits or changes health benefits or plans while an employee is on FMLA leave, the employee is entitled to the new or changed plan/benefits to the same extent as if the employee were not on leave. For example, if an employing office changes a group health plan so that dental care becomes covered under the plan, an employee on FMLA leave must be given the same opportunity as other employees to receive (or obtain) the dental care coverage. Any other plan changes (e.g., in coverage, premiums, deductibles, etc.) which apply to all employees of the workforce would also apply to an employee on FMLA leave.

(d) Notice of any opportunity to change plans or benefits must also be given to an employee on FMLA leave. If the group health plan permits an employee to change from single to family coverage upon the birth of a child or otherwise add new family members, such a change in benefits must be made available while an employee is on FMLA leave. If the employee requests the changed coverage it must be provided by the employing office.

(e) An employee may choose not to retain group health plan coverage during FMLA leave. However, when an employee returns from leave, the employee is entitled to be reinstated on the same terms as prior to taking the leave, including family or dependent coverages, without any qualifying period, physical examination, exclusion of pre-existing conditions, etc. See §825.212(c).

(f) Except as required by the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 (COBRA), or by other applicable law, and for "key" employees (as discussed below), an employing office's obligation to maintain health benefits during leave (and to restore the employee to the same or equivalent employment) under FMLA ceases if and when the employment relationship would have terminated if the employee had not taken FMLA leave (e.g., if the employee's position is eliminated as part of a nondiscriminatory reduction in force and the employee would not have been transferred to another position); an employee informs the employing office of his or her intent not to return from leave (including before starting the leave if the employing office is so informed before the leave starts); or the employee fails to return from leave or continues on leave after exhausting his or her FMLA leave entitlement in the 12-month period.

(g) If a "key employee" (see §825.218) does not return from leave when notified by the employing office that substantial or grievous economic injury will result from his or her reinstatement, the employee's entitlement to group health plan benefits continues unless and until the employee advises the employing office that the employee does not desire restoration to employment at the end of the leave period, or FMLA leave entitlement is exhausted, or reinstatement is actually denied.

(h) An employee's entitlement to benefits other than group health benefits during a period of FMLA leave (e.g., holiday pay) is to be determined by the employing office's established policy for providing such benefits when the employee is on other forms of leave (paid or unpaid, as appropriate).

§825.210 How may employees on FMLA leave pay their share of group health benefit premiums?

(a) Group health plan benefits must be maintained on the same basis as coverage would have been provided if the employee had been continuously employed during the FMLA leave period. Therefore, any share of group health plan premiums which had been paid by the employee prior to FMLA leave must continue to be paid by the employee during the FMLA leave period. If premiums are raised or lowered, the employee would be required to pay the new premium rates. Maintenance of health insurance policies which are not a part of the employing office's group health plan, as described in §825.209(a)(1), are the sole responsibility of the employee. The employee and the insurer should make necessary arrangements for payment of premiums during periods of unpaid FMLA leave.

(b) If the FMLA leave is substituted paid leave, the employee's share of premiums must be paid by the method normally used during any paid leave, presumably as a payroll deduction.

(c) If FMLA leave is unpaid, the employing office has a number of options for obtaining payment from the employee. The employing office may require that payment be made to the employing office or to the insurance carrier, but no additional charge may be added to the employee's premium payment for administrative expenses. The employing office may require employees to pay their share of premium payments in any of the following ways:

(1) Payment would be due at the same time as it would be made if by payroll deduction;

(2) Payment would be due on the same schedule as payments are made under COBRA;

(3) Payment would be prepaid pursuant to a cafeteria plan at the employee's option;

(4) The employing office's existing rules for payment by employees on "leave without pay" would be followed, provided that such rules do not require prepayment (i.e., prior to the commencement of the leave) of the premiums that will become due during a period of unpaid FMLA leave or payment of higher premiums than if the employee had continued to work instead of taking leave; or,

(5) Another system voluntarily agreed to between the employing office and the employee, which may include prepayment of premiums (e.g., through increased payroll deductions when the need for the FMLA leave is foreseeable).

(d) The employing office must provide the employee with advance written notice of the terms and conditions under which these payments must be made. (See §825.301.)

(e) An employing office may not require more of an employee using FMLA leave than the employing office requires of other employees on "leave without pay".

(f) An employee who is receiving payments as a result of a workers' compensation injury must make arrangements with the employing office for payment of group health plan benefits when simultaneously taking unpaid FMLA leave. See paragraph (c) of this section and §825.207(d)(2).

§825.211 [Reserved.]

§825.212 What are the consequences of an employee's failure to make timely health plan premium payments?

(a)(1) In the absence of an established employing office policy providing a longer grace period, an employing office's obligations to maintain health insurance coverage cease under FMLA if an employee's premium payment is more than 30 days late. In order to drop the coverage for an employee whose premium payment is late, the employing office must provide written notice to the employee that the payment has not been received. Such notice must be mailed to the employee at least 15 days before coverage is to cease, advising that coverage will be dropped on a specified date at least 15 days after the date of the letter unless the payment has been received by that date. If the employing office has established policies regarding other forms of unpaid leave that provide for the employing office to cease coverage retroactively to the date the unpaid premium payment was due, the employing office may drop the employee from coverage retroactively in accordance with that policy, provided the 15-day notice was given. In the absence of such a policy, coverage for the employee may be terminated at the end of the 30-day grace period, where the required 15-day notice has been provided.

(2) An employing office has no obligation regarding the maintenance of a health insurance policy which is not a "group health plan." See §825.209(a).

(3) All other obligations of an employing office under FMLA would continue; for example, the employing office continues to have an obligation to reinstate an employee upon return from leave.

(b) The employing office may recover the employee's share of any premium payments missed by the employee for any FMLA leave period during which the employing office maintains health coverage by paying the employee's share after the premium payment is missed.

(c) If coverage lapses because an employee has not made required premium payments, upon the employee's return from FMLA leave the employing office must still restore the employee to coverage/benefits equivalent to those the employee would have had if leave had not been taken and the premium payment(s) had not been missed, including family or dependent coverage. See §825.215(d)(1)-(5). In such case, an employee may not be required to meet any qualification requirements imposed by the plan, including any new preexisting condition waiting period, to wait for an open season, or to pass a medical examination to obtain reinstatement of coverage.

§ 825.213 May an employing office recover costs it incurred for maintaining "group health plan" or other non-health benefits coverage during FMLA leave?

(a) In addition to the circumstances discussed in § 825.212(b), an employing office may recover its share of health plan premiums during a period of unpaid FMLA leave from an employee if the employee fails to return to work after the employee's FMLA leave entitlement has been exhausted or expires, unless the reason the employee does not return is due to:

(1) The continuation, recurrence, or onset of a serious health condition of the employee or the employee's family member which would otherwise entitle the employee to leave under FMLA; or

(2) Other circumstances beyond the employee's control. Examples of "other circumstances beyond the employee's control" are necessarily broad. They include such situations as where a parent chooses to stay home with a newborn child who has a serious health condition; an employee's spouse is unexpectedly transferred to a job location more than 75 miles from the employee's worksite; a relative or individual other than an immediate family member has a serious health condition and the employee is needed to provide care; the employee is laid off while on leave; or, the employee is a key employee" who decides not to return to work upon being notified of the employing office's intention to deny restoration because of substantial and grievous economic injury to the employing office's operations and is not reinstated by the employing office. Other circumstances beyond the employee's control would not include a situation where an employee desires to remain with a parent in a distant city even though the parent no longer requires the employee's care, or a parent chooses not to return to work to stay home with a well, newborn child.

(3) When an employee fails to return to work because of the continuation, recurrence, or onset of a serious health condition, thereby precluding the employing office from recovering its (share of) health benefit premium payments made on the employee's behalf during a period of unpaid FMLA leave, the employing office may require medical certification of the employee's or the family member's serious health condition. Such certification is not required unless requested by the employing office. The employee is required to provide medical certification in a timely manner which, for purposes of this section, is within 30 days from the date of the employing office's request. For purposes of medical certification, the employee may use the optional form developed for this purpose (see § 825.306(a) and Appendix B of this part). If the employing office requests medical certification and the employee does not provide such certification in a timely manner (within 30 days), or the reason for not returning to work does not meet the test of other circumstances beyond the employee's control, the employing office may recover 100% of the health benefit premiums it paid during the period of unpaid FMLA leave.

(b) Under some circumstances an employing office may elect to maintain other benefits, e.g., life insurance, disability insurance, etc., by paying the employee's (share of) premiums during periods of unpaid FMLA leave. For example, to ensure the employing office can meet its responsibilities to provide equivalent benefits to the employee upon return from unpaid FMLA leave, it may be necessary that premiums be paid continuously to avoid a lapse of coverage. If the employing office elects to maintain such benefits during the leave, at the conclusion of leave, the employing office is entitled to recover only the costs incurred for paying the employee's share of any premiums whether or not the employee returns to work.

(c) An employee who returns to work for at least 30 calendar days is considered to have "returned" to work. An employee who transfers directly from taking FMLA leave to retirement, or who retires during the first 30 days after the employee returns to work, is deemed to have returned to work.

(d) When an employee elects or an employing office requires paid leave to be substituted for FMLA leave, the employing office may not recover its (share of) health insurance or other non-health benefit premiums for any period of FMLA leave covered by paid leave. Because paid leave provided under a plan covering temporary disabilities (including workers' compensation) is not unpaid, recovery of health insurance premiums does not apply to such paid leave.

(e) The amount that self-insured employing offices may recover is limited to only the employing office's share of allowable "premiums" as would be calculated under COBRA, excluding the 2 percent fee for administrative costs.

(f) When an employee fails to return to work, any health and non-health benefit premiums which this section of the regulations permits an employing office to recover are a debt owed by the non-returning employee to the employing office. The existence of this debt caused by the employee's failure to return to work does not alter the employing office's responsibilities for health benefit coverage and, under a self-insurance plan, payment of claims incurred during the period of FMLA leave. To the extent recovery is allowed, the employing office may recover the costs through deduction from any sums due to the employee (e.g., unpaid wages, vacation pay, etc.), provided such deductions do not otherwise violate applicable wage payment or other laws. Alternatively, the employing office may initiate legal action against the employee to recover such costs.

§ 825.214 What are an employee's rights on returning to work from FMLA leave?

(a) On return from FMLA leave, an employee is entitled to be returned to the same position the employee held when leave commenced, or to an equivalent position with equivalent benefits, pay, and other terms and conditions of employment. An employee is entitled to such reinstatement even if the employee has been replaced or his or her position has been restructured to accommodate the employee's absence. See also § 825.106(e) for the obligations of employing offices that are joint employing offices.

(b) If the employee is unable to perform an essential function of the position because of a physical or mental condition, including the continuation of a serious health condition, the employee has no right to restoration to another position under the FMLA. However, the employing office's obligations may be governed by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA). See § 825.702.

§ 825.215 What is an equivalent position?

(a) An equivalent position is one that is virtually identical to the employee's former position in terms of pay, benefits and working conditions, including privileges, perquisites and status. It must involve the same or substantially similar duties and responsibilities, which must entail substantially equivalent skill, effort, responsibility, and authority.

(b) If an employee is no longer qualified for the position because of the employee's inability to attend a necessary course, renew a license, fly a minimum number of hours, etc., as a result of the leave, the employee shall be given a reasonable opportunity to fulfill those conditions upon return to work.

(c) Equivalent Pay.—(1) An employee is entitled to any unconditional pay increases which may have occurred during the FMLA leave period, such as cost of living increases. Pay increases conditioned upon seniority, length of service, or work performed would not have to be granted unless it is the employing office's policy or practice to do so with respect to other employees on "leave without pay." In such case, any pay increase would be granted based on the employee's seniority, length of service, work performed, etc., excluding the period of unpaid FMLA leave. An employee is entitled to be restored to a position with the same or equivalent pay premiums, such as a shift differential. If an employee departed from a position averaging ten hours of overtime (and corresponding overtime pay) each week, an employee is ordinarily entitled to such a position on return from FMLA leave.

(2) Many employing offices pay bonuses in different forms to employees for job-related performance such as for perfect attendance, safety (absence of injuries or accidents on the job) and exceeding production goals. Bonuses for perfect attendance and safety do not require performance by the employee but rather contemplate the absence of occurrences. To the extent an employee who takes FMLA leave had met all the requirements for either or both of these bonuses before FMLA leave began, the employee is entitled to continue this entitlement upon return from FMLA leave, that is, the employee may not be disqualified for the bonus(es) for the taking of FMLA leave. See § 825.220 (b) and (c). A monthly production bonus, on the other hand, does require performance by the employee. If the employee is on FMLA leave during any part of the period for which the bonus is computed, the employee is entitled to the same consideration for the bonus as other employees on paid or unpaid leave (as appropriate). See paragraph (d)(2) of this section.

(d) Equivalent Benefits.—"Benefits" include all benefits provided or made available to employees by an employing office, including group life insurance, health insurance, disability insurance, sick leave, annual leave, educational benefits, and pensions, regardless of whether such benefits are provided by a practice or written policy of an employing office through an employee benefit plan.

(1) At the end of an employee's FMLA leave, benefits must be resumed in the same manner and at the same levels as provided when the leave began, and subject to any changes in benefit levels that may have taken place during the period of FMLA leave affecting the entire workforce, unless otherwise elected by the employee. Upon return from FMLA leave, an employee cannot be required to requalify for any benefits the employee enjoyed before FMLA leave began (including family or dependent coverages). For example, if an employee was covered by a life insurance policy before taking leave but is not covered or coverage lapses during the period of unpaid FMLA leave, the employee cannot be required to meet any qualifications, such as taking a physical examination, in order to requalify for life insurance upon return from leave. Accordingly, some employing offices may find it necessary to modify life insurance and other benefits programs in order to restore employees to equivalent benefits upon return from FMLA leave, make arrangements for continued payment of costs to maintain such benefits during unpaid FMLA leave, or pay these costs subject to recovery from the employee on return from leave. See § 825.213(b).

(2) An employee may, but is not entitled to, accrue any additional benefits or seniority during unpaid FMLA leave. Benefits accrued at the time leave began, however, (e.g., paid vacation, sick or personal leave to the extent not substituted for FMLA leave) must be available to an employee upon return from leave.

(3) If, while on unpaid FMLA leave, an employee desires to continue life insurance, disability insurance, or other types of benefits for which he or she typically pays, the employing office is required to follow established policies or practices for continuing such benefits for other instances of leave without pay. If the employing office has no established policy, the employee and the employing office are encouraged to agree upon arrangements before FMLA leave begins.

(4) With respect to pension and other retirement plans, any period of unpaid FMLA leave shall not be treated as or counted toward a break in service for purposes of vesting and eligibility to participate. Also, if the plan requires an employee to be employed on a specific date in order to be credited with a year of service for vesting, contributions or participation purposes, an employee on unpaid FMLA leave on that date shall be deemed to have been employed on that date. However, unpaid FMLA leave periods need not be treated as credited service for purposes of benefit accrual, vesting and eligibility to participate.

(5) Employees on unpaid FMLA leave are to be treated as if they continued to work for purposes of changes to benefit plans. They are entitled to changes in benefits plans, except those which may be dependent upon seniority or accrual during the leave period, immediately upon return from leave or to the same extent they would have qualified if no leave had been taken. For example if the benefit plan is predicated on a pre-established number of hours worked each year and the employee does not have sufficient hours as a result of taking unpaid FMLA leave, the benefit is lost. (In this regard, §825.209 addresses health benefits.)

(e) Equivalent Terms and Conditions of Employment.—An equivalent position must have substantially similar duties, conditions, responsibilities, privileges and status as the employee's original position.

(1) The employee must be reinstated to the same or a geographically proximate worksite (i.e., one that does not involve a significant increase in commuting time or distance) from where the employee had previously been employed. If the employee's original worksite has been closed, the employee is entitled to the same rights as if the employee had not been on leave when the worksite closed. For example, if an employing office transfers all employees from a closed worksite to a new worksite in a different city, the employee on leave is also entitled to transfer under the same conditions as if he or she had continued to be employed.

(2) The employee is ordinarily entitled to return to the same shift or the same or an equivalent work schedule.

(3) The employee must have the same or an equivalent opportunity for bonuses and other similar discretionary and non-discretionary payments.

(4) FMLA does not prohibit an employing office from accommodating an employee's request to be restored to a different shift, schedule, or position which better suits the employee's personal needs on return from leave, or to offer a promotion to a better position. However, an employee cannot be induced by the employing office to accept a different position against the employee's wishes.

(f) The requirement that an employee be restored to the same or equivalent job with the same or equivalent pay, benefits, and terms and conditions of employment does not extend to de minimis or intangible, unmeasurable aspects of the job. However, restoration to a job slated for lay-off when the employee's original position is not would not meet the requirements of an equivalent position.

§825.216 Are there any limitations on an employing office's obligation to reinstate an employee?

(a) An employee has no greater right to reinstatement or to other benefits and conditions of employment than if the employee had been continuously employed during the FMLA leave period. An employing office must be able to show that an employee would not otherwise have been employed at the time reinstatement is requested in order to deny restoration to employment. For example:

(1) If an employee is laid off during the course of taking FMLA leave and employment is terminated, the employing office's responsibility to continue FMLA leave, maintain group health plan benefits and restore the employee cease at the time the employee is laid off, provided the employing office has no continuing obligations under a collective bargaining agreement or otherwise. An employing office would have the burden of proving that an employee would have been laid off during the FMLA leave period and, therefore, would not be entitled to restoration.

(2) If a shift has been eliminated, or overtime has been decreased, an employee would not be entitled to return to work that shift or the original overtime hours upon restoration. However, if a position on, for example, a night shift has been filled by another employee, the employee is entitled to return to the same shift on which employed before taking FMLA leave.

(b) If an employee was hired for a specific term or only to perform work on a discrete project, the employing office has no obligation to restore the employee if the employment term or project is over and the employing office would not otherwise have continued to employ the employee.

(c) In addition to the circumstances explained above, an employing office may deny job restoration to salaried eligible employees ("key employees," as defined in paragraph (c) of §825.217) if such denial is necessary to prevent substantial and grievous economic injury to the operations of the employing office; or may delay restoration to an employee who fails to provide a fitness for duty certificate to return to work under the conditions described in §825.310.

(d) If the employee has been on a workers' compensation absence during which FMLA leave has been taken concurrently, and after 12 weeks of FMLA leave the employee is unable to return to work, the employee no longer has the protections of FMLA and must look to the workers' compensation statute or ADA for any relief or protections.

§825.217 What is a "key employee"?

(a) A "key employee" is a salaried FMLA-eligible employee who is among the highest paid 10 percent of all the employees employed by the employing office within 75 miles of the employee's worksite.

(b) The term "salaried" means "paid on a salary basis," as defined in [CAA regulation based on 29 CFR 541.118]. This is the regulation defining employees who may qualify as exempt from the minimum wage and overtime requirements of the FLSA as executive, administrative, and professional employees.

(c) A "key employee" must be "among the highest paid 10 percent" of all the employees—both salaried and non-salaried, eligible and ineligible—who are employed by the employing office within 75 miles of the worksite.

(1) In determining which employees are among the highest paid 10 percent, year-to-date earnings are divided by weeks worked by the employee (including weeks in which paid leave was taken). Earnings include wages, premium pay, incentive pay, and non-discretionary and discretionary bonuses. Earnings do not include incentives whose value is determined at some future date, e.g., benefits or perquisites.

(2) The determination of whether a salaried employee is among the highest paid 10 percent shall be made at the time the employee gives notice of the need for leave. No more than 10 percent of the employing office's employees within 75 miles of the worksite may be "key employees."

§825.218 What does "substantial and grievous economic injury" mean?

(a) In order to deny restoration to a key employee, an employing office must determine that the restoration of the employee to employment will cause "substantial and grievous economic injury" to the operations of the employing office, not whether the absence of the employee will cause such substantial and grievous injury.

(b) An employing office may take into account its ability to replace on a temporary basis (or temporarily do without) the employee on FMLA leave. If permanent replacement is unavoidable, the cost of then reinstating the employee can be considered in evaluating whether substantial and grievous economic injury will occur from restoration; in other words, the effect on the operations of the employing office of reinstating the employee in an equivalent position.

(c) A precise test cannot be set for the level of hardship or injury to the employing office which must be sustained. If the reinstatement of a "key employee" threatens the economic viability of the employing office, that would constitute "substantial and grievous economic injury." A lesser injury which causes substantial, long-term economic injury would also be sufficient. Minor inconveniences and costs that the employing office would experience in the normal course would certainly not constitute "substantial and grievous economic injury."

(d) FMLA's "substantial and grievous economic injury" standard is different from and more stringent than the "undue hardship" test under the ADA (see, also §825.702).

§825.219 What are the rights of a key employee?

(a) An employing office who believes that reinstatement may be denied to a key employee, must give written notice to the employee at the time the employee gives notice of the need for FMLA leave (or when FMLA leave commences, if earlier) that he or she qualifies as a key employee. At the same time, the employing office must also fully inform the employee of the potential consequences with respect to reinstatement and maintenance of health benefits if the employing office should determine that substantial and grievous economic injury to the employing office's operations will result if the employee is reinstated from FMLA leave. If such notice cannot be given immediately because of the need to determine whether the employee is a key employee, it shall be given as soon as practicable after being notified of a need for leave (or the commencement of leave, if earlier). It is expected that in most circumstances there will be no desire that an employee be denied restoration after FMLA leave and, therefore, there would be no need to provide such notice. However, an employing office who fails to provide such timely notice will lose its right to deny restoration even if substantial and grievous economic injury will result from reinstatement.

(b) As soon as an employing office makes a good faith determination, based on the facts available, that substantial and grievous economic injury to its operations will result if a key employee who has given notice of the need for FMLA leave or is using FMLA leave is reinstated, the employing office shall notify the employee in writing of its determination, that it cannot deny FMLA leave, and that it intends to deny restoration to employment on completion of the FMLA leave. It is anticipated that an employing office will ordinarily be able to give such notice prior to the employee starting leave. The employing office must serve this notice either in person or by certified mail. This notice must explain the basis for the employing office's finding that substantial and grievous economic injury will result, and, if leave has commenced, must provide the employee a reasonable time in which to return to work, taking into account the circumstances, such as the length of the leave and the urgency of the need for the employee to return.

(c) If an employee on leave does not return to work in response to the employing office's notification of intent to deny restoration, the employee continues to be entitled to maintenance of health benefits and the employing office may not recover its cost of health benefit premiums. A key employee's rights under FMLA continue unless and until the employee either gives notice that he or she no longer wishes to return to work, or the employing office actually denies reinstatement at the conclusion of the leave period.

(d) After notice to an employee has been given that substantial and grievous economic injury will result if the employee is reinstated to employment, an employee is still entitled to request reinstatement at the end of the leave period even if the employee did not return to work in response to the employing office's notice. The employing office must then again determine whether there will be substantial and grievous economic injury from reinstatement, based on the facts at that time. If it is determined that substantial and grievous economic injury will result, the employing office shall notify the employee in writing (in person or by certified mail) of the denial of restoration.

§ 825.220 How are employees protected who request leave or otherwise assert FMLA rights?

(a) The FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, prohibits interference with an employee's rights under the law, and with legal proceedings or inquiries relating to an employee's rights. More specifically, the law contains the following employee protections:

(1) An employing office is prohibited from interfering with, restraining, or denying the exercise of (or attempts to exercise) any rights provided by the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA.

(2) An employing office is prohibited from discharging or in any other way discriminating against any covered employee (whether or not an eligible employee) for opposing or complaining about any unlawful practice under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA.

(3) All employing offices are prohibited from discharging or in any other way discriminating against any covered employee (whether or not an eligible employee) because that covered employee has—

(i) Filed any charge, or has instituted (or caused to be instituted) any proceeding under or related to the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA;

(ii) Given, or is about to give, any information in connection with an inquiry or proceeding relating to a right under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA;

(iii) Testified, or is about to testify, in any inquiry or proceeding relating to a right under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA.

(b) Any violations of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, or of these regulations constitute interfering with, restraining, or denying the exercise of rights provided by the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. "Interfering with" the exercise of an employee's rights would include, for example, not only refusing to authorize FMLA leave, but discouraging an employee from using such leave. It would also include manipulation by an employing office to avoid responsibilities under FMLA, for example:

(1) [Reserved];

(2) changing the essential functions of the job in order to preclude the taking of leave;

(3) reducing hours available to work in order to avoid employee eligibility.

(c) An employing office is prohibited from discriminating against employees or prospective employees who have used FMLA leave. For example, if an employee on leave without pay would otherwise be entitled to full benefits (other than health benefits), the same benefits would be required to be provided to an employee on unpaid FMLA leave. By the same token, employing offices cannot use the taking of FMLA leave as a negative factor in employment actions, such as hiring, promotions or disciplinary actions; nor can FMLA leave be counted under "no fault" attendance policies.

(d) Employees cannot waive, nor may employing offices induce employees to waive, their rights under FMLA. For example, employees (or their collective bargaining representatives) cannot "trade off" the right to take FMLA leave against some other benefit offered by the employing office. This does not prevent an employee's voluntary and uncoerced acceptance (not as a condition of employment) of a "light duty" assignment while recovering from a serious health condition (see § 825.702(d)). In such a circumstance the employee's right to restoration to the same or an equivalent position is available until 12 weeks have passed within the 12-month period, including all FMLA leave taken and the period of "light duty."

(e) Covered employees, and not merely eligible employees, are protected from retaliation for opposing (e.g., filing a complaint about) any practice which is unlawful under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA. They are similarly protected if they oppose any practice which they reasonably believe to be a violation of the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA or regulations.

SUBPART C—HOW DO EMPLOYEES LEARN OF THEIR RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS UNDER THE FMLA, AS MADE APPLICABLE BY THE CAA, AND WHAT CAN AN EMPLOYING OFFICE REQUIRE OF AN EMPLOYEE?

§ 825.301 What notices to employees are required of employing offices under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA?

(a)(1) If an employing office has any eligible employees and has any written guidance to employees concerning employee benefits or leave rights, such as in an employee handbook, information concerning both entitlements and employee obligations under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, must be included in the handbook or other document. For example, if an employing office provides an employee handbook to all employees that describes the employing office's policies regarding leave, wages, attendance, and similar matters, the handbook must incorporate information on FMLA rights and responsibilities and the employing office's policies regarding the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA. Informational publications describing the provisions of the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA are available from the Office of Compliance and may be incorporated in such employing office handbooks or written policies.

(2) If such an employing office does not have written policies, manuals, or handbooks describing employee benefits and leave provisions, the employing office shall provide written guidance to an employee concerning all the employee's rights and obligations under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. This notice shall be provided to employees each time notice is given pursuant to paragraph (b), and in accordance with the provisions of that paragraph. Employing offices may duplicate and provide the employee a copy of the FMLA Fact Sheet available from the Office of Compliance to provide such guidance.

(b)(1) The employing office shall also provide the employee with written notice detailing the specific expectations and obligations of the employee and explaining any consequences of a failure to meet these obligations. The written notice must be provided to the employee in a language in which the employee is literate (see § 825.300(c)). Such specific notice must include, as appropriate:

(i) that the leave will be counted against the employee's annual FMLA leave entitlement (see § 825.208);

(ii) any requirements for the employee to furnish medical certification of a serious health condition and the consequences of failing to do so (see § 825.305);

(iii) the employee's right to substitute paid leave and whether the employing office will require the substitution of paid leave, and the conditions related to any substitution;

(iv) any requirement for the employee to make any premium payments to maintain health benefits and the arrangements for making such payments (see § 825.210), and the possible consequences of failure to make such payments on a timely basis (i.e., the circumstances under which coverage may lapse);

(v) any requirement for the employee to present a fitness-for-duty certificate to be restored to employment (see § 825.310);

(vi) the employee's status as a "key employee" and the potential consequence that restoration may be denied following FMLA leave, explaining the conditions required for such denial (see § 825.218);

(vii) the employee's right to restoration to the same or an equivalent job upon return from leave (see §§ 825.214 and 825.604); and,

(viii) the employee's potential liability for payment of health insurance premiums paid by the employing office during the employee's unpaid FMLA leave if the employee fails to return to work after taking FMLA leave (see § 825.213).

(2) The specific notice may include other information—e.g., whether the employing office will require periodic reports of the employee's status and intent to return to work, but is not required to do so. A prototype notice is contained in Appendix D of this part [reserved], or may be obtained from the Office of Compliance, which employing offices may adapt for their use to meet these specific notice requirements.

(c) Except as provided in this subparagraph, the written notice required by paragraph (b) (and by subparagraph (a)(2) where applicable) must be provided to the employee no less often than the first time in each six-month period that an employee gives notice of the need for FMLA leave (if FMLA leave is taken during the six-month period). The notice shall be given within a reasonable time after notice of the need for leave is given by the employee—within one or two business days if feasible. If leave has already begun, the notice should be mailed to the employee's address of record.

(1) If the specific information provided by the notice changes with respect to a subsequent period of FMLA leave during the six-month period, the employing office shall, within one or two business days of receipt of the employee's notice of need for leave, provide written notice referencing the prior notice and setting forth any of the information in subparagraph (b) which has changed. For example, if the initial leave period were paid leave and the subsequent leave period would be unpaid leave, the employing office may need to give notice of the arrangements for making premium payments.

(2)(i) Except as provided in subparagraph (ii), if the employing office is requiring medical certification or a "fitness-for-duty" report, written notice of the requirement shall be given with respect to each employee notice of a need for leave.

(ii) Subsequent written notification shall not be required if the initial notice in the six-month period and the employing office handbook or other written documents (if any) describing the employing office's leave policies, clearly provided that certification or a "fitness-for-duty" report would be required (e.g., by stating that certification would be required in all cases, by stating that certification would be required in all cases in which leave of more than a specified number of days is taken, or by stating that a "fitness-for-duty" report would be required in all cases for back injuries for employees in a certain occupation). Where subsequent written notice is not required, at least oral notice shall be provided. (See § 825.305(a).)

(d) Employing offices are also expected to responsively answer questions from employees concerning their rights and responsibilities under the FMLA as made applicable under the CAA.

(e) Employing offices furnishing FMLA-required notices to sensory impaired individuals must also comply with all applicable requirements under law.

(f) If an employing office fails to provide notice in accordance with the provisions of this section, the employing office may not take action against an employee for failure to comply with any provision required to be set forth in the notice.

§ 825.302 What notice does an employee have to give an employing office when the need for FMLA leave is foreseeable?

(a) An employee must provide the employing office at least 30 days advance notice before FMLA leave is to begin if the need for the leave is foreseeable based on an expected birth, placement for adoption or foster care, or planned medical treatment for a serious health condition of the employee or of a family member. If 30 days notice is not practicable, such as because of a lack of knowledge of approximately when leave will be required to begin, a change in circumstances, or a medical emergency, notice must be given as soon as practicable. For example, an employee's health condition may require leave to commence earlier than anticipated before the birth of a child. Similarly, little opportunity for notice may be given before placement for adoption. Whether the leave is to be continuous or is to be taken intermittently or on a reduced schedule basis, notice need only be given one time, but the employee shall advise the employing office as soon as practicable if dates of scheduled leave change or are extended, or were initially unknown.

(b) "As soon as practicable" means as soon as both possible and practical, taking into account all of the facts and circumstances in the individual case. For foreseeable leave where it is not possible to give as much as 30 days notice, "as soon as practicable" ordinarily would mean at least verbal notification to the employing office within one or two business days of when the need for leave becomes known to the employee.

(c) An employee shall provide at least verbal notice sufficient to make the employing office aware that the employee needs FMLA-qualifying leave, and the anticipated timing and duration of the leave. The employee need not expressly assert rights under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA, or even mention the FMLA, but may only state that leave is needed for an expected birth or adoption, for example. The employing office should inquire further of the employee if it is necessary to have more information about whether FMLA leave is being sought by the employee, and obtain the necessary details of the leave to be taken. In the case of medical conditions, the employing office may find it necessary to inquire further to determine if the leave is because of a serious health condition and may request medical certification to support the need for such leave (see § 825.305).

(d) An employing office may also require an employee to comply with the employing office's usual and customary notice and procedural requirements for requesting leave. For example, an employing office may require that written notice set forth the reasons for the requested leave, the anticipated duration of the leave, and the anticipated start of the leave. However, failure to follow such internal employing office procedures will not permit an employing office to disallow or delay an employee's taking FMLA leave if the employee gives timely verbal or other notice.

(e) When planning medical treatment, the employee must consult with the employing office and make a reasonable effort to schedule the leave so as not to disrupt unduly the employing office's operations, subject to the approval of the health care provider. Employees are ordinarily expected to consult with their employing offices prior to the scheduling of treatment in order to work out a treatment schedule which best suits the needs of both the employing office and the employee. If an employee who provides notice of the need to take FMLA leave on an intermittent basis for planned medical treatment neglects to consult with the employing office to make a reasonable attempt to arrange the schedule of treatments so as not to unduly disrupt the employing office's operations, the employing office may initiate discussions with the employee and require the employee to attempt to make such arrangements, subject to the approval of the health care provider.

(f) In the case of intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule which is medically necessary, an employee shall advise the employing office, upon request, of the reasons why the intermittent/reduced leave schedule is necessary and of the schedule for treatment, if applicable. The employee and employing office shall attempt to work out a schedule which meets the employee's needs without unduly disrupting the employing office's operations, subject to the approval of the health care provider.

(g) An employing office may waive employees' FMLA notice requirements. In addition, an employing office may not require compliance with stricter FMLA notice requirements where the provisions of a collective bargaining agreement or applicable leave plan allow less advance notice to the employing office. For example, if an employee (or employing office) elects to substitute paid vacation leave for unpaid FMLA leave (see § 825.207), and the employing office's paid vacation leave plan imposes no prior notification requirements for taking such vacation leave, no advance notice may be required for the FMLA leave taken in these circumstances. On the other hand, FMLA notice requirements would apply to a period of unpaid FMLA leave, unless the employing office imposes lesser notice requirements on employees taking leave without pay.

§ 825.303 What are the requirements for an employee to furnish notice to an employing office where the need for FMLA leave is not foreseeable?

(a) When the approximate timing of the need for leave is not foreseeable, an employee should give notice to the employing office of the need for FMLA leave as soon as practicable under the facts and circumstances of the particular case. It is expected that an employee will give notice to the employing office within no more than one or two working days of learning of the need for leave, except in extraordinary circumstances where such notice is not feasible. In the case of a medical emergency requiring leave because of an employee's own serious health condition or to care for a family member with a serious health condition, written advance notice pursuant to an employing office's internal rules and procedures may not be required when FMLA leave is involved.

(b) The employee should provide notice to the employing office either in person or by telephone, telegraph, facsimile ("fax") machine or other electronic means. Notice may be given by the employee's spokesperson (e.g., spouse, adult family member or other responsible party) if the employee is unable to do so personally. The employee need not expressly assert rights under the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, or even mention the FMLA, but may only state that leave is needed. The employing office will be expected to obtain any additional required information through informal means. The employee or spokesperson will be expected to provide more information when it can readily be accomplished as a practical matter, taking into consideration the exigencies of the situation.

§ 825.304 What recourse do employing offices have if employees fail to provide the required notice?

(a) An employing office may waive employees' FMLA notice obligations or the employing office's own internal rules on leave notice requirements.

(b) If an employee fails to give 30 days notice for foreseeable leave with no reasonable excuse for the delay, the employing office may delay the taking of FMLA leave until at least 30 days after the date the employee provides notice to the employing office of the need for FMLA leave.

(c) In all cases, in order for the onset of an employee's FMLA leave to be delayed due to lack of required notice, it must be clear that the employee had actual notice of the FMLA notice requirements. This condition would be satisfied by the employing office's proper posting, at the worksite where the employee is employed, of the information regarding the FMLA provided (pursuant to section 301(h)(2) of the CAA) by the Office of Compliance to the employing office in a manner suitable for posting. Furthermore, the need for leave and the approximate date leave would be taken must have been clearly foreseeable to the employee 30 days in advance of the leave. For example, knowledge that an employee would receive a telephone call about the availability of a child for adoption at some unknown point in the future would not be sufficient.

§ 825.305 When must an employee provide medical certification to support FMLA leave?

(a) An employing office may require that an employee's leave to care for the employee's seriously-ill spouse, son, daughter, or parent, or due to the employee's own serious health condition that makes the employee unable to perform one or more of the essential functions of the employee's position, be supported by a certification issued by the health care provider of the employee or the employee's ill family member. An employing office must give notice of a requirement for medical certification each time a certification is required; such notice must be written notice whenever required by § 825.301. An employing office's oral request to an employee to furnish any subsequent medical certification is sufficient.

(b) When the leave is foreseeable and at least 30 days notice has been provided, the employee should provide the medical certification before the leave begins. When this is not possible, the employee must provide the requested certification to the employing office within the time frame requested by the employing office (which must allow at least 15 calendar days after the employing office's request), unless it is not practicable under the particular circumstances to do so despite the employee's diligent, good faith efforts.

(c) In most cases, the employing office should request that an employee furnish certification from a health care provider at the time the employee gives notice of the need for leave or within two business days thereafter, or, in the case of unforeseen leave, within two business days after the leave commences. The employing office may request certification at some later date if the employing office later has reason to question the appropriateness of the leave or its duration.

(d) At the time the employing office requests certification, the employing office must also advise an employee of the anticipated consequences of an employee's failure to provide adequate certification. The employing office shall advise an employee whenever the employing office finds a certification incomplete, and provide the employee a reasonable opportunity to cure any such deficiency.

(e) If the employing office's sick or medical leave plan imposes medical certification requirements that are less stringent than the certification requirements of these regulations, and the employee or employing office elects to substitute paid sick, vacation, personal or family leave for unpaid FMLA leave where authorized (see § 825.207), only the employing office's less stringent sick leave certification requirements may be imposed.

§ 825.306 How much information may be required in medical certifications of a serious health condition?

(a) The Office of Compliance has made available an optional form ("Certification of Physician or Practitioner") for employees' (or their family members) use in obtaining medical certification, including second and third opinions, from health care providers that meets FMLA's certification requirements. (See Appendix B to these regulations.) This optional form reflects certification requirements so as to permit the health care provider to furnish appropriate medical information within his or her knowledge.

(b) The Certification of Physician or Practitioner form is modeled closely on Form WH-380, as revised, which was developed by the Department of Labor (see 29 C.F.R. Part 825, Appendix B). The employing office may use the Office of Compliance's form, or Form WH-380, as revised, or another form containing the same basic information; however, no additional information may be required. In all instances the information on the form must relate only to the serious health condition for which the current need for leave exists. The form identifies the health care provider and type of medical practice (including pertinent specialization, if any), makes maximum use of checklist entries for ease in completing the form, and contains required entries for:

(1) A certification as to which part of the definition of serious health condition" (see § 825.114), if any, applies to the patient's condition, and the medical facts which support the certification, including a brief statement as to how the medical facts meet the criteria of the definition.

(2)(i) The approximate date the serious health condition commenced, and its probable duration, including the probable duration of the patient's present incapacity (defined to mean inability to work, attend school or perform other regular daily activities due to the serious health condition, treatment therefor, or recovery therefrom) if different.

(ii) Whether it will be necessary for the employee to take leave intermittently or to work on a reduced leave schedule basis (i.e., part-time) as a result of the serious health condition (see § 825.117 and § 825.203), and if so, the probable duration of such schedule.

(iii) If the condition is pregnancy or a chronic condition within the meaning of § 825.114(a)(2)(iii), whether the patient is presently incapacitated and the likely duration and frequency of episodes of incapacity.

(3)(i)(A) If additional treatments will be required for the condition, an estimate of the probable number of such treatments.

(B) If the patient's incapacity will be intermittent, or will require a reduced leave schedule, an estimate of the probable number and interval between such treatments, actual or estimated dates of treatment if known, and period required for recovery if any.

(ii) If any of the treatments referred to in subparagraph (i) will be provided by another provider of health services (e.g., physical therapist), the nature of the treatments.

(iii) If a regimen of continuing treatment by the patient is required under the supervision of the health care provider, a general description of the regimen (see § 825.114(b)).

(4) If medical leave is required for the employee's absence from work because of the employee's own condition (including absences due to pregnancy or a chronic condition), whether the employee:

(i) is unable to perform work of any kind;

(ii) is unable to perform any one or more of the essential functions of the employee's position, including a statement of the essential functions the employee is unable to perform (see § 825.115), based on either information provided on a statement from the employing office of the essential functions of the position or, if not provided, discussion with the employee about the employee's job functions; or

(iii) must be absent from work for treatment.

(5)(i) If leave is required to care for a family member of the employee with a serious health condition, whether the patient requires assistance for basic medical or personal needs or safety, or for transportation; or if not, whether the employee's presence to provide psychological comfort would be beneficial to the patient or assist in the patient's recovery. The employee is required to indicate on the form the care he or she will provide and an estimate of the time period.

(ii) If the employee's family member will need care only intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule basis (i.e., part-time), the probable duration of the need.

(c) If the employing office's sick or medical leave plan requires less information to be furnished in medical certifications than the certification requirements of these regulations, and the employee or employing office elects to substitute paid sick, vacation, personal or family leave for unpaid FMLA leave where authorized (see § 825.207), only the employing office's lesser sick leave certification requirements may be imposed.

§ 825.307 What may an employing office do if it questions the adequacy of a medical certification?

(a) If an employee submits a complete certification signed by the health care provider, the employing office may not request additional information from the employee's health care provider. However, a health care provider representing the employing office may contact the employee's health care provider, with the employee's permission, for purposes of clarification and authenticity of the medical certification.

(1) If an employee is on FMLA leave running concurrently with a workers' compensation absence, and the provisions of the workers' compensation statute permit the employing office or the employing office's representative to have direct contact with the employee's workers' compensation health care provider, the employing office may follow the workers' compensation provisions.

(2) An employing office that has reason to doubt the validity of a medical certification may require the employee to obtain a second opinion at the employing office's expense. Pending receipt of the second (or third) medical opinion, the employee is provisionally entitled to the benefits of the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA, including maintenance of group health benefits. If the certifications do not ultimately establish the employee's entitlement to FMLA leave, the leave shall not be designated as FMLA leave and may be treated as paid or unpaid leave under the employing office's established leave policies. The employing office is permitted to designate the health care provider to furnish the second opinion, but the selected health care provider may not be employed on a regular basis by the employing office. See also paragraphs (e) and (f) of this section.

(b) The employing office may not regularly contract with or otherwise regularly utilize the services of the health care provider furnishing the second opinion unless the employing office is located in an area where access to health care is extremely limited (e.g., a rural area where no more than one or two doctors practice in the relevant specialty in the vicinity).

(c) If the opinions of the employee's and the employing office's designated health care providers differ, the employing office may require the employee to obtain certification from a third health care provider, again at the employing office's expense. This third opinion shall be final and binding. The third health care provider must be designated or approved jointly by the employing office and the employee. The employing office and the employee must each act in good faith to attempt to reach agreement on whom to select for the third opinion provider. If the employing office does not attempt in good faith to reach agreement, the employing office will be bound by the first certification. If the employee does not attempt in good faith to reach agreement, the employee will be bound by the second certification. For example, an employee who refuses to agree to see a doctor in the specialty in question may be failing to act in good faith. On the other hand, an employing office that refuses to agree to any doctor on a list of specialists in the appropriate field provided by the employee and whom the employee has not previously consulted may be failing to act in good faith.

(d) The employing office is required to provide the employee with a copy of the second and third medical opinions, where applicable, upon request by the employee. Requested copies are to be provided within two business days unless extenuating circumstances prevent such action.

(e) If the employing office requires the employee to obtain either a second or third opinion the employing office must reimburse an employee or family member for any reasonable out of pocket travel expenses incurred to obtain the second and third medical opinions. The employing office may not require the employee or family member to travel outside normal commuting distance for purposes of obtaining the second or third medical opinions except in very unusual circumstances.

(f) In circumstances when the employee or a family member is visiting in another country, or a family member resides in another country, and a serious health condition develops, the employing office shall accept a medical certification as well as second and third opinions from a health care provider who practices in that country.

§ 825.308 Under what circumstances may an employing office request subsequent recertifications of medical conditions?

(a) For pregnancy, chronic, or permanent/long-term conditions under continuing supervision of a health care provider (as defined in § 825.114(a) (2)(ii), (iii) or (iv)), an employing office may request recertification no more often than every 30 days and only in connection with an absence by the employee, unless:

(1) Circumstances described by the previous certification have changed significantly (e.g., the duration or frequency of absences, the severity of the condition, complications); or

(2) The employing office receives information that casts doubt upon the employee's stated reason for the absence.

(b)(1) If the minimum duration of the period of incapacity specified on a certification furnished by the health care provider is more than 30 days, the employing office may not request recertification until that minimum duration has passed unless one of the conditions set forth in paragraph (c)(1), (2) or (3) of this section is met.

(2) For FMLA leave taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule basis, the employing office may not request recertification in less than the minimum period specified on the certification as necessary for such leave (including treatment) unless one of the conditions set forth in paragraph (c)(1), (2) or (3) of this section is met.

(c) For circumstances not covered by paragraphs (a) or (b) of this section, an employing office may request recertification at any reasonable interval, but not more often than every 30 days, unless:

(1) The employee requests an extension of leave;

(2) Circumstances described by the previous certification have changed significantly (e.g., the duration of the illness, the nature of the illness, complications); or

(3) The employing office receives information that casts doubt upon the continuing validity of the certification.

(d) The employee must provide the requested recertification to the employing office within the time frame requested by the employing office (which must allow at least 15 calendar days after the employing office's request), unless it is not practicable under the particular circumstances to do so despite the employee's diligent, good faith efforts.

(e) Any recertification requested by the employing office shall be at the employee's expense unless the employing office provides otherwise. No second or third opinion on recertification may be required.

§ 825.309 What notice may an employing office require regarding an employee's intent to return to work?

(a) An employing office may require an employee on FMLA leave to report periodically on the employee's status and intent to return to work. The employing office's policy regarding such reports may not be discriminatory and must take into account all of the relevant facts and circumstances related to the individual employee's leave situation.

(b) If an employee gives unequivocal notice of intent not to return to work, the employing office's obligations under FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, to maintain health benefits (subject to applicable requirements of law) and to restore the employee cease. However, these obligations continue if an employee indicates he or she may be unable to return to work but expresses a continuing desire to do so.

(c) It may be necessary for an employee to take more leave than originally anticipated. Conversely, an employee may discover after beginning leave that the circumstances have changed and the amount of leave originally anticipated is no longer necessary. An employee may not be required to take more FMLA leave than necessary to resolve the circumstance that precipitated the need for leave. In both of these situations, the employing office may require that the employee provide the employing office reasonable notice (i.e., within two business days) of the changed circumstances where foreseeable. The employing office may also obtain information on such changed circumstances through requested status reports.

§ 825.310 Under what circumstances may an employing office require that an employee submit a medical certification that the employee is able (or unable) to return to work (i.e., a "fitness-for-duty" report)?

(a) As a condition of restoring an employee whose FMLA leave was occasioned by the employee's own serious health condition that made the employee unable to perform the employee's job, an employing office may have a uniformly-applied policy or practice that requires all similarly-situated employees (i.e., same occupation, same serious health condition) who take leave for such conditions to obtain and present certification from the employee's health care provider that the employee is able to resume work.

(b) If the terms of a collective bargaining agreement govern an employee's return to work, those provisions shall be applied. Similarly, requirements under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), as made applicable by the CAA, that any return-to-work physical be job-related and consistent with business necessity apply. For example, an attorney could not be required to submit to a medical examination or inquiry just because her leg had been amputated. The essential functions of an attorney's job do not require use of both legs; therefore such an inquiry would not be job related. An employing office may require a warehouse laborer, whose back impairment affects the ability to lift, to be examined by an orthopedist, but may not require this employee to submit to an HIV test where the test is not related to either the essential functions of his/her job or to his/her impairment.

(c) An employing office may seek fitness-for-duty certification only with regard to the particular health condition that caused the employee's need for FMLA leave. The certification itself need only be a simple statement of an employee's ability to return to work. A health care provider employed by the employing office may contact the employee's health care provider with the employee's permission, for purposes of clarification of the employee's fitness to return to work. No additional information may be acquired, and clarification may be requested only for the serious health condition for which FMLA leave was taken. The employing office may not delay the employee's return to work while contact with the health care provider is being made.

(d) The cost of the certification shall be borne by the employee and the employee is not entitled to be paid for the time or travel costs spent in acquiring the certification.

(e) The notice that employing offices are required to give to each employee giving notice of the need for FMLA leave regarding their FMLA rights and obligations as made applicable by the CAA (see § 825.301) shall advise the employee if the employing office will require fitness-for-duty certification to return to work. If the employing office has a handbook explaining employment policies and benefits, the handbook should explain the employing office's general policy regarding any requirement for fitness-for-duty certification to return to work. Specific notice shall also be given to any employee from whom fitness-for-duty certification will be required either at the time notice of the need for leave is given or immediately after leave commences and the employing office is advised of the medical circumstances requiring the leave, unless the employee's condition changes from one that did not previously require certification pursuant to the employing office's practice or policy. No second or third fitness-for-duty certification may be required.

(f) An employing office may delay restoration to employment until an employee submits a required fitness-for-duty certification unless the employing office has failed to provide the notices required in paragraph (e) of this section.

(g) An employing office is not entitled to certification of fitness to return to duty when the employee takes intermittent leave as described in § 825.203.

(h) When an employee is unable to return to work after FMLA leave because of the continuation, recurrence, or onset of the employee's or family member's serious health condition, thereby preventing the employing office from recovering its share of health benefit premium payments made on the employee's behalf during a period of unpaid FMLA leave, the employing office may require medical certification of the employee's or the family member's serious health condition. (See § 825.213(a)(3).) The cost of the certification shall be borne by the employee and the employee is not entitled to be paid for the time or travel costs spent in acquiring the certification.

§ 825.311 What happens if an employee fails to satisfy the medical certification and/or recertification requirements?

(a) In the case of foreseeable leave, an employing office may delay the taking of FMLA leave to an employee who fails to provide timely certification after being requested by the employing office to furnish such certification (i.e., within 15 calendar days, if practicable), until the required certification is provided.

(b) When the need for leave is not foreseeable, or in the case of recertification, an employee must provide certification (or recertification) within the time frame requested by the employing office (which must allow at least 15 days after the employing office's request) or as soon as reasonably possible under the particular facts and circumstances. In the case of a medical emergency, it may not be practicable for an employee to provide the required certification within 15 calendar days. If an employee fails to provide a medical certification within a reasonable time under the pertinent circumstances, the employing office may delay the employee's continuation of FMLA leave. If the employee never produces the certification, the leave is not FMLA leave.

(c) When requested by the employing office pursuant to a uniformly applied policy for similarly-situated employees, the employee must provide medical certification at the time the employee seeks reinstatement at the end of FMLA leave taken for the employee's serious health condition, that the employee is fit for duty and able to return to work (see § 825.310(a)) if the employing office has provided the required notice (see § 825.301(c)); the employing office may delay restoration until the certification is provided. In this situation, unless the employee provides either a fitness-for-duty certification or a new medical certification for a serious health condition at the time FMLA leave is concluded, the employee may be terminated. See also § 825.213(a)(3).

§ 825.312 Under what circumstances may an employing office refuse to provide FMLA leave or reinstatement to eligible employees?

(a) If an employee fails to give timely advance notice when the need for FMLA leave is foreseeable, the employing office may delay the taking of FMLA leave until 30 days after the date the employee provides notice to the employing office of the need for FMLA leave. (See § 825.302.)

(b) If an employee fails to provide in a timely manner a requested medical certification to substantiate the need for FMLA leave due to a serious health condition, an employing office may delay continuation of FMLA leave until an employee submits the certificate. (See §§ 825.305 and 825.311.) If the employee never produces the certification, the leave is not FMLA leave.

(c) If an employee fails to provide a requested fitness-for-duty certification to return to work, an employing office may delay restoration until the employee submits the certificate. (See §§ 825.310 and 825.311.)

(d) An employee has no greater right to reinstatement or to other benefits and conditions of employment than if the employee had been continuously employed during the FMLA leave period. Thus, an employee's rights to continued leave, maintenance of health benefits, and restoration cease under FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, if and when the employment relationship terminates (e.g., layoff), unless that relationship continues, for example, by the employee remaining on paid FMLA leave. If the employee is recalled or otherwise re-employed, an eligible employee is immediately entitled to further FMLA leave for an FMLA-qualifying reason. An employing office must be able to show, when an employee requests restoration, that the employee would not otherwise have been employed if leave had not been taken in order to deny restoration to employment. (See § 825.216.)

(e) An employing office may require an employee on FMLA leave to report periodically on the employee's status and intention to return to work. (See § 825.309.) If an employee unequivocally advises the employing office either before or during the taking of leave that the employee does not intend to return to work, and the employment relationship is terminated, the employee's entitlement to continued leave, maintenance of health benefits, and restoration ceases unless the employment relationship continues, for example, by the employee remaining on paid leave. An employee may not be required to take more leave than necessary to address the circumstances for which leave was taken. If the employee is able to return to work earlier than anticipated, the employee shall provide the employing office two business days notice where feasible; the employing office is required to restore the employee once such notice is given, or where such prior notice was not feasible.

(f) An employing office may deny restoration to employment, but not the taking of FMLA leave and the maintenance of health benefits, to an eligible employee only under the terms of the key employee's exemption. Denial of reinstatement must be necessary to prevent substantial and grievous economic injury to the employing office's operations. The employing office must notify the employee of the employee's status as a key employee and of the employing office's intent to deny reinstatement on that basis when the employing office makes these determinations. If leave has started, the employee must be given a reasonable opportunity to return to work after being so notified. (See § 825.219.)

(g) An employee who fraudulently obtains FMLA leave from an employing office is not protected by job restoration or maintenance of health benefits provisions of the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA.

(h) If the employing office has a uniformly-applied policy governing outside or supplemental employment, such a policy may continue to apply to an employee while on FMLA leave. An employing office which does not have such a policy may not deny benefits to which an employee is entitled under FMLA as made applicable by the CAA on this basis unless the FMLA leave was fraudulently obtained as in paragraph (g) of this section.

SUBPART D—WHAT ENFORCEMENT MECHANISMS DOES THE CAA PROVIDE?

§ 825.400 What can employees do who believe that their rights under the FMLA as made applicable by the CAA have been violated?

(a) To commence a proceeding, a covered employee alleging a violation of the rights and protections of the FMLA made applicable by the CAA must request counseling by the Office of Compliance not later than 180 days after the date of the alleged violation. If a covered employee misses this deadline, the covered employee will be unable to obtain a remedy under the CAA.

(b) The following procedures are available under title IV of the CAA for covered employees who believe that their rights under FMLA as made applicable by the CAA have been violated:

- (1) counseling;
- (2) mediation; and
- (3) election of either—

(A) a formal complaint, filed with the Office of Compliance, and a hearing before a hearing officer, subject to review by the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance, and judicial review in the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit; or

(B) a civil action in a district court of the United States.

(c) Regulations of the Office of Compliance describing and governing these procedures are found at [proposed rules can be found at 141 Cong. Rec. S17012 (November 14, 1995)].

SUBPART E—[RESERVED.]

SUBPART F—WHAT SPECIAL RULES APPLY TO EMPLOYEES OF SCHOOLS?

§ 825.600 To whom do the special rules apply?

(a) Certain special rules apply to employees of "local educational agencies," including public school boards and elementary schools under their jurisdiction, and private elementary and secondary schools. The special rules do not apply to other kinds of educational institutions, such as colleges and universities, trade schools, and preschools.

(b) Educational institutions are covered by FMLA as made applicable by the CAA (and these special rules). The usual requirements for employees to be "eligible" do apply, however.

(c) The special rules affect the taking of intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule, or leave near the end of an academic term (semester), by instructional employees. "Instructional employees" are those whose principal function is to teach and instruct students in a class, a small group, or an individual setting. This term includes not only teachers, but also athletic coaches, driving instructors, and special education assistants such as signers for the hearing impaired. It does not include, and the special rules do not apply to, teacher assistants or aides who do not have as their principal job actual teaching or instructing, nor does it include auxiliary personnel such as counselors, psychologists, or curriculum specialists. It also does not include cafeteria workers, maintenance workers, or bus drivers.

(d) Special rules which apply to restoration to an equivalent position apply to all employees of local educational agencies.

§ 825.601 What limitations apply to the taking of intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule?

(a) Leave taken for a period that ends with the school year and begins the next semester is leave taken consecutively rather than intermittently. The period during the summer vacation when the employee would not have been required to report for duty is not counted against the employee's FMLA leave entitlement. An instructional employee who is on FMLA leave at the end of the school year must be provided with any benefits over the summer vacation that employees would normally receive if they had been working at the end of the school year.

(1) If an eligible instructional employee needs intermittent leave or leave on a reduced leave schedule to care for a family member, or for the employee's own serious health condition, which is foreseeable based on planned medical treatment, and the employee would be on leave for more than 20 percent of the total number of working days over the period the leave would extend, the employing office may require the employee to choose either to:

(i) Take leave for a period or periods of a particular duration, not greater than the duration of the planned treatment; or

(ii) Transfer temporarily to an available alternative position for which the employee is qualified, which has equivalent pay and benefits and which better accommodates recurring periods of leave than does the employee's regular position.

(2) These rules apply only to a leave involving more than 20 percent of the working days during the period over which the leave extends. For example, if an instructional employee who normally works five days each week needs to take two days of FMLA leave per week over a period of several weeks, the special rules would apply. Employees taking leave which constitutes 20 percent or less of the working days during the leave period would not be subject to transfer to an alternative position. "Periods of a particular duration" means a block, or blocks, of time beginning no earlier than the first day for which leave is needed and ending no later than the last day on which leave is needed, and may include one uninterrupted period of leave.

(b) If an instructional employee does not give required notice of foreseeable FMLA leave (see § 825.302) to be taken intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule, the employing office may require the employee to take leave of a particular duration, or to transfer temporarily to an alternative position. Alternatively, the employing office may require the employee to delay the taking of leave until the notice provision is met. See § 825.207(h).

§ 825.602 What limitations apply to the taking of leave near the end of an academic term?

(a) There are also different rules for instructional employees who begin leave more than five weeks before the end of a term, less than five weeks before the end of a term, and less than three weeks before the end of a term. Regular rules apply except in circumstances when:

(1) An instructional employee begins leave more than five weeks before the end of a term. The employing office may require the employee to continue taking leave until the end of the term if—

(i) The leave will last at least three weeks, and

(ii) The employee would return to work during the three-week period before the end of the term.

(2) The employee begins leave for a purpose other than the employee's own serious health condition during the five-week period before the end of a term. The employing office may require the employee to continue taking leave until the end of the term if—

(i) The leave will last more than two weeks, and

(ii) The employee would return to work during the two-week period before the end of the term.

(3) The employee begins leave for a purpose other than the employee's own serious health condition during the three-week period before the end of a term, and the leave will last more than five working days. The employing office may require the employee to continue taking leave until the end of the term.

(b) For purposes of these provisions, "academic term" means the school semester, which typically ends near the end of the calendar year and the end of spring each school year. In no case may a school have more than two academic terms or semesters each year for purposes of FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. An example of leave falling within these provisions would be where an employee plans two weeks of leave to care for a family member which will begin three weeks before the end of the term. In that situation, the employing office could require the employee to stay out on leave until the end of the term.

§ 825.603 Is all leave taken during "periods of a particular duration" counted against the FMLA leave entitlement?

(a) If an employee chooses to take leave for "periods of a particular duration" in the case of intermittent or reduced schedule leave, the entire period of leave taken will count as FMLA leave.

(b) In the case of an employee who is required to take leave until the end of an academic term, only the period of leave until the employee is ready and able to return to work shall be charged against the employee's FMLA leave entitlement. The employing office has the option not to require the employee to stay on leave until the end of the school term. Therefore, any additional leave required by the employing office to the end of the school term is not counted as FMLA leave; however, the employing office shall be required to maintain the employee's group health insurance and restore the employee to the same or equivalent job including other benefits at the conclusion of the leave.

§ 825.604 What special rules apply to restoration to "an equivalent position"?

The determination of how an employee is to be restored to "an equivalent position" upon return from FMLA leave will be made on the basis of "established school board policies and practices, private school policies and practices, and collective bargaining agreements." The "established policies" and collective bargaining agreements used as a basis for restoration must be in writing, must be made known to the employee prior to the taking of FMLA leave, and must clearly explain the employee's restoration rights upon return from leave. Any established policy which is used as the basis for restoration of an employee to "an equivalent position" must provide substantially the same protections as provided in the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, for reinstated employees. See § 825.215. In other words, the policy or collective bargaining agreement must provide for restoration to an "equivalent position" with equivalent employment benefits, pay, and other terms and conditions of employment. For example, an employee may not be restored to a position requiring additional licensure or certification.

SUBPART G—HOW DO OTHER LAWS, EMPLOYING OFFICE PRACTICES, AND COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS AFFECT EMPLOYEE RIGHTS UNDER THE FMLA AS MADE APPLICABLE BY THE CAA?

§ 825.700 What if an employing office provides more generous benefits than required by FMLA as Made Applicable by the CAA?

(a) An employing office must observe any employment benefit program or plan that provides greater family or medical leave rights to employees than the rights established by the FMLA. Conversely, the rights established by the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, may not be diminished by any employment benefit program or plan. For example, a provision of a CBA which provides for reinstatement to a position that is not equivalent because of seniority (e.g., provides lesser pay) is superseded by FMLA. If an employing office provides greater unpaid family leave rights than are afforded by FMLA, the employing office is not required to extend additional rights afforded by FMLA, such as maintenance of health benefits (other than as may be otherwise required by law), to the additional leave period not covered by FMLA. If an employee takes paid or unpaid leave and the employing office does not designate the leave as FMLA leave, the leave taken does not count against an employee's FMLA entitlement.

(b) Nothing in this FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, prevents an employing office from amending existing leave and employee benefit programs, provided they comply with FMLA as made applicable by the CAA. However, nothing in the FMLA, as made applicable by the CAA, is intended to discourage employing offices from adopting or retaining more generous leave policies.

(c) [Reserved.]

§ 825.702 How does FMLA affect anti-discrimination laws as applied by section 201 of the CAA?

(a) Nothing in FMLA modifies or affects any applicable law prohibiting discrimination on the basis of race, religion, color, national origin, sex, age, or disability (e.g., Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended by the Pregnancy Discrimination Act), as made applicable by the CAA. FMLA's legislative history explains that FMLA is "not intended to modify or affect the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, as amended, the regulations concerning employment which have been promulgated pursuant to that statute, or the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, or the regulations issued under that act. Thus, the leave provisions of the [FMLA] are wholly distinct from the reasonable accommodation obligations of employing offices covered under the [ADA] * * * or the Federal government itself. The purpose of the FMLA is to make leave available to eligible employees and employing offices within its coverage, and not to limit already existing rights and protection." S. Rep. No. 3, 103d Cong., 1st Sess. 38 (1993). An employing office must therefore provide leave under whichever statutory provision provides the greater rights to employees.

(b) If an employee is a qualified individual with a disability within the meaning of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), the employing office must make reasonable accommodations, etc., barring undue hardship, in accordance with the ADA. At the same time, the employing office must afford an employee his or her FMLA rights. ADA's "disability" and FMLA's "serious health condition" are different concepts, and must be analyzed separately. FMLA entitles eligible employees to 12 weeks of leave in any 12-month period, whereas the ADA allows an indeterminate amount of leave, barring undue hardship, as a reasonable accommodation. FMLA requires employing offices to maintain employees' group health plan coverage during FMLA leave on the same conditions as coverage would have been provided if the employee had been continuously employed during the leave period, whereas ADA does not require maintenance of health insurance unless other employees receive health insurance during leave under the same circumstances.

(c)(1) A reasonable accommodation under the ADA might be accomplished by providing an individual with a disability with a part-time job with no health benefits, assuming the employing office did not ordinarily provide health insurance for part-time employees. However, FMLA would permit an employee to work a reduced leave schedule until the equivalent of 12 workweeks of leave were used, with group health benefits maintained during this period. FMLA permits an employing office to temporarily transfer an employee who is taking leave intermittently or on a reduced leave schedule to an alternative position, whereas the ADA allows an accommodation of reassignment to an equivalent, vacant position only if the employee cannot perform the essential functions of the employee's present position and an accommodation is not possible in the employee's present position, or an accommodation in the employee's present position would cause an undue hardship. The examples in the following paragraphs of this section demonstrate how the two laws would interact with respect to a qualified individual with a disability.

(2) A qualified individual with a disability who is also an "eligible employee" entitled to FMLA leave requests 10 weeks of medical leave as a reasonable accommodation, which the employing office grants because it is not an undue hardship. The employing office advises the employee that the 10 weeks of leave is also being designated as FMLA leave and will count towards the employee's FMLA leave entitlement. This designation does not prevent the parties from also treating the leave as a reasonable accommodation and reinstating the employee into the same job, as required by the ADA, rather than an equivalent position under FMLA, if that is the greater right available to the employee. At the same time, the employee would be entitled under FMLA to have the employing office maintain group health plan coverage during the leave, as that requirement provides the greater right to the employee.

(3) If the same employee needed to work part-time (a reduced leave schedule) after returning to his or her same job, the employee would still be entitled under FMLA to have group health plan coverage maintained for the remainder of the two-week equivalent of FMLA leave entitlement, notwithstanding an employing office policy that part-time employees do not receive health insurance. This employee would be entitled under the ADA to reasonable accommodations to enable the employee to perform the essential functions of the part-time position. In addition, because the employee is working a part-time schedule as a reasonable accommodation, the employee would be shielded from FMLA's provision for temporary assignment to a different alternative position. Once the employee has exhausted his or her remaining FMLA leave entitlement while working the reduced (part-time) schedule, if the employee is a qualified individual with a disability, and if the employee is unable to return to the same full-time position at that time, the employee might continue to work part-time as a reasonable accommodation, barring undue hardship; the employee would then be entitled to only those employment benefits ordinarily provided by the employing office to part-time employees.

(4) At the end of the FMLA leave entitlement, an employing office is required under FMLA to reinstate the employee in the same or an equivalent position, with equivalent pay and benefits, to that which the employee held when leave commenced. The employing office's FMLA obligations would be satisfied if the employing office offered the employee an equivalent full-time position. If the employee were unable to perform the essential functions of that equivalent position even with reasonable accommodation, because of a disability, the ADA may require the employing office to make a reasonable accommodation at that time by allowing the employee to work part-time or by reassigning the employee to a vacant position, barring undue hardship.

(d)(1) If FMLA entitles an employee to leave, an employing office may not, in lieu of FMLA leave entitlement, require an employee to take a job with a reasonable accommodation. However, ADA may require that an employing office offer an employee the opportunity to take such a position. An employing office may not change the essential functions of the job in order to deny FMLA leave. See §825.220(b).

(2) An employee may be on a workers' compensation absence due to an on-the-job injury or illness which also qualifies as a serious health condition under FMLA. The workers' compensation absence and FMLA leave may run concurrently (subject to proper notice and designation by the employing office). At some point the health care provider providing medical care pursuant to the workers' compensation injury may certify the employee is able to return to work in a "light duty" position. If the employing office offers such a position, the employee is permitted but not required to accept the position (see §825.220(d)). As a result, the employee may no longer qualify for payments from the workers' compensation benefit plan, but the employee is entitled to continue on unpaid FMLA leave either until the employee is able to return to the same or equivalent job the employee left or until the 12-week FMLA leave entitlement is exhausted. See §825.207(d)(2). If the employee returning from the workers' compensation injury is a qualified individual with a disability, he or she will have rights under the ADA.

(e) If an employing office requires certifications of an employee's fitness for duty to return to work, as permitted by FMLA under a uniform policy, it must comply with the ADA requirement that a fitness for duty physical be job-related and consistent with business necessity.

(f) Under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended by the Pregnancy Discrimination Act, and as made applicable by the CAA, an employing office should provide the same benefits for women who are pregnant as the employing office provides to other employees with short-term disabilities. Because Title VII does not require employees to be employed for a certain period of time to be protected, an employee employed for less than 12 months by the employing office (and, therefore, not an "eligible" employee under FMLA) may not be denied maternity leave if the employing office normally provides short-term disability benefits to employees with the same tenure who are experiencing other short-term disabilities.

(g) For further information on Federal anti-discrimination laws applied by section 201 of the CAA, including Title VII and the ADA, individuals are encouraged to contact the Office of Compliance.

Instrumental activities of daily living include cooking, cleaning, shopping, taking public transportation, paying bills, maintaining a residence, using telephones and directories, using a post office, etc.

Instructional employee: See Teacher.

Intermittent leave means leave taken in separate periods of time due to a single illness or injury, rather than for one continuous period of time, and may include leave of periods from an hour or more to several weeks. Part 1630.2(h), (i), and (j), issued by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), 42 U.S.C. 12101 et seq., define these terms.

Reduced leave schedule means a leave schedule that reduces the usual number of hours per workweek, or hours per workday, of an employee.

Secretary means the Secretary of Labor or authorized representative.

Serious health condition entitling an employee to FMLA leave means: (1) an illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves: (i) Inpatient care (i.e., an overnight stay) in a hospital, hospice, or residential medical care facility, including any period of incapacity (for purposes of this section, defined to mean inability to work, attend school or perform other regular daily activities due to the serious health condition, treatment therefor, or recovery therefrom), or any subsequent treatment in connection with such inpatient care; or (ii) Continuing treatment by a health care provider. A serious health condition involving continuing treatment by a health care provider includes:

(A) A period of incapacity (i.e., inability to work, attend school or perform other regular daily activities due to the serious health condition, treatment therefor, or recovery therefrom) of more than three consecutive calendar days, including any subsequent treatment or period of incapacity relating to the same condition, that also involves: (1) Treatment two or more times by a health care provider, by a nurse or physician's assistant under direct supervision of a health care provider, or by a provider of health care services (e.g., physical therapist) under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider; or (2) Treatment by a health care provider on at least one occasion which results in a regimen of continuing treatment under the supervision of the health care provider.

(B) Any period of incapacity due to pregnancy, or for prenatal care.

(C) Any period of incapacity or treatment for such incapacity due to a chronic serious health condition. A chronic serious health condition is one which: (1) Requires periodic visits for treatment by a health care provider, or by a nurse or physician's assistant under direct supervision of a health care provider; (2) Continues over an extended period of time (including recurring episodes of a single underlying condition); and (3) May cause episodic rather than a continuing period of incapacity (e.g., asthma, diabetes, epilepsy, etc.).

(D) A period of incapacity which is permanent or long-term due to a condition for which treatment may not be effective. The employee or family member must be under the continuing supervision of, but need not be receiving active treatment by, a health care provider. Examples include Alzheimer's, a severe stroke, or the terminal stages of a disease.

(E) Any period of absence to receive multiple treatments (including any period of recovery therefrom) by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider, either for restorative surgery after an accident or other injury, or for a condition that would likely result in a period of incapacity of more than three consecutive calendar days in the absence of medical intervention or treatment, such as cancer (chemotherapy, radiation, etc.), severe arthritis (physical therapy), kidney disease (dialysis).

(2) Treatment for purposes of paragraph (1) of this definition includes (but is not limited to) examinations to determine if a serious health condition exists and evaluations of the condition. Treatment does not include routine physical examinations, eye examinations, or dental examinations. Under paragraph (1)(ii)(A)(2) of this definition, a regimen of continuing treatment includes, for example, a course of prescription medication (e.g., an antibiotic) or therapy requiring special equipment to resolve or alleviate the health condition (e.g., oxygen). A regimen of continuing treatment that includes the taking of over-the-counter medications such as aspirin, antihistamines, or salves; or bed-rest, drinking fluids, exercise, and other similar activities that can be initiated without a visit to a health care provider, is not, by itself, sufficient to constitute a regimen of continuing treatment for purposes of FMLA leave.

(3) Conditions for which cosmetic treatments are administered (such as most treatments for acne or plastic surgery) are not "serious health conditions" unless inpatient hospital care is required or unless complications develop. Ordinarily, unless complications arise, the common cold, the flu, ear aches, upset stomach, minor ulcers, headaches other than migraine, routine dental or orthodontia problems, periodontal disease, etc., are examples of conditions that do not meet the definition of a serious health condition and do not qualify for FMLA leave. Restorative dental or plastic surgery after an injury or removal of cancerous growths are serious health conditions provided all the other conditions of this regulation are met. Mental illness resulting from stress or allergies may be serious health conditions, but only if all the conditions of this section are met.

(4) Substance abuse may be a serious health condition if the conditions of this section are met. However, FMLA leave may only be taken for treatment for substance abuse by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services on referral by a health care provider. On the other hand, absence because of the employee's use of the substance, rather than for treatment, does not qualify for FMLA leave.

(5) Absences attributable to incapacity under paragraphs (1)(ii) (B) or (C) of this definition qualify for FMLA leave even though the employee or the immediate family member does not receive treatment from a health care provider during the absence, and even if the absence does not last more than three days. For example, an employee with asthma may be unable to report for work due to the onset of an asthma attack or because the employee's health care provider has advised the employee to stay home when the pollen count exceeds a certain level. An employee who is pregnant may be unable to report to work because of severe morning sickness.

Son or daughter means a biological, adopted, or foster child, a stepchild, a legal ward, or a child of a person standing in loco parentis, who is under 18 years of age or 18 years of age or older and incapable of self-care because of a mental or physical disability.

Spouse means a husband or wife as defined or recognized under State law for purposes of marriage in the State where the employee resides, including common law marriage in States where it is recognized.

State means any State of the United States or the District of Columbia or any Territory or possession of the United States.

Teacher (or employee employed in an instructional capacity, or instructional employee) means an employee employed principally in an instructional capacity by an educational agency or school whose principal function is to teach and instruct students in a class, a small group, or an individual setting, and includes athletic coaches, driving instructors, and special education assistants such as signers for the hearing impaired. The term does not include teacher assistants or aides who do not have as their principal function actual teaching or instructing, nor auxiliary personnel such as counselors, psychologists, curriculum specialists, cafeteria workers, maintenance workers, bus drivers, or other primarily noninstructional employees.

A "Serious Health Condition" means an illness, injury, impairment, or physical or mental condition that involves one of the following:

1. Hospital care.—Inpatient care (i.e., an overnight stay) in a hospital, hospice, or residential medical care facility, including any period of incapacity² or subsequent treatment in connection with or consequent to such inpatient care.

2. Absence plus treatment.—(a) A period of incapacity² of more than three consecutive calendar days (including any subsequent treatment or period of incapacity² relating to the same condition), that also involves: (1) Treatment³ two or more times by a health care provider, by a nurse or physician's assistant under direct supervision of a health care provider, or by a provider of health care services (e.g., physical therapist) under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider; or (2) Treatment by a health care provider on at least one occasion which results in a regimen of continuing treatment⁴ under the supervision of the health care provider.

3. Pregnancy.—Any period of incapacity due to pregnancy, or for prenatal care.

4. Chronic conditions requiring treatments.—A chronic condition which: (1) Requires periodic visits for treatment by a health care provider, or by a nurse or physician's assistant under direct supervision of a health care provider; (2) Continues over an extended period of time (including recurring episodes of a single underlying condition); and (3) May cause episodic rather than a continuing period of incapacity² (e.g., asthma, diabetes, epilepsy, etc.)

5. Permanent/long-term conditions requiring supervision.—A period of incapacity² which is permanent or long-term due to a condition for which treatment may not be effective. The employee or family member must be under the continuing supervision of, but need not be receiving active treatment by, a health care provider. Examples include Alzheimer's, a severe stroke, or the terminal stages of a disease.

6. Multiple treatments (non-chronic conditions).—Any period of absence to receive multiple treatments (including any period of recovery therefrom) by a health care provider or by a provider of health care services under orders of, or on referral by, a health care provider, either for restorative surgery after an accident or other injury, or for a condition that would likely result in a period of incapacity² of more than three consecutive calendar days in the absence of medical intervention or treatment, such as cancer (chemotherapy, radiation, etc.), severe arthritis (physical therapy), kidney disease (dialysis).

OFFICE OF COMPLIANCE

THE CONGRESSIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY ACT OF 1995: EXTENSION OF RIGHTS AND PROTECTIONS UNDER THE WORKER ADJUSTMENT AND RETRAINING NOTIFICATION ACT OF 1988

Notice of proposed rulemaking

Summary: The Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance is publishing proposed regulations to implement section 205 of the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), P.L. 104-1, 2 U.S.C. §1315, to employees of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and certain Congressional instrumentalities listed below.

The CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven labor and employment statutes to covered employees within the legislative branch. Section 205 provides that no employing office (meeting the size thresholds for coverage as an employer) shall be closed or a mass layoff ordered within the meaning of section 3 of the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act, 29 U.S.C. §2102 ("WARN"), until the end of a 60-day period after the employing office serves written notice of such prospective closing or layoff to representatives of covered employees or, if there are no representatives, to covered employees. 2 U.S.C. §1315(a). The provisions of section 205 are effective January 23, 1996, one year after the enactment date of the CAA, for all employing offices except the General Accounting Office and the Library of Congress. Accordingly, this notice does not include rules applicable to the General Accounting Office of the Library of Congress.

This notice proposes that substantially similar regulations be adopted for the Senate, the House of Representatives, and the seven Congressional instrumentalities; and their employees. Accordingly:

(1) Senate.—It is proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate, and this proposal regarding the Senate and its employees is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Deputy Executive Director for the Senate.

(3) Certain Congressional instrumentalities.—It is further proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the Capitol Guide Board, the Capitol Police Board, the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, the Office of the Attending Physician, the Office of Compliance, and the Office of Technology Assessment, and their employees; and this proposal regarding these seven Congressional instrumentalities is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Executive Director.

Supplementary information:

Background and summary: The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), P.L. 104-1, was enacted into law on January 23, 1995. 2 U.S.C. §§1301 et seq. In general, the CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment statutes to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch. Section 205 of the CAA provides that no employing office shall be closed or a mass layoff ordered within the meaning of section 3 of the Worker Adjustment Retraining and Notification Act of 1988, 29 U.S.C. §2102 ("WARN") until the end of a 60-day period after the employing office serves written notice of such prospective closing or layoff to representatives of covered employees or, if there are no representatives, to covered employees. 2 U.S.C. §1315(a). Section 225(f) of the CAA provides that "[e]xcept where inconsistent with definitions and exemptions provided in this Act, the definitions and exemptions of [WARN] shall apply under this Act." 2 U.S.C. §1361(f). Sections 304(a) and 205(c) of the CAA directs the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance established under the CAA to issue regulations implementing the section. 2 U.S.C. §§1384(a), 1315(c). Section 205(c) further states that such regulations "shall be the same as substantive regulations issued by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsections (a) and (b) except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section." 2 U.S.C. §1315(c).

The Board has published in the Congressional Record for comment an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking. See 141 Cong. Rec. S14542 (daily ed., Sept. 28, 1995). After consideration of the public comments relating to rulemaking under section 205 of the CAA, the Board is publishing this proposed regulation.

With the exception of technical and nomenclature changes, the Board does not propose substantial departure from otherwise applicable Secretary's regulations. See Secretary of Labor's regulations at 20 C.F.R. Part 639; Final rule published at 54 Federal Register 16042 (April 20, 1989).

In developing these proposed regulations, a number of issues have been identified and explored. The Board proposes to resolve these issues as described below, and it particularly invites comments on the following issues:

1. Employer coverage.—WARN contains size thresholds for coverage as an employer and specifies which workers are counted in making coverage determinations. Section 225(f)(2) of the CAA makes clear that the provisions of WARN determining coverage based on size shall apply in determining coverage of employing offices under the CAA. 2 U.S.C. §1361(f)(2). Thus, the Secretary's regulations implementing WARN's coverage requirements (20 C.F.R. §639.3(a)) are included in these regulations.

2. Notification of State dislocated worker assistance programs and coordination with job placement and retraining programs.—In contrast to section 3 of WARN, section 205 of the CAA does not require an employing office to give notice of the office closing or layoff to the "State dislocated worker unit" or to the "chief elected official of the unit of local government" within which such closing or layoff is to occur. See 29 U.S.C. §2102(a)(2). Therefore, the proposed regulations do not require notice to be given to State and local entities and do not include the Secretary's regulations regarding such notice.

3. Exemption for strikes and lockouts.—The proposed regulations do not include the Secretary's regulations regarding WARN's exemption for strikes and lockouts (20 C.F.R. §639.5). Strikes are prohibited in federal employment. 18 U.S.C. §1918. Similarly, the Federal Labor Relations Act, which applies to covered employees and employing offices under section 220 of the CAA, prohibits picketing that interferes with agency operations, as well as slowdowns, stoppages and strikes under any circumstances. 5 U.S.C. §7116(b)(7). Therefore, these regulations are inapplicable to legislative branch employees.

4. "Faltering company" exemption.—Section 3(b) of WARN sets forth three conditions under which the notification period may be reduced to less than 60 days. Under the "faltering company" exemption, an employer must be in the process of seeking capital or business during the time that the 60-day notice would have been required. This section is inapplicable to employment within the legislative branch and the Secretary's regulation implementing this section (20 C.F.R. §639.9(a)) is not included in the proposed regulations. The "unforeseen business circumstances" and "natural disaster" exceptions in sections 3(b)(2)(A) and (B) of WARN, appear to be applicable and thus the Secretary's regulations (29 C.F.R. §639.9(b) and (c)) have been included in the proposed regulations, with appropriate modifications.

5. Extension of short-term layoff.—The Secretary's regulations address the Notice requirement where an employer extends short-term layoffs (6 months or less) beyond 6 months due to business circumstances (including unforeseeable changes in price or cost) not reasonably foreseeable at the time the initial layoff is required. 20 C.F.R. §639.4(b). There may be circumstances where an employing office may be required to extend short-term layoffs due to unforeseen events (such as unforeseen budget or funding reductions or eliminations). Therefore, the Board includes this provision (with appropriate modification as part of its proposed regulations.

6. Sale of business.—The Board includes the Secretary's regulations regarding Notice in the case of a sale of all or parts of a business (20 C.F.R. §639.4(c)).

Recommended Method of Approval: The Board recommends that (1) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate be approved by the Senate by resolution; (2) the version of the proposed regulations that apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives be approved by the House of Representatives by resolution; and (3) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to other covered employees and employing offices be approved by the Congress by concurrent resolution.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on this 20th day of November, 1995.

GLEN D. NAGER,

Chair of the Board, Office of Compliance.

§ 639.1 Purpose and scope.

(a) Purpose of WARN as applied by the CAA.—Section 205 of the Congressional Accountability Act, P.L. 104-1 ("CAA"), provides protection to covered employees and their families by requiring employing offices to provide notification 60 calendar days in advance of office closings and mass layoffs within the meaning of section 3 of the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act of 1988, 29 U.S.C. §2102. Advance notice provides workers and their families some transition time to adjust to the prospective loss of employment, to seek and obtain alternative jobs and, if necessary, to enter skill training or retraining that will allow these workers to successfully compete in the job market. As used in these regulations, WARN shall refer to the provisions of WARN applied to covered employing offices by section 205 of the CAA.

(b) Scope of these regulations.—These regulations establish basic definitions and rules for giving notice, implementing the provisions of WARN. The objective of these regulations is to establish clear principles and broad guidelines which can be applied in specific circumstances. However, it is recognized that rulemaking cannot address the multitude of employing office-specific situations in which advance notice will be given.

(c) Notice encouraged where not required.—An employing office that is not required to comply with the notice requirements of section 205 of the CAA is encouraged, to the extent possible, to provide notice to its employees about a proposal to close an office or permanently reduce its workforce.

(d) Notice in ambiguous situations.—It is civically desirable and it would appear to be good business practice for an employing office to provide advance notice to its workers or unions when terminating a significant number of employees. In practical terms, there are some questions and ambiguities of interpretation inherent in the application of WARN that cannot be addressed in these regulations. It is therefore prudent for employing offices to weigh the desirability of advance notice against the possibility of expensive and time-consuming litigation to resolve disputes where notice has not been given. The Office encourages employing offices to give notice in all circumstances.

(e) WARN not to supersede other laws and contracts.—The provisions of WARN do not supersede any otherwise applicable laws or collective bargaining agreements that provide for additional notice or additional rights and remedies. If such law or agreement provides for a longer notice period, WARN notice shall run concurrently with that additional notice period. Collective bargaining agreements may be used to clarify or amplify the terms and conditions of WARN, but may not reduce WARN rights.

§ 639.2 What does WARN require?

WARN requires employing offices that are planning an office closing or a mass layoff to give affected employees at least 60 days' notice of such an employment action. While the 60-day period is the minimum for advance notice, this provision is not intended to discourage employing offices from voluntarily providing longer periods of advance notice. Not all office closings and layoffs are subject to WARN, and certain employment thresholds must be reached before WARN applies. WARN sets out specific exemptions, and provides for a reduction in the notification period in particular circumstances. Remedies authorized under section 205 of the CAA may be assessed against employing offices that violate WARN requirements.

§ 639.3 Definitions.

(a) Employing office.—(1) The term "employing office" means any business enterprise that employs—

(i) 100 or more employees, excluding part-time employees; or

(ii) employs 100 or more employees, including part-time employees, who in the aggregate work at least 4,000 hours per week, exclusive of overtime.

Workers on temporary layoff or on leave who have a reasonable expectation of recall are counted as employees. An employee has a "reasonable expectation of recall" when he/she understands, through notification or through common practice, that his/her employment with the employer has been temporarily interrupted and that he/she will be recalled to the same or to a similar job.

(2) Workers, other than part-time workers, who are exempt from notice under section 4 of WARN, are nonetheless counted as employees for purposes of determining coverage as an employer.

(3) An employing office may have one or more sites of employment under common ownership or control.

(b) Office closing.—The term "office closing" means the permanent or temporary shutdown of a "single site of employment", or one or more "facilities or operating units" within a single site of employment, if the shutdown results in an "employment loss" during any 30-day period at the single site of employment for 50 or more employees, excluding any part-time employees. An employment action that results in the effective cessation of the work performed by a unit, even if a few employees remain, is a shutdown. A "temporary shutdown" triggers the notice requirement only if there are a sufficient number of terminations, layoffs exceeding 6 months, or reductions in hours of work as specified under the definition of "employment loss."

(c) Mass layoff.—(1) The term "mass layoff" means a reduction in force which first, is not the result of an office closing, and second, results in an employment loss at the single site of employment during any 30-day period for:

- (i) At least 33 percent of the active employees, excluding part-time employees, and
- (ii) At least 50 employees, excluding part-time employees.

Where 500 or more employees (excluding part-time employees) are affected, the 33% requirement does not apply, and notice is required if the other criteria are met. Office closings involve employment loss which results from the shutdown of one or more distinct units within a single site or the entire site. A mass layoff involves employment loss, regardless of whether one or more units are shut down at the site.

(2) Workers, other than part-time workers, who are exempt from notice under section 4 of WARN are nonetheless counted as employees for purposes of determining coverage as an office closing or mass layoff. For example, if an employer closes a temporary project on which 10 permanent and 40 temporary workers are employed, a covered office closing has occurred although only 10 workers are entitled to notice.

(d) Representative.—The term “representative” means an exclusive representative of employees within the meaning of 5 U.S.C. § 7101 et seq., as applied to covered employees and employing offices by section 220 of the CAA, 2 U.S.C. § 1351.

(e) Affected employees.—The term “affected employees” means employees who may reasonably be expected to experience an employment loss as a consequence of a proposed plant closing or mass layoff by their employer. This includes individually identifiable employees who will likely lose their jobs because of bumping rights or other factors, to the extent that such individual workers reasonably can be identified at the time notice is required to be given. The term “affected employees” includes managerial and supervisory employees. Consultant or contract employees who have a separate employment relationship with another employing office or employer and are paid by that other employing office or employer, or who are self-employed, are not “affected employees” of the business to which they are assigned. In addition, for purposes of determining whether coverage thresholds are met, either incumbent workers in jobs being eliminated or, if known 60 days in advance, the actual employees who suffer an employment loss may be counted.

(f) Employment loss.—(1) The term “employment loss” means (i) an employment termination, other than a discharge for cause, voluntary departure, or retirement, (ii) a layoff exceeding 6 months, or (iii) a reduction in hours of work of individual employees of more than 50% during each month of any 6-month period.

(2) Where a termination or a layoff (see paragraphs (f)(1)(i) and (ii) of this section) is involved, an employment loss does not occur when an employee is reassigned or transferred to employing office-sponsored programs, such as retraining or job search activities, as long as the reassignment does not constitute a constructive discharge or other involuntary termination.

(3) An employee is not considered to have experienced an employment loss if the closing or layoff is the result of the relocation or consolidation of part or all of the employing office’s operations and, prior to the closing or layoff—

(i) The employing office offers to transfer the employee to a different site of employment within a reasonable commuting distance with no more than a 6-month break in employment, or

(ii) The employing office offers to transfer the employee to any other site of employment regardless of distance with no more than a 6-month break in employment, and the employee accepts within 30 days of the offer or of the closing or layoff, whichever is later.

(4) A “relocation or consolidation” of part or all of an employing office’s operations, for purposes of paragraph § 639.3(f)(3), means that some definable operations are transferred to a different site of employment and that transfer results in an office closing or mass layoff.

(g) Part-time employee.—The term “part-time” employee means an employee who is employed for an average of fewer than 20 hours per week or who has been employed for fewer than 6 of the 12 months preceding the date on which notice is required, including workers who work full-time. This term may include workers who would traditionally be understood as “seasonal” employees. The period to be used for calculating whether a worker has worked “an average of fewer than 20 hours per week” is the shorter of the actual time the worker has been employed or the most recent 90 days.

(h) Single site of employment.—(1) A single site of employment can refer to either a single location or a group of contiguous locations. Separate facilities across the street from one another may be considered a single site of employment.

(2) There may be several single sites of employment within a single building, such as an office building, if separate employing offices conduct activities within such a building. For example, an office building housing 50 different employing offices will contain 50 single sites of employment. The offices of each employing office will be its single site of employment.

(3) Separate buildings or areas which are not directly connected or in immediate proximity may be considered a single site of employment if they are in reasonable geographic proximity, used for the same purpose, and share the same staff and equipment.

(4) Non-contiguous sites in the same geographic area which do not share the same staff or operational purpose should not be considered a single site.

(5) Contiguous buildings operated by the same employing office which have separate management and have separate workforces are considered separate single sites of employment.

(6) For workers whose primary duties require travel from point to point, who are outstationed, or whose primary duties involve work outside any of the employing office’s regular employment sites (e.g., railroad workers, bus drivers, salespersons), the single site of employment to which they are assigned as their home base, from which their work is assigned, or to which they report will be the single site in which they are covered for WARN purposes.

(7) Foreign sites of employment are not covered under WARN. U.S. workers at such sites are counted to determine whether an employing office is covered as an employer under § 639.3(a).

(8) The term “single site of employment” may also apply to truly unusual organizational situations where the above criteria do not reasonably apply. The application of this definition with the intent to evade the purpose of WARN to provide notice is not acceptable.

(i) Facility or operating unit.—The term “facility” refers to a building or buildings. The term “operating unit” refers to an organizationally or operationally distinct product, operation, or specific work function within or across facilities at the single site.

§ 639.4 Who must give notice?

Section 205(a)(1) of the CAA states that “[n]o employing office shall be closed or a mass layoff ordered within the meaning of section 3 of [WARN] until the end of a 60-day period after the employer serves written notice of such prospective closing or layoff * * *.” Therefore, an employing office that is anticipating carrying out an office closing or mass layoff is required to give notice to affected employees or their representative(s). (See definitions in § 639.3 of this part.)

(a) It is the responsibility of the employing office to decide the most appropriate person within the employing office’s organization to prepare and deliver the notice to affected employees or their representative(s). In most instances, this may be the local site office manager, the local personnel director or a labor relations officer.

(b) An employing office that has previously announced and carried out a short-term layoff (6 months or less) which is being extended beyond 6 months due to business circumstances not reasonably foreseeable at the time of the initial layoff is required to give notice when it becomes reasonably foreseeable that the extension is required. A layoff extending beyond 6 months from the date the layoff commenced for any other reason shall be treated as an employment loss from the date of its commencement.

(c) In the case of the sale of part or all of a business, section 2(b)(1) of WARN, as applied by the CAA, defines who the “employer” is. The seller is responsible for providing notice of any plant closing or mass layoff which takes place up to and including the effective date (time) of the sale, and the buyer is responsible for providing notice of any office closing or mass layoff that takes place thereafter. Affected employees are always entitled to notice; at all times the employer is responsible for providing notice.

(1) If the seller is made aware of any definite plans on the part of the buyer to carry out an office closing or mass layoff within 60 days of purchase, the seller may give notice to affected employees as an agent of the buyer, if so empowered. If the seller does not give notice, the buyer is, nevertheless, responsible to give notice. If the seller gives notice as the buyer’s agent, the responsibility for notice still remains with the buyer.

(2) It may be prudent for the buyer and seller to determine the impacts of the sale on workers, and to arrange between them for advance notice to be given to affected employees or their representative(s), if a mass layoff or office closing is planned.

§ 639.5 When must notice be given?

(a) General rule.—(1) With certain exceptions discussed in paragraphs (b), (c) and (d) of this section and in § 639.9 of this part, notice must be given at least 60 calendar days prior to any planned office closing or mass layoff, as defined in these regulations. When all employees are not terminated on the same date, the date of the first individual termination within the statutory 30-day or 90-day period triggers the 60-day notice requirement. A worker’s last day of employment is considered the date of that worker’s layoff. The first and each subsequent group of terminatees are entitled to a full 60 days’ notice. In order for an employer to decide whether issuing notice is required, the employer should—

(i) Look ahead 30 days and behind 30 days to determine whether employment actions both taken and planned will, in the aggregate for any 30-day period, reach the minimum numbers for an office closing or a mass layoff and thus trigger the notice requirement; and

(ii) Look ahead 90 days and behind 90 days to determine whether employment actions

both taken and planned each of which separately is not of sufficient size to trigger WARN coverage will, in the aggregate for any 90-day period, reach the minimum numbers for an office closings or a mass layoff and thus trigger the notice requirement. An employing office is not, however, required under section 3(d) to give notice if the employing office demonstrates that the separate employment losses are the result of separate and distinct actions and causes, and are not an attempt to evade the requirements of WARN.

(2) The point in time at which the number of employees is to be measured for the purpose of determining coverage is the date the first notice is required to be given. If this "snapshot" of the number of employees employed on that date is clearly unrepresentative of the ordinary or average employment level, then a more representative number can be used to determine coverage. Examples of unrepresentative employment levels include cases when the level is near the peak or trough of an employment cycle or when large upward or downward shifts in the number of employees occur around the time notice is to be given. A more representative number may be an average number of employees over a recent period of time or the number of employees on an alternative date which is more representative of normal employment levels. Alternative methods cannot be used to evade the purpose of WARN, and should only be used in unusual circumstances.

(b) Transfers.—(1) Notice is not required in certain cases involving transfers, as described under the definition of "employment loss" at § 639.3(f) of this part.

(2) An offer of reassignment to a different site of employment should not be deemed to be a "transfer" if the new job constitutes a constructive discharge.

(3) The meaning of the term "reasonable commuting distance" will vary with local conditions. In determining what is a "reasonable commuting distance," consideration should be given to the following factors: geographic accessibility of the place of work, the quality of the roads, customarily available transportation, and the usual travel time.

(4) In cases where the transfer is beyond reasonable commuting distance, the employing office may become liable for failure to give notice if an offer to transfer is not accepted within 30 days of the offer or of the closing or layoff (whichever is later). Depending upon when the offer of transfer was made by the employing office, the normal 60-day notice period may have expired and the office closing or mass layoff may have occurred. An employing office is, therefore, well advised to provide 60-day advance notice as part of the transfer offer.

(c) Temporary employment.—(1) No notice is required if the closing is of a temporary facility, or if the closing or layoff is the result of the completion of a particular project or undertaking, and the affected employees were hired with the understanding that their employment was limited to the duration of the facility or the project or undertaking.

(2) Employees must clearly understand at the time of hire that their employment is temporary. When such understandings exist will be determined by reference to employment contracts, collective bargaining agreements, or employment practices of an industry or a locality, but the burden of proof will lie with the employing office to show that the temporary nature of the project or facility was clearly communicated should questions arise regarding the temporary employment understandings.

§ 639.6 Who must receive notice?

Section 3(a) of WARN provides for notice to each representative of the affected employees as of the time notice is required to be given or, if there is no such representative at that time, to each affected employee.

(a) Representative(s) of affected employees.—Written notice is to be served upon the chief elected officer of the exclusive representative(s) or bargaining agent(s) of affected employees at the time of the notice. If this person is not the same as the officer of the local union(s) representing affected employees, it is recommended that a copy also be given to the local union official(s).

(b) Affected employees.—Notice is required to be given to employees who may reasonably be expected to experience an employment loss. This includes employees who will likely lose their jobs because of bumping rights or other factors, to the extent that such workers can be identified at the time notice is required to be given. If, at the time notice is required to be given, the employing office cannot identify the employee who may reasonably be expected to experience an employment loss due to the elimination of a particular position, the employing office must provide notice to the incumbent in that position. While part-time employees are not counted in determining whether office closing or mass layoff thresholds are reached, such workers are due notice.

§ 639.7 What must the notice contain?

(a) Notice must be specific.—(1) All notice must be specific.

(2) Where voluntary notice has been given more than 60 days in advance, but does not contain all of the required elements set out in this section, the employer must ensure that all of the information required by this section is provided in writing to the parties listed in § 639.6 at least 60 days in advance of a covered employment action.

(3) Notice may be given conditional upon the occurrence or nonoccurrence of an event, such as the renewal of a major contract, only when the event is definite and the consequences of its occurrence or nonoccurrence will necessarily, in the normal course of business, lead to a covered office closing or mass layoff less than 60 days after the event. The notice must contain each of the elements set out in this section.

(4) The information provided in the notice shall be based on the best information available to the employing office at the time the notice is served. It is not the intent of the regulations that errors in the information provided in a notice that occur because events subsequently change or that are minor, inadvertent errors are to be the basis for finding a violation of WARN.

(b) As used in this section, the term "date" refers to a specific date or to a 14-day period during which a separation or separations are expected to occur. If separations are planned according to a schedule, the schedule should indicate the specific dates on which or the beginning date of each 14-day period during which any separations are expected to occur. Where a 14-day period is used, notice must be given at least 60 days in advance of the first day of the period.

(c) Notice to each representative of affected employees is to contain:

(1) The name and address of the employment site where the office closing or mass layoff will occur, and the name and telephone number of a company official to contact for further information;

(2) A statement as to whether the planned action is expected to be permanent or temporary and, if the entire office is to be closed, a statement to that effect;

(3) The expected date of the first separation and the anticipated schedule for making separations;

(4) The job titles of positions to be affected and the names of the workers currently holding affected jobs.

The notice may include additional information useful to the employees such as information on available dislocated worker assistance, and, if the planned action is expected to be temporary, the estimated duration, if known.

(d) Notice to each affected employee who does not have a representative is to be written in language understandable to the employees and is to contain:

(1) A statement as to whether the planned action is expected to be permanent or temporary and, if the entire office is to be closed, a statement to that effect;

(2) The expected date when the office closing or mass layoff will commence and the expected date when the individual employee will be separated;

(3) An indication whether or not bumping rights exist;

(4) The name and telephone number of a company official to contact for further information.

The notice may include additional information useful to the employees such as information on available dislocated worker assistance, and, if the planned action is expected to be temporary, the estimated duration, if known.

§ 639.8 How is the notice served?

Any reasonable method of delivery to the parties listed under § 639.6 of this part which is designed to ensure receipt of notice of at least 60 days before separation is acceptable (e.g., first class mail, personal delivery with optional signed receipt). In the case of notification directly to affected employees, insertion of notice into pay envelopes is another viable option. A ticketed notice, i.e., preprinted notice regularly included in each employee's pay check or pay envelope, does not meet the requirements of WARN.

§ 639.9 When may notice be given less than 60 days in advance?

Section 3(b) of WARN, applied by section 205 of the CAA, sets forth two conditions under which the notification period may be reduced to less than 60 days. The employing office bears the burden of proof that conditions for the exception have been met. If one of the exceptions is applicable, the employing office must give as much notice as is practicable to the union and non-represented employees and this may, in some circumstances, be notice after the fact. The employing office must, at the time notice actually is given, provide a brief statement of the reason for reducing the notice period, in addition to the other elements set out in § 639.7.

(a) The "unforeseeable business circumstances" exception under section 3(b)(2)(A) of WARN, as applied under the CAA, applies to office closings and mass layoffs caused by circumstances that were not reasonably foreseeable at the time that 60-day notice would have been required.

(1) An important indicator of a circumstance that is not reasonably foreseeable is that the circumstance is caused by some sudden, dramatic, and unexpected action or condition outside the employing office's control.

(2) The test for determining when circumstances are not reasonably foreseeable focuses on an employing office's business judgment. The employing office must exercise such reasonable business judgment as would a similarly situated employing office in predicting the demands of its operations. The employing office is not required, however, to accurately predict general economic conditions that also may affect its operations.

(b) The "natural disaster" exception in section 3(b)(2)(B) of WARN applies to office closings and mass layoffs due to any form of a natural disaster.

(1) Floods, earthquakes, droughts, storms, tidal waves or tsunamis and similar effects of nature are natural disasters under this provision.

(2) To qualify for this exception, an employing office must be able to demonstrate that its office closing or mass layoff is a direct result of a natural disaster.

(3) While a disaster may preclude full or any advance notice, such notice as is practicable, containing as much of the information required in §639.7 as is available in the circumstances of the disaster still must be given, whether in advance or after the fact of an employment loss caused by a natural disaster.

(4) Where an office closing or mass layoff occurs as an indirect result of a natural disaster, the exception does not apply but the "unforeseeable business circumstance" exception described in paragraph (a) of this section may be applicable.

§ 639.10 When may notice be extended?

Additional notice is required when the date or schedule of dates of a planned office closing or mass layoff is extended beyond the date or the ending date of any 14-day period announced in the original notice as follows:

(a) If the postponement is for less than 60 days, the additional notice should be given as soon as possible to the parties identified in §639.6 and should include reference to the earlier notice, the date (or 14-day period) to which the planned action is postponed, and the reasons for the postponement. The notice should be given in a manner which will provide the information to all affected employees.

(b) If the postponement is for 60 days or more, the additional notice should be treated as new notice subject to the provisions of §§639.5, 639.6, and 639.7 of this part. Rolling notice, in the sense of routine periodic notice, given whether or not an office closing or mass layoff is impending, and with the intent to evade the purpose of the Act rather than give specific notice as required by WARN, is not acceptable.

OFFICE OF COMPLIANCE

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995: Extension of Rights and Protections Under the Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988

Notice of proposed rulemaking

Summary: The Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance is publishing proposed regulations to implement Sections 204 (a) and (b) of the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA") to employees of the House of Representatives, the Senate, and certain Congressional instrumentalities listed below.

The CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven labor and employment and statutes to covered employees within the legislative branch. Section 204(a) provides that no employing may require any covered employee (including a covered employee who does not work in that employing office) to take a lie detector test where such test would be prohibited if required by an employer under paragraphs (1), (2) or (3) of section 3 of the Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 ("EPPA"), 29 U.S.C. §2002 (1), (2) or (3). 2 U.S.C. §1314(a). Section 204(a) of the CAA also applies the waiver provision of section 6(d) of the EPPA (29 U.S.C. §2005(d)) to covered employees. Id. The provisions of section 204 are effective January 23, 1996, one year after the enactment date of the CAA, for all employing offices except the General Accounting Office and the Library of Congress. 2 U.S.C. §1314(d). Accordingly, this notice does not include rules applicable to the General Accounting Office or the Library of Congress.

The purpose of these regulations is to implement section 204 of the CAA, which provides protection for most covered employees from lie detector testing, either pre-employment or during the course of employment, with certain limited exceptions. This notice proposes that substantially similar regulations be adopted for the Senate, the House of Representatives, and the seven Congressional instrumentalities; and their employees. Accordingly:

(1) Senate. It is proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate, and this proposal regarding the Senate and its employees is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Deputy Executive Director for the Senate.

(2) House of Representatives. It is further proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives, and this proposal regarding the House of Representatives and its employees is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Deputy Executive Director for the House of Representatives.

(3) Certain Congressional instrumentalities. It is further proposed that regulations as described in this notice be included in the body of regulations that shall apply to the Capitol Guide Board, the Capitol Police Board, the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, the Office of the Attending Physician, the Office of Compliance, and the Office of Technology Assessment, and their employees; and this proposal regarding these seven Congressional instrumentalities is recommended by the Office of Compliance's Executive Director.

Supplementary information:

Background and summary

The Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 ("CAA"), P.L. 104-1, 109 Stat. 3, was enacted on January 23, 1995. 2 U.S.C. §§1301-1438. In general, the CAA applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment and public access statutes to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch. Section 204(a) of the CAA provides that no employing office may require any covered employee (including a covered employee who does not work in that employing office) to take a lie detector test where such test would be prohibited if required by an employer under paragraphs (1), (2) or (3) of section 3 of the Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988, 29 U.S.C. §2002 (1), (2) or (3) ("EPPA"). 2 U.S.C. §1314(a). Section 204(a) of the EPPA also applies the waiver provisions of section 6(d) of the EPPA (29 U.S.C. §2005(d)) to covered employees. Id. Section 225(f) of the CAA provides that, "[e]xcept where inconsistent with definitions and exemptions provided in this Act, the definitions and exemptions of the [EPPA] shall apply under this Act." 2 U.S.C. §1361(f)(1). Section 204(c) of the CAA requires the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance established under the CAA to issue regulations implementing the section. 2 U.S.C. §1314(c). Section 204(c) further states that such regulations "shall be the same as substantive regulations promulgated by the Secretary of Labor to implement the statutory provisions referred to in subsections (a) and (b) except insofar as the Board may determine, for good cause shown and stated together with the regulation, that a modification of such regulations would be more effective for the implementation of the rights and protections under this section." Id.

The regulations in this Part are divided into three subparts. Subpart A contains the provisions generally applicable to covered employing offices, including the requirements relating to the prohibitions on lie detector use. Subpart B sets forth rules regarding the statutory exemptions from application of the rights and protections of the EPPA. Subpart C sets forth the restrictions on lie detector usage under such exemptions. Subpart D sets forth the rules on recordkeeping and the disclosure of polygraph test information.

In preparing the proposed regulations, the Board has considered the comments submitted in response to the Board's general Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published at 141 Cong. Rec. S14542 (daily ed. Sept. 28, 1995), regarding regulations that the Board should issue in this area. In developing these proposed Regulations, a number of issues have been identified and explored. The Board proposes to resolve these issues as described below, and it particularly invites comments on the following issues:

(1) Notice posting and recordkeeping requirements. The CAA incorporates only the prohibitions on the use of lie detector tests contained in paragraphs (1), (2) and (3) of section 3 of the EPPA (prohibiting use of lie detectors subject to limited exceptions), the waiver provisions of section 6(d) of the EPPA, the civil action remedies provision of section 6(c)(1) of the EPPA, and the exemptions and definitions of the EPPA (to the extent appropriate and not inconsistent with exemptions and definitions in the CAA). See sections 204(a), (b) and 225(f) of the CAA, 2 U.S.C. §§1314(a), (b) and 1361(f)(1). As a result, the provisions of sections 4 (directing the Secretary to prepare a notice of the provisions of the EPPA and requiring employers to post such notices), and 5 (authorizing the Secretary to issue regulations, make investigations and require recordkeeping) of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §§2003, 2004, are not incorporated into the CAA.

On September 28, 1995, the Board issued an Advance Notice of Proposed Rulemaking ("ANPR") for publication in the Congressional Record which invited comments regarding whether and to what extent the Board should impose notice posting and recordkeeping requirements on employing offices. After considering the comments received, the Board has concluded that the CAA does not incorporate the notice and recordkeeping requirements of the EPPA and that, as a consequence, such requirements may not be imposed at this time under the "good cause" provision under section 204(c). See Notice of Proposed Rulemaking on the Fair Labor Standards Act submitted concurrently with this notice.

The EPPA does contain specific record-keeping requirements which are included in sections of the EPPA applied by the CAA. Section 8 of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2007, which sets forth the restrictions on the use of exemptions under the EPPA, requires any employer conducting a polygraph test under the ongoing investigations exemption (which is incorporated into the CAA under section 225(f)(1)) to provide a signed a statement to the examinee setting forth the factual basis for testing the particular employees, a copy of which is retained by the employer for at least 3 years. 29 U.S.C. §2006(d)(4)(C). The portions of the Secretary's regulations requiring such recordkeeping (29 C.F.R. §§801.12, 801.26, and 801.30) have been included in the proposed regulations (Sections 1.12, 1.26, and 1.30), but only to the extent that such regulatory provisions are derived from section 8 of the EPPA.

(2) Administrative enforcement. The CAA does not incorporate Section 6(a) and (b) of the EPPA (providing for civil penalties in an administrative enforcement scheme and an administrative civil penalty remedy), 29 U.S.C. §2005. A civil action in federal court or an administrative claim before the Board (following counseling and mediation) is the exclusive means by which covered employees may enforce their EPPA rights and protections. See sections 401–416 of the CAA, 29 U.S.C. §§1401–1416. Therefore, the proposed regulations, consistent with the terms of Section 204 of the CAA, exclude any reference to the Secretary's authority to make investigations and initiate enforcement actions. Consistent with section 204(c)(1) of the CAA, 29 U.S.C. §1314(c)(1), the proposed regulations state that the Board has authority to issue regulations under this section.

(3) Exemptions. Section 225(f) of the CAA, 29 U.S.C. §1361(f), provides that "[e]xcept where inconsistent with definitions and exemptions provided in this Act, the definitions and exemptions in the laws made applicable by this Act shall apply under this Act."

(a) Exemption for security services and drug security, drug theft, or drug diversion investigations. Section 7(e) of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2006(e), provides an exemption authorizing the use of polygraph tests, but no other types of lie detector tests, by certain armored car, security alarm, and security guard employers. Section 7(e) is limited by its terms to private employers and the Board is not aware of any employing office whose functions would meet the requirements of the section 7(e) exemption. Therefore, the Board has not included the Secretary's regulations implementing section 7(e) (29 C.F.R. §801.14) as part of its proposed regulations.

Section 7(f) of the EPPA allows certain employers authorized to manufacture, distribute, or dispense controlled substances to use polygraph tests, but no other types of lie detector tests, under certain circumstances. There may be entities within the legislative branch, such as the Office of the Attending Physician, that might have employees whose duties meet the drug security, drug theft or drug diversion investigations exemption. Therefore, the Board's proposed regulation (at section 1.13, infra) includes a modified version of the Secretary's regulations under the drug security, drug theft or drug diversion investigations exemption (29 C.F.R. §801.13) as part of its proposed regulations.

(b) Exemption for national defense and security. Section 7(b) of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2006(b), provides, among other things, that nothing in the EPPA shall be construed to prohibit the administration of any lie detector test by the Federal Government, in the performance of any intelligence or counter-intelligence functions, to certain employees whose duties involve access to information classified at the level of top secret or designated as being within a special access program under 4.2(a) of Executive Order 12356 (or a successor Executive Order). There may be some employing offices within the legislative branch, such as intelligence committees, that have employees whose duties meet the exemption under section 7(b) of the EPPA. Therefore, the Board proposes a modified version of the Secretary's regulations implementing such exemption (29 C.F.R. §801.11) in its proposed regulations.

(c) FBI contractor exemption. Section 7(c) of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2006(c), exempts Federal Bureau of Investigation contractors from the requirements of the EPPA under certain circumstances. This provision has no apparent applicability to employing offices. Therefore, the Board does not include the Secretary's regulations implementing this provision (29 C.F.R. §801.11(e)) as part of its proposed regulations.

(d) Limited exemption for ongoing investigations. Section 7(d) of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2006(d), provides a limited exemption permitting polygraph tests, but no other types of lie detector tests, in the context of employer investigations involving economic loss or injury to the employer's business, such as theft, embezzlement, misappropriation, or an act of unlawful industrial espionage or sabotage. The Board believes that there may be situations where an employing office may be able to meet the exemption under section 7(d). Accordingly, the Board includes the Secretary's regulations implementing this exemption (29 C.F.R. §801.12) as part of its proposed regulations.

(e) Exemption for employees of the Capitol Police. By Notice of Proposed Rulemaking published September 28, 1995 in the Congressional Record, the Board recommended regulations authorizing the Capitol Police to use lie detector tests in certain circumstances. After both appropriate consideration of comments received and further deliberation about the matter, the Board has determined to incorporate such regulations into these proposed regulations. However, this proposed rule adds new section 1.4(e) to make clear it that the regulation excluding the Capitol Police from section 204 of the CAA with respect to its own employees is not a total exemption of the Capitol Police from the prohibitions on the employment-related use of lie detector tests by the Capitol Police. Specifically, section 1.4(e) provides that the Capitol Police may not require covered employees other than Capitol Police employees to take a lie detector test except in circumstances where the Capitol Police administers a lie detector test during the course of an "ongoing investigation" by the Capitol Police. This additional language makes clear the Board's intent to prohibit employing offices other than the Capitol Police from administering lie detector tests on their covered employees indirectly through the Capitol Police.

(4) Restrictions on use of exemptions. Section 204(a) provides that no employing office may require a covered employee to take a lie detector test where an employer would be prohibited from requiring such a test under paragraphs (1), (2) or (3) of section 3 of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2002(1), (2) or (3). Section 3 of the EPPA provides that, except as provided in sections 7 and 8 of the EPPA (29 U.S.C. §§2006 and 2007), it shall be unlawful for an employer to require a lie detector test under paragraphs (1), (2) or (3). Thus, the restrictions on the use of exemptions under 29 U.S.C. §2007 are incorporated into section 204 and the Secretary's regulations implementing this section (29 C.F.R. Subpart C) are included in the Board's proposed regulations.

(5) Confidentiality provisions and notice to examinees. Section 204 of the CAA incorporates the restrictions on disclosure set forth in section 9 of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2008, since such restrictions are the conditions on which polygraphs are allowed under the exemptions of section 7 of the EPPA. Accordingly, the Board includes in its proposed regulations (with appropriate modifications) the Secretary of Labor's regulations regarding restrictions on disclosure of polygraph information (29 C.F.R. §801.35). See section 225(f)(1) of the CAA (except where inconsistent with definitions and exemptions provided in the CAA, the definitions and exemptions under the laws made applicable by the CAA apply under the CAA). For the same reasons, the Board includes in its proposed regulations the requirement of the Secretary's regulations that employing offices authorized to conduct polygraph tests under the exemptions established in these regulations to give written notice to the examinee of the confidentiality and other requirements.

(6) Technical and nomenclature changes. The proposed regulations make technical and nomenclature changes, where appropriate, to conform to the provisions of the CAA. See, e.g., 29 C.F.R. §§801.1 (Purpose and scope), 801.2 (Definitions), 801.3 (Coverage).

Recommended method of approval

The Board recommends that (1) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the Senate and employees of the Senate be approved by the Senate by resolution; (2) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to the House of Representatives and employees of the House of Representatives be approved by the House of Representatives by resolution; and (3) the version of the proposed regulations that shall apply to other covered employees and employing offices be approved by the Congress by concurrent resolution.

Signed at Washington, D.C., on this 20th day of November, 1995

GLEN D. NAGER,
*Chair of the Board
Office of Compliance.*

Sec. 1.1 Purpose and scope

Enacted into law on January 23, 1995, the Congressional Accountability Act (“CAA”) directly applies the rights and protections of eleven federal labor and employment law statutes to covered employees and employing offices within the legislative branch. Section 204(a) of the CAA, 2 U.S.C. §1314(a) provides that no employing office may require any covered employee (including a covered employee who does not work in that employing office) to take a lie detector test where such test would be prohibited if required by an employer under paragraphs (1), (2) or (3) of section 3 of the Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 (EPPA) 29 U.S.C. §2002(1), (2) or (3). The purpose of this part is to set forth the regulations to carry out the provisions of Section 204 of the CAA.

Subpart A contains the provisions generally applicable to covered employers, including the requirements relating to the prohibitions on lie detector use. Subpart B sets forth rules regarding the statutory exemptions from application of section 204 of the CAA. Subpart C sets forth the restrictions on polygraph usage under such exemptions. Subpart D sets forth the rules on record-keeping and the disclosure of polygraph test information.

Sec. 1.2 Definitions

For purposes of this part:

(a) Act or CAA means the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 (P.L. 104–1, 109 Stat. 3, 2 U.S.C. §§ 1301–1438).

(b) EPPA means the Employee Polygraph Protection Act of 1988 (Pub. L. 100–347, 102 Stat. 646, 29 U.S.C. §§ 2001–2009) as applied to covered employees and employing offices by Section 204 of the CAA.

(c) The term covered employee means any employee of (1) the House of Representatives; (2) the Senate; (3) the Capitol Guide Service; (4) the Congressional Budget Office; (5) the Office of the Architect of the Capitol; (6) the Office of the Attending Physician; (7) the Office of Compliance; or (8) the Office of Technology Assessment.

(d) The term employee includes an applicant for employment and a former employee.

(e) The term employee of the Office of the Architect of the Capitol includes any employee of the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, the Botanic Gardens, or the Senate Restaurants.

(f) The term employee of the Capitol Police includes any member or officer of the Capitol Police.

(g) The term employee of the House of Representatives includes an individual occupying a position the pay for which is disbursed by the Clerk of the House of Representatives, or another official designated by the House of Representatives, or any employment position in an entity that is paid with funds derived from the clerk-hire allowance of the House of Representatives but not any such individual employed by any entity listed in subparagraphs (3) through (8) of paragraph (c) above.

(h) The term employee of the Senate includes any employee whose pay is disbursed by the Secretary of the Senate, but not any such individual employed by any entity listed in subparagraphs (3) through (8) of paragraph (c) above.

(i) The term employing office means (1) the personal office of a Member of the House of Representatives or of a Senator; (2) a committee of the House of Representatives or the Senate or a joint committee; (3) any other office headed by a person with the final authority to appoint, hire, discharge, and set the terms, conditions, or privileges of the employment of an employee of the House of Representatives or the Senate; or (4) the Capitol Guide Board, the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of the Architect of the Capitol, the Office of the Attending Physician, the Office of Compliance, and the Office of Technology Assessment. The term employing office includes any person acting directly or indirectly in the interest of an employing office in relation to an employee or prospective employee. A polygraph examiner either employed for or whose services are retained for the sole purpose of administering polygraph tests ordinarily would not be deemed an employing office with respect to the examinees. Any reference to “employer” in these regulations includes employing offices.

(j)(1) The term lie detector means a polygraph, deceptograph, voice stress analyzer, psychological stress evaluator, or any other similar device (whether mechanical or electrical) that is used, or the results of which are used, for the purpose of rendering a diagnostic opinion regarding the honesty or dishonesty of an individual. Voice stress analyzers, or psychological stress evaluators, include any systems that utilize voice stress analysis, whether or not an opinion on honesty or dishonesty is specifically rendered.

(2) The term lie detector does not include medical tests used to determine the presence or absence of controlled substances or alcohol in bodily fluids. Also not included in the definition of lie detector are written or oral tests commonly referred to as “honesty” or “paper and pencil” tests, machine-scored or otherwise; and graphology tests commonly referred to as handwriting tests.

(k) The term polygraph means an instrument that—

(1) Records continuously, visually, permanently, and simultaneously changes in cardiovascular, respiratory, and electrodermal patterns as minimum instrumentation standards; and

(2) Is used, or the results of which are used, for the purpose of rendering a diagnostic opinion regarding the honesty or dishonesty of an individual.

(l) Board means the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance.

(m) Office means the Office of Compliance.

Sec. 1.3 Coverage

The coverage of Section 204 of the Act extends to any “covered employee” or “covered employing office” without regard to the number of employees or the employing office’s effect on interstate commerce.

Sec. 1.4 Prohibitions on lie detector use

(a) Section 204 of the CAA provides that, subject to the exemptions of the EPPA incorporated into the CAA under section 225(f) of the CAA, as set forth in Sec. 1.10 through 1.12 of this Part, employing offices are prohibited from: (1) Requiring, requesting, suggesting or causing, directly or indirectly, any covered employee or prospective employee to take or submit to a lie detector test; (2) Using, accepting, or inquiring about the results of a lie detector test of any covered employee or prospective employee; and (3) Discharging, disciplining, discriminating against, denying employment or promotion, or threatening any covered employee or prospective employee to take such action for refusal or failure to take or submit to such test, or on the basis of the results of a test. The above prohibitions apply irrespective of whether the covered employee referred to in paragraphs (1), (2) or (3), above, works in that employing office.

(b) An employing office that reports a theft or other incident involving economic loss to police or other law enforcement authorities is not engaged in conduct subject to the prohibitions under paragraph (a) of this section if, during the normal course of a subsequent investigation, such authorities deem it necessary to administer a polygraph test to a covered employee(s) suspected of involvement in the reported incident. Employing offices that cooperate with police authorities during the course of their investigations into criminal misconduct are likewise not deemed engaged in prohibitive conduct provided that such cooperation is passive in nature. For example, it is not uncommon for police authorities to request employees suspected of theft or criminal activity to submit to a polygraph test during the employee's tour of duty since, as a general rule, suspect employees are often difficult to locate away from their place of employment. Allowing a test on the employing office's premises, releasing a covered employee during working hours to take a test at police headquarters, and other similar types of cooperation at the request of the police authorities would not be construed as "requiring, requesting, suggesting, or causing, directly or indirectly, any covered employee * * * to take or submit to a lie detector test." Cooperation of this type must be distinguished from actual participation in the testing of employees suspected of wrongdoing, either through the administration of a test by the employing office at the request or direction of police authorities, or through reimbursement by the employing office of tests administered by police authorities to employees. In some communities, it may be a practice of police authorities to request testing by employing offices of employees before a police investigation is initiated on a reported incident. In other communities, police examiners are available to covered employing offices, on a cost reimbursement basis, to conduct tests on employees suspected by an employing office of wrongdoing. All such conduct on the part of employing offices is deemed within the prohibitions of section 204 of the CAA.

(c) The receipt by an employing office of information from a polygraph test administered by police authorities pursuant to an investigation is prohibited by section 3(2) of the EPPA. (See paragraph (a)(2) of this section.)

(d) The simulated use of a polygraph instrument so as to lead an individual to believe that an actual test is being or may be performed (e.g., to elicit confessions or admissions of guilt) constitutes conduct prohibited by paragraph (a) of this section. Such use includes the connection of a covered employee or prospective employee to the instrument without any intention of a diagnostic purpose, the placement of the instrument in a room used for interrogation unconnected to the covered employee or prospective employee, or the mere suggestion that the instrument may be used during the course of the interview.

(e) The Capitol Police may not require a covered employee not employed by the Capitol Police to take a lie detector test (on its own initiative or at the request of another employing office) except where the Capitol Police administers such lie detector test as part of an "ongoing investigation" by the Capitol Police. For the purpose of this subsection, the definition of "ongoing investigation" contained section 1.12(b) shall apply.

Sec. 1.5 Effect on other laws or agreements

(a) Section 204 of the CAA does not preempt any otherwise applicable provision of federal law or any rule or regulation of the House or Senate or any negotiated collective bargaining agreement that prohibits lie detector tests or is more restrictive with respect to the use of lie detector tests.

(b)(1) This provision applies to all aspects of the use of lie detector tests, including procedural safeguards, the use of test results, the rights and remedies provided examinees, and the rights, remedies, and responsibilities of examiners and employing offices. (2) For example, a collective bargaining agreement that provides greater protection to an examinee would apply in addition to the protection provided in section 204 of the CAA.

Sec. 1.6 Notice of protection

Pursuant to section 301(h) of the CAA, the Office shall prepare, in a manner suitable for posting, a notice explaining the provisions of section 204 of the CAA. Copies of such notice may be obtained from the Office of Compliance.

Sec. 1.7 Authority of the Board

Pursuant to sections 204 and 304 of the CAA, the Board is authorized to issue regulations to implement the rights and protections of the EPPA.

Sec. 1.8 Employment relationship

Subject to the exemptions incorporated into the CAA by section 225(f), section 204 applies the prohibitions on the use of lie detectors by employing offices with respect to covered employees irrespective of whether a covered employee works in that employing office. Sections 101 (3), (4) and 204 of the CAA also apply EPPA prohibitions against discrimination to applicants for employment and former employees of a covered employing office. For example, an employee may quit rather than take a lie detector test. The employing office cannot discriminate or threaten to discriminate in any manner against that person (such as by providing bad references in the future) because of that person's refusal to be tested. Similarly, an employing office cannot discriminate or threaten to discriminate in any manner against that person because that person files a complaint, institutes a proceeding, testifies in a proceeding, or exercises any right under section 204 of the CAA. (See section 207 of the CAA.)

SUBPART B—EXEMPTIONS

Sec. 1.10 Exclusion for employees of the Capitol Police

[Reserved]

Sec. 1.11 Exemption for national defense and security

(a) The exemptions allowing for the administration of lie detector tests in the following paragraphs (b) through (e) of this section apply only to the Federal Government; they do not allow covered employing offices to administer such tests. For the purposes of this section, the term "Federal Government" means any agency or entity within the Federal Government authorized to administer polygraph examinations which is otherwise exempt from coverage under section 7(a) of the EPPA, 29 U.S.C. §2006(a).

(b) Section 7(b)(2)(B) of the EPPA, incorporated into the CAA under section 225(f) of the CAA, provides that nothing in the EPPA shall be construed to prohibit the administration of any lie detector test by the Federal Government, in the performance of any intelligence or counterintelligence function, to any covered employee whose duties involve access to information that has been classified at the level of top secret or designated as being within a special access program under section 4.2 (a) of Executive Order 12356 (or a successor Executive Order).

(c) Counterintelligence for purposes of the above paragraphs means information gathered and activities conducted to protect against espionage and other clandestine intelligence activities, sabotage, terrorist activities, or assassinations conducted for or on behalf of foreign governments, or foreign or domestic organizations or persons.

(d) Lie detector tests of persons described in the above paragraphs will be administered in accordance with applicable Department of Defense directives and regulations, or other regulations and directives governing the use of such tests by the United States Government, as applicable.

Sec. 1.12 Exemption for employing offices conducting investigations of economic loss or injury

(a) Section 7(d) of the EPPA, incorporated into the CAA under section 225(f) of the CAA, provides a limited exemption from the general prohibition on lie detector use for employers conducting ongoing investigations of economic loss or injury to the employer's business. An employing office may request an employee, subject to the conditions set forth in sections 8 and 10 of the EPPA and Secs. 1.20, 1.22, 1.23, 1.24, 1.25, 1.26 and 1.35 of this part, to submit to a polygraph test, but no other type of lie detector test, only if—

(1) The test is administered in connection with an ongoing investigation involving economic loss or injury to the employing office's business, such as theft, embezzlement, misappropriation or an act of unlawful industrial espionage or sabotage;

(2) The employee had access to the property that is the subject of the investigation;

(3) The employing office has a reasonable suspicion that the employee was involved in the incident or activity under investigation;

(4) The employing office provides the examinee with a statement, in a language understood by the examinee, prior to the test which fully explains with particularity the specific incident or activity being investigated and the basis for testing particular employees and which contains, at a minimum:

(i) An identification with particularity of the specific economic loss or injury to the business of the employing office;

(ii) A description of the employee's access to the property that is the subject of the investigation;

(iii) A description in detail of the basis of the employing office's reasonable suspicion that the employee was involved in the incident or activity under investigation; and

(iv) Signature of a person (other than a polygraph examiner) authorized to legally bind the employing office; and

(5) The employing office retains a copy of the statement and proof of service described in paragraph (a)(4) of this section for at least 3 years.

(b) For the exemption to apply, the condition of an "ongoing investigation" must be met. As used in section 7(d) of the EPPA, the ongoing investigation must be of a specific incident or activity. Thus, for example, an employing office may not request that an employee or employees submit to a polygraph test in an effort to determine whether or not any thefts have occurred. Such random testing by an employing office is precluded by the EPPA. Further, because the exemption is limited to a specific incident or activity, an employing office is precluded from using the exemption in situations where the so-called "ongoing investigation" is continuous. For example, the fact that items in inventory are frequently missing from a warehouse would not be a sufficient basis, standing alone, for administering a polygraph test. Even if the employing office can establish that unusually high amounts of inventory are missing from the warehouse in a given month, this, in and of itself, would not be a sufficient basis to meet the specific incident requirement. On the other hand, polygraph testing in response to inventory shortages would be permitted where additional evidence is obtained through subsequent investigation of specific items missing through intentional wrongdoing, and a reasonable suspicion that the employee to be polygraphed was involved in the incident under investigation. Administering a polygraph test in circumstances where the missing inventory is merely unspecified, statistical shortages, without identification of a specific incident or activity that produced the inventory shortages and a "reasonable suspicion that the employee was involved," would amount to little more than a fishing expedition and is prohibited by the EPPA as applied to covered employees and employing offices by the CAA.

(c)(1)(i) The terms economic loss or injury to the employer's business include both direct and indirect economic loss or injury.

(ii) Direct loss or injury includes losses or injuries resulting from theft, embezzlement, misappropriation, industrial espionage or sabotage. These examples, cited in the EPPA, are intended to be illustrative and not exhaustive. Another specific incident which would constitute direct economic loss or injury is the misappropriation of confidential or trade secret information.

(iii) Indirect loss or injury includes the use of an employer's business to commit a crime, such as check-kiting or money laundering. In such cases, the ongoing investigation must be limited to criminal activity that has already occurred, and to use of the employing office's business operations (and not simply the use of the premises) for such activity. For example, the use of an employing office's vehicles, warehouses, computers or equipment to smuggle or facilitate the importing of illegal substances constitutes an indirect loss or injury to the employing office's business operations. Conversely, the mere fact that an illegal act occurs on the employing office's premises (such as a drug transaction that takes place in the employer's parking lot or rest room) does not constitute an indirect economic loss or injury to the employing office.

(iv) Indirect loss or injury also includes theft or injury to property of another for which the employing office exercises fiduciary, managerial or security responsibility, or where the office has custody of the property (but not property of other offices to which the employees have access by virtue of the business relationship). For example, if a maintenance employee of the manager of an apartment building steals jewelry from a tenant's apartment, the theft results in an indirect economic loss or injury to the employer because of the manager's management responsibility with respect to the tenant's apartment. A messenger on a delivery of confidential business reports for a client firm who steals the reports causes an indirect economic loss or injury to the messenger service because the messenger service is custodian of the client firm's reports, and therefore is responsible for their security. Similarly, the theft of property protected by a security service employer is considered an economic loss or injury to that employer.

(v) A theft or injury to a client firm does not constitute an indirect loss or injury to an employer unless that employer has custody of, or management, or security responsibility for, the property of the client that was lost or stolen or injured. For example, a cleaning contractor has no responsibility for the money at a client bank. If money is stolen from the bank by one of the cleaning contractor's employees, the cleaning contractor does not suffer an indirect loss or injury.

(vi) Indirect loss or injury does not include loss or injury which is merely threatened or potential, e.g., a threatened or potential loss of an advantageous business relationship.

(2) Economic losses or injuries which are the result of unintentional or lawful conduct would not serve as a basis for the administration of a polygraph test. Thus, apparently unintentional losses or injuries stemming from truck, car, workplace, or other similar type accidents or routine inventory or cash register shortages would not meet the economic loss or injury requirement. Any economic loss incident to lawful union or employee activity also would not satisfy this requirement.

(3) It is the business of the employer which must suffer the economic loss or injury. Thus, a theft committed by one employee against another employee of the same employer would not satisfy the requirement.

(4) While nothing in the EPPA as applied by the CAA prohibits the use of medical tests to determine the presence of controlled substances or alcohol in bodily fluids, the section 7(d) exemption of the EPPA does not permit the use of a polygraph test to learn whether an employee has used drugs or alcohol, even where such possible use may have contributed to an economic loss to the employer (e.g., an accident involving a company vehicle).

(e) Section 7(d)(2) of the EPPA provides that, as a condition for the use of the exemption, the employee must have had access to the property that is the subject of the investigation.

(1) The word access, as used in section 7(d)(2), refers to the opportunity which an employee had to cause, or to aid or abet in causing, the specific economic loss or injury under investigation. The term "access", thus, includes more than direct or physical contact during the course of employment. For example, as a general matter, all employees working in or with authority to enter a warehouse storage area have "access" to unsecured property in the warehouse. All employees with the combination to a safe have "access" to the property in a locked safe. Employees also have "access" who have the ability to divert possession or otherwise affect the disposition of the property that is the subject of investigation. For example, a bookkeeper in a jewelry store with access to inventory records may aid or abet a clerk who steals an expensive watch by removing the watch from the employer's inventory records. In such a situation, it is clear that the bookkeeper effectively has "access" to the property that is the subject of the investigation.

(2) As used in section 7(d)(2), property refers to specifically identifiable property, but also includes such things of value as security codes and computer data, and proprietary, financial or technical information, such as trade secrets, which by its availability to competitors or others would cause economic harm to the employer.

(f)(1) As used in section 7(d)(3), the term reasonable suspicion refers to an observable, articulable basis in fact which indicates that a particular employee was involved in, or responsible for, an economic loss. Access in the sense of possible or potential opportunity, standing alone, does not constitute a basis for "reasonable suspicion." Information from a co-worker, or an employee's behavior, demeanor, or conduct may be factors in the basis for reasonable suspicion. Likewise, inconsistencies between facts, claims, or statements that surface during an investigation can serve as a sufficient basis for reasonable suspicion. While access or opportunity, standing alone, does not constitute a basis for reasonable suspicion, the totality of circumstances surrounding the access or opportunity (such as its unauthorized or unusual nature or the fact that access was limited to a single individual) may constitute a factor in determining whether there is a reasonable suspicion.

(2) For example, in an investigation of a theft of an expensive piece of jewelry, an employee authorized to open the establishment's safe no earlier than 9 a.m., in order to place the jewelry in a window display case, is observed opening the safe at 7:30 a.m. In such a situation, the opening of the safe by the employee one and one-half hours prior to the specified time may serve as the basis for reasonable suspicion. On the other hand, in the example given, if the employer asked the employee to bring the piece of jewelry to his or her office at 7:30 a.m., and the employee then opened the safe and reported the jewelry missing, such access, standing alone, would not constitute a basis for reasonable suspicion that the employee was involved in the incident unless access to the safe was limited solely to the employee. If no one other than the employee possessed the combination to the safe, and all other possible explanations for the loss are ruled out, such as a break-in, the employer may formulate a basis for reasonable suspicion based on sole access by one employee.

(3) The employer has the burden of establishing that the specific individual or individuals to be tested are "reasonably suspected" of involvement in the specific economic loss or injury for the requirement in section 7(d)(3) of the EPPA to be met.

(g)(1) As discussed in paragraph (a)(4) of this section, section 7(d)(4) of the EPPA sets forth what information, at a minimum, must be provided to an employee if the employer wishes to claim the exemption.

(2) The statement required under paragraph (a)(4) of this section must be received by the employee at least 48 hours, excluding weekend days and holidays, prior to the time of the examination. The statement must set forth the time and date of receipt by the employee and be verified by the employee's signature. This will provide the employee with adequate pre-test notice of the specific incident or activity being investigated and afford the employee sufficient time prior to the test to obtain and consult with legal counsel or an employee representative.

(3) The statement to be provided to the employee must set forth with particularity the specific incident or activity being investigated and the basis for testing particular employees. Section 7(d)(4)(A) of the EPPA requires specificity beyond the mere assertion of general statements regarding economic loss, employee access, and reasonable suspicion. For example, an employer's assertion that an expensive watch was stolen, and that the employee had access to the watch and is therefore a suspect, would not meet the "with particularity" criterion. If the basis for an employer's requesting an employee (or employees) to take a polygraph test is not articulated with particularity, and reduced to writing, then the standard is not met. The identity of a co-worker or other individual providing information used to establish reasonable suspicion need not be revealed in the statement.

(4) It is further required that the statement provided to the examinee be signed by the employer, or an employee or other representative of the employer with authority to legally bind the employer. The person signing the statement must not be a polygraph examiner unless the examiner is acting solely in the capacity of an employer with respect to his or her own employees and does not conduct the examination. The standard would not be met, and the exemption would not apply if the person signing the statement is not authorized to legally bind the employer.

(h) Polygraph tests administered pursuant to this exemption are subject to the limitations set forth in sections 8 and 10 of the EPPA, as discussed in Secs. 1.20, 1.22, 1.23, 1.24, 1.25, 1.26, and 1.35 of this part. As provided in these sections, the exemption will apply only if certain requirements are met. Failure to satisfy any of the specified requirements nullifies the statutory authority for polygraph test administration and may subject the employing office to remedial actions, as provided for in section 6(c) of the EPPA.

Sec. 1.13 Exemption of employers authorized to manufacture, distribute, or dispense controlled substances

(a) Section 7(f) of the EPPA, incorporated into the CAA by section 225(f) of the CAA, provides an exemption from the EPPA's general prohibition regarding the use of polygraph tests for employers authorized to manufacture, distribute, or dispense a controlled substance listed in schedule I, II, III, or IV of section 202 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. §812). This exemption permits the administration of polygraph tests, subject to the conditions set forth in sections 8 and 10 of the EPPA and Sec. 1.21, 1.22, 1.23, 1.24, 1.25, 1.26, and 1.35 of this part, to:

(1) A prospective employee who would have direct access to the manufacture, storage, distribution, or sale of any such controlled substance; or

(2) A current employee if the following conditions are met:

(i) The test is administered in connection with an ongoing investigation of criminal or other misconduct involving, or potentially involving, loss or injury to the manufacture, distribution, or dispensing of any such controlled substance by such employer; and

(ii) The employee had access to the person or property that is the subject of the investigation.

(b)(1) The terms manufacture, distribute, distribution, dispense, storage, and sale, for the purposes of this exemption, are construed within the meaning of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. §812 et seq.), as administered by the Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), U.S. Department of Justice.

(2) The exemption in section 7(f) of the EPPA applies only to employers who are authorized by DEA to manufacture, distribute, or dispense a controlled substance. Section 202 of the Controlled Substances Act (21 U.S.C. §812) requires every person who manufactures, distributes, or dispenses any controlled substance to register with the Attorney General (i.e., with DEA). Common or contract carriers and warehouses whose possession of the controlled substance is in the usual course of their business or employment are not required to register. Truck drivers and warehouse employees of the persons or entities registered with DEA and authorized to manufacture, distribute, or dispense controlled substances, are within the scope of the exemption where they have direct access or access to the controlled substances, as discussed below.

(c) In order for a polygraph examination to be performed, section 7(f) of the Act requires that a prospective employee have "direct access" to the controlled substance(s) manufactured, dispensed, or distributed by the employer. Where a current employee is to be tested as a part of an ongoing investigation, section 7(f) requires that the employee have "access" to the person or property that is the subject of the investigation.

(1) A prospective employee would have "direct access" if the position being applied for has responsibilities which include contact with or which affect the disposition of a controlled substance, including participation in the process of obtaining, dispensing, or otherwise distributing a controlled substance. This includes contact or direct involvement in the manufacture, storage, testing, distribution, sale or dispensing of a controlled substance and may include, for example, packaging, repackaging, ordering, licensing, shipping, receiving, taking inventory, providing security, prescribing, and handling of a controlled substance. A prospective employee would have "direct access" if the described job duties would give such person access to the products in question, whether such employee would be in physical proximity to controlled substances or engaged in activity which would permit the employee to divert such substances to his or her possession.

(2) A current employee would have "access" within the meaning of section 7(f) if the employee had access to the specific person or property which is the subject of the on-going investigation, as discussed in Sec. 1.12(e) of this part. Thus, to test a current employee, the employee need not have had "direct" access to the controlled substance, but may have had only infrequent, random, or opportunistic access. Such access would be sufficient to test the employee if the employee could have caused, or could have aided or abetted in causing, the loss of the specific property which is the subject of the investigation. For example, a maintenance worker in a drug warehouse, whose job duties include the cleaning of areas where the controlled substances which are the subject of the investigation were present, but whose job duties do not include the handling of controlled substances, would be deemed to have "access", but normally not "direct access", to the controlled substances. On the other hand, a drug warehouse truck loader, whose job duties include the handling of outgoing shipment orders which contain controlled substances, would have "direct access" to such controlled substances. A pharmacy department in a supermarket is another common situation which is useful in illustrating the distinction between "direct access" and "access." Store personnel receiving pharmaceutical orders, i.e., the pharmacist, pharmacy intern, and other such employees working in the pharmacy department, would ordinarily have "direct access" to controlled substances. Other store personnel whose job duties and responsibilities do not include the handling of controlled substances but who had occasion to enter the pharmacy department where the controlled substances which are the subject of the investigation were stored, such as maintenance personnel or pharmacy cashiers, would have "access." Certain other store personnel whose job duties do not permit or require entrance into the pharmacy department for any reason, such as produce or meat clerks, checkout cashiers, or baggers, would not ordinarily have "access." However, any current employee, regardless of described job duties, may be polygraphed if the employer's investigation of criminal or other misconduct discloses that such employee in fact took action to obtain "access" to the person or property that is the subject of the investigation—e.g., by actually entering the drug storage area in violation of company rules. In the case of "direct access", the prospective employee's access to controlled substances would be as a part of the manufacturing, dispensing or distribution process, while a current employee's "access" to the controlled substances which are the subject of the investigation need only be opportunistic.

(d) The term prospective employee, for the purposes of this section, includes a current employee who presently holds a position which does not entail direct access to controlled substances, and therefore is outside the scope of the exemption's provisions for preemployment polygraph testing, provided the employee has applied for and is being considered for transfer or promotion to another position which entails such direct access. For example, an office secretary may apply for promotion to a position in the vault or cage areas of a drug warehouse, where controlled substances are kept. In such a situation, the current employee would be deemed a "prospective employee" for the purposes of this exemption, and thus could be subject to preemployment polygraph screening, prior to such a change in position. However, any adverse action which is based in part on a polygraph test against a current employee who is considered a "prospective employee" for purposes of this section may be taken only with respect to the prospective position and may not affect the employee's employment in the current position.

(e) Section 7(f) of the EPPA makes no specific reference to a requirement that employers provide current employees with a written statement prior to polygraph testing. Thus, employers to whom this exemption is available are not required to furnish a written statement such as that specified in section 7(d) of the EPPA and Sec. 1.12(a)(4) of this part.

(f) For the section 7(f) exemption to apply, the polygraph testing of current employees must be administered in connection with an ongoing investigation of criminal or other misconduct involving, or potentially involving, loss or injury to the manufacture, distribution, or dispensing of any such controlled substance by such employer.

(1) Current employees may only be administered polygraph tests in connection with an ongoing investigation of criminal or other misconduct, relating to a specific incident or activity, or potential incident or activity. Thus, an employer is precluded from using the exemption in connection with continuing investigations or on a random basis to determine if thefts are occurring. However, unlike the exemption in section 7(d) of the EPPA for employers conducting ongoing investigations of economic loss or injury, the section 7(f) exemption includes ongoing investigations of misconduct involving potential drug losses. Nor does the latter exemption include the requirement for "reasonable suspicion" contained in the section 7(d) exemption. Thus, a drug store employer is permitted to polygraph all current employees who have access to a controlled substance stolen from the inventory, or where there is evidence that such a theft is planned. Polygraph testing based on an inventory shortage of the drug during a particular accounting period would not be permitted unless there is extrinsic evidence of misconduct.

(2) In addition, the test must be administered in connection with loss or injury, or potential loss or injury, to the manufacture, distribution, or dispensing of a controlled substance.

(i) Retail drugstores and wholesale drug warehouses typically carry inventory of so-called health and beauty aids, cosmetics, over-the-counter drugs, and a variety of other similar products, in addition to their product lines of controlled drugs. The non-controlled products usually constitute the majority of such firms' sales volumes. An economic loss or injury related to such noncontrolled substances would not constitute a basis of applicability of the section 7(f) exemption. For example, an investigation into the theft of a gross of cosmetic products could not be a basis for polygraph testing under section 7(f), but the theft of a container of valium could be.

(ii) Polygraph testing, with respect to an ongoing investigation concerning products other than controlled substances might be initiated under section 7(d) of the EPPA and Sec. 1.12 of this part. However, the exemption in section 7(f) of the EPPA and this section is limited solely to losses or injury associated with controlled substances.

(g) Polygraph tests administered pursuant to this exemption are subject to the limitations set forth in sections 8 and 10 of the EPPA, as discussed in Secs. 1.21, 1.22, 1.23, 1.24, 1.25, 1.26, and 1.35 of this part. As provided in these sections, the exemption will apply only if certain requirements are met. Failure to satisfy any of the specified requirements nullifies the statutory authority for polygraph test administration and may subject the employer to the remedial actions authorized in section 204 of the CAA. The administration of such tests is also subject to collective bargaining agreements, which may either prohibit lie detector tests, or contain more restrictive provisions with respect to polygraph testing.

SUBPART C—RESTRICTIONS ON POLYGRAPH USAGE UNDER EXEMPTIONS

Sec. 1.20 Adverse employment action under ongoing investigation exemption

(a) Section 8(a) (1) of the EPPA provides that the limited exemption in section 7(d) of the EPPA and Sec. 1.12 of this part for ongoing investigations shall not apply if an employer discharges, disciplines, denies employment or promotion or otherwise discriminates in any manner against a current employee based upon the analysis of a polygraph test chart or the refusal to take a polygraph test, without additional supporting evidence.

(b) "Additional supporting evidence", for purposes of section 8(a) of the EPPA, includes, but is not limited to, the following:

(1)(i) Evidence indicating that the employee had access to the missing or damaged property that is the subject of an ongoing investigation; and

(ii) Evidence leading to the employer's reasonable suspicion that the employee was involved in the incident or activity under investigation; or

(2) Admissions or statements made by an employee before, during or following a polygraph examination.

(c) Analysis of a polygraph test chart or refusal to take a polygraph test may not serve as a basis for adverse employment action, even with additional supporting evidence, unless the employer observes all the requirements of sections 7(d) and 8(b) of the EPPA, as described in Secs. 1.12, 1.22, 1.23, 1.24 and 1.25 of this part.

Sec. 1.21 Adverse employment action under controlled substance exemption

(a) Section 8(a)(2) of the EPPA provides that the controlled substance exemption in section 7(f) of the EPPA and section 1.13 of this part shall not apply if an employing office discharges, disciplines, denies employment or promotion, or otherwise discriminates in any manner against a current employee or prospective employee based solely on the analysis of a polygraph test chart or the refusal to take a polygraph test.

(b) Analysis of a polygraph test chart or refusal to take a polygraph test may serve as one basis for adverse employment actions of the type described in paragraph (a) of this section, provided that the adverse action was also based on another bona fide reason, with supporting evidence therefor. For example, traditional factors such as prior employment experience, education, job performance, etc. may be used as a basis for employment decisions. Employment decisions based on admissions or statements made by an employee or prospective employee before, during or following a polygraph examination may, likewise, serve as a basis for such decisions.

(c) Analysis of a polygraph test chart or the refusal to take a polygraph test may not serve as a basis for adverse employment action, even with another legitimate basis for such action, unless the employing office observes all the requirements of section 7(f) of the EPPA, as appropriate, and section 8(b) of the EPPA, as described in sections 1.13, 1.22, 1.23, 1.24 and 1.25 of this part.

Sec. 1.22 Rights of examinee—general

(a) Pursuant to section 8(b) of the EPPA, the limited exemption in section 7(d) of the EPPA for ongoing investigations (described in Sec. 1.12 of this part) shall not apply unless all of the requirements set forth in this section and Secs. 1.23 through 1.25 of this part are met.

(b) During all phases of the polygraph testing the person being examined has the following rights:

(1) The examinee may terminate the test at any time.

(2) The examinee may not be asked any questions in a degrading or unnecessarily intrusive manner.

(3) The examinee may not be asked any questions dealing with:

(i) Religious beliefs or affiliations;

(ii) Beliefs or opinions regarding racial matters;

(iii) Political beliefs or affiliations;

(iv) Sexual preferences or behavior; or

(v) Beliefs, affiliations, opinions, or lawful activities concerning unions or labor organizations.

(4) The examinee may not be subjected to a test when there is sufficient written evidence by a physician that the examinee is suffering from any medical or psychological condition or undergoing any treatment that might cause abnormal responses during the actual testing phase. "Sufficient written evidence" shall constitute, at a minimum, a statement by a physician specifically describing the examinee's medical or psychological condition or treatment and the basis for the physician's opinion that the condition or treatment might result in such abnormal responses.

(5) An employee or prospective employee who exercises the right to terminate the test, or who for medical reasons with sufficient supporting evidence is not administered the test, shall be subject to adverse employment action only on the same basis as one who refuses to take a polygraph test, as described in Secs. 1.20 and 1.21 of this part.

(c) Any polygraph examination shall consist of one or more pretest phases, actual testing phases, and post-test phases, which must be conducted in accordance with the rights of examinees described in Secs. 1.23 through 1.25 of this part.

Sec. 1.23 Rights of examinee—pretest phase

(a) The pretest phase consists of the questioning and other preparation of the prospective examinee before the actual use of the polygraph instrument. During the initial pretest phase, the examinee must be:

(1) Provided with written notice, in a language understood by the examinee, as to when and where the examination will take place and that the examinee has the right to consult with counsel or an employee representative before each phase of the test. Such notice shall be received by the examinee at least forty-eight hours, excluding weekend days and holidays, before the time of the examination, except that a prospective employee may, at the employee's option, give written consent to administration of a test anytime within 48 hours but no earlier than 24 hours after receipt of the written notice. The written notice or proof of service must set forth the time and date of receipt by the employee or prospective employee and be verified by his or her signature. The purpose of this requirement is to provide a sufficient opportunity prior to the examination for the examinee to consult with counsel or an employee representative. Provision shall also be made for a convenient place on the premises where the examination will take place at which the examinee may consult privately with an attorney or an employee representative before each phase of the test. The attorney or representative may be excluded from the room where the examination is administered during the actual testing phase.

(2) Informed orally and in writing of the nature and characteristics of the polygraph instrument and examination, including an explanation of the physical operation of the polygraph instrument and the procedure used during the examination.

(3) Provided with a written notice prior to the testing phase, in a language understood by the examinee, which shall be read to and signed by the examinee. Use of Appendix A to this part, if properly completed, will constitute compliance with the contents of the notice requirement of this paragraph. If a format other than in Appendix A is used, it must contain at least the following information:

(i) Whether or not the polygraph examination area contains a two-way mirror, a camera, or other device through which the examinee may be observed;

(ii) Whether or not any other device, such as those used in conversation or recording will be used during the examination;

(iii) That both the examinee and the employing office have the right, with the other's knowledge, to make a recording of the entire examination;

(iv) That the examinee has the right to terminate the test at any time;

(v) That the examinee has the right, and will be given the opportunity, to review all questions to be asked during the test;

(vi) That the examinee may not be asked questions in a manner which degrades, or needlessly intrudes;

(vii) That the examinee may not be asked any questions concerning religious beliefs or opinions; beliefs regarding racial matters; political beliefs or affiliations; matters relating to sexual behavior; beliefs, affiliations, opinions, or lawful activities regarding unions or labor organizations;

(viii) That the test may not be conducted if there is sufficient written evidence by a physician that the examinee is suffering from a medical or psychological condition or undergoing treatment that might cause abnormal responses during the examination;

(ix) That the test is not and cannot be required as a condition of employment;

(x) That the employing office may not discharge, dismiss, discipline, deny employment or promotion, or otherwise discriminate against the examinee based on the analysis of a polygraph test, or based on the examinee's refusal to take such a test, without additional evidence which would support such action;

(xi)(A) In connection with an ongoing investigation, that the additional evidence required for the employing office to take adverse action against the examinee, including termination, may be evidence that the examinee had access to the property that is the subject of the investigation, together with evidence supporting the employer's reasonable suspicion that the examinee was involved in the incident or activity under investigation;

(B) That any statement made by the examinee before or during the test may serve as additional supporting evidence for an adverse employment action, as described in paragraph (a)(3)(x) of this section, and that any admission of criminal conduct by the examinee may be transmitted to an appropriate government law enforcement agency;

(xii) That information acquired from a polygraph test may be disclosed by the examiner or by the employing office only:

(A) To the examinee or any other person specifically designated in writing by the examinee to receive such information;

(B) To the employing office that requested the test;

(C) To a court, governmental agency, arbitrator, or mediator pursuant to a court order;

(D) By the employing office, to an appropriate governmental agency without a court order where, and only insofar as, the information disclosed is an admission of criminal conduct;

(xiii) That if any of the examinee's rights or protections under the law are violated, the examinee has the right to take action against the employing office under sections 401-404 of the CAA. Employing offices that violate this law are liable to the affected examinee, who may recover such legal or equitable relief as may be appropriate, including, but not limited to, employment, reinstatement, and promotion, payment of lost wages and benefits, and reasonable costs, including attorney's fees;

(xiv) That the examinee has the right to obtain and consult with legal counsel or other representative before each phase of the test, although the legal counsel or representative may be excluded from the room where the test is administered during the actual testing phase.

(xv) That the employee's rights under the EPPA may not be waived, either voluntarily or involuntarily, by contract or otherwise, except as part of a written settlement to a pending action or complaint under the EPPA, agreed to and signed by the parties.

(b) During the initial or any subsequent pretest phases, the examinee must be given the opportunity, prior to the actual testing phase, to review all questions in writing that the examiner will ask during each testing phase. Such questions may be presented at any point in time prior to the testing phase.

Sec. 1.24 Rights of examinee—actual testing phase

(a) The actual testing phase refers to that time during which the examiner administers the examination by using a polygraph instrument with respect to the examinee and then analyzes the charts derived from the test. Throughout the actual testing phase, the examiner shall not ask any question that was not presented in writing for review prior to the testing phase. An examiner may, however, recess the testing phase and return to the pre-test phase to review additional relevant questions with the examinee. In the case of an ongoing investigation, the examiner shall ensure that all relevant questions (as distinguished from technical baseline questions) pertain to the investigation.

(b) No testing period subject to the provisions of the Act shall be less than ninety minutes in length. Such "test period" begins at the time that the examiner begins informing the examinee of the nature and characteristics of the examination and the instruments involved, as prescribed in section 8(b)(2)(B) of the EPPA and Sec. 1.23(a)(2) of this part, and ends when the examiner completes the review of the test results with the examinee as provided in Sec. 1.25 of this part. The ninety-minute minimum duration shall not apply if the examinee voluntarily acts to terminate the test before the completion thereof, in which event the examiner may not render an opinion regarding the employee's truthfulness.

Sec. 1.25 Rights of examinee—post-test phase

(a) The post-test phase refers to any questioning or other communication with the examinee following the use of the polygraph instrument, including review of the results of the test with the examinee. Before any adverse employment action, the employing office must:

(1) Further interview the examinee on the basis of the test results; and

(2) Give to the examinee a written copy of any opinions or conclusions rendered in response to the test, as well as the questions asked during the test, with the corresponding charted responses. The term "corresponding charted responses" refers to copies of the entire examination charts recording the employee's physiological responses, and not just the examiner's written report which describes the examinee's responses to the questions as "charted" by the instrument.

Sec. 1.26 Qualifications of and requirements for examiners

(a) Section 8 (b) and (c) of the EPPA provides that the limited exemption in section 7(d) of the EPPA for ongoing investigations shall not apply unless the person conducting the polygraph examination meets specified qualifications and requirements.

(b) An examiner must meet the following qualifications:

(1) Have a valid current license, if required by the State in which the test is to be conducted; and

(2) Carry a minimum bond of $50,000 provided by a surety incorporated under the laws of the United States or of any State, which may under those laws guarantee the fidelity of persons holding positions of trust, or carry an equivalent amount of professional liability coverage.

(c) An examiner must also, with respect to examinees identified by the employing office pursuant to Sec. 1.30(c) of this part:

(1) Observe all rights of examinees, as set out in Secs. 1.22, 1.23, 1.24, and 1.25 of this part;

(2) Administer no more than five polygraph examinations in any one calendar day on which a test or tests subject to the provisions of EPPA are administered, not counting those instances where an examinee voluntarily terminates an examination prior to the actual testing phase;

(3) Administer no polygraph examination subject to the provisions of the EPPA which is less than ninety minutes in duration, as described in Sec. 1.24(b) of this part; and

(4) Render any opinion or conclusion regarding truthfulness or deception in writing. Such opinion or conclusion must be based solely on the polygraph test results. The written report shall not contain any information other than admissions, information, case facts, and interpretation of the charts relevant to the stated purpose of the polygraph test and shall not include any recommendation concerning the employment of the examinee.

(5) Maintain all opinions, reports, charts, written questions, lists, and other records relating to the test, including, statements signed by examinees advising them of rights under the CAA (as described in section 1.23(a)(3) of this part) and any electronic recordings of examinations, for at least three years from the date of the administration of the test. (See section 1.30 of this part for recordkeeping requirements.)

SUBPART D—RECORDKEEPING AND DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS

Sec. 1.30 Records to be preserved for 3 years

(a) The following records shall be kept for a minimum period of three years from the date the polygraph examination is conducted (or from the date the examination is requested if no examination is conducted):

(1) Each employing office that requests an employee to submit to a polygraph examination in connection with an ongoing investigation involving economic loss or injury shall retain a copy of the statement that sets forth the specific incident or activity under investigation and the basis for testing that particular covered employee, as required by section 7(d)(4) of the EPPA and described in 1.12(a)(4) of this part.

(2) Each examiner retained to administer examinations pursuant to any of the exemptions under section 7(d), (e) or (f) of the EPPA (described in sections 1.12, 1.13, and 1.14 of this part) shall maintain all opinions, reports, charts, written questions, lists, and other records relating to polygraph tests of such persons.

Sec. 1.35 Disclosure of test information

This section prohibits the unauthorized disclosure of any information obtained during a polygraph test by any person, other than the examinee, directly or indirectly, except as follows:

(a) A polygraph examiner or an employing office (other than an employing office exempt under section 7 (a), (b), or (c) of the EPPA (described in Secs. 1.10 and 1.11 of this part)) may disclose information acquired from a polygraph test only to:

(1) The examinee or an individual specifically designated in writing by the examinee to receive such information;

(2) The employing office that requested the polygraph test pursuant to the provisions of the EPPA (including management personnel of the employing office where the disclosure is relevant to the carrying out of their job responsibilities);

(3) Any court, governmental agency, arbitrator, or mediator pursuant to an order from a court of competent jurisdiction requiring the production of such information;

(b) An employing office may disclose information from the polygraph test at any time to an appropriate governmental agency without the need of a court order where, and only insofar as, the information disclosed is an admission of criminal conduct.

(c) A polygraph examiner may disclose test charts, without identifying information (but not other examination materials and records), to another examiner(s) for examination and analysis, provided that such disclosure is for the sole purpose of consultation and review of the initial examiner's opinion concerning the indications of truthfulness or deception. Such action would not constitute disclosure under this part provided that the other examiner has no direct or indirect interest in the matter.

APPENDIX A TO PART 801—NOTICE TO EXAMINEE

Section 204 of the Congressional Accountability Act, which extends the rights and protections of section 8(b) of the Employee Polygraph Protection Act, and the regulations of the Board of Directors of the Office of Compliance (Sections 1.22, 1.23, 1.24, and 1.25), require that you be given the following information before taking a polygraph examination:

1. (a) The polygraph examination area [does] [does not] contain a two-way mirror, a camera, or other device through which you may be observed.

(b) Another device, such as those used in conversation or recording, [will] [will not] be used during the examination.

(c) Both you and the employing office have the right, with the other's knowledge, to record electronically the entire examination.

2. (a) You have the right to terminate the test at any time.

(b) You have the right, and will be given the opportunity, to review all questions to be asked during the test.

(c) You may not be asked questions in a manner which degrades, or needlessly intrudes.

(d) You may not be asked any questions concerning: Religious beliefs or opinions; beliefs regarding racial matters; political beliefs or affiliations; matters relating to sexual preference or behavior; beliefs, affiliations, opinions, or lawful activities regarding unions or labor organizations.

(e) The test may not be conducted if there is sufficient written evidence by a physician that you are suffering from a medical or psychological condition or undergoing treatment that might cause abnormal responses during the examination.

(f) You have the right to consult with legal counsel or other representative before each phase of the test, although the legal counsel or other representative may be excluded from the room where the test is administered during the actual testing phase.

3. (a) The test is not and cannot be required as a condition of employment.

(b) The employer may not discharge, dismiss, discipline, deny employment or promotion, or otherwise discriminate against you based on the analysis of a polygraph test, or based on your refusal to take such a test without additional evidence which would support such action.

(c)(1) In connection with an ongoing investigation, the additional evidence required for an employing office to take adverse action against you, including termination, may be (A) evidence that you had access to the property that is the subject of the investigation, together with (B) the evidence supporting the employing office's reasonable suspicion that you were involved in the incident or activity under investigation.

(2) Any statement made by you before or during the test may serve as additional supporting evidence for an adverse employment action, as described in 3(b) above, and any admission of criminal conduct by you may be transmitted to an appropriate government law enforcement agency.

4. (a) Information acquired from a polygraph test may be disclosed by the examiner or by the employing office only:

(1) To you or any other person specifically designated in writing by you to receive such information;

(2) To the employing office that requested the test;

(3) To a court, governmental agency, arbitrator, or mediator that obtains a court order;

(b) Information acquired from a polygraph test may be disclosed by the employing office to an appropriate governmental agency without a court order where, and only insofar as, the information disclosed is an admission of criminal conduct.

5. If any of your rights or protections under the law are violated, you have the right to take action against the employing office by filing a request for counseling with the Office of Compliance under section 402 of the Congressional Accountability Act. Employing offices that violate this law are liable to the affected examinee, who may recover such legal or equitable relief as may be appropriate, including, but not limited to, employment, reinstatement, and promotion, payment of lost wages and benefits, and reasonable costs, including attorney's fees.

6. Your rights under the EPPA may not be waived, either voluntarily or involuntarily, by contract or otherwise, except as part of a written settlement to a pending action or complaint under the EPPA, and agreed to and signed by the parties.

I acknowledge that I have received a copy of the above notice, and that it has been read to me.

THE WHITE HOUSE, November 28, 1995.

REPORT ON THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH IRAN—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 98

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs:

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby report to the Congress on developments since the last Presidential report of May 18, 1995, concerning the national emergency with respect to Iran that was declared in Executive Order No. 12170 of November 14, 1979. This report is submitted pursuant to section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act, 50 U.S.C. 1703(c) and section 505(c) of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985, 22 U.S.C. 2349aa-9(c). This report covers events through September 29, 1995. My last report, dated May 18, 1995, covered events through April 18, 1995.

1. On March 15 of this year by Executive Order No. 12957, I declared a separate national emergency pursuant to the International Emergency Economic Powers Act and imposed separate sanctions. Executive Order No. 12959, issued May 6, 1995, then significantly augmented those new sanctions. As a result, as I reported on September 18, 1995, in conjunction with the declaration of a separate emergency and the imposition of new sanctions, the Iranian Transactions Regulations, 31 CFR Part 560, have been comprehensively amended.

There have been no amendments to the Iranian Assets Control Regulations, 31 CFR Part 535, since the last report. However, the amendments to the Iranian Transactions Regulations that implement the new separate national emergency are of some relevance to the Iran-United States Claims Tribunal (the "Tribunal") and related activities. For example, sections 560.510, 560.513, and 560.525 contain general licenses with respect to, and provide for specific licensing of, certain transactions related to arbitral activities.

2. The Tribunal, established at The Hague pursuant to the Algiers Accords, continues to make progress in arbitrating the claims before it. Since my last report, the Tribunal has rendered four awards, bringing the total number to 566. As of September 29, 1995, the value of awards to successful American claimants from the Security Account held by the NV Settlement Bank stood at $2,368,274,541.67.

Iran has not replenished the Security Account established by the Accords to ensure payment of awards to successful U.S. claimants since October 8, 1992. The Account has remained continuously below the $500 million balance required by the Algiers Accords since November 5, 1992. As of September 29, 1995, the total amount in the Security Account was $188,105,627.95, and the total amount in the Interest Account was $32,066,870.62.

Therefore, the United States continues to pursue Case A/28, filed in September 1993, to require Iran to meet its obligations under the Accords to replenish the Security Account. Iran filed its Statement of Defense in that case on August 31, 1995. The United States is preparing a Reply for filing on December 4, 1995.

3. The Department of State continues to present other United States Government claims against Iran, in coordination with concerned government agencies, and to respond to claims brought against the United States by Iran, in coordination with concerned government agencies.

In September 1995, the Departments of Justice and State represented the United States in the first Tribunal hearing on a government-to-government claim in 5 years. The Full Tribunal heard arguments in Cases A/15(IV) and A/24. Case A/15(IV) is an interpretive dispute in which Iran claims that the United States has violated the Algiers Accords by its alleged failure to terminate all litigation against Iran in U.S. courts. Case A/24 involves a similar interpretive dispute in which, specifically, Iran claims that the obligation of the United States under the Accords to terminate litigation prohibits a lawsuit against Iran by the McKesson Corporation from proceeding in U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia. The McKesson Corporation reactivated that litigation against Iran in the United States following the Tribunal's negative ruling on Foremost McKesson Incorporated's claim before the Tribunal.

Also in September 1995, Iran filed briefs in two cases, to which the United States is now preparing responses. In Case A/11, Iran filed its Hearing Memorial and Evidence. In that case, Iran has sued the United States for $10 billion, alleging that the United States failed to fulfill its obligations under the Accords to assist Iran in recovering the assets of the former Shah of Iran. Iran alleges that the United States improperly failed to (1) freeze the U.S. assets of the Shah's estate and certain U.S. assets of close relatives of the Shah; (2) report to Iran all known information about such assets; and (3) otherwise assist Iran in such litigation.

In Case A/15(II:A), 3 years after the Tribunal's partial award in the case, Iran filed briefs and evidence relating to 10 of Iran's claims against the United States Government for non-military property allegedly held by private companies in the United States. Although Iran's submission was made in response to a Tribunal order directing Iran to file its brief and evidence "concerning all remaining issues to be decided by this Case," Iran's filing failed to address many claims in the case.

In August 1995, the United States filed the second of two parts of its consolidated submission on the merits in Case B/61, addressing issues of liability and compensation. As reported in my May 1995 Report, Case B/61 involves a claim by Iran for compensation with respect to primarily military equipment that Iran alleges it did not receive. The equipment was purchased pursuant to commercial contracts with more than 50 private American companies. Iran alleges that it suffered direct losses and consequential damages in excess of $2 billion in total because the United States Government's refusal to allow the export of the equipment after January 19, 1981, in alleged contravention of the Algiers Accords.

4. Since my last report, the Tribunal has issued two important awards in favor of U.S. nationals considered dual United States-Iranian nationals by the Tribunal. On July 7, 1995, the Tribunal issued Award No. 565, awarding a claimant $1.1 million plus interest for Iran's expropriation of the claimant's shares in the Iranian architectural firm of Abdolaziz Farmafarmaian & Associates. On July 14, 1995, the Tribunal issued Award No. 566, awarding two claimants $129,869 each, plus interest, as compensation for Iran's taking real property inherited by the claimants from their father. Award No. 566 is significant in that it is the Tribunal's first decision awarding dual national claimants compensation for Iran's expropriation of real property in Iran.

5. The situation reviewed above continues to implicate important diplomatic, financial, and legal interests of the United States and its nationals and presents an unusual challenge to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. The Iranian Assets Control Regulations issued pursuant to Executive Order No. 12170 continue to play an important role in structuring our relationship with Iran and in enabling the United States to implement properly the Algiers Accords. I shall continue to exercise the powers at my disposal to deal with these problems and will continue to report periodically to the Congress on significant developments.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. DORGAN:

S. 1427. A bill to improve the national crime database and create a Federal cause of action for early release of violent felons; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE VIOLENT CRIME INTERVENTION ACT OF 1995

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that will fill the void in the Federal response to the Nation's crime epidemic by putting violent offenders in jail and keeping them there.

Probably all of us have seen reference in the papers these days that crime is down. According to the statistics by the FBI, there is a slight decrease in crime in our country. That ought not give anyone great comfort, in my judgment, because the slight decrease comes from an extraordinarily high rate of crime in our country.

A violent crime occurs every 17 seconds in America; a rape occurs every 5 minutes; a robbery, every 51 seconds; a murder every 23 minutes.

We have a country that is, presumably, a civilized nation full of wonderful people—with 23,000 murders every year. So no one should take great solace in the fact that the FBI or someone else says the crime rate is down slightly. It is at an extraordinarily high level, and represents an epidemic of crime that we must deal with.

Crime no longer is limited to specific neighborhoods, cities, or States. It is a national epidemic, and the criminal justice system of each State often affects citizens of other states. My legislation, the Violent Crime Intervention Act of 1995, addresses two aspects of this problem that on which the Federal Government must show leadership.

First, the bill will make it a national priority to put into operation a complete, accurate, and up-to-date nationwide database of criminal records. Currently, the Federal Bureau of Investigation's interstate identification index—the triple-I—provides more than 75,000 criminal record checks every day, but the information it provides is incomplete and, therefore, unreliable. In fact, only 30 States currently participate in this system.

The bill will help to complete a national database of violent criminals. Last year's crime bill appropriated $100 million for fiscal year 1995 to help states establish or improve their criminal databases under the Brady law. It also authorized another $50 million for this same purpose for fiscal years 1996 and 1997. Under my legislation, every State must set up a criminal record database within 2 years that is connected to the Triple-I and that provides accurate information about that State's criminals.

States that do not comply with these provisions would not be shut off from using the Triple-I system. That could hurt law enforcement. However, they would have to pay a fee each time they use the system until they contribute their own complete and up-to-date records.

It does not take Dick Tracy to figure out who is going to commit the next murder, or the next violent crime. You can almost bet that the next violent crime in America committed in the next 45 seconds or so will be committed by someone who has committed violent crimes in the past. You can almost guarantee it. That is why it is critical for us to know who has committed previous crimes.

I will mention a personal story. My mother was a victim of a manslaughter incident some years ago. She was tragically killed in a circumstance in which those who were involved had criminal records. As I looked at those criminal records, I saw something curious. I saw that a judge with respect to one of the people involved had sentenced him to the State penitentiary once for a crime. He was picked up again when he was out on probation, was sent back to court—and the judge said, "Well, OK. On the second offense you get probation."

I called the judge. I said, "Why would you give probation on a second offense?"

He said, "Because I did not know the person committed the first offense."

I said, "You are kidding me. This defendant stands in front of you, a defendant who has been in State penitentiary, and you did not know that when you sentenced the defendant for the second offense?"

He said, "I had no idea."

Computer records even between jurisdictions in the same State were not then available to give the judge that basic information.

It does not make any sense what is going on. Michael Jordan's father was murdered allegedly by two people on a road in the Carolinas. Take a look at their records. The two people who allegedly killed Michael Jordan's father—both of them—had long criminal histories. And I will bet, if you access the triple-I, you will not find half of their criminal histories.

Second, my bill will provide a strong incentive for States to keep their violent criminals locked up for the criminal's full sentence. Last year's crime bill offered Federal crime-fighting funds to States that keep violent criminals locked up for at least 85 percent of their sentences. Surely we can do better than that.

Under my legislation, a State will be liable to victims of violent crimes committed by criminals the State released early from a sentence for a previous violent crime. A State could avoid liability only if the State required all violent criminals to serve their full sentences.

It occurred to me that we ought to do this because of a wonderful woman named Donna Martz who was murdered. She used to come to the Capitol steps and bring bus tours from North Dakota. I used to see her most every year and visit with her. She was murdered about 2 years ago by a couple of people who were convicted of violent crimes in Pennsylvania, and then they went to North Dakota, and abducted Donna Martz. The story is too violent and awful even to retell. They took her through several States, and eventually brutally murdered her out in the desert of the West.

My point is this. Someone who is convicted in the State for a violent crime ought to serve their entire sentence. If a State decides for its own reasons that this violent criminal shall be let out before a sentence is ended, then I think that the State ought to be liable to the next victim or to the next victim's family. If that violent criminal is let out early and commits another violent act during the time when they should have been in a prison, make the State liable for its decision. That is the second part of my legislation. Clearly, the States will not like this.

States simply must keep known, violent offenders behind bars for their full sentence—or face the consequences of the State's decision to release these criminals. It is time for States to take responsibility for the horrible suffering and fear they can foster by prematurely releasing violent criminals.

These issues are of national concern and we can deal with them if the Federal and State governments make a concerted effort to keep violent offenders behind bars for their full sentences.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of my bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1427

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Violent Crime Intervention Act of 1995".

TITLE I—NATIONAL CRIME RECORDS DATABASE

SEC. 101. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) nationwide—

(A) many State criminal record systems are not up to date and contain incomplete or incorrect information; and

(B) less than 20 percent of all criminal records are fully computerized, include court dispositions, and are accessible through the Interstate Identification Index of the Department of Justice; and

(2) a complete and accurate nationwide criminal record database is an essential element in fighting crime and development of such a database is a national priority.

SEC. 102. STATE CRIMINAL RECORD UPGRADES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Attorney General of the United States shall issue guidelines establishing specific requirements for a State to qualify as a fully participating member of the Interstate Identification Index.

(b) MINIMUM REQUIREMENTS.—The guidelines referred to in subsection (a) shall require—

(1) that all arrest reports and final disposition orders are submitted to the State records repository within 7 days;

(2) the State repository to enter these records and orders into the State database not more than 24 hours after the repository receives the information;

(3) the State to conduct audits, at least annually, of State criminal records to ensure that such records contain correct and complete information about every felony arrest and report the results of each audit to the Attorney General of the United States;

(4) the State to certify to the Attorney General of the United States, on January 1 of each year, that the law enforcement agencies, courts, and records officials of the State are in compliance with this section; and

(5) such other conditions as the Attorney General determines are necessary.

(c) LIMITATIONS ON USE OF FILES.—The Attorney General may establish limitations on the purposes for which the Interstate Identification Index may be used and may allow a State to prohibit the use of information provided by the State for searches unrelated to law enforcement.

(d) FEES.—A State that does not qualify as a fully participating State, pursuant to the guidelines referred to in subsection (a), within 2 years after the date on which the Attorney General of the United States issues such guidelines shall pay a user fee for each identification request made to the Interstate Identification Index in an amount equal to the average cost of a single Federal database inquiry, as determined by the Attorney General each year.

TITLE II—LIABILITY FOR EARLY RELEASE OF VIOLENT FELONS

SEC. 201. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) violent criminals often serve only a small portion of their original sentences;

(2) a significant proportion of the most serious violent crimes committed in the United States are committed by criminals who have been released early from a sentence for a previous violent crime;

(3) violent criminals who are released early from prison often travel to other States to commit additional violent crimes;

(4) the crime and threat of crime committed by violent criminals released early from prison affects tourism, economic development, use of the interstate highway system, federally owned or supported facilities, and other commercial activities of individuals; and

(5) the policies of one State regarding the early release of criminals sentenced in that State for a violent crime often affect the citizens of other States, who can influence those policies only through Federal law.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is to reduce violent crime by requiring States to bear the responsibility for the consequences of releasing violent criminals before they serve the full term for which they were sentenced.

SEC. 202. CAUSE OF ACTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The victim (or in the case of a homicide, the family of the victim) of a violent crime shall have a Federal cause of action in any district court against a State if the individual committing the crime—

(1) had previously been convicted by the State of a violent offense;

(2) was released prior to serving his or her full sentence for such offense; and

(3) committed the violent crime before the original sentence would have expired.

(b) DEFINITION.—As used in this title, the term "crime of violence" has the same meaning as in section 16 of title 18, United States Code.

(c) DAMAGES.—A State shall be liable to the victim in an action brought under this title for the actual damages (direct and indirect) resulting from the violent crime, but not for punitive damages.

S. 1429. A bill to provide clarification in the reimbursement to States for federally funded employees carrying out Federal programs during the lapse in appropriations between November 14, 1995, through November 19, 1995, to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

REIMBURSEMENT FOR FURLOUGHED FEDERAL EMPLOYEES DURING RECENT GOVERNMENT SHUTDOWN LEGISLATION

● Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I introduce legislation relating to the recently enacted continuing appropriations resolution and concerns that have been raised regarding the payment of furloughed employees during the 6-day Government closure. I am joined in offering this legislation by my distinguished colleagues, Senators LOTT and Senator WARNER.

Mr. President, the furlough pay language that the Congress adopted as part of House Joint Resolution 122, the continuing resolution, is language that previous Congresses have adopted to provide compensation to Federal employees during periods of Government closure.

This language was enacted to provide compensation to Federal employees affected by Government closure in 1984, 1986, 1987, and 1990. This language was provided to Congress by the administration to meet our stated intent that Federal workers should not suffer a loss of pay as a result of the 6-day closure of the Federal Government.

It has now been brought to our attention that the language included in the continuing resolution may inadvertently not cover all employees who were subject to the furlough. The administration has indicated that there are State employees paid with 100 percent Federal funds who make disability determinations and administer unemployment insurance benefits, for example, that may not be covered by the language in the continuing resolution regarding the payment of compensation during the recent 6-day shutdown of the Federal Government.

I am therefore introducing legislation to clarify our intent that all furloughed Federal workers, including federally funded workers, affected by the shutdown of the Federal Government receive their pay as Congress intended. The legislation ensures that 100 percent federally-funded State employees affected by the furlough receive their pay, and that States using their own funds to make up for the lack of Federal funds for these employees are reimbursed to carry out 100 percent federally-supported functions.

Mr. President, it was and is clearly the intent of the Congress to pay Federal workers for the 6-day period of the Government shutdown. The language enacted in the continuing resolution has been used in previous years to successfully address this situation. I hope the language does so this year. If not, I urge my colleagues to adopt the bill I am introducing to clarify our intent on this matter. ●

By Mr. PRESSLER (for himself, and Mr. DASCHLE):

S. 1430. A bill to authorize a land conveyance at the radar bomb-scoring site, Belle Fourche, SD; to the Committee on Armed Services.

LAND CONVEYANCE LEGISLATION

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation that would transfer Air Force radar bomb-scoring facilities near Belle Fourche, SD, to the local Belle Fourche School District. The Air Force has declared facilities located at Detachment 21 of the 554th Range Squadron as excess Federal property. The Air Force is expected to dispose of the excess bomb-scoring facilities in July 1996.

Mr. President, the transfer of excess Air Force facilities to the Belle Fourche School District would relieve overcrowded local public educational facilities in a school district with increasing enrollments. Currently, the Belle Fourche School District is one of the poorest school districts in South Dakota. A small tax base coupled with a proposed additional tax burden for the renovation of the old Roosevelt school building prompted local taxpayers to reject two bond issues that would have relieved the growing classroom crowding problem. The transfer of excess Air Force facilities to the Belle Fourche School District is a responsible, cost-effective approach to addressing an increasingly serious local problem. It is an example of two levels of government cooperating for a common good. The transfer of excess Air Force facilities would help provide a quality educational environment for many school-children living in Belle Fourche.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that resolutions of support for my legislation from State, county, city and local governments be included in the RECORD. I further ask unanimous consent the full text of the bill be printed in the RECORD. I urge my colleagues to adopt this important legislation.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1430

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. LAND CONVEYANCE, RADAR BOMB SCORING SITE, BELLE FOURCHE, SOUTH DAKOTA.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—The Secretary of the Air Force may convey, without consideration, to the Belle Fourche School District, Belle Fourche, South Dakota (in this section referred to as the "District"), all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to a parcel of real property, together with any improvements thereon, consisting of approximately 37 acres located in Belle Fourche, South Dakota, which has served as the location of a support complex and housing facilities for Detachment 21 of the 554th Range Squadron, an Air Force Radar Bomb Scoring Site located in Belle Fourche, South Dakota. The conveyance may not include any portion of the radar bomb scoring site located in the State of Wyoming.

(b) CONDITION OF CONVEYANCE.—The conveyance authorized under subsection (a)

shall be subject to the condition that the District—

(1) use the property and facilities conveyed under that subsection for education, economic development, and housing purposes; or

(2) enter into an agreement with an appropriate public or private entity to sell or lease the property and facilities to such entity for such purposes.

(c) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the property conveyed under this section shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary. The cost of the survey shall be borne by the District.

(d) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under this section as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.

STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA,

November 15, 1995.

Mr. WADE PEHL,
Belle Fourche School District 9-1,
Belle Fourche, SD.

DEAR MR. PEHL: I am certainly pleased to lend my support to the proposed acquisition of the Air Force Detachment 21 site in Belle Fourche by the Belle Fourche School District. The potential for public good is remarkable. Not only will it address certain critical facility needs of the school district, it will provide badly needed moderate income housing for the Belle Fourche community. I am especially pleased with the cooperative spirit that has been evident in this project between the various local governments; it is this type of cooperation that will provide innovative solutions to many community challenges.

You and the entire board are to be commended for your creativity in this matter. Please be assured that you have my wholehearted support in this undertaking. If I may be of further assistance, please do not hesitate to contact my office.

Sincerely,

WILLIAM J. JANKLOW,
Governor.

By Mr. MCCAIN:

S. 1431. A bill to make certain technical corrections in laws relating to native Americans, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS LEGISLATION

● Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am introducing today a bill to amend two existing laws that provide for the settlement of the water rights claims of two Indian tribes in Arizona.

Section 1 of the bill amends section 112 of the Yavapai-Prescott Indian Tribe Water Rights Settlement Act of 1994 to extend by 6 months the time for the settlement parties to finish all actions required to complete the settlement. Under the original act, the Secretary of the Interior is required to publish in the Federal Register by December 31, 1995, a statement of findings that includes a finding that contracts for the assignment of Central Arizona Project water have been executed. Due to several unforeseen developments, the Department of the Interior, the Yavapai-Prescott Tribe, and the city of Prescott have concluded that additional time is necessary to finalize the agreements and publish the Secretary's findings in the Federal Register. Accordingly, the amendment extends the deadline for completion of the settlement to June 30, 1996.

Section 2 of the bill amends the San Carlos Apache Tribe Water Rights Settlement Act of 1992 to extend by 1 year the deadline for the settlement parties to complete all actions needed to effect the settlement, including finalizing agreements between the San Carlos Apache Tribe and the Phelps-Dodge Corp., and between the tribe and the town of Globe. This amendment would extend the deadline from December 31, 1995, to December 31, 1996. The Department of the Interior, the San Carlos Apache Tribe, and the other settlement parties all support this extension.

Mr. President, it is extremely important that the Congress pass these two time-sensitive provisions before the end of the year. The San Carlos Apache and Yavapai-Prescott settlements are the product of years of painstaking negotiation and effort by many parties. No party, in particular the United States, would benefit from a lapse in the statutory authority for completing these settlements. Without the time extensions contained in this bill, the many fruits of these collective efforts could be lost.

On October 31, 1995, the Senate passed S. 325, a bill comprised of 22 sections containing amendments to various laws affecting native Americans. Sections 1 and 2 described in the preceding paragraphs are identical to sections 15 and 22 of S. 325. However, it now appears doubtful that the House will pass S. 325 by the end of the year. Consequently, I am introducing this bill today to ensure that the parties to the San Carlos and Yavapai-Prescott settlements will have sufficient time to complete the work needed to make those settlements final.●

(4) striking paragraph (2) of subsection (b) and striking “(1)” in the first paragraph of subsection (b);

(5) striking subsection (c) and inserting in lieu thereof the following—

“(1) shall request an analysis by the Attorney General of the United States and shall accord substantial deference to the recommendations of the Attorney General and shall approve the transaction only if it finds that transaction does not violate the standards set forth in subsection (b)(1)(E). The transaction may not be consummated before the thirtieth calendar day after the date of approval by the Transportation Board. Action under the antitrust laws arising out of the merger transaction may be brought only by the Attorney General, and any action brought shall be commenced prior to the earliest time under this subsection at which a merger transaction approved under this subsection may be consummated. Any trackage rights conditions imposed to alleviate anticompetitive effects of the transaction shall provide for compensation levels to ensure that such effects are alleviated;

“(4) may require inclusion of other rail carriers located in the area involved in the transaction if they apply for inclusion and the Transportation Board finds their inclusion to be consistent with the public interest.”;

(6) striking the last two sentences of subsection (d);

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION 29

• Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, in going through the CONGRESSIONAL RECORDS I came across Senator FRANK MURKOWSKI’s comments on Senate Joint Resolution 29.

In that resolution, he calls for dialog between North and South Korea.

Almost a year ago, Senator MURKOWSKI and I visited North Korea and South Korea, and I applaud what he suggests in this resolution and his leadership on it.

Let me add that I believe the United States could be a facilitator of this dialog.

Senator MURKOWSKI and I sent a letter suggesting that North Korea send 10 parliamentarians to the United States and South Korea the same, and that after visiting the United States for about 8 days, that the parliamentarians of both countries meet the last 2 days in an isolated setting with a few of us who would be hosts from the United States.

Because of the tensions that have arisen since the death of Kim Il Sung neither side was willing to take that step.

It is time to explore this again.

Nowhere in the world do you have as many troops facing each other, heavily armed, with a total lack of communication between the two sides.

The potential for explosion is very real and there are 140,000 American troops on the South Korean side.

We would have an interest in resolving this even without the presence of those troops but that adds a meaningful dimension to this.

I am sending a copy of these remarks to the Assistant Secretary of State for Asia, Winston Lord.

I ask that the text of the resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The text of the resolution follows:

S.J. RES. 29

Whereas the Agreed Framework Between the United States and the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea of October 21, 1994, states in Article III, paragraph (2), that

"[t]he DPRK will consistently take steps to implement the North-South Joint Declaration on the Denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula";

Whereas the Agreed Framework also states the "[t]he DPRK will engage in North-South dialogue, as this Agreed Framework will help create an atmosphere that promotes such dialogue";

Whereas the two agreements entered into between North and South Korea in 1992, namely the North-South Denuclearization Agreement and the Agreement on Reconciliation, Nonaggression and Exchanges and Cooperation, provide an existing and detailed framework for dialogue between North and South Korea;

Whereas the North Korean nuclear program is just one of the lingering threats to peace on the Korean Peninsula; and

Whereas the reduction of tensions between North and South Korea directly serve United States interests, given the substantial defense commitment of the United States to South Korea and the presence on the Korean Peninsula of United States troops: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, SECTION 1. STEPS TOWARD NORTH-SOUTH DIALOGUE ON THE KOREAN PENINSULA.

It is the sense of the Congress that—

(1) substantive dialogue between North and South Korea is vital to the implementation of the Agreed Framework Between the United States and North Korea, dated October 21, 1994; and

(2) together with South Korea and other concerned allies, and in keeping with the spirit and letter of the 1992 agreements between North and South Korea, the President should pursue measures to reduce tensions between North and South Korea and should facilitate progress toward—

(A) holding a North Korea-South Korea summit;

(B) initiating mutual nuclear facility inspections by North and South Korea;

(C) establishing liaison offices in both North and South Korea;

(D) resuming a North-South joint military discussion regarding steps to reduce tensions between North and South Korea;

(E) expanding trade relations between North and South Korea;

(F) promoting freedom to travel between North and South Korea by citizens of both North and South Korea;

(G) cooperating in science and technology, education, the arts, health, sports, the environment, publishing, journalism, and other fields of mutual interest;

(H) establishing postal and telecommunications services between North and South Korea; and

(I) reconnecting railroads and roadways between North and South Korea.

SEC. 2. REPORT TO CONGRESS.

Beginning 3 months after the date of enactment of this joint resolution, and every 6 months thereafter, the President shall transmit to the appropriate congressional committees a report setting forth the progress made in carrying out section 1.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this joint resolution—

(1) the term "appropriate congressional committees" means the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives;

(2) the term "North Korea" means the Democratic People's Republic of Korea; and

(3) the term "South Korea" means the Republic of Korea.●

TRIBUTE TO GILFORD HIGH SOCCER

● Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, true dynasties in sports are hard to come by these days. I am pleased to report, however, that a group of high school athletes and coaches in my State have achieved a special kind of success.

The Gilford Middle High School Golden Eagles varsity soccer team won their national record-setting ninth straight State championship on November 6. Senior All-American striker Kris Keenan finished off a brilliant high-school career with the game's only goal. Keenan's goal 10:06 into sudden-death overtime came at the expense of the Coe-Brown Northwood Academy Comanches. The loss was the first of the season for the Comanches, who had a tremendous season in their own right.

Winning the championship game extended Gilford's undefeated streak to 100 consecutive games. The team's last loss occurred almost six full seasons ago. With four more wins at the start of the 1996 campaign, the Golden Eagles will hold this national mark, as well.

The one constant throughout this amazing string of success has been head coach David Pinkham. Coach Pinkham came to Gilford in 1977, fresh off of his career as an All-American soccer player at Plymouth State College in Plymouth, NH.

In 19 seasons, Coach Pinkham has compiled a career record of 281-28-13. That is good for a .893 career winning percentage. Under his tutelage, the Golden Eagles have gone undefeated the past five seasons, and in seven of the past nine. Gilford's record since the beginning of its first championship season in 1987 is an incredible 152-27-966.

Over the duration of his coaching career, Coach Pinkham's teams have scored almost seven and a half goals for every one of their opponents. Before a scoreless tie earlier this year, his teams had not been shut out for 121 consecutive games. This too, may be a national record.

Gilford has made the playoffs 17 consecutive years and has advanced to at least the Class M State semifinals for 15 straight seasons. Amazingly, the last time it failed to make it to the final four—1980—some members of this year's team had not yet been born.

The Golden Eagles have earned the respect of their opponents and followers of New Hampshire high school soccer not only for their athletic accomplishments, but also for the way they conduct themselves on the field. Gilford's players work extremely hard for their success and play the game with a tremendous amount of pride and class. At the same time, they show a great deal of respect for their opponents and the game they love.

These attributes that produce so many on-field accomplishments are evident in the rest of the players daily lives, as well. The Gilford community is rightfully proud of the dozens of fine young men produced by the Gilford soccer program.

Congratulations to Coach Dave Pinkham and the 1995 Class M State Soccer Champion Gilford Golden Eagles. On behalf of the citizens of the State of New Hampshire, I commend your outstanding accomplishment.●

THE DEATH OF HENRY J. KNOTT, SR.

● Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, with great sadness, I rise today to pay tribute to an extraordinary man. Henry J. Knott, Sr., died yesterday at the age of 89. For many decades, we knew him in Baltimore and throughout Maryland as a talented businessman and a philanthropist whose generosity knew no bounds.

I first want to express my deepest condolences to his wife of 67 years, Marion Burk Knott, his 12 children, his 51 grandchildren, and his 55 great-grandchildren.

People in positions of power and responsibility should serve as role models for our young people and give something back to their communities. I have great admiration for people who have a sense of civic responsibility, for people who try to make their community a better place to live.

Mr. Knott epitomized these qualities. Throughout his career, he sought to help those less fortunate than himself get a better education and lead better lives. He donated millions of dollars to Catholic educational institutions like his alma mater, Loyola College; Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg; the College of Notre Dame in Maryland; and the University of Notre Dame in Indiana. He was especially generous to the Institute of Notre Dame, a catholic high school both his daughters and I attended.

His legendary generosity extended well beyond education. He provided enormous help to health and cultural institutions as well. He donated essential funds to the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, the Johns Hopkins Oncology Center, and several Baltimore hospitals to help them establish an income fund to provide medical care for the poor.

His many business activities earned him a reputation as a highly disciplined and hard-working person. But his civic and charitable activities showed us that he was also an extremely modest person who had very deep feelings for the Catholic Church, his community, and the people around him.

In a 1987 Baltimore magazine article, he was asked about his prodigious philanthropy. He replied that making money was "like catching fish. You get up early. You fill the boat up with fish. And then you give them all away before they start to rot." This quote says a great deal about Henry Knott. He saw his wealth as a way to make life better for others. He never lost sight of this goal.

I mourn Henry Knott's death along with his family and the rest of Maryland. We will miss him greatly. However, I am very grateful that he was with us for 89 years, and I rejoice that he left Maryland and our Nation a better place than he found it.●

TRIBUTE TO PATRICIA WILBUR

● Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, it is unfortunately true that all good things must come to an end. On November 30, 1995, one of the best members of my staff will retire. Patricia Wilbur joined the staff on October 7, 1973, and will soon be joining her husband Perry in a long-deserved respite from the clamor of Capitol Hill.

Pat's career is a virtual survey of the technological revolution's impact on the Senate. As my office's systems administrator, Pat has witnessed the transition from typewriters and mimeograph machines, rotary phones and telegrams, to the world of faxes, pagers, cellular phones and computers. Pat has overseen this transformation with grace and humor as well as consummate professionalism.

The contribution of a good staffer often goes beyond their technical ability. This is especially true with Pat. Fondly known as Mrs. Wilbur to several generations of staffers, Pat has helped shaped the lives of young Oregonians who wish to serve in the U.S. service academies and helped us all to be more efficient in our jobs. Pat has added to our hearts with her generosity and expressions of concern and added to our waistlines with her delicious home-baked cakes.

During her 22 years in our office, Pat has been a laudable embodiment of hard work, dedication and loyalty. She and I have grayed together—she far more gracefully than I. Pat has many good reasons for retiring, but three—her grandchildren Stephanie, Michael, and Julie—are the best. We will miss her institutional memory, her compassion and love as well as her competence but have nothing good wishes as she ends her Senate career.

I am deeply grateful for Pat Wilbur's many years of invaluable assistance and ask my colleagues to join me in offering our thanks for her service to the U.S. Senate.●

TWO SIDES AGREE ON OPPOSING GAMBLING

● Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, Father Robert Drinan, former Member of the House, had a column in the National Catholic Reporter recently that is of interest.

It points out where Catholics and Christian Coalition people can work together, and it is an area where liberals and conservatives can work together.

That is the growing problem of gambling.

I ask that the Robert Drinan column be printed in the RECORD.

The column follows:

TWO SIDES AGREE ON OPPOSING GAMBLING

(By Robert F. Drinan)

I was happy to discover recently that I agree with the Christian Coalition on at least one issue: opposition to gambling. Ralph Reed, the coalition's executive director (and a Presbyterian who looks like an altar boy) says that his organization may help finance an antigambling office in Washington. Reed asserts that his organization is "pounding away" at casinos and lotteries.

A conservative Colorado group named Focus on the Family is also pushing an antigambling agenda. Gambling foes are planning their first national convention in Florida. Keynote speaker is Congressman Frank Wolf, a conservative Republican from Virginia who is working aggressively against government-sponsored gambling.

It is far from clear that any coalition of antigambling groups can reverse the explosive growth of this form of entertainment. Lotteries, casinos, riverboat gambling and an ever-widening array of slot machines and other devices took in $482 billion last year.

Substantial sums from that take have gone to Republicans, including leading presidential candidates. Sen. Robert Dole took in $477,450 from gambling interests in Las Vegas, Nev. Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas has also benefited.

A further sign of entanglement: The former chairman of the Republican National Committee, Frank Fahrenkopf, is now the head of the American Gambling Association, the industry's trade group.

Daily and vehemently, the new Republican majority in the Congress proclaims agreement with the Christian Coalition on abortion, school prayer and welfare. But when it comes to gambling, the GOP is trapped between its devotion to the Christian Coalition and its desire for campaign contributions from the gambling industry.

Will the Christian Coalition use its newfound power in Congress and some Southern states to reinstate laws against gambling—laws that religious groups, Protestant and Catholic alike, fought to get on the books a century ago?

A clash before next year's presidential election is unlikely. Recognizing that the crusade against gambling is all but a lost cause, even the most ardent adherents of the Christian Coalition's agenda are not about to expend political capital telling state lawmakers to abolish gambling and tax their people fairly.

A further complication is that most Americans have never really focused on gambling's evils. It appeared on the American scene as a phenomenon that is odorless, invisible and inaudible. Hardly anyone is angry or indignant.

Still, the potential for scandal and corruption in the exploding gambling industry is so vast that almost anything could happen.

The protests of the Christian Coalition against gambling should be welcomed by all citizens and persons of faith. The desire to get something for nothing and the fantasy that we can be millionaires overnight are arguably the product of a sinful heart.

Count of Catholics, Mr. Reed, for support. On this issue, Catholics and the Christian Coalition are reading out of the same prayer book.●

NURSING HOME QUALITY AND THE BOREN AMENDMENT

● Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, there has been considerable discussion on the Senate floor about the proposed changes to Federal nursing home quality standards.

In addition to making major cuts in projected Medicaid spending, early versions of the 7-year budget plan would have repealed entirely the nursing home standards adopted in 1987 as part of the Medicaid law. The final House-Senate compromise bill recently adopted by the Congress did not go that far, but it would weaken or eliminate several of these standards and would allow States to get waivers from the remaining Federal requirements.

Several of my colleagues have come to the floor to remind the Senate of the conditions in some nursing homes which led to the adoption of these standards in the first place.

Now I do not believe that all or even most nursing homes drugged or restrained their residents unnecessarily before the quality standards were put in place. Nursing homes in my State have a strong record of providing quality care.

But it is undeniable that some nursing homes did engage in these practices. And it is also undeniable that some states were too slow in putting an end to this kind of abuse. Therefore, I continue to believe that there should be minimum Federal quality standards, especially since the majority of Medicaid funding for nursing homes comes from the Federal Government.

However, one critical point which has not received as much attention in this debate is the ability of nursing homes to maintain the quality of their care—Federal standards or not—in the face of significant reductions in Medicaid reimbursement. As we all know, the budget plan would reduce by $163 billion future Federal funding for Medicaid. But that is not all.

A little noticed provision of this plan to turn the Medicaid Program into a block grant to the States is the repeal of the Boren amendment. The Boren amendment currently requires States to provide reimbursement to hospitals and nursing homes which is reasonable and adequate to cover their costs. This has provided critical protection from state attempts to cut Medicaid reimbursement below levels necessary to deliver quality care.

My fear is that repealing this protection is part of a deal with the States so that they will accept significantly reduced Federal funding for Medicaid. The budget proposal tells States to make due with less funding, but it allows them to, in effect, shift that funding shortfall onto nursing homes and hospitals. Well it may make the numbers add up, but what will it do to the care these institutions are able to provide to their patients?

So as we continue to debate the various changes which have been proposed to the Medicaid Program, let us not forget that Federal quality standards are not the only part of the Medicaid Program that impact quality of care. The $163 billion in cuts, combined with the repeal of the Boren amendment are also a great threat to the quality of care received by Medicaid beneficiaries. I believe the Boren amendment must be preserved in any final compromise on the budget, and I intend to fight to see that it is. ●

TRIBUTE TO ISRAEL COHEN

● Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a great man and a great friend. Late last Wednesday, Israel Cohen, the chairman of Giant Food, passed away at 83.

Mr. Cohen came to this country as a young boy and learned the grocery business in his father's store on Georgia Avenue—one of the first self-service stores of its kind in the country. From this beginning, Mr. Cohen built the Giant Food & Drug empire. In a rapidly changing retail food market, Mr. Cohen survived and prospered through innovation. He experimented with selling items under private labels to cut costs and his stores were the first in the country to use scanners at the checkout counters.

Mr. Cohen was more than simply a successful businessman. He knew that the success of his business was directly related to the health and well-being of his employees. He was a man who always had time to visit with his employees, no matter how busy he may have been. He created a family atmosphere with his employees, refusing to be called Mr. Cohen, but insisting on Izzy. And he worked as hard for them as they did for him. His employees tell of waiting around after putting in a full shift to meet and shake hands with him. Mr. Cohen recognized the value and importance of every single worker at his stores, from the President of the company to the high-schooler who bags groceries on Saturday afternoons.

Mr. Cohen was dedicated to providing the best service possible. Even if that meant he had to jump in behind a cash register and bag a customer's groceries himself. This is a lesson from which every American should learn. ●

ON THE ADVISABILITY OF NOT DEFAULTING

● Mr. SIMON. Mr. President, we have had a variety of sources telling us that the Nation should not default on its obligations because of the debt limit.

It should hardly be necessary to stress that. If we create debt, we have to pay for it. For that reason I have consistently—with one exception—voted for extending the debt limit whether it was a Democratic President or a Republican President. The real choice is when we create the debt. Once it is created we have to face up to it.

But a publication which probably has limited circulation that I have come to respect is Grant's Interest Rate Observer, published by James Grant.

His November 10 issue has a front page commentary titled, "On the Advisability of Not Defaulting."

It approaches the question of default from a slightly different perspective that I believe my colleagues should note.

I ask that the commentary be printed in the RECORD.

The material follows:

[From Grant's Interest Rate Observer, Nov. 10, 1995]

ON THE ADVISABILITY OF NOT DEFAULTING

Over the past 12 months, the 30-year Treasury bond actually delivered a higher total return than the stock market (source: the authoritative center pages of this publication). The margin of outperformance, 32.92% to 29.60%, was remarkably strong for an asset class that is under the cloud of default.

It would be better if there were no default, we think. Over the past 46 years, according to our friends at Ryan Labs, income contributed a little more than 100% of the total return of the overall Treasury market. Thus, the contribution of capital gains to the same calculation—the bear market lasted for 34½ years, until September 1981—was less than zero.

Because the bond is an income security, low interest rates work a hardship on bondholders. Default would work the ultimate hardship. To achieve the identical 32.92% total return in the next 12 months, Ryan calculates, the current 30-year Treasury would have to rally to a yield of 4.59%. Over the past five years, the long bond has produced a total return of 12.35%; to reproduce that feat in the next five years would require a rally to 3.60%. To match the past decade's total return of 11.48%, the 30-year Treasury would have to rally to 0.29%. Repeat: 0.29%.

Since May 1974, bonds have delivered 12-month total returns in excess of those achieved by stocks in no fewer than 110 months, a fact almost guaranteed to win a bar bet from any stock market chauvinist who insists that the returns to management, diligence, hard work and ingenuity should, by right, exceed those to coupon clipping.

Perhaps the creditor class isn't finished yet. As the graph on pages six and seven points up, bond market out-performance is rarely a one-month flash in the pan; it tends to roll on. But that is a question of relative return. The immediate risk of default is one of absolute performance, not in the short run but over the long pull. One long-term risk is the precedent of default (to be technical, this would be the second American default; in 1933, the government abrogated the contracts under which it had promised to pay gold to its bondholders). A second is that the temporary nonpayment of interest and principal would cause intelligent people to reexamine the nation's monetary institutions. Wondering about the whereabouts of their money, they might turn to the Federal Reserve's balance sheet. Reading it, they would observe: non-interest-bearing currency on the liabilities side; Treasury securities on the asset side. Their eyes would flash to a footnote: $484 billion in Treasuries held in custody by the Federal Reserve for the account of foreign central banks.

A very intelligent American reader would come to appreciate that he or she is the beneficiary of a vast fandango. The world has willingly come to accept the promises of this government, either in interest-bearing or non-interest-bearing form. The half-trillion dollars or so worth of dollar securities visibly held by foreign central banks constitute the evidence not of American strength but of weakness. Mainly, they represent the track of currency intervention. Buying dollars, the central banks turn them in for U.S. government securities. It is an indirect gift.

Another subversive feature of a Treasury default is that it would turn the spotlight on other classes of non-interest-bearing investments. Of these, perhaps none is so lowly as gold, which this year has caused even its few remaining friends to despise it. However, notes Peter McTeague, of MCM TradeWatch, Boston, gold option volatility has collapsed, speculators are short the market, central banks are hostile toward it and producers continue to sell the metal forward (the proof of which is a gold lease rate that has surged to 2.3% from 1.8% in the past month: even at the lower yield, it would represent towering value in the Japanese bond markets). On Tuesday came news that the output of the South African mining industry is closing in on a 40-year low; a spokesman for the Anglo American Corp. described the country's gold operations as being in a "state of managed decline." The other day, a friend described his own growing, unfashionable bullishness toward gold. However, he added before hanging up: "I'm not sure I want my name used with this." It has been a vale of tears. ●

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

RETIREMENT OF THE GENTLELADY FROM KANSAS,
THE HONORABLE JAN MEYERS

HON. JOHN J. LaFALCE

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. LaFALCE. Mr. Speaker, it is with sincere regret that I learned today that the gentlelady from Kansas, JAN MEYERS, would not seek reelection to the 105th Congress next year.

I have served with Mrs. MEYERS on the Small Business Committee since her election to the Congress in 1985. In the current Congress, she serves as Chair of the committee and I am the ranking Democratic member. This is a role reversal from the last Congress, and one which I certainly wish had not occurred. But if it had to occur, then I am pleased that the chairmanship passed to Mrs. MEYERS.

During the time that I have served with her, we have had our philosophical differences, but she always personified the term "gentlelady."

For the most part, however, we approached the needs of the small business community on a bipartisan basis. The 103d Congress, 1993–94, is an example of what can be done legislatively to assist small business.

It was in this Congress that we finalized the legislation to convene a White House Conference on Small Business. This most important conclave of individual small business owners prioritized their needs and provided us with a blueprint for action which will see us into the next century.

It was also last year, that with her strong support, we were able to enact a major Small Business Administration reauthorization act. This bill, enacted as Public Law 103–403, contained many provisions of vital importance to various segments of the small business community. There are, however, two provisions of particular note.

The first is recognition that Federal spending can be reduced without necessarily reducing assistance to small business. The bill demonstrated this by mandating the delegation of additional decisional responsibility to financial intermediaries who deliver assistance through the certified development company loan program.

The second is reemphasis of the role of small businesses owned by women by establishment of an Interagency Committee on Women's Business Enterprise. This committee, consisting of high-level Government officials, will coordinate Federal programs to assist the establishment and growth of women's business enterprises, and work with the private sector National Women's Business Council.

Congressional elections last November sent many new Members to the Congress and has resulted in many different policies being presented for consideration. Some of these ideas have merit and deserve to be pursued; others are of questionable value; and still yet others, I strongly oppose. But, under our system of government, we must consider all of them, a requirement which presents a herculean task to those who chair our committees.

Mrs. MEYERS has faced this task and performed it with distinction as the Chair of the House Small Business Committee. I am pleased that we still consider small business needs on a bipartisan basis.

Among our major accomplishments this year is legislation to strengthen the Regulatory Flexibility Act which we enacted some 15 years ago. This law requires Federal departments and agencies to consider, and minimize, if possible, any adverse small business impact from proposed regulations. As a result of this year's amendment, however, agencies which ignore small business impact can be brought before the courts which are authorized to enforce this protection.

Possibly the most important item of note is what did not happen—the Small Business Administration [SBA] was not eliminated.

Some new Members of Congress, and even some with experience, do not fully appreciate the ultimate results of the benefits which SBA provides to assist small businesses. In addition, these programs enhance competition, provide employment, and contribute substantial tax income to all levels of government.

At the start of this Congress, I was very apprehensive that this lack of understanding might cause a clamor for the elimination of SBA in order to achieve a minimal amount of budget savings. There has been no such cry, however, and I believe that this has been largely due to the effort of Chairman MEYERS to educate the new Members. She certainly deserves our thanks and support for this very important effort.

I am very sorry that Mrs. MEYERS has announced her departure. She will be greatly missed, particularly by the small business community. I am well aware of the time demands placed upon Members and I too regret the things which I simply cannot do. Thus I sympathize with her decision.

On behalf of her colleagues on the Small Business Committee, I wish her well.

TRIBUTE TO THE 1995 RATTLER FOOTBALL TEAM

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to the Florida A&M University Rattler football team, who have had a truly remarkable year. Florida A&M's play this year is reminiscent of its glory days when Jake Gaither was coach and the Rattlers routinely ran roughshod over their opponents.

Coach Billy Joe, in only his second season at the helm of Florida A&M's football fortunes, and his Rattlers this year have captured the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference Football Championship with a perfect 6–0 conference record and earned a berth in college football's Heritage Bowl. The Rattler football team also finished the regular season with a 9–2 record, ranked 2d in the Sheridan Black College Poll, and 15th in the Sports Network NCAA Division I-AA Poll. This was their best season since going 12–1 and winning the Inaugural NCAA Division I-AA National Championship 17 years ago.

This is truly a remarkable feat for a young Rattler football team. And, for the first time in 17 years there's renewed talk of football championships on the highest of Tallahassee's seven hills. For the record, the Florida A&M Rattlers have won 11 national championships since 1938.

Florida A&M not only produces championship football teams and great marching bands but also great minds. In 1992, Florida A&M University won another national championship of sorts by edging out Harvard to become the favorite destination of National Achievement Scholars, the Nation's most sought-after high school graduates. Florida A&M has finished among the top five in the recruitment of these academically gifted students in each of the last 5 years.

Mr. Speaker, I join with Floridians everywhere in extending my congratulations to the 1995 Florida A&M University Rattler Football Team, the MEAC Champions, on a job well done. I know that my colleagues join me in honoring the Rattlers and wish them continued success.

TRIBUTE TO HOWARD WELINSKY

HON. HOWARD L. BERMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. HENRY A. WAXMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. ANTHONY C. BEILENSON

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. JANE HARMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues and I are honored to pay tribute to Howard Welinsky, a close friend of ours, a great friend of Israel's, and one of the most active, passionate Democrats we have ever known. This year Howard is being given an award by AIPAC for his many activities on its behalf. It is a richly deserved honor.

Indeed, Howard is legendary for his active support of candidates and causes in which he believes. The world could do with a few more people like Howard Welinsky.

His energy is astounding. As senior vice president of administration at Warner Brothers, Howard oversees all the branch personnel operations in the United States and Canada for Warner Brothers distribution. He regularly arrives at the office before dawn and works well into the evening.

• This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

Yet somehow Howard manages to appear at more than his share of after-hours events, and to assume a leadership role in numerous organizations. For example, he is the current Chair of the Israel Commission of the Los Angeles Jewish Community Relations Committee; the current Chair of the Jewish Public Affairs Committee; a member of the board of trustees at UCLA; the current Chair of Democrats of Israel and a member of the regional board of the Los Angeles Hillel Council.

This list represents only about half of all the organizations and associations lucky enough to benefit from Howard's participation. He is truly devoted to his community, and redefines the phrase "civic-minded."

Mr. Speaker, we ask our colleagues to join us today in saluting Howard Welinsky, whose life's work consists of helping others. He is an inspiration to all of us.

TRIBUTE TO BERNARD LEVINE

HON. CHARLES E. SCHUMER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, on Friday evening, December 1, 1995, the Men's Club of Kew Gardens Anshe Sholom Jewish Center, Kew Gardens, NY, celebrates the life of past president Bernard Levine. Bernie was a graduate of the Anshe Sholom Hebrew School and was barmitzvahed in the same synagogue.

Most of his adult life was spent working and then taking over his parents' neighborhood candy store which was aptly named Bernie land. The store was opened from early morning to late evening and was patronized by as many as three generations of families. It was the place to go and hear what was going on in the neighborhood as well as to enjoy a real New York egg cream prepared by his darling wife Claire. Bernie's business ethic was to please his customers and he went to great lengths to achieve that result. During inclement weather it was not uncommon to see him delivering newspapers to his aged and infirmed customers.

Upon his what we would call retirement, Bernie became active in our synagogue with the same fervor that he had exhibited in his business. He chaired many functions at the center including publicity and ran a Bernie-Mobile transporting members who needed transportation to and from temple affairs, meetings, and services. He served as president of the men's club with a special flair and introduced many activities for the children of our Hebrew school.

Bernie loved Jewish music and attended countless concerts. He was our neighborhood historian and somehow found time to work on the election board.

Bernie was a mensch in the true sense of the word. He served his family, temple, and community. His unparalleled devotion and goodness will be missed by all.

TRIBUTE TO PAUL DENI

HON. DALE E. KILDEE

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Paul Deni, who has served Waterford Township, MI, as an elected official at the local level for the past 19 years.

Trustee Deni moved to the township over 36 years ago. He served with the U.S. Marine Corps in Korea and is a disabled American veteran. He has been a member of the Waterford Township Lions Club for 12 years, a member of the Pontiac/Waterford Elks, member of the Board of Community Activities, Inc., and a delegate representing the township on SEMCOG for the past 12 years. Professionally Mr. Deni has been in the grocery business for 30 years as the owner of a market in Waterford. During his 10 years as a member of the township board he has served for 12 of those years as a trustee, and the last 7 as the treasurer.

Although our township board will experience a great loss in service from one who has been there for so long; it is fortunate the community will still have the benefit of his presence and caring as he and his wife Eleanor plan on remaining residents of Waterford Township.

RESOLUTION TO GRANT DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA AUTHORITY OVER ITS OWN LOCALLY RAISED REVENUE

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce a continuing resolution which would give the District the authority to obligate only District revenues to carry out activities authorized in fiscal year 1995 at a rate of operations capped at $4.994 billion, the spending level agreed to by conferees on the fiscal year 1996 D.C. appropriation bill. Specific oversight by the Financial Authority to monitor obligations and spending would also be required.

In the midst of a serious financial crisis, the District has been particularly damaged by the Federal Government shutdown and would continue to be destabilized by a series of short-term continuing resolutions. Short-term CR's would place the CFO in a particularly untenable position. He is required to avoid over-obligation at the same time that he would have to apportion obligations in small amounts to fit very limited continuing resolution authority. Faced with unfunded Federal mandates, for example, AFDC, Medicaid, and the complexity of payments that a city must make, a series of short-term CR's would only lead to disarray. I am particularly concerned that hard-hit District residents, who have endured this serious fiscal crisis, will be put through additional hardship because of a struggle within the Federal Government. It has already become difficult to hold on to D.C. taxpayers.

With an already crippling fiscal crisis, the last thing the Congress should do is to make it worse. Passing a continuing resolution for D.C. is the appropriate thing for Congress to do.

THE WELFARE SYSTEM AS WE KNOW IT

HON. ANDREW JACOBS, JR.

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. JACOBS. Mr. Speaker, how about a dose of reality? The following article by Prof. Fran Quigley was published by the Nuvo Newsweekly in Indianapolis.

P.S. If the present welfare system as we mistakenly know it is so bad, ask yourself this question: Why did President Ronald Reagan sign it into law in 1988?

The Reagan budget, the Reagan revolution, was essentially adopted and became law especially during his first term. Those budgets did not triple the entire accumulated national debt by overfeeding poor children.

[From the Nuvo Newsweekly, Nov. 2-9, 1995]

CONFRONTING THE MYTHS

(By Prof. Fran Quigley)

"Welfare as we know it" is coming to an end. True to the campaign promises of both President Clinton and the Republican Congress, our country's system of providing guarantees of federal income assistance to poor families through the program of Aid to Families with Dependent Children is being dismantled. In its place will be state-run programs of assistance, including strict time limitations on the receipt of benefits, mandates that parents work outside the home and potentially a blanket denial of assistance to children of teenage mothers.

In Indiana, the changes to "welfare as we know it" are even more radical. In June of this year, most Indiana recipients of AFDC were notified that they would be subject to new rules that limit their lifetime enrollment on the program to two years and would be subject to a "family cap," where the state refuses to provide any additional benefits to families for new children conceived while the mother was enrolled in the AFDC program. In light of the conventional wisdom that has the Democratic party as the defender of the nation's poor, the irony of these stricter state provisions is that Democratic Governor Evan Bayh has sponsored and defended the two-year limitation and the family cap, while many Senate Republicans recently rejected these same provisions as too onerous for the poor.

All of these changes have come as a result of immense popular support for elected officials to change "welfare as we know it." But what exactly is welfare as we know it? It turns out that once the programs and the people enrolled in them are examined beyond rhetoric about "lazy deadcats" and "welfare queens," the actual data show that many of the assumptions of the welfare debate are incorrect.

Some of these assumptions are so prevalent that they have taken on the status of myths. It is a dangerous situation when these myths have a place at the center of the welfare debate and now the dismantling of the family safety net. In order to take an informed position on the changes in our government's role in assisting the poor, these myths need to be confronted by the cold, hard, statistical truth:

Myth #1: If poor people would just get jobs, they would no longer be poor.

Truth: In 1990s America, poverty is now a problem for working people and their families. In 1969, full-time employment at a minimum-wage job provided enough income to keep a family of three out of poverty. In 1992, full-time minimum-wage employment provided only 76 percent of the income needed to keep that same family above the federal government's estimate of the poverty level, and only 50 percent of the income estimated to be necessary for a three-person family to live a safe and healthy lifestyle in Indianapolis.

Implicit in this "get a job" myth and much of the anti-welfare rhetoric is the notion that poor people are poor because they are too lazy to work. However, noted welfare and poverty researcher Joel Handler describes empirical studies showing that poor people, including people receiving welfare, usually have a well-developed work ethic and, in fact, most do work at jobs that simply do not pay enough salary to keep their families out of poverty.

Those who do not work outside the home usually are raising families, and the financial difficulties of maintaining employment, child care, transportation and health care are often responsible for forcing single parents out of the workplace. Also, any description of AFDC recipients as not "working" ignores the reality that raising children is both difficult and important work: Anyone who has raised children must reject the "lazy" description for a single mother who is raising kids in an environment of substandard housing, violence and constant financial uncertainty.

Myth #2: Once a person receives welfare benefits, his financial needs will be met.

Truth: Receipt of Aid to Families with Dependent Children in Indiana provides a family with less than one-third of the income needed to meet the federal government estimate of the poverty level. A disabled adult's Supplemental Security Income provides a little over 54 percent of the estimated income necessary to meet the poverty level for a two-person family. AFDC benefit levels vary among states, but the median state AFDC maximum monthly benefit level for a family of three was only $366, which is barely more than a third of the federal poverty line. The grim implication of these figures is that our streets and shelters are full of families with children who are homeless and/or hungry, yet are receiving the maximum welfare benefits allowed.

Myth #3: Women have babies in order to receive larger welfare checks.

Truth: Since Indiana's average AFDC monthly increase totals only $65 per additional child, as contrasted with the federal government's quite modest estimate of a $200-plus increased monthly cost of living per child, Indiana's welfare recipients do not have any financial incentive to have babies. In fact, most welfare mothers do not have a large number of children: 73 percent of all AFDC recipients have only one or two children. AFDC recipients with more than three children constitute only 10 percent of the total number of families enrolled in the program.

Myth #4: Most welfare recipients are African American, longtime dependents and teenage parents.

Truth: All of these descriptive adjectives are incorrect as applied to AFDC recipients. African-Americans only make up 37 percent of all AFDC recipients (down from 45 percent in 1969), over half of all recipients leave the AFDC program within one year, and only 8 percent of recipients are under the age of 20.

Myth #5: Programs to help the poor are too expensive for state and federal government budgets.

Truth: Don't blame the poor for budget deficits without looking in the mirror first: All the direct aid to the poor (AFDC, Medicaid, Food Stamps, and SSI) together does not equal three of the tax breaks benefiting the middle class and wealthy (deductions for retirement plans, home mortgage interest deductions, and exemptions for employer-paid health insurance premiums). Put another way, the AFDC program consumes only 1 percent of the federal budget and 2 percent of the average state budget.

Also, government investments in the well-being of our nation's poor, especially poor children, are cost-effective because of the programs' prevention of future social costs. For example, every dollar spent on Head Start programs is estimated to save $4.75 in later special education, crime, welfare and other costs. Similar estimates have every dollar spent on childhood immunization or drug treatment saving $10 in later medical costs or social costs.

Myth #6: Housing assistance is widely available to poor people.

Truth: There is often at least a two-year waiting list for public or subsidized housing in Marion County if the housing unit is even accepting applications, and these existing programs are at risk of reduction or elimination by the current Congress. Subsidized housing is vital to poor people because the federal government's recommendation that people pay 30 percent of their income on housing and utilities is an otherwise impossible goal for most AFDC recipients. For example, the 1993 fair market value for an Indianapolis two-bedroom apartment is $523, which represents 156 percent of the monthly income of a three-person family receiving AFDC.

In fact, most poor people in Indianapolis pay over 50 percent of their income in housing costs. Some of the hypocrisy of the anti-welfare rhetoric based on allegations of budget-busting is demonstrated by the government's commitment to providing significant housing benefits for the decidedly non-poor. For every dollar spent by the federal government on low-income housing assistance, $3 of housing assistance is provided to high-income persons (incomes in the top 20 percent) through homeowner tax deductions.

Myth #7: Private charities can replace government programs to help the poor.

Truth: Private charitable programs currently spend only about 1 percent as much as state and federal governments on social services, and many of those private services are provided by agencies heavily dependent on government funds. The major charitable providers of social services, including Salvation Army, Catholic Charities USA and Feed the Children, have taken the position that government has a necessary role in helping the poor. Leaders of these organizations predict disastrous consequences for the poor if the government significantly reduces its role in providing a social safety net.

Myth #8: The United States provides the opportunity for persons in poverty to simply pull themselves up into the middle class.

Truth: For most poor people, 1995 America is not the land of opportunity. The gap between the rich and poor in our society is the largest of any industrialized nation, and the percentage of poor people who are able to move out of poverty has steadily decreased in the last several decades. Even though current efforts to solve the United States' poverty problem focus on reducing or eliminating government programs, it is the more generous and pervasive family benefit programs that are generally cited as the source of the greater amount of class mobility and lower amount of poverty in comparable countries.

Dire consequences are predicted as a result of changes to our current welfare system, with poverty experts and service providers predicting everything from widespread rioting to a future where children sleeping on sidewalk heating grates will be a common sight. The lesson to be taken from exposing the fallacy of the myths that motivated these changes is that the very survival of our country's poor families is put at risk based on misconceptions and prejudices, rather than clear-eyed examination of the effectiveness of the current welfare programs. While it may not yet be clear what the consequences of changing welfare will have for the poor and for the rest of us, it is clear that we have eliminated "welfare as we know it" when we did not really "know it" in the first place.

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. ANTHONY C. BEILENSEN

OF CALIFORNIA

HON. JANE HARMAN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. BERMAN. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues and I are honored to pay tribute to Nettie Becker, who this year is being given an award from AIPAC for her long history of efforts on its behalf. Nettie has proven countless times over the years that she is, indeed, a great friend of Israel. AIPAC is lucky to have her talents and energy.

So are many other organizations, associations, committees, and commissions. Nettie is one of those special people who makes a point of being active and involved with the community. She is a member of the executive committee of the Anti-Defamation League; a member of the California Women's Political Summit; a board member of the Odyssey Theatre in Los Angeles; a board member of the Jewish National Fund and a Governor Wilson appointee to the Seismic Safety Commission.

Nettie's accomplishments have not gone unnoticed. The Los Angeles County Commission for Women honored her in 1993 for dedicated service to the community, while in 1990 she was given the first Women of Achievement Award from State of Israel Bonds.

Through it all Nettie has managed to run a business, Nettie Becker Escrow, Inc., of Beverly Hills. Since its founding in 1979, it has become one of the most successful escrow companies in California. The Los Angeles Business Journal named Nettie Becker Escrow as 1 of its top 100 woman owned businesses since 1989.

Mr. Speaker, we ask our colleagues to join us today in saluting Nettie Becker, whose selflessness, dedication, and work ethic is an inspiration to us all.

TRIBUTE TO TRUMAN F.
MARSHALL

HON. CHARLES WILSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. WILSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise before my colleagues today to pay a special tribute to Mr. Truman F. Marshall, a dedicated public servant who will soon retire from the U.S. Army, Corps of Engineers, Fort Worth District, after 40 years of distinguished service. I ask that the House join with me to thank Mr. Marshall for his contributions to the Corps of Engineers, his local community, and our country.

Since that time, Mr. Marshall has distinguished himself as a man of dedication, innovation, and personal accomplishment. In 1963, he transferred to the Corps of Engineers, Fort Worth District, and took a position as an engineer draftsman. Over the next 32 years, Truman Marshall moved his way up the ladder. During his career, Truman Marshall received numerous awards and letters of appreciation. Among these awards, Mr. Marshall has received the Commanders Award and the Southwestern Division Award for Programmer of the Year. Mr. Marshall serves his community well and is a member of the Vestry for St. Johns Episcopal Church. TRIBUTE TO LOUIS GALINSKY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor an outstanding citizen whose contributions to the educational advancement of New York City school children go unsurpassed. It is a special privilege to pay tribute to Mr. Louis Galinsky; a teacher, leader, and mentor to thousands of students attending New York public schools. His teaching skills coupled with a keen understanding of his student's emotional and academic needs, earned the highest respect and trust among his pupils, parents, colleagues, and fellow academics. This outstanding member of our community deserves recognition of his achievements.

Mr. Galinsky began his successful career as a social studies teacher at Junior High School No. 3 in Manhattan. After working there for over 7 years, he became a guidance counselor at Junior High School No. 71. Galinsky's commitment to his students became clear as he remained at this post for 8 years. He then worked for the Committee on the Handicapped for 2 years and soon after became the assistant principal at P.S. 99. Galinsky was later promoted to head principal of this school and fulfilled that role until his retirement. His hard work and dedication solidified his superior reputation as one of the top educational leaders in New York.

The people of our city owe a moment of thanks to Mr. Galinsky for his tireless hard work and countless contributions to the success of New York's students. I am honored to salute him upon his retirement and wish him well in his future plans.

TRIBUTE TO BISHOP ODIS A.
FLOYD

HON. DALE E. KILDEE

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to urge my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives to join me in paying tribute to Bishop Odis A. Floyd of New Jerusalem Full Gospel Baptist Church on his 26th pastoral anniversary.

During the 26 years of service, Bishop Floyd has presided over a growth in membership from 450 to the current membership of 3,000. Bishop Floyd, although not born in Flint, came to our community in 1948. He entered the U.S. Army in 1958. Bishop Floyd has attended Monterey College, Pensacola Junior College, Mott Community College, Toledo Bible College, and the United Theological Seminary from which he received his DD degree in 1990. In 1964 he accepted a call to ministry; which all of us in the Flint community are forever grateful for. In 1965 he began assisting his grandfather, the Rev. L.W. Owens in the organization of the New Jerusalem Missionary Baptist Church. Bishop Floyd was ordained in 1969, and became pastor later in 1969 when his grandfather retired. In 1991 the church's name was changed to the New Jerusalem Full Gospel Baptist Church. In 1993 he was consecrated to the office of Bishop by Paul S. Morton, Presiding Bishop of the Full Gospel Baptist Fellowship.

Our community is truly enriched by the teaching and leadership of the Bishop Floyd. Although he has received many recognitions and awards over the years, and served the community through membership on many boards; it's the missionary work that he carries out on behalf of New Jerusalem Missionary Baptist Church and in particular his involvement at Community Alliance, Resource, Environment [CARE] Drug Rehabilitation and Prevention Center that makes him a giant in our community.

BILL TO REDUCE MINIMUM NUMBER OF AMERICAN UNIVERSITY TRUSTEES

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce legislation which would reduce the minimum number of Board of Trustees of American University from forty (as defined in the University's Act of Incorporation) to twenty-five. American University President Benjamin Ladner and the Board of Trustees have asked me to introduce this corrective measure.

American University was incorporated by Act of Congress on February 24, 1893. Its charter contains a provision setting the minimum number of the Board of Trustees at forty. On May 5, 1995, the Board of Trustees of the University passed a resolution authorizing the Board Officers and the President of the University to obtain the necessary approval from the General Board of Higher Education, the United Methodist Church and the U.S. Congress to reduce the number of trustees to twenty-five. Both the General Board of Higher Education and the United Methodist Church have approved this change. Only approval from the Congress remains.

The Board of Trustees believes that a board minimum size of twenty-five will permit the University to fully engage in its fiduciary responsibilities and grant greater flexibility to hold meetings and conduct business as a fully constituted board. It has simply become too cumbersome for the University to conduct its business while retaining forty trustees on the Board.

I urge my colleagues to support this corrective measure.

THE FUTURE OF MEDICARE AND MEDICAID

HON. JOHN P. MURTHA

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. MURTHA. Mr. Speaker, as we continue to debate the future of the Medicare and Medicaid programs, I'd like to ask my colleagues to consider the views of Ms. Carolyn Scanlan, president and chief operating officer of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania's hospitals would be particularly hard hit by the Medicare and Medicaid provisions we are considering because of the high percentage of senior citizens who live in Pennsylvania, but her concerns reflect those of hospitals all across the Nation. We will not improve the Medicare and Medicaid programs by forcing hospitals, particularly hospitals in rural areas, to close. Downsizing may look good to accountants and bookkeepers, but it's not an encouraging concept for senior citizens when it means closing hospitals. We've got to work to improve availability, access, and affordability in Medicare and Medicaid, and we can do it without forcing seniors to accept care that is anything but the best.

The text of Ms. Scanlan's letter follows:

THE HOSPITAL ASSOCIATION
OF PENNSYLVANIA,

Harrisburg, PA, November 16, 1995.

Hon. JOHN P. MURTHA,
House of Representatives, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN MURTHA: I have reviewed the U.S. House/Senate Conference Report and am deeply disappointed that the proposal does not sufficiently address the issues of health care restructuring, patient access and beneficiary choice. I must therefore ask that you oppose the conference report when it comes before you for a vote.

For the past several months we have communicated to you, and House and Senate leadership, the message driving our efforts to help Congress achieve a balanced budget while preserving Medicare and Medicaid and improving health care delivery:

Inclusion of House provider sponsored network provision.

Inclusion of the lower House Medicare spending reductions.

Reduced and capped House Medicare "failsafe" provision.

Guaranteed Medicaid coverage for children, pregnant women and the disabled.

Inclusion of House language on medical malpractice, antitrust, fraud and abuse and self-referral provisions.

Inclusion of House trust fund for Graduate Medical Education (GME) and Indirect Medical Education (IME) and lower IME reductions.

Inclusion of Senate carve out for medical education and Disproportionate Share (DSH) and lower DSH reductions.

The conference report falls far short of meeting these goals, which are essential to ensure that the more than 250 hospitals and health systems in Pennsylvania can better address community health needs and offer beneficiaries health care coverage with a local focus.

As the process moves forward, the hospital community remains available to work with you to craft a budget reconciliation bill that includes these critical elements. Your "no vote" will provide us with an opportunity to work together toward a better bill that will ensure our ability to continue to provide appropriate and necessary services to our senior citizens, the disabled, children and low-income families.

HONORING HOSPICE CARE

HON. JAY KIM

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. KIM. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize hospice care, which is considered one of the more humane traditions of health service delivery in the United States; providing palliative medical care and supportive social, emotional, and spiritual services to the terminally ill, as well as support for the family.

Hospice care involves a team of professionals, including physicians, nurses, therapists, home care aides, social workers, counselors, and volunteers who help terminally ill patients and their families, primarily at home, share the final days in peace, comfort, and dignity. Hospice offers an effective alternative to hospitals and nursing homes employing more than 33,500 full-time professionals and approximately 11,000 volunteers who together served more than 280,000 individuals last year alone. These hospice caregiving teams help patients, as well as their family members with one of the toughest transitions in life. They are able to do so by eliminating the physical pain associated with an illness, as well as supplying necessary psychological, spiritual, and emotional support in a program primarily based in the home that treats the person, not the disease; focusing on the family, not the individual; and emphasizing the quality of life, helping patients and their families the opportunity to reclaim the spirit of life.

It is an honor to pay tribute to these dedicated professionals who demonstrating their caring, compassion, and charity on a daily basis.

A SPECIAL TRIBUTE IN HONOR OF THE MEMORY OF EDWARD A. SMITH

HON. KAREN MCCARTHY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Ms. MCCARTHY. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute and to honor the memory of one of Kansas City's outstanding business and civic leaders, Edward A. Smith. Mr. Smith died tragically November 20, the victim of a hit and run accident.

Ed Smith leaves a legacy of outstanding achievements and selfless contributions to the community he called home, Kansas City, MO. He worked tirelessly within both the business and civic communities, quietly direct many high level philanthropic efforts and helping to shape important businesses and foundations. Ed Smith gave a lifetime commitment to making Kansas City a better community for all of us.

In his eulogy to the more than one-thousand mourners who gathered to say farewell last week, Rabbi Alan Cohen said of Ed Smith, "He was a mentor to a great many people. He was a visionary. He truly left his mark." I join with his many friends and family members in describing Ed Smith as an "uncommon person." Rabbi Cohen added that although Mr. Smith loved the law, his fiercest loyalty was to his family. "His loyalty extended to everything he did" according to Rabbi Cohen. "He was always ready to give back to people and places that had been a part of him."

Henry Bloch of H & R Bloch has said that Ed Smith is largely responsible for the success of H & R Bloch, where Smith was a long time director. According to Henry Bloch, "Whenever we had a problem, we said, 'let's call Ed.' He was a man of superior intellect, but not ego."

Close friends have described Ed Smith as someone who worked tirelessly and was passionate about philanthropy. Many have noted that he was one of Kansas City's most effective behind-the-scenes leaders, never seeking recognition for his work, but focusing instead on getting things accomplished.

In the late 1970's Mr. Smith attended a dinner party with several other civic leaders. They agreed to form a community foundation, passing the hat and amassing just over two-hundred-dollars that night. That group has since become the Greater Kansas City Community Foundation and Affiliated Trusts which now manages assets of $270-million in 450 charitable funds. It also owns the Kansas City Royals baseball team.

Among the many awards Edward Smith received: the University of Missouri, Kansas City, Chancellors Medallion in 1991; the Charles Evans Whittaker Award in 1992 given by the Lawyers Association of Kansas City; the National Conference of Christians and Jews Citation award in 1993; Ingram's Magazine named Edward Smith one of their "Local Heroes" and "Hall of Famers" in 1994-1995.

Ed Smith was very active in the Jewish community. He was a member of the Beth Shalom congregation and a past director of the Jewish community Center. He also held a directorship with the Beth Shalom Foundation. In 1986, Mr. Smith received the Civic Service award from the Hyman Brand Hebrew Academy.

Edward Smith was born January 20, 1918 in Worcester, MA. He attended Clark University in Worcester where he graduated with honors in Economics in 1939. He went on to Harvard Law School where he graduated in 1942. A founder of one of Kansas City's most prominent law firms, Smith, Gill, Fisher and Butts, Ed Smith was instrumental in building its success and in facilitating its recent merger with the Bryan Cave law firm.

Edward Smith leaves his wife, Beth K. Smith, with whom he has celebrated 50 years of marriage, and four children: Sarah S. Malino, Judith E. Smith, Deborah M. Smith and James D. Smith. He also leaves eight grandchildren. Beth Smith shared her husband's commitment to civic, cultural, and social causes, and her leadership is revered in the community.

Today Mr. Speaker, I ask that my colleagues join with me and with the people of Kansas City, who keenly feel the loss of Edward Smith. Our thoughts and prayers are with his family at this sorrowful time. Edward Smith was an outstanding individual who took a special interest in helping young people develop their abilities and leadership skills. The void he leaves in our community will long be felt by all who had the privilege of knowing and working with him. The legacy of leadership he leaves will live on in future generations whose lives he has touched in the most remarkable way.

MEDICARE HMO MARKETING

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, the Nation's seniors and low-income citizens are starting to be hit with a tidal wave of sales pitches for managed care health plans.

Some of the information is helpful. A lot of it is just old-fashioned boiler room high-pressure sales pitch.

I've just received the following letter from Dr. Harley Schultz of San Leandro, CA, which explains some of the dangers of this marketing.

Mr. Speaker, before a lot of seniors and disabled and low-income people are hurt by gross sales practices, we need to establish some standards so that people can make rational, careful choices on their health plans—after all, it could be a matter of life and death.

The letter follows:

DEAR CONGRESSMAN: Recently I had the experience where a Medicare/MediCal patient of ours was marketed and sold an HMO plan. Neither the patient or family understood that the plan resulted in a limitation of their choice of hospital, home health service, would result in a co-payment for office visits, and possibly limitations in service available. The salesman told them that since MediCal patients would soon be enrolled in managed-care plans, that they should sign up early instead of later.

Several other patients have commented to me that they signed up for various plans because they eventually succumbed to persistent telemarketing, and didn't know any other way to stop the phone calls from coming.

Many of our elderly citizens are clearly no match for sophisticated insurance salesmen who work on commission.

Inasmuch as you have a long record of interest in fraud and abuse, I would suggest to you that you may wish to direct some of your attention to marketing practices in the health care industry. Specifically, the Federal Government may wish to set certain guidelines for the plans with which they contract with regard to the information that is presented, the way it is presented, and the amount of aggression that can be used in pursuing a potential client.

TRIBUTE TO DR. WILLIAM ALHEIM

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I would like to rise in recognition of the upcoming retirement of one of the great institutional leaders at Miami-Dade Community College, Dr. William Alheim. He is retiring on December 3, 1995 after some 35 years of superlative service to countless students and the community, transforming it into the topmost community college in the Nation.

Dr. Alheim virtually epitomized the demonstration of utmost excellence and dedication of the college's athletic department, exemplified by the countless awards his teams garnered during his 25-year tenure as basketball coach. Throughout this period he won 560 games while losing only 176 contests for an excellent .759 lifetime winning percentage. His hoopsters won four State championships, and claimed three State runner-up trophies, while participating 17 times in trips to State championship tournaments. To his tribute, he coached seven junior college all-Americans.

For this enviable record, Coach Alheim was voted Coach of the Year three times in 1968, 1982, and 1984. His finest hour came in 1982 when he led his team to a perfect 33-0 record and the No. 1 national ranking before losing an overtime decision in the national championship. Despite this loss Coach Alheim garnered the Kodak National Coach of the Year, becoming the first junior college coach to be so honored.

He was enshrined into the Florida Community College Activities Association Hall of Fame, the Florida Community College Basketball Hall of Fame, and the National Junior College Association Hall of Fame. Since retiring from active coaching, Dr. Alheim has served as division chairman of the department of exercise science and sports medicine.

This well-deserved retirement will certainly allow him to spend more time with Helen, whom he married 42 years ago. The Alheims are blessed with two sons, along with one granddaughter.

TRIBUTE TO ISRAEL COHEN

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to a most distinguished member of the Washington community, Israel Cohen, who died last week at the age of 83. For over 60 years, Izzy, as he was known, helped guide Giant Food, which his father had cofounded in 1936, into the area's largest chain of supermarkets and into one of the most community-oriented businesses in the Nation.

As we honor the memory of this most successful businessman, we must remember him also for his keen interest in the families, schools, and neighborhoods his supermarkets served. His sense of social responsibility and community service is exemplified by Giant's establishing stores in underserved innercity neighborhoods, by sponsoring "It's Academic" TV competitions for our teenagers, by helping area schools purchase needed computer equipment, and by assisting in the fundraising efforts of countless educational and community groups.

The people of the Washington metropolitan area mourn the loss of a great businessman and a great and good neighbor. His commitment, dedication, and generosity will always be remembered. Mr. Speaker, please join me in extending condolences to his family.

IN SUPPORT OF CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITY RELIEF ACT

HON. RICHARD A. GEPHARDT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of H.R. 2525, the Charitable Gift Annuity Relief Act, and H.R. 2519, the Philanthropy Protection Act. These proposals will provide needed clarity to our securities and antitrust laws, and their relation to gift annuities, one of the oldest and most common fundraising methods used by charities throughout the United States.

Presently, one isolated lawsuit in Texas against a charity has been broadened to a class-action suit that has certified over 2,000 nonprofit defendants nationwide. Without this legislation, these nonprofit organizations are vulnerable to lawsuits based on a perceived violation of Federal antitrust and securities laws. This litigation, and the range of nonprofit defendants involved in the lawsuit, underscores the need to draw a distinction between annuity arrangements offered by commercial entities and those offered by charities.

St. Louis University is one of these charitable organizations. Planned giving programs, such as charitable gift annuities, account for roughly 50 percent of its fundraising efforts. The pending lawsuit has jeopardized its ability to offer potential donors these types of programs. Other nonprofit organizations are alarmed as to how they will fund their programs in the future. In addition to S.L.U., the Salvation Army of St. Louis, The Boys and Girls Town of Missouri, and the Cardinal Glennon Children's Hospital are just a few of the nonprofit groups in my district affected by this issue. The legal defense fees for the defendants in the pending suit is over $1 million a month, draining charities of precious dollars that could be used to meet their worthy goals.

Mr. Speaker, the donors who enter into charitable gift annuities do not act to make a profitable return on an investment. Rather, they are acting because they support the mission of the charity, and donate their money to that end. I am concerned with cuts in Federal spending that threaten the ability of our Nation's nonprofit organizations to continue their philanthropic programs. We should not compound their situation by failing to respond to the legal vulnerability they face under laws intended to regulate commercial securities. This legislation, supported by the Securities and Exchange Commission, will protect charities from securities and antitrust-based lawsuits, and allow them to raise funds in the years to come. I strongly urge passage of these bills.

SIDE WITH THE DOCTORS AND SCIENTISTS, NOT THE DOPE SMOKERS

HON. GERALD B.H. SOLOMON

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. SOLOMON. Mr. Speaker, I would urge all of my colleagues to oppose legislation—H.R. 2618—to allow marijuana for medical use.

The FDA has repeatedly rejected marijuana for medical use because it adversely impacts concentration and memory, the lungs, motor coordination, and the immune systems. A recent evaluation of the issue by scientists at NIH concluded, after carefully examining the existing preclinical and human data, there is no evidence to suggest that smoked marijuana might be superior to currently available therapies for glaucoma, weight loss associated with AIDS, and nausea and vomiting associated with cancer chemotherapy.

The simply truth is that organizations promoting this bill—normal/drug policy foundation—are intentionally exploiting the pain and suffering of others as part of their back door attempt to legalize marijuana.

Marijuana weakens the human immune system. That is why, oncologists reject the idea of prescribing smoked marijuana for cancer chemotherapy. Crude marijuana contains over 400 different chemicals. Marinol—oral THC—is available for the treatment of nausea associated with chemotherapy. Yet, safer and more effective medications are preferred by physicians.

While marijuana and several other substances can lower intraocular eye pressure associated with glaucoma the medication must be carefully tailored to prevent further eye damage. Besides numerous adverse side effects of smoking marijuana, the dose cannot be controlled.

There are also misconceptions about the use of marijuana in treating treat the wasting syndrome associated with AIDS. It is ineffective in increasing weight gain and further compromises the immune system. It also puts AIDS patients at significant risk for infections and respiratory problems.

For these reasons the American Cancer Society, the American Glaucoma Society, and the American Medical Society all oppose using marijuana for medicinal purposes. Oppose H.R. 2618 and reject those who make empty promises to patients with chronic illnesses.

When you hear from the conspiracy theory dope smokers, who spend most of their time flooding the internet with prodrug messages aimed at kids, keep in mind that the physicians and other health care professionals who care for AIDS, cancer, and glaucoma patients overwhelmingly oppose this ill-advised legislation.

ST. NICK'S 20TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MALONEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor the St. Nicholas Neighborhood Preservation Corporation 20th Anniversary. One of the corporation's projects is Jennings Hall, a 150-unit residence for senior citizens, which was once a vacant nurses' residence which had been abandoned when St. Catherine's Hospital closed its doors in the early 1970's. Jennings Hall is just one of many success brought forward by the St. Nicholas Neighborhood Preservation Corporation—St. Nicks.

St. Nicks opened its doors for business in the rectory of St. Nicholas Roman Catholic Church on May 12, 1975. Three of the original staff members were on hand on May 12, 1995 to present awards to St. Nicks' five founding advisors. Mr. Speaker, the founding advisors deserve special recognition, they are: Erica Forman, Cathy Herman, Jan Peterson, Ron Shiffman, and Brian Sullivan. They were presented with the Founding Members' Award for the creative and forward-looking planning and technical assistance they provided to St. Nicks at its inception and throughout the years. I join Marion Wallin and Marie Leanza in recognizing them for "the invaluable contributions they had each made to the organization and the neighborhood in their unique ways during the past 20 years."

St. Nicks Board Chair, Louis Pellegrino called the commemorative events for the 20th Anniversary of the St. Nicholas Neighborhood Preservation Corporation just one more effort "to bring together all those who contribute their time, effort, and support to make the community a better place in which to live and work." Mr. Speaker, I am proud to add my voice to those who recognize the significant contributions of all the St. Nicks members and staff to our community. Groups like St. Nicks galvanize our neighbors and provide the spark necessary to stop the all too common deterioration of communities, neighborhoods, and cultures. Mr. Speaker, in conclusion, I can only hope that the 20th Anniversary of the St. Nicholas Neighborhood Preservation Corporation will inspire others to follow their lead in making our communities better places to live and work.

IRANIAN REGIME PROVEN TO BE MAJOR VIOLATOR OF HUMAN RIGHTS

HON. JAMES A. TRAFICANT, JR.

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, the Iranian regime has proven to be a major violator of human rights, particularly those of women in Iran. The present regime of Iran is the world's leading state-sponsor of terrorism, has adamantly worked to subvert the peace process in the Middle East, is vigorously pursuing an ambitious nuclear program, and has used every opportunity to interfere in the internal affairs of other nations. This has gone on for 15 long years. There must be an end to this misery for the people of Iran and relief for the rest of the world.

Experience has shown that change must come from within. The Iranian people have demonstrated that they seek a different course than their rulers. Demonstrations, riots, and strikes in Iran within the past year further testify to their reality. Meanwhile, the National Council of Resistance of Iran, as the only alternative to the present regime, has declared that it seeks a democratic, pluralistic and secular Iran.

In March, on the anniversary of International Women's Day, I stated in this chamber that the clerics' number-one enemy is a woman: Maryam Rajavi. She was elected by Iran's parliament-in-exile as the future president of Iran. The unprecedented participation of women in the resistance is the best testimony to the movement's democratic nature.

Recently, Mrs. Rajavi, whose headquarters are in Paris, paid a visit to Norway, where she was warmly received like a head of state. She met with leaders of all major parties, spoke at the Foreign Relations Committee of Norway's parliament, and attended a Sunday prayer service at Oslo's most famous church, where she was received by a high official of the Norwegian Church. She also attended an enthusiastic gathering of 1,500 of her supporters in Oslo, and addressed dignitaries at the City Hall. In this speech, she outlined the goals and objectives of the Resistance she leads, and eloquently spoke of her vision for a democratic and peace-seeking Iran of tomorrow.

Mr. Speaker, I think it is extremely important for our leaders and citizens to better acquaint themselves with her views. In addition, Norway must be lauded for its firm stance against the Iranian regime, and its support for Maryam Rajavi. I, therefore submit a copy of the text of Mrs. Rajavi's speech, to be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

TEXT OF THE REMARKS BY MRS. MARYAM RAJAVI, THE IRANIAN RESISTANCE'S PRESIDENT-ELECT, OSLO, NORWAY, OCTOBER 31, 1995

Ladies and gentlemen, dear friends, I would first of all like to thank Mr. Lingas, Mrs. Nybaak and all those in the Committee in Defense of Human Rights in Iran for all the work they have done to defend the rights of the Iranian people.

It is a source of great pleasure to be among the leading thinkers, intellectuals and representatives of a nation which for many years heroically resisted against foreign occupation and the reign of Hitler's fascism, liberated itself and instituted a society which is doubtless one of the most advanced democracies in the contemporary world. It is a society wherein women have a leading role in guiding its affairs, in and of itself the most realistic and best hallmark of democracy in today's world.

I am therefore confident that I am speaking to an audience which well understands the suffering of an enchained nation of 70 million, who for the last 16 years have been subjugated by a brutal religious fascism that has eliminated all vestiges of democracy and popular sovereignty. Norway's policy of distancing herself from the conventional conciliatory approach to the Khomeini regime, and paying heed to human rights and the resistance in Iran, assures our people that democracy and justice have an adamant advocate in today's world. The formation of the Norwegian Committee in Defense of Human Rights in Iran itself best reflects this commitment to and respect for the principles of human rights and justice by Norway's political, cultural, social, artistic and literary personalities.

Allow me to use this opportunity to outline the issues which, in my view, must be considered by the international community. What is transpiring in my fettered country, Iran, namely the reign of the mullahs' medieval religious dictatorship, not only represents a national catastrophe for all Iranians, but is also a source of a global problem and danger threatening stability and peace the world over.

Firstly, the mullahs have extended their state-sponsored terrorism across Asia, Africa, the United States, and Europe, including Germany, Switzerland, Italy, France and Norway.

Secondly, the clerics are exporting the cultural and political dimensions of fundamentalism, especially to Islamic countries and various Muslim societies. This is followed by an expansion of the fundamentalist extremist networks.

Thirdly, they oppose peace and advocate turmoil everywhere, as reflected in their regime's enmity to the Middle East peace process.

Today, virtually everyone is aware of the crimes perpetrated by Khomeini's anti-human regime within and without Iran. You know that the clerics have executed 100,000 of the best youth of my country purely for political reasons, for opposing the ruling dictatorship, and for defending freedom and democracy. The names and particulars of 16,000 of them have been compiled in this book. The victims include intellectuals, university students and faculty, high school students, teenage girls, pregnant women, elderly women, businessmen, merchants and even dissident clerics. In many cases, several members of a single family have been executed. Many more have been subjected to the most barbaric, medieval tortures.

Nor is the appalling predicament of women under the mullahs' rule a secret. Inconceivable atrocities are committed against women on the pretext of combating improper veiling. Everyday, thousands of women are lashed, sent to prisons or viciously assaulted and insulted. These crimes are unprecedented in other areas of the globe. The rulers of Iran brazenly carry out hideous crimes under the banner of Islam. According to Khomeini's fatwa, virgin girls are raped by the Revolutionary Guards prior to execution to prevent them from going to heaven. Those condemned to death have their blood drained before execution.

The export of terrorism, fundamentalism and belligerence of this regime, under the banner of Islam and revolution, is another well-established fact. It is evident in the regime's insistence on perpetuating the unpatriotic war with Iraq, which lasted some eight years and left millions dead or wounded and $1000 billion in economic damages on the Iranian side alone; in its enmity to Middle East peace; in its interference in the affairs of Islamic countries; in its decree to murder foreign nationals; and in its more than 100 terrorist operations throughout the world. The echo of these despicable-criminals' bullets still lingers in this city.

And it is clear to everyone that the regime has adopted policies of setting up intelligence, propaganda and terrorist networks in other countries; allocating astronomical funds to procure conventional arms, and biological and chemical weapons of mass destruction; and especially of endeavoring to obtain nuclear weaponry—all to back up the export of fundamentalism and to secure the survival of the religious dictatorship.

I shall refrain from further elaborating on the regime's crimes and conspiracies. In the time that I have, I wish to address a pivotal issue: How to confront this regime and the fundamentalism and terrorism it fosters. This issue is key, because on the international level, all approaches and policies vis-a-vis the mullahs' religious, terrorist dictatorship have proven futile. Indeed, in many cases they have been taken advantage of by the regime, which has been the only party to benefit from them.

For many years, particularly following Khomeini's death, Western countries indulged in a quest for a moderate current within the regime. They pinned their hopes on improving the regime's behavior through economic engagement. Simultaneously, a number of big powers invested in a policy of appeasement in an attempt to ingratiate themselves with Tehran, and prevent the export of terrorism to their own countries. Consistent with this approach, the official European policy toward Iran today is one critical dialogue. The experience of the past 16 years has confirmed, however, that none of these policies has borne fruit. They have failed to have any impact on the conduct of this international outlaw.

A symbolic and quite fitting example is the inhuman and anti-Islamic fatwa against Salman Rushdie. About seven years have passed since the decree was issued. All European efforts to change the status quo through dialogue, discussion and economic and political incentives have proven futile. Khomeini's successors have time and again reiterated that the decree must be implemented. For seven years, the regime has used the Rushdie affair as a bargaining chip in seeking more concessions from the West. The atrocities that this regime perpetrates against its own citizens are beyond description. Needless to say, the moderation of such a regime is but a mirage.

It is ironic that when even the Khomeini regime's first prime minister, Mehdi Bazargan, acknowledged in an interview with the German daily Frankfurter Rundschau in January that the mullahs have the support of less than five percent of the Muslim people of Iran, and lack both religious and social legitimacy, the international community nevertheless allows Tehran to promote their evil anti-Islamic, anti-human objectives among Muslims elsewhere, turn Western countries into hunting grounds for their opponents, and blackmail European countries by staging terrorist operations on their soil to promote their evil anti-Islamic, anti-human objectives among Muslims elsewhere, turn Western countries into hunting grounds for their opponents, and blackmail European countries by staging terrorist operations on their soil. Indeed, the extensive economic and political support provided by a number of countries, coupled with the kowtowing by certain circles to the terrorist mullahs' political blackmail, have been instrumental in prolonging this regime and delaying the establishment of democracy in Iran by the Iranian people and Resistance.

MISPERCEPTIONS ABOUT MULLAHS, SOURCE OF APPEASEMENT

In my view, beyond economic interests or fear of terrorism—which in many cases justify and give impetus to them—these misguided policies and drastic miscalculations stem from the lack of a correct, objective understanding of the nature of the Khomeini regime, and of the roots and extent of its fundamentalist, backward outlook. For precisely this reason, these countries lose sight of the regional and international implications of their approach. This misperception of the regime's durability is compounded by a comparable deficiency in objective appraisals or knowledge of the legitimate, democratic alternative to this regime, which is capable of bringing democracy to Iran.

Although there are fundamental differences between the Khomeini regime and Hitler's fascism, in terms of their political, economic and military capabilities, a parallel may nonetheless be drawn with the conciliatory treatment of Germany by some European countries in the years preceding the Second World War. This policy of acquiescence, embodied in the Munich agreement of 1938 or the relations between the Soviet Union and Hitler's Germany until even the first or the second year of the war, stemmed from the notion that certain concessions at the expense of other countries, who were abandoned in their Resistance against fascism, would stop German expansionism. Hitler benefited greatly from the policy, which enabled him to advance his goals.

Today, due to the experience of the past 16 years, a more profound understanding of the clerical regime's nature has emerged and, in a few cases, a more realistic policy has been adopted. Here, allow me, on behalf of a Resistance movement which for 16 years has waged an all-out cultural, ideological and political struggle against this regime, to briefly share with you our knowledge and awareness of this regime. This understanding and our consequent principled policies have enabled us to resist against the most ruthless dictator of contemporary history and prevent him from casting us aside. In fact, we have experienced continuous expansion and growth.

Misperceptions of the regime have not only led to mistaken policies by the international community. For the same reason, many Iranian political parties and groups regrettably failed to stand up to this religious, terrorist dictatorship, surrendered to it, or were eliminated altogether from the Iranian political landscape.

THE NOTION OF THE VELAYAT-E FAQIH

In reality, the outlook and conduct of Khomeini and his regime neither belong to our age, nor compare to most dictatorships that have emerged in the twentieth century. This regime represents the most retrogressive form of medieval, sectarian dictatorship. Having failed to alleviate any of Iranian society's problems or needs, it is attempting to impose itself under the guise of Islam on the people of the world, especially Muslims.

The mullah's religious dictatorship is based on the philosophy of Velayat-e Faqih, presented in its present form for the first time by Khomeini. He explains his views in his book, "Islamic Rule or Velayat-e Faqih," written in the 1960s. His theory is based on the one hand upon imposing absolute authority over the populace, and on the other upon extending this authority to all Muslims, i.e. "exporting revolution."

In his book Khomeini states: "The Velayat-e Faqih is like appointing a guardian for a minor. In terms of responsibility and status, the guardian of a nation is no different from the guardian of a minor." These are Khomeini's exact words. During his reign, he repeated several times that if the entire population advocated something to which he was opposed, he would nevertheless do as he saw fit.

He went as far as to write: "If a competent person arises and forms a government, his authority to administer the society's affairs is the same as that of Prophet Muhammad. Everyone (meaning Muslims everywhere) must obey him. The idea that the Prophet had more authority as a ruler than His Holiness Imam Ali [the first Shi'ite Imam], or that the latter's authority exceeded that of the Vali is incorrect."

With these words, Khomeini granted himself the same authority as the Prophet of God, but he did not stop there. Twenty some years later, in 1988, he wrote an open letter, published in the regime's dailies, lashing out at some views suggesting that "government authority is contained within the bounds of divine edicts." Khomeini wrote: "... The Velayat takes precedence over all secondary commandments, even prayer, fasting, and the hajj. . . . The government is empowered to unilaterally abrogate the religious commitments it has undertaken with the people. . . . The statements made, or being made, derive from a lack of knowledge of divinely ordained absolute rule. . . ."

In this way, Khomeini propagated the notion of the Velayat-e Motlaqeh Faqih (absolute rule of the jurist), something which his heirs and theoreticians within the regime went to extremes to stress. Mullah Ahmad Azari-Qomi, one of the most authoritative theoreticians of the Velayat-e Faqih notion, wrote: "The Velayat-e Faqih means absolute religious and legal guardianship of the people by the Faqih. This guardianship applies to the entire world and all that exist in it, whether earthbound or flying creatures, inanimate objects, plants, animals, and anything in any way related to collective or individual human life, all human affairs, belongings, or assets. . . ."

This world view, as practiced by Khomeini and his regime, culminates in absolute ruthlessness and oppression when dealing with the issue of women. Azari-Qomi writes about the marriage of virgin girls thus: "Islam prohibits the marriage of a virgin girl without the permission of her father and her own consent. Both of them must agree. But the Vali-e Faqih is authorized to overrule the father or the girl." In other words, the Vali-e Faqih can forcibly marry a girl without her own or her father's consent. In this way, this regime not only applies maximum political suppression on the citizenry, but interferes in the most personal affairs of their lives, from compulsory veiling to varied forms of discrimination against women, to banning smiles and stoning women to death.

Misogyny is the most fundamental feature of the Velayat-e Faqih, and the structure of the clerical regime's system rests upon dehumanizing women. As far as women in the work force are concerned, their opportunities are less than 10% of those of their male counterparts. This ratio decreases as the quality of the job or its political nature increases. No women manage the affairs of the society, particularly its political leadership. The regime's constitution absolutely and unequivocally bans women from judgeships, the presidency and leadership.

All evaluations and laws within this regime are based on the precept that women are weak and the property of men, for which reason they have no place in leading or managing the society. A woman must stay at home, rear children and cook, the tasks for which she has been created.

The official, legal deprivations and restrictions, and even statistics represent only a small part of the gender apartheid. Its more significant aspect is in the spirit of the anti-human relationships emanating from this regime, to the extent that one woman wrote in a state-controlled daily that it makes women regret that they were created as women in the first place. Indeed, it is these relationships which force women, especially young women, to set themselves on fire in utter despair under the mullahs' reign.

The mullahs' misogyny has given rise to horrifying crimes. The wholesale execution of thousands of women, even pregnant women, is unique to this regime. The flogging and torturing of women in public, execution methods such as firing bullets into their wombs, the "residential quarters" in prisons designed to totally destroy these defenseless women, and the multitudes of tortures and atrocities invented by the mullahs, demonstrate the unparalleled savagery of their enmity toward women. Why does the regime so barbarously and relentlessly suppress women? What explains the clerics' misogyny?

The foundations erected by Khomeini's religious despotism and the installation of the regime's suppressive institutions and forces have been fortified by promoting and reinforcing gender-based distinctions and discrimination. In the name of religion and such pretexts as improper veiling, the clerics suppress women, eliminating them from the social scene.

This enmity toward women is not, however, merely a by-product of the mullahs' reactionary beliefs. If the clerics show the slightest laxity in their misogyny and gender-apartheid, allowing women to enter the social arena free of the reactionary restrictions unique to this regime, the mullahs' suppressive organs and institutions throughout society would lose their raison d'être.

The clerical regime, a religious dictatorship, would subsequently lose its vitality, because the dynamism and conduct of the repressive forces in defending the theocracy is, before anything else, rooted in safeguarding gender-distinctions under the pretext of defending "Islamic rule."

As far as the regime's foreign policy and the export of terrorism are concerned, both Khomeini and his successors pursue specific goals, unequivocally defined. Following Khomeini's death, Rafsanjani stressed: "Islamic Iran is the base for all Muslims the world over," adding that Khomeini "truly and deeply hated the idea that we be limited by nationalism, by race, or by our own territory." Elsewhere he says: "Iran is the base of the new movements of the world of Islam . . . The eyes of Muslims worldwide are focused here . . ."

The book Principles of Foreign Policy of the Islamic Republic of Iran, published by the Iranian regime's foreign ministry, states: "Islam recognizes only one boundary, purely ideological in nature. Other boundaries, including geographic borders, are rejected and condemned."

After Khomeini's death, his son Ahmad said: "Islam recognizes no borders . . . The objective of the Islamic Republic and its officials is none other than to establish a global Islamic rule. . . ."

The mullahs ruling Iran dream of a global Islamic caliphate, much like the Ottoman Empire. They say the Islamic revolution will suffocate within Iran's borders and cannot be preserved without the export of revolution. Mohammad Khatami, Rafsanjani's former Minister of Islamic Culture and Guidance, who is also known as a moderate within the regime, writes: "Where do we look when drawing up our strategy? Do we look to bast (expansion) or to hefz (preservation)?" Particularly after the collapse of the Soviet Union, the mullahs refer to the split between Trotsky and Stalin in the 1930's, noting that developments in the Soviet Union proved the validity of Trotsky's theory of a "permanent revolution," and that the only way to preserve the Islamic regime is to foment Islamic revolutions in other countries. The slogan of "liberating Qods (Jerusalem) via Karbala," with which Khomeini continued the Iran-Iraq war for eight years, reflected the strategy of "bast."

Ali-Muhammad Besharati, the current Interior Minister and former Deputy Foreign Minister, stresses that "the third millennium belongs to Islam and the rule of Muslims over the world." By Muslims, of course, he means none other than the mullahs. Mohammad-Javad Larjani, a key foreign policy advisor to Rafsanjani, said: "The true Velayat-e Faqih is in Iran. This Velayat is responsible for all of the Muslim world. . . One of its objectives is expansion. . . ." Larjani is one of the regime's roving ambassadors who engages in a great deal of posturing for the Europeans. Rafsanjani recently sent him to Europe for some deceitful maneuvers concerning the Rushdie case. Khamenei's latest emphasis that the Jews must be expelled from Israel and Israel annihilated are also an extension of this policy.

I must emphasize here that the mullahs' outlook and theories about government and Velayat-e Faqih cannot be viewed as an interpretation of Islam. They are the first to offer such a criminal reading of Islam. This is unprecedented in Islamic history. Even many traditional clerics, more senior than or on par with Khomeini in Qom and Najaf seminaries, were strongly opposed to the Velayat-e Faqih perspective. In reality, the mullahs interpret Islam solely in terms of the needs and interests of their dictatorship.

The fact is that Khomeini and his clique lack any historical or political ability to govern a big nation with several thousand years of history and a rich culture. To stay in power, they see themselves as increasingly compelled to employ repression and religious tyranny inside the country, and export terrorism and fundamentalism, in an effort to expand the geographic sphere of their influence. For this reason, after Khomeini's death, contrary to all expectations that his heirs would pursue a "moderate" path, they were forced to fill the void of Khomeini's charisma, the unifying element which gave the regime religious legitimacy, with greater suppression and export of fundamentalism. The Rafsanjani regime's record of terrorist activities abroad and interference in Islamic countries and the affairs of Muslims elsewhere is far worse than when Khomeini was alive.

HOW DID KHOMEINI BECOME A NATIONAL & GLOBAL THREAT

Allow me to also refer to how the regime is taking advantage of Iran's cultural, political, human and geo-strategic potential in pursuing its evil objectives:

For 14 centuries, since the advent of Islam, Iran and Iranians have always played a key role in shaping and advancing the policies and cultural identity of the Islamic world. Iranians wrote most books on Shi'ite and Sunni Fiqh and Hadith, on Arabic grammar and on interpreting the Quran. In philosophy, logic, mathematics, medicine, astronomy, chemistry and other sciences of the era, Iranian scientists led the Islamic world. The books of Avicenna, the renowned 11th century philosopher and physicians, were translated into many languages and taught in Western universities until recently.

With an eye to Iran's vast land mass, geopolitical position, population and many other factors, the country enjoys an exceptional position in the Islamic world. In the last 14 centuries, it has had a tremendous impact on Islamic countries. The mullahs have made maximum use of this potential to export their fundamentalism and advance their objectives. In other words, if a regime much like Khomeini's has assumed power in any other Islamic country, it would not have enjoyed such stature. It is not without reason that Larjani says Iran is the only country capable of leading the Islamic world. This explains why the clerical regime in Tehran serves as the heart of fundamentalism throughout the world, just as Moscow did for communism.

Many fundamentalist currents existed in Iran or elsewhere before Khomeini's ascension to power, but they were nothing more than isolated religious sects. With the establishment of an Islamic reign in Tehran, they were transformed into political and social movements, and into serious threats to peace, democracy and tranquillity.

In fact, the Khomeini regime uses propaganda, political, financial, military and ideological assistance, and beyond all these, its status as a role model and as a regional and international source of support, to direct Muslims' religious sentiments toward extremist and undemocratic trends. The mullahs exploit Islam's spirit of liberation and its call for justice and freedom, to further their medieval rule. Instead, consistent with the experience of the Resistance, the sentiments of Muslims and Islam's freedom-seeking spirit could have been and can translate into a modern and democratic movement which, while respectful of Islam, aspires to a secularist, pluralist form of government.

WHAT'S TO BE DONE?

So far, I have referred to the internal and international conduct of the Khomeini regime. Now, I wish to address the solution.

On the basis of our 16-years of experience in the struggle for democracy, the only solution is to offer a political and cultural alternative to the Khomeini regime. I say political because this alternative must overthrow the regime and replace it with a democratic, secular government. The head of the viper is in Tehran and unless crushed there, there is no hope of uprooting fundamentalism.

I say cultural because this alternative must present a democratic Islam, with a peaceful, tolerant culture compatible with science and civilization, to confront the mullahs' Velayat-e Faqih theory. Only thus can it prevent the mullahs from imposing themselves as the representatives of Islam in the minds of the people of Muslim countries.

Even before Khomeini's rule, we understood the danger of the Velayat-e Faqih, because we knew the mullahs and Khomeini intimately. While in prison in the final months before the shah's fall, the Mojahedin leader, Mr. Massoud Rajavi, repeatedly pointed to backward religious currents as the main threat to the democratic anti-shah movement and warned against the dangers of religious fascism. In 1979, Khomeini succeeded in usurping the leadership of the Iranian people's antidictatorial revolution, relying on marja'iat (religious leadership) for religious legitimacy, deceit and the people's lack of experience and awareness. The shah's widespread clamp down on organizations fighting for freedom, including the arrest and execution of their leaders, assisted Khomeini along the way. Relying on the overwhelming support of the people, who longed for freedom and independence, he became a dangerous force which destroyed everything in his path.

From the onset, the Mojahedin, as a democratic Muslim force, saw it incumbent upon themselves to expose Khomeini's demagoguery and false portrayal of Islam. They thus represented a cultural, ideological and political challenge to the ruling mullahs, and embarked upon a relentless campaign to explain the facts to the people. For the first time, there was a cultural alternative to the Khomeini regime.

What we knew of Islam, the Quran and the life of the Prophet of Islam (peace be upon him) was totally contrary to the behavior of the new rulers. Like all great religions, Islam is the religion of compassion, tolerance, emancipation and equality. The Holy Quran often states that there is no compulsion in religion. In so far as political and social life are concerned, it stresses consultation, democracy and respect for other people's views. Islam seeks social progress, and economic, social and political evolution.

Fourteen centuries ago, when people in the Arabian peninsula were burying their girl children alive, Islam accorded women equal political, social and economic identities and independence. The Prophet of Islam profoundly respected women. The first Muslim was a woman, and four out of the ten original Muslims were women.

After two and half years, the Resistance's endeavors paid off. Cracks appeared in Khomeini's religious legitimacy, and his use of the weapon of Islam began to lose its effect. No longer did the people view Khomeini and the ruling mullahs as infallible. To prolong his rule inside the country, Khomeini had resorted to a blatant crackdown. Everyone knew that the Mojahedin, the largest opposition force seeking freedom, were Muslim themselves and that Khomeini's quarrel with them was not over Islam, but over preserving his dictatorial rule. Our message defended political freedoms and the people's individual and social rights, and opposed dictatorship and the regime's misuse of Islam.

Mr. Rajavi lectured on Islamic teachings in one of Tehran's largest universities in 1980. 10,000 university students and intellectuals took part every week, and tapes and transcripts were distributed in the hundreds of thousands. The discourses exposed Khomeini's reactionary views promulgated under the banner of Islam, discrediting him among the religious youth. In a ruthless onslaught to curb the extensive influence of the Mojahedin in all universities, in spring 1980 Khomeini closed down all universities for the years to come on the pretext of a cultural revolution. For our part, we have continued our efforts in this respect as one of our primary tasks.

Another of the fundamental aspects of this cultural struggle has been to target the heart of the clerics' Velayat-e Faqih culture, namely the issue of women and mullahs' ultra-reactionary, misogynous treatment of them. In this regard, we did not stop at simply exposing the clerics. In other words, our women, in diametric opposition to Khomeini's culture, advanced through unprecedented effort and activities and assumed heavy responsibilities at the highest levels of the Resistance.

With its unique perspective on this issue, the Iranian Resistance succeeded in incorporating women in the front lines of the movement and in the highest levels of military command, as acknowledged by most observers. In the political arena as well, we are witnessing the ascension of women to important political positions. At the organizational and management levels, the highest positions are occupied by woman who have shown that when given the opportunity, they can excel in assuming responsibility. Today, 52% of members of the Resistance's parliament are women. Women fill the majority of positions within the National Liberation Army's high command. The leadership of the Mojahedin consists of a 24-member, all women council. The women of the Resistance have thus proven that, just like men, before all else it is their human qualities and consequent social and political abilities which count. They have righteously overcome all obstacles in performing their duties.

Hence, a glance at the regime and the Resistance quickly reveals two distinctly opposite cultures. Diametrically opposed to the Khomeini regime, whose very existence depends on their suppression and elimination of women, the victory and advancement of the Resistance would have been impossible without woman and their role in the leadership and command. The first to attest to this fact are the male activists, combatants, and commanders, who are best aware of the glorious path that has been traversed.

It is also significant that the Resistance's elimination of the most persistent and profound form of discrimination against the most oppressed sector of society, namely women, and its fostering of relationships among people which allow women to attain their legal and social rights, is the best guarantee for democracy and pluralism in the future Iran.

A DEMOCRATIC ALTERNATIVE

Obviously, we did not stop at introducing a cultural alternative, we also gradually established a political alternative. In 1980, during the first presidential elections, Massoud Rajavi was a candidate for president. All religious and ethnic minorities, the youth, women, and opposition groups and parties supported Mr. Rajavi's candidacy. Sensing the danger, Khomeini issued a fatwa a few days before the election, banning him as a candidate because he had not voted for the Velayat-e Faqih constitution. Several months later, during the elections for parliament, the Mojahedin and other democratic forces announced a joint slate. This time, despite the many votes cast for them, the regime prevented even one of the Mojahedin candidates from taking office through widespread rigging. In each of the election rallies of the Mojahedin in Tehran and other cities, hundreds of thousands took part.

In the first two and a half years of Khomeini's rule, the Pasdaran (Revolutionary Guards) killed 50 supporters and members of the Mojahedin in the streets. They arrested several thousand, subjecting them to brutal torture. The regime also dispatched gangs of club-wielders into the streets to clamp down on dissidents. In contrast, the Mojahedin did not fire a single bullet, relinquishing their legitimate right to self-defense to prevent more violence and bloodshed. The Mojahedin's goal was to resolve the political problems through peaceful means.

On June 20, 1981, in protest to the repression, the Mojahedin organized a peaceful demonstration. In a short span of time, some 50,000 Tehran residents joined the march. Khomeini issued a fatwa to suppress the demonstration. Guards opened fire indiscriminately, and hundreds were killed or wounded. Thousands were arrested and executed the same night in groups of several hundred.

Khomeini and other officials of his regime had realized early on, even before the overthrow of the shah, that the Mojahedin could stand against both a religious and political dictatorship, due to their freedom-seeking and tolerant interpretation of Islam and their popularity and social base. In other words, the Mojahedin were the antithesis to the clerics. In summer 1980, several days after Mr. Rajavi spoke to 200,000 Tehran residents in Amjadieh sports stadium, condemning the slaughter of the Mojahedin and dissidents in other cities, Khomeini reacted by saying that the enemy was "neither in the Soviet Union, nor in the United States, nor in Iranian Kurdistan, but right here—in Tehran."

In reality, the religious dictatorship was trying to portray democracy and popular sovereignty as contrary to Islam. In consequence, it could suppress any democratic initiative on the charge of being anti-Islamic. The mullahs relied in this tactic on the people's unawareness. Khomeini was, however, well aware that the Mojahedin would thwart his pretenses about Islam and religious legitimacy. Thus, he spared no effort against the Iranian Resistance, because he knew that if could eliminate us, he could overcome his other problems and stabilize his rule. Among the crimes the Khomeini regime perpetrated to destroy its main enemy, I can mention his order for the mass execution of all members and supporters of this Resistance, purely for being affiliated with the movement, his declaration that their lives and properties are fair game, and the assassinations of the Resistance's activists abroad.

In this way, Khomeini, who in 1979 was welcomed as a religious and political leader by millions in Tehran, continued after June 20, detested, only through the force of the bayonet, torture and execution. The people, meanwhile, were chanting death to Khomeini. As such, the only avenues which remained for the freedom-seeking and patriotic people and forces was to rid themselves of the mullahs to establish democracy.

In order for the Resistance for freedom to achieve maturity, a political alternative—a vast coalition of opposite groups—was needed. Although the basis for such a coalition had taken shape in the first presidential elections and the parliamentary elections, after the start of the extensive, all-embracing suppression, this coalition had to be formalized and transformed into a political alternative. Thus, on July 21, 1981, the National Council of Resistance was formed with the objective of establishing democracy in Iran.

After 14 years, the Council, the longest lasting democratic, political coalition in Iran's contemporary era, has 560 members. A significant number of other committed personalities, whose membership has recently been approved, will soon join it. The Council encompasses the democratic opposition, the representatives of ethnic and religious minorities, nationalist figures, and Muslim, secular and socialist leaders. It acts as the Resistance's Parliament.

The Council's 25 committees will serve as the basis for the future coalition government following the mullahs' overthrow. In office for a maximum of six months, the Provisional Government's primary task is to hold free elections for a Legislative and Constituent Assembly. According to the Council's ratified decisions, in tomorrow's Iran, elections and the general vote will constitute the basis for the legitimacy of the country's future government. Freedom of belief, press, parties and political assemblies is guaranteed, as are the judicial security of all citizens and the rights stipulated in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

All privileges based on gender, greed, and beliefs will be abolished and any discrimination against the followers of different religions and denominations will be banned. No one will be granted any privilege, or discriminated against, on the basis of belief or non-belief in a particular religion or denomination.

In tomorrow's Iran, the national bazaar and capitalism, personal and private ownership and investment toward the advancement of the national economy will be guaranteed. As for foreign policy, Iran will advocate peace, peaceful coexistence, and regional and international cooperation.

According to the Council's ratified plans, in tomorrow's Iran, women will enjoy equal social, political, cultural and economic rights with men. They will have the right to elect and be elected in all elections, and the right to freely choose their occupation, education, political activity, travel, and spouse. Equal rights to divorce and freedom of choice in apparel will be guaranteed for them.

THE REGIME'S CURRENT STATE

In this way, 16 years after the mullahs' rule, the overwhelming majority of people, from women to workers, to employees to university faculty, intellectuals and even the bazaar merchants and clergy, who were hitherto considered the traditional basis of the regime, are deeply disaffected. Unemployment grips 50% of the labor force. With an inflation rate of over 100%, some 80% of the people live below the poverty line. Corruption and astronomical embezzlement by the regime's officials, some of which has been exposed, have eliminated any credibility the regime might have had.

In a word, the abysmal economic, social and ethical record of the regime and 16 years of resistance by a democratic alternative against it, have left no legitimacy or popular base for this regime. In the eyes of the Iranian people, the regime and its leaders are a bunch of criminals, thieves and corrupt individuals. Khomeini's death and the death of the last remaining grand ayatollahs; the lack of the minimum qualifications in Khamenei as the regime's religious leader; and the absence of an acceptable Marj'at-e Taqlid (source of emulation) who would support the regime have either eliminated or seriously undermined the last vestiges of the regime's religious legitimacy among the most retrogressive sectors of the society and the most traditional forces supporting it.

Today, religious fundamentalism does not exist as a social issue or problem in Iran. We are, rather, facing a form of fascism under the guise of religion which holds the reins of power. It is not without reason that today only 30% of the regime's Revolutionary Guards, its main suppressive arm, are volunteers, whereas at the end of the Iran-Iraq war in 1988 and Khomeini's death in 1989, more than 70% were volunteers ideologically loyal to the regime. Even those remaining are receiving greater material incentives, and continue essentially because it is a well-paying job. In short, they have been transformed from a volunteer army to a suppressive mercenary force which fights against the people for its own survival.

On the international scene, however, the situation is very different. Although word of the regime's difficulties and internal crises and crimes against the people has inevitably reached the outside world, the policies of other countries toward the regime have not allowed the Iranian people's all-out Resistance and more importantly, that Resistance's cultural and ideological challenge to the mullahs to extend beyond Iran's borders.

For this reason, the regime has done its utmost to tarnish the image of the Resistance at the international level and forestall its advances, through dirty deals and agreements. This is one of the primary issues of discussion between the regime and its foreign interlocutors. The regime pursues its policies and prevarication against the Resistance in international arenas and foreign countries through its own operatives or through persons who have acquiesced but pose as oppositionists.

The regime's extreme sensitivity and hysteric reactions to the international successes and political relations of the Resistance with other countries, governments and parliaments confirm that this is its Achilles heel. This also explains the repeated appeals by the regime's leaders and diplomats to other governments to prevent the presence of the members and sympathizers of the Resistance. By the same token, the economic relationships between Western countries and Tehran's rulers, and the resultant petrodollars are used only for domestic suppression, weapons purchases and the quest to obtain nuclear arms and export terrorism and fundamentalism. A significant portion of the revenue has also been diverted into the mullahs' foreign bank accounts. For their part, the Iranian people have received nothing but suppression and greater destitution.

The extensive economic ties with this regime have not only failed to contain fundamentalism, but have also emboldened the regime to continue these policies. Experience has also shown that the clerics use these connections as a cover to undertake more terrorist and fundamentalist activities abroad.

In a word, the 16-year experience of the Iranian Resistance in dealing with the fundamentalist rulers of Iran and the experiences of international politics regarding Iran under the banner of the mullahs demonstrate that:

Any policy based on appeasing this regime is doomed to failure. Laws governing a religious dictatorship are different from the experiences and laws applying to the world community as we approach the end of the 20th century. This regime's laws emanate from the Middle Ages. Decisiveness is the only language with which one can and must communicate with this regime.

Any notion that would equate the conduct of the Khomeini regime with Islam is a strategic and dangerous mistake from which only the mullahs benefit. By publicizing, supporting or recognizing the democratic alternative, which has the greatest respect for Islam as the religion of the majority of the Iranian people, and which at its core encompasses a Muslim democratic movement, is the only way to deny the mullahs the means of characterizing and exploiting opposition, hostility and decisiveness on the international level toward them as enmity to Islam.

In this way, the world community and Western countries will not be compelled to surrender to the blackmail of Khomeini's anti-human regime under the banner of Islam, to accept its double-talk on the cultural and religious distinctions of Iran and Islamic countries, or to tarnish the universal principles of human rights by giving concessions to this anti-human regime. Regrettably, the regime has recently received such concessions in a number of cases.

Furthermore, the people of different countries, especially Muslims, will to a great extent obtain the objective understanding of the Khomeini regime that the people of Iran have arrived at, and few will be beguiled by the regime's Islamic posturing and demagogic slogans.

In other words, exercising decisiveness against the regime and support for the Iranian Resistance constitute two fronts against fundamentalism. On the one hand, by standing firm against the regime and supporting the Resistance, the pace of change by the people inside Iran toward democracy and peace will be expedited. Thus, the material and spiritual source of support for fundamentalism will be eliminated and its heart will stop beating. On the other hand, by exposing the anti-Islamic nature of the mullahs in Western and Islamic countries and introducing the democratic alternative to this regime, the fertile grounds for the growth of fundamentalism will dry up. We have gained this experience with 100,000 martyrs.

Norway has more than once demonstrated that on the international level, it does not take yield to routine political and economic considerations in defending democracy and human rights. The courageous actions by your country to assist liberation movements and its pioneering role in resolving international issues, have given Norway a special stature among the people of different countries. In the same way, your firm stance vis-à-vis the religious, terrorist dictatorship ruling Iran has aroused enormous friendship and respect among the people of Iran.

On behalf of the Iranian people and their just Resistance for peace and freedom, I see it incumbent upon myself to call on the government and the people of Norway to impose comprehensive sanctions on, and sever diplomatic relations with, the mullahs and put the issue of Iran and the Resistance on the agenda of their foreign policy, and to convince especially the European countries to adopt a decisive policy and recognize the right of the Iranian people to resist against this anti-human regime.

And here, I want to address Norwegian women in general and those supremely qualified women in particular who have held positions of enormous political and social responsibility in your country for many years. I call upon you to rush to the aid of your sisters in Iran, who have ably resisted against the misogynous clerical regime and for their part have demonstrated that a woman is equally a human being. Of course, in this path, they have made great sacrifices and endured intolerable prisons and torture.

I also call upon the Norwegian youth, whose decisive role in the political life of Norway I have witnessed during my stay in your country, to come to the aid of the Iranian youth who are suffering from the most extreme pressures.

The Iranian people are determined to bring democracy and peace to their homeland. Doubtless, a democratic Iran is indispensable to the return of tranquility and lasting peace to the entire Middle East region and the uprooting of terrorism throughout the globe.

I again thank our dear friends, particularly the members of the Committee in Defense of Human Rights in Iran. I hope to soon be your host in the democratic Iran of tomorrow.

THE FBI DUE PROCESS IMPROVEMENT ACT

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, I have learned some Federal Bureau of Investigation [FBI] special agents are accorded Merit System Protection Board [MSPB] appeal rights and others are not. This discriminatory policy offends traditional notions of fairness and should change. It is not fair that some agents receive MSPB appeal rights while others do not.

Because of my concern about this policy, today I will introduce legislation, the FBI Due Process Improvement Act, a copy of which appears at the end of my statement. This simple legislation would amend 5 U.S.C. § 7511(b)(8) by striking "the Federal Bureau of Investigation," thereby extending certain procedural and appeal rights with respect to certain adverse personnel actions to all employees of the FBI. This legislation corrects the current disparate treatment of nonveteran special agents regarding their ability to appeal adverse personnel actions and ensures the due process rights of all employees of the FBI.

Special agents of the FBI are loyal civil servants dedicated to protecting Americans from the worst kinds of crime. Their jobs are difficult, demanding, and sometimes dangerous. They are often transferred to posts far from home which demands considerable sacrifice by FBI families. FBI agents are on the front line of the fight against crime. They endeavor to reunite mothers and fathers with their kidnapped children; they work to maintain the high integrity of the American political system by investigating public corruption; they protect all Americans from foreign and domestic terrorism; they risk life and limb infiltrating and thwarting the scourge of organized crime; they help keep drugs out of the hands of America's most vulnerable citizens; they investigate white collar crime, pornography, and a host of countless other Federal criminal offenses. In short, FBI agents are the often unseen but indispensable protectors of tranquility and freedom within the United States. The FBI motto—fidelity, bravery, and integrity—accurately characterizes the manner in which agents approach their important work.

These duties are performed by all agents, veteran and nonveteran alike. However, these two categories of agents receive disparate treatment when charged with misconduct. Military veterans are permitted full due process rights including the ability to appeal adverse personnel actions to the MSPB. In other words, veteran agents, who are in the excepted service, receive the same due process rights that employees in the competitive service receive. Nonveteran agents, also members of the excepted service, do not. This means that a veteran agent will receive an outside, independent, objective review of his/her case while a nonveteran agent will not. Is this fair? I maintain that it is not. Furthermore, female special agents are particularly hit hard by this policy because few have served in the military; thus they are not eligible to receive the MSPB appeal rights that veteran agents, who are predominantly men, do. Also, FBI agents should have the same MSPB appeal rights as Federal law enforcement agents who work for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Drug Enforcement Administration, Customs Service, and Border Patrol.

The Congress should eliminate this discriminatory policy because it serves no rational or useful purpose. The Congress should have rectified this disparity in 1990 when it enacted legislation (P.L. 101-376) which granted appeal rights to members of the excepted service affected by adverse personnel actions. The Committee on Post Office and Civil Service, in its report on the bill (H. Rept. 101-328), preserved the disparate treatment between preference eligible veteran agents and other agents because of the FBI's "sensitive mission." However, this conclusion was not supported by any concrete examples about how MSPB appeal rights would adversely affect the FBI's sensitive mission. In fact, if the denial of MSPB appeal rights is so vital to the sensitive mission of the FBI, the prudent course would have been to deny those rights to all agents, including preference eligible agents. Obviously, the grant of MSPB rights to all agents would not adversely impact the FBI's mission. The Bureau has long experience with the MSPB process used by its preference eligible agents, and there have been no reports of abuse of the system. Furthermore, there is no evidence that it has compromised the FBI's sensitive mission.

Mr. Speaker, there is no reason to maintain the distinction between preference eligible veteran and nonveteran agents. All agents, whether veterans or not, should be treated in a fair and equitable manner. As I have already stated, the FBI has considerable experience with the MSPB process available to veteran agents. I am not aware that there has been any particular abuse of the MSPB process by preference eligible agents. Likewise, I do not anticipate that expansion of MSPB rights to all agents would be burdensome on the FBI. There is no room in the modern FBI for discriminatory personnel policies; therefore, nonveteran agents should receive all the rights and enjoy all the privileges accorded to their preference eligible veteran counterparts.

Mr. Speaker, I urge our colleagues to co-sponsor this important legislation. I also urge Congressman MICA, chairman of the House Civil Service Subcommittee, to move this legislation as expeditiously as possible. Finally, I ask unanimous consent to include a copy of this bill and a letter from the FBI Agents' Association in support of this legislation in the record immediately following my statement.

H.R. —

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled.

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Due Process for FBI Agents Act".

SEC. 2. EXTENSION OF RIGHTS.

Section 7511(b)(8) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking "the Federal Bureau of Investigation,".

SEC. 3. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The amendment made by this Act shall apply with respect to any personnel action taking effect after the end of the 45-day period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act.

FEDERAL BUREAU OF INVESTIGATION
AGENTS ASSOCIATION,
New Rochelle, NY, November 28, 1995.

Hon. Frank R. Wolf,
House of Representatives, 241 Cannon House

Re Due Process For FBI Agents Act.

DEAR CONGRESSMAN WOLF: This letter is to inform you that I have reviewed and the FBI Agents Association fully and enthusiastically supports your bill, the "Due Process For FBI Agents Act."

It is time to end all vestiges of disparate treatment by extending MSPB rights to all FBI agents.

Thank you for your willingness to take the lead on this most important matter.

Very truly yours,

ED BETHUNE,
General Counsel.

TRIBUTE TO BARBARA KERCHEVAL

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I take this privilege of paying homage to a distinguished colleague of mine, Barbara Kercheval, who came to make a name for herself at Miami-Dade Community College, north campus, some 32 years ago. A very articulate go-getter, Ms. Kercheval came to the college, armed with an array of excellent academic background and heady recommendations from the University of West Virginia. Barbara's father, the well-known Dr. Kercheval, was a mainstay of the West Virginia football team for many long years.

Serving first as a departmental advisor, she came to be known on campus as the caring counselor who made it her duty and obligation to ensure that students were given the best advice possible in juggling their academic schedules to achieve timely excellent grades in the midst of their work outside the campus. For this effort she has been recognized by many professional organizations, which saw to it that Barbara's crucial and excellent contributions to the academic achievement of the students under her tutelage did not go unnoticed.

She also served as faculty advisor to the Alpha Chapter of Sigma Delta, taking her student-athletes to compete in various intercollegiate athletic events. She is known primarily as a first aid course consultant extraordinaire for many years, setting high standards for students training in cardiopulmonary resuscitation techniques. She later became the supervisor for the Campus' CPR teacher training program and developed the recertification procedure for all personnel in the division.

For over 20 years Barbara represented her department as faculty senator, serving as a member of the executive committee in the college faculty senate. Her committee work indicated collegewide student activities as a campus representative.

Needless to say, Barbara's greatest contribution to her field has been a positive influence on countless students at Miami-Dade Community College who remember her no-nonsense advocacy on behalf of both their academic achievement and athletic development. Her standards of commitment and service have now become legendary. Indeed, Barbara has genuinely represented the dignity and nobility of public service to the hundreds of students she mentored and who are now our Nation's productive and responsible citizens in their respective fields of endeavor.

THE 10TH ANNIVERSARY OF AREAWIDE SERVICES LIMITED

HON. ALBERT RUSSELL WYNN

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. WYNN. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Areawide Services Limited and its founder, Mr. Weldon "Mac" Howard.

Areawide Services is located in Camp Springs, Maryland, which is in my 4th Congressional District, and it is one of the true small business success stories in the country. Founded in 1985 with just 3 employees, many dreams and lots of bills, Areawide has grown into a company of nearly 700 employees with dreams fulfilled and a $11 million dollar enterprise. According to Mr. Howard or "Mac" as I and many of his friends call him, Areawide's success is attributed to their strategic market analysis, planning, and their continued vision to provide quality business. These are fine attributes for a small business person to describe itself. I know, however, that Mac and his employees are just simply dedicated to this company and have out hustled their competition. This is what it takes to survive as a small minority business person and Mac has done just that.

Since its inception, Mac has served as the company's president and Chief Executive Officer. Over the past ten years they have provided outstanding uniformed protection services to federal, state and private sector commercial facilities throughout the Washington Metropolitan area and Baltimore. Not surprisingly, during their ten year growth Mac has watched over the day to day operations of the company serving not only as the boss, but also as an instructor at the company's training school. This is the sign of an individual that does not just stand on the sidelines, but one that puts on the helmet and gets involved in the game.

If you look at the distinguished resume of this Lancaster County, Virginia native, you know that anything less than perfection is second best. Mac is a respected veteran of the Vietnam War and has received an Associates degree in Police Science from Northern Virginia Community College in Virginia and a Bachelors of Science Degree in Administration of Justice from American University in Washington, DC. Having educated himself overseas and in the States, this proud man went on to serve his government in another capacity. As a 15 year civil servant, Mac served in a number of capacities with the General Services Administration as a Federal Police Officer, Security Specialist, Chief of Field Operations, Chief Inspector, Chief of Contracts Guards Section and as a Contracting Officer. He also served with the U.S. Information Agency as a Limited Foreign Service Officer and as a Chief of Domestic Security. He culminated his distinguished career as Director of Security at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. I guess there was no surprise when he made the decision to open a security business.

I know Mac best from his service to the community, particularly the small business community. As the former president and current member of the Board of Directors for the National Business League of Southern Maryland, he has worked with many minority entrepreneurs to bring small business into Prince George's County. In addition to his work with NBL, Mac sits on the Prince George's County Maryland Private Industry Council's Board of Directors. In his continuing effort to serve the community, Mac began a scholarship program in his home county of Lancaster. This program awards a $1,000 scholarship to a high school senior.

It is clear to see that Mr. Howard's vision for excellence is demonstrated by his past service to his country and his service in the federal government as a civil servant. His vision continues to grow today through his excellent leadership in operating Areawide Services and his commitment to minority small business in Prince George's County.

On behalf of myself and all members of the U.S. House of Representatives I wish to congratulate Mac, his wife Rita and daughter Kathy on ten wonderful years of service.

RETIREMENT TRIBUTE TO LEVANDER LILLY

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I am immensely pleased to acknowledge the retirement of Levander Lilly and to introduce him to my House colleagues. Like me, Levander is a native North Carolinian. He was raised in Albermarle and Badin, NC. Levander graduated from West Badin High School and received his undergraduate degree from Livingstone College, and his M.S. in social work from Adelphi University.

Mr. Lilly's career was a reflection of his commitment to his community and to providing assistance to those who needed it most. His first job was with the New York City Youth Bureau as a social worker for inner city youth. He maintained those duties for some 13 years, subsequently being named borough administrator for Brooklyn. After resigning from the bureau, he was appointed as the director of alcohol and drug prevention in School District 19. Four years later, the City chancellor of education appointed Levander to serve as the city-wide coordinator for drug and alcohol prevention programs; a program which serves over one million students and their families.

Building upon his career successes, Levander was appointed by the school chancellor to be his special assistant. However, always yearning for self-improvement, Mr. Lilly pursued an advanced degree in school administration from Fordham University. In 1987 he was appointed as school superintendent of School District 19 in the East New York section of Brooklyn. Levander retired from that post on August 22, 1995. I am honored to recognize his numerous and noteworthy achievements.

RECOGNIZING MARY LOU OLIVER

HON. BILL BAKER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. BAKER of California. Mr. Speaker, public service is the hub of good government. Working for the common good, listening to all sides, exercising sound judgment: these are the principles by which a free republic functions.

These are also the principles by which Mary Lou Oliver has brought to her 12 years on the San Ramon City Council. As a three-time mayor and long-term member of the city council, Mary Lou has demonstrated the kind of selfless public service the people of the East Bay of San Francisco and our country at large demand and deserve from their leaders.

Mary Lou's leadership has led to funding for the San Ramon Community Center, the San Ramon Senior Center Park and Gardens, and the San Ramon Library. Her efforts in negotiating business development throughout the San Ramon area has yielded much fruit for the people in my district. From her work with the San Ramon Chamber of Commerce, the Dougherty Regional Fire Authority Board, and the Contra Costa General Plan Congress, to her love of the out of doors as shown in her commitment to the preservation of open space and trails for horses, Mary Lou has been one of the pioneers of effective, life-enhancing development in my home region.

Mary Lou Oliver merits the thanks of all who understand that no community can thrive without dedicated leadership. Mary Lou has provided that leadership, and has my best wishes as she moves into what Harry Truman called the highest calling any American can have—that of private citizen.

CONGRATULATIONS TO SATURN

HON. ED BRYANT

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. BRYANT of Tennessee. Mr. Speaker, 10 years ago, General Motors decided that the American automobile industry needed something new, something innovative, something which would sell more American cars in the marketplace. That something new was what is now known as the Saturn Corp., and it has forever changed the American auto industry for the better.

Dubbing itself as "A different kind of company," the Saturn Corp. has set the standard for customer service and satisfaction. Their television commercials tell their successful tale. How many other car companies can boast that over 10,000 of their customers converge on a small, rural community to eat barb-que and corn-on-the-cob and talk about the value and satisfaction of their car?

From replanting the trees uprooted in the process of building their Spring Hill, TN plant, to harvesting an 800 acre soybean crop, to creating the Citizen Environmental Council, to helping Spring Hill build a new high school, the Saturn Corp. has re-enforced its commitment to quality not only on the job but in their community as well. It's no wonder that nearby Columbia, TN, was recently rated by Business Week magazine as one of the fastest-growing rural communities in the Nation. This commitment to quality has certainly shown, in more ways than one.

When the first medium-red Saturn sedan was driven off the assembly line—following years of research and development and some 27 U.S. patents—Popular Science magazine named it one of "The Year's 100 Greatest Achievements in Science and Technology." This award was the first of many to follow, including the 1991 "Design and Engineering Award" from Popular Mechanics, the 1991 "Easy Maintenance Car of the Year" from Home Mechanix, and the 1991 AAA "Best Car" award.

But the Saturn Corp's success story certainly did not end there. Saturn vehicles have been named "Best in Class," "First for Safety," and "Tops in Resale Value" in the 1995 New Car Guide as contained in Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine. And while Saturn has pioneered the concept of producing affordable, quality vehicles, they astoundingly beat out such luxury cars as Infiniti, Cadillac, and Lexus, based on the results of the 1995 Sales Satisfaction Survey conducted by J.D. Power and Associates. It comes as no surprise, then, that Saturn's 1,000,000th care rolled off the assembly line earlier this year.

While the customer comes first with the folks at Saturn also prides itself in employee involvement. If there ever was a model for a hands-on approach in the workplace, then Saturn certainly is that model. The roughly 9,000 men and women who work for Saturn each have important roles and duties, whether that be designing an innovative motor to drive their latest model or making such that the wash rooms are clean for the next shift, everyone's job is important. For them, they are producing more than a mere car—indeed they view their work as a reflection of what the rest of America ought to be like. That is, functioning as one unit, as a team, and working together to produce the best product they can while always remembering that somewhere, somebody just like them is going to own and drive that car.

Mr. Speaker, there are many lessons for each of us to learn coming from the Saturn Corp., lessons that can't be taught at school or bought in a self-help book. I'm proud to say that I represent many of the good people who work there.

CONCURRING IN SENATE AMENDMENT TO HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION 122, FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL YEAR 1966

SPEECH OF

HON. GLENN POSHARD

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, November 20, 1995

Mr. POSHARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the budget before us today and in strong support of the more reasonable alternative which I cosponsor along with many of my moderate Democratic colleagues.

We are at a momentous time in our Nation's history. It does appear the will exists to put this country on stable financial ground and balance our Federal budget.

There is no alternative. Our country cannot manage a debt of $5 trillion and billions of dollars in red ink in our annual budgets. Unless we act, shortly after the turn of the century our tax dollars will go entirely to entitlement programs and interest on the national debt. There will be no money for environmental protection, transportation, law enforcement, education, medical research, or any of the other functions of government upon which people rely.

But I reject the notion that there is only one way to accomplish this goal—the option before us today. There is a better way—the coalition budget which I support.

Our budget restores the fiscal integrity to the Medicare trust fund and controls spending in that program by $170 billion to help us reach a balanced budget. That is in stark contrast to the $270 billion in Medicare controls in the Republican plan. That is $100 billion more than necessary to maintain the program, $100 billion which will be used to pay for tax cuts for wealthy Americans. This will be a tremendous burden on Medicare beneficiaries and will put hospitals in my district out of business. This is the most substantial argument against the Republican plan, and I will not vote for a budget which takes so much from the Medicare Program and gives it away in tax cuts.

The changes in the earned income tax credit hits the 19th District harder than any district in the State of Illinois. The list of concerns is long. More low- and middle-income people will be paying higher taxes under this bill.

I've voted for a balanced budget amendment and now cosponsor a bill which will get us to balance in 7 years, as scored by the Congressional Budget Office. It is better for the American people in health care, education, agriculture, and the host of domestic needs which are important to our people. And it represents the broad middle ground where most Americans live their daily lives.

I will vote against this budget today because I know we can do better. I urge the President to work with us to balance the budget in 7 years. If we are to have a tax cut, I urge the Republicans to lower the income limits and let us target those breaks to the working people of this country.

We can reach an agreement that respects our obligation to care for our people and, at the same time, rid this Nation of its burdensome debt. We are not there yet. I am voting against this bill today in the hope that we will get there with a better bill.

TRIBUTE TO FRANK THURBER

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, it gives me great honor to congratulate a distinguished colleague of mine, Frank Thurber, who has become one of the important pillars of Miami-Dade Community College for some 30 years. Beginning his stint in 1965, Mr. Thurber was deeply immersed in both his teaching role and coaching expertise as a distinguished member of the College's Division of Human Performance and Intercollegiate Athletics.

Under the tutelage of nationally-known baseball coach, Dr. Demie Maineri, he served with distinction from 1965 to 1969, honing the skills of many young players who went on to become prominent members in both the American and National Baseball Major Leagues. Promoted to take the helm of the Lady Falcon Softball Team for 11 years hence, Mr. Thurber brought his team for the Annual State Softball Championship in 1987 to 1989. During his coaching tenure, the program underwent a metamorphosis from slow to fast pitch softball.

Well liked for his pragmatic approach to combining the art of teaching academics and athletics, he developed several innovative techniques in a variety of classes verging from First Aid-CPR to Health Analysis and Improvement, Nautilus and Archery, along with the pioneering of Sports Officiating. The numerous awards and accolades with which he has been honored by various organizations in our State represent an unequivocal testimony of the utmost praise and deep gratitude he enjoys from so many people in our community.

A graduate of the University of Miami, Frank was the main cog at second base for the nationally-ranked Hurricanes Baseball Team with an impressive .324 hitting average for four seasons. As he now draws to a close his distinguished career, he will look forward to enjoying the fruits of a well-deserved retirement with his wife, Cyndy, along with their three children.

IN HONOR OF DANIEL WEBSTER COLLEGE'S 30TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. CHARLES F. BASS

OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. BASS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Daniel Webster College in Nashua, NH, as it celebrates its 30th anniversary. This outstanding institution of higher learning has been recognized nationally as a leader in providing quality educational opportunities for thousands of young people.

Daniel Webster College was founded in 1965 by former U.S. Senator, Warren B. Rudman, James N. Tamposi, Sr., and Harry B. Sheffield. Originally named the New England Aeronautical Institute, the school was christened Daniel Webster College in 1978. Its mission is to provide career-oriented education, integrating academic instruction with the development of professional competencies in the areas of aeronautics, business, computer sciences, and engineering.

This fine school opened in September 1965 with 25 students. The ensuing years saw tremendous growth in the number of programs and students as well as its physical size. In 1981, the college opened its own flight center. Innovations in its aviation curriculum have allowed Daniel Webster College to offer the first college-based flight training program integrating motorized gliders and advanced aerobatic trainers with standard and complex training aircraft.

Advances in the college's business program led to recognition by Newsweek as one of the top undergraduate business programs in the country, a distinction the college has maintained every year since.

Daniel Webster College has contributed to the lives and educational progress of many people in its last three decades. Hard work and dedication by the college's teachers and students have made it a valued resource in southern New Hampshire and all of New England.

Mr. Speaker, I ask all of my colleagues to join me in congratulating Daniel Webster College on 30 years of excellence and in wishing them many more years of success well into the next century.

CRIMINAL PENALTIES FOR CRACK COCAINE POSSESSION

HON. DOUG BEREUTER

OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member commends to his colleagues an editorial which appeared in the Omaha World-Herald on November 25, 1995.

Good reasons exist for the courts to punish crack cocaine possession more severely than possession of a comparable amount of powdered cocaine. Some of the reasons haven't received the emphasis they deserve.

Crack is a form of cocaine that has been processed to allow it to be more easily ingested. Federal sentencing guidelines make it a more serious crime to push crack than to push a comparable amount of cocaine powder even though the chemical composition of the two is the same. Because crack trafficking is mostly a black crime, some people claim that the longer sentences are racially discriminatory.

Crack is by far the more dangerous product because it fuels gang warfare, drive-by shootings and the breakdown of inner-city families. Cheap and potent crack is ripping apart black neighborhoods in Omaha and elsewhere across the country.

Crack is less expensive and is easier to use. It causes a quicker "high." It is more readily addictive. The toll in human suffering is therefore greater. The punishment for selling and distributing crack is greater, too, as it should be.

The crack debate is like some other matters in which race has been illogically inserted. Activist lawyers have taken to arguing that any law is discriminatory if it doesn't produce results that are perfectly colorblind. In New York, a subway fare increase was recently struck down on the grounds that it discriminated against black people. It did nothing of the kind. But the plaintiffs' lawyers argued that more black people used the subways and therefore to raise the fare was discriminatory.

Melanie Kirkpatrick, a Wall Street Journal writer, has written that such thinking is a "perversion of the Equal Protection Clause of the Constitution." She said, "Under this philosophy, it doesn't matter who did what to whom and for what reason; all that matters is outcome."

More should matter. In the case of crack cocaine, it matters what the pushers do to their families, their neighborhoods and their communities. Of course the criminal laws should be colorblind. But that doesn't mean they should be twisted to produce a racially perfect mix of defendants. The idea is to punish people the most who are doing the most harm to society. That shouldn't change.

A POINT OF LIGHT FOR ALL AMERICANS: MARIA OTTO

HON. MAJOR R. OWENS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to honor Maria Otto—whose work has greatly enriched the profession of child care. She has touched the lives of hundreds of children, parents, and aspiring day care providers. Her dedication and compassion have rendered her a worthy candidate to entrust the care of our most precious—the children. Furthermore, her competence has rendered her fit to train the future day care provider of the Nation. Maria Otto is an outstanding and caring citizen who deserves recognition as a great Point of Light for all Americans.

In 1967, Mrs. Otto began her career in family day care as a family day care provider. In this capacity, she was responsible for the care and development of more than 200 children, under the sponsorship of the Wake-Eden Center in the Bronx. Maria Otto continued her career as a family day care specialist-trainer in 1986 when she joined the staff of Child Care, Inc. Here she assumed the challenging task of training hundreds of New York City family day care providers.

Mr. Speaker, as commissioner of the New York City Community Development Agency responsible for the Community Action Program and the Headstart Program I had the honor of launching the Nation's largest family day care program utilizing unspent funds from the Headstart budget. Since that time family day care has expanded and improved steadily. As a New York State senator I participated in several successful efforts to achieve greater statewide recognition and support for family day care as an effective option for child care. At each step of the way Maria Otto was one of the leaders of the great grassroots army of family day care advocates.

Throughout her career, Mrs. Otto has worked tirelessly to improve the professional status and recognition of thousands of family day care providers in New York City and State, and across the Nation. She organized the first Family Day Care Provider Associations in New York City and State, and is the founder of the current Family Day Care Citywide Association. As one of the cofounders of the National Association for Family Day Care, Mrs. Otto also assisted in organizing providers in Pennsylvania and many other states.

Nationally recognized as one of the earliest experts in the field of family day care, Maria Otto served as a member of Governor Cuomo's Commission on Child Care. In recognition of her exceptional professional achievement on behalf of children, Maria Otto is a recipient of the New York State 1993 Decade of the Child Award.

It is apparent that Mrs. Otto welcomes some continuity in her life. She is a current resident of the Bronx, NY, where she was born, living in the same house for 68 years. The daughter of immigrants from the Virgin Islands who arrived and settled in the Bronx in 1920, Mrs. Otto is a graduate of Jane Adams High School. She holds an A.A. degree from the College of New Rochelle-Bronx campus.

Maria Otto's consistency is not only evident in her place of residence. She has consistently served the children in her care, their parents and her proteges exceptionally well. Mrs. Otto is as dedicated and committed today as she was decades ago when she first embarked on a career so vital to the American working family. Without a doubt, her work has led to the professional and respectful character of the modern family day care profession. It is an honor to salute Maria Otto as a Point of Light who continues to brighten lives for all to cherish.

DR. KATHERINE GABEL; AUTHOR-EDUCATOR-RESEARCHER

HON. CARLOS J. MOORHEAD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mr. MOORHEAD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to bring to the attention of my colleagues in the U.S. House of Representatives the many accomplishments and contributions of Dr. Katherine Gabel of Pasadena, CA.

Dr. Gabel, who has a BA, and M.S.W. and a law degree, is president of Pacific Oaks in Pasadena, which was founded by seven Quaker families in 1945 and is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. Pacific Oaks, a source of considerable community pride, includes the college, the children's school and the research center.

As president of Pacific Oaks, Dr. Gabel established the research center to support community outreach and faculty research. She routinely works with a consortium of other colleagues—Bank Street, Wellesley College, Erikson Institute—on issues relating to family and community.

Prior to Pacific Oaks, Dr. Gabel was dean of Smith School of Social Work. She also directed the building of the Adobe Mountain School, a juvenile correctional facility under control of the Arizona Department of Corrections, and served as its first superintendent.

While in this capacity, she assisted the warden of the Farmingham Women's Prison by entering the prison as an inmate. It was these unique experiences which enabled Dr. Gabel to coauthor an important book entitled, "Children of Incarcerated Parents." As Dr. Gabel points out, parents in prison face some especially difficult problems in maintaining meaningful relations with their children.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to honor before my colleagues in the House of Representatives the life, endeavors, and contributions of Dr. Katherine Gabel. Her school, her community, and her Nation have all benefited from her learning, dedication, and commitment. Mr. Speaker, we are all grateful.

CONCURRING IN SENATE AMENDMENT TO HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION 122, FURTHER CONTINUING APPROPRIATIONS, FISCAL YEAR 1966

SPEECH OF

HON. LOUIS STOKES

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Monday, November 20, 1995

Mr. STOKES. Mr. Speaker, I rise in recognition of the amended House Joint Resolution 122 continuing resolution which will keep the Government operating through December 15. I appreciate the efforts that have been made to develop a workable continuing resolution—one which would not only reopen the Government, but equally important, help to ensure common sense and responsible budgeting.

As one would expect, the 6-day shutdown of the Government has created a backlog of veterans and Social Security claims which now must be processed—not to mention other important services the American people were denied by the shutdown. It was most unfortunate that the American people were forced to suffer because the Republicans did not want to negotiate a quality of life budget with the Democrats and the President.

It is absolutely critical for the American people to realize that those 6 days of hardships and inconveniences cannot begin to compare with the real pain and suffering that would have resulted if the President had not forced the Republican majority to bring the budget negotiations back to the center.

Those 6 days of temporary hardships and inconveniences cannot begin to compare with the real pain and suffering that would have resulted if the American people had allowed the Republicans to blindly gut $270 billion from Medicare, $163 billion from Medicaid, $5 billion from student loans, and $6 billion from child nutrition programs including school lunches.

Those 6 days of temporary hardships and inconveniences cannot begin to compare with the real pain and suffering that would have resulted if the American people had allowed the Republicans to blindly raid pension funds, give a $245 billion tax break to the wealthy, and increase taxes on working families. The list goes on.

Mr. Speaker, passage of the workable continuing resolution, along with the President's veto of the Republican budget measure, H.R. 2491, will allow real work on the budget to get underway.

The American people have spoken they do not want an extremist agenda, or an extremist budget. I know the backs of seniors, children, and hard working families cannot withstand the harsh realities of what they would be forced to pay in long-term suffering and pain just to allow the Republicans—to give—a tax cut to the rich.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to vote for the amended continuing resolution in order to allow the Government to resume its work, and to allow real budget negotiations to begin.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY SYSTEM DESIGNATION ACT—CONFERENCE REPORT

SPEECH OF

HON. BUD SHUSTER

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Saturday, November 18, 1995:

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of clarifying a statement I made during the floor consideration of the conference report of S. 440, the National Highway System Designation Act of 1995.

In my statement, I discussed that lock and dam No. 4 is a critical transportation project that requires $4 million in funding to complete the bridge. I inadvertently referred to lock and dam No. 4 as a project in my district. Lock and dam No. 4 is located in the Fourth District of Arkansas.

The NHS bill provides the State of Arkansas with $7 million total in additional funding from rescissions—from this fund. These funds are on top of Arkansas' regular Federal highway funding. Arkansas could use these funds to complete lock and dam No. 4.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY SYSTEM DESIGNATION ACT—CONFERENCE REPORT

SPEECH OF

HON. NYDIA M. VELÁZQUEZ

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Saturday, November 18, 1995

Ms. VELÁZQUEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise to thank you for your willingness to work with Ms. MOLINARI, Mr. TOWNS, and myself on the crisis surrounding the Gowanus Expressway. This legislation will begin to address the devastating effects that this project will have on the community.

While the proposed reconstruction of the Gowanus Expressway is one of the costliest highway projects in the State's history and will profoundly shape both west Brooklyn and regional transportation for decades to come, its planning and environmental review to date have been inadequate. The bill encourages the State to take a comprehensive new look at the project. This guarantees that the total cost and benefits of both the State's plan and other proposals effecting the surrounding communities and the region as a whole will be examined.

The provisions require that the State of New York mitigate the economic and social impacts this project will have on the neighboring communities. Congress has clarified this with accompanying report language that instructs the State to minimize long-term impairment of local businesses, appoint a community engineer, and undertake traffic calming studies.

As the State moves forward with reconstruction of the Gowanus Expressway, it must hold to a minimum the harmful effects to businesses, housing, quality of life, and maintain the citizens' ability of movement with their communities. I am especially concerned that steps are taken to protect the welfare of children, the aged and others vulnerable to the effects of heavy traffic, air, and noise pollution.

While there is still much that must be done before the Gowanus Expressway rehabilitation adequately protects the community, adopting this language is the first step in insuring that this project is completed in an efficient manner, and with the safety and best interest of the surrounding community in mind.

TRIBUTE TO MARY DAGRAEDT

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, November 28, 1995

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I am deeply heartened by this great moment as I pay tribute to a colleague of mine, Mary Dagraedt, who is retiring from Miami-Dade Community College after a 35-year distinguished career. As the premier golf coach, Mary is one of the most outstanding professionals who have immensely contributed to making the college the Nation's most prestigious community college in the fields of both academics and athletics.

Mary led the Lady Falconettes College golf teams from 1963 to 1981 during which her teams went undefeated in match plays in junior intercollegiate competitions. In fact, she was instrumental in garnering 18 consecutive junior college State championships. From 1970 to 1977 the Falconettes competed in the senior college national collegiate events, and in 1975 her team was honored the No. 1 collegiate team in the Nation.

Voted in 1981, the first National Coach of the Year by the Ladies Professional Golf Association, Mary was also selected as the National Junior College Athletic Association Women's Golf Coach of the Year in 1980 and 1981. Throughout her career, she has been named to five different sports hall of fame.

More than 60 of her students, including Pat Bradley, have now become the mainstays of the LPGA. Her commonsense approach to personal responsibility and discipline has earned her the utmost respect of her hundreds of students and the praise of her colleagues.

In fact, she was recently recognized with an endowed teaching chair for faculty excellence by the college and was subsequently honored this year as 1 of 10 faculty members by the National Institute for Staff and Organization Development at a ceremony in Texas for achieving preeminent "educational excellence and superior leadership."

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
GIFT REFORM ACT

SPEECH OF

HON. NANCY PELOSI

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, November 16, 1995

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to offer my strong support for the gift ban legislation before the House, House Resolution 250.

Twice during the 103d Congress, this House approved similar gift ban legislation by solid bipartisan majorities only to see these measures stalled by filibusters in the other body. I am pleased that the Leadership has seen fit to allow us to consider this important bipartisan legislation offered by Representatives SHAYS, MEEHAN, and BARRETT.

H. Res. 250 would limit the total value of gifts that a Member or staff member could receive to $100 from any one source; only gifts costing more than $10 would count toward this limit.

Furthermore, no Member or staff member could accept an individual gift, including meals or entertainment, that costs more than $50. These provisions would cover all employees of the House, including employees of Members, committees, joint committees, and Leadership offices.

By contrast, the substitute offered by Representative BURTON is a washed-out version of congressional gift reform. Under the Burton substitute, Members could still accept lobbyist trips, go to golf tournaments free of charge, and accept gifts up to $250.

My colleagues, let's take a stand in favor of real gift reform. Vote "yes" on H. Res. 250 and "no" on the Burton substitute.

SPEECH OF
HON. SHEILA JACKSON-LEE

OF TEXAS
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
Saturday, November 18, 1995

Ms. JACKSON-LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the continuing resolution before us this evening. I am deeply gratified that the majority leadership and the President were finally able to reach a mutually acceptable agreement and reopen the doors of Government. By returning Federal workers to their jobs, both sides have demonstrated their determination to put the good of the American people above both minor political and major philosophical differences. I applaud the work of the leadership, but now, we must roll up our sleeves and get down to work closing the gap between the priorities of both the Democratic and Republican Parties. And priorities is what this entire debate has been about. We on the Democratic side have voted for one. However, along with this desire for a zero deficit, I also have a fundamental set of beliefs and principles which I can not abandon. Throughout, it has been above all else, for me, a question of getting the fairest budget possible for the working men and women of this country. It is imperative that we pass a plan that is both fiscally responsible and socially accountable. It must address the needs of those very families and individuals who voted for each and every Member of this House of Representatives. The immediate crisis has passed, but we can not rest for there is yet a long road to travel before our work is done and the President has signed all 13 appropriations bills. Only after that is done and the motor of the Federal Government returned to full throttle, should we contemplate resting. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to make our Federal Government more effective and efficient.
