On the one hand we are hearing that. On the other hand, the chairman of the Committee on Rules, the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOLOMON], has said that we have more than 85 more bills to finish before we adjourn in this Congress.

We have so much unfinished business, including all the appropriations bills, the health care reform bill, the minimum wage bill, the welfare reform bill that we passed today that has to be processed, and so many others, we are on our side very concerned that it appears that Congress will fail to pass the regular appropriation bills again this year, and that we may have to consider another continuing resolution.

Can the gentleman advise us over here what the possibilities are of another CR, and when in fact that might happen?

Mr. WALKER. We will complete our appropriation bills in the House next week. Of course, we cannot predict what the gridlock in the Senate may produce in terms of bills reported from there, but it is certainly our intention to complete as many of the appropriation bills as possible, if not all of them, before the House adjourns.

The gentleman is correct that this House does have much other business to be done, and it seems to me that we are going to want to complete our work before settling on an adjournment date.

Mr. BONIOR. That is good to hear. I thank my colleague for his comments. We will look forward to finishing our business before we leave this Congress.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY, JULY 22, 1996

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that when the House adjourns today, it adjourn to meet at 10:30 a.m. on Monday next for morning hour debates.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

DISPENSING WITH CALENDAR WEDNESDAY BUSINESS ON WEDNESDAY NEXT

Mr. WALKER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that business in order under the Calendar Wednesday rule be dispensed with on Wednesday next.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

APPOINTMENT AS MEMBERS OF ADVISORY COMMITTEE ON STUDENT FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, and pursuant to the provisions of section 491 of the Higher Education Act, as amended by section 407 of Public Law 99-498, the Chair announces the Speaker's appointment of the following Members to the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance on the part of the House: Mr. Thomas E. Dillon of California and Mr. William A. Irwin of Pennsylvania.

There was no objection.

MODIFICATION IN APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES ON H.R. 3230, NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARTON of Texas). Pursuant to clause 6 of rule X without objection, the Chair announces the following modification to the conference appointment to the bill H.R. 3230: Delete section 724 of the Senate amendment from the panel appointed from the Committee on Commerce.

The panel from the Committee on Commerce, consisting of Messrs. BLILEY, OXLEY, and DINGELL, is also appointed for the consideration of section 3174 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference.

The panel from the Committee on Science is also appointed for the consideration of section 1044 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will notify the Senate of the change in conference.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. BURTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Ms. DELAURO] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Ms. DELAURO addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. RIGGS] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mr. RIGGS addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

WELFARE REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from West Virginia [Mr. WISE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. WISE. Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about welfare reform, because the action today taken by the House I think is very significant. In both bills that were debated today there were common elements.

Both bills created a single welfare block grant, a cash block grant, to replace the traditional AFDC, aid to families with dependent children program. Both bills limited the spending for the block grant at $16.4 billion for this next fiscal year. Those bills created a $2 billion contingency fund for States to use to meet their needs in time of recession. Both bills require work of welfare recipients, and both bills have a cutoff from welfare after 5 years.

So what is the difference between the Republican leadership bill and the bill that I supported, the bipartisan Republican and Democrat compromise, the Castle-Tanner bill? The difference in the bills is very, very important.

I supported a bill that requires work for all welfare recipients. I supported a bill that would limit the spending for welfare. I supported a bill that provides help to States in times of recession. I supported a bill that was better for kids but strict on their parents. And I supported a bill that met the Republican budget requirements to cut $53 billion from the existing welfare program.

While the Republican bill and the bill that I supported both had common elements of work, of limitation of spending, of assisting States in time of recession, there are some important differences in these bills, because the Republican bill requires work but does not provide the resources. Indeed, the CBO estimated that many States would not be able to comply with the work requirements. That becomes very important in a State like West Virginia with rural areas with high unemployment, where we want people to work but if we cannot provide the jobs for them, they are not able to work.

I also supported a bill that says that after they cut somebody off—because the bill that I supported has a lifetime period, they can only collect welfare benefits during their entire lifetime for no more than 5 years—the bill that I supported, though, would still say that the children in those families could receive vouchers for their most important needs: diapers, for instance, nutritional supplements, those kinds of things. The Republican bill would not do that, would not permit the Federal funds to pay for that.

The bill that I supported had help during a recession far more than the Republican bill, so that if this country goes into a recession and they have their caseload pickup, they are able to deal with it.

Also, the Republican bill had an unfunded mandate estimated to be as high as $12 billion. That is saying to States, "This is what we want you to do but we're not providing the resources." The bill that I supported put in resources for work, put in resources for job training, put in the resources necessary for child care.

In West Virginia there are almost 37,000 families presently receiving aid to families with dependent children, the monthly check. There are 115,000 people receiving food stamps who are on public assistance. There are another some 190,000 that are not on public assistance but receiving food stamps, for a total of 308,000 out of about 1.8 million.

The fact is that in the Republican bill there were not adequate resources for the work requirement that everybody agrees ought to be in there. And for a rural area with high unemployment, requiring work but not supplying the resources so that people can work I think is not fair.

There were no vouchers in the Republican bill. That means that when a family that has been on welfare for as long as 5 years, and that is the cutoff period, when that family has been on welfare for 5 years, there is no assistance for the children afterward and there is no help in a recession.

Mr. Speaker, I supported a bill that very simply says that they have to work, requires work for welfare recipients. I supported the bill that says that they receive benefits for no more than 5 years, and after that they are cut off. I supported a bill that provides help to States in recession. I supported that bill that is better for kids, because it says that yes, they can continue to get vouchers even after their parents may have been cut off. And I supported a bill that meets the Republicans' own budget requirements that we cut $53 billion out of welfare.

All of this was done in our bill. The only difference is, in our bipartisan compromise bill we were much kinder on kids, we were stricter on parents, we were tougher on requiring work. We actually put the resources in there. We saved the same amount of money that the Republicans said they wanted to save, but we did it in such a way that we were not being unnecessarily mean.

I think that people want reform in welfare, I think that they want people to be working whenever possible, but I do not think they want this to be a war on children, either. So I hope that those issues come back to this House and we have another chance to vote again another day.

TWA FLIGHT 800

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Texas [Ms. JACKSON-LEE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, today has been clearly a day that will cause many of us to reflect, one, on the goodness of America, but as well the sadness of some of what has occurred today.

Let me first of all start my remarks by acknowledging the tragic loss of life of TWA Flight 800, gratified of certainly the astounding and outstanding search-and-rescue effort of the Coast Guard and others and as well recognizing the many individuals that will be needed to be able to determine the cause of this great tragedy.

I know personally that the people of Houston, the State of Texas and this Nation will be saddened by one who was a member of our community, Pam Lynchner, a co-founder of the victims' rights organization, Criminal Justice Reform. She and her 10-year-old daughter Shannon and her 8-year-old daughter Katie were on this flight. Many times we have seen such tragedies occur in America. I can only be grateful to God that Americans will always rise to the goodness of what we represent. We will join in and embrace each other. We will give comfort to those who have lost loved ones, and we will seek information and determine to find justice without a punitive, despotic and dictatorial type of government. I am grateful for that.

I can only hope to that we will find a solution to the pain that has been given to these family members.

I would offer to say that we should not stop until we determine the cause. We should not prejudice, but if in any way this matter has criminal and terrorist overtones, we must move swiftly. We must also respond with the appropriate government agencies that must ensure the future safety of Americans.

I started with that, because as we proceeded today on the House floor, I knew many of my fellow colleagues were overwhelmed with this morning's news, and I simply wanted to say to Americans, I wanted to thank them for the kind of people that they are when tragedy strikes, when people are in need. And to the family of Pam Lynchner, let me simply say that we hope to have remembered by you the fact that Pam did serve this Nation and, in fact, was someone who cared about others.

Mr. Speaker, as the specter of the tragedy of the crash of TWA flight 800 settles over us, I want to extend my deepest sympathies to the surviving families and friends of the 229 passengers who were on board the flight. We empathize with your loss and will grieve as a Nation for your loved ones who have perished.

State and Federal officials, including the National Transportation Safety Board and the FBI are now on the scene and as speculative scenarios are flying everywhere, let's let cooler heads prevail. As a former member of the Houston Aviation Committee, I have learned that the experts will tell us soon enough how this mishap occurred. Experience has taught us that premature judgments can often be wrong. However, as a member of the House Judiciary Committee, I will certainly monitor this situation closely.

The people of Houston, the State of Texas, and this Nation has lost one of our most dedicated citizens in the crash. Pam Lynchner was the cofounder of the victim's rights organization, Criminal Justice Reform. She and her 10-year-old daughter Shannon and her 8-year-old daughter Katie were on their way to Paris. Shannon had drawn a copy of a painting by the famous French artist Claude Monet and they had planned to see the original together in Paris. Pam was not only a devoted mother but was a tireless advocate and worker for the victims of crime. She would come to the aid of whomever called her—day or night. She was an inspiration for us all and our condolences go out to her husband Joe.

I call on people of good will and members of the community to remember Pam in their prayers. She will not be soon forgotten.

WELFARE REFORM

Mr. Speaker, this day was historic in the U.S. Congress, for in fact we, too, as Members of Congress were responsible for changing the course of history. I am gratified in this debate on welfare reform again that Americans who cared about people rose up and supported legislation of which I supported, the Tanner-Castle welfare reform bill that in fact will do the job, the job that the legislation by the Republican majority that passed will not do, and, that is, of course to ensure that there is a bridge for those who have joined together to change this welfare system so that we do not create a scenario where people remain on welfare against their will; for the constituents in the 18th district in Texas have always told me, we want to work, we want our children to be proud of us, but we must have work, we must have child care, we must have health care.

The Tanner-Castle bill requires States to provide vouchers for the needs of the child, for families that are eventually cut off. That means it cares about children. I cannot imagine that in this debate it could get so ruckus that those who were listening would not understand that sometimes you have to stand up for what is right. You have got to understand that you will provide unfunded mandates to local communities when you cut off Medicaid, health care, for those who do not have any other resources. You will increase childhood diseases if you diminish the opportunities for those who are indigent to have immunization and to have health care. At the same time, many people are casting accusations against immigrants. We are all a country of immigrants. Some of us came here in the bottom of a belly of a slave boat.

I heard one of my colleagues compare welfare recipients to slaves. I might venture to say that no one can compare what happened in slavery to anyone's status now. But I do know that Americans want welfare reform that is caring and responsible and responds to people in need but provides them with an opportunity, not a hand-out but a bridge to independence.

UNDEREMPLOYMENT THE REAL PROBLEM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. DUNCAN] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, like the previous speaker, I would first like to start by expressing my very great sympathy for all of those who lost loved ones in this terrible explosion and crash of the TWA Flight 800. As chairman of the House Subcommittee on Aviation, I can assure the previous speaker and all the Members of this body that we will be doing everything possible to look into this terrible tragedy and to take every step possible to make our aviation system and airport security the very highest priority in this country and do all that we possibly can to solve this horrible situation that has occurred.

The U.S. aviation system is by far the safest in the world. We have had approximately 12,900 deaths in all U.S.

aviation accidents combined since the Wright Brothers flight in 1903. Unfortunately, that many Americans are killed every 4 months on the highways of this Nation. But our goal is to have no fatalities whatsoever, and certainly we are going to be doing everything we possibly can to achieve that goal.

Mr. Speaker, I previously requested this time to talk about another subject.

I have previously mentioned on this floor my great concern about certain trends I see in regard to our economy and employment in this country.

We had a trade deficit that cost us 3 million jobs last year alone, and that trade deficit is continuing at a rate of several billion dollars each month.

Leading economists tell us that we lose, conservatively, 20,000 jobs per billion.

We have had at least 1½ million jobs lost due to corporate downsizing in the last 3 years.

One recent report on the network news said that unlike the eighties, people who lost their jobs in the nineties were having to take replacement jobs at much lower pay and after being out of work for a much longer period between jobs.

We have several million college graduates who cannot find work in the fields for which they trained, with huge surpluses of lawyers, teachers, and now even doctors with the possible exception of in very rural areas.

There is certainly nothing wrong with working as a waiter or waitress, but we are now ending up with the best educated waiters and waitresses in the world.

Our unemployment problem is relatively low, but our underemployment problem is terrible.

It is really sad when parents and grandparents bring their college graduate children and grandchildren to me because they can't find good jobs.

And then we have many thousands of young people who have incurred large debts to gain these degrees, and oftentimes these are debts they are going to be unable to repay or at least have great difficulty in doing so.

Robert Sammuelson, the columnist for Newsweek and the Washington Post, wrote a few days ago concerning our $34 billion in Federal student grants and subsidized loans: "Arguably the easy availability of so much Government money is one reason that college costs and tuition have skyrocketed."

In other words, it is entirely possible that the main reason college costs have gone up so much and so fast in recent years is because of the Federal Government.

These tuition rates have gone up far faster than the rate of inflation.

We should restructure the Federal Student Loan Program so that the most favorable loans go to the students at schools that are decreasing or at least holding down the great increases in college tuition.

We should not do something that might cause college costs to skyrocket even more.

Now, while I am usually for increasing tax deductions, Mr. Samuelson voiced his concern that a new tax deduction for college costs might encourage further increases. "By making tuition more 'affordable' the proposed new tax deductions might encourage further increases in college cost and tuition."

It is a good thing to get a college degree, Mr. Speaker, but it is not much good to get one that is worthless on today's job market. Also it is not good to go head over heels in debt.

I am just urging both parents and students to be more careful, to look before they leap, so to speak.

Last week, the Osgood File, on CBS Radio—a very entertaining program, has a segment by Gil Gross, on this subject, in which he told about talking to a college dropout who said he just decided he didn't want to incur loan payments of $1,000 a month for as far as the eye could see.

Mr. Gross said:

The college dropout rate has hit an all-time high. One reason seems to be many students are not prepared by high schools to succeed in college, but another reason seems to be the cost. A college education has become incredibly expensive. When you consider that some of this money is wasted on things such as communications degrees, something that was invented so you could become a local TV anchor without actually having to know when the War of 1812 began, this is pretty amazing. It seems add that colleges where bright people congregate to solve problems can't seem to tackle this one. With all the new-fangled tools they have such as the internet and CD-ROMs, you'd think they could package a college education for far less than they do.

I would like to place this Osgood File program in the RECORD at this point and urge my colleagues and everyone to do everything possible to hold down college fees and tuition and to urge young people to very carefully choose a field of study that has at least some decent prospects for a good future.

THE OSGOOD FILE JULY 12, 1996

I'm Gil Gross for the vacationing Charles Osgood on the CBS Radio Network.

The college dropout rate has hit an all-time high. One reason seems to be many students are not prepared by high schools to succeed in college, but another reason seems to be the cost. A college education has become incredibly expensive. When you consider that some of this money is wasted on things such as communications degrees, something that was invented so you could become a local TV anchor without actually having to know when the War of 1812 began, this is pretty amazing. It seems odd that colleges where bright people congregate to solve problems can't seem to tackle this one.

With all the new-fangled tools they have such as the internet and CD-ROMS, you'd think they could package a college education for far less than they do. What will happen if a little bit of knowledge continues to be an expensive thing? The answer after this:

I was talking to a college dropout and was trying to convince him to go back because any chance he had for success depended on it. He was resolutely unconvinced.

You can't afford not to get a college degree, I said. College graduates make much more than high school grads. He was having none of it.

Do you know how much my 4 years of college would cost, he asked? About $100,000, and that doesn't even count four years of lost income. Yes, but 4 years of a low lost income, I said. And do you know how much debt, I'd be carrying, he asked? About $85,000, which means, he explained, I'd probably be paying almost a grand a month in loan payments as far as the eye can see, unless I'm in a field where I also need a graduate degree, a law degree or a medical degree in which case I have a decent chance of being out of debt when I'm 40, if I don't buy a house and if I don't have kids and if, saying I do have kids, the public schools are good enough that I don't have to consider private schools and then if the kids are bright enough to send them to college which will probably be $500,000 a year by then.

Your point is what, I asked, though I already guessed. My point is I can't afford to go to college and be successful. I'd be broke the rest of my life! And you're satisfied with being a meter reader, he said its wonderful work. It involves math and I get to see what everyone's basement looks like. You realize what you've given up, I asked. Success comes at just too high a price, he said. Besides, he said, without a great job I don't get the credit rating to get head over heels in debt. No, he decided, the one thing you can say about failure is it's affordable.

I looked at him, struggling to think of one more thing to say and then I did. Look, I said, ummm could I borrow five bucks from you 'til Monday? The Osgood file. I'm Gil Gross on the CBS Radio Network.

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California [Mr. FARR] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Speaker, I rise tonight to bring to the attention of this House that there is a war of words being waged in this House on the issue of campaign finance reform, and the No. 1 form of ammunition is the Dear Colleague letters that are going back and forth.

I know, because I have sent several of these missives myself, and also been the recipient of a couple of them.

I would like to call a truce, if only temporarily, and will include the Congressional Research Service Report No. 96-628 GOV for the RECORD. I do this,

Mr. Speaker, so that all the Members and the public can see laid out in chart style on a side-by-side comparison of the Thomas-Gingrich campaign finance bill and the Farr campaign finance bill, along with the current law.

The CRS report is done in its usual nonpartisan, unbiased style, and I commend it to everyone for solid information on the two bills that will be up for a vote next week before this body.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the report.

CRS REPORT FOR CONGRESS

CAMPAIGN FINANCE BILLS IN THE 104TH CONGRESS: SUMMARY AND COMPARISON OF MAJOR PROVISIONS OF H.R. 3760, H.R. 2566, AND H.R. 3505

This report summarizes and compares major provisions of three campaign finance reform bills offered in the House during the 104th Congress. It provides capsule summaries of those sections which address the central focus of the reform debate: regulating the flow of money in federal elections through adding, deleting, or adjusting limits on expenditures and funding sources. These bills also contain provisions to improve disclosure and enforcement of federal election law; these and most miscellaneous provisions are omitted from the comparison.

H.R. 3760, the Campaign Finance Reform Act of 1996, was introduced by Representative Bill Thomas on July 9, 1996 and ordered reported by the House Oversight Committee on July 11, 1996. It is co-sponsored by the House Republican leadership. It represents a significant departure from Democratic-sponsored bills which passed the House in recent Congresses, which sought a voluntary system of spending limits and cost-saving benefits (or public funding) to complying candidates. H.R. 3760 seeks to promote greater competition and more broadly-based funding by augmenting the role of political parties and local citizens in the financing of campaigns. It thus attempts to offset the role played by wealthy candidates and political action committees (PACs) in recent elections.

H.R. 2566, the Bipartisan Clean Congress Act of 1995, was introduced by Representatives Linda Smith, Martin Meehan, and Christopher Shays on October 31, 1995. This bill is based on recent House-passed bills which offered a system of voluntary spending limits in House elections, in exchange for certain benefits. It departs from previous bills in replacing public funding with cost-reduction benefits to participating candidates. A prohibition on PAC contributions and expenditures in federal elections is another prominent feature.

H.R. 3505, the American Political Reform Act, was introduced by Representative Sam Farr on May 22, 1996. Co-sponsored by the House Democratic leadership, it closely resembles the House-passed bill of the 103d Congress (H.R. 3). Like H.R. 2566, it features voluntary spending limits and cost-saving benefits. Unlike that bill, it offers an aggregate PAC receipts limit and lower PAC contribution limit, rather than a PAC ban in federal elections.

Candidates
No limits on contributions or loans to own campaign	Spending above individual contribution limit in general election triggers lifting of limit on party contributions (as match) to opponent. Spending above $150,000 in primary or general triggers lifting of individual and in-district limits for opponent.	Under voluntary system: limited to $60,000 per cycle: if candidate exceeds limit, triggers lifting of spending and large donor limits, and doubled contribution limit for participating opponents.	Under voluntary system: limited to $50,000 per cycle: if candidate exceeds limit, triggers increased spending limit for participating opponents.
In-state and district receipts
No geographical restriction on campaign receipts	House candidates must raise at least 50% of funds from individual residents of district.	House candidates must raise at least 60% of funds from individual residents of state; for eligibility threshold in voluntary system, 50% of required amount from in-state must come from in-district.	No provision.
Large donor receipts
No restrictions on campaign receipts	No provision	House candidates can accept up to 25% of voluntary spending limit ($150,000) in individual donations in excess of $250.	House candidates can accept up to 33⅓% of spending limit ($200,000) in individual donations in excess of $200, plus $100,000 if runoff, plus $66,600 if close primary.
Lobbyists
Subject to same contribution limits as any individual ($1,000 per candidate, per election).	No provision	Contributions from registered lobbyists reduced to $100 per candidate, per election.	No provision.
INDEPENDENT EXPENDITURES
No limit on expenditures expressly advocating election or defeat of clearly identified candidates, if made without cooperation or consultation with any candidate.	Clarifies definition of independent expenditure, and adds definition of express advocacy.	Amends definition of independent expenditure to include express advocacy (broadly defined); enumerates activities and agents which would indicate collaboration (thus precluding independent expenditure).	Amends definition of independent expenditure to include express advocacy (broadly defined); enumerates activities and agents which would indicate collaboration (thus precluding independent expenditure).
BUNDLING
No restriction on collecting donations to candidates by conduits or intermediaries; contribution counts against donor's limit.	Prohibits PACs and registered lobbyists from acting as conduit for contributions.	Counts contributions raised by conduit against conduit's contribution limit (as well as donor's), if conduit is a: PAC, party committee, or their employees and agents; union, corporation, registered lobbyist, or anyone acting in their behalf.	Counts contributions raised by conduit against conduit's contribution limit (as well as donor's), if conduit is a: connected PAC; party committee; union, corporation, or partnership; registered lobbyist; or any employee or agent acting in their behalf.
SOFT MONEY
Party and Candidate Activity
Only money raised in amounts and from sources permitted under federal law may be used in federal elections; FEC regulations contain formulae for allocating costs of "mixed" activities, which benefit both federal and non-federal elections; allocation can be based on time and space of communication, ballot composition, funds expended, funds received, or fixed or minimum percentage.	Prohibits national party committees from using non-federal money for mixed activities (incl. registration, get-out-the-vote, and absentee ballot efforts). Party committees may use non-federal money for mixed candidate-specific activities, if allocated on time and space basis. WELFARE REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey [Mr. PALLONE] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I listened to the debate over the so-called welfare reform legislation today, as well as last night, and I felt very strongly that the Republican leadership bill was not welfare reform, would not accomplish the goal of getting people off of welfare and working into productive jobs, into being productive members of society. I also was very concerned over the fact that it would take away many of the protections for children in this country.

It disturbed me to a great extent to listen to some of the statements that were being made on the Republican side of the aisle on the issue of welfare reform and what we need to do to get people back to work, one of the basic tenets of this Republican leadership bill, and I think that is how it differs a great deal from the Democrat or bipartisan Castle-Tanner substitute, which I supported, is that the Republican leadership bill essentially is money-driven. In other words, its major focus, if you will, is to try to save significant amounts of money that would theoretically help us balance the budget and reduce the Federal deficit.

In its drive to save money, it assumes that by cutting back on programs like food stamps and other types of assistance, that that will ultimately end the welfare system and get people to work and get people productive jobs.

Historically, if you look at successful welfare reforms that have been tried out in many States in this country, and the States really have been good laboratories to experiment with ways to produce welfare reform, in many cases it has actually cost the State more money, and the notion that somehow welfare reform will at least in the short run result in monetary savings is simply a false premise.

Think about it for a minute. If you are saying that the State is going to get people off welfare, oftentimes that involves job training, which costs money; oftentimes it requires day care, because most welfare recipients, at least those on AFDC, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, are mothers with dependent children.

So it costs money to provide day care. It costs money to provide job training or education. If often costs money to provide for health benefits so that there is health insurance coverage for children.

So where does the notion come that somehow we are going to save money for the deficit, at least in the short run, by providing for welfare reform? I think that is a basic tenet of this Republican bill that is false and is creating the problems that result in less protection and measures in this bill that actually hurt children.

If you look at the Republican bill, the largest share of the welfare bill's food stamp savings would come from across-the-board cuts in food stamp benefit programs. A lot of my Republican colleagues talked about how there were a lot of people on welfare who were fraudulent, or how they wanted to end benefits for people failing to comply with work requirements.

But actually if you look at this bill, only 2 percent of the food stamp savings in the bill, and the food stamps is the largest savings in the bill, only 2 percent of that food stamp savings come from provisions to reduce administrative costs, curbing fraud or ending benefits for people found to comply with work requirements.

Most of the savings is achieved by just slashing the amount of money that goes to food stamp programs. So even people who legitimately need the food stamps, because they are working in many cases, will actually suffer losses in their benefits under the food stamp program.

The other myth I think that was promulgated by the Republicans was this notion that, well, the welfare system is a failure because the poverty rate has climbed in the last few years under the existing welfare program. I guess the theory is that throwing money at the problem does not work.

Well, the reality is that the reason why more and more people are sinking into poverty in this country is because the safety net is being cut. In other words, the food stamps, the cash assistance, the housing assistance that many of the poor individuals that need this type of assistance receive, in real dollars has actually decreased over the last 5 or 10 years. So the reality is that more and more people are going into poverty because we are not providing sufficient funding for them to eke through an existence, to have a healthy life, to have proper housing, to have enough money to take care of their children.

So I honestly believe that the basic premise, if you will, of this Republican plan, which says that somehow we are going to be able to save money by making the kind of welfare reform that they propose, is a false premise, and one of the biggest problems with their bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from North Carolina [Mrs. CLAYTON] is recognized for 5 minutes.

[Mrs. CLAYTON address the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.]

DAY 9 OF MINIMUM WAGE
HOSTAGE SITUATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Connecticut [Ms. DELAURO] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, it's day 9 of the holding of the minimum wage increase hostage by Senate Republicans. They are keeping to their threat to stall the minimum wage until medical savings accounts [MSA] are added to health care reform. MSA's in exchange for the minimum wage—it's not right and it's not how we should govern in this Congress.

MSA's are a bad idea. Consumers Union—the people who publish Consumer Reports—has called MSA's a time bomb that will make health insurance less accessible and less affordable for many Americans. MSA's will make us take a step backward in our quest for health care coverage for the majority of Americans. The Republican leadership refuses to let MSA's die—a death they truly deserve—because they are a pay-off to an insurance company that also happens to be a big-time Republican donor.

This is an outrage and its despicable. Over 80 percent of the American people support a minimum wage increase. A minimum wage increase passed both the House and Senate by substantial margin. In fact, a Senate Republican aide told the New York Times that "Republicans don't believe in raising the minimum wage. We voted for it because it was killing us."

So they voted for it but they won't let it be enacted. Not until they get their pay-off for special interests.

Mr. Speaker, over 12 million Americans need a minimum wage increase. Over 12 million Americans are waiting for a minimum wage increase. Over 12 million Americans are counting on that minimum wage increase to put food on their tables, clothe their kids and maintain their standard of living. It is a shame that they have been waiting as long as they have.

But why should that surprise us? It seems like money talks in this Congress. If you contribute, you get your legislation. Just look at MSA's. Since minimum wage families can't afford to donate money to political campaigns they have to wait for the legislation that will help them.

A 90 cent increase is all we are asking for—90 cents. That's it. But the Republicans are firm in their opposition. They don't understand that 90 cents can go a long way. This extra pay may seem small but it translates into 7 months of groceries, 1 year of health care costs, 9 months of utility bills, or 4 months of housing.

In the State of Connecticut 87,158 hard working people earn between $4.25 and $5.14 an hour. Each one of those people would benefit by passing a minimum wage increase. But these hard-working Americans in Connecticut and their 12 million fellow Americans continue to wait for a boost in their wages because the Republican party continues to find new ways to block the increase.

A minimum wage worker makes about $8,500 a year. That's it. Two-thirds of these workers are adults and almost 60 percent are women. Over 40 percent are the sole breadwinners in their family. The Department of Health and Human Services estimates that the minimum wage increase could lift 300,000 families out of poverty including 100,000 children.

Day 9 of the Republicans hostile holding of the minimum wage hostage. Free the minimum wage and honor the work of over 12 million Americans and their families.

THE SCOURGE OF TERRORISM

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BARTON). Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from California [Mr. DORNAN] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. DORNAN. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues, and anybody who watches the proceedings of this, the world's greatest legislative body, first among equals even with the distinguished U.S. Senate, because all money bills start here, all spending bills, and all tax bills start in this Chamber on the south side of this exquisite Capitol Building.

When people watch this floor, they expect promises to be kept. I made a promise the day before yesterday when I returned from the funeral of the highest ranking Navy ace in history, the Navy's ace of aces, Capt. David McCampbell. I said, because it was only a 5-minute special order, that I would read this beautiful eulogy from a fellow Medal of Honor winner, a fellow Medal of Honor winner to Captain McCampbell. Barney Barnum from a different war won his as a 24-year-old Marine company commander, actually a platoon leader who took over the company when his commander died in his arms. It was such a beautiful eulogy I said I would read it on the floor tonight.

I will read as much of it as I can, but the business at hand that requires some comment is yet what will turn out to be another terrorist horror.

Everybody is holding their fire and their analysis. It is all couched in careful terms because of the unfortunate jumping to the conclusion that the atrocity in Oklahoma City on Patriot's Day, April 19 a year ago, was a terrorist act, which it was. But they assumed no Americans would kill women and children and Army and Navy and Air Force recruiters and law enforcement officers and marshals and FBI agents. We assumed no American would perpetrate a terrorist act like that so that it had to be outside terrorists. Americans of Arab culture, of Middle Eastern background, and that can be Mennonite Christians from Lebanon, like my great friend, former late great Danny Thomas, family name was Jacobs. My brothers and I went to school with his children, Margie Thomas, later became a television star known as Marlo Thomas Margie Jacobs was known to us. But John Sununu, a Lebanese family, the great Governor of New Hampshire, great TV debater now.

All the way through all of the countries. Persian, people from Iran, who are Islamic in religious culture but not Arab in nationality. It was very unfair to every American who is Christian, Islamic, or even Jewish of Arab blood. People jump to the conclusion not incorrectly that Oklahoma City, the bomber of the Murrah Building was terrorism, it was, but they assumed it had to be outside evil terrorists, not evil Americans.

Also, the tragedy of ValuJet, my favorite airline at the time because it had lowered its prices and made jet travel so available to so many American families. It was growing so amazingly, up to 51 aircraft when that explosion tore it out of the sky, because people jumped to the conclusion that that might have been a terrorist bomb. And then we found out it was dangerous cargo, improperly loaded. We passed regulations. All the airlines are absolutely at a high state of alert for that not happening again.

All of that focuses in on this tragedy of TWA flight 800, where we do not have to jump to conclusion over what group or what heritage of any group was responsible for this. But all the vectors are coming together here that this was a catastrophic explosion; that in spite of the age of this big giant beautiful Boeing 747, it was over 25 years old, one of the oldest in the fleet, in spite of the fact there was a small difficulty with some part in Athens before it flew back to its home base there at JFK Airport there in New York, that it was on the ground for 3 hours.

I am convinced, until told otherwise, and I am in my 8th year in the Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, that dogs are going over every aircraft that comes in from foreign airports and that it sat there for 3 hours and that the Los Angeles passengers, including, I am told, a constituent of mine that boarded this flight number changed equipment, that means aircraft, and got on this 747 only 3 hours on the ground from Athens. And off they go to be torn out of the sky by this catastrophic explosion.

We have not found, at least when I left the TV set in the Republican Cloakroom, we have not found the blackbox yet. It will be found. The water is manageable. Half-hour or more, it would have been out over the deep Atlantic. Another few minutes after that, it would have been off the Continental Shelf, and we would be dealing with the depths of the H.M.S. Titanic, 15,000 feet at the bottom of the sea. And then we might never have known.

As in the Air India 747, it was blown to bits off the southern coast of Ireland. We have never been able to trace that accident, including some others lost at sea. So we will be able to unravel the mystery of where the bomb was when it went off, how badly it tore the aircraft apart.

Obviously, the stewardesses were serving milk and soft drinks to those beautiful children from Pennsylvania, from that French class that must have been having the thrill of their life headed toward the City of Light across the North Atlantic. Not in weeks, a journey of weeks and months like all the European forbearers of the citizens of this Nation, but in just a matter of hours. The thrill of a lifetime, practicing their French.

I do not know whether my constituent is from Santa Ana, Garden Grove, Anaheim, CA, whether they live in the shadow of Disneyland, whether they are from 1 of 10 parts of other small cities that adjoin mine, Fountain Valley, Orange. I do not know where this person is from. I do not know whether it is a child going to visit a mom or a dad in Paris or whether they were with a parent or if it is just a parent or if it is a senior citizen taking maybe their last trip to Europe.

I leave this lectern tonight and call out to California to learn a name, a gender, an age of a constituent of mine that I might have met at a town hall meeting that maybe voted against me, for me, maybe wrote to me. We will look in my files to see if we ever helped them find a veterans check, a Social Security check. It will personalize this for me, as it will for 229 Congressmen. Now the children and the five teachers all are from one congressional district.

The gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. CLINGER] said he represented this city. It has a French name. Is that not ironic, Montoursville, and that will concentrate some constituents in one district. But there are probably going to be 200 Congressmen trying to call people and say how sorry they are that this has happened.

Now, obviously, with the Olympics beginning, with the beautiful torch ceremony bringing together some young athletes and some not so young, some in their 40's, from all over the world to celebrate, to begin the second century of these modern Olympic games, this throws a cloud over tomorrow night.

I went to the 1972 Olympics as the producer of my own television show, the Robert K. Dornan Show, in 1972. I was lucky enough to control 90 minutes live on Saturday night of television time in the second biggest market in the world. I assigned myself to go to Munich for the 1972 games and cover them.

The terrible tragedy of terrorists killing the Olympic athletes there, the Israeli coaches, weight lifters, athletes, and team members. I think it was 14 or more died, burned to death strapped in their helicopters with their hands tied behind their back. The three terrorists that survived the German sniper fire, they were released on another terrorist act holding people hostages. And although it was fictionalized partly in a movie titled Operation Jericho, it is my understanding, from visits in Israel, talking to their intelligence officers, that they hunted down every one of the surviving killers.

I think there were eight terrorists. The three that survived and were released by Germany, went to Libya, they hunted them all down. And in the Old Testament, an-eye-for-an-eye justice sent them to meet their God, our God, Allah is Yahweh is God. And Israel's correcting this injustice is probably what we should be doing in Libya. PanAmerican, one of my favorite airlines, PanAmerican Airways, PAA, was destroyed by the terrorist bombers.

We know who they are. They are in Libya right now being protected by a warlord dictator, Mu'ammarr Qadhafi. They, in Christmas week, a week before Christmas, killed not 229, 259 and 11 people on the ground in the quiet little Scottish village of Lockerbie, 270.

When a Russian fighter pilot shot down and killed my colleague, who had served with 6 years up to that point, Larry McDonald of Georgia, that plane took 12 minutes to slowly descend on fire with everybody putting on their life vests. Russians to this day have hidden their bodies that they recovered. And slowly, as they descend, 12 minutes is a long time, next time you are 12 minutes out on a flight to anywhere in this country, give your watch a hack and think how long 12 minutes is. That is a quarter in high school football, as I said on the floor.

There is Larry McDonald, doing his congressional duty, going over to celebrate the 30th year ending of the ceasefire in Korea, 1953 to 1983. Larry was murdered by Russian evil empire Soviet orders at that time.

It was still August 31, when we found out about it here in Washington. On the other side of the world, that side of the international dateline, his death is recorded as September 1. That was a 747, Korean 007, 268 people killed. So 268, 270, 229, three 747's and others around the world. How about the one that good intelligence precluded from happening, an Irish or a Middle Eastern terrorist has his Irish girlfriend pregnant with his child and her child and loads her up with a bomb and puts her on a 747 heading to Europe and fortunately that was thwarted and the plane was saved. The people were saved. She was saved to go on and have her child that its own father was going to murder. Been a few success cases we cannot even talk about, because we do not want to give away the modus operandi of how to preclude one of these tragedies from happening.

I think that it is time for the United States of America to revisit our stand-off and our embargo of Italy which is, excuse me, of Libya, which is broken regularly by Italy, former colonial master of Libya, by Germany, by other European countries trading with Libya, ignoring our embargo on them until Mu'ammarr Qadhafi turns over the assassins, the terrorists that destroyed an airline, that ripped the hearts out of hundreds of American families in Christmas week and that blew up Pan Am 103.

Is this going to be fatal to this other great airline, the other of our initial transcontinental, excuse me, trans-national airlines? TWA, Pan Am were the two greatest world intercontinental carriers of all through most of my life. One is gone, destroyed by this kind of terrorism. Now TWA, just starting to come out of Chapter 11, just starting to advertise and rebuild the morale of its flight attendant corps and certainly its pilot corps, without a word from this aircraft, it was so catastrophic, without people putting on their life vests like Korean 007 with the U.S. Congressman on board. That was 68 Americans on that flight. Without any warning, this giant aircraft, the drawing on the front page of the LA Times is terrifying. It says that shortly after takeoff, still skirting the south shore of Long Island, if that was not a safety procedure, they flew as the crow flies, following a great circle route that would take you right along the length of Long Island, and they would have fallen on some village that would have been the equivalent of Lockerbie, Scotland, burning to death people on the ground.

But putting together, the LA Times did, several eyewitnesses, it says, flame shoots from the plane like a flare. An eyewitness who did not see that, and I saw this with my own eyes late last night, he said he picked up the aircraft when it was in a steep descent and rotating. He thought it was an acrobatic aircraft. That is, given the curvature of the earth even at this time of night in summertime at around 8:40, an aircraft, an aircraft at 5,000 feet or more is still getting light that you are not getting on the ground. It even makes more, it makes it more like something up on a stage where it is highlighted. He thought it was an acrobatic plane turning.

Imagine the terror inside this airplane, but that is the very root word for terrorist. Then all of a sudden two explosions, and then smoke and flame just enveloped the airplane until some people thought, who looked up at that moment, that it was a fireworks display.

I have had two classified briefings today. I did not learn anything that citizens, Mr. Speaker, will not learn watching the networks tonight and watching C-SPAN, I mean CNN, all day long. I think we are going to have to revisit Libya, revisit with our NATO allies their disregard of our embargo of Libya and clean up the ugliness of Pan American Flight 103 and give those relatives who still call me, give them some peace and rest by bringing to justice, even if we have to run a covert operation, which is difficult, difficult as hell given the background of the person that sits in the White House, but we have to do something along Israeli lines to let every terrorist know what President Reagan said at the time and was unable to fulfill, and that is, you can hide but we will get you.

President Reagan did at least, after the terrorist bombings at the La Belle disco in Germany, April 5, 1986, he did unleash our F-111's from England. And by the way, I understand years later that France did cooperate but had plausible denial. They let our refueling tankers fly over France to refuel the F-111's.

I recall two Americans gave their lives, too young to have served in Vietnam, just 30 years of age, one 29, Paul Lawrence and Fernando Revesdominich. This crew that was shot exiting Libya, people say, was that a cowboy act of Reagan's? Did it work? That aggressive action of Ronald Reagan to bomb Benghazi and military facilities outside of Tripoli and, yes, Qadhafi himself with 1,000-pound bombs. That so rattled that warlord's brain that there were no terrorist acts out of Libya for about a decade. I would say that that direct action worked and maybe that is the kind of direct action we are going to have to take here.

Of course, they are not going to do anything leading up to the Olympic ceremonies tomorrow. I pray to God they will not, because they are patient, these terrorists. They strike and then they pull back, and then they completely change their modus operandi.

We were going over every aircraft coming into this country leading up to the Olympics, bringing the athletes with literally the old cliché, a fine-toothed comb, and dogs as well. So they changed their modus operandi and put maybe a catastrophic explosive device on a plane leaving the country.

It is so difficult to play defense and stay ahead of terrorists when they are on offense. The timing is all theirs. Occasionally they can opt to use suicide people. If someone would blow himself up twice in one week on Tel Aviv or Jerusalem buses, why would not someone be willing to die on the aircraft? And there goes the baggage underneath. That is very difficult to go through each piece of luggage. They slow down the pace of modern life. They do terrorize some of us. They cause some senior citizens to never fly again in their lives. And not even to enjoy their savings, to see this fascinating world of ours.

It is just incredible, but like the so-called war on narcotics that has never been a war under this President, evil is something that is with us perennially since the fall of Adam, and it is just our expertise on defense against theirs. But occasionally, offense is required. That is what we should do with Libya now, go back on the offense. And it gives a message to Syria, Iraq, and it gives a message to Iran, countries that maybe in a few years will again know what it is like to have freedom and free elections.

Mr. Speaker, I want to cut a little bit into my own time that I am going to dedicate to David McCampbell, Navy ace of aces, and discuss something that I just put around in a dear colleague letter: Bosnia.

Bosnia, once more into the breach, Richard Holbrooke, the man who I met the first time in the lobby of the U.S. Embassy or the court yard showing some friends the bullet holes still in our U.S. Embassy from the liberation of Paris in August 1944. And I am standing in the courtyard, and here comes Richard Holbrooke, then working Asian affairs, not Balkan affairs. And I said to him, of course, he is 19 years younger. I took off my POW bracelet with Maj. David Hrdlicka's name on it, known prisoner in Laos, right up till the prisoner exchange a few years before that June 1977 date.

I said, you tell the Vietnamese, Richard, Mr. Assistant Secretary, that thousands of Americans, 13 million wore these bracelets. There are still hundreds of thousands wearing them. This year of 1977, you tell them that we know they are holding back live Americans and hundreds of records, psychologically torturing our families. OK, I will do it.

About 2 weeks later a brown envelope arrives in my office, Mr. Speaker, with my POW bracelet in it. And Richard Holbrooke says to me, sorry, never got a chance to bring that up with the Vietnamese. So I do not hold him in awe as a negotiator the way some people do. But I will give him this: He is working on his second million dollars as a Wall Street honcho. I do not know what exactly his title was. His friend, Warren Christopher, Secretary of State, says, you have got to come back and you have got to go back and talk to Milosevic, that we have to solve this problem of ousting Radavan Karadzic, who is a killer, a warlord, killer, Serbian genocide creator. And he does it.

So he is over there a few days ago. At stake are the elections in Bosnia, scheduled for September 14. That is the date in the courts that Holbrooke, before he left the State Department last spring as an assistant secretary for that area, actually, Ambassador Plenipotentiary, he is over there now telling Milosevic, who himself is a warlord and a nonelected person, certainly not in any free election up in Belgrade, he himself unleashed this genocide. He himself is not just an unindicted co-conspirator but by the people that I respect, like Richard Goldstone, who is the immediate prior head of the war crimes trials in the Netherlands, he told me Milosevic is a war criminal. So here is Richard Holbrooke, civilian Wall Street, now temporarily seconded back to the State Department to sit down with Milosevic and say, look, 20,000 United States troops are in Bosnia. It is part of the 60,000 U.N. mission. We have another 20,000 spread all around naval ships, Hungary, other places I visited a few months ago on the same airplane that killed Ron Brown. The agreement forbids those indicted for war crimes such as Karadzic from holding office or even participating in the elections.

It also requires signatories, such as Milosevic, to turn such individuals over to the tribunal at The Hague without, of course, turning himself over. So Richard Holbrooke, chief U.S. architect of the accords, is back over there.

Holbrooke is quoted in news reports as saying he believes the Bosnian Serbs are defying the Dayton agreement. But there is nothing to be heard or discussed about possible consequences. Despite repeated violations of the accord, Clinton has certified that the conditions necessary for a free and fair election exist. Many observers, including my colleague in the Senate, WILLIAM COHEN, have warned that this new term IFOR 2, IFOR 2 is now going to be an open-ended, unlimited extension of our United States commitment to Bosnia.

Mr. Speaker, I did not have our Speaker, Mr. GINGRICH, in my corner or eight of his lieutenants, various Congressmen from different districts, but I came last winter within four votes. A shift of four votes and this House would have gone on record cutting off the money for Clinton to follow up his Somalia misadventure which killed 19 of our very best Rangers and Delta Force people. And Haiti, where we compromised our intelligence, put out bad intelligence and allowed a competing, wonderful female lawyer, Bertrand, to be shot down and killed in the street. This lady, because we were so screwed up in the way we were trying to cover for Aristide down there, that murders took place that we could have prevented. That is all being bottled up for the election.

Now, just what I predicted from this, from that microphone and lectern controlling the debate, that this was an open-ended engagement, that Clinton was not qualified to be the Commander in Chief of an operation like this and we should cut off the money. Here we are in the election. The election is 111 days from today. Mr. Perry, a nice man, said in front of my Committee on National Security that we would start pulling out troops in August.

That is in 2 weeks from now, and instead it is an open-ended commitment now with the IFOR force. The implementation force, IFOR, is now going to be IFOR-2 and they are going to stay. I found out when I went over there the second time that all these U.N. vehicles that they repainted khaki with the white paint underneath, they were all going to be repainted white, and it was going to go back to a U.N. operation anyway, with us paying a quarter or more of that bill.

Bob Novak, my pal, one of the best political pundits and writers in this last couple of decades in American life, he says: "Brace yourself. We are stuck in the Balkans just as I predicted."

So even my friend who I was honored to have lunch with Tuesday, Bob Dole, former great Senate leader, and we know that, God willing, he will be the nominee of my party on August 15, next month, he is having second thoughts about whether he should have not looked at it like backing up the troops on the ground with full support but should have looked at cutting off the money in the Senate, joining the Dornan effort over here and telling Clinton there is no money for this operation.

And by the way, the money is cutting into our operations and training from Haiti and from Bosnia, open-ended billing tearing apart the defense readiness of this country.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if the first part of my special order here was terrorism, and then Bosnia, this third of four parts is going to be on what it is like to be a Christian in a post-Christendom period of secular humanism and mockery of those who believe that Jesus Christ was the Son of God, our Savior who died for our sins.

I got this letter from one of the finest voices on radio in this country, a great child psychologist, educated man from a family of reverends, but not a minister himself, Dr. James Dobson, and listen to this newsletter, actually last week in June, from Jim Dobson. He says at the beginning of his family on the focus newsletter:

"Even if you are not accustomed to reading my letters, Dr. Dobson's focus on the family letters each month, I plead with you to read this one to the end. The words I have quoted here will inspire you and give you a new vision for this great land, the United States of America. More importantly, you will see that the road we are traveling as a nation was feared by our Founding Fathers, and their warnings must be heeded while there is time. God bless you, Jim Dobson, June 1996, dear friends."

Keep in mind what Billy Graham said May 2 in our beautiful secular cathedral, the nave of this building in our rotunda when we awarded him unanimously, both Houses, both parties, the Congressional Medal. Billy Graham said, "We are a Nation on the brink of self-destruction."

Follow up those terrifying words with the words of Jim Dobson quoting Justice Scalia:

"On April 9," that is Bataan Death March Day, remember, you veterans who love your country, bled for it and are great devotees of watching the proceedings on this House floor, even these special orders when the Chamber may be empty, and stupid writers like to point out why is BOB DORNAN or anybody speaking to an empty Chamber. One million three hundred thousand people are watching my image on television reading this letter from Jim Dobson to this friends:

On April 9, 1996, U.S. Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia delivered a historic address at the invitation of the Mississippi College School of Law, a Baptist school. No printed texts are available, and I could not get one from Mr. Justice Scalia's office, and his remarks were not recorded electronically; that is a tragedy. Excerpts of Justice Scalia's April 9 speech were reported in the news media the following day and continue to reverberate throughout the Nation, continue to reverberate months later. Indeed his speech generated a fire storm of criticism among indignant members of the liberal press. Just like Vice President Dan Quayle's controversial Murphy Brown speech in 1992, Justice Scalia had the audacity to be politically incorrect in the public square. Justice Scalia's address helped with the ridicule of Christians in the United States, and the fact that we have brought upon us Christians disdain in which their cherished beliefs are held by the culture elite.

I am going to read that sentence again: "His address at Mississippi College School of Law dealt with the ridicule of Christians in the United States and the disdain in which their cherished Christian beliefs are held by the cultural elite." That means the New York Times and many people at the networks. Perhaps—oh, and my pal Ted Turner saying that Christians were basically jerks. Remember that wonderful moment that he sort of apologized for, that he was quoting Jane Fonda at the time? So he was not too interested in really apologizing. Maybe one of these days Ted will apologize properly. The Christians are jerks, backwards, uneducated, and the Washington Post said something to that effect within weeks after that insult from Ted Turner.

Perhaps Scalia's comments on that day were motivated by cover stories, Easter Week stories in Time, Newsweek, and U.S. News and World Report, each questioning the historic validity of Jesus' resurrection.

Mr. Speaker, I read all three of those magazine. They really were offensive, particularly two of the three. Not surprisingly, those stories were run during or near Easter Week; that is in your face, when Christians were celebrating the risen Savior. Scalia's speech was reported in this manner. They at least let this much out.

Quote: Devout Christians are destined to be regarded as fools in modern society, Supreme Court Justice Antonin Scalia said Tuesday offering a rare glimpse of his private views. We are fools for Christ's sake, the conservative jurist said. We must pray for the courage to endure the scorn of the so-called sophisticated world. Scalia said intellectuals through history have rejected miracles and the Easter story. The wise do not investigate such silliness, he said sarcastically. They do not believe in the resurrection of the dead. Scalia said it is irrational. You must reject miracles. One can be sophisticated and believe in God. Reason and intellect are not to be laid aside where matters of religion are concerned.

He, Scalia, took note that, I learned this from him, that the word "cretin" or "fool" is derived from the French word for Christian. That probably came upright before the reign of terror and the bloodletting and murder of priests and nuns during the French Revolution and the destruction of all of the great church art and the smashing of every statue, even in beautiful Notre Dame in Paris.

Scalia continues: To be honest about it, that is the way of Christians taken by modern society. Six hundred fifty people were at Mississippi College School of Law. Surely those who adhere to all or most of these traditional Christian beliefs are to be regarded as simple-minded.

Another quote. To many Americans, Scalia added sarcastically, everything from the Easter morning to the Ascension had to be made up by the groveling enthusiasts, the disciples of Christ, as part of their plan to get themselves martyred.

Dr. Dobson goes back to his text. Only a few excerpts from Scalia's speech had been published to date, but they were enough to bring down the liberal roof. Prominent editorial writers, columnists, cultural elites were appalled at his audacity. They came after the justice with a vengeance, just as they knew they would and just as they regularly castigate another conservative justice, any of them, but notably Clarence Thomas.

Richard Cohen, reporter for the Washington Post, my debate partner sometimes on Cross Fire wrote: I am less enamored of Scalia than some of my colleagues. I think this Supreme Court Justice is a cheap-shot artist.

Cohen went on to talk about Scalia's foolishness and concluded by writing Scalia's remarks are joined. Whatever his intentions, he showed himself to be a man who misjudges the nature and the motives of those who insist on a constitutional law of church and State, pretending that is in the Constitution when it was merely in the letter of Thomas Jefferson in passing, and it has been misinterpreted and misquoted for two centuries.

It seems his mind is made up—this is Cohen on Scalia—on such matters, and anyone who thinks Scalia will give first amendment issues a fair and reasoned hearing is, it seems, proceeding in a way Scalia would appreciate solely on faith.

Elliot Mintzberg, legal director for the People for the American Way, found Scalia's words to be troubling because they so closely resemble those used by Christian political activists like Pat Buchanan. This is a disturbing view for a Supreme Court Justice to have.

Remember when people attacked Clarence Thomas, that his life had probably been ruined by the nuns because he thanked them for giving him a good education and did not bother to find out that he had never converted to Catholicism, was not a Catholic. He, just as a young black child, got a great education from nuns in his Southern State.

Jim Dobson just pours out his heart, 1 page, 2 page, 3 page, 4 page, and then he comes back to quoting more of how there is this built-in bias. Then he starts quoting some of the fathers of our country: John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson. Let me come back to this Jefferson quote.

Jefferson, our third President and one of the principal Framers of the constitution and one of the three writers of the Declaration of Independence, the first among three equals, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams being the others, a man who revisionists tell us wanted a wall of separation to protect the Government from the people of faith, wrote the words that now appear in his memorial in Washington, and yes I have seen this, the beautiful Jefferson Memorial. Around the frieze inside it says: I swear upon the altar of God, eternal vigilance against every tyranny over the mind of man.

But it also says in there, Dobson quotes, can the liberties of a Nation be thought secure when we have removed their only firm basis, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are a gift of God?

That bears rereading. Jefferson, Thomas Jefferson: Can the liberties of a Nation be thought secure when we have removed—today he would have said ripped from them their only firm basis for all these liberties, a conviction in the minds of the people that these liberties are a gift of God.

The year 1781, so it was written before the French fleet blocked the British and gave George Washington his victory at Yorktown on October 19 of that very year.

This is go good, and I do not have time. I wish that I had time to read it all. He comes up through Calvin Coolidge.

Franklin Roosevelt prayed this prayer on a national radio hookup on D-day. I read this on the House floor on the 50th anniversary of D-day: Almighty God, with thy blessing we shall prevail over the unholy forces of our enemy. Help us to conquer the apostles of greed and racial arrogance. Lead us to the saving of our country. Thy will be done, almighty God. Amen. The year 1944.

Meanwhile on every one of the 5,000-plus invasion ships over the public address systems General Eisenhower had ordered that the Lord's Prayer be read. Every single one of the attacking young men, many of them it was the last sunrise of their lives, that carried a small Bible with a red cover. I have a commemorative edition published on the 50th anniversary, with Roosevelt's beautiful speech in the frontispiece of that little Bible.

Harry Truman, 33d President, a man who said "You can't ever trust an adulterer," he was not known to be a deeply committed believer. Nevertheless, he understood the spiritual heritage of this Nation. He had absorbed it sort of by osmosis.

Truman said, "If men and nations would but live by the precepts of the ancient prophets and the teachings of Jesus' Sermon on the Mount, problems which now seem so difficult would soon disappear. That is a supreme opportunity for the church to continue to fulfill its mission on earth. The Protestant church, the Catholic Church, and the Jewish synagogue, bound together in the American unity of brotherhood," this is all 1946, Mr. Speaker, "must provide the shock forces to accomplish this moral and spiritual awakening. No other agency can do that. Unless it is done, we are headed for the disaster we would deserve. Oh, for an Isaiah or a St. Paul, to reawaken a sick world to its moral responsibilities;" Harry Truman, Capt. Harry, like my dad, Capt. Harry, artillery officer, World War I, French trenches.

Gerald Ford, Ronald Reagan, forgive me, Jerry for skipping over yours, but I am only going to read one more.

Ronald Reagan, 40th President, gave this in a speech: "The frustrating thing is that those who are attacking religion claim they are doing it in the name of tolerance, freedom, and open-mindedness. Question: Isn't the real truth that they are intolerant of religion? They refuse to tolerate its importance in our lives."

Ronald Reagan, the year of his second victory, where he took every single State but Senator Mondale's, Vice President Mondale's own home State of Minnesota, because Ronald Reagan refused to campaign there. He only lost by a few hundred votes. He refused to campaign there, in Mondale's face, and discourteously take his own State away from him. So Ronald Reagan, a man of ultimate decency, was content to win the biggest State majority ever 49 States out of 50.

Mr. Speaker, I ask that Jim Dobson's whole newsletter be put in the RECORD.

Mr. Speaker, the other night I said that one of our cameras up in the gallery probably could not capture this picture closely enough. When I went home my wife had taped the picture, and it showed up, although it is a black and white picture, it showed up. I just have to tilt it a little more for flare, even though it is a fax picture, of Capt. David McCampbell.

THE NAVY ACE OF ACES GOES TO THAT BIG HANGER IN HEAVEN

There is Chester, his plane captain, the crew chief of his airplane. There are 34 Rising Sun Japanese warlord flags on his F-6F Hellcat beautiful R2800 that was also in the corsair, and lots of two-engine airplanes on the other side of the world bombing Nazi Germany, those evil enemies that Roosevelt had condemned.

What I love about it is that David McCampbell even then is 34 years of age. He was the commander of the air group, the CAG, way over the age of the young pilots like George Bush, who at that very time this photograph was taken was in between his two aircraft losses and halfway through Bush's 58 combat missions. He was 20 years of age. So here is someone 14 years older.

David McCampbell, I went to his funeral Tuesday, a beautiful, moving ceremony. He has passed away at 86 years of age on the 30th. Here is that incomparable eulogy given by a fellow Medal of Honor winner, Col. H.C. "Barney" Barnum, Company Commander, Vietnam. He did it in cryptic terms at first, beautifully laid out. He gave me his original text, and it looked like quatrains in a poem.

Medal of Honor recipient Barney Barnum says:

David McCampbell, Navy fighter pilot extraordinaire, superb combat leader—a true warrior, a patriotic American. He was to naval aviation what Gen. George Patton was to Army armor, Generals Chesty Puller, Howlin Mad Smith, and Lew Walt were to Marine Corps infantry—all true combat warriors.

My first recollection of Captain McCampbell as a newly decorated Vietnam veteran was at my first Medal of Honor Society convention. I recall his flashy clothes, the infamous cane, his flare for having a good time, but most of all, his willingness to sit and talk with the new guys, the Vietnam Medal of Honor veterans.

Accompanied by Col. Joseph McCarthy years ago, I visited Captain McCampbell in Lake Worth. That is Florida, I believe. I recall upon arrival he had to show us his new Cadillac he had just bought his wife, Buffy. We sat for hours in a room adorned with photos of Navy fighter aircraft, ships, photos, models of his famous F-6F Hellcat.

I recall vividly David's accounts of the decisions required in air combat, the excitement of combat flying. He always said he was never scared, but at times was apprehensive.

I want to add at this point, so people can enjoy this eulogy, I forgot to point out the other night that of those 34 aerial victories, Mr. Speaker, 9 were on one mission, one flight a little short of an hour and a half. He returned back on the carrier deck with less than 10 minutes of fuel. That is one bolter in a go-around to get it back on that deck, and only two physical 50-caliber bullets, two out of hundreds, left in his guns.

Imagine what a sharpshooter he was, and how he shepherded his ammunition, to be able to shoot down 9 bombers and so demoralize the formation of almost 40 aircraft that they turned around. He destroyed their mission. They dropped no bombs on his carrier battle group, the Essex group, and they left.

That is what another young Medal of Honor winner paid for later with his life, Butch O'Hare, that O'Hare airport in Chicago was named after. Butch shot down six on one mission and won the Medal of Honor. He shot down nine in one mission, and earlier that year of 1944, shot down six in one day. Nobody has ever equalled that feat, not even the three Army Air Corps aces still living with us; No. three, Gabreski; or the two that died in the South Pacific, Tommy McGuire, with 38 victories, or all-time American Ace of aces, young Dick Bong with 40. So think of those combat missions when you hear Barney Barnum's tribute.

He said, "I ask you not only to remember what a great American combat warrior he was, but think about the living example he set for his fellow aviators, the young pilots he led. The footprints he put in the sands of naval aviation were truly a path for those aviators who came after him to follow," including our own colleague, the gentleman from California, RANDALL CUNNINGHAM, "DUKE", his call sign and to his friends; a great congressman from San Diego, CA.

Those who knew David McCampbell will recall, I am sure, that he worked hard and he played hard. He truly did it all the way. He was born in Bessemer, AL, 86 years ago, attended prep school right down the road apiece from here in Virginia, at Stanton Military Academy, out there on highway 81. He had a year at Georgia Tech before his appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy, giving up his first year in college to make it a 5-year deal.

Many, many of the cadets I met up there at West Point a few weeks ago have a 5-year college course, because they go 1 year someplace else, making up for a C grade somewhere in high school, and then to start over as a freshman, to have that great military academy degree, and even more than that, the integrity, the duty, honor, country training.

He graduated in 1933, the year I was born, in the same class with Adm. John Duncan Bulkely, who I did a tribute to on this floor, the great Navy surface fleet and PT boat commander who took MacArthur off Corregidor. I did not realize that, both of this class of 1933, so they were seasoned middle-field-grade naval officers in 1941 when their Nation put them to the test.

As a midshipman, David exhibited his true competitive spirit as an active baseball player, swimmer. He went on to become the 1931 AAU diving champion, mid-Atlantic States, while a midshipman, and subsequently Eastern intercollegiate diving champion in 1932.

Upon graduation June 1, 1933, due to congressional legislation limiting commissions in the U.S. Navy, the same kind of shut-everything-down thinking we are still fighting in this Chamber, Mr. Speaker, he was discharged from the Navy, the same as Admiral Bulkely, and commissioned an ensign in the U.S. Naval Reserve. He went inactive for 1 year before being recalled in 1934 and commissioned as an ensign in the regular Navy.

His first duty was aboard the U.S.S. Portland as aircraft gunnery officer with Scouting Squadron 11. They are all biplanes, of course. The aviation unit aboard the cruiser, and that is even more than a biplane, that is a float plane biplane. In 1937, he was detached from the Portland and reported to Pensacola for flight training and was designated a naval aviator in 1938.

Imagine this, it took him 9 years after he reported in to Annapolis. That is stick-to-itiveness. For the next 2 years he served with Fighter Squadron 4 above our very first carrier, the Ranger, until being transferred in 1940 to Norfolk. There were clouds of war on the horizon for duty with the Wasp Air Group.

I found out at the funeral he was on the Wasp when it was sunk in the Battle of the Solomon Islands in September 1942. They told me he was the LSO, the landing officer, bringing in all the planes coming back to be recovered, only to go down when the ship went down.

From November 1942 to August 1943, after returning from the Pacific, he had consecutive duty at Jacksonville, Melbourne, FL, dying to get back into the fight. I can feel his fighter pilot's heart jumping out through these words of Barney Barnum's.

Then he fitted out Squadron 15. He went on to command that squadron from 1943 to February 1944 and then assumed command of Air Group 15, which was later to be labeled Fabled 15, aboard the U.S.S. Essex, the Galloping Ghost, they called it. The Japanese claimed they sunk the Essex six times during the war and never got her.

In addition to all the responsibilities incumbent with being the CAG, commander of the Air Group, McCampbell became the Navy's highest scoring pilot, 34 enemy planes destroyed, the greatest number ever shot down by an American pilot during a single combat duty tour. It took McGuire and Dick Bong two tours to get to their totals of 40 and 38.

His phenomenal feat of destroying nine Japanese aircraft in one day is unequalled in the annals of combat aviation. We have one Army Air Force pilot who shot down seven in Europe; no, six, flying a reconnaissance Mustang. It did not even have a full load of ammunition because of the cameras. They called it, instead of P-51, they called them F-5's and F-6's, the P-38 and Mustang photo versions.

It was somewhere off the Philippine Islands, October 24, 1944, that McCampbell shot down those nine aircraft. In an interview later, David was quoted as saying, it was just me and my wing man. I stand corrected, Mr. Speaker, 60 incoming Japanese bombers and supporter fighters. I screamed for help over the radio like a wounded eagle, but there was not anyone to send.

The air director that day was John Connally, later Secretary of the Navy and Governor of Texas, wounded the day Kennedy was murdered, assassinated.

I asked him what I should do, and he said "Use your judgment." You don't think of getting out of there, because that is not what you are trained to do. So my best judgment was to attack, 2 against 60, and attack we did. He went on to say in combat: You just do not think much of anything but the enemy, shooting him down, because that is what we were trained to do. I had help, of course, my wing man.

And I am learning this along with you, Mr. Speaker, for the first time; shot down six planes that day. So he became an ace on this mission also; 15 airplanes between the two of them.

Colonel Barnum said, I have heard David say "I'm not a hero," but as I read his Medal of Honor citation, I know you will all agree with me that indeed he was truly a hero.

I will close on this, Mr. Speaker. His Medal of Honor citation: David McCampbell, son of Alabama, Annapolis graduate, rank and organization commander, U.S. Navy Air Group 15; place and date, first and second Battle of the Philippines Sea, the biggest naval battle ever, by the way, June 19, 1944. Entered service at Florida. Born January 16, 1910, Bessemer, AL. Citation for conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty as Commander Air Group 15 during combat service against enemy Japanese aerial force in the first and second battles of the Philippine Sea.

An inspiring leader fighting boldly in the face of terrific odds, Commander McCampbell led his fighter planes against a force of 60. The Medal of Honor has it up to 80, 80 Japanese carrier-based aircraft bearing down on our fleet on June, 1944. Striking fiercely in valiant defense of our service force, he personally destroyed this seven hostile planes, later upgraded to nine, during this single engagement in which the outnumbering attack forces was utterly routed and virtually annihilated.

During a major fleet engagement with the enemy, the next, October 24, Commander McCampbell assisted by but a single airplane, intercepted, and daringly attacked a formation of 60 hostile land-based craft approaching our forces. I see, they had it right. He takes on 90 and gets 6, he takes on 60 and gets 9.

Fighting desperately but with superb skill against such overwhelming air power, he shot down nine Japanese planes and completely disorganizing the enemy group, forced the remainder to abandon the attack before a single aircraft could reach the fleet. His great personal valor and indomitable spirit of aggression under extremely perilous combat conditions reflect the highest credit upon Commander McCampbell and the U.S. Navy.

He is also credited with the destruction of 24 grounded airplanes and his air group, which became known as Fabled 15, was credited with the destruction of more enemy airplanes than any other Navy group in the Pacific war. That means in history.

It goes on to mention all the places that he fought, the Marianas, that was called the Turkey Shoot of Iwo Jima, bloody Palau, the Philippines, Formosa, and Nansei Shotos. He took part in the first battle of the Philippines. Over 400 enemy planes were destroyed in one battle. His remarkable exploits continued up to and including the Battle of Leyte Gulf.

It goes on to talk about the ships sunk, a Japanese battleship, 3 aircraft carriers, a heavy cruiser, additional ships, 3 more battleships, another carrier, 5 heavy cruisers, 4 light cruisers, 19 destroyers. They destroyed the navy.

And I remember George Bush's backseater Leo Nado. I said, "Leo, in 58 missions, how many times were you jumped by Japanese aircraft?" He said, "Congressman, Mr. Bush," he says "I still call him "Mr." because that is what he called ensigns and lieutenants," he said, "Mr. Bush and I never saw a Japanese airplane." I said "What, in 58 missions getting shot down twice?" He said, "No, our fighter pilots, those Hell Cat pilots," he is talking about McCampbell, and he gestured with his arm, Leo says, "They swept the skies clear in front of Mr. Bush and myself." Bush of course in his combat missions was hit with ground fire.

But we have buried another great hero at Arlington. He is in the new part of the cemetery, the plot where all the Vietnam veterans are.

Mr. Speaker, I will be a conferee on the Senate-House authorization bill conference this year. I was just talking to Speaker GINGRICH about it. I will be a conferee. I tell you that I will dedicate myself to a good authorization bill by thinking about people like Navy ace of aces David McCampbell.

REPORT FROM INDIANA—BENNIE MAJERS/RACHAEL GINDER

The SPEAKER pro tempore. (Mr. BARTON of Texas). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana [Mr. MCINTOSH] is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MCINTOSH. Mr. Speaker, I rise to give my weekly report from Indiana. There are special people in our society who reach out and lend a caring hand to all who are alone in the world. These individuals make our community a better place to live. Every weekend when Ruthie and I return home, we meet good people who are doing just that. I call them Hoosier heroes, Hoosier heroes because they are generous in their acts of love, because they sacrifice and serve as an example for the rest of us in our community.

Today I want to recognize Bennie Majers and Rachael Ginder, both of Madison County as Hoosier heroes. These two women shared their story with me during my visit with them over the Fourth of July break. I met with them because a good friend of mine, Judge Dennis Carroll had shared with me how much they had contributed as advocates for children in our community.

For over 16 years, Bennie Majers has been investigating the accidental deaths of children that turn out to be homicides. She is able to pursue most of these unthinkable cases because of her own life story. As an abused child, Bennie witnessed her own father murder her young brother. Bennie is known throughout Madison County and around the country because of her determination and hard work to uncover similar heinous crimes. She told me she does it in the memory of her young brother because she wants to make sure that other young people do not have that happen to them.

Her reputation as a victims advocate has earned her national appearances on the Oprah and the Geraldo shows. Certainly Bennie is one of those people who is helping out our community. She works with the sheriff's office in Madison County and develops profiles to indicate where a murder may have occurred of a young child. Her heart is filled with love and hope, and her impressive résumé is full of efforts to help children. Her commitment is indeed commendable.

The story of Rachael Ginder is also one of those that deserves mention and special recognition. Rachael and her husband Ron have provided foster care for nearly 150 children, many of whom are difficult and hard to place. Rachael shared with me that often those children have come back to them as adults and thanked Rachael and Ron for the love that they provided them and gave them a chance for a better life.

Many of the children that they have had are severely retarded, mentally handicapped. The doctors often say that some of the children have very few months of live or only days. But the Ginders have been willing to love them and to never give up hope on those children who enter their home. In their hearts, their thoughts and their prayers, they feel that it is their special gift to love these children, to give them a home where they can be nurtured.

One particular story involves a young girl named Melissa, who was born with no brain tissue, only a brainstem. The doctors gave her only a few days to live. She came to the Ginders when she was 15 months. They have adopted her as their own child, and now she is a young girl of 15 years who enjoys listening to music, the piano and the flute, and she continues to be a joy for all those in her house.

With the strength and hope in their hearts and God to guide them, the Ginders continue loving these children, like Melissa, unconditionally. The Ginders open up their hearts to these children, children who desperately need them, and they shower them with love. The Ginders seek to be more Christlike in their approach as they continue to give to those who are least fortunate in our society.

So today, Mr. Speaker, I would like to lift up Ron and Rachel Ginder and Betty Majers and her husband as Hoosier heroes in the true sense of the word. They have made sacrifices in their lives so that young people who are less fortunate than they were have a chance for hope and a better life in the future.

FAMILIES FINISH LAST IN GOP WELFARE REFORM BILL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of May 12, 1995, the gentleman from New York [Mr. OWENS] is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Speaker, today we passed the Republican majority's welfare reform bill, H.R. 3734. I think this triumph of the Republican majority again proves what we have said all along, that Democrats put families and children first, Republicans put families and children last. The Republicans are at least open and consistent, I appreciate their honesty. They are open and consistent in their extremism. As Speaker GINGRICH has said, politics is war without blood. The Republicans have declared war on families and children and they do not hide it. They have declared war on working people. They do not hide it. They are consistent. The American people will have a clear choice in November. There is no camouflaging of their intentions. The Republicans have done more than they said they would do but they clearly have laid out a pattern which shows that they are not for families, they are not for children. They use the rhetoric, they use the slogans, but the proof is in their actions. Today's welfare reform legislation certainly proves that.

I am all for welfare reform. I am in favor of reforming any program and any function of government, in fact. That is part of our vital function here, to keep the process of reform going. There is not a single government program or a single function of government that cannot stand improvement. The process of reform should be a permanent, ongoing process, and welfare certainly needed reforming. It did not need reforming because the poor people have ruined it because poor people do not administer anything. Poor people have no power. Poor people have no say in how we have administered any program, and certainly they have had no vital function here in the administration of the welfare program. If the welfare program needs reform and needed reform, and I think it did, it is because the people who are running it, including the policymakers in our Congress and our various State legislatures and city councils, it needed reform because we have not operated properly. Did it need such extremism as we have seen today, in today's Republican welfare reform bill?

It can best be described, I think, and I will read this little description from the Democratic whip notice. I think it describes it quite well and summarizes some of the problems quite well. The Welfare Budget Reconciliation for Fiscal Year 1997 is what the title of the bill is.

It creates a welfare block grant to replace the current Aid to Families with Dependent Children and three other related programs. The bill is tough on kids and weak on work. More than 1 million children will be pushed into poverty, and in 70 percent of these families, one of the parents is working. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the Republican bill provides $10 billion less than what States need to meet its work requirements. The bill has certain requirements for work but there is a need for funding for those requirements and they have $10 billion less than what is needed by the requirements of the bill according to the Congressional Budget Office. This bill makes it less likely that child support orders will be updated regularly. It actually weakens current law on dead-beat parents while increasing Federal costs. In addition, emergency funds for use during a recession are inadequate.

There was also an amendment to the bill which passed which Members ought to know about which limits the lifetime use of food stamps. There is a lifetime limit of 3 months for the use of food stamps. Individuals, families who have fallen into hard times for a brief period and need to eat, something as basic as food will be denied. You have got 3 months for your lifetime, regardless of your circumstances, the Federal Government will help you eat and stay alive for only 3 months. We do not say we have 3 months, or that there is a limit on the amount of earthquake assistance we give. If people live in zones where they have earthquakes, no matter how many earthquakes you have, the Federal Government will always rise to the occasion and there will be aid for people who suffer from disasters that are natural disasters, like earthquakes. No matter how many hurricanes or tornadoes come, there will be Federal aid for people who are in the path of a hurricane or tornadoes. There will be Federal aid for people who are in flood plain zones. Even if they have had floods there before and people know the danger, and they continue to build houses there, there is still Federal aid. There is no limit on the amount of Federal aid you can get.

Over the last 3 years, we have paid out quite a bit of Federal aid for natural disasters, earthquakes, floods, and hurricanes. But individual disasters, family disasters, which are economic and which will come, we all admit. We have a fluctuating economy, an economy which is constantly in motion, and there will be temporary losers. That is a certainty. But the temporary losers now will have a limit on how much you can get in food stamps. The most elementary and the least thing that the Federal Government can do for you is to give you an opportunity to eat. That is going to be limited. That is what this bill does.

I am not going to spend all my time talking just about this bill. I want to bring a commonsense perspective to the whole welfare debate. This great triumph of the Republican majority today which will certainly be repeated in the Senate, and we can expect this bill to go the President's desk. He has said he will veto it as it is, but the perspective that should have been brought to the discussion and the debate today, we could not bring it there because there was so little time to debate the bill.

I have had a lot of comments from people who watch these special orders, and there are a lot of good people out there who watch them. I am always surprised at the number of people who say that they do watch the special orders. They want to know why you are talking in an empty room.

Why bother to talk to an empty Chamber? Two things: They do not know for most of the time debate is going on and during the regular session, the Chamber is almost empty.

But more important than that, this is an institution, a special order institution, which allows us to bring some perspective to the debate, to talk in terms which will allow the American people to understand what is going on here. It is an opportunity for those of us who care about making commonsense decisions and making reasonable decisions with the best information that we can get.

We take advantage of this opportunity to give real information to people. We do not talk about the things that are really important in this country. We do not give the time we need to the life and death kinds of public policy decisionmaking.

People think that food, clothing, and shelter are the three necessities of life, and that is the way it is and that is the way it always has been. Well, food, clothing, and shelter are three basic necessities, but information to make informed decisions is as vital as food, clothing, and shelter.

In a democracy, the public policy decisions made will often determine whether you will get food, clothing, and shelter. Certainly nothing offers a better example of that than the bill that passed today, which deprives people who are in desperate circumstances of food stamps.

So I am here because this is an opportunity to help bring a perspective to the situation that I could not bring otherwise.

Why did I not talk during the debate? I talked during the debate for 2 minutes. I had to beg for 2 minutes. That is the best I could get. You can understand if there are 435 Members of the House, and seldom do 435 Members of the House all want to speak on the same subject, let us say 200 Members of the House want to speak, and they are given 1 minute apiece, that is 200 minutes.

I think we should have the 200 minutes. Maybe we should all get 5 minutes apiece. You need at least 5 minutes to make a decent statement. We cannot get 5 minutes apiece if 200 people want to speak on a subject.

In fact, you might be interested to know that on this very important topic of welfare reform, where we are making vital decisions about the entitlement to subsistence, this is a matter that was decided in the 1930's under Franklin Roosevelt and the New Deal, when the Social Security Act was passed. We gave people an entitlement to help when they are in desperate need. Families were given this entitlement.

The Aid to Families with Dependent Children is an entitlement which in essence says children in need must be helped and the Federal Government is going to stand behind you and guarantee that help. The States are obligated to make their contribution in this process.

So the entitlement is taken away by this legislation. Something as vital as an entitlement is gone. I am happy to report that the entitlement for Medicaid, which they are trying to steal also, the Republicans are quite honest, they do not pretend to care about families and children. They put families last. Democrats put families first. And they have not camouflaged their intentions. They wanted to take away the entitlement for Medicaid as well as take away the entitlement for Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

When we take away the entitlement for Aid to Families with Dependent Children, we begin to chop away at the substance and foundation for Medicaid, because if you are not deemed eligible for Aid to Families with Dependent Children—and the States have a block grant, they have a great deal of freedom and leeway in making the decisions about who actually gets designated as a person in need—then they will be able to lower their Medicaid bill by refusing to certify that people are eligible for AFDC.

The families are eligible for help. So we have already begun to chip away at Medicaid, which is the first and most important step this Nation has ever made toward universal health care.

So, as I say, we had 2 hours of debate allotted for this, 1 hour for the Republicans and 1 hour for the Democrats. Two hours allotted for debate, in a Chamber which has 435 people. So you can see how important this institution is of special orders. When 435 people are there, there is no time to actually give a discussion which makes sense.

I think we should allocate more time for debate on the floor. I do not know why we cannot spend more time in session. You might be interested to know that Roll Call, the newspaper here which is focused primarily on the coverage of activities in the Congress, Roll Call does periodically a little chart called Congress at Work, and they give the work load figures for the first half of the year.

Here is a comparison of Congress' effort so far this session against the same period in 1994. To compare the Senate and the House, they have the number of days that we have been in session, the House of Representatives, with 435 people who need time to deliberate and speak.

The House has been in session for 82 days this year, from January 3 to June 30, 82 days in session. The Senate with only 100 people has been in session for 90 days. The House, with 435 people who need to have time to deliberate and to debate, has spent 615 hours in session from January 3 to June 30 with its 435 members, while the Senate has spent 651 hours, more hours with only 100 members.

So just that little item tells you that something is very strange about the way we operate. Are we afraid of debate? Are we afraid of discussion in the House? Why can there not be more time allotted on the floor for an issue as vital as life and death matters related to food stamps, related to children, aid to families with dependent children.

That is just what it says, it is aid to families with dependent children. No matter how many stereotypes we have thrown at us about welfare mothers, and there are excesses and abuse, it is primarily a program to help children. If they do not have children, they do not get AFDC. The money is really there for children.

We have taken away the entitlement, the Federal Government's participation guaranteeing that everybody will get it. We left it to the States and the localities to decide who gets it, who does not, and how much.

We have made a radical change. This is an extreme change. We could have had welfare reform without such extremism. We did not have to go to that extreme, but we have taken an extreme step, and we only had 2 hours of general debate on the floor.

There was another hour to debate a Democratic substitute, 30 minutes on one side and 30 minutes on the other. So you have these far-reaching public policy decisions which will mean life and death for numerous families, numerous individuals in the future. If not life and death, for many others it will mean a lot of suffering that cannot be relieved in some reasonable way. And all we had was 2 hours to debate. So we need an opportunity to set this thing in perspective.

I would like to put it in the context of other developments in this 104th Congress. Let us take a look at this great triumph of the Republican majority today. They passed a bill which is going to hurt families and children.

They put families and children last, as they have done from the very beginning. We had the same phenomenon in the fall when the school lunch programs were being discussed. They started with their attack on school lunches, and, to some degree, they relented because we exposed them. They started with their attack on education programs, title I. They wanted to cut it by $1.1 billion. Head Start they wanted to cut by $300,000. Many other education programs are wiped out completely, a total of more than $5 billion in cuts.

But we took that case to the American people, and the voters out there in their districts let every Member of Congress, regardless of their party, know that those education cuts were not acceptable. So they backed down and they did not cut it. But they did make the attempt in their war against families, in their war against children. They had to capitulate.

Even Hitler's Wehrmacht had to capitulate in a few cases in its early days. They thought they had victory after victory after victory, and when they invaded Russia, it looked as though they were going to march all the way to Moscow. But because of the resistance in certain pockets, they had to capitulate and yield. Finally you had the counterattack at the doors of Moscow, which sent them into a whole series of defeats and left them in the Russian winter.

But despite this capitulation temporarily on education, the are back again this year with more cuts on education. The war on children, the war on students, the war on education continues. They are not saying anymore, the Republican majority is not as extreme as they were when they started at the beginning this 104th session. If you recall at the beginning of the 104th session, the Republicans proposed to abolish the Department of Education, eliminate it, wipe it out, send a signal across the country that the Federal Government has no role in education.

Then there was the assault on workers. In the Contract With America, the Republicans never said that they were going to assault workers. They never said they were going to go after the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. OSHA was never attacked in the Contract With America. But the minute they gained power the attack on OSHA began, to wipe out the safety regulations and the agency responsible for the safety and health of workers all over the country.

The the attack on Davis-Bacon, which calls for prevailing wages to be paid on Federal construction programs underway in any neighborhood, any city across the country, to pay people what the local wages are. There is nothing unreasonable about Davis-Bacon, but they attacked Davis-Bacon.

They attacked the National Labor Relations Board, which is responsible for guaranteeing that there is a collective bargaining process and it moves along smoothly.

Finally, they have recently attacked the overtime pay you get. The Republican want your overtime pay. The Fair Labor Standards Act, they want to change in order to force people to accept compensatory time in private industry instead of a cash check. The Republican want your overtime. They have come for your overtime.

So they have been very consistent. The attack on families, the attack on children, has been very consistent. Republicans put families and children last, and they have not hidden that fact.

Who do they put first? Well, you have got evidence clearly in the budget. They have not attacked spending for defense. They increased that by $13 billion, at a time when they were determined to balance the budget and were making all of these cuts in education programs and school lunch programs, in Head Start.

They were making these cuts in the name of fiscal responsibility. They wanted to balance the budget in order to eliminate the possibility that we would continue to have a rising national debt. The pace of the national debt started by Ronald Reagan in a Republican administration, they wanted to end that.

We are all in favor of that. We do not want to continue to do what Ronald Reagan started. The deficit was about $60 billion in the last year of Jimmy Carter's administration. In the last year of Ronald Reagan's administration, it was up to $400 billion. That is the annual deficit. This means under Ronald Reagan all those years, the deficit kept increasing.

The national debt, of course, goes up as a result of each year's deficit. So we are all in favor of ending that. But do you have to attack children and do you have to attack families in order to end the increase in the national debt?

Why not cut the defense budget, or at least leave it as it is. Why add $13 billion to the defense budget, as we are doing in the present budget that recently passed? Why go after families in the name of cutting the budget, when you do not go after farm subsidy programs, farmers home loan mortgages?

Billions of dollars have gone down the drain in farmers home loan mortgages. Nobody bothers to collect them, it is just a gift. Billions of dollars have been given to the farmers, and nobody is out there trying to collect them anymore in the farmers home loan mortgage program.

Farm subsidy programs, paying farmers not to plant crops, not to plow up the soil, and various other little subsidy programs, have given farmers across the country a handout for years. We do not propose to cut those handouts drastically.

But Aid to Families with Dependent Children, which is about 1 percent of the total budget, has been under attack. There is a hysteria that has been generated about welfare and giving aid to families with dependent children. So we rushed into scapegoating, we rushed into persecuting the poor. Welfare reform was needed, but you did not need to persecute the poor. You did not need such extremism.

Let us look at this matter again in context. Welfare reform has been touted as a way to put the bums to work, take people off the dole and put people to work. That is a big lie, because most of the people on welfare are not able to go to work.

The whole theory behind Aid to Families with Dependent Children is you are giving the aid to the mother who is there to take care of the child. If you did not have a mother to take care of the child, you offer day care for those mothers who go to work while they still have young children. Well, you have to pay for the day care then. You offer job training. You have to pay for that.

The important thing is that the whole notion that people are out there on the dole and they are there because they do not want to go to work means that there are jobs out there and that they should use those jobs, or that they are able to go to work and it is cheaper for them to go to work. Leave the child with a day care program and we, the public, will pay for the day care program and go into a training program if you do not qualify for a job now. The public will pay for the training program.

And finally you get a job. The question is, Will there be jobs there when you go through the training program, make the arrangements for your child's day care? Will there be jobs? No, we do not have jobs in the places where we have the largest concentrations of people on aid to families with dependent children.

Let us assume we did have the jobs. If the Republicans cared about families, if they did not put families last, they would not be opposing the minimum wage. We would like for the jobs to pay enough for the mother to be able to go to work, put the child in a day care program and pay part of that, I guess, and be able to take care of the family.

I suppose if they do not have health benefits on the job, they have to pay for their health benefits. But in order for this to happen, they have to have something above the minimum wage pay.

The current minimum wage pay will give an individual about $8,400 a year if you work every hour of a 40-hour week of the year. Never lose time. Never lose pay. You work every hour for a 40-hour week every week of the year, and you come out with $8,400. That will not support a mother and child. That will not support a mother and child.

We propose a minimum wage which would help matters a little bit more, where an individual would be making, instead of the $4.25 an hour, which produces $8,400, an individual would be making $5.15 an hour, a 90-cent increase, which would be granted over a 2-year period, which does not improve things that much but it is one small step forward. You would be making a little more than $9,000 a year if you worked 40 hours a week every week of the year.

So minimum wage makes sense if you really are sincere about wanting to provide work opportunities for people who are on welfare. Minimum wage makes sense. Minimum wage coupled with health care makes even more sense. Really, we need to give that combination of the minimum wage plus a guarantee of health care in order to really make sense for families that are poor with children to take care of.

Aid to Families with Dependent Children makes a person automatically eligible. If the receive Aid to Families with Dependent Children, they are automatically eligible for Medicaid. If they are not receiving AFDC, they are not eligible for Medicaid anymore. They lose their health care benefits.

Are you going to get a minimum wage job that also has a health care benefit? Most of them do not have health care packages. Most minimum wage jobs are the ones that are rudimentary and not in a structure which would provide for a minimum wage plus a health care package. So many people find ways to stay on welfare just to hold on to their health care.

The Republicans have made it clear that they do not really believe in work because they are not willing to pay a minimum wage. They are not willing to reward work. Work at the very bottom at least deserves a minimum wage as a reward.

Now, the majority in this House finally capitulated to common sense. The people out there have a lot of common sense. If more of that could be communicated in a more intense form, we would have a great improvement of what happens here in Washington. But the problem is America's common sense does not come through often.

When it came to the minimum wage, people clearly understood that, if we care about people and care about work and if we want to promote the work ethic, then the guy on the street, the person on the street out there understood that the least we could do is raise the minimum wage from $4.25 an hour over a 2-year period to $5.15. That is a minimum. That is the least we could do. That is a tiny improvement, to go from $4.25 an hour to $5.15 an hour.

Most American workers are making more than that, but there are more than 10 million who are making minimum wage only. That number is growing, of course, as we move from more people into a service economy where minimum wage is more likely to take place.

So America's common sense was communicated up through the focus groups, up through the public opinion polls. It was so strong and so clear and so consistent that even a Republican Party that had sworn that it did not want to pass the minimum wage had to relent. So we passed a minimum wage bill here in the House after some people said it would never happen. Some Republican leaders said over their dead bodies would we even put the bill on the floor.

But America's common sense and pressure and communication of their common sense to the Members of Congress resulted in the passage of a minimum wage bill here on the floor of this House. And the Senate finally got around to it. They passed a minimum wage bill also.

But what is happening now? During the same period where we are waging war against families by reducing food stamps, by taking away the entitlement for Aid to Families With Dependent Children, the Republicans are holding the minimum wage bill hostage. It has passed the Senate and it has passed the House. They are determined it will not go unless we pay ransom for it.

Let me just read from the communications from our leader, DICK GEPHARDT. It is called Outrage of the Week. And I agree with the communications leaflet that comes from our Democrat leader's office:

When you're losing the game, change the rules: Republican leaders ignore majority vote, put stranglehold on minimum wage.

Republicans proved this week that they will go to any length to stop 12 million American workers from getting a modest raise in their wages.

After the Senate voted overwhelmingly 74 to 24 to pass a bill increasing the minimum wage by 90 cents, one month after the House had approved a similar bill, Senate Republican whip DON NICKLES intervened to stop the bill dead in its tracks. NICKLES told reporters Tuesday that he wouldn't allow the minimum wage bill to proceed to the next legislative step until he got his way on a health insurance bill that's currently bogged down by Republican attempts to add a special perk for the Golden Rule Insurance Co.

Said NICKLES: "My intention is to see that we don't have conferees appointed on the minimum wage bill until after we have conferees appointed to the health bill."

Republican leaders made good on their threat Thursday, blocking the minimum wage bill from going to conference by trying to attach unacceptable strings like the controversial health bill.

Now, the health bill is one item on the agenda which has a lot of good pieces in there. Everybody is in favor of a health bill which allows you to move your portability of your health care package and plan from one place to another. The end to discrimination on people with preexisting health conditions.

There are a number of good things in there. But in that health bill, when they talk about a perk for the Golden Rule Insurance Co., they are talking about the medical savings accounts, medical savings accounts which will allow certain healthy people to opt out of the Medicare system as it is now and receive a reward for being healthy.

That is good, receiving a reward for being healthy. But the whole principle of the Medicare insurance is based on a pool of people being there. If we take the people out of the pool that are the healthiest and leave only the sickest people, it means that the pool is going to be paying money to take care of the sickest people and the pool is not supported by the insurance premiums paid by the people who are healthiest. The whole principle of the insurance pool collapses.

If we would allow that in other insurance situations, we would find insurance companies would go out of business. But we are going to destroy Medicare. The same people who said they want to save it will destroy it by placing this special item in there, and that is one insurance company which specializes in medical savings accounts. That is Golden Rule Insurance Co.

So Senator NICKLES wants to hold the minimum wage bill hostage because he wants to make room for the Golden Rule Insurance Co. to capitalize on a provision to have medical savings accounts.

Why is Senator NICKLES so determined to sink this minimum wage bill?

I am continuing to read from the Democratic leader's communication.

Why is Senator NICKLES so determined to sink this minimum wage bill? Here's a countdown of the three key reasons:

He's mad because he lost a key vote on the Republican amendment to gut the minimum wage bill, by denying the increase to millions of otherwise eligible workers. A similar amendment had also been defeated in the House in May.

What Senator NICKLES had proposed is the elimination of small businesses. A large number of small businesses would be eliminated. And that is where we have millions of the people who earn a minimum wage, no higher than minimum wage. They are working in small businesses. He wanted to eliminate the requirement that small businesses pay minimum wages and trap all of these people in a situation where they would not be covered by the minimum wage. He lost that vote in the Senate.

Another reason that Senator NICKLES is upset is, Republicans don't believe in the minimum wage. They just do not believe in it. As I said before, they do not hide their feelings. They do not hide their policies.

They have been quite clear to the American people that they are against families and children, they are against poor people, and they are against working people. They do not hide it. They started the year by saying we do not want the minimum wage, and some people said over my dead body will we even put the minimum wage bill on the floor.

So the Republicans do not believe, as the Republican Senate aide said to the New York Times on Tuesday, "Republicans don't believe in raising the minimum wage. We voted for it because it was killing us."

As I said before, common sense was killing the Republicans, common sense that was communicated by the people out there back to the Senators, back to the Members of the House, which said we see the minimum wage as being a fair proposition. If you care about work, you want to reward work. If you want to encourage the work ethic in America, then you have to pay a higher wage and have that wage be rewarded. So they had to respond. It was killing them.

And finally, Senator NICKLES is determined to sink the minimum wage for the following reason:

Special interest money is just too good to pass up. Senator NICKLES' strategy is directed at two special interest groups, both of which gave big bucks to the GOP. The first is the Golden Rule Insurance Co., which would reap huge profits from the medical savings account provision Republicans want to add to the health bill. The second is business and industry lobbyists, who loathe the minimum wage bill as much as Republicans do. The New York Times confirmed this, reporting Wednesday after the vote on the Republican amendment to gut the minimum wage bill that Republicans said they hoped to use yesterday's vote to win donations from small businesses.

They are referring to the vote that took place in the Senate, which would have exempted small businesses, and one of the reasons was to win donations from the small businesses.

This is a communication from the Democratic leader, DICK GEPHARDT, called "Outrage of the Week." It is an outrage. It is outrageous the position that consistently is taken by the Republicans against families, putting families last, and against children.

If we are going to set this welfare vote that took place today in perspective, what do we want poor people to do? If we are not going to help them by giving aid to children, then we need to provide jobs and job opportunities.

The first step is not there. There is no provision to increase the number of jobs. Let us assume that jobs are there. The jobs need to pay a living wage. A living wage is really above the present minimum wage plus a health care package. A health care package is a vital part of a living wage. A job is not a job of any substance for a family unless in addition to providing the minimum wage, it also provides the health care package. The Republicans are determined that neither one of those will be there.

The welfare reform needed to take place. We needed to reform welfare. We needed to make better use of the dollars spent to help children. We needed to make better use and end waste in the way we handle our food stamps. There are a number of things about welfare reform that had to take place. But this welfare reform bill is an extremist bill.

It starts with the very extreme step of eliminating the entitlement. Poor people are no longer guaranteed that the Federal Government will be there to give you help when it is needed. The Federal Government will be there to give you help if you are a victim of an earthquake. The Federal Government will be there to give you help if you are the victim of a flood. The Federal Government will be there if you are the victim of a hurricane, some other weather, which is proper, altogether fitting and proper that the Federal Government should be a participant in the process.

Maybe the States should do more in helping hurricane victims themselves. They do not have any State or local provisions for that. Maybe the States should do more in being responsible for their earthquake victims. Maybe the States should do more to be responsible for their flood victims. The Federal Government should participate. Right now it is the primary participant in providing relief for people who suffer from natural disaster. So people who suffer from economic disaster deserve at least some help from the Federal Government, and we have taken away the Federal Government's participation.

In perspective, this is consistent with what the Republicans have been doing. In perspective, their attack on education is another part of the problem. Educational opportunity must be provided to poor people if you want to guarantee that they do not have to ask the Federal Government or the State government or the local government for help.

Let us provide some fishing lines. The statement that if you really want to feed a person, you do not keep supplying them with fish. You buy them a hook and line and teach them how to fish. Let us teach people how to fish.

Let us follow the evidence that is clear that everybody who has an education in America is able to make a contribution back to both himself and the economy. Certainly when it comes to college graduates, this evidence is quite clear and overwhelming. Most college graduates are able to support themselves and also to pay income tax, which supports their government, pay income taxes and other taxes.

College graduates, graduation up to now almost guarantees that you are going to get some kind of job. So why not have the Federal Government play a greater role in education instead of a lesser role? From our House Democratic leadership there is another communications which bears out my oft stated hypothesis that Republicans are the enemies of public education.

Republicans are consistent, though. This is the way to help families, this is the way to help children. They do not want to do that. In this communication we call it the Republicans' raid on education.

Republicans in Congress get an F. The GOP fails to meet growing educational needs of America's children. While the needs of our children and schools are increasing, the GOP Congress has failed to grasp this important reality. Indeed, at the end of the 1995-96 school year, the GOP Congress has failed America's children and has earned an F once again for failing the American educational system.

Specifically, the fiscal year 1997 budget resolution narrowly passed in the House and Senate and the fiscal year 1997 Labor-HHS appropriations bill that the House will vote on this week, just the same old song from last year. This was a week ago, cutting back on programs important to educating our Nation's children when we need to be moving forward to meet their growing educational needs. Only this time it is a little better disguised than the cuts were in the previous budget.

While Republicans claim to have moderated their course, the performance of the GOP Congress on education in 1996 is consistent with the extreme cuts in education that they voted on in 1995. Indeed, many of the education programs the GOP is proposing to cut, freeze, or eliminate this year are the same priority education programs that they tried to last year.

Indeed, the record of the GOP Congress shows that rather than working to expand the access to a college education and to maintain Federal support for local schools, the GOP Congress continues to move in exactly the opposite direction. They have flunked in every aspect of meeting America's educational needs. While Republicans claim to freeze spending on education in the fiscal year 1997 budget resolution, the reality is that they do not understand the fundamentals of math. The fiscal year 1997 GOP budget resolution freezes spending on education and training programs below the fiscal 1996 level for the next 6 years and cuts spending on education by 21 percent in real terms by the year 2002. Such a large 21-percent cut in real terms will result in deep cuts in services to children and education.

Furthermore, the resolution provides no allowances for helping schools meet the challenge of projected enrollment increases of 12 percent over the next decade.

Republicans put families and children last. Republicans are against public education being used as a way to help people out of dependence on government at any level.

There is a rumor that there is going to be a new initiative taken by the Republicans on education, that the Republican candidate for President is going to announce his new initiative next week or this weekend. I hope so. I hope that the Republicans will take the initiative on education and the attack on education, because we used to have far more bipartisan cooperation on education.

There were differences in many areas but when it came to education, we sort of came together and understood that probably more important than any other function of our Government's local, State, and Federal governments is the function of education. Education has become even more important now that the world has changed and the competition in the world does not revolve around military strength and military hardware, military preparedness.

Competition in the world revolves around the quality of education the population has, which enables that population to compete and be productive, which enables that population to understand the complexities of world trade and the complexities of modern life so that people themselves do not become a burden on their society because they are overwhelmed by the complexities.

The only answer to that being overwhelmed by the complexities of modern life and the only avenue and instrument for being able to make yourself productive for yourself and make yourself productive so you can make a contribution to the society is education.

Education was always the answer. Among the newly freed slaves, it was clearly understood in the African-American community that education was the answer. From the very beginning slaves understood that if the slavemasters had passed legislation that it was bad to teach them to read, prohibited the teaching of reading to the slaves, then it must be indeed a powerful weapon, this reading must be a powerful thing. Education must be a powerful thing.

So it was understood by all that they wanted to have a piece of this education process, and it has been of value in the African-American community since then. The African-American community believes strongly that education is important. The problem is that there is a lot of confusion about how you guarantee that their children get an education. There are a lot of battles that have to be fought with the bureaucracy, especially in our big cities like New York, to guarantee that children are given an education which is going to be relevant to guarantee that children are given course work which makes them feel that their education is relevant.

To guarantee that children are given some kind of course work and built into the curricula are items which will motivate those children, build up their self-esteem and make them feel that they are important and feel that they have some hope and feel that education is going to be important so that they themselves will contribute more than half of what is needed in that education process, regardless of what teachers do or what kind of equipment you have or what kind of schools you have. If the children are motivated, they will overcome, they will move forward.

The big problem is that we do not have an education curriculum in most of our big cities that motivates children to begin with. Just as important as the motivation, of course, is the need for concrete opportunities to learn by providing a decent building, conducive to learning. The lighting in the school classroom has to be proper. The atmosphere in the school has to be safe. The water has to be free of lead and not poison the children.

The ceilings have to be free of asbestos. We have a situation now where schools across the country are in serious trouble. Half the schools across the country have some kind of health hazard. The health of young people who attend these schools is jeopardized by the fact that an asbestos problem or lead in the water problem or a problem with the way the lighting is and the ventilation.

The President recently announced an initiative, again, I hope the Republicans will join this initiative, an initiative to begin to offer some Federal help on school construction. It is long overdue. Half the school buildings in America need help, not just with repairs; a lot of them need to be torn down and rebuilt.

The President before that announced an initiative in the State of the Union Message. In the State of the Union Message the President talked about wiring all the schools in America by the year 2000. He first talked about by the end of the year 20 percent of schools in California were going to be wired and they are using volunteers to accomplish a lot of this in the wiring process. I think that that objective and that estimated goal of the President with respect to California has proven true. They have gone on and done that. Twenty percent of the schools are wired.

But the big problem of wiring all the schools in America so that they can receive the kind of help that you get with the Internet going into the classrooms, the classrooms being able to have the latest educational technology, all of that is still to come. And we see on the horizon in many of the inner-city schools, like the schools in my district, no hope that that is going to happen unless you have more help from the Federal Government.

Yes, volunteers may help to some extent, but I am not sure that in the context of a big city you are going to get enough of that to have any significance whatsoever in overcoming the problems faced by our schools that do not have proper wiring to be able to install the computers and be able to have the Internet and the educational technology that is needed to keep pace and guarantee that our children will get the benefits of the best and the latest in education.

All of these things can happen only if you have some help with the construction and the physical environment that our schools exist in, so the President's initiative is welcome. I hope the Republicans will join the initiative.

I do not think it is enough because it is talking about Federal Government picking up the interests on part of the cost of construction of schools. I think we need a grant program to jump-start our schools across the country and rebuild the infrastructure by giving maximum help instead of the minimum.

But at least this is a start. The construction program offered by, proposed by, President Clinton begins the process, and I hope the Republicans will join us.

Today we had our first planning meeting for National Education Funding Support Day. We joined last year in conjunction with the National Commission for the Education of African American Children. We had a National Education Funding Support Day last November. Today we launched the first planning meeting, and the effort will go forward this year.

The date for the National Education Funding Support Day is October 23. October 23 has been chosen because we want to have a whole month of activity, and October 23, National Education Funding Support Day, will kick it off. Citizens will be encouraged to go right through to National Education Week, which takes place in the middle of November. You have a month of activity designed to raise the level of awareness of the average American, the person out there on the street who is not a part of the education family.

Yes, last year we had participation by the teachers, we had participation by the teachers' unions, we had participation by the companies that do business with schools. People who are in the education family responded to our initial effort in National Education Funding Support Day, and this year we want to go beyond that. We want to make certain that the churches are involved. We want to make certain that the fraternities and sororities and religious organizations of various kinds are involved. Civic organizations.

The need is to communicate again to our decision makers the way you have just communicated on the minimum wage bill. The public understood the vital necessity of increasing the minimum wage. The public understood that the man on the street, the women on the street, everybody understood that if you got a paycheck and you are getting $4.25 an hour and a proposal is made to raise that to $5.15 an hour, that makes sense. So the public supported raising the minimum wage.

We want the public to understand that education needs Federal help, education needs more resources, and regardless of what you hear, money comes first, resources come first. There are a lot of problems that have to be solved in education reform. There are a lot of problems, and they will be there for a long time, and we have to work at them, but before you can get those problems resolved, you are going to have to have resources, you need money.

The favorite statement of people who want to oppose funding social programs or funding nondefense programs is you cannot solve the problem by throwing money at the problem. They throw money at the Department of Defense all the time. They constantly throw money at the Department of Defense because they know you cannot solve a problem in the military unless you do have money. They make a lot of errors, and a lot of gross boondoggles take place there, a lot of errors that have cost people, cost the American people as much as $2 billion and $3 billion on weapon systems that never got developed. Even when they say they developed certain smart weapons like the ones used in the gulf war, later evaluations showed that the smart weapons which cost a great deal did not prove their value. I mean they did not perform at a level to justify their cost.

So they throw money at the Defense Department. And I do not like the phrase: throw money. But that is what they do in the case of defense.

In education they do not throw money; they never throw money at social programs, they never throw money at education. The amounts of money that any social program has received has always been compulsory in connection with the need, and in the case of education the Federal Government's participation at this point is less than 7 percent. You know, the total education bill, which is above $360 billion now annually, that bill is borne mostly by the States, that cost is borne mostly by the States and local governments. Local governments fund and support most of the expenses for public schools. State funding supports most expenses for public schools. For public higher education institutions, States are the primary funding sources.

So the Federal Government's participation is all too small already, 7 percent. At least it will be increased. At least it will be increased at every level. We need more money for day care, we need more money for elementary and secondary school, we need more money for higher education. It will never be the overwhelming part, the funds spent for education. You will always have local control, and local governments will always pay most of it or State governments will always pay most of it. But why can we not raise the Federal participation and funding for education from 7 percent over the next 4 years to 25 percent? Why cannot we go between now and the year 2000 up to 25 percent of the total cost of education? The States and localities will still be funded at 75 percent. If they have 75 percent of the funding power, they will have 75 percent of the control. The control will still remain with the States and local government. But we will be providing the kind of resources necessary to carry us into the 21st century on education.

So what I am saying is that the President's proposals, whether you are talking about wiring schools or providing new funds for construction, they are welcome, they are necessary, they are all too inadequate. We need more. And in order to have the public understand this, we need to have ways to communicate to the public the importance of common sense getting involved here. If common sense gets involved, if the average person out there begins to understand what the costs are for providing education at a level necessary to go into the 21st century, and they communicate that to the congressmen, they communicate that to the Senators, we will get some action.

So National Education Funding Support Day on October 23 is designed to get down to the street level and have people understand that you need to communicate to your government at every level, and certainly the Federal Government is key because the Federal Government, despite its small percentage of the funding for education, sets the tone. We need to set the tone so that the cuts that are taking place at the State level in education and the cuts that local governments are perpetrating on education, like New York City has had a 5-year string of cuts in education, New York State now has had dramatic cuts in education; they take their clue from the Federal Government. The Federal Government starts making cuts, then the importance of education seems to go down on the priority agenda of the Governors and of the mayors.

So we need to start first at the Federal level. So in order to get the Federal Government moving, they need to hear from the very bottom.

National Education Funding Day, then, is like the National Night Out Against Crime. We took our cue from the National Night Out Against Crime. Citizens put together a National Night Out Against Crime where on a single night, Tuesday night I think it is, in August, everybody across the country demonstrates that they care about what is going on in their neighborhoods in terms of crime and protection, and they want their police departments and their district attorneys and all the people who are professionally responsible for the criminal justice system to understand that they are upset. They want some new action. They want some new resources. They want to make certain that we do not continue the way we are.

That National Night Out Against Crime effort has been very successful. Communities all over the country do turn out. They show up.

So we want to capture that same spirit in a National Morning Out For Education. A National Morning Out For Education on October 23 means that whatever can be done, whatever activities that take place which send a message to your government, your city government or the State government, or send a message to the Federal Government, do it. If it means buying some gifts for the children in the school, they are publicizing that so that they have in schools like the ones in my district who do not have crayons, who do not have erasers, they have a problem with Xerox paper; they will get some gift which highlights the fact that they are not being supplied properly by the government. If it means that day care centers are brought to the attention of local merchants so that occasionally they will help the day care centers in some way, then let that be the way we do it. If it means the police department and the various law enforcement agencies are going to guarantee the safety of children going to school and they want to highlight their support for education, schools that way, let them do it. There can be a thousand ways to show your support for education and, in this process, send a message to both the Republicans and the Democrats that education is important.

And finally it makes sense in the context of everything I have said before. Education, minimum wage, all that has to play a role if you want to move people from welfare to sufficiency in a humane way.

OMISSION FROM THE RECORD

The following is a reprint of remarks in their entirety, both printed and omitted from the RECORD of Thursday, July 11, 1996, at page H7447:

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, to close for our side, I yield my remaining time to the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. STUDDS], my friend and colleague.

(Mr. STUDDS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STUDDS. Mr. Chairman, somebody may wonder why I or my colleague from Massachusetts, Mr. FRANK, have not taken greater personal umbrage at some of the remarks here. I was thinking a moment ago that there might even be grounds to request that someone's words be taken down because my relationship, that of the gentleman from Massachusetts and, I suspect, others in the House, was referred to, among other things, I believe, as perverse. Surely if we had used those terms in talking about anyone else around here, we would have been sat down in one heck of a hurry.

I am not taking this personally, because I happen to be able, I hope, to put this in some context. I would ask those, anyone listening to this debate this hour of the morning, to listen carefully to the quality and the tone of the words over here and the quality of the tone of the words over here. I would also ask people to wonder how in God's name could a question like this be divided along partisan lines. There is nothing inherently partisan that I know of about sexual orientation. I do not believe that there is some kind of a misdivision of this question between the aisles, and yet there is a strange imbalance here in the debate and the tone and quality of the debate.

I want to salute some of the folks who have spoken over here, the distinguished gentleman from Georgia. We have talked about this before. I marched, although he did not know it at the time, with him in 1963 in the city with Dr. King. I was about as far from Dr. King as I am from the gentleman from Georgia when he delivered that extraordinary speech.

Two years later I marched, although the gentleman did not know it, behind him from Selma to Montgomery. A few years after that, when it was the first march for gay and lesbian rights in Washington in 1979, I was a Member of Congress too damn frightened to march for my own civil rights. Actually, I changed my jogging path so that I could come within view of the march. I thought that was very brave of me at the time.

But what I know is, because I had heard people like the gentleman from Georgia and because I am of the generation, and there were many, who were inspired by Dr. King is that this is, as someone has said, the last unfinished chapter in the history of civil rights in this country, and I know how it is going to come out. I do not know if I am going to live to see the ending, but I know what the ending is going to be. There is, as the gentleman said before me change, there has always been change.

As I observed earlier, the men who wrote the Constitution, to which we all swear our oath here, many of them owned slaves. Slavery was referred to specifically in the Constitution. People of color were property when this country was founded.

Women could not own property. There could not be marriage between the races. Many things change over time, Mr. Chairman, this, too, is going to change.

I would like to pay tribute, special personal tribute to the gentleman from Georgia [Mr. LEWIS], to Dr. King, to all those of both parties and no parties. There was nothing partisan about that movement; there is and ought never to be anything partisan about this, the final chapter in the history of the civil rights of this country.

I wish I could remember, I used to know the entirety of that "I Have a Dream" speech, but we will rise up and live out the full meaning of our Creator. It may not be this year and it certainly will not be this Congress, but it will happen. As I said earlier, we can embrace that change and welcome it, or we can resist it, but there is nothing on God's Earth that we can do to stop it.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STUDDS. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I thank my friend for yielding to me.

We are in a great debate. I would hope that people reading the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, watching this debate, would compare the tone, the sensitivity, and the reaching out of my friend's words, and then read the earlier words of the gentleman from Oklahoma, the words which were denunciatory and denigratory of the gentleman from Massachusetts and myself, and I would hope that people would compare the spirit of the approach, compare the attitude toward others, compare the way in which things are debated.

I would say, as someone who has been included in this denunciatory rhetoric, that I would be very satisfied to have people in forming their judgment listen to the words uttered by the gentleman from Oklahoma, and listen to the words of my friend, the gentleman from Massachusetts. I think we are helping people form a basis.

This notion that a loving relationship between two people of the same sex threatens relationships between two people of the opposite sex, that is what denigrates heterosexual marriage. The argument that we have denigrated marriage or the institution of marriage or any other formulation says that two people loving each other somehow threatens heterosexual marriage. That is what denigrates heterosexual marriage. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

OMISSION FROM THE RECORD

SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT AMENDMENTS OF 1995

[The following is a reprint of the RECORD of July 17, 1996, at page H7740, at which time the text of H.R. 3604 was not printed.]

MOTION OFFERED BY MR. BLILEY

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a motion.

The Clerk read as follows:

Mr. BLILEY moves to strike all after the enacting clause of S. 1316 and insert in lieu thereof the text of H.R. 3604 as passed by the House, as follows:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996".

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—

Sec. 1. Short title and table of contents.
Sec. 2. References; effective date; disclaimer.

TITLE I—PUBLIC WATER SYSTEMS

Subtitle A—Promulgation of National Primary Drinking Water Regulations

Sec. 101. Selection of additional contaminants.
Sec. 102. Disinfectants and disinfection by-products.
Sec. 103. Limited alternative to filtration.
Sec. 104. Standard-setting.
Sec. 105. Ground water disinfection.
Sec. 106. Effective date for regulations.
Sec. 107. Risk assessment, management, and communication.
Sec. 108. Radon, arsenic, and sulfate.
Sec. 109. Urgent threats to public health.
Sec. 110. Recycling of filter backwash.
Sec. 111. Treatment technologies for small systems.

Subtitle B—State Primary Enforcement Responsibility for Public Water Systems

Sec. 121. State primacy.

Subtitle C—Notification and Enforcement

Sec. 131. Public notification.
Sec. 132. Enforcement.
Sec. 133. Judicial review

Subtitle D—Exemptions and Variances

Sec. 141. Exemptions.
Sec. 142. Variances.

Subtitle E—Lead Plumbing and Pipes

Sec. 151. Lead plumbing and pipes.

Subtitle F—Capacity Development

Sec. 161. Capacity development.

TITLE II—AMENDMENTS TO PART C

Sec. 201. Source water quality assessment.
Sec. 202. Federal facilities.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS
REGARDING SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT

- Sec. 301. Operator certification.
Sec. 302. Technical assistance.
Sec. 303. Public water system supervision program.
Sec. 304. Monitoring and information gathering.
Sec. 305. Occurrence data base.
Sec. 306. Citizens suits.
Sec. 307. Whistle blower.
Sec. 308. State revolving funds.
Sec. 309. Water conservation plan.

TITLE IV—MISCELLANEOUS

- Sec. 401. Definitions.
Sec. 402. Authorization of appropriations.
Sec. 403. New York City watershed protection program.
Sec. 404. Estrogenic substances screening program.
Sec. 405. Reports on programs administered directly by Environmental Protection Agency.
Sec. 406. Return flows.
Sec. 407. Emergency powers.
Sec. 408. Waterborne disease occurrence study.
Sec. 409. Drinking water studies.
Sec. 410. Bottled drinking water standards.
Sec. 411. Clerical amendments.

TITLE V—ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE FOR WATER INFRASTRUCTURE AND WATERSHEDS

- Sec. 501. General program.
Sec. 502. New York City Watershed, New York.
Sec. 503. Rural and Native villages, Alaska.
Sec. 504. Acquisition of lands.
Sec. 505. Federal share.
Sec. 506. Condition on authorizations of appropriations.
Sec. 507. Definitions.

TITLE VI—DRINKING WATER RESEARCH AUTHORIZATION

- Sec. 601. Drinking water research authorization.
Sec. 602. Scientific research review.

SEC. 2. REFERENCES; EFFECTIVE DATE; DISCLAIMER.

(a) REFERENCES TO SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT.—Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to that section or other provision of title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (commonly known as the Safe Drinking Water Act, 42 U.S.C. 300f et seq.).

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Except as otherwise specified in this Act or in the amendments made by this Act, this Act and the amendments made by this Act shall take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) DISCLAIMER.—Nothing in this Act or in any amendments made by this Act to title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (commonly known as the Safe Drinking Water Act) or any other law shall be construed by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency or the courts as affecting, modifying, expanding, changing, or altering—

(1) the provisions of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act;

(2) the duties and responsibilities of the Administrator under that Act; or

(3) the regulation or control of point or nonpoint sources of pollution discharged into waters covered by that Act.

The Administrator shall identify in the agency's annual budget all funding and full-time equivalents administering such title XIV separately from funding and staffing for the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

TITLE I—PUBLIC WATER SYSTEMS

Subtitle A—Promulgation of National Primary Drinking Water Regulations

SEC. 101. SELECTION OF ADDITIONAL CONTAMINANTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1412(b)(3) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)(3)) is amended to read as follows:

“(3) REGULATION OF UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—

“(A) LISTING OF CONTAMINANTS FOR CONSIDERATION.—(i) Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 and every 5 years thereafter, the Administrator, after consultation with the scientific community, including the Science Advisory Board, after notice and opportunity for public comment, and after considering the occurrence data base established under section 1445(g), shall publish a list of contaminants which, at the time of publication, are not subject to any proposed or promulgated national primary drinking water regulation, which are known or anticipated to occur in public water systems, and which may require regulation under this title.

“(ii) The unregulated contaminants considered under clause (i) shall include, but not be limited to, substances referred to in section 101(14) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, and substances registered as pesticides under the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act.

“(iii) The Administrator's decision whether or not to select an unregulated contaminant for a list under this subparagraph shall not be subject to judicial review.

“(B) DETERMINATION TO REGULATE.—(i) Not later than 5 years after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, and every 5 years thereafter, the Administrator shall, by rule, for not fewer than 5 contaminants included on the list published under subparagraph (A), make determinations of whether or not to regulate such contaminants.

“(ii) A determination to regulate a contaminant shall be based on findings that—

“(I) the contaminant is known to occur or there is a substantial likelihood that the contaminant will occur in public water systems with a frequency and at a level of public health concern; and “(II) regulation of such contaminant presents a meaningful opportunity for public health risk reduction for persons served by public water systems.

Such findings shall be based on the best available public health information, including the occurrence data base established under section 1445(g).

“(iii) The Administrator may make a determination to regulate a contaminant that does not appear on a list under subparagraph (A) if the determination to regulate is made pursuant to clause (ii).

“(iv) A determination under this subparagraph not to regulate a contaminant shall be considered final agency action and subject to judicial review.

“(C) PRIORITIES.—In selecting unregulated contaminants for consideration under subparagraph (B), the Administrator shall select contaminants that present the greatest public health concern. The Administrator, in making such selection, shall take into consideration, among other factors of public health concern, the effect of such contaminants upon subgroups that comprise a meaningful portion of the general population (such as infants, children, pregnant women, the elderly, individuals with a history of serious illness, or other subpopulations) that are identifiable as being at greater risk of adverse health effects due to exposure to contaminants in drinking water than the general population.

“(D) REGULATION.—For each contaminant that the Administrator determines to regulate under subparagraph (B), the Administrator shall promulgate, by rule, maximum contaminant level goals and national primary drinking water regulations under this subsection. The Administrator shall propose the maximum contaminant level goal and national primary drinking water regulation not later than 24 months after the determination to regulate under subparagraph (B), and may publish such proposed regulation concurrent with the determination to regulate. The Administrator shall promulgate a maximum contaminant level goal and national primary drinking water regulation within 18 months after the proposal thereof. The Administrator, by notice in the Federal Register, may extend the deadline for such promulgation for up to 9 months.

“(E) HEALTH ADVISORIES AND OTHER ACTIONS.—The Administrator may publish health advisories (which are not regulations) or take other appropriate actions for contaminants not subject to any national primary drinking water regulation.”.

(b) APPLICABILITY OF PRIOR REQUIREMENTS.—The requirements of subparagraphs (C) and (D) of section 1412(b)(3) of title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (commonly known as the Safe Drinking Water Act) as in effect before the enactment of this Act, and any obligation to promulgate regulations pursuant to such subparagraphs not promulgated as of the date of enactment of this Act, are superseded by the amendments made by subsection (a) to such subparagraphs (C) and (D).

SEC. 102. DISINFECTANTS AND DISINFECTION BY-PRODUCTS.

Section 1412(b)(3) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following subparagraph:

“(F) DISINFECTANTS AND DISINFECTION BY-PRODUCTS.—

“(i) INFORMATION COLLECTION RULE.—Not later than December 31, 1996, the Administrator shall, after notice and opportunity for public comment, promulgate an information collection rule to obtain information that will facilitate further revisions to the national primary drinking water regulation for disinfectants and disinfection byproducts, including information on microbial contaminants such as cryptosporidium. The Administrator may extend the December 31, 1996, deadline under this clause for up to 180 days if the Administrator determines that progress toward approval of an appropriate analytical method to screen for cryptosporidium is sufficiently advanced and approval is likely to be completed within the additional time period.

“(ii) ADDITIONAL DEADLINES.—The time intervals between promulgation of a final information collection rule, an Interim Enhanced Surface Water Treatment Rule, a Final Enhanced Surface Water Treatment Rule, a Stage I Disinfectants and Disinfection Byproducts Rule, and a Stage II Disinfectants and Disinfection Byproducts Rule shall be in accordance with the schedule published in volume 59, Federal Register, page 6361 (February 10, 1994), in table III.13 of the proposed Information Collection Rule. If a delay occurs with respect to the promulgation of any rule in the timetable established by this subparagraph, all subsequent rules shall be completed as expeditiously as practicable but no later than a revised date that reflects the interval or intervals for the rules in the timetable.”.

SEC. 103. LIMITED ALTERNATIVE TO FILTRATION.

Section 1412(b)(7)(C) is amended by adding the following after clause (iv):

“(v) As an additional alternative to the regulations promulgated pursuant to clauses (i) and (iii), including the criteria for avoiding filtration contained in CFR 141.71, a State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems may, on a case-by-case basis, and after notice and opportunity for public comment, establish treatment requirements as an alternative to filtration in the case of systems having uninhabited, undeveloped watersheds in consolidated ownership, and having control over access to, and activities in, those watersheds, if the State determines (and the Administrator concurs) that the quality of the source water and the alternative treatment requirements established by the State ensure greater removal or inactivation efficiencies of pathogenic organisms for which national primary drinking water regulations have been promulgated or that are of public health concern than would be achieved by the combination of filtration and chlorine disinfection (in compliance with paragraph (8)).”

SEC. 104. STANDARD-SETTING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1412(b) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)) is amended as follows:

(1) In paragraph (4)—
 (A) by striking “(4) Each” and inserting the following:

“(4) GOALS AND STANDARDS.—

“(A) MAXIMUM CONTAMINANT LEVEL GOALS.—Each”;

(B) in the last sentence—

(i) by striking “Each national” and inserting the following:

“(B) MAXIMUM CONTAMINANT LEVELS.— Except as provided in paragraphs (5) and (6), each national”; and

(ii) by striking “maximum level” and inserting “maximum contaminant level”; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(C) DETERMINATION.—At the time the Administrator proposes a national primary drinking water regulation under this paragraph, the Administrator shall publish a determination as to whether the benefits of the maximum contaminant level justify, or do not justify, the costs based on the analysis conducted under paragraph (12)(C).”

(2) By striking “(5) For the” and inserting the following:

“(D) DEFINITION OF FEASIBLE.—For the”.

(3) In the second sentence of paragraph (4)(D) (as so designated), by striking “paragraph (4)” and inserting “this paragraph”.

(4) By striking “(6) Each national” and inserting the following:

“(E) FEASIBLE TECHNOLOGIES.—

“(i) Each national”.

(5) In paragraph (4)(E)(i) (as so designated), by striking “this paragraph” and inserting “this subsection”.

(6) By inserting after paragraph (4) (as so amended) the following:

“(5) ADDITIONAL HEALTH RISK CONSIDERATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (4), the Administrator may establish a maximum contaminant level for a contaminant at a level other than the feasible level, if the technology, treatment techniques, and other means used to determine the feasible level would result in an increase in the health risk from drinking water by—

“(i) increasing the concentration of other contaminants in drinking water; or “(ii) interfering with the efficacy of drinking water treatment techniques or processes that are used to comply with other national primary drinking water regulations.

“(B) ESTABLISHMENT OF LEVEL.—If the Administrator establishes a maximum contaminant level or levels or requires the use of treatment techniques for any contaminant or contaminants pursuant to the authority of this paragraph—

“(i) the level or levels or treatment techniques shall minimize the overall risk of adverse health effects by balancing the risk from the contaminant and the risk from other contaminants the concentrations of which may be affected by the use of a treatment technique or process that would be employed to attain the maximum contaminant level or levels; and

“(ii) the combination of technology, treatment techniques, or other means required to meet the level or levels shall not be more stringent than is feasible (as defined in paragraph (4)(D)).”

“(6) ADDITIONAL HEALTH RISK REDUCTION AND COST CONSIDERATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding paragraph (4), if the Administrator determines based on an analysis conducted under paragraph (12)(C) that the benefits of a maximum contaminant level promulgated in accordance with paragraph (4) would not justify the costs of complying with the level, the Administrator may, after notice and opportunity for public comment, promulgate a maximum contaminant level for the contaminant that maximizes health risk reduction benefits at a cost that is justified by the benefits.

“(B) EXCEPTION.—The Administrator shall not use the authority of this paragraph to promulgate a maximum contaminant level for a contaminant, if the benefits of compliance with a national primary drinking water regulation for the contaminant that would be promulgated in accordance with paragraph (4) experienced by—

“(i) persons served by large public water systems; and “(ii) persons served by such other systems as are unlikely, based on information provided by the States, to receive a variance under section 1415(e) (relating to small system assistance program); would justify the costs to the systems of complying with the regulation. This subparagraph shall not apply if the contaminant is found almost exclusively in small systems (as defined in section 1415(e), relating to small system assistance program).

“(C) DISINFECTANTS AND DISINFECTION BY-PRODUCTS.—The Administrator may not use the authority of this paragraph to establish a maximum contaminant level in a Stage I or Stage II national primary drinking water regulation for contaminants that are disinfectants or disinfection byproducts (as described in paragraph (3)(F)), or to establish a maximum contaminant level or treatment technique requirement for the control of cryptosporidium. The authority of this paragraph may be used to establish regulations for the use of disinfection by systems relying on ground water sources as required by paragraph (8).

“(D) JUDICIAL REVIEW.—A determination by the Administrator that the benefits of a maximum contaminant level or treatment requirement justify or do not justify the costs of complying with the level shall be reviewed by the court pursuant to section 1448 only as part of a review of a final national primary drinking water regulation that has been promulgated based on the determination and shall not be set aside by the court under that section unless the court finds that the determination is arbitrary and capricious.”

(b) DISINFECTANTS AND DISINFECTION BY-PRODUCTS.—The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency may use the authority of section 1412(b)(5) of the Public Health Service Act (as amended by this Act) to promulgate the Stage I and Stage II rules for disinfectants and disinfection byproducts as proposed in volume 59, Federal Register, page 38668 (July 29, 1994). The considerations used in the development of the July 29, 1994, proposed national primary drinking water regulation on Disinfection and Disinfection Byproducts shall be treated as consistent with such section 1412(b)(5) for purposes of such Stage I and Stage II rules.

(c) REVIEW OF STANDARDS.—Section 1412(b)(9) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)) is amended to read as follows:

“(9) REVIEW AND REVISION.—The Administrator shall, not less often than every 6 years, review and revise, as appropriate, each national primary drinking water regulation promulgated under this title. Any revision of a national primary drinking water regulation shall be promulgated in accordance with this section, except that each revision shall maintain, or provide for greater, protection of the health of persons.”

SEC. 105. GROUND WATER DISINFECTION.

Section 1412(b)(8) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)(8)) is amended by striking the first sentence and inserting the following: “At any time after the end of the 3-year period that begins on the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, but not later than the date on which the Administrator promulgates a Stage II rulemaking for disinfectants and disinfection byproducts (as described in paragraph (3)(F)(ii)), the Administrator shall also promulgate national primary drinking water regulations requiring disinfection as a treatment technique for all public water systems, including surface water systems and, as necessary, ground water systems. After consultation with the States, the Administrator shall (as part of the regulations) promulgate criteria that the Administrator, or a State that has primary enforcement responsibility under section 1413, shall apply to determine whether disinfection shall be required as a treatment technique for any public water system served by ground water. A State that has primary enforcement authority shall develop a plan through which ground water disinfection determinations are made. The plan shall be based on the Administrator’s criteria and shall be submitted to the Administrator for approval.”

SEC. 106. EFFECTIVE DATE FOR REGULATIONS.

Section 1412(b)(10) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)(10)) is amended to read as follows:

“(10) EFFECTIVE DATE.—A national primary drinking water regulation promulgated under this section (and any amendment thereto) shall take effect on the date that is 3 years after the date on which the regulation is promulgated unless the Administrator determines that an earlier date is practicable, except that the Administrator, or a State (in the case of an individual system), may allow up to 2 additional years to comply with a maximum contaminant level or treatment technique if the Administrator or State (in the case of an individual system) determines that additional time is necessary for capital improvements.”

SEC. 107. RISK ASSESSMENT, MANAGEMENT, AND COMMUNICATION.

Section 1412(b) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)) is amended by inserting after paragraph (11) the following:

“(12) RISK ASSESSMENT, MANAGEMENT AND COMMUNICATION.—

“(A) USE OF SCIENCE IN DECISIONMAKING.—In carrying out this section, and, to the degree that an Agency action is based on science, the Administrator shall use—

“(i) the best available, peer-reviewed science and supporting studies conducted in accordance with sound and objective scientific practices; and

“(ii) data collected by accepted methods or best available methods (if the reliability of the method and the nature of the decision justifies use of the data).

“(B) PUBLIC INFORMATION.—In carrying out this section, the Administrator shall ensure that the presentation of information on public health effects is comprehensive, informative and understandable. The Administrator shall, in a document made available to the public in support of a regulation promulgated under this section, specify, to the extent practicable—

“(i) each population addressed by any estimate of public health effects;

“(ii) the expected risk or central estimate of risk for the specific populations;

“(iii) each appropriate upper-bound or lower-bound estimate of risk;

“(iv) each significant uncertainty identified in the process of the assessment of public health effects and studies that would assist in resolving the uncertainty; and “(v) peer-reviewed studies known to the Administrator that support, are directly relevant to, or fail to support any estimate of public health effects and the methodology used to reconcile inconsistencies in the scientific data.

“(C) HEALTH RISK REDUCTION AND COST ANALYSIS.—

“(i) MAXIMUM CONTAMINANT LEVELS.—When proposing any national primary drinking water regulation that includes a maximum contaminant level, the Administrator shall, with respect to a maximum contaminant level that is being considered in accordance with paragraph (4) and each alternative maximum contaminant level that is being considered pursuant to paragraph (5) or (6)(A), publish, seek public comment on, and use for the purposes of paragraphs (4), (5), and (6) an analysis of:

“(I) Quantifiable and nonquantifiable health risk reduction benefits for which there is a factual basis in the rulemaking record to conclude that such benefits are likely to occur as the result of treatment to comply with each level.

“(II) Quantifiable and nonquantifiable health risk reduction benefits for which there is a factual basis in the rulemaking record to conclude that such benefits are likely to occur from reductions in co-occurring contaminants that may be attributed solely to compliance with the maximum contaminant level, excluding benefits resulting from compliance with other proposed or promulgated regulations.

“(III) Quantifiable and nonquantifiable costs for which there is a factual basis in the rulemaking record to conclude that such costs are likely to occur solely as a result of compliance with the maximum contaminant level, including monitoring, treatment, and other costs and excluding costs resulting from compliance with other proposed or promulgated regulations.

“(IV) The incremental costs and benefits associated with each alternative maximum contaminant level considered.

“(V) The effects of the contaminant on the general population and on groups within the general population such as infants, children, pregnant women, the elderly, individuals with a history of serious illness, or other subpopulations that are identified as likely to be at greater risk of adverse health effects due to exposure to contaminants in drinking water than the general population.

“(VI) Any increased health risk that may occur as the result of compliance, including risks associated with co-occurring contaminants.

“(VII) Other relevant factors, including the quality and extent of the information, the uncertainties in the analysis supporting subclauses (I) through (VI), and factors with respect to the degree and nature of the risk.

“(ii) TREATMENT TECHNIQUES.—When proposing a national primary drinking water regulation that includes a treatment technique in accordance with paragraph (7)(A), the Administrator shall publish and seek public comment on an analysis of the health risk reduction benefits and costs likely to be experienced as the result of compliance with the treatment technique and alternative treatment techniques that are being considered, taking into account, as appropriate, the factors described in clause (i).

“(iii) APPROACHES TO MEASURE AND VALUE BENEFITS.—The Administrator may identify valid approaches for the measurement and valuation of benefits under this subparagraph, including approaches to identify consumer willingness to pay for reductions in health risks from drinking water contaminants.

“(iv) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Administrator, acting through the Office of Ground Water and Drinking Water, to conduct studies, assessments, and analyses in support of regulations or the development of methods, $35,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2003.”.

SEC. 108. RADON, ARSENIC, AND SULFATE.

Section 1412(b) is amended by inserting after paragraph (12) the following:

“(13) CERTAIN CONTAMINANTS.—

“(A) RADON.—Any proposal published by the Administrator before the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 to establish a national primary drinking water standard for radon shall be withdrawn by the Administrator. Notwithstanding any provision of any law enacted prior to the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, within 3 years of such date of enactment, the Administrator shall propose and promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for radon under this section, as amended by the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996. In undertaking any risk analysis and benefit cost analysis in connection with the promulgation of such standard, the Administrator shall take into account the costs and benefits of control programs for radon from other sources.

“(B) ARSENIC.—(i) Notwithstanding the deadlines set forth in paragraph (1), the Administrator shall promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for arsenic pursuant to this subsection, in accordance with the schedule established by this paragraph.

“(ii) Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this paragraph, the Administrator shall develop a comprehensive plan for study in support of drinking water rulemaking to reduce the uncertainty in assessing health risks associated with exposure to low levels of arsenic. In conducting such study, the Administrator shall consult with the National Academy of Sciences, other Federal agencies, and interested public and private entities.

“(iii) In carrying out the study plan, the Administrator may enter into cooperative agreements with other Federal agencies, State and local governments, and other interested public and private entities.

“(iv) The Administrator shall propose a national primary drinking water regulation for arsenic not later than January 1, 2000.

“(v) Not later than January 1, 2001, after notice and opportunity for public comment, the Administrator shall promulgate a national primary drinking water regulation for arsenic.

“(vi) There are authorized to be appropriated $2,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2001 for the studies required by this paragraph.

“(C) SULFATE.—

“(i) ADDITIONAL STUDY.—Prior to promulgating a national primary drinking water

regulation for sulfate, the Administrator and the Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention shall jointly conduct an additional study to establish a reliable dose-response relationship for the adverse human health effects that may result from exposure to sulfate in drinking water, including the health effects that may be experienced by groups within the general population (including infants and travelers) that are potentially at greater risk of adverse health effects as the result of such exposure. The study shall be conducted in consultation with interested States, shall be based on the best available, peer-reviewed science and supporting studies conducted in accordance with sound and objective scientific practices.

“(ii) PROPOSED AND FINAL RULE.—Notwithstanding the deadlines set forth in paragraph (1), the Administrator may, pursuant to the authorities of this subsection and after notice and opportunity for public comment, promulgate a final national primary drinking water regulation for sulfate. Any such regulation shall include requirements for public notification and options for the provision of alternative water supplies to populations at risk as a means of complying with the regulation in lieu of a best available treatment technology or other means.”.

SEC. 109. URGENT THREATS TO PUBLIC HEALTH.

Section 1412(b) is amended by inserting the following after paragraph (13):

“(14) URGENT THREATS TO PUBLIC HEALTH.—The Administrator may promulgate an interim national primary drinking water regulation for a contaminant without making a determination for the contaminant under paragraph (4)(C) or completing the analysis under paragraph (12)(C) to address an urgent threat to public health as determined by the Administrator after consultation with and written response to any comments provided by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, acting through the director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the director of the National Institutes of Health. A determination for any contaminant in accordance with paragraph (4)(C) subject to an interim regulation under this subparagraph shall be issued, and a completed analysis meeting the requirements of paragraph (12)(C) shall be published, not later than 3 years after the date on which the regulation is promulgated and the regulation shall be repromulgated, or revised if appropriate, not later than 5 years after that date.”.

SEC. 110. RECYCLING OF FILTER BACKWASH.

Section 1412(b) is amended by adding the following new paragraph after paragraph (14):

“(15) RECYCLING OF FILTER BACKWASH.—The Administrator shall promulgate a regulation to govern the recycling of filter backwash water within the treatment process of a public water system. The Administrator shall promulgate such regulation not later than 4 years after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 unless such recycling has been addressed by the Administrator’s ‘enhanced surface water treatment rule’ prior to such date.”.

SEC. 111. TREATMENT TECHNOLOGIES FOR SMALL SYSTEMS.

(a) LIST OF TECHNOLOGIES FOR SMALL SYSTEMS.—Section 1412(b)(4)(E) (42 U.S.C. 300g-1(b)(4)(E)), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(ii) The Administrator shall include in the list any technology, treatment technique, or other means that is affordable for small public water systems serving—

“(I) a population of 10,000 or fewer but more than 3,300;

“(II) a population of 3,300 or fewer but more than 500; and “(III) a population of 500 or fewer but more than 25;

and that achieves compliance with the maximum contaminant level or treatment technique, including packaged or modular systems and point-of-entry or point-of-use treatment units. Point-of-entry and point-of-use treatment units shall be owned, controlled and maintained by the public water system or by a person under contract with the public water system to ensure proper operation and maintenance and compliance with the maximum contaminant level or treatment technique and equipped with mechanical warnings to ensure that customers are automatically notified of operational problems. If the American National Standards Institute has issued product standards applicable to a specific type of point-of-entry or point-of-use treatment unit, individual units of that type shall not be accepted for compliance with a maximum contaminant level or treatment technique requirement unless they are independently certified in accordance with such standards.

“(iii) Except as provided in clause (v), not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this clause and after consultation with the States, the Administrator shall issue a list of technologies that achieve compliance with the maximum contaminant level or treatment technique for each category of public water systems described in subclauses (I), (II), and (III) of clause (ii) for each national primary drinking water regulation promulgated prior to the date of the enactment of this paragraph.

“(iv) The Administrator may, at any time after a national primary drinking water regulation has been promulgated, supplement the list of technologies describing additional or new or innovative treatment technologies that meet the requirements of this paragraph for categories of small public water systems described in subclauses (I), (II) and (III) of clause (ii) that are subject to the regulation.

“(v) Within one year after the enactment of this clause, the Administrator shall list technologies that meet the surface water treatment rules for each category of public water systems described in subclauses (I), (II), and (III) of clause (ii).”

(b) AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION ON SMALL SYSTEM TECHNOLOGIES.—Section 1445 (42 U.S.C. 300j-4) is amended by adding after subsection (g):

“(h) AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION ON SMALL SYSTEM TECHNOLOGIES.—For purposes of sections 1412(b)(4)(E) and 1415(e) (relating to small system assistance program), the Administrator may request information on the characteristics of commercially available treatment systems and technologies, including the effectiveness and performance of the systems and technologies under various operating conditions. The Administrator may specify the form, content, and submission date of information to be submitted by manufacturers, States, and other interested persons for the purpose of considering the systems and technologies in the development of regulations or guidance under sections 1412(b)(4)(E) and 1415(e).”

SEC. 121. STATE PRIMACY.

(a) STATE PRIMARY ENFORCEMENT RESPONSIBILITY.—Section 1413 (42 U.S.C. 300g-2) is amended as follows:

(1) In subsection (a), by amending paragraph (1) to read as follows:

“(1) has adopted drinking water regulations that are no less stringent than the national primary drinking water regulations promulgated by the Administrator under subsections (a) and (b) of section 1412 not later than 2 years after the date on which the regulations are promulgated by the Administrator, except that the Administrator may provide for an extension of not more than 2 years if, after submission and review of appropriate, adequate documentation from the State, the Administrator determines that the extension is necessary and justified.”

(2) By adding at the end the following subsection:

“(c) INTERIM PRIMARY ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY.—A State that has primary enforcement authority under this section with respect to each existing national primary drinking water regulation shall be considered to have primary enforcement authority with respect to each new or revised national primary drinking water regulation during the period beginning on the effective date of a regulation adopted and submitted by the State with respect to the new or revised national primary drinking water regulation in accordance with subsection (b)(1) and ending at such time as the Administrator makes a determination under subsection (b)(2)(B) with respect to the regulation.”

(b) EMERGENCY PLANS.—Section 1413(a)(5) is amended by inserting after “emergency circumstances” the following: “including earthquakes, floods, hurricanes, and other natural disasters, as appropriate”.

Subtitle C—Notification and Enforcement

SEC. 131. PUBLIC NOTIFICATION.

Section 1414(c) (42 U.S.C. 300g-3(c)) is amended to read as follows:

“(c) NOTICE TO PERSONS SERVED.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each owner or operator of a public water system shall give notice of each of the following to the persons served by the system:

“(A) Notice of any failure on the part of the public water system to—

“(i) comply with an applicable maximum contaminant level or treatment technique requirement of, or a testing procedure prescribed by, a national primary drinking water regulation; or “(ii) perform monitoring required by section 1445(a).

“(B) If the public water system is subject to a variance granted under subsection (a)(1)(A), (a)(2), or (e) of section 1415 for an inability to meet a maximum contaminant level requirement or is subject to an exemption granted under section 1416, notice of—

“(i) the existence of the variance or exemption; and “(ii) any failure to comply with the requirements of any schedule prescribed pursuant to the variance or exemption.

“(C) Notice of the concentration level of any unregulated contaminant for which the Administrator has required public notice pursuant to paragraph (2)(E).

“(2) FORM, MANNER, AND FREQUENCY OF NOTICE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall, by regulation, and after consultation with the States, prescribe the manner, frequency, form, and content for giving notice under this subsection. The regulations shall—

“(i) provide for different frequencies of notice based on the differences between violations that are intermittent or infrequent and violations that are continuous or frequent; and “(ii) take into account the seriousness of any potential adverse health effects that may be involved.

“(B) STATE REQUIREMENTS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—A State may, by rule, establish alternative notification requirements—

“(1) with respect to the form and content of notice given under and in a manner in accordance with subparagraph (C); and “(II) with respect to the form and content of notice given under subparagraph (D).

“(ii) CONTENTS.—The alternative requirements shall provide the same type and amount of information as required pursuant to this subsection and regulations issued under subparagraph (A).

“(iii) RELATIONSHIP TO SECTION 1413.—Nothing in this subparagraph shall be construed or applied to modify the requirements of section 1413.

“(C) VIOLATIONS WITH POTENTIAL TO HAVE SERIOUS ADVERSE EFFECTS ON HUMAN HEALTH.—Regulations issued under subparagraph (A) shall specify notification procedures for each violation by a public water system that has the potential to have serious adverse effects on human health as a result of short-term exposure. Each notice of violation provided under this subparagraph shall—

“(i) be distributed as soon as practicable after the occurrence of the violation, but not later than 24 hours after the occurrence of the violation;

“(ii) provide a clear and readily understandable explanation of—

“(I) the violation;

“(II) the potential adverse effects on human health;

“(III) the steps that the public water system is taking to correct the violation; and “(IV) the necessity of seeking alternative water supplies until the violation is corrected;

“(iii) be provided to the Administrator or the head of the State agency that has primary enforcement responsibility under section 1413 as soon as practicable, but not later than 24 hours after the occurrence of the violation; and

“(iv) as required by the State agency in general regulations of the State agency, or on a case-by-case basis after the consultation referred to in clause (iii), considering the health risks involved—

“(I) be provided to appropriate broadcast media;

“(II) be prominently published in a newspaper of general circulation serving the area not later than 1 day after distribution of a notice pursuant to clause (i) or the date of publication of the next issue of the newspaper; or “(III) be provided by posting or door-to-door notification in lieu of notification by means of broadcast media or newspaper.

“(D) WRITTEN NOTICE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Regulations issued under subparagraph (A) shall specify notification procedures for violations other than the violations covered by subparagraph (C). The procedures shall specify that a public water system shall provide written notice to each person served by the system by notice (1) in the first bill (if any) prepared after the date of occurrence of the violation, (II) in an annual report issued not later than 1 year after the date of occurrence of the violation, or (III) by mail or direct delivery as soon as practicable, but not later than 1 year after the date of occurrence of the violation.

“(ii) FORM AND MANNER OF NOTICE.—The Administrator shall prescribe the form and manner of the notice to provide a clear and readily understandable explanation of the violation, any potential adverse health effects, and the steps that the system is taking to seek alternative water supplies, if any, until the violation is corrected.

“(E) UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—The Administrator may require the owner or operator of a public water system to give notice to the persons served by the system of the concentration levels of an unregulated contaminant required to be monitored under section 1445(a).

“(A) ANNUAL REPORT BY STATE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than January 1, 1998, and annually thereafter, each State that has primary enforcement responsibility under section 1413 shall prepare, make readily available to the public, and submit to the Administrator an annual report on violations of national primary drinking water regulations by public water systems in the State, including violations with respect to (I) maximum contaminant levels, (II) treatment requirements, (III) variances and exemptions, and (IV) monitoring requirements determined to be significant by the Administrator after consultation with the States.

“(ii) DISTRIBUTION.—The State shall publish and distribute summaries of the report and indicate where the full report is available for review.

“(B) ANNUAL REPORT BY ADMINISTRATOR.—Not later than July 1, 1998, and annually thereafter, the Administrator shall prepare and make available to the public an annual report summarizing and evaluating reports submitted by States pursuant to subparagraph (A) and notices submitted by public water systems serving Indian Tribes provided to the Administrator pursuant to subparagraph (C) or (D) of paragraph (2) and making recommendations concerning the resources needed to improve compliance with this title. The report shall include information about public water system compliance on Indian reservations and about enforcement activities undertaken and financial assistance provided by the Administrator on Indian reservations, and shall make specific recommendations concerning the resources needed to improve compliance with this title on Indian reservations.

“(D) CONSUMER CONFIDENCE REPORTS BY COMMUNITY WATER SYSTEMS.—

“(A) ANNUAL REPORTS TO CONSUMERS.—The Administrator, in consultation with public water systems, environmental groups, public interest groups, risk communication experts, and the States, and other interested parties, shall issue regulations within 24 months after the date of the enactment of this paragraph to require each community water system to mail to each customer of the system at least once annually a report on the level of contaminants in the drinking water purveyed by that system (hereinafter in this paragraph referred to as a ‘consumer confidence report’). Such regulations shall provide a brief and plainly worded definition of the terms ‘maximum contaminant level goal’ and ‘maximum contaminant level’ and brief statements in plain language regarding the health concerns that resulted in regulation of each regulated contaminant. The regulations shall also provide for an Environmental Protection Agency toll-free hot-line that consumers can call for more information and explanation.

“(B) CONTENTS OF REPORT.—The consumer confidence reports under this paragraph shall include, but not be limited to, each of the following:

“(i) Information on the source of the water purveyed.

“(ii) A brief and plainly worded definition of the terms ‘maximum contaminant level goal’ and ‘maximum contaminant level’, as provided in the regulations of the Administrator.

“(iii) If any regulated contaminant is detected in the water purveyed by the public water system, a statement setting forth (I) the maximum contaminant level goal, (II) the maximum contaminant level, (III) the level of such contaminant in such water system, and (IV) for any regulated contaminant for which there has been a violation of the maximum contaminant level during the year concerned, the brief statement in plain language regarding the health concerns that resulted in regulation of such contaminant, as provided by the Administrator in regulations under subparagraph (A).

“(iv) Information on compliance with national primary drinking water regulations.

“(v) Information on the levels of unregulated contaminants for which monitoring is required under section 1445(a)(2) (including levels of cryptosporidium and radon where States determine they may be found).

“(vi) A statement that more information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency hot line.

A public water system may include such additional information as it deems appropriate for public education. The Administrator may, for not more than 3 regulated contaminants other than those referred to in subclause (IV) of clause (iii), require a consumer confidence report under this paragraph to include the brief statement in plain language regarding the health concerns that resulted in regulation of the contaminant or contaminants concerned, as provided by the Administrator in regulations under subparagraph (A).

“(C) COVERAGE.—The Governor of a State may determine not to apply the mailing requirement of subparagraph (A) to a community water system serving fewer than 10,000 persons. Any such system shall—

“(i) inform its customers that the system will not be complying with subparagraph (A),

“(ii) make information available upon request to the public regarding the quality of the water supplied by such system, and

“(iii) publish the report referred to in subparagraph (A) annually in one or more local newspapers serving the area in which customers of the system are located.

“(D) ALTERNATIVE FORM AND CONTENT.—A State exercising primary enforcement responsibility may establish, by rule, after notice and public comment, alternative requirements with respect to the form and content of consumer confidence reports under this paragraph.”

SEC. 132. ENFORCEMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1414 (42 U.S.C. 300g-3) is amended as follows:

(1) In subsection (a):

(A) In paragraph (1)(A)(i), by striking “any national primary drinking water regulation in effect under section 1412” and inserting “any applicable requirement”, and by striking “with such regulation or requirement” in the matter following clause (ii) and inserting “with the requirement”.

(B) In paragraph (1)(B), by striking “regulation or” and inserting “applicable”.

(C) By amending paragraph (2) to read as follows:

“(2) ENFORCEMENT IN NONPRIMACY STATES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If, on the basis of information available to the Administrator, the Administrator finds, with respect to a period in which a State does not have primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems, that a public water system in the State—

“(i) for which a variance under section 1415 or an exemption under section 1416 is not in effect, does not comply with any applicable requirement; or

“(ii) for which a variance under section 1415 or an exemption under section 1416 is in effect, does not comply with any schedule or other requirement imposed pursuant to the variance or exemption;

the Administrator shall issue an order under subsection (g) requiring the public water system to comply with the requirement, or commence a civil action under subsection (b).

“(B) NOTICE.—If the Administrator takes any action pursuant to this paragraph, the Administrator shall notify an appropriate local elected official, if any, with jurisdiction over the public water system of the action prior to the time that the action is taken.”

(2) In subsection (b), in the first sentence, by striking “a national primary drinking water regulation” and inserting “any applicable requirement”.

(3) In subsection (g):

(A) In paragraph (1), by striking “regulation, schedule, or other” each place it appears and inserting “applicable”.

(B) In paragraph (2), by striking “effect until after notice and opportunity for public hearing and,” and inserting “effect,”, and by striking “proposed order” and inserting “order”, in the first sentence and in the second sentence, by striking “proposed to be”.

(C) In paragraph (3), by striking subparagraph (B) and inserting the following:

“(B) In a case in which a civil penalty sought by the Administrator under this paragraph does not exceed $5,000, the penalty shall be assessed by the Administrator after notice and opportunity for a public hearing (unless the person against whom the penalty is assessed requests a hearing on the record in accordance with section 554 of title 5, United States Code). In a case in which a civil penalty sought by the Administrator under this paragraph exceeds $5,000, but does not exceed $25,000, the penalty shall be assessed by the Administrator after notice and opportunity for a hearing on the record in accordance with section 554 of title 5, United States Code.”

(D) In paragraph (3)(C), by striking “paragraph exceeds $5,000” and inserting “subsection for a violation of an applicable requirement exceeds $25,000”.

(4) By adding at the end the following subsections:

“(h) RELIEF.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—An owner or operator of a public water system may submit to the State in which the system is located (if the State has primary enforcement responsibility under section 1413) or to the Administrator (if the State does not have primary enforcement responsibility) a plan (including specific measures and schedules) for—

“(A) the physical consolidation of the system with 1 or more other systems;

“(B) the consolidation of significant management and administrative functions of the system with 1 or more other systems; or

“(C) the transfer of ownership of the system that may reasonably be expected to improve drinking water quality.

“(2) CONSEQUENCES OF APPROVAL.—If the State or the Administrator approves a plan pursuant to paragraph (1), no enforcement action shall be taken pursuant to this part with respect to a specific violation identified in the approved plan prior to the date that is the earlier of the date on which consolidation is completed according to the plan or the date that is 2 years after the plan is approved.

“(1) a requirement of section 1412, 1414, 1415, 1416, 1417, 1441, or 1445;

“(2) a regulation promulgated pursuant to a section referred to in paragraph (1);

“(3) a schedule or requirement imposed pursuant to a section referred to in paragraph (1); and

“(4) a requirement of, or permit issued under, an applicable State program for which the Administrator has made a determination that the requirements of section 1413 have been satisfied, or an applicable State program approved pursuant to this part.”

(b) STATE AUTHORITY FOR ADMINISTRATIVE PENALTIES.—Section 1413(a) (42 U.S.C. 300g-2(a)) is amended as follows:

(1) In paragraph (4), by striking “and” at the end thereof.

(2) In paragraph (5), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; and”.

(3) By adding at the end the following:

“(6) has adopted authority for administrative penalties (unless the constitution of the State prohibits the adoption of the authority) in a maximum amount—

“(A) in the case of a system serving a population of more than 10,000, that is not less than $1,000 per day per violation; and

“(B) in the case of any other system, that is adequate to ensure compliance (as determined by the State); except that a State may establish a maximum limitation on the total amount of administrative penalties that may be imposed on a public water system per violation.”.

SEC. 133. JUDICIAL REVIEW

Section 1448(a) (42 U.S.C. 300j-7(a)) is amended as follows:

(1) In paragraph (2), in the first sentence, by inserting “final” after “any other”.

(2) In the matter after and below paragraph (2):

(A) By striking “or issuance of the order” and inserting “or any other final Agency action”.

(B) By adding at the end the following: “In any petition concerning the assessment of a civil penalty pursuant to section 1414(g)(3)(B), the petitioner shall simultaneously send a copy of the complaint by certified mail to the Administrator and the Attorney General. The court shall set aside and remand the penalty order if the court finds that there is not substantial evidence in the record to support the finding of a violation or that the assessment of the penalty by the Administrator constitutes an abuse of discretion.”.

SEC. 141. EXEMPTIONS.

(a) SYSTEMS SERVING FEWER THAN 3,300 PERSONS.—Section 1416 is amended by adding the following at the end thereof:

“(h) SMALL SYSTEMS.—(1) For public water systems serving fewer than 3,300 persons, the maximum exemption period shall be 4 years if the State is exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems and determines that—

“(A) the public water system cannot meet the maximum contaminant level or install Best Available Affordable Technology (‘BAAT’) due in either case to compelling economic circumstances (taking into consideration the availability of financial assistance under section 1452, relating to State Revolving Funds) or other compelling circumstances;

“(B) the public water system could not comply with the maximum contaminant level through the use of alternate water supplies;

“(C) the granting of the exemption will provide a drinking water supply that protects public health given the duration of exemption; and “(D) the State has met the requirements of paragraph (2).

“(2)(A) Before issuing an exemption under this section or an extension thereof for a small public water system described in paragraph (1), the State shall—

“(i) examine the public water system’s technical, financial, and managerial capability (taking into consideration any available financial assistance) to operate in and maintain compliance with this title, and

“(ii) determine if management or restructuring changes (or both) can reasonably be made that will result in compliance with this title or, if compliance cannot be achieved, improve the quality of the drinking water.

“(B) Management changes referred to in subparagraph (A) may include rate increases, accounting changes, the hiring of consultants, the appointment of a technician with expertise in operating such systems, contractual arrangements for a more efficient and capable system for joint operation, or other reasonable strategies to improve capacity.

“(C) Restructuring changes referred to in subparagraph (A) may include ownership change, physical consolidation with another system, or other measures to otherwise improve customer base and gain economies of scale.

“(D) If the State determines that management or restructuring changes referred to in subparagraph (A) can reasonably be made, it shall require such changes and a schedule therefore as a condition of the exemption. If the State determines to the contrary, the State may still grant the exemption. The decision of the State under this subparagraph shall not be subject to review by the Administrator, except as provided in subsection (d).

“(3) Paragraphs (1) and (3) of subsection (a) shall not apply to an exemption issued under this subsection. Subparagraph (B) of subsection (b)(2) shall not apply to an exemption issued under this subsection, but any exemption granted to such a system may be renewed for additional 4-year periods upon application of the public water system and after a determination that the criteria of paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection continue to be met.

“(4) No exemption may be issued under this section for microbiological contaminants.”.

(b) LIMITED ADDITIONAL COMPLIANCE PERIOD.—At the end of section 1416(h) insert:

“(5)(A) Notwithstanding this subsection, the State of New York, on a case-by-case basis and after notice and an opportunity of at least 60 days for public comment, may allow an additional period for compliance with the Surface Water Treatment Rule established pursuant to section 1412(b)(7)(C) in the case of unfiltered systems in Essex, Columbia, Greene, Dutchess, Rennselaer, Schoharie, Saratoga, Washington, and Warren Counties serving a population of less than 5,000, which meet appropriate disinfection requirements and have adequate watershed protections, so long as the State determines that the public health will be protected during the duration of the additional compliance period and the system agrees to implement appropriate control measures as determined by the State.

“(B) The additional compliance period referred to in subparagraph (A) shall expire on the earlier of the date 3 years after the date on which the Administrator identifies appropriate control technology for the Surface Water Treatment Rule for public water systems in the category that includes such systems pursuant to section 1412(b)(4)(E) or 5 years after the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996.”.

(c) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—(1) Section 1416(b)(1) is amended by striking “prescribed by a State pursuant to this subsection” and inserting “prescribed by a State pursuant to this subsection or subsection (h)”.

(2) Section 1416(c) is amended by striking “under subsection (a)” and inserting “under this section” and by inserting after “(a)(3)” in the second sentence “or the determination under subsection (h)(1)(C)”.

(3) Section 1416(d)(1) is amended by striking “3-year” and inserting “4-year” and by amending the first sentence to read as follows: “Not later than 4 years after the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the Administrator shall complete a comprehensive review of the exemptions granted (and schedules prescribed pursuant thereto) by the States during the 4-year period beginning on such date.”.

(4) Section 1416(b)(2)(C) is repealed.

(d) SYSTEMS SERVING MORE THAN 3,300 PERSONS.—Section 1416(b)(2)(A)(ii) is amended by striking “12 months” and inserting “4 years” and section 1416(b)(2)(B) is amended by striking “3 years after the date of the issuance of the exemption” and inserting “4 years after the expiration of the initial exemption”.

SEC. 142. VARIANCES.

(a) BAAT VARIANCE.—Section 1415 (42 U.S.C. 300g-4) is amended by adding the following at the end thereof:

“(e) SMALL SYSTEM ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—

“(1) BAAT VARIANCES.—In the case of public water systems serving 3,300 persons or fewer, a variance under this section shall be granted by a State which has primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems allowing the use of Best Available Affordable Technology in lieu of best technology or other means where—

“(A) no best technology or other means is listed under section 1412(b)(4)(E) for the applicable category of public water systems;

“(B) the Administrator has identified BAAT for that contaminant pursuant to paragraph (3); and “(C) the State finds that the conditions in paragraph (4) are met.

“(2) DEFINITION OF BAAT.—The term ‘Best Available Affordable Technology’ or ‘BAAT’ means the most effective technology or other means for the control of a drinking water contaminant or contaminants that is available and affordable to systems serving fewer than 3,300 persons.

“(3) IDENTIFICATION OF BAAT.—(A) As part of each national primary drinking water regulation proposed and promulgated after the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the Administrator shall identify BAAT in any case where no ‘best technology or other means’ is listed for a category of public water systems listed under section 1412(b)(4)(E). No such identified BAAT shall require a technology from a specific manufacturer or brand. BAAT need not be adequate to achieve the applicable maximum contaminant level or treatment technique, but shall bring the public water system as close to achievement of such maximum contaminant level as practical or as close to the level of health protection provided by such treatment technique as practical, as the case may be. Any technology or other means identified as BAAT must be determined by the Administrator to be protective of public health. Simultaneously with identification of BAAT, the Administrator shall list any assumptions underlying the public health determination referred to in the preceding sentence, where such assumptions concern the public water system to which the technology may be applied, or its source waters. The Administrator shall provide the assumptions used in determining affordability, taking into consideration the number of persons served by such systems. Such listing shall provide as much reliable information as practicable on performance, effectiveness, limitations, costs, and other relevant factors in support of such listing, including the applicability of BAAT to surface and underground waters or both.

“(B) To the greatest extent possible, within 36 months after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the Administrator shall identify BAAT for all national primary drinking water regulations promulgated prior to such date of enactment where no best technology or other means is listed for a category of public water systems under section 1412(b)(4)(E), and where compliance by such small systems is not practical. In identifying BAAT for such national primary drinking water regulations, the Administrator shall give priority to evaluation of atrazine, asbestos, selenium, pentachlorophenol, antimony, and nickel.

“(4) CONDITIONS FOR BAAT VARIANCE.—To grant a variance under this subsection, the State must determine that—

“(A) the public water system cannot install ‘best technology or other means’ because of the system’s small size;

“(B) the public water system could not comply with the maximum contaminant level through use of alternate water supplies or through management changes or restructuring;

“(C) the public water system has the capacity to operate and maintain BAAT; and

“(5) SCHEDULES.—Any variance granted by a State under this subsection shall establish a schedule for the installation and operation of BAAT within a period not to exceed 2 years after the issuance of the variance, except that the State may grant an extension of 1 additional year upon application by the system. The application shall include a showing of financial or technical need. Variances under this subsection shall be for a term not to exceed 5 years (including the period allowed for installation and operation of BAAT), but may be renewed for such additional 5-year periods by the State upon a finding that the criteria in paragraph (1) continue to be met.

“(6) REVIEW.—Any review by the Administrator under paragraphs (4) and (5) shall be pursuant to subsection (a)(1)(G)(i).

“(7) INELIGIBILITY FOR VARIANCES.—A variance shall not be available under this subsection for—

“(A) any maximum contaminant level or treatment technique for a contaminant with respect to which a national primary drinking water regulation was promulgated prior to January 1, 1986; or

“(B) a national primary drinking water regulation for a microbial contaminant (including a bacterium, virus, or other organism) or an indicator or treatment technique for a microbial contaminant.”.

(b) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING CHANGES.—Section 1415 (42 U.S.C. 300g-4) is amended as follows:

(1) By striking “best technology, treatment techniques, or other means” and “best available technology, treatment techniques or other means” each place such terms appear and inserting in lieu thereof “best technology or other means”.

(2) By striking the third sentence and by striking “Before a schedule prescribed by a State pursuant to this subparagraph may take effect” and all that follows down to the beginning of the last sentence in subsection (a)(1)(A).

(3) By amending the first sentence of subsection (a)(1)(C) to read as follows: “Before a variance is issued and a schedule is prescribed pursuant to this subsection or subsection (e) by a State, the State shall provide notice and an opportunity for a public hearing on the proposed variance and schedule.”.

(4) By inserting “under this section” before the period at the end of the third sentence of subsection (a)(1)(C).

(5) By striking “under subparagraph (A)” and inserting “under this section” in subsection (a)(1)(D).

(6) By striking “that subparagraph” in each place it appears and insert in each such place “this section” in subsection (a)(1)(D).

(7) By striking the last sentence of subsection (a)(1)(D).

(8) By striking “3-year” and inserting “5-year” in subsection (a)(1)(F) and by amending the first sentence of such subsection (a)(1)(F) to read as follows: “Not later than 5 years after the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the Administrator shall complete a review of the variances granted under this section (and the schedules prescribed in connection with such variances).”.

(9) By striking “subparagraph (A) or (B)” and inserting “this section” in subsection (a)(1)(G)(i).

(10) By striking “paragraph (1)(B) or (2) of subsection (a)” and inserting “this section” in subsection (b).

(11) By striking “subsection (a)” and inserting “this section” in subsection (c).

(12) By repealing subsection (d).

SEC. 151. LEAD PLUMBING AND PIPES.

Section 1417 (42 U.S.C. 300g-6) is amended as follows:

(1) In subsection (a)—

(A) by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

“(1) PROHIBITIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—No person may use any pipe, any pipe or plumbing fitting or fixture, any solder, or any flux, after June 19, 1986, in the installation or repair of—

“(i) any public water system; or

“(ii) any plumbing in a residential or non-residential facility providing water for human consumption, that is not lead free (within the meaning of subsection (d)).

“(B) LEADED JOINTS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to leaded joints necessary for the repair of cast iron pipes.”.

(2) In subsection (a)(2)(A), by inserting “owner or operator of a” after “Each”.

(3) By adding at the end of subsection (a) the following:

“(3) UNLAWFUL ACTS.—Effective 2 years after the date of enactment of this paragraph, it shall be unlawful—

“(A) for any person to introduce into commerce any pipe, or any pipe or plumbing fitting or fixture, that is not lead free, except for a pipe that is used in manufacturing or industrial processing;

“(B) for any person engaged in the business of selling plumbing supplies, except manufacturers, to sell solder or flux that is not lead free; or

“(C) for any person to introduce into commerce any solder or flux that is not lead free unless the solder or flux bears a prominent label stating that it is illegal to use the solder or flux in the installation or repair of any plumbing providing water for human consumption.”.

(4) In subsection (d)—

(A) by striking “lead, and” in paragraph (1) and inserting “lead;”;

(B) by striking “lead.” in paragraph (2) and inserting “lead; and;” and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(3) when used with respect to plumbing fittings and fixtures, refers to plumbing fittings and fixtures in compliance with standards established in accordance with subsection (e).”.

(5) By adding at the end the following:

“(e) PLUMBING FITTINGS AND FIXTURES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall provide accurate and timely technical information and assistance to qualified third-party certifiers in the development of voluntary standards and testing protocols for the leaching of lead from new plumbing fittings and fixtures that are intended by the manufacturer to dispense water for human ingestion.

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If a voluntary standard for the leaching of lead is not established by the date that is 1 year after the date of enactment of this subsection, the Administrator shall, not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this subsection, promulgate regulations setting a health-effects-based performance standard establishing maximum leaching levels from new plumbing fittings and fixtures that are intended by the manufacturer to dispense water for human ingestion. The standard shall become effective on the date that is 5 years after the date of promulgation of the standard.

“(B) ALTERNATIVE REQUIREMENT.—If regulations are required to be promulgated under subparagraph (A) and have not been promulgated by the date that is 5 years after the date of enactment of this subsection, no person may import, manufacture, process, or distribute in commerce a new plumbing fitting or fixture, intended by the manufacturer to dispense water for human ingestion, that contains more than 4 percent lead by dry weight.”.

Subtitle F—Capacity Development

SEC. 161. CAPACITY DEVELOPMENT.

Part B (42 U.S.C. 300g et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 1419. CAPACITY DEVELOPMENT.

“(a) STATE AUTHORITY FOR NEW SYSTEMS.—Each State shall obtain the legal authority or other means to ensure that all new community water systems and new nontransient, noncommunity water systems commencing operation after October 1, 1999, demonstrate technical, managerial, and financial capacity with respect to each national primary drinking water regulation in effect, or likely to be in effect, on the date of commencement of operations.

“(b) SYSTEMS IN SIGNIFICANT NONCOMPLIANCE.—

“(1) LIST.—Beginning not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this section, each State shall prepare, periodically update, and submit to the Administrator a list of community water systems and nontransient, noncommunity water systems that have a history of significant noncompliance with this title (as defined in guidelines issued prior to the date of enactment of this section or any revisions of the guidelines that have been made in consultation with the States) and, to the extent practicable, the reasons for noncompliance.

“(2) REPORT.—Not later than 5 years after the date of enactment of this section and as part of the capacity development strategy of the State, each State shall report to the Administrator on the success of enforcement mechanisms and initial capacity development efforts in assisting the public water systems listed under paragraph (1) to improve technical, managerial, and financial capacity.

“(c) CAPACITY DEVELOPMENT STRATEGY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 4 years after the date of enactment of this section, each State shall develop and implement a strategy to assist public water systems in acquiring and maintaining technical, managerial, and financial capacity.

“(2) CONTENT.—In preparing the capacity development strategy, the State shall consider, solicit public comment on, and include as appropriate—

“(A) the methods or criteria that the State will use to identify and prioritize the public water systems most in need of improving technical, managerial, and financial capacity;

“(B) a description of the institutional, regulatory, financial, tax, or legal factors at the Federal, State, or local level that encourage or impair capacity development;

“(C) a description of how the State will use the authorities and resources of this title or other means to—

“(i) assist public water systems in complying with national primary drinking water regulations;

“(ii) encourage the development of partnerships between public water systems to enhance the technical, managerial, and financial capacity of the systems; and

“(iii) assist public water systems in the training and certification of operators;

“(D) a description of how the State will establish a baseline and measure improvements in capacity with respect to national primary drinking water regulations and State drinking water law; and “(E) an identification of the persons that have an interest in and are involved in the development and implementation of the capacity development strategy (including all appropriate agencies of Federal, State, and local governments, private and nonprofit public water systems, and public water system customers).

“(3) REPORT.—Not later than 2 years after the date on which a State first adopts a capacity development strategy under this subsection, and every 3 years thereafter, the head of the State agency that has primary responsibility to carry out this title in the State shall submit to the Governor a report that shall also be available to the public on the efficacy of the strategy and progress made toward improving the technical, managerial, and financial capacity of public water systems in the State.

“(4) REVIEW.—The decisions of the State under this section regarding any particular public water system are not subject to review by the Administrator and may not serve as the basis for withholding funds under section 1452(a)(1)(H)(i).

“(d) FEDERAL ASSISTANCE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall support the States in developing capacity development strategies.

“(2) INFORMATIONAL ASSISTANCE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this section, the Administrator shall—

“(i) conduct a review of State capacity development efforts in existence on the date of enactment of this section and publish information to assist States and public water systems in capacity development efforts; and “(ii) initiate a partnership with States, public water systems, and the public to develop information for States on recommended operator certification requirements.

“(B) PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION.—The Administrator shall publish the information developed through the partnership under subparagraph (A)(ii) not later than 18 months after the date of enactment of this section.

“(3) PROMULGATION OF DRINKING WATER REGULATIONS.—In promulgating a national primary drinking water regulation, the Administrator shall include an analysis of the likely effect of compliance with the regulation on the technical, financial, and managerial capacity of public water systems.

“(4) GUIDANCE FOR NEW SYSTEMS.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this section, the Administrator shall publish guidance developed in consultation with the States describing legal authorities and other means to ensure that all new community water systems and new nontransient, non-community water systems demonstrate technical, managerial, and financial capacity with respect to national primary drinking water regulations.”.

TITLE II—AMENDMENTS TO PART C

SEC. 201. SOURCE WATER QUALITY ASSESSMENT.

(a) GUIDELINES AND PROGRAMS.—Section 1428 is amended by adding “and source water” after “wellhead” in the section heading and by adding at the end thereof the following:

“(1) SOURCE WATER ASSESSMENT.—

“(1) GUIDANCE.—Within 12 months after enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, after notice and comment, the Administrator shall publish guidance for States exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems to carry out directly or through delegation (for the protection and benefit of public water systems and for the support of monitoring flexibility) a source water assessment program within the State’s boundaries.

“(2) PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.—A source water assessment program under this subsection shall—

“(A) delineate the boundaries of the assessment areas in such State from which one or more public water systems in the State receive supplies of drinking water, using all reasonably available hydrogeologic information on the sources of the supply of drinking water in the State and the water flow, recharge, and discharge and any other reliable information as the State deems necessary to adequately determine such areas; and

“(B) identify for contaminants regulated under this title for which monitoring is required under this title (or any unregulated contaminants selected by the State in its discretion which the State, for the purposes of this subsection, has determined may present a threat to public health), to the extent practical, the origins within each delineated area of such contaminants to determine the susceptibility of the public water systems in the delineated area to such contaminants.

“(3) APPROVAL, IMPLEMENTATION, AND MONITORING RELIEF.—A State source water assessment program under this subsection shall be submitted to the Administrator within 18 months after the Administrator’s guidance is issued under this subsection and shall be deemed approved 9 months after the date of such submittal unless the Administrator disapproves the program as provided in subsection (c). States shall begin implementation of the program immediately after its approval. The Administrator’s approval of a State program under this subsection shall include a timetable, established in consultation with the State, allowing not more than 2 years for completion after approval of the program. Public water systems seeking monitoring relief in addition to the interim relief provided under section 1418(a) shall be eligible for monitoring relief, consistent with section 1418(b), upon completion of the assessment in the delineated source water assessment area or areas concerned.

“(4) TIMETABLE.—The timetable referred to in paragraph (3) shall take into consideration the availability to the State of funds under section 1452 (relating to State Revolving Funds) for assessments and other relevant factors. The Administrator may extend any timetable included in a State program approved under paragraph (3) to extend the period for completion by an additional 18 months. Compliance with subsection (g) shall not affect any State permanent monitoring flexibility program approved under section 1418(b).

“(5) DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—The Administrator shall, as soon as practicable, conduct a demonstration project, in consultation with other Federal agencies, to demonstrate the most effective and protective means of assessing and protecting source waters serving large metropolitan areas and located on Federal lands.

“(6) USE OF OTHER PROGRAMS.—To avoid duplication and to encourage efficiency, the program under this section shall, to the extent practicable, be coordinated with other existing programs and mechanisms, and may make use of any of the following:

“(A) Vulnerability assessments, sanitary surveys, and monitoring programs.

“(B) Delineations or assessments of ground water sources under a State wellhead protection program developed pursuant to this section.

“(C) Delineations or assessments of surface or ground water sources under a State pesticide management plan developed pursuant to the Pesticide and Ground Water State Management Plan Regulation (subparts I and J of part 152 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations), promulgated under section 3(d) of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (7 U.S.C. 136a(d)).

“(D) Delineations or assessments of surface water sources under a State watershed initiative or to satisfy the watershed criterion for determining if filtration is required under the Surface Water Treatment Rule (section 141.70 of title 40, Code of Federal Regulations).

“(7) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—The State shall make the results of the source water assessments conducted under this subsection available to the public.”.

(b) APPROVAL AND DISAPPROVAL OF STATE PROGRAMS.—Section 1428 is amended as follows:

(1) Amend the first sentence of subsection (c)(1) to read as follows: “If, in the judgment of the Administrator, a State program or portion thereof under subsection (a) is not adequate to protect public water systems as required by subsection (a) or a State program under subsection (1) or section 1418(b) does not meet the applicable requirements of subsection (1) or section 1418(b), the Administrator shall disapprove such program or portion thereof.”.

(2) Add after the second sentence of subsection (c)(1) the following: “A State program developed pursuant to subsection (1) or section 1418(b) shall be deemed to meet the applicable requirements of subsection (1) or section 1418(b) unless the Administrator determines within 9 months of the receipt of the program that such program (or portion thereof) does not meet such requirements.”.

(3) In the third sentence of subsection (c)(1) and in subsection (c)(2) strike “is inadequate” and insert “is disapproved”.

(4) In subsection (b), add the following before the period at the end of the first sentence: “and source water assessment programs under subsection (1)”.

(5) In subsection (g)—

(A) insert after “under this section” the following: “and the State source water assessment programs under subsection (1) for which the State uses grants under section 1452 (relating to State Revolving Funds)”;

(B) strike “Such” in the last sentence and inserting “In the case of wellhead protection programs, such”.

SEC. 202. FEDERAL FACILITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part C (42 U.S.C. 300h et seq.) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

“SEC. 1429. FEDERAL FACILITIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Each department, agency, and instrumentality of the executive, legislative, and judicial branches of the Federal Government—

“(1) owning or operating any facility in a wellhead protection area,

“(2) engaged in any activity at such facility resulting, or which may result, in the contamination of water supplies in any such area, or

“(3) owning or operating any public water system, shall be subject to, and comply with, all Federal, State, interstate, and local requirements, both substantive and procedural (including any requirement for permits or reporting or any provisions for injunctive relief and such sanctions as may be imposed by a court to enforce such relief), respecting the protection of such wellhead areas and respecting such public water systems in the same manner and to the same extent as any person is subject to such requirements, including the payment of reasonable service charges. The Federal, State, interstate, and local substantive and procedural requirements referred to in this subsection include, but are not limited to, all administrative orders and all civil and administrative penalties and fines, regardless of whether such penalties or fines are punitive or coercive in nature or are imposed for isolated, intermittent, or continuing violations. The United States hereby expressly waives any immunity otherwise applicable to the United States with respect to any such substantive or procedural requirement (including, but not limited to, any injunctive relief, administrative order or civil or administrative penalty or fine referred to in the preceding sentence, or reasonable service charge). The reasonable service charges referred to in this subsection include, but are not limited to, fees or charges assessed in connection with the processing and issuance of permits, renewal of permits, amendments to permits, review of plans, studies, and other documents, and inspection and monitoring of facilities, as well as any other nondiscriminatory charges that are assessed in connection with a Federal, State, interstate, or local regulatory program respecting the protection of wellhead areas or public water systems. Neither the United States, nor any agent, employee, or officer thereof, shall be immune or exempt from any process or sanction of any State or Federal Court with respect to the enforcement of any such injunctive relief. No agent, employee, or officer of the United States shall be personally liable for any civil penalty under any Federal, State, interstate, or local law concerning the protection of wellhead areas or public water systems with respect to any act or omission within the scope of the official duties of the agent, employee, or officer. An agent, employee, or officer of the United States shall be subject to any criminal sanction (including, but not limited to, any fine or imprisonment) under any Federal or State requirement adopted pursuant to this title, but no department, agency, or instrumentality of the executive, legislative, or judicial branch of the Federal Government shall be subject to any such sanction. The President may exempt any facility of any department, agency, or instrumentality in the executive branch from compliance with such a requirement if he determines it to be in the paramount interest of the United States to do so. No such exemption shall be granted due to lack of appropriation unless the President shall have specifically requested such appropriation as a part of the budgetary process and the Congress shall have failed to make available such requested appropriation. Any exemption shall be for a period not in excess of 1 year, but additional exemptions may be granted for periods not to exceed 1 year upon the President's making a new determination. The President shall report each January to the Congress all exemptions from the requirements of this section granted during the preceding calendar year, together with his reason for granting each such exemption.

“(b) ADMINISTRATIVE PENALTY ORDERS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Administrator finds that a Federal agency has violated an applicable requirement under this title, the Administrator may issue a penalty order assessing a penalty against the Federal agency.

“(2) PENALTIES.—The Administrator may, after notice to the agency, assess a civil penalty against the agency in an amount not to exceed $25,000 per day per violation.

“(3) PROCEDURE.—Before an administrative penalty order issued under this subsection becomes final, the Administrator shall provide the agency an opportunity to confer with the Administrator and shall provide the agency notice and an opportunity for a hearing on the record in accordance with chapters 5 and 7 of title 5, United States Code.

“(4) PUBLIC REVIEW.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Any interested person may obtain review of an administrative penalty order issued under this subsection. The review may be obtained in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia or in the United States District Court for the district in which the violation is alleged to have occurred by the filing of a complaint with the court within the 30-day period beginning on the date the penalty order becomes final. The person filing the complaint shall simultaneously send a copy of the complaint by certified mail to the Administrator and the Attorney General.

“(B) RECORD.—The Administrator shall promptly file in the court a certified copy of the record on which the order was issued.

“(C) STANDARD OF REVIEW.—The court shall not set aside or remand the order unless the court finds that there is not substantial evidence in the record, taken as a whole, to support the finding of a violation or that the assessment of the penalty by the Administrator constitutes an abuse of discretion.

“(D) PROHIBITION ON ADDITIONAL PENALTIES.—The court may not impose an additional civil penalty for a violation that is subject to the order unless the court finds that the assessment constitutes an abuse of discretion by the Administrator.

“(c) LIMITATION ON STATE USE OF FUNDS COLLECTED FROM FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.—Unless a State law in effect on the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 or a State constitution requires the funds to be used in a different manner, all funds collected by a State from the Federal Government from penalties and fines imposed for violation of any substantive or procedural requirement referred to in subsection (a) shall be used by the State only for projects designed to improve or protect the environment or to defray the costs of environmental protection or enforcement.”.

(b) CITIZEN ENFORCEMENT.—(1) The first sentence of section 1449(a) (42 U.S.C. 300j-8(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking “, or” and inserting a semicolon;

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking the period at the end and inserting “; or”; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

“(3) for the collection of a penalty by the United States Government (and associated costs and interest) against any Federal agency that fails, by the date that is 18 months after the effective date of a final order to pay a penalty assessed by the Administrator under section 1429(b), to pay the penalty.”.

(2) Subsection (b) of section 1449 (42 U.S.C. 300j-8(b)) is amended, by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting “; or” and by adding the following new paragraph after paragraph (2):

“(3) under subsection (a)(3) prior to 60 days after the plaintiff has given notice of such action to the Attorney General and to the Federal agency.”.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 1447 (42 U.S.C. 300j-6) is amended as follows:

(1) In subsection (a):

(A) In the first sentence, by striking “(1) having jurisdiction over any federally owned or maintained public water system or (2)”.

(B) In the first sentence, by striking out “respecting the provision of safe drinking water and”.

(C) In the second sentence, by striking “(A)”, “(B)”, and “(C)” and inserting “(1)”, “(2)”, and “(3)”, respectively.

(2) In subsection (c), by striking “the Safe Drinking Water Amendments of 1977” and inserting “this title” and by striking “this Act” and inserting “this title”.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS
REGARDING SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT
SEC. 301. OPERATOR CERTIFICATION.

Section 1442 is amended by adding the following after subsection (e):

“(f) MINIMUM STANDARDS.—(1) Not later than 30 months after the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 and after consultation with States exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems, the Administrator shall promulgate regulations specifying minimum standards for certification (and recertification) of the operators of community and nontransient noncommunity public water systems. Such regulations shall take into account existing State programs, the complexity of the system and other factors aimed at providing an effective program at reasonable cost to States and public water systems, taking into account the size of the system.

“(2) Any State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems shall adopt and implement, within 2 years after the promulgation of regulations pursuant to paragraph (1), requirements for the certification of operators of community and nontransient noncommunity public water systems.

“(3) For any State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems which has an operator certification program in effect on the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the regulations under paragraph (1) shall allow the State to enforce such program in lieu of the regulations under paragraph (1) if the State submits the program to the Administrator within 18 months after the promulgation of such regulations unless the Administrator determines (within 9 months after the State submits the program to the Administrator) that such program is not substantially equivalent to such regulations. In making this determination, such existing State programs shall be presumed to be substantially equivalent to the regulations, notwithstanding program differences, based on the size of systems or the quality of source water, providing State programs meet overall public health objectives of the regulations. If disapproved the program may be resubmitted within 6 months after receipt of notice of disapproval.”.

SEC. 302. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.

Section 1442(e) (42 U.S.C. 300j-1(e)), relating to technical assistance for small systems, is amended to read as follows:

“(e) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Administrator may provide technical assistance to small public water systems to enable such systems to achieve and maintain compliance with applicable national primary drinking water regulations. Such assistance may include circuit-rider programs, training, and preliminary engineering evaluations. There is authorized to be appropriated to the Administrator to be used for such technical assistance $15,000,000 for fiscal years 1997 through 2003. No portion of any State revolving fund established under section 1452 (relating to State revolving funds) and no portion of any funds made available under this subsection may be used either directly or indirectly for lobbying expenses. Of the total amount appropriated under this subsection, 3 percent shall be used for technical assistance to public water systems owned or operated by Indian tribes."

SEC. 303. PUBLIC WATER SYSTEM SUPERVISION PROGRAM.

Section 1443(a) (42 U.S.C. 300j-2(a)) is amended as follows:

(1) Paragraph (7) is amended to read as follows:

"(7) AUTHORIZATION.—FOR THE PURPOSE OF making grants under paragraph (1), there are authorized to be appropriated $100,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2003."

(2) By adding at the end the following:

"(8) RESERVATION OF FUNDS BY THE ADMINISTRATOR.—If the Administrator assumes the primary enforcement responsibility of a State public water system supervision program, the Administrator may reserve from funds made available pursuant to this subsection, an amount equal to the amount that would otherwise have been provided to the State pursuant to this subsection. The Administrator shall use the funds reserved pursuant to this paragraph to ensure the full and effective administration of a public water system supervision program in the State.

"(9) STATE LOAN FUNDS.—For any fiscal year for which the amount made available to the Administrator by appropriations to carry out this subsection is less than the amount that the Administrator determines is necessary to supplement funds made available pursuant to paragraph (8) to ensure the full and effective administration of a public water system supervision program in a State, the Administrator may reserve from the funds made available to the State under section 1452 (relating to State revolving funds) an amount that is equal to the amount of the shortfall. This paragraph shall not apply to any State not exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems as of the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Amendments of 1996."

SEC. 304. MONITORING AND INFORMATION GATHERING.

(a) REVIEW OF EXISTING REQUIREMENTS.—Paragraph (1) of section 1445(a) (42 U.S.C. 300j-4(a)(1)) is amended to read as follows:

"(1)(A) Every person who is subject to any requirement of this title or who is a grantee, shall establish and maintain such records, make such reports, conduct such monitoring, and provide such information as the Administrator may reasonably require by regulation to assist the Administrator in establishing regulations under this title, in determining whether such person has acted or is acting in compliance with this title, in administering any program of financial assistance under this title, in evaluating the health risks of unregulated contaminants, or in advising the public of such risks. In requiring a public water system to monitor under this subsection, the Administrator may take into consideration the system size and the contaminants likely to be found in the system's drinking water.

"(B) Every person who is subject to a national primary drinking water regulation under section 1412 shall provide such information as the Administrator may reasonably require, after consultation with the State in which such person is located if such State has primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems, on a case-by-case basis, to determine whether such person has acted or is acting in compliance with this title.

"(C) Every person who is subject to a national primary drinking water regulation under section 1412 shall provide such information as the Administrator may reasonably require to assist the Administrator in establishing regulations under section 1412 of this title, after consultation with States and suppliers of water. The Administrator may not require under this subparagraph the installation of treatment equipment or process changes, the testing of treatment technology, or the analysis or processing of monitoring samples, except where the Administrator provides the funding for such activities. Before exercising this authority, the Administrator shall first seek to obtain the information by voluntary submission.

"(D) The Administrator shall not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this sentence, after consultation with public health experts, representatives of the general public, and officials of State and local governments, review the monitoring requirements for not fewer than 12 contaminants identified by the Administrator, and promulgate any necessary modifications."

(b) MONITORING RELIEF.—Part B is amended by adding the following new section after section 1417:

"SEC. 1418. MONITORING OF CONTAMINANTS.

"(a) INTERIM MONITORING RELIEF AUTHORITY.—(1) A State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems may modify the monitoring requirements for any regulated or unregulated contaminants for which monitoring is required other than microbial contaminants (or indicators thereof), disinfectants and disinfection byproducts or corrosion byproducts for an interim period to provide that any public water system serving 10,000 persons or fewer shall not be required to conduct additional quarterly monitoring during an interim relief period for such contaminants if—

"(A) monitoring, conducted at the beginning of the period for the contaminant concerned and certified to the State by the public water system, fails to detect the presence of the contaminant in the ground or surface water supplying the public water system, and

"(B) the State, (considering the hydrogeology of the area and other relevant factors), determines in writing that the contaminant is unlikely to be detected by further monitoring during such period.

"(2) The interim relief period referred to in paragraph (1) shall terminate when permanent monitoring relief is adopted and approved for such State, or at the end of 36 months after the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, whichever comes first. In order to serve as a basis for interim relief, the monitoring conducted at the beginning of the period must occur at the time determined by the State to be the time of the public water system's greatest vulnerability to the contaminant concerned in the relevant ground or surface water, taking into account in the case of pesticides the time of application of the pesticide for the source water area and the travel time for the pesticide to reach such waters and taking into account, in the case of other contaminants, seasonality of precipitation and contaminant travel time.

"(b) PERMANENT MONITORING RELIEF AUTHORITY.—(1) Each State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems under this title and having an approved wellhead protection program and a source water assessment program may adopt, in accordance with guidance published by the Administrator, and submit to the Administrator as provided in section 1428(c), tailored alternative monitoring requirements for public water systems in such State (as an alternative to the monitoring requirements for chemical contaminants set forth in the applicable national primary drinking water regulations) where the State concludes that (based on data available at the time of adoption concerning susceptibility, use, occurrence, wellhead protection, or from the State's drinking water source water assessment program) such alternative monitoring would provide assurance that it complies with the Administrator's guidelines. The State program must be adequate to assure compliance with, and enforcement of, applicable national primary drinking water regulations. Alternative monitoring shall not apply to regulated microbiological contaminants (or indicators thereof), disinfectants and disinfection by-products, or corrosion by-products. The preceding sentence is not intended to limit other authority of the Administrator under other provisions of this title to grant monitoring flexibility.

"(2)(A) The Administrator shall issue, after notice and comment and at the same time as guidelines are issued for source water assessment under section 1428(l), guidelines for States to follow in proposing alternative monitoring requirements under paragraph (1) of this subsection for chemical contaminants. The Administrator shall publish such guidelines in the Federal Register. The guidelines shall assure that the public health will be protected from drinking water contamination. The guidelines shall require that a State alternative monitoring program apply on a contaminant-by-contaminant basis and that, to be eligible for such alternative monitoring program, a public water system must show the State that the contaminant is not present in the drinking water supply or, if present, it is reliably and consistently below the maximum contaminant level.

"(B) For purposes of subparagraph (A), the phrase 'reliably and consistently below the maximum contaminant level' means that, although contaminants have been detected in a water supply, the State has sufficient knowledge of the contamination source and extent of contamination to predict that the maximum contaminant level will not be exceeded. In determining that a contaminant is reliably and consistently below the maximum contaminant level, States shall consider the quality and completeness of data, the length of time covered and the volatility or stability of monitoring results during that time, and the proximity of such results to the maximum contaminant level. Wide variations in the analytical results, or analytical results close to the maximum contaminant level, shall not be considered to be reliably and consistently below the maximum contaminant level.

"(3) The guidelines issued by the Administrator under paragraph (2) shall require that if, after the monitoring program is in effect and operating, a contaminant covered by the alternative monitoring program is detected at levels at or above the maximum contaminant level or is no longer reliably or consistently below the maximum contaminant level, the public water system must either—

"(A) demonstrate that the contamination source has been removed or that other action has been taken to eliminate the contamination problem, or

"(B) test for the detected contaminant pursuant to the applicable national primary drinking water regulation.

"(c) TREATMENT AS NPDWR.—All monitoring relief granted by a State to a public water system for a regulated contaminant under subsection (a) or (b) shall be treated as part of the national primary drinking water regulation for that contaminant.

(d) OTHER MONITORING RELIEF.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the authority of the States under applicable national primary drinking water regulations to alter monitoring requirements through waivers or other existing authorities. The Administrator shall periodically review and, as appropriate, revise such authorities.”.

(c) UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—Section 1445(a) (42 U.S.C. 300j-4(a)) is amended by striking paragraphs (2) through (8) and inserting the following:

“(2) MONITORING PROGRAM FOR UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—

“(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Administrator shall promulgate regulations establishing the criteria for a monitoring program for unregulated contaminants. The regulations shall require monitoring of drinking water supplied by public water systems and shall vary the frequency and schedule for monitoring requirements for systems based on the number of persons served by the system, the source of supply, and the contaminants likely to be found.

“(B) MONITORING PROGRAM FOR CERTAIN UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—

“(i) INITIAL LIST.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Amendments of 1996 and every 5 years thereafter, the Administrator shall issue a list pursuant to subparagraph (A) of not more than 40 unregulated contaminants to be monitored by public water systems and to be included in the national drinking water occurrence data base maintained pursuant to subsection (g).

“(ii) GOVERNORS’ PETITION.—The Administrator shall include among the list of contaminants for which monitoring is required under this paragraph each contaminant recommended in a petition signed by the Governor of each of 7 or more States, unless the Administrator determines that the action would prevent the listing of other contaminants of a higher public health concern.

“(C) MONITORING PLAN FOR SMALL AND MEDIUM SYSTEMS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Based on the regulations promulgated by the Administrator, each State shall develop a representative monitoring plan to assess the occurrence of unregulated contaminants in public water systems that serve a population of 10,000 or fewer. The plan shall require monitoring for systems representative of different sizes, types, and geographic locations in the State.

“(ii) GRANTS FOR SMALL SYSTEM COSTS.—From funds appropriated under subparagraph (H), the Administrator shall pay the reasonable cost of such testing and laboratory analysis as are necessary to carry out monitoring under the plan.

“(D) MONITORING RESULTS.—Each public water system that conducts monitoring of unregulated contaminants pursuant to this paragraph shall provide the results of the monitoring to the primary enforcement authority for the system.

“(E) NOTIFICATION.—Notification of the availability of the results of monitoring programs required under paragraph (2)(A) shall be given to the persons served by the system and the Administrator.

“(F) WAIVER OF MONITORING REQUIREMENT.—The Administrator shall waive the requirement for monitoring for a contaminant under this paragraph in a State, if the State demonstrates that the criteria for listing the contaminant do not apply in that State.

“(G) ANALYTICAL METHODS.—The State may use screening methods approved by the Administrator under subsection (i) in lieu of monitoring for particular contaminants under this paragraph.

“(H) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this paragraph $10,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2003.”.

(d) SCREENING METHODS.—Section 1445 (42 U.S.C. 300j-4) is amended by adding the following after subsection (h):

“(i) SCREENING METHODS.—The Administrator shall review new analytical methods to screen for regulated contaminants and may approve such methods as are more accurate or cost-effective than established reference methods for use in compliance monitoring.”.

SEC. 305. OCCURRENCE DATA BASE.

Section 1445 is amended by adding the following new subsection after subsection (f):

“(g) NATIONAL DRINKING WATER OCCURRENCE DATA BASE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the Administrator shall assemble and maintain a national drinking water occurrence data base, using information on the occurrence of both regulated and unregulated contaminants in public water systems obtained under subsection (a)(1)(A) or subsection (a)(2) and reliable information from other public and private sources.

“(2) PUBLIC INPUT.—In establishing the occurrence data base, the Administrator shall solicit recommendations from the Science Advisory Board, the States, and other interested parties concerning the development and maintenance of a national drinking water occurrence data base, including such issues as the structure and design of the data base, data input parameters and requirements, and the use and interpretation of data.

“(3) USE.—The data shall be used by the Administrator in making determinations under section 1412(b)(3) with respect to the occurrence of a contaminant in drinking water at a level of public health concern.

“(4) PUBLIC RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Administrator shall periodically solicit recommendations from the appropriate officials of the National Academy of Sciences and the States, and any person may submit recommendations to the Administrator, with respect to contaminants that should be included in the national drinking water occurrence data base, including recommendations with respect to additional unregulated contaminants that should be listed under subsection (a)(2). Any recommendation submitted under this clause shall be accompanied by reasonable documentation that—

“(A) the contaminant occurs or is likely to occur in drinking water; and “(B) the contaminant poses a risk to public health.

“(5) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY.—The information from the data base shall be available to the public in readily accessible form.

“(6) REGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—With respect to each contaminant for which a national primary drinking water regulation has been established, the data base shall include information on the detection of the contaminant at a quantifiable level in public water systems (including detection of the contaminant at levels not constituting a violation of the maximum contaminant level for the contaminant).

“(7) UNREGULATED CONTAMINANTS.—With respect to contaminants for which a national primary drinking water regulation has not been established, the data base shall include—

“(A) monitoring information collected by public water systems that serve a population of more than 3,300, as required by the Administrator under subsection (a);

“(B) monitoring information collected by the States from a representative sampling of public water systems that serve a population of 3,300 or fewer; and

“(C) other reliable and appropriate monitoring information on the occurrence of the contaminants in public water systems that is available to the Administrator.”.

SEC. 306. CITIZENS SUITS.

Section 1449 (42 U.S.C. 300j-8) is amended by inserting “, or a State” after “prosecuting a civil action in a court of the United States” in subsection (b)(1)(B).

SEC. 307. WHISTLE BLOWER.

(a) WHISTLE BLOWER.—Section 1450(i) is amended as follows:

(1) Amend paragraph (2)(A) by striking “30 days” and inserting “180 days” and by inserting before the period at the end “and the Environmental Protection Agency”.

(2) Amend paragraph (2)(B)(i) by inserting before the last sentence the following: “Upon conclusion of such hearing and the issuance of a recommended decision that the complaint has merit, the Secretary shall issue a preliminary order providing the relief prescribed in clause (ii), but may not order compensatory damages pending a final order.”.

(3) Amend paragraph (2)(B)(ii) by inserting “and” before “(III)” and by striking “compensatory damages, and (IV) where appropriate, exemplary damages” and inserting “and the Secretary may order such person to provide compensatory damages to the complainant”.

(4) Redesignate paragraphs (3), (4), (5), and (6) as paragraphs (4), (5), (6), and (7), respectively, and insert after paragraph (2) the following:

“(3)(A) The Secretary shall dismiss a complaint filed under paragraph (1), and shall not conduct the investigation required under paragraph (2), unless the complainant has made a prima facie showing that any behavior described in subparagraphs (A) through (C) of paragraph (1) was a contributing factor in the unfavorable personnel action alleged in the complaint.

“(B) Notwithstanding a finding by the Secretary that the complaint has made the showing required by paragraph (1)(A), no investigation required under paragraph (2) shall be conducted if the employer demonstrates, by clear and convincing evidence, that it would have taken the same unfavorable personnel action in the absence of such behavior.

“(C) The Secretary may determine that a violation of paragraph (1) has occurred only if the complainant has demonstrated that any behavior described in subparagraphs (A) through (C) of paragraph (1) was a contributing factor in the unfavorable personnel action alleged in the complaint.

“(D) Relief may not be ordered under paragraph (2) if the employer demonstrates clear and convincing evidence that it would have taken the same unfavorable personnel action in the absence of such behavior.”.

(5) Add at the end the following:

“(8) This subsection may not be construed to expand, diminish, or otherwise affect any right otherwise available to an employee under Federal or State law to reduce the employee’s discharge or other discriminatory action taken by the employer against the employee. The provisions of this subsection shall be prominently posted in any place of employment to which this subsection applies.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall apply to claims filed under section 1450(i) of the Public Health Service Act on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 308. STATE REVOLVING FUNDS.

Part E (42 U.S.C. 300j et seq.) is amended by adding the following new section after section 1451:

“SEC. 1452. STATE REVOLVING FUNDS.

“(a) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—

“(1) GRANTS TO STATES TO ESTABLISH REVOLVING FUNDS.—(A) The Administrator shall

enter into agreements with eligible States to make capitalization grants, including letters of credit, to the States under this subsection solely to further the health protection objectives of this title, promote the efficient use of fund resources, and for such other purposes as are specified in this title.

“(B) To be eligible to receive a capitalization grant under this section, a State shall establish a drinking water treatment revolving loan fund and comply with the other requirements of this section.

“(C) Such a grant to a State shall be deposited in the drinking water treatment revolving fund established by the State, except as otherwise provided in this section and in other provisions of this title. No funds authorized by other provisions of this title to be used for other purposes specified in this title shall be deposited in any State revolving fund.

“(D) Such a grant to a State shall be available to the State for obligation during the fiscal year for which the funds are authorized and during the following fiscal year, except that grants made available from funds provided in Public Law 103-327, Public Law 103-124, and Public Law 104-134 shall be available for obligation during each of the fiscal years 1997 and 1998.

“(E) Except as otherwise provided in this section, funds made available to carry out this part shall be allotted to States that have entered into an agreement pursuant to this section in accordance with—

“(i) for each of fiscal years 1995 through 1997, a formula that is the same as the formula used to distribute public water system supervision grant funds under section 1443 in fiscal year 1995, except that the minimum proportionate share established in the formula shall be 1 percent of available funds and the formula shall be adjusted to include a minimum proportionate share for the State of Wyoming; and

“(ii) for fiscal year 1998 and each subsequent fiscal year, a formula that allocates to each State the proportional share of the State needs identified in the most recent survey conducted pursuant to section 1452(h), except that the minimum proportionate share provided to each State shall be the same as the minimum proportionate share provided under clause (i).

“(F) Such grants not obligated by the last day of the period for which the grants are available shall be reallocated according to the appropriate criteria set forth in subparagraph (E).

“(G) The State allotment for a State not exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems shall not be deposited in any such fund but shall be allotted by the Administrator as follows: 20 percent of such allotment shall be available to the Administrator as needed to exercise primary enforcement responsibility under this title in such State and the remainder shall be reallocated to States exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems for deposit in such funds. Whenever the Administrator makes a final determination pursuant to section 1413(b) that the requirements of section 1413(a) are no longer being met by a State, additional grants for such State under this title shall be immediately terminated by the Administrator. This subparagraph shall not apply to any State not exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems as of the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996.

“(H)(i) Beginning in fiscal year 1999, the Administrator shall withhold 20 percent of each capitalization grant made pursuant to this section to a State if the State has not met the requirements of section 1419 (relating to capacity development).

“(ii) The Administrator shall withhold 20 percent of each capitalization grant made pursuant to this section if the State has not met the requirements of subsection (f) of section 1442 (relating to operator certification).

“(iii) All funds withheld by the Administrator pursuant to clause (i) shall be reallocated by the Administrator on the basis of the same ratio as is applicable to funds allotted under subparagraph (E). None of the funds reallocated by the Administrator pursuant to this paragraph shall be allotted to a State unless the State has met the requirements of section 1419 (relating to capacity development).

“(iv) All funds withheld by the Administrator pursuant to clause (ii) shall be reallocated by the Administrator on the basis of the same ratio as is applicable to funds allotted under subparagraph (E). None of the funds reallocated by the Administrator pursuant to this paragraph shall be allotted to a State unless the State has met the requirements of subsection (f) of section 1442 (relating to operator certification).

“(2) USE OF FUNDS.—Except as otherwise authorized by this title, amounts deposited in such revolving funds, including loan repayments and interest earned on such amounts, shall be used only for providing loans, loan guarantees, or as a source of reserve and security for leveraged loans, the proceeds of which are deposited in a State revolving fund established under paragraph (1), or other financial assistance authorized under this section to community water systems and nonprofit noncommunity water systems, other than systems owned by Federal agencies. Such financial assistance may be used by a public water system only for expenditures (not including monitoring, operation, and maintenance expenditures) of a type or category which the Administrator has determined, through guidance, will facilitate compliance with national primary drinking water regulations applicable to such system under section 1412 or otherwise significantly further the health protection objectives of this title. Such funds may also be used to provide loans to a system referred to in section 1401(4)(B) for the purpose of providing the treatment described in section 1401(4)(B)(i)(III). Such funds shall not be used for the acquisition of real property or interests therein, unless such acquisition is integral to a project authorized by this paragraph and the purchase is from a willing seller. Of the amount credited to any revolving fund established under this section in any fiscal year, 15 percent shall be available solely for providing loan assistance to public water systems which regularly serve fewer than 10,000 persons.

“(3) LIMITATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), no assistance under this part shall be provided to a public water system that—

“(i) does not have the technical, managerial, and financial capability to ensure compliance with the requirements of this title; or “(ii) is in significant noncompliance with any requirement of a national primary drinking water regulation or variance.

“(B) RESTRUCTURING.—A public water system described in subparagraph (A) may receive assistance under this part if—

“(i) the owner or operator of the system agrees to undertake feasible and appropriate changes in operations (including ownership, management, accounting, rates, maintenance, consolidation, alternative water supply, or other procedures) if the State determines that such measures are necessary to ensure that the system has the technical, managerial, and financial capability to comply with the requirements of this title over the long term; and “(ii) the use of the assistance will ensure compliance.

“(b) INTENDED USE PLANS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—After providing for public review and comment, each State that has entered into a capitalization agreement pursuant to this part shall annually prepare a plan that identifies the intended uses of the amounts available to the State loan fund of the State.

“(2) CONTENTS.—An intended use plan shall include—

“(A) a list of the projects to be assisted in the first fiscal year that begins after the date of the plan, including a description of the project, the expected terms of financial assistance, and the size of the community served;

“(B) the criteria and methods established for the distribution of funds; and “(C) a description of the financial status of the State loan fund and the short-term and long-term goals of the State loan fund.

“(3) USE OF FUNDS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—An intended use plan shall provide, to the maximum extent practicable, that priority for the use of funds be given to projects that—“(i) address the most serious risk to human health;

“(ii) are necessary to ensure compliance with the requirements of this title (including requirements for filtration); and

“(iii) assist systems most in need on a per household basis according to State affordability criteria.

“(B) LIST OF PROJECTS.—Each State shall, after notice and opportunity for public comment, publish and periodically update a list of projects in the State that are eligible for assistance under this part, including the priority assigned to each project and, to the extent known, the expected funding schedule for each project.

“(c) FUND MANAGEMENT.—Each State revolving fund under this section shall be established, maintained, and credited with repayments and interest. The fund corpus shall be available in perpetuity for providing financial assistance under this section. To the extent amounts in each such fund are not required for current obligation or expenditure, such amounts shall be invested in interest bearing obligations.

“(d) ASSISTANCE FOR DISADVANTAGED COMMUNITIES.—

“(1) LOAN SUBSIDY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, in any case in which the State makes a loan pursuant to subsection (a)(2) to a disadvantaged community or to a community that the State expects to become a disadvantaged community as the result of a proposed project, the State may provide additional subsidization (including forgiveness of principal).

“(2) TOTAL AMOUNT OF SUBSIDIES.—For each fiscal year, the total amount of loan subsidies made by a State pursuant to paragraph (1) may not exceed 30 percent of the amount of the capitalization grant received by the State for the year.

“(3) DEFINITION OF DISADVANTAGED COMMUNITY.—In this subsection, the term ‘disadvantaged community’ means the service area of a public water system that meets affordability criteria established after public review and comment by the State in which the public water system is located. The Administrator may publish information to assist States in establishing affordability criteria.

“(e) STATE CONTRIBUTION.—Each agreement under subsection (a) shall require that the State deposit in the State revolving fund from State moneys an amount equal to at least 20 percent of the total amount of the grant to be made to the State on or before the date on which the grant payment is made to the State, except that a State shall not be required to deposit such amount into the fund prior to the date on which each grant payment is made for fiscal years 1994, 1995, 1996, and 1997 if such State deposits the State contribution amount into the State fund prior to September 30, 1998.

“(f) COMBINED FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION.—Notwithstanding subsection (c), a State may (as a convenience and to avoid unnecessary administrative costs) combine, in accordance with State law, the financial administration of a revolving fund established under this section with the financial administration of any other revolving fund established by the State if otherwise not prohibited by the law under which such revolving fund was established and if the Administrator determines that—

“(1) the grants under this section, together with loan repayments and interest, will be separately accounted for and used solely for the purposes specified in this section; and

“(2) the authority to establish assistance priorities and carry out oversight and related activities (other than financial administration) with respect to such assistance remains with the State agency having primary responsibility for administration of the State program under section 1413.

“(g) ADMINISTRATION.—(1) Each State may annually use up to 4 percent of the funds allotted to the State under this section to cover the reasonable costs of administration of the programs under this section, including the recovery of reasonable costs expended to establish such a fund which are incurred after the date of enactment of this section, and to provide technical assistance to public water systems within the State. For fiscal year 1995 and each fiscal year thereafter, each State with primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems within that State may use up to an additional 10 percent of the funds allotted to the State under this section—

“(A) for public water system supervision programs which receive grants under section 1443(a);

“(B) to administer or provide technical assistance through source water protection programs;

“(C) to develop and implement a capacity development strategy under section 1419(c); and if the State matches such expenditures with at least an equal amount of State funds. At least half of such match must be additional to the amount expended by the State for public water supervision in fiscal year 1993. An additional 1 percent of the funds annually allotted to the State under this section shall be used by each State to provide technical assistance to public water systems in such State. Funds utilized under section 1452(g)(1)(B) shall not be used for enforcement actions or for purposes which do not facilitate compliance with national primary drinking water regulations or otherwise significantly further the health protection objectives of this title.

“(D) for an operator certification program for purposes of meeting the requirements of section 1442(f),

“(2) The Administrator shall publish such guidance and promulgate such regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section, including—

“(A) provisions to ensure that each State commits and expends funds allotted to the State under this section as efficiently as possible in accordance with this title and applicable State laws,

“(B) guidance to prevent waste, fraud, and abuse, and “(C) guidance to avoid the use of funds made available under this section to finance the expansion of any public water system in anticipation of future population growth.

Such guidance and regulations shall also insure that the States, and public water systems receiving assistance under this section, use accounting, audit, and fiscal procedures that conform to generally accepted accounting standards.

“(3) Each State administering a revolving fund and assistance program under this subsection shall publish and submit to the Administrator a report every 2 years on its activities under this subsection, including the findings of the most recent audit of the fund and the entire State allotment. The Administrator shall periodically audit all revolving funds established by, and all other amounts allotted to, the States pursuant to this subsection in accordance with procedures established by the Comptroller General.

“(h) NEEDS SURVEY.—The Administrator shall conduct an assessment of water system capital improvements needs of all eligible public water systems in the United States and submit a report to the Congress containing the results of such assessment within 180 days after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 and every 4 years thereafter.

“(i) INDIAN TRIBES.—1½ percent of the amounts appropriated annually to carry out this section may be used by the Administrator to make grants to Indian Tribes and Alaskan Native Villages which are not otherwise eligible to receive either grants from the Administrator under this section or assistance from State revolving funds established under this section. Such grants may only be used for expenditures by such tribes and villages for public water system expenditures referred to in subsection (a)(2).

“(j) OTHER AREAS.—Of the funds annually available under this section for grants to States, the Administrator shall make allotments in accordance with section 1443(a)(4) for the District of Columbia, the Virgin Islands, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, American Samoa, Guam, and the Republic of Palau. The grants allotted as provided in this subsection may be provided by the Administrator to the governments of such areas, to public water systems in such areas, or to both, to be used for the public water system expenditures referred to in subsection (a)(2). Such grants shall not be deposited in revolving funds. The total allotment of grants under this section for all areas described in this paragraph in any fiscal year shall not exceed 1 percent of the aggregate amount made available to carry out this section in that fiscal year.

“(k) SET-ASIDES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding subsection (a)(2), a State may take each of the following actions:

“(A) Provide assistance, only in the form of a loan to one or both of the following:

“(i) Any public water system described in subsection (a)(2) to acquire land or a conservation easement from a willing seller or grantor, if the purpose of the acquisition is to protect the source water of the system from contamination and to ensure compliance with national primary drinking water regulations.

“(ii) Any community water system to implement local, voluntary source water protection measures to protect source water in areas delineated pursuant to section 1428(l), in order to facilitate compliance with national primary drinking water regulations applicable to such system under section 1412 or otherwise significantly further the health protection objectives of this title. Funds authorized under this clause may be used to fund only voluntary, incentive-based mechanisms.

“(B) Provide assistance, including technical and financial assistance, to any public water system as part of a capacity development strategy developed and implemented in accordance with section 1419(c).

“(C) Make expenditures from the capitalization grant of the State for fiscal years 1996 and 1997 to delineate and assess source water protection areas in accordance with section 1428(l), except that funds set aside for such expenditure shall be obligated within 4 fiscal years.

“(D) Make expenditures from the fund for the establishment and implementation of wellhead protection programs under section 1428.

“(2) LIMITATION.—For each fiscal year, the total amount of assistance provided and expenditures made by a State under this subsection may not exceed 15 percent of the amount of the capitalization grant received by the State for that year and may not exceed 10 percent of that amount for any one of the following activities:

“(A) To acquire land or conservation easements pursuant to paragraph (1)(A)(i).

“(B) To provide funding to implement voluntary, incentive-based source water quality protection measures pursuant to paragraph (1)(A)(ii).

“(C) To provide assistance through a capacity development strategy pursuant to paragraph (1)(B).

“(D) To make expenditures to delineate or assess source water protection areas pursuant to paragraph (1)(C).

“(E) To make expenditures to establish and implement wellhead protection programs pursuant to paragraph (1)(D).

“(3) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section creates or conveys any new authority to a State, political subdivision of a State, or community water system for any new regulatory measure, or limits any authority of a State, political subdivision of a State or community water system.

“(l) SAVINGS.—The failure or inability of any public water system to receive funds under this section or any other loan or grant program, or any delay in obtaining the funds, shall not alter the obligation of the system to comply in a timely manner with all applicable drinking water standards and requirements of this title.

“(m) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out the purposes of this section $599,000,000 for the fiscal year 1994 and $1,000,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1995 through 2003. Sums shall remain available until expended.

“(n) HEALTH EFFECTS STUDIES.—From funds appropriated pursuant to this section for each fiscal year, the Administrator shall reserve $10,000,000 for health effects studies on drinking water contaminants authorized by the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996. In allocating funds made available under this subsection, the Administrator shall give priority to studies concerning the health effects of cryptosporidium, disinfection byproducts, and arsenic, and the implementation of a plan for studies of subpopulations at greater risk of adverse effects.

“(o) DEMONSTRATION PROJECT FOR STATE OF VIRGINIA.—Notwithstanding the other provisions of this subsection limiting the use of funds deposited in a State revolving fund from any State allotment, the State of Virginia may, as a single demonstration and with the approval of the Virginia General Assembly and the Administrator, conduct a program to demonstrate alternative approaches to intergovernmental coordination to assist in the financing of new drinking water facilities in the following rural communities in southwestern Virginia where none exists on the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 and where such communities are experiencing economic hardship: Lee County, Wise County, Scott County, Dickenson County, Russell County, Buchanan County, Tazewell County, and the city of Norton, Virginia. The funds allotted to that State and deposited in the State revolving fund may be loaned to a regional endowment fund for the purpose set forth in this paragraph under a plan to be approved by the Administrator. The plan may include an advisory group that includes representatives of such counties.

“(p) SMALL SYSTEM TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Administrator may reserve up to 2 percent of the total funds appropriated pursuant to subsection (m) for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2003 to carry out the provisions of section 1442(e), relating to technical assistance for small systems.”.

SEC. 309. WATER CONSERVATION PLAN.

Part E is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 1453. WATER CONSERVATION PLAN.

“(a) GUIDELINES.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996, the Administrator shall publish in the Federal Register guidelines for water conservation plans for public water systems serving fewer than 3,300 persons, public water systems serving between 3,300 and 10,000 persons, and public water systems serving more than 10,000 persons, taking into consideration such factors as water availability and climate.

“(b) SRF LOANS OR GRANTS.—Within 1 year after publication of the guidelines under subsection (a), a State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems may require a public water system, as a condition of receiving a loan or grant from a State revolving fund under section 1452, to submit with its application for such loan or grant a water conservation plan consistent with such guidelines.”.

TITLE IV—MISCELLANEOUS

SEC. 401. DEFINITIONS.

(a) ALTERNATIVE QUALITY CONTROL AND TESTING PROCEDURES.—Section 1401(1)(D) (42 U.S.C. 300f(1)(D)) is amended by adding the following at the end thereof: “At any time after promulgation of a regulation referred to in this paragraph, the Administrator may add equally effective quality control and testing procedures by guidance published in the Federal Register. Such procedures shall be treated as an alternative for public water systems to the quality control and testing procedures listed in the regulation.”.

(b) PUBLIC WATER SYSTEM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1401(4) (42 U.S.C. 300f(4)) is amended—

(A) in the first sentence, by striking “piped water for human consumption” and inserting “water for human consumption through pipes or other constructed conveyances”;

(B) by redesignating subparagraphs (A) and (B) as clauses (i) and (ii), respectively;

(C) by striking “(4) The” and inserting the following:

“(4) PUBLIC WATER SYSTEM.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The”;

(D) by adding at the end the following:

“(B) CONNECTIONS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), a connection to a system that delivers water by a constructed conveyance other than a pipe shall not be considered a connection, if—

“(I) the water is used exclusively for purposes other than residential uses (consisting of drinking, bathing, and cooking, or other similar uses);

“(II) the Administrator or the State (in the case of a State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems) determines that alternative water to achieve the equivalent level of public health protection provided by the applicable national primary drinking water regulation is provided for residential or similar uses for drinking, cooking, and bathing; or “(III) the Administrator or the State (in the case of a State exercising primary enforcement responsibility for public water systems) determines that the water provided for residential or similar uses for drinking, cooking, and bathing is centrally treated or treated at the point of entry by the provider, a pass-through entity, or the user to achieve the equivalent level of protection provided by the applicable national primary drinking water regulations.

“(ii) IRRIGATION DISTRICTS.—An irrigation district in existence prior to May 18, 1994, that provides primarily agricultural service through a piped water system with only incidental residential or similar use shall not be considered to be a public water system if the system or the residential or similar users of the system comply with subclause (II) or (III) of clause (i).

“(C) TRANSITION PERIOD.—A water supplier that would be a public water system only as a result of modifications made to this paragraph by the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 shall not be considered a public water system for purposes of the Act until the date that is two years after the date of enactment of this subparagraph. If a water supplier does not serve 15 service connections (as defined in subparagraphs (A) and (B)) or 25 people at any time after the conclusion of the two-year period, the water supplier shall not be considered a public water system.”.

(2) GAO STUDY.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall undertake a study to—

(A) ascertain the numbers and locations of individuals and households relying for their residential water needs, including drinking, bathing, and cooking (or other similar uses) on irrigation water systems, mining water systems, industrial water systems or other water systems covered by section 1401(4)(B) of the Safe Drinking Water Act that are not public water systems subject to the Safe Drinking Water Act;

(B) determine the sources and costs and affordability (to users and systems) of water used by such populations for their residential water needs; and

(C) review State and water system compliance with the exclusion provisions of section 1401(4)(B) of such Act.

The Comptroller General shall submit a report to the Congress within 3 years after the enactment of this Act containing the results of such study.

SEC. 402. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part A (42 U.S.C. 300f) is amended by adding the following new section after section 1401:

“SEC. 1402. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

“There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this title for the first 7 fiscal years following the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996. With the exception of biomedical research, nothing in this Act shall affect or modify any authorization for research and development under this Act or any other provision of law.”.

(b) CRITICAL AQUIFER PROTECTION.—Section 1427 (42 U.S.C. 300h-6) is amended as follows:

(1) Subsection (b)(1) is amended by striking “not later than 24 months after the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1986”.

(2) The table in subsection (m) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“1992-2003 15,000,000.”.

(c) WELLHEAD PROTECTION AREAS.—The table in section 1428(k) (42 U.S.C. 300h-7(k)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“1992-2003 30,000,000.”.

“1992-2003 15,000,000.”.

SEC. 403. NEW YORK CITY WATERSHED PROTECTION PROGRAM.

Section 1443 (42 U.S.C. 300j-2) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(d) NEW YORK CITY WATERSHED PROTECTION PROGRAM.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator is authorized to provide financial assistance to the State of New York for demonstration projects implemented as part of the watershed program for the protection and enhancement of the quality of source waters of the New York City water supply system, including projects necessary to comply with the criteria for avoiding filtration contained in 40 CFR 141.71. Demonstration projects which shall be eligible for financial assistance shall be certified to the Administrator by the State of New York as satisfying the purposes of this subsection. In certifying projects to the Administrator, the State of New York shall give priority to monitoring projects that have undergone peer review.

“(2) REPORT.—Not later than 5 years after the date on which the Administrator first provides assistance pursuant to this paragraph, the Governor of the State of New York shall submit a report to the Administrator on the results of projects assisted.

“(3) MATCHING REQUIREMENTS.—Federal assistance provided under this subsection shall not exceed 35 percent of the total cost of the protection program being carried out for any particular watershed or ground water recharge area.

“(4) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated to the Administrator to carry out this subsection for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2003 $8,000,000 for each of such fiscal years for the purpose of providing assistance to the State of New York to carry out paragraph (1).”.

SEC. 404. ESTROGENIC SUBSTANCES SCREENING PROGRAM.

Part F is amended by adding the following at the end thereof:

“SEC. 1466. ESTROGENIC SUBSTANCES SCREENING PROGRAM.

“(a) DEVELOPMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this section, the Administrator shall develop a screening program, using appropriate validated test systems and other scientifically relevant information, to determine whether certain substances may have an effect in humans that is similar to an effect produced by a naturally occurring estrogen, or such other endocrine effect as the Administrator may designate.

“(b) IMPLEMENTATION.—Not later than 3 years after the date of enactment of this section, after obtaining public comment and review of the screening program described in subsection (a) by the scientific advisory panel established under section 25(d) of the Act of June 25, 1947 (chapter 125) or the Science Advisory Board established by section 8 of the Environmental Research, Development, and Demonstration Act of 1978 (42 U.S.C. 4365), the Administrator shall implement the program.

“(c) SUBSTANCES.—In carrying out the screening program described in subsection (a), the Administrator—

“(1) shall provide for the testing of all active and inert ingredients used in products described in section 103(e) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9603(e)) that may be found in sources of drinking water, and

“(2) may provide for the testing of any other substance that may be found in sources of drinking water if the Administrator determines that a substantial population may be exposed to such substance.

“(d) EXEMPTION.—Notwithstanding subsection (c), the Administrator may, by order, exempt from the requirements of this section a biologic substance or other substance if the Administrator determines that the substance is anticipated not to produce any effect in humans similar to an effect produced by a naturally occurring estrogen.

“(e) COLLECTION OF INFORMATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator shall issue an order to a person that registers, manufactures, or imports a substance for which testing is required under this subsection to conduct testing in accordance with the screening program described in subsection (a), and submit information obtained from the testing to the Administrator, within a reasonable time period that the Administrator determines is sufficient for the generation of the information.

“(2) PROCEDURES.—To the extent practicable the Administrator shall minimize duplicative testing of the same substance for the same endocrine effect, develop, as appropriate, procedures for fair and equitable sharing of test costs, and develop, as necessary, procedures for handling of confidential business information.

“(3) FAILURE OF REGISTRANTS TO SUBMIT INFORMATION.—

“(A) SUSPENSION.—If a person required to register a substance referred to in subsection (c)(1) fails to comply with an order under paragraph (1) of this subsection, the Administrator shall issue a notice of intent to suspend the sale or distribution of the substance by the person. Any suspension proposed under this paragraph shall become final at the end of the 30-day period beginning on the date that the person receives the notice of intent to suspend, unless during that period a person adversely affected by the notice requests a hearing or the Administrator determines that the person referred to in paragraph (1) has complied fully with this subsection.

“(B) HEARING.—If a person requests a hearing under subparagraph (A), the hearing shall be conducted in accordance with section 554 of title 5, United States Code. The only matter for resolution at the hearing shall be whether the person has failed to comply with an order under paragraph (1) of this subsection. A decision by the Administrator after completion of a hearing shall be considered to be a final agency action.

“(C) TERMINATION OF SUSPENSIONS.—The Administrator shall terminate a suspension under this paragraph issued with respect to a person if the Administrator determines that the person has complied fully with this subsection.

“(4) NONCOMPLIANCE BY OTHER PERSONS.—Any person (other than a person referred to in paragraph (3)) who fails to comply with an order under paragraph (1) shall be liable for the same penalties and sanctions as are provided under section 16 of the Toxic Substances Control Act (15 U.S.C. 2601 and following) in the case of a violation referred to in that section. Such penalties and sanctions shall be assessed and imposed in the same manner as provided in such section 16.

“(f) AGENCY ACTION.—In the case of any substance that is found, as a result of testing and evaluation under this section, to have an endocrine effect on humans, the Administrator shall, as appropriate, take action under such statutory authority as is available to the Administrator, including consideration under other sections of this Act, as is necessary to ensure the protection of public health.

“(g) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 4 years after the date of enactment of this section, the Administrator shall prepare and submit to Congress a report containing—

“(1) the findings of the Administrator resulting from the screening program described in subsection (a);

“(2) recommendations for further testing needed to evaluate the impact on human health of the substances tested under the screening program; and

“(3) recommendations for any further actions (including any action described in subsection (f)) that the Administrator determines are appropriate based on the findings.

“(h) SAVINGS CLAUSE.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to amend or modify the provisions of the Toxic Substances Control Act or the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act.”

SEC. 405. REPORTS ON PROGRAMS ADMINISTERED DIRECTLY BY ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY.

For States and Indian Tribes in which the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency has revoked primary enforcement responsibility under part B of title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (which title is commonly known as the Safe Drinking Water Act) or is otherwise administering such title, the Administrator shall provide every 2 years, a report to Congress on the implementation by the Administrator of all applicable requirements of that title in such States.

SEC. 406. RETURN FLOWS.

Section 3013 of Public Law 102-486 (42 U.S.C. 13551) shall not apply to drinking water supplied by a public water system regulated under title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (the Safe Drinking Water Act).

SEC. 407. EMERGENCY POWERS.

Section 1431(b) is amended by striking out “$5,000” and inserting in lieu thereof “$15,000”.

SEC. 408. WATERBORNE DISEASE OCCURRENCE STUDY.

(a) SYSTEM.—The Director of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, shall jointly establish—

(1) within 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, pilot waterborne disease occurrence studies for at least 5 major United States communities or public water systems; and

(2) within 5 years after the date of enactment of this Act, a report on the findings of the pilot studies, and a national estimate of waterborne disease occurrence.

(b) TRAINING AND EDUCATION.—The Director and Administrator shall jointly establish a national health care provider training and public education campaign to inform both the professional health care provider community and the general public about waterborne disease and the symptoms that may be caused by infectious agents, including microbial contaminants. In developing such a campaign, they shall seek comment from interested groups and individuals, including scientists, physicians, State and local governments, environmental groups, public water systems, and vulnerable populations.

(c) FUNDING.—There are authorized to be appropriated for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2001, $3,000,000 to carry out this section. To the extent funds under this section are not fully appropriated, the Administrator may use not more than $2,000,000 of the funds from amounts reserved under section 1452(n) for health effects studies for purposes of this section. The Administrator may transfer a portion of such funds to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention for such purposes.

SEC. 409. DRINKING WATER STUDIES.

(a) SUBPOPULATIONS AT GREATER RISK.—The Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency shall conduct a continuing program of studies to identify groups within the general population that are at greater risk than the general population of adverse health effects from exposure to contaminants in drinking water. The study shall examine whether and to what degree infants, children, pregnant women, the elderly, individuals with a history of serious illness, or other subpopulations that can be identified and characterized are likely to experience elevated health risks, including risks of cancer, from contaminants in drinking water.

(b) BIOLOGICAL MECHANISMS.—The Administrator shall conduct studies to—

(1) understand the biomedical mechanisms by which chemical contaminants are absorbed, distributed, metabolized, and eliminated from the human body, so as to develop more accurate physiologically based models of the phenomena;

(2) understand the effects of contaminants and the biomedical mechanisms by which the contaminants cause adverse effects (especially noncancer and infectious effects) and the variations in the effects among humans, especially subpopulations at greater risk of adverse effects, and between test animals and humans; and

(3) develop new approaches to the study of complex mixtures, such as mixtures found in drinking water, especially to determine the prospects for synergistic or antagonistic interactions that may affect the shape of the dose-response relationship of the individual chemicals and microbes, and to examine noncancer endpoints and infectious diseases, and susceptible individuals and subpopulations.

(c) STUDIES ON HARMFUL SUBSTANCES IN DRINKING WATER.—

(1) DEVELOPMENT OF STUDIES.—The Administrator shall, after consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the Secretary of Agriculture, and, as appropriate, the heads of other Federal agencies, conduct the studies described in paragraph (2) to support the development and implementation of the most current version of each of the following:

(A) Enhanced surface water treatment rule (59 Fed. Reg. 38832 (July 29, 1994)).

(B) Disinfectant and disinfection byproducts rule (59 Fed. Reg. 38668 (July 29, 1994)).

(C) Ground water disinfection rule (availability of draft summary announced at (57 Fed. Reg. 33960; July 31, 1992)).

(2) CONTENTS OF STUDIES.—The studies required by paragraph (1) shall include, at a minimum, each of the following:

(A) Toxicological studies and, if warranted, epidemiological studies to determine what levels of exposure from disinfectants and disinfection byproducts, if any, may be associated with developmental and birth defects and other potential toxic end points.

(B) Toxicological studies and, if warranted, epidemiological studies to quantify the carcinogenic potential from exposure to disinfection byproducts resulting from different disinfectants.

(C) The development of dose-response curves for pathogens, including cryptosporidium and the Norwalk virus.

(3) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subsection $12,500,000 for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2003.

SEC. 410. BOTTLED DRINKING WATER STANDARDS.

Section 410 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 349) is amended as follows:

(1) By striking "Whenever" and inserting "(a) Except as provided in subsection (b), whenever".

(2) By adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

(b)(1) Not later than 180 days before the effective date of a national primary drinking water regulation promulgated by the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency for a contaminant under section 1412 of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300g-1), the Secretary shall promulgate a standard of quality regulation under this subsection for that contaminant in bottled water or make a finding that such a regulation is not necessary to protect the public health because the contaminant is contained in water in public water systems (as defined under section 1401(4) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 300f(4))) but not in water used for bottled drinking water. The effective date for any such standard of quality regulation shall be the same as the effective date for such national primary drinking water regulation, except for any standard of quality of regulation promulgated by the Secretary before the date of enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996 for which (as of such date of enactment) an effective date had not been established. In the case of a standard of quality regulation to which such exception applies, the Secretary shall promulgate monitoring requirements for the contaminants covered by the regulation not later than 2 years after such date of enactment. Such monitoring requirements shall become effective not later than 180 days after the date on which the monitoring requirements are promulgated.

(2) A regulation issued by the Secretary as provided in this subsection shall include any monitoring requirements that the Secretary determines appropriate for bottled water.

(3) A regulation issued by the Secretary as provided in this subsection shall require the following:

(A) In the case of contaminants for which a maximum contaminant level is established in a national primary drinking water regulation under section 1412 of the Public Health Service Act, the regulation under this subsection shall establish a maximum contaminant level for the contaminant in bottled water which is no less stringent than the maximum contaminant level provided in the national primary drinking water regulation.

(B) In the case of contaminants for which a treatment technique is established in a national primary drinking water regulation under section 1412 of the Public Health Service Act, the regulation under this subsection shall require that bottled water be subject to requirements no less protective of the public health than those applicable to water provided by public water systems using the treatment technique required by the national primary drinking water regulation.

(4)(A) If the Secretary does not promulgate a regulation under this subsection within the period described in paragraph (1), the national primary drinking water regulation referred to in paragraph (1) shall be considered, as of the date on which the Secretary is required to establish a regulation under paragraph (1), as the regulation applicable under this subsection to bottled water.

(B) In the case of a national primary drinking water regulation that pursuant to subparagraph (A) is considered to be a standard of quality regulation, the Secretary shall, not later than the applicable date referred to in such subparagraph, publish in the Federal Register a notice—

(i) specifying the contents of such regulation, including monitoring requirements, and

(ii) providing that for purposes of this paragraph the effective date for such regulation is the same as the effective date for the regulation for purposes of title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (or, if the exception under paragraph (1) applies to the regulation, that the effective date for the regulation is not later than 2 years and 180 days after the date of the enactment of the Safe Drinking Water Act Amendments of 1996)."

SEC. 411. CLERICAL AMENDMENTS.

(a) PART B.—Part B (42 U.S.C. 300g and following) is amended as follows:

(1) In section 1412(b)(2)(C) by striking "paragraph (3)(a)" and inserting "paragraph (3)(A)".

(2) In section 1412(b)(8) strike "1442(g)" and insert "1442(e)".

(3) In section 1415(a)(1)(A) by inserting "the" before "time the variance is granted".

(b) PART C.—Part C (42 U.S.C. 300h and following) is amended as follows:

(1) In section 1421(b)(3)(B)(i) by striking "number or States" and inserting "number of States".

(2) In section 1427(k) by striking "this subsection" and inserting "this section".

(c) PART E.—Section 1441(f) (42 U.S.C. 300j(f)) is amended by inserting a period at the end.

(d) SECTION 1465(b).—Section 1465(b) (42 U.S.C. 300j-25) is amended by striking "as by" and inserting "by".

(e) SHORT TITLE.—Section 1 of Public Law 93-523 (88 Stat. 1600) is amended by inserting "of 1974" after "Act" the second place it appears and title XIV of the Public Health Service Act is amended by inserting the following immediately before part A:

TITLE V—ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE FOR WATER INFRASTRUCTURE AND WATER-SHEDS

SEC. 501. GENERAL PROGRAM.

(a) TECHNICAL AND FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE.—The Administrator may provide technical and financial assistance in the form of grants to States (1) for the construction, rehabilitation, and improvement of water supply systems, and (2) consistent with nonpoint source management programs established under section 319 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, for source water quality protection programs to address pollutants in navigable waters for the purpose of making such waters usable by water supply systems.

(b) LIMITATION.—Not more than 30 percent of the amounts appropriated to carry out this section in a fiscal year may be used for source water quality protection programs described in subsection (a)(2).

(c) CONDITION.—As a condition to receiving assistance under this section, a State shall ensure that such assistance is carried out in the most cost-effective manner, as determined by the State.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2003. Such sums shall remain available until expended.

SEC. 502. NEW YORK CITY WATERSHED, NEW YORK.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may provide technical and financial assistance in the form of grants for a source water quality protection program described in section 501 for the New York City Watershed in the State of New York.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $8,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2003. Such sums shall remain available until expended.

SEC. 503. RURAL AND NATIVE VILLAGES, ALASKA.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administrator may provide technical and financial assistance in the form of grants to the State of Alaska for the benefit of rural and Alaska Native villages for the development and construction of water systems to improve conditions in such villages and to provide technical assistance relating to construction and operation of such systems.

(b) CONSULTATION.—The Administrator shall consult the State of Alaska on methods of prioritizing the allocation of grants made to such State under this section.

(c) ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—The State of Alaska may use not to exceed 4 percent of the amount granted to such State under this section for administrative expenses necessary to carry out the activities for which the grant is made.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $25,000,000. Such sums shall remain available until expended.

SEC. 504. ACQUISITION OF LANDS.

Assistance provided with funds made available under this title may be used for the acquisition of lands and other interests in lands; however, nothing in this title authorizes the acquisition of lands or other interests in lands from other than willing sellers.

SEC. 505. FEDERAL SHARE.

The Federal share of the cost of activities for which grants are made under this title shall be 50 percent.

H.R. 3814

OFFERED BY: MR. GANSKE

AMENDMENT No. 16: Page 116, after line 2, insert the following new section:

SEC. 615. (a) LIMITATION ON USE OF FUNDS TO ISSUE CERTAIN PATENTS.—None of the funds made available in this Act may be used by the Patent and Trademark Office to issue a patent when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that the patent is for any invention or discovery of a technique, method, or process for performing a surgical or medical procedure, administering a surgical or medical therapy, or making a medical diagnosis.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—The limitation established in subsection (a) shall not apply to the issuance of a patent when it is made known to the Federal official having authority to obligate or expend such funds that—

(1) the patent is for a machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or improvement thereof, that is itself patentable subject matter, and the technique, method, or process referred to in subsection (a) is performed by or is a necessary component of the machine, manufacture, or composition of matter; or

(2)(A) the patent is for a new use of or a new indication for a drug (as defined in section 201(g)(1) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321(G)(1))), new drug (as defined in section 201(p) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 321(p))), biologic product (as defined in section 600.3(h) of title 21, Code of Federal Regulations), or biotechnological process, that is not itself patentable subject matter; and

(B) the effect of such drug, new drug, biologic product, or biotechnological process on the body part on which it is used in the claimed method was not previously known or obvious to a person or ordinary skill in the art.

OFFERED BY: MR. GEKAS

AMENDMENT No. 17: Page 116, after line 2, add the following new section:

SEC. 615. (a) Chapter 13 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 1310 the following new section:

"§ 1311. Continuing appropriations

"(a)(1) If any regular appropriation bill for a fiscal year does not become law prior to the beginning of such fiscal year or a joint resolution making continuing appropriations is not in effect, there is appropriated, out of any moneys in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and out of applicable corporate or other revenues, receipts, and funds, such sums as may be necessary to continue any project or activity for which funds were provided in the preceding fiscal year—

“(A) in the corresponding regular appropriations Act for such preceding fiscal year; or “(B) if the corresponding regular appropriation bill for such preceding fiscal year did not become law, then in a joint resolution making continuing appropriations for such preceding fiscal year.

“(2) Appropriations and funds made available, and authority granted, for a project or activity for any fiscal year pursuant to this section shall be at a rate of operations not in excess of the lower of—

“(A) the rate of operations provided for in the regular appropriation Act providing for such project or activity for the preceding fiscal year,

“(B) in the absence of such an Act, the rate of operations provided for such project or activity pursuant to a joint resolution making continuing appropriations for such preceding fiscal year,

“(C) the rate of operations provided for in the House or Senate passed appropriation bill for the fiscal year in question, except that the lower of these two versions shall be ignored for any project or activity for which there is a budget request if no funding is provided for that project or activity in either version,

“(D) the rate provided in the budget submission of the President under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, for the fiscal year in question, or “(E) the annualized rate of operations provided for in the most recently enacted joint resolution making continuing appropriations for part of that fiscal year.

“(3) Appropriations and funds made available, and authority granted, for any fiscal year pursuant to this section for a project or activity shall be available for the period beginning with the first day of a lapse in appropriations and ending with the earlier of—

“(A) the date on which the applicable regular appropriation bill for such fiscal year becomes law (whether or not such law provides for such project or activity) or a continuing resolution making appropriations becomes law, as the case may be, or

“(B) the last day of such fiscal year.

“(b) An appropriation or funds made available, or authority granted, for a project or activity for any fiscal year pursuant to this section shall be subject to the terms and conditions imposed with respect to the appropriation made or funds made available for the preceding fiscal year, or authority granted for such project or activity under current law.

“(c) Appropriations and funds made available, and authority granted, for any project or activity for any fiscal year pursuant to this section shall cover all obligations or expenditures incurred for such project or activity during the portion of such fiscal year for which this section applies to such project or activity.

“(d) Expenditures made for a project or activity for any fiscal year pursuant to this section shall be charged to the applicable appropriation, fund, or authorization whenever a regular appropriation bill or a joint resolution making continuing appropriations until the end of a fiscal year providing for such project or activity for such period becomes law.

“(e) No appropriation is made by this section for a fiscal year for any project or activity for which there is no authorization of appropriations for such fiscal year.

“(f) This section shall not apply to a project or activity during a fiscal year if any other provision of law (other than an authorization of appropriations)—

“(1) makes an appropriation, makes funds available, or grants authority for such project or activity to continue for such period, or

“(2) specifically provides that no appropriation shall be made, no funds shall be made available, or no authority shall be granted for such project or activity to continue for such period.

“(g) For purposes of this section, the term ‘regular appropriation bill’ means any annual appropriation bill making appropriations, otherwise making funds available, or granting authority, for any of the following categories of projects and activities:

“(1) Agriculture, rural development, and related agencies programs.

“(2) The Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the judiciary, and related agencies.

“(3) The Department of Defense.

“(4) The government of the District of Columbia and other activities chargeable in whole or in part against the revenues of the District.

“(5) The Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, and related agencies.

“(6) The Department of Housing and Urban Development, and sundry independent agencies, boards, commissions, corporations, and offices.

“(7) Energy and water development.

“(8) Foreign assistance and related programs.

“(9) The Department of the Interior and related agencies.

“(10) Military construction.

“(11) The Department of Transportation and related agencies.

“(12) The Treasury Department, the U.S. Postal Service, the Executive Office of the President, and certain independent agencies.

“(13) The legislative branch.”

(b) The analysis of chapter 13 of title 31, United States Code, is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 1310 the following new item:

“1311. Continuing appropriations.”

(c) The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to fiscal years beginning after September 30, 1996.

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 104th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 142

WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, JULY 18, 1996

No. 106

Senate

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m., and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Gracious God, knowledge of You is our purpose and our passion. It is also our greatest need and our most urgent desire. We really want to know You, not just as some distant creator and sustainer of the universe but as our Father and our Friend. We confess that often our lack of knowledge of You is the cause of our insecurity, our inconsistency, and our insufficiency. It also accounts for our vacillation in our prayers. We commit this day to seek to know You better. We open our true selves to You; we want to be real, honest, and vulnerable with You; we invite You to invade every aspect of our relationships and our responsibilities today. Show us Your will and give us the strength and courage to follow Your guidance. We dedicate ourselves to make knowledge of You our first priority. Show us Your grace and goodness, righteousness and power. We place our total trust in You, and we will live by faith in You today. Be the unseen but undeniable presence in every moment of this day.

Gracious Lord, as we seek to know You and understand You, we wonder why good people face difficult and painful things. We wonder about the crash of the TWA aircraft. We think of the young people and the sponsors who were with them from Montoursville, PA. We realize that Your most difficult decision was to allow this world to be free in which accidents can happen, wrong choices can be made. And we turn to You for Your strength and courage in the midst of questions that seem to be without answers. But we also know that in spite of everything, You are in control, and so we trust You as our Lord and Savior. Amen.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able acting majority leader, Senator STEVENS, is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, this morning the Senate will immediately resume consideration of the Department of Defense appropriations bill.

Under a previous order, the Senate will proceed to a series of three rollcall votes on the remaining amendments and passage of the Department of Defense appropriations bill.

Following passage of the defense bill, the Senate will then proceed to the reconciliation bill, S. 1956. That matter will be considered under a 20-hour statutory limitation, and the majority leader is hopeful that under the 20-hour statutory time limitation, some time can be yielded back. Senators can expect rollcall votes throughout the day on amendments to the reconciliation bill and a late-night session is anticipated by the majority leader in the hopes of completing action on that matter today.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS FOR FISCAL YEAR 1997

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KYL). Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of S. 1894, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1894) making appropriations for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1997, and for other purposes.

The Senate resumed consideration of the bill.

Pending:

Harkin/Simon amendment No. 4492, relating to payments by the Department of Defense of restructuring costs associated with business combinations.

Levin amendment No. 4893, to strike funding for new production of F-16 aircraft in excess of six, and transfer the funding to increase funding for anti-terrorism support.

AMENDMENT NO. 4492

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will now proceed to rollcall votes with respect to amendments offered on Wednesday, July 17, with 2 minutes for explanation equally divided prior to each vote. The first amendment is No. 4492, the motion to table. The yeas and nays have been ordered.

Who yields time?

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I understand we have a minute on each side to explain the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, all I can say is:

Remember the $600 toilet seat and the $500 hammers that had taxpayers up in arms during the mid-1980's. Today's subsidized mergers are going to make them look like bargains.

That is not my quote. That is a quote of Lawrence Korb, President Reagan's Under Secretary of Defense.

In 1993, DOD changed its policy to allow payments to defense contractors for the costs of mergers and acquisitions. The GAO and inspector general have both recently issued reports that seriously question DOD's purported savings.

This amendment simply puts a 1-year hold on merger costs while the GAO, the IG, and OMB put together a mechanism to make sure that future payments actually result in savings. It does not affect Government assistance to laid-off workers. It does not prohibit payment of any merger costs which DOD is contractually obligated to pay in the fiscal year 1997.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, this amendment would prevent severance pay for employees under a restructuring plan. It would eliminate early retirement incentive payments for employees, employee retraining costs, relocation expenses for retrained and retained employees, placement services for employees, and continued medical-dental-life insurance coverage for terminated employees. In the past 3 years, the Department of Defense has reimbursed contractors $300 million in restructuring costs and will save $1.4 billion, a 450-percent return on the investment.

Mr. President, it is my understanding this will be a 20-minute vote, regular vote, and the following votes will be 10 minutes. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska is correct.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, the yeas and nays have been ordered?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The question is on agreeing to the motion to table. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BUMPERS] and the Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD] are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 71, nays 27, as follows:

NOT VOTING—2

Bumpers Dodd

The motion to lay on the table the amendment (No. 4492) was agreed to.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. GRAMM. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Does the Senator from Michigan wish to proceed?

Mr. LEVIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4893

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, this amendment would transfer money that the Air Force did not ask for for two F-16's and transfer it into an antiterrorist emergency account which we created yesterday which the Department of Defense very much needs and wants.

The original budget request asked us for four F-16's. Then when we asked the Air Force, if they had additional funds, what would they spend those funds on? They said, well, if they had about $2 billion extra, they would add two more F-16's, for a total of six. In this appropriations bill, there are eight, four more F-16's than the Air Force requested in their original budget request and two more even than they asked for on their wish list.

So what this amendment would do is transfer that $48 million not requested by the Air Force for F-16's and move it into an antiterrorism emergency fund.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, after the event of last night, this is a very serious matter. I want to start off by assuring the Senate that we have money for counterterrorism in the Commerce bill, in the Treasury-Post Office bill, in the Transportation bill. I want to tell you as chairman of this committee, there are significant—very significant—sums in the classified portions of this bill for counterterrorism. So the counterterrorism issue should be set aside.

The question is, are the two extra F-16's—the F-4 Wild Weasels are being retired. The F-16's can take their place in that role. The F-16's—it is true what the Senator said, they first asked for two. When we looked at it, and the authorization bill authorized four, we went into it in depth. I personally talked to General Fogleman, Chief of the Air Force, about the need. He said they do in fact need this. As a matter of fact, General Ralston who is now the Vice Chairman of the Joint Chiefs, has said that we are short 120 airplanes if the F-16's are to carry out the two contingency roles.

I believe we need these extra two F-16's. That is the issue, not counterterrorism. I moved to table this amendment. This will be a rollcall vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FRIST). The question occurs on agreeing to the motion to lay on the table the Levin amendment No. 4893. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BUMPERS] is necessarily absent.

NOT VOTING—1

Bumpers

The motion to lay on the table the amendment (No. 4893) was agreed to.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. INOUE. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

B-52 MODIFICATIONS AMENDMENT

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, yesterday during consideration of the defense appropriations bill, the Senate adopted my amendment allocating an additional $11,500,000 in Air Force aircraft procurement funds for modifications to B-52 bombers. I want to explain the source for these funds.

In reporting out its version of the fiscal year 1997 Defense Appropriations Act, the committee added operations and maintenance funds to maintain the current force structure for B-52 bomber attrition reserve aircraft.

My amendment allocated funds from within the aircraft procurement account to modify these aircraft. These modifications are required to maintain the combat effectiveness of these aircraft should they be called upon to fly combat missions.

The funds for the bomber modifications are to be offset by a decrease of funds allocated for the F-15 fighter data link modifications in the same appropriations account.

The fighter data link funds are excess to program requirements due to a delay in a projected contract award. The fighter data link program remains fully funded for fiscal year 1997.

HARRISBURG INTERNATIONAL AIRPORT

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise to alert my colleagues to an environmental restoration center at the Harrisburg International Airport, formerly Olmsted Air Force Base, located in Pennsylvania. My colleague, Congressman GEORGE GEKAS, has shown great leadership on the issue of environmental restoration.

In 1984, this former Air Force base was designated an Environmental Protection Agency Superfund site. For the last 13 years, an intense effort under the guidance of the EPA, has been undertaken at the local, State, and Federal level to determine the nature of the origins, locations, and the proper remediation of the waste left by the U.S. Air Force. A database established at the site will enable all future site users to have an understanding of the remediation efforts undertaken. By the time all the current participants have left the site, the only remaining reliable reference source will be this database.

Mr. STEVENS. I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania for his efforts in keeping the committee informed of his actions on this matter. I will work with my colleagues during conference to examine this matter more closely.

SACRIFICES FOR DEFENSE

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I want to congratulate my colleagues on the Appropriations Committee, Senator STEVENS and Senator INOUE, on their efforts to complete action on the Fiscal Year 1997 Defense Appropriations bill. Their management of this complex bill is masterful and executed with their customary efficiency. The bill is within the 602(b) allocations and it is consistent with the amount recommended by the budget resolution.

This bill addresses legitimate defense needs and provides support for the men and women in our military. It contains a 3-percent raise in pay for military personnel and a 4-percent raise in the basic allowance for quarters, both effective January 1, 1997.

It fully funds the initiative included in the fiscal year 1997 Defense authorization bill to support the operations of, and enhanced modifications for, the SR-71 reconnaissance aircraft. The rationale for including this system in the fiscal year 1997 budget is that it is an invulnerable proven system, available day or night, in all-weather, regardless of cloud cover. It is available for our commanders in the theater, on an on-call basis, to provide near-real-time imagery of the battlefield or area of interest to those Commanders. As such, it is now available as America's premier tactical reconnaissance airborne system. Furthermore, it is inexpensive, compared to the costs incurred for the development of our unmanned aerial vehicles now being funded. I am a strong supporter of developing UAV's as rapidly as prudent development schedules allow, but it will still be years before a proven system can be fielded. When that occurs, I would support retiring the Blackbird aircraft, but it would be foolish to throw away this unique system before it is fully replaced. Therefore, I congratulate the managers for their support of continuing the SR-71 in service. The funding includes $30 million for 1 year of operations, and $9 million in modification costs which enhance the real-time downlink from the aircraft directly to our commanders on the ground. I hope and certainly expect that our commanders in the field, in Korea, in Bosnia, and in other regions of interest will call upon the system frequently to provide the unique data for them that is now available.

My concern regarding this bill is not with the many worthy provisions contained with it. I do not want a weak military, unable to defend our legitimate and vital national security interests. But neither do I want a weak nation, sapped of its vitality, worn down and shabby because legitimate domestic needs have been neglected in favor of greater spending on defense. I do not want to see in America a street person, dirty, dressed in rags, but carrying a shiny new pistol. I want to see in America a hard-working, educated, prosperous homeowner, with a well-kept yard where bright-eyed and well-fed children play.

I know that this bill is within its allocation and consistent with the budget resolution guidelines, but I believe that the budget resolution guidelines are out of balance with American priorities, skewed toward military spending at the expense of education, infrastructure, and other domestic necessities. I would rather rebuild bridges over mighty rivers than build bridges on unneeded ships. I would rather spend funds on domestic airline safety measures than on unrequested fighter aircraft. I would rather support more police on our city streets stopping bullets than futuristic missile-stopping missiles aimed at a flimsy threat.

This bill is $10.2 billion over the administration's request for defense. Some have argued that defense spending has declined in real terms over the last 10 years, and that buying weapons now rather than later in the decade saves money. But the funding for domestic programs has also declined, and continues to decline. If we are to make good on our promises to reduce the deficit and to bring spending in line with reality, every program, domestic and defense alike, must share in the sacrifice. Right now, domestic programs are being cut more deeply in order to support defense spending that is above the administration's request. For instance, the Department of Agriculture, as part of its Water 2000 initiative to provide safe, affordable drinking water to every home in the United States by the turn of the century, estimates that $9.8 billion is needed to accomplish that goal. This $9.8 billion is needed to provide nearly 3 million U.S. households—176,114 of them in my own State of West Virginia—with clean drinking water. For less than the amount added to the Department of Defense for 1 year, we could provide clean, safe, drinking water to 8 million suffering Americans.

The budget resolution, which passed without my support, deliberately chose to sacrifice safe drinking water, education, highways, medical research, police, children's programs, and other peaceful domestic programs, in order to spend more on weapons and war. I regret the choice and the path that we have taken. This defense appropriations bill is the result of that decision, and reflects the largess bestowed upon the Defense Department at the expense of the Departments of Education, Labor, Agriculture, Environment, Health and Human Services, Interior, and others. It reflects the decisions taken in the defense authorization bill, which I voted against. Therefore, I must regretfully vote against this bill.

Mr. GLENN. Mr. President, I rise today in opposition to S. 1894, the Department of Defense appropriations bill for fiscal year 1997. This bill suffers from the same fundamental defect as S. 1745, the national defense authorization bill, a bill I also opposed.

The appropriations bill adds $10.2 billion to the President's budget request. The $10.2 billion is spent partially funding programs not requested by the administration for which we will pay billions in the outyears. For example, the bill adds $856 million for ballistic missile defense research, of which $300 million is added to the national missile defense account. The bill also adds $525 million in unrequested funds for the DDG-51, $701 million in unrequested funds for the new attack submarine, $300 million in unrequested funds for the V-22, $489 million in unrequested funds for the F/A-18 C/D, $760 million in unrequested funds for National Guard and Reserve equipment, $204.5 million in unrequested funds for the C-130, $107.4 million in unrequested funds for the F-16, and $210 million in unrequested funds for the JSTARS program.

I have been a long time supporter of our efforts to ensure our national security. However, Mr. President, this is the second time in my Senate career that I have felt that I must oppose a Defense Appropriations bill. I cannot support adding billions and billions of dollars for programs that I am not convinced and the Pentagon does not believe we need. It is true that I would support additional funding for some of these programs but adding $10.2 billion in unrequested funding is simply too much particularly when we are cutting funding for critical programs elsewhere in the budget.

Mr. HATFIELD. Mr. President, as Chairman of the Appropriations Committee, which is responsible for recommending sound, fiscally responsible funding legislation to the Senate, I am deeply disturbed about the spending levels contained in the fiscal year 1997 Department of Defense appropriation bill.

This bill provides over $244 billion in budget authority for the coming year. This reflects the recently passed national defense authorization bill, which authorized nearly $11.3 billion more than the administration requested for military spending for 1997. Included in this legislation are billions of dollars worth of weapons the Pentagon says it does not want and cannot afford to maintain in the future. Meanwhile, vital domestic programs are being critically underfunded or terminated. Fiscally, this is unwise; morally, it is unconscionable.

Despite all the debate about balancing the Federal budget, it is apparent to me that we are not yet ready to break off our addiction to excessive military spending. Of even more concern, is the continued failure of this body to define national security in a truly comprehensive and meaningful way. As I have stated many times before, true national security consists of more than our arsenal of military weapons, it also includes the health and welfare of our population.

Many years ago, the cabinet agency tasked with protecting the national security of the United States was renamed from the Department of War to the Department of Defense. This is an important distinction. The definition of war is a state of open and hostile conflict between states or nations. The definitions of defense and security carry with them much broader connotations. Defense, or to defend, is to drive danger or attack away from. While security means freedom from danger, freedom from fear or anxiety, freedom from want or deprivation.

The mission of the Department of Defense is to protect the citizens of the United States against threats to our security. Let us recognize that these threats can take many forms, that they are internal as well as external. The American people are under attack today. The attacks are not as obvious as tanks rolling down Constitution Avenue or nuclear submarines sailing up the Potomac River. The enemies aren't as easily identifiable as a soldier pointing a gun, rather they are often subtle and insidious. But, make no mistake, we do have formidable enemies threatening our population. The enemies I speak of are disease and disability.

In one year, more Americans will die from disease than from all the military battles fought in the twentieth century. The number of Americans killed in battle during World War I, World War II, Korea, Vietnam, Panama, the Persian Gulf, and Somalia total 426,175. Certainly a horrendous number and a tragic loss of life. In contrast, however, approximately 500,000 people will die of cancer this year alone. Lung cancer will kill 115,000 Americans, breast cancer 48,000, and prostate cancer 41,000. I could go on and on. Heart disease will kill over 743,000 people, diabetes 53,000, and AIDS 37,000. The list of casualties from disease is endless.

Make no mistake, there are thousands of tiny wars being fought in America today. The battleground is the human body. The command centers are clinical research laboratories and our weapons are test tubes and microscopes. The Generals and Admirals leading the fight are the medical researchers, physicians, and nurses all around the country searching for new treatments and cures for disease.

But in this war, the front line troops are civilians as well as soldiers. This battle is as ugly and painful as any military conflict. Every day men, women, and children are being killed, maimed, and ravaged by disease. No mortars are being launched, but limbs are being amputated as a result of diabetes. No napalm has been dropped, but skin is destroyed and bodies are disfigured by EB. No nerve gas has been released, but brains and central nervous systems are disabled by Alzheimers and Parkinsons diseases. It is time to declare war on disease and disability. This is a battle which is worthy of the full commitment and resources of our Federal Government, including the Department of Defense. In fact, this is one war which I fully support.

The Department of Defense also has the responsibility to care for the men and women who sacrifice to serve and protect our country. In devoting a small portion of its considerable resources to medical research and treatment, the Pentagon invests in the health and welfare of our troops, as well as our military retirees, veterans, and family members.

Several years ago, Congress appropriated funds for and directed the Department of Defense to establish a peer-reviewed breast cancer research program. This program has been a tremendous success and is a vital component in the effort to find a cure for breast cancer. We have continued funding for that program in 1997. In this bill, we have also provided $100 million to establish a similar program for prostate cancer research.

Prostate cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death among men. Yet, it has largely been overlooked by the general public and research has been grievously underfunded by the Federal Government. In 1996, over 317,000 men will be diagnosed with prostate cancer and 41,400 will die from it. Yet, with early detection, 9 out of 10 men can be successfully treated for prostate cancer. Clearly, an investment in research to improve detection and treatment of this disease will yield a tremendous return.

Medical research is the key to winning the war against disease and disability. I am pleased that the Senate has included some funding for this critical effort in this legislation. In my view, however, the amount of resources devoted to life-destroying technologies compared to life-sustaining endeavors is still critically out of balance. The health and well-being of our population is every bit as vital to the Nation's security as our arsenal of military weapons. Until this imbalance is recognized and corrected, the people of our Nation will continue to be vulnerable to these destructive enemies and true national security will not be achieved, no matter what our level of military might.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the bill, S. 1894, will be read for the third time.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate shall proceed immediately to the House companion bill, H.R. 3610; that all after the enacting clause be stricken and the text of S. 1894, as amended, if amended, be inserted, and that H.R. 3610 be read for the third time.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read for the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from North Dakota is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I rise to discuss briefly today's vote on the defense appropriations bill. I will be voting for this bill, because it includes provisions that do support our national defense. But I have some serious concerns about the overall level of spending, as well as some other issues that I feel should be addressed in negotiations during the conference.

On the positive side, this bill contains $150 million to fund the Nunn-Lugar-Domenici amendment, which will strengthen the Nunn-Lugar program. As I have said a number of times on this floor, Nunn-Lugar is exactly the kind of investment in our security that we should be making. It is far cheaper to destroy Russian missiles and bombers now than to make new expenditures on a strategic deterrent or a missile defense system against them later.

The strengthened Nunn-Lugar program will also help us prevent the spread and use of weapons of mass destruction by terrorists. A terrorist nuclear, chemical, or biological attack is perhaps our worst security nightmare today.

Moreover, this defense bill contains $69 million for operating, maintaining, and upgrading the Nation's full fleet of B-52 bombers. The defense authorization bill rightly prohibited retirement of B-52's before Russia ratifies the START II Treaty. I am hopeful that the House will agree to the Senate's very modest investment. It will enable the Air Force to abide by the authorization bill's directive to retain this combat-proven force of long-range bombers.

On the other hand, given our bipartisan commitment to a balanced budget, the overall funding level in this bill is not sustainable. It exceeds the President's budget request by $10 billion. The $6 billion downpayment for unrequested ships and aircraft alone in the bill will create a funding crunch in the years to come. To make expansive procurement decisions as if they have no consequences for deficit reduction is not responsible.

Second, my colleagues will not be surprised to learn that I am troubled by the bill's commitment of $808 million for national missile defense, $300 million above the administration's request. This additional funding is unwanted, unneeded, unfrugal, and unwise.

So I will reluctantly vote for this bill in order to move the appropriations process forward. Yet I will closely examine the conference report on the bill. I urge the conferees to make it more fiscally responsible than the versions passed by either the Senate or the House of Representatives.

Thank you, Mr. President. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be 5 minutes, equally divided, under the control of the two managers.

Mr. INOUE. Mr. President, in a few minutes, the Senate will vote on the final passage of this bill. I wanted to use this opportunity to advise my colleagues of my complete support of this measure. Yes, this bill provides more funding than sought by the administration, but it is at a level approved by the Congress in the budget resolution. Furthermore, while it is $1.3 billion more than appropriated last year, it still falls short in keeping up with inflation.

Mr. President, it is a very good bill. It funds the priorities of the administration. It contains no controversial riders on social policy. It redresses shortfalls identified by our military leaders. It provides funding to cover overseas contingencies, and it meets the needs of our field commanders, who have identified many items that they require to improve the quality of the lives of our men and women in uniform.

Mr. President, it is a bipartisan bill. Yesterday, the Senate agreed on approximately 60 amendments and, by my count, nearly half were Democratic amendments. This should come as no surprise to my colleagues. The Appropriations Committee, particularly this subcommittee, has a long tradition of bipartisanship.

If I may, I would like to take my hat off to our chairman, who has done an extraordinary job in preparing the recommendations in the bill and managing it on the floor. Mr. President, there is no finer floor manager in the Senate than my friend from Alaska, TED STEVENS.

I thank the staff on both sides of the aisle for their help in this very difficult legislation. A particular note of thanks to the staff director, Steve Cortese, for his leadership. On my staff, a special thanks to Lt. Col. Tina Homeland, who kept her eye on health programs for me this year. Also Emelie East of the subcommittee who provided tireless energy in keeping track of all of the amendments and assuring their adoption.

So, Mr. President, I urge all of my colleagues to support this measure.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, this bill does reflect the partnership that the Senator from Hawaii and I have shared for many years. I can assure all Senators that this approach is a bipartisan approach and will be followed throughout the conference on this bill with the House.

I will make further statements after the vote, if I may. At this time, I yield the remainder of my time and ask for final passage of this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the bill pass?

The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk called the roll. Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. BUMBERS] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 72, nays 27, as follows:

NOT VOTING—1

Bumpers

The bill (H.R. 3610), as amended, was passed.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I thank the Senate for this overwhelming bipartisan support of this bill. It is a bill that I think meets the needs as best we can of our defense forces and maintains the defense of this country. This year we had a record number of requests to our subcommittee from Members of the Senate and, I might say, also from Members of the House that we had to consider. Were it not for this fine working relationship that the Senator from Hawaii and I have, it would be impossible to deal with a bill of this magnitude in a 24-hour period.

But we have done that, and there are a number of people who deserve to be identified now who have worked hard in the preparation of this bill. The Senator from Hawaii has mentioned the people on his side of the aisle. This team works together on a bipartisan basis on the staff level, too. So I want to note the contributions of the subcommittee staff on our side. We have this long record of bipartisan work together: Steve Cortese, who is our staff director; Charlie Houy, staff director on the other side; Peter Lennon, Jay Kimmitt, Mary Marshall, Jim Morhard, John Young, Sid Ashworth, Susan Hogan, Mazie Mattson, Justin Weddle, Candice Rogers, and Emelie East.

This year we were assisted by two individuals who were loaned to our committee. As I said, we have just had a tremendous workload this year. We have Darrell Roberson from the Air Force and Mike Gillmore from GAO who worked with us. During the floor debate yesterday, I was pleased to be able to have two of the high school interns from my office who have observed our work and were helpful to me yesterday, Brad Brunson from Fairbanks and Meegan Condon of Petersburg.

This was my first opportunity to manage a bill in the Chamber since the retirement of Senator Dole, and I want to express my thanks to our new leader, TRENT LOTT, for his unwavering efforts to help us get this bill passed. I thank the Senate for its patience.

Additionally, we have received full consideration from many Members. We started out yesterday morning, I believe, with about 150 amendments, and they have all been handled in one fashion or another in order to get to where we are today. I do thank Senator MCCAIN and Ann Sauer of his staff, who have worked with us this year to review amendments to make certain that we would not meet objections to them in terms of their presentation to the Senate here on a unanimous-consent basis. Today, I have Megan Curry of Juneau and Beth Pozzi of Anchorage with me in the Chamber.

I am pleased to once again thank the Senate for the support of this bill. I do think the American people should know that we have firm support here in the Senate now on a bipartisan basis to maintain the level of expenditures which we believe are necessary. I hope we can get the bill into conference and back as soon as possible, because we want time to work with the White House to make sure that the executive branch is willing to share with us this burden of maintaining the funding of our military throughout the world.

Mr. President, I now move to reconsider the vote the Senate has just taken to pass this bill.

Mr. INOUE. I move to table the motion.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate shall insist on its amendments and request a conference with the House.

The Chair appointed Mr. STEVENS, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. BOND, Mr. MCCONNELL, Mr. MACK, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. GREGG, Mr. HATFIELD, Mr. INOUE, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. JOHNSTON, Mr. BYRD, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. BUMPERS, Mr. LAUTENBERG, and Mr. HARKIN conferees on the part of the Senate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, S. 1894 shall be returned to the calendar.

Mr. STEVENS. I thank the Chair.

Mr. LOTT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader.

Mr. LOTT. Before the two managers of the Department of Defense appropriations bill leave the Chamber, I want to say again today, as I did yesterday, how much I appreciate the outstanding work that they did. We have just seen an unbelievable accomplishment, for this bill to have been completed in 24 hours, with tremendous effort yesterday. They obviously are two of the very best managers we have in the Senate, and on behalf of the Senate I thank them for their good work and hope that their example will be followed on other appropriations bills and with the bill that we are about to begin consideration of.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY, WORK OPPORTUNITY, AND MED-
1996

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate shall now proceed to the consideration of S. 1956, which the clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 1956) to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section 202(a) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997.

The Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, we are now ready to go to the reconciliation bill. The chairman of the Finance Committee, the Senator from Delaware, Mr. ROTH, is here, the chairman of the Budget Committee, Mr. DOMENICI, is here, and we have the ranking member, the Senator from Nebraska, Mr. EXON, here also. So we are ready to begin the debate.

I hope we can make progress and reach some agreement on limiting time. We need to complete this legislation by noon tomorrow. We have 20 hours of debate under the rules, plus amendments that could be voted on even after that 20 hours. So we have a lot of work to do between now and 12 o'clock tomorrow. But if we can continue to cooperate as we have been doing this week from both sides of the aisle, I am convinced we can do it, and that is what we should do. We have the distinguished ranking member of the Finance Committee here, the Senator from New York, Mr. MOYNIHAN, here.

I ask unanimous consent that the time between now and 1 p.m. be equally divided for opening statements only and that the majority leader be recognized at 1 p.m.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I yield the floor, Mr. President.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, first let me say to the distinguished majority leader, we will be working together with the Agriculture Committee and Finance Committee leadership, and we will try to live up to the Senator's desire that we finish this bill by noon tomorrow. I want to say, frankly, I do not see why we cannot.

When the majority leader gets the floor, I assume one of the early items of business will be to strike the Medicaid provision. That might be debated, but there is an hour limit even on that, and then the bill will be a welfare bill.

I think everybody should know that we have not seen very many amendments. Neither has the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee. But this is a reconciliation bill, so it is not so easy to put an amendment together that meets the test of an amendment to a reconciliation bill. For those who have them, the sooner we can see them, the sooner we can analyze them from the standpoint of points of order, or we may be helpful in some respects. So that is how I see the ensuing time. I thank the majority leader very much.

Having said that, I want to publicly first thank the two distinguished chairmen, the chairman of the Finance Committee, Chairman ROTH, and the chairman of the Agriculture Committee, Chairman LUGAR, and the ranking members. These two chairmen and their committees have crafted the legislation that meets the spending requirements given in the 1997 resolution adopted earlier this spring. Both of these chairmen will be here during the consideration of this legislation and will help manage amendments that might be offered in their respective parts of the bill.

I also thank Senator EXON, ranking member of the Budget Committee, who voted with all the Republicans on the Budget Committee on Tuesday to report this bill from our committee to the Senate floor. I am fully cognizant of the qualification he attached. That was that in fact the Medicaid provisions were going to be stricken. I have, just once again, to the best of my ability indicated we are pursuing that. The Senate will have to vote nonetheless, and the Senate will make that determination. I assume it will be almost unanimous that we do that; perhaps not unanimous, but overwhelming.

Mr. EXON. If I may speak there for just moment?

Mr. DOMENICI. Certainly.

Mr. EXON. I thank my friend for his kind remarks. I think it is important we move this matter along. I would like to add my plea to those on this side and those on the other side as well, to please give us the amendments that you have in mind as early as possible, hopefully maybe before noon. If we can get a list of the serious amendments that are going to be offered, then we are going to be in a better position, not only to fashion this bill that may eventually receive a substantial number of votes if some amendments can be agreed to, but also expedite the process. So I pledge my cooperation to every extent I can to the chairman of my committee, the chairman of the Finance Committee, and the ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee. I think the four of us working together with our usual understanding and cooperation can move this matter along. That is my desire.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank my colleague.

Finally, I want to thank our former colleague and former Republican leader of the Senate, Senator Dole, who tried not once, not even twice, but three times in this Congress to get welfare reform enacted. I believe his leadership will be felt even in his absence from the Chamber today, as this legislation moves forward and, hopefully, this time secures the signature of the President of the United States after these earlier vetoes by the President of the United States.

First, for those who may be watching this process, let me briefly explain what we are about to do today. After the President vetoed the Balanced Budget Act of 1995 last winter, and after the failure to find common ground on a plan to achieve balance in our budget, the process moved on and Congress again put together another budget blueprint that achieved balance in 2002. The blueprint, known as Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for Fiscal Year 1997, was adopted early in June. The budget resolution does not go to the President for his signature, but rather directs the action of the authorizing and spending committees on how to proceed for the remainder of the year to come into compliance with that budget blueprint and resolution. The budget blueprint also included instructions to 11 Senate committees to make changes in legislation in entitlement programs within their jurisdiction to cause fundamental reform of these programs, but also at the same time to slow the spending and achieve the deficit reduction envisioned in that budget plan.

Today we begin debate on the first of three reconciliation bills that were prescribed by that budget resolution. The reconciliation bills are very special because they have protections and procedures that the Budget Act established for their consideration. And because of the need to have them enacted to implement that budget blueprint, they receive some very special consideration and are immune from some of the rules, and some of the privileges that Senators have are denied with reference to these kinds of bills.

This first one addresses two major areas of public concern, welfare and the escalating costs of Medicaid. The bill before us at this moment makes very needed and fundamental reforms to our welfare system, a system that has clearly failed not only the American public as taxpayers, but also the very individuals and families and children that the system was supposed to help. Obviously, much more will be said by distinguished Senators on both sides of the aisle as to how that will be done in this bill.

The bill before us also makes many needed changes in the escalating Medicaid Program, but obviously that will not be long before the Senate for, hopefully early this afternoon, since it is the wish of the majority and the leadership here, it will be stricken by will of the Senate.

Federal spending under this bill before us today will still increase for both Medicaid and welfare from nearly $270 to $350 billion. That might surprise some. If we were to enact both of them, both of those programs would increase over the next 6 years from $270 to $350 billion. But compared to what would happen without these reforms, the bill would save the American taxpayers $126 billion. We are not going to get all of that because the portion that would be forthcoming under Medicaid will be stricken, but I believe there would be $56 billion left—Senator ROTH?

Mr. ROTH. That is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. As the savings over the projected costs of the welfare program in all of its ramifications as contained in this bill.

So, as we begin this debate, let me remind my colleagues that, because this is a privileged measure, a bill whose consideration is governed by rules established in the Budget Act, the amendments are limited both in time and scope. The total time on the bill under the statute is 20 hours. I would say right up front we, on this side, do not think we should use 20 hours. In fact, we do not believe we need much of our 10 hours allotted under this bill.

First-degree amendments get 2 hours, and second-degree amendments 1 hour, which is equally divided regardless of how much time is left on each side—an anomaly, but that is how it is. So if we had only an hour left and an amendment is forthcoming, we get half the time on the amendment. That is the way the timing is done on these amendments. We intend to move this along, but not to deny Members the opportunity to get their case before the Senate.

Also, I should remind everyone—and we will hear more about this as the debate unfolds—that amendments may not violate the Byrd rule, named for our distinguished colleague from West Virginia. This rule is very restrictive and is designed to maintain reconciliation bills as truly budget-focused bills. So I ask that Senators work with the leadership and Budget Committee staffs to determine if amendments violate the Byrd rule. If they violate the Byrd rule, you can offer them, nonetheless they would be subject to a point of order and that means you would have to get 60 votes of the U.S. Senate to pass them over the Byrd rule, which limits their adoption.

I should also say, the Budget Act does provide for the waiver or any point of order that might lie against a nongermane amendment, and that is a very, very heavy-handed test in this case, or an amendment that violates the Byrd rule. But that waiver requires 60 affirmative votes, as I have just indicated.

Shortly, I will discuss some of the substantive provisions, but I will not do that on this bill until the distinguished chairman and the ranking member on the Budget Committee have had a chance to talk about it. I am hopeful most of the substance can be handled by the committee chairmen. I will be here to help them move this along and to make sure we are as fair as possible with reference to the many procedural implications of a reconciliation bill.

I yield the floor.

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, if I understand the unanimous-consent request, there is 1 hour equally divided between the two sides up to 1 o'clock; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Two hours ten minutes equally divided.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, at this time, I yield myself 12 minutes of that time. Following my remarks, I yield the remaining time, up to the 1 o'clock time, to my friend and colleague from New York, the ranking member of the Finance Committee. We will be working jointly on the various amendments. I am grateful that both he and the chairman of the Finance Committee will be working jointly with us on this matter today.

Mr. President, as the Democratic leader on the Budget Committee, I come to the Senate floor today with some truly mixed emotions. I am most relieved that the Republican majority has decided that they will strike the Medicaid language from the reconciliation bill. It was with that understanding that I joined my colleague and chairman, Senator DOMENICI, in reporting out this bill to the floor.

Obviously, cooler heads in the Republican fever swamp prevailed. I trust this will be reflected in the vote. I salute my friend, the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee, for his role. Might I suggest that Senator DOMENICI's good counsel had much to do with the decision to seek a more productive and less combative path. But I say somewhat wistfully that I wish his voice of reason had not been drowned out earlier in the budget process.

For all their fluster and bluster, the Republican majority will walk away from the 104th Congress with precious little deficit reduction to show for it. There is no bipartisan 7-year budget plan. Far from it. Republicans made a lot of noise about balancing the budget. In the end, the Democrats made a lot more sense.

At this time, I renew a plea that I have made oftentimes, and that is, in view of the fact that we have an economy today that is moving ahead progressively and well, with little or no inflation concerns, I simply hope in due time, maybe sometime in the next couple of weeks, the Federal Reserve Board will recognize the situation and maybe begin to ease at least slightly the interest rate problem which continues to bother many sectors of America, including the stock market.

I do not think our decisions should be directly made here on what happens in any certain phase of our economy. But the facts of the matter are, as I just alluded to the fact we have no 7-year balanced budget plan. We do not have that because the Republican majority and their leadership in the House and the Senate have refused to meet with the President to see if we cannot come up with a bipartisan compromise.

I have said time and time again, and I am not sure that Americans totally understand it—sometimes I wonder if the news media understands it from the reports I have been reading—that both sides have agreed basically to make the cuts that are necessary to balance the budget in 7 years. It can be done, it should be done, and I appeal, once again, now that the Republican leadership of the House and the Senate have come out of their cocoon, to recognize this is the time to strike. Let's get together. Let's let the Republican leadership in the House and the Senate take up the offer of the President of the United States to meet and come up with a 7-year balanced budget plan.

I know there is a great deal of haste right now, Mr. President, to get out of town, to leave things here because we want to go about campaigning. Certainly, I believe that there is nothing that could better serve the United States of America—the great two-party system that has served us, with all its warts, quite well over the years than if we can, before we leave here, have a balanced budget agreement. It is clearly within our grasp if we would just get on, put aside some of the egos and come to some kind of understanding. I make that plea once again.

Mr. President, I believe that the Republican majority had little choice but to yank the Medicaid portion of this bill out, as we and the President had suggested. One did not have to read the tea leaves to see that it was certainly headed for a veto without that change. It was a plan hatched by the far right that reneged on the promises of providing health coverage to low-income Americans and those most in need of it—the elderly, children, and the disabled. Many of the Governors could not accept the plan because funding did not automatically adjust for changes in enrollment. I am glad that this unreasonable scheme has been laid to rest.

Now that the shackles of the Medicaid plan have been released, we have a good opportunity to work together and fashion a bipartisan welfare reform bill that will win not only the approval of the Congress but the signature of the President as well and I believe would have a good chance of receiving near universal support from the American people as well.

I compliment the majority for making some substantive and key changes in their previous welfare plan. For example, child care resources that were woefully lacking in their earlier efforts have been shored up, at least some. But the majority should know also that those of us on this side do not plan to spend the next 20 hours singing hosannas to their bill. We intend to offer amendments that we believe could significantly improve this bill and make it acceptable to a broad spectrum of Senators on both sides of the aisle.

I add, I would have preferred to deal with welfare reform outside of the reconciliation bill. Welfare reform is a policy issue, not a budgetary matter. In fact, there are no budgetary savings. I emphasize again, Mr. President, there are no budgetary savings from what most people believe as welfare. I, of course, reference aid to families with dependent children. The savings in this bill come from food stamps, child nutrition, denying SSI and food stamp benefits to most legal immigrants.

I hope in the future the majority will not feel the need to hide behind reconciliation skirts when every tough issue comes down the pike. I point out, too, that last year, we were able to come to a bipartisan agreement on welfare reform outside of the context of the budget reconciliation.

I emphasize once again, Mr. President, I think that while we are going to do this, making this part of the budget bill and the reconciliation process is not the way that this should have been handled. It should have been a freestanding bill. It should have come out of the Finance Committee which, I think, would have been the proper course of action. But, obviously, for many reasons that was not to be.

Mr. President, we have heard a great deal in this Congress about returning power to the States. Under the rubric of devolution, we have seen some thoughtful proposals, such as restrictions on unfunded mandates and others that are played bad, like the Medicaid plan.

But the clear signal we are getting from the townhall meetings and the State houses is the need for greater flexibility in dealing with these problems. I believe the Democrats answered that challenge in our updated "Work First" welfare plan that will shortly be offered as an amendment to this measure. It gives the States the flexibility to consolidate and streamline welfare operations yet protects children and saves $50 billion in the process.

As a former two-term Governor of Nebraska, I have more, Mr. President, than a passing acquaintance with the problems that are faced daily by the Nation's Governors. I have done my able best to help them where I could. I was an original cosponsor of the unfunded mandates bill. But as sympathetic as I may be to our Governors, we must ensure that welfare reform does not just meet their needs, their needs being the Governors. It must continue to meet the needs of the innocent children who have become pawns, unfortunately, in this debate.

In this regard, there are still areas of concern about the Republican package. I will not address all of them today. I am not wedded to any particular amendment, but I do want to touch upon a few concerns today that have a common thread. That common thread, that important thread, is kids in need. Children should not be an afterthought in welfare reform. Protecting children should be right up there with requiring able-bodied men and women to earn their keep.

The first issue in the voucher program is important. The Republican measure prohibits—prohibits, Mr. President—any assistance once a parent has been on the welfare rolls for a time limit to be determined by the individual States. This, Mr. President, could be anywhere from 60 days at a minimum to 5 years at the outside.

Under the Republican bill, no vouchers would be allowed for families reaching the time limits set by the individual States. They would be locked in to whatever State they were a resident of. In my book, this is draconian. We should not cut and run on our poor kids. Depriving a child of the bare necessities in life, such as food and clothing and shelter, serves no useful purpose. The Government is not punishing the parents; it is the children who would suffer. We should not visit the sins of the parents upon their children. I see no reason why we cannot design some sort of a voucher or noncash aid for these children. Under the Democratic work first plan, the States would provide a minimal safety net. That would be an enormous improvement to this bill.

My second criticism involves the inflexibility of the Republican plan during hard economic times. This bill cries out for more flexibility during recessions. Under the preferred Democratic proposal, children are entitled to assistance based on their household incomes, not whether the States have exhausted their funding due to increased needs during a recession or other uncontrollable events. This would be a reasonable and a desirable addition to the welfare reform package and something that I hope the Senate will accept.

My third concern, Mr. President, revolves around the food stamps and the optional block granting of the program. It is a good idea to encourage electronic benefit transfers and to reduce fraud and abuse in the Food Stamp Program as is called for in the Democrat work first plan. We should throw the book at violators, but I cannot say that I am as understanding about the Republicans' insistence on block granting food stamps.

It is evident to this Senator that States devote radically different levels of effort to our needy children. They do not treat them with the same level of compassion. By removing the Federal entitlement and block granting food stamps, we could knowingly exacerbate these differences. I am also concerned that block granting does not completely take into account the changes in the caseloads or regional economic trends.

Mr. President, many thoughtful observers have also suggested that the instigation of block granting would trigger a so-called race to the bottom. Let us understand that term. We are very much concerned that the way this is written now, it would almost guarantee a so-called race to the bottom among the States seeking to lower services to the poor so as not to attract more of them. Even worse, some States may reject the dwindling block grants and drop the whole burden on to the narrow shoulders of the counties and the local governments below them. We should not be abetting such a shirking of responsibility if it should happen.

Mr. President, there are, of course, many other issues, bones of contention, in this legislation that we will be addressing. Senators on both sides of the aisle will be talking about them and, undoubtedly, offering amendments. But I do believe that, with a few modifications, we could have a bill that sits well with both sides and with the American people. To pass their test, it will have to be a bipartisan effort that requires work while still protecting children. Those are the tricky waters that we still have to navigate over the next few hours. I trust that we will be successful.

Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time and yield it, as I have previously indicated, to the Senator from New York.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GREGG). Who seeks recognition? Who yields time?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I think, in the interest of symmetry and the fact of seniority and the overwhelming presence of the chairmanship, that the Senator from Delaware should speak now. In any event, I would like to hear him in the hopes that I might think of something to reflect upon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is the Senator from Delaware seeking time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may take.

Mr. President, this is the beginning of the end to the lengthy debate in the 104th Congress about the current welfare system. The issue of welfare reform has been frequently and passionately debated over these past months, and rightly so. The effects and consequences of the welfare system in some way touch us all.

Mr. President, it would be difficult to estimate exactly how many thousands of hours the Congress has devoted to this issue over the past months. The various committees in the Senate and the House of Representatives have taken testimony from Governors, Members of Congress advocating their own particular brand of reform, Cabinet officials, outside experts, advocacy groups, and so forth.

But of all of these, perhaps the clearest message for welfare reform I have found comes from a newspaper article about Sharon Stewart, a 33-year-old single mother who has been on welfare for nearly 12 years. In a Richmond Times-Dispatch article last month, Ms. Stewart was quoted as praising Virginia's new 2-year time limit on welfare benefits. She said, "I feel like I can actually accomplish something again. This is something I'm doing and nobody else is just giving me a hand-out."

With simple eloquence, Ms. Stewart told the Times-Dispatch, "this program should have been in effect when I [first] went on AFDC. It means people"—it means people—"are going to be independent. At first they're real scared and kind of back off, but I believe it will help in the long run."

In the same article, Tracy James, a mother of four children, also voiced her support for the time limit on benefits. She summed up the situation better than any of the experts when she stated, "The old law was too easy. I settled for it. [Now] it's either get yourself together or you're just stuck."

Eloise Anderson, the very distinguished director of the California Department of Social Services, recently responded to a reporter who asked whether time limits were a form of "tough love." Miss Anderson responded, "It's the real world."

Mr. President, this is the fundamental philosophy upon which our welfare reform package is based. We will help families through the crisis which forced them into poverty. But that assistance is only temporary, and they must again help themselves.

Welfare reform will restore the dignity to families who want more than to "just settle" for what the welfare system will give them.

The current AFDC program, as it was designed in the 1930's, abandoned many families long ago as a statistic of long-term dependency in contemporary society. The current welfare system has failed the very families it was intended to serve. Look at the record. The record speaks for itself. Unfortunately, in 1965, something like 3.3 million children received AFDC benefits. In 1990, more than 7.7 million children received AFDC. This growth occurred even though the total number of children in the United States had declined—I underscore "had declined"—by nearly 5 million between 1965 and 1990. In 1994, nearly 9.6 million children received AFDC. Last year, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services estimated that 12 million would receive AFDC benefits within 10 years under the current welfare system.

I think it is clear that the present system has not worked. To the contrary, rather than giving a lifting hand and helping people back to work, back to the mainstream, we find the record is consistently an increase in the number of families, the number of children, caught in the web of welfare.

If the present system was working well for children, we would, frankly, not be here today. I do not think anyone wants to make a claim that the existing system is good for children.

While the present welfare system is full of excuses, the welfare reform legislation being presented to the American people today is a bold challenge. While the present system quietly accepts the dependency of more than 9 million children, our proposal speaks loudly to them and insists they, too, are among the heirs to the blessing of this great Nation.

The key to their success will not be found in Washington, but, frankly, in the timeless values of family and work.

Mr. President, 90 percent of the children on AFDC live without one of their parents. Only a fraction of welfare families are engaged in work. The current welfare system has cheated these children of what they need most.

The reason the States will succeed in welfare reform where Washington has failed is because State and local officials see the faces of their neighbors, while Washington only sees caseload numbers. The bureaucracy in Washington is too detached, too removed, too far out of touch to reform the welfare system.

The opponents of welfare reform believe the States lack either the compassion or the capacity or both to serve needy families. They are wrong.

We understand that there is not a singular approach to welfare reform. We believe if families, if children, are going to escape from the vicious cycle of dependency, they must be enabled to find their own way out. Welfare reform is not simple because human beings are complex.

The goal of welfare reform for all families is for all families to leave welfare. The path on how they get there is not necessarily a straight line. Nor, under our approach, must all families follow the same path.

In contrast, this is precisely why Washington will never be able to end welfare as we know it. The existing system is designed more for the convenience of the bureaucracy than for the needs of the individuals. Washington wants to put its one shoe on every foot. That simply does not work. In the tradition of scientific management, everything must be reduced to bureaucratic rules, procedures, and mathematical equations. This is why, if we are truly seeking the answer to end dependency, Washington is the wrong place to look.

The causes and cures of poverty involve some of the most intimate acts in human behavior. What many families on welfare need cannot be sent through the mail or reproduced in the Federal Register. There is no flaw in admitting we do not understand how or why individuals will respond to the various incentives and sanctions present in everyday life in modern society. The mistake is believing, especially after 30 years of evidence to the contrary, that Washington does know how to apply these incentives and sanctions to the lives of millions of people.

Under the present system, welfare dependency is allowed to become a permanent condition. This is one of the cruelest features of the welfare system because it saps the human spirit.

Welfare reform will help free families from the present welfare trap and save future generations from its affect. To do this, we must give the State and local governments all of the tools they need to change the existing welfare system. What works in Delaware may not work in Virginia or New York and the States that demonstrated that it is time to move beyond the waiver process.

One of the basic flaws in the existing system is, while State officials have the responsibility to administer these programs, they do not—I emphasize the word "not"—have the authority they need to effectively run the program. That authority is dispensed by Washington one drop at a time, and this is no longer acceptable. Waivers are no substitute for an authentic welfare reform.

Since President Clinton vetoed welfare reform for a second time, we worked with the Nation's Governors to construct a comprehensive welfare reform package, which, of course, included Medicaid. And a compromise last February was supported by the most liberal Governor and the most conservative Governor and everyone in between. No one liked everything, but there was something for everyone. That is the essence of bipartisanship.

When this legislation was marked up in the Finance Committee, I included more than 50 Democratic amendments. Nearly half of all the Democratic amendments were incorporated into the legislation. Those changes still did not gain Democrat support in committee. And, of course, the administration still refused to compromise on Medicaid. So we are now separating Medicaid from the rest of the welfare package.

Let me say, Mr. President, although I am supporting and have supported the separation, it is a matter that I personally believe need not happen. The President, on several occasions, in addresses to the Governors, stated that many, many people on welfare would not take themselves off the rolls because they were fearful that they would put their children at risk, that they would not be covered by Medicaid. I think there is great truth in that statement. But, for that reason, it seems to me critically important that we deal with welfare and Medicaid as a package. That is what the Senate Finance Committee did, and that is what we have before us. But, as I stated earlier, we will be separating Medicaid from the rest of the welfare package.

Mr. President, we have a bipartisan bill. There is no need to look any further than the measure before us. Frankly, this legislation will look very familiar to my colleagues, as it closely resembles H.R. 4, as it was passed by the Senate last September by a vote of 87 to 12. In other words, it is basically similar legislation which received broad bipartisan support when they voted for H.R. 4 last September. With regard to such issues as work requirements and time limits, this legislation is nearly identical to the Senate-passed bill.

Mr. President, it has been 41 months since President Clinton outlined his welfare reform goals to the American people. Welfare reform was not enacted in 1993 or in 1994. Welfare reform is not about claiming political credit. We need to enact welfare reform for families like those of Sharon Stewart, Tracy James, and their children. If we do nothing, more children will fall into the trap of dependency. That is a certainty of what the current system will bring.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

(Mr. ASHCROFT assumed the chair.)

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield to myself whatever time I may require. I will express, once again, my admiration and gratitude for the tone of thoughtful inquiry which the chairman brings to these discussions. We will not agree today. We have not in a whole year in this regard, but we certainly are trying to lay out arguments and information as best we understand it. I think we know where we are going today, but it does not preclude us from one last effort. There is still hope. You may yet change your mind, but I do not think so today.

Mr. ROTH. Will the distinguished Senator yield?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I am happy to do it.

Mr. ROTH. I want to say what an honor and privilege it has been to work on these matters with the distinguished Senator from New York. There is no one on either side of the aisle who brings greater knowledge, understanding, and depth than Senator MOYNIHAN. Now, frankly, sometimes his conclusions are wrong, but that is understandable, and that is what makes for the democratic process. But I do want to say that working with them, in an effort to bring a solution, to be compassionate, to take care of the needs of the many children who are without is our common goal. I know he seeks that with all his intelligence and being.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, as I rise today, I find myself thinking of the passage with which Hannah Arendt begins her classic work, "The Origins of Totalitarianism." She speaks of the disasters of the First World War, and then the Second World War, and now the prospects of a third, final encounter between the two remaining world powers. She says, "This moment of anticipation is like the calm that settles after all hopes have died."

If I sound subdued today, I hope it will be taken in that light, rather than any diminished sense of the importance of what we are about to do, because we are all somehow subdued today. The Senate floor is all but empty. I see four Senators.

The lobbies are empty. There is no outcry against what we are doing. Two fine editorials appeared this morning in the Washington Post and the New York Times saying, "Do not do this." But those are rare voices at this moment.

We learn in the press that the President is concerned that there be vouchers made available for diapers. This is commendable, but scarcely a suggestion that something fundamental is about to happen. What is about to happen is we are going to repeal title IV-A of the Social Security Act, the provision established in 1935 in the act, aid to families with dependent children.

This will be the first time in our history that we have repealed a core provision of the Social Security Act. Further, we are choosing to repeal the provision for children. It is as if we are going to live only for this moment, and let the future be lost.

I said that there were few voices. Actually, there is one unified voice: that of every national religious group and faith-based charity. But we seem unable or unwilling to listen. They all oppose ending the entitlement. Catholic Charities USA and the Catholic bishops, especially, the National Council of Churches, Bread for the World, have persisted in this matter. Other organizations, as I say, are once again silent. Having briefly aroused themselves, they have sunk back into apathy, or resignation—or agreement with what is about to be done. We will not know if we do not hear.

Yesterday, Members of Congress received a letter from Father Fred Kammer, president of Catholic Charities USA, who wrote:

The welfare reform proposal before you reflects ignorance and prejudice far more than the experience of this Nation's poorest working and welfare families. This bill would end the basic guarantee of protection to our neediest families, and, in the words of Milwaukee's Archbishop, Rembert Weakland, OSB, nullify "America's 60-year covenant with its poor children and those who nurture them." It would also punish children born to welfare parents, legal immigrants, and desperately hungry citizens.

Welfare reform is acutely needed in this country, reform which is designed genuinely to move people who can do so from welfare to work. Today's proposals are largely a sham designed to appease the ignorant and to pander to our worst prejudices in an election year. There is little here to recommend to believers, for whom Jesus of Nazareth said, "Whatever you do to the least of my sisters and brothers, you do to me."

And then Father Kammer says:

Please stop this so-called "welfare reform" now lest election and budget politics shred the fabric of this Nation's protections and supports for its most vulnerable families.

Again in the words of Archbishop Weakland, "This is not welfare reform, but welfare repeal."

The Nation, its historians, and its poorest families will little remember what you say here, but they will long remember what you do here.

Sincerely, Fred Kammer, S.J. President, Catholic Charities USA.

This is an extraordinary statement by the president of one of the Nation's leading charities. But then he knows too well the profound impact this legislation will have on poverty and on children.

It is children we are talking about. I have been trying for most of this Congress to describe the consequences for children in ending support after 5 years. The average AFDC recipient will receive benefits for 13 years.

Ten months ago, as the distinguished chairman has observed, on September 19, 1995, the Senate passed a welfare bill providing just that. That bill, H.R. 4, as amended, was, as the chairman just said, nearly identical to the bill now before us. Again, to quote the chairman, "It was basically similar legislation." At that time, we had no data before us to give us a sense of what we were doing. There were 11 Democrats who voted against that bill—11. I hope one day we might see their names listed in a place of honor.

A few weeks later I learned that there was, in fact, in the Department of Health and Human Services, as you would expect, an analysis of H.R. 4 that addressed itself to the poverty impact of the bill.

Then on October 24, at the first and only meeting of the House-Senate conference on the legislation, I put it this way. I said:

Just how many millions of infants we will put to the sword is not yet clear. There is dicker to do. In April, the Department of Health and Human Services reported that when fully implemented, the time limits in the House bill would cut off benefits for 4,800,000 children. At that time, the Department simply assumed that the administration would oppose repeal. But the administration has since decided to support repeal. HHS has done a report on the impact of the Senate bill on children, but the White House will not release it. Those involved will take this disgrace to their graves.

During the following 2 days, the administration denied the existence of the HHS report. But then, on October 27, on the front page of the Los Angeles Times, there was an article by Elizabeth Shogren entitled, "Welfare Report Clashes with Clinton, Senate."

It began:

A sweeping welfare reform plan approved by the Senate and embraced by President Clinton would push an estimated 1.1 million children into poverty and make conditions worse for those already under the poverty line, according to a Clinton Administration analysis not released to the public.

A subsequent administration analysis of the conference report on H.R. 4, after the House and Senate provisions had been reconciled, estimated that it would plunge 1½ million children into poverty.

On December 22, 1996, when the conference report on that bill came back to the Senate, every Democrat save one voted "no."

Now, with these facts in front of them, Senators on our side—and not only on our side—voted almost unanimously against the bill.

I should point out that in some ways the bill before us, although basically identical to last year's legislation, as the chairman of the Finance Committee has said, is even worse in that it provides for very harsh measures against legal immigrants who are non-citizens. The Congressional Budget Office makes this point in its report on the measure. It says:

Chapter 4 would limit the eligibility of legal aliens for public assistance programs. It would explicitly make most immigrants ineligible for SSI and food stamp benefits. Savings would also materialize in other programs that are not mentioned by name.

This must be noted as a regression of genuine importance. In the beginning of this century, Western nations began the practice, and after a while, by treaty, international labor conventions, and such like, of extending social services available in a particular country to legal visitors or immigrants from another country. It was seen as a part of the comity of nations, part of the standard civilization which we had attained.

Now, sir, I had the opportunity to speak with our distinguished Secretary of Health and Human Services this morning, the Honorable Donna E. Shalala. She tells me that this bill will cut off some 200,000 legal immigrants currently receiving supplemental security income because of severe disabilities—cut them off. It will cut off women receiving services in battered women clinics, said Dr. Shalala. Things that civilized nations do not do, save perhaps when carried away, as Father Kammer said, by ignorance and prejudice.

Now to the present legislation. I recall the long and difficult effort to get the executive branch to follow its normal practice of providing a report on legislation saying this is what this legislation will do, this is why we support it or do not support it, or whatever.

Since May of this year, Representative SAM GIBBONS, ranking member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and I have been asking for a similar analysis of the poverty impact of the new Republican welfare bill. We asked for the poverty effects because they have a clarity for Members that perhaps more diffuse issues, such the operation of time limits. It is a usage with which we are familiar. Last winter, when Democratic Senators found out what the effects of H.R. 4 were, having voted for the bill, they turned around and voted against it. The President, having indicated he would support the bill, turned around and vetoed it.

So, since May of this year, Representative GIBBONS and I have been asking for a similar analysis of the effects of the new Republican welfare bill. Despite three separate written requests, no report has been forthcoming. But we did receive a letter on June 26 from Jacob L. Lew, the Acting Director of the Office of Management and Budget, in which he wrote:

As you recall, the administration's analysis of the conference report on H.R. 4 estimated that it would move 1.5 million children below the poverty line. Based on that analysis, it appears that improvements in the Roth/Archer bill would mean that somewhat fewer children would fall below the poverty line. But many of the factors that would move children below the poverty line remain the same in both bills.

So we have before us a bill that in the administration's own judgment would impoverish over 1 million children. But I remind you, Mr. President, we do not have an analysis, and we read in this Sunday's New York Times, by Robert Pear, an eminently respected reporter in this area, that the White House had given instructions to HHS that there was to be no report. I had not ever thought I would be standing on the Senate floor stating my understanding, that an administration has said we will not tell the Senate what it is doing. If we knew what it was doing, we would not do it. That is precisely what happened on our side of the aisle, and not just on our side of the aisle, between September and December of last year. If we knew what we were doing, we would not dare to do it, and therefore the information is being withheld.

I would say that Dr. June O'Neill, Director of the Congressional Budget Office, has been very forthcoming, but that is an institution within our ranks, as it were, and with which we have normal cooperation.

I talked about the problems of poverty, but I would like to make the point that this is not really the issue here.

Most children on AFDC are already poor. Those who are above the poverty line are part of that portion of the AFDC population which works part of the year, loses jobs, goes on welfare, goes back. Time limits would drop them completely below poverty because there would be no available income when they were not working.

Might I say we have an AFDC population that is made up of roughly three groups. One is a sizable number in which adult, mature families break up, and a mother finds herself with children and needs income for a relatively brief period. It is the equivalent of the mill closing and men out of work. Within 2 years' time, they are back on their own. They do not need any advice, they do not need any counseling.

It is income insurance for them, and it works.

There is a second, middle group which cycles on and off: Works, finds the work does not work out—jobs are lost, plants close and that kind of thing—then they go back onto welfare. Work comes along, they go off. And it is back and forth.

Then there is another group. In overall terms, it is much the largest group. This group is on welfare for a very long, continuous time. Thirteen years is the average.

The essential problem with this legislation is that it imposes time limits without any real provision for the heroic efforts that are required to take people who have been on welfare for a long while, get them off and keep them off.

I have no problem with that proposition, that work is what we should seek, independence is what we should seek. Some years ago, I wrote a long book on this subject, which began: "The issue of welfare is the issue of dependency. Whereas most people stand on their own two feet, dependent persons, as the buried image of the word implies, dependent people hang."

This very week Time magazine chose, on its page called "Notebook," to reproduce a cover of Time from July 28, 1967. It is called, 29 Years Ago in Time: DOGGED CONSISTENCY. There is a picture of the Senator from New York, and I am arguing the case—this is at a time when I was director of Joint Center for Urban Studies at MIT and at Harvard—that we have a crisis in our cities and it was getting worse.

I am quoted:

We are the only industrial democracy, he told a Senate subcommittee, that does not have a family allowance. And we are the only democracy whose streets are filled with rioters each summer. The biggest single experience anyone has is working.

No one argues that. But to put a time limit on, when you do not have provision for seeing that people have work, is to invite an urban crisis unlike anything we have known since the 1960's. It may be it will bring us to our senses. But it will be a crisis.

Here are the numbers. The Congressional Budget Office, in the cost estimate of the bill, said it would cut Federal welfare rolls by 30 to 40 percent by the year 2004. If we follow the estimates of the Senator from Delaware, and they are quite accurate, of course, by the year 2005, we will have over 10 million children on AFDC. Cut off 40 percent, and you have 4 million children dropped.

CBO estimates that, under the bill we are dealing with, we will cut off 3.5 million children by the year 2001. By the year 2001—5 years from now.

That would be an unprecedented experience, and its impact would be quite disproportionate in racial and ethnic terms. Two-thirds of those affected would be minorities: 49 percent black, 19 percent Hispanic.

I said in the Finance Committee, in March of this year, that to drop these children from our Federal life-support system would be the most "regressive and brutal act of social policy since Reconstruction."

Think of what it means for our cities. Remember, not all these children will be 4 months old or 4 years old. Many will be 14 years old. In 5 years' time, you will not recognize Detroit, Los Angeles, New York. These are cities where a majority of births are out of wedlock. The average for our largest 50 cities is 48.0 percent.

What is going on is a profound social change which we do not understand, just as we could not comprehend the problem of unemployment in the first part of this century, and ended with the crisis of the world depression, which almost destroyed democracy. It was a very close thing. Now, we are putting the viability of our own social system at risk.

This year the National Center for Health Statistics reported that the nonmarital, out-of-wedlock ratio of births in the United States has now reached one-third, 32.6 percent. That was for 1994, so it is a third today. In Detroit, that number is 75.3 percent; in Los Angeles, it is 50.1 percent; in New York City, 52.3 percent; in Chicago, 56 percent; in New Orleans, 64 percent. I think Detroit and New Orleans are probably the highest. No society in history has ever encountered this problem. These numbers a half century ago were 4 percent. New York City, 4 percent half a century ago, 52 percent today; Manhattan, 54 percent.

Nobody understands. Something like this is going on in Britain, in Canada, in France, in Germany. We are undergoing an enormous social change which we do not understand. Although it does not happen at all in Japan. Ratios were 1 percent in 1940 and 1 percent today.

Yet, we are acting as if we do understand. The basic model of this problem in the minds of most legislators, and most persons in the administration, is that since we first had welfare and we then got illegitimacy, it must be that welfare caused illegitimacy. And they may be right. I do not know. But neither do they.

I have stood on this floor and argued for the Family Support Act, which one Senator after another invokes as a measure that works, getting people out of dependency, into jobs. It could continue to work. But not this sharp cut-off—bang, 2 years, you are off; 5 years, you are off forever. That invites the kind of calamity which it may be we are going to have to experience in order to come to our senses.

I said on the floor last September that we will have children sleeping on grates if this becomes law. I repeat that today. I hope I shall have been proved wrong. I hope.

We will have a chance to track it. In the Social Security Act Amendments of 1994, I was able to include a small, but significant, provision to try to get us some accumulation of information and then perhaps theoretical knowledge about this situation. We enacted the Welfare Indicators Act of 1994. It requires the Secretary of Health and Human Services to start producing an annual report based on the Economic Report of the President, which derives from the Employment Act of 1946.

We will have the first interim report due October 31 of this year. It takes a long time for these institutions, if I can use that word, to mature, but we will have documentation of what this legislation did. We will know, unless we are reduced to concealing the truth, which we are getting very close to in this debate. Administration officials saying, when asked for the report, "There is no report"; when the report is published saying, "Well, I guess there was a report"; then saying, "No more reports." We are standing here on the Senate floor with no report from the administration. Shame.

One of the comments I have made throughout this debate, over the last year and a half, is that it has been conservative social analysts who have been most wary of what we are doing. They have consistently warned us that we do not know enough to do this. They have asked us to be conservatives and not take this radical step, putting at risk the lives of children in a way we have never done.

After we allowed a system to develop in which children are supported in this manner, to suddenly stop that support based on some very vague notion of human behavior—that if you are going to suffer awful consequences, you will change your behavior. We will be making cruelty to children an instrument of social policy. Lawrence Mead of NYU said you don't know enough to do this. Lawrence Mead, no liberal he; a career telling the liberals they were letting this situation get out of hand.

But 52 percent of the children born in the city of New York are to a single parent. John J. Dillulio, Jr., at Princeton saying, "Conservatives should know better than to take such risks with the lives of children."

And then George F. Will. George Will of unequalled authority as a commentator on the difficulty of social change and the care with which it is to be addressed. He wrote of the vote last September:

As the welfare debate begins to boil, the place to begin is with an elemental fact: No child in America asked to be here. No child is going to be spiritually improved by being collateral damage in a bombardment of severities targeted at adults who may or may not deserve more severe treatment from the welfare state.

I end on that proposition. No child in America asked to be here. Why, then, are we determined to punish them?

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico has approximately 36 minutes remaining.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Thank you, Mr. President. I thank the chairman.

EXPRESSING CONDOLENCES TO PEOPLE OF MONTOURSVILLE, PA

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, before I speak about the welfare bill, I just want to express my condolences to the people of Montoursville, PA. As many of you know, the crash of TWA Flight 800 included French students from that high school in Montoursville, along with five chaperones.

I talked with some people in Montoursville today. To say the people are shocked and overwhelmed does not quite, I think, relay the feelings that are going through that small town in north central Pennsylvania, near Williamsport, PA.

Senator SPECTER and I have pledged to do all we can to aid the people of that community in getting information that is necessary to begin the healing process, which is a very difficult one. We will do whatever we can to assist them in that process. Obviously, we will be vigilant in making sure the U.S. Government follows up and makes a thorough investigation of this and to the cause of this accident, hopefully accident.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY, WORK OPPORTUNITY, AND MEDICAID RESTRUCTURING ACT OF 1996

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, let me move on to the issue before us of welfare reform. It is never easy to follow the Senator from New York when talking about this issue, because there is no one on the Senate floor who knows more about this issue than the Senator from New York. But I was struck by one of the comments he made. I felt compelled to respond to that comment, when he made the comment that the bill before us invites calamity. I am quoting him. He used the term "invites calamity."

I found it odd that he used the term, that the bill before us invites calamity, right after a very eloquent and fact-filled dissertation on the calamity that has been created by this welfare system, that calamity of illegitimacy in our civilization.

He suggested there is no solution, at least we do not know the solution, and, therefore, we should not try anything. I assume that is the conclusion. Since we are not absolutely sure what causes illegitimacy, then we should not even attempt to bring it up since we do not have the answer.

I suggest that the Senator from New York should have been here in the 1960's when in fact we did not know the solution for poverty but we went ahead and tried the Great Society programs anyway. We went ahead not knowing what the answers would be, and for the last 30 years, in my opinion, ignoring—ignoring—the results of the Great Society programs, the welfare component of the Great Society programs in particular.

So if we are going to talk about not knowing what the future holds with the bill before us, then let us talk about not knowing back in the 1960's what the welfare state that we created would do, and now refusing to change it, when we know it has created the calamity that the Senator from New York eloquently described. He only described, in my opinion, one element of that calamity.

Oh, it is a very serious one—illegitimacy. I suggest it may be the great social ill that can be the cancer within to destroy this civilization. So I think he does highlight a most important issue. It is one that we attempt to address in this bill, which I suggest we attempt to address in a very modest way. We have not gone out with a right wing extreme agenda, whatever that is, to deal with this issue.

We have taken steps like saying that people who are on welfare, if they want to have more children, they should not necessarily get more money for having more children out of wedlock. The States can enact a law under our bill to pay them money if they want. But the presumption is that if you are on AFDC and you are not married, and you are receiving benefits and you have additional children, you are not automatically going to get a pay raise.

The second thing we do is we look at mothers who have children out of wedlock and do not cooperate with the Government in telling us who the father is. One might suggest that that probably is not a very likely occurrence. The fact of the matter is, having visited many agencies in my State that deal with this problem, that is a very common occurrence for a variety of reasons.

The most common reason is because usually there is a relationship between mom and the boyfriend. Mom does not want to jeopardize that relationship by giving the boyfriend a legal responsibility for the child. The Government is willing to pay. Why rely on a tenuous relationship, sometimes, between the boyfriend and the mom, to track down someone who may not have regular work to provide for that, when you have a Government who is going to consistently provide for that child? You may even work out something that has been told to me on many occasions, where the Government provides, and under the table the real dad provides some money, too.

It works out best for everybody except for the fact that the child is without a father. That is a little glitch that somehow gets glossed over. Like it or not, in our society—I know some do not believe it—but I think fathers are important. I think we need mothers and fathers to raise children.

I happen to believe one of the big problems in our society of youth violence among young males is because we do not have fathers in the household. They do not have the example of a father to help guide them through the very difficult time of growing up.

Yes, we do some things that are untested. Sure, they are untested, granted. We do not know whether making mom cooperate with authorities, forcing the mother to give us the name of the father—sanction her if she does not—will in fact help. We do not know. But, my God, we should start trying.

We cannot turn our back and say, just because we do not know, we should not try. Donna Shalala says, Well, you know, there may be people who fall off welfare because they did not cooperate, and that is a tragedy for the children. What the tragedy for the children is is they have no father. That is a tragedy. We run around and we hide behind children. The liberals hide behind children, when it is the children who are hurt the worst by this system that does not care. It is not loving and compassionate. Passing out a check behind a bulletproof window in a welfare office is not compassion, is not how we solve problems in this society when it comes to the poor.

We give States a bonus if they reduce their illegitimacy rate. So we provide an economic incentive for States to begin to try things to help reduce the number of illegitimate children. And they cannot do it through abortion.

That is illegitimacy. That is only one of the calamities that we now have as a result of this system.

How many people believe that, in the last 30 years, as a result of the welfare state, the neighborhoods in which people on welfare reside are safer, that crime is less, that the values of the people who are on welfare in second and third generations are better than they were before? If you want to look into the eyes of those values, look into the eyes of the senseless and indiscriminate juvenile crime that we see in our society, the lack of values between right and wrong, the lack of respect for human life in our society.

Drugs. Are there less drugs? Are drugs less of a problem in these communities than they were 30 years ago? Is education better in these communities than it was 30 years ago? Is the family structure better than it was 30 years ago? Oh, what progress we have made, what a system we should defend. And, oh, we dare not try anything that is untested. I would agree with the Senator, maybe he is right, maybe we should not try anything that is untested, because the last time we tried something that was untested, we got a horrible result. But the problem is, we are stuck with that system right now. We must—we must—face that and change that.

Here is how we change it. As I said before, we deal with the issue of illegitimacy and in a modest way—I have to repeat that—in a very modest way.

Secondly, what we say is that we are going to require people who are able-bodied to work. I talked about the values in communities. One of the most important values that you can pass on to your children is a work ethic. You can pass it on by talking about it. But you parents know you can tell your children all sorts of things—I have three children; I tell them lots of things—but they are more interested in watching you and seeing what you do and following your example.

How many times do you catch your kids saying things that you say, and you say, "Gosh, do I say that that much that they actually pick it up?" I tell them not to say it, but they say it, so I guess I do, too. I do this, so they do it, too. Work is one of those things. The most important thing for economic success for children is to have a mom and a dad—or mom or dad—go to work every day. So we require work because we think that is a value that is important for people to exit poverty.

I am not interested in taking care of people on poverty as the solution to poverty. My solution to poverty is to get people out of poverty. That is how we should measure a successful system—not how many children we take care of—by how many families are no longer needed to be on the system. That, to me, is a successful poverty program, not going around looking and saying, "Look at all the people we have on welfare and we are taking care of all these people now." I have not met very many people on welfare who tell me that life on welfare is a lot of fun or is what they desire for their life. Why should it be the goal of the Government to put people or to capture people in a system which they do not want to be in, and which the public resents paying for, because it is a dead end? That is not a solution.

Our goal is to get people to work and to self-sufficiency, to instill the values that make America great. So, yes, after 2 years we require work. For 2 years the State, through this bill, will have resources available for education, for training, for searching jobs. There are a lot of people who get on welfare, are job-ready, and there are some that cannot, they need their GED, to get some training, it takes time. Some people take more than 2 years.

The Senator from New York said we are going to put these rigid time limits on people of 2 years, and after 5 years no more benefits. The Senator from New York knows very well within this bill there is what is called a hardship exception. What the State can do is exempt 20 percent, 20 percent of the people in this program from the time limit. The time-limited program only applies to 50 percent of all the people in the program. That is not for 7 years. It starts out at 25 percent of the people.

I know it is a lot of numbers, but let me suggest there is lots of flexibility here for hard cases, for people who are really trying, and just cannot seem to find a job. We understand that happens. We understand it happens in a lot of urban areas and rural areas where unemployment is scarce. We provide an exception, but it is an exception to the rule. Sometimes it is important to establish a rule, an expectation of what we desire out of everyone. Set the bar a little higher. Instead of just saying you are all incapable of providing for yourself, so we will provide for you.

I ask the Senator from New Mexico for 3 additional minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 3 additional minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. It is important to set that standard. We set that standard. We do it with the understanding that we know not everybody can meet that standard. We give the States and the communities, and, I hope, and the Governors assure me, this is not going to be just one Federal bureaucratic program transferred to 50 State bureaucratic programs.

Frankly, I am not that much comforted, I am somewhat comforted, but not significantly comforted, to know that this is a Federal program run by Federal bureaucrats that now is going to be a State program run by State bureaucrats. State bureaucrats may be marginally better than Federal bureaucrats, but that is not enough. The Governors understand, at least the ones that are talking to me, that they need to go further. They need to get down into the local communities, into the nonprofit organizations, into the folks who really have compassion, because it is their neighbors and their friends they are providing for. Those are the organizations we have to empower through this bill, and give them the resources to solve the problems that are in their community. We believe this is a vehicle with the flexibility that is in this bill to make that happen.

I want to talk about just a couple of other things. No. 1, child care. It has been argued on this floor, and I think well argued on this floor by Members, frankly, on both sides of the aisle, that the key to making work work is child care. That there are millions of women out there who would like to go to work but because of the barrier for safe, affordable day care, they simply cannot do it. We provide $4 billion more in child care in this bill than under current law, and even more money than what the President is suggesting. Under this bill, work will work, and people will be able to succeed.

The other two things I will quickly go through, first is child support enforcement. There is uniform agreement on both sides to improve, toughen child support enforcement, including wage withholding, and is included in here, among other things. This gets back to, again, requiring fathers to take responsibility for their children. Again, setting the bar high, but, my goodness, we should have standards high for fathers when it comes to providing for their children.

Finally, the issue of noncitizens. The Senator from New York said no civilized society would cut off these benefits for noncitizens like we do in this bill. He is absolutely right. Do you know why? Because there is no civilized society that provides the benefits in the first place. We are the only society that gives benefits to people who are in this country who are not citizens of the country. What we are saying is we will provide benefits to refugees, to asylees, but to people who come in under sponsorship agreements, the sponsors, who signs that document will be the one who takes care of them, not the Federal Government.

Mr. DOMENICI. There is time left on both sides; could you tell us how much each side has?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The side of the Senator from New Mexico has 17 minutes and 17 seconds and the other side has 7 minutes and 18 seconds.

Mr. DOMENICI. I have Senator FRIST here. Does the Senator from Florida want to speak during that time, during that 7 minutes?

Mr. GRAHAM. I have not had an opportunity to talk to the floor manager, Senator EXON, but I will request time to speak. If Senator FRIST is prepared to proceed, that is fine.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 6 minutes to Senator FRIST.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, it is with much disappointment that I rise today to mark the apparent, the apparent, demise of what was a carefully considered, carefully crafted, bipartisan agreement on Medicaid. Despite the historic agreement among the Nations 50 Governors, we are compelled by the President's veto threat to separate Medicaid reform from welfare reform.

Ultimately, comprehensive welfare reform must include health care and health care reform for the poor. The face of that woman with her child in her arms who is below the poverty level, who wants to go back to work, is just inextricably combined and connected to that welfare system. Our Medicaid plan, which was based on this Governors' bipartisan proposal, would have indeed preserved the safety net for women, children, our senior citizens, and for individuals with disabilities.

Mr. President, I stand here today also, along with my colleagues and before the American people, to assure them that we will continue to work for a strong, for a secure, and for a simplified Medicaid Program. After the election, when all of the partisan passions have subsided, we will find a way to work together and give relief to States burdened to the point today of bankruptcy by out-of-control skyrocketing Medicaid costs. For the sake of our children, for the sake of their families, we must find a way to put policy before politics.

Before coming to the U.S. Senate, I performed transplant surgery, and a third of my transplant patients received Medicaid. That gave me a perspective of those patients on Medicaid also on welfare. As chairman of the Tennessee State Task Force on Medicaid Reform, I grappled with those issues before coming to this body from a State perspective.

Medicaid today takes up nearly 6 percent of the total of all Federal spending. State by State, it is approximately 20 percent of all State spending. Unless we act, we can expect an over 150 percent increase in just 10 years. The increase in Medicaid spending from last year alone is more than we spent on mass transit, criminal investigations, pollution control and abatement, or the National Science Foundation.

Yes, Medicaid is bankrupting our State budgets and will ultimately drive the Federal budget into bankruptcy, unless something is done.

Now, nothing in the budget reconciliation plan reported to the Senate constitutes a cut in Medicaid. President Clinton and Republicans both attempt to reign in the excessive growth in spending and, at the same time, protect eligible populations.

The chart that I have beside me shows just how close we in Congress are with what the President has proposed. This chart depicts overall Medicaid spending growth over a period of time, comparing what has been spent from 1991 to 1996, a total of $463 billion, to what we have proposed, the U.S. Congress, from 1997 to 2002, the Republican budget proposal, to spend $731 billion, which is very close to what the President has proposed to spend from 1997 to the year 2002. The difference between the yellow bar, what the Republican proposal has put forth, and what the President has proposed is less than 2 percent. We are very, very close. But the difference is that the Republican plan was based on the National Governors' bipartisan proposal. It passed their assembly unanimously. It was designed to specifically protect all current law eligibles, and included an umbrella fund for emergencies as well. And to truly preserve this safety net, there is $56 billion more in this bill than was in last year's budget resolution.

The program will continue to grow. Nothing is going to be cut. It is going to continue to grow at a rate of about, on average, 6.2 percent a year, and that is more than twice the rate of inflation. And it will grow a total of 43 percent over the 5-year period from 1996 to the year 2002.

When I came to this body, the U.S. Senate, I came as a physician out of the private sector, as a citizen legislator, unfamiliar with the political machinery that can block this type of positive advance. At that juncture, I hoped to work with my colleagues, Republican and Democrat, to address these issues that will affect our future and the future of our children. We have made progress, and I am glad we have made progress. But I am disappointed that we cannot enact a combined Medicaid Program with welfare, facing the realities that, again, Medicaid is inextricably woven to our welfare program. That is something that is close to my heart. But we shall return next year to move forward on this very important issue of preserving Medicaid and improving Medicaid for the future generations.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. GRAHAM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM. The Senator from Nebraska has yielded to me the remainder of time under his control.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Seven minutes remain.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I wish to speak to one section of this bill to which I will intend to offer an amendment, and that is the section that deals with the rights of legal aliens who are in the United States.

As my colleagues will recall, this is not a new issue. In fact, we have spent weeks on the Senate floor debating the question of what should be the eligibility of legal aliens for a variety of Federal benefits. This Senate, by an overwhelming vote, passed on May 2 an immigration control bill, which laid out with great specifics what would be the rights of legal aliens—Mr. President, I underscore the word “legal”—to various Federal benefit programs. That legislation passed after extensive hearings and markups in the Judiciary Committee and exhaustive floor debate that lasted well over a week. Similar actions were taken in the House of Representatives, and now this legislation is before a conference committee.

While all of that has occurred, we now receive this welfare bill, which has a redundant, conflicting, and, I think, draconian set of provisions relative to the rights of the very same people who were the subject of our debate just a few weeks ago—legal aliens in the United States.

Mr. President, I am going to propose that we should strike this section from the bill and leave the question of what should be the eligibility rights of legal aliens to the process of resolution in the conference committee and our final action on the results of that conference committee. There are extreme differences between the provisions in the immigration bill that the Senate passed in May and what we are now being asked to consider in July. Let me just mention two of those principal differences.

The essential concept of eligibility in the immigration bill was the concept of “deeming.” Deeming is the responsibility of the sponsor who has made it possible for the legal alien who comes into the United States to have the sponsor’s income added or deemed to be part of the income of the legal alien, in determining whether the legal alien is eligible for Federal needs-based programs.

This bill uses a different concept, and that is a concept of a prohibition of legal aliens for a variety of Federal benefit programs.

I might say, Mr. President, that much of the debate on the question of rights of legal aliens is a result of the report that was originally sanctioned by this Congress called “U.S. Immigration Policy: Restoring Credibility,” often referred to as the “Barbara Jordan report,” after our esteemed recently-passed colleague. In the report—the Jordan report—it states, “The safety net provided by needs-tested programs should be available to those whom we have affirmatively accepted as legal immigrants into our communities.” It points out that it is appropriate to look to the sponsor to be the primary caregiver for those they have sponsored into the United States. They endorse the concept of deeming. But they say that under circumstances where a sponsor is not available, the sponsor has died, the sponsor has suffered illness, or some other incapacitating condition that made them unable to meet their obligations, that immigrants should continue to be eligible. “A policy that categorically denied legal immigrants access to such safety nets, based solely on alienage, would lead to a gross inequality between very similar individuals and undermine our immigration goals to reunite families and quickly integrate immigrants into American society.”

So that is one fundamental difference. This is a difference, Mr. President, which will have real impact on the lives of real residents of our country.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the circumstances of Polyna Novak, a legal immigrant who has come to the United States as a refugee from persecution in the Soviet Union and how the difference in the immigration bill’s use of deeming and this bill’s use of an absolute bar would have an impact on her life.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Polyna Novak is a legal immigrant who came to the United States as a refugee from Russia 16 years ago (1980). She currently lives by herself in an apartment in Marina del Rey, California. Her daughter Dina lives nearby and is her mother’s full time caregiver.

Polyna is 74 years old, has Alzheimer’s disease and also has great difficulty walking. She speaks and reads basic English. She receives SSI and Medicaid.

In November, she tried to become a naturalized citizen under the 1993 rules exempting persons with cognitive disability from some of the testing requirements. The INS examiner refused to administer the oath, however, because of her cognitive impairment, claiming that she could not understand what she was doing.

Mrs. Novak is in a catch-22 situation—too disabled to naturalize, under this Welfare bill, she will lose her only source of Income, her SSI benefits. There is no deeming, it’s simply an unfeeling, outright ban, with no consideration for tragic individual cases such as this one.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, in my State of Florida, we are now receiving thousands of refugees and people seeking asylum from countries such as Cuba, generally under agreements that have been reached between the United States Federal Government and foreign governments, and now the Federal Government is going to take the position that it washes its hands of the financial responsibilities that flow from that.

The second big difference is the impact on State and local governments. The bill that we passed would have had a cost transferred to State and local governments of approximately $5.6 billion over the next 7 years. This bill, if you would believe it, would have a cost transfer to State and local governments of up to $23 billion over the next 7 years.

I suggest, Mr. President, in respect to the work that this Senate has already done on the immigration bill and the efforts that are currently being made in conference to reconcile the House and the Senate versions, that it is inappropriate for us at this hour under these constrained parliamentary procedures to take up a provision that would fundamentally change the decisions that we have already made, increase the cost to State and local governments by potentially three times or more than in the legislation that we have already passed, and place literally hundreds of communities and tens of thousands of people in serious jeopardy by our ill-considered actions.

So at an appropriate time, Mr. President, I will ask, as will colleagues, including Senators MURRAY, SIMON, and FEINSTEIN, that those provisions that relate to the eligibility of legal aliens be deleted from this bill and rely upon the immigration bill to come to an appropriate policy resolution.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD an editorial from today’s Los Angeles Times on this subject, and other materials that relate to legal aliens.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Los Angeles Times, July 18, 1996]

PASSING THE BUCK ON WELFARE

Tucked into the Republicans’ welfare reform package in Congress is a wrongheaded proposal to cut benefits and social services to most immigrants who are legally in the United States but who have not yet become citizens. Under the proposal, Washington, which is seeking ways to finance federal welfare reform, would shift billions of dollars in costs to states and counties. The provision should be rejected.

Sen. Bob Graham, a Florida Democrat, plans to offer an amendment to the bill to strike out restrictions on public benefits to legal immigrants. A host of eligibility issues ranging from student aid to Medicaid for legal immigrants already is part of a separate immigration bill now in conference committee. There is no logic in including those matters in a welfare bill. The two issues should be handled separately.

The welfare bill now proposes to help finance the costs of reform by cutting $23 billion over six years in benefits to legal immigrants, including children and the elderly. This would be an unfair and punitive move against legal immigrants who have played by the rules.

The bill would make most legal immigrants now in the country ineligible for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) and food stamps. Future legal immigrants (except for refugees and asylum seekers) would be ineligible for most other federal means-tested benefits (including AFDC and non-emergency Medicaid services) during their first five years in the country.

The cutbacks would disproportionately hit California, Florida, New York and Texas, the states with the biggest immigrant populations. California alone could lose $10 billion, or about 40% of the proposed $23 billion in benefit reductions. Those ineligible for such benefits would have to turn elsewhere for aid. In Los Angeles County, for example, if all affected SSI recipients sought general assistance relief instead it would cost the county $236 million annually. The cost shifting could have potentially disastrous results for the already fiscally strapped county.

The immigration bill now under consideration already includes $5.6 billion in savings from tightening eligibility requirements for legal immigrants on a variety of federal programs, including Medicaid. The attempt to use welfare reform to slip through further curbs on public assistance to legal immigrants should be called what it is—a deplorable money grab by Washington that can only hurt California.

JUNE 24, 1996.

Hon. BOB GRAHAM,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR GRAHAM: As health care providers caring for millions of Americans in rural and urban areas, we are writing to express our concerns about provisions in the welfare reform legislation the Senate Finance Committee plans to mark up this week. The provisions at issue would completely bar legal immigrants from receiving any Medicaid coverage for five years, and would effectively deny Medicaid coverage to most legal immigrants for an additional five years.

These provisions will force hundreds of thousands of legal immigrants off of Medicaid, creating a new population of uninsured low income individuals at a time when the number of uninsured Americans is approaching 40 million. Furthermore, the loss of Medicaid coverage means that the amount of preventive care provided to legal immigrants will be drastically reduced, thereby exposing entire communities to communicable diseases while increasing the overall cost of providing necessary care. We urge the Committee to drop these provisions when it marks up the welfare legislation.

In particular, the bill would bar legal immigrants from eligibility for Medicaid (and other assistance programs) for five years. After five years, the legislation would require that the income and resources of a legal immigrant's sponsor and the sponsor's spouse be "deemed" to be the income of the legal immigrant when determining the immigrant's eligibility for Medicaid.

If a low income legal immigrant is barred from receiving, or deemed out of the Medicaid program, he or she may have no other means to pay for health care. Most low income immigrants cannot afford private health insurance. Many sponsors may be unable or unwilling to help finance the health care costs of the immigrants they sponsor. Yet, because of the five-year ban and the deeming requirements, legal immigrants will be ineligible for Medicaid, although they will still need care. This is a cost shift from the federal government to state and local entities and providers of care. And this cost shift will disproportionately fall on providers in states with large numbers of legal immigrants—states such as California, Texas, Florida, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Illinois.

We understand provisions dealing with benefits in the welfare bill are based upon the recommendations of the United States Commission on Immigration Reform, a bipartisan commission appointed by Congress in 1990 to study and make recommendations on national immigration policy. But the Commission opposes any broad, categorical denial of public benefits to legal immigrants such as the pending welfare bill's five-year ban to Medicaid eligibility. In its recommendations to Congress, it firmly states that "the Commission rejects proposals to categorically deny eligibility for public benefits on the basis of alienage." It expressly stated that "special consideration should be given to the issue of medical care." Specifically, the Commission's recommendation was very clear:

"The safety net provided by needs-tested programs should be available to those whom we have affirmatively accepted as legal immigrants in our communities . . . circumstances may arise after an immigrant's entry that create a pressing need for public help—unexpected illness, injuries sustained due to a serious accident. . . . Under such circumstances, legal immigrants should be eligible for public benefits if they meet other eligibility criteria. We are not prepared to remove the safety net from under individuals who, we hope, will become full members of our polity."

We recognize the importance of regulating legal and illegal immigration into the United States. But it must be accomplished through means that will not pull the health care safety net from under legal immigrants, create a public health threat, or impair the ability of health care providers to provide essential services to their communities. Therefore, we urge the Finance Committee to honor the Commission's recommendations and exempt Medicaid from the five year eligibility bar and deeming requirements.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, how much time do we have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ten minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield 6 minutes of that to the Senator from Missouri. Might I yield myself 1 minute before I yield to him?

Mr. President, I thank Senator FRIST for his comments on the floor, and I add one thought to it. Frankly, I, too, have a real concern about not doing anything this year about Medicaid. But I think the die is cast. However, it seems to me that the next episode that is going to push us to do something significant is not something that leadership should feel very proud of because I think we are going to be pushed by States that cannot afford to pay for the programs.

We have all been talking about what is happening to the beneficiaries; how we are going to modify the program, make it more efficient, and what about the delivery system? But there has been very little talk about the fact that many States cannot afford the Medicaid Program.

I note in my own State that there was a major story. People are confused when you talk about Medicaid not having enough money because they almost always believe that is us, the Fed's. But in my State the story was our State has not appropriated enough money for its share. We happen to be one of those States where only 25 percent is our burden; 75 is the Federal burden. We cannot even afford to pay for the program in its current form, and we are concerned about whether the Federal Government ought to reform it so that it becomes more efficient. We are the ones getting accused, with reference to fixing that, of being neglectful of some parts of our population.

The truth of the matter is education at home is suffering. Pretty soon they cannot pay for education because the States do not have enough money if they have to pay for Medicaid and programs of that sort.

So I think the Senator's suggestion that perhaps it would have been good if we would have challenged the President and others and proceeded with that Medicaid provision was a good one. Our job will get done soon, I am sure, thanks to people like the occupant of the chair.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I thank the Chair. I commend the Senators from Mexico and Tennessee each for mentioning this important component of reform which is literally pressing and demands that the system will require it. We must undertake those reforms immediately.

I am struck by the fact that our debate is not a debate about restructuring a government program. Our debate is about rescuing our culture from a tragedy, a tragedy the dimensions of which have been eloquently outlined and defined by speaker after speaker on this floor. The Senator from New York eloquently and tragically defined the problem. He said that 75 percent of some of the births in some cities in this country are births to incomplete families.

The welfare system, which has been designed or hoped for as a way of helping people, has become a way of ensnaring people. A net can be something that saves you from a fall. It can be something in which you are caught. I believe we have a system where we have seen that the welfare system is one where people are caught. It is not where people are saved.

When he rather dramatically ended his speaking earlier, the Senator from New York talked about the children. What about the children? I think we have to ask the question. What about the children? What about the one-third of all children in this country who are born to incomplete families without fathers in the home? What happens to those children?

I was reminded about one child whose story I read. Her name was Ariel Hill. She was one of five children of a welfare family that lived in an apartment beyond description in Chicago public housing. The parents were 22-year-old, drug-using high school dropouts. They did not have jobs. The mother had her first child as a teenager, obviously. She was one of five children. The father grew up on welfare. The source of the income to the family was the $900 per month in public aid checks.

What tragically impressed me was after she died at the hands of her mother, the investigators came in to look around the apartment to see what they could find. They went into the apartment and found a paper listing the welfare dollars that each child had brought into the family.

We are literally living with a system which has taught people to value children for the kind of incomes those children could attract to the family through the welfare system.

This is not something that recommends our future. It is not something upon which we should build. It is something which we must change.

The Senator from Pennsylvania made it very clear and eloquently argued that we may not know everything about what we want to do and we maybe cannot be assured that it will work completely. But we do know one thing with a certainty. That is that the current system of welfare is a tragedy. It has entrapped individuals. It has seen the skyrocketing rate of individuals born into homes without families. It has found more and more people in circumstances of dependence.

The War on Poverty, started years ago, addressed the situation where fewer children were in poverty than are in poverty now. It seems to me that we must take action to change the status quo. We are dealing with a tragedy. If every time we say, "Well, we cannot reform welfare, we are not sure that what will happen will be a perfect solution," we are allowing the potential for perfection to paralyze us. And to say that we will not act at all, it is pretty clear to me with individuals who have begun to make careers—and not only careers for one individual but careers for individuals generation after generation in families—of a system which has ensnared them and not saved them, that we have the wrong kind of net here and that we have to restructure it. We have to provide some of the very tough motivations for people who lead this system to be involved in the ladder of opportunity rather than the net of enslavement.

I believe that is what welfare has to be. It has to be a transitional system.

So I think it is time for us to limit the amount of time that people can be on welfare. It is time for us to provide disincentives to bear children out of wedlock. It is time for us to provide powerful incentives for people to go to work. It is time for us to say that, if you are on welfare, you should be off drugs. It is time for us to say that, if you are on welfare, your children should be in school. It is time for us to say that, if you are on welfare, your children should have the immunizations that are available to them free of charge. You have to be responsible for what you are doing. We are not going to continue to support you in a way in which you abdicate, you simply run from, you hide from, your responsibility as a citizen.

As we look at where we are, we see a system the carnage of which is written in the lives of children. It is written in the lives of adults who have been ensnared by a net which was designed to arrest their fall.

But instead of being a net of saving, it tends to be a net of trapping, a net of enslavement, and it is time for us to make this system one of transition. It is time for welfare to be a ladder of opportunity, and I believe the measure that is before us today gives us the opportunity to make that the truth for the American people. They are asking us to reform the welfare system. It is time to get about the business and get it done.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

All time has expired.

Mr. DOMENICI. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The absence of a quorum has been suggested. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The majority leader is recognized.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, the net effect of provisions reported by the Finance Committee is that the committee fails to achieve its reconciliation instruction for the year 2002. The Medicaid supplemental umbrella fund increases outlays in the year 2002. Pursuant to section 313(b)(1)(B) of the Budget Act, I raise a point of order against Section 1511 of the Social Security Act as added by section 2923 of the reconciliation bill from page 772, line 13, through page 785, line 22.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point of order is well taken, and the provisions are stricken from the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4894

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I move to strike all of subtitle B, Restructuring Medicaid, from title II of the reconciliation bill from page 663, line 9, through page 1027, line 20.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I believe there are Democratic Senators who would like to speak on this measure. I do not know their names.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Mississippi [Mr. LOTT] proposes an amendment numbered 4894.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 663, strike line 9, through page 1027, line 20.

Mr. LOTT. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. I believe that this would be debatable for up to 1 hour?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The debate will be 2 hours.

Mr. LOTT. Two hours equally divided. So if the distinguished Senator from New York has Senators who wish to speak, they would have that opportunity.

I would like to be recognized just briefly, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I personally feel very strongly that we should act on the need to improve and reform Medicaid.

I had hoped we could get that done this year. I think that we could have a better program, and I think that we could control the rate of growth in such a way that it would help us move toward fiscal responsibility and a balanced budget, but a number of considerations have come into play.

The Senate and the House majority are very much committed to genuine reform of welfare, requiring work, also giving flexibility to States as to how this program is administered, also trying to move toward a situation where welfare is not a way of life but there is an opportunity for people in this country to get off welfare, get the necessary training and education that will allow them to get into a full-time job.

Unfortunately, in view of the opposition and threat of a veto from the President if we had these two combined, we felt it was the best thing to do at this time to move forward with welfare. We are committed to getting that done. We are committed to getting it through the Senate today or tomorrow and then going to conference as soon as possible and completing action on this very important legislation before we go out for the August recess.

There are a lot of factors that have come into play here, and I know we will hear more about it from the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee and the chairman of the Finance Committee, but I just wanted to make those brief remarks. I think all things considered, this is the right thing to do at this time, and I hope the Senate will act quickly on it and move on to further consideration of the welfare reform package.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, before the majority leader leaves, we have heard from the Democratic side that they want a vote on this. I wonder, while the leader is still here, if we could get the yeas and nays.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. If the Senator will give me just 3 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. He will come back with an answer.

I yield the floor. I thank the leader.

Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware [Mr. ROTH], is recognized.

Mr. ROTH. I yield myself such time as I might take.

Mr. President, I rise in support of the leader's motion to separate Medicaid from this welfare reform legislation. Leo Tolstoy once said that "Life and the ideal are hard to reconcile. To try to make them follow the same path is a life's work."

I have to say that this observation has taken on new meaning for me as we have worked diligently to craft welfare reform in a way that is workable and meaningful.

In the case of welfare reform, the ideal, of course, is a proposal that breaks the back of dependency, a proposal that reverses the perverse incentives in the current program, and empowers men, women and families to find security through work. The ideal program returns authority to state and local governments—allowing them to unleash their creativity, to be innovative, effective and, of course, compassionate. This is where the people live; it is where their needs are best met; it is where they are seen as individuals rather than as statistics.

Likewise, Mr. President, the ideal welfare reform program contains real and necessary reforms to Medicaid. In the past, President Clinton has expressed why Medicaid reform is necessary for real welfare reform. The Nation's Governors, liberal and conservative, have been eloquent and persuasive as to why: Medicaid is quickly overtaking education to be the number one expense in State budgets. Medicaid as it is currently administered leads families to impoverishment, as they find it necessary to qualify in an "all-or-nothing" way. Federal Medicaid spending will be over $827 billion in the next 5 years, Mr. President, challenging our Treasury, our taxpayer resources, as well as America's economic well-being.

The ideal would be to have Medicaid reform attached to welfare reform. I have made no secret of this. In trying to keep Medicaid a part of this proposal, we have compromised time and again to give the President a bill he could sign. In fact, the President himself proposed to cut Medicaid by $59 billion. In our proposal to reform Medicaid, we came within 2 percent of this number—2 percent—the difference of about two dimes a day per beneficiary. And in our compromise we continued to increase spending in the Medicaid Program—increase it faster than Social Security. But, unfortunately, despite all this, President Clinton maintains that Medicaid reform is a "poison pill." Many of the President's allies in Congress support him. In their arguments, they suggested that they could support welfare reform, and the President would sign welfare reform, if the two were decoupled.

We have separated, or are in the process of separating Medicaid reform from this legislation. Welfare reform is so important to the American people that they are willing to accept compromise. Like Tolstoy, they understand that "life and the ideal are hard to reconcile." While it may take a life's work to achieve the ideal, it will certainly take the best efforts of this Senate to eventually return to Medicaid reform when the time comes. We cannot leave undone something so important and declare complete victory.

Medicaid, in my opinion, must be addressed, if not now, later. Anyone who looks at the spending trends, anyone who looks at how this one program is threatening the States, anyone who sees how it leads families to choices, behaviors that are counterproductive to their well-being and long-term success can understand that Medicaid must be changed. It must be improved. It must be administered in a way that allows States to be more flexible, more creative, and more effective in helping families.

For the time, we must move forward. This is what the American people want. We must pass this welfare reform legislation, a bill that takes a very important first step toward meeting the needs of those most vulnerable among us, a bill that returns common sense to the welfare system, a bill that gives greater flexibility to the Federal and State governments to help people help themselves. The time is right for this legislation. At another time, we will revisit Medicaid, but for the moment we must move on.

Mr. President, it is no secret that I firmly believe that it is vitally important that both welfare and Medicaid reform should go together. I believe there are compelling reasons for Medicaid reform. The Governors, Democratic and Republican alike, have been strong advocates of including Medicaid with welfare reform. President Clinton himself for more than 3 years has talking about Medicaid's role in removing the incentives to families to stay in poverty.

More than 3 years ago, President Clinton told the Nation's Governors that, " * * many people stay on welfare not because of the checks * * * they do it solely because they do not want to put their children at risk of losing health care or because they do not have the money to pay for child care * * * . This is precisely the purpose of the legislation we introduced in May, S. 1795. That is why we have worked for months with the Nation's Governors to keep welfare and Medicaid reform together. Let me spell out some of the reasons why they belong together.

It is important for the American people to understand that the difference between our proposal and the President's plan for Medicaid is not about spending money.

There is now little difference between this plan and the President's own plan in terms of Federal spending levels on Medicaid.

Secretary Shalala appeared before the Finance Committee last month and knowledgeable the President proposed to cut Medicaid by $59 billion.

Under our plan, the Federal commitment to Medicaid remains intact. Even while slowing the rate of growth Medicaid spending would still rise faster than Social Security under our plan.

The Federal Government will spend an estimated $827.1 billion between 1996 and 2002 on Medicaid, an average annual increase of approximately 6 percent.

We have met the President half-way in terms of Medicaid savings.

The difference between us is less than 2 percent of the total Federal cost of Medicaid.

That is difference of about two dimes a day per beneficiary.

The American people should fully understand that the critical difference between President Clinton and this legislation is not about the level of spending. The difference between us is who controls the spending. The fundamental issue is whether or not the Governors and State legislators and judges can do a better job in running the $2.4 trillion welfare system than the bureaucracy in Washington.

The essence of the administration's opposition to Medicaid reform is that the States cannot be trusted. The Clinton plan is built on the premise that Washington must control the decision-making.

It is unfortunate that the potential achievements which would have been brought from including Medicaid in welfare reform are not better known. Too many people listened to unfounded accusations that the Governors and State legislatures cannot wait to abandon the children in their State. That is pure nonsense. If a family stays on welfare, that family will get both a welfare check and Medicaid. Under this reform proposal, the States have greater incentives to expand Medicaid coverage and help prevent families from being forced onto the welfare rolls in the first place. Reform is a critical component of getting those now on welfare off of cash assistance.

The Governors also understand that under current law, Medicaid is an all or nothing proposition. The current system contains built-in incentives for families to impoverish themselves in order to qualify for Medicaid.

The Governors also understand that under today's all or nothing scheme, a lot of low-income working families get nothing. As if to add insult to injury, many low-income families are paying for the benefits a welfare family is getting while their own children go without coverage.

Medicaid is an important program for our elderly citizens in terms of long-term care coverage. But the current system is far from perfect in serving our senior citizens.

The current system forces elderly citizens into poverty even before any benefits can be provided.

Our senior citizens often do not receive the most appropriate services because the current system, run under rules dictated by the Federal Government, is not flexible enough. What is good for the bureaucracy is not necessarily good for the individual. Our legislation would have given the States greater flexibility to redesign benefits so that our senior citizens could be better served.

But instead of reform, the Clinton administration chose to scare the elderly and hide behind children. The very idea that the current system must remain in place in order to protect our vulnerable citizens from their Governors and State legislators is not only insulting. It is wrong.

More than half of the money being spent on Medicaid is there solely because the States have chosen to provide optional benefits and extend optional coverage to a greater number of people.

The administration scared people with a convoluted argument that our legislation "lacks a Federal guarantee" as if only the Federal Government is entirely responsible for anything good in the Medicaid program. This argument is completely hollow. As Secretary Shalala acknowledged to the Finance Committee earlier this month, the States could take nearly $70 billion today, more than half the spending in the program, out of the current Medicaid system without needing her approval.

We did not create the linkage between welfare and Medicaid.

That was done more than 30 years ago when Medicaid was created.

Our legislation guarantees coverage and benefits for poor children, children in foster care, pregnant women, senior citizens, persons with disabilities, and families on welfare.

If anything, our legislation goes beyond the Governors' resolution in terms of setting guarantees. In committee, we extended those Medicaid guarantees even further to phase in coverage of children ages 13 to 18.

We also extended coverage to families leaving welfare. The modification also requires States to provide health coverage under the Medicaid Program for 1 year to families leaving welfare to go into the work force.

This goal of Medicaid reform also goes directly to issue of a balanced budget, another major issue of concern to the American people. Simply put, the Federal budget cannot be balanced without Medicaid reform. It is the third largest domestic program in the Federal budget. It costs more than AFDC, food stamps, and SSI combined.

Medicaid reform is also critical to balancing State budgets and priorities.

One out of every $5 spent by the States goes to Medicaid. The National Association of State Budget Officers reports that Medicaid surpassed higher education as the second largest program in 1990.

If nothing changes, Medicaid spending may soon overtake elementary and secondary education spending as well.

To those taxpayers who are wondering why there is not more money for schools, to repair roads, and build bridges, a large part of the answer is the uncontrolled spending of Medicaid.

Our Medicaid legislation would have returned power and flexibility to the States, while retaining guarantee of a safety net for the most vulnerable populations. It would have helped replace a failed welfare system in which dependence is measured in generations and illegitimacy is the norm, with a system that encourages work and helps keep families together.

But in the past few weeks, it has become clear that the President cannot stand the heat of a compromise on Medicaid.

For the record, let me point out that President Clinton vetoed a welfare reform last January, H.R. 4, which did not include Medicaid.

In doing so, he also vetoed a bill which provided more support, including child care, for welfare families than his own legislation does.

H.R. 4 did not include Medicaid. But it did include the sweeping child support enforcement reform for which millions of American families are waiting. This legislation, again included in S. 1795, goes light years beyond anything the President could ever accomplish solely through administrative actions.

In the meantime, thousands of children have remained in poverty or under the threat of poverty for at least another 6 months because they have not received the cash assistance and medical insurance of their absent parent as a result of President Clinton's vetoes.

My Democratic colleagues on the Finance Committee vowed that unless we agreed to drop Medicaid, welfare reform would be lost. To his great credit, the Republican nominee for President, our former colleague and majority leader, Bob Dole, also encouraged us to not allow this dissent to keep us from achieving welfare reform.

Senator Dole understands that the children and families in poverty should not be forced to wait any longer for welfare reform.

In that spirit, we have again agreed to compromise. I support the leader's motion to strike Medicaid.

Having now removed this stumbling block, it is my hope that the administration will not erect new barriers to welfare reform at the 11th hour. The children and families who need this legislation should not have to wait any longer.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CAMPBELL). The Senator from New York [Mr. MOYNIHAN].

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, there will be no objection on this side of the aisle to the proposal to strike that will now be made. But may I point out that after a not inconsiderable debate, the Committee on Finance, following the lead of its distinguished chairman, voted 17 to 3 not to strike this measure. But other considerations have appeared.

Mr. ROTH. If the distinguished Senator will yield, I would just point out that that vote reflects the ideal.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. The ideal—we are doing nothing but realities today. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico [Mr. DOMENICI].

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I understand we could adopt this right now. Mr. MOYNIHAN. Yes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I think we have to do a couple of things in order to do that. I understand there is no objection to adopting this by voice vote?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. None.

Mr. DOMENICI. Is that correct?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. If people want to speak, they better show up. There is no Senator on this floor wishing to speak on this matter. I have not been informed of any. I have been told that there might be, but there comes a time when that will no longer do.

Mr. DOMENICI. I think we can accommodate them in case they drop along and want to talk. If you will give me just 1 minute—I understand we would have to yield back time—let me make this unanimous consent request first.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Certainly.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the pending Lott amendment be deemed agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, the time between now and 2 p.m. be equally divided, and that at 2 p.m. the Democratic leader be recognized to offer an amendment.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, we have no objection, at least to this amendment. But does the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee not want to proceed to the matter of striking the Medicaid provision?

Mr. DOMENICI. That is what this does: "The pending Lott amendment be deemed agreed to."

Mr. MOYNIHAN. The Lott amendment was not to the Byrd but to the strike?

Mr. DOMENICI. The Lott amendment is to strike Medicaid.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I think, lest I reveal further ignorance in regard to this measure, I had best be silent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there further debate?

Mr. DOMENICI. Have you ruled?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4894) was agreed to.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The time is under control of the Senator from Delaware or the Senator from New York.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, we have approximately 45 minutes. I would like to divide that to 27½ minutes to the Senator from Louisiana, or anyone he should recognize.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BREAUX] is recognized.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wonder if I might at this point—how much time would Senator GRASSLEY like?

Mr. GRASSLEY. I would like to have 10 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 10 minutes to Senator GRASSLEY on our side. I assume we should return to your side since we had just spoken. He will be recognized after you have completed yours.

I ask unanimous consent that 10 minutes of our time be reserved for Senator GRASSLEY and he follow the first Democratic speaker.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BREAUX] is recognized.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, let me start off by saying I support the effort of the Senator from New Mexico and chairman of the Finance Committee to separate this welfare reform legislation from the Medicaid reform effort that has been worked on by the Members of this body. I say that for just very pragmatic reasons. We need to reform Medicaid. We need to reform welfare. But if we have an agreement on one, do not mess it up with another item we do not have an agreement on.

This body is not in agreement on what to do with regard to Medicaid. I think we are close to reaching an agreement on how to reform the welfare programs in this country, so let us proceed together, hopefully, to try to come up with a welfare reform bill that makes sense, that both sides of the aisle can support, and, hopefully, one that the President will be able to sign.

So, I support the effort to separate the two, and, of course, now that is exactly what has occurred. We are now going to be dealing with welfare reform this afternoon and hopefully finish it up in a timely fashion.

I think the people of this country—I know the people of Louisiana—certainly know welfare in this country today does not serve well the people who are on it, nor does it serve very well the people who are paying for it. It is clear the American people, particularly those outside of Washington, are saying to the Congress that we want realistic welfare. We want a welfare reform bill that emphasizes work, a real welfare reform bill that is more about getting a job and less about just getting a check. They want a welfare reform bill that is fair, that emphasizes work, that has time limits, but a welfare reform bill that is also good for children.

As President Clinton has always said, he wants to reform welfare as we know it. He wants to be tough on work but good for kids. I have said you can say the same thing and come to the same conclusion saying that welfare reform is really about putting work first, but it is also about making sure we do not put children last. I think, in a bipartisan fashion, we should be able to come together and reach those separate but, I think, mutually agreeable goals.

While Congress has not been able for over a year now to come to an agreement on welfare reform, the administration has really not waited for us. If you look at what the administration has done, working with the States, you will see they have really left the Congress behind, because we have not been able to agree. President Clinton and his administration team has really been working with the States. They have now approved 67 welfare reform plans in 40 different States. Welfare reform is occurring, and it is occurring without Congress.

It is time that Congress get on the wagon, get on the ball and write a national program so we do not have to have 67 separate welfare reform programs in 40 different States, many with different types of standards and different emphases on what should be done. We should come together and write a national welfare reform bill.

It is important the Federal Government be involved. In my own State of Louisiana, the State puts up 28 percent of the money, approximately. The Federal Government puts up 78 percent. Should not the Federal Government be involved in welfare reform? If we are raising 78 percent of the money that is going to the people of my State, of course, we should be. It is not a question of who does it, it is a question of making sure everybody does it. It is not a question of whether it is run in Washington or whether it is run by the States, it should be run in partnership between the States and the Federal Government, giving the States the maximum amount of flexibility, but also having some national standards because national funds are being contributed to the welfare reform program in all of the various States.

So, Mr. President, I think we ought to all agree reform is needed. We ought to agree we can come up with something the President can sign. We, on this side, will be offering what we now call a "Work First" welfare reform bill. It meets the principles of what people in this country want.

No. 1, they want it to have time limits. Welfare should not be forever. It should be about getting a job. It should have time limits that are real and realistic. The amendment that we will be offering says that at most, people will be able to be on welfare for a total of 5 years in their lifetime. Then we give the States authority to make it less if they think it is right for their State. We give the State the flexibility to do that.

Our bill requires work. It is an absolute unconditional requirement that people on welfare move into the work force. There is no more unconditional assistance. The goal of welfare reform, under our proposal, would be to get people into the private sector and get them a real job. Instead of just getting a check for not working, get them a job and then the check will be for working.

Our bill says the States should have the maximum amount of flexibility. What is good in my State of Louisiana may not work in New York or in any other State in the country, and vice versa. So our legislation gives the States maximum amount of flexibility. What does that mean? It means the States set the benefit level for the people in that State. They will decide how to get people off welfare into a job. It is a State decision. The State will set the sanctions, or the penalties, if you will, for those who refuse to go to work. We give the States the flexibility that they need.

I think that, however, in many instances, our bills are very similar. The Senate Finance Committee, under the leadership of Senator ROTH, has moved in a major way toward a middle ground, a middle proposal. He is to be congratulated for that. It is an indication of good faith on his part in working with some of us on our side of the aisle to produce a better bill.

What we have to do is to make sure that our goal is to put work first but without putting children last. That is a very important standard for us to meet. We should be as tough as we possibly can be on parents, because they have a responsibility and are old enough to understand what that responsibility should be. But there are a lot of innocent children involved who did not ask to be born and are here because of perhaps, in some cases, the fault of their parents, but they are here not because they want to be here necessarily. They are innocent victims of welfare problems in this country. Therefore, it is very important that we make sure that we protect children while we are as tough as we possibly can be and should be with regard to parents.

I also point out that our legislation is going to make sure parents who are on welfare or AFDC assistance are eligible for health care in this country. I cannot imagine anybody standing up and saying, "I'm tough on families, but I want to knock them off health care." The bill this Congress passed before, by an 87 to 12 margin, guaranteed AFDC recipients would continue to receive Medicaid. This bill does not do that. It is a major change. It says if you knock them off AFDC assistance there is no guarantee they will get health care. I think that is wrong. We are going to have a bipartisan amendment to correct that. This body should adopt that.

I also want to point out that in trying to make sure we protect children, we ought to take into consideration what happens if we are being tough on parents and we say that you are off after 2 years, no more assistance, you should be working, what are we going to tell a 2-year-old child of that parent? Are we going to tell them they are not going to have any more help? Are we going to tell the 2-year-old they should go out and find a job?

These are the innocent victims who I think we should work together to try and help. Be as tough as we can on parents, but let's make sure that the innocent child, in many cases almost a baby, is protected.

I have an amendment that I will be offering to the bill that says we should have vouchers for children. After the family has been take off of AFDC assistance, do not just throw the child out into the street. Our amendment is going to provide for noncash vouchers for innocent children of families who have had welfare terminated.

I heard the distinguished Senator from New York talking about providing diapers for children. If anybody ever had small children, diapers for children happen to be a pretty important thing in raising a child in a healthy environment. Yes, they could use the noncash assistance for diapers, but they could also use it for clothes, they could use it for school supplies, they could use it for medicine, they could use it for food so that a 2-year-old baby does not go hungry because they have a parent who is not responsible.

Again, the emphasis should be as being as tough as we possibly can be on the parent, but let's not in this body in this prosperous country say we are not going to take care of the innocent child. So our vouchers for children will say just that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. BREAUX. How much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. There remains 17 minutes 23 seconds.

Mr. BREAUX. I yield myself an additional 5 minutes.

Mr. President, the point of the vouchers for children is to say to States, "Look, if you want to have a 5-year cutoff of an AFDC recipient, you can do that now and you ought to have authority to provide vouchers for kids after that 5-year period, if you cut off a family or a recipient sooner than 5 years, say maybe 2 years."

In my State, we will do exactly that, which has been approved, a 2-year time limit. But when a State does that, we have a responsibility to say that you should be required to provide at least noncash vouchers out of the money you are getting for the innocent children.

We are giving the State the absolute maximum amount of flexibility on designing that program. The States will be able to decide just about everything with regard to how that voucher is going to be handled and how it is going to be awarded.

My own State has the highest percentage of children in poverty in the Nation. Mr. President, 34.5 percent of all the children in my State are in poverty. I think we on the Federal level have an obligation to say that they should be taken care of after the parent is told that there will no longer be any cash assistance to that parent.

We are not talking about any additional spending by the State or any additional money by the State, we are talking about the money the State is going to get under this new block grant. The Federal money and State money can be combined to provide these vouchers for children, which I think are very, very important. We are talking about giving the State the absolute maximum degree of flexibility on designing how this program would work. The State would assess the needs of the child. They would set how much that child will be able to get and in what form it would be able to be given. They would set the amount. They would set the type of assistance, but I just do not think that we, as a Nation, can walk away from children who are innocent victims of circumstances that they have absolutely no control over.

The Food Stamp Program is going to be addressed. We need to make sure, from a Federal level, that it is a responsibility, as it always has been, to design a Food Stamp Program that provides certain guarantees in terms of economic downturns by the various States.

I think it is incredibly important that the Chafee-Breaux amendment, dealing with the Medicaid guarantee, will be addressed in a positive fashion. If we can do something positively on the vouchers for children, I think we can come together on a true, real welfare reform bill that this President will be happy to sign.

We have to decide whether we want a political issue or whether we want a real bill. There are some Democrats in Congress who say, "We do not want any bill; we'll do anything we can to stop it, because it is not to our liking 100 percent."

I think there are some on the Republican side who also want to send the bill to the President as bad as they can make it to make sure he vetoes it and then blame him for vetoing it. There is a growing number in the Senate that wants to work together and come up with something that is doable.

So I summarize my points as let us be as tough as we can on the parents, let us have time limits, and let us have work requirements, and let us give a maximum degree of flexibility to the States to do what they want, but at the same time let us make sure we protect the children who are the innocent victims in this entire exercise.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Kristen Testa on my staff, a fellow in my office, be granted floor privileges for the duration of the debate on this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX. I reserve the balance of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous agreement, the Senator from Iowa has 10 minutes.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, as a member of the Senate Finance Committee that has worked so hard to put these bills on the floor of the Senate, I am very proud, for a third time, to be part of an effort, another effort, I might say, to pass comprehensive welfare reform.

We have passed welfare reform on two separate occasions. The President has vetoed the bill on both of those occasions. So we obviously wonder whether or not he wants an issue or whether he wants welfare reform. Does he want a bill or an issue? He said in the election of 1992 that he wanted to end welfare as we know it.

For sure, the bills that we passed previously ended welfare as we know it. One bill, part of the 1995 Balanced Budget Act, the first Balanced Budget Act Congress would pass in a generation, did welfare reform, saving $58 billion, compared to the $53 billion that this bill saves.

So maybe the President vetoed that because there was something else in that very big Balanced Budget Act that he did not like. Then we took the welfare reform language out of that, and on December 18 passed that, and in early January he vetoed it. So we wonder just exactly what kind of welfare reform the President wants that would satisfy his and our desire to end welfare as we know it.

Until just last weekend, it looked like he would veto the bill that we are talking about today. In his Saturday radio address, however, he said that the Republican Congress was finally—remember that—finally sending him a welfare bill he could sign. That sounds pretty certain, right? But it is not so certain, because he has said similar things in the past concerning the Senate-passed bill and the Governors' proposals. We do not get a definitive answer—even on this bill—do not get a definitive answer of whether he would sign it even after he talked so positively on the radio Saturday. So only time will tell if he will actually sign this bill.

The President seems to be able to have it two ways. Through the TV media and the radio media, he sends a very clear message to the public that he is promoting welfare reform and he is ready to sign something. But then, when you actually try to pin his people down, whether he will sign a certain bill, we do not get the answer. So, to the mass of the public, they hear that we have a President leading on welfare reform. But the truth is that in the Halls of Congress, there is a dragging of feet of whether or not his people will say, yes, he will sign it.

We passed a previous welfare reform bill by a high bipartisan margin of 87 to 12. Like that, this bill that we have before us now creates a block grant to the States to draft their own welfare reform proposals. This eliminates the need to come, hat in hand, on bended knee to the Federal Government under current waiver provisions.

The President has been touted as signing 67—I do not dispute that—for 40 different States. But still you find an environment today where States have to come on hands and knees to beg for permission to make some change in their welfare system so they can put people to work and save the taxpayers money.

So what is different about this approach is that it is finally welfare reform and not just waiver reform. People that do not want to give up the power of Washington to determine everything, their proposals tend to be more waiver reform, not welfare reform. Welfare reform, in the strictest sense of the word, trusts States.

Wisconsin is an example. The President, wanting to beat Senator Dole to the punch when he knew Senator Dole was going to espouse Wisconsin-type welfare reform, the President said that what Wisconsin is doing is what we should be doing. And under existing law, Wisconsin comes, hat in hand, to the Federal Government begging for a waiver. Now, 60 days later they still do not have their waiver. Yet, the President said, flatly, that we ought to be doing what Wisconsin is doing. Within a few minutes after that comment that day he was asked, would he sign it, if Congress passed what Wisconsin did, and he would not say that he would. We still do not know. For sure, if he likes the Wisconsin approach, why has he not granted Wisconsin's waiver?

The importance of this change from waivers to welfare reform or mere waiver reform, which would be nothing compared to welfare reform, is we give power to the States for a very good reason. We passed so-called welfare reform in 1988. It passed this body 96 to 1. It was supposed to save the taxpayers money. It was supposed to move people from welfare to work. What do we see 8 years later? Three million-plus more people on welfare, we have not saved the taxpayers money, and we are not moving people from welfare to work.

In the meantime, we have seen States, like Wisconsin, that even the President said is doing something right—Michigan, Iowa, and a lot of other States, we have actually seen them, regardless of the fact that they have had to come to Washington to get permission to do what they wanted to do—we are seeing States succeeding where Washington has failed. That is why we have great confidence in what we do, of suggesting welfare reform, welfare to be turned over to the States to administer.

My own State of Iowa overwhelmingly passed legislation in April 1993 to change welfare in our State. In order to implement that plan, the State had to seek 18 initial Federal waivers, and more since. Although the State wanted to implement a statewide plan, they were required to have a control group of between 5 and 10 percent who would remain under the old AFDC policies in order to obtain even this initial waiver.

In October 1993, the policies that affected work incentives and family stability were implemented. At that time, there were over 36,000 families receiving assistance in my State with an average monthly benefit of over $373. I just received the latest figures from my State. That caseload of 36,000 is down 12.6 percent to just under 32,000. The average monthly benefit is down 11.7 percent to $330.

In January 1994, the State implemented its personal responsibility contracts, in which each family on welfare commits to pursue independence, and the State commits to provide certain supports to move that family from welfare to work. Before the State implemented welfare reform, only 18 percent of the welfare families in my State on cash assistance had some earned income.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I have permission from Senator DOMENICI, the floor manager of the bill, to yield myself more time. I yield myself 10 more minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Now, under this new plan people are working. The most recent numbers show that the 18-percent figure has gone to over 33 percent of all cash-assisted families in Iowa now having earned income, the highest percentage of any State in the Nation. Now, some have attributed this dramatic increase to a strong economy and low unemployment rate in my State. However, in this control group that we had to have to satisfy the Washington bureaucrats at HHS, only 19 percent of the people in the old program have earned income. That is only 1 percentage point above what it was for a long period of time before reform in Iowa. So it shows that it takes policies and it takes reform, not just a strong economy, to bring about changes of behavior. My State's success demonstrates that giving States freedom and discretion to create their own programs will be best for the constituents we serve. This bill does that. I firmly believe that State leaders are as compassionate and as concerned for those in need as we are here at the Federal level.

By passing welfare reform that gives more authority to the States, we are putting the best interests of our constituents first. Not only that, but by enacting good welfare policy we are also saving the taxpayers some of their hard-earned money. In this package, we save $53 billion over the next 6 years. Much of this savings comes from making noncitizens ineligible for most Federal assistance programs. Even with these savings, spending on major means-tested programs will actually grow 4.3 percent from $99.3 billion in fiscal year 1996 to $127 billion in the year 2002. This is a measured approach to reforming our welfare system. I am pleased to support it.

There is a concern that a reduction in funds will hurt low-income families. Once again, Iowa serves as an example of what can happen when States are given more freedom to create their own programs. When my State implemented welfare reform in October 1993, the monthly payout for the State was $13.6 million. In June of this year, the monthly payout was down to $10.5 million, a reduction of almost 23 percent. Because of these savings, the State has been able to put more money into job training and into child care for both those on public assistance and those who are low-income working Iowans. This is as it should be.

My State and other States are demonstrating their commitment to serve the needs of their respective constituents. Producing savings to better serve Iowans is simply a benefit of good policy changes.

It is incumbent upon this Congress to try again, then, as we are, to pass welfare reform that fulfills our promise. In this act we are fulfilling our commitment to change welfare as we know it. We are fulfilling our commitment to require work for welfare. We are fulfilling our commitment to have time-limited assistance.

We do not know what the President will do. But just because the President has trouble keeping his promise does not mean we should have trouble keeping our promise, as Members of the U.S. Senate, to deliver on our promise of ending welfare as we know it. We are fulfilling our commitments. He will have to reconsider his commitment.

I am also supportive, as we have just done, of the striking of the Medicaid provisions. I do not like to do that. Striking Medicaid from this bill, no doubt, means any Medicaid reform is dead for this Congress. That is too bad because Medicaid definitely needs reform. Medicaid is spending too much money. The rate of increase it is spending under current law is too rapid to sustain. It is also too encumbered with Federal rules and requirements.

I remind my colleagues that just 12 months ago Senator PACKWOOD, as then chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, was on the floor. He held up a stack of documents just from the State of Oregon—new regulations that had been issued just within the previous 6 months, new regulations for the State Medicaid Program. That is how complicated and irresponsibly administered this program is. Too much control in Washington, not enough faith.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. GRASSLEY. I yield.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator, I want to yield to Senator GREGG when you are finished. Can I do that now?

Mr. GRASSLEY. Yes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask the remainder of time on our side, once Senator GRASSLEY is finished, be yielded to Senator GREGG. Then we will have completed time on this side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

Mr. GRASSLEY. So this Medicaid proposal we had before the Senate would have ended some of that complicated bureaucratic overregulation that has come from the last 30 years under the existing program.

There is nothing new with this proposal. We have been back and forth over this ground. This bill would have changed a lot of that. What disappoint me most, in the Senate Finance Committee's deliberation on Medicaid, we tried in every way possible to satisfy the Democratic members of our committee. Senator ROTH accepted over 50 amendments, many of them retaining Federal protections that the other side wanted, even some Republicans wanted. It seems to me Senator ROTH went a long way toward addressing the major concerns that the minority had and maybe even the President had on the Medicaid portions of the bill.

Despite this, not a single Finance Committee Democrat voted for the bill.

I understand that some of the Republican Governors are not happy with the changes the Finance Committee made to the bill. When we started down this road of Medicaid reform, the idea was that the States would be able to live with less Federal assistance if they had sufficient discretion to organize their programs as they see fit. The bill filed by the Finance Committee does not provide the discretion which most of the Governors were saying earlier this year that they wanted.

Perhaps, for that reason, some of the Governors are willing to see Medicaid and welfare separated. I don't know.

In any case, even with the Democratic amendments accepted by the Finance Committee, the Governors would have had substantially greater discretion than they have now over important aspects of their savings if this legislation were enacted. And we would have moved a step closer to a balanced budget by getting greater control over the Medicaid spending which has been growing in recent years at an unsustainable rate.

But the minority in the Finance Committee voted against the bill. And the President has said again that he would veto it.

So, our leadership has yielded to the inevitable. If there is a silver lining here, it is that we will have a chance to get real welfare reform, assuming that the President is at last willing to sign a welfare reform bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator GREGG has 4 minutes and 32 seconds, the remaining time.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Senator from New Mexico for his courtesy in yielding me this time. I wish to rise to echo much of what has been said here but also hopefully to expand upon it in an effective way. The issue which is being brought forth here is the fundamental issue that we have to address as a Governor. It is the issue of how to control our entitlement accounts.

I serve on the Appropriations Committee. I have the pleasure to chair the Commerce, State, and Justice Subcommittee. I am constantly petitioned by individuals coming to me who represent very legitimate organizations, asking that they receive funding at last year's level of expenditure, or maybe even a slight increase, maybe an inflationary increase in their accounts. I have to say to them, "I am sorry, we are going to have to reduce this account," or in some cases we have to eliminate spending in that account because we do not have the money available.

Why do we not have the money available? Primarily because of the fact we have not been able to control entitlement spending here in our body. Therefore, all the effort to control spending in this body falls on the discretionary side. Entitlement spending, as my colleagues know, is made up of five major items: Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, AFDC, and earned-income tax credit. There are also the farm programs and a variety of other mandatory programs. In fact, I think there are 400 of them.

This Congress, in the balanced budget bill which we sent to the President, addressed the primary drivers of our spending problem on the entitlement side. We addressed Medicaid, we addressed Medicare, we addressed welfare, we addressed AFDC, we addressed the farm program. We did not take up the Social Security issue because that had been moved off the table. Regrettably, the balanced budget proposal which was passed by this Congress was vetoed by the President.

So we have now proceeded to take up these items one at a time. There was a legitimate effort and a very good effort made in the farm area. It did not go as far as I would like on issues like sugar and peanuts, but it did make significant strides.

However, there remains the core issues of the health care accounts, Social Security, and welfare. So today we take up one more leg of the school of entitlement spending which must be addressed and shored up, if it is to be stable, and that is the welfare issue.

I regret, however—and I want to talk about this—that we have not addressed, also, the Medicaid accounts. It is very hard, logically, to separate these two because Medicaid is the health care benefit for people who are essentially on welfare. To separate them is to do something which, from a matter of substantive policy, makes little sense. It may make sense politically, because the administration and the other side of the aisle refuse to address Medicaid. More important, it makes no sense from a standpoint of how it affects our day-to-day life in this Congress in the area of controlling the Federal budget, because Medicaid is a much more significant problem than welfare in the area of spending. In fact, Medicaid spending, over the last 5 years, was $464 billion. But if we do nothing about it over the next 5 years, it will be projected to be $802 billion. That is a 73-percent increase in spending on those accounts.

Now, at that rate of increase, we would soon see—it is projected—that by the year 2010, all the revenues of the Federal Government would be absorbed in order to pay for the costs of the entitlement programs: Medicaid, Medicare, Social Security, welfare benefits, and interest on the Federal debt. We would have no money available to do discretionary activities, such as defense spending, roads, environment, or education.

So this Congress needs to address all those different entitlement accounts. Yet, it has decided not to address the Medicaid accounts—not because this side is not willing; this side is willing to do that. We proposed a bill which addressed it that was vetoed by the President. We reported out of the committee another bill which would have addressed it. The other side of the aisle is not amenable to this.

Therefore, our failure to address the Medicaid account is, in my opinion, a fundamental failure to do the job that is required of us as Members of this Congress, because it is a failure to address what is one of the core issues that is driving the deficit of this country and driving the fact that this Nation is headed toward fiscal bankruptcy in the next century, unless we take control back of these entitlement accounts.

I, therefore, am one who feels that we should have joined the efforts. We should have brought welfare and Medicaid to the floor together, and we should pass them together. But the decision has been made to pursue this welfare reform package.

I simply want to say that, even though it does not include Medicaid as a package, it is a step in the right direction. Although it still has more strings attached than there need to be, it is a package which returns to the States pretty much authority over the management of the welfare accounts in this country. That is the essence of our effort, to take a program that has been an entitlement, directed at the Federal level, and turn it back to the States as a discretionary program, and basically allow the States to manage it in a way that is much more efficient and effective.

In New Hampshire, the dollars that come back to the States without strings will be spent much more effectively than those that come back with strings. It will be able to take care of more people for fewer dollars than is presently occurring under the system as it functions today.

I, therefore, strongly support the welfare part of this reconciliation bill. I regret that we are not taking up what I consider to be one of the other core elements that is driving our fiscal problems in this country—the Medicaid issue. I hope that as we move into this election cycle, however, we will not ignore those issues that are critical in getting this fiscal house in order, such as Medicaid, Medicare, and the Social Security issue, as we move forward.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. The minority leader or his designee has 7 minutes, 30 seconds.

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. I yield myself the remainder of the time.

Mr. President, I support the motion to strike the Medicaid provisions of the pending bill, thereby providing for a realistic change of historic welfare reform becoming law this year.

This is something I have supported for some time. I joined with Senator BOND in 1994 to introduce the first bipartisan welfare reform plan that required responsibility from day one. Last year, I worked with Republican and Democratic colleagues to craft a bipartisan compromise that passed the Senate by a vote of 87-12. This year, I have been pushing to free welfare reform from controversial proposals to cut nursing home and other health care in Medicaid.

In May, I offered an amendment to the budget resolution calling for the separation of welfare from Medicaid. Although my effort at that time was defeated, I am pleased that it looks like that change is agreed to here today, and we do have them separately.

Mr. President, there is no doubt that the current welfare system is broken and in desperate need of reform. It is failing the people on it and the taxpayers who provide the money to finance it. We need to change it, and we should do it, as we did last year, with bipartisan cooperation.

No one has a corner on good ideas, and by putting partisan politics aside and working together, we can forge a bill that makes common sense. For the past few years, I have talked, from time to time, about the need to enact bipartisan welfare reform, which demands responsibility from day one, requires work, and releases welfare families from the cycle of dependency.

The Iowa Family Investment Program, I believe, provides us with an effective model for achieving these goals. Since Iowa began implementing welfare reforms in October 1993, the number of people working has almost doubled, the welfare caseload has declined, and welfare costs are down. I call that a triple play. In fact, I am proud of the fact that our State of Iowa, right now, has a higher percentage of people on welfare who work than any State in the Nation. I believe that is because of the historic welfare reform that we passed in 1993.

Mr. President, there are other good reasons to look at the Iowa experience as we craft legislation. I commend the Iowa experience to my colleagues. In 1993, Iowa enacted sweeping changes to the welfare system, and did so with very strong bipartisan support. In fact, the Iowa plan received only one dissenting vote from the 150-member Democratically controlled general assembly, and it was signed into law by our Republican Governor. So it shows that it is possible to work together on welfare reform, and the State of Iowa is better because of it.

In 1994, I sought to take a page from the Iowa playbook and went to work with my Republican colleague from Missouri, Senator BOND, to develop bipartisan welfare reform legislation modeled on innovations occurring in our respective States. The result was the first bipartisan welfare reform legislation in that session of Congress. The bill was reintroduced last year.

The centerpiece of the Iowa program is the family investment agreement.

In order to receive aid, all welfare recipients are required to sign a binding contract which outlines the steps that each individual family will take to move off of welfare and a date when welfare benefits will end.

Last September, I offered, and the Senate adopted, an amendment to include such a requirement in our bipartisan bill that passed by a vote of 87 to 12. Unfortunately this provision was dropped in the conference with the House.

Later today, I will again, hopefully with bipartisan support, once again try to include a provision which requires individuals to sign a personal responsibility contract as a condition of receiving benefit. I can tell you these contracts are working in Iowa. In fact, I frequently visit with welfare recipients and caseworkers to ask about the contracts. An overwhelming majority say it is positive and very helpful in charting the course for a family to move off of welfare and to keep on track.

While there are many positive features in this bill that we have before us, from requiring work to increased child care funding to child support enforcement improvements, I have concerns about some provisions, and I hope we can work together to improve them. I will not go into all of them. But I want to say that some of the cuts in nutrition really do not have anything to do with welfare reform, and I think are more designed to reach arbitrary budget savings. We cannot back off of our commitment to child nutrition. It will cost us more money in the long run.

I also have concerns about assuring that we maintain basic health and safety standards for child care. I think the work first substitute is far superior to the committee reported bill. It addresses my concerns, and it also includes a strong contract requirement as well as making our Iowa program a model that other States might adopt. It also maintains our commitment to child nutrition and preserving important protections for children.

Senator DASCHLE will be offering this substitute shortly. As one of his co-sponsors, I believe it deserves the support of all Senators. It is tough on work while protecting kids. And that is common sense.

Mr. President, if there is one lesson to be learned from the past year and a half it is this: Confrontation and partisanship is a prescription for failure. The only way we can truly accomplish welfare reform this year is to stop the political games and join forces across the aisle to craft a bipartisan welfare reform which accomplishes the goals that the American people support—a welfare system that puts people to work, and gets them off public assistance quickly, fairly, and permanently.

The adoption of this amendment to take up stand-alone welfare reform moves in that direction of bipartisanship, and I hope that as we proceed on this bill we will continue to work in this spirit—a spirit of bipartisanship—to craft and pass a bill so we can finally achieve needed reform in the area of welfare.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. DASCHLE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. SNOWE). The minority leader, Senator DASCHLE, is recognized.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, thank you.

AMENDMENT NO. 4897

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I have an amendment at the desk. I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from South Dakota (Mr. DASCHLE), for himself, Mr. BREAUX, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. FORD, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. REID, and Mr. KERREY, proposes an amendment numbered 4897.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, let me begin by commending the distinguished Senator from Iowa for his excellent statement just now. He has indicated, in much the same way that I intend to give, the reasons for supporting the work first bill, and his concerns about the pending bill as it has been reported out of the Senate Finance Committee.

There are many Members in our caucus that I would like to single out publicly, and applaud for their remarkable effort and the tremendous work that they have dedicated to this whole issue and to the determination they have shown to pass a meaningful welfare reform bill this year.

Let me begin with the distinguished Senator from Maryland, BARBARA MIKULSKI, and the distinguished Senator as well from Louisiana, JOHN BREAUX, who were extraordinarily helpful to the leadership all the way through our deliberations and have provided remarkable leadership in their own right. I thank them for that. I appreciate very much their assistance in so many ways. The Senator from Connecticut, CHRIS DODD, and the Senator from North Dakota, BYRON DORGAN, and so many of our colleagues who are listed today as cosponsors have also been extremely helpful.

While we have all put an effort into the issue of welfare reform, I should say that no one in our caucus, I dare say in the Senate, has been more vocal and more of a student of this issue than the senior Senator from New York, Senator MOYNIHAN. He is not on the floor at this moment. But I also want to commend him for the real leadership and the willingness that he has demonstrated throughout to hold this body to a set of principles, and in a sense to be the conscience of the Senate when it comes to welfare. He is indeed the conscience of the Senate when it comes to this issue, and no one has dedicated more years—in fact, I would say more decades—to the issue of welfare and the ways in which to address many of the social ills of our country in an effective way as he has.

Madam President, I have two charts here that I just want to address very briefly. I have listened with some interest to the comments made by colleagues on both sides of the aisle. While, obviously, there are issues that divide us, there are many things that unite us. One of the things that unites us I think is an awareness of the degree to which current welfare recipients face barriers of all kinds as they attempt to confront the real changes that they face in their own lives.

The effort to understand those barriers at the beginning through a better realization of how we address those barriers in an effective way through public policy are all listed on this chart. This chart outlines the barriers identified in a study released last year by the Child Care Trends organization. I think it is very constructive to note that of all the barriers that exist today, the biggest barrier of all is child care. The realization that people are not willing to leave their child home alone, that young children demand and, indeed, deserve to be cared for and protected, and that there has to be some confidence that children will find a way with which to be fed and cared for in a meaningful way. But child care without exception is by far the largest barrier that we face in encouraging and finding ways in which to bring about more work for welfare recipients today.

The second is personal—personal problems; struggle, most likely related to job skills; problems that they have had going all the way back to perhaps even their failures in education. But the realization that unless they develop better job skills and better personal skills in order to be more competitive is something that over one-fourth of all recipients say is the problem that leads them to welfare dependency.

Obviously, there are other issues. I will not go into all of them. Some people simply cannot find work. I know of a lot of South Dakotans who live on Indian reservations where unemployment is 80 percent, and there, frankly, is no job on a reservation in large measure that will bring people to a better opportunity for work than the one they have.

Pregnancy is a problem; inability to work because of disabilities; and, obviously, there is a motivation question in some cases.

So, if we are going to devise a bill that will deal with the barriers, we have to devise a bill that deals with all of the different circumstances that welfare recipients find themselves in. We have to ensure that there is motivation to give them some sense that they do not have the luxury of being unmotivated; that we have to deal with child care; we have to deal with job skills; we have to find ways with which to ensure that, if work is not there, we will find work for them.

So we want to do as many things as possible to ensure that welfare recipients no longer face the barriers that they are facing. That really is what unites Republicans and Democrats, and brings us to the effort that is underway in both the House and the Senate this afternoon.

Madam President, there are a number of areas—and a number of our colleagues have already addressed them—that have been improved in the pending legislation. There are significant improvements, and we have counted perhaps as many as two dozen improvements in the current bill over what was originally proposed last year. There certainly has been significant progress.

I heard the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee address many of the improvements that are made in this legislation. We still believe, however, with all of the improvements, there are some very serious deficiencies we have to address. And in an effort to lay down the marker, to find a way with which to make a comparison between the pending legislation and what ideally Democrats would like to see as a meaningful comprehensive welfare reform approach, we are now offering what we call the work first II plan. We have also made improvements. We have also addressed deficiencies that have been raised over the last 12 months. We have also tried to find ways with which to come to the middle, and, even though we thought we were in the middle from the very beginning, maybe a better phrase would be to compromise with our Republican colleagues in a way that addresses their concerns and brings to a higher level of priority some of the concerns that have been raised by critics of welfare reform in the past.

So we today propose the work first plan which provides for conditional assistance of limited duration, which provides work first for all able-bodied recipients, which turns welfare offices into employment offices, and which guarantees child care assistance.

If I could say what our goal ought to be, regardless of what approach we might take, I hope we would all agree on three important goals: first and foremost, providing the assurance that people will have the ability to get a good job, first by the acquisition of skills, and, second, by the acquisition of whatever necessary means it may require to ensure that they have access to good jobs. Turning welfare offices into employment offices ought to be what welfare is all about.

Secondly, we want to ensure that we are protecting children, that we are not going to punish them, that we will not hold vulnerable individuals in a way that would jeopardize their future, that would condemn them to the same cycle of dependency that their parents and grandparents and great grandparents have experienced.

So protecting children ought to be our second goal—fortifying them, strengthening them, empowering them to do things that they may not otherwise be able to do on their own.

Third, we believe there are ways in which to save Federal tax dollars. We believe we can provide a welfare system that is more efficient, that saves resources in ways that can be better spent, first, in welfare but also in the vast array of other responsibilities we have at the Federal level.

So in a sense, Madam President, that is exactly what the work first bill does. It provides work; it provides job skills to get work; it protects children; and it saves money. In fact, it saves about $51 billion, according to the Congressional Budget Office. The CBO scores our plan as real reform. The CBO says that we have sufficient resources to put welfare recipients to work, one of the goals.

In addition, we provide sufficient resources to pay for child care to assist states in meeting the work rates, to pay for the other major responsibilities that we see shared at both the State and the Federal level.

Unlike our plan, the CBO does not say the same about the Republican plan. CBO says that States will just take the penalties that are incorporated in the Republican plan; that they will not put people to work; that they will not meet the work rates; that they will not fundamentally change the current system. The Congressional Budget Office says that about the Republican plan, about the Finance Committee passed plan, not about our plan.

Under our plan, the work first plan of 1996, we do some of the same things that the Republican plan does. We provide conditional assistance of limited duration. We require that there be work for all able-bodied welfare recipients. We turn welfare offices, in other words, into employment offices. And we guarantee child care assistance.

Those are the fundamental principles of the work first plan. Our plan answers three key questions: Does it require welfare recipients to look for a job? The answer is yes, unequivocally. Second, does it require welfare recipients to work? The answer is yes, unequivocally. Finally, does it help welfare recipients retain a job? Again, the answer is yes, unequivocally.

Under our plan, there is no more unconditional assistance. From the very first day parents are going to be required to sign a contract. It is a blueprint for employment. They must sign it to receive any assistance whatsoever. Under the Republican plan, there is no contract at all.

For the first 2 months, our plan calls for extensive job search. We get the most job-ready into the work force that we can, that is, the more people that come into the welfare offices looking for help, the whole design is to find them help not with a welfare check but with a job, with assistance to get that job. If within 3 months a parent is not working or is not in job training or education, that parent must perform community service. They do not have the option. They are required to perform community service within a 3-month period of time.

Within 3 months, our plan, in other words, has a work requirement. It may surprise some that there is no work requirement of that kind in the Republican plan. There is no similar provision. We see a lot of tough talk but no actual work requirement for 2 years under the Republican plan.

So there you have one of the very significant differences between the work first plan, which is work in 3 months, and the Republican plan which is only work after 24 months or 2 years. That is 2 years of unconditional assistance under the Republican plan as it is currently written.

Our plan is tough on parents, Madam President, but not on children. And that in our view is the second big difference between ours and theirs. Our plan protects children. Child care for parents who are required to work and parents transitioning from welfare to work is something we want to do in every possible instance. We want to provide vouchers for children whose families have reached the time limit.

We recognize that in some cases you are going to bump up to the time limit and then it begs the question, what happens to the kids? Are the kids also going to be penalized through no fault of their own? And if they are penalized, are they then relegated once more to this never-ending cycle of dependency and poverty with no hope of bringing themselves out?

Health care coverage for children whose families have reached the time limit is something that we think is vital if we are going to provide meaningful, comprehensive assistance that deals with the challenges we talked about earlier.

It seems to us that Republicans may not want to do this. They end up aiming at the mother but in some cases hitting the child. They do not allow their block grant funds to be used to help children whose families have reached the 5-year time limit. They do not guarantee child care. They do not guarantee health care. Their idea of a safety net is a sieve. There are so many holes in that safety net there is no possibility that people who are trying to work their way through the system can protect their kids and ensure that they have the competence to go out and get a good job.

The work first plan targets the specific barriers, in other words, Madam President, that we feel must be addressed if we are going to be successful in passing a meaningful comprehensive, successful welfare reform plan this year. In child care, we provide $8 billion in new resources. That is $16 billion total because that is what we are told will be required if, indeed, we want to provide the services to those directly affected. Unlike the Republican plan, the Congressional Budget Office says we sufficiently fund child care to make the work rates and assist those transitioning from welfare to work. The Republican plan cannot make that claim. They recognize, if CBO is to be the guide, that they fall short in providing the necessary resources to ensure that the child care services are going to be provided.

Our plan also targets aid to the working poor so they will not have to turn to welfare or return to welfare at some later date.

The second barrier that I addressed just a moment ago is personal reasons. Many welfare recipients cite personal reasons for not working, like the lack of transportation or no job skills. The money to tear down these barriers is something that has to be provided in a welfare reform plan—money for transportation, resources for job training, resources it takes to create their own plans to put people to work. In other words, to be honest and to recognize that unless we have the ability to deal directly with those reasons that welfare recipients give for their inability to get a job—their inability to get to a job, their inability to qualify for a job, their inability to demonstrate that they have the personal skills to hold a job—we are not going to change this welfare dependency regardless of all of our good intentions.

So, we address those. We address those personal reasons that welfare recipients have given time and time again. For those who are unmotivated, our answer is very simple. We say the time limit is going to be there and you are going to have to accept it. You have a timeframe within which you must get a job. You have a timeframe within which you must realize the benefits are going to stop.

Unless you are unwilling to work with us, you can expect we will work with you to address your motivation and problems of the past. We can help you get job skills. We can help you get child care. But you have to reciprocate. You have to find ways in which you can prove to us you are motivated and you want to get that job as badly as we want to get you one. So dealing with the unmotivated is something we feel has to be addressed.

We also address the barriers the Republican plan does not. The Congressional Budget Office says the Republican plan will not meet the work rates that we all are stipulating or stating as our objective in dealing with welfare reform. The Congressional Budget Office says the Republican plan falls far short on child care.

Clearly the Republican plan needs to be improved in a number of areas, and that is our whole purpose: To lay down in a comprehensive way, in one bill, all of the areas that we believe would allow us, as Democrats and Republicans, adequately to address the deficiencies and work together to solve them.

There is a lot of common ground, as I said just a moment ago, on welfare reform. We all want to reform welfare. We all want to end welfare the way we knew it. We all want able-bodied welfare recipients to work. There ought to be no unconditional assistance. We largely agree with that. But not welfare reform on the backs of children. That may be an area where there is some disagreement. There are over 8 million children today who receive welfare. It is the children that we feel the need to protect, infants and toddlers who do not know what welfare is ought not to be penalized. They ought to be held harmless in this effort to try to help their families and their parents.

So, Madam President, this is an opportunity. It is an opportunity to come to the middle. It is an opportunity to address what we consider to be a bill that yet, in spite of its improvements, still has some serious deficiencies that need to be addressed if, indeed, we are going to pass this legislation and have it signed into law.

The President has made it very clear he will not be hesitant to veto a bad bill. On the other hand, he has also made it clear that he would like very much to work with Republicans and Democrats to sign a good bill. We have an opportunity this afternoon, tonight, and tomorrow, to make this bill a good one. Passage of this amendment would do just that.

So we hope Republicans will join Democrats in supporting the work first amendment: To save the $51 billion we know we can save if we do it right and still protect the children, to fundamentally change the welfare system as we know it and to recognize we simply cannot do it on the backs of children.

A tremendous amount of effort has gone into this whole project. I am, indeed, very grateful to my colleagues for their help and all the leadership they have demonstrated in bringing us to this point. I urge its adoption. I urge bipartisan support.

I will be delighted to yield to one of the coauthors of the legislation, the Senator from Maryland.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield for a question? Will the Senator yield for a question? Just a brief one?

Ms. MIKULSKI. Of course.

Mr. DOMENICI. We do not have the amendment. We understand it is 800 pages long and we have not seen it. Does anybody know where we could get a copy of it?

Mr. DASCHLE. We will get you a copy.

Mr. DOMENICI. You will get us a copy? Thank you very much. Thank you, Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland is recognized.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Madam President, I am proud to join the Democratic leader and Senator BREAUX in offering this substitute amendment, the Work First Act of 1996. As one of the coauthors of this amendment, working with Senator DASCHLE and Senator BREAUX, I want to say it does reform welfare. It embodies the principles of turning the welfare system into an employment system, of being firm on work, and of providing a safety net for children. It recognizes that child care is the linchpin between welfare and work. And it puts men back into the picture.

We do it very straightforwardly. We do it by replacing AFDC with temporary employment assistance, which is time-limited and conditional. We require all parents on welfare to sign a parent empowerment contract, which is their plan for moving from welfare to work, and which also emphasizes their role and responsibility in child rearing. We advocate not only moving people to work, but we do it by providing the tools to move people to work, through child care assistance, transitional Medicaid coverage, and other work-related services. We also require a safety net for children with child care funding, a guarantee of health care, and noncash aid where it is needed to meet the specific needs of each child. In the event the parents do not meet their responsibilities, we are not going to punish the child for the failings of the mother. We also eliminate the cruel and punitive rule called the "man in the house" rule and allow States to offer job placement services to fathers. The Work First Act is a plan that is tough on work but not tough on kids.

It is important to note the bill before us today is much improved over the Republican plan which the Senate considered last year. Many of the provisions included in the Democratic work first bill from last year have been incorporated into this version.

I am particularly pleased that earlier Republican efforts to block grant child protection programs—to take the child protection programs and turn them into a block grant—have been abandoned. This is an issue of special importance to me. I worked as a child abuse and child neglect worker, and I know how crucial those programs are. It was absolutely crucial this bill maintain those protections. I thank Senator CHAFEE and all those on the other side of the aisle who worked on that. I want to acknowledge the Senator from Maine for her particular role in that advocacy.

I believe the changes that have been made to last year's Republican bill has brought us a long way. The pending bill is no longer the punitive one that was brought to the floor last year.

But I do believe improvement needs to be made. That is why we are offering the work first amendment. This amendment is the result of ongoing efforts to find the sensible center. We listened to the concerns raised about the work first bill in last year's debate. So we tightened up our plan, and we save more money. We save some $51 billion. We also heard the voices of the Governors, and in response made sure our plan provided greater flexibility for the States to design their own programs. I believe our plan is a stronger plan as a result.

In drafting our amendment, we emphasize two clear priorities. First, we wanted to emphasize work as the goal of any welfare program. Second, we wanted to protect children and provide a safety net for them.

First and foremost, our plan is about the empowerment of people, not the enlargement of bureaucracy. Empowering people has become almost a cliché. What does empowerment mean? Empower means that you give people tools to get ready for a job, to obtain a job, and to keep a job. We think you have to be in job training and we emphasize the job training must immediately lead to work.

I do believe the best social program is a job; one that moves a person from welfare to work, and to a better life for themselves and their families. That is what we hope to do.

Work is the cornerstone of our plan. The first step for any welfare recipient will be to sign an empowerment contract, which is a contract outlining a plan to get into the work force. Our plan ensures that people live up to their contract by requiring recipients to engage in an intensive job search, ending assistance to those who refuse to accept a legitimate job offer, and providing a 5-year time limit for benefits.

We give the States the resources and the flexibility to help people meet the terms of their empowerment contract, whether it is job search assistance, on the job training, placement vouchers or even wage subsidies.

This emphasis on work changes the whole culture of welfare by saying welfare should not be a way of life but a way to a better life. We want to turn welfare offices into employment offices, by changing the focus to looking for work rather than looking for benefits.

But while we are making work the top priority, we also look out for the children with a safety net that provides child care, health care and protections from child abuse. We recognize that lack of child care is the biggest obstacle to work; to both getting a job and keeping one. So our bill provides $16 billion in child care funds for those required to work, for those transitioning to work, and for the working poor so they don't slide into welfare.

We also make sure that every child has access to health care; that they get their immunizations; that they get their early detection and screening so that their parents are not only work-force ready, but the children are learning ready when they go to school and stay in school.

We maintain that Federal commitment to fight child abuse by requiring States to meet Federal standards in child welfare and foster care programs. We also reauthorize the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act.

Child abuse and neglect is growing like an epidemic. Just like we need to end welfare abuse, we need to end the abuse of children. With child protection systems overwhelmed, and half the States under court order because of the way they handle child protection, we must do all we can to make sure no one gets away with abusing or neglecting a child.

Madam President, we also provide a safety net for children. I believe that most welfare recipients will move to work and take advantage of the opportunities in this bill. But if they do not, we are not going to punish the child. We are not going to aim at a parent and hit the child. So we require the States to assess the needs of children in families who have reached the time limit, and to provide noncash aid, for example, vouchers to a third party, to meet the basic subsistence needs of children. States will have the flexibility to design this program, but we believe the Federal requirement is needed to make sure that children do not pay the price when parents are unable to move from welfare to work.

Because we value family, marriage, and work, we know the strongest family is one with two parents, with the father in the home. So the work first amendment brings men back into the family by ending rules which create a marriage penalty if poor people get married and stay married.

Our bill is also tough on child support. It requires Federal and State governments to work together to enforce child support orders, streamlines the process to collect child support checks, and calls on States to implement tough procedures to make sure that parents do live up to their responsibilities. We, the Democrats, believe that if you are a deadbeat parent, you should not have a driver's license or a professional license, and so we call on States to implement procedures on that.

Madam President, I hope we adopt this work first amendment. It is an amendment which pulls together the best ideas of both parties. It ends the cycle of poverty and the culture of poverty.

It is a plan that saves lives, saves taxpayers dollars, creates opportunities for work and protects the children.

I urge the adoption of the amendment, and I yield the floor.

Mr. D'AMATO addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York.

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time does the Senator need?

Mr. D'AMATO. Fifteen minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I yield 15 minutes of our hour to the Senator from New York.

Mr. D'AMATO. Madam President, I rise in strong support of the welfare bill that is before us. Let's put it simply: Our current welfare system is broken. It is broken. We have recognized that. This Chamber passed a welfare reform bill 87 to 12. I want to raise the question, did my colleagues who overwhelmingly support this bill vote for that because it was a bill that was going to punish people or did they recognize that the system is broken and is in need of repair—87 to 12?

Let me say something. The welfare system was never intended to become a way of life. It was meant as a temporary haven for rough times to assist people, and after 30 years, it has expended $5 trillion, and the welfare system still does not work. It entraps people, and the results have been a horror.

The fact of the matter is that we have to do better than sloganeering. We have to do better than saying "ending welfare as we know it" is a priority. The President has said that. But we need action, we need real action, and the one thing we do not need to do is to empower the bureaucracy here in Washington, because some of my colleagues are advocating that we give and make the czarina of HHS, the czarina who will have absolute authority as it relates to the administration of welfare programs in our States.

All of a sudden, we have adopted an attitude that somehow the Governors of our States, Democrats and Republicans, and the legislatures of our States are inhuman, that they do not have the capacity to do what is right, that they would threaten our children, threaten our seniors, threaten the elderly.

Madam President, that is not correct; that is not true. But I will tell you what I do believe. I believe that most of the Governors and most of the State legislatures are saying, "Set us free. Let us help our people help themselves. Help us help encourage a work ethic."

The fact of the matter is, this bill is very similar to last year's bill which passed overwhelmingly. There are some myths that say we will hurt children. That happens not to be the case. I am going to touch on some of these things, but let me say something. No less than a great President known for his compassion for immigrants, for poor people, for working people, for the downtrodden than Franklin Delano Roosevelt said it best when he talked about welfare. He said:

If people stay on welfare for prolonged periods of time, it administers a narcotic to their spirit, and this dependence on welfare undermines their humanity, makes them wards of the state and takes away their chance at America.

Franklin Delano Roosevelt. I do not believe any of us can say it better. I am not going to attempt to say it better. I refer to a great American, a great President, the man who had every bit as much compassion for those in need as anybody who warned us and gave us the admonition of watching about entrapping people and killing their spirit, the American spirit.

Madam President, the current system has created a culture of dependence that has doomed an entire generation of children, and it has consigned them to poverty. Some people do not like to lose control. They are more worried about their power and their control in terms of what has taken place. They seem to be blind to that. Somehow we are going to make it worse. How can we make it worse?

Look at the statistics. Look at the out-of-wedlock births that continue to rise. Look at the cycle of dependency. The current system provides a basis for, if not encouragement of, irresponsible behavior, particularly in the area of out-of-wedlock births.

This is a strong bill. Is it a perfect bill? Of course not, but it is an attempt to strike a balance between giving power to the States and to local communities to set expectations for work and responsibility, limiting benefits as it relates to time and maintaining a safety net for children and hardship cases. This bill maintains that safety net.

Let's take a look at the record. A great Governor in our State, Al Smith, said that sometimes people do not like to look at the record because it can prove to be embarrassing. There are facts in these records. If we look over the last 15 years, we will see an increase in welfare spending that is absolutely startling.

Our expenditures have risen from $27 billion in 1980—$27 billion when I came here to the Senate—to $128 billion. Have we improved the lot of those on welfare? I do not think so.

While the bill converts the AFDC Program, the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program, to a block grant that we have heard so much about—"No, don't give a block grant, you're going to be giving it to the Governors." We are not giving it to the Governors. What we are doing is turning over responsibility to those closest to the people who have seen how badly the system has been administered, how flawed it is, how it does not give flexibility to deal with the human needs of our citizens.

While it makes a block grant, it provides $4 billion in extra money, not less. Four billion dollars in extra funds will be available to help welfare clients hold a job, and it provides up to 20 percent of the caseload will be exempt from time limits, so that if there are those people with special needs who cannot hold a job, who cannot work, who are going to have to stay on welfare beyond 2 years or beyond 5 years, it does exactly that, it gives to the States flexibility.

The bill addresses a small but very growing problem of immigrants' use of welfare. I, being the grandson of immigrants, understand the great culture that we have in this country due to our immigration and to our diversity of cultures, and it has contributed to the strength of America. I do not want to stop immigration to this country, but I have to tell you, we have seen lately a situation that has developed where we have 3 percent of the population, and that is what the foreign-born population is; the immigrant population over the age of 65 now constitutes over 30 percent—30 percent—of the elderly receiving SSI benefits. Something is terribly wrong, and we have found, through hearings, what is taking place.

There are those people who are gaming the system. They sign up to bring elderly people in and say they are going to be responsible for them, and they put them right on welfare. That is not right. That is not what this system is about. We did not design the system to say, "Come here and get welfare benefits, and John Q. Public, hard-working middle-class families, are going to pay for it."

There is a question of, are we going to hurt the children? Let me tell you something. We guarantee that school lunch programs will be continued for the children of those who are born here and for immigrant children as well. We understand our responsibility. I thank the Agriculture Committee for continuing this important program.

Let me touch on one other area. For years we have had a gaming of the system. We have had what you call welfare shopping where people from one jurisdiction will move in to an adjoining State so that they can get higher benefits. We have seen the statistics. I saw one county, when I offered this provision 4-years ago to stop welfare shopping, to eliminate it, to cut down on it, they had this relatively small county, and more than 600 families moved in, people moved in to Niagara County to get benefits. They were receiving welfare benefits in other States, adjoining States. Since the benefit level in New York was much higher, they found the system, and the word spread. People moved in simply to get on welfare.

That is not what this is about. What does this bill do? It stops welfare shopping. It says, if you move into a jurisdiction and you were previously on welfare, you come into a system and go right to the welfare commissioner to get your increased maintenance, you will receive payments at the same level for a year that you were receiving from the adjoining State. So that is going to stop that practice.

Again, President Roosevelt talked about the narcotic. It seems to me that this is what has taken place. We have really been saying over generations and generations, it is OK, it is OK; you can game the system.

This bill includes $4 billion in additional child care funding that is not available now. It is not available now. That is a good bill. It makes sense. In fact, this bill has more money for child care, a larger contingency fund, greater financial incentives for States to meet the work requirements, a higher hardship exemption from the 5-year limit, and a better maintenance of effort than the bill that we passed 87-12.

It is a superior bill. It has more safety for children. It provides more revenue, more flexibility for States. To what? To hurt people? No. To move them off the cycle of dependency, to move them into real work.

The bill has a 5-year limit on benefits. It is necessary. It is an adequate length of time for recipients to raise their infants, straighten out their lives, and get a job and make a better life for themselves and their children.

Madam President, we have to be honest with ourselves. May there be some imperfections? Of course. Are we going to say, though, if there is an imperfection that a State will duck out on their legitimate responsibility to feed the poor, to take care of the children, to take care of those who are truly in need? Are we really saying that somehow those of us here in the Senate and in the House of Representatives have a higher standard of helping those who are most in need than our local representatives, than our Democratic legislatures, than our Republican legislatures and our Democratic Governors and our Republican Governors? Is that what we are really saying?

The system has been gamed. The system has grown from $27 billion to over $128 billion in the past 15 years—billions and billions more—no additional freedom, no additional opportunity for those it has entrapped. If one were to look at the statistics, it is staggering. Only 1 out of 20 who have dependent children—only 1 out of 20—go to work. Is that the legacy we are sowing? Is that what Franklin Delano Roosevelt meant when he said, again: If people stay on welfare for prolonged periods of time, it administers a narcotic to their spirit. This dependency on welfare undermines their humanity.

Think about that. How prophetic. I think it has undermined their spirit, their humanity. It makes them wards of the state. Who wants to be a ward of the state? Who wants to feel like a second- or third-class citizen? Who wants to feel like they are not carrying their weight? Give our people an opportunity. Free them. Let us create the incentive to move them into work. Do not hold them in bondage. Let us not get involved in the ridiculous politics of one-upmanship.

Let us give to our States and local administrators the ability to help bring about this kind of change. It is going to be tough. It is not going to be easy. It is going to be very tough. Some people may not make it. We may not be totally successful. I daresay, we will not be. But for every individual, for every citizen that we help, who gains that spirit of independence and freedom, freedom to do for themselves, economic freedom, freedom to stand up and say, "I participate to the best of my ability," that is what we have to be seeking.

I think it is about time that all of us, Democrats, Republicans—this bill passed overwhelmingly, 87 to 12. My colleagues on the other side supported it. Was it perfect then? No. Is it perfect now? No. But it is better than doing business as usual. The time for sloganeering has passed, Madam President. Future generations need our help. Some parents may not be happy about what we are going to be doing, but to those who are born and those who are yet to be born, we have an obligation to do what is right and to provide a way and to provide an opportunity for economic freedom.

I urge that we come together and pass this bill. It is a good bill. It is not perfect. It certainly will be helping people—people—in this country and its spirit.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. D'AMATO. Certainly.

Mr. DOMENICI. First, before I ask the question, I see my friend, Senator EXON is here, the ranking minority member. A little while ago, I mentioned I have not seen the Senator's Democrat amendment yet and that it was 800 pages, I understood. I ask the Senator, did he have some suggestion with reference to that amendment?

Mr. EXON. Yes, I did. I am not sure how serious it was, but I heard the strenuous objection to the 800 pages in the amendment that is now before us. I suggested maybe if the Republicans would accept it, we would cut it down to 700 pages. The Senator did not immediately agree to that. Will the Senator take it under consideration?

Mr. DOMENICI. I think the Senator has to get down to maybe 300, 400 pages. Then we might be interested.

Mr. EXON. That shows bipartisanship and cooperation is working.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wanted to ask Senator D'AMATO awhile ago—he was talking about noncitizens who are receiving welfare benefits. I want to ask, because I think the American people somehow have missed over the last 15, 20 years, because most of us missed it, we were totally unaware, as I understand it, that many Americans were sending off to foreign countries for their elders under an American policy that is so generous it just makes you understand what a wonderful country we are. Under a policy of family unification, we let a 45-year-old, 48-year-old American send off to a foreign country and bring their 65-year-old mother or father to America.

Mr. D'AMATO. That is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. Right. That 45, 48-year-old American signs an agreement that that relative will not become a ward of the people of America, because we have had a policy since our Revolutionary days that noncitizens, aliens, illegal aliens and aliens, would not become wards of the state; thus, moving aliens to become citizens and to become productive. That was the reasoning.

Here is what has happened. That 45, 46, 47-year-old American, in good faith, brought that elderly parent over here. But what happened, I say to the Senator, is that in very short order they found that the U.S. Government would do nothing about it if they did not support them. So guess what happened? They did not support them. So guess what happens? Hundreds of thousands are on SSI.

In fact, I want to show the Senator this chart because it is so incredible. It makes our point in the most descriptive way you could. Of the general population, 2.9 percent of that general population are noncitizens over 65.

Mr. DODD. Will my colleague yield on that point?

Mr. DOMENICI. In just a moment. Look at this. And 29 percent of all of those on SSI are noncitizens over 65, 10 times the proportion of the population that they represent—10 times.

Mr. DODD. Will my colleague yield?

Mr. DOMENICI. I was borrowing his time.

Mr. DODD. If the Senator will yield, my colleague from New Mexico raised a good point.

As I understand it, the underlying bill that came out of committee bans this. The substitute that is being offered by the Democratic leader bans this. Our colleague from New Mexico has raised a good point here. As I understand it, both bills plug up this loophole that the chairman of the Budget Committee has so accurately and properly pointed out.

Am I wrong on that?

Mr. D'AMATO. I do not know about the—

Mr. DOMENICI. I have a lot of difficulty finding out what is in your bill. As soon as we get the 800-page bill.

Mr. DODD. I am here to say it is in the bill. We ban it. I presume it is banned in the underlying bill, as well.

Mr. D'AMATO. It is banned in the underlying bill.

Mr. DOMENICI. We agree it is there, and we compliment you for, at least, that page.

Mr. DODD. I just wanted to be clear on that.

Mr. DOMENICI. Just to understand, that is 1 million aliens who are on SSI.

Mr. D'AMATO. Improperly.

Mr. DOMENICI. Frankly, all we are saying is that is not the way we intended it, so fix it, and make sure it does not happen.

Now, we actually know, and I share this with my friend from New York, we actually know that there are games taking place where people are educated about how they can come here under the circumstances I described and how soon they can get on SSI. Now, if you would like for this little dialog to show how many are advantaged now by Medicaid, since Americans wonder about Medicaid, let me give you the number. I do not think you would have known it. Madam President, 2.7 million aliens are on Medicaid.

Mr. D'AMATO. Would my colleague know how many billions of dollars a year that is costing the taxpayers?

Mr. DOMENICI. I cannot remember.

Mr. D'AMATO. If we multiplied 2.7 million times $3,000 per recipient—and that is a modest figure, because as they are more elderly the cost even goes up higher—we would find that is a shocking figure. It seems to me that approaches over $6 billion a year—$6 billion a year. That is a round number.

Mr. DOMENICI. We figured it out. It is $8.1 billion.

Mr. D'AMATO. So I gave you a low figure of $6 billion.

I am happy to yield to my colleague and friend but, again, let me simply say what is taking place is that the noblest of purposes—as a result of the culture that has developed in terms of our present welfare system, it is doing exactly what our great President Franklin Delano Roosevelt said. He said it would act as a narcotic to the spirit of those who received these benefits for a prolonged period of time, undermine their humanity.

There is nothing more noble than taking care of the elderly, taking care of one's parents and grandparents and sending for them. That was why we have this legislation. I think we demonstrate how quickly that becomes undermined when we now have a system that encourages the abuse. I commend my colleagues on the Democratic side for saying, and recognizing, that this is something that has to be dealt with.

Madam President, I strongly urge we get done with the business of rhetoric as it relates to talking about the need for welfare reform and enact this legislation substantially in the form that it is, do the business of the people, and particularly the business of future generations, of giving them an opportunity to really live the American dream, to feel free, to feel that spirit of independence that is a right of every one of our citizens.

I yield the floor.

Mr. EXON. Madam President, may we have the chart back up for a minute. I yield myself such time as I may need. I will be brief and then I will yield to the next speaker on this side.

It is an interesting chart that my friend and colleague brought up. We have been debating this. I simply point out that I think we are debating a smelly dead polecat or a straw man. Both of the bills, the Republican bill and the amendment that we have offerred, both address what has been pointed out here as something wrong. Another way of saying that is that there are general agreements on both sides of the aisle that these kind of things must be corrected.

I simply want to point out that we agree with the points made by the chairman, my friend and colleague from New Mexico, and the junior Senator from New York. I simply say of the 800-page bill that we have agreed to cut down, one or two of the pages in that bill that address the very same thing that is adequately addressed in your bill, are two of the pages that we will not drop. I simply say, I think we have enough to debate about. I want to make the point there are lots of similarities between the two bills, and it may take 800 pages to define some of the objections that we have which we will continue to debate and point out.

I come back to the basic point I made in the opening remarks on this side. We are most concerned about children, and while we recognize and agree and salute the opposition for some of the changes they have made, we still think more has to be done with regard to children.

How much time remains on the Daschle amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The proponents have 31 minutes and 10 seconds.

Mr. EXON. How much time does the Senator from North Dakota need?

Mr. DORGAN. Twelve minutes.

Mr. EXON. I yield 12 minutes to the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Madam President, I appreciate the cooperation of the Senator from Nebraska.

I rise to support the work first amendment offered by Senator DASCHLE. This issue is not, as is often portrayed, a caricature about Cadillac welfare queens whom we have heard about over a couple of decades of debate about the welfare system. The stereotype we hear about is this clipping of a Cadillac welfare queen, living in some big city, collecting a multitude of checks with which to buy a Cadillac and color television, and living the life of leisure.

That is not what this debate is about. It is about a welfare system, and this is a serious subject, that affects the lives of many, many people. This is the right subject. The welfare system does not work very well in this country. It does not work very well for the taxpayers, because there are able-bodied people who make welfare a way of life and should go to work. It does not work very well for those on welfare because it encourages them to stay there rather than go to work. It does not work well for kids, who are the most important element in this issue.

I have told my colleagues about the young boy I have never forgotten, a young boy named David who came to testify at a committee hearing. He lived in a homeless shelter with his mother in New York, moving back and forth between shelters. He testified before a committee on hunger and said, "No 10-year-old boy like me should have to put his head down on his desk at school in the afternoon because it hurts to be hungry." I have never forgotten this young fellow and what he said.

The debate about this bill is increasingly about children, about those who live in circumstances that are troubled, about those who are born in circumstances of poverty, about those who have suffered setbacks in their lives. Two-thirds of the welfare expenditures in America are for the benefit of kids under 16 years of age. If you listen to some of the debate, you would believe that welfare is essentially, if not entirely, about giving a check to an able-bodied person so she can find a LA-Z-BOY couch or chair and lean back, and watch television, while drinking a quart of beer. That is the caricature drawn of welfare recipients, but that is wrong.

Two-thirds of the welfare dollars are spent for children under 16 years of age. No one here would sensibly say it is time to kick 10-year-olds out and have them go to work, get a good job, and take care of themselves. Children in this country, born in circumstances of poverty, did not ask for that, and we owe it to them to care about their lives.

I mentioned that welfare is the right subject, because the current welfare system does not work very well. The fact is, there are many similarities between what the Republicans and Democrats in the Congress believe on welfare reform. We tend to emphasize the differences, but we have much in common.

There is an avalanche of teen pregnancies in this country, and too many of them end up on welfare and are unprepared to take care of children. We need a national crusade to try to reduce the number of teenage pregnancies in this country. That is one way to address the welfare issue. We do that in the amendment that is before the body now.

There is an army of deadbeat dads in America, men who have babies and leave, saying, "Yes, it is my baby, but not my responsibility, and I do not intend to pay a cent for that child." Guess who pays for that child? The American taxpayer. This bill says: Deadbeat dads, avoiding your responsibility is over. If you have children, you have a responsibility to help pay for the care of those children. And you have a responsibility to the American taxpayer.

Tens of billions of dollars in child support payments that are owed by deadbeat dads who have left and said, "The kids I fathered are none of my business." This bill says: I am sorry, but you are wrong, and we are going to make sure that in the future you take responsibility for those children.

Yes, there are able-bodied people in this country who believe that welfare can be a way of life. This bill says, you are wrong. This bill says that we intend to turn welfare offices into employment offices. We intend to say to welfare people—those who are able-bodied—If you are able-bodied and need a helping hand, if you are down and out, down on your luck, if you have just had a fire and lost everything in your trailer home, lost your job, suffered health consequences, or you have suffered a multitude of problems, we want to reach out and give you a helping hand. We want to help you back up, to help you get back on your feet, and to give you a chance.

That is what our welfare system ought to be. But it ought to also say that you have a responsibility as well. Yes, we will help you get back on your feet, but you have to be involved in helping yourself, and you have certain responsibilities. If all of the American taxpayers are going to help you, you have a responsibility to help yourself. That is also what this legislation does.

Work is the focus of this bill for those who are able-bodied. This is a tough bill, but a fair bill. It reforms the welfare system in the right way. It says that if you take responsibility for yourself, the Government will provide you with a temporary helping hand. It says we will provide you with the tools to get back into the work force and when you get there, we expect you to stay there. This amendment requires the able-bodied to sign a contract agreeing to go to work. It also says that if you fail to live up to the terms of that contract, your benefits will be terminated immediately.

The plan is flexible. It gives State and local governments the ability to be creative in developing their plans. But this plan especially recognizes that child care and job training are the linchpins to solving the welfare problem for those who are able-bodied.

I have told my colleagues of getting up in 6 in the morning and going to a homeless shelter in this town, Washington, DC, and talking to a young woman who had several children, and then driving back to the Capitol Building about 8 in the morning and thinking to myself, if I had been that young woman, what would I have done? Would I be able to climb out of the circumstances she found herself in, with a husband who left her, a need to care for several children, no job, no skills, but certainly not a desire to remain in that circumstance? This is not someone who said to me over pancakes at the shelter, "I really want to stay on welfare." With tears in her eyes, she said, "I want to go to work. I want to get a place to live. I want to provide for my kids. I want to get skills so I can get a good job." I was trying to think on the way back to the Capitol, I wonder how I could deal with that if I were her. Well, if you save for the first and last month's rent to get an apartment, they will cut you back on the AFDC payments. So you cannot save in order to get into an apartment. So no housing, no home. You will remain homeless. If you go get a minimum wage job frying hamburgers, as she did, what happens? You lose your children's Medicaid benefits. No health care for your children. If you try to go find some job training, where do you put your kids? Is anybody going to pay child care? No. So they are trapped. This young lady was trapped and she did not want more help. She did not want more welfare. She wanted to find a way out of that trap—to find a job, help provide for her kids, to give her hope and an opportunity for the future. That is what this debate is about.

This debate says it is unfair to the American taxpayers to pay for those who are able-bodied and stay at home. But it also recognizes that most people finding themselves on welfare want a way out, a way up, a way to improve their lives. This legislation offers that helping hand by saying that you have a responsibility, even as we help you. If you fail to meet that responsibility, we will not help. The amendment says, with respect to the issue of teen pregnancies, there will be no more independent households for teen mothers on welfare. None. Stay at home and stay in school. You must live with an adult family member or in a supervised setting where you can learn the skills to become a responsible parent. If you do not, there will be no benefits.

Some will say that is tough, and it is tough. But it is what we must do to reform this welfare plan. I have talked about the many challenges we face in Congress today. I summarized it by talking about kids, jobs, and values. That summarizes most of the challenges we face in Congress—dealing with kids, jobs, and values. The welfare debate touches all of those areas. It is, most importantly, an issue of what do we do about kids born in circumstances of poverty, born into a life that they did not choose. They did not ask to be born in poverty. What do we say to them? Do we say, "You have value, merit, and we intend to help you, and we care about your lives"?

Welfare reform is about jobs, moving people from circumstances of welfare to employment, and to the ability to take care of themselves. Values? Yes, it is also about values. Do we value work over welfare? If so, let us apply those judgments in welfare reform, on the minimum wage and in other areas. Let us say to the folks at the bottom of the economic ladder in America that we are going to help you climb up the ladder and help you reach your full potential.

In my final remaining moments, let me tell my colleagues, I think for the second time, about Caroline, because she is an object lesson, it seems to me, of what we are discussing today.

Caroline was a wonderful Norwegian woman, who married a man named Otto in Oslo, Norway, came to this country and settled in St. Paul, MN. Otto tragically died. When Otto died, Caroline had six children. She took the six children and moved to the prairies of North Dakota and settled in a tent in Indian Creek Township, I believe, in Hettinger County, ND. They lived in a tent. Then this strong Norwegian woman built a home, raised a family, started a homestead and became a North Dakota farmer.

I can only guess what kind of strength and courage it took for this Norwegian woman, losing her husband, to move to the prairies of North Dakota and pitch a tent and raise her family and start her farm. But she did it. And she had a son, and her son had a daughter, and her daughter had me. That is how I came to live in Hettinger County, ND.

I told that story one day on a radio show when I was asked about my heritage. And somebody called in and said, "Isn't it lucky that we did not have a welfare program at the turn of the century, because Caroline never would have left St. Paul; she would have stayed there and stayed on welfare." I said, "Well, who do you think gave Caroline the land when she homesteaded 160 acres in Hettinger County, ND? The Federal Government."

The Homestead Act said what we are trying to say in this welfare bill. We want to help those who are willing to help themselves. It was good policy then. It is good policy now.

I hope that in the name of Caroline—and in the name of children across this country—and in the name of common sense we will pass a welfare reform bill that is a bipartisan effort to understand that this Senate needs to do what is right to address one of the vexing problems of the day.

Mr. President, thank you for your indulgence.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, the Senator from Connecticut is patiently waiting. About how much time does the Senator need?

Mr. DODD. I do not know. I see my colleagues from Pennsylvania and New Mexico. I can wait.

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time would the Senator like?

Mr. SANTORUM. Five minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for up to 10 minutes.

Mr. SANTORUM. I thank the Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. President, I want to respond to the speeches about the Work First Act.

This is, from what I can tell, an 800-page amendment that has been submitted without giving anyone on the other side a preview of that amendment, or any kind of opportunity to review an 800-page document. We were handed a background brief which is on one side of the paper. I think it is five or six pages of one-sided paper with fairly big type. It is not much information. There are, in fact, a lot of questions about the exemptions that are provided for to the rules that sound very good but like previous bills that I have seen come from the Democratic leader, while the appearance, the facade, looks nice, there are a lot of holes in the floor for the people to drop through and stay in the current system, and, in fact, in the end the current system is alive and well after we have gone through great effort to pass something.

This bill does, from what I have seen—at least what they admit to in this background brief; I think “brief” is probably the applicable word here—there are essentially no time limits left. Under the Republican bill, under the bill that passed the U.S. Senate last year 87 to 12, there is a time limit on welfare. After 5 years, you are off AFDC; you had your time to, in a sense, get an education, get training, do job search, work, get that experience, and after 5 years the social contract was, in a sense, at an end.

That is important for the reason that we have to—just like all programs where you are dealing with people who are troubled and need to turn their lives around, it is important to set a time limit, some sort of goal, and some sort of time where people have to hit the wall. We provide in this bill, and we provide in the bill that we passed last year, a hardship exemption for those who were having a tough time still and realize, “Hey, look, you are trying. You are still working.” We allow a percentage of up to 20 percent of the people in the system to continue to receive benefits. Will they do that in this bill, in the Democratic substitute? In addition, people who hit the 5-year limit—everybody continues to receive vouchers which is, in a sense, a cash payment. They say, “Well, it is vouchers for the children.”

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. I can tell you while there are vouchers for the children, the parents get the vouchers. The parents spend the money for the children.

I am happy to yield.

Mr. BREAUX. I thank the Senator for yielding because the Senator is making an incorrect statement. Under the amendment that I am going to offer, which I happen to have written, it is very clear that the vouchers do not go to the parent or to the children. They go to a third party. They go to the people who provide the services. They cannot be given to the parent by law. They do not go to the parent. They do not go to the child. They go to the person who provides the benefit, the clothing, or the food, or perhaps a 2-year-old child whose parent has been cut off of welfare.

I ask the question of the Senator. What would he say to a small child whose parent has been cut off of any assistance and that kid could not have the food? What does he say to that kid?

Mr. SANTORUM. I would say one thing. No. 1, under the Republican bill that family still is eligible for food stamps. That family is still eligible for food stamps; still eligible for other medical benefits and other kinds of welfare services. What they are not eligible for—and what your vouchers are replacing—is cash.

So what you are doing is taking a cash program and turning it into a services program that does not have to be used for food, and can be used—again, I have to apologize. There is not much detail in this thing. So I am groping a little bit for my own information. I appreciate the Senator’s responding and filling it in. But what you are filling in for—you already have people qualifying for food stamps, you already have people who are continuing to qualify for Medicaid, you already have people who continue, if they are eligible today, to qualify for housing. None of that changes. What we eliminate is cash, and what you replace it with is pseudocash, which is in a sense the same thing.

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. Yes.

Mr. BREAUX. The Senator talks about food stamps. For the first time, you are taking the Food Stamp Program and, through block grants, States do not have to use their money for food stamps if they do not want to.

Mr. SANTORUM. We did in the bill, as we did in the bill that passed 87 to 12 on this floor, allow States the option to take a block grant for food stamps, the option which was again approved by 87 votes on this floor.

Mr. BREAUX. The question is: Is it not possible that the States do not have to provide food stamps for the child you are talking about if they do not want to?

Mr. SANTORUM. If they take the option for the block grant, they can design this program, which has to be approved by the Secretary, of course. I am sure there are going to be some limitations on that.

Mr. BREAUX. You are mandating.

Mr. SANTORUM. No. There is mandate. But I would suspect, knowing the Governors I have talked to on this issue, if they are going to come to the point where they are going to end cash assistance, they are not going to take food stamp benefits away. In fact, the Congressional Budget Office, when they scored our bill, in fact, provided for an increase in food stamp expenditures because of the reduction in the AFDC payment. Therefore, you have less income in the family and, therefore, they are eligible for more food stamps. So food stamps have actually a counterbalancing influence on the reduction of cash. That is provided for in our bill.

But I think the point is here what you are doing is continuing the entitlement which is continued in this bill, No. 1.

No. 2, what you are doing is allowing families to legitimately make an economic decision which they make today, which is not to work, to stay on welfare, and to be able to survive doing so.

What we want to do, except for those cases that are hardship, except for those cases where people are really trying in high-unemployment areas, have problems one way or another with their family and holding down a job—we are not talking about people who are disabled. People who are disabled are not even in the program. We are talking about able-bodied people who are capable of working. We are saying to 20 percent of those people, we are going to allow you to stay after 5 years because we know there might be situations where it is tough. But the rest of you, yes, we will have an expectation that after 5 years you can get a job. You should be able to hold that job.

Mr. BREAUX. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. Yes.

Mr. BREAUX. Is that the Senator’s premise of what he is trying to accomplish? Let me read a very short description of what a voucher program does, and tell me why he disagrees with it. It says a voucher provided to a family under this law shall be based on the State’s assessment of the need of the child of the family. That shall be determined from the day of the subsistence need of the child; that it is effectively designed to appropriately pay third parties for shelter, goods, and services received by the child; and, third, finally, it is payable directly to such third parties.

If a State decides to have a 24-month termination of a parent because they do not follow the rules, what is wrong with this provision taking care of the needs of the child designed by the State to take care of the needs determined by the State to be payable to a third party on the subsistence needs of the child? If they talk about food stamps, it would not qualify under this.

We are talking about assistance needs of the child. Food stamps would include food.

Mr. SANTORUM. Sure. I can respond. Again, it is very hard to respond because you may be looking at the bill. I just got it.

Mr. BREAUX. We got it this morning.

Mr. SANTORUM. That bill came through the Finance Committee. You are on that committee. You saw it when it came through that committee. You had the markup when this came through the committee. You have the markup document before you, No. 1. No. 2, let me just say that what you say here again in your description is to provide non cash aid; maintain a minimal safety net for the children.

Who determines that in your bill?

Mr. BREAUX. The State.

Mr. SANTORUM. The State determines the minimal safety and the Federal Government has no oversight?

Mr. BREAUX. Let me read it again. A voucher provided to a family under this law shall be made on the State’s assessment of the need of the child—not the Federal Government, not Washington, but the States.

Mr. SANTORUM. This is an optional voucher program.

Mr. BREAUX. It is a voucher of 5 years, optional on behalf of the State. The cutoff in less than 5 years is mandatory on the part of the child.

Mr. SANTORUM. If it is less than 5 years, and the people are not working, this is a difficult—

Mr. BREAUX. Not the parent. The parent gets zero under my amendment. We are talking about a child maybe 2 years old that cannot work.

Mr. SANTORUM. Or a child 16 years old who can work.

Mr. BREAUX. Or a child 3 years old who cannot work.

Mr. SANTORUM. Or a child 17 years old who can. We can go back and forth. But the fact is we are talking about all children; that is, under 18. The point I am trying to make is, the question I am trying to have answered here is, if it is under five years, you mandate that the State provide a voucher to someone who is unwilling to work.

Mr. BREAUX. If it is less than 5 years and the parent is cut off, the child, as determined by the State, has to receive a voucher to provide the subsistence needs of that particular child.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. In part of this dialog some 4 minutes ago, the question came up on block grants for food stamps. I might say the Republican bill before us here says the State has the option, but I would suggest that you read further, because it says that 85 percent of that money, if they choose to block it, must be used for nutrition. I believe that is correct in terms of the underlying bill.

I am going to yield now. We should be moving to the other side. Might I ask Senator EXON, does the Senator know how many more speakers there are on the Democratic substitute?

Mr. EXON. There is the Senator from Connecticut and there is myself and the Senator from Louisiana, so that is three.

Mr. DOMENICI. And how much time is remaining?

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska controls 17 minutes, 21 seconds; the Senator from New Mexico controls 27 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield the floor.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, the Senator from Connecticut would be next. How much time does the Senator from Connecticut need?

Mr. DODD. I see one of the authors, my colleague from Louisiana, so I will try about 7 minutes or so.

Mr. EXON. I have some time that I can yield off the bill.

Mr. DODD. I thank my colleague. Ten minutes, if I can.

Mr. EXON. Ten minutes. I yield 10 minutes off the bill to the Senator from Connecticut.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut is recognized for up to 10 minutes.

Mr. DODD. I thank the Chair. I thank my colleague from Nebraska.

Let me begin by thanking the Democratic leader, Senator DASCHLE, along with our colleague, Senator BREAUX, of Louisiana, and Senator MIKULSKI, of Maryland, who are the principal authors of this alternative. I commend them for it.

I draw my colleagues' attention to the exchange between our colleagues from Pennsylvania and Louisiana that comes to one of the critical elements as far as I am concerned. It is the critical distinction between what is being offered by the majority and what we are offering in the alternative. That is, Mr. President, the children.

I do not think there is any debate among us here about trying to get the adults from welfare to work. There are 2 million people out of roughly 275 million that we are going to put to work.

Let me begin by framing this in mathematical terms so people can get a conception in their minds of what we are talking about. We are a nation of some 270 million people, thereabouts. What we are talking about is Federal welfare, aid to families with dependent children. There are 13 million people in the United States on AFDC, aid to families with dependent children, out of a nation of 270 million. Of that 13 million, Mr. President, 4.1 million are adults and 8.8 million of that 13 million are children under the age of 18. And 78 percent, almost 80 percent of that 8.8 million are under the age of 12; roughly 50 percent of that 8.8 million are under the age of 6.

I do not think the debate here is about whether or not we can take 2 million of the 4 million adults out of a nation of 270 million and put them to work. That we all agree on. What this side of the aisle has so much trouble with and why there is such a fundamental disagreement here relates to the 8.8 million children—80 percent of whom are under the age of 12. People who are 16 or 17, I presume they are almost adults; they can work. But I do not know of anyone, Mr. President, regardless of ideology or political persuasion, who is going to look into the eyes of a child and say, "I am sorry. Because your parent did not get a job, because the recession happened, because there were not enough jobs, you are out of it. We cannot help you any longer."

I do not understand that sort of approach. It would break a tradition in this country, regardless of party and political persuasion, that has existed for more than a half a century. We have said, when it comes to America's kids, the circumstance they are born into is none of their doing. It is none of their doing. And yet if a 6-year-old child is starving, is hungry, we ought to find subsistence help. That is what my colleague from Louisiana was just talking about, some form of subsistence assistance for them.

Mr. President, I am going to focus these brief remarks on the children. I do not make any argument about whether we want to make it 2 years or 5 years to get people off of welfare to work. I'm talking about roughly 2 million or 4 million of 270 million. I figure we ought to be able to figure out how to do that.

I am really concerned about these infants and children. We see under the proposal offered by the majority that we do not have health and safety standards for child care if the parents go to work. These children under the age of 12 who are going to need a child care setting. Yet the bill eliminates today's health and safety standards for child care settings.

We have standards for automobiles that must be met, emission controls that must be met. We have standards for pets in this country that must be met. For the life of me, I do not understand why we will not have health and safety standards for America's children in a child care setting. What is so radical or outrageous about saying that on basic health and safety, children who are put into a child care setting ought to have that minimum guarantee.

I will offer an amendment, assuming—I hope it is not the case—that the Democratic alternative is rejected, to try to correct that situation on health and safety standards. I am hopeful my colleagues will support it.

Senator HATCH and I, 6 years ago, wrote the child care legislation and included health and safety standards, and we have worked with it pretty well over the last 6 years. It is not in this bill. I would urge that we put it back in. The Democratic alternative does that. We have in our bill a minimum requirement that would require quality of child care.

If we are saying to these parents, which we should, we want you to get to work, and we want you to be self-sufficient. Then we have to say that when these children are being cared for, there is going—Mr. President, I am having a hard time even hearing my own self speaking.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will suspend.

The Senate will come to order.

The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. I thank the Chair.

So, Mr. President, the health and safety standards, the quality of our child care settings, again, this ought not be a question of partisan disagreement here. As I said, if we are going to have quality controls on automobiles and pets, then we ought to do it for child care settings. If you try to place your pet in some place over the weekend when you go on your vacation, there are standards for where your pet is kept. And yet this bill says that the standards where you place your child 8 hours a day as you go to work are not required.

I do not know why this ought to be the subject of partisan disagreement, and yet it is. And so when you talk about welfare reform, it is critically important that health and safety standards and quality be included. We will offer alternatives in that regard.

I also want to emphasize the point that the Senator from Louisiana just made to our colleague from Pennsylvania about a voucher system at the end of 5 years or 2 years. In my view, you can put any level you want on it. My concern is, what happens to the kids at that point? What happens to those children at the end of 2 years? For some of the adults, let us assume they will be going off to work. But let us assume for a second they cannot. What happens to those kids? You cut off the parents. OK, I do not like that, and I think you have a problem with that. But for the life of me, why would you say to the child, you lose.

The voucher system here provides the safety net. And, of course, under the bill offered by the majority, in fact, it is mandatory—mandatory—there be no voucher system. It specifically prohibits it. It does not even give the State the option. It mandates that no voucher exist at all.

I do not understand that. I do not understand that at all.

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair.

Mr. DODD. Let me, if I can, finish my remarks, because time is brief here, and then I will be glad at the end, if I do have an extra minute, to yield to my colleague.

The proposal offered by the distinguished Senator from South Dakota and the Senator from Louisiana offers a safety net for children that I urge my colleagues to look at. The voucher system that allows for that safety net for children.

The same on the food stamp issue that has been raised earlier. Again, by block granting it, you run the risk in certain States, because the political will is not there—and my colleagues know as well as I do that can happen—then the food stamp issue is also lost.

I hope that is not the case. I heard my colleague from Pennsylvania earlier say he did not think that would happen. I hope he is right. But I do not know why we cannot require some safety net so all of us on a national level know these children are not going to be adversely affected.

One of the other provisions that has not been the subject of much debate is the penalties imposed by the majority's proposal. We are told by the Congressional Budget Office that many States will not be able to meet the criteria laid out in the legislation, the standards here, and that in fact they will be imposing penalties of 5 percent of the assistance they will be receiving under this bill in the first year. Then it is cumulative. Whatever that number is, the penalty the first year, if there is a penalty the second it is 5 percent on that number. The point is, as has been pointed out by some of our Governors, this is an unfunded mandate, because that falls on the States, on local taxpayers. One estimate from one Governor is it may be as much as $12 billion in an unfunded mandate on the States as a result of the penalties being imposed if States do not get the numbers of people to work in the timeframe they are required to under our legislation.

Again, I assume most of the States will try to get it done, but I think all of us know what happens when a recession or other economic difficulties hit. For one reason or another, the States would not meet those standards and the penalty is imposed. Then it gets cumulative thereafter. We collect that back. So that is, in effect, a tax, an unfunded mandate on the States. And I am looking specifically at our colleague in the chair because he authored very effectively, at the very outset of this Congress, a very successful piece of legislation on unfunded mandates. I urge him to look at this, because Governor Carper of Delaware and others at the Governors Conference raised this issue included in the majority bill, and I do not think any of us would like to see an unfunded mandate imposed as a result of this legislation despite our activities earlier in this Congress.

I end where I began here. My concern is about these children, these kids.

I ask unanimous consent I be able to proceed for 1 additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. My concern is children. Again, on the health and safety standards, on the quality, on the vouchers and food, it seems to me we ought to try to correct these mistakes. Again, remember, we are talking about putting 2 million adults out of 4 million adults on welfare to work over the next 5 years, out of a Nation of 270 million people. Of the 8.8 million children on welfare, 80 percent are under the age of 12, 50 percent under the age of 6—of the 8.8 million. We ought to be able to say to those infants and those children that there is a safety net here. We are going to try to see to it that your parents go to work, but for whatever reason if they are unable to do it, no matter what we do to them, you are not going to be adversely affected by this. That ought not to be that hard to do. I do not understand why we cannot find common ground on that issue as we try to achieve the goal of putting people, adults on welfare, to work without jeopardizing the children. That is the simple question.

Can we not write a bill, can we not come together and write a bill that puts people from welfare to work and does not adversely affect infants, infants in this country who I think will be hurt as a result of the legislation, if adopted unamended, as the majority has presented it?

Mr. President, I see my colleague from Pennsylvania standing. I will be glad to ask for an additional minute if he wanted to ask me a question, or maybe my colleague from New Mexico would.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. Who yields time?

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time do we have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico has 27 minutes, the Senator from Nebraska, 17 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I do have a question of the Senator. Let me state something first. I stated before in my opening comments that the Senator from Connecticut and the Senator from New York said and repeated that what they care about is the children. I suggest the current system reflects that all the care that has been expressed for children, here, has not panned out into a reality that children are cared for. That is the real issue.

We can all care about children. The question is, are children cared for and by whom? What we are trying to do here, in this bill, is to make sure, not that we feel good about caring for children—I am sure the Senator from Connecticut knows that everybody in this Chamber cares for children; that is not the issue, to measure our care—it is to measure whether children are cared for and by whom.

What we do here in our bill is to try to rebuild a culture that has been systematically destroyed by the welfare system to make sure that there are families to care for children; that there are communities where children are safe again. As long as you continue the welfare entitlement, the dependency structure of unlimited welfare, you will not get care for children. You will not get caring neighborhoods. You will not get caring communities. You will not have stable families. It is a reality. You are looking at it today. That is why we are here.

Mr. DODD. If my colleague will yield?

Mr. SANTORUM. I just ask this question of my friend from Connecticut. Does your bill create a day care entitlement?

Mr. DODD. No.

Mr. SANTORUM. You say in your bill that "all children will receive day care."

Mr. DODD. No, we block grant—

Mr. SANTORUM. You say all children will receive day care. I will read from it. "To help recipients get and keep a job, child care will be made available to all those required to work." That sounds like a quasi-entitlement.

Mr. DODD. If the parents go to work, we are trying to provide a setting for those children in that situation. Rather than have them go onto the streets, there is some child care setting for them.

Mr. SANTORUM. As the Senator from Connecticut knows, under the Republican bill before you, we spent $4 billion—"b" billion—$4 billion more on child care than under current law and almost $2 billion more than what the President believes he needs for day care. So we spend a lot more money. The question—

Mr. DODD. The Senator did not hear me suggest I was going to offer an amendment to add additional funds for child care. I said health and safety standards. And I appreciate the fact we are going to be able to get more on child care. I say to my colleague, it will probably be inadequate. If, in fact, we get everybody to work, the money there will not provide for the child care needs for those families. I do not think anybody will tell you that it would be adequate. But I appreciate the fact there is more money and I appreciate the fact the Senator from Delaware, who is the chairman, is responsible for that.

Mr. SANTORUM. I ask for 1 additional minute.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SANTORUM. The second question is on the vouchers issue, and the Senator from Louisiana, while he responded to a question was not responding to my question. He was responding to the provision in his amendment, not the provision in the amendment before us.

You suggest the Republican bill forbids vouchers after 5 years.

Mr. DODD. Right.

Mr. SANTORUM. I am sure the Senator from Connecticut knows that what it forbids is Federal dollars to be used for vouchers after 5 years. States can give vouchers using their own dollars for an unlimited period of time. Obviously, if they do not, if they use their money—there is a discrete amount of money here. What we are saying is you have to focus that money on the 5 years. If you want to extend beyond the 5 years, then use your own dollars.

Conversely, what you would say is, look, you can use our dollars after 5 years, which means you would necessarily have to take it out of the first 5 years. We do not think that money should come out of the first 5 years. We think there should be an intensive effort in 5 years, committing every Federal resource possible to that 5-year transition period, to get those people to work and not hold out money, Federal dollars, for a continuation of welfare into the future. That is the philosophical difference.

Mr. DODD. Let me respond, if I may, to my colleague. Two points. One, on child care, there is a cap on entitlements on the child care issue. I ask for 30 seconds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. It is a capped entitlement on child care, so it will not be increased.

Mr. SANTORUM. It is a new entitlement?

Mr. DODD. Let me respond. You asked the question. Let me respond.

In regard to the issue of the vouchers, obviously the States and localities can do what they want. But we are talking about our Federal involvement here. We prohibit the use of the Federal funds, of our money, Federal money, if you will, to go for the voucher system. I just suggest that, if we are going to put people to work as we should, and if for some reason States are unable to meet those standards, then those children, whatever else you want to do with the adults, ought to have a safety net. The voucher ought to be a system they can use to provide for that safety net. We say that States ought to be able to provide that. The bill by the majority prohibits it. Obviously, we cannot stop a State from doing what it wants, but why would we prohibit them from using these moneys?

Mr. SANTORUM. I ask for 1 additional minute to respond.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SANTORUM. I would respond by saying, as the Senator from Connecticut knows, we are talking about originally 25 percent of the AFDC population, able-bodied AFDC population—

Mr. DODD. Four million.

Mr. SANTORUM. Yes—going into this system, increasing up to 70 percent over the next 5 years. Within that category, 20 percent are exempted for hardship. That means they can go beyond the 5 years and still receive Federal dollars after 5 years. We are talking about a limited number of people who are able-bodied, who have had 5 years, who are not designated by the State as hardship. That is not a high hurdle to get over.

Mr. DODD. I do not have any disagreement on that. On the adult side I have no disagreement. My focus is on the 8.8 million kids, 80 percent under the age of 12. That is the focus of my concern. My fear is the children are not being adequately protected at all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. Who yields time?

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. How much time does the Senator from Nebraska have left on the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska has 16 minutes, 15 seconds.

Mr. EXON. On the Daschle amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. EXON. I yield 10 minutes to the Senator from Louisiana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized for up to 10 minutes.

Mr. BREAUX. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I think a lot of this is getting far more complicated than it deserves. It is a serious issue, but it is not that complicated. I think the work first amendment that has been offered by the distinguished Democratic leader, Senator DASCHLE, is a very good compromise. It is fair, it emphasizes work, and it sets time limits for people on welfare. It also, I think, however, is good for children. It is tough on work, but it is good for kids.

Welfare reform must be about getting a check by working as opposed to getting a check by not working. We all agree with that. Democrats have said very strongly that we believe that there should be time limits; that people should be required to work; that an unmarried mother should be required to live with an adult, in an adult family, with her own family, if that is possible, but with adult supervision; that we should have a time limit on how long someone can be on welfare. It cannot be forever.

Our amendment says there is a lifetime limit of 5 years, and a State has the option under our bill to set shorter limits if they want. My own State of Louisiana has been approved to set time limits for welfare as low as 24 months, 2 years.

But what I am talking about when we are talking about these vouchers for kids is that all of us believe that while we are being so tough on a parent, that we should not be tough on an innocent child and an innocent victim who did not ask to be brought into this world. What good do we do by telling a 2-year-old that we are going to throw him or her out without any help or assistance?

The voucher proposal which I have as an amendment to be offered later on simply says that if a State determines to terminate a person on welfare assistance in a period shorter than 5 years, that that State must use the Federal and State money that they have to help pay for essential needs of a child.

My amendment says that the State shall do an assessment of that child. They still determine the need of that child. The child may need diapers, the child may need medicine, the child may be older and need book supplies, good gosh, to go to school, which we all should support, or may need food because they are hungry and the Food Stamp Program is not adequate.

The State makes the determination of the need of that child, and then after they have made the determination, they determine vouchers for that child's benefits. The parent does not get it. Everybody wants to penalize the parent. The voucher does not go to the parent under my amendment. The voucher would go to the third party who is going to provide the essential needs for the child. Maybe it is a food supply organization, maybe it is a school, maybe it is a drugstore for medicine for the child. They would get the voucher under the State program, and they would take care of the needs of that child as determined by the State.

Is it too much for us in Congress to say to a State that we are giving most of the money to that you have to use those moneys to take care of children who are innocent victims while we are being so tough on the parent?

I support time limits of parents. I support making them go to work. I support making them be responsible and live with an adult if they are going to receive AFDC assistance. My gosh, can't we be, in this great country of ours, with the economic benefits that we all participate in, strong enough also to say we are going to somehow protect the needs of innocent children?

We are close on this. It should not be a big disagreement. After 5 years, we say we allow the State to do it, but the Republican proposal forbids it. Why, if the State wants to do it, can they not use the block grant money they get to do this? If the State sees a child that they think is in need, why should we not at least allow the State, under this wonderful block grant concept, to provide vouchers for children after 5 years if the State wants to do it with the block grant money that they get? Yet, the Republican bill forbids it.

I think that is too extreme. Let the State make the decision. If the State wants to forbid it, all right, let them do it. But if the State wants to do it with the block grant money they are getting, allow them to do it. Then, if it is less than 5 years, if they want to cut off the assistance to a parent in 2 years or 3 years or 4 years, we think that the moneys that Washington and the States are providing together should at least be used to take care of the child while we are being tough on the parent.

Mr. GREGG. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREAUX. All this should be about putting work first but not children last.

Mr. GREGG. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. BREAUX. Yes, I yield.

Mr. GREGG. Is it my understanding that in your proposal, the States are mandated to use the vouchers during the 5 years, permitted to use vouchers after 5 years.

Mr. BREAUX. I will answer the Senator, who has a distinguished career as Governor back in his State, it says that a State, based on their determination of the need, if the child does not need it under the State determination, the State does not have to do it, if it is a 2-year time limit, 3 years or 4. But if the State, in their determination, sees a child who has a need that is not being met, then the State must have a voucher. If the State finds that child is being taken care of with other programs or through a parent, aunt, uncle or grandfather, there is no need there. The State makes the determination.

Mr. GREGG. If I may continue this question, basically what you are saying, then, is the State is required to use the voucher for a child up to the 5 years.

Mr. BREAUX. That is incorrect.

Mr. GREGG. The State identifies the need.

Mr. BREAUX. The question the Senator is posing is an incorrect statement in the sense it does not require the State to give a voucher to a child whose parent has been cut off from welfare for less than 5 years. It would only require it if the State first makes a determination that the child has a need. The State makes that determination.

Mr. GREGG. That differs from the pending legislation. The pending legislation leaves it up to the State to make that decision during the 5-year period; is that correct?

Mr. BREAUX. I think the Senator is correct.

Mr. GREGG. And then you are saying that after the 5-year period, the States would be given the flexibility to continue the voucher, but even if there was a need at that time, it would be identified by the State, it would not be required.

Mr. BREAUX. That is correct.

Mr. GREGG. So, essentially, you are putting the State in this position—as the bill is presently structured, you are taking that language and moving it into the post-5-year period, and then for the pre-5-year period, you are requiring that the payments be made for need—

Mr. BREAUX. As I understand the Senator's question—let me try and restate it as simply as I possibly can.

Under the Breaux voucher amendment that will be offered, for a family that is cut off from welfare after being there for 5 years, it would allow the State to use their block grant funds to provide vouchers to a child if the State determines that there is a need for assistance for that child.

If the State has a shorter period than 5 years—2 years, 3 years, 4 years, what have you—based on the State's assessment of the need of that child, the State decides there is a needy child here, then the State is required to use block grant funds to help that child. They determine how much; they determine where to spend it. It does not go to the parent. It does not go to the child. It goes to a third-party provider.

Mr. GREGG. Which I guess leads to the point I wanted to ask about, which is that if you are essentially using the logic of this bill for the post-5-year period, why not use it for the pre-5-year period also?

Or to state it another way, you said in your statement that it made no sense to you that people wanted to give flexibility to the States; they would not allow the States that flexibility after a 5-year period to spend the voucher. Doesn't that same logic apply to the pre-5-year period?

In other words, shouldn't the State flexibility remain for the pre-5-year period as well as for the post-5-year period? Why should the Federal Government come in and direct the States to do it?

Mr. BREAUX. I will respond to the Senator in this way.

I would like to, but politically I do not think it is possible to do it, to say that when you have a block grant fund going to the State, and the State has made a determination that there is a needy child out there, the State be required to use those funds to take care of the needs of the child at any point, 5 years, 2 years, or 3 years, either one. I just do not think that is politically possible to do.

Mr. GREGG. Well, I appreciate the Senator's courtesy of yielding to me for these questions. If the logic of the Senator's position is correct—and I think there is a lot of attractiveness to the Senator's logic in the post-5-year-period—if this bill, as it is presently structured, basically takes that logic and applies it to the pre-5-year period, would not the Senator's amendment be a lot stronger and consistent, if the Senator would essentially use his language for the post-5-year period, but not change the language for the pre-5-year period to create a mandate on the States which is going to put the States in a position of basically being instructed as to how to govern the welfare system in that 5-year period?

Mr. BREAUX. I respond by saying I offered that in the Senate Finance Committee. I think it may have lost on a tie vote. I tried it once. I think I will try to get something that will pass the Senate and narrow it down to one. The bottom line is very simple.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask for 2 additional minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX. I thank Senator EXON for yielding the time.

What I am trying to accomplish—and I do not think anybody on the Senator's side is being cruel with children or anything. I think that there is a great deal of sympathy on both sides. I say to the Senator, what I am trying to do is say to the States that are getting Federal money with their State money, if the State looks at their population and the State sees children who are being put in need because we have cut off their parent, that we should use funds to take care of the needs of those children.

The State determines what the need is. The State determines how to help that child. The State determines whether to help that child or not. They can make a decision this child does not need help. But if the State makes a decision that there is a child in need, and he has been put in need because the parent has been cut off of welfare assistance, that we should have a requirement that they use Federal and State funds to take care of that need.

How much they do is left up to the State. How they do it is left up to the State. But, by gosh, we have an obligation here to say that we are not going to let children go hungry or uncared for. I think the Senator's side should agree with that. I think that many do.

Mr. GREGG. If the Senator would yield for an additional comment.

Mr. BREAUX. Yes.

Mr. GREGG. I simply state that the question and the point I make is that the Senator's amendment is, on its face, inconsistent because in the first 5 years it puts mandates on the States, the second 5 years it gives the States flexibility. I think the flexibility part is very refreshing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired. Who yields time?

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time remains on the Democratic side and how much on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska controls 4 minutes 50 seconds. The Senator from New Mexico controls 20 minutes 14 seconds.

Mr. DOMENICI. I want to say to the Senators on our side, the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator ROTH, wants to speak for a few moments, and I want to speak for a couple. Then we want to yield back our time and have a vote. Obviously, the Senator has a few minutes left, Senator EXON.

Before I proceed to ask Senator ROTH if he would like to speak, may I clarify for those who are going to vote shortly.

I say to the Senator from Louisiana, his discussion was about an amendment the Senator proposes to offer; is that correct?

Mr. BREAU. I respond to the Senator by saying that we have been talking about a little of everything here, but most of the comments have been about the Breau voucher amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. The Breau voucher amendment will not be before us when we vote here in about 10 or 15 minutes. The Senator intends to offer it later on, as I understand it.

Mr. BREAU. I also answer to the Senator, for clarification, the work first also has a voucher plan for children in it.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, the Nation's current welfare system does not serve the Nation well. It has failed the children it is intended to protect and it has failed the American taxpayer. I am hopeful that the debate in the Senate will ultimately result in a constructive bipartisan effort which will finally end the current system and achieve meaningful reform.

Meaningful reform will assure that children are protected, that able-bodied people work and that child support enforcement laws are effective in getting absent parents to support their children.

One challenge is to seek genuine reform of welfare without abandoning the goal of helping children. The Daschle work-first bill fundamentally changes the current welfare system by replacing unconditional, unlimited aid with conditional benefits for a limited time.

Under the work-first bill, in order to receive assistance, all recipients must sign a contract. This contract will contain an individual plan designed to move the parent promptly into the work force. Those who refuse to sign a contract won't get assistance and tough sanctions apply to those not complying with the contract they sign.

The underlying legislation requires people to work within no more than 2 years. Why wait that long? Why wait 2 years? Unless someone is in school or job training, why wait longer than 3 months to require that a person who is able bodied either have a private job or be performing community service.

I have long believed that work requirements should be applied promptly. The Daschle amendment contains language which I will offer as an amendment to the underlying bill, if the Daschle substitute fails which requires that recipients be in training or in school or working in a private sector job within 3 months, or if one cannot be found, in community service employment. Within 3 months, not 2 years. The requirement would be phased in to allow States the chance to adjust administratively and would allow for a State to opt out.

Last year, the Senate-passed welfare reform bill contained this provision, added as an amendment which I offered with Senator Dole.

Experience has shown we must be more aggressive in requiring recipients to work. But, as we require recipients to work, we must remember another important part of the challenge facing us: that fully two-thirds of welfare recipients nationwide are children. Almost 10 million American children—nearly 400,000 in Michigan alone—receive benefits. We must not punish the kids.

I am hopeful that the 104th Congress is on the road to finding a way to get people off welfare and into jobs, in the private sector, if possible, but in community service, if necessary; make sure that absent parents take the responsibility for the support of their children; and do these things without penalizing children—that way, I believe, is the work first plan offered by Senator DASCHLE.

I congratulate Senator DASCHLE, Senator MIKULSKI, Senator BREAU, and the many others of my colleagues who have worked on the Daschle work first bill.

The work first bill is tough on getting people into jobs, but it provides the necessary incentives and resources to the States not only to require people to work, but to help people find jobs, and keep them.

Mr. President, I have focused on getting to people to work. However, there are other elements of positive welfare reform that I support. The number of children born to unwed teenage parents has continued to rise at unacceptable rates. We all recognize the need to do something about this and to remove any incentives created by the welfare system for teenagers to have children. I support teen pregnancy prevention programs with considerable flexibility for the States in implementation.

We know, however, that the problem of teen pregnancy and unwed teenage parents will not be completely or easily eliminated. I strongly support provisions which require teen parents to continue their education or job training and to live either at home, with an adult family member, or in an adult-supervised group home in order to qualify for benefits.

Another key element of any successful welfare reform plan will be assuring that parents take responsibility for their children. We must toughen and improve interstate enforcement of child support. I support provisions to require cooperation in establishing the paternity of a child as a condition of eligibility for benefits, and a range of measures such as driver's license and passport restrictions, use of Federal income tax refunds, and an enhanced data base capability for locating parents who do not meet their child support obligations.

The Daschle amendment which is before us addresses these and other problems. It ends the failed welfare system and replaces it with a program to move people into jobs, to guarantee child care assistance, to assure that parents take responsibility for the children they bring into the world, and does so without penalizing the children.

Mr. President, the bill before us is an improvement over the bill which the President vetoed last year, which was inadequate in many ways, including its failure to protect children. However, the bill can still be improved. In my judgement, the Daschle amendment does a better job by putting people to work more quickly and by doing a better job of protecting innocent children. I intend to vote for Senator DASCHLE's work first welfare reform plan. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to lay partisanship loyalties aside and to join in an effort to finally end the current system and achieve meaningful reform.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 5 minutes to the chairman of the Finance Committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware is recognized for up to 5 minutes.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, the American people should heed the old advertising slogan "accept no imitations." The work first amendment is a well-named imitation of welfare reform. But real reform must have some very basic provisions. It must have real and workable time limits. It must bring closure to entitlement programs. It must not engender dependency and allow multigenerational abuse of the system. Real reform must require able-bodied individuals to work. It must offer flexibility and authority to State governments to be innovative and effective in meeting the needs of their people.

While work first has the benefit of good advertising, it is an imitation. Work first has no real time limits. Work first has no real requirements for people to work. Work first lacks the specific, concrete requirements needed for reform. Rather, work first appears to be more of the same. It does not extend real authority to the States. It offers waivers. It grandfathers existing waivers and intends to expedite the process.

The Governors have had their fill of waivers. To them, work first is business as usual with Washington bureaucrats dispensing authority one drop, one waiver at a time. But waivers, Mr.

President, are not welfare reform. And for requiring individuals to work, work first offers something called parent empowerment contracts. These sound great. And I have much interest in that concept. But we do not know much about them other than intensive job search is required. This is all we know, and that they are designed to move the parent into the work force as soon as possible.

For real reform, Mr. President, this rhetoric is simply too vague. I might say, that the Governors have real concern about these contracts. They are concerned that they will be provocative of much litigation for those who would seek to impose obligations on the States because of these contracts.

But in any event, real reform must be concrete. As I said, it must have time limits and a bottom line. To create incentives in the hearts and minds of people moving off welfare rolls, they must know that Washington and their State governments are serious. Their behavior must change.

Last year the General Accounting Office reported that between 1989 and 1994 the Federal and State governments have spent more than $8 billion through the job program. The GAO told Congress that we do not know what progress has been made in helping poor families become employed and avoid long-term dependence.

Real reform must change behavior and foster policies that encourage men and women to make correct choices. Work first attempts to attract support by offering false choices in regard to teen parents, child care, and transitional Medicaid benefits. Make no mistake about it, the Republican welfare bill includes all of these items.

Mr. President, I oppose the amendment. It is time for welfare reform. It is time for the real thing. I yield back the balance of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. EXON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, may I inquire as to whether or not the yeas and nays have been requested on the Daschle work first amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have not been requested.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I think we are trying to bring this debate to a close. The Senator from Nebraska has been yielding time now for 2 or 3 hours. I wish to address this briefly myself, not hash over other ground. I understand that the Senator from Connecticut may wish some time. Is that correct?

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Senator from Nebraska. If it is possible to speak for up to 5 minutes, I would be grateful.

Mr. EXON. I will be glad to yield 5 minutes. Then I will take 3 or 4 minutes. I believe that will be the end of the debate on this side. Then maybe we can get some agreement to proceed to a vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska controls 3 minutes 42 seconds.

Mr. EXON. As soon as the manager of the bill finishes his statement, I will yield 5 minutes off of the bill to the Senator from Connecticut. Then I will use the last 3½ minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Let me just say, the 800-page amendment is subject to a point of order, which I do not want to make. However, if we cannot vote in about 15 minutes—I have a couple of Senators who will not be here for a little while—I will need to make a point of order on this matter.

Could we agree right now on how much time we will use, Senator, and then vote?

Mr. EXON. I have agreed to give 5 minutes to the Senator from Connecticut. I think I have 3½ minutes left on the bill, for a total of 8½ minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I will wrap it up with 3 minutes. That makes 11 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is 11½ minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask unanimous consent that in 11½ minutes there be a vote, and the time be distributed as we have indicated.

Mr. CONRAD. Reserving the right to object, I would like 2½ or 3 minutes, if I might be part of the queue.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, in order to accommodate everyone, the manager of the bill will agree to put my statement in the RECORD. I yield whatever time I had to the Senator from North Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota would have 3½ minutes.

Is there an objection to the unanimous consent request?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Connecticut is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. I thank the Chair. I thank my friend from Nebraska for yielding.

I rise to support the work first amendment, which I think is balanced and valuable in the sense of expressing the values of the American people's statement on the problem of welfare. It is genuine reform. It targets and puts the pressure on those who should feel the pressure. That is the parents who are on welfare. It does what I think the American people, in the best expression of our values, want us to do, and that is to protect the children and not punish the children who are the innocent victims of the current status quo.

As I look at the various proposals before the Senate, the underlying bill, the amendment we have put together, it seems to me there is so much in common that we ought to be able in the interest of those on welfare and the interest to the Federal Treasury and the interest of creating a welfare program in this country that truly expresses the values of the American people, to get together and make this happen. I still think there is time to send the President a good bill that he will feel in the fullness of his conscience that he can sign.

Mr. President, if we talk about welfare reform, I think we have to focus at its heart on the question of babies born out of wedlock. Particularly, of teenage pregnancy. Because so many of those on welfare—and the numbers are in the RECORD—are children and mothers of children who were born when the mothers were teenagers and unwed—an extraordinarily damaging epidemic that has swept this country, damaging to the young women whose future is hobbled and severely limited by the fact they have given birth to babies as teenagers, unmarried, and bringing into the world these children who are subjected to some of the worst imaginable conditions, with very little hope, born to a 12, 13, 14, 15, 16-year-old girl without a man in the house and living in poverty—what chance does that child have, on the average to make something of his or her life?

All the proposals here, including the work first proposal, contain a basic principle, which is that unmarried, minor moms are required to live at home or under adult supervision, and must stay in school or training in order to continue to receive welfare benefits. A great idea which I fully support.

Mr. President, I intend to offer two amendments which I think strengthen this battle against teen pregnancy. I saw a study last week that said that we spend $29 billion every year because of babies born to unwed mothers, a startling number. Think what we could do if we could prevent this from happening.

I have two amendments. The first one would require States to dedicate 3 percent of their share of title 20 social service block grants, which is an amount equal to $71.4 million, to programs and services that stress to minors the difficulties of becoming a teenage parent. Hopefully, these programs will infuse our children with a clear understanding of the consequences, let alone the immorality of bearing a child as a teenager who is unmarried.

The second amendment gets at a problem we have recently uncovered in our country, which is that a startling number of the babies born to teenage mothers are fathered by older men. This used to be something when I was growing up that we called statutory rape. It sort of went out of fashion to think of that in the age of widespread consensual sex, and none of the norms that used to exist. Very often in these cases it is not consensual. It is an older man forcing himself on a younger woman with drastic consequences for that woman and the baby.

My second amendment would appropriate $6 million, a small sum, to the Attorney General to direct a national program of training State and local prosecutors to revive and enforce statutory rape laws. It will also—and I think this may be the most significant part, as part of the certification procedure that is in the underlying bill, in which the Governor of a State has to certify that programs in his or her State to qualify for aid under the program—it requires the State to certify that there is within the State a program to reduce the incidence of statutory rape of minors by expanding criminal law enforcement, public education, and counseling services, as well as restructuring teen pregnancy prevention programs to include the education of men.

Mr. President, I hope one or both of these might be accepted as the day goes on, by the majority, because they are not presented in a spirit of partisanship. Obviously, this is a problem that is not partisan and is very human.

I thank the Chair. I thank my friend from Nebraska. I yield the floor.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I rise to support the Democratic work first substitute amendment to the budget reconciliation bill. As I observed in my opening statement, there is ample room for improvement in the Republican welfare reform bill. But there is also a great deal of common ground upon which we can build.

There is agreement that the current welfare system serves neither the recipients, nor the taxpayers. The cycle of dependency deepens with each new generation and is most discouraging. We agree that all able-bodied recipients should earn their daily bread. And we concur that assistance should be conditional.

I want to commend by colleagues on the other side for moving off of some strongly held beliefs and seeking the center. I believe that this new version of the Democratic work first welfare reform bill also reflects this same spirit of compromise and bipartisanship.

I argue, however, that the amendment before us today is preferable to the Republican plan. The sponsors of the amendment have spoken with great clarity and vigor about the differences between the two plans. Both give the States greater flexibility to administer welfare. But the Democratic work first plan does not accomplish it at the expense of innocent children who find themselves in the middle of this legislative crossfire.

I would hope that Senators on both sides would hold the line on protecting the safety net for children. The Democratic work first plan does that in three critical areas.

First, it provides for vouchers or noncash aid to children whose parents have exceeded a State's time limit on the welfare rolls. Depriving a child of life's necessities not only saps their strength; it weakens our spirit as a Nation as well.

Second, the Democratic plan provides for flexibility during times of recession. Who is hurt most in these times? The poor. Let's not make a bad situation worse.

And third, the Democratic plan does not provide for an optional block grant of food stamps. We should not be encouraging the States to lower aid even further.

There is great merit in both bills, but the necessary safeguards I have just outlined make this amendment the superior piece of legislation. I urge my colleagues to vote for it.

Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. THOMPSON). There is 3 minutes, 20 seconds.

Mr. EXON. I yield 3 minutes and 20 seconds to the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I want to thank the able floor leader on the Democratic side on this legislation, Senator EXON, for giving me this time.

Mr. President, as a member of the Finance Committee I have been deeply involved in the formulation of this legislation, including the work first alternative that has been presented by Leader DASCHLE.

Mr. President, Senator LIEBERMAN has made the point well with respect to teen pregnancy. One of the epidemics we are facing in this country is an epidemic of teen pregnancy, children having children. One has to ask what chance does a child have who is born into a circumstance when the mother is 14 years old or 15 years old? We know the chances are limited. We know the results—dramatically increased chance of living in poverty, dramatically increased chance of living a life that is blighted by crime.

Mr. President, we also know what can help prevent that circumstance. We know that requiring the child to live at home and to stay in school is critically important. I remember very well the testimony before the Finance Committee by Sister Mary Rose, who works with Catholic Charities in Covenant House. She has dealt with literally thousands of young women in this circumstance. How do you prevent that young woman from having another child? She has found that if you can bring that young woman into a circumstance where there is warmth, love, discipline, and structure, almost without exception, those young women do not have another child.

Now, this legislation, work first, has $150 million for second-chance homes for those young women who cannot be at home, who face abusive situations at home. Some people can go home and that is appropriate and right, and that is what should happen. But in other circumstances, these girls who have had children really have no place to go. They have been in an abusive setting at home. The last thing to do is to send them back there. Yet, if we can structure a circumstance or an environment in which there is discipline, structure, and warmth, and there is a vision of a better future, these young people can have a chance. Sister Mary Rose told us very clearly that if we can structure a circumstance in which those elements were present, we could avoid the tragedy of increased teen pregnancy.

I hope my colleagues will support the bill before us.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I just want to make one observation. The distinguished minority leader said, in explaining this bill, that with reference to the work requirements, he thought it was the equivalent of the Republican bill in that, in 2002, 50 percent of the participants would have to be working. Actually, we have had that analyzed and looked at, and because the bill uses different rules for establishing this percentage, we believe that it is more like 60 percent of what the Republican bill does. So it is in the neighborhood of 25 to 30 percent instead of 50. I believe that is a truism. Just a reading of what goes into the formula would indicate that it is clearly a different formula. Much more is included in their starting point than in ours. So if for no other reason, the amendment before us does not push the States to the same degree in turning this program into a workfare instead of a welfare program.

Whatever time I have remaining, I yield that back. I think we are ready to vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. BRADLEY] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 46, nays 53, as follows:

NOT VOTING—1

Bradley

So the amendment (No. 4897) was rejected.

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. DOMENICI. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I want to take this opportunity to speak today on the important yet controversial topic of welfare reform. As this Congress works through the rigors and challenges of welfare reform, I am reminded of my upbringing in Idaho, where I learned that charity begins in the home.

Having grown up in a rural western State, I can remember the days when the county clerks were the ones who handed out public assistance. Today that task has been assumed by the Federal Government and operated thousands of miles away from the recipient. Obviously, the war on poverty was launched with good intentions, but it has become a miserable failure. Unfortunately, the plight of the poor today is worse than it was before we began our massive assistance programs.

Since 1965, when our current welfare system was started, the American taxpayers have spent trillions of dollars—yes, trillions. The current budget is in the hundreds of billions and its growth continues to spiral upward. Incredibly, with this extraordinary growth in spending, the number of children living in poverty has also risen. We need real reform in the welfare system. Throwing unlimited money at this problem has proven not to be the answer.

Welfare spending was intended to provide a safety net for children, likewise to provide a hand up and out of poverty for those in need. What it has become is a way of life and not short term assistance.

With dramatic reforms and an emphasis on getting people into real permanent work situations, we can provide these children and their parents with a future. All one has to do is to look at the successes States are achieving that are already out there operating under waivers to the current policy. I would argue that these same States have done a much better job at designing programs to meet the needs of their people than has the Federal Government. It is just plain common sense that the State can identify problems quicker and develop solutions faster, as they can see the problems as they really are.

One of the ways these States are achieving successes is through block grants. Governors have supported this. Our Governor in Idaho supports this. We can provide block grants to the States and give them the flexibility to use funds in a variety of ways, including to supplement wages for those recipients who are working.

In closing, I support welfare reform. Everyone here supports welfare reform. We must find ways to overcome bipartisan differences in our efforts toward our single common goal—providing a helping hand up and out of poverty while preserving the dignity of those in need.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I believe we are going to yield to Senator SPECTER for a resolution.

EXPRESSING THE SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING THE TRAGIC CRASH OF TWA FLIGHT 800

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have consulted with the distinguished majority leader as to sequencing on a resolution relating to last night's crash of TWA flight 800, and this is a resolution which has, as I understand it, been cleared on both sides of the aisle.

Mr. DOMENICI. Could we have order, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will come to order.

Mr. SPECTER. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, this resolution relates to the disaster last night involving TWA flight 800 where 229 passengers were killed. As I have said, my distinguished colleague from Pennsylvania, Senator SANTORUM, and I have taken the lead on this because at least from preliminary indications, our State, Pennsylvania, has been hit the hardest. We are not yet sure about the passenger list, but from all indications the passenger list contained some 16 members of the Montoursville High School French Club and 5 chaperones.

I talked earlier today with Superintendent David Black and Principal Dan Chandler to get an idea of the impact on the community. They have commented that this group of students was a most extraordinary group, as shown by the fact that it was a specially planned trip to Paris, and these young men and women were among the best and the brightest.

Along with these 16 high school students were 5 chaperones, and I understand a recent report shows that two other Pennsylvanians were on board. Of course, passengers included people from all over the United States and doubtless beyond the United States.

So I offer this resolution expressing the sense of the Senate regarding the tragic crash of TWA flight 800:

Whereas, on July 17, 1996, Trans World Airlines Flight 800 tragically crashed en route from New York to Paris, France, creating a tremendous and tragic loss of life estimated at 229 men, women, and children;

Whereas, according to Daniel L. Chandler, principal of Montoursville, Pennsylvania High School, among those traveling on board this airplane were 16 members of the Montoursville High School French Club, who were among the very best students of the French language at their school, and five adult chaperones, who generously devoted their time to making possible this planned three-week French Club trip to Paris and the French provinces;

Whereas the actual cause of the airplane crash is as of yet unknown;

Whereas the federal government is investigating the cause of this tragedy; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States—

(1) expresses its condolences to the families, friends, and loved ones of those whose lives were taken away by this tragic occurrence; and

(2) expresses its sincere hope that the cause of this tragedy will be determined through a thorough investigation as soon as possible.

That is the text of the resolution. Beyond that, as has been reported publicly, it is unknown what the cause was. We have requested a briefing for Senators through the Intelligence Committee or Terrorist Subcommittee of Judiciary. We are awaiting final word on that.

Mr. President, I submit this resolution for consideration by the Senate and ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 280) expressing the sense of the Senate regarding the tragic crash of TWA flight 800.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the resolution?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, last night TWA flight 800, on route from New York to Paris and then Rome, crashed into the Atlantic Ocean approximately 10 miles off the coast of Long Island. It does not appear that there were any survivors among the 228 passengers and crewmembers who were aboard.

My heart goes out to the family and friends of the victims of this tragedy. It is always hard to lose a loved one. It is particularly hard to lose a loved one in an unexpected, violent event such as last night's tragedy.

We do not yet know the cause of this terrible crash. We do not know whether it was accidental or intentional.

I do not believe that we should make assumptions at this time as to what happened last night. This is the time to collect the remains of the dead, to mourn their passing, and to begin to investigate the cause of this tragedy.

Rest assured, however, that this is an event that must be fully investigated. If last night's tragedy was intentional, we will find out who was responsible. If it was the result of a mechanical or electrical failure, we will find out the cause.

Every year, Americans take off and land 547 million times; 22 thousand flights take off every day in this country.

I am committed to achieving the highest possible level of safety for our Nation's airways. Yesterday's events point out that we need to redouble our efforts to ensure the safety of our travelers.

Air transportation is an integral part of the lives of millions of Americans, and we must do everything in our power to ensure that it is as safe as we can possibly make it.

We must do everything in our power to prevent future tragedies like the one that occurred last night.

My prayers are with the families and friends of the people aboard TWA flight 800.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been requested.

Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the resolution. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] is necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] would vote "yea."

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. BRADLEY] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. FRAHM). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 98, nays 0, as follows:

NOT VOTING—2

Bradley	Hatfield
---------	----------

The resolution (S. Res. 280) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

Mr. SANTORUM. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. FORD. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY, WORK OPPORTUNITY, AND MEDICAID RESTRUCTURING ACT OF 1996

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

Mr. ASHCROFT addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

AMENDMENT NO. 4901

(Purpose: To ensure that welfare recipients are drug-free as a condition for receiving welfare assistance from the American taxpayers)

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Missouri [Mr. ASHCROFT] proposes an amendment numbered 4901.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Strike existing Section 2902, and replace with the following:

"SEC. 2902. SANCTIONING WELFARE RECIPIENTS FOR TESTING POSITIVE FOR THE USE OF CONTROLLED SUBSTANCES.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, States shall randomly test welfare recipients, including recipients of assistance under the temporary assistance for needy families program under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act and individuals receiving food stamps under the program defined in section 3(h) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977, for the use of controlled substances and shall sanction welfare recipients who test positive for the use of such illegal drugs.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. I understand the distinguished Senator from Missouri will agree to 15 minutes and Senator KENNEDY, in opposition, to 15 minutes. I ask unanimous consent that there be 15 minutes on each side for a total of 30 minutes on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DOMENICI. And I ask unanimous consent that there be no second-degree amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CHAFEE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. CHAFEE. I wonder if we could get some indication, while the managers are here, of what is going to transpire for the remainder of the evening, perhaps tomorrow.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that this not be deducted from the time on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. That was understood, but we will be glad to agree.

I say to Senator CHAFEE, we have 28 Democratic amendments and 22 Republican amendments. We have not had a chance to go through and see if there are significant numbers that we could agree to accept. So for now we are in business until we get to talk with our leader and see what he wants to do. We will take this amendment and use that time to see what we can give the Senator by way of assurance. There are a lot of Senators who have things planned for this evening, but I think the leader made it clear that we want to try to finish this reconciliation bill by a time certain, and we are nowhere close to that. So for now, the best I can do is say let us wait for at least 30 minutes and then try to give you a more concrete answer.

I thank Senator ASHCROFT for yielding.

Mr. ASHCROFT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, the debate over the provisions before us today represents an opportunity to change the way we view welfare in this country. The question is simple: Will we continue to allow Federal assistance to be a way of life?

That is the fundamental choice we face. Will we see welfare as the intergenerational problem that it is, or will we continue to fund this failure, this dependence?

There are a number of things in this bill that would help us make sure welfare is no more than a transition. We put time limits on welfare, for instance. But if we really want to move people from dependence to independence, if we want individuals to move from welfare to work, if we really want individuals to change their behavior, I think we ought to be asking people to display a set of behaviors which readies them for the real world.

If you want to be part of the working world, you ought to be drug-free. When you go to work in the private sector, this is the standard. As the chart behind me indicates, even in small firms with 1 to 500 employees, 62 percent test for drugs. Similarly, 88 percent of all firms employing over 10,000 people in America require drug testing.

Now, I ask a simple question: What good does it do for us to allow people to remain on drugs if they have little or no capacity to be placed in the private sector? If you are on welfare, you should be off drugs. Period.

That is the point that I make, that the American people should not be asked to spend their hard-earned resources supporting the drug habits of uninterested addicts. Under my amendment, each State would be required to create a random drug-testing program as well as sanction those individuals who test positive.

It does mandate that the States require drug testing. No question. It is time, however, for us to stop funding the drug habits of individuals who have no intention of working toward a job.

I am pleased, then, to send this amendment to the desk, and to say to those individuals who are on welfare, it is time to move from dependence to independence and opportunity. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, I yield myself 10 minutes.

Madam President, I listened with interest to the presentation made by the Senator from Missouri regarding his amendment. I bring to the attention of the membership that the amendment says "notwithstanding any other provision of law, States shall"—not may, but "shall"—"shall test welfare recipients." So, effectively this is a mandate. The Senator has not commented about how much money these tests would cost and who would pay for them. We heard a good deal earlier this year about unfunded Federal mandates. Well that's what this amendment is. This amendment says that the States shall undertake this activity.

Now, if the Senator offered an amendment to provide that the Governors, or the State legislatures and the Governors, may do this, I might urge the Senate to support it. I might support giving States the discretion to test, within constitutional limits, provided that they comply with the HHS guidelines which ensure maximum accuracy and appropriate safeguards.

But the Senator says we will not leave this matter up to the States. We will not let the Governors make a decision or judgment about this. This amendment provides no flexibility based on different State experiences. This amendment says that every State shall do it.

I hope in the remaining time, the Senator from Missouri would explain to the Senate where the States will get the money to do it. If they use money from this bill, it is going to come out of other vital activities. If they had discretion, Governors might decide that drug testing was a sensible priority for these scarce funds, or they might not. But this amendment provides no discretion. As a result, the money spent on drug testing will be money not spent on children's programs and expectant mother programs. We are going to cut back on those even further.

I would have thought the Senator would at least attempt to justify his proposal by arguing that there is a higher incidence of substance abuse among AFDC recipients, but he has not made that point. He has not made that point because there is no evidence whatsoever to suggest that it is true. But evidently he believes that poor people need this kind of testing, but that other, different groups that get Federal benefits do not. We do not drug test farmers applying for crop subsidies. We do not drug test homebuyers applying for a federally guaranteed mortgage. We do not drug test corporate executives applying for marketing assistance overseas. But we are singling out this particular group of poor people for this stigmatizing, intrusive procedure.

Now, the latest information from HHS is that it costs at least $35 to conduct a drug test, and that does not include the cost of an administrative appeals process, or the cost of treatment for those who test positive. There are some 5 million adults receiving AFDC, and that is only one category of welfare recipients. So we are looking at a bare minimum price tag of $1.75 billion. That is $1.75 billion, without any assurance about what particular tests or laboratories we will have.

Madam President, it seems to me it would make more sense to say that the States may go ahead and develop these programs if they choose within constitutional limits and in compliance with the HHS guidelines. Let the Governors make that decision. But that is not what this amendment is about.

At an appropriate time, Mr. President, I will make a point of order against the amendment.

Madam President, just a brief comment on the underlying piece of legislation that we are considering here this evening. It is shocking to me that after months of what I had hoped was progress, our Republican friends are once again prepared to shed the fragile and frayed safety net designed to protect nearly 9 million American children. As I said from the beginning, there is a right way and a wrong way to reform welfare. Punishing children is the wrong way. Denying realistic job training and work opportunities, is the wrong way. Leaving States holding the bag is the wrong way. We all want to move families from welfare to work, but we should be clear that this bill is still not about real welfare reform but is simply more welfare fraud.

After more than 60 years of a good-faith national commitment to protect all needy children, our Republican friends are still proposing legislative child neglect, if not abuse. This measure, the broad measure, the underlying measure, is an assault on the youngest and most vulnerable Americans.

I urge my colleagues to join with me in doing the right compassionate thing and eventually voting no. Granted, after being called on the carpet for putting forward their home alone welfare bill, a proposal that would have forced mothers into workfare programs even if they had no one to care for their children—this bill provides funding for child care services. In addition, the Republicans have finally let go of their desire to dismantle existing protections for abused and neglected children. These are improvements.

The bill, nevertheless, poses many of the very same dangers to children as the bills that have already been vetoed. Madam President, here are a few of the tragic consequences. Under the Republican bill, destitute children would no longer be able to count on even the most basic concern in a time of need. In 1935, Congress made a historic promise that no child would be left to face poverty, hunger, and disease. This bill permanently breaks that promise. If the Republicans have their way, when children need a helping hand, it will depend on whether they are fortunate enough to be born in a State that has the resources and the will to provide that assistance. It will no longer be a matter of national policy. It will be a gamble geography.

Under the Republican bill, more than 1 million adolescent children and 4 million parents would lose their currently guaranteed access to health care. We know that adequate health care is a major barrier to employment. If we are serious about promoting work and reducing long-term health care costs, this is a major step backward.

Under the Republican bill, food stamp payments would be reduced to 66 cents a meal. I do not know how many of my colleagues have tried to feed a child for 66 cents, but it is just not possible. By slashing $27 billion from critically important nutrition programs, the Republican bill will leave more than 14 million children at risk of hunger, malnutrition, stunted development, and school failure.

Under the Republican bill, 300,000 children with serious disabilities, including mental retardation, tuberculosis, autism, and head injuries, will be denied SSI cash benefits and Medicaid eligibility.

The Republican bill pulled back the welcome mat for legal immigrants who enter this country under our laws, play by the rules, pay taxes, and contribute to our communities. It bans legal immigrants from SSI and food stamps. Even if their sponsors cannot help them, they still cannot help. Many immigrants, particularly those who come to fill needs rather than to unite with families, do not even have sponsors to turn to when they need help. Under this bill, if you are a legal immigrant and you fall on hard times, you are out of luck.

Madam President, I can think of no measure that expresses a greater hostility toward the immigrants that have made this country great than to ban legal immigrants from the ultimate safety net—Medicaid.

There is a solution to ensure that public assistance is truly a last resort for immigrants. We should hold sponsors accountable for the care of the immigrants they sponsor. But where the sponsor cannot shoulder the burden, or where there is no sponsor, we should be prepared to lend a helping hand, particularly to the children. There is much more.

The Republican bill provides far too few Federal resources to help in the training, education, and services needed to help move families from welfare to work. It prohibits the States from offering assistance to babies born to families on welfare—unless and until they enact laws to exempt themselves from this requirement. These provisions are a direct assault on children and have nothing at all to do with meaningful reform.

Madam President, right here in the Senate, much of what America has stood for is being dismantled and destroyed.

In the movie "Independence Day," people go to the theater, the lights go down, and they sit in the dark to watch a battle between aliens and America's best fighters, who win in the end. Here we are talking about American children living in poverty, the innocent victims of fate. If this bill passes, they will be the innocent victims of their own Government.

Tonight, after the movies, when people shut out their lights, we should all think about how fate has treated us and about what kind of country we want to live in, about what kind of children we want to grow up in this country. We do not need to worry about aliens; we need to worry about what we are doing to ourselves, our country, and our children. We may be reaching for the gold in Atlanta, but when it comes to caring for our children, we are certainly trailing the rest of the industrial world here in Washington. Surely, we can do better.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, I support random drug tests, and I have voted for random drug tests for welfare and food stamp recipients—as recently, in fact, as last May in Senate vote 133. But the big distinction between that and what Senator ASHCROFT is proposing here is that he is making it mandatory—and not providing the money to pay for it. We spent the first part of this Congress in 1995 debating the entire issue of unfunded mandates. And, here is an unfunded mandate. If this amendment had provided the funding or allowed States to do random drug tests, I would have supported it, as I have similar proposals in the past. But I cannot support this.

Madam President, I support the right of States to require welfare recipients to submit to drug tests and to fulfill a commitment to remain drug free as a condition for receiving public assistance. Drug abuse is serious, and is all-too-often a heartbreaking problem, particularly among young people. And we have to attack it on as many fronts as we can. Just yesterday, I joined my friend and colleague, Senator HATCH of Utah, in introducing a bill to crack down on the manufacture and importation of methamphetamine, or crank.

But whether a State chooses to combat drug abuse among welfare recipients through random testing and punishment, or through other methods of screening drug use and efforts to help people get off drugs permanently, is a decision that should be left to the States. Random drug testing is not cheap, and this amendment, as written, would force the States to spend up to $200 million—even if they had in place another means to go after drug use money recipients. While I support the right of States to test welfare recipients for drug use, I cannot support this unfunded mandate.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, I ask that the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. NICKLES] be added as a cosponsor, and I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SHELBY. Madam President, I rise tonight to join my friend from Missouri, Senator ASHCROFT, in offering this amendment, which would require the States to sanction individuals testing positive for drug use. This amendment would go a long way in restoring integrity into our system of public assistance.

Madam President, I trust there is not one Senator in this Chamber who would stand here and argue that taxpayers should be forced to subsidize the drug habits of other individuals. Yet, if the Federal Government continues to send cash payments to individuals using drugs, that is exactly what is happening. Not only is that directly contrary to the intent of the AFDC program, and others, and a complete waste of the taxpayers' money, but it is also very harmful to the parents using drugs and the children living in that environment.

Subsidizing the parents' drug habits will, in the end, destroy their chances for ever becoming self-sufficient. They will remain trapped on welfare longer and will require substantial rehabilitation.

However, Madam President, think of what we are doing to the children living in that environment. Giving cash to parents using drugs is one of the cruelest forms of Federal child abuse I can think of. By cutting off or limiting public assistance to those buying drugs, we are limiting their ability to buy the drugs. That will improve not only their lives, but the lives of their children.

Madam President, I believe the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from Missouri will restore a great deal to our welfare system. I hope my colleagues will support it.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, has all time expired?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No. The Senator from Missouri has 6 minutes and 10 seconds. The Senator from Massachusetts has 5 minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY. I am more than glad to yield back 4 minutes of the time and just take 1 more minute if the Senator wants to yield back his time. I am more than glad to do that. If he is going to retain the time, I will retain mine.

Mr. DOMENICI. Before the Senator does that—

Mr. KENNEDY. I will not do anything until I hear what Senator ASHCROFT is going to do. If he wants to yield time, I will as well. If he does not, I will retain my time.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I would like to use my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I yield myself 4 minutes of the time remaining.

I have to say that I agree totally with the senior Senator from Massachusetts. This amendment is about children. As a matter of fact, drug use has been damning to children. It has, as a matter of fact, been lethal.

I would like to introduce you to one such child. This young man is no longer with us. His name was Jason. His mother was a 21-year-old recipient of the welfare of which we speak, and she funded her drug habit with the methamphetamine drug known as crank. Not only was her child born drug-addicted, but as a result of the nursing, the child literally died of an overdose of methamphetamine.

So, this amendment is about children. It is also about drug use and what that use does to children. It kills them. It is time for us to stop this killing.

This amendment is also about preparing for a job. If we are willing to say that people who are involved in job training should be subject to mandatory drug tests, as we did last October, it seems to me that welfare recipients should be held to the same standard. That is what this amendment would do.

Mr. President, let us not lure welfare recipients into a false sense of security; stay on drugs and we will still support you. Let us make it clear from the very beginning. If you are on welfare, you will be off drugs. The taxpayers and the children who aspire to a better tomorrow deserve nothing less.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, we can all have a feel good vote and support Senator ASHCROFT's amendment and think we are doing something about children. But the underlying bill cuts back on nutrition support for 14 million children in the United States. So who really favors children?

It is interesting listening to this Senator from Missouri. He says we know better, Washington knows better, we ought to tell those States how to run their programs. Of course he tells us something entirely different in another context. I hope we can let the Governors make this decision.

And remember the backdrop against which this amendment is offered. This Republican Congress has spent the last 2 years cutting back on the drug treatment and prevention programs that are designed to help the families whose lives have been affected by the scourge of drugs. We have tens of thousands of individuals who need and want drug treatment today, to free themselves from addiction, but they languish on the waiting lists of the treatment programs that still exist after the Republican budget cut these programs almost 20 percent. So we can pretend to be tough about drugs by voting for this amendment, but if we really wanted to fight drugs we would provide treatment to the people who need it and are begging for it.

The Senator from Missouri talks about substance-abusing mothers. But there is no money in here to assist any of those individuals who might test positive and want freedom from addiction. Does the amendment have any money for treating these women so that they can be better mothers to their children? No. It is not provided.

Not only is money for treatment not provided. There is no money in here for the testing itself. It is $1.75 billion, and the Senator does not show where it comes from.

On the underlying measure, we have 1.3 million children who are going to be thrown off Medicaid. We are supposed to shed crocodile tears about drug-abusing mothers under the Ashcroft amendment, but the bill says to 1.3 million Americans, "You are going to be denied any kind of help and assistance." Are we going to say to the 4 million mothers who are being denied Medicaid, many of them of childbearing age, that they are going to be denied prenatal care? The baby may get some care, but we are denying the mothers the prenatal care? Do we care about children?

It is difficult for me to be persuaded by the Senator's argument about how concerned we are about children when the underlying bill so badly frays the social safety net for children.

In conclusion, the amendment is an unfunded mandate on the States. It does not provide the money to conduct the drug tests. And it is simply inhumane to test these people and throw them into the street when the Republican budget so dramatically cuts back on the drug treatment programs that provide assistance for those individuals who want to free themselves from substance abuse.

I withhold whatever time I have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Are we clear on time on amendments yet?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 2 minutes left for each side.

Mr. ASHCROFT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, thank you very much.

The case of Jason Allen is not an isolated case. I could fill the RECORD with cases of children who are drug abused, or victims of the drug abuse of their parents, all funded by a welfare system that is the subject of this debate.

This amendment does nothing to impair our ability to care for children. Far from it. This amendment merely says that we ought to provide incentives for our children to live in drug-free environments, not drug-laden environments.

If we care about children, we cannot allow the current devastation to persist. It has occurred for too long. It has ruined families and ruined children. This amendment is an important first step in the right direction.

With that, Madam President, I thank you. I yield the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY. Madam President, we still have not heard from the Senator about what is going to happen to those children. What is going to happen if the mother is thrown off the welfare rolls for testing positive? Say she has been denied treatment, she is on a waiting list for drug treatment, and so she tests positive for drug use and forfeits her family's welfare benefits. How does that possibly help the children? You are prohibiting these women from getting vouchers so that they can get diapers, so they can get milk, or infant formula. So what happens to these families? They get thrown out on the street, and they are made homeless. There is no provision in here to look after the children.

I just think this is a harsh proposal. It is directed toward the mother, but it hits the children. It is also reflective of the underlying problem with the whole welfare bill. We are fragmenting the safety net for children in this country, and I think that is why the underlying measure should be defeated as well.

I withhold the remaining time. I have to withhold enough time to be able to make a point of order.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, I would be pleased to yield the remainder of my time for raising the point of order by the Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. I yield back all my time, and as I understand when all time is yielded that it is appropriate to make the point of order that the pending Ashcroft amendment is not germane. I raise the point of order that the amendment violates section 305(b) of the Congressional Budget Act.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Madam President, I move to waive the Budget Act for consideration of my amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the time be yielded back on the motion to waive.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. ASHCROFT. There is no objection on my part.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, before we proceed to a vote, could I ask Senator DODD? I understand he has an amendment. If the sponsor and the opposition to the previous amendment would permit us, we would like to set the motion aside temporarily and take up the Dodd amendment. I think the Senator is going to go to 30 minutes equally divided.

Mr. DODD. That is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. And there be no second-degree amendments.

Mr. DODD. Right.

Mr. DOMENICI. After which time we will order a rollcall on it, and we will then ask they be sequenced—

Mr. ASHCROFT. Reserving the right to object, might the Senator from New Mexico estimate the time at which a vote would occur on this amendment, on the motion to waive the budget act?

Mr. DOMENICI. It looks to me like it would be 6:10.

Does the Senator want that agreed to now so we do not violate that?

Mr. ASHCROFT. If it is possible, I would like to defer the vote until perhaps 8:30.

Mr. DOMENICI. I think maybe we better proceed to vote on the motion to waive right now, Mr. President. We will just do that and take Senator DODD's up in due course.

Mr. DODD. I say to my colleague, we will try to get it done quickly. The amendment is not a matter of great controversy. I know a lot of people wanted to say something about the amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. Would the Senator take less?

Mr. DODD. I will try to do it in 20 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. The amendment was going to be agreed to, so I assume the Senator is going to get a very big vote. Would the Senator want to agree to let us accept the amendment?

Mr. DODD. I want a vote, I say, with all due respect, to the Chairman, on an issue that has gone back and forth.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Reserving the right to object, is there a reason the Senator wants to make his remarks in advance of the vote?

If the Senator from Connecticut needs to leave for other reasons, I would indicate to him that that is the condition in which the Senator from Missouri finds himself.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I withdraw my unanimous-consent request and ask for the regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to waive the Budget Act. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] is necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] would vote nay.

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. BRADLEY] and the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. PRYOR] are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BENNETT). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 50, nays 47, as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 50, the nays are 47. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected. The point of order is sustained.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, our leader will announce his intentions shortly, but I just want to say, from the best I can ascertain, there are 28 known amendments on the Democratic side, and that does not include the list of Byrd rule violations which could be considered to be votes. And on our side, there are 22, as of the last count.

I think the longer we are here, I say to the leader, it is an invitation for phone calls. We have about nine additional phone calls in our cloakroom from Senators who want to add amendments. So I do not believe it is going to be very easy to get this completed. We are going to need substantial time.

I yield to the leader, because I can't do anything about it at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority leader is recognized.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, first, I would like to inquire, are we in a position where we can get a 20-minute time agreement, equally divided, on the Dodd amendment and get a vote on that in 20 minutes?

Mr. DODD. I say to the majority leader, we had 30 minutes, and we will try to use less than that. We have a number of people who want to speak. That is the problem. I will try to keep it to no more than 30.

Mr. LOTT. Are you talking about a total of 30 minutes equally divided?

Mr. DODD. Yes, 30.

Mr. LOTT. Let me lock this in.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there be a 30-minute time agreement equally divided on the Dodd amendment, with a vote to follow immediately after that time, and no second degrees be in order.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I thought this was an amendment they were going to accept.

Mr. DOMENICI. We told the Senator we would accept it. He desires a rollcall vote and desires debate.

Mr. CHAFEE. If it is going to be accepted, how much debate is there going to be on the other side? Can you take 10 minutes?

Mr. DODD. We are wasting time debating. Why don't we get to the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I don't want to delay time here. There has been a suggestion made that we try to work together on both sides of the aisle to get a reasonable list of amendments that would be debated and voted on. If we could get that done, then we could go to events that are scheduled tonight. Some of the Senators would like to be at the Olympics tomorrow at 12. Then we would have a series of votes on those amendments beginning at 9:30 Tuesday. Basically that is the outline of what we were trying to do. But instead of the amendments shrinking, they are growing on both sides of the aisle.

I have suggested to the Democratic leader that we will get our list down to five amendments on our side of the aisle for votes, which means that some of them will be accepted, some of them will come up another day. I mean, that is reasonable. I hope there will be an effort on the other side. We debated this before. We made our points. You can make your points on your five amendments and we can make whatever points we have to on our five amendments or so. It does not have to be exactly that number. But if we are talking about a series of 20 to 40 amendments on Tuesday, that is no accomplishment.

We do have an alternative. That is to stay here tonight and stay tomorrow and complete the time that is remaining and vote on amendments tomorrow, which would suit me fine. But I would like to be able to accommodate Members on both sides of the aisle who have things that they would like to do. I think that would be fair.

So at this point, I just ask everybody—we have 30 minutes here. Let us get serious. Let us get this agreement worked out. Then we can go on and do what we need to do tonight and tomorrow. We can take up the agricultural appropriations bill Monday. We can debate the amendments tonight, tomorrow, and 4 hours on Monday and we can vote on Tuesday. That is a mighty good arrangement. We have been having good cooperation all week. Let us see if we cannot do it one more time on this very important piece of legislation that the President wants and both sides of the aisle want. With that, I plead with Members on both sides to cooperate with us and let us get a reasonable list worked out.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, let me reiterate as well my desire to see if we cannot work this list down in the next 30 minutes. I hope every one of the colleagues on my side of the aisle will come to me and tell me, No. 1, when they intend to offer the amendment and, No. 2, whether they really need a rollcall or whether they would be satisfied with a voice vote.

If we cannot get it down to a reasonable list, I think it is fair to say that within a half-hour we would be then in a position to say whether we will be here tonight, tomorrow and Monday. So, if we cannot—I do not have any plans—we will be here tonight. I have no objection to being here tomorrow and Monday, but there are a lot of people who have expressed an interest in trying to accommodate the schedule that the majority leader has discussed, and I hope we can do that, just to take into account some of the people who have already made their plans. But we will have to make that decision within the next 30 minutes. So, I hope everybody will come to me, and we will decide within that 30-minute timeframe whether or not we will be here tomorrow and Monday or not.

Mr. DOMENICI. Could we ask our side to do the same—30 minutes?

Mr. LOTT. Absolutely.

Mr. DOMENICI. Just come into the Cloakroom and tell us. We want to dispose of them. Thank you.

Mr. DODD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4902

(Purpose: To restore health and safety protections with respect to child care)

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD] for himself, Mr. COATS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mrs. KASSEBAUM, Ms. SNOWE, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. KOHL, Mr. KERRY, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. KERREY, Mr. COHEN, Mr. REID, and Mr. LEAHY, proposes an amendment numbered 4902.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 628, strike clauses (vi) and (vii) of section 2805(2) (A).

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I offer this amendment on behalf of myself and my colleagues, Senators COATS, KENNEDY, KASSEBAUM, SNOWE, MIKULSKI, HARKIN, KOHL, KERRY, MURRAY, KERREY, COHEN, REID, and LEAHY. As you can see by this list, Mr. President, this is a bipartisan effort.

I have asked for a rollcall vote here because this is an issue that has been adopted in the past and yet mysteriously ends up dropping out of the bill every time we turn around. So I am asking for a rollcall vote, and hopefully an overwhelming vote here, so that when we get to conference on this legislation, it stays in the bill. Despite the fact that we passed this a number of times, every time we get it done, somehow it manages to disappear from the bill again, as it did from the Finance Committee bill. For those reasons, we will ask Members to be recorded on this issue.

Mr. President, let me just briefly point out that what we are doing here is restoring to the bill the child care health and safety standards that we adopted now 6 years ago when the senior Senator from Utah and I offered the child care legislation and set up broad guidelines for health and safety standards, leaving to the States the specifics on how they would achieve those particular goals.

I am thankful for the efforts of my colleague from Indiana, and Senator SNOWE, Senator KASSEBAUM, and others who worked on this over the years. We have felt that it has been very, very helpful to have these standards in place. If we are going to have, as we must have, child care resources as we move people from welfare to work, these children have to be in a safe place. We have standards by which we maintain our pets and our automobiles. In this case here we are setting basic minimum standards for children. It is something that we ought to all be able to agree on.

There was a study done, Mr. President, a few years ago that assessed the health and safety standards at child care settings across the country. The conclusion of that study, Mr. President, was that in only 14 percent of the cases was it where the child care centers provided good quality care. In 85 percent of those settings, almost 86 percent, the study concluded it was not good quality at all. So there is a necessity for requiring that these children be in a healthy and safe setting. We are talking about a setting where you are seeing to it that there are not open electrical outlets, there is electrical safety, water safety, basic requirements so that these children will be adequately protected.

Mr. President, as I pointed out earlier today, let us try to keep this debate in perspective. Of the 13 million people on welfare, 8.8 million of those are children. And 78 percent of that 8.8 million are under the age of 12. Almost 50 percent of the 8.8 million children are under the age of 6. So there is going to be a substantial number of children who will need child care as their mothers or fathers who are on welfare go to work.

There is money for child care. I would like more, but it certainly is an improvement over what existed in the past. But it is not just a question of having funding for child care. These children must also be in a safe environment.

A little later on this evening or tomorrow, or whenever, you are going to have another amendment offered by my colleague from Louisiana dealing with another aspect of children's safety. Let me urge my colleagues here, many of whom support this amendment, to look at the Breaux amendment and look at the other amendments dealing with children. I do not think there is any debate in this Chamber about trying to get adults from welfare to work. But there ought not to be any debate either, in our view, about trying to see to it that innocent children who through no fault of their own have been born into circumstances where they need some help, whether it is in food or health care or child care, are protected.

So we urge the adoption of the amendment and also amendments that would provide that safety net for these children.

At this point, if I can, Mr. President, I yield 3 minutes to my colleague from Maryland, and then I will yield to my colleague from Indiana. At that point we will try to wrap up the debate here, unless others want to be heard, and get to a vote on this amendment.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the Dodd-Mikulski-Kassebaum-Coats, et al. amendment. This amendment is really quite simple. It restores basic health and safety standards for child-care providers receiving Federal funds.

The bill before us repeals those modest standards. I think that is shocking. Safe child care is too important to be left to chance.

Mr. President, we have to make sure that what we explicitly state are our values we put in our legislative policy. This bill does that. It restores the requirement that states have standards in place to protect children. These standards protect children from infectious diseases, make sure their buildings and playgrounds are safe, and require the people who take care of children to know first aid.

I hope that every Senator will support this amendment because in moving families to work, we must ensure not only the adequacy of child care, but that child care is safe. Sure, we often focus on debating the amount of money we are going to spend on child care. And this is one Senator who believes we need to provide more funding for child care. However, we have to make sure that child care is not only affordable, but that it is safe. There is a basic need for health and safety standards for child care facilities and providers. We need standards to make sure our kids are not around open electrical outlets, that there are not open manholes like little Jessica fell down some years ago. This is basic. Child care has to be more than warehousing kids. Parents have to have some assurance that their children are in a hazard-free environment, and that those who are taking care of them know at least basic first aid, so they will know what to do if a child is hurt or becomes ill.

This is not an unfunded mandate. It is not even a mandate at all. It is common human decency. Requiring States to assure certain basic health and safety standards is the least we can do to give parents peace of mind, while they are working to provide for their children.

Mr. President, in 1990 the Congress enacted a major child care bill. We had bipartisan support for that bill. It provided Federal funds for tax credits and grants to make child care more affordable. It also ensured that providers who receive those funds had to meet minimum health and safety standards, which each State would establish.

We recognized that basic standards were needed to ensure that all children would be safe and well-cared for. The 1990 child care bill made sense then and it makes sense now. Under that law, States set the standards; they decide what will work best for their State.

In my own State of Maryland, we have a three tiered system of health and safety standards. Maryland felt it was important that child care centers that care for lots of kids have a higher level of regulation than someone who provides care in a home setting or in the child's own home. Maryland also ensures background checks to screen providers for criminal records.

Other States have different standards to meet the particular needs of their State. But this law ensures that each and every State must have at least a minimal level of safety and health standards. If we are serious about protecting children, we absolutely must maintain that requirement.

It is what every mom and dad wants for their kids. We should vote our values and support the Dodd-Mikulski, et al. amendment.

I yield the floor.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I will be brief. I know time is of the essence here, and we will yield back some of our time.

Let me state that I support very much what Senator DODD and Senator MIKULSKI are attempting to do here. This is essentially the same legislation that we are attempting to restore that we enacted in the 1990 child care legislation. This gives States a great deal of flexibility.

For instance, the State of California has a program called Trust Line which allows the State to require background checks, criminal background checks, of child-care providers. In those background checks, they found 5 percent of those who had applied to be State-certified child-care providers had criminal backgrounds and they had to disqualify them. Not all States have chosen to operate on that basis, although I think that is a reasonable requirement that a State might want to impose on a child-care provider. That is just one example of the flexibility that a State has to impose, those minimal conditions for safety and health, under child-care provisions.

Now, the House Ways and Means committee has supported this. The House Employment Economic Opportunity Committee, President Bush supported this in 1990, the Congress supported it on a bipartisan basis, the Governors have supported this. What we are attempting to do is correct something that I believe was an error, maybe it was not, but I think all indications are that it was an error as it was put in the reconciliation bill. This would restore it to what, essentially, is current law and what the Congress agreed to in 1990. I urge its adoption.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President I ask unanimous consent that Senator BOXER of California be added as a cosponsor, as well as Senator EXON and Senator WELLSTONE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. I end on the note I began with here. I hope our colleagues will look at some of the other amendments dealing with children, particularly the voucher proposal from Senator BREAUX. I believe we can develop a pretty good bill here.

I do not think there is much debate about moving 4 million adults in the country from welfare to work, and I hope we could develop some consensus, particularly on the children under the age of 12. I understand people make an argument for 16-, 17-, and 18-year-olds, but when you have 80 percent of the 8.8 million kids on AFDC under the age of 12, 50 percent under the age of 6, it seems to me we ought to find the means to provide a safety net for them, whether in a child-care setting or regarding adequate nutrition.

I do not think we need any real debate about ideological differences on that point. While I think we will get a strong vote here, I urge my colleagues to look at these other amendments and judge them on their merits and decide whether or not you do not think this will help strengthen and improve a welfare-to-work piece of legislation that draws us all together in this body, makes it a stronger bill, and one that I think will adequately give the kind of protection to children that all of us want to give.

Do not blame the innocent child for the circumstances they have arrived in. They ought not to go hungry without adequate health care and the protection of a child-care setting.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DODD. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mrs. BOXER. I commend the Senator and both sides of the aisle for their leadership here, and say as one who has fought hard and long with the Senators from Maryland, Connecticut, and certainly Senator PRYOR and others for nursing home standards, we have to take care of our vulnerable populations. This is a big step forward.

Mr. President, back in 1990, we passed a law in the reconciliation bill to enact basic health and safety protections for child care.

That current law now requires providers receiving funds through the child care development block grant [CCDBG] to have basic health and safety protections in place.

The Dodd amendment restores these basic health and safety protections which are otherwise repealed in the pending welfare bill.

What do we mean by basic?

Requirements regarding the prevention and control of infectious diseases.

Building and physical premises safety.

Minimum health and safety training. These standards ensure, for example, that children have up-to-date immunizations. That poisonous substances stay out of the reach of young children. That electrical outlets have plugs in them.

Simply put, these basic standards reduce the numbers of accidents, incidence of illness, and safe children's lives.

Mr. President, we are about to make major changes to the way welfare programs in our country are run.

We hope that these changes will mean a lot more people will be getting off welfare and going to work.

I think the least we can do is give people some assurance that their children's caregivers meet a minimum level of health and safety standards.

Spurred by the Federal health and safety standards we put in place in 1990, California decided to pass a law to give even more protection for children from providers with a criminal record.

The law California passed created Trust Line.

Turst Line is a criminal background check for child care providers who are exempt from State licensing requirements.

Through Trust Line, the State found that 5 percent of these providers had criminal records—60 percent of which involved child abuse convictions.

Repealing the Federal standards would be a huge step backward for protecting our children.

Many of us here are parents. I think we understand that having piece of mind about our children's safety is literally priceless.

The least we can do for the welfare recipients we will be sending off to work is to assure them that some minimum health and safety standards are in place for their child's day care facility.

I urge my colleagues to support the Dodd amendment.

Mr. EXON. Have the yeas and nays been requested?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DODD. I yield 30 seconds to my colleague from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I compliment my friend from Connecticut and our Republican colleagues.

Mr. President, it was not too long ago—1990—that we first put the child care health and safety standards in place. The Senator from Connecticut—who led the effort—remembers all too well the extensive discussion—and, bipartisan compromise—that went into enacting these standards.

It would be unfortunate if we repealed them today. They were the product of a bipartisan effort 6 years ago. They were retained in the bipartisan Senate bill that passed here last September. And they are retained in the bipartisan Castle-Tanner bill.

Frankly, I am not sure why we are repealing them. Usually, we hear the argument about Federal requirements being a burden on people.

But, in fact, in my State of Delaware, the people who are the strongest supporters of these health and safety standards are the very people who have to comply with them—the child care providers.

Yes, child care providers in Delaware have come to me and said, "Don't get rid of the safety standards. Don't get rid of the quality in day care."

It may sound strange. But, think about it. They want Federal standards and Federal requirements because they remember what it was like before there were standards. And, they do not want to go back.

And at a time when we are increasing child care funding—and going to see significant increases in the number of children in day care as welfare mothers are required to work—it is crucial that the child care providers who will be caring for kids meet minimum standards. I don't think that's too much to expect.

In fact, I think every parent with a child in day care would expect no less. Parents who drop their children off every morning want to know that their kids will be safe. They want to be sure that they are not leaving their child at some fly-by-night, shoddy, unsafe, unhealthy day care center.

So, I just urge my colleagues to think about what is being proposed here.

I add one point, I do not know how we can, in fact, have the kind of bill we want without this amendment. I think it is very important. I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, I rise in strong support, and as an original cosponsor, of the amendment by the Senator from Connecticut.

I agree with much of what is in the welfare legislation before us today and I plan to vote on it. We owe it to the low-income families of this country to end a welfare system that keeps them down rather than helps them up. We owe it to the taxpayers to spend their money in a way that strengthens their communities. We owe it to ourselves to be honest when we have failed—as we have with our current welfare system. And we owe it to this country to develop a welfare system that respects and encourages this Nation's long-standing values of work and family. I think this bill, on the whole, does that, and that is why I support it.

But before we send this bill out of the Senate, there is room for improvement. One of my chief concerns with this bill is the unwise elimination of the bipartisan, minimal Federal standards that govern the quality of child care. We ought to be doing exactly the opposite.

Not only does the repeal of safety standards jeopardize quality of care for children from welfare families, it threatens child care safety for all children. Children of families from all income levels benefit from the current health and safety standards.

We need to return welfare to the States because the Federal program has proven itself a disaster. But turning the program over does not mean turning our backs on the people and communities welfare is meant to help. We still have a responsibility at the Federal level to make sure that State-run welfare systems are able to succeed where the Federal system so dismally failed.

And that means doing everything we can to keep the national economy healthy—so there are jobs for welfare recipients to move into. And that means strengthening our child care infrastructure—so there are safe and stimulating places for the children of welfare recipients to spend their days as their parents go back to work.

As States begin to move mothers off the welfare rolls and into jobs, the demand for child care is going to soar. Preliminary estimates done for the city of Milwaukee have shown that welfare reform will create the demand for 8,000 new child care slots—child care that does not exist today. Already in the State of Wisconsin, there are almost 6,500 children from 4,000 families on waiting lists for child care.

At the Federal level, there is much we can do to start putting a broader child care infrastructure in place. But one thing I know we cannot do is move backward and eliminate the minimal Federal standards that now regulate the quality of child care.

At the very heart of the welfare debate is the Government's responsibility to the impoverished children of this county. We failed them with our current welfare system, and today we rightly admit that failure and ask the States to try and do better. As we turn welfare over to the States, we cannot fail those children again by ignoring the real need they have for protection and education while their parents work. We can—and should—turn over welfare. But we cannot turn away from the children who need and deserve quality day care.

I ask my colleagues to support the Dodd amendment.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President. I rise today as a proud cosponsor of Senator DODD's amendment to restore child care health and safety standards to this welfare reform bill. During consideration of last year's welfare reform bill, I worked with my distinguished colleague from Connecticut to add crucial child care funds to the welfare reform bill. In fact, the $3 billion in child care funds which we succeeded in adding to the bill resulted in an overwhelming vote of 87 to 12 in favor of the bill.

I am pleased to join my colleague once again, as we consider a new welfare reform bill almost one year later, on another important child care issue. Maintaining health and safety standards for federally subsidized child care is a basic issue of accountability for Federal dollars. But above all, it is about guaranteeing the safety of this Nation's youngest and most vulnerable children. The amendment is a significant step toward ensuring that American children from low-income and working families receive safe child care.

These health and safety standards were created as part of the child care and development block grant in 1990, with broad support from President Bush, Congress, and the Nation's Governors. The 1990 legislation did not dictate regulations governing child care facilities. Instead, it required child care facilities receiving Federal funds to meet basic requirements set by the states in three areas: building premises safety; prevention of infectious diseases; and training for child care providers.

Again, I emphasize that these health and safety standards are set by the States. And because they are set by the States, they allow States the same State flexibility that motivates this welfare reform bill.

Six years after the creation of these health and safety standards, we know that they work to protect this Nation's children. For example, California protects children through Trustline, which institutes background checks for providers that are exempt from State licensing requirements. Through these background checks, the State found that 5 percent of these providers had criminal records—of which 60 percent involved child abuse convictions.

Yet despite their proven success, this welfare bill does not contain these crucial protections for children. Instead, it simply requires States to certify that they have State licensing requirements for child care. However, a significant percentage of child care facilities are exempt from State licensing requirements. In fact, only 9 States require all family child care homes to be regulated regardless of size. The children who attend these exempted facilities would do so with no assurances that these facilities met even minimal health and safety requirements. And yet Federal funds would pay for this potentially substandard care where children are offered no protections for their health and safety.

This does not make sense. After all, we offer consumers protection when they buy food and cars, use public transportation on our highways, and have their hair cut. It does not make sense that this bill would leave the Federal Government with no way to ensure that children receiving public child care funds are in minimally healthy and safe settings.

This amendment simply ensures that when Federal child care funds are used they will not be in settings where poisonous substances are within easy reach of children; where electrical outlets are left exposed and open; where unfenced play areas expose children to busy streets; where children are allowed to go unimmunized; and where child care providers have a criminal record. How can we allow public funds—taxpayer dollars—to be spent in such a reckless and uncaring manner?

Finally, if we are talking about welfare reform helping people become self-sufficient, why wouldn't we want to ensure that children get off to a good start by having safe child care? Experts believe that the first few years of life—those years during which an increasing number of children are in child care—are the most crucial for a child's development. If children are to develop to their full potential, we need to ensure that they are cared for in safe environments by responsible adults who are knowledgeable about child development.

Research shows that unregulated child care is generally of lower quality than regulated care. This means that children are less likely to receive the care they need to enter school ready to learn. The children that will receive child care under this bill are some of the most vulnerable children in our society. They should not be placed at greater developmental risk because they begin life in substandard child care.

As a Nation, it is the least we can do to ensure that Federally funded child care meets minimum health and safety standards. I urge my colleagues to support this important amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] and the Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. INHOFE] are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Oregon [Mr. HATFIELD] would vote "yea."

Mr. FORD. I announce that the Senator from Arkansas [Mr. PRYOR] and the Senator from New Jersey [Mr. BRADLEY] are necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 96, nays 0, as follows:

NOT VOTING—4

Bradley	Inhofe
Hatfield	Pryor

The amendment (No. 4902) was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. BREAUX. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum, the time to be charged equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. I want to say before I ask this unanimous consent request that I appreciate the cooperation, again, from the Democratic leader. There has been an effort on both sides to reduce the number of amendments. We have not been able to get it reduced as much as we had hoped for on either side of the aisle. We worked on it. We will continue working on it. We are trying to accommodate as many Senators as we possibly can, with a variety of personal problems or needs, and to get our work done. It is very hard to get both of those done simultaneously. So we have come up with a unanimous consent request that I think will allow us to do our job and still allow for consideration of as many Senators' needs as possible.

The summation of it is basically we will begin now and continue to take up as many as nine amendments tonight for debate. Hopefully, some time limitations could be agreed to on those. We will begin voting at 9 a.m. tomorrow morning on those amendments taken up tonight. There will be a series of votes on those amendments. Then we will return to debate on amendments throughout the afternoon tomorrow and for 4 hours on Monday, at which point we will turn to the agriculture appropriations bill and make an effort to complete that bill, if it is at all possible, on Monday. All time on all amendments would be done Friday afternoon and Monday, during that time. Then we will go to the final votes beginning at 9:30 on Tuesday and complete action on the reconciliation bill.

I think that is as fair a process as we can come up with because we still have 13 hours of time remaining. We still have a long list of amendments remaining. It does take time to debate those amendments, though, so this will allow us to have a substantial portion of that time used up tonight. We are going to be counting on Senators to stay and offer those amendments. We have offered at least three on our side and six on the other side. We will have the votes in the morning. I think that is a fair arrangement.

I have submitted a unanimous-consent request. The leader is reviewing that now, and I think we can achieve this.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent during the remainder of the Senate's consideration of S. 1956, the following amendments be the only amendments in order and those amendments be subject to germane second degrees and all other provisions under the statute remain in effect and any rollcall votes ordered this evening with respect to amendments offered tonight occur at 9 a.m. on Friday, July 19, in a stacked sequence, with 2 minutes for debate to be divided equally prior to each vote, and following the disposition of amendments the Senate proceed to further debate on the remaining amendments.

I further ask that following those stacked votes on Friday, any additional rollcall votes ordered with respect to the amendments be stacked in the same fashion as described above beginning at 9:30 on Tuesday, July 23, and following disposition of the amendments, the bill be advanced to third reading and the Senate proceed immediately to the House companion bill, H.R. 3734, and all after the enacting clause be stricken, the text of S. 1956 as amended be inserted, and the bill be immediately advanced to third reading and final passage occur, all without further action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DASCHLE. Reserving the right to object.

Mr. DOMENICI. I do not object, but I ask if you could insert that time on the amendments be no longer than 30 minutes, equally divided?

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I think in some cases we are not going to need 30 minutes. I know at least in one case, the amendment to be offered by the distinguished Senators from Delaware and Pennsylvania, I think they wanted 45 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I withdraw that request. We will work on it.

Mr. DASCHLE. I would like to, if we could, at the end of the colloquy, announce the list and the order in which the amendments are going to be taken so Senators will be put on notice as to when their amendment could be expected.

Mr. LOTT. If I could respond to that suggestion, Mr. President, we are working on a list right now. Of course, we will try to identify them in order. We will try to go back and forth so you are getting your amendments offered, although tonight there may not be exactly that number. We have three, I think, committed tonight. You may have as many as six.

Mr. DASCHLE. Six.

Mr. LOTT. I urge the Senators to agree to time agreements, hopefully less than 30 minutes. If we have one that needs 40 minutes, we will do that. But we will, at the end of this, try to identify the list somewhat in the order they would come up.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. CHAFEE. May I ask the leader a question, please?

Mr. LOTT. That will be fine, Mr. President.

Mr. CHAFEE. I have an amendment which is up near the top of the list. I greatly prefer if I did not have to debate that tonight. I will be perfectly prepared to debate it after we have completed our rollcalls tomorrow.

Mr. LOTT. I do not think there will be any problem. I know the Senator has a couple of problems tonight. We will accommodate that. We have identified other amendments that can be offered tonight, and yours could be one of the first tomorrow.

Mr. CHAFEE. As far as the time agreement, I am perfectly prepared to agree to 30 minutes. I do not know what the Senator from Delaware would say, but I am agreeable to 30 minutes equally divided.

Mr. EXON. Mr. President, if I understood the unanimous consent request, any amendment that would be offered would be debated either tonight, sometime on Saturday—

Mr. LOTT. Friday. Friday afternoon or Monday morning.

Mr. EXON. Or Monday.

Mr. LOTT. Yes, sir.

Mr. EXON. There would be no amendments debated—if you want to offer an amendment on this bill, you are going to have to do it by Monday, is that correct?

Mr. LOTT. Yes, sir.

Mr. EXON. But there would be 2 minutes of debate equally divided, on every amendment that was offered, on Tuesday before the vote?

Mr. LOTT. That is the way it has been done, and that is what is incorporated in the request.

Mr. EXON. I thank my friend.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I further ask unanimous consent that all amendments must be offered and debated during the remainder of the session this evening, during tomorrow's session of the Senate, or Monday, July 22, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m., with that time for debate on Monday to be equally divided. That is in response to the question that the Senator from Nebraska just asked.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. So, for the information of all Senators, there will be no further votes this evening. The next vote will occur at 9 a.m. on Friday, July 19, 1996. Following those stacked votes, the Senate will continue to debate the reconciliation bill. The next voting series will be on July 23, 1996.

Members are put on notice, if they intend to offer amendments under the consent agreement just reached, they must be offered and debated tonight, during the session of the Senate on Friday, or on Monday between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. No further amendments or debate other than the 2 minutes of closing debate will be in order.

I thank all Senators for their cooperation in this matter.

Mr. HARKIN. Will the majority leader yield?

Mr. LOTT. I yield.

Mr. HARKIN. As I understand it, tomorrow morning at 9 votes will start. After those stacked votes, there will be no more votes after that.

Mr. LOTT. We will shorten the time for votes by agreement, and there will be no more recorded votes after that sequence of votes, which could be as many as nine votes in a row.

Mr. HARKIN. I thank the majority leader.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I am submitting for the RECORD a list of amendments that we have identified. I still hope some of these will be accepted on a voice vote or be worked out, but we are submitting this list for the RECORD. This would foreclose any other amendments on our side being offered, other than on that list.

I send the list to the desk and ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the last was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

1. Jeffords: LIHEAP.
2. McCain: Child support—Indians.
3. Chafee: Standards of eligibility.
4. Shelby: Adoption assistance.
5. Craig: Childcare.
6. Hatch: SOS EIC.
7. Helms: Food stamp—work.
8. Abraham: Illegitimacy ratio.
9. Faircloth: Funds for teenager mothers.
10. Faircloth: SSI outreach.
11. Ascroft: Children immunization.
12. Faircloth: Childcare work.
13. Bono/Abraham etc.: Waivers.
14. Gramm: Deny drug benefits.
15. Coats: Independent accounts.
16. Coats: Kinship.
17. Pressler: FS Fraud.
18. Nickles: Reports on small businesses.
19. Ascroft: Limit time.
20. D'Amato: Work requirement.
21. Lott: Manager's package.
22. Domenici: Manager's package.

Mr. LOTT. We would like to ask that a similar list be submitted from the Democratic side.

Mr. DASCHLE. That will be provided.

Mr. DOMENICI. When will that list be provided, the overall list?

Mr. DASCHLE. We will provide it within the next half-hour; even sooner.

It is available. We just want to put it in a form that is presentable.

Mr. DOMENICI. Presentable.

Mr. LOTT. You are not adding any more to it? I inquire how many that is? What number is that?

I will not put you on the record, because I hope whatever it is, it will be less than that when it is submitted for the RECORD or, in fact, when they are brought up.

Mr. DASCHLE. That is our intention.

Mr. LOTT. We still have a real problem with the colleagues not being cooperative enough with us. There is no reason why we should have 40 votes on amendments on this bill. We can make our points. Some of these can be taken on voice votes. Senators insisted, "I want a recorded vote."

I remember one time, when Senator DASCHLE and I were in the House of Representatives, a Congressman who won on a voice vote insisted on a recorded vote and lost. There is a great message in that.

I, again, ask our colleagues, cooperate with us. There is no reason why we should have more than 10 or 12 additional amendments voted on in this process. Vote-a-ramas do not help anybody and it makes us all look very bad.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, if it is appropriate, I ask unanimous consent that the first 15 minutes of this series of amendments to be considered be for the distinguished Senator from Washington, to be joined by the Senator from Illinois, and we will dispose of the first amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I say to Senator DASCHLE, I just checked as to what that amendment is. That is an amendment in the jurisdiction of the Agriculture Committee, not either Senator ROTH or myself. We were wondering if we could have someone from the Agriculture Committee—we will proceed. Do you want to go for 15 minutes?

Mr. DASCHLE. Can we do 15 minutes? I do not know if you need more.

Mr. DOMENICI. We will take up to 15 minutes. Let's get that locked in and proceed.

We will say to Senators around waiting to offer their amendments, we are going to use this 15 minutes to sequence eight or nine amendments so Senators can know when they are coming up.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Washington.

AMENDMENT NO. 4903

(Purpose: To strike amendments to the summer food service program for children)

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Washington [Mrs. MURRAY] proposes an amendment numbered 4903.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Strike section 1206.

Mrs. MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I offer this amendment that simply strikes provisions relating to the Summer Food Program in the welfare bill that is in front of us. I hope this can be accepted on a voice vote. If not, we will have it be one of our recorded votes tomorrow.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, the Senate is not in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point is well taken. The Senate is not in order.

The Senator from Washington.

Mrs. MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President.

Again, the amendment that I have sent to the desk simply strikes the provisions that are related to the Summer Food Program. As all of the Members of the Senate know, we debated the school lunch issue over the last year and a half. Understand, the consensus across this country is people believe we do need to make sure that our children get adequate nutrition. The Summer Food Program is the same argument.

The Senate bill that is before us makes an 11-percent cut to the reimbursement rate for lunches provided in the Summer Food Program. This reduction is a 23-cent cut on each lunch that is provided. It will reduce the amount of money that is provided for these lunches from $2.16 to $1.93. That is a substantial cut, Mr. President, and will have a dramatic impact on the programs offered across this country that assure each one of the children of those programs get adequate nutrition.

We have heard the arguments many times over the last year how important it is that a child get proper nutrition and, without that nutrition, is unable to learn. That is exactly what these cuts will do. They will dramatically impact the ability of our kids to have a nutritious meal in these summer programs.

It also will mean many of these summer programs will not survive. If they have to charge the people in these programs an additional $20 or $30 a month in order to make up the difference, it will mean that many of these programs will be lost, particularly in our rural areas where costs are substantial and it is very difficult for parents to come up with adequate money for these programs to begin with.

Estimates vary by State, but a recent report concluded that this cut that is being proposed in this welfare bill will result in a 30- to 35-percent drop in the number of sponsors, most of them in our rural districts. It will result in a 20-percent cut in the number of children who are able to participate, and many of the larger sponsors are going to have to drop their smaller sites.

I think it is very critical that this Senate go on record saying that we understand the nutrition needs of young children in this country today, and I urge my colleagues, hopefully by voice vote, to accept this reasonable amendment to assure that young children in this country do get the proper nutrition in the Summer Food Program that is in the welfare bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks recognition?

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for about 15 minutes. I probably will not use it all.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

If the Senator will suspend, the Senate is not in order. The Chair suggests that the negotiations that are going on take place in the cloakroom. It is making it very difficult for Senators to proceed.

The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Thank you very much, Mr. President, for restoring order.

Mr. President, I would like to speak to the bill. Maintaining a social safety net for the poor has always been a complex and paradoxical challenge. How does one provide sufficient support for the poorest Americans while simultaneously promoting self-help and individual initiative?

The bill before us offers one approach to the problem in the current welfare system by implementing time limits on benefits, requiring individuals to work and, at the same time, increasing parental responsibility. However, the problem lies in that this bill does not focus welfare reform on the people that welfare really serves. I know you have heard me use these statistics before, but I think it is important to restate them.

There are 14 million people in this country on welfare; 9 million, or 67 percent, of those people are children, almost 60 percent of whom are below the age of 6.

Is it fair that these children lose the safety net that the Federal Government and the States have maintained for 60 years, in the name of welfare reform?

Whenever we cite problems with the current welfare system, such as encouraging family breakups or fostering dependence, I have never heard anyone arguing that we are giving children excessive resources as a complaint. Therefore, Mr. President, as we consider welfare reform today, my question remains the same as I posed months and months ago when this debate first started. What about the children?

Mr. President, may we have order?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is not in order. Once again the Chair requests that negotiations that are going on go on inside the cloakroom.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, there is room for staff to have seats in the back. That would help some.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The point is well taken. If staff are not required on the floor, they can retire to the cloakroom.

The Senator from Illinois.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I thank you again, Mr. President. I really appreciate it, and I appreciate Senator FORD's interjection.

My question remains the same: What about the children, our children? What about America's future? No one has answered that question, and all the sponsors of this initiative can do is speculate, guess, come up with hypothetical responses about the answer. What happens to the children is the great unanswered issue in this welfare reform debate.

I am sure that my colleague will recall the discussions about what happened in this country before we had a safety net for children.

We found many children being left to their own devices. Subsequently, the term "homeless half-orphan" was formed. I do not believe for a moment, Mr. President, the architects of this bill want to move this country back to the bad old days with homeless half-orphans and friendless foundlings and children left to their own devices begging in the streets. I do not believe that.

But I am a bit dismayed with the Members' apparent ability to conclude, while they do not yet know what the implications are for children with this bill, we still must go forward, we still must reach closure on this issue in spite of the fact that we have not answered that great unanswered question.

Many of my colleagues seem to be willing to take the chances that the States will do no harm to children. There is also, it seems to me, the perception that we have to do something no matter how misguided it may be. Frankly, Mr. President, I am concerned. I do not agree it is better to do something bad than to do nothing at all. If any of us were directly affected by this bill, if we were directly affected by what happens here, I believe we would all be a lot less willing to take that chance. That is a chance that we are now forcing on those who are the most vulnerable in our society.

I want to take this opportunity to discuss two core implications of this bill, its impact on children and the disproportionate impact on States and communities.

First, what about the children? Currently, Mr. President, 22 percent of American children live in poverty. That is about 15 million children, or one in every five. That number is twice the number of children in poverty in Canada and Australia; four times that of France and Germany, the Netherlands and Sweden.

Consequently, there are 9 million children on welfare and about 300,000 homeless children in our Nation. These facts are disheartening enough because America is the greatest country on Earth. There is no reason why we have so many kids, so many children stuck in poverty. As a Nation, we are No. 1 in terms of gross domestic product, the number of millionaires and billionaires, health technology, and defense expenditures.

It is shameful that we are number 16 in living standards among our poorest one-fifth of the children, number 18 in the gap between rich and poor children, number 18 in infant mortality rates, and number 19 in low-birthweight rates.

Mr. President, these children are not responsible for being born poor. They did not choose to have parents who refuse to play by the rules, nor do these children have the means of fighting a State or local decision made during difficult budget times.

The Department of Health and Human Services has estimated last year that about 1.5 million children would be pushed below the poverty level by last year's passed Senate welfare bill. Essentially, the same provisions that pushed children below the poverty line last year are included in this bill as well, and the result is likely to be the same.

Nearly 1.5 million American children pushed into poverty who are not today in poverty. This alone should set off the warning sirens that we are doing something wrong here, that there is something flawed with this approach. The ramifications of welfare reform should not be to push more children into poverty than are already there.

The Department of Health and Human Services, HHS, again, currently estimates that under a best-case scenario, which would be every State having 5-year time limits and exempting 20 percent of families, about 2.6 million children would be cut off of subsistence that public assistance provides now—left with absolutely nothing.

This legislation even prohibits the States from providing in-kind assistance to children whose families reach the time limits. I cannot understand, Mr. President, the reasoning behind this provision. Efforts in the Finance Committee to restore even the State option to provide noncash assistance to children were opposed and were defeated. The entire block grant approach is supposed to be—is supposed to be—predicated on State flexibility, and yet this policy in this bill says to the States that they cannot use funds, they cannot use their own money that they are already getting from the block grants to provide for the children of their States through the best possible means that they decide are the best possible means under the circumstances.

In other words, it is a mandate in a direction that cuts against flexibility. Again, it is stunning to me that that would happen in the context of a bill that is touted as giving local flexibility. Perhaps my colleagues are tired of the question, "What about the children?" I cannot, however, help believing that the implications of this welfare reform genuinely are not fully understood yet. And 1.5 million children will be pushed into poverty, and 2.6 million children cut off altogether. We are not talking about 1.5 million cars or 2.6 million trees. These are children. And they are poor through no fault of their own.

Should not we, as Americans, as the wealthiest nation in the world, provide a safety net to ensure that our children do not go hungry, do not become homeless—a minimum level beneath which no American child can fall?

Adults, of course, must be held responsible and held accountable. Everyone who can work, should work. I mean, I do not think there is any debate at all by anybody on that score. There are currently about 5 million adults on welfare, lower than the number of children. But of the 5 million adults on welfare, 4 million of them, approximately, are able-bodied and can work. They, therefore, should work.

However, demanding that adult welfare recipients work is not enough. We need also to recognize there has to be 4 million jobs for those 4 million people. It is unlikely, Mr. President, that the job market can so quickly absorb that number of people.

Again, a second unanswered question in this legislation. Where does the job creation come from? How do these people find jobs? We have to be careful. We have to be certain, Mr. President, that we do not punish 9 million children based on unrealistic assumptions about the employability of 4 million adults. And that is what this legislation does.

The Massachusetts welfare program that began in November of 1995 demonstrates this fact. That program required 20,000 AFDC recipients to work at least 20 hours a week. As of June of this year, only 6,000 had actually found work. I want to point out, of that 6,000 who actually found work, 1,900 of those were working in subsidized jobs. Only 30 percent of the 20,000 individuals have found work of any sort, paid or unpaid.

Massachusetts has realized that a lack of education and skills among these parents, half of whom have never completed high school, seems to be a factor in the failure of that program so far. The State is encountering numerous unanticipated problems, including an inadequate job supply. So again, this legislation, which does not create any jobs, forces the 4 million adults into the job market, and then, thereby, if they do not find jobs, if they cannot support their families, those 9 million children will suffer. I think that these assumptions ought to be looked at very carefully as we rush to judgment on this legislation.

The second point I am going to talk about has to do with the State and community variation which I call the "food chain" argument. We have all heard the expression that "all politics are local." Well, caring for the poor, dealing with poverty is also local. The needs of the poor do not just stop because the Federal Government decides to stop paying for it. Again, this legislation moves in that direction. The block grant program will lock in the Federal funding to the States. And no matter what happens—no matter what happens in the economy—that funding will not change.

Currently, many States, particularly in the Midwest, are experiencing revitalized growth, and welfare rolls are in fact declining. These are good economic times in this country. We heard the discussion about that this morning in committee. So, of course, many States weigh the flexibility of block grants versus the projected decline in needs and say, "Well, OK, this program, this new initiative is acceptable to us."

I am not surprised that many Governors concluded that block grants were acceptable because their budget estimates tended to indicate that fewer people will need welfare and that they can have this free block grant money to play with. Financially, this probably looks like a good deal to a lot of Governors.

But what happens when the business cycle takes its normal dip or, even worse, a recession? That is the time in which more difficult decisions will have to be made. Will a State raise additional revenues to meet needs, shift responsibilities to localities, or reduce benefits? That is the key question.

Although this bill includes a $2 billion contingency fund for States to tap into during economic downturns, the fine print on the access to that fund makes it clear that it will be too little and too late to help people who lose their jobs when the economy turns sour.

Some States and communities do a better job of taking care of poor people than others. Also, States and communities often start from very different positions. The Federal Government and the States have maintained a 60-year commitment to abolishing child poverty through the AFDC program. This bill would take this national problem, turn it over to the States, and say to the Governors, "Here. Go fix it." I fear that a system will develop in which Governors will be forced to say to mayors and county commissioners, local governments, "Here is a problem. Go fix it."

The result will be of this pushing down of accountability, the successive washing of hands, that our children will become victims of geography. The benefits available to a child may depend on what State that child lives in or what region of the State that child resides in.

I want to show you a national chart, Mr. President, about the variation in child poverty rates between the States. The variation in child poverty rates between the States reflects these likely disproportionate impacts. The increase in color, from beige to red, indicates States with high poverty rates. These are the high-poverty-rate States.

You recall, I indicated 22 percent of children are below the poverty line. Well, there are great variances. In Virginia, it is a 14-percent poverty rate under the age of 6; Illinois, 18.9 percent poverty rate for children under 6; Texas, 25.6 percent poverty rate of children under 6. How can my State be expected to care for children under the same conditions as a State like Virginia with such different needs?

In all likelihood, the provisions of the bill will force the States to handle the burden for those who simply cannot find work to local units of government. Yet, there is even more in child poverty rates among counties within a State, more variation than among the States generally.

My own State of Illinois, Mr. President, is an illustration. We have an overall child poverty rate for children under 6 of almost 19 percent. However, as you can see, there is considerable variation among the counties, ranging from less than 3 percent in DuPage County, to 57 percent down here in the south, Alexander County. Virginia and Texas show a similar pattern. Texas goes from 7 percent in some counties to almost 70 percent in others.

Again, the debate surrounding the solution to those living in poverty has gone on and will probably go on for a long time. Yet, as we attempt to address this difficult issue, let us not relive a past where we turn over the problem and let children fend for themselves.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. I ask unanimous consent for an additional 2 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 2 additional minutes.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. This bill aims to make people more responsible and may have some minor success in achieving that objective. However, in teaching others responsibility, let us not forget our own responsibility. Let us not just wash our hands of the responsibility we have to the children of this Nation, as we hand it down to States and local communities. The existing disparities between State and local communities will only be exacerbated, and our children, these American children, will be the losers.

Mr. President, welfare reform is necessary. Few would argue that we need to do something to encourage change here, to give people a chance, to give them the opportunity to pull themselves up by their bootstraps and take care of their own children. Welfare reform must be based on welfare reality, not welfare mythology. We must not forget who the real victims are, or beneficiaries are, depending on your point of view—our Nation's children.

In the absence of information, in the absence of real data about the impact of this legislation, we should not abandon our responsibility to be thoughtful as we approach our legislative duties.

I want to say in conclusion, Mr. President, I was with my son one time and we were driving down the street. He asked why there were so many homeless people. I tried to describe to him it was a function of failed policy. Folks just did not pay attention to decisions they were making when we made some decisions in terms of the mentally ill. The result is we have people laying in the gutters talking to themselves in the alleys.

Mr. President, I do not want to look up 5 years from now and discover we have children living in the gutters, sleeping on the streets, and begging on the corners because we did not wait until HHS or anybody else could come up with decent numbers regarding the impact of our decision, that we did not think about the fact that counties within a State had variations, that we did not think about the economic impact.

Mr. President, I understand it is a popular issue. I understand it is a political issue. I say, Mr. President, and I quote my colleague, Senator MOYNIHAN, who said at one point that this is the most regressive social legislation we have seen in this century. It is for that reason that I am going to oppose this, as I have opposed this legislation. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the Murray amendment for a couple of reasons. No. 1, there is no offset identified in the Murray amendment. For the information of Members, what that means is we have $214 million of savings that the Agriculture Committee was required to come up with that now we are going to have to come up with savings somewhere else, in some other program, which, given where the big money is in the agriculture bill, we are talking about looking at the Food Stamp Program.

We have already heard from many Members on the other side that the Food Stamp Program already has been squeezed, so we are back to a very tough decision. That is a very important reason to oppose this amendment.

No. 2, really, this amendment is not necessary to continue to meet the needs of the summer feeding programs for children. The reason I say that is because the rates that are in the underlying bill for the Summer Food Service Program for lunch is $1.93 a meal. The ordinary rate for a lunch, a school lunch, in an ordinary school in America during the year is $1.79. Let me repeat that: The ordinary rate for a school lunch during the year, during the school year, is $1.79. The rate in the bill for a lunch during the summer is $1.93 for that lunch. That, by the way, that reimbursement rate is roughly equivalent to the amount we pay to severe-need schools. Those are schools that have at least 60 percent of their children at the school who are in poverty. So we are paying a rate, actually, slightly above the rate that we pay during the school year for severe-need schools.

Now, I understand that the Summer Food Service Program for Children is targeted at poor communities, but we are paying a reimbursement rate here which is equal to the rate we pay to poor communities during the school year. So I guess we believe that this was a responsible place to find a reduction, that we are still paying enough money for school lunches, to encourage vendors to participate, schools to participate in providing the service for children throughout the summer.

If we do not make a reduction in this program, and I think it is a judicious reduction, then we have to come up with money from someplace else in the budget, which may, in fact, be tougher on children than the reduction proposed in the underlying bill.

I encourage Members to oppose the Murray amendment for those reasons. I reserve the balance of my time.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I will be very brief because I know there are a number of Senators who want to offer amendments.

I heard two arguments, one that there is no offset. It is my understanding that when this Senate struck the Medicaid provisions in this bill, that had a $70 billion impact, without worrying about where the offsets were. So in this provision, it only affects $24 million. I say because it is the right policy that we care for our children and make sure they have nutritious foods, it seems legitimate and like-minded to do what we have done with the Medicaid provision in this bill.

Second, the other argument was that the price for these meals is higher than what is offered during the school year. That is, of course, true, because during the school year the volume, the number of children that are served is quite large, is much larger. In the summer, we are serving fewer students, and, therefore, the cost of meals goes up.

Second, during the school year, the facility is provided. During the summer, programs have to pay for the sites, and the cost goes up prohibitively because of that. That is why the summer program costs more than the school-year program.

It is a very legitimate concern. I will again say that the bill reduces the amount of the program by 23 cents on each lunch. That will have a dramatic impact. We will lose sites, especially in rural areas, and see as much as a 35-percent drop in the number of programs that are able to offer this.

Again, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment tomorrow morning. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SANTORUM. My response to that, Mr. President, first, the Senator from Washington knows the fact is that the Agriculture Committee was given a reconciliation instruction, and by removing this part from that portion of the bill we will have to come up with money elsewhere. It is not like Medicaid is part of that instruction. It is not. It is a separate instruction, a separate area, an area that is gone for now. We are dealing with this portion of the bill.

We cannot just say we cut something somewhere else, and, therefore, we should not worry about it here. It is apples and oranges. We do have to come up with the money somewhere else. I think this is a reasonable place to come up with it. The rate of $1.93 was increased in the committee by Senator LEAHY. He sought to increase it more himself, but he recognized that to do that he would have had to find savings somewhere else. It was his judgment—obviously, by his amendment—that this was an area that could afford a reduction more than other areas of the agriculture budget. And so I think, going from the attempt that he made in committee, that this was probably the best place to find the reduction at the time. So I ask, again, that Members oppose the amendment.

I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks recognition?

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, has the Senator yielded back her time?

Mrs. MURRAY. How much time is left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has approximately 5 minutes left.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I will simply conclude by saying that we have had this argument about the importance of providing nutritious meals for our kids so they have the ability to learn and learn well.

I urge my colleagues to remember those children when we vote on this amendment tomorrow morning.

I yield the remainder of my time.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am going to try to just informally establish a little bit of the order, so that Senators who know they are going to offer amendments tonight will kind of know the sequencing. The first thing we would like to do, however, is to ask the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee to shortly offer three amendments, en bloc, which have been cleared on both sides.

The order would be as follows: We have just completed debate on Murray. Next would be Senator FAIRCLOTH on our side. He has two amendments. We will have the first Faircloth amendment. Senator BREAUX would be next.

Mr. FORD. If the Senator will yield, are we going to try to have time agreements on these?

Mr. DOMENICI. I tried that a while ago, and we decided to just wait on each one.

Mr. FORD. I was just hoping.

Mr. DOMENICI. I am hoping, too. Senator FAIRCLOTH is not going to take much time. Maybe we can get an agreement now. While we are waiting for him, to put everybody on notice, Senator BREAUX would follow Senator FAIRCLOTH.

There will be a second Faircloth amendment, to be followed by Senator BIDEN. And then we would have a Santorum-Frist amendment with reference to waiver. Then there will be a Senator Harkin amendment and then an Ashcroft amendment. Then we would have Senator WELLSTONE, who, I believe, has two. We would be pleased to let him proceed with two in sequence. And then we would have Senator GRAHAM of Florida and Senator DODD.

If we can complete those, we will be set up for a vote in the morning on 11 amendments. Senator FAIRCLOTH will be right along. We will ask for 15 minutes to a side, if that is satisfactory.

Mr. FORD. That suits me. If we can get a finite time or an understanding, it would be helpful to all concerned.

Mr. DOMENICI. If the Senator is prepared, can Senator FAIRCLOTH agree to 15 minutes on his amendment?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I can do it in about 3 minutes. They are bringing it over from the office.

Mr. FORD. Would it be all right for Senator BREAUX to go ahead with his?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I only need about 3 minutes for just a brief description.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator FAIRCLOTH wants 3 minutes. How much does the opposition want?

Mr. FORD. I do not know whether we will oppose it. Give us 3 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask unanimous consent that there be 3 minutes to a side on the Faircloth amendment, and that it be the next amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask unanimous consent that no second-degrees be in order to the Faircloth amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time would Senator BREAUX like on his amendment?

Mr. BREAUX. I think 10 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask unanimous consent that there be 10 minutes on each side on the Breaux amendment, with no second-degrees in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator FAIRCLOTH has a second amendment. While we are waiting for him, does anybody know if 15 minutes will be satisfactory for Senator BIDEN?

Mr. FORD. He has a total substitute, so it will be a little longer, probably.

Mr. DOMENICI. On Senator FAIRCLOTH's second amendment, I ask unanimous consent that there be 3 minutes on a side, with no second-degrees in order to that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. We have Senator BIDEN's amendment, and we are trying to find out what he would like. In the meantime, will Senator SANTORUM, Senator FRIST, and Senator ABRAHAM decide what they need? And then we will lock that in shortly. Those three Senators are participating in waiver amendments.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum, and I ask unanimous consent that the time be charged equally.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I have a unanimous consent agreement to propound to dispose of four amendments which have been agreed to on both sides of the aisle. These amendments are Senator JEFFORDS' amendment to protect recipients of Federal energy assistance; the second is Senator GREGG's amendment to require administrative summons to request child support information from public utilities; the third is Senator MCCAIN's amendment to allow child support agencies to enter into cooperative agreements with Indian tribes; and the fourth, Senator COATS' amendment relating to placing children separated from their parents with a relative. Senator WYDEN is a co-sponsor of this amendment.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order for me to offer these four amendments, which I now send to the desk en bloc, that they be considered and agreed to en bloc, and that the motions to table and the motions to reconsider be agreed upon en bloc, and that they appear on the RECORD as if considered individually.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I apologize. We have failed, and those on the other side have failed, to talk to the ranking member of the Indian Affairs Committee, Senator INOUE. It has not been cleared with him yet. I suspect that it will be. But I hope that the Senator will withhold this until such time as we might contact him. And that would be within a minute or two.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I withhold my request until such time as we hear from the senior Senator from Hawaii.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, why don't we ask unanimous consent that this motion be set aside? It would automatically come back, I say to the Senator, if that is all right. I ask unanimous consent, then, that this amendment be set aside so that we might proceed to the Faircloth amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Under the previous order, Senator FAIRCLOTH is recognized for 3 minutes.

AMENDMENT NO. 4905

(Purpose: To prohibit recruitment activities in SSI outreach programs, demonstration projects, and other administrative activities)

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, this is a very simple one but is a very direct one and I think a very important one to the American taxpayers.

I am offering an amendment which clarifies that no Federal funds should be used for recruitment activities in the SSI program.

I send the amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Carolina (Mr. FAIRCLOTH) proposes an amendment numbered 4905.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 399, between lines 10 and 11, insert the following:

Subchapter F—Other Provisions

SEC. 2241. PROHIBITION OF RECRUITMENT ACTIVITIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1631 (42 U.S.C. 1383) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“PROHIBITION OF RECRUITMENT ACTIVITIES

“Nothing in this title shall be construed to authorize recruitment activities under this title, including with respect to any outreach programs or demonstration projects.”

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, this amendment says very simply that we will not use the taxpayers' money to solicit people to come into the SSI program, which we are doing, and spending massive amounts of taxpayers' dollars to solicit people to come and sign up for SSI benefits. We are doing it through mailing, advertising, and even door-to-door solicitation with people who are hired and paid by the Federal Government. SSI outreach programs are used to try to maximize participation in the SSI program.

I believe we owe it to the American people to assure them that we are using the hard-earned dollars that we spend on welfare programs only to provide assistance to the truly needy and that we are not out spending more of their money and hiring bureaucrats to solicit people to come get their money.

So this is a very simple program. It forbids the use of Federal funds for the recruitment of people into the SSI program. I do not think we should be hiring people to solicit people to come get welfare.

Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time.

Mr. BREAUX addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. BREAUX. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I was just looking at the amendment. It is the first time I have had the opportunity to see it and read it. The Social Security Disability Program that the Senator is referring to is essentially cash benefits for disabled people, most of which are elderly.

The question I am concerned about when the Senator's amendment says "nothing shall be construed to authorize recruitment activities, including any outreach program, or demonstration projects," I think it is important that the agencies let people know what the program is about.

I tend to agree with the Senator about going out and trying to recruit people to come in and engage in a program that is there. But is the Senator's amendment intended to prohibit trying to let people know what is in the program? Would they be prohibited under the Senator's amendment from telling people about what the program does and how it works?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. It would not prohibit them from telling them if they come in and ask about it. They can come into the Social Security office and ask about the program. They would be told.

Mr. BREAUX. Let me ask the Senator something further. We have a lot of Federal programs that provide benefits and loans. For instance, the Senator is aware of the farm programs. The Farmers Home Administration has loan programs and things that are beneficial to farmers. They try to communicate that information to the farm community to let them know that we have a program that does the following three things. "If you are interested, come in and talk to us."

Would this prohibit the Social Security people from doing the same thing that other Federal programs are able to do with regard to informing people about the benefits of the program?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I am not sure how they inform all the people about the programs because there are many Federal programs and many, many ways of informing people. But we have simply created here an issue that we could simply go out and solicit door to door. We bring people in to try to get the benefits. If they come to the office and ask about the program, then it certainly is perfectly all right.

Mr. BREAUX. Would his amendment prohibit publishing a brochure describing what the program does?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. No, not if they kept it in the office, but not start mailing them and delivering them door to door.

Mr. BREAUX. The concern I have is that it is sort of like we will have a Federal program, but we are going to hide it; that we are not going to let anybody know about it. I do not think that a Federal agency should go out and recruit people to benefit from a program. If a program is a legal program, I am concerned about getting to the point of trying to say we are going to have this program but we do not want to tell anybody about it. If you are lucky enough to find out about it on your own, maybe you could come and apply for the benefits. We are talking about people who are disabled. A lot of them are disabled. They cannot get anywhere. How do they find out about it?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. The Senator is well aware that we have never had a Government program in which we have given away money that was not well advertised.

Mr. BREAUX. My concern is we are taking about a disabled person who may be homebound and who cannot get out. They are disabled. We are talking about disabled people. That person is disabled. How are they going to find out about the program if you cannot tell them about it?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. They are going to find out about the program.

Mr. BREAUX. I am wondering how they would find out about the program. How?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Innumerable ways; family members. They will find out about the program. But we have gone out soliciting people door to door that are not homebound, that are not sick.

Mr. BREAUX. Let me ask the Senator this question.

Would his amendment prohibit the Social Security Administration from getting a list from the county health authority on people who are disabled and then sending them a brochure telling them about the benefits?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Getting this from where?

Mr. BREAUX. Would the Senator's amendment prohibit the Social Security Administration from getting a list of people who are disabled from the county health authority and then sending them a brochure describing what the benefits are?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. No, the amendment would not prohibit that. I would be willing to amend it so we could do that. That is certainly within the realm of what we could do. But door-to-door solicitation, big ads in the newspaper, come-and-get-it type ads, that is what I am trying to get at.

Mr. BREAUX. The Senator is aiming at door-to-door solicitation and running ads advertising the program, but other than that, communicating by any other means would be legitimate communication?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. They can do it if they do not use Federal funds. There are many advocacy groups that are working and soliciting—I am saying advocacy groups cannot use Federal funds.

Mr. BREAUX. Is the Senator saying the Social Security Administration could not use funds to print a brochure to describe the benefits?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. They can print the brochure, they can mail it, but they cannot give money to advocacy groups going door to door.

Mr. BREAUX. Could they mail it to the disabled?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Certainly. Who else would you mail it to?

Mr. BREAUX. I just want to make sure we are not trying to hide the program so well nobody will ever find out anything about it.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I do not think there has ever been a Federal program in which we gave away money like we have with SSI that was very well hidden.

Mr. BREAUX. I wonder under the unanimous-consent agreement whether the Senator's amendment would be amendable.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. It would be amendable, yes.

Mr. BREAUX. It would be. Would it take unanimous consent to amend it?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. It would not. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH). The Chair would inform the Senators the time on the amendment has expired.

Mr. FORD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. FORD. May I ask the distinguished Senator from North Carolina a question. I understood the Senator to say to the Senator from Louisiana he would be able to amend it to be sure that door-to-door solicitation and that sort of thing was not acceptable but what he explained would be. Is there a chance we might set it aside and work out an agreement so it could be accepted and we would not have a vote?

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. That would be agreeable, yes.

Mr. FORD. I ask unanimous consent then that the Faircloth amendment be set aside temporarily.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

Mr. FORD. Now, Mr. President, as I understand it, the Roth proposal is now the pending business?

Mr. BREAUX. I do not think so.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Roth amendment was withdrawn by consent. The Senator can renew the request.

Mr. FORD. All right, I ask him to renew it then, because at the time I was the culprit because we had not checked completely with the ranking members and now it has been cleared and we are in full support of Senator ROTH's proposal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request of the Senator from Delaware? Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

AMENDMENTS NOS. 4906 THROUGH 4909, EN BLOC

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I would ask permission to renew my request that the four amendments which I identified earlier be agreed to en bloc, they be considered and agreed to en bloc, that the motions to table the motions to reconsider be agreed to en bloc, and that they appear in the RECORD as if considered individually.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the amendments by number.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Delaware [Mr. ROTH] proposes amendments en bloc numbered 4906 through 4909.

The amendments (Nos. 4906 through 4909), en bloc, are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 4906

(Purpose: To protect recipients of federal energy assistance)

Beginning on page 1-5, strike line 18 and all that follows through page 1-7, line 12, and insert the following:

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 5(d) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2014(d)) is amended by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following: “(1)(A) any payments or allowances made for the purpose of providing energy assistance under any Federal law, or (B) a 1-time payment or allowance made under a Federal or State law for the costs of weatherization or emergency repair or replacement of an unsafe or inoperative furnace or other heating or cooling device.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 5(k) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2014(k)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (1)—

(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking “plan for aid to families with dependent children approved” and inserting “program funded”; and

(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking “, not including energy or utility-cost assistance.”;

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking subparagraph (C) and inserting the following:

“(C) a payment or allowance described in subsection (d)(11).”; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

“(4) THIRD PARTY ENERGY ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS.—

“(A) ENERGY ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS.—For purposes of subsection (d)(1), a payment made under a State law to provide energy assistance to a household shall be considered money payable directly to the household.

“(B) ENERGY ASSISTANCE EXPENSES.—For purposes of subsection (e)(7), an expense paid on behalf of a household under a State law to provide energy assistance shall be considered an out-of-pocket expense incurred and paid by the household.”.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, I wish to correct what I think is a serious problem with this bill. I ask my colleagues to support my amendment to remove from the welfare section of this bill those provisions that unfairly burden poor families who rely on both food stamps and Federal energy assistance. Not only does the bill change a long-standing bipartisan policy, it does so without bringing any savings to the bill.

As it's currently drafted, S. 1956 will cut the food stamp benefits of poor families and elderly people who receive Federal low-income energy assistance. The bill achieves this end by counting LIHEAP benefits as though they were income available to families to purchase food. The result is that any time a poor family with children or an elderly person receives Federal help to pay a fuel bill, they'll get less in food stamp benefits that month.

The good news is this is a very easy provision to fix. Linking LIHEAP benefits to food stamp eligibility doesn't add any savings to the bill because under new scoring policies, CBO doesn't score any savings to this provision. We can remove this harsh provision from the bill without reducing our welfare savings.

I'd like to take a few minutes now to remind my colleagues of the importance of both the Food Stamp Program and the energy assistance program to our most vulnerable populations.

Who is receiving food stamps?

Households with children—80 percent of the food stamp population.

Elderly people—another 7 percent.

People living at half the poverty level—more than half of all food stamp benefits go to people living at half the poverty level.

That's who's getting food stamps—families with children, the elderly, and extremely poor people. Food stamps benefit our most vulnerable populations. We can't lost sight of that fact.

LIHEAP, too, serves the poorest of the poor:

Households with incomes less than $8,000—two-thirds of LIHEAP funds goes to these households.

Half of the households receiving LIHEAP have incomes below $6,000.

One-third of LIHEAP households have elderly people living in them.

One-third of LIHEAP households have disabled people living there.

LIHEAP is the program that prevents many disadvantaged households from having to choose between putting food on the table or heating or cooling their homes.

What we've done in the bill as drafted is force people to make that choice again. If they need help heating or cooling their homes, there will be less food stamp benefits available to them. In households with incomes of less than $8,000, we shouldn't be forcing people to make that choice.

Food and shelter are very basic human needs. On $8,000 a year, there can be no doubt that the entire household income must be devoted to meeting the needs of basic human existence: clothing, medical care, and maybe transportation. In my mind, it's simply bad policy to force those basic needs to compete with each other.

This welfare reform package is about helping people to get back on their feet: helping them to move beyond poverty and dependence into productive and contributing citizenship. To the extent that we're talking about populations we don't expect to hold down jobs: the severely disabled, the elderly, and children—this policy is even more problematic. Either way, we need to make sure that people have the fuel they need to heat their homes, or cool them if that's necessary. We need to make sure people have food for their children and for themselves. It's not a one or the other proposition—people need both. Federal law has recognized this fact since the mid-1980's, and there's no reason to change the policy now.

For many years, it has been our policy to not count aid provided under LIHEAP assistance as income. Members of both parties have recognized in the past that reducing the food stamps of LIHEAP recipients would be counterproductive. Do we really want a policy that says “whenever LIHEAP helps a poor family or elderly person pay high utility bills, they well have their food stamps cut?” I don't believe we're really helping if we implement this policy. People will still face major difficulty in paying basic bills and securing adequate food at the same time.

According to CBO estimates, the welfare bill already cuts the Food Stamp Program by $28 billion over the next 6 years. The food stamp cuts in this bill are $4 billion deeper than the cuts in those years under last year's Senate welfare bill. The cuts in the benefits of the households receiving energy assistance would be on top of the food stamp benefit reductions already in the bill. Since the provision cutting the food stamps of poor households that receive LIHEAP doesn't score any savings, we should remove this link from the bill and retain current law.

Again, I urge my colleagues to join me and my colleagues, Senators SNOWE, CHAFEE, COHEN, LEAHY, LIEBERMAN, SIMON, KENNEDY, KOHL, and WELLSTONE in supporting this amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4907

(Purpose: To modify the requirement for expedited procedures to establish paternity and to establish, modify, and enforce support obligations)

Beginning on page 467, line 22, strike all through page 469, line 18, and insert the following:

“(D) ACCESS TO INFORMATION CONTAINED IN CERTAIN RECORDS.—To obtain access, subject to safeguards on privacy and information security, and subject to the nonliability of entities that afford such access under this subparagraph, to information contained in the following records (including automated access, in the case of records maintained in automated data bases):

“(i) Records of other State and local government agencies, including—

“(I) vital statistics (including records of marriage, birth, and divorce);

“(II) State and local tax and revenue records (including information on residence address, employer, income and assets);

“(III) records concerning real and titled personal property;

“(IV) records of occupational and professional licenses, and records concerning the ownership and control of corporations, partnerships, and other business entities;

“(V) employment security records;

“(VI) records of agencies administering public assistance programs;

“(VII) records of the motor vehicle department; and

“(VIII) corrections records.

“(ii) Certain records held by private entities with respect to individuals who owe or are owed support (or against or with respect to whom a support obligation is sought), consisting of—

“(I) the names and addresses of such individuals and the names and addresses of the employers of such individuals, as appearing in customer records of public utilities and cable television companies, pursuant to an administrative subpoena authorized by subparagraph (B); and

“(II) information (including information on assets and liabilities) on such individuals held by financial institutions.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, my amendment will bring the child support enforcement language in this bill in line with Federal law on privacy protections. I understand it has been accepted by the committee, so I will keep my remarks brief. I sincerely appreciate the help and support of the chairman, Senator ROTH, and the ranking member, Senator MOYNIHAN.

Mr. President, part of our effort to reform the welfare system in this country has been to ensure that parents are responsible for the financial support of their children. Efforts to streamline the ability of States to identify and collect child support payments from dead-beat parents is a big part of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Act of 1996. In our ardent effort to accomplish this, however, we must also remain mindful of legal protections that should be provided for private entities that would be required to supply necessary information for the enhanced enforcement of child support payments.

It is important to note that the private entities that will be required to participate in the bill's support enforcement efforts should be able to operate within the constraints of existing laws designed to protect privacy.

Current privacy protections in Federal law (18 U.S.C. §2703), require that private information can be provided only pursuant to a warrant, court order, or administrative subpoena. The bill's current provisions, which allow States to obtain information by merely requesting it, would be in conflict with this Federal statute. Without addressing this issue, the bill would put private entities such as telephone companies in a needlessly difficult situation. My amendment will resolve this problem.

In short, Mr. President, what my amendment would do is allow States the ability to obtain this information in the simplest manner, while complying with Federal statute, by requiring only an administrative subpoena for the procurement of private information for the purposes of child support enforcement. It will also provide these private entities with the necessary protection from lawsuits.

An administrative subpoena is not an onerous or time-consuming requirement for State agencies. In fact, in the States where it is currently used, the device actually streamlines the process of obtaining necessary information. Under an administrative subpoena, if preapproved conditions and standards are met, an agency has the authority to issue a subpoena without having to submit individual cases for a court's approval. In fact, it is my understanding that some States allow certain individuals, within an appropriate agency, the authority to issue subpoenas. For example, that could include a caseworker, who is working directly with the issue, to issue an administrative subpoena. This procedure is recognized by courts, and allows agencies to quickly obtain information, while providing private entities the necessary protection from lawsuits based on the unauthorized release of private information.

Mr. President, the private entities involved, such as telephone companies, have a good record of complying with these requests, and working with agencies within the constraints of the law. Given that fact, and an expressed desire on the part of industry to be able to continue those efforts under this legislation, this minor change needs to be made. Otherwise, we could see a new problem arise with less timely compliance on the part of industry, if the protections of an administrative subpoena are not guaranteed.

As I mentioned before, I thank the committee for their assistance and for accepting this amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4908

(Purpose: To provide for child support enforcement agreements between the States and Indian tribes or tribal organizations)

On page 411, between lines 2 and 3, insert the following:

“(4) FAMILIES UNDER CERTAIN AGREEMENTS.—In the case of a family receiving assistance from an Indian tribe, distribute the amount so collected pursuant to an agreement entered into pursuant to a State plan under section 454(33).

On page 411, line 3, strike “(3)” and insert “(4)”.

On page 554, between lines 7 and 8, insert the following:

SEC. 2375. CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT FOR INDIAN TRIBES.

(a) CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGREEMENTS.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 2301(b), 2303(a), 2312(b), 2313(a), 2333, 2343(b), 2370(a)(2), and 2371(b) of this Act is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (31);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (32) and inserting “; and”;

(3) by adding after paragraph (32) the following new paragraph:

“(33) provide that a State that receives funding pursuant to section 428 and that has within its borders Indian country (as defined in section 1151 of title 18, United States Code) may enter into cooperative agreements with an Indian tribe or tribal organization (as defined in subsections (e) and (l) of section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b)), if the Indian tribe or tribal organization demonstrates that such tribe or organization has an established tribal court system or a Court of Indian Offenses with the authority to establish paternity, establish, modify, and enforce support orders, and to enter support orders in accordance with child support guidelines established by such tribe or organization, under which the State and tribe or organization shall provide for the cooperative delivery of child support enforcement services in Indian country and for the forwarding of all funding collected pursuant to the functions performed by the tribe or organization to the State agency, or conversely, by the State agency to the tribe or organization, which shall distribute such funding in accordance with such agreement; and

(4) by adding at the end the following new sentence: “Nothing in paragraph (33) shall void any provision of any cooperative agreement entered into before the date of the enactment of such paragraph, nor shall such paragraph deprive any State of jurisdiction over Indian country (as so defined) that is lawfully exercised under section 402 of the Act entitled ‘An Act to prescribe penalties for certain acts of violence or intimidation, and for other purposes’, approved April 11, 1968 (25 U.S.C. 1322).”.

(b) DIRECT FEDERAL FUNDING TO INDIAN TRIBES AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS.—Section 455 (42 U.S.C. 655) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(b) The Secretary may, in appropriate cases, make direct payments under this part to an Indian tribe or tribal organization which has an approved child support enforcement plan under this title. In determining whether such payments are appropriate, the Secretary shall, at a minimum, consider whether services are being provided to eligible Indian recipients by the State agency through an agreement entered into pursuant to section 454(33).”.

(c) COOPERATIVE ENFORCEMENT AGREEMENTS.—Paragraph (7) of section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654) is amended by inserting “and Indian tribes or tribal organizations (as defined in subsections (e) and (l) of section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b))” after “law enforcement officials”.

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subsection (c) of section 428 (42 U.S.C. 628) is amended to read as follows:

“(c) For purposes of this section, the terms ‘Indian tribe’ and ‘tribal organization’ shall have the meanings given such terms by subsections (e) and (l) of section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b), respectively.”.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I thank my colleagues, Senators INOUE, DOMENICI, and DASCHLE, for joining me in offering this important amendment.

The amendment is similar to provisions adopted by the Senate during debate last year on H.R. 4, the original welfare reform bill. The amendment has bipartisan support, and as revised, is now endorsed by the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators.

The non-controversial amendment I am offering should be adopted because it addresses a long-standing problem which Indian tribes and States have both experienced in providing child support enforcement services and funding affecting Indian children.

The amendment would further the goals of enforcing child support enforcement activities by encouraging State governments with Indian lands within their borders to enter into cooperative agreements with Indian tribal governments for the delivery of child support enforcement services in Indian country. Let me repeat—the cooperative agreements would be encouraged; they would not be mandated.

The amendment provides funding to achieve these purposes within the overall spending allocated to this effort. It gives the Secretary the authority, in specific instances, to provide direct Federal funding to Indian tribes operating an approved child support enforcement plan. This approach is consistent with the government-to-government relationship between tribal governments and the Federal Government, and the other provisions contained in the reconciliation measure.

Mr. President, the problem is this—title IV-D of the Social Security Act was enacted to assist all children in obtaining support and moving out of poverty. Under title IV-D, State child support offices are required to provide basic services to parents who apply for these services, including those that receive welfare assistance. These services include collecting and distributing child support payments from dead beat dads. Yet this program has been of little assistance to Indian children residing in Indian country because under title IV-D, only States are eligible to receive Federal funds to operate IV-D programs under Federal regulations which, as a practical matter, all but prohibits them from providing services to Indian children on reservations. Because of this, Indian children have lost, and will continue to lose, vitally-needed services.

Mr. President, there is a great need for child support enforcement funding and services in Indian country. There are approximately 557 federally-recognized Indian tribes and Alaska Native villages in the United States. According to the most recent Bureau of Census data, children under the age of 18 make up the largest age group of Indians. Approximately 20.5 percent of American Indians and Alaska Natives are under the age of 10 compared to 14 percent for the Nation's total population. In addition, one out of every five Indian households are headed by single females. This data reveals that the need for coordinated child support enforcement and service delivery in Indian country exceeds the need in the rest of America.

There are also jurisdictional barriers to effective service delivery under IV-D programs on Indian reservations. Federal courts have held that Indian tribes, not States, have authority over Indian child support enforcement issues and paternity establishment of tribal members residing and working on the reservation. These jurisdictional safeguards, although necessary, have hampered State child support agencies in their efforts to negotiate agreements for the provision of services or funding to Indian tribal governments. The types of services provided under title IV-D include genetic blood testing and other measures used to establish paternity, and the establishment and enforcement of child support obligations through wage withholdings and tax intercepts. These activities fall within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Indian tribes for reservation residents. Yet there is no mechanism to enable tribes to receive Federal funding and assistance to conduct these activities.

This amendment in no way forces or compels an Indian tribe or State to act, nor does it affect well-established State or tribal jurisdiction to establish paternity or support orders. It merely recognizes the problems of child support collection and distribution between States and tribes as they exist under the current system. Simply put, this amendment encourages cooperative agreements between two governments to satisfy the goals and purposes of uniform child support enforcement. Let me just point out that some of these agreements are already in place in States like Washington and Arizona.

State administrators, such as in my own State, have attempted to meet the goals of uniform child support enforcement by extending their efforts to Indian country, but the administrative and jurisdictional hurdles make it all but impossible to get these services out to the children in need. These obstacles have led to costly litigation. The ability of State governments to work with tribal governments to provide these services is quite limited because Indian tribes are not mentioned in title IV-D. The amendment would clarify that Indian children are entitled to the same protections from deadbeat dads as all other children in our country.

Mr. President, this problem is not new to those involved in State child support enforcement agencies or national organizations concerned with these issues. For instance, in 1992, the American Bar Association and the Interstate Commission on Child Support Enforcement recognized the problems created by the omission of Indian tribes from the title IV-D legislation. In fact, the American Bar Association issued a handbook for States and tribes to use in attempting to negotiate State/tribal cooperative agreements for child support enforcement. Also in an extensive report issued in 1992, the Interstate Commission on Child Support Enforcement recommended that the Congress address this problem in Federal legislation. Until now, nothing has been done to implement this recommendation.

More recently, I received a letter from the President of the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators in support of the amendment I am offering. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the letter appear in the RECORD following my remarks.

I will also say that there are several other weaknesses in our welfare reform bill that I remain very concerned about, issues raised by Indian tribes that have not been adequately addressed. The amendment I am offering does not address those concerns. But I want to take this opportunity to briefly outline the deficiencies I see.

The welfare reform legislation we have before us eliminates the Child Protection Block Grant Program. I am concerned because the elimination of this program takes away the funding that tribes currently receive under the title IV-B child welfare programs.

Currently tribes receive funding under the title IV-B, subpart 1 program, known as child welfare services. The Secretary is directed to make grants to tribes, but the law does not specify a particular amount. Previous HHS regulations were very restrictive, and required that only those tribes which contracted under the Indian Self-Determination Act for all BIA social services were eligible for the IV-B, subpart 1 program. The result was that relatively few tribes were able to access this program. But HHS has recently revised, and greatly improved, the regulations for funding to tribes. Beginning in fiscal year 1996, HHS changed the IV-B Subpart 1 regulations to drop the requirement that only those tribes which contract for BIA social services would be eligible. The new regulations also increased the weight given to tribes in the formula, and they combined the IV-B incentive funds with the regular program, thus making more money available. Tribes are still in the process of applying for Title IV-B, subpart 1 funds under the new regulations. HHS Region X reports that the fiscal year 1996 applications from tribes thus far represent a 3-fold increase over those of 2 years ago. And they expect more tribes to apply before the end of the fiscal year.

Tribes also receive under current law a statutory 1 percent allocation under the title IV-B, subpart 2, Family Preservation and Support Services. But the welfare reform bill under consideration in the Senate today removes all funding for the child protection block grant program, meaning that Indian tribes will likely lose these funds.

The House version of the bill, however, does provide for funding for the Child Protection Block Grant, including Indian tribes. Under the House bill, there are two streams of funding for the Child Protection Block Grant. First, under the House bill, Indian tribes would receive 1 percent of funds under the mandatory money, or about \$2.4 million annually. And tribes would be authorized to receive .36 percent, or about $\frac{1}{3}$ of 1 percent of the discretionary stream of funding. If the discretionary program is fully appropriated, tribes would receive about \$1 million under this section of the Child Protection Block Grant. This .36 percent reflects the amount tribes received under the very restrictive title IV-B, subpart 1 regulations.

I urge the conferees to adopt a figure which would reflect the amount of IV-B, Subpart 1 funds tribes would receive under the new regulations. As a rule, the relative funding levels provided to Indian tribes should, at the very least, not be reduced below previous levels. I have refrained at this time from offering amendments in the Senate in the hope that the conferees will ensure that Indian tribes are at least held harmless on these funds in the final version of the bill at conference. I urge the conferees to adopt the House approach in providing direct funding to tribes under the Child Protection Block Grant. We should make the funding under the discretionary program consistent with the mandatory funding in the Child Protection block grant and provide at least 1 percent for tribes.

With that, Mr. President, I ask that my colleagues accept the amendment I am offering today that would allow States and Indian tribes to cooperate on child support enforcement activities.

There being no objection, the letter referred to was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT ADMINISTRATORS, July 18, 1996.

Re Senator McCain's Senate Floor amendment to Senate bill 1956, the Balanced Budget Reconciliation Act.

Hon. JOHN MCCAIN, Chairman, Senate Committee on Indian Affairs,

Hon. WILLIAM V. ROTH, Chairman, Senate Finance Committee,

Hon. PETE V. DOMENICI, Chairman, Senate Budget Committee, Washington, DC

GENTLEMEN: I am writing you on behalf of the National Council of State Child Support Enforcement Administrators (NCSCSEA) in reference to the amendment offered on the Senate floor by Senator McCain regarding child support enforcement services to Native Americans.

The amendment has been reviewed by the members of NCSCSEA's Committee on Native American Children. Although not all members of the Committee have responded on the amendment, a majority of the Committee members have indicated their support of it. Therefore, I feel comfortable expressing NCSCSEA's support for this amendment.

We feel this is an important step toward the goal of providing all children the benefits of child support enforcement. On behalf of NCSCSEA, I want to express our appreciation to Senator McCain for his efforts on this important issue.

Sincerely,

LESLIE L. FRYE,
President.

AMENDMENT NO. 4909

(Purpose: To require a State plan for foster care and adoption assistance to provide for the protection of the rights of families, using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children separated from their parents where such relatives meet the relevant State child protection standards)

At the end of chapter 7, of subtitle A, of title II, add the following:

SEC. __. KINSHIP CARE.

Section 471(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 671(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (16);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (17) and inserting "; and"; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(18) provides that States shall give preference to an adult relative over a non-related caregiver when determining a placement for a child, provided that the relative caregiver meets all relevant State child protection standards."

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, each year, scores of abused, neglected, and abandoned children are herded into the world of child protection to be cared for by strangers. For many of these children, foster care will be a refuge, for others, a nightmare. Being separated from a parent is never easy, but we can make the transition smoother by looking to relatives when a child must be removed from his home.

And so I wish, with my colleague from Oregon, to introduce the kinship care amendment. This amendment encourages States to use adult relatives as the preferred placement option for children separated from their parents. We are introducing this amendment because we feel strongly that if a child has to be separated from their parents for a period of time, that separation should be as smooth as possible.

Kinship care is a time honored tradition in most cultures. Care of children by kin is strongly tied to family preservation. These relationships may stabilize family situations, ensure the protection of children, and prevent the need to separate children from their parents and place them in a formal foster care arrangement within the child welfare system.

Yet, rather than encourage relative or kinship care some States have made it increasingly difficult for relatives to provide care for their own. Immense financial, emotional, and regulatory challenges are often barriers willing kinship caregivers.

The amendment I am offering is consistent with current law. The Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980, Public Law 96-272, requires that when children are separated from their parents and placed in the custody of a public child welfare agency, the State must place them in the least restrictive alternative available. While relatives are not expressly mentioned, this requirement has been interpreted by many child welfare practitioners as a preference for placement with relatives when separation from parents must occur.

Mr. President, this amendment is also consistent with previous positions I have taken on this matter. In S. 919, the 1995 amendments to the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act which was passed unanimously by the Labor Committee, includes a kinship care demonstration project. This demonstration project, which is administered by the Secretary of HHS, awards grants to public entities to assist in developing or implementing procedures using adult relatives as the preferred placement for children removed from their home, when those relatives are found to be capable of providing a safe, nurturing environment for the child.

Additionally, S. 1904, the Project for American Renewal, includes The Kinship Care Act which creates a $30 million demonstration program for States to use adult relatives as the preferred placement option for children separated from their parents.

Mr. President, this country is truly facing a very serious crisis concerning many of our children.

By the end of 1992, 442,000 children were in foster care, up from 276,000 in 1985, at a Federal cost in fiscal year 1993 of $2.6 billion. The population of children in foster care is expected to exceed 500,000 by the end of 1996.

The National Foster Parent Association reports that between 1985 and 1990, the number of foster families declined by 27 percent while the number of children in out of home care increased by 47 percent.

Children placed for foster care with relatives grew from 18 percent to 31 percent of the foster care caseload from 1986 through 1990 in 25 States that supplied information to the Department of Health and Human Services.

Children in kinship care are less likely to experience multiple placements than their counterparts in family foster care. Of the children who entered California's foster care system in 1988, for example, only about 23 percent of those placed initially with kin experienced another placement, while 58 percent of children living with unrelated foster families experienced at least one subsequent placement during the following 3.5 years.

This amendment will: Ensure that grandparents and other adult relatives will be first in line to care for children who would otherwise be forced into foster care or adoption; strengthen the ability of families to rely on their own family members as resources. It will also help soften the trauma that occurs when children are separated from their parents. Living with relatives that they know and trust will give these children more immediate stability during this painful transition; and provide a hopeful alternative to traditional foster care.

I hope that all my colleagues can see the critical importance of ensuring that children who are in need of out-of-home placement will be placed with relatives who they know and trust, rather than strangers. Please join me and Senator WYDEN in supporting the kinship care amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, those amendments now are agreed to.

The amendments (Nos. 4906 through 4909), en bloc, were agreed to.

Mr. ROTH. I yield back the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4910

(Purpose: To ensure needy children receive noncash assistance to provide for basic needs until the Federal 5-year time limit applies)

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk under the previous order and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Louisiana [Mr. BREAUX] proposes an amendment numbered 4910.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Section 408(a)(8) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 2103(a)(1), is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(E) EFFECTS OF DENIAL OF CASH ASSISTANCE.—

"(i) PROVISION OF VOUCHERS.—In the event that a family is denied cash assistance because of a time limit imposed under this paragraph—

"(I) in the event that a family is denied cash assistance because of a time limit imposed at the option of a State that is less than 60 months, a State shall provide vouchers to the family in accordance with clause (iii); and “(II) in the event that a family is denied cash assistance because of the 60 month time limit imposed pursuant to this paragraph, a State may provide vouchers to the family in accordance with such clause.

“(ii) OTHER ASSISTANCE.—The—

“(I) eligibility of a family that receives a voucher under clause (i) for any other Federal or federally assisted program based on need, shall be determined without regard to the voucher; and “(II) such a family shall be considered to be receiving cash assistance in the amount of the assistance provided in the voucher for purposes of determining the amount of any assistance provided to the family under any other such program.

“(iii) VOUCHER REQUIREMENTS.—A voucher provided to a family under clause (i) shall be based on a State’s assessment of the needs of a child of the family and shall be—

“(I) determined based on the basic subsistence needs of the child;

“(II) designed appropriately to pay third parties for shelter, goods, and services received by the child; and

“(III) payable directly to such third parties.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President and my colleagues, this is the amendment that has been referred to as the so-called voucher amendment which we have authored.

I would point out that the legislation which originally came to the Senate from the House was much more reasonable in this area than the bill that is now before the Senate, which is the reason for this amendment.

What we are basically talking about is the situation of what happens to children after we cut off a parent from a welfare program. Everybody wants to cut the parent off if they are not doing what they are supposed to be doing. We want to really be tough on parents. We are really going to be tough about work. We want to put work first. But we should not put children last.

That is what I am trying to get at. I do not think there is a lot of difference between the position of my Republican colleagues and Democrats on this issue. We have time limits on the bill. Everybody agrees we ought to have time limits now. At least most people agree we ought to have time limits. We said in this legislation there was going to be a maximum period of time someone could be on welfare, and after that, they are off.

A State under our legislation can pick a time limit of shorter than 5 years. They can make it 24 months. My State is probably going to do that. Many other States are going to make it a lot shorter than 5 years.

So we are saying to parents, we are going to be very tough on you; we are going to make you realize that welfare is not forever, that it is temporary. We want you to get a job. We want you to go to work. We want you to earn a check and not just get a check.

That is what all of this debate is basically about, trying to get people off welfare into the work force. I agree with that. I think most people in this body share that desire as well. Let us face it. Most people on welfare are not parents. Most people on welfare are children. And the majority of those children are young children. The majority of those children cannot get a job. They cannot work. Most of them do not even go to school because they are too young.

So the point is, when we get tough on parents, fine, but how many people want to get tough on innocent children who did not ask to be born? I think we as a Nation have a responsibility to make sure that while we get as tough as we can on parents, we do not harm innocent children at the same time.

Here is the problem. Under the Republican plan that is now pending before the Senate, if, after 5 years, a person is taken off welfare, there can be no assistance to children. There cannot be any vouchers to children. There can be no noncash assistance to children after 5 years. They are gone. I can agree that the parent may be gone as far as Federal assistance or State assistance. I do not agree that a young, innocent child, maybe 2 or 3 years old, should be neglected and forgotten by their country.

That is the principal problem, because it forbids any type of assistance even to children, which are the majority of the people on welfare. Two-thirds of all people on AFDC assistance are children. In my State of Louisiana, 34.5 percent of all children are living in conditions below the poverty line—34.5 percent of the children living in Louisiana are at the poverty level or lower. So why should I as a Senator say that after the parent is taken off welfare, I am also for taking the child off any help or assistance?

Is that what America is all about? I suggest it is not. We ought to be talking about putting children first in what we are trying to do for the future. The Republican plan, if the State takes a 2, 3 or 4-year period, allows them to give assistance but does not require it. And this is Federal money.

In my State, the State puts up 28 percent, and the Federal Government puts up 72 percent. Should we not, as managers of the money we raise, say to the States they should use those funds to take care of innocent children?

So the Breaux amendment which is now pending says to States, after 5 years, they can use funds that they are getting in their block grant to help children, and it requires the States to do that if they pick a period to cut off the parent in a period shorter than 5 years.

Let me tell you what we do with the amendment. It is absolutely, totally flexible in what it would allow. No. 1, the State, as they do when they select people on welfare, does an assessment. They do an assessment that determines whether this family should be on welfare. They know what the income level is; they know if they have a house or a car or truck or clothes or what have you. They make an assessment. They decide whether the person is eligible for welfare assistance or not. They know things about the family already.

What my amendment simply says is that a voucher under conditions that we have set out—for instance, mandating it if the period is less than 5 years—shall be based on the State’s assessment of the needs of the child. The State makes the determination that the child is needy. If they make a determination that the child is in need, then that State will pay to third parties, for shelter, for goods, for services, clothing for the child if they need clothes, diapers if it is an infant and they cannot afford diapers in the family, a crib or medicine. How many people want to say we are not going to provide medicine for an innocent child because we kicked the child off welfare? How many people want to say we do not want to pay for medicine you need to survive? Or how many people want to say if the child wants to go to school and has no money to buy school supplies, that we, as a nation, are going to say to the children of America we are not going to help you buy school supplies to go? That is all we are saying.

We are telling the State: You make the assessments. You determine if there is a need. If you determine there is a need, for heaven’s sake, let us make sure we take care of the child. Not with cash. There is no money here. We are talking about in-kind vouchers so they could go to a third party: Maybe it is a Wal-Mart, maybe it is the local drug store, maybe it is a grocery store to get the food, but to take care of the child. The parent does not get the cash. There is no cash. The third party would get it, under my amendment, payable directly to third parties. The third party gets the money and uses those funds to take care of the children who did not ask to be born, who are innocent victims here. And we better start treating them better or we are going to have more people on welfare, not less.

Are we going to allow children to get sick and just neglect them? Some say there is Federal money available under title 20. Great, $2 billion a year and it goes to the elderly and goes to programs like Meals on Wheels and child care and everything else. Some will say this title 20, they can use it for that. “There ain’t no money left.” There is no money in title 20. It has been frozen practically since we instituted the program. If they have food stamps, then the State determines that if the child is getting food stamps they do not need any of this.

Really, what we are saying is let us be fair and treat children fair in this country. Let us be as tough as we possibly can on the parent who refuses to work. But for heaven’s sake, we as a nation owe something to the children of America. The Breaux amendment, I think, would do just that.

I reserve any time I may still have left.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I yield myself 5 minutes.

Mr. President, this is a nice idea that is unnecessary. The current legislation very well takes care of what problem the Senator from Louisiana has laid out in his vouchers for children amendment. The Senator from Louisiana suggests, and correctly suggests, in the first 5 years of the program, when someone enters the program, under the Republican bill the States are allowed—are allowed to provide a voucher program for those who disqualify themselves, usually, in most cases, because they refuse to comply with the law there, by not working. I should say those are people who are still eligible for a voucher. The States can use Federal dollars to provide those vouchers. OK? So it allows the State to provide a voucher using Federal dollars.

What the Senator from Louisiana wants to do is, frankly, an additional cost to the State and not a requirement of the State. What he requires the State to do is an assessment after someone has broken their eligibility for welfare within the 5-year time period. He requires the State to do an assessment of the family to determine whether the children in that family are in need now, now that mom has decided not to go to work.

So, an additional assessment is necessary under his plan. So they are required to do the assessment. What they are not required to do is provide a voucher. It is up to the State whether they want to provide that voucher or not. That, to me, is a cost and the State will say: Look, if you are going to make us do the assessment we will spend the money we would have spent maybe providing the vouchers, doing the assessment and not help anybody. So I think it is well intentioned but it could actually have the reverse effect, of getting fewer vouchers approved for those people within that 5-year window.

On the other side of the 5-year window, again I think the Senator from Louisiana has missed the mark. He is correct, his amendment allows States to use the block grant funds for the AFDC block grant. It allows them to use those funds for vouchers after 5 years. That is what his amendment does. Our bill does not allow you to use the block grant funds in the AFDC block grant, now it is called the TANF block grant, for vouchers. But what we do allow under current law is to use title 20 block grant money for that provision of services.

So there are several block grants we are giving to the State. One is the block grant to the States for social services. It is an existing block grant and there is nothing in this law—in fact I will read it. “Services which are directed at the goals set forth in this section, 2001, include, but are not limited to . . .” and it includes child care services and a whole bunch of other things. It is very clear within this block grant, the Governors, the legislature if they want to provide it, can give Federal dollars for a voucher program after the 5-year time limit is expired. They have Federal dollars right here to do it.

We are all talking about the same pot of money. The Senator from Louisiana does not put up more money to provide vouchers after 5 years. We have the same pots of money here. All we are suggesting is we want—and here is the difference. If you want to know the difference between what the Senator from Louisiana wants to do and what the Republican bill wants to do—I should put it this way.

The Republicans want all the block-granted funds for AFDC to go in the first 5 years, to concentrate that money to get people off welfare. We do not want any of those funds diverted to maintain people on welfare. We want all that money spent in the first 5 years. We believe we want every conceivable dollar we can get to get people up and going and off so we do not have to worry about the next 5 years.

By spending less the first 5 you guarantee people will be there at the end, and we do not want to do that. We want to make sure it is all spent. If there is a problem after the 5-year period, then we will say: Look, there are some other Federal dollars out here. If you want to use those dollars, you are certainly welcome to use those dollars. In addition, obviously there is nothing in either of these bills that prohibits the State from using State dollars to fund a voucher program after the 5-year period.

Mr. FORD. Will the distinguished Senator yield for one question?

Mr. SANTORUM. I will be happy to yield.

Mr. FORD. Did the Republican welfare bill that was passed last year, the one that was proposed last year, have in it the same thing that the Senator from Louisiana is trying to propose now? In this bill have you restricted it more than the previous bill?

Mr. SANTORUM. You have two questions there, actually, in order to give the answer.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will say to the Senator, the time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. SANTORUM. I yield myself an additional 30 seconds.

It is restrictive in some respects; in some it is not. We do not require in the first 5 years—in the original bill you have to do these reviews and have to provide some service, so that is not the same. The Breaux amendment in fact goes further. In the second 5 years there was an allowance in the conference report, I believe, and I can check on that, that after 5 years they could use Federal funds.

Mr. FORD. I say to the Senator I do not believe—you allowed noncash—

Mr. SANTORUM. Correct.

Mr. FORD. At the discretion of the State. Now you are not allowing it, you are cutting it off at the end of 5 years.

Mr. SANTORUM. I think that was in the conference report and not the Senate bill, but I will check on that.

Mr. FORD. It was somewhat different. You allowed it before and now you say you cannot.

Mr. SANTORUM. But we do not go as far as, I believe in the wrong direction, the Breaux amendment goes at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, how much time do we have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana has 2 minutes and 50 seconds.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, let me just make a couple of comments. I do not want to belabor this point. When the Senate votes tomorrow, it is going to be faced with the question of how do we do welfare reform? Do we do welfare reform by being tough on parents who refuse to work? Or are we going to be tough on kids who do not have a choice in life?

I think this country, as strong as we are, should be as tough as we possibly can on deadbeat parents or parents who do not want to work or refuse to work, whatever the reason. But we should not take it out on innocent children who did not ask to be born.

This amendment simply says that, after a family has been taken off AFDC assistance, we should at least allow the States to use their block grant money they already get to pay for vouchers to give to third parties to provide for the needs of children whose parents have been kicked off AFDC assistance.

This is a child, and most of the people on welfare are children. Over two-thirds are children, and those children are poor children. I am merely saying with my amendment that we should at least allow—and the Republican bill says it is forbidden—at least allow a State to use its block grant money to aid a child with in-kind assistance, not with cash dollars to the parent, not with cash money to the child, but in-kind contributions to help that child survive, in many cases in terms of getting food, in terms of getting clothing, in terms of getting diapers, yes, or in terms of getting medicine.

The Republican bill forbids it. This amendment says we allow the State to do it. It simply says, if the State is going to cut them off after a shorter period of time, we ought to require them to do that. The State makes a determination whether there is a need. The State makes a determination what kind of benefits they get, how much and for how long. This is truly in keeping with the block grant concept that the States should have the maximum flexibility in this particular area.

The National Governors' Association endorses this, and a majority of them are Republicans. They said, “Don't prevent us from doing this if we want to do it.” That is the NGA position. They have sent a formal, written letter to those of us on the committee which says, "Please do not prohibit us from helping children if we want to help children."

The Republican bill is absolutely contrary to the NGA position. Even more, it is contrary to what this country is about, and that is give an opportunity for children to survive.

I think without this amendment we make a very strong statement that we are going to be so tough we are going to step on the rights and futures of the children of this country. That is not what this Congress is about; that is not what this country is about. I suggest this amendment be adopted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from Louisiana has expired.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I want to make two quick responses. No. 1, the Senator from Kentucky is absolutely right, it was in the conference report, but I tell the Senator from Kentucky, it was not in the House bill, it was not in the Senate bill, and I have been informed by staff it was a drafting error in the conference report. It was a mistake on the part of the drafters in putting that in. It was not intended policy by either body to include what the Breaux amendment does.

I think one of the reasons is—and I get back to the fact that there are Federal dollars out there for the States to use for that last 5 years, and I think that is more than generous and complies with what the Governors want to do, which is to have Federal dollars available for the voucher program after the 5-year period.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, may I just say to the Senator from Pennsylvania, it is strange to blame staff.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, how much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Two minutes 30 seconds remain.

The Senator from Delaware is recognized.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I reiterate what my distinguished colleague from Pennsylvania has said. First of all, the States are still free to use title XX money for whatever purpose they see fit. So it is not accurate to say that funds are shut off so that children cannot be helped.

I point out that even with the 5-year time limit to implement the important welfare reforms we are considering, families receiving Government assistance will still be eligible for more than 80 means-tested programs. That is quite a few. These programs range from food stamps, WIC, health care, to section 8 low-income housing. In other words, placing a 5-year time limit on implementing our welfare reform package is not Government pulling away a lifeline; rather, it is Government encouraging people to swim and giving them the time necessary to learn.

Mr. President, I believe we must keep the 5-year time limit, and I encourage my colleagues to see that we do. I encourage them to join me in seeing that real and necessary reforms take place in a real and positive way.

Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time on the amendment has expired.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I make a point of order against the Breaux amendment on the grounds that it is nongermane under sections 305 and 310 of the Budget Act.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act, I move to waive all applicable points of order under that act for the purposes of the Breaux amendment.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The vote will be delayed under the previous order.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, what is the order of business? Was there agreement as to the order? I was not sure whether the Senator from North Carolina—I am told he has 3 minutes; is that correct? I do not want to usurp his order.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I think the order is Senator ABRAHAM.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair will clarify it was not a unanimous consent agreement, it was a general understanding that the Senator from North Carolina would proceed.

Mr. BIDEN. As I understand it, Mr. President, it was a general understanding that after the Senator from North Carolina finished, the Senators from Pennsylvania and Delaware would have the floor to offer their amendment. That was my understanding. I know it is not a UC.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I have Senator FAIRCLOTH, Senator BIDEN, Senator Santorum.

Mr. BIDEN. I assume we will do that. If we do not, I will not yield the floor.

So I ask unanimous consent that upon the completion of the 6 minutes on the Faircloth amendment, then myself and Senator SPECTER be recognized to offer our amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to that?

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I have been trying to get—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator reserve the right to object?

Mr. WELLSTONE. Reserving the right to object, can I ask unanimous consent that I be in order after the Biden-Specter amendment?

Mr. SANTORUM. No. I object.

Mr. DOMENICI. We already placed the Senator from Minnesota and indicated when he is going to come up. We indicated that at least informally.

Mr. WELLSTONE. When is that? I might ask.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair informs the Senator from Minnesota, the Senator from New Mexico is correct. Under a general agreement, not a unanimous-consent agreement, the Senator is due to be recognized after the Senator from Missouri, Senator ASHCROFT.

The Chair will clarify: Senators FAIRCLOTH, BIDEN, SANTORUM, HARKIN, ASHCROFT, WELLSTONE, GRAHAM and DODD.

Mr. DOMENICI. Wellstone has two.

Mr. FORD. Wellstone has two.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I am ready to proceed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4911

(Purpose: To address multi-generational welfare dependency)

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I have an amendment that I send to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Carolina [Mr. FAIRCLOTH] proposes an amendment numbered 4911.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 245, line 22, insert "and subparagraph (C)," after "(B)".

on page 249, between lines 14 and 15, insert the following:

"(C) REQUIREMENT THAT ADULT RELATIVE OR GUARDIAN NOT HAVE A HISTORY OF ASSISTANCE.—A State shall not use any part of the grant paid under section 403 to provide cash assistance to an individual described in subparagraph (B)(ii) if such individual resides with a parent, guardian, or other adult relative who is receiving assistance under a State program funded under this part and has been receiving this assistance for a 3-year period.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, this amendment is intended to address the problem of multigenerational welfare dependency. In other words, this is an attempt to cut off the money, to break the cycle of welfare dependency.

The bill before us requires that minor children be required to live with the parent to receive assistance. I agree with this. But, unfortunately, in many cases that parent or, as it might turn out to be, grandparent to the child to be born, has a history of dependency herself and has continuously for a long time been dependent upon welfare and Aid to Families with Dependent Children, to cash payments. My amendment says simply that if the parent is currently receiving welfare, and has been for a 3-year period, that the minor may not receive cash benefits.

This amendment is not intended to reduce benefits. States are not prohibited from giving noncash benefits. This amendment will simply prevent more cash from going to a household with a clear history of welfare dependency. In its very simplest terms, if the grandmother of this child to be born or that has just been born has been on welfare for 3 continuous years, then the mother of the child cannot receive a check, a cash check benefit. She can receive all other benefits, food stamps, diapers, whatever would be appropriate, medical care. But two cash checks cannot go to the same household.

Mr. President, I think this is what we are trying to do, to cut out the dependency upon direct Government taxpayers' cash money. This will do it in this case. I yield the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from North Carolina does have 30 seconds remaining. Who yields time?

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I do not believe there is anyone on our side who would like to take the 3 minutes. I understood the Senator from North Carolina yielded back his time.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. I yield back my time.

Mr. FORD. On behalf of the floor manager, I yield back the 3 minutes on our side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded back. All time on the amendment has expired.

Mr. BIDEN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

AMENDMENT NO. 4912

(Purpose: To provide for a complete substitute.)

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Delaware [Mr. BIDEN], for himself and Mr. SPECTER, proposes an amendment numbered 4912.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, the pending amendment is the substance of a bill which the distinguished Senator from Delaware, Senator BIDEN, and I introduced some time ago, Senate bill 1867. This bill was introduced as a companion bill to H.R. 3266, which was a bipartisan bill introduced by Congressman CASTLE of Delaware and Congressman TANNER.

The purpose of this effort was to try to find a bipartisan way to move to agreement on welfare reform. At that time, in the context of the muddled situation which was then presented, welfare reform was stalled because, after the Senate approved a welfare reform bill by a vote of 87 to 12, and the House passed its own bill, and then the conference report produced legislation which was divided pretty much along party lines, when the conference report came out of the Congress that bill was vetoed by the President.

There has been a general consensus in America that welfare reform is necessary with President Clinton's famous statement, "We need to reform welfare as we know it." There has been a very considerable effort in both Houses to have welfare reform. When welfare reform was stalled, Congressman CASTLE and Congressman TANNER introduced the bipartisan bill in the House, and Senator BIDEN and I followed suit with a bipartisan bill in the Senate.

Thereafter, the Budget Committee reported out a new welfare reform bill, Senate bill 1956. Having started with a bipartisan effort with Senator BIDEN, I intend to continue that. It is my view that, in a side-by-side comparison of the committee report contrasted with the original Biden-Specter bill, our bill is preferable, although candidly they are very close.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at the conclusion of my remarks, a 7-page summary of the comparison of the welfare reform proposals, of the budget reconciliation bill, S. 1956, compared to the Biden-Specter bill be printed in the RECORD, together with a 1-page summary of the major differences in the welfare proposals.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. SPECTER. Briefly, Mr. President, I will itemize six of these issues which I believe show the superiority of the Biden-Specter bill over the committee report as embraced in Senate bill 1956.

The first difference is that the budget reconciliation bill eliminates child-care safety standards from existing law, whereas the Biden-Specter bill maintains those child-care safety standards, which I submit are very important.

The second significant difference in provisions is that in the Biden-Specter bill there is an individual responsibility contract, while the budget reconciliation bill has none. This individual responsibility contract is an agreement entered into by the Government on one side and the welfare recipient on the other, which specifies the responsibilities of each, which I submit is a significant step forward and is desirable to have in the legislation.

The third significant activity is that the Biden-Specter bill provides funding for work-activities funding, which is a very important element. There is some contention that this may put us out of order in terms of funding, but it is my understanding that on the Castle-Tanner bill, the identical bill, there was a budget estimate which puts us within the appropriate range.

The fourth significant difference is on the safety net provisions. The budget reconciliation bill has the States prohibited from using Federal funds to provide vouchers after the 5-year time limit. Under Biden-Specter, there is a State option for such benefits, to both children and adults, after 5 years. It is my submission that leaving the State option is preferable to having an absolute Federal prohibition in line with the general theory of leaving the State options.

The fifth significant difference relates to food stamps, where there is a retention of the entitlement under the Biden-Specter bill, contrasted with the budget reconciliation bill, which gives a State option for a block grant.

Overall, the Biden-Specter bill does not contain entitlements. But on this one item, food stamps, there is a retention of this existing entitlement because of our consideration that food stamps are so important, so basic that there ought not to be the option for the States to eliminate food stamps.

The Sixth item relates to immigrant exceptions, where the Biden-Specter bill retains the exemptions or has an identical provision as to the retention of immigrant exceptions under the budget reconciliation bill as to exempting refugees, veterans, and military personnel. But we add to it disabled children, victims of domestic abuse, and all children in the case of food stamps.

Mr. President, we are in a very complex matter here. It is my hope that the Congress will adopt welfare reform legislation which will be signed by the President and that the gridlock will not continue. In maintaining my support for Senate bill 1867, I understand that the budget reconciliation bill, Senate bill 1956 has the support of a majority of Republicans, but having started all this effort to have a bipartisan legislative proposal with Congressmen Castle and Tanner joining Senator BIDEN and I, I intend to stay there.

I do believe there are some beneficial provisions which are included in Biden-Specter which are not present in the budget reconciliation bill. For these reasons, I urge Members to support this amendment which Senator BIDEN and I are proposing this evening.

EXHIBIT 1

COMPARISON OF WELFARE REFORM PROPOSALS

	Budget reconciliation (S. 1956, as approved by Finance and reported by Budget)	Bipartisan Reform Act (Biden-Specter, S. 1867) (Tanner-Castle, H.R. 3266)
GRANTS TO STATES
Cash Assistance Block Grant	Ends AFDC entitlement and combines AFDC, EA, and JOBS into a block grant to the states. Funding totals $16.4 billion annually.	Same.

	Budget reconciliation (S. 1956, as approved by Finance and reported by Budget)	Bipartisan Reform Act (Biden-Specter, S. 1867) (Tanner-Castle, H.R. 3266)
Maintenance-of-Effort	80% of FY 94 spending on AFDC and related programs. Percentage could be lowered to as low as 72% for "high performance" states (see performance bonus section below).	85% of FY 94 spending on AFDC and related programs. Percentage could range anywhere from 80% to 90%, depending on a state's success in meeting the work participation requirements.
Supplemental Grant	$800 million fund for states with high population growth and/or below average AFDC benefits.	Same.
Loan Fund	$1.7 billion loan fund, which must be repaid with interest within 3 years	Same.
Contingency Funds	$2 billion contingency fund for states with high unemployment rates or increases in food stamp caseload. State maximum equal to 20% of block grant. States must maintain 100% of state spending in order to tap contingency funds.	Same, except (1) minor differences in triggers to qualify; (2) if the fund is exhausted as a result of a national or regional recession, additional money would be added to the fund; and (3) state maximum equal to 40% of block grant minus the supplemental grant a state receives.
Work Activities Funding	No provision	$3 billion work fund available beginning in FY 1999 for states that maintain 100% of state spending on work programs and match federal funds at the Medicaid rate.
Illegitimacy Bonus	States that reduced their out-of-wedlock birth rates without increasing their abortion rates would be eligible for additional funding equal to 5% to 10% of block grant.	Same.
Performance Bonus	$200 million per year, beginning in FY 1999, available to states with "high performance," as determined by a formula to be developed by HHS. Each state's performance bonus could not exceed 5% of block grant.	No provision.
CHILD CARE
Child Care Block Grant	$13.8 billion over 6 years in guaranteed funding (annual amount increases each year). An additional $1 billion per year is authorized and subject to annual appropriations.	Same.
Child Care Maintenance of Effort	To receive funds above base allocation ($9.3 billion), states must maintain 100% of FY 94 or FY 95 spending on child care, whichever is greater, and match federal funds at the Medicaid rate.	Same, except states must maintain 100% of FY 95 spending on child care.
Transfer of Funds	States may transfer up to 30% of cash block grant to child care	States may transfer up to 20% of cash block grant to child care.
Health and Safety Standards	Eliminates health/safety standards for child care providers	Maintains health/safety standards for child care providers.
TIME LIMITS
Time Limits	5 years (less at a state's option, but no less than 2 years)	Same.
Hardship Exception	States can exempt 20% of caseload from the time limit for reasons of hardship or abuse/extreme cruelty.	Same.
Safety Net	States prohibited from using federal funds to provide vouchers after the five-year time limit.	If states have time limit of less than 5 years, in-kind/voucher benefits must be provided to kids. State option for such benefits to both kids and adults after 5 years.
WORK
Individual Responsibility Contract	No provision	To be eligible for benefits, individuals must sign an individual responsibility contract.
Work Requirements	Welfare recipients must work after two years of receiving assistance	Same.
Work Participation Rate	States must have the following percentages of welfare recipients working: FY 97—25%; FY 98—30%; FY 99—35%; FY 00—40%; FY 01—45%; FY02—50%.	States must have the following percentages of welfare recipients working: FY 97—20%; FY 98—25%; FY 99—30%; FY 00—35%; FY 01—40%; FY 02—50%.
Financial Penalties on States	States that failed to meet the work participation rate would lose 5% of their block grant in the first year, 10% in the second year, 15% in the third year, etc.	No provision. (See maintenance-of-effort section above.)
Hourly Work Requirements	To count as work, individuals would be required to work the following hours each week: FY 97-98—20; FY 99-25; FY 00-01—30; FY 02—35.	To count as work, individuals would be required to work the following hours each week: FY 97-98—20; FY 99—25.
Work Requirement Exemption	State option to exempt from work requirement those with children under age 1, with one-year lifetime aggregate exemption per family. Those with children under age 6 are required to work 20 hours per week.	Same, except there is no one-year aggregate lifetime cap per family.
Child Care Exemption	States cannot penalize those who refuse to work if they have children under age eleven and cannot find or cannot afford child care.	Same, except applies to those with children under age six.
Work Activities	"Work" is defined as employment; on-the-job training; work experience; community service; job search activities (for 4 weeks, or for 12 weeks if state unemployment exceeds national average); and vocational training (for 12 months and no more than 20 percent of caseload). Teenagers in secondary school would be considered "working."	Same. Also, individuals leaving welfare for work, and working at least 25 hours per week, would count toward the state participation requirement for six months.
TEENAGERS
Teen Parents	In order to receive cash assistance, unmarried teens under the age of 18 must stay in school and live at home or in another adult-supervised setting.	Same.
Denial of Benefits to Unmarried Minors	State option	Same.
Federal Strategy to Prevent Teen Pregnancies	Requires HHS to establish a strategy for preventing out-of-wedlock teen pregnancies and have a teen pregnancy prevention program in 25% of all U.S. communities.	Same.
OTHER CASH ASSISTANCE PROVISIONS
Family Cap	Federal mandate, with state ability to opt out	Same.
Existing Waivers	States with existing welfare waivers would have the option to continue to operate under their waivers, regardless of the provisions of this bill. However, funding for that state would be the amount under the block grant.	Same.
Transitional Medicaid	Provides Medicaid coverage during a one-year transition period for those who leave welfare for work as long as family income is below the poverty line.	Retains current law of one-year transition Medicaid coverage for all welfare recipients who leave welfare for work.
State Accountability	States must establish procedures to ensure that eligibility and benefits are determined in a fair and equitable manner—and that similar families are treated similarly. States must have due process procedures for those denied assistance.	Same, except that the federal government must approve state welfare plans and therefore has oversight on fairness and due process requirements.
CHILD SUPPORT
Licenses/Passports	Requires states to have laws suspending drivers, professional, occupation, and recreational licenses for overdue child support. Federal government will deny or suspend passports to those with arrears in excess of $5,000.	Same.
Paternity Establishment	Increases the paternity establishment rate from 75% to 90%. States that fail to meet this percentage would have their block grant reduced.	Same.
Distribution of Child Support	Beginning FY 1998, arrearages collected after family leaves welfare would be paid to family (unless collected through IRS intercept). Beginning FY 2001, pre-welfare arrearages would be paid to family (unless collected through IRS intercept). Ends $50 pass through.	Same.
Automation	States must have central registry of child support cases and support orders—and an automated directory of new hires. Also, states must operate a centralized unit to collect and disburse all child support orders. Increases funding for states for systems automation.	Same.
Individual Cooperation	Individuals receiving cash assistance who fail to cooperate in establishing paternity or collecting child support would have family benefit reduced at least 25%. States could deny all benefits to the family.	Same, except the minimum penalty would be the amount of family assistance attributable to the adult.
Interstate Enforcement	Requires states to enact Uniform Interstate Family Support Act and have expedited procedures for interstate cases. Creates forms for use in collection of interstate orders. Requires states to respond within 5 days to a request by another state for enforcement of an order.	Same.
Work Requirement	States must have procedures to ensure that noncustodial parents in arrears have a plan for payment or participate in work programs.	Same.
Grandparent Liability	State option to hold parents of noncustodial minor parent (the grandparents of the child receiving welfare) responsible for child support.	Same.
Health Care Support	Requires states to have procedures to ensure that all child support orders include the provision of health care benefits for the child.	Same.

	Budget reconciliation (S. 1956, as approved by Finance and reported by Budget)	Bipartisan Reform Act (Biden-Specter, S. 1867) (Tanner-Castle, H.R. 3266)
Access/Visitation	Creates grants for states to establish programs and systems of access and visitation for noncustodial parents.	Same.
SSI FOR CHILDREN
Eligibility	Eliminates comparable severity standard, Individual Functional Assessment (IFA), and references to maladaptive behavior. Establishes new definition of disability for children.	Same.
Grandfather Clause	All children currently receiving SSI benefits must be reevaluated under the new definition. But, no child currently receiving benefits would be disenrolled before June 30, 1997.	Same, except that the earliest disenrollment date is January 1, 1997.
Continuing Reviews	Disability reviews must be conducted at least every three years for children under age 18. Representative payees must prove that children are receiving treatment for their condition. Eligibility would be determined using adult disability definition within one year of turning 18.	Same.
Privately Insured, Institutionalized Children	Benefits limited to $30 per month	Same.
Deeming of Parents Income	No provision	Disregards some income of the parents of disabled children to provide a monthly benefit for those with lower incomes that is greater than those with higher incomes. Medicaid eligibility would be retained for those who lose benefits under this provision.
Fraud	Individuals who have fraudulently misrepresented their residence in order to receive welfare, food stamps, or SSI benefits in more than one state simultaneously would be ineligible for benefits for 10 years. Benefits would not be available to fugitive felons.	Same.
IMMIGRANTS
Food Stamps/SSI	Current and future immigrants barred from receiving food stamps and SSI until attaining citizenship or working 40 quarters. Exempts the following people: *Refugees (first 5 years only) *Veterans/Active duty military and their dependents.	Same, except following people also exempted: *Children (food stamps only); *Disabled children; *Victims of domestic abuse.
All Other Means Tested Programs	Five-year ban on means-tested benefits for new immigrants, with same exceptions as food stamps/SSI. Ban does not apply to the following programs: *Emergency medical care; *Emergency disaster relief; *Child nutrition; *Immunizations; *Testing and treatment for communicable diseases; *Foster care and adoption assistance; *Higher education loans and grants; *Title I education for disadvantaged children.	Same, except for the additional people exempted under food stamps/SSI. Also, ban does not apply to Medicaid (but sponsor's income would be deemed: see below).
Deeming	Income of immigrant's sponsor deemed to immigrant for all federal means-tested programs until citizenship or 40 quarters of work.	Extends current law deeming requirement to Medicaid program. (Thus, deeming applies to cash benefits plus Medicaid.)
State Flexibility	State option to deny or restrict benefits under Medicaid, Title XX, and welfare to immigrants. Same exceptions as food stamp/SSI.	Same, except for Medicaid.
Non-Profit Organizations	No provision	Immigrant provisions do not apply to any program operated by a non-profit organization.

MAJOR DIFFERENCES IN WELFARE PROPOSALS

	Budget reconciliation (S. 1956, as approved by Finance and reported by Budget)	Bipartisan Reform Act (Biden-Specter, S. 1867) (Tanner-Castle, H.R. 3266)
Work Activities Funding	No provision	$3 billion work fund available beginning in FY 1999 for states that maintain 100% of state spending on work programs.
Contingency Funds	Once the $2 billion contingency fund is exhausted, no more contingency money is available to states.	If the $2 billion contingency fund is exhausted as a result of a national or regional recession, additional money would be added.
Child Care Safety Standards	Eliminates	Maintains
Private Sector Work	No provision	Individuals leaving welfare for work, and working at least 25 hours per week, would count toward the state participation requirement for six months.
Safety Net	States prohibited from using federal funds to provide vouchers after five-year time limit.	If states have time limit of less than 5 years, in-kind/voucher benefits must be provided to kids. State option of such benefits to both kids and adults after 5 years.
Food Stamps	State option for a block grant	Retains existing entitlement.
Individual Responsibility Contract	No provision	To be eligible for benefits, individuals must sign an individual responsibility contract.
Transitional Medicaid	Provides Medicaid coverage for one year for those who leave welfare for work as long as family income is below the poverty line.	Retains current law of one-year transition Medicaid coverage for all welfare recipients who leave welfare for work.
Financial Penalty on States	States that failed to meet the work participation rate would lose 5% of their block grant in the first year, 10% in the second year, 15% in the third year, etc.	No financial penalty. But, state maintenance-of-effort for block grant funds would increase or decrease depending on whether state met work requirements.
Work Exemption for Children Under Age 1	Each family could only claim exemption for an aggregate 12 months	At a state option, families with child under age 1 could always be exempt from work requirements.
Immigrant Exemptions	Exempts refugees, veterans, and military personnel from the prohibitions on immigrant eligibility for federal benefits.	Also exempts disabled children, victims of domestic abuse, and all children in the case of food stamps.
Immigrant Eligibility for Medicaid	Bars immigrants from being eligible for Medicaid for five years; deems sponsor's income thereafter.	Always deems sponsor's income to determine eligibility, but not an outright ban for the first five years.

Note.—This table shows the major differences between the Budget Reconciliation bill and the Biden Amendment—the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act. It is not a complete listing of all differences in the two proposals.

Mr. SPECTER. I yield the floor.

Mr. BIDEN. For the benefit of my colleagues who are waiting in line to introduce their amendments, we had 45 minutes on this amendment, and we will not take that amount of time, but will probably take considerably less than half of that.

In offering this amendment with Senator SPECTER, the reason we offered it is I believe we have gotten off track on welfare reform. We need to return to bipartisanship on this issue and, quite frankly, on many others.

This amendment is the text of the only bipartisan welfare reform bill that has been introduced in this Congress and the only bill that President Clinton has promised he would sign. It is not to suggest it is the only bill he will sign, but it is the only bill he has promised to sign, and the only bill I am aware of that has relatively wide editorial support from the leading papers in the country.

My colleagues will probably know it as the Castle-Tanner welfare reform bill. I, frankly, like to call it the Biden-Specter bill because Senator SPECTER and I did introduce it on the Senate side. But, the heavy lifting on this bill and the drafting of the legislation was done by Congressmen CASTLE and TANNER. It is perhaps appropriate that everyone know it as the Castle-Tanner bill, and they did a first-rate job.

Before talking about the substance of the proposal, I want to briefly review how we got to this point of offering the amendment. Last September, the Senate passed a bipartisan welfare reform bill by an overwhelming majority, as my colleague, Senator SPECTER, indicated. We, along with the vast majority of our colleagues, voted for it. Since then, however, we have been faced with gridlock, politics, and paralysis. Both sides of the aisle have been using welfare reform as a political football, and we have accomplished nothing thus far.

Last April, Congressmen CASTLE and TANNER, and several other moderates from both parties in the House, decided to leave the bickering behind, sit down, and write a bipartisan welfare plan. This amendment is that bill. There is nothing shocking or hidden in this bill. It has all been out there before. Block grants to the States, a 5-year time limit, work requirements, child care, and child-support enforcement. The genius of this particular amendment is that it is bipartisan and has been from day one.

Let me mention just a couple of differences between this amendment and the underlying bill. Before I do, I want to compliment my senior colleague from Delaware, Senator ROTH, for the changes that he has made in the bill in the Finance Committee. When I introduced the Biden-Specter bill, or Castle-Tanner bill, in the Senate last month, the differences between the Finance Committee proposal and what we are proposing today were much larger than they are today. There is still, in my view, much room for improvement in the so-called leadership bill, and I believe we should still go forward with the bipartisan bill. However, I want to recognize Senator ROTH's effort at accommodating some bipartisan changes.

Some of the major differences that remain—one we settled just a couple hours ago, the child care health and safety standards, to ensure that kids are being cared for in a safe environment. We accepted that amendment. I guess we voted, actually, overwhelmingly, for the amendment to become part of the leadership bill.

Second, the Biden-Specter bill provides States with additional funds to set up work programs, because getting welfare recipients into jobs is going to cost a little bit of money on the front end.

Third, the Biden-Specter bill allows—not requires, but allows—States to provide noncash benefits for those who reach the time limit, so that States have the flexibility to design a program that meets the needs of the children in their State. This provision is the same as an amendment which was independently introduced by the distinguished Senator from Louisiana, and just discussed.

Fourth, the Biden-Specter bill would not allow food stamps to be converted into block grants, so that the ultimate safety net, ensuring that all Americans have food on the table, will not be taken away.

Fifth, the Biden-Specter bill would retain for all families, not just those who are below the poverty line, the transitional Medicaid coverage, where those who go to work can keep their health insurance for 1 year. It is acknowledged that the vast majority of welfare recipients in that first year in jobs will not have jobs that, in fact, provide health insurance for their children.

Welfare recipients are not stupid; they know most of the jobs will not have any health insurance for their kids. If we really want to move them off of welfare and on to work, and not just on to the streets, an extra year of health care, in my view, and in the view of the bipartisan group, is critical.

Sixth, the Biden-Specter bill says that anyone who wants to receive welfare must sign an individual responsibility contract, so that they are forced to agree up front to the conditions placed on receiving the benefit, and so that they will have a plan from day one on how to get themselves off of welfare.

Again, Mr. President, these are not all of the differences that exist in the bills, but they are among the most important.

Now, I know that every Member of the Senate will be able to find something that he or she does not like in the Biden-Specter proposal and all other proposals. I can do that, too, and it is my own amendment. The point is this: If we really want welfare reform, and not a political issue, we must do it in a bipartisan way, with each of us compromising and doing it in a form the President can sign.

This amendment fits that bill. It is the only bipartisan welfare reform bill to be introduced in Congress. It is a bill the President said he would sign, a bill that has gotten wide editorial endorsement, and a bill that makes compromises by definition of being bipartisan on both sides.

I do not like the idea that we are block granting welfare and that it is no longer an entitlement, but in return for that, my Republican colleagues agreed they would come up with sufficient dollars for a 1-year transition for health care and they would come up with money for child care, and so on.

It is a genuine compromise that I think is a solid proposal. I proposed a concept of welfare to work in 1987, and I was pilloried by my colleagues on the Democratic side at the time for suggesting that there be mandatory a work requirement for anyone receiving welfare. We have all sort of come to the same general proposition.

The issue is, are kids going to be left out there? Are women going to be able to go to work, or single fathers be able to go to work, knowing that there is no reasonable prospect for anyone to take care of that child, and not have day care? And are they going to make that judgment to do it, knowing once they do, they are going to lose their Medicaid—which is translated as health care for their children—by going to a job where they will not get health care for their children?

This is not just about money, although the Biden-Specter bill is estimated to achieve savings of $53.1 billion. But that is only one of the purposes, I thought, of this legislation, this change. We hear speech after speech after speech about changing the ethic that is involved in the welfare syndrome. We just heard our good friend from North Carolina talking about the generational nature of this problem and how to break the spiral, and so on. Part of this effort is to, in fact, not just take people off of welfare and put them on the streets, but put them to work and make them want to go to work and make it reasonable for them to go to work.

I respectfully suggest it is not just about money. It is about changing attitudes.

It is time to say that we do not care who gets credit for reforming welfare.

It is time to just do it in a bipartisan fashion. For the sake of the American people and the sake of the people on welfare, I urge my colleagues to support this bipartisan Welfare Reform Act. And depending on what my friends on the other side have to say in opposition, I reserve the remainder of my time. I do not expect to use any more time if there is no reason to respond.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. President, let me thank Senators SPECTER and BIDEN for their important contribution to the welfare debate before us. The tremendous effort it takes to find common ground is always welcomed and appreciated.

There are many similarities between the Specter-Biden legislation and the welfare reform legislation reported by the Finance Committee. We are very close, for example, on issues such as ending the individual entitlement to benefits, work participation rates, supplemental grants for States with high population growth, the family cap, and the 20-percent hardship exemption.

The Specter-Biden bill includes provisions from our welfare reform bill regarding funding for abstinence education, SSI reforms, and child support enforcement to mention a few more of the policy areas we share.

But the substitute offered by Senators SPECTER and BIDEN also includes a number of provisions which I cannot support. Working with the Governors over these past months, I have learned a firm lesson that they are willing to accept the risks associated with a block grant. But in exchange, the states must have the requisite flexibility to redesign and manage the programs.

I am concerned that the Specter-Biden provisions regarding Maintenance of Effort, transferability of funds mandatory individual responsibility plans, would break the fragile balance the Governors seek.

The substitute also opens up the Federal checkbook for a $3 billion work program. Both bills provide for a $2 billion contingency fund. This is a $1 billion increase from last year. But the Specter-Biden substitute appropriates additional Federal funds subject to unemployment or Food Stamps triggers. This additional spending does not achieve the savings necessary. In other words, the Specter-Biden substitute breaks the budget. And for this reason alone was must oppose it.

However, Mr. President, breaking the budget is not the only problem with this substitute.

The Specter-Biden substitute severely weakens the goal of setting time limits.

Vouchers are mandatory, subject to a reduction in the State grant for non-compliance.

The Specter-Biden substitute also undermines the goal of curbing Federal benefits to noncitizens. Under this substitute, even illegal aliens could qualify for Medicaid, a liberalization of the program beyond current law. Under the Specter-Biden plan, middle- and low-income American families would be put in a position of subsidizing individuals who are openly breaking the law. This is not fair.

Under Specter-Biden, the limitations on Medicaid benefits for other noncitizens under the finance bill would be lifted as well. While I respect the good intentions of the sponsors, I simply believe these provisions to too far.

Mr. President, I must therefore oppose the Specter-Biden substitute. Let me also hasten to add that there is no need to look any further for a bill which has bipartisan support.

The finance bill is identical in many of the most critical aspects to H.R. 4 which originally passed the Senate by a vote of 87 to 12 last September.

The finance bill was crafted with the help of Democratic and Republican Governors alike.

It includes a number of Democratic amendments which were offered in committee. Over the past several weeks, we have been told in a variety of ways that Medicaid was the stumbling block to welfare reform. We have removed that stumbling block. This is no time to erect new barriers to welfare reform. This is no time to turn back from authentic welfare reform.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I will yield back my time if the Senator from Delaware is prepared to yield back his time.

Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield the remainder of my time.

Mr. President, since the pending amendment, if adopted, would have the effect of reducing outlays by $10 billion less than the legislation before us, I make a point of order against the amendment under section 310(d)(2) of the Budget Act.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, pursuant to Section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act, I move to waive all applicable points of order under the act for the purposes of the Biden-Specter amendment.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the vote will be delayed until tomorrow.

Mr. FRIST addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4914

(Purpose: Expressing the sense of Congress that the President should ensure approval of State waiver requests)

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRIST], for himself, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. SANTORUM, Mrs. HUTCHISON, and Mr. THOMPSON, PROPOSES AN AMENDMENT NUMBERED 4914.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, add the following new section:

SEC. . SENSE OF CONGRESS

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the Secretary of Health and Human Services has not approved in a timely manner, State waiver requests for programs carried out under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act or other Federal law providing needs-based or income-based benefits (referred to in this resolution as "welfare reform programs");

(2) valuable time is running out for these states which need to obtain the waivers in order to implement the changes as planned;

(3) across the country there are 16 States, with 22 waiver requests for welfare reform programs, awaiting approval of the requests by the Secretary of Health and Human Services;

(4) on July 21, 1995, in Burlington, Vermont, President Clinton promised the Governors that the Secretary of Health and Human Services would approve their waiver requests within 30 days; and

(5) despite the President's promise, the average delay in approving such a waiver request is currently 210 days and some of the waiver requests have been pending since 1994.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the President should ensure that the Secretary of Health and Human Services approved the following waiver requests for Georgia—Jobs First Project, submitted 7/5/94; Georgia—Fraud Detection Project, submitted 7/1/96; Indiana—Impacting Families Welfare Reform Demonstration, submitted 12/14/95; Kansas—Actively Creating Tomorrow for Families Demonstration, submitted 7/26/94; Michigan—To Strengthen Michigan Families, submitted 6/27/96; Minnesota—Work First Program, submitted 4/4/96; Minnesota—AFDC Barrier Removal Project, submitted 4/4/96; New York—Learnfare Program, submitted 5/31/96; New York—Intentional Program Violation Demonstration, submitted 5/31/96; Oklahoma—Welfare Self-Sufficiency Initiative, submitted 10/27/95; Pennsylvania—School Attendance Improvement Program, submitted 9/12/94; Pennsylvania—Savings for Education Program, submitted 12/29/94; Tennessee—Families First, submitted 4/30/96; Utah—Single Parent Employment Demonstration, submitted 7/2/96; Virginia—Virginia Independence Program, submitted 5/24/96; Wisconsin—Work Not Welfare and Pay for Performance, submitted 5/29/96; And Wyoming—New Opportunities and New Responsibilities—Phase II, submitted 5/13/96.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there be 45 minutes of debate equally divided on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request?

Mr. FORD. Reserving the right to object. Would the Senator add that no amendments in the second degree be in order?

Mr. FRIST. Yes, I have no objection to that. I ask unanimous consent that there be no second-degree amendments in order to this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FRIST. This amendment, submitted on behalf of myself and colleagues, Senators ABRAHAM, SANTORUM, HUTCHISON and THOMPSON, asks for a sense of the Congress that President Clinton should ensure approval of a waiver request for Tennessee's Family First program, as well as welfare programs in 12 other States.

Across this country this very minute, States are desperately awaiting the Clinton administration's approval for local welfare state initiatives. The State of Tennessee, like 12 other States, has submitted a waiver request to Donna Shalala, Secretary of Health and Human Services, to gain Federal approval for portions of a State-based welfare plan. Tennessee submitted its waiver request on April 30, 1996—78 days ago. This is not uncommon. Across this country, there are 15 other States with 22 waiver requests currently pending.

Some of these States include Georgia, the Jobs First program; also in Georgia, the Fraud Detection Project; in Kansas, Actively Creating Tomorrow for Families Demonstration; in Minnesota, the Work First program and the AFDC Barrier Removal Project; in Oklahoma, the Welfare Self-Sufficiency Initiative. Those are a few samples.

Mr. President, on July 31, 1995, the President promised the Governors that the Secretary of Health and Human Services would approve their requests "within 30 days." That is what he said—30 days. It has been 78 days since Tennessee's request was placed.

Mr. President, I remain committed to holding President Clinton to this promise, ensuring that the Secretary of Health and Human Services approve these much-needed waiver requests, such as that for Tennessee's Families First welfare program, as well as for Michigan's and Wisconsin's.

I urge every one of my Senate colleagues to join me in this effort. Across this country States are fighting for the waivers that the President has promised to sign.

Time is running. Time is ticking. Time is running out for the people of Tennessee. The State needs to obtain this Federal waiver in order to implement the changes by September 1, 1996 as planned. Tennessee needs action. The country needs action.

Mr. President, I would particularly like to thank the distinguished Senators from Michigan and Pennsylvania for their support in this effort, and also Senator HUTCHISON of Texas for her hard work in putting this effort together.

I thank the Chair. I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. FRIST. Yes, sir.

Mr. ROTH. Does the fact that you are here asking that the President sign these waivers demonstrate the urgent need for welfare reform?

Mr. FRIST. That is correct. And States are calling out for this reform at the State level, and at the national level. These are waivers that have been promised to these States to be considered within 30 days. We need to fulfill that promise.

Mr. ROTH. And those waivers would not be necessary under our reform legislation?

Mr. FRIST. That is correct. The bureaucratic nightmare, the barriers that are placed with these States, would be removed by this piece of legislation.

Mr. ROTH. I thank the Senator for his answers.

Mr. FORD. Will the Senator yield for an additional question, Mr. President?

Mr. FRIST. Yes.

Mr. FORD. Is it not true that this President has issued 67 waivers to 40 States, more than any President has issued?

Mr. FRIST. That is correct; 16 States are waived now, all over 30 days at this point; 22 waiver requests are pending at this very minute.

I would like to yield 10 minutes to my colleague from Michigan.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan is recognized.

Mr. ABRAHAM. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I rise to join my colleagues from Tennessee and Pennsylvania and other States, all of whom are trying find themselves in the same position as we do in Michigan. States across America know best how to deal with the problems of the people who live in those States. Places like Michigan, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, and many other jurisdictions have attempted to address the problems of their most needy citizens in thoughtful ways designed to try to the best degree possible move people from dependency on government programs to the economic ladder.

In Michigan we have been doing a variety of things over the past few years on a bipartisan basis; I would add to try to establish a set of programs that will work. These programs will work in Michigan. They might not work in Tennessee, or they might not work in New Hampshire. They might not work in Kentucky, or Pennsylvania. They are designed to work in Michigan. That is the way we believe welfare reform needs to be addressed, giving States the kind of flexibility to design programs best able to serve the constituencies in their jurisdictions.

It is interesting. The legislation which recently passed in Michigan with respect to welfare reform passed the Michigan State senate by a vote of 30 to 7. It passed the State house of representatives by a margin of 85 to 22. I promise my fellow Senators that is not a reflection of the partisan makeup of those legislative chambers. A 30-to-7 vote in the Michigan Senate and 85-to-22 vote in the Michigan House of Representatives reflects an overwhelming bipartisan decision to put in place a set of welfare reforms that will work for our State. That is what has happened.

These reforms come on the heels of others that have been implemented in the last 2 years. The results of Michigan's welfare reforms to date have been very impressive. Michigan's AFDC caseload has dropped from 221,000 cases in September 1992 to 176,000 cases in May 1996, a decrease of 45,000. The current AFDC caseload level is the lowest in nearly 25 years in Michigan. The caseload in our State have decreased for 26 straight months, and has fallen by more than 20 percent over the past 2 years. During fiscal year 1994 alone, nearly 30,000 individuals were placed into employment and since September 1992 over 90,000 AFDC cases have been closed as a result of earned income from employment.

In addition, by January 1996 the number of cases with earned income had risen 31.1 percent compared to the 15.7 percent of cases with earned income in September 1992.

Mr. President, this reflects a successful effort undertaken on a bipartisan basis in my State of Michigan designed to address the concerns and the problems of the neediest people in our State. We believe we have the best insight into solving Michigan's problems—a better insight than anyone in other States, and certainly a better insight than those in the bureaucracies in Washington.

For that reason, Mr. President, I join in this amendment. We want to give Michigan the chance to go further, to continue the success that we have had, to build on that success to try to make sure that everybody in Michigan who in any sense desires the opportunity to move onto the economic ladder gets the chance to do so. So that is why I join in this amendment.

The legislation which was passed in Michigan that became then the waiver sought from the Federal Government and that is part of this amendment here tonight is, I think, the right solution for our State. It is what the people of Michigan on a bipartisan basis have said is the right solution for our State. It frees us to give us the flexibility to move forward and solve people's problems rather than spending too much time solving problems created by bureaucracy.

Just to put that in perspective, we did a study in Michigan. We talked to the people on the front lines in the social services department which we now call the Family independence department. We discovered, interestingly, that two-thirds of the time of the folks whose job it is to help people get out of dependency is spent not helping people get out of dependency but is spent handling paperwork and redtape, most of it emanating from Washington, and only one-third of this time is spent trying to actually assist the folks who they are trying to help.

Our legislation will try to put the priorities where they ought to be. The proposal that we include in this amendment, this waiver that was sought, includes a number of innovations that will assist Michigan.

It will require attendance for all adult AFDC, food stamp, and State general assistance applicants or recipients at a joint orientation meeting with the family independence agency and Michigan's Jobs Commission personnel as a condition of eligibility.

It will require recipients to enter into a family independence contract.

It will require compliance with work activity requirements within 60 days.

Failure to comply will result in the loss of the family independence and AFDC benefits, and food stamps for a minimum of 1 month, and until there is compliance with work requirements.

It will require teen parents to live in an adult supervised setting and stay in school. Failure to comply will result in case closure.

The proposal includes many other similar programs designed to place incentives into the structure for people who, in fact, want to get out of dependency and onto the economic ladder. But at the same time our waiver is designed to give people some of the tools they need to be on that ladder.

It provides greater employment-related services, guaranteed access to child care, guaranteed transportation so people can get to the jobs we hope to create and make available to them, and guaranteed access to health care for anyone leaving welfare for work—in short, assistance and incentives for those seeking employment just as we also include increased responsibility for individuals receiving assistance.

Third, our program will remove unnecessary and overly burdensome regulations; provides a vastly simplified application form reduced from the current 30 pages down to 6; provides for the most dramatic simplification of AFDC food stamp and medical assistance anywhere in the country, and it streamlines services by establishing a single point of contact with the welfare office for each welfare recipient regardless of the mix of benefits received.

Finally, the program encompassed in this amendment will strengthen families and increase community involvement.

It provides additional funding for prevention services to help keep children safe and strengthen families.

And, it will allow faith-based organizations to work with communities to address the needs of welfare recipients.

In short, it is a balanced approach tailor-made to assist those in Michigan who are needy, and those in Michigan who are currently dependent on Government support in the best way we can craft to get out of that dependency and onto the economic ladder.

We recognize how to do this in Michigan for our citizens. We have developed a plan that has moved us a long way in the right direction.

If we were given the opportunities created by the waiver we have sought, which we embody in this amendment, we think we can go the final steps it takes to give the people in our State opportunity regardless of where they live, regardless of economic condition, and regardless of their current status. We will give them hope.

That is what I believe this overall welfare reform bill before us is designed to do, to give States the flexibility, to give States the opportunity to design programs that will work for them, not programs that work in one State but programs that work individually State by State, not programs dreamed up in Washington but programs designed in State capitals and in major cities of this country for the people who live in those communities.

For that reason, I strongly support this amendment. I believe that if Michigan, Tennessee, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin, and other States are given this flexibility, given the chance to have the programs they have designed put into place, it will create the kind of opportunity we want for every American citizen.

For that reason, I strongly support the amendment. I thank the Senator from Tennessee for bringing it before us this evening.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, how much time does this side have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The side of the Senator from Kentucky has 22½ minutes and the Senator from Tennessee has 10 minutes.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I have just had an opportunity to sit down and read this amendment. I have operated as a Governor and understand what Governors like to say and what Governors like to do. Governors want the money now at the higher level but when we start decreasing the amount of funds the State receives, it is going to be difficult for them to reduce their expenditures or reduce the number, and so we find that is going to be somewhat difficult for them to do.

I have some problem with us micromanaging any program. Mr. President, I looked at these projects that are here. Some of them sound good, others not necessarily. Fraud Detection Project, that sounds interesting. Actively Creating Tomorrow for Families Demonstration. I do not know, are you supposed to look at these and just approve them without studying them some? AFDC Barrier Removal Project; Intentional Program Violation Demonstration, Single Parent Employment Demonstration, Work-Not-Welfare and Pay For Performance, New Opportunities and New Responsibilities Demonstration.

Now, I am hopeful that we can get a welfare bill that the President will sign. We hear a lot about 80-something to a few votes for a bill that we passed. If that bill had gone to the President's desk, my judgment is that he would have signed it. I think we are close to getting a bill that will be signed. I am one who wants to vote for welfare reform. I hope we can listen to Senators like the Senator from Louisiana and others who are trying to protect children. I think we have gone much, much too far in trying to be harsh on parents and then in turn being harsh on children.

So, Mr. President, in listening to the Governors, the other side of the aisle, the Republicans are not listening to the Governors except in certain cases where they want to listen to them. We have endorsements of the National Governors' Conference as it relates to vouchers and the amendment of the Senator from Louisiana. The Governors have endorsed that. But they do not pay any attention to that one. We are going to be against it. I think it is wrong. So now the Governors want all this. Are we supposed to flip over and say, yes? You did not do that when I was Governor. I had to come up here and cry a little bit, shed some crocodile tears, try to get something more for my State.

So I hope we will not try to micromanage this particular operation. As I say, the President has issued 67 waivers to 40 States. But none of these waivers, in my opinion, in reading them, are all directly welfare connected. Maybe they are. But some of the programs as they are listed lead me—work first, I like that. I like Gov. McWherter's program in Tennessee. I thought Governor Ned McWherter did a good job. It took a lot of bumps; it took a lot of skin off his back, as we say politically, but I thought Governor McWherter did a good job in Tennessee.

So since I am here standing in for others, I hope that we will be very careful with the vote as it relates to micromanaging welfare. If we are going to give it to the States, let us give it to the States and let us do it in a bill; let us do it legislatively; let us do it statutorily, and let us not start telling the President what to do and what not to do, because their President did not do nearly as well as this President. You have to look at the number of jobs that we have had. That reduces the amount of welfare in a State—more jobs, less welfare. And I can take credit for unemployment being at a low level in my State. We are doing great. We have so many people off welfare. We are saving this kind of money. All these programs are working. But if the economy is good, Mr. President, then all States are going to look good, and as of now the economy is good and all States are faring somewhat better.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. FRIST addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee.

Mr. FRIST. I understand we have 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. FRIST. I yield 8 minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized for 8 minutes.

Mr. SANTORUM. I thank my friend from Tennessee. I will not take the entire 8 minutes. I rise in support of this amendment.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator BOND from Missouri be added as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SANTORUM. In fact, Senator BOND has introduced legislation, frankly, that goes further than the sense of the Senate. Senator BOND's legislation would actually move the Senate to approve of the Wisconsin waiver and a bill similar to what passed in the House of Representatives, passed through the Senate and actually forced the President's hand on the Wisconsin waiver.

That is the most publicized waiver, frankly, because the President said, and I will quote his words, in his Presidential radio address back on May 18:

All in all, Wisconsin has the making of a solid, bold welfare reform plan. We should get it done.

"Get it done," meaning approve the waiver.

I pledge that my administration will work with Wisconsin to make an effective transition to a new vision of welfare based on work, that protects children and does right by working people and their families.

That is what the President said. He said he wanted to do it with the waiver. He said he was for the waiver. In fact, he went so far as to make it the real focus of his radio address to the American public. Unfortunately, his administration has not approved those waivers yet. He set an artificial deadline, he has for quite some time, of a 30-day turnaround on all waiver requests by the States. He, as the Senator from Tennessee mentioned, has not met that 30-day requirement recently. In fact, we have the Wisconsin plan and here we are in the middle of July and he has not approved what is now a 12-month-old waiver request.

Unfortunately, we learn that while the President is still running around the country talking about how good the Wisconsin plan is, the President's people are saying that they are not going to approve the plan, which led Governor Thompson the other day down at the National Governors' Association to say, "We are sort of shaking our heads, not knowing what's going on, who to believe."

Well, in the end, I always found that it is best policy to believe what you see, not what you hear from this administration. And what you see from this administration is not approving your waiver. That is pretty concrete evidence of whether you are going to get it approved or not. The fact that they are not approving it, in effect, the bureaucrats in the administration are saying the likelihood of your getting through the approval process is not good. And it is not a simple approval process. It sounds like these waivers are no big deal; everybody gets them approved. Remember, these get approved; they get modified; they get altered a little bit; they have to sort of work with the Federal Government to make changes that they in the Federal Government believe is best for the State. In the case of Wisconsin, in order to put the plan in effect, the State requested waivers from 83 Federal provisions administered by HHS. So they needed 83 separate decisions by the Department of Health and Human Services to get those waivers. They needed five from the Department of Agriculture to get their overall waiver approved by the Federal Government. This is no small task. It is a task that, under our bill, the bill that is before the Senate right now, would be unnecessary.

The Senator from Delaware, I think accurately and perceptively, questioned the Senator from Tennessee about whether this bill would make all of this rather expensive, time-consuming and inefficient process of waivers necessary in the future. If, in fact, we are going to use the States, as the States have been used recently, as incubators for changing the welfare system, we should give them more flexibility in dealing with this program.

We should give them the opportunity to design programs that fit their needs, not judged by people in Washington who maybe have never set foot in that State, who do not know the particular problems in the communities, but by people who represent those communities, as Senator ABRAHAM was talking about, the State legislators who live in those communities, who represent those people in a much smaller area, in a district in those States—those are the people who should make decisions about what the welfare system should look like; not people at Health and Human Services.

So one of the reasons I wanted to sign on to this effort was to highlight the inconsistencies—not surprising to my mind—but the inconsistencies between what the President says and what the President has done on one of the most important issues before us, which is welfare reform. We have, obviously, the President's record overall on what he says and what he does on welfare, which is he runs television commercials all over the country saying he is for welfare reform and then every chance he has to sign welfare reform, he finds a reason to veto it. I hope this is not the case this time around. I am confident we will send him a bill that he certainly can sign. The question is whether he will sign it, but he certainly will talk a good game up until that point. But when the rubber hits the road, whether it is waivers or whether it is the actual bill, the President has fallen short in the area of welfare reform.

Part of my reason for cosponsoring this legislation is that Pennsylvania has just recently passed welfare reform legislation. They are going to be requesting a couple of waivers from the Federal Government. They will be submitting them shortly. I am hopeful the President will go along with what Pennsylvania has wanted to do with Governor Ridge's plan to reform the welfare system and Medicaid system. To try to reduce the strain on the State budget, frankly, is one reason; but also to provide a better future for the people in Pennsylvania who are on welfare.

So I congratulate the Senator from Tennessee for his efforts. I hope we can approve this amendment and send a very strong signal we want the administration to move more quickly and more efficiently when it comes to granting waivers.

I reserve the remainder of our time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time? The Senator from Tennessee.

AMENDMENT NO. 4914, AS MODIFIED

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I yield myself 1 minute. I ask unanimous consent to modify my amendment No. 4914. I send that modification to the desk. As part of that unanimous consent, I ask that Senator BOND be added as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the request? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment as modified is as follows:

At the appropriate place, add the following new section:

SEC. . SENSE OF CONGRESS

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the Secretary of Health and Human Services has not approved in a timely manner, State waiver requests for programs carried out under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act or other Federal law providing needs-based or income-based benefits (referred to in this resolution as "welfare reform programs");

(2) valuable time is running out for these States which need to obtain the waivers in order to implement the changes as planned;

(3) across the country there are 16 States, with 22 waiver requests for welfare reform programs, awaiting approval of the requests by the Secretary of Health and Human Services;

(4) on July 21, 1995, in Burlington, Vermont, President Clinton promised the Governors that the Secretary of Health and Human Services would approve their waiver requests within 30 days; and

(5) despite the President's promise, the average delay in approving such a waiver request is currently 210 days and some of the waiver requests have been pending since 1994.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the President should ensure that the Secretary of Health and Human Services approves the following waiver requests for Georgia—Jobs First Project, submitted 7/5/94; Georgia—Fraud Detection Project, submitted 7/1/96; Indiana—Impacting Families Welfare Reform Demonstration, submitted 12/14/95; Kansas—Actively Creating Tomorrow for Families Demonstration, submitted 7/26/94; Michigan—To Strengthen Michigan Families, submitted 6/27/96; Minnesota—Work First Program, submitted 4/4/96; Minnesota—AFDC Barrier Removal Project, submitted 4/4/96; New York—Learnfare Program, submitted 5/31/96; New York—International Program, Violation Demonstration, submitted 5/31/96; Oklahoma—Welfare Self-Sufficiency Initiative, submitted 10/27/95; Pennsylvania—School Attendance Improvement Program, submitted 9/12/94; Pennsylvania—Savings for Education Program, submitted 12/29/94; Tennessee—Families First, submitted 4/30/96; Utah—Single Parent Employment Demonstration, submitted 7/2/96; Virginia—Virginia Independence Program, submitted 5/24/96; Wisconsin—Work Not Welfare and Pay for Performance, submitted 5/29/96; And Wyoming—New Opportunities and New Responsibilities—Phase II, submitted 5/13/96; California—Assistance Payment Demonstration Project, submitted 3/13/96; California—Work Pays Demonstration Project, submitted 11/9/94; Hawaii—Pursuit of New Opportunities, submitted 5/7/96; West Virginia—West Virginia Works, submitted 7/1/96.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I am about to yield back what time we have. Is the Senator yielding his time?

Mr. FRIST. I, too, am ready to yield back.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, we have an amendment that has been agreed to. I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KERRY], be given 60 seconds to offer his amendment and get it modified so it could be passed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. FORD. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4913, AS MODIFIED

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I call up my amendment on child poverty which was submitted earlier tonight. I ask unanimous consent this amendment be modified in a manner that has been agreed to by both sides. I send the modification to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KERRY] proposes an amendment numbered 4913, as modified.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Section 413 of the Social Security Act, as added by section 2103, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(h) CHILD POVERTY RATES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this part, and annually thereafter, the chief executive officer of a State shall submit to the Secretary a statement of the child poverty rate in the State as of such date of enactment or the date of such subsequent statements. Such subsequent statements shall include the change in such rate from the previous statement, if any.

“(2) INCREASE IN RATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—With respect to a State that submits a statement under paragraph (1) that indicates an increase of 5 percent or more in the child poverty rate of the State from the previous statement as a result of the changes made by the Act, the State shall, not later than 90 days after the date of such statement, prepare and submit to the Secretary a corrective action plan in accordance with paragraph (3).

“(3) CORRECTIVE ACTION PLAN.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A corrective action plan submitted under paragraph (2) shall outline that manner in which the State will reduce the child poverty rate within the State. The plan shall include a description of the actions to be taken by the State under such plan.

“(B) CONSULTATION ABOUT MODIFICATIONS.—

During the 60-day period that begins with the date the Secretary receives the corrective action plan of a State under subparagraph (A), the Secretary may consult with the State on modifications to the plan.

“(C) ACCEPTANCE OF PLAN.—A corrective action plan submitted by a State in accordance with subparagraph (A) is deemed to be accepted by the Secretary if the Secretary does not accept or reject the plan during 60-day period that begins on the date the plan is submitted.

“(4) COMPLIANCE WITH PLAN.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A State that submits a corrective action plan under this subsection shall continue to implement such plan until such time as the Secretary makes the determination described in subparagraph (B).

“(B) DETERMINATION.—A determination described in this subparagraph is a determination that the child poverty rate for the State involved has fallen to, and not exceeded for a period of 2 consecutive years, a rate that is not greater than the rate contained in the most recent statement submitted by the State under paragraph (1) which did not trigger the application of paragraph (2).

“(C) LABOR SURPLUS AREA.—With respect to a State that submits a corrective action plan under paragraph (2)(B), such plan shall continue to be implemented until the area involved is no longer designated as a Labor Surplus Area.

“(5) METHODOLOGY.—The Secretary shall promulgate regulations establishing the methodology by which a State shall determine the child poverty rate within such State. Such methodology shall, with respect to a State, take into account factors including the number of children who receive free or reduced-price lunches, the number of food stamp households, and the county by county estimates of children in poverty as determined by the Census Bureau.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, the welfare bill before us today would allow States to experiment with various welfare policies. Many States may implement innovative welfare policies to move parents from welfare to work. But if we are sending Federal money to States, if we are going to take this risk and allow States to experiment, let's be sure that child poverty does not increase.

This amendment, which I introducing with Senator MURRAY, says that if child poverty increases in a State after the date of enactment of this welfare bill, that State would be required to submit a corrective action plan.

There is nothing more important to this debate than constantly reminding ourselves that our focus is—or ought to be—this Nation's children. That was the focus when under Franklin Roosevelt's leadership title IV-A of the Social Security Act was originally enacted. The objective here is to help impoverished children.

Let me acknowledge right up front that this amendment will be subject to a point of order under the Byrd rule and will require 60 votes to pass. I want to say to my Republican colleagues that it is outrageous that we are debating welfare reform under budget reconciliation rules. We should not be considering such major changes affecting millions of children and families and cutting more than $60 billion from human service programs under budget rules that make almost any substantive amendment out of order. There is no reason to debate welfare reform under budget reconciliation except for the majority to make it significantly harder to make any changes to this bill, even changes supported by a majority of members. But despite this unreasonable hurdle erected by the majority party, we must attempt to remedy problems in the bill.

What does this amendment do? This amendment says that if the most recent State child poverty rate exceeds the level for the previous year by 5 percent or more then the State would have to submit to the HHS Secretary within 90 days a corrective action plan describing the actions the State shall take to reduce child poverty rates.

Mr. President, I want to be clear that this amendment in no way intrudes on a State's ability to design its own welfare program. State flexibility would not be decreased in any way. This amendment simply says that if a State's welfare system increases child poverty, that State must take corrective action.

Mr. President, there are many very different views of welfare in this Chamber. But I believe all of us regardless of party can agree on two things at least: we can all agree that the child poverty rate in this country is too high. The fact is that 15.3 million U.S. children live in poverty. This means that more than one in five children—21.8 percent—live in poverty. In Massachusetts, there are more than 176,000 children who live in poverty. And despite the stereotypes, Mr. President, the majority of America's poor children are white—9.3 million—and live in rural or suburban areas—8.4 million—rather than central cities—6.9 million.

The other thing on which we can all agree, because it is a fact rather than an opinion, is that the child poverty rate in this country is dramatically higher than the rate in other major industrialized countries. According to an excellent, comprehensive recent report by an international research group called the Luxembourg Income Study, the child poverty rate in the United Kingdom is less than half our rate, 9.9 percent, the rate in France is less than one-third of our rate, 6.5 percent, and the rate in Denmark 3.3 percent is about one-sixth our rate.

Mr. President, we know that poverty is bad for children. This should be obvious. Nobel Prize-winning economist Robert Solow and the Children's Defense Fund recently conducted the first-ever long-term impact of child poverty. They found that their lowest estimate was that the future cost to society of a single year of poverty for the 15 million poor children is $36 billion in lost output per worker. When they included lost work hours, lower skills, and other labor market disadvantages related to poverty, they found that the future cost to society was $177 billion.

With this amendment, I want to make sure that, at the very least, if a State's welfare plan increases child poverty—instead of increasing the number of parents moving from welfare to work and self-sufficiency—that State will take immediate steps to refocus its program.

Mr. President, I also want to say that I hope that our extremist colleagues on the House side do not ultimately prevail again in conference. This effort to reform welfare should not be scuttled by a conference report they call welfare reform but that children will only know as their ticket to empty stomachs and hopelessness.

Mr. President, I want to thank Chairman ROTH and his staff, Senator MOYNIHAN and his staff, and Senator EXON and his staff for their assistance and their willingness to accept this amendment that I believe will benefit children across the Nation.

Mr. President, as we know, the child poverty rate in the United States is dramatically higher than that in other industrial countries. It is in our obvious interest, in whatever we do with respect to welfare reform, that whatever we do here not increase that rate.

This seeks, by agreement on both sides, to simply measure where we are today with respect to child poverty and, if there is an ascertainable difference as a consequence of the measures of this act that increases it, then the Secretary of Health and Human Services has the ability to ask that particular State to come up with a remedy. There is no forced remedy. There is no mandate. It is simply a requirement to try to deal with the obvious negative consequences or unintended consequence of anything we might do here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

If there be no further debate, the question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4913), as modified, was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. KERRY. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. KERRY. I thank my colleagues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

AMENDMENT NO. 4915

(Purpose: To require each family receiving assistance under the State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act to enter into a personal responsibility agreement)

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I have a couple of amendments. I send the first one to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration. I send this amendment to the desk on behalf of myself and Senator COATS of Indiana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Iowa [Mr. HARKIN], for himself and Mr. COATS, proposes an amendment numbered 4915.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Section 408 of the Social Security Act, as added by section 2103, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new subsection:

“(d) STATE REQUIRED TO ENTER INTO A PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY AGREEMENT WITH EACH FAMILY RECEIVING ASSISTANCE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Each State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall require each family receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part to enter into a personal responsibility agreement (as developed by the State) with the State.

“(2) PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY AGREEMENT.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘personal responsibility agreement’ means a binding contract between the State and each family receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part that—

“(A) contains a statement that public assistance is not intended to be a way of life, but is intended as temporary assistance to help the family achieve self-sufficiency and personal independence;

“(B) outlines the steps each family and the State will take to get the family off of welfare and to become self-sufficient, including an employment goal for the individual and a plan for promptly moving the individual into paid employment;

“(C) specifies a negotiated time-limited period of eligibility for receipt of assistance that is consistent with unique family circumstances and is based on a reasonable plan to facilitate the transition of the family to self-sufficiency;

“(D) provides for the imposition of sanctions if the individual refuses to sign the agreement or does not comply with the terms of the agreement, which may include loss or reduction of cash benefits;

“(E) provides that the contract shall be invalid if the State agency fails to comply with the contract; and “(F) provides that the individual agrees not to abuse illegal drugs or other substances that would interfere with the ability of the individual to become self-sufficient, or provide for a referral for substance abuse treatment if necessary to increase the employability of the individual.

“(3) ASSESSMENT.—The State agency shall provide, through a case manager, an initial and thorough assessment of the skills, prior work experience, and employability of each parent for use in developing and negotiating a personal responsibility contract.

“(4) DISPUTE RESOLUTION.—The State agency shall establish a dispute resolution procedure for disputes related to participation in the personal responsibility contract that provides the opportunity for a hearing.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, when individuals are hired for a job they are handed a job description, a job description which outlines their responsibilities so on day one they know what is expected in order to earn a paycheck. However, when individuals go into a welfare office to sign up for benefits, they fill out an application and then the Government sends them a check. There is no job description, nothing is expected on day one. The individual goes home and collects a check. I believe that is wrong. It saps an individual's self-esteem and makes a family dependent.

We must fundamentally change the way we think about welfare. We should be guided by common sense and build a system based on a foundation of responsibility. If you want a check, you must earn it and you must follow the job description. We need to stop looking at welfare as a Government giveaway program. Instead, welfare should be a contract, demanding mutual responsibility between the Government and the individual receiving the benefits. The contract should outline the steps a recipient will take to become self-sufficient, and also a date certain by which benefits will end. Responsibility should begin on day one, and benefits should be conditioned on compliance with the terms of the contract. Essentially, the contract would outline the responsibilities for an individual, just like a job description outlines a worker's duties. It builds greater accountability in the welfare system and sends the clear message that welfare as usual is no more.

A binding contract of this nature makes common sense, and it works. Here is how I know. The Family Investment Agreement, or contract, is the centerpiece of Iowa's innovative welfare reform program. The agreement or the contract is negotiated between individual recipients and their case workers. Failure to negotiate and sign a Family Investment Agreement or to refuse to follow its terms results in elimination of welfare benefits.

I meet with welfare recipients and their case workers on a regular basis in Iowa. I always ask them what they think about the requirement for this contract. An overwhelming number credit the contract for creating a fundamental change of the welfare system in Iowa, change which has meant fewer families on welfare and an increase in the number of families working and earning income and a decrease in the amount of money spent on cash grants. The results have been truly impressive in Iowa.

Caseworkers say the family investment agreement, or contract, has helped them guide families off welfare. Welfare recipients often say it is the first time that anyone ever asked them about their goals, and with the contract, they get a clear picture of exactly what is expected of them. That is an important first step toward making families self-sufficient.

The amendment I am offering with Senator COATS is simple. It builds on the successful reforms that are going on in our States; that welfare recipients negotiate and sign an agreement which outlines what will be done to move off welfare. A similar amendment was included in last year's bipartisan Senate bill. That bill we adopted 87 to 12. This would be a good improvement to the pending bill. Some changes were made in that amendment at the suggestion of Senator COATS, very good changes, I might add.

So I urge my colleagues to support that amendment.

Mr. President, I do not know if this amendment is going to be agreed to or not. There is some talk that it will be. We do not really know yet.

I ask unanimous consent that if this amendment is not agreed to that it be put over until Tuesday so that Senator COATS can speak on it. He could not be here this evening. So I ask unanimous consent that it be put over, that the vote on it be put over until Tuesday, and I will ask for the yeas and nays, which, if it is accepted, we can vitiate the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the unanimous consent request?

Mr. HARKIN. Let me rephrase that request. I ask unanimous-consent that this amendment, if it is not accepted, be put over to a vote until Tuesday so that Senator COATS might speak on it.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I still hope the amendment will be accepted after it is looked at. I do want to thank Senator COATS for his help in crafting this amendment and making changes to it. Again, I still hope it will be accepted. As I said, something similar to it was adopted unanimously on the bill we put through last fall.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I have a second amendment. It will not take very long.

AMENDMENT NO. 4916

(Purpose: To strike amendments to child nutrition requirements)

Mr. HARKIN. I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Iowa [Mr. HARKIN] proposes an amendment numbered 4916.

Strike section 1253.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, this amendment would strike the provision in the bill that eliminates the existing program of grants for initiating or expanding school breakfast or summer food programs. The provision in the bill has nothing to do with welfare reform. It is merely killing a good program to save only a relatively small amount of money in terms of the total amount of money involved in this bill.

In fact, I believe this provision in the bill will actually hinder welfare reform, because it will mean more kids will be hungry during the school year and over the summer months. That is a circumstance that will make it harder for that family to get off welfare.

Many children having the greatest need for school breakfast and summer food assistance do not get the opportunity they should have to receive the benefits of these valuable programs. Currently, about 12 million low-income children take part in the School Lunch Program. Only about 5.5 million children participate in the School Breakfast Program, and the number of participants in the Summer Food Program is only about 2 million.

What these numbers mean is that a large proportion of low-income children who benefit from the School Lunch Program do not benefit from the School Breakfast Program and even fewer from the summer food program. Less than half of the low-income kids getting school lunches now receive breakfasts and less than 20 percent of low-income kids in the lunch program receive summer meals. There are many children who cannot take part in these very important programs because they simply are not available in their neighborhoods due to a lack of community resources.

Startup and expansion funds have proven themselves as a means to get these programs going in neighborhoods. What this program does is provide modest amounts of assistance to allow schools and summer food sponsors to get programs started or expand them in low-income areas. The school may need, for example, some equipment or some other resource that will help them deliver meals to hungry kids. There is no other program that is in existence to help out on these equipment and infrastructure needs. This is the only one.

The School Breakfast Startup and Expansion Program was begun by Congress to provide competitive grants for one-time expenses associated with starting a School Breakfast Program in individual schools. In 1994, the startup and expansion program was modified and made permanent and made to cover both school breakfast and the summer food programs.

The first grants under the new guidelines were announced in June of 1995, just last year. Forty-eight States have applied for grants; 31 States have received funding under this program. So it is needed, and it is helping to improve access of low-income kids to nutritious breakfasts and summer meals across the country.

There has been a resounding consensus from State departments of education that the availability of these funds has played a major role in increasing the availability of school breakfast and summer food programs to low-income kids. These funds are for one-time startup costs. Funding does not go on and on and on, but it provides schools and sponsors with the seed funds necessary to start or to expand to new sites these proven nutrition programs for children.

These startup and expansion funds have meant the difference between needy children going hungry in the morning—because their schools are too poor to afford the startup costs of a breakfast program—and children ready to learn after eating a school breakfast.

This bill that we have before us cuts spending by over $50 billion. My amendment would only have a minuscule effect on the magnitude of those savings. Mr. President, I submit that the cost in human terms, the cost in diminished futures for our Nation's children is far too high to pay in order to achieve the relatively minor spending reductions associated with the provision that my amendment strikes. By striking this provision, my amendment will ensure we continue to make a modest, sound investment in the nutrition, health, education and future of our children.

Finally, Mr. President, I believe that this amendment will actually save money in the long run, because kids who are well-nourished grow up healthy. They are able to learn and acquire the skills they need to live as productive members of society. That means less welfare dependency, less crime, less poor health and less cost to our society in dealing with the various ills that result from poor nutrition and stunted human development.

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the Harkin amendment. The underlying provision that the Harkin amendment attempts to amend actually has some commonality here, bipartisan support, I should say.

The President, in his most recent welfare reform proposal, contained a provision to repeal the expansion grants, the grants that the Senator from Iowa wants to put back in.

In addition, the Democratic substitute which we voted on earlier today also repealed expansion grants. And I think the reason was that these expansion grants, at least for the school breakfast program, have been around for 6 or 7 years. With 6 or 7 years, that is a fair amount of time to have those grants on the table to use to grow the program. If they have not grown by now, they are probably not going to grow with respect to the summer food program. It has not been widely used.

The Senator from Iowa mentioned 31 States. But these are not State grants.

They are grants to very small discreet schools. If you only have 31 in the entire country, that is hardly a significant expansion of the program. I think most everyone has recognized that we have sort of reached the end of the road with respect to expanding this program. And this money can be more efficiently spent elsewhere.

I remind Senators that this provision saves a substantial amount of money. What it is is $112 million that we were required to come up with in our reconciliation portion of the agriculture budget. And there is no offset provided for in this legislation. So if in fact we put these grants back, we are going to have to find other places, food stamps, other kinds of programs that I think have more political support, and for good reason, than these expansion grants. So I would urge my colleagues not to support this amendment.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Just a small followup. I do not always agree with the President of the United States. These start-up and expansion grants stand on their own merits, without regard to what is contained in the President's or any other welfare reform proposal.

As the Senator from Pennsylvania says, this is kind of a modest program. But we did in 1994, as I said, make it permanent and modify it to include summer food start-up and expansion. We got the first of the new grants out last year. It is a modest program. It is not a big, overwhelming program. But it allows really the poorest schools to get the seed money.

As I said, it is a one-time infusion of money. Let us say they have some sites they want to deliver meals to. They have a central kitchen and they want to deliver some meals to other sites. Maybe they do not have a vehicle to do it. Well, this program would help them get the vehicle that will be able to deliver those meals to other sites, let us say, around the area.

So it is a one-time cost that will enable them to go ahead and have a breakfast program or a summer food program. It is needed. You say, well, it is a modest program. I suppose if it was big, they would argue it is too big. But it is a modest program and it is needed.

Right now, I say to my friend from Pennsylvania, that in the ag function we have over $500 million in excess spending reductions beyond the levels required by the budget resolution. CBO estimates that eliminating this program will reduce spending over 6 years by $112 million. So there is plenty of excess savings in the Agriculture Committee's portion of this bill to cover this amendment. I hope that we will correct this bill to allow these very important start-up and expansion grants for school breakfast and summer food programs to continue. Thank you very much.

Mr. SANTORUM. Just one of the reasons we had more savings than the ag bill is because we had to meet a specific target in the last year. And to meet that target, we had to cut a little bit more than we needed to in the first few years to meet the outyear number. That is why if you change the numbers, then we do not have the numbers in the outyears. I say that in response.

I am willing to get the yeas and nays on this.

Mr. HARKIN. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. FORD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. FORD. May I ask the Senator from Iowa, did the Senator offer two amendments?

Mr. HARKIN. Yes. I offered two amendments.

Mr. FORD. Did we get the yeas and nays on the second one?

Mr. HARKIN. I did get the yeas and nays, but we had a unanimous consent to hold off until Tuesday.

Mr. SANTORUM. I say to the Senator from Iowa, in discussing the matter with the Senator from Delaware, we are prepared to accept the first Harkin amendment, the one that was pushed off until Tuesday and accept the amendment without the need for a vote, if that is acceptable to the Senator.

Mr. HARKIN. That would be very acceptable.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to vitiate the yeas and nays on the first Harkin amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been ordered on the second Harkin amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4915

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, we are now ready to accept the Harkin amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the Harkin amendment No. 4915.

The amendment (No. 4915) was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. SANTORUM. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, we have an amendment that is up from the Republican side. I understand that the Senator is not here. It is going to be offered by the acting floor manager. I do not know that we have anybody on our side. If the Senator wants to introduce it, then we would get the yeas and nays on it.

AMENDMENT NO. 4917

(Purpose: To ensure that recipients or caretakers of minor recipients of means-tested benefits programs are held responsible for ensuring that their minor children are up to date on immunizations as a condition for receiving welfare benefits from the taxpayers)

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk on behalf of the Senator from Missouri, Senator ASHCROFT.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SANTORUM] for Mr. ASHCROFT, proposes an amendment numbered 4917.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in chapter 9 of subtitle A, insert the following:

SEC. . SANCTIONS FOR FAILING TO ENSURE THAT MINOR CHILDREN ARE IMMUNIZED.

(a) TANF.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a State shall not be prohibited by the Federal Government from sanctioning a recipient of assistance under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act for failing to provide verification that such recipient's minor children have received appropriate immunizations against contagious diseases as required by the law of such State.

(2) EXCEPTION.—In the event that a State requires verification of immunizations, paragraph (1) shall not apply to a caretaker described in such paragraph who relies solely or partially upon spiritual means rather than medical treatment, in accordance with the religious beliefs of such caretaker.

(b) FOOD STAMPS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A caretaker recipient of assistance or benefits under the food stamp program, as defined in section 3(h) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977, shall provide verification that any dependent minor child residing in such recipient's household has received appropriate immunizations against contagious diseases as required by the law of the State in which the recipient resides.

(2) EXCEPTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to a caretaker described in such paragraph who relies solely or partially upon spiritual means rather than medical treatment, in accordance with the religious beliefs of such caretaker.

(3) INDIVIDUAL PENALTIES.—The failure of a caretaker described in paragraph (1) to comply with the requirement of such paragraph within the 6-month period beginning with the month that includes the date that the caretaker first receives benefits under the food stamp program shall result in a 20 percent reduction in the monthly amount of benefits paid under such program to such caretaker for each month beginning after such period, until the caretaker complies with the requirement of paragraph (1).

(c) SSI.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A caretaker of a minor child who receives, on their own behalf or on behalf of such child, payments under the supplemental security income program under title XVI of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1681 et seq.) shall provide verification that the child has received appropriate immunizations against contagious diseases as required by the law of the State in which the child resides.

(2) EXCEPTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to a caretaker described in such paragraph who relies solely or partially upon spiritual means rather than medical treatment, in accordance with the religious beliefs of such caretaker.

(3) INDIVIDUAL PENALTIES.—The failure of a caretaker described in paragraph (1) to comply with the requirement of such paragraph within the 6-month period beginning with the month that includes the date that the caretaker first receives, on their own behalf or on behalf of such child, payments under the supplemental security income program shall result in a 20 percent reduction in the monthly amount of each payment made under such program on behalf of the caretaker or such child for each month beginning after such period, until the caretaker complies with the requirement of paragraph (1).

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, in 1994, one out of every four 2-year-olds had not received the proper vaccinations. This statistic worsens appreciably in urban areas. For example, a 1995 survey of State health department clinics in Houston found that only 14 percent of the children were up-to-date on their immunizations.

Because these children are not being immunized, the Centers for Disease Control reported 1,537 needless and easily avoidable incidences of mumps in 1994.

Such a deplorable lack of basic preventive health care is inexcusable, particularly since immunizations are free in America.

The Vaccines for Children Program administered by the National Immunization Program of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention provides free vaccines to children under 18 who are eligible for Medicaid, or are uninsured or underinsured.

When a child in America is not immunized, it is entirely the fault of the parent. It is a blatantly irresponsible act not to immunize a child.

We should not be paying welfare recipients to abdicate their responsibility. The welfare system should encourage people to take care of their own.

Children are the future, and in order to break the cycle of dependence, children of welfare recipients need every break available.

All schools require immunization records for a child to be enrolled. An unimmunized child can be denied admission to school. And a child that doesn't go to school will probably end up on welfare.

What's wrong with requiring parents on welfare to have their children immunized? We shouldn't be paying parents to neglect their children.

This amendment allows States to sanction welfare recipients of TANF, and other States programs who do not immunize their children.

This amendment also requires States to sanction Food Stamps and SSI recipients who do not immunize their children.

Again, immunizations are free to Medicaid recipients and the uninsured in hospitals and clinics across the Nation, so there is simply no legitimate excuse for parents not to have their children immunized. Additionally, States think immunization requirements for government aid are a good idea.

According to the American Public Welfare Association 12 States have received Federal waivers to implement AFDC requirements for immunization.

For example: Delaware, immunization is required for pre-school children. Failure to comply results in $50 decrease per month in AFDC grant. Indiana, recipients must show proof within 12 months of AFDC application that children are immunized. Families in noncompliance are sanctioned $90 per month. Michigan sanctions AFDC families $25 per month if parents fail to immunize pre-school-age children according to State policy. Mississippi children under 6 must receive regular immunization and checkups or sanction of $25 per month applies. AFDC preschoolers in Texas must be immunized or the State may sanction the family $25 per child. And finally, in Virginia, AFDC recipients with children who have not been immunized receive fiscal sanctions of $50 for the first child and $25 for each additional child.

This amendment is the best means to ensure that all children everywhere are immunized against deadly, but easily controllable diseases such as mumps, tetanus, measles, polio, et cetera.

It is a first step to encouraging responsibility in a system that breeds decadence and dependence—a step upward on the ladder of opportunity out of our current welfare system's net of ensnarement.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I yield back what time we might have on this side.

Mr. SANTORUM. Likewise.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the Ashcroft amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. WELLSTONE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

AMENDMENT NO. 4918

(Purpose: To revise this legislation if it increases the number of impoverished children in this Nation)

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WELLSTONE] for himself and Mr. SIMON, proposes amendment numbered 4918.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place insert the following:

IMPOVERISHED CHILDREN PROVISION.—

“(A) REPORT BY THE SECRETARY, ACCOMPANIED BY LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall develop data and, by January 30, 1999, shall report to Congress with respect to whether the National child poverty rate for Fiscal Year 1998 is higher than it would have been had this Act not been implemented. If the Secretary determines that this rate has increased and that such increase is attributable to the implementation of provisions of this Act, then such report shall contain the Secretary's recommendations for legislation to halt this increase. The Secretary's report shall be made public and shall be accompanied by a legislative proposal in the form of a bill reflecting said recommendations.

“(B) CONGRESSIONAL ACTION.—

“(1) The bill described in (A) shall be introduced in each House of Congress by the Majority Leader or his designee upon submission and shall be referred to the committee or committees with jurisdiction in each House.

“(2) DISCHARGE.—If any committee to which is referred a bill described in paragraph (1) has not reported such bill at the end of 20 calendar days after referral, such committee shall be discharged from further consideration of such bill, and such bill shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the House involved.

“(3) FLOOR CONSIDERATION.—Any bill described in paragraph (1) placed on the calendar as a result of a committee's report or the provisions of paragraph (2) shall become the pending business of the House involved within 60 days after it has been placed on the calendar of such House, unless such House shall otherwise determine.”

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, this amendment is on behalf of myself and Senator SIMON. This amendment is a very simple and straightforward amendment. And it is my fervent hope that this amendment will have strong bipartisan support.

Mr. President, let me just assume—and I think it is probably a correct assumption—that there is not one Senator in this Chamber that wishes to impoverish any more children in America, that when people say that they think the passage of this bill will not hurt children, they mean it. I accept that as having been said in good faith.

Mr. President, today the Washington Post, in an editorial, said that this welfare reform bill could be a profound mistake and called upon all of us to be cautious, that one out of every eight children in America is covered by the AFDC program, the welfare program.

Mr. President, let me give you the context, and then let me go right to the amendment. The context is as follows. I think we are going to be very honest about this. As the old saying goes, people can be in honest disagreement about this bill. But the fact of the matter is, we do not know for certain. There are some ardent advocates for this welfare bill. And there are those who have spoken in strong opposition.

One of those Senators who has been most vocal in his opposition is Senator PATRICK MOYNIHAN from New York, who has been a giant in the field, who has studied welfare longer than any of the rest of us, who is an acknowledged expert, and who has enormous intellectual and political and personal integrity.

Senator MOYNIHAN argues that this in fact would mean that there would be more impoverished children in America. That is his view. That is not the view of every Senator.

Mr. President, what this amendment says is that Health and Human Services takes a look at what we have done over the next 2 years. I know that Senators do not want this to be the case. But if, in fact, as a result of some of the provisions in this legislation there are more impoverished children in America, that report comes back to us, and we fast track it. It comes back to the Congress, we fast track it, and it comes to the floor in 20 days, and we take action to correct the problem.

Now, Senators, please understand what I am saying. I wish there was time to summarize this tomorrow. I am assuming everybody in this Chamber—and I believe it has been operating in good faith; we just have some honest disagreements. But I do not think any of us know for certain.

What I am saying in this amendment is, at least have some safety net here or some fail-safe mechanism. At least be willing to evaluate what we have done. We cannot know what we do not want to know. We cannot be unwilling to study what we have done. We cannot be unwilling to have some sort of evaluation, have Health and Human Services study this, bring it back to us, and if, in fact, because of some of the provisions in this legislation, there are more impoverished children in America—that is what the Office of Management and Budget said about the last bill we passed—then we would take a look at that study, and we, not Health and Human Services, we, as legislators, would take the kind of corrective action that would be necessary to make sure we do not continue to cause this poverty among children in America.

Mr. President, I am really hopeful that there will be strong support for this. I think it is a most reasonable amendment. I think it would be reassuring to people in the country. Frankly, I think it is a way we can reassure ourselves. I offer this amendment, and I hope that it will be accepted.

I withhold the balance of my time and ask for a response from the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I do not see anything in this amendment that is necessary. We already get a variety of information from the Department of Health and Human Services, the Labor Department, and a whole lot of other agencies with respect to statistical information with respect to poverty rates and a whole variety of other factors dealing with children in poverty.

That information is compiled regularly and is made available to the Congress. So to have the Secretary of Health and Human Services redo that in some report as requested by the Senator from Minnesota seems to me to be unnecessary.

If, in fact, the poverty statistics over the 2-year-period, as described in this legislation, show an increase in the poverty rate among children, I guarantee you that there will be Members, maybe from both sides of the aisle if it is dramatic, who will come here to the floor and will be looking to make some changes in the welfare program.

I suggest we have seen increases in poverty with the current system on many occasions, almost continually over the past 30 years, and we have never done anything as dramatic as what the Senator from Minnesota is suggesting with this proposal. I think what we are seeing here is really nothing more than putting in some sort of structure in some very limited and constrained timing. Why not 2 years? Why not 5 years? Why not 1 year? It is hard to pull a number like 2 years out of the hat.

This is a program that, once implemented, will be implemented differently across this country because of the flexibility given in this bill. There will be programs that I think will be dramatically successful which will have tremendous impact on the poor in this country. There are those, in all likelihood, that will have modest success. I think it is important to let that play out. It is important to give the Congress the flexibility to be able to deal with that in a rational, measured way, by debate, instead of forcing them into a rather tight timeframe that is being designed here by the Senator from Minnesota.

For those reasons, I oppose the Wellstone amendment.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, the Senator from Pennsylvania evades the point. This amendment is not about collecting statistics about poverty in general. It is about this piece of legislation and doing something in the affirmative for children if, in fact, provisions in this piece of legislation should lead to an increase in poverty among children. Two years is hardly too tight a time line for children who might find themselves in more difficult economic circumstances because of what we have done.

In all due respect, I find it absolutely amazing that Senators who make the argument that this is going to be a piece of legislation that will not hurt children would now be unwilling to support a study to see whether, in fact, provisions in this piece of legislation are going to impoverish more children. You cannot evade the point.

I ask my colleague, what would be the harm in such a study? Gunnar Myrdal said, "Ignorance is never random." Sometimes I guess we do not know what we do not want to know.

Before I move on to my other amendment, is there any particular response as to why?

Mr. FORD. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. FORD. We are starting something new, and it is down a path that we are not sure how it will turn out. I think that is the Senator's point.

The States will be doing this and not the Federal Government, as such, because in this legislation we would be giving block grants. I think we ought to know how that is faring out there.

I remember when the States were in charge of nursing homes. Because it was so bad, the Federal Government took it over and set higher standards so we could take care of our senior citizens better. Is it not the point that we do not know what will happen?

Like the Senator from Pennsylvania said, some programs may be good, some may be mediocre, some may flunk. Do we not need to know and respond, particularly for children? Is that not the point the Senator is trying to make?

Mr. WELLSTONE. I say to my colleague from Kentucky, absolutely.

I will give but one other example. It was President Richard Nixon, a Republican, who said we better have some national standards for food stamps, because we had all these reports in the mid and late 1960's. I am sure my colleague from Pennsylvania has read about those reports on children with extended bellies and children suffering from rickets and scurvy. We decided there better be some national standards.

If we are going to do something quite new, and we have Senators of the stature of Senator PATRICK MOYNIHAN who say this will impoverish more children, and we have two studies from OMB and Health and Human Services saying the same thing, I do not wish to cast judgment on it, but I cannot for the life of me understand why my colleagues would not want to at least have Health and Human Services study it and bring back a report to us, and if, in fact, some of the provisions of this legislation have increased poverty among children, we take corrective action.

My colleagues have said that will not happen, so why would you want to vote against this? Why would you not want to have a study? Why would you not want to have some measuring of statistics? Why would we not want to err on the side of caution when it comes to what we are doing, as it affects the poorest children in America? Why would we not want to err on the side of caution?

The silence is deafening; is there a response?

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I am happy to respond to the Senator from Minnesota. The answer simply is, like every other welfare program that has been instituted in this country, there are volumes of studies as to its impact by a variety of organizations from the left to the right, including the Government. I do not think there will be any shortage of information as to the efficacy of this new direction in welfare. That is No. 1.

No. 2, what your amendment provides for is not only reports, and I suggest duplicative reports, but congressional action, discharge for consideration, an expedited procedure, very expedited procedure for legislation, which is, again, I think, an overreaction and just not necessary.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Well, Mr. President, I will finish up with one other quick amendment with my time slot. First, I will respond by saying one more time that it just evades the point. It is not a question of academics or whether there will be studies. It is a question of whether or not we are willing, as an institution, as a body, to say we are doing something very different. We want to make sure that in this legislation we pass we have some provision here to take a look at what we have done, so that the results will come back to us, so that if in fact, God forbid, we have done something that impoverished more children, we will take quick action to correct the problem. I cannot, for the life of me, understand the opposition to such a proposal. I am really shocked. Excuse me for my indignation, but I am.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to lay this amendment aside and to offer my other amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FRIST). Is there objection?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, and I will not object, but I want to make some comments.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I am sorry. I yield for that purpose.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator withdraw the unanimous consent request for the moment?

Mr. WELLSTONE. Yes. I thank the Chair.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, every Senator here is concerned about the children of America, and we are particularly concerned about those children that are not having the kind of opportunity we all think they deserve. So I do not think the comments should be that we do not all seek the same benefits for the children in our country.

Just let me point out that the legislation reported out by the Finance Committee already provides for research, evaluation, and national studies. In section 413(a), we specifically provide that the Secretary shall conduct research on the benefits, efforts, and costs of operating different State programs funded under this part, including time limits relating to eligibility. Not only do we provide for studies, but we provide $15 million for each of the fiscal years from 1998 through 2001, with the purpose of paying the cost of conducting such research, for the cost of developing and evaluating innovative approaches for reducing welfare dependency and increasing the well-being of minor children under section (b).

So we already have in the legislation ample provisions for studies to be made to determine how effective our reform programs are. We all want that information. That is the reason it is contained in this bill.

However, we do object to the expedited procedure, whereby the Secretary of Health makes recommendations and they are put on an accelerated track to be considered by the Congress. I know of no instance where this kind of procedure has been used. Yes, we have had accelerated procedures in certain limited circumstances, such as trade bills. But the recommendations come from the President of the United States. I, for one, think that it is appropriate for the recommendations of these studies to go through the regular process of Congress.

My distinguished friend and colleague from Minnesota talks about the timeframe. Just let me point out that the present program has been in effect for about 30 years, and we have studies and recommendations from the CBO that show that if we do not do something about reform, that another 3 million children will be on welfare in the next 9 years. So do not talk to me about the timeframe. Let us all agree that we do want the studies, and we do want the independent analyses as to how these programs are working. But let us use the Congress and its normal processes, including its committees, to determine what is appropriate, rather than to give this kind of authority to a nonelected Member of the Cabinet.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I have just a quick response, and we will move on. First of all, I say to my friend from Delaware that to talk in general terms about studies and evaluations and not to connect it specifically to the issue that I raised in this amendment, as to whether or not we will in fact be willing to look at the very real and important questions as to whether this legislation or provisions in this legislation have impoverished more children, and then take corrective action, again, it misses the point. It is not a response to that very real concern.

Second of all, this it is not an agency that takes the action. Health and Human Services reports back to this body, and we are the ones that correct the problem. We are the ones that correct the problem. So, again, I do not really believe that the comments of my colleague are responsive to what this amendment speaks to.

Finally, on welfare—I cannot resist—and then we can move on. But this reference to the CBO study. With all due respect, when I hear my colleagues talk about welfare and how welfare caused poverty, it is tantamount to making the argument that Social Security caused people to grow old. You have the cause and effect mixed up. Every 30 seconds, a child is born into poverty in this country. We are getting close to one out of every four children. That is true. There are a whole host of reasons why we have this poverty. Welfare is a response to it. To argue that the welfare system causes the poverty is like saying the Social Security system causes people to be aged. You just have the cause and effect mixed up.

I yield the floor.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I yield back all our time on the amendment.

The amendment is not germane to the provisions of the reconciliation bill pursuant to 305(b)(2) of the Budget Act. I raise a point of order against the pending amendment.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable section of that Act for the consideration of the pending amendment.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4919

(Purpose: To ensure that States which receive block grants under Part A of title IV of the Social Security Act establish standards and procedures regarding individuals receiving assistance under such part who have a history of domestic abuse, who have been victimized by domestic abuse, and who have been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty)

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. WELLSTONE], for himself and Mrs. MURRAY, proposes an amendment numbered 4919.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of section 402(a) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 2103(a)(1), add the following:

“(7) CERTIFICATION OF STANDARDS AND PROCEDURES TO ENSURE THAT THE STATE WILL SCREEN FOR AND IDENTIFY DOMESTIC VIOLENCE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State that the State has established and is enforcing standards and procedures to—

“(i) screen and identify individuals receiving assistance under this part with a history of domestic violence while maintaining the confidentiality of such individuals;

“(ii) refer such individuals to counseling and supportive services; and

“(iii) waive, pursuant to a determination of good cause, other program requirements such as time limits (for so long as necessary) for individuals receiving assistance, residency requirements, child support cooperation requirements, and family cap provisions, in cases where compliance with such requirements would make it more difficult for individuals receiving assistance under this part to escape domestic violence or unfairly penalize such individuals who are or have been victimized by such violence, or individuals who are at risk of further domestic violence.

“(B) DOMESTIC VIOLENCE DEFINED.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘domestic violence’ has the same meaning as the term ‘battered or subjected to extreme cruelty’, as defined in section 408(a)(8)(C)(iii).

“(8) CERTIFICATION REGARDING ELIGIBILITY OF INDIVIDUAL WHO HAS BEEN BATTERED OR SUBJECTED TO EXTREME CRUELTY.—A certification by the chief executive officer of the State that the State has established and is enforcing standards and procedures to ensure that in the case of an individual who has been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty, as determined under section 408(a)(8)(C)(iii), the State will determine the eligibility of such individual for assistance under this part based solely on such individual’s income.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I will try to be brief. This amendment speaks to an issue that we, as the Senate, have really, I think, taken some important steps and major strides forward in addressing, and that is domestic violence in our country, violence within families that effect women, children, and sometimes men—usually women and children.

Mr. President, this amendment would ensure that States that receive the block grant under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act establish standards and procedures regarding individuals receiving assistance who have a history of domestic abuse, who have been victimized by domestic abuse and have been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty.

There was a study done by the Taylor Institute in Chicago that documented that between 50 to 80 percent of women receiving AFDC are current or past victims of domestic abuse. In other words, for all too many of these women and children welfare, imperfections and all, is the only alternative to a very dangerous home.

So what this amendment would say is that States would be required to screen and identify individuals receiving assistance with a history of domestic violence, refer such individuals to counseling and supportive services, and waive for good cause other program requirements for so long as necessary.

This is what the States would essentially end up doing. It would all be done at the State level.

Mr. President, we cannot have “one size fit all,” as I have heard many of my colleagues so say. It took Monica Seles 2 years to play tennis again. Can you imagine what it would be like as a result of her stabbing—to be beaten up over and over and over again; can you imagine what it would be like to be a small child and see that happen in your home over and over again?

I want to make sure that these women and these children throughout our country, for whom the welfare system has been sometimes the only alternative to these very dangerous homes, receive the kind of special services and assistance that they need. In the absence of the passing of this amendment, all too many women and children could find themselves forced back into these very dangerous homes.

So it is a reasonable amendment. It is one that speaks to the very real problem of violence within homes in our country. It would be an extremely important, I think, modification of this welfare bill that would provide assistance that is really needed by many women, many children, and many families in our country.

I hope that this amendment would be agreed to and would receive strong support, bipartisan support.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, there is no objection to this amendment on this side. We are willing to accept the amendment.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Pennsylvania.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Minnesota.

The amendment (No. 4919) was agreed to.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I have a unanimous consent agreement to propound to dispose of two amendments which have been agreed to on both sides of the aisle. They are Senator FAIRCLOTH's amendment to clarify that a welfare recipient may provide child care services to satisfy the bill's work requirements.

The second one is Senator COATS' amendment allowing welfare recipients to establish individual development accounts.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order for me to offer these two amendments which I now send to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, has this amendment been cleared?

Mr. ROTH. Yes. Both have been cleared.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I have been informed that the first amendment has not been cleared on this side.

Mr. ROTH. I understand that, although they have been cleared, a question has been raised.

So I withdraw my request until clarified.

Mr. DEWINE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

AMENDMENT NO. 4920, WITHDRAWN

(Purpose: To amend the Social Security Act to clarify that the reasonable efforts requirement includes consideration of the health and safety of the child)

Mr. DEWINE. I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Ohio [Mr. DEWINE] proposes an amendment numbered 4920.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of chapter 7 of subtitle A of title II, add the following:

SECTION 2703. CLARIFICATION OF REASONABLE EFFORTS REQUIREMENT BEFORE PLACEMENT IN FOSTER CARE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 471(a)(15) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 671(a)(15)) is amended to read as follows:

“(15) provides that, in each case—

“(A) reasonable efforts will be made—

“(i) prior to the placement of the child in foster care, to prevent or eliminate the need for removing the child from the child's home; and

“(ii) to make it possible for the child to return home; and

“(B) in determining reasonable efforts, the best interests of the child, including the child's health and safety, shall be of primary concern;”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendment made by subsection (a) shall be effective on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) EXCEPTION.—In the case of a State plan for foster care and adoption assistance under part E of title IV of the Social Security Act which the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines requires State legislation (other than legislation appropriating funds) in order for the plan to meet the additional requirement imposed by the amendment made by subsection (a), such plan shall not be regarded as failing to comply with the requirements of such title solely on the basis of its failure to meet this additional requirement before the first day of the first calendar quarter beginning after the close of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of the enactment of this Act. For purposes of the previous sentence, in the case of a State that has a 2-year legislative session, each year of such session shall be deemed to be a separate regular session of the State legislature.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I intend to talk for approximately 10 minutes about this amendment, and then, for reasons which I am going to discuss in just a moment, withdraw the amendment. But I want to discuss it. I inform my colleagues that it will take approximately 10 minutes.

Mr. President, my amendment deals with the issue of foster care. It is my understanding that because the Senate bill has no language in this bill on the issue of foster care that my amendment would be considered not to be germane. The House bill does deal with foster care. Therefore, if we had a House bill before us it obviously would be germane. Because of this, after a few brief remarks, I am going to withdraw this amendment.

But I would like to discuss tonight what I consider to be a very important issue. It is the issue that my amendment addresses. It is the subject of a freestanding bill that I have just a few moments ago introduced. I believe that the idea contained in the bill, the idea contained in my amendment, must be acted upon; if not in this bill then in a subsequent bill. And I have previously discussed this issue at length on the Senate floor. I want to take just a few moments now to revisit the issue, and to talk to my colleagues about it.

In 1980, Congress passed the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act, known as CWA. That 1980 act has done a great deal of good. It increased the resources available to struggling families. It increased the supervision of children in the foster care system, and it gave financial support to people to encourage them to adopt children with special needs.

Mr. President, while the law has done a great deal of good, many experts are coming to believe that this law has actually had some bad unintended consequences. The bad unintended consequences were not because of the way the law was written and not because of the way the lawmakers intended in 1980 that it happen, but, frankly, because the law has been grossly misinterpreted.

Under the 1980 act, for a State to be eligible for Federal matching funds for foster care expenditures, the State must have a plan for the provision of child welfare services. And that plan must be approved by the Secretary of HHS. This plan must provide, and I quote. Here is the pertinent language, referring now to foster care:

In each case reasonable efforts will be made, (A), prior to the placement of a child in foster care to prevent or eliminate the need for removal of the child from his home; and, (B), to make it possible for the child to return to his home.

In other words, Mr. President, the law very correctly says we should try family reunification. The law put money behind that. That is the right thing to do. But, Mr. President, this law has been misinterpreted. In other words, Mr. President, no matter what the particular circumstances of the household may be, the State must make reasonable efforts to keep it together and to put it back together, if it falls apart.

What constitutes reasonable efforts? Here is where the rub comes. How far does the State have to go? This has not been defined by Congress nor has it been defined by HHS. This failure to define what constitutes reasonable efforts has had a very important and very damaging practical result. There is strong evidence to suggest that in the absence of a definition reasonable efforts have become in some cases extraordinary efforts, unreasonable efforts; efforts to keep families together at all costs. These are families, Mr. President, that many times are families in name only and parents that are parents in name only.

In the last few months I have traveled extensively throughout the State of Ohio talking to social work professionals; talking to people who are in the field every day dealing with this issue.

In these discussions, I have found that there is great disparity in how the law is being interpreted by judges and by social workers. In my home State of Ohio we have 88 counties, and I would venture to say the law is being interpreted 88 different ways and in some counties with many juvenile judges it is interpreted differently within that same county by different judges.

Let me give you an example. This is the easiest way that I can explain it. I posed this hypothetical, which it turns out in some cases, unfortunately, is not a hypothetical, but I made it up. I posed a hypothetical to representatives of children's services in both rural parts of Ohio and urban counties.

Here is my hypothetical. The mother, Mary, is a 28-year-old, crack-addicted individual who has seven children. Steve, the father, 29-year-old father of the children, is an abusive alcoholic, and all seven of their children have been taken away, taken away permanently by the county, by the State over a period of time. In each child's case, courts have decided these people cannot have this child; they are abusive; it is dangerous for the child. Not only that, we are taking them away permanently. The mother gives birth now to an eighth child. This newborn tests positive for crack. Therefore, it is very obvious that the mother is still addicted to crack. The father is still an alcoholic. Those are the facts.

Pretend for a moment that you work for the county children's services department. Here is the question, the question I posed to numerous people across Ohio. Does the law allow you to get the new baby out of the household, and if you do, should you file for permanent custody so that baby can be adopted? Can you file for permanent custody so that baby can be adopted?

The answer, I believe, will surprise and shock you. In fact, I was surprised at the response I got when I asked a number of Ohio social work professionals that very question. The answer varied from county to county but I heard too much "no" in the answers I got. Some officials said they could apply for emergency custody of the baby, they would get emergency custody and take the child away on a temporary basis, but that they would have to make a continued effort—do you believe this? They would then have to make a continued effort to send the baby back to the family, back to the mother, back to the father.

Other social workers said if they went to court to get custody of the baby, they probably would not be able to get even temporary custody of this little child. Most shocking of all, Mr. President, is the issue of adoption. I asked then with this hypothetical, with the seven children already having been taken away, with the eighth child now testing one day positive for crack, mother clearly still on crack, showing no signs she is going to get off, father continues to be an alcoholic, continues to be an abusive alcoholic, with all of those facts, how soon could I expect that this poor little baby would be eligible to be adopted?

Most shocking of all is the answer I got. The lowest figure I got was 2 years. That was the best I got; it would take 2 years for this child to be eligible to be adopted. In one urban county in the State of Ohio—and this is not unusual to Ohio—I was told it would take 5 years before that child was eligible to be adopted—5 years.

One social worker, just one out of the ones I asked, told me that her department would move immediately for permanent custody of the baby, but she said their success would depend on the particular judge that is assigned to the case.

Mr. President, should our Federal law really push the envelope this far? Should this Federal law really require extraordinary efforts? Should it require extraordinary efforts be made to keep that family together, efforts that any one of us clearly would not consider to be reasonable based on past history? I had one social worker look me in the eye and say, "Senator, the problem is the way our courts interpret this law, we can't look at any history. We can't learn from the history of that family. We can't learn from the history of that abusive father or that abusive mother. We have to start over again each time."

It is clear that after 16 years of experience with the law, there is a great deal of confusion as to how the act applies. Again, I do not believe that is the fault of the authors. I think that is just the way it has been interpreted. I would not interpret the law that way, but the fact is after 16 years we know it is being interpreted that way and is going to be interpreted that way.

My legislation is very simple, very short. My legislation would clarify once and for all the intent of Congress in the 1980 act. My legislation would amend that language in the following way. I am going to read in a moment what my language would add. I want to first state to the Senate that I would not change any of the language in the current law. I would add to it, but I would not change it. I would not change the requirement for reasonable efforts to be made to reunify a family. That is a positive thing. That is something that we should try whenever it is reasonable to do so. The people who make that decision are the people on the front lines, the social workers, the children's service agencies, the people who have to make life-and-death decisions. They are the ones who are going to have to make the decision. I just want to clarify the law and to get it back to where I think the framers of the law, people who wrote the law in this Congress in 1980, intended it to be. So I would add the following, after the current language:

In determining reasonable efforts, the best interests of the child, including the child's health and safety, shall be a primary concern.

Let me read it again:

In determining reasonable efforts, the best interests of the child, including the child's health and safety, shall be a primary concern.

I think that settles it; it clarifies it. Again, I think it does what the framers wanted.

In conclusion, Mr. President, the 1980 act was a good bill. There are some families that need a little help if they are going to stay together, and it is right for us to help them. That is what the Child Welfare Act did. But by now it should be equally clear that the framers of the 1980 act did not intend for extraordinary, unreasonable efforts to be made to reunite children with their abusers.

As Peter Digre, the Director of the Los Angeles County Department of Children and Family Services, testified at a recent House hearing, "We cannot ignore the fact that at least 22 percent of the time infants who are reunited with their families are subjected to new episodes of abuse, neglect or endangerment."

That was not the intent of Congress in the 1980 law, but too often that law is being misinterpreted in a way that is trapping these children in abusive households.

I believe we should leave no doubt about the will of the American people on this issue affecting the lives of America's children. The legislation I am proposing today would put the children first.

Now, Mr. President, for the reasons that I have stated in the beginning, I reluctantly ask the Chair to withdraw the amendment.

I ask unanimous consent to have the amendment withdrawn.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendment is withdrawn.

The amendment (No. 4920) was withdrawn.

AMENDMENT NO. 4911

Mr. DEWINE. I yield the floor.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent it be in order to ask unanimous consent to order the yeas and nays on amendment 4911.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. SANTORUM. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I would make a series of notions to strike provisions in S. 1956.

Mr. SANTORUM. Will the Senator from Florida agree to a time agreement at this point?

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, 40 minutes, equally divided.

Mr. SANTORUM. I ask unanimous consent to have 40 minutes equally divided on the Graham motion without a second-degree amendment in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. GRAHAM. I would modify that. It will require more than a single motion in order to strike the sections which I intend to strike from title II, chapter C, of S. 1956. So could the reference to "motions" be placed in the plural?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, the purpose of the series of motions which I will make, which I hope will be considered as a single motion for purposes of our final vote, is to strike from this legislation those sections which relate to the eligibility of legal immigrants—legal immigrants—to receive various Federal needs-based benefits. I do this because to have this language in this welfare bill is both redundant and punitive in terms of those communities which have large numbers of legal immigrants and will have significant costs shifted to them as a result of this legislation.

I am joined in this effort by Senators SIMON, MURRAY and FEINSTEIN, who also recognize it would be inappropriate, and a duplication, to consider matters which have already been resolved by this body.

As we will all recall, it was only a few weeks ago, May 2, to be precise, that the Senate passed the Immigration Control and Financial Responsibility Act. This act, which had as its primary objective controlling illegal immigration into the United States, also contained provisions that restrict the rights of legal aliens to a variety of Federal needs-based programs.

This legislation was the result of extensive hearings and markups in the Judiciary Committee. It was subjected to exhaustive floor debate which lasted well over a week in the Senate. The majority of the time spent on the immigration bill dealt with the public benefits for legal and illegal immigrants. The availability of Supplemental Social Security Income, Aid for Families with Dependent Children, Medicaid and Medicare for immigrants, was examined during several floor votes which resulted in a comprehensive Senate bill.

I am going to say, I hope with not excessive arrogance, that this is a subject which I know something about. I was Governor of Florida in 1980 when over 125,000 immigrants in various legal categories came to my State in a period of a few weeks. Since that time, it has been estimated that the total unreimbursed cost of that incident to the State of Florida was in excess of $1.5 billion. Those were costs associated with health care, social services, education, housing, job training—a variety of activities which were necessary in order to facilitate the assimilation of that large population into the population of the State of Florida.

The State of Florida has tried for the better part of 15 years to get recognition of those costs which were incurred because of Federal immigration decisions, but which ended up being an unreimbursed, unfunded mandate on the State of Florida. This case finally ended up in the U.S. Supreme Court earlier this year. The decision of the U.S. Supreme Court: This is not a judicial issue. If the State of Florida, and other States which might be similarly affected, is to be dealt with, it has to be dealt with by a political judgment, not by a judicial remedy.

What distresses me is after having spent weeks shaping the bill which was intended to provide that type of structured legal response by the Federal Government when such impositions are placed by Federal action on a particular community or State, we now, in a bill which is going to be subject to 20 hours of debate—here it is after 10:30 at night—we are about to substantially rewrite, discard the fundamental policy premise of our previous actions and almost quadruple the amount of the unfunded mandate we are going to impose on affected States. In addition to the inappropriateness of us rejecting our previous work, we are making some very significant policy decisions without the kind of attention that we afforded to our earlier action on immigration.

What are some of those decisions we are about to make? In the previous bill, we used the concept of deeming. I wish the Senator from Wyoming were with us this evening, because he explained in great detail and on a repetitive basis what the theory of deeming is. It is that if a person sponsors a legal alien to come into this country, that that person should assume the financial obligations that will guarantee that their sponsored legal alien will not become a public charge.

Therefore, in terms of evaluating whether that legal alien qualifies—for instance, for Medicaid—you would add the income of the sponsor to the income of the legal alien. And if the combination of those incomes exceeded the eligibility threshold, then the legal alien would no longer qualify for that particular needs-based service. That concept of deeming that we worked so carefully on in the immigration bill is largely replaced in this legislation by absolute prohibitions against legal aliens being able to access these Federal programs.

Much of the legislation that we considered earlier and passed on May 2 was based on a recommendation of the U.S. Immigration Commission, which was established by act of Congress in 1990, and which issued a series of reports in the mid-1990's. This report, issued in 1994, entitled "U.S. Immigration Policy: Restoring Credibility," while it spoke well of the concept of deeming as a means of assigning responsibility for legal aliens, went on to say:

However, circumstances may arise after an immigrant's entry that create a pressing need for public health: unexpected illnesses, injuries sustained because of serious accident, loss of employment, death in the family. Under such circumstances, legal immigrants should be eligible for public benefits if they meet other eligibility criteria. We are not prepared to remove the safety net from under individuals who we hope will become full members of our polity.

That is precisely what this legislation does. It removes the social net.

This also will make a very significant difference in the dollar amount of unfunded costs shifted to the States. Under the bill we passed as immigration reform, the cost over 7 years was $5.6 billion.

This bill will impose an unfunded mandate of $23 billion over the next 7 years on States. Mr. President, in deference to the limited time that we have and the lateness of the hour, I will not unduly burden the Senate with the reports which I have, but I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a statement from the National Association of Public Hospitals and Health Systems which outlines what the costs are going to be just in the one sector of health care institutions which are going to be a principal target of these unfunded mandates.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF PUBLIC HOSPITALS AND HEALTH SYSTEMS IN SUPPORT OF SENATOR GRAHAM'S AMENDMENT

The National Association of Public Hospitals and Health Systems (NAPH) strongly supports Senator Graham's amendment, co-sponsored by Senator Simon, to strike Title IV from the welfare reform legislation. NAPH is strongly opposed to the legal immigrant provisions in the welfare reform bill because barring legal immigrants from Medicaid eligibility for five years and deeming legal immigrants out of Medicaid eligibility until citizenship would jeopardize the health care safety net in many urban areas.

Public hospitals would still treat immigrants but receive no reimbursement. Most low income legal immigrants cannot afford health insurance. Because of the legislation, however, all legal aliens will be ineligible for Medicaid.

Public hospitals would have new burdens of uncompensated care. The bar on Medicaid eligibility and Medicaid deeming would lead to an increase in the number of uninsured patients and exacerbate an already tremendous burden of uncompensated care on public hospitals and other providers who treat large numbers of low income patients. This is a cost shift from the federal government to state and local entities and providers.

Public hospitals would bear the costs of welfare reform. The cost shift created by the welfare legislation would disproportionately fall on public hospitals in states with large numbers of legal immigrants, such as Florida, California, Texas, New York, and Illinois. Public hospitals in states with lower levels of immigration would also bear the costs, because legal immigrants are part of almost every community.

There would be new public health risks. The loss of Medicaid coverage means that the amount of preventive care provided to legal immigrants would be drastically reduced, thereby exposing entire communities to communicable diseases while increasing the overall cost of providing necessary care.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, there are two other aspects of the policy shifts in this legislation. The immigration bill contained the shift in eligibility, the constriction of eligibility based on deeming for legal aliens in order to generate funds that would then be used to finance the programs that were authorized in the illegal immigration sections of that bill to better protect our borders. What we are about to do here is to take all the money that is in the immigration bill that is intended to be used for border enforcement and divert it for the purposes of this welfare reform bill.

So all of the promises that we made, for instance, to the people along the Southwest border, that we are going to have more Border Patrol agents, fencing, and other steps to enforce our borders against illegal immigration are going to be ashen, because we, by this action, have taken all the money that we have provided to finance those enhancements to our borders. It is, in part, for that reason, I suspect, that Senator FEINSTEIN, who has been such a leader in the efforts to protect our borders, is a cosponsor of this amendment.

Finally, I suggest, Mr. President, that this is a very clear back-door way to accomplish the same objective that this Senate on several occasions rejected when we were debating the immigration bill, and that is a sharp reduction on the rights of legal immigration into this country which we know is primarily the right to reunify families.

Why is this a back-door constraint on legal immigration and particularly family reunification? The reason is because we are making it so financially onerous for sponsors. We are raising the specter of their own impoverishment as a result of bringing a loved one, a child, a spouse, a parent into this country that we are going to effectively, through coercion, accomplish the same thing that this Senate, by direct action, refused to do, which was to make it more difficult for legal aliens to reunite with their families.

So, Mr. President, this amendment, this series of motions to strike will eliminate those sections of the legislation that relate to the eligibility of legal aliens to a variety of Federal benefits. I underscore that this is not to say that we are not going to restrain those benefits, but we would do so through the immigration bill that we have passed, a bill that had the considered judgment of this Senate as opposed to doing it through a welfare reform bill where this matter is getting virtually no consideration.

We are going to do it through the concept of deeming rather than the concept of a total prohibition. We are going to do it at a reasonable level of $5.6 billion which I personally think is, in itself, excessive, but pales in comparison to the $23 billion of reduction that is contained in this welfare bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 4921

(Purpose: To strike the provisions restricting welfare and public benefits for aliens)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk, and I ask unanimous consent that the time I have used thus far be counted against my time on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Florida [Mr. GRAHAM], for himself, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. SIMON, Mrs. MURRAY and Mrs. BOXER, proposes an amendment numbered 4941.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

Beginning on page 562 strike line 5 through the end of line 23 on page 567.

Beginning on page 567 strike line 14 through the end of page 582 line 2.

Beginning on page 585 line 13 strike all through the end of line 25 on page 587.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. SANTORUM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I think this is an area where there is just a disagreement in philosophy. I respect the Senator from Florida, and there probably is not a Member in this Chamber who knows more about the difficulty in dealing with a large number of legal immigrants in this country than the former Governor of Florida. But I think there is just a philosophical difference here, or a difference of what we believe is fair and equitable in this country.

What we are talking about is a particular class of legal immigrants. We are not talking about refugees, people who come to this country seeking refuge from persecution in their homeland. All refugees are excluded from the provisions of this bill. In other words, they are fully entitled to the array of social welfare benefits provided by the Federal Government.

Asylees, for example, the two Cuban baseball players—they are probably not going to need any social welfare benefits given their talent level, but if they were not so talented and were here in this country claiming political asylum, they would continue to be eligible for a variety of welfare benefits.

We are, in a sense, to my understanding, unique in that respect around the world. There are, to my knowledge, no other countries that do provide welfare benefits to legal immigrants and their noncitizens in their country. So, in a sense, we are keeping very much with the tradition of our country, with the Statue of Liberty when we suggest that those who are under persecution at home, that those who are in need of this country as a beacon of freedom are, in fact, provided for by this country. So I think that is something we should all agree on, be proud of and, obviously, continue, and we do that in this bill.

What we do not continue in this bill, and I think wisely do not continue, is to continue to provide benefits to what are called sponsored immigrants. Sponsored immigrants are immigrants who come to this country, and almost all come to this country through a family unification provision, which is to unify a family, whether it is a spouse or a child or a mother or a father or a sister or a brother. They come to this country to unify a family, and when they do so, the citizen of this country, who is the sponsor, signs a document. The document says that I will take financial responsibility for this person who I want to bring to this country for a period of 5 years, and that all of my assets are deemed available and in the possession, so to speak, constructive possession of the person coming into this country for purposes of evaluating whether that person is eligible for welfare or other Government benefits. That is current law.

But the problem with this whole agreement is it is not legally enforceable, and they are not enforced. In fact, one hand does not know what the other hand is doing. The welfare department has no idea what the immigration status is, and, in fact, these benefits are handed out without really much knowledge of the immigration status of the individual involved.

What we are seeing—and the Senator from New York and the Senator from New Mexico discussed this earlier today—is a trend. I say it is even more than a trend, it is an avalanche, and the avalanche is elderly family reunification, elderly being the bringing over of mom or dad to this country.

Mom or dad being 60 or 70 or 80 years of age, coming to this country, you know, the doting son signs the sponsor agreement. And lo and behold, mom, who is disabled, ends up on SSI. Or if you are elderly, because you qualify when you are over 65, you end up on SSI. The Federal Government and the taxpayers of this country become the retirement village supporters of the entire world.

I do not think that is what the intent of these provisions was for. I think we have seen a real pattern of abuse here of a document that is not legally enforceable, which is the sponsorship agreement, and a tremendous number of people coming over here and using the SSI system as, in fact, the retirement system for many people all across the world. So what we have said is that we do not want to continue to have this incentive.

We, as members of the Ways and Means Committee over in the other body, heard testimony on numerous occasions about how it was well known—and in fact it went throughout many refugee camps in Southeast Asia and other places; that was one of the items of testimony—about how this was this great system that America had, that you can get over here and you could array yourself in all these wonderful benefits.

People should come to this country because they want the benefits of our society, not the benefits of our welfare system. I think that is where we really have to draw the line here. So I think we have held up our responsibility to the fabric of our society, which is to invite those who are in need to come here, and we will in fact help you get started.

But I think we have drawn the line saying, if you want to bring a member of your family over and you sign a document saying that you will take financial responsibility for them, live up to the document, provide for them. In fact, if you want—after 5 years, under current law, you are eligible for citizenship. If you apply for citizenship, you do what is necessary to prepare yourself for citizenship, and comply and apply and pass all your tests, you can, too, be eligible for the wide variety of welfare programs that we have in this country.

But, I mean, we talk in terms of people coming here for welfare. The fact is, the vast majority of people do not come here for welfare. They come here because America is the land of opportunity, and unfortunately what we have seen is because of the abuse in this area, it has caused a lot of some of the anti-immigrant feelings that are seen in many areas of the country and by many people in this country.

I think what we have a responsibility to do—I joined with Senator DEWINE and Senator ABRAHAM on this side of the aisle, I know Senator GRAHAM and others on the other side of the aisle, in not restricting the caps on immigration. I am proimmigration. I am the son of an immigrant. I am not one of these people who says, "I'm in. OK. Close the door." I believe immigration is important to the future of this country.

But I believe if we have programs that are abused, if we have programs that in fact call into question the immigration policy in this country, that cast a broad shadow over immigration in general, we have a responsibility to the taxpayers, No. 1, but also to the sentiment of immigration in this country, No. 2, to clean up the mess, to put a better face on immigration, to show that we have our act together in providing immigration to those who truly are in need, but not to those who are abusing the system.

If we clean that up, I think we improve the image of immigration and there is less pressure on lowering those caps and doing other things that I think could be harmful with respect to the area of immigration and, I think, save the taxpayers a whole bundle of money in the process.

I think those are all very positive things that happen. That is one of the reasons that this provision that is in this bill is included in the Democrat substitute and has been included in, I think, all the House bills that have been considered.

I think it has very strong bipartisan support. While I think the Senator from Florida is well-intentioned and certainly is, I think, sensitive to the needs of the many thousands of immigrants who are in the State of Florida, I think we have taken a judicious swipe at this issue and have cut appropriately. I hope we will support the underlying bill and be in opposition to the amendment of the Senator from Florida. I reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. GRAHAM. Will the Senator from Pennsylvania yield for a question?

Mr. SANTORUM. I will be happy to.

Mr. GRAHAM. Did the Senator from Pennsylvania state that these provisions that are not bars to eligibility only apply to those persons who come into the country with a sponsor who has assumed the financial obligation?

Mr. SANTORUM. I mean, I have not combed over the Finance Committee bill, but that has been my understanding all along.

Mr. GRAHAM. Will the Senator please turn to section 2402, which is one of the sections that my motion would strike?

Mr. SANTORUM. Can you tell me what page that is on?

Mr. GRAHAM. Page 234 on my copy, but at a different page—

Mr. SANTORUM. I have section 2402 before me.

Mr. GRAHAM. It states that:

Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in paragraph (2), an alien who is a qualified alien (as defined in section 2431) is not eligible for any specified Federal program (as defined in paragraph (3)).

So thus we then have to go to section 2431 to determine what the definition is of a "qualified alien." Subparagraph (b) of that section says:

For purposes of this chapter, the term "qualified alien" means an alien who, at the time the alien applies for, receives, or attempts to receive a Federal public benefit, is—

Among other things—

(2) an alien who is granted asylum under section 208 . . .

(3) a refugee who is admitted to the United States under section 207 . . .

(4) an alien who is paroled into the United States under section 212(d)(5) . . .

None of these people have a sponsor. If I have misread the language of this section, I will appreciate being corrected. But that is a very fundamental issue as to who is intended to be covered.

Mr. SANTORUM. What I think this provision says is they are eligible for a 5-year exemption under the law, and then they have to become citizens.

Mr. GRAHAM. The Senator said the only people this applied to were those who had a sponsor who could assume responsibility. I understood the Senator to say specifically, for instance, they did not apply to refugees who were admitted because they are fleeing legitimate persecution.

Mr. SANTORUM. Yes. The Senator is absolutely right. This is different than I understood the provision to be. The difference is—and the Senator is correct—that aliens, refugees, et cetera, are eligible for 5 years until they become eligible for citizenship, and then we expect them to become citizens or they will not be eligible in the future.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I think this question precisely underscores why I have offered this series of strikes. We spent a week-plus on this floor in April and May debating a comprehensive immigration bill. We came to a studied judgment as to how, for whom, for what time period benefits for legal aliens should be constrained. We came to a judgment that said over the next 7 years the restraint should have a dollar figure of $5.6 billion.

Tonight we are debating a provision that purports to reduce the benefits of legal aliens by $23 billion, four times more than what we had purported to do just a few weeks ago. Yet there is not the opportunity for careful scrutiny and study. Therefore, fundamental misconceptions as to who this applies to are being presented on this legislation on which our colleagues are going to be asked to vote.

I think the prudent thing to do is to adopt the motions to strike that I have offered and let these issues be resolved in the conference committee which is now in place to settle the immigration bill and not attempt to do these things at now 11 o'clock at night on a bill that has received not a scintilla of the kind of analysis insofar as it relates to the impact on legal aliens as did that immigration bill.

That is the argument that I make in support of my motions to strike these provisions. This has very serious implications, not only to the individuals involved, but to the communities in which legal aliens elect to live.

As an example, in a study by Los Angeles County of what this will mean in terms of health care in that community, there are estimates that they have 93,000 legal immigrants who would lose their SSI benefits, making them automatically eligible for county funded general assistance. That would cost Los Angeles County $236 million a year in additional costs. I do not think we ought to be imposing an unfunded mandate of $236 million on the citizens of Los Angeles County in the cavalier manner that I suggest we are about to do.

We have a process. The conference committee focused on immigration with Senators and Members of the House who were selected because of their knowledge and background on that subject matter, several of whom have served on these important commissions on immigration. That is the form which these issues ought to be resolved, not in this welfare bill.

Mr. DODD. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. GRAHAM. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, it is awfully late here. Our colleague from Pennsylvania gets saddled with the responsibility of providing analysis for I do not know how many pages in the bill, and it is not easy, but I think our colleague from Florida, despite the late hour and the fact there are only a handful of us here, is a classic example of offering insight that we probably were not aware of.

I hope those who understand this bill would look carefully at the suggestions our colleague has made, because, as I understood it, this is the kind of thing which none of us intended to be the case. We are talking about a category of people who come here legally, who fall into circumstances that all of us have agreed should not be denied benefits. There is no debate about that. I think we have resolved that.

I urge staff and others who might look at this, so that tomorrow when we are asked to vote on matters as we gather in the well, there will not be the benefit that those of us sitting here today will have had of the very careful analysis of the Senator from Florida. My hope is, and I say this so our friends from Pennsylvania and Delaware who are here, who have staff here to look at this, so tomorrow when our colleagues gather we will have an opportunity to pass judgment on this, and if it is as our colleague from Florida has suggested, we might adopt that amendment maybe by voice vote, go to conference, and try and resolve some of the matters.

They may take an opposite point of view, but I urge that thought be given to that. Most of our colleagues, if they have any sense at all, are fast asleep by this hour. I see that our Presiding Officer is a surgeon. He may make recommendations for all of us here. We all know what it is like when it comes time to vote. We come in, there are papers at the desk, we vote aye or we vote no, we do not have a chance to benefit from the exchanges that have occurred here.

I urge our staffs take a good look at this, and if the Senator from Florida is correct, I urge, in the spirit of bipartisanship, that we try and set that matter aside for conference so as not to unwittingly adopt some provisions that I think none of us would agree with.

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, with all due respect to my friend and colleague from Connecticut, I am not too sure there is anything unwitting going on here. This was a provision that was in the Senate bill when it passed 87 to 12. It was in the conference report; it was in the original bill that was introduced. This provision has really been unchanged for quite some time and has been, as I said, not only included in the Republican bill, but the Senator from Connecticut himself stood up on the floor when the Senator from New Mexico and the Senator from New York said, "What are you guys talking about? This provision on illegal immigrants, it is in our bill. You should not be talking about that."

I think there has been very broad support of this issue. It saves a significant amount of money. It is $18 billion. Obviously, the Senator from Florida does not have any offset there to put us within our reconciliation target, so this puts us well beyond, well under our reconciliation target, No. 1.

No. 2, the Senator from Florida talks about the potential for an unfunded mandate. We have a CBO estimate here that there is no unfunded mandate here, including the provision in this bill that the bill does not provide an unfunded mandate. So we have no unfunded mandate with this provision included in the bill, No. 1.

No. 2, we lose $18 billion of a $50-some-odd-billion savings in this bill with this provision.

No. 3, it has been adopted on many occasions, included in both parties' bills, and we had a vote on it the last time we were here, and it was voted down.

I think to suggest that someone is being hoodwinked here or that there is some substantial question as to whether this is a legitimate way to reform the system, I do not think is borne out by the history of these provisions. I think these provisions have been tested. These provisions have had broad bipartisan support. I am hopeful tomorrow that broad bipartisan support will continue.

Mr. DODD. I will not dwell on this. I do not believe our colleague from Florida was on the floor when our colleague from New York, and the chairman, Senator DOMENICI, had a chart they raised and talked about legal aliens, the parents of citizens, who under the deeming process—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent I be able to proceed for 3 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. As I understood it, those were the parents of citizens who would come in legally, and under the deeming process their children assumed, as my colleague from Pennsylvania properly described, the financial responsibility of those parents coming in. The exchange was that both the Democratic proposal and the underlying bill prohibit that kind of situation from persisting. I think we all agree on that.

Mr. SANTORUM. I suggest to the Senator from Connecticut that with the amendment of the Senator from Florida, that would not be; it would strike the provisions that eliminate that, that that situation could continue.

Mr. DODD. I understand that part of it. I think we would want to keep it. What I understood, this went beyond that, which I am not as knowledgeable as our colleague from Florida. In addition to that, you have refugees, asylees and others who would not necessarily fall into the category, or they did not have a sponsor and got here.

That is what he is trying to carve out. That is why I suggest staff get together. Maybe I misunderstood.

I yield to the Senator from Florida.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, to be clear, my argument is that this is a redundant and inappropriate piece of legislation to be considering the issue of the eligibility of legal aliens for Federal benefits. That is exactly what we did in the immigration bill.

We spent days on the floor and weeks in the appropriate committee considering the nuances of that legislation, including its impact on the communities, which would now have to carry the cost that previously had been a partnership between the States, the communities, and the Federal Government.

I am suggesting what we ought to do is let that process come to fruition. The House has passed an immigration bill. The Senate has passed the immigration bill. They are in conference. They have been in conference since mid-May. Let that forum decide what should be the benefits that the Federal Government would provide for legal aliens. Do not do it in this welfare bill.

I think the very fact that we are proposing to reduce those benefits by $23 billion, when just a few weeks ago we thought the appropriate level of reduction was $5.6 billion, ought to raise in our minds whether we really know what we are doing here.

The statement that this is not an unfunded mandate, how in the world is it not going to be an unfunded mandate when the Federal Government denies coverage to large groups of people and imposes that cost for the sick, the elderly, those who require special other assistance, is going to end up being a responsibility of States and local governments.

If I could use one example, the U.S. Government has entered into an agreement with the Cuban Government which sets up a process by which 20,000 Cubans each year will come into the United States. Most of them, when they come into the United States, come under the category of parolees. Currently, the Federal Government, which is the government that signed this agreement, is responsible for the financial cost of that group of new arrivals if they, for instance, become eligible for health care because they are indigent and they are in need of health care.

This is going to say that, for the first year, that group of people will not be eligible for any Federal assistance. Who is going to pick up those costs? Eighty percent plus of those people end up in Dade County, FL. I can tell you who is going to pick up the cost. Jackson Memorial Hospital and the other health care providers in the community are going to be paying for the costs, and it will become—in the classic definition of an unfunded mandate—an unfunded mandate to render services to a group of people who the Federal Government has determined shall enter the community without any Federal financial participation in paying those costs.

We dealt with that issue specifically in the immigration bill, and we did not reach that, I think, quite unjust result. This would reverse a decision that we have previously made.

So my argument, Mr. President, is a simple one—not that we should not face the issue and try to accomplish some of the objectives the Senator from Pennsylvania strives to do; but we ought to do it in the proper form with the proper consideration and with the proper level of respect to the communities that are going to be most affected by the ultimate decisions we will make. I believe striking these provisions out of this bill, which then turns to the more appropriate forum of the immigration conference committee as the means by which we would reach ultimate judgment, is the appropriate policy. I hope the Senate will concur when we vote on this issue tomorrow.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I would just like to point out that it is, of course, the Finance Committee that has jurisdiction over these programs. I point out that the provisions that are contained in the legislation before us were also contained in H.R. 4, as well as the Balanced Budget Act of last year. So this legislation has been acted upon in the Congress twice.

I further point out that the matter was considered in committee, and on that committee we have a number of members of the Judiciary Committee. On the Republican side, these provisions were supported.

So I do not think it can be said that this is a matter that just came up in the wee hours of this evening. It has been a matter carefully considered in committee, as well as on the Senate floor.

I also point out that much of these provisions, although not entirely in the same form, were included as part of the Democratic substitute.

So I think it is important that we bring this into the proper perspective. I want to point out that much of the savings that would come about through this legislation are through the changes that are being made in welfare programs for noncitizens. These people came into the United States on the basis that they would not become a public charge. S. 1956 requires noncitizens to live up to their end of the bargain by requiring them to work or depend on the support of their sponsors and not rely on the American taxpayers.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the motion to strike.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 4922

(Purpose: To correct provisions relating to quality standards for child care)

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], for himself, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. KENNEDY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. KOHL, Mr. KERRY, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. KERREY, Mr. COHEN, Mr.

REID, and Mr. LEAHY, proposes an amendment numbered 4922.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

In the amendment made by section 2807, strike "3" and insert "4".

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I offer this amendment on behalf of myself, Senator SNOWE, and others.

This deals with the child care section of the legislation. Let me just very briefly describe the amendment to my colleagues. The reconciliation bill reserves 3 percent of the child care funds to improve the quality and availability of child care. Using current law projections, Mr. President, this proposal would represent a reduction of approximately $400 million over 6 years for the quality and increased availability of child care, and buildings and accommodations for those children who will need it.

This amendment increases the funds reserved for quality from 3 percent to 4 percent, reducing the shortfall in funds to about $200 million over 6 years, about half of what the shortfall would be without this amendment.

I point out, Mr. President, that the House has adopted a similar provision of 4 percent, so we would be conforming with this legislation to what is already included in the House language.

Earlier in the day, Mr. President, I made a case for the importance of health and safety standards for our child care settings, and I pointed out that in recent studies of child care facilities in this country, only 1 in 7 day care centers received a rating of good quality care, with even fewer programs—8 percent—providing good quality care for infants and toddlers. In the same study, 40 percent of rooms serving infants and toddlers provided less than minimum quality care in the country.

I do not think I need to make the case here. I think we all agree and understand the implications of the legislation. There is unanimity here on the concept of moving adults from welfare to work. We all understand that many of these adults, of course, have children who are going to require child care of one kind or the other.

As I pointed out earlier in the day, of the 13 million people in this entire country who receive AFDC, 8.8 million of the 13 million are under the age of 18; 78 percent of the 8.8 million are under the age of 12; and 46 percent of the 8.8 million are under the age of 6. There are 4.1 million adults who collect AFDC. So as we take the 2 million adults, of the 4 million that this bill requires we put to work over the next 7 years, at least anyway, 78 percent of that 8.8 million, you can argue actually a higher number will require some form of child care setting—a significant amount. We are told the numbers will get larger in the coming years.

So we want to put adequate quality child care out there. We have made the case that for automobiles and pets we have standards. If you leave your pet someplace, certain standards have to be met. What we are trying to say here is, when it comes to our Nation's children, minimum standards should be met, and there should be some quality control.

We leave it to the States, Mr. President, to decide in specificity what those quality standards ought to be. We do not try to mandate here specific requirements, except in a broader context. So we are not violating the notion that States meet those standards. I point out, by the way, that this is language that we adopted—my colleague from Delaware will recall—going back to 1990, under the Bush administration, when Senator HATCH and I authored the Child Care Block Grant Program that was supported by the Bush administration and adopted here. We included quality and health and safety standards.

Earlier today, with the support of Senator COATS, Senator KASSEBAUM, Senator SNOWE, and others, we adopted the health and safety standards in the bill. This amendment offered by Senator SNOWE and I would raise from 3 percent to 4 percent an allocation for quality, and I hope that my colleagues will see fit to support this amendment. I think it improves the bill.

With that, I would not necessarily ask for a rollcall vote because I understand that it may be acceptable to the majority. If that is the case, I will not ask, obviously, for a rollcall vote.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I say to the distinguished Senator from Connecticut that we are willing to agree to his amendment, and consequently a rollcall vote would not be necessary.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I deeply appreciate my colleagues' support for the amendment.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Connecticut.

The amendment (No. 4922) was agreed to.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the amendment was agreed to.

Mr. ROTH. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, there is also an amendment. The Senator from North Carolina, Senator FAIRCLOTH, had an amendment he was going to propose, and it has to do with child care and the question of whether or not child care workers could be considered in the work sections of this bill. There was some question as to whether or not we would clear that.

As I understand it, all the health and safety standards and quality would apply. If my colleague from Delaware would confirm that for me, we would be more than willing to accept that amendment and move another amendment along.

Mr. ROTH. Yes. I do confirm that.

Mr. DODD. I would be more than happy to clear that amendment on our side. I do not know if the Senator has an amendment and he would like to offer it. If he does, we could remove one more amendment. I am sure Senator DOMENICI, who is sound asleep, would be grateful in the morning when he arrives to find out that we agreed to one more amendment.

Mr. ROTH. Actually, I had three more amendments.

Mr. DODD. Do not get carried away.

Mr. ROTH. Do you want more?

Mr. DODD. No.

[Laughter.]

Mr. ROTH. We had the two earlier agreements.

AMENDMENTS NUMBERED 4923 THROUGH 4925, EN BLOC

Mr. ROBB. Let me start over.

Mr. President, I have a unanimous-consent agreement to propound to dispose of three amendments which have been agreed to on both sides of the aisle. They include Senator FAIRCLOTH's amendment to clarify that a welfare recipient may provide child care services to satisfy the bill's work requirement; two, Senator COATS' amendment allowing welfare recipients to establish individual development accounts; and, third, Senator ABRAHAM's amendment modifying the illegitimacy ratio.

I ask unanimous consent that it be in order for me to offer these three amendments that I send to the desk, en bloc, that they be considered and agreed to, en bloc, and that the motions to table and the motions to reconsider be agreed to, en bloc, and that they appear in the RECORD as if considered individually.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object—I shall not object—the Senator from Delaware is correct. These amendments have been cleared on this side. We are pleased to have them accepted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendments by number.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Delaware [Mr. ROTH] proposes amendments numbered 4923 through 4925, en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The amendments are agreed to.

The amendments (Nos. 4923, 4924, and 4925, en bloc) were agreed to, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 4923

(Purpose: To encourage individuals to provide child care services)

On page 239, between lines 21 and 22, insert the following:

“(i) ENCOURAGEMENT TO PROVIDE CHILD CARE SERVICES.—An individual participating in a State community service program may be treated as being engaged in work under subsection (c) if such individual provides child care services to other individuals participating in the community service program in the manner, and for the period of time each week, determined appropriate by the State.

AMENDMENT NO. 4924

(Purpose: To provide for the establishment of individual development accounts)

On page 221, between lines 20 and 21, insert the following new subsection:

“(h) USE OF FUNDS FOR INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A State operating a program funded under this part may use amounts received under a grant under section 403 to carry out a program to fund individual development accounts (as defined in paragraph (2)) established by individuals eligible for assistance under the State program under this part.

“(2) INDIVIDUAL DEVELOPMENT ACCOUNTS.—

“(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—Under a State program carried out under paragraph (1), an individual development account may be established by or on behalf of an individual eligible for assistance under the State program operated under this part for the purpose of enabling the individual to accumulate funds for a qualified purpose described in subparagraph (B).

“(B) QUALIFIED PURPOSE.—A qualified purpose described in this subparagraph is 1 or more of the following, as provided by the qualified entity providing assistance to the individual under this subsection:

“(i) POSTSECONDARY EDUCATIONAL EXPENSES.—Postsecondary educational expenses paid from an individual development account directly to an eligible educational institution.

“(ii) FIRST-HOME PURCHASE.—Qualified acquisition costs with respect to a qualified principal residence for a qualified first-time homebuyer, if paid from an individual development account directly to the persons to whom the amounts are due.

“(iii) BUSINESS CAPITALIZATION.—Amounts paid from an individual development account directly to a business capitalization account which is established in a federally insured financial institution and is restricted to use solely for qualified business capitalization expenses.

“(C) CONTRIBUTIONS TO BE FROM EARNED INCOME.—An individual may only contribute to an individual development account such amounts as are derived from earned income, as defined in section 911(d)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

“(D) WITHDRAWAL OF FUNDS.—The Secretary shall establish such regulations as may be necessary to ensure that funds held in an individual development account are not withdrawn except for 1 or more of the qualified purposes described in subparagraph (B).

“(3) REQUIREMENTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—An individual development account established under this subsection shall be a trust created or organized in the United States and funded through periodic contributions by the establishing individual and matched by or through a qualified entity for a qualified purpose (as described in paragraph (2)(B)).

“(B) QUALIFIED ENTITY.—For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘qualified entity’ means either—

“(i) a not-for-profit organization described in section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of such Code; or “(ii) a State or local government agency acting in cooperation with an organization described in clause (i).

“(4) NO REDUCTION IN BENEFITS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal law (other than the Internal Revenue Code of 1986) that requires consideration of 1 or more financial circumstances of an individual, for the purpose of determining eligibility to receive, or the amount of, any assistance or benefit authorized by such law to be provided to or for the benefit of such individual, funds (including interest accruing) in an individual development account under this subsection shall be disregarded for such purpose with respect to any period during which such individual maintains or makes contributions into such an account.

“(5) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) ELIGIBLE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.—The term ‘eligible educational institution’ means the following:

“(i) An institution described in section 481(a)(1) or 1201(a) of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 1088(a)(1) or 1141(a)), as such sections are in effect on the date of the enactment of this subsection.

“(ii) An area vocational education school (as defined in subparagraph (C) or (D) of section 521(4) of the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act (20 U.S.C. 2471(4))) which is in any State (as defined in section 521(33) of such Act), as such sections are in effect on the date of the enactment of this subsection.

“(B) POST-SECONDARY EDUCATIONAL EXPENSES.—The term ‘post-secondary educational expenses’ means—

“(i) tuition and fees required for the enrollment or attendance of a student at an eligible educational institution, and “(ii) fees, books, supplies, and equipment required for courses of instruction at an eligible educational institution.

“(C) QUALIFIED ACQUISITION COSTS.—The term ‘qualified acquisition costs’ means the costs of acquiring, constructing, or reconstructing a residence. The term includes any usual or reasonable settlement, financing, or other closing costs.

“(D) QUALIFIED BUSINESS.—The term ‘qualified business’ means any business that does not contravene any law or public policy (as determined by the Secretary).

“(E) QUALIFIED BUSINESS CAPITALIZATION EXPENSES.—The term ‘qualified business capitalization expenses’ means qualified expenditures for the capitalization of a qualified business pursuant to a qualified plan.

“(F) QUALIFIED EXPENDITURES.—The term ‘qualified expenditures’ means expenditures included in a qualified plan, including capital, plant, equipment, working capital, and inventory expenses.

“(G) QUALIFIED FIRST-TIME HOMEBUYER.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘qualified first-time homebuyer’ means a taxpayer (and, if married, the taxpayer's spouse) who has no present ownership interest in a principal residence during the 3-year period ending on the date of acquisition of the principal residence to which this subsection applies.

“(ii) DATE OF ACQUISITION.—The term ‘date of acquisition’ means the date on which a binding contract to acquire, construct, or reconstruct the principal residence to which this subparagraph applies is entered into.

“(H) QUALIFIED PLAN.—The term ‘qualified plan’ means a business plan which—“(i) is approved by a financial institution, or by a nonprofit loan fund having demonstrated fiduciary integrity,

“(ii) includes a description of services or goods to be sold, a marketing plan, and projected financial statements, and

“(iii) may require the eligible individual to obtain the assistance of an experienced entrepreneurial advisor.

“(I) QUALIFIED PRINCIPAL RESIDENCE.—The term ‘qualified principal residence’ means a principal residence (within the meaning of section 1034 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986), the qualified acquisition costs of which do not exceed 100 percent of the average area purchase price applicable to such residence (determined in accordance with paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 143(e) of such Code).

AMENDMENT NO. 4925

(Purpose: To establish an illegitimacy reduction bonus fund)

Beginning on page 202, line 20, strike "a grant" and all that follows through line 13 on page 203, and insert the following: "an illegitimacy reduction bonus if—

(i) the State demonstrates that the number of out-of-wedlock births that occurred in the State during the most recent 2-year period for which such information is available decreased as compared to the number of such births that occurred during the previous 2-year period; and

(ii) the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in the State for the fiscal year is less than the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in the State for fiscal year 1995.

"(B) PARTICIPATION IN ILLEGITIMACY BONUS.—A State that demonstrates a decrease under subparagraph (A)(i) shall be eligible for a grant under paragraph (5).

On page 203, line 19, strike "(B)" and insert "(C)".

On page 204, line 7, strike "(C)" and insert "(D)".

On page 204, lines 13 and 14, strike "for fiscal year 1995" and insert "the preceding 2 fiscal years".

On page 214, between lines 10 and 11, insert the following:

"(5) BONUS TO REWARD DECREASE IN ILLEGITIMACY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall make a grant pursuant to this paragraph to each State determined eligible under paragraph (2)(B) for each bonus year for which the State demonstrates a net decrease in out-of-wedlock births.

"(B) AMOUNT OF GRANT.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to this subparagraph, the Secretary shall determine the amount of the grant payable under this paragraph to a low illegitimacy State for a bonus year.

"(ii) TOP FIVE STATES.—With respect to States determined eligible under paragraph (2)(B) for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall determine which five of such States demonstrated the greatest decrease in out-of-wedlock births under such paragraph for the period involved. Each of such five States shall receive a grant of equal amount under this paragraph for such fiscal year but such amount shall not exceed $20,000,000 for any single State.

"(iii) LESS THAN FIVE STATES.—With respect to a fiscal year, if the Secretary determines that there are less than five States eligible under paragraph (2)(B) for a fiscal year, the grants under this paragraph shall be awarded to each such State in an equal amount but such amount shall not exceed $25,000,000 for any single State.

"(C) BONUS YEAR.—The term 'bonus year' means fiscal years 1999, 2000, 2001, 2002, and 2003.

"(D) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated for fiscal years 1999 through 2003, such sums as are necessary for grants under this paragraph.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that there now be a period for the transaction of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 5 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

THOMAS R. BURKE

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise to today to speak a few words in remembrance of Thomas R. Burke, whose recent, tragic death at the young age of 57 has robbed America of one of its leading health care policymakers.

Many of us in this body remember Tom Burke for his outstanding work at the Department of Health and Human Services. Indeed, I first came to know Tom over a decade ago during the confirmation process for one of the great HHS Secretaries of all time, Dr. Otis Bowen. I quickly came to admire Tom's forthright style, which some may have called gruff. But everyone respected Tom for his vigor, honesty, and impact.

In the early 1980's, Tom served as the staff director of the Advisory Council on Social Security, chaired by Dr. Bowen. When Dr. Bowen joined the Reagan administration as Secretary of Health and Human Services in 1985, he made a wise decision and chose Tom Burke as Chief of Staff of the 110,000 employee department. This was a significant honor and great responsibility—and Tom didn't let Dr. Bowen down. He stood as "Doc's" top-most advocate, defender, and protector, until President Reagan left office.

While many remember Tom for the Medicare catastrophic legislation, which I will discuss in a moment, Tom must be remembered for his many, many other accomplishments at HHS, including initiatives to: Strengthen patient-outcomes and medical effectiveness research; launch a public awareness campaign against alcohol abuse; propose reforms in the medical liability system; and, undertake managerial changes to elevate the Indian Health Service and rejuvenate the Commissioned Corps of the Public Health Service.

Tom Burke worked diligently on behalf of our Nation's seniors in the area of catastrophic health insurance. While we know that this legislation proved to be controversial, there is one aspect of this issue about which there can be no disagreement: Tom Burke worked hard to accomplish what he thought was in the best interest of the American public.

Indeed, the record must reflect that the original Bowen-Burke proposal was a much, much more modest proposal than that which the Congress ultimately expanded, approved and repealed. I remember well the initial idea which Tom had such a large hand in bringing to the forefront of public debate. It was a small add-on to the amount seniors pay for Medicare, under $5 a month, in exchange for which seniors would have the peace of mind of knowing they had unlimited hospitalization coverage. Unfortunately, this was not the provision which became law.

Tom was widely recognized by his peers for these accomplishments, a fact recognized by the special awards he received from Secretary Bowen and Surgeon General C. Everett Koop.

Tom Burke had a long career in public service. In addition to his work at HHS, Tom was a member of the Green Berets and also became Director of Health Policy Analysis for the Assistant Secretary for Health Affairs at the Department of Defense. These two assignments served him well in his later Government service.

Mr. President, after Tom's untimely passing, a number of us who worked closely with him wanted to express our admiration of his service to the government and of his achievements in health care policy. At this time, I ask unanimous consent that the statements of two of this body's most distinguished health care leaders—now retired—Senator Dave Durenberger, and Senator George Mitchell, be printed in the RECORD at this point.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STATEMENT OF SENATOR DAVID DURENBERGER

Tom Burke will always be my friend. He represents all that is good in making public policy in Washington D.C. We made a lot of it in the 1980's, especially through the Medicare program. It was Republicans and Democrats, Senate and House.

Our most significant effort was Burke-Bowen or Bowen-Burke or whatever. Neither was elected to Congress, but HHS Secretary Otis Bowen and his Chief of Staff, Tom Burke, made us who were in Congress make sense out of Medicare. They insisted we protect every elderly and disabled American from financial catastrophe because of medical, long-term care, drug price or medigap premium expenses. They created a "Secretary's Task Force" to iron out all the varied views; they marched it through all the Committees and the finale—a conference committee in the LBJ. Room on the Senate side of the Capitol.

I was the most recent Republican chair of the Health Sub-Committee of Finance, just replaced by George Mitchell, so Tom treated me with just enough of the deference due my office. But not so much that I didn't know he believed strongly enough in what we were privileged enough to do for America and that he'd find a way to get it done even if we had some disagreements.

America misses the policy that legislation changed. Its repeal has cost billions. And we all miss Tom now that the Lord has repealed his lease on our lives. Our last joint effort—a year ago—was his initiative too. When I retired from the Senate he called and put me to work helping him convince his beloved Indian University that its Otis Bowen Health Policy Center could really impact Washington if it had a presence here. And of course he'd carry on a part of that presence. Doing all the policy reform work that was left undone during his time with Secretary Bowen.

STATEMENT OF SENATOR GEORGE MITCHELL

Tom was a very devoted public servant who I came to know during the policy debates over Medicare Catastrophes Health Insurance in the late 1980's. Tom believed in the need to help the elderly better cope with the complexities and shortcomings of health insurance. He helped design and promote a Medicare Catastrophic benefit, even when doing so made him unpopular with some members of his political party. He cared deeply for the Medicare program and wanted to improve it for all beneficiaries. Tom fought long and hard for the passage of Medicare Catastrophic, and then renewed his fight during the ultimate repeal of the legislation. He took the defeat particularly hard, but refused to believe that he couldn't continue to serve the public by turning his attention and expertise as an economist to other public policy issues.

Tom brought a passion to public service. As Chief-of-Staff under Secretary Otis Bowen, he was fiercely loyal to the programs of the Department of Health and Human Services. Tom devoted each day to finding ways to improve upon the services provided to millions of Americans. He was especially concerned with the Medicaid program, and believed that the application of managed care principles could help the poorest of our society. His style was often gruff and "take no prisoners," but his heart was always focused on the right place. His need to be popular fell second to his belief that through hard work he could make a difference to the people served by government.

Seeing the need to get more value from America's escalating health care expenditures, Tom firmly believed in the need for more and better information about what treatments and therapies work. He concurred with visionaries on the need for a significant investment in health services research to bring about more rationale and science-based medical care. He strongly supported my legislation on outcomes research and was a major force to help establish "effectiveness research" as a bona fide organizational responsibility of the Department.

I am sorry that we have lost such an unusually dedicated and forward thinking public servant. He put politics aside in order to accomplish goals he thought were in the best interest of the public. He was a man of great ideas, the will to make them reality, and a sense of humor that encased a heart dedicated to the American people.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, one of the things I remember fondly about Tom is that his measure of a man's judgment was often to look up and question, Is he a long-ball hitter? Judging Tom by his own measure, we all must conclude he could hit the home run ball.

More important than his many professional achievements, Tom Burke was a good family man. I want to take this opportunity to offer my condolences to his wife, Sharon; daughters, Rosemary, Heather, and Kerry; and son, Brendan. Although the love of a husband and father can never be replaced, with God's help and strength, his family will make it through this trying time.

It seems to me that far too often in this institution we get so engrossed in partisan and policy battles that we forget that ultimately it is people that matter. In losing Tom Burke we have lost a good public servant and a good man. We will all miss him.

TRIBUTE TO THE REVEREND DR. OTIS A. HERRING

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, with the death of the Reverend Dr. Otis A. Herring on Friday, July 12, the Wilmington, DE, community—and indeed a much larger community of family, friends and faith—suffered a loss we can not help mourn.

It is the loss of a husband and father, a son and brother, a grandfather and uncle, a nephew and cousin—a man who deeply loved and was deeply loved by his family

It is the loss of a inspiring preacher and inspired pastor who devoted 35 years of spiritual leadership of Wilmington's Union Baptist Church and the surrounding community.

It is the loss a morally engaged citizen who spoke fearlessly and worked tirelessly for the less fortunate among us; the loss of a man who created out of his own determined faith and the conscience of the community resources to serve the poor and the disadvantaged.

It is the loss of a friend and mentor, whose example made better people and a better community out of all of us.

But despite that catalog of loss we feel so keenly, Reverend Herring's death is not, in fact, an occasion fit only for grieving.

In the first place, if we can ever be sure that any man has attained the spiritual goal that is the promise of the faith many of us share, Otis Herring was beyond a doubt just such a man.

His memorial service was rightly called a "Homegoing Celebration," for the most important thing about reverend Herring was that he believed. His whole life was an expression of that belief, and even as we sorrow for our loss, we must celebrate the final victory that he never for one moment doubted.

And we celebrate, too, with lasting gratitude, the living legacy of Otis Herring, a legacy that endures because he lived his faith with a steadfastness and a power that literally reshaped the community to which he was so devoted.

It is a legacy that lives in Union Baptist Community Services, a nonprofit organization that Reverend Herring founded and served for 22 years as executive director, and that counts among its neighborhood-designed programs a day-care center, anti-drug outreach, crisis assistance, mentoring and counseling for at-risk youth and families, housing for the disabled, tutoring and job training, a housing corporation, a neighborhood-improvement program, and a food closet.

It is a legacy that lives because Reverend Herring was a leader who called on us to come together as members of one community, a leader who made us not only see but feel our common bond and common obligation to one another as citizens and as children of God.

Reverend Herring's own exceptional citizenship earned wide-ranging respect and recognition. In addition to high honors from the State of Delaware and the city of Wilmington, he received tributes from numerous organizations and institutions, including the University of Delaware and Delaware State University, the Delaware Businessmen's Association and the Brandywine Professional Association, the News Journal newspaper and the Jefferson Awards, the National Conference of Christians and Jews, the Mental Health Association, the National Urban Coalition, and many fraternal and civic organizations.

The record of Otis Herring's achievements and contributions, and the list of awards and tributes recognizing them, is all the more extraordinary when we recall that he began to lose his eyesight when he was just a senior in high school, and that he was blind throughout his adult life.

Otis Herring was, in fact, a magnificent irony among us.

He lived in darkness, yet he illuminated the world around him; he was blind, yet he saw his way through life with a clarity both humbling and inspiring to the rest of us; he lost his sight, but he never lost his way, and he never failed to lead us to a higher ground.

As an editorial in Delaware's News Journal paper said, accurately and eloquently, of Reverend Herring, "His vision of his role in the world was unimpaired." And to that I would add only that our vision of our role in the world is brighter, more challenging and more rewarding because of the way he lived his life among us.

In extending our sympathies to Reverend Herring's wife, Carol, to his son, Steven, to his mother, brother, sister, grandson, and loving extended family, we do indeed share their deep sadness and sense of loss.

But we also share their sure and certain faith that, long after the sadness of his death has passed, Otis Herring's life will stand as a triumph and as a never-ending cause for celebration.

THE REALITY BEHIND CANDIDATE BOB DOLE'S VOUCHER PROPOSAL

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, Yesterday Candidate Bob Dole claimed to offer Americans an "Education Consumer's Warranty." Today, we saw the reality behind the claim—a recycled plan called Opportunity Scholarships that gives opportunity to the few at the expense of the many.

Candidate Dole's $2.5 billion plan would pay $500 toward $1,000 vouchers for elementary school students and $750 toward $1,500 vouchers for high school students. States would have to match the Federal voucher.

Candidate Dole's new-found appreciation of the importance of education comes on the heels of a long and distressing anti-education record, including opposition to public school choice and grants for higher education.

Last year, as majority leader, Senator Dole voted to cut $25 billion from education programs that help 52 million students learn reading and math skills, that help teachers to teach, and that prevent violence and drug abuse in school. With strong leadership from President Clinton, Congress rejected those devastating Republican cuts.

Candidate Dole claims that his voucher plan is modeled after the G.I. Bill of Rights and other Federal programs that help students afford college. But in Congress, Bob Dole has a 3-decade-long record of opposition to Federal college aid. In 1965, as a member of the House of Representatives, he voted against the creation of the first Federal student loan program. Twice in the 1980s, he voted to cut Pell Grants, which he now endorses.

He claims that under his voucher plan, students will be able to go to the private school of their choice. But private schools can decide whether to accept a child or not. The real choice is made by the schools, not parents. The more exclusive the school, the more students will be excluded.

Scarce Federal dollars should not go to schools that can exclude children they do not want. Public schools are already starved for funds. The Dole voucher scheme will inevitably make their plight much worse. We do not have to destroy the public schools in order to save them.

President Clinton and Democrats support true choice—public school choice—where every child has an equal opportunity to go to the school of their choice within the public school system.

President Clinton has been and is a leader in the movement for public school choice, which is supported by a vast majority of Americans. In this year's State of the Union Address, President Clinton said, "I challenge every State to give all parents the right to choose which public school children will attend."

Candidate Dole has it wrong. Education is a national priority that requires public effort and commitment to benefit the entire population, not just the few.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Wednesday, July 17, the Federal debt stood at $5,162,069,897,551.43.

On a per capita basis, every man, woman, and child in America owes $19,456.14 as his or her share of that debt.

REDUCE THE DEFICIT WHILE PROTECTING OUR NATIONAL SECURITY: ELIMINATE WASTEFUL MILITARY SPENDING NOT REQUESTED BY THE PENTAGON

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, today I rise in opposition to the FY 1997 Defense Appropriation bill. Once again Senate Republicans have sought to include over $10 billion extra dollars on military projects not requested by the President, the Secretary of Defense, and the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Quite frankly, it is fiscally irresponsible to spend more than is needed on wasteful military programs at a time when many domestic programs are being reduced substantially in order to balance the budget.

At the request of the Republican leadership, the Appropriations Committee has authorized $10.1 billion more than was requested. That's right. The majority wants to spend $10.1 billion more than the Pentagon has requested, or than they have indicated they will be able to responsibly use, next year. Much of that figure was not even included in the Pentagon's 5-year plan, or on so-called wish lists that were solicited by congressional defense committees. The Pentagon has said clearly: They don't need these funds now, the projects are not in their 5-year plan, and they're not even on their wish lists.

Mr. President, there is no question that there is waste in the Pentagon. In fact, about a year ago, the Pentagon's own spending watchdog, its Comptroller General John Hamre, conceded that DOD could not account for over $13 billion in spending. It's just been lost in the ocean of paperwork at the Pentagon, and likely won't ever be sorted out. In fact, the Comptroller has all but given up on trying to find out what happened to most of the money, arguing it would be more expensive than it would be worth to account for these funds. It is particularly outrageous that the Appropriations Committee has proposed these hefty increases at the same time that the Defense Department is being called to task for not being able to account for billions of dollars in its own spending.

Waste, possible fraud in Pentagon spending, certainly egregious abuses of basic accounting rules—this is a serious problem, and no one seems to be doing very much about it. Indeed, instead of vigorously overseeing spending in this budget, we are trying to foist off on the Pentagon an extra $10.1 billion in military hardware, new weapons systems, planes and ships, and other spending they have not even requested so that certain Senators can protect jobs in their States that depend on continued high levels of defense spending.

If we pass this bill, my Minnesota constituents will continue to pay their taxes to bolster the treasuries of bloated defense contractors, who are building ships and planes and weapons systems that we don't need, and can't use, and that won't make our Nation any more secure. So that there is no mistake, let me repeat that for those who are listening. We are considering today a defense spending bill that spends a full $10.1 billion more than the President requested in his budget. We are doing this despite the fact that there is no sudden, extraordinary threat to justify such an increase. And many of those in this body who are pressing for such a huge increase are precisely the same people who are out here on this floor, day after day, week after week, month after month, howling about how we simply must get the deficit under control.

They are doing this while at the same time larding defense bills with billions in spending for their local shipyard, or weapons contractor, or plane manufacturer. Have we no shame, Mr. President? Is there no sense of limits in this body when it comes to wasteful and unnecessary weapons programs? Now, controlling the deficit is important, and I have supported responsible, fairminded deficit reduction proposals totaling hundreds of billions of dollars. We heard yesterday that the deficit has dropped from about $290 billion to an estimated $117 billion this year, due largely to the President's fiscal policies. And now we again are faced with outrageous overspending on military programs that are not even supported by the Pentagon.

For the past couple of years, we've heard from many of our Republican colleagues who have sought to look like they were reducing the Federal deficit through various schemes and non-specific formulas. And even when they have offered something specific, they tend to first go after funding for education, Medicare and Medicaid; programs for those who cannot help themselves; programs which protect our air, lakes and rivers, and on and on.

While I have serious concerns even about some of the President's underlying defense spending assumptions which require, for example, fighting two major regional conflicts at one time without help from our allies, at least his budget focuses on research and development, maintaining a high level of readiness, and improving the quality of life of our Armed Forces. We can meet our defense needs fully and responsibly. My question is, Why aren't we applying the same standards to wasteful military spending that are being applied to domestic programs that millions of average Americans rely on?

There are three arguments that I want to make to counter Republican assertions that the President's defense request is too low. First, the appropriations bill provides more to defense, in dollar terms, than last year. This is in stark contrast to the fact that non-defense discretionary spending as a whole is frozen or declining precipitously in many areas.

Second, Republicans are claiming that defense spending in the bill declines in real terms and as such their budget recommendation is actually a cut from last year. Think about that argument—defense spending is declining in real terms. Now contrast it with the Republican arguments as they seek to dismantle domestic spending programs. Do they ever seek to portray their domestic cuts in real terms? Or do they consistently recite that they are spending the same or more in the current year than they did last year. They can't have it both ways. Pick one methodology and stick with it, I say.

Third, the administration estimates that due to lower inflation estimates over the next few years, we can buy as much for our defense dollar as we had planned, but spend about $46 billion less for it than was requested last year. By this calculation, the President's budget request actually represents a long-term increase over last year's defense program.

The bottom line is this: The President's defense budget maintains a strong defense, no matter how the Republicans choose to craft their argument. It takes into account all of our current and future defense needs, and makes tough choices. Adding billions in additional pork barrel spending is unnecessary, wasteful, and wrong.

Even if one acknowledges that defense spending has decreased by some measures since the mid-1980's, and that the administration's request continues that trend, it must be placed into context. That is, much has changed since the end of the cold war. And our country's priorities must change accordingly—we must maintain a strong defense, but accommodate increasing concerns for better education, health care, crime prevention, economy and the environment.

Maintain a strong defense, but do it by increasing burden-sharing by our allies, imposing cost and accountability controls called for by GAO, eliminating unnecessary weapons programs. We must also re-assess the fundamental assumptions which continue to drive continued high defense spending, like the requirement that we be able to fight two major wars at once, without the help or support of our allies.

We already spend vastly more on the military than all our potential major enemies combined—40 percent of the world's total military budget. Along with our allies, we spend about $510 billion on defense of our interests worldwide. All our major potential enemies combined spend about $140 billion per year.

The billions spent on star wars, the Trident, the B-2 bomber, and the 600-ship Navy are but a few of the reasons why our deficit rose so dramatically during the 1980's. This administration however, has sought to maintain a strong defense while addressing critical domestic needs and reducing the deficit as well. But while the President has made tough choices, the Republicans have refused to stare down military contractors clamoring for even more than the Pentagon has said it needs. If Members are so concerned about a looming procurement problem, then maybe we ought to make some tough decisions about the size of our military forces, and their dispersion around the world, and scale back here. Instead, we are bolstering funding on fantastically expensive weapons programs, while we underfund key peacekeeping programs and the dual-use applications program that will benefit U.S. industry.

I recognize that there are still real dangers out there for which we must prepare, including nuclear proliferation and terrorism. The need to combat weapons proliferation to rogue states poses new problems for the United States, and must be addressed forcefully and directly. But we can do that now. We have the largest and strongest military in the world, and there is nothing in the administration's request that does anything to diminish that fact. To the contrary, the administration's budget improves an already strong defense establishment.

So why do the Republicans persist in adding to the Pentagon's request? Do they perceive some previously unidentified emerging threat that the intelligence or national security community has disregarded? No. I think at its worst it is simply their desire to pour billions more dollars into spending for large weapons programs, ships, fighters and the like built in the States of defense committee members. At best it is a misplaced desire to save jobs. Mr. President, we cannot afford these kinds of pet projects.

How should we reduce wasteful military spending? I'll start with what arguably must be the most difficult problem to attack—the Pentagon bureaucracy. Several of my colleagues have recently railed against the Department of Energy, the Departments of Education, Commerce and others—but I hear a deafening silence on their part when it comes to the Department of Defense, the largest and most wasteful bureaucracy in the world. The same tough accountability standards should be applied to all Federal agencies, if we are to root out waste, abuse, and program duplication.

Let me give a few examples of the size and scope of the defense waste we're talking about. The General Accounting Office, in a 1995 report on the Defense travel process, concluded that the Pentagon could save hundreds of millions of dollars in travel processing costs simply by following the examples of leading companies. This 1995 study identified a myriad of travel agents, voucher processing centers, and over 1,300 pages of regulations. DOD reported $3.5 billion in expenditures for travel and perhaps as much as $1.0 billion more in processing costs. Clearly, efforts to reform and streamline this process, and bring it into control, is urgently needed.

I've already discussed the billions lost due to inadequate Pentagon accounting, so I won't rehash that here. But let's take a look at over $3.0 billion extra of procurement add-ons that were not even included in the Pentagon's 5-year plan. These items include procurement of four additional F-16 fighters for the Air Force at a cost of over $107 million. These were not even on the Air Force wish list.

The Army gets an additional $120 million to purchase 12 more UH-60 Blackhawk helicopters than the Pentagon asked for. In true share-the-wealth tradition, the Navy receives an astounding $489 million in additional funding for the F/A-18C/D Hornet. The list goes on and on.

The additional construction funds provided for the new attack submarine comes at a time when we're already building the Seawolf, after fierce fights by its opponents over the wisdom of building more of these. Why then, are we financing an additional $700 million for advance procurement of the new attack submarine, which is less capable than the Seawolf and only slightly less expensive? To top it off, as directed under the Defense authorization bill, the purchase has preempted any pretense of competition between shipyards by directing these submarines be built in both Connecticut and Virginia.

At the same time that advance and unnecessary procurement costs are added, the bill seeks to reduce by $150 million funding for the Dual-Use Applications Program that supports development of technologies that can be applied to both commercial and defense systems, thereby reducing the cost of defense systems. Full funding of this initiative would have moved the Nation in the right direction as we seek to reduce Government spending and reliance on single source industries.

Make no mistake; the post-cold-war defense budget is becoming less and less focused on our real national security needs, and more and more on the needs of particular members of Congress to sustain jobs in their home States. American taxpayers are paying for costly, obsolete, fantastically expensive cold-war-era weapons systems that are no longer justifiable, basically to help preserve the political health of certain Members of Congress. That is the sad, unvarnished truth. Many of the weapons systems we are still paying for were initiated during the 1980's defense build-up, and have little or no relation to the changed strategic situation we now face in the post cold-war era. And yet we continue to fund them, terrified that scaling this spending back modestly will cost jobs in our States. This, despite the fact that under the authorization bill we accepted a proposal by Senator LIEBERMAN that calls for a new study to determine the threat as we enter the 21st century. This study will go a long way to determining the weapons systems we will need to address the threat. I'll bet many of the weapons systems we are providing advanced funding for will be deemed obsolete as the results of the study are released.

I believe that at a time when we are slashing budgets for hundreds of social programs that protect the vulnerable; protect our lakes and streams; provide health care for the vulnerable elderly, and create expanded opportunities for the broad middle class—such as student loans and job retraining—it is wrong to provide vastly more military spending than the Secretary of Defense and Joint Chiefs of Staff have requested. We have dramatically reduced or frozen funding for many other non-defense programs, and yet we're pouring even more dollars than the Department of Defense can use into expensive weapons systems.

In defense, as elsewhere in the Federal budget, there are responsible ways to eliminate wasteful and unnecessary spending; by cutting obsolete cold war weapons systems, imposing money-saving reforms within the bureaucracy, and streamlining procurement policy to make the system more efficient and more cost-effective. Over and over, in recent months, I have offered or co-sponsored amendments to address this problem. These attempts have either been voted down here on the Senate floor, or the bills to accomplish these ends have been bottled up in committee.

In the end, there is little Pentagon streamlining, little elimination of waste provided for in this bill. Instead, when faced with difficult choices between competing weapons systems, basic housing improvements for our troops, and other readiness requirements, the committee decided simply to appropriate funds to buy all of the big weapons systems, ships, and planes that $10.1 billion could buy, larding the bill with special interest funding for defense contractors, and accelerating purchases not scheduled to be made for many years, if at all.

I believe this bill in its current form spends vastly more on defense than we can afford. The Joint Chiefs and the President agree with me. At a time when we are asked to spend billions less on education, health care, our children and our elderly, I urge my colleagues to vote against these huge and unwarranted increases in defense spending. If it passes, as I'm sure it will, I hope the President will veto it, and then require Congress to come to the negotiating table to more fairly distribute the burden of deficit reduction, eliminating defense pork while preserving our national security.

CENTENNIAL OLYMPIC GAMES

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President. I take this opportunity to join my colleagues in recognizing the 1996 Centennial Olympic games to be held in Atlanta beginning Friday, July 19, and running through August 4.

The modern Olympics have seen a century of athletes from countries around the world coming together in the original spirit of the games—"international understanding and peace through sports." In 1896, Athens hosted the first modern Olympics, with 13 nations sending 311 athletes. The opening event was the triple jump, which was won by an American, James B. Connolly, after he arrived in Greece only 12 hours before the start. This young athlete led America to win the first title at an Olympic games in more than 1,500 years, when the ancient Greeks last awarded Olympic medals in 393 A.D.

The 1996 Olympic games is expected to be the largest and most widely attended in history. With 197 delegations being represented by almost 11,000 athletes, this games is 40 percent larger than the 1992 Olympics in competitors alone. Over 1,900 medals will be awarded during 271 events in 26 different sports. It is estimated that the between 1991 and 1997 the build-up to the games and the event itself will pump over $5 billion into the economy.

The Olympics hold a special place in my heart, as I was fortunate enough to represent our country in the 1964 games as captain of the U.S. judo team, a sport offered for the first time that year. Although I suffered injuries throughout the course of the games, it was an honor to carry the U.S. flag during the games' closing ceremonies. I am thrilled to know that my teammate from the 1964 games and fellow Coloradan, Al Oerter, will be carrying the Olympic flame into the stadium during the opening ceremonies in Atlanta. Al is the only American ever to win gold medals in four consecutive Olympics in the discus. He competing in 1956, 1960, 1964, and 1968.

There is no question that making a serious commitment to a sport at a young age gave my life purpose, channeled my energies, and taught me self-discipline. I was lucky to have had great coaches and mentors to nurture my love of judo and help me achieve my Olympic goals. For all of the athletes who strive to heights worthy of Olympic stature, I commend you. I urge all of you to represent our country with dignity and respect, and the sportsmanship that has brought you to Atlanta.

In particular, I would like to name for the RECORD the athletes representing Colorado. These are a varied group, with unique talents and skills. I join with all Coloradans in saying how proud we are of you.

Mark Coogan, Boulder, marathon; Anthony Washington, Aurora, discus; Rich Weiss, Steamboat Springs, slalom men's kayak; Susan DeMattei, Gunnison, mountain bike; Alison Dunlap, Colorado Springs, women's road race; Juli Furtado, Durango, mountain biking; Jeanne Golay, Glenwood Springs, women's road race.

Ned Overend, Durango, mountain biking; Elaine Chervis, Denver, women's fencing; Rebecca Snyder, Grand Junction, women's air pistol; Eric Uptagraff, Lake Wood, prone rifle; Amy Van Dyken, Highlands Ranch, 50m, 100m free, 100m fly, 400m relay in swimming; Laura Coenen, Peyton, team handball; and Mujaahid Maynard, Denver Greco-Roman wrestling.

I would also like to offer my sincere congratulations to Mr. Todd Riech of Montana. Todd is the only Native American representing the United States in the 1996 games. After overcoming potentially career-threatening injuries, he won his qualifying event for the javelin. Todd is setting an example of perseverance and commitment for all young Native Americans to follow. He is already a winner.

I wish all the best of these and the other athletes representing us at these centennial summer games.

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 9:38 am., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hayes, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House insists upon its amendment to the bill (S. 1316) to reauthorize and amend title XIV of the Public Health Service Act, commonly known as the "Safe Drinking Water Act", and for other purposes, and asks a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon; and appoints the following Members as the managers of the conference on the part of the House:

Resolved, That the House insist upon its amendment to the bill (S. 1316) entitled "An Act to authorize and amend title XIV of the Public Health Service Act (commonly known as the "Safe Drinking Water Act"), and for other purposes," and ask a conference with the Senate on the disagreement votes of the two Houses thereon.

ENROLLED BILLS SIGNED

At 5:52 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Goetz, one of its reading clerks, announced that the Speaker has signed the following enrolled bills:

H.R. 743. An act to amend the National Labor Relations Act to allow labor management cooperative efforts that improve economic competitiveness in the United States to continue to thrive, and for other purposes.

S. 966. An act for the relief of Nathan C. Vance, and for other purposes.

S. 1899. An act entitled the "Mollie Beattie Alaska Wilderness Area Act".

The enrolled bills were signed subsequently by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

At 6:01 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Ms. Goetz, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House agrees to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 743) to amend the National Labor Relations Act to allow labor management cooperative efforts that improve economic competitiveness in the United States to continue to thrive, and for other purposes.

At 8:35 a.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hays, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bill, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 3734. An act to provide for reconciliation pursuant to section (a)(1) of the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1997.

The message also announced that pursuant to provisions of section 491 of the Higher Education Act, as amended by section 407 of Public Law 99-498, the Speaker appoints the following as members from private life on the part of the House to the Advisory Committee on Student Financial Assistance: Mr. Thomas E. Dillion of California, and Mr. William A. Irwin of Pennsylvania.

The message further announced that pursuant to clause 6 of rule 10, the Speaker announces the following modification to the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 3230) to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 1997 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes:

Delete section 724 of the Senate amendment from the panel appointed from the Committee on Commerce.

The panel from the Committee on Commerce, consisting of Mr. BLILEY, Mr. OXLEY, and Mr. DINGELL, is also appointed for the consideration of section 3174 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference.

The panel from the Committee on Science is also appointed for the consideration of section 1044 of the Senate amendment, and modifications committed to conference.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bills were read the first and second times by unanimous consent and referred as indicated:

H.R. 3166. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, with respect to the crime of false statement in a Government matter; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H.R. 3756. An act to amend title 18, United States Code, with respect to the crime of false statement in a Government matter, to the Committee on Appropriations.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. MCCAIN (for himself, Mr. INOUE, Mr. THOMAS, and Mr. CAMPBELL):

S. 1970. A bill to amend the National Museum of the American Indian Act to make improvements in the Act, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF THE AMERICAN INDIAN ACT AMENDMENTS OF 1996

• Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I introduce legislation to amend the National Museum of the American Indian Act of 1989. I am very pleased to be joined by Senators INOUE, THOMAS and CAMPBELL as original cosponsors of this legislation. I am particularly pleased to be joined by my good friend from Hawaii, Senator INOUE, the Vice-Chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, who, with his tireless dedication, has championed this particular issue for many years. This legislation is intended to amend the National Museum of the American Indian Act to ensure that the requirements for the inventory, identification and repatriation of Native American human remains, associated and unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony in the possession of the Smithsonian Institution are being carried out in a manner consistent with the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (25 U.S.C. 3001), so that these culturally important items can be returned to their rightful keepers and protectors, the Indian tribes.

The possession of Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony by various Federal agencies, museums, and private collectors has been a very contentious issue for Indian tribes, tribal organizations, and Native Hawaiian Organizations for many years. Native Americans, not unlike other Americans, feel that the bones of their ancestors and the objects buried with them are sacred and rightfully belong under the protection and control of their descendants. Similarly, Native Americans feel strongly that sacred objects and objects of cultural patrimony, which have been wrongfully acquired, should be returned to the appropriate Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization. On the other side of the debate are archeologists, anthropologists, and others from the scientific community who feel that there is an overriding principle of scientific inquiry to unearth and study the remains of the Indians of the past in order to understand past cultures and their histories. Over the years, this debate has ranged from scholarly discussion to impassioned arguments and finally to emotional demands by Indian people for understanding and respect for their right to have these culturally and spiritually important items to be properly returned.

It is important to note that the Smithsonian Institution was the first museum to take the lead in establishing a process for the repatriation of Native American human remains and funerary objects. Under the National Museum of the American Indian Act (20 U.S.C. 80q, et seq.), Congress established a process for the inventory, identification, and repatriation of Native American human remains and associated funerary objects. This groundbreaking legislation was a critical first step in facilitating thoughtful dialogue between Indian tribes and museums regarding the proper treatment of Native American human remains, funerary objects, sacred objects and objects of cultural patrimony. These discussions resulted in the passage of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act. Since the passage of the Act, the Smithsonian Institution has continued to work diligently to fulfill the mandates of the National Museum of the American Indian Act regarding the repatriation of Native American human remains and funerary objects. In fact, in certain areas the administrative policies of the National Museum of the American Indian and the National Museum of Natural History exceed the requirements of the National Museum of the American Indian. Since 1991 the Museum of Natural History has adopted the categories and repatriation provisions described in Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act as museum policy. Under that policy, the museum has inventoried a substantial part of its collection of Native American human remains and returned hundreds of human remains to Native American communities. The National Museum of the American Indian has developed a substantive repatriation policy that goes well beyond the requirements of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act in order to facilitate the identification and repatriation of any Native American human remains and objects in its collections. Under its 1991 repatriation policy, the National Museum of the American Indian has prepared and distributed both the summary of ethnographic materials and the inventory of human remains and funerary objects within its entire collection to all of the 557 federally recognized Indian tribes. The Museum's summary goes beyond the requirements of Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act by not only including sacred objects and objects of cultural patrimony but also includes religious and ceremonial objects, and objects that are owned in common.

Under the repatriation provisions of the National Museum of the American Indian Act, the Smithsonian Institution is required only to inventory and repatriate Native American human remains and associated funerary objects. Although the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act does not cover the Smithsonian Institution, the Smithsonian has endeavored to meet or exceed each of the requirements of the Act. Despite the absence of a statutory obligation to identify and repatriate Native American unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony, the Smithsonian Institution has committed to complete its identification and summary of Native American unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony by December 31, 1996. Similarly, the Smithsonian has committed to completing its inventory of Native American human remains and associated funerary objects before June 1, 1998.

Mr. President, the bill I am introducing today would provide the statutory authority to the Smithsonian Institution to complete its inventory, identification, and repatriation process for the respectful return of the tribal ancestors and items of cultural importance to Native Americans. This legislation is consistent with the administrative policies of the Smithsonian as it relates to repatriation and it is consistent with the requirements of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act. I would like to commend the tremendous progress made by the Smithsonian Institution in implementing a policy that respects Indian tribes and their deeply-held beliefs by providing for the return of the remains of their ancestors and relatives and the culturally significant objects in its possession. I would like to add that representatives of the Smithsonian have worked closely with the Committee in the preparation of this legislation and have continued to demonstrate their serious commitment to returning these sacred remains and objects to their rightful owners, the Indian tribes.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill and the accompanying section by section analysis appear in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1970

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; REFERENCES.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "National Museum of the American Indian Act Amendments of 1996".

(b) REFERENCES.—Whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the National Museum of the American Indian Act (20 U.S.C. 80q et seq.).

SEC. 2. BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

Section 5(f)(1)(B) (20 U.S.C. 80q-3(f)(1)(B)) is amended by striking "an Assistant Secretary" and inserting "a senior official".

SEC. 3. INVENTORY.

Section 11(a) (20 U.S.C. 80q-9) is amended—
 (1) by striking “(1)” and inserting “(A)”;
 (2) by striking “(2)” and inserting “(B)”;
 (3) by inserting “(1)” before “The Secretary”; and

(4) by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

“(2) The inventory made by the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution under paragraph (1) shall be completed not later than June 1, 1998.

“(3) For purposes of this subsection, the term ‘inventory’ means a simple, itemized list that, to the extent practicable, identifies, based upon available information held by the Smithsonian Institution, the geographic and cultural affiliation of the remains and objects referred to in paragraph (1).”.

SEC. 4. SUMMARY AND REPATRIATION OF UNASSOCIATED FUNERARY OBJECTS, SACRED OBJECTS, AND CULTURAL PATRIMONY.

The National Museum of the American Indian Act is amended by inserting after section 11 the following new section:

“SEC. 11A. SUMMARY AND REPATRIATION OF UNASSOCIATED FUNERARY OBJECTS, SACRED OBJECTS, AND CULTURAL PATRIMONY.

“(a) SUMMARY.—Not later than December 31, 1996, the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution shall provide a written summary that contains a summary of unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony (as those terms are defined in subparagraphs (B), (C), and (D), respectively, of section 2(3) of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (25 U.S.C. 3001(3)), based upon available information held by the Smithsonian Institution. The summary required under this section shall include, at a minimum, the information required under section 6 of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (25 U.S.C. 3004).

“(b) REPATRIATION.—Where cultural affiliation of Native American unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony has been established in the summary prepared pursuant to subsection (a), or where a requesting Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization can show cultural affiliation by a preponderance of the evidence based upon geographical, kinship, biological, archaeological, anthropological, linguistic, folkloric, oral traditional, historical, or other relevant information or expert opinion, then the Smithsonian Institution shall expeditiously return such unassociated funerary object, sacred object, or object of cultural patrimony where—

“(1) the requesting party is the direct lineal descendant of an individual who owned the unassociated funerary object or sacred object;

“(2) the requesting Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization can show that the object was owned or controlled by the Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization; or

“(3) the requesting Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization can show that the unassociated funerary object or sacred object was owned or controlled by a member thereof, provided that in the case where an unassociated funerary object or sacred object was owned by a member thereof, there are no identifiable lineal descendants of said member or the lineal descendants, upon notice, have failed to make a claim for the object.

“(c) STANDARD OF REPATRIATION.—If a known lineal descendant or an Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization requests the return of Native American unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony pursuant to this Act and presents evidence which, if standing alone before the introduction of evidence to the contrary, would support a finding that the Smithsonian Institution did not have the right of possession, then the Smithsonian Institution shall return such objects unless it can overcome such inference and prove that it has a right of possession to the objects.

“(d) MUSEUM OBLIGATION.—Any museum of the Smithsonian Institution which repatriates any item in good faith pursuant to this Act shall not be liable for claims by an aggrieved party or for claims of fiduciary duty, public trust, or violations of applicable law that are inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.

“(e) STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section may be construed to prevent the Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, with respect to any museum of the Smithsonian Institution, from making an inventory or preparing a written summary or carrying out the repatriation of Native American human remains, associated and unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony in a manner that exceeds the requirements of this section.

“(f) NATIVE HAWAIIAN ORGANIZATION DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘Native Hawaiian organization’ has the meaning provided that term in section 2(11) of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (25 U.S.C. 3001(11)).”.

SEC. 5. SPECIAL COMMITTEE.

Section 12 (20 U.S.C. 80q-10) is amended—

(1) in the first sentence of subsection (a), by inserting “and unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony under section 11A” before the period; and

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) in the matter preceding paragraph (1), by striking “five” and inserting “7”;

(B) in paragraph (1)—

(i) by striking “three” and inserting “4”;

and

(ii) by striking “and” at the end;

(C) by redesignating paragraph (2) as paragraph (3); and

(D) by inserting after paragraph (1) the following:

“(2) at least 2 members shall be traditional Indian religious leaders; and”.

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF THE AMERICAN INDIAN ACT AMENDMENTS OF 1996SECTION ONE. SHORT TITLE

This section cites the short title of the Act as “the National Museum of the American Indian Act Amendments of 1996”. It also provides that any reference to amendment or repeal in this Act shall be considered to be references to the provisions of the National Museum of the American Indian Act. (20 U.S.C. 80q et seq.)

SECTION TWO. BOARD OF TRUSTEES

This section amends section 5 of the National Museum of the American Indian Act by changing the reference to “an Assistant Secretary” of the Smithsonian Institution to “a senior official” of the Smithsonian.

SECTION THREE. INVENTORY

This section amends section 11 of the National Museum of the American Indian Act to require the inventory to be conducted by the Secretary of the Smithsonian be completed not later than June 1, 1998. It also defines the term “inventory” as it is used in the Act.

SECTION FOUR. SUMMARY AND REPATRIATION OF UNASSOCIATED FUNERARY OBJECTS, SACRED OBJECTS, AND CULTURAL PATRIMONY

This section amends the National Museum of the American Indian Act by establishing a new section 11a. Section 11a requires the Secretary of the Smithsonian to develop a written summary of unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, and objects of cultural patrimony held by the Smithsonian, based upon available information and consistent with the requirements of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act (25 U.S.C. 3004). The summary must be completed by December 31, 1996.

Subsection (b) requires the Smithsonian to expeditiously return any Native American unassociated funerary object, sacred object, or object of cultural patrimony where the cultural affiliation has been established in the summary prepared by the Smithsonian, or where a requesting Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian Organization can show its cultural affiliation with the items by a preponderance of the evidence, and the requesting Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian Organization can establish that the object was owned or controlled by the Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian Organization, or by a member of the tribe or organization. The Smithsonian shall expeditiously return any object to any direct lineal descendant of the owner of the object.

Subsection (c) sets out the standard of repatriation under the Act. It provides that if a known lineal descendant or an Indian tribe or Native Hawaiian organization requests the return of Native American unassociated funerary objects, sacred objects, or objects of cultural patrimony and can make a prima facie showing that the Smithsonian Institution did not have the right of possession of such object, then the Smithsonian must return such object unless it can prove that it has the right of possession of such objects.

Subsection (d) provides that any museum of the Smithsonian Institution, which repatriates an item in good faith shall not be liable for any claims of fiduciary duty, public trust, or violations of State law that are inconsistent with the provisions of this Act.

Subsection (e) provides that nothing in this Act shall be construed to prevent the Secretary of the Smithsonian from making an inventory or preparing a written summary or carrying out the repatriation of objects under this Act in a manner that exceeds the requirements of this section.

Subsection (f) defines the term “Native Hawaiian Organization” as the term is used in this Act.

SECTION FIVE. SPECIAL COMMITTEE

This section amends section 12 of the National Museum of the American Indian Act by increasing the membership of the Special Committee to seven and it shall include two members who are traditional Indian religious leaders.

● Mr. INOUE. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my Chairman, Senator JOHN MCCAIN, in the introduction of a bill to amend the National Museum of the American Indian Act.

The amendments that this bill proposes would fulfill a commitment I made to other museums and scientific institutions at the time the Congress was considering the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act.

At that time, Mr. President, the National Museum of the American Indian was newly authorized and was engaged in establishing the necessary administrative structures and policies that would define its character as an institution.

Amongst the issues to be addressed by the new museum was the development of a repatriation policy, and the need to reconcile that policy with the policies of other museums in the Smithsonian Institution.

Accordingly, while a general framework addressing repatriation was included in the National Museum of the American Indian Act that we adopted in 1989, the opportunity for the Smithsonian Institution to develop an institution-wide repatriation policy and the processes associated with the implementation of such a policy was requested, and we provided the time necessary to enable the development of that comprehensive policy.

The other museums and scientific institutions that were to be covered under the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act objected in the strongest possible terms to the exclusion of the Smithsonian Institution from the act, but ultimately agreed not to oppose passage of the act based in part upon my personal commitment that the Congress would subsequently enact legislation to assure that the Smithsonian Institution would be subject to Federal repatriation law.

The bill we introduce today is designed, as I have indicated, to fulfill that commitment and to assure that the policy objectives of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act are extended to the Smithsonian Institution.

As I complete my service as a member of the Board of Trustees of the National Museum of the American Indian this year, I am pleased that my Chairman has seized the initiative to act upon the discussions in which we have been engaged with the Smithsonian Institution and thereby given his support for carrying out my promise.

I am hopeful that our colleagues in the Senate and the House will agree to act upon this legislation before the end of the 104th session of the Congress, and I thank my Chairman for his leadership.●

By Mr. McCAIN (for himself, Mr. INOUE and Mr. STEVENS):

S. 1972. A bill to amend the Older Americans Act of 1965 to improve the provisions relating to Indians, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

THE OLDER AMERICANS INDIAN TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS ACT

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I rise today on behalf of myself and Senators INOUE and STEVENS to introduce legislation to make various technical amendments to the Older Americans Act. This bill provides greater flexibility to the Administration on Aging to assist Indian tribes in providing critically needed nutrition services to older native Americans.

In most native communities, older native Americans are held in the highest esteem because they serve a vital role in the community as the keepers of culture, language, and tradition. native American elder populations are growing rapidly throughout Indian country, representing almost 9 percent of the total native American population. However, older Native Americans also experience levels of poverty at rates significantly higher than the national level, ranging from 29 percent for Indian elders aged 60 and older to 38 percent for rural Indian elders aged 65 and over. Older native Americans still live under some of the most remote and harsh conditions existing in Indian country.

In addition to high levels of poverty, native American elders experience comparatively higher levels of immobility and disability with severely limited self-care options. Native American elders often live alone in remote areas with no access to transportation or telephone services. In some cases, the nearest telephone or grocery store is hundreds of miles away. Many older Native Americans who live in rural areas have not graduated from high school or have no formal schooling. Employment opportunities for older native Americans are extremely limited due to the remoteness of Indian communities and the lack of formal education.

The community-based services provided to native American elders through the Older Americans Act are of great benefit to many Indian communities. Through the act, many older Native Americans can earn incomes by serving their tribal communities through the senior employment programs. The act also authorizes grants to Indian tribes and tribal organizations through title VI to administer important nutritional programs in remote areas such as those serving Alaska Native communities and rural areas on the Navajo Reservation in my home State of Arizona.

However, these programs can be strengthened to ensure that Indian tribes are able to tailor nutritional and supportive programs that are appropriate to the cultural and geographic characteristics of their communities. Often, employment and nutrition programs are difficult to administer in Indian country because of the remoteness of the service area for Indian populations and the unique character of Indian cultures. The legislation I am proposing will ensure that Indian tribes and tribal organizations serving Native American elders will be afforded maximum flexibility in administering employment and nutrition programs to provide critically needed services at the reservation level.

The bill modifies the definition of "reservation" to clarify that Indian tribes in Oklahoma and California, as well as Alaska Native communities, will maintain their eligibility to administer programs under the act. Indian reservations and Alaska Native communities suffer from the highest unemployment rates in the United States and endure the lowest incomes of all Americans. The application of this requirement only serves to frustrate the efforts of older Native Americans to work in their own communities.

The bill will also modify the requirement for certification by the Bureau of Indian Affairs [BIA] in Section 3057e(b) to provide more flexibility to the administration and to tribal applicants by allowing the BIA to certify population statistics for tribal grant applications through a written approval letter. This change is necessary to clarify that the current procedure of obtaining written approval from the BIA is sufficient for tribal applicants to receive a grant award.

Finally, the act will simplify certain requirements that impose unreasonable and overly burdensome application and reporting requirements for tribal applicants. The bill authorizes the Assistant Secretary for Aging to take into consideration the special circumstances facing geographically isolated and small communities that do not have the infrastructure or resources to meet strict and onerous application and reporting requirements. Instead of providing much needed services for small and rural Indian communities, tribal grant recipients often find themselves preoccupied with complying with voluminous paperwork requirements.

Mr. President, the Older Americans Act provides critically needed human and social services to older Native Americans on a daily basis. The bill we are introducing today will simply ensure that older Native Americans will continue to receive the assistance they need to stay in their own homes and communities, and continue to fulfill their vital role as the keepers of culture, language and tradition.

I ask unanimous consent that the full text of this bill and the section-by-section summary be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1972

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Older Americans Indian Technical Amendments Act".

SEC. 2. INDIAN EMPLOYMENT; DEFINITION OF INDIAN RESERVATION.

Section 502(b)(1)(B) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3056(b)(1)(B)) is amended to read as follows:

"(B)(i) will provide employment for eligible individuals in the community in which such individuals reside, or in nearby communities; or

"(ii) if such project is carried out by a tribal organization that enters into an agreement under subsection (b) or receives assistance from a State that enters into such an agreement, will provide employment for such individuals who are Indians residing on an Indian reservation, as the term is defined in section 2601(2) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (25 U.S.C. 3501(2))."

SEC. 3. POPULATION STATISTICS DEVELOPMENT.

Section 614(b) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(b)) is amended by striking "certification" and inserting "approval".

SEC. 4. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

Section 614(c) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(c)) is amended—

(1) by inserting "(1)" after "(c)"; and
 (2) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(2) The Assistant Secretary shall provide waivers and exemptions of the reporting requirements of subsection (a)(3) for applicants that serve Indian populations in geographically isolated areas, or applicants that serve small Indian populations, where the small scale of the project, the nature of the applicant, or other factors make the reporting requirements unreasonable under the circumstances. The Assistant Secretary shall consult with such applicants in establishing appropriate waivers and exemptions."

SEC. 5. EXPENDITURE OF FUNDS FOR NUTRITION SERVICES.

Section 614(c) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(c)), as amended by section 4, is further amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3) In determining whether an application complies with the requirements of subsection (a)(8), the Assistant Secretary shall provide maximum flexibility to an applicant who seeks to take into account subsistence needs, local customs, and other characteristics that are appropriate to the unique cultural, regional, and geographic needs of the Indian populations to be served."

SEC. 6. COORDINATION OF SERVICES.

Section 614(c) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(c)), as amended by section 5, is further amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(4) In determining whether an application complies with the requirements of subsection (a)(12), the Assistant Secretary shall require only that an applicant provide an appropriate narrative description of the geographical area to be served and an assurance that procedures will be adopted to ensure against duplicate services being provided to the same recipients."

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE OLDER AMERICANS INDIAN TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS ACT

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This section cites the short title of the bill, as the "Older Americans Indian Technical Amendments Act."

SEC. 2. INDIAN EMPLOYMENT; DEFINITION OF INDIAN RESERVATION.

This section amends Section 502(b)(1)(B) of the Act (42 U.S.C. 3056(b)(1)(B)) by modifying the definition of "reservation" in the current Act to conform with the definition found in Section 2601(2) of the Energy Policy Act of 1992.

SEC. 3. POPULATION STATISTICS DEVELOPMENT.

This section amends Section 614(b) of the Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(b)) by striking the word "certification" and inserting the word "approval."

SEC. 4. REPORTING REQUIREMENTS.

This section amends Section 614(c) of the Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(c)) by adding a new paragraph (2) which authorizes the Assistant Secretary on Aging to waive or exempt the reporting requirements of section (a)(3) for applicants that serve Indian populations in geographically isolated areas or applicants that serve small Indian populations, while still maintaining strict accountability standards.

SEC. 5. EXPENDITURE OF FUNDS FOR NUTRITION SERVICES.

This section amends Section 614(c) of the Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(c)) by adding a new paragraph (3) which requires the Assistant Secretary on Aging, in determining whether an application complies with the requirements of subsection (a)(8), to take into account the unique cultural and geographical considerations of the Indian populations to be served.

SEC. 6. COORDINATION OF SERVICES.

This section amends Section 614(c) of the Act (42 U.S.C. 3057e(c)) by adding a new paragraph (4) which requires the Assistant Secretary on Aging, in determining whether an application complies with the requirements of subsection (a)(12), to provide flexibility to tribal applicants by requiring only that they submit an appropriate narrative description of the geographical area and population to be served and an appropriate assurance against duplicate services being provided

By Mr. McCAIN:

S. 1973. A bill to provide for the settlement of the Navajo-Hopi land dispute, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

THE NAVAJO-HOPI LAND DISPUTE SETTLEMENT ACT OF 1996

Mr. McCAIN. Mr. President, I introduce legislation to ratify the settlement of four claims of the Hopi Tribe against the United States and to provide the necessary authority to the Hopi Tribe to issue 75-year lease agreements to Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Land. This legislation will ratify the settlement and accommodation agreements between the Department of Justice, the Hopi Tribe, the Navajo Nation, and the Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands.

This settlement marks an important first step in bringing this longstanding dispute between the Hopi Tribe, the Navajo Nation, and the United States to an orderly and peaceful conclusion. These agreements are the product of many years of negotiation under the auspices of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals mediation process. While I understand that there are factions in both the Hopi Tribe and the Navajo Nation who have voiced their opposition to this proposal, I believe that these agreements represent the only realistic way to settle the claims of the Hopi Tribe against the United States and to provide an accommodation for the hundreds of Navajos residing on Hopi Partitioned Lands.

I believe it is imperative that the Congress take steps to bring this longstanding dispute to a final resolution. It has been over 22 years since the Navajo-Hopi Settlement Act was passed to settle the disputes between the Navajo Nation and the Hopi Tribe. Since that time, the Federal Government has spent over $350 million to fund the Navajo-Hopi Relocation Program. The funding for this settlement has exceeded the original cost estimates by more than 900 percent. And yet, there are over 130 appeals still pending, which raises a great deal of uncertainty regarding who is and is not eligible for relocation benefits under the act. I am convinced that future Federal budgetary pressures will require that the Navajo-Hopi Relocation Housing Program be brought to an orderly and certain conclusion. In light of the current atmosphere in Congress, it is highly unlikely that the Federal Government will continue to provide benefits through the Office of Navajo and Hopi Indian Relocation much longer. In order to bring this process to an orderly conclusion, I will introduce separate legislation in the near future that will provide for an orderly phase out of the Navajo-Hopi Relocation Housing Program in 5 years. As an important first step, it is critical that the Congress pass legislation to settle the outstanding claims of the Hopi Tribe against the United States.

The legislation I am introducing today will provide a resolution to these outstanding claims while allowing those Navajo families who are inclined to remain on Hopi Partitioned Land the opportunity to do so for 75 years under an accommodation agreement with the Hopi Tribe. The settlement agreement provides that those eligible Navajo families wishing to receive relocation benefits will have a time certain in which to apply for and receive their benefits. The Agreement also recognizes the Hopi Tribe's right to exercise jurisdiction over the Hopi Partitioned Lands where Navajo families are residing.

The settlement agreement settles four claims by the Hopi Tribe against the United States. The first claim settled by the agreement is Hopi Tribe versus Navajo Tribe, et al., pending in the U.S. District Court in Phoenix, which is a claim for damages due to the failure of the Federal Government to make timely rental value determinations required under 25 U.S.C. 640d-15(a).

The second claim settled by this agreement is Secakuku versus Hale, et al., pending in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit, which is a claim for damages against the United States for post-partition damages to the Hopi partitioned lands caused by overgrazing before the lands were partitioned.

The third claim settled by this agreement is Hopi Tribe v. United States, pending in the United States Court of Federal Appeals, which is a claim for damages for the failure of the Federal Government to collect livestock trespass penalties, forage consumed fees, and property damages fees on behalf of the Hopi Tribe.

The last claim settled by the agreement is a claim against the United States for the failure of the Federal Government to give the Hopi Tribe quiet possession of the Hopi lands that are used and occupied by Navajo families.

In exchange for waiving these claims against the United States and for providing an accommodation agreement for the Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands, the United States will pay the Hopi Tribe $50.2 million under a structured settlement which is keyed to the performance of certain activities under the settlement agreement.

The settlement agreement provides that funds shall be paid out in the following manner: First, the Hopi Tribe will receive $2.4 million once the tribe files a motion to dismiss its appeal in the Ninth Circuit in Secakuku versus Hale; second the Hopi Tribe will receive $22.7 million once legislation extending the tribe's leasing authority to 75 years has been enacted and once the tribe's claims in the Court of Claims for damages due to any Federal action which occurred before 1982 are dismissed; third, the Hopi Tribe will receive $10 million once 65 percent of the Navajo families residing on the Hopi reservation have signed the accommodation agreement or request to be relocated and once the Hopi Tribe's claims in the Court of Claims for livestock trespass damages against the United States from 1983 through 1988 are dismissed; fourth the Hopi Tribe will receive $15.1 million once 75 percent of the Navajo families residing on the Hopi reservation have signed the accommodation agreements or request to be relocated and once the Hopi Tribe's claims in the Court of Federal Appeals for livestock trespass damages against the United States from 1989 through and including 1996 are dismissed.

This settlement has the support of the Navajo Nation, Hopi Tribe, the Departments of Justice and Interior, and the State of Arizona. The accommodation agreement for the Navajo families was negotiated and approved by representatives of the Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Land. While I understand that this legislation ratifying the settlement agreement does not completely resolve the disputes between the Navajo and Hopi Tribes, I believe the agreement represents significant progress toward an overall settlement of these highly contentious and longstanding claims between the two tribes.

Finally, I would like to congratulate all the parties for their dedication and hard work in crafting these historic agreements. I am pleased to note that the parties have been sensitive to the concerns of local government in negotiating this settlement agreement, which enjoys the support of the Governor of the State of Arizona.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the full text of the bill and the accompanying section by section analysis appear in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1973

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Navajo-Hopi Land Dispute Settlement Act of 1996".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds that—

(1) it is in the public interest for the Tribe, Navajos residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands, and the United States to reach a peaceful resolution of the longstanding disagreements between the parties under the Act commonly known as the "Navajo-Hopi Land Settlement Act of 1974" (Public Law 93-531; 25 U.S.C. 640d et seq.);

(2) it is in the best interest of the Tribe and the United States that there be a fair and final settlement of certain issues remaining in connection with the Navajo-Hopi Land Settlement Act of 1974, including the full and final settlement of the multiple claims that the Tribe has against the United States;

(3) this Act, together with the Settlement Agreement executed on December 14, 1995, and the Accommodation Agreement (as incorporated by the Settlement Agreement), provide the authority for the Tribe to enter agreements with eligible, traditional Navajo families in order for those families to remain residents of the Hopi Partitioned Lands for a period of 75 years, subject to the terms and conditions of the Accommodation Agreement;

(4) the United States acknowledges and respects—

(A) the sincerity of the traditional beliefs of the members of the Tribe and the Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands; and

(B) the importance that the respective traditional beliefs of the members of the Tribe and Navajo families have with respect to the culture and way of life of those members and families;

(5) this Act, the Settlement Agreement, and the Accommodation Agreement provide for the mutual respect and protection of the traditional religious beliefs and practices of the Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands; and

(6) the Tribe is encouraged to work with the Navajo families residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands to address their concerns regarding the establishment of family or individual burial plots for deceased family members who have resided on the Hopi Partitioned Lands.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

Except as otherwise provided in this Act, for purposes of this Act, the following definitions shall apply:

(1) ACCOMMODATION.—The term "Accommodation" has the meaning provided the term "Accommodation" under the Settlement Agreement.

(2) HOPI PARTITIONED LANDS.—The term "Hopi Partitioned Lands" means lands located in the Hopi Partitioned Area, as defined in section 168.1(g) of title 25, Code of Federal Regulations (as effect on the date of enactment of this Act).

(3) NAVAJO PARTITIONED LANDS.—The term "Navajo Partitioned Lands" has the meaning provided that term in the proposed regulations issued on November 1, 1995, at 60 Fed. Reg. 55506.

(4) NEW LANDS.—The term "New Lands" has the meaning provided that term in section 700.701(b) of title 25, Code of Federal Regulations.

(5) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Interior.

(6) SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT.—The term "Settlement Agreement" means the agreement between the United States and the Hopi Tribe executed on December 14, 1995.

(7) TRIBE.—The term "Tribe" means the Hopi Tribe.

SEC. 4. RATIFICATION OF SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT.

The United States approves, ratifies, and confirms the Settlement Agreement.

SEC. 5. CONDITIONS FOR LANDS TAKEN INTO TRUST.

The Secretary shall take such action as may be necessary to ensure that the following conditions are met prior to taking lands into trust for the benefit of the Tribe pursuant to the Settlement Agreement:

(1) SELECTION OF LANDS TAKEN INTO TRUST.—

(A) PRIMARY AREA.—In accordance with section 7(a) of the Settlement Agreement, the primary area within which lands may be taken into trust by the Secretary for the benefit of the Tribe under the Settlement Agreement shall be located in northern Arizona.

(B) REQUIREMENTS FOR LANDS TAKEN INTO TRUST IN THE PRIMARY AREA.—Lands taken into trust in the primary area referred to in subparagraph (A) shall be—

(i) land that is used substantially for ranching, agriculture, or another similar use; and

(ii) to the extent feasible, in contiguous parcels.

(2) ACQUISITION OF LANDS.—Before taking any land into trust for the benefit of the Tribe under this section, the Secretary shall ensure that:

(A) At least 75 percent of the eligible Navajo heads of household (as determined under the Settlement Agreement) have entered into an accommodation or have chosen to relocate and are eligible for relocation assistance (as determined under the Settlement Agreement).

(B) The Tribe has consulted with the State of Arizona concerning the lands proposed to be placed in trust, including consulting the State concerning the impact of placing those lands into trust on the State and political subdivisions thereof resulting from the removal of land from the tax rolls in a manner consistent with the provisions of part 151 of title 25, Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 6. ACQUISITION THROUGH CONDEMNATION OF CERTAIN INTERSPERSED LANDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) ACTION BY THE SECRETARY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall take action as specified in subparagraph (B), to the extent that the Tribe, in accordance with section 7(b) of the Settlement Agreement—

(i) acquires private lands; and

(ii) requests the Secretary to acquire through condemnation interspersed lands that are owned by the State of Arizona and are located within the exterior boundaries of those private lands in order to have both the private lands and the State lands taken into trust by the Secretary for the benefit of the Tribe.

(B) ACQUISITION THROUGH CONDEMNATION.—With respect to a request for an acquisition of lands through condemnation made under subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall, upon the recommendation of the Tribe, take such action as may be necessary to acquire the lands through condemnation and pay the State of Arizona fair market value for those lands in accordance with applicable Federal law, if the conditions described in paragraph (2) are met.

(2) CONDITIONS FOR ACQUISITION THROUGH CONDEMNATION.—The Secretary may acquire lands through condemnation under this subsection if—

(A) that acquisition is consistent with the purpose of obtaining not more than 500,000 acres of land to be taken into trust for the Tribe;

(B) the State of Arizona concurs with the United States that the acquisition is consistent with the interests of the State; and

(C) the Tribe pays for the land acquired through condemnation under this subsection.

(b) DISPOSITION OF LANDS.—If the Secretary acquires lands through condemnation under subsection (a), the Secretary shall take those lands into trust for the Tribe in accordance with this Act and the Settlement Agreement.

(c) PRIVATE LANDS.—The Secretary may not acquire private lands through condemnation for the purpose specified in subsection (a)(2)(A).

SEC. 7. ACTION TO QUIET TITLE.

If the United States fails to discharge the obligations specified in section 9(c) of the Settlement Agreement with respect to voluntary relocation of Navajos residing on Hopi Partitioned Lands, or section 9(d) of the Settlement Agreement, relating to the implementation of sections 700.137 through 700.139 of title 25, Code of Federal Regulations, on the New Lands, including failure for reason of insufficient funds made available by appropriations or otherwise, the Tribe may bring an action to quiet possession that relates to the use of the Hopi Partitioned Lands after February 1, 2000, by a Navajo family that is eligible for an accommodation, but fails to enter into an accommodation.

SEC. 8. PAYMENTS IN LIEU OF TAXES.

Section 6901(1) of title 31, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking “or” at the end of subparagraph (F);

(2) by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (G) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by inserting at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(H) Fee lands owned by the Hopi Tribe or members of the Hopi Tribe that are taken into trust by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to the agreement between the United States and the Hopi Tribe executed on December 14, 1995.”

SEC. 9. 75-YEAR LEASING AUTHORITY.

The first section of the Act of August 9, 1955 (69 Stat. 539, chapter 615; 25 U.S.C. 415) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by inserting before the period at the end of the second sentence the following: “, and except leases of land by the Hopi Tribe to Navajo Indians on the Hopi Partitioned lands, which may be for a term of years not to exceed seventy-five years”; and

(2) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(c) For purposes of this section—

“(1) the term ‘Hopi Partitioned Lands’ means lands located in the Hopi Partitioned Area, as defined in section 168.1 (g) of title 25, Code of Federal Regulations (as in effect on the date of enactment of this subsection); and

“(2) the term ‘Navajo Indians’ means members of the Navajo Tribe.”

SEC. 10. REAUTHORIZATION OF THE NAVAJO-HOPI RELOCATION HOUSING PROGRAM.

Section 25(a)(8) of Public Law 93-531 (25 U.S.C. 640d-24(a)(8)) is amended by striking “1996, and 1997” and inserting “1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000”.

SECTION BY SECTION ANALYSIS OF THE NAVAJO-HOPI LAND DISPUTE SETTLEMENT ACT OF 1996

SECTION ONE.—SHORT TITLE

This section cites the short title of the Act as the “Navajo-Hopi Land Dispute Settlement Act of 1996”.

SECTION TWO.—FINDINGS

This section sets out the findings of the Congress.

SECTION THREE.—DEFINITIONS

This section sets out the definitions used in the Act.

SECTION FOUR. RATIFICATION OF THE SETTLEMENT AGREEMENT

This section provides that the United States approves, ratifies and confirms the Settlement Agreement between the Hopi tribe and the United States executed on December 14, 1995.

SECTION FIVE.—CONDITIONS FOR LANDS TAKEN INTO TRUST

This section provides that, in accordance with section 7(a) of the Settlement Agreement lands which may be taken into trust by the Secretary of the Interior for the Hopi tribe shall be located in Northern Arizona. It provides that lands selected by the Hopi tribe shall be in contiguous parcels if feasible and shall be lands that were substantially used for ranching and agriculture. It further provides that the Secretary shall ensure that at least 75 percent of the heads of households, as determined by the Settlement Agreement, have entered into an accommodation agreement with the Hopi tribe or have chosen to receive their relocation benefits, prior to placing land into trust for the Hopi tribe pursuant to this settlement. The Secretary must also ensure that the Hopi tribe has consulted with the State of Arizona regarding the lands to be placed in trust consistent with 25 C.F.R. part 151.

SECTION SIX.—ACQUISITION BY CONDEMNATION OF CERTAIN INTERSPERSED LANDS

This section authorizes the Secretary of the Interior, at the request of the Hopi tribe take such action as is necessary to acquire, through condemnation action, lands owned by the State of Arizona that are located within the exterior boundaries of lands owned by the Hopi tribe. It also provides that the Secretary shall pay the State of Arizona fair market value for such lands. It further provides that the Secretary may only acquire such lands if the State of Arizona concurs with the acquisition, the tribe pays for the lands acquired through the condemnation, and the Hopi tribe has not exceeded the 500,000 acre limit in the settlement agreement. Finally, the section provides that the Secretary shall take lands acquired under the section into trust for the benefit of the Hopi Tribe in accordance with the Settlement Agreement.

SECTION SEVEN.—ACTION TO QUIET TITLE

This section provides that if the United States fails to discharge its obligations under section 9 of the settlement agreement, the Hopi Tribe is authorized to bring an action of quiet possession against any Navajo family residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands after February 1, 2000, that has not entered into an accommodation agreement with the Hopi Tribe.

SECTION EIGHT.—PAYMENTS IN LIEU OF TAXES

This section amends 31 U.S.C. 6901 to authorize payments in lieu of taxes for those lands acquired by the Hopi Tribe and taken into trust by the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to the Settlement Agreement.

SECTION NINE.—75 YEAR LEASING AUTHORITY

This section amends 25 U.S.C. 415 to provide authority to the Hopi tribe to enter into 75 year leases with Navajo Indians residing on the Hopi Partitioned Lands.

SECTION TEN.—REAUTHORIZATION OF THE NAVAJO-HOPI RELOCATION HOUSING PROGRAM

This section extends the authorization of appropriations for the Navajo-Hopi Relocation Housing Program through the year 2000.

SENATE RESOLUTION 280—RELATIVE TO THE CRASH OF TWA FLIGHT 800

Mr. SPECTER (for himself, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. D'AMATO, Mr. MOYNIHAN, and Mr. LAUTENBERG) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 280

Whereas, on July 17, 1996, Trans World Airlines Flight 800 tragically crashed en route from New York to Paris, France, creating a tremendous and tragic loss of life estimated at 229 men, women, and children;

Whereas, according to Daniel L. Chandler, Principal of Montoursville, Pennsylvania High School, among those traveling on board this airplane were 16 members of the Montoursville High School French Club, who were among the very best students of the French language at their school, and their five adult chaperones, who generously devoted their time to making possible this planned three-week French Club trip to visit Paris and the French provinces;

Whereas, the actual cause of the airplane crash is as of yet unknown;

Whereas, the federal government is investigating the cause of this tragedy; Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate of the United States—

(1) expresses its condolences to the families, friends and loved ones of those whose lives were taken away by this tragic occurrence; and

(2) expresses its sincere hope that the cause of this tragedy will be determined through a thorough investigation as soon as possible.

SENATE RESOLUTION 281—TO AUTHORIZE REPRESENTATION BY SENATE LEGAL COUNSEL

Mr. DASCHLE submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 281

Whereas, in the case of James Lockhart v. United States, et al., No. C95-1858Z, pending in the United States District Court for the Western District of Washington, the plaintiff has named Senator Trent Lott and former Senator Robert J. Dole as defendants;

Whereas, pursuant to sections 703(a) and 704(a)(1) of the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, 2 U.S.C. §§288b(a) and 288c(a)(1)(1994), the Senate may direct its counsel to defend its Members in civil actions relating to their official responsibilities; Now, therefore, be it Resolved, That the Senate Legal Counsel is authorized to represent Senator Lott and former Senator Dole in the case of James Lockhart v. United States, et al.

ABRAHAM (AND LIEBERMAN)
AMENDMENT NO. 4895

(Ordered to lie on the table.)
Mr. ABRAHAM (for himself and Mr. LIEBERMAN) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the bill, S. 1956, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert:

TITLE —ENVIRONMENTAL REMEDATION COSTS

SEC. 00. AMENDMENT OF 1986 CODE.

Except as otherwise expressly provided, whenever in this title an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Subtitle A—In General

SEC. 01. EXPENSING OF ENVIRONMENTAL REMEDIATION COSTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Part II of subchapter V of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“SEC. 1395. EXPENSING OF ENVIRONMENTAL REMEDIATION COSTS.

“(a) TREATMENT AS EXPENSE.—A taxpayer may elect to treat any environmental remediation cost as an expense which is not chargeable to capital account. Any cost so treated shall be allowable as a deduction for the taxable year in which the cost is paid or incurred.

“(b) ENVIRONMENTAL REMEDIATION COST.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘environmental remediation cost’ means any cost which—

“(A) is chargeable to capital account,

“(B) is paid or incurred in connection with the abatement or control of environmental contaminants at a site located within an empowerment zone or enterprise community, and

“(C) is certified by the applicable Federal or State authority as being required by, and in compliance with, applicable Federal and State laws governing abatement and control of environmental contaminants.

“(2) EXCEPTIONS.—Such term shall not include any amount paid or incurred—

“(A) for equipment which is used in the environmental remediation and which is of a character subject to an allowance for depreciation or amortization, or

“(B) in connection with a site which is on the national priorities list under section 105(a)(8)(B) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (42 U.S.C. 9605(a)(8)(B)).

“(c) SPECIAL RULES.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) LIMITATION BASED ON INCOME FROM TRADE OR BUSINESS.—The amount allowed as a deduction under subsection (a) for any taxable year shall not exceed the aggregate amount of taxable income of the taxpayer for such taxable year which is derived from the active conduct by the taxpayer of any trade or business during such taxable year. For purposes of this paragraph, rules similar to the rules of subparagraphs (B) and (C) of section 179(b)(3) shall apply. In the case of a partnership, S corporation, trust or other pass thru entity, this paragraph shall be applied at both the entity and owner levels.

“(2) RECAPTURE RULES.—

“(A) PROPERTY NOT USED IN TRADE OR BUSINESS.—The Secretary shall, by regulations, provide for recapturing the benefit of any deduction allowable under subsection (a) with respect to any property not used predominantly in a trade or business at any time.

“(B) TREATMENT OF GAIN AS ORDINARY INCOME.—For purposes of section 1245—

“(i) the deduction allowable under subsection (a) shall be treated as a deduction allowable to the taxpayer for depreciation or amortization; and

“(ii) property (other than section 1245 property) to which the deduction would otherwise have been chargeable shall be treated as section 1245 property solely for purposes of applying section 1245 to such deduction.”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—The table of sections for part II of subchapter U of chapter 1 of such Code is amended—

(1) by striking “TAX-EXEMPT FACILITY BONDS” in the heading for part II and inserting “TAX-INCENTIVES”, and

(2) by adding at the end the following new item:

“Sec. 1395. Expensing of environmental remediation costs.”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to amounts paid or incurred after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Subtitle B—Treatment of Individuals Who Expatriate

SEC. 31. REVISION OF TAX RULES ON EXPATRIATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart A of part II of subchapter N of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after section 877 the following new section:

“SEC. 877A. TAX RESPONSIBILITIES OF EXPATRIATION.

“(a) GENERAL RULES.—For purposes of this subtitle—

“(1) MARK TO MARKET.—Except as provided in subsection (f), all property of a covered expatriate to which this section applies shall be treated as sold on the expatriation date for its fair market value.

“(2) RECOGNITION OF GAIN OR LOSS.—In the case of any sale under paragraph (1)—

“(A) notwithstanding any other provision of this title, any gain arising from such sale shall be taken into account for the taxable year of the sale unless such gain is excluded from gross income under part III of subchapter B, and

“(B) any loss arising from such sale shall be taken into account for the taxable year of the sale to the extent otherwise provided by this title, except that section 1091 shall not apply (and section 1092 shall apply) to any such loss.

“(3) EXCLUSION FOR CERTAIN GAIN.—The amount which would (but for this paragraph) be includable in the gross income of any individual by reason of this section shall be reduced (but not below zero) by $600,000. For purposes of this paragraph, allocable expatriation gain taken into account under subsection (f)(2) shall be treated in the same manner as an amount required to be includable in gross income.

“(4) ELECTION TO CONTINUE TO BE TAXED AS UNITED STATES CITIZEN.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If an expatriate elects the application of this paragraph—

“(i) this section (other than this paragraph) shall not apply to the expatriate, but

“(ii) the expatriate shall be subject to tax under this title, with respect to property to which this section would apply but for such election, in the same manner as if the individual were a United States citizen.

“(B) LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF ESTATE, GIFT, AND GENERATION-SKIPPING TRANSFER TAXES.—The aggregate amount of taxes imposed under subtitle B with respect to any transfer of property by reason of an election under subparagraph (A) shall not exceed the amount of income tax which would be due if the property were sold for its fair market value immediately before the time of the transfer or death (taking into account the rules of paragraph (2)).

“(C) REQUIREMENTS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to an individual unless the individual—

“(i) provides security for payment of tax in such form and manner, and in such amount, as the Secretary may require.

“(ii) consents to the waiver of any right of the individual under any treaty of the United States which would preclude assessment or collection of any tax which may be imposed by reason of this paragraph, and “(iii) complies with such other requirements as the Secretary may prescribe.

“(D) ELECTION.—An election under subparagraph (A) shall apply to all property to which this section would apply but for the election and, once made, shall be irrevocable. Such election shall also apply to property the basis of which is determined in whole or in part by reference to the property with respect to which the election was made.

“(b) ELECTION TO DEFER TAX.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If the taxpayer elects the application of this subsection with respect to any property—

“(A) no amount shall be required to be included in gross income under subsection (a)(1) with respect to the gain from such property for the taxable year of the sale, but

“(B) the taxpayer's tax for the taxable year in which such property is disposed of shall be increased by the deferred tax amount with respect to the property.

Except to the extent provided in regulations, subparagraph (B) shall apply to a disposition whether or not gain or loss is recognized in whole or in part on the disposition.

“(2) DEFERRED TAX AMOUNT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the term ‘deferred tax amount’ means, with respect to any property, an amount equal to the sum of—

“(i) the difference between the amount of tax paid for the taxable year described in paragraph (1)(A) and the amount which would have been paid for such taxable year if the election under paragraph (1) had not applied to such property, plus

“(ii) an amount of interest on the amount described in clause (i) determined for the period—

“(I) beginning on the 91st day after the expatriation date, and “(II) ending on the due date for the taxable year described in paragraph (1)(B), by using the rates and method applicable under section 6621 for underpayments of tax for such period.

For purposes of clause (ii), the due date is the date prescribed by law (determined without regard to extension) for filing the return of the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year.

“(B) ALLOCATION OF LOSSES.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), any losses described in subsection (a)(2)(B) shall be allocated ratably among the gains described in subsection (a)(2)(A).

“(3) SECURITY.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—No election may be made under paragraph (1) with respect to any property unless adequate security is provided with respect to such property.

“(B) ADEQUATE SECURITY.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), security with respect to any property shall be treated as adequate security if—

“(i) it is a bond in an amount equal to the deferred tax amount under paragraph (2)(A) for the property, or “(ii) the taxpayer otherwise establishes to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the security is adequate.

“(4) WAIVER OF CERTAIN RIGHTS.—No election may be made under paragraph (1) unless the taxpayer consents to the waiver of any right under any treaty of the United States which would preclude assessment or collection of any tax imposed by reason of this section.

“(5) DISPOSITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, a taxpayer making an election under this subsection with respect to any property shall be treated as having disposed of such property—

“(A) immediately before death if such property is held at such time, and

“(B) at any time the security provided with respect to the property fails to meet the requirements of paragraph (3) and the taxpayer does not correct such failure within the time specified by the Secretary.

“(6) ELECTIONS.—An election under paragraph (1) shall only apply to property described in the election and, once made, is irrevocable. An election may be under paragraph (1) with respect to an interest in a trust with respect to which gain is required to be recognized under subsection (f)(1).

“(c) COVERED EXPATRIATE.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘covered expatriate’ means an expatriate—

“(A) whose average annual net income tax (as defined in section 38(c)(1)) for the period of 5 taxable years ending before the expatriation date is greater than $100,000, or “(B) whose net worth as of such date is $500,000 or more.

If the expatriation date is after 1996, such $100,000 and $500,000 amounts shall be increased by an amount equal to such dollar amount multiplied by the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for such calendar year by substituting ‘1995’ for ‘1992’ in subparagraph (B) thereof. Any increase under the preceding sentence shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $1,000.

“(2) EXCEPTIONS.—An individual shall not be treated as a covered expatriate if—

“(A) the individual—

“(i) became at birth a citizen of the United States and a citizen of another country and, as of the expatriation date, continues to be a citizen of, and is taxed as a resident of, such other country, and

“(ii) has been a resident of the United States (as defined in section 7701(b)(1)(A)(ii)) for not more than 8 taxable years during the 15-taxable year period ending with the taxable year during which the expatriation date occurs, or

“(B)(i) the individual's relinquishment of United States citizenship occurs before such individual attains age 18½, and “(ii) the individual has been a resident of the United States (as so defined) for not more than 5 taxable years before the date of relinquishment.

“(d) PROPERTY TO WHICH SECTION APPLIES.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided by the Secretary, this section shall apply to—

“(A) any interest in property held by a covered expatriate on the expatriation date the gain from which would be includible in the gross income of the expatriate if such interest had been sold for its fair market value on such date in a transaction in which gain is recognized in whole or in part, and “(B) any other interest in a trust to which subsection (f) applies.

“(2) EXCEPTIONS.—This section shall not apply to the following property:

“(A) UNITED STATES REAL PROPERTY INTERESTS.—Any United States real property interest (as defined in section 897(c)(1)), other than stock of a United States real property holding corporation which does not, on the expatriation date, meet the requirements of section 897(c)(2).

“(B) INTEREST IN CERTAIN RETIREMENT PLANS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Any interest in a qualified retirement plan (as defined in section 4974(c)), other than any interest attributable to contributions which are in excess of any limitation or which violate any condition for tax-favored treatment.

“(ii) FOREIGN PENSION PLANS.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—Under regulations prescribed by the Secretary, interests in foreign pension plans or similar retirement arrangements or programs.

“(II) LIMITATION.—The value of property which is treated as not sold by reason of this subparagraph shall not exceed $500,000.

“(e) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) EXPATRIATE.—The term ‘expatriate’ means—

“(A) any United States citizen who relinquishes his citizenship, or “(B) any long-term resident of the United States who—

“(i) ceases to be a lawful permanent resident of the United States (within the meaning of section 7701(b)(6)), or “(ii) commences to be treated as a resident of a foreign country under the provisions of a tax treaty between the United States and the foreign country and who does not waive the benefits of such treaty applicable to residents of the foreign country.

“(2) EXPATRIATION DATE.—The term ‘expatriation date’ means—

“(A) the date an individual relinquishes United States citizenship, or “(B) in the case of a long-term resident of the United States, the date of the event described in clause (i) or (ii) of paragraph (1)(B).

“(3) RELINQUISHMENT OF CITIZENSHIP.—A citizen shall be treated as relinquishing his United States citizenship on the earliest of—

“(A) the date the individual renounces his United States nationality before a diplomatic or consular officer of the United States pursuant to paragraph (5) of section 349(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1481(a)(5)),

“(B) the date the individual furnishes to the United States Department of State a signed statement of voluntary relinquishment of United States nationality confirming the performance of an act of expatriation specified in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of section 349(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1481(a)(1)-(4)),

“(C) the date the United States Department of State issues to the individual a certificate of loss of nationality, or “(D) the date a court of the United States cancels a naturalized citizen's certificate of naturalization.

Subparagraph (A) or (B) shall not apply to any individual unless the renunciation or voluntary relinquishment is subsequently approved by the issuance to the individual of a certificate of loss of nationality by the United States Department of State.

“(4) LONG-TERM RESIDENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘long-term resident’ means any individual (other than a citizen of the United States) who is a lawful permanent resident of the United States in at least 8 taxable years during the period of 15 taxable years ending with the taxable year during which the expatriation date occurs. For purposes of the preceding sentence, an individual shall not be treated as a lawful permanent resident for any taxable year if such individual is treated as a resident of a foreign country for the taxable year under the provisions of a tax treaty between the United States and the foreign country and does not waive the benefits of such treaty applicable to residents of the foreign country.

“(B) SPECIAL RULE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), there shall not be taken into account—

“(i) any taxable year during which any prior sale is treated under subsection (a)(1) as occurring, or “(ii) any taxable year prior to the taxable year referred to in clause (i).

“(f) SPECIAL RULES APPLICABLE TO BENEFICIARIES’ INTERESTS IN TRUST.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), if an individual is determined under paragraph (3) to hold an interest in a trust—

“(A) the individual shall not be treated as having sold such interest,

“(B) such interest shall be treated as a separate share in the trust, and

“(C)(i) such separate share shall be treated as a separate trust consisting of the assets allocable to such share,

“(ii) the separate trust shall be treated as having sold its assets immediately before the expatriation date for their fair market value and as having distributed all of its assets to the individual as of such time, and “(iii) the individual shall be treated as having recontributed the assets to the separate trust.

Subsection (a)(2) shall apply to any income, gain, or loss of the individual arising from a distribution described in subparagraph (C)(ii).

“(2) SPECIAL RULES FOR INTERESTS IN QUALIFIED TRUSTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If the trust interest described in paragraph (1) is an interest in a qualified trust—

“(i) paragraph (1) and subsection (a) shall not apply, and “(ii) in addition to any other tax imposed by this title, there is hereby imposed on each distribution with respect to such interest a tax in the amount determined under subparagraph (B).

“(B) AMOUNT OF TAX.—The amount of tax under subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be equal to the lesser of—

“(i) the highest rate of tax imposed by section 1(e) for the taxable year in which the expatriation date occurs, multiplied by the amount of the distribution, or “(ii) the balance in the deferred tax account immediately before the distribution determined without regard to any increases under subparagraph (C)(ii) after the 30th day preceding the distribution.

“(C) DEFERRED TAX ACCOUNT.—For purposes of subparagraph (B)(ii)—

“(i) OPENING BALANCE.—The opening balance in a deferred tax account with respect to any trust interest is an amount equal to the tax which would have been imposed on the allocable expatriation gain with respect to the trust interest if such gain had been included in gross income under subsection (a).

“(ii) INCREASE FOR INTEREST.—The balance in the deferred tax account shall be increased by the amount of interest determined (on the balance in the account at the time the interest accrues), for periods after the 90th day after the expatriation date, by using the rates and method applicable under section 6621 for underpayments of tax for such periods.

“(iii) DECREASE FOR TAXES PREVIOUSLY PAID.—The balance in the tax deferred account shall be reduced—

“(I) by the amount of taxes imposed by subparagraph (A) on any distribution to the person holding the trust interest, and “(II) in the case of a person holding a nonvested interest, to the extent provided in regulations, by the amount of taxes imposed by subparagraph (A) on distributions from the trust with respect to nonvested interests not held by such person.

“(D) ALLOCABLE EXPATRIATION GAIN.—For purposes of this paragraph, the allocable expatriation gain with respect to any beneficiary’s interest in a trust is the amount of gain which would be allocable to such beneficiary’s vested and nonvested interests in the trust if the beneficiary held directly all assets allocable to such interests.

“(E) TAX DEDUCTED AND WITHHELD.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The tax imposed by subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be deducted and withheld by the trustees from the distribution to which it relates.

“(ii) EXCEPTION WHERE FAILURE TO WAIVE TREATY RIGHTS.—If an amount may not be deducted and withheld under clause (i) by reason of the distributee failing to waive any treaty right with respect to such distribution—

“(I) the tax imposed by subparagraph (A)(ii) shall be imposed on the trust and each trustee shall be personally liable for the amount of such tax, and “(II) any other beneficiary of the trust shall be entitled to recover from the distributee the amount of such tax imposed on the other beneficiary.

“(F) DISPOSITION.—If a trust ceases to be a qualified trust at any time, a covered expatriate disposes of an interest in a qualified trust, or a covered expatriate holding an interest in a qualified trust dies, then, in lieu of the tax imposed by subparagraph (A)(ii), there is hereby imposed a tax equal to the lesser of—

“(i) the tax determined under paragraph (1) as if the expatriation date were the date of such cessation, disposition, or death, whichever is applicable, or “(ii) the balance in the tax deferred account immediately before such date.

Such tax shall be imposed on the trust and each trustee shall be personally liable for the amount of such tax and any other beneficiary of the trust shall be entitled to recover from the covered expatriate or the estate the amount of such tax imposed on the other beneficiary.

“(G) DEFINITIONS AND SPECIAL RULE.—For purposes of this paragraph—

“(i) QUALIFIED TRUST.—The term ‘qualified trust’ means a trust—

“(I) which is organized under, and governed by, the laws of the United States or a State, and “(II) with respect to which the trust instrument requires that at least 1 trustee of the trust be an individual citizen of the United States or a domestic corporation.

“(ii) VESTED INTEREST.—The term ‘vested interest’ means any interest which, as of the expatriation date, is vested in the beneficiary.

“(iii) NONVESTED INTEREST.—The term ‘nonvested interest’ means, with respect to any beneficiary, any interest in a trust which is not a vested interest. Such interest shall be determined by assuming the maximum exercise of discretion in favor of the beneficiary and the occurrence of all contingencies in favor of the beneficiary.

“(iv) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary may provide for such adjustments to the bases of assets in a trust or a deferred tax account, and the timing of such adjustments, in order to ensure that gain is taxed only once.

“(3) DETERMINATION OF BENEFICIARIES’ INTEREST IN TRUST.—

“(A) DETERMINATIONS UNDER PARAGRAPH (1).—For purposes of paragraph (1), a beneficiary’s interest in a trust shall be based upon all relevant facts and circumstances, including the terms of the trust instrument and any letter of wishes or similar document, historical patterns of trust distributions, and the existence of and functions performed by a trust protector or any similar advisor.

“(B) OTHER DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this section—

“(i) CONSTRUCTIVE OWNERSHIP.—If a beneficiary of a trust is a corporation, partnership, trust, or estate, the shareholders, partners, or beneficiaries shall be deemed to be the trust beneficiaries for purposes of this section.

“(ii) TAXPAYER RETURN POSITION.—A taxpayer shall clearly indicate on its income tax return—

“(I) the methodology used to determine that taxpayer’s trust interest under this section, and “(II) if the taxpayer knows (or has reason to know) that any other beneficiary of such trust is using a different methodology to determine such beneficiary’s trust interest under this section.

“(g) TERMINATION OF DEFERRALS, ETC.—On the date any property held by an individual is treated as sold under subsection (a), notwithstanding any other provision of this title—

“(1) any period during which recognition of income or gain is deferred shall terminate, and

“(2) any extension of time for payment of tax shall cease to apply and the unpaid portion of such tax shall be due and payable at the time and in the manner prescribed by the Secretary.

“(h) IMPOSITION OF TENTATIVE TAX.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—If an individual is required to include any amount in gross income under subsection (a) for any taxable year, there is hereby imposed, immediately before the expatriation date, a tax in an amount equal to the amount of tax which would be imposed if the taxable year were a short taxable year ending on the expatriation date.

“(2) DUE DATE.—The due date for any tax imposed by paragraph (1) shall be the 90th day after the expatriation date.

“(3) TREATMENT OF TAX.—Any tax paid under paragraph (1) shall be treated as a payment of the tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year to which subsection (a) applies.

“(4) DEFERRAL OF TAX.—The provisions of subsection (b) shall apply to the tax imposed by this subsection to the extent attributable to gain includible in gross income by reason of this section.

“(i) COORDINATION WITH ESTATE AND GIFT TAXES.—If subsection (a) applies to property held by an individual for any taxable year and—

“(1) such property is includible in the gross estate of such individual solely by reason of section 2107, or

“(2) section 2501 applies to a transfer of such property by such individual solely by reason of section 2501(a)(3), then there shall be allowed as a credit against the additional tax imposed by section 2101 or 2501, whichever is applicable, solely by reason of section 2107 or 2501(a)(3) an amount equal to the increase in the tax imposed by this chapter for such taxable year by reason of this section.

“(j) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary or appropriate to carry out the purposes of this section, including regulations—

“(1) to prevent double taxation by ensuring that—

“(A) appropriate adjustments are made to basis to reflect gain recognized by reason of subsection (a) and the exclusion provided by subsection (a)(3), and

“(B) any gain by reason of a deemed sale under subsection (a) of an interest in a corporation, partnership, trust, or estate is reduced to reflect that portion of such gain which is attributable to an interest in a trust which a shareholder, partner, or beneficiary is treated as holding directly under subsection (f)(3)(B)(i), and “(2) which provide for the proper allocation of the exclusion under subsection (a)(3) to property to which this section applies.

“(k) CROSS REFERENCE.—

“For income tax treatment of individuals who terminate United States citizenship, see section 7701(a)(47).”

(b) INCLUSION IN INCOME OF GIFTS AND INHERITANCES FROM COVERED EXPATRIATES.—Section 102 (relating to gifts, etc. not included in gross income) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

(d) GIFTS AND INHERITANCES FROM COVERED EXPATRIATES.—Subsection (a) shall not exclude from gross income the value of any property acquired by gift, bequest, devise, or inheritance from a covered expatriate after the expatriation date. For purposes of this subsection, any term used in this subsection which is also used in section 877A shall have the same meaning as when used in section 877A.”

(c) DEFINITION OF TERMINATION OF UNITED STATES CITIZENSHIP.—Section 7701(a) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(47) TERMINATION OF UNITED STATES CITIZENSHIP.—An individual shall not cease to be treated as a United States citizen before the date on which the individual’s citizenship is treated as relinquished under section 877A(e)(3).”

(d) COMPARABLE ESTATE AND GIFT TAX TREATMENT.—

(1) ESTATE TAX.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) of section 2107 is amended to read as follows:

“(a) TREATMENT OF EXPATRIATES.—

“(1) RATE OF TAX.—A tax computed in accordance with the table contained in section 2001 is hereby imposed on the transfer of the taxable estate, determined as provided in section 2106, of every decedent nonresident who is an expatriate if the expatriation date of the decedent is within the 10-year period ending with the date of death, unless such expatriation did not have for 1 of its principal purposes the avoidance of taxes under this subtitle or subtitle A.

“(2) CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS TREATED AS HAVING TAX AVOIDANCE PURPOSE.—For purposes of paragraph (1), an individual shall be treated as having a principal purpose to avoid such taxes if such individual is a covered expatriate.

“(3) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, the terms ‘expatriate’, ‘expatriation date’, and ‘covered expatriate’ have the meanings given such terms by section 877A.”

(B) CREDIT FOR FOREIGN DEATH TAXES.—Subsection (c) of section 2107 is amended by redesignating paragraph (2) as paragraph (3) and by inserting after paragraph (1) the following new paragraph:

“(2) CREDIT FOR FOREIGN DEATH TAXES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The tax imposed by subsection (a) shall be credited with the amount of any estate, inheritance, legacy, or succession taxes actually paid to any foreign country in respect of any property which is included in the gross estate solely by reason of subsection (b).

“(B) LIMITATIONS ON CREDIT.—The credit allowed by subparagraph (A) for such taxes paid to a foreign country shall not exceed the lesser of—

“(i) the amount which bears the same ratio to the amount of such taxes actually paid to such foreign country in respect of property included in the gross estate as the value of the property included in the gross estate solely by reason of subsection (b) bears to the value of all property subjected to such taxes by such foreign country, or “(ii) such property’s proportionate share of the excess of—

“(I) the tax imposed by subsection (a), over

“(II) the tax which would be imposed by section 2101 but for this section.

The amount applicable under clause (i) or (ii) shall be reduced by the amount of any credit allowed under section 877A(i).

“(C) PROPORTIONATE SHARE.—For purposes of subparagraph (B), a property’s proportionate share is the percentage of the value of the property which is included in the gross estate solely by reason of subsection (b) bears to the total value of the gross estate.”

(C) EXPANSION OF INCLUSION IN GROSS ESTATE OF STOCK OF FOREIGN CORPORATIONS.—Paragraph (2) of section 2107(b) is amended by striking “more than 50 percent of” and all that follows and inserting “more than 50 percent of—

“(A) the total combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote of such corporation, or

“(B) the total value of the stock of such corporation.”

(2) GIFT TAX.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (3) of section 2501(a) is amended to read as follows:

“(3) EXCEPTION.—

“(A) CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS.—Paragraph (2) shall not apply in the case of a donor who is an expatriate if the expatriation date of the donor is within the 10-year period ending with the date of transfer, unless such expatriation did not have for 1 of its principal purposes the avoidance of taxes under this subtitle or subtitle A.

“(B) CERTAIN INDIVIDUALS TREATED AS HAVING TAX AVOIDANCE PURPOSE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), an individual shall be treated as having a principal purpose to avoid such taxes if such individual is a covered expatriate.

“(C) CREDIT FOR FOREIGN GIFT TAXES.—The tax imposed by this section solely by reason of this paragraph shall be credited with the amount of any gift tax actually paid to any foreign country in respect of any gift which is taxable under this section solely by reason of this paragraph. The amount of such credit shall be reduced by the amount of the credit allowed under section 877A(i).

“(D) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘expatriate’, ‘expatriation date’, and ‘covered expatriate’ have the meanings given such terms by section 877A.”

(e) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 877 is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(f) APPLICATION.—This section shall not apply to any individual who relinquishes (within the meaning of section 877A(e)(3)) United States citizenship on or after February 6, 1995.”

(2) Section 2107(c) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(3) CROSS REFERENCE.—For credit against the tax imposed by subsection (a) for expatriation tax, see section 877A(i).”

(3) Section 2501(a)(3) is amended by adding at the end the following new flush sentence: “For credit against the tax imposed under this section by reason of this paragraph, see section 877A(i).”

(4) Paragraph (10) of section 7701(b) is amended by adding at the end the following new sentence: “This paragraph shall not apply to any long-term resident of the United States who is an expatriate (as defined in section 877A(e)(1)).”

(f) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for subpart A of part II of subchapter N of chapter 1 is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 877 the following new item:

“Sec. 877A. Tax responsibilities of expatriation.”

(g) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in this subsection, the amendments made by this section shall apply to expatriates (within the meaning of section 877A(e) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by this section) whose expatriation date (as so defined) occurs on or after February 6, 1995.

(2) GIFTS AND BEQUESTS.—Section 102(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (as added by subsection (b)) shall apply to amounts received from expatriates (as so defined) whose expatriation date (as so defined) occurs on and after February 6, 1995.

(3) SPECIAL RULES RELATING TO CERTAIN ACTS OCCURRING BEFORE FEBRUARY 6, 1995.—In the case of an individual who took an act of expatriation specified in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of section 349(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1481(a) (1)-(4)) before February 6, 1995, but whose expatriation date (as so defined) occurs after February 6, 1995—

(A) the amendment made by subsection (c) shall not apply,

(B) the amendment made by subsection (e)(1) shall not apply for any period prior to the expatriation date, and

(C) the other amendments made by this section shall apply as of the expatriation date.

(4) DUE DATE FOR TENTATIVE TAX.—The due date under section 877A(h)(2) of such Code shall in no event occur before the 90th day after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 32. INFORMATION ON INDIVIDUALS EXPATRIATING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart A of part III of subchapter A of chapter 61 is amended by inserting after section 6039E the following new section:

“SEC. 6039F. INFORMATION ON INDIVIDUALS EXPATRIATING.

“(a) REQUIREMENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any expatriate (within the meaning of section 877A(e)(1)) shall provide a statement which includes the information described in subsection (b).

“(2) TIMING.—

“(A) CITIZENS.—In the case of an expatriate described in section 877(e)(1)(A), such statement shall be—

“(i) provided not later than the expatriation date (within the meaning of section 877A(e)(2)), and “(ii) provided to the person or court referred to in section 877A(e)(3).

“(B) NONCITIZENS.—In the case of an expatriate described in section 877A(e)(1)(B), such statement shall be provided to the Secretary with the return of tax imposed by chapter 1 for the taxable year during which the event described in such section occurs.

“(b) INFORMATION TO BE PROVIDED.—Information required under subsection (a) shall include—

“(1) the taxpayer’s TIN,

“(2) the mailing address of such individual’s principal foreign residence,

“(3) the foreign country in which such individual is residing,

“(4) the foreign country of which such individual is a citizen,

“(5) in the case of an individual having a net worth of at least the dollar amount applicable under section 877A(c)(1)(B), information detailing the assets and liabilities of such individual, and “(6) such other information as the Secretary may prescribe.

“(c) PENALTY.—Any individual failing to provide a statement required under subsection (a) shall be subject to a penalty for each year during any portion of which such failure continues in an amount equal to the greater of—

"(1) 5 percent of the additional tax required to be paid under section 877A for such year, or unless it is shown that such failure is due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.

"(2) $1,000,

"(d) INFORMATION TO BE PROVIDED TO SECRETARY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law—

"(1) any Federal agency or court which collects (or is required to collect) the statement under subsection (a) shall provide to the Secretary—

"(A) a copy of any such statement, and

"(B) the name (and any other identifying information) of any individual refusing to comply with the provisions of subsection (a),

"(2) the Secretary of State shall provide to the Secretary a copy of each certificate as to the loss of American nationality under section 358 of the Immigration and Nationality Act which is approved by the Secretary of State, and

"(3) the Federal agency primarily responsible for administering the immigration laws shall provide to the Secretary the name of each lawful permanent resident of the United States (within the meaning of section 7701(b)(6)) whose status as such has been revoked or has been administratively or judicially determined to have been abandoned.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not later than 30 days after the close of each calendar quarter, the Secretary shall publish in the Federal Register the name of each individual relinquishing United States citizenship (within the meaning of section 877A(e)(3)) with respect to whom the Secretary receives information under the preceding sentence during such quarter.

"(e) EXEMPTION.—The Secretary may by regulations exempt any class of individuals from the requirements of this section if the Secretary determines that applying this section to such individuals is not necessary to carry out the purposes of this section."

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of sections for such subpart A is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 6039E the following new item:

"Sec. 6039F. Information on individuals expatriating."

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to individuals to whom section 877A of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 applies and whose expatriation date (as defined in section 877A(e)(2)) occurs on or after February 6, 1995, except that no statement shall be required by such amendments before the 90th day after the date of the enactment of this Act.

HELMS (AND FAIRCLOTH) AMENDMENT NO. 4896

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. HELMS (for himself and Mr. FAIRCLOTH) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the bill S. 1956, supra; as follows:

Strike section 1134 and insert the following:

SEC. 1134. WORK REQUIREMENT.

Section 6 of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2015), as amended by section 1133, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(o) WORK REQUIREMENT.—

"(1) DEFINITION OF WORK PROGRAM.—In this subsection, the term 'work program' means—

"(A) a program under the Job Training Partnership Act (29 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.);

"(B) a program under section 236 of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2296); or

"(C) a program of employment or training operated or supervised by a State or political subdivision of a State that meets standards approved by the Governor of the State, including a program under subsection (d)(4), other than a job search program or a job search training program.

"(2) WORK REQUIREMENT.—Subject to paragraph (3), no individual shall be eligible to participate in the food stamp program as a member of any household if the individual did not—

"(A) work 20 hours or more per week, averaged monthly;

"(B) participate in and comply with the requirements of a work program for at least 20 hours or more per week, as determine by the State agency; or

"(C) participate in and comply with the requirements of a program under section 20 or a comparable program established by a State or political subdivision of a State.

"(3) EXEMPTIONS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to an individual if the individual is—

"(A) a parent resident with a dependent child under 18 years of age;

"(B) mentally or physically unfit;

"(C) under 18 years of age;

"(D) 50 years of age or older; or

"(E) a pregnant woman."

MCCAIN AMENDMENT NO. 4898

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. MCCAIN submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill, S. 1956, supra; as follows:

On page 411, between lines 2 and 3, insert the following:

"(4) FAMILIES UNDER CERTAIN AGREEMENTS.—In the case of a family receiving assistance from an Indian tribe, distribute the amount so collected pursuant to an agreement entered into pursuant to a State plan under section 454(33).

On page 411, line 3, strike "(3)" and insert "(4)".

On page 554, between lines 7 and 8, insert the following:

SEC. 2375. CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT FOR INDIAN TRIBES.

(a) CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGREEMENT.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 2301(b), 2303(a), 2312(b), 2313(a), 2333, 2343(b), 2370(a)(2), and 2371(b) of this Act is amended—

(1) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (31);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (32) and inserting "; and";

(3) by adding after paragraph (32) the following new paragraph:

"(33) provide that a State that receives funding pursuant to section 428 and that has within its borders Indian country (as defined in section 1151 of title 18, United States Code) may enter into cooperative agreements with an Indian tribe or tribal organization (as defined in subsections (e) and (l) of section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b)), if the Indian tribe or tribal organization demonstrates that such tribe or organization has an established tribal court system or a Court of Indian Offenses with the authority to establish paternity, establish, modify, and enforce support orders, and to enter support orders in accordance with child support guidelines established by such tribe or organization, under which the State and tribe or organization shall provide for the cooperative delivery of child support enforcement services in Indian country and for the forwarding of all funding collected pursuant to the functions performed by the tribe or organization to the State agency, or conversely, by the State agency to the tribe or organization, which shall distribute such funding in accordance with such agreement; and

(4) by adding at the end the following new sentence: "Nothing in paragraph (33) shall void any provision of any cooperative agreement entered into before the date of the enactment of such paragraph, nor shall such paragraph deprive any State of jurisdiction over Indian country (as so defined) that is lawfully exercised under section 402 of the Act entitled 'An Act to prescribe penalties for certain acts of violence or intimidation, and for other purposes', approved April 11, 1968 (25 U.S.C. 1322)."

(b) DIRECT FEDERAL FUNDING TO INDIAN TRIBES AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATIONS.—Section 455 (42 U.S.C. 655) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(b) The Secretary may, in appropriate cases, make direct payments under this part to an Indian tribe or tribal organization which has an approved child support enforcement plan under this title. In determining whether such payments are appropriate, the Secretary shall, at a minimum, consider whether services are being provided to eligible Indian recipients by the State agency through an agreement entered into pursuant to section 454(33)."

(c) COOPERATIVE ENFORCEMENT AGREEMENTS.—Paragraph (7) of section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654) is amended by inserting "and Indian tribes or tribal organizations (as defined in subsections (e) and (l) of section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b))" after "law enforcement officials".

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Subsection (c) of section 428 (42 U.S.C. 628) is amended to read as follows:

"(c) For purposes of this section, the terms 'Indian tribe' and 'tribal organization' shall have the meanings given such terms by subsections (e) and (l) of section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b)), respectively."

DASCHLE (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 4897

Except as otherwise expressly provided, wherever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Social Security Act.

TITLE I—TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE

SEC. 101. STATE PLAN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title IV (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) is amended by striking part A and inserting the following:

"PART A—TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE

"SEC. 400. APPROPRIATION.

"For the purpose of providing assistance to families with needy children and assisting parents of children in such families to obtain and retain private sector work to the extent possible, and public sector or volunteer work if necessary, through the Work First Employment Block Grant program (hereafter in this title referred to as the 'Work First program'), there is hereby authorized to be appropriated, and is hereby appropriated, for each fiscal year a sum sufficient to carry out the purposes of this part. The sums made available under this section shall be used for making payments to States which have approved State plans for temporary employment assistance.

"Subpart 1—State Plans for Temporary Employment Assistance

"SEC. 401. ELEMENTS OF STATE PLANS.

"A State plan for temporary employment assistance shall provide a description of the State program which carries out the purpose described in section 400 and shall meet the requirements of the following sections of this subpart.

"SEC. 402. FAMILY ELIGIBILITY FOR TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall provide that any family—

"(1) with 1 or more children (or any expectant family, at the option of the State), defined as needy by the State; and

"(2) which fulfills the conditions set forth in subsection (b), shall be eligible for cash assistance under the plan, except as otherwise provided under this part.

"(b) PARENT EMPOWERMENT CONTRACT.—The State plan shall provide that not later than 10 days after the approval of the application for temporary employment assistance, a parent qualifying for assistance shall execute a parent empowerment contract as described in section 403. If a child otherwise eligible for assistance under this part is residing with a relative other than a parent, the State plan may require the relative to execute such an empowerment contract as a condition of the family receiving such assistance.

"(c) LIMITATIONS ON ELIGIBILITY.—

"(1) NO ASSISTANCE FOR MORE THAN 5 YEARS.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), the State plan shall provide that the family of an individual who has received assistance under the plan for the lesser of—

"(i) the period of time established at the option of the State; or

"(ii) 60 months (whether or not consecutive), shall no longer be eligible for cash assistance under the plan.

"(B) MINOR CHILD EXCEPTION.—In determining the number of months for which an individual who is a parent or pregnant has received assistance under the State plan, the State shall disregard any month for which such assistance was provided with respect to the individual and during which the individual was—

"(i) a minor child; and

"(ii) not the head of a household or married to the head of a household.

"(C) HARDSHIP EXCEPTION.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The State may exempt a family from the application of subparagraph (A) by reason of hardship or if the family includes an individual who has been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty.

"(ii) LIMITATION.—The number of families with respect to which an exemption made by a State under clause (i) is in effect for a fiscal year shall not exceed 20 percent of the average monthly number of families to which assistance is provided under the State plan.

"(iii) BATTERED OR SUBJECT TO EXTREME CRUELTY DEFINED.—For purposes of clause (i), an individual has been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty if the individual has been subjected to—

"(I) physical acts that resulted in, or threatened to result in, physical injury to the individual;

"(II) sexual abuse;

"(III) sexual activity involving a dependent child;

"(IV) being forced as the caretaker relative of a dependent child to engage in nonconsensual sexual acts or activities;

"(V) threats of, or attempts at, physical or sexual abuse;

"(VI) mental abuse, including threats, intimidation, acts designed to induce terror, or restraints of liberty; or

"(VII) neglect or deprivation of medical care.

"(2) EFFECTS OF DENIAL OF CASH ASSISTANCE.—

"(A) PROVISION OF SAFETY NET ASSISTANCE.—In the event that a family is denied cash assistance because of a time limit imposed under paragraph (1), a State shall provide safety net assistance for any child in the family, in accordance with subparagraph (C).

"(B) OTHER ASSISTANCE.—The—

“(i) eligibility of a family that receives safety net assistance under subparagraph (A) for any other Federal or federally assisted program based on need, shall be determined without regard to such assistance; and “(ii) such a family shall be considered to be receiving cash assistance in the amount of the safety net assistance provided for purposes of determining the amount of any assistance provided to the family under any other such program.

“(C) SAFETY NET ASSISTANCE REQUIREMENTS.—Safety net assistance provided for a child in a family under subparagraph (A) shall be based on a State’s assessment of the needs of such child and shall be provided through a voucher that is—

“(i) with respect to the amount of the voucher, determined on the same basis as the State would provide assistance under the State plan to such a family with 1 less individual;

“(ii) designed appropriately to pay third parties for shelter, goods, and services received by the child; and

“(iii) payable directly to such third parties.

“(3) TREATMENT OF INTERSTATE MIGRANTS.—The State plan may apply to a category of families the rules for such category under a plan of another State approved under this part, if a family in such category has moved to the State from the other State and has resided in the State for less than 12 months.

“(4) INDIVIDUALS ON OLD-AGE ASSISTANCE OR SSI INELIGIBLE FOR TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE.—The State plan shall provide that no assistance shall be furnished any individual under the plan with respect to any period with respect to which such individual is receiving old-age assistance under the State plan approved under section 102 of title I or supplemental security income under title XVI, and such individual’s assistance or income shall be disregarded in determining the eligibility of the family of such individual for temporary employment assistance.

“(5) CHILDREN FOR WHOM FEDERAL, STATE, OR LOCAL FOSTER CARE MAINTENANCE OR ADOPTION ASSISTANCE PAYMENTS ARE MADE.—A child with respect to whom foster care maintenance payments or adoption assistance payments are made under part E or under State or local law shall not, for the period for which such payments are made, be regarded as a needy child under this part, and such child’s income and resources shall be disregarded in determining the eligibility of the family of such child for temporary employment assistance.

“(6) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR 10 YEARS TO A PERSON FOUND TO HAVE FRAUDULENTLY MISREPRESENTED RESIDENCE IN ORDER TO OBTAIN ASSISTANCE IN 2 OR MORE STATES.—The State plan shall provide that no assistance will be furnished any individual under the plan during the 10-year period that begins on the date the individual is convicted in Federal or State court of having made, a fraudulent statement or representation with respect to the place of residence of the individual in order to receive benefits or services simultaneously from 2 or more States under programs that are funded under this part, title XIX, or the Food Stamp Act of 1977, or benefits in 2 or more States under the supplemental security income program under title XVI.

“(7) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall provide that no assistance will be furnished any individual under the plan for any period if during such period such individual is—

“(i) fleeing to avoid prosecution, or custody or confinement after conviction, under the laws of the place from which the individual flees, for a crime, or an attempt to commit a crime, which is a felony under the laws of the place from which the individual flees, or which, in the case of the State of New Jersey, is a high misdemeanor under the laws of such State; or “(ii) violating a condition of probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law.

“(B) EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the State plan shall provide that the State shall furnish any Federal, State, or local law enforcement officer, upon the request of the officer, with the current address of any recipient of assistance under the plan, if the officer furnishes the agency with the name of the recipient and notifies the agency that—

“(i) such recipient—

“(I) is described in clause (i) or (ii) of subparagraph (A); or “(II) has information that is necessary for the officer to conduct the officer’s official duties; and “(ii) the location or apprehension of the recipient is within such officer’s official duties.

“(d) DETERMINATION OF ELIGIBILITY.—

“(1) DETERMINATION OF NEED.—The State plan shall provide that the State agency take into consideration any income and resources of any individual the State determines should be considered in determining the need of the child or relative claiming temporary employment assistance.

“(2) RESOURCE AND INCOME DETERMINATION.—In determining the total resources and income of the family of any needy child, the State plan shall provide the following:

“(A) RESOURCES.—The State’s resource limit, including a description of the policy determined by the State regarding any exclusion allowed for vehicles owned by family members, resources set aside for future needs of a child, individual development accounts, or other policies established by the State to encourage savings.

“(B) FAMILY INCOME.—The extent to which earned or unearned income is disregarded in determining eligibility for, and amount of, assistance.

“(C) CHILD SUPPORT.—The State’s policy, if any, for determining the extent to which child support received in excess of $50 per month on behalf of a member of the family is disregarded in determining eligibility for, and the amount of, assistance.

“(D) CHILD’S EARNINGS.—The treatment of earnings of a child living in the home.

“(E) EARNED INCOME TAX CREDIT.—The State agency shall disregard any refund of Federal income taxes made to a family receiving temporary employment assistance by reason of section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to earned income tax credit) and any payment made to such a family by an employer under section 3507 of such Code (relating to advance payment of earned income credit).

“(F) ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR’S INCOME AND RESOURCES FOR ALIEN RECIPIENTS.—The State agency shall determine the eligibility of an alien in accordance with the provisions of section 721 of the Work First Act of 1996.

“(3) VERIFICATION SYSTEM.—The State plan shall provide that information is requested and exchanged for purposes of income and eligibility verification in accordance with a State system which meets the requirements of section 1137.

“(e) PROVISIONS RELATING TO VICTIMS OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE.—The State plan shall—

“(1) provide that the State has in effect provisions for victims of domestic violence receiving temporary employment assistance; and

“(2) provide that the State agency administering the plan approved under this part shall be responsible for assuring that—

“(A) adequate mechanisms are in place for screening and identifying recipients of such assistance who have been victims of domestic violence;

“(B) procedures are in place to refer such recipients to legal counseling and supportive services;

“(C) the time limit for receipt of such assistance imposed under subsection (c)(1) is tolled for recipients of such assistance who are seriously affected by domestic violence; and

“(D) other requirements imposed under the State plan such as residency requirements and child support cooperation requirements will be waived in any case where imposing such requirements would make it more difficult for a recipient of temporary employment assistance to escape domestic violence or would unfairly sanction a recipient victimized by, or at risk of, domestic violence.

“SEC. 403. PARENT EMPOWERMENT CONTRACT.

“(a) ASSESSMENT.—The State plan shall provide that the State agency, through a case manager, shall make an initial assessment of the skills, prior work experience, and employability of each parent who is applying for temporary employment assistance under the plan, along with an assessment of the history of domestic violence (if any) of such parent.

“(b) PARENT EMPOWERMENT CONTRACTS.—On the basis of the assessment made under subsection (a) with respect to each parent, the case manager, in consultation with the parent or parents of a family (hereafter in this title referred to as the ‘client’), shall develop a parent empowerment contract for the client, which meets the following requirements:

“(1) Sets forth the obligations of the client, including 1 or more of the following:

“(A) Search for a job.

“(B) Engage in work-related activities to help the client become and remain employed in the private sector.

“(C) Attend school, if necessary, and maintain certain grades and attendance.

“(D) Participate in counseling, safety-related, and legal activities, and supportive services related to the client’s experience of domestic violence.

“(E) Keep school age children of the client in school.

“(F) Immunize children of the client.

“(G) Attend parenting and money management classes.

“(H) Any other appropriate activity, at the option of the State.

“(2) To the greatest extent possible, is designed to move the client as quickly as possible into whatever type and amount of work as the client is capable of handling, and to increase the responsibility and amount of work over time until the client is able to work full-time.

“(3) Provides for participation by the client in job search activities for the first 2 months after the application for temporary employment assistance under the State plan, unless the client is already working at least 20 hours per week.

“(4) If necessary to provide the client with support and skills necessary to obtain and keep employment in the private sector, provides for job counseling or other services, and, if additionally necessary, education or training through the Work First program under part F.

“(5) Provides that the client shall accept any bona fide offer of unsubsidized full-time employment, unless the client has good cause for not doing so.

“(6) At the option of the State, provides that the client undergo appropriate substance abuse treatment.

“(7) Provides that the client—

“(A) assign to the State any rights to support from any other person the client may have in such client's own behalf or in behalf of any other family member for whom the client is applying for or receiving assistance; and

“(B) cooperate with the State—

“(i) in establishing the paternity of a child born out of wedlock with respect to whom assistance is claimed, and “(ii) in obtaining support payments for such client and for a child with respect to whom such assistance is claimed, or in obtaining any other payments or property due such client or such child, unless (in either case) such client is found to have good cause for refusing to cooperate as determined by the State agency in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary. Such standards shall take into consideration the best interests of the child on whose behalf assistance is claimed, and shall provide that good cause shall include the reasonable fear of a recipient for her own safety or the safety of a family member where the putative child support obligee has committed domestic violence against the recipient or a family member in the past.

“(c) PENALTIES FOR NONCOMPLIANCE WITH PARENT EMPOWERMENT CONTRACT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the following penalties shall apply:

“(A) PROGRESSIVE REDUCTIONS IN ASSISTANCE FOR 1ST AND 2ND ACTS OF NONCOMPLIANCE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall provide that the amount of temporary employment assistance otherwise payable under the plan to a family that includes a client who, with respect to a parent empowerment contract signed by the client, commits an act of noncompliance without good cause, shall be reduced by—

“(I) 33 percent for the 1st such act of noncompliance; or “(II) 66 percent for the 2nd such act of noncompliance.

“(ii) GOOD CAUSE.—Good cause for noncompliance of a parent empowerment contract shall include a determination that a recipient fears for her own safety or the safety of a family member where the recipient or family member has been the victim of domestic violence and reasonably believes that acceptance of employment would put her or her family at future risk, and is temporarily unable to fulfill her employment obligations due to legal and court obligations associated with seeking remedies for domestic violence.

“(B) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR 3RD AND SUBSEQUENT ACTS OF NONCOMPLIANCE.—The State plan shall provide that in the case of the 3rd or subsequent such act of noncompliance, the family of which the client is a member shall not thereafter be eligible for temporary employment assistance under the State plan.

“(C) LENGTH OF PENALTIES.—The penalty for an act of noncompliance shall not exceed the greater of—

“(i) in the case of—

“(I) the 1st act of noncompliance, 1 month,

“(II) the 2nd act of noncompliance, 3 months, or

“(III) the 3rd or subsequent act of noncompliance, 6 months; or “(ii) the period ending with the cessation of such act of noncompliance.

“(D) DENIAL OF TEMPORARY EMPLOYMENT ASSISTANCE TO ADULTS REFUSING TO ACCEPT A BONA FIDE OFFER OF EMPLOYMENT.—The State plan shall provide that if an unemployed individual who has attained 18 years of age refuses to accept a bona fide offer of employment without good cause, such act of noncompliance shall be considered a 3rd or subsequent act of noncompliance.

“(2) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a State may not reduce or terminate assistance under the State plan based on a refusal of an adult to work if the adult is a single custodial parent caring for a child who has not attained 6 years of age, and the adult proves that the adult has a demonstrated inability (as determined by the State) to obtain needed child care, for 1 or more of the following reasons:

“(A) Unavailability of appropriate child care within a reasonable distance from the individual's home or work site.

“(B) Unavailability or unsuitability of informal child care by a relative or under other arrangements.

“(C) Unavailability of appropriate and affordable formal child care arrangements.

“(3) STATE FLEXIBILITY.—The State plan may provide for different penalties than those specified in paragraph (1).

“SEC. 404. PAYMENT OF ASSISTANCE.

“(a) STANDARDS OF ASSISTANCE.—The State plan shall specify standards of assistance, including—

“(1) the composition of the unit for which assistance will be provided;

“(2) a standard, expressed in money amounts, to be used in determining the need of applicants and recipients;

“(3) a standard, expressed in money amounts, to be used in determining the amount of the assistance payment; and

“(4) the methodology to be used in determining the payment amount received by assistance units.

“(b) LEVEL OF ASSISTANCE.—The State plan shall provide that the determination of need and the amount of assistance for all applicants and recipients shall be made on an objective and equitable basis.

“(c) STATE OPTION TO DENY ADDITIONAL CASH ASSISTANCE FOR CHILDREN BORN TO FAMILIES RECEIVING ASSISTANCE.—

“(1) GENERAL RULE.—At the option of a State, the State plan may provide that no additional cash assistance be provided for a minor child who is born to—

“(A) a recipient of temporary employment assistance under the plan; or “(B) an individual who received such assistance at any time during the 10-month period ending with the birth of the child.

“(2) EXCEPTION FOR VOUCHERS.—If a State exercises the option under paragraph (1), the State may provide vouchers, in lieu of the cash assistance not provided, to be used only to pay for particular goods and services specified by the State as suitable for the care of the child involved.

“(3) EXCEPTION FOR RAPE OR INCEST.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply with respect to a child who is born as a result of rape or incest.

“(d) CORRECTION OF PAYMENTS.—The State plan shall provide that the State agency will promptly take all necessary steps to correct any overpayment or underpayment of assistance under such plan, including the request for Federal tax refund intercepts as provided under section 417.

“SEC. 405. PROVISION OF PROGRAM AND EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION AND CHILD CARE.

“(a) INFORMATION.—The State plan shall provide for the dissemination of information to all applicants for and recipients of temporary employment assistance under the plan about all available services under the State plan for which such applicants and recipients are eligible.

“(b) CHILD CARE DURING JOB SEARCH, WORK, OR PARTICIPATION IN WORK FIRST.—

The State plan shall provide that the State agency shall guarantee child care assistance for each family that is receiving temporary employment assistance and that has a needy child requiring such care, to the extent that such care is determined by the State agency to be necessary for an individual in the family to participate in job search activities, to work, or to participate in the Work First program.

“SEC. 406. OTHER PROGRAMS.

“(a) WORK FIRST.—The State plan shall provide that the State has in effect and operation a Work First program that meets the requirements of part F.

“(b) STATE CHILD SUPPORT AGENCY.—The State plan shall—

“(1) provide that the State has in effect a plan approved under part D and operates a child support program in substantial compliance with such plan;

“(2) provide that the State agency administering the plan approved under this part shall be responsible for assuring that—

“(A) the benefits and services provided under plans approved under this part and part D are furnished in an integrated manner, including coordination of intake procedures with the agency administering the plan approved under part D;

“(B) all applicants for, and recipients of, temporary employment assistance are encouraged, assisted, and required (as provided under section 403(b)(7)(B)) to cooperate in the establishment and enforcement of paternity and child support obligations and are notified about the services available under the State plan approved under part D (consistent with the good cause exception for noncooperation under such section in a case involving a recipient with a reasonable fear of domestic violence); and

“(C) procedures require referral of paternity and child support enforcement cases to the agency administering the plan approved under part D not later than 10 days after the application for temporary employment assistance; and

“(3) provide for prompt notice (including the transmittal of all relevant information) to the State child support collection agency established pursuant to part D of the furnishing of temporary employment assistance with respect to a child who has been deserted or abandoned by a parent (including a child born out-of-wedlock without regard to whether the paternity of such child has been established).

“(c) CHILD WELFARE SERVICES AND FOSTER CARE AND ADOPTION ASSISTANCE.—The State plan shall provide that the State has in effect—

“(1) a State plan for child welfare services approved under part B; and

“(2) a State plan for foster care and adoption assistance approved under part E, and operates such plans in substantial compliance with the requirements of such parts.

“(d) REPORT OF CHILD ABUSE, ETC.—The State plan shall provide that the State agency will—

“(1) report to an appropriate agency or official, known or suspected instances of physical or mental injury, sexual abuse or exploitation, or negligent treatment or maltreatment of a child receiving assistance under the State plan under circumstances which indicate that the child's health or welfare is threatened thereby; and

“(2) provide such information with respect to a situation described in paragraph (1) as the State agency may have.

“(e) OUT-OF-WEDLOCK AND TEEN PREGNANCY PROGRAMS.—The State plan shall provide for the development of a program—

“(1) to reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies, which may include providing unmarried mothers and unmarried fathers with services which will help them—

“(A) avoid subsequent pregnancies, and

“(B) provide adequate care to their children; and

“(2) to reduce teenage pregnancy, which may include, at the option of the State, providing education and counseling to male and female teenagers.

“(f) AVAILABILITY OF ASSISTANCE IN RURAL AREAS OF STATE.—The State plan shall consider and address the needs of rural areas in the State to ensure that families in such areas receive assistance to become self-sufficient.

“(g) FAMILY PRESERVATION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall describe the efforts by the State to promote family preservation and stability, including efforts—

“(A) to encourage fathers to stay home and be a part of the family;

“(B) to keep families together to the extent possible; and

“(C) except to the extent provided in paragraph (2), to treat 2-parent families and 1-parent families equally with respect to eligibility for assistance.

“(2) MAINTENANCE OF TREATMENT.—The State may impose eligibility limitations relating specifically to 2-parent families to the extent such limitations are no more restrictive than such limitations in effect in the State plan in fiscal year 1995.

“SEC. 407. ADMINISTRATIVE REQUIREMENTS FOR STATE PLAN.

“(a) STATEWIDE PLAN.—The State plan shall be in effect in all political subdivisions of the State, and, if administered by the subdivisions, be mandatory upon such subdivisions. If such plan is not administered uniformly throughout the State, the plan shall describe the administrative variations.

“(b) SINGLE ADMINISTRATING AGENCY.—The State plan shall provide for the establishment or designation of a single State agency to administer the plan or supervise the administration of the plan.

“(c) FINANCIAL PARTICIPATION.—The State plan shall provide for financial participation by the State in the same manner and amount as such State participates under title XIX, except that with respect to the sums expended for the administration of the State plan, the percentage shall be 50 percent.

“(d) REASONABLE PROMPTNESS.—The State plan shall provide that all individuals wishing to make application for temporary employment assistance shall have opportunity to do so, and that such assistance be furnished with reasonable promptness to all eligible individuals.

“(e) FAIR HEARING.—The State plan shall provide for granting an opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency to any individual—

“(1) whose claim for temporary employment assistance is denied or is not acted upon with reasonable promptness; or

“(2) whose assistance is reduced or terminated.

“(f) AUTOMATED DATA PROCESSING SYSTEM.—The State plan shall, at the option of the State, provide for the establishment and operation of an automated statewide management information system designed effectively and efficiently, to assist management in the administration of the State plan approved under this part, so as—

“(1) to control and account for—

“(A) all the factors in the total eligibility determination process under such plan for assistance, and

“(B) the costs, quality, and delivery of payments and services furnished to applicants for and recipients of assistance; and

“(2) to notify the appropriate officials for child support, food stamp, and social service programs, and the medical assistance program approved under title XIX, whenever a recipient becomes ineligible for such assistance or the amount of assistance provided to a recipient under the State plan is changed.

“(g) DISCLOSURE OF INFORMATION.—The State plan shall provide for safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants or recipients.

“(h) DETECTION OF FRAUD.—The State plan shall provide, in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary, for appropriate measures to detect fraudulent applications for temporary employment assistance before the establishment of eligibility for such assistance.

“Subpart 2—Administrative Provisions

“SEC. 411. APPROVAL OF PLAN.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall approve a State plan which fulfills the requirements under subpart 1 within 120 days of the submission of the plan by the State to the Secretary.

“(b) DEEMED APPROVAL.—If a State plan has not been rejected by the Secretary during the period specified in subsection (a), the plan shall be deemed to have been approved.

“SEC. 412. COMPLIANCE.

“In the case of any State plan for temporary employment assistance which has been approved under section 411, if the Secretary, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency administering or supervising the administration of such plan, finds that in the administration of the plan there is a failure to comply substantially with any provision required by subpart 1 to be included in the plan, the Secretary shall notify such State agency that further payments will not be made to the State (or in the Secretary's discretion, that payments will be limited to categories under or parts of the State plan not affected by such failure) until the Secretary is satisfied that such prohibited requirement is no longer so imposed, and that there is no longer any such failure to comply. Until the Secretary is so satisfied the Secretary shall make no further payments to such State (or shall limit payments to categories under or parts of the State plan not affected by such failure).

“SEC. 413. PAYMENTS TO STATES.

“(a) COMPUTATION OF AMOUNT.—Subject to section 412, from the sums appropriated therefor, the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to each State which has an approved plan for temporary employment assistance, for each quarter, beginning with the quarter commencing October 1, 1996, an amount equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)) of the expenditures by the State under such plan.

“(b) METHOD OF COMPUTATION AND PAYMENT.—The method of computing and paying such amounts shall be as follows:

“(1) The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each quarter, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such quarter under the provisions of subsection (a), such estimate to be based on—

“(A) a report filed by the State containing its estimate of the total sum to be expended in such quarter in accordance with the provisions of such subsection and stating the amount appropriated or made available by the State and its political subdivisions for such expenditures in such quarter, and if such amount is less than the State's proportionate share of the total sum of such estimated expenditures, the source or sources from which the difference is expected to be derived;

“(B) records showing the number of needy children in the State; and “(C) such other information as the Secretary may find necessary.

“(2) The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall then certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount so estimated by the Secretary of Health and Human Services—

“(A) reduced or increased, as the case may be, by any sum by which the Secretary of Health and Human Services finds that the estimate for any prior quarter was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such quarter;

“(B) reduced by a sum equivalent to the pro rata share to which the Federal Government is equitably entitled, as determined by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, of the net amount recovered during any prior quarter by the State or any political subdivision thereof with respect to temporary employment assistance furnished under the State plan; and

“(C) reduced by such amount as is necessary to provide the appropriate reimbursement to the Federal Government that the State is required to make under section 457 out of that portion of child support collections retained by the State pursuant to such section, except that such increases or reductions shall not be made to the extent that such sums have been applied to make the amount certified for any prior quarter greater or less than the amount estimated by the Secretary of Health and Human Services for such prior quarter.

“(c) METHOD OF PAYMENT.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon, through the Fiscal Service of the Department of the Treasury and prior to audit or settlement by the General Accounting Office, pay to the State, at the time or times fixed by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the amount so certified.

“SEC. 414. QUALITY ASSURANCE, DATA COLLECTION, AND REPORTING SYSTEM.

“(a) QUALITY ASSURANCE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Under the State plan, a quality assurance system shall be developed based upon a collaborative effort involving the Secretary, the State, the political subdivisions of the State, and assistance recipients, and shall include quantifiable program outcomes related to self sufficiency in the categories of welfare-to-work, payment accuracy, and child support.

“(2) MODIFICATIONS TO SYSTEM.—As deemed necessary, but not more often than every 2 years, the Secretary, in consultation with the State, the political subdivisions of the State, and assistance recipients, shall make appropriate changes in the design and administration of the quality assurance system, including changes in benchmarks, measures, and data collection or sampling procedures.

“(b) DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall provide for a quarterly report to the Secretary regarding the data described in paragraphs (2) and (3) and such additional data needed for the quality assurance system. The data collection and reporting system under this subsection shall promote accountability, continuous improvement, and integrity in the State plans for temporary employment assistance and Work First.

“(2) DISAGGREGATED DATA.—The State shall collect the following data items on a monthly basis from disaggregated case records of applicants for and recipients of temporary employment assistance from the previous month:

“(A) The age of adults and children (including pregnant women).

“(B) Marital or familial status of cases: married (2-parent family), widowed, divorced, separated, or never married; or child living with other adult relative.

“(C) The gender, race, educational attainment, work experience, disability status (whether the individual is seriously ill, incapacitated, or caring for a disabled or incapacitated child) of adults.

“(D) The amount of cash assistance and the amount and reason for any reduction in such assistance. Any other data necessary to determine the timeliness and accuracy of benefits and welfare diversions.

“(E) Whether any member of the family receives benefits under any of the following:

“(i) Any housing program.

“(ii) The food stamp program under the Food Stamp Act of 1977.

“(iii) The Head Start programs carried out under the Head Start Act.

“(iv) Any job training program.

“(F) The number of months since the most recent application for assistance under the plan.

“(G) The total number of months for which assistance has been provided to the families under the plan.

“(H) The employment status, hours worked, and earnings of individuals while receiving assistance, whether the case was closed due to employment, and other data needed to meet the work performance rate.

“(I) Status in Work First and workfare, including the number of hours an individual participated and the component in which the individual participated.

“(J) The number of persons in the assistance unit and their relationship to the youngest child. Nonrecipients in the household and their relationship to the youngest child.

“(K) Citizenship status.

“(L) Shelter arrangement.

“(M) Unearned income (not including temporary employment assistance), such as child support, and assets.

“(N) The number of children who have a parent who is deceased, incapacitated, or unemployed.

“(O) Geographic location.

“(P) The number of adults and children receiving assistance who are current or past victims of domestic violence, and the number of recipients participating in programs addressing the effects of domestic violence.

“(3) AGGREGATED DATA.—The State shall collect the following data items on a monthly basis from aggregated case records of applicants for and recipients of temporary employment assistance from the previous month:

“(A) The number of adults receiving assistance.

“(B) The number of children receiving assistance.

“(C) The number of families receiving assistance.

“(D) The number of assistance units who had their grants reduced or terminated and the reason for the reduction or termination, including sanction, employment, and meeting the time limit for assistance).

“(E) The number of applications for assistance; the number approved and the number denied and the reason for denial.

“(4) LONGITUDINAL STUDIES.—The State shall submit selected data items for a cohort of individuals who are tracked over time. This longitudinal sample shall be used for selected data items described in paragraphs (2) and (3), as determined appropriate by the Secretary.

“(c) ADDITIONAL DATA.—The report required by subsection (b) for a fiscal year quarter shall also include the following:

“(1) REPORT ON USE OF FEDERAL FUNDS TO COVER ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS AND OVERHEAD.—A statement of—

“(A) the percentage of the Federal funds paid to the State under this part for the fiscal year quarter that are used to cover administrative costs or overhead; and “(B) the total amount of State funds that are used to cover such costs or overhead.

“(2) REPORT ON STATE EXPENDITURES ON PROGRAMS FOR NEEDY FAMILIES.—A statement of the total amount expended by the State during the fiscal year quarter on programs for needy families, with the amount spent on the program under this part, and the purposes for which such amount was spent, separately stated.

“(3) REPORT ON NONCUSTODIAL PARENTS PARTICIPATING IN WORK ACTIVITIES.—The number of noncustodial parents in the State who participated in work activities during the fiscal year quarter.

“(4) REPORT ON CHILD SUPPORT COLLECTED.—The total amount of child support collected by the State agency administering the State plan under part D on behalf of a family receiving assistance under this part.

“(5) REPORT ON CHILD CARE.—The total amount expended by the State for child care under this part, along with a description of the types of child care provided, such as child care provided in the case of a family that has ceased to receive assistance under this part because of increased hours of, or increased income from, employment, or in the case of a family that is not receiving assistance under this part but would be at risk of becoming eligible for such assistance if child care was not provided.

“(6) REPORT ON TRANSITIONAL SERVICES.—The total amount expended by the State for providing transitional services to a family that has ceased to receive assistance under this part because of increased hours of, or increased income from, employment, along with a description of such services.

“(d) COLLECTION PROCEDURES.—The Secretary shall provide case sampling plans and data collection procedures as deemed necessary to make statistically valid estimates of plan performance.

“(e) VERIFICATION.—The Secretary shall develop and implement procedures for verifying the quality of the data submitted by the State, and shall provide technical assistance, funded by the compliance penalties imposed under section 412, if such data quality falls below acceptable standards.

“SEC. 415. COMPILATION AND REPORTING OF DATA.

“(a) CURRENT PROGRAMS.—The Secretary shall, on the basis of the Secretary's review of the reports received from the States under section 414, compile such data as the Secretary believes necessary, and from time to time, publish the findings as to the effectiveness of the programs developed and administered by the States under this part. The Secretary shall annually report to the Congress on the programs developed and administered by each State under this part.

“(b) RESEARCH, DEMONSTRATION AND EVALUATION.—Of the amount specified under section 413(a), an amount equal to .25 percent is authorized to be expended by the Secretary to support the following types of research, demonstrations, and evaluations:

“(1) STATE-INITIATED RESEARCH.—States may apply for grants to cover 90 percent of the costs of self-evaluations of programs under State plans approved under this part.

“(2) DEMONSTRATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may implement and evaluate demonstrations of innovative and promising strategies to—

“(i) improve child well-being through reductions in illegitimacy, teen pregnancy, welfare dependency, homelessness, and poverty;

“(ii) test promising strategies by nonprofit and for-profit institutions to increase employment, earning, child support payments, and self-sufficiency with respect to temporary employment assistance clients under State plans; and “(iii) foster the development of child care.

“(B) ADDITIONAL PARAMETERS.—Demonstrations implemented under this paragraph—

“(i) may provide one-time capital funds to establish, expand, or replicate programs;

“(ii) may test performance-based grant to loan financing in which programs meeting performance targets receive grants while programs not meeting such targets repay funding on a pro-rated basis; and “(iii) should test strategies in multiple States and types of communities.

“(3) FEDERAL EVALUATIONS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall conduct research on the effects, benefits, and costs of different approaches to operating welfare programs, including an implementation study based on a representative sample of States and localities, documenting what policies were adopted, how such policies were implemented, the types and mix of services provided, and other such factors as the Secretary deems appropriate.

“(B) RESEARCH ON RELATED ISSUES.—The Secretary shall also conduct research on issues related to the purposes of this part, such as strategies for moving welfare recipients into the workforce quickly, reducing teen pregnancies and out-of-wedlock births, and providing adequate child care.

“(C) STATE REIMBURSEMENT.—The Secretary may reimburse a State for any research-related costs incurred pursuant to research conducted under this paragraph.

“(D) USE OF RANDOM ASSIGNMENT.—Evaluations authorized under this paragraph should use random assignment to the maximum extent feasible and appropriate.

“(4) REGIONAL INFORMATION CENTERS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish not less than 5, nor more than 7 regional information centers located at major research universities or consortiums of universities to ensure the effective implementation of welfare reform and the efficient dissemination of information about innovations, evaluation outcomes, and training initiatives.

“(B) CENTER RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Centers shall have the following functions:

“(i) Disseminate information about effective income support and related programs, along with suggestions for the replication of such programs.

“(ii) Research the factors that cause and sustain welfare dependency and poverty in the regions served by the respective centers.

“(iii) Assist the States in the region formulate and implement innovative programs and improvements in existing programs that help clients move off welfare and become productive citizens.

“(iv) Provide training as appropriate to staff of State agencies to enhance the ability of the agencies to successfully place Work First clients in productive employment or self-employment.

“(C) CENTER ELIGIBILITY TO PERFORM EVALUATIONS.—The Centers may compete for demonstration and evaluation contracts developed under this section.

“SEC. 416. COLLECTION OF OVERPAYMENTS FROM FEDERAL TAX REFUNDS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Upon receiving notice from a State agency administering a plan approved under this part that a named individual has been overpaid under the State plan approved under this part, the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine whether any amounts as refunds of Federal taxes paid are payable to such individual, regardless of whether such individual filed a tax return as a married or unmarried individual. If the Secretary of the Treasury finds that any such amount is payable, the Secretary shall withhold from such refunds an amount equal to the overpayment sought to be collected by the State and pay such amount to the State agency.

(b) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall issue regulations, approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, that provide—

“(1) that a State may only submit under subsection (a) requests for collection of overpayments with respect to individuals—

“(A) who are no longer receiving temporary employment assistance under the State plan approved under this part,

“(B) with respect to whom the State has already taken appropriate action under State law against the income or resources of the individuals or families involved; and

“(C) to whom the State agency has given notice of its intent to request withholding by the Secretary of the Treasury from the income tax refunds of such individuals;

“(2) that the Secretary of the Treasury will give a timely and appropriate notice to any other person filing a joint return with the individual whose refund is subject to withholding under subsection (a); and

“(3) the procedures that the State and the Secretary of the Treasury will follow in carrying out this section which, to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the specific provisions of this section, will be the same as those issued pursuant to section 464(b) applicable to collection of past-due child support.”.

(b) PAYMENTS TO PUERTO RICO.—Section 1108(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. 1308(a)(1)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (F), by striking “or”; and

(2) by striking subparagraph (G) and inserting the following:

“(G) $82,000,000 with respect to each of fiscal years 1989 through 1995, or

“(H) $102,500,000 with respect to the fiscal year 1996 and each fiscal year thereafter;”.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS RELATING TO COLLECTION OF OVERPAYMENTS.—

(1) Section 6402 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to authority to make credits or refunds), as amended by section 561(a), is amended—

(A) in subsection (a), by striking “(c) and (d)” and inserting “(c), (d), and (e)”;

(B) by redesignating subsections (e) through (i) as subsections (f) through (j), respectively; and

(C) by inserting after subsection (d) the following:

“(g) COLLECTION OF OVERPAYMENTS UNDER TITLE IV-A OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.—The amount of any overpayment to be refunded to the person making the overpayment shall be reduced (after reductions pursuant to subsections (c) and (d), but before a credit against future liability for an internal revenue tax) in accordance with section 417 of the Social Security Act (concerning recovery of overpayments to individuals under State plans approved under part A of title IV of such Act).”.

(2) Section 552a(a)(8)(B)(iv)(III) of title 5, United States Code, is amended by striking “section 464 or 1137 of the Social Security Act” and inserting “section 417, 464, or 1137 of the Social Security Act.”

(d) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to calendar quarters beginning on or after October 1, 1996.

(2) SPECIAL RULE.—In the case of a State that the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines requires State legislation (other than legislation appropriating funds) in order to meet the requirements imposed by the amendment made by subsection (a), the State shall not be regarded as failing to comply with the requirements of such amendment before the first day of the first calendar quarter beginning after the close of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of enactment of this Act. For purposes of this paragraph, in the case of a State that has a 2-year legislative session, each year of the session shall be treated as a separate regular session of the State legislature.

(3) LIMITATION ON OBLIGATION AUTHORITY UNDER OLD PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services is not authorized to enter into any obligation with any State under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act) for expenses incurred under such a State plan under such part (as so in effect) on or after October 1, 1996.

TITLE II—WORK FIRST EMPLOYMENT BLOCK GRANT

SEC. 201. WORK FIRST EMPLOYMENT BLOCK GRANT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title IV (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) is amended by striking part F and inserting the following:

“Part F—Work First Employment Block Grant Program

“Subpart 1—Establishment and Operation of State Programs

“SEC. 481. GOALS OF THE WORK FIRST PROGRAM.

“The goals of a Work First program are as follows:

“(1) OBJECTIVE.—The objective of the program is for each adult receiving temporary employment assistance to find and hold full-time unsubsidized paid employment, and for this objective to be achieved in a cost-effective fashion.

“(2) STRATEGY.—The strategy of the program is to connect clients of temporary employment assistance with the private sector labor market as soon as possible and offer such clients the support and skills necessary to remain in the labor market. Each component of the program should emphasize employment and the understanding that minimum wage jobs are a stepping stone to more highly paid employment.

“(3) JOB CREATION.—The creation of jobs, with an emphasis on private sector jobs, through the options available under subpart 2, shall be a component of the block grant program and shall be a priority for each State office with responsibilities under the program.

“(4) FORMS OF ASSISTANCE.—The State shall provide assistance to clients in the program through a range of components, which may include job placement services (including vouchers for job placement services), work supplementation programs, temporary subsidized job creation, assistance in establishing microenterprises, job counseling services, or other work-related activities, to provide individuals with the support and skills necessary to obtain and keep employment in the private sector (including education and training, if necessary).

“SEC. 482. REQUIREMENT THAT RECIPIENTS ENTER THE WORK FIRST PROGRAM.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), the State may place in the Work First program—

“(1) clients of temporary employment assistance pursuant to the State plan approved under part A who have signed a parent empowerment contract as described in section 403(b); and

“(2) absent parents who are unemployed, on the condition that, once employed, such parents meet their child support obligations.

“(b) EXCEPTION.—A State may, at its option, not require an individual who is a single, custodial parent caring for a child under age 1 to engage in work.

“(c) NONDISPLACEMENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—No funds provided under this Act shall be used in a manner that would result in—

“(A) the displacement of any currently employed worker (including partial displacement, such as a reduction in wages, hours of nonovertime work, or employment benefits), or the impairment of existing contracts for services or collective bargaining agreements; or

“(B) the employment or assignment of a client to fill a position when—

“(i) any other person is on layoff from the same or a substantially equivalent position; or “(ii) the employer has terminated the employment of any other employee or otherwise reduced the employer’s workforce in order to fill the vacancy so created with a client.

“(2) ENFORCING ANTI-DISPLACEMENT PROTECTIONS.—

“(A) GRIEVANCE PROCEDURE.—The State shall establish and maintain (pursuant to regulations issued by the Secretary of Labor) a grievance procedure for resolving complaints alleging violations of any of the prohibitions or requirements of paragraph (1). Such procedure shall include an opportunity for a hearing and shall be completed not later than 90 days from the date of the complaint, by which time the complainant shall be provided a written decision by the State. A decision of the State under such procedure, or a failure of a State to issue a decision not later than 90 days from such date, may be appealed to the Secretary of Labor, who shall investigate the allegations contained in the complaint and make a determination not later than 60 days from the date of the appeal as to whether a violation of such prohibitions or requirements has occurred. Remedies shall include termination or suspension of payments, prohibition of the placement of the client, reinstatement of an employee, and other relief to make an aggrieved employee whole.

“(B) OTHER LAWS OR CONTRACTS.—Nothing in subparagraph (A) shall be construed to prohibit a complainant from pursuing a remedy authorized under another Federal, State, or local law or a contract or collective bargaining agreement for a violation of any of the prohibitions or requirements of paragraph (1).

“Subpart 2—Program Performance

“SEC. 485. WORK PERFORMANCE RATES; PERFORMANCE-BASED BONUSES.

“(a) WORK PERFORMANCE RATES.—

“(1) REQUIREMENT.—A State that operates a program under this part shall achieve a work performance rate for the following fiscal years of not less than the following percentages:

“(A) 20 percent for fiscal year 1997.

“(B) 25 percent for fiscal year 1998.

“(C) 30 percent for fiscal year 1999.

“(D) 35 percent for fiscal year 2000.

“(E) 40 percent for fiscal year 2001.

“(F) 50 percent for fiscal year 2002 or thereafter.

“(2) WORK PERFORMANCE RATE DEFINED.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—As used in this subsection, the term ‘work performance rate’ means, with respect to a State and a fiscal year, an amount equal to—

“(i) the sum of the average monthly number of individuals eligible for temporary employment assistance under the State plan approved under part A who, during the fiscal year—

“(I) obtain employment in an unsubsidized job and cease to receive such temporary employment assistance to the extent allowed under subparagraph (B);

“(II) work 20 or more hours per week (or 30 hours, at the option of the State) in an unsubsidized job while still receiving such temporary employment assistance;

“(III) work 20 or more hours per week (or 30 hours, at the option of the State) in a subsidized job through the Work First program (other than through workfare or community service under section 493); or

“(IV) are parents under the age of 18 years (or 19 years, at the option of the State) in school and regularly attending classes obtaining the basic skills needed for work; divided by “(ii) the average monthly number of families with parents eligible for such temporary employment assistance who, during the fiscal year, are not described in section 482(b).

“(B) SPECIAL RULES.—

“(i) INDIVIDUALS IN UNSUBSIDIZED JOBS.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)(i)(I), an individual shall be considered to be participating under a State plan approved under part A for each of the 1st 12 months (without regard to fiscal year) after an individual ceases to receive temporary employment assistance under such plan as the result of employment in an unsubsidized job and during which such individual does not reapply for such assistance.

“(ii) INDIVIDUALS IN WORK FIRST SUBSIDIZED JOBS.—For purposes of subparagraph (A)(i)(III), individuals in workfare or community service (as defined in section 493) may be counted if such individuals reside in areas—

“(I) with an unemployment rate exceeding 8 percent; or “(II) with other circumstances deemed sufficient by the Secretary.

“(iii) DEEMED COMPLIANCE.—A State shall be deemed to have met the requirement in paragraph (1) if its work performance rate in a given fiscal year exceeds that of the prior fiscal year by 10 percentage points.

“(3) EFFECT OF FAILURE TO MEET WORK PERFORMANCE RATES.—If a State fails to achieve the work performance rate required by paragraph (1) for any fiscal year—

“(A) in the case of the 1st failure, the Secretary shall make recommendations for changes in the State Work First program to achieve future required work performance rates; and

“(B) in the case of the 2nd or subsequent failure—

“(i) the Secretary shall reduce by 10 percentage points (or less, at the discretion of the Secretary based on the degree of failure) the rate of Federal payments for the administrative expenses for the State plan approved under part A for the subsequent fiscal year;

“(ii) the Secretary shall make further recommendations for changes in the State Work First program to achieve future required work performance rates which the State may elect to follow; and “(iii) the State shall demonstrate to the Secretary how the State shall achieve the required work performance rate for the subsequent fiscal year.

“(b) PERFORMANCE-BASED BONUSES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any other payment under section 495, each State, beginning in fiscal year 1998, which has achieved its work performance rate for the fiscal year (as determined under subsection (a)) shall be entitled to receive a bonus in the subsequent fiscal year for each individual eligible for temporary employment assistance under the State plan approved under part A who is described in subsection (a)(2)(A)(i) in excess of the number of such individuals necessary to meet such work performance rate, but the aggregate of such bonuses for any fiscal year in the case of any State may not exceed the limitation determined under paragraph (3) with respect to the State.

“(2) USE OF PAYMENTS.—Bonus payments under this subsection—

“(A) may be used to supplement, not supplant, State funding of Work First or child care activities; and “(B) shall be used in a manner which rewards job retention.

“(3) LIMITATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in subparagraph (B) for such fiscal year as the average monthly number of adult recipients (as defined in section 495(a)(6)) in the State in the preceding fiscal year bears to the average monthly number of such recipients in all the States for such preceding year.

“(B) AMOUNT SPECIFIED.—The amount specified in this subparagraph is—

“(i) $200,000,000 for fiscal year 1998 rates payable in fiscal year 1999;

“(ii) $200,000,000 for fiscal year 1999 rates payable in fiscal year 2000;

“(iii) $200,000,000 for fiscal year 2000 rates payable in fiscal year 2001; and “(iv) $200,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 rates payable in fiscal year 2002.

“Subpart 3—Program Components

“SEC. 486. PROGRAM COMPONENTS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Under the Work First program the State shall have the option to provide a wide variety of work-related activities to clients in the temporary employment assistance program under the State plan approved under part A, including job placement services (including vouchers for job placement services), work supplementation programs, temporary subsidized job creation, assistance in establishing microenterprises, and job counseling services described in this subpart.

“(b) JOB SEARCH ACTIVITIES.—Each client, who is not exempt from work requirements, shall begin Work First by participating in job search activities designed by the State for 2 months.

“(c) WORKFARE.—If, after 2 years, a client (who is not exempt from work requirements) who has signed a parent empowerment contract is not working at least 20 hours a week (within the meaning of section 485(a)(2)), or engaged in community service, then the State shall offer that client a workfare position, with minimum hours per week and tasks to be determined by the State.

“(d) COMMUNITY SERVICE.—Not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of the Work First Act of 1996, each State should (and not later than 7 years after such date, each State shall) require a client who, after receiving assistance for 3 months—

“(1) is not exempt from work requirements; and

“(2) is not either—

“(A) working at least 20 hours a week (within the meaning of section 485(a)(2)); or “(B) engaged in an education or training program; to participate in community service, with minimum hours per week and tasks to be determined by the State.

“SEC. 487. JOB PLACEMENT; USE OF PLACEMENT COMPANIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The State through the Work First program may operate its own job placement assistance program or may establish a job placement voucher program under subsection (b).

“(b) JOB PLACEMENT VOUCHER PROGRAM.—A job placement voucher program established by a State under this subsection shall include the following requirements:

“(1) LIST OF ORGANIZATIONS MAINTAINED.—The State shall identify, maintain, and make available to a client a list of State-approved job placement organizations that offer services in the area where the client resides and a description of the job placement and support services each such organization provides. Such organizations may be publicly or privately owned and operated.

“(2) EXECUTION OF CONTRACT.—A client shall, at the time the client becomes eligible for temporary employment assistance—

“(A) receive the list and description described in paragraph (1);

“(B) agree, in exchange for job placement and support services, to—

“(i) execute, within a period of time permitted by the State, a contract with a State-approved job placement organization which provides that the organization shall attempt to find employment for the client; and

“(ii) comply with the terms of the contract; and

“(C) receive a job placement voucher (in an amount to be determined by the State) for payment to a State-approved job placement organization.

“(3) USE OF VOUCHER.—At the time a client executes a contract with a State-approved job placement organization, the client shall provide the organization with the job placement voucher that the client received pursuant to paragraph (2)(C).

“(4) REDEMPTION.—A State-approved job placement organization may redeem for payment from the State not more than 25 percent of the value of a job placement voucher upon the initial receipt of the voucher for payment of costs incurred in finding and placing a client in an employment position. The remaining value of such voucher shall not be redeemed for payment from the State until the State-approved job placement organization—

“(A) finds an employment position (as determined by the State) for the client who provided the voucher; and

“(B) certifies to the State that the client remains employed with the employer that the organization originally placed the client with for the greater of—

“(i) 6 continuous months; or

“(ii) a period determined by the State.

“(5) PERFORMANCE-BASED STANDARDS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The State shall establish performance-based standards to evaluate the success of the State job placement voucher program operated under this subsection in achieving employment for clients participating in such voucher program. Such standards shall take into account the economic conditions of the State in determining the rate of success.

“(B) ANNUAL EVALUATION.—The State shall, not less than once a fiscal year, evaluate the job placement voucher program operated under this subsection in accordance with the performance-based standards established under subparagraph (A).

“(C) ANNUAL REPORT.—The State shall submit a report containing the results of an evaluation conducted under subparagraph (B) to the Secretary and a description of the performance-based standards used to conduct the evaluation in such form and under such conditions as the Secretary shall require. The Secretary shall review each report submitted under this subsection and may require the State to revise the performance-based standards if the Secretary determines that the State is not achieving an adequate rate of success for such State.

"SEC. 488. REVAMPED JOBS PROGRAM.

"The State through the Work First program may operate a program similar to the program known as the 'GAIN Program' that has been operated by Riverside County, California, under Federal law as in effect immediately before the effective date of this subpart.

"SEC. 489. TEMPORARY SUBSIDIZED JOB CREATION.

"The State through the Work First program may establish a program similar to the program known as 'JOBS Plus' that has been operated by the State of Oregon under Federal law as in effect immediately before the effective date of this subpart.

"SEC. 490. FAMILY INVESTMENT PROGRAM.

"The State through the Work First program may establish a program similar to the program known as the 'Family Investment Program' that has been operated by the State of Iowa to move families off of welfare and into self-sufficient employment.

"SEC. 491. MICROENTERPRISE.

"(a) GRANTS AND LOANS TO NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS FOR THE PROVISION OF TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE, TRAINING, AND CREDIT TO LOW INCOME ENTREPRENEURS.—The State through the Work First program may make grants and loans to nonprofit organizations to provide technical assistance, training, and credit to low income entrepreneurs for the purpose of establishing microenterprises.

"(b) MICROENTERPRISE DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term 'microenterprise' means a commercial enterprise which has 5 or fewer employees, 1 or more of whom owns the enterprise.

"SEC. 492. WORK SUPPLEMENTATION PROGRAM.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The State through the Work First program may institute a work supplementation program under which the State, to the extent it considers appropriate, may reserve the sums that would otherwise be payable to clients in the temporary employment assistance program under the State plan approved under part A and use the sums instead for the purpose of providing and subsidizing jobs for clients as an alternative to the temporary employment assistance that would otherwise be so payable to the clients.

"(b) SAMPLING METHODOLOGY PERMITTED.—In determining the amounts to be reserved and used for providing and subsidizing jobs under this section as described in subsection (a), the State may use a sampling methodology.

"(c) SUPPLEMENTED JOB.—For purposes of this section, a supplemented job is—

"(1) a job provided to an eligible client by the State or local agency administering the State plan under part A; or

"(2) a job provided to an eligible client by any other employer for which at least part of the wages are paid by the State or local agency.

A State may provide or subsidize under the program any job which the State determines to be appropriate.

"(d) COST LIMITATION.—The amount of the Federal payment to a State under section 413 for expenditures incurred in making payments to clients and employers under a work supplementation program under this section shall not exceed an amount equal to the amount which would otherwise be payable under such section 413 if the family of each client employed in the program established in the State under this section had received the maximum amount of temporary employment assistance payable under the State plan approved under part A to such a family with no income for the number of months in which the client was employed in the program.

"(e) WAGES ARE CONSIDERED EARNED INCOME.—Wages paid under a work supplementation program shall be considered to be earned income for purposes of any provision of law.

"(f) PRESERVATION OF MEDICAID ELIGIBILITY.—Any State that chooses to operate a work supplementation program under this section shall provide that any client who participates in the program, and any child or relative of the client (or other individual living in the same household as the client) who would be eligible for temporary employment assistance under the State plan approved under part A if the State did not have a work supplementation program, shall be considered individuals receiving temporary employment assistance under the State plan approved under part A for purposes of eligibility for medical assistance under the State plan approved under title XIX.

"SEC. 493. WORKFARE AND COMMUNITY SERVICE.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—A State through the Work First program may establish and carry out—

"(1) a workfare program in accordance with section 486(c); and

"(2) a community service program in accordance with section 486(d), that meets the requirements of this section.

"(b) WORKFARE DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term 'workfare' means a job provided to a client by the State administering the State plan under part A with respect to which the client works in return for assistance under such plan and receives no wages.

"(c) COMMUNITY SERVICE DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term 'community service' means work of benefit to the community, such as volunteer work in schools and community organizations.

"(d) ASSISTANCE NOT CONSIDERED EARNED INCOME.—Assistance paid under a workfare program shall not be considered to be earned income for purposes of any provision of law.

"(e) USE OF PLACEMENT COMPANIES.—A State that establishes a workfare or community service program under this section may enter into contracts with private companies (whether operated for profit or not for profit) for the placement of clients in the program in positions of full-time employment, preferably in the private sector, for wages sufficient to eliminate the need of such clients for temporary employment assistance.

"Subpart 4—Funding

"SEC. 495. FUNDING.

"(a) FUNDING FOR WORK FIRST.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Each State that is operating a program in accordance with this part shall be entitled to payments under subsection (b) for any fiscal year in an amount equal to the sum of the applicable percentages (specified in such subsection) of its expenditures to carry out such program (subject to limitations prescribed by or pursuant to this part or this section on expenditures that may be included for purposes of determining payments under subsection (b)), but such payments for any fiscal year in the case of any State may not exceed the limitation determined under paragraph (2) with respect to the State.

"(2) LIMITATION.—The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in paragraph (3) for such fiscal year as the average monthly number of adult recipients (as defined in paragraph (6)) in the State in the preceding fiscal year bears to the average monthly number of such recipients in all the States for such preceding year.

"(3) AMOUNT SPECIFIED.—Subject to paragraphs (4) and (5), the amount specified in this paragraph is—

"(A) $1,010,000,000 for fiscal year 1997;

"(B) $1,100,000,000 for fiscal year 1998;

"(C) $1,330,000,000 for fiscal year 1999;

"(D) $1,520,000,000 for fiscal year 2000;

"(E) $1,870,000,000 for fiscal year 2001; and

"(F) $2,720,000,000 for fiscal year 2002.

"(4) INDIAN TRIBAL GOVERNMENTS.—

"(A) APPLICATION.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—An Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization may apply at any time to the Secretary (in such manner as the Secretary prescribes) to conduct a Work First program.

"(ii) PARTICIPATION.—If a tribe or organization chooses to apply and the application is approved, such tribe or organization shall be entitled to a direct payment in the amount determined in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph (B) for each fiscal year beginning after such approval.

"(iii) NO PARTICIPATION.—If a tribe or organization chooses not to apply, the amount that would otherwise be available to such tribe or organization for the fiscal year shall be payable to the State in which that tribe or organization is located. Such amount shall be used by that State to provide Work First program services to the recipients living within that tribe or organization's jurisdiction.

"(iv) NO MATCH REQUIRED.—Indian tribes and Alaska Native organizations shall not be required to submit a monetary match to receive a payment under this paragraph.

"(B) PAYMENT AMOUNT.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall pay directly to each Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization conducting a Work First program for a fiscal year an amount which bears the same ratio to 3 percent of the amount specified under paragraph (3) for such fiscal year as the adult Indian or Alaska Native population receiving temporary employment assistance residing within the area to be served by the tribe or organization bears to the total of such adults receiving such assistance residing within all areas which any such tribe or organization could serve.

"(ii) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary shall from time to time review the components of the ratios established in clause (i) to determine whether the individual payments under this paragraph continue to reflect accurately the distribution of population among the grantees, and shall make adjustments necessary to maintain the correct distribution of funding.

"(C) USE IN SUCCEEDING FISCAL YEAR.—A grantee under this paragraph may use not to exceed 20 percent of the amount for the fiscal year under subparagraph (B) to carry out the Work First program in the succeeding fiscal year.

"(D) VOLUNTARY TERMINATION.—An Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization may voluntarily terminate its Work First program. The amount under subparagraph (B) with respect to such program for the fiscal year shall be payable to the State in which that tribe or organization is located. Such amount shall be used by that State to provide Work First program services to the recipients living within that tribe or organization's jurisdiction. If a voluntary termination of a Work First program occurs under this subparagraph, the tribe or organization shall not be eligible to submit an application under this paragraph before the 6th year following such termination.

"(E) JOINT PROGRAMS.—An Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization may also apply to the Secretary jointly with 1 or more such tribes or organizations to administer a Work First program as a consortium. The Secretary shall establish such terms and conditions for such consortium as are necessary.

"(5) JOB CREATION.—Of the amount specified under paragraph (3), 5 percent shall be set aside by the Secretary for the program described in section 203(b) of the Work First Act of 1996.

"(6) DEFINITION.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'adult recipient' in the case of any State means an individual other than a needy child (unless such child is the custodial parent of another needy child) whose needs are met (in whole or in part) with payments of temporary employment assistance.

"(b) STATE ALLOCATIONS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall pay to each State that is operating a program in accordance with part F, with respect to expenditures by the State to carry out such program (including expenditures for child care under section 405(b), but only with respect to a State to which section 1108 applies), an amount equal to—

"(A) with respect to so much of such expenditures in a fiscal year as do not exceed the State's expenditures in the fiscal year 1987 with respect to which payments were made to such State from its allotment for such fiscal year pursuant to part C of this title as then in effect, 90 percent; and

"(B) with respect to so much of such expenditures in a fiscal year as exceed the amount described in subparagraph (A)—

"(i) 50 percent, in the case of expenditures for administrative costs (including costs of emergency assistance) made by a State in operating such program for such fiscal year (other than the costs of transportation and the personnel costs for case management staff employed full-time in the operation of such program); and

"(ii) the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)), in the case of expenditures made by a State in operating such program for such fiscal year (other than for costs described in clause (i)).

"(2) FORM OF PAYMENT.—With respect to the amount for which payment is made to a State under paragraph (1)(A), the State's expenditures for the costs of operating such program may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated.

"(3) USE OF FUNDS.—A State may use amounts allocated under this subsection for all costs deemed necessary to assist program clients obtain and retain jobs, including emergency day care assistance or sick day care assistance, uniforms, eyeglasses, transportation, wage subsidies, and other employment-related special needs, as defined by the State. Such assistance may be provided through contract with community-based family resource programs under title II of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act (42 U.S.C. 5116 et seq.)."

(b) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the amendment made by subsection (a) shall be effective with respect to calendar quarters beginning on or after October 1, 1996.

(2) SPECIAL RULE.—In the case of a State that the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines requires State legislation (other than legislation appropriating funds) in order to meet the requirements imposed by the amendment made by subsection (a), the State shall not be regarded as failing to comply with the requirements of such amendment before the first day of the first calendar quarter beginning after the close of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of enactment of this Act. For purposes of this paragraph, in the case of a State that has a 2-year legislative session, each year of the session shall be treated as a separate regular session of the State legislature.

(3) STATE OPTION TO ACCELERATE APPLICABILITY.—If a State formally notifies the Secretary of Health and Human Services that the State desires to accelerate the applicability to the State of the amendment made by subsection (a), the amendment shall apply to the State on and after such earlier date as the State may select.

(4) AUTHORITY OF THE SECRETARY OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES TO DELAY APPLICABILITY TO A STATE.—Subject to the funding limitation described in paragraph (5), if a State formally notifies the Secretary of Health and Human Services that the State desires to delay the applicability to the State of the amendment made by subsection (a), the amendment (other than section 495 of such amendment) shall apply to the State on and after any later date agreed upon by the Secretary and the State.

(5) LIMITATION ON OBLIGATION AUTHORITY UNDER OLD PROGRAM.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services is not authorized to enter into any obligation with any State under part F of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 681 et seq.) (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this Act) for expenses incurred under such a State plan under such part (as so in effect) on or after October 1, 1996.

SEC. 202. CONSOLIDATION AND STREAMLINING OF SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 407, as added by section 101(a), is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

"(i) CHANGING THE WELFARE BUREAUCRACY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—The State plan may describe the State's efforts to streamline and consolidate activities to simplify the process of applying for a range of Federal and State assistance programs, including the use of—

"(A) 'one-stop offices' to coordinate the application process for individuals and families with low-incomes or limited resources and to ensure that applicants and recipients receive the information they need with regard to such range of programs; and

"(B) forms which are easy to read and understand or easily explained by State agency employees.

"(2) USE OF INCENTIVES.—The State plan may require the use of incentives (including Work First program funds) to change the culture of each State agency office with responsibilities under the State plan, to improve the performance of employees, and to ensure that the objective of each employee of each such State office is to find unsubsidized paid employment for each program client as efficiently and as quickly as possible.

"(3) CASEWORKER TRAINING AND RETRAINING.—The State plan may provide such training to caseworkers and related personnel as may be necessary to ensure successful job placements that result in full-time public or private employment (outside the State agencies with responsibilities under part A) for program clients.

"(j) COORDINATION OF SERVICES.—The State plan shall provide that the State agency may—

"(1) establish convenient locations in each community at which individuals and families with low-incomes or limited resources may apply for and (if appropriate) receive, directly or through referral to the appropriate provider, in appropriate languages and in a culturally sensitive manner—

"(A) temporary employment assistance under the State plan;

"(B) employment and education counseling;

"(C) job placement;

"(D) child care;

"(E) health care;

"(F) transportation assistance;

"(G) housing assistance;

"(H) child support services;

"(I) assistance under the National and Community Service Act of 1990 and the Domestic Volunteer Service Act of 1973;

"(J) unemployment insurance;

"(K) assistance under the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act;

"(L) assistance under the School-to-Work Opportunities Act of 1994;

"(M) assistance under Federal student loan programs;

"(N) assistance under the Job Training Partnership Act; and

"(O) other types of counseling and support services; and

"(2) assign to each recipient of assistance under the State plan, and to each applicant for such assistance, a case manager who—

"(A) is knowledgeable about community resources;

"(B) is qualified to refer the applicant or recipient to appropriate employment programs or education and training programs, or both, and needed health and social services; and

"(C) is required to coordinate the provision of benefits and services by the State to the applicant or recipient, until the applicant or recipient is no longer eligible for—

"(i) assistance under the State plan;

"(ii) child care guaranteed by the State in accordance with section 405(b); and

"(iii) medical assistance under the State plan approved under title XIX."

(b) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall provide technical assistance and training to States to assist the States in implementing effective management practices and strategies in order to make the operation of State offices described in section 407(i) of the Social Security Act (as added by subsection (a)) efficient and effective.

SEC. 203. JOB CREATION.

(a) GRANTS TO COMMUNITY-BASED ORGANIZATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the "Secretary") may make grants in accordance with this subsection using funds described in paragraph (2), and, to the extent allowed by the States, Work First funds under part F of title IV of the Social Security Act, to community-based organizations that move clients of temporary employment assistance under a State plan approved under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act or under other public assistance programs into private sector work.

(2) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this subsection $25,000,000 for fiscal year 1996 and $50,000,000 for fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, and 2002.

(3) ELIGIBLE ORGANIZATIONS.—The Secretary shall award grants to community-based organizations that—

(A) may receive at least 5 percent of their funding from local government sources; and

(B) move clients referred to in paragraph (1) in the direction of unsubsidized private employment by integrating and co-locating at least 5 of the following services—

(i) case management;

(ii) job training;

(iii) child care;

(iv) housing;

(v) health care services;

(vi) nutrition programs;

(vii) life skills training; and

(viii) parenting skills.

(4) AWARDING OF GRANTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall award grants based on the quality of applications, subject to subparagraphs (B) and (C).

(B) PREFERENCE IN AWARDING GRANTS.—In awarding grants under this subsection, the Secretary shall give preference to organizations which receive more than 50 percent of their funding from State government, local government or private sources.

(C) DISTRIBUTION OF GRANT.—The Secretary shall award at least 1 grant to each State from which the Secretary received an application.

(D) LIMITATION ON SIZE OF GRANT.—The Secretary shall not award any grants under this subsection of more than $1,000,000.

(5) ISSUANCE OF REGULATIONS.—Not less than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this subsection, the Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to implement this subsection.

(b) GRANTS TO EXPAND THE NUMBER OF JOB OPPORTUNITIES AVAILABLE TO CERTAIN LOW-INCOME INDIVIDUALS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall enter into agreements with nonprofit organizations (including community development corporations) submitting applications under this subsection for the purpose of conducting projects in accordance with paragraph (2) and funded under section 495(a)(5) to create employment opportunities for certain low-income individuals.

(2) NATURE OF PROJECT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each nonprofit organization conducting a project under this subsection shall provide technical and financial assistance to private employers in the community to assist such employers in creating employment and business opportunities for those individuals eligible to participate in the projects as described in this paragraph.

(B) NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—For purposes of this subsection, a nonprofit organization is any organization (including a community development corporation) exempt from taxation under section 501(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 by reason of paragraph (3) or (4) of section 501(c) of such Code.

(C) ELIGIBLE LOW-INCOME INDIVIDUALS.—For purposes of this subsection, a low-income individual eligible to participate in a project conducted under this subsection is any individual eligible to receive temporary employment assistance under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (as added by section 101 of this Act) and any other individual whose income level does not exceed 100 percent of the poverty line (as such term is defined in section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2)), including any revision required by such section).

(3) CONTENT OF APPLICATIONS; SELECTION PRIORITY.—

(A) CONTENT OF APPLICATIONS.—Each nonprofit organization submitting an application under this subsection shall, as part of such application, describe—

(i) the technical and financial assistance that will be made available under the project conducted under this subsection;

(ii) the geographic area to be served by the project;

(iii) the percentage of low-income individuals (as described in paragraph (2)(C)) and individuals receiving temporary employment assistance under title IV of the Social Security Act (as so added) in the area to be served by the project; and

(iv) unemployment rates in the geographic areas to be served and (to the extent practicable) the jobs available and skills necessary to fill those vacancies in such areas.

(B) SELECTION PRIORITY.—In approving applications under this subsection, the Secretary shall give priority to applications proposing to serve those areas containing the highest percentage of individuals receiving temporary employment assistance under title IV of such Act (as so added).

(4) ADMINISTRATION.—Each nonprofit organization participating in a project conducted under this subsection shall provide assurances in its agreement with the Secretary that the organization has or will have a cooperative relationship with the agency responsible for administering the Work First program (as provided for under part F of title IV of the Social Security Act, as added by section 201 of this Act) in the area served by the project.

SEC. 204. COMMUNITY STEERING COMMITTEES DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the "Secretary") shall enter into agreements with not more than 5 States that submit an application under this section, in such form and such manner as the Secretary may specify, for the purpose of conducting a demonstration project described in subsection (b).

(b) DESCRIPTION OF PROJECT.—

(1) COMMUNITY STEERING COMMITTEES.—

(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—A demonstration project conducted under this section shall establish within a State in each participating county a Community Steering Committee that shall be designed to help recipients of temporary employment assistance who are parents move into the non-subsidized workforce and to develop a holistic approach to the development needs of such recipient's family.

(B) MEMBERSHIP.—A Community Steering Committee shall consist of local educators, business representatives, and social service providers.

(C) GOALS AND DUTIES.—

(i) GOALS.—The goals of a Community Steering Committee are—

(I) to ensure that recipients of temporary employment assistance who are parents obtain and retain unsubsidized employment; and

(II) to reduce the incidence of intergenerational receipt of welfare assistance by addressing the needs of children of recipients of temporary employment assistance.

(ii) DUTIES.—A Community Steering Committee shall—

(I) identify and create unsubsidized employment positions for recipients of temporary employment assistance;

(II) propose and implement solutions to barriers to unsubsidized employment of recipients of temporary employment assistance;

(III) assess the needs of children of recipients of temporary employment assistance; and

(IV) provide services that are designed to ensure that children of recipients of temporary employment assistance enter school ready to learn and that, once enrolled, such children stay in school.

(iii) PRIMARY RESPONSIBILITY.—A primary responsibility of a Community Steering Committee shall be to work on an ongoing basis with parents who are recipients of temporary employment assistance and who have obtained nonsubsidized employment in order to ensure that such recipients retain their employment. Activities to carry out this responsibility may include—

(I) counseling;

(II) emergency day care;

(III) sick day care;

(IV) transportation;

(V) provision of clothing;

(VI) housing assistance; or

(VII) any other assistance that may be necessary on an emergency and temporary basis to ensure that such parents can manage the responsibility of being employed and the demands of having a family.

(iv) FOLLOW-UP SERVICES FOR CHILDREN.—A Community Steering Committee may provide special follow-up services for children of recipients of temporary employment assistance that are designed to ensure that the children reach their fullest potential and do not, as they mature, receive welfare assistance as the head of their own household.

(2) FUNDING.—Notwithstanding the provisions of section 495(b)(1)(B)(i), a State county that has a Community Steering Committee shall receive reimbursement under such section for expenditures of the Committee in an amount equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)) for such State, plus 10 percentage points.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than October 1, 2001, the Secretary shall submit a report to the Congress on the results of the demonstration projects conducted under this section.

TITLE III—SUPPORTING WORK

SEC. 301. ELIGIBILITY FOR MEDICAID BENEFITS.

(a) TRANSITIONAL ELIGIBILITY FOR CERTAIN CHILDREN.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Part A of title IV, as added by section 101(a) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

"SEC. 417. TRANSITIONAL ELIGIBILITY FOR MEDICAID.

"Each needy child, and each relative with whom such a child is living (including the spouse of such relative), who becomes ineligible for temporary employment assistance as a result (wholly or partly) of the collection or increased collection of child or spousal support under part D of this title, and who has received such assistance in at least 3 of the 6 months immediately preceding the month in which such ineligibility begins, shall be deemed to be a recipient of temporary employment assistance for purposes of title XIX for an additional 4 calendar months beginning with the month in which such ineligibility begins."

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the amendment made by this section shall apply to calendar quarters beginning on or after October 1, 1996, without regard to whether final regulations to carry out such amendments have been promulgated by such date.

(B) WHEN STATE LEGISLATION IS REQUIRED.—In the case of a State plan for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act which the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines requires State legislation (other than legislation appropriating funds) in order for the plan to meet the additional requirements imposed by the amendments made by this section, the State plan shall not be regarded as failing to comply with the requirements of such title solely on the basis of its failure to meet these additional requirements before the first day of the first calendar quarter beginning after the close of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of the enactment of this Act. For purposes of the previous sentence, in the case of a State that has a 2-year legislative session, each year of such session shall be deemed to be a separate regular session of the State legislature.

(b) CONTINUED APPLICATION OF CURRENT STANDARDS UNDER THE MEDICAID PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Title XIX of the Social Security Act is amended—

(A) by redesignating section 1931 as section 1932; and

(B) by inserting after section 1930 the following new section:

"CONTINUED APPLICATION OF CERTAIN METHODOLOGY AND STANDARDS

"SEC. 1931. (a) APPLICATION TO THIS TITLE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of applying this title on and after October 1, 1996, notwithstanding any other provision of this Act but subject to subsection (b), with respect to a State—

“(A) except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), any reference in this title (or any other provision of law in relation to the operation of this title) to a provision of part A of title IV, or a State plan under such part, shall be considered a reference to such provision or plan as in effect as of May 1, 1996;

“(B) individuals shall be deemed to be receiving aid or assistance under a State plan approved under part A of title IV if they meet—

“(i) the income and resource standards, and the methodology for determining eligibility for assistance applicable under such plan, as of May 1, 1996; and

“(ii) the eligibility requirements of such State plan that correspond to the requirements of subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 406, section 402(a)(42), and section 407 of part A of title IV, as such sections were in effect as of May 1, 1996; and

“(C) any reference in section 1902(a)(5) or 1925 to a State plan approved under part A of title IV shall be deemed to be a reference to a State program funded under such part, as in effect on and after October 1, 1996.

“(2) STATE OPTION FOR LOWER STANDARDS.—In applying clause (i) of paragraph (1)(B), a State may lower the income and resource standards applicable under the State plan under part A of title IV so long as such standards are not less than the standards in effect under the State plan under such part of such title on May 1, 1988. A State may elect to use less restrictive income and resource standards or methodologies under such State plan.

“(3) STATE OPTION REGARDING SEPARATE MEDICAID APPLICATION FOR TEA RECIPIENTS.—In the case of an individual who is determined to be eligible for temporary employment assistance under a State plan under part A of title IV, as in effect on and after October 1, 1996, a State may, at its option, use such individual's application for temporary employment assistance to determine such individual's eligibility for medical assistance under the State plan under this title.

“(b) APPLICATION TO WAIVERS.—In the case of a waiver of a provision of part A of title IV in effect with respect to a State as of May 1, 1996, if the waiver affects eligibility of individuals for medical assistance under this title, such waiver may (but need not) continue to be applied, at the option of the State, in relation to this title after the date the waiver would otherwise expire. If a State elects not to continue to apply such a waiver, then, after the date of the expiration of the waiver, subsection (a) shall be applied as if any provisions so waived had not been waived.”

(2) PLAN AMENDMENT.—Section 1902(a) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396a(a)) is amended—

(A) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (61),

(B) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (62) and inserting “; and”, and

(C) by inserting after paragraph (62) the following new paragraph:

“(63) provide for administration and determinations of eligibility with respect to individuals who are (or seek to be) eligible for medical assistance based on the application of section 1931.”

(c) REPEAL OF SUNSET ON TRANSITIONAL WORK PROVISIONS.—Subsection (f) of section 1925 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1396r-6(f)) is repealed.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to medical assistance furnished for calendar quarters beginning on or after October 1, 1996.

SEC. 302. CONSOLIDATED CHILD CARE DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT.

(a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section to—

(1) eliminate program fragmentation and create a seamless system of high quality child care that allows for continuity of care for children as parents move from welfare to work;

(2) provide for parental choice among high quality child care programs; and

(3) increase the availability of high quality affordable child care in order to promote self sufficiency and support working families.

(b) AMENDMENTS TO CHILD CARE AND DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT ACT OF 1990.—

(1) APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 658B of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 658B. APPROPRIATION.

“(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS OF BLOCK GRANT FUNDS.—For the purpose of providing child care services for eligible children through the awarding of grants to States under this subchapter (other than the grants awarded under subsection (b)) by the Secretary, there are authorized to be appropriated, $1,000,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1996 through 2002.

“(b) APPROPRIATIONS OF FEDERAL MATCHING FUNDS.—For the purpose of providing child care services for eligible children through the awarding of matching grants to States under section 658J(d) by the Secretary, there are authorized to be appropriated and are hereby appropriated, $2,000,000,000 for fiscal year 1997, $2,250,000,000 for fiscal year 1998, $2,500,000,000 for fiscal year 1999, $2,800,000,000 for fiscal year 2000, $3,150,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $3,300,000,000 for fiscal year 2002.”

(2) USE OF FUNDS.—Section 658E(c)(3)(B) of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858(c)(3)(B)) is amended—

(A) in clause (i), by striking “with very low family incomes (taking into consideration family size)” and inserting “described in clause (ii) (in the order so described)”;

(B) by redesignating clauses (i) and (ii) as subclauses (I) and (II), respectively, and realigning the margins accordingly;

(C) by striking “Subject” and inserting the following:

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject”; and

(D) by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(ii) FAMILIES DESCRIBED.—The families described in this clause are the following:

“(I) Families containing an individual receiving temporary employment assistance under a State plan approved under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act and participating in job search, work, or Work First.

“(II) Families containing an individual who—

“(aa) no longer qualifies for child care assistance under section 405(b) of the Social Security Act because such individual has ceased to receive assistance under the temporary employment assistance program under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act as a result of increased hours of, or increased income from, employment; and “(bb) the State determines requires such child care assistance in order to continue such employment (but only for the 1-year period beginning on the date that the individual no longer qualifies for child care assistance under section 405(b) of such Act, and, at the option of the State, for the additional 1-year period beginning after the conclusion of the first 1-year period).

“(III) Families containing an individual who—“(aa) is not described in subclause (I) or (II); and

For purposes of item (bb), a State may opt to provide child care services to families at or above the poverty line and below 75 percent of the State median income but only with respect to 10 percent of the State's grant under this subchapter or a greater percentage of the State's grant if such increased amount is necessary to provide child care to families who were receiving such care on the day before the date of the enactment of the Work First Act of 1995.

(3) SET-ASIDES FOR QUALITY AND EXPANSION.—Section 658E(c)(3) of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858(c)(3))—

(A) in subparagraph (C), by striking “25 percent” and inserting “10 percent”; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(D) EXPANSION OF CHILD CARE.—The State shall reserve not less than 10 percent of the amount provided to the State and available for providing services under this subchapter, to provide for the expansion of child care facilities available to support working families residing in the State.”

(4) SLIDING FEE SCALE.—Section 658E(c)(5) of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858(c)(5)) is amended by inserting “described in subclauses (II) and (III) of paragraph (3)(B)(ii)” after “families”.

(5) MATCHING REQUIREMENT FOR NEW FUNDS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Section 658J of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858h) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

“(d) MATCHING REQUIREMENT FOR CERTAIN NEW FUNDS.—

“(1) AMOUNT OF FEDERAL PAYMENT.—Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary shall make quarterly payments to each State that has an application approved under section 658E(d) in an amount equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)) of the total amount expended during the quarter under the State plan in excess of the State's quarterly allotment under section 658O.

“(2) LIMITATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Payments under this subsection to a State for any fiscal year may not exceed the limitation determined under subparagraph (B) with respect to the State.

“(B) LIMITATION DETERMINED.—The limitation determined under this subparagraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount specified in subparagraph (C) as the amount allotted to the State under 658O bears to the amount allotted to all States (after reserving the amount for Indian tribes required under section 658O(a)(2)).

“(C) AMOUNT SPECIFIED.—The amount specified in this subparagraph is the amount appropriated for such fiscal year under section 658B(b) reduced by the amount reserved for Indian tribes under subsection (e).

“(D) LIMITATION RAISED.—If the limitation determined under subparagraph (A) with respect to a State for a fiscal year exceeds the amount paid to the State under this subsection for the fiscal year, the limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to the State for the immediately succeeding fiscal year shall be increased by the amount of such excess.

“(3) FORM OF PAYMENT.—With respect to the amount for which payment is made to a State under paragraph (1), the State's expenditures for the costs of operating such programs may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated.

“(4) METHOD OF COMPUTATION AND PAYMENT.—The method of computing and paying amounts under paragraph (1) shall be as follows:

“(A) AMOUNT BASED ON ESTIMATE.—The Secretary shall, prior to the beginning of each quarter, estimate the amount to be paid to the State for such quarter under paragraph (1), such estimate to be based on—

“(i) a report filed by the State containing its estimate of the total sum to be expended in such quarter in accordance with the provisions of such paragraph and stating the amount appropriated or made available by the State and its political subdivisions for such expenditures in such quarter, and if such amount is less than the State’s proportionate share of the total sum of such estimated expenditures, the source or sources from which the difference is expected to be derived; and “(ii) such other information as the Secretary may find necessary.

“(B) REDUCTION OR INCREASE.—The Secretary shall reduce or increase the amount to be paid, as the case may be, by any sum by which the Secretary finds that the estimate for any prior quarter was greater or less than the amount which should have been paid to the State for such quarter, except that such increases or reductions shall not be made to the extent that such sums have been applied to make the amount certified for any prior quarter greater or less than the amount estimated by the Secretary for such prior quarter.

“(e) AMOUNTS RESERVED FOR INDIAN TRIBES.—The Secretary shall reserve not more than 3 percent of the amount appropriated under section 658B(b) in each fiscal year for payments to Indian tribes and tribal organizations with applications approved under section 6580(c). The amounts reserved under the prior sentence shall be available to make grants to or enter into contracts with Indian tribes or tribal organizations consistent with section 6580(c) without a requirement of matching funds by the Indian tribes or tribal organizations.

“(f) SAME TREATMENT AS ALLOTMENTS.—Amounts paid to a State or Indian tribe under subsections (d) and (e) shall be subject to the same requirements under this subchapter as amounts paid from the allotment under section 6580.”

(B) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 6580 of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858m) is amended—

(i) in subsection (a)—

(I) in paragraph (1), by striking “this subchapter” and inserting section 658B(a); and

(II) in paragraph (2), by striking “section 658B” and inserting “section 658B(a); and

(ii) in subsection (b)(1), by striking “section 658B” and inserting “section 658B(a)”.

(6) IMPROVING QUALITY.—

(A) INCREASE IN REQUIRED FUNDING.—Section 658G of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858e) is amended by striking “not less than 20 percent” and inserting “50 percent”.

(B) QUALITY IMPROVEMENT INCENTIVE INITIATIVE.—Section 658G of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858e) is amended—

(i) by striking “A State” and inserting “(a) IN GENERAL.—A State”; and

(ii) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(b) QUALITY IMPROVEMENT INCENTIVE INITIATIVE.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish a child care quality improvement incentive initiative to make funds available to States that demonstrate progress in the implementation of—

“(A) innovative teacher training programs such as the Department of Defense staff development and compensation program for child care personnel; or “(B) enhanced child care quality standards and licensing and monitoring procedures.

“(2) FUNDING.—From the amounts made available for each fiscal year under subsection (a), the Secretary shall reserve not to exceed $50,000,000 in each such fiscal year to carry out this subsection.”

(7) PAYMENTS.—Section 658J(a) of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858h) is amended by striking “Subject to the availability of appropriation, a” and inserting “A”.

(8) DEFINITION OF ELIGIBLE CHILD.—Section 658P(4)(B) of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858n(4)(B)) is amended to read as follows:

“(B) who is a member of a family described in section 658E(c)(3)(B)(ii); and”.

(9) DEFINITION OF POVERTY LINE.—Section 658P of the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 (42 U.S.C. 9858n) is amended—

(A) by redesignating paragraphs (10) through (14) as paragraphs (11) through (15), respectively; and

(B) by inserting after paragraph (9), the following new paragraph:

“(10) POVERTY LINE.—The term ‘poverty line’ means the poverty line (as such term is defined in section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2)), including any revision required by such section) that—

“(A) in the case of a family of less than 4 individuals, is applicable to a family of the size involved; and

“(B) in the case of a family of 4 or more individuals, is applicable to a family of 4 individuals.”.

(c) PROGRAM REPEALS.—

(1) STATE DEPENDENT CARE GRANTS.—Subchapter E of chapter 8 of subtitle A of title VI of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (42 U.S.C. 9871 et seq.) is repealed.

(2) CHILD DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATE SCHOLARSHIP ASSISTANCE ACT.—The Child Development Associate Scholarship Assistance Act of 1985 (42 U.S.C. 10901 et seq.) is repealed.

TITLE IV—ENDING THE CYCLE OF INTERGENERATIONAL DEPENDENCY

SEC. 401. SUPERVISED LIVING ARRANGEMENTS FOR MINORS.

Section 402(c), as added by section 101(a), is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(8) SUPERVISED LIVING ARRANGEMENTS FOR MINORS.—The State plan shall provide that—

“(A) except as provided in subparagraph (B), in the case of any individual who is under age 18 and has never married, and who has a needy child in his or her care (or is pregnant and is eligible for temporary employment assistance under the State plan)—

“(i) such individual may receive such assistance for the individual and such child (or for herself in the case of a pregnant woman) only if such individual and child (or such pregnant woman) reside in a place of residence maintained by a parent, legal guardian, or other adult relative of such individual as such parent’s, guardian’s, or adult relative’s own home; and

“(ii) such assistance (where possible) shall be provided to the parent, legal guardian, or other adult relative on behalf of such individual and child; and

“(B)(i) in the case of an individual described in clause (ii)—

“(1) the State agency shall assist such individual in locating an appropriate adult-supervised supportive living arrangement taking into consideration the needs and concerns of the individual, unless the State agency determines that the individual’s current living arrangement is appropriate, and thereafter shall require that the individual (and child, if any) reside in such living arrangement as a condition of the continued receipt of assistance under the plan (or in an alternative appropriate arrangement, should circumstances change and the current arrangement cease to be appropriate), or

“(II) if the State agency is unable, after making diligent efforts, to locate any such appropriate living arrangement, the State agency shall provide for comprehensive case management, monitoring, and other social services consistent with the best interests of the individual (and child) while living independently (as determined by the State agency); and

“(ii) for purposes of clause (i), an individual is described in this clause if—

“(1) such individual has no parent or legal guardian of his or her own who is living and whose whereabouts are known;

“(II) no living parent or legal guardian of such individual allows the individual to live in the home of such parent or guardian;

“(III) the State agency determines that the physical or emotional health of such individual or any needy child of the individual would be jeopardized if such individual and such needy child lived in the same residence with such individual’s own parent or legal guardian; or

“(IV) the State agency otherwise determines (in accordance with regulations issued by the Secretary) that it is in the best interest of the needy child to waive the requirement of subparagraph (A) with respect to such individual.”.

SEC. 402. REINFORCING FAMILIES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title XX (42 U.S.C. 1397–1397e) is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“SEC. 2008. ADULT-SUPERVISED GROUP HOMES.

“(a) ENTITLEMENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any payment under sections 2002 and 2007, beginning with fiscal year 1996, each State shall be entitled to funds under this section for each fiscal year for the establishment, operation, and support of adult-supervised group homes for custodial parents under age 18 (or age 19, at the option of the State) and their children.

“(2) PAYMENT TO STATES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each State shall be entitled to payment under this section for each fiscal year in an amount equal to its allotment (determined in accordance with subsection (b)) for such fiscal year, to be used by such State for the purposes set forth in paragraph (1).

“(B) TRANSFERS OF FUNDS.—The Secretary shall make payments in accordance with section 6503 of title 31, United States Code, to each State from its allotment for use under this title.

“(C) USE.—Payments to a State from its allotment for any fiscal year must be expended by the State in such fiscal year or in the succeeding fiscal year.

“(D) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—A State may use a portion of the amounts described in subparagraph (A) for the purpose of purchasing technical assistance from public or private entities if the State determines that such assistance is required in developing, implementing, or administering the program funded under this section.

“(3) ADULT-SUPERVISED GROUP HOME.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘adult-supervised group home’ means an entity that provides custodial parents under age 18 (or age 19, at the option of the State) and their children with a supportive and supervised living arrangement in which such parents are required to learn parenting skills, including child development, family budgeting, health and nutrition, and other skills to promote their long-term economic independence and the well-being of their children. An adult-supervised group home may also serve as a network center for other supportive services that are available in the community.

“(b) ALLOTMENT.—

“(1) CERTAIN JURISDICTIONS.—The allotment for any fiscal year to each of the jurisdictions of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to the amount specified under paragraph (3) as the allotment that the jurisdiction receives under section 2003(a) for the fiscal year bears to the total amount specified for such fiscal year under section 2003(c).

“(2) OTHER STATES.—The allotment for any fiscal year for each State other than the jurisdictions of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands shall be an amount which bears the same ratio to—

“(A) the amount specified under paragraph (3), reduced by

“(B) the total amount allotted to those jurisdictions for that fiscal year under paragraph (1), as the allotment that the State receives under section 2003(b) for the fiscal year bears to the total amount specified for such fiscal year under section 2003(c).

“(3) AMOUNT SPECIFIED.—The amount specified for purposes of paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be $30,000,000 for fiscal year 1997 and each subsequent fiscal year.

“(c) LOCAL INVOLVEMENT.—Each State shall seek local involvement from the community in any area in which an adult-supervised group home receiving funds pursuant to this section is to be established. In determining criteria for targeting funds received under this section, each State shall evaluate the community's commitment to the establishment and planning of the home.

“(d) LIMITATIONS ON THE USE OF FUNDS.—

“(1) CONSTRUCTION.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), funds made available under this section may not be used by the State, or any other person with which the State makes arrangements to carry out the purposes of this section, for the purchase or improvement of land, or the purchase, construction, or permanent improvement (other than minor remodeling) of any building or other facility.

“(2) WAIVER.—The Secretary may waive the limitation contained in paragraph (1) upon the State's request for such a waiver if the Secretary finds that the request describes extraordinary circumstances to justify the waiver and that permitting the waiver will contribute to the State's ability to carry out the purposes of this section.

“(e) TREATMENT OF INDIAN TRIBES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—An Indian tribe may apply to the Secretary to establish, operate, and support adult-supervised group homes for custodial parents under age 18 (or age 19, at the option of the State) and their children in accordance with an application procedure to be determined by the Secretary. Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the provisions of this section shall apply to Indian tribes receiving funds under this subsection in the same manner and to the same extent as the other provisions of this section apply to States.

“(2) ALLOTMENT.—If the Secretary approves an Indian tribe's application, the Secretary shall allot to such tribe for a fiscal year an amount which the Secretary determines is the Indian tribe's fair and equitable share of the amount specified under paragraph (3) for all Indian tribes with applications approved under this subsection (based on allotment factors to be determined by the Secretary). The Secretary shall determine a minimum allotment amount for all Indian tribes with applications approved under this subsection. Each Indian tribe with an application approved under this subsection shall be entitled to such minimum allotment.

“(3) AMOUNT SPECIFIED.—The amount specified under this paragraph for all Indian tribes with applications approved under this subsection is $3,000,000 for fiscal year 1997 and each subsequent fiscal year.

“(4) INDIAN TRIBE DEFINED.—For purposes of this section, the term ‘Indian tribe’ means any Indian tribe, band, nation, pueblo, or other organized group or community, including any Alaska Native entity which is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indian tribes because of their status as Indians.”

(b) RECEIPT OF PAYMENTS BY ADULT-SUPERVISED GROUP HOMES.—Section 402(c)(8)(A)(ii), as added by section 401(a), is amended by striking “or other adult relative” and inserting “other adult relative, or adult-supervised group home receiving funds under section 2008”.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS ON USE OF GOVERNMENT SURPLUS PROPERTY.—Not later than 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, after consultation with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and the Administrator of the General Services Administration, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit recommendations to the Congress on the extent to which surplus properties of the United States Government may be used for the establishment of adult-supervised group homes receiving funds under section 2008 of the Social Security Act, as added by this section.

SEC. 403. REQUIRED COMPLETION OF HIGH SCHOOL OR OTHER TRAINING FOR TEENAGE PARENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 403(b)(4), as added by section 101(a), is amended—

(1) by inserting “(A)” after “(4)”; and

(2) by inserting at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(B) In the case of a client who is a custodial parent who is under age 18 (or age 19, at the option of the State), has not successfully completed a high-school education (or its equivalent), and is required to participate in the Work First program (including an individual who would otherwise be exempt from participation in the program), provides that—

“(i) such parent participate in—

“(I) educational activities directed toward the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent on a full-time (as defined by the educational provider) basis; or

“(II) an alternative educational or training program on a full-time (as defined by the provider) basis; and

“(ii) child care be provided in accordance with section 405(b) with respect to the family.”

(b) STATE OPTION TO PROVIDE ADDITIONAL INCENTIVES AND PENALTIES TO ENCOURAGE TEEN PARENTS TO COMPLETE HIGH SCHOOL AND PARTICIPATE IN PARENTING ACTIVITIES.—

(1) STATE PLAN.—Section 403(b)(4), as amended by subsection (a), is amended by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

“(C) At the option of the State, provides that the client who is a custodial parent or pregnant woman who is under age 19 (or age 21, at the option of the State) participate in a program of monetary incentives and penalties which—

“(i) may, at the option of the State, require full-time participation by such custodial parent or pregnant woman in secondary school or equivalent educational activities, or participation in a course or program leading to a skills certificate found appropriate by the State agency or parenting education activities (or any combination of such activities and secondary education);

“(ii) shall require that the needs of such custodial parent or pregnant woman be reviewed and the program assure that, either in the initial development or revision of such individual's parent empowerment contract, there will be included a description of the services that will be provided to the client and the way in which the program and service providers will coordinate with the educational or skills training activities in which the client is participating;

“(iii) shall provide monetary incentives (to be treated as assistance under the State plan) for more than minimally acceptable performance of required educational activities;

“(iv) shall provide penalties (which may be those required by subsection (c) or, with the approval of the Secretary, other monetary penalties that the State finds will better achieve the objectives of the program) for less than minimally acceptable performance of required activities;

“(v) shall provide that when a monetary incentive is payable because of the more than minimally acceptable performance of required educational activities by a custodial parent, the incentive be paid directly to such parent, regardless of whether the State agency makes payment of assistance under the State plan directly to such parent; and

“(vi) for purposes of any other Federal or federally-assisted program based on need, shall not consider any monetary incentive paid under this subsection as income in determining a family's eligibility for or amount of benefits under such program, and if assistance is reduced by reason of a penalty under this subparagraph, such other program shall treat the family involved as if no such penalty has been applied.”

SEC. 404. DRUG TREATMENT AND COUNSELING AS PART OF THE WORK FIRST PROGRAM.

Section 403(b)(6), as added by section 101(a), is amended—

(1) by inserting “(A)” after “(6)”; and

(2) by inserting at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(B) In the case of a client who is a custodial parent and who is under age 18 (or age 19, at the option of the State) (including an individual who would otherwise be exempt from participation in the program), whose contract reflects the need for treatment for substance abuse, requires such individual to participate in substance abuse treatment if appropriate treatment is available.”

SEC. 405. TARGETING YOUTH AT RISK OF TEENAGE PREGNANCY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 406(e), as added by section 101(a), is amended to read as follows:

“(e) OUT-OF-WEDLOCK AND TEEN PREGNANCY PROGRAMS.—

“(1) OUT-OF-WEDLOCK PREGNANCIES.—The State plan shall provide for the development of a program to reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies, which may include providing unmarried mothers and unmarried fathers with services which will help them—

“(A) avoid subsequent pregnancies, and

“(B) provide adequate care to their children.

“(2) TEEN PREGNANCIES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The State plan shall provide that the State agency may, to the extent it determines resources are available, provide for the operation of projects to reduce teenage pregnancy. Such projects shall be operated by eligible entities that have submitted applications described in subparagraph (C) that have been approved in accordance with subparagraph (D).

“(B) ELIGIBLE ENTITIES.—For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘eligible entity’ includes State agencies, local agencies, publicly supported organizations, private nonprofit organizations, and consortia of such entities.

“(C) APPLICATIONS.—An application described in this subparagraph shall—

- “(i) describe the project;
- “(ii) include an endorsement of the project by the chief elected official of the jurisdiction in which the project is to be located;
- “(iii) demonstrate strong local commitment and local involvement in the planning and implementation of the project; and
- “(iv) be submitted in such manner and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“(D) APPROVAL.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), the chief executive officer of a State may approve an application under this subparagraph based on selection criteria (to be determined by the chief executive officer).

“(ii) PREFERENCES.—Preference in approving a project shall be accorded to be projects that target—

- “(I) both young men and women;
- “(II) areas with high teenage pregnancy rates; or
- “(III) areas with a high incidence of individuals receiving temporary employment assistance.

“(E) INDIAN TRIBES.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—An Indian tribe may apply to the Secretary to provide for the operation of projects to reduce teenage pregnancy in accordance with an application procedure to be determined by the Secretary. Except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph, the provisions of this paragraph shall apply to Indian tribes receiving funds under this paragraph in the same manner and to the same extent as the other provisions of this paragraph apply to States.

“(ii) LIMITATION.—The Secretary shall limit the number of applications approved under this subparagraph to ensure that payments under section 413(d) to Indian tribes with approved applications would not result in payments of less than a minimum payment amount (to be determined by the Secretary).

“(iii) INDIAN TRIBE DEFINED.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘Indian tribe’ means any Indian tribe, band, nation, pueblo, or other organized group or community, including any Alaska Native entity which is recognized as eligible for the special programs and services provided by the United States to Indian tribes because of their status as Indians.

“(F) PROJECT LENGTH.—A project conducted under this paragraph shall be conducted for not less than 3 years.

“(G) STUDY.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall conduct a study in accordance with clause (ii) to determine the relative effectiveness of the different approaches for preventing teenage pregnancy utilized in the projects conducted under this paragraph.

“(ii) REQUIREMENTS.—The study required under clause (i) shall—

- “(I) be based on data gathered from projects conducted in 5 States chosen by the Secretary from among the States in which projects under this paragraph are operated;
- “(II) use specific outcome measures (determined by the Secretary) to test the effectiveness of the projects;
- “(III) use experimental and control groups (to the extent possible) that are composed of a random sample of participants in the projects; and “(IV) be conducted in accordance with an experimental design determined by the Secretary to result in a comparable design among all projects.

“(iii) INTERIM DATA.—Each eligible entity conducting a project under this paragraph shall provide to the Secretary in such form and with such frequency as the Secretary requires interim data from the projects conducted under this paragraph. The Secretary shall report to the Congress annually on the progress of such projects and shall, not later than January 1, 2003, submit to the Congress a final report on the study required under clause (i).

“(iv) AUTHORIZATION.—There are authorized to be appropriated $500,000 for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2002 for the purpose of conducting the study required under clause (i).”

(b) PAYMENT.—Section 413, as added by section 101(a), is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(d) FUNDING FOR TEEN PREGNANCY PROJECTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any payment under subsection (a), each State shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for each of fiscal years 1996 through 2002 of an amount equal to the lesser of—

“(A) 75 percent of the expenditures by the State in providing for the operation of the projects under section 406(e)(2), and in administering the projects under such section; or “(B) the limitation determined under paragraph (2) with respect to the State for the fiscal year.

“(2) LIMITATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to a State for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to $30,000,000 as the population with an income below the poverty line (as such term is defined in section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2)), including any revision required by such section) in the State in the second preceding fiscal year bears to such population residing in the United States in the second preceding fiscal year.

“(B) ADJUSTMENT.—If the limitation determined under subparagraph (A) with respect to a State for a fiscal year exceeds the amount paid to the State under this subsection for the fiscal year, the limitation determined under this paragraph with respect to the State for the immediately succeeding fiscal year shall be increased by the amount of such excess.

“(3) INDIAN TRIBES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, for purposes of this subsection, an Indian tribe with an application approved under section 406(e)(2)(E) shall be entitled to payment from the Secretary for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2002 of an amount equal to the lesser of—

“(i) 75 percent of the expenditures by the Indian tribe in providing for the operation of the projects under section 406(e)(2)(E), and in administering the projects under such section; or “(ii) the limitation determined under subparagraph (B) with respect to the Indian tribe for the fiscal year.

“(B) LIMITATION.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The limitation determined under this subparagraph with respect to an Indian tribe for any fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to $2,000,000 as the population with an income below the poverty line (as such term is defined in section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2)), including any revision required by such section) in the Indian tribe in the second preceding fiscal year bears to such population of all Indian tribes with applications approved under section 406(e)(2)(E) in the second preceding fiscal year.

“(ii) ADJUSTMENT.—If the limitation determined under clause (i) with respect to an Indian tribe for a fiscal year exceeds the amount paid to the Indian tribe under this paragraph for the fiscal year, the limitation determined under this subparagraph with respect to the Indian tribe for the immediately succeeding fiscal year shall be increased by the amount of such excess.

“(4) USE OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Amounts appropriated for a fiscal year to carry out this part shall be made available for payments under this subsection for such fiscal year.”

SEC. 406. NATIONAL CLEARINGHOUSE ON TEEN-AGE PREGNANCY.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of Education, the Secretary of Health and Human Services, and the Chief Executive Officer of the Corporation for National and Community Service shall establish a national center for the collection and provision of information that relates to adolescent pregnancy prevention programs, to be known as the “National Clearinghouse on Teenage Pregnancy Prevention Programs”.

(b) FUNCTIONS.—The national center established under subsection (a) shall serve as a national information and data clearinghouse, and as a material development source for adolescent pregnancy prevention programs. Such center shall—

(1) develop and maintain a system for disseminating information on all types of adolescent pregnancy prevention programs and on the state of adolescent pregnancy prevention program development, including information concerning the most effective model programs;

(2) identify model programs representing the various types of adolescent pregnancy prevention programs;

(3) develop networks of adolescent pregnancy prevention programs for the purpose of sharing and disseminating information;

(4) develop technical assistance materials to assist other entities in establishing and improving adolescent pregnancy prevention programs;

(5) participate in activities designed to encourage and enhance public media campaigns on the issue of adolescent pregnancy; and

(6) conduct such other activities as the responsible Federal officials find will assist in developing and carrying out programs or activities to reduce adolescent pregnancy.

(c) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out the purposes of this section.

SEC. 407. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), the amendments made by this title shall be effective with respect to calendar quarters beginning on or after October 1, 1996.

(b) SPECIAL RULE.—In the case of a State that the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines requires State legislation (other than legislation appropriating funds) in order to meet the additional requirements imposed by the amendments made by this title, the State shall not be regarded as failing to comply with the requirements of such amendments before the first day of the first calendar quarter beginning after the close of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of enactment of this Act. For purposes of this subsection, in the case of a State that has a 2-year legislative session, each year of the session shall be treated as a separate regular session of the State legislature.

TITLE V—INTERSTATE CHILD SUPPORT RESPONSIBILITY

SECTION 500. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Child Support Improvement Act of 1996".

Subtitle A—Eligibility for Services; Distribution of Payments

SEC. 501. STATE OBLIGATION TO PROVIDE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT SERVICES.

(a) STATE PLAN REQUIREMENTS.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (4) and inserting the following new paragraph:

"(4) provide that the State will—

"(A) provide services relating to the establishment of paternity or the establishment, modification, or enforcement of child support obligations, as appropriate, under the plan with respect to—

"(i) each child for whom (I) assistance is provided under the State program funded under part A of this title, (II) benefits or services for foster care maintenance are provided under the State program funded under part E of this title, or (III) medical assistance is provided under the State plan approved under title XIX, unless, in accordance with paragraph (29), good cause and other exceptions exist;

"(ii) any other child, if an individual applies for such services with respect to the child; and

"(B) enforce any support obligation established with respect to—

"(i) a child with respect to whom the State provides services under the plan; or

"(ii) the custodial parent of such a child.";

and

(2) in paragraph (6)—

(A) by striking "provide that" and inserting "provide that—";

(B) by striking subparagraph (A) and inserting the following new subparagraph:

"(A) services under the plan shall be made available to residents of other States on the same terms as to residents of the State submitting the plan;"

(C) in subparagraph (B), by inserting "on individuals not receiving assistance under any State program funded under part A" after "such services shall be imposed";

(D) in each of subparagraphs (B), (C), (D), and (E)—

(i) by indenting the subparagraph in the same manner as, and aligning the left margin of the subparagraph with the left margin of, the matter inserted by subparagraph (B) of this paragraph; and

(ii) by striking the final comma and inserting a semicolon; and

(E) in subparagraph (E), by indenting each of clauses (i) and (ii) 2 additional ems.

(b) CONTINUATION OF SERVICES FOR FAMILIES CEASING TO RECEIVE ASSISTANCE UNDER THE STATE PROGRAM FUNDED UNDER PART A.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654) is amended—

(1) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (23);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (24) and inserting "; and"; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (24) the following new paragraph:

"(25) provide that if a family with respect to which services are provided under the plan ceases to receive assistance under the State program funded under part A, the State shall provide appropriate notice to the family and continue to provide such services, subject to the same conditions and on the same basis as in the case of other individuals to whom services are furnished under the plan, except that an application or other request to continue services shall not be required of such a family and paragraph (6)(B) shall not apply to the family."

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 452(b) (42 U.S.C. 652(b)) is amended by striking "454(6)" and inserting "454(4)".

(2) Section 452(g)(2)(A) (42 U.S.C. 652(g)(2)(A)) is amended by striking "454(6)" each place it appears and inserting "454(4)(A)(ii)".

(3) Section 466(a)(3)(B) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)(3)(B)) is amended by striking "in the case of overdue support which a State has agreed to collect under section 454(6)" and inserting "in any other case".

(4) Section 466(e) (42 U.S.C. 666(e)) is amended by striking "paragraph (4) or (6) of section 454" and inserting "section 454(4)".

SEC. 502. DISTRIBUTION OF CHILD SUPPORT COLLECTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 457 (42 U.S.C. 657) is amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 457. DISTRIBUTION OF COLLECTED SUPPORT.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (e), an amount collected on behalf of a family as support by a State pursuant to a plan approved under this part shall be distributed as follows:

"(1) FAMILIES RECEIVING ASSISTANCE.—In the case of a family receiving assistance from the State, the State shall—

"(A) pay to the Federal Government the Federal share of the amount so collected; and

"(B) retain, or distribute to the family, the State share of the amount so collected.

"(2) FAMILIES THAT FORMERLY RECEIVED ASSISTANCE.—In the case of a family that formerly received assistance from the State:

"(A) CURRENT SUPPORT PAYMENTS.—To the extent that the amount so collected does not exceed the amount required to be paid to the family for the month in which collected, the State shall distribute the amount so collected to the family.

"(B) PAYMENTS OF ARREARAGES.—To the extent that the amount so collected exceeds the amount required to be paid to the family for the month in which collected, the State shall distribute the amount so collected as follows:

"(i) DISTRIBUTION OF ARREARAGES THAT ACCRUED AFTER THE FAMILY CEASED TO RECEIVE ASSISTANCE.—

"(I) PRE-OCTOBER 1997.—Except as provided in subclause (II), the provisions of this section (other than subsection (b)(1)) as in effect and applied on the day before the date of the enactment of section 502 of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996 shall apply with respect to the distribution of support arrearages that—

"(aa) accrued after the family ceased to receive assistance, and

"(bb) are collected before October 1, 1997.

"(II) POST-SEPTEMBER 1997.—With respect to the amount so collected on or after October 1, 1997 (or before such date, at the option of the State)—

"(aa) IN GENERAL.—The State shall first distribute the amount so collected (other than any amount described in clause (iv)) to the family to the extent necessary to satisfy any support arrearages with respect to the family that accrued after the family ceased to receive assistance from the State.

"(bb) REIMBURSEMENT OF GOVERNMENTS FOR ASSISTANCE PROVIDED TO THE FAMILY.—After the application of division (aa) and clause (ii)(II)(aa) with respect to the amount so collected, the State shall retain the State share of the amount so collected, and pay to the Federal Government the Federal share (as defined in subsection (c)(2)) of the amount so collected, but only to the extent necessary to reimburse amounts paid to the family as assistance by the State.

"(cc) DISTRIBUTION OF THE REMAINDER TO THE FAMILY.—To the extent that neither division (aa) nor division (bb) applies to the amount so collected, the State shall distribute the amount to the family.

"(ii) DISTRIBUTION OF ARREARAGES THAT ACCRUED BEFORE THE FAMILY RECEIVED ASSISTANCE.—

"(I) PRE-OCTOBER 2000.—Except as provided in subclause (II), the provisions of this section (other than subsection (b)(1)) as in effect and applied on the day before the date of the enactment of section 502 of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996 shall apply with respect to the distribution of support arrearages that—

"(aa) accrued before the family received assistance, and

"(bb) are collected before October 1, 2000.

"(II) POST-SEPTEMBER 2000.—Unless, based on the report required by paragraph (4), the Congress determines otherwise, with respect to the amount so collected on or after October 1, 2000 (or before such date, at the option of the State)—

"(aa) IN GENERAL.—The State shall first distribute the amount so collected (other than any amount described in clause (iv)) to the family to the extent necessary to satisfy any support arrearages with respect to the family that accrued before the family received assistance from the State.

"(bb) REIMBURSEMENT OF GOVERNMENTS FOR ASSISTANCE PROVIDED TO THE FAMILY.—After the application of clause (i)(II)(aa) and division (aa) with respect to the amount so collected, the State shall retain the State share of the amount so collected, and pay to the Federal Government the Federal share (as defined in subsection (c)(2)) of the amount so collected, but only to the extent necessary to reimburse amounts paid to the family as assistance by the State.

"(cc) DISTRIBUTION OF THE REMAINDER TO THE FAMILY.—To the extent that neither division (aa) nor division (bb) applies to the amount so collected, the State shall distribute the amount to the family.

"(iii) DISTRIBUTION OF ARREARAGES THAT ACCRUED WHILE THE FAMILY RECEIVED ASSISTANCE.—In the case of a family described in this subparagraph, the provisions of paragraph (1) shall apply with respect to the distribution of support arrearages that accrued while the family received assistance.

"(iv) AMOUNTS COLLECTED PURSUANT TO SECTION 464.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, any amount of support collected pursuant to section 464 shall be retained by the State to the extent past-due support has been assigned to the State as a condition of receiving assistance from the State, up to the amount necessary to reimburse the State for amounts paid to the family as assistance by the State. The State shall pay to the Federal Government the Federal share of the amounts so retained. To the extent the amount collected pursuant to section 464 exceeds the amount so retained, the State shall distribute the excess to the family.

"(v) ORDERING RULES FOR DISTRIBUTIONS.—For purposes of this subparagraph, unless an earlier effective date is required by this section, effective October 1, 2000, the State shall treat any support arrearages collected as accruing in the following order:

"(I) To the period after the family ceased to receive assistance.

"(II) To the period before the family received assistance.

"(III) To the period while the family was receiving assistance.

"(3) FAMILIES THAT NEVER RECEIVED ASSISTANCE.—In the case of any other family, the State shall distribute the amount so collected to the family.

"(4) STUDY AND REPORT.—Not later than October 1, 1998, the Secretary shall report to the Congress the Secretary's findings with respect to—

“(A) whether the distribution of post-assistance arrearages to families has been effective in moving people off of welfare and keeping them off of welfare;

“(B) whether early implementation of a pre-assistance arrearage program by some States has been effective in moving people off of welfare and keeping them off of welfare;

“(C) what the overall impact has been of the amendments made by the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996 with respect to child support enforcement in moving people off of welfare and keeping them off of welfare; and “(D) based on the information and data the Secretary has obtained, what changes, if any, should be made in the policies related to the distribution of child support arrearages.

“(b) CONTINUATION OF ASSIGNMENTS.—Any rights to support obligations, which were assigned to a State as a condition of receiving assistance from the State under part A and which were in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996, shall remain assigned after such date.

“(c) DEFINITIONS.—As used in subsection (a):

“(1) ASSISTANCE.—The term ‘assistance from the State’ means—

“(A) assistance under the State program funded under part A or under the State plan approved under part A of this title (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996); or “(B) benefits under the State plan approved under part E of this title (as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996).

“(2) FEDERAL SHARE.—The term ‘Federal share’ means that portion of the amount collected resulting from the application of the Federal medical assistance percentage in effect for the fiscal year in which the amount is collected.

“(3) FEDERAL MEDICAL ASSISTANCE PERCENTAGE.—The term ‘Federal medical assistance percentage’ means—

“(A) the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1118), in the case of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa; or “(B) the Federal medical assistance percentage (as defined in section 1905(b)) in the case of any other State.

“(4) STATE SHARE.—The term ‘State share’ means 100 percent minus the Federal share.

“(d) HOLD HARMLESS PROVISION.—If the amounts collected which could be retained by the State in the fiscal year (to the extent necessary to reimburse the State for amounts paid to families as assistance by the State) are less than the State share of the amounts collected in fiscal year 1995 (determined in accordance with section 457 as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996), the State share for the fiscal year shall be an amount equal to the State share in fiscal year 1995.

“(e) GAP PAYMENTS NOT SUBJECT TO DISTRIBUTION UNDER THIS SECTION.—This section shall not apply to any amount collected on behalf of a family as support by a State pursuant to a plan approved under this part if such amount would have been distributed to the family by the State under section 402(a)(28), as in effect and applied on the day before the date of the enactment of section 522 of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996.”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 464(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. 664(a)(1)) is amended by striking “section 457(b)(4) or (d)(3)” and inserting “section 457”.

(2) Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1)—

(i) by striking “(11)” and inserting “(11)(A)”; and

(ii) by inserting after the semicolon “and”;

(B) by redesignating paragraph (12) as subparagraph (B) of paragraph (11).

(c) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall be effective on July 1, 1996, or earlier at the State's option.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—The amendments made by subsection (b)(2) shall become effective on the date of the enactment of this title.

SEC. 503. PRIVACY SAFEGUARDS.

(a) STATE PLAN REQUIREMENT.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by section 501(b) of this title, is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (24);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (25) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (25) the following new paragraph:

“(26) will have in effect safeguards, applicable to all confidential information handled by the State agency, that are designed to protect the privacy rights of the parties, including—

“(A) safeguards against unauthorized use or disclosure of information relating to proceedings or actions to establish paternity, or to establish or enforce support;

“(B) prohibitions against the release of information on the whereabouts of 1 party to another party against whom a protective order with respect to the former party has been entered; and

“(C) prohibitions against the release of information on the whereabouts of 1 party to another party if the State has reason to believe that the release of the information may result in physical or emotional harm to the former party.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on October 1, 1997.

SEC. 504. RIGHTS TO NOTIFICATION OF HEARINGS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by section 502(b)(2) of this title, is amended by inserting after paragraph (11) the following new paragraph:

“(12) provide for the establishment of procedures to require the State to provide individuals who are applying for or receiving services under the State plan, or who are parties to cases in which services are being provided under the State plan—

“(A) with notice of all proceedings in which support obligations might be established or modified; and

“(B) with a copy of any order establishing or modifying a child support obligation, or (in the case of a petition for modification) a notice of determination that there should be no change in the amount of the child support award, within 14 days after issuance of such order or determination.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on October 1, 1997.

Subtitle B—Locate and Case Tracking

SEC. 511. STATE CASE REGISTRY.

Section 454A, as added by section 544(a)(2) of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

“(e) STATE CASE REGISTRY.—

“(1) CONTENTS.—The automated system required by this section shall include a registry (which shall be known as the ‘State case registry’) that contains records with respect to—

“(A) each case in which services are being provided by the State agency under the State plan approved under this part; and “(B) each support order established or modified in the State on or after October 1, 1998.

“(2) LINKING OF LOCAL REGISTRIES.—The State case registry may be established by linking local case registries of support orders through an automated information network, subject to this section.

“(3) USE OF STANDARDIZED DATA ELEMENTS.—Such records shall use standardized data elements for both parents (such as names, social security numbers and other uniform identification numbers, dates of birth, and case identification numbers), and contain such other information (such as on case status) as the Secretary may require.

“(4) PAYMENT RECORDS.—Each case record in the State case registry with respect to which services are being provided under the State plan approved under this part and with respect to which a support order has been established shall include a record of—

“(A) the amount of monthly (or other periodic) support owed under the order, and other amounts (including arrearages, interest or late payment penalties, and fees) due or overdue under the order;

“(B) any amount described in subparagraph (A) that has been collected;

“(C) the distribution of such collected amounts;

“(D) the birth date of any child for whom the order requires the provision of support; and “(E) the amount of any lien imposed with respect to the order pursuant to section 466(a)(4).

“(5) UPDATING AND MONITORING.—The State agency operating the automated system required by this section shall promptly establish and update, maintain, and regularly monitor, case records in the State case registry with respect to which services are being provided under the State plan approved under this part, on the basis of—

“(A) information on administrative actions and administrative and judicial proceedings and orders relating to paternity and support;

“(B) information obtained from comparison with Federal, State, or local sources of information;

“(C) information on support collections and distributions; and “(D) any other relevant information.

“(f) INFORMATION COMPARISONS AND OTHER DISCLOSURES OF INFORMATION.—The State shall use the automated system required by this section to extract information from (at such times, and in such standardized format or formats, as may be required by the Secretary), to share and compare information with, and to receive information from, other data bases and information comparison services, in order to obtain (or provide) information necessary to enable the State agency (or the Secretary or other State or Federal agencies) to carry out this part, subject to section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. Such information comparison activities shall include the following:

“(1) FEDERAL CASE REGISTRY OF CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS.—Furnishing to the Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders established under section 453(h) (and update as necessary, with information including notice of expiration of orders) the minimum amount of information on child support cases recorded in the State case registry that is necessary to operate the registry (as specified by the Secretary in regulations).

“(2) FEDERAL PARENT LOCATOR SERVICE.—Exchanging information with the Federal Parent Locator Service for the purposes specified in section 453.

“(3) TEMPORARY FAMILY ASSISTANCE AND MEDICAID AGENCIES.—Exchanging information with State agencies (of the State and of other States) administering programs funded under part A, programs operated under State plans approved under title XIX, and other programs designated by the Secretary, as necessary to perform State agency responsibilities under this part and under such programs.

“(4) INTRASTATE AND INTERSTATE INFORMATION COMPARISONS.—Exchanging information with other agencies of the State, agencies of other States, and interstate information networks, as necessary and appropriate to carry out (or assist other States to carry out) the purposes of this part.”.

SEC. 512. COLLECTION AND DISBURSEMENT OF SUPPORT PAYMENTS.

(a) STATE PLAN REQUIREMENT.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 501(b) and 503(a) of this title, is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (25);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (26) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (26) the following new paragraph:

“(27) provide that, on and after October 1, 1998, the State agency will—

“(A) operate a State disbursement unit in accordance with section 454B; and

“(B) have sufficient State staff (consisting of State employees) and (at State option) contractors reporting directly to the State agency to—

“(i) monitor and enforce support collections through the unit in cases being enforced by the State pursuant to section 454(4) (including carrying out the automated data processing responsibilities described in section 454A(g)); and

“(ii) take the actions described in section 466(c)(1) in appropriate cases.”.

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF STATE DISBURSEMENT UNIT.—Part D of title IV (42 U.S.C. 651-669), as amended by section 544(a)(2) of this title, is amended by inserting after section 454A the following new section:

“SEC. 454B. COLLECTION AND DISBURSEMENT OF SUPPORT PAYMENTS.

“(a) STATE DISBURSEMENT UNIT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In order for a State to meet the requirements of this section, the State agency must establish and operate a unit (which shall be known as the ‘State disbursement unit’) for the collection and disbursement of payments under support orders—

“(A) in all cases being enforced by the State pursuant to section 454(4); and

“(B) in all cases not being enforced by the State under this part in which the support order is initially issued in the State on or after January 1, 1994, and in which the wages of the noncustodial parent are subject to withholding pursuant to section 466(a)(8)(B).

“(2) OPERATION.—The State disbursement unit shall be operated—

“(A) directly by the State agency (or 2 or more State agencies under a regional cooperative agreement), or (to the extent appropriate) by a contractor responsible directly to the State agency; and

“(B) except in cases described in paragraph (1)(B), in coordination with the automated system established by the State pursuant to section 454A.

“(3) LINKING OF LOCAL DISBURSEMENT UNITS.—The State disbursement unit may be established by linking local disbursement units through an automated information network, subject to this section, if the Secretary agrees that the system will not cost more nor take more time to establish or operate than a centralized system. In addition, employers shall be given 1 location to which income withholding is sent.

“(b) REQUIRED PROCEDURES.—The State disbursement unit shall use automated procedures, electronic processes, and computer-driven technology to the maximum extent feasible, efficient, and economical, for the collection and disbursement of support payments, including procedures—

“(1) for receipt of payments from parents, employers, and other States, and for disbursements to custodial parents and other obligees, the State agency, and the agencies of other States;

“(2) for accurate identification of payments;

“(3) to ensure prompt disbursement of the custodial parent’s share of any payment; and

“(4) to furnish to any parent, upon request, timely information on the current status of support payments under an order requiring payments to be made by or to the parent.

“(c) TIMING OF DISBURSEMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the State disbursement unit shall distribute all amounts payable under section 457(a) within 2 business days after receipt from the employer or other source of periodic income, if sufficient information identifying the payee is provided.

“(2) PERMISSIVE RETENTION OF ARREARAGES.—The State disbursement unit may delay the distribution of collections toward arrearages until the resolution of any timely appeal with respect to such arrearages.

“(d) BUSINESS DAY DEFINED.—As used in this section, the term ‘business day’ means a day on which State offices are open for regular business.”.

(c) USE OF AUTOMATED SYSTEM.—Section 454A, as added by section 544(a)(2) and as amended by section 511 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(g) COLLECTION AND DISTRIBUTION OF SUPPORT PAYMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The State shall use the automated system required by this section, to the maximum extent feasible, to assist and facilitate the collection and disbursement of support payments through the State disbursement unit operated under section 454B, through the performance of functions, including, at a minimum—

“(A) transmission of orders and notices to employers (and other debtors) for the withholding of wages and other income—

“(i) within 2 business days after receipt of notice of, and the income source subject to, such withholding from a court, another State, an employer, the Federal Parent Locator Service, or another source recognized by the State; and “(ii) using uniform formats prescribed by the Secretary;

“(B) ongoing monitoring to promptly identify failures to make timely payment of support; and

“(C) automatic use of enforcement procedures (including procedures authorized pursuant to section 466(c)) if payments are not timely made.

“(2) BUSINESS DAY DEFINED.—As used in paragraph (1), the term ‘business day’ means a day on which State offices are open for regular business.”.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall become effective on October 1, 1998.

(2) LIMITED EXCEPTION TO UNIT HANDLING PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding section 454B(b)(1) of the Social Security Act, as added by this section, any State which, as of the date of the enactment of this title, processes the receipt of child support payments through local courts, and, as of March 21, 1996, such courts were not funded under part D of title IV of the Social Security Act, may, at the option of the State, continue to process through September 30, 1999, such payments through such courts as processed such payments on or before such date of enactment.

SEC. 513. STATE DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES.

(a) STATE PLAN REQUIREMENT.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 501(b), 503(a) and 512(a) of this title, is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (26);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (27) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (27) the following new paragraph:

“(28) provide that, on and after October 1, 1997, the State will operate a State Directory of New Hires in accordance with section 453A.”.

(b) STATE DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES.—Part D of title IV (42 U.S.C. 651-669) is amended by inserting after section 453 the following new section:

“SEC. 453A. STATE DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES.

“(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—

“(A) REQUIREMENT FOR STATES THAT HAVE NO DIRECTORY.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), not later than October 1, 1997, each State shall establish an automated directory (to be known as the ‘State Directory of New Hires’) which shall contain information supplied in accordance with subsection

(b) by employers on each newly hired employee.

“(B) STATES WITH NEW HIRE REPORTING IN EXISTENCE.—A State which has a new hire reporting law in existence on the date of the enactment of this section may continue to operate under the State law, but the State must meet the requirements of subsection (g)(2) not later than October 1, 1997, and the requirements of this section (other than subsection (g)(2)) not later than October 1, 1998.

“(2) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section:

“(A) EMPLOYEE.—The term ‘employee’—

“(i) means an individual who is an employee within the meaning of chapter 24 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; and “(ii) does not include an employee of a Federal or State agency performing intelligence or counterintelligence functions, if the head of such agency has determined that reporting pursuant to paragraph (1) with respect to the employee could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission.

“(B) EMPLOYER.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘employer’ has the meaning given such term in section 3401(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and includes any governmental entity and any labor organization.

“(ii) LABOR ORGANIZATION.—The term ‘labor organization’ shall have the meaning given such term in section 2(5) of the National Labor Relations Act, and includes any entity (also known as a ‘hiring hall’) which is used by the organization and an employer to carry out requirements described in section 8(f)(3) of such Act of an agreement between the organization and the employer.

“(b) EMPLOYER INFORMATION.—

“(1) REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), each employer shall furnish to the Directory of New Hires of the State in which a newly hired employee works, a report that contains the name, address, and social security number of the employee, and the name and address of, and identifying number assigned under section 6109 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to, the employer.

“(B) MULTISTATE EMPLOYERS.—An employer that has employees who are employed in 2 or more States and that transmits reports magnetically or electronically may comply with subparagraph (A) by designating 1 State in which such employer has employees to which the employer will transmit the report described in subparagraph (A), and transmitting such report to such State. Any employer that transmits reports pursuant to this subparagraph shall notify the Secretary in writing as to which State such employer designates for the purpose of sending reports.

“(C) FEDERAL GOVERNMENT EMPLOYERS.—Any department, agency, or instrumentality of the United States shall comply with subparagraph (A) by transmitting the report described in subparagraph (A) to the National Directory of New Hires established pursuant to section 453.

“(2) TIMING OF REPORT.—Each State may provide the time within which the report required by paragraph (1) shall be made with respect to an employee, but such report shall be made—

“(A) not later than 20 days after the date the employer hires the employee; or

“(B) in the case of an employer transmitting reports magnetically or electronically, by 2 monthly transmissions (if necessary) not less than 12 days nor more than 16 days apart.

“(c) REPORTING FORMAT AND METHOD.—Each report required by subsection (b) shall be made on a W-4 form or, at the option of the employer, an equivalent form, and may be transmitted by 1st class mail, magnetically, or electronically.

“(d) CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES ON NON-COMPLYING EMPLOYERS.—The State shall have the option to set a State civil money penalty which shall be less than—

“(1) $25; or

“(2) $500 if, under State law, the failure is the result of a conspiracy between the employer and the employee to not supply the required report or to supply a false or incomplete report.

“(e) ENTRY OF EMPLOYER INFORMATION.—Information shall be entered into the data base maintained by the State Directory of New Hires within 5 business days of receipt from an employer pursuant to subsection (b).

“(f) INFORMATION COMPARISONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than May 1, 1998, an agency designated by the State shall, directly or by contract, conduct automated comparisons of the social security numbers reported by employers pursuant to subsection (b) and the social security numbers appearing in the records of the State case registry for cases being enforced under the State plan.

“(2) NOTICE OF MATCH.—When an information comparison conducted under paragraph (1) reveals a match with respect to the social security number of an individual required to provide support under a support order, the State Directory of New Hires shall provide the agency administering the State plan approved under this part of the appropriate State with the name, address, and social security number of the employee to whom the social security number is assigned, and the name and address of, and identifying number assigned under section 6109 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to, the employer.

“(g) TRANSMISSION OF INFORMATION.—

“(1) TRANSMISSION OF WAGE WITHHOLDING NOTICES TO EMPLOYERS.—Within 2 business days after the date information regarding a newly hired employee is entered into the State Directory of New Hires, the State agency enforcing the employee's child support obligation shall transmit a notice to the employer of the employee directing the employer to withhold from the wages of the employee an amount equal to the monthly (or other periodic) child support obligation (including any past due support obligation) of the employee, unless the employee's wages are not subject to withholding pursuant to section 466(b)(3).

“(2) TRANSMISSIONS TO THE NATIONAL DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES.—

“(A) NEW HIRE INFORMATION.—Within 3 business days after the date information regarding a newly hired employee is entered into the State Directory of New Hires, the State Directory of New Hires shall furnish the information to the National Directory of New Hires.

“(B) WAGE AND UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION INFORMATION.—The State Directory of New Hires shall, on a quarterly basis, furnish to the National Directory of New Hires extracts of the reports required under section 303(a)(6) to be made to the Secretary of Labor concerning the wages and unemployment compensation paid to individuals, by such dates, in such format, and containing such information as the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall specify in regulations.

“(3) BUSINESS DAY DEFINED.—As used in this subsection, the term ‘business day’ means a day on which State offices are open for regular business.

“(h) OTHER USES OF NEW HIRE INFORMATION.—

“(1) LOCATION OF CHILD SUPPORT OBLIGATIONS.—The agency administering the State plan approved under this part shall use information received pursuant to subsection (f)(2) to locate individuals for purposes of establishing paternity and establishing, modifying, and enforcing child support obligations.

“(2) VERIFICATION OF ELIGIBILITY FOR CERTAIN PROGRAMS.—A State agency responsible for administering a program specified in section 1137(b) shall have access to information reported by employers pursuant to subsection (b) of this section for purposes of verifying eligibility for the program.

“(3) ADMINISTRATION OF EMPLOYMENT SECURITY AND WORKERS' COMPENSATION.—State agencies operating employment security and workers' compensation programs shall have access to information reported by employers pursuant to subsection (b) for the purposes of administering such programs.”

(c) QUARTERLY WAGE REPORTING.—Section 1137(a)(3) (42 U.S.C. 1320b-7(a)(3)) is amended—

(1) by inserting “(including State and local governmental entities and labor organizations (as defined in section 453A(a)(2)(B)(ii))” after “employers”; and

(2) by inserting “, and except that no report shall be filed with respect to an employee of a State or local agency performing intelligence or counterintelligence functions, if the head of such agency has determined that filing such a report could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission” after “paragraph (2)”.
SEC. 514. AMENDMENTS CONCERNING INCOME WITHHOLDING.

(a) MANDATORY INCOME WITHHOLDING.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 466(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)(1)) is amended to read as follows:

“(1)(A) Procedures described in subsection (b) for the withholding from income of amounts payable as support in cases subject to enforcement under the State plan.

“(B) Procedures under which the wages of a person with a support obligation imposed by a support order issued (or modified) in the State before October 1, 1996, if not otherwise subject to withholding under subsection (b), shall become subject to withholding as provided in subsection (b) if arrearages occur, without the need for a judicial or administrative hearing.”

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 466(b) (42 U.S.C. 666(b)) is amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1), by striking “subsection (a)(1)” and inserting “subsection (a)(1)(A)”.
 (B) Section 466(b)(4) (42 U.S.C. 666(b)(4)) is amended to read as follows:

“(4)(A) Such withholding must be carried out in full compliance with all procedural due process requirements of the State, and the State must send notice to each noncustodial parent to whom paragraph (1) applies—
 “(i) that the withholding has commenced; and

“(ii) the procedures to follow if the noncustodial parent desires to contest such withholding on the grounds that the withholding or the amount withheld is improper due to a mistake of fact.

“(B) The notice under subparagraph (A) of this paragraph shall include the information provided to the employer under paragraph (6)(A).”

(C) Section 466(b)(5) (42 U.S.C. 666(b)(5)) is amended by striking all that follows “administered by” and inserting “the State through the State disbursement unit established pursuant to section 454B, in accordance with the requirements of section 454B.”

(D) Section 466(b)(6)(A) (42 U.S.C. 666(b)(6)(A)) is amended—

(i) in clause (i), by striking “to the appropriate agency” and all that follows and inserting “to the State disbursement unit within 5 business days after the date the amount would (but for this subsection) have been paid or credited to the employee, for distribution in accordance with this part. The employer shall comply with the procedural rules relating to income withholding of the State in which the employee works, regardless of the State where the notice originates.”

(ii) in clause (ii), by inserting “be in a standard format prescribed by the Secretary, and” after “shall”; and

(iii) by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(iii) As used in this subparagraph, the term ‘business day’ means a day on which State offices are open for regular business.”

(E) Section 466(b)(6)(D) (42 U.S.C. 666(b)(6)(D)) is amended by striking “any employer” and all that follows and inserting “any employer who—

“(i) discharges from employment, refuses to employ, or takes disciplinary action against any noncustodial parent subject to wage withholding required by this subsection because of the existence of such withholding and the obligations or additional obligations which it imposes upon the employer; or

“(ii) fails to withhold support from wages or to pay such amounts to the State disbursement unit in accordance with this subsection.”

(F) Section 466(b) (42 U.S.C. 666(b)) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(11) Procedures under which the agency administering the State plan approved under this part may execute a withholding order without advance notice to the obligor, including issuing the withholding order through electronic means.”

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 466(c) (42 U.S.C. 666(c)) is repealed.

SEC. 515. LOCATOR INFORMATION FROM INTER-STATE NETWORKS.

(c) REIMBURSEMENT FOR INFORMATION FROM FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Section 453(e)(2) (42 U.S.C. 653(e)(2)) is amended in the 4th sentence by inserting “in an amount which the Secretary determines to be reasonable payment for the information exchange (which amount shall not include payment for the costs of obtaining, compiling, or maintaining the information)” before the period.

(d) REIMBURSEMENT FOR REPORTS BY STATE AGENCIES.—Section 453 (42 U.S.C. 653) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(g) REIMBURSEMENT FOR REPORTS BY STATE AGENCIES.—The Secretary may reimburse Federal and State agencies for the costs incurred by such entities in furnishing information requested by the Secretary under this section in an amount which the Secretary determines to be reasonable payment for the information exchange (which amount shall not include payment for the costs of obtaining, compiling, or maintaining the information).”.

(e) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Sections 452(a)(9), 453(a), 453(b), 463(a), 463(e), and 463(f) (42 U.S.C. 652(a)(9), 653(a), 653(b), 663(a), 663(e), and 663(f)) are each amended by inserting “Federal” before “Parent” each place such term appears.

(2) Section 453 (42 U.S.C. 653) is amended in the heading by adding “FEDERAL” before “PARENT”.

(f) NEW COMPONENTS.—Section 453 (42 U.S.C. 653), as amended by subsection (d) of this section, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsections:

“(h) FEDERAL CASE REGISTRY OF CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than October 1, 1998, in order to assist States in administering programs under State plans approved under this part and programs funded under part A, and for the other purposes specified in this section, the Secretary shall establish and maintain in the Federal Parent Locator Service an automated registry (which shall be known as the ‘Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders’), which shall contain abstracts of support orders and other information described in paragraph (2) with respect to each case in each State case registry maintained pursuant to section 454A(e), as furnished (and regularly updated), pursuant to section 454A(f), by State agencies administering programs under this part.

“(2) CASE INFORMATION.—The information referred to in paragraph (1) with respect to a case shall be such information as the Secretary may specify in regulations (including the names, social security numbers or other uniform identification numbers, and State case identification numbers) to identify the individuals who owe or are owed support (or with respect to or on behalf of whom support obligations are sought to be established), and the State or States which have the case.

“(i) NATIONAL DIRECTORY OF NEW HIRES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to assist States in administering programs under State plans approved under this part and programs funded under part A, and for the other purposes specified in this section, the Secretary shall, not later than October 1, 1997, establish and maintain in the Federal Parent Locator Service an automated directory to be known as the National Directory of New Hires, which shall contain the information supplied pursuant to section 453A(g)(2).

“(2) ENTRY OF DATA.—Information shall be entered into the data base maintained by the National Directory of New Hires within 2 business days of receipt pursuant to section 453A(g)(2).

“(3) ADMINISTRATION OF FEDERAL TAX LAWS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall have access to the information in the National Directory of New Hires for purposes of administering section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or the advance payment of the earned income tax credit under section 3507 of such Code, and verifying a claim with respect to employment in a tax return.

“(4) LIST OF MULTISTATE EMPLOYERS.—The Secretary shall maintain within the National Directory of New Hires a list of multistate employers that report information regarding newly hired employees pursuant to section 453A(b)(1)(B), and the State which each such employer has designated to receive such information.

“(j) INFORMATION COMPARISONS AND OTHER DISCLOSURES.—

“(1) VERIFICATION BY SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall transmit information on individuals and employers maintained under this section to the Social Security Administration to the extent necessary for verification in accordance with subparagraph (B).

“(B) VERIFICATION BY SSA.—The Social Security Administration shall verify the accuracy of, correct, or supply to the extent possible, and report to the Secretary, the following information supplied by the Secretary pursuant to subparagraph (A):

“(i) The name, social security number, and birth date of each such individual.

“(ii) The employer identification number of each such employer.

“(2) INFORMATION COMPARISONS.—For the purpose of locating individuals in a paternity establishment case or a case involving the establishment, modification, or enforcement of a support order, the Secretary shall—

“(A) compare information in the National Directory of New Hires against information in the support case abstracts in the Federal Case Registry of Child Support Orders not less often than every 2 business days; and

“(B) within 2 business days after such a comparison reveals a match with respect to an individual, report the information to the State agency responsible for the case.

“(3) INFORMATION COMPARISONS AND DISCLOSURES OF INFORMATION IN ALL REGISTRIES FOR TITLE IV PROGRAM PURPOSES.—To the extent and with the frequency that the Secretary determines to be effective in assisting States to carry out their responsibilities under programs operated under this part and programs funded under part A, the Secretary shall—

“(A) compare the information in each component of the Federal Parent Locator Service maintained under this section against the information in each other such component (other than the comparison required by paragraph (2)), and report instances in which such a comparison reveals a match with respect to an individual to State agencies operating such programs; and “(B) disclose information in such registries to such State agencies.

“(4) PROVISION OF NEW HIRE INFORMATION TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION.—The National Directory of New Hires shall provide the Commissioner of Social Security with all information in the National Directory.

“(5) RESEARCH.—The Secretary may provide access to information reported by employers pursuant to section 453A(b) for research purposes found by the Secretary to be likely to contribute to achieving the purposes of part A or this part, but without personal identifiers.

“(k) FEES.—

“(1) FOR SSA VERIFICATION.—The Secretary shall reimburse the Commissioner of Social Security, at a rate negotiated between the Secretary and the Commissioner, for the costs incurred by the Commissioner in performing the verification services described in subsection (j).

“(2) FOR INFORMATION FROM STATE DIRECTORIES OF NEW HIRES.—The Secretary shall reimburse costs incurred by State directories of new hires in furnishing information as required by subsection (j)(3), at rates which the Secretary determines to be reasonable (which rates shall not include payment for the costs of obtaining, compiling, or maintaining such information).

“(3) FOR INFORMATION FURNISHED TO STATE AND FEDERAL AGENCIES.—A State or Federal agency that receives information from the Secretary pursuant to this section shall reimburse the Secretary for costs incurred by the Secretary in furnishing the information, at rates which the Secretary determines to be reasonable (which rates shall include payment for the costs of obtaining, verifying, maintaining, and comparing the information).

“(l) RESTRICTION ON DISCLOSURE AND USE.—Information in the Federal Parent Locator Service, and information resulting from comparisons using such information, shall not be used or disclosed except as expressly provided in this section, subject to section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

“(m) INFORMATION INTEGRITY AND SECURITY.—The Secretary shall establish and implement safeguards with respect to the entities established under this section designed to—

“(1) ensure the accuracy and completeness of information in the Federal Parent Locator Service; and

“(2) restrict access to confidential information in the Federal Parent Locator Service to authorized persons, and restrict use of such information to authorized purposes.

“(n) FEDERAL GOVERNMENT REPORTING.—Each department, agency, and instrumentality of the United States shall on a quarterly basis report to the Federal Parent Locator Service the name and social security number of each employee and the wages paid to the employee during the previous quarter, except that such a report shall not be filed with respect to an employee of a department, agency, or instrumentality performing intelligence or counterintelligence functions, if the head of such department, agency, or instrumentality has determined that filing such a report could endanger the safety of the employee or compromise an ongoing investigation or intelligence mission.”.

(g) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) TO PART D OF TITLE IV OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.—

(A) Section 454(8)(B) (42 U.S.C. 654(8)(B)) is amended to read as follows:

“(B) the Federal Parent Locator Service established under section 453;”.

(B) Section 454(13) (42 U.S.C. 654(13)) is amended by inserting “and provide that information requests by parents who are residents of other States be treated with the same priority as requests by parents who are residents of the State submitting the plan” before the semicolon.

(2) TO FEDERAL UNEMPLOYMENT TAX ACT.—Section 3304(a)(16) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended—

(A) by striking “Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare” each place such term appears and inserting “Secretary of Health and Human Services”;

(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking “such information” and all that follows and inserting “information furnished under subparagraph (A) or (B) is used only for the purposes authorized under such subparagraph;”;

(C) by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (A);

(D) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C); and

(E) by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

“(B) wage and unemployment compensation information contained in the records of such agency shall be furnished to the Secretary of Health and Human Services (in accordance with regulations promulgated by such Secretary) as necessary for the purposes of the National Directory of New Hires established under section 453(i) of the Social Security Act, and”.

(3) TO STATE GRANT PROGRAM UNDER TITLE III OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.—Subsection (h) of section 303 (42 U.S.C. 503) is amended to read as follows:

“(h)(1) The State agency charged with the administration of the State law shall, on a reimbursable basis—

“(A) disclose quarterly, to the Secretary of Health and Human Services, wage and claim information, as required pursuant to section 453(i)(1), contained in the records of such agency;

“(B) ensure that information provided pursuant to subparagraph (A) meets such standards relating to correctness and verification as the Secretary of Health and Human Services, with the concurrence of the Secretary of Labor, may find necessary; and

“(C) establish such safeguards as the Secretary of Labor determines are necessary to insure that information disclosed under subparagraph (A) is used only for purposes of section 453(i)(1) in carrying out the child support enforcement program under title IV.

“(2) Whenever the Secretary of Labor, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency charged with the administration of the State law, finds that there is a failure to comply substantially with the requirements of paragraph (1), the Secretary of Labor shall notify such State agency that further payments will not be made to the State until the Secretary of Labor is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure. Until the Secretary of Labor is so satisfied, the Secretary shall make no future certification to the Secretary of the Treasury with respect to the State.

“(3) For purposes of this subsection—

“(A) the term ‘wage information’ means information regarding wages paid to an individual, the social security account number of such individual, and the name, address, State, and the Federal employer identification number of the employer paying such wages to such individual; and

“(B) the term ‘claim information’ means information regarding whether an individual is receiving, has received, or has made application for, unemployment compensation, the amount of any such compensation being received (or to be received by such individual), and the individual’s current (or most recent) home address.”.

(4) DISCLOSURE OF CERTAIN INFORMATION TO AGENTS OF CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (6) of section 6103(l) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to disclosure of return information to Federal, State, and local child support enforcement agencies) is amended by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C) and by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

“(B) DISCLOSURE TO CERTAIN AGENTS.—The following information disclosed to any child support enforcement agency under subparagraph (A) with respect to any individual with respect to whom child support obligations are sought to be established or enforced may be disclosed by such agency to any agent of such agency which is under contract with such agency to carry out the purposes described in subparagraph (C):

“(i) The address and social security account number (or numbers) of such individual.

“(ii) The amount of any reduction under section 6402(c) (relating to offset of past-due support against overpayments) in any overpayment otherwise payable to such individual.”

(B) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(i) Paragraph (3) of section 6103(a) of such Code is amended by striking “(1)(12)” and inserting “paragraph (6) or (12) of subsection (1)”.

(ii) Subparagraph (C) of section 6103(l)(6) of such Code, as redesignated by subsection (a), is amended to read as follows:

“(C) RESTRICTION ON DISCLOSURE.—Information may be disclosed under this paragraph only for purposes of, and to the extent necessary in, establishing and collecting child support obligations from, and locating, individuals owing such obligations.”

(iii) The material following subparagraph (F) of section 6103(p)(4) of such Code is amended by striking “subsection (1)(12)(B)” and inserting “paragraph (6)(A) or (12)(B) of subsection (1)”.

(h) REQUIREMENT FOR COOPERATION.—The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall work jointly to develop cost-effective and efficient methods of accessing the information in the various State directories of new hires and the National Directory of New Hires as established pursuant to the amendments made by this title. In developing these methods the Secretaries shall take into account the impact, including costs, on the States, and shall also consider the need to insure the proper and authorized use of wage record information.

SEC. 517. COLLECTION AND USE OF SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS FOR USE IN CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT.

(a) STATE LAW REQUIREMENT.—Section 466(a) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)), as amended by section 515 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(13) RECORDING OF SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS IN CERTAIN FAMILY MATTERS.—Procedures requiring that the social security number of—

“(A) any applicant for a professional license, commercial driver’s license, occupational license, or marriage license be recorded on the application;

“(B) any individual who is subject to a divorce decree, support order, or paternity determination or acknowledgment be placed in the records relating to the matter; and

“(C) any individual who has died be placed in the records relating to the death and be recorded on the death certificate.

For purposes of subparagraph (A), if a State allows the use of a number other than the social security number, the State shall so advise any applicants.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 205(c)(2)(C) (42 U.S.C. 405(c)(2)(C)), as amended by section 321(a)(9) of the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, is amended—

(1) in clause (i), by striking “may require” and inserting “shall require”;

(2) in clause (ii), by inserting after the 1st sentence the following: “In the administration of any law involving the issuance of a marriage certificate or license, each State shall require each party named in the certificate or license to furnish to the State (or political subdivision thereof), or any State agency having administrative responsibility for the law involved, the social security number of the party.”;

(3) in clause (ii), by inserting “or marriage certificate” after “Such numbers shall not be recorded on the birth certificate”;

(4) in clause (vi), by striking “may” and inserting “shall”; and

(5) by adding at the end the following new clauses:

“(x) An agency of a State (or a political subdivision thereof) charged with the administration of any law concerning the issuance or renewal of a license, certificate, permit, or other authorization to engage in a profession, an occupation, or a commercial activity shall require all applicants for issuance or renewal of the license, certificate, permit, or other authorization to provide the applicant’s social security number to the agency for the purpose of administering such laws, and for the purpose of responding to requests for information from an agency operating pursuant to part D of title IV.

“(xi) All divorce decrees, support orders, and paternity determinations issued, and all paternity acknowledgments made, in each State shall include the social security number of each party to the decree, order, determination, or acknowledgment in the records relating to the matter, for the purpose of responding to requests for information from an agency operating pursuant to part D of title IV.”.

Subtitle C—Streamlining and Uniformity of Procedures

SEC. 521. ADOPTION OF UNIFORM STATE LAWS.

Section 466 (42 U.S.C. 666) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(f) UNIFORM INTERSTATE FAMILY SUPPORT ACT.—

“(1) ENACTMENT AND USE.—In order to satisfy section 454(20)(A), on and after January 1, 1998, each State must have in effect the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, as approved by the American Bar Association on February 9, 1993, together with any amendments officially adopted before January 1, 1998, by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

“(2) EMPLOYERS TO FOLLOW PROCEDURAL RULES OF STATE WHERE EMPLOYEE WORKS.—The State law enacted pursuant to paragraph (1) shall provide that an employer that receives an income withholding order or notice pursuant to section 501 of the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act follow the procedural rules that apply with respect to such order or notice under the laws of the State in which the obligor works.

SEC. 522. IMPROVEMENTS TO FULL FAITH AND CREDIT FOR CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS.

Section 1738B of title 28, United States Code, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(2), by striking “subsection (e)” and inserting “subsections (e), (f), and (i)”;

(2) in subsection (b), by inserting after the 2nd undesignated paragraph the following:

“‘child’s home State’ means the State in which a child lived with a parent or a person acting as parent for at least 6 consecutive months immediately preceding the time of filing of a petition or comparable pleading for support and, if a child is less than 6 months old, the State in which the child lived from birth with any of them. A period of temporary absence of any of them is counted as part of the 6-month period.”;

(3) in subsection (c), by inserting “by a court of a State” before “is made”;

(4) in subsection (c)(1), by inserting “and subsections (e), (f), and (g)” after “located”;

(5) in subsection (d)—

(A) by inserting “individual” before “contestant”; and

(B) by striking “subsection (e)” and inserting “subsections (e) and (f)”;

(6) in subsection (e), by striking “make a modification of a child support order with respect to a child that is made” and inserting “modify a child support order issued”;

(7) in subsection (e)(1), by inserting “pursuant to subsection (i)” before the semicolon;

(8) in subsection (e)(2)—

(A) by inserting “individual” before “contestant” each place such term appears; and

(B) by striking “to that court’s making the modification and assuming” and inserting “with the State of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction for a court of another State to modify the order and assume”;

(9) by redesignating subsections (f) and (g) as subsections (g) and (h), respectively;

(10) by inserting after subsection (e) the following new subsection:

“(f) RECOGNITION OF CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS.—If 1 or more child support orders have been issued with regard to an obligor and a child, a court shall apply the following rules in determining which order to recognize for purposes of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction and enforcement:

“(1) If only 1 court has issued a child support order, the order of that court must be recognized.

“(2) If 2 or more courts have issued child support orders for the same obligor and child, and only 1 of the courts would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this section, the order of that court must be recognized.

“(3) If 2 or more courts have issued child support orders for the same obligor and child, and more than 1 of the courts would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this section, an order issued by a court in the current home State of the child must be recognized, but if an order has not been issued in the current home State of the child, the order most recently issued must be recognized.

“(4) If 2 or more courts have issued child support orders for the same obligor and child, and none of the courts would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this section, a court may issue a child support order, which must be recognized.

“(5) The court that has issued an order recognized under this subsection is the court having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.”;

(1) in subsection (g) (as so redesignated)—

(A) by striking “PRIOR” and inserting “MODIFIED”; and

(B) by striking “subsection (e)” and inserting “subsections (e) and (f)”;

(2) in subsection (h) (as so redesignated)—

(A) in paragraph (2), by inserting “including the duration of current payments and other obligations of support” before the comma; and

(B) in paragraph (3), by inserting “arrearages under” after “enforce”; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(i) REGISTRATION FOR MODIFICATION.—If there is no individual contestant or child residing in the issuing State, the party or support enforcement agency seeking to modify, or to modify and enforce, a child support order issued in another State shall register that order in a State with jurisdiction over the nonmovant for the purpose of modification.”.

SEC. 523. ADMINISTRATIVE ENFORCEMENT IN INTERSTATE CASES.

Section 466(a) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)), as amended by sections 515 and 517(a) of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(14) ADMINISTRATIVE ENFORCEMENT IN INTERSTATE CASES.—Procedures under which—

“(A)(i) the State shall respond within 5 business days to a request made by another State to enforce a support order; and “(ii) the term ‘business day’ means a day on which State offices are open for regular business;

“(B) the State may, by electronic or other means, transmit to another State a request for assistance in a case involving the enforcement of a support order, which request—

“(i) shall include such information as will enable the State to which the request is transmitted to compare the information about the case to the information in the data bases of the State; and

“(ii) shall constitute a certification by the requesting State—

“(I) of the amount of support under the order the payment of which is in arrears; and “(II) that the requesting State has complied with all procedural due process requirements applicable to the case;

“(C) if the State provides assistance to another State pursuant to this paragraph with respect to a case, neither State shall consider the case to be transferred to the case-load of such other State; and “(D) the State shall maintain records of—

“(i) the number of such requests for assistance received by the State;

“(ii) the number of cases for which the State collected support in response to such a request; and

“(iii) the amount of such collected support.”.

SEC. 524. USE OF FORMS IN INTERSTATE ENFORCEMENT.

(a) PROMULGATION.—Section 452(a) (42 U.S.C. 652(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (9);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (10) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(11) not later than October 1, 1996, after consulting with the State directors of programs under this part, promulgate forms to be used by States in interstate cases for—

“(A) collection of child support through income withholding;

“(B) imposition of liens; and

“(C) administrative subpoenas.”.

(b) USE BY STATES.—Section 454(9) (42 U.S.C. 654(9)) is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (C);

(2) by inserting “and” at the end of subparagraph (D); and

(3) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(E) not later than March 1, 1997, in using the forms promulgated pursuant to section 452(a)(11) for income withholding, imposition of liens, and issuance of administrative subpoenas in interstate child support cases;”.

SEC. 525. STATE LAWS PROVIDING EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.

(a) STATE LAW REQUIREMENTS.—Section 466 (42 U.S.C. 666), as amended by section 514 of this title, is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)(2), by striking the first sentence and inserting the following: “Expedited administrative and judicial procedures (including the procedures specified in subsection (c)) for establishing paternity and for establishing, modifying, and enforcing support obligations.”; and

(2) by inserting after subsection (b) the following new subsection:

“(c) EXPEDITED PROCEDURES.—The procedures specified in this subsection are the following:

“(1) ADMINISTRATIVE ACTION BY STATE AGENCY.—Procedures which give the State agency the authority to take the following actions relating to establishment of paternity or to establishment, modification, or enforcement of support orders, without the necessity of obtaining an order from any other judicial or administrative tribunal, and to recognize and enforce the authority of State agencies of other States) to take the following actions:

“(A) GENETIC TESTING.—To order genetic testing for the purpose of paternity establishment as provided in section 466(a)(5).

“(B) FINANCIAL OR OTHER INFORMATION.—To subpoena any financial or other information needed to establish, modify, or enforce a support order, and to impose penalties for failure to respond to such a subpoena.

“(C) RESPONSE TO STATE AGENCY REQUEST.—To require all entities in the State (including for-profit, nonprofit, and governmental employers) to provide promptly, in response to a request by the State agency of that or any other State administering a program under this part, information on the employment, compensation, and benefits of any individual employed by such entity as an employee or contractor, and to sanction failure to respond to any such request.

“(D) ACCESS TO CERTAIN RECORDS.—To obtain access, subject to safeguards on privacy and information security, to the following records (including automated access, in the case of records maintained in automated data bases):

“(i) Records of other State and local government agencies, including—

“(I) vital statistics (including records of marriage, birth, and divorce);

“(II) State and local tax and revenue records (including information on residence address, employer, income and assets);

“(III) records concerning real and titled personal property;

“(IV) records of occupational and professional licenses, and records concerning the ownership and control of corporations, partnerships, and other business entities;

“(V) employment security records;

“(VI) records of agencies administering public assistance programs;

“(VII) records of the motor vehicle department; and

“(VIII) corrections records.

“(ii) Certain records held by private entities with respect to individuals who owe or are owed support (or against or with respect to whom a support obligation is sought), consisting of—

“(I) the names and addresses of such individuals and the names and addresses of the employers of such individuals, as appearing in customer records of public utilities and cable television companies; and

“(II) information (including information on assets and liabilities) on such individuals held by financial institutions, subject to the nonliability of such entities arising from affording such access under this subparagraph.

“(E) CHANGE IN PAYEE.—In cases in which support is subject to an assignment in order to comply with a requirement imposed pursuant to part A or section 1912, or to a requirement to pay through the State disbursement unit established pursuant to section 454B, upon providing notice to obligor and obligee, to direct the obligor or other payor to change the payee to the appropriate government entity.

“(F) INCOME WITHHOLDING.—To order income withholding in accordance with subsections (a)(1) and (b) of section 466.

“(G) SECURING ASSETS.—In cases in which there is a support arrearage, to secure assets to satisfy the arrearage by—

“(i) intercepting or seizing periodic or lump-sum payments from—

“(I) a State or local agency, including unemployment compensation, workers' compensation, and other benefits; and “(II) judgments, settlements, and lotteries;

“(ii) attaching and seizing assets of the obligor held in financial institutions;

“(iii) attaching public and private retirement funds; and

“(iv) imposing liens in accordance with subsection (a)(4) and, in appropriate cases, to force sale of property and distribution of proceeds.

“(H) INCREASE MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—For the purpose of securing overdue support, to increase the amount of monthly support payments to include amounts for arrearages, subject to such conditions or limitations as the State may provide.

Such procedures shall be subject to due process safeguards, including (as appropriate) requirements for notice, opportunity to contest the action, and opportunity for an appeal on the record to an independent administrative or judicial tribunal.

“(2) SUBSTANTIVE AND PROCEDURAL RULES.—The expedited procedures required under subsection (a)(2) shall include the following rules and authority, applicable with respect to all proceedings to establish paternity or to establish, modify, or enforce support orders:

“(A) LOCATOR INFORMATION; PRESUMPTIONS CONCERNING NOTICE.—Procedures under which—

“(i) each party to any paternity or child support proceeding is required (subject to privacy safeguards) to file with the tribunal and the State case registry upon entry of an order, and to update as appropriate, information on location and identity of the party, including social security number, residential and mailing addresses, telephone number, driver's license number, and name, address, and telephone number of employer; and “(ii) in any subsequent child support enforcement action between the parties, upon sufficient showing that diligent effort has been made to ascertain the location of such a party, the tribunal may deem State due process requirements for notice and service of process to be met with respect to the party, upon delivery of written notice to the most recent residential or employer address filed with the tribunal pursuant to clause (i).

“(B) STATEWIDE JURISDICTION.—Procedures under which—

“(i) the State agency and any administrative or judicial tribunal with authority to hear child support and paternity cases exerts statewide jurisdiction over the parties; and “(ii) in a State in which orders are issued by courts or administrative tribunals, a case may be transferred between local jurisdictions in the State without need for any additional filing by the petitioner, or service of process upon the respondent, to retain jurisdiction over the parties.

“(3) COORDINATION WITH ERISA.—Notwithstanding subsection (d) of section 514 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (relating to effect on other laws), nothing in this subsection shall be construed to alter, amend, modify, invalidate, impair, or supersede subsections (a), (b), and (c) of such section 514 as it applies with respect to any procedure referred to in paragraph (1) and any expedited procedure referred to in paragraph (2), except to the extent that such procedure would be consistent with the requirements of section 206(d)(3) of such Act (relating to qualified domestic relations orders) or the requirements of section 609(a) of such Act (relating to qualified medical child support orders) if the reference in such section 206(d)(3) to a domestic relations order and the reference in such section 609(a) to a medical child support order were a reference to a support order referred to in paragraphs (1) and (2) relating to the same matters, respectively.”

(b) AUTOMATION OF STATE AGENCY FUNCTIONS.—Section 454A, as added by section 544(a)(2) and as amended by sections 511 and 512(c) of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(h) EXPEDITED ADMINISTRATIVE PROCEDURES.—The automated system required by this section shall be used, to the maximum extent feasible, to implement the expedited administrative procedures required by section 466(c).”

Subtitle D—Paternity Establishment

SEC. 531. STATE LAWS CONCERNING PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT.

(a) STATE LAWS REQUIRED.—Section 466(a)(5) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)(5)) is amended to read as follows:

“(5) PROCEDURES CONCERNING PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT.—

“(A) ESTABLISHMENT PROCESS AVAILABLE FROM BIRTH UNTIL AGE 18.—

“(i) Procedures which permit the establishment of the paternity of a child at any time before the child attains 18 years of age.

“(ii) As of August 16, 1984, clause (i) shall also apply to a child for whom paternity has not been established or for whom a paternity action was brought but dismissed because a statute of limitations of less than 18 years was then in effect in the State.

“(B) PROCEDURES CONCERNING GENETIC TESTING.—

“(i) GENETIC TESTING REQUIRED IN CERTAIN CONTESTED CASES.—Procedures under which the State is required, in a contested paternity case (unless otherwise barred by State law) to require the child and all other parties (other than individuals found under section 454(29) to have good cause and other exceptions for refusing to cooperate) to submit to genetic tests upon the request of any such party, if the request is supported by a sworn statement by the party—

“(I) alleging paternity, and setting forth facts establishing a reasonable possibility of the requisite sexual contact between the parties; or “(II) denying paternity, and setting forth facts establishing a reasonable possibility of the nonexistence of sexual contact between the parties.

“(ii) OTHER REQUIREMENTS.—Procedures which require the State agency, in any case in which the agency orders genetic testing—

“(I) to pay costs of such tests, subject to recoupment (if the State so elects) from the alleged father if paternity is established; and “(II) to obtain additional testing in any case if an original test result is contested, upon request and advance payment by the contestant.

“(C) VOLUNTARY PATERNITY ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—

“(i) SIMPLE CIVIL PROCESS.—Procedures for a simple civil process for voluntarily acknowledging paternity under which the State must provide that, before a mother and a putative father can sign an acknowledgment of paternity, the mother and the putative father must be given notice, orally and in writing, of the alternatives to, the legal consequences of, and the rights (including, if 1 parent is a minor, any rights afforded due to minority status) and responsibilities that arise from, signing the acknowledgment.

“(ii) HOSPITAL-BASED PROGRAM.—Such procedures must include a hospital-based program for the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity focusing on the period immediately before or after the birth of a child, unless good cause and other exceptions exist which—

“(I) shall be defined, taking into account the best interests of the child, and

“(II) shall be applied in each case,

by, at the option of the State, the State agency administering the State program under part A, this part, or title XIX.

“(iii) PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT SERVICES.—

“(I) STATE-OFFERED SERVICES.—Such procedures must require the State agency responsible for maintaining birth records to offer voluntary paternity establishment services.

“(II) REGULATIONS.—

“(aa) SERVICES OFFERED BY HOSPITALS AND BIRTH RECORD AGENCIES.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations governing voluntary paternity establishment services offered by hospitals and birth record agencies.

“(bb) SERVICES OFFERED BY OTHER ENTITIES.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations specifying the types of other entities that may offer voluntary paternity establishment services, and governing the provision of such services, which shall include a requirement that such an entity must use the same notice provisions used by, use the same materials used by, provide the personnel providing such services with the same training provided by, and evaluate the provision of such services in the same manner as the provision of such services is evaluated by, voluntary paternity establishment programs of hospitals and birth record agencies.

“(iv) USE OF PATERNITY ACKNOWLEDGMENT AFFIDAVIT.—Such procedures must require the State to develop and use an affidavit for the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity which includes the minimum requirements of the affidavit specified by the Secretary under section 452(a)(7) for the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity, and to give full faith and credit to such an affidavit signed in any other State according to its procedures.

“(D) STATUS OF SIGNED PATERNITY ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—

“(i) INCLUSION IN BIRTH RECORDS.—Procedures under which the name of the father shall be included on the record of birth of the child of unmarried parents only if—

“(I) the father and mother have signed a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity; or “(II) a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction has issued an adjudication of paternity.

Nothing in this clause shall preclude a State agency from obtaining an admission of paternity from the father for submission in a judicial or administrative proceeding, or prohibit the issuance of an order in a judicial or administrative proceeding which bases a legal finding of paternity on an admission of paternity by the father and any other additional showing required by State law.

“(ii) LEGAL FINDING OF PATERNITY.—Procedures under which a signed voluntary acknowledgment of paternity is considered a legal finding of paternity, subject to the right of any signatory to rescind the acknowledgment within the earlier of—

“(I) 60 days; or

“(II) the date of an administrative or judicial proceeding relating to the child (including a proceeding to establish a support order) in which the signatory is a party.

“(iii) CONTEST.—Procedures under which, after the 60-day period referred to in clause (ii), a signed voluntary acknowledgment of paternity may be challenged in court only on the basis of fraud, duress, or material mistake of fact, with the burden of proof upon the challenger, and under which the legal responsibilities (including child support obligations) of any signatory arising from the acknowledgment may not be suspended during the challenge, except for good cause shown.

“(E) BAR ON ACKNOWLEDGMENT RATIFICATION PROCEEDINGS.—Procedures under which judicial or administrative proceedings are not required or permitted to ratify an unchallenged acknowledgment of paternity.

“(F) ADMISSIBILITY OF GENETIC TESTING RESULTS.—Procedures—

“(i) requiring the admission into evidence, for purposes of establishing paternity, of the results of any genetic test that is—

“(I) of a type generally acknowledged as reliable by accreditation bodies designated by the Secretary; and

“(II) performed by a laboratory approved by such an accreditation body;

“(ii) requiring an objection to genetic testing results to be made in writing not later than a specified number of days before any hearing at which the results may be introduced into evidence (or, at State option, not later than a specified number of days after receipt of the results); and

“(iii) making the test results admissible as evidence of paternity without the need for foundation testimony or other proof of authenticity or accuracy, unless objection is made.

“(G) PRESUMPTION OF PATERNITY IN CERTAIN CASES.—Procedures which create a rebuttable or, at the option of the State, conclusive presumption of paternity upon genetic testing results indicating a threshold probability that the alleged father is the father of the child.

“(H) DEFAULT ORDERS.—Procedures requiring a default order to be entered in a paternity case upon a showing of service of process on the defendant and any additional showing required by State law.

“(I) NO RIGHT TO JURY TRIAL.—Procedures providing that the parties to an action to establish paternity are not entitled to a trial by jury.

“(J) TEMPORARY SUPPORT ORDER BASED ON PROBABLE PATERNITY IN CONTESTED CASES.—Procedures which require that a temporary order be issued, upon motion by a party, requiring the provision of child support pending an administrative or judicial determination of parentage, if there is clear and convincing evidence of paternity (on the basis of genetic tests or other evidence).

“(K) PROOF OF CERTAIN SUPPORT AND PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT COSTS.—Procedures under which bills for pregnancy, childbirth, and genetic testing are admissible as evidence without requiring third-party foundation testimony, and shall constitute prima facie evidence of amounts incurred for such services or for testing on behalf of the child.

“(L) STANDING OF PUTATIVE FATHERS.—Procedures ensuring that the putative father has a reasonable opportunity to initiate a paternity action.

“(M) FILING OF ACKNOWLEDGMENTS AND ADJUDICATIONS IN STATE REGISTRY OF BIRTH RECORDS.—Procedures under which voluntary acknowledgments and adjudications of paternity by judicial or administrative processes are filed with the State registry of birth records for comparison with information in the State case registry.”.

(b) NATIONAL PATERNITY ACKNOWLEDGMENT AFFIDAVIT.—Section 452(a)(7) (42 U.S.C. 652(a)(7)) is amended by inserting “, and specify the minimum requirements of an affidavit to be used for the voluntary acknowledgment of paternity which shall include the social security number of each parent and, after consultation with the States, other common elements as determined by such designee” before the semicolon.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 468 (42 U.S.C. 668) is amended by striking “a simple civil process for voluntarily acknowledging paternity and”.

SEC. 532. OUTREACH FOR VOLUNTARY PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT.

Section 454(23) (42 U.S.C. 654(23)) is amended by inserting “and will publicize the availability and encourage the use of procedures for voluntary establishment of paternity and child support by means the State deems appropriate” before the semicolon.

SEC. 533. COOPERATION BY APPLICANTS FOR AND RECIPIENTS OF PART A ASSISTANCE.

Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 501(b), 503(a), 512(a), and 513(a) of this title, is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (27);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (28) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (28) the following new paragraph:

“(29) provide that the State agency responsible for administering the State plan—

“(A) shall make the determination (and redetermination at appropriate intervals) as to whether an individual who has applied for or is receiving assistance under the State program funded under part A or the State program under title XIX is cooperating in good faith with the State in establishing the paternity of, or in establishing, modifying, or enforcing a support order for, any child of the individual by providing the State agency with the name of, and such other information as the State agency may require with respect to, the noncustodial parent of the child, subject to good cause and other exceptions which—

“(i) shall be defined, taking into account the best interests of the child, and

“(ii) shall be applied in each case,

by, at the option of the State, the State agency administering the State program under part A, this part, or title XIX;

“(B) shall require the individual to supply additional necessary information and appear at interviews, hearings, and legal proceedings;

“(C) shall require the individual and the child to submit to genetic tests pursuant to judicial or administrative order;

“(D) may request that the individual sign a voluntary acknowledgment of paternity, after notice of the rights and consequences of such an acknowledgment, but may not require the individual to sign an acknowledgment or otherwise relinquish the right to genetic tests as a condition of cooperation and eligibility for assistance under the State program funded under part A or the State program under title XIX; and

“(E) shall promptly notify the individual and the State agency administering the State program funded under part A and the State agency administering the State program under title XIX of each such determination, and if noncooperation is determined, the basis therefore.”.

Subtitle E—Program Administration and Funding

SEC. 541. PERFORMANCE-BASED INCENTIVES AND PENALTIES.

(a) DEVELOPMENT OF NEW SYSTEM.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services, in consultation with State directors of programs under part D of title IV of the Social Security Act, shall develop a new incentive system to replace, in a revenue neutral manner, the system under section 458 of such Act. The new system shall provide additional payments to any State based on such State's performance under such a program. Not later than November 1, 1996, the Secretary shall report on the new system to the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO PRESENT SYSTEM.—Section 458 (42 U.S.C. 658) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a), by striking “aid to families with dependent children under a State plan approved under part A of this title” and inserting “assistance under a program funded under part A”;

(2) in subsection (b)(1)(A), by striking “section 402(a)(26)” and inserting “section 408(a)(4)”;

(3) in subsections (b) and (c)—

(A) by striking “AFDC collections” each place it appears and inserting “title IV-A collections”, and

(B) by striking “non-AFDC collections” each place it appears and inserting “non-title IV-A collections”; and

(4) in subsection (c), by striking “combined AFDC/non-AFDC administrative costs” both places it appears and inserting “combined title IV-A/non-title IV-A administrative costs”.

(c) CALCULATION OF PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT PERCENTAGE.—

(1) Section 452(g)(1)(A) (42 U.S.C. 652(g)(1)(A)) is amended by striking “75” and inserting “90”.

(2) Section 452(g)(1) (42 U.S.C. 652(g)(1)) is amended—

(A) by redesignating subparagraphs (B) through (E) as subparagraphs (C) through (F), respectively, and by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

“(B) for a State with a paternity establishment percentage of not less than 75 percent but less than 90 percent for such fiscal year, the paternity establishment percentage of the State for the immediately preceding fiscal year plus 2 percentage points;” and

(B) by adding at the end the following new flush sentence:

"In determining compliance under this section, a State may use as its paternity establishment percentage either the State's IV-D paternity establishment percentage (as defined in paragraph (2)(A)) or the State's statewide paternity establishment percentage (as defined in paragraph (2)(B))."

(3) Section 452(g)(2) (42 U.S.C. 652(g)(2)) is amended—

(A) in subparagraph (A)—

(i) in the matter preceding clause (i)—

(I) by striking "paternity establishment percentage" and inserting "IV-D paternity establishment percentage"; and

(II) by striking "(or all States, as the case may be)";

(ii) by striking "and" at the end thereof;

(B) by redesignating subparagraph (B) as subparagraph (C) and by inserting after subparagraph (A) the following new subparagraph:

"(B) the term 'statewide paternity establishment percentage' means, with respect to a State for a fiscal year, the ratio (expressed as a percentage) that the total number of minor children—

"(i) who have been born out of wedlock, and

"(ii) the paternity of whom has been established or acknowledged during the fiscal year, bears to the total number of children born out of wedlock during the preceding fiscal year; and"; and

(iii) in the matter following subparagraph (C) (as so redesignated), by striking "to have good cause for refusing to cooperate" and inserting "to qualify for a good cause or other exception to cooperation".

(4) Section 452(g)(3) (42 U.S.C. 652(g)(3)) is amended—

(A) by striking subparagraph (A) and redesignating subparagraphs (B) and (C) as subparagraphs (A) and (B), respectively; and

(B) in subparagraph (A) (as so redesignated), by striking "the percentage of children born out-of-wedlock in a State" and inserting "the percentage of children in a State who are born out of wedlock or for whom support has not been established".

(d) EFFECTIVE DATES.—

(1) INCENTIVE ADJUSTMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The system developed under subsection (a) and the amendments made by subsection (b) shall become effective on October 1, 1997, except to the extent provided in subparagraph (B).

(B) APPLICATION OF SECTION 458.—Section 458 of the Social Security Act, as in effect on the day before the date of the enactment of this section, shall be effective for purposes of incentive payments to States for fiscal years before fiscal year 1999.

(2) PENALTY REDUCTIONS.—The amendments made by subsection (c) shall become effective with respect to calendar quarters beginning on or after the date of the enactment of this title.

SEC. 542. FEDERAL AND STATE REVIEWS AND AUDITS.

(a) STATE AGENCY ACTIVITIES.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (14), by striking "(14)" and inserting "(14)(A)";

(2) by redesignating paragraph (15) as subparagraph (B) of paragraph (14); and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (14) the following new paragraph:

"(15) provide for—

"(A) a process for annual reviews of and reports to the Secretary on the State program operated under the State plan approved under this part, including such information as may be necessary to measure State compliance with Federal requirements for expeditated procedures, using such standards and procedures as are required by the Secretary, under which the State agency will determine the extent to which the program is operated in compliance with this part; and

"(B) a process of extracting from the automated data processing system required by paragraph (16) and transmitting to the Secretary data and calculations concerning the levels of accomplishment (and rates of improvement) with respect to applicable performance indicators (including paternity establishment percentages) to the extent necessary for purposes of sections 452(g) and 458."

(b) FEDERAL ACTIVITIES.—Section 452(a)(4) (42 U.S.C. 652(a)(4)) is amended to read as follows:

"(4)(A) review data and calculations transmitted by State agencies pursuant to section 454(15)(B) on State program accomplishments with respect to performance indicators for purposes of subsection (g) of this section and section 458;

"(B) review annual reports submitted pursuant to section 454(15)(A) and, as appropriate, provide to the State comments, recommendations for additional or alternative corrective actions, and technical assistance; and

"(C) conduct audits, in accordance with the Government auditing standards of the Comptroller General of the United States—

"(i) at least once every 3 years (or more frequently, in the case of a State which fails to meet the requirements of this part concerning performance standards and reliability of program data) to assess the completeness, reliability, and security of the data and the accuracy of the reporting systems used in calculating performance indicators under subsection (g) of this section and section 458;

"(ii) of the adequacy of financial management of the State program operated under the State plan approved under this part, including assessments of—

"(I) whether Federal and other funds made available to carry out the State program are being appropriately expended, and are properly and fully accounted for; and

"(II) whether collections and disbursements of support payments are carried out correctly and are fully accounted for; and

"(iii) for such other purposes as the Secretary may find necessary;";

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall be effective with respect to calendar quarters beginning 12 months or more after the date of the enactment of this title.

SEC. 543. REQUIRED REPORTING PROCEDURES.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—Section 452(a)(5) (42 U.S.C. 652(a)(5)) is amended by inserting ", and establish procedures to be followed by States for collecting and reporting information required to be provided under this part, and establish uniform definitions (including those necessary to enable the measurement of State compliance with the requirements of this part relating to expedited processes) to be applied in following such procedures" before the semicolon.

(b) STATE PLAN REQUIREMENT.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 501(b), 503(a), 512(a), 513(a), and 533 of this title, is amended—

(1) by striking "and" at the end of paragraph (28);

(E) by striking "(i)"; and

(F) by striking "(including" and all that follows and inserting a semicolon.

(2) AUTOMATED DATA PROCESSING.—Part D of title IV (42 U.S.C. 651-669) is amended by inserting after section 454 the following new section:

"SEC. 454A. AUTOMATED DATA PROCESSING.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—In order for a State to meet the requirements of this section, the State agency administering the State program under this part shall have in operation a single statewide automated data processing and information retrieval system which has the capability to perform the tasks specified in this section with the frequency and in the manner required by or under this part.

"(b) PROGRAM MANAGEMENT.—The automated system required by this section shall perform such functions as the Secretary may specify relating to management of the State program under this part, including—

"(1) controlling and accounting for use of Federal, State, and local funds in carrying out the program; and

"(2) maintaining the data necessary to meet Federal reporting requirements under this part on a timely basis.

"(c) CALCULATION OF PERFORMANCE INDICATORS.—In order to enable the Secretary to determine the incentive payments and penalty adjustments required by sections 452(g) and 458, the State agency shall—

"(1) use the automated system—

"(A) to maintain the requisite data on State performance with respect to paternity establishment and child support enforcement in the State; and

"(B) to calculate the paternity establishment percentage for the State for each fiscal year; and

"(2) have in place systems controls to ensure the completeness and reliability of, and ready access to, the data described in paragraph (1)(A), and the accuracy of the calculations described in paragraph (1)(B).

"(d) INFORMATION INTEGRITY AND SECURITY.—The State agency shall have in effect safeguards on the integrity, accuracy, and completeness of, access to, and use of data in the automated system required by this section, which shall include the following (in addition to such other safeguards as the Secretary may specify in regulations):

"(1) POLICIES RESTRICTING ACCESS.—Written policies concerning access to data by State agency personnel, and sharing of data with other persons, which—

"(A) permit access to and use of data only to the extent necessary to carry out the State program under this part; and

"(B) specify the data which may be used for particular program purposes, and the personnel permitted access to such data.

"(2) SYSTEMS CONTROLS.—Systems controls (such as passwords or blocking of fields) to ensure strict adherence to the policies described in paragraph (1).

"(3) MONITORING OF ACCESS.—Routine monitoring of access to and use of the automated system, through methods such as audit trails and feedback mechanisms, to guard against and promptly identify unauthorized access or use.

"(4) TRAINING AND INFORMATION.—Procedures to ensure that all personnel (including State and local agency staff and contractors) who may have access to or be required to use confidential program data are informed of applicable requirements and penalties (including those in section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986), and are adequately trained in security procedures.

"(5) PENALTIES.—Administrative penalties (up to and including dismissal from employment) for unauthorized access to, or disclosure or use of, confidential data."

(3) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall prescribe final regulations for implementation of section 454A of the Social Security Act not later than 2 years after the date of the enactment of this title.

(4) IMPLEMENTATION TIMETABLE.—Section 454(24) (42 U.S.C. 654(24)), as amended by section 503(a)(1) of this title, is amended to read as follows:

"(24) provide that the State will have in effect an automated data processing and information retrieval system—

"(A) by October 1, 1997, which meets all requirements of this part which were enacted on or before the date of enactment of the Family Support Act of 1988, and

"(B) by October 1, 1999, which meets all requirements of this part enacted on or before the date of the enactment of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996, except that such deadline shall be extended by 1 day for each day (if any) by which the Secretary fails to meet the deadline imposed by section 544(a)(3) of the Child Support Improvement Act of 1996;"

(b) SPECIAL FEDERAL MATCHING RATE FOR DEVELOPMENT COSTS OF AUTOMATED SYSTEMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 455(a) (42 U.S.C. 655(a)) is amended—

(A) in paragraph (1)(B)—

(i) by striking "90 percent" and inserting "the percent specified in paragraph (3)";

(ii) by striking "so much of"; and

(iii) by striking "which the Secretary" and all that follows and inserting "; and"; and

(B) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(3)(A) The Secretary shall pay to each State, for each quarter in fiscal years 1996 and 1997, 90 percent of so much of the State expenditures described in paragraph (1)(B) as the Secretary finds are for a system meeting the requirements specified in section 454(16) (as in effect on September 30, 1995) but limited to the amount approved for States in the advance planning documents of such States submitted on or before September 30, 1995.

"(B)(i) The Secretary shall pay to each State, for each quarter in fiscal years 1996 through 2001, the percentage specified in clause (ii) of so much of the State expenditures described in paragraph (1)(B) as the Secretary finds are for a system meeting the requirements of sections 454(16) and 454A.

"(ii) The percentage specified in this clause is 80 percent."

(2) TEMPORARY LIMITATION ON PAYMENTS UNDER SPECIAL FEDERAL MATCHING RATE.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services may not pay more than $400,000,000 in the aggregate under section 455(a)(3)(B) of the Social Security Act for fiscal years 1996 through 2001.

(B) ALLOCATION OF LIMITATION AMONG STATES.—The total amount payable to a State under section 455(a)(3)(B) of such Act for fiscal years 1996 through 2001 shall not exceed the limitation determined for the State by the Secretary of Health and Human Services in regulations.

(C) ALLOCATION FORMULA.—The regulations referred to in subparagraph (B) shall prescribe a formula for allocating the amount specified in subparagraph (A) among States with plans approved under part D of title IV of the Social Security Act, which shall take into account—

(i) the relative size of State caseloads under such part; and

(ii) the level of automation needed to meet the automated data processing requirements of such part.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 123(c) of the Family Support Act of 1988 (102 Stat. 2352; Public Law 100-485) is repealed.

SEC. 545. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.

(a) FOR TRAINING OF FEDERAL AND STATE STAFF, RESEARCH AND DEMONSTRATION PROGRAMS, AND SPECIAL PROJECTS OF REGIONAL OR NATIONAL SIGNIFICANCE.—Section 452 (42 U.S.C. 652) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(j) Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there is hereby appropriated to the Secretary for each fiscal year an amount equal to 1 percent of the total amount paid to the Federal Government pursuant to section 457(a) during the immediately preceding fiscal year (as determined on the basis of the most recent reliable data available to the Secretary as of the end of the 3rd calendar quarter following the end of such preceding fiscal year), to cover costs incurred by the Secretary for—

"(1) information dissemination and technical assistance to States, training of State and Federal staff, staffing studies, and related activities needed to improve programs under this part (including technical assistance concerning State automated systems required by this part); and

"(2) research, demonstration, and special projects of regional or national significance relating to the operation of State programs under this part.

The amount appropriated under this subsection shall remain available until expended."

(b) OPERATION OF FEDERAL PARENT LOCATOR SERVICE.—Section 453 (42 U.S.C. 653), as amended by section 516 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(o) RECOVERY OF COSTS.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there is hereby appropriated to the Secretary for each fiscal year an amount equal to 2 percent of the total amount paid to the Federal Government pursuant to section 457(a) during the immediately preceding fiscal year (as determined on the basis of the most recent reliable data available to the Secretary as of the end of the 3rd calendar quarter following the end of such preceding fiscal year), to cover costs incurred by the Secretary for operation of the Federal Parent Locator Service under this section, to the extent such costs are not recovered through user fees."

Subtitle F—Establishment and Modification of Support Orders

SEC. 551. SIMPLIFIED PROCESS FOR REVIEW AND ADJUSTMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS.

Section 466(a)(10) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)(10)) is amended to read as follows:

"(10) REVIEW AND ADJUSTMENT OF SUPPORT ORDERS UPON REQUEST.—Procedures under which the State may review and adjust each support order being enforced under this part if there is an assignment under part A, or shall review and adjust each support order being enforced under this part upon the request of either parent. Such procedures shall provide the following:

"(A) IN GENERAL.—

"(i) 3-YEAR CYCLE.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), the State shall review and, as appropriate, adjust the support order every 3 years, taking into account the best interests of the child involved.

"(ii) METHODS OF ADJUSTMENT.—The State may elect to review and, if appropriate, adjust an order pursuant to clause (i) by—

"(I) reviewing and, if appropriate, adjusting the order in accordance with the guidelines established pursuant to section 467(a) if the amount of the child support award under the order differs from the amount that would be awarded in accordance with the guidelines; or “(II) applying a cost-of-living adjustment to the order in accordance with a formula developed by the State and permit either party to contest the adjustment, within 30 days after the date of the notice of the adjustment, by making a request for review and, if appropriate, adjustment of the order in accordance with the child support guidelines established pursuant to section 467(a).

“(iii) NO PROOF OF CHANGE IN CIRCUMSTANCES NECESSARY.—Any adjustment under this subparagraph (A) shall be made without a requirement for proof or showing of a change in circumstances.

“(B) AUTOMATED METHOD.—The State may use automated methods (including automated comparisons with wage or State income tax data) to identify orders eligible for review, conduct the review, identify orders eligible for adjustment, and apply the appropriate adjustment to the orders eligible for adjustment under the threshold established by the State.

“(C) REQUEST UPON SUBSTANTIAL CHANGE IN CIRCUMSTANCES.—The State shall, at the request of either parent subject to such an order or of any State child support enforcement agency, review and, if appropriate, adjust the order in accordance with the guidelines established pursuant to section 467(a) based upon a substantial change in the circumstances of either parent.

“(D) NOTICE OF RIGHT TO REVIEW.—The State shall provide notice not less than once every 3 years to the parents subject to such an order informing them of their right to request the State to review and, if appropriate, adjust the order pursuant to this paragraph. The notice may be included in the order.”

SEC. 552. FURNISHING CONSUMER REPORTS FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES RELATING TO CHILD SUPPORT.

Section 604 of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681b) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraphs:

“(4) In response to a request by the head of a State or local child support enforcement agency (or a State or local government official authorized by the head of such an agency), if the person making the request certifies to the consumer reporting agency that—

“(A) the consumer report is needed for the purpose of establishing an individual's capacity to make child support payments or determining the appropriate level of such payments;

“(B) the paternity of the consumer for the child to which the obligation relates has been established or acknowledged by the consumer in accordance with State laws under which the obligation arises (if required by those laws);

“(C) the person has provided at least 10 days' prior notice to the consumer whose report is requested, by certified or registered mail to the last known address of the consumer, that the report will be requested; and

“(D) the consumer report will be kept confidential, will be used solely for a purpose described in subparagraph (A), and will not be used in connection with any other civil, administrative, or criminal proceeding, or for any other purpose.

“(5) To an agency administering a State plan under section 454 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 654) for use to set an initial or modified child support award.”

SEC. 553. NONLIABILITY FOR FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS PROVIDING FINANCIAL RECORDS TO STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES IN CHILD SUPPORT CASES.

Part D of title IV (42 U.S.C. 651-669) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 469A. NONLIABILITY FOR FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS PROVIDING FINANCIAL RECORDS TO STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES IN CHILD SUPPORT CASES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of Federal or State law, a financial institution shall not be liable under any Federal or State law to any person for disclosing any financial record of an individual to a State child support enforcement agency attempting to establish, modify, or enforce a child support obligation of such individual.

“(b) PROHIBITION OF DISCLOSURE OF FINANCIAL RECORD OBTAINED BY STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT AGENCY.—A State child support enforcement agency which obtains a financial record of an individual from a financial institution pursuant to subsection (a) may disclose such financial record only for the purpose of, and to the extent necessary in, establishing, modifying, or enforcing a child support obligation of such individual.

“(c) CIVIL DAMAGES FOR UNAUTHORIZED DISCLOSURE.—

“(1) DISCLOSURE BY STATE OFFICER OR EMPLOYEE.—If any person knowingly, or by reason of negligence, discloses a financial record of an individual in violation of subsection (b), such individual may bring a civil action for damages against such person in a district court of the United States.

“(2) NO LIABILITY FOR GOOD FAITH BUT ERRONEOUS INTERPRETATION.—No liability shall arise under this subsection with respect to any disclosure which results from a good faith, but erroneous, interpretation of subsection (b).

“(3) DAMAGES.—In any action brought under paragraph (1), upon a finding of liability on the part of the defendant, the defendant shall be liable to the plaintiff in an amount equal to the sum of—

“(A) the greater of—

“(i) $1,000 for each act of unauthorized disclosure of a financial record with respect to which such defendant is found liable; or

“(ii) the sum of—

“(I) the actual damages sustained by the plaintiff as a result of such unauthorized disclosure; plus

“(II) in the case of a willful disclosure or a disclosure which is the result of gross negligence, punitive damages; plus

“(B) the costs (including attorney's fees) of the action.

“(d) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

“(1) FINANCIAL INSTITUTION.—The term ‘financial institution’ means—

“(A) a depository institution, as defined in section 3(c) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(c)); “(B) an institution-affiliated party, as defined in section 3(u) of such Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(u));

“(C) any Federal credit union or State credit union, as defined in section 101 of the Federal Credit Union Act (12 U.S.C. 1752), including an institution-affiliated party of such a credit union, as defined in section 206(r) of such Act (12 U.S.C. 1786(r)); and “(D) any benefit association, insurance company, safe deposit company, money-market mutual fund, or similar entity authorized to do business in the State.

“(2) FINANCIAL RECORD.—The term ‘financial record’ has the meaning given such term in section 1101 of the Right to Financial Privacy Act of 1978 (12 U.S.C. 3401).”

Subtitle G—Enforcement of Support Orders
SEC. 561. INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE COLLECTION OF ARREARAGES.

(a) COLLECTION OF FEES.—Section 6305(a) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to collection of certain liability) is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (3);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (4) and inserting “, and”;

(3) by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(5) no additional fee may be assessed for adjustments to an amount previously certified pursuant to such section 452(b) with respect to the same obligor.”; and

(4) by striking “Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare” each place it appears and inserting “Secretary of Health and Human Services”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall become effective October 1, 1997.

SEC. 562. AUTHORITY TO COLLECT SUPPORT FROM FEDERAL EMPLOYEES.

(a) CONSOLIDATION AND STREAMLINING OF AUTHORITIES.—Section 459 (42 U.S.C. 659) is amended to read as follows:

“SEC. 459. CONSENT BY THE UNITED STATES TO INCOME WITHHOLDING, GARNISHMENT, AND SIMILAR PROCEEDINGS FOR ENFORCEMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT AND ALIMONY OBLIGATIONS.

“(a) CONSENT TO SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law (including section 207 of this Act and section 5301 of title 38, United States Code), effective January 1, 1975, moneys (the entitlement to which is based upon remuneration for employment) due from, or payable by, the United States or the District of Columbia (including any agency, subdivision, or instrumentality thereof) to any individual, including members of the Armed Forces of the United States, shall be subject, in like manner and to the same extent as if the United States or the District of Columbia were a private person, to withholding in accordance with State law enacted pursuant to subsections (a)(1) and (b) of section 466 and regulations of the Secretary under such subsections, and to any other legal process brought, by a State agency administering a program under a State plan approved under this part or by an individual obligee, to enforce the legal obligation of the individual to provide child support or alimony.

“(b) CONSENT TO REQUIREMENTS APPLICABLE TO PRIVATE PERSON.—With respect to notice to withhold income pursuant to subsection (a)(1) or (b) of section 466, or any other order or process to enforce support obligations against an individual (if the order or process contains or is accompanied by sufficient data to permit prompt identification of the individual and the moneys involved), each governmental entity specified in subsection (a) shall be subject to the same requirements as would apply if the entity were a private person, except as otherwise provided in this section.

“(c) DESIGNATION OF AGENT; RESPONSE TO NOTICE OR PROCESS—

“(1) DESIGNATION OF AGENT.—The head of each agency subject to this section shall—

“(A) designate an agent or agents to receive orders and accept service of process in matters relating to child support or alimony; and

“(B) annually publish in the Federal Register the designation of the agent or agents, identified by title or position, mailing address, and telephone number.

“(2) RESPONSE TO NOTICE OR PROCESS.—If an agent designated pursuant to paragraph (1) of this subsection receives notice pursuant to State procedures in effect pursuant to subsection (a)(1) or (b) of section 466, or is effectively served with any order, process, or interrogatory, with respect to an individual's child support or alimony payment obligations, the agent shall—

“(A) as soon as possible (but not later than 15 days) thereafter, send written notice of the notice or service (together with a copy of the notice or service) to the individual at the duty station or last-known home address of the individual;

"(B) within 30 days (or such longer period as may be prescribed by applicable State law) after receipt of a notice pursuant to such State procedures, comply with all applicable provisions of section 466; and

"(C) within 30 days (or such longer period as may be prescribed by applicable State law) after effective service of any other such order, process, or interrogatory, respond to the order, process, or interrogatory.

"(d) PRIORITY OF CLAIMS.—If a governmental entity specified in subsection (a) receives notice or is served with process, as provided in this section, concerning amounts owed by an individual to more than 1 person—

"(1) support collection under section 466(b) must be given priority over any other process, as provided in section 466(b)(7);

"(2) allocation of moneys due or payable to an individual among claimants under section 466(b) shall be governed by section 466(b) and the regulations prescribed under such section; and

"(3) such moneys as remain after compliance with paragraphs (1) and (2) shall be available to satisfy any other such processes on a first-come, first-served basis, with any such process being satisfied out of such moneys as remain after the satisfaction of all such processes which have been previously served.

"(e) NO REQUIREMENT TO VARY PAY CYCLES.—A governmental entity that is affected by legal process served for the enforcement of an individual's child support or alimony payment obligations shall not be required to vary its normal pay and disbursement cycle in order to comply with the legal process.

"(f) RELIEF FROM LIABILITY.—

"(1) Neither the United States, nor the government of the District of Columbia, nor any disbursing officer shall be liable with respect to any payment made from moneys due or payable from the United States to any individual pursuant to legal process regular on its face, if the payment is made in accordance with this section and the regulations issued to carry out this section.

"(2) No Federal employee whose duties include taking actions necessary to comply with the requirements of subsection (a) with regard to any individual shall be subject under any law to any disciplinary action or civil or criminal liability or penalty for, or on account of, any disclosure of information made by the employee in connection with the carrying out of such actions.

"(g) REGULATIONS.—Authority to promulgate regulations for the implementation of this section shall, insofar as this section applies to moneys due from (or payable by)—

"(1) the United States (other than the legislative or judicial branches of the Federal Government) or the government of the District of Columbia, be vested in the President (or the designee of the President);

"(2) the legislative branch of the Federal Government, be vested jointly in the President pro tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives (or their designees), and

"(3) the judicial branch of the Federal Government, be vested in the Chief Justice of the United States (or the designee of the Chief Justice).

"(h) MONEYS SUBJECT TO PROCESS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), moneys paid or payable to an individual which are considered to be based upon remuneration for employment, for purposes of this section—

"(A) consist of—

"(i) compensation paid or payable for personal services of the individual, whether the compensation is denominated as wages, salary, commission, bonus, pay, allowances, or otherwise (including severance pay, sick pay, and incentive pay);

"(ii) periodic benefits (including a periodic benefit as defined in section 228(h)(3)) or other payments—

"(I) under the insurance system established by title II;

"(II) under any other system or fund established by the United States which provides for the payment of pensions, retirement or retired pay, annuities, dependents' or survivors' benefits, or similar amounts payable on account of personal services performed by the individual or any other individual;

"(III) as compensation for death under any Federal program;

"(IV) under any Federal program established to provide 'black lung' benefits; or

"(V) by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs as compensation for a service-connected disability paid by the Secretary to a former member of the Armed Forces who is in receipt of retired or retainer pay if the former member has waived a portion of the retired or retainer pay in order to receive such compensation; and

"(iii) worker's compensation benefits paid under Federal or State law but

"(B) do not include any payment—

"(i) by way of reimbursement or otherwise, to defray expenses incurred by the individual in carrying out duties associated with the employment of the individual; or

"(ii) as allowances for members of the uniformed services payable pursuant to chapter 7 of title 37, United States Code, as prescribed by the Secretaries concerned (defined by section 101(5) of such title) as necessary for the efficient performance of duty.

"(2) CERTAIN AMOUNTS EXCLUDED.—In determining the amount of any moneys due from, or payable by, the United States to any individual, there shall be excluded amounts which—

"(A) are owed by the individual to the United States;

"(B) are required by law to be, and are, deducted from the remuneration or other payment involved, including Federal employment taxes, and fines and forfeitures ordered by court-martial;

"(C) are properly withheld for Federal, State, or local income tax purposes, if the withholding of the amounts is authorized or required by law and if amounts withheld are not greater than would be the case if the individual claimed all dependents to which he was entitled (the withholding of additional amounts pursuant to section 3402(i) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 may be permitted only when the individual presents evidence of a tax obligation which supports the additional withholding);

"(D) are deducted as health insurance premiums;

"(E) are deducted as normal retirement contributions (not including amounts deducted for supplementary coverage); or

"(F) are deducted as normal life insurance premiums from salary or other remuneration for employment (not including amounts deducted for supplementary coverage).

"(i) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) UNITED STATES.—The term 'United States' includes any department, agency, or instrumentality of the legislative, judicial, or executive branch of the Federal Government, the United States Postal Service, the Postal Rate Commission, any Federal corporation created by an Act of Congress that is wholly owned by the Federal Government, and the governments of the territories and possessions of the United States.

"(2) CHILD SUPPORT.—The term 'child support', when used in reference to the legal obligations of an individual to provide such support, means amounts required to be paid under a judgment, decree, or order, whether temporary, final, or subject to modification, issued by a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction, for the support and maintenance of a child, including a child who has attained the age of majority under the law of the issuing State, or a child and the parent with whom the child is living, which provides for monetary support, health care, arrearages or reimbursement, and which may include other related costs and fees, interest and penalties, income withholding, attorney's fees, and other relief.

"(3) ALIMONY.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'alimony', when used in reference to the legal obligations of an individual to provide the same, means periodic payments of funds for the support and maintenance of the spouse (or former spouse) of the individual, and (subject to and in accordance with State law) includes separate maintenance, alimony pendente lite, maintenance, and spousal support, and includes attorney's fees, interest, and court costs when and to the extent that the same are expressly made recoverable as such pursuant to a decree, order, or judgment issued in accordance with applicable State law by a court of competent jurisdiction.

"(B) EXCEPTIONS.—Such term does not include—

"(i) any child support; or

"(ii) any payment or transfer of property or its value by an individual to the spouse or a former spouse of the individual in compliance with any community property settlement, equitable distribution of property, or other division of property between spouses or former spouses.

"(4) PRIVATE PERSON.—The term 'private person' means a person who does not have sovereign or other special immunity or privilege which causes the person not to be subject to legal process.

"(5) LEGAL PROCESS.—The term 'legal process' means any writ, order, summons, or other similar process in the nature of garnishment—

"(A) which is issued by—

"(i) a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction in any State, territory, or possession of the United States;

"(ii) a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction in any foreign country with which the United States has entered into an agreement which requires the United States to honor the process; or

"(iii) an authorized official pursuant to an order of such a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction or pursuant to State or local law; and

"(B) which is directed to, and the purpose of which is to compel, a governmental entity which holds moneys which are otherwise payable to an individual to make a payment from the moneys to another party in order to satisfy a legal obligation of the individual to provide child support or make alimony payments."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) TO PART D OF TITLE IV.—Sections 461 and 462 (42 U.S.C. 661 and 662) are repealed.

(2) TO TITLE 5, UNITED STATES CODE.—Section 5520a of title 5, United States Code, is amended, in subsections (h)(2) and (i), by striking "sections 459, 461, and 462 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 659, 661, and 662)" and inserting "section 459 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 659)".

(c) MILITARY RETIRED AND RETAINER PAY.—

(1) DEFINITION OF COURT.—Section 1408(a)(1) of title 10, United States Code, is amended—

(A) by striking "and" at the end of subparagraph (B);

(B) by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting "; and"; and

(C) by adding after subparagraph (C) the following new subparagraph:

"(D) any administrative or judicial tribunal of a State competent to enter orders for support or maintenance (including a State agency administering a program under a State plan approved under part D of title IV of the Social Security Act), and, for purposes of this subparagraph, the term 'State' includes the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa."

(2) DEFINITION OF COURT ORDER.—Section 1408(a)(2) of such title is amended—

(A) by inserting "or a support order, as defined in section 453(p) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 653(p))," before "which—";

(B) in subparagraph (B)(i), by striking "(as defined in section 462(b) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 662(b)))" and inserting "(as defined in section 459(i)(2) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 659(i)(2)))"; and

(C) in subparagraph (B)(ii), by striking "(as defined in section 462(c) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 662(c)))" and inserting "(as defined in section 459(i)(3) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 659(i)(3)))".

(3) PUBLIC PAYEE.—Section 1408(d) of such title is amended—

(A) in the heading, by inserting "(OR FOR BENEFIT OF)" before "SPOUSE OR"; and

(B) in paragraph (1), in the 1st sentence, by inserting "(or for the benefit of such spouse or former spouse to a State disbursement unit established pursuant to section 454B of the Social Security Act or other public payee designated by a State, in accordance with part D of title IV of the Social Security Act, as directed by court order, or as otherwise directed in accordance with such part D)" before "in an amount sufficient".

(4) RELATIONSHIP TO PART D OF TITLE IV.—Section 1408 of such title is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

(j) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAWS.—In any case involving an order providing for payment of child support (as defined in section 459(i)(2) of the Social Security Act) by a member who has never been married to the other parent of the child, the provisions of this section shall not apply, and the case shall be subject to the provisions of section 459 of such Act."

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall become effective 6 months after the date of the enactment of this title.

SEC. 563. ENFORCEMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT OBLIGATIONS OF MEMBERS OF THE ARMED FORCES.

(a) AVAILABILITY OF LOCATOR INFORMATION.—

(1) MAINTENANCE OF ADDRESS INFORMATION.—The Secretary of Defense shall establish a centralized personnel locator service that includes the address of each member of the Armed Forces under the jurisdiction of the Secretary. Upon request of the Secretary of Transportation, addresses for members of the Coast Guard shall be included in the centralized personnel locator service.

(2) TYPE OF ADDRESS.—

(A) RESIDENTIAL ADDRESS.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the address for a member of the Armed Forces shown in the locator service shall be the residential address of that member.

(B) DUTY ADDRESS.—The address for a member of the Armed Forces shown in the locator service shall be the duty address of that member in the case of a member—

(i) who is permanently assigned overseas, to a vessel, or to a routinely deployable unit; or

(ii) with respect to whom the Secretary concerned makes a determination that the member's residential address should not be disclosed due to national security or safety concerns.

(3) UPDATING OF LOCATOR INFORMATION.—Within 30 days after a member listed in the locator service establishes a new residential address (or a new duty address, in the case of a member covered by paragraph (2)(B)), the Secretary concerned shall update the locator service to indicate the new address of the member.

(4) AVAILABILITY OF INFORMATION.—The Secretary of Defense shall make information regarding the address of a member of the Armed Forces listed in the locator service available, on request, to the Federal Parent Locator Service established under section 453 of the Social Security Act.

(b) FACILITATING GRANTING OF LEAVE FOR ATTENDANCE AT HEARINGS.—

(1) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of each military department, and the Secretary of Transportation with respect to the Coast Guard when it is not operating as a service in the Navy, shall prescribe regulations to facilitate the granting of leave to a member of the Armed Forces under the jurisdiction of that Secretary in a case in which—

(A) the leave is needed for the member to attend a hearing described in paragraph (2);

(B) the member is not serving in or with a unit deployed in a contingency operation (as defined in section 101 of title 10, United States Code); and

(C) the exigencies of military service (as determined by the Secretary concerned) do not otherwise require that such leave not be granted.

(2) COVERED HEARINGS.—Paragraph (1) applies to a hearing that is conducted by a court or pursuant to an administrative process established under State law, in connection with a civil action—

(A) to determine whether a member of the Armed Forces is a natural parent of a child; or

(B) to determine an obligation of a member of the Armed Forces to provide child support.

(3) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this subsection—

(A) The term "court" has the meaning given that term in section 1408(a) of title 10, United States Code.

(B) The term "child support" has the meaning given such term in section 459(i) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 659(i)).

(c) PAYMENT OF MILITARY RETIRED PAY IN COMPLIANCE WITH CHILD SUPPORT ORDERS.—

(1) DATE OF CERTIFICATION OF COURT ORDER.—Section 1408 of title 10, United States Code, as amended by section 562(c)(4) of this title, is amended—

(A) by redesignating subsections (i) and (j) as subsections (j) and (k), respectively; and

(B) by inserting after subsection (h) the following new subsection:

"(i) CERTIFICATION DATE.—It is not necessary that the date of a certification of the authenticity or completeness of a copy of a court order for child support received by the Secretary concerned for the purposes of this section be recent in relation to the date of receipt by the Secretary."

(2) PAYMENTS CONSISTENT WITH ASSIGNMENTS OF RIGHTS TO STATES.—Section 1408(d)(1) of such title is amended by inserting after the 1st sentence the following new sentence: "In the case of a spouse or former spouse who, pursuant to section 408(a)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 608(a)(4)), assigns to a State the rights of the spouse or former spouse to receive support, the Secretary concerned may make the child support payments referred to in the preceding sentence to that State in amounts consistent with that assignment of rights."

(3) ARREARAGES OWED BY MEMBERS OF THE UNIFORMED SERVICES.—Section 1408(d) of such title is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(6) In the case of a court order for which effective service is made on the Secretary concerned on or after the date of the enactment of this paragraph and which provides for payments from the disposable retired pay of a member to satisfy the amount of child support set forth in the order, the authority provided in paragraph (1) to make payments from the disposable retired pay of a member to satisfy the amount of child support set forth in a court order shall apply to payment of any amount of child support arrearages set forth in that order as well as to amounts of child support that currently become due."

(4) PAYROLL DEDUCTIONS.—The Secretary of Defense shall begin payroll deductions within 30 days after receiving notice of withholding, or for the 1st pay period that begins after such 30-day period.

SEC. 564. VOIDING OF FRAUDULENT TRANSFERS.

Section 466 (42 U.S.C. 666), as amended by section 521 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

"(g) LAWS VOIDING FRAUDULENT TRANSFERS.—In order to satisfy section 454(20)(A), each State must have in effect—

"(1)(A) the Uniform Fraudulent Conveyance Act of 1981;

"(B) the Uniform Fraudulent Transfer Act of 1984; or

"(C) another law, specifying indicia of fraud which create a prima facie case that a debtor transferred income or property to avoid payment to a child support creditor, which the Secretary finds affords comparable rights to child support creditors; and

"(2) procedures under which, in any case in which the State knows of a transfer by a child support debtor with respect to which such a prima facie case is established, the State must—

"(A) seek to void such transfer; or

"(B) obtain a settlement in the best interests of the child support creditor."

SEC. 565. WORK REQUIREMENT FOR PERSONS OWING PAST-DUE CHILD SUPPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 466(a) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)), as amended by sections 515, 517(a), and 523 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

"(15) PROCEDURES TO ENSURE THAT PERSONS OWING PAST-DUE SUPPORT WORK OR HAVE A PLAN FOR PAYMENT OF SUCH SUPPORT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Procedures under which the State has the authority, in any case in which an individual owes past-due support with respect to a child receiving assistance under a State program funded under part A, to issue an order or to request that a court or an administrative process established pursuant to State law issue an order that requires the individual to—

"(i) pay such support in accordance with a plan approved by the court, or, at the option of the State, a plan approved by the State agency administering the State program under this part; or

"(ii) if the individual is subject to such a plan and is not incapacitated, participate in such work activities (as defined in section 407(d)) as the court, or, at the option of the State, the State agency administering the State program under this part, deems appropriate.

"(B) PAST-DUE SUPPORT DEFINED.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term 'past-due support' means the amount of a delinquency, determined under a court order, or an order of an administrative process established under State law, for support and maintenance of a child, or of a child and the parent with whom the child is living.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—The flush paragraph at the end of section 466(a) (42 U.S.C.666(a)) is amended by striking “and (7)” and inserting “(7), and (15)”.

SEC. 566. DEFINITION OF SUPPORT ORDER.

Section 453 (42 U.S.C. 653) as amended by sections 516 and 515(b) of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(p) SUPPORT ORDER DEFINED.—As used in this part, the term ‘support order’ means a judgment, decree, or order, whether temporary, final, or subject to modification, issued by a court or an administrative agency of competent jurisdiction, for the support and maintenance of a child, including a child who has attained the age of majority under the law of the issuing State, or a child and the parent with whom the child is living, which provides for monetary support, health care, arrearages, or reimbursement, and which may include related costs and fees, interest and penalties, income withholding, attorneys’ fees, and other relief.”.

SEC. 567. REPORTING ARREARAGES TO CREDIT BUREAUS.

Section 466(a)(7) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)(7)) is amended to read as follows:

“(7) REPORTING ARREARAGES TO CREDIT BUREAUS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Procedures (subject to safeguards pursuant to subparagraph (B)) requiring the State to report periodically to consumer reporting agencies (as defined in section 603(f) of the Fair Credit Reporting Act (15 U.S.C. 1681a(f)) the name of any non-custodial parent who is delinquent in the payment of support, and the amount of overdue support owed by such parent.

“(B) SAFEGUARDS.—Procedures ensuring that, in carrying out subparagraph (A), information with respect to a noncustodial parent is reported—

“(i) only after such parent has been afforded all due process required under State law, including notice and a reasonable opportunity to contest the accuracy of such information; and

“(ii) only to an entity that has furnished evidence satisfactory to the State that the entity is a consumer reporting agency (as so defined).”.

SEC. 568. LIENS.

Section 466(a)(4) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)(4)) is amended to read as follows:

“(4) LIENS.—Procedures under which—
“(A) liens arise by operation of law against real and personal property for amounts of overdue support owed by a noncustodial parent who resides or owns property in the State; and

“(B) the State accords full faith and credit to liens described in subparagraph (A) arising in another State, when the State agency, party, or other entity seeking to enforce such a lien complies with the procedural rules relating to recording or serving liens that arise within the State, except that such rules may not require judicial notice or hearing prior to the enforcement of such a lien.”.

SEC. 569. STATE LAW AUTHORIZING SUSPENSION OF LICENSES.

Section 466(a) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)), as amended by sections 515, 517(a), 523, and 565 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(16) AUTHORITY TO WITHHOLD OR SUSPEND LICENSES.—Procedures under which the State has (and uses in appropriate cases) authority to withhold or suspend, or to restrict the use of driver’s licenses, professional and occupational licenses, and recreational licenses of individuals owing overdue support or failing, after receiving appropriate notice, to comply with subpoenas or warrants relating to paternity or child support proceedings.”.

SEC. 570. DENIAL OF PASSPORTS FOR NONPAYMENT OF CHILD SUPPORT.

(a) HHS CERTIFICATION PROCEDURE.—

(1) SECRETARIAL RESPONSIBILITY.—Section 452 (42 U.S.C. 652), as amended by section 545 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(k)(1) If the Secretary receives a certification by a State agency in accordance with the requirements of section 454(31) that an individual owes arrearages of child support in an amount exceeding $5,000, the Secretary shall transmit such certification to the Secretary of State for action (with respect to denial, revocation, or limitation of passports) pursuant paragraph (2).

“(2) The Secretary of State shall, upon certification by the Secretary transmitted under paragraph (1), refuse to issue a passport to such individual, and may revoke, restrict, or limit a passport issued previously to such individual.

“(3) The Secretary and the Secretary of State shall not be liable to an individual for any action with respect to a certification by a State agency under this section.”.

(2) STATE AGENCY RESPONSIBILITY.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 501(b), 503(a), 512(b), 513(a), 533, and 543(b) of this title, is amended—

(A) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (29);

(B) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (30) and inserting “; and”; and

(C) by adding after paragraph (30) the following new paragraph:

“(31) provide that the State agency will have in effect a procedure for certifying to the Secretary, for purposes of the procedure under section 452(k), determinations that individuals owe arrearages of child support in an amount exceeding $5,000, under which procedure—

“(A) each individual concerned is afforded notice of such determination and the consequences thereof, and an opportunity to contest the determination; and

“(B) the certification by the State agency is furnished to the Secretary in such format, and accompanied by such supporting documentation, as the Secretary may require.”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section and the amendments made by this section shall become effective October 1, 1997.

SEC. 571. INTERNATIONAL SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT.

(a) AUTHORITY FOR INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENTS.—Part D of title IV, as amended by section 562(a) of this title, is amended by adding after section 459 the following new section:

“SEC. 459A. INTERNATIONAL SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT.

“(a) AUTHORITY FOR DECLARATIONS.—

“(1) DECLARATION.—The Secretary of State, with the concurrence of the Secretary of Health and Human Services, is authorized to declare any foreign country (or a political subdivision thereof) to be a foreign reciprocating country if the foreign country has established, or undertakes to establish, procedures for the establishment and enforcement of duties of support owed to obligees who are residents of the United States, and such procedures are substantially in conformity with the standards prescribed under subsection (b).

“(2) REVOCATION.—A declaration with respect to a foreign country made pursuant to paragraph (1) may be revoked if the Secretaries of State and Health and Human Services determine that—

“(A) the procedures established by the foreign country regarding the establishment and enforcement of duties of support have been so changed, or the foreign country’s implementation of such procedures is so unsatisfactory, that such procedures do not meet the criteria for such a declaration; or “(B) continued operation of the declaration is not consistent with the purposes of this part.

“(3) FORM OF DECLARATION.—A declaration under paragraph (1) may be made in the form of an international agreement, in connection with an international agreement or corresponding foreign declaration, or on a unilateral basis.

“(b) STANDARDS FOR FOREIGN SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT PROCEDURES.—

“(1) MANDATORY ELEMENTS.—Support enforcement procedures of a foreign country which may be the subject of a declaration pursuant to subsection (a)(1) shall include the following elements:

“(A) The foreign country (or political subdivision thereof) has in effect procedures, available to residents of the United States—

“(i) for establishment of paternity, and for establishment of orders of support for children and custodial parents; and

“(ii) for enforcement of orders to provide support to children and custodial parents, including procedures for collection and appropriate distribution of child support payments under such orders.

“(B) The procedures described in subparagraph (A), including legal and administrative assistance, are provided to residents of the United States at no cost.

“(C) An agency of the foreign country is designated as a Central Authority responsible for—

“(i) facilitating support enforcement in cases involving residents of the foreign country and residents of the United States; and “(ii) ensuring compliance with the standards established pursuant to this subsection.

“(2) ADDITIONAL ELEMENTS.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of State, in consultation with the States, may establish such additional standards as may be considered necessary to further the purposes of this section.

“(c) DESIGNATION OF UNITED STATES CENTRAL AUTHORITY.—It shall be the responsibility of the Secretary of Health and Human Services to facilitate support enforcement in cases involving residents of the United States and residents of foreign countries that are the subject of a declaration under this section, by activities including—

“(1) development of uniform forms and procedures for use in such cases;

“(2) notification of foreign reciprocating countries of the State of residence of individuals sought for support enforcement purposes, on the basis of information provided by the Federal Parent Locator Service; and

“(3) such other oversight, assistance, and coordination activities as the Secretary may find necessary and appropriate.

“(d) EFFECT ON OTHER LAWS.—States may enter into reciprocal arrangements for the establishment and enforcement of support obligations with foreign countries that are not the subject of a declaration pursuant to subsection (a), to the extent consistent with Federal law.”.

(b) STATE PLAN REQUIREMENT.—Section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654), as amended by sections 501(b), 503(a), 512(b), 513(a), 533, 543(b), and 570(a)(2) of this title, is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (30);

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (31) and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by adding after paragraph (31) the following new paragraph:

“(32)(A) provide that any request for services under this part by a foreign reciprocating country or a foreign country with which the State has an arrangement described in section 459A(d)(2) shall be treated as a request by a State;

“(B) provide, at State option, notwithstanding paragraph (4) or any other provision of this part, for services under the plan for enforcement of a spousal support order not described in paragraph (4)(B) entered by such a country (or subdivision); and

“(C) provide that no applications will be required from, and no costs will be assessed for such services against, the foreign reciprocating country or foreign obligee (but costs may at State option be assessed against the obligor).”

SEC. 572. FINANCIAL INSTITUTION DATA MATCHES.

Section 466(a) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)), as amended by sections 515, 517(a), 523, 565, and 569 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(17) FINANCIAL INSTITUTION DATA MATCHES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Procedures under which the State agency shall enter into agreements with financial institutions doing business in the State—

“(i) to develop and operate, in coordination with such financial institutions, a data match system, using automated data exchanges to the maximum extent feasible, in which each such financial institution is required to provide for each calendar quarter the name, record address, social security number or other taxpayer identification number, and other identifying information for each noncustodial parent who maintains an account at such institution and who owes past-due support, as identified by the State by name and social security number or other taxpayer identification number; and

“(ii) in response to a notice of lien or levy, encumber or surrender, as the case may be, assets held by such institution on behalf of any noncustodial parent who is subject to a child support lien pursuant to paragraph (4).

“(B) REASONABLE FEES.—The State agency may pay a reasonable fee to a financial institution for conducting the data match provided for in subparagraph (A)(i), not to exceed the actual costs incurred by such financial institution.

“(C) LIABILITY.—A financial institution shall not be liable under any Federal or State law to any person—

“(i) for any disclosure of information to the State agency under subparagraph (A)(i);

“(ii) for encumbering or surrendering any assets held by such financial institution in response to a notice of lien or levy issued by the State agency as provided for in subparagraph (A)(ii); or “(iii) for any other action taken in good faith to comply with the requirements of subparagraph (A).

“(D) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this paragraph—

“(i) FINANCIAL INSTITUTION.—The term ‘financial institution’ has the meaning given to such term by section 469A(d)(1).

“(ii) ACCOUNT.—The term ‘account’ means a demand deposit account, checking or negotiable withdrawal order account, savings account, time deposit account, or money-market mutual fund account.”

(1) in paragraph (16) by striking the period at the end and inserting “; or”;

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(17) owed under State law to a State or municipality that is—

“(A) in the nature of support, and

“(B) enforceable under part D of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.)”, and

(3) in paragraph (5), by striking “section 402(a)(26)” and inserting “section 408(a)(4)”.

(b) AMENDMENT TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.—Section 456(b) (42 U.S.C. 656(b)) is amended to read as follows:

“(b) NONDISCHARGEABILITY.—A debt (as defined in section 101 of title 11 of the United States Code) owed under State law to a State (as defined in such section) or municipality (as defined in such section) that is in the nature of support and that is enforceable under this part is not released by a discharge in bankruptcy under title 11 of the United States Code.”

(c) APPLICATION OF AMENDMENTS.—The amendments made by this section shall apply only with respect to cases commenced under title 11 of the United States Code after the date of the enactment of this title.

Subtitle H—Medical Support

SEC. 581. CORRECTION TO ERISA DEFINITION OF MEDICAL CHILD SUPPORT ORDER.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 609(a)(2)(B) of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1169(a)(2)(B)) is amended—

(1) by striking “issued by a court of competent jurisdiction”;

(2) by striking the period at the end of clause (ii) and inserting a comma; and

(3) by adding, after and below clause (ii), the following:

“if such judgment, decree, or order (I) is issued by a court of competent jurisdiction or (II) is issued through an administrative process established under State law and has the force and effect of law under applicable State law.”

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this title.

(2) PLAN AMENDMENTS NOT REQUIRED UNTIL JANUARY 1, 1997.—Any amendment to a plan required to be made by an amendment made by this section shall not be required to be made before the 1st plan year beginning on or after January 1, 1997, if—

(A) during the period after the date before the date of the enactment of this title and before such 1st plan year, the plan is operated in accordance with the requirements of the amendments made by this section; and

(B) such plan amendment applies retroactively to the period after the date before the date of the enactment of this Act and before such 1st plan year.

A plan shall not be treated as failing to be operated in accordance with the provisions of the plan merely because it operates in accordance with this paragraph.

SEC. 582. ENFORCEMENT OF ORDERS FOR HEALTH CARE COVERAGE.

Section 466(a) (42 U.S.C. 666(a)), as amended by sections 515, 517(a), 523, 565, 569, 572, and 573 of this title, is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(19) HEALTH CARE COVERAGE.—Procedures under which all child support orders enforced pursuant to this part shall include a provision for the health care coverage of the child, and in the case in which a noncustodial parent provides such coverage and changes employment, and the new employer provides health care coverage, the State agency shall transfer notice of the provision to the employer, which notice shall operate to enroll the child in the noncustodial parent's health plan, unless the noncustodial parent contests the notice.”

Subtitle I—Enhancing Responsibility and Opportunity for Non-Residential Parents

SEC. 591. GRANTS TO STATES FOR ACCESS AND VISITATION PROGRAMS.

Part D of title IV (42 U.S.C. 651-669), as amended by section 553, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“SEC. 469B. GRANTS TO STATES FOR ACCESS AND VISITATION PROGRAMS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Administration for Children and Families shall make grants under this section to enable States to establish and administer programs to support and facilitate noncustodial parents' access to and visitation of their children, by means of activities including mediation (both voluntary and mandatory), counseling, education, development of parenting plans, visitation enforcement (including monitoring, supervision and neutral drop-off and pickup), and development of guidelines for visitation and alternative custody arrangements.

“(b) AMOUNT OF GRANT.—The amount of the grant to be made to a State under this section for a fiscal year shall be an amount equal to the lesser of—

“(1) 90 percent of State expenditures during the fiscal year for activities described in subsection (a); or

“(2) the allotment of the State under subsection (c) for the fiscal year.

“(c) ALLOTMENTS TO STATES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The allotment of a State for a fiscal year is the amount that bears the same ratio to the amount appropriated for grants under this section for the fiscal year as the number of children in the State living with only 1 biological parent bears to the total number of such children in all States.

“(2) MINIMUM ALLOTMENT.—The Administration for Children and Families shall adjust allotments to States under paragraph (1) as necessary to ensure that no State is allotted less than—

“(A) $50,000 for fiscal year 1997 or 1998; or

“(B) $100,000 for any succeeding fiscal year.

“(d) NO SUPPLANTATION OF STATE EXPENDITURES FOR SIMILAR ACTIVITIES.—A State to which a grant is made under this section may not use the grant to supplant expenditures by the State for activities specified in subsection (a), but shall use the grant to supplement such expenditures at a level at least equal to the level of such expenditures for fiscal year 1995.

“(e) STATE ADMINISTRATION.—Each State to which a grant is made under this section—

“(1) may administer State programs funded with the grant, directly or through grants to or contracts with courts, local public agencies, or non-profit private entities;

“(2) shall not be required to operate such programs on a statewide basis; and

“(3) shall monitor, evaluate, and report on such programs in accordance with regulations prescribed by the Secretary.”

Subtitle J—Effective Dates and Conforming Amendments

SEC. 595. EFFECTIVE DATES AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise specifically provided (but subject to subsections (b) and (c))—

(1) the provisions of this title requiring the enactment or amendment of State laws under section 466 of the Social Security Act, or revision of State plans under section 454 of such Act, shall be effective with respect to periods beginning on and after October 1, 1996; and

(2) all other provisions of this title shall become effective upon the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) GRACE PERIOD FOR STATE LAW CHANGES.—The provisions of this title shall become effective with respect to a State on the later of—

(1) the date specified in this title, or

(2) the effective date of laws enacted by the legislature of such State implementing such provisions, but in no event later than the 1st day of the 1st calendar quarter beginning after the close of the 1st regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of the enactment of this Act. For purposes of the previous sentence, in the case of a State that has a 2-year legislative session, each year of such session shall be deemed to be a separate regular session of the State legislature.

(c) GRACE PERIOD FOR STATE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.—A State shall not be found out of compliance with any requirement enacted by this title if the State is unable to so comply without amending the State constitution until the earlier of—

(1) 1 year after the effective date of the necessary State constitutional amendment; or

(2) 5 years after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) The following provisions are amended by striking "absent" each place it appears and inserting "noncustodial":

(A) Section 451 (42 U.S.C. 651).

(B) Subsections (a)(1), (a)(8), (a)(10)(E), (a)(10)(F), (f), and (h) of section 452 (42 U.S.C. 652).

(C) Subsections (a) and (f) of section 453 (42 U.S.C. 653).

(D) Paragraphs (8), (13), and (21)(A) of section 454 (42 U.S.C. 654).

(E) Section 455(e)(1) (42 U.S.C. 655(e)(1)).

(F) Section 458(a) (42 U.S.C. 658(a)).

(G) Subsections (a), (b), and (c) of section 463 (42 U.S.C. 663).

(H) Subsections (a)(3)(A), (a)(3)(C), (a)(6), and (a)(8)(B)(ii), the last sentence of subsection (a), and subsections (b)(1), (b)(3)(B), (b)(3)(B)(i), (b)(6)(A)(i), (b)(8), (b)(9), and (e) of section 466 (42 U.S.C. 666).

(2) The following provisions are amended by striking "an absent" each place it appears and inserting "a noncustodial":

(A) Paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 453(c) (42 U.S.C. 653(c)).

(B) Subparagraphs (B) and (C) of section 454(9) (42 U.S.C. 654(9)).

(C) Section 456(a)(3) (42 U.S.C. 656(a)(3)).

(D) Subsections (a)(3)(A), (a)(6), (a)(8)(B)(i), (b)(3)(A), and (b)(3)(B) of section 466 (42 U.S.C. 666).

(E) Paragraphs (2) and (4) of section 469 (42 U.S.C. 669).

TITLE VI—SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME REFORM

Subtitle A—Eligibility Restrictions

SEC. 601. DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS FOR 10 YEARS TO INDIVIDUALS FOUND TO HAVE FRAUDULENTLY MISREPRESENTED RESIDENCE IN ORDER TO OBTAIN BENEFITS SIMULTANEOUSLY IN 2 OR MORE STATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1614(a) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(5) An individual shall not be considered an eligible individual for purposes of this title during the 10-year period beginning on the date the individual is convicted in Federal or State court of having made a fraudulent statement or representation with respect to the place of residence of the individual in order to receive benefits simultaneously from 2 or more States under programs that are funded under part A of title IV, title XIX, or the Food Stamp Act of 1977, or benefits in 2 or more States under the supplemental security income program under title XVI."

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall take effect on the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 602. DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS FOR FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1611(e) (42 U.S.C. 1382(e)) is amended by inserting after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

"(3) A person shall not be an eligible individual or eligible spouse for purposes of this title with respect to any month if during such month the person is—

"(A) fleeing to avoid prosecution, or custody or confinement after conviction, under the laws of the place from which the person flees, for a crime, or an attempt to commit a crime, which is a felony under the laws of the place from which the person flees, or which, in the case of the State of New Jersey, is a high misdemeanor under the laws of such State; or

"(B) violating a condition of probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law."

(b) EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—Section 1631(e) (42 U.S.C. 1383(e)) is amended by inserting after paragraph (3) the following new paragraph:

"(4) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Commissioner shall furnish any Federal, State, or local law enforcement officer, upon the request of the officer, with the current address, social security number, and photograph (if applicable) of any recipient of benefits under this title, if the officer furnishes the agency with the name of the recipient and notifies the agency that—

"(A) the recipient—

"(i) is fleeing to avoid prosecution, or custody or confinement after conviction, under the laws of the place from which the person flees, for a crime, or an attempt to commit a crime, which is a felony under the laws of the place from which the person flees, or which, in the case of the State of New Jersey, is a high misdemeanor under the laws of such State;

"(ii) is violating a condition of probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law; or

"(iii) has information that is necessary for the officer to conduct the officer's official duties; and

"(B) the location or apprehension of the recipient is within the officer's official duties."

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall be effective on and after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 603. TREATMENT OF PRISONERS.

(a) IMPLEMENTATION OF PROHIBITION AGAINST PAYMENT OF BENEFITS TO PRISONERS.—Section 1611(e)(1) (42 U.S.C. 1382(e)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(I)(i) The Commissioner shall enter into a contract, with any interested State or local institution referred to in subparagraph (A), under which—

"(I) the institution shall provide to the Commissioner, on a monthly basis, the names, social security account numbers, dates of birth, and such other identifying information concerning the inmates of the institution as the Commissioner may require for the purpose of carrying out paragraph (1); and

"(II) the Commissioner shall pay to any such institution, with respect to each inmate of the institution who is eligible for a benefit under this title for the month preceding the first month throughout which such inmate is in such institution and becomes ineligible for such benefit (or becomes eligible only for a benefit payable at a reduced rate) as a result of the application of this paragraph, an amount not to exceed $400 if the institution furnishes the information described in subclause (I) to the Commissioner within 30 days after such individual becomes an inmate of such institution, or an amount not to exceed $200 if the institution furnishes such information after 30 days after such date but within 90 days after such date.

"(ii) The provisions of section 552a of title 5, United States Code, shall not apply to any contract entered into under clause (i) or to information exchanged pursuant to such contract.

"(iii) Payments to institutions required by clause (i)(II) shall be made from funds otherwise available for the payment of benefits under this title and shall be treated as direct spending for purposes of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985."

(b) DENIAL OF SSI BENEFITS FOR 10 YEARS TO A PERSON FOUND TO HAVE FRAUDULENTLY OBTAINED SSI BENEFITS WHILE IN PRISON.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1611(e)(1) (42 U.S.C. 1382(e)(1)), as amended by subsection (a)(1), is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

"(J) In any case in which the Commissioner of Social Security finds that a person has made a fraudulent statement or representation in order to obtain or to continue to receive benefits under this title while being an inmate in a penal institution, such person shall not be considered an eligible individual or eligible spouse for any month ending during the 10-year period beginning on the date on which such person ceases being such an inmate."

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this subsection shall apply with respect to statements or representations made on or after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(d) STUDY OF OTHER POTENTIAL IMPROVEMENTS IN THE COLLECTION OF INFORMATION RESPECTING PUBLIC INMATES.—

(1) STUDY.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall conduct a study of the desirability, feasibility, and cost of—

(A) establishing a system under which Federal, State, and local courts would furnish to the Commissioner such information respecting court orders by which individuals are confined in jails, prisons, or other public penal, correctional, or medical facilities as the Commissioner may require for the purpose of carrying out sections 202(x) and 1611(e)(1) of the Social Security Act; and

(B) requiring that State and local jails, prisons, and other institutions that enter into contracts with the Commissioner under section 202(x)(3)(B) or 1611(e)(1)(I) of the Social Security Act furnish the information required by such contracts to the Commissioner by means of an electronic or other sophisticated data exchange system.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commissioner of Social Security shall submit a report on the results of the study conducted pursuant to this subsection to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives.

SEC. 604. EFFECTIVE DATE OF APPLICATION FOR BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subparagraphs (A) and (B) of section 1611(c)(7) (42 U.S.C. 1382(c)(7)) are amended to read as follows:

"(A) the first day of the month following the date such application is filed, or

"(B) the first day of the month following the date such individual becomes eligible for such benefits with respect to such application.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 1614(b) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(b)) is amended by striking “at the time the application or request is filed” and inserting “on the first day of the month following the date the application or request is filed”.

(2) Section 1631(g)(3) (42 U.S.C. 1382j(g)(3)) is amended by inserting “following the month” after “beginning with the month”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to applications for benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act filed on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether regulations have been issued to implement such amendments.

(2) BENEFITS UNDER TITLE XVI.—For purposes of this subsection, the term “benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act” includes supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a) of the Social Security Act, and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.

Subtitle B—Benefits for Disabled Children
SEC. 611. DEFINITION AND ELIGIBILITY RULES.

(a) DEFINITION OF CHILDHOOD DISABILITY.—Section 1614(a)(3) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)(3)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (A), by striking “An individual” and inserting “Except as provided in subparagraph (C), an individual”;

(2) in subparagraph (A), by striking “(or, in the case of an individual under the age of 18, if he suffers from any medically determinable physical or mental impairment of comparable severity)”;

(3) by redesignating subparagraphs (C) through (I) as subparagraphs (D) through (J), respectively;

(4) by inserting after subparagraph (B) the following new subparagraph:

“(C) An individual under the age of 18 shall be considered disabled for the purposes of this title if that individual has a medically determinable physical or mental impairment, which results in marked and severe functional limitations, and which can be expected to result in death or which has lasted or can be expected to last for a continuous period of not less than 12 months.”; and

(5) in subparagraph (F), as redesignated by paragraph (3), by striking “(D)” and inserting “(E)”.

(b) CHANGES TO CHILDHOOD SSI REGULATIONS.—

(1) MODIFICATION TO MEDICAL CRITERIA FOR EVALUATION OF MENTAL AND EMOTIONAL DISORDERS.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall modify sections 112.00C.2. and 112.02B.2.c.(2) of appendix 1 to subpart P of part 404 of title 20, Code of Federal Regulations, to eliminate references to maladaptive behavior in the domain of personal/behavioral function.

(2) DISCONTINUANCE OF INDIVIDUALIZED FUNCTIONAL ASSESSMENT.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall discontinue the individualized functional assessment for children set forth in sections 416.924d and 416.924e of title 20, Code of Federal Regulations.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE; MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The provisions of, and amendments made by, subsections (a) and (b) shall apply to applicants for benefits for months beginning on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether regulations have been issued to implement such provisions and amendments.

(2) REGULATIONS.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall issue such regulations as the Commissioner determines to be necessary to implement the provisions of, and amendments made by, subsections (a) and (b) not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(3) APPLICATION TO CURRENT RECIPIENTS.—

(A) ELIGIBILITY DETERMINATIONS.—During the period beginning on January 1, 1997, and ending not later than December 31, 1997, the Commissioner of Social Security shall redetermine the eligibility of any individual under age 18 who is receiving supplemental security income benefits based on a disability under title XVI of the Social Security Act as of the date of the enactment of this Act and whose eligibility for such benefits may terminate by reason of the provisions of, and amendments made by, subsection (a) or (b). With respect to any redetermination under this subparagraph—

(i) section 1614(a)(4) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)(4)) shall not apply;

(ii) the Commissioner of Social Security shall apply the eligibility criteria for new applicants for benefits under title XVI of such Act;

(iii) the Commissioner shall give such redetermination priority over all continuing eligibility reviews and other reviews under such title; and

(iv) such redetermination shall be counted as a review or redetermination otherwise required to be made under section 208 of the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994 or any other provision of title XVI of the Social Security Act.

(B) GRANDFATHER PROVISION.—The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b), and the redetermination under subparagraph (A), shall only apply with respect to the benefits of an individual described in subparagraph (A) for months beginning on or after January 1, 1998.

(C) NOTICE.—Not later than January 1, 1997, the Commissioner of Social Security shall notify an individual described in subparagraph (A) of the provisions of this paragraph.

(4) APPROPRIATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, there are authorized to be appropriated and are hereby appropriated, to remain available without fiscal year limitation, $200,000,000 for fiscal year 1996, $75,000,000 for fiscal year 1997, and $25,000,000 for fiscal year 1998, for the Commissioner of Social Security to utilize only for continuing disability reviews and redeterminations under title XVI of the Social Security Act, with reviews and redeterminations for individuals affected by the provisions of subsection (b) given highest priority.

(B) ADDITIONAL FUNDS.—Amounts appropriated under subparagraph (A) shall be in addition to any funds otherwise appropriated for continuing disability reviews and redeterminations under title XVI of the Social Security Act.

(5) BENEFITS UNDER TITLE XVI.—For purposes of this subsection, the term “benefits under title XVI of the Social Security Act” includes supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a) of the Social Security Act, and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.

SEC. 612. ELIGIBILITY REDETERMINATIONS AND CONTINUING DISABILITY REVIEWS.

(a) CONTINUING DISABILITY REVIEWS RELATING TO CERTAIN CHILDREN.—Section 1614(a)(3)(H) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)(3)(H)), as redesignated by section 611(a)(3), is amended—

(1) by inserting “(i)” after “(H)”;

(2) by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(i)(I) Not less frequently than once every 3 years, the Commissioner shall review in accordance with paragraph (4) the continued eligibility for benefits under this title of each individual who has not attained 18 years of age and is eligible for such benefits by reason of an impairment (or combination of impairments) which may improve (or, which is unlikely to improve, at the option of the Commissioner).

“(II) A parent or guardian of a recipient whose case is reviewed under this clause shall present, at the time of review, evidence demonstrating that the recipient is, and has been, receiving treatment, to the extent considered medically necessary and available, of the condition which was the basis for providing benefits under this title.”.

(b) DISABILITY ELIGIBILITY REDETERMINATIONS REQUIRED FOR SSI RECIPIENTS WHO ATTAIN 18 YEARS OF AGE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1614(a)(3)(H) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)(3)(H)), as amended by subsection (a), is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(iii) If an individual is eligible for benefits under this title by reason of disability for the month preceding the month in which the individual attains the age of 18 years, the Commissioner shall redetermine such eligibility—

“(I) during the 1-year period beginning on the individual’s 18th birthday; and “(II) by applying the criteria used in determining the initial eligibility for applicants who have attained the age of 18 years.

With respect to a redetermination under this clause, paragraph (4) shall not apply and such redetermination shall be considered a substitute for a review or redetermination otherwise required under any other provision of this subparagraph during that 1-year period.”.

(2) CONFORMING REPEAL.—Section 207 of the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994 (42 U.S.C. 1382 note; 108 Stat. 1516) is hereby repealed.

(c) CONTINUING DISABILITY REVIEW REQUIRED FOR LOW BIRTH WEIGHT BABIES.—Section 1614(a)(3)(H) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(a)(3)(H)), as amended by subsections (a) and (b), is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(iv)(I) Not later than 12 months after the birth of an individual, the Commissioner shall review in accordance with paragraph (4) the continuing eligibility for benefits under this title by reason of disability of such individual whose low birth weight is a contributing factor material to the Commissioner’s determination that the individual is disabled.

“(II) A review under subclause (I) shall be considered a substitute for a review otherwise required under any other provision of this subparagraph during that 12-month period.

“(III) A parent or guardian of a recipient whose case is reviewed under this clause shall present, at the time of review, evidence demonstrating that the recipient is, and has been, receiving treatment, to the extent considered medically necessary and available, of the condition which was the basis for providing benefits under this title.”.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to benefits for months beginning on or after the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether regulations have been issued to implement such amendments.

SEC. 613. ADDITIONAL ACCOUNTABILITY REQUIREMENTS.

(a) TIGHTENING OF REPRESENTATIVE PAYEE REQUIREMENTS.—

(1) CLARIFICATION OF ROLE.—Section 1631(a)(2)(B)(ii) (42 U.S.C. 1383(a)(2)(B)(ii)) is amended by striking “and” at the end of subclause (II), by striking the period at the end of subclause (IV) and inserting “; and”, and by adding after subclause (IV) the following new subclause:

“(V) advise such person through the notice of award of benefits, and at such other times as the Commissioner of Social Security deems appropriate, of specific examples of appropriate expenditures of benefits under this title and the proper role of a representative payee.”.

(2) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to benefits paid after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(b) DEDICATED SAVINGS ACCOUNTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 1631(a)(2)(B) (42 U.S.C. 1383(a)(2)(B)) is amended by adding at the end the following new clause:

“(xiv)(I) Notwithstanding clause (x), the Commissioner of Social Security may, at the request of the representative payee, pay any lump sum payment for the benefit of a child into a dedicated savings account that could only be used to purchase for such child—

“(aa) education and job skills training;

“(bb) special equipment or housing modifications or both specifically related to, and required by the nature of, the child’s disability; and

“(cc) appropriate therapy and rehabilitation.

“(II) The knowing and willful misuse of funds from an account established under subclause (I) by a representative payee for any purpose not authorized by subclause (I) shall constitute fraud and shall be subject to penalties under section 1632.”.

(2) DISREGARD OF TRUST FUNDS.—Section 1613(a) (42 U.S.C. 1382b) is amended—

(A) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (9),

(B) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (10) the first place it appears and inserting a semicolon,

(C) by redesignating paragraph (10) the second place it appears as paragraph (11) and striking the period at the end of such paragraph and inserting “; and”, and

(D) by inserting after paragraph (11), as so redesignated, the following new paragraph:

“(12) all amounts deposited in, or interest credited to, a dedicated savings account described in section 1631(a)(2)(B)(xiv).”.

(3) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this subsection shall apply to payments made after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 614. REDUCTION IN CASH BENEFITS PAYABLE TO INSTITUTIONALIZED CHILDREN WHOSE MEDICAL COSTS ARE COVERED BY PRIVATE INSURANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1611(e)(1)(B) (42 U.S.C. 1382(e)(1)(B)) is amended—

(1) by striking “or” after “XIX,”; and

(2) by inserting “or, in the case of an eligible individual under the age of 18 receiving payments (with respect to such individual) under any health insurance policy issued by a private provider of such insurance” after “section 1614(f)(2)(B).”.

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to benefits for months beginning 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, without regard to whether regulations have been issued to implement such amendments.

SEC. 615. MODIFICATION RESPECTING PARENTAL INCOME DEEMED TO DISABLED CHILDREN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1614(f)(2) (42 U.S.C. 1382c(f)(2)) is amended—

(1) by adding at the end of subparagraph (A) the following: “For purposes of the preceding sentence, the income of such parent or spouse of such parent shall be reduced by—

“(A) the allocation for basic needs described in subparagraph (C)(i); and

“(B) the earned income disregard described in subparagraph (C)(ii).”;

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(C)(i) The allocation for basic needs described by this clause is—

“(I) in the case of an individual who does not have a spouse, an amount equal to 50 percent of the maximum monthly benefit payable under this title to an eligible individual who does not have an eligible spouse; or “(II) in the case of an individual who has a spouse, an amount equal to 50 percent of the maximum monthly benefit payable under this title to an eligible individual who has an eligible spouse.

“(ii) The earned income disregard described by this clause is an amount determined by deducting the first $780 per year (or proportionally smaller amounts for shorter periods) plus 64 percent of the remainder from the earned income (determined in accordance with section 1612(a)(1) of the parent (and spouse, if any)).”.

(b) PRESERVATION OF MEDICAID ELIGIBILITY.—Section 1634 (42 U.S.C. 1383c) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(f) Any child who has not attained 18 years of age and who would be eligible for a payment under this title but for the amendment made by section 615(a) of the Work First Act of 1996 shall be deemed to be receiving such payment for purposes of eligibility of the child for medical assistance under a State plan approved under title XIX of this Act.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to months after 1996.

Subtitle C—Enforcement Provisions

SEC. 621. INSTALLMENT PAYMENT OF LARGE PAST-DUE SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1631(a) (42 U.S.C. 1383) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(10)(A) If an individual is eligible for past-due monthly benefits under this title in an amount that (after any withholding for reimbursement to a State for interim assistance under subsection (g)) equals or exceeds the product of—

“(i) 12, and

“(ii) the maximum monthly benefit payable under this title to an eligible individual (or, if appropriate, to an eligible individual and eligible spouse), then the payment of such past-due benefits (after any such reimbursement to a State) shall be made in installments as provided in subparagraph (B).

“(B)(i) The payment of past-due benefits subject to this subparagraph shall be made in not to exceed 3 installments that are made at 6-month intervals.

“(ii) Except as provided in clause (iii), the amount of each of the first and second installments may not exceed an amount equal to the product of clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (A).

“(iii) In the case of an individual who has—

“(I) outstanding debt attributable to—“(aa) food,

“(cc) shelter, or

“(dd) medically necessary services, supplies or equipment, or medicine; or “(II) current expenses or expenses anticipated in the near term attributable to—

“(aa) medically necessary services, supplies or equipment, or medicine, or “(bb) the purchase of a home, and such debt or expenses are not subject to reimbursement by a public assistance program, the Secretary under title XVIII, a State plan approved under title XIX, or any private entity legally liable to provide payment pursuant to an insurance policy, pre-paid plan, or other arrangement, the limitation specified in clause (ii) may be exceeded by an amount equal to the total of such debt and expenses.

“(C) This paragraph shall not apply to any individual who, at the time of the Commissioner’s determination that such individual is eligible for the payment of past-due monthly benefits under this title—

“(i) is afflicted with a medically determinable impairment that is expected to result in death within 12 months; or

“(ii) is ineligible for benefits under this title and the Commissioner determines that such individual is likely to remain ineligible for the next 12 months.

“(D) For purposes of this paragraph, the term ‘benefits under this title’ includes supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a), and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 1631(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. 1383(a)(1)) is amended by inserting “(subject to paragraph (10))” immediately before “in such installments”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by this section are effective with respect to past-due benefits payable under title XVI of the Social Security Act after the third month following the month in which this Act is enacted.

(2) BENEFITS PAYABLE UNDER TITLE XVI.—For purposes of this subsection, the term “benefits payable under title XVI of the Social Security Act” includes supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a) of the Social Security Act, and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.

Subtitle D—Studies Regarding Supplemental Security Income Program

SEC. 631. ANNUAL REPORT ON THE SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME PROGRAM.

Title XVI is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“SEC. 1636. ANNUAL REPORT ON PROGRAM.

“(a) DESCRIPTION OF REPORT.—Not later than May 30 of each year, the Commissioner of Social Security shall prepare and deliver a report annually to the President and the Congress regarding the program under this title, including—

“(1) a comprehensive description of the program;

“(2) historical and current data on allowances and denials, including number of applications and allowance rates at initial determinations, reconsiderations, administrative law judge hearings, council of appeals hearings, and Federal court appeal hearings; be permitted to provide an individual report, or a joint report if agreed, of views of the program under this title, to be included in the annual report under this section."

SEC. 632. IMPROVEMENTS TO DISABILITY EVALUATION.

(a) REQUEST FOR COMMENTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 60 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Commissioner of Social Security shall issue a request for comments in the Federal Register regarding improvements to the disability evaluation and determination procedures for individuals under age 18 to ensure the comprehensive assessment of such individuals, including—

(A) additions to conditions which should be presumptively disabling at birth or ages 0 through 3 years;

(B) specific changes in individual listings in the Listing of Impairments set forth in appendix 1 of subpart P of part 404 of title 20, Code of Federal Regulations;

(C) improvements in regulations regarding determinations based on regulations providing for medical and functional equivalence to such Listing of Impairments, and consideration of multiple impairments; and

(D) any other changes to the disability determination procedures.

(2) REVIEW AND REGULATORY ACTION.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall promptly review such comments and issue any regulations implementing any necessary changes not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 633. STUDY OF DISABILITY DETERMINATION PROCESS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, and from funds otherwise appropriated, the Commissioner of Social Security shall make arrangements with the National Academy of Sciences, or other independent entity, to conduct a study of the disability determination process under titles II and XVI of the Social Security Act. This study shall be undertaken in consultation with professionals representing appropriate disciplines.

(b) STUDY COMPONENTS.—The study described in subsection (a) shall include—

(1) an initial phase examining the appropriateness of, and making recommendations regarding—

(A) the definitions of disability in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act and the advantages and disadvantages of alternative definitions; and

(B) the operation of the disability determination process, including the appropriate method of performing comprehensive assessments of individuals under age 18 with physical and mental impairments;

(2) a second phase, which may be concurrent with the initial phase, examining the validity, reliability, and consistency with current scientific knowledge of the standards and individual listings in the Listing of Impairments set forth in appendix 1 of subpart P of part 404 of title 20, Code of Federal Regulations, and of related evaluation procedures as promulgated by the Commissioner of Social Security; and

(3) such other issues as the applicable entity considers appropriate.

(c) REPORTS AND REGULATIONS.—

(1) REPORTS.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall request the applicable entity, to submit an interim report and a final report of the findings and recommendations resulting from the study described in this section to the President and the Congress not later than 18 months and 24 months, respectively, from the date of the contract for such study, and such additional reports as the Commissioner deems appropriate after consultation with the applicable entity.

(2) REGULATIONS.—The Commissioner of Social Security shall review both the interim and final reports, and shall issue regulations implementing any necessary changes following each report.

SEC. 634. STUDY BY GENERAL ACCOUNTING OFFICE.

Not later than January 1, 1998, the Comptroller General of the United States shall study and report on the impact of the amendments made by, and the provisions of, this title on the supplemental security income program under title XVI of the Social Security Act.

Subtitle E—National Commission on the Future of Disability

SEC. 641. ESTABLISHMENT.

There is established a commission to be known as the National Commission on the Future of Disability (referred to in this subtitle as the "Commission"), the expenses of which shall be paid from funds otherwise appropriated for the Social Security Administration.

SEC. 642. DUTIES OF THE COMMISSION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Commission shall develop and carry out a comprehensive study of all matters related to the nature, purpose, and adequacy of all Federal programs serving individuals with disabilities. In particular, the Commission shall study the disability insurance program under title II of the Social Security Act and the supplemental security income program under title XVI of such Act.

(b) MATTERS STUDIED.—The Commission shall prepare an inventory of Federal programs serving individuals with disabilities, and shall examine—

(1) trends and projections regarding the size and characteristics of the population of individuals with disabilities, and the implications of such analyses for program planning;

(2) the feasibility and design of performance standards for the Nation's disability programs;

(3) the adequacy of Federal efforts in rehabilitation research and training, and opportunities to improve the lives of individuals with disabilities through all manners of scientific and engineering research; and

(4) the adequacy of policy research available to the Federal Government, and what actions might be undertaken to improve the quality and scope of such research.

(c) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The Commission shall submit to the appropriate committees of the Congress and to the President recommendations and, as appropriate, proposals for legislation, regarding—

(1) which (if any) Federal disability programs should be eliminated or augmented;

(2) what new Federal disability programs (if any) should be established;

(3) the suitability of the organization and location of disability programs within the Federal Government;

(4) other actions the Federal Government should take to prevent disabilities and disadvantages associated with disabilities; and

(5) such other matters as the Commission considers appropriate.

SEC. 643. MEMBERSHIP.

(1) APPOINTMENT.—Upon consultation with the members of the Commission, the Chairperson shall appoint a Director of the Commission.

(2) COMPENSATION.—The Director shall be paid the rate of basic pay for level V of the Executive Schedule.

(b) STAFF.—With the approval of the Commission, the Director may appoint such personnel as the Director considers appropriate.

(c) APPLICABILITY OF CIVIL SERVICE LAWS.—The staff of the Commission shall be appointed without regard to the provisions of title 5, United States Code, governing appointments in the competitive service, and shall be paid without regard to the provisions of chapter 51 and subchapter III of chapter 53 of such title relating to classification and General Schedule pay rates.

(d) EXPERTS AND CONSULTANTS.—With the approval of the Commission, the Director may procure temporary and intermittent services under section 3109(b) of title 5, United States Code.

(e) STAFF OF FEDERAL AGENCIES.—Upon the request of the Commission, the head of any Federal agency may detail, on a reimbursable basis, any of the personnel of such agency to the Commission to assist in carrying out the duties of the Commission under this subtitle.

(f) OTHER RESOURCES.—The Commission shall have reasonable access to materials, resources, statistical data, and other information from the Library of Congress and agencies and elected representatives of the executive and legislative branches of the Federal Government. The Chairperson of the Commission shall make requests for such access in writing when necessary.

(g) PHYSICAL FACILITIES.—The Administrator of the General Services Administration shall locate suitable office space for the operation of the Commission. The facilities shall serve as the headquarters of the Commission and shall include all necessary equipment and incidentals required for proper functioning of the Commission.

SEC. 645. POWERS OF COMMISSION.

(a) HEARINGS.—The Commission may conduct public hearings or forums at the discretion of the Commission, at any time and place the Commission is able to secure facilities and witnesses, for the purpose of carrying out the duties of the Commission under this subtitle.

(b) DELEGATION OF AUTHORITY.—Any member or agent of the Commission may, if authorized by the Commission, take any action the Commission is authorized to take by this section.

(c) INFORMATION.—The Commission may secure directly from any Federal agency information necessary to enable the Commission to carry out its duties under this subtitle. Upon request of the Chairperson or Vice Chairperson of the Commission, the head of a Federal agency shall furnish the information to the Commission to the extent permitted by law.

(d) GIFTS, BEQUESTS, AND DEVISES.—The Commission may accept, use, and dispose of gifts, bequests, or devices of services or property, both real and personal, for the purpose of aiding or facilitating the work of the Commission. Gifts, bequests, or devises of money and proceeds from sales of other property received as gifts, bequests, or devices shall be deposited in the Treasury and shall be available for disbursement upon order of the Commission.

(e) MAILS.—The Commission may use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as other Federal agencies.

SEC. 646. REPORTS.

(a) INTERIM REPORT.—Not later than 1 year prior to the date on which the Commission terminates pursuant to section 647, the Commission shall submit an interim report to the President and to the Congress. The interim report shall contain a detailed statement of the findings and conclusions of the Commission, together with the Commission's recommendations for legislative and administrative action, based on the activities of the Commission.

(b) FINAL REPORT.—Not later than the date on which the Commission terminates, the Commission shall submit to the Congress and to the President a final report containing—

(1) a detailed statement of final findings, conclusions, and recommendations; and

(2) an assessment of the extent to which recommendations of the Commission included in the interim report under subsection (a) have been implemented.

(c) PRINTING AND PUBLIC DISTRIBUTION.—Upon receipt of each report of the Commission under this section, the President shall—

(1) order the report to be printed; and

(2) make the report available to the public upon request.

SEC. 647. TERMINATION.

The Commission shall terminate on the date that is 2 years after the date on which the members of the Commission have met and designated a Chairperson and Vice Chairperson.

TITLE VII—RESTRICTING WELFARE AND PUBLIC BENEFITS FOR ALIENS

SEC. 700. STATEMENTS OF NATIONAL POLICY CONCERNING WELFARE AND IMMIGRATION.

The Congress makes the following statements concerning national policy with respect to welfare and immigration:

(1) Self-sufficiency has been a basic principle of United States immigration law since this country's earliest immigration statutes.

(2) It continues to be the immigration policy of the United States that—

(A) aliens within the nation's borders not depend on public resources to meet their needs, but rather rely on their own capabilities and the resources of their families, their sponsors, and private organizations, and

(B) the availability of public benefits not constitute an incentive for immigration to the United States.

(3) Despite the principle of self-sufficiency, aliens have been applying for and receiving public benefits from Federal, State, and local governments at increasing rates.

(4) Current eligibility rules for public assistance and unenforceable financial support agreements have proved wholly incapable of ensuring that individual aliens not burden the public benefits system.

(5) It is a compelling government interest to enact new rules for eligibility and sponsorship agreements in order to ensure that aliens be self-reliant in accordance with national immigration policy.

(6) It is a compelling government interest to remove the incentive for illegal immigration provided by the availability of public benefits.

(7) With respect to the State authority to make determinations concerning the eligibility of qualified aliens for public benefits in this title, a State that chooses to follow the Federal classification in determining the eligibility of such aliens for public assistance shall be considered to have chosen the least restrictive means available for achieving the compelling governmental interest of ensuring that aliens be self-reliant in accordance with national immigration policy.

Subtitle A—Eligibility for Federal Benefits

SEC. 701. ALIENS WHO ARE NOT QUALIFIED ALIENS INELIGIBLE FOR FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in subsection (b), an alien who is not a qualified alien (as defined in section 731(b)) is not eligible for any Federal public benefit (as defined in subsection (c)).

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—

(1) CERTAIN FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFITS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to the following Federal public benefits:

(A) Care and services for the treatment of an emergency medical condition, as defined in section 1903(v)(3) of the Social Security Act, provided under a State plan approved under title XIX of such Act.

(B) Short-term, non-cash, in-kind emergency relief.

(C)(i) Public health assistance for immunizations.

(ii) Public health assistance for testing and treatment of symptoms of communicable diseases, whether or not such symptoms are actually caused by a communicable disease, and assistance for treatment of communicable diseases.

(D) Programs, services, or assistance (such as soup kitchens, crisis counseling and intervention, and short-term shelter) specified by the Attorney General, in the Attorney General's sole and unreviewable discretion after consultation with appropriate Federal agencies and departments, which—

(i) deliver in-kind services at the community level, including through public or private nonprofit agencies;

(ii) do not condition the provision of assistance, the amount of assistance provided, or the cost of assistance provided on the individual recipient's income or resources; and

(iii) are necessary for the protection of life, safety, or public health.

(E) Programs for housing or community development assistance or financial assistance administered by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, any program under title V of the Housing Act of 1949, or any assistance under section 306C of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, to the extent that the alien is receiving such a benefit on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(F) Assistance or benefits under—

(i) the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1751 et seq.);

(ii) the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.);

(iii) section 4 of the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 (Public Law 93-86; 7 U.S.C. 612c note);

(iv) the Emergency Food Assistance Act of 1983 (Public Law 98-8; 7 U.S.C. 612c note);

(v) section 110 of the Hunger Prevention Act of 1988 (Public Law 100-435; 7 U.S.C. 612c note); or

(vi) the food distribution program on Indian reservations established under section 4(b) of Public Law 88-525 (7 U.S.C. 2013(b)).

(G) The provision of any services or benefits directly related to—

(i) assisting the victims of domestic violence; or

(ii) protecting or assisting abused or neglected children.

(H) Services provided under the Head Start Act (42 U.S.C. 9831 et seq.).

(I) Services provided by a—

(i) migrant or community health center under section 329 or 330 of the Public Health Service Act; or

(ii) school-based health clinic.

(J) Payments for foster care and adoption assistance under part E of title IV of the Social Security Act.

(K) Programs of student assistance under titles IV, V, IX, and X of the Higher Education Act of 1965 and programs under titles III, VII, and VIII of the Public Health Service Act.

(L) Means-tested programs under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

(2) BATTERED OR ABUSED INDIVIDUALS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply—

(A) for up to 48 months if the alien can demonstrate—

(i) that—

(I) the alien has been battered or subject to extreme cruelty in the United States by a spouse, parent, or child, or by a member of the spouse's, parent's, or child's family residing in the same household as the alien and the spouse, parent, or child consented or acquiesced to such battery or cruelty; or

(II) the alien's child has been battered or subject to extreme cruelty in the United States by a spouse or parent of the alien (without the active participation of the alien in the battery or extreme cruelty), or by a member of the spouse or parent's family residing in the same household as the alien when the spouse or parent consented or acquiesced to and the alien did not actively participate in such battery or cruelty; and

(ii) that the need for the public benefits applied for has a substantial connection to the battery or cruelty described in subclause (I) or (II) of clause (i); and

(B) for more than 48 months if the alien can demonstrate that any battery or cruelty under subparagraph (A) is ongoing, has led to the issuance of an order of a judge or an administrative law judge or a prior determination of the Service, and that the need for such benefits has a substantial connection to such battery or cruelty.

(c) FEDERAL PUBLIC BENEFIT DEFINED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), for purposes of this title the term "Federal public benefit" means—

(A) any grant, contract, loan, professional license, or commercial license provided by an agency of the United States or by appropriated funds of the United States; and

(B) any retirement, welfare, health, disability, public or assisted housing, post-secondary education, food assistance, unemployment benefit, or any other similar benefit for which payments or assistance are provided to an individual, household, or family eligibility unit by an agency of the United States or by appropriated funds of the United States.

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—The term "Federal public benefit" shall not apply—

(A) to any contract, professional license, or commercial license for a nonimmigrant whose visa for entry is related to such employment in the United States; or

(B) with respect to benefits for an alien who as a work authorized nonimmigrant or as an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence under the Immigration and Nationality Act qualified for such benefits and for whom the United States under reciprocal treaty agreements is required to pay benefits, as determined by the Attorney General, after consultation with the Secretary of State.

SEC. 702. LIMITED ELIGIBILITY OF CERTAIN QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR SSI BENEFITS.

(a) LIMITED ELIGIBILITY FOR SSI BENEFITS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in subsection (b), an alien who is a qualified alien (as defined in section 731(b)) is not eligible for the supplemental security income program under title XVI of the Social Security Act, including supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a) of the Social Security Act and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66.

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—

(1) EXCEPTION FOR REFUGEES AND ASYLEES.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to—
(A) an alien who has been admitted to the United States as a refugee under section 207 of the Immigration and Nationality Act;

(B) an alien who has been granted asylum under section 208 of such Act; or

(C) an alien whose deportation has been withheld under section 243(h) of such Act.

(2) CERTAIN PERMANENT RESIDENT ALIENS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to an alien—

(A) who is lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence under the Immigration and Nationality Act; and

(B) (i) has had paid with respect to the self-employment income or employment of the alien, or of a parent or spouse of the alien, taxes under chapter 2 or chapter 21 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in each of 40 different calendar quarters, and (ii) did not receive any Federal means-tested public benefit (as defined in section 703(c)) during any such quarter.

(3) VETERAN AND ACTIVE DUTY EXCEPTION.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to an alien who is lawfully residing in any State and is—

(A) a veteran (as defined in section 101 of title 38, United States Code) with a discharge characterized as an honorable discharge and not on account of alienage;

(B) on active duty (other than active duty for training) in the Armed Forces of the United States; or

(C) the spouse or unmarried dependent child of an individual described in subparagraph (A) or (B).

(4) EXCEPTION FOR BATTERED INDIVIDUALS AND CHILDREN.—Subsection (a) shall not apply in the case of an exception described in section 701(b)(2).

(5) DISABILITY EXCEPTION.—Subparagraph (a) shall not apply to an alien who has been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence, and who since the date of such lawful admission, has become blind or disabled, as those terms are defined in section 1614 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1382c).

(c) TRANSITION FOR ALIENS CURRENTLY RECEIVING BENEFITS.—

(1) APPLICATION AFTER JANUARY 1, 1998.—Subsection (a) shall apply to the eligibility of an alien for the benefits described in such subsection for months beginning on or after January 1, 1998, if, on the date of the enactment of this Act, the alien is lawfully residing in any State and is receiving such benefits on the date of the enactment of this Act.

(2) REDETERMINATION OF BENEFITS.—During the period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act and ending on the date which is 1 year after such date, the Commissioner of Social Security shall redetermine the eligibility of any individual who is receiving benefits under the supplemental security income program under title XVI of the Social Security Act, including supplementary payments pursuant to an agreement for Federal administration under section 1616(a) of the Social Security Act and payments pursuant to an agreement entered into under section 212(b) of Public Law 93-66, as of the date of the enactment of this Act and whose eligibility for such benefits may terminate by reason of the provisions of this section.

(3) REDETERMINATION CRITERIA.—With respect to any redetermination under paragraph (2), the Commissioner of Social Security shall apply the eligibility criteria for new applicants for benefits under the program and agreements described in such paragraph.

(4) NOTICE.—Not later than January 1, 1997, the Commissioner of Social Security shall notify an individual described in paragraph (2) of the provisions of this section.

SEC. 703. FIVE-YEAR LIMITED ELIGIBILITY OF QUALIFIED ALIENS FOR FEDERAL MEANS-TESTED PUBLIC BENEFIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in subsection (b), an alien who is a qualified alien (as defined in section 731(b)) and who enters the United States on or after the date of the enactment of this Act is not eligible for any Federal means-tested public benefit (as defined in subsection (c)) for a period of 5 years beginning on the date of the alien's entry into the United States with a status within the meaning of the term "qualified alien".

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—The limitation under subsection (a) shall not apply to the any alien described in section 702(b).

(c) FEDERAL MEANS-TESTED PUBLIC BENEFIT DEFINED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), for purposes of this title, the term "Federal means-tested public benefit" means a public benefit (including cash, medical, housing, and food assistance and social services) of the Federal Government in which the eligibility of an individual, household, or family eligibility unit for benefits, or the amount of such benefits, or both, are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need of the individual, household, or unit.

(2) EXCEPTION.—Such term does not include any Federal public benefit described in section 701(b)(1).

SEC. 704. NOTIFICATION AND INFORMATION REPORTING.

Each Federal agency that administers a program to which section 701, 702, or 703 applies shall, directly or through the States, post information and provide general notification to the public and to program recipients of the changes regarding eligibility for any such program pursuant to this title.

Subtitle B—Eligibility for State and Local Public Benefits Programs

SEC. 711. ALIENS WHO ARE NOT QUALIFIED ALIENS OR NONIMMIGRANTS INELIGIBLE FOR STATE AND LOCAL PUBLIC BENEFITS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law and except as provided in subsections (b) and (d), an alien who is not described under one of the following paragraphs of this subsection is not eligible for any State or local public benefit (as defined in subsection (c)):

(1) A qualified alien (as defined in section 731(b)).

(2) A nonimmigrant, as determined under the Immigration and Nationality Act.

(3) An alien who is paroled into the United States under section 212(d)(5) of such Act for less than one year.

(4) An alien described in section 701(b)(2).

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to the following State or local public benefits:

(1) Care and services for the treatment of an emergency medical condition, as defined in section 1903(v)(3) of the Social Security Act.

(2) Short-term, noncash, in-kind emergency relief.

(3) (A) Public health assistance for immunizations.

(B) Public health assistance for testing and treatment of symptoms of communicable diseases, whether or not such symptoms are actually caused by a communicable disease, and assistance for treatment of communicable diseases.

(4) Programs, services, or assistance (such as soup kitchens, crisis counseling and intervention, and short-term shelter) specified by the appropriate State official which—

(A) deliver in-kind services at the community level, including through public or private nonprofit agencies;

(B) do not condition the provision of assistance, the amount of assistance provided, or the cost of assistance provided on the individual recipient's income or resources; and

(C) are necessary for the protection of life, safety, or public health.

(5) Family violence services.

(6) Benefits or services to protect abused or neglected children.

(7) School meals and child nutrition services.

(8) Prenatal health care services.

(c) STATE OR LOCAL PUBLIC BENEFIT DEFINED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), for purposes of this section the term "State or local public benefit" means—

(A) any grant, contract, loan, professional license, or commercial license provided by an agency of a State or local government or by appropriated funds of a State or local government; and

(B) any retirement, welfare, health, disability, public or assisted housing, post-secondary education, food assistance, unemployment benefit, or any other similar benefit for which payments or assistance are provided to an individual, household, or family eligibility unit by an agency of a State or local government or by appropriated funds of a State or local government.

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—The term "State or local public benefit" shall not apply—

(A) to any contract, professional license, or commercial license for a nonimmigrant whose visa for entry is related to such employment in the United States; or

(B) with respect to benefits for an alien who, as a work authorized nonimmigrant or as an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence under the Immigration and Nationality Act, qualified for such benefits and for whom the United States under reciprocal treaty agreements is required to pay benefits, as determined by the Secretary of State, after consultation with the Attorney General.

(d) STATE AUTHORITY TO PROVIDE FOR ELIGIBILITY OF ILLEGAL ALIENS FOR STATE AND LOCAL PUBLIC BENEFITS.—A State may provide that an alien who is not lawfully present in the United States is eligible for any State or local public benefit for which such alien would otherwise be ineligible under the provisions of subsection (a).

(e) RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the option of a State to provide preventative health care to an alien who would otherwise be ineligible for such health care under the provisions of this section.

Subtitle C—Attribution of Income and Affidavits of Support

SEC. 721. FEDERAL ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO ALIEN FOR PURPOSES OF MEDICAID, FOOD STAMPS, AND TEA ELIGIBILITY.

(a) ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, in determining the eligibility and the amount of benefits of an alien for the program of medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act, the Food stamp program, as defined in section 3(h) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977, and the temporary employment assistance program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act, the income and resources of the alien shall be deemed to include the following:

(A) The income and resources of any person who executed an affidavit of support pursuant to section 213A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as added by section 723) on behalf of such alien.

(B) The income and resources of the spouse (if any) of such affiant.

(2) DETERMINATION OF INCOME AND RESOURCES.—

(A) INCOME.—For each program referred to in paragraph (1), the amount of income which shall be deemed to an alien under this section shall be determined by calculating the countable yearly income received by the sponsor and the sponsor's spouse according to the regulations for determining income eligibility applicable to the program involved, and deducting therefrom an amount equal to the poverty line, as defined in section 673(2) of the Community Services Block Grant Act (42 U.S.C. 9902(2)), (including any revision required by such section) applicable to a family of the same size as such sponsor's and such spouse's family.

(B) RESOURCES.—For each program referred to in paragraph (1), the amount of resources which shall be deemed to be the resources of an alien under this section shall be determined by calculating the total value of countable resources owned by and available to the sponsor and the sponsor's spouse. Such amount shall not include the sponsor's personal property, primary place of residence, property used to generate income, or such other resources as are designated by the agency charged with administering the affected program.

(b) APPLICATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subsection (a) shall apply with respect to an alien until such time as the alien—

(A) achieves United States citizenship through naturalization pursuant to the Immigration and Nationality Act; or (B)(i) pays, or has paid, with respect to the self-employment income or employment of the alien, or of a parent or spouse of the alien, taxes under chapter 2 or chapter 21 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in each of 40 different calendar quarters, and (ii) did not receive any Federal means-tested public benefit (as defined in section 703(c)) during any such quarter.

(2) CREDIT FOR SPOUSES AND CHILDREN.—An alien not meeting the requirements of paragraph (1)(B)(i) shall be treated as meeting such requirements if—

(A) the spouse of such alien has met such requirements and the alien and spouse filed a joint income tax returns covering the 40 calendar quarters referred to in such paragraph; or

(B) the individual who claimed such alien as a dependent on an income tax return covering such quarters met such requirements for such quarters.

(3) EXCEPTIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply to—

(A) any alien described in—

(i) section 701(b)(2); or

(ii) section 702(b); or

(B) any alien woman who is pregnant.

(c) REVIEW OF INCOME AND RESOURCES OF ALIEN UPON REAPPLICATION.—Whenever an alien is required to reapply for benefits under any of the programs described in section 721(a)(1), the State agency administering such plan shall review the income and resources attributed to the alien under subsection (a).

(d) OTHER MEMBERS OF THE ALIEN'S HOUSEHOLD.—The deemed income and resources of a sponsored alien shall not affect the eligibility or amount of benefits of any other individuals who are members of such alien's family or household.

SEC. 722. AUTHORITY FOR STATES TO PROVIDE FOR ATTRIBUTION OF SPONSOR'S INCOME AND RESOURCES TO THE ALIEN WITH RESPECT TO STATE PROGRAMS.

(a) OPTIONAL APPLICATION TO STATE PROGRAMS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (b), in determining the eligibility and the amount of benefits of an alien for any State or local public benefits (as defined in section 712(c)) that are means-tested, the State or political subdivision that offers the benefits may provide that the income and resources of the alien shall be deemed to include—

(A) the income and resources of any individual who executed an affidavit of support pursuant to section 213A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as added by section 723) on behalf of such alien; and

(B) the income and resources of the spouse (if any) of the affiant.

(2) DETERMINATION OF INCOME AND RESOURCES.—The maximum amount of a sponsor's income and resources that a State may attribute to an alien applying for State public benefits (as defined in section 712(c)) that are means-tested under this section shall be determined in accordance with the provisions of section 721(a)(2).

(b) EXCEPTIONS.—Subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to the following State public benefits:

(1) Emergency medical services.

(2) Short-term, noncash, in-kind emergency relief.

(3) Programs comparable to assistance or benefits under the National School Lunch Act.

(4) Programs comparable to assistance or benefits under the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.

(5)(A) Public health assistance for immunizations.

(B) Public health assistance for testing and treatment of symptoms of communicable diseases, whether or not such symptoms are actually caused by a communicable disease, and assistance for treatment of communicable diseases.

(6) Payments for foster care and adoption assistance.

(7) Programs, services, or assistance (such as soup kitchens, crisis counseling and intervention, and short-term shelter) specified by the appropriate State official which—

(A) deliver in-kind services at the community level, including through public or private nonprofit agencies;

(B) do not condition the provision of assistance, the amount of assistance provided, or the cost of assistance provided on the individual recipient's income or resources; and

(C) are necessary for the protection of life, safety, or public health.

(8) Prenatal health care services.

(9) Services and benefits provided to an alien who is described in section 702(b)(5).

SEC. 723. REQUIREMENTS FOR SPONSOR'S AFFIDAVIT OF SUPPORT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title II of the Immigration and Nationality Act is amended by inserting after section 213 the following new section:

"REQUIREMENTS FOR SPONSOR'S AFFIDAVIT OF SUPPORT

"SEC. 213A. (a) ENFORCEABILITY.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—No affidavit of support may be accepted by the Attorney General or by any consular officer to establish that an alien is not excludable as a public charge under section 212(a)(4) unless such affidavit is executed as a contract—

"(A) which is legally enforceable against the sponsor by the sponsored alien, the Federal Government, and by any State (or any political subdivision of such State) which provides any means-tested public benefits program, but not later than 10 years after the alien last receives any such benefit;

"(B) in which the sponsor agrees to financially support the alien, so that the alien will not become a public charge; and

"(C) in which the sponsor agrees to submit to the jurisdiction of any Federal or State court for the purpose of actions brought under subsection (e)(2).

"(2) ENFORCEMENT PERIOD.—A contract under paragraph (1) shall be enforceable with respect to benefits provided to the alien until such time as the alien achieves United States citizenship through naturalization pursuant to chapter 2 of title III.

"(b) FORMS.—Not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this section, the Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall formulate an affidavit of support consistent with the provisions of this section.

"(c) REMEDIES.—Remedies available to enforce an affidavit of support under this section include any or all of the remedies described in sections 3201, 3203, 3204, or 3205 of title 28, United States Code, as well as an order for specific performance and payment of legal fees and other costs of collection, and include corresponding remedies available under State law. A Federal agency may seek to collect amounts owed under this section in accordance with the provisions of subchapter II of chapter 37 of title 31, United States Code.

“(d) NOTIFICATION OF CHANGE OF ADDRESS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The sponsor shall notify the Attorney General and the State in which the sponsored alien is currently resident within 30 days of any change of address of the sponsor during the period specified in subsection (a)(2).

“(2) PENALTY.—Any person subject to the requirement of paragraph (1) who fails to satisfy such requirement shall be subject to a civil penalty of—

“(A) not less than $250 or more than $2,000; or

“(B) if such failure occurs with knowledge that the alien has received any means-tested public benefit, not less than $2,000 or more than $5,000.

“(e) REIMBURSEMENT OF GOVERNMENT EXPENSES.—

“(1) PROCEDURE FOR REIMBURSEMENT.—

“(A) REQUEST FROM SPONSOR.—Upon notification that a sponsored alien has received any benefit under any means-tested public benefits program, the appropriate Federal, State, or local official shall request reimbursement by the sponsor in the amount of such assistance.

“(B) REGULATIONS.—The Attorney General, in consultation with the Secretary of Health and Human Services, shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to carry out subparagraph (A).

“(2) CAUSES OF ACTION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If within 45 days after requesting reimbursement, the appropriate Federal, State, or local agency has not received a response from the sponsor indicating a willingness to commence payments, an action may be brought against the sponsor pursuant to the affidavit of support.

“(B) UPON FAILURE TO ABIDE BY TERMS OF REPAYMENT.—If the sponsor fails to abide by the repayment terms established by such agency, the agency may, within 60 days of such failure, bring an action against the sponsor pursuant to the affidavit of support.

“(3) LIMITATION.—No cause of action may be brought under this subsection later than 10 years after the alien last received any benefit under any means-tested public benefits program.

“(4) AUTHORITY TO CONTRACT.—If, pursuant to the terms of this subsection, a Federal, State, or local agency requests reimbursement from the sponsor in the amount of assistance provided, or brings an action against the sponsor pursuant to the affidavit of support, the appropriate agency may appoint or hire an individual or other person to act on behalf of such agency acting under the authority of law for purposes of collecting any moneys owed. Nothing in this subsection shall preclude any appropriate Federal, State, or local agency from directly requesting reimbursement from a sponsor for the amount of assistance provided, or from bringing an action against a sponsor pursuant to an affidavit of support.

“(f) DEFINITIONS.—For the purposes of this section—

“(1) SPONSOR.—The term ‘sponsor’ means an individual who—

“(A) is a citizen or national of the United States or an alien who is lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence;

“(B) has attained the age of 18 years; and “(C) is domiciled in the United States or in any territory or possession thereof.

“(2) MEANS-TESTED PUBLIC BENEFITS PROGRAM.—The term ‘means-tested public benefits program’ means a program of public benefits (including cash, medical, housing, and food assistance and social services) of the Federal Government or of a State or political subdivision of a State in which the eligibility of an individual, household, or family eligibility unit for benefits under the program, or the amount of such benefits, or both are determined on the basis of income, resources, or financial need of the individual, household, or unit.”.

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents of such Act is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 213 the following:

“Sec. 213A. Requirements for sponsor’s affidavit of support.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Subsection (a) of section 213A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (as inserted by subsection (a) of this section) shall apply to affidavits of support executed on or after a date specified by the Attorney General, which date shall not be earlier than 60 days (and not later than 90 days) after the date the Attorney General formulates the form for such affidavits under subsection (b) of section 213A of such Act (as so inserted).

(d) BENEFITS NOT SUBJECT TO REIMBURSEMENT.—Requirements for reimbursement by a sponsor for benefits provided to a sponsored alien pursuant to an affidavit of support under section 213A of the Immigration and Nationality Act shall not apply with respect to—

(1) any alien described in—

(A) section 701(b)(2); or

(B) section 702(b);

(2) any alien woman who is pregnant; or

(3) any of the following benefits:

(A) Care and services for the treatment of an emergency medical condition, as defined in section 1903(v)(3) of the Social Security Act, provided under a State plan approved under title XIX of such Act, and prenatal services provided under a State plan approved under such title.

(B) Short-term, noncash, in-kind emergency relief.

(C) Assistance or benefits under the National School Lunch Act.

(D) Assistance or benefits under the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.

(E)(i) Public health assistance for immunizations.

(ii) Public health assistance for testing and treatment of symptoms of communicable diseases, whether or not such symptoms are actually caused by a communicable disease, and assistance for treatment of communicable diseases.

(F) Payments for foster care and adoption assistance under part E of title IV of the Social Security Act for a child.

(G) Programs, services, or assistance (such as soup kitchens, crisis counseling and intervention, and short-term shelter) specified by the Attorney General, in the Attorney General’s sole and unreviewable discretion after consultation with appropriate Federal agencies and departments, which—

(i) deliver in-kind services at the community level, including through public or private nonprofit agencies;

(ii) do not condition the provision of assistance, the amount of assistance provided, or the cost of assistance provided on the individual recipient’s income or resources; and

(iii) are necessary for the protection of life, safety, or public health.

(H) Programs of student assistance under titles IV, V, IX, and X of the Higher Education Act of 1965 and programs under titles III, VII, and VIII of the Public Health Service Act.

(I) Benefits or services provided by a migrant or community health center under section 329 or 330 of the Public Health Service Act.

(J) Family violence services.

Subtitle D—General Provisions

SEC. 731. DEFINITIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this title, the terms used in this title have the same meaning given such terms in section 101(a) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

(b) QUALIFIED ALIEN.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this title, the term “qualified alien” means an alien who, at the time the alien applies for, receives, or attempts to receive a Federal public benefit, is lawfully present in the United States.

(2) REGULATIONS.—The determination of whether an alien is lawfully present in the United States shall be made in accordance with regulations of the Attorney General. An alien shall not be considered to be lawfully present in the United States for the purposes of this title merely because the alien may be considered to be permanently residing in the United States under color of law for purposes of any particular program.

SEC. 732. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION.

(a) LIMITATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Nothing in this title shall be construed as an entitlement or as a determination of an individual’s eligibility or fulfillment of the requisite requirements for any Federal, State, or local governmental program, assistance, or benefits. For purposes of this title, eligibility relates only to the general issue of eligibility or ineligibility on the basis of alienage.

(2) NO EFFECT ON ELIGIBILITY FOR EDUCATION.—Nothing in this title may be construed as addressing alien eligibility for a basic public education as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States under Plyler v. Doe (457 U.S. 202)(1982).

(b) NOT APPLICABLE TO FOREIGN ASSISTANCE.—This title does not apply to any Federal, State, or local governmental program, assistance, or benefits provided to an alien under any program of foreign assistance as determined by the Secretary of State in consultation with the Attorney General.

(c) SEVERABILITY.—If any provision of this title or the application of such provision to any person or circumstance is held to be unconstitutional, the remainder of this title and the application of the provisions of such to any person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby.

SEC. 733. TITLE INAPPLICABLE TO PROGRAMS SPECIFIED BY ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, this title or any provision of this title shall not apply to programs, services, or assistance (such as soup kitchens, crisis counseling and intervention, and short term shelter) specified by the Attorney General, in the Attorney General’s sole and unreviewable discretion after consultation with appropriate Federal agencies and departments, which—

(1) deliver services at the community level, including through public or private nonprofit agencies;

(2) do not condition the provision of assistance, the amount of assistance provided, or the cost of assistance provided on the individual recipient’s income or resources; and

(3) are necessary for the protection of life, safety or the public health.

SEC. 734. TITLE INAPPLICABLE TO PROGRAMS OF NONPROFIT CHARITABLE ORGANIZATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed as requiring a nonprofit charitable organization operating any program of assistance provided or funded, in whole or in part, by the Federal Government or by the government of any State or political subdivision of a State to—

(1) determine, verify, or otherwise require proof of the eligibility, as determined under this title, of any applicant for benefits or assistance under such program; or

(2) deem that the income or assets of any applicant for benefits or assistance under such program include the income or assets of an individual described in subparagraph (A) or (B) of section 721(a)(1).

(b) NO EFFECT ON FEDERAL AUTHORITY TO DETERMINE COMPLIANCE.—Nothing in this section shall be construed as prohibiting the Federal Government from determining the eligibility of any individual for any Federal public benefit as defined section 701(c), or for any State or local public benefits (as defined in section 711(c)).

Subtitle E—Conforming Amendments

SEC. 741. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS RELATING TO ASSISTED HOUSING.

“(d) CONDITIONS OF PARTICIPATION.—

“(1) WORK REQUIREMENTS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—No physically and mentally fit individual over the age of 15 and under the age of 60 shall be eligible to participate in the food stamp program if the individual—

“(i) refuses, at the time of application and every 12 months thereafter, to register for employment in a manner prescribed by the Secretary;

“(ii) refuses without good cause to participate in an employment and training program under paragraph (4), to the extent required by the State agency;

“(iii) refuses without good cause to accept an offer of employment, at a site or plant not subject to a strike or lockout at the time of the refusal, at a wage not less than the higher of—

“(I) the applicable Federal or State minimum wage; or

“(II) 80 percent of the wage that would have governed had the minimum hourly rate under section 6(a)(1) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 206(a)(1)) been applicable to the offer of employment;

“(iv) refuses without good cause to provide a State agency with sufficient information to allow the State agency to determine the employment status or the job availability of the individual;

“(v) voluntarily and without good cause—

“(I) quits a job; or

“(II) reduces work effort and, after the reduction, the individual is working less than 30 hours per week; or “(vi) fails to comply with section 20.

“(B) HOUSEHOLD INELIGIBILITY.—If an individual who is the head of a household becomes ineligible to participate in the food stamp program under subparagraph (A), the household shall, at the option of the State agency, become ineligible to participate in the food stamp program for a period, determined by the State agency, that does not exceed the lesser of—

“(i) the duration of the ineligibility of the individual determined under subparagraph (C); or “(ii) 180 days.

“(C) DURATION OF INELIGIBILITY.—

“(i) FIRST VIOLATION.—The first time that an individual becomes ineligible to participate in the food stamp program under subparagraph (A), the individual shall remain ineligible until the later of—

“(I) the date the individual becomes eligible under subparagraph (A);

“(II) the date that is 1 month after the date the individual became ineligible; or

“(III) a date determined by the State agency that is not later than 3 months after the date the individual became ineligible.

“(ii) SECOND VIOLATION.—The second time that an individual becomes ineligible to participate in the food stamp program under subparagraph (A), the individual shall remain ineligible until the later of—

“(I) the date the individual becomes eligible under subparagraph (A);

“(II) the date that is 3 months after the date the individual became ineligible; or

“(III) a date determined by the State agency that is not later than 6 months after the date the individual became ineligible.

“(iii) THIRD OR SUBSEQUENT VIOLATION.—The third or subsequent time that an individual becomes ineligible to participate in the food stamp program under subparagraph (A), the individual shall remain ineligible until the later of—

“(I) the date the individual becomes eligible under subparagraph (A);

“(II) the date that is 6 months after the date the individual became ineligible;

“(III) a date determined by the State agency; or “(IV) at the option of the State agency, permanently.

“(D) ADMINISTRATION.—

“(i) GOOD CAUSE.—The Secretary shall determine the meaning of good cause for the purpose of this paragraph.

“(ii) VOLUNTARY QUIT.—The Secretary shall determine the meaning of voluntarily quitting and reducing work effort for the purpose of this paragraph.

“(iii) DETERMINATION BY STATE AGENCY.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subclause (II) and clauses (i) and (ii), a State agency shall determine—

“(aa) the meaning of any term in subparagraph (A);

“(bb) the procedures for determining whether an individual is in compliance with a requirement under subparagraph (A); and “(cc) whether an individual is in compliance with a requirement under subparagraph (A).

“(II) NOT LESS RESTRICTIVE.—A State agency may not determine a meaning, procedure, or determination under subclause (I) to be less restrictive than a comparable meaning, procedure, or determination under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.).

“(iv) STRIKE AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT.—For the purpose of subparagraph (A)(v), an employee of the Federal Government, a State, or a political subdivision of a State, who is dismissed for participating in a strike against the Federal Government, the State, or the political subdivision of the State shall be considered to have voluntarily quit without good cause.

“(v) SELECTING A HEAD OF HOUSEHOLD.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—For the purpose of this paragraph, the State agency shall allow the household to select any adult parent of a child in the household as the head of the household if all adult household members making application under the food stamp program agree to the selection.

“(II) TIME FOR MAKING DESIGNATION.—A household may designate the head of the household under subclause (I) each time the household is certified for participation in the food stamp program, but may not change the designation during a certification period unless there is a change in the composition of the household.

“(vi) CHANGE IN HEAD OF HOUSEHOLD.—If the head of a household leaves the household during a period in which the household is ineligible to participate in the food stamp program under subparagraph (B)—

“(I) the household shall, if otherwise eligible, become eligible to participate in the food stamp program; and

“(II) if the head of the household becomes the head of another household, the household that becomes headed by the individual shall become ineligible to participate in the food stamp program for the remaining period of ineligibility.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—

SEC. 833. SIMPLIFIED FOOD STAMP PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2011 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 26. SIMPLIFIED FOOD STAMP PROGRAM.

“(a) DEFINITION OF FEDERAL COSTS.—In this section, the term ‘Federal costs’ does not include any Federal costs incurred under section 17.

“(b) ELECTION.—Subject to subsection (d), a State may elect to carry out a Simplified Food Stamp Program (referred to in this section as a ‘Program’), statewide or in a political subdivision of the State, in accordance with this section.

“(c) OPERATION OF PROGRAM.—If a State elects to carry out a Program, within the State or a political subdivision of the State—

“(1) a household in which all members receive assistance under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) shall automatically be eligible to participate in the Program; and

“(2) subject to subsection (f), benefits under the Program shall be determined under rules and procedures established by the State under—

“(A) a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.);

“(B) the food stamp program; or

“(C) a combination of a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) and the food stamp program.

“(d) APPROVAL OF PROGRAM.—

“(1) STATE PLAN.—A State agency may not operate a Program unless the Secretary approves a State plan for the operation of the Program under paragraph (2).

“(2) APPROVAL OF PLAN.—The Secretary shall approve any State plan to carry out a Program if the Secretary determines that the plan—

“(A) simplifies administration of State programs while furthering the goal of allowing low-income households to obtain a more nutritious diet;

“(B) complies with this section;

“(C) contains sufficient documentation that the plan will not increase Federal costs for any fiscal year; and “(D) will not substantially alter, as determined by the Secretary, the appropriate distribution of benefits according to household need.

“(e) INCREASED FEDERAL COSTS.—

“(1) DETERMINATION.—During each fiscal year and not later than 90 days after the end of each fiscal year, the Secretary shall determine whether a Program being carried out by a State agency is increasing Federal costs under this Act above the Federal costs incurred under the food stamp program in operation in the State or political subdivision of the State for the fiscal year prior to the implementation of the Program, adjusted for any changes in—

“(A) participation;

“(B) the income of participants in the food stamp program that is not attributable to public assistance; and “(C) the thrifty food plan under section 3(o).

“(2) NOTIFICATION.—If the Secretary determines that the Program has increased Federal costs under this Act for any fiscal year or any portion of any fiscal year, the Secretary shall notify the State not later than 30 days after the Secretary makes the determination under paragraph (1).

“(3) ENFORCEMENT.—

“(A) CORRECTIVE ACTION.—Not later than 90 days after the date of a notification under paragraph (2), the State shall submit a plan for approval by the Secretary for prompt corrective action that is designed to prevent the Program from increasing Federal costs under this Act.

“(B) TERMINATION.—If the State does not submit a plan under subparagraph (A) or carry out a plan approved by the Secretary, the Secretary shall terminate the approval of the State agency operating the Program and the State agency shall be ineligible to operate a future Program.

“(f) RULES AND PROCEDURES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In operating a Program, a State or political subdivision of a State may follow the rules and procedures established by the State or political subdivision under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) or under the food stamp program.

“(2) REQUIREMENTS.—In operating a Program, a State or political subdivision shall comply with the requirements of—

“(A) subsections (a) through (g) of section 7;

“(B) section 8(a) (except that the income of a household may be determined under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.));

“(C) subsection (b) and (d) of section 8;

“(D) subsections (a), (c), (d), and (n) of section 11;

“(E) paragraphs (8), (9), (15), (17), (19), (23), and (24) of section 11(e);

“(F) section 11(e)(10) (or a comparable requirement established by the State under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.)); and “(G) section 16.

“(4) LIMITATION ON ELIGIBILITY.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, a household may not receive benefits under this section as a result of the eligibility of the household under a State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), unless the Secretary determines that any household with income above 130 percent of the poverty guidelines is not eligible for the program.”.

(b) STATE PLAN PROVISIONS.—Section 11(e) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 2020(e)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(26) if a State elects to carry out a Simplified Food Stamp Program under section 26, the plans of the State agency for operating the program, including—

“(A) the rules and procedures to be followed by the State agency to determine food stamp benefits; and

Section 12(a) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2021(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following: "Regulations issued pursuant to this Act shall provide criteria for the finding of a violation, and the suspension or disqualification of a retail food store or wholesale food concern, on the basis of evidence that may include facts established through on-site investigations, inconsistent redemption data, or evidence obtained through transaction reports under electronic benefits transfer systems.".

SEC. 840. DISQUALIFICATION OF STORES PENDING JUDICIAL AND ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW.

(a) AUTHORITY.—Section 12(a) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2021(a)), as amended by section 839, is amended by adding at the end the following: "The regulations may establish criteria under which the authorization of a retail food store or wholesale food concern to accept and redeem coupons may be suspended at the time the store or concern is initially found to have committed a violation of a requirement of the food stamp program. The suspension may coincide with the period of a review under section 14. The Secretary shall not be liable for the value of any sales lost during a suspension or disqualification period.".

(b) REVIEW.—Section 14(a) of the Act (7 U.S.C. 2023(a)) is amended—

(1) in the first sentence, by striking "disqualified or subjected" and inserting "suspended, disqualified, or subjected";

(2) in the fifth sentence, by inserting before the period at the end the following: ", except that, in the case of the suspension of a retail food store or wholesale food concern under section 12(a), the suspension shall remain in effect pending any judicial or administrative review of the proposed disqualification action, and the period of suspension shall be considered a part of any period of disqualification that is imposed"; and

(3) by striking the last sentence.

SEC. 841. DISQUALIFICATION OF RETAILERS WHO ARE DISQUALIFIED UNDER THE WIC PROGRAM.

Section 12 of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2021) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(g)(1) The Secretary shall issue regulations providing criteria for the disqualification of an approved retail food store and a wholesale food concern that is disqualified from accepting benefits under the special supplemental nutrition program for women, infants, and children established under section 17 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (7 U.S.C. 1786).

"(2) A disqualification under paragraph (1)—

"(A) shall be for the same period as the disqualification from the program referred to in paragraph (1);

"(B) may begin at a later date than the disqualification from the program referred to in paragraph (1); and

"(C) notwithstanding section 14, shall not be subject to judicial or administrative review.".

SEC. 842. PERMANENT DEBARMENT OF RETAILERS WHO INTENTIONALLY SUBMIT FALSIFIED APPLICATIONS.

Section 12 of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2021), as amended by section 841, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(h)(1) The Secretary shall issue regulations providing for the permanent disqualification of a retail food store, or wholesale food concern, that knowingly submits an application for approval to accept and redeem coupons that contains false information about a substantive matter that was a basis for approving the application.

"(2) A disqualification under paragraph (1) shall be subject to judicial and administrative review under section 14, except that the disqualification shall remain in effect pending the review.".

SEC. 843. CRIMINAL FORFEITURE.

Section 15 of the Food Stamp Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 2024) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(h)(1) Any person convicted of violating subsection (b) or (c) involving food stamp benefits having an aggregate value of not less than $5,000, shall forfeit to the United States—

"(A) any food stamp benefits and any property constituting, or derived from, or traceable to any proceeds the person obtained directly or indirectly as a result of the violation; and

"(B) any food stamp benefits and any property of the person used, or intended to be used, in any manner or part, to commit, or to facilitate the commission of the violation.

"(2) In imposing a sentence on a person under paragraph (1), a court shall order that the person forfeit to the United States all property described in this subsection.

"(3) Any food stamp benefits or property subject to forfeiture under this subsection, any seizure or disposition of the benefits or property, and any administrative or judicial proceeding relating to the benefits or property, shall be governed by subsections (b), (c), (e), and (g) through (p) of section 413 of the Comprehensive Drug Abuse Prevention and Control Act of 1970 (21 U.S.C. 853), if not inconsistent with this subsection.

"(4) This subsection shall not apply to property referred to in subsection (g).".

(b) EFFECTIVE DATES.—The amendments made by subsection (a) shall become effective on July 1, 1996.

SEC. 852. DIRECT FEDERAL EXPENDITURES.

Section 6(g)(1) of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1755(g)(1)) is amended by striking "12 percent" and inserting "8 percent".

SEC. 853. IMPROVED TARGETING OF DAY CARE HOME REIMBURSEMENTS.

(a) RESTRUCTURED DAY CARE HOME REIMBURSEMENTS.—Section 17(f)(3) of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1766(f)(3)) is amended by striking "(3)(A) Institutions" and all that follows through the end of subparagraph (A) and inserting the following:

"(3) REIMBURSEMENT OF FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOME SPONSORING ORGANIZATIONS.—

"(A) REIMBURSEMENT FACTOR.—

"(i) IN GENERAL.—An institution that participates in the program under this section as a family or group day care home sponsoring organization shall be provided, for payment to a home sponsored by the organization, reimbursement factors in accordance with this subparagraph for the cost of obtaining and preparing food and prescribed labor costs involved in providing meals under this section.

"(ii) TIER I FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOMES.—

"(I) DEFINITION.—In this paragraph, the term 'tier I family or group day care home' means—

"(aa) a family or group day care home that is located in a geographic area, as defined by the Secretary based on census data, in which at least 50 percent of the children residing in the area are members of households whose incomes meet the income eligibility guidelines for free or reduced price meals under section 9;

"(bb) a family or group day care home that is located in an area served by a school enrolling elementary students in which at least 50 percent of the total number of children enrolled are certified eligible to receive free or reduced price school meals under this Act or the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.); or

"(cc) a family or group day care home that is operated by a provider whose household meets the eligibility requirements for free or reduced price meals under section 9 and whose eligibility is verified by the sponsoring organization of the home under regulations established by the Secretary.

"(II) REIMBURSEMENT.—Except as provided in subclause (III), a tier I family or group day care home shall be provided reimbursement factors under this clause without a requirement for documentation of the costs described in clause (i), except that reimbursement shall not be provided under this subclause for meals or supplements served to the children of a person acting as a family or group day care home provider unless the children meet the eligibility requirements for free or reduced price meals under section 9.

"(III) FACTORS.—Except as provided in subclause (IV), the reimbursement factors applied to a home referred to in subclause (II) shall be the factors in effect on the date of enactment of this subclause.

"(IV) ADJUSTMENTS.—The reimbursement factors under this subparagraph shall be adjusted on October 1, 1996, July 1, 1997, and each July 1 thereafter, to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index for food at home for the most recent 12-month period for which the data are available. The reimbursement factors under this subparagraph shall be rounded to the nearest lower cent increment and based on the unrounded adjustment in effect on June 30 of the preceding school year.

"(iii) TIER II FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOMES.—

"(I) IN GENERAL.—

"(aa) FACTORS.—Except as provided in subclause (II), with respect to meals or supplements served under this clause by a family or group day care home that does not meet the criteria set forth in clause (ii)(I), the reimbursement factors shall be $1 for lunches and suppers, 30 cents for breakfasts, and 15 cents for supplements.

“(bb) ADJUSTMENTS.—The factors shall be adjusted on July 1, 1997, and each July 1 thereafter, to reflect changes in the Consumer Price Index for food at home for the most recent 12-month period for which the data are available. The reimbursement factors under this item shall be rounded down to the nearest lower cent increment and based on the unrounded adjustment for the preceding 12-month period.

“(cc) REIMBURSEMENT.—A family or group day care home shall be provided reimbursement factors under this subclause without a requirement for documentation of the costs described in clause (i), except that reimbursement shall not be provided under this subclause for meals or supplements served to the children of a person acting as a family or group day care home provider unless the children meet the eligibility requirements for free or reduced price meals under section 9.

“(II) OTHER FACTORS.—A family or group day care home that does not meet the criteria set forth in clause (ii)(I) may elect to be provided reimbursement factors determined in accordance with the following requirements:

“(aa) CHILDREN ELIGIBLE FOR FREE OR REDUCED PRICE MEALS.—In the case of meals or supplements served under this subsection to children who meet the eligibility requirements for free or reduced price meals under section 9, the family or group day care home shall be provided reimbursement factors set by the Secretary in accordance with clause (ii)(II).

“(bb) INELIGIBLE CHILDREN.—In the case of meals or supplements served under this subsection to children who do not meet the eligibility requirements for free or reduced priced meals under section 9, the family or group day care home shall be provided reimbursement factors in accordance with subclause (I).

“(III) INFORMATION AND DETERMINATIONS.—

“(aa) IN GENERAL.—If a family or group day care home elects to claim the factors described in subclause (II), the family or group day care home sponsoring organization serving the home shall collect the necessary eligibility information, as determined by the Secretary, from any parent or other caretaker to make the determinations specified in subclause (II) and shall make the determinations in accordance with rules prescribed by the Secretary.

“(bb) CATEGORICAL ELIGIBILITY.—In making a determination under item (aa), a family or group day care home sponsoring organization may consider a child participating in or subsidized under, or a child with a parent participating in or subsidized under, a federally or State supported child care or other benefit program with an income eligibility limit that does not exceed the income eligibility guidelines for free or reduced price meals under section 9 to be a child who is eligible for free or reduced price meals under section 9.

“(cc) FACTORS FOR CHILDREN ONLY.—A family or group day care home may elect to receive the reimbursement factors prescribed under clause (ii)(III) solely for the children participating in a program referred to in item (bb) if the home elects not to have eligibility information collected from parents or other caretakers.”

(b) GRANTS TO STATES TO PROVIDE ASSISTANCE TO FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOMES.—Section 17(f)(3) of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1766(f)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(D) GRANTS TO STATES TO PROVIDE ASSISTANCE TO FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOMES.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—

“(I) RESERVATION.—The Secretary shall reserve $5,000,000 of the amount made available to carry out this section for fiscal year 1996.

“(II) PURPOSE.—The Secretary shall use the funds reserved under subclause (I) to provide grants to States for the purpose of providing assistance, including grants, to family or group day care home sponsoring organizations and other appropriate organizations, in securing and providing training, materials, automated data processing assistance, and other assistance for the staff of the sponsoring organizations.

“(ii) ALLOCATION.—The Secretary shall allocate from the funds reserved under clause (i)(I)—

“(I) $30,000 in base funding to each State; and “(II) any remaining amount among the States, based on the number of family or group day care homes participating in the program in a State during fiscal year 1994 as a percentage of the number of all family or group day care homes participating in the program during fiscal year 1994.

“(iii) RETENTION OF FUNDS.—Of the amount of funds made available to a State for fiscal year 1996 under clause (i), the State may retain not to exceed 30 percent of the amount to carry out this subparagraph.

“(iv) ADDITIONAL PAYMENTS.—Any payments received under this subparagraph shall be in addition to payments that a State receives under subparagraph (A).”

(c) PROVISION OF DATA.—Section 17(f)(3) of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1766(f)(3)) (as amended by subsection (b)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“(E) PROVISION OF DATA TO FAMILY OR GROUP DAY CARE HOME SPONSORING ORGANIZATIONS.—

“(i) CENSUS DATA.—The Secretary shall provide to each State agency administering a child and adult care food program under this section data from the most recent decennial census survey or other appropriate census survey for which the data are available showing which areas in the State meet the requirements of subparagraph (A)(ii)(I)(aa). The State agency shall provide the data to family or group day care home sponsoring organizations located in the State.

“(ii) SCHOOL DATA.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—A State agency administering the school lunch program under this Act or the school breakfast program under the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1771 et seq.) shall provide data for each elementary school in the State, or shall direct each school within the State to provide data for the school, to approved family or group day care home sponsoring organizations that request the data, on the percentage of enrolled children who are certified eligible for free or reduced price meals.

“(II) USE OF DATA FROM PRECEDING SCHOOL YEAR.—In determining for a fiscal year or other annual period whether a home qualifies as a tier I family or group day care home under subparagraph (A)(ii)(I), the State agency administering the program under this section, and a family or group day care home sponsoring organization, shall use the most current available data at the time of the determination.

“(iii) DURATION OF DETERMINATION.—For purposes of this section, a determination that a family or group day care home is located in an area that qualifies the home as a tier I family or group day care home (as the term is defined in subparagraph (A)(ii)(I)), shall be in effect for 3 years (unless the determination is made on the basis of census data, in which case the determination shall remain in effect until more recent census data are available) unless the State agency determines that the area in which the home is located no longer qualifies the home as a tier I family or group day care home.”

(d) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 17(c) of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1766(c)) is amended by inserting “except as provided in subsection (f)(3),” after “For purposes of this section,” each place it appears in paragraphs (1), (2), and (3).

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), the amendments made by this section shall become effective on the date of enactment of this section.

(2) IMPROVED TARGETING OF DAY CARE HOME REIMBURSEMENTS.—The amendments made by subsections (a), (c), and (d) shall become effective on August 1, 1996.

SEC. 854. ELIMINATION OF STARTUP AND EXPANSION GRANTS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1773) is amended by striking subsection (g).

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall become effective on October 1, 1996.

SEC. 855. AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.

Section 19(i) of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1788(i)) is amended—

(1) in the first sentence of paragraph (2)(A), by striking “and each succeeding fiscal year”;

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (3) and (4) as paragraphs (4) and (5), respectively; and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (2) the following:

“(3) FISCAL YEARS 1997 THROUGH 2002.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $10,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2002.

“(B) GRANTS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Grants to each State from the amounts made available under subparagraph (A) shall be based on a rate of 50 cents for each child enrolled in schools or institutions in the State, except that no State shall receive an amount that is less than $75,000 per fiscal year.

“(ii) INSUFFICIENT FUNDS.—If an amount made available for any fiscal year is insufficient to pay the amount to which each State is entitled under clause (i), the amount of each grant shall be ratably reduced.”

TITLE IX—SOCIAL SERVICES BLOCK GRANT; EITC; CHILD ABUSE PREVENTION AND TREATMENT

Subtitle A—Reduction in Block Grants to States for Social Services

(2) by striking paragraph (5) and inserting the following:

“(5) $2,800,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1990 through 1996 and for each fiscal year after fiscal year 2002; and

“(6) $2,520,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 1997 through 2002.”

Subtitle B—Reform of Earned Income Credit

SEC. 911. EARNED INCOME CREDIT AND OTHER TAX BENEFITS DENIED TO INDIVIDUALS FAILING TO PROVIDE TAXPAYER IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS.

(a) EARNED INCOME CREDIT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 32(c)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to individuals eligible to claim the earned income credit) is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(F) IDENTIFICATION NUMBER REQUIREMENT.—The term ‘eligible individual’ does not include any individual who does not include on the return of tax for the taxable year—

“(i) such individual’s taxpayer identification number, and

“(ii) if the individual is married (within the meaning of section 7703), the taxpayer identification number of such individual’s spouse.”

(2) SPECIAL IDENTIFICATION NUMBER.—Section 32 of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(l) IDENTIFICATION NUMBERS.—Solely for purposes of subsections (c)(1)(F) and (c)(3)(D), a taxpayer identification number means a social security number issued to an individual by the Social Security Administration (other than a social security number issued pursuant to clause (II) (or that portion of clause (III) that relates to clause (II)) of section 205(c)(2)(B)(i) of the Social Security Act).”

(b) PERSONAL EXEMPTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 151 of such Code (relating to allowance of deductions for personal exemptions) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(e) IDENTIFYING INFORMATION REQUIRED.—No exemption shall be allowed under this section with respect to any individual unless the TIN of such individual is included on the return claiming the exemption.”

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Subsection (e) of section 6109 of such Code is repealed.

(B) Section 6724(d)(3) of such Code is amended by adding “and” at the end of subparagraph (C), by striking subparagraph (D), and by redesignating subparagraph (E) as subparagraph (D).

(c) DEPENDENT CARE CREDIT.—Subsection (e) of section 21 of such Code (relating to expenses for household and dependent care services necessary for gainful employment) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(10) IDENTIFYING INFORMATION REQUIRED WITH RESPECT TO QUALIFYING INDIVIDUALS.—No credit shall be allowed under this section with respect to any qualifying individual unless the TIN of such individual is included on the return claiming the credit.”

(d) EXTENSION OF PROCEDURES APPLICABLE TO MATHEMATICAL OR CLERICAL ERRORS.—Section 6213(g)(2) of such Code (relating to the definition of mathematical or clerical errors) is amended by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (D), by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (E) and inserting a comma, and by adding after subparagraph (E) the following new subparagraphs:

“(F) an omission of a correct TIN required under section 21 (relating to expenses for household and dependent care services necessary for gainful employment), section 32 (relating to the earned income credit), or section 151 (relating to allowance of deductions for personal exemptions) to be included on a return, and

“(G) an entry on a return claiming the credit under section 32 with respect to net earnings from self-employment described in section 32(c)(2)(A) to the extent the tax imposed by section 1401 (relating to self-employment tax) on such net earnings has not been paid.”

(e) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply with respect to returns the due date for which (without regard to extensions) is more than 30 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

SEC. 912. RULES RELATING TO DENIAL OF EARNED INCOME CREDIT ON BASIS OF DISQUALIFIED INCOME.

(a) REDUCTION IN DISQUALIFIED INCOME THRESHOLD.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 32(i)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to denial of credit for individuals having excessive investment income) is amended by striking “$2,350” and inserting “$2,200”.

(2) ADJUSTMENT FOR INFLATION.—Section 32(j) of such Code is amended to read as follows:

“(j) INFLATION ADJUSTMENTS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of any taxable year beginning after the applicable calendar year, each dollar amount referred to in paragraph (2)(B) shall be increased by an amount equal to—

“(A) such dollar amount, multiplied by

“(B) the cost-of-living adjustment determined under section 1(f)(3) for the calendar year in which the taxable year begins, except that subparagraph (B) thereof shall be applied by reference to the CPI for the calendar year preceding the applicable calendar year rather than the CPI for calendar year 1992.

“(2) DEFINITIONS, ETC.—For purposes of paragraph (1)—

“(A) APPLICABLE CALENDAR YEAR.—The term ‘applicable calendar year’ means—

“(i) 1994 in the case of the dollar amounts referred to in clause (i) of subparagraph (B), and “(ii) 1996 in the case of the dollar amount referred to in clause (ii) of subparagraph (B).

“(B) DOLLAR AMOUNTS.—The dollar amounts referred to in this subparagraph are—

“(i) the dollar amounts contained in subsection (b)(2)(A), and “(ii) the dollar amount contained in subsection (i)(1).

“(3) ROUNDING.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), if any dollar amount after being increased under paragraph (1) is not a multiple of $10, such dollar amount shall be rounded to the nearest multiple of $10 (or, if such dollar amount is a multiple of $5, such dollar amount shall be increased to the next higher multiple of $10).

“(B) DISQUALIFIED INCOME THRESHOLD AMOUNT.—If the dollar amount referred to in paragraph (2)(B)(ii) after being increased under paragraph (1) is not a multiple of $50, such amount shall be rounded to the next lowest multiple of $50.”

(b) DEFINITION OF DISQUALIFIED INCOME.—Paragraph (2) of section 32(i) of such Code (defining disqualified income) is amended by striking “and” at the end of subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C), and by adding at the end the following new subparagraphs:

“(D) the capital gain net income (as defined in section 1222) of the taxpayer for such taxable year, and “(E) the excess (if any) of—

“(i) the aggregate income from all passive activities for the taxable year (determined without regard to any amount included in earned income under subsection (c)(2) or described in a preceding subparagraph), over “(ii) the aggregate losses from all passive activities for the taxable year (as so determined).

For purposes of subparagraph (E), the term ‘passive activity’ has the meaning given such term by section 469.”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.

SEC. 913. MODIFICATION OF ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME DEFINITION FOR EARNED INCOME CREDIT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subsections (a)(2), (c)(1)(C), and (f)(2)(B) of section 32 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 are each amended by striking “adjusted gross income” and inserting “modified adjusted gross income”.

(b) MODIFIED ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME DEFINED.—Section 32(c) of such Code (relating to definitions and special rules) is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

“(5) MODIFIED ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘modified adjusted gross income’ means adjusted gross income determined without regard to the amounts described in subparagraph (B).

“(B) CERTAIN AMOUNTS DISREGARDED.—An amount is described in this subparagraph if it is—

“(i) the amount of losses from sales or exchanges of capital assets in excess of gains from such sales or exchanges to the extent such amount does not exceed the amount under section 1211(b)(1),

“(ii) the net loss from estates and trusts,

“(iii) the excess (if any) of amounts described in subsection (i)(2)(C)(ii) over the amounts described in subsection (i)(2)(C)(i) (relating to nonbusiness rents and royalties), and

“(iv) 50 percent of the net loss from the carrying on of trades or businesses, computed separately with respect to—

“(I) trades or businesses (other than farming) conducted as sole proprietorships, “(II) trades or businesses of farming conducted as sole proprietorships, and “(III) other trades or businesses.

For purposes of clause (iv), there shall not be taken into account items which are attributable to a trade or business which consists of the performance of services by the taxpayer as an employee.”

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 1996.

“(5) developing, strengthening, and facilitating training opportunities and requirements for individuals overseeing and providing services to children and their families through the child protection system;

“(6) developing and facilitating training protocols for individuals mandated to report child abuse or neglect;

“(7) developing, strengthening, and supporting child abuse and neglect prevention, treatment, and research programs in the public and private sectors;

“(8) developing, implementing, or operating—

“(A) information and education programs or training programs designed to improve the provision of services to disabled infants with life-threatening conditions for—

“(i) professional and paraprofessional personnel concerned with the welfare of disabled infants with life-threatening conditions, including personnel employed in child protective services programs and health-care facilities; and

“(ii) the parents of such infants; and

“(B) programs to assist in obtaining or coordinating necessary services for families of disabled infants with life-threatening conditions, including—

“(i) existing social and health services;

“(ii) financial assistance; and

“(iii) services necessary to facilitate adoptive placement of any such infants who have been relinquished for adoption; or “(9) developing and enhancing the capacity of community-based programs to integrate shared leadership strategies between parents and professionals to prevent and treat child abuse and neglect at the neighborhood level.

“(b) ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS.—In order for a State to qualify for a grant under subsection (a), such State shall provide an assurance or certification, signed by the chief executive officer of the State, that the State—

“(1) has in effect and operation a State law or Statewide program relating to child abuse and neglect which ensures—

“(A) provisions or procedures for the reporting of known and suspected instances of child abuse and neglect;

“(B) procedures for the immediate screening, safety assessment, and prompt investigation of such reports;

“(C) procedures for immediate steps to be taken to ensure and protect the safety of the abused or neglected child and of any other child under the same care who may also be in danger of abuse or neglect;

“(D) provisions for immunity from prosecution under State and local laws and regulations for individuals making good faith reports of suspected or known instances of child abuse or neglect;

“(E) methods to preserve the confidentiality of all records in order to protect the rights of the child and of the child’s parents or guardians, including methods to ensure that disclosure (and redisclosure) of information concerning child abuse or neglect involving specific individuals is made only to persons or entities that the State determines have a need for such information directly related to the purposes of this Act;

“(F) requirements for the prompt disclosure of all relevant information to any Federal, State, or local governmental entity, or any agent of such entity, with a need for such information in order to carry out its responsibilities under law to protect children from abuse and neglect;

“(G) the cooperation of State law enforcement officials, court of competent jurisdiction, and appropriate State agencies providing human services;

“(H) provisions requiring, and procedures in place that facilitate the prompt expungement of any records that are accessible to the general public or are used for purposes of employment or other background checks in cases determined to be unsubstantiated or false, except that nothing in this section shall prevent State child protective service agencies from keeping information on unsubstantiated reports in their casework files to assist in future risk and safety assessment; and

“(I) provisions and procedures requiring that in every case involving an abused or neglected child which results in a judicial proceeding, a guardian ad litem shall be appointed to represent the child in such proceedings; and

“(2) has in place procedures for responding to the reporting of medical neglect (including instances of withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life-threatening conditions), procedures or programs, or both (within the State child protective services system), to provide for—

“(A) coordination and consultation with individuals designated by and within appropriate health-care facilities;

“(B) prompt notification by individuals designated by and within appropriate health-care facilities of cases of suspected medical neglect (including instances of withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life-threatening conditions); and

“(C) authority, under State law, for the State child protective service system to pursue any legal remedies, including the authority to initiate legal proceedings in a court of competent jurisdiction, as may be necessary to prevent the withholding of medically indicated treatment from disabled infants with life threatening conditions.

“(c) ADDITIONAL REQUIREMENT.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of this section, the State shall provide an assurance or certification that the State has in place provisions, procedures, and mechanisms by which individuals who disagree with an official finding of abuse or neglect can appeal such finding.

“(d) STATE PROGRAM PLAN.—To be eligible to receive a grant under this section, a State shall submit every 5 years a plan to the Secretary that specifies the child protective service system area or areas described in subsection (a) that the State intends to address with funds received under the grant. Such plan shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be coordinated with the plan of the State for child welfare services and family preservation and family support services under part B of title IV of the Social Security Act and shall contain an outline of the activities that the State intends to carry out using amounts provided under the grant to achieve the purposes of this Act, including the procedures to be used for—

“(1) receiving and assessing reports of child abuse or neglect;

“(2) investigating such reports;

“(3) protecting children by removing them from dangerous settings and ensuring their placement in a safe environment;

“(4) providing services or referral for services for families and children where the child is not in danger of harm;

“(5) providing services to individuals, families, or communities, either directly or through referral, aimed at preventing the occurrence of child abuse and neglect;

“(6) providing training to support direct line and supervisory personnel in report-taking, screening, assessment, decision-making, and referral for investigation; and

“(7) providing training for individuals mandated to report suspected cases of child abuse or neglect.

motion of child abuse and neglect prevention activities.

“SEC. 202. ELIGIBILITY.

“A State shall be eligible for a grant under this title for a fiscal year if—

“(1)(A) the chief executive officer of the State has designated an entity to administer funds under this title for the purposes identified under the authority of this title, including to develop, implement, operate, enhance or expand a Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs, child abuse and neglect prevention activities and access to respite services integrated with the Statewide network;

“(B) in determining which entity to designate under subparagraph (A), the chief executive officer should give priority consideration to the trust fund advisory board of the State or an existing entity that leverages Federal, State, and private funds for a broad range of child abuse and neglect prevention activities and family resource programs, and that is directed by an interdisciplinary, public-private structure, including participants from communities; and

“(C) such lead entity is an existing public, quasi-public, or nonprofit private entity with a demonstrated ability to work with other State and community-based agencies to provide training and technical assistance, and that has the capacity and commitment to ensure the meaningful involvement of parents who are consumers and who can provide leadership in the planning, implementation, and evaluation of programs and policy decisions of the applicant agency in accomplishing the desired outcomes for such efforts;

“(2) the chief executive officer of the State provides assurances that the lead entity will provide or will be responsible for providing—

“(A) a network of community-based family resource and support programs composed of local, collaborative, public-private partnerships directed by interdisciplinary structures with balanced representation from private and public sector members, parents, and public and private nonprofit service providers and individuals and organizations experienced in working in partnership with families with children with disabilities;

“(B) direction to the network through an interdisciplinary, collaborative, public-private structure with balanced representation from private and public sector members, parents, and public sector and private nonprofit sector service providers; and

“(C) direction and oversight to the network through identified goals and objectives, clear lines of communication and accountability, the provision of leveraged or combined funding from Federal, State and private sources, centralized assessment and planning activities, the provision of training and technical assistance, and reporting and evaluation functions; and

“(3) the chief executive officer of the State provides assurances that the lead entity—

“(A) has a demonstrated commitment to parental participation in the development, operation, and oversight of the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs;

“(B) has a demonstrated ability to work with State and community-based public and private nonprofit organizations to develop a continuum of preventive, family centered, holistic services for children and families through the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs;

“(C) has the capacity to provide operational support (both financial and programmatic) and training and technical assistance, to the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs, through innovative, interagency funding and interdisciplinary service delivery mechanisms; and “(D) will integrate its efforts with individuals and organizations experienced in working in partnership with families with children with disabilities and with the child abuse and neglect prevention activities of the State, and demonstrate a financial commitment to those activities.

“SEC. 203. AMOUNT OF GRANT.

“(a) RESERVATION.—The Secretary shall reserve 1 percent of the amount appropriated under section 210 for a fiscal year to make allotments to Indian tribes and tribal organizations and migrant programs.

“(b) ALLOTMENT.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Of the amounts appropriated for a fiscal year under section 210 and remaining after the reservation under subsection (a), the Secretary shall allot to each State lead entity an amount equal to—

“(A) the State minor child amount for such State as determined under paragraph (2); and “(B) the State matchable amount for such State as determined under paragraph (3).

“(2) STATE MINOR CHILD AMOUNT.—The amount determined under this paragraph for a fiscal year for a State shall be equal to an amount that bears the same relationship to 50 percent of the amounts appropriated and remaining under paragraph (1) for such fiscal year as the number of children under 18 residing in the State bears to the total number of children under 18 residing in all States, except that no State shall receive less than $250,000.

“(3) STATE MATCHABLE AMOUNT.—The amount determined under this paragraph for a fiscal year for a State shall be equal to—

“(A)(i) 50 percent of the amounts appropriated and remaining under paragraph (1) for such fiscal year; divided by

“(ii) 50 percent of the total amount that all States have directed through the respective lead agencies to the purposes identified under the authority of this title for the fiscal year, including foundation, corporate, and other private funding, State revenues, and Federal funds, as determined by the Secretary; multiplied by

“(B) 50 percent of the total amount that the State has directed through the lead agency to the purposes identified under the authority of this title for such fiscal year, including foundation, corporate, and other private funding, State revenues, and Federal funds.

“(c) ALLOCATION.—Funds allotted to a State under this section shall be awarded on a formula basis for a 3-year period. Payment under such allotments shall be made by the Secretary annually on the basis described in subsection (a).

“SEC. 204. EXISTING AND CONTINUATION GRANTS.

“(a) EXISTING GRANTS.—Notwithstanding the enactment of this title, a State or entity that has a grant, contract, or cooperative agreement in effect, on the date of enactment of this title, under the Family Resource and Support Program, the Community-Based Family Resource Program, the Family Support Center Program, the Emergency Child Abuse Prevention Grant Program, or the Temporary Child Care for Children with Disabilities and Crisis Nurseries Programs shall continue to receive funds under such programs, subject to the original terms under which such funds were granted, through the end of the applicable grant cycle.

“(b) CONTINUATION GRANTS.—The Secretary may continue grants for Family Resource and Support Program grantees, and those programs otherwise funded under this Act, on a noncompetitive basis, subject to the availability of appropriations, satisfactory performance by the grantee, and receipt of reports required under this Act, until such time as the grantee no longer meets the original purposes of this Act.

“SEC. 205. APPLICATION.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—A grant may not be made to a State under this title unless an application therefore is submitted by the State to the Secretary and such application contains the types of information specified by the Secretary as essential to carrying out the provisions of section 202, including—

“(1) a description of the lead entity that will be responsible for the administration of funds provided under this title and the oversight of programs funded through the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs which meets the requirements of section 202;

“(2) a description of how the network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs will operate and how family resource and support services provided by public and private, non-profit organizations, including those funded by programs consolidated under this Act, will be integrated into a developing continuum of family centered, holistic, preventive services for children and families;

“(3) an assurance that an inventory of current family resource programs, respite, child abuse and neglect prevention activities, and other family resource services operating in the State, and a description of current unmet needs, will be provided;

“(4) a budget for the development, operation and expansion of the State’s network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs that verifies that the State will expend an amount equal to not less than 20 percent of the amount received under this title (in cash, not in-kind) for activities under this title;

“(5) an assurance that funds received under this title will supplement, not supplant, other State and local public funds designated for the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs;

“(6) an assurance that the State network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs will maintain cultural diversity, and be culturally competent and socially sensitive and responsive to the needs of families with children with disabilities;

“(7) an assurance that the State has the capacity to ensure the meaningful involvement of parents who are consumers and who can provide leadership in the planning, implementation, and evaluation of the programs and policy decisions of the applicant agency in accomplishing the desired outcomes for such efforts;

“(8) a description of the criteria that the entity will use to develop, or select and fund, individual community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs as part of network development, expansion or enhancement;

“(9) a description of outreach activities that the entity and the community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs will undertake to maximize the participation of racial and ethnic minorities, new immigrant populations, children and adults with disabilities, homeless families and those at risk of homelessness, and members of other underserved or under-represented groups;

“(10) a plan for providing operational support, training and technical assistance to community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs for development, operation, expansion and enhancement activities;

“(11) a description of how the applicant entity’s activities and those of the network and its members will be evaluated;

“(12) a description of that actions that the applicant entity will take to advocate changes in State policies, practices, procedures and regulations to improve the delivery of prevention-focused, family resource and support program services to all children and families; and “(13) an assurance that the applicant entity will provide the Secretary with reports at such time and containing such information as the Secretary may require.

“SEC. 206. LOCAL PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Grants made under this title shall be used to develop, implement, operate, expand and enhance community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs that—

“(1) assess community assets and needs through a planning process that involves parents and local public agencies, local non-profit organizations, and private sector representatives;

“(2) develop a strategy to provide, over time, a continuum of preventive, holistic, family centered services to children and families, especially to young parents and parents with young children, through public-private partnerships;

“(3) provide—

“(A) core family resource and support services such as—

“(i) parent education, mutual support and self help, and leadership services;

“(ii) early developmental screening of children;

“(iii) outreach services;

“(iv) community and social service referrals; and

“(v) follow-up services;

“(B) other core services, which must be provided or arranged for through contracts or agreements with other local agencies, including all forms of respite services to the extent practicable; and

“(C) access to optional services, including—

“(i) child care, early childhood development and intervention services;

“(ii) services and supports to meet the additional needs of families with children with disabilities;

“(iii) job readiness services;

“(iv) educational services, such as scholastic tutoring, literacy training, and General Educational Degree services;

“(v) self-sufficiency and life management skills training;

“(vi) community referral services; and

“(vii) peer counseling;

“(4) develop leadership roles for the meaningful involvement of parents in the development, operation, evaluation, and oversight of the programs and services;

“(5) provide leadership in mobilizing local public and private resources to support the provision of needed family resource and support program services; and

“(6) participate with other community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support program grantees in the development, operation and expansion of the Statewide network.

“(b) PRIORITY.—In awarding local grants under this title, a lead entity shall give priority to community-based programs serving low income communities and those serving young parents or parents with young children, and to community-based family resource and support programs previously funded under the programs consolidated under the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act Amendments of 1996, so long as such programs meet local program requirements.

“SEC. 207. PERFORMANCE MEASURES.

“A State receiving a grant under this title, through reports provided to the Secretary, shall—

“(1) demonstrate the effective development, operation and expansion of a Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs that meets the requirements of this title;

“(2) supply an inventory and description of the services provided to families by local programs that meet identified community needs, including core and optional services as described in section 202;

“(3) demonstrate the establishment of new respite and other specific new family resources services, and the expansion of existing services, to address unmet needs identified by the inventory and description of current services required under section 205(a)(3);

“(4) describe the number of families served, including families with children with disabilities, and the involvement of a diverse representation of families in the design, operation, and evaluation of the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs, and in the design, operation and evaluation of the individual community-based family resource and support programs that are part of the Statewide network funded under this title;

“(5) demonstrate a high level of satisfaction among families who have used the services of the community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs;

“(6) demonstrate the establishment or maintenance of innovative funding mechanisms, at the State or community level, that blend Federal, State, local and private funds, and innovative, interdisciplinary service delivery mechanisms, for the development, operation, expansion and enhancement of the Statewide network of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs;

“(7) describe the results of a peer review process conducted under the State program; and “(8) demonstrate an implementation plan to ensure the continued leadership of parents in the on-going planning, implementation, and evaluation of such community based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs.

“SEC. 208. NATIONAL NETWORK FOR COMMUNITY-BASED FAMILY RESOURCE PROGRAMS.

“The Secretary may allocate such sums as may be necessary from the amount provided under the State allotment to support the activities of the lead entity in the State—

“(1) to create, operate and maintain a peer review process;

“(2) to create, operate and maintain an information clearinghouse;

“(3) to fund a yearly symposium on State system change efforts that result from the operation of the Statewide networks of community-based, prevention-focused, family resource and support programs;

“(4) to create, operate and maintain a computerized communication system between lead entities; and

“(5) to fund State-to-State technical assistance through bi-annual conferences.

“SEC. 209. DEFINITIONS.

“For purposes of this title:

“(1) CHILDREN WITH DISABILITIES.—The term ‘children with disabilities’ has the same meaning given such term in section

602(a)(2) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act.

“(2) COMMUNITY REFERRAL SERVICES.—The term ‘community referral services’ means services provided under contract or through interagency agreements to assist families in obtaining needed information, mutual support and community resources, including respite services, health and mental health services, employability development and job training, and other social services through help lines or other methods.

TITLE X—EFFECTIVE DATE; MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SEC. 1001. EFFECTIVE DATE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this Act, this Act and the amendments made by this Act shall take effect on October 1, 1996.

(b) ONE YEAR EXTENSION OF JOBS PROGRAM.—The authorization for the JOBS program under part F of title IV of the Social Security Act, as in effect on the date of the enactment of this Act shall be extended through fiscal year 1997 for $1,000,000,000 and allocated to the States in the same manner as under section 495 of the Social Security Act, as added by section 201 of this Act, except that the participation rate under clause (vi) of section 403(l)(3)(A) of such Act, as so in effect, shall be applied by substituting “25 percent” for “20 percent”.

SEC. 1002. TREATMENT OF EXISTING WAIVERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—If any waiver granted to a State under section 1115 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1315) or otherwise which relates to the provision of assistance under a State plan approved under title IV of the such Act (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.), is in effect or approved by the Secretary of Health and Human Services as of the date of the enactment of this Act, the amendments made by this Act, at the option of the State, shall not apply with respect to the State before the expiration (determined without regard to any extensions) of the waiver.

(b) FUNDING.—If the State elects the treatment described in subsection (a), the State—

(1) may use so much of the remainder of the Federal funds available for such waiver project as determined by the Secretary of Health and Human Services based on an evaluation of the budget of such waiver project; and

(2) may have any costs in excess of the cost neutrality requirements forgiven by the Secretary from funds not described in section 414(a)(2).

(c) REPORTS.—If the State does not elect the treatment described in subsection (a), and unless the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines that the waiver project is not of sufficient duration, the State shall submit a report on the operation and results of the waiver project, including any effects on employment and welfare receipt.

SEC. 1003. EXPEDITED WAIVER PROCESS.

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall approve or disapprove a waiver submitted under section 1115 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1315) not later than 90 days after the date the completed application is received. In considering such an application, there shall be the presumption for approval in the case of a request for a waiver that is similar in substance and scale to a previously approved waiver.

SEC. 1004. COUNTY WELFARE DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Agriculture may jointly enter into negotiations with any county having a population greater than 500,000 for the purpose of establishing appropriate rules to govern the establishment and operation of a 5-year welfare demonstration project. Under the demonstration project—

(1) the county shall have the authority and duty to administer the operation within the county of 1 or more of the programs established under title I or II of this Act as if the county were considered a State for purposes of such programs; and

(2) the State in which the county is located shall pass through directly to the county 100 percent of a proportion of the Federal funds received by the State under each of the programs described in paragraph (1) that is administered by the county under such paragraph, which proportion shall be separately calculated for each such program based (to the extent feasible and appropriate) on the formula used by the Federal government to allocate payments to the States under the program. Additionally, any State financial participation in these programs shall be no different for counties participating in the demonstration projects authorized by this section than for other counties within the State.

(b) COMMENCEMENT OF PROJECT.—After the conclusion of the negotiations described in subsection (a), the Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Secretary of Agriculture may authorize the county to conduct the demonstration project described in such subsection in accordance with the rules established under such subsection.

(c) REPORT.—The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the Congress a joint report on any demonstration project conducted under this section not later than 6 months after the termination of the project. Such report shall, at a minimum, describe the project, the rules negotiated with respect to the project under subsection (a), and the innovations (if any) that the county was able to initiate under the project.

SEC. 1005. WORK REQUIREMENTS FOR STATE OF HAWAII.

Section 485(a)(2)(B) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 201(a), is amended by redesignating clause (iii) as clause (iv), and by inserting after clause (ii) the following new clause:

“(iii) DEEMED HOURS OF WORK.—For purposes of subclauses (II) and (III) of subparagraph (A)(i), ‘19 hours’ shall be substituted for ‘20 hours’ in determining the State of Hawaii's work performance rate.”.

SEC. 1006. REQUIREMENT THAT DATA RELATING TO THE INCIDENCE OF POVERTY IN THE UNITED STATES BE PUBLISHED AT LEAST EVERY 2 YEARS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the “Secretary”) shall, to the extent feasible, produce and publish for each State, county, and local unit of general purpose government for which data have been compiled in the most recent census of population under section 141(a) of title 13, United States Code, and for each school district, data relating to the incidence of poverty. Such data may be produced by means of sampling, estimation, or any other method that the Secretary determines will produce current, comprehensive, and reliable data.

(b) CONTENT; FREQUENCY.—Data under this section—

(1) shall include—

(A) for each school district, the number of children age 5 to 17, inclusive, in families below the poverty level; and

(B) for each State and county referred to in subsection (a), the number of individuals age 65 or older below the poverty level; and

(2) shall be published—

(A) for each State, county, and local unit of general purpose government referred to in subsection (a), in 1997 and at least every 2nd year thereafter; and

(B) for each school district, in 1999 and at least every 2nd year thereafter.

(c) AUTHORITY TO AGGREGATE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If reliable data could not otherwise be produced, the Secretary may, for purposes of subsection (b)(1)(A), aggregate school districts, but only to the extent necessary to achieve reliability.

(2) INFORMATION RELATING TO USE OF AUTHORITY.—Any data produced under this subsection shall be appropriately identified and shall be accompanied by a detailed explanation as to how and why aggregation was used (including the measures taken to minimize any such aggregation).

(d) REPORT TO BE SUBMITTED WHENEVER DATA IS NOT TIMELY PUBLISHED.—If the Secretary is unable to produce and publish the data required under this section for any State, county, local unit of general purpose government, or school district in any year specified in subsection (b)(2), a report shall be submitted by the Secretary to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives, not later than 90 days before the start of the following year, enumerating each government or school district excluded and giving the reasons for the exclusion.

(e) CRITERIA RELATING TO POVERTY.—In carrying out this section, the Secretary shall use the same criteria relating to poverty as were used in the most recent census of population under section 141(a) of title 13, United States Code (subject to such periodic adjustments as may be necessary to compensate for inflation and other similar factors).

(f) CONSULTATION.—The Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Education in carrying out the requirements of this section relating to school districts.

(g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $1,500,000 for each of fiscal years 1997 through 2001.

SEC. 1007. STUDY BY THE CENSUS BUREAU.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Bureau of the Census shall expand the Survey of Income and Program Participation as necessary to obtain such information as will enable interested persons to evaluate the impact of the amendments made by title I of the Work First Act of 1996 on a random national sample of recipients of assistance under State programs funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act and (as appropriate) other low income families, and in doing so, shall pay particular attention to the issues of out-of-wedlock birth, welfare dependency, the beginning and end of welfare spells, and the causes of repeat welfare spells.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to the Bureau of the Census $10,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, and 2001 to carry out subsection (a).

SEC. 1008. SECRETARIAL SUBMISSION OF LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL FOR TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to the appropriate committees of the Congress a legislative proposal providing for such technical and conforming amendments in the law as are required by the provisions of this Act.

LIEBERMAN AMENDMENTS NOS.

(3) by inserting after paragraph (6), the following:

(7) An effective strategy to combat teenage pregnancy must address the issue of male responsibility, including statutory rape culpability and prevention. The increase of teenage pregnancies among the youngest girls is particularly severe and is linked to predatory sexual practices by men who are significantly older.

(A) It is estimated that in the late 1980's, the rate for girls age 14 and under giving birth increased 26 percent.

(B) Data indicates that at least half of the children born to teenage mothers are fathered by adult men. Available data suggests that almost 70 percent of births to teenage girls are fathered by men over age 20.

(C) Surveys of teen mothers have revealed that a majority of such mothers have histories of sexual and physical abuse, primarily with older adult men.

Section 402(a)(1)(A) of the Social Security Act, as added by section 2103(a)(1), is amended—

(1) by redesignating clauses (vi) and (vii) as clauses (vii) and (viii), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after clause (v), the following:

"(vi) Conduct a program, designed to reach State and local law enforcement officials; the education system, and relevant counseling services, that provides education and training on the problem of statutory rape so that teenage pregnancy prevention programs may be expanded in scope to include men.

Section 2908 is amended—

(1) by inserting "(a) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—" before "It"; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

(b) JUSTICE DEPARTMENT PROGRAM ON STATUTORY RAPE.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Not later than January 1, 1997, the Attorney General shall establish and implement a program that—

(A) studies the linkage between statutory rape and teenage pregnancy, particularly by predatory older men committing repeat offenses; and

(B) educates State and local criminal law enforcement officials on the prevention and prosecution of statutory rape, focusing in particular on the commission of statutory rape by predatory older men committing repeat offenses, and any links to teenage pregnancy.

(2) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated to the Attorney General to carry out the provisions of paragraph (1), $1,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, and 2002.

(c) VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN INITIATIVE.—The Attorney General shall ensure that the Department of Justice's Violence Against Women initiative addresses the issue of statutory rape, particularly the commission of statutory rape by predatory older men committing repeat offenses.

Mr. PRESSLER. Mr. President, I rise today to take another step in my overall maritime reform agenda, the International Ocean Shipping Act of 1996.

Last October, I introduced S. 1356, a companion bill to H.R. 2149. I did so to begin Senate discussion of this important reform proposal. In November, I chaired a Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation hearing on the bill. The hearing revealed numerous issues affecting all segments of the liner ocean shipping industry that required further consideration.

Today, I am submitting an amendment (No. 4904) to S. 1356. By so doing, I am putting out for public comment a proposed refined version of the bill which would institute comprehensive reforms in how the Federal Government regulates the liner trade in the foreign commerce of the United States. This amendment addresses the concerns raised in the November hearing.

I am pleased to be joined by Senators GORTON, LOTT, HUTCHISON, INOUE, EXON, and BREAUX as cosponsors in this amendment. This bipartisan approach demonstrates just how serious we are about achieving meaningful reform.

The House has passed its version of ocean shipping reform legislation. The Senate does not have much time left in this Congress to make its mark on this issue. I intend to hold a hearing on this legislation in the near future. With the support of my fellow Commerce Committee members and other Senators, we can pass ocean shipping reform legislation this year.

Mr. President, 95 percent of U.S. foreign commerce is transported via ocean shipping. Approximately half of this amount is shipped in bulk form, e.g., oil, grain, chemicals, etc., on an unregulated vessel charter basis. The remainder is shipped by container on liner vessels—regularly scheduled service—under the Shipping Act of 1984, as regulated by the Federal Maritime Commission [FMC]. As the international liner shipping trade has evolved since 1984, many industry segments have requested changes in the Shipping Act of 1984 to keep pace with this evolution.

My amendment, the International Ocean Shipping Act of 1996, would improve the Shipping Act of 1984 in several key areas.

First, it would eliminate the filing of common carrier tariffs with the Federal Government. Instead of requiring Government approval, tariffs would become effective upon publication through private systems. My amendment also would increase tariff rate flexibility by easing restrictions on tariff rate changes and independent action by conference carriers.

Second, it would allow for greater flexibility in service contracting by shippers and ocean common carriers. The amendment would allow individual ocean common carriers and shippers to negotiate confidential service contracts. It also would allow shippers' associations and ocean freight forwarders to negotiate service contracts as shippers.

Third, responsibility for enforcing U.S. ocean shipping laws would be shifted to the Surface Transportation Board, which would be renamed the Intermodal Transportation Board. The Federal Maritime Commission would be terminated at the end of fiscal year 1997. A single independent agency would then administer domestic surface, rail, and water transportation and international ocean transportation regulations. The Government would catch up to the carriers and shippers, who are already thinking intermodally.

Finally, the Intermodal Transportation Board would be given new tools to address predatory pricing ocean common carriers while ensuring increased competition in the industry.

THE PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY, WORK OPPORTUNITY, AND MED- ICAID RESTRUCTURING ACT OF 1996

TITLE I—BLOCK GRANTS FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

SEC. 101. FINDINGS.

The Congress makes the following findings:

- (1) Marriage is the foundation of a successful society.
- (2) Marriage is an essential institution of a successful society which promotes the interests of children.
- (3) Promotion of responsible fatherhood and motherhood is integral to successful child rearing and the well-being of children.
- (4) In 1992, only 54 percent of single-parent families with children had a child support order established and, of that 54 percent, only about one-half received the full amount due. Of the cases enforced through the public child support enforcement system, only 18 percent of the caseload has a collection.
- (5) The number of individuals receiving aid to families with dependent children (in this section referred to as "AFDC") has more than tripled since 1965. More than two-thirds of these recipients are children. Eighty-nine percent of children receiving AFDC benefits now live in homes in which no father is present.
- (A)(i) The average monthly number of children receiving AFDC benefits—
- (I) was 3,300,000 in 1965;
- (II) was 6,200,000 in 1970;
- (III) was 7,400,000 in 1980; and
- (IV) was 9,300,000 in 1992.
- (ii) While the number of children receiving AFDC benefits increased nearly threefold between 1965 and 1992, the total number of children in the United States aged 0 to 18 has declined by 5.5 percent.
- (B) The Department of Health and Human Services has estimated that 12,000,000 children will receive AFDC benefits within 10 years.
- (C) The increase in the number of children receiving public assistance is closely related to the increase in births to unmarried women. Between 1970 and 1991, the percentage of live births to unmarried women increased nearly threefold, from 10.7 percent to 29.5 percent.
- (6) The increase of out-of-wedlock pregnancies and births is well documented as follows:
- (A) It is estimated that the rate of non-marital teen pregnancy rose 23 percent from 54 pregnancies per 1,000 unmarried teenagers in 1976 to 66.7 pregnancies in 1991. The overall rate of nonmarital pregnancy rose 14 percent from 90.8 pregnancies per 1,000 unmarried women in 1980 to 103 in both 1991 and 1992. In contrast, the overall pregnancy rate for married couples decreased 7.3 percent between 1980 and 1991, from 126.9 pregnancies per 1,000 married women in 1980 to 117.6 pregnancies in 1991.
- (B) The total of all out-of-wedlock births between 1970 and 1991 has risen from 10.7 percent to 29.5 percent and if the current trend continues, 50 percent of all births by the year 2015 will be out-of-wedlock.

(7) The negative consequences of an out-of-wedlock birth on the mother, the child, the family, and society are well documented as follows:

(A) Young women 17 and under who give birth outside of marriage are more likely to go on public assistance and to spend more years on welfare once enrolled. These combined effects of "younger and longer" increase total AFDC costs per household by 25 percent to 30 percent for 17-year olds.

(B) Children born out-of-wedlock have a substantially higher risk of being born at a very low or moderately low birth weight.

(C) Children born out-of-wedlock are more likely to experience low verbal cognitive attainment, as well as more child abuse, and neglect.

(D) Children born out-of-wedlock were more likely to have lower cognitive scores, lower educational aspirations, and a greater likelihood of becoming teenage parents themselves.

(E) Being born out-of-wedlock significantly reduces the chances of the child growing up to have an intact marriage.

(F) Children born out-of-wedlock are 3 times more likely to be on welfare when they grow up.

(8) Currently 35 percent of children in single-parent homes were born out-of-wedlock, nearly the same percentage as that of children in single-parent homes whose parents are divorced (37 percent). While many parents find themselves, through divorce or tragic circumstances beyond their control, facing the difficult task of raising children alone, nevertheless, the negative consequences of raising children in single-parent homes are well documented as follows:

(A) Only 9 percent of married-couple families with children under 18 years of age have income below the national poverty level. In contrast, 46 percent of female-headed households with children under 18 years of age are below the national poverty level.

(B) Among single-parent families, nearly ½ of the mothers who never married received AFDC while only ⅓ of divorced mothers received AFDC.

(C) Children born into families receiving welfare assistance are 3 times more likely to be on welfare when they reach adulthood than children not born into families receiving welfare.

(D) Mothers under 20 years of age are at the greatest risk of bearing low-birth-weight babies.

(E) The younger the single parent mother, the less likely she is to finish high school.

(F) Young women who have children before finishing high school are more likely to receive welfare assistance for a longer period of time.

(G) Between 1985 and 1990, the public cost of births to teenage mothers under the aid to families with dependent children program, the food stamp program, and the medicaid program has been estimated at $120,000,000,000.

(H) The absence of a father in the life of a child has a negative effect on school performance and peer adjustment.

(I) Children of teenage single parents have lower cognitive scores, lower educational aspirations, and a greater likelihood of becoming teenage parents themselves.

(J) Children of single-parent homes are 3 times more likely to fail and repeat a year in grade school than are children from intact 2-parent families.

(K) Children from single-parent homes are almost 4 times more likely to be expelled or suspended from school.

(L) Neighborhoods with larger percentages of youth aged 12 through 20 and areas with higher percentages of single-parent households have higher rates of violent crime.

(M) Of those youth held for criminal offenses within the State juvenile justice system, only 29.8 percent lived primarily in a home with both parents. In contrast to these incarcerated youth, 73.9 percent of the 62,800,000 children in the Nation's resident population were living with both parents.

(9) Therefore, in light of this demonstration of the crisis in our Nation, it is the sense of the Congress that prevention of out-of-wedlock pregnancy and reduction in out-of-wedlock birth are very important Government interests and the policy contained in part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 103 of this Act) is intended to address the crisis.

SEC. 102. REFERENCE TO SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.

Except as otherwise specifically provided, wherever in this title an amendment is expressed in terms of an amendment to or repeal of a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to that section or other provision of the Social Security Act.

SEC. 103. BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES.

Part A of title IV (42 U.S.C. 601 et seq.) is amended to read as follows:

"PART A—BLOCK GRANTS TO STATES FOR TEMPORARY ASSISTANCE FOR NEEDY FAMILIES

"SEC. 401. PURPOSE.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—The purpose of this part is to increase the flexibility of States in operating a program designed to—

"(1) provide assistance to needy families so that children may be cared for in their own homes or in the homes of relatives;

"(2) end the dependence of needy parents on government benefits by promoting job preparation, work, and marriage;

"(3) prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies and establish annual numerical goals for preventing and reducing the incidence of these pregnancies; and

"(4) encourage the formation and maintenance of two-parent families.

"(b) NO INDIVIDUAL ENTITLEMENT.—This part shall not be interpreted to entitle any individual or family to assistance under any State program funded under this part.

"SEC. 402. ELIGIBLE STATES; STATE PLAN.

"(a) IN GENERAL.—As used in this part, the term 'eligible State' means, with respect to a fiscal year, a State that, during the 2-year period immediately preceding the fiscal year, has submitted to the Secretary a plan that meets the requirements of subsection (b) and has been approved by the Secretary with respect to the fiscal year.

"(b) CONTENTS OF STATE PLANS.—A plan meets the requirements of this subsection if the plan includes the following:

"(1) OUTLINE OF FAMILY ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.—

"(A) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—A written document that outlines how the State will do the following:

"(i) Conduct a program, designed to serve all political subdivisions in the State, that provides assistance to needy families with (or expecting) children and provides parents with job preparation, work, and support services to enable them to leave the program and become self-sufficient.

"(ii) Determine, on an objective and equitable basis, the needs of and the amount of assistance to be provided to needy families, and treat families of similar needs and circumstances similarly, subject to subparagraph (B).

"(iii) Require a parent or caretaker receiving assistance under the program to engage in work (as defined by the State) once the State determines the parent or caretaker is ready to engage in work, or once the parent or caretaker has received assistance under the program for 24 months (whether or not consecutive), whichever is earlier.

"(iv) Ensure that parents and caretakers receiving assistance under the program engage in work activities in accordance with section 407.

"(v) Grant an opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency to any individual to whom assistance under the program is denied, reduced, or terminated, or whose request for such assistance is not acted on with reasonable promptness.

"(vi) Take such reasonable steps as the State deems necessary to restrict the use and disclosure of information about individuals and families receiving assistance under the program attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government.

"(vii) Establish goals and take action to prevent and reduce the incidence of out-of-wedlock pregnancies, with special emphasis on teenage pregnancies, and establish numerical goals for reducing the illegitimacy ratio of the State (as defined in section 403(a)(2)(B)) for calendar years 1996 through 2005.

"(B) SPECIAL PROVISIONS.—

"(i) The plan shall indicate whether the State intends to treat families moving into the State from another State differently than other families under the program, and if so, how the State intends to treat such families under the program.

"(ii) The plan shall indicate whether the State intends to provide assistance under the program to individuals who are not citizens of the United States, and if so, shall include an overview of such assistance.

"(iii) The plan shall contain an estimate of the number of individuals (if any) who will become ineligible for medical assistance under the State plan approved under title XIX as a result of changes in the rules governing eligibility for the State program funded under this part, and shall indicate the extent (if any) to which the State will provide medical assistance to such individuals, and the scope of such medical assistance.

"(2) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL OPERATE A CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM.—The plan shall include a certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will operate a child support enforcement program under the State plan approved under part D.

"(3) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL NOT OPERATE A SEPARATE FINANCIAL SUPPORT PROGRAM WITH STATE FUNDS TARGETED AT CERTAIN CHILD SUPPORT RECIPIENTS.—The plan shall include a certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will not operate a separate financial support program with State funds targeted at child support recipients who would be eligible for assistance under the program funded under this part were it not for payments from the State-funded financial assistance program.

"(4) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL OPERATE A CHILD PROTECTION PROGRAM.—The plan shall include a certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will operate a child protection program under the State plan approved under part B.

"(5) CERTIFICATION OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE PROGRAM.—The plan shall include a certification by the chief executive officer of the State specifying which State agency or agencies will administer and supervise the program referred to in paragraph (1) for the fiscal year, which shall include assurances that local governments and private sector organizations—

"(A) have been working jointly with the State in all phases of the plan and design of welfare services in the State so that services are provided in a manner appropriate to local populations;

"(B) have had at least 60 days to submit comments on the final plan and the design of such services; and

"(C) will not have unfunded mandates imposed on them under such plan.

Such certification shall also include assurance that when local elected officials are currently responsible for the administration of welfare services, the local elected officials will be able to plan, design, and administer for their jurisdictions the programs established pursuant to this Act.

"(6) CERTIFICATION THAT THE STATE WILL PROVIDE INDIANS WITH EQUITABLE ACCESS TO ASSISTANCE.—The plan shall include a certification by the chief executive officer of the State that, during the fiscal year, the State will provide each Indian who is a member of an Indian tribe in the State that does not have a tribal family assistance plan approved under section 412 with equitable access to assistance under the State program funded under this part attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government.

"(7) CERTIFICATION OF NONDISPLACEMENT AND NONREPLACEMENT OF EMPLOYEES.—The plan shall include a certification that the implementation of the plan will not result in—

"(A) the displacement of a currently employed worker or position by an individual to whom assistance is provided under the State program funded under this part;

"(B) the replacement of an employee who has been terminated with an individual to whom assistance is provided under the State program funded under this part; or

"(C) the replacement of an employee who is on layoff from the same position filled by an individual to whom assistance is provided under the State program funded under this part or any equivalent position.

"(c) APPROVAL OF STATE PLANS.—The Secretary shall approve any State plan that meets the requirements of subsection (b) if the Secretary determines that operating a State program pursuant to the plan will contribute to achieving the purposes of this part.

"(d) PUBLIC AVAILABILITY OF STATE PLAN SUMMARY.—The State shall make available to the public a summary of any plan submitted by the State under this section.

"SEC. 403. GRANTS TO STATES.

"(a) GRANTS.—

"(1) FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—Each eligible State shall be entitled to receive from the Secretary, for each of fiscal years 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, and 2001 a grant in an amount equal to the State family assistance grant.

"(B) STATE FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT DEFINED.—As used in this part, the term 'State family assistance grant' means the greatest of—

"(i) 1/3 of the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect on September 30, 1995) for fiscal years 1992, 1993, and 1994 (other than with respect to amounts expended by the State for child care under subsection (g) or (i) of former section 402 (as so in effect));

"(ii) (I) the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 for fiscal year 1994 (other than with respect to amounts expended by the State for child care under subsection (g) or (i) of former section 402 (as so in effect)); plus

"(II) an amount equal to 85 percent of the amount (if any) by which the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403(a)(5) for emergency assistance for fiscal year 1995 exceeds the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403(a)(5) for fiscal year 1994, if, during fiscal year 1994, the Secretary approved under former section 402 an amendment to the former State plan with respect to the provision of emergency assistance in the context of family preservation; or “(iii) the amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect on September 30, 1995) for fiscal year 1995 (other than with respect to amounts expended by the State under the State plan approved under part F (as so in effect) or for child care under subsection (g) or (i) of former section 402 (as so in effect)), plus the total amount required to be paid to the State for fiscal year 1995 under former section 403(l) (as so in effect).

“(C) TOTAL AMOUNT REQUIRED TO BE PAID TO THE STATE UNDER FORMER SECTION 403 DEFINED.—As used in this part, the term ‘total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403’ means, with respect to a fiscal year—

“(i) in the case of a State to which section 1108 does not apply, the sum of—

“(I) the Federal share of maintenance assistance expenditures for the fiscal year, before reduction pursuant to subparagraph (B) or (C) of section 403(b)(2) (as in effect on September 30, 1995), as reported by the State on ACF Form 231;

“(II) the Federal share of administrative expenditures (including administrative expenditures for the development of management information systems) for the fiscal year, as reported by the State on ACF Form 231;

“(III) the Federal share of emergency assistance expenditures for the fiscal year, as reported by the State on ACF Form 231;

“(IV) the Federal share of expenditures for the fiscal year with respect to child care pursuant to subsections (g) and (i) of former section 402 (as in effect on September 30, 1995), as reported by the State on ACF Form 231; and

“(V) the aggregate amount required to be paid to the State for the fiscal year with respect to the State program operated under part F (as in effect on September 30, 1995), as determined by the Secretary, including additional obligations or reductions in obligations made after the close of the fiscal year; and

“(ii) in the case of a State to which section 1108 applies, the lesser of—

“(I) the sum described in clause (i); or

“(II) the total amount certified by the Secretary under former section 403 (as in effect during the fiscal year) with respect to the territory.

“(D) INFORMATION TO BE USED IN DETERMINING AMOUNTS.—

“(i) FOR FISCAL YEARS 1992 AND 1993.—

“(I) In determining the amount described in subclauses (I) through (IV) of subparagraph (C)(i) for any State for each of fiscal years 1992 and 1993, the Secretary shall use information available as of April 28, 1995.

“(II) In determining the amount described in subparagraph (C)(i)(V) for any State for each of fiscal years 1992 and 1993, the Secretary shall use information available as of January 6, 1995.

“(ii) FOR FISCAL YEAR 1994.—In determining the amounts described in subparagraph (C)(i) for any State for fiscal year 1994, the Secretary shall use information available as of April 28, 1995.

“(iii) FOR FISCAL YEAR 1995.—

“(I) In determining the amount described in subparagraph (B)(ii)(II) for any State for fiscal year 1995, the Secretary shall use the information which was reported by the States and estimates made by the States with respect to emergency assistance expenditures and was available as of August 11, 1995.

“(II) In determining the amounts described in subclauses (I) through (IV) of subparagraph (C)(i) for any State for fiscal year 1995, the Secretary shall use information available as of October 2, 1995.

“(III) In determining the amount described in subparagraph (C)(i)(V) for any State for fiscal year 1995, the Secretary shall use information available as of October 5, 1995.

“(E) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated for fiscal years 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, and 2001 such sums as are necessary for grants under this paragraph.

“(2) GRANT TO REWARD STATES THAT REDUCE OUT-OF-WEDLOCK BIRTHS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any grant under paragraph (1), each eligible State shall be entitled to receive from the Secretary for fiscal year 1998 or any succeeding fiscal year, a grant in an amount equal to the State family assistance grant multiplied by—

“(i) 5 percent if—

“(I) the illegitimacy ratio of the State for the fiscal year is at least 1 percentage point lower than the illegitimacy ratio of the State for fiscal year 1995; and

“(II) the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in the State for the fiscal year is less than the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in the State for fiscal year 1995; or

“(i) 10 percent if—

“(I) the illegitimacy ratio of the State for the fiscal year is at least 2 percentage points lower than the illegitimacy ratio of the State for fiscal year 1995; and

“(II) the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in the State for the fiscal year is less than the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in the State for fiscal year 1995.

“(B) ILLEGITIMACY RATIO.—As used in this paragraph, the term ‘illegitimacy ratio’ means, with respect to a State and a fiscal year—

“(i) the number of out-of-wedlock births that occurred in the State during the most recent fiscal year for which such information is available; divided by “(ii) the number of births that occurred in the State during the most recent fiscal year for which such information is available.

“(C) DISREGARD OF CHANGES IN DATA DUE TO CHANGED REPORTING METHODS.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the Secretary shall disregard—

“(i) any difference between the illegitimacy ratio of a State for a fiscal year and the illegitimacy ratio of the State for fiscal year 1995 which is attributable to a change in State methods of reporting data used to calculate the illegitimacy ratio; and “(ii) any difference between the rate of induced pregnancy terminations in a State for a fiscal year and such rate for fiscal year 1995 which is attributable to a change in State methods of reporting data used to calculate such rate.

“(D) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated for fiscal year 1998 and for each succeeding fiscal year such sums as are necessary for grants under this paragraph.

“(3) SUPPLEMENTAL GRANT FOR POPULATION INCREASES IN CERTAIN STATES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Each qualifying State shall, subject to subparagraph (F), be entitled to receive from the Secretary—

“(i) for fiscal year 1997 a grant in an amount equal to 2.5 percent of the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect during fiscal year 1994) for fiscal year 1994; and “(ii) for each of fiscal years 1998, 1999, and 2000, a grant in an amount equal to the sum of—

“(I) the amount (if any) required to be paid to the State under this paragraph for the immediately preceding fiscal year; and

“(II) 2.5 percent of the sum of—

“(aa) the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect during fiscal year 1994) for fiscal year 1994; and

“(bb) the amount (if any) required to be paid to the State under this paragraph for the fiscal year preceding the fiscal year for which the grant is to be made.

“(B) PRESERVATION OF GRANT WITHOUT INCREASES FOR STATES FAILING TO REMAIN QUALIFYING STATES.—Each State that is not a qualifying State for a fiscal year specified in subparagraph (A)(ii) but was a qualifying State for a prior fiscal year shall, subject to subparagraph (F), be entitled to receive from the Secretary for the specified fiscal year, a grant in an amount equal to the amount required to be paid to the State under this paragraph for the most recent fiscal year for which the State was a qualifying State.

“(C) QUALIFYING STATE.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this paragraph, a State is a qualifying State for a fiscal year if—

“(I) the level of welfare spending per poor person by the State for the immediately preceding fiscal year is less than the national average level of State welfare spending per poor person for such preceding fiscal year; and “(II) the population growth rate of the State (as determined by the Bureau of the Census for the most recent fiscal year for which information is available) exceeds the average population growth rate for all States (as so determined) for such most recent fiscal year.

“(ii) STATE MUST QUALIFY IN FISCAL YEAR 1997.—Notwithstanding clause (i), a State shall not be a qualifying State for any fiscal year after 1997 by reason of clause (i) if the State is not a qualifying State for fiscal year 1997 by reason of clause (i).

“(iii) CERTAIN STATES DEEMED QUALIFYING STATES.—For purposes of this paragraph, a State is deemed to be a qualifying State for fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000 if—

“(I) the level of welfare spending per poor person by the State for fiscal year 1996 is less than 35 percent of the national average level of State welfare spending per poor person for fiscal year 1996; or “(II) the population of the State increased by more than 10 percent from April 1, 1990, to July 1, 1994, as determined by the Bureau of the Census.

“(D) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this paragraph:

“(i) LEVEL OF WELFARE SPENDING PER POOR PERSON.—The term ‘level of State welfare spending per poor person’ means, with respect to a State and a fiscal year—

“(I) the sum of—

“(aa) the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect during fiscal year 1994) for fiscal year 1994; and

“(bb) the amount (if any) paid to the State under this paragraph for the immediately preceding fiscal year; divided by “(II) the number of individuals, according to the 1990 decennial census, who were residents of the State and whose income was below the poverty line.

“(ii) NATIONAL AVERAGE LEVEL OF STATE WELFARE SPENDING PER POOR PERSON.—The term ‘national average level of State welfare spending per poor person' means, with respect to a fiscal year, an amount equal to—

“(I) the total amount required to be paid to the States under former section 403 (as in effect during fiscal year 1994) for fiscal year 1994; divided by “(II) the number of individuals, according to the 1990 decennial census, who were residents of any State and whose income was below the poverty line.

“(iii) STATE.—The term ‘State’ means each of the 50 States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

“(E) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated for fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000 such sums as are necessary for grants under this paragraph, in a total amount not to exceed $800,000,000.

“(F) GRANTS REDUCED PRO RATA IF INSUFFICIENT APPROPRIATIONS.—If the amount appropriated pursuant to this paragraph for a fiscal year is less than the total amount of payments otherwise required to be made under this paragraph for the fiscal year, then the amount otherwise payable to any State for the fiscal year under this paragraph shall be reduced by a percentage equal to the amount so appropriated divided by such total amount.

“(G) BUDGET SCORING.—Notwithstanding section 257(b)(2) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, the baseline shall assume that no grant shall be made under this paragraph after fiscal year 2000.

“(4) SUPPLEMENTAL GRANT FOR OPERATION OF WORK PROGRAM.—

“(A) APPLICATION REQUIREMENTS.—An eligible State may submit to the Secretary an application for additional funds to meet the requirements of section 407 with respect to a fiscal year if the Secretary determines that—

“(i) the total expenditures of the State to meet such requirements for the fiscal year exceed the total expenditures of the State during fiscal year 1994 to carry out part F (as in effect on September 30, 1994);

“(ii) the work programs of the State under section 407 are coordinated with the job training programs established by title II of the Job Training Partnership Act, or (if such title is repealed by the Consolidated and Reformed Education, Employment, and Rehabilitation Systems Act) the Consolidated and Reformed Education, Employment, and Rehabilitation Systems Act; and “(iii) the State needs additional funds to meet such requirements or certifies that it intends to exceed such requirements.

“(B) GRANTS.—The Secretary may make a grant to any eligible State which submits an application in accordance with subparagraph (A) of this paragraph for a fiscal year in an amount equal to the Federal medical assistance percentage of the amount (if any) by which the total expenditures of the State to meet or exceed the requirements of section 407 for the fiscal year exceeds the total expenditures of the State during fiscal year 1994 to carry out part F (as in effect on September 30, 1994).

“(C) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall issue regulations providing for the equitable distribution of funds under this paragraph.

“(D) APPROPRIATIONS.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated to the Secretary for grants under this paragraph—

“(I) $150,000,000 for fiscal year 1999;

“(II) $850,000,000 for fiscal year 2000;

“(III) $900,000,000 for fiscal year 2001; and “(IV) $1,100,000,000 for fiscal year 2002 and for each succeeding fiscal year.

“(ii) AVAILABILITY.—Amounts appropriated pursuant to clause (i) shall remain available until expended.

“(b) CONTINGENCY FUND.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is hereby established in the Treasury of the United States a fund which shall be known as the ‘Contingency Fund for State Welfare Programs’ (in this section referred to as the ‘Fund’).

“(2) DEPOSITS INTO FUND.—

“(A) Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated for fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001 and 2002 such sums as are necessary for payment to the Fund in a total amount not to exceed $2,000,000,000, except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C).

“(B) If—

“(i) the average rate of total unemployment in the United States for the most recent 3 months for which data for all States are available is not less than 7 percent; and

“(ii) there are insufficient amounts in the Fund to pay all State claims under paragraph (4) for a quarter in that fiscal year; then there are appropriated for that fiscal year, in addition to amounts appropriated under paragraph (2)(A), such sums as equal the difference between the amount needed to pay all State claims for that quarter and the amount remaining in the Fund.

“(C) If—

“(i)(I)(aa) the average rate of total unemployment in a State (seasonally adjusted) for the period consisting of the most recent 3 months for which data for all States are published is not less than 9 percent; or

“(bb) the average rate of total unemployment in such State (seasonally adjusted) for the 3-month period is not less than 120 percent of such average rate for either of the prior 2 years; or

“(II) the average number of persons in the State receiving assistance under the food stamp program, as defined in section 3(h) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977, for the most recent 3-month period for which data are available is not less than 120 percent of such average monthly number for fiscal year 1994 or for fiscal year 1995; and

“(ii) there are insufficient amounts in the Fund to pay all State claims under paragraph (4) for a quarter in that fiscal year; then there are appropriated for payment to the Fund for that fiscal year, in addition to amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraph (2)(A), for payments to States described in this subparagraph, the amount by which payments to such States under paragraph (4) would otherwise be reduced under paragraph (8).

“(3) PAYMENTS TO STATES.—The method of computing and paying amounts to States from the Fund under this subsection shall be as follows:

“(A) The Secretary shall, before each quarter, estimate the amount to be paid to each State for the quarter from the Fund, such estimate to be based on—

“(i) a report filed by the State containing an estimate by the State of qualifying State expenditures for the quarter; and “(ii) such other information as the Secretary may find relevant and reliable.

“(B) The Secretary shall then certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount so estimated by the Secretary.

“(C) The Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon pay to the State, at the time or times fixed by the Secretary, the amount so certified.

“(4) GRANTS.—From amounts appropriated pursuant to paragraph (2), the Secretary of the Treasury shall pay to each eligible State for a fiscal year an amount equal to the lesser of—

“(A) the Federal medical assistance percentage for the State for the fiscal year (as defined in section 1905(b), as in effect on September 30, 1995) of the amount, if any, by which the expenditures of the State in the fiscal year under the State program funded under this part and expenditures on cash assistance under other State programs with respect to eligible families (as defined in section 409(a)(5)(B)(i)(III)) exceed historic State expenditures (as defined in section 409(a)(5)(B)(iii)); or

“(B) the number of percentage points (if any) by which 40 percent of the State family assistance grant for the fiscal year exceeds any payment to the State for the fiscal year under section 403(a)(3).

“(5) ANNUAL RECONCILIATION.—At the end of each fiscal year, each State shall remit to the Secretary an amount equal to the amount (if any) by which the total amount paid to the State under paragraph (4) during the fiscal year exceeds the lesser of—

“(A) the Federal medical assistance percentage for the State for the fiscal year (as defined in section 1905(b), as in effect on September 30, 1995) of the amount (if any) by which the expenditures of the State in the fiscal year under the State program funded under this part and expenditures on cash assistance under other State programs with respect to eligible families (as defined in section 409(a)(5)(B)(i)(III)) exceed historic State expenditures (as defined in section 409(a)(5)(B)(iii)); or

“(B) the amount (if any) by which 40 percent of the State family assistance grant for the fiscal year exceeds any payment to the State for the fiscal year under section 403(a)(3).

“(6) ELIGIBLE STATE.—For purposes of this subsection, a State is an eligible State for a fiscal year, if—

“(A)(i) the average rate of total unemployment in such State (seasonally adjusted) for the period consisting of the most recent 3 months for which data for all States are published is not less than 6.5 percent; and

“(ii) the average rate of total unemployment in such State (seasonally adjusted) for the 3-month period is not less than 110 percent of such average rate for either 1994 or 1995; or

“(B)(i) the average number of persons in the State receiving assistance under the food stamp program, as defined in section 3(h) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977, for the most recent 3-month period for which data are available is not less than 110 percent of the product of—

“(I) such average monthly number for either fiscal year 1994 or fiscal year 1995; and

“(II) the number of percentage points (if any) by which 100 percent exceeds the percentage by which the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996, had it been in effect, would have reduced such average monthly number in such State in such fiscal year, as most recently estimated by the Secretary of Agriculture before the date of the enactment of such Act; and “(ii) the State is not participating in the program established under section 23(b) of the Food Stamp Act of 1977.

“(7) STATE.—As used in this subsection, the term ‘State’ means each of the 50 States of the United States and the District of Columbia.

“(8) PAYMENT PRIORITY.—Claims by States for payment from the Fund shall be filed quarterly. If the total amount of claims for any quarter exceeds the amount available for payment from the fund, claims shall be paid on a pro rata basis in a manner to be determined by the Secretary, except in the case of a State described in paragraph (2)(C).

“(9) ANNUAL REPORTS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall annually report to Congress on the status of the Fund.

“SEC. 404. USE OF GRANTS.

“(a) GENERAL RULES.—Subject to this part, a State to which a grant is made under section 403 may use the grant—

“(1) in any manner that is reasonably calculated to accomplish the purpose of this part, including to provide low income households with assistance in meeting home heating and cooling costs; or

“(2) in any manner that the State was authorized to use amounts received under part A or F, as such parts were in effect on September 30, 1995.

“(b) LIMITATION ON USE OF GRANT FOR ADMINISTRATIVE PURPOSES.—

“(1) LIMITATION.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not expend more than 15 percent of the grant for administrative purposes.

“(2) EXCEPTION.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to the use of a grant for information technology and computerization needed for tracking or monitoring required by or under this part.

“(c) AUTHORITY TO TREAT INTERSTATE IMMIGRANTS UNDER RULES OF FORMER STATE.—A State operating a program funded under this part may apply to a family the rules (including benefit amounts) of the program funded under this part of another State if the family has moved to the State from the other State and has resided in the State for less than 12 months.

“(d) AUTHORITY TO USE PORTION OF GRANT FOR OTHER PURPOSES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A State may use not more than 20 percent of the amount of the grant made to the State under section 403 for a fiscal year to carry out a State program pursuant to the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990.

“(2) APPLICABLE RULES.—Any amount paid to the State under this part that is used to carry out a State program pursuant to the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990 shall not be subject to the requirements of this part, but shall be subject to the requirements that apply to Federal funds provided directly under such Act to carry out the program.

“(e) AUTHORITY TO RESERVE CERTAIN AMOUNTS FOR ASSISTANCE.—A State may reserve amounts paid to the State under this part for any fiscal year for the purpose of providing, without fiscal year limitation, assistance under the State program funded under this part.

“(f) AUTHORITY TO OPERATE EMPLOYMENT PLACEMENT PROGRAM.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 may use the grant to make payments (or provide job placement vouchers) to State-approved public and private job placement agencies that provide employment placement services to individuals who receive assistance under the State program funded under this part.

“(g) IMPLEMENTATION OF ELECTRONIC BENEFIT TRANSFER SYSTEM.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 is encouraged to implement an electronic benefit transfer system for providing assistance under the State program funded under this part, and may use the grant for such purpose.

“SEC. 405. ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.

“(a) QUARTERLY.—The Secretary shall pay each grant payable to a State under section 403 in quarterly installments.

“(b) NOTIFICATION.—Not later than 3 months before the payment of any such quarterly installment to a State, the Secretary shall notify the State of the amount of any reduction determined under section 412(a)(1)(B) with respect to the State.

“(c) COMPUTATION AND CERTIFICATION OF PAYMENTS TO STATES.—

“(1) COMPUTATION.—The Secretary shall estimate the amount to be paid to each eligible State for each quarter under this part, such estimate to be based on a report filed by the State containing an estimate by the State of the total sum to be expended by the State in the quarter under the State program funded under this part and such other information as the Secretary may find necessary.

“(2) CERTIFICATION.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall certify to the Secretary of the Treasury the amount estimated under paragraph (1) with respect to a State, reduced or increased to the extent of any overpayment or underpayment which the Secretary of Health and Human Services determines was made under this part to the State for any prior quarter and with respect to which adjustment has not been made under this paragraph.

“(d) PAYMENT METHOD.—Upon receipt of a certification under subsection (c)(2) with respect to a State, the Secretary of the Treasury shall, through the Fiscal Service of the Department of the Treasury and before audit or settlement by the General Accounting Office, pay to the State, at the time or times fixed by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, the amount so certified.

“(e) COLLECTION OF STATE OVERPAYMENTS TO FAMILIES FROM FEDERAL TAX REFUNDS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Upon receiving notice from the Secretary of Health and Human Services that a State agency administering a program funded under this part has notified the Secretary that a named individual has been overpaid under the State program funded under this part, the Secretary of the Treasury shall determine whether any amounts as refunds of Federal taxes paid are payable to such individual, regardless of whether the individual filed a tax return as a married or unmarried individual. If the Secretary of the Treasury finds that any such amount is so payable, the Secretary shall withhold from such refunds an amount equal to the overpayment sought to be collected by the State and pay such amount to the State agency.

“(2) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary of the Treasury shall issue regulations, after review by the Secretary of Health and Human Services, that provide—

“(A) that a State may only submit under paragraph (1) requests for collection of overpayments with respect to individuals—

“(i) who are no longer receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part;

“(ii) with respect to whom the State has already taken appropriate action under State law against the income or resources of the individuals or families involved to collect the past-due legally enforceable debt; and

“(iii) to whom the State agency has given notice of its intent to request withholding by the Secretary of the Treasury from the income tax refunds of such individuals;

“(B) that the Secretary of the Treasury will give a timely and appropriate notice to any other person filing a joint return with the individual whose refund is subject to withholding under paragraph (1); and

“(C) the procedures that the State and the Secretary of the Treasury will follow in carrying out this subsection which, to the maximum extent feasible and consistent with the provisions of this subsection, will be the same as those issued pursuant to section 464(b) applicable to collection of past-due child support.

“SEC. 406. FEDERAL LOANS FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS.

“(a) LOAN AUTHORITY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall make loans to any loan-eligible State, for a period to maturity of not more than 3 years.

“(2) LOAN-ELIGIBLE STATE.—As used in paragraph (1), the term ‘loan-eligible State’ means a State against which a penalty has not been imposed under section 409(e).

“(b) RATE OF INTEREST.—The Secretary shall charge and collect interest on any loan made under this section at a rate equal to the current average market yield on outstanding marketable obligations of the United States with remaining periods to maturity comparable to the period to maturity of the loan.

“(c) USE OF LOAN.—A State shall use a loan made to the State under this section only for any purpose for which grant amounts received by the State under section 403(a) may be used, including—

“(1) welfare anti-fraud activities; and

“(2) the provision of assistance under the State program to Indian families that have moved from the service area of an Indian tribe with a tribal family assistance plan approved under section 412.

“(d) LIMITATION ON TOTAL AMOUNT OF LOANS TO A STATE.—The cumulative dollar amount of all loans made to a State under this section during fiscal years 1997 through 2001 shall not exceed 10 percent of the State family assistance grant.

“(e) LIMITATION ON TOTAL AMOUNT OF OUTSTANDING LOANS.—The total dollar amount of loans outstanding under this section may not exceed $1,700,000,000.

“(f) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated such sums as may be necessary for the cost of loans under this section.

“SEC. 407. MANDATORY WORK REQUIREMENTS; INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY PLANS.

“(a) PARTICIPATION RATE REQUIREMENTS.—

“(1) ALL FAMILIES.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 for a fiscal year shall achieve the minimum participation rate specified in the following table for the fiscal year with respect to all families receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part:

“If the fiscal year is:	The minimum participation rate is:
1997	20
1998	25
1999	30
2000	35
2001	40
2002 or thereafter	50.

“(2) 2-PARENT FAMILIES.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 for a fiscal year shall achieve the minimum participation rate specified in the following table for the fiscal year with respect to 2-parent families receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part:

“If the fiscal year is:	The minimum participation rate is:
1997	75
1998	75
1999 or thereafter ...	90.

“(b) CALCULATION OF PARTICIPATION RATES.—

“(1) ALL FAMILIES.—

“(A) AVERAGE MONTHLY RATE.—For purposes of subsection (a)(1), the participation rate for all families of a State for a fiscal year is the average of the participation rates for all families of the State for each month in the fiscal year.

“(B) MONTHLY PARTICIPATION RATES.—The participation rate of a State for all families of the State for a month, expressed as a percentage, is—

“(i) the number of families receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part that include an adult who is engaged in work for the month; divided by

“(ii) the amount by which—

“(I) the number of families receiving such assistance during the month that include an adult receiving such assistance; exceeds “(II) the number of families receiving such assistance that are subject in such month to a penalty described in subsection (e)(1) but have not been subject to such penalty for more than 3 months within the preceding 12-month period (whether or not consecutive).

“(C) SPECIAL RULE.—An individual shall be considered to be engaged in work and to be an adult recipient of assistance under a State program funded under this part for purposes of subparagraph (B) for the first 6 months (whether or not consecutive) after the first cessation of assistance to an individual under the program during which the individual is employed for an average of more than 25 hours per week in an unsubsidized job in the private sector.

“(2) 2-PARENT FAMILIES.—

“(A) AVERAGE MONTHLY RATE.—For purposes of subsection (a)(2), the participation rate for 2-parent families of a State for a fiscal year is the average of the participation rates for 2-parent families of the State for each month in the fiscal year.

“(B) MONTHLY PARTICIPATION RATES.—The participation rate of a State for 2-parent families of the State for a month shall be calculated by use of the formula set forth in paragraph (1)(B), except that in the formula the term ‘number of 2-parent families’ shall be substituted for the term ‘number of families’ each place such latter term appears.

“(3) PRO RATA REDUCTION OF PARTICIPATION RATE DUE TO CASELOAD REDUCTIONS NOT REQUIRED BY FEDERAL LAW.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations for reducing the minimum participation rate otherwise required by this section for a fiscal year by the number of percentage points equal to the number of percentage points (if any) by which—

“(i) the number of families receiving assistance during the fiscal year under the State program funded under this part is less than “(ii) the number of families that received aid under the State plan approved under part A (as in effect on September 30, 1995) during fiscal year 1994 or 1995, whichever is the greater.

The minimum participation rate shall not be reduced to the extent that the Secretary determines that the reduction in the number of families receiving such assistance is required by Federal law.

“(B) ELIGIBILITY CHANGES NOT COUNTED.—The regulations described in subparagraph (A) shall not take into account families that are diverted from a State program funded under this part as a result of differences in eligibility criteria under a State program funded under this part and eligibility criteria under the State program operated under the State plan approved under part A (as such plan and such part were in effect on September 30, 1995). Such regulations shall place the burden on the Secretary to prove that such families were diverted as a direct result of differences in such eligibility criteria.

“(4) STATE OPTION TO INCLUDE INDIVIDUALS RECEIVING ASSISTANCE UNDER A TRIBAL FAMILY ASSISTANCE PLAN.—For purposes of paragraphs (1)(B) and (2)(B), a State may, at its option, include families receiving assistance under a tribal family assistance plan approved under section 412.

“(5) STATE OPTION FOR PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENT EXEMPTIONS.—For any fiscal year, a State may, at its option, not require an individual who is a single custodial parent caring for a child who has not attained 12 months of age to engage in work and may disregard such an individual in determining the participation rates under subsection (a).

“(c) ENGAGED IN WORK.—

“(1) ALL FAMILIES.—For purposes of subsection (b)(1)(B)(i), a recipient is engaged in work for a month in a fiscal year if the recipient is participating in such activities for at least the minimum average number of hours per week specified in the following table during the month, not fewer than 20 hours per week of which are attributable to an activity described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (7), or (8) of subsection (d) (or, if the participation of the recipient in an activity described in subsection (d)(6) has been taken into account for purposes of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b) for fewer than 4 weeks in the fiscal year, an activity described in subsection (d)(6)):

“If the month is in fiscal year:	The minimum average number of hours per week is:
1996	20
1997	20
1998	20
1999 or thereafter ...	25.

“(2) 2-PARENT FAMILIES.—For purposes of subsection (b)(2)(B)(i), an adult is engaged in work for a month in a fiscal year if the adult is making progress in such activities for at least 25 hours per week during the month, not fewer than 20 hours per week of which are attributable to an activity described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), (7), or (8) of subsection (d) (or, if the participation of the recipient in an activity described in subsection (d)(6) has been taken into account for purposes of paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (b) for fewer than 8 weeks (no more than 4 of which may be consecutive) in the fiscal year, an activity described in subsection (d)(6)).

“(3) LIMITATION ON VOCATIONAL EDUCATION ACTIVITIES COUNTED AS WORK.—For purposes of determining monthly participation rates under paragraphs (1)(B)(i) and (2)(B)(i) of subsection (b), not more than 20 percent of adults in all families and in 2-parent families determined to be engaged in work in the State for a month may meet the work activity requirement through participation in vocational educational training.

“(4) OPTION TO REDUCE NUMBER OF HOURS OF WORK REQUIRED OF SINGLE PARENTS WITH A CHILD UNDER AGE 6.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a State may reduce to 20 the number of hours per week during which a single custodial parent is required pursuant to this section to engage in work activities if the family of the parent includes an individual who has not attained 6 years of age.

“(d) WORK ACTIVITIES DEFINED.—As used in this section, the term ‘work activities’ means—

“(1) unsubsidized employment;

“(2) subsidized private sector employment;

“(3) subsidized public sector employment;

“(4) work experience (including work associated with the refurbishing of publicly assisted housing) if sufficient private sector employment is not available;

“(5) on-the-job training;

“(6) job search and job readiness assistance;

“(7) community service programs;

“(8) vocational educational training (not to exceed 12 months with respect to any individual);

“(9) job skills training directly related to employment;

“(10) education directly related to employment, in the case of a recipient who has not received a high school diploma or a certificate of high school equivalency; and “(11) satisfactory attendance at secondary school, in the case of a recipient who—

“(A) has not completed secondary school; and

“(B) is a dependent child, or a head of household who has not attained 20 years of age.

“(e) PENALTIES AGAINST INDIVIDUALS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), if an adult in a family receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part refuses to engage in work required in accordance with this section, the State shall—

“(A) reduce the amount of assistance otherwise payable to the family pro rata (or more, at the option of the State) with respect to any period during a month in which the adult so refuses; or “(B) terminate such assistance, subject to such good cause and other exceptions as the State may establish.

“(2) EXCEPTION.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), a State may not reduce or terminate assistance under the State program funded under this part based on a refusal of an adult to work if the adult is a single custodial parent caring for a child who has not attained 11 years of age, and the adult proves that the adult has a demonstrated inability (as determined by the State) to obtain needed child care, for 1 or more of the following reasons:

“(A) Unavailability of appropriate child care within a reasonable distance from the individual’s home or work site.

“(B) Unavailability or unsuitability of informal child care by a relative or under other arrangements.

“(C) Unavailability of appropriate and affordable formal child care arrangements.

“(f) NONDISPLACEMENT IN WORK ACTIVITIES.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), an adult in a family receiving assistance under a State program funded under this part attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government may fill a vacant employment position in order to engage in a work activity described in subsection (d).

“(2) NO FILLING OF CERTAIN VACANCIES.—No adult in a work activity described in subsection (d) which is funded, in whole or in part, by funds provided by the Federal Government shall be employed or assigned—

“(A) when any other individual is on layoff from the same or any substantially equivalent job; or

“(B) if the employer has terminated the employment of any regular employee or otherwise caused an involuntary reduction of its workforce in order to fill the vacancy so created with an adult described in paragraph (1).

“(3) NO PREEMPTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall preempt or supersede any provision of State or local law that provides greater protection for employees from displacement.

“(g) INDIVIDUAL RESPONSIBILITY PLANS.—

“(1) ASSESSMENT.—The State agency responsible for administering the State program funded under this part shall make an initial assessment of the skills, prior work experience, and employability of each applicant for, or recipient of, assistance under the program who—

“(A) has attained 18 years of age; or

“(B) has not completed high school or obtained a certificate of high school equivalency, and is not attending secondary school.

“(2) CONTENTS OF PLANS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—On the basis of the assessment made under paragraph (I) with respect to an individual, the State agency, in consultation with the individual, shall develop an individual responsibility plan for the individual, which—

“(i) shall provide that participation by the individual in job search activities shall be a condition of eligibility for assistance under the State program funded under this part, except during any period for which the individual is employed full-time in an unsubsidized job in the private sector;

“(ii) sets forth an employment goal for the individual and a plan for moving the individual immediately into private sector employment;

“(iii) sets forth the obligations of the individual, which may include a requirement that the individual attend school, maintain certain grades and attendance, keep school age children of the individual in school, immunize children, attend parenting and money management classes, or do other things that will help the individual become and remain employed in the private sector;

“(iv) to the greatest extent possible shall be designed to move the individual into whatever private sector employment the individual is capable of handling as quickly as possible, and to increase the responsibility and amount of work the individual is to handle over time;

“(v) shall describe the services the State will provide the individual so that the individual will be able to obtain and keep employment in the private sector, and describe the job counseling and other services that will be provided by the State; and “(vi) at the option of the State, may require the individual to undergo appropriate substance abuse treatment.

“(B) TIMING.—The State agency shall comply with subparagraph (A) with respect to an individual—

“(i) within 90 days (or, at the option of the State, 180 days) after the effective date of this part, in the case of an individual who, as of such effective date, is a recipient of aid under the State plan approved under part A (as in effect immediately before such effective date); or “(ii) within 30 days (or, at the option of the State, 90 days) after the individual is determined to be eligible for such assistance, in the case of any other individual.

“(3) PROVISION OF PROGRAM AND EMPLOYMENT INFORMATION.—The State shall inform all applicants for and recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part of all available services under the program for which they are eligible.

“(4) PENALTY FOR NONCOMPLIANCE BY INDIVIDUAL.—The State shall reduce, by such amount as the State considers appropriate, the amount of assistance otherwise payable under the State program funded under this part to a family that includes an individual who fails without good cause to comply with an individual responsibility plan signed by the individual.

“(h) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS.—It is the sense of the Congress that in complying with this section, each State that operates a program funded under this part is encouraged to assign the highest priority to requiring adults in 2-parent families and adults in single-parent families that include older preschool or school-age children to be engaged in work activities.

“(i) SENSE OF THE CONGRESS THAT STATES SHOULD IMPOSE CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ON NONCUSTODIAL, NONSUPPORTING MINOR PARENTS.—It is the sense of the Congress that the States should require noncustodial, nonsupporting parents who have not attained 18 years of age to fulfill community work obligations and attend appropriate parenting or money management classes after school.

“SEC. 408. PROHIBITIONS; REQUIREMENTS.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—

“(1) NO ASSISTANCE FOR FAMILIES WITHOUT A MINOR CHILD.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide assistance to a family, unless the family includes—

“(A) a minor child who resides with a custodial parent or other adult caretaker relative of the child; or “(B) a pregnant individual.

“(2) NO ADDITIONAL CASH ASSISTANCE FOR CHILDREN BORN TO FAMILIES RECEIVING ASSISTANCE.—

“(A) GENERAL RULE.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide cash benefits for a minor child who is born to—

“(i) a recipient of assistance under the program operated under this part; or “(ii) a person who received such assistance at any time during the 10-month period ending with the birth of the child.

“(B) EXCEPTION FOR CHILDREN BORN INTO FAMILIES WITH NO OTHER CHILDREN.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to a minor child who is born into a family that does not include any other children.

“(C) EXCEPTION FOR VOUCHERS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to vouchers which are provided in lieu of cash benefits and which may be used only to pay for particular goods and services specified by the State as suitable for the care of the child involved.

“(D) EXCEPTION FOR RAPE OR INCEST.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply with respect to a child who is born as a result of rape or incest.

“(E) STATE ELECTION TO OPT OUT.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to a State if State law specifically exempts the State program funded under this part from the application of subparagraph (A).

“(F) SUBSTITUTION OF FAMILY CAPS IN EFFECT UNDER WAIVERS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to a State—

“(i) if, as of the date of the enactment of this part, there is in effect a waiver approved by the Secretary under section 1115 which permits the State to deny aid under the State plan approved under part A of this title (as in effect without regard to the amendments made by title I of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996) to a family by reason of the birth of a child to a family member otherwise eligible for such aid; and “(ii) for so long as the State continues to implement such policy under the State program funded under this part, under rules prescribed by the State.

“(3) REDUCTION OR ELIMINATION OF ASSISTANCE FOR NONCOOPERATION IN CHILD SUPPORT.—If the agency responsible for administering the State plan approved under part D determines that an individual is not cooperating with the State in establishing, modifying, or enforcing a support order with respect to a child of the individual, then the State—

“(A) shall deduct from the assistance that would otherwise be provided to the family of the individual under the State program funded under this part the share of such assistance attributable to the individual; and “(B) may deny the family any assistance under the State program.

“(4) NO ASSISTANCE FOR FAMILIES NOT ASSIGNING CERTAIN SUPPORT RIGHTS TO THE STATE.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall require, as a condition of providing assistance to a family under the State program funded under this part, that a member of the family assign to the State any rights the family member may have (on behalf of the family member or of any other person for whom the family member has applied for or is receiving such assistance) to support from any other person, not exceeding the total amount of assistance so provided to the family, which accrue (or have accrued) before the date the family leaves the program, which assignment, on and after the date the family leaves the program, shall not apply with respect to any support (other than support collected pursuant to section 464) which accrued before the family received such assistance and which the State has not collected by—

“(i) September 30, 2000, if the assignment is executed on or after October 1, 1997, and before October 1, 2000; or “(ii) the date the family leaves the program, if the assignment is executed on or after October 1, 2000.

“(B) LIMITATION.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not require, as a condition of providing assistance to any family under the State program funded under this part, that a member of the family assign to the State any rights to support described in subparagraph (A) which accrue after the date the family leaves the program, except to the extent necessary to enable the State to comply with section 457.

“(5) NO ASSISTANCE FOR TEENAGE PARENTS WHO DO NOT ATTEND HIGH SCHOOL OR OTHER EQUIVALENT TRAINING PROGRAM.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide assistance to an individual who has not attained 18 years of age, is not married, has a minor child at least 12 weeks of age in his or her care, and has not successfully completed a high-school education (or its equivalent), if the individual does not participate in—

“(A) educational activities directed toward the attainment of a high school diploma or its equivalent; or “(B) an alternative educational or training program that has been approved by the State.

“(6) NO ASSISTANCE FOR TEENAGE PARENTS NOT LIVING IN ADULT-SUPERVISED SETTINGS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—

“(i) REQUIREMENT.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide assistance to an individual described in clause (ii) of this subparagraph if the individual and the minor child referred to in clause (ii)(II) do not reside in a place of residence maintained by a parent, legal guardian, or other adult relative of the individual as such parent's, guardian's, or adult relative's own home.

“(ii) INDIVIDUAL DESCRIBED.—For purposes of clause (i), an individual described in this clause is an individual who—

“(I) has not attained 18 years of age; and “(II) is not married, and has a minor child in his or her care.

“(B) EXCEPTION.—

“(i) PROVISION OF, OR ASSISTANCE IN LOCATING, ADULT-SUPERVISED LIVING ARRANGEMENT.—In the case of an individual who is described in clause (ii), the State agency referred to in section 402(a)(4) shall provide, or assist the individual in locating, a second chance home, maternity home, or other appropriate adult-supervised supportive living arrangement, taking into consideration the needs and concerns of the individual, unless the State agency determines that the individual's current living arrangement is appropriate, and thereafter shall require that the individual and the minor child referred to in subparagraph (A)(ii)(II) reside in such living arrangement as a condition of the continued receipt of assistance under the State program funded under this part attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government

(or in an alternative appropriate arrangement, should circumstances change and the current arrangement cease to be appropriate).

“(i) INDIVIDUAL DESCRIBED.—For purposes of clause (i), an individual is described in this clause if the individual is described in subparagraph (A)(ii), and—

“(I) the individual has no parent, legal guardian or other appropriate adult relative described in subclause (II) of his or her own who is living or whose whereabouts are known;

“(II) no living parent, legal guardian, or other appropriate adult relative, who would otherwise meet applicable State criteria to act as the individual’s legal guardian, of such individual allows the individual to live in the home of such parent, guardian, or relative;

“(III) the State agency determines that—

“(aa) the individual or the minor child referred to in subparagraph (A)(ii)(II) is being or has been subjected to serious physical or emotional harm, sexual abuse, or exploitation in the residence of the individual’s own parent or legal guardian; or

“(bb) substantial evidence exists of an act or failure to act that presents an imminent or serious harm if the individual and the minor child lived in the same residence with the individual’s own parent or legal guardian; or

“(IV) the State agency otherwise determines that it is in the best interest of the minor child to waive the requirement of subparagraph (A) with respect to the individual or the minor child.

“(iii) SECOND-CHANCE HOME.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the term ‘second-chance home’ means an entity that provides individuals described in clause (ii) with a supportive and supervised living arrangement in which such individuals are required to learn parenting skills, including child development, family budgeting, health and nutrition, and other skills to promote their long-term economic independence and the well-being of their children.

“(7) NO MEDICAL SERVICES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), a State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide medical services.

“(B) EXCEPTION FOR FAMILY PLANNING SERVICES.—As used in subparagraph (A), the term ‘medical services’ does not include family planning services.

“(8) NO ASSISTANCE FOR MORE THAN 5 YEARS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), a State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide cash assistance to a family that includes an adult who has received assistance under any State program funded under this part attributable to funds provided by the Federal Government, for 60 months (whether or not consecutive) after the date the State program funded under this part commences.

“(B) MINOR CHILD EXCEPTION.—In determining the number of months for which an individual who is a parent or pregnant has received assistance under the State program funded under this part, the State shall disregard any month for which such assistance was provided with respect to the individual and during which the individual was—

“(i) a minor child; and

“(ii) not the head of a household or married to the head of a household.

“(C) HARDSHIP EXCEPTION.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The State may exempt a family from the application of subparagraph (A) by reason of hardship or if the family includes an individual who has been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty.

“(ii) LIMITATION.—The number of families with respect to which an exemption made by a State under clause (i) is in effect for a fiscal year shall not exceed 20 percent of the average monthly number of families to which assistance is provided under the State program funded under this part.

“(iii) BATTERED OR SUBJECT TO EXTREME CRUELTY DEFINED.—For purposes of clause (i), an individual has been battered or subjected to extreme cruelty if the individual has been subjected to—

“(I) physical acts that resulted in, or threatened to result in, physical injury to the individual;

“(II) sexual abuse;

“(III) sexual activity involving a dependent child;

“(IV) being forced as the caretaker relative of a dependent child to engage in nonconsensual sexual acts or activities;

“(V) threats of, or attempts at, physical or sexual abuse;

“(VI) mental abuse; or

“(VII) neglect or deprivation of medical care.

“(D) RULE OF INTERPRETATION.—Subparagraph (A) shall not be interpreted to require any State to provide assistance to any individual for any period of time under the State program funded under this part.

“(9) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR 10 YEARS TO A PERSON FOUND TO HAVE FRAUDULENTLY MISREPRESENTED RESIDENCE IN ORDER TO OBTAIN ASSISTANCE IN 2 OR MORE STATES.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide cash assistance to an individual during the 10-year period that begins on the date the individual is convicted in Federal or State court of having made a fraudulent statement or representation with respect to the place of residence of the individual in order to receive assistance simultaneously from 2 or more States under programs that are funded under this title, title XIX, or the Food Stamp Act of 1977, or benefits in 2 or more States under the supplemental security income program under title XVI.

“(10) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR FUGITIVE FELONS AND PROBATION AND PAROLE VIOLATORS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide assistance to any individual who is—

“(i) fleeing to avoid prosecution, or custody or confinement after conviction, under the laws of the place from which the individual flees, for a crime, or an attempt to commit a crime, which is a felony under the laws of the place from which the individual flees, or which, in the case of the State of New Jersey, is a high misdemeanor under the laws of such State; or

“(ii) violating a condition of probation or parole imposed under Federal or State law.

“(B) EXCHANGE OF INFORMATION WITH LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES.—If a State to which a grant is made under section 403 establishes safeguards against the use or disclosure of information about applicants or recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part, the safeguards shall not prevent the State agency administering the program from furnishing a Federal, State, or local law enforcement officer, upon the request of the officer, with the current address of any recipient if the officer furnishes the agency with the name of the recipient and notifies the agency that—

“(i) the recipient—

“(I) is described in subparagraph (A); or

“(II) has information that is necessary for the officer to conduct the official duties of the officer; and “(ii) the location or apprehension of the recipient is within such official duties.

“(11) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR MINOR CHILDREN WHO ARE ABSENT FROM THE HOME FOR A SIGNIFICANT PERIOD.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide assistance for a minor child who has been, or is expected by a parent (or other caretaker relative) of the child to be, absent from the home for a period of 45 consecutive days or, at the option of the State, such period of not less than 30 and not more than 90 consecutive days as the State may provide for in the State plan submitted pursuant to section 402.

“(B) STATE AUTHORITY TO ESTABLISH GOOD CAUSE EXCEPTIONS.—The State may establish such good cause exceptions to subparagraph (A) as the State considers appropriate if such exceptions are provided for in the State plan submitted pursuant to section 402.

“(C) DENIAL OF ASSISTANCE FOR RELATIVE WHO FAILS TO NOTIFY STATE AGENCY OF ABSENCE OF CHILD.—A State to which a grant is made under section 403 shall not use any part of the grant to provide assistance for an individual who is a parent (or other caretaker relative) of a minor child and who fails to notify the agency administering the State program funded under this part of the absence of the minor child from the home for the period specified in or provided for pursuant to subparagraph (A), by the end of the 5-day period that begins with the date that it becomes clear to the parent (or relative) that the minor child will be absent for such period so specified or provided for.

“(12) INCOME SECURITY PAYMENTS NOT TO BE DISREGARDED IN DETERMINING THE AMOUNT OF ASSISTANCE TO BE PROVIDED TO A FAMILY.—If a State to which a grant is made under section 403 uses any part of the grant to provide assistance for any individual who is receiving a payment under a State plan for old-age assistance approved under section 2, a State program funded under part B that provides cash payments for foster care, or the supplemental security income program under title XVI, then the State shall not disregard the payment in determining the amount of assistance to be provided under the State program funded under this part, from funds provided by the Federal Government, to the family of which the individual is a member.

“(13) PROVISION OF VOUCHERS TO FAMILIES DENIED CASH ASSISTANCE DUE TO STATE-IMPOSED TIME LIMITS.—

“(A) REQUIREMENT.—If a family is denied assistance under the State program funded under this part by reason of a time limit imposed by the State other than pursuant to paragraph (8), the State shall provide vouchers to the family in accordance with subparagraph (B).

“(B) CHARACTERISTICS OF VOUCHERS.—The vouchers referred to in subparagraph (A) shall be—

“(i) in an amount equal to the amount determined by the State to meet the needs of only the child or children in the family, which shall be determined in the same manner as the State would otherwise determine the needs of the child or children under the program;

“(ii) designed appropriately to pay a third party for goods and services to be provided by the third party to the child or children in the family; and

“(iii) redeemable by a third party described in clause (ii) for a dollar amount equal to the amount of the voucher.

“(b) ALIENS.—For special rules relating to the treatment of aliens, see section 402 of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996.

“SEC. 409. PENALTIES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to this section:

“(1) FAILURE TO SUBMIT REQUIRED REPORT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that a State has not, within 1 month after the end of a fiscal quarter, submitted the report required by section 411(a) for the quarter, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year by an amount equal to 4 percent of the State family assistance grant.

“(B) RESCISSION OF PENALTY.—The Secretary shall rescind a penalty imposed on a State under subparagraph (A) with respect to a report for a fiscal quarter if the State submits the report before the end of the immediately succeeding fiscal quarter.

“(2) FAILURE TO PARTICIPATE IN THE INCOME AND ELIGIBILITY VERIFICATION SYSTEM.—If the Secretary determines that a State program funded under this part is not participating during a fiscal year in the income and eligibility verification system required by section 1137, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year by an amount equal to not more than 2 percent of the State family assistance grant.

“(3) FAILURE TO COMPLY WITH PATERNITY ESTABLISHMENT AND CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT REQUIREMENTS UNDER PART D.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, if the Secretary determines that the State agency that administers a program funded under this part does not enforce the penalties requested by the agency administering part D against recipients of assistance under the State program who fail to cooperate in establishing paternity in accordance with such part, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year (without regard to this section) by not more than 5 percent.

“(4) FAILURE TO TIMELY REPAY A FEDERAL LOAN FUND FOR STATE WELFARE PROGRAMS.—If the Secretary determines that a State has failed to repay any amount borrowed from the Federal Loan Fund for State Welfare Programs established under section 406 within the period of maturity applicable to the loan, plus any interest owed on the loan, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year quarter (without regard to this section) by the outstanding loan amount, plus the interest owed on the outstanding amount. The Secretary shall not forgive any outstanding loan amount or interest owed on the outstanding amount.

“(5) FAILURE OF ANY STATE TO MAINTAIN CERTAIN LEVEL OF HISTORIC EFFORT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for fiscal year 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, or 2002 by the amount (if any) by which qualified State expenditures for the then immediately preceding fiscal year is less than the applicable percentage of historic State expenditures with respect to the fiscal year.

“(B) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this paragraph:

“(i) QUALIFIED STATE EXPENDITURES.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—The term ‘qualified State expenditures’ means, with respect to a State and a fiscal year, the total expenditures by the State during the fiscal year, under all State programs, for any of the following with respect to eligible families:

“(aa) Cash assistance.

“(bb) Child care assistance.

“(cc) Educational activities designed to increase self-sufficiency, job training, and work, excluding any expenditure for public education in the State except expenditures which involve the provision of services or assistance to a member of an eligible family which is not generally available to persons who are not members of eligible families.

“(dd) Administrative costs in connection with the matters described in items (aa), (bb), (cc), and (ee), but only to the extent that such costs do not exceed 15 percent of the total amount of qualified State expenditures for the fiscal year.

“(ee) Any other use of funds allowable under section 404(a)(1).

“(II) EXCLUSION OF TRANSFERS FROM OTHER STATE AND LOCAL PROGRAMS.—Such term does not include expenditures under any State or local program during a fiscal year, except to the extent that—

“(aa) such expenditures exceed the amount expended under the State or local program in the fiscal year most recently ending before the date of the enactment of this part; or

“(bb) the State is entitled to a payment under former section 403 (as in effect immediately before such date of enactment) with respect to such expenditures.

“(III) ELIGIBLE FAMILIES.—As used in subclause (I), the term ‘eligible families’ means families eligible for assistance under the State program funded under this part, and families who would be eligible for such assistance but for the application of paragraph (2) or (8) of section 408(a) of this Act or section 402 of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996.

“(ii) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE.—The term ‘applicable percentage’ means—

“(I) for fiscal year 1996, 85 percent; and “(II) for fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, and 2001, 85 percent adjusted (if appropriate) in accordance with subparagraph (C).

“(iii) HISTORIC STATE EXPENDITURES.—The term ‘historic State expenditures’ means, with respect to a State and a fiscal year specified in subparagraph (A), the lesser of—

“(I) the expenditures by the State under parts A and F (as in effect during fiscal year 1994) for fiscal year 1994; or

“(II) the amount which bears the same ratio to the amount described in subclause (I) as—

“(aa) the State family assistance grant for the fiscal year immediately preceding the fiscal year specified in subparagraph (A), plus the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 for fiscal year 1994 with respect to amounts expended by the State for child care under subsection (g) or (i) of section 402 (as in effect during fiscal year 1994); bears to “(bb) the total amount required to be paid to the State under former section 403 (as in effect during fiscal year 1994) for fiscal year 1994.

Such term does not include any expenditures under the State plan approved under part A (as so in effect) on behalf of individuals covered by a tribal family assistance plan approved under section 412, as determined by the Secretary.

“(iv) EXPENDITURES BY THE STATE.—The term ‘expenditures by the State’ does not include—

“(I) any expenditures from amounts made available by the Federal Government;

“(II) State funds expended for the Medicaid program under title XIX; or “(III) any State funds which are used to match Federal funds or are expended as a condition of receiving Federal funds under Federal programs other than under this part.

“(C) PERFORMANCE-BASED ADJUSTMENTS TO APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE.—

“(i) INCREASE IN MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT THRESHOLD FOR FAILURE TO MEET PARTICIPATION RATES.—If the Secretary determines that a State has failed to achieve the participation rate required by section 407 for a fiscal year, the Secretary shall increase the applicable percentage for the State for the immediately succeeding fiscal year by not more than 5 percentage points. In determining the amount of any such increase, the Secretary shall take into account any increase in the number of persons served by the State program and any increase in the unemployment rate of the State, in accordance with regulations which the Secretary shall prescribe.

“(ii) REDUCTION IN MAINTENANCE OF EFFORT THRESHOLD FOR HIGH PERFORMANCE STATES.—

“(I) CRITERIA.—The Secretary shall, by regulation, establish measures of the effectiveness of the State program funded under this part in moving recipients of assistance under the program into full-time unsubsidized employment. In developing the regulations, the Secretary shall take into account the length of time former recipients of assistance under the program remain employed, the earnings of such former recipients who obtain private sector employment, the total State caseload under the program, and the rate of unemployment in the State.

“(II) REDUCTION OF THRESHOLD.—The Secretary shall reduce the applicable percentage for a State for a fiscal year by not more than 5 percentage points if the Secretary determines that the State achieved the participation rate required by section 407 for the immediately preceding fiscal year and exceeded such performance threshold as the Secretary may establish under subclause (I) of this clause.

“(6) SUBSTANTIAL NONCOMPLIANCE OF STATE CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT PROGRAM WITH REQUIREMENTS OF PART D.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—If a State program operated under part D is found as a result of a review conducted under section 452(a)(4) not to have complied substantially with the requirements of such part for any quarter, and the Secretary determines that the program is not complying substantially with such requirements at the time the finding is made, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the quarter and each subsequent quarter that ends before the 1st quarter throughout which the program is found to be in substantial compliance with such requirements by—

“(i) not less than 1 nor more than 2 percent;

“(ii) not less than 2 nor more than 3 percent, if the finding is the 2nd consecutive such finding made as a result of such a review; or

“(iii) not less than 3 nor more than 5 percent, if the finding is the 3rd or a subsequent consecutive such finding made as a result of such a review.

“(B) DISREGARD OF NONCOMPLIANCE WHICH IS OF A TECHNICAL NATURE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A) of this paragraph and section 452(a)(4), a State which is not in full compliance with the requirements of this part shall be determined to be in substantial compliance with such requirements only if the Secretary determines that any non-compliance with such requirements is of a technical nature which does not adversely affect the performance of the State's program operated under part D.

“(7) FAILURE OF STATE RECEIVING AMOUNTS FROM CONTINGENCY FUND TO MAINTAIN 100 PERCENT OF HISTORIC EFFORT.—If, at the end of any fiscal year during which amounts from the Contingency Fund for State Welfare Programs have been paid to a State, the Secretary finds that the State has failed, during the fiscal year, to expend under the State program funded under this part an amount equal to at least 100 percent of the level of historic State expenditures (as defined in paragraph (7)(B)(iii) of this subsection) with respect to the fiscal year, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year by the total of the amounts so paid to the State.

“(8) FAILURE TO EXPEND ADDITIONAL STATE FUNDS TO REPLACE GRANT REDUCTIONS.—If the grant payable to a State under section 403(a)(1) for a fiscal year is reduced by reason of this subsection, the State shall, during the immediately succeeding fiscal year, expend under the State program funded under this part an amount equal to the total amount of such reductions.

“(9) FAILURE TO PROVIDE VOUCHER ASSISTANCE.—If the Secretary determines that a State program funded under this part has failed to comply with section 408(a)(13) during a fiscal year, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year by an amount equal to the difference between the amount the State would have expended on voucher assistance pursuant to section 408(a)(13) during the fiscal year in the absence of such noncompliance and the amount the State expended on such voucher assistance during the fiscal year.

“(10) FAILURE TO PROVIDE TRANSITIONAL MEDICAL ASSISTANCE.—If the Secretary determines that a State has not complied with section 408(a)(15) during a quarter, the Secretary shall reduce the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding quarter by an amount equal to 5 percent of the portion of the State family assistance grant that is payable to the State for such succeeding quarter.

“(b) REASONABLE CAUSE EXCEPTION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may not impose a penalty on a State under subsection (a) with respect to a requirement if the Secretary determines that the State has reasonable cause for failing to comply with the requirement.

“(2) EXCEPTION.—Paragraph (1) of this subsection shall not apply to any penalty under subsection (a)(5).

+“(c) CORRECTIVE COMPLIANCE PLAN.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—

“(A) NOTIFICATION OF VIOLATION.—Before imposing a penalty against a State under subsection (a) with respect to a violation of this part, the Secretary shall notify the State of the violation and allow the State the opportunity to enter into a corrective compliance plan in accordance with this subsection which outlines how the State will correct the violation and how the State will insure continuing compliance with this part.

“(B) 60-DAY PERIOD TO PROPOSE A CORRECTIVE COMPLIANCE PLAN.—During the 60-day period that begins on the date the State receives a notice provided under subparagraph (A) with respect to a violation, the State may submit to the Federal Government a corrective compliance plan to correct the violation.

“(C) CONSULTATION ABOUT MODIFICATIONS.—During the 60-day period that begins with the date the Secretary receives a corrective compliance plan submitted by a State in accordance with subparagraph (B), the Secretary may consult with the State on modifications to the plan.

“(D) ACCEPTANCE OF PLAN.—A corrective compliance plan submitted by a State in accordance with subparagraph (B) is deemed to be accepted by the Secretary if the Secretary does not accept or reject the plan during 60-day period that begins on the date the plan is submitted.

“(2) EFFECT OF CORRECTING VIOLATION.—The Secretary may not impose any penalty under subsection (a) with respect to any violation covered by a State corrective compliance plan accepted by the Secretary if the State corrects the violation pursuant to the plan.

“(3) EFFECT OF FAILING TO CORRECT VIOLATION.—The Secretary shall assess some or all of a penalty imposed on a State under subsection (a) with respect to a violation if the State does not, in a timely manner, correct the violation pursuant to a State corrective compliance plan accepted by the Secretary.

“(d) LIMITATION ON AMOUNT OF PENALTY.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—In imposing the penalties described in subsection (a), the Secretary shall not reduce any quarterly payment to a State by more than 25 percent.

“(2) CARRYFORWARD OF UNRECOVERED PENALTIES.—To the extent that paragraph (1) of this subsection prevents the Secretary from recovering during a fiscal year the full amount of penalties imposed on a State under subsection (a) of this section for a prior fiscal year, the Secretary shall apply any remaining amount of such penalties to the grant payable to the State under section 403(a)(1) for the immediately succeeding fiscal year.

“(e) OTHER PENALTIES.—If, after reasonable notice and opportunity for hearing to the State agency administering or supervising the administration of a State program funded under this part, the Secretary finds that the State has failed to comply substantially with any provision of this part or of the State plan approved under section 402, the Secretary shall, if subsection (a) does not apply to the failure, notify the State agency that further payments will not be made to the State under this part (or, in the Secretary's discretion, that the payments will be reduced or limited to categories under, or parts of, the State program not affected by the failure) until the Secretary is satisfied that there is no longer any such failure to comply. Until the Secretary is so satisfied, the Secretary shall make no further payments to the State (or shall reduce or limit payments to categories under or parts of the State program not affected by the failure).

“SEC. 410. APPEAL OF ADVERSE DECISION.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 5 days after the date the Secretary takes any adverse action under this part with respect to a State, the Secretary shall notify the chief executive officer of the State of the adverse action, including any action with respect to the State plan submitted under section 402 or the imposition of a penalty under section 409.

“(b) ADMINISTRATIVE REVIEW.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 60 days after the date a State receives notice under subsection (a) of an adverse action, the State may appeal the action, in whole or in part, to the Departmental Appeals Board established in the Department of Health and Human Services (in this section referred to as the ‘Board’) by filing an appeal with the Board.

“(2) PROCEDURAL RULES.—The Board shall consider an appeal filed by a State under paragraph (1) on the basis of such documentation as the State may submit and as the Board may require to support the final decision of the Board. In deciding whether to uphold an adverse action or any portion of such an action, the Board shall conduct a thorough review of the issues and take into account all relevant evidence. The Board shall make a final determination with respect to an appeal filed under paragraph (1) not less than 60 days after the date the appeal is filed.

“(c) JUDICIAL REVIEW OF ADVERSE DECISION.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Within 90 days after the date of a final decision by the Board under this section with respect to an adverse action taken against a State, the State may obtain judicial review of the final decision (and the findings incorporated into the final decision) by filing an action in—

“(A) the district court of the United States for the judicial district in which the principal or headquarters office of the State agency is located; or “(B) the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

“(2) PROCEDURAL RULES.—The district court in which an action is filed under paragraph (1) shall review the final decision of the Board on the record established in the administrative proceeding, in accordance with the standards of review prescribed by subparagraphs (A) through (E) of section 706(2) of title 5, United States Code. The review shall be on the basis of the documents and supporting data submitted to the Board.

“SEC. 411. DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING.

“(a) QUARTERLY REPORTS BY STATES.—

“(1) GENERAL REPORTING REQUIREMENT.—

“(A) CONTENTS OF REPORT.—Beginning July 1, 1996, each State shall collect on a monthly basis, and report to the Secretary on a quarterly basis, the following disaggregated case record information on the families receiving assistance under the State program funded under this part:

“(i) The county of residence of the family.

“(ii) Whether a child receiving such assistance or an adult in the family is disabled.

“(iii) The ages of the members of such families.

“(iv) The number of individuals in the family, and the relation of each family member to the youngest child in the family.

“(v) The employment status and earnings of the employed adult in the family.

“(vi) The marital status of the adults in the family, including whether such adults have never married, are widowed, or are divorced.

“(vii) The race and educational status of each adult in the family.

“(viii) The race and educational status of each child in the family.

“(ix) Whether the family received subsidized housing, medical assistance under the State plan approved under title XIX, food stamps, or subsidized child care, and if the latter 2, the amount received.

“(x) The number of months that the family has received each type of assistance under the program.

“(xi) If the adults participated in, and the number of hours per week of participation in, the following activities:

“(I) Education.

“(II) Subsidized private sector employment.

“(III) Unsubsidized employment.

“(IV) Public sector employment, work experience, or community service.

“(V) Job search.

“(VI) Job skills training or on-the-job training.

“(VII) Vocational education.

“(xii) Information necessary to calculate participation rates under section 407.

“(xiii) The type and amount of assistance received under the program, including the amount of and reason for any reduction of assistance (including sanctions).

“(xiv) From a sample of closed cases, whether the family left the program, and if so, whether the family left due to—

“(I) employment;

“(II) marriage;

“(III) the prohibition set forth in section 408(a)(8);

“(IV) sanction; or

“(V) State policy.

“(xv) Any amount of unearned income received by any member of the family.

“(xvi) The citizenship of the members of the family.

“(B) USE OF ESTIMATES.—

“(i) AUTHORITY.—A State may comply with subparagraph (A) by submitting an estimate which is obtained through the use of scientifically acceptable sampling methods approved by the Secretary.

“(ii) SAMPLING AND OTHER METHODS.—The Secretary shall provide the States with such case sampling plans and data collection procedures as the Secretary deems necessary to produce statistically valid estimates of the performance of State programs funded under this part. The Secretary may develop and implement procedures for verifying the quality of data submitted by the States.

“(2) REPORT ON USE OF FEDERAL FUNDS TO COVER ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS AND OVERHEAD.—The report required by paragraph (1) for a fiscal quarter shall include a statement of the percentage of the funds paid to the State under this part for the quarter that are used to cover administrative costs or overhead.

“(3) REPORT ON STATE EXPENDITURES ON PROGRAMS FOR NEEDY FAMILIES.—The report required by paragraph (1) for a fiscal quarter shall include a statement of the total amount expended by the State during the quarter on programs for needy families.

“(4) REPORT ON NONCUSTODIAL PARENTS PARTICIPATING IN WORK ACTIVITIES.—The report required by paragraph (1) for a fiscal quarter shall include the number of non-custodial parents in the State who participated in work activities (as defined in section 407(d)) during the quarter.

“(5) REPORT ON TRANSITIONAL SERVICES.—The report required by paragraph (1) for a fiscal quarter shall include the total amount expended by the State during the quarter to provide transitional services to a family that has ceased to receive assistance under this part because of employment, along with a description of such services.

“(6) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall prescribe such regulations as may be necessary to define the data elements with respect to which reports are required by this subsection.

“(b) ANNUAL REPORTS TO THE CONGRESS BY THE SECRETARY.—Not later than 6 months after the end of fiscal year 1997, and each fiscal year thereafter, the Secretary shall transmit to the Congress a report describing—

“(1) whether the States are meeting—

“(A) the participation rates described in section 407(a); and “(B) the objectives of—

“(i) increasing employment and earnings of needy families, and child support collections; and

“(ii) decreasing out-of-wedlock pregnancies and child poverty;

“(2) the demographic and financial characteristics of families applying for assistance, families receiving assistance, and families that become ineligible to receive assistance;

“(3) the characteristics of each State program funded under this part; and “(4) the trends in employment and earnings of needy families with minor children living at home.

“SEC. 412. DIRECT FUNDING AND ADMINISTRATION BY INDIAN TRIBES.

“(a) GRANTS FOR INDIAN TRIBES.—

“(1) TRIBAL FAMILY ASSISTANCE GRANT.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—For each of fiscal years 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000, the Secretary shall pay to each Indian tribe that has an approved tribal family assistance plan a tribal family assistance grant for the fiscal year in an amount equal to the amount determined under subparagraph (B), and shall reduce the grant payable under section 403(a)(1) to any State in which lies the service area or areas of the Indian tribe by that portion of the amount so determined that is attributable to expenditures by the State.

“(B) AMOUNT DETERMINED.—

“(i) IN GENERAL.—The amount determined under this subparagraph is an amount equal to the total amount of the Federal payments to a State or States under section 403 (as in effect during such fiscal year) for fiscal year 1994 attributable to expenditures (other than child care expenditures) by the State or States under parts A and F (as so in effect) for fiscal year 1994 for Indian families residing in the service area or areas identified by the Indian tribe pursuant to subsection (b)(1)(C) of this section.

“(ii) USE OF STATE SUBMITTED DATA.—

“(I) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall use State submitted data to make each determination under clause (i).

“(II) DISAGREEMENT WITH DETERMINATION.—If an Indian tribe or tribal organization disagrees with State submitted data described under subclause (I), the Indian tribe or tribal organization may submit to the Secretary such additional information as may be relevant to making the determination under clause (i) and the Secretary may consider such information before making such determination.

“(2) GRANTS FOR INDIAN TRIBES THAT RECEIVED JOBS FUNDS.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall pay to each eligible Indian tribe for each of fiscal years 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, and 2000 a grant in an amount equal to the amount received by the Indian tribe in fiscal year 1994 under section 482(i) (as in effect during fiscal year 1994).

“(B) ELIGIBLE INDIAN TRIBE.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term ‘eligible Indian tribe’ means an Indian tribe or Alaska Native organization that conducted a job opportunities and basic skills training program in fiscal year 1995 under section 482(i) (as in effect during fiscal year 1995).

“(C) USE OF GRANT.—Each Indian tribe to which a grant is made under this paragraph shall use the grant for the purpose of operating a program to make work activities available to members of the Indian tribe.

“(D) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated $7,638,474 for each fiscal year specified in subparagraph (A) for grants under subparagraph (A).

“(b) 3-YEAR TRIBAL FAMILY ASSISTANCE PLAN.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Any Indian tribe that desires to receive a tribal family assistance grant shall submit to the Secretary a 3-year tribal family assistance plan that—

“(A) outlines the Indian tribe’s approach to providing welfare-related services for the 3-year period, consistent with this section;

“(B) specifies whether the welfare-related services provided under the plan will be provided by the Indian tribe or through agreements, contracts, or compacts with intertribal consortia, States, or other entities;

“(C) identifies the population and service area or areas to be served by such plan;

“(D) provides that a family receiving assistance under the plan may not receive duplicative assistance from other State or tribal programs funded under this part;

“(E) identifies the employment opportunities in or near the service area or areas of the Indian tribe and the manner in which the Indian tribe will cooperate and participate in enhancing such opportunities for recipients of assistance under the plan consistent with any applicable State standards; and “(F) applies the fiscal accountability provisions of section 5(f)(1) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450c(f)(1)), relating to the submission of a single-agency audit report required by chapter 75 of title 31, United States Code.

“(2) APPROVAL.—The Secretary shall approve each tribal family assistance plan submitted in accordance with paragraph (1).

“(3) CONSORTIUM OF TRIBES.—Nothing in this section shall preclude the development and submission of a single tribal family assistance plan by the participating Indian tribes of an intertribal consortium.

“(c) MINIMUM WORK PARTICIPATION REQUIREMENTS AND TIME LIMITS.—The Secretary, with the participation of Indian tribes, shall establish for each Indian tribe receiving a grant under this section minimum work participation requirements, appropriate time limits for receipt of welfare-related services under the grant, and penalties against individuals—

“(1) consistent with the purposes of this section;

“(2) consistent with the economic conditions and resources available to each tribe; and

“(3) similar to comparable provisions in section 407(d).

“(d) EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE.—Nothing in this section shall preclude an Indian tribe from seeking emergency assistance from any Federal loan program or emergency fund.

“(e) ACCOUNTABILITY.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the ability of the Secretary to maintain program funding accountability consistent with—

“(1) generally accepted accounting principles; and

“(2) the requirements of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450 et seq.).

“(f) PENALTIES.—Subsections (a)(4), (b), and (e) of section 409 shall apply to an Indian tribe with an approved tribal assistance plan in the same manner as such subsections apply to a State.

“(g) DATA COLLECTION AND REPORTING.—Section 411 shall apply to an Indian tribe with an approved tribal family assistance plan.

“(h) SPECIAL RULE FOR INDIAN TRIBES IN ALASKA.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, and except as provided in paragraph (2), an Indian tribe in the State of Alaska that receives a tribal family assistance grant under this section shall use the grant to operate a program in accordance with requirements comparable to the requirements applicable to the program of the State of Alaska funded under this part. Comparability of programs shall be established on the basis of program criteria developed by the Secretary in consultation with the State of Alaska and such Indian tribes.

“(2) WAIVER.—An Indian tribe described in paragraph (1) may apply to the appropriate State authority to receive a waiver of the requirement of paragraph (1).

“SEC. 413. RESEARCH, EVALUATIONS, AND NATIONAL STUDIES.

“(a) RESEARCH.—The Secretary shall conduct research on the benefits, effects, and costs of operating different State programs funded under this part, including time limits relating to eligibility for assistance. The research shall include studies on the effects of different programs and the operation of such programs on welfare dependency, illegitimacy, teen pregnancy, employment rates, child well-being, and any other area the Secretary deems appropriate. The Secretary shall also conduct research on the costs and benefits of State activities under section 409.

“(b) DEVELOPMENT AND EVALUATION OF INNOVATIVE APPROACHES TO REDUCING WELFARE DEPENDENCY AND INCREASING CHILD WELL-BEING.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may assist States in developing, and shall evaluate, innovative approaches for reducing welfare dependency and increasing the well-being of minor children living at home with respect to recipients of assistance under programs funded under this part. The Secretary may provide funds for training and technical assistance to carry out the approaches developed pursuant to this paragraph.

“(2) EVALUATIONS.—In performing the evaluations under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall, to the maximum extent feasible, use random assignment as an evaluation methodology.

“(c) DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.—The Secretary shall develop innovative methods of disseminating information on any research, evaluations, and studies conducted under this section, including the facilitation of the sharing of information and best practices among States and localities through the use of computers and other technologies.

“(d) ANNUAL RANKING OF STATES AND REVIEW OF MOST AND LEAST SUCCESSFUL WORK PROGRAMS.—

“(1) ANNUAL RANKING OF STATES.—The Secretary shall rank annually the States to which grants are paid under section 403 in the order of their success in placing recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part into long-term private sector jobs, reducing the overall welfare caseload, and, when a practicable method for calculating this information becomes available, diverting individuals from formally applying to the State program and receiving assistance. In ranking States under this subsection, the Secretary shall take into account the average number of minor children living at home in families in the State that have incomes below the poverty line and the amount of funding provided each State for such families.

“(2) ANNUAL REVIEW OF MOST AND LEAST SUCCESSFUL WORK PROGRAMS.—The Secretary shall review the programs of the 3 States most recently ranked highest under paragraph (1) and the 3 States most recently ranked lowest under paragraph (1) that provide parents with work experience, assistance in finding employment, and other work preparation activities and support services to enable the families of such parents to leave the program and become self-sufficient.

“(e) ANNUAL RANKING OF STATES AND REVIEW OF ISSUES RELATING TO OUT-OF-WEDLOCK BIRTHS.—

“(1) ANNUAL RANKING OF STATES.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall annually rank States to which grants are made under section 403 based on the following ranking factors:

“(i) ABSOLUTE OUT-OF-WEDLOCK RATIOS.—The ratio represented by—

“(I) the total number of out-of-wedlock births in families receiving assistance under the State program under this part in the State for the most recent fiscal year for which information is available; or “(II) the total number of births in families receiving assistance under the State program under this part in the State for such year.

“(ii) NET CHANGES IN THE OUT-OF-WEDLOCK RATIO.—The difference between the ratio described in subparagraph (A)(i) with respect to a State for the most recent fiscal year for which such information is available and the ratio with respect to the State for the immediately preceding year.

“(2) ANNUAL REVIEW.—The Secretary shall review the programs of the 5 States most recently ranked highest under paragraph (1) and the 5 States most recently ranked the lowest under paragraph (1).

“(f) STATE-INITIATED EVALUATIONS.—A State shall be eligible to receive funding to evaluate the State program funded under this part if—

“(1) the State submits a proposal to the Secretary for the evaluation;

“(2) the Secretary determines that the design and approach of the evaluation is rigorous and is likely to yield information that is credible and will be useful to other States; and

“(3) unless otherwise waived by the Secretary, the State contributes to the cost of the evaluation, from non-Federal sources, an amount equal to at least 10 percent of the cost of the evaluation.

“(g) FUNDING OF STUDIES AND DEMONSTRATIONS.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated $15,000,000 for each fiscal year specified in section 403(a)(1) for the purpose of paying—

“(A) the cost of conducting the research described in subsection (a);

“(B) the cost of developing and evaluating innovative approaches for reducing welfare dependency and increasing the well-being of minor children under subsection (b);

“(C) the Federal share of any State-initiated study approved under subsection (f); and “(D) an amount determined by the Secretary to be necessary to operate and evaluate demonstration projects, relating to this part, that are in effect or approved under section 1115 as of September 30, 1995, and are continued after such date.

“(2) ALLOCATION.—Of the amount appropriated under paragraph (1) for a fiscal year—

“(A) 50 percent shall be allocated for the purposes described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (1), and “(B) 50 percent shall be allocated for the purposes described in subparagraphs (C) and (D) of paragraph (1).

“SEC. 414. STUDY BY THE CENSUS BUREAU.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—The Bureau of the Census shall expand the Survey of Income and Program Participation as necessary to obtain such information as will enable interested persons to evaluate the impact of the amendments made by title I of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996 on a random national sample of recipients of assistance under State programs funded under this part and (as appropriate) other low income families, and in doing so, shall pay particular attention to the issues of out-of-wedlock birth, welfare dependency, the beginning and end of welfare spells, and the causes of repeat welfare spells.

“(b) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated $10,000,000 for each of fiscal years 1996, 1997, 1998, 1999, 2000, 2001, and 2002 for payment to the Bureau of the Census to carry out subsection (a).

“SEC. 415. WAIVERS.

“(a) CONTINUATION OF WAIVERS.—

“(1) WAIVERS IN EFFECT ON DATE OF ENACTMENT OF WELFARE REFORM.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), if any waiver granted to a State under section 1115 or otherwise which relates to the provision of assistance under a State plan under this part (as in effect on September 30, 1995) is in effect as of the date of the enactment of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996, the amendments made by such Act shall not apply with respect to the State before the expiration (determined without regard to any extensions) of the waiver to the extent such amendments are inconsistent with the waiver.

“(2) WAIVERS GRANTED SUBSEQUENTLY.—Except as provided in paragraph (3), if any waiver granted to a State under section 1115 or otherwise which relates to the provision of assistance under a State plan under this part (as in effect on September 30, 1995) is submitted to the Secretary before the date of the enactment of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996 and approved by the Secretary before the effective date of this title, and the State demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that the waiver will not result in Federal expenditures under title IV of this Act (as in effect without regard to the amendments made by the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996) that are greater than would occur in the absence of the waiver, such amendments shall not apply with respect to the State before the expiration (determined without regard to any extensions) of the waiver to the extent such amendments are inconsistent with the waiver.

“(3) FINANCING LIMITATION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, beginning with fiscal year 1996, a State operating under a waiver described in paragraph (1) shall be entitled to payment under section 403 for the fiscal year, in lieu of any other payment provided for in the waiver.

“(b) STATE OPTION TO TERMINATE WAIVER.—

“(1) IN GENERAL.—A State may terminate a waiver described in subsection (a) before the expiration of the waiver.

“(2) REPORT.—A State which terminates a waiver under paragraph (1) shall submit a report to the Secretary summarizing the waiver and any available information concerning the result or effect of the waiver.

“(3) HOLD HARMLESS PROVISION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a State that, not later than the date described in subparagraph (B), submits a written request to terminate a waiver described in subsection (a) shall be held harmless for accrued cost neutrality liabilities incurred under the waiver.

“(B) DATE DESCRIBED.—The date described in this subparagraph is the later of—

“(i) January 1, 1996; or

“(ii) 90 days following the adjournment of the first regular session of the State legislature that begins after the date of the enactment of the Bipartisan Welfare Reform Act of 1996.

“(c) SECRETARIAL ENCOURAGEMENT OF CURRENT WAIVERS.—The Secretary shall encourage any State operating a waiver described in subsection (a) to continue the waiver and to evaluate, using random sampling and other characteristics of accepted scientific evaluations, the result or effect of the waiver.

“(d) CONTINUATION OF INDIVIDUAL WAIVERS.—A State may elect to continue 1 or more individual waivers described in subsection (a).

“SEC. 416. ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR FAMILY SUPPORT.

“The programs under this part and part D shall be administered by an Assistant Secretary for Family Support within the Department of Health and Human Services, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall be in addition to any other Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services provided for by law.

“SEC. 417. DEFINITIONS.

“As used in this part:

“(1) ADULT.—The term ‘adult’ means an individual who is not a minor child.

“(2) MINOR CHILD.—The term ‘minor child’ means an individual who—

“(A) has not attained 18 years of age; or

“(B) has not attained 19 years of age and is a full-time student in a secondary school (or in the equivalent level of vocational or technical training).

“(3) FISCAL YEAR.—The term ‘fiscal year’ means any 12-month period ending on September 30 of a calendar year.

“(4) INDIAN, INDIAN TRIBE, AND TRIBAL ORGANIZATION.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the terms ‘Indian’, ‘Indian tribe’, and ‘tribal organization’ have the meaning given such terms by section 4 of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b).

“(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR INDIAN TRIBES IN ALASKA.—The term ‘Indian tribe’ means, with respect to the State of Alaska, only the Metlakatla Indian Community of the Annette Islands Reserve and the following Alaska Native regional nonprofit corporations:

- “(i) Arctic Slope Native Association.
 - “(ii) Kawerak, Inc.
 - “(iii) Maniilaq Association.
 - “(iv) Association of Village Council Presidents.
 - “(v) Tanana Chiefs Conference.
 - “(vi) Cook Inlet Tribal Council.
 - “(vii) Bristol Bay Native Association.
 - “(viii) Aleutian and Pribilof Island Association.
 - “(ix) Chugachmuit.
 - “(x) Tlingit Haida Central Council.
 - “(xi) Kodiak Area Native Association.
 - “(xii) Copper River Native Association.
- “(5) STATE.—Except as otherwise specifically provided, the term ‘State’ means the 50 States of the United States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, Guam, and American Samoa.”.

SEC. 104. SERVICES PROVIDED BY CHARITABLE, RELIGIOUS, OR PRIVATE ORGANIZATIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) STATE OPTIONS.—A State may—

(A) administer and provide services under the programs described in subparagraphs (A) and (B)(i) of paragraph (2) through contracts with charitable, religious, or private organizations; and

(B) provide beneficiaries of assistance under the programs described in subparagraphs (A) and (B)(ii) of paragraph (2) with certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement which are redeemable with such organizations.

(2) PROGRAMS DESCRIBED.—The programs described in this paragraph are the following programs:

(A) A State program funded under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 103 of this Act).

(B) Any other program established or modified under title I, II, or VI of this Act, that—

- (i) permits contracts with organizations; or
- (ii) permits certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement to be provided to beneficiaries, as a means of providing assistance.

(b) RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS.—The purpose of this section is to allow States to contract with religious organizations, or to allow religious organizations to accept certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement under any program described in subsection (a)(2), on the same basis as any other nongovernmental provider without impairing the religious character of such organizations, and without diminishing the religious freedom of beneficiaries of assistance funded under such program.

(c) NONDISCRIMINATION AGAINST RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS.—In the event a State exercises its authority under subsection (a), religious organizations are eligible, on the same basis as any other private organization, as contractors to provide assistance, or to accept certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement, under any program described in subsection (a)(2) so long as the programs are implemented consistent with the Establishment Clause of the United States Constitution. Except as provided in subsection (k), neither the Federal Government nor a State receiving funds under such programs shall discriminate against an organization which is or applies to be a contractor to provide assistance, or which accepts certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement, on the basis that the organization has a religious character.

(d) RELIGIOUS CHARACTER AND FREEDOM.—

(1) RELIGIOUS ORGANIZATIONS.—A religious organization with a contract described in subsection (a)(1)(A), or which accepts certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement under subsection (a)(1)(B), shall retain its independence from Federal, State, and local governments, including such organization's control over the definition, development, practice, and expression of its religious beliefs.

(2) ADDITIONAL SAFEGUARDS.—Neither the Federal Government nor a State shall require a religious organization to—

(A) alter its form of internal governance; or

(B) remove religious art, icons, scripture, or other symbols;

in order to be eligible to contract to provide assistance, or to accept certificates, vouchers, or other forms of disbursement, funded under a program described in subsection (a)(2).

(e) RIGHTS OF BENEFICIARIES OF ASSISTANCE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—If an individual described in paragraph (2) has an objection to the religious character of the organization or institution from which the individual receives, or would receive, assistance funded under any program described in subsection (a)(2), the State in which the individual resides shall provide such individual (if otherwise eligible for such assistance) within a reasonable period of time after the date of such objection with assistance from an alternative provider that is accessible to the individual and the value of which is not less than the value of the assistance which the individual would have received from such organization.

(2) INDIVIDUAL DESCRIBED.—An individual described in this paragraph is an individual who receives, applies for, or requests to apply for, assistance under a program described in subsection (a)(2).

(f) EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES.—A religious organization's exemption provided under section 702 of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (42 U.S.C. 2000e-1a) regarding employment practices shall not be affected by its participation in, or receipt of funds from, programs described in subsection (a)(2).

(g) NONDISCRIMINATION AGAINST BENEFICIARIES.—Except as otherwise provided in law, a religious organization shall not discriminate against an individual in regard to rendering assistance funded under any program described in subsection (a)(2) on the basis of religion, a religious belief, or refusal to actively participate in a religious practice.

(h) FISCAL ACCOUNTABILITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), any religious organization contracting to provide assistance funded under any program described in subsection (a)(2) shall be subject to the same regulations as other contractors to account in accord with generally accepted auditing principles for the use of such funds provided under such programs.

(2) LIMITED AUDIT.—If such organization segregates Federal funds provided under such programs into separate accounts, then only the financial assistance provided with such funds shall be subject to audit.

(i) COMPLIANCE.—Any party which seeks to enforce its rights under this section may assert a civil action for injunctive relief exclusively in an appropriate State court against the entity or agency that allegedly commits such violation.

(j) LIMITATIONS ON USE OF FUNDS FOR CERTAIN PURPOSES.—No funds provided directly to institutions or organizations to provide services and administer programs under subsection (a)(1)(A) shall be expended for sectarian worship, instruction, or proselytization.

(k) PREEMPTION.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to preempt any provision of a State constitution or State statute that prohibits or restricts the expenditure of State funds in or by religious organizations.

SEC. 105. CENSUS DATA ON GRANDPARENTS AS PRIMARY CAREGIVERS FOR THEIR GRANDCHILDREN.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Commerce, in carrying out section 141 of title 13, United States Code, shall expand the data collection efforts of the Bureau of the Census (in this section referred to as the “Bureau”) to enable the Bureau to collect statistically significant data, in connection with its decennial census and its mid-decade census, concerning the growing trend of grandparents who are the primary caregivers for their grandchildren.

(b) EXPANDED CENSUS QUESTION.—In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary of Commerce shall expand the Bureau's census question that details households which include both grandparents and their grandchildren. The expanded question shall be formulated to distinguish between the following households:

(1) A household in which a grandparent temporarily provides a home for a grandchild for a period of weeks or months during periods of parental distress.

(2) A household in which a grandparent provides a home for a grandchild and serves as the primary caregiver for the grandchild.

SEC. 106. REPORT ON DATA PROCESSING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 6 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall prepare and submit to the Congress a report on—

(1) the status of the automated data processing systems operated by the States to assist management in the administration of State programs under part A of title IV of the Social Security Act (whether in effect before or after October 1, 1995); and

(2) what would be required to establish a system capable of—

(A) tracking participants in public programs over time; and

(B) checking case records of the States to determine whether individuals are participating in public programs of 2 or more States.

(b) PREFERRED CONTENTS.—The report required by subsection (a) should include—

(1) a plan for building on the automated data processing systems of the States to establish a system with the capabilities described in subsection (a)(2); and

(2) an estimate of the amount of time required to establish such a system and of the cost of establishing such a system.

SEC. 107. STUDY ON ALTERNATIVE OUTCOMES MEASURES.

(a) STUDY.—The Secretary shall, in cooperation with the States, study and analyze outcomes measures for evaluating the success of the States in moving individuals out of the welfare system through employment as an alternative to the minimum participation rates described in section 407 of the Social Security Act. The study shall include a determination as to whether such alternative outcomes measures should be applied on a national or a State-by-State basis and a preliminary assessment of the effects of section 409(a)(5)(C) of such Act.

(b) REPORT.—Not later than September 30, 1998, the Secretary shall submit to the Committee on Finance of the Senate and the Committee on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives a report containing the findings of the study required by subsection (a).

SEC. 108. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS TO THE SOCIAL SECURITY ACT.

(a) AMENDMENTS TO TITLE II.—

(1) Section 205(c)(2)(C)(vi) (42 U.S.C. 405(c)(2)(C)(vi)), as so redesignated by section 321(a)(9)(B) of the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, is amended—
