Finally, although Treasury includes imputed rent from homeowners, it does not make the same adjustment for those living in public housing. In fact, all non-cash welfare benefits except food stamps are excluded from FEI. Yet such benefits are economically very significant. According to the Census Bureau, in 1995 non-cash benefits reduced the number of people living in poverty from 36.4 million to 27.2 million. The effect of excluding non-cash benefits from FEI is to make many poor people appear to be utterly destitute.

Although Treasury's unusual definition of income is the main reason why its distribution tables make the Ways & Means Committee and Finance Committee tax bills appear to largely benefit the rich, there are also other reasons. The most important is that Treasury assumes that the tax bill is fully effective in 1998. However, many provisions of the tax legislation do not take effect for many years. This makes the tax cut appear much larger than it actually is.

Thus Treasury's distribution table is based on a tax cut of $71.2 billion in the case of the Ways & Means Committee bill and $60.8 billion in the case of the Finance Committee. Yet according to the JCT, the Finance Committee bill would actually increase federal revenue slightly in 1998. Even in the year 2007, when the tax cut is fully phased-in, it would only lower federal revenues by $40.2 billion. Thus Treasury's distribution table implies a tax cut between 50% and 100% larger than it actually is.

A major reason for this anomaly is capital gains. Under current law, capital gains are only taxed when realized. But Treasury assumes that all capital gains, even those that are unrealized, should be taxed annually. Thus any reduction in the capital gains tax

However, experience shows that capital gains realization are highly sensitive to changes in the capital gains tax rate. Reductions in the tax in 1978 and 1981, as well as the rate increase in 1996, had enormous effects on realizations and, hence, revenues. Even Treasury admits that lowering the capital gains tax rate, as proposed by both congressional tax bills, would temporarily increase federal revenue by increasing capital gains realizations. Yet despite the fact that actual federal revenues rise, Treasury's distribution table still shows owners of capital assets getting a big tax cut. In effect, Treasury assumes that all capital gains—including those induced by the lower tax rate—would have been realized anyway.

The JCT uses this same methodology, which has the effect of making those paying more in capital gains taxes appear to be paying less. Professor Michael Graetz of Yale Law School has been very critical of this methodology. He points out that in 1990 the JCT's distribution table showed President Bush's proposed cut in the capital gains tax giving taxpayers a $15.9 billion tax cut, although its own estimate showed that federal revenues would be lower by at most $4.3 billion. Based on this contradiction, Graetz constructed the chart shown in Figure II. As one can see, those with incomes about $200,000 appear to be getting a tax cut four times larger than their actual reduction in tax liability could possibly be.

In short, Treasury's distribution tables bear no relationship to reality. While they may serve some purely academic purpose, they fail to convey to policymakers any sense of how real people are actually affected by proposed tax changes. They make some people appear to be much wealthier than they actually are and others poorer. Any ordinary persons looking at one of these tables will have no real idea of where they themselves stand, and will have a very distorted picture of how the proposed tax changes will affect them.

Professor Graetz believes that the methodology for creating distribution tables is so deeply flawed that they should be abandoned altogether during the legislative process. As he writes, ''The information transmitted to policymakers through the current practice of producing distributional tables is simply bad information.'' Instead, it would be better to stick to known concepts of income, such as AGI, that taxpayers are familiar with and produce illustrative examples of how taxpayers in different circumstances will fare under proposed tax changes. This will at least convey an accurate picture of how such changes will affect specific taxpayers. If distributional tables are produced, it should only be after the fact, showing the true impact of a tax change on actual taxpayers.

Another reason to abandon distributional tables because they have a tendency to dominate the tax legislative process to the exclusion of everything else. Sound principles of tax policy are routinely cast aside, the impact of taxes on the economy gets short shrift, and the tax code is made even more complex just to make the tables look right.

A good example of this is the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC). The ETIC gives low-income workers a credit against their taxes of up to $3,556. However, if their actual income tax liability is less than this, they get a refund of the difference. Thus if a worker qualifies for $2,000 in EITC but only owes $800 in taxes, she get a check from the Treasury for $1,200.

This year the EITC is expected to cost the federal government $26 billion. Of this amount only $3.6 billion actually offset peoples' tax liability. The rest, $22.4 billion, will be ''refunded'' to taxpayers who have no tax liability and get a check from the government instead. In other words, although it is a provision of the tax law, the EITC essentially is a welfare spending program.

Although it is in fact a spending program, the EITC is important for tax policy because it allows politicians to say they are cutting taxes for the poor even though they pay no taxes. Indeed, some Democrats are in effect now trying to expand the EITC so that even more people will get government checks from the program. The way they propose to do this is by saying that taxpayers will be allowed to use the proposed child credit before calculating the EITC.

Under the Republican tax bill, all families with children would receive a credit against their income taxes of up to $500 per child. However, the credit would not be refundable. Families owing no taxes due to the EITC or other tax provisions would not be able to use the credit because they have no liability to offset. Under the Democrats' plan, if a family uses the child credit to eliminate their income tax liability before calculating the EITC, they will get a larger EITC check from the government.

Since those with low incomes pay no income taxes to begin with, the only way they can get a tax cut is by making it refundable. That is why the Democrats appear to offer a bigger tax cut to those with low incomes.

Republicans respond that expanding the number of people getting a check from the government is no way to conduct tax policy. They are right. But the bigger problem is the obsession with the distributional effects of tax legislation, to the exclusion of all other considerations.

In conclusion, the debate over the distributional effects of Congress's proposed tax cut is highly misleading. Because the measure of income and which Treasury's distribution tables are based has no relation to the average person's concept of income—or the IRS's—many of the ''rich'' are in fact people with middle incomes, as are many of those who appear to be ''poor'' in its analysis. This insofar as they purport to tell taxpayers how the tax bills would actually affect them, they are utterly worthless.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Daschle alternative tax cut amendment. First, let me commend the Finance Committee on the job it's done. Chairman ROTH and Senator MOYNIHAN should be commended for their efforts to craft a bipartisan bill, something that the other body failed to achieve in their tax-writing committee.

Clearly, the Finance bill is better than the bill offered in the House in several respects. However, I believe we can do better, and we must do better to assist America's working families. And that is what the Daschle substitute is all about. It offers families fair and equitable tax relief.

And let's be honest: even in the midst of the strongest economic recovery of the century, many families at the lower income levels are still struggling. They worry about job security, pensions, meeting the costs of higher education, and finding good quality child care. Appropriate, targeted tax relief for these families can help them meet these challenges.

The House and Senate bills, regrettably, shower most of their tax cut benefits not on working families, but on those who least need relief. They deny relief to taxpayers and small businesses in the middle and at the bottom of the income scale. The Finance Committee bill grants 65 percent of its tax cuts on the wealthiest 20 percent of the population.

Mr. President, the Daschle amendment seeks to right these wrongs by bringing relief to working Americans and small businesses. Unlike the competing proposals, the DASCHLE amendment promotes fairness and puts working families first. In contrast to the Finance Committee bill, our amendment provides 65 percent of tax relief not to the most affluent 20 percent, but to the middle 60 percent. That's about twice as much tax relief for the middle class as the Republican Finance Committee proposal.

Under the Daschle amendment, the affluent would get their fair share of the tax cuts, but no more. The top 1 percent of taxpayers would only receive 1 percent of the tax cut, compared to the Archer and Roth proposals which give 19 percent and 13 percent, respectively, of their tax cut to the top 1 percent of income earners.

But fundamentally this debate isn't about statistics. It's about meeting vital family needs and providing additional resources to meet the many challenges they face. The Daschle amendment strengthens families and puts working families first. It provides payroll tax relief by making the child tax credit refundable against all payroll taxes, not just income taxes. An average family of four earning $35,000 pays $2,700 in income taxes, and another $5,300 in payroll taxes. These are the families who desperately need tax relief, and these are the families who would benefit from the Daschle amendment. This provision alone would extend the child tax credit to 10 million more children and families.

The House Ways and Means and the Senate Finance bills deny credit to many working families. Families making less than $25,000 would receive no credit due to their negligible income tax liability. Further, these bills would cut the child credit for families qualifying for the Earned Income Tax Credit.

There are few issues more critical to American families than education. The Daschle amendment recognizes this and provides $10 billion more in education benefits to working American families. The Daschle amendment provides more for school construction, more for Pell grant recipients, and more for tax credits for families to send their children to college. The Ways and Means and Finance bills provide less—less for school construction, less for Pell Grant recipients, and less for tax credits for families to send their children to college. I think we can all agree that unless we tap and nurture the talents and energies of all our people, we won't be able to meet the challenges of the 21st century.

The Daschle amendment also offers fair and equitable relief to middle class investors, small businesses, and family farms. Under the Daschle amendment, all investors would get the same 30 percent capital gains break that the top 1 percent of income earners already have. This proposal cuts the capital gains rate nearly twice as deeply for most small businesses and provides much needed relief.

Under the Ways and Means and Finance bills, however, primarily the wealthiest taxpayers would reap the benefits of an across-the-board capital gains tax cut. For example, a person who makes $45,000 would receive an average capital gains tax cut of $255, while one who makes $200,000 or more would receive an average cut of $11,520. Clearly, these bills are skewed to benefit the wealthiest income earners and disadvantage those who most need tax relief—working families.

Further, the Democratic alternative targets all estate tax cuts to family businesses and family farms, in an effort to relieve the tax burden felt by many. Again, however, the Ways and Means and Finance bills favor the wealthy by providing $35 billion in estate tax cuts to the wealthiest 1.4 percent of estate owners. Clearly, Mr. President, we must do better to bring relief to a much larger percentage of estate owners in America.

Finally, Mr. President, in the midst of providing tax relief that is fair and equitable, it is imperative that we not lose sight of our obligation to enact legislation that is fiscally responsible. The Daschle amendment allows us to maintain the fiscal discipline we have worked so hard to achieve in recent years, dating back to the wise decisions we made in 1993.

The Finance Committee bill is heavily backloaded. The Joint Tax Committee estimates that the cost of that measure will explode in the out years, costing $830 billion by the year 2017. I have grave concerns about facing the prospect of losing some $830 billion in revenue. And that is why I offered an amendment during the budget reconciliation negotiations which demanded that we adhere to our budget agreement in which we agreed to a net tax cut of $85 billion through 2002, and not more than $250 billion through 2007.

Mr. President, we must be committed to preserving the integrity of the balanced budget agreement and adopt a tax package that is fair and responsible. The American people will not be served by a budget that reaches balance briefly in 2002 and then veers back out of balance afterward. The Daschle amendment balances the budget by the year 2002, and does not threaten to push the budget out of balance beyond 2002.

Mr. President, Senator DASCHLE's alternative plan is fair, it puts families first, and it stimulates jobs and growth. And not least, it is not a ticking time bomb that threatens to push the budget out of balance, blowing a hole in the deficit in later years. And that, Mr. President, is why I urge my colleagues to support this fair, equitable, and modest measure.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I yield myself 15 minutes. I say to my colleagues I will probably take 10 minutes.

How much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Fifteen minutes and thirty seconds.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I will try and take 7½ minutes and leave 7½ minutes for my colleague.

Mr. President, I have more than enough to say but just in response to my good friend from Oklahoma, there was a quote—and maybe this is the same argument he is making—from Speaker GINGRICH, ''When you take out billions of dollars in tax cuts for working people and put in billions of dollars for people who pay no taxes, that's increasing welfare spending.'' We are talking about the child credit.

Mr. President, let me just remind the Speaker and my good friend from Oklahoma, looking at CBO numbers, this is the percentage of working families who would not be eligible for the majority party's child tax credit, whose payroll taxes exceed their income taxes. The bottom fifth, 0 to $21,700, 99.6 percent; second fifth, $21,000 to $41,000, 97 percent.

There are a lot of working families in the State of Minnesota and all across this country who are not going to be eligible for this child tax credit who pay payroll taxes, who work hard, pay taxes, and are, quite frankly, resentful of this argument that is being made. As a Senator who represents those families, I am especially resentful of such an argument.

I only need to know one thing about this tax proposal, this reconciliation bill. In the State of Minnesota, the tax bill excludes 41 percent of the children. Mr. President, 607,463 children of the 1.5 million children in Minnesota would not receive a benefit from the child tax credit. I repeat, 607,000 children of 1.5 million children will not receive the benefit of the child tax credit. Those are working families.

I say to Democrats, every Democrat, every single Democrat, and as many Republicans as possible, ought to be out here advocating and fighting for those families. It is outrageous to make the argument that they do not pay any taxes or they are ''just on welfare.'' Absolutely outrageous.

Mr. President, you have heard the figures presented out here so I do not need to go through that again except to say I am telling you, in the cafes in Minnesota, when people get a close look at this reconciliation bill they are going to be amazed.

They are going to be really teed off because they are going to say, wait a minute, I thought there was going to be tax relief for us, the small business people, and us, working families. They are going to find out that the lion's share of the benefits go to the very top, the folks that are the CEO's, the multinational corporations who are raking in, on the average, $3 million a year.

You know, Mr. President, I sometimes think that my colleagues believe that if you make $100,000 a year, you are middle class. I would be surprised if more than 10 percent of the people in this country make over $100,000 a year. What about these working families?

Well, we have a proposal here that targets these tax benefits to working families, to small businesses, to family farmers. I am telling you, this is one of these moments where the differences between the two parties make a difference. My gosh, I think a lot of people in Minnesota are scratching their heads and saying: Has there been a hostile takeover of the Government process in Washington, DC? We have been hearing about all this money in elections, and we are now starting to believe that the only folks that sit down at the bargaining table and get their way are people who have the economic resources, because we sure are getting the short end of the stick.

And they are right. I hope we will get a huge vote for this alternative.

Mr. President, let me just summarize a couple of amendments. How much time do I have left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. KEMPTHORNE). There are 10 minutes, 14 seconds remaining on the amendment.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I have about 3 minutes, I guess. Let me just mention a couple of amendments that fit in with this whole idea of tax fairness.

One amendment that I hope to do, with Democrats and Republicans, is to make sure we take the HOPE scholarship program and make these tax credits refundable. It is the same issue. Think about the community college students; many are older, going back to school and with children. If we want to make sure that we are really providing help to them—they are not going to be able to take advantage of this $1,500 because they are not going to have that liability. If we want higher education to be affordable for many of these working families, we simply have to do that. A higher education is so important to how our children and grandchildren will do that I hope we will be able to pass that amendment.

The second amendment that I want and hope to do with Senator BUMPERS takes the tax cuts and puts it into a Pell grant program. We simply make the Pell grant $7,000 a year, and that is the most efficient, effective way of making sure that higher education is affordable.

The third amendment I want to mention is the amendment I want to do with Senator CAROL MOSELEY-BRAUN, which has to do with tax credits and, again, for school infrastructure. I say, what are we doing with all of these tax benefits mainly going to wealthy people and we are not investing 1 cent into rebuilding rotting schools across America? What kind of distorted priorities are out here?

Finally, I want to mention—in case I don't have a chance later on as we run out of time—that I have an amendment I think is real interesting, which goes like this. If you have a company—and please remember that average wages rose 3 percent in 1996. Salaries and bonuses of American CEOs rose 39 percent to $2.3 million. So what I say to a company is: Look, if you want to pay your CEO over 25 times what the lowest wage worker makes, go ahead and do it, go ahead and do it. Right now, we say you can do it up to a million dollars. But don't do it on the Government's tax tab. You can pay your CEO anything you want to, but when it is above 25 times what the lowest wage worker makes, you don't get any tax breaks for doing that, just as we don't end up getting tax breaks when someone mows our lawn. We don't get to deduct that. What are we doing here, if we are talking about fairness?

Well, Mr. President, the differences make a difference. This is an outrageous argument that working families paying a payroll tax are only receiving welfare payments. This is an outrageous proposition that over 600,000 children are not going to benefit in the State of Minnesota from this tax credit. We are talking about a tax bill out here that provides the lion's share of benefits to those people least in need of the assistance.

Mr. President, there is no reason in the world for Senators to be quiet on this issue. I hope we get a very strong vote for our amendment. I yield the rest of my time to the Senator from—

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President—

Mr. WELLSTONE. Are we going to rotate?

Mr. ROTH. That is correct.

Mr. President, I yield 7 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Montana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana is recognized for 7 minutes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, in the last couple of hours, in my judgment, this debate has turned into a rather partisan matter, with Republicans lining up on one side and Democrats lining up on the other. That is fine. I mean, each Senator has his right to say what he or she thinks. That is why we all ran for office and why we are here doing our very best for our constituents.

But I also think that our people at home want us to, as much as possible, work together. Sure, some of us have differences, but, as much as possible, they want us to work together for the best interests of the American people. That, I think, is why the President worked with the Congress to try to fashion, and did fashion, a budget agreement—an agreement which will reduce the budget deficit by the year 2002; an agreement which contains provisions that the President, the chief Democrat in our country, wanted; and provisions which the Republican leadership in the Congress wanted. It is not the best agreement in the world, but we are a democracy and democracies sometimes are messy and uneven. But it was a pretty good agreement, by most Americans' standards.

The House then attempted to put together its portion of the agreement. I might say that the Ways and Means Committee got pretty partisan. Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee fought vociferously with Republicans on Ways and Means. But the Republicans have a majority of the votes, so they won. Democrats lost, and from the Democrats' point of view, the bill that came out of House Ways and Means Committee is a pretty bad bill.

I take my hat off to the chairman of our Finance Committee and our ranking member. The chairman of our committee took a different tack. His view is to work together. The chairman of the Finance Committee, the Senator from Delaware, Senator ROTH—I have never seen anyone as fair with both sides of the aisle, in trying to come together with a solid agreement that made sense, near unanimous sense, to the members of that committee. It is wonderful. I have served with other chairmen of the Finance Committee. I know Senator MOYNIHAN knows of when I speak. Sometimes that did not happen in other Congresses. In other Congresses, sometimes it was all Republicans this and all Democrats that. When the other side has the votes, you can make a statement, but you lose.

In this case, Chairman ROTH worked with the Democratic side of the aisle, and, as a consequence, we came up with a lot better bill—better, I say, than what is produced in the House pursuant to the budget agreement, agreed to by the President and congressional leadership. Why is it better? It is better because he worked with us. It is also better for these reasons: It has a cigarette tax, which I think most Americans want; it gave a big chunk of dollars to child care, to health insurance, which people want in this country; there is a big emphasis on education, which I think most people in this country want.

There are many provisions which are very good. Now, in return for Chairman ROTH working so hard with Senator MOYNIHAN to put an agreement together, Chairman ROTH asked a very reasonable question with respect to six key points, in the final hours of putting this bill together. The six key points, very simply, dealt with a ticket tax, cigarette tax, with unified credit, and there are a couple others. But there are six key points. He asked us, would all the members of the committee agree to support that agreement? He asked for a show of hands. Every hand went up. Every member of the committee raised his hand to support the agreement.

Now, here we are on the floor today, Thursday afternoon, and my party leader has come up with a very good substitute. In many respects, I think it is better than the bill that came out of the committee. But I made an agreement. I pledged my honor to support the six terms that Senator ROTH asked us to support, so that we would come up with a better bipartisan bill. That is not to say I support or am bound to support every provision of the bill. But with respect to those six key points, I feel duty-bound to honor that commitment, and I will do so here today.

Now, if we could find a Democratic substitute which did not contravene any of those six points, I would probably support it. But the substitute before us does contravene those six points. I feel, as a matter of honor, that I cannot support the Democratic substitute.

I must say that the bill before us—the Finance Committee bill—is not that bad. Remember, we are operating under the agreement that the President and congressional leadership agreed to. Given those parameters, this is not that bad a bill. It reduces the budget deficit, it does reduce taxes, it gives a child tax credit, it helps education, and it is good—not perfect, but it is good.

Now, on down the road, we will have opportunities to still improve upon the bill. The President, after all, has the authority to sign or not sign the bill. I very much pledge to work with all Members of Congress, with my constituents at home, and with the President and the conferees, whoever they may be, to keep improving upon this bill.

I must say, Mr. President, that this is a very difficult position to take because I do not like to be taking a position contrary to the leader of my party. But I do believe that it is the right position to take. After all, we are elected to do what's right. In my judgment, what is right is to support the agreement I reached with the chairman of the committee and also work to continue to improve upon this bill as it reaches different stages of this progress. I, therefore, will not vote for the substitute.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield myself 2 minutes to say to the Senator from Montana that his was an immensely honorable and accurate statement. You raised your hand, as did we all, for $24 billion of child health. I have been 21 years on the Finance Committee and there has never been such a moment or such a provision. And that happened in a compromise in which the Republican majority agreed to a large tax increase we could use for the child health care.

Senator ROTH was remarkable throughout, and no words of praise are too great. In our world, your word is all you have. We gave our word. I think we did it responsibly and I think we will be seen to have done such.

Mr. BAUCUS. If the Senator will yield for 30 seconds, the choice we had in the Finance Committee was to either work with the chairman for a better bill or not work with the chairman and make a statement and get a worse bill.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Precisely.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I wish to compliment my colleague from Montana for his statement. I will yield the Senator from Missouri 5 minutes.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I thought we were rotating between those who supported and those who opposed. If I am correct, the Senator just spoke on the Democratic side in support of the Republican position. Are we rotating?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, the Senator from Massachusetts is correct. That is fine.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield myself the 7½ minutes that remain.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator may proceed.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I wish my good friend and colleague from Montana had been on our side, and it would have been appropriate, obviously, for the other side to move ahead. But he made his decision and made his presentation, and now I would like to respond.

Mr. President, I will have the opportunity later on this evening to talk about really where we are in terms of the child care program.

The fact of the matter is that $16 billion that was put in the bill was suggested by the administration's proposal which had a $14 billion cut. The Finance Committee added $8 billion. I commend my colleague and friend, Senator HATCH, for making that effort and for making that fight. Without his efforts, that would not have taken place. So we are farther down the road than we were prior to the time of that particular markup.

But the fact of the matter is—and later on this evening I will have a chance to talk about where we really are in terms of the funding that has been allocated for children and the number of children that still remain. I find it interesting that this provision that the members of the Finance Committee took and accepted deals with accelerated depreciation, deals with airline tickets, a small amount of EITC, and the child care. I find it interesting that the Finance Committee was willing to accept the cigarette tax but use it for those non-child-related issues, even though the Republican leadership had opposed our cigarette tax.

I tried, with all respect, to understand this enormous sense of unity and deep moral commitment to this particular proposal when on its face it is difficult to really understand, given the fact that the originators of the tobacco tax were those Senators—Senator HATCH and myself—devoted toward addressing the needs of children in this country, the sons and daughters of working families who can't afford it. We got a part of it. But evidently the members of the Finance Committee swore in blood that depreciation on buildings as well as airline tickets was basically more important than the children. I am always interested in why that should be such a high moral issue and purpose. I have difficulty in understanding it.

But, Mr. President, the issue today with the particular recommendation before the Senate is whether this proposal really meets the test of fairness for all Americans. That should be the test. Will this really be fair to the taxpayers in this country, or are we tipping the scales in a very important and special way to the wealthier individuals and corporations of this country?

Senator DASCHLE has taken an enormous amount of time and painstaking diligence to fashion a proposal that fundamentally meets the agreement that was reached with the President in terms of what would be the tax adjustments. Senator DASCHLE has put forward a proposal that will be much fairer for all Americans.

We sometimes rail in this body about how the particular proposal really is fairer and more just, but I do think in any fair examination the overwhelming evidence shows that the proposal of Senator DASCHLE is fairer to the working families of this country, and decisively so. This should to be the test.

It is interesting, as we come closer and closer to the final conclusion, that the overwhelming majority of Americans understand this. Even prior to this debate on the various surveys—and I just saw this morning on the early morning shows—the American people understand the difference. They have not seen this debate or heard about this debate. They are out there working even while we are in the debate and discussion. But they understand fundamentally who is going to be on their side and who is going to be on the side of the working families. They are correct.

Senator DASCHLE, I believe, deserves great credit for his leadership in offering to the Senate a proposal that is fairer for working families and for many Americans who have in too many instances been left out farther and farther behind in the period of the last 20 years. Sixty or sixty-five percent of Americans are farther behind and are working harder. Their family members are working harder, and they are working longer in terms of total hours of the week, in terms of families and just being able to keep their heads above water. The reason is the increase in the payroll taxes they have been paying, as described by my friend and colleague, Senator WELLSTONE.

So we have an opportunity—one of the few opportunities that we have—for the 65 to 70 percent of the American families who have been working longer, who have really been the ones who have brought this economy back. We have a stronger economy today because working families have been out there working harder, longer, and smarter in terms of the American economy. They have benefited very little in terms of their own standard of living.

We have an opportunity this afternoon and tomorrow to make some difference in that. The real issue is, are we going to make that kind of a commitment to those working families, whether it is on the child credit programs, or whether it is the education programs, or whether it is basically the overall rate programs, or whether we are going to reward the smaller enterprises that are going to be innovative and creative and expand employment by giving them some adjustment in terms of capital gains? Yes; and whether we are going to make sure that those who are going to get some break in terms of estate planning are going to be those who are going to continue to work the farms and be a part of the American primarily heartland of this nation in terms of producing the food and fiber which we eat.

Those are the issues, Mr. President, and the issue is which way will the Senate of the United States go? Are we going to say to those 60 or 70 percent of the Americans, ''We care about your kids, we care about education. We fashioned the particular program in terms of the HOPE scholarship, and we are going to arrange the other provisions of the Tax Code so that you have a better opportunity, middle-income families, lower-income families, with a modest expansion of the Pell provisions''? Are we going to do that? Our answer is yes, and the Daschle proposal does so.

Are we going to really look out for the sons and daughters of working families? To Senator DASCHLE's credit, it is more expansive and more targeted in reaching the sons and daughters of working families.

So, if we are talking about fairness, if we are talking about equity, if we are talking about how we are adjusting the various rates, including the children's tax credit and the payroll tax, and adjusting those in ways so that we are saying, ''While you may not have been paying a great deal more out of your income tax, you surely are in terms of your payroll tax. We are going to provide some degree of relief.''

So that is the issue. We need to understand that. We can all say, ''We are for education.'' However, you have to look at the proposal. Whose proposal really meets the central challenge that working families and middle-income families are facing in sending their kids to school? It is the Daschle proposal. Whose proposal really does the most in terms of the children? It is the Daschle proposal. Who does the most in terms of trying to make sure that we are going to provide important incentives to smaller, modest, middle-income families who are trying to get started with smaller new businesses by providing enhanced job opportunities? It is the Daschle proposal.

So, Mr. President, I am just proud to support this proposal. It doesn't incorporate all of the kinds of factors that perhaps some of us would like to have. However, it is a serious and very important proposal that deserves the overwhelming support of the Members of this body.

Let me just finally point this out: On the overall issue of tax equity, the Democratic alternative is clearly fairer. More of the benefits of the Republican plan go to the top 1 percent of taxpayers than go to the bottom 60 percent of taxpayers—13.1 percent versus 12.7 percent.

In the Democratic alternative, only 1.4 percent of the benefits go to the top 1 percent of taxpayers and the top 20 percent of taxpayers only receive 20 percent of the benefits. The vast majority of the benefits go to taxpayers who have incomes in the middle 60 percent of the income distribution; 71 percent of the benefits. The Democratic alternative is vastly preferable to the regressive Republican bill because it is fairer to lower and middle-income taxpayers.

Mr. President, this Republican proposal is going to give a green light to all those individuals who have been doing extremely well—extremely well in terms of the stock market. We have seen that go right up through the roof. But who has been out there making those stocks go up, making those businesses work? It is hard-working men and women.

If we accept the Republican proposal, we are saying to all of those who have been able to make very substantial amounts of money that they are going to provide additional kinds of opportunities for them to be able to keep that money while we are saying to those who are working and have worked hard that you are going to get the crumbs. That is what the distribution issue is really all about.

I am not the only one making these observations. We have seen the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities estimate that the cost of the Republican proposal will increase by between $500 and $600 million in the 10 years following the current budget period.

I was 1 of 11 Senators who voted against the economic proposal in 1981 because we were going to balloon the deficit. Only 11 of us at that time voted against it. We are going to see the same kind of balloon now in the outyears.

Who is going to be out here at that time to try to make those adjustments and make those changes when Members of the Senate are going to say, ''Well, we had better close some of those tax loopholes?'' You know what will happen. They will cut back further in education. They will cut further back in children's program. They will cut further back on day care support—on all of the programs that have been continually cut back, or at least attempted to be cut back, in these past 3 years.

The Democratic alternative does not engage in these accounting tricks to balance the budget. The Democratic alternative is honest with the American people, fair to American taxpayers, and it deserves to be adopted.

Republicans make many arguments in favor of their proposal, and many of their concerns are valid. The current system is not perfect. There are many things to improve. We need to give tax relief to families, we need to encourage investment in education, and we need to grant relief from the hardships that are sometimes caused by the estate tax.

On all these general points, Republicans and Democrats agree.

However, the Republican plan uses these arguments as excuses to give enormous tax cuts to the well-heeled and the powerful and it does so as far as the eye can see. It therefore violates the fundamental principles that any tax bill must meet: tax fairness and fiscal responsibility.

The Democratic alternative, on the other hand, is true to both of these principles. It allocates the tax relief fairly among all income brackets. And it guarantees that the amount of the tax relief is responsible, so that we will have a balanced budget not only in the year 2002, but in the years after as well.

Both, the Republican proposal and the Democratic alternative have a child tax credit. On their face, the two proposals appear similar. However, the Republican credit will not benefit lower and many middle income people, while the Democratic proposal will. The Republican proposal will not benefit families who do not earn enough income to claim the full credit. This cut-off applies not only to the extremely poor, but also to families earning up to $30,000 a year.

Under the Democratic alternative, the credit is refundable against both income taxes and payroll taxes. Many more working families will be able to obtain the full benefit of the credit under the Democratic plan. This point is critical for those who earn less than $30,000 a year because their payroll taxes are larger then their income taxes. They deserve tax relief too.

In addition, the Democratic tax credit for children has another significant advantage. It is calculated or stacked prior to the earned income tax credit. Under the Republican plan, the credit is stacked after the earned income tax credit. This means that the working poor who are eligible for the earned income tax credit many not be able to obtain the full benefit of both credits.

If their income tax after taking the earned income tax credit is too small, then they will not benefit from the Republican child credit.

The Democratic alternative will enable these working families to benefit from the child credit too. 47 percent of American children would not be eligible for the child credit under the Republicans proposal. An additional 8 million children would be eligible for only a partial benefit. Clearly, the Republicans have gerrymandered their credit to save money by denying it to as many working families as possible.

Because the Democratic plan allows the credit to be offset against both payroll and income taxes, and allows families the full benefit of both the earned income tax credit and the child tax credit, the Democratic plan will reach 7 million more children than the Republican proposal.

In addition, the Republican child credit is not indexed for inflation. The effect of the credit will drop every year as inflation decreases its value. The Democratic alternative will index the child credit for inflation. We are serious about giving tax relief for families. The Republican proposal is designed to appear generous, but in reality it offers little to lower and middle income persons. Even those middle class and upper income families who receive the credit under the Republican version are better off in the long run under the Democratic version, because their credit is indexed for inflation as well.

The Democratic plan is not welfare. If a family does not work, and does not pay any federal taxes, they will not get the benefit of the credit.

The Democratic alternative gives the credit only to working families. It will help those who need this credit the most, the working poor. The Republican proposal will not help them at all. The Democratic alternative offers an honest tax break. The Republican proposal is a let-them-eat-cake tax break.

The Democratic proposal also does a better job of encouraging investment in education.

The education provisions of the Republican bill are skewed toward higher-income taxpayers. The bill provides only $20 billion for the HOPE scholarship and nothing at all for the tuition deduction. But it provides over $7 billion for other savings provisions that help higher income families.

The bill's allocation of only $20 billion to HOPE scholarship falls far short of the commitment made under the budget agreement to provide $35 billion for tax benefits for higher education. The letter signed by NEWT GINGRICH and TRENT LOTT on the budget agreement specifically states that tax relief of roughly $35 billion will be provided over 5 years for post-secondary education, and that the education tax package should be consistent with the objectives put forward in the HOPE scholarship and tuition tax proposals contained in the Administration's fiscal year 1998 budget to assist middle-class parents.

The administration's proposal had two goals: to help middle class families during the critical years while students are in college, and to encourage lifelong learning.

Students and families across the nation are concerned about escalating tuition, and this bill does not do enough to help them. The Republican bill is flawed in other major respect in this area—it utterly fails to address the need to help workers expand their skills and education.

The Daschle alternative addresses these problems. It provides a broader HOPE scholarship, and a valuable tuition tax credit for lifelong learning. This credit will enable taxpayers to recover 20 percent of their tuition costs up to a maximum of $10,000, for learning after the HOPE credit expires. This provision can give real benefit to teachers, nurses, auto mechanics and all others in jobs that need continual upgrading of skills. The workplace depends more and more on highly trained workers. To sustain a strong economy, we must invest in ongoing education throughout life.

The bill also provides a disproportionate education benefit to high income families. It contains three separate provisions to encourage savings for college, at a total cost of over $7 billion over the next 5 years. Lower income families do not have the luxury to save as much as higher income families do, and will not be able to take advantage of these provisions.

The Democratic alternative provides some additional benefits for students that are also in the bill, and I support these provisions. Specifically, I support the permanent extension of section 127, the provision for employer-provided tuition, including graduate students. I also support the elimination of the $150 million cap for institutions of higher education, and the restoration of the deduction of student loan interest.

I also strongly support funding for crumbling schools. The deterioration of hundreds of schools across the United States is a disgrace. But this bill offers only a token help on this problem. This bill allocates only $360 million over 5 years by making changes in bond rules. The Democratic bill, on the contrary, will result in a real commitment to improving our schools. It also encourages States to allocate that money to school districts with the greatest needs. The Republican bill offers only band-aids to put over leaking roofs. The Democratic bill provides real relief for school districts to repair their crumbling schools.

The Democratic bill provides for these benefits—the crumbling schools, the section 127 aid, the student loan interest—in addition to HOPE and a tuition tax credit.

In contrast, the Republican bill provides the additional benefits by taking away from HOPE and eliminating a tuition tax break. It pits student against student, giving these additional benefits to some students only at the expense of students who could benefit from HOPE and the tuition credit.

Investing in education is investment in the future. We must do more to help all needy students. The tax benefits need to be targeted to those who need them, and not wasted on those who can afford to save and pay for college on their own.

The Democratic proposal also better addresses the problem with the current estate tax, without creating a giveaway to the rich.

In the current tax system, the estate tax often creates real hardships for families who have just lost a loved one. When the owner of a family business or farm dies, there can be a large estate tax bill at one of the worst times possible. There may well be many other expenses such as funeral costs and legal bills. The estate tax could force the family to sell the business or farm.

Relief is appropriate in these situations, and the Democratic alternative provides it. There would be special estate tax treatment when 50 percent or more of an estate consists of a family business or farm. In these cases, the first $900,000 of the estate is exempt from estate tax, as long as the children or grandchildren continue to actively operate the business or farm for 10 years.

The Democratic alternative is targeted to cases where families may not be able to easily liquidate their holdings to pay the tax. The Republican bill gives relief to all estates. Even if the estate is that of a rich person who invested in stocks and other investments which are easily liquidated, the Republicans still give tax relief. The problems that deserve to be addressed occur only in approximately 1.4 percent of all estates. Instead of extending justifiable relief to these 1.4 percent of estates, they extend relief to all estates. Clearly the Republicans are using rare cases of hardships for family farms and businesses as a fig leaf to cover a massive estate tax break for the wealthy.

Finally, the 20-cent increase in the tobacco tax contained in this amendment is a critical element in tax fairness—and for achieving priority public health goals as well. I am pleased that it is not only a feature of this amendment but of the bill reported by the Finance Committee with a strong bipartisan vote.

Tobacco is one of our most undertaxed industries. Even with the 20 cents per pack cigarette tax increase, the tobacco industry remains grossly undertaxed—whether the standard is historical tax levels, comparison to other countries, or the costs that smoking inflicts on our society and on non-smoking taxpayers.

In 1965, Federal and State tobacco taxes accounted for 51 percent of the retail price of a pack of cigarettes. By 1996, the figure had fallen to just 31 percent. Even with the 20-cents per pack increase, the share of the cost of a pack of cigarettes going to federal and state taxes will be 39 percent—still far below the 1965 level.

Raising the cigarette tax by 20 cents will being our tobacco taxes more in line with the rest of the industrialized world. Our current 24 cent per pack cigarette tax is one of the lowest among all industrialized nations—and it will still be one of the lowest, even with the 20 cent per pack increase in the bill.

The costs that smoking inflicts on our society and on non-smoking taxpayers are immense. It kills more than 400,000 Americans a year. It costs the nation $50 billion a year in direct health costs, and another $50 billion in lost productivity. The average pack of cigarettes sells for $1.80 today—and it costs the nation $3.90 in smoking-related expenses.

It is time that the tobacco companies paid a fairer share of these costs—and this bill is the time to start. Not only is a higher tax on tobacco products the fair thing to do, it is the most important single step we can take to stop the epidemic of youth smoking—an epidemic that will ultimately claim the lives of 5 million of today's children if we do nothing. One million young people between the ages of 12 and 17 take up this deadly habit every year—3,000 new smokers a day. The average smoker begins smoking at age 13, and becomes a daily smoker before age 15. Raising the tobacco tax by 20 cents a pack will save the lives of 400,000 of these children. The fact is that a twenty cent a pack increase is only a starting place. We should do more—much more.

Eight billion dollars of the funds raised by the tobacco tax increase over the next 5 years are earmarked for children's health insurance. Here, too, we need to do more. Even with the combination of these funds and the $16 billion in the budget agreement, at least four and a half million uninsured children will still be left out and left behind. Without the tobacco tax funds, 6.7 million children will remain uninsured. A tobacco tax increase devoted to children's health is the right policy at the right time.

These facts are bad enough. But the problem is growing worse.

According to a Spring 1996 survey conducted by the University of Michigan Institute for Social Research, the prevalence of teenage smoking in America has been on the increase over the last five years. It rose by nearly one-half among eighth and tenth graders, and by nearly a fifth among high school seniors between 1991 and 1996.

Once children are hooked on cigarette smoking at a young age, it becomes increasingly hard for them to quit. Ninety percent of current adult smokers began to smoke before they reached the age of 18. Ninety-five percent of teenage smokers say they intend to quit in the near future—but only a quarter of them will actually do so within the first eight years of beginning to smoke.

If nothing is done to reverse this trend in adolescent smoking, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimate that five million of today's children will die prematurely from smoking-caused illnesses.

Increasing the federal cigarette tax is one of the most effective ways to reduce teenage smoking. Study after study has shown that the cigarette tax is the most powerful weapon in reducing cigarette use among children, since they have less income to spend on tobacco.

Philip Morris, the nation's largest tobacco company, conceded as much in an internal memorandum as far back as 1981, which noted that ''it is clear that price has a pronounced effect on the smoking prevalence of teenagers, and that the goals of reducing teenage smoking and balancing the budget would both be served by increasing the federal excise tax on cigarettes.''

Frank Chaloupka, an economist at the University of Illinois at Chicago, found that an increase in the federal cigarette tax by 20 cents will reduce teenage smoking by 7 percent, saving the lives of almost 400,000 children.

Finally, on the overall issue of tax equity, the Democratic Alternative is clearly fairer. More of the benefits of the Republican plan go to the top 1 percent of taxpayers than go to the bottom 60 percent of the taxpayers (13.1 percent vs. 12.7 percent). In the Democratic alternative, only 1.4 percent of the benefits go to the top 1 percent of taxpayers, and the top 20 percent of taxpayers only receive 20 percent of benefits. The vast majority of the benefits go to taxpayers who have income in the middle 60 percent of the income distribution (71.6 percent of the benefits). The Democratic alternative is vastly preferable to the regressive Republican bill, because it is fair to lower and middle income taxpayers.

The Democratic alternative is honest to the American people. The Republican bill states that it will result in a balanced budget by the year 2002. In fact, it might accomplish this.

But in future years, the amount of Republican tax cuts will explode, and the deficit will increase enormously. The Center on Budget and Policy Priorities has estimated that the cost of the Republican proposal will increase by between $500 billion and $600 billion in the 10 years following the current budget period. It will be nearly impossible to balance the budget in those years if this Republican tax giveaway is enacted into law.

The Democratic alternative does not engage in these accounting tricks to balance the budget. The Democratic alternative is honest with American people and fair to American taxpayers, and it deserves to be adopted.

I withhold the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. BOND addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield the distinguished Senator from Missouri 7 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized for 7 minutes.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished chairman of committee and the manager of the bill.

Having been enlightened by quite a few minutes of debate on the floor, I asked for 2 additional minutes.

First, I want to emphasize that what we are talking about here is a bipartisan bill. My friend from Massachusetts characterized it as a Republican bill.

I particularly appreciated the kind comments by the Senator from Montana. As I listened to his praise of the measure, I was reminded of those immortal words of Mark Twain. When asked about the music of Wagner, he said, ''It is not as bad as it sounds.'' There was some of that in the praise that the Senator from Montana heaped upon this measure. I appreciate his support and his good words.

When I listened to my colleague from Massachusetts, I found out why this music sounds so much better than the alternative because, Members of the Senate, I agree that we are looking for saving and protecting the working men and women of America, the small business owners. As chairman of the Small Business Committee, I have had the opportunity to listen to those people who are struggling to make a living for themselves and provide jobs for others through small business.

I can tell you that after we dealt last year with some of the significant problems in regulatory reform, it was clear that the small businesses of America are overtaxed and overburdened by the Federal Government's desire for more money. They are the ones who are pulling the wagon. They are moving the economy. And they are paying the tariff for this Government.

This measure, the bipartisan agreement reached between leaders of Congress and the President, provided that there would be spending reforms and that there would be tax reductions—tax reductions in the process of getting to a balanced budget. Those tax reductions are absolutely essential if we want to continue the dynamic engine that moves this country forward.

I rise in strong opposition to the Daschle amendment because, No. 1, the Daschle amendment only provides $68.1 billion in net tax cuts— a 20-percent reduction from the bipartisan plan. It goes back on the agreement reached between the leaders of Congress and the President on what we need to do to get this economy moving again.

The Daschle plan provides $14 billion less to American families than the bipartisan plan would in the child tax credit. Families under it would only receive $350 per child instead of $500 per child, and children aged 13 and over would not even be eligible.

The Daschle plan, moreover, is a bad deal for seniors. Seniors get about one-third of the capital gains realized in this country. They would have to pay 10 percent more in capital gains taxes under the Daschle scheme.

But it is a particularly bad deal for small business owners and farmers. It contains less than half the death tax relief contained in the bipartisan plan, and on capital gains taxes, seniors, small business owners, farmers, and self-employed would pay 10 percent more.

As I said, the Daschle plan is a dealbreaker. The DASCHLE plan is outside of the scope of the agreement under which we are working.

Mr. President, in saying that, I want to emphasize that there is one important element which must and will be added to the measure pending before us. One of the top priorities for farmers, ranchers, truckdrivers, and small business men and women across this country is getting fairness in tax treatment of the money paid for health insurance premiums. For too long people who are self-employed have suffered because they have not gotten the same breaks that a large corporation or institution gets in being able to deduct 100 percent of what is paid for health insurance.

Now, I fought long and hard in 1995, and I included an amendment in the Balanced Budget Act, unfortunately, vetoed by President Clinton, which would have increased the health insurance deduction for the self-employed to 50 percent from 25 percent. In 1996, I worked with Senator Kassebaum to include in the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act an increase in the self-employed health insurance deduction incrementally to 80 percent. That is not far enough and that is not fast enough. Today, while the self-employed can deduct 40 percent of their health insurance costs, they are still not on a level playing field, and very few of them can wait until 2006 to get sick.

The budget resolution reported out of the Budget Committee includes an amendment I offered that was cosponsored by every member of the Budget Committee present, which calls for a portion of the resources available in this legislation to be set aside for an immediate 100-percent deductibility of health insurance for the self-employed. As I said, it was cosponsored by all members, Democrat and Republican.

Earlier this month, I originated a letter to the Senate Finance Committee urging full deductibility for the self-employed. That letter was signed by 53 Senators. I believe that is a majority.

Now, an immediate deduction of 100 percent would make health insurance more affordable and accessible to some more than 5.1 million self-employed who lack health insurance, almost a quarter of the self-employed work force. In addition, full deductibility of health insurance by the self-employed will also help insure 1.4 million children who live in households headed by self-employed individuals.

Coverage of these self-employed and their children through the self-employed health insurance deduction will enable the private sector to address these health care needs. I am proud to cosponsor the amendment put forward by my colleague and neighbor from Illinois, Senator DURBIN, which would pay for the cost of this deductibility with a 10-cent increase in the tax on cigarettes. This is one way we can pay for this measure. We know that 3,000 children become regular smokers every day and start down that dangerous road at 13. By enacting this amendment, we cannot only pay for health insurance, we can provide a deterrent against children smoking and thus help save lives. In addition, the revenues raised will be used for a directly related purpose, reducing the cost of health care coverage for the self-employed and their families.

Last week, with my colleague and neighbor from Arkansas, Senator BUMPERS, I introduced a measure, the Pregnant Mothers and Infants Health Protection Act, to set up a fund to discourage smoking among pregnant women and among parents with small children because of the tremendous impact of birth defects from smoking and because of the danger of SIDS for those who smoke.

In any event, I believe that this amendment will improve the measure. I urge defeat of the Daschle amendment. The budget resolution calls for full deductibility of health insurance. I look forward to working with my colleagues to include that measure in the final bill as reported out.

I thank the Chair, and I thank the chairman of the committee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from New Hampshire.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Senator from Delaware. I wish to join with the many Members of this Senate who have congratulated the Senator from Delaware and the Senator from New York for bringing forward this bipartisan initiative, which is really rather extraordinary when you think about it. It is obviously an outgrowth of the fact that the President and the leadership of the Congress have gotten together on how to balance the budget and give a tax cut to working Americans.

This bill is a product of that initial agreement which occurred in May. The fact it came out with almost unanimous support out of the Finance Committee is something that we should take very seriously as a Congress and especially as a people, in recognition of the fact that this is a bipartisan initiative.

Now the leader of the Democratic Party has come forward, even though a large—well, the entire Finance Committee membership of the Democrat Party voted for the underlying bill—the leader of the Democrat Party has come forward with a proposal as an alternative. I think a couple of comments need to be made about the specifics of that because it has some problems in the way it handles children and families with children.

To begin with, it is a phased-in child credit. So, under Senator DASCHLE's proposal, it is not until the year 2000 that families get the $500 credit. In fact, if you have a child who is over the age of 12, you do not get any credit, any credit at all until the year 2002.

Well, the practical effect of that is that there are going to be a lot of kids who outgrow the credit; the kids grow up; they get older. The credit will not be available. The families will not have a credit between now and the year 2000 if their children are under 12. It will be a phased-in credit. And if their children are over 12, they won't get it until 2002. If you have a child who happens to be a 12-year-old today, you are never going to get this credit under the—not the Democrat proposal, because the Democrats are supporting the underlying bill—under the DASCHLE proposal.

It is pretty outrageous, really, to claim that that bill is more effective in addressing kids than the bipartisan proposal when it does not even cover kids. It does not even cover kids who are over 12 years old until the year 2002.

Equally significant is the practical effect of the way that they recover the credit from working families. Under the Daschle proposal, the effective tax rate of families earning between $70,000 and $80,000 that have a number of kids in the family would be 58 percent not counting the FICA tax. So the actual tax rate under the Daschle bill is 73 percent—73 percent for those folks in that income bracket.

Now, there are a lot of working Americans today who have a fair number of kids who have to have both parents work to support them. And, in fact, unfortunately, one of the facts of America today is that many parents have to work simply to pay taxes. One of the spouses works full-time simply to pay the taxes on the family and the other spouse works to try to take care of the family. One is working to take care of the Government; the other one is working to take care of the family.

If you have a number of kids and you are getting hit with a 73-percent tax rate, even though you may have a fairly high income with a fair number of kids, that tax rate essentially wipes out your income, wipes out not only the income of the spouse working for the Government, but it does a pretty good job on that spouse who is out there trying to earn for the family.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. GREGG. I am delighted to yield.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will you explain for the Senate one more time what that 73 percent is?

Mr. GREGG. If you happen to have a large number of kids, and I think the Senator from New Mexico may have a few children——

Mr. DOMENICI. They are already gone, but, yes, I do.

Mr. GREGG. When we were coming up through the ranks, if you had seven to eight kids, which is a lot of kids, you would need an income probably of $70,000 to $80,000. Both parents would have to be working to maintain those families. In that bracket, you would be paying an effective rate of 58 percent on your income tax. And another FICA tax on top of that works out to be an effective rate of 73 percent on the additional earnings.

Mr. DOMENICI. And that is under the Daschle proposal?

Mr. GREGG. That is under the Daschle plan.

Mr. DOMENICI. Do they raise taxes in those areas?

Mr. GREGG. That is exactly what happens, because the manner in which they recover the tax credit from people after they start to phase down the tax credit is a tax increase of significant proportions, well above the base rate of 28 percent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has used his 5 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Senator.

Mr. GREGG. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Pennsylvania.

Mr. SANTORUM. I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. SANTORUM. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I rise in very strong support of the bill that came out of the Finance Committee, the tax bill that provides tremendous tax relief for all Americans, because what this bill is aimed at doing is creating jobs, creating opportunities, getting an infusion of capital so we can increase our productivity.

Those are the kinds of things I thought we were going to be debating on the floor of the Senate. I thought we were going to talk about how we can create economic growth, how we can create better jobs for people, how the people at the bottom end of the economic strata can rise as a result of the opportunities that are available in the United States. And now what the Senate has evolved into today has been a bunch of charges that this isn't fair, that we should not look at economic opportunities or growth or jobs, a tune that is heard often here—jobs, jobs, jobs. We shouldn't look at job creation; we shouldn't look at economic growth; we should look at what is fair, who is getting the benefit, and we should draw class warfare lines in the sand here.

I just want to, if I can—I hate to even sort of get down, though, to that level, but that has really been the focus of this debate. I want to throw out—I hesitate to do this because we just get numbered to death in the Senate, but let me throw out a couple of numbers that I think are very easy to understand.

The top 20 percent of income earners in this country, the rich, the top 20 percent pay 79 percent of all income taxes. The top 20 percent pay 79 percent of all income taxes.

Now, they pay 79 percent of all taxes. What percentage of the tax cuts in this bill do the ''rich'' get? Twenty-two percent. In other words, the group that pays three-quarters of the tax get one-fifth of the benefit. And this is being charged as a tax break for the rich. If I were rich, I would say you are ripping me off. I am paying all the taxes and everybody else is getting all the benefit.

But, no, they come here to the floor and they charge this is unfair; these people who are poor need tax cuts. Well, let me just straighten this out a little bit. Thirty-seven percent, the ''bottom 37 percent,'' of income earners in this country pay no taxes net. In other words, with the tax credits and the EITC and the other things that are out there, they pay no Federal income taxes.

Now, I do not know how you give tax cuts to people who do not pay taxes, but that is what the other side wants to do. In fact, if you go deeper into the analysis, you find that not only does the bottom 37 percent pay no Federal income taxes, the bottom 20 percent pays no payroll taxes net. In other words, all that money, the FICA that you have to pay out for Social Security and Medicare, if you are in the bottom 20 percent of income earners in this country, you get more back in earned-income tax credit than you pay out in payroll taxes.

But that isn't good enough. So people are getting—not only do they pay no income taxes, they pay no payroll taxes. In fact, they get more back than they pay. The other side wants to give them even more money. I am not opposed to helping people out, but where is this money coming from? It is coming from people who are paying taxes, people who are in the middle class who have been paying taxes for the last 16 years at very high rates, who deserve a break.

I am really about up to here with people running around saying we are for tax breaks for the middle class, but what they propose is welfare for people who pay no taxes. So let us get it straight. I am going to offer a resolution, a sense of the Senate, that says Federal income tax relief should go to people who pay Federal income taxes.

Now, you would think that that would be a joke, that everybody would vote for that—anybody who pays Federal income tax would be the only ones eligible to get tax relief—but, unfortunately, you are going to find a whole bunch of people who are not going to vote for that.

That is how far we have come. This is ''Washingtonspeak.'' For those of you who have not been in Washington very long, welcome, and this is what it is like. People actually stand around here and talk about giving tax breaks to people who do not pay taxes. While people who do pay taxes, anybody, is rich. Anybody who pays taxes in this country, by definition of what the Democratic plan is, is rich.

If that is where we have come in America, then I think the Founding Fathers will be turning over in their graves because they thought they created the land of opportunity where people were rewarded for working hard, for taking care of their families, for providing for themselves. What we are saying here is you are the bad guys, you are the ones who have to pay more.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired. Who yields time?

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I yield myself 5 minutes off the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I have talked with Senator MOYNIHAN and with Chairman ROTH about what I am now going to say. That is, I am going to vote for the Daschle alternative. It is a more difficult decision if you have been on the Finance Committee, because of what the others who have spoken of which has been referred to as the oath that we took, to support the bill. I view my oath as being upheld, and I say so for the following reasons.

This is a moral issue with me as well as a political philosophy issue. The piece of paper that we bound ourselves to, I will stick by. I was not satisfied, for example, with the earned income tax credit/child tax credit relationship that came back. I read it to be a certain thing. It did not turn out to be that way. On the other hand, for those eight pieces on that piece of paper—Finance Committee members will know what I am talking about—I did say that I would uphold those on the floor. And I will continue to uphold those. If, for example, a Democrat offers an amendment which would bring the EITC, child care credit, or child tax credit—bring it more in my direction, the way I would like it to be, then I will oppose that even though it is in the best interests of the country, and, I think, the right policy in our country. I will do that because that is what I consider I took my oath of loyalty to. It was not an oath of loyalty in some military sense. It was simply a matter of the way a very complex and difficult, bipartisan committee like the Finance Committee works. If you are bound together and you bind yourself together through the act of raising your hand, et cetera, that has an implication; it expects a response and that response will be forthcoming from me if individual amendments are offered which are related to the deal.

On the other hand, we have Democrats and we have Republicans in this body and I do think that the Democratic alternative being offered by Leader DASCHLE—and I greatly respect him and the work he has done on this, in a very trying period in his personal life—is a better alternative. Because I think it is a better alternative, it becomes—although I think that most people would understand it is probably not going to prevail—I think it becomes very important to say this is a better alternative. If we were doing it, if the Democrats had control of this body, this would be more likely the way we would do it. That is the kind of statement I wish to make in making my vote.

I care very much about what happens to the people of West Virginia. The economy of West Virginia is more fragile, the individual incomes in West Virginia are more fragile, especially as they are particularly young or particularly old, and I have a strong responsibility to that, as I do to my own sense of honor and my own word, within my work in the U.S. Senate and the particular nature of the Finance Committee.

So I gladly say I am going to be supporting the Daschle amendment because it is the better approach to solving our country's problems. Just as I was very glad, back in 1993 when Chairman MOYNIHAN turned to me and said I want you to cut $59 billion out of Medicare in order to ensure its solvency—I did not say slow the rate of increase, I said cut—and I went ahead and did it. And I helped put our economy in a position where we have been able to do things like provide a tax credit to hard working American families, and a number of other things which have been talked about on the floor.

But I want to make the reasons for my vote clear. It is something important and delicate because of my respect not only for my Ranking Member MOYNIHAN and Chairman ROTH, who has been eminently fair and bipartisan in the way he has conducted the Finance Committee, and his fine staff, all of them have been very fair. I want to make it clear I think the Democratic approach is a better one and I will be voting for it for that reason.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Indiana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator for yielding, and I also commend the Senator for some extraordinary work in putting together a real tax cut package for the American people.

There are items in this tax package that we have been attempting to incorporate, to give relief to American taxpayers, for many, many years. The Senator has been a leader and a champion of these. I am pleased to see we have arrived at a point where we can make substantial progress towards achieving these goals. The $500 tax credit for children is something that parents desperately need. It is something that has been far too long in coming. Parents have been put at tremendous disadvantage over the years under our Tax Code, if they are raising children, trying to pay for their expenses. This $500 tax credit is a big step in the right direction, in terms of redressing that.

I have some concerns about the designation, the mandate that designates the credit is only received for children 13 and older if it is put into an education savings account. I will be speaking to that later, when the Senator from Texas introduces his amendment to make that optional. But I do support the other items in this package. It is far superior to the package that is being offered by Senator DASCHLE and some Democrats.

I say ''some Democrats,'' because this is a bipartisan package. There will be a number of Democrats supporting us in this because they know families need tax relief, because they know that capital gains spurs investments, creates jobs, and more important, goes to seniors and to people, small business owners and others who are not rich but who have saved and accumulated over a lifetime, assets that are taxed away by the Government because of appreciation of those assets or, more important, because of inflation. One-third of the capital gains available today under this tax package goes to seniors. So the DASCHLE bill is an antisenior bill. A clear understanding of capital gains will demonstrate that.

The changes in inheritance tax don't go to the rich, they go to the farmer who has been working on his land for his entire lifetime and would like to leave it to his children. They go to the small business owner who maybe started in his basement or garage and built up his business to a certain degree of asset level only for his family to see it taxed away and sold when that taxpayer dies, instead of passing on to his children. It goes to a large percentage of people who have every right to claim those assets. To suggest that we need an income redistribution, above what we already have, I think is a disservice. So I am in strong support of the Senator's position in opposition to Senator DASCHLE's proposal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, how much time do we have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico controls 9 minutes and 30 seconds.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 4 minutes to Senator CHAFEE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized for 4 minutes.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I wish to take a few minutes this afternoon to urge support for the tax bill reported out of the Finance Committee last week, and the bill that is before us today. Obviously I am not referring to the substitute, I am talking to the basic bill that came out of the Finance Committee with the support of 18 members in that committee.

That vote, 18 to 2 in the committee, more than anything else is a clear indication of the bipartisan process in which the chairman of the Finance Committee crafted the legislation. Others have talked about the major provisions of this bill, all of which are extremely important. I would just like to touch on some lesser known provisions, if I might, briefly.

The bill before us includes a permanent extension of the orphan drug credit. This provision encourages drug companies to conduct clinical research on rare, what they call orphan diseases, diseases that do not occur very often and thus there is not a large market for the drugs that are produced to care for that particular situation. Drug companies are reluctant to risk the investment or research dollars with such a small patient population, as, for example, exists for cystic fibrosis or hemophilia or Lou Gehrig's disease or Tourette's syndrome. This bill encourages and provides tax credits for those drug companies that spend the research money in these particular areas.

The bill also includes an extension of the work opportunity tax credit, which is an important tool to encourage businesses to hire individuals on public assistance. We passed, last year, the Welfare Reform Act. We want opportunities for those coming off welfare to find a job. The work opportunity tax credit does this. Currently, under the law, it is required that the individual work 400 hours in a job before the tax credit is available to his employer. Under this legislation, the 400 hours is reduced to 120 hours—with a reduced credit, but nonetheless something that will encourage employers to hire these individuals.

Another provision that is included in this particular section says that the work opportunity tax credit extends to disabled individuals, those receiving SSI benefits. This is a separate group from those coming off from welfare.

Another provision in the bill, which I think is very significant, small though it is, is the estate tax incentive for the preservation of open space. America is losing 4 square miles a day to development, 4 square miles. In my State, over 11,000 acres of farmland have been lost to development since 1974. It is a small State. Think of that, 11,000 acres gone to development from farmland. What this does is provide that those individuals who currently, if they keep their open spaces, are subject to stiff estate taxes—thus either they have to go into development to pay the taxes or, when they have to, sell it to developers—this provides a lower estate tax for land, as long as the owner is willing to keep the land undeveloped in perpetuity. In other words, he has to sign a conservation easement, keeping the land open in perpetuity, so there will be some open spaces around our major cities, places where there can be habitat for wildlife and plants and fish. This is a very, very significant piece, this section that is in the bill, that Senator ROTH was good enough to give us leadership on.

Mr. President, I yield to the chairman the remainder of my time.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, how much time do I have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 5½ minutes.

Mr. ROTH. I yield the remaining time I have to the distinguished Senator from North Carolina.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina is recognized.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Thank you, Mr. President. How much time do I have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HUTCHINSON). The Senator has 5 minutes, 18 seconds.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I rise in strong opposition to the tobacco tax in this revenue bill. I am also troubled by this amendment to further increase tobacco tax. Make no mistake, these are flat-tax increases, plain and simple. This is no extension or loophole closure, it is a tax increase. That is what it is.

I didn't think that we were here to raise taxes on American families. I didn't think we were here for that purpose, but, obviously, that is what we have done.

The tobacco tax is the most regressive tax on the books today. We will drive up taxes on the working people more than anything, up to $100 or more per year.

The people who earn $30,000 a year pay 1.2 percent of the income tax in this country, but the people who earn $30,000 a year pay 47.2 percent of the tobacco tax. It is the most regressive tax on the books.

I find it a bit odd that some of the big tobacco tax supporters are the same people preaching the need for greater equality in the tax relief package. You just cannot have it both ways.

Mr. President, I say to my colleagues, is your talk about tax fairness anything more than talk? Is it airy persiflage, or do you mean what you are saying? Would you come to the floor to defeat a tax increase on the common man who smokes?

This bill raises tobacco taxes by 20 cents a pack. The DURBIN amendment would raise taxes by 10 cents a pack. This will hurt the 18,000 tobacco farmers in North Carolina and thousands more throughout the Southeast. It will cost them, literally, their jobs and their livelihood. Sure, it will let politicians tell the news media that we really took a shot at ''Big Tobacco.'' Well, ''Big Tobacco'' can look after itself, but the people who are growing it, the farmers, who they are really taking a shot at, cannot. The companies will not be bothered by this. The people who are going to be hurt are farmers, families, and communities.

It will hurt the 77,000 working people in North Carolina who grow tobacco and manufacture cigarettes. Just the tobacco sales bring in over $1 billion in cash receipts to the farmers of my State. The entire tobacco sector employs 150,000 people. It is a $7 billion business in North Carolina alone.

These are the fundamental core people of this State—hard-working men, women, and their families. Can you imagine the joy that they expressed when I went home and told them that they were going to be thrown out of business but that we had cut the cost of international air travel? Tobacco pays the mortgages, the grocery bills, and sends the children to college. These people don't do international air travel. Tobacco builds and has built the hospitals, it builds the churches, and it builds entire towns and communities.

So, Mr. President, you be the judge. Is to say the tobacco tax is about politics not correct?

The other side points to this tax and says this is about children's health insurance. They say it is about underage smoking, and they say it is about changing people's behavior.

But it is not about children's health insurance. The settlement that the tobacco industry just signed clearly addresses this issue. There is $18.5 billion over 6 years for children's health insurance in the settlement that is now working its way through the process. The tobacco companies have already signed on the dotted line that they will pay into a fund for children's health insurance. There is already $16 billion in the bill for children's health insurance, and now we are going to vote another $8 billion for children's health insurance when the President only asked for $8 billion in the original bill and said that would be enough. Now we are going to $24 billion, and he only asked for $8 billion. I have never known him to ask for too little.

It is not about underage smoking. The industry just agreed to a sweeping package of changes to prevent underage smoking. The agreement virtually bans all advertising. The industry even agreed to massive fines if underage smoking did not drop drastically over the next 8 years. I don't know how they are going to stop people from smoking, but that we will have to work on when it gets here.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 2 additional minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The manager may yield time off the bill. All time on the amendment has expired.

Mr. ROTH. I yield 2 minutes off the bill.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, if this were it, the bill would include favors for a variety of special interests. The liquor tax would get special breaks, even skydiving would get a special break. No, no one ever caused an accident on the road after a night of smoking, and I never heard anyone being attacked after a cigarette binge.

My point is, this bill isn't about public health, it is about the easy politics of attacking tobacco. The politics may be easy for Senators outside the Southeast, and particularly North Carolina, but this point reaches beyond politics. It reaches to the men and women in North Carolina and throughout the Southeast, hard-working people wondering why the U.S. Congress and their elected representatives are determined to throw them out of business and out of a job.

Everyone in Washington talks about the small farmer. We hear it daily. North Carolina is made up of small farms. The size of an average U.S. farm is over 450 acres, and in North Carolina, it is around 150 acres. We are small farms.

Tobacco pays the bills. An acre of tobacco will yield roughly $1,200 a year in net profit. Nothing else compares, and there really isn't anything else they can grow that begins to fit into the pattern and growth and lifestyle of the area.

Tobacco keeps eastern North Carolina and Southeastern United States farmers on the land, and that is the simple bottom truth line. Tobacco keeps the family on the family farm. Washington politicians are driving families off the farm just to score political points back home.

I want every Senator to understand what this tobacco tax means to real people. These farmers have names. They are good people. They are sending their children to school, and they are being driven out of a job to score political points. I hope that all Senators think about the people and the jobs that they are destroying when they next take a vote on a tobacco tax.

And another question, who is next on the hit list from the tax increase crowd? Tobacco today, tomorrow who knows what product they have decided to tax out of existence. I hope my colleagues will vote against any other tax increase. It is time to stand up for the people who are in the business working for families. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time on the amendment has expired.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield the distinguished Senator from Louisiana such time as he may require from the bill.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I thank the ranking member. I won't be that long. I rise to commend the Democratic leader on our side, Senator DASCHLE, and others who have put together a major effort in trying to offer a package of democratically oriented tax cuts which, in great sincerity, many, many people feel would be, by far, the better way to proceed—a more balanced, more honest package of tax cuts and how those tax cuts should apply to society.

I think that what he is offering is yeoman's work in terms of fairness and making sure that if there is going to be a tax cut, people who need them the most will benefit the most from those tax cuts.

While I praise my Democratic leader, I rise to say that I will not be able to support that package when it is called to be voted. I say that because we do not live in a perfect world. Neither is the Congress a perfect place. Neither is the Finance Committee a perfect group of individuals who have the wisdom of Solomon to craft a perfect bill. But what we have crafted in the Senate Finance Committee, because of the work of both Democrats and Republicans working together, I think is a package that merits our support.

It is a better package from many perspectives, but let me concentrate just on the Democratic perspective of why the bill, in fact, is better than when it started.

First of all, there is $24 billion more money which is directed at children for health care, for young children who today do not have health care. That is a major, significant achievement. That was achieved in a bipartisan fashion with major input from Democrats who insisted that whatever money we are able to generate should be used for children who need help and need assistance. That is in this package which is before us today.

There is $8 billion of additional assistance that was achieved because, in a bipartisan fashion, we agreed to raise the cigarette tax on tobacco products and use a portion of those revenues for insuring the most vulnerable among us, the children, for one of the most important things that we can help children with, and that is their health care, both now and in the future. That is the result of a bipartisan working arrangement in the Senate Finance Committee.

In addition, I think that we have taken what was originally a Republican proposal to give everybody a $500-per-child tax credit that you could use for whatever purpose. You could use it to take care of your children, but you could also use it to buy alcohol, you could use it to go to the racetrack, you could use it for whatever purpose. In a bipartisan fashion, we worked to craft an amendment that said you will have these additional tax credits if you use a portion of it to educate your children. I suggest that there is not a better thing that we can do for families with children than to help those parents educate those children for the future so they can be successful members of our society.

We, as Democrats, I think, argued against indexing of capital gains saying we can't afford it. Let's take a capital gains reduction, we hope it will increase jobs and increase expansion in business, but also don't take the next step of indexing it. Because of working it in a bipartisan fashion, that in fact is in the bill.

Again, working in a bipartisan fashion, we made some tough decisions on Medicare and Medicaid, as a result of what we did, to try and bring about competition, to try and say we will make the tough decisions now and no longer will we have to say to people who tell us to fix Medicare, no longer will we say not now, not with us and not with this program. We have taken the tough decisions, and we have accepted them. When people say fix Medicare, this Finance Committee can say that we did what was necessary when we were called upon to make those decisions.

So I think as you look at the total package, it is better than when it started. I, for one, as a person who participated in that process would feel less than totally honest if I was able to get the things that make it better in the package, and then when it came to vote for that package, walk away and say, ''No, I am going to vote for something else.'' That is not, I think, the way things should operate in a democratically elected body which is a divided Government. But while we have a divided Government, we do not have a divided Finance Committee. I think because of that bipartisan spirit and what we were able to do, today we have a better package before us.

Again, I commend our Democratic leader for offering something that I think if we were in control would be the bill that would be before this committee. But that is not the case. But what is the case is a fairly arrived at package that makes this bill much better. I think it deserves our support.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Well said.

Mr. BREAUX. I yield the floor.

Mr. DASCHLE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. I will use my leader time, whatever time I may consume, to close the debate on the amendment.

I think it has been a good debate. We have had the opportunity to exchange views. I think perhaps there has been some misinformation about what the amendment does and does not do. I have heard that it is antisenior. I have heard that it raises taxes. There are a lot of concerns that perhaps at times like this we ought to spend time rebutting, but let me just get down to the basics.

The basics are that we want to provide as much help to middle-class families as we can. We want to provide as much growth and opportunity for expansion to startup companies, to companies that really need the help as we can.

Our view is that those companies that are in the multi-multibillion-dollar category, multinational companies that have extraordinary assets ought to be viewed differently than those companies that are just beginning, those startup companies that need all the help they can get to be able to survive and compete. We want to help those. We realize that our resources are not unlimited. So if they are not unlimited, we have to target the best we can those companies that indeed need the greatest degree of assistance.

We provide that in capital gains. We provide that in a number of investment incentives that allow those companies the opportunity to do all the things that they can to be competitive, be the next Microsoft or the next IBM.

Third, we feel it is as important as anything we do in this bill to target as many of our resources to education as possible.

And fourth, we want to do it in a fiscally responsible way. We are very concerned about the tax time bomb that could occur in 10 or 15 years, as we watch this explosion with great dismay, having worked so hard now to balance the budget and to bring this budget into balance within the next couple of years.

So, Mr. President, that is what we do, those four things. We provide more targeted assistance to those families who need it the most. I respect immensely the work done in the Senate Finance Committee. I respect the effort made in particular by the chairman and the ranking member in working in a bipartisan way. I respect Members who have made decisions on either side of this amendment for whatever agreements may have been consummated and the interpretation of the agreement as it relates to this amendment. I respect that.

I intend to vote, if we are not successful with this amendment, for the final package. But I do believe we can do better. I believe that when we provide 65 percent of the benefits to the highest 20 percent of incomes in this country, we can do better in distributing benefits across the board more effectively. I believe that our bill, which provides 75 percent of the benefits to the 60 percent in the middle, does a better job of using limited resources where they can do the most good.

Mr. President, that is what this amendment does. That is why I feel so enthusiastic about supporting it. That is why I am hopeful we can get a good vote this afternoon.

I yield the floor and ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question occurs on agreeing to the amendment No. 527 offered by the Democratic leader. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Kansas [Mr. ROBERTS] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

NOT VOTING—1

Roberts

The amendment (No. 527) was rejected.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. CHAFEE. I move to lay it on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 520, AS AMENDED

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask that the Senate now resume consideration of amendment No. 520, the committee amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right. The pending amendment now is amendment No. 520.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, this amendment includes the $8 billion additional funds for the children's health initiative. As we have discussed earlier, the children's health initiative is a critical piece of the legislation before the Senate. Members on both sides of the aisle, both ends of the political spectrum, and everyone in between are committed to addressing the issue of reaching our Nation's children.

Each morning, more than 10 million children wake to face a day without health insurance. Clearly, this situation has weighed heavily upon us.

Throughout the first quarter of the 105th session of Congress, a number of Members have contributed to various proposals for reaching these children. I thank all my colleagues for their hard work and effort. At this hour, we have now reached a bipartisan agreement on the structure of how to help the States reach more of these uninsured children. Now that we have a structure, we must also ensure that it is adequately funded.

The committee amendment will provide an additional $8 billion for the children's health initiative, will secure that final necessary piece to make this bipartisan agreement work. Some Members may argue that $16 billion is too much money for the children's health initiative. Other Members will argue that $24 billion is not enough. The Finance Committee, which has carefully considered this issue, has agreed on a bipartisan basis that it is just right, and with this committee amendment we will inject $24 billion into reaching the goal of providing health insurance to more children.

Let me remind my colleagues that the States will also be required to provide matching funds. So the total amount will rise even higher. Of the 10 million children without health insurance, about 60 percent are either eligible to be enrolled into the Medicaid Program or they live in families with incomes about 250 percent of the poverty level. For a family of four, that is more than $40,000.

We do not, of course, want to displace the role of the private sector in providing health insurance for children. So this new initiative is really meant to be targeted for those approximately 3.8 million children who live in families who earn too much to qualify for Medicaid but not enough to pay for private insurance. The committee amendment will ensure that there are sufficient funds to meet the goal of reaching these children, and I urge all of my colleagues to support the Finance Committee provisions on this critical issue.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, in brief, sir, in the history of child health care, in the U.S. Congress there has been no measure equivalent in size and range to the measure the distinguished chairman brings before you. We spent much of the 103d Congress on this subject and did not add a penny to child health care. In 2 days, the Finance Committee added $24 billion, which we bring to you in this amendment, which I am sure will be supported on both sides.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield for a question? Will the chairman yield for a question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware controls the time.

Mr. ROTH. I am happy to yield for a question.

Mr. KENNEDY. Thank you very much. As I understand it, by accepting this proposal, the cigarette tax, which will be used to fund the Hatch proposal on child care, will actually terminate as a funding stream 5 years from now, and the revenues that will be raised by that tax will be used to offset the increased expenditures in the IRA's—just so that we all have an understanding of the final decision made by the Finance Committee.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I say to my distinguished friend and colleague that the cigarette tax is permanent; it is not limited to 5 years.

Mr. KENNEDY. But the funding stream for the Hatch proposal——

Mr. ROTH. The funding stream is a 5-year plan.

Mr. KENNEDY. At the end of the 5 years, the funds that would be provided by the tobacco tax will be terminated for the children's health insurance proposal. So, effectively, we are saying to the States, as I understand it, that they are going to get a funding stream for 5 years. At the end of that, at least in this proposal, there will be no further funding.

Mr. ROTH. I will yield to the distinguished Senator from Utah to comment on that.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I will respond to my colleague from Massachusetts. Because of the unique situation in which we were able to add this spending provision to the tax bill, this is the way it is written.

Mr. ROTH. I point out that the tobacco tax was for all purposes in the bill, not just for the children's health insurance.

Mr. KENNEDY. Well, I thank the Senators. As I understand it, then, the tax will be permanent, but those revenue streams that will fund the children's health insurance—the $8 million—will terminate after 5 years, and those revenues that would be created by the cigarette tax will be used for the offset, either on the IRA's, or the capital gains, or the estate taxes. I think I understand it correctly.

Mr. ROTH. I point out that what we have here is a 5-year plan, as I think was originally the case for the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts. Obviously, the plan can be renewed at the end of the 5 years.

Mr. KENNEDY. I just wanted to clarify the limitations on this funding stream. But I am grateful for the chairman's answer.

Mr. ROTH. I yield to the Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. The original Hatch-Kennedy bill proposed a $20 billion health insurance program for children, plus it contributed $10 billion for deficit reduction. It was a 5-year authorization. Both of the sponsors assumed—and I believe properly so—that this program will work well, that children will benefit from it, and that it will be reauthorized at the end of 5 years. I have no doubt that is the case here as well.

But the provision the Finance Committee adopted continues the tax beyond the 5-year period, and the revenues may be used for other purposes.

To be clear, I assure my colleague from Massachusetts that, should this program work well, we will be revisiting it in 5 years.

And there is an additional point I wish to make for those of my colleagues who believe the additional funding is not needed. It seems fairly clear that the $24 billion, as important a sum as it is, will not cover all of the 10 million children who lack insurance. If we are very, very lucky, or if the Congressional Budget Office is smiling on us that day, it will cover at most about 8 million children. These figures are obviously subject to the way the States craft their programs, their cost-sharing requirements, and whether the States choose block grants or Medicaid.

For example, if all of the States chose Medicaid, which I do not believe would happen based on conversations I have had with Governors, I estimate that the most children we could cover with the $24 billion is around 5 million.

The other point I feel compelled to raise is that the CBO estimates are coming in very meager. I am not sure why, but they have been consistently scoring the major children's health proposals as helping very few children.

For example, I am told their preliminary estimate for the CHIPS proposal was that it would cover 2 million kids. Their initial estimate on the House-passed block grant was that it would help around 500,000 children, although that was later revised to 860,000.

As a simple gauge, I use the figure of $1,000 per child to measure coverage. This is more than the Federal share of an average Medicaid child, and equal to or slightly less than the average high-quality group health plan. This is also the rough measure that Dr. Bruce Vladeck at HCFA uses.

Based on that rough calculation, $24 billion over 5 years would cover just short of 5 million kids per year. That assumes that the funding were equal each year, and it assumes that there would be absolutely no inflation.

But to those who express concern about the shelf-life of the $8 billion figure we are considering today, the bottom line is that we are going to see how this program works.

I assure my friend and colleague and partner on this effort, a legislator who has been a tireless advocate for children for decades, that if this program works and it is benefiting children, we are going to reauthorize it five years from now.

It is that simple. I give my assurances that I intend to do everything in my power to live up to that promise. And I hope that our colleagues will support that.

This particular amendment has been brought up separately—not as part of the overall bill—because it is a spending amendment on the tax bill.

Because a point of order has been lodged, we need 60 votes in order to retain my provision in the bill.

I believe I am not overstating it—and I would like my colleagues to correct me if I am wrong—when I say that resolution of this issue as part of the total tax spending package was the critical juncture in bringing us together in the Finance Committee. That is a key reason why we have had so much support on both sides of the aisle.

So, it is critical that we pass this as part of the overall plan. I hope our colleagues will take that into consideration.

The tobacco tax is considerably less than that embodied in the Hatch-Kennedy bill, S. 526. But because of the $16 billion already in the spending bill we passed last night—which most would agree was placed there largely in response to the original Hatch-Kennedy filing—and because of the $8 billion we are adding today, we should have an adequate amount to take care of a substantial number of uninsured children in the foreseeable future.

If we approve this proposal and then retain the full $24 billion in the final conference agreement that is signed by the President, it would be a terrific thing for our society.

Adoption of this amendment can only help bring a larger bipartisan vote on the tax bill. And, in the end, I think we could all walk away feeling that we had accomplished the most significant advance in children's health for decades.

I yield at this point.

Mr. CHAFEE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island is recognized.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, this is a very important measure that the distinguished chairman of the Finance Committee is advancing here this evening. What we are doing is, as he mentioned, our very best to care for the maximum number of low-income children with health care. There is a prescribed or suggested package of benefits that includes eyeglasses and hearing aids for these children from very, very low-income families. So, Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to support this measure.

I want to commend the chairman of the Finance Committee, the distinguished Senator from Utah, and, of course, the ranking member, Senator MOYNIHAN, for everything they have done to advance this proposal.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I am certainly going to support the proposal that is recommended by the committee itself. I want to commend my friend and colleague, Senator HATCH, for his perseverance and persistence and tough-mindedness in moving us as far down the road as we are. But I think we are receiving numbers, even as we are here, about those that will be covered and, also, for example, by CBO—the number that they believe will be covered is considerably less than has been estimated by the Finance Committee.

It just seems to me that the great concerns that have been so well-articulated by the chairman of the committee and my friend and colleague from New York, Senator MOYNIHAN, Senator CHAFEE, and Senator HATCH, about the numbers of uninsured, and the fact that they are at the margin in terms of their income, being able to have to provide approximately after-tax income of almost maybe $800 or so, in that range, it is still a very heavy burden. I certainly hope that we can find—with the strong health implications of raising the tobacco tax and the importance of this particular national need, we welcome the fact that now it is an accepted Senate position that we are going to have a 20-cent increase, but that we can get about the business of assuring that all of those children are going to be covered. So I want to thank those Senators, Senator HATCH in particular and our other colleagues, for being willing to accept the concept and framework of the Hatch proposal. I also indicate that I think we have an opportunity to take care of the other remaining uninsured children. I don't know why we would take care of one child and not take care of another when they are all basically the sons and daughters of working families.

So I hope the Senate will accept this proposal. I want to make it very clear that we are preserving our right to make sure we are going to get coverage for the other children as well.

Mr. ROTH. I yield 3 minutes to the Senator from West Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I thank both my ranking leader and the chairman of the committee. I say to my good friend, Senator KENNEDY from Massachusetts, that having witnessed this process, Senator HATCH fought like a tiger, would not yield in very close quarters, in order to get the additional $8 billion added on for children's health insurance, along with Senator CHAFEE, myself, and others. I think that ought to be very clear.

As Senator CHAFEE said when Senator CHAFEE and this Senator's bill failed, we managed to raise the standards of the bill to pass to such a degree to being very effective. As for not covering all children, that will be a matter of debate because of the uninsured already eligible and how to get to them.

I urge support of the committee amendment.

Mr. MOYNIHAN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New York is recognized.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, this is one of the finest moments the 105th Congress will know. It could not have come about without the courage and the conviction of the Senator from Utah. I would like to affirm everything he has said about the support on both sides of the aisle. It would be nice to have a unanimous vote. Let us hope we do have that, or near thereto.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I would like to contribute regarding the work that the Senator from West Virginia did. But for the groundwork he laid in connection with what type of benefits there would be, what kind of assurances there would be for these children, I don't think we would be where we are.

So I want to pay tribute to the Senator from West Virginia.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Utah.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, this morning we started the first of a series of hearings in the Judiciary Committee on the tobacco global settlement. I have to say that the funding for this $8 billion, as well as a number of other provisions that will be in the tax bill, happens to come from the 20-cent-per-pack tax on cigarettes.

The reason that Senator KENNEDY and I originally put into our original bill a 43-cent tax on cigarettes is because tobacco is the number one preventable cause of death in this country today.

It is particularly important in this instance because of these 10 million children who are without health insurance, 5 million of them it is estimated will ultimately wind up smoking if we do not find some way to make smoking less attractive for them. It is also a proven fact that every time smoking goes up 10 percent in cost that 7 percent of these kids will never attempt to smoke, which is a very wise thing here. It is a spinoff benefit that we get in adding the cigarette tax.

I might also add that 50 percent of all smokers began before the age of 14, and 90 percent began before the age of 18.

So this particular amendment and this particular aspect of this particular bill has many, many good reasons for its adoption.

I hope our colleagues will support this because I think it is critical, and I think my colleagues on both sides who are really familiar with this will say that it is critical in the overall binding together in a bipartisan way of Democrats and Republicans in the best interest of our country and in support of these major, major two pieces of reconciliation legislation.

If you stop and think about it, this is one of the most just taxes that we have ever passed, and we have limited it to 20 cents rather than 43 cents. The advantage of that is that we will raise enough money to help not only children but help with some other serious problems on the committee.

It was a very difficult discussion because we always have revenue-raising problems, we always have offset problems, and we always have problems of differences on the Finance Committee. But here basically everybody was brought together. Ultimately this side of the equation passed 18 to 2. The spending side passed 20 to zero.

I hope our colleagues will support this amendment because it is critical to the overall passage of this matter.

It is also critical to these children. I don't know of a better thing we can do. We spend an awful lot of time around here doing an awful lot of good for people who can't help themselves, and here is a case where we have children 90 percent of whom live in families with at least one parent who works who can't help themselves but would if they could. This is the way to solve that.

It is a reasonable compromise. It is something that will work. It gets enough money out there in comparison to Hatch-Kennedy that I think it will work. It does it in a thrifty savings way.

I want to personally compliment the chairman and the ranking member of this committee and other members of this committee for their willingness to see through the solution of these problems with this amendment. I hope my colleagues on our side will support this amendment. I hope our colleagues on the Democrat side will support it because in doing so we will be pushing this process greatly forward.

I thank all of those who have participated and who will participate in helping us to do so.

I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, why do we need 8 billion on top of the 16 billion already appropriated?

We learned earlier that the House Commerce block grant may be scored as reaching only 860,000 uninsured children. I understand that this is a complicated matter because some funds will be used for direct services and not to purchase insurance. But it just shows you that this whole area is not cheap.

We heard from Bruce Vladeck it costs about $1,000 or so for a good, solid insurance policy. We also know that the Federal share of Medicaid this year averages about $860 per child.

In the first year of the CHILD Program there will be an even 50/50 split between health care and deficit reduction so that $3 billion will be used for program costs. In year five, this program component will grow to $5 billion.

Using these numbers as a guide, it seems reasonable to expect that, depending a great deal how states chose to implement this program that our bill will be able to cover about 3.5 million or so children in the early years of the program and about 5 million children in the fifth year.

There are many variables such as which States chose to participate, what their State matching requirement is, what coinsurance and copayments they require, and so on. We must also take into account inflation which will erode the purchasing power of the yearly allocation.

Another way to look at the problem is to see how many children the $16 billion in the budget agreement could cover. This $16 billion amounts to an average of $3.2 billion per year. If we used all of this money to buy Medicaid coverage at $860 per child, it would cover about 3.7 million children.

This would still leave 1 million children under 125% of poverty with no health insurance.

Twenty-four billion dollars is about $4.8 billion per year spread over 5 years.

Depending on how States implement the program, cost-sharing requirements and so forth, I think that would cover between 5 and 6.5 million, perhaps 7 million children.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HUTCHISON). Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Madam President, I don't see anyone requiring further time to debate this issue.

So I yield whatever time I have remaining.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Is all time yielded?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has been yielded.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I raise the point of order under section 302(f) of the Budget Act that amendment No. 520 results in the Finance Committee exceeding its spending allocations under section 602(a) of the Budget Act.

Mr. ROTH. Madam President, I move to waive all points of order against the committee amendment language for consideration of this provision now, and also for the language, if included at later stages, of the revenue reconciliation process such as in a conference report.

Mr. McCONNELL. Madam President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

Mr. ROTH. I would say to the distinguished Senator from Illinois that we want to move ahead on a few amendments that I had mentioned here on a unanimous-consent basis. We will discuss with the Senator later his amendment.

Mr. DURBIN. Do I have the chairman's assurance that this amendment will be protected, there will be time for debate on it this evening?

Mr. ROTH. Yes. There will be time to debate it this evening. That is correct.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 520, AS AMENDED

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. ROTH. I believe the distinguished Senator from New York would like us to go into morning business.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Could we have 10 minutes for morning business, that we might discuss a momentous decision or nondecision by the Supreme Court this morning?

Mr. ROTH. I so move, Madam President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. We are in 10 minutes of morning business.

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia is recognized.

RAINES V. BYRD

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, earlier today, in a seven-to-two decision, the United States Supreme Court ruled that Members of Congress do not have the requisite constitutional standing necessary to challenge the Line Item Veto Act.

That decision overturns the April 10 ruling of the U.S. District Court, which held that the Act does, indeed, injure Members sufficiently to confer standing. Moreover, having granted standing, the District Court went on to conclude that the Act was an unconstitutional delegation of Congress' Article I lawmaking power.

As the Senator whose name titles today's decision—Raines v. Byrd—I am obviously disappointed that a majority of the Supreme Court denied standing to Members of Congress. However, I remain mindful of the fact that the most important decision in this matter lies ahead. In the meantime, I am somewhat heartened by the fact that at least one member of the Court was willing to consider the merits of our argument. In what I believe will be a vindicated position, Justice John Paul Stephens wrote that ''. . . the same reason that the [Members] have standing provides a sufficient basis for concluding that the statute is unconstitutional.''

Madam President, let me take this opportunity to personally thank two groups of individuals who, I know, share my concern with the Court's decision.

First, I wish to thank my Senate colleagues—Senator MOYNIHAN, Senator LEVIN, and former Senator Hatfield—for their support, their wisdom, and their counsel throughout this process. Although this has been a collaborative effort, I, for one, have valued their contributions. And there were two Members of the other body who, likewise, joined us—Mr. SKAGGS and Mr. WAXMAN. Of course, I would be remiss if I did not acknowledge the absolutly stellar legal work provided to us by Lloyd Cutler, Louis Cohen, Alan Morrison, Charles Cooper, and Michael Davidson. Despite the temporary setback, I am convinced that no other group of attorneys could have provided us with better, or more sound, advice.

Finally, be assured that there will come a time when a State or locality, or an individual or group of individuals, will feel the brunt of the misguided legislative gimmick called the line-item veto, and will seek judicial relief. When that time comes, I will stand ready at the helm to support that effort.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Madam President, it is characteristic of our beloved former President pro tempore to thank others for the efforts that have led to the Court's nondecision today. Might I take the opportunity to thank him. It is his magisterial understanding of the Constitution and his Olympian commitment to it that brought us together, and brought to us the finest legal minds of this time to prepare the briefs that first won hands down in the U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia, and now have been put aside by the Court, but only temporarily. I think it would be not inappropriate to note that one judge and one Justice have spoken to this subject, and in both cases they have spoken to the unconstitutional nature of the act.

I ask the Senate if I might just indulge to read a paragraph from Justice Stevens' dissenting opinion this morning. He says:

> The Line Item Veto Act purports to establish a procedure for the creation of laws that are truncated versions of bills that have been passed by the Congress and presented to the President for signature. If the procedure were valid, it would deny every Senator and every Representative any opportunity to vote for or against the truncated measure that survives the exercise of the President's cancellation authority. Because the opportunity to cast such votes is a right guaranteed by the text of the Constitution, I think it is clear that the persons who are deprived of that right by the Act have standing to challenge its constitutionality. Moreover, because the impairment of that constitutional right has an immediate impact on their official powers, in my judgment they need not wait until after cancellation authority to bring suit. Finally, the same reason that the respondents have standing provides a sufficient basis for concluding that the statute is unconstitutional.

Madam President, I thank you for your indulgence. I think we may have overrun by a moment or two. I most appreciate that.

Again, our appreciation to Senator BYRD. I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI. Has all time expired?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are approximately 3 minutes left in morning business.

Mr. TORRICELLI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

PRAISE FOR SENATOR BYRD

Mr. TORRICELLI. Madam President, I, too, would like to join in words of praise for Senator BYRD. Every Member of this institution knows the Senate of the United States has no finer scholar nor better defender of the U.S. Constitution than the Senator from West Virginia. I share his disappointment in the decision of the Court today that standing does not rest with Members of Congress. But, indeed, as Senator MOYNIHAN noted, this is not only not a defeat, it is not even a retreat. The only two judges who were to consider this matter on its merits have reached the inescapable conclusion that by statute the Congress of the United States cannot rearrange basic constitutional powers as contained in the Constitution itself.

There will be another day with other parties who will bring this matter before the Court on its merits. And on that date, this Court will again, as it has on so many occasions, preserve the basic structure of the U.S. Government as contained in the Constitution. On that day, Senator BYRD will have his victory. It is postponed, it is delayed, but it will not be denied.

I once again offer my congratulations to the Senator from West Virginia on what will be his ultimate victory.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD. Madam President, I thank the Honorable Senator for his gracious remarks.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there anyone wishing to speak in morning business? If not, morning business is closed.

REVENUE RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1997

AMENDMENT NO. 537

(Purpose: To implement the enforcement provisions of the Bipartisan Budget Agreement, enforce the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, extend the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990 through fiscal year 2002, and make technical and conforming changes to the Congressional Budget and Impoundment Control Act of 1974 and the Balanced and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985)

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized for an amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, I believe it is my turn to offer an amendment. I am going to offer an amendment on behalf of myself and Senator LAUTENBERG of the State of New Jersey.

Before I send the amendment to the desk, let me just talk a little bit about what I am trying to do. In the agreement reached with the White House, on the very last page of it, the White House, members from both sides, and the House, agreed that we would, as part of enforcing this 5-year budget, that we would extend and revise the discretionary caps for 1998 to 2002 at agreed levels shown in tables included in the agreement, and to extend the current law of sequester, which had its early origins in T. Gramm–Rudman-Hollings.

We also agreed within the discretionary caps we would establish what we call firewalls. They have been in existence for some time. We struck a compromise and said for now we would only extend them for 2 years instead of for the entire agreement, meaning we will have to bring those up in about a year, but we will have an opportunity on the next budget resolution, or the one after that, for those who want to extend it beyond that time, and I do.

We also agreed, and I want everybody to understand this one, to return to current law on separate crime caps at levels shown in the agreed tables. That has to do with a matter that is of real importance to Senator BYRD, Senator BIDEN, and the distinguished Senator from Texas, Senator GRAMM. That is an extension of the trust fund for crime prevention, to fight crime, which was established here in the Senate when Senator GRAMM on one day sought to use up the savings attributable to a reduced workforce, as I recall, and then said in that, if we are going to save the money, we ought to spend it for something everybody understands and would be worthwhile.

That trust fund then came into being with the amendment of the Senator from Texas, supported by Senator BYRD and others. Now, that law expires in 2 years, but we agreed in the sessions with the White House and the leadership that we would extend the trust fund within the caps for the 2 remaining years of that law, meaning 1998 and 1999, after which the Congress is free to pass a new law on the trust fund or whatever they would like with reference to the trust fund.

But I think it is clear that without a new law, since that is a trust fund, you couldn't just continue to appropriate, and the trust fund is a fund set aside within the caps and getting the highest priority because it is already there in trust.

We agreed to four or five other things that are less important, and then we agreed to extend the pay-go, pay-as-you-go provisions which had heretofore been adopted and become part of the Senate's working process from the year 1990. Those pay-go provisions essentially said, if you are going to raise entitlement spending, you must offset it with entitlement cuts or tax increases. If you are going to cut taxes, you must offset that with entitlement cuts and vice versa.

We have in this amendment done all of those things. The distinguished Senator from New Jersey, who was part of the agreement and also my ranking member on the Budget Committee, joins me in sending a Domenici-Lautenberg amendment to the desk on this matter, and we ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Mexico [Mr. DOMENICI], for himself and Mr. LAUTENBERG, proposes an amendment numbered 537.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under ''Amendments Submitted.'')

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I want the Senate to know that this amendment is subject to a point of order, and I won't wait around for a point of order. I want the Senate to know that I am fully aware that this amendment is subject to a point of order, because it is obviously not part of deficit reduction. I am fully aware that a point of order could be made. I knew that from the beginning, and we knew that when we discussed extending this and putting in the caps for 5 years, which is the only way to enforce the discretionary savings in this budget. So I won't wait for a point of order. When the time is expired, I myself will move to waive the Budget Act in order to allow this legislation to be considered on this bill.

I say to my fellow Senators, there are many process amendments around. When the Senator from New Mexico said I would not offer this on the first bill, about 12 amendments came tumbling down because they are all waiting for process reform. Some of those amendments I would sympathize with, others I would not, which is not necessarily very relevant. But I must make a point of order on each and every one of those, if the sponsors do not, that they, too, will take 60 votes, unless somebody has some magical way—and maybe Senator GRAMM will try a magical way, maybe he won't—to try to get these amendments in at 50 votes. But I think everybody who wants to do these kinds of process changes ought to get 60 votes or they ought not get it done. That will be applying the law to everybody who wants to change our processes.

I hope everybody knows we could be here for the entire remainder of this bill if everybody who has a process change intends to offer it.

I will use no more time other than to shortly yield to Senator LAUTENBERG with reference to the amendment which he cosponsors. But let me make it very simple, if we do not adopt this amendment, or something like it, there is no way of enforcing the 5-year caps on appropriations. This was a three-legged stool. We get savings on the caps on appropriations, we get savings in entitlements, and we would do that sufficient to allow for a $85 billion tax cut, the third leg. There will be no enforcement of the appropriations total accounts that they can spend, and there will be no firewall between defense if we don't adopt something like this amendment.

I think it is properly drawn, and I hope that we can adopt it later on this evening when the debate is finished.

I yield the floor to Senator LAUTENBERG.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Madam President, I join with Senator DOMENICI in offering the amendment. It implements a provision in the bipartisan budget agreement that relates to the budget process. Without the support that comes from this, I think the work that had been done would be relatively penetrable in so many ways that we would not be able to come up with the final target that we are shooting for, and that is to make certain that we have the deficit down to zero at the end of 2002, and then we have preserved the caps that were placed there to achieve that objective.

The amendment extends several provisions in the Budget Enforcement Act that otherwise will expire and preserves the existing system for enforcing the fiscal policies established by the Congress.

Madam President, current law establishes an overall cap on the amount of spending that Congress can appropriate each year, but discretionary spending—I am referring to the programs appropriated annually by the Congress, including the entire gamut of Federal Departments and Agencies and most of their day-to-day operations. By contrast, discretionary spending does not include entitlement spending, Social Security, Medicare, which flows without the need for annual congressional action.

Under current law, total spending on discretionary programs cannot exceed the prescribed limits. However, these limits expire in fiscal year 1998, and the amendment would extend these limits to 2002 in accordance with the budget agreement. The levels established are the same as those adopted in the agreement and in the budget resolution.

In addition, the amendment extends the so-called pay-as-you-go or pay-go system. Under that system, all tax cuts, all increases in entitlement spending have to be offset by either revenue increases or reductions in other entitlements. The amendment will extend this system through 2002.

There was little disagreement in the bipartisan budget negotiations that the discretionary spending limits and the pay-as-you-go system ought to be extended. These two budget mechanisms are at the very core of the Budget Enforcement Act. The act has been in place since 1990 when it replaced the old Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law, and the system has proven to be successful.

There are many ways to measure success, but I begin by pointing to the bottom line. Since BEA, the Budget Enforcement Act, was put into place, our deficit has been reduced from $270 billion plus down to about $70 billion, a $200 billion reduction. By contrast, the old Gramm-Rudman system had promised dramatic deficit reduction, but when it came to producing results, frankly, it laid an egg.

When Gramm-Rudman came into effect in 1986, the deficit was $221.2 billion. By 1990, when Gramm-Rudman was repeated, the deficit had moved from $220 billion to the same level, $221.2 billion. That, Madam President, is not my idea of progress. Beyond helping to implement the real deficit reduction, the Budget Enforcement Act has avoided many of the political and policy distortions that were originally created by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings legislation. The old system created an incentive for both Congress and the White House to use unrealistic economic assumptions and other gimmicks in order to game the system.

Since BEA was enacted, while there are still plenty of games in Federal budgeting, the process has dramatically improved. For example, Presidential budgets have used much more realistic economic assumptions, and we have largely been free of the threat of massive across-the-board cuts in defense and domestic appropriated programs that used to be so disruptive.

So, Madam President, I, along with Senator DOMENICI and Congressman KASICH, Congressman SPRATT and the administration, all in the negotiations agreed we should retain the basic framework of the Budget Enforcement Act system. That is what we are proposing in the amendment before us. It is a fairly simple proposition.

In addition, this amendment includes separate spending limits for defense discretionary programs and nondefense discretionary programs in the next 2 fiscal years. This also reflects the bipartisan budget agreement.

Along with many other Democrats, I have long been skeptical of firewalls, but I remind my colleagues that these firewalls apply equally to both sides of the discretionary budget and could protect domestic initiatives from those who would shift funding from domestic discretionary to the military. I will also note that the separate defense and nondefense caps expire after 2 years.

Another provision in this amendment, which also implements the bipartisan budget agreement, would revise the rule governing scoring of asset sales. Under the proposal, asset sales could be counted in budget calculations only if they do not increase the deficit. This should help ensure we don't sell assets only for short-term income if those assets would generate significant revenues in the future. An example might be a Government-owned recreational facility that generates significant user fees.

Madam President, this amendment also includes provisions that establish reserve funds for Amtrak, highways and transits. These provisions will allow us to implement the comparable reserve funds that were included in the budget resolution, and they have been top priorities for me and, given my longstanding commitment to transportation investment, I worked very hard to make sure that we were going to provide the funds necessary to provide the investment in infrastructure so critically needed in our country.

Finally, Madam President, this amendment includes a variety of technical changes that are designed to correct errors and eliminate unnecessary reporting requirements and to revise the outdated provisions. So, I hope my colleagues will support us in this amendment. I express my appreciation, once again, to Senator DOMENICI and the staff, especially Sue Nelson, my Budget Committee staff, for their hard work and cooperation in the development of this legislation. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished majority leader is recognized.

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, I have a unanimous consent request that I have cleared with the Democratic leader.

PROVIDING FOR ADJOURNMENT OR RECESS OF BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS

Mr. LOTT. Madam President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of H. Con. Res. 108, the adjournment resolution, which was received from the House. I further ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 108) was agreed to, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 108

Mr. LOTT. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

AMENDMENT NO. 537

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time do I have on the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Forty-four minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. And the opposition has 44 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Sixty minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. So we have used 16. Actually, unless Senator LAUTENBERG has anything further to say, I believe I have stated the case for the DOMENICI-LAUTENBERG amendment No. 537. Does Senator GRAMM want to offer an amendment to the amendment?

Mr. GRAMM. I think Senator BIDEN is going to offer an amendment first, and after his amendment is disposed of, then I will have an amendment, as will several other people.

Mr. BIDEN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, I wonder if the Democratic manager would yield me time off the bill.

Mr. DOMENICI. The Senator has time on his amendment.

Mr. BIDEN. Parliamentary inquiry. Can I get time in my own right?

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is controlled by Senator DOMENICI and Senator ROTH.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I yield back my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is all time yielded back?

Mr. DOMENICI. We yielded back our time.

Mr. BIDEN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

AMENDMENT NO. 539 TO AMENDMENT NO. 537

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Delaware [Mr. BIDEN], for himself and Mr. GRAMM, proposes an amendment numbered 539 to amendment No. 537.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, I ask that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 43 of the amendment, strike lines 14 through 21 and insert the following:

''(5) with respect to fiscal year 2001—

''(A) for the discretionary category: $537,677,000,000 in new budget authority and $558,460,000,000 in outlays; and

''(B) for the violent crime reduction category: $4,355,000,000 in new budget authority and $5,936,000,000 in outlays;

''(6) with respect to fiscal year 2002—

''(A) for the discretionary category: $546,619,000,000 in new budget authority and $556,314,000,000 in outlays; and

''(B) for the violent crime reduction category: $4,455,000,000 in new budget authority and $4,485,000,000 in outlays;

as adjusted in strict conformance with subsection (b).''.

(2) TRANSFERS INTO THE FUND.—On the first day of the following fiscal years, the following amounts shall be transferred from the general fund to the Violent Crime Reduction Trust Fund—

(A) for fiscal year 2001, $4,355,000,000; and

(B) for fiscal year 2002, $4,455,000,000.

Mr. BUMPERS. Will the Senator from Delaware yield for an inquiry for a moment?

Mr. BIDEN. I would be happy to.

Mr. BUMPERS. Could the managers of this bill tell us how many second-degree amendments there are to this process?

I assume we are on the second-degree amendment process; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. BUMPERS. Could the managers tell us how many second-degree amendments they anticipate on this?

Mr. DOMENICI. I do not know.

Mr. GRAMM. I believe there will be four. Senator BIDEN will offer one for himself. Once that is adopted, I will offer a second-degree amendment. And then we have two other Senators who want to offer second-degree amendments, so they will be seriatim.

Mr. BUMPERS. Then there are five, because I have one also. I am just wondering if we could get some kind of sequence so we know how they are going to be offered so we do not spend the rest of our lives waiting.

Mr. DOMENICI. I say to the Senator, you can be assured there will be four ahead of you, if you would like to be fifth.

Mr. BUMPERS. I thank the Senator for his courtesy.

Mr. GRAMM. Why don't you do yours last?

Mr. DOMENICI. That is what I said.

Mr. BIDEN. Madam President, the second-degree amendment I have at the desk is very simple and straightforward. The Senator from New Mexico is introducing a budget process amendment, and what the amendment of Senator GRAMM and myself does is, quite frankly, it merely extends the crime law trust fund for the extension of this agreement.

I am told by the staffs of the majority and minority that in the budget process agreement that was agreed to with the administration, there is a line on page 90 of the concurrent resolution of the budget fiscal year 1998. On page 90, it says, ''Retain current law on separate crime caps at levels shown in the agreement tables.''

All we are doing here is extending the crime law trust fund. We are not making judgments on how that will be disbursed within the trust fund. We are just extending the trust fund to the extent of this agreement. And, Madam President, as I offer this amendment, we are maintaining a commitment to one of the few specific ways the reconciliation package can, by virtue of the type of legislation it is, maintain a commitment.

The commitment we made was to fight violent crime. And, ironically, it is working. It is working. And so for us now to extend the violent crime trust fund, let it expire 2 years before this budget agreement expires, means we are going to be back at it again in the year 2000 or before, fighting over something we now know works.

So I realize we can take a long time debating this. But the bottom line is this: We are not suggesting, as the Senator from New Mexico knows, how this trust fund money within the caps will be disbursed; merely that we have the continuation of the trust fund as long as the budget agreement to the year 2002.

Of all the priorities addressed in this budget package, I believe that none is more important than continuing our fight against violent crime and violence against women.

The amendment I am offering, along with Senator GRAMM seeks to maintain this commitment in one of the few specific ways this reconciliation package can—by virtue of the type of legislation this is—maintain this commitment. That is by extending the violent crime control trust fund will continue through the end of this budget resolution, fiscal year 2002.

Senator BYRD, more than anyone, deserves credit for the crime law trust fund. Senator BYRD worked to develop an idea that was simple as it was profound—as he called on us to use the savings from the reductions in the Federal work force of 272,000 employees to fund one of the Nation's most urgent priorities: fighting the scourge of violent crime.

Senator GRAMM was also one of the very first to call on the Senate to ''put our money where our mouth was.'' Too often, this Senate has voted to send significant aid to State and local law enforcement—but, when it came time to write the check, we did not find nearly the dollars we promised.

Working together in 1993, Senator BYRD, myself, Senator GRAMM, and other Senators passed the violent crime control trust fund in the Senate. And, in 1994, it became law in the Biden crime law.

Since then, the dollars from the crime law trust fund have: Helped add more than 60,000 community police officers to our streets; helped shelter more than 80,000 battered women and their children; focussed law enforcement, prosecutors, and victims service providers on providing immediate help to women victimized by someone who pretends to love them; forced tens of thousands of drug offenders into drug testing and treatment programs, instead of continuing to allow them to remain free on probation with no supervision and no accountability; constructed thousands of prison cells for violent criminals; and brought unprecedented resources to defending our Southwest border—putting us on the path to literally double the number of Federal border agents over just a 5-year period.

The results of this effort are already taking hold: According to the FBI's national crime statistics, violent crime is down and down significantly—leaving our nation with its lowest murder rate since 1971; the lowest violent crime total since 1990; and the lowest murder rate for wives, ex-wives, and girlfriends at the hands of their intimates to an 18-year low.

In short, we have proven able to do what few thought possible—by being smart, keeping our focus, and putting our ''money where our mouths'' are—we have actually cut violent crime.

Today, our challenge is to keep our focus and to stay vigilant against violent crime. Today, the Biden-Byrd-Gramm amendment before the Senate offers one modest step toward meeting that challenge:

By assuring that the commitment to fighting crime and violence against women will continue for the full duration of this budget resolution.

By assuring that the violent crime control trust fund will continue—in its current form which provides additional Federal assistance without adding 1 cent to the deficit—through 2002.

The Biden-Gramm amendment offers a few very simple choices: Stand up for cops—or don't; stand up for the fight against violence against women—or don't; and stand up for increased border enforcement—or don't.

Every Member of this Senate is against violence crime—we way that in speech after speech. Now, I urge all my colleagues to back up with words with the only thing that we can actually do for the cop walking the beat, the battered woman, the victim of crime—provide the dollars that help give them the tools to fight violent criminals, standup to their abuser, and restore at least some small piece of the dignity taken from them at the hands of a violent criminal.

Let us be very clear of the stakes here—frankly, if we do not continue the trust fund, we will not be able to continue such proven, valuable efforts as the violence against women law. Nothing we can do today can guarantee that we, in fact, will continue the Violence Against Women Act when the law expires in the year 2000.

But, mark my words, if the trust fund ends, the efforts to provide shelter, help victims, and get tough on the abusers and barterers will wither on the vine. Passing the amendment I offer today will send a clear, unambiguous message that the trust fund should continue and with it, the historic effort undertaken by the Violence Against Women Act that says by word, deed, and dollar that the Federal Government stands with women and against the misguided notion that ''domestic'' violence is a man's ''right'' and ''not really a crime.''

I urge my colleagues to support the Biden-Gramm amendment.

At the appropriate time—and I am not quite sure yet when is appropriate—I will ask for the yeas and nays on this.

But make no mistake about it, what we are voting on here is whether or not we are going to commit now to the extension of the trust fund, the violent crime trust fund, for the extent of this agreement. That is all this does. That is everything it does, but that is all it does.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, would the Chair indulge me momentarily?

I protect my right to the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia will be protected in his right to the floor.

Mr. DURBIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia has the floor.

Mr. BYRD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, last Friday negotiators from the tobacco industry and State attorneys general announced the landmark agreement addressing the impact of tobacco use on our Nation, particularly our young people. Although this important deal will likely face many obstacles and has a long way to go toward implementation, it is an unprecedented first step toward curbing tobacco use and paying for the harm caused by that use.

This process has caused our Nation to focus on an important public health danger and is an important step in working toward a meaningful solution.

While I applaud the action being taken to address the pernicious health effects of tobacco, I am concerned that its evil twin, which also has a staggering impact on our Nation, is to a large measure being ignored.

Mr. President, the cost of alcohol abuse to our country is staggering. According to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism of the National Institutes of Health, alcohol is used by more Americans than any other drug. And the results are devastating.

The flood tide of alcohol causes more than 100,000 deaths each year in the United States. Alcohol abuse and alcoholism imposes approximately $100 billion in cost each year on society. Links have been found between alcohol abuse and cirrhosis of the liver, as well as other harmful health conditions. Alcohol is a contributing factor in assaults, murders and other violent crimes, including fatal drinking and driving accidents.

At the bottom of every empty bottle is another family in crisis, another career being destroyed, or another dream washed away.

The amendment I am offering today would eliminate the tax deduction for alcoholic beverage advertising expenditures. In addition, it would increase funding for a number of programs that educate and prevent the abuse of alcohol among our Nation's youth.

What should be of the utmost of our concern in our Nation is the impact of alcohol on our children and our grandchildren.

I am introducing this amendment on behalf of the children who died because they were drinking and driving, and on behalf of the millions of children who are drinking right now without the full appreciation of what they are doing to themselves and what they could potentially do to others.

Alcohol is the drug of choice among teenagers.

Mr. President, more specifically, and looking at this chart compiled by the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse, the use of alcohol by our Nation's youth is highlighted among different age groups, including children between the ages of 12 and 17. Among children between the ages of 16 and 17, 69.3 percent have at one point in their lifetimes experimented with alcohol.

Clearly, as made evident by these alarming statistics, alcohol is the leading problem among teenagers—not marijuana, not cocaine.

In the last month, approximately 8 percent of the Nation's eighth graders have been drunk—have been drunk. We are talking about eighth graders, 13 years old—13-year-olds. I never heard of such a thing when I was in my teens, as a young man, or in my middle age. We are talking about eighth graders, 13-year-olds.

Every State has a law prohibiting the sale of alcohol to individuals under the age of 21. How is it then that two out of every three teenagers who drink report that they can buy their own alcoholic beverages?

The youth of this country, who at the delicate age of 15 should be enriching their minds with schoolwork, improving their bodies with exercise, and discovering the wonders of life through God and family values, instead are experimenting and endangering themselves with booze. Junior and senior high school students drink 35 percent of all wine coolers and consume 1.1 billion cans of beer a year. I know, because I pick some of them up off my lawn—I am talking about the beer cans, not the young people.

I will repeat what is common knowledge to us all: Every State has a law prohibiting the sale of alcohol to individuals under the age of 21. Alcohol is a factor in the three leading causes of death for 15- to 24-year-olds—the three leading causes—accidents, homicides, suicide. In approximately 50 percent to 60 percent of youth suicides, alcohol is involved.

Links have been shown between alcohol use and teen pregnancies and sexually transmitted diseases. Eighty percent of the teenagers do not know that a can of beer has the same amount of alcohol as a shot of whiskey or a glass of wine. By the time they are in college, 40 percent have binged on alcohol during the previous 2 weeks.

In 1994, 8.9 percent—almost 95,000—of the clients admitted to alcohol treatment programs that received at least part of their funding from the State were under the age of 21, including over 1,000 under the age of 12. And 31.9 percent of youth under the age of 18 in long-term State-operated juvenile institutions were under the influence of alcohol at the time of their arrest.

While our Nation's education system needs repair, it seems that our society has been successful in teaching these kids something. The problem is that what we have taught them is deadly.

Drinking impairs one's judgment. We all know that. Nobody will dispute that. Alcohol mixed with teenage driving is a lethal, a lethal combination. We read about it all the time in the Washington Post, the Washington Times, and every newspaper in the land. In 1995, there were 1,666 alcohol-related fatalities of children between the ages of 15 and 19. The total number of alcohol-related fatalities that year was 17,274. Mr. President, for many years I have taken the opportunity, when addressing groups of young West Virginians, to warn them about the dangers of alcohol. I supported legislative efforts to discourage people, particularly young people, from drinking any alcohol. For example, 2 years ago I authored an amendment that requires States to pass the zero-tolerance laws that will make it illegal for persons under the age of 21 to drive a motor vehicle if they have a blood alcohol level greater than .02 percent. This legislation not only helps to save lives but it also sends a message to our Nation's youth that drinking and driving is wrong, that it is a violation of the law, and that it will be appropriately punished. Unfortunately and tragically, we all know someone, whether it is a family member or a friend or an acquaintance, whose life has been cut short by a drunk driver. These are senseless losses that are devastating to the families and the friends who are left behind.

As if the aforementioned statistics about youth alcohol use and the results of that use are not frightening enough, young people who consume alcohol are more likely to use other drugs.

On the chart to my left, Senators will note these statistics, compiled by the National Center on Addiction and Substance Abuse at Columbia University, statistics which show that 37.5 percent of young people who have consumed alcohol have used some other illicit drug, versus only 5 percent of young people who have never consumed alcohol; 26.7 percent of those who have consumed alcohol have tried marijuana, versus 1.2 percent of those who have never consumed alcohol; 5 percent of youths who have partaken of alcohol have tried cocaine, while only 0.1 of 1 percent of those who do not drink have used cocaine. So it is not a question that is even debatable that youths who drink alcohol are more likely to use other drugs.

Mr. President, as the aforementioned facts and figures indicate, alcohol exacts a tremendous cost on our society. These costs are not always clear-cut. For example, consider the costs of the lost productivity of a person showing up at work on a Monday morning with a hangover and inadequately performing his or her job, perhaps making a mistake that results in injury. How many of us would like to ride in the automobile that was made on such a Monday morning? How many of us would like to fly on the airplane whose maintenance man or woman, whose mechanic was on a binge the previous day? While there is no way to accurately gauge the enormous costs that alcohol exacts upon our society, there can be no doubt that the pleasures of alcohol consumption exacts a considerable price on our Nation.

The purpose of the amendment that I introduce today is simple. My proposal would simply tell all producers of alcoholic beverages that they can no longer deduct the costs of their advertising expenditures on those products from their Federal income tax liability. While advertising is generally deductible as a legitimate business expense, I believe there exists a moral, legitimate reason to create an exception for producers of alcoholic beverages whose products exact such considerable costs on our society. My proposal would not make illegal any advertising of alcoholic beverages. It does not say that any advertising of alcoholic beverages is unconstitutional. It does not attempt to ban such advertisements, nor would it create any additional Federal bureaucracy to regulate alcohol products. Rather, it would simply end the American taxpayers' subsidization of alcohol advertising by amending the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to include a disallowance of any deduction for any amount paid or incurred to advertise or promote by any means any alcoholic beverage. This is not a sin tax. It is, rather, an end to the sin subsidy that has left American taxpayers footing the bill for both alcohol advertising and the high health care costs inflicted on society by alcohol consumption. Now there may be those who argue that it is wrong to single out alcohol advertising expenses. I counter that with the question: What other product, with the possible exception of tobacco, costs society $100 billion each year? What other product results in more than 100,000 deaths each year in the United States? The statistics are indeed staggering.

Mr. President, in these complicated times, the innocence of youth, the innocence of youth is dashed away at an early age by the irreverent messages spewing from the television set. Profanity and violence on television programming are interrupted only by the aggressive commercials seeking to influence viewers in the name of profit.

Our impressionable youth, pressured by the self-indulgent motives of revenue-hungry corporations are bombarded by countless images glorifying an unrealistic view of reality, often insincerely portraying alcoholic beverages as an ingredient for ideal lifestyles. Our children are besieged with the message that if you drink you will attract beautiful women, if you drink you will be popular, if you drink you will excel at sports. Are these the images of reality or do they leave out something important? Do they leave out some important facts about alcohol consumption? What about the negative and all too prevalent results of alcohol consumption—the hangovers that result in lost productivity, the tragic deaths, the injuries caused by a drunk behind the wheel, the hospital visits for alcohol poisoning, the horrible effects of cirrhosis of the liver and the families torn apart by alcohol abuse.

The industry indicates that their advertisements do not target young people, although this is debatable. A January Wall Street Journal article, detailing a competitive media reporting survey commissioned by the Journal, found that beer advertisements are often aired during programs that are watched by large numbers of adolescents. The findings of this survey are extremely disturbing. In one example, referenced in the article, a beer ad ran during the airing of a popular cartoon show on the MTV station of which 69 percent of the audience was comprised of children under the age of 21.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the Wall Street Journal article.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Wall Street Journal]

ARE BEER ADS ON BEAVIS AND BUTT-HEAD AIMED AT KIDS?

(By Sally Beatty)

When a commercial for Schlitz Malt Liquor appeared last year on MTV during ''My So-Called Life,'' a show about teenage girls, beer maker Stroh called the airing an aberration.

Even as the ad helped launch a Federal Trade Commission probe into alcohol advertising to children, Stroh said it had a longtime policy of aiming ads only at adults of legal drinking age; MTV said the ad ran by mistake because of a last-minute programming switch.

In fact, the commercial was hardly an isolated event. Despite the beer industry's insistence that it doesn't target kids, its commercials regularly wash over underage viewers. A survey by Competitive Media Reporting for the Wall Street Journal showed that during one arbitrarily chosen week—the first week of September—youths under the drinking age made up the majority of the audience for beer commercials on several occasions.

For instance, Molson beer was advertised during a 10 p.m. episode of ''Beavis & Butt-Head,'' the popular MTV cartoon series about two obnoxious teens. Fully 69% of all the episode's viewers that night were under 21—the legal drinking age in all 50 states—according to Nielsen Media Research's widely used ratings data. Molson, which is marketed in the U.S. by Philip Morris's Miller Brewing, also advertised on MTV's racy youth dating show, ''Singled Out,'' just after 7 p.m., when 52% of the audience was under 21. And Stroh advertised Schlitz Malt Liquor during MTV's prime-time music-video show at 8:30 p.m., when 56% of the audience was under 21.

That same week, Adolph Coors ran two ads on the Black Entertainment Television channel after 8 p.m., when 65% of the audience wasn't old enough to drink. Also that week, Anheuser-Busch ran an ad for its Budweiser brand just after 8:30 p.m. on BET during music-video programming, when 70% of the audience was under 21.

These commercials look like clear violations of the chief beer industry trade group's own guidelines for TV ads. ''Beer advertising . . . should not be placed in magazines, newspapers, television programs, radio programs or other media where most of the audience is reasonably expected to be below the legal purchase age,'' states the Beer Institute's published ''advertising and marketing guidelines.'' The industry is pointing to these guidelines in an aggressive lobbying effort against proposed new federal restrictions of beer and liquor advertising.

The number of ads reaching kids is ''very troubling,'' says Jodie Bernstein, director of the FTC's bureau of consumer protection and a top official involved with its ongoing probe into alcohol marketing to kids on television. Her bureau enforces laws banning unfair or deceptive ad practices, including a statute that says it's unfair to aim ads at people who aren't legally able to buy the products. A company that runs afoul of such laws can face fines, orders to pull ads and regular FTC screening of future advertising.

Ms. Bernstein won't comment on the FTC's probe. However, she says that in any investigation, the commission would look first at whether alcohol advertisers are ''following their own guidelines.'' For example, ''Is it OK if [the percentage of underage viewers] gets up to 70% once in a while? I don't think it's OK.'' And she says the commission would ''never act on just one episode or one mistake—we would act on the pattern.''

Brewers and TV executives insist that it doesn't make sense to evaluate beer ads on a single night's audience. ''Any attempt to analyze the beer industry's media-buying practices by examining only selected broadcast media buys during a one-week period is misleading and simplistic,'' said Miller Brewing in a statement responding to questions about the survey. Miller added that more than 75 percent of the broadcast audience reached by the programming it buys is over 21.

At Stroh, officials argue that there's a difference between putting ads in front of kids and targeting them explicitly. ''We understand that when an ad is run it's going to be seen by some people who are under 21 years of age, whether it's a billboard, in a magazine or on TV,'' says Stroh general counsel George Kuehn. ''That does not mean we target the group that is under 21.''

Whether the beer industry advertises to kids became a hotly debated question after the liquor industry last year abandoned its longstanding guidelines banning TV ads. That sparked a national uproar over exposing kids to alcohol ads—putting the beer industry in the spotlight.

In Congress, Rep. Joseph P. Kennedy II (D., Mass.) has introduced legislation that would ban most forms of alcohol advertising from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., require health warnings on print, radio and TV ads and require alcohol ads that run in publication with a 15% or more youth readership to appear only in black-and-white text.

There are already signs that brewers and Madison Avenue are worried about the threat of regulation of beer ads. No. 1 brewer Anheuser-Busch revealed last month that it quietly pulled all its beer advertising from MTV, saying it hoped to ''ensure that our intent is not misperceived in today's climate.'' The Madison Avenue's main trade group, the American Association of Advertising Agencies, recently abandoned its longtime stand against restrictions on ads for products like alcohol and cigarettes. It proposed setting up a new self-regulation committee, warning that the industry otherwise faces a government crackdown on ads for beer and other adult products.

But setting reliable guidelines for such ads remains tricky. TV executives argue that Nielsen ratings aren't reliable measures of kid viewership—even though the ratings are the TV industry's gold standard for gauging the cost of ad time. Says John Popkowski, executive vice president in charge of ad sales at MTV Networks: ''If you pick one show on an isolated night you might find one that's an aberration statistically,'' since cable channels' viewership is sometimes relatively small.

On the E! Channel, for instance, Miller Brewing ran a Foster's ad on Sept. 2, just before 7:30 p.m., during the show ''Melrose Place.'' That night, 41% of the show's audience was under 21, according to Nielsen. But David T. Cassaro, senior vice president in charge of ad sales for E! Entertainment Television, says that from July 1 to Sept. 29 between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m., only about 28% of E! Entertainment's audience was under 21. Overall, Mr. Cassaro adds, only 19% of E! Entertainment's total audience isn't old enough to drink.

''With networks like BET the numbers are so small that they jump all over the place,'' adds John Goldman, a spokesman for Adolph Coors. ''You take as much care as you can but the programming changes often.'' Mr. Goldman says that in the third quarter, the over-21 audience reached by BET between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. ranged from 80% to 43%.

Mr. Goldman adds that Coors doesn't buy MTV as a matter of company policy. ''We want to avoid any misperception that we're aiming at an underage audience.''

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, looking at another chart to my left, this chart demonstrates competitive media reporting estimates that the alcoholic beverage industry spent more than $1 billion on alcohol advertising in 1995.

In contrast, in 1995, the Federal investment in the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism was a mere $189.8 million for alcohol research. Does the industry expect us to believe that it would spend this huge amount of money—$1.1 billion—if it were not getting something for that money? Some may argue that this legislation would adversely affect the advertising industry by forcing producers of alcoholic beverages to eliminate their advertising expenditure. Poppycock. I do not believe that this would be the case.

Alcoholic beverage producers spend large amounts of money to advertise their products because it encourages people to consume their product and it, therefore, increases sales. Eliminating the advertising deduction will not eliminate the fundamental business practice. By making these advertisements less profitable, this amendment may reduce the overall amount of alcohol advertising in our society. However, let there be no doubt that the alcohol ads will keep on running. You can bet your bottom dollar on that. They will. The difference, however, will be that the American taxpayer will no longer be subsidizing this activity and that the money will go, instead, to getting the other side of the alcohol story out. That is what we need to start doing. We need to start now getting the other side of the alcohol story out. It is perhaps not the most popular thing politically to attempt to do here, but it needs to be done.

This amendment is all the more necessary because, last year, the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States decided to reject its self-imposed ban on advertising hard liquor on television and radio. I decried this decision by the Distilled Spirits Council because it is a step backward at a time when our Nation is working to curb alcohol abuse. Now hard liquor advertisements will be flowing over the airwaves. This is not the direction in which our Nation should be moving.

According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, the elimination of the tax deduction would result in $2.9 billion in savings over 5 years. My amendment targets the savings from the elimination of the disallowance to programs to prevent alcohol abuse among our Nation's young people and to educate children about alcohol. The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration would be given increased funds to supplement programs to prevent the use of alcohol among young people and to fund a media campaign designed to counteract the constant bombardment to which our children are subjected daily by alcohol advertisements. It is important to give our children information about the risks associated with the consumption of alcohol. We should not sit idly by and leave unchallenged the messages of alcoholic beverage advertisements that only good things happen to those who drink alcohol.

This amendment will also direct funding to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to carry out a comprehensive strategy to prevent alcohol-related disease and disability. The CDC would be given authority to enhance and expand fetal alcohol syndrome prevention activities throughout the Nation. According to the NIAAA, fetal alcohol syndrome is estimated to affect from one to three children out of every 1,000 live births.

To address the distressing problem of alcohol-impaired driving, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration's alcohol-impaired driving incentive grant program, previously known as section 410, would receive additional funding. Funding is also made available to NTSA to launch a media campaign about the perils of driving under the influence.

The Indian Health Service will receive funding for its alcohol abuse programs to address the issue of alcohol abuse, which has such a devastating effect on the first Americans. I don't refer to them as native Americans. I don't refer to them as native Americans. I am a native American. If I am not a native American, of what country am I a native? I refer to them as the original Americans, or the first Americans.

The harm that alcoholic beverages cause our Nation is not a second-rate hangover, but a serious affliction that kills more than 100,000 people each year. By adopting this amendment, we would be making a positive effort to improve the health of our Nation, particularly of our children, and to send a sober message to those who are capitalizing on profits generated by recklessly advertising alcoholic beverages through far-reaching and seductive means, such as television.

We should act in the best interests of the American people and announce ''last call'' to those who have been receiving tax breaks for peddling booze, take a step in the right direction and begin to repair some of the damage brought by alcohol in this country. Let us begin by putting a cork in the tax loophole that has left American taxpayers picking up the tab for the alcohol industry.

Now, Mr. President, I am very well aware that a point of order will be made, or can be made. I am well aware of that. But I think the debate has to start at some point. I think that point is now. We hear a great deal about tobacco and we hear a great deal about children, about children's health. I hope those who support those programs and talk much about them would support this effort. We are talking here about children's health. We are talking here about something that kills 100,000 people every year. I am not seeking to ban alcohol. I am not seeking to regulate alcohol. I am simply seeking to end the subsidization by the taxpayers of this country of alcohol.

Think about it. Think about it on your way home tonight as you drive out the George Washington Parkway and see someone in front of you wobbling from one side of the road to the other. Think again. Suppose your wife is up at Tyson's Corner getting ready to drive home with the children and that same fellow who was in front of your car wobbling may kill your wife and your children.

So let's start talking about it. Let's start airing the subject here. Let's stop putting it behind the curtain, putting it under the rug, saying it is taboo. It is not. It is not taboo. Think about our children, our grandchildren. This is the product that kills other people. Tobacco may kill me. Tobacco may kill the individual who smokes it. But alcohol may not kill the person who imbibes; it may kill the innocent—the driver in the other car.

So I hope that Senators will support my amendment. As I say, I am sure that there is a process or a motion available, but I am accustomed to those things. I say let the Senate work its will.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Kentucky.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky is recognized.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I thank the chairman of the Finance Committee for yielding me a few moments. I listened very carefully to my good friend and colleague from West Virginia and to his observations about the dangers of drinking and driving, with which I completely concur.

Of course, representing Kentucky, as my friend from West Virginia knows, not only do we have 60,000 tobacco growers, which is, of course, the subject of a number of amendments that may come on this bill; we are also the home of bourbon. If this kind of whiskey is not made in Kentucky, it cannot be called bourbon. Let me suggest that there are no industries—and I checked with the Finance Committee staff—that have been singled out by law and, as a result of being singled out, are not allowed to deduct their expenses for advertising. So this would be a first.

To begin with, as a matter of tax policy, certain kinds of legal industries are not allowed to deduct their advertising, and others are. There is also—while we are thinking of both cigarettes and alcohol—another important distinction. There is no argument that misuse of alcohol is a problem in this country. As a Senator from a tobacco-producing State, I never make the argument that smoking cigarettes is good for you. Obviously, it isn't. But there are many in the medical profession who would say that the consumption of alcohol, if used properly—properly—is actually good for you. I am not a physician, I can't make that argument, but there is a growing argument being made by many in the medical community that a certain amount of alcohol, properly used, is actually good for you health, not bad for your health.

So we have here a legal product, Mr. President, which, arguably, if properly used, might actually be good for you, which the distinguished Senator from West Virginia, I gather, is saying when misused, of course, is clearly a terrible thing and a disaster not only for the person misusing it, but for others who may be affected by that, and that because a product may be misused, the Government should step in and say: Your advertising is not allowed.

Regardless of how you may feel about this——

Mr. BYRD. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MCCONNELL. Yes.

Mr. BYRD. For a correction only. My amendment does not say your advertising will not be allowed. I am not saying that at all. The alcohol industry may continue to advertise. I am just saying, let's stop the subsidization of that advertising, the subsidization by the taxpayers.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I thank the Senator. I think I did understand his amendment to disallow a deductibility for advertising, which would make this the only industry of which the Finance Committee is aware where such deductibility would be disallowed.

Aside from my home State and the product, which, if properly used, might actually be good for you, I wonder if my friend from West Virginia doesn't share my concern that once we go in this direction, we might find other activities that some may find offensive being subject to the same kinds of efforts to disallow deductibility for certain kinds of business expenses.

I think, for example, West Virginia and Kentucky used to trade back and forth in terms of coal production. One year West Virginia would be first; the next year Kentucky would be the first. Alas, neither are first anymore. Wyoming is. But there are many Americans who think, as a result of the burning of coal, that the area is polluted and that, as a result of that, people contract lung problems. In fact, there is an initiative by the Clinton administration just announced this week which the Senator from West Virginia and I both have serious reservations about designed to cut down on air pollution—so the argument goes—so there will be less lung disease.

I wonder, if we go down this path of trying to pick out which industries' deductions for certain kinds of business expenses are to be allowed or not allowed based upon our judgment about what is harmful to the public, whether or not somebody might come in and say, ''Well, we shouldn't allow production costs associated with the mining of coal to be deductible because, after all, the burning of coal leads to the pollution of the air, which then leads to lung disease, which then leads to death.''

I just am concerned that this is a step in the wrong direction. I understand fully the concerns of the Senator from West Virginia, and I share them. I think the use of alcohol leads to a great deal of tragedy.

But I hope we will not single out this legal industry producing a product, which, if properly used, many people in the medical field feel is actually good for you, for this kind of selective treatment on deductibility.

Finally, let me say that I am not an expert on the budget deal. But it is clear that there is a lot of momentum in this body to hold the deal together, and this is clearly not part of the budget deal.

I hope that the proposal will not be approved, in all due respect to my good friend and colleague from West Virginia. I hope this would not become part of the measure before us.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, may I say that I fully understand the economic impact of the tobacco industry on the State of the distinguished Senator who has just spoken. West Virginia grows good tobacco crops as well, and the income from those tobacco crops certainly impact upon many families in many counties of West Virginia. We are talking about here, though, a product that results in the maiming and in the killing of people—innocent men, women, and children.

The distinguished Senator from Kentucky mentions the carbon dioxide emissions and other greenhouse gas emissions and possible implications of those emissions on health. People who breathe that air may well, indeed, suffer an adverse impact on their health. But they don't go out and maim. They don't go out and drive an automobile, lose their proper judgment, and end up killing innocent people. They do not go home and abuse their spouses if they smoke cigarettes or if they breathe air blown from them. They don't go home and abuse their children. They don't go home and assault and batter the other members of their family.

I am talking about a product that we all know—it is not just this Senator's opinion. We all know when we read the daily newspapers about the effects of drinking and driving. We all read the newspapers in the spring following the graduation exercises at high schools, and we read, with horror, the stories of a few young people who get into an automobile and wrap that automobile around a telephone pole and they are all killed or maimed—maimed for life.

That is what we are talking about. I am not talking about singling out an industry. I am talking about an industry that creates a product that is hurtful—not just hurtful to the person who uses it, but endangers, as I said already, the lives of others. We all know that.

But I do appreciate the fact that the Senator is from Kentucky, and I respect him for that, and I respect his viewpoint and count him and his fellow Kentuckians as good neighbors.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. How much time would the Senator from Montana like?

Mr. BURNS. Probably no more than 5 minutes.

Mr. ROTH. I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Montana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BURNS. I thank my friend from Delaware.

Mr. President, no one on this floor makes his case with such passion as my friend from West Virginia. We have a couple of things in common that we will not go into here. But I also know from where he comes. And when you start talking about this issue of singling out something, then we have to look at probably the real facts.

First, there is the presumption in this amendment that somehow the advertising is evil or bad, or that it wreaks health problems on the American people. There is no question in anybody's mind across this land that the abuse of alcohol is one of our greatest problems—no doubt. Yet, there is no scientific evidence that would even suggest the casual relationship between advertising and abuse.

In order to get to the root of the problem of alcoholism and all of the problems that it brings, study after study after study has been made in the relationship of advertising. In fact, during the 1980's, when the advertising for alcohol products was increasing, actual consumption per capita actually was decreasing. So not only does advertising not impact abuse, it doesn't even impact the overall consumption.

Singling out a product is not, I don't think, what fair tax law is about.

So let's be upfront about it, because I am familiar with the broadcast industry. It has economic impacts on small business. It has economic impacts. And once we start singling out products, do we start talking about red meat, eggs, or sugar? Where do we draw the line? The impact it might have on the national pastime? We could say, ''OK, we don't need it in the broadcasting industry. We can all pay for pay-per-view''—the impact on an industry within itself. And the list goes on and on trying to explain to our constituents why different things happen and cost more, because there is a decrease in advertising support in free television. That also brings us our weather, our farm reports, our news, our emergency conditions. All of these things that are supported by free over-the-air broadcasts will be impacted if this amendment is successful.

The industry has taken steps to limit or try to curb the abuse that alcohol has on a person or individual. There is no doubt about it. And in some areas some would say it is even working.

I know that all of us want a tax cut. All of us want a balanced budget. But to single out and start limiting an ad tax or deductibility for legal products is not the right approach. It is not the right approach—not on a legal product.

So I urge my colleagues to oppose this. It is unwarranted. I think it is unwise. And I am not real sure, it might have some constitutional overtones because advertising is still freedom of speech. It cannot be treated differently than any other form.

The Senator from West Virginia makes a point. It is the abuse of the product. The advertising has very little to do with the abuse of the product.

Thank you, and I urge the defeat of this amendment.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BYRD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, the Senator talks about red meat, eggs, and sugar. The Honorable Senator is my friend. Who ever heard of anybody eating red meat, eggs, and sugar, and getting out in the car and having that car plunge into a tree, weave all across the road, and kill and maim other people? Red meat doesn't cause an individual to drive drunk and get in the car and drive all over the highway. Eggs and sugar don't do that in their form as eggs and sugar, in their natural form.

The Senator also, I think, made reference to the Federal Trade Commission in 1985, which found ''no reliable basis to conclude that alcohol advertising significantly affects consumption, let alone abuse.'' Well, let's see what the conclusions are from the effects of the mass media on the use and abuse of alcohol.

The National Institute of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, Research Monograph-28, 1995:

[The] preponderance of the evidence indicates that alcohol advertising stimulates higher consumption of alcohol by both adults and adolescents . . . It appears to be a contributing factor that increases drinking to a modest degree rather than being a major determinant. (Dr. Charles Adkins, Department of Communications, Michigan State University.)

Now I shall quote Dr. Sally Casswell, Alcohol and Public Health Research Unit, School of Medicine, University of Aukland:

[T]here is sufficient evidence to say that alcohol advertising is likely to be a contributing factor to overall consumption and other alcohol-related problems in the long term.

Now quoting Dr. Joel Grube, Prevention Research Center:

[A]lcohol advertising can influence children, particularly their beliefs about alcohol and, indirectly, their intentions to drink as adults.

Finally, let me quote Dr. Esther Thorson, School of Journalism, University of Missouri:

If research were designed to take account of what the advertiser is trying to do and if it examined the relationship between the specific structure of the message and the individual or group for whom that message is targeted, investigators probably would find ''whopping effects''.

Mr. President, I appreciate the views that have been expressed by my friend from Montana and, as I have already indicated, by my friend from Kentucky. I appreciate their views, and I respect their views.

Mr. President, I don't think there should be any doubts in the minds of any Senator or any person who is viewing this Chamber via that electronic eye that the drinking of alcohol affects the judgment of people, and that there are many other costs that are not tangible, that cannot be translated into dollars and cents— the cost of lost productivity, the cost of broken homes, the cost of children abused. And I could go on.

I have made my case, and I ask for the yeas and nays on my amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. BYRD. I yield back the balance of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware has the remaining time.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield back the remainder of my time, and I make the point of order that the pending amendment is not germane to the provisions of the reconciliation measure and I therefore raise a point of order against the amendment under section 305(b)(2) of the Budget Act.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I move to waive the point of order and ask for the yeas and nays on my motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

POINT OF ORDER—SECTION 602

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I move to withdraw the request for a waiver of the point of order on section 602 of S. 949.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, what is the section?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware has the floor. Does he yield?

Mr. BROWNBACK. Will the Senator from Delaware explain the section?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, this was a motion to strike section 602, ''Incentives conditioned on other DC reform.'' This part deals with:

Amendments made by section 701 shall not take effect unless an entity known as the Economic Development Corporation is created by Federal law in 1997 as part of the District of Columbia government.

Senator BROWNBACK made a point of order on this matter and I, in turn, asked for a waiver. We are now asking that the waiver be withdrawn, so that the point of order will lie.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to withdrawing the waiver?

Mr. KERRY addressed the Chair.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware does not lose the floor.

Is there objection?

Mr. KERRY. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I will not object.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I move to withdraw my waiver of the point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there an objection to moving to withdraw the waiver.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Reserving the right to object, do I understand the chairman to say now that you are removing your waiver to the point of order that I have raised?

Mr. ROTH. Yes.

Mr. BROWNBACK. OK. So the point of order would lie.

Mr. ROTH. Correct.

Mr. BROWNBACK. I thank the Senator. I just needed that clarification.

Mr. HARKIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Is the Senator reserving the right to object?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I make a point of order that a quorum is not present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered. The point of order is withdrawn.

The motion to waive the Budget Act was withdrawn.

Mr. DURBIN addressed the Chair.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, please.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. I make a point of order a quorum is not present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DORGAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

Mr. KERRY. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard.

The assistant legislative clerk continued with the call of the roll.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the following Senators, in the order listed, be able to bring up their amendments, the time for each of the amendments be listed and divided equally between the two sides. The first would be Senator DURBIN for 20 minutes, to be equally divided; Senator NICKLES 10 minutes, to be equally divided; Senator GRAMM 20 minutes to be equally divided; Senator KERRY of Massachusetts 20 minutes equally divided, and——

Mr. FORD. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President. Reserving the right to object.

You have in there Senator DURBIN's amendment for, what, 20 minutes equally divided?

Mr. ROTH. That is correct.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I want to object to that one. And you can jerk it out if you want to, because you have rolled over the tobacco industry and my farmers long enough. And I don't intend to sit here without a fight for the additional 11 cents you want to put on after you have already put on 20 cents.

So if you want to change that one, that is fine; otherwise, Mr. President, I will have to object.

Mr. GRAMM. Take it off.

Mr. KERRY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. ROTH. I yield for a comment.

Mr. KERRY. Can I suggest, Mr. President, the following. We are going to have to resolve that issue. We are obviously not going to resolve it immediately if an objection is going to be lodged.

So I recommend that we put in line reserving the time that the Senator has agreed to already cut it down to, in the event we reach some agreement that it will be able to be debated, absent that, that we set it aside temporarily with the understanding we take the order as you have described it.

Again, let me just ask, if I could, Mr. President, how much time remains for each side so we know we are dividing this properly?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has 43 minutes on his amendment.

Mr. KERRY. I am referring to both sides total on the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The majority has 1 hour and 35 minutes; the minority has 1 hour and 18 minutes.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask then unanimous consent that added to that list, for the minority side, the order be as follows: Senator DODD, Senator LANDRIEU, Senator TORRICELLI, Senator HARKIN, Senator LEVIN, Senator BINGAMAN, Senator WELLSTONE, and Senator KOHL, each of them to have 10 minutes on our side.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object. Reserving the right to object.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, it is obvious we are not close to unanimous consent as to how to proceed, so I think we will just have to go to regular order and call upon Senator DURBIN to bring up his amendment.

Mr. DURBIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from Delaware withdraw his request?

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, what is the pending business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The pending question is the amendment of the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I seek the regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois and the Senator from Delaware control the time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DURBIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I seek recognition on this amendment.

I want to make it clear to my colleagues, I am more than willing to accommodate on the remainder of the time. As I understand it, there are about 42 minutes left on this amendment. I do not need all that time. I am more than happy to reduce it equally on both sides and allocate the remaining time on this amendment, any time left before the Senate, among the Members. And I hope that there is no objection to that. But if there is such an objection, I have no other recourse but to proceed on this amendment. And I now have the floor.

I yield for the purpose of a question to the Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Will the Senator yield, not for the purpose of a question, but maybe for a suggestion?

Mr. DURBIN. Yes.

Mr. NICKLES. That we go ahead and debate the Senator's amendment until he is satisfied with it, his cosponsors are satisfied with it, and then maybe at that time you can set it aside, and we will go ahead and vote on the other amendments, and you then have had your debate, and we will have a vote on yours somewhere in the pecking order.

Mr. DURBIN. I thank the Senator.

It is the only way I can proceed at this point since there is no unanimous consent that is going to be agreed to.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, if the Senator would yield for a moment.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield to the Senator from Massachusetts for a question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. I believe the Senator from Kentucky will agree to a time. I believe the Senator would agree to a time. And I think, in fairness to all the other Senators, that if we could try to establish some kind of order, I think that everybody will benefit that much more. I think we were very close to having that arranged, if the Senator from Oklahoma would just forbear for a moment.

Mr. ROTH. What is the order, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I can proceed on this amendment. And if Members can work out some accommodation, I will do my best to abbreviate this debate and give everyone a chance, because I know many people waited.

Mr. President, this—

Mr. KERRY. Would the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DURBIN. Yes.

Mr. KERRY. Can we get a sense for what the Senator from Illinois means about abbreviating this? Is there some period of time?

Mr. DURBIN. Yes. The Senator is going to try to do it in the 20 minutes that was in the UC request, allocating an equal amount of time to the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield just for the purposes of asking something.

Mr. DURBIN. Yes.

Mr. KERRY. Will the Senator from Kentucky agree to a 20-minute time period on the Senator from Illinois' amendment?

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, since it has been laid on me—and I do not mind that at all. I have always heard when you tear the hide off it comes back—you are tougher. And I will agree to the 20 minutes. I do not want to, but I will agree to it.

All I hear for the last week is banging my State and my farmers and my tobacco. And I think I ought to have an opportunity to defend myself and my people. If I am going to be limited to 10 minutes, you know, I am not sure that my colleague and I, with 5 minutes each, can do it adequately. We can do as well as anybody else in 5 minutes.

But I hope they would give some consideration to it.

Mr. President, I will agree to the 20 minutes equally divided, since I have used 5.

Mr. KERRY. I thank the Senator.

Mr. DURBIN. I want to make certain, Mr. President, that I understand. Is this time being taken from the time allocated on my position on the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Time is being charged to the Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. I hope we can reach agreement quickly then. And I yield for the purpose of a question to the Senator from Delaware. I believe the chairman has a suggestion.

Mr. ROTH. I suggest that we proceed with my proposal, Senator DURBIN having 20 minutes equally divided; Senator NICKLES 10 minutes divided; Senator GRAMM 20 minutes divided; and then Senator KERRY of Massachusetts 20 minutes divided.

Mr. DORGAN. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. DORGAN. Reserving the right to object, and I will not object, but I do want at this point to try to understand the circumstances.

When the time has expired on this bill—that will occur I guess in an hour and a half or 2 hours, less than 2 hours—I am wondering what the intentions of the chairman and the ranking member are with respect to further proceedings on the bill.

Will we cast record votes this evening, for example, on the DURBIN amendment? How many additional record votes this evening? How long will we be in session this evening? And when do we intend to begin tomorrow, and with how many amendments?

Mr. ROTH. It is the intent, I say to the Senator from North Dakota, that when the 10 hours expires today, to go out until tomorrow morning, at which time the amendments can be offered and voted upon.

Mr. DORGAN. Further reserving the right to object, is the intent of the chairman to have the additional recorded votes, for example on the DURBIN amendment?

Mr. ROTH. It is unclear at this time. I urge that we proceed, let the debate proceed, and we can work out the other details forthwith.

I move the adoption of my unanimous consent request.

Mr. KENNEDY. Reserving the right to object.

Mr. President, like many others here, I would like to just be able to get a short period of time. To be able to get on the early part of that queue, I would be glad. But I have an amendment with regard to tobacco tax. So I wanted to just make sure that we are going to even be able to discuss this or at least have some idea where we are to have that, too.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, in order to get things moving, let us proceed. Regular order. I urge Senator DURBIN to proceed to debate his amendment, and we can try to work out things.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, if I could just answer my senior colleague.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. I am going to proceed. I hope that my colleagues will meet and discuss UC's, and Senator BOND and I would like to explain an important amendment.

Mr. FORD. Are we on 20?

Mr. DURBIN. I do not think we have any agreement at this moment.

Mr. KERRY. Would the Senator yield for one moment? I think we can get this locked in place.

Mr. DURBIN. I yield only for a question.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, will the Senator permit the Chair to hopefully rule on the unanimous-consent request that was proposed, during which time we will have whatever Democrat time, whatever time on this side of the aisle that remains, divided equally among everybody who has an amendment so that no Senator's preference goes over another, just divide it equally?

Mr. DURBIN. I say to my colleague from Massachusetts, I would be happy to do that, so long as I do not yield my right to the floor in the process.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I move the adoption of my unanimous consent.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, how much time would remain at the end? I am glad to divide it all up with my colleague, but how much time remains?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I have been going around in a circle about 10 times now. I think the best thing to do is to let the Senator from Illinois proceed with the debate of his amendment, and we can try to work out further agreements subsequently.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. Thank you, Mr. President.

AMENDMENT NO. 519

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, this amendment was offered last night. It is an amendment which I think most Members are conversant with because it is not a new issue. This is an issue which has been literally before Congress for almost 50 years.

It is an issue of rank discrimination. It is an issue of unfairness. It is an issue of inequality. And it goes to the heart of protecting American families.

The issue at hand is the deductibility of health insurance premiums.

Those Americans fortunate enough to work for corporations, employees and management, enjoy a 100 percent deductibility of all health insurance premiums. I think that is good policy. It encourages health insurance protection. It protects families.

If you happen to be one of the 23 million Americans who are self-employed and you buy health insurance for your family, your tax deductibility is 40 percent. What does that mean? It means, unfortunately, a higher percentage of self-employed people and their families are uninsured. It means that the children, of course, of these self-employed do not have health insurance protection, and it basically means a discrimination in our Tax Code which should have been removed long ago.

There are those who have argued for gradualism. Let us very, very slowly, in a glacial-like pace reach the day when we have equality and parity, 100 percent deduction for all Americans.

I am happy to be joined by my colleague from Missouri, Senator KIT BOND, and also my other colleagues who have said that they think as I do, that it is time for us to end this inequality and to give real parity and fairness so that both the self-employed and those working for other businesses have the same opportunity for 100 percent tax deduction.

I ask unanimous consent Senators BOND, DORGAN DASCHLE, HARKIN, BOXER, MIKULSKI and JOHNSON be added as cosponsors of my amendment No. 519.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Let me say at this point, too, it is easy to come before this body and to propose new tax benefits. We know the difficult part, the offsets—how do you pay for them?

I have come up with a means of paying for this which I think you can detect has some controversy attached to it, but I think it is reasonable. It would impose an additional 11-cent-per-package tax on cigarettes sold in America and a parallel percentage increase on spit tobacco and snuff.

Now, the bill proposed by the Senate Finance Committee already raised the Federal tax on tobacco and cigarettes, for example, from 24 cents to 44 cents. This bill would add an additional 11 cents. Make no mistake, it is a tax. For those who have told me, as I have spoken to them, ''Oh, I never vote to increase the tax,'' I remind you if you are voting for the Senate Finance Committee bill, you are voting for an increase in this very same tax.

I ask you to consider whether or not it is worth 11 cents on a package of cigarettes to extend this kind of protection to over 20 million Americans. I think it is. I hope you will agree with me.

If we do not make this move this evening, if we do not finally grasp this opportunity, seize this opportunity and increase the deductibility of this health insurance for self-employed, they will languish for 8, 9, or 10 years before ever approximating or reaching parity. That is not fair. It is not fair to the self-employed. It is not fair to the Americans who are disadvantaged by this provision in the Tax Code.

I might also add that many of my colleagues are interested in small business. They believe, as I do that small business is the real engine of economic growth in this country. One of the largest associations of small businesses is the National Federation of Independent Businesses, over 600,000 businesses. When they surveyed their members nationwide, they learned last year that the No. 1 issue—the No. 1 issue—on the minds of their members was the deductibility of health insurance. Business Week magazine recently noted that this was one of the two top obstacles to success for many small businesses. So if you want to encourage small business and the creation of jobs, I urge you to support this amendment.

Let me speak for a moment about this tobacco tax. I know that my colleague and friend from the State of Kentucky feels very passionately about this issue. I might tell him that I do as well. I will tell you what will occur if you increase the cost of tobacco products. Children will be less inclined to buy them. As these products become more expensive, children cannot afford them. It is a fact that has been proven over and again. It was recently shown just a few years ago in Canada when they had a dramatic increase in their tobacco tax. So we know that by increasing this tax by 11 cents, we end up making over 20 million Americans who are self-employed, give them a position of fairness when it comes to tax treatment, and we reduce the likelihood that children will end up using these tobacco products.

Now I know there will be a lot said about tobacco farmers in opposition to my amendment. I want to make this a matter of record. I have said from the beginning I am prepared to work with those Members who want to help transition tobacco farmers into other crops and other livelihoods. I believe that is the wave of the future and it should be part of any comprehensive change in tobacco policy.

I will conclude and then defer to my colleague from Missouri. An estimated 4½ million American children and teenagers smoke cigarettes and another million use smokeless tobacco. Every 30 seconds in America a child smokes for the first time—3,000 a day—and a third of them—1,000—will die with this addiction to nicotine. And teenage smoking has risen by nearly 50 percent since 1991.

So I say to my colleagues, I think this is a balanced approach. It helps those who truly deserve it. It says to the tobacco industry, we will make your product a little more expensive and take it out of the hands of children. This is a reality. If you look at the State taxes around the United States, some of them range as high as $1 a package and they are going up. The States understand this is a source of revenue which is a reasonable source to turn to for legitimate reasons. We should turn to the source of revenue, turn to it this evening.

I yield for purposes of debate, but do not yield the floor, to my colleague from Missouri, Senator BOND.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Missouri.

How much time is yielded?

Mr. DURBIN. Five minutes.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I thank my distinguished colleague and neighbor from Illinois. I commend him for his perseverance in being able to hold on to the floor. These are very difficult times and this is a very important amendment. I congratulate him on staying with it so we can bring this up and debate it while we have the attention of this body.

I believe my experience in the State of Missouri is probably like the experience that most of us have had in our own States. As we travel around and talk to farmers, to people involved in small business, to truck drivers, day care operators, people who work for themselves, they ask an unanswerable question: Why is it that I can only deduct, now, 40 percent of what I pay in health insurance premiums for myself and my family when my neighbor next door who works for a large corporation, or in the country when my neighbor next door who works for a large corporate farm gets his or her health care paid and the employer deducts 100-percent of what they pay and they do not have to include any of the health insurance on their income tax? Why does the self-employed person only get to deduct 40 percent?

Frankly, there is no answer, Mr. President. There is a gross inequity in this system. It is an inequity that has been pointed out by every farm organization in my State time and time again. It has been pointed out by organizations representing small business.

At the conclusion of my remarks, I will enter in the RECORD a letter from the NFIB of June 26 expressing their strong support for the 100-percent deductibility for the amounts paid for health insurance for self-employed business owners.

This is a matter of equity. This is a matter that is absolutely essential to see that the 5.1 million self-employed individuals in the country today have health insurance and the 1.3 million children who do not have health insurance and who live in a family headed by an entrepreneur, a self-employed business owner.

This, to me, is not only an inequity, but it is a very bad policy outcome. We are talking about the health of children. One of the best things we can do is provide 100 percent deductibility.

Mr. President, the reason I am here joining with my colleague from Illinois, we have pointed out in this tax relief bill, this tax reduction bill that is before the Senate now, with $85 billion in taxes, we have pointed out that this is one of the top priorities of small business and of farmers, of the struggling working middle class of America.

Before the debate began, I circulated a letter signed by 52 of my colleagues, in addition, saying that this was important. Unfortunately, the three top small business priorities were excluded—the self-employed tax deduction for health care, the home office business deduction, and the independent contractor. This measure, unfortunately, is not in either the House or the Senate bill. We feel it is vitally important to put it there. I congratulate my colleague from Illinois in choosing the tobacco tax. Tobacco taxes are being raised in this bill. There is no more important place to put those taxes than this, guaranteeing health for self-employed and their children.

In addition to the figures that my colleague from Illinois stated, about 3,000 children becoming regular smokers every day, last week when Senator BUMPERS and I introduced a measure to encourage pregnant women to stop smoking, I pointed out that while tobacco use among most pregnant women is declining, tobacco usage among teenage pregnant women is on the increase. In my State it is 50 percent above the national average, and not surprisingly our birth-defect rate is 50 percent above the nationwide average. This will have an impact on discouraging teenagers from starting to smoke. It will help encourage pregnant women, particularly pregnant teenagers, to stop smoking.

Mr. President, this is an important matter of equity. It is a matter of health care policy. I urge my colleagues to support what I know will be a required budget waiver so that this could be included.

Before I yield the floor, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the letter of June 26 from the vice president for Federal Government relations of NFIB, Dan Danner, saying, ''The self-employed have an extremely difficult time purchasing health insurance. This is why 3 million self-employed business owners have no health insurance, nor do 1.3 million of their children.''

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT BUSINESS,
June 26, 1997.

Hon. CHRISTOPHER BOND,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR BOND: On behalf of the 600,000 members of the National Federation of Independent Business, I am writing to express our strong support for 100% deductibility of the amounts paid for health insurance for self-employed business owners.

The CEOs of large corporations can deduct 100 percent of their health care costs, while the self-employed can only currently deduct 40 percent of their health care costs. This is simply not fair. The Kassebaum/Kennedy health care law was a good first step, but still does not give the self-employed the fairness they deserve in that the law only allows the self-employed to deduct 80 percent of their health care costs by the year 2006.

The self-employed have an extremely difficult time purchasing health insurance. This is why 3 million self-employed business owners currently have no health insurance, nor do 1.3 million of their children. Full deductibility will help make health insurance more affordable for these small business owners. Therefore, the self-employed need full deductibility now.

Sincerely,

DAN DANNER,
Vice President,
Federal Governmental Relations.

Mr. BOND. I yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, would the Senator from Delaware give me 4 minutes?

Mr. ROTH. I yield 4 minutes to the Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, one, I want to ask my colleagues to vote no on the Durbin-Bond amendment and tell them I think I have a pretty good record—I heard the support of NFIB for deductibility for the self-employed. I used to be self-employed, so I support that.

For my colleagues' information, I will be offering an amendment after the Durbin amendment, very soon, that will accelerate and allow self-employed people to deduct a greater percentage for their health insurance at a much faster rate than now is under existing law. It does not go to 100 percent, but likewise we do not increase taxes another 10 cents, which I think a lot of people, not just from tobacco States, are saying ''Wait, we are already increasing it 20 cents, almost doubling the tax, should we do another 10 cents?''

I might mention the Finance Committee said we would stop at 20 cents. I do not think the Durbin amendment will become law. I want to let my colleagues know we will offer an amendment that will accelerate deductibility for the self-employed. We will be offering that subsequent to this so they can vote no on the Durbin amendment, vote yes on the amendment that Senator HAGEL and I will be introducing momentarily that will give the self-employed a greater benefit for deducting their insurance.

I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. I am pleased to yield 5 minutes to the Senator.

Mr. FORD. My other colleague will need some time, too. I thank the chairman.

You know, Mr. President, this has been an interesting week. We had a negotiation with the attorneys general around the country, and the tobacco industry is stuck for almost $370 billion. The price of cigarettes go up. How much more do you want? And then the Finance Committee puts on 20 cents more, and that raises the price of cigarettes and smokeless tobacco. And now we want to put on 11 cents more. Why? To help the small businessman get a deductible on his health insurance?

At the same time, you are putting 65,000 farm families out of work in my State. You say you are going to help. You may never get the bill to help. I think it is time to stop it. It is time we quit. My farmers have to survive. And we hear all the States have an excise tax. Well, we had a good many here in the past that would vote against any excise tax because they thought it all should go to the States. It is their prerogative. But when you add 20 cents onto the State, and you add another 11 cents onto the State, then you add 75 cents on, if you get the negotiated agreement out there, the income to the community and to the Federal Government are going to go straight down. They are playing with funny money, because the more you increase it, the less income you are going to have. When you increase the tax, the less income you are going to have. So now you say you have all this income coming in—you are playing with funny money.

One other point, Mr. President. You talk about low income—59.5 percent of this tax will come out of those who make less than $30,000 a year—$30,000 a year—and 34 percent of the money the Senator from Illinois and the Senator from Missouri want will come from those that make less than $15,000. Talk about the little man—you are talking away from the man that makes $15,000 and a man with a family that makes less than $30,000. You are going to take 60, 65 percent of that money from that group. What do they benefit? You put them out of business.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the Tax Foundation's analysis on where the cigarette tax and smokeless tax would come from and how many States would lose what money, and how many individuals of what financial income category would have to pay for this.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

BOTTOM LINE ON FINANCE COMMITTEE'S PROPOSED 20¢ CIGARETTE EXCISE HIKE: BOTTOM INCOME EARNERS WOULD PICK UP MOST OF THE TAB

WASHINGTON, D.C., JUNE 20, 1997.—The Senate Finance Committee' proposed 20¢ per pack addition to the current 24¢ federal cigarette excise could play havoc with lower-income Americans' pocketbooks, according to an analysis by the Tax Foundation.

Tax Foundation Economist Patrick Fleenor says that, judging by historic cigarette consumptions patterns, over a third of the $15 billion that the Finance Committee hopes to bring in over five years will be paid by those earning less than $15,000 a year (see Chart 1). Another 25 percent of the total revenues will be paid by Americans earning between $15,000 and $30,000. In all, those earning $30,000 or less would foot about 60 percent of the total bill for the new tax.

CHART 1: NEW COLLECTIONS BY INCOME GROUP BASED ON FINANCE COMMITTEE'S 20¢ CIGARETTE EXCISE HIKE

under $15,000	$5,098.2	34.0
$15,000 under $30,000	3,819.9	25.5
$30,000 under $45,000	2,315.2	15.4
$45,000 under $60,000	1,318.8	8.8
$60,000 under $75,000	911.6	6.1
$75,000 under $115,000	982.5	6.6
$115,000 under $300,000	474.2	3.2
$300,000 and over	80.0	0.5
Total	15,000.0	100.0

Juxtaposed to this, those earning $115,000 or more will account for less than four percent of the additional tax revenues.

''Whether the Finance Committee recognizes it or not, the proposed tax will really make a dent in the budgets of America's lower-income households,'' Mr. Fleenor stated.

In a state by state comparison, California will bear the single largest burden if the new tax is enacted, paying $1.16 billion to the U.S. Treasury over five years (see Chart 2). The 10 states with the highest projected tax payments will pay 50 percent of the overall tax increase, according to Mr. Fleenor's calculations (see Chart 3).

''What's ironic about this tax,'' noted Tax Foundation Executive Director J.D. Foster, ''is that, with over half of it earmarked for healthcare costs for poor children, it amounts to a case of the poor paying for new programs for the poor.''

NEW TAX FOUNDATION ANALYSES QUESTION ROLE OF EXCISE TAXES IN SOUND FEDERAL AND STATE TAX POLICY

WASHINGTON, D.C., JUNE 20, 1997.—Do excise taxes represent good or bad tax policy? The Tax Foundation recently published the first two in a series of five Background Papers focusing on this and other questions relating to the role excise taxes play in our economy.

In ''Excise Taxes and Sound Tax Policy,'' Dr. John R. McGowan, Associate Professor of Accounting at Saint Louis University's School of Business, provides an overview of how and why the federal excise system evolved.

Excise taxes have always played a large role in the federal government's revenue collections, forming the bulk of total revenues in the early years of the republic.

While excise taxes constitute under five percent of total revenues today, the federal government still imposes excises on a wide variety of goods and services, including gasoline and diesel fuel, tobacco and alcohol products, airline tickets, firearm sales and firearm dealers, heavy trucks and trailers, large tires, coal, vaccines, fishing equipment, and even bows and arrows. Federal excise receipts recently approached $60 billion.

Today, about 70 percent of excise revenues come from the taxes on alcohol, tobacco, and gasoline and diesel fuel, says Dr. McGowan. The accompanying charts shows that federal excises on distilled spirits, beer, and wine, raised about $7.2 billion in 1995, while the tobacco excise raised about $5.9 billion, and gasoline and diesel fuel taxes raised over $22.6 billion.

Dr. McGowan concludes that while excise taxes are relatively easy for governments to impose, they generally do not represent sound tax policy. Excise taxes can introduce significant amounts of inefficiencies into the economic marketplace and create a net reduction of benefits for consumers. Most significantly, excise taxes are widely believed to be regressive and therefore contrary to long-held concepts of fairness in the United States tax system.

In ''The Use and Abuse of Excise Taxes,'' Dr. Dwight R. Lee, of the University of Georgia, examined the inefficiencies of the excise tax. While he acknowledged that inefficiencies are inherent in any taxation, because taxes distort the economic choices that people make, Dr. Lee observed that the most efficient tax system minimizes this type of distortion.

Excise taxes, however, are conspicuously at odds with the goal of reducing tax distortions, says Dr. Lee. They are the most distorting of all taxes per dollar raised. Instead of spreading the tax burden as neutrally as possible over a broad tax base, excise taxes single out a few products for a high and discriminatory tax burden. While obviously unfair to the consumers of the taxed product, imposing or increasing excise taxes to fund tax relief for other taxpayers only exacerbates the problem.

Excise taxes are sometimes proposed to fund specific government spending programs, called ''earmarking.'' Only in a very few situations—where the consumption of a product is complementary to the use of some other good that cannot easily be priced directly—can earmarked excise taxes be efficient. But even here the efficiency of the excise tax depends upon the revenues being unconditionally allocated to the complementary use to reduce the cost of rent seeking. The greater the rent seeking over the allocation of the revenues from a potentially efficient excise tax, the less efficient it is and the lower the efficient rate of taxation (under reasonable assumptions about the relevant elasticity of demand).

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, let's be fair. We had a negotiated agreement. It wasn't good enough. That may be the floor. So here we come with 20 cents more, and then 11 cents more. I have 65,000 farm families that this legislation will put out of business. Oh, we are going to take care of them. Well, you take care of them, then I will talk about taxes. You take care of my farmers and I will talk about taxes after that. I will talk about how much you get from the tobacco industry. I will talk about how much you are going to do for this group or that group. So take care of my farmers, take care of my people. I have stood by and watched these people be run over long enough. Oh, you can come out here with crocodile tears. I can tell you all the sad stories. But small businessmen are small businessmen, and a small farmer is still a small farmer. And 69 percent of my farmers have another job. It becomes a husband, wife, and family occupation. You want to put them out of work.

I understand smoking. I have been smoking for 54 years and I am still here, thank God. I understand smoking. My grandchildren don't smoke, and I understand all of that. But then, a while ago, we didn't put a little deductible, or eliminate the deductible on the distilled spirits industry—beer, wine, and distilled spirits. Here we have tobacco and you pile on and pile on and pile on.

Mr. President, I hope my colleagues will do the best they can to help in this case. It is an additional tax. It is putting my people out of work. It is saying to children on the farm—children on the farm—that you are going to have less income next year. You are going to have less next year. Substitute another crop. That indicates that you don't know what tobacco brings, you don't know what corn brings, or what soybeans brings—$1,844 net profit for an acre of tobacco, and $100 from soybeans. You have to plant acres and acres and acres of soybeans and one acre of tobacco.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. FORD. I suppose it's time. I was sweating anyhow.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from Kentucky, [Mr. MCCONNELL].

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, if I were a Senator from any other State listening to this debate, I guess I would have to conclude that I don't have any tobacco growers. Cigarette smoking is obviously not good for your health. Why should I not vote for the Durbin-Bond amendment?

Reason No. 1: We entered into a budget agreement and this breaks it wide open. There has been a lot of momentum in this Chamber over the last week to stick to the budget agreement. This is a deal breaker. It wasn't negotiated by the President and the leaders of the Republican Congress. It wasn't even voted on by the Senate Finance Committee.

So the stake you have in this, I say to my colleagues, you will be voting to bust the budget deal wide open, in order to raise taxes on low-income Americans. What a great idea. This is supposed to be a package about lowering taxes by $85 billion, or close thereto, over the next 5 years, and a vote for the Durbin-Bond amendment turns it into a tax increase bill—a tax increase bill on the lowest income people in America. In fact, 60 percent of any tobacco tax increase will be borne by Americans making less than $30,000 a year. So you will be transforming this bill, which has been criticized by some downtown as somehow a benefit for the wealthy, into a major tax increase on the most vulnerable, low-income people in our society.

Regardless of how you feel about tobacco, regardless about how you feel about smoking—I don't smoke and don't support it particularly; I think it is not good for you—it is a legal product. That isn't the issue here. Why in the world, in a bill designed to lower taxes, would we want to have a whopping tax increase on the lowest income people in America?

My good friend from Missouri said it is a matter of equity. It sure is. What is equitable about it? We are singling out one industry and one socioeconomic group in America for a major tax increase in a bill designed to lower taxes on working American families. It absolutely distorts everything this tax reduction bill is supposed to be about. Obviously, it has an impact on my State. Senator FORD and I feel passionately about this. Maybe some product in your State will be next. But this transforms this bill into a major tax increase on low-income Americans. I can't think of a worse direction to go in.

Finally, let me say that it is estimated that it will cost our State of Kentucky 2,700 jobs, just like that. Clearly, that is a matter of major concern to us. But the consumers of cigarettes are all over America, not just in Kentucky, not just in North Carolina. They are, by and large, lower income people, who will continue to smoke after that, and you have just socked them with a major tax increase, Mr. President.

I certainly hope my colleagues will not, A, break the budget deal and, B, have a whopping tax increase on low-income Americans.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from North Carolina.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Mr. President, I don't know of a lot more that can be said on the subject. It has been very adequately and eloquently addressed by the two Senators from Kentucky. But we talk about equity and we talk about fairness, but the truth of it is that is not even in the vernacular of what we are saying here tonight. What we are doing is very simply this—I said it yesterday, I think, or the day before—they said it was a historic session. Yes, it is a historic session. We are destroying an industry that has served this country for 300-plus years, and we are simply wiping it out.

Now, when you go to the 77,000 workers in North Carolina and say to them, your job is gone, your industry is gone, but the good news is that international air travel is cheaper for you—most of them haven't been out of the county. So that is what we are saying here.

I don't doubt that the real interest here is to reduce and enable people to deduct their health insurance. I didn't notice that it was proposed to be paid for by any 10-cents-a-bushel tax on corn. And they go back to Illinois and Missouri and explain to the corn farmers there that we really have done you a great favor. No, it is on tobacco, which has been the whipping boy. Anybody in the Senate or in the Congress in the last year or two that had an ax that needed to be ground, they have come to the tobacco industry to grind it for them. That is very simply what happened. This is a source of money for whatever eleemosynary or good feeling or cause we have. This is a source of money.

As has been said earlier, enough is enough. I hope colleagues in the Senate will recognize that this has gone far enough. It breaks a budget agreement, and it is time to stop it.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished Senator from North Carolina, Mr. HELMS.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina, Mr. HELMS, is recognized.

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, we have taken on the air of a Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera here tonight and all this week. I heard on the radio, I say to my colleague from North Carolina, on the early morning news, several days ago, I heard a Senator say, ''Yes, we are going to give umpteen hundred million dollars to children''—he didn't say children, he said ''chillin,'' and, oh, how benevolent he was—''because we are going to raise the cigarette tax,'' we are going to sock the tobacco companies. Well, he is not going to do any such thing. But that is what he wants the folks back home to think.

Speaker after speaker has pointed out that you are not taxing the tobacco companies; you are taxing the lower income people of this population of the United States. If you don't believe it, look at the record. Yet, they say, we are socking it to the tobacco companies—the evil tobacco companies—and they have all sorts of statistics that they pulled out of their hip pocket, saying how many lives it is going to save. They are not going to save any lives.

The point is, I say to my friend from Kentucky, it is so much hot air. They know it is hot air, but they have nothing else to say. And they want a headline back home that Senator Joe Blow really socked it to the tobacco companies. No, Joe Blow is not socking it to the tobacco companies.

He is socking it to the low-income people of this country who do something that maybe Joe Blow doesn't do—enjoy cigarettes. I don't smoke. Nobody in my family does. But I will tell you one thing. When you get down to it, it's a matter of choice and statistics—and you can play all sorts of games with statistics. But LAUCH FAIRCLOTH has it right and so does the distinguished Senator from Kentucky. Both of them have it right about how many jobs this is going to adversely affect.

This is the game we play. Go ahead and play it if you think you can win. I hope you can. But get you a little monkey and one of these organ grinders and sing this debate that you are making about tobacco, then you can be really funny.

I thank the Senator. I yield such time as I may have.

Ms. MOSELEY-BRAUN. Mr. President, I would like to express my support for the spirit embodied in Senator DURBIN's amendment to S. 949. This amendment seeks to increase the health insurance deduction for self-employed individuals to 100 percent. I agree that this is the right thing to do and that the Senate should consider options for ensuring that small business owners, particularly women, and farmers have access to the same tax deductions that are available to large corporations. I do not, however, agree with the way my Illinois colleague has suggested we pay for this particular increase, and for that reason, I cannot support this amendment.

The bill before us today reflects a long and tedious, bipartisan compromise among the members of the Finance Committee. That compromise, which provides for increased access to education, increased savings incentives, family tax relief, and agricultural and business investment incentives, also reflects some hard choices regarding upon whom the burden to pay for such benefits should fall. A part of the compromise made by the members of the Finance Committee was the decision to forgo increasing tobacco taxes at the present time. This decision was made with due consideration to the ongoing tobacco litigation, which may result in a dramatic increase in current tobacco taxes.

I definitely support the spirit of Senator DURBIN's amendment. A 100 percent deduction for health insurance premiums could reduce the annual net cost of health insurance for a typical family by as much as $500 to $1,000. In addition, such a deduction could provide tax equity for the 10.6 million self-employed Americans who currently can only receive a 40 percent deduction, unlike large corporations, who currently can deduct 100 percent of incurred health insurance premiums. There is no doubt that there is merit to the goals of this amendment.

As much as I would like to support the amendment presented by my colleague today, however, I believe that the compromise made by the Finance Committee should be honored. To do otherwise could place other programs and incentives of vital importance to the average American family and small business at risk. Because I believe that we have an obligation to make good on the promises of this bill, I cannot support this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. NICKLES. Would the Senator yield 1 minute to me?

Mr. ROTH. I yield 1 minute to the Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. I again remind my colleagues. I urge them to vote ''no'' on the Durbin amendment. There may be a point of order raised on it. I hope they sustain the point of order. I again remind them that right after this amendment, we will be offering an amendment that will have a significant improvement on deductibility for self-employed persons, one that I believe we cannot only pass but hopefully prevail in conference on as well.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DURBIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Could I ask my friend and colleague from Delaware, are there any more requests for time on their side of the aisle?

Mr. ROTH. No. I will yield back my time.

Mr. DURBIN. Might I have 3 or 4 minutes? Then I will be prepared to yield back the floor as well.

Mr. ROTH. Does the Senator have time remaining?

Mr. DURBIN. Yes. I believe I have some time remaining.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has 23 minutes left.

Mr. DURBIN. I will not use that, I guarantee you.

Let me say this. I want to respond to some of the points raised in this debate. I have been involved in this debate for over a decade and have heard many of these arguments, and I disagree with them. But I do respect my colleagues both in the House and in the Senate who make these arguments. I believe they are heartfelt and sincere. I believe they are speaking for the people that they represent.

I believe I am speaking for the people that I represent not only in Illinois but across the Nation when I talk about the need to have some fairness when it comes to hospitalization insurance premiums and to stop all of the promises that have gone on for more than a decade that we are going to give these people fairness. ''Oh, we love small business. Oh, we love the family farmer. We are going to get around to helping you on health insurance matters in the next year 2 years.'' Senator NICKLES said maybe 10 years from now we are going to get around to it.

Please. I have been involved in that debate. Senator DORGAN has. Senator CONRAD has. This has gone on for more than a decade.

All of these promises we can deliver on tonight.

Listen to the arguments. Again, I find it incredible.

One of my colleagues from Kentucky stands up and says this busts the budget deal. What? There was a provision in the budget deal that I voted for on this floor that limited the tobacco tax to only a 20-cent increase? I missed that provision. I don't think it was in there. If you will read it closely, that wasn't part of the budget deal.

I might say to my colleagues. This is meddling strange—that you can impose a 20-cent increase in the Finance Committee, and it has no impact on employment in Kentucky or North Carolina, but Durbin wants to put 11 cents on, and all of a sudden we have thousands of people out of work. My goodness. Twenty cents has no impact, and 11 cents more we have tipped the scales, and it is all over for tobacco? Give me a break. Give me a break.

What we are talking about here is an 11-cent increase on an item which is going to cost you $2, $3, or $4 a pack anyway.

You know, they talk about it being a regressive tax. Poor people smoke. Yes, they do. Yes, they do. They are correct in saying that. Eighty-five percent of the people smoking today—poor and rich, it is the same thing—''I wish I could quit. I really wish I could quit.'' Some of them say, ''You know, if the tax gets too high, I might not be able to afford these darned things.''

So you are talking about helping poor people. You are going to help them quit smoking, and help them live a little longer. That is a real help.

Again, one of my colleagues said, ''Why don't you go around and tax corn? You have corn in Illinois. Why are you taxing tobacco from my State?''

There is a big difference. The corn in Illinois and the corn in Missouri can be used for nutritious purposes. When it comes right down to it, tobacco is neither food nor fiber—neither food nor fiber.

And let me add this. Tobacco is the only crop regulated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture which has a body count, the biggest single preventable cause of death each year. Don't stand up and tell me this is another agricultural product, another farm commodity. This is an item which, used according to manufacturers' directions, will kill you. That is what tobacco is all about. It is not another agricultural product.

So when you talk about imposing a tax on this, we are talking about the health of America and the health of children. Oh, yes, in that low-income group, that regressive tax, that tobacco tax—the low-income group includes a lot of Americans who live on allowances they get from their parents. Those are the low-income Americans, too, kids going and buying tobacco on the corner.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DURBIN. I am happy to yield.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. Would you give me an estimate of how many people are sick or die from drinking liquor a year made out of corn?

Mr. DURBIN. I can't answer you that question.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. If you know a lot about tobacco, then you should know something about corn.

Mr. DURBIN. I know that corn is a nutritious product and can be used and is probably consumed on a regular basis by the Senator who asked me the question. He looks pretty healthy.

I will tell you something else. Tobacco is the No. 1 preventable cause of death in America today. You can't say that about corn, soybeans, wheat or any other commodity. You can't say that about it. You know it as well as I do. You can't make light of the fact that a product, if used as intended, kills people. You can't make light of the fact that when you follow the manufacturers' directions, you die when you use that product.

Mr. FAIRCLOTH. What is the point? I am not trying to—

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, let the Senator speak on his own time.

Mr. President, regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois has the floor.

Mr. DURBIN. Let me tell you this in closing.

I have heard a lot of arguments tonight made about the defense of tobacco. I say to my colleagues on both sides, if you are ready to vote for this tax bill, you are already imposing a tax on tobacco of 20 cents. I am saying to you that 11 cents is going to buy a lot of good for America—not only keeping the products out of the hands of kids but finally keeping our promise to small business and family farmers.

I urge you to look beyond some of the arguments that you have heard tonight, that you have heard over and over again, and think about the bottom line when this is done. Thirty-one cents on a package of tobacco is not going to break the tobacco industry. But it is going to save a lot of small businesses which will have a chance to survive.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I make a point of order that a quorum is not present.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, has the distinguished Senator from Illinois returned all time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. No. The Senator from Illinois has 18 more minutes remaining.

Mr. ROTH. Does the Senator want to yield back?

Mr. DURBIN. I am prepared to yield back my time.

Mr. ROTH. I am prepared to yield back the remainder of the time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time is yielded.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, the pending amendment is not germane to the provisions of the reconciliation measure. I, therefore, raise a point of order against the amendment under section 305(b)(2) of the Budget Act.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

Mr. DURBIN. I move to waive the Budget Act, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

VOTE ON MOTION TO WAIVE THE BUDGET ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question occurs on agreeing to the motion to waive the Budget Act in relation to the Durbin amendment No. 519. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Kansas [Mr. ROBERTS] is necessarily absent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 41, nays 58, as follows:

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 41, the nays are 58. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected.

The point of order is sustained and the amendment falls.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 518

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I opposed the Bumpers Amendment that would repeal percentage depletion for hardrock mining companies operating on public and formerly public lands. I believe this amendment is the wrong approach to bringing about mining law reform.

Hardrock mining provides many high-paying jobs and is essential to the economy of Montana. This amendment would raise taxes on the hardrock mining industry which will negatively effect everyone that depends on mining for their economic livelihood.

The intent of this amendment is not about percentage depletion. This amendment is an overt attempt to punish the hardrock mining industry for the lack of success in reforming the 1872 Mining Law. Percentage depletion is being used as a surrogate to bring about reform. If there are problems with the 1872 Mining Law, we should approach those problems directly—not in the form of repealing percentage depletion. Let's not wage economic warfare against an entire industry.

The repeal of percentage depletion is the wrong tool for bringing about mining law reform. The Bumpers amendment could have potentially devastating effects on the hardrock mining industry.

CHILDREN'S HEALTH CARE PROVISION

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, today, I voted for an amendment to the Budget Act which would improve access to health insurance for uninsured children in our country by providing an additional $8 billion to the $16 billion already contained in this bill for children's health care. This $24 billion in new Federal funding will allow us to expand Medicaid coverage for very low-income children and will put affordable health care insurance within the reach of every family.

I am deeply concerned about the approximately 10 million children in our country who are currently lacking health insurance coverage. It is distressing that such a large number of our children lack access to primary and preventative care. I find it even more disconcerting that recent reports indicate that most of these children reside in families with one or more working parents.

Providing access to health care for uninsured children has been a priority for me since coming to the Senate. During the 103d Congress, I offered legislation which attempted to address this problem and provide access to health care for many of our Nation's uninsured children. This issue has remained a high priority for me in the 105th Congress and I am pleased that we were able to pass this amendment today.

This amendment is financed by a 20-cent-a-pack increase in the cigarette tax, which will raise enough revenues to provide the additional $8 billion for children's health insurance coverage. Although I have traditionally opposed new taxes, I believe that this proposal is necessary to help working parents purchase affordable health care coverage for their children.

I wholeheartedly believe that every child deserves a healthy beginning in life. There should not be any children in our country who cannot count on access to quality health care when they need it. I believe that this bipartisan children's health insurance proposal will address this problem in a fiscally responsible manner and allow us to provide coverage to our Nation's most vulnerable population.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I rise in strong support of the tax cut bull that forms the heart of the second reconciliation bill.

I want to take this opportunity to commend the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator ROTH and the ranking member, Senator MOYNIHAN, for their efforts in ensuring that the Finance Committee's bill was reported with strong bipartisan support. I hope the spirit of bipartisanship that permeated the committee's work will extend to our debate on the Senate floor.

Mr. President, during this past week, we considered the first budget reconciliation bill which was designed to slow the growth of Federal spending and to stop the hemorrhaging of the Medicare Program. And we successfully achieved both goals while at the same time making a commitment to boost funding by $16 billion to enable more children in America to obtain health insurance.

The tax bill we are considering today builds on that achievement by earmarking $8 billion from increased tobacco taxes for expanded children's health insurance. With this unprecedented $24 billion commitment of funds for children's health insurance, I believe the Senate has made an investment in the health of the children of America that should alleviate the anxieties and fears of millions of parents about paying for the health care of their children.

What is even more remarkable about the reconciliation bills we are considering this week is that at the end of the process, we will have set this Government on course to finally achieve a balanced budget. While I believe the tax cuts contained in this bill provide much needed financial relief for the vast majority of working Americans, I believe our greatest achievement is balancing the budget.

What that means is that when this agreement is fully implemented in 5 years, the Federal Government will no longer have to borrow to keep this Government operating. Most importantly, the balanced budget will give us the opportunity to finally begin paying down our enormous $5-plus trillion national debt.

Mr. President, on Monday, the world's financial markets were reminded of the enormity of the American Government's debt and the impact that debt has on the global marketplace. When Japanese Prime Minister Hashimoto suggested that he was tempted to sell off portions of Japan's American debt portfolio to stabilize the yen/dollar exchange rate, markets plummeted throughout the world. On Wall Street, we saw the Dow Jones average drop 192 points, the second largest point decline in exchange history.

Although markets recovered after Japan's Finance Minister dismissed the idea that Japan would dump it's Treasury securities, the lesson is unmistakable. The security of our economy can never be assured so long as this country continues to run deficits and pile up billions in additional debt. As long as we must turn to world markets to finance Government spending, our economy's health is always in danger of being held hostage to the political whims of foreign governments and speculators.

That is why it is so important that we balance the budget and begin to pay down the debt. And that is why these reconciliations bills are vital to our Nation's economic security.

Mr. President, the tax bill before us provides much-needed relief for the hard-working middle-income families who have not seen their tax burden reduced in 16 years. Despite what some of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle may allege about this tax bill, the lion's share of the income tax cuts—81 percent—will go to families earning between $12,000 and $62,000.

This bipartisan bill will reduce the taxes paid by every low- and middle-income family with a child by $500. For a family with three children under 13, their tax burden will be reduced by $1,500. That's $1,500 that the family will have available to pay off bills, buy clothing for their children or spend as they see fit.

A provision in the bill requires families with children between the ages of 13 and 17 to invest their $500 children's tax credit in an educational savings account. While I think it is important that we do as much as we can to encourage families to save for college, I think it is inappropriate for us to require families to establish these accounts. I will support an amendment that will debate this provision from the bill.

The bill also provides more than $30 million in tax relief for families that are facing enormous college education bills. And it encourages economic growth and savings by reducing the capital gains tax and expanding individual retirement accounts.

I also applaud the changes the committee made to the estate tax, with the goal that family businesses should be kept together rather than split apart in order to pay estate taxes. In fact, Mr. President, it is my hope that we can fundamentally change, if not eliminate, the estate tax with what can only be called confiscatory tax rates. Although we have not been able to achieve that result in this bill, I think that should be one of our goals when we consider fundamental tax reform in the future.

Mr. President, the items I have just noted represent the highlights of the bill. What is again worth mentioning is how we were able to craft this bill. We did it with input and good debate between Republicans and Democrats on the committee. There was no rancor. We were not partisan, we tried to work within the confines of the budget agreement negotiated by our leadership with the White House.

I would hope that that spirit of bipartisanship will continue as we debate this bill since I think we can all agree that the goal of providing tax relief for hard-working Americans and encouraging savings and investment are in the best long-term interests of our Nation.

AMENDMENT NO. 518

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, as he has done numerous times over the past 10 years, Senator BUMPERS again attacked the hardrock mining industry in the United States. This time, he chose to introduce an amendment to the Tax Reconciliation Bill to repeal the percentage depletion allowance. This allowance has been in the tax code for over 60 years and repeal would be an arbitrary tax increase on the industry.

Repeal of the allowance is a tax increase. Mining companies cannot recover higher costs, including higher taxes, by raising prices because mineral prices are set by international commodity market. It should be noted that the mining industry already pays high average federal tax rates—32 percent per a GAO study—because of the corporate alternative minimum tax.

In addition to the damage that would be done by this arbitrary tax increase, I would emphasize that this is not the way to reform the mining law. Although Senator BUMPERS and I may not agree on the specific reforms necessary, we do both agree that a comprehensive, responsible reform is necessary. Along with my other Western colleagues, I would like to see reform that is environmentally sound and allows industry to thrive in a healthy and supportive atmosphere. A one-shot tax increase on the Senate floor is neither comprehensive nor responsible. Any reform of such an economically significant domestic industry should be done through the committee process where all parties have a chance to be heard and the issues can be dealt with in a thoughtful and meaningful manner.

I voted against the Bumpers amendment today and I am pleased that it was defeated.

BROAD BASE REFORM

Mr. SHELBY. Mr. President, the bill before the Senate tonight, promises to provide about $75.8 billion in tax relief over the next 5 years and approximately $238 over 10 years. Mr. President, that is a good step forward. But, Mr. President, I rise tonight to remind and encourage my colleagues that while this bill might be viewed as a good step forward in providing tax relief to the American people. It is just that: a step forward—hopefully, toward greater reform in the future.

I will offer a sense-of-the-Senate resolution for a very simple, but very important purpose: We must not forsake our broader agenda to seek comprehensive reform of our tax system. Tax cuts are not a substitute for broad based reform.

Mr. President, while we live in a society that accepts the notion that some level of taxation is necessary to finance the cost of government, our challenge has always been how much government and at what cost.

In my view, the power to tax is the most ominous and potentially destructive power granted to government by the people and that is because taxes empower governments, not people, With that in mind, our tax policy should do no more harm than is necessary to achieve its stated good. This maxim underscores why we need to change our current system, and specifically eliminate the estate and capital gains taxes.

Our current tax system promotes waste and inefficiency, penalizes savings and investment and rewards dependency. Not only is the current Tax Code inequitable in who and how it taxes, it is responsible for fueling much of the growth of government and Federal spending. Changing how we collect revenue to pay for the cost of government will be a significant step in helping devolve power from Washington back to the people and restoring greater freedom.

We need to address significant tax policy changes that will not only provide taxpayers' relief, but will simplify and equalize tax collection. Taxation is bad enough without administering that tax through an inefficient, inequitable, complex and unresponsive tax system.

Yesterday, the National Commission on Restructuring the IRS came out with their report and recommendations. I have not had an opportunity to review their report completely, but I did note that simplification on the Tax Code was among one of their primary recommendations, including establishing one broad based tax system.

While the Commission was not tasked and did not address specific legislative proposals to reform the tax system, I believe that the underlying principle of seeking a''truly fair and comprehensive'' tax system is something we can all agree on And I would take this opportunity to commend my colleagues from Nebraska and Iowa for their leadership on this issue.

While I believe a flat tax is the most equitable replacement that supports the most freedom at the least cost—this resolution is not an endorsement of the flat tax. It only calls for Congress and the President to move forward with consideration of broad based reform.

While this bill attempts to reverse the punitive effects of our tax policy and tax system which currently punishes the basic values of work, savings and individual liberty, it is not sufficient to undo the basic premise that seems to underlie the current system and that is that the Government is entitled to all that you earn. And only through selected, targeted tax credits, deductions, exemptions and the like are the American people allowed to keep portions of the income that they work hard every day to earn.

Our tax policy should support the most freedom at the least cost and embody the least intrusive means of levying and collecting taxes. But most importantly of all, Mr. President, we need a policy that does not punish the basic values of work, savings and individual liberty.

Mr. President, without comprehensive tax reform, we will never truly be able to say that the era of big government is over.

Mr. President, I would encourage my colleagues to join me and the Senator from Idaho in supporting this sense-of-the-Senate resolution.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I do want to propound a unanimous consent request here, that would allow us to carry out the indication that we have put at the table here that this would be the last vote of the night.

Before I do that, I want to say again I really appreciate the bipartisan cooperation that we have had throughout this week. I think it has made the Senate look good and it has taken a lot of work and several of us have had to keep our commitments in a way that was not always easy, but we have stuck by it on both sides of the aisle. I thank the Senators for doing that. I appreciate also your tolerance when I suffered mightily on one of the votes myself today.

The chairman and the ranking member have been a pleasure in working through all of this. I thank them and their staff. It is a little premature. I think we are tired, we are trying to find a way to complete our work, but it is important we also take note of the fact that we have been doing some good work working together. We want to keep that going.

So we have a unanimous consent request that we have worked with Senator DASCHLE on. He has made a lot of very positive recommendations. We think this would be the fairest way under the process that we have now to complete our work.

I want to say, Senator DASCHLE and Senator DOMENICI, Senator BYRD and I have been talking about the fact that we need to take a look at the process and see if we cannot come up with a little better way to do it without the votes in seriatim at the end of this process. Senator BYRD has a resolution he is going to introduce. Senator DASCHLE and I are going to appoint a task force of senior Senators to see if we cannot come up with some ideas we can agree to, to allow this process to be done better in the future.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. LOTT. But, in view of what we have to deal with, I ask unanimous consent, now, that during the remainder of the consideration tonight of S. 949, the following be the only amendments in order, other than agreed-upon amendments to be offered by the managers: The Nickles amendment, the Gramm amendment, and Kerry of Massachusetts amendment. I further ask at the conclusion of the debate on the above listed amendments, it be in order for any Member of the Senate to address the Senate with respect to an amendment that may be offered after all time is expired, but there be no further amendments to be in order this evening.

I further ask that at the conclusion of the remainder of the time on S. 949, the Senate automatically proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each. That way, if all time has expired and you have an amendment that you are going to offer tomorrow, you have that 10 minutes in which you can explain tonight what your intentions are, what is in the amendment; so I ask at the conclusion of the remaining time on S. 949 the Senate automatically proceed to this period of morning business.

Mr. BIDEN. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DOMENICI. Reserving the right to object. Mr. Leader, would you clarify for me please, and I regret to take your time, will there be no amendments offered tomorrow that are not offered tonight?

Mr. LOTT. No. Under this agreement, if a Senator has not had the opportunity to offer his amendment today, he or she would be able to offer their amendment in the morning with time equally divided between those for and against it, 2 minutes each—the usual 1 minute on each side to explain that amendment and a vote.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. Leader, they would have 1 minute on a side tomorrow?

Mr. LOTT. Yes. Right.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. Leader, we have worked with everybody that had process amendments. They don't have to offer them, and I am not asking especially for them to offer them, but I wonder if we couldn't get an agreement that would set in motion, so everybody would understand, these process amendments? Could I try a request on for you and see if you can agree?

I ask consent that the withdrawn amendment No. 537, that withdrawal be vitiated—that is the one I offered—and that a motion to waive with respect to amendment 537 be made and that it not be amendable, the motion to waive is agreed to the amendment, and if it is, it be treated as original text. Then I ask consent that the following Senators, if they choose, be authorized to offer amendments for budget process: BIDEN, GRAMM—Senator GRAMM of Texas, Senator BUMPERS, Senator GREGG, Senators BROWNBACK, FRIST, and ABRAHAM. And if they offer them they would be taken up in that order tomorrow.

Mr. LOTT. These are the amendments having to do strictly with process questions. I know there is a lot of interest in these process amendments. I am not familiar with the content of all of them.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

Mr. LOTT. Our understanding is Senator BYRD is going to offer his separately.

Mr. President, I renew my request based on the three-unanimous consent request paragraphs I read, with the addition of the Domenici request.

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I direct the question to both leaders. I have some trouble understanding why there would be amendments in order in the morning. It would seem to me this process has gone on for several days and there should come a time when you make a decision whether you are going to offer an amendment. The leaders have been very generous, they are going to allow amendments to be offered after the time has expired. But I would think that should end sometime tonight. I don't think we should come in here in the morning, fresh as daisies, with a big pile of new amendments.

Mr. LOTT. The Senator's point is well taken and I certainly agree. Senator DASCHLE and I would hope there would not be a long series of amendments offered tomorrow.

Some Senators will feel very strongly and feel like they should have that opportunity. Under the rules as they now exist we could not cut them off. We have had a good debate. We have had the alternative amendment offered by the Democratic leader. We have had other good amendments and debates that occurred. We hope we could bring it to a conclusion at a reasonable time tomorrow.

I remind my colleagues we had 16 votes yesterday, I believe it was. We started at 9:30 and we finally concluded that at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Now I believe we can do a better job. We'll start earlier tomorrow and we will stick to the 10-minute vote after the first vote. And we will try to move it right along. But we found the other night that when we said OK, just leave your amendment with the managers of the bill, when we came in in the morning we had 61 amendments. Then the leadership, Senator DASCHLE and his whip team, as we were, were running around trying to find out which amendments really—what they do. You know, will the Senator insist on offering it? Can we get them accepted? It really complicated the process.

We really believe by this process Senators will be able to debate these amendments and other amendments tonight. Then they, based on their thinking tomorrow, they would have the opportunity or perhaps would choose not to offer the amendments tomorrow. But if they do we cannot—we cannot cut off the Senators' right to offer an amendment.

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object, continuing my reservation, I say to my friend the majority leader, I am going to withdraw my reservation. But I do say this. I want everyone to hear, including the senior Senator from West Virginia. If we don't get a change in the process by next year I am going to object to everything. This is a ridiculous process. I don't think it is good for the system and I hope we change it.

Mr. LOTT. I agree and I appreciate the Senator's comment on that. I have been thinking that for several years. I remember one day here we had, what, 39 votes and set a record, a historical record Senator BYRD told us. It is just not a good process.

We are committed to coming up, by September 8, within the next couple of months, with a way to change the process. In fact, Senator BYRD has some good ideas. But I just want to make sure that we have thought it through and we don't start and change it without thinking about unintended consequences. I don't believe anybody intended 10 years ago, when reconciliation was set up, that it would lead to this type of voting process. We are committed on both sides, the leadership and our senior Members, to coming up with a better process. We are going to do that. We certainly would like the input of the Senator from Nevada, too.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object?

Mr. ALLARD. Mr. President, I say to the majority leader, I did not hear my name listed on that list of amendments, it is the Allard-4Abraham-Brownback amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. We have Senator BROWNBACK. Do you have a separate one from Senator BROWNBACK?

Mr. ALLARD. It's under my name actually, Allard-Brownback; Senator ABRAHAM is a cosponsor.

Mr. LOTT. It's ALLARD-BROWNBACK. OK. We got that.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. For purposes of clarification, let me first say I subscribe to what the majority leader is attempting to do here. We hope that we can accommodate the largest number of Senators with this process. I think there are some questions, however, about what happens tomorrow morning beginning with what time we vote. I think the majority leader has now indicated 9 o'clock.

Mr. LOTT. Yes, 9 o'clock, so we will start earlier and we will start voting—we would have the brief explanation and we would start voting immediately after that. We would then vote one after the other until we completed the process.

Mr. DASCHLE. The second question has to do with the request made by the distinguished Senator from New Mexico. As I understand it, what he is attempting to do is sequence a series of amendments. I guess the question would be, at what point tomorrow does that sequencing begin?

Mr. DOMENICI. I think that's up to the floor manager as he sequences over the evening. He'll go over all the amendments and I assume he'll sequence the way we did and put the whole list together. We are not seeking any special preference in that list.

Mr. DASCHLE. It doesn't preclude any other Senator from offering amendments?

Mr. LOTT. Not at all. It would not preclude other Senators from offering amendments. I want to say to the Senator—

Mr. DASCHLE. The question would be—I'm sorry, if I can just interject? If there was an amendment on one of the amendments offered, would the sequencing preclude an amendment to one of the amendments?

Mr. DOMENICI. I did not make that request.

Mr. DASCHLE. I ask consent that be considered. I don't think that would matter, but I think we need to protect Senators in that regard.

Mr. DOMENICI. If a Senator wants an up-or-down vote on his process I would not object to that request.

Mr. LOTT. I have not had a chance to get into the specifics of each one of these amendments, but I hope we could pursue the possibility of not going through the long list of process amendments. At least half of these are on our side of the aisle. So I hope we could find another time, another day, another way to do these process amendments. I will certainly be working on that later on tonight and in the morning.

Since we have the first 3 votes already lined up that would give us time to do some work on exactly whether or not this is essential. I will work with Senator DASCHLE on that.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, there are points of order not waived on any of these. The points of order—if people want to make them you have to get 60 votes and everybody knows that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, this is not an objection. I am not going to object. But just the question, if I could ask it. My understanding is—I mean, there are a number of us—all of us would like to finish. Some of us have been waiting a long time, many, to have amendments and to discuss them and I don't think we want to prolong the matter. My understanding is as opposed to the beginning of the week, we don't actually have to lay the amendment down tonight in order to have that amendment up tomorrow; am I correct? My second question is, wouldn't it be a little bit more expeditious if in fact the amendment could be laid down so we don't have to go through that process at all tomorrow morning with the requirement if they are not laid down tonight they would be out of order?

Mr. LOTT. We have discussed that back and forth. We tried to again, in a bipartisan way, figure the best way to deal with this, the fairest way, and also the way that would hopefully not lead to the largest number of amendments. We really think that we may actually wind up having fewer amendments finally voted on tomorrow by doing it this way. We tried it the other way. Bear with us as we try it this way.

Again I urge, unless you just really feel you have to have a vote on your amendment tomorrow I urge you, and I will be saying it on this side—but but if you feel strongly, you can talk about it tonight and offer your amendment tomorrow.

Mr. DODD. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. I inquire of our leader or our friend from New Mexico, is it necessary the process amendments be considered as part of this budget agreement, or would it not be better to deal with that as a side issue and deal with the amendments that bear directly on the tax bill and then bring up the process amendments on a separate occasion? Is there reason that has to be a part of this, I inquire of the leader or distinguished Senator from New Mexico?

Mr. DOMENICI. I could have offered a process amendment that I think is needed and other Senators think are needed. I could have offered it on the first bill that went through here, the reconciliation bill. I chose to wait for this bill. It is just as in order on this bill and just as subject to a point of order on this bill as on the other bill, but there is no other reconciliation bill coming down the field.

Mr. DODD. I understand. If my colleague will yield, I understand this. Time is running out. If we don't debate it this evening or during morning business, tomorrow we will be limited to a 1-minute explanation of process amendments that have to do with the budget process that I think are rather significant.

I am concerned that something as profound as dealing with the budget process is left to seconds to debate them, and unnecessarily so. I raise the issue of whether we ought to set that for a separate time, rather than deal with this?

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, if I can respond again, I share a lot of the Senator's feelings. We will work to see if there is some way we can get an agreement on these process amendments to limit the number or to find another time and opportunity for them to be offered.

I remind you that yesterday, one unanimous consent agreement that we worked out took nine amendments off the board in one swoop, and we agreed to something that was passed by voice vote. I am not sure we can do that here. Part of what we need is a little time to work with what we have left.

Mr. DODD. I understand.

Mrs. BOXER. Reserving the right to object, and I shall not object, I have a question for the majority leader. If we were able to work out amendments cleared on both sides, is it necessary for us to personally offer it, or can one of the managers offer it in our name if it has been cleared, because that would speed things along.

Mr. LOTT. The UC specifically says ''other than agreed upon amendments to be offered by the managers.''

Mrs. BOXER. I want to make sure they will be offered in the name of the Senator who wrote them rather than the manager.

Mr. LOTT. I believe that is the way they do them.

Mrs. BOXER. I have no objection.

Mr. COATS. Reserving the right to object.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I have a question for the majority leader. He listed three amendments to be debated this evening, I believe those of Senator NICKLES, Senator GRAMM of Texas, and Senator KERRY. Is there a time limitation on the debate of those? The reason I ask is because for those who want to stay afterward and take the 10 minutes to describe an amendment that will be offered tomorrow, it will be good to know that there is some limitation on the time for debate for those three particular amendments.

Mr. LOTT. In answer to the Senator, I say there was no time agreement worked out, partially because the Senators didn't want that time agreement. I am hoping they will be actually relatively short in time. I know Senator NICKLES doesn't need a lot of time. I believe these amendments will go relatively quickly, and there will be time left for other Members to address the Senate on their amendments. And then after that, when all time has expired, Senators can still talk in morning business for up to 10 minutes. We did not get a time agreement in our effort to get the UC worked out, but I think we are talking about a relatively short period time of time.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. My reservation, Mr. President—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. May we have order in the Senate, please? The Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. While I have submitted a reservation, may I offer a parliamentary inquiry? Will a motion to recommit, either a straight motion to recommit or a motion to recommit with instructions, still be in order, even though a Senator has not reserved a spot on this list?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the Budget Act, the only motion to recommit that can be considered is one that occurs within 3 days; it specifies the bill be reported back in 3 days.

Mr. BYRD. And is that motion in order any time prior to the conclusion of action on the bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is correct.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, reserving the right to object—I will not object—I am concerned about these process amendments. I am particularly concerned that there may be a process amendment that would wipe out the Byrd rule. I am also concerned that there might be a process amendment that would wipe out all 60-vote points of order. Either of those would be pretty fatal to this process.

And I hope that while we have both leaders here and a good size attendance, that we will be very aware, very alert to the possibility of either of those, which would mean that the reconciliation process, as we know it—perhaps we don't like it as we know it—but it will be gone. Period. I hope it won't happen. Would the Senator include me as a Senator who might offer a process amendment or a motion?

Mr. DOMENICI. I so request. May I say to Senator BYRD, we very carefully looked at these amendments with the view that you have in mind, and I can tell you that none of the process amendments that are listed in the unanimous-consent request address either the Byrd rule, nor do any of those amendments—what was your other?

Mr. BYRD. Wipe out 60-vote points of order.

Mr. DOMENICI. Nor do they attempt to permit us to vote with less than 60 votes on any of these matters that are subject to a point of order.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I am greatly relieved, and I thank the Senator.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, before I put forth the unanimous-consent request one more time, we did add the Byrd resolution or amendment to the process list of amendments, and I renew my unanimous-consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. For the information of all Senators, then, there will be no further votes tonight. Following debate on the three amendments, any Senator wishing to discuss an amendment that may be offered tomorrow may do so. The Senate would then begin voting at 9 a.m. on Friday, on or in relation to the three listed amendments and any amendments offered tomorrow. If Senators do intend to offer amendments tomorrow, I urge them to please give a copy to the managers, since there will be no debate time other than the 2-minute-equally-divided time. It will be very helpful to all Senators to have these amendments available so they can be given to interested Senators.

I yield the floor. We have approximately 1 hour and 5 minutes left of time on the bill.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma is recognized.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, the Senate is still not in order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. May we have order in the Senate so we can continue on the 1 hour and 5 minutes that is rapidly dissolving? If staff will please take their seats and if conversations will please cease, we can continue with the business of the Senate.

The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I thank you for getting order in the Senate.

Mr. KOHL addressed the Chair.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I will be happy to yield to the Senator from Wisconsin for 2 minutes without losing my right to the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wisconsin.

AMENDMENT NO. 524

Mr. KOHL. Mr. President, tomorrow I will up amendment No. 524 which I believe is at the desk. This amendment creates a tax incentive for companies that provide child care for the dependents of their employees. The amendment is also cosponsored by Senators DASCHLE, DEWINE, BOXER, D'AMATO, MOSELEY-BRAUN, SNOWE, SPECTER, and JOHNSON.

Our amendment creates a tax credit for employers who get involved in increasing the supply of quality child care. The credit is limited to 50 percent of $150,000 per company per year.

The amendment is based on S. 82, the Child Care Infrastructure Act, which has received praise from businesses, parents, and day care workers alike. Working Mother magazine gave the initiative its ''Lollipops'' award in the January issue, and the Children's Defense Fund has endorsed it. S. 82 is also endorsed by the National Center for the Early Childhood Work Force and the National Child Care Association.

The amendment responds to a great need, a great challenge, and a great opportunity. The need is to provide a safe and stimulating place for our youngest children to spend their time while their parents are at work. The challenge is to make the American workplace more productive by making it more responsive to the needs of the American family. And the opportunity is to take what we are learning about the importance of early childhood education and use it to help our children become the best educated adults of the 21st century.

The credit is offset by authorizing an anti-fraud program that will keep parents who do not have custody of their children from unlawfully claiming child-related tax benefits.

Child care is an investment that is good for children, good for business, good for our States, and good for the Nation. We need to involve every level of government—and private communities and private businesses—in building a child care infrastructure that is the best in the world. Our amendment is a first, essential and deficit neutral step toward that end, and I urge all my colleagues to support it.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I rise to support Senator KOHL's amendment. This amendment would provide tax credits to encourage businesses and other institutions to provide child care for their employees.

This proposal, which is similar to one that I included in my original child care bill several years ago, would provide a tax credit for businesses that build on- or near-site day care centers, jointly participate with other businesses in running child care centers, or contract with child care facilities. This amendment is important in order to meet the rapidly increasing demand for child care. I recognize the importance of finding safe places for our children while their parents are at work, preferably places where they can learn and have wholesome fun. We use the Tax Code to encourage a variety of private endeavors; we should not hesitate to use the tax code to encourage private businesses to become involved in providing child care for dependents of their employees.

This tax credit would be equal to 50 percent of the qualified child care expenditures up to a maximum of $150,000, paid or incurred by the employer during the taxable year to acquire, construct, rehabilitate, expand, or operate a qualified child care facility.

Parents of young children are joining the work force in record numbers, leading to more young children in the need of care as their parents go off to work. There are more single parents today than ever before. In has been reported that up to 62 percent of working mothers have children under 6 years old and 59 percent had children under 3 years of age. This amendment would give incentives for any company, small or large, to provide child care to its employees.

Studies have shown that organizations that provide child care benefits to their employees attract and retain better qualified applicants and experience reductions in employee absenteeism. But, the argument goes that if the employer benefits from providing child care benefits, why should we subsidize the costs with a tax credit. That is not a bad question.

But, I suggest that society has a stake in this as well. Not only will our workforce respond positively given the peace of mind that comes from knowing that your children are safe and thriving, but also, we must be concerned with the health and safety of our children. It is disturbing whenever we read about children left alone or children in inadequate or unsafe facilities. I believe that the small innovation of a tax credit to defray the costs of employer-sponsored child care will do wonders to address this increasing need of American families.

Mr. President, child care is an investment for the future. It is good for business, good for our communities, and good for the Nation. There certainly is a need for quality child care. As a nation, we have made significant increases in the education of our older children, aged 5 to 25. We have increased Headstart. But, we need to do more. And, we need to create more options.

This tax credit proposal made by Senator KOHL is the least intrusive and least expensive way I can think of to stimulate private sector investments in child care. It is now time to set the infrastructure in place for the most important years in the development of our children. There is an increasing struggle to balance work and family. How well we respond will determine the success of our future.

I encourage my colleagues to support this important amendment, and I commend Senator KOHL for his work on it.

Mr. KOHL. I ask unanimous consent that this be the first amendment taken up tomorrow morning for a vote after the three amendments laid down tonight.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. KENNEDY. Reserving the right to object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Can I ask a question about whether we can at least get an understanding about the sequence? I don't mind whether I am fourth or eighth.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I think I have the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma has the floor.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I yielded to the Senator from Wisconsin for 2 minutes, and now I wish to reclaim the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma has the floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 551

(Purpose: To increase the deduction for self-employed health insurance costs, and for other purposes)

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, tonight I offer an amendment on behalf of myself, Senator HAGEL, Senator CLELAND, and Senator DOMENICI which would increase the deductibility of health insurance for self-employed individuals. I will not take long. I mentioned it a couple of times during debate on the Durbin amendment.

The current law allows for self-employed persons to deduct 40 percent in 1997. We actually increased that—if I remember, Senator Dole, Senator ROTH and several of us last year in the last Congress increased that—over several years, and eventually by the year 2004, it would be at 60 percent. We would like to accelerate that. That is what this amendment does. It would improve it from 1997, the year we are in, from 40 percent to 50 percent. In 1999, it improves it from 45 percent to 60 percent, and in the year 2003, it improves it from 50 percent to 80 percent, and so on. We want to improve and accelerate health insurance deductibility for the self-employed.

Mr. President, I used to be self-employed, and it always bothered me that I used to manage a corporation and the corporation could deduct 100 percent of health care premiums, but my company, when I was self-employed—it was a janitor service—could only deduct 40 percent. I would like parity, and, hopefully, eventually we will get there.

In this amendment, we don't get there for several years, but at least we will accelerate it and make a better deal for self-employed persons at a more rapid rate.

On behalf of my colleagues cosponsoring this amendment, I send the amendment to the desk and ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oklahoma [Mr. NICKLES], for himself, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. DOMENICI, and Mr. THURMOND, proposes an amendment numbered 551.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, for the information of all my colleagues, I think under the unanimous-consent request, already agreed to by the leader, it has been agreed upon that we will vote on this amendment, I believe it will be the first amendment we will vote on at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, might the Senator from Illinois have 1 minute to comment at this point?

Mr. NICKLES. Certainly.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from New York.

I will be supporting the Senator from Oklahoma. He is improving the process. I will continue to fight for 100 percent. Maybe the day will come when he and I can both agree on a way to do it.

Mr. NICKLES. I hope so.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, are we in morning business?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We are not in morning business yet. We have some time remaining yet on the actual debate of the bill.

Mr. HARKIN. Further parliamentary inquiry.

Under the rules of the Senate, under the rules of which we are debating this bill, if someone is recognized, since there is no time limit, can that Senator yield time to other Senators for purposes other than asking a question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It is my understanding that when there is no time limit, that each Senator would have to get his own time on the bill.

Mr. HARKIN. Therefore, a Senator may only yield for a question; is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. He could yield for a question provided it were a question and not another speech.

Mr. GRAMM. Regular order, Mr. President.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. I have completed my statement.

I ask unanimous consent that Senator THURMOND be added as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

AMENDMENT NO. 552

(Purpose: To let families decide for themselves how best to use their child tax credit)

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Texas [Mr. GRAMM], for himself, Mr. COATS, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. SESSIONS, and Mr. ABRAHAM, proposes an amendment numbered 552.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that further reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

SECTION 1. CHILD TAX CREDIT FLEXIBILITY.

On page 12, line 13, strike all through page 13, line 8, and on page 16, line 3, strike all through page 17, line 6.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I have sent this amendment to the desk on behalf of myself, Senator COATS, Senator NICKLES, Senator HUTCHINSON of Arkansas, Senator GRAMS, Senator SMITH of New Hampshire, Senator SESSIONS of Alabama, and Senator ABRAHAM of Michigan. I am going to try to be very brief. I have a couple of my cosponsors here who have waited to speak on this amendment, and I hope we can accommodate them. We will all try to be brief.

This is a very simple amendment. For the last 4 years we have been talking about a $500-per-child tax credit. Our argument has always been the same: We want to let families decide how to invest their own money in their own children and for their own futures.

The whole purpose of a $500 tax credit was to allow families to invest their own money—which after all they earned—in the education, housing, nutrition, nurturing, and health care of their children.

This is what the whole tax debate is about: It was in the Contract With America and even President Clinton has endorsed it. Nobody ever disputed the fact that the purpose here was a clear-cut tax cut to let families decide how to spend their own money on their own children. Remember, this is not all of their money; only $500 per child.

Out of the Finance Committee has come a provision that says for children 13 to 16, in order to get the tax credit, you have to put it into an education account. And remarkably, it saves money for one, and only one, reason: because some people will not take the tax credit.

Mr. President, if there has ever been an effort to go back on a deal, this is it. I think families ought to be able to invest in an individual retirement account. I think they ought to be able to set aside the money for that purpose. But the idea of making them do it is Government paternalism in its worst form.

So what I am asking that we do is live up to what we said. I am asking that we give the $500 tax credit and that we give it for every age of a child covered, and that we let that child's father and that child's mother decide what is in their best interest.

I think what we are trying to do here is dissuade people from taking their $500 tax credit by playing God with what they are supposed to use that money for. I know the intentions are good. I know they were aimed at trying to bring people together. But a deal is a deal. I have heard everybody here talk about a budget deal and what the President got and what we got and what we agreed to; but we had a deal with the American family. The deal with the American family was a $500 tax credit that the family got to spend.

If we were reneging on a deal with the President, oh, people would be jumping up and down screaming, hollering, ''But we promised the President,'' or if the Democrats were trying to do something that was not in the budget deal, some would say, ''Well, the President promised us.'' This does not have to do with the President. This does not have to do with us—it has to do with the families of America.

We are not living up to the deal. This is a lousy provision, and it should be removed. I am not saying there are not good intentions and I am not saying this is not part of some political deal. I am saying it is an unacceptable provision. It should not be in here. It fails to live up to the deal we made with the American people, and it needs to come out.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have two letters printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

CONCERNED WOMEN FOR AMERICA,
June 25, 1997.

DEAR SENATOR: The over 500,000 members of Concerned Women for America (CWA), many of whom reside in your state, urge you to pass an unencumbered $500-per-child tax credit for children.

We strongly oppose the current Senate Finance Committee version of the $500-per-child tax credit because it requires parents of teens 13–17 to put their tax refund into an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). This credit was created to give needed tax relief to American families; it was never intended to become a new way for the government to tell families how they should and should not spend their own money.

Therefore, CWA urges you to support the Gramm Amendment. This amendment will remove the IRA restrictions and allow parents of teens to use the child credit for immediate needs, such as food and healthcare. Only families are capable of deciding the best use of family funds.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter. The over half million members of CWA appreciate your support for the Gramm Amendment.

Sincerely,

BEVERLY LAHAYE,
Chairman and Founder.

CHRISTIAN COALITION,
Washington, DC, June 25, 1997.

TAX BILL KEY VOTES

VOTE FOR THE GRAMM MOTION TO STRIKE WHICH WILL QUALIFY TEENAGERS FOR THE $500 PER CHILD TAX CREDIT

VOTE AGAINST THE DASCHLE AMENDMENT

VOTE FOR FINAL PASSAGE IF THE GRAMM AMENDMENT PASSES

DEAR SENATOR: Sen. Phil Gramm and many others intend to offer a motion to strike that will restore teenagers to the $500 per child tax credit. We strongly urge you to vote for the Gramm motion.

Family tax relief in the form of a $500 per child tax credit has been our highest legislative priority since 1993. We are pleased that the Finance Committee has included the credit in the tax bill. However, we cannot support the bill in its current form. The single biggest disagreement we have with the Finance Committee version of the $550 per child tax credit is the exclusion of teenagers. Under the bill, only children up to age 12 qualify for the credit. The Gramm motion will restore teenagers to coverage of the $500 per child tax credit.

Excluding teenagers would be a deep disappointment for the families of teenagers that struggle to meet the financial pressures they must endure during the costly teenage years. Indeed, caring for children reaches its most expensive point during these years. The high cost of teenagers has been well documented by the Clinton Administration's recent 1996 report, titled ''Expenditures on Children by Families'' published by the Department of Agriculture. This report compares the cost of food, clothing, health care, housing, child care, education, and transportation by age group.

This report documents that teenagers are by far the most expensive age group. It concludes that it costs between $710 and $1,140 more to raise a child age 15–17, than it does to raise a child age 9–11.

Cutting off teenagers from the child tax credit would be a double blow to the families of eleven million teenagers. These families will already spend dramatically more than previously to raise their children. Under the bill, they would also begin paying an extra $500 in taxes once the child credit is taken away from them. Added together, families with teenagers would face a whopping $1,210 to $1,640 in extra out of pocket costs.

Here is how the Gramm motion would operate vis-a-vis the Finance Committee provision. Instead of a $500 per child tax credit for teenagers, the Finance bill creates a second education IRA for teenagers. It mandates that a tax credit worth $500 be placed into an education IRA. If the money is not put into the IRA, the $500 is forfeited. The Gramm motion strikes the mandatory language, making the IRA optional. In other words, parents who don't choose the IRA would then have an unrestricted $500 per child tax credit. This makes much more sense. Parents are the only ones who should make these decisions. The federal government should not mandate the choice of saving for education over other more pressing needs. There are many financial needs families must meet apart from the worthy goal of saving for education.

We strongly urge you to vote against the Daschle amendment. The amendment diminishes the value of the $500 per child tax credit in several ways. It cuts the amount of $350, phases it in unnecessarily, exempts teenagers for five years, and eliminates the tax credit all together for some middle class families by drastically lowering the income caps.

If the Gramm motion prevails (and no amendments are passed which would weaken the $500 per child tax credit), we certainly urge you to vote for the tax bill on final passage. If the Gramm motion fails, we regrettably will not be able to support the tax bill at this time. We would actively work to add coverage of teenagers in conference, and reserve judgment on the conference report until it is finalized. We certainly hope that in the end, we will be able to support the report. That certainly is our goal.

We will select a vote to be included in our Congressional Scorecard relating to the $500 per child tax credit. At this time, we can not predict which vote will be selected. Thank you for your consideration of our views.

Sincerely,

BRIAN LOPINA,
Director,
Governmental Affairs Office.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to add Senator THURMOND as a cosponsor to the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I wonder if my friend from Texas would wish to modify the term ''rotten.''

Mr. GRAMM. This abrogates the deal with the working men and women of America. Some may see it as rotten and some may not. Some may see it—

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Surely the Senator does not mean it as rotten.

Mr. GRAMM. Some may see it as an acceptable deal and some may see it as a rotten deal. But the point is—I am happy to strike the word if it offends our dear colleague. But I feel strongly about it because the tax cut, after all, is about families. That is what it has been about to begin with.

I have several of my colleagues here. If I could just let them all speak for 2 or 3 minutes, we would all be happy.

I ask unanimous consent that each of them may have 2 minutes each.

Mr. KERREY. Reserving the right to object.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I know they will be kind and thoughtful and even benevolent remarks.

Mr. KERREY. No. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, I would like the Senator to be a little more specific. He said, ''I have a number of colleagues.''

Mr. GRAMM. We have one, two, three, four; and they will speak 2 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I commend Chairman ROTH for the great leadership he has demonstrated in bringing this legislation before us. And I commend Senator GRAMM for this amendment tonight.

My good friend and colleague from Arkansas, Senator TIM HUTCHINSON, and I were freshman Members of the House in 1993 when we came together with Senator COATS of Indiana to develop a budget proposal called Family First that could serve as the taxpayer's alternative to the higher taxes and bigger Government plan offered by President Clinton.

The key component of our legislation was family tax relief through a $500 per child tax credit.

We convinced the House and Senate leadership to make our Families First bill—with the $500 per child tax credit as its centerpiece—the Republican budget alternative in 1994.

For overtaxed American families, 1997 looks to be the year this long-promised, long-overdue middle-class tax relief is finally delivered.

As you know, working families today need tax relief more than ever.

Factor in State and local taxes and the hidden taxes that result from the high cost of Government regulations, and a family today gives up more than 50 percent of its annual income to the Government. So all we are saying is let us let the working people of this Nation keep a little bit more of their own money.

The $500 per child tax credit proposal in the bill before us goes a long way toward delivering tax relief to working families raising children. However, it imposes restrictions that will significantly dilute the purpose of the child tax credit.

The legislation before us tells families that, yes, we will give you a tax credit, but if your children are between the ages of 13 and 16, you are going to have to spend it the way Washington thinks it should be spent. In this case, it would have to be spent on education. By mandating how the tax credit must be spent, we are in effect denying it to teenagers, leaving 11 million children out in the cold.

And if your child is 17 or 18, you do not get it at all.

Mr. President, I applaud the parents that take the $500 per child tax credit and dedicate it to an IRA or their child's college education.

But that is a decision that belongs with parents, not with Washington. It is not our place to tell families how they can spend their money.

The family tax relief provisions in the bill before us can be greatly improved by striking the mandate that the tax credit be dedicated to education. I am pleased to be joining my colleagues in offering this amendment to give that choice back to families. And I urge all my colleagues to support this amendment.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. HUTCHINSON addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I also want to commend Senator ROTH. The $500 per child tax credit is truly the heart of this tax relief bill. I especially want to thank Senator GRAMM for taking the lead in solving this problem, which is a very serious problem.

There are 382,000 families in Arkansas who benefit from the $500 per child tax credit, but there are many teenaged children who are excluded because of the provision that is in the Finance Committee's bill. I believe parents should have the right to decide. They are better arbiters, they are better decisionmakers on the use of that money than bureaucrats and even lawmakers in Washington, DC. And no matter how good educational savings for teenagers may be, it is better to let the parents make that decision.

I think I will have a hard time explaining to those parents of that 13-year-old why, when their child was 12 he was eligible or she was eligible for the $500 per child tax credit, but at the age of 13 they are not. Perhaps that 13-year-old will have an emergency. Perhaps that 13-year-old needs braces. Perhaps that 13-year-old needs a math tutor to enable that child to ensure that he or she is ready to go to college when they graduate from high school. The parents will not have the option, will not have the opportunity, will not have the eligibility under the current bill. That is why this amendment is so important that we ensure that the parents have the ultimate decisionmaking authority.

Forty percent of young people who graduate from high school do not go straight on to college. They should not be excluded from the benefits of this tax bill. Parents should decide, not Washington, DC.

I yield the floor.

Mr. NICKLES addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I compliment my colleague, Senator GRAMM. We tried to do this in the Finance Committee. Unfortunately, we fell a couple votes short. But the basic principle is we want to tell everybody their kids are going to get the $500 tax credit, not to say, well, it only applies to people 13 or younger, that if you are older you have to put it into an educational IRA.

I think educational IRA's are a good idea. I compliment Senator ROTH because he has been the champion of IRA's, but it should be an option. It should not be mandatory. We should allow them to have this choice. I hope a lot of them choose it before age 13. I think it would be a great idea for a parent, if they can do it, if they can afford it, to put the $500 into an IRA for their child and let that accumulate and do that every year so they have a nest egg for their college expenses. It would be a positive thing for them and our country.

But we should not mandate it. Presently, under the bill we mandate it for kids that are 14, 15, 16, 17 years old. I compliment my colleague from Texas and the cosponsors.

I urge my colleagues to vote for this amendment to allow parents to choose whether they get the $500 tax credit to spend as they choose or whether or not to put it into an IRA. They should make that choice. We should not mandate it from Washington, DC.

Mr. SESSIONS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama.

Mr. SESSIONS. I want to thank Senator ROTH for his outstanding leadership that he has given on this important issue. But I feel very, very strongly that we need to do more for working families. Working middle-class American families today are struggling to get by.

My youngest son will start college this fall. But I will tell you, I have children; three of them under age 13 and three of them over age 13. It costs more for a 14- or 15- or 16-year-old than it does for a 12- or 10-year-old. Anybody who has raised a family knows that.

The demands on those families are fierce today. They are struggling to get by. This is the heart and soul of a family middle-class tax cut. Many kids will not be going off to college. They will never be going to college. But even if they are, many of those families need the money now. They have a flat tire and they need to replace a tire. They need shoes or to go on a school trip. They need to make their own decision about how to spend their money.

This is important to me. It is important to American families. I salute Senator GRAMM for raising this issue, and I am in support of this amendment.

I yield the floor.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Louisiana such time as he may require.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senator from Massachusetts has the floor.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Would the Senator from Massachusetts, who has been Joblike—he has been No. 2 since 9:30—would he allow 3 minutes to the Senator from Louisiana and 3 minutes to the Senator from Nebraska to respond, and the remainder of the time is his?

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, could I inquire how much the remainder of the time is?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is approximately a half an hour in total time.

Mr. KERRY. I would be very content with that.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. You have been very patient. We thank you, sir.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That would require unanimous consent.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I ask unanimous consent that that may occur.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BREAUX addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Mr. BREAUX. My friend from Texas would refer to this provision as the ''rotten'' provision. I am sure what he meant to say was the ''forgotten'' provision, because he obviously forgot what we did to this in the Finance Committee when we greatly improved it. If anyone wants to have a $500-per-child tax cut, we presume that it is for the children.

Under the suggestion of the Senator from Texas, we would give the family a $500 tax rate to use for whatever they want. If they want to use it to go to the casino, fine. If they want to use it to buy a six-pack of booze every week, fine. It is about $9.66 a week, so under the provision of the Senator from Texas they could take it, put it in their pocket, and don't use it for children at all—just do whatever you want with it.

Interestingly, the Citizen Council, a respected voice of both parties, says, ''In our view, a no-strings child credit is a cruel hoax on the very children who are supposed to benefit from it. We expect that most of the credits would disappear into the family's general budgets, or be used to pay bills''—and I add, not for the children, that the tax credit is supposed to be for.

What we have done is to craft a compromise from zero to 13, the family can use it for anything they would like, no strings attached, but from 13 to 17, when children need to be educated, there is an obligation that the tax credit be used to educate the children. For all of us who want to help children and our families and help parents raise those children, what is better than to give that family help and assistance in educating that child?

Some say the Tax Code should not tell people what to do. The Tax Code is full of examples—a mortgage deduction is only available if you buy a house; a charitable contribution is only available if, in fact, you give to charity. So what I think the Finance Committee was able to do was to erect a compromise, a blending of what that suggestion was coming from this side, blending it with what many of our people said, use it for educating children. If we are going to have a tax credit for children, let's at least ensure that part of the time it is used for one of the basic functions that a family has as an obligation to those children, and that is to educate those children.

So I think that what we have come forward with makes a great deal of sense. It is a legitimate compromise. It adds to the education package which I think everyone is for, and it helps families with small children.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nebraska.

Mr. KERREY. This proposal began in 1995. I heard the Senator from Texas describe it as a sacred part of the Contract With America.

In 1995, Senator LIEBERMAN and I introduced KIDSAVE as a modification to this $500 per child tax credit, and it set up a savings account for children. It was mandatory. The idea was that Americans are not saving enough money, they are struggling to put aside savings, and that is especially revealed when you look at one of the most important parts of this tax proposal, which is the reduction of tax on estates.

Mr. President, about 1 percent or 2 percent of Americans have estates over $600,000. It is a provision that affects a relatively small number of Americans. I appreciate my colleagues on the other side of the aisle saying that is one of their top concerns, that 1 percent or 2 percent of Americans who have estates over $600,000. KIDSAVE is put together as a consequence of our concern for the 98 percent of Americans that do not. The only way that you will be able, particularly for middle-income people, to acquire that wealth is to save a little bit of money over a long period of time.

So I say we are not breaking any deal. We introduced this bill in 1995. It was endorsed at the time by the Heritage Foundation. The only thing that is going on here, in my judgment, is the Christian Coalition is arguing that this is a violation of something they want. So they are rallying the troops and trying to get it changed. I appreciate the Senator from Texas does not like the proposal, but it was introduced in 1995, and its purpose is to help Americans generate wealth. We know we cannot redistribute wealth. We are trying to enable Americans to create wealth by saving their money.

The $500 child tax credit goes from 0 to 17. That is the law. It ends at age 17. I would have preferred 0 to 4, frankly, for this thing to go into effect. It was a compromise. We agreed to do this as a consequence of the desire to increase the amount of money that Americans have, not only for education but this money, particularly for those that are not going to school, would be better off staying in a savings account until retirement so those individuals can look to their retirement and say in addition to having Social Security there for them they will have a source of wealth.

So in my view, this is an amendment that would deny Americans the opportunity to acquire wealth. I think it is a very important provision in this Tax Code.

I hope my colleagues will vote against the Gramm motion to strike.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I endorse wholeheartedly the position that the Senators from Louisiana and Nebraska have stated on behalf of the committee bill. I thank them.

I yield the balance of our time to the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I thank the distinguished party manager. I will probably not use all the time but I ask unanimous consent that the balance of the time I have be divided between Senator DODD and Senator KENNEDY.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, we just heard a debate about the $500 tax credit. We heard a number of Senators state what a critical component of the effort to restore families this is and how important it was to the early efforts of the contract. The fact is that the committee bill will deny 38 percent of the children in the United States with the lowest incomes access to a tax credit. In Massachusetts, as a matter of fact, 46 percent of all children would be excluded from receiving this important tax credit. That means about 850,000 children, plus, in my State, will not receive a tax credit.

Now, I ask my colleagues what kind of profamily policy takes $81 billion over the next 5 years but completely denies this help to the 9.5 percent of all children in families with the lowest 20 percent of incomes, and denies the tax credit to 86.6 percent of all the families in the second 20 percent of income.

I direct my colleagues' attention to this chart. These are the percentage of children ineligible for the child tax credit, the way it has been structured by the Finance Committee. Fully 99.5 percent of the lowest 20 percent, and 86.6 percent of the children in the second fifth will not get the benefit of this credit.

I propose, therefore, a very simple amendment so that working families could have access to this credit. My amendment that I will send to the desk momentarily lets those families whose net Federal taxes are greater than zero get a full or partial children's tax credit, and the amount accomplishes this in a very simple way. It makes the credit refundable to the full extent of the family's Federal payroll taxes once it has offset all of the family's income tax liability.

This refundability, I want to emphasize, is not my idea. The refundability was a provision of the Republican's Contract With America. It was in the child tax credit bill which was sponsored by the Senator from Texas, who a few moments ago was talking about the virtues of providing a $500 tax credit to children. In fact, Senator COATS, Senator LOTT, Senator GRAMM and others on the Republican side supported the very proposal that I am now offering which would, indeed, allow those children to be able to get that credit.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle were right when they proposed a refundable credit. And Speaker GINGRICH was right when he called the refundable credit in the Contract With America the ''crown jewel'' of the contract.

As Marshall Wittman, the Legislative Affairs Director for the Christian Coalition, said, ''Allowing families with children to retain a larger share of their hard earned income will be a first step toward freeing America's parents from the national treadmill of working long hours at the expense of time with their children.'' The Heritage Foundation endorsed the children's tax credit in the contract, which was a refundable tax credit.

Mr. President, I am proposing that we adopt the Contract With America's refundable tax credit which would provide 7 million more children with access to the credit, to the tax credit. The simple question is, why would you want to deny those people who work—we are not talking about people who are solely relying on welfare, or people who get the earned-income tax credit; we are talking about two-parent families with two children who are working and paying taxes, who still will not get credit the way it has been structured under the Republican proposal. These children live in families that pay income or payroll taxes, and payroll taxes are a reflection of work. Work, after all, is what we are trying to put a premium on—both in the welfare reform bill, as well as, I think, in a $500 credit.

My amendment would take the refundability against payroll taxes from the Contract With America and it lowers the income phaseout more slowly and phases in the credit by the age of the child. The reason we phase in the credit and the reason we do the income difference is to keep this revenue neutral. It is revenue neutral. I want to emphasize, this amendment takes the Contract With America payroll provisions but it remains revenue neutral.

It would seem to me, Mr. President, that all of us would want to try to find a way to guarantee that families earning $110,000 are not going to get a $500 tax credit, while a family working and earning $20,000 gets nothing—nothing. That is exactly what happens under this proposal the way it is done.

My credit would begin to phase out at $60,000 and it would finish at $75,000. By doing that, we manage to spread it to those people at the lower end of the income scale, most of whose income goes into the payroll tax but who nevertheless are working and deserve as much of a break as anybody else. My amendment would allow the bottom 80 percent of American families to get a full or partial credit, and the richest 20 percent would not. A very simple tradeoff.

Mr. President, I think it is critical to understand that the tax bill, as it comes out of the Finance Committee, which we are voting on, that the tax bill credit for children as currently written, most of the children who would be denied the credit or have the credit reduced live in families who are working and paying Federal taxes. It is just that their tax burden often amounts to several thousand dollars, even after the effects of the earned-income tax credit are accounted for. The claims that these peoples pay no taxes is simply incorrect.

The Joint Tax Committee data issued this week shows that taxpayers with incomes between $10,000 and $20,000 will owe an estimated $191 billion in Federal taxes. Taxpayers with incomes between $20,000 and $30,000 will owe $442 billion in Federal taxes between 1997 and the year 2002. These figures from the Joint Tax Committee reflect the fact that these taxes are owed after the EITC benefits are subtracted.

Mr. President, the vast majority of the taxes that these families pay—we have to acknowledge, if they are working and they are playing by the rules and they are trying to climb up the economic ladder, why should they be denied access to the $500 credit—the taxes that they pay consist mostly of payroll taxes because that is the way life is for people at that end of the income scale.

I hope my colleagues who say that this is a fair way to adjust more appropriately what has happened in the committee mark —I want to emphasize that a two-parent family, the kind of family that most people in the Christian Coalition or in the Heritage Foundation or others feel have been the most hard hit in America in the recent years, a two-parent family with two children with an income of $20,000, under my proposal, would get the full $1,000 credit, $500 for each child under this proposal, which is the contract proposal. They would not get that under the proposal of the Finance Committee.

Mr. President, I think if we are going to accept the notion that we will provide the children's credit for as many working taxpaying families as possible, it is important to change the base and to guarantee we are reaching those kids.

Everybody knows what has happened to income distribution in America in the last 15 years, how the bottom has not been the part of America that has grown. I might add, here is a chart that shows the percentage of working families whose payroll taxes exceed their income taxes. They are all in the bottom three-fifths of America. You have 99 percent in the bottom fifth, 97 percent in the second fifth, and 90 percent in the next fifth—all work, all have payroll taxes that exceed their income tax, and, therefore, do not get the full benefit of the credit.

Finally, I simply point out to my colleagues that income for young working families has not increased in over 20 years. These are the young families of America earning $18,000 in the lowest quintile on average, and $30,000 in the second quintile on average. Look at what happened to payroll taxes during that period of time. Payroll taxes in 1975 were $374 for that family. But, in 1985, they were $2,171. In 1995, they were $2,523. So the payroll taxes went up, but at the same time in both quintiles and, yet, their income went down and they are not going to get the credit.

So I respectfully hope that my colleagues will join in an effort to rectify what I hope is simply an oversight in distribution and help to guarantee that every family in America that works, that is struggling to raise their children, can actually have the benefit of this $500 credit, and that would, I think, be deemed a benefit to the Senate and to the country if we were to make that happen.

Mr. President, under the previous agreement, I yield the balance of time divided equally to Senator DODD and Senator KENNEDY.

Mr. DODD. On the bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 10 minutes on the proponents' side.

Mr. COATS. Parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I don't understand why we are allocating time here because in the unanimous-consent request—I specifically asked the Chair and asked in the request if the three amendments agreed to under the unanimous-consent request were on any kind of a time limit. The answer was, no, they are not on any kind of a time limit.

I further raised the statement saying that there are a number of Senators under the agreement that would stay beyond the three to offer and discuss their amendments this evening. They would be allowed to speak for up to 10 minutes in support of their amendments. I don't believe we are under a time agreement and that there needs to be allocation of a time agreement. This Senator has not yet spoken on the Gramm amendment, which I would like to do. I don't feel there is any constraint on the amount of time I have to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the consent agreement, there was still time remaining on the bill. The time remaining on the bill could be used by each side presenting their amendments. There was an order to the amendments. We are on the third one, which was the Kerry amendment. Senator KERRY was allotted the time on the proponents' side, which was 20 minutes. There is an opponent side of 20 minutes that would be allocated, which would be the majority party side.

Following the expiration of all time, which would be the remaining 38 minutes, then there will be a period for morning business where any Senator can be recognized for up to 10 minutes to introduce his motion, which would put it in order for tomorrow, but in no particular order for tomorrow.

The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KERRY. If I could say to my colleague, I had the full amount of time under the unanimous-consent agreement. I chose to truncate my remarks in order to accommodate my colleague within that. I don't mean to upset the order.

Mr. COATS. No. Mr. President, I am perfectly content to let the Senator take whatever time he wants. It is this Senator's understanding that the unanimous-consent agreement supersedes the reconciliation instructions regarding time under the agreement. The Senator from Massachusetts can offer any amount of time he wants to his colleagues. I am more than willing to wait for that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We have already ruled that, as far as allocating time to anybody else, there would have to be a unanimous consent agreement by that particular person who is speaking; otherwise, the time is up for grabs.

Mr. COATS. Further parliamentary inquiry. That is not my understanding of what the unanimous consent request was. The reason I am stating this is that I specifically asked the majority leader if my interpretation was correct, and he specifically said yes and included it in the unanimous-consent agreement. The Parliamentarian may not have heard that. I don't believe there is a ruling of that. In any event, I don't want to split hairs. I think everybody will have an opportunity to speak. He doesn't have to limit the Senator from Connecticut to 2 minutes. He can talk for 20, as I understand the unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, if I can simply clarify something. But before I do, I will send my amendment to the desk.

AMENDMENT NO. 554

(Purpose: To allow payroll taxes to be included in the calculation of tax liability for receiving the children's tax credit, and for other purposes)

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. KERRY], for himself, Mr. CONRAD, and Mr. JOHNSON, proposes an amendment numbered 554.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 13, beginning with line 9, strike all through page 17, line 12, and insert the following:

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator will state it.

Mr. ROTH. Is it proper to offer an amendment under the unanimous-consent agreement?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts, under the unanimous consent agreement that we had earlier, is allowed to offer one tonight.

Mr. KERRY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts is recognized.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, it may be that the Senator from Indiana missed it, but I asked unanimous consent at the opening of my comments, when I was yielded the full amount of time, that the balance of time that I didn't use be divided equally, and that consent order was entered into. I might add, if the Senator was correct, it was all of our understanding that after the expiration of all the time on the bill, the Senate would go into morning business, during which time Senators would have the opportunity to speak for as long as they wanted. So there is not in effect a time limitation with respect to the after period of the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. A clarification on that. The consent order did call for 10 minutes per person in morning business.

Mr. KERRY. Well, Mr. President, I have been informed that Senator KENNEDY now does not wish to use his time. I ask unanimous consent that the balance now go to Senator DODD, at which point it would revert to the other side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana and those on this side have up to 20 minutes following the 8½ minutes of the Senator from Connecticut that will be allocated under the unanimous-consent agreement. The Senator from Connecticut is recognized for up to 8½ minutes.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, rather than confuse this situation even further, I am going to yield for the purposes of offering an amendment to the distinguished Senator from Vermont. It is his amendment, and I am a cosponsor with him. I yield for that purpose. I ask unanimous consent that I may yield for that purpose.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator doesn't have the right to offer an amendment under this agreement. Only the managers can offer amendments under the agreement, until we get into the period for morning business, at which time—

Mr. DODD. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to offer an amendment.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I ask unanimous consent—

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I hate to be a fly in the ointment here. I have been waiting to speak on one of the three designated amendments in the unanimous consent agreement, the GRAMM amendment. I have not yet had that opportunity. My understanding is that further amendments come after these three. I think if we just get going, we can get this done and get to the other amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The right to offer amendments is limited to the managers. The right to speak is not.

Who wishes recognition?

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I would like to take just a few moments and I will be brief.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 552

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, the hour is late and the week has been long. We all need our rest. I want to take a few moments to speak in support of the GRAMM amendment, the amendment we discussed just before the discussion of the KERRY amendment.

The reason I want to speak in favor of the GRAMM amendment is that, as someone who has been an original sponsor and long-time proponent of the child tax credit, we were surprised—first of all, we were delighted when, first, the President, and then the Budget Committee endorsed the concept of the $500-per-child tax credit. It is long overdue. It is only a partial step in remedying an inequity that has existed for a long, long time, in terms of giving families the ability to provide for their children.

Way back in the 1940s, Congress decided that raising families and raising children was a good thing. They provided a dependents exemption for that purpose. They did not index it for inflation. And over the years, because it was not indexed for inflation and because it was not raised by an act of Congress, the value of that particular exemption decreased—that is, the dependents exemption. Now, we finally doubled that exemption, and now index it, after the 1986 tax law. But it was still a third to a fourth of what it should have been if it had maintained pace with the cost of raising children. So families were squeezed and fell further and further behind other special interests that were granted benefits in the Tax Code.

We finally focused on the importance of raising children and the importance of families and the importance of providing support for the family. I am pleased that we are here discussing the $500 tax credit. I am pleased that the chairman of the Finance Committee incorporated the $500 tax credit in their mark. But I rise in support of the Gramm amendment because, in doing so, a provision was made whereby the credit would only be available up through the age of 12. At that point, the credit was available, but it was conditioned on the fact that the money be put into an education savings account.

Now, it is ironic that, at the very time when the cost of raising children takes a dramatic jump, we take away the ability of parents to use that credit to pay for expenses related to those children.

As this chart shows, entitled ''Annual Child Rearing Costs; Children Ages 0 to 17,'' there is roughly a $7,850 cost per child for children, ages 0 to 2. It jumps to over $8,000 for children, ages 3 to 5. It goes to nearly $8,200 for children, ages 6 to 8. And it stays about that level through the age of 11. But at the age of 12—at no surprise to any parent in this room, or any parent trying to raise young children—there is a dramatic increase in the cost per child when you hit the ages of 12 to 14, and it continues to 15 to 17. Why is that? It is because no longer are you able to tell your children that the $5 Kmart tennis shoes are good enough to wear to school. All of a sudden, they discover the Michael Jordan tennis shoes, and it is now $140 a pair. All of a sudden, the dentist says it is time that you saw an orthodontist, because if you want your child to have straight teeth, this is the time. The baby teeth are gone, the new teeth have come in, and we all want our kids to have perfect smiles. Some might be for cosmetic reasons, and many might be for a misaligned jaw or an overbite, and so forth. And clothes begin to cost more. Kids start thinking about the opposite sex. So that involves the thought of beginning to date and, suddenly, you are buying movie tickets and, suddenly, they are going out for burgers, et cetera. It is no surprise to any parent that that is the point in time which the cost really escalates, particularly when they get into the 15 to 17 age range. Then they are starting to work after school and they need transportation. Heavens, what an embarrassment it would be to have to ride the school bus. You need a car, et cetera, et cetera. There are a lot of necessary costs at this particular time, also.

At that very time when it costs more, the Finance Committee has said, ''We recognize that it costs more, but you can't use the money for anything except the purpose we deem is acceptable.''

Now, it is a worthy thing to begin to save money for college, for secondary education, but not all children go to college. In fact, apparently, a large percentage don't go to college. So the education savings account that is begun or is mandated at the age of 13—they must use the child credit for that. I think that serves a purpose that we should not support.

Now, some have suggested that the reason all this was done was to make the budget numbers balance, that it was to save money because those families that would not send their children to college, or didn't have plans to send their children to college, or didn't have the funds to accumulate for college, would not take the $500 tax credit and, therefore, are a savings. I hope that is not the motivation. I don't think it was the motivation, but that may be the unintended result. So we have a situation here where, ultimately, what we come down to is that either the parents are going to decide how to use the funds on the child tax credit in the best interest of their children, or the Senate Finance Committee will decide.

Once again we continue the practice of Government knows best—not father knows best, not mothers know best, not family knows best, but Government knows best. We will tell you how you should spend or save money for your child. We will determine that it can only be used for one purpose. You have to continue a secondary education—a noble goal, a worthy goal, and one that I think we want to hold out as an option. But it should not be a mandate. It should not be limited to that particular goal.

There are a lot of families in this category that have expenses for their children at the ages of 13, 14, 15, and 16 that are more critical than forcing them to put the money into a savings account. Hopefully, they will be in a financial position, if we think they can put the money into a savings account. Again, I say it is a worthy goal. But it ought to be an option to those parents. It shouldn't be a mandate. We should not have a Government entity—whether it is an elected Government entity or a nonelected Government entity—making a decision as to how that money should be used.

It is almost humorous to say we know better about how a mother and father ought to spend money for their child than they do, that we know their family situation better, we know their education situation of their children better, we know their future plans better than the family knows its own plans.

So, as well-intended as this mark in the Finance Committee package might be, I think that the amendment of the Senator from Texas makes perfect sense because it simply says if you want to do that with a $500 tax credit, fine, you can do that. We will allow you to set up an education savings account.

One of the first bills I introduced when I came to Congress a long time ago was an education savings account. I think it is a worthy goal, a worthy idea. But if you deem that there are other purposes more appropriate, then we will allow you to do that also.

To suggest that at the age of 13 suddenly the 13-year old is given the money and the parents are going to say, ''I am going to take the money and go down to the casino,'' like the Concord Coalition suggested—talk about arrogance. Talk about an arrogant conclusion; that is, that parents don't care about their kids, that they are either going to spend the money on beer or they are going to spend the money at the casino almost defies belief.

Who do we trust here? Do we trust the parents? Do we trust the family? I am sure there will be examples. You can pick up the paper and read about some wayward father who took the tax credit and went down to the casino. Sure, that will happen. But that doesn't begin to describe the average American family who cares about their children, who want the best for their children, and are in the best position to make the decision as to how that money ought to be spent.

So I am a strong supporter of the Gramm amendment. I think that we ought to modify this. Whether this is put together to create a deal—it is a lousy deal. I won't call it a rotten deal. It is a lousy deal, and the wrong way to allocate these resources. Let's leave that decision in the hands of the parents and not in the hands of the Government.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Let's imagine a single mother who is teaching school with three children ages 17, 15, and 12 hoping to save money for college and just getting by. The transmission breaks on the car, and there is a $400 bill. Who should decide who ought to spend that money? The Members of this body, or that mother?

Mr. COATS. Maybe that mother needs that car to get to work so she can continue to make money so she can send her children to school, but we will be effectively telling her, ''You can't fix that transmission.'' We will tell that mother, ''You can't use that money to buy a computer because maybe your child needs special tutoring.'' And, ''You can't buy a software program to give that child better math tutoring so they will be able to go to college. You can't use that money for that. You can't use that money to hire a learning center or some other organization to help your child prepare for the SAT's so that they can get into college. No. You have to do what the Finance Committee says. The Finance Committee says you have to put it in an education savings account.''

I just think it is wrong. As I said, it may be well intended and well motivated, but the consequences are such that I don't think we have thought these things through.

That is why the amendment of the Senator from Texas ought to be supported.

I thank my colleague from Alabama for his contributions.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are approximately 8 minutes left on the debate.

Mr. JEFFORDS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Vermont.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, may I make an inquiry? Is it in order for me to ask unanimous consent to offer my amendment at this time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator may ask.

I have been authorized to object.

CHILD CARE

Mr. JEFFORDS. We will discuss the amendment which we will be offering on the floor at the appropriate time.

Mr. President, it is difficult to find high quality child care that is appropriate, affordable, and convenient for children today. How government can help parents achieve that goal is a very difficult and compelling question. I have, with my cosponsors Senators DODD, ROBERTS, KOHL, SNOWE, LANDRIEU, and JOHNSON put together an amendment which we will be offering. On the one hand the amendment will make it easier to find better child care that is more affordable. At the same time the amendment does some engineering by making it possible for more child care facilities and individual providers to improve their services and receive higher tax deductions for those efforts. My amendment also to shifts the amount of money that is available to parents in the child care tax credit and the dependent care assistance program to help them afford a better quality of care they may now be available to them. This combination of assistance for providers and parents will encourage that the child care facilities and individual providers will provide better care for the 12 million children who are in child care.

How we accomplish this is: First of all, to help middle- and low-income families, the amendment increases the level of income which qualifies for the maximum amount of the child care tax credit benefits $10,000 to $20,000. We make the child care tax credit refundable for low-income working families who qualify for the EITC. Then we go to the other end of the scale and phase the tax credit down, but not out, for wealthier people with incomes over $70,000, then we can pay for the increases at the lower end.

I also feel strongly that it is important to assist those businesses that are providing child care for their employees. The amendment creates an incentive which will allow businesses to receive a 50 percent tax credit for up to $150,000 in expenses to operate, improve, and develop appropriate child care for their employees.

As we all know from recent studies, the healthy development of children can very dramatically enhance, including their potential for future educational and social achievement, depending upon the kind of nurturing and affection they receive early in life, and the developmental and educational activities they are exposed to at birth. In order to make sure that kind of care is available for those children who need to be in child care while their parents work. This amendment provides the necessary incentives so they can find and afford to receive the care that will be safe and provide their children with a better chance for healthy development. That will be required if we expect to have a skilled workforce in the new world of the future.

What we are trying to do here is to balance the need to reduce the deficit and get the budget under control, with the need to improve the quality of child care for all children who must use it. Keeping in mind the funds that are available. We have offsets to pay for this child care amendment, which I think are very appropriate.

I yield to the Senator from Connecticut for a further explanation.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, first of all, I want to commend my colleague from Vermont. This is an amendment which will be offered by the distinguished Senator from Vermont, along with myself, Senator ROBERTS of Kansas, Senator KOHL of Wisconsin, Senator LANDRIEU, Senator SNOWE, Senator JOHNSON, and others.

Mr. President, this is a modest proposal that is designed to do what all of us agree needs to be done.

We have provided over the last number of years some significant support for child care in this country. For example, there is the Child Care Development Block Grant program which Senator HATCH and I authored back in the mid-1980's. There is also the Head Start program, which has been very, very helpful to so many families in this country in providing a positive learning environment for children. There is also the current child care tax credit. All of these are designed to provide assistance to those families today who are trying to juggle the very difficult task of providing an income for their families and also a safer environment for their children.

Good quality child care can no longer be considered a luxury. There are 13 million children every day in this country who are placed in child care settings. There are an awful lot of single parents out there raising families. There are two-income families that are providing for their children. These families want to be sure that their children are in a safe place.

We have done a great deal to help families with the affordability of child care. We have done a lot to increase the availability of child care.

What Senator JEFFORDS, Senator ROBERTS, Senator KOHL, myself, Senator SNOWE, Senator LANDRIEU, Senator JOHNSON, and others are trying to do is to use the Tax Code to try to do a better job of dealing with quality.

I want to be very clear that there is nothing in this amendment which sets national standards for quality—as our colleagues over the years have had some serious reservations about setting national child care quality standards. This amendment simply defines a quality setting as one that meets standards or certification set by States, local governments or private, non-profit entities—we don't specify any standards—what those standards must be. With this amendment we just try to create incentives so that child care settings will get some encouragement to improve quality.

Let me just enumerate what some of those incentives are.

We expand the tax deductions for businesses who contribute educational equipment and supplies to public child care providers.

We provide tax incentives to families who seek out higher quality care, realizing that such care is more expensive.

Let me step back, if I can, for a minute.

Mr. President, earlier this year, national magazines had cover stories on early childhood development. We now know that in the earliest stages of a child's life—zero to 36 months—it is absolutely critical that they be nurtured and cared for so that they can develop to their fullest potential. We've all heard by now about how the synapses in the brain of a child are formed —1,000 trillion of them just in those earliest years. Now we have scientific evidence of how important it is to read to children, to hold children, and to play with children in order to wire their brains for the skills they'll need later.

Obviously, the best caretakers of children are loving parents. That is the best child care—be cared for by prepared parents. No one can argue against that. But we also know that there are a lot of these parents who can't be there all day with their children.

So what do we do to proximate that caring, prepared parent situation when the parent is unable to be there? What are we trying to do? Do we leave the situation to chance and say to parents, ''Good luck. Do what you can. Hopefully you can find the kind of care you would provide if you were there.'' That is a difficult statement to make to parents since we all understand that not every setting is a safe one or a healthy one, that in fact there are vast differences in the quality of child care.

Rather than applying any rigid standards here, however, we will leave to the States and to communities to decide what works best. And then we provide the tax incentives to businesses to contribute equipment and supplies to help to improve the quality child care. We provide the incentives to those parents who seek out quality child care because it can cost a bit more. In doing all this we will hopefully encourage other child care providers to improve their own quality and to ultimately raise the levels of quality around the country.

With this amendment we also make the child care tax credit refundable because we realize that as we go from welfare to work that we are going to have a lot of these poorer families out there who are going to have difficulty affording quality child care. Refundability is critical—if we only provide tax credits to those who pay taxes, then we miss helping a lot of these poorer families who can truly use the assistance.

It is certainly a lot more expensive to provide child care than it is to provide welfare in most States. So as people move from welfare to work, do we want them leaving kids in the street, where hopefully a neighbor or someone else is around to keep an eye on them, or should they be in a quality environment? I think all of us agree they should be in a quality environment and one that their parents hopefully can afford.

Senator JEFFORDS has provided us with a way to reach this goal by using the Tax Code. It is not a direct appropriation. We realize how difficult it is to get funding for child care programs. Through the largess of our membership here over the last number of years, we have increased the child care block grant to $1 billion. That amount of money, but it does not even approximate the demand. And only 4 percent of that total amount is there for quality—hardly enough, really, when you think of the tremendous increase in demand for child care that is now going to occur across the country as a result of the enactment of welfare reform.

This proposal is designed to provide incentives to businesses to set up quality child care center and to families to seek quality care. We pay for this by making minor adjustments for those receiving the tax credit at the highest income levels by reducing the credit progressively by 1 percent, but never going below a credit of 10 percent of allowable expenses. So by just adjusting the benefit a bit we can provide the resources here to promote quality.

I urge our colleagues' support. This is going to need 60 votes, and that is a hard number to reach, but we ought to be doing everything we can to improve the quality of child care. This ought not to be a partisan debate. We have come up with an offset. We pay for this with minor adjustments to the Tax Code. This is a bipartisan amendment. With my colleagues from Vermont, Kansas, from Maine, from Louisiana, from Wisconsin and South Dakota, we have come up with a good proposal that we think meets the concerns that some have raised and still provides a way to ensure through the Tax Code that child care is not only available and affordable but also high quality.

And so, at the appropriate time, Mr. President, when the amendment is offered by the distinguished Senator from Vermont, we would urge our colleagues to be supportive.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. DODD. I thank my colleague from Vermont.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. COATS. Reserving the right to object—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. COATS. I am only inquiring from the standpoint that I am a little lost again on procedure. How much time is left under the bill? Because I would like to respond to the arguments on the amendment of the Senator from Vermont.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are 3 minutes remaining on the bill. If the Senator will wait until the 3 minutes have expired, then he can have up to 10 minutes in his own right.

Mr. COATS. Further reserving the right to object, I asked relative to the unanimous consent request of the Senator from Delaware. I just wanted to make sure it didn't include—maybe I misunderstood, but it didn't include a request to go immediately to those amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. These are amendments on which there appears to be agreement on both sides of the aisle.

Mr. COATS. To be accepted en bloc.

Mr. ROTH. I asked they be—

Mr. COATS. I withdraw my reservation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no objection, the clerk will report the amendments en bloc.

AMENDMENT NO. 556

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate that the Finance Committee should hold hearings on the tax treatment of stock options)

On page 267, between lines 15 and 16, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING TAX TREATMENT OF STOCK OPTIONS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) currently businesses can deduct the value of stock options as a business expense on their income tax returns, even though the stock options are not treated as an expense on the books of those same businesses; and

(2) stock options are the only form of compensation that is treated in this way.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the Committee on Finance of the Senate should hold hearings on the tax treatment of stock options.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my colleague from Michigan, Senator LEVIN, in offering an amendment regarding the current double standard employed by corporations today in accounting for stock options.

The amendment expresses the sense of the Senate that hearings should be held on S. 576, a bill sponsored by Senator LEVIN and myself.

S. 576 would close a tax loophole by requiring companies to treat stock options granted as compensation to employees as an expense for bookkeeping purposes, if they want to claim this expense as a deduction for tax purposes. The bill protects average workers by exempting companies from the requirements of the amendment if they provide stock options to substantially all of their employees, with more than half the stock options going to nonmanagement personnel and not more than 20 percent going to a single employee. The bill does not require a particular accounting treatment; that decision is left to the company. It simply requires companies to treat stock options the same way for both accounting and tax purposes.

The Joint Committee on Taxation provided an estimate of the revenue that is being lost because of this tax loophole. If this loophole is not closed, over the next 10 years, from 1998 to 2007, the U.S. Treasury will lose $1.6 billion. That's real money that could be used to reduce our ever-increasing $5.4 trillion national debt.

A great deal of attention has been focused recently on the outrageously high levels of executive compensation paid by some companies. The New York Times printed an article on March 30, 1997, that listed the compensation levels of several top corporate executives in 1996. For example:

IBM's Chairman, Louis V. Gerstner, Jr., received a compensation package worth $20.2 million.

General Electric gave its Chairman, John F. Welch, Jr., a package worth $30 million.

And Michael Eisner, Chairman of Walt Disney Corporation, got $8.7 million in salary and bonuses, plus stock options worth $181 million in today's market—the largest single grant in corporate history, according to the article.

Under current law, corporations can easily hide these multimillion dollar executive compensation plans from their stockholders or other investors. That is because the stock options that make up a large and increasing portion of these packages need not be counted as an expense when calculating company earnings.

Simply put, if a company pays $100 to an employee as salary, that $100 is deducted from the company's total profits. That seems logical. But if a company gives that same employee 100 dollars' worth of stock options as part of their compensation package, the company's total profits are unaffected. And the actual value of those stock options may very well increase several fold over time.

Stock options given as compensation to company employees are simply mentioned in a footnote in the annual report to shareholders—which, by the way, is a much-needed yet inadequate change in the accounting rules required by the Federal Accounting Standards Board starting this year. The result is the shareholders are given an inflated picture of the company's profits, and the top executives can take credit for those artificially inflated profits.

An article in the Wall Street Journal, dated January 14, 1997, stated these new rules could reduce some companies' annual earnings by as much as 11 to 32 percent. Yet, the required footnote could be overlooked by all but the most astute of stockholders.

One might reasonably ask how an arcane accounting rule could have such a large effect on the bottom line of corporations. The answer lies in the growth and value of stock options as a means of executive compensation.

Stock option plans in 1996 accounted for almost 45 percent of total executive compensation at 56 of our Nation's largest corporations, an increase of 5 percent in just 1 year. The portion of compensation made up of actual cash salary declined by 5 percent in just 1 year.

At the same time, the value of stock options increased dramatically as overall market performance soared in the last few years. The New York Times piece cited earlier also estimated the future value of stock options to those top executives, based on the most likely time the options would be exercised. The most impressive gain would be realized by Mr. Eisner, whose $181 million in Disney options received last year would be worth $583.7 million in 2007.

Yet, if any Disney shareholder looked at the annual report, all they will find is a footnote about the value of stock options granted to Mr. Eisner and other top executives. The bottom line—the profit statement—will be overstated by at least $181 million.

Why shouldn't the true value of Mr. Eisner's compensation package be included in calculating Disney's earnings? How can stockholders evaluate the true value of executive compensation if the value is just buried in a footnote somewhere in the annual report?

I recognize that there is a serious opposition to S. 576 in the business community. And I fully understand why. Companies save millions every year by claiming the value of stock options granted to employees as a deductible expense on their taxes. The Wall Street Journal article states that companies saved hundreds of millions of dollars in 1996 taxes because of this loophole:

Microsoft saves $352 million.
Intel saved 196 million.
Disney Corporation saved $44 million.

No other type of compensation can be treated as an expense for tax purposes, without also being treated as an expense on the company books. This double standard is exactly the kind of inequitable corporate benefit that makes the American people irate and must be eliminated. If companies do not want to fully disclose on their books how much they are compensating their executives, then they should not be able to claim a tax benefit for it.

S. 576 would end an inequitable corporate subsidy and restore fairness in the treatment of stock options. It would provide an additional $1.6 billion in deficit reduction by closing this corporate tax loophole.

The amendment Senator LEVIN and I are offering today is intended to urge full and open hearings on this issue. Industry will have an opportunity to express their views and explain their opposition to S. 576. I urge my colleagues to vote for the amendment, and I look forward to the hearings.

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON ESTATE TAXES.

(a) The Senate finds that whereas—

(1) The Federal estate tax punishes hard working small business owners and discourages savings and growth; and

(2) The Federal estate tax imposes an unfair economic burden on small businesses and reduces their ability to survive and complete with large corporations; and

(3) A reduction in Federal estate taxes for family-owned farms and enterprises will help to prevent the liquidation of small businesses that strengthen American communities by providing jobs and security;

(b) It is the Sense of the Senate that—

(1) The estate tax relief provided in this bill is an important step that will enable more family-owned farms and small businesses to survive and continue to provide economic security and job creation in American communities; and

(2) Congress should eliminate the Federal estate tax liability for family-owned businesses by the end of 2002 on a deficit-neutral basis.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise to offer a sense of the Senate amendment that calls for a repeal of the Federal estate tax on family owned businesses by 2002. I commend Chairman ROTH and the Finance Committee on the progress they have made by increasing the estate tax exemption for individuals and by excluding the first $1 million family owned businesses from Federal death tax liability. I look forward to working with my colleagues toward repealing the death tax on family businesses.

I introduce this resolution because I believe there is still much work to be done. The Federal death tax on family owned business tax punishes those who have worked hard their entire life building up a small business or a family farm only to have their children see it disappear in order to pay the Federal death taxes. The death tax discourages thrift and pierces the very heart of the American economy—small businesses.

Mr. President, small businesses are the backbone of the American economy. The simple fact is that most businesses in this country are small businesses. Out of the nearly 5½ million employers in this country, 99 percent are businesses with fewer than 500 employees. Almost 90 percent of those businesses employ fewer than 20 employees. Since the early 1970's, small businesses have created two out of every three net new jobs in this country. This remarkable job growth continued even during periods of slow national growth and downturns when most large corporations were downsizing and laying off workers. Small businesses employ more than half of the private sector workforce and are responsible for producing roughly half our Nation's gross domestic product. By punishing small businesses, the Federal death tax stifles our economy, discourages ingenuity, and threatens the economic security of many of our families.

The Federal death tax also tears at the bonds that unite parents and children and families and communities. The family business has historically been one of the primary means for children to learn skills and virtues that help throughout their entire lives. Many of the small business in Wyoming are ranches and farms, and I know many of the hard-working men and women in Wyoming who run these family ranches and farms. The whole family pitches in to harvest the crops, feed the livestock, mend the fences, fix the irrigation ditches, plow the roads, herd the sheep and cattle, and plan for next year's yield. Children learn that hard work and responsible planning are necessary ingredients for success in work as in life. They learn respect for the land that is their livelihood. They learn to appreciate the labor of their parents and grandparents and they realize their own labor is an investment in their future and the future of their children.

I myself ran a small family owned shoe store in Gillette, WY. We didn't have a separate division for merchandising and marketing. We didn't have an accounting department to sort out the complicated Tax Code. We all wore many hats. We had to sell the shoes, balance the books, keep track of our inventory, and straighten out the shelves. Let me tell you that we all learned to pitch in to get the job done. We learned to work together and we learned to appreciate the hard work and sacrifices each of us made to keep the store running smoothly. We also learned firsthand the importance of living by the golden rule. If you don't treat your customers well in the retail business they don't forget. This is especially true of folks in small towns where there are always a few people who remember what you did as a kid and who can even tell you stories about your parents and grandparents. The joy is, they also remember you when you treat them well. The family owned business is an important medium through which we pass on our heritage from one generation to the next.

Mr. President, our Tax Code represents our tax policy and we should be ashamed at a code which punishes families and stifles our economy. Every year our Tax Code forces thousands of families to sell their businesses just to pay the repressive Federal death tax. It is time we correct this injustice by providing meaningful relief for America's families and their small businesses. I commend the chairman for his diligent work in crafting a tax bill that takes an important first step toward reforming the death tax. I look forward to working with my colleagues in repealing this burdensome tax in the near future. This sense of the Senate resolution expresses our firm intent to work together toward this end. I ask for your support in this important endeavor.

I thank the chair and yield the floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 558

(Purpose: To amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 regarding the treatment of cancellation of student loans)

On page 77, between lines 11 and 12, insert the following:

SEC. . TREATMENT OF CANCELLATIION OF CERTAIN STUDENT LOANS.

(a) CERTAIN LOANS BY EXEMPT ORGANIZATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Paragraph (2) of section 108(f) (defining student loan) is amended by striking ''or'' at the end of subparagraph (b) and by striking subparagraph (D) and inserting the following:

''(D) any educational organization described in section 170(b)(1)(A)(ii) if such loan is made—

''(i) pursuant to an agreement with any entity described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) under which the funds from which the loan was made were provided to such educational organization, or

''(ii) pursuant to a program of such educational organization which is designed to encourage its students to serve in occupations with unmet needs or in areas with unmet needs and under which the services provided by the students (or former students) are for or under the direction of a governmental unit or an organization described in section 501(c)(3) and exempt from tax under section 501(a).

The term 'student loan' includes any loan made by an educational organization so described or by an organization exempt from tax under section 501(a) to refinance a loan meeting the requirements of the preceding sentence.''

(2) EXCEPTION FOR DISCHARGES ON ACCOUNT OF SERVICES PERFORMED FOR CERTAIN LENDERS.—Subsection (f) of section 108 is amended by adding at the end the following new paragraph:

(b) CERTAIN STUDENT LOANS THE REPAYMENT OF WHICH IS INCOME CONTINGENT.—Paragraph (1) of section 108(f) is amended by striking ''any student loan if'' and all that follows and inserting ''any student loan if—

''(A) such discharge was pursuant to a provision of such loan under which all or part of the indebtedness of the individual would be discharged if the individual worked for a certain period of time in certain professions for any of a broad class of employers, or

''(B) in the case of a loan made under part D of title IV of the Higher Education Act 1965 which has a repayment schedule establish under section 455(e)(4) of such Act (relating to income contingent repayments), such discharge is after the maximum repayment period under such loan (as prescribed under such part).''

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to discharges of indebtedness after the date of the enactment of this Act.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I rise today to offer a modest amendment that will make a major difference to thousands of young men and women who chose careers in community service.

As is well-known, the rewards of a community service job are not the salaries. Few choose teaching in Head Start, working for the Jesuit Volunteer Corps, or a career in nursing with the expectation of riches, big houses or luxurious vacations. In fact, for too many in these fields the salaries are substandard and pension and other benefits are questionable. The rewards come from knowing at the end of the day that they have made a difference in the lives of children and others in their communities.

Many of these careers require post-secondary education, and today, higher education means debt. In 1995–96, total federal student loan debt rose to over $24 billion dollars; $264 million in my home state of connecticut. Nearly 7 million students borrowed to meet the costs of college.

Mr. President, I believe we must do more about this problem of rising student debt. Not only are students deterred from pursuing rewarding, community-related work, but they and their families are also being scared off from pursuing the dream of higher education at all. This undermines our economy and nation as a whole; it is clear we will not be able to meet the challenges of the next century without harnessing and nurturing the talents of all Americans.

For nearly 40 years, this is what federal higher education policy has been about—from the GI bill to Pell grants, the federal government has provided the means for millions of Americans to attend college. Rising costs, and the increasing reliance on loans to finance them, is beginning to undermine our central federal commitment.

There are some good things, but many missed opportunities, In the bill before us today. The modified HOPE Scholarship should be improved and I support amendments to do so. The tax deduction for student loan interest, and some of the family savings provisions will also assist families in meeting the costs of higher education.

But there is a great deal missing. Most notably, the President's proposal to support lifelong learning through a $10,000 tax deduction for tuition. This tax relief is critical to America's families and others pursuing higher education beyond the first two years. Continuing education is vitally important for nurses, teachers, technical workers and others. Yet this package does little for them to assist in these efforts. The Democratic alternative rightly restored this critical benefit.

In addition, few of these tax advantages go to the neediest students and their families, despite the fact that this is the group with the most limited access to higher education. I hope that we can make progress on these fronts during today's consideration of this bill.

Mr. President, this amendment also helps fill in the gaps in this bill. With rising student indebtedness, students literally cannot afford to take jobs as Head Start teachers, nurses or police officers. As a result, we and all our communities lose the talents and energies of these trained and motivated young people.

The DODD amendment supports the work of students who chose a career in community service by ensuring that they are not disadvantaged in the treatment of loan forgiveness associated with their work.

It is not uncommon that public and private non-profit student loan programs provide for the forgiveness of a student's loans should that student chose to go into certain community service fields. For instance, the Federal Perkins Loan programs provides forgiveness for Head Start teachers, teachers in certain urban and rural areas, police officers, nurses, members of the Armed Forces and certain others.

However, the Tax Code currently disadvantages those students who receive loan forgiveness from the private sector. The amount forgiven by nonpublic entities is currently treated as income, which can result in much higher tax liability for the student, undermining the effect of this important benefit.

Specifically, this amendment would expand section 108(f) of the Internal Revenue Code so that an individual's gross income does not include forgiveness of loans made by tax-exempt charitable organizations, such as universities or private foundations, if the proceeds of such loans are used to pay costs of attendance at an educational institution or to refinance outstanding student loans and the student is not employed by the lender organization. As under present law, the Section 108 (f) exclusion would apply only if the forgiveness is contingent on the student's working for a certain period of time in certain professions for any of a broad class of employers, so long as a public service requirement is met.

The exclusion also corrects an oversight in the enactment of the income contingent repayment option under the current student loan program, which provides low-income, high-debt students with the option of stretching out their payments over 25 years. This program allows students to pursue interests in lower paying fields while continuing to meet their obligations to the tax payers to repay their student loans. If the student makes payments for 25 years and still has a remaining balance, the Government forgives their loan. Unfortunately, when we enacted this vital program, we neglected to clarify that this forgiveness should not be taxable. This amendment would make this correction and fulfill the Government's promise to needy students.

This initiative has been scored by the Joint Tax Committee to have a minimal impact on revenue and therefore this amendment does not require offsetting revenues. The administration supports this initiative and it is also included in Chairman ARCHER's house bill.

Mr. President, I believe this is a simple step we can take to assist thousands of young people who chose careers in community service, and I urge my colleagues to support it.

AMENDMENT NO. 553

The PRESIDING OFFICER. And amendment No. 553 as a part of that agreement is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 553) was agreed to, as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 553

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate that the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 needs reform)

At the end of page 11, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING REFORM OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1986.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (''tax code'') is unnecessarily complex, having grown from 14 pages at its inception to 3,458 pages by 1995;

(2) this complexity resulted in taxpayers spending about 5,300,000,000 hours and $225,000,000,000 trying to comply with the tax code in 1996;

(3) the current congressional budgetary process is weighted too heavily toward tax increases, as evidenced by the fact that since 1954 there have been 27 major bills enacted that increased Federal income taxes and only 9 bills that decreased Federal income taxes, 3 of which were de minimis decreases;

(4) the tax burden on working families has reached an unsustainable level, as evidenced by the fact that in 1948 the average American family with children paid only 4.3 percent of its income to the Federal Government in direct taxes and today the average family pays about 25 percent;

(5) the tax code unfairly penalizes saving and investment by double taxing these activities while only taxing income used for consumption once, and as a result the United States has one of the lowest saving rates, at 4.7 percent, in the industrialized world;

(6) the tax code stifles economic growth by discouraging work and capital formation through excessively high tax rates;

(7) Congress and the President have found it necessary, on 2 separate occasions, to enact laws to protect taxpayers from the abuses of the Internal Revenue Service and a third bill has been introduced in the 105th Congress; and

(8) the complexity of the tax code has increased the number of Internal Revenue Service employees responsible for administering the tax laws to 110,000 and this costs the taxpayers $9,800,000,000 each year.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 needs broad-based reform; and

(2) the President should submit to Congress a comprehensive proposal to reform the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks the floor?

Mr. COATS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. COATS. May I inquire now what the time situation is?

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We are now in a period of morning business with Senators being recognized for up to 10 minutes.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I would ask to speak as if in morning business.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

QUALITY CHILD CARE

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, in responding to the amendment of the Senator from Vermont, as also addressed by the Senator from Connecticut, let me state that I share the goal of seeking ways to provide quality child care. This is something that I have supported, have worked on with the Senators. Clearly, as we are looking particularly at welfare reform, we are going to have increasing need for child care. We all want that to be quality child care.

The goal that I had when we worked on the ABC bill several years ago was to make sure that the options available to parents for child care were not limited in any particular way. I was concerned about certification requirements. I was concerned about quality standard requirements because, clearly, at that time, and it is still the case today, the choice of the majority of parents relative to child care for their children is not a child care center but taking care of that child in the home, often by a neighbor, by a friend, by a relative, placing their child in a family child care situation, whether it is a church or a home or some other entity.

Several Senators on this floor have talked in the welfare debate about training welfare mothers in projects or allowing them to be child care providers as other people under welfare will be seeking work. All that makes a great deal of sense. My concern with the Jeffords amendment is that it gives preferential treatment to just one choice, and therefore places those other forms of child care at a disadvantage. It doesn't take away options, I concede that, but it does place them at a disadvantage because you are biasing the choice.

Now, it is a worthy goal to attempt to encourage a better quality care. But, of course, every time we get into this debate and discussion, it is always the State that defines what the quality care is, and the concern is that what is quality care to a State agency or a State bureaucracy is not the same standards of quality care that a parent might choose for their child.

In a sense we are getting back to the same argument as we had before, and that is who is in a better position to determine what is best for the child in the interest of the child. Is it the parent who is in a better position to determine what their child needs in terms of child care and what the quality of that care is, or is a Government entity in a better position, or a piece of legislation able to describe what a better quality child care would be?

So in this provision we are giving a preferential treatment to only one kind of child care, and that is child care selected by less than a majority of parents who place their children in child care. The latest figures I have are that 32.9 percent of parents place their children with relatives for child care, and those parents will not qualify, necessarily qualify for a bonus. They may not have the education, meet the educational criteria. They might not meet what the State determines as the quality criteria for their child, but as a parent I can tell you I would much rather place my child with a relative than I would with a child care center.

Mr. DODD. Will my colleague yield for a second?

Mr. COATS. I would be happy to yield.

Mr. DODD. We are very sensitive to these concerns, as my colleague has raised these issue on numerous occasions. I should have stated at the outset that the Senator from Indiana chairs the Subcommittee on Children and Families, on which I have been proud to serve as ranking member. He has been instrumental for so many years in helping children and families. I hold him in high regard on this issue.

If I can read this briefly from the amendment for my colleague from Indiana—the terms credentialing and accreditation are used to refer to formal credentialing and accreditation processes by a private nonprofit or public entity that is State recognized (minimum requirements: age-appropriate health and safety standards, age-appropriate developmental and educational activities as an integral part of the program, outside monitoring of the program/individual accreditation/credentialing instruments based on peer-validated research programs/facilities meet any applicable state and local licensing requirements, and ongoing staff development/training which includes related skills testing). There are several organizations and a few states that currently provide accreditation and/or credentialing for early childhood development programs, child care and child care providers.

That language was drafted with help by religious and non-profit groups. We specifically provide that they may create standards. We have really gotten away from the notion that standards must be set at the Federal level. Centers and providers certified and accreditated by private nonprofits would qualify for the tax credit.

Mr. COATS. But the Senator would agree, would he not, that it does provide a preference that is not available to many providers of child care that might be perfectly acceptable providers of child care for the children of those parents?

Mr. DODD. I do not disagree. There is an incentive. You still get the credit for using a non-accredited provider, but you simply get a larger one if you use one that has been accredited or certified. Our goal here is to try and get standards up for all child care setting, whether a home-based care program, a church-based care program, or a public setting.

I am not arguing that a parent or a grandparent can't provide terrific child care. But, we just want to make sure that at least we are encouraging quality standards, whether State established or private nonprofit standards, to increase the opportunity for that child to get the proper kind of care.

Mr. COATS. I understand the motivation. My concern is that there will be a large number of child care providers who will not meet those standards, will be put in a position that is less preferential than those who do meet the standards, and yet the standards might not necessarily be what the parent determines to be the best care and the best nurturing for that particular child.

For instance, let us say a child care provider does not read, cannot read. Would that person ever be able to qualify for the standards? Probably not, because we are talking about a developing child. Yet, if the Senator had the privilege, as I and many of us did, of attending the national prayer breakfast this year, Dr. Ben Carson, head of neurosurgery at Johns Hopkins University, one of the world's foremost neurosurgeons, was raised by a mother who could not read. After I saw what product came out of that child rearing, I would want my child raised by his mother. Yet, obviously, the Senator's bill would not take away that choice, but clearly that individual would not qualify, with those standards, for the preference given under the Jeffords amendment.

You used the words ''nurturing'' and ''caring.'' Nurturing and caring, as we learned in our hearing on development of the brain and other hearings on child care, is the most important aspect of early child care. It is not flash cards, it is not introducing kids to computers, it is the one-on-one bonds that are formed. Yet, we are putting those people at a different level. We are saying they really don't qualify for the higher accountability standards because they have not had the training, they have not had the education, they have not met the standards of whatever group sets those standards.

I am simply saying I think the parents ought to set the standards. I think the parents ought to determine what is in the best interests of the child without a bias against someone who they deem is best in favor of someone who happens to meet the standard set by a particular group.

It is a dilemma. I understand what the Senators are trying to do because that is a goal I think we ought to work toward. But I think it does so by sending a message that this level of child care that meets the standards is better for your child than the determination that you might make in terms of having a relative, of having a neighbor, of having someone down the street who doesn't necessarily qualify. That is my concern.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. COATS. I will be happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. JEFFORDS. There is nothing the Senator says that we disagree with. But if you take a look at the studies that give you an idea of children who are being placed in situations which do not have that kind of care, the question is whether you should reward them the same as you do others that do have good health care. In this study, 40 percent of the health care provided infants in child care centers was potentially injurious. Fifteen percent of center-based child care for all preschoolers was so bad that the child's health and safety were threatened; 70 percent were mediocre. This is the study.

If you are faced with those, and you understand the dramatic problems that can cause in a child, then you ought to have some way to give the parents of children a means of determining that they can be assured they are not going to have their child damaged. Granted, family situations or whatever else is some of the best care, obviously, and loving and nurturing. A parent is probably better than most child care things you can do. But at least people ought to know that there is someone who is saying your child is not going to be injured in that care. That is all we are trying to do.

Mr. COATS. We can all quote studies. I could also pull out the study that shows that children are at a much higher risk of infection and illness and even accidents in child care centers than they are in the arms of a next-door neighbor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for time just to make one quick point to my colleague here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Just a quick point. I want to point out this amendment of ours is phased in over 5 years, so there will be plenty of notice and time here for providers to try to get themselves ready to met quality standards. We do not rush this in; we allow time for providers and families to learn about and to prepare for higher quality care.

My second point is that accredited or certified settings cost a bit more. If parents want to place their children in those situations, given the fact it costs more, our providing a tax incentive with a bit more of a break makes sense. I thank my colleague for allowing me to make those points to my colleague.

Mr. JEFFORDS. If I may follow on that just very briefly, again, studies say—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for 1 additional minute so the Senator can finish his point and I can.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JEFFORDS. I would like to point out that one-quarter of all parents contacted in a nationwide survey said they would like to change their present child care arrangements, but they cannot find or afford better quality care. This is big reason for this amendment. We are trying to help people with limited resources by shifting the money where it will do best, provide access to best child care.

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, just in response, I would say I think it sends a signal. It sends a signal if you have a State stamp of approval or certified group stamp of approval that your child is going to get better quality care there than if you do not have that. Yet, we know parents' preferences are, for a majority of parents, to place their children in situations where they don't have any State or certifying agency stamp of approval, but they are going to be looked at potentially as secondary care when it is not secondary care. It is in many cases superior care. Because they trust a relative, they trust a neighbor, they trust a family home care, even though it doesn't necessarily qualify for the certification standards. That is my concern with the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. CHAFEE. Mr. President, before he starts, I wonder if I might just make a point. As I understand it, each Senator has 8 minutes, is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Ten minutes.

Mr. CHAFEE. The hour is late. I hope everybody will stick by their assigned 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

TAXING SEVERANCE PAY

Mr. TORRICELLI. Mr. President, throughout the course of this day, Members of the Senate have offered amendments which on occasion were of considerable benefit to people of great wealth, to encourage them to make investments for the benefit of our economy. As we have just witnessed, on occasion during the day, Members of the Senate have offered amendments for people of modest incomes, to encourage their savings, help them with the high cost of living and raising children. Indeed, many segments of society will find in this tax legislation various forms of benefits—to help with retirement and health and the rearing of children.

Tomorrow, I will offer an amendment to the bill, not designed for those of high income and not specifically for those of moderate income. More particularly, it is designed for those of no income.

The leading cause of unemployment in America for the last decade remains large-scale corporate downsizing. Even in a healthy economy, because of the introductions of new technologies, requirements of new skills, changes in trading patterns, acquisitions, mergers, people who are competitive, people who get up every day and work hard and are devoted to their communities, their families and their professions, their jobs, through no fault of their own, can find themselves in a situation without employment.

Indeed, in the last decade 20 million Americans have been excused from their employment because of a large-scale corporate downsizing. But, in a considerable and rising tide of corporate responsibility, many of these companies have adopted the modern practice of giving severance pay to their employees. It is a chance, by the corporation, to give to the employee modest amounts of money upon their departure to reorganize their lives, seek new skills, move to a new location, start a business or go into retirement.

Indeed, in a recent experience in my own State of New Jersey, one of the largest corporations in America, AT&T, only a year ago laid off 40,000 employees in a single announcement. A third of those employees decided to start their own businesses. A third went into retirement. Indeed, only a minority ever found employment in the short term under similar circumstances, and they were all offered severance pay.

The problem, and it is the subject of my amendment tomorrow, is that while corporate America is offering this severance pay for people to continue and reorganize their lives in this competitive economic environment, the Government responds by taxing the severance pay up to a third, as if it were income. Imagine the circumstances. You have worked in a company all of your life and because of a merger or acquisition, a skill you may no longer possess, a change in the economy, even in good times you are excused from your employment, given $5,000 or $10,000, which you think goes best to continuing your education or opening a small business. Yet, when it is time to pay your Federal taxes, the Government takes a third of it from you, money that can make the difference in whether or not you can reorganize your life, move to a different place in the country to seek new employment, pay a tuition, or start your business.

The amendment I offer tomorrow is as simple as it is important. The first $3,000 of any severance package offered to any employee in America whose severance package is less than $150,000, if that person does not get reemployment in 6 months, up to 95 percent of their previous compensation, that $3,000 is tax-free. The person should use it for what is best for themselves, their own families and their own future.

I know at a time when our economy is growing, unemployment is low, a time of relative economic prosperity, few people are thinking about those who are without employment. In which State in this country, in what community have we not witnessed, through these extraordinary economic changes that indeed are the signature of our time, the dislocations of the marketplace? The times when many Americans would gain employment at the age of 18 or 22 or 25 or 30 and remain with a corporation most of their lives, those times have passed. The times when you gain skills in high school or college, and sought and obtained and retained employment all of your life with those skills, those times have passed. Even in good economic times, the length of employment with a single employer is shrinking. The consistency of employment with any employer is being reduced.

What I offer is a response, a chance to make this tax bill relevant to those 20 million Americans who may in the next decade find themselves in similar circumstances. There is not a Member of this Senate who faces this amendment tomorrow who does not have a chance to address the people of their own State in a critical way, not just the 40,000 people of AT&T in my native State of New Jersey, but the 2,000 employees of IBM in New York State who are suing at this moment, trying to establish by law that their severance package is not income.

In the State of Alaska, 1,200 people in the fourth quarter of 1996 were laid off; 88,000 people in the State of California; 22,000 people in the State of Illinois; 5,700 people in the State of Minnesota; 2,800 people in the State of Montana; 27,000 in Pennsylvania; 11,000 in West Virginia. In every State, in thousands of communities across this Nation, these dislocations have become a part of American life.

I am very proud that tomorrow this Senate will adopt a tax bill, one that I am proud to vote for, that addresses so many different economic concerns of this country. It has a reduction in capital gains taxes for middle- and high-income people that is needed to encourage investment. I am for it. I am going to vote for it. It has a change in the inheritance tax to allow families to retain family businesses in higher incomes, upper-middle-class families; IRA's to encourage families to save for education for their children's welfare. Each and every one a legitimate response to a real problem.

Mr. President, this is a problem, too. What is it we say to these people who want only to keep the money given them to reorganize their lives but are forced to share it with the Federal Government?

Tomorrow I will offer this amendment and ask for the support of my colleagues. Thank you for the time, Mr. President, and I yield the floor.

Mr. FRIST addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Tennessee.

BALANCED BUDGET ENFORCEMENT AMENDMENT

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I rise to discuss an important balanced budget enforcement amendment that I will offer on behalf of myself, Senators CONRAD, ABRAHAM, and SESSIONS, tomorrow morning.

This amendment evolves from a very simple principle, and that is, once we get a balanced budget, that it stays balanced well into the future.

This amendment, based on existing enforcement mechanisms, has two key provisions:

First, it establishes a 60-vote point of order in the Senate against any bill that provides or would cause a deficit in the year 2002 or in any year thereafter.

Second, it requires that the President submit a balanced budget in the year 2002 and every year thereafter. To retain appropriate flexibility, this amendment suspends this point of order in times of war or in times of recession. This exact same exception is provided for in the existing enforcement mechanisms under the current law.

This amendment is also—I should add, because I think this is important as we bring forth amendments tomorrow—consistent with the bipartisan budget agreement.

The text of the bipartisan budget agreement specifically states that ''agreed upon budget levels are shown on the tables included in this agreement.'' Under the long-range summary table in the agreement, the agreement shows a budget surplus of $1 billion in the year 2002 and $34 billion in the year 2007. This means that we are projecting a balanced budget in 5 years and in 10 years. My amendment will strengthen our ability to abide by this agreement and keep spending under control in the future.

In the bipartisan budget agreement, the Congress, the President, Republicans and Democrats, joined together to balance the budget in the year 2002. But I believe that everyone would agree that we don't just want to balance the budget in just that 1 year, 2002, but we want to maintain balance every year thereafter. That includes the years 2003, 2005, 2010, 2020.

We must keep focusing on our long-term budget picture for one very important reason: to prepare for the baby boomers' retirement which is just over a decade away. We know that the budget agreement does not go far enough in addressing this long-term challenge.

In fairness, the authors of the agreement never claimed that it does. But as we approach this new demographic era that all of us know is sitting out there just about a decade away, we must be acutely aware of the situation. In fact, we know that right now, 200,000 Americans will turn 65 this year. But in 15 years, in 14 years, in fact, by the year 2011, 1.5 million Americans will turn 65 just that year and that trend will continue over the next two decades.

Simultaneously, as the elderly population is increasing, the number of younger workers who are working to support that elderly population is decreasing. In fact, today, there are 4.9 workers supporting every single retiree's benefits, that is today, that includes Social Security and Medicare. But in the year 2030, there will only be 2.8 workers supporting the benefits of a single retiree.

This dramatic demographic shift will bring significant economic, political, social and cultural changes that will transform our society. If we continued on our current spending course, entitlements—that is our automatic spending programs—coupled with interest on the debt would consume all revenues in just 15 years, leaving not a single dollar left over for roads, for infrastructure, for medical science, for the national parks, for medical research and for defense of the country. I believe our balanced budget agreement will help ease this demographic pressure, but much more work lies ahead. We must begin sooner, rather than later, to deal with these problems fairly and effectively. This amendment addresses that problem.

It will keep pressure on Congress and the President to confront these inevitable challenges, this inevitable demographic shift. To those not familiar with the Federal budget process, this amendment will create a procedural hurdle, called a point of order, to prevent the Senate from considering bills that will increase the deficit. If a Senator raises this point of order, it will take a three-fifths vote of the Senate, that is 60 votes, to waive the point of order and pass the legislation, rather than the normal 51-vote majority.

After we have all worked so hard and so long to rein in spending, we should not allow the deficit to balloon out of control once again after that year, 2002. It is imperative that we preserve this achievement and restrict Congress' ability to overspend taxpayer dollars. We will offer this amendment tomorrow morning and, at that time, I will urge all of my colleagues to support this important amendment which addresses the inevitable demographic changes. I yield the floor.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I am pleased to be a cosponsor of Senator FRIST's budget process amendment.

The Frist amendment seeks to establish a more stringent enforcement mechanism for the bipartisan budget agreement. I think it's important for Congress and the President to continue working after enactment of this year's two reconciliation bills to ensure that at least the unified budget is balanced in 2002 and years thereafter. The amendment would also require the President to submit budgets each year which do not cause a unified deficit in fiscal year 2002 or any year thereafter.

Specifically, the Frist amendment would establish a 60-vote point of order against any resolution or bill—including the budget resolution—that provides or would cause a deficit in fiscal year 2002 or any year thereafter. I think such a point of order will help Congress and the President remain vigilant about the deficit, particularly in years after 2002.

Frankly, I would have supported much more ambitious deficit reduction efforts this year. I would like to see the federal budget moving towards true balance—that is without counting the Social Security surpluses. I believe that is the real way to balance the budget. But I also must acknowledge that the President and the bipartisan congressional leadership did not seek to balance the budget without counting Social Security. The bipartisan budget agreement balances only the unified budget. I don't believe we've truly balanced the budget with enactment of this year's reconciliation bills. But perhaps at least we have taken a modest step in the right direction.

One of the reasons I support the Frist amendment is that I am concerned about whether this bipartisan budget deal will accomplish its intended goal—balance of the unified deficit within five years. When I first became aware of the details of the 1997 budget agreement, I viewed it largely as a missed opportunity.

In my view, the budget was not truly balanced. It only claimed balance by using Social Security trust fund surpluses. In fact, in the year 2002 the real deficit will probably still be over $100 billion.

In addition, under this bipartisan budget deal the deficit is larger for the next three years than it is this year. This year's deficit is currently projected to be about $67 billion. The deficits for 1998–2000 will range from $80 billion to $100 billion.

Of most concern to me, budget negotiators failed to correct the upward bias that currently exists in the Consumer Price Index. There is overwhelming evidence that the Consumer Price Index, currently used to adjust tax brackets and various spending programs for inflation, overstates the actual change in the cost-of-living in the United States. The budget deal should have corrected this mistake which will add nearly $1 trillion to our national debt over the next 12 years.

Some of the economic assumptions underlying the budget deal are highly suspect. CBO's last minute revenue adjustment of $45 billion per year may be credible for the years 1997 and 1998. Its credibility for the period 1999–2007 is unclear. In addition, the balanced budget fiscal dividend assumed in the budget agreement is based on the theory that lower interest rates will result from balancing the budget with a credible deficit reduction plan and path. The real debate with regard to the Federal Reserve's interest rate policy right now is whether the Fed will raise, not lower, interest rates in the next few months, particularly since this proposal contains dramatically less savings—only $200 billion—than other proposals offered this year.

Finally, I am concerned that enactment of the tax package before the Senate will blow the progress we have made on reducing the deficit. Over the longer term, I am concerned that since many of the tax cuts are back-end loaded, they will explode in the outyears. The individual alternative minimum tax relief provisions are a perfect example. These provisions don't take effect until 2001. The cost over 1998–2002 is $350 million. The cost over 10 years is $15 billion, a 4000-percent increase. By 2007, the AMT provisions will cost the Treasury $6 billion per year.

Another example involves the Individual Retirement Account provisions in the Senate's tax bill. I know there is strong support for providing incentives for people to save. But the various IRA provisions in the Senate tax bill, particularly the new back loaded IRAs, have serious deficit implications. The IRA proposals lose about $9 billion over 1998 to 2002. Over the second five years the revenue loss is $36 billion. These types of back-end loaded tax cuts may prevent our nation from achieving long-term fiscal balance.

For all these reasons, I support careful monitoring of the federal budget deficit in 2002 and years thereafter. I believe a 60-vote point of order will force Congress and the President to immediately get back on track if our fiscal situation changes dramatically and the unified budget deficit begins to rise in 2002 and years thereafter.

If we can at least maintain unified balance of the budget, then perhaps Congress and the President will have the courage to move toward truly balancing the budget. We can perhaps then achieve the kinds of structural changes in entitlements that will put our nation on a sustainable fiscal course over the long term, as we prepare our nation and our economy for the retirement of the baby boom generation around the year 2012.

Mr. LEVIN addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair recognizes the Senator from Michigan.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I thank the Chair and I thank my good friend from Rhode Island for his understanding at this late hour.

STOCK OPTIONS

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, a few minutes ago, we passed by voice vote amendment No. 556. It was an amendment which Senator MCCAIN and I authored, and I want to spend a moment describing what that amendment does.

The amendment provides that it is the sense of the Senate, based on findings that, ''(1) currently businesses can deduct the value of stock options as business expense on their income tax returns, even though the stock options are not treated as an expense on the books of those same businesses; and (2) stock options are the only form of compensation that is treated that way. It is the sense of the Senate that the Committee on Finance of the Senate should hold hearings on the tax treatment of stock options.''

Mr. President, for the past several years, the Wall Street Journal has published a special pull-out section of the newspaper with an annual analysis of the compensation of top corporate executives. Last year's section had this headline: ''The Great Divide: CEO Pay Keeps Soaring—Leaving Everybody Else Further and Further Behind.''

Business Week featured this cover story on its 47th annual pay survey: ''Executive Pay: It's Out of Control.''

Both publications analyze the pay of top executives at approximately 350 major American corporations, and their analysis shows that the pay of chief executive officers continues to outpace inflation, others workers' pay and the pay of CEO's in other countries, as well as company profits. According to Business Week, CEO's total average compensation rose 54 percent last year to over $5.5 million, which came on top of 1995 CEO pay increases averaging 30 percent.

Meanwhile, the average 1996 raise for the average worker, both blue collar and white collar, was about 3 percent. In 1996 the average pay of the top executive was 209 times the pay of a factory worker. Little known corporate tax loopholes are fueling these increases in executive pay with taxpayer dollars. This loophole allows companies to deduct from their taxes multimillion-dollar pay expenses that never show up on the company books as an expense. Every other form of compensation is shown as an expense on company books. There is only one exception, and that is stock options.

There is a link of all this to taxpayer dollars. Suppose a corporate executive exercises stock options to purchase company stocks and makes a profit of $10 million. Right now, the company employing the executive can claim the full $10 million as a compensation expense and deduct it on the company's income tax return.

Someone might say, so what? All companies deduct pay expenses from their taxes. That's true. But there is an important difference here. Every other type of employee pay shows up on the company books as an expense and reduces company earnings. Stock option pay is the only kind of compensation that companies can claim as an expense for tax purposes without ever showing it as an expense on their books. That's because current accounting rules encourage, but do not require, companies to treat stock option pay as a company expense, so companies can continue to game the system.

A single corporate executive exercising stock options can provide a company with a $10 million, $50 million, or even a $100 million expense which the company can deduct when reporting company earnings to Uncle Sam, but omit it when reporting company earnings to stockholders and the public. That is not right. Either stock option pay is a company expense or it isn't. Either this expense lowers a company's earnings or it doesn't. Something is clearly out of whack in a tax law when a company can say one thing at tax time and something else to investors and the public, and it is a double standard which should end.

Senator MCCAIN and I introduced legislation in April to put an end to the double standard. It simply says that a company can claim stock option pay as an expense for tax purposes to the same extent that the company treats that stock option pay as an expense on its books. Companies would no longer be able to claim that stock options cost them large amounts of money when claiming a tax benefit, but then turn around and claim that it cost them nothing when reporting them to stockholders and the public.

Opponents of the legislation claim that it would tax stock options. That is simply not true. Companies will continue to get a tax deduction, not a tax increase, on the options they claim as an expense on their books. For the options that they don't count on their books, they couldn't continue to receive a tax benefit in the form of a deduction. The choice is theirs.

Others argue that this amendment will hurt the average employees who receive stock options from the company's stock option plan. Right now, stock option pay is overwhelmingly executive pay. In 1994, in the most extensive stock option review to date which covered 6,000 publicly traded U.S. companies, Institutional Shareholders Services found that only 1 percent of the companies issued stock options to anyone other than management and 97 percent of the stock options issued went to 15 or fewer individuals per company.

Nevertheless, there are a few companies that issue stock options to all employees and do not disproportionately favor top executives. Our bill would allow those companies that provide broad-based stock option plans to continue to claim existing stock option tax benefits, even if they exclude stock option pay expenses from their books. By making this limited exception, we would ensure that average worker pay would not be affected by closing the stock option loophole. We might even encourage a few more companies to share stock option benefits with average workers.

Still others argue that there is no way to estimate what the cost of stock options plans are and that we're basing a tax deduction on estimates. But there are a number of places in the tax code that use estimates to determine the amount of a deduction.

The bottom line is that the bill that Senate MCCAIN and I introduced is not intended to stop the use of stock options. It is not aimed at capping stock options or limiting them in any way. It would not limit the level of executive pay. That is an issue between the executives and shareholders of the company. Our bill is aimed only at those companies that are trying to have it both ways—claiming stock option pay as an expense at tax time, but not when reporting company earnings to shareholders and the public. It is aimed at ending a stealth tax benefit that is fueling the wage gap, favoring one group of companies over another, and feeding public cynicism about the fairness of the federal tax code.

According to the Joint Committee on Taxation, closing this tax loophole generates $181 million over 5 years and $1.57 billion over 10 years all of which will be dedicated to reducing the deficit.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a letter from Warren Buffett, Chairman of Berkshire Hathaway, to Senator DODD dated October 18, 1993, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

BERKSHIRE HATHAWAY INC.,
Omaha, NE, October 18, 1993.

Hon. CHRISTOPHER DODD,
Chairman, Securities Subcommittee, Committee on Banking,Housing, and Urban Affairs, Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I regret that I will not be able to attend your subcommittee meeting on October 21.

Could I have appeared there, I would have wished to make certain points, which I will distill here. First among these is the fact that I do not object to the intelligent use of stock options. I have often voted for their issuance, both as a director and as a substantial owner of the issuing corporations making use of them.

I do, however, object to the improper stock-option accounting now practiced. I summarized my views on that subject in the 1992 Annual Report of Berkshire Hathaway and I would like to repeat those comments here:

''Managers thinking about accounting issues should never forget one of Abraham Lincoln's favorite riddles: How many legs does a dog have if you call his tail a leg? the answer: Four, because calling a tail a leg does not make it a leg. It behooves manager to remember that Abe's right even if an auditor is willing to certify that the tail is a leg.

''The most egregious case of let's-not-face-up-to-reality behavior by executives and accountants has occurred in the world of stock options. The lack of logic is not accidental: For decades much of the business world has waged war against accounting rulemakers, trying to keep the costs of stock options from being reflected in the profits of the corporations that issue them.

''Typically, executives have argued that options are hard to value and therefore their costs should be ignored. At other times managers have said that assigning a cost to options would injure small start-up businesses. Sometimes they have even solemnly declared that 'out-of-the-money' options (those with an exercise price equal to or above the current market price) have no value when they are issued.

''Oddly, the Council of Institutional Investors has chimed in with a variation on that theme, opining that options should not be viewed as a cost because they 'aren't dollars out of a company's coffers.' I see this line of reasoning as offering exciting possibilities to American corporations for instantly improving their reported profits. For example, they could eliminate the cost of insurance by paying for it with options. So if you're a CEO and subscribe to this 'no cash-no cost' theory of accounting, I'll make you an offer you can't refuse: Give us a call at Berkshire and we will happily sell you insurance in exchange for a bundle of long-term options on your company's stock.

''Shareholders should understand that companies incur costs when they deliver something of value to another party and not just when cash changes hands. Moreover, it is both silly and cynical to say that an important item of cost should not be recognized simply because it can't be quantified with pinpoint precision. Right now, accounting abounds with imprecision. After all, no manager or auditor knows how long a 747 is going to last, which means he also does not know what the yearly depreciation charge for the plane should be. No one knows with any certainty what a bank's annual loan loss charge ought to be. And the estimates of losses that property-casualty companies make are notoriously inaccurate.

''Does this mean that these important items of cost should be ignored simply because they can't be quantified with absolute accuracy? Of course not. Rather, these costs should be estimated by honest and experienced people and then recorded. When you get right down to it, what other item of major but hard-to-precisely-calculate cost—other, that is, than stock options—does the accounting profession say should be ignored in the calculation of earnings?

''Moreover, options are just not that difficult to value. Admittedly, the difficulty is increased by the fact that the options given to executives are restricted in various ways. These restrictions affect value. They do not, however, eliminate it. In fact, since I'm in the mood for offers, I'll make one to any executive who is granted a restricted option, even though it may be out of the money: On the day of issue, Berkshire will pay him or her a substantial sum for the right to any future gains he or she realizes on the option. So if you find a CEO who says his newly-issued options have little or no value, tell him to try us out. In truth, we have far more confidence in our ability to determine an appropriate price to pay for an option than we have in our ability to determine the proper depreciation rate for our corporate jet.

''It seems to me that the realities of stock options can be summarized quite simply: If options aren't a form of compensation, what are they? If compensation isn't an expense, what is it? And, if expenses shouldn't go into the calculation of earnings, where in the world should they go?''

With over six months having passed since those questions were posed, I have had no one heap answers upon me.

Instead, as the debate about option accounting has gone forward, ''sweep-the-costs-under-the-rug'' proponents have argued fervently for disclosure—for the presentation of all relevant information about options in the footnotes to the financial statements, rather than in the statements themselves. In that manner, they say, investors can be informed about the costs of options without these costs actually hurting net income and earnings per share.

This approach, so the argument proceeds, is especially needed for young companies: They will find new capital too expensive if they must charge against earnings the full compensation costs implicit in the value of the options they issue. In effect, the people making this argument want managers at those companies to tell their employees that the options given them are immensely valuable while they simultaneously tell the owners of the corporation that the options are cost-free. This financial schizophrenia, so it is argued, fosters the national interest, in that it aids entrepreneurs and the start-up companies we need to reinvigorate the economy.

Let me point out the absurdities to which that line of thought leads. For example, it is also in the national interest that American industry spend significant sums on research and development. To encourage business to increase such spending, we might allow these costs, too, to be recorded only in the footnotes so that they do not reduce reported earnings. In other words, once you adopt the idea of pursuing social goals by mandating bizarre accounting, the possibilities are endless.

Indeed, I would argue that the ''national-interest'' theory is not only misguided, but wrong. True international competitiveness is achieved by reducing costs, not ignoring them. Over time, capital markets will also function more rationally when logical and even-handed accounting standards, rather than the ''feel-good'' variety, are followed.

Back in 1937, Benjamin Graham, the father of Security Analysis and, in my opinion, the best thinker the investment profession has ever had, wrote a satire on accounting. In it, he described the gimmicks that companies could employ to inflate reported earnings, even though economic reality changed not at all. Among Graham's most hilarious suggestions—because the thought seemed so far fetched—was a proposition that all employees of a company be paid in options. He pointed out that this arrangement would eliminate all labor costs (or, more precisely, eliminate the need to record them) and do wonders for the bottom line.

Today, in the world of stock options, we have life imitating satire. So far, of course, companies have largely substituted option compensation for cash compensation only when paying managers. But there is no reason that this substitution can't spread, as corporate executives catch on to the possibility of inflating earnings without actually improving the economics of their businesses.

One close-to-home example, involving Berkshire Hathaway and its 20,000 employees: I would have no problem inducing each of them to accept an annual grant of out-of-the-money options worth $3,000 at issuance in exchange for a $2,000 reduction in annual cash compensation. Were we to effect such an exchange, our pre-tax earnings would improve by $40 million—but our shareholders would be $20 million poorer. Would someone care to argue that would be in the national interest?

Many years ago, I heard a story—undoubtedly apocryphal—about a state legislator who introduced a bill to change the value of pi from 3.14159 to an even 3.0 so that mathematics could be made less difficult for the children of his constituents. If a well-intentioned Congress tries to pursue social goals by mandating unsound accounting principles, it will be following in the footsteps of that well-intentioned legislator.

Sincerely,

WARREN E. BUFFETT,
Chairman.

Mr. LEVIN. Finally, Mr. President, I just want to make sure that the clerk has the amendment in the same form that I do. I will simply read this amendment, and if there is any problem, the clerk can correct me. It has already been adopted, but I want to double check to make sure, and make a parliamentary inquiry, that the amendment reads as follows:

That it is the sense of the Senate the Committee on Finance of the Senate should hold hearings on the tax treatment of stock options.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is subsection (b) of the amendment?

Mr. LEVIN. That is correct.

The Senator is correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. LEVIN. I thank the Chair.

Again, I thank my good friend from Rhode Island for his patience.

Mr. CHAFEE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

HEART AND HYPERTENSION BENEFITS

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I wish to speak briefly about an amendment that I have submitted with my colleague from New York, Senator D'AMATO, to benefit firefighters and law enforcement officers in our respective states of Connecticut and New York.

For the firefighters and police officers of Connecticut, this amendment seeks simply to correct a wrong that, while unintentional, has cost these committed public servants a great deal of money and anguish. It has always been the intention of the state of Connecticut to provide its police officers and firefighters heart and hypertension benefits tax-free by considering them workmen's compensation for tax purposes. Based on that intention, these individuals accepted benefits with the understanding that they were not taxable.

However, the original version of Connecticut's Heart and Hypertension law contained language which made the benefits from the statute taxable under a ruling by the IRS in 1991. As a result of the problem with the state law, and through no fault of their own, these citizens have been charged with millions of dollars in back taxes, interest, and penalties by the IRS.

Connecticut has since amended its law, but that change does not help those police officers and firefighters who received benefits prior to the amendment. This legislation would remove their tax liability for heart and hypertension benefits for the years prior to the IRS ruling (1989, 1990, and 1991). The bill is narrowly drafted to accomplish that limited purpose, and would not affect the tax treatment of benefits awarded after January 1, 1992.

Mr. President, the police officers and firefighters of Connecticut serve our state's citizens with courage and compassion. The least we can do is provide them with this small measure in recognition of their bravery and commitment. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

The measure has been scored to cost $11 million for FY98 only.

LOUISIANA CONTESTED ELECTION

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on April 17 the Committee on Rules and Administration voted, along party lines, to conduct an investigation into allegations that fraud, irregularities, and other errors affected the outcome of the 1996 election for United States Senator from Louisiana. The vote was taken after a very thorough discussion. Periodically I have reported to the Senate with floor statements; today is my third.

On May 8, I reported that the committee was about to embark on a bipartisan investigation, as a result of efforts by both the majority and minority to agree to a ''Investigative Protocol'' regarding the joint conduct of the investigation. From the inception, I have believed a joint investigation could better serve the Senate.

On May 23, I provided a second status report to the Senate on the following: on efforts to secure the detail of FBI agents to the Committee, on assurances of cooperation by Louisiana officials, and on my agreement with Senator FORD, the ranking member on the Committee, on the issuance of over 130 subpoenas.

Last evening, Senator FORD announced that the ''Rules Committee Democrats will withdraw from the investigation of illegal election activities in the contested Louisiana Senate election''. Further, he asserted that the ''investigation was over budget, it's exceed the time frame agreed to, and none of Mr. Jenkin's (sic) claims have been substantiated by any credible witness.''

Since last Friday, Senator FORD and I had been working to resolve differences and develop a written outline of the work we jointly could agree on to complete our investigation. I had good reason to believe we had made progress, but I learned at approximately 6 p.m. yesterday that the minority had decided to terminate their participation.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE INVESTIGATION TO DATE

On April 17, 1997, when the Committee on Rules and Administration authorized me, ''in consultation with the ranking member'', to conduct an investigation into the 1996 Senate election in Louisiana (exhibit 1), I stated that I believed that a preliminary inquiry could be completed in approximately 45 days. Today is June 26, some 70 days later. This passage of time included: 20 days to first develop the Investigative Protocol required by the minority before we proceeded to finalizing contracts with our respective outside counsel; 53 days to secure from the Department of Justice the detail of FBI agents to the Committee.

As I stated at the April 17 hearing, it was my hope that this investigation could be conducted in a bipartisan manner, with the use of experienced investigative attorneys to direct the investigation, and with the assistance of experienced agents from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The majority proposed to retain the law firm of McGuire, Woods, Battle & Boothe as their outside counsel. Senator FORD proposed to retain the law firm of Perkins Coie. Under federal law, such consultants can only be hired pursuant to a joint agreement between the Chairman and Ranking Member of the Committee.

Senator FORD further conditioned the contracting of these firms on first reaching a joint Investigative Protocol. Among other matters this document had to detail the rights of the minority, the direction of the investigation, and the confidentiality of all aspects of the investigation. On April 21, our respective designated outside counsel began a long series of negotiations leading up to this Protocol, which counsel signed on May 1. The Protocol was approved not only by Senator FORD and his counsel, but also by the minority members of the Rules Committee. The contracts retaining the two law firms were signed on May 7. This process in total consumed 20 days, during which no investigation could take place. Copies of my letter to Senator FORD on this issue, the Investigative Protocol, and the letters of retainer are attached (exhibits 2–5).

We also agreed upon retaining the services of the General Accounting Office to assist in review of election documents. Two specialists, one a Certified Public Accountant, were detailed to the Committee on May 30, and are reviewing and assessing many of the thousands of election documents that were subpoenaed to assess the allegations of ''phantom votes''. That work is on going.

As the Investigative Protocol was being developed, committee staff had begun discussions with the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Department of Justice to detail experienced FBI agents to the Committee. Initially, Senator FORD indicated that members of the minority had some concern in using FBI investigators. Accordingly, on my own initiative, I wrote the Attorney General on May 9 requesting the detailees (exhibit 6). After additional conversations with Senator FORD, on May 14 he then joined me in formalizing a Committee request for the use of FBI agents (exhibit 7).

Thereafter, more negotiations ensued with the Department and Bureau, including my personal consultation with Director Freeh, to have the request approved by Attorney General Reno. Her final approval, given by her Deputy, occurred on May. But, the Department and Bureau stated that they could only provide two agents rather than the four we requested.

These two agents were not actually detailed to the Committee until June 9. By this time, 53 days had passed since the Committee hearing on April 17.

In addition, the Department still has not formally approved a Memorandum of Understanding between the Bureau, Department, and the majority and minority sides of the committee. Our staffs submitted a draft several weeks ago to the Department of Justice. This document, which is required under normal Committee procedures, has not been formally approved by the Department. A copy of the draft memorandum is attached (exhibit 8).

As regards timing, the central fact is that not until June 9 could the Committee get in place, in Louisiana, the agents to begin the field investigation. Petitioner Jenkins delivered files and tapes in response to a Committee subpoena and the FBI agents promptly began their review. Since this field investigation began in Louisiana only 17 days ago, we have had inadequate time to complete a preliminary investigation for the Committee. Indeed, we have not even begun the investigation into fraudulent registration which was one of the three areas that the Democratic counsel specifically recommended should be investigated. But progress is being made in collecting evidence and assessing Petitioner's allegations.

Speaking for myself, I am of the opinion this joint investigation should continue until the full Committee, not just the minority members, have had the opportunity to evaluate the work done to date. The Committee, I believe, has this obligation to the Senate.

THE INVESTIGATIVE EXPENDITURES

At the time the investigation was authorized by the Committee, I believed that outside counsel could complete this preliminary investigation with an expenditure for outside counsel capped at $100,000 for the majority and an equal amount for the minority. This estimate assumed that the FBI and GAO would provide the Committee a sufficient number of detailees in a timely manner.

At this point the majority outside counsel is working within the limit authorized by contract, and the full expenditure limit of $100,000 for services has not been reached. In addition to lawyers, when the Bureau concluded it could only provide two FBI detailees, the Committee had to hire two retired FBI agents. This was an additional expense, but their costs are being met within the majority's share of the Committee's resources.

A large percentage of our legal expenses to date were incurred to keep this as a joint investigation. For example, these expenses included prolonged negotiations developing the protocol, extensive negotiation and meetings to agree on the issuance of over 100 subpoenas, the acquisition and briefing of FBI agents, and the designation of investigative priorities, and other related matters. To provide for a joint investigation, the majority has tried in an every way to meet minority requests (exhibit 9).

STATUS OF INVESTIGATION

Until the full Committee meets, I will defer any comment on the evidence collected to date from witness interviews involving allegations of fraud.

With regards to the work done by our GAO detailed auditors have been assessing a portion of the Petitioner's categories of ''phantom votes''. While this work is not complete, the auditors have provided the Committee with interim data indicating that there were very few ''phantom votes'' in the categories and precincts examined to date.

Now I turn to issues relating to the compliance, or non-compliance of the laws providing safeguards to ensure the integrity of the Louisiana election process. The investigation, thus far, has clearly revealed that the safeguards required under Louisiana law—designed to ensure an election free from fraud—were breached, broken, in many instances during the 1996 election. Crucial election records were never sealed and remained exposed to possible tampering in violation of state law. Other election records were destroyed. Documents were commingled within a single office instead of being forwarded to separate offices on election night as required by law, completely frustrating a safeguard designed to prevent fraudulent alteration of the records. In addition, voting machines were opened after the election, ahead of schedule and outside the presence of witnesses, again clearly in violation of state law. A detailed memorandum prepared by outside counsel is attached as exhibit 10.

In conclusion, this investigation, thus far, has established that in many instances election officials, entrusted with following the law, did not do so. Documents, statements of admission, and testimony taken by the Committee's field investigators establish these facts.

This non-compliance with these legal safeguards, particularly in Orleans Parish, provided the opportunity for persons to commit fraud. It is the responsibility of the Committee to determine from the evidence whether such fraud existed and whether it affected the outcome of the 1996 election.

Given the importance of this matter to the United States Senate, it is my intent to work with Senator FORD to schedule a full Committee meeting as promptly as possible upon the return of the Senate after recess.

I ask unanimous consent that the exhibits to which I referred be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the exhibits were ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXHIBIT 1 AS PASSED BY THE COMMITTEE.

COMMITTEE ON RULES AND ADMINISTRATION

COMMITTEE MOTION

Wheras, the United States Constitution, Article I, Section 5 provides that the Senate is ''the Judge of the Elections, Returns, and Qualifications of its own Members . . .'';

Whereas, the United States Supreme Court has reviewed this Constitutional provision on several occasions and has held: ''[The Senate] is the judge of elections, returns and qualifications of its members. . . . It is fully empowered, and may determine such matters without the aid of the House of Representatives or the Executive or Judicial Department.'' [Reed et al. v. The County Comm'rs of Delaware County, Penn., 277 U.S. 376, 388 (1928)]; and

Whereas, in the course of Senate debate, it has been stated: ''The Constitution vested in this body not only the power but the duty to judge, when there is a challenged election result involving the office of U.S. Senator.'' [Congressional Record Vol. 121, Part 1, p. 440].

Therefore, the Committee on Rules and Administration, having been given jurisdiction over ''contested elections'' under Rule 25 of the Standing Rules of the Senate, authorized the Chairman, in consultation with the ranking minority member, to direct and conduct an Investigation of such scope as deemed necessary by the Chairman, into illegal or improper activities to determine the existence or absence of a body of fact that would justify the Senate in making the determination that fraud, irregularities or other errors, in the aggregate, affected the outcome of the election for United States Senator in the state of Louisiana in 1996.

This Committee Motion will operate in conjunction with and concurrent to the Standing Rules of the Senate. In addition, the following Rules of Procedure are applicable, as a supplement to the Committee Rules of Procedure:

A. Full Committee subpoenas: The chairman, with the approval of the ranking minority member of the Committee, is authorized to subpoena the attendance of witnesses or the production of memoranda, documents, records, or any other materials at a hearing or deposition, provided that the chairman may subpoena attendance or production without the approval of the ranking minority member where the chairman or a staff officer designated by him has not received notification from the ranking minority member or a staff officer designated by him of disapproval of the subpoena within 72 hours, excluding Saturdays and Sundays, of being notified of the subpoena. If a subpoena is disapproved by the ranking minority member as provided in this section, the subpoena may be authorized by vote of the members of the Committee. When the Committee or chairman authorizes subpoenas, subpoenas may be issued upon the signature of the chairman or any other member of the Committee designated by the chairman.

B. Quorum: One member of the Committee shall constitute a quorum for taking sworn or unsworn testimony.

C. Swearing Witnesses: All witnesses at public or executive hearings who testify to matters of fact shall be sworn. Any Member of the Committee is authorized to administer an oath.

D. Witness Counsel: Counsel retained by any witness and accompanying such witness shall be permitted to be present during the testimony of such witness at any public or executive hearing or deposition, and to advise such witness while he is testifying, of his legal rights. Provided, however, that in the case of any witness who is an officer or employee of the government, or of a corporation or association, the Committee chairman may rule that representation by counsel from the government, corporation, or association, or by counsel representing other witnesses, creates a conflict of interest, and that the witness may only be represented during deposition by Committee staff or consultant or during testimony before the Committee by personal counsel not from the government, corporation, or association, or by personal counsel not representing other witnesses. This rule shall not be construed to excuse a witness from testifying in the event his counsel is ejected for conducting himself in such a manner so as to prevent, impede, disrupt, obstruct, or interfere with the orderly administration of the hearings; nor shall this rule be construed as authorizing counsel to coach the witness or answer for the witness. The failure of any witness to secure counsel shall not excuse such witness from complying with a subpoena or deposition notice.

E. Full Committee depositions: Depositions may be taken prior to or after a hearing as provided in this section.

(1) Notices for the taking of depositions shall be authorized and issued by the chairman, with the approval of the ranking minority member of the Committee, provided that the chairman may initiate depositions without the approval of the ranking minority member where the chairman or a staff officer designated by him has not received notification from the ranking minority member or a staff officer designated by him of disapproval of the deposition within 72 hours, excluding Saturdays and Sundays, of being notified of the deposition notice. If a deposition notice is disapproved by the ranking minority member as provided in this subsection, the deposition notice may be authorized by a vote of the members of the Committee. Committee deposition notices shall specify a time and place for examination, and the name of the Committee members(s) or Committee staff member(s) or consultant(s) who will take the deposition. Unless otherwise specified, the deposition shall be in private. The Committee shall not initiate procedures leading to criminal or civil enforcement proceedings for a witness' failure to appear or produce unless the deposition notice was accompanied by a Committee subpoena.

(2) Witnesses may be accompanied at a deposition by counsel to advise them of their legal rights, subject to the provisions of Section D.

(3) Oaths at depositions may be administered by an individual authorized by local law to administer oaths. Questions shall be propounded orally by Committee members(s) or Committee staff or consultant(s). If a witness objects to a question and refuses to testify, the objection shall be noted for the record and the Committee member(s) or Committee staff or consultant(s) may proceed with the remainder of the deposition.

(4) The Committee shall see that the testimony is transcribed or electronically recorded (which may include audio or audio/video recordings). If it is transcribed, the transcript shall be made available for inspection by the witness or his or her counsel under Committee supervision. The witness shall sign a copy of the transcript and may request changes to it. If the witness fails to sign a copy, the staff shall note that fact on the transcript. The individual administering the oath shall certify on the transcript that the witness was duly sworn in his presence, the transcriber shall certify that the transcript is a true record of the testimony, and the transcript shall then be filed with the chief clerk of the Committee. The chairman or a staff officer designated by him may stipulate with the witness to changes in the procedure; deviations from this procedure which do not substantially impair the reliability of the record shall not relieve the witness from his or her obligation to testify truthfully.

(5) The Chairman and the ranking minority member, acting jointly, or the Committee may authorize Committee staff or consultants to take testimony orally, by sworn statement, or by deposition. In the case of depositions, both the Chairman and ranking minority member shall have the right to designate Committee staff or consultants to ask questions at the deposition. This section shall only be applicable subsequent to approval by the Senate or authority for the Committee to take depositions by Committee staff or consultants.

F. Interviews and General Inquiry: Committee staff or consultants hired by or detailed to the Committee may conduct interviews of potential witnesses and otherwise obtain information related to this Investigation. The Chairman and the ranking minority member, acting jointly, or the Committee shall determine whether information obtained during this Investigation shall be considered secret or confidential under Rule 29.5 of the Standing Rules of the Senate and not released to any person or entity other than Committee Members, staff or consultants.

G. Federal, State, and Local authorities:

1. Referral: When it is determined by the chairman and ranking minority member, or by a majority of the Committee, that there is reasonable cause to believe that a violation of law may have occurred, the chairman and ranking minority member by letter, or the Committee by resolution, are authorized to report such violation to the proper Federal, State, and/or local authorities. Such letter or report may recite the basis for the determination of reasonable cause. This rule is not authority for release of documents or testimony.

2. Coordination: The Chairman is encouraged to seek the cooperation and coordination of appropriate federal, state, and local authorities, including law enforcement authorities in the conduct of this Investigation.

H. Conflict of Rules: To the extent there is conflict between the Rules of Procedure contained herein and the Rules of Procedure of the Committee, the Rules of Procedure contained herein apply, as it relates to the conduct of this Investigation authorized herein.

U.S. SENATE, COMMITTEE ON RULES AND ADMINISTRATION, WASHINGTON, DC, APRIL 29, 1997.

Hon. WENDELL H. FORD,

Ranking Member, Committee on Rules and Administration, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR WENDELL: As I announced at our Committee meeting on April 17, I would like to retain the law firm of McGuire Woods Battle & Boothe with Mr. Richard Cullen and Mr. George J. Terwilliger, III, serving as lead counsel, to conduct the initial investigation into the alleged fraudulent and improper activities that may have affected the outcome of the 1996 election for United States Senator from Louisiana. It was my intent then, and remains so today, that this investigation be conducted in as fair a manner as possible, with the objective of determining the existence, or absence, of a body of fact that would justify the Senate in making a determination that fraud, irregularities or other errors, in the aggregate, affected the outcome of the election.

Accordingly, McGuire Woods will designate attorneys with long-term affiliations with both political parties, including Mr. William G. Broaddus, a former Attorney General of Virginia under Governor Chuck Robb, Mr. James W. Dyke, Jr., a former Secretary of Education under Governor Doug Wilder, and Mr. Frank B. Atkinson, former counsel to Governor George Allen. It is my hope that this investigation will be conducted in coordination with a like team of counsel selected by the minority.

It is now my understanding that, after many hours of meetings over four days, an ''Investigative Protocol'' has been agreed to by both sets of outside counsel as well as by Committee counsel, and that you are to be briefed on this protocol today. I am hopeful that you will agree with me that his protocol will permit a full and fair investigation of the allegations and facts, with complete participation by counsel for the minority.

This investigation must begin as soon as possible. It does no service to either party to this contest, nor the Senate, to prolong this matter. I reiterate my statement at the hearing that I will agree to your contracting for counsel. Any counsel you deem appropriate will be agree to by me pursuant to 2 U.S.C. Sec. 72a(i)(3). Further, I will honor any reasonable requests for subpoenas that you might wish to issue.

I look forward to your acceptance of the Investigative Protocol and a joint investigation that will collect the facts upon which our Committee may make an informed decision concerning this matter.

With kind regards, I am

Sincerely,

JOHN WARNER,
Chairman.

INVESTIGATIVE PROTOCOL

I. Process for Consultation and Review

Counsel will agree to consult on an ongoing, regularly-scheduled basis on the progress of the investigation, including consultation before significant investigative decisions are made; the majority and minority counsel will participate in regular staff meetings with investigators regarding the agenda and results of the investigation.

Consultation will include timely evaluation of the evidence, consideration of new lines—or extension of existing lines—of investigation, review of the schedule for interviewing witnesses and taking depositions, and discussion, where necessary, of other issues or investigative leads which promote a more efficient and cooperative investigative effort.

The majority and minority will work together to achieve agreement on investigative issues and decisions. When agreement cannot be reached after reasonable, good faith efforts, the necessary decision will be made in accordance with the majority view. It is understood, however, that the majority and minority will endeavor in good faith to avoid majority rather than consensus decision-making and that the minority reserves the right to withdraw from further participation under this protocol.

II. The Scope of the Investigation

Committee counsel will prepare and conduct an investigation pursuant to Committee resolution as follows:

Allegations of fraud, in particular vote buying, multiple voting and fraudulent voter registration. These allegations will be investigated as appropriate with attention to areas such as ''mismatched signatures'' and ''phantom voting,'' taking into account also evidence of failure of safeguards against fraud in the administration of the election.

The initial investigation plan will require that the investigation proceed in the first instance with the collection of all affidavits, notes, memoranda, audiotapes, transcripts and other materials in the possession of the Contestant which were submitted to the Committee on a redated basis but which shall be submitted in their original form to majority and minority counsel on an equal basis, without redaction, deletion or other editing, including the scheduling and conduct of interviews with the investigators hired or used by Contestant and the witnesses whom they interviewed and, as jointly determined pursuant to III (Investigative Plan), other allegations or evidence of error or irregularity.

The Committee investigation into any and all allegations will be guided and conducted as follows as evidence and testimony is collected or received, or evaluated.

The objective of the investigative effort will be competent, credible evidence, which evidence tends to show that but for the fraud, error or irregularity, the outcome of the election would have been different or the result of the election cannot be reliably determined.

The use of standard and generally accepted investigative techniques.

Careful consideration of Senate precedent and other analogous legal principles established by the law of Louisiana and other states reflected in the Senate precedent.

III. Investigative Plan

Counsel will reasonably endeavor to adhere to the 45-day timetable for completing the investigation; the 45-day timetable shall commence after agreement on the terms of the protocol. Counsel will advise the Chairman and Ranking Member if, due to new leads and areas of investigation, additional time is necessary.

An investigative plan will be proposed by majority counsel, subject to consultation with minority counsel, for the purpose of establishing priorities with respect to witness interviews, obtaining documents, issuing subpoenas, and other investigative requirements.

Every effort will be made to agree on an initial investigative plan. As part of the initial investigation, majority and minority counsel agree that interviews may proceed with the parties to the contest and/or their agents, employees and volunteers, and witnesses with whom they had contact in preparing the Petition and response, within 10 days of the commencement of the investigation. In the event of any unresolved differences on other aspects of the conduct of the investigation, the necessary decision will be made in accordance with the majority view.

The majority counsel will promptly provide a draft of recommendations at the conclusion of the investigation. The minority counsel will promptly provide suggested amendments, corrections or deletions. If respective counsel cannot agree on one final report, minority counsel may submit a supplement or separate report.

A written recommendation will be provided to the Chairman and Ranking Member within 5 days after the conclusion of the investigative period.

IV. Investigative Teams

Different areas of investigation will be assigned to teams which include representatives from the majority and minority counsel.

As part of the consultation process, the investigative teams will regularly advise the majority and minority counsel as a whole on the progress of their investigations.

Investigators will identify themselves as committee investigators only. A standard introductory statement to be used by investigators when approaching witnesses for the first time will be developed and agreed upon by majority and minority counsel.

Majority and minority counsel will jointly develop and participate in a briefing of investigators as to the purpose, scope, planning, and conduct of the investigation.

Majority and minority counsel will consult as to what instructions are to be given to investigators before conducting witness interviews. Majority and minority counsel will both participate in the briefing of investigators in advance of a particular witness interview, though either side may decline participation at its option.

V. Investigative Procedures

1. Subpoenas

Counsel shall seek to avoid unreasonable objection on the issuance of subpoenas.

The request of a witness for confidential treatment of his or her identity under Section V(3) is not a reasonable basis for objection to any subpoena requests.

Majority and minority counsel will consult on the drafting and issuance of all subpoenas consistent with the need to protect the identities of confidential sources of information as described below.

2. Depositions

The same considerations of comity and cooperation which apply to the issuance of subpoenas, as described immediately above, will apply to the noticing of depositions.

Majority and minority counsel will consult on the issuances of notices of depositions; in any event, at least one member of the majority and one member of the minority counsel staff will attend and participate in each deposition. In the event that the Senate grants counsel staff deposition authority, such depositions will be conducted on the same terms.

3. Witness Interviews

Investigators may be requested by the majority or minority counsel to conduct interviews, and the assignments will be considered and made on a consultative basis to assure the avoidance of conflicts and undue burden in the use of available resources. At the request of the majority or minority counsel, counsel may assist in the conduct of the interview or be present, or the majority or minority may request to conduct the interviews through counsel, but it is understood that occasions may arise where one side or the other may wish to conduct the interview without the other in attendance. Majority counsel has the responsibility to reasonably resolve any conflicting requests. Agents will be properly instructed as set out below.

Subject to the provisions of Section VI, witnesses may request an interview to be conducted with only the majority or minority counsel present, but in this instance and in any other instance where a witness requests that his or her identity be withheld from either the majority or minority, the counsel from whom the identity may be withheld may request the identity and the opportunity to interview the witness where the credibility of the witness is relevant to the evidentiary weight of the testimony.

No follow-up interviews of previously interviewed witnesses, except by investigators, shall be conducted without consultation between majority and minority counsel about the appropriate timing for such follow-up.

Investigators will be instructed to make all reasonable efforts to provide written reports of all witness interviews to majority and minority counsel within 24 hours of the interview. Any oral communications regarding investigative findings or significant investigative issues shall be promptly reported and transmitted to counsel to both the majority and minority.

VI. Policy Regarding Confidential Sources of Information

Although a witness seeking confidentiality will be encouraged not to place any restrictions on the disclosure of his or her identity, the decision to keep the witness' identity confidential will be left to the witness; however, the witness will be informed that his or her identity will be revealed to the Chairman or Ranking Member of the Committee upon request. There shall be a presumption that no confidentiality shall be extended to a party to the contest or to any agent, employee or volunteer of a party to the contest; exceptions may be granted by agreement of majority and minority counsel for good cause shown or upon agreement of the Chairman and Ranking Member or at the direction of the Committee.

Information obtained from a confidential source will be provided to the other counsel through the prompt exchange of written reports; these reports will describe the source's information, and provide the basis for and an assessment of the reliability of the source and his or her information. Where the substance of the information provided reveals the identity of the source, the content of the written reports will be redacted to protect the confidentiality of the source's identity.

In the event that there are interviews of confidential sources, each counsel will maintain a list of those sources; where disclosure of a confidential source is necessary, the identity of the confidential source will only be disclosed to the Chairman and Ranking Member.

VII. Evidence Integrity

The parties, their agents or other persons with an interest in the investigation shall be advised against any contact or communication with witnesses on the substance, timing or on other material matters relating to the provision of testimony or interviews, or to the collection of evidence. This advice will include a request that the parties in particular commit to cooperation with this investigation and encourage those in their employ, their counsel and supporters to extend this same cooperation. The purpose of this advisory and request for commitment shall be to protect the integrity of the testimony and evidence and the majority and minority shall consider and implement as appropriate other means to assure the fulfillment of this purpose as the investigation proceeds.

VII. Hearings/Quorum

Hearings at which sworn testimony is taken will be conducted with proper notice under Committee rules with a view toward and expectation of both majority and minority member attendance. Such notice will normally be three days. All hearings shall be scheduled in good faith to accommodate reasonable opportunities of majority and minority member attendance.

IX. Document Repository

The originals of all subpoenaed documents or other documents received in connection with the investigation will be kept and maintained under safeguarded conditions on the premises of the Senate Rules Committee as required by the rules of the Senate. Majority and minority counsel will have access to all original documents.

Majority and minority counsel will jointly maintain copies of all subpoenaed documents in a central document repository; a documents custodian will be appointed to maintain and catalog all documents obtained during the course of the investigation; the documents room will be kept under lock and key at all times but will be available to all counsel on an equal basis.

Minority counsel may create and maintain a separate document storage facility for the keeping of duplicate documents.

X. Press Policy

Majority and minority counsel will decline comment to the press, except as agreed in extraordinary circumstances to address errors in public reporting that may compromise the integrity of the investigation or perceptions of its integrity of course. Otherwise, all press inquiries will be referred to the Senate Rules Committee.

The majority and minority counsel and staff will treat the investigative plan, all consultations, the development and recommendations, the identity of interviewees and deponent, and all evidence obtained through the investigation on a confidential basis.

XI. Confidentiality of Investigation

Majority and minority counsel agree that all information gathered in the course of this investigation, as well as any reports drafted by counsel, shall be treated as strictly confidential. Pursuant to this understanding, counsel agree that each consultant law firm will take reasonable measures to ensure that information gathered in the course of, or pertaining to, this investigation is treated confidentially, is not disclosed to individuals within the firm who do not have a direct need to know the information, and is not disseminated outside the firm except to the Members of the Senate Rules and Administration Committee and its staff, unless otherwise directed to do so by the Chairman or Ranking Member. Counsel further agree that the information gathered during this investigation will be used solely in connection with this matter and use for any other purpose is expressly forbidden. In order to ensure strict confidentiality in this matter, each firm will implement reasonable security measures for all documents and other materials related to this investigation and shall inform all individuals working on this matter of the requirements of this section.

DEAR RICHARD AND GEORGE: On behalf of the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, this letter confirms our retention of your services to assist the committee in its Constitutional responsibility, pursuant to a petition filed by United States Senate candidate Louis ''Woody'' Jenkins, to review questions raised about the 1996 U.S. Senate race in Louisiana. This retainer letter also covers the retention of services of other McGuire Woods partners and associations.

In accordance with Senate procedures, this petition was filed with the Vice President of the United States, in his capacity as President of the Senate, and referred to this committee for consideration as we have jurisdiction over this matter. On April 17, 1997, the Committee authorized an ''Investigation of such scope as deemed necessary by the Chairman, into illegal or improper activities to determine the existence or absence of a body of fact that would justify the Senate in making the determination that fraud, irregularities or other errors, in the aggregate, affected the outcome of the election for United States Senator in the State of Louisiana in 1996.''

This investigation shall be conducted in conjunction with counsel for the minority, and an identical retainer has been extended to Robert F. Bauer and John Hume of Perkins Cole.

Pursuant to your discussions with Committee counsel, please sign the original enclosed contract and return it for our records.

EXHIBIT 6

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, May 9, 1997.

Hon. JANET RENO,
The Attorney General of the United States, Washington, DC.
Hon. LOUIS J. FREEH,
The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM ATTORNEY GENERAL AND DIRECTOR FREEH: As you know, the 1996 Senate race in Louisiana is being contested. Under Article I, section 5, of the U.S. Constitution, the Senate has exclusive responsibility to judge the final results of this election.

The Committee on Rules and Administration has initial jurisdiction over this matter for the Senate, and I am privileged to serve as its Chairman. The Committee met three times in open session to discuss the election contest and has authorized me by Committee Motion to conduct an investigation, in consultation with the Ranking Member, Senator Wendell Ford. Senator Ford and I have each retained counsel from outside law firms to assist the Committee, and we executed contracts with these attorneys on May 7.

In my opinion, there is no more serious responsibility of the Senate than to determine the validity or non-validity of an election for United States Senator. The freedom that we enjoy is predicated on the American people having confidence in our election laws and believing that they have been complied with in elections for the Congress.

I make no prejudgment as to the few facts that are before the Senate at this time. But there is a clear duty to conduct such investigation as we deem necessary so that the full Senate can make an informed decision as to the election contest.

Given the importance of this matter to our federal system, I call on the Department of Justice to provide the United States Senate with the assistance of several investigators to work with our designated counsel and other persons engaged by the Committee to conduct this investigation. I believe that the credibility and experience of agents detailed from the Federal Bureau of Investigation will help to establish a like credibility in the outcome of the Senate's investigation.

I request that at your earliest opportunity we meet concerning this matter, hopefully to be joined by Senator Ford, to ascertain your willingness for the Department to assist the United States Senate.

Enclosed is copy of the authorizing Committee Motion, along with a recent floor statement I made concerning the contest and other relevant documents, which should allow your advisors to quickly understand the Committee's responsibilities and the specifics regarding the content.

The Committee point of contact is Bruce Kasold at (202) 224–3448. Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

JOHN WARNER
Chairman.

EXHIBIT 7

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, May 14, 1997.

Hon. JANET RENO,
The Attorney General, Department of Justice, Washington, DC.

Hon. LOUIS J. FREEH,
Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation, Washington, DC.

DEAR MADAM ATTORNEY GENERAL AND DIRECTOR FREEH: As you are aware, the Committee on Rules and Administration is conducting preliminary investigation into allegations of fraud and other irregularities which reportedly occurred in the 1996 U.S. Senate race in Louisiana. The Committee anticipates that this investigation will last approximately 45 days.

The Committee has hired outside counsel to advise the Committee and direct this investigation. It is their strong recommendation that the Committee augment our resources with professional investigators. In order to expedite and facilitate this investigation, and ensure the level of investigative professionalism required in such a case, the Committee respectfully requests the assistance of detailees from the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Committee has identified an immediate need for two detailees, preferably with a familiarity with Louisiana, and the New Orleans area specifically. As the investigation progresses, the Committee anticipates a need for at least two additional detailees. We ask that these detailees be provided to the Committee on a non-reimbursable basis, with the Committee bearing the associated travel expenses for these detailees, pursuant to Senate rules.

The Committee has secured space in the Hale Boggs Federal Building in New Orleans for the duration of this investigation with the exception that attorneys for the Committee will begin occupying that space by early next week. Due to the timeliness of this investigation, we would hope that two detailees could be made available to the Committee at the same time so that the Committee investigation could begin promptly.

It is important to the Committee that this investigation be conducted with the utmost professionalism and respect for the individuals involved, in particular, the elected officials and citizenry of Louisiana. The reputation and integrity of the Bureau make it the most appropriate source for such assistance. We anticipate that a memorandum of understanding regarding the deployment of these detailees will need to be signed between your office(s) and the Committee. We are prepared to execute that document immediately.

We greatly appreciate your assistance in this regard.

Sincerely,

WENDELL H. FORD,
Ranking Member.
JOHN WARNER,
Chairman.

MEMORANDUM OF UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES SENATE COMMITTEE ON RULES AND ADMINISTRATION AND THE U.S. DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

I. This document is a Memorandum of Understanding (''MOU'') between the United States Senate Committee on Rules and Administration (''Committee'') and the U.S. Department of Justice regarding certain terms and procedures relating to the detail assignment of Special Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (''FBI'') to the Committee for the purpose of assisting the Committee in its investigation (''Special Investigation'').

II. Relation of FBI Special Agents detailed to the Committee to the FBI and other components of the Department of Justice.

(A) FBI Special Agents to be detailed to the Committee (''Committee Investigators'') shall be selected by the FBI after consultation with the Criminal Division of the Department of Justice.

(B) Committee Investigators shall not report to or receive direction from the FBI or any other component of the Department of Justice regarding the investigative activities of the Committee, except as expressly authorized by the Chief Counsel for the Committee. The activities of the Committee Investigators shall be directed by the Chief Counsel and Minority Chief Counsel of the Committee acting directly or through designated lead counsel for the Special Investigations, as provided in Part III of this MOU.

(C) Committee Investigators shall not provide any oral or written account of information obtained as a result of the Agents' assignment to the Committee either to the FBI or to the personnel of any other Executive Branch agency without the express authorization of the Chief Counsel and the Minority Chief Counsel for the Committee. Approved communication of such information to the FBI or other components of the Department of Justice shall be through a designated point of contact, as provided in paragraph (F).

(D) Committee Special Agents shall not exercise any law enforcement authority granted them by law while executing the duties and responsibilities for which they have been detailed to the Committee.

(E) Committee Special Agents shall not be entitled, by virtue of their status as federal law enforcement officers, to have access to information developed through criminal investigation, including grand jury information.

(F) All communications [relating directly or indirectly to investigative matters] between Committee Special Agents and the FBI or any other component of the Department of Justice, shall be through a point of contact established by the Department of Justice. U.S. SENATE, COMMITTEE ON RULES AND ADMINISTRATION,
Washington, DC, May 1, 1997.

Hon. WENDELL H. FORD,
Ranking Member, Committee on Rules and Administration, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR WENDELL: Per our conversation, let me state my intent with regard to the rights of the Committee minority as they apply to the preliminary investigation into the contest of the 1996 Senate election in Louisiana.

First, as I understand to be reflected in the investigative protocol provision regarding the issuance of subpoenas, I agree that the subpoena power delegated to the Chairman, with the approval of the ranking minority member of the Committee, pursuant to Rule A of the Committee's supplemental rules of procedure adopted on April 17, 1997, shall be used reasonably and equitably to compel the attendance of any witness or the production of any documents requested by a majority of the minority members of the Committee.

Second, I agree that when majority and minority counsel cannot agree on investigative issues, decisions, or aspects of the conduct of the investigation, then they shall, at the request of either counsel, bring their disagreement to the immediate attention of the Chairman and ranking minority member. If the Chairman and ranking member cannot agree, then the full Committee will be asked to resolve the issue after an opportunity for discussion and comment.

Third, I agree that at any hearing held for the purpose of taking recorded, sworn, or unsworn testimony, at least three days' notice shall be given and any member or members of the Committee may attend and participate.

I hope this clarifies my position.

Sincerely yours,

JOHN WARNER,
Chairman.

MEMORANDUM

To: Senate Rules Committee
From: George J. Terwilliger and Frank Atkinson
Date: June 23, 1997
Re: Jenkins-Landrieu—Voting Procedures and Election Safeguards

BACKGROUND INFORMATION—VOTING PROCEDURES AND ELECTION SAFEGUARDS

Louisiana has been plagued by a history of election fraud, and the state therefore has enacted elaborate voting procedures and safeguards designed to guard the integrity of elections. The state legislature has expressly recognized the state's ''longstanding history of election problems, such as multiple voting, votes being recorded for persons who did not vote, votes being recorded for deceased persons, voting by non-residents, vote buying, and voter intimidation.'' La. R.S. 18:1463.

Secretary of State McKeithen is the ''chief election officer of the state.'' La R.S. 18:421.A. He has publicly sated: ''Our [election] law, if strictly followed, is probably the tightest law in the country. The problem was it wasn't followed [in the November 1996 election].''[1]*

Even where modern voting machines are used and post-election tampering with the machines is made generally impracticable by a combination of machine security features and procedural safeguards, the possibility of fraud still exists whenever one person (or several acting in concert) can gain access to precinct registers, poll lists, absentee voter lists, and other documentary materials used on or before election day.

Voting machines are devices for recording and tallying the number of votes, the accuracy of the tally is vitally important, but it is only one component of an honest election.

The integrity of the election also turns upon the validity of the votes cast, and this central facet of election administration is addressed in detail in Louisiana statutes that prescribe the preparation, use and post-election disposition and custody of various written election records. These written records provide an indispensable check that guards against improper manipulation of voting machines before, on, or after election day.[2]

SUMMARY : KEY PROCEDURAL PROVISIONS AND BREACHES OF SAFEGUARDS

4. Key procedural provisions

State law provides that a precinct register (together with a supplemental list of absentee voters) is to be used at each polling place.

The precinct register contains an alphabetical listing of all registered voters in the precinct. Voters must sign the precinct register when they vote, and an election commissioner also must sign (initial) opposite each voter's signature.

Election commissioners in each precinct are also required to prepare two (duplicate) poll lists.

The poll lists contain the names of actual voters recorded in the order that they vote. Election commissioners record the names of voters on sheets with consecutively numbered spaces.

Voters and election commissioners must execute certain other documents in prescribed circumstances, including Address Confirmation at Polls (ACP) forms, Affidavit of Voters (AV–33) forms, and Challenge of Voter (CV–56) forms.

When the polls close, election commissioners are required to follow specific procedures. With regard to the disposition of the written election records, each of the following must be accomplished by midnight on the day of the election and in the presence of commissioned poll watchers:

Election commissioners are required [a] to place certain specified records in a Registrar of Voters (ROV) envelope, [b] to then place the ROV envelope inside the precinct register and seal the precinct register,[3] [c] to then seal one copy of the poll list and certain other specified records inside the Put in Voting Machine (P–16) envelope, [d] to then place the sealed P–16 envelope and the precinct register inside the voting machine, and, finally, [e] to lock the voting machine and seal the key inside the Return Key Envelope (C–03).

Election commissioners are required to place certain other specified records, including the other copy of the poll list, in the Secretary of State (S–19) envelope and to mail the S–19 envelope to the Secretary of State.

Election commissioners are required to deliver the sealed Return Key Envelope and certain other specified records to the parish clerk of court.

Other provisions specifically govern the counting of absentee votes and the disposition of absentee vote records.

B. Identified breaches of election safeguards

Secretary of State Mckeithen and several staff members were interviewed by Senate Rules Committee outside co-counsel on May 13 and May 30, 1997. They identified and/or confirmed the following breaches of election safeguards:

Election commissioners were required by law to mail one set of election records to the Secretary of State on election night. Commissioners in Orleans Parish and several other parishes were instructed by the parish clerk of court's office to—and did—deliver this set of records to the parish clerk of court instead of the Secretary of State, in violation of the state law.

Instructional materials prepared by the Commissioner of Elections, Jerry Fowler, and his office directed the parish election commissioners to deliver the Secretary of State's set of election records to the parish clerk of court instead of mailing them to the Secretary of State, as required by state law. These instructions were prepared unilaterally by Commissioner Fowler's office in violation of another state law which requires that such instructional materials be prepared jointly by the Commissioner of Elections and the Secretary of State and be approved by the Attorney General before distribution to election commissioners.

Voting machines in Orleans Parish were unsealed and opened before the appointed time and outside the presence of candidate representatives, in violation of state law.

Secretary of State McKeithen also made the general observation—not specific to any particular parish—that election commissioners routinely failed to require voters to prove their identity in accordance with state law.

District Attorney Doug Moreau of East Baton Rouge Parish and his assistant were interviewed by Senate Rules Committee outside co-counsel on May 13 and May 30, 1997. From his office's review of election records obtained from Orleans Parish pursuant to subpoena, he has found the following:

Besides mailing one set of original precinct election records to the Secretary of State on election night (the ''S–19 envelope''), parish election commissioners are required by law to seal the other set of original records in an envelope (''the P–16 envelope''), seal the precinct register, and lock the sealed P–16 envelope and sealed precinct register in the precinct voting machine. Moreau subpoenaed the P–16 envelopes and contents from Orleans Parish. After reviewing approximately half of these records, he found that none had ever been sealed in accordance with state law.

According to Moreau and his assistant, Sandra Ribes, the Orleans Parish P–16 envelopes appear to have many missing items and discrepancies, including irregularities in record-keeping for absentee voters. Rather than relying upon Moreau's review, however, we have requested these records so that we can conduct our own audit. Our request is pending, so Moreau still has these records.

In response to Moreau's subpoena, it was disclosed by the Clerk of Court in Baton Rouge that many original election records for East Baton Rouge Parish have been discarded, in apparent violation of state law.

Commissioner of Elections Jerry Fowler and staff members were interviewed by Senate Rules Committee outside co-counsel on May 13 and May 30, 1997. They confirmed the following:

Although Fowler's office prepared videotapes and instructional materials properly directing election commissioners to mail the S–19 envelopes and contents to the Secretary of State's office, they did also prepare certain ''customized'' videotapes and instructional materials—at the request of several parish clerks of court, including the Orleans clerk's office—directing the election commissioners in those parishes to send the S–19 records to the parish clerk of court instead of the Secretary of State.

Staff working for the Orleans Parish clerk's office did unlock and open voting machines and remove records outside the presence of designated candidate representatives a short time before the appointed hour for the opening of the machines three days after the election.

State employees reporting to Fowler were in control of the warehouse in which the locked voting machines in Orleans Parish were stored prior to the opening of them three days after the election. The clerk of court of Orleans Parish had ''legal custody'' of the voting machines during this period. It is unclear whether the clerk's staff had actual access to the voting machines during this time. They may have had access to an office within the warehouse, and the portion of the warehouse where the machines were stored was accessible from that office. There was no regular inspection of the storage area nor security check by any of Fowler's employees.

The rear of the AVC voting machines used in Orleans Parish contains a door that can be locked but has no ready means of sealing. This is the area where the election records (P–16 envelopes and precinct registers) were stored. Since the machines were locked but not sealed, a person with a key to the machines could gain access to these election records without it being physically evident that access was gained.

Also relevant to the investigation of breached election safeguards are the admissions by several Orleans Parish election commissioners that they accepted payments from gaming organizations interested in the outcome of questions on the November 1996 ballot. At least one election commissioner has admitted receiving such a payment for electioneering activity performed on election day.

PARTICULAR ISSUES

Separation of election records; delivery to Secretary of State

Legal Requirement: State law requires election commissioners to mail the Secretary of State (S–19) envelope containing one of the poll lists and other records directly to the Secretary of State's office before midnight. La. R.S. 18:572.A(2) and B.

Secretary of State McKeithen explained that this safeguard is designed to prevent tampering with the written election records by separating the poll lists and other important documents immediately upon their leaving the polling places. State law requires that one of the poll lists be mailed to the Secretary of State while the other is to be sealed in an envelope and locked in the voting machine. Mr. McKeithen stated that this is an important safeguard against election fraud, and he noted that it also is a means by which clerks of court can avoid vulnerability to fraud allegations by ensuring they do not have access to all copies of key election records.

Mr. McKeithen stated that, until the recent disclosure that a contrary practice existed in certain parishes, he was unaware of these election law violations. He further stated that, if he had been aware of the existence of this contrary practice, he would have acted decisively to prevent the violations.

Violations: Secretary of State McKeithen, Commission of Elections Fowler, and members of their respective staffs confirmed published reports that election commissioners in at least Orleans, Jefferson, and East Baton Rouge Parishes failed to comply with the legal requirement that they mail the S–19 envelopes and contents to the Secretary of State on election night. Instead, the commissioners delivered the envelopes and contents to their respective parish clerks of court. This placed the second copy of each precinct's poll list and other original records in the custody of the single local election official with access to the remainder of the original records.

Because the Secretary of State does not log in the envelopes upon receipt in his office, we do not know how long the S–19 envelopes and contents remained in the possession of the respective parish clerks of court before they were sent to the Secretary of State.[4]

We do not have authoritative information as to the other parishes in which this violation of state law occurred, when and where such violations have occurred in the past, or the reason or reasons given by the election commissioners-in-charge who took that action. We do know, however, that in the three parishes identified above, and apparently in others, the respective parish clerks of court instructed election commissioners to deliver the S–19 envelopes and contents to them rather than to mail them to the Secretary of State as required by state law.

Commissioner Fowler and his staff confirmed that instructional materials, including both written guidelines and video tapes, were used by the clerks of court to prepare election commissioners in their parishes. In Orleans and apparently other parishes, these materials expressly instructed election commissioners to send the S–19 envelopes and contents to the clerks of the court.

The proper procedure for disposition of the S–19 envelopes should have been clear to the clerks of court and the election commissioners. The Informational Pamphlet prepared jointly by the Secretary of State and the Commissioner of Elections, approved by the Attorney General, and distributed to election commissioners and clerks of court expressly instructs the commissioners to mail these envelopes, with the prescribed contents, to the Secretary of State by midnight on election night. The front of the S–19 envelope itself lists in bold print the items that must be enclosed and specifies that the envelope must be mailed to the Secretary of State.

Importantly, the S–19 envelopes were not sealed by activating adhesive on the envelop flaps or by any other method that would prevent undetectable access. Instead, when ultimately received in the Secretary of State's office, the S–19 envelopes generally were clasped using the metal clasp that is standard on manila-type envelopes.

Although there is no statutory requirement that the S–19 envelopes be ''sealed,'' the requirement that they be ''mail[ed]'' would seem to imply a more secure closing of the envelopes than that accomplished through use of the metal clasp alone. However, Secretary KcKeithen and his staff advised us that the S–19 envelopes have routinely been received by his office in a clasped but unsealed condition.

Regardless of the propriety of the practice of not sealing the S–19 envelopes, the significant point is that those envelopes were—while unlawfully in the possession of the clerks of court (and any others to whom they granted access)—in a condition that permitted easy and undetectable access to their contents.[5]

The significance of the unsealed condition of the S–19 envelopes and the accessibility of their contents is reflected in a published comment made by Alan Elkins, principal assistant to Commissioner of Elections Jerry Fowler. As described below, Elkins was one of the persons involved in preparing instructional materials that directed election commissioners in some parishes to send the S–19 envelopes to the parish clerks of court in violation of state law. Speaking shortly after the disclosure of these violations last month, Elkins was quoted as saying: ''What difference does it make? Those envelopes are sealed anyway. You can't open them without the appearance of them being opened.''[6] In our interview, Elkins acknowledged that the S–19 envelopes actually were not sealed; he now expresses the opinion that fastening the envelopes by clasp was sufficient.

2. Instructions to election commissioners regarding voting procedures and disposition of records.

Legal Requirement: State law assigns various responsibilities for election administration among the Secretary of State and the Commissioner of Elections. While the Commissioner of Elections has statutory authority over the voting machines, the Secretary of State is the chief election officer of the state. Accordingly, state law requires that written instructions to election commissioners regarding voting procedures be prepared jointly by the Secretary of State and the Commissioner of Elections, and that these instructions be approved by the Attorney General La. R.S. 18:421.C.

Secretary of State McKeithen described this provision to us as an important check and balance that is necessary in light of Louisiana's checkered election history.

Violation: The Commissioner of Elections and members of his staff acknowledged to us that, within the last four or five years, they have prepared written and videotape instructional materials that direct election commissioners to deliver the S–19 envelopes and the election records contained therein to the parish clerk of court, rather than by mail to the Secretary of State, as required under state law. The Commissioner's staff advised us that they produced a standard instructional videotape that directed precinct election commissioners to mail the S–19 envelopes and contents to the Secretary of State, but that, at the request of various parish clerks of court, they also ''customized'' some of the videotapes to direct that the S–19 envelopes and contents instead be delivered to the clerks of court. Corresponding written instructions also directed the delivery of the S–19 envelopes and contents to the clerks of court in those parishes.

Commissioner Fowler and his staff were unable to tell us with specificity which parishes requested and received instructional tapes and written materials ''customized'' in this manner. He did indicate a general belief that the preparation of these instructional materials corresponded with the introduction and initial use of the new ''AVC'' (Sequoia) voting machines in Orleans and several of the other larger parishes. These tapes and written materials primarily were concerned with instructing commissioners in the use of these new and unfamiliar voting machines, but, for reasons Commissioner Fowler did not explain, they also included instructions on the disposition of the S–19 envelopes, which have nothing to do with the voting machines.

Secretary of State McKeithen expressed strong objections to the Commissioner's unilateral preparation of these instructional materials, of which the Secretary of State only became aware last month. McKeithen acknowledged that the Commissioner of Elections is responsible for instructing precinct commissioners in the use of voting machines and therefore could properly prepare those instructions unilaterally, but he stated that the inclusion of instructions regarding disposition of election records was clearly outside of the Commissioner's lawful authority. Secretary McKeithen called attention to the stark conflict between the Informational Pamphlet, which was jointly prepared by McKeithen and Fowler and approved by the Attorney General, and the videotape and accompanying written materials that were unilaterally prepared by Fowler's office in collaboration with local clerks of court. The Informational Pamphlet properly advises precinct commissioners to mail the S–19 envelopes to the Secretary of State; the other materials direct the local commissioners to send the S–19 envelopes to the clerk of court in violation of state law.

3. Sealing of envelopes containing original records; locking of percent registers and envelopes in voting machines

Legal Requirement: As noted above, state law requires that, in the presence of poll watchers and before midnight on election day, election commissioners must seal one copy of the poll list and certain other specified records inside the P–16 envelope, which is marked ''Put in Voting Machine.'' La R.S. 18:571(12). The election commissioner then must place the sealed P–16 envelope and the sealed precinct register in the voting machine, lock the machine, and seal the key in the Return of Key envelope. La. R.S. 18:571(11), (12), (13), (14).

Violation: We have been advised by District Attorney Moreau and his staff that they have examined approximately half of the P–16 envelopes from Orleans Parish, and that none of the envelopes are, or appear to ever have been, sealed in accordance with state law. The P–16 envelopes contained one of the two poll lists, and the failure to seal these envelopes as expressly mandated by state law represents another significant breach of the statutory safeguards relating to election records. We do not yet know whether the precinct registers were sealed.

Importantly, election commissioners in Orleans Parish placed the unsealed P–16 envelopes and the precinct registers in AVC voting machines that were themselves unsealed. State law required the commissioners to lock the door to the rear area of the machines where the records were placed, but, unlike other types of voting machines, the entire AVC machine is not sealed. On the AVC voting machines, the computer cartridge alone is sealed, and the rear area containing the precinct register and P–16 envelopes is merely locked. This circumstance aggravates the concern about the failure of Orleans Parish commissioners to seal the P–16 envelopes (and possibly the precinct registers). Since these crucial records were placed unsealed in a portion of the voting machines that was locked but not sealed, anyone with access to a machine key could have gained direct access to the election records without detection.

4. Unlocking and unsealing of voting machines in the presence of candidates or their representatives

Legal Requirement: State law provides that the voting machines are to be transferred from the precinct polling place to the custody of the parish clerk of court and are to be opened, in the presence of representatives of the candidates, three days after the election. La. R.S. 18:573.A, 18:573.B.

Violation: Secretary of State McKeithen, Commissioner of Elections Fowler, and members of their respective staffs confirmed to us that some significant number of voting machines in Orleans Parish were unlocked and unsealed outside the presence of candidate representatives and before the announced time for the supervised opening of the machines. Neither had direct knowledge of the particulars, but both indicated that Orleans Parish officials had acknowledged the improper action occurred.

McKeithen cited this improper action as a serious breach that, in tandem with other known violations such as the Clerk's receipt of the S–19 envelopes, rendered the Clerk of Court of Orleans Parish, Mr. Edwin Lombard, vulnerable to allegations of election irregularity.

In contrast, Fowler stated to us his understanding that this unlawful action was inconsequential since, according to the information relayed to him, the machines were opened at most fifteen minutes or so before they should have been. Commissioner Fowler further stated his understanding that Mr. Lombard had not personally authorized the improper action; he identified the Deputy Clerk, Mr. Broussard, as the senior official with the clerk of court's office who was present when the machines were opened. Both McKeithen and Fowler stated that the ceremonial opening of voting machines in the presence of witnesses three days after the election had traditionally been regarded as an important event and election safeguard. However, Fowler nevertheless ventured the opinion that the action of clerk's office personnel in opening the machines early, outside the presence of candidate representatives, and notwithstanding the close and contested nature of this particular election, was an incidental action taken for the innocent purpose of expediting the machine opening process.

While Louisiana law was violated by the opening of some or all Orleans Parish voting machines in the manner described above, the significance of this violation in terms of the opportunity for election fraud will not be clear until further investigation has been completed, with regard to access to the election records locked in the voting machines, the following facts are noteworthy:

The voting machines were in the legal custody of the clerk of court from the time they left the polling place until the unlocking and unsealing of the machines on the third day after the election.

The keys to the voting machines were in the possession of the clerk of court during this same period. They should have been contained in an envelope that remained sealed until the envelope was opened and the keys removed in the presence of witnesses three days after the election. However, because the clerk's employees began opening the machines early and outside the presence of witnesses, it is not known whether, and for how long, the key envelopes remained sealed while in the clerk's custody.

The precinct register, poll lists and other original election records were locked in the voting machines, but the rear area of the machines in which they were locked was not sealed; therefore, undetected access to the election records in the machines was possible for anyone possessing a key to the machines.

Prior to the opening of the machines, they were stored in a warehouse controlled by Commissioner Fowler and designated members of his staff. Clerk of Court Lombard had legal custody of the machines during this time, but the extent, if any, to which he and his staff had actual access to the machines is an issue for investigation. Clerk's office personnel may have had access at will to an office area within the warehouse where the machines were stored, and there was unobstructed access from the office area to the part of the warehouse containing the voting machines.

Taken together, the foregoing tends to confirm that the Clerk of Court of Orleans Parish, and presumably persons on his staff, may well have had the ready ability to gain access to the original election records in the voting machines if they so chose. This ability apparently existed for 2–3 days. In combination with the unlawful failure to seal the envelopes and election registers placed in the machines and the unlawful failure to send the other set of election records directly to the Secretary of State, the result in Orleans Parish appears to have been the very situation—a person or small group of persons enjoying access to all copies of crucial election records—that Louisiana law was designed to prevent.

Payments to election commissioners; related issues

Legal Requirement: State law prescribes the qualifications, powers, duties, compensation required training, and method of selection of the precinct election commissioner-in-charge and the other precinct election commissioners who administer the election at the polling places. See La. R.S. 18:424, 18:425, 18:426, 18:431, 18:431.1, 18:433, 18:434. Election commissioners are expressly prohibited from ''electioneer[ing], engag[ing] in political discussions, . . . or prepar[ing] a list of persons at the polling place'' (La. R.S. 18:425.C), and they may not ''in any manner attempt to influence any voter to vote for or against any candidate or election being held in that polling place'' (La. R.S. 18:1462. C). As a practical matter, these officials have virtually no opportunity to assist a candidate or ballot proposition at any other polling place on election day, since they are required to report to the polling place at which they serve no later than 5:30 a.m. on election day and to remain there for the duration of the voting and post-voting procedures; the clerk of court must approve the appointment of any replacement commissioner on election day. La. R.S. 18:433.E(2), 18:434.D, 18:434.E. The lawful compensation of election commissioners is prescribed by statute. La. R.S. 18:424.E. 425.E. State law specifically provides that no person shall ''[o]ffer money or anything of present or prospective value . . . to influence a commissioner . . . in the performance of his duties on election day.'' La. R.S. 18:1461.A(8). Election commissioners must be selected at random from a list of duly trained and certified persons. La. R.S. 18:433.B, 18:434.B.

Possible Violation: News media reports earlier this year disclosed that five election commissioners in Orleans Parish had been paid by gambling interests with issues on the November 5, 1996 ballot. They each received from $30 to $800 from Bally's Casino and Harrah's Jazz Co. for canvassing and distributing ballots. Three of the five were commissioners-in-charge. One of the commissioners-in-charge was paid $120 for canvassing on election day. Harrah's and Bally's both denied any awareness that the recipients of these payments were election commissioners.[7]

Whether these, and any other, election commissioners received illegal payments or otherwise engaged in illegal activity, and the extent of any such activity, is unknown at this time. When viewed in the context of the opportunities for election fraud created by the breaches of election safeguards previously discussed, the prospect that the integrity and impartiality of election commissioners may have been compromised is obviously of significant concern. These published admissions by certain election commissioners in Orleans Parish suggest the need for close examination of the method of selection and conduct of other election commissioners, particularly in Orleans Parish where the above-described electoral irregularities occurred.

6. Designation of absentee voters; related issues

Legal Requirement: State law authorizes voters in certain circumstances to vote absentee by mail or absentee in person. Absentee in person voting is permitted from twelve days to six days prior to an election. Voters wishing to vote absentee in person must go to the parish registrar's office or other designated location during this time period, present proper identification, cast an absentee ballot, and sign the precinct register or other absentee voter list. Voters wishing to vote absentee by mail must submit a signed application letter and return their absentee ballots before election day. The registrar must enter the word ''absentee'' and the date of the election in the precinct register for each person who votes absentee in person or absentee by mail prior to the sixth day before the election. La. R.S. 18:1311.B After the sixth day, absentee by mail votes received in the registrar's office are recorded on a supplemental absentee voters list.

Possible Violation: Based on information provided to us by District Attorney Moreau and his staff, there reportedly are significant discrepancies in election records which suggest a failure to follow statutorily prescribed absentee voting procedures in at least some precincts in Orleans Parish.

Moreau reviewed some Orleans Parish precinct registers before they were produced in response to the Senate's subpoena, and his review found widespread instances where the registrar's office failed to note ''absentee'' on the precinct register by the names of persons who, according to records maintained by the Commissioner of Elections, did vote by absentee ballot. In the absence of some such identifying mark on the precinct register, it cannot be determined which signatures on the precinct register were supplied by voters on election day and which names were placed on the register before election day.

If our own review of the Orleans Parish election records reveals that election commissioners there did not receive precinct registers properly marked to identify absentee voters and/or did not receive supplemental lists of absentee voters, then a very important safeguard against multiple voting may have been compromised.

7. Retention of election records

Legal Requirement: All voting records and papers must be preserved for at least six months after a general election. La. R.S. 18:403. Certain registration records in federal elections must be preserved for twenty-two months after the election. La. R.S. 18:158.B. In addition, there are special record retention and handling provisions for certain voting records. For instance, the sealed envelope marked ''Put in Voting Machine'' (P–16) must be, after it is removed from the voting machine at the formal opening, preserved ''inviolate'' through the election challenge period. La. R.S. 18:573.D. Similarly, the election result cartridges from voting machines must not be disturbed until the election contest period has lapsed. If no contest is filed, the cartridges may be cleared. La. R.S. 18:1376.B(2).

Possible Violation: It is our understanding that local parish officials may have destroyed election records prior to the lapse of the six-month retention period, in violation of state law. East Baton Rouge Parish Clerk Doug Welborn has acknowledged that his office discarded 286 envelopes containing poll materials prior to the expiration of the six-month retention period. In addition, Allen Parish election records apparently were destroyed due to water damage in a leaky warehouse. We will have a clearer understanding of these and any other document retention/destruction issues after review of the documents and responses received recently from local parish registrars and clerks of court pursuant to the Senate's subpoenas.

8. Identification of voters at polls

Legal Requirement: State law requires that election commissioners identify each voter by requiring him or her to submit a current Louisiana driver's license, current registration certificate, other identification card, or by comparison with the descriptive information on the precinct register. La. R.S. 562.D.

Violation: In response to our query regarding the existence of any other known violations of state election laws in November 1996, Secretary of State McKeithen conveyed to us his general understanding that there were widespread violations of the voter identification requirement in the November 1996 election. Mr. McKeithen related that, in his experience, this provision is not vigorously enforced or complied with in many parishes throughout Louisiana.

[2] We have been supplied with a copy of the ''Informational Pamphlet for Commissioners-in-Charge and Commissioners on Election Day,'' a document prepared jointly by the Louisiana Secretary of State and Commissioner of Elections and approved by the Attorney General of Louisiana as required by state law. The document reflects that it was last revised in May 1996. This ''Informational Pamphlet'' is a useful reference for information about the requirements of state election law.

[3] There is an apparent discrepancy between the Louisiana election code, which expressly requires that the precinct registers be sealed (see La. R.S. 18:571(11); 18:573.E(1)), and the guidance given election commissioners in the Information Pamphlet, which nowhere instructs election commissioners to seal the precinct register (see pp. 14–16).

[4] The clerks of court in Orleans and Jefferson Parishes each wrote letters to the editor of the Times-Picayune that were published on May 21, 1997. Mr. Gegenheimer of Jefferson Parish assets in his letter that his practice conforms to state law because the envelopes are—and on November 5, 1996, were—mailed to the Secretary of State by the Jefferson Parish Clerk of Court before midnight on election day. Mr. Lombard of Orleans Parish apparently does not make the same assertion in his letter, though the wording is ambiguous. Mr. Lombard's letter does, however, respond to assertions by Jenkins workers that they found no Orleans Parish S–19 envelopes at the Secretary of State's office as late as November 12, 1997. Mr. Lombard states that ''the Post Office has assured [him] that delivery of all mail sacks was made to the secretary of state before Nov. 12, contrary to allegations by the Jenkins camp.''

[5] As noted in footnote 3, Clerks Lombard and Gegenheimer of Orleans and Jefferson Parishes, respectively, each wrote letters to the editor of the Times-Picayune that were published on May 21, 1997. Gegenheimer's letter asserted that the S–19 envelopes were ''sealed'' by the election commissioners at the precincts and that any tampering by the clerk of court ''would be readily discernible.'' Since we have been advised by Secretary of State McKeithen that none of the S–19 envelopes arrived in his office sealed (as opposed to clasped), we need to examine the S–19 envelopes from Jefferson Parish to test the accuracy of Mr. Gegenheimer's assertion. It is noteworthy that Mr. Lombard makes no similar assertion in his letter to the editor, though he does make the statement that ''the U.S. Postal Service provides mail sacks, and seals as well as pickup service for all secretary of state envelopes.'' Both members of Secretary McKeithen's staff and District Attorney Moreau's assistant advised us specifically that the Orleans Parish S–19 envelopes were not sealed.

Mr. FORD. Mr. President, I come to the floor to inform my colleagues that as ranking member on the Committee on Rules and Administration, committee Democrats can no longer participate in a joint investigation of allegations of election fraud in the 1996 Louisiana Senate race as alleged by Louis ''Woody'' Jenkins.

We reached this decision, because what we have learned to date suggests a possible fraud on the U.S. Senate and illegal tampering with witnesses by agents of Mr. Jenkins. This is nothing short of an embarrassment to the Senate and an affront to the people of Louisiana.

This investigation is over budget, it has exceeded the timeframe agreed to, and none of Mr. Jenkins' claims have been substantiated by any credible witnesses.

We come to this decision after waiting 7 months for Mr. Jenkins to provide the committee with credible evidence of multiple voting and of thousands phantom votes, which he has failed to do.

Not only have agents to the committee been unable to locate credible witnesses, but Government Accounting Office auditors have also been unable to substantiate Mr. Jenkins' claims of phantom votes.

Most disturbing, committee members have learned today that there has been continued interference with witnesses to the investigation in Louisiana by agents of Mr. Jenkins. I can't imagine any Member of the Senate, regardless of the party, who would not find this alarming, unacceptable, and certainly nothing the Senate should be party to.

On behalf of Democratic Rules Committee members, I have referred information to the U.S. Department of Justice and asked for an investigation into the incidents of witness tampering and interference with the U.S. Senate investigation.

The results to date have shown that the fraud on which Mr. Jenkins' allegations rest, were not only solicited by a convicted criminal, but involved payment for testimony and are otherwise not credible. There is no way that we, in good conscience, can or should proceed with this investigation.

Mr. President, the fraud has been committed against the U.S. Senate, not against Mr. Jenkins, and the investigation should be terminated now and stop any waste of taxpayers dollars.

TRIBUTE TO JESSE BROWN

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to a dynamic leader, very capable public servant, tenacious veteran's advocate, and a good friend—Veterans' Affairs Secretary Jesse Brown.

I am saddened by the news that Secretary Brown is leaving after four productive and hard working years at the helm of the U.S. Department of Veterans' Affairs. Under his leadership, the VA and veterans have made tremendous progress.

Jesse Brown fought battle after battle to protect, reform, and fully fund veterans' health care. Jesse Brown won most of those battles.

Jesse Brown fought to strengthen benefits for Vietnam veterans exposed to Agent Orange. He fought for their children suffering from Spina Bifida. Jesse Brown won those battles.

Jesse Brown fought to improve the veterans' benefits claims process. He better than anyone knew the importance of timely, accurate, and fair decisions.

Jesse Brown worked hard for veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder, Persian Gulf war veterans, women veterans, homeless veterans, and many others.

Most importantly, Jesse Brown cares about people. I've seen him on many occasions stop what he's doing to visit one-on-one with a veteran in need or a grieving loved one. In an airport, on the street, in a hospital, at VFW post, Jesse always took the time to listen to people and to try to help them. That is what leadership is all about. That is what being an effective public servant is all about. That is what being a veterans' advocate is all about.

Jesse was never afraid to speak his mind and fight for veterans and their families—no matter the strength of the opposition or political risk to him. He did what he thought was right. He was proud to be their advocate and it should come as no surprise when said that being Secretary had been the high point of his life. Jesse Brown, a former Marine wounded in Vietnam, can feel good about his accomplishments and he can feel proud that his place in history is secure. He will be known forever as the Secretary for Veterans' Affairs. He will be known as one of the best veterans' advocates the country has ever seen.

Here are some of the comments that veterans, their families, and veterans' advocates have shared with me since learning the news that Jesse is leaving the VA.

Jesse brought to the VA real experience, knowledge, and wisdom to prepare the VA for the 21st Century. We'll miss him.''—Bernie Melter, Commissioner, Minnesota Department of Veterans' Affairs.

Jesse Brown's commitment to veterans will never be questioned and his tenure as Secretary for Veterans Affairs will go down in history as the greatest advocate for veterans we'll ever see.—Duane Krueger, Vietnam veteran and Anoka County Veterans Service Officer.

Secretary Brown's departure is a major loss for all veterans. His advocacy for veterans was without regard to political affiliation and was based upon the fact that as a veteran you had earned your entitlement.—Wayne Sletten, Vietnam era veteran and Lake County Veterans' Service officer.

In my personal opinion Secretary Jesse Brown was the best leader of the VA we've ever had.—Chuck Milbrandt, Director, Minneapolis VA Medical Center.

At a time when my family was struggling to obtain my late husband's benefits for Agent Orange, Jesse took the time to personally review the case and ensure that we received all the benefits to which we were entitled. We owe a great debt of gratitude to Jesse Brown and his commitment to helping people.—Leesa Gilmore, widow of Vietnam Veteran Tim Gillmore.

Secretary Jesse Brown will be sorely missed by all of us at the St. Paul VA Regional Office and Insurance Center. He was a strong and fair leader and served as an excellent role model on how we ought to serve veterans and their dependents. We will miss his guidance, candor, and wit. We wish him the best of luck in future endeavors and know that he will continue to be a strong advocate for all veterans.—Ron Henke, Director, St. Paul VA Regional Office and Insurance Center.

These are some of the many people who have expressed their admiration and respect for Jesse Brown and who want to recognize his many achievements during his tenure in office.

For me, I will dearly miss working side-by-side with Jesse fighting for veterans and their families. Like veterans in Minnesota, he has been my teacher and today here in the U.S. Senate I am proud to honor him and thank him for his incredible service and wonderful friendship.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to join me in paying tribute to VA Secretary Brown and properly recognize him for his many years of service and commitment to the Nation and her veterans.

MEDICARE PROVISIONS VIOLATE BIPARTISAN BUDGET AGREEMENT

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, as a Member of the Senate Budget Committee, I have spent the last four months in ongoing negotiations working towards the enactment of a real, balanced budget plan. I was part of the bipartisan negotiations that resulted in the historic balanced budget agreement. Getting to this agreement was not an easy task, but I realized that the need to get to balance was critical. I negotiated in good faith and believed that the final product was an equitable, fiscally sound agreement that did balance the budget without jeopardizing vital programs.

The agreement ensured the continued solvency of Medicare. It guaranteed that Medicare would remain an affordable health insurance program that provided quality health care for millions of senior citizens. The agreement also allowed for an expansion of health insurance for 10 million children that have no health insurance. It called for the largest investment in education in over 30 years and it would provide real tax relief for working families. While I still had some reservations about the agreement, I supported the package because I knew that in any good faith negotiation one can never expect to win on all points. It was not a perfect agreement and as I have said in the past, it is not the one that I would have produced. But, it was a bipartisan, fiscally sound balanced budget agreement.

The agreement called for $204 billion in net deficit reduction. This would be in addition to the over $200 billion in deficit reduction already accomplished as a result of the 1993 deficit reduction package. The agreement built on this successful deficit reduction package which resulted in 4 straight years of declining deficits. In 1993, the annual Federal deficit was close to $300 billion, for 1997 the Congressional Budget Office estimates that the deficit could fall to $70 billion. I was proud to be part of this deficit reduction effort and believed that we could get our fiscal house in order.

Following passage of S. Con. Res. 27, the FY98 Budget Resolution, which incorporated the balanced budget agreement, I was hopeful that a fair, equitable and fiscally sound balanced budget would be in place by the end of the year. I negotiated in good faith; I agreed to adhere to the agreement; and I was of the belief that my colleagues would do the same.

Unfortunately, the reconciliation spending measure adopted by the Senate, violates this bipartisan agreement. But, more importantly, it violates the commitment I made to my constituents when I was elected to the U.S. Senate.

One of the commitments I made to the people of Washington State was to work to expand affordable health care for all Americans. I am proud of the steps we have taken to improve access to health care for more Americans. Unfortunately, included in this reconciliation legislation is a provision that will deny affordable, quality health insurance for those Americans age 65 to 67. Increasing the Medicare eligibility age from 65 to 67 will deny affordable, quality health insurance for millions of Americans. I cannot in all good conscience support legislation that increases the number of uninsured Americans. We should be looking to reduce the numbers of Americans with no health security, not adding to it.

I did not come to this decision without a great deal of thought. I have listened to the debate on both sides of these issues. I cannot help but think about the impact that these provisions will have on senior citizens who have worked hard all of their lives and are now facing escalating health care costs and limited retirement income. I only need to think about my own parents to truly understand what these changes mean to our senior citizens. When my father was diagnosed with M.S. my parents saw their insurance deductibles increase to $2,000 a piece overnight. Their premiums also increased dramatically every year. There was nothing that they could do as there were no other available health insurance plans that would cover my father. They were struggling to simply make their insurance payments and other basic life necessities. My father was desperate to turn 65 because he was not sure how much longer he could afford insurance or how much longer they would cover him. An additional two more years of skyrocketing premiums and deductibles would have financially devastated my parents. My father may have lost his insurance if he had to wait two additional years. He would have lost access to effective therapies for treating MS and slowing the progress of this crippling illness. As it was I know that there were times when my parents feared going to the doctors because of the impact on their deductible and premiums. Is this what we want for our parents?

My parents knew that once they reached 65 they would have some guarantee of affordable, quality health insurance. Prior to this, there simply was no guarantee. They knew that prior to 65 that were one illness away from financial disaster. If we act to increase the eligibility age to 67 there will be those seniors who face an even worse fate and will be at the mercy of insurance companies. They will see their retirement security jeopardized and their access to preventive health care gone. We should be encouraging greater access to preventive health care as it controls long term health care costs. Increasing the age to 67 will only make people sicker and poorer. I cannot support this type of outcome.

There is another troubling provision within the reconciliation package which, I might add was only introduced yesterday and was not part of the balanced budget agreement. With less than 24 hours to consider the implications, the Senate is ready to means test Part B premiums. Medicare premiums could climb to over $2,000 for senior citizens earning more than $50,000. The Social Security Administration would now have to know the exact income of every beneficiary for any given month.

The administrative burdens alone warrant further Congressional review. Additionally, adding to the cost of the administration of Social Security represents a direct attack on the Social Security Trust Fund. The means testing as proposed in the reconciliation package that the Senate adopted is unworkable.

There are simply too many questions regarding these provisions. We need more time and debate before we act to radically alter Medicare. Medicare remains one of the most successful antipoverty programs ever adopted by Congress. The popularity of this program speaks to the success of the program and the success of efforts to ensure health care security for our senior citizens. Enacting an increase in the eligibility age and means testing Part B premiums will do little to address the long term financial solvency issues. What it will do is undermine our commitment to senior citizens and jeopardize the success of the Medicare program.

We all know that real Medicare reforms are necessary. When the so-called baby boom generation begins to retire there will be a significant increase in Medicare enrollees. I am ready to face the challenge of enacting real comprehensive Medicare reforms. However, I am concerned that these two provisions including in the reconciliation package are being offered as some kind of panacea to real reform and will do little to address long term solvency concerns. Increasing the age for Medicare eligibility and the means testing proposal will do little to control Medicare costs, they will, however, devastate millions of senior citizens. This reconciliation bill is not the appropriate venue for significant Medicare changes. Reforming any program that serves over 33 million Americans requires a more cautious and thorough process.

I came to the debate hoping that at the very least we would remove these two provisions from the legislation. I supported amendment that would have conformed this reconciliation bill to the equitable provisions included in the balanced budget agreement. It now appears that this is unlikely and these two provisions will remain in the bill. I could not support any legislation that would jeopardize affordable, quality health care for millions of senior citizens.

It is truly unfortunate that we were not successful in eliminating these provisions as there are many aspects of this legislation that do adhere to the balanced budget agreement and could have positive fiscal, economic and social ramifications. But, I had to send the message that I could not support any legislation that jeopardizes Medicare.

It is difficult for me to vote no on this entire reconciliation package. This legislation will fix the devastating impact of welfare reform for disabled, low-income, legal immigrants. It provides an additional $16 billion for children's health care initiatives. It allows for an expansion of prevention benefits for Medicare beneficiaries. I am also pleased that the Managers accepted my amendment to clarify that States can waive victims of domestic violence from the punitive welfare reform requirements. I am grateful to the Chairman of the Budget Committee for accepting this important amendment and am disappointed that I cannot support the overall package.

I know that there is a very good chance that these problems could be addressed in Conference as they are not currently included in the reconciliation bill passed in the House. I will make every effort to ensure that these provisions do not survive Conference. I believe that if we can get back to the bipartisan agreement and good faith negotiations, we can still send to the President a balanced budget agreement that he can sign. If we have learned nothing else over the last two years, I sincerely hope that my Colleagues have learned that legislative accomplishments can only happen through honest, bipartisan efforts.

I reluctantly voted no on this reconciliation bill. I want my Colleagues to know that this bill is unacceptable and violates the bipartisan balanced budget agreement. If we can work in Conference to improve the bill and correct the unnecessary Medicare provisions I believe we would have a good balanced budget plan. I urge my Colleagues to put aside their philosophical differences and work to enact the historic balanced budget agreement.

THE COMMUNICATIONS DECENCY ACT

Mr. COATS. Mr. President, the Supreme Court decision against the Communications Decency Act marks a departure from precedent on indecency, and weakens the protection of children by our laws.

The Court, even in this decision, recognizes that Congress has a compelling interest in protecting the physical and psychological well-being of children. In the past, they took that standard to include indecency restrictions on every communications medium of our society—telephones, radio, television, bookstores, video shops.

But with today's decision, the Supreme Court has refused to apply that standard to protect a child on a computer in his or her own home. It argues, instead, that unrestricted access to indecency by adults on the Internet overrides any community interest in the protection of children.

In the Communications Decency Act, we gave a definition of indecency that was upheld by the Courts in case after case. Now the Supreme Court has apparently decided that this definition cannot be applied to the Internet. In other words, though an image displayed on a television screen would be indecent, an image displayed on a computer screen would not. It is difficult to understand how a child would understand the difference. It is the content, not the technology, that should concern us.

The Supreme Court did leave some room for Congress to redraft the CDA along less restrictive lines, but, in the process, creates a privileged place for computer indecency, safe from the laws we apply everywhere else in our society. So, under the Supreme Court's guidelines, it is permissible for an adult to send indecent material directly to a child by e-mail, but not to speak the same indecency over the telephone. What an adult may not send a child through the U.S. mail, he may send a child via e-mail. This is inconsistent and incomprehensible. It is also now the official position of the U.S. Supreme Court.

What this Court is saying is that it recognizes indecency when it hears it on the radio, sees it on television, views it on a magazine rack, or overhears it on the telephone, but it does not recognize it on-line. Computer technology may be confusing to many of us, but it is not that confusing. The confusion lies with a Court that protects children from indecency everywhere but the one place most children want to be.

I expect that Congress will revisit this issue, within the restrictions provided by the Court. But parents must understand that the Internet has been declared an exception to every other American law on the provision of indecency to children. It is a place where the predators against your children's innocence have legal rights, announced by distinguished judges. Whatever its virtues, the Internet is not a safe place, without a parent's constant supervision.

The Supreme Court has actually suggested that the very industry which profits from the provision of this material be the guardians of your children's minds—that it regulate itself. It is nice to have the Supreme Court's extra-constitutional advice on these policy matters—though I don't know why it should be more binding than the will of the Congress. I expect that we will have to live with this advice. But I hope that parents will understand that the Supreme Court has not taken your side, or the side of your children, or the side of decency.

There are consequences of giving children free access to an adult culture with coarsened standards—consequences for their minds and souls and futures. Both the Congress and the President took those consequences seriously. The Supreme Court has not.

This Court, which chose yesterday to undermine religious liberty and influence, has now chosen to defend immediate, unrestricted access of children to indecency. This is part of a disturbing pattern.

The Supreme Court is actively disarming the Congress in the most important conflicts of our time—in defense of religious liberty and the character of children.

THE SUPREME COURT'S DECISION DECLARING UNCONSTITUTIONAL THE COMMUNICATIONS DECENCY ACT

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, The Supreme Court has made clear that we do not forfeit our First Amendment rights when we go on-line. This decision is a landmark in the history of the Internet and a firm foundation for its future growth. Altering the protections of the First Amendment for on-line communications would have crippled this new mode of communication.

The Communications Decency Act was misguided and unworkable. It reflected a fundamental misunderstanding of the nature of the Internet, and it would have unwisely offered the world a model of online censorship instead of a model of online freedom.

Vigilant defense of freedom of thought, opinion and speech will be crucially important as the Internet graduates from infancy into adolescence and maturity. Giving full-force to the First Amendment on-line is a victory for the First Amendment, for American technology and for democracy.

The Supreme Court posed the right question: ''Could a speaker confidently assume that a serious discussion about birth control practices, homosexuality . . . or the consequences of prison rape would not violate the CDA? This uncertainty undermines the likelihood that the CDA has been carefully tailored to the congressional goal of protecting minors from potentially harmful materials.''

Mixing government and politics with free speech issues often produces a corrosive concoction that erodes our constitutional freedoms. Congress should not be spooked by new technology into tampering with our old Constitution. Even well-intended laws for the protection of children deserve close examination to ensure that we are not stepping over constitutional lines. The Supreme Court observed:

> we have repeatedly recognized the governmental interest in protecting children from harmful materials. . . . But that interest does not justify an unnecessarily broad suppression of speech addressed to adults. As we have explained, the Government may not ''reduc[e] the adult population . . . to . . . only what is fit for children.' ''

As a recent editorial in Vermont's Times Argus succinctly noted: ''To obey this law, Internet users would have to avoid discussing matters routinely covered in books, magazines and newspapers. Who would want to drive on that kind of information superhighway?''

I sent child molesters to prison when I was a prosecutor, and I am a parent myself. I want no effort spared in finding and prosecuting those who exploit our children, and I want strong laws and strong enforcement to do that. But the CDA is the wrong answer, and I applaud the Court for its decision.

We can spend much time and energy in Congress trying to out-muscle each other to the most popular position on regulating the content of television programs or Internet offerings, and from all appearances, we probably will. We should take heed of the Supreme Court's decision today, however, and be wary of efforts to jump into regulating the content of any form of speech.

Congress did jump when confronted with the CDA. The Supreme Court takes pains in its decision to note at least three times in its opinion that this law was brought as an amendment on the floor of the Senate and passed as part of the Telecommunications Act, without the benefit of hearings, findings, or considered deliberation. As the Supreme Court noted in its decision, I cautioned against such speedy action at the time. Not surprisingly, the end result was passage of an unconstitutional law.

We should not be substituting the government's judgment for that of parents about what is appropriate for their children to access on-line. The Supreme Court pointed out excellent examples of how the CDA would have operated to do just that, noting:

> ''Under the CDA, a parent allowing her 17-year-old to use the family computer to obtain information on the Internet that she, in her parental judgment, deems appropriate could face a lengthy prison term . . . Similarly, a parent who sent his 17-year-old college freshman information on birth control via e-mail could be incarcerated even though neither he, his child, or anyone in their home community, found the material ''indecent'' or ''patently offensive,'' if the college town's community thought otherwise.''

I attended the Supreme Court's oral argument in this case and was concerned when several of the Justices asked about the ''severability'' clause in the CDA: They wanted to know how much of the statute could be stricken as unconstitutional and how much could be left standing. The majority of the Supreme Court resisted the temptation to do the job of Congress and judicially re-write the ''indecency'' and ''patently offensive'' provisions of the CDA to be constitutional. The Court said: ''This Court 'will not rewrite a . . . law to conform it to constitutional requirements.''

It is our job to write constitutional laws that address the needs and concerns of Americans. On this issue, our work is not done. There is no lack of criminal laws on the books to protect children on-line, including laws criminalizing the on-line distribution of child pornography and obscene materials and prohibiting the on-line harassment, luring and solicitation of children for illegal sexual activity. Protecting children, whether in cyberspace or physical space, depends on aggressively enforcing these existing laws and supervising children to ensure they do not venture where the environment is unsafe. This will do more—and more effectively—than passing feel-good, unconstitutional legislation.

But, as I said, our work is not done. The CDA became law because of the genuine concern of many Americans about the inappropriate material unquestionably accessible to computer-savvy children over the Internet. Parents, teachers, librarians, content providers, on-line service providers and policy-makers need to come together to find effective ways to address this concern. I have long believed that we need to put the emphasis where it would be most effective: on parental and user empowerment tools to control the information that children may access on-line. I applaud the efforts already underway to bring concerned groups together to define steps we can take to make the on-line world a comfortable one for families.

Also, we should now remove the unconstitutional CDA provisions from our law books. At the beginning of this Congress, Senators FEINGOLD, JEFFORDS, KERRY and I introduced a bill, S. 213, to repeal the Internet censorship provisions of the CDA. We should move promptly to pass that measure.

One of the continuing challenges we will face in making the best use of our burgeoning information technologies is in adding value to all that they offer. Anyone who uses the Internet knows that there is a lot of junk out there. For example, student searching for background on the Holocaust may easily come across diatribes on the Internet claiming that the Holocaust never happened. In our classrooms, in our homes, in our libraries, we must teach our children to be discerning users of this powerful new tool.

We are blessed in the United States to enjoy the oldest and most effective constitutional protections of free speech anywhere. The struggle facing succeeding generations of Americans in preserving free speech liberties often is difficult, and it means standing firm in the face of sometimes fleeting but usually intense political pressures, and I am proud of the 15 Senators who joined with me to vote against the CDA. This is a vindication of that effort.

We have the technology and the temperament to show the world how the Internet can be used to its fullest. This decision has prevented us from succumbing to short-sighted political pressures by adopting a model of censorship instead.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Wednesday, June 25, 1997, the federal debt stood at $5,339,644,139,769.58. (Five trillion, three hundred thirty-nine billion, six hundred forty-four million, one hundred thirty-nine thousand, seven hundred sixty-nine dollars and fifty-eight cents)

One year ago, June 25, 1996, the federal debt stood at $5,114,149,000,000. (Five trillion, one hundred fourteen billion, one hundred forty-nine million)

Five years ago, June 25, 1992, the federal debt stood at $3,944,282,000,000. (Three trillion, nine hundred forty-four billion, two hundred eighty-two million)

Ten years ago, June 25, 1987, the federal debt stood at $2,292,504,000,000. (Two trillion, two hundred ninety-two billion, five hundred four million)

Fifteen years ago, June 25, 1982, the federal debt stood at $1,070,485,000,000 (One trillion, seventy billion, four hundred eighty-five million) which reflects a debt increase of more than $4 trillion—$4,269,159,139,769.58 (Four trillion, two hundred sixty-nine billion, one hundred fifty-nine million, one hundred thirty-nine thousand, seven hundred sixty-nine dollars and fifty-eight cents) during the past 15 years.

DELAYING THE LOAN TO CROATIA

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I rise today in support of delaying a World Bank loan to Croatia until that country fully meets the obligations it agreed to when it signed the Dayton Accords in November 1995.

Two days ago, the Clinton administration announced that it would attempt to block a $30 million World Bank loan to Croatia until Zagreb extradites Croats indicted on war crimes charges and allows Serbian refugees to return to their homes in Croatian territory.

It appears that we may have difficulty in persuading other countries on the World Bank's board to go along with this postponement, but I believe that the United States should stick to its principles.

Mr. President, the horrifying wars that took place in Bosnia and Croatia from 1991 to 1995 had many and complex causes. One of them was the thinly disguised desire of Serbian President Milosevic and Croatian President Tudjman to carve up Bosnia and Herzegovina. The revolt and temporary secession from Croatia by the Krajina Serbs—who themselves were led by extremely unsavory individuals who also carried out atrocities—interrupted the planned cooperation of the two rapacious strongmen in Belgrade and Zagreb.

There is also no doubt, Mr. President, that the Croatian army—trained by private Americans—played a valuable role in turning the tide in Bosnia and Herzegovina in the summer and fall of 1995 as part of its successful campaign to oust the Krajina Serbs from Croatia.

But, Mr. President, the behavior of President Tudjman since then has been deplorable. He has knowingly coddled indicted war criminals, despite his obligation under Dayton to turn them over to the International Tribunal at The Hague. On numerous other occasions, I have spoken out in this Chamber against the atrocities—murder, rape, and vile ''ethnic cleansing''—that were perpetrated against innocent civilians in Bosnia.

Most expert observers believe that Bosnian Serbs were responsible for the majority of these heinous acts. But several Bosnian Croats and some Croats from Croatia apparently were among the sadists, as were a few Muslims. That President Tudjman refuses to hand over the indicted who are living in Croatia is an affront to civilized people everywhere, and a direct slap in the face of the United States, which brokered the Dayton Accords.

Moreover, despite pretty rhetoric and laws on the books, Tudjman has thrown up practical roadblocks to the resettlement of ethnic Serb refugees, preferring instead to govern a Croatia that is now much more ethnically homogeneous. I should add, Mr. President, that ethnic Croats who were displaced by Serbs earlier in this decade should also be allowed to return to their homes. Our goal is a peaceful, multi-ethnic, democratic Croatia.

In Herzegovina, President Tudjman continues to rule through thuggish ethnic Croatian proxies headquartered in Mostar. These lawless types have refused all international attempts to integrate Mostar and have resorted to deadly violence against Muslims.

In addition, despite their Bosnian citizenship, the Croats of Herzegovina were allowed to vote in Croatia's national elections earlier this month, providing much of the support by which Tudjman was re-elected in a campaign distinguished by his nearly one-sided access to the media and violence against opposition candidates.

Mr. President, I firmly believe that Croatia will some day re-enter the Western European community to which it alleges it belongs. But Croatia cannot even think of becoming a member of Western institutions like the European Union or NATO until it lives up to its moral and legal commitments.

Postponing the World Bank loan to Croatia would serve as a useful warning to President Tudjman that he cannot escape the consequences of his authoritarian and duplicitous behavior.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

JUDICIAL VACANCIES

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, last week I spoke at some length about the crisis being created by our failure to move forward expeditiously to fill longstanding judicial vacancies. This week, we have the opportunity to double our confirmations by taking up and approving the five judicial nominees on the Senate Executive Calendar. As the Senate approaches its fifth extended recess, it have found time to confirm only five Federal judges of the 38 nominees the President has sent to us. That is less than one judge per month.

We continue to fall farther and farther behind the pace established by Senator Dole and Senator HATCH in the last Congress. By this time 2 years ago, Senator HATCH had held six confirmation hearings involving 26 judicial nominees and the Senate had proceeded to confirm 26 Federal judges by the end of June—during one of the busiest periods ever, during the first 100 days of the Republicans' Contract with America.

I have spoken often about the crisis being created by the 100 vacancies that are being perpetuated on the Federal courts around the country, as has the Chief Justice of the United States. At the rate that we are currently going more and more vacancies are continuing to mount over longer and longer times to the detriment of greater numbers of Americans and the national cause of prompt justice.

There are another five highly-qualified judicial nominees on the Senate calendar. They should not be held hostage to the resolution of other disputes. I urge the Republican leadership not to use the judiciary as a political pressure point or to involve the judiciary in disagreement over other matters. I would hope that the Senate would move to confirm these five additional judges this week before we adjourn for the 4th of July.

OCEAN SHIPPING REFORM ACT OF 1997

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, the Ocean Shipping Reform Act of 1997 is a continuation and extension of work initiated in the last Congress by Representative BUD SHUSTER and former Senator Larry Pressler. Their goal was to build a fair and responsible balance in America's international container shipping maritime policy. The purpose was to better reflect the modern maritime marketplace. Unfortunately, it was not achieved because we ran out of time.

In the 105th Congress, a bipartisan group of Senators from the Commerce Committee introduced a modified version of the Ocean Shipping Reform bill. It addressed many of the concerns with last year's bill identified by affected stakeholders. Our plan to move this shipping reform legislation forward has been inclusive, simple, and direct. Under the leadership of Senator HUTCHISON, and working in a bipartisan way, we have developed a bill that reflects a broad consensus. Most stakeholders in this industry are comfortable with it. This doesn't mean they each got everything they wanted. It does mean that a balance was achieved between what they desired and what the other stakeholders would accept. A real compromise. In this Congress, we have worked hard to achieve a consensus, and we will work even harder to keep it.

This bill is not perfect. But the process has been excellent. The Commerce Committee held a hearing and a markup, and innumerable meetings with all affected parties. And throughout the process Senator MCCAIN's staff has made the various iterations of the legislation publicly available. This transparency was important to reaching the compromise.

Mr. President, I believe that it implements real change that will benefit America's ocean shipping industry. When passed and signed into law, S. 414 will help foster the many benefits of increased competition that this industry sorely needs and wants.

Mr. President, it will also merge the Federal Maritime Commission with the Surface Transportation Board to create the United States Transportation Board (USTB) which will ultimately provide an independent federal transportation regulatory board which thinks and acts on intermodal issues.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I appreciate the Majority Leader's efforts to work with me on this important legislation. I also want to thank him for his efforts to address the concerns of all the interested parties involved in the ocean shipping industry. I identified three areas in the bill we passed in Committee that were of particular concern to me and that I wanted addressed before the bill was taken to the full Senate. The Leader has worked diligently to address my concerns. I too believe this reform is desperately needed. I am pleased that the committee took the extra time after the markup to complete the work on this bill. An agreement was reached that the majority of America's shipping stakeholders can accept: the ports, longshore labor, shippers, and carriers.

Mr. LOTT. The stakeholders wanted more. I wanted more. I know my colleagues wanted more. My friend Mr. GORTON was explicit in his desire for more reform.

Mr. GORTON. I agree with the Leader. This bill is not perfect and it does not accomplish every reform that I want to see for this industry. But I believe it is a significant improvement over the status quo. I do recognize that Mrs. HUTCHISON's approach was to make change incrementally and accept compromises to successfully move this bill forward and bring it to the floor.

Mr. LOTT. I appreciate Senator GORTON's candor and his support for both the process and the bill. And, I appreciated Senator GORTON's willingness to accept compromise in order to reach a consensus which enables this bill to move forward.

Mr. President, I know that during the markup, Senator GORTON expressed strong reservations about the bill. He made it clear that three issues needed to be addressed prior to a vote on the floor. And, a collaborative effort was used to try to accommodate these changes. Mr. President, two of the three issues were incorporated into the bill. The negotiations were tough, but all stakeholders worked together in an open and honest fashion to reach a consensus on this reform legislation.

Mr. GORTON. Let me take a moment to briefly review my concerns. First, I requested that certain discrimination prohibitions concerning service contracts be applied to carriers only when they are working together, not when they are operating as individual companies.

Second, I sought to amend the forest products definition to incorporate certain products, such as laminated beams or panels.

And third, I wanted shippers and carriers to be able to keep confidential the essential terms of their service contracts. Since the markup, there has been a sincere effort by all parties to work with me.

Mr. President, throughout this consensus building process, the Committee was dedicated to working through my concerns, and I believe that the Majority Leader did his best.

Common ground was found on the first two of my concerns. I appreciate the modification of the service contract discrimination provisions so that they apply only to carriers when they work collectively. This modification is particularly important to me and to my shippers in Washington state.

I also appreciate that the definition of forest products was modified as I requested.

Regrettably, we were unable to reach an agreement on the confidentiality for service contracts. We explored the idea of not requiring carriers to publish information regarding volume, but this, unfortunately, was rejected.

Mr. President, I would like to reserve the right to address the confidentiality issue in an amendment when the full Senate considers this bill.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I appreciate Senator GORTON's kind words, and recognize his right to continue to advocate for the confidentiality provision. However, I am convinced that any further reduction in service contract reporting provisions would erode the broad consensus achieved by the Committee for this bill.

Mr. President, we must remember that when the Committee set out to develop this legislation, we agreed to move forward incrementally and work to keep a broad consensus.

And, I want more reform, but I also want a bill.

I look forward to a vigorous debate on the service contract reporting provision if Senator GORTON decides to bring an amendment to the floor. Let me be clear. I will not support such an amendment because I believe that in the end, it would erode support for final passage of this important maritime legislation.

Mr. President, I want all our colleagues to thank Senator GORTON for his fine work on this bill. He has challenged us to improve the bill, and in doing so, he has expanded the reforms it provides. This is good for America. This is good for America's container shipping industry. This is good for the great state of Washington.

Mr. President, I ask our colleagues to support our bill to accomplish meaningful reform in this important maritime industry.

Mr. President, one final comment, I pledge to bring this bill to the floor in this session of the 105th Congress. It is overdue. It is bipartisan. It is supported by all stakeholders of the maritime industry.

REPORT CONCERNING THE NATIONAL EMERGENCY WITH RESPECT TO LIBYA—MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT—PM 48

The PRESIDING OFFICER laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States, together with an accompanying report; which was referred to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

To the Congress of the United States:

I hereby report to the Congress on the developments since my last report of January 10, 1997, concerning the national emergency with respect to Libya that was declared in Executive Order 12543 of January 7, 1986. This report is submitted pursuant to section 401(c) of the National Emergencies Act, 50 U.S.C. 1641(c); section 204(c) of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act (''IEEPA''), 50 U.S.C. 1703(c); and section 505(c) of the International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1985, 22 U.S.C. 2349aa–9(c).

1. As previously reported, on January 2, 1997, I renewed for another year the national emergency with respect to Libya pursuant to the IEEPA. This renewal extended the current comprehensive financial and trade embargo against Libya in effect since 1986. Under these sanctions, virtually all trade with Libya is prohibited, and all assets owned or controlled by the Libyan government in the United States or in the possession or control of U.S. persons are blocked.

2. There have been no amendments to the Libyan Sanctions Regulations, 31 C.F.R. Part 550 (the ''Regulations''), administered by the Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) of the Department of the Treasury, since my last report on January 10, 1997.

3. During the last 6-month period, OFAC reviewed numerous applications for licenses to authorize transactions under the Regulations. Consistent with OFAC's ongoing scrutiny of banking transactions, the largest category of license approvals (68) concerned requests by non-Libyan persons or entities to unblock transfers interdicted because of what appeared to be Government of Libya interests. Two licenses authorized the provision of legal services to the Government of Libya in connection with actions in U.S. courts in which the Government of Libya was named as defendant. Licenses were also issued authorizing diplomatic and U.S. government transactions and to permit U.S. companies to engage in transactions with respect to intellectual property protection in Libya. A total of 75 licenses were issued during the reporting period.

4. During the current 6-month period, OFAC continued to emphasize to the international banking community in the United States the importance of identifying and blocking payments made by or on behalf of Libya. The office worked closely with the banks to assure the effectiveness in interdiction software systems used to identify such payments. During the reporting period, more than 100 transactions potentially involving Libya were interdicted.

5. Since my last report, OFAC collected 13 civil monetary penalties totaling nearly $90,000 for violations of the U.S. sanctions against Libya. Ten of the violations involved the failure of banks to block funds transferred to Libyan-controlled financial institutions or commercial entities in Libya. Three U.S. corporations paid the OFAC penalties for export violations as part of the global plea agreements with the Department of Justice. Sixty-seven other cases are in active penalty processing.

6. Various enforcement actions carried over from previous reporting periods have continued to be aggressively pursued. Numerous investigations are ongoing and new reports of violations are being scrutinized.

7. The expenses incurred by the Federal Government in the 6-month period from January 7 through July 6, 1997, that are directly attributable to the exercise of the powers and authorities conferred by the declaration of the Libyan national emergency are estimated at approximately $660,000,00. Personnel costs were largely centered in the Department of the Treasury (particularly in the Office of Foreign Assets Control, the Office of the General Counsel, and the U.S. Customs Service), the Department of State, and the Department of Commerce.

8. The policies and the actions of the Government of Libya continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security and foreign policy of the United States. In adopting United Nations Security Council Resolution 883 in November 1993, the Security Council determined that the continued failure of the Government of Libya to demonstrate by concrete actions its renunciation of terrorism, and in particular its continued failure to respond fully and effectively to the requests and decisions of the Security Council in Resolutions 731 and 748, concerning the bombing of the Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 flights, constituted a threat to international peace and security. The United States will continue to coordinate its comprehensive sanctions enforcement efforts with those of other U.N. member states. We remain determined to ensure that the perpetrators of the terrorist acts against Pan Am 103 and UTA 772 are brought to justice. The families of the victims in the murderous Lockerbie bombing and other acts of Libyan terrorism deserve nothing less. I shall continue to exercise the powers at my disposal to apply economic sanctions against Libya fully and effectively, so long as those measures are appropriate, and will continue to report periodically to the Congress on significant developments as required by law.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. MURKOWSKI:

S. 964. A bill to direct a property conveyance in the State of California; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

THE WARD VALLEY LAND TRANSFER ACT

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce legislation designed to end an impasse that we've endured for far too long—the stalemate over the Ward Valley low-level radioactive waste facility and efforts to implement an important Federal law—the low level radioactive waste policy amendments.

I am doing this today because of documents that have recently come to light under the Freedom of Information Act and due to the continuing differences between the words spoken under oath by a Presidential nominee before my committee and his actions to date.

For more than 10 years, the State of California acting in complete accordance with Federal law and in cooperation with responsible Federal agencies, has been attempting to open a low-level radioactive waste repository at a Mojave Desert site in Ward Valley.

The long, tortured process costing more that $40 million has included a statewide search resulting in the selection of a virtually unpopulated desert valley; two environmental impact statements under the National Environmental Policy Act; two biological opinions under the Endangered Species Act; and judicial review including the California Supreme Court.

From the outset, the State has been dogged by the lawsuits and protests of a small fringe group of activists.

But in the end, California has met every test.

Ward Valley was found to be safe, and the State issued a license containing more than 130 carefully developed safety and environmental stipulations.

Consistent with its own independent evaluations, the Department of the Interior agreed to sell the land to California for the Ward Valley site in January 1993.

But shortly thereafter, the Department of the Interior abruptly reversed itself, demanding a series of discretionary studies and reviews that, 4 years later, still have no end in sight.

Specifically, the Department of the Interior asked the National Academy of Sciences to review seven technical issues related to the site.

In May 1995, the Academy's report was released. The report was highly favorable to the site selection and each of the seven issues. As a consequence, Interior Secretary Babbitt indicated that he intended to transfer the site.

Two more months passed.

On July 27, 1995, the President's nominee to be the Deputy Secretary of the Interior, Mr. John Garamendi, appeared before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and testified under oath, that the Ward Valley issue ''will be satisfactorily culminated shortly * * * and I believe it should be.''

With that testimony in mind, I recently reviewed documents made available under the Freedom of Information Act.

With the benefit of those documents and other evidence of the systematic delay fostered by the Department of the Interior to block Ward Valley, I have reached the sad conclusion that Congress must intervene to end this stalemate.

Before I go into the disturbing history of this issue and the content of the documents uncovered by the Freedom of Information Act request, some background is important.

There is a tremendous difference between low level radioactive waste and the spent fuel issue the Senate has been debating over the past 2 weeks.

Spent fuel, of course, is the high level waste from nuclear power reactors.

Low level radioactive waste, on the other hand, is composed of items such as medical gowns, biomedical wastes, filters, resins and similar wastes generated from cancer treatment, biomedical research, and other activities.

Low level radioactive waste is generated during cutting-edge research that may help us find a cure for AIDS.

Low level radioactive waste is generated from the development of new drugs and cancer therapies.

Low level radioactive waste is generated by the high tech and biotech industry in the quest for new products and services that will be at the foundation of our 21st century economy.

While it also includes waste from nuclear power production, Congress wisely placed specific limits on the levels which are a State responsibility.

When the Senate was debating the fate of high-level spent fuel, we clearly had a situation where the State of Nevada opposed a repository. The Governor of Nevada opposed it.

But the low level waste issue is vastly different. Governor Wilson of California supports Ward Valley.

The State of California has been working on plans open a low level waste repository in California for the past decade.

They have done so in complete accordance with Federal law, which assigns responsibility for disposal of a specified portion of low level radioactive waste to the States.

Governor Wilson understands that thousands of jobs in California, particularly among the high-tech and biotech industries, absolutely depend on having dependable access to a safe, secure facility for low level radioactive waste.

Governor Wilson understands that countless lives might be saved through the cancer breakthrough or AIDS cure that the use of radioactive materials might bring.

Governor Wilson also understands that low level radioactive waste is currently being stored at hundreds of urban locations all across California.

It's being stored in basements and in parking lot trailers.

It's being stored in warehouses and temporary shelters.

It's on college campuses, in residential neighborhoods, and in hospitals.

And as long as the waste is in these temporary locations in populated areas, it is subject to accidental radioactive releases from fire, earthquakes, and floods.

Governor Wilson is understandably concerned about the health and safety of Californians. He is frustrated by the delays California has faced in trying to get this facility open.

So am I.

I am frustrated by the fact that the President's nominee to be the Deputy Secretary of the Interior, Mr. John Garamendi, appeared before the Energy and Natural Resources Committee on July 27, 1995 and testified under oath, that the Ward Valley issue should and would be quickly resolved.

After that testimony, seven months passed.

Nothing happened.

On February 15, 1996, Deputy Secretary Garamendi indicated that ''new information'' related to a different low-level radioactive waste site at Beatty, Nevada, required further testing at the Ward Valley site and the preparation of yet another Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS).

Literally one day before his announcement, the Director of the U.S. Geological Survey said that linkages between the Beatty site and Ward Valley were ''too tenuous to have much scientific value.''

But the Deputy Secretary ignored the Director's scientific advice. In a public news conference, Deputy Secretary Garimendi indicated that the additional testing would take about four months, and that the preparation of a Supplemental Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS) would take about a year.

On August 5, 1996, months after we expected the testing to be complete, an official of the lab Interior selected to perform the testing said, ''Interior Department officials have yet to submit a work plan . . . on the testing they want done.''

During this same time frame, Interior Department officials were distributing documents to the public containing factually incorrect information taken verbatim from Ward Valley opponents, even though accurate information was readily available from the Department of Energy.

It now appears that Interior made no effort to check the facts with DOE with respect to the veracity of the information it was providing to the public.

Recently, the Governor of California made me aware of documents he obtained through Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests. These documents reveal the following:

Despite the understandable lack of radiological expertise resident in the Department of the Interior, the Department has made no effort to communicate with the federal agency with primary expertise and jurisdiction in the matter—the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

The professional, non-political, radiological experts of the Department of Energy have indicated that: ''Interior's concern that the [Ward Valley] facility lacks an environmental monitoring system has no basis in fact;'' the Department of the Interior is attempting to subvert the National Academy of Sciences recommendations with respect to the timing of the tests and nature of the tests to be performed; the Department of the Interior has understated the costs and the time required for the conduct of the tests; and the tests the Department of the Interior has outlined will result in additional litigation regardless of their outcome.

Mr. President, these documents are plain on their face.

But they are particularly troubling since they show the vast difference between the words spoken by Mr. Garamendi in his confirmation hearing, and the actions he has taken since his confirmation.

Let's again review the facts:

Deputy Secretary Garamendi testified under oath that the Ward Valley issue would be, and should be, quickly resolved.

He then called for additional testing that did not conform to the recommendations of the National Academy of Sciences, creating a false linkage in the public's mind between the Beatty site and the Ward Valley site, despite the fact that his own USGS Director said that such a linkage could not be justified by the science.

Deputy Secretary Garamendi spread misinformation about the composition of the radioactive waste stream in Department press materials supplied by project opponents, making no effort to check their veracity with the Department of Energy, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, or any other agency with expertise in such matters.

Deputy Secretary Garamendi persistently failed to get the testing underway, which he later blamed on the threats of a lawsuit that were not, in fact, made until long after the time he said the tests would be complete.

Indeed, the Department of the Interior has designed a process specifically intended to foster further delay.

Mr. President, over the past month or so there has been a new twist that is frankly the straw that breaks the camel's back.

The State of California, in its continuing efforts to achieve a compromise, has agreed to perform additional testing pursuant to the National Academy of Sciences guidelines prior to the federal land transfer.

Let me make this clear: California has always agreed to do the additional testing . . . the issue of dispute is that Interior insisted the testing be done prior to the land transfer, while California and the National Academy of Sciences said the testing would be best accomplished after the land transfer.

So California has now agreed to perform additional testing prior to the land transfer. They have clearly made efforts to compromise.

I received a letter from Deputy Secretary Garamendi, dated February 27, 1997, which exclaimed that the delays at Ward Valley have gone on long enough, and that welcomed the decision by the State of California to undertake additional testing.

When I saw that letter. I thought to myself: Finally, this issue will be resolved.

I was shocked by what happened next:

The BLM produced an administrative determination, allegedly two years old that nobody had ever seen, that will not permit California to undertake the testing that Interior insists must be undertaken prior to the land transfer! They have California in a ''Catch-22.''

BLM informed the California Department of Health Services that they could not proceed with the testing without a new permit from the BLM and yet another biological consultation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service with respect to the Desert Tortoise.

The BLM based this requirement for a new permit on an ''administrative determination,'' allegedly issued two years ago, which limits surface disturbance associated with pre-construction testing. But further examination revealed several points about this document:

This old administrative determination was unknown to the California Department of Health Services, U.S. Ecology, and even the local BLM District Office until weeks ago.

The local BLM office is unable to provide any evidence that this ''administrative determination'' was provided to any of the parties whose actions it supposedly limits.

The administrative determination is absurd on its face. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has determined that the 90 acres of surface disturbance associated with the construction and operation of the Ward Valley facility will not jeopardize the desert tortoise or its habitat. Moreover, under current BLM guidelines, ten acre mining operations on other BLM land would not trigger the need for a biological consultation if certain desert tortoise protection measures were incorporated into the plan submitted to BLM. Indeed, five acre mining operations would not even require the applicant to submit a tortoise protection plan for approval. Yet, it is BLM's sudden contention that less than 5 acres of surface disturbance associated with testing will require yet another full biological consultation by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Clearly, Mr. President, this latest obstruction, and the reasons cited for it, make no sense in the context of the various other permits and administrative determinations that have been previously granted at the site.

The fact that this administrative decision suddenly surfaced in the midst of state planning to undertake the new tests is highly unusual—perhaps even worthy of investigation by the Inspector General.

Mr. President, earlier this year I asked the General Accounting Office to investigate this matter. That investigation is now underway. At this very moment, GAO auditors are reviewing documents in the District BLM office in California and at Department of Interior headquarters here in Washington.

The GAO report will not be complete until July 15, but let me simply say that their preliminary findings appear to agree with my understanding of the facts.

What we are seeing at the Department of the Interior is a blatant display of bad faith and obstructionism with regard to California's efforts to implement Federal law through development of the Ward Valley site.

I am particularly distressed by this, particularly in light of the words spoken by Mr. Garamendi at his confirmation hearing.

Mr. President, the legislation I am introducing today would convey the BLM land at Ward Valley to California as soon as a check for the fair market value of the land plus $100 is tendered to the Secretary of the Treasury, after the State of California formally tenders a promise to conduct the additional testing as outlined by the National Academy of Sciences.

It's a simple bill. California agrees to do the testing outlined by the National Academy of Sciences, California gets its site, and the taxpayer gets fair market value for the land.

I am willing to consider alternative approaches, but my bottom line is a quick and satisfactory resolution to this issue by qualified experts rather than political activists.

I am willing to entertain negotiated compromises.

I am willing to entertain alternative legislative approaches.

I am not willing to entertain further delay.

In closing, Mr. President, let me share a story that I find particularly rich in irony:

Interior Secretary Babbitt, while the Governor of Arizona, was deeply concerned about the difficulty of the Federal Government to provide for adequate low-level radioactive waste disposal sites. He was asked by the National Governors' Association to chair a task force to look into the problem.

The Babbitt task force recommended that the responsibility for low-level radioactive waste management be given to the States. In 1981, Governor Babbitt wrote that ''the siting of a low level nuclear waste facility involves primarily state and local issues that are best resolved at the government level closest to those affected.''

There was another Governor at the time who was active in the National Governor's Association and supported this approach: The Governor of Arkansas. His name was Bill Clinton.

Congress listened to these Governors, and passed the Low Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act which gave the States the responsibility for low level radioactive waste management.

California is the first State to license a facility under the Low Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act.

And who are the Federal authorities who are today frustrating California's attempt to follow the law and open its site?

None other than Mr. Babbitt and his Deputy at the Department of the Interior, himself a former California state official.

What an irony that former State officials would declare a State unworthy of trust in carrying out its congressionally assigned duties and responsibilities.

What a difference a few years in Washington can make.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI:

S. 965. A bill to amend title II of the Hydrogen Future Act of 1996 to extend an authorization contained therein, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

AUTHORIZATION EXTENSION LEGISLATION

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, today I offer a very simple bill with the hope that it can receive expedited consideration in the Senate and be sent over to the House of Representatives for further consideration.

Last year Congress authorized a program to explore the feasibility of integrating hydrogen fuel cells with systems to produce hydrogen from photovoltaic production or solid waste through gasification or steam reforming. This program is outlined in title II of Public Law 104–271, the Hydrogen Future Act of 1996.

The program was originally authorized through 1997 and 1998, with funds to remain available until 1999.

It has since become clear that the program will require a longer period of time to put into place. Accordingly, this bill simply extends the authorization through fiscal year 2001, with funds to remain available until September 30, 2002.

For those who are unfamiliar with the promise of hydrogen energy systems, let me simply add that hydrogen is widely regarded as an important potential energy carrier with the potential to join electricity as a key component of a future sustainable energy system. Unlike coal, oil, or gas, hydrogen cannot be directly mined or produced—it must be extracted from hydrogen-rich materials such as natural gas, biomass, or even water. While there are significant technical and economic barriers that prevent the near-term, widespread use of hydrogen as an energy carrier, the eventual promise of hydrogen is compelling. Thus, Congress and the Department of Energy has placed a high priority on hydrogen energy research and development.

I urge that my colleagues support the bill.

By Mr. BREAUX:

S. 966. A bill to provide legal standards and procedures for suppliers of raw materials and component parts for medical devices and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

THE BIOMATERIALS ACCESS ASSURANCE AND HEALTH SAFETY ACT OF 1997

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce the Biomaterials Access Assurance and Health Safety act of 1997. While other legislation has been introduced that is intended to protect suppliers of raw materials used in the construction of important medical implants from liability, I believe that my legislation strikes the proper balance between the legitimate concerns of these suppliers and the health insurance and legal rights of patients.

The legislation I am introducing today is similar to biomaterials legislation that has been introduced independently by Senator LIEBERMAN and as a part of S. 5, the Product Liability Fairness Act. It does, however, differ on several important points. First, this bill would not immunize negligent suppliers or supplies who fail to warn of the harmful effects of their products. Second, this bill would be limited to the protection of suppliers of raw materials. Other biomaterials bills, while speaking only of the need to protect suppliers of raw materials, use overly broad language that immunizes a whole host of product manufacturers. Third, unlike the legislation sent to the President last year, this bill would not cover suppliers of materials used in breast implants.

Mr. President, there are two other important differences between this legislation and other biomaterials liability legislation that has been introduced. I believe that this bill can be passed by Congress. I'm not sure that other biomaterials bills can. We know too well that the larger product liability bill will be controversial, and that its passage and enactment are uncertain at best. This biomaterials bill has been introduced as a stand-alone measure and can move independently of the product liability bill.

I also believe that this legislation can be signed into law by President Clinton, and I'm not too sure that other biomaterials liability legislation can. When the President vetoed the product liability bill sent to him by the 104th Congress, H.R. 965, which included biomaterials language similar to that in Senator LIEBERMAN's bill, he noted that he wanted to enact fair and balanced biomaterials liability legislation. However, he felt that the language before him went too far, particularly because it immunized negligent biomaterials suppliers. I believe the President will find the provisions of my bill acceptable.

Mr. President, I think that this bill is the best hope we have of passing fair and meaningful biomaterials legislation, and I urge my colleagues to join me in support of its passage. I ask unanimous consent that the entire text of this bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 966

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the ''Biomaterials Access Assurance Act of 1997.''

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) each year millions of citizens of the United States depend on the availability of lifesaving or life enhancing medical devices, many of which are permanently implantable within the human body;

(2) a continued supply of raw materials and component parts is necessary for the invention, development, improvement, and maintenance of the supply of the devices;

(3) most of the medical devices are made with raw materials and component parts that—

(A) are not designed or manufactured specifically for use in medical devices; and

(B) come in contact with internal human tissue;

(4) the raw materials and component parts also are used in a variety of nonmedical products;

(5) because small quantities of the raw materials and component parts are used for medical devices, sales of raw materials and component parts for medical devices constitute an extremely small portion of the overall market for the raw materials and medical devices;

(6) under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 301 et seq.), manufacturers of medical devices are required to demonstrate that the medical devices are safe and effective, including demonstrating that the products are properly designed and have adequate warnings or instructions;

(7) notwithstanding the fact that raw materials and component parts suppliers do not design, produce, or test a final medical device, the suppliers have been the subject of actions alleging adequate—

(A) design and testing of medical devices manufactured with materials or parts supplied by the suppliers; or

(B) warnings related to the use of such medical devices;

(8) even though suppliers of raw materials and component parts have very rarely been held liable in such actions, such suppliers have ceased supplying certain raw materials and component parts for use in medical devices because the costs associated with litigation in order to ensure a favorable judgment for the suppliers far exceeds the total potential sales revenues from sales by such suppliers to the medical device industry;

(9) unless alternate sources of supply can be found, the unavailability of raw materials and component parts for medical devices will lead to unavailability of lifesaving and life-enhancing medical devices;

(10) because other suppliers of the raw materials and component parts in foreign nations are refusing to sell raw materials or component parts for use in manufacturing certain medical devices in the United States, the prospects for development of new sources of supply for the full range of threatened raw materials and component parts for medical devices are remote;

(11) it is unlikely that the small market for such raw materials and component parts in the United States could support the large investment needed to develop new suppliers of such raw materials and component parts;

(12) attempts to develop such new suppliers would raise the cost of medical devices;

(13) courts that have considered the duties of the suppliers of the raw materials and component parts have generally found that the suppliers do not have a duty—

(A) to evaluate the safety and efficacy of the use of a raw material or component part in a medical device; and

(B) to warn consumers concerning the safety and effectiveness of a medical device;

(14) attempts to impose the duties referred to in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (13) on suppliers of the raw materials and component parts would cause more harm than good by driving the suppliers to cease supplying manufacturers of medical devices; and

(15) in order to safeguard the availability of a wide variety of lifesaving and life-enhancing medical devices, immediate action is needed—

(A) to clarify the permissible bases of liability for suppliers of raw materials and component parts for medical devices; and

(B) to provide expeditious procedures to dispose of unwarranted suits against the suppliers in such manner as to minimize litigation costs.

(c) LIABILITY AS SELLER.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law be liable as seller for harm to a claimant caused by an implant if—

(1) the biomaterials supplier—

(A) held little to the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant as a result of purchasing the implant after—

(i) the manufacture of the implant and

(ii) the entrance of the implant in the stream of commerce; and

(B) subsequently resold the implant; or

(2) the biomaterials supplier is related by common ownership or control to a person meeting all the requirements described in paragraph (1), if a court deciding a motion to dismiss in accordance with section 6(c)(3)(B)(ii) finds on the basis of affidavits submitted in accordance with section 6 that is necessary to impose liability on the biomaterials supplier as a seller because the related seller meeting the requirements of paragraph (1) lacks sufficient financial resources to satisfy any judgment that the court feels it is likely to enter should the claimant prevail.

(d) LIABILITY FOR VIOLATING CONTRACTUAL REQUIREMENTS OR SPECIFICATIONS.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required and permitted by any other applicable law, be liable for harm to a claimant caused by an implant, if the claimant in an action shows, by a preponderance of the evidence, that—

(1) the raw materials or component parts delivered by the biomaterials supplier either—

(A) did not constitute the product described in the contract between the biomaterials supplier and the person who contracted for delivery of the product; or

(B) failed to meet any specifications that were—

(i) provided to the biomaterials supplier and not expressly repudiated by the biomaterials supplier prior to acceptance of delivery of the raw materials or component parts;

(I) published by the biomaterials supplier;

(II) provided to the manufacturer by the biomaterials supplier; or

(III) contained in a master file that was submitted by the biomaterials supplier to the Secretary and that is currently maintained by the biomaterials supplier for purposes of premarket approval of medical devices; or

(ii) included in the submissions for purposes of premarket approval or review by the Secretary under section 510, 513, 515, or 520 of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360, 360c, 360e, or 360j), and received clearance from the Secretary if such specifications were provided by the manufacturer to the biomaterials supplier and were not expressly repudiated by the biomaterials supplier prior to the acceptance by the manufacturer of delivery of the raw materials or component parts; and

(2) such conduct was an actual and proximate cause of the harm to the claimant.

(e) LIABILITY FOR FAILURE TO WARN.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent required or permitted by any other applicable law, be liable for harm caused by an implant if the biomaterials supplier—

(1) knew, or through reasonable inquiry could have known;

(A) of the application to which the raw material was to be put;

(B) of the risks attendant to such use;

(C) that the buyer or user of the raw material was ignorant of such risks; and

(2) failed to warn such buyer or user of such risks.

(f) LIABILITY FOR DEFECTIVE MATERIAL.—A biomaterials supplier may, to the extent permitted by any other applicable law, be liable for harm caused by an implant if the harm was in whole or in part caused by a defect in the raw material supplied by the biomaterials supplier.

SEC. 6. PROCEDURES FOR DISMISSAL OF CIVIL ACTIONS AGAINST BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIERS.

(a) MOTION TO DISMISS.—In any action that is subject to this Act, a biomaterials supplier who is a defendant in such action may, at any time during which a motion to dismiss may be filed under an applicable law, move to dismiss the action against it on the grounds that—

(1) the defendant is a biomaterials supplier; and

(2)(A) the defendant should not, for the purposes of—

(i) section 5(b), be considered to be a manufacturer of the implant that is subject to such section; or

(ii) section 5(c), be considered to be a seller of the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant;

(iii) section 5(e), be found to have failed to warn the buyer or user of the raw material of its known risks;

(iv) section 5(f), be found to have supplied defective material; or

(B)(i) the claimant has failed to establish pursuant to section 5(d), that the supplier furnished raw materials or component parts in violation of contractual requirements or specifications; or

(ii) the claimant has failed to comply with the procedural requirements of subsection (b).

(b) PROCEEDING ON MOTION TO DISMISS.—The following rules shall apply to any proceeding on a motion to dismiss filed under this section:

(1) AFFIDAVITS RELATING TO LISTING AND DECLARATIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The defendant in the action may submit an affidavit demonstrating that defendant has not included the implant on a list, if any, filed with Secretary pursuant to section 510(j) of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (21 U.S.C. 360(j)).

(B) RESPONSE TO MOTION TO DISMISS.—In response to the motion to dismiss, the claimant may submit an affidavit demonstrating that—

(i) the Secretary has, with respect to the defendant and the implant that allegedly caused harm to the claimant, issued a declaration pursuant to section 5(b)(2)(B); or

(ii) the defendant who filed the motion to dismiss is a seller of the implant who is liable under section 5(c).

(2) EFFECT OF MOTION TO DISMISS ON DISCOVERY.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—If a defendant files a motion to dismiss under paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a), no discovery shall be permitted connection to the action that is subject of the motion, other than discovery necessary to determine a motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction, until such time as the court rules on the motion to dismiss in accordance with the affidavits submitted the parties in accordance with section.

(B) DISCOVERY.—If a defendant files a motion to dismiss under subsection (a)(2)(B)(i) on the grounds that the biomaterials supplier did not furnish raw materials or component parts in violation of contractual requirements or specifications, the court may permit discovery, as ordered by the court. The discovery conducted pursuant to this subparagraph shall be limited to issues that are directly relevant to—

(i) the pending motion to dismiss; or

(ii) the jurisdiction of the court.

(3) AFFIDAVITS RELATING STATES OF DEFENDANT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (B), the court shall consider a defendant to be a biomaterials supplier who is not subject to an action for harm to a claimant caused by an implant, other than an action relating to liability for a violation of contractual requirements or specifications described in subsection (d).

(B) RESPONSES TO MOTION TO DISMISS.—The court shall grant a motion to dismiss any action that asserts liability of the defendant under subsection (b) or (c) of section 5 on the grounds that the defendant is not a manufacturer subject to such section 5(b) or seller subject to section 5(c), unless the claimant submits a valid affidavit that demonstrates that—

(i) with respect to a motion to dismiss contending the defendant is not a manufacturer, the defendant meets the applicable requirements for liability as a manufacturer under section 5(b); or

(ii) with respect to a motion to dismiss contending that the defendant is not a seller, the defendant meets the applicable requirements for liability as a seller under section 5(c).

(4) BASIS OF RULING ON MOTION TO DISMISS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The court shall rule on a motion to dismiss filed under subsection (a) solely on the basis of the pleadings of the parties made pursuant to this section and any affidavits submitted by the parties pursuant to this section.

(B) MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGEMENT.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if the court determines that the pleadings and affidavits made by parties pursuant to this section raise genuine issues as concerning material facts with respect to a motion to dismiss to be a motion for summary judgment made pursuant to subsection (c).

(c) SUMMARY JUDGMENT.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—

(A) BASIS FOR ENTRY OF JUDGMENT.—A biomaterials supplier shall be entitled to entry of judgment without trial if the court finds there is a no genuine issue as concerning any material fact for each applicable element set forth in paragraphs (1) and (2) of section 5(d).

(B) ISSUES OF MATERIAL FACT.—With respect to a finding made under subparagraph (A), the court shall consider a genuine issue of material fact to exist only if the evidence submitted by claimant would be sufficient to allow a reasonable jury to reach a verdict for the claimant if the jury found the evidence to be credible.

(2) DISCOVERY MADE PRIOR TO A RULING ON A MOTION FOR SUMMARY JUDGMENT.—If, under applicable rules, the court permits discovery prior to a ruling on a motion for summary judgment made pursuant to this subsection, such discovery shall be limited solely to establishing whether a genuine issue of material fact exists as to the applicable elements set forth in paragraphs (1) and (92) of section 5(9)(d).

(3) DISCOVERY WITH RESPECT TO A BIOMATERIALS SUPPLIER.—A biomaterials supplier shall be subject to discovery in connection with a motion seeking dismissal or summary judgment on the basis of the inapplicability of section 5(d) or the failure to establish the applicable elements of section 5(d) solely to the extent permitted by the applicable Federal or State rules for discovery against nonparties.

(d) STAY PENDING PETITION FOR DECLARATION.—If a claimant has filed a petition for a declaration pursuant to section 5(b)(3)(A) with respect to a defendant, and the Secretary has not issued a final decision on the petition, the court shall stay all proceedings with respect to that defendant until such time as the Secretary has issued a final decision on the petition.

(a) ATTORNEY FEES.—The court shall require the claimant to compensate the biomaterials supplier for a manufacturer appearing in lieu of a supplier pursuant to subsection (f) for attorney fees and costs, if

(1) the claimant named or joined the biomaterials supplier; and

(2) the court found the claim against the biolmaterials supplier was clearly without merit and frivolous at the time the claim was brought.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself and Mr. STEVENS):

S. 967. A bill to amend the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act and the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act to benefit Alaska Natives and rural residents, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

TECHNICAL CHANGES TO ANCSA AND ANILCA

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce legislation on behalf of Alaska Natives and residents of rural Alaska. This legislation makes technical changes to both the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act [ANCSA] and the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act [ANILCA]. Most of the provisions are similar to those contained in H.R. 2505 passed by the House last year. These changes are the direct result of more than three days of hearings consisting of 14 panels and more than 155 witnesses, the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources held throughout Alaska during the last Congress.

ANCSA CHANGES

Mr. President, ANCSA is 25 years old. This legislation is a living, working document being used to improve the lives of Alaska's Native residents and the future generations of Alaska Natives. We have amended this document numerous times with technical changes in order to make it a more effective piece of legislation.

The changes I am offering to ANCSA today would:

1. Allow Native Regional Corporations the option of retaining mineral estates of native allotments surrounded by ANCSA 12(a) and 12(b) selections.

2. Amend section 22(c) of ANCSA to include the Haida Corporation in the transfer of the administration of certain mining claims.

3. Codify an agreement reached between ANCSA Native corporations regarding revenue sharing on sales of rock, sand and gravel.

4. Direct the Secretary of Interior to determine the value of certain Calista Corporation lands and to complete the exchange authorized by Congress in 1991.

5. Authorize five southeast Alaska Native villages to organize as Native corporations.

There are two provisions that I would like to single out here in my remarks today.

Mr. President, section 5 of this legislation implements a land exchange with the Calista Corporation, an Alaska Native regional corporation organized under the authority of the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. This exchange, originally authorized in 1991, by Public Law 102–172, would provide for the United States to acquire approximately 225,000 acres of Calista and village corporation lands and interests in lands within the Yukon Delta National Wildlife Refuge in southwestern Alaska.

The Refuge serves as important habitat and breeding and nesting grounds for a variety of fish and wildlife, including numerous species of migratory birds and waterfowl. As a result, the Calista exchange will enhance the conservation and protection of these vital habitats and thereby further the purpose of ANCSA and the Alaska National Interest Lands Conservation Act.

In addition to conservation benefits, this exchange will also render much needed economic benefits to the Yupik Eskimo people of southwestern Alaska. The Calista region is burdened by some of the harshest economic and social conditions in the Nation. As a result of this exchange, the Calista Corporation will be better able to make the kind of investments that will improve the region's economy and the lives of the Yupik people. In this regard, this provision furthers and carries out the underlying purposes of ANCSA.

This provision is, in part, the result of discussions by the various interested parties. As a result of those discussions, a number of modifications were made to the original package of lands offered for exchange. Chief among these were the addition of another 27,000 acres of surface estate (fee and conservation casements) of village corporation lands, as well as the Calista subsurface estate lying underneath those lands, and the removal of the Tuluksak mineralized parcel from the exchange.

In a last minute agreement to move the bill through the House last year, the total value of the exchange package was reduced by 25% to $30 million. Such a reduction was unwarranted and seriously undermined the utility and benefit of the provision for the public and for Calista and the twelve village corporations involved. This legislation I introduce today restores the value to the Calista exchange portion of this bill.

Mr. President, it is time to move forward with this exchange.

Section 8 of this legislation provides long-overdue authorization to the Southeast Alaska Villages of Haines, Ketchikan, Petersburg, Tenakee, and Wrangell, Alaska that will permit them to establish Native Corporations under ANCSA. The history of these five villages clearly shows that the Alaska Natives who enrolled in them and their heirs have been inadvertently and wrongly denied the financial and cultural benefits of enrollment in a Village, Urban, or Group Corporation.

This section simply amends ANCSA to provide authorization for each of the five Unrecognized Communities to form a Native Corporation pursuant to ANCSA, and directs the Secretary of the Interior, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture, to submit to Congress a report regarding lands and other compensation that should be provided to the Corporations formed pursuant to this section. This section specifically requires further Congressional action to provide compensation for these communities.

ANILCA CHANGES

This legislation also addresses changes that need to be made to ANILCA to ensure that the Federal agencies are fairly implementing this legislation consistent with its written provisions and promises. These changes will ensure that its implementation is consistent with the intent of Congress. These are simple changes that among other things:

1. Require all public land managers in Alaska or in a region containing Alaska to take a training course in ANILCA.

2. Authorize continuation of traditional subsistence activities in Glacier Bay subject to reasonable regulations by NPS.

3. Protect traditional and inholder access in and across ANILCA lands.

4. Protect property owners from having to relinquish ownership interests in cabins and possessions within them on ANILCA lands.

Mr. President, seventeen years ago, Congress enacted the ANILCA. Despite the opposition of many Alaskans, over 100 million acres of land was set aside in a series of vast Parks, Wildlife Refuges, and Wilderness units. Much of the concern about the Act was the impact of these Federal units, and related management restrictions, on traditional activities and lifestyles.

To allay these concerns, ANILCA included a series of unique provisions designed to ensure that traditional activities and lifestyles would continue, that Alaskans would not be subjected to a ''permit lifestyle'', and that the agencies would be required to recognize the crucial distinction between managing small units surrounded by millions of people in the lower 48 and vast multi-million acre units encompassing a relative handful of individuals and communities in Alaska. The sponsors of ANILCA issued repeated assurances that the establishment of these units would in fact protect traditional activities and lifestyles and not place them in jeopardy.

Early implementation of the Act closely reflected these promises. However, as the years have passed, many of the Federal managers seem to have lost sight of these important representations to the people of Alaska. Agency personnel, trained primarily in lower 48 circumstances, have brought the mentality of restriction and regulation to Alaska. The critical distinctions between management of Parks, Refuges and Wilderness areas in the 49th State and the lower 48 have blurred. The result is the spread of restriction and regulation and the creation of the exact ''permit lifestyle'' which we were promised would never happen.

I have become increasingly aware of this disturbing trend. In my conversations with Alaskans, I hear many complaints about ever increasing restraints on traditional activities and requirements for more and more paperwork and permits. A whole new ''industry'' has sprung up to help Alaskans navigate the bureaucratic shoals that have built up during the past few years.

Let me cite a few of the incidents that have come to my attention. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service decides it wants to establish a ''wilderness management'' regime and eliminate motorboat use on a river. It proceeds with the plan until protests cause the Regional Solicitor to advise the Service that its plan violates Section 1110(a) of ANILCA. Owners of cabins built, occupied, and used long before ANILCA are told they must give up their interests in the cabins although Section 1303 expressly enables cabin owners to retain their possessory interests in their cabins. Visitor services contracts are awarded and then revoked because the agencies failed to adhere to the requirements of Section 1307. Small landowners of inholdings seek to secure access to their property and are informed that they must file for a right-of-way as a transportation and utility system and pay the U.S. hundreds of thousands of dollars to prepare a totally unnecessary environmental impact statement. An outfitter spends substantial time and money responding to a request for proposals, submits an apparently winning proposal, and has the agency arbitrarily change its mind and decide to withdraw its request—it does not offer to compensate the outfitter for his efforts.

Mr. President, the legislation I introduce today will ensure that agencies are fairly implementing ANILCA consistent with its written provisions and promises. These technical corrections to ANILCA will ensure that its implementation is consistent with the intent of Congress.

Mr. President, conditions have changed in the 17 years since the passage of ANILCA and we have all had a great deal of experience with the Act's implementation. It is time to make the law clearer and to make the federal manager's job easier.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a table be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the table was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 968. A bill to provide for special immigrant status for certain aliens working as journalists in Hong Kong; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE HONG KONG PRESS FREEDOM ACT

Mr. MACK. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleague, Senator LIEBERMAN, to introduce the Hong Kong Press Freedom Act.

Mr. President, as we consider China and Hong Kong in these final weeks before Hong Kong reversion, it is important for us to reflect on the facts, and what drives our behaviors toward China.

We fought the Cold War for freedom and democracy. The war is over, but we know of 1.2 billion people still wearing the yoke of communism—or at least nondemocratic oppression. On July 1, we might be forced to witness that number grow by 6 million as Hong Kong falls under control of the People's Republic of China. If the defining moment of the 1980s was the crumbling of the Berlin Wall and the spread of freedom and democracy, we should not allow this decade to be remembered most by the victory of totalitarianism over human dignity.

One essential element of freedom is press freedom. Until recently, Hong Kong enjoyed one of the freest presses in the world. But already, experts point to instances of self censorship occurring on the island. All indications are that this freedom will continue to deteriorate following Hong Kong's reversion.

Today, I am introducing a bill in the Senate to encourage press freedom in Hong Kong. A similar measure was introduced in the House by Representative Porter and 27 other members in February. The measure supports those Hong Kong journalists who chose to remain loyal to the standards of honest and open reporting. Specifically, this bill provides special immigration status to journalists and their families should they be threatened as a result of their reporting. When Senator LIEBERMAN and I visited Hong Kong earlier this year, we heard several stories of self-censorship occurring in the Hong Kong press. Many of the larger papers were losing circulation and the underground and small papers were growing. It is this free thought and competition which we seek to preserve.

Without press freedom, what other freedom can survive? While this is a small and specific measure, its impact can be profound. I urge immediate consideration and passage of this measure.

Mr. LIEBERMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to join my colleague, Senator MACK, in introducing the Hong Kong Press Freedom Act.

In a very few days, Hong Kong will revert to Chinese sovereignty. Already, there is evidence that China will not fully honor its commitment to preserve Hong Kong's democratic institutions and way of life under the rubric, one country, two systems. Beijing has announced it will eliminate Hong Kong's democratically elected legislative council and that it will reimpose several restrictive civil order statutes, including against certain types of political expression. Even more disturbing, there are indications that media self-censorship is replacing freedom of the press.

It is fitting and proper that we introduce this legislation now. Eight years ago, Chinese authorities, most of whom remain in power today, brutally massacred students and others who wanted assurances that their government would become more accountable to the will of the people. They were seeking democratic progress, not revolutionary license. Beijing answered them with tanks, and 8 years later, Tiananmen Square remains a vivid reminder of what autocrats can and will do even in full view of astonished world opinion.

This bill would not have prevented the evil of Tiananmen Square; and it is not intended as a warning to China. It is simply principle put into action. As Americans, we understand how important a free press is to preserving the rule of law and to protecting the rights and dignity of individuals against the power of the state. Our action here will help assure that reporters in hong Kong will not be cowed by the memory of Tiananmen Square. This bill supports those who choose to put themselves at risk by reporting honestly and openly what they see and hear when the Chinese flag replaces the Union Jack. We owe them our gratitude and protection, and this bill will help us provide it.

Specifically, this measure offers special immigration status to journalists and their families if they are threatened with reprisal because of their work. A similar measure was introduced in the House by Representative PORTER and 27 other Members in February. I urge my Senate colleagues to join this effort and to pass the Hong Kong press freedom bill.

By Mr. D'AMATO (for himself, Mr. CHAFEE and Mr. TORRICELLI):

S. 969. A bill ordering the preparation of a Government report detailing injustices suffered by Italian Americans during World War II, and a formal acknowledgement of such injustices by the President; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE WARTIME VIOLATION OF ITALIAN AMERICAN CIVIL LIBERTIES ACT

Mr. D'AMATO. Mr. President, thousands of Italian-Americans became innocent victims of wartime fever—a panicked and a paranoid reaction that all people of foreign extraction linked to belligerent countries were spies, sabatours and un-American. Fear of fifth columnists and quisling-type activities led government officials to abridge the civil rights of Americans who came from warring countries. Patriotic propaganda villifying the treachery of sneak attacks, blitzkrieg and totalitarian domination had an effect on the homefront view of Italian, German and Japanese immigrants as well as naturalized citizens, inducing discrimination. Initial mistakes were magnified by protective zeal into wholesale judgements about aliens, which led to the detainment, internment and harassment of these people.

That is why, Mr. President, I rise today to join with my colleagues Senator CHAFEE and TORRICELLI to right a terrible wrong that happened in this country over 50 years ago. In a country that so cherishes its equality among men and women, and boasts its democratic process, the United States has a dark spot in its history. Most Americans are not aware of the tragedy experienced by so many fellow citizens over half a century ago, a tragedy committed by the American government against people of Italian descent.

In early 1942, 600,000 aliens of Italian descent were deemed to be ''enemy aliens'' and were forced to re-register and carry identification. Our government restricted their travel to their neighborhoods and classified normal household items, such as shortwave radios, cameras, flashlights and weapons as contraband material in their possession.

On February 19, 1942, an Executive Order was issued giving the Secretary of War the authority to exclude American citizens as well as alien enemies, from such areas as the Secretary should designate. Americans now realize that this provision began a dark period of American history, authorizing the internment of immigrants residing in the United States as well as American citizens. While most Americans are aware of the internment of Japanese Americans during World War II, few are aware that Italians and German legal residents of the United States were also restricted.

Italian immigrants, Italian-Americans and their families were viewed as a genuine threat to American security at the beginning of World War II. Fear and ethnic bias led to the relocation of nearly 10,000 members of the Italian community from their homes on the West Coast. Hundreds of people were taken from their homes and brought to guarded army camp in areas as far east as Minnesota.

And all this effort and anxiety for naught- even by war's end, not a single act of sabotage was attributable to Italian-Americans. On the contrary, Italians fought in America's victorious forces in the European and Asian theater and thousands made the ultimate sacrifice for our nation's survival.

As one could imagine, the effects on these families were disastrous. Four men committed suicide. These men (Martini Battistessa, Guiseppe Micheli, Giovanni Sanguenetti and Stefano Terranova) suffered at the hands of government officials. Italian American fisherman were grounded, their livelihood gone.

Several experts have taken a look at the treatment of Italian Americans during the early 1940's. Stephen Fox wrote a book called The Unknown Internment: An Oral History of the Relocation of Italian Americans during World War II. In the preface, Stephen Fox describes the horrific treatment of people whose only crime was being of Italian descent in America during World War II.

Salvatore J. LaGumina, Professor of History and Director of the Center for Italian American Studies at Nassau Community College wrote an article in the Italian American Review called ''Enemy Alien: Italian Americans During World War II''. In the article he states:

''A ban on Italian language radio programs affected stations in New York City and Boston. Various Italian American newspapers suspended publication at least during the war years and in some instances ceased publication permanently. Customary Italian religious feast celebrations were likewise deferred or significantly diminished . . . In Westbury, Long Island, most Italian American organizations suspended their traditional feast celebrations for the duration of the war except for the Dell'Assunta Society which insisted it be allowed to march on the village streets during its festival, on the grounds that it was a religious not an ethnic celebration.

Robert Masulla, writing for the Italic Way Newsletter, cited that Italian immigrant fishermen were denied their livelihood and some ''even had their boats impounded by the U.S. government and utilized for patrol and minesweeping duties''.

It was not until October 12, 1942 that Italian immigrants were removed from the enemy alien category. Mr. Fox's historical study indicated that the internment effort was abandoned because the alien relocation would overly tax the U.S. Army's already over-extended logistical network, threaten the defense industry and lower civilian morale.

In 1988, this body finally faced a terrible past that we could no longer ignore—the internment of immigrants from Japan or Japanese-Americans. Now it is time to provide recognition and remorsefulness for the treatment of Italian aliens and Italian Americans who had to endure the horrific actions of our own government—a government that has stood for freedom, not oppression.

That is why I have joined with my colleagues in the House of Representatives, particularly its lead sponsors, Congressmen Engel and Lazio, to introduce this bill, the ''Wartime Violation of Italian American Civil Liberties Act''. Its provisions are clear and straight-forward:

It recognizes the treatment of Italian Americans during World War II.

It calls on the President to formally acknowledge that the civil liberties of Italian Americans were violated in the United States in the early 1940's.

It encourages federal agencies to support projects which increase the public's awareness of the internment of Italians during the Second World War.

It states that the President and Congress provide direct funding in order to educate the American public through a film documentary, particularly to document the testimony of the survivors of the internment.

It recommends the formation of an advisory committee to assist in the compilation of historical data, to accurately reflect the incidents that transpired.

It calls on the Department of Justice to publish a report on the U.S. Government's role in the internment.

The facts need to be told in order to acknowledge that these events happened, to remember those who lived through the humiliation and to discourage any similar injustices from occurring in the future.

By LAUTENBERG (for himself and Mr. TORRICELLI):

S. 971. A bill to amend the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to improve the quality of coastal recreation waters, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

THE BEACHES ENVIRONMENTAL ASSESSMENT, CLOSURE, AND HEALTH ACT OF 1997

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, on behalf of Senator TORRICELLI and myself, I rise to introduce the Beaches Environmental Assessment, Closure and Health (BEACH) Act.

Mr. President, coastal tourism generates billions of dollars every year for local communities nationwide. Moreover, our coastal areas provide immeasurable recreational benefits for millions of Americans who want to build sand castles, cool off in the water, take a walk with that special someone, or just relax. New Jersey's tourism sector is the second largest revenue-producing industry in the state. Without a doubt, the lure of my state's beaches generates most of this revenue—over $7 billion annually.

Mr. President, this heavily used natural resource can actually pose a threat to human health if it is not properly managed. Studies conducted during the past two decades show a definite and alarming relationship between the amount of indicator bacteria in coastal waters and the incidence of illnesses associated with swimming.

Water-borne viruses are the major cause of swimming-associated diseases—gastroenteritis and hepatitis are the most common ones worldwide. And because an individual afflicted with these diseases are contagious, the risk of sewage-borne illness does not end with the bather.

Nationwide, state and local governments reported almost 4,000 beach closings or warnings because of bacteria contamination.

New Jersey has been particularly aggressive in protecting public health at the beach. New Jersey is one of only a few states to have a mandatory beach protection program that includes a bacteria standard, a monitoring program, and mandatory beach closure requirements. The program is designed to address water quality from both a health and an environmental perspective. Beaches are closed when bacteria levels exceed the standard regardless of the pollution source.

Ironically, New Jersey is penalized because it does more to protect public health than most other states. In past years the annual losses from beach closures in New Jersey have ranged from $800 million to $1 billion while beaches remain open in competing states that do not publicize the questionable quality of their water.

I have introduced over this legislation several times over the past several years. The bill, the Beaches, Environmental Assessment, Closure and Health Act, is known by the acronym ''BEACH'' bill. The bill will address the uneven efforts to protect beach goers by establishing uniform testing and monitoring procedures for pathogens and floatables in marine recreation waters.

This bill requires the EPA to establish procedures to monitor coastal waters to detect short-term increases in pathogenicity and to set minimum standards to protect the public from pathogen contaminated beach waters. And it will assure that the public is notified when beach waters exceed the standards and public health may be at risk.

Going to the beach should be a healthy and rejuvenating experience. A day at the beach shouldn't be followed by a day at the doctor. Whether they go to the beach in the Carolinas or in California, in New Jersey or New York—Americans across the country have a right to know when the water is and is not safe for swimming. Beach goers should be able to wade or swim in the surf without the fear of getting sick.

I am very pleased that EPA has recognized the seriousness of this problem and the need for a federal solution. As a result of BEACH bills that I have introduced, the EPA announced its own Beaches Environmental Assessment, Closure and Health program. Under this program, EPA has begun to survey state and local health and environmental directors on the quality of coastal recreational waters for posting on the Internet next year. By next summer, the website will serve as a clearinghouse to provide the public access to health-related information available from states and other sources on the quality of recreational water. The goal is to expand the beach public's ''right to know'' on the quality of the nation's beaches. The aim is to encourage those beaches that keep their water quality from the public to make that information as readily available as is done in New Jersey.

However, without mandatory, uniform regulation these EPA programs will be ineffective. While some states use EPA guidelines, others have no programs for regularly monitoring their beach water for swimmer safety. The Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC) found that only 7 states—New Jersey, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, New Hampshire, Ohio and Indiana —comprehensively monitor their beaches, and a mere 6 states consistently close beaches when bacteria water quality standards are violated. Additionally, NRDC found that while a high bacteria level cause beach closures in one state other sates may allow people to swim despite the identical health risks. This discrepancy threatens public health. That is why we need to pass this legislation as soon as possible.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the importance of protecting public health at our nation's beaches by cosponsoring this legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 971

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Beaches Environmental Assessment, Closure, and Health Act of 1997''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) the Nation's beaches are a valuable public resource used for recreation by millions of people annually;

(2) the beaches of coastal States are hosts to many out-of-State and international visitors;

(3) tourism in the coastal zone generates billions of dollars annually;

(4) increased population has contributed to the decline in the environmental quality of coastal waters;

(5) pollution in coastal waters is not restricted by State and other political boundaries;

(6) coastal States have different methods of testing the quality of coastal recreation waters, providing varying degrees of protection to the public;

(7) the adoption of consistent criteria by coastal States for monitoring the quality of coastal recreation waters, and the posting of signs at beaches notifying the public during periods when the standards are exceeded, would enhance public health and safety; and

(8) while the adoption of such criteria will enhance public health and safety, exceedances of such criteria should be addressed, where feasible, as part of a watershed approach to effectively identify and eliminate sources of pollution.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to require uniform criteria and procedures for testing, monitoring, and posting of coastal recreation waters at beaches open for use by the public to protect public safety and improve environmental quality.

SEC. 3. ADOPTION OF COASTAL RECREATIONAL WATER QUALITY CRITERIA BY STATES.

(a) GENERAL RULE.—A State shall adopt water quality criteria for coastal recreation waters which, at a minimum, are consistent with the criteria published by the Administrator under section 304(a)(1) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1314(a)(1)) not later than 3½ years following the date of the enactment of this Act. Such water quality criteria shall be developed and promulgated in accordance with the requirements of section 303(c) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1313(c)). A State shall incorporate such criteria into all appropriate programs into which such State would incorporate other water quality criteria adopted under such section 303(c) and revise such criteria not later than 3 years following the date of publication of revisions by the Administrator under section 4(b) of this Act.

(b) FAILURE OF STATES TO ADOPT.—If a State has not complied with subsection (a) by the last day of the 3½-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the water quality criteria issued by the Administrator under section 304(a)(1) of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act shall become applicable as the water quality criteria for coastal recreational waters for the State, and shall be deemed to have been promulgated by the Administrator pursuant to section 303(c)(4).

SEC. 4. REVISIONS TO WATER QUALITY CRITERIA.

(a) STUDIES.—After consultation with appropriate Federal, State, and local officials, including local health officials, and other interested persons, but not later than the last day of the 3-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator shall conduct, in cooperation with the Under Secretary of Commerce for Oceans and Atmosphere, studies to provide additional information to the current base of knowledge for use in developing—

(1) a more complete list of potential health risks, including effects to the upper respiratory system;

(2) better indicators for directly detecting or predicting in coastal recreational waters the presence of pathogens which are harmful to human health; and

(3) more expeditious methods (including predictive models) for detecting in coastal recreation waters the presence of pathogens which are harmful to human health.

(b) REVISED CRITERIA.—Based on the results of the studies conducted under subsection (a), the Administrator, after consultation with appropriate Federal, State, and local officials, including local health officials, shall issue, within 5 years after the date of the enactment of this Act (and review and revise from time to time thereafter, but in no event less than once every 5 years) revised water quality criteria for pathogens in coastal recreation waters that are harmful to human health, including a revised list of indicators and testing methods.

SEC. 5. COASTAL BEACH WATER QUALITY MONITORING.

Title IV of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (33 U.S.C. 1341–1345) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following new section:

"SEC. 406. COASTAL BEACH WATER QUALITY MONITORING.

''(a) MONITORING.—Within 18 months after the date of enactment of this section, the Administrator shall publish and revise regulations requiring monitoring of, and specifying available methods to be used by States to monitor, coastal recreation waters at beaches open for use by the public for compliance with applicable water quality criteria for those waters and protection of the public safety. Monitoring requirements established pursuant to this subsection shall, at a minimum—

''(1) specify the frequency of monitoring based on the periods of recreational use of such waters;

''(3) specify the frequency and location of monitoring based on the proximity of coastal recreation waters to known or identified point and nonpoint sources of pollution and in relation to storm events;

''(4) specify methods for detecting levels of pathogens that are harmful to human health and for identifying short-term increases in pathogens that are harmful to human health in coastal recreation waters, including in relation to storm events; and

''(5) specify the conditions and procedures under which discrete areas of coastal recreation waters may be exempted by the Administrator from the monitoring requirements of this subsection, if the Administrator determines that an exemption will not impair—

''(A) compliance with the applicable water quality criteria for those waters; and

''(B) protection of the public safety.

''(b) NOTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS.—Regulations published pursuant to subsection (a) shall require States to provide prompt notification to local governments and the public of exceedance of applicable water quality criteria for State coastal recreation waters or the immediate likelihood of such an exceedance. Notification pursuant to this subsection shall include, at a minimum—

''(1) prompt communication of the occurrence, nature, and extent of such an exceedance, or the immediate likelihood of such an exceedance based on predictive models to a designated official of a local government having jurisdiction over land adjoining the coastal recreation waters for which an exceedance is identified; and

''(2) posting of signs for the period during which the exceedance continues, sufficient to give notice to the public of an exceedance of applicable water quality criteria for such waters and the potential risks associated with water contact activities in such waters.

''(c) FLOATABLE MATERIALS MONITORING PROCEDURES.—The Administrator shall—

''(1) issue guidance on uniform assessment and monitoring procedures for floatable materials in coastal recreation waters; and

''(2) specify the conditions under which the presence of floatable material shall constitute a threat to public health and safety.

''(d) STATE IMPLEMENTATION.—A State must implement a monitoring program that conforms to the regulations issued pursuant to subsection (a) not later than 3½ years after the date of the enactment of this section and revise such program not later than 2 years following the date of publication of revisions by the Administrator under subsection (f).

''(e) DELEGATION OF RESPONSIBILITY.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this section, the Administrator shall issue guidance for the delegation of State testing, monitoring, and posting programs under this section to local government authorities. In the case that such responsibilities are delegated by a State to a local government authority, or have been delegated to a local government authority before such date of enactment, in a manner that, at a minimum, is consistent with the guidance issued by the Administrator, State resources shall be made available to the delegated authority for the purpose of program implementation.

''(f) REVIEW AND REVISION OF REGULATIONS.—The Administrator shall review and revise regulations published pursuant to this section periodically, but in no event less than once every 5 years.

SEC. 6. REPORT TO CONGRESS.

Not later than 4 years after the date of the enactment of this Act, and periodically thereafter, the Administrator shall submit to Congress a report including—

(1) recommendations concerning the need for additional water quality criteria and other actions needed to improve the quality of coastal recreation waters; and

(2) an evaluation of State efforts to implement this Act, including the amendments made by this Act.

SEC. 7. GRANTS TO STATES.

(c) ELIGIBLE STATE.—After the last day of the 3½-year period beginning on the date of the enactment of this Act, the Administrator may make a grant to a State under this section only if the State demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Administrator that it is implementing its monitoring and posting program under section 406 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act.

By Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. COATS, and Mr. INHOFE):

S. 972. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to prohibit any deduction for gambling losses; to the Committee on Finance.

REPEAL THE GAMBLING LOSS TAX DEDUCTION

Mr. REED. Mr. President, this week the Senate has considered legislation to fundamentally change Medicare and other programs that are vital to millions of Americans. I realize that we must make difficult choices about these valuable initiatives as we move toward a balanced budget. However, as we seek to invest in our nation's future, we must also confront loopholes and subsidies that waste our limited resources.

The tax code contains many such loopholes, which fail to reflect our nation's true priorities. For example, the United States is subsidizing thousands of professional gamblers by allowing tax deductions for gambling losses to the extent of gambling winnings. The Joint Tax Committee reports that this deduction costs taxpayers $1.43 billion over five years.

The gambling loss tax deduction is an anomaly for individuals who frequent an industry that sells itself as providing entertainment. In general, the tax code does not allow deductions for discretionary spending on entertainment, and I believe that it is more than reasonable to hold gambling expenditures to this same standard. Repealing the gambling loss tax deduction merely increases the cost of one entertainment option, a factor that gamblers can consider in determining how to spend their discretionary income. Furthermore, while most business deductions are for investments—and even losses—that could have created needed job opportunities for our nation's citizens, this is not the case for the losses claimed by professional gamblers on their personal income taxes.

Perhaps more importantly, the gambling loss tax deduction primarily benefits professional gamblers and wealthy individuals who spend large sums on gambling. In 1994 alone, $2.78 billion in gambling losses was deducted on some 427,000 tax returns. Individuals with adjusted gross incomes of at least $75,000 claimed nearly 55% of these gambling losses, and people with adjusted gross incomes of at least $100,000 claimed an astounding 40% of these deductions.

When Congress is cutting essential programs to balance the budget, it is simply unsound policy to subsidize gamblers. I urge my colleagues to join me, Senator Chafee, Senator Coats, and Senator Inhofe in supporting legislation to repeal the gambling loss tax deduction, and in taking a step to ensure that we balance the budget in a way that reflects our nation's priorities and invests in our nation's future.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this legislation to repeal the gambling loss tax deduction be included in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 972

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

(A) IN GENERAL.—Section 165(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating to wagering losses) is amended to read as follows:

''(d) NO DEDUCTION FOR WAGERING LOSSES.—No deduction shall be allowed for losses from wagering transactions.''

(b) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendment made by this section shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 21, 1997.

By Mr. REED (for himself and Mr. CHAFEE):

S. 973. A bill to designate the United States Post Office building located at 551 Kingstown Road in Wakefield, Rhode Island, as the ''David B. Champagne Post Office Building''; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

THE DAVID B. CHAMPAGNE POST OFFICE ACT

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Corporal David B. Champagne, USMC, who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for service in Korea. In honor of the sacrifice made by this heroic young man, I am introducing a bill to name the new post office at 551 Kingstown Road in Wakefield, RI the ''David B. Champagne Post Office'' with my Rhode Island colleague Senator Chafee.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard L. Champagne, Corporal Champagne served in the National Guard before graduating from South Kingstown High School and enlisting in the Marines in March 1951. He was the only Rhode Island resident to receive this nation's highest award for valor, the Medal of Honor, for service in Korea. The citation accompanying the Medal read:

For conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty while serving as a fire team leader of Company A, First Battalion, Seventh Marines, First Marine Division (Reinforced), in action against enemy aggressor forces in Korea on 28 May 1952. Advancing with his platoon in the initial assault of the company against a strongly fortified and heavily defended hill position, Corporal Champagne skillfully led his fire team through a veritable hail of intense enemy machine-gun, small-arms and grenade fire, overrunning trenches and a series of almost impregnable bunker positions before reaching the crest of the hill and placing his men in defensive positions. Suffering a painful leg wound while assisting in repelling the ensuing hostile counterattack, which was launched under cover of a murderous hail of mortar and artillery fire, he steadfastly refused evacuation and fearlessly continued to control his fire team. When the enemy counterattack increased in intensity, and a hostile grenade landed in the midst of the fire team, Corporal Champagne unhesitating seized the deadly missile and hurled it in the direction of the approaching enemy. As the grenade left his hand, it exploded, blowing off his hand and throwing him out of the trench. Mortally wounded by the enemy mortar fire while in this exposed position, Corporal Champagne, by his valiant leadership, fortitude and gallant spirit of self-sacrifice in the face of almost certain death, undoubtedly saved the lives of several of his fellow Marines. His heroic actions served to inspire all who observed him and reflect the highest credit upon himself and the United States Naval Service. He gallantly gave his life for his country.

In addition to the Medal of Honor, Corporal Champagne received the Korean Medal of Honor, the Rhode Island Cross, the Purple Heart, the National Defense Service Medal, the Korean Service Medal with 3 Battle Stars, the Korean Presidential Unit Citation, and the United Nation's Service Medal.

Corporal Champagne is truly an American hero. In the best spirit of this country, he volunteered to go to a foreign land and fight for people he had never met, so that they would not be subjected to the rule of a totalitarian regime.

In my home state of Rhode Island a Korean War Memorial is under construction at the State Veterans' Cemetery. Carved on that memorial will be the same words that are inscribed on the Korean War Memorial dedicated in Washington, DC: ''Freedom Is Not Free.'' Corporal Champagne understood the meaning of those words. He unhesitatingly paid the ultimate price to preserve the freedom of South Korea and to save the lives of his men.

This legislation would pay proper tribute to this remarkable young man and commemorate his incredible valor for future generations. I ask my colleagues to join Senator Chafee and me in honoring Corporal David B. Champagne by supporting this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this legislation to name the new Wakefield post office after Corporal Champagne be included in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 973

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SEC. 2. REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the United States Post Office building referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the ''David B. Champagne Post Office Building''.

By Mr. REED:

S. 974. A bill to amend the Immigration and Nationality Act to modify the qualifications for a country to be designated as a visa waiver pilot program country; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

VISA WAIVER PROGRAM LEGISLATION

Mr. REED. Mr. President, for the past 9 years the visa waiver pilot program has been a resounding success. Today, citizens from twenty-five countries are able to travel to the United States without the burden of obtaining a visa from a U.S. embassy before leaving home. Because the program makes travel so much easier, business has boomed, tourism has soared, and family members have been able to be with each other on occasions when it mattered. Cutting the bureaucratic red tape has strengthened our economic and cultural ties with participating countries. In addition, streamlining this administrative process has enabled the State Department to use its resources more efficiently and effectively, saving the American taxpayers thousands of dollars.

Today, I am introducing a bill which will extend the privilege of the visa waiver program to additional countries with strong ties to our Nation. This legislation will slightly modify the criteria that a country must meet in order to participate in the program. Under these modifications, one country which will gain admittance to the visa waiver program is Portugal. Portugal is one of only two members of the European Union which is not included in the visa waiver program. It is time for that inequity to be corrected.

The Portuguese were some of the earliest explorers and settlers of the United States and they have been contributing to our country ever since. Over one million U.S. citizens claim Portuguese descent and there are thriving Portuguese communities from New England to Hawaii. We owe these members of our American community the opportunity to see family members who live in Portugal when they need them, without the worry and hassle of obtaining a visa.

Inclusion in the visa waiver program will promote the economic exchange between Portugal and the United States. Portugal is a valued trading partner and if members of the business community are able to travel to the U.S. without delaying to obtain a business, their contributions to this country will only increase. At a time when the U.S. economy is the wonder of the world and our market is truly global, our country should seek out and facilitate additional economic opportunities.

In 1974, the citizens of Portugal overthrew a dictatorship and established a democracy. Their brave actions began a wave of democratization that spread across the world and is still reverberating today. No other country reflects the principles of the United States better than Portugal. We should do everything possible to lower the barriers and strengthen the exchange between our two countries. Including Portugal in the visa waiver program is an important first step in this process.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of this legislation be included in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 974

TITLE ____—BUDGET CONTROL

SEC. ____01. SHORT TITLE; PURPOSE.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This title may be cited as the ''Bipartisan Budget Enforcement Act of 1997''.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is—

(1) to ensure a balanced Federal budget by fiscal year 2002;

(2) to ensure that the Bipartisan Budget Agreement is implemented; and

(3) to create a mechanism to monitor total costs of direct spending programs, and, in the event that actual or projected costs exceed targeted levels, to require the President and Congress to address adjustments in direct spending.

SEC. ____02. ESTABLISHMENT OF DIRECT SPENDING TARGETS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The initial direct spending targets for each of fiscal years 1998 through 2002 shall equal total outlays for all direct spending except net interest as determined by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget (hereinafter referred to in this title as the ''Director'') under subsection (b).

(b) INITIAL REPORT BY DIRECTOR.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 30 days after the date of enactment of this title, the Director shall submit a report to Congress setting forth projected direct spending targets for each of fiscal years 1998 through 2002.

(2) PROJECTIONS AND ASSUMPTIONS.—The Director's projections shall be based on legislation enacted as of 5 days before the report is submitted under paragraph (1). The Director shall use the same economic and technical assumptions used in preparing the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 1998 (H.Con.Res. 84).

SEC. ____03. ANNUAL REVIEW OF DIRECT SPENDING AND RECEIPTS BY PRESIDENT.

As part of each budget submitted under section 1105(a) of title 31, United States Code, the President shall provide an annual review of direct spending and receipts, which shall include—

(1) information on total outlays for programs covered by the direct spending targets, including actual outlays for the prior fiscal year and projected outlays for the current fiscal year and the 5 succeeding fiscal years; and

(2) information on the major categories of Federal receipts, including a comparison between the levels of those receipts and the levels projected as of the date of enactment of this title.

SEC. ___04. SPECIAL DIRECT SPENDING MESSAGE BY PRESIDENT.

(a) TRIGGER.—If the information submitted by the President under section ___03 indicates—

(1) that actual outlays for direct spending in the prior fiscal year exceeded the applicable direct spending target; or

(2) that outlays for direct spending for the current or budget year are projected to exceed the applicable direct spending targets, the President shall include in his budget a special direct spending message meeting the requirements of subsection (b).

(b) CONTENTS.—

(1) INCLUSIONS.—The special direct spending message shall include—

(A) an analysis of the variance in direct spending over the direct spending targets; and

(B) the President's recommendations for addressing the direct spending overages, if any, in the prior, current, or budget year.

(2) ADDITIONAL MATTERS.—The President's recommendations may consist of any of the following:

(A) Proposed legislative changes to recoup or eliminate the overage for the prior, current, and budget years in the current year, the budget year, and the 4 outyears.

(B) Proposed legislative changes to recoup or eliminate part of the overage for the prior, current, and budget year in the current year, the budget year, and the 4 outyears, accompanied by a finding by the President that, because of economic conditions or for other specified reasons, only some of the overage should be recouped or eliminated by outlay reductions or revenue increases, or both.

(C) A proposal to make no legislative changes to recoup or eliminate any overage, accompanied by a finding by the President that, because of economic conditions or for other specified reasons, no legislative changes are warranted.

(c) PROPOSED SPECIAL DIRECT SPENDING RESOLUTION.—If the President recommends reductions consistent with subsection (b)(2)(A) or (B), the special direct spending message shall include the text of a special direct spending resolution implementing the President's recommendations through reconciliation directives instructing the appropriate committees of the House of Representatives and Senate to determine and recommend changes in laws within their jurisdictions. If the President recommends no reductions pursuant to (b)(2)(C), the special direct spending message shall include the text of a special resolution concurring in the President's recommendation of no legislative action.

SEC. ___05. REQUIRED RESPONSE BY CONGRESS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider a concurrent resolution on the budget unless that conference report fully addresses the entirety of any overage contained in the applicable report of the President under section ___04 through reconciliation directives.

(b) WAIVER AND SUSPENSION.—This section may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn. This section shall be subject to the provisions of section 258 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

(c) APPEALS.—Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to any provision of this section shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by, the appellant and the manager of the bill or joint resolution, as the case may be. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required in the Senate to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this section.

SEC. ___06. RELATIONSHIP TO BALANCED BUDGET AND EMERGENCY DEFICIT CONTROL ACT.

Reductions in outlays or increases in receipts resulting from legislation reported pursuant to section ___05 shall not be taken into account for purposes of any budget enforcement procedures under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

For any fiscal year for which the overage is less than one-half of 1 percent of the direct spending target for that year, the procedures set forth in sections ___04 and ___05 shall not apply.

This title shall apply to direct spending targets for fiscal years 1998 through 2002 and shall expire at the end of fiscal year 2002.

SANTORUM (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 535

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. SANTORUM (for himself, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. COATS, Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. ENZI, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. ALLARD, and Mr. KYL) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the bill, S. 949, supra; as follows:

On page 267, between lines 15 and 16, insert the following:

SEC. —. SENSE OF THE SENATE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) Congress has not provided a genuine tax cut for America's middle-class families since 1981;

(2) President Clinton promised middle-class tax cuts in 1992;

(3) President Clinton raised taxes by $240,000,000,000 in 1993;

(4) President Clinton vetoed middle-class tax cuts in 1995;

(5) the middle-class American worker had to work until May 9 in order to earn enough money to pay all Federal, State, and local taxes in 1997;

(6) the Joint Economic Committee reports that real total Government taxes per household in 1994 totaled $18,600;

(7) more than 70 percent of the tax cuts in both the House of Representatives and the Senate tax relief bills will go to Americans earning less than $75,000 annually;

(8) the Joint Economic Committee estimates that a family of 4 earning $30,000 will receive 53 percent of the tax relief under the reconciliation bill;

(9) the earned income tax credit was already expanded in President Clinton's 1993 tax bill;

(10) the fiscal year 1998 budget resolution does not make the $500-per-child tax credit refundable; and

(11) those who receive the earned income tax credit do not pay Federal income taxes but receive a substantial cash transfer from the Federal Government in the form of refund checks above and beyond income tax rebates.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that America's middle-class taxpayers shoulder the biggest tax burden and that only those who pay Federal income taxes should benefit from the tax cuts contained in the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1997.

SANTORUM (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 536

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. SANTORUM (for himself, Mr. ABRAHAM, and Mr. ENZI) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the bill, S. 949, supra; as follows:

On page 267, between lines 15 and 16, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) the Department of the Treasury relies upon the Family Economic Income broad-based income concept to estimate family incomes and the impact of Federal income tax relief;

(2) the Family Economic Income is constructed by adding to adjusted gross income unreported and underreported income; nontaxable transfer payments such as social security payments and TANF payments; employer-provided fringe benefits; inside build-up on pensions, IRAs, Keoghs, and life insurance; tax-exempt interest; and imputed rent on owner-occupied housing;

(3) neither individual families nor the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) rely on or use Family Economic Income as a calculation of income;

(4) the Treasury Department, using Family Economic Income, estimates that 65.5 percent of the tax relief under the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1997 will go to the top 20 percent of taxpayers;

(5) the Treasury Department, using Family Economic Income, estimates that the top 10 percent of taxpayers would get 42.8 percent of the tax relief under the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1997;

(6) the Joint Committee on Taxation, using conventional income calculations, estimates that 74 percent of the tax relief under the reconciliation bill will actually benefit those families with income under $75,000;

(7) the Joint Committee on Taxation, using conventional income calculations, estimates that 93 percent of the tax relief under the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1997 will actually benefit those families with income under $100,000; and

(8) the Joint Economic Committee, using conventional income calculations, estimates that a family of 4 earning $30,000 will receive 53 percent of the tax relief under the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1997.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that Family Economic Income overstates and unfairly skews family incomes, making those with lower incomes appear to be rich.

Mr. DOMENICI (for himself and Mr. LAUTENBERG) proposed an amendment to the bill. S. 949, supra; as follows:

''(3) ENFORCEMENT OF SOCIAL SECURITY LEVELS IN THE SENATE.—After a concurrent resolution on the budget is agreed to, it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that would cause a decrease in social security surpluses or an increase in social security deficits derived from the levels of social security revenues and social security outlays set forth for the first fiscal year covered by the resolution and for the period including the first fiscal year plus the following 4 fiscal years in such resolution.

''(b) SOCIAL SECURITY LEVELS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For the purposes of subsection (a)(3), social security surpluses equal the excess of social security revenues over social security outlays in a fiscal year or years with such an excess and social security deficits equal the excess of social security outlays over social security revenues in a fiscal year or years with such an excess.

''(2) TAX TREATMENT.—For the purposes of this section, no provision of any legislation involving a change in chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 shall be treated as affecting the amount of social security revenues or outlays unless such provision changes the income tax treatment of social security benefits.

''(c) EXCEPTION IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.—Subsection (a)(1) shall not apply in the House of Representatives to any bill, resolution, or amendment which provides new budget authority or new entitlement authority effective during such fiscal year, or to any conference report on any such bill or resolution, if—

''(1) the enactment of such bill or resolution as reported;

''(2) the adoption and enactment of such amendment; or

''(3) the enactment of such bill or resolution in the form recommended in such conference report; would not cause the appropriate allocation of new discretionary budget authority or new entitlement authority made pursuant to section 302(a) for such fiscal year, for the committee within whose jurisdiction such bill, resolution, or amendment falls, to be exceeded.''.

SEC. 1520. AMENDMENT TO SECTION 312.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 312 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 is amended to read as follows:

''POINTS OF ORDER

''SEC. 312. (a) DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this title and title IV, the levels of new budget authority, budget outlays, spending authority as described in section 401(c)(2), direct spending, new entitlement authority, and revenues for a fiscal year shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives or the Senate, as the case may be.

''(b) DISCRETIONARY SPENDING POINT OF ORDER IN THE SENATE.—

''(1) Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any concurrent resolution on the budget (or amendment, motion, or conference report on such a resolution) that would exceed any of the discretionary spending limits in section 251(c) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

''(2) This subsection shall not apply if a declaration of war by the Congress is in effect or if a joint resolution pursuant to section 258 of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 has been enacted.

''(c) MAXIMUM DEFICIT AMOUNT POINT OF ORDER IN THE SENATE.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any concurrent resolution on the budget for a fiscal year under section 301, or to consider any amendment to that concurrent resolution, or to consider a conference report on that concurrent resolution—

''(1) if the level of total budget outlays for the first fiscal year that is set forth in that concurrent resolution or conference report exceeds the recommended level of Federal revenues set forth for that year by an amount that is greater than the maximum deficit amount, if any, specified in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 for such fiscal year; or

''(2) if the adoption of such amendment would result in a level of total budget outlays for that fiscal year which exceeds the recommended level of Federal revenues for that fiscal year, by an amount that is greater than the maximum deficit amount, if any, specified in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 for such fiscal year.

''(d) TIMING OF POINTS OF ORDER IN THE SENATE.—A point of order under this Act may not be raised against a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report while an amendment or motion, the adoption of which would remedy the violation of this Act, is pending before the Senate.

''(e) POINTS OF ORDER IN THE SENATE AGAINST AMENDMENTS BETWEEN THE HOUSES.—Each provision of this Act that establishes a point of order against an amendment also establishes a point of order in the Senate against an amendment between the Houses. If a point of order under this Act is raised in the Senate against an amendment between the Houses, and the point of order is sustained, the effect shall be the same as if the Senate had disagreed to the amendment.

''(f) EFFECT OF A POINT OF ORDER ON A BILL IN THE SENATE.—In the Senate, if the Chair sustains a point of order under this Act against a bill, the Chair shall then send the bill to the committee of appropriate jurisdiction for further consideration.''.

(5) In paragraph (5), amend subparagraph (D) to read as follows:

''(D) The cost of a modification is the difference in cost that results from the modification of a direct loan or loan guarantee (or direct loan obligation or loan guarantee commitment). This difference in cost is the difference between the currently estimated net present value of the remaining cash flows under the terms of the direct loan or loan guarantee contract assumed in the most recent President's budget submitted to Congress, and the currently estimated net present value of the remaining cash flows under the terms of the contract, as modified. Except for interest rates, the estimates shall be consistent with the economic and technical assumptions underlying the most recent President's budget submitted to Congress.''.

(6) Redesignate paragraph (9) as paragraph (10) and after paragraph (8) add the following new paragraph:

''(9) The term 'modification' means any Government action that alters the estimated cost of an outstanding direct loan (or direct loan obligation) or an outstanding loan guarantee (or loan guarantee commitment) from the estimate based on the cash flows contained in the most recent President's budget submitted to Congress. This includes the sale of loan assets, with or without recourse, and the purchase of guaranteed loans. This also includes any action resulting from new legislation, or from the exercise of administrative discretion under existing law, that directly or indirectly alters the estimated cost of outstanding direct loans (or direct loan obligations) or loan guarantees (or loan guarantee commitments) such as a change in collection procedures. The term 'modification' does not include the routine administrative work-outs of troubled loans or loans in imminent default. Work-outs are actions undertaken to maximize the repayments to the Government under existing direct loans or to minimize claims under existing loan guarantees. The expected effects of such work-outs shall be included in the original estimate of the cash flows. Insofar as the effects on cash flows are more or less than originally estimated, the differences in cash flows shall be included in a reestimate of the cost. The term 'modification' does not include changes in loan or guarantee terms resulting from the exercise by the borrower of an option included in the loan or guarantee contract. The expected effects of such changes in terms shall be included in the original estimate of the cash flow. Insofar as the effects on cash flow are more or less than originally estimated, the differences in cash flow shall be included in a reestimate of the cost; and''.

All such amounts shall be credited to the appropriate financing account. The Bank is authorized to require reimbursement from a Federal agency to cover the administrative expenses of the Bank that are attributable to the direct loans financed for that agency. AMENDMENT NO. 545

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) The current Internal Revenue Code, with its myriad deductions, credits and schedules, and over 12,000 pages of rules and regulations, is long overdue for a complete overhaul;

(2) It is an unacceptable waste of our nation's precious resources when Americans spend an estimated 5.4 billion hours every year compiling information and filling out Internal Revenue Code tax forms, and in addition, spend hundreds of billions of dollars every year in tax code compliance. America's resources could be dedicated to far more productive pursuits; and

(3) The primary goals of any tax reform must be fairness, simplicity, unleashing economic growth and removing the inefficiencies of the current tax code;

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that Congress should proceed expeditiously to consider fundamental tax reform legislation which would replace the current tax code with a fairer, simpler, progrowth and deficit neutral tax.

At the end of page 11, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING REFORM OF THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1986.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate find that—

(1) the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (''tax code'') is unnecessarily complex, having grown from 14 pages at its inception to 3,458 pages by 1995;

(2) this complexity resulted in taxpayers spending about 5,300,000,000 hours and $225,000,000,000 trying to comply with the tax code in 1996;

(3) the current congressional budgetary process is weighted too heavily toward tax increase, as evidenced by the fact that since 1954 there have been 27 major bills enacted that increased Federal income taxes and only 9 bills that decreased Federal income taxes, 3 of which were de minimis decreases;

(4) the tax burden on working families has reach an unsustainable level, as evidenced by the fact that in 1948 the average American family with children paid only 4.3 percent of its income to the Federal Government in direct taxes and today the average family pays about 25 percent;

(5) the tax code unfairly penalizes saving and investment by double taxing these activities while only taxing income used for consumption once, and as a result the United States has one of the lowest savings rates, at 4.7 percent, in the industrialized world;

(6) the tax code stifles economic growth by discouraging work and capital formation through excessively high tax rates;

(7) Congress and the President have found it necessary, on 2 separate occasions, to enact laws to protect taxpayers from the abuses of the Internal Revenue Service and a third bill has been introduced by the 105th Congress; and

(8) the complexity of the tax code has increased the number of Internal Revenue Service employees responsible for administering the tax laws to 110,000 and this costs the taxpayers $9,800,000,000 each year.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 needs broad-based reform; and

(2) the President should submit to Congress a comprehensive proposal to reform the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

KERRY (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 554

''(2) LIMITATION BASED ON ADJUSTED GROSS INCOME.—The dollar amount in subsection (a) shall be reduced (but not below zero) ratably for each $1,000 (or fraction thereof) by which the taxpayer's modified adjusted gross income exceeds $60,000 but does not exceed $75,000. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'modified adjusted gross income' means adjusted gross income increased by any amount excluded from gross income under section 911, 931, or 933.

''(3) LIMITATION BASED ON AMOUNT OF TAX.—The aggregate credit allowed by subsection (a) (determined after paragraph (2)) shall not exceed the sum of—

''(A) the excess (if any) of—

''(i) the taxpayer's regular tax liability for the taxable year reduced by the credits allowable against such tax under this subpart (other than this section), over

''(ii) the taxpayer's tentative minimum tax for such taxable year (determined without regard to the alternative minimum tax foreign tax credit), plus

''(B) the excess (if any) of—

''(i) the sum of—

''(I) the taxpayer's liability for the taxable year under sections 3101 and 3201,

''(II) the amount of tax paid on behalf of such taxpayer for the taxable year under sections 3111 and 3221, plus

''(III) the taxpayer's liability for such year under sections 1401 and 3211, over

''(ii) the credit allowed for the taxable year under section 32.

''(c) QUALIFYING CHILD.—For purposes of this section—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The term 'qualifying child' means any individual if—

''(A) the taxpayer is allowed a deduction under section 151 with respect to such individual for the taxable year,

''(B) such individual has not attained the applicable age as of the close of the calendar year in which the taxable year of the taxpayer begins, and

''(C) such individual bears a relationship to the taxpayer described in section 32(c)(3)(B).

''(2) APPLICABLE AGE.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the applicable age is 13 in calendar year 1997, and increased by 1 year for each of the next 4 succeeding calendar years.

''(3) EXCEPTION FOR CERTAIN NONCITIZENS.—The term 'qualifying child' shall not include any individual who would not be a dependent if the first sentence of section 152(b)(3) were applied without regard to all that follows 'resident of the United States.'

(d) TAXABLE YEAR MUST BE FULL TAXABLE YEAR.—Except in the case of a taxable year closed by reason of the death of the taxpayer, no credit shall be allowable under this section in the case of a taxable year covering a period of less than 12 months.

''(e) RECAPTURE OF CREDIT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—If—

''(A) during any taxable year any amount is withdrawn from a qualified tuition program or an education individual retirement account maintained for the benefit of a beneficiary and such amount is subject to tax under section 529(f) or 530(c)(3), and

''(B) the amount of the credit allowed under this section for the prior taxable year was contingent on a contribution being made to such a program or account for the benefit of such beneficiary, the taxpayer's tax imposed by this chapter for the taxable year shall be increased by the lesser of the amount described in subparagraph (A) or the credit described in subparagraph (B).

''(2) NO CREDITS AGAINST TAX, ETC.—Any increase in tax under this subsection shall not be treated as a tax imposed by this chapter for purposes of determining—

''(A) the amount of any credit under this subpart or subpart B or D of this part, and

''(B) the amount of the minimum tax imposed by section 55.

''(f) OTHER DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section, the terms 'qualified tuition program' and 'education individual retirement account' have the meanings given such terms by section 529 and 530, respectively.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall take effect on October 1, 1997.

Mr. JEFFORDS. Mr. President, tomorrow I will introduce my amendment on child care.

Today, there are more than 12 million children under the age of five—including half of all infants under one year of age—who spend at least part of their day being cared for by someone other than their parents. The past two decades have seen a dramatic rise in the number of women in the paid labor force. More than 60 percent of women with preschool aged children, are employed full- or part-time. For most of these families, child care is a requirement, not an option.

Women now constitute 46 percent of our Nation's labor force. Most women are not working just to achieve a degree of personal growth outside the home, but to meet their family's basic needs. Their employment is not a choice, but an essential part of their family's economic survival.

Similarly, child care that is affordable and convenient is necessary for most women working outside the home. Many of the traditional sources of child care are no longer available—as many of the friends, neighbors, grandparents, and other relatives who used to be available to provide child care are also working. Research has repeatedly demonstrated that for parents who must work, child care services that are dependable and of high quality make it easier to find and keep a job. Good child care helps parents reach and maintain economic self-sufficiency. There is a clear connection between child care and the production of income. Congress acknowledged this when is passed welfare reform last year.

Since 1990, the costs of child care have risen about 6 percent annually. This is almost triple the annual increase in the cost of living. At the same time, there are strong indicators that the quality of child care has significantly decreased during that same period of time. Parents are paying more but getting less.

The costs of child care are almost wholly dependent upon the geographic area, the type of child care, and the age of the child. For example, a family purchasing full-time child care services for a 4-year old in rural New York using a family child care home may pay as little as $60 a week. In contrast, a family with an infant using a child care center in New York City may pay more than $250 a week.

I think that few of us know how much child care costs. The Senate Employee's Child Care Center costs between $150 and $175 a week—$7,800 to $9,100 a year. That puts it in the high-middle range in terms of costs for the Washington, DC area. The younger the child, the higher the costs—and Senate Employee's Child Care Center does not accept children under 18 months old.

For a 3- to 4-year-old, which is the least expensive age group, the national average for center-based child care is $4,600 a year. The average cost for high quality care, such as that provided by the Senate Employee's Child Care Center, is between $8,500 and $9,100 a year.

A family normally spends about 20 percent of its income on housing and 10 percent on food. The costs of child care for a low- or middle-income family can rival the cost of housing and be double the cost of food. Even though most of us recognize the critical part that child care plays in the economic survival of families, we often fail to recognize it as a basic cost which consumes a significant portion of a family's income.

Parents can only purchase child care they can afford. While the supply of child care has increased over the past 10 years, shortages are still the norm for those in rural areas, those with school-aged children, and for lower-income families. Those who do find care that is affordable and convenient are often unsatisfied with the quality of the care their child receives. In fact, one quarter of all parents would change their child care arrangement if they could find and afford something better.

The quality of child care in America is very troubling. A recent nationwide study found that 40 percent of the child care provided to infants in child care centers was potentially injurious. Fifteen-percent of center-based child care providers for all preschoolers are so bad that a child's health and safety are threatened; 70 percent are mediocre—not hurting or helping children; and 15 percent actively promote a child's development. Center-based child care, the object of this study, is the most heavily regulated and frequently monitored type of child care. Children in less regulated settings are predicted to be far worse.

Combining the research on the quality of child care with the breakthroughs on the development of the human brain produces a very disturbing situation. Many children enter child care by 11 weeks of age, are in care for close to 30 hours a week, and often stay in some form of child care until they enter school. During that same period of life, a child's brain is undergoing a series of extraordinary changes.

In the first 3 years of life, the brain either makes the connections it needs for learning or it atrophies, making later efforts at remediation in learning, behavior, and thinking difficult, at best. The experiences and stimulation that a caretaker provide to a child are the foundations upon which all future learning is built. The brain's greatest and most critical growth spurt is between birth and 10 years of age—precisely the time when non-parental child care is most frequently utilized. A Time magazine special report on ''How a Child's Brain Develops'' (February 3, 1997) said it best, ''. . . Good, affordable day care is not a luxury or a fringe benefit for welfare mothers and working parents but essential brain food for the next generation.'' While bad child care can seriously impair a child's development, high-quality child care significantly increases the chances of good developmental outcomes for children.

Think about it. At the most important time in the development of a child's brain, 12 million children are being cared for by people who are paid less than the person who picks up your garbage each week, and are required to have less training and less skills-based testing than the person who cuts your hair. Child care providers play an important role in a child's development, for they help fine-tune the child's capacity to think and process information, social skills, emotional health, and acquisition of language.

Last year, our goal in child care was to streamline Federal assistance by creating a cohesive structure for Federal assistance and to provide sufficient Government funds to subsidize child care for welfare recipients who were transitioning into work. This year our goal must be to promote the healthy development of children in child care. I am worried that the pressure of the need to accommodate the increasing demand for child care will force many into forgoing quality just to increase the number of child care slots available.

This amendment, then, incorporates modifications to five different sections of the Tax Code. Each of the provisions has been included to solve a specific problem in an effort to improve the quality of child care. Taken as a whole, these provisions represent a comprehensive effort to increase the supply while simultaneously creating a demand for high-quality child care, and making it affordable for low- and middle-income families.

To offset the cost of these changes, my amendment reduces, but does not eliminate, the dependent care tax credit for upper-income taxpayers and the amount that an employee can place in a dependent care assistance plan used to reimburse non-accredited or non-credential child care is gradually decreased. In addition, the amendment expands the coordinated enforcement efforts of the Internal Revenue Service and the HHS Office of Child Support Enforcement, which will significantly reduce the amount of fraud related to illegal tax deduction and credit claims by non-custodial parents.

The first provision in the amendment makes several changes in the Child and Dependent Care Tax Credit [CDCTC]. This tax credit is the largest tax-based subsidy for child care. My amendment raises the income level for the receipt of the highest percentage of employment-related child care costs from $10,000 to $20,000. The percentage is decreased at a rate of 1 percent for each additional $2,500 in adjusted gross income and sets a minimum percentage of 10 percent for incomes of $70,000 and above.

This change represents a more equitable distribution of limited resources based on the percentage of income a family must use to meet child care expenses. For families qualifying for the EITC, my amendment makes the child care tax credit refundable, on a quarterly basis. This will enable many low-income working families to move from part-time to full-time employment, by easing the burden of child care costs and having the money available at regular intervals throughout the year.

Finally, the amendment establishes, over a 5-year period, different rates for the tax credit, dependent on whether the child care is provided in an accredited child care facility or by a credentialed professional. This will reward parents who choose high-quality child care and help defray the additional costs of that care.

I am sensitive to the concerns of colleagues who object to reducing the child care tax credit. But before you judge this reduction too harshly, let's put it into perspective. The tax credit remains at or above the current rate of 20 percent for parents with adjusted gross incomes of $45,000 or less, regardless of the type of child care. The median income of families with children nationally is $37,000. While there are wide differences in between States, there are only four States where the median exceeds $45,000 AGI triggering a reduction in the current rate of 20 percent. Most States are significantly below this trigger.

At the end of the 5-year phase in period, the tax credit remains at or above the current 20 percent rate for families with an AGI of $55,000. No States have median incomes of families with children which exceed the $55,000 AGI level for high quality child care which triggers a reduction below current child care tax rate. Families with incomes at or above $70,000 will still receive a tax credit of 10 percent, increased to 12.5 percent if high quality care is used.

In terms of money, a 1 percent decrease in the child care tax credit equals $24 when care for one child is claimed, and $48 for two or more children. Families making $70,000 or more are the hardest hit by my amendment. Yet their maximum financial cost is $240 a year for one child, or $480 a year for two or more children—about half of one percent of their adjusted gross income.

The second area of changes occurs in the Dependent Care Assistance Plan [DCAP]. The amendment increases the amount that an employee can contribute to a DCAP account, if the funds are used to pay for the care of two or more eligible persons. In addition, the amount of DCAP contributions is increased for high-quality care and decreased for care that is provided by an unaccredited child care facility or a person who has not received a professional credential. These differential rates are phased in over a 5-year period in order for child care providers to achieve accreditation or become credentialed in child care.

Current law prohibits DCAP from being used to pay relatives for care. While I support needed controls on the use of DCAP accounts in most cases, my amendment would make a very limited exception to this prohibition. DCAP payments could be made to pay a parent or grandparent to care for a newborn child. The DCAP account could be joined at anytime during a pregnancy. The funds would be available for up to 12 months from the date of deposit into the employee's DCAP account—because babies have a timetable all their own when it comes time to be born.

The last change my amendment makes in DCAP is through the addition of a requirement that Federal employees have the opportunity to contribute to Dependent Care Assistance Plans. Private employees, as well as many State and local governments, have had DCAP available for their employees since 1981. Consistent with the intent of the Congressional Accountability Act, I want to make this child care subsidy available to Federal workers, including legislative branch employees.

Child care is a growing concern to businesses big and small. Employers are coming to the realization that affordable, convenient high-quality child care is a critical element in hiring and retaining skilled employees. Many companies, such as Johnson & Johnson, IBM, and others have been very innovative in providing child care assistance for their employees. Small businesses in particular are finding it difficult to meet the child care needs of their employees, but recognize the importance of that help.

I am defering to my colleague from Wisconsin, Senator KOHL, who has an excellent amendment providing a tax credit to businesses who provide child care services and support for their employees. My amendment included a similar provision, but because Senator KOHL has been working on this aspect of child care for so long, I dropped my provision and urge my colleagues to vote for his amendment as well as this one.

Current law prohibits businesses from receiving a charitable deduction for donations made to public entities, such as schools and child care services. My amendment will extend eligibility for a business charitable deduction to the donation of educational equipment and supplies donated to public schools, public child care providers and public child care support entities, such as resource and referral services. If child care is to improve and meet the developmental needs of our Nation's children, every available resource must be made available. Computers which are discarded because they are too slow or have insufficient hard drive capacity, can be the first step into the computer-age for a small child or the link to professional training for a child care provider.

A critical part of improving the quality of child care is professional development for child care providers. Since the 1970's there has been a decline in child care teacher salaries. In 1990, teachers in child care centers earned an average of $11,500 a year. Assistant teachers, the largest growing segment of child care professionals, were paid 10 to 20 percent less than child care teachers. The 1990 annual income of regulated family child care providers was $10,944 which translates to about $4 an hour. Nonregulated family child care, generally comprised of providers taking care of a smaller number of children, earned an average of $4,275 a year—substantially less than minimum wage. With these wages, it is easy to understand why more child care providers do not participate in professional training or attend college classes to improve their skills. The costs of applying for and receiving certification as a qualified child care professional are minimal, but understandably out of reach for many child care providers.

My amendment will exempt expenses directly related to child care accreditation or becoming credentialed from the 2 percent floor that is applied to miscellaneous itemized deductions. This will at least permit child care providers to receive a full deduction for the expenses associated with improving the child care services which they provide. This incentive for professional growth and the development of new skills is a small but critical part of my overall effort to support high-quality child care.

The last provision in my amendment creates a very limited exception to the executive use rule governing the tax deduction for home office expenses. The amendment will permit the mixed use of home office space for business and personal purposes to allow a person to care for his or her child. In some ways, the need for this exception comes down to fundamental fairness. How many school days, snow days and other times do children accompany their parents into work? I can always tell when the schools are unexpectedly closed, by the increased number of little people I see in Senate offices and eateries. I have been in Senate offices and other workplaces when a crib or playpen is clearly in evidence. Yet, none of us question whether our offices are exclusively for business use. One of the big incentives for telecommuting and home-based business is to allow parents to have more time with their families, yet existing law would keep a new mother from legitimately claiming a home office deduction if she has her child read a book or play in a corner of the room where she is working.

The need for high-quality child care is compelling. Having affordable, convenient child care is tied directly to a family's ability to produce income. Good child care can be an effective way to support the healthy development of children, particularly in the acquisition of social and language skills. For the millions of children who spend much of their pre-school lives being cared for by someone other than their parents, child care provides the foundation upon which all future education will be built—and determines to a large extent whether that foundation will be strong or weak.

As we all know, quality child care costs money. It costs money to parents who bear the biggest burden for the cost of child care. It costs businesses both through the direct assistance that they provide to employees to help with the costs of child care, and through their ability to hire and retain a skilled work force. It costs Government through existing tax provisions, direct spending, and discretionary spending targeted at child care. But the costs of not making this investment are even higher. Those costs can be measured in the cost of remedial education, the increase of an unskilled labor force, the increase in prison populations, and most importantly, the blunted potential of millions of children.

I urge my colleagues to support my amendment to the budget reconciliation act.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that additional material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AN AMENDMENT TO BE PROPOSED BY SENATOR JEFFORDS ON THE BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1997 TO IMPROVE THE QUALITY OF CHILD CARE

Changes to the Tax Code to encourage improvements in child care services and options for meeting employment-related child care needs—multiple provisions.

Proposed Amendment: To amend the Internal Revenue Code to encourage the demand for and supply of high quality child care by:

(1) Making the following changes in the Dependent Care Tax Credit—

(a) Increasing the percentage of child care expenses to 30 percent for families with incomes at or below $20,000 AGI; decreased at the rate of 1 percent for every $2,500 AGI over $20,000 to a minimum of 10 percent for AGI over $70,000

(b) Phasing in a differential percentage (over 5 years) if the child care is provided in an accredited center or by a credentialed professional; At the end of the phase in period, there is a 25 percent differential in the percentage of the tax credit between high-quality child care and other child care

(c) Making the Dependent Care Tax Credit refundable beginning in 2002, for taxpayers eligible for the EITC, including the differential percentage (see b above) for high quality child care.

(2) Making the following changes in the Dependent Care Assistance Program—

(a) The amount of money that can be placed in a Dependent Care Assistance Program by an employee is increased for accredited or credentialed child care, increased if there is more than one qualified dependent, and decreased if child care is provided in non-accredited child care or with a non-credentialed child care professional—phased in over 5 years

(b) An exception in the calendar year spending requirement and prohibition against its use to pay relatives for providing care is made to make it possible for a parent or grandparent to provide care for a newborn child

(c) Federal employees are provided the opportunity of enrolling in a dependent care assistance plan

(3) Extending the eligibility for businesses to take a qualified charitable deduction for the donation of educational equipment and material to public schools and accredited or credentialed non-profit child care providers and child care support entities.

(4) Exempting the expenses related to achieving and maintaining child care accreditation and credentialing from the 2 percent floor applicable to miscellaneous itemized deductions.

(5) Excepting the mixed use of home office space for business and personal purposes to allow for the care of a dependent from the exclusive use rule governing home office deductions.

Reasons for Change: The increase in the number or employed women with young children, combined with recent reforms in the welfare system, has placed tremendous pressures on states and communities to dramatically expand the amount of available child care. Studies on the relationship between quality child care and job retention, employment absenteeism, and job acquisition clearly identifies that the quality and safety of child care is as important as the existence of child care services. In addition, the recent research on the development of the human brain underscores how child care affects the development of the tomorrow's workers and citizens. The Committee for Economic Development recently issued a report which identified changes in federal tax policies, training of child care workers, incentives for certification, educational resources, and increased business involvement as critical to efforts to improve the quality of child care. The tax code changes included in this amendment address each of these issues.

Summary of each provision:

I. CHANGES TO THE DEPENDENT CARE TAX CREDIT

A. Percent of the current $2,400 work related child care expenses ($4,800 for 2 or more dependents):

Initial percentage reduced by 1 percent for each $2,500 by which the taxpayer's AGI exceeds $20,000 but does not exceed $70,000—rate does not reduce below 12.5 percent for accredited/credentialed child care, 10 percent for non-accredited/non-credentialed child care.

A 25 percent rate differential for accredited or credentialed child care (as defined in the bill) is phased in over 5 years.

For child care provided in non-accredited facilities or by non-credentialed providers, the initial percentage is 30 percent and the phase out percentage is 10 percent, regardless of the year.

Initial and phase out percentage for accredited/credentialied child care:

Taxable year beginning in—	Initial percent	Phaseout percent
1998	31.5	12.5
2002	37.5	12.5

B: Credit made refundable for Low Income Tax Payers:

Applicable taxpayers are those for whom credit under section 32 of the tax code (EITC) is allowable for the taxable year.

Coordinated with advance payments and minimum tax rules, including eligibility certification and advance payment table.

Applies to taxable years beginning December 31, 2001.

II. EXPANSION OF DEPENDENT CARE ASSISTANCE PROGRAM

A. Change in Dollar Limitation:

Applies to child care only—not elder or other dependent care.

Change in rates for child in accredited/credentialed child care:

Taxable years beginning in:	For 1 qualifying child	2 or more qualifying child
1998	$5,200	$6,700
1999	5,400	6,900
2000	5,600	7,100
2001	5,800	7,300
2002 and thereafter	6,000	7,500

Change in rates for child NOT in accredited/credentialed child care:

Taxable years beginning in—	For 1 qualifying child	2 or more qualifying child
1998	$4,800	$6,300
1999	4,600	6,100
2000	4,400	5,900
2001	4,200	5,700
2002 and thereafter	4,000	5,500

B. Changes in eligibility for Dependent Care Assistance Program:

Exception in calendar year spending requirement and prohibition against using Dependent Care Assistance Program to pay relative providing care.

During pregnancy, parent may elect to join the employer's Dependent Care Assistance Program at any time during pregnancy.

If parent signs up during a pregnancy, each deposit into the individual's Dependent Care Assistance Account may be available for use for a 12 month period.

If parent signs up during a pregnancy, the funds may be used to reimburse a parent or spouse to remain at home with the newborn child as an alternative to placing the child in child care in order to return to work.

Federal employees must be provided with the opportunity to enroll in a Dependent Care Assistance Program.

III. CHARITABLE DEDUCTION FOR DONATING EDUCATIONAL EQUIPMENT & MATERIALS

Extending eligibility for qualified charitable deduction for business donation of educational equipment and materials to public schools, accredited or credentialed non-profit child care providers, and public or non-profit child care support entities.

IV. TAX DEDUCTION FOR SPECIFIC EDUCATIONAL EXPENSES FOR INDIVIDUAL CHILD CARE PROVIDERS

Exemption from the 2% floor on applicable to miscellaneous itemized deductions is provided for educational expenses directly related to achieving or maintaining child care accreditation or professional child care credentials for individuals deriving at least 60% of their taxable income through the provision of child care services.

V. CHANGE IN HOME OFFICE DEDUCTION

Limited exception to the exclusive use rule permitting mixed use of space for business and personal purposes in the case of taxpayers who conduct home-based business while caring for dependents.

Revenue Estimate: 4.11 Billion over 10 years.

Revenue Offset: To offset these increases, the dependent care tax credit is reduced (not eliminated) for upper-income taxpayers and the amount that an employee can place in a dependent care assistance plan used to reimburse non-accredited or non-credential child care is decreased. In addition, the amendment expands the coordinated enforcement efforts of the Internal Revenue Service and the HHS Office of Child Support Enforcement, which will significantly reduce the amount of fraud related to illegal tax deduction and credit claims by non-custodial parents.

For the Purpose of this Amendment:

The terms credential and accreditation are used to refer to formal credentialing and accreditation processes by a private non-profit or public entity that is state recognized (minimum requirements: age-appropriate health and safety standards, age-appropriate developmental and educational activities as an integral part of the program, outside monitoring of the program/individual, accreditation/credentialing instruments based on peer-validated research, programs/facilities meet any applicable state and local licensing requirements, and on-going staff development-training which includes related skills testing). There are several organizations and a few states that currently provide accreditation and/or credentialing for early childhood development programs, child care and child care providers.

''(VI) the payment of interest.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that additional material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the Record, as follows:

DASCHLE AMENDMENT TO S. 949 TO EXPAND USES OF INTERCITY PASSENGER RAIL FUND FOR NON-AMTRAK STATES

LIMITATIONS PROPOSED BY S. 949

The Finance Committee bill creates an Intercity Passenger Rail Fund financed by 0.5 cent per gallon of the federal fuel excise taxes primarily to finance Amtrak. The bill also sets aside 1% of annual program funds per year for each state with no Amtrak service. The six states currently lacking Amtrak service are South Dakota, Wyoming, Oklahoma, Maine, Alaska and Hawaii. However, the bill limits the use of those funds by non-Amtrak States to: (1) intercity passenger rail or bus service capital improvements and maintenance, or (2) The purchase of intercity passenger rail services from the National Railroad Passenger Corporation.

PROBLEMS POSED TO NON-AMTRAK STATES

South Dakota and some of the other non-Amtrak states have no passenger rail service and only limited intercity bus service. This type of funding would not significantly benefit these states, nor could they wisely invest funds in such service.

AMENDMENT ALLOWS NON-AMTRAK STATES TO USE FUNDS PRODUCTIVELY

The amendment would expand the use of funding provided to non-Amtrak states under this provision to include the expenditure of such funds for:

1. Rural and public transportation projects that are eligible for funding under Sections 5309 (discretionary transit-urban areas), 5310 (transit capital for the elderly and handicapped), and 5311 (rural transit capital and operations) of Title 49 USC. Rural public transportation (a portion of which is intercity in nature in transporting elderly and disabled from small towns to larger cities for medical care, shopping and other purposes, as well as providing local nutritional needs and mobility) is extremely important and needed in South Dakota in order to deal with the vast aging population in a sparsely populated area. During FY 1996 in the State, rural public transportation operators provided 1,114,672 rides and traveled 2,102,414 miles transporting the elderly and disabled of which over 50% of the rides were for medical, employment and nutritional needs. However, only about two-thirds of the State currently has access to limited Public Transportation, and over half of the existing transit vehicles in the providers' fleets are older than 7 years or have over 1000,000 miles. Therefore this funding would address significant public transit needs.

2. Rail/highway crossing safety projects that are eligible for funding under Section 130 of Title 23, USC. Only 219 out of 2025 of South Dakota's rail/highway crossings are signalized, and there is a tremendous unmet need to improve the safety of rail/highway crossings in the state.

3. Capital expenditures related to rail operations for Class II and Class III railroads within the state. Only railroads that are primarily regional carriers-not large railroads would be eligible for assistance. This is extremely important for states like South Dakota which depends on regional carriers and has made a major investment on its own and currently owns approximately 50% of the rail lines operating in the state in order to provide a core rail transportation system to benefit the state's agricultural economy.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

DAVID G. UNGER, ASSOCIATE CHIEF OF THE USDA FOREST SERVICE

• Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I would like to take a few minutes to recognize a distinguished civil servant and new resident of the State of Maine.

My colleagues know the value of having experienced, wise, and seasoned legislators in our midst to work through many of the difficult and complex issues we face on a daily basis. We can all appreciate the tremendous loss, therefore, at the Department of Agriculture when Associate Chief Dave Unger retires from his post at the Forest Service at the end of this month.

Mr. Unger has 40 years of experience working with natural resource issues in the public arena. Most recently he has been second in command at the Forest Service, engaged in the management of the National Forest System, the Forest Service research priorities, State and private forestry programs, international forestry issues, and administrative responsibilities. As one of the most heavily forested States in the country, Maine has benefitted from his leadership through technical assistance to landowners, advanced wood products manufacturing technology from the research program, and recreational opportunities in our own corner of the White Mountain National Forest.

In addition to serving as Associate Chief for the Forest Service, Mr. Unger was Deputy Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources and Environment, Associate Chief for the Soil Conservation Service, executive vice president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, Director of the Pennsylvania State Soil and Water Commission, among other leadership posts in the natural resources and conservation arena.

Recently, Mr. Unger was honored by the President of the United States with a Distinguished Executive Rank Award. In 1991, President Bush awarded him the Presidential Meritorious Executive Rank Award. He is a fellow of the Soil and Water Conservation Society and has been recognized by many other organizations for his contributions over a long and productive career helping farmers, conserving forests and protecting wildlife.

I am also pleased to say that Mr. Unger has chosen one of the most beautiful places in the world to retire with his wife, Carolyn. He will become a permanent resident of Maine where I am sure our communities, farmers, foresters, and others will continue to reap the benefits of his illustrious career. I want to welcome the Ungers Downeast, congratulate Mr. Unger on a full and productive career, and wish them both the best in their retirement in Maine.•

TRIBUTE TO MRS. MERRILL CATT AND THE RICE PADDY KIDS

• Mr. BUMPERS. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Mrs. Merrill Catt, a speech therapist in the Weiner, AR, public school system and eight of her students who participated in a year-long project entitled ''The Rice Paddy Kids''. This project was designed to teach economics and provide hands-on learning experience to the students who ranged from third to eighth grade and were receiving speech/language therapy and resource services.

Because the students live in the heart of the rice-producing region of Arkansas, which is the leading rice-producing State in the United States, the project focused on the production and marketing of rice. In the initial phase of the project the students gathered information and knowledge about rice and its economic impact locally and nationally. The second phase of the project consisted of hands-on learning opportunities as the students planned, advertised, and produced products containing rice and marketed their products to the student body and the community. In addition to the applications of economic concepts and basic skills contained in each phase, curriculum activities were incorporated to improve the students' individual language deficiencies. The students concluded the project by planning and implementing a rice banquet for their parents, business supporters, teachers, school administration and community members.

What I've just summarized in several paragraphs takes many long hours of hard work and dedication to plan, organize, and implement. This is the second economic project Mrs. Catt has successfully undertaken to expand the knowledge and capabilities of her speech and language students, and I commend her for her initiative and willingness to go the extra mile for the benefit of her students and school. In addition to teaching these students about rice, she has shown them what can be accomplished when the important principles of responsibility, cooperation, perseverance, and innovation are utilized. I also congratulate the eight ''Rice Paddy Kids'' for a job well done. Not only are these students the benefactors of the project but they are an integral part of its success. While educating and helping themselves, they also educated and benefited their school and community.

There are many school systems in Arkansas that are larger in terms of student population and funding than the Weiner school system. However, the accomplishments of Mrs. Catt and ''The Rice Paddy Kids'' are a perfect example of how bigger is not always better. They have demonstrated a principle in which I firmly believe: being from a small town is no excuse not to think big and achieve great things.•

TRIBUTE TO FLIP KLEFFNER

• Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, today I would like to take a few moments to pay tribute to Flip Kleffner who, after a long and distinguished career as University of Idaho alumni director, will be retiring June 30.

I take a personal interest in his retirement because, as a fellow University of Idaho graduate, I've been the beneficiary of all his work.

Flip has served as alumni director for the past 15 years and has been involved with the University of Idaho most of his life. He is a former student body president and was a standout athlete who excelled at basketball, baseball, and football. In fact, he still holds the school record for the longest punt at 82 yards.

Flip has always made everything he does a very personal effort. In that regard, he's a tremendous example of how one person really can make a difference. He has quietly given countless hours of volunteer service to his community—in everything from youth sports to education—without expecting anything in return.

In addition, his efforts to continually improve the quality of education in Idaho have helped the State keep its best and brightest at home.

Flip has a wonderful sense of humor and is one of the most personable, pleasant people I have ever had the privilege of knowing. He will be greatly missed at the university, but I'm confident he'll remain an active force for good on campus—even in retirement.

He has had a remarkable career and I wish him all the best now as he enters this new chapter in his life.•

TRIBUTE TO DR. DAN DOYLE

• Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, improvements in health care provide America with a sense of security. Knowing there are advancements in the medical field every day gives people hope that someday we will find cures for cancer, AIDS, leukemia, and other serious diseases. Although these advancements are notable, we cannot forget the small town doctors who are doing their part to help our fellow citizens stay healthy and fight medical problems.

That is why I take this opportunity to express admiration and appreciation for an outstanding West Virginia physician. Dr. Daniel B. Doyle has recently received the 1997 National Rural Health Association's Practitioner of the Year Award.

For 20 years, Dr. Doyle has served the health care needs of southern, rural West Virginia. Since 1977, he has directed the New River Family Health Center in Scarbro, WV. As its director, Dr. Doyle developed all the clinical systems, recruited staff, and helped guide the center's institutional policy, budget, and strategic planning. As a result of his tremendous efforts, the center now serves a county of over 50,000 people.

Today Dr. Doyle is a full-time family physician for the New River Family Health Center. Along with serving as the Director of Medical Education for the New River Health Association, he is also the director of the Fayette, Raleigh, and Nicholas rural health initiative consortium. As a small part of his endeavors with the New River Health Association, Dr. Doyle also works with the Hidden Valley Health Care Center, a 60-bed nursing home.

One of Dr. Doyle's colleagues, Jacquelynn A. Copenhaver, coordinator of the Rivers and Bridges Rural Health Education Partnerships Consortium, said, ''Doyle is involved in his community through his willingness to serve his patients whenever the need arises. He does not hesitate to make home visits, and by making those home visits, he meets the needs of the families of his patients as well as the needs of the patients themselves.''

I am extremely proud that one of this country's finest doctors is dedicated to serving the people of West Virginia. Knowing that the health of West Virginians is in such capable hands, I have added confidence that the future health of our State and Nation will get better and better.●

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS OF PATRICIA FERRONE

● Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I was given the opportunity recently to read a speech prepared by my Executive Assistant, Patricia Ferrone, on the occasion of her graduation from the University of Maryland University College. I think this speech embodies many of the ideals we often talk about here on the floor of the United States Senate, and I commend all of our colleagues to take a moment and read her very thoughtful and insightful perspectives on education today. I ask it be printed in the RECORD.

The speech follows:

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS, UNIVERSITY OF MARYLAND CLASS OF 1997

My name is Patricia Ferrone, and two years ago I enrolled in the Open Learning program at the University of Maryland University College. Today, I am thrilled to be a member of the University of Maryland's class of 1997.

Twenty years ago, I adhered to a strict interpretation of Mark Twain's adage that you should never let schooling interfere with your education. After all, how in the world was I to get on with my life if all I did was go to school? How could I find a good job, make a living, and gain experience if all I did was sit in a classroom?

What I didn't realize then was that education is not designed to limit our experience, but to broaden our perspective. I didn't realize that education is a rite of passage from darkness to light, from ignorance to analysis, from having a narrow vision to acquiring a sweeping view of the immense, rich, and colorful world around us, and from living in one moment in space and time to understanding ourselves and our place in history and in the universe.

Twenty years ago, I didn't realize that education is much more than day to day experiences in a limited world. But today, I know that education is the difference between being and becoming; it is discovering that the world I live in is not the only world that exists. Today I know that education is timeless, and I've learned that education is a rite of passage to a true understanding of society, the world, and ultimately of ourselves.

The education we've been lucky enough to receive here at the University of Maryland, has not been about sitting in a classroom and learning to parrot mathematical functions or names and dates, or other people's ideas. It is more fundamental. Here, we have been taught how to think for ourselves and how to look into ourselves and our history and learn the reference points of civilization so that we fully comprehend and appreciate the times in which we live.

Therefore, it is important for all of us to understand that the education we have acquired here is not some kind of job training program. Because if we think it is, if we treat it like it is, then we will have failed, for we will have trapped ourselves in our time, never understanding that civilization is a continuing journey, and that there is a precedence for our failures and our success, and we must learn what they are.

Our society and our personal lives will always contain areas of uncertainty and confusion; we will always be confronted by more questions than answers. Education alone will never be a panacea for curing society's ills or for defeating our own personal challenges. But I am convinced that obtaining an education is a moral imperative for improving the quality of our own individual lives and, ultimately, improving the quality of life around us. Today I am certain that education is the key to the treasures of the universe, and it is also the key that unlocks the riches that lie inside each of us.

Over the past several years, we have all worked hard to earn our degrees. During the process, we were confronted by the anxieties of new possibilities, but our commitment to our goal inspired us to meet the challenge. We all refused to believe that we had limitations. So our graduation today is a personal rite of passage that we should all be proud of and should celebrate. But, my hope for all of us is that the passion that drove our commitment does not end here.

I can stand before you now and say with certainty that Mark Twain and I were wrong. It is through schooling that we learn the broader view of where we have been, and therefore understand where we are, so that we can logically think about where we want to go. I know the education I have received here has been my compass. It has set me on course and given me direction.

I am eternally grateful to all my instructors and to the University of Maryland University College for making this experience one of the richest and most profound learning experiences of my life. Now I understand that education is the catalyst that turns knowledge and experience into wisdom—and gaining wisdom is more than a rite of passage, it is a lifetime process.●

COMMENTS BY SENATOR SNOWE AT WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE STATUE REDEDICATION

● Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I would like to share with my colleagues a speech I gave today at the rededication ceremony for the Suffrage Statue. I ask that my speech be printed in the RECORD.

The speech follows:

Thank you, Lynn, for that kind introduction. It is a pleasure and honor to be here on a day that recognizes the importance of the role of women in our nation. Speaker Gingrich, you honor us with your presence and the women of America appreciate your efforts and support in returning this statue to its rightful place. And I would also like to commend Karen Staser and Joan Meecham, co-chairs of the Women's Suffrage Statute Campaign—what a wonderful day this must be to see your hard work come to fruition in such a splendid fashion.

And make no mistake: this effort has meant a great deal of hard work, and the colleagues I join today deserve special recognition for their tireless crusade to ensure that this statue is part of these hallowed halls. The outstanding attendance at this ceremony here in the Rotunda speaks to the symbolic importance of this re-dedication.

As you know, for years this statue was relegated to the crypt beneath our feet. In fact, a fitting title for the story of the women's suffrage statue could be ''Tales from the Crypt''. While Lady Liberty has stood proudly atop the dome of the United States Capitol, the ladies who fought to make that liberty real for women have languished in its basement.

In 1995 when a number of us sought the relocation of the statue to its originally intended spot—the Rotunda—we thought that it was a little thing to ask. We never could have imagined that this request, which on its merits seemed so straightforward, would become so problematic. The bottom line is, the debate should not have been about the weight of the statue, but the weight of an argument . . . and the worth of a just cause. When Susan B. Anthony said, ''What is this little thing we are asking for? It seems so little, yet it is everything'' she was talking about a woman's right to vote—but she could have been speaking about the moving of her own statue.

The difficult and circuitous journey these ladies have had from Crypt to Rotunda is in many ways emblematic of women's struggles for justice and equality throughout our history. For too long, women in this country had to endure the myth of what—or where—a ''woman's place'' should be. According to the out-of-date stereotype, a woman's place used to be only in the parlor, the kitchen, and, I suppose, the crypt. Since then, a lot has changed. Today, a woman's place is in the House, the Senate, and yes, in the Rotunda.

But it was not always this way. It took 73 long years beginning at the Seneca Falls Convention in 1848—spanning two centuries, eighteen Presidencies, and three wars—for women to get the right to vote. That's what it took before women won the right to shape their destinies through full participation in this republic.

Well, it's hard to believe that it has taken them 76 more years—and fourteen more Presidencies—to earn a place of dignity for these three women who fought valiantly for that right . . . three women who changed America—Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, and Lucretia Mott.

But the day has finally arrived and I am extremely pleased to help celebrate their long-overdue ''change of address'', one that is fitting for the accomplishments they bestowed on a grateful nation. There is no question about the symbolic importance of their new home. The Rotunda is the epicenter, if you will, of our American democracy. The Rotunda is ''the symbolic and physical heart of the United States Capitol'', according to the Architect of the Capitol.

What that means is simply this: what adorns the Rotunda matters. And having this statue here will matter to the throngs of Americans who come to Washington to be inspired by its symbolism. It will matter to the young girls who tours The Capitol and ask of the significance of these heroines. And it matters that visitors from the furthest flung reaches of the globe leave with no doubt about the importance we place on the participation of women in the greatest democracy that this world has ever seen.

The Rotunda's gilded halls will now not only reverberate with the images of our forefathers, but with our foremothers as well. Granted, the statues and monuments that have inhabited the Rotunda are of great men whose words and actions bequeathed a nation and people who today stand alone at the summit of civilization.

But we also know that women have played their roles in reaching the summit, as did these three women—Susan B. Anthony, Lucretia Mott, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton—in dedicating their lives to getting women into voting booths and out of the shadows of civic life. How could we do no less than to fight to bring their memory out of the shadows of the Crypt? After all, if we are to celebrate all that women have accomplished in America, we must celebrate those who gave life to our dreams. If we are to appreciate all that we have, we must appreciate those who fought for our opportunity to have it. And if we are to exercise our rights with strength and wisdom, we must understand that they came to us not by entitlement but by struggle.

As we bring the likenesses of these women into the light of day, so too do we take a step toward bringing history into the light of truth. Because for too long, women were the forgotten lines in the narrative of humankind. As these great ladies finally receive the recognition they have earned, let their spirit inspire us to honor and study other heroic women in history who also deserve recognition—like Sojourner Truth, who spoke so eloquently for African-American women. Indeed, it is my sincere hope that Sojourner Truth will soon join these ladies in the Rotunda where a woman of her courage and stature belongs.

Truth and her remarkable story also highlights the importance of the effort that has begun to create a National Women's History Museum. When you consider that we have memorialized Archie Bunker's chair and Norm's bar stool in a museum in the Nation's Capital—and I think that's fine—it's not unreasonable to think that there should be a place in Washington to memorialize all that women have contributed to America.

That's why I spearheaded a letter last month to President Clinton, signed by 20 of my Senate colleagues, urging him to establish a Task Force responsible for developing such a museum. This museum will ensure that women's accomplishments are never again relegated to the cellar of the annals of history.

So let us celebrate today and honor these three great American women. They had courage. They had tenacity. They had strength. And they've certainly had patience.

It's been 76 years since our country began to fulfill Susan B. Anthony's vision of ''Men, their rights and nothing more; women, their rights and nothing less''. It was the first dramatic step toward the realization that a country founded on the vestment of power in the people would not survive if over half those people were silenced. Let the story these women have to tell be silenced no longer. Let everyone who passes through this grandest of buildings forever hear their voices, and be inspired by lives led in pursuit of justice.

MEMORIAL TO KRISTY DANIELLE VAUGHN

• Mr. ALLARD. Mr President, Kristy Danielle Vaughn, daughter of Gary and Kelli Vaughn, of Joes, Co, was a promising young student about to report for duty this month at the United States Military Academy at West Point. She had been nominated for an appointment there by former U.S. Senator Hank Brown and myself when I served in the U.S. House of Representatives.

She was a leader in her high school government, 4–H Club, sports, and school organizations, and received numerous awards in all areas. With all these responsibilities, she also gave much of her time to the duties of her family's farm. This bright young woman was suddenly killed in an auto accident recently as she was on her way to the All State Basketball finals in Greeley, CO.

Kristy very actively contributed her time and talents to her school and her community. She will be greatly missed in Joes, and her opportunities and contributions at West Point will never be realized. •

TRIBUTE TO THE COMMUNITY OF MATTAWA, WA

• Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, last weekend, I had the opportunity to spend time along the banks of the Columbia River in the town of Mattawa, WA. I held a field hearing there to explore various proposals to preserve a stretch of the Columbia River's pristine beauty, and to ensure that one of our State's great natural assets remains protected.

The community of Mattawa opened its doors to me, to my staff, and to all of those who testified at and attended the public hearing, which attracted nearly 1,000 people. I want to thank the people of the community who so generously welcomed us, and worked so diligently to ensure that our hearing was a success. Without their attention to detail and enthusiasm, such civil discourse in so comfortable a setting would not have been possible. We could not have asked for finer hosts.

Our public hearing was held at the Saddle Mountain Intermediate School, in Mattawa. I would especially like to thank Dr. Bill Miller, superintendent of the Wahluke School District for all of his efforts on our behalf. Also, I would like to thank all of those in law enforcement, the school staff, and the volunteers who made our hearing such a success:

Mattawa Mayor Judy Essor; Ms. Luz Juarez-Stump, Saddle Mountain Intermediate School principal; Ms. Karen Hilliker, Saddle Mountain Intermediate School secretary; Mr. Mike Holland, Middle School principal; Mary Jane Holland, Wahluke School District staff; Mr. Steven Buckingham, teacher and advisor for the class of 1998; Ms. Lark Moore, Ms. Polly Weeks and Ms. Marlene Bird, staff for the Wahluke School District; Students from the Wahluke High School class of 1998, who provided us with wonderful refreshments; Andrea Eckenbuerg, chairwoman of the parent volunteers; Mr. Scott Egan, technical director for the school; Mr. Tim Schrag, maintenance supervisor; Chief of Policy Randy Blackburn and Chief Criminal Deputy Bryan Pratt who coordinated security for us.

These individuals made our visit comfortable and enjoyable, and I hope some day soon to be able to return to this beautiful, friendly part of our State.

Thank you all.•

TRIBUTE TO DR. JOHN MATHER

• Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to rise today to recognize Dr. John Mather, a senior astrophysicist from Hyattsville, MD, who works at the nearby Goddard Space Flight Center [GSFC] in Greenbelt, MD. Dr. Mather has risen to the top of his field and was recently elected to the National Academy of Sciences for his distinguished and continued groundbreaking achievements in the area of original research.

As a senior Astrophysicist at Goddard, Dr. Mather serves as a Study Scientist for the Next Generation Space Telescope, which will be a successor to the Hubbel Space Telescope. He also serves as chair of the Anomaly Review Board for the HST NICMOS Instrumental as PI for the ARCADE/DIMES mission studies, as PI for a Long Term Astrophysics grant for the study of the anisotropy of the cosmic IR background, as well as other projects that will advance science well into the next century.

Since joining NASA in 1974, Dr. Mather has received a number of commendations and awards for his cutting edge work in the demanding field of astrophysics. Among his accomplishments are the Group Achievement Award from GSFC, the Exception Achievement Award, the John C. Lindsay Memorial Award, the Group Achievement Award, the Rotary National Space Achievement Award, the National Air and Space Museum Trophy, the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics Space Science Award, an Honorary Doctor of Science Degree from Swarthmore College, and the Rumford Prize from the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

In recent years, Dr. Mather has continued to publish on the topic of the COBE FIRAS Spectrum, the Far Infrared Absolute Spectrophotometer on the Cosmic Background Explorer and other topics, always maintaining his grasp of current scientific discoveries.

A native of New Jersey, Dr. Mather grew up on the Rutgers University Dairy Research Station where his father worked as a geneticist. He went on to graduate from Swarthmore College with highest honors in Physics. He received his doctorate in Physics in 1974 from the University of California at Berkeley. We in Maryland are certainly delighted that he has since decided to become a member of the Hyattsville community and a prominent member of the NASA presence in the state.

Mr. President, Dr. Mather's election to the National Academy of Sciences is a tremendous milestone in this public servant's already magnificent career. As Dr. Mather continues to be a rising star in the astrophysics community it is truly an honor to recognize this fine Marylander for his accomplishments and I wish him continued success in future endeavors.●

BALANCED BUDGET RECONCILIATION ACT OF 1997

● Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I wish to explain my vote against waiving the Budget Act on the point of order raised by Senator ROCKEFELLER yesterday concerning the provisions in S. 947 on balance billing in the Medicare Program.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 includes a new Medicare Choice Program, allowing Medicare beneficiaries for the first time to choose from a wide range of options for receiving their Medicare coverage, including traditional fee-for-service plans, private fee-for-service plans, provider sponsored organizations, medical savings accounts, health maintenance organizations, and preferred provider organizations.

Within the context of Medicare Choice, there is an issue as to whether current law Medicare balance billing requirements should apply across the board. Under the Medicare Program, balance billing refers to the arrangement in which the Federal Government pays doctors at a given rate for treating a patient and doctors can charge up to a specific percentage above that amount.

This legislation exempts from balance billing requirements the new private fee-for-service plans and medical savings accounts. If the Rockefeller point of order were sustained and the exemptions eliminated, doctors would be less likely to participate in the Medicare Choice Program's fee-for-service or medical savings account options because balance billing would cap their charges. As a result, seniors would have fewer options for medical care under this new program. I would note that under this legislation, no senior citizen would be required to choose any specific option, and each person can analyze all of the options to determine which best suits his or her individual health care needs. Further, balance billing will still remain in effect for the other options under Medicare Choice. Accordingly, in order to maximize choices for Medicare beneficiaries, I supported the motion to waive the Budget Act to overcome the Rockefeller point of order.●

SUPREME COURT STRIKES DOWN THE COMMUNICATION DECENCY ACT

● Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise to applaud today's U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down the Communications Decency Act as an unconstitutional restriction of free speech on the Internet, affirming the 1996 lower court decision.

In striking down the provisions of the CDA, which effectively censors the speech of adults on the Internet, the Court stated ''We agree with the District Court's conclusion that the CDA places an unacceptably heavy burden on protected speech.'' The Court concluded that the CDA ''threatens to torch a large segment of the Internet community.''

Mr. President, this decision is a victory not only for Internet users, it is a victory for all Americans who hold the first amendment right to free speech among their most cherished rights.

The Senator from Vermont [Senator LEAHY] and I spoke in opposition to the CDA when it was first brought to the Senate floor in 1995 during consideration of the Telecommunications Act. The high court decision pointed out the many flaws of the CDA that the Senator from Vermont and I raised before the legislation was approved. Among other concerns, we pointed out that indecency restrictions which have been upheld when applied to other media, were unconstitutional when applied to the Internet due to its unique nature. We urged our colleagues to study the problem and the potential solutions more carefully before they rushed headlong to pass what we knew to be unconstitutional legislation. Ultimately, the CDA passed the Senate in June 1995 with only 2 hours of debate and no Congressional hearings. The lack of congressional consideration of the CDA's problems was among the reasons cited by the Court in its finding that the act violated the first amendment. In failing to carefully examine the problem, the Congress merely tied the CDA up in Court for over a year while getting no closer to its goal of protecting children on the Internet.

Both the Supreme Court, and the lower court before it, conducted an exhaustive review of the nature of the Internet and of the technologies that exist to protect children and concluded that the CDA was an unconstitutional restriction on the free speech of adults that was not narrowly tailored to the goal of protecting kids on the Net.

Specifically, Mr. President, the Supreme Court found that:

Other laws restricting speech that have been upheld by the Supreme Court are substantially different from the CDA. Fundamentally, the Court determined that unlike other media that have been subject to some speech restrictions, the Internet receives full first amendment protection. Additionally, the Court pointed out that restrictions previously upheld by the High Court have been time, place and manner restrictions, rather than ''content-based blanket restriction on speech.'' Those differences bring into question the constitutionality of the CDA rather than confirming it.

The characteristics of other media that have some speech restrictions, such as the scarcity of broadcast spectrum and the invasive nature of broadcast media, do not apply to the Internet.

The combination of criminal penalties for violations and the vague nature of the ''indecency'' prohibition will chill speech on the Internet because speakers will not know which speech is prohibited and which is acceptable.

The breadth of the indecency standard in the CDA is unprecedented.

The CDA attempts to protect children by suppressing constitutionally protected speech of adults. This burden of speech is constitutionally unacceptable because less restrictive means of achieving the Government's goal are available.

Mr. President, the Supreme Court correctly struck down the Communications Decency Act. While this decision precludes enforcement of the act, Congress should act quickly to repeal the CDA. It is time to conduct a thorough and thoughtful review of constitutional methods to protect children on the Internet from those who would seek to harm them.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to read today's Supreme Court decision striking down the Communications Decency Act and work toward more effective solutions to protect our kids.●

Subtitle B—Multifamily Housing Reform

SEC. 2100. SHORT TITLE.

This subtitle may be cited as the ''Multifamily Assisted Housing Reform and Affordability Act of 1997''.

Part 1—FHA-Insured Multifamily Housing Mortgage and Housing Assistance Restructuring

SEC. 2101. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) there exists throughout the Nation a need for decent, safe, and affordable housing;

(2) as of the date of enactment of this Act, it is estimated that—

(A) the insured multifamily housing portfolio of the Federal Housing Administration consists of 14,000 rental properties, with an aggregate unpaid principal mortgage balance of $38,000,000,000; and

(B) approximately 10,000 of these properties contain housing units that are assisted with project-based rental assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(3) FHA-insured multifamily rental properties are a major Federal investment, providing affordable rental housing to an estimated 2,000,000 low- and very low-income families;

(4) approximately 1,600,000 of these families live in dwelling units that are assisted with project-based rental assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(5) a substantial number of housing units receiving project-based assistance have rents that are higher than the rents of comparable, unassisted rental units in the same housing rental market;

(6) many of the contracts for project-based assistance will expire during the several years following the date of enactment of this Act;

(7) it is estimated that—

(A) if no changes in the terms and conditions of the contracts for project-based assistance are made before fiscal year 2000, the cost of renewing all expiring rental assistance contracts under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for both project-based and tenant-based rental assistance will increase from approximately $3,600,000,000 in fiscal year 1997 to over $14,300,000,000 by fiscal year 2000 and some $22,400,000,000 in fiscal year 2006;

(B) of those renewal amounts, the cost of renewing project-based assistance will increase from $1,200,000,000 in fiscal year 1997 to almost $7,400,000,000 by fiscal year 2006; and

(C) without changes in the manner in which project-based rental assistance is provided, renewals of expiring contracts for project-based rental assistance will require an increasingly larger portion of the discretionary budget authority of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in each subsequent fiscal year for the foreseeable future;

(8) absent new budget authority for the renewal of expiring rental contracts for project-based assistance, many of the FHA-insured multifamily housing projects that are assisted with project-based assistance will likely default on their FHA-insured mortgage payments, resulting in substantial claims to the FHA General Insurance Fund and Special Risk Insurance Funds;

(9) more than 15 percent of federally assisted multifamily housing projects are physically or financially distressed, including a number which suffer from mismanagement;

(10) due to Federal budget constraints, the downsizing of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and diminished administrative capacity, the Department lacks the ability to ensure the continued economic and physical well-being of the stock of federally insured and assisted multifamily housing projects; and

(11) the economic, physical, and management problems facing the stock of federally insured and assisted multifamily housing projects will be best served by reforms that—

(A) reduce the cost of Federal rental assistance, including project-based assistance, to these projects by reducing the debt service and operating costs of these projects while retaining the low-income affordability and availability of this housing;

(B) address physical and economic distress of this housing and the failure of some project managers and owners of projects to comply with management and ownership rules and requirements; and

(C) transfer and share many of the loan and contract administration functions and responsibilities of the Secretary with capable State, local, and other entities.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this part are—

(1) to preserve low-income rental housing affordability and availability while reducing the long-term costs of project-based assistance;

(2) to reform the design and operation of Federal rental housing assistance programs, administered by the Secretary, to promote greater multifamily housing project operating and cost efficiencies;

(3) to encourage owners of eligible multifamily housing projects to restructure their FHA-insured mortgages and project-based assistance contracts in a manner that is consistent with this part before the year in which the contract expires;

(4) to streamline and improve federally insured and assisted multifamily housing project oversight and administration;

(5) to resolve the problems affecting financially and physically troubled federally insured and assisted multifamily housing projects through cooperation with residents, owners, State and local governments, and other interested entities and individuals; and

(6) to grant additional enforcement tools to use against those who violate agreements and program requirements, in order to ensure that the public interest is safeguarded and that Federal multifamily housing programs serve their intended purposes.

(A) are equivalent to rents derived from comparable properties, if—

(i) the participating administrative entity makes the rent determination not later than 120 days after the owner submits a mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan; and

(ii) the market rent determination is based on not less than 2 comparable properties; or

(B) if those rents cannot be determined, are equal to 90 percent of the fair market rents for the relevant market area.

(2) EXCEPTIONS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A contract under this section may include rent levels that exceed the rent level described in paragraph (1) at rent levels that do not exceed 120 percent of the local fair market rent if the participating administrative entity—the rent limitation required to be established through a mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan under paragraph (1); and

(ii) follows the procedures under paragraph (3).

(B) EXCEPTION RENTS.—In any fiscal year, a participating administrative entity may approve exception rents on not more than 20 percent of all units in the geographic jurisdiction of the entity with expiring contracts in that fiscal year, except that the Secretary may waive this ceiling upon a finding of special need in the geographic area served by the participating administrative entity.

(3) RENT LEVELS FOR EXCEPTION PROJECTS.—For purposes of this section, a project eligible for an exception rent shall receive a rent calculation on the actual and projected costs of operating the project, at a level that provides income sufficient to support a budget-based rent that consists of—

(E) other expenses determined by the participating administrative entity to be necessary for the operation of the project.

(h) EXEMPTIONS FROM RESTRUCTURING.—Subject to section 2106, the Secretary shall renew project-based assistance contracts at existing rents, or at a level that provides income sufficient to support a budget-based rent (including a budget-based rent adjustment if justified by reasonable and expected operating expenses), if—

(1) the project was financed through obligations such that the implementation of a mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan under this section is inconsistent with applicable law or agreements governing such financing;

(2) in the determination of the Secretary or the participating administrative entity, the restructuring would not result in significant section 8 savings to the Secretary; or

(3) the project has an expiring contract under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 but does not qualify as an eligible multifamily housing project pursuant to section 2102(2) of this part.

(b) REQUIRED COMMITMENT.—After the initial renewal of a section 8 contract pursuant to this section, the owner shall accept each offer made pursuant to subsection (a) to renew the contract, for the remaining term of the existing mortgage and, if applicable, the remaining term of an existing second mortgage, if the offer to renew is on terms and conditions specified in the mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan.

SEC. 2106. PROHIBITION ON RESTRUCTURING.

(a) PROHIBITION ON RESTRUCTURING.—The Secretary shall not consider any mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan or request for contract renewal if the participating administrative entity determines that—

(1) the owner or purchaser of the project has engaged in material adverse financial or managerial actions or omissions with regard to this project (or with regard to other similar projects if the Secretary determines that those actions or omissions constitute a pattern of mismanagement that would warrant suspension or debarment by the Secretary), including—

(A) materially violating any Federal, State, or local law or regulation with regard to this project or any other federally assisted project, after receipt of notice and an opportunity to cure;

(B) materially breaching a contract for assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, after receipt of notice and an opportunity to cure;

(C) materially violating any applicable regulatory or other agreement with the Secretary or a participating administrative entity, after receipt of notice and an opportunity to cure;

(D) repeatedly and materially violating any Federal, State, or local law or regulation with regard to the project or any other federally assisted project;

(E) repeatedly and materially breaching a contract for assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937;

(F) repeatedly and materially violating any applicable regulatory or other agreement with the Secretary or a participating administrative entity;

(G) repeatedly failing to make mortgage payments at times when project income was sufficient to maintain and operate the property;

(H) materially failing to maintain the property according to housing quality standards after receipt of notice and a reasonable opportunity to cure; or

(I) committing any actions or omissions that would warrant suspension or debarment by the Secretary;

(2) the owner or purchaser of the property materially failed to follow the procedures and requirements of this part, after receipt of notice and an opportunity to cure; or

(3) the poor condition of the project cannot be remedied in a cost effective manner, as determined by the participating administrative entity.

(b) OPPORTUNITY TO DISPUTE FINDINGS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—During the 30-day period beginning on the date on which the owner or purchaser of an eligible multifamily housing project receives notice of a rejection under subsection (a) or of a mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan under section 2104, the Secretary or participating administrative entity shall provide that owner or purchaser with an opportunity to dispute the basis for the rejection and an opportunity to cure.

(2) AFFIRMATION, MODIFICATION, OR REVERSAL.—

(C) REVIEW PROCESS.—The Secretary shall establish an administrative review process to appeal any final decision under this paragraph.

(c) FINAL DETERMINATION.—Any final determination under this section shall not be subject to judicial review.

(d) DISPLACED TENANTS.—Subject to the availability of amounts provided in advance in appropriations Acts, for any low-income tenant that is residing in a project or receiving assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 at the time of rejection under this section, that tenant shall be provided with tenant-based assistance and reasonable moving expenses, as determined by the Secretary.

(e) TRANSFER OF PROPERTY.—For properties disqualified from the consideration of a mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan under this section because of actions by an owner or purchaser in accordance with paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a), the Secretary shall establish procedures to facilitate the voluntary sale or transfer of a property as part of a mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan, with a preference for tenant organizations and tenant-endorsed community-based nonprofit and public agency purchasers meeting such reasonable qualifications as may be established by the Secretary, which purchasers shall be eligible to receive project-based assistance under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

SEC. 2107. RESTRUCTURING TOOLS.

(a) RESTRUCTURING TOOLS.—In this part, and to the extent these actions are consistent with this section, an approved mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan may include one or more of the following:

(1) FULL OR PARTIAL PAYMENT OF CLAIM.—Making a full payment of claim or partial payment of claim under section 541(b) of the National Housing Act. Any payment under this paragraph shall not require the approval of a mortgagee.

(2) REFINANCING OF DEBT.—Refinancing of all or part of the debt on a project, if the refinancing would result in significant subsidy savings under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937.

(3) MORTGAGE INSURANCE.—Providing FHA multifamily mortgage insurance, reinsurance or other credit enhancement alternatives, including multifamily risk-sharing mortgage programs, as provided under section 542 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992. Any limitations on the number of units available for mortgage insurance under section 542 shall not apply to eligible multifamily housing projects. Any credit subsidy costs of providing mortgage insurance shall be paid from the General Insurance Fund and the Special Risk Insurance Fund.

(4) CREDIT ENHANCEMENT.—Any additional State or local mortgage credit enhancements and risk-sharing arrangements may be established with State or local housing finance agencies, the Federal Housing Finance Board, the Federal National Mortgage Association, and the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation, to a modified first mortgage.

(5) COMPENSATION OF THIRD PARTIES.—Entering into agreements, incurring costs, or making payments, as may be reasonably necessary, to compensate the participation of participating administrative entities and other parties in undertaking actions authorized by this part. Upon request, participating administrative entities shall be considered to be contract administrators under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937 for purposes of any contracts entered into as part of an approved mortgage restructuring and rental assistance sufficiency plan. Subject to the availability of amounts provided in advance in appropriations Acts for administrative fees under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, such fees shall be used to compensate participating administrative entities for compliance monitoring costs incurred under section 2110.

(6) RESIDUAL RECEIPTS.—Applying any acquired residual receipts to maintain the long-term affordability and physical condition of the property or of other eligible multifamily housing projects. The participating administrative entity may expedite the acquisition of residual receipts by entering into agreements with owners of housing covered by an expiring contract to provide an owner with a share of the receipts, not to exceed 10 percent.

(7) REHABILITATION NEEDS.—Assisting in addressing the necessary rehabilitation needs of the project, except that assistance under this paragraph shall not exceed the equivalent of $5,000 per unit for those units covered with project-based assistance. Rehabilitation may be paid from the provision of grants from residual receipts or, as provided in appropriations Acts, from budget authority provided for increases in the budget authority for assistance contracts under section 8 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, the rehabilitation grant program established under section 2201 of this subtitle, or through the debt restructuring transaction. Each owner that receives rehabilitation assistance shall contribute not less than 25 percent of the amount of rehabilitation assistance received.

(8) MORTGAGE RESTRUCTURING.—Restructuring mortgages to provide a structured first mortgage to cover rents at levels that are established in section 2104(g) and a second mortgage equal to the difference between the restructured first mortgage and the mortgage balance of the eligible multifamily housing project at the time of restructuring. The second mortgage shall bear interest at a rate not to exceed the applicable Federal rate for a term not to exceed 50 years. If the first mortgage remains outstanding, payments of interest and principal on the second mortgage shall be made from a portion of the excess project income only after the payment of all reasonable and necessary operating expenses (including deposits in a reserve for replacement), debt service on the first mortgage, and such other expenditures as may be approved by the Secretary. Such portion shall be equal to not less than 75 percent of excess project income. The participating administrative entity may provide up to 25 percent of the excess project income to the project owner if the participating administrative entity determines that the project owner meets benchmarks of quality for management and housing quality. During the period in which the first mortgage remains outstanding, no payments of interest or principal shall be required on the second mortgage. The second mortgage shall be assumable by any subsequent purchaser of any multifamily housing project, pursuant to guidelines established by the Secretary. The participating administrative entity may be authorized to modify the terms or forgive all or part of the second mortgage upon acquisition by a tenant organization or tenant-endorsed community-based nonprofit or public agency, pursuant to guidelines established by the Secretary. Subtitle A—Spectrum Auctions and License Fees

SEC. 3001. SPECTRUM AUCTIONS.

(a) EXTENSION AND EXPANSION OF AUCTION AUTHORITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 309(j) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)) is amended—

(A) by striking paragraphs (1) and (2) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

''(1) GENERAL AUTHORITY.—If mutually exclusive applications are accepted for any initial license or construction permit that will involve an exclusive use of the electromagnetic spectrum, then, except as provided in paragraph (2), the Commission shall grant the license or permit to a qualified applicant through a system of competitive bidding that meets the requirements of this subsection. The Commission, subject to paragraphs (2) and (7) of this subsection, also may use auctions as a means to assign spectrum when it determines that such an auction is consistent with the public interest, convenience, and necessity, and the purposes of this Act.

''(2) EXCEPTIONS.—The competitive bidding authority granted by this subsection shall not apply to a license or construction permit the Commission issues—

''(A) for public safety services, including private internal radio services used by State and local governments and non-government entities, including emergency auto service by nonprofit organizations, that—

''(i) are used to protect the safety of life, health, or property; and

''(ii) are not made commercially available to the public;

''(B) for public telecommunications services, as defined in section 397(14) of this Act, when the license application is for channels reserved for noncommercial use;

''(C) for spectrum and associated orbits used in the provision of any communications within a global satellite system;

''(D) for initial licenses or construction permits for new digital television service given to existing terrestrial broadcast licensees to replace their current television licenses;

''(E) for terrestrial radio and television broadcasting when the Commission determines that an alternative method of resolving mutually exclusive applications serves the public interest substantially better than competitive bidding; or

''(F) for spectrum allocated for unlicensed use pursuant to part 15 of the Commission's regulations (47 C.F.R. part 15), if the competitive bidding for licenses would interfere with operation of end-user products permitted under such regulations.'';

(B) by striking ''1998'' in paragraph (11) and inserting ''2007''; and

(C) by inserting after paragraph (13) the following:

''(14) OUT-OF-BAND EFFECTS.—The Commission and the National Telecommunications and Information Administration shall seek to create incentives to minimize the effects of out-of-band emissions to promote more efficient use of the electromagnetic spectrum. The Commission and the National Telecommunications and Information Administration also shall encourage licensees to minimize the effects of interference.''.

(2) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Subsection (i) of section 309 of the Communications Act of 1934 is repealed.

(b) AUCTION OF 45 MEGAHERTZ LOCATED AT 1,710–1,755 MEGAHERTZ.—

(2) FEDERAL GOVERNMENT USERS.—Any Federal Government station that, on the date of enactment of this Act, is assigned to use electromagnetic spectrum located in the 1,710–1,755 megahertz band shall retain that use until December 31, 2003, unless exempted from relocation.

(c) COMMISSION TO MAKE ADDITIONAL SPECTRUM AVAILABLE BY AUCTION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Communications Commission shall complete all actions necessary to permit the assignment, by September 30, 2002, by competitive bidding pursuant to section 309(j) of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 309(j)), of licenses for the use of bands of frequencies currently allocated by the Commission that—

(A) in the aggregate span not less than 55 megahertz;

(B) are located below 3 gigahertz; and

(C) as of the date of enactment of this Act, have not been—

(i) designated by Commission regulation for assignment pursuant to section 309(j);

(ii) identified by the Secretary of Commerce pursuant to section 113 of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration Organization Act (47 U.S.C. 923); or

(iii) allocated for Federal Government use pursuant to section 305 of the Communications Act of 1934 (47 U.S.C. 305).

(2) CRITERIA FOR REASSIGNMENT.—In making available bands of frequencies for competitive bidding pursuant to paragraph (1), the Commission shall—

(A) seek to promote the most efficient use of the electromagnetic spectrum;

(B) consider the cost to incumbent licensees of relocating existing uses to other bands of frequencies or other means of communication;

(C) consider the needs of public safety radio services;

(D) comply with the requirements of international agreements concerning spectrum allocations; and

(E) coordinate with the Secretary of Commerce when there is any impact on Federal Government spectrum use.

(3) NOTIFICATION TO THE SECRETARY OF COMMERCE.—The Commission shall attempt to accommodate incumbent licensees displaced under this section by relocating them to other frequencies available to the Commission. The Commission shall notify the Secretary of Commerce whenever the Commission is not able to provide for the effective relocation of an incumbent licensee to a band of frequencies available to the Commission for assignment. The notification shall include—

(A) specific information on the incumbent licensee;

(B) the bands the Commission considered for relocation of the licensee; and

(C) the reasons the incumbent cannot be accommodated in these bands.

(4) REPORT TO THE SECRETARY OF COMMERCE.—

(A) TECHNICAL REPORT.—The Commission, in consultation with the National Telecommunications and Information Administration, shall submit a detailed technical report to the Secretary of Commerce setting forth—

(i) the reasons the incumbent licensees described in paragraph (3) could not be accommodated in existing non-government spectrum; and

(ii) the Commission's recommendations for relocating those incumbents.

(B) NTIA USE OF REPORT.—The National Telecommunications and Information Administration shall review this report when assessing whether a commercial licensee can be accommodated by being reassigned to a frequency allocated for Government use.

(d) IDENTIFICATION AND REALLOCATION OF FREQUENCIES.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 113 of the National Telecommunications and Information Administration Organization Act (47 U.S.C. 901 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

''(f) ADDITIONAL REALLOCATION REPORT.—If the Secretary receives a report from the Commission pursuant to section 3001(c)(6) of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, the Secretary shall submit to the President, the Congress, and the Commission a report with the Secretary's recommendations.

''(g) REIMBURSEMENT OF FEDERAL SPECTRUM USERS FOR RELOCATION COSTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—

''(A) ACCEPTANCE OF COMPENSATION AUTHORIZED.—In order to expedite the efficient use of the electromagnetic spectrum, and notwithstanding section 3302(b) of title 31, United States Code, any Federal entity that operates a Federal Government station that has been identified by NTIA for relocation may accept payment, including in-kind compensation and shall be reimbursed if required to relocate by the service applicant, provider, licensee, or representative entering the band as a result of a license assignment by the Commission or otherwise authorized by Commission rules.

''(B) DUTY TO COMPENSATE OUSTED FEDERAL ENTITY.—Any such service applicant, provider, licensee, or representative shall compensate the Federal entity in advance for relocating through monetary or in-kind payment for the cost of relocating the Federal entity's operations from one or more electromagnetic spectrum frequencies to any other frequency or frequencies, or to any other telecommunications transmission media.

''(C) COMPENSABLE COSTS.—Compensation shall include, but not be limited to, the costs of any modification, replacement, or reissuance of equipment, facilities, operating manuals, regulations, or other relocation expenses incurred by that entity.

''(D) DISPOSITION OF PAYMENTS.—Payments, other than in-kind compensation, pursuant to this section shall be deposited by electronic funds transfer in a separate agency account or accounts which shall be used to pay directly the costs of relocation, to repay or make advances to appropriations or funds which do or will initially bear all or part of such costs, or to refund excess sums when necessary, and shall remain available until expended.

''(E) APPLICATION TO CERTAIN OTHER RELOCATIONS.—The provisions of this paragraph also apply to any Federal entity that operates a Federal Government station assigned to use electromagnetic spectrum identified for reallocation under subsection (a), if before the date of enactment of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 the Commission has not identified that spectrum for service or assigned licenses or otherwise authorized service for that spectrum.

''(2) PETITIONS FOR RELOCATION.—Any person seeking to relocate a Federal Government station that has been assigned a frequency within a band allocated for mixed Federal and non-Federal use under this Act shall submit a petition for relocation to NTIA. The NTIA shall limit or terminate the Federal Government station's operating license within 6 months after receiving the petition if the following requirements are met:

''(A) The proposed relocation is consistent with obligations undertaken by the United States in international agreements and with United States national security and public safety interests.

''(B) The person seeking relocation of the Federal Government station has guaranteed to defray entirely, through payment in advance, advance in-kind payment of costs, or a combination of payment in advance and advance in-kind payment, all relocation costs incurred by the Federal entity, including, but not limited to, all engineering, equipment, site acquisition and construction, and regulatory fee costs.

''(C) The person seeking relocation completes all activities necessary for implementing the relocation, including construction of replacement facilities (if necessary and appropriate) and identifying and obtaining on the Federal entity's behalf new frequencies for use by the relocated Federal Government station (if the station is not relocating to spectrum reserved exclusively for Federal use).

''(D) Any necessary replacement facilities, equipment modifications, or other changes have been implemented and tested by the Federal entity to ensure that the Federal Government station is able to accomplish successfully its purposes including maintaining communication system performance.

''(E) The Secretary has determined that the proposed use of any spectrum frequency band to which a Federal entity relocates its operations is suitable for the technical characteristics of the band and consistent with other uses of the band. In exercising authority under this subparagraph, the Secretary shall consult with the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of State, and other appropriate Federal officials.

''(3) RIGHT TO RECLAIM.—If within one year after the relocation of a Federal Government station, the Federal entity affected demonstrates to the Secretary and the Commission that the new facilities or spectrum are not comparable to the facilities or spectrum from which the Federal Government station was relocated, the person who sought the relocation shall take reasonable steps to remedy any defects or pay the Federal entity for the costs of returning the Federal Government station to the electromagnetic spectrum from which the station was relocated.

''(h) FEDERAL ACTION TO EXPEDITE SPECTRUM TRANSFER.—Any Federal Government station which operates on electromagnetic spectrum that has been identified for reallocation under this Act for mixed Federal and non-Federal use in any reallocation report under subsection (a), to the maximum extent practicable through the use of subsection (g) and any other applicable law, shall take prompt action to make electromagnetic spectrum available for use in a manner that maximizes efficient use of the electromagnetic spectrum.

''(i) FEDERAL SPECTRUM ASSIGNMENT RESPONSIBILITY.—This section does not modify NTIA's authority under section 103(b)(2)(A) of this Act.

''(j) DEFINITIONS.—As used in this section—

''(1) the term 'Federal entity' means any department, agency, or instrumentality of the Federal Government that utilizes a Government station license obtained under section 305 of the 1934 Act (47 U.S.C. 305);

(1) minimize the number of allotments between 746 and 806 megahertz and maximize the amount of spectrum available for public safety and new services;

(2) minimize the number of allotments between 698 and 746 megahertz in order to facilitate the recovery of spectrum at the end of the transition;

(3) consider minimizing the number of allotments between 54 and 72 megahertz to facilitate the recovery of spectrum at the end of the transition; and

(4) develop an allotment plan designed to recover 78 megahertz of spectrum to be assigned by competitive bidding, in addition to the 60 megahertz identified in paragraph (a) of this subsection.

''(1) as required by international agreements relating to global satellite systems or other telecommunication services to which the United States is a party;

''(2) as required by public safety allocations;

''(3) to the extent that the Commission finds, after notice and an opportunity for public comment, that such an allocation would not be in the public interest;

''(B) then to other such individuals in such a manner that does not discriminate, on a basis described in section 1852(b), among the individuals (who seek to elect the plan).

''(3) LIMITATION ON TERMINATION OF ELECTION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), a Medicare Choice organization may not for any reason terminate the election of any individual under this section for a Medicare Choice plan it offers.

''(2) REVIEW.—The standards established under section 1856 shall include guidelines for the review of any material or form submitted and under such guidelines the Secretary shall disapprove (or later require the correction of) such material or form if the material or form is materially inaccurate or misleading or otherwise makes a material misrepresentation.

''(3) DEEMED APPROVAL (1-STOP SHOPPING).—In the case of material or form that is submitted under paragraph (1)(A) to the Secretary or a regional office of the Department of Health and Human Services and the Secretary or the office has not disapproved the distribution of marketing material or form under paragraph (1)(B) with respect to a Medicare Choice plan in an area, the Secretary is deemed not to have disapproved such distribution in all other areas covered by the plan and organization except to the extent that such material or form is specific only to an area involved.

''(B) AT ENROLLEES' OPTION.—A Medicare Choice organization may provide to individuals enrolled under this part (other than under an MSA plan) supplemental health care benefits that the individuals may elect, at their option, to have covered.

''(3) ORGANIZATION AS SECONDARY PAYER.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a Medicare Choice organization may (in the case of the provision of items and services to an individual under a Medicare Choice plan under circumstances in which payment under this title is made secondary pursuant to section 1862(b)(2)) charge or authorize the provider of such services to charge, in accordance with the charges allowed under a law, plan, or policy described in such section—

''(A) the insurance carrier, employer, or other entity which under such law, plan, or policy is to pay for the provision of such services, or

''(B) such individual to the extent that the individual has been paid under such law, plan, or policy for such services.

''(4) NATIONAL COVERAGE DETERMINATIONS.—If there is a national coverage determination made in the period beginning on the date of an announcement under section 1853(b) and ending on the date of the next announcement under such section and the Secretary projects that the determination will result in a significant change in the costs to a Medicare Choice organization of providing the benefits that are the subject of such national coverage determination and that such change in costs was not incorporated in the determination of the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate under section 1853 included in the announcement made at the beginning of such period, then, unless otherwise required by law—

''(A) such determination shall not apply to contracts under this part until the first contract year that begins after the end of such period, and

''(B) if such coverage determination provides for coverage of additional benefits or coverage under additional circumstances, section 1851(i) shall not apply to payment for such additional benefits or benefits provided under such additional circumstances until the first contract year that begins after the end of such period.

''(5) SATISFACTION OF REQUIREMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A MedicarePlus plan offered by a MedicarePlus organization satisfies paragraph (1)(A), with respect to benefits for items and services furnished other than through a provider that has a contract with the organization offering the plan, if the plan provides (in addition to any cost sharing provided for under the plan) for at least the total dollar amount of payment for such items and services as would otherwise be authorized under parts A and B (including any balance billing permitted under such parts).

''(2) PROVIDERS.—A Medicare Choice organization shall not discriminate with respect to participation, reimbursement, or indemnification as to any provider who is acting within the scope of the provider's license or certification under applicable State law, solely on the basis of such license or certification. This paragraph shall not be construed to prohibit a plan from including providers only to the extent necessary to meet the needs of the plan's enrollees or from establishing any measure designed to maintain quality and control costs consistent with the responsibilities of the plan.

''(c) DISCLOSURE REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF PLAN PROVISIONS.—A Medicare Choice organization shall disclose, in clear, accurate, and standardized form to each enrollee with a Medicare Choice plan offered by the organization under this part at the time of enrollment and at least annually thereafter, the following information regarding such plan:

''(ii) the plan shall respond in a timely fashion to the initial contact with the plan with a decision as to whether the services for which approval is requested will be authorized, and

''(iii) if a denial of a request is communicated, the plan shall, upon request from the treating physician, arrange for a physician who is authorized by the plan to review the denial to communicate directly with the treating physician in a timely fashion.

''(3) EXTERNAL REVIEW.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall, for each Medicare Choice plan it operates, have an agreement with an independent quality review and improvement organization approved by the Secretary to perform functions of the type described in sections 1154(a)(4)(B) and 1154(a)(14) with respect to services furnished by Medicare Choice plans for which payment is made under this title.

''(4) EXCEPTION FOR MEDICARE CHOICE UNRESTRICTED FEE-FOR-SERVICE PLANS.—Paragraphs (1) through (3) of this subsection and subsection (h)(2) (relating to maintaining medical records) shall not apply in the case of a Medicare Choice organization in relation to a Medicare Choice unrestricted fee-for-service plan.

''(5) TREATMENT OF ACCREDITATION.—The Secretary shall provide that a Medicare Choice organization is deemed to meet requirements of paragraphs (1) and (2) of this subsection and subsection (h) (relating to confidentiality and accuracy of enrollee records) if the organization is accredited (and periodically reaccredited) by a private organization under a process that the Secretary has determined assures that the organization, as a condition of accreditation, applies and enforces standards with respect to the requirements involved that are no less stringent than the standards established under section 1856 to carry out the respective requirements.

''(6) ANNUAL REPORT ON NON-HEALTH EXPENDITURES.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall, at the request of the enrollee, annually provide to enrollees a statement disclosing the proportion of the premiums and other revenues received by the organization that are expended for non-health care items and services.

''(f) COVERAGE DETERMINATIONS.—

''(1) DECISIONS ON NONEMERGENCY CARE.—A Medicare Choice organization shall make determinations regarding authorization requests for nonemergency care on a timely basis, depending on the urgency of the situation.

''(2) RECONSIDERATIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subsection (g)(4), a reconsideration of a determination of an organization denying coverage shall be made within 30 days of the date of receipt of medical information, but not later than 60 days after the date of the determination.

''(B) PHYSICIAN DECISION ON CERTAIN RECONSIDERATIONS.—A reconsideration relating to a determination to deny coverage based on a lack of medical necessity shall be made only by a physician other than a physician involved in the initial determination.

''(g) GRIEVANCES AND APPEALS.—

''(1) GRIEVANCE MECHANISM.—Each Medicare Choice organization must provide meaningful procedures for hearing and resolving grievances between the organization (including any entity or individual through which the organization provides health care services) and enrollees with Medicare Choice plans of the organization under this part.

''(2) APPEALS.—An enrollee with a Medicare Choice plan of a Medicare Choice organization under this part who is dissatisfied by reason of the enrollee's failure to receive any health service to which the enrollee believes the enrollee is entitled and at no greater charge than the enrollee believes the enrollee is required to pay is entitled, if the amount in controversy is $100 or more, to a hearing before the Secretary to the same extent as is provided in section 205(b), and in any such hearing the Secretary shall make the organization a party. If the amount in controversy is $1,000 or more, the individual or organization shall, upon notifying the other party, be entitled to judicial review of the Secretary's final decision as provided in section 205(g), and both the individual and the organization shall be entitled to be parties to that judicial review. In applying subsections (b) and (g) of section 205 as provided in this paragraph, and in applying section 205(l) thereto, any reference therein to the Commissioner of Social Security or the Social Security Administration shall be considered a reference to the Secretary or the Department of Health and Human Services, respectively.

''(3) INDEPENDENT REVIEW OF CERTAIN COVERAGE DENIALS.—The Secretary shall contract with an independent, outside entity to review and resolve reconsiderations that affirm denial of coverage.

''(4) EXPEDITED DETERMINATIONS AND RECONSIDERATIONS.—

''(A) RECEIPT OF REQUESTS.—An enrollee in a Medicare Choice plan may request, either in writing or orally, an expedited determination or reconsideration by the Medicare Choice organization regarding a matter described in paragraph (2). The organization shall also permit the acceptance of such requests by physicians.

''(B) ORGANIZATION PROCEDURES.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Medicare Choice organization shall maintain procedures for expediting organization determinations and reconsiderations when, upon request of an enrollee, the organization determines that the application of normal time frames for making a determination (or a reconsideration involving a determination) could seriously jeopardize the life or health of the enrollee or the enrollee's ability to regain maximum function.

''(ii) TIMELY RESPONSE.—In an urgent case described in clause (i), the organization shall notify the enrollee (and the physician involved, as appropriate) of the determination (or determination on the reconsideration) as expeditiously as the enrollee's health condition requires, but not later than 72 hours (or 24 hours in the case of a reconsideration) of the time of receipt of the request for the determination or reconsideration (or receipt of the information necessary to make the determination or reconsideration), or such longer period as the Secretary may permit in specified cases.

''(h) CONFIDENTIALITY AND ACCURACY OF ENROLLEE RECORDS.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall establish procedures—

''(1) to safeguard the privacy of individually identifiable enrollee information,

''(2) to maintain accurate and timely medical records and other health information for enrollees, and

''(3) to assure timely access of enrollees to their medical information.

''(i) INFORMATION ON ADVANCE DIRECTIVES.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall meet the requirement of section 1866(f) (relating to maintaining written policies and procedures respecting advance directives).

''(j) RULES REGARDING PHYSICIAN PARTICIPATION.—

''(1) PROCEDURES.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall establish reasonable procedures relating to the participation (under an agreement between a physician and the organization) of physicians under Medicare Choice plans offered by the organization under this part. Such procedures shall include—

''(A) providing notice of the rules regarding participation,

''(B) providing written notice of participation decisions that are adverse to physicians, and

''(C) providing a process within the organization for appealing such adverse decisions, including the presentation of information and views of the physician regarding such decision.

''(2) CONSULTATION IN MEDICAL POLICIES.—A Medicare Choice organization shall consult with physicians who have entered into participation agreements with the organization regarding the organization's medical policy, quality, and medical management procedures.

''(3) LIMITATIONS ON PHYSICIAN INCENTIVE PLANS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—No Medicare Choice organization may operate any physician incentive plan (as defined in subparagraph (B)) unless the following requirements are met:

''(i) No specific payment is made directly or indirectly under the plan to a physician or physician group as an inducement to reduce or limit medically necessary services provided with respect to a specific individual enrolled with the organization.

''(ii) If the plan places a physician or physician group at substantial financial risk (as determined by the Secretary) for services not provided by the physician or physician group, the organization—

''(I) provides stop-loss protection for the physician or group that is adequate and appropriate, based on standards developed by the Secretary that take into account the number of physicians placed at such substantial financial risk in the group or under the plan and the number of individuals enrolled with the organization who receive services from the physician or group, and

''(II) conducts periodic surveys of both individuals enrolled and individuals previously enrolled with the organization to determine the degree of access of such individuals to services provided by the organization and satisfaction with the quality of such services.

''(iii) The organization provides the Secretary with descriptive information regarding the plan, sufficient to permit the Secretary to determine whether the plan is in compliance with the requirements of this subparagraph.

''(B) PHYSICIAN INCENTIVE PLAN DEFINED.—In this paragraph, the term 'physician incentive plan' means any compensation arrangement between a Medicare Choice organization and a physician or physician group that may directly or indirectly have the effect of reducing or limiting services provided with respect to individuals enrolled with the organization under this part.

''(4) LIMITATION ON PROVIDER INDEMNIFICATION.—A Medicare Choice organization may not provide (directly or indirectly) for a provider (or group of providers) to indemnify the organization against any liability resulting from a civil action brought for any damage caused to an enrollee with a Medicare Choice plan of the organization under this part by the organization's denial of medically necessary care.

''(k) TREATMENT OF SERVICES FURNISHED BY CERTAIN PROVIDERS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—A physician or other entity (other than a provider of services) that does not have a contract establishing payment amounts for services furnished to an individual enrolled under this part with a MedicarePlus organization shall accept as payment in full for covered services under this title that are furnished to such an individual the amounts that the physician or other entity could collect if the individual were not so enrolled. Any penalty or other provision of law that applies to such a payment with respect to an individual entitled to benefits under this title (but not enrolled with a MedicarePlus organization under this part) also applies with respect to an individual so enrolled.

''(2) EXCEPTION FOR MSA PLANS AND UNRESTRICTED FEE-FOR-SERVICE PLANS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to an MSA plan or an unrestricted fee-for-service plan.

''PAYMENTS TO MEDICARE CHOICE ORGANIZATIONS

''SEC. 1853. (a) PAYMENTS TO ORGANIZATIONS.—

''(1) MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Under a contract under section 1857 and subject to subsections (e) and (f), the Secretary shall make monthly payments under this section in advance to each Medicare Choice organization, with respect to coverage of an individual under this part in a Medicare Choice payment area for a month, in an amount equal to 1/12 of the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate (as calculated under subsection (c)) with respect to that individual for that area, adjusted for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, and such other factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary may add to, modify, or substitute for such factors, if such changes will improve the determination of actuarial equivalence.

''(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR END-STAGE RENAL DISEASE.—The Secretary shall establish separate rates of payment to a Medicare Choice organization with respect to classes of individuals determined to have end-stage renal disease and enrolled in a Medicare Choice plan of the organization. Such rates of payment shall be actuarially equivalent to rates paid to other enrollees in the Medicare Choice payment area (or such other area as specified by the Secretary). In accordance with regulations, the Secretary shall provide for the application of the seventh sentence of section 1881(b)(7) to payments under this section covering the provision of renal dialysis treatment in the same manner as such sentence applies to composite rate payments described in such sentence.

''(2) ADJUSTMENT TO REFLECT NUMBER OF ENROLLEES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The amount of payment under this subsection may be retroactively adjusted to take into account any difference between the actual number of individuals enrolled with an organization under this part and the number of such individuals estimated to be so enrolled in determining the amount of the advance payment.

''(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN ENROLLEES.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), the Secretary may make retroactive adjustments under subparagraph (A) to take into account individuals enrolled during the period beginning on the date on which the individual enrolls with a Medicare Choice organization under a plan operated, sponsored, or contributed to by the individual's employer or former employer (or the employer or former employer of the individual's spouse) and ending on the date on which the individual is enrolled in the organization under this part, except that for purposes of making such retroactive adjustments under this subparagraph, such period may not exceed 90 days.

''(ii) EXCEPTION.—No adjustment may be made under clause (i) with respect to any individual who does not certify that the organization provided the individual with the disclosure statement described in section 1852(c) at the time the individual enrolled with the organization.

''(3) ESTABLISHMENT OF RISK ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall develop and implement a method of risk adjustment of payment rates under this section that accounts for variations in per capita costs based on health status. Such method shall not be implemented before the Secretary receives an evaluation by an outside, independent actuary of the actuarial soundness of such method.

''(B) DATA COLLECTION.—In order to carry out this paragraph, the Secretary shall require Medicare Choice organizations (and eligible organizations with risk-sharing contracts under section 1876) to submit, for periods beginning on or after January 1, 1998, data regarding inpatient hospital services and other services and other information the Secretary deems necessary.

''(4) INTERIM RISK ADJUSTMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an applicable enrollee in a Medicare Choice plan, the payment to the Medicare Choice organization under this section shall be reduced by an amount equal to the applicable percentage of the amount of such payment (determined without regard to this paragraph).

''(B) APPLICABLE ENROLLEE.—For purposes of this paragraph—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The term 'applicable enrollee' means, with respect to any month, a medicare eligible individual who—

''(I) is enrolled in a Medicare Choice plan, and

''(II) has not been enrolled in Medicare Choice plans and plans operated by eligible organizations with risk-sharing contracts under section 1876 for an aggregate number of months greater than 60 (including the month for which the determination is being made).

''(ii) EXCEPTION FOR BENEFICIARIES MAINTAINING ENROLLMENT IN CERTAIN PLANS.—The term 'applicable enrollee' shall not include any individual enrolled in a Medicare Choice plan offered by a Medicare Choice organization if such individual was enrolled in a health plan (other than a Medicare Choice plan) offered by such organization at the time of the individual's initial election period under section 1851(e)(1) and has been continuously enrolled in such Medicare Choice plan (or another Medicare Choice plan offered by such organization) since such election period.

''(C) APPLICABLE PERCENTAGE.—For purposes of this paragraph, the applicable percentage shall be determined in accordance with the following table:

''Months enrolled in HMOs:	Applicable percentage:
1–12	5
49–60	1.

''(D) EXCEPTION FOR NEW PLANS.—This paragraph shall not apply to applicable enrollees in a Medicare Choice plan for any month if—

''(i) such month occurs during the first 12 months during which the plan enrolls Medicare Choice eligible individuals in the Medicare Choice payment area, and

''(ii) the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate for such area for the calendar year preceding the calendar year in which such 12-month period begins is less than the annual national Medicare Choice capitation rate (as determined under subsection (c)(4)) for such preceding calendar year.

In the case of 1998, clause (ii) shall be applied by using the adjusted average per capita cost under section 1876 for 1997 rather than such capitation rate.

''(E) TERMINATION.—This paragraph shall not apply to any month beginning on or after the first day of the first month to which the method for risk adjustment described in paragraph (3) applies.

''(b) ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF PAYMENT RATES.—

''(1) ANNUAL ANNOUNCEMENT.—The Secretary shall annually determine, and shall announce (in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties) not later than August 1 before the calendar year concerned—

''(A) the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate for each Medicare Choice payment area for the year, and

''(B) the risk and other factors to be used in adjusting such rates under subsection (a)(1)(A) for payments for months in that year.

''(2) ADVANCE NOTICE OF METHODOLOGICAL CHANGES.—At least 45 days before making the announcement under paragraph (1) for a year, the Secretary shall provide for notice to Medicare Choice organizations of proposed changes to be made in the methodology from the methodology and assumptions used in the previous announcement and shall provide such organizations an opportunity to comment on such proposed changes.

''(3) EXPLANATION OF ASSUMPTIONS.—In each announcement made under paragraph (1), the Secretary shall include an explanation of the assumptions and changes in methodology used in the announcement in sufficient detail so that Medicare Choice organizations can compute monthly adjusted Medicare Choice capitation rates for individuals in each Medicare Choice payment area which is in whole or in part within the service area of such an organization.

''(c) CALCULATION OF ANNUAL MEDICARE CHOICE CAPITATION RATES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this part, each annual Medicare Choice capitation rate, for a Medicare Choice payment area for a contract year consisting of a calendar year, is equal to the largest of the amounts specified in the following subparagraph (A), (B), or (C):

''(A) BLENDED CAPITATION RATE.—The sum of—

''(i) the area-specific percentage for the year (as specified under paragraph (2) for the year) of the annual area-specific Medicare Choice capitation rate for the year for the Medicare Choice payment area, as determined under paragraph (3), and

''(ii) the national percentage (as specified under paragraph (2) for the year) of the annual national Medicare Choice capitation rate for the year, as determined under paragraph (4), multiplied by the payment adjustment factors described in subparagraphs (A) and (B) of paragraph (5).

''(B) MINIMUM AMOUNT.—Subject to paragraph (8)—

''(i) For 1998, $4,200 (but not to exceed, in the case of an area outside the 50 States and the District of Columbia, 150 percent of the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the area).

''(ii) For each subsequent year, 101 percent of the amount in effect under this subparagraph for the previous year.

''(C) MINIMUM PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—Subject to paragraph (8)—

''(i) For 1998, 101 percent of the annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the Medicare Choice payment area.

''(ii) For each subsequent year, 101 percent of the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate under this paragraph for the area for the previous year.

''(2) AREA-SPECIFIC AND NATIONAL PERCENTAGES.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

''(A) for 1998, the 'area-specific percentage' is 90 percent and the 'national percentage' is 10 percent,

''(B) for 1999, the 'area-specific percentage' is 80 percent and the 'national percentage' is 20 percent,

''(C) for 2000, the 'area-specific percentage' is 70 percent and the 'national percentage' is 30 percent,

''(D) for 2001, the 'area-specific percentage' is 60 percent and the 'national percentage' is 40 percent, and

''(E) for a year after 2001, the 'area-specific percentage' is 50 percent and the 'national percentage' is 50 percent.

''(3) ANNUAL AREA-SPECIFIC MEDICARE CHOICE CAPITATION RATE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the annual area-specific Medicare Choice capitation rate for a Medicare Choice payment area—

''(i) for 1998 is the modified annual per capita rate of payment for 1997 determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for the area, increased by the national average per capita growth percentage for 1998 (as defined in paragraph (6)); or

''(ii) for a subsequent year is the annual area-specific Medicare Choice capitation rate for the previous year determined under this paragraph for the area, increased by the national average per capita growth percentage for such subsequent year.

''(B) MODIFIED ANNUAL PER CAPITA RATE OF PAYMENT.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the modified annual per capita rate of payment for a Medicare Choice payment area for 1997 shall be equal to the annual per capita rate of payment for such area for such year which would have been determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) if 25 percent of any payments attributable to sections 1886(d)(5)(B), 1886(h), and 1886(d)(5)(F) (relating to IME, GME, and DSH payments) were not taken into account.

''(C) SPECIAL RULES FOR 1999, 2000, AND 2001.—In applying subparagraph (A)(ii) for 1999, 2000, and 2001, the annual area-specific Medicare Choice capitation rate for the preceding calendar year shall be the amount which would have been determined if subparagraph (B) had been applied by substituting the following percentages for '25 percent':

''(i) In 1999, 50 percent.

''(ii) In 2000, 75 percent.

''(iii) In 2001, 100 percent.

''(4) ANNUAL NATIONAL MEDICARE CHOICE CAPITATION RATE.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A), the annual national Medicare Choice capitation rate for a Medicare Choice payment area for a year is equal to—

''(A) the sum (for all Medicare Choice payment areas) of the product of—

''(i) the annual area-specific Medicare Choice capitation rate for that year for the area under paragraph (3), and

''(ii) the average number of medicare beneficiaries residing in that area in the year; divided by

''(B) the sum of the amounts described in subparagraph (A)(ii) for all Medicare Choice payment areas for that year.

''(5) PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT BUDGET NEUTRALITY FACTORS.—For purposes of paragraph (1)(A)—

''(A) BLENDED RATE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For each year, the Secretary shall compute a blended rate payment adjustment factor such that, not taking into account subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) and the application of the payment adjustment factor described in subparagraph (B) but taking into account paragraph (7), the aggregate of the payments that would be made under this part is equal to the aggregate payments that would have been made under this part (not taking into account such subparagraphs and such other adjustment factor) if the area-specific percentage under paragraph (1) for the year had been 100 percent and the national percentage had been 0 percent.

''(B) FLOOR-AND-MINIMUM-UPDATE PAYMENT ADJUSTMENT FACTOR.—For each year, the Secretary shall compute a floor-and-minimum-update payment adjustment factor so that, taking into account the application of the blended rate payment adjustment factor under subparagraph (A) and subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) and the application of the adjustment factor under this subparagraph, the aggregate of the payments under this part shall not exceed the aggregate payments that would have been made under this part if subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) did not apply and if the floor-and-minimum-update payment adjustment factor under this subparagraph was 1.

''(6) NATIONAL AVERAGE PER CAPITA GROWTH PERCENTAGE DEFINED.—In this part, the 'national average per capita growth percentage' for any year (beginning with 1998) is equal to the sum of—

''(A) the percentage increase in the gross domestic product per capita for the 12-month period ending on June 30 of the preceding year, plus

''(B) 0.5 percentage points.

''(7) TREATMENT OF AREAS WITH HIGHLY VARIABLE PAYMENT RATES.—In the case of a Medicare Choice payment area for which the annual per capita rate of payment determined under section 1876(a)(1)(C) for 1997 varies by more than 20 percent from such rate for 1996, for purposes of this subsection the Secretary may substitute for such rate for 1997 a rate that is more representative of the costs of the enrollees in the area.

''(8) ADJUSTMENTS TO MINIMUM AMOUNTS AND MINIMUM PERCENTAGE INCREASES.—After computing all amounts under this subsection (without regard to this paragraph) for any year, the Secretary shall—

''(A) redetermine the amount under paragraph (1)(C) for such year by substituting '100 percent' for '101 percent' each place it appears, and

''(B) increase the minimum amount under paragraph (1)(B) to an amount equal to the lesser of—

''(i) the amount the Secretary estimates will result in increased payments under such paragraph equal to the decrease in payments by reason of the redetermination under subparagraph (A), or

''(ii) an amount equal to 85 percent of the annual national Medicare Choice capitation rate determined under paragraph (4).

''(9) STUDY OF LOCAL PRICE INDICATORS.—The Secretary and the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission shall each conduct a study with respect to appropriate measures for adjusting the annual Medicare Choice capitation rates determined under this section to reflect local price indicators, including the medicare hospital wage index and the case-mix of a geographic region. The Secretary and the Advisory Commission shall report the results of such study to the appropriate committees of Congress, including recommendations (if any) for legislation.

''(d) MEDICARE CHOICE PAYMENT AREA DEFINED.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In this part, except as provided in paragraph (3), the term 'Medicare Choice payment area' means a county, or equivalent area specified by the Secretary.

''(2) RULE FOR ESRD BENEFICIARIES.—In the case of individuals who are determined to have end stage renal disease, the Medicare Choice payment area shall be a State or such other payment area as the Secretary specifies.

''(3) GEOGRAPHIC ADJUSTMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Upon written request of the chief executive officer of a State for a contract year (beginning after 1998) made at least 7 months before the beginning of the year, the Secretary shall make a geographic adjustment to a Medicare Choice payment area in the State otherwise determined under paragraph (1)—

''(i) to a single statewide Medicare Choice payment area,

''(ii) to the metropolitan based system described in subparagraph (C), or

''(iii) to consolidating into a single Medicare Choice payment area noncontiguous counties (or equivalent areas described in paragraph (1)) within a State.

Such adjustment shall be effective for payments for months beginning with January of the year following the year in which the request is received.

''(B) BUDGET NEUTRALITY ADJUSTMENT.—In the case of a State requesting an adjustment under this paragraph, the Secretary shall adjust the payment rates otherwise established under this section for Medicare Choice payment areas in the State in a manner so that the aggregate of the payments under this section in the State shall not exceed the aggregate payments that would have been made under this section for Medicare Choice payment areas in the State in the absence of the adjustment under this paragraph.

''(C) METROPOLITAN BASED SYSTEM.—The metropolitan based system described in this subparagraph is one in which—

''(i) all the portions of each metropolitan statistical area in the State or in the case of a consolidated metropolitan statistical area, all of the portions of each primary metropolitan statistical area within the consolidated area within the State, are treated as a single Medicare Choice payment area, and

''(ii) all areas in the State that do not fall within a metropolitan statistical area are treated as a single Medicare Choice payment area.

''(D) AREAS.—In subparagraph (C), the terms 'metropolitan statistical area', 'consolidated metropolitan statistical area', and 'primary metropolitan statistical area' mean any area designated as such by the Secretary of Commerce.

''(e) SPECIAL RULES FOR INDIVIDUALS ELECTING MSA PLANS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—If the amount of the monthly premium for an MSA plan for a Medicare Choice payment area for a year is less than 1/12 of the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate applied under this section for the area and year involved, the Secretary shall deposit an amount equal to 100 percent of such difference in a Medicare Choice MSA established (and, if applicable, designated) by the individual under paragraph (2).

''(2) ESTABLISHMENT AND DESIGNATION OF MEDICARE CHOICE MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT AS REQUIREMENT FOR PAYMENT OF CONTRIBUTION.—In the case of an individual who has elected coverage under an MSA plan, no payment shall be made under paragraph (1) on behalf of an individual for a month unless the individual—

''(A) has established before the beginning of the month (or by such other deadline as the Secretary may specify) a Medicare Choice MSA (as defined in section 138(b)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986), and

''(B) if the individual has established more than one such Medicare Choice MSA, has designated one of such accounts as the individual's Medicare Choice MSA for purposes of this part. Under rules under this section, such an individual may change the designation of such account under subparagraph (B) for purposes of this part.

''(3) LUMP-SUM DEPOSIT OF MEDICAL SAVINGS ACCOUNT CONTRIBUTION.—In the case of an individual electing an MSA plan effective beginning with a month in a year, the amount of the contribution to the Medicare Choice MSA on behalf of the individual for that month and all successive months in the year shall be deposited during that first month. In the case of a termination of such an election as of a month before the end of a year, the Secretary shall provide for a procedure for the recovery of deposits attributable to the remaining months in the year.

''(4) SPECIAL RULE FOR APPLICABLE ENROLLEE.—In the case of an enrollee in a MSA plan for any month who is an applicable enrollee for such month under section 1853(a)(4)(B), the amount of the deposit under paragraph (1) for such month shall be reduced by the applicable percentage (as defined in section 1853(a)(4)(C)) of the amount of such deposit (determined without regard to this paragraph).

''(f) PAYMENTS FROM TRUST FUND.—The payment to a Medicare Choice organization under this section for individuals enrolled under this part with the organization and payments to a Medicare Choice MSA under subsection (e)(1)(B) shall be made from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund in such proportion as the Secretary determines reflects the relative weight that benefits under part A and under part B represents of the actuarial value of the total benefits under this title. Monthly payments otherwise payable under this section for October 2001 shall be paid on the last business day of September 2001. Monthly payments otherwise payable under this section for October 2006 shall be paid on the first business day of October 2006.

''(g) SPECIAL RULE FOR CERTAIN INPATIENT HOSPITAL STAYS.—In the case of an individual who is receiving inpatient hospital services from a subsection (d) hospital (as defined in section 1886(d)(1)(B)) as of the effective date of the individual's—

''(1) election under this part of a Medicare Choice plan offered by a Medicare Choice organization—

''(A) payment for such services until the date of the individual's discharge shall be made under this title through the Medicare Choice plan or the traditional medicare fee-for-service program option described in section 1851(a)(1)(A) (as the case may be) elected before the election with such organization,

''(B) the elected organization shall not be financially responsible for payment for such services until the date after the date of the individual's discharge, and

''(C) the organization shall nonetheless be paid the full amount otherwise payable to the organization under this part; or

''(2) termination of election with respect to a Medicare Choice organization under this part—

''(A) the organization shall be financially responsible for payment for such services after such date and until the date of the individual's discharge,

''(B) payment for such services during the stay shall not be made under section 1886(d) or by any succeeding Medicare Choice organization, and

''(C) the terminated organization shall not receive any payment with respect to the individual under this part during the period the individual is not enrolled.

''PREMIUMS

''SEC. 1854. (a) SUBMISSION AND CHARGING OF PREMIUMS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (3), each Medicare Choice organization shall file with the Secretary each year, in a form and manner and at a time specified by the Secretary—

''(A) the amount of the monthly premium for coverage for services under section 1852(a) under each Medicare Choice plan it offers under this part in each Medicare Choice payment area (as defined in section 1853(d)) in which the plan is being offered; and

''(B) the enrollment capacity in relation to the plan in each such area.

''(2) TERMINOLOGY.—In this part—

''(A) the term 'monthly premium' means, with respect to a Medicare Choice plan offered by a Medicare Choice organization, the monthly premium filed under paragraph (1), not taking into account the amount of any payment made toward the premium under section 1853; and

''(B) the term 'net monthly premium' means, with respect to such a plan and an individual enrolled with the plan, the premium (as defined in subparagraph (A)) for the plan reduced by the amount of payment made toward such premium under section 1853.

''(b) MONTHLY PREMIUM CHARGED.—The monthly amount of the premium charged by a Medicare Choice organization for a Medicare Choice plan offered in a Medicare Choice payment area to an individual under this part shall be equal to the net monthly premium plus any monthly premium charged in accordance with subsection (e)(2) for supplemental benefits.

''(c) UNIFORM PREMIUM.—The monthly premium and monthly amount charged under subsection (b) of a Medicare Choice organization under this part may not vary among individuals who reside in the same Medicare Choice payment area.

''(d) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF IMPOSING PREMIUMS.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall permit the payment of net monthly premiums on a monthly basis and may terminate election of individuals for a Medicare Choice plan for failure to make premium payments only in accordance with section 1851(g)(3)(B)(i). A Medicare Choice organization is not authorized to provide for cash or other monetary rebates as an inducement for enrollment or otherwise.

''(e) LIMITATION ON ENROLLEE COST-SHARING.—

''(1) FOR BASIC AND ADDITIONAL BENEFITS.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), in no event may—

''(A) the net monthly premium (multiplied by 12) and the actuarial value of the deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments applicable on average to individuals enrolled under this part with a Medicare Choice plan of an organization with respect to required benefits described in section 1852(a)(1) and additional benefits (if any) required under subsection (f)(1) for a year, exceed

''(B) the actuarial value of the deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments that would be applicable on average to individuals entitled to benefits under part A and enrolled under part B if they were not members of a Medicare Choice organization for the year.

''(2) FOR SUPPLEMENTAL BENEFITS.—If the Medicare Choice organization provides to its members enrolled under this part supplemental benefits described in section 1852(a)(3), the sum of the monthly premium rate (multiplied by 12) charged for such supplemental benefits and the actuarial value of its deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments charged with respect to such benefits may not exceed the adjusted community rate for such benefits (as defined in subsection (f)(4)).

''(3) EXCEPTION FOR MSA PLANS AND UNRESTRICTED FEE-FOR-SERVICE PLANS.—Paragraphs (1) and (2) do not apply to an MSA plan or an unrestricted fee-for-service plan.

''(4) DETERMINATION ON OTHER BASIS.—If the Secretary determines that adequate data are not available to determine the actuarial value under paragraph (1)(A) or (2), the Secretary may determine such amount with respect to all individuals in the Medicare Choice payment area, the State, or in the United States, eligible to enroll in the Medicare Choice plan involved under this part or on the basis of other appropriate data.

''(f) REQUIREMENT FOR ADDITIONAL BENEFITS.—

''(1) REQUIREMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Each Medicare Choice organization (in relation to a Medicare Choice plan it offers) shall provide that if there is an excess amount (as defined in subparagraph (B)) for the plan for a contract year, subject to the succeeding provisions of this subsection, the organization shall provide to individuals such additional benefits (as the organization may specify) in a value which is at least equal to the adjusted excess amount (as defined in subparagraph (C)).

''(B) EXCESS AMOUNT.—For purposes of this paragraph, the 'excess amount', for an organization for a plan, is the amount (if any) by which—

''(i) the average of the capitation payments made to the organization under section 1853 for the plan at the beginning of contract year, exceeds

''(ii) the actuarial value of the required benefits described in section 1852(a)(1) under the plan for individuals under this part, as determined based upon an adjusted community rate described in paragraph (4) (as reduced for the actuarial value of the coinsurance and deductibles under parts A and B).

''(C) ADJUSTED EXCESS AMOUNT.—For purposes of this paragraph, the 'adjusted excess amount', for an organization for a plan, is the excess amount reduced to reflect any amount withheld and reserved for the organization for the year under paragraph (3).

''(D) NO APPLICATION TO MSA PLANS.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to an MSA plan.

''(E) UNIFORM APPLICATION.—This paragraph shall be applied uniformly for all enrollees for a plan in a Medicare Choice payment area.

''(F) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as preventing a Medicare Choice organization from providing health care benefits that are in addition to the benefits otherwise required to be provided under this paragraph and from imposing a premium for such additional benefits.

''(2) STABILIZATION FUND.—A Medicare Choice organization may provide that a part of the value of an excess amount described in paragraph (1) be withheld and reserved in the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and in the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund (in such proportions as the Secretary determines to be appropriate) by the Secretary for subsequent annual contract periods, to the extent required to stabilize and prevent undue fluctuations in the additional benefits offered in those subsequent periods by the organization in accordance with such paragraph. Any of such value of the amount reserved which is not provided as additional benefits described in paragraph (1)(A) to individuals electing the Medicare Choice plan of the organization in accordance with such paragraph prior to the end of such periods, shall revert for the use of such trust funds.

''(3) DETERMINATION BASED ON INSUFFICIENT DATA.—For purposes of this subsection, if the Secretary finds that there is insufficient enrollment experience to determine an average of the capitation payments to be made under this part at the beginning of a contract period, the Secretary may determine such an average based on the enrollment experience of other contracts entered into under this part.

''(4) ADJUSTED COMMUNITY RATE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to subparagraph (B), the term 'adjusted community rate' for a service or services means, at the election of a Medicare Choice organization, either—

''(i) the rate of payment for that service or services which the Secretary annually determines would apply to an individual electing a Medicare Choice plan under this part if the rate of payment were determined under a 'community rating system' (as defined in section 1302(8) of the Public Health Service Act, other than subparagraph (C)), or

''(ii) such portion of the weighted aggregate premium, which the Secretary annually estimates would apply to such an individual, as the Secretary annually estimates is attributable to that service or services, but adjusted for differences between the utilization characteristics of the individuals electing coverage under this part and the utilization characteristics of the other enrollees with the plan (or, if the Secretary finds that adequate data are not available to adjust for those differences, the differences between the utilization characteristics of individuals selecting other Medicare Choice coverage, or Medicare Choice eligible individuals in the area, in the State, or in the United States, eligible to elect Medicare Choice coverage under this part and the utilization characteristics of the rest of the population in the area, in the State, or in the United States, respectively).

''(B) SPECIAL RULE FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—In the case of a Medicare Choice organization that is a provider-sponsored organization, the adjusted community rate under subparagraph (A) for a Medicare Choice plan of the organization may be computed (in a manner specified by the Secretary) using data in the general commercial marketplace or (during a transition period) based on the costs incurred by the organization in providing such a plan.

''(g) PERIODIC AUDITING.—The Secretary shall provide for the annual auditing of the financial records (including data relating to medicare utilization, costs, and computation of the adjusted community rate) of at least one-third of the Medicare Choice organizations offering Medicare Choice plans under this part. The Comptroller General shall monitor auditing activities conducted under this subsection.

''(h) PROHIBITION OF STATE IMPOSITION OF PREMIUM TAXES.—No State may impose a premium tax or similar tax with respect to payments on Medicare Choice plans or the offering of such plans.

''ORGANIZATIONAL AND FINANCIAL REQUIREMENTS FOR MEDICARE CHOICE ORGANIZATIONS; PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS

''SEC. 1855. (a) ORGANIZED AND LICENSED UNDER STATE LAW.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraphs (2) and (3), a Medicare Choice organization shall be organized and licensed under State law as a risk-bearing entity eligible to offer health insurance or health benefits coverage in each State in which it offers a Medicare Choice plan.

''(2) SPECIAL EXCEPTION BEFORE 2001 FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a provider-sponsored organization that seeks to offer a Medicare Choice plan in a State, the Secretary shall waive the requirement of paragraph (1) that the organization be licensed in that State for any year before 2001 if—

''(i) the organization files an application for such waiver with the Secretary, and

''(ii) the contract with the organization under section 1857 requires the organization to meet all requirements of State law which relate to the licensing of the organization (other than solvency requirements or a prohibition on licensure for such organization).

''(B) TREATMENT OF WAIVER.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a waiver granted under this paragraph for a provider-sponsored organization—

''(I) the waiver shall be effective for the years specified in the waiver, except it may be renewed based on a subsequent application, and

''(II) subject to subparagraph (A)(ii), any provisions of State law which would otherwise prohibit the organization from providing coverage pursuant to a contract under this part shall be superseded.

''(ii) TERMINATION.—A waiver granted under this paragraph shall in no event extend beyond the earlier of—

''(I) December 31, 2000; or

''(II) the date on which the Secretary determines that the State has in effect solvency standards identical to the standards established under section 1856(a).

''(C) PROMPT ACTION ON APPLICATION.—The Secretary shall grant or deny such a waiver application within 60 days after the date the Secretary determines that a substantially complete application has been filed.

''(D) ENFORCEMENT OF STATE STANDARDS.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall enter into agreements with States subject to a waiver under this paragraph to ensure the adequate enforcement of standards incorporated into the contract under subparagraph (A)(ii). Such agreements shall provide methods by which States may notify the Secretary of any failure by an organization to comply with such standards.

''(ii) ENFORCEMENT.—If the Secretary determines that an organization is not in compliance with the standards described in clause (i), the Secretary shall take appropriate actions under subsections (g) and (h) with respect to civil penalties and termination of the contract. The Secretary shall allow an organization 60 days to comply with the standards after notification of failure.

''(E) REPORT.—The Secretary shall, not later than December 31, 1998, report to Congress on the waiver procedure in effect under this paragraph. Such report shall include an analysis of State efforts to adopt regulatory standards that take into account health plan sponsors that provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers.

''(3) EXCEPTION IF REQUIRED TO OFFER MORE THAN MEDICARE CHOICE PLANS.—Paragraph (1) shall not apply to a Medicare Choice organization in a State if the State requires the organization, as a condition of licensure, to offer any product or plan other than a Medicare Choice plan.

''(4) LICENSURE DOES NOT SUBSTITUTE FOR OR CONSTITUTE CERTIFICATION.—The fact that an organization is licensed in accordance with paragraph (1) does not deem the organization to meet other requirements imposed under this part.

''(b) PREPAID PAYMENT.—A Medicare Choice organization shall be compensated (except for premiums, deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments) for the provision of health care services to enrolled members under the contract under this part by a payment which is paid on a periodic basis without regard to the date the health care services are provided and which is fixed without regard to the frequency, extent, or kind of health care service actually provided to a member.

''(c) ASSUMPTION OF FULL FINANCIAL RISK.—The Medicare Choice organization shall assume full financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of the health care services (except, at the election of the organization, hospice care) for which benefits are required to be provided under section 1852(a)(1), except that the organization—

''(1) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of providing to any enrolled member such services the aggregate value of which for any year exceeds the applicable amount determined under the last sentence of this subsection for the year,

''(2) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for the cost of such services provided to its enrolled members other than through the organization because medical necessity required their provision before they could be secured through the organization,

''(3) may obtain insurance or make other arrangements for not more than 90 percent of the amount by which its costs for any of its fiscal years exceed 115 percent of its income for such fiscal year, and

''(4) may make arrangements with physicians or other health professionals, health care institutions, or any combination of such individuals or institutions to assume all or part of the financial risk on a prospective basis for the provision of basic health services by the physicians or other health professionals or through the institutions.

For purposes of paragraph (1), the applicable amount for 1998 is the amount established by the Secretary, and for 1999 and any succeeding year is the amount in effect for the previous year increased by the percentage change in the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers (U.S. city average) for the 12-month period ending with June of the previous year.

''(d) CERTIFICATION OF PROVISION AGAINST RISK OF INSOLVENCY FOR PSOS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each Medicare Choice organization that is a provider-sponsored organization with a waiver in effect under subsection (a)(2) shall meet the standards established under section 1856(a) with respect to the financial solvency and capital adequacy of the organization.

''(2) CERTIFICATION PROCESS FOR SOLVENCY STANDARDS FOR PSOS.—The Secretary shall establish a process for the receipt and approval of applications of a provider-sponsored organization for certification (and periodic recertification) of the organization as meeting such solvency standards. Under such process, the Secretary shall act upon such an application not later than 60 days after the date the application has been received.

''(e) PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATION DEFINED.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In this part, the term 'provider-sponsored organization' means a public or private entity—

''(A) that is established or organized and operated by a local health care provider, or local group of affiliated health care providers,

''(B) that provides a substantial proportion (as defined by the Secretary in accordance with paragraph (2)) of the health care items and services under the contract under this part directly through the provider or affiliated group of providers, and

''(C) with respect to which those affiliated providers that share, directly or indirectly, substantial financial risk with respect to the provision of such items and services have at least a majority financial interest in the entity.

''(2) SUBSTANTIAL PROPORTION.—In defining what is a 'substantial proportion' for purposes of paragraph (1)(B), the Secretary—

''(A) shall take into account the need for such an organization to assume responsibility for providing—

''(i) significantly more than the majority of the items and services under the contract under this section through its own affiliated providers; and

''(ii) most of the remainder of the items and services under the contract through providers with which the organization has an agreement to provide such items and services, in order to assure financial stability and to address the practical considerations involved in integrating the delivery of a wide range of service providers;

''(B) shall take into account the need for such an organization to provide a limited proportion of the items and services under the contract through providers that are neither affiliated with nor have an agreement with the organization; and

''(C) may allow for variation in the definition of substantial proportion among such organizations based on relevant differences among the organizations, such as their location in an urban or rural area.

''(3) AFFILIATION.—For purposes of this subsection, a provider is 'affiliated' with another provider if, through contract, ownership, or otherwise—

''(A) one provider, directly or indirectly, controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with the other,

''(B) both providers are part of a controlled group of corporations under section 1563 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986,

''(C) each provider is a participant in a lawful combination under which each provider shares substantial financial risk in connection with the organization's operations, or

''(D) both providers are part of an affiliated service group under section 414 of such Code.

''(4) CONTROL.—For purposes of paragraph (3), control is presumed to exist if one party, directly or indirectly, owns, controls, or holds the power to vote, or proxies for, not less than 51 percent of the voting rights or governance rights of another.

''(5) HEALTH CARE PROVIDER DEFINED.—In this subsection, the term 'health care provider' means—

''(A) any individual who is engaged in the delivery of health care services in a State and who is required by State law or regulation to be licensed or certified by the State to engage in the delivery of such services in the State, and

''(B) any entity that is engaged in the delivery of health care services in a State and that, if it is required by State law or regulation to be licensed or certified by the State to engage in the delivery of such services in the State, is so licensed.

''(6) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary shall issue regulations to carry out this subsection.

''ESTABLISHMENT OF STANDARDS

''SEC. 1856. (a) ESTABLISHMENT OF SOLVENCY STANDARDS FOR PROVIDER-SPONSORED ORGANIZATIONS.—

''(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish, on an expedited basis and using a negotiated rulemaking process under subchapter III of chapter 5 of title 5, United States Code, standards described in section 1855(d)(1) (relating to the financial solvency and capital adequacy of the organization) that entities must meet to qualify as provider-sponsored organizations under this part.

''(B) FACTORS TO CONSIDER FOR SOLVENCY STANDARDS.—In establishing solvency standards under subparagraph (A) for provider-sponsored organizations, the Secretary shall consult with interested parties and shall take into account—

''(i) the delivery system assets of such an organization and ability of such an organization to provide services directly to enrollees through affiliated providers,

''(ii) alternative means of protecting against insolvency, including reinsurance, unrestricted surplus, letters of credit, guarantees, organizational insurance coverage, partnerships with other licensed entities, and valuation attributable to the ability of such an organization to meet its service obligations through direct delivery of care, and

''(iii) any standards developed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners specifically for risk-based health care delivery organizations.

''(C) ENROLLEE PROTECTION AGAINST INSOLVENCY.—Such standards shall include provisions to prevent enrollees from being held liable to any person or entity for the Medicare Choice organization's debts in the event of the organization's insolvency.

''(2) PUBLICATION OF NOTICE.—In carrying out the rulemaking process under this subsection, the Secretary, after consultation with the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, the American Academy of Actuaries, organizations representative of medicare beneficiaries, and other interested parties, shall publish the notice provided for under section 564(a) of title 5, United States Code, by not later than 45 days after the date of the enactment of this section.

''(3) TARGET DATE FOR PUBLICATION OF RULE.—As part of the notice under paragraph (2), and for purposes of this subsection, the 'target date for publication' (referred to in section 564(a)(5) of such title) shall be April 1, 1998.

''(4) ABBREVIATED PERIOD FOR SUBMISSION OF COMMENTS.—In applying section 564(c) of such title under this subsection, '15 days' shall be substituted for '30 days'.

''(5) APPOINTMENT OF NEGOTIATED RULEMAKING COMMITTEE AND FACILITATOR.—The Secretary shall provide for—

''(A) the appointment of a negotiated rulemaking committee under section 565(a) of such title by not later than 30 days after the end of the comment period provided for under section 564(c) of such title (as shortened under paragraph (4)), and

''(B) the nomination of a facilitator under section 566(c) of such title by not later than 10 days after the date of appointment of the committee.

''(6) PRELIMINARY COMMITTEE REPORT.—The negotiated rulemaking committee appointed under paragraph (5) shall report to the Secretary, by not later than January 1, 1998, regarding the committee's progress on achieving a consensus with regard to the rulemaking proceeding and whether such consensus is likely to occur before 1 month before the target date for publication of the rule. If the committee reports that the committee has failed to make significant progress towards such consensus or is unlikely to reach such consensus by the target date, the Secretary may terminate such process and provide for the publication of a rule under this subsection through such other methods as the Secretary may provide.

''(7) FINAL COMMITTEE REPORT.—If the committee is not terminated under paragraph (6), the rulemaking committee shall submit a report containing a proposed rule by not later than 1 month before the target date of publication.

''(8) INTERIM, FINAL EFFECT.—The Secretary shall publish a rule under this subsection in the Federal Register by not later than the target date of publication. Such rule shall be effective and final immediately on an interim basis, but is subject to change and revision after public notice and opportunity for a period (of not less than 60 days) for public comment. In connection with such rule, the Secretary shall specify the process for the timely review and approval of applications of entities to be certified as provider-sponsored organizations pursuant to such rules and consistent with this subsection.

''(9) PUBLICATION OF RULE AFTER PUBLIC COMMENT.—The Secretary shall provide for consideration of such comments and republication of such rule by not later than 1 year after the target date of publication.

''(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF OTHER STANDARDS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish by regulation other standards (not described in subsection (a)) for Medicare Choice organizations and plans consistent with, and to carry out, this part.

''(2) USE OF CURRENT STANDARDS.—Consistent with the requirements of this part, standards established under this subsection shall be based on standards established under section 1876 to carry out analogous provisions of such section.

''(3) USE OF INTERIM STANDARDS.—For the period in which this part is in effect and standards are being developed and established under the preceding provisions of this subsection, the Secretary shall provide by not later than June 1, 1998, for the application of such interim standards (without regard to any requirements for notice and public comment) as may be appropriate to provide for the expedited implementation of this part. Such interim standards shall not apply after the date standards are established under the preceding provisions of this subsection.

''(4) APPLICATION OF NEW STANDARDS TO ENTITIES WITH A CONTRACT.—In the case of a Medicare Choice organization with a contract in effect under this part at the time standards applicable to the organization under this section are changed, the organization may elect not to have such changes apply to the organization until the end of the current contract year (or, if there is less than 6 months remaining in the contract year, until 1 year after the end of the current contract year).

''(5) RELATION TO STATE LAWS.—The standards established under this subsection shall supersede any State law or regulation with respect to Medicare Choice plans which are offered by Medicare Choice organizations under this part to the extent such law or regulation is inconsistent with such standards.

''CONTRACTS WITH MEDICARE CHOICE ORGANIZATIONS

''SEC. 1857. (a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not permit the election under section 1851 of a Medicare Choice plan offered by a Medicare Choice organization under this part, and no payment shall be made under section 1853 to an organization, unless the Secretary has entered into a contract under this section with the organization with respect to the offering of such plan. Such a contract with an organization may cover more than 1 Medicare Choice plan. Such contract shall provide that the organization agrees to comply with the applicable requirements and standards of this part and the terms and conditions of payment as provided for in this part.

''(b) MINIMUM ENROLLMENT REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary may not enter into a contract under this section with a Medicare Choice organization unless the organization has at least 1,500 individuals who are receiving health benefits through the organization (500 such individuals if the organization primarily serves individuals residing outside of urbanized areas).

''(2) ALLOWING TRANSITION.—The Secretary may waive the requirement of paragraph (1) during the first 2 contract years with respect to an organization.

''(3) SPECIAL RULE FOR PSO.—In the case of a Medicare Choice organization which is a provider-sponsored organization, paragraph (1) shall be applied by taking into account individuals for whom the organization has assumed substantial financial risk.

''(c) CONTRACT PERIOD AND EFFECTIVENESS.—

''(1) PERIOD.—Each contract under this section shall be for a term of at least 1 year, as determined by the Secretary, and may be made automatically renewable from term to term in the absence of notice by either party of intention to terminate at the end of the current term.

''(2) TERMINATION AUTHORITY.—In accordance with procedures established under subsection (h), the Secretary may at any time terminate any such contract, or may impose the intermediate sanctions described in an applicable paragraph of subsection (g)(3) on the Medicare Choice organization, if the Secretary determines that the organization—

''(A) has failed substantially to carry out the contract;

''(B) is carrying out the contract in a manner inconsistent with the efficient and effective administration of this part; or

''(C) no longer substantially meets the applicable conditions of this part.

''(3) EFFECTIVE DATE OF CONTRACTS.—The effective date of any contract executed pursuant to this section shall be specified in the contract, except that in no case shall a contract under this section which provides for coverage under an MSA plan be effective before January 1999 with respect to such coverage.

''(4) PREVIOUS TERMINATIONS.—The Secretary may not enter into a contract with a Medicare Choice organization if a previous contract with that organization under this section was terminated at the request of the organization within the preceding 5-year period, except in circumstances which warrant special consideration, as determined by the Secretary.

''(5) NO CONTRACTING AUTHORITY.—The authority vested in the Secretary by this part may be performed without regard to such provisions of law or regulations relating to the making, performance, amendment, or modification of contracts of the United States as the Secretary may determine to be inconsistent with the furtherance of the purpose of this title.

''(d) PROTECTIONS AGAINST FRAUD AND BENEFICIARY PROTECTIONS.—

''(1) INSPECTION AND AUDIT.—Each contract under this section shall provide that the Secretary, or any person or organization designated by the Secretary—

''(A) shall have the right to inspect or otherwise evaluate (i) the quality, appropriateness, and timeliness of services performed under the contract and (ii) the facilities of the organization when there is reasonable evidence of some need for such inspection, and

''(B) shall have the right to audit and inspect any books and records of the Medicare Choice organization that pertain (i) to the ability of the organization to bear the risk of potential financial losses, or (ii) to services performed or determinations of amounts payable under the contract.

''(2) ENROLLEE NOTICE AT TIME OF TERMINATION.—Each contract under this section shall require the organization to provide (and pay for) written notice in advance of the contract's termination, as well as a description of alternatives for obtaining benefits under this title, to each individual enrolled with the organization under this part.

''(3) DISCLOSURE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall, in accordance with regulations of the Secretary, report to the Secretary financial information which shall include the following:

''(i) Such information as the Secretary may require demonstrating that the organization has a fiscally sound operation.

''(ii) A copy of the report, if any, filed with the Health Care Financing Administration containing the information required to be reported under section 1124 by disclosing entities.

''(iii) A description of transactions, as specified by the Secretary, between the organization and a party in interest. Such transactions shall include—

''(I) any sale or exchange, or leasing of any property between the organization and a party in interest;

''(II) any furnishing for consideration of goods, services (including management services), or facilities between the organization and a party in interest, but not including salaries paid to employees for services provided in the normal course of their employment and health services provided to members by hospitals and other providers and by staff, medical group (or groups), individual practice association (or associations), or any combination thereof; and

''(III) any lending of money or other extension of credit between an organization and a party in interest.

The Secretary may require that information reported respecting an organization which controls, is controlled by, or is under common control with, another entity be in the form of a consolidated financial statement for the organization and such entity.

''(B) PARTY IN INTEREST DEFINED.—For the purposes of this paragraph, the term 'party in interest' means—

''(i) any director, officer, partner, or employee responsible for management or administration of a Medicare Choice organization, any person who is directly or indirectly the beneficial owner of more than 5 percent of the equity of the organization, any person who is the beneficial owner of a mortgage, deed of trust, note, or other interest secured by, and valuing more than 5 percent of the organization, and, in the case of a Medicare Choice organization organized as a nonprofit corporation, an incorporator or member of such corporation under applicable State corporation law;

''(ii) any entity in which a person described in clause (i)—

''(I) is an officer or director;

''(II) is a partner (if such entity is organized as a partnership);

''(III) has directly or indirectly a beneficial interest of more than 5 percent of the equity; or

''(IV) has a mortgage, deed of trust, note, or other interest valuing more than 5 percent of the assets of such entity;

''(iii) any person directly or indirectly controlling, controlled by, or under common control with an organization; and

''(iv) any spouse, child, or parent of an individual described in clause (i).

''(C) ACCESS TO INFORMATION.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall make the information reported pursuant to subparagraph (A) available to its enrollees upon reasonable request.

''(4) LOAN INFORMATION.—The contract shall require the organization to notify the Secretary of loans and other special financial arrangements which are made between the organization and subcontractors, affiliates, and related parties.

''(e) ADDITIONAL CONTRACT TERMS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The contract shall contain such other terms and conditions not inconsistent with this part (including requiring the organization to provide the Secretary with such information) as the Secretary may find necessary and appropriate.

''(2) COST-SHARING IN ENROLLMENT-RELATED COSTS.—The contract with a Medicare Choice organization shall require the payment to the Secretary for the organization's pro rata share (as determined by the Secretary) of the estimated costs to be incurred by the Secretary in carrying out section 1851 (relating to enrollment and dissemination of information). Such payments are appropriated to defray the costs described in the preceding sentence, to remain available until expended.

''(3) NOTICE TO ENROLLEES IN CASE OF DECERTIFICATION.—If a contract with a Medicare Choice organization is terminated under this section, the organization shall notify each enrollee with the organization under this part of such termination.

''(f) PROMPT PAYMENT BY MEDICARE CHOICE ORGANIZATION.—

''(1) REQUIREMENT.—A contract under this part shall require a Medicare Choice organization to provide prompt payment (consistent with the provisions of sections 1816(c)(2) and 1842(c)(2)) of claims submitted for services and supplies furnished to individuals pursuant to the contract, if the services or supplies are not furnished under a contract between the organization and the provider or supplier.

''(2) SECRETARY'S OPTION TO BYPASS NONCOMPLYING ORGANIZATION.—In the case of a Medicare Choice eligible organization which the Secretary determines, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, has failed to make payments of amounts in compliance with paragraph (1), the Secretary may provide for direct payment of the amounts owed to providers and suppliers for covered services and supplies furnished to individuals enrolled under this part under the contract. If the Secretary provides for the direct payments, the Secretary shall provide for an appropriate reduction in the amount of payments otherwise made to the organization under this part to reflect the amount of the Secretary's payments (and the Secretary's costs in making the payments).

''(g) INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—If the Secretary determines that a Medicare Choice organization with a contract under this section—

''(A) fails substantially to provide medically necessary items and services that are required (under law or under the contract) to be provided to an individual covered under the contract, if the failure has adversely affected (or has substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) the individual;

''(B) imposes net monthly premiums on individuals enrolled under this part in excess of the net monthly premiums permitted;

''(C) acts to expel or to refuse to re-enroll an individual in violation of the provisions of this part;

''(D) engages in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrollment (except as permitted by this part) by eligible individuals with the organization whose medical condition or history indicates a need for substantial future medical services;

''(E) misrepresents or falsifies information that is furnished—

''(i) to the Secretary under this part, or

''(ii) to an individual or to any other entity under this part;

''(F) fails to comply with the requirements of section 1852(j)(3); or

''(G) employs or contracts with any individual or entity that is excluded from participation under this title under section 1128 or 1128A for the provision of health care, utilization review, medical social work, or administrative services or employs or contracts with any entity for the provision (directly or indirectly) through such an excluded individual or entity of such services; the Secretary may provide, in addition to any other remedies authorized by law, for any of the remedies described in paragraph (2).

''(2) REMEDIES.—The remedies described in this paragraph are—

''(A) civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination under paragraph (1) or, with respect to a determination under subparagraph (D) or (E)(i) of such paragraph, of not more than $100,000 for each such determination, plus, with respect to a determination under paragraph (1)(B), double the excess amount charged in violation of such paragraph (and the excess amount charged shall be deducted from the penalty and returned to the individual concerned), and plus, with respect to a determination under paragraph (1)(D), $15,000 for each individual not enrolled as a result of the practice involved,

''(B) suspension of enrollment of individuals under this part after the date the Secretary notifies the organization of a determination under paragraph (1) and until the Secretary is satisfied that the basis for such determination has been corrected and is not likely to recur, or

''(C) suspension of payment to the organization under this part for individuals enrolled after the date the Secretary notifies the organization of a determination under paragraph (1) and until the Secretary is satisfied that the basis for such determination has been corrected and is not likely to recur.

''(3) OTHER INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—In the case of a Medicare Choice organization for which the Secretary makes a determination under subsection (c)(2) the basis of which is not described in paragraph (1), the Secretary may apply the following intermediate sanctions:

''(A) Civil money penalties of not more than $25,000 for each determination under subsection (c)(2) if the deficiency that is the basis of the determination has directly adversely affected (or has the substantial likelihood of adversely affecting) an individual covered under the organization's contract.

''(B) Civil money penalties of not more than $10,000 for each week beginning after the initiation of procedures by the Secretary under subsection (g) during which the deficiency that is the basis of a determination under subsection (c)(2) exists.

''(C) Suspension of enrollment of individuals under this part after the date the Secretary notifies the organization of a determination under subsection (c)(2) and until the Secretary is satisfied that the deficiency that is the basis for the determination has been corrected and is not likely to recur.

''(4) CIVIL MONEY PENALTIES.—The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply to a civil money penalty under subsection (f) or under paragraph (2) or (3) of this subsection in the same manner as they apply to a civil money penalty or proceeding under section 1128A(a).

''(h) PROCEDURES FOR TERMINATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may terminate a contract with a Medicare Choice organization under this section in accordance with formal investigation and compliance procedures established by the Secretary under which—

''(A) the Secretary provides the organization with the reasonable opportunity to develop and implement a corrective action plan to correct the deficiencies that were the basis of the Secretary's determination under subsection (c)(2);

''(2) SERVICE AREA AND ELIGIBILITY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A PACE program agreement for a PACE program—

''(i) shall designate the service area of the program;

''(ii) may provide additional requirements for individuals to qualify as PACE program eligible individuals with respect to the program;

''(B) SERVICE AREA OVERLAP.—In designating a service area under a PACE program agreement under subparagraph (A)(i), the Secretary (in consultation with the State administering agency) may exclude from designation an area that is already covered under another PACE program agreement, in order to avoid unnecessary duplication of services and avoid impairing the financial and service viability of an existing program.

''(3) DATA COLLECTION; DEVELOPMENT OF OUTCOME MEASURES.—

''(A) DATA COLLECTION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Under a PACE program agreement, the PACE provider shall—

''(I) collect data;

''(B) CONTINUING OVERSIGHT.—After the trial period, the Secretary (in cooperation with the State administering agency) shall continue to conduct such review of the operation of PACE providers and PACE programs as may be appropriate, taking into account the performance level of a provider and compliance of a provider with all significant requirements of this section and regulations.

''(C) DISCLOSURE.—The results of reviews under this paragraph shall be reported promptly to the PACE provider, along with any recommendations for changes to the provider's program, and shall be made available to the public upon request.

''(B) CAUSES FOR TERMINATION.—In accordance with regulations establishing procedures for termination of PACE program agreements, the Secretary or a State administering agency may terminate a PACE program agreement with a PACE provider for, among other reasons, the fact that—

''(i) the Secretary or State administering agency determines that—

''(I) there are significant deficiencies in the quality of care provided to enrolled participants; or

''(II) the provider has failed to comply substantially with conditions for a program or provider under this section or section 1932; and

''(ii) the entity has failed to develop and successfully initiate, within 30 days of the receipt of written notice of such a determination, a plan to correct the deficiencies, or has failed to continue implementation of such a plan.

''(C) TERMINATION AND TRANSITION PROCEDURES.—An entity whose PACE provider agreement is terminated under this paragraph shall implement the transition procedures required under subsection (a)(2)(C).

''(6) SECRETARY'S OVERSIGHT; ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Under regulations, if the Secretary determines (after consultation with the State administering agency) that a PACE provider is failing substantially to comply with the requirements of this section and regulations, the Secretary (and the State administering agency) may take any or all of the following actions:

''(i) Condition the continuation of the PACE program agreement upon timely execution of a corrective action plan.

''(ii) Withhold some or all further payments under the PACE program agreement under this section or section 1932 with respect to PACE program services furnished by such provider until the deficiencies have been corrected.

''(8) TIMELY CONSIDERATION OF APPLICATIONS FOR PACE PROGRAM PROVIDER STATUS.—In considering an application for PACE provider program status, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days after the date of the submission of the application to the Secretary, either denies such request in writing or informs the applicant in writing with respect to any additional information that is needed in order to make a final determination with respect to the application. After the date the Secretary receives such additional information, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days of such date, denies such request.

''(ii) The delivery of comprehensive, integrated acute and long-term care services.

''(iii) The interdisciplinary team approach to care management and service delivery.

''(iv) Capitated, integrated financing that allows the provider to pool payments received from public and private programs and individuals.

''(v) The assumption by the provider of full financial risk.

''(3) APPLICATION OF CERTAIN ADDITIONAL BENEFICIARY AND PROGRAM PROTECTIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In issuing such regulations and subject to subparagraph (B), the Secretary may apply with respect to PACE programs, providers, and agreements such requirements of sections 1876 and 1903(m) relating to protection of beneficiaries and program integrity as would apply to eligible organizations under risk-sharing contracts under section 1876 and to health maintenance organizations under prepaid capitation agreements under section 1903(m).

''(4) Section 1861(i), insofar as it imposes a 3-day prior hospitalization requirement for coverage of extended care services.

''(5) Paragraphs (1) and (9) of section 1862(a), insofar as they may prevent payment for PACE program services to individuals enrolled under PACE programs.

''(h) DEMONSTRATION PROJECT FOR FOR-PROFIT ENTITIES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to demonstrate the operation of a PACE program by a private, for-profit entity, the Secretary (in close consultation with State administering agencies) shall grant waivers from the requirement under subsection (a)(3) that a PACE provider may not be a for-profit, private entity.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services (in this subchapter referred to as the ''Secretary'') shall, beginning January 1, 1999, conduct demonstration projects in applicable areas (in this section referred to as the ''project'') for the purpose of—

(1) applying a pricing methodology for payments to Medicare Choice organizations under part C of title XVIII of the Social Security Act (as amended by section 5001 of this Act) that uses the competitive market approach described in section 5042;

(2) applying a benefit structure and beneficiary premium structure described in section 5043;

(3) applying the information and quality programs under part II; and

(4) evaluating the effects of the methodology and structures described in the preceding paragraphs on medicare fee-for-service spending under parts A and B of the Social Security Act in the project area.

(b) APPLICABLE AREA DEFINED.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—In subsection (a), the term ''applicable area'' means, as determined by the Secretary—

(A) 10 urban areas with respect to which less than 25 percent of medicare beneficiaries are enrolled with an eligible organization under section 1876 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395mm); and

(B) 3 rural areas not described in paragraph (1).

(2) TREATMENT AS MEDICARE CHOICE PAYMENT AREA.—For purposes of this subchapter and part C of title XVIII of the Social Security Act, any applicable area shall be treated as a Medicare Choice payment area (hereinafter referred to as the ''applicable Medicare Choice payment area'').

(c) TECHNICAL ADVISORY GROUP.—Upon the selection of an area for inclusion in the project, the Secretary shall appoint a technical advisory group, composed of representatives of Medicare Choice organizations, medicare beneficiaries, employers, and other persons in the area affected by the project who have technical expertise relative to the design and implementation of the project to advise the Secretary concerning how the project will be implemented in the area.

(d) EVALUATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than December 31, 2001, the Secretary shall submit to the President a report regarding the demonstration projects conducted under this section.

(2) CONTENTS OF REPORT.—The report described in paragraph (1) shall include the following:

(A) A description of the demonstration projects conducted under this section.

(B) An evaluation of the effectiveness of the demonstration projects conducted under this section and any legislative recommendations determined appropriate by the Secretary.

(D) An evaluation as to whether the method of payment under section 5042 which was used in the demonstration projects for payment to Medicare Choice plans should be extended to the entire medicare population and if such evaluation determines that such method should not be extended, legislative recommendations to modify such method so that it may be applied to the entire medicare population.

(3) SUBMISSION TO CONGRESS.—The President shall submit the report under paragraph (2) to the Congress and if the President determines appropriate, any legislative recommendations for extending the project to the entire medicare population.

(e) WAIVER AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall waive compliance with the requirements of titles XI, XVIII, and XIX of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1301 et seq., 1395 et seq., 1396 et seq.) to such extent and for such period as the Secretary determines is necessary to conduct demonstration projects.

SEC. 5042. DETERMINATION OF ANNUAL MEDICARE CHOICE CAPITATION RATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an applicable Medicare Choice payment area within which a project is being conducted under section 5041, the annual Medicare Choice capitation rate under part C of title XVIII of the Social Security Act for Medicare Choice plans within such area shall be the standardized payment amount determined under this section rather than the amount determined under section 1853 of such Act.

(b) DETERMINATION OF STANDARDIZED PAYMENT AMOUNT.—

(1) SUBMISSION AND CHARGING OF PREMIUMS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than June 1 of each calendar year, each Medicare Choice organization offering one or more Medicare Choice plans in an applicable Medicare Choice payment area shall file with the Secretary, in a form and manner and at a time specified by the Secretary, a bid which contains the amount of the monthly premium for coverage under each such Medicare Choice plan.

(B) UNIFORM PREMIUM.—The premiums charged by a Medicare Choice plan sponsor under this part may not vary among individuals who reside in the same applicable Medicare Choice payment area.

(C) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF IMPOSING PREMIUMS.—Each Medicare Choice organization shall permit the payment of premiums on a monthly basis.

(2) ANNOUNCEMENT OF STANDARDIZED PAYMENT AMOUNT.—

(A) AUTHORITY TO NEGOTIATE.—After bids are submitted under paragraph (1), the Secretary may negotiate with Medicare Choice organizations in order to modify such bids if the Secretary determined that the bids do not provide enough revenues to ensure the plan's actuarial soundness, are too high relative to the applicable Medicare Choice payment area, foster adverse selection, or otherwise require renegotiation under this paragraph.

(B) IN GENERAL.—Not later than July 31 of each calendar year (beginning with 1998), the Secretary shall determine, and announce in a manner intended to provide notice to interested parties, a standardized payment amount determined in accordance with this paragraph for the following calendar year for each applicable Medicare Choice payment area.

(3) CALCULATION OF PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The standardized payment amount for a calendar year after 1998 for any applicable Medicare Choice payment area shall be equal to the maximum premium determined for such area under subparagraph (B).

(B) MAXIMUM PREMIUM.—The maximum premium for any applicable Medicare Choice payment area shall be equal to the amount determined under subparagraph (C) for the payment area, but in no case shall such amount be greater than the sum of—

(i) the average per capita amount, as determined by the Secretary as appropriate for the population eligible to enroll in Medicare Choice plans in such payment area, for such calendar year that the Secretary would have expended for an individual in such payment area enrolled under the medicare fee-for-service program under parts A and B, plus

(ii) the amount equal to the actuarial value of deductibles, coinsurance, and copayments charged an individual for services provided under the medicare fee-for-service program (as determined by the Secretary).

(C) DETERMINATION OF AMOUNT.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall determine for each applicable Medicare Choice payment area for each calendar year an amount equal to the average of the bids (weighted based on capacity) submitted to the Secretary under paragraph (1)(A) for that payment area.

(ii) DISREGARD CERTAIN PLANS.—In determining the amount under clause (i), the Secretary may disregard any plan that the Secretary determines would unreasonably distort the amount determined under such subparagraph.

(4) ADJUSTMENTS FOR PAYMENTS TO PLAN SPONSORS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of determining the amount of payment under part C of title XVIII of the Social Security Act to a Medicare Choice organization with respect to any Medicare Choice eligible individual enrolled in a Medicare Choice plan of the sponsor, the standardized payment amount for the applicable Medicare Choice payment area and the premium charged by the plan sponsor shall be adjusted with respect to such individual for such risk factors as age, disability status, gender, institutional status, health status, and such other factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate, so as to ensure actuarial equivalence. The Secretary may add to, modify, or substitute for such classes, if such changes will improve the determination of actuarial equivalence.

(B) RECOMMENDATIONS.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any other duties required by law, the Physician Payment Review Commission and the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission (or their successors) shall each develop recommendations on—

(I) the risk factors that the Secretary should use in adjusting the standardized payment amount and premium under subparagraph (A), and

(II) the methodology that the Secretary should use in determining the risk factors to be used in adjusting the standardized payment amount and premium under subparagraph (A).

(ii) TIME.—The recommendations described in clause (i) shall be developed not later than January 1, 1999.

(iii) ANNUAL REPORT.—The Physician Payment Review Commission and the Prospective Payment Assessment Commission (or their successors) shall include the recommendations described in clause (i) in their respective annual reports to Congress.

(c) PAYMENTS TO PLAN SPONSORS.—

(1) MONTHLY PAYMENTS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (4), for each individual enrolled with a plan under this subchapter, the Secretary shall make monthly payments in advance to the Medicare Choice organization of the Medicare Choice plan with which the individual is enrolled in an amount equal to 1/12 of the amount determined under paragraph (2).

(B) RETROACTIVE ADJUSTMENTS.—The amount of payment under this paragraph may be retroactively adjusted to take into account any difference between the actual number of individuals enrolled in the plan under this section and the number of such individuals estimated to be so enrolled in determining the amount of the advance payment.

(2) AMOUNT OF PAYMENT TO MEDICARE CHOICE PLANS.—The amount determined under this paragraph with respect to any individual shall be equal to the sum of—

(A) the lesser of—

(i) the standardized payment amount for the applicable Medicare Choice payment area, as adjusted for such individual under subsection (a)(4), or

(ii) the premium charged by the plan for such individual, as adjusted for such individual under section (a)(4), minus

(B) the amount such individual paid to the plan pursuant to section 5043 (relating to 10 percent of the premium).

(3) PAYMENTS FROM TRUST FUNDS.—The payment to a Medicare Choice organization or to a Medicare Choice account under this section for a medicare-eligible individual shall be made from the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Fund in such proportion as the Secretary determines reflects the relative weight that benefits under parts A and B are representative of the actuarial value of the total benefits under this part.

(4) LIMITATION ON AMOUNTS AN OUT-OF-PLAN PHYSICIAN OR OTHER ENTITY MAY COLLECT.—A physician or other entity (other than a provider of services) that does not have a contract establishing payment amounts for services furnished to an individual enrolled under this subchapter with a Medicare Choice organization shall accept as payment in full for services that are furnished to such an individual the amounts that the physician or other entity could collect if the individual were not so enrolled. Any penalty or other provision of law that applies to such a payment with respect to an individual entitled to benefits under this title (but not enrolled with a Medicare Choice organization under this part) also applies with respect to an individual so enrolled.

(d) OFFICE OF COMPETITION.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Department of Health and Human Services an office to be known as the 'Office of Competition'.

(2) DIRECTOR.—The Secretary shall appoint the Director of the Office of Competition.

(3) DUTIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The Director shall administer this subchapter and so much of part C of title XVIII of the Social Security Act as relates to this subchapter.

(B) TRANSFER AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall transfer such personnel, administrative support systems, assets, records, funds, and other resources in the Health Care Financing Administration to the Office of Competition as are used in the administration of section 1876 and as may be required to implement the provisions of this part promptly and efficiently.

(4) USE OF NON-FEDERAL ENTITIES.—The Secretary shall, to the maximum extent feasible, enter into contracts with appropriate non-Federal entities to carry out activities under this subchapter.

SEC. 5043. BENEFITS AND BENEFICIARY PREMIUMS.

(a) BENEFITS PROVIDED TO INDIVIDUALS.—

(1) BASIC BENEFIT PLAN.—Each Medicare Choice plan in an applicable Medicare Choice payment area shall provide to members enrolled under this subchapter, through providers and other persons that meet the applicable requirements of title XVIII of the Social Security Act and part A of title XI of such Act—

(A) those items and services covered under parts A and B of title XVIII of such Act which are available to individuals residing in such area, subject to nominal copayments as determined by the Secretary,

(B) prescription drugs, subject to such limits as established by the Secretary, and

(C) additional health services as the Secretary may approve.

(2) SUPPLEMENTAL BENEFITS.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Each Medicare Choice plan may offer any of the optional supplemental benefit plans described in subparagraph (B) to an individual enrolled in the basic benefit plan offered by such organization under this subchapter for an additional premium amount. If the supplemental benefits are offered only to individuals enrolled in the sponsor's plan under this subchapter, the additional premium amount shall be the same for all enrolled individuals in the applicable Medicare Choice payment area. Such benefits may be marketed and sold by the Medicare Choice organization outside of the enrollment process described in part C of title XVIII of the Social Security Act.

''(i) MANAGED HEALTH CARE PLANS.—(1) In carrying out the demonstration project, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs may establish and operate managed health care plans.

''(2) Any such plan shall be operated by or through a Department of Veterans Affairs medical center or group of medical centers and may include the provision of health care services through other facilities under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Veterans Affairs as well as public and private entities under arrangements made between the Department and the other public or private entity concerned. Any such managed health care plan shall be established and operated in conformance with standards prescribed by the administering Secretaries.

''(3) The administering Secretaries shall prescribe the minimum health care benefits to be provided under such a plan to veterans enrolled in the plan. Those benefits shall include at least all health care services covered under the medicare program under this title.

''(4) The establishment of a managed health care plan under this section shall be counted as the selection of a medical center for purposes of applying the numerical limitation under subsection (b)(1).

''(j) MEDICAL CENTER REQUIREMENTS.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs may establish a managed health care plan using 1 or more medical centers and other facilities only after the Secretary of Veterans Affairs submits to Congress a report setting forth a plan for the use of such centers and facilities. The plan may not be implemented until the Secretary of Veterans Affairs has received from the Inspector General of the Department of Veterans Affairs, and has forwarded to Congress, certification of each of the following:

''(1) The cost accounting system of the Veterans Health Administration (known as the Decision Support System) is operational and is providing reliable cost information on care delivered on an inpatient and outpatient basis at such centers and facilities.

''(2) The centers and facilities have operated in conformity with the eligibility reform amendments made by title I of the Veterans Health Care Act of 1996 for not less than 3 months.

''(3) The centers and facilities have developed a credible plan (on the basis of market surveys, data from the Decision Support System, actuarial analysis, and other appropriate methods and taking into account the level of payment under subsection (l) and the costs of providing covered services at the centers and facilities) to minimize, to the extent feasible, the risk that appropriated funds allocated to the centers and facilities will be required to meet the centers' and facilities' obligation to targeted medicare-eligible veterans under the demonstration project.

''(4) The centers and facilities collectively have available capacity to provide the contracted benefits package to a sufficient number of targeted medicare-eligible veterans.

''(5) The entity administering the health plan has sufficient systems and safeguards in place to minimize any risk that instituting the managed care model will result in reducing the quality of care delivered to enrollees in the demonstration project or to other veterans receiving care under paragraphs subsection (1) or (2) of section 1710(a) of title 38, United States Code.

''(k) RESERVES.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall maintain such reserves as may be necessary to ensure against the risk that appropriated funds, allocated to medical centers and facilities participating in the demonstration project through a managed health care plan under this section, will be required to meet the obligations of those medical centers and facilities to targeted medicare-eligible veterans.

''(l) PAYMENTS BASED ON REGULAR MEDICARE PAYMENT RATES.—

''(1) PAYMENTS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the succeeding provisions of this subsection, the Secretary shall reimburse the Secretary of Veterans Affairs for services provided under the demonstration project at the following rates:

''(i) NONCAPITATION.—Except as provided in clause (ii) and subject to subparagraphs (B)(i) and (D), at a rate equal to 95 percent of the amounts that otherwise would be payable under this title on a noncapitated basis for such services if the medical center were not a Federal medical center, were participating in the program, and imposed charges for such services.

''(ii) CAPITATION.—Subject to subparagraphs (B)(ii) and (D), in the case of services provided to an enrollee under a managed health care plan established under subsection (i), at a rate equal to 95 percent of the amount paid to a Medicare Choice organization under part C with respect to such an enrollee.

In cases in which a payment amount may not otherwise be readily computed, the Secretaries shall establish rules for computing equivalent or comparable payment amounts.

''(B) EXCLUSION OF CERTAIN AMOUNTS.—

''(i) NONCAPITATION.—In computing the amount of payment under subparagraph (A)(i), the following shall be excluded:

''(ii) CAPITATION.—In the case of years before 2001, in computing the amount of payment under subparagraph (A)(ii), the payment rate shall be computed as though the amounts excluded under clause (i) had been excluded in the determination of the amount paid to a Medicare Choice organization under part C with respect to an enrollee.

''(C) PERIODIC PAYMENTS FROM MEDICARE TRUST FUNDS.—Payments under this subsection shall be made—

''(i) on a periodic basis consistent with the periodicity of payments under this title; and

''(i) the amount of the VA effort level for targeted veterans (as defined in subparagraph (B)) for the fiscal year ending in such year, is less than

''(B) VA EFFORT LEVEL FOR TARGETED VETERANS DEFINED.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), the term 'VA effort level for targeted veterans' means, for a fiscal year, the amount, as estimated by the administering Secretaries, that would have been expended under the medicare program under this title for VA-provided medicare-covered services for targeted veterans (as defined in subparagraph (C)) for that fiscal year if benefits were available under the medicare program for those services. ''(A) MONITORING EFFECT OF DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM ON COSTS TO MEDICARE PROGRAM.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretaries, in consultation with the Comptroller General, shall closely monitor the expenditures made under the medicare program for targeted medicare-eligible veterans during the period of the demonstration project compared to the expenditures that would have been made for such veterans during that period if the demonstration project had not been conducted.

''(ii) ANNUAL REPORT BY THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL.—Not later than December 31 of each year during which the demonstration project is conducted, the Comptroller General shall submit to the Secretaries and the appropriate committees of Congress a report on the extent, if any, to which the costs of the Secretary under the medicare program under this title increased during the preceding fiscal year as a result of the demonstration project.

''(B) REQUIRED RESPONSE IN CASE OF INCREASE IN COSTS.—

''(I) to recoup for the medicare program the amount of such increase in expenditures; and

''(II) to prevent any such increase in the future.

''(ii) STEPS.—Such steps—

''(I) under clause (i)(I) shall include payment of the amount of such increased expenditures by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs from the current medical care appropriation of the Department of Veterans Affairs to the trust funds; and

''(II) under clause (i)(II) shall include suspending or terminating the demonstration project (in whole or in part) or lowering the amount of payment under paragraph (1)(A).

''(1) INDEPENDENT EVALUATION.—The administering Secretaries shall arrange for an independent entity with expertise in the evaluation of health services to conduct an evaluation of the demonstration project. The entity shall submit annual reports on the demonstration project to the administering Secretaries and to the committees of jurisdiction in the Congress. The first report shall be submitted not later than 12 months after the date on which the demonstration project begins operation, and the final report not later than 3½ years after that date. ''(D) Any savings or costs to the medicare program under this title from the project.

''(E) Any change in access to care or quality of care for targeted medicare-eligible veterans participating in the project.

''(F) Any effect of the project on the access to care and quality of care for targeted medicare-eligible veterans not participating in the project and other veterans not participating in the project.

''(G) The provision of services under managed health care plans under subsection (l), including the circumstances (if any) under which the Secretary of Veterans Affairs uses reserves described in subsection (k) and the Secretary of Veterans Affairs' response to such circumstances (including the termination of managed health care plans requiring the use of such reserves).

''(H) Any effect that the demonstration project has on the enrollment in Medicare Choice organizations under part C of this title in the established site areas.

''(2) REPORT ON EXTENSION AND EXPANSION OF DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—Not later than six months after the date of the submission of the penultimate report under paragraph (1), the administering Secretaries shall submit to Congress a report containing their recommendation as to—

CHAPTER 1—PROVISIONS RELATING TO PART A

SEC. 5301. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR INPATIENT REHABILITATION HOSPITAL SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1886 (42 U.S.C. 1395ww) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

''(j) PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR INPATIENT REHABILITATION SERVICES.—

''(1) PAYMENT DURING TRANSITION PERIOD.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 1814(b), but subject to the provisions of section 1813, the amount of the payment with respect to the operating and capital costs of inpatient hospital services of a rehabilitation hospital or a rehabilitation unit (in this subsection referred to as a 'rehabilitation facility'), in a cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 2000, and before October 1, 2003, is equal to the sum of—

''(i) the TEFRA percentage (as defined in subparagraph (C)) of the amount that would have been paid under part A of this title with respect to such costs if this subsection did not apply, and

''(ii) the prospective payment percentage (as defined in subparagraph (C)) of the product of (I) the per unit payment rate established under this subsection for the fiscal year in which the payment unit of service occurs, and (II) the number of such payment units occurring in the cost reporting period.

''(B) FULLY IMPLEMENTED SYSTEM.—Notwithstanding section 1814(b), but subject to the provisions of section 1813, the amount of the payment with respect to the operating and capital costs of inpatient hospital services of a rehabilitation facility for a payment unit in a cost reporting period beginning on or after October 1, 2003, is equal to the per unit payment rate established under this subsection for the fiscal year in which the payment unit of service occurs.

''(C) TEFRA AND PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT PERCENTAGES SPECIFIED.—For purposes of subparagraph (A), for a cost reporting period beginning—

''(i) on or after October 1, 2000, and before October 1, 2001, the 'TEFRA percentage' is 75 percent and the 'prospective payment percentage' is 25 percent;

''(ii) on or after October 1, 2001, and before October 1, 2002, the 'TEFRA percentage' is 50 percent and the 'prospective payment percentage' is 50 percent; and

''(iii) on or after October 1, 2002, and before October 1, 2003, the 'TEFRA percentage' is 25 percent and the 'prospective payment percentage' is 75 percent.

''(D) PAYMENT UNIT.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'payment unit' means a discharge, day of inpatient hospital services, or other unit of payment defined by the Secretary.

''(2) PATIENT CASE MIX GROUPS.—

''(A) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary shall establish—

''(i) classes of patients of rehabilitation facilities (each in this subsection referred to as a 'case mix group'), based on such factors as the Secretary deems appropriate, which may include impairment, age, related prior hospitalization, comorbidities, and functional capability of the patient; and

''(ii) a method of classifying specific patients in rehabilitation facilities within these groups.

''(B) WEIGHTING FACTORS.—For each case mix group the Secretary shall assign an appropriate weighting which reflects the relative facility resources used with respect to patients classified within that group compared to patients classified within other groups.

''(C) ADJUSTMENTS FOR CASE MIX.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall from time to time adjust the classifications and weighting factors established under this paragraph as appropriate to reflect changes in treatment patterns, technology, case mix, number of payment units for which payment is made under this title, and other factors which may affect the relative use of resources. Such adjustments shall be made in a manner so that changes in aggregate payments under the classification system are a result of real changes and are not a result of changes in coding that are unrelated to real changes in case mix.

''(ii) ADJUSTMENT.—Insofar as the Secretary determines that such adjustments for a previous fiscal year (or estimates that such adjustments for a future fiscal year) did (or are likely to) result in a change in aggregate payments under the classification system during the fiscal year that are a result of changes in the coding or classification of patients that do not reflect real changes in case mix, the Secretary shall adjust the per payment unit payment rate for subsequent years so as to discount the effect of such coding or classification changes.

''(D) DATA COLLECTION.—The Secretary is authorized to require rehabilitation facilities that provide inpatient hospital services to submit such data as the Secretary deems necessary to establish and administer the prospective payment system under this subsection.

''(3) PAYMENT RATE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall determine a prospective payment rate for each payment unit for which such rehabilitation facility is entitled to receive payment under this title. Subject to subparagraph (B), such rate for payment units occurring during a fiscal year shall be based on the average payment per payment unit under this title for inpatient operating and capital costs of rehabilitation facilities using the most recent data available (as estimated by the Secretary as of the date of establishment of the system) adjusted—

''(i) by updating such per-payment-unit amount to the fiscal year involved by the weighted average of the applicable percentage increases provided under subsection (b)(3)(B)(ii) (for cost reporting periods beginning during the fiscal year) covering the period from the midpoint of the period for such data through the midpoint of fiscal year 2000 and by an increase factor (described in subparagraph (C)) specified by the Secretary for subsequent fiscal years up to the fiscal year involved;

''(ii) by reducing such rates by a factor equal to the proportion of payments under this subsection (as estimated by the Secretary) based on prospective payment amounts which are additional payments described in paragraph (4) (relating to outlier and related payments) or paragraph (7);

''(iii) for variations among rehabilitation facilities by area under paragraph (6);

''(iv) by the weighting factors established under paragraph (2)(B); and

''(v) by such other factors as the Secretary determines are necessary to properly reflect variations in necessary costs of treatment among rehabilitation facilities.

''(B) BUDGET NEUTRAL RATES.—The Secretary shall establish the prospective payment amounts under this subsection for payment units during fiscal years 2001 through 2004 at levels such that, in the Secretary's estimation, the amount of total payments under this subsection for such fiscal years (including any payment adjustments pursuant to paragraph (7)) shall be equal to 99 percent of the amount of payments that would have been made under this title during the fiscal years for operating and capital costs of rehabilitation facilities had this subsection not been enacted. In establishing such payment amounts, the Secretary shall consider the effects of the prospective payment system established under this subsection on the total number of payment units from rehabilitation facilities and other factors described in subparagraph (A).

''(C) INCREASE FACTOR.—For purposes of this subsection for payment units in each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 2001), the Secretary shall establish an increase factor. Such factor shall be based on an appropriate percentage increase in a market basket of goods and services comprising services for which payment is made under this subsection, which may be the market basket percentage increase described in subsection (b)(3)(B)(iii).

''(4) OUTLIER AND SPECIAL PAYMENTS.—

''(A) OUTLIERS.—

''(6) AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT.—The Secretary shall adjust the proportion (as estimated by the Secretary from time to time) of rehabilitation facilities' costs which are attributable to wages and wage-related costs, of the prospective payment rates computed under paragraph (3) for area differences in wage levels by a factor (established by the Secretary) reflecting the relative hospital wage level in the geographic area of the rehabilitation facility compared to the national average wage level for such facilities. Not later than October 1, 2001 (and at least every 36 months thereafter), the Secretary shall update the factor under the preceding sentence on the basis of a survey conducted by the Secretary (and updated as appropriate) of the wages and wage-related costs incurred in furnishing rehabilitation services. Any adjustments or updates made under this paragraph for a fiscal year shall be made in a manner that assures that the aggregated payments under this subsection in the fiscal year are not greater or less than those that would have been made in the year without such adjustment.

''(7) ADDITIONAL ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary may provide by regulation for—

''(A) an additional payment to take into account indirect costs of medical education and the special circumstances of hospitals that serve a significantly disproportionate number of low-income patients in a manner similar to that provided under subparagraphs (B) and (F), respectively, of subsection (d)(5); and

SEC. 5313. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM FOR HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENT SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 1833 (42 U.S.C. 1395l) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(t) PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM FOR HOSPITAL OUTPATIENT DEPARTMENT SERVICES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—With respect to hospital outpatient services designated by the Secretary (in this section referred to as 'covered OPD services') and furnished during a year beginning with 1999, the amount of payment under this part shall be determined under a prospective payment system established by the Secretary in accordance with this subsection.

''(2) SYSTEM REQUIREMENTS.—Under the payment system—

''(A) the Secretary shall develop a classification system for covered OPD services;

''(B) the Secretary may establish groups of covered OPD services, within the classification system described in subparagraph (A), so that services classified within each group are comparable clinically and with respect to the use of resources;

''(C) the Secretary shall, using data on claims from 1997 and using data from the most recent available cost reports, establish relative payment weights for covered OPD services (and any groups of such services described in subparagraph (B)) based on median hospital costs and shall determine projections of the frequency of utilization of each such service (or group of services) in 1999;

''(D) the Secretary shall determine a wage adjustment factor to adjust the portion of payment and coinsurance attributable to labor-related costs for relative differences in labor and labor-related costs across geographic regions in a budget neutral manner;

''(E) the Secretary shall establish other adjustments as determined to be necessary to ensure equitable payments, such as outlier adjustments or adjustments for certain classes of hospitals; and

''(F) the Secretary shall develop a method for controlling unnecessary increases in the volume of covered OPD services.

''(3) CALCULATION OF BASE AMOUNTS.—

''(A) AGGREGATE AMOUNTS THAT WOULD BE PAYABLE IF DEDUCTIBLES WERE DISREGARDED.—The Secretary shall estimate the total amounts that would be payable from the Trust Fund under this part for covered OPD services in 1999, determined without regard to this subsection, as though the deductible under section 1833(b) did not apply, and as though the coinsurance described in section 1866(a)(2)(A)(ii) (as in effect before the date of the enactment of this subsection) continued to apply.

''(B) UNADJUSTED COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to clause (ii), the 'unadjusted copayment amount' applicable to a covered OPD service (or group of such services) is 20 percent of the national median of the charges for the service (or services within the group) furnished during 1997, updated to 1999 using the Secretary's estimate of charge growth during the period.

''(ii) ADJUSTMENTS WHEN FULLY PHASED IN.—If the pre-deductible payment percentage for a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year would be equal to or exceed 80 percent, then the unadjusted copayment amount shall be 25 percent of amount determined under subparagraph (D)(i).

''(iii) RULES FOR NEW SERVICES.—The Secretary shall establish rules for establishment of an unadjusted copayment amount for a covered OPD service not furnished during 1997, based upon its classification within a group of such services.

''(C) CALCULATION OF CONVERSION FACTORS.—

''(i) FOR 1999.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish a 1999 conversion factor for determining the medicare pre-deductible OPD fee payment amounts for each covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in 1999. Such conversion factor shall be established—

''(aa) on the basis of the weights and frequencies described in paragraph (2)(C), and

''(bb) in such manner that the sum of the products determined under subclause (II) for each service or group equals the total project amount described in subparagraph (A).

''(II) PRODUCT.—The Secretary shall determine for each service or group the product of the medicare pre-deductible OPD fee payment amount (taking into account appropriate adjustments described in paragraphs (2)(D) and (2)(E)) and the frequencies for such service or group.

''(ii) SUBSEQUENT YEARS.—Subject to paragraph (8)(B), the Secretary shall establish a conversion factor for covered OPD services furnished in subsequent years in an amount equal to the conversion factor established under this subparagraph and applicable to such services furnished in the previous year increased by the OPD payment increase factor specified under clause (iii) for the year involved.

''(iii) OPD PAYMENT INCREASE FACTOR.—For purposes of this subparagraph, the 'OPD payment increase factor' for services furnished in a year is equal to the sum of—

''(I) the market basket percentage increase applicable under section 1886(b)(3)(B)(iii) to hospital discharges occurring during the fiscal year ending in such year, plus

''(II) in the case of a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year in which the pre-deductible payment percentage would not exceed 80 percent, 3.5 percentage points.

In applying the previous sentence for years beginning with 2000, the Secretary may substitute for the market basket percentage increase under subclause (I) an annual percentage increase that is computed and applied with respect to covered OPD services furnished in a year in the same manner as the market basket percentage increase is determined and applied to inpatient hospital services for discharges occurring in a fiscal year.

''(D) PRE-DEDUCTIBLE PAYMENT PERCENTAGE.—The pre-deductible payment percentage for a covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year is equal to the ratio of—

''(i) the conversion factor established under subparagraph (C) for the year, multiplied by the weighting factor established under paragraph (2)(C) for the service (or group), to

''(ii) the sum of the amount determined under clause (i) and the unadjusted copayment amount determined under subparagraph (B) for such service or group.

''(E) CALCULATION OF MEDICARE OPD FEE SCHEDULE AMOUNTS.—The Secretary shall compute a medicare OPD fee schedule amount for each covered OPD service (or group of such services) furnished in a year, in an amount equal to the product of—

''(i) the conversion factor computed under subparagraph (C) for the year, and

''(ii) the relative payment weight (determined under paragraph (2)(C)) for the service or group.

''(4) MEDICARE PAYMENT AMOUNT.—The amount of payment made from the Trust Fund under this part for a covered OPD service (and such services classified within a group) furnished in a year is determined as follows:

''(A) FEE SCHEDULE AND COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Add (i) the medicare OPD fee schedule amount (computed under paragraph (3)(E)) for the service or group and year, and (ii) the unadjusted copayment amount (determined under paragraph (3)(B)) for the service or group.

''(B) SUBTRACT APPLICABLE DEDUCTIBLE.—Reduce the sum under subparagraph (A) by the amount of the deductible under section 1833(b), to the extent applicable.

''(C) APPLY PAYMENT PROPORTION TO REMAINDER.—Multiply the amount determined under subparagraph (B) by the pre-deductible payment percentage (as determined under paragraph (3)(D)) for the service or group and year involved.

''(D) LABOR-RELATED ADJUSTMENT.—The amount of payment is the product determined under subparagraph (C) with the labor-related portion of such product adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under paragraph (2)(D).

''(5) COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the copayment amount under this subsection is determined as follows:

''(i) UNADJUSTED COPAYMENT.—Compute the amount by which the amount described in paragraph (4)(B) exceeds the amount of payment determined under paragraph (4)(C).

''(ii) LABOR ADJUSTMENT.—The copayment amount is the difference determined under clause (i) with the labor-related portion of such difference adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under paragraphs (2)(D). The adjustment under this clause shall be made in a manner that does not result in any change in the aggregate copayments made in any year if the adjustment had not been made.

''(B) ELECTION TO OFFER REDUCED COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—The Secretary shall establish a procedure under which a hospital, before the beginning of a year (beginning with 1999), may elect to reduce the copayment amount otherwise established under subparagraph (A) for some or all covered OPD services to an amount that is not less than 25 percent of the medicare OPD fee schedule amount (computed under paragraph (3)(E)) for the service involved, adjusted for relative differences in the cost of labor and other factors determined by the Secretary, as computed under subparagraphs (D) and (E) of paragraph (2). Under such procedures, such reduced copayment amount may not be further reduced or increased during the year involved and the hospital may disseminate information on the reduction of copayment amount effected under this subparagraph.

''(C) NO IMPACT ON DEDUCTIBLES.—Nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as affecting a hospital's authority to waive the charging of a deductible under section 1833(b).

''(6) PERIODIC REVIEW AND ADJUSTMENTS COMPONENTS OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT SYSTEM.—

''(A) PERIODIC REVIEW.—The Secretary may periodically review and revise the groups, the relative payment weights, and the wage and other adjustments described in paragraph (2) to take into account changes in medical practice, changes in technology, the addition of new services, new cost data, and other relevant information and factors.

''(B) BUDGET NEUTRALITY ADJUSTMENT.—If the Secretary makes adjustments under subparagraph (A), then the adjustments for a year may not cause the estimated amount of expenditures under this part for the year to increase or decrease from the estimated amount of expenditures under this part that would have been made if the adjustments had not been made.

''(C) UPDATE FACTOR.—If the Secretary determines under methodologies described in subparagraph (2)(F) that the volume of services paid for under this subsection increased beyond amounts established through those methodologies, the Secretary may appropriately adjust the update to the conversion factor otherwise applicable in a subsequent year.

''(7) SPECIAL RULE FOR AMBULANCE SERVICES.—The Secretary shall pay for hospital outpatient services that are ambulance services on the basis described in the matter in subsection (a)(1) preceding subparagraph (A).

''(8) SPECIAL RULES FOR CERTAIN HOSPITALS.—In the case of hospitals described in section 1886(d)(1)(B)(v)—

''(A) the system under this subsection shall not apply to covered OPD services furnished before January 1, 2000; and

''(B) the Secretary may establish a separate conversion factor for such services in a manner that specifically takes into account the unique costs incurred by such hospitals by virtue of their patient population and service intensity.

''(9) LIMITATION ON REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of—

''(A) the development of the classification system under paragraph (2), including the establishment of groups and relative payment weights for covered OPD services, of wage adjustment factors, other adjustments, and methods described in paragraph (2)(F);

''(B) the calculation of base amounts under paragraph (3);

''(C) periodic adjustments made under paragraph (6); and

''(D) the establishment of a separate conversion factor under paragraph (8)(B).''.

(b) COINSURANCE.—Section 1866(a)(2)(A)(ii) (42 U.S.C. 1395cc(a)(2)(A)(ii)) is amended by adding at the end the following: ''In the case of items and services for which payment is made under part B under the prospective payment system established under section 1833(t), clause (ii) of the first sentence shall be applied by substituting for 20 percent of the reasonable charge, the applicable copayment amount established under section 1833(t)(5).''.

(c) TREATMENT OF REDUCTION IN COPAYMENT AMOUNT.—Section 1128A(i)(6) (42 U.S.C. 1320a–7a(i)(6)) is amended—

(1) by striking ''or'' at the end of subparagraph (B),

(2) by striking the period at the end of subparagraph (C) and inserting ''; or'', and

(3) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

''(D) a reduction in the copayment amount for covered OPD services under section 1833(t)(5)(B).''.

(A)(i) Section 1833(i)(3)(A) (42 U.S.C. 1395l(i)(3)(A)) is amended—

(I) by inserting ''before January 1, 1999'' after ''furnished'', and

(II) by striking ''in a cost reporting period''.

(ii) The amendment made by clause (i) shall apply to services furnished on or after January 1, 1999.

(B) Section 1833(a)(4) (42 U.S.C. 1395l(a)(4)) is amended by inserting ''or subsection (t)'' before the semicolon.

''(A) in a cost reporting period during the transition period (as defined in paragraph (2)(E)), is equal to the sum of—

''(i) the non-Federal percentage of the facility-specific per diem rate (computed under paragraph (3)), and

''(ii) the Federal percentage of the adjusted Federal per diem rate (determined under paragraph (4)) applicable to the facility; and

''(B) after the transition period is equal to the adjusted Federal per diem rate applicable to the facility.

''(I) means post-hospital extended care services as defined in section 1861(i) for which benefits are provided under part A; and

''(ii) an estimate of the amounts that would be payable under part B (disregarding any applicable deductibles, coinsurance and copayments) for covered skilled nursing facility services described in paragraph (2)(A)(i)(II) furnished during such period to an individual who is a resident of the facility, regardless of whether or not the payment was made to the facility or to another entity.

''(B) UPDATE TO COST REPORTING PERIODS THROUGH 1998.—The Secretary shall update the amount determined under subparagraph (A), for each cost reporting period after the cost reporting period described in subparagraph (A)(i) and up to the first cost reporting period by a factor equal to the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage increase.

''(C) UPDATING TO APPLICABLE COST REPORTING PERIOD.—The Secretary shall further update such amount for each cost reporting period beginning with the first cost reporting period and up to and including the cost reporting period involved by a factor equal to the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage increase.

''(D) CERTAIN DEMONSTRATION PROJECTS.—In the case of a facility participating in the Nursing Home Case-Mix and Quality Demonstration (RUGS–III), the Secretary shall determine the facility specific per diem rate for any year after 1997 by computing the base period payments by using the RUGS–III rate received by the facility for 1997, increased by a factor equal to the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage increase.

''(4) FEDERAL PER DIEM RATE.—

''(A) DETERMINATION OF HISTORICAL PER DIEM FOR FACILITIES.—For each skilled nursing facility that received payments for post-hospital extended care services during a cost reporting period beginning in fiscal year 1995 and that was subject to (and not exempted from) the per diem limits referred to in paragraph (1) or (2) of subsection (a) (and facilities described in subsection (d)), the Secretary shall estimate, on a per diem basis for such cost reporting period, the total of—

''(i) subject to subparagraph (I), the allowable costs of extended care services for the facility for cost reporting periods beginning in 1995 with appropriate adjustments (as determined by the Secretary) to non-settled cost reports, and

''(ii) an estimate of the amounts that would be payable under part B (disregarding any applicable deductibles, coinsurance and copayments) for covered skilled nursing facility services described in paragraph (2)(A)(i)(II) furnished during such period to an individual who is a resident of the facility, regardless of whether or not the payment was made to the facility or to another entity.

''(B) UPDATE TO COST REPORTING PERIODS THROUGH 1998.—The Secretary shall update the amount determined under subparagraph (A), for each cost reporting period after the cost reporting period described in subparagraph (A)(i) and up to the first cost reporting period by a factor equal to the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage increase reduced (on an annualized basis) by 1 percentage point.

''(C) COMPUTATION OF STANDARDIZED PER DIEM RATE.—The Secretary shall standardize the amount updated under subparagraph (B) for each facility by—

''(i) adjusting for variations among facility by area in the average facility wage level per diem, and

''(ii) adjusting for variations in case mix per diem among facilities.

''(D) COMPUTATION OF WEIGHTED AVERAGE PER DIEM RATE.—The Secretary shall compute a weighted average per diem rate by computing an average of the standardized amounts computed under subparagraph (C), weighted for each facility by the number of days of extended care services furnished during the cost reporting period referred to in subparagraph (A). The Secretary may compute and apply such average separately for facilities located in urban and rural areas (as defined in section 1886(d)(2)(D)).

''(E) UPDATING.—

''(i) FISCAL YEAR 1999.—For fiscal year 1999, the Secretary shall compute for each skilled nursing facility an unadjusted Federal per diem rate equal to the weighted average per diem rate computed under subparagraph (D) and applicable to the facility increased by skilled nursing facility market basket percentage change for the fiscal year involved.

''(ii) SUBSEQUENT FISCAL YEARS.—For each subsequent fiscal year the Secretary shall compute for each skilled nursing facility an unadjusted Federal per diem rate equal to the Federal per diem rate computed under this subparagraph for the previous fiscal year and applicable to the facility increased by the skilled nursing facility market basket percentage change for the fiscal year involved.

''(F) ADJUSTMENT FOR CASE MIX CREEP.—Insofar as the Secretary determines that such adjustments under subparagraph (G)(i) for a previous fiscal year (or estimates that such adjustments for a future fiscal year) did (or are likely to) result in a change in aggregate payments under this subsection during the fiscal year that are a result of changes in the coding or classification of residents that do not reflect real changes in case mix, the Secretary may adjust unadjusted Federal per diem rates for subsequent years so as to discount the effect of such coding or classification changes.

''(G) APPLICATION TO SPECIFIC FACILITIES.—The Secretary shall compute for each skilled nursing facility for each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1998) an adjusted Federal per diem rate equal to the unadjusted Federal per diem rate determined under subparagraph (E), as adjusted under subparagraph (F), and as further adjusted as follows:

''(i) ADJUSTMENT FOR CASE MIX.—The Secretary shall provide for an appropriate adjustment to account for case mix. Such adjustment shall be based on a resident classification system, established by the Secretary, that accounts for the relative resource utilization of different patient types. The case mix adjustment shall be based on resident assessment data and other data that the Secretary considers appropriate.

''(ii) ADJUSTMENT FOR GEOGRAPHIC VARIATIONS IN LABOR COSTS.—The Secretary shall adjust the portion of such per diem rate attributable to wages and wage-related costs for the area in which the facility is located compared to the national average of such costs using an appropriate wage index as determined by the Secretary. Such adjustment shall be done in a manner that does not result in aggregate payments under this subsection that are greater or less than those that would otherwise be made if such adjustment had not been made.

''(H) PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION ON PER DIEM RATES.—The Secretary shall provide for publication in the Federal Register, before the July 1 preceding each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1999), of—

''(i) the unadjusted Federal per diem rates to be applied to days of covered skilled nursing facility services furnished during the fiscal year,

''(ii) the case mix classification system to be applied under subparagraph (G)(i) with respect to such services during the fiscal year, and

''(iii) the factors to be applied in making the area wage adjustment under subparagraph (G)(ii) with respect to such services.

''(I) EXCLUSION OF EXCEPTION PAYMENTS FROM DETERMINATION OF HISTORICAL PER DIEM.—In determining allowable costs under subparagraph (A)(i), the Secretary shall not take into account any payments described in subsection (c).

''(5) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY MARKET BASKET INDEX AND PERCENTAGE.—For purposes of this subsection:

''(A) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY MARKET BASKET INDEX.—The Secretary shall establish a skilled nursing facility market basket index that reflects changes over time in the prices of an appropriate mix of goods and services included in covered skilled nursing facility services.

''(B) SKILLED NURSING FACILITY MARKET BASKET PERCENTAGE.—The term 'skilled nursing facility market basket percentage' means, for a fiscal year or other annual period and as calculated by the Secretary, the percentage change in the skilled nursing facility market basket index (established under subparagraph (A)) from the midpoint of the prior fiscal year (or period) to the midpoint of the fiscal year (or other period) involved.

''(6) SUBMISSION OF RESIDENT ASSESSMENT DATA.—A skilled nursing facility shall provide the Secretary, in a manner and within the timeframes prescribed by the Secretary, the resident assessment data necessary to develop and implement the rates under this subsection. For purposes of meeting such requirement, a skilled nursing facility may submit the resident assessment data required under section 1819(b)(3), using the standard instrument designated by the State under section 1819(e)(5).

''(7) TRANSITION FOR MEDICARE SWING BED HOSPITALS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall determine an appropriate manner in which to apply this subsection to the facilities described in subparagraph (B), taking into account the purposes of this subsection, and shall provide that at the end of the transition period (as defined in paragraph (2)(E)) such facilities shall be paid only under this subsection. Payment shall not be made under this subsection to such facilities for cost reporting periods beginning before such date (not earlier than July 1, 1999) as the Secretary specifies.

''(B) FACILITIES DESCRIBED.—The facilities described in this subparagraph are facilities that have in effect an agreement described in section 1883, for which payment is made for the furnishing of extended care services on a reasonable cost basis under section 1814(l) (as in effect on and after such date).

''(8) LIMITATION ON REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of—

''(A) the establishment of Federal per diem rates under paragraph (4), including the computation of the standardized per diem rates under paragraph (4)(C), adjustments and corrections for case mix under paragraphs (4)(F) and (4)(G)(i), and adjustments for variations in labor-related costs under paragraph (4)(G)(ii); and

''(B) the establishment of transitional amounts under paragraph (7).''.

(C) by inserting after paragraph (16) the following new paragraph:

''(17) which are covered skilled nursing facility services described in section 1888(e)(2)(A)(i)(II) and which are furnished to an individual who is a resident of a skilled nursing facility by an entity other than the skilled nursing facility, unless the services are furnished under arrangements (as defined in section 1861(w)(1)) with the entity made by the skilled nursing facility, or such services are furnished by a physician described in section 1861(r)(1).''.

(2) REQUIRING PAYMENT FOR ALL PART B ITEMS AND SERVICES TO BE MADE TO FACILITY.—The first sentence of section 1842(b)(6) (42 U.S.C. 1395u(b)(6)) is amended—

(A) by striking ''and (D)'' and inserting ''(D)''; and

(B) by striking the period at the end and inserting the following: '', and (E) in the case of an item or service (other than services described in section 1888(e)(2)(A)(ii)) furnished to an individual who (at the time the item or service is furnished) is a resident of a skilled nursing facility, payment shall be made to the facility (without regard to whether or not the item or service was furnished by the facility, by others under arrangement with them made by the facility, under any other contracting or consulting arrangement, or otherwise).''.

(3) PAYMENT RULES.—Section 1888(e) (42 U.S.C. 1395yy(e)), as added by subsection (a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(9) PAYMENT FOR CERTAIN SERVICES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an item or service furnished by a skilled nursing facility (or by others under arrangement with them made by a skilled nursing facility or under any other contracting or consulting arrangement or otherwise) for which payment would otherwise (but for this paragraph) be made under part B in an amount determined in accordance with section 1833(a)(2)(B), the amount of the payment under such part shall be based on the part B methodology applicable to the item or service, except that for items and services that would be included in a facility's cost report if not for this section, the facility may continue to use a cost report for reimbursement purposes until the prospective payment system established under this section is implemented.

''(B) THERAPY AND PATHOLOGY SERVICES.—Payment for physical therapy, occupational therapy, respiratory therapy, and speech language pathology services shall reflect new salary equivalency guidelines calculated pursuant to section 1861(v)(5) when finalized through the regulatory process.

''(10) REQUIRED CODING.—No payment may be made under part B for items and services (other than services described in paragraph (2)(A)(ii)) furnished to an individual who is a resident of a skilled nursing facility unless the claim for such payment includes a code (or codes) under a uniform coding system specified by the Secretary that identifies the items or services delivered.''.

(4) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(A) Section 1819(b)(3)(C)(i) (42 U.S.C. 1395i–3(b)(3)(C)(i)) is amended by striking ''Such'' and inserting ''Subject to the timeframes prescribed by the Secretary under section 1888(t)(6), such''.

(c) MEDICAL REVIEW PROCESS.—In order to ensure that medicare beneficiaries are furnished appropriate services in skilled nursing facilities, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall establish and implement a thorough medical review process to examine the effects of the amendments made by this section on the quality of covered skilled nursing facility services furnished to medicare beneficiaries. In developing such a medical review process, the Secretary shall place a particular emphasis on the quality of non-routine covered services and physicians' services for which payment is made under title XVIII of the Social Security Act for which payment is made under section 1848 of such Act.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section are effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after July 1, 1998; except that the amendments made by subsection (b) shall apply to items and services furnished on or after July 1, 1998.

Subchapter B—Home Health Services and Benefits

PART I—PAYMENTS FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES

SEC. 5341. RECAPTURING SAVINGS RESULTING FROM TEMPORARY FREEZE ON PAYMENT INCREASES FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.

(a) BASING UPDATES TO PER VISIT COST LIMITS ON LIMITS FOR FISCAL YEAR 1993.—Section 1861(v)(1)(L) (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(L)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(iv) In establishing limits under this subparagraph for cost reporting periods beginning after September 30, 1997, the Secretary shall not take into account any changes in the home health market basket, as determined by the Secretary, with respect to cost reporting periods which began on or after July 1, 1994, and before July 1, 1996.''.

(b) NO EXCEPTIONS PERMITTED BASED ON AMENDMENT.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall not consider the amendment made by subsection (a) in making any exemptions and exceptions pursuant to section 1861(v)(1)(L)(ii) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(L)(ii)).

SEC. 5342. INTERIM PAYMENTS FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.

(a) REDUCTIONS IN COST LIMITS.—Section 1861(v)(1)(L)(i) (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(L)(i)) is amended—

(1) by moving the indentation of subclauses (I) through (III) 2-ems to the left;

(2) in subclause (I), by inserting ''of the mean of the labor-related and nonlabor per visit costs for freestanding home health agencies'' before the comma at the end;

(3) in subclause (II), by striking '', or'' and inserting ''of such mean,'';

(4) in subclause (III)—

(A) by inserting ''and before October 1, 1997,'' after ''July 1, 1987'', and

(b) DELAY IN UPDATES.—Section 1861(v)(1)(L)(iii) (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(L)(iii)) is amended by inserting '', or on or after July 1, 1997, and before October 1, 1997'' after ''July 1, 1996''.

(c) ADDITIONS TO COST LIMITS.—Section 1861(v)(1)(L) (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(L)), as amended by section 5341(a), is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(v) For services furnished by home health agencies for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the Secretary shall provide for an interim system of limits. Payment shall be the lower of—

''(I) costs determined under the preceding provisions of this subparagraph, or

''(II) an agency-specific per beneficiary annual limitation calculated from the agency's 12-month cost reporting period ending on or after January 1, 1994, and on or before December 31, 1994, based on reasonable costs (including non-routine medical supplies), updated by the home health market basket index.

The per beneficiary limitation in subclause (II) shall be multiplied by the agency's unduplicated census count of patients (entitled to benefits under this title) for the cost reporting period subject to the limitation to determine the aggregate agency-specific per beneficiary limitation.

''(vi) For services furnished by home health agencies for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the following rules apply:

''(I) For new providers and those providers without a 12-month cost reporting period ending in calendar year 1994, the per beneficiary limitation shall be equal to the median of these limits (or the Secretary's best estimates thereof) applied to other home health agencies as determined by the Secretary. A home health agency that has altered its corporate structure or name shall not be considered a new provider for this purpose.

''(II) For beneficiaries who use services furnished by more than one home health agency, the per beneficiary limitations shall be prorated among the agencies.''.

(d) DEVELOPMENT OF CASE MIX SYSTEM.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall expand research on a prospective payment system for home health agencies under the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.) that ties prospective payments to a unit of service, including an intensive effort to develop a reliable case mix adjuster that explains a significant amount of the variances in costs.

(e) SUBMISSION OF DATA FOR CASE MIX SYSTEM.—Effective for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1997, the Secretary of Health and Human Services may require all home health agencies to submit additional information that the Secretary considers necessary for the development of a reliable case mix system.

SEC. 5343. PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Title XVIII (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.), as amended by section 5011, is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

''PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES

''SEC. 1895. (a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding section 1861(v), the Secretary shall provide, for cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1999, for payments for home health services in accordance with a prospective payment system established by the Secretary under this section.

''(b) SYSTEM OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT FOR HOME HEALTH SERVICES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish under this subsection a prospective payment system for payment for all costs of home health services. Under the system under this subsection all services covered and paid on a reasonable cost basis under the medicare home health benefit as of the date of the enactment of the this section, including medical supplies, shall be paid for on the basis of a prospective payment amount determined under this subsection and applicable to the services involved. In implementing the system, the Secretary may provide for a transition (of not longer than 4 years) during which a portion of such payment is based on agency-specific costs, but only if such transition does not result in aggregate payments under this title that exceed the aggregate payments that would be made if such a transition did not occur.

''(2) UNIT OF PAYMENT.—In defining a prospective payment amount under the system under this subsection, the Secretary shall consider an appropriate unit of service and the number, type, and duration of visits provided within that unit, potential changes in the mix of services provided within that unit and their cost, and a general system design that provides for continued access to quality services.

''(3) PAYMENT BASIS.—

''(A) INITIAL BASIS.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Under such system the Secretary shall provide for computation of a standard prospective payment amount (or amounts). Such amount (or amounts) shall initially be based on the most current audited cost report data available to the Secretary and shall be computed in a manner so that the total amounts payable under the system for fiscal year 2000 shall be equal to the total amount that would have been made if the system had not been in effect but if the reduction in limits described in clause (ii) had been in effect. Such amount shall be standardized in a manner that eliminates the effect of variations in relative case mix and wage levels among different home health agencies in a budget neutral manner consistent with the case mix and wage level adjustments provided under paragraph (4)(A). Under the system, the Secretary may recognize regional differences or differences based upon whether or not the services or agency are in an urbanized area.

''(ii) REDUCTION.—The reduction described in this clause is a reduction by 15 percent in the cost limits and per beneficiary limits described in section 1861(v)(1)(L), as those limits are in effect on September 30, 1999.

''(B) ANNUAL UPDATE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The standard prospective payment amount (or amounts) shall be adjusted for each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 2001) in a prospective manner specified by the Secretary by the home health market basket percentage increase applicable to the fiscal year involved.

''(ii) HOME HEALTH MARKET BASKET PERCENTAGE INCREASE.—For purposes of this subsection, the term 'home health market basket percentage increase' means, with respect to a fiscal year, a percentage (estimated by the Secretary before the beginning of the fiscal year) determined and applied with respect to the mix of goods and services included in home health services in the same manner as the market basket percentage increase under section 1886(b)(3)(B)(iii) is determined and applied to the mix of goods and services comprising inpatient hospital services for the fiscal year.

''(C) ADJUSTMENT FOR OUTLIERS.—The Secretary shall reduce the standard prospective payment amount (or amounts) under this paragraph applicable to home health services furnished during a period by such proportion as will result in an aggregate reduction in payments for the period equal to the aggregate increase in payments resulting from the application of paragraph (5) (relating to outliers).

''(4) PAYMENT COMPUTATION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The payment amount for a unit of home health services shall be the applicable standard prospective payment amount adjusted as follows:

''(i) CASE MIX ADJUSTMENT.—The amount shall be adjusted by an appropriate case mix adjustment factor (established under subparagraph (B)).

''(ii) AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT.—The portion of such amount that the Secretary estimates to be attributable to wages and wage-related costs shall be adjusted for geographic differences in such costs by an area wage adjustment factor (established under subparagraph (C)) for the area in which the services are furnished or such other area as the Secretary may specify.

''(B) ESTABLISHMENT OF CASE MIX ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—The Secretary shall establish appropriate case mix adjustment factors for home health services in a manner that explains a significant amount of the variation in cost among different units of services.

''(C) ESTABLISHMENT OF AREA WAGE ADJUSTMENT FACTORS.—The Secretary shall establish area wage adjustment factors that reflect the relative level of wages and wage-related costs applicable to the furnishing of home health services in a geographic area compared to the national average applicable level. Such factors may be the factors used by the Secretary for purposes of section 1886(d)(3)(E).

''(5) OUTLIERS.—The Secretary may provide for an addition or adjustment to the payment amount otherwise made in the case of outliers because of unusual variations in the type or amount of medically necessary care. The total amount of the additional payments or payment adjustments made under this paragraph with respect to a fiscal year may not exceed 5 percent of the total payments projected or estimated to be made based on the prospective payment system under this subsection in that year.

''(6) PRORATION OF PROSPECTIVE PAYMENT AMOUNTS.—If a beneficiary elects to transfer to, or receive services from, another home health agency within the period covered by the prospective payment amount, the payment shall be prorated between the home health agencies involved.

''(c) REQUIREMENTS FOR PAYMENT INFORMATION.—With respect to home health services furnished on or after October 1, 1998, no claim for such a service may be paid under this title unless—

''(1) the claim has the unique identifier for the physician who prescribed the services or made the certification described in section 1814(a)(2) or 1835(a)(2)(A); and

''(2) in the case of a service visit described in paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of section 1861(m), the claim has information (coded in an appropriate manner) on the length of time of the service visit, as measured in 15 minute increments.

''(d) LIMITATION ON REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of—

''(1) the establishment of a transition period under subsection (b)(1);

''(2) the definition and application of payment units under subsection (b)(2);

''(3) the computation of initial standard prospective payment amounts under subsection (b)(3)(A) (including the reduction described in clause (ii) of such subsection);

''(4) the adjustment for outliers under subsection (b)(3)(C);

''(5) case mix and area wage adjustments under subsection (b)(4);

''(6) any adjustments for outliers under subsection (b)(5); and

''(7) the amounts or types of exceptions or adjustments under subsection (b)(7).''.

(b) ELIMINATION OF PERIODIC INTERIM PAYMENTS FOR HOME HEALTH AGENCIES.—Section 1815(e)(2) (42 U.S.C. 1395g(e)(2)) is amended—

(1) by inserting ''and'' at the end of subparagraph (C),

(2) by striking subparagraph (D), and

(3) by redesignating subparagraph (E) as subparagraph (D).

(1) PAYMENTS UNDER PART A.—Section 1814(b) (42 U.S.C. 1395f(b)) is amended in the matter preceding paragraph (1) by striking ''and 1886'' and inserting ''1886, and 1895''.

(2) TREATMENT OF ITEMS AND SERVICES PAID UNDER PART B.—

(A) PAYMENTS UNDER PART B.—Section 1833(a)(2) (42 U.S.C. 1395l(a)(2)) is amended—

(i) by amending subparagraph (A) to read as follows:

''(A) with respect to home health services (other than a covered osteoporosis drug) (as defined in section 1861(kk)), the amount determined under the prospective payment system under section 1895;'';

(ii) by striking ''and'' at the end of subparagraph (E);

(iii) by adding ''and'' at the end of subparagraph (F); and

(iv) by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

''(G) with respect to items and services described in section 1861(s)(10)(A), the lesser of—

''(i) the reasonable cost of such services, as determined under section 1861(v), or

''(ii) the customary charges with respect to such services, or, if such services are furnished by a public provider of services, or by another provider which demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Secretary that a significant portion of its patients are low-income (and requests that payment be made under this provision), free of charge or at nominal charges to the public, the amount determined in accordance with section 1814(b)(2);''.

(B) REQUIRING PAYMENT FOR ALL ITEMS AND SERVICES TO BE MADE TO AGENCY.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—The first sentence of section 1842(b)(6) (42 U.S.C. 1395u(b)(6)) (as amended by section 5332(b)(2)) is amended—

(I) by striking ''and (E)'' and inserting ''(E)''; and

(ii) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 1832(a)(1) (42 U.S.C. 1395k(a)(1)) (as amended by section 5332(b)(4)(B)) is amended by striking ''section 1842(b)(6)(E);'' and inserting ''subparagraphs (E) and (F) of section 1842(b)(6);''.

(C) EXCLUSIONS FROM COVERAGE.—Section 1862(a) (42 U.S.C. 1395y(a)), as amended by section 5332(b)(1), is amended—

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—Except as otherwise provided, the amendments made by this section shall apply to cost reporting periods beginning on or after October 1, 1999.

(e) CONTINGENCY.—If the Secretary of Health and Human Services for any reason does not establish and implement the prospective payment system for home health services described in section 1895(b) of the Social Security Act (as added by subsection (a)) for cost reporting periods described in subsection (d), for such cost reporting periods the Secretary shall provide for a reduction by 15 percent in the cost limits and per beneficiary limits described in section 1861(v)(1)(L) of such Act, as those limits would otherwise be in effect on September 30, 1999.

''(B) is lawfully operated under all applicable Federal, State, and local laws and regulations;

''(C) provides only nonmedical nursing items and services exclusively to patients who choose to rely solely upon a religious method of healing and for whom the acceptance of medical health services would be inconsistent with their religious beliefs;

''(E) provides such nonmedical items and services to inpatients on a 24-hour basis;

''(2) If the Secretary finds that the accreditation of an institution by a State, regional, or national agency or association provides reasonable assurances that any or all of the requirements of paragraph (1) are met or exceeded, the Secretary shall, to the extent the Secretary deems it appropriate, treat such institution as meeting the condition or conditions with respect to which the Secretary made such finding.

''(3)(A)(i) In administering this subsection and section 1821, the Secretary shall not require any patient of a religious nonmedical health care institution to undergo any medical screening, examination, diagnosis, prognosis, or treatment or to accept any other medical health care service, if such patient (or legal representative of the patient) objects thereto on religious grounds.

''(B)(i) In administering this subsection and section 1821, the Secretary shall not subject a religious nonmedical health care institution to any medical supervision, regulation, or control, insofar as such supervision, regulation, or control would be contrary to the religious beliefs observed by the institution.

''(1) the individual has an election in effect for such benefits under subsection (b); and

''(2) the individual has a condition such that the individual would qualify for benefits under this part for inpatient hospital services or extended care services, respectively, if the individual were an inpatient or resident in a hospital or skilled nursing facility that was not such an institution.

''(b) ELECTION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—An individual may make an election under this subsection in a form and manner specified by the Secretary consistent with this subsection. Unless otherwise provided, such an election shall take effect immediately upon its execution. Such an election, once made, shall continue in effect until revoked.

''(2) FORM.—The election form under this subsection shall include the following:

''(B) A statement that the receipt of non-excepted medical services shall constitute a revocation of the election and may limit further receipt of services described in subsection (a).

''(3) REVOCATION.—An election under this subsection by an individual may be revoked in a form and manner specified by the Secretary and shall be deemed to be revoked if the individual receives medicare reimbursable non-excepted medical treatment, regardless of whether or not benefits for such treatment are provided under this title.

''(4) LIMITATION ON SUBSEQUENT ELECTIONS.—Once an individual's election under this subsection has been made and revoked twice—

''(A) the next election may not become effective until the date that is 1 year after the date of most recent previous revocation, and

''(B) ALTERNATIVE ADJUSTMENTS.—The Secretary may, instead of making some or all of the reduction described in subparagraph (A), impose such other conditions or limitations with respect to the coverage of covered services (including limitations on new elections of coverage and new facilities) as may be appropriate to reduce the level of expenditures described in paragraph (1) to the trigger level.

''(C) TRIGGER LEVEL.—For purposes of this subsection, subject to adjustment under paragraph (3)(B), the 'trigger level' for—

''(i) fiscal year 1998, is $20,000,000, or

''(D) PROHIBITION OF ADMINISTRATIVE AND JUDICIAL REVIEW.—There shall be no administrative or judicial review under section 1869, 1878, or otherwise of the estimation of expenditures under subparagraph (A) or the application of reduction amounts under subparagraph (B).

''(E) EFFECT ON BILLING.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, in the case of a reduction in payment provided under this subsection for services of a religious nonmedical health care institution provided to an individual, the amount that the institution is otherwise permitted to charge the individual for such services is increased by the amount of such reduction.

''(3) MONITORING EXPENDITURE LEVEL.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall monitor the expenditure level described in paragraph (2)(A) for each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1999).

''(B) ADJUSTMENT IN TRIGGER LEVEL.—If the Secretary determines that such level for a fiscal year exceeded, or was less than, the trigger level for that fiscal year, then the trigger level for the succeeding fiscal year shall be reduced, or increased, respectively, by the amount of such excess or deficit.

''(d) SUNSET.—If the Secretary determines that the level of expenditures described in subsection (c)(1) for 3 consecutive fiscal years (with the first such year being not earlier than fiscal year 2002) exceeds the trigger level for such expenditures for such years (as determined under subsection (c)(2)), benefits shall be paid under this part for services described in subsection (a) and furnished on or after the first January 1 that occurs after such 3 consecutive years only with respect to an individual who has an election in effect under subsection (b) as of such January 1 and only during the duration of such election.

''(e) ANNUAL REPORT.—At the beginning of each fiscal year (beginning with fiscal year 1999), the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Ways and Means of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Finance of the Senate an annual report on coverage and expenditures for services described in subsection (a) under this part and under State plans under title XIX. ''(a) ACCESS TO SERVICES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each managed care entity shall provide or arrange for the provision of all medically necessary medical assistance under this title which is specified in the contract entered into between such entity and the State under section 1941(a)(1)(B) for enrollees who are eligible for medical assistance under the State plan under this title.

The Secretary may permit such a maximum ratio to vary depending on the area and population served. Such standards shall be based on standards commonly applied in the commercial market, commonly used in accreditation of managed care organizations, and standards used in the approval of waiver applications under section 1115, and shall be consistent with the requirements of section 1876(c)(4)(A) and part C of title XVIII.

Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as preventing such a treatment plan for an enrollee from requiring a specialist to provide the primary care provider with regular updates on the specialty care provided, as well as all necessary medical information.

''(4) REFERRALS TO PARTICIPATING PROVIDERS.—An entity is not required under paragraph (1) to provide for a referral to a specialist that—

''(A) is not a participating provider, unless the entity does not have an appropriate specialist that is available and accessible to treat the enrollee's condition, and

Such information shall include information on where and how such enrollees may access benefits not made available to the enrollee through the entity.

''(f) DEMONSTRATION OF ADEQUATE CAPACITY AND SERVICES.—Each medicaid managed care organization shall provide the State and the Secretary with adequate assurances (as determined by the Secretary) that the organization, with respect to a service area—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of an enrollee of a managed care entity who is a child described in section 1941(e)(1)—

''(A) if any medical assistance specified in the contract with the State is identified in a treatment plan prepared for the enrollee, the managed care entity shall provide (or arrange to be provided) such assistance in accordance with the treatment plan either—

''(i) by referring the enrollee to a pediatric health care provider who is trained and experienced in the provision of such assistance and who has a contract with the managed care entity to provide such assistance; or

''(ii) if appropriate services are not available through the managed care entity, permitting such enrollee to seek appropriate specialty services from pediatric health care providers outside of or apart from the managed care entity, and

''(B) the managed care entity shall require each health care provider with whom the managed care entity has entered into an agreement to provide medical assistance to enrollees to furnish the medical assistance specified in such enrollee's treatment plan to the extent the health care provider is able to carry out such treatment plan.

''(1) REVIEW OF MEDICAID MANAGED CARE ORGANIZATION CONTRACT.—

Such review shall specifically evaluate the extent to which the medicaid managed care organization provides such services in a timely manner.

''(B) CONTENTS OF REVIEW.—An external independent review conducted under this subsection shall include—

''(i) a review of the entity's medical care, through sampling of medical records or other appropriate methods, for indications of quality of care and inappropriate utilization (including overutilization) and treatment,

''(ii) a review of enrollee inpatient and ambulatory data, through sampling of medical records or other appropriate methods, to determine trends in quality and appropriateness of care,

''(iii) notification of the entity and the State when the review under this paragraph indicates inappropriate care, treatment, or utilization of services (including overutilization), and

''(iv) other activities as prescribed by the Secretary or the State.

''(C) USE OF PROTOCOLS.—An external independent review conducted under this subsection on and after January 1, 1999, shall use protocols that have been developed, tested, and validated by the Secretary and that are at least as rigorous as those used by the National Committee on Quality Assurance as of the date of the enactment of this section.

''(D) AVAILABILITY OF RESULTS.—The results of each external independent review conducted under this paragraph shall be available to participating health care providers, enrollees, and potential enrollees of the medicaid managed care organization, except that the results may not be made available in a manner that discloses the identity of any individual patient.

''(4) USE OF VALIDATION SURVEYS.—The Secretary shall conduct surveys each year to validate external reviews of the number of managed care entities in the year. In conducting such surveys the Secretary shall use the same protocols as were used in preparing the external reviews. If an external review finds that an individual managed care entity meets applicable requirements, but the Secretary determines that the entity does not meet such requirements, the Secretary's determination as to the entity's noncompliance with such requirements is binding and supersedes that of the previous survey.

''(b) FEDERAL MONITORING RESPONSIBILITIES.—The Secretary shall review the external independent reviews conducted pursuant to subsection (a) and shall monitor the effectiveness of the State's monitoring of managed care entities and any followup activities required under this part. If the Secretary determines that a State's monitoring and followup activities are not adequate to ensure that the requirements of such section are met, the Secretary shall undertake appropriate followup activities to ensure that the State improves its monitoring and followup activities.

''(f) INCENTIVES FOR HIGH QUALITY MANAGED CARE ENTITIES.—The Secretary and the State may establish a program to reward, through public recognition, incentive payments, or enrollment of additional individuals (or combinations of such rewards), managed care entities that provide the highest quality care to individuals eligible for medical assistance under the State plan under this title who are enrolled with such entities. For purposes of section 1903(a)(7), proper expenses incurred by a State in carrying out such a program shall be considered to be expenses necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State plan under this title.

''(g) QUALITY ASSURANCE STANDARDS.—Any contract between a State and a managed care entity shall provide—

''(1) that the State agency will develop and implement a State specific quality assessment and improvement strategy, consistent with standards that the Secretary, in consultation with the States, shall establish and monitor (but that shall not preempt any State standards that are more stringent than the standards established under this paragraph), and that includes—

''(C) acts to discriminate among enrollees on the basis of their health status or requirements for health care services, including expulsion or refusal to reenroll an individual, except as permitted by this part, or engaging in any practice that would reasonably be expected to have the effect of denying or discouraging enrollment with the entity by eligible individuals whose medical condition or history indicates a need for substantial future medical services,

''(i) there is an orderly termination or reorganization of the managed care entity; or

''(4) IMPOSITION OF CIVIL MONETARY PENALTIES BY SECRETARY.—The provisions of section 1128A (other than subsections (a) and (b)) shall apply with respect to a civil money penalty imposed by the Secretary under subsection (b)(1) in the same manner as such provisions apply to a penalty or proceeding under section 1128A.

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The determination of—

''(A) whether an individual is a PACE program eligible individual shall be made under and in accordance with the PACE program agreement, and

''(B) who is entitled to medical assistance under this title shall be made (or who is not so entitled, may be made) by the State administering agency.

''(2) CONDITION.—An individual is not a PACE program eligible individual (with respect to payment under this section) unless the individual's health status has been determined by the Secretary or the State administering agency, in accordance with regulations, to be comparable to the health status of individuals who have participated in the PACE demonstration waiver programs. Such determination shall be based upon information on health status and related indicators (such as medical diagnoses and measures of activities of daily living, instrumental activities of daily living, and cognitive impairment) that are part of a uniform minimum data set collected by PACE providers on potential eligible individuals.

''(3) ANNUAL ELIGIBILITY RECERTIFICATIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B), the determination described in subsection (a)(5)(B) for an individual shall be reevaluated at least annually.

''(B) EXCEPTION.—The requirement of annual reevaluation under subparagraph (A) may be waived during a period in accordance with regulations in those cases in which the State administering agency determines that there is no reasonable expectation of improvement or significant change in an individual's condition during the period because of the advanced age, severity of the advanced age, severity of chronic condition, or degree of impairment of functional capacity of the individual involved.

''(4) CONTINUATION OF ELIGIBILITY.—An individual who is a PACE program eligible individual may be deemed to continue to be such an individual notwithstanding a determination that the individual no longer meets the requirement of subsection (a)(5)(B) if, in accordance with regulations, in the absence of continued coverage under a PACE program the individual reasonably would be expected to meet such requirement within the succeeding 6-month period.

''(5) ENROLLMENT; DISENROLLMENT.—The enrollment and disenrollment of PACE program eligible individuals in a PACE program shall be pursuant to regulations and the PACE program agreement and shall permit enrollees to voluntarily disenroll without cause at any time. Such regulations and agreement shall provide that the PACE program may not disenroll a PACE program eligible individual on the ground that the individual has engaged in noncompliant behavior if such behavior is related to a mental or physical condition of the individual. For purposes of the preceding sentence, the term 'noncompliant behavior' includes repeated noncompliance with medical advice and repeated failure to appear for appointments.

''(d) PAYMENTS TO PACE PROVIDERS ON A CAPITATED BASIS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a PACE provider with a PACE program agreement under this section, except as provided in this subsection or by regulations, the State shall make prospective monthly payments of a capitation amount for each PACE program eligible individual enrolled under the agreement under this section.

''(2) CAPITATION AMOUNT.—The capitation amount to be applied under this subsection for a provider for a contract year shall be an amount specified in the PACE program agreement for the year. Such amount shall be an amount, specified under the PACE agreement, which is less than the amount that would otherwise have been made under the State plan if the individuals were not so enrolled and shall be adjusted to take into account the comparative frailty of PACE enrollees and such other factors as the Secretary determines to be appropriate. The payment under this section shall be in addition to any payment made under section 1894 for individuals who are enrolled in a PACE program under such section.

''(e) PACE PROGRAM AGREEMENT.—

''(1) REQUIREMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, in close cooperation with the State administering agency, shall establish procedures for entering into, extending, and terminating PACE program agreements for the operation of PACE programs by entities that meet the requirements for a PACE provider under this section, section 1894, and regulations.

''(B) NUMERICAL LIMITATION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall not permit the number of PACE providers with which agreements are in effect under this section or under section 9412(b) of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1986 to exceed—

''(I) 40 as of the date of the enactment of this section, or

''(II) as of each succeeding anniversary of such date, the numerical limitation under this subparagraph for the preceding year plus 20.

Subclause (II) shall apply without regard to the actual number of agreements in effect as of a previous anniversary date.

''(ii) TREATMENT OF CERTAIN PRIVATE, FOR-PROFIT PROVIDERS.—The numerical limitation in clause (i) shall not apply to a PACE provider that—

''(I) is operating under a demonstration project waiver under subsection (h), or

''(II) was operating under such a waiver and subsequently qualifies for PACE provider status pursuant to subsection (a)(3)(B)(ii).

''(2) SERVICE AREA AND ELIGIBILITY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—A PACE program agreement for a PACE program—

''(i) shall designate the service area of the program;

''(ii) may provide additional requirements for individuals to qualify as PACE program eligible individuals with respect to the program;

''(iii) shall be effective for a contract year, but may be extended for additional contract years in the absence of a notice by a party to terminate, and is subject to termination by the Secretary and the State administering agency at any time for cause (as provided under the agreement);

''(iv) shall require a PACE provider to meet all applicable State and local laws and requirements; and

''(v) shall have such additional terms and conditions as the parties may agree to, provided that such terms and conditions are consistent with this section and regulations.

''(B) SERVICE AREA OVERLAP.—In designating a service area under a PACE program agreement under subparagraph (A)(i), the Secretary (in consultation with the State administering agency) may exclude from designation an area that is already covered under another PACE program agreement, in order to avoid unnecessary duplication of services and avoid impairing the financial and service viability of an existing program.

''(3) DATA COLLECTION; DEVELOPMENT OF OUTCOME MEASURES.—

''(A) DATA COLLECTION.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Under a PACE program agreement, the PACE provider shall—

''(I) collect data;

''(II) maintain, and afford the Secretary and the State administering agency access to, the records relating to the program, including pertinent financial, medical, and personnel records; and

''(III) submit to the Secretary and the State administering agency such reports as the Secretary finds (in consultation with State administering agencies) necessary to monitor the operation, cost, and effectiveness of the PACE program.

''(ii) REQUIREMENTS DURING TRIAL PERIOD.—During the first 3 years of operation of a PACE program (either under this section or under a PACE demonstration waiver program), the PACE provider shall provide such additional data as the Secretary specifies in regulations in order to perform the oversight required under paragraph (4)(A).

''(B) DEVELOPMENT OF OUTCOME MEASURES.—Under a PACE program agreement, the PACE provider, the Secretary, and the State administering agency shall jointly cooperate in the development and implementation of health status and quality of life outcome measures with respect to PACE program eligible individuals.

''(4) OVERSIGHT.—

''(A) ANNUAL, CLOSE OVERSIGHT DURING TRIAL PERIOD.—During the trial period (as defined in subsection (a)(9)) with respect to a PACE program operated by a PACE provider, the Secretary (in cooperation with the State administering agency) shall conduct a comprehensive annual review of the operation of the PACE program by the provider in order to assure compliance with the requirements of this section and regulations. Such a review shall include—

''(i) an onsite visit to the program site;

''(ii) comprehensive assessment of a provider's fiscal soundness;

''(iii) comprehensive assessment of the provider's capacity to provide all PACE services to all enrolled participants;

''(iv) detailed analysis of the entity's substantial compliance with all significant requirements of this section and regulations; and

''(v) any other elements the Secretary or the State administering agency considers necessary or appropriate.

''(B) CONTINUING OVERSIGHT.—After the trial period, the Secretary (in cooperation with the State administering agency) shall continue to conduct such review of the operation of PACE providers and PACE programs as may be appropriate, taking into account the performance level of a provider and compliance of a provider with all significant requirements of this section and regulations.

''(C) DISCLOSURE.—The results of reviews under this paragraph shall be reported promptly to the PACE provider, along with any recommendations for changes to the provider's program, and shall be made available to the public upon request.

''(5) TERMINATION OF PACE PROVIDER AGREEMENTS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Under regulations—

''(i) the Secretary or a State administering agency may terminate a PACE program agreement for cause, and

''(ii) a PACE provider may terminate such an agreement after appropriate notice to the Secretary, the State administering agency, and enrollees.

''(B) CAUSES FOR TERMINATION.—In accordance with regulations establishing procedures for termination of PACE program agreements, the Secretary or a State administering agency may terminate a PACE program agreement with a PACE provider for, among other reasons, the fact that—

''(i) the Secretary or State administering agency determines that—

''(I) there are significant deficiencies in the quality of care provided to enrolled participants; or

''(II) the provider has failed to comply substantially with conditions for a program or provider under this section or section 1894; and

''(ii) the entity has failed to develop and successfully initiate, within 30 days of the date of the receipt of written notice of such a determination, a plan to correct the deficiencies, or has failed to continue implementation of such a plan.

''(C) TERMINATION AND TRANSITION PROCEDURES.—An entity whose PACE provider agreement is terminated under this paragraph shall implement the transition procedures required under subsection (a)(2)(C).

''(6) SECRETARY'S OVERSIGHT; ENFORCEMENT AUTHORITY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Under regulations, if the Secretary determines (after consultation with the State administering agency) that a PACE provider is failing substantially to comply with the requirements of this section and regulations, the Secretary (and the State administering agency) may take any or all of the following actions:

''(i) Condition the continuation of the PACE program agreement upon timely execution of a corrective action plan.

''(ii) Withhold some or all further payments under the PACE program agreement under this section or section 1894 with respect to PACE program services furnished by such provider until the deficiencies have been corrected.

''(iii) Terminate such agreement.

''(B) APPLICATION OF INTERMEDIATE SANCTIONS.—Under regulations, the Secretary may provide for the application against a PACE provider of remedies described in section 1857(f)(2) (or, for periods before January 1, 1999, section 1876(i)(6)(B)) or 1903(m)(5)(B) in the case of violations by the provider of the type described in section 1857(f)(1) (or 1876(i)(6)(A) for such periods) or 1903(m)(5)(A), respectively (in relation to agreements, enrollees, and requirements under section 1894 or this section, respectively).

''(7) PROCEDURES FOR TERMINATION OR IMPOSITION OF SANCTIONS.—Under regulations, the provisions of section 1857(g) (or for periods before January 1, 1999, section 1876(i)(9)) shall apply to termination and sanctions respecting a PACE program agreement and PACE provider under this subsection in the same manner as they apply to a termination and sanctions with respect to a contract and a Medicare Choice organization under part C of title XVIII (or for such periods an eligible organization under section 1876).

''(8) TIMELY CONSIDERATION OF APPLICATIONS FOR PACE PROGRAM PROVIDER STATUS.—In considering an application for PACE provider program status, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days after the date of the submission of the application to the Secretary, either denies such request in writing or informs the applicant in writing with respect to any additional information that is needed in order to make a final determination with respect to the application. After the date the Secretary receives such additional information, the application shall be deemed approved unless the Secretary, within 90 days of such date, denies such request.

''(f) REGULATIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall issue interim final or final regulations to carry out this section and section 1894.

''(2) USE OF PACE PROTOCOL.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In issuing such regulations, the Secretary shall, to the extent consistent with the provisions of this section, incorporate the requirements applied to PACE demonstration waiver programs under the PACE protocol.

''(B) FLEXIBILITY.—In order to provide for reasonable flexibility in adapting the PACE service delivery model to the needs of particular organizations (such as those in rural areas or those that may determine it appropriate to use nonstaff physicians according to State licensing law requirements) under this section and section 1894, the Secretary (in close consultation with State administering agencies) may modify or waive provisions of the PACE protocol so long as any such modification or waiver is not inconsistent with and would not impair the essential elements, objectives, and requirements of this section, but may not modify or waive any of the following provisions:

''(i) The focus on frail elderly qualifying individuals who require the level of care provided in a nursing facility.

''(ii) The delivery of comprehensive, integrated acute and long-term care services.

''(iii) The interdisciplinary team approach to care management and service delivery.

''(iv) Capitated, integrated financing that allows the provider to pool payments received from public and private programs and individuals.

''(v) The assumption by the provider of full financial risk.

''(3) APPLICATION OF CERTAIN ADDITIONAL BENEFICIARY AND PROGRAM PROTECTIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In issuing such regulations and subject to subparagraph (B), the Secretary may apply with respect to PACE programs, providers, and agreements such requirements of part C of title XVIII (or, for periods before January 1, 1999, section 1876) and section 1903(m) relating to protection of beneficiaries and program integrity as would apply to Medicare Choice organizations under such part C (or for such periods eligible organizations under risk-sharing contracts under section 1876) and to health maintenance organizations under prepaid capitation agreements under section 1903(m).

''(B) CONSIDERATIONS.—In issuing such regulations, the Secretary shall—

''(i) take into account the differences between populations served and benefits provided under this section and under part C of title XVIII (or, for periods before January 1, 1999, section 1876) and section 1903(m);

''(ii) not include any requirement that conflicts with carrying out PACE programs under this section; and

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In order to demonstrate the operation of a PACE program by a private, for-profit entity, the Secretary (in close consultation with State administering agencies) shall grant waivers from the requirement under subsection (a)(3) that a PACE provider may not be a for-profit, private entity.

''(2) SIMILAR TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—

''(j) MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS.—Nothing in this section or 1894 shall be construed as preventing a PACE provider from entering into contracts with other governmental or nongovernmental payers for the care of PACE program eligible individuals who are not eligible for benefits under part A, or enrolled under part B, of title XVIII or eligible for medical assistance under this title.''.

The permanent continuation of a waiver project shall be on the same terms and conditions, including financing, and subject to the same set of waivers. No test of budget neutrality shall be applied in the case of projects described in paragraph (2) after that date on which the permanent extension was granted.

''(5) In the case of a waiver project described in paragraph (2), the Secretary, acting through the Health Care Financing Administration shall, deem any State's request to expand medicaid coverage in whole or in part to individuals who have an income at or below the Federal poverty level as budget neutral if independent evaluations sponsored by the Health Care Financing Administration have shown that the State's medicaid managed care program under such original waiver is more cost effective and efficient than the traditional fee-for-service medicaid program that, in the absence of any managed care waivers under this section, would have been provided in the State.''.

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 403(a) (42 U.S.C. 603(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(5) WELFARE-TO-WORK GRANTS.—

''(A) NONCOMPETITIVE GRANTS.—

''(i) ENTITLEMENT.—A State shall be entitled to receive from the Secretary a grant for each fiscal year specified in subparagraph (H) of this paragraph for which the State is a welfare-to-work State, in an amount that does not exceed the greater of—

''(I) the allotment of the State under clause (iii) of this subparagraph for the fiscal year; or

''(II) 0.5 percent of the amount specified in subparagraph (H) for each fiscal year minus the total of the amounts reserved pursuant to subparagraphs (E), (F), and (G) for the fiscal year. The Secretary shall make pro rata reductions in the amounts otherwise payable to States under this paragraph as necessary so that grants under this paragraph do not exceed the available amount, as defined in clause (iv).

''(ii) WELFARE-TO-WORK STATE.—A State shall be considered a welfare-to-work State for a fiscal year for purposes of this subparagraph if the Secretary determines that the State meets the following requirements:

''(I) The State has submitted to the Secretary (in the form of an addendum to the State plan submitted under section 402) a plan which—

''(aa) describes how, consistent with this subparagraph, the State will use any funds provided under this subparagraph during the fiscal year;

''(bb) specifies the formula to be used pursuant to clause (vi) to distribute funds in the State, and describes the process by which the formula was developed;

''(cc) contains evidence that the plan was developed in consultation and coordination with sub-State areas; and

''(dd) is approved by the agency administering the State program funded under this part.

''(II) The State certifies to the Secretary that the State intends to expend during the fiscal year (excluding expenditures described in section 409(a)(7)(B)(iv)) for activities described in clauses (i) and (ii) of subparagraph (C) of this paragraph an amount equal to not less than 33 percent of the Federal funds provided under this paragraph.

''(III) The State has agreed to negotiate in good faith with the Secretary with respect to the substance of any evaluation under section 413(j), and to cooperate with the conduct of any such evaluation.

''(IV) The State is an eligible State for the fiscal year.

''(V) Qualified State expenditures (within the meaning of section 409(a)(7)) are the applicable percentage for the immediately preceding fiscal year, as defined by section 409(a)(7)(B)(ii).

''(iii) ALLOTMENTS TO WELFARE-TO-WORK STATES.—The allotment of a welfare-to-work State for a fiscal year shall be the available amount for the fiscal year multiplied by the State percentage for the fiscal year.

''(iv) AVAILABLE AMOUNT.—As used in this subparagraph, the term 'available amount' means, for a fiscal year, the sum of—

''(I) 75 percent of the sum of—

''(aa) the amount specified in subparagraph (H) for the fiscal year, minus the total of the amounts reserved pursuant to subparagraphs (E), (F), and (G) for the fiscal year; and

''(aa) determines the amount to be distributed for the benefit of a political subdivision in proportion to the number (if any) of individuals residing in the political subdivision with an income that is less than the poverty line, relative to such number of individuals for the other political subdivisions in the State, and accords a weight of not less than 50 percent to this factor;

''(bb) may determine the amount to be distributed for the benefit of a political subdivision in proportion to the number of adults residing in the political subdivision who are recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part (whether in effect before or after the amendments made by section 103(a) of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act first applied to the State) for at least 30 months (whether or not consecutive) relative to the number of such adults residing in the other political subdivisions in the State; and

''(II) SPECIAL RULE.—Notwithstanding subclause (I), if the formula used pursuant to subclause (I) would result in the distribution of less than $100,000 during a fiscal year for the benefit of a political subdivision, then in lieu of distributing such sum in accordance with the formula, such sum shall be available for distribution under subclause (III) during the fiscal year.

''(III) PROJECTS TO HELP LONG-TERM RECIPIENTS OF ASSISTANCE INTO THE WORK FORCE.—The Governor of a State to which a grant is made under this subparagraph may distribute not more than 15 percent of the grant funds (plus any amount required to be distributed under this subclause by reason of subclause (II)) to projects that appear likely to help long-term recipients of assistance under the State program funded under this part (whether in effect before or after the amendments made by section 103(a) of the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act first applied to the State) enter the work force.

''(iii) DETERMINATION OF GRANT AMOUNT.—In determining the amount of a grant to be made under this subparagraph for a project proposed by an applicant, the Secretary shall provide the applicant with an amount sufficient to ensure that the project has a reasonable opportunity to be successful, taking into account the number of long-term recipients of assistance under a State program funded under this part, the level of unemployment, the job opportunities and job growth, the poverty rate, and such other factors as the Secretary deems appropriate, in the area to be served by the project.

CHAPTER 3—MISCELLANEOUS

SEC. 5871. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING THE CORRECTION OF COST-OF-LIVING ADJUSTMENTS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The final report of the Senate Finance Committee's Advisory Commission to Study the Consumer Price Index, chaired by Professor Michael Boskin, has concluded that the Consumer Price Index overstates the cost of living in the United States by 1.1 percentage points.

(2) Dr. Alan Greenspan, Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, has testified before the Senate Finance Committee that ''the best available evidence suggests that there is virtually no chance that the CPI as currently published understates'' the cost of living and that there is ''a very high probability that the upward bias ranges between ½ percentage point per year and 1½ percentage points per year''.

(3) The overstatement of the cost of living by the Consumer Price Index has been recognized by economists since at least 1961, when a report noting the existence of the overstatement was issued by a National Bureau of Economic Research Committee, chaired by Professor George J. Stigler.

(4) Congress and the President, through the indexing of Federal tax brackets, Social Security benefits, and other Federal program benefits, have undertaken to protect taxpayers and beneficiaries of such programs from the erosion of purchasing power due to inflation.

(5) Congress and the President intended the indexing of Federal tax brackets, Social Security benefits, and other Federal program benefits to accurately reflect changes in the cost of living.

(6) The overstatement of the cost of living increases the deficit and undermines the equitable administration of Federal benefits and tax policies.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that all cost-of-living adjustments required by statute should accurately reflect the best available estimate of changes in the cost of living.

(2) Hmong and other Highland Lao tribal forces sacrificed their own lives and saved the lives of American military personnel by rescuing downed American pilots and aircrews and by engaging and successfully fighting North Vietnamese troops.

(b) CONGRESSIONAL STATEMENT.—It is the sense of the Congress that Hmong and other Highland Lao veterans who fought on behalf of the Armed Forces of the United States during the Vietnam conflict and have lawfully been admitted to the United States for permanent residence should be considered veterans for purposes of continuing certain welfare benefits consistent with the exceptions provided other noncitizen veterans under the Personal Responsibility and Work Opportunity Reconciliation Act of 1996.

For purposes of this paragraph, a guaranty agency's equitable share of excess reserve funds shall be determined as follows:

''(A) The Secretary shall compute each agency's reserve ratio by dividing (i) the amount held in such agency's reserve (including funds held by, or under the control of, any other entity) as of September 30, 1996, by (ii) the original principal amount of all loans for which such agency has an outstanding insurance obligation.

The portion required to be transferred shall be determined as follows:

''(A) In fiscal year 1998—

''(i) all agencies combined shall transfer to a restricted account an amount equal to one-fifth of the total amount recalled under paragraph (1);

''(ii) each agency with a reserve ratio (as computed under paragraph (3)(A)) that exceeds 2 percent shall transfer to a restricted account so much of the amounts held in such agency's reserve fund as exceed a reserve ratio of 2 percent; and

''(iii) each agency shall transfer any additional amount required under clause (i) (after deducting the amount transferred under clause (ii)) by transferring an amount that represents an equal percentage of each agency's equitable share to a restricted account.

''(B) In fiscal years 1999 through 2002, each agency shall transfer an amount equal to one-fourth of the total amount remaining of the agency's equitable share (after deduction of the amount transferred under subparagraph (A)).

''(5) SHORTAGE.—If, on September 1, 2002, the total amount in the restricted accounts described in paragraph (4) is less than the amount the Secretary is required to recall under paragraph (1), the Secretary may require the return of the amount of the shortage from other reserve funds held by guaranty agencies under procedures established by the Secretary.

''(6) PROHIBITION.—The Secretary shall not have any authority to direct a guaranty agency to return reserve funds under subsection (g)(1)(A) during the period from the date of enactment of this subsection through September 30, 2002, and any reserve funds otherwise returned under subsection (g)(1) during such period shall be treated as amounts recalled under this subsection and shall not be available under subsection (g)(4).

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

H.R. 1902, THE CHARITABLE DONATION ANTITRUST IMMUNITY ACT OF 1977

HON. MICHAEL G. OXLEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. OXLEY. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to support H.R. 1902, the Charitable Donation Antitrust Immunity Act of 1997.

This bill continues Congress' efforts, begun in the 104th Congress, to protect charities from abusive litigation. My colleagues may recall that this legislation was sparked by concerns raised by a nationwide class-action lawsuit filed in Federal court in Texas in 1994. That litigation charged that charitable gift annuities and other similar products that are widely used by charities, universities, and other organizations to raise donated funds, were issued in violation of the securities and antitrust laws. That lawsuit caused great concern among the charities and other organizations that were the suit's target, which saw potential liabilities in the billions of dollars as a result of this litigation and the likely copycat suits that would follow.

In 1995, the Commerce Committee moved a bipartisan bill through the Congress to protect these organizations against the securities allegations raised in that lawsuit. That legislation, H.R. 2519, which was supported by the Securities and Exchange Commission, codified and clarified existing administrative exemptions that applied to charitable gift annuities and similar products, which were never intended to fall within the scope of the Federal securities laws as charged by the plaintiffs in the Texas lawsuit. That bill passed unanimously in the Commerce Committee and received a resounding vote of 421 to 0 in this body, whereupon it was passed by the Senate on a voice vote and, shortly thereafter, signed into law by the President.

Concurrent with our efforts in the Commerce Committee, the Judiciary Committee passed companion legislation to address the antitrust aspects of the Texas litigation.

Unfortunately, despite our success in the last Congress, the threat that this litigation presents to charitable and other organizations that use charitable gift annuities and similar products to raise funds has not gone away. The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit recently held that the 1995 antitrust legislation was not broad enough to prevent the plaintiffs from continuing their litigation in this area. Thus, Chairman HYDE and his colleagues on the Judiciary Committee have introduced legislation that will clarify Congress' intention and, we hope, end the litigation threat to charitable organizations across the country.

I am pleased to continue to support efforts to preserve the ability of America's charities, universities, and other organizations to use charitable gift annuities and similar products to raise needed funds, and urge the President to sign H.R. 1902 so that the needless threat to these organizations can be laid to rest once and for all.

HONORING THE WEST SPRINGFIELD LADY SPARTANS

HON. THOMAS M. DAVIS

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor a group of young women who have achieved great feats, not only on the basketball court, but also in the community. I am speaking of the Virginia State High School Basketball Champions, the West Springfield Lady Spartans.

Their success on the basketball court speaks for itself. In addition to winning the State title they were ranked No. 1 in the Washington metropolitan area by the Washington Post and No. 9 in the Nation by the USA Today for the past season. However, it is their endeavors off the court that have made them true champions.

Not only did these ladies manage to maintain a 3.5 GPA as a team, they found time between studying and practicing to become active in community service. Each Saturday after practice the team would participate in the Special Olympic program, where they would teach mentally and physically challenged students the game of basketball. In March they organized a free basketball clinic for young girls between the ages of 5 and 16 that attracted over 100 participants. During the Christmas season the team embodied the spirit of the season by assisting in a charity program which provided toys and clothes to needy children.

I am proud to recognize the Lady Spartans not only for their excellence in basketball, but for graciously donating their talents and energies to benefit others in the Springfield community. The example they have set in the classroom, on the court, and in the community is one that should be emulated by those who follow them.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me today in honoring these fine young student-athletes.

TRIBUTE TO T. NATHAN DOAN

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, all of us have special memories of Christmas time with our families and friends. The excitement of Christmas Eve, the delight of unopened presents on Christmas morning, but most of all, we remember the mystery and magic of Santa Claus. I have had the privilege and honor of knowing the true Santa Claus in T. Nathan Doan, who was a constituent, a friend, and an inspiration to us all.

Nathan Doan, or Nate as he was known to tens of thousands, passed away on May 19, 1997. He will be missed by his family and his friends, but also by the thousands of people whose lives he has so selflessly touched over the span of his lifetime. Each year on Christmas Eve, Nate's car became Santa's magical sleigh soaring Nate and Mrs. Clause, his wife Mary Ida, to the homes of Bay City's children to share the Christmas spirit. One of Santa's many elves would phone ahead to ensure that the children at the next house were ready for the visit from Santa and Mrs. Claus.

Nate started his Santa career back in 1940. He was to be a replacement Santa. Little did he realize then that this was the beginning of a career that would touch the lives of many generations of not only the citizens of Michigan, but citizens across the Nation and the world.

In 1953, Nate attended the Charles W. Howard Santa School in New York. He revisited each year until 1966 when Charles Howard passed on. Nate stepped in to lead the school keeping the legacy alive by training more than 800 Santas. In 1967, 1968, and again in 1980, Nate and his wife, Mary Ida, traveled to Australia to share the magic of Christmas.

Nate was very proud of Bay City and the Bay City School District that employed him for many years. As Santa, he would delight the school children and always knew all the teachers by name. However, Nate was proudest of his role as husband to Mary Ida and father to T. Nathan II and Jeffrey. Their loving support for Nate's legacy as Santa to the worlds' children enabled him to touch us all.

Nate was a deeply religious man and was very active in his church. His divine inspiration manifested itself, not just in his giving, but in his sense of humor. Spending just a little time with Nate meant sore cheeks from laughter and another loving memory of a man with a heart that could always make room for one more person. Nate's caring personality was infectious and always left one with a positive feeling.

Mr. Speaker, the world is a better place because of our Santa, Nate Doan. May his wife and lifetime partner, Mary Ida, and his children, Nate and Jeff, know that our thoughts and prayers are with them. May they also know that Nate will continue to live in the memories of all of us that he so lovingly touched.

FARMLAND PRESERVATION

HON. LEE H. HAMILTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. HAMILTON. Mr. Speaker, I would like to insert my Washington Report for Wednesday, June 18, 1997 into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

● This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

FARMLAND PRESERVATION

Farmland is one of this nation's most precious resources. But farmland is fragile: it takes nature 100 to 1,000 years to replace one inch of topsoil. Fifteen tons of topsoil wash down the Mississippi River every second. The United States has made an impressive effort to reduce loss of farmland by erosion, but prime farmland is also being converted to shopping centers and suburbs at a rapid rate. As communities grow and expand, new housing, industry, and roads must be built to support that growth. This growth has many positive aspects to it, with the creation of new wealth and jobs, but concern is growing that unchecked development may be reducing the limited resource of good farmland. There is a general consensus that domestic food production capacity is not currently threatened by the conversion of farmland to other uses, but less certainty about the ability of the United States to meet future export demand.

THE PROBLEM

By some estimates, Indiana is losing more than 70,000 acres of prime farmland each year. Some groups calculate that, over the last decade, the United States has lost more than 10 million acres of farmland—an area almost half the size of Indiana. This is troubling for several reasons.

First, the loss of prime farmland eliminates a productive resource from future use. Almost 20% of the U.S. economy is linked to farm production. A reduction in agricultural productivity could hurt the overall economy.

Second, new development that increases land prices makes it difficult for younger farmers to purchase land. Because the rural population is aging, young farmers will be critical to the future strength of agriculture.

Third, less land could mean higher food prices. In the next fifty years, world food demand is projected to triple. Unless we can increase food production, growing demand will force prices up, hitting moderate income families hardest.

Fourth, the loss of agricultural land decreases the quality of life in small towns and rural areas. Hoosiers value our beautiful countryside and the open spaces that characterize Indiana's landscape. With unplanned development, we risk losing some of our treasured land resources.

Fifth, the loss of prime farmland near growing communities may force farmers to use less productive land. Such farming often requires more chemicals and causes more erosion, thus decreasing water safety and quality.

Sixth, U.S. food production is important to international security. With just 4% of the world's population, the U.S. produces 20% of the world's field crops on 14% of the arable farmland. Yet China, for example, has 25% of the population and just 7% of the arable farmland. U.S. exports will be critical for the future security of many growing countries. Unchecked loss of U.S. farmland could make famine, refugee flows, and political instability more common abroad.

POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS

We must gather more information on the problem and possible solutions. We really do not know how serious the problem is, or the most effective ways to address it. Different agencies give different estimates on how much farmland has been converted to nonfarm use, and whether farmland conversion is a national or a local and regional problem. The President, governors, and other leading officials should make clear policy statements on the importance of agricultural land.

Easements

One popular approach to preservation is a voluntary land use ''easement''. Farmers who want to preserve their land for farming can sell easements to community groups, governments, or conservation organizations to protect the future use of the land. Present and future property owners retain all rights to use the land as they see fit, within the guidelines of the easement. The voluntary easement compensates the farmer for the loss of future commercial or residential development rights.

Federal programs

To encourage the use of easements, Congress created the Farmland Protection Program in the 1996 farm bill. This program provides easement matching funds to states and local communities that have farmland preservation programs. Incentives should also be given to encourage development on land that is less-suited for agriculture. Government at all levels must be sensitive to the adverse effect of its own activities on agricultural land.

State efforts

The State of Indiana has also studied farmland protection, and Governor Frank O'Bannon has announced the creation of a task force to make recommendations on local farmland preservation efforts. This task force will include agricultural, conservation, and business groups, and state and local officials. If the state sets up a formal program, local efforts could get federal matching funds.

Taxes

Current estate tax laws often make it difficult to keep farmland in the family, and to continue its agricultural use. Heirs faced with large tax bills are more likely to sell farmland for development. I support measures in the state legislature and Congress to increase estate tax relief and other incentives to keep land in the family or preserve it for agricultural use.

Land reuse

Another way to encourage farmland preservation is to recycle ''brownfields'', or old industrial sites, rather than taking farmland out of production. Companies are often reluctant to clean up old factories in cities because of environmental regulations and a deteriorating quality of life in urban areas. The clean-up and redevelopment of these sites is in farmers' interests.

CONCLUSION

We must be careful not to raise concerns about federal intervention in land use. Land use and zoning regulations are and should remain the responsibility of local governments. We do have to increase awareness of the risks of farmland conversion, encourage state and local leaders to be aware of those risks, and provide effective options for communities to preserve farmland. Nothing is more important than preserving our nation's natural resource base.

SMALL BUSINESS OWNERS TESTIFY ON PRO-SMALL BUSINESS PROVISIONS OF THE TAXPAYER RELIEF ACT

HON. JOHN A. BOEHNER

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. BOEHNER. Mr. Speaker, the House Republican conference organized a public forum to hear from small business owners on the importance of passing the Taxpayer Relief Act. The forum focused on three of the pro-small business provisions in the Taxpayer Relief Act—the home office deduction, capital gains rate reductions, and relief from death taxes.

The compelling testimony from these small business owners from across America are included to demonstrate to my colleagues the debate on the taxpayer Relief Act is not about class warfare, rather it is about helping all Americans and small businesses prosper and succeed to achieve their dreams.

SUSAN THOMAS.

My name is Susan Thomas, President of Best of Service and Sales International, Inc.—a home-based business in Annandale, Virginia. I am pleased to appear today on behalf of the National Association for the Self-Employed (NASE), the national association representing more than 325,000 small business persons and self-employed individuals. The NASE would like to thank the House Republican Conference for organizing this hearing to highlight some very important issues for millions of small business people—particularly the home office deduction. We would like to commend Rep. Jim Talent for sponsoring H.R. 1145—The Home-Based Business Fairness Act, those representatives who joined as co-sponsors, Rep. Mike Pappas for introducing his home office deduction bill, and the members of the Ways & Means Committee who included the home office deduction in their recent tax bill.

My company—Best of Service and Sales International, Inc.—employs 3 individuals to market computer equipment, peripherals, software, and computer supplies to the federal government. In addition, I have started a new venture called Best Travel Services which markets vacations, and educational and group study tours.

I initially started a home-based business several years ago because I was frustrated with working for the large company/corporate culture. I originally setup my business in my home upon leaving Wang Corporation because I had very little working capital at the time. Ironically, it was my intention when I started my business to ultimately move the business out of my home and into commercial office space at a later date. Today, I would not trade my home-based business for any commercial office location anywhere. I love my home office because of the conveniences it affords me. Unfortunately, for businesses like mine, the home office deduction has been under attack.

While I operate a home-based business, I don't take the home office tax deduction on my tax return. Why? Not because the IRS requires businesses that take the deduction to see their clients in their home office or that they should generate their revenue there. I actually meet these unfair and discriminatory tests—tests that no other businesses are required to fulfill. No, the reason I don't take the deduction is the warning that I and millions of others like me got from our accountants. Taking the deduction, my accountant told me, is like waving a red flag at the IRS. . . . a flag saying, ''AUDIT ME!''

This is ridiculous. Congress passes a law to help home-based businesses. The IRS then tries to impose the narrowest interpretation as possible on the law. They lost two court cases, but took the case all the way to the Supreme Court in the Soliman case. After finally convincing the Supreme Court to narrow the deduction, the IRS then audits those who still qualify for it so aggressively that millions of people legitimately entitled to the deduction are afraid to take it.

Look at the numbers. IRS statistics of income show that 1.5 million people claimed the home office deduction in 1994. Yet the number of full-time home-based businesses is variously estimated at between 7 and 14 million. why don't 80 to 90% of home-based businesses take the deduction. Don't they qualify? I believe a great many of them are just like me. They do qualify, but are forced to choose between the time and stress of an audit or the modest tax savings of the deduction. I choose to forego the deduction.

The current home office deduction limitations are unfair and unwise for other reasons too. All over the country, larger businesses are laying off employees. If we want to help these people get on their feet, we should make it a little easier for them to start a business. The same goes for people who are forced off the welfare rolls under the 1996 welfare reform law. They should be given the opportunity to start up businesses, as self-employed people, with a minimum of up-front costs. Not to mention the need and desire of individuals to be closer to their families in today's day and age. Home-based businesses are an obvious way to help facilitate all of this.

Give us the certainty of an expanded, modernized home office deduction and we will use it. Don't allow the IRS to administratively defeat Congress' original purpose with the deduction. Improve the fairness and clarity of the home office deduction. Not only will more home-based businesses have a better chance to succeed, but more potential home-based businesses will decide to try. And that's better for America.

I would like to thank the House Republican Conference for the opportunity to appear today, and I would also urge the House Conferees to ensure the inclusion of the pro-business, pro-family home office deduction in the budget. Thank you very much.

GIOVANNI CORATOLA,
Franconia, VA, June 25, 1997.

Good morning Mr. Chairman. My name is Giovanni Coratola and I own Port of Italy in Franconia, VA. Thank you for giving me this opportunity to testify today.

My restaurant does not belong to the people in this room. My restaurant does not belong to the federal government. My restaurant belongs to my family and in a sense it belongs to my extended family of employees that have dedicated their lives to making it work. The ownership of my restaurant comes at a high price. I routinely work seven day weeks with 12 to 14 hour weeks not uncommon. I have taken less time off in the 25 years I have been in business than the average worker takes off in one year. The majority of the profits that have been generated from my restaurant have been returned to the business or spent on keeping abreast with changing public demands. Ownership of my restaurant is the result of a high personal commitment from myself, my wife, my family and my employees. Yet upon death, it would be taxed to the point of being taken from those it was meant to be given.

My restaurant does not belong to the people in this room. When I was asked to come here today I inquired what the main objective was to providing relief from this onerous tax. I was told it was being attacked as given tax cuts to the rich. Well, there are two things wrong with this (1) I am not, within any stretch of the imagination, wealthy (2) How can you feel that letting my family keep what we have spent our lives working for is giving us anything that we do not already own and deserve. In all fairness to me and other restaurateurs that have spent their lives building something of value for their families and employees it is time the federal government wean itself from taking in death, what it could not justify in taking while I was alive.

On behalf of myself, my family, and my restaurant family of employees I thank you for allowing me to address you here today. And I suggest that if the federal government wants the right to take the restaurant when I die, I encourage it to take these keys and help me operate it while I'm alive.

JIM ELMER.

Good morning. My name is Jim Elmer, and I am the owner of Jim J. Elmer Construction Co. in Spokane, Washington. I am pleased to have the opportunity to speak with you today in support of the Tax Relief Act of 1997, in particular the proposed capital gains tax reduction.

Our firm constructs buildings for private owners. Most of our work is negotiated. We currently have two (2) projects which have been on hold for the past several years pending a reduction in the capital gains taxes. The projects do not make economic sense for the owners to sell other assets in order to finance their new projects and pay 28% capital gains taxes, with the modest reductions which you proposed, the projects become economically viable for our owners.

The release of these new dollars into our economy will allow us to hire more people in the community and purchase additional building materials for the projects, helping our area's economy to grow.

An addition to the increased economic activity, the capital gains reduction will also benefit our employers directly. Besides providing more employment our employees will be able to help pay for their children's college education, or purchase a new home without being penalized severely by the capital gains taxes.

The capital gains reduction will be a great stimulus to increase economic activity in our area and for our company directly. We support the Ways and Means Bill, and would strongly support further reductions in the future.

Thank you for allowing me to speak. If you should have any questions, I will be happy to answer them. Thank you.

Mr. BOBBY TODD,
Washington, DC, June 25, 1997.

Mr. Chairman, members of the House Republican Conference, thank you for taking the time this morning and listening to America's small business owners. I am Bobby Todd and I own and operate a small print shop, Eagle Printing, here in Washington, DC. I am also a member of National Small Business United, the nation's oldest small business advocacy organization.

I am pleased to be here at such a historic moment for our country. Today, the House of Representatives will vote and pass a budget plan that will balance our nation's budget and make the federal government do something that I have had to do my whole professional and personal life: live within our means. And tomorrow we will see our first tax cut for the middle-class working men and women of our country since the Reagan Administration—and it is long overdue.

It is often said that small business is the engine that drives the American economy and I couldn't agree more. As a middle-class small business owner I want to tell you how welcomed the Tax Payers' Relief Act of 1997 is to me and my family.

At the heart of the tax package for small business owners are the provisions that target small business' bottom line and allow us to compete in this ''global economy'': independent contractor status, extension of EFTPS, the all-important home office deduction and long-overdue death tax relief. Without these and other reforms included in this tax package, my business is at a competitive disadvantage to larger companies, as are hundreds of thousands of other small businesses.

Including the home office deduction is an important piece of this tax bill. By redefining what a home office is, it will allow small entrepreneurs to work at home, stay close to their families and help raise their children. Let me point out to you that under the current law, I could use a room in my neighbor's house to conduct my business and deduct it, but if I did the same exact work in a room in my house I could not. That just doesn't make any sense and is absolutely counter-productive to the small business movement.

As the American economy continues its shift towards smaller and sometimes home-based businesses, making the tax rules easier and clearer for us is essential. Congress couldn't send a clearer message of its support for the small business community than by passing this tax bill.

And, I hope that this is just a first step in the process. I would like nothing more than to change the entire tax system so it truly encourages investment, savings and the entrepreneurial spirit that has made this country so great. But, I will leave those thoughts for another day. Thank you very much for allowing me this time to speak with you.

PAUL JOST,
Alexandria, VA.

Good morning. I'm Paul Jost. I'm the president of Chandler Development Corporation. We are a small business based in Alexandria, Virginia, which buys and manages apartment buildings.

We are members of the NFIB and the National Apartment Association. Our business currently has 35 employees.

I started the business in 1988 raising capital from friends and family. We have just over 100 investors, most of whom are small investors. In addition to the 35 direct jobs we have created, we also employ a number of independent contractors who do such things as maintain the lawns, service the pools, and paint and clean the apartments between residents. In all, we probably provide employment for over 100 people.

The high capital gains tax rate limits my ability to raise capital to finance new acquisitions which would provide more jobs and more housing for families. A high capital gains tax also distorts our ability to make decisions of whether to sell or hold properties. That decision should be based on profitability, not the tax implications.

I believe that a reduction in the capital gains rate would generate more taxes. For example, we own a property in Texas which we would probably sell if the rate were lowered. And that sale would generate substantial tax revenues.

We would use the after-tax profits to purchase several other properties, in Texas and in Virginia. At the current capital gains rate, however, our investors prefer not to sell because too much of the profit would be taken by the federal government.

The net result is that a profitable sale will probably not occur, which hurts us and actually leads to a loss of tax revenue for the federal government. Everybody loses because of bad tax policy.

Last year, we were able to sell a property and buy another using a 1031 like-kind exchange which enabled us to roll our gain into the new property and defer taxes on the gain. That mechanism, however, is very complicated and is only available to those who can afford high priced lawyers and accountants. There are also numerous risks and restrictions involved in such exchanges which make us unlikely to use them in the future. that transaction also did not produce any tax revenue for the federal government.

Everyone (except our lawyers and accountants) would have been better off had the rate been lower. We would not have had to jump through these hoops and the government would have collected some taxes.

I also believe that the death tax exemption should be increased. While I currently do not have children, I would like to think that I could some day pass on my business to my children. Many of my investors are also concerned with the death tax. This has led some of them to make their investments through trusts in their children's names. This leads to additional paperwork and more profit for our lawyers and accountants. We would all be better off if the exemption were raised and the rules were simplified.

Thank you very much for giving me the change to share my views with you. I know you are busy and I appreciate the time you have given me.

SPEECH OF

HON. PHILIP M. CRANE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 236, on final passage of H.R. 1119, had I been present, I would have voted ''aye.''

IMPROVING HUMAN RIGHTS IN CHINA

HON. DONALD A. MANZULLO

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. MANZULLO. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join my colleagues in becoming an original cosponsor of the China Human Rights and Democracy Act of 1997. I especially wish to applaud the actions of my colleagues, Representatives JOHN PORTER, DAVID DREIER, JIM KOLBE, and MATT SALMON, in writing and pushing this legislation. In my opinion, Mr. Speaker, this bill is the right, targeted approach to take in opposing the policies of the People's Republic of China that all Americans find repugnant. As evidenced by the vote last Tuesday, the most-favored-nation [MFN] or normal trade status debate is the wrong place to express our disagreements with the Chinese Government.

This legislation would allow Radio Free Asia to broadcast 24 hours a day to give the Chinese people the truth about their government and current events. In addition, the bill would help various foundations to promote democracy, civil society, and the rule of law in China and would encourage more international exchanges between our two peoples. It would also promote a voluntary code of conduct for United States businesses. The vast majority of United States companies operating in China already provide exemplary models to China of how to conduct business and treat people equally and fairly. This code would help give these U.S. firms concrete goals to measure their success.

The bulk of the legislation focuses on promoting human rights in China. It requires an annual report on human rights conditions in China. The bill also proposes to create a prisoner information registry so that people in the United States could plead for specific political prisoners in China. It would also deny visas to Chinese Government officials who have been involved in human rights abuses or in the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction. The bill would also publish and disseminate a list of Chinese companies that are affiliated with the People's Liberation Army so the American people would know if a particular product they wish to buy is made by a Chinese firm affiliated with the Chinese military.

However, I have one minor but important reservation about the legislation, which I hope can be worked out before it reaches the House floor for a vote. The legislation requires a one-to-one ratio between State Department Foreign Service officers with an expertise in human rights and Commerce Department U.S. Foreign & Commercial Service [US&FCS] officers, who are experts at promoting U.S. exports.

The China Human Rights and Democracy Act mandates that the State Department appoint at least six human rights officers. The problem is that there are 13 US&FCS officers in China, with 9 in Beijing alone. The problem is further compounded by the fact that the Commerce Department currently only has seven of these nine positions in Beijing filled. Plus, one of these officials is really an export control officer who is charged primarily with ensuring that Chinese importers comply with United States export control laws. If the State Department is unable to fund more than the minimum number of six human rights officers, then the unintended consequence of this legislation will force the Commerce Department to withdraw as many as seven US&FCS officers from China to comply with this one-to-one ratio. Thus, the real-life practical effect of the legislation could translate into having only five full-time US&FCS officers for the entire country of China. Compare that with Tokyo, Japan, 12 US&FCS officers, or Seoul, South Korea, 7 US&FCS officers, and I hope you see the need, Mr. Speaker, for more than 5 US&FCS officers for all of China.

Our foreign competitors already have dozens more export promotion officials in China than us. This legislation could place United States exporters at a competitive disadvantage I believe the better way is to have the legislation stress the importance of stationing human rights officers in China but leave the number of these officers up to the discretion of the State Department and not require a one-to-one ratio to US&FCS officers.

Mr. Speaker, with this minor reservation, I am pleased to join on as an original cosponsor to the China Human Rights and Democracy Act of 1997, and I hope to work out this problem through the committee process.

THE TOWN OF MICHIGAMME, MI, CELEBRATES ITS 125TH BIRTHDAY

HON. BART STUPAK

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, June 26, 1997

Mr. STUPAK. Mr. Speaker, I bring to the attention of the U.S. House of Representatives and the American public the 125th birthday of a proud historic town in the First Congressional District of Michigan, the town of Michigamme. This town, with a population of just over 300 residents, may be considered small by conventional standards, but it holds a big place in the history of the central Upper Peninsula of Michigan and in the hearts of the people who have known it.

Michigamme was founded in 1872 by Jacob Houghton, the brother of the famous Dr. Douglas Houghton, after he discovered iron ore deposits there. Mr. Houghton became the owner and operator of both the iron ore mine and the sawmill of Michigamme. Iron ore mining and timber industry jobs brought hundreds to Michigamme, but the economic panic of 1873 and a forest fire soon reduced the number of available jobs. Michigamme exhibited its resilience as a community by reopening the sawmill and resuming mining. The town bounced back and the population swelled to 1,800 by 1882, a record that has stood intact since that time. In 1881, F.W. Read bought the Michigamme sawmill, and the mines of the area were purchased by the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Co., and the Ford Motor Co. near the turn of the century. Through the early 20th century, Michigamme's rich veins of iron ore and statuesque first-growth timber provided the town with solid industrial economic base.

Michigamme's industrial base was not the only reason that people settled there. Michigamme's location on the shores of beautiful Lake Michigamme have also contributed to its growth and history. The residents of Michigamme have added to the beauty of the town by encouraging a community for the arts and crafts, with several operating gift shops and an annual Christmas Market, widely attended by the surrounding communities. Michigamme has been called the Renaissance Village, because of the artistic community it fosters. The residents of Michigamme know that this is a special place that they can call home.

Mr. Speaker, the residents of Michigamme exemplify the small-town character and spirit which we hear our colleagues speak about with nostalgia in today's fast-paced and impersonal culture. The people of Michigamme, MI, are proud of where they came from and of who they are. They are the type of people who honor their history and look forward to creating a future for their town. They are the type of people who know their neighbor and who call him or her a friend. I would like to extend my congratulations to the people of Michigamme on the 125th birthday of their town, and I am here today to ask my colleagues to join me in wishing them the best for many years to come.
