

United States
of America

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 145

WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24, 1999

No. 47

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m.

The Chaplain, Reverend James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

As we walk the paths of life and as we attempt to view the road ahead, we pray, almighty God, that Your spirit will encourage us along that journey and support us all the day long. We know that our hearts grow weary and we need strength; we know that our minds lose the discernment needed for the future and we need vision; we know that we miss the mark and we hunger for forgiveness and a new start. Wherever we are or whatever we do, we pray for Your presence, O God, and for Your enduring peace. In Your name we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. BARTLETT) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the House of the following titles:

H.R. 92. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at 251 North Main Street in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, as the "Hiram H. Ward Federal Building and United States Courthouse".

H.R. 158. An act to designate the United States courthouse located at 316 North 26th Street in Billings, Montana, as the "James F. Battin United States Courthouse".

H.R. 233. An act to designate the Federal building located at 700 East San Antonio Street in El Paso, Texas, as the "Richard C. White Federal Building".

H.R. 396. An act to designate the Federal building located at 1301 Clay Street in Oakland, California, as the "Ronald V. Dellums Federal Building".

The message also announced that the Senate had passed bills and a concurrent resolution of the following titles, in which the concurrence of the House is requested:

S. 67. An act to designate the headquarters building of the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Washington, District of Columbia, as the "Robert C. Weaver Federal Building".

S. 437. An act to designate the United States courthouse under construction at 333 Las Vegas Boulevard South in Las Vegas, Nevada, as the "Lloyd D. George United States Courthouse".

S. 453. An act to designate the Federal building located at 709 West 9th Street in Juneau, Alaska, as the "Hurff A. Saunders Federal Building".

S. 460. An act to designate the United States courthouse located at 401 South Michigan Street in South Bend, Indiana, as the "Robert K. Rodibaugh United States Bankruptcy Courthouse".

S. Con. Res. 21. Concurrent resolution authorizing the President of the United States to conduct military air operations and missile strikes against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro).

WE NEED STRAIGHT ANSWERS FROM OUR ADMINISTRATION AND FROM OUR COMMANDER IN CHIEF

(Mr. HAYWORTH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, on a day when American men and women in uniform may go into harm's way, headlines scream of Kosovo. That is a concern, but there are also concerns this morning in North Korea.

The Washington Times reports this morning, and I quote, "Vital parts of a 50-megawatt North Korean nuclear reactor have been missing since international inspectors first visited the site under the terms of a 1994 nuclear-freeze pact with the United States."

"The absence of the reactor parts, which could be used to construct another reactor, was known by some State Department officials but was never disclosed to Congress."

Mr. Speaker, on a morning when people may go into harm's way, the State Department did not notify us of this Korean breach. The Energy Department did not notify us of an espionage breach.

We need straight answers from our administration and from our commander in chief.

GHB INCIDENT—THE DEATH OF KERRI BRETON

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I too, offer godspeed as we make our decisions on Kosova.

Mr. Speaker, I rise this morning to talk again about GHB, a dangerous drug that has destroyed the lives of some of our young women and young people in this country.

I have introduced a bill, the Hillory F. Farias Date Rape Drug Prevention Act, along with my colleague, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. STUPAK), who has also introduced a bill.

I would like to share the story of a young woman named Kerri Breton, who also died as a result of GHB poisoning.

□ This symbol represents the time of day during the House proceedings, e.g., □ 1407 is 2:07 p.m.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

Printed on recycled paper.

H1599

This young, 26-year-old single mother died last May after she ingested a GHB laced drink while on a business trip.

She was a vibrant young woman who had worked hard for most of her life to achieve, despite the setbacks she had faced. She lost her mother to cancer when she was 13 and she had a child while in high school. However, Kerri was able to get her GED and at the time of her death she worked at an insurance firm where she had just received her insurance license.

On the night of her death, Kerri was on a business trip in Syracuse, New York. She had drinks with a colleague and then went to her room. The next morning, her roommate found Kerri dead on the bathroom floor. There is still a murder investigation going on to determine how this drug got into Kerri's drink.

We must commit to passing legislation that will schedule GHB.

I would like to thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) for sharing this story with me. Kerri Breton was a resident of his district in New York, and this tragic story was sent by Ms. Breton's stepfather, Roger Voight. The gentleman from New York (Mr. LAFALCE) has recently joined us as a cosponsor of this important legislation.

I urge my colleagues to immediately have hearings on scheduling GHB and for this House to pass this legislation expeditiously so that we can save the lives of young people like Kerri Breton and give tribute to the loss of their lives and avoid these tragedies in the years to come.

NO MORE SOCIAL SECURITY SLUSH FUND

(Mr. SCHAFFER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, while the White House is busy working on a plausible explanation as to how atomic espionage at Energy Department labs was ignored over the last 3 years, Republicans have been busy putting together a budget that reflects responsible common sense conservative values.

For 40 years, the Democrats failed to take Social Security off the table, turning the Social Security Administration trust fund into a Washington slush fund. Well, those days are over. The Republican budget is going to do what should have been done a long time ago. It puts the Social Security surplus into a safe deposit box.

Long-time observers of Washington know that we need a safe deposit box to keep big spending liberals from running off with it. The Social Security trust fund should not be a slush fund. The Republican budget takes 100 percent of the retirement surplus and sets it aside for Social Security and Medicare.

We are going to hang a huge sign on the safe deposit box with a message, "no liberals allowed. Do not touch."

DEMOCRATIC ALTERNATIVE BUDGET

(Ms. KILPATRICK asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Speaker, first of all, I would like to offer prayers and hope for our situation that we face today in Kosova.

Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about the democratic alternative budget, a budget that extends Social Security until the year 2050 and saves Medicare, which will run out of money in 2008 unless we do save it.

I am happy that the Democrats are proposing 77 percent for Social Security and to save Medicare to the year 2020. We also fully fund the President's education request. The other budget resolution does not. We offer money for child care. The other budget resolution does not.

Mr. Speaker, we offer $1.9 billion for our veterans and their families. Let us support the democratic budget alternative that saves Social Security and Medicare, helps our veterans, helps our children as we move to the 21st Century.

PRESIDENT'S BUDGET ACTUALLY EXPANDS ENTITLEMENT SPENDING

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, how soon we forget. President Clinton just 3 years ago proposed a five year budget that would have added $1.2 trillion to the national debt. That is $200 billion deficits every year for as far as the eye could see.

The Republicans said no.

They said no to big government.

They said no to using phony numbers.

They said no to a national health care system that his own party admitted would have pushed the deficit into the stratosphere.

So Congress insisted on passing a bipartisan budget that balanced and kept the lid on spending.

Well here we go again. It is back to budget-busting time.

Once again, it is going to be up to Congress to act like grownups and keep the lid on spending.

The President's budget actually expands entitlement spending, puts the Medicare program in jeopardy only one year after we acted to save it, and goes back to tax increases that hurt the economy.

Tax and spend, tax and spend. No matter how good the White House can spin it, and they are very good, this budget is a tax and spend budget that takes us in the wrong direction.

COUNTRIES ALL OVER THE WORLD ARE DUMPING IN AMERICA'S MARKETS

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, the U.S. trade deficit is projected to exceed $200 billion this year. Japan will once again exceed $60 billion in surplus. If that is not enough to tax your exports, China is expected to take a $70 billion chunk of money in trade surplus from Uncle Sam. Unbelievable.

Countries all over the world are dumping in our markets. Beam me up, Mr. Speaker. If our trade policy is so good, why does not Japan do it? Why does not China do it? Why does not Europe do it?

The truth is, our trade policy is about as effective as tits on a boar hog.

Mr. Speaker, I yield back our stupidity and I yield back our other cheeks.

HUMAN RIGHTS ABUSES IN INDIA

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak about human rights abuses in India today.

As we may know, Christians and other religious minorities have faced terrible persecution in India recently. In January, an extremist mob burned alive an Australian missionary and his two sons who were trapped in their car.

This is not the first instance of persecution. Over Christmas, churches throughout India were burned and destroyed. Christians' homes were looted and stoned, and Christian individuals were attacked and stoned.

In January, missionaries and seminary students were attacked and beaten with rods. Then just last week, an extremist Hindu group called Vishwa Hindu burned 150 Christian homes in Orissa's Gajapati District and terrorized the Christian community with homemade guns.

Mr. Speaker, I urge the Indian government to take decisive action to stop this continuing violence and bring to justice those who have committed the crimes, and protect the rights of all minority religious believers in India.

STOP THE KILLING IN KOSOVA NOW

(Mr. ENGEL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I apologize in advance to my colleagues and to the American people who may be offended by what I am about to show but I think it is very, very important in view of the events of today that we show this.

This is a poster. It shows a dead child who was killed with ethnic cleansing in Kosova, and it says his mother will never have to see him this way. They killed her, too.

My colleagues, this is what is going on today in Kosova, and I say Kosova because 92 percent of the population, the ethnic Albanians who live there, call it Kosova and they were being ethnically cleansed.

We need to stop it. We need to support the bombing. We need to support NATO troops on the ground. NATO is the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. It is concerned about genocide in Europe as it rightly should be.

Milosevic, the Serbian leader, has broken every agreement to which he has agreed. The U.S. vital interests are there. We have a vital interest to stop genocide. We have a vital interest to stop a wider war which will surely happen in the Balkans if we sit back and do nothing. It could suck in our allies, Greece and Turkey and Hungary and other countries.

We need to support U.S. troops. We need to support the bombing. Stop the killing in Kosova now. Stop the genocide and the ethnic cleansing.

THE REPUBLICAN BUDGET CONTRASTED WITH THE PRESIDENT'S BUDGET

(Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Mr. Speaker, let us compare and contrast the Republican budget with the President's budget.

The Republican's budget saves more for Social Security and Medicare. The President's budget cuts $9 billion from Medicare.

The Republican budget enforces balanced budget discipline. The President's budget busts the budget caps by $30 billion.

The Republican budget provides middle class tax relief. The President's budget, surprise, surprise, raises taxes by $172 billion.

One budget reflects the common sense conservatism of responsible government that gives people more freedom and a higher standard of living. The other budget reflects the instinct to expand government at every turn, all the while shortchanging our seniors.

The Republican budget strengthens retirement security first. It protects seniors and sticks to the historic balanced budget agreement signed by the President only 2 short years ago.

This is a budget Americans can applaud.

HERSHEY, PENNSYLVANIA, A LOT OF TALK AND A LOT OF CHALK

(Mr. DINGELL asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Speaker, like a lot of my colleagues, I went up to Hershey, Pennsylvania, had a lot of talk and a lot of chalk. We went up to talk about how we are going to restore civility in this body. We talked about unfair allocation of staff and money. We talked about unfair committee ratios, the most unfair in 50 years.

We did not talk about the unfortunate thing that happened this morning, and that is the unavailability of rooms for Democratic members to meet in this body.

Now we can talk about the prerogatives of the Chair and the Republicans to run this place. I do not have any quarrel and I do not really expect to win, but I do expect to have fair treatment and a fair opportunity to talk.

The question is, are the Republicans going to mean what they said about restoring civility?

□ 1015

Yesterday we came back and voted on staff and money, an unfair allocation of both. But to just say that they cannot make rooms available for the Democrats to meet, it looks like the preponderance of the growing evidence is the Republicans do not intend to be fair, and that the spirit of Hershey has gone.

THE REPUBLICAN PLAN SETS ASIDE 100 PERCENT OF BUDGET SURPLUS FOR SOCIAL SECURITY

(Mr. HILL of Montana asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HILL of Montana. Mr. Speaker, last fall the President said we should set aside 100 percent of social security for social security. I voted to support him in that. But in January he stood here at the State of the Union and said, no, we are going to put aside 62 percent for social security. Then in February he submitted a budget that said 57 percent for social security. And then if we look at his proposal, he really sets aside zero for social security. In five months we have gone from 100 percent to 62 percent to 57 percent to zero, and that has been the history of social security.

There are a lot of different opinions about how we ought to reform social security, but every single senior that I talked to in Montana says, let us start by stopping the raid on the social security trust fund.

There are three ways to do that. One, today, let us support a supplemental that is offset, so we do not raid social security for foreign aid. Let us support the budget, that sets aside 100 percent of social security for social security. Then let us support the social security and Medicare safe deposit box, where there be no more raids, not for tax cuts or spending increases. No more shell games. We are going to save every dollar, 100 percent for social security. We can start today.

THE SPIRIT OF HERSHEY: RESPECT FOR DIFFERENCES OF OPINION

(Mr. KIND asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I truly hope that the spirit of Hershey is not gone already. Last weekend we had the second congressional bipartisan civility retreat in Hershey, Pennsylvania. We tried, in short, to come together to find a way where we can still disagree on issues without being so disagreeable.

I believe we made some progress last weekend. But to be on the safe side, we were honored to have with us Sir John Hume, the Nobel Peace prize winner of last year, due to his role in negotiating the peace agreement in Northern Ireland. We were hoping to get some wise words from him. I believe he delivered.

He reminded us in attendance that, "Differences of opinion should not be viewed as a threat. The answer to difference is not to fight about it but to respect it, for the differences are the essence of humanity, because there are no two people in the world who are the same."

As we begin debates that seriously affect the Nation and our future, such as Kosova, such as the budget, I would hope and pray that we remember these wise words from Sir John Hume.

THE REPUBLICAN BUDGET IS HONEST ABOUT OUR NATION'S RETIREMENT SECURITY

(Mr. SESSIONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. Speaker, this week we are going to debate two clearly different visions of America. As Members know, we are going to debate the budget that will be presented for the year 2000.

The President's budget would raise taxes on the middle class of America, it busts the budget caps, and it uses the social security surplus to fund over 120 new government programs. Worst of all, after leaving the Nation's retirement in shaky financial shape, this president is proposing taxes on the middle class' number one guarantee for retirement security, life insurance.

I believe, Mr. Speaker, that taxpayers that have been faithful and honest about preparing for their retirement should not see this being taxed. Conversely, this Republican Congress has a taxpayer-friendly budget that protects 100 percent of social security and Medicare surpluses. It practices budgetary constraints, and provides over $800 billion for tax relief for all middle class taxpayers.

I intend to vote for that which is for Republicans and for the taxpayers of this country.

CALLING ON MR. MILOSEVIC TO SEEK A DIPLOMATIC SOLUTION

(Mr. LANTOS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, few people have suffered as much during the Second World War as did the people of Serbia. I am calling on Mr. Milosevic, who has brought so much anguish and hardship and trouble to his own people, to take these last moments before NATO is unleashing horrendous power and bringing further destruction to his people.

All through the 1960s and 1970s, Yugoslavia was the freest and most prosperous country in Central and Eastern Europe and the Balkans. It is now a basket case. It is a police state.

There is still some time for Milosevic to come to his senses and call off his madness. He cannot stand up to NATO. He can still call for a diplomatic solution, and we are ready to deal if he is. But the Serbian people and the people of Yugoslavia have suffered too long under his dictatorship.

URGING MEMBERS TO COSPONSOR REAUTHORIZATION OF THE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT

(Mrs. MORELLA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, 5 years ago Congress passed the landmark Violence Against Women Act and changed the way this Nation addresses the crimes of domestic violence and sexual assault.

Today, because of that, there are more investigations and prosecutions with stiffer penalties, including life sentences for those who cross State lines to commit domestic violence. Communities across the country are training police officers on how best to respond to family violence calls.

Today there is a National Domestic Violence Hotline, which provides a lifeline to the more than 8,000 callers each month. There are more shelters and counseling services provided for the women and children who are faced with danger in their own homes. Children who experience domestic violence have stronger advocates and support within the judicial system. These programs have made a significant difference in the health and happiness of hundreds of thousands of women and children and families.

Today, Mr. Speaker, I am introducing the 5-year reauthorization of the programs under the Violence Against Women Act. I urge my colleagues to join me in cosponsorship. There is no excuse for domestic violence.

FAIRNESS MUST BE PRACTICED WITH RESPECT TO APPOINTMENT OF CONFEREES

(Mr. ROEMER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ROEMER. Mr. Speaker, two weeks ago, with strong Democratic support, the House of Representatives, in a bipartisan way, passed the education flexibility bill. This bill is about old values and new ideas: old values of local control of our schools, new ideas of added flexibility for increased student performance.

When we appointed conferees to this bill last night, our leadership did not appoint a single Democrat who supported the bill on the House Floor. We had a majority of Democrats support the bill in committee, a majority of Democrats support the bill on the House Floor, but yet no Democrats who supported the bill were appointed to conference and supported the bill on the House Floor.

We can talk about Republican and Democratic civility and fairness, we can talk about better ratios and funding, but we need to practice that fairness with our appointments to conference.

In Abraham Lincoln's words, with malice towards none, with charity toward all, these need to be reflected outside our party and within our party.

THE VETERANS' BUDGET

(Mr. SWEENEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, growing up, one thing I learned from my father, a veteran of the Second World War, was that when you shake hands and make a promise with someone, you stick to it. This might seem a little old-fashioned, but it is a value I will never forget.

Our servicemen and women enlist in the Armed Forces with a simple understanding. To their country they pledge their youth, their dedication, and if need be, their lives. In return, their country promises that veterans will have some basic needs provided for when they leave active service.

The Clinton-Gore administration has broken this promise to our Nation's veterans. The administration's budget neglects our veterans' health care needs. The VA faces cost increases of more than $1 billion, and a shortfall of more than $100 million in medical insurance collections. In other words, our veterans are shortchanged by $1 billion under the President's budget.

If we add those costs up with the Clinton-Gore proposal, do we know what that amounts to? Disaster. Our veterans deserve better. That is why I support the largest increase in history for VA medical care over the administration's budget request. The majority's $1 billion increase over the Clinton-Gore budget for veterans will head off predicted closures of needed VA facilities. This is our promise to veterans, and we are going to keep it.

CENSUS UNDERCOUNT

(Ms. SANCHEZ asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of an accurate Census, and the use of adjusted data to compensate for the chronic undercount of people that occurs in each Census.

In 1990, the Census missed almost 21,000 people in my congressional district in Orange County. This is the equivalent of over $54 million lost over a 10-year period. Only nine of California's 52 congressional districts were more undercounted than my own. We lost a lot of money, and we pay taxes.

In the city of Anaheim, my own hometown, we were undercounted by over 7,000 people, and as a result, Anaheim lost $1.5 million in Federal funding, job training, law enforcement, emergency shelters. These were all underfunded because we were not getting our Federal dollars. It would have made our streets safer, we would have had shelter for the homeless, we could have trained the unemployed.

I urge my colleagues to support the use of adjusted Census data, and challenge them to make all Americans count.

THE CRISIS IN KOSOVO

(Mr. SHIMKUS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, today I rise with a heavy heart. I would like to talk about the budget, saving social security, saving Medicare, but I think the crisis in Kosovo demands our attention.

The Constitution says, "We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, ensure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution of the United States."

Article 1, section 8, says "The Congress shall have the power to declare war." I wonder when we are going to accept responsibility for our actions and debate a declaration of war when we are about ready to bomb a sovereign state. If we want to do that, let us accept our responsibilities, and let us do it as a body.

Until that time, let us not hide behind the curtains or the skirts of the President of the United States under the War Powers declaration. Let us get some guts and let us fight for freedom.

LET US FULLY FUND THE BUDGET TO PROVIDE FOR VETERANS' NEEDS

(Mr. SANDERS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, as the sound of war today reverberates throughout this Chamber, let us take this opportunity to make sure that we do not forget about the veterans of past wars, the men and women who have put their lives on the line defending this country.

Frankly, the President's budget is grossly inadequate in terms of protecting veterans' needs, as is the Republican budget. In the State of Vermont, the Veterans Administration hospital at White River Junction is under significant financial pressure, and that is true at VA hospitals all over this country.

Mr. Speaker, at a time when some are proposing huge tax breaks for some of the richest people in this country, let us not forget the veterans.

Let us, in this budget process, go well beyond the President's budget for veterans, well beyond the Republicans' budget for veterans, and finally provide the true funding that the Veterans Administration needs to protect those people who put their lives on the line defending this country.

INTRODUCTION OF HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 30, TO KEEP EXECUTIVE AUTHORITY WITHIN THE BOUNDS OF THE CONSTITUTION

(Mr. METCALF asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. METCALF. Mr. Speaker, many Members of Congress are deeply concerned about the use of executive orders. The public is legitimately concerned also. The courts have improperly given executive orders the force and effect of law. We must get executive orders back into harmony with the Constitution.

I have introduced House Concurrent Resolution 30, with quite a few sponsors. The second sponsor is the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HENRY HYDE). That will accomplish this.

It states that "Any executive order that infringes on the powers and duties of Congress is advisory only, and has no force or effect." We must pass House Concurrent Resolution 30, and make certain that executive authority is kept clearly within the bounds of the Constitution.

THE BUDGET, MEDICARE, AND SOCIAL SECURITY

(Mr. GREEN of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GREEN of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I am really here to talk today about the budget, Medicare, and social security. We have the opportunity to show the American people that we can work together and agree on a budget resolution. While it is important that we continue the effort to balance the budget, we need to ensure that programs that benefit the American people the most are protected and strengthened.

My colleagues on the other side of the aisle keep talking about tax cuts, and all of us like to give tax cuts, but I do not want to do it at the expense of social security, Medicare, or the educational opportunities for our children.

□ 1030

We cannot risk these valuable programs simply to give tax cuts. It is critical to have a budget that ensures national projects like the expansion of the Port of Houston in my district. The Port of Houston is important, not only to our Nation, but also locally because dredging the channel ensures safety for many of our residents.

It is our responsibility to take the necessary steps to have a budget that saves and protects Medicare, Social Security, education and projects like the Port of Houston.

SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUND ROBBERY

(Mr. COOKSEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. COOKSEY. Mr. Speaker, Lenox Lewis may have been robbed in his recent boxing match, but his experience is nothing compared to the robbery of the Social Security Trust Fund over the past 40 years. It is happening in broad daylight, and the robbers have nowhere to hide. It is time to stop the robbery.

The Republican budget puts the Social Security Trust Fund in a safe deposit box so that the plundering of the Trust Fund will stop. The President will have a hard time finding money to pay for the 85 new spending initiatives in his budget proposal. That is 85 new ways to make a mockery of the Social Security Trust Fund the way the President has proposed.

The Republican budget, on the other hand, reserves 100 percent of the retirement surplus for Social Security and Medicare. Mr. Speaker, my colleagues have heard that right. The Republican budget reserves 100 percent of the retirement surplus for Social Security and Medicare. In fact, our budget puts aside more money for Social Security and Medicare than does the President's budget.

We cannot do anything about the Lenox Lewis rip-off, but we can put a stop to the robbery of the Social Security Trust Fund that has been going on for too long.

THE BUDGET

(Mr. LINDER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. LINDER. Mr. Speaker, testimony by the Congressional Budget Office Director confirms that President Clinton's budget blows the roof off the bipartisan spending caps of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997. He stated that the President's budget will exceed those caps by $30 billion in the next fiscal year alone.

The balanced budget agreement is under 2 years old, and the President simply cannot stop himself from spending more of one's money.

We already know that the Clinton budget included $108 billion in new taxes and fees and not a dime of broad-based tax relief. On the spending side, we knew that the President proposed more than $200 billion in new domestic spending over the next 5 years, including nearly 40 new mandatory programs and almost 80 new discretionary programs.

Worse yet, first he said all of the surplus should go to Social Security. Then he said 62 percent of the surplus should be saved for Social Security. Now it is clear that the President's proposal uses even the off-budget Social Security surpluses for new domestic spending programs.

Mr. Speaker, we will pass a budget that provides more freedom to American families and, more importantly, will tell the truth to the American people about what is in it.

DEMOCRATIC AND REPUBLICAN BUDGET DIFFERENCES

(Ms. DELAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, the Republican budget is deja vu all over again. Just like 4 years ago, the Republican leadership has concocted a budget that flies in the face of mainstream America.

Their budget fails to extend the life of Medicare by even one day. Instead of strengthening this pillar of retirement security, the Republican budget lets Medicare spend itself into oblivion and collapse in the year 2008. It does not use one penny of the surplus to strengthen Medicare. But while Medicare burns, the Republican budget uses the surplus to give nearly $1 trillion in tax breaks for the wealthy. This is irresponsible, and it is wrong.

The Democratic budget reflects the priorities of the American people. First and foremost, it takes the high road and strengthens Medicare until 2018. It provides tax relief to working middle class families that need it most. Unlike the Republican plan, which fails to give 48 million families any tax relief at all, the Democratic budget plan delivers tax relief and strengthens Medicare.

The American people deserve a budget that is responsible, that is fair. They do not need a double dose of deja vu. Let us strengthen Medicare, and let us give middle class families a tax cut.

REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC BUDGET DIFFERENCES

(Mr. KINGSTON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. KINGSTON. Mr. Speaker, we have had a lot of talk today about the President's budget. I have got to say it has got more phony numbers than their census sampling scheme, more misery than the Chinese money laundering scandal.

Here is the basic difference between the Republican budget and the Democrat budget. Republican budget saves more money for Social Security. I think even a Democrat would admit that 100 percent is more than 62 percent.

We want to preserve 100 percent of Social Security. Democrats want to preserve 62 percent. On Medicare, we want to protect Medicare. The President's budget cuts $9 billion from Medicare.

Here is what I will say to any of my Democrat colleagues or anybody who is interested. I will send my colleagues the budget. I am going straight off the fact sheet here. I will send the budget to anybody who wants to debate that. It is probably not right to just accuse it without backing it up. I will back it up.

Our budget enforces the balanced budget agreement which we had signed with the President 2 years ago. The President's budget reneges on a promise, well nothing unusual about that for this administration, but $30 billion over that.

Then, finally, we have a middle class tax cut, whereas the President calls for a tax increase. Three fundamental differences; two approaches to government.

INTERNET GUN TRAFFICKING ACT

(Mr. RUSH asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, right now gun sales take place on the Internet with no checks and balances. An illegal gun dealer can simply have his name, address, and telephone number listed on a web site, making himself available for contact by an unlicensed gun purchaser. These transactions can be executed without being subjected to any Federal regulations. Most of these sales go on unbeknownst to Federal authorities.

We have to close this gun trafficking loophole on the Internet today; and today, that is precisely what I am doing. I am introducing the Gun Trafficking Act of 1999. This legislation will place a licensed manufacturer or dealer between the seller and buyer.

As a middle man, this licensed dealer will facilitate the gun sale and will ship the gun purchases to a licensed dealer in the buyer's State. No longer will unlicensed dealers and buyers have a free reign and easy access on the Internet.

I ask each Member of Congress to plug this deadly loophole. Vote for this important piece of legislation.

MORE GOVERNMENT SPENDING OR RESPONSIBLE APPROACH TO SO- CIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE CRISES

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, remember in 1996 when the President stood right up there and he said the era of big government is over? Remember that? Well, he proposed this year 80 new spending programs.

There are a number of folks, Democrats on this side of the aisle, who would like to take the Social Security money and use it to increase government spending, make the government bigger and more intrusive more than ever; and that is why Republicans are taking 100 percent of the retirement surplus and putting it into a safe deposit box for Social Security and Medicare.

If my colleagues look at this chart, again, the President's budget cuts $9 billion from Medicare. It busts the budget caps by $30 billion and raises taxes by $172 billion.

Republicans are trying to take 100 percent of the retirement surplus and put it into a safe deposit box for Medicare and Social Security. The choice is clear. More Washington spending or a responsible approach to the coming Social Security and Medicare crisis.

PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H.R. 1141, 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 125 and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 125

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the bill (H.R. 1141) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes. The first reading of the bill shall be dispensed with. Points of order against consideration of the bill for failure to comply with clause 4(c) of rule XIII or section 302 or 306 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 are waived. General debate shall be confined to the bill and shall not exceed one hour equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations. After general debate the bill shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. Points of order against provisions in the bill for failure to comply with clause 2 of rule XXI are waived. The amendment printed in the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole. All points of order against the amendment printed in the report are waived. During consideration of the bill for amendment, the chairman of the Committee of the Whole may accord priority in recognition on the basis of whether the Member offering an amendment has caused it to be printed in the portion of the Congressional Record designated for that purpose in clause 8 of rule XVIII. Amendments so printed shall be considered as read. The chairman of the Committee of the Whole may: (1) postpone until a time during further consideration in the Committee of the Whole a request for a recorded vote on any amendment; and (2) reduce to five minutes the minimum time for electronic voting on any postponed question that follows another electronic vote without intervening business, provided that the minimum time for electronic voting on the first in any series of questions shall be 15 minutes. During consideration of the bill, points of order against amendments for failure to comply with clause 2(e) of rule XXI or section 302(c) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 are waived. At the conclusion of consideration of the bill for amendment the Committee shall rise and report the bill to the House with such amendments as may have been adopted. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the bill and amendments thereto to final passage without intervening motion except one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NETHERCUTT). The gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, for purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes of debate to the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HALL), my friend and colleague, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate only.

Mr. Speaker, H. Res. 125 is an open rule providing for the consideration of H.R. 1141, a bill making emergency supplemental appropriations for fiscal year 1999.

As we just heard from the Clerk, the rule description sounds technically complicated, but Members should keep in mind that this is an open rule which includes the waivers necessary to bring this matter to the attention of the House today and which allows the House to address the major issue of contention, offsets, in full and fair debate.

As to the specifics, the rule waives clause 4(c) of rule XIII, which requires the 3-day availability of printed hearings on a general appropriations bill and sections 302 and 306 of the Congressional Budget Act against consideration of the bill.

The waiver relating to section 302 of the Budget Act, which prohibits consideration of the committee's legislation providing new budget authority until that committee has filed its 302(b) report and which also prohibits consideration of legislation providing new budget authority in excess of a subcommittee's 302(b) allocation of such authority, are necessary because the Committee on Appropriations has not filed its final 302(b) suballocation report for FY 1999 and, since there are no final suballocations, H.R. 1141 is technically considered to be in breach of existing suballocations.

The waiver of section 306 is necessary because the emergency designations within H.R. 1141 are within the Budget Committee's jurisdiction but were not reported by the Budget Committee.

The rule provides one hour of general debate equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations, and it provides that the bill be open to amendment by paragraph.

The rule also waives clause 2 of rule XXI, prohibiting unauthorized appropriations or legislative provisions in a general appropriations bill and prohibiting nonemergency designated amendments to an appropriations bill containing an emergency designation.

In addition, the rule provides special protection for an amendment printed in the Committee on Rules report if offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) or his designee. This allows the House to consider and vote upon the fundamental issue of offsets. That amendment shall be considered as read, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for a division of the question in the House or in the Committee of the Whole.

The rule permits the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole to grant priority in recognition to members who have caused their amendments to be preprinted in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD prior to their consideration. That is an option, not a requirement.

□ 1045

The rule also permits the Chairman of the Committee of the Whole to postpone votes during consideration of the bill and to reduce the voting time to 5 minutes on a postponed question if the vote follows a 15-minute vote.

The rule provides waivers necessary to ensure a fair debate, specifically clause 2(E) of rule 21 and section 302(C) of the Congressional Budget Act for all amendments to the bill.

Lastly, the rule provides one motion to recommit with or without instructions.

As I said, it sounds complicated but it is essentially an open rule.

Mr. Speaker, Americans are a compassionate people, willing to respond with a helping hand when our friends and neighbors are in trouble, at home and abroad, or when suffering grievously the consequences of disasters, as we have seen in the past year. H.R. 1141 meets a series of needs related to the devastation caused in the fall of 1998 when Hurricanes Georges and Mitch tore through the Caribbean and Central America with an intensity and viciousness rarely seen in nature.

The people of the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Honduras, and many of the Caribbean Islands are still trying to rebuild their lives and their livelihoods in the wake of these two brutal storms. Mother Nature struck again with a vengeance in January of this year when an earthquake rocked northern Colombia. These three catastrophic events together were responsible for at least 10,400 deaths, injuries to more than 17,000 people, three-and-a-quarter million people homeless or displaced, and an estimated financial cost of several billion dollars.

Here at home our farmers have been struggling with their own disastrous problems, stemming primarily from low crop commodity prices. This legislation responds to those and other needs, and to the request of the administration that we move expeditiously toward releasing necessary funding, by providing a total of $1.3 billion in fiscal year 1999 spending.

I would note that we expect the Congress to exercise its oversight in the expenditure of the funds in this bill, to ensure that the relief gets to those in need and does not get sidetracked or diverted by bureaucratic or other snafus. I am specifically thinking about the people of Haiti and the very real concerns I have about the stability of Haiti's infrastructure and the misery that exists upon the Haitian people in Haiti. I will certainly be watching closely, and I know others will as well, to see that the money gets to those who need it and where it was intended to go.

Mr. Speaker, this bill does something else that is very important. It provides the offsets for nearly all the spending it outlines. Why is this important? It signals that we are committed to changing the way business is done in Washington, to living within our means, and to making the choices necessary to ensure that we never again allow this government to spend our children into deficits and red ink.

In the bad old days of soaring deficits it used to be common practice to slap the label of "emergency" on a grab bag of spending items in order to circumvent the spending constraints. Well, things have changed. Even though the administration is willing to call most of the items in this bill emergency-related to avoid the offsets, our majority has ensured the bill is more than 90 percent offset, and they deserve a lot of credit, paid for with rescissions from the lower priority programs and accounts with as yet unspent funds. This is a question of prioritizing needs.

The one piece of this bill that is truly defined as emergency spending is the payment for monies already spent to cover the costs of deployment of our military resources in the immediate aftermath of these three disasters; the ready response, as it were; the life-saving missions that were undertaken by our military.

Mr. Speaker, the rules of the budgeting game are vague and imprecise. They provide cover for too much spending, in my view. Yet my good friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, made the extra effort in crafting this compassionate bill, which takes the extra step of responsibly paying for the bulk of its spending.

It is my hope that down the road when we discuss reforming our budget process, and we will, because we have introduced legislation, we will make some changes to the current rules to assist in these efforts in the future; changes that would better define what we mean when we say emergency, and that would establish a rainy day reserve fund to better plan ahead for true emergency situations. We know they are going to happen.

In the interim, as we proceed with H.R. 1141, I know that there will be debate about the policy of offsetting any or even all of the spending in this bill, and that is a legitimate debate for us to have, and that is why we have provided this rule before us today, which allows for that discussion and ensures that all Members will have a chance to be heard. I urge my colleagues to support this fair, open rule.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. HALL of Ohio. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume, and I want to thank my friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS), for yielding the time to me.

This is an open rule. It will allow consideration of H.R. 1141, which as we have heard is a bill making emergency and nonemergency supplemental appropriations for fiscal year 1999. As my colleague has described, this rule provides for 1 hour of general debate to be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on Appropriations.

The bill contains urgently needed money to repair the damage in Central America and the Caribbean caused by Hurricanes Mitch and Georges. The money will be used to repair hospitals, schools, roads and sanitation services. The money will also provide emergency financial assistance to Jordan in support of the Wye River Peace Accords between Israel and the Palestinian Authority.

The bill also contains nonemergency funding, including $3 million for the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom to fight religious persecution around the world.

Unfortunately, the bill cuts important international programs in an effort to provide offsets for most of the new funding. For example, the bill cuts $150 million from a program to safeguard weapons-grade uranium and plutonium in Russia.

The bill also makes numerous cuts in international assistance programs. As a whole, the bill would constitute a net reduction in U.S. foreign affairs spending, a reduction which, according to the administration, would seriously undermine America's capacity to pursue its foreign policy objectives and promote our economic security.

The rule permits amendments under the 5-minute rule, which is the normal amending process in the House. Though this is an open rule, many potential amendments would not be in order because the House has not completed the budget process.

The Committee on Rules did make in order an amendment by the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBEY), the ranking Democrat on the Committee on Appropriations, which would eliminate some of the cuts in international programs. The amendment of the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. OBEY) is a needed improvement and I hope House Members will support it, and I want to thank the Republican majority for making this amendment in order.

I regret, though, that the Committee on Rules failed to make in order an amendment that I proposed to free $575 million in previously appropriated funds as a downpayment on the dues the United States owes the United Nations. I am embarrassed that the world's greatest superpower is also the world's biggest deadbeat.

The United Nations plays a critical role in diffusing international tensions and providing a forum where nations can fight with words and not with bombs. The U.N.'s peacekeeping efforts have saved uncounted lives by averting war. Its food and health programs have saved many more lives.

Paying our dues is a simple matter of keeping our word. We owe this money, and if we do not pay it, there is a very good potential, a very good chance that we will lose our vote in the U.N. General Assembly. That is an emergency, and that is why House Members should have an opportunity to vote on paying our U.N. dues, back dues, through this emergency foreign aid package.

In the last few years our U.N. dues payment has been blocked by abortion opponents who are holding up the money in order to force restrictions on U.S. international family planning assistance. The resulting stalemate has stopped both family planning assistance money and U.N. back dues payments. I am pro-life, and I count the leaders of the pro-life movement in the House among my close friends, but I do not believe the U.N. dues should be held hostage to votes on abortion and family planning.

It is time to put an end to this game and pay our debt. This amendment that I offered in the Committee on Rules was defeated on a straight party line vote of 6 to 4. I did receive assurances, though, from the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), the chairman of the Committee on Rules, that payment of U.N. dues was important and that he would examine other options in the future. I am encouraged by this promise. I intend to work with my Committee on Rules colleagues on both sides of the aisle until a solution can be found to break the U.N. dues logjam.

I am disappointed that we cannot deal with the question of our U.N. dues back payment now. It is an emergency and it requires our immediate attention.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS).

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, last week I heard a lot of speeches in this House about the crucial need to protect American families with the National Missile Defense System. Frankly, it is a concept I support. I heard a lot of speeches about the threat of nuclear missiles launched against the United States.

Mr. Speaker, that is exactly why I am so amazed and disappointed that this bill, less than 1 week after those very speeches, eliminates crucial funds designed to stop the nonproliferation of nuclear bomb grade materials in Russia. Specifically, this measure would cut $150 million that, as we speak, is being used to develop an agreement between Russia and the United States that would take 50 tons of plutonium, 50 tons of plutonium, and make it unusable for nuclear weapons.

Mr. Speaker, 50 tons of plutonium is enough nuclear material to build as many as 20,000 nuclear bombs. That is 20,000 nuclear bombs that could be put on missiles and aimed toward the United States, or 20,000 nuclear bombs that could be hidden in a truck and detonated in any American city, 20,000 nuclear bombs that terrorists and thugs across the world would pay any price to get their hands on.

According to the chief American negotiator in these ongoing negotiations with Russia, according to that negotiator, this bill could cause Russia to walk away from these crucial anti-proliferation negotiations.

Mr. Speaker, we all know there is serious economic instability in Russia. We all know that there is a serious presence of organized crime in Russia. We all know that there are terrorists throughout the world that would do anything to get their hands on even 1 percent of this 50 tons of plutonium and use that to build weapons that could be used against American servicemen and women abroad or against American families in their own homes, in their own hometowns.

There is no logic, absolutely no logic, to spending billions of dollars for a National Missile Defense System and then at the very same time stopping a process that could prevent the potential development of tens of thousands of nuclear weapons. This action would give new meaning to the term "penny-wise and pound-foolish."

Now, proponents of this proposed $150 million cut allege it will not undermine our nonproliferation negotiations with Russia. That is what they allege. Well, that is not what the American negotiator says. That is not what the Russian negotiator said, and said as late as yesterday to a number of Members of the House. That is not what the Republican author of this crucial funding says, and that is not what the Secretary of Energy said, the former U.N. Ambassador, who has ultimate responsibility for these ongoing nonproliferation debates.

Let me quote Secretary Richardson, the Secretary of Energy, when he said in a letter dated today, "Such a reduction would have severe consequences," severe consequences, "for the ongoing negotiations of pursuit of a bilateral agreement with Russia on disposing of enough plutonium to make tens of thousands of nuclear weapons. To now withdraw this earnest money would be to call into question U.S. reliability. Russia may well perceive such a withdrawal as a breach of good faith. Withdrawing this money would severely set back and might even bring a halt to our constructive discussions on this important nonproliferation and national security issue."

He goes on to say that, "The U.S. has also been working closely with the international community to gain commitments for additional support for the Russian plutonium disposition effort. These potential donors would perceive a reduction in available U.S. funds as a dilution of our leadership and resolve and our leverage would be drastically undercut."

□ 1100

Mr. Speaker, we should do the prudent thing today. We should send this bill back to committee and have it withdrawn, have the provisions withdrawn that would basically put a greater risk on American servicemen and women abroad and American families right at home.

No Member would have the intent to harm any serviceman or woman or not a single person in this country. But I would suggest that, despite the best of intentions, if we listen to the negotiators, we listen to the experts involved in these nonproliferation debates, this measure today and this unwise, difficult, terrible cut could put at risk our negotiations and, most importantly, millions of Americans all across this land of ours.

Let us do the right thing. Let us send this bill back to committee. And if that fails, let us vote for the ObeY amendment that takes out this unwise and dangerous and I hope and pray not catastrophic proposal.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, unfortunately, the majority on the Committee on Rules chose not to make in order an amendment that I intend to offer today which would prohibit the commissioner of the Immigration and Naturalization Service from releasing any criminal aliens who are currently detained by the INS and are subject to deportation per the 1996 Immigration Reform Act.

The reason that this amendment is necessary is, in January of this year the INS, in an internal communication with its regional directors, put out a memorandum which stated that because of lack of detention space they were going to start releasing criminal aliens who would otherwise be subject to deportation. Now, among these individuals are people who were convicted in U.S. courts of felonies such as assault, drug violations and the like.

This is also a situation where previous Congresses have provided funding increases for the INS, $3.5 billion, including $750 million for detention. The INS has subsequently reversed this policy. But the fact remains that has been the policy of the INS, and this Congress should take steps to try and address it.

Now, it is disappointing that the Committee on Rules chose not to make this in order. We all know that the supplemental appropriations bill ultimately, once it is negotiated out with the administration, will pass. And I think it is important that Congress send a message to the INS that they are not to conduct this activity.

I think many of us are familiar in our own districts, when the States have gone into releasing otherwise violent criminals for space needs, the public outcry that has occurred. I think the same would occur if the Federal Government, of which we are the stewards, is allowed to release criminal aliens who are subject to deportation.

So I have an amendment that was filed that would prohibit the INS from doing this. I realize it is subject to a point of order. I do intend to offer the amendment this afternoon. I would hope that Members will take a look at it, because I do not think Members want to be on record in endorsing this misguided INS policy.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER) chairman of the Committee on Rules.

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in very strong support of this rule and of the underlying supplemental appropriations bill.

It is an open rule. And while I am sorry that we were unable to provide waivers to all the Members who wanted them for their individual amendments, I do believe that we will have a chance for a free and open debate here, which is exactly what this calls for.

The major thrust of this supplemental appropriations bill is to deal with a very serious crisis, and it is a crisis. I just upstairs met with one of the top executives with Dole Food who was telling me about the situation in Honduras, how they as a company stepped in and tried to provide much-needed relief.

We know that literally thousands of people lost their lives and over 30,000 people have been left homeless, and the numbers go on and on and on, from Hurricane Mitch. And we have been waiting to try and put together this package of assistance. I am very proud, as an American citizen, that we can step up and help our very good friends at this important time of need.

We, as a Nation, have had a constant interest in Central America. My friend from Sanibel, Florida (Mr. GOSS) and I have on several occasions visited Central America and we know that the tremendous strides that they have made toward political pluralism are important to recognize. Unfortunately, they faced this horrible catastrophe. And while this is a great deal of money, it is I believe very, very important for us as a society to step up to the plate and provide this much-needed assistance to our neighbors.

As we know, these dollars are offset within the guidelines that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has put forward, and I commend him for that, and I think that it is in fact the responsible and right thing for us to do. And so I hope my colleagues will join in strong support of not only this rule but this very important legislation.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time, and I move the previous question on the resolution.

The previous question was ordered.

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks, and that I may include tabular and extraneous material on the bill (H.R. 1141) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. NETHERCUTT). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 125 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill, H.R. 1141.

□ 1107

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H.R. 1141) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, with Mr. PEASE in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the rule, the bill is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG).

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, the supplemental appropriations bill that we present today was requested by the President of the United States several weeks ago to respond to the disaster in Central America, Honduras and Nicaragua specifically, as well as the earthquake damage in Colombia.

Actually, the bill has been fairly well discussed during consideration of the rule, but I think it is appropriate that we point out that this bill reflects a humanitarian reaction to a terrible disaster in our own part of the world.

During the late 1970s and early 1980s, this Congress and the administration spent billions of dollars in attempting to keep Fidel Castro and his friends in the Kremlin from exporting communism all over that area. We were very successful, and we helped our friends develop democratic forms of government. With the exception of Cuba, we currently have democratic governments throughout these regions. They are our friends, and they are our neighbors, and it is appropriate that we respond to them in their time of need.

As soon as the disaster occurred, American troops were sent to the region. They pulled children out of flood waters. They pulled people out of mud-swept homes. They did many, many things to save lives and to bring sanitary conditions to the region.

So what we are trying to do with this bill, as requested by the President, and he did not request all of it, I will have to admit, and we will talk about that later; he did not request the offsets that we use to pay for this bill, but the President did request that we provide $152 million for our own agricultural programs here at home, which we have done. The President requested that we provide funding for Central America, which we have done.

The President also requested that we provide a payment to Jordan, one of our greatest allies in the Middle East and an ally that is very important to peace in the region. We did provide the $100 million for Jordan, but again we offset this $100 million.

We also replaced $195 million for the Defense Department to pay them for the expenses involved in actually responding initially as a 911 force to this terrible disaster. Now, we took considerable time to determine the appropriate offsets to pay for these bills.

As I said, we did not offset the $195 million for the Department of Defense. That was a true emergency. They were truly responding to that emergency. They saved lives. They helped people bring their lives back together. They brought sanitary conditions. They brought water that could be consumed. They repaired hospital facilities. They made medical care available. And we are not suggesting that we think we should offset these funds, but we do offset everything else.

The $100 million for Jordan I wanted to mention specifically because I said the bill was what the President asked for. Actually, the President asked for the entire Wye River commitment that he made when the Wye River agreements were reached. He asked for all of that to be done in this bill, and we did not do that. The reason is that we think that the part of the Wye River agreement that relates to Israel and the Palestinian Organization should be handled in the regular order as we go through the FY 2000 appropriations bills. But because of the death of King Hussein and the important role that he played and the establishment of the new kingdom and the new king, his son, King Abdullah, we thought it would be appropriate to move expeditiously to show a sign of support for Jordan.

The President requested $300 million in that account, $100 million in FY 1999 funds and $200 million in advanced funding. We provide in this bill the $100 million for Jordan. We do not provide the advanced funding. Again, we believe that should be taken up and considered as we go through the regular order in the FY 2000 appropriation bills.

Mr. Chairman, we need to expedite this bill. The monies that we will appropriate today will not go from our Government to another government. Because of the oversight responsibilities that the Congress has, and the Committee on Appropriations specifically, we do have an obligation to our taxpayers to make sure that any money that we appropriate is spent the way that we intend it to be spent.

And so these funds will be appropriated into a special fund that will be administered by our own Government for the contracts awarded to replace the bridges or to help rebuild schools or to reconstruct roads or to do the many things that we will help our friends and neighbors. The contracts will be awarded on a competitive basis or negotiated basis and then the contracts will be paid for from the fund that we create, from the fund that we maintain control over and the fund that we have complete oversight over.

And so, Mr. Chairman, this is a summary of the bill. I know we will have some discussions on some of the other aspects of this bill and especially the offsets, but that is basically what the bill does.

At this point in the RECORD I would like to insert a table showing the details of the bill.

(The table follows.)

FY 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL (H.R. 1141)
(Amounts in thousands)

Doc No.		Budget Request	Recommended in the bill	Bill compared with request
	FY 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL
	TITLE I - EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS
	CHAPTER 1
	DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
	Farm Service Agency
106-32	Salaries and expenses (emergency appropriations)	42,753	42,753
	Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund Program Account:
	Loan authorizations:
	Farm ownership loans:
106-32	Direct	(200,000)	(200,000)
106-32	Guaranteed	(350,000)	(350,000)
	Subtotal	(550,000)	(550,000)
	Farm operating loans:
106-32	Direct	(185,000)	(185,000)
106-32	Guaranteed subsidized	(185,000)	(185,000)
	Subtotal	(370,000)	(370,000)
106-32	Emergency farm loans	(175,000)	(175,000)
	Total, Loan authorizations	(1,095,000)	(1,095,000)
	Loan subsidies:
	Farm ownership loans:
106-32	Direct (emergency appropriations)	29,940	29,940
106-32	Guaranteed (emergency appropriations)	5,565	5,565
	Subtotal	35,505	35,505
	Farm operating loans:
106-32	Direct (emergency appropriations)	12,635	12,635
106-32	Guaranteed subsidized (emergency appropriations)	16,169	16,169
	Subtotal	28,804	28,804
106-32	Emergency farm loans (emergency appropriations)	41,300	41,300
	Total, Loan subsidies	105,609	105,609
106-32	ACIF expenses: Administrative expenses (emergency appropriations)	4,000	4,000
	Total, Chapter 1:
	New budget (obligational) authority	152,362	152,362
	(Loan authorization)	(1,095,000)	(1,095,000)
	CHAPTER 2
	DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE
	Immigration and Naturalization Service
106-27	Salaries and expenses: Enforcement and border affairs (emergency appropriations)	80,000	80,000
	CHAPTER 3
	DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE - MILITARY
	Military Personnel
	Reserve personnel, Army (emergency appropriations)		2,900	+ 2,900
	Contingent emergency appropriations		5,100	+ 5,100
	National guard personnel, Army (emergency appropriations)		6,000	+ 6,000
	Contingent emergency appropriations		1,300	+ 1,300
	National guard personnel, Air Force (emergency appropriations)		1,000	+ 1,000
	Total, Military personnel		16,300	+ 16,300
	Operation and Maintenance
	Operation and maintenance, Army (emergency appropriations)		69,500	+ 69,500
	Operation and maintenance, Navy (emergency appropriations)		16,000	+ 16,000
	Operation and maintenance, Marine Corps (emergency appropriations)		300	+ 300
	Operation and maintenance, Air Force (emergency appropriations)		8,800	+ 8,800
	Operation and maintenance, Defense-wide (emergency appropriations)		46,500	+ 46,500
	Overseas humanitarian, disaster, and civic aid (emergency appropriations)		37,500	+ 37,500
106-27	Disaster relief transfer fund (emergency appropriations)	188,500		- 188,500
	Total, Operation and maintenance	188,500	178,600	- 9,900
	Total, Chapter 3:
	New budget (obligational) authority	188,500	194,900	+ 6,400
	Emergency appropriations	(188,500)	(188,500)
	Contingent emergency appropriations		(6,400)	(+ 6,400)

FY 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL (H.R. 1141)— continued
(Amounts in thousands)

Doc No.		Budget Request	Recommended in the bill	Bill compared with request
CHAPTER 4
BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
Agency for International Development
106-27	International disaster assistance (emergency appropriations)	25,000	25,000
106-27	Operating expenses of the Agency for International Development (by transfer) (emergency appropriations)	(5,000)	(-5,000)
.....	(By transfer) (contingent emergency appropriations)	(5,000)	(+5,000)
.....	Operating expenses of the Agency for International Development Office of Inspector General
106-27	(by transfer) (emergency appropriations)	(1,000)	(-1,000)
.....	(By transfer) (contingent emergency appropriations)	(2,000)	(+2,000)
Other Bilateral Economic Assistance
106-3
106-24	Economic support fund (emergency appropriations)	50,000	50,000
106-3
106-24	Advance appropriations	50,000	-50,000
106-27	Central America and the Caribbean Emergency Disaster Recovery Fund (emergency appropriations)	621,000	-621,000
.....	Contingent emergency appropriations	621,000	+621,000
Department of the Treasury
106-27	Debt restructuring (emergency appropriations)	41,000	41,000
	Total, Bilateral economic assistance	787,000	737,000	-50,000
MILITARY ASSISTANCE
Foreign Military Financing Program:
Grants:
106-3
106-24	Other (emergency appropriations)	50,000	50,000
106-3
106-24	Advance appropriations	150,000	-150,000
	Total, Foreign military assistance	200,000	50,000	-150,000
Total, Chapter 4:
	New budget (obligational) authority	987,000	787,000	-200,000
	Emergency appropriations	(787,000)	(166,000)	(-621,000)
	Contingent emergency appropriations	(621,000)	(+621,000)
	Advance appropriations	(200,000)	(-200,000)
	(By transfer) (emergency appropriations)	(6,000)	(-6,000)
	(By transfer) (contingent emergency appropriations)	(7,000)	(+7,000)
CHAPTER 5
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
Forest Service
.....	Reconstruction and construction (contingent emergency appropriations)	5,611	+5,611
CHAPTER 6
OFFSETS
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
.....	Public Law 480 Program and Grant Accounts: Loan subsidies (Title I) (rescission)	-30,000	-30,000
DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY
Atomic Energy Defense Activities
.....	Other defense activities (rescission of emergency appropriations)	-150,000	-150,000
EXPORT AND INVESTMENT ASSISTANCE
.....	Trade and development agency (rescission)	-5,000	-5,000
BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
Agency for International Development
.....	Development assistance (rescission)	-40,000	-40,000
Other Bilateral Economic Assistance
.....	Economic Support Fund (rescission)	-17,000	-17,000
.....	Assistance for Eastern Europe and the Baltic States (rescission)	-20,000	-20,000
.....	Assistance for the New Independent States of the Former Soviet Union (rescission)	-25,000	-25,000
MILITARY ASSISTANCE
106-3	Foreign Military Financing Program (rescission)	-18,000	+18,000
.....	Peacekeeping operations (rescission)	-10,000	-10,000
MULTILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
International Financial Institutions
Contribution to the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development:
.....	Global environment facility (rescission)	-25,000	-25,000
.....	Reduction in callable capital appropriations (rescission)	-648,000	-648,000
.....	International organizations and programs (rescission)	-10,000	-10,000

FY 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL (H.R. 1141)— continued
(Amounts in thousands)

Doc No.		Budget Request	Recommended in the bill	Bill compared with request
DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
	Office of the Secretary
.....	Payments to air carriers (Airport and Airway Trust Fund) (rescission of contract authorization)		-815	-815
	Federal Highway Administration
.....	State infrastructure banks (rescission)		-6,500	-6,500
	Federal Transit Administration
.....	Trust fund share of transit programs (Highway Trust Fund) (rescission of contract authorization)		-665	-665
.....	Interstate transfer grants - transit (rescission)		-600	-600
	GENERAL PROVISIONS
106-3	Operation and maintenance, Defense-wide (contingent emergency appropriations) (sec. 1001) 1/	-82,000	-40,000	+ 42,000
	Total, Chapter 6:
	New budget (obligational) authority.....	-100,000	-1,028,580	-928,580
	Contingent emergency appropriations.....	(-82,000)	(-40,000)	(+ 42,000)
	Rescissions.....	(-18,000)	(-836,500)	(-818,500)
	Rescission of contract authorization.....		(-2,080)	(-2,080)
	Rescission of emergency appropriations		(-150,000)	(-150,000)
	Total, title I:
	New budget (obligational) authority.....	1,307,862	191,293	-1,116,569
	Rescissions.....	(-18,000)	(-836,500)	(-818,500)
	Rescission of contract authorization.....		(-2,080)	(-2,080)
	Rescission of emergency appropriations		(-150,000)	(-150,000)
	Emergency appropriations.....	(1,207,862)	(586,862)	(-621,000)
	Contingent emergency appropriations.....	(-82,000)	(593,011)	(+ 675,011)
	Advance appropriations	(200,000)		(-200,000)
	(By transfer) (emergency appropriations)	(6,000)		(-6,000)
	(By transfer) (contingent emergency appropriations).....		(7,000)	(+ 7,000)
	(Loan authorization)	(1,095,000)	(1,095,000)
	TITLE II - SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS AND RESCISSIONS
	CHAPTER 1
	THE JUDICIARY
	Supreme Court of the United States
.....	Salaries and expenses		921	+ 921
106-3	Emergency appropriations.....	921		-921
	DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE
	National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration
106-3	Operations, research, and facilities.....	1,880		-1,880
106-3	Fisheries finance program account	3,120		-3,120
	DEPARTMENT OF STATE AND RELATED AGENCIES
	RELATED AGENCY
	United States Information Agency
.....	Buying power maintenance (rescission).....		-20,000	-20,000
	Total, Chapter 1:
	New budget (obligational) authority.....	5,921	-19,079	-25,000
	Appropriations.....	(5,000)	(921)	(-4,079)
	Rescissions.....		(-20,000)	(-20,000)
	Emergency appropriations.....	(921)		(-921)
	CHAPTER 2
	INDEPENDENT AGENCY
.....	United States Commission on International Religious Freedom		3,000	+ 3,000
	EXPORT AND INVESTMENT ASSISTANCE
.....	Export-Import Bank of the United States (rescission)		-25,000	-25,000
	Total, Chapter 2:
	New budget (obligational) authority.....		-22,000	-22,000

FY 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL (H.R. 1141)— continued
(Amounts in thousands)

Doc No.		Budget Request	Recommended in the bill	Bill compared with request
CHAPTER 3
DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR
Bureau of Land Management
106-3	Management of lands and resources (rescission).....	-6,800	-6,800
Departmental Offices
106-3	Office of the Special Trustee for American Indians.....	6,800	21,800	+ 15,000
106-39	(By transfer).....	(15,000)	(-15,000)
<hr/>
Total, Chapter 3:
New budget (obligational) authority.....
(By transfer).....
<hr/>
CHAPTER 4
DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
Employment and Training Administration
106-3	State unemployment insurance and employment service operations (trust fund).....	-5,700	-21,000	-15,300
DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES
Health Resources and Services Administration
.....	Federal capital loan program for nursing (rescission).....	-2,800	-2,800
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
.....	Education research, statistics, and improvement (rescission).....	-6,800	-6,800
RELATED AGENCY
106-3	Corporation for Public Broadcasting.....	11,000	30,600	+ 19,600
106-3	Advance appropriations.....	37,000	17,400	-19,600
<hr/>
Total, Chapter 4:
New budget (obligational) authority.....
Appropriations.....
Rescissions.....
Advance appropriations.....
<hr/>
CHAPTER 5
ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL
Capitol Buildings and Grounds
.....	House office buildings.....	5,560	+ 5,560
<hr/>
CHAPTER 6
POSTAL SERVICE
Payments to the Postal Service
106-3	Payments to the Postal Service Fund.....	29,000	29,000
EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
106-3	Unanticipated needs (rescission).....	-10,000	-10,000
<hr/>
Total, Chapter 6:
New budget (obligational) authority.....
<hr/>
CHAPTER 7
INDEPENDENT AGENCY
Court of Veterans Appeals
106-3	Salaries and expenses.....	372	-372
<hr/>
Total, title II:
New budget (obligational) authority.....
Appropriations.....
Emergency appropriations.....
Rescissions.....
Advance appropriations.....
(By transfer).....
<hr/>

FY 1999 EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS BILL (H.R. 1141)— continued
(Amounts in thousands)

Doc No.	Budget Request	Recommended in the bill	Bill compared with request
Grand total, all titles:
New budget (obligational) authority.....	1,375,455	207,174	-1,168,281
Appropriations	(52,172)	(90,881)	(+ 38,709)
Rescissions.....	(-40,500)	(-928,900)	(-888,400)
Rescission of contract authorization.....		(-2,080)	(-2,080)
Rescission of emergency appropriations		(-150,000)	(-150,000)
Emergency appropriations.....	(1,208,783)	(586,862)	(-621,921)
Contingent emergency appropriations.....	(-82,000)	(583,011)	(+ 675,011)
Advance appropriations	(237,000)	(17,400)	(-219,600)
(By transfer)	(15,000)		(-15,000)
(By transfer) (emergency appropriations)	(6,000)		(-6,000)
(By transfer) (contingent emergency appropriations).....		(7,000)	(+ 7,000)
(Loan authorization)	(1,095,000)	(1,095,000)

1/ The President's Budget proposed defense spending reductions of $882 million, which offset proposed supplemental spending. Since only a portion of the proposed spending is considered in this bill, the defense reductions are adjusted to be comparable to the spending.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 9½ minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to be able to rise in support of this bill but I cannot, and I owe the House an explanation why.

At the beginning of this year we were told by the new House leadership that there would be a change in the way that leadership operated from last year, in that there would be less political interference from party leadership in committee decisions on substantive matters. But on the first major substantive bill before us in this session affecting the budget, we see a reversion to what happened last year.

The budget rules allow for the Congress to pass emergency legislation when emergencies occur. Under that right, the administration sent down a supplemental request which tried to respond to the largest natural disaster in this century in Central America, and the administration also asked for some additional help to deal with the fact that farm prices have slid into oblivion for many commodities.

□ 1115

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the committee, originally was going to bring to the committee a proposal which would have had bipartisan support. I would certainly have supported it, and I think the administration would have, too. That approach recognized that the administration was responding to legitimate emergencies. But shortly before our committee put together the bill which it brought to the House floor, the committee leadership was ordered by the Republican leadership in the House to delete the emergency designation for domestic programs and to require offsets in order to finance those programs on a nonemergency basis.

Members will be told that those offsets provide no harm and that most of that money was not going to be spent, anyway. That is simply not the case. I will therefore be offering an amendment that eliminates what I consider to be the four most reckless elements that the majority party has used to pay for this emergency supplemental. Let me walk through what they are.

First, the committee rescinded $648 million in callable capital to the international financial institutions. Now, callable capital is not spent. It simply serves to assure that the full faith and credit of participating countries stand behind the international financial institutions in the loans that they make to stabilize the economies of countries upon whom we rely as export markets. The Congress has never before in the history of these financial institutions rescinded previously obligated callable capital. I think their doing so at this time could cause great harm.

Secretary of the Treasury Rubin, in a letter to us on this issue, described this action as an ill-advised step which carries major risks and should be reversed. His letter goes on to say that the higher borrowing costs and reduced capital flows to the developing countries that could result from this proposal would only hinder growth and recovery in the developing world which in turn would hurt U.S. farmers, workers and businesses. He then goes on to say that the President's senior advisers would recommend a veto if this provision stays in the bill. I am confident the President would veto this proposition as it stands.

The text of the letter from Secretary Rubin is as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY,
WASHINGTON, DC,
March 23, 1999.

Hon. DAVID R. OBEY,
Committee on Appropriations, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR DAVE: I am very concerned that the House is considering rescinding previously appropriated and subscribed funds for callable capital of three multilateral development banks (MDBs) in order to provide budget authority offsets for the FY 1999 emergency supplemental budget request. I strongly believe that such a step is ill-advised, carries with it major risks, and should be reversed as this legislation moves forward.

Fundamentally, what is at risk is the standing of these institutions in the international capital markets. That standing, and the Triple A credit rating these MDBs have earned, are directly a function of the support provided to the institutions by their major shareholders. Indeed, we understand that in their annual assessments of the financial condition of the MDBs, the rating agencies consider the presence of appropriated or immediately available callable capital subscriptions as a key factor.

The rescission of funds appropriated to pay for U.S. callable capital could be perceived as a significant reduction in U.S. political support for the institutions and their borrowers and could lead to a serious market reassessment of the likely U.S. response to a call on MDB capital should one ever occur. In these circumstances, the borrowing costs of the MDBs could increase as a result of this proposal. In addition, a ratings downgrade is a possibility. A downgrade would lead to even greater borrowing costs for the institutions, which costs would then need to be passed on to the developing countries the MDBs are mandated to help.

An increase in the borrowing costs of the Banks could also reduce their net income. Net income is a key source of funding for concessional programs such as the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative and the International Development Association, and any loss of such funding from net income undoubtedly would increase the demand to fund these programs from scarce bilateral resources or, in the absence of such action, would reduce concessional loans to developing countries. Ultimately, the higher borrowing costs and reduced capital flows to the developing countries that could result from this proposal would only hinder growth and recovery in the developing world, which in turn would hurt U.S. farmers, workers and businesses. This is evidenced by the fact that before the recent crisis, the developing world absorbed over 40 percent of U.S. exports.

Some have cited a 1994 rescission as a precedent for this proposal. The 1994 action and the current proposal are not analogous. In 1994, the U.S. had not subscribed the paid-in and callable capital which were rescinded. The current proposal, however, would reach back to capital to which we have formally subscribed and on the basis of which we have exercised voting rights for many years. This proposal has rightly become a concern of the markets.

I hope you will agree with me, Mr. Chairman, that the proposal is to rescind appropriated and subscribed U.S. callable capital of the MDBs would raise questions in the markets about U.S. commitment to the MDBs and could have negative consequences beyond the current budgetary horizon for the developing world and our economy. As OMB Director Jack Lew has already informed the Committee, if the supplemental bill is presented to the President with this and the other objectionable offsets included, the President's senior advisers would recommend a veto. I would be happy to discuss this matter with you further.

Sincerely,

ROBERT E. RUBIN,
Secretary of the Treasury.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, my amendment will also do a number of other things. First of all, this bill also makes some reductions in PL-480, agriculture funds, and it eliminates $25 million in funding for the Export-Import Bank war chest. Again, Members will be told by the committee that this money was largely not going to be spent and, therefore, will create no harm. I would point out that the war chest money in the Export-Import Bank is never supposed to be spent. It is there as a visible warning to our trading partners that if they artificially subsidize their corporations in order to steal markets from us overseas, that we will retaliate by doing the same things in support of our American businesses. We should not be reducing the number of arrows in that quiver. I would also point out that the tiny amount of money which is saved by cutting PL-480 funds will be blown away by the added money that we will be asked to appropriate in direct assistance to our farmers because of what has happened with farm prices. And the PL-480 actions will reduce our ability to help our farmers through exports. We should not do that, either.

The last item which I will try to correct in my amendment goes to what I view as the most egregious and reckless of the recommendations in this supplemental. We have presently available $525 million to be used for the United States to take plutonium and uranium from Russia and to convert it from weapons grade material into material which is not weapons grade. Mr. Primakov is about to sign a $325 million uranium agreement with the United States Government. That is intensely in the interest of the United States. We need to take from the Russians every ounce of weapons grade uranium and plutonium that we can possibly get our hands on so that that does not continue to be at risk of falling into the hands of the wrong people around the world.

In addition to the uranium agreement which Mr. Primakov is supposed to sign, last fall Senators DOMENICI, STEVENS and BYRD and I and Mr. LIVINGSTON agreed to insert $200 million into the budget last fall in order to help restart negotiations with the Russians on a parallel agreement to also purchase plutonium from the Russians so that they do not continue to have that plutonium in their country available for use in nuclear weapons. That is enough plutonium to create anywhere from 15 to 25,000 nuclear warheads. I do not think we have any business putting at risk the start-up of those negotiations by taking that money off the table.

Now, Members again will be told by the majority that this money is not supposed to be spent this year, anyway. I know that. We all know that. But the money was put on the table so that the Russians would understand it would be immediately available once we reach agreement with them on that plutonium agreement. It seems to me that, well, all I can tell Members is that our negotiators again as well as the Secretary of Energy tells us, quote, that withdrawing this money would severely set back and might even bring to a halt our constructive discussions on this important nonproliferation and national security issue.

The text of the letter from Secretary Richardson is as follows:

THE SECRETARY OF ENERGY,
WASHINGTON, DC,
March 24, 1999.

Hon. CHET EDWARDS,
U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE EDWARDS: I am writing to express my concern about the proposed rescission of $150 million from the $525 million provided by the Fiscal Year 1999 Emergency Supplemental Appropriation to implement fissile material reduction agreements with Russia. Since the Department of Energy has already negotiated an agreement with Russia to purchase uranium for $325 million, the entire cut would have to come from the $200 million appropriated to dispose of Russian plutonium. Such a reduction would have severe consequences for the ongoing negotiations in pursuit of a bilateral agreement with Russia on disposing of enough plutonium to make tens of thousands of nuclear weapons. It could also severely impact the wide range of cooperative nonproliferation engagement underway and planned in Russia, including efforts to protect, control, and account for weapons-usable nuclear material and to prevent the flight of weapons scientists to countries of proliferation concern.

Department of Energy officials on the plutonium disposition negotiating team have witnessed first-hand the beneficial impact these funds have made; my own interactions with my counterparts reinforce how crucial the availability of these funds is to the Russian approach to plutonium disposition. Thanks to this dramatic gesture, the Russians have become significantly more cooperative in working on the specifics of a bilateral agreement. Our recent discussions have resulted in a commonality of vision on the content, structure, and timing of this agreement.

The availability of these funds has demonstrated that the U.S. is serious about helping Russia implement the agreement once it is completed, by helping design and construct key infrastructure in Russia to safely and securely dispose of weapons plutonium. To now withdraw this "earnest money" would be to call into question U.S. reliability. Russia may well perceive such a withdrawal as a breach of good faith. Withdrawing this money would severely set back—and might even bring a halt to—our constructive discussions on this important nonproliferation and national security issue.

The U.S. has also been working closely with the international community to gain commitments for additional support to the Russian plutonium disposition effort. These potential donors would perceive a reduction in available U.S. funds as a dilution of our leadership and resolve, and our leverage would be drastically undercut.

In the absence of a bilateral agreement with Russia committing them to near-term action to dispose of weapons plutonium, and without international support for Russian disposition activities, Russia could be expected to place this material in storage for several decades and ultimately use it in breeder reactors to fabricate yet more plutonium. This outcome leaves this weapons material at continued risk of theft or diversion for years to come.

In such a circumstance, continuation of the U.S. plutonium disposition program would be unwise. The U.S. plutonium represents our best lever to urge Russia towards near-term disposition. Disposing of our material unilaterally would place us at a strategic disadvantage with Russia, and the Department has stated that we will not proceed with construction of U.S. facilities in the absence of a U.S.-Russian agreement.

We urge that the House maintain the commitment to U.S. nonproliferation goals by striking this rescission.

Yours sincerely,

BILL RICHARDSON.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, under the circumstances, I do not believe that we should be taking these actions. If we reach agreement, the cost will be far more than the amount of money now available. We will have to appropriate more money, not less. I do not know of any responsible person who would not think that that is the right thing to do, because we make the world safer from the standpoint of nuclear weapons.

So I will be offering an amendment to delete those four items from the bill, and if it is not adopted, I would urge Members to oppose this bill on final passage.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute. I want to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for the very thoughtful remarks that he has made. I understand his problem. We worked together to try to develop a bill that would be bipartisan in nature, and we hope before it is over that that is the way it will be. But we have the problem of dealing with all of those who lead our government saying that we must live within the budget caps as established in 1997. That is not going to be easy. If anyone has heartburn over this small number of offsets, just wait till we start bringing the fiscal year 2000 appropriation bills on the floor, because there is going to be major heartburn then if we are going to live within the 1997 budget caps.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN), the very distinguished chairman of the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing and Related Programs.

(Mr. CALLAHAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. When I was in the State Senate, George Wallace was the Governor of the State of Alabama. He was a populist but he had a way and a manner in which to deliver a message. George Wallace called it "getting the hay down where the goats could get to it."

Let me give my colleagues a simple explanation of where we are today. First of all, there was a horrible disaster that occurred in Central America, our neighbors to the south. There was a hue and cry from the American people to assist those people who were begging for assistance. We sent our Defense Department down there. We sent private volunteer organizations. We sent USAID down there. They did a remarkable job and they did an assessment of the needs for these people who have been so devastated by this Hurricane Mitch.

So the President, after an assessment of this, sent Congress a message, and he said, Mr. Congressman and Mrs. Congressman, would you please consider giving us $950 million in order that we could help these people.

During this 3 or 4 weeks that we have been pondering over this, not one Member of Congress has come to me and said, "Do not help the people of Latin America." Not one American has called me on the phone or one Alabamian has said, "Sonny, don't help those poor people in Nicaragua and Honduras." Instead, they said help the people.

So then the Congress started mulling over this, and they decided: Wait a minute. Are we just going to give the administration nearly $1 billion and let them run and spend it anywhere they want? Are we going to permit them to give this to any government and let a government possibly squander it?

And we imposed checks and balances by taking the money out of the hands of the administrators and putting it in a separate fund. The separate fund is there to only be used, not for government-government transfers but to assist the people that have been so devastated. There is a check and balance there. We offset any concern that any Member of Congress had about the possibility of some foreign government wasting this money. It is the responsible thing to do.

The gentleman from Wisconsin is correct. The budget resolution says we do not need to offset this money. But there are some very responsible Members of this Congress who feel differently, and they, too, came to us, far in advance, and they said: Mr. Chairman YOUNG, Mr. CALLAHAN, we are not going to vote for this bill unless there are offsets. They said: We want to save Social Security. We want to save Medicare. We want to pay down the national debt. And if you indeed take this money without offsetting it, we are going to be dipping into those funds. The leadership told us, "Find a way to do this."

We found a way to do it. We used a callable capital account, a callable capital account that has billions of dollars sitting in it. And we took a portion of that appropriated callable capital account and we used it to offset these expenditures that are going to take place in helping the people of Central and South America.

What is wrong with that? Secretary Rubin, who probably is one of the most knowledgeable people of international finance that I have ever met, and I have great respect for him. He knows more about international finance than probably anybody in this House or probably anybody in the entire Congress, House and Senate. But, nevertheless, I think Secretary Rubin would agree with me privately, if no other way, that this is not going to injure the callable capital account one iota. We are reducing the callable capital account 5 percent. We are not telling these multilateral development banks that we are not going to still be obligated in the event that they may get into some financial dilemma.

The United States is not the only country that contributes to these accounts. We only account for 16 percent. That means if a multilateral development bank comes and says to the participants in that bank that we need to call up appropriated capital, we need to call up capital that is callable under the agreement, they have to go to other countries and get $84 of every $100. We only put up $16. So theoretically, even with the removal of this callable capital as we are suggesting today, the callable capital account still would have $150 billion available to it if they needed to call on it.

I urge Members to support the bill as written.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from California (Ms. PELOSI) who is the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing and Related Programs.

□ 1130

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I thank the distinguished ranking member of the full committee for yielding this time to me and for his leadership in bringing another proposal to the floor today which would eliminate the offsets that the Republican majority insists upon. I want to commend the distinguished chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG); This is, I believe, the first bill he is bringing to the floor, and of course I acknowledge my distinguished chairman of the subcommittee, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN).

From the start, Mr. Chairman, I thought that this would be an easy vote, that we would recognize the emergency nature of what happened in Central America and that we would proceed without an offset. That was the understanding I had from our distinguished chairman, and then other voices weighed in, and here we are in conflict today.

Mr. Chairman, I would contend that if a natural disaster, the likes of which we have never seen in this hemisphere, taking thousands of lives, hundreds of thousands of homes, maybe millions, and hundreds of thousands and millions of people out of work, wiping out the economies of these countries is not an emergency, I do not know what is. The distinguished chairman of the committee cited the 1997 budget agreement and said that there are caps within that agreement that we must live under. However, that same budget agreement does call for emergencies not to be scored; no need for offsets in case of an emergency. If the worst natural disaster in the history of the western hemisphere does not warrant emergency funding, we might as well scrap the whole concept of emergency funding.

My distinguished chairman, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN), references our Secretary of the Treasury and says that the Secretary knows more about international finance than anyone in this body, and I hope that that is so. But nonetheless, the distinguished gentleman from Alabama does not respect the advice of the Secretary of the Treasury, when the Secretary says that it is reckless for us to use the callable capital at the Asian Development Bank as an offset what Mr. CALLAHAN thinks the Secretary would tell him personally is not what the Secretary said on the record in our committee and in a letter to the President where he recommended a veto of this legislation if the callable capital offset was included in the final package. That is why, and there are many other reasons why, it is so important for the amendment of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) to prevail today.

I certainly rise to support the recommendations in the bill for emergency disasters and reconstruction assistance in Central America, the Caribbean and Colombia. Hurricane Mitch, as we have said, was a terrible devastation causing an estimated $10 billion in damage, and, as I said, thousands of deaths. The event, along with the earlier Hurricane Georges in the Caribbean and the more recent earthquake in Colombia have brought this request for emergency assistance before us, and I am pleased that the committee has recommended funding the full request. I am dismayed, however, by the insistence on the offset.

I fully support the $100 million in the bill for the Jordan. This is a down payment on additional military and economic assistance to help Jordan stabilize itself in the wake of King Hussein's death. As I have said, I oppose, I must unfortunately oppose the bill because of the offsets used in this package. The bill insists offsets for the disaster mitigation programs and the emergency fund farm assistance but does not insist on offsets for the $195 million to restore the Department of Defense hurricane cost. Why the inconsistencies? Our young people, part of the American military, bravely, courageously, unselfishly and tirelessly assisted the people in Central America at the time of this hurricane, in the immediate wake of the hurricane. Certainly we want to pay back the Department of Defense for services rendered; that does not need to be offset, it should not be, I agree with that. But why treat other assistance differently than the military assistance, the assistance of the military in this bill?

Mr. Chairman, the amendment of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) will strike the most objectionable offsets in the bill, and I enthusiastically support that. The 1 billion in offsets in the bill, $825 million comes from international programs, all of the proposed rescissions from foreign ops bill will have a detrimental program impact, and I intend to work hard to remove them from the bill before it is sent to the President. That is why I urge my colleagues to vote no on this bill, so we increase the leverage of the President, sustain a presidential veto, and have a change in this bill so that we are not helping the people of Central America at the risk of exacerbating the financial crisis in Asia by taking a large chunk of the callable capital for the Asian Development Bank as an offset. The rescissions in the bill will hurt development programs such as health, education and even child survival.

Mr. Chairman, I do not have any more time. I will place the rest of my statement in the RECORD. I urge my colleagues to support the Obey amendment and to oppose the passage of this bill unless the Obey amendment prevails.

I rise to support the recommendations in the bill for emergency disaster and reconstruction assistance for Central America, the Caribbean, and Colombia. Hurricane Mitch was the worst natural disaster to hit the Western Hemisphere in recorded history causing an estimated $10 billion in damage, and thousands of deaths. This event, along with the earlier Hurricane Georges in the Caribbean, and the more recent earthquake in Colombia have brought this request for emergency assistance before us, and I am pleased that the Committee has recommended funding the full request.

I also fully support the $100 million in the bill for Jordan. This is a down payment on additional military and economic assistance to help Jordan stabilize itself in the wake of King Hussein's death.

Unfortunately I will have to oppose this bill because of the offsets used to fund this package. The bill presented offsets the Disaster Mitigation programs and the Emergency Farm assistance, but does not offset the $195 million appropriated to restore the Department of Defense hurricane cost. This bill started out in Committee as a bipartisan product with no offsets. If the worst natural disaster in the history of the Western Hemisphere does not warrant emergency funding, we might as well scrap the whole concept of emergency funding.

INTERNATIONAL FINANCE

Mr. OBEY intends to offer an amendment which will strike the most objectionable offsets in the bill, which I will enthusiastically support. Of the $1 billion in offsets being in the bill, $825 million comes from international programs. All of the proposed rescissions from the Foreign Operations bill will have detrimental program impacts, and I intend to work hard to remove them from the bill before it is sent to the President. The rescissions in the bill will hurt development programs such as health, education and even Child Survival. Cuts to our trade promotion programs lessen the number of U.S. firms we can help develop export markets. Cuts in peacekeeping accounts will severely hinder the training of troops from African countries in peacekeeping methods. Cuts to Eastern Europe will slow reconstruction in Bosnia. Congress agreed to fund these programs last year and we should not be pulling back from these commitments.

DEBT RELIEF

The response of the American people to this event was truly heartening and indicative of the widespread sympathy and support for the needs of our southern neighbors in this Hemisphere. There is no question that the vast majority of the American people support well directed humanitarian assistance. This aid package enjoys widespread support in the Congress and throughout the country.

Congress must move expeditiously on this request so that critical reconstruction efforts can begin before the onset of the rainy season. Our action here today will only complicate efforts to get this assistance to where it is needed. It is my hope that the provision of this assistance will become the springboard for economic and social development which lifts the poorest countries in Central America out of the grinding poverty they have suffered for so long.

Unfortunately with the offsets in the bill which have drawn a veto threat and action on the bill stalled in the other body for reasons unrelated to the Disaster, I fear we are still a long way from the day when assistance arrives.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the very distinguished gentleman from Delaware (Mr. CASTLE).

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me.

I am not a member of the Committee on Appropriations, but as a lot of other Members, I follow the appropriations and budgetary processes very carefully, and just three brief points, if I may:

First of all, I was in support of the rule, I am in support of the legislation, and I would like to congratulate the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and the others who worked on this because sometimes in my 6 years here I have seen emergency bills that were, with all due respect, Christmas trees with a lot of decorations on them. A real effort was made here, I think, to look at this carefully and to make it truly an emergency bill.

Secondly, I feel we need offsets. I have been in support of this for some time. We just simply cannot continue to balance our budget if we do not offset the expenditures which we make, even if they are emergencies, and, frankly, one could argue the viability of some of the offsets here; I understand that. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has already made that argument.

With respect to certain of the issues, I know a little bit about the callable capital situation with the international financial institutions, but the bottom line is I believe that this is an acceptable and allowable offset. Perhaps, as we negotiate with the Senate, we will go through some changes on that, but I really also congratulate the committee on that. They made the effort to do this. A lot of us were concerned about it, and they have come to the realization that while there are going to be emergencies, in many instances we should be able to get offsets for this, and in this case they have done that.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, I would just say that I have been pushing legislation for some time to have a budget for emergencies so we could avoid these problems, so it is built into our budget at the beginning of the year as a rainy day fund approximating what the average of emergency expenditures have been over the last 5 years, which may be in the range of $5 to $6 billion; so, when these issues come up, we would have a methodology for reviewing them, to determine if they are true emergencies, we would already have the money set aside for that, we could apply this against that money. Then we do not get into the arguments about the offsets, the callable capital, the import export or it may be.

This is really not a matter before us today. It is not even necessarily an appropriation matter; perhaps it is a budget matter. But I think it is something we should do. But I congratulate all those who worked on this. I think we are taking steps in the right direction, and I am pleased to be in support of it.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished minority leader, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT).

(Mr. GEPHARDT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Chairman, the majority has in my view let down America's farmers because of the way they have responded to the President's request for supplemental aid. The President made this request nearly one month ago, and we are just getting around to it now, a month after the request was made and the need was demonstrated. They put forward a bill which in my view is full of items which will hurt our national security and weaken the international economy.

I do not like to say it, but I think the Republican party has given in to isolationist tendencies. By turning our backs on the world, we only hurt the global economy further and hurt exporters like farmers who are getting pummeled by the downturn in Asia and elsewhere. The delay has hurt the financial bottom line for thousands of farmers across America. There is a near depression happening in many parts of our farm economy. Hog farmers in my district cannot even sell hogs at half the break-even price, Mr. Chairman.

Let me just mention one young farmer from my district, Mike Kertz of Ste. Genevieve, Missouri. He comes from a farm family, and he wants to carry on the farm tradition. He raises hogs. At today's prices, the prices he was getting for months, he cannot survive, he can not have a future, he can not keep the farm. Missouri's farmers would get over $42 million in new credit loans in the President's request, and over 12,000 farmers nationwide would benefit from the supplemental funding for agriculture.

But we needed action last month, and we needed a bill today that would get to the President's desk with no strings attached and not a bill that is isolationist and which harms our national security. These are irresponsible policies that were injected into this bill. These objectionable policies should be dropped so we can get the aid to the people who have already been waiting too long for it. We must not deliver this aid at the cost of giving up on our obligations which are in the long term to the benefit of every American citizen.

Mr. Chairman, I urge the majority to drop these objectionable provisions, I urge them to bring a bill that we can support, and if that does not happen, I urge Members to vote against this legislation in the hope that we can get a bill that is worthy of support.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Michigan (Mr. UPTON).

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Chairman, I do not vote for the supplemental bills very often, and I give great credit to the new chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) and to our new Speaker, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT). Several weeks ago they began to figure out how they are going to get the votes to pass this bill, and they sort of looked at, I guess, the list of folks who have traditionally opposed these bills, and they called a meeting, and they said: Why? And I said: Well, my reasons are real easy; three of them:

One, they are not usually emergency supplementals; ought to be regular order, they ought to go the regular process. Two, they are never paid for; and, three, there is usually so much pork in some of those bills that it makes us sick, and I said, "O for three; that's why I vote against them," and, to the credit of the chairman of the committee they are really batting three for three. It is paid for, they whittled out some of the stuff that was in there that really was not an emergency, could be taken care of, and there was not a single bridge or armory or anything in there that someone might be able to call pork.

For those reasons I am voting for this bill this afternoon, and I would not only encourage my colleagues to vote for this bill, but also send a warning to our friends on the other side of this building. As I understand it, their bill is already larger; as I understand it, their bill is not paid for; and third, we can start hearing those words "su wee" for the pork that some of the Members on that side of the body have put in this bill that has got to be taken out, and I hope that our passage of the bill this afternoon proves our point: Battering three for three; not even Sammy Sosa can do as well.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR), the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Agriculture.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me and thank him for his leadership on the committee in trying to strengthen this supplemental bill. I also want to congratulate the new chairman of the committee who has tried hard to put a bill together, but I must say to my colleagues it is truly inadequate. Certainly from the standpoint of agriculture America's farmers are in crisis.

Mr. Chairman, this bill should have been up here two months ago. We have been witnessing price declines at record levels across this country with an additional income drop for our farmers this year of over 20 percent. This House bill falls so far short of the mark. Though it contains much needed credit authority to help farmers over this spring planting period, it is too little, too late. As we stand here, equipment auctions are going on across the country, bankruptcies mount, and people cannot move product to market.

One of the most curious aspects of this particular measure is that one of the budget offsets in the bill is to reduce the P.L. 480 Program, which is a program at the Department of Agriculture where we take surplus, which we have plenty of on this market, and move it into foreign markets to help hungry people around the world, and there are certainly lots of those, but also to help our farmers here at home get out from under the weight of all this production which is helping prices to continue to plummet here in the domestic market.

□ 1145

So we should have been able to perfect a more perfect bill. Unfortunately, this is not the one.

I wanted to mention that the bill contains some very important language that has to do with the Russian food aid package that is currently being delivered, over a billion dollars of Russian food aid, and yet very few checks by the government of the United States in order to assure that that product is not diverted and graft does not occur.

Mr. Chairman, I include for the RECORD questions that we should ask the executive branch and expand congressional oversight of that Russian food aid package as it proceeds over the next several weeks.

Our American family farmers are suffering. While the general economy is strong, the U.S. agricultural economy continues to experience significant declines in agriculture commodity prices that began over a year ago. The price declines experienced by wheat and cattle producers over the last couple of years have expanded now to all of the feed grains, oil seed, cotton, pork and now the dairy sectors at record all-time lows. Farm income is expected to fall from $53 billion in 1996 to $43 billion next year, nearly a 20-percent decline.

The Republican Leadership has again let down the American farmer. The credit guarantee assistance needed by farmers to obtain credit during spring planting is again delayed by the inability of the Republican Leadership to deal with legislation on a timely basis.

Farmers and ranchers have a cash flow squeeze this year and the demand for USDA's farm lending programs has increased dramatically this year to 4 times the normal rate.

Many states have already exhausted their loan funds and farmers cannot get their crops in the ground without the credit to purchase their inputs.

USDA reports that the Farm Service Agency will begin to layoff temporary employees at the end of this week. These employees assist with the backlog in delivering assistance to farmers suffering from low prices and crop disasters.

The demand for Loan Deficiency Payments is exploding. For 1997 crops USDA paid about $160 million for farmers and ranchers for LDP's. For 1998, LDP's are currently $2.3 billion and that total is expected to climb to $3.2 billion before the season ends. We expect to issue about $3.5 billion in LDP's in 1999, 65 percent more than 1998. Farmers in my district have been waiting to get paid for LDP's since October, and they will wait because we have been unable to present them with a final bill prior to leaving on our recess.

UNITED STATES FOOD AID

1. Who is going to guarantee that the money from the sale of the commodities in the various regions of Russia gets into the Special Account for transfer to the Pension Fund? What will be done if the money is not deposited within the time specified in the Resolution of the Russian Government (70 days for wheat and rice, 90 days for all other commodities)?

2. How many rubles are anticipated from the sale of the U.S. commodities for the Russian Pension Fund? The Pension Fund has an arrears of around 23 billion rubles.

3. How many people on the Russian side will be actively involved in monitoring the U.S. food shipments?

4. There have been articles in the Russian press criticizing U.S. food aid, saying it is not needed and that it will destroy the private agriculture sector. What is the relationship between U.S. food aid and the development of privatized agriculture in Russia?

FUTURE FOOD AID

5. What is the evidence that Russia will need additional food aid later in the year?

What are projections for grain and livestock production in the coming year?

6. If additional food aid from the USDA is requested by Russia, will it be conducted by Russia through an open tender this time around instead of a closed tender?

7. If additional food aid is extended from the U.S., how should funds resulting from the sale of this food aid be used? How can the U.S. be assured it will not be diverted to a bank outside of Russia or just disappear?

RUSSIAN AGRICULTURE

8. What is Russia's strategy for developing the agriculture sector in Russia and for improving the quality of life in the rural areas of Russia?

9. What is the future for private farming and for truly privatized farms in Russia?

INVESTMENT

10. What is being done to create a climate that attracts U.S. investment in Russian agriculture? How can the commercial risk associated with this investment be reduced given the current economic crisis in Russia?

11. Sector Reform: What are Russian priorities to revitalize growth in the agriculture sector given the Duma's opposition on such important questions as private land ownership and tax reform?

12. Farm Profitability: A key task for the Russian government is the creation of viable farms from existing, large-scale unprofitable farms. The main barriers to farm profitability include the lack of good, market-knowledgeable managers, over-staffing, and reluctance to abandon or significantly restructure operations on large farms that are unprofitable. In what ways will the government help large farms to restructure?

13. Private Family Farms: Small private family farms and dacha (garden) plots account for about 9 percent of total farm land in Russia, yet produce significant percentages of total agricultural output: potatoes—89%, vegetables—76%, meat—48%, milk—42%, and eggs—30%. What measures are being taken to assist private plot holders and owners of family farms to expand their holdings and to meet their needs for credit?

14. Private Investment: Many prior functions of the government under a command economy such as credit, supply and distribution of inputs and marketing of commodities and food products can no longer be provided by the state, nor is there an institution for extending improved technologies (both production and managerial) to farms. There is an increasing role for the private sector, both Russian and foreign, to help. What role will the federal and regional governments play in attracting private investment in Russian agriculture, and are there specific programs, policies or incentives which the Ministry of Agriculture will promote?

15. Agriculture Finance: What work is being done to encourage the establishment of private lending institutions for the farm sector other than commercial banks? In this regard, what is the status of the draft legislation on rural credit cooperatives? What other measures is the Russian government taking to establish a sustainable source of credit for agriculture—both for operating capital and for long-term investment?

16. Next Year's Harvest: What are the prospects for next year's harvest? Is there expected to be a shortfall, and how would Russia deal with this situation if it develops?

17. Investment Policy: Many foreign agribusiness companies willing to invest in Russian agriculture are hesitant to do so because of several factors: lack of land markets and long-term land leasing procedures, complicated and excessive taxation, contradictory federal and regional laws, particularly with regard to land ownership and use, administrative trade barriers imposed by regions which prevent the movement of grain, and lack of legal procedures for the enforcement of business contracts and resolving disputes.

What can the Ministry of Agriculture do to address these issues?

The bill before us $1.2 billion includes language directing the Executive Branch and USDA to strengthen monitoring effort on the $1.2 billion Russian Food Aid package.

This Russian food aid package was put together through existing authorities and has not been subject to congressional oversight. The Congress was not a part of the negotiating team but this is an effort to interject ourselves into the oversight of this assistance. These shipments are likely to be subject to graft and major diversion and, sadly, strengthen the hand of the very instrumentalities in Russia that have approved reform in agriculture.

The magnitude of this package is unprecedented.

Deliveries will be staggered over the next several months—but I believe it may even be necessary for us to suspend shipments for a short time frame in order to evaluate our progress in ensuring that our assistance gets to the people it is intended.

We have had discussions with the USDA over the past four months which have resulted in substantial changes being made to the monitoring effort but they simply are not enough. We have gone from two monitors located in Moscow, to thirteen full time monitors and 30 individuals in the consulates and Embassies assisting with a country team effort.

Thus the report language in the bill states:

RUSSIAN FOOD AID

Based on past experience with regard to U.S. commodity shipments to Russia, the Committee is seriously concerned about the likelihood of diversion in the distribution of the current $1,200,000 Russian food aid package which was negotiated by the Executive Branch. The Committee urges the Secretary of Agriculture to implement swiftly the provisions of the sales agreement that allow suspension of shipments if and when diversions occur. In addition, the Secretary should ensure that sufficient staff is available for oversight, monitoring and control procedures to minimize potential misuse and improper losses of food commodities provided under the three food aid agreements between the Governments of the United States and the Russian Federation. The Committee expects the Secretary to directly involve the Inspector General in auditing these shipments.

The Secretary of Agriculture shall report to the Committee by June 15, 1999, regarding his efforts to increase oversight and monitoring; the extent to which other federal agencies and Non-Governmental Organizations have contributed to the monitoring effort; the number of frequency of spot-checks and their findings; how the agency handled reports of diversions; and the extent to which the distribution of commodities was coordinated with local government officials and private farming organizations. The Committee also expects the Secretary to report on how the food aid package was coordinated with the State Department to meet our strategic goals in the region and the involvement of the Interagency Task Force assembled by the U.S. Embassy in Moscow to oversee these shipments. The Secretary shall also report on how this and subsequent food aid shipments contribute to the development and reform of private agriculture in the Newly Independent States.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, I am reluctant to engage in this particular argument now because of the great respect that I have for the minority leader, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT). But I want to say to my colleagues, there is nothing in this bill that would have an adverse effect on the security of our Nation.

Those who have known me during the 4 years that I chaired the Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense know that I have fought and struggled to do everything that I possibly could to improve the national security of our Nation and improve the quality of life for those men and women who provide the security of our Nation.

I know what he is talking about. We will discuss that more after the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) offers his amendment, but there is absolutely zero threat to our national security in this bill.

In response to the complaints about how much time it has taken to get here, we tried to do this in a responsible way. The agricultural money that was just mentioned was requested on March 1. Today is only March 24. That is 23 days ago.

So I think we have expedited it fairly well, but one of the reasons we did not come out here on the floor immediately was that I wanted to see firsthand exactly from the congressional standpoint what had happened and what had occurred in the region. I asked a bipartisan delegation from the Committee on Appropriations to visit the region, which they did the weekend before we did our markup. They came back with a very real report on what the needs were, what the requirements were. General Wilhelm, commander of Southern Command, who also accompanied them on that trip, pointed out what our own military had done in response to that national disaster.

So, yes, we did take a little time to be responsible, to find out for ourselves what the situation was in Central America, and to make sure that the offsets that we recommended were responsible offsets.

I will talk more about the offsets when we get into the amendment process here, but we can justify making these offsets because they were not going to be spent in fiscal year 1999 anyway, and if they were left they would have probably eventually been wasted in the future.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. JACKSON).

(Mr. JACKSON of Illinois asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. JACKSON of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the ranking member, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, although I oppose this bill, I rise today to discuss an important element in this bill, debt relief. The ranking member, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI), and the minority have been fighting very hard for debt relief.

We sincerely believe that debt relief is central to any bill that intends to stimulate the rebuilding of infrastructure and to provide other necessities such as health care and food. This bill would devote $41 million to debt relief, $25 million to the World Bank fund for making payments on multilateral debt during the moratorium that lasts until February 1, 2001, and $16 million for an eventual two-thirds write-off of Honduras' bilateral debt.

For just an additional $25.5 million, the U.S. could cancel all bilateral debts owed to Nicaragua and Honduras. That $25.5 million would cancel debt with a face value of more than $270 million. The supplemental came very, very close to alleviating this burden off of the families that have been suffering during this crisis but fell short by $25.5 million.

Bilateral debt cancellation would be a significant investment in Central American recovery. It would send a signal to other countries that these countries' bilateral debts must be forgiven to make way for recovery and development.

A few countries, Denmark, Brazil, Cuba among them, have already done such cancellation, but if the U.S. would do it many more would be expected to follow. More than the amounts involved, that would be the true and relatively small expenditure when one considers the enormous burden that this would lift.

Nicaragua and Honduras already had severe debt problems before Mitch. The hurricane made a horrible problem absolutely unbearable, Mr. Chairman. Moratoria and reduction of bilateral debt stock by the Paris Club are not enough. Before Hurricane Mitch, Honduras was paying over a million dollars a day in debt service; Nicaragua about $700,000 a day.

Once the moratorium ends, no one thinks that the recovery will be complete, but if in fact we go the extra mile and make the difference, we can take this burden off of these families.

Although I do not plan to offer an amendment on this subject, I want to bring this issue to the attention of my colleagues because I feel that debt relief is important for any country to rebuild.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the bill before us today in light particularly of the offsets that are being suggested and what they, in my opinion, will do to agriculture in this country.

Chairman Alan Greenspan made a speech last week in which he talked about the problems of agriculture, and I appreciated very much hearing his analysis and rationalization of what is happening to American agriculture. The point that he made over and over is our problems are that the rest of the world that we depend on for markets to buy that which we produce is having credit problems.

This bill cuts the commitments we have already made to back lending by international financial institutions such as the Asian Development Bank, laying groundwork for another year of dismal farm prices.

Secretary Rubin pointed out in a letter to the Congress the bill would increase borrowing costs and hinder growth in developing countries, the part of the world that before this crisis absorbed 40 percent of our agricultural exports.

In many States now we have a need for the credit. The first chapter in this bill is something that everyone agrees is needed to be done, but not at any cost. If the cost of having this particular emergency declaration or this particular spending is the offset that is in mind, it is not worth the price we will pay in agriculture and farm country.

This seems to come as an annual occurrence now, and I do not understand this. In 1996, the most dramatic change in our farm policy in a generation was held hostage by a leadership that did not trust the Committee on Agriculture, forced to vote on the bill or to have nothing for American farmers after we had already entered the planting season in parts of our Nation.

Last year, again, as farmers were making fundamental decisions, House leadership meddling in bipartisan consensus over a bill to secure delivery costs for crop insurance delayed final adoption of a bill reported from conference. In that case, a sound bipartisan majority defeated the leadership's rule that would have undone a carefully crafted and responsible compromise. Now farmers in dire straits, in the need of these lending programs, will have to wait even longer.

I am going to ask the majority to seriously consider an amendment that I will offer, and I will ask for unanimous consent that the emergency declarations in this bill be stricken and that instead of using the offsets in question for agriculture in the development bank and also the offsets dealing with nuclear, one of the most irresponsible decisions this body could possibly consider doing at this time with all of the problems in the world, Kosovo we are talking about today, how we could possibly do that I do not know.

I will offer, and hopefully by unanimous consent, that we strike it and pay for these emergency declarations with an across-the-board cut on every account. I believe that would make a lot more sense at this time and certainly avoid what could otherwise be a catastrophic happening for agriculture, that no one on this side of the aisle wants to see done any more than I do.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

(Mr. BERRY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the way this bill has been handled.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to express my support for this bill, but it is very reluctant support.

First of all, I am deeply disappointed that there is no money for domestic disaster relief in this bill.

Most of the money in this bill, $687 million, is for foreign disaster relief efforts. There have been some terrible disasters in those countries this year, and I am fully in support of helping these countries out.

However, the Republicans didn't see it fit to include any money for recovery efforts in our own country.

According to USDA, there is approximately $102 million in disaster recovery needs across the United States at this time. We need $102 million—and the Republicans gave us nothing. (This money is in the Senate bill, but the House appropriators did not include these funds in this version).

As far as getting this money out, we all know that the committee was prepared to bring this bill up on March 4.

This bill was to contain desperately needed relief for our farmers ($109 million for credit insurance, and $42 million for FSA salaries and expenses), as well as the disaster relief in Central America.

These are all obvious emergency appropriations, but the House leadership decided that they wanted these appropriations to be offset.

This caused a three week delay in bringing the bill up, a three week delay in getting these funds to the farmers who desperately need it.

I don't know if the House Republican leadership realizes it or not, but they are putting family farms out of business every day that this bill doesn't pass.

And now, it looks like this bill won't be sent to the President until after the recess, where it faces a potential veto. Who knows how many farmers are going to be forced to close their operations between now and then.

I am certainly not happy with this bill. But I can't vote against this measure and delay money to farmers in my district any longer.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3½ minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO).

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO).

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, this is a strange bill, particularly all of these speeches we hear about offsets. In my judgment, this bill is a legitimate emergency, under the budget rules can be handled as an emergency without being offset and that is how it should be handled, but we are going through this pretense that we are making offsets when in reality we are not.

Let me suggest to all the Members they look at this bill. Page 3, they will find this language: Provided that the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section so and so of the balanced budget and emergency deficit control act of 1985, as amended.

What does that mean? It means that the outlays in this bill are exempt from the budgetary caps, and the law we are passing, we are saying it is an emergency, the outlays are exempt from the caps, but then we get into a discussion of a whole series of offsets, which really are not offsets to the outlays. We are actually spending this money outside of the caps but then we do a whole series of offsets that do damage but does not solve the budgetary problem; primarily reducing the callable capital for the international banks.

What is the reality of this type of cut? It is as if I signed as a second signatory on a loan for $100,000, but then I decided I wanted to buy a new car for $30,000 and pay cash for it. What I would do is I would send a letter to the bank saying I am sorry, this guarantee I made is reduced from $100,000 to $70,000 and somehow think that gives me $30,000 of cash to go out and pay cash for a car. It clearly does not work, but that is the mentality we are using in these offsets.

The bank would probably call the loan back on the mortgage I had signed for because my guarantee was only now good for 70 percent of it and I would not get $30,000 to go and buy a new car.

That is what we are doing in this bill. We are still pretending or saying it is an emergency. That is real. The outlays are exempt from the caps, but then we do these series of cuts which do damage but do not change the nature of the fact that our outlays are still considered emergencies.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. I yield to the gentleman from Alabama.

□ 1200

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman has brought up an excellent scenario, an excellent explanation of what we are doing here. He is doing, in a sense, what Governor Wallace used to say; he is bringing this down to a level that I can understand, and that most people watching can probably understand.

We will use the gentleman's example of his endorsement of a loan for an automobile for one of his children. If the gentleman goes to the bank and signs that loan, he cosigns the loan with his child. The bank does not say to the gentleman, Congressman, put this money in a safety deposit box in our bank. They simply use the gentleman's assets to give that loan, with the recognition and assurance that if the money is not paid, then the gentleman will have to pay it. They do not tell the gentleman which pocket to put in or which drawer.

We are not taking away the obligation of the United States. The obligation is still there. We are simply taking 5 percent of the appropriated callable capital and using it to balance the budget this way.

So the gentleman brings up an excellent point. That is that the United States has pledged this money in the event of an international monetary crisis. If indeed there is an international monetary crisis that exceeds $150 billion, then the Congress is going to have to reappropriate the money, but it is not unauthorized. Congress has authorized this. It is a debt and an obligation of the United States.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman, if we change these guarantees, how much outlay savings does it give us this year?

Mr. CALLAHAN. The money currently is sitting in a fund, an appropriated fund.

Mr. SABO. My question is, Mr. Chairman, obviously this bill declares these expenditures an emergency. The outlay is exempt from the budgetary caps. If we make this change that the gentleman is suggesting, how much outlays does that save us towards the discretionary caps?

Mr. CALLAHAN. I do not think it saves us any outlays.

Mr. SABO. No outlay savings?

Mr. CALLAHAN. No.

Mr. SABO. That is the heart of my point. This bill declares everything here an emergency, exempt from all the budgetary caps, but then we pretend we do these change of guarantees as an offset, which saves us no actual dollars of outlays.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I think the gentleman is correct.

Mr. SABO. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LATHAM), a member of the committee.

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Chairman, I thank the chairman of the committee for yielding time to me.

Mr. Chairman, I was listening to the debate, talking about what is happening with agriculture. We do have a very, very serious problem in agriculture. There was some concern expressed about using the P.L. 480 dollars for an offset in this bill.

The fact of the matter is the reason there are dollars there is because the administration did not use it last year. They did not use that tool to get rid of the surplus. That is why there are dollars left over.

It is also the case, when we look at the export enhancement funds, in the last 3 years we have had $1.5 billion available to promote exports of U.S. products around the world, and the administration has done nothing.

Also this year, the administration claimed that they had set new heights of using a little over $4 billion for export credits. The fact of the matter is, by law the minimum is $5.5 billion that is supposed to be used, and in the Democrat administration budget this year, they are cutting $215 million out of those credits. That is, again, going to cripple our exports.

I heard the minority leader earlier talk about the hog farmers. If we look at the Democrat administration budget being put forth to try and help that hog farmer, they have $504 million in new taxes on livestock producers that is going to come right out of the hide of that pork producer in the minority leader's district.

I believe we have to help farmers today, and not hurt them. We have to use the tools available to make sure that our exports are promoted, that we use every resource possible. What the problem is in agriculture today is just a failure by this administration to use the tools available for export to help our producers, and this bill needs to move, move now, so they have the credit this spring to put a crop in the ground.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, I have before us a letter from the Bretton Woods committee. It reads, in part, as follows. It is addressed primarily to the Tiahrt amendment, but also applies to the base bill.

Among other things, it says this:

"This is to alert you to the enormously damaging impact of the Tiahrt amendment to divert appropriated World Bank callable capital to offset portions of the emergency supplemental."

It then goes on to say, at a later point, "Disturbing reports from Wall Street say that some bondholders are already growing nervous over the threat and are dumping World Bank bonds."

It then goes on to say, "This will undermine the recovery strategy for Asia and other vulnerable regions, and it creates new international financial instability at a time when we can ill afford it. Ultimately, this move will hurt U.S. exports."

At a later point in the letter, it also says, "This is a retreat from international commitments made by every president since Harry Truman, including Republican stalwarts Dwight Eisenhower and Ronald Reagan."

Then it says, "Disappropriating callable capital from which no outlays can be gained is a sham solution, but paradoxically, a congressional raid on appropriated callable capital could even force the United States to make new cash contributions with real outlays attached."

I agree with that letter. What the committee is doing, as my good friend from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) pointed out, is a sham. In fact, if we take a look at the four items I am trying to deal with in my amendment, those items pretend to save $853 million.

In fact, they would save only $19 million on the P.L. 480 item and on the war chest. Possibly they might save $80 million more if CBO is correct on its assumption that $80 million of the amount which the majority is trying to rescind from the nuclear weaponry account will be spent.

The ironic point is that the majority party says that they are rescinding that money because none of it would be spent in this fiscal year, anyway. So we are left with this situation. If the majority party is correct, then no money will be spent, and there are no outlay savings in the amounts they are claiming. If the majority party is wrong, then we wind up doing huge damage to a key negotiation to make the world safer by removing plutonium that would make at least 15,000 nuclear weapons.

Either way in my view is incredibly misguided, so I would again urge passage of my amendment, and defeat of this bill if that amendment is not passed.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. I thank the chairman for yielding, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman, I rise for the purpose of entering into a colloquy with the chairman of the committee.

As the chairman knows, the Senate, in its consideration of this legislation, has included a provision which provides for the disposal of 17,383 dry tons of zirconium other from the National Defense Stockpile. The Department of Defense inadvertently failed to include this in its legislative proposal to Congress last year. The Senate provision corrects this oversight. It also ensures that disposal of the material will not result in undue disruption of the usual markets of producers, processors, and consumers of the material.

It is my understanding that this is really a technical provision which is not controversial, and is supported by both the Defense Department and the Committee on Armed Services. I therefore rise to seek the chairman's support for receding to the Senate on this matter when this bill goes to the conference.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, in responding to the gentleman from Michigan, he is correct. I have discussed this issue with not only the Department of Defense and the Committee on Armed Services, but also the chairman of our Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS).

We all agree that the Senate's language is not controversial, and would in fact be useful. On that basis, we are certainly prepared to agree to it when we go to conference.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. I am grateful to the chairman. I thank him very much.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, to close the general debate part of the consideration of this bill, the issue has been raised about whether or not we should use the emergency declaration. This is a technical argument. The truth of the matter is we are responding to an emergency. The only difference is we are going to pay for it. We are going to offset our response to this emergency, but it truly is an emergency to which we are responding to.

I do not see why anybody should be really upset about leaving that part of the language in the bill. It is truly an emergency. We are just being fiscally responsible, and we are going to offset it.

One of the discussions that has been of some concern to all of us is the issue of the purchase of plutonium from the Soviet Union. I want to tell Members about this fund. This was a fund of $525 million for the two Russian programs, $325 million for highly enriched uranium, and $200 million for plutonium disposition.

By the way, we spend a lot of money in programs like this, but this particular aspect was not high on anybody's radar screen. In the omnibus appropriations bill we dealt with last year, there were so many members and so many people in the administration having input into that bill, this issue was never part of the original consideration. It did not come down here from the White House or the Department of Defense or the State Department. As a matter of fact, the only time it was actually raised was when we went to the conference committee with the other body.

At that point, one member of the Senate offered the amendment to create this program and appropriate this money. We thought it was a pretty good idea. We still think it is a pretty good idea. But I would remind my colleagues that this fiscal year is basically half over, so most of that money would not be spent, anyway.

Second, I would remind my colleagues that the agreement that we were to reach with Russia on this issue has never been concluded. In fact, yesterday Prime Minister Primakov was on his way to the United States. One of the things we thought that he would do while he was here was to complete the negotiation on highly enriched uranium portion of the agreement and sign it.

Somewhere over the Atlantic Ocean Prime Minister Primakov decided, after a conversation with Vice President Gore, he decided not to come to the United States, and he turned around and went back home. So to this day, to this minute, no part of agreement has been signed.

What did we do? Of the $525 million that had been appropriated, we only rescind $150 million. I will remind the gentleman, the agreement is not concluded nor signed, and the fiscal year is halfway over. But we left $375 million in this fund that no one even wanted or suggested until we got into the conference committee.

So I do not think this is a serious problem that anybody should be concerned about. As I said, we took a little extra time to prepare this bill, to bring it to the committee, and to bring it to the Floor because we wanted to be responsible. We wanted to be fiscally conservative. We wanted to make sure that the money, the funds that we used to offset these emergencies, would not do severe damage to any of the programs that we dealt with.

So we went through the account, page by page by page, to find unobligated balances, monies that would not be spent in fiscal year 1999 anyway. That is where the list of rescissions came from.

I submit to all of the Members, and I understand we have differences, there are 435 of us, we are always going to have some differences, that this is a good, a responsible, conservative bill that meets the criteria of responding to an emergency, at the same time being extremely careful with the taxpayers' dollars that we have an obligation to be responsible for.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, I suggest that we should pass this bill. We should respond to the emergency. We should help our friends in Central America, and we should repay to our own military the monies that they have already spent in the performance of their emergency duties at the time of the hurricane and at the time of the natural disasters.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in reluctant support of H.R. 1141, a bill to provide supplemental appropriations for hurricane relief in Central America and additional loan funding for our nation's struggling farmers.

Although I will vote in favor of the bill, I deeply regret that the majority has once again chosen to load an urgently needed relief measure with extraneous policy provisions and objectionable offsets. I am reminded of the supplemental fight of two years ago when relief for Grand Forks, North Dakota and other disaster stricken communities was delayed for weeks because the majority added unrelated and highly controversial provisions to the emergency supplemental bill. Rather than repeat its past mistakes, I had hoped that the majority would advance a clean measure that would gain the support of the President. Unfortunately, that is not the case.

The one and only reason I am supporting this legislation is because it includes desperately need loan funds for cash-strapped farmers in North Dakota and throughout the country. Without these loans, many farmers in my state will be literally unable to get into the fields this spring to plant a crop. When the House and Senate convene a conference committee to craft the final version of this bill, however, I hope the leaders have the good sense to reach accommodation with the administration so that the bill can be passed and signed into law as quickly as possible.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Chairman, this is a bad bill for farmers and for the American people. I support the funding in this bill for farmers, even though it is inadequate. But the cuts in this bill are entirely irresponsible, and will do more to harm agriculture in this country than any benefit it will receive from the paltry amount of money that has been included for farmers. The biggest challenge facing farmers and other businesses in this country is competing in the global economy. Talk about kicking farmers while they are down, this bill would cut critical funds for the development and expansion of global markets at a time when pork and grain farmers are suffering from plunging world demand sitting on record surpluses and tobacco farmers are dealing with a 35 percent cut in their income over the past two years. I cannot support a bill that gives farmers something with one hand and takes it away with another. This cynical bill will be vetoed, and the Republican leadership know it. They loaded this bill up with veto bait in an attempt to score political points and in the process have ensured that the relief farmers desperately need will be delayed. And that's wrong. Unfortunately, this bill puts partisan gain over the people's interests, and I urge Congress to reverse course and pass a balanced bill that will speed relief to the farms where it is needed the most.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this bill, not because I do not believe that the programs it funds are necessary—because they urgently are—but rather because of the way that the majority in the House is handling these appropriations.

H.R. 1141 provides a total of $1.3 billion in emergency funding for many programs that are more than worthwhile, they are necessary to save human life. A sizable portion of that fund, $687 million, is set aside for relief efforts in Central America and the Caribbean, who have been ravaged by Hurricanes Mitch and George over the course of the past year.

Those funds are desperately needed. In Central America, it is estimated that one in three of the facilities that are used for public health or water treatment were damaged during the hurricane. In part because of the loss of those facilities, the hurricanes left in their wake over almost 20,000 dead or missing. In addition, reports indicate that together, both hurricanes created a homeless population of three million people. In the Caribbean, it has been stated that there remains over $2 billion in economic damage alone. Without this supplemental funding, we know that the road to recovery for these countries will be a long and difficult one. We have chosen to assist by helping rebuild their infrastructure and by providing humanitarian assistance, and this bill is required if we are to fill those obligations.

Additionally, and somewhat related to the disastrous hurricane season in Latin America, this bill contains $80 million in funding for the Immigration and Naturalization Service to better help them cope with the influx of people seeking to escape the intolerable living conditions in their home countries. Hopefully, as these countries recover from this tragedy, we will see the exodus from Central America return to the levels prior to the onset of last year's hurricane season.

Furthermore, this bill provides domestic relief for some of our most needy citizens—our farmers. As a Member from Texas, I am acutely aware of the problems facing our agricultural industry. Our ranchers and farmers have been attempting to grapple with the implications of drought for half a decade, and they undoubtedly need our assistance if they are to persevere through this season. This bill contains some relief, by way of $1 billion in direct and guaranteed loans—that will help farmers keep afloat during this desperate time.

However, while each of these appropriations are necessary, the majority on the Appropriations Committee decided that, unlike other emergency appropriations measures, that this bill should contain offsets roughly equal to the expenditures. As a result, we now face budget cuts to last year's budget that were unanticipated when we passed the Omnibus Appropriations Act of 1999.

The largest and most unwelcome cut involves our international banks, which have been critical in the mitigation of the world financial crisis. This bill cuts funding to those banks by $648 million, in an environment where those banks are often the best option for borrowers seeking shelter from a hostile economic environment. If any of my colleagues have any qualms about how important this funding is, Secretary Daley has asked the President to veto this bill, should it pass, on the merits of this program alone. Although we are in a time of relative economic prosperity, we must remember that in our global economy, we cannot afford to gamble with the financial well being of our trading partners. By taking away these appropriations, we threaten to disturb all of the progress that our neighbors have made over the past few months—and we may destabilize industries that can do us great harm by continuing to dump their products into our markets.

Furthermore, this bill rescinds funding for other foreign operations spending packages that this Congress developed last year. Those packages include $25 million for the Export-Import Bank, that assists our citizens in penetrating new marketplaces abroad, and $25 million for the Global Environment Facility, which funds important and necessary environmental projects all over the world.

Most importantly, this bill also rescinds the funding for a program enacted by this Congress and the administration, which was aimed at stopping the proliferation of nuclear arms to rogue nations. Under the terms of the original appropriation, $150 million could be used to purchase materials, uranium and plutonium, that could be used in nuclear warheads by our enemies. This program was strongly supported by the President, and with good cause—it is well known that the current nuclear threat to the United States does not come from Russia, but rather from isolated renegade governments looking to become players in world politics. Just last week, we acknowledged that threat when we passed a resolution which stated that we should work towards developing a missile defense system—which, unlike this program, does not guarantee a reduction in nuclear arms.

Furthermore, the budget cuts also touch those in this country who are suffering the most—the unemployed and the poor. This bill rescinds $31 million worth of funds that are used by the Labor and Health Human Services Departments. A good portion of those funds, $21 million, go towards funding state unemployment funds, which are in great need in my district because of energy-crisis related layoffs which have reached unheard of limits.

For the aforementioned reasons, I urge all of my colleagues to vote against this bill, and vote for the Obey amendment.

Mr. HOBSON. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Fiscal Year 1999 Supplemental Appropriations bill that will, among other things, provide disaster relief to Central America. Just a few weeks ago, I led a bipartisan delegation to Central America to assess the damage inflicted by Hurricane Mitch. What I saw was astounding. I saw debris hanging on treetops that reached twenty to thirty feet high. Mud slides buried entire villages, sweeping away homes in one fell swoop. The devastation blocked roads, leaving families without the means to obtain food, water and other emergency materials.

Our troops and other relief organizations have been in the region since the storm hit late last year, and have done an outstanding job of providing help and assistance to the citizens there. This bill before us will supplement what they have done so far. The funds we provide will help repair the infrastructure that literally crumbled under the force of Hurricane Mitch, and maintain economic stability in the region, which will bolster ongoing efforts by the U.S. to assist the democratic reforms already taking place there.

The assistance in this bill will be provided in a fiscally responsible way. We have to be mindful of our obligation to American taxpayers. We have offset almost all of the funding in this bill with unobligated funds—that is, money that would not have been spent in this fiscal year. Our commitment to offset this money contrasts with the President's decision to forgo offsetting the spending in this bill. It's also important to note that the U.S. is one of 21 countries contributing to disaster relief efforts; so American taxpayers are not shouldering the financial burden entirely on their own.

Again Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support this bill. Having seen first hand the devastating force of the hurricane, I believe we should support the people of Central America in overcoming this terrible disaster.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to ask the House to do its part to fulfill the nation's promise to the remaining World War II internees of Japanese descent, who were wronged by our government and who are still awaiting redress. Today we have an opportunity to meet our obligation to them at no extra cost to the taxpayers.

I am speaking about Americans and Latin Americans of Japanese descent who were interned in remote U.S. camps, or evacuated or relocated from their homes, out of the fear that they were a danger to America after war was declared with Japan.

No evidence has ever materialized to show that these Japanese Americans or Japanese Latin Americans ever sympathized with the Axis or engaged in espionage. Their internment was a shocking denial of their constitutional and human rights. They never recovered their lost property. But even worse, they lost their trust in the U.S. government which had the duty to protect them.

Four decades after the war, the Civil Liberties Act of 1988 finally gave the United States a ten-year window to acknowledge the injustice done to more than 120,000 Americans and legal residents of Japanese ancestry. The Act provided the internees with a Presidential apology and a $20,000 payment, as restitution for the terrible losses that they suffered.

To date, the Office of Redress Administration has paid out $1.64 billion in redress payments to 82,077 former internees. Unfortunately, the redress fund was exhausted as of February 5. Many eligible internees will be denied their rightful payments authorized by Congress if the fund is not replenished.

The shortfall resulted from several factors:

In the closing years of this 10-year program, the courts expanded the class of persons eligible for redress, to include railroad workers and miners who were fired from their jobs and whose families were evicted from company housing.

Added to the eligible class were a group of Japanese American servicemen who were denied the right to visit their families or who lost property during the war.

A January federal court settlement, Mochizuki v. U.S., made eligible for redress those Latin Americans of Japanese descent who were deported—at the urging of the U.S.—from 13 Latin American countries and interned in U.S. camps. They were brought here out of unfounded fears of possible espionage, and for use in prisoner-of-war exchanges with the Axis. These internees settled for a much smaller redress payment of $5,000.

During the final two weeks of the redress program, more than 50 cases were reversed on appeal, accounting for unexpected payments of approximately $840,000.

Finally, nine abandoned Japanese American cases were revived, as claimants unexpectedly submitted documentation at the last minute, causing an additional $180,000 to be paid out.

The Office of Redress Administration, which runs the redress program, estimates that $4.3 million is needed to pay the remaining eligible cases. This includes:

$1,580,000 for up to 79 eligible Japanese American cases at $20,000 each.

$1,978,455 for 395 eligible Japanese Latin American cases at $5,000 each.

$665,000 for 133 Japanese Latin American cases expected to qualify, at $5,000 each.

Adding more money to the fund does not authorize further expansion of the class of eligible persons. Rather, it simply pays for claims that are already well-established.

The Senate Appropriations Committee included a provision in its FY99 Supplemental Appropriations measure, S. 544 to reprogram $4.3 million of Department of Justice FY99 funding to replenish the redress fund to cover these remaining claims. This amendment was included in their final bill passed yesterday.

I urge the House to accept the Senate's $4.3 million reprogramming proposal and seize this opportunity to pay our debt to the remaining internees. It will not cost the Treasury additional money, and no offsets are required.

Let us close this shameful chapter of our nation's history in an honorable way. Let us fulfill the mandate of the Civil Liberties Act of 1988 and agree to this reprogramming request. Let us fulfill our commitment to the remaining internees.

Ms. KILPATRICK. Mr. Chairman, as one of the newest Members of Congress who has been recently appointed to the august House Appropriations Committee, and one of the fewer than ten African Americans who have ever been appointed to this committee in the entire history of the United States, I take my duties very, very seriously. As such, I take the responsibility of guarding the purse of the American people very seriously. While we currently enjoy a soaring stock market and unforeseen surplus in our budget, common sense economics dictate that good times do not last forever. It is, therefore, couched against this background that I oppose the Emergency Supplemental Bill, H.R. 1411, that is before us today. Of course, I join my colleagues in support of assisting the people in those countries tragically hit by Hurricanes Mitch and George. As we enter increasingly globalized markets, taking measures to brace their economies is strategically wise. Assistance is also the humane response. This assistance must not come at the cost of delaying much needed aid to the farmers of our nation or by threatening our national security. Wise fiscal policy and a humanitarian response to those in need are not mutually exclusive.

First of all, H.R. 1411 hurts the farmers of our nation. The State of Michigan is the third largest exporter of agricultural products in the United States. Instead of moving rapidly to address the real needs and concerns of the farmers in the State of Michigan and our country, the Majority Leadership chose to delay for over three weeks millions in farm operating loans. These loans help farmers hurt by low world-wide commodity prices. This delay was unnecessary and is almost unforgivable. It does not take an economic genius to determine the effect that this isolationism will have on the commodity prices that these farmers, and other businesses, that are engaged in the world-wide marketplace. These rescissions will hurt commodity prices even more, and could further hurt the farmers and their families of Michigan and our nation. Secondly, this bill erodes our commitment to the global economy by rescinding several key guarantees to international lending institutions.

Furthermore, this bill potentially threatens the security of the United States by rescinding $150 million from the U.S. program that aids in the disarming of Russian nuclear weapons. This program buys and stores enriched uranium and plutonium from the production of various nuclear weapons. While this program is still in its nascent phases, this bill signals to Russia that we are not serious about solving the every burgeoning threat of nuclear weapons. Nor, it would seem, are we serious about eradicating this environmentally-dangerous material.

The regrettable aspect about this legislation is that it does many good things. The committee's report contains language that was of particular importance to me concerning the possible disproportionate impact that these natural disasters could wreak on women living in communities hit by the storm. Fully one-third of the households in Central America that lost homes are headed by women, and women are primarily responsible for taking care of the family health, finding emergency services for their families, and procuring adequate food and clean water. When attempting to return to normalcy, unfortunately, jobs that women traditionally tend to depend on have been hard-hit. For example, many of the agricultural jobs that women are at the end of the processing chain, such as packing fruits for export. These end-of-chain jobs will not be replaced for another 3–5 years; until new crops are ready for harvest. Frustratingly, women are most often barred from the kinds of short-term employment, such as construction, clean-up, and road building, that the disaster has created. Women must remain a focus as we provide disaster relief for these countries. I commend the emergency supplemental package's partial focus on microcredit programs, which are targeted primarily at women. And I urge those coordinating disaster relief programs to remain aware of the continued plight of women as they help to rebuild society, and to institute processes to ensure that women are able to participate in needs assessments. Programs must ensure that women workers are gaining equal access to employment and credit. Gender differences and women's specific needs must be taken into account in the emergency relief and development programs. The committee's report addresses this concern.

My second concern lies in the possible resulting long-term increase in debt that may be felt by these countries. I stand in strong support of the $16 million debt reduction provided for Honduras and Nicaragua. Neither country should be expected to use their scarce resources for debt payments while immediate humanitarian and reconstruction needs remain unmet. In addition to this $16 million in debt reduction, we are providing $25 million in debt relief to the Central American Emergency Trust Fund to help with scheduled debt payment to international financial institutions. I am concerned about the provision of temporary cash flow relief that is provided in such a way that there is an endgame increase in debt due to capitalization of interest. I believe we ought to do the most that we can to ease and reduce Honduras' and Nicaragua's debt burden and, to the best of our abilities, avoid increasing the amount of money Honduras and Nicaragua will owe in the end.

I am tired of playing games. I believe that the majority of my colleagues want to ensure that we deliver help when it is needed, and that Congress begin to address the real needs and concerns of our country. Although H.R. 1411 contains provisions that I fought for during House Appropriations Committee consideration, I cannot support legislation that hurts our farmers, erodes our commitment to the stability of world markets, or potentially threatens our national security. I urge my colleagues to vote against this bill in its current form.

Mr. PORTER. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of H.R. 1141, the Emergency Supplemental bill.

I am particularly pleased that the bill includes the full funding necessary to allow National Public Radio to continue its services to public radio listeners.

In the early 1990's, NPR negotiated a 10-year lease for satellite "transponders" to assure nationwide coverage for public radio. In May of 1998, the satellite unexpectedly failed halting programming to public radio listeners across the country. The satellite vendor provided a temporary back up though the fall of 1999.

In order to lease the necessary transponders on the replacement satellite, NPR must have the necessary funding to contract with the satellite vendor. This bill provides the full $48 million to allow NPR to complete the negotiations and assure the continuation of service. It provides $30,600,000 in fiscal year 1999 and $17,400,000 in fiscal year 2000. Let me assure members that the fiscal year 1999 funding is fully offset with rescissions of unneeded funds in other accounts and the fiscal year 2000 funding will be absorbed within our allocation.

Mr. Chairman, the bill also contains several technical amendments to the omnibus bill we passed last year that are of concern to the administration and which correct errors made in the hectic last days of our negotiations and preparation of the bill for consideration by this House.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to thank the Chairman of the Committee, the gentleman from Florida, Mr. YOUNG, for his assistance in including these provisions in the bill. I would also like to thank the ranking member of the Committee and of my Subcommittee, the gentleman from Wisconsin, Mr. OBEY, for his support and assistance in expediting the technical corrections and support for the funding of the NPR satellite.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the bill shall be considered for amendment under the 5-minute rule.

The amendment printed in House Report 106-76 may be offered only by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) or his designee, shall be considered read, shall not be subject to amendment, and shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question.

During consideration of the bill for amendment, the Chair may accord priority in recognition to a Member offering an amendment that he has printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. Those amendments will be considered read.

□ 1215

The Chairman of the Committee of the Whole may postpone a request for a recorded vote on any amendment and may reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the time for voting on any postponed question that immediately follows another vote, provided that the time for voting on the first question shall be a minimum of 15 minutes.

The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

That the following sums are appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, namely:

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to say to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, that there may be a lot of good arguments that he can make in opposition to our position on the plutonium issue, but he should not make the argument that he just made, and I would ask him not to make that argument again, because it is based on his perception that the administration does not really care very much about this amendment and this issue. That is as far away from the truth as it can possibly be.

Here is what the facts are with respect to that issue: The administration submitted its original budget in January. The omnibus appropriations bill did not pass until October. What happened between January and October is that it became clear that the Russians were not going to negotiate for the removal of plutonium from their country unless money was put on the table to help visibly finance those efforts.

So in the conference on the omnibus appropriation bill, Senator DOMENICI led the effort to insert the money, and he had the full, strong, four-square support of the administration. He had the support of the Energy Department. He had the support of the State Department. He had the support of the White House. He had the support of OMB. It should not be stated otherwise on this floor.

The fact is that the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) now very well knows that he has in his possession various letters from the administration, from the Secretary of Energy, from the Department of the Budget, which spell out in very clear terms that the administration believes it is of the highest priority that these funds not be rescinded.

The administration has made quite clear in letters to the gentleman and to me that, without that money on the table, our ability to move forward in negotiations with the Russians to remove the threat of 15,000 nuclear weapons that could be built from that loose plutonium, it has made quite clear that, if that rescission takes place, they put at risk our ability to get any results from those negotiations.

So use any argument my colleague wants, I would say to the gentleman from Florida, but do not suggest that this is not a serious matter. Do not suggest that the administration is not four-square for the preservation of this money, because that is at variance with the facts.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read. The Clerk read as follows:

TITLE I EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL
APPROPRIATIONS

CHAPTER 1

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
FARM SERVICE AGENCY
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses", $42,753,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. STENHOLM

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order.

The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STENHOLM:

Page 2, line 9 through line 12, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 3, line 8 through line 12, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 3, line 25 through line 2 of page 4, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 4, line 21 through line 25, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 5, line 9 through line 13, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 5, line 17 through line 21, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 5, line 24 through line 3 of page 2, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 6, line 6 through line 10, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 6, line 13 through line 17, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 6, line 20 through line 24, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 7, line 3 through line 7, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 7, line 19 through line 22, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 8, line 4 through line 8, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 9, line 24 through line 10 of page 10, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended. Provided further, That the entire amount shall be available only to the extent an official budget request for a specific dollar amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress.

Page 10, line 19 through line 23, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 11, line 14 through line 17, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

Page 12, line 8 through line 12, Strike "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to Section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended."

And on page 13, strike lines 3 through 10.

Mr. STENHOLM (during the reading). Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment may be considered as read and printed in the RECORD.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

POINT OF ORDER

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) wish to be heard on his point of order?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment. It violates the rules of the House as it in effect calls for the en bloc consideration of two different paragraphs in the bill.

The precedents of the House are clear in this matter. Amendments to a paragraph or section are not in order until such paragraph or section has been read. This is Cannons Precedents, volume 8, section 2354.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) desire to be heard on the point of order?

Mr. STENHOLM. Yes, Mr. Chairman, I do. I concede all of the points that the gentleman has raised. I will at the conclusion of being heard on the point of order ask unanimous consent that these rules be stricken today and that they be waived in order that we might expeditiously handle this bill before us today, because I believe it would be a lot more expeditious to deal with a one-time vote on the differences that some of us have regarding how we shall pay for these emergency declarations. I am just trying to be expedient and try to speed up the work of the House today.

But if the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) insists on his point of order, or there will be an objection, then we must do it according to the rules, which I certainly intend to pay strict attention to all the rules of the House.

But we are just saying that already in the debate we are hearing what the differences are, and my objection to the bill is how it is being paid for. That is what we want to strike.

Basically what we are saying is we would rather have an across-the-board sequestration cut than to have two or three of these more egregious cuts. If by unanimous consent we can have a one-time or have my amendment carried, we could have a good debate on this issue and settle it and not take up as much time of the House.

So I ask unanimous consent of the gentleman might consider waiving the rules of the House in order that we might expeditiously consider the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will not entertain unanimous consent requests at this point.

Does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) insist on his point of order?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I do insist on my point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) makes a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) amends portions of the bill not yet read for amendment. For the reasons stated by the gentleman from Florida, which are recorded in chapter 27, section 9.1, of Procedure in the House of Representatives, the point of order is sustained.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I then would ask unanimous consent that these rules that have been objected to, that I have readily conceded, might be in order; that we might expeditiously proceed.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to present consideration of the amendment just ruled out on a point of order?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I must reluctantly object to the unanimous consent request, and we will go by the regular order.

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is heard.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. STENHOLM

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. STENHOLM:
On page 2, strike lines 9 through 12.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, this amendment, then, begins the process of talking about the difficulties that some of us are having. In this case, interestingly enough, it is the Department of Agriculture and it is the agricultural funds that are in question, the amount for salaries and expenses for the necessary employees to deliver the Emergency Disaster Program that we passed last fall and is now still awaiting execution.

Obviously I reluctantly offer this amendment, but by the same token, the argument that I made before in general debate and I will make again now, I believe that the emergency should be stricken. I happen to agree with the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) when he says we should pay for these emergency spending. My difference is I disagree with the manner in which the majority has chosen to pay for it. Two or three of those I think will do irreparable harm to this country's best interest.

But specifically speaking to agriculture, I think, for any reason, for the United States to call into question capital available for countries of the world that are struggling and that different financial institutions might consider to be creditworthy, and that if they are considered creditworthy, they might then be able to borrow money in order to buy that which we have produced in the United States.

As Chairman Greenspan pointed out in an eloquent speech last week, our problems with agriculture have been because our markets have dried up. He pointed out, and others are pointing out, that we are playing with fire when we begin to take what appears to be an innocuous, harmless something that we can attack as being foreign aid and that there is no repercussions, that there is no price to be paid.

I happen to believe very strongly that we are playing with fire. If the majority succeeds in these offsets today, it will do far more damage to American agriculture and farmers than whether or not there is a delay on providing the credit, because it will be a short delay. We have already passed unanimously in this House a couple weeks ago the Combest-Stenholm amendment in which we recognized that.

But here again, my argument would be, and what I ask unanimous consent for, is to just agree that the President asked that all of these be considered emergency. Do not blame the President for the impasse we have today. He has already declared it.

The majority has said we do not believe we ought to breach the spending by declaring it emergency, a perfectly logical decision to be made. I happen to agree.

The difference we have is how should we pay for it? I believe in an across-the-board cut in every account would be a much more logical and helpful way for us to progress. Even there, there are some offsets that I am sure that the committee can, in fact they have come up with some that makes sense, and, therefore, they can in the conference make those adjustments with the Senate and hold it down as much as we can as far as the across-the-board cuts.

That is all that I am saying today. That is my point of my amendment today. I will be offering this amendment. I would rather have done it en bloc, but I understand the rules, and I understand the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG), and I appreciate his handling of this.

But I would seriously say to my colleagues, please consider what we are saying and do not look at this as something that we can take frivolously of which there are no prices to be paid. This Member's humble judgment is that there is a potential very high price to be paid and that there is a better way for paying for this today. That is my argument, and I would ask support for my amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

Mr. Chairman, as I read this, what he is striking is from line 9 to 12, striking "Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement", and it goes on to give the citations of the referenced Budget Act.

I am not exactly sure what the gentleman is trying to accomplish here, except I believe what he wants to do is to eliminate the offsets that we have suggested from the Committee on Appropriations and replace them with an across-the-board cut.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I am happy to yield to the gentleman.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me. The gentleman has explained the intent of what I would like to accomplish today as perfectly and honestly as I could have done it.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman very much for that. His credentials in attempting to be very careful and responsible with the taxpayers' money is certainly well known throughout the Congress.

But I would have to say, and the reason that I oppose the gentleman's amendment is that the committee was very careful in working with all of the subcommittees to find these offsets of unobligated funds that would not be spent in fiscal year 1999; and if they were spent in 1999, they might find their way into some wasteful spending program in the following year. So the money was not going to be spent this year. The committee and the Congress should make these decisions.

But across-the-board cuts are, frankly, the easy way out. Any time we have a problem with paying for a supplemental or reducing spending, putting an across-the-board amendment up is the easy way to go, but that takes the Congress out of the procedure.

When we are doing an across-the-board cut, then the administration and the agencies, they will decide where to make those cuts. Frankly, I do not want to give up the responsibility that the American people have given the Congress in our Constitution, to be responsible for the appropriated funds and the appropriation of those funds.

So, on that basis, I really have to object to the gentleman's amendment and suggest that we stay with the offsets that have been identified, that have been studied, that have been thoroughly scrubbed and are responsible offsets rather than relying on an across-the-board cut.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I just have to say that I am very confused by the position taken by the majority party on the Stenholm amendment.

□ 1230

This is the first time in at least a few days that I have seen the same train trying to run in both directions on the same track simultaneously. And yet that is what the gentleman is arguing.

One minute they are arguing their offsets do not do anything because the money is not going to be spent next year; the next minute they are arguing that their offsets are meaningful. Now, I do not know which argument is correct. I can debate somebody who is taking only one position at a time; I do not know how to debate somebody who takes two positions at the same time. That gets a little difficult.

So it just seems to me that while I do not believe the Stenholm amendment is necessary because I believe that these items, getting assistance to our farmers, given the collapse in their prices, is an emergency; it may not be to a comfortable Member of Congress, I think it is very much an emergency to those farmers; and I certainly believe that what happened with the hurricane was an emergency.

So I do not believe the Stenholm amendment is necessary, but if this bill is going to do what it pretends to do, then the Stenholm amendment is consistent whereas the base bill itself is not, and I think Members need to understand that.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I thank my friend from Wisconsin. He is known for a number of things here, his insight and his parliamentary sharpness, but he is not always known for his sense of etiquette. That is his problem here. He has been eavesdropping.

The people on the other side have been making two arguments; one is for the conservative Republicans, in which they talk about how they have offset this bill; then there is another argument they make for everybody else in which they point out that the offsets will have no impact, either fiscally or any other way.

The problem is the gentleman from Wisconsin has, inappropriately perhaps, eavesdropped on the arguments that were not meant for his ears. Those were meant for the CATs, and it is not surprising that the gentleman's hearing did not quite understand it.

So when the other side is arguing that these offsets are really very important offsets, they are talking to conservative Republicans. Naturally, my friend from Wisconsin would not understand that. But when they talk then about how the offsets really do not mean anything, that they do not really save any money or really prevent any spending that would have occurred anyway, then they are talking to the other side.

So that, I think, might help the gentleman with his dilemma.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, it reminds me of an umpire who calls the runner both safe and out at the same time. He is trying to satisfy both sides, but it leaves the audience very confused.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, perhaps this is a new civility. When there is a sharp division, we try to please both sides equally, and the fact it does not make any logical sense is simply a quibble.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in support of the emergency aid and in opposition to these offsets.

Mr. Speaker, an emergency is an emergency. Hurricane Mitch hit a half a year ago in Central America and we are here today arguing emergency relief because of the offsets. We still have in Central America 2.4 million, almost 2.5 million people that are displaced or homeless. That is bigger than the population of a lot of States that are represented here on the floor. Why are we being so cruel in this process of saying, in order to help people that are disabled and homeless, in an area where we need to get the infrastructure and the economy going, that we have to penalize our domestic programs?

The epicenter for the 1989 earthquake in California, the Loma Prieta earthquake, was in my district. Do my colleagues know that we received aid from Japan, aid from Mexico, aid from European countries? They came to California, probably the richest State in the United States, because we were in a disaster and they knew we needed help.

We have 23 other nations that have responded to Central America. Some of these have debt with those nations, bilateral debt, far greater than what we have. And yet Brazil is able to give $179 million in debt forgiveness; France, $127 million; Sweden, small Sweden, $45 million; and the United States, the richest country of all, debt forgiveness is $41 million.

My colleagues have constituents who wrote checks to the International Red Cross; millions of dollars were received by the Salvation Army for relief in Latin America, and these donors did not talk about offsets. The men and women from our districts who are now in Central America working with the nongovernmental organizations, who have taken time off, are not asking for offsets. The 23,000 American troops and National Guardsmen who are building roads and bridges, who are building medical clinics, who are building schools, who are working at a 2-and-3-week period of time, are not asking for offsets.

It is really a sad day that we are here debating an emergency bill because of offsets, and it leads us to wonder whether the only time we are ever going to be able to respond to an emergency without offsets is if we declare war. I oppose the offsets.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the requisite number of words, and I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I yield to the gentleman from Florida, the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me. My friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), and I have sometimes misunderstood each other, and I want to make sure that he does not misunderstand what I am saying about the offsets.

Yes, these offsets are real, but they are offsets from funds that were not going to be obligated in fiscal year 1999 anyway. So they are real, and the fact that they were not going to be obligated says that we are not really damaging those programs.

But now when the gentleman from Wisconsin talks about how we are supporting two different versions of something at the same time, I have been sitting here wondering what he means. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) is strongly against offsetting the emergency funding in this bill, but at the same time he is supporting the amendment by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) that eliminates the declaration of emergency as he proceeds to get an across-the-board cut. That is where I am a little confused with his position.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Did the gentleman hear me say I was supporting the Stenholm amendment? I never said that.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I am glad to hear that.

Mr. OBEY. I do not think that the Stenholm amendment is necessary, but I believe it is preferable to the base bill. There is a distinction.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Kansas will continue to yield, I am glad to hear the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) joins us in opposition to the Stenholm amendment.

I would also like to say to my friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR), and incidentally the gentleman from California was part of the delegation who went to Central America at my request a week and a half ago, and came back with a very glowing report. And I can understand why he would want to appropriate these monies without offsetting, and I think that that sentiment would run through this House.

This is a true emergency. But the problem is the leaders of the party of the gentleman from California in the House and in the Senate, the leaders of my party in the House and in the Senate, and the leader of the free world at the White House, the President of the United States, have all said we are going to live within the 1997 budget caps. And I say to my colleagues that unless we get serious about making offsets on some of these programs, we are not going to satisfy the President nor our own leaders in the House or the Senate, because we just cannot get to the 1997 budget caps unless we are willing to make some tough choices in offsetting some of the spending.

I appreciate my friend from Kansas yielding to me, and I appreciate the work that he does as a member of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Florida, and I want to confirm that I stand with him in opposition to this amendment.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Speaker, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Speaker, I am a little bit curious now, having heard the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations saying that these in fact are real offsets but, as I understand it, they will not affect spending in this fiscal year. Now, they are offsetting, as I understand it, spending that will be in this fiscal year.

So I would like members of the committee to explain to me where, at what point will they be offsetting spending? What spending will these offsets avoid? When would that spending have occurred, and what will be the consequences of these offsets? Because I would like to get a focus.

So they apparently will not have an effect in this fiscal year but we will be offsetting next year. Would someone from the Committee on Appropriations, I will be glad to yield, explain to me exactly what is being offset? If not this year, when will it be offset and what will be offset?

Well, I guess I will go unsatisfied in my quest for specifics.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin, the ranking minority member of the committee.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, if the majority party will not respond to the gentleman's question, let me give the gentleman my understanding of what the situation is.

The majority party pretends that by cutting $648 million in callable capital they are reducing the deficit. But as the gentleman knows, the deficit is measured only by what we actually outlay in any given year. And the fact is that the estimate of the outlay savings for that item, according to CBO, is zero dollars saved.

Secondly, with respect to the Export-Import item, they pretend because they are cutting $25 million in budget authority that they are saving a corresponding amount. In fact, CBO says they will save at most $3 million from that item.

With respect to PL-480, they claim that $30 million will be saved because of budget authority cuts, but in fact that translates only into a deficit reduction of $16 million.

Then we get to the nuclear weapons item. Our friends on the majority side say, do not worry, this money is not going to be spent this year anyway, so we will not hurt these nuclear agreements. But the Congressional Budget Office says that there they are going to take an $80 million outlay cut in those proposals this year.

So it seems to me that not only are their arguments inconsistent, they are inaccurate. And if they are right or wrong, the result in real world terms is most destructive in terms of the confusion that will be caused in the international markets and the setback that will be provided to our efforts to rid the world of plutonium which can make 15,000 nuclear weapons.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, and I will yield to the gentleman from Kansas in a second, but I just want to say, and I appreciate this, it does seem to me we have seen an unusual logical feat here.

The majority has presented two very inconsistent arguments, both of which are wrong. It is hard to do that. It is hard to be on opposite sides of the question and get it wrong from both directions.

Because it sounds to me like for much of what the chairman was describing these are offsets which will in fact save no money this year, but will cause us some harm and some damage in the understanding in the international community about what is available to the World Bank and the other banks. So we will accomplish nothing concretely but cause some difficulty in the process of accomplishing nothing.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to say to the gentleman from Massachusetts, I do have a copy of the bill and it does outline what the offsets are. If the gentleman is curious about which ones are there, I do not think that is a problem.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Reclaiming my time, I have to respond to that point, and then I will yield further.

I understood that, but I understood the chairman to say with regard to a couple of the offsets that they would not stop us from spending any money that we were going to be spending in this fiscal year, and I guess that is a wonderful kind of offset. Let us have offsets that we can claim as offsets but do not reduce any spending.

Maybe the gentleman from Florida could suggest a diet for me, because I would love to find the caloric equivalent of those fiscal offsets.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, what the chairman is referring to is unobligated funds, money that will not be spent and that we will keep from spending by rescission.

But I want to address callable capital. That is a fund, money sitting in an account, $12 billion sitting there, and this money will then go to a higher priority to help the people in Central America. And if it is not a real outlay, then why did the Secretary of the Treasury come to Capitol Hill and express his concerns about this outlay?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I will yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin in a minute, but I want to say two things.

First of all, it is not a real outlay in this fiscal year. It is not a real dispute. No one says it is going to be a real outlay. The chairman said we are not planning to spend it; we are going to set it aside.

I believe what the Secretary of the Treasury was citing was the uncertainty and confusion it will cause in the international community and the financial community if we rescind our obligation to make that available when it is going to be needed.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) has expired.

(On request of Mr. OBEY, and by unanimous consent, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, let me simply say that what the Treasury Secretary is saying, and I would respectfully suggest that he probably knows more about international finance than all of the Members of this House put together on both sides of the aisle; the Secretary of the Treasury is telling us is that this money, indeed, will not be spent.

Callable capital is never meant to be spent. It has never been spent in the history of the international financial institutions.

□ 1245

It is there simply to send the message that the full faith and credit of the United States stands behind those financial institutions so that they can provide the credit necessary to keep our export markets going.

And when we, for the first time in our country's history, withdraw previously appropriated callable capital, we bring into question our commitment to those processes. That in turn creates the likelihood that interest rates are going to be raised in those markets, and that means that we wind up shrinking our own export markets. Why that is smart is beyond me.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I do want to note, and I am interested, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) has learned a lesson from the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) about the cancelability of callable capital but he has apparently learned it too well.

And at some point I guess the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) is going to explain the difference between $640 million of callable capital which does not mean anything and $800 million which does.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT).

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I want to say we are not rescinding the full faith and credit of the United States with our diminishing that fund that is out there somewhere. The full faith and credit of the United States remains intact. It is not diminished by this bill.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for that. In other words, we are just as obligated to spend the money without this so-called offset. So now the offset is getting to the diminishing side.

The gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) has just said, as he understands it, whatever our obligation is under our full faith and credit is the same, so the offset has suddenly disappeared.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from Texas is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I just want to try to clarify again why I am offering the amendment. And precisely why I am offering this amendment is the possibility that the capital that is being rescinded might be needed in order to maintain agricultural markets.

It is precisely that reason, that just in case we find this year that that capital will be needed, I want it to be available. And I think it makes much more sense for this body to have that capital available in case agriculture or any other producers of anything in the United States might benefit by whoever might use that capital that it might be available.

And we are kind of into the never-never land here, because if this really was emergency spending, this debate would not even be taking place here today. I happen to believe it is emergency. But I happen to believe at this stage in the budget debate that we need to pay for all expenditures, even emergency spending, and that is why I am here striking "emergency".

The President asked this be emergency and not be offset. Some folks on both sides of the aisle believe it ought to be offset. I believe that unless we strike the particular offsets and do an across-the-board cut, we are playing with fire that will far more damage agriculture this year than any of the problems associated with the amendment that I offer in striking the funds for salaries, etcetera, at this time. That is the record.

And I could not agree more with the chairman a moment ago in his explanation of what he is doing and why, because he and I agree on this. But this does not take Congress off the hook. My amendment puts Congress on the hook, because my colleague and I both know that if we have across-the-board cuts, some things are going to be very meaningful. Some areas of the budget will have much more meaningful cuts than others because some are tighter than others.

So I do not say I am trying to take anybody off the hook. I am saying I am willing to put us on the hook, and I think across-the-board cuts are much more doable. I do not want to use the word "honest." I just believe that they put Congress in a more responsible way of saying, yes, we want to pay for, we want to live within the caps and we mean it.

And I thanked the chairman a moment ago for agreeing that that is his interpretation of what I am trying to do. We have a difference on this. But to those who argue that this capital unexpended is not going to have any effect on Kansas wheat farmers this summer, be careful, be careful when they make that argument in case they win.

Because if the economy of the world should turn around and go even worse, Mr. Greenspan, in what he has warned us, and let me just quote: "The disappointing export developments and pressures on farm prices over the past few quarters can be traced to an important degree to the recession that began in Asia more than a year and a half ago and has since spread to other regions of the world. Falling shipments to Asian countries accounted for more than 80 percent in the drop of value of farm exports over the past 2 years."

Let us be careful what we do today. There are real prices to be paid if we are in error. I believe an across-the-board cut would be much sounder for national policy and agriculture policy than what is being suggested by the majority bill.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PACKARD. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I want to say to my friend from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) I know the sincerity of what he is doing, and what he and I are trying to do is not that different. The only real difference is the source of the offsets.

Let me explain again. Because when the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) was speaking, he confused what I was trying to do. But let me reiterate what it is that the committee bill is trying to do here.

The offsets that we recommend in this bill are monies that have been appropriated, and most of the money for those programs will be spent in fiscal year 1999. But portions of that appropriated money, money that has already been appropriated, will not be obligated in fiscal year 1999. And because this is "no-year money", if you allow me to use that phrase that appropriators use and budgeters use, "no-year money," those funds will eventually end up being spent somewhere. So we are just going to take advantage of those unobligated funds and use them now to meet this emergency.

Then I would like to say to my friend from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) that should a real emergency arrive in agricultural areas of our country, I can assure him, as chairman of this committee, that we will respond quickly to any request from Members or from the administration that would deal with any emergency in agriculture or any other emergency, for that matter, in the United States.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I rise to oppose the amendment.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, let me bring out one point, too. As has been said by a lot of speakers here, the money proposed for rescission has been appropriated. We are not renegeing on the obligation that we still have for these banks.

We are the only country of all the participating countries that are participating in these banks that has appropriated the money. None of the other countries have appropriated it. And yet the actuaries or bond rating agencies are saying, "We are concerned because the United States is withdrawing an appropriated amount of money."

We are not diminishing the obligation. We only represent 16 percent of all of the callable capital of the Asian Development Bank, which means that if they have to call up $1,000 in new callable capital, then other nations have to put up $840 of that and we must put up $160. So the other countries have not put that money in a reserve account.

So why is this a detriment to the international banking community, if we are the only country who has done this and it was done many, many years ago, and it has never been called?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CALLAHAN. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), if in fact this bill does fully offset the new expenditures in the bill, then why does the bill need an emergency designation? Is it not true that it would have no emergency designation if in fact these items were fully offset?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CALLAHAN. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I think I explained this once before but I would be happy to do it again.

The emergency designation was established by our own Budget Impoundment and Control Act, or whatever it is referred to as these days, and it does provide for an emergency designation, that if the Congress determines there is an emergency and if the President signs off and agrees that it is an emergency, then the monies appropriated do not have to be offset.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield further, but he claims they are fully offsetting them, so then they do not need the emergency designation.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield to me, I was in the middle of my explanation so only half of it is finished.

The other part is that I have no objection to saying that this is an emergency. We are responding to an emergency. So having the emergency designation in the bill, as requested by the President of the United States, does not give me any heartburn at all.

I think we should say that we are responding to an emergency. We just go a step further, and we say that we should offset and pay for this emergency. That is the difference. If the emergency designation is there or is not there, I do not think it is going to have any effect on this bill, at least as it is before the House today.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield further, the fact is that the reason they need the emergency designation is that they do not fully offset this. In fact, this bill will add $445 million to the debt and to the deficit because they do not fully offset it.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, we do not fully offset it, and we will discuss where we do not fully offset it in a further debate.

The gentleman is absolutely correct, we do not offset the amount of money that we appropriate in this bill for the Army and the military services who immediately responded to that emergency in Central America, the same ones is pulled the kids out of the mud, who pulled the people out of the flooded rivers, who brought potable water to the area so that people could have water to drink that was sanitary.

That is correct, we are not suggesting that we offset that because that is a true emergency, and we will debate that later. But we do not need to offset defense appropriations any more. We have already done damage to our military over the years by reduced budgets and by making us offset deployments of American troops that are sent all over the world. I am going to strenuously object to offsetting any more funds that the Defense Department is required to spend because they are sent on a mission, no matter where it might be, whether or not it deals directly with the security of our Nation.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would yield further, I would simply say that response is incorrect. The offsets for the military only are $195 million. The add-on to the deficit under their bill is $455 million. So they still have not fully offset this bill and they ought to quit pretending that they have.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CALLAHAN. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, I am puzzled.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. CALLAHAN was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, I hear the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN) say, the way this bill is worded, this cancellation of the callable capital will not prevent any money from being spent that would otherwise have been spent this year, that is, it does not cancel any proposed spending for the year and it does not reduce our obligation.

The gentleman is the chairman of the committee. He says the full faith and credit is still there. So if it does not stop any spending that was going to happen this year and it does not prevent any spending in the future, how did it become an offset? What is it offsetting?

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, it is offset because we have already appropriated the money and it is sitting there in the account. So we are taking it out of the appropriation account and putting it back into the general fund.

Let me make a brief comment in my final minute here on something that the gentleman said earlier on the floor. Did I hear the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK) say that some Members of Congress have the audacity to be speaking out of both sides of their mouths?

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would continue to yield, what struck me was not that they were speaking out of both sides of their mouth but that they were equally inaccurate. Usually people get it right one out of two.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I cannot help but marvel at the fact that the gentleman from Massachusetts is accusing any Member of this body, Republican or Independent or Democrat, of speaking out of both sides of their mouth. This may be an historic occasion for this Congress.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. CALLAHAN. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

The gentleman spoke very factually a moment ago. But precisely because America is one of the few if not the only country in the world that has been backing these institutions is why I offer the amendment today.

□ 1300

Because I worry that if we, this body, should call into question the reliability of whether we will be there, I worry about the effect of that. That is precisely why I offer the amendment.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, we will be there. We are also leaving a sufficient amount of money in reserve in the event of any emergency.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 77, noes 345, answered "present" 2, not voting 9, as follows:

[Roll No. 67]

AYES—77

Baird	Gutknecht	Peterson (MN)
Baldwin	Hall (TX)	Pickett
Barrett (WI)	Hinchey	Pomeroy
Bartlett	Jackson (IL)	Roemer
Bereuter	Jefferson	Rush
Blagojevich	Kaptur	Sanchez
Blumenauer	Kennedy	Sawyer
Boucher	Kind (WI)	Schaffer
Boyd	Kucinich	Shows
Brown (OH)	LaFalce	Sisisky
Capps	Lampson	Smith (MI)
Capuano	Lewis (GA)	Smith (WA)
Clayton	Lofgren	Stabenow
Condit	Lucas (KY)	Stenholm
Cramer	Luther	Tanner
Crowley	McCarthy (MO)	Tauscher
Danner	McGovern	Taylor (MS)
Davis (IL)	McIntyre	Thompson (CA)
Delahunt	Meehan	Thurman
Doggett	Minge	Udall (CO)
Dooley	Moakley	Udall (NM)
Emerson	Nadler	Vento
Eshoo	Neal	Watt (NC)
Ford	Oberstar	Wu
Gonzalez	Obey	Wynn
Goode	Pelosi

NOES—345

Abercrombie	Bonilla	Collins
Ackerman	Bonior	Combest
Aderholt	Bono	Conyers
Allen	Borski	Cook
Andrews	Boswell	Cooksey
Archer	Brady (PA)	Costello
Armey	Brady (TX)	Cox
Bachus	Brown (FL)	Coyne
Baker	Bryant	Crane
Baldacci	Burr	Cubin
Ballenger	Burton	Cummings
Barcia	Buyer	Cunningham
Barr	Callahan	Davis (FL)
Barton	Calvert	Davis (VA)
Bass	Camp	Deal
Bateman	Campbell	DeFazio
Becerra	Canady	DeGette
Bentsen	Cannon	DeLauro
Berkley	Cardin	DeLay
Berman	Carson	DeMint
Berry	Castle	Deusch
Biggert	Chabot	Diaz-Balart
Bilbray	Chambliss	Dickey
Bilirakis	Chenoweth	Dicks
Bishop	Clay	Dingell
Bliley	Clement	Dixon
Blunt	Clyburn	Doolittle
Boehlert	Coble	Doyle
Boehner	Coburn	Dreier

Duncan	Klink	Reyes
Dunn	Knollenberg	Reynolds
Edwards	Kolbe	Riley
Ehlers	Kuykendall	Rivers
Ehrlich	LaHood	Rodriguez
Engel	Lantos	Rogan
English	Largent	Rogers
Etheridge	Larson	Rohrabacher
Evans	Latham	Ros-Lehtinen
Everett	LaTourette	Rothman
Ewing	Lazio	Roukema
Farr	Leach	Roybal-Allard
Fattah	Lee	Royce
Filner	Levin	Ryan (WI)
Foley	Lewis (CA)	Ryun (KS)
Forbes	Lewis (KY)	Salmon
Fossella	Linder	Sanders
Fowler	Lipinski	Sandlin
Franks (NJ)	LoBiondo	Sanford
Frelinghuysen	Lucas (OK)	Saxton
Frost	Maloney (CT)	Scarborough
Galleghy	Maloney (NY)	Schakowsky
Ganske	Manzullo	Scott
Gejdenson	Markey	Sensenbrenner
Gekas	Martinez	Serrano
Gephardt	Mascara	Sessions
Gibbons	Matsui	Shadegg
Gilchrest	McCarthy (NY)	Shaw
Gillmor	McCollum	Shays
Gilman	McCrery	Sherman
Goodlatte	McDermott	Sherwood
Goodling	McHugh	Shinkus
Gordon	McInnis	Shuster
Goss	McIntosh	Simpson
Graham	McKeon	Skeen
Granger	McKinney	Skelton
Green (TX)	McNulty	Smith (NJ)
Green (WI)	Meek (FL)	Smith (TX)
Greenwood	Meeks (NY)	Snyder
Gutierrez	Menendez	Souder
Hall (OH)	Metcalf	Spence
Hansen	Mica	Spratt
Hastings (FL)	Millender-	Stark
Hastings (WA)	McDonald	Stearns
Hayes	Miller (FL)	Strickland
Hayworth	Miller, Gary	Stump
Hefley	Miller, George	Sununu
Heger	Mink	Sweeney
Hill (IN)	Mollohan	Talent
Hill (MT)	Moore	Tancredo
Hilleary	Moran (KS)	Tauzin
Hilliard	Moran (VA)	Taylor (NC)
Hinojosa	Morella	Terry
Hobson	Murtha	Thomas
Hoefel	Napolitano	Thompson (MS)
Hoekstra	Nethercutt	Thornberry
Holden	Ney	Thune
Holt	Northup	Tiahrt
Hooley	Norwood	Tierney
Horn	Nussle	Toomey
Hostettler	Olver	Towns
Houghton	Ortiz	Trafficant
Hoyer	Ose	Turner
Hulshof	Owens	Upton
Hunter	Oxley	Velazquez
Hutchinson	Packard	Visclosky
Hyde	Pallone	Walden
Inslee	Pascarell	Walsh
Isakson	Pastor	Wamp
Istook	Paul	Waters
Jackson-Lee	Payne	Watkins
(TX)	Pease	Watts (OK)
Jenkins	Petri	Waxman
John	Phelps	Weiner
Johnson (CT)	Pickering	Weldon (FL)
Johnson, E.B.	Pitts	Weller
Johnson, Sam	Pombo	Wexler
Jones (NC)	Porter	Weygand
Jones (OH)	Portman	Whitfield
Kanjorski	Price (NC)	Wicker
Kasich	Pryce (OH)	Wilson
Kelly	Quinn	Wise
Kildee	Radanovich	Wolf
Kilpatrick	Rahall	Woolsey
King (NY)	Ramstad	Young (AK)
Kingston	Rangel	Young (FL)
Klecicka	Regula

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—2

Frank (MA) Sabo

NOT VOTING—9

Barrett (NE)	Lowey	Slaughter
Brown (CA)	Myrick	Stupak
Fletcher	Peterson (PA)	Weldon (PA)

□ 1318

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. ACKERMAN, Mr. COBURN,

Mrs. McCARTHY of New York and Mr. OLVER changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mrs. EMERSON and Messrs. KIND, SMITH of Michigan, WATT of North Carolina, JEFFERSON and POMEROY changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Stated against:

Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland. Mr. Chairman, on rollcall vote No. 67, the amendment from the gentleman from Texas, Mr. STENHOLM, I inadvertently voted "aye." I would like the RECORD to reflect I intended to vote "no."

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. OBEY

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment made in order under the rule.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment made in order by House Resolution 125 offered by Mr. OBEY:

Page 13, strike lines 3 through 10 (relating to Department of Agriculture, Public Law 480 Program and Grant Accounts.)

Page 13, strike lines 11 through 18 (relating to Department of Energy, Atomic Energy Defense Activities, Other Defense Activities).

Page 15, strike lines 16 through 25 (relating to International Financial Institutions, Reduction in Callable Capital Appropriations).

Page 18, strike lines 9 through 13 (relating to Export-Import Bank of the United States).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is very complicated, as the vote on the previous amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) indicated, so I apologize for the fact that I will have to ask for an extension of time to complete my remarks in explaining it.

Mr. Chairman, sometime in the near future, as we all know, we are likely to be in a state of high confrontation a quarter of the world away, in Kosovo and in Serbia. Of all the times, this is the least desirable moment for the United States credibility to be questioned. Yet the action that this Congress is taking today on this bill will bring into question our commitment to the international financial institutions that we built at the end of World War II in order to try to stabilize the world's economy. It will also bring into question our commitment to work out in negotiations with the Russians to see to it that 50 tons of weapons-grade plutonium is converted to a more safe use in nuclear power plants. So I am offering this amendment to remove the foremost egregious offsets that the majority party has inserted in this bill.

Very simply, Mr. Chairman, my amendment eliminates the cut of $25 million in the Export-Import Bank funding because I believe that we should not be disarming ourselves in protecting American jobs and in protecting our markets abroad. That is what we do when we reduce the amount of money in the Export-Import Bank war chest, which is there for the purpose of sending a signal to the world that if other countries artificially subsidize exports by their corporations into world markets, we will use that money to do the same, so that we do not lose jobs in the process.

The second thing this amendment will do is to say that we will not at a time when our farmers have seen huge drops in their market prices, we will not choose this time to cut back on Public Law 480 funds. This is the device we use to try to facilitate the export of American farm products abroad. The amendment does two other things. It says that we will not add to the uncertainty of international financial markets, by for the first time in our history rescinding previously-appropriated callable capital funds.

The Secretary of the Treasury has already indicated if this provision remains in the bill, this bill will be vetoed, and it should be vetoed. We cannot afford to add uncertainty to international financial markets.

Fourth, what this amendment would do is to eliminate the $150 million rescission which will in the words of our own Department of Energy and in the words of our arms negotiators make it much less likely for us to be able to resume negotiations with the Russians on the conversion of that plutonium which is now within the borders of Russia, to convert that plutonium to a use other than for the purpose of building 15 to 25,000 more nuclear weapons.

□ 1330

I think it is imperative that this Congress support this action this afternoon.

What I think is really happening here is this: We know that the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) tried to bring a bill to the floor which would have been a bipartisan bill, but he was then given different orders by his House leadership.

He is being a good soldier, but we know that if the Committee on Appropriations had been left to its own devices, we would have a far different bill before us here this afternoon.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. OBEY was allowed to proceed for 4 additional minutes.)

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, what we really have here is this: The House could have produced a bill which would have epitomized cooperation between the executive and legislative branches on an item that the President felt was an emergency. Instead, because of the instructions given to my good friend, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the Congress is instead choosing to follow the path once again of confrontation with the President. It is setting up a bill which is going to be vetoed, which will get no help to anybody.

Secondly, let me make this observation: We have had various Republican voices say that this administration's foreign policy is faulty. I will be the first to admit it is far from perfect, but I would suggest that this action comes after a series of other actions taken by the majority party which calls into legitimate question its understanding of the world or its willingness to recognize our responsibility to lead.

This is the same party that has refused to pay our bills at the United Nations, which brings into question our leadership capacity in that institution. It is the same party which for over a year held up action on the International Monetary Fund request by the President. That action again added uncertainty, especially in the Asian markets, and made it more difficult for us to sell our products in those markets.

It is the same party that has really at various times come at the Bosnia and Kosovo questions from both sides. Now it is the same party which is saying that we ought to bring into question our commitment to support the international financial institutions, and their role, after all, is to help stabilize international markets primarily for our benefit. We started those institutions so we would not have to carry the full load.

Lastly, the majority party is also attempting to put roadblocks in the way of the administration's ability to negotiate that crucial plutonium agreement. It just seems to me that on that issue alone, this amendment ought to be passed. If this amendment is not passed, the bill before us should be voted down.

There is no rational reason to take $150 million off the table at a time when we put that there in order to make certain that the Russians would come back to the negotiating table.

I understand that the staff of the subcommittee is unhappy because they were not involved in the original decision to include this money in the Omnibus bill, but I think that staff pique over that issue is not sufficient reason to put our national interest at question when it comes to dealing with this plutonium question.

I would urge, in the name of responsibility, that the House vote for this amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I think we actually could have gone ahead with a vote because we really have debated these issues all morning long. I am going to speak to just one of the issues and then other Members of the Committee on Appropriations will address several of the others.

The concern that the gentleman has expressed about the PL-480 program, this bill includes a $30 million rescission this program and as I have repeatedly said throughout this debate this should not cause any problem on that side of the aisle, certainly not at the White House. In fact, there have been very substantial carryovers in this account for the last few years. In fact, in 1999, there was a $40 million carryover in the PL-480 account.

The administration, the White House, has proposed cutting Title I funding in half for the past 3 years, and Congress has restored most of the program each year. So even with this rescission, the program will be operating substantially above the requested level.

For fiscal year 2000, the administration has again proposed to cut Title I in half and to reduce the other two food aid programs, Title II and Title III.

In testimony before the Appropriations Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies in recent weeks, the administration said these cuts would not cause any problems, in part because the administration has created a new food aid program for Russia of more than $700 million using funds from the Commodity Credit Corporation.

So ours is a responsible rescission, and we still have more money in the fund than the White House would have. The White House would certainly not attempt to cut these funds if they thought it was going to hurt the program, because it is a good program, and I support the PL-480 program and I always have, even back years ago when the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and I used to debate on callable capital almost every day of our lives. I support the PL-480 program, and we do not do any damage to it because there was a $40 million carryover. So I would suggest that this is not a real argument.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I am confused as to whether the gentleman's party intends to follow the CBO accounting on these issues or not.

Is not it, in fact, true that the CBO indicates that $16 million of the funds that the gentleman is rescinding would, in fact, be spent absent the rescission on the PL-480 issue? Is not that the case?

Does not that, therefore, demonstrate that those funds are needed?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I am not sure that I understand exactly the point that the gentleman is trying to make. All I am saying is that our rescission is less of a rescission than the administration asked for when they sent their budget up here.

Mr. OBEY. The point I am trying to make is this: The gentleman is saying this will have no significant programmatic impact, and the gentleman has indicated numerous times that this money is not going to be spent anyway.

The fact is the Congressional Budget Office, which scores these items for all of us, indicates that, in fact, $16 million of that would, in fact, be spent without the rescission; that $16 million which is unavailable to assist American farmers in exporting their products, and if ever they need assistance to export their products this is the time.

The administration did not volunteer to support the agricultural funds that were provided in last year's supplemental either, but both parties ran to do that because we recognized the severe need out in farm country.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. The key issue here is how much money is left in Title I of the PL-480 fund. The funds that are left there, in our opinion, are substantial.

Now, when we go to the CBO scoring issue, this is something that the gentleman and I are going to have to work with very diligently over the next few weeks and few months because CBO scoring, as the gentleman well knows, is very much different than OMB's scoring.

We are going to have to deal with this great difference between the scoring of the OMB and the CBO. We are not going to solve that problem here today. We will talk more about that tomorrow when we deal with the budget resolution, but the gentleman is correct. CBO scoring is a serious problem that we are all going to have to face up to, especially since it is so different than OMB, but we will discuss that tomorrow.

This rescission is less of a rescission than the White House would make, and I am satisfied that there is more than enough money left to carry out the intent of the PL-480 program.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Obey amendment.

Mr. Chairman, the House Republicans have loaded up this bill, which should be noncontroversial, with all sorts of peculiar provisions. Remember, this bill was supposed to be a bill to help out the victims of Hurricanes Mitch and George and to provide loans to United States farmers hurt by low commodity prices, but instead the Republicans have loaded it up with controversial proposals that virtually guarantee a presidential veto.

For whatever reason, the Republicans have apparently decided to demand offsets, that is, cuts in other programs, in order to ensure the emergency relief that is in this bill. So they decided to use the bill, in other words, as a mechanism to target cuts for programs that the isolationist wing of the GOP simply does not like.

Forget that we have a budget surplus. Forget that we can afford to help our Central American neighbors and help our farmers here at home without having to slash these other programs.

No. The House Republican leadership wants to use this bill to rescind programs for international financial banks, slash funding for safeguarding of dangerous nuclear weapons material from Russia and slash funding for global warming studies.

First their supplemental would cut $150 million that would have been used to dismantle and safely store fissile material, bomb grade material, from thousands of Russian nuclear bombs. This is material which could be used for thousands of nuclear bombs. It could be sold to rogue nations or terrorists for use against the United States.

It is in our national interest to help the Russians dismantle their weapons and to store them in a form which is no longer usable for nuclear explosive purposes.

Just one week ago, the Republicans felt so strongly about the need to spend tens of billions of dollars on a dubious missile defense system to protect us against nuclear attack that they actually brought up a resolution to this floor saying that it was the policy of the United States to deploy a missile defense system.

Now this week they are apparently no longer concerned about weapons of mass destruction except, of course, when it comes to blaming Bill Clinton for the fact that the Chinese spies had penetrated Los Alamos back during the Reagan and Bush administrations.

Apparently it is Bill Clinton's fault that the Governor of Arkansas failed to prevent the Chinese from penetrating Los Alamos during the Reagan and Bush administrations.

So based upon the record of the last few weeks, we now find that the GOP is willing to spend billions on missile defenses of doubtful utility, it is willing to blame Bill Clinton for things that happened when we had a Republican in the White House, but it is not even willing to spend even $150 million to dismantle nuclear warheads that might end up in the hands of Saddam Hussein or Slobodan Milosevic.

Of course, if that ever happens I am sure that they will try to blame Bill Clinton that this money was cut.

Right now we are in a very sensitive situation with the Russians. Russian Prime Minister Primakov actually has turned his flight around in mid-air on the way to the United States to protest the NATO plans to bomb the Serbians.

At this point in time, do we really want to send the Russians the message that we are no longer interested in helping them dismantle their nuclear warheads? At this tense moment in our relations with Russia, is that really the message we want to send?

Despite our disagreements with Russia over Serbia, we still have a vital national security interest in working with the Russians to prevent bomb grade materials from getting into the wrong hands. This bill undermines that effort.

In addition to this fatal shortcoming, the Republican supplemental bill would rescind $648 million appropriated to guarantee the U.S. commitment to the World Bank, to the Asian Development Bank and to the Inter-American Development Bank.

□ 1345

Now we are living in a global economy. We can no longer insulate ourselves from what happened around the world. If the economy of Russia or Brazil collapses, our stock market, our investors, feel the effects. If the financial markets conclude that this Congress is walking away from its commitments to sustained financial stability, then it would be a mistake.

I hope that the Obey amendment is adopted.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. CALLAHAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I think the rules of the House require that when we are speaking on this Floor, that we ought to address our comments to the Speaker or Chairman, and certainly during this debate the Chairman has paid close attention and probably better understands where we are than most any Member of the body.

But just to reemphasize our position, let me just say that 30 to 40 odd years ago many nations got together and decided that they would create these regional multidevelopment banks. As they did in 1945 with the World Bank, each nation would put in some usable capital, which they did. This paid-in capital funded each bank's initial operations.

The Founding members told them to be responsible in their efforts; that when a bank loans this money to a foreign country, they should be able to pay it back.

They told the banks: "We want you to remain solvent. Just in case, we are going to put up a designated amount of callable capital. In the event you get into a crisis and you need additional monies, you will be able to call on these various countries to receive additional capital, called callable capital."

The United States was the only nation that chose at that time to put up these billions of dollars into a callable capital account, which has never been used. It has been sitting there unobligated for all of these years. Congress stopped appropriating callable capital in 1980.

The problem, I would suggest to the Secretary of the Treasury, is not really the rescission of the callable capital. This is not going to impact the solvency of the bank. This is not going to do anything to the creditworthiness of the banks.

The full faith and credit of the United States stands behind all capital subscriptions entered into by the Secretary of the Treasury, after authorization by Congress. All of this $52.5 billion in callable capital for the World Bank and the Inter-American and Asian banks has been authorized by Congress. Only $11.5 billion has been appropriated. We are not rescinding the authorization. Whether or not 22 percent or 21 percent of the callable capital is appropriated or not, the full faith and credit of the United States still stands, so we are not changing anything substantive.

Naturally, the bond-raters would like to have the money sitting in the left-hand drawer rather than the right-hand drawer.

I should suggest to the people who are making the determination whether or not a multilateral bank is credit-worthy to look into their loan portfolio. Are the banks lending monies to countries—such as Russia—that cannot or will not pay it back? They ought to be concerned about that. I'd suggest that they consider the tremendous pressure to forgive all debt owed to MDBs by poor countries. I'd suggest they be concerned that there is no appropriated callable capital for the African, European, or North American development banks.

Are the multi-lateral development banks, in such sorry financial condition that they cannot be sure of their own solvency because of the bad loans they hold? We are not removing the full faith and credit of the United States, we are just taking the money back that we never needed to appropriate in the first place.

Mr. Chairman, I would want to urge Members to vote against the Obey amendment.

There has been some threat about a presidential veto. Let us keep in mind the whole scenario. The President went to Central America. The First Lady went to Central America. They are the ones who went and said, "help will be coming." They are the ones that came up with the designated request for money that we are going to spend.

I think that the President of the United States is not going to be in a position to veto a bill, just because we are rescinding some callable capital that has no substantive impact at all on the solvency of the bank. I know that the Secretary of the Treasury has indicated that he is going to recommend a veto. However, I do not think the President could stand on the world stage and say, "the Congress is giving me the Hurricane Mitch reconstruction money, but I do not like where they are offsetting the money, so we are not going to accept the money and send it to help these people in Central America." The President has not told me that. I do not think he has told anybody in the Congress that he is going to veto it. This is coming from the Secretary of the Treasury.

If the President wants to veto the bill, tell him to veto it. Let him cut off the aid to these needy and desperate people in Central America. In my opinion, he will not do it because he cannot do it, because this is not going to impact the solvency of the banks.

Secretary Rubin is aware of this. Secretary Rubin is more concerned about the precedent; the fact that if we do this a second time, we are going to be coming back in a few years trying to rescind more callable capital. He is concerned about the precedent, rather than the reality of the problem.

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Obey amendment, thank the gentleman once again for his leadership in bringing this to the Floor, and recognize our distinguished chairman for his first bill on the Floor, as chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

I regretfully disagree with my distinguished chair of the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, Export Financing and Related Programs, of which I am the ranking member.

Just reviewing Mr. CALLAHAN's own words at the end of his comments is an argument for the Obey amendment when he said, in his view, that Mr. Rubin, Secretary of the Treasury, was not concerned about this amount of money but about the precedent it would set. That is known as uncertainty. Uncertainty is not a plus in the financial world.

The crisis in Asia speaks to our not taking this money from callable capital for the multilateral development banks, in particular the Asian Development Bank, because we need money for an emergency.

As appropriators we all know the hard fights that go into determining what an appropriation will be for a particular year. We should respect that process. We thought these were important priorities. We voted for this funding. Now, with this bill, we are saying, we did not need to spend that money anyway.

We should respect the regular order, and the regular order says that under the budget agreement we have caps, yes, but we also provide for emergencies not to be offset.

As I have said earlier in my comments against the bill as presented, if thousands of people die, millions of people homeless, entire economies wiped out in the countries hit by this storm, the hurricane, if that does not constitute an emergency, it is hard to see what would. There probably never would be an emergency, if the worst natural disaster to hit the Western Hemisphere is not considered an emergency.

What we are saying to the people of Central America is, we feel sorry for you but we do not consider you an emergency.

Our process calls for our appropriating funds in a very deliberative process. It also calls for us to have this emergency fund, just as any family in America would have some savings for a rainy day. Well, the rainy day came to Central America, and it came again and again and again, and those people were wiped out, both their economies, their personal lives, their homes, et cetera.

What we want to do is to help rebuild their economies. With our assistance, we want them to develop the private sector. We want them to be self-reliant. We want certainly to provide the emergency assistance to begin with, but we want them to develop their own economies.

Why should we have to do that at the expense of the callable capital for the multilateral development banks, some of which lend into that area? Why should we do that by thrusting uncertainty into the markets about the credit rating of these multilateral development banks?

The Secretary of the Treasury said he was recommending a veto to the President of the United States for this bill if the callable capital provision was in the bill, for reasons of dipping into that fund in the first place, and as a precedent, certainly, to make matters worse.

So let us not try to gloss over the importance of a credit rating. Let us not gloss over the importance of certainty versus uncertainty. That is why we appropriated the money in the first place, because it needed to be there for us to do our share. If we pull the callable capital, what if the other countries do, too? Why is it not okay for them, if it is okay for us?

We are getting on some dangerous territory here. I think we should not confuse the message by having two fights, here. What we are talking about is the very reasonable amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) that addresses the four areas we have talked about, one of them being the callable capital; another, the Exim-Bank and the war chest of the Exim-Bank, again putting our assistance for trade or export financing in doubt; the $40 million cut from development assistance; and the $45 million in cuts from Eastern Europe and the new independent states, just at a time when those countries are faced with such uncertainty.

Why, facing one problem, are we making matters worse in other parts of the world, when what we should be doing is using the money that the American people think we have saved for a rainy day to help meet the needs of the people who are devastated by the consequences of Hurricane Mitch, the worst natural disaster in the history of the Western Hemisphere? Certainly it is an emergency.

I urge my colleagues to support the Obey amendment.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, what I am understanding in this amendment is basically that the gentleman from Wisconsin is opposed to any offsets, Mr. Chairman. He has sort of designated some of the bigger ones, and particularly the Department of Energy defense activities, where there is $150 million.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman has misstated my position. I am not opposed to all offsets. There are a number of offsets in this bill that I have no objection to. My amendment is aimed at the four that I consider to be the most egregious, but I am not opposed to all offsets.

Mr. TIAHRT. If I may continue, Mr. Chairman, most of these four amendments that the gentleman put forth, or the four items in the account that he has attacked, are about 90 or 95 percent of the offsets.

The bottom line is, if we do not offset the bill, the money has to go from somewhere. It has to come from somewhere and go down to Central America. The only other amount of money that is available is the social security surplus. So if we do not offset this money, it is going to come from social security.

I think if we stopped the average person on the street in either Wisconsin or in Kansas and asked them, what would you rather spend your money on, social security or a foreign aid emergency, I think nine times out of ten they are going to say, we want to save social security.

So what we are trying to do is save social security and still provide money for the people who need it very much down in Central America.

Mr. Chairman, one of these accounts that we have heard so much about is the $150 million that was supposed to go to properly secure and store the uranium or plutonium. There is still $375 million in the account that the Department of Energy has to properly store and properly secure uranium that is in Russia.

There is some talk about putting the Nation at great risk because we were pulling back this $150 million. This $150 million was not obligated. There was no plan to spend it during this year, and there has been no agreement on how plutonium is going to be properly secured and properly stored in the country of Russia, so we had no immediate designation for this money. It was money that was put there, but now we are going to move it to a higher priority someplace where there is a greater need.

In the callable capital account, we heard the subcommittee chairman from the Subcommittee on Foreign Operation, Export Financing and Related Programs of the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN), tell us that we are only 16 percent of the obligation of the international commitment in callable capital. The international commitment is some $150 billion. We are only about $35 billion out of that.

None of the other countries have set aside money in an account like we have. We have $12 billion sitting in that account. It is a checking account. What we are going to do, once again, is take money and move it to a higher priority. We are going to move it to the great need that currently exists in Central America.

If the money does not come from somewhere, we will have to turn to the social security surplus. That is the only money that is available. So the choice is very clear. If we vote for the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin, Members are choosing to take money from the social security surplus and send it down to Central America.

If Members choose to oppose the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin, they will be accepting offsets, money that is unobligated, money that we have no current plans to use, and instead, establish a much higher priority by moving it down to the great need that exists in Central America.

□ 1400

So with this very clear choice, I think that most Americans would agree with this, that it is time that we secure the future for ourselves, for our seniors, for our children by choosing to preserve Social Security and by taking unobligated funds, funds that we did not have a plan to spend, and moving it to the priority down in Central America, in Honduras and Guatemala and Belize and those places that were so severely hit by Hurricane Mitch.

So I would urge my colleagues, Mr. Chairman, to vote against the Obey amendment.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

The comment that we just heard, that without offsets this money will come from the Social Security Trust Fund, is absolutely ludicrous, absurd, and false. The fact is the committee pretends it is going to cut $648 million out of callable capital. There is not one dime saved in outlays.

The way we measure what is available for Social Security or anything else is on the basis of outlays, not budget authorities, as the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) well knows or should know.

The gentleman from Kansas misstated my position, so let me correct it. The fact is that out of the $648 million that my colleagues claim to save, there is not one dime of savings, so that does not cost Social Security one dime. If we take a look at the entire package, unless my colleagues assume that their committee chairman is correct, if they assume their chairman is correct and that the Act will not harm our agreements with the Soviets on uranium, then out of the entire amount of this amendment, only $16 million will ever accrue as outlay savings. That is less than one-half of 1 percent of all the funds that we are talking about. So do not misconstrue this as being an attack on Social Security. That is blatant nonsense.

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I rise in support of the Obey amendment, and I do so on the basis of two particular aspects of the supplemental bill that I believe are particularly egregious. The first one is the provision which would strike the ability to purchase from the Russians 50 tons of weapons grade plutonium.

Just a week ago we had a bill on the floor of this House which called upon our government to deploy a "Star Wars" system, a ballistic nuclear defense system, the physics of which are not even at this moment understood. There are serious questions as to whether or not this apparatus would ever work effectively.

Nevertheless, we are prepared to spend tens of billions of dollars on that program to deploy it, and at the same time we are rescinding from this supplemental bill a small amount of money which would enable us to purchase 50 tons of weapons grade plutonium from the Russians.

If we do not purchase that 50 tons of weapons grade plutonium, the likelihood is that some portion of it is going to end up in the hands of some terrorist organizations and the hands of some person like Saddam Hussein or someone else in some other part of the world that has the ability to threaten this country and threaten others.

The logic of this is absolutely astonishing. There is no logic to it whatsoever. How can my colleagues come here and be for a ballistic missile defense system one week, and then the next week come back and say we ought not to be purchasing weapons grade plutonium from the Russians when we know if we do not, it is going to get in the hands of people who mean us and others harm? This is totally ridiculous.

The other provision would, and this is more than half of the offsets which were offered by the majority, come from the multilateral development banks. We live in a global economy. We are still involved in a situation where there is a serious economic crisis in Southeast Asia, a serious economic problem in Central and South America, a terribly serious economic problem in Russia, all of which impact upon our economy.

We are seeing it particularly in our commodities, particularly in our agricultural commodities. Part of this bill is to help our farmers around the country. At the same time we pretend to be helping our farmers in the supplemental bill, we are going to make it more difficult for them to sell their commodities on the open market. Why? Because the crisis in East Asia has closed up markets there for commodities. The Canadians and the Australians which normally sell into those markets are finding it difficult if not impossible to do so. Therefore, they are impacting on our markets.

Our farmers are finding it difficult to sell in the markets that we normally have access to, let alone those that we hope to have access to. That is the principal reason why we are seeing such difficulty in the agricultural community all across our country.

In this supplemental bill, by these offsets, my colleagues are threatening every farmer that sells outside of the United States, whether it is wheat, corn, soybeans, cotton. Regardless of what it is, my colleagues are threatening that part of our economy.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) has expired.

(On request of Mr. OBEY, and by unanimous consent, Mr. HINCHEY was allowed to proceed for 4 additional minutes.)

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, these are two critically important deficiencies in this supplemental bill. We have before us some genuine emergencies as a result of the hurricanes and the devastation that those hurricanes caused, genuine emergencies. We have an emergency also in our agricultural community across the country. We should respond to those emergencies in the spirit of emergency. They are serious problems. They need to be dealt with, and they need to be dealt with now.

But instead of doing that, we have a bill before us which has within it an extraordinarily high political quotient. It is not designed to deal with the emergencies. It is designed to play a little bit of politics and to play some politics with the administration particularly.

I beg my colleagues, please, on behalf of the farmers of our country, on behalf of our national security, change this bill, support with us the Obey amendment. Do not take the rescissions from the multilateral development banks. Do not take the rescissions from the money that is required to buy 50 tons of weapons grade plutonium from the Russians. Let us help agriculture truly, and let us improve our national security by taking those provisions out of this supplemental appropriations bill.

Mr. Chairman, I very much support the Obey amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT).

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to follow up on some of the earlier debate that I was having with the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY). On one hand, if I understood him correctly, he is opposed to the offsets because there is no actual outlays. But then it would seem, if he is opposed to offsets since there is no actual outlays, he would support using callable capital since it does not really cost anything.

On the other hand, if we do offset, if we do take the money from callable capital, then we are going to create a worldwide depression because of this. So I am a little puzzled on that.

The last part I would like the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) to address is that he says this money cannot come from Social Security. All the money that we have in the Federal Government is obligated except for what we have outlaid right here.

The money has to come from somewhere if it is not specifically designated in this piece of legislation. The only other money available is in the surplus that we have. The only money in the surplus is from Social Security.

So I would submit logically that if we do not offset the money in the bill, it does have to come from Social Security.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I understand the gentleman is a new member of the committee, fairly new anyway, but I assume he understands the following: When we determine what our deficit is, we determine that not on the basis of what budget authority is, but what is outlaid in any given fiscal year.

Would the gentleman grant that?

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) yield?

Mr. HINCHEY. I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, that is correct. I would agree with the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will continue to yield, let me give my colleagues the numbers. This bill pretends that it saves $853 million for Social Security. In fact, the most that it saves is $19 million, unless the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) is wrong on his assumptions about what will happen with the plutonium agreement. The fact is that the $648 million so-called saving from callable capital results in no savings on the outlay side, so that does not put one dime in Social Security.

The $25 million which my colleagues cut out of Ex-Im results, according to CBO, in only $3 million of actual outlaid savings. The $30 million which the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) said would have no impact, in fact CBO says does have $16 million in impact.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) has expired.

(On request of Mr. OBEY, and by unanimous consent, Mr. HINCHEY was allowed to proceed for 1 additional minute.)

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, that means in effect that there may be $19 million in play as far as Social Security is concerned. The rest of it is not, unless the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) is wrong on his assumptions on plutonium.

I would simply say this. If he is, I would ask every citizen of this country one question: What is more important, to save that $80 million today that CBO estimates will be outlaid for that, or to use it to make sure that we do not have enough plutonium floating around the world for the Russians or terrorist organizations to build 15,000 additional nuclear weapons?

I think every Social Security recipient in the world would like to see us, first of all, make certain that we make this world more safe from the possible threat from nuclear weapons. So do not bring that red herring across the table about Social Security. This debate has nothing whatsoever to do with Social Security except in the gentleman's own mind.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) has expired.

(On request of Mr. TIAHRT, and by unanimous consent, Mr. HINCHEY was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT).

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, for the purpose of the $150 million, the reason we left $375 million in that account is so that we do not completely abandon the efforts that we have in Russia. In fact, we are very dedicated to the efforts in Russia.

But I do want to make a point about where this money is going to come from. We are going to write a check and send it to Central America. It is going to be used for the infrastructure. That money has to come from somewhere. It is not going to come out of thin air.

That money, $648 million of it, is going to come out of a checking account that is at the World Bank. It is called callable capital. If we write a check, it gets a debit. It is going to go down to Central America. If my colleagues say there is no outlay, no savings, well, the money has to come from somewhere. According to the Congressional Budget Office, the only place it is available is the surplus. The only surplus that is available is Social Security.

So I would just in a very clear way say that we are going to write a check. That check is going to Central America, and the money has to come from somewhere.

In our personal lives, we do not write checks unless we have money to cover it. This is the money to cover it. If we do not take it from here, we take it from Social Security.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY) will continue to yield, let me simply point out again on one item that the gentleman from Kansas just cited, he is just flat-out wrong on the facts.

He indicated that if we rescind this $150 million in the plutonium and uranium account, that there will still be $375 million left. There will not be. Mr. Primakov is about to sign an agreement with the United States Government which will use $325 million for the uranium agreement that we are working on with the Russians.

If my colleagues rescind the $150 million of the $200 million that is remaining in the account, and that is all there is, there will be only $50 million left for us to proceed on our negotiations with the Russians on the plutonium account. That $200 million was put on the table in order to bring the Russians into the negotiations. If we get an agreement from them, that agreement will cost far more than $200 million. It will cost at least $1 billion.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in very strong support of the Obey amendment, and I want to really thank the gentleman for crafting a careful amendment that looked at every single detail of this bill.

Truly, others have dealt with the plutonium issues and with other aspects of the offsets, but in the amendment of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), he specifically targets the PL-480 program, and I really want to focus my remarks there in the time that I have.

I cannot believe that in the bill that the majority has given us, that they would attempt to take $30 million or any amount, actually, from the PL-480 program. Now what is that? That is a program that lifts commodities off our market and sends them around the world. To not fund this program at the level requested really, and that is inadequate from the administration standpoint simply because they know Congress will add funds to that account in view of the situation, if we choose to cut these dollars, we are basically saying there are no more hungry people in the world.

□ 1415

That is an absolutely ridiculous position. Not only that, but here at home the need, the need, to move commodities is simply profound.

What is happening in rural America is something that we have not seen in our adult lifetimes, with the levels of price drops, whether we are talking about the milk market, whether we are talking about hogs, whether we are talking about grain, or whether we are talking about cotton. I mean, go down the list. Rice, historic price drops. We know what has happened in the Asian markets, we know what has happened to our former market in Eastern Europe because of the collapse of the ruble, the situations all around the world which have hurt our export markets. But here at home, because of good weather, we have an enormous surplus which has driven prices to all-time lows.

People in my part of the country are burying animals. This seems so illogical in a time when our feeding kitchens are absolutely begging for food. This is one tool that we have, PL-480, to help lift some of America's surplus, our bounty, to share it with those in the world that many of our esteemed Members, like the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TONY HALL), of my own State, and former Congressman Bill Emerson of Missouri, worked so hard to sensitize this Congress and the American people on the needs of the hungry around the world.

So I just find it incredible that this particular measure was inserted into this offset provision. And I want to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) for bringing it to the attention of not just this Congress but the American people and people of good heart everywhere. There is absolutely no reason that America cannot lift this bounty and share it worldwide, and why the PL-480 program was selected leaves me in a state of disbelief.

So I rise, Mr. Chairman, in strong support of the Obey amendment, particularly because of the ill-advised provision that deals with clipping the wings of PL-480, which does not need to be cut but in fact increased to benefit our farmers, our communities here at home, as well as those around the world who beg us for food.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. KAPTUR. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentlewoman yielding to me, and I am looking at testimony here by Keith Kelly, who is the Administrator of the Farm Service Agency, and he talks about "The 1999 budget provides a total program level of $979 million for PL-480, foreign food assistance." The Congress raised that to $1.1 billion. According to his testimony, he says, "This will ensure the availability of adequate resources to meet the most serious food assistance needs."

So even with this rescission, we leave more money in the PL-480 program than the administration asked for in their hearing.

Ms. KAPTUR. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman very much for pointing that out. If we look at what has happened with prices, the figure that the gentleman stated, the over $1 billion figure, will help us to buy more with the American tax dollar to send abroad. That is true. But the amount of surplus that we have on domestic markets is drowning our rural communities.

As we sit here and argue today, and we will not produce a bill that will aid our farmers this spring, this Congress is going to fail in that responsibility. This should have been the first bill this Congress considered when we convened this year, and we have failed that responsibility to our own people. The surplus is gigantic, but the need abroad is even greater, if we look at what is happening in Russia, what is happening in Asia, and what is happening in Central America and Honduras.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Ms. KAPTUR was allowed to proceed for 3 additional minutes.)

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. KAPTUR. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin, our very esteemed ranking member.

Mr. OBEY. I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me, and I would simply make this observation, Mr. Chairman.

We have people in both parties in this House who, on a daily basis, are putting out press releases talking about what they are going to be doing to try to help farmers get out from under the collapse of prices for many commodities. I would suggest in those circumstances that what we ought to be doing on both sides of the aisle is pushing the administration to provide more assistance to farmers, more assistance to increase our ability to export farm products to other markets, rather than cutting back on the funds in the budget available to do that.

If people are serious about the press releases they are putting out, that is what they will be doing rather than voting for this bill this afternoon.

Ms. KAPTUR. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I might also say that the administration's request to us through the Department of Agriculture was cleared through the Office of Management and Budget in the executive branch. My own guess is that the Department of Agriculture would like to increase the PL-480 program a whole lot more than the budget submission that reached this Congress. It has to go through the filter of OMB, and that is an unrealistic way in which to make decisions about policy.

We reflect the will of the American people here, and rural America is crying out to us. We ought to use every single tool that we have, and we should not cut a dime out of the PL-480 program, with all due respect to the gentleman, who represents a great citrus-producing State, a great beef-producing State, a great milk-producing State. There is a lot that happens there in the State of Florida, and I know the gentleman has to defend his party on the floor today, but truly this should not be in this bill.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. KAPTUR. I yield to the gentleman from Florida.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding to me once again, because I wanted to respond to the comments the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) just made when the gentlewoman yielded to him, about the agricultural request and what we should be doing and should not be doing.

Here is a copy of the communication from the President of the United States. He signed the letter on the first page. This bill does what the President asked for in the agricultural program. He asked for a specific amount of money, and that amount of money is in this bill.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Chairman, I would mention to the gentleman, with all due respect, the President never asked for these offsets. And, also, I know that inside the Department of Agriculture they are drowning in commodities. When the administration sends a request up here, it is not always perfect because of what happens over at OMB.

I know, and the gentleman obviously knows, that silos across this country are bursting at the seams. We have food to send around the world, and our farmers need help on the price in order that they can make it through this planting year. The tragedy is that the credit program that is buried in this bill, that will help our farmers get their spring crops in the ground, will not happen fast enough for them.

They do not even have the assistance that was passed last year in the emergency bill that was passed at the end of the year. They will not get that until June. So shame on this Congress and shame on the administration, too.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, in some respects I am delighted this debate is going to be on C-SPAN today and the American people can see it. In other respects, though, this is almost an embarrassment.

Earlier, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) offered an amendment to make the rescissions across-the-board to pay for this special bill. I voted for it, but there were only about 75 of us that joined with that amendment, and I would say to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) that I am glad he joined.

But in listening to this debate I became more and more frustrated just watching in my office, because what we hear from everybody is, well, I would like to have offsets too, but do not touch this program. We cannot touch PL-480. I like PL-480. There are lots of programs I like.

What this debate really is all about, if we stop and step back for a minute, is we are being asked to fund a little over a billion dollar bill which essentially is about 90 percent foreign aid, and yet we are not willing to make the tough decisions.

Now, a lot of talk has been made here on the floor about what is happening to farmers out there. And let me tell my colleagues it is tough out in farm country. Every farmer, every farmer, whether they are in Florida or they are in Iowa or whether in Kansas, they are trying to figure out how they are going to tighten their belts to get through the next year. To put that in context right now, we are looking at a Federal budget of about $1,700 billion.

I hear the debate here on the floor today that we cannot find a billion dollars worth of offsets. Now, I am not good in math, but that is something like one-tenth of 1 percent. Now, maybe there are Members in this room who believe that we cannot find one-tenth of 1 percent worth of offsets. Maybe there are Members in the room who really believe that, but I got news for them, there are a lot of people outside of this room, a lot of people outside of this beltway who believe that is ridiculous. We can find the offsets and we should find the offsets.

Let me explain why. Because we are going to have a budget on the floor later this week, and we are going to say for the first time to the American people and for the first time to the senior citizens in the United States that we are going to save every single penny of Social Security taxes for Social Security. Now, I think that is a very important statement. That is a giant step forward, in my opinion.

And while it is only a small step, it seems to me if we do not find the offsets today, whether it is PL-480 or other foreign aid programs, whether it be offsets from the reduction in the callable capital, whatever it happens to be, if we cannot find those offsets today, it seems like we are taking a very small step in the wrong direction.

As I say, I think a lot of my colleagues in this room believe we cannot find those offsets, but I have news for them, a lot of people outside this room believe we can and believe we should.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GUTKNECHT. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, let me simply observe that there were 71 Democrats who voted for that amendment; there were only 6 Republicans who did.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. I thank the gentleman for the arithmetic.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Let me applaud the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and the committee for their leadership and their wisdom for trying to explain to us that this emergency supplemental appropriation is, in fact, creating an emergency and a crisis.

I am particularly interested in having our colleagues, Republicans and joining Democrats, recognize that we have a vital problem in the cuts that have been made in our international monetary efforts. In particular, the largest and most unwelcome of these cuts are in the international banks. This bill cuts funding to those banks by $648 million, in an environment where those banks are often the best option for borrowers seeking shelter from a hostile economic environment.

This is so important to the Secretary of Commerce that he is threatening a veto if this legislation, the appropriations legislation, passes in this condition. And let me cite the comment of the minority commenting on these offsets that really tells us where we are internationally:

"It is also true that other member nations and many investors around the world are increasingly uneasy about the willingness of the U.S., and particularly the U.S. Congress, to make good on its legal and moral commitments. These same investors watch the Congress repeatedly refuse to provide the International Monetary Fund with the needed infusion of capital through the debts of the Asian financial crisis, and are also aware that the Congress continues to refuse to provide the funds necessary to pay off the billion-plus in back debts of the United States."

These international monetary banks help our products. It helps our farmers' products get from production to market, it gives access to credit, it also helps to infuse dollars into the international economy and, therefore, keeps the American economy, of which so many people have come to not only accept but to think this is the norm, it helps to keep it stabilized. Why would we think that $648 million, doing great jeopardy to this very fragile system, is where we need to go? I am very surprised we would even go in that direction and gamble with the financial future of this Nation.

I would also say the $25 million from the Export-Import Bank, albeit seemingly small, this bank has been most useful in helping some of our smaller nations with small projects that generate jobs and opportunity, in fact keeping individuals home in their nations because they have the opportunity and access to credit, and as well, creating jobs.

I would also say that even though I have heard a number of explanations on why we are cutting $150 million that deals in particular with funds used to purchase materials, uranium and plutonium, that could be used in nuclear warheads by our enemies, a program that has been unanimously supported by the President, and I think if we would inquire, by individuals in the street who say that we should bring down the possibility of more and more of our enemies having nuclear warheads, that, too, raises a question of balance and why we would do that.

Let me say also, having worked with the Department of Labor on the issue of a rapid response team program dealing with our hardest hit communities when there are enormous layoffs, particularly in my district and my community where there have been enormous layoffs because of the energy crisis, I am somewhat disappointed in the cuts that we have seen relating to job training, and would hope that we would be able to balance that.

Let me say finally, also, Mr. Chairman, as the ranking member on the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims for the Committee on the Judiciary, I am certainly gratified that we have in this supplemental appropriations, and viewed as an emergency, some $80 million for the Immigration and Naturalization Service for increased border enforcement. I, however, raise the concern, as many experts have, that border enforcement without trained, experienced Border Patrol agents is of no value. So I hope that we recognize that we need trained Border Patrol agents. We need to have dollars as well to prohibit and inhibit border violence.

And the question of adding additional beds is not going to be the panacea that we would like it to be.

□ 1430

In fact, the real issue is the 1996 immigration reform legislation that in fact caused the INS to have to deal with locking up, if you will, immigrants who have been here, who 20, 30, 40 years ago may have had an infraction such as a traffic ticket. They are then arrested, separated from their families, filling up these private prisons; and the real criminals that we do not want to have on the street are not able to be incarcerated.

We have got to reform the INS legislation to go back to reality and sanity. We also have got to get these people out of private prisons and put them into the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

I hope some of these more reasonable aspects, Mr. Chairman, can be addressed later on. And I hope the Obey amendment will pass. I add my support to it.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I hesitate somewhat to wade off into the number of issues that are being discussed, but there has been a lot of discussion today about the offset dealing with some of the nonproliferation funds. I think this is a very important issue. It is a very important part of our security. I want to take just a moment to discuss this in the larger context of our nonproliferation efforts.

Frankly, Mr. Chairman, I share some of the concerns that have been expressed over the course of the day. I think at the end of this bill, when it comes back from conference, it would probably be better if this offset were not taken, if this money were left alone. But I also think that we should not over-play the dangers that may result from this particular program.

Let me say, Mr. Chairman, I speak as one who on this side of the aisle has strongly supported much of what the administration has tried to do in our nonproliferation efforts and in our cooperative efforts with the former Soviet Union, but in those efforts there are priorities. Some things are more important than others.

For example, if we can spend money this year to put better security around plutonium or uranium which could be used for a bomb, that ought to come first. That prevents someone from walking out with it. That prevents someone from stealing it and selling it to someone who we would prefer not get their hands on it.

The program we are dealing with here is a different kind of priority. It is a long-term, a long-range sort of approach, and I think it becomes much more difficult to argue that the results would be catastrophic this year if this money were taken aside.

What is going on is that there are negotiations which have just recently begun with Russia on taking some of the weapons-usable plutonium that Russia now has, turning it into a fuel which could be burned in a nuclear reactor, and thus preventing it from being used for weapons.

This involves international consortiums. This involves nuclear power companies from a variety of countries and some very delicate negotiations from Russia and from the United States. The goal is to take 50 tons of weapons-usable plutonium and ultimately turn it into a fuel for nuclear power.

We should not forget that we are sure that Russia has at least 200 tons of weapons-usable plutonium now. So what we are talking about, in the best circumstance, is taking about a fourth of this plutonium that we know they have and turning it into a fuel for nuclear reactors. That is going to take 20 to 25 years under the very best circumstances.

The Department of Energy indicates that under the very best circumstances, if everything goes perfectly in their negotiations, they might be able to obligate about half of this money in the year 2000 and maybe spend about a third of it. So taking this money off the table, as it were, would not have a catastrophic effect on this program designed to last 20 to 25 years.

The concern is that taking it off the table would make the Russians question the seriousness of our negotiations, and I think we ought to think about that. There are a lot of negotiations underway now with Russia, and they need to know that we are serious about working with them to control the proliferation of this kind of material, and that is not easy to quantify. It is hard to put our finger on exactly what the result would be. It is a concern that we certainly ought to take into account. But to say that this would have catastrophic consequences I think is not accurate.

As a matter of fact, the committee's action would leave $375 million left in the fund for nonproliferation activities. It is possible that that could all be used for the uranium purchase this year. If the plutonium issue becomes a higher priority, of course it may well be possible to rearrange those priorities.

I think at the end of the day, Mr. Chairman, for me it would be better if another offset is eventually found for these funds, but it is not true that this would completely obliterate our nonproliferation efforts, which are very important to our security.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to respond to my good friend and colleague from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY), a leader in the area of dealing with issues of nonproliferation. He and I have worked together on a number of these issues and that is why I respect his opinion on this, but I wanted to respond specifically to some of his comments.

The first one was, at the end of the day in this process, after the conference committee has finished its work, he would probably hope that this cut of $150 million to take 50 tons of bomb-grade plutonium off the Russian marketplace, he hopes that rescission, that cut, would be thrown out.

And what I would suggest is that if this is such a terribly dangerous area we are dealing with, if we know it is the right thing to cut it out at the end of the day, why do we not cut it out on the first day right here in the House, let the House speak its voice today, saying we do want to do anything that might possibly risk the proliferation of such potentially catastrophic levels of nuclear bomb materials.

Secondly, he made a good point that I do agree with. He said that we should fund other programs to protect nuclear materials, whether they be in Russia or the United States, or elsewhere for that matter, and I agree with the gentleman. I want to work with the gentleman. But that does not in any way take away from the argument that when we have a real opportunity, as we speak today, to take 50 tons of nuclear materials off the marketplace that could be exposed to purchase and purchased by international terrorists or the very powerful Mafia in the former Soviet Union, we ought to take advantage of that today.

He talked about very delicate negotiations, and I would agree with that. And I would say to my respected friend that that is one of the very reasons I would use to argue during the middle of very delicate negotiations that not only include Russia and the United States but bring in other nations of the world, we ought not to be tinkering with this.

I do not know if there is a 5 percent chance, a 10 percent chance, a 95 percent chance this $150 million cut could destroy those negotiations. I do not want to take a 1 percent chance that we might potentially unload bomb-grade nuclear materials on the world marketplace for terrorists. And I do not think there is any Member of this House, Republican or Democrat, who has spoken with the negotiators on the American and Russian side who would come to this floor and honestly say, after having talked with the negotiators involved in this process, there is a 99 percent chance that the negotiations would go on.

When we talked about national missile defense the other day, no one said there is a 90 percent chance someone is going to send an ICBM into New York City. But through the Republican leadership and bipartisan support of people like myself, we said we want a national missile defense system even if there is a 1 percent chance that a foreign nation would send their missiles into our Nation.

I have got to say to my friend that I recognize and I am fearful of the fact of the 200 tons of plutonium in the Russian area in terms of what we need to get our arms around. But where I disagree with my colleague, I do not think that fact makes it any less important to try to take 50 tons of that 200 tons off the international terrorist marketplace while we have that opportunity.

Ultimately, I think we have to have some respect for the people directly involved in this. And I would like to read briefly the statement made by the Secretary of Energy, who has direct responsibility for overseeing these negotiations, part of which have already proven to be extremely successful.

He says, "Such a reduction," as proposed in this bill today, "would have severe consequences," severe consequences, "for the ongoing negotiations in pursuit of a bilateral agreement with Russia on disposing of enough plutonium to make tens of thousands of nuclear weapons."

"To now withdraw this earnest money," he says, "would be to call into question U.S. reliability. Russia may well perceive such a withdrawal as a breach of good faith. Withdrawing this money would severely set back, and might even bring a halt to, our constructive discussions on this important nonproliferation and national security issue."

Now, if any of the proponents of this $150 million cut have talked to the chief American negotiator and the chief Russian negotiator, I would be willing to donate my time at this time to listen to that Member tell me what they were told by those negotiators and to assure me that it is no risk to my family or their family to risk the breakdown of these negotiations.

The truth is there is not a House Member who has spoken directly to either one of those sides of negotiations and can come to this floor and say this is not risking potential catastrophe for the American civilian population or our servicemen and women abroad.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the Obey amendment and to address primarily the issue that comes under the jurisdiction of the subcommittee which I chair, and that is addressing the two issues of the Russian programs.

I think there has been a lot of misunderstanding and misinformation that has been put out. Number one, the 50 metric tons of plutonium is not to be purchased by the United States. The money was not to be used to purchase it. It simply is to provide facilities in Russia that would degrade it and bring it down to fuel grade rather than weapons grade.

And secondly, that will continue. That effort will continue. It is not a one-year or a 1999 issue. Actually, it is a decade-long issue, but we will be funding it for the next few years. The negotiations are not even completed or hardly begun on how to do it and how to spend the money and what to do. So the money that we are rescinding this year would not be used for this year to any great extent.

Secondly, let me refer to the highly enriched uranium issue. That uranium will not be converted into weapons of mass destruction. That uranium is already here in the United States. It is not in Russia. And so to use the argument that it would be used if we do not fund the $150 million that we are calling to be rescinded, that it would be used to make weapons out of the highly enriched uranium, that is simply not true. The Russians do not have it, it is not there. It would have really no impact whatsoever upon proliferation because it is already here in the United States.

Thirdly, as has been mentioned several times, we are rescinding or asking to rescind $150 million of the $525 million, not $200 million. The $200 million for plutonium could be reduced to $50 million during the 1999 budget year. It does not have to be.

The administration still has the options and the flexibility to subtract $150 million any way they wish. It can be from the enriched uranium program or the plutonium program. They can choose and decide where it would best serve the needs of our international relations with Russia.

Another point that needs to be made. The $200 million was not originally planned to come from the taxpayers of the United States. That was planned to come from the international community. That was where the $200 million was to come from. The United States was only to fund a prototype plant to determine how to deal with the Russian plutonium, and that is what the $25 million per year that we funded last year, this year, and is in the President's budget for the coming budget year.

□ 1445

That money was to be used to build a prototype and the international community would fund the rest of it, in building the actual facilities that would degrade the plutonium from weapons grade to fuel grade. We have missed that point entirely. We have now funded the $200 million in the omnibus emergency bill, and no one called for it. The President did not call for that. The Senate bill did not call for it. Our committee and the House did not call for it. But the fact is it was put into the emergency supplemental bill last year, and of course the President would support it after it was put in. Here was a half a billion, over a half a billion dollars that all of a sudden we gave to him that he could use for his public relations overseas. Of course he would support it after it was put in. But he did not feel it was of high enough priority to put in or request it when it was being processed through the normal process.

Now, let me speak to the plutonium issue itself. The negotiations are just beginning. Even if the $150 million was taken out or $50 million of it would be taken from the $200 million of plutonium disposition, there would still be $50 million remaining plus the $25 million. There is still a significant amount of money in that program.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. PACKARD) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. PACKARD was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, the fact is it is a long-range program. There is money to start it this year if the negotiations are finished, and we have time to then address it in the normal process of budgeting through our committee process.

Let me remind Members that the Prime Minister of Russia, Mr. Primakov, as a result of the President's decision to bomb Kosovo, has gone back to Russia. So we have no assurance that there will be a signing of the agreement. We have no assurance that they will come back to the table. It could be delayed, and certainly it is for now. It could be delayed for the balance of the year. It will be very difficult to complete those negotiations and to draft the agreement and to get it implemented before the end of this fiscal year. Thus, the money will not and cannot be spent during this fiscal year in my judgment.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PACKARD. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. I thank the gentleman for yielding. We can either look at this issue like we are green eyeshade accountants or we can look at this issue in terms of what will create the most security for the United States. The fact is that what the Energy Department tells us, what the Secretary of Energy tells us is as follows, in the letter he sent today.

He said the entire cut, in this bill, "would have to come from the $200 million appropriated to dispose of Russian plutonium. Such a reduction would have severe consequences for the ongoing negotiations in pursuit of a bilateral agreement with Russia on disposing of enough plutonium to make tens of thousands of nuclear weapons. It could also severely impact the wide range of cooperative nonproliferation engagement under way and planned in Russia, including efforts to protect, control and account for weapons-usable nuclear material and to prevent the flight of weapons scientists to countries of proliferation concern."

Now, the facts are very simple.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. PACKARD) has again expired.

(On request of Mr. OBEY, and by unanimous consent, Mr. PACKARD was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I will be happy to continue to yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. The administration did not put this in their original budget because at the time they submitted the FY 1999 budget, nobody thought there was a prayer of getting negotiations going on plutonium. Senator DOMENICI saw an opportunity in October to take advantage of the fact that the facts had changed and it looked like we would now be able to move toward sitting down with the Russians on plutonium. And so he put the $200 million in the Omnibus bill. It now remains available precisely because it is used as a magnet to draw the Russians to the table. It sends a signal to them that we are serious about this issue and we all know that if we do in fact get an agreement, the cost of that agreement is going to be at least five times the amount of the money which is presently available.

All I am saying is that it is absurd for us in my view to be arguing about fiscal years and expenditures in this year or that year when the fact is that the overriding concern ought to be to get that fissile material converted before it falls into the hands of terrorists or anybody else.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. PACKARD was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, first of all, if the administration is saying that the full $200 million would be lost by rescinding $150 million, I just do not understand their math.

Mr. OBEY. That is not what it says.

Mr. PACKARD. Number two, it is their choice. They do not have to take it from the $200 million. It can come from the other area, the enriched uranium. Let me conclude my statement and then the gentleman may wish to speak further on someone else's time.

It is not as if we have neglected Russia. Since 1994, we have spent over $1 billion in Russian programs to deal with their nuclear problems. There are Members of this Congress who feel that we could spend that money here in the United States because we have not adequately addressed our own nuclear waste disposition problem. We have not solved our own nuclear waste problems. They are saying, "Why don't we take care of problems here at home before we deal with overseas Russian waste?"

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to strike the requisite number of words.

The CHAIRMAN. Without objection, the gentleman from Wisconsin is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I cannot believe what I just heard. The gentleman said that if the administration wants, it does not have to take this money out of the plutonium agreement, it can take it out of the other agreement, the highly enriched uranium agreement.

Is he seriously suggesting that it would be in the national interest of the United States for the United States to blow up an agreement—which Mr. Primakov was ready to sign this week until Kosovo got in the way—is he seriously suggesting that that should be a serious option that the administration looks at?

Mr. PACKARD. Yes, I am suggesting, if the gentleman would yield.

Mr. OBEY. Let me finish and then I will be happy to yield.

I cannot believe that any thoughtful person in this House would say it is in the United States' interest to throw away the agreement on enriched uranium that we are about to get, that the Russians have already agreed to, except for signature.

The second point I would like to make, the gentleman says we have got a lot of Members who would rather see this money used in this country. I would say I am not at all worried about uranium and plutonium in American hands. I am very worried about uranium and plutonium in Russian hands, because their scientists and their military people have not been paid for months, and we are worried that for a small expenditure of money, they might very well be willing to supply some of that material to terrorist organizations around the world. I would suggest that anyone who believes that it is more important to worry about fissile material in the United States versus fissile material in the hands of the Russians simply does not understand the history of the last 50 years.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, I recognize that he feels that this Member is not a thoughtful Member of this body because I disagree with him on this issue, but the fact is the President does have the option to determine where the priorities are in terms of the $325 million project versus the $200 million plutonium project. He has that option. If it is more important to fund the highly enriched uranium program, he can do that. But obviously he does not feel it is.

Mr. OBEY. Taking back my time, I would simply say it is crucial that we get both agreements. If you are blown up in a nuclear explosion which is delivered to this country by a terrorist organization, it does not much matter whether the bomb was made out of uranium or plutonium. You are just as dead. That is why we need both agreements.

Mr. PACKARD. If the gentleman would yield further, in reference to the matter of the highly enriched uranium, again there is not a threat there because the uranium is here in the United States. So the money can be devoted to the plutonium program if that is what the administration chooses. The threat is not there for the highly enriched uranium. We may disagree on the issue.

The fact is, also, in reference to people wanting to have the money spent here, we are not neglecting Russian programs. The fact is we have a crisis on disposal of nuclear waste in this country and we have not solved that problem. We ought not to solve that problem in another country before we solve it in our own country.

Mr. OBEY. Again taking back my time, I would simply say, Mr. Chairman, that the threat to the security of the United States, to the survival of the United States, comes from nuclear weapons. The gentleman's party seems to be very concerned about building a Star Wars program at huge expense to defend us from nuclear weapons but they apparently are not willing to proceed as fast as possible to get tons of plutonium out of the hands of the people who might be firing those weapons. With all due respect, that dichotomy makes no sense.

Mr. PACKARD. If the gentleman would yield further, if our committee were neglecting the programs that we are talking about in Russia, it would be a different story. But we are not. We are funding significant amounts every year with the American taxpayers' dollars to build facilities to dispose of enriched uranium and plutonium in Russia, not here.

Mr. OBEY. With all due respect, I think the gentleman is dead wrong on the issue.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to support the Obey amendment to H.R. 1141, the Supplemental Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 1999.

This supplemental bill was supposed to have been a bipartisan effort to provide desperately needed funds to assist American farmers, respond to hurricane damage in Central America and the Caribbean, support the new government of Jordan and correct the amount of money appropriated to the Office of Minority Health. Unfortunately, this bill now contains provisions masquerading as offsets that are both unnecessary and harmful. So much for bipartisanship.

As the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Domestic and International Monetary Policy of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, I am particularly concerned about a provision that would rescind $648 million in funds that were previously appropriated to guarantee the solvency of multilateral development banks. Neither the Committee on Banking and Financial Services nor my subcommittee were ever given an opportunity to consider this controversial rescission.

There are three multilateral development banks—the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, and the Inter-American Development Bank—that provide loans to developing countries to promote economic growth and development. These banks have collected guarantees from the United States to sell bonds to commercial banks. The development banks use the proceeds from these bond sales to make their loans to developing countries. These guarantees, known as callable capital, ensure that the bank's lenders will be repaid even if a substantial portion of the loans made by the banks are not repaid.

Prior to 1981, the United States appropriated funds to provide for our share of the callable capital of the multilateral development banks. The development banks have always been able to repay their bonds on time without calling upon the United States. The United States Government's guarantees to these banks have never cost the American taxpayers one dime.

The supplemental appropriations bill includes a provision to rescind a portion of the banks' callable capital. The Republican supporters of this provision claim that it is an offset for the emergency spending in the bill. However, this is smoke and mirrors. This provision does not actually save any money and cannot be considered an offset.

Since the United States has never had to provide any money to the multilateral development banks to cover their bonds, there were never any outlays. Furthermore, it is unlikely that there ever will be any outlays. In other words, the supplemental appropriations act is rescinding money that would never have been spent, anyway. The proposed rescission of callable capital contained in the supplemental bill will have no effect whatsoever on the size of the budget surplus. Shame on them for making people think that this is a legitimate offset that is going to save some money.

Although the rescission of callable capital will not increase the budget surplus, it will, however, jeopardize the effective operation of the multilateral development banks. If the United States rescinds any of its callable capital, it will be a signal to worldwide financial markets that the United States may no longer be willing to meet its international financial obligations.

Over the past 50 years, loans to developing countries from the multilateral development banks have promoted economic growth and created new businesses and job opportunities as well as markets for American exports. These banks are especially important to the world economy today. Many nations in Asia and Latin America are facing a serious economic and financial crisis. They are dependent on loans from the banks to stabilize their currencies and allow their economies to recover. Asia and Latin American markets are desperately in need of this capital.

□ 1500

Let me just close my remarks by saying this was supposed to be a bipartisan effort, and the American farmers, the agricultural community that both sides of the aisle claim they care so much about, stand to benefit. That is Republicans and Democrats alike. If they mess up this supplemental appropriation by insisting on these offsets, they are going to hurt the very people that they are always mouthing off about that they care so much about.

Let us stop playing games. Let us stop with the smoke and mirrors about offsets that do not realize one single dime, one single cent. Let us get on with the business of a supplemental appropriation bill. We will do what we started out to do.

Mr. OLVER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, this has been a long debate already, and it is about a topic that I guess every one of us on both sides of the aisle basically agrees that the human disasters that brought this bill to the floor in the first place were true emergencies. The devastating flood in Central America where Hurricane Mitch left 9,000 dead, 9,000 more missing, 13,000 injured and over 3 million homeless, the region's economy and its infrastructure and its environment has been totally devastated; and the second human disaster, namely the collapse of farm prices here at home, across the heartland of America where rural Americans are losing their farms and their livelihoods and their homes.

Under those circumstances, with true emergencies, we could well have funded these emergencies without the shenanigans that are going on here, but this bill finances our response to these crises with offsets which themselves have disaster written all over them, and I would just want to talk about one of these. I support the Obey amendment, which covers four of them, but I particularly wanted to talk about one of them that I consider to be the most dangerous, and that is the cut of $150 million for nuclear disarmament nonproliferation programs with Russia.

Last year the Congress provided the Energy Department with $525 million, we have talked about it, to dismantle nuclear warheads, dispose of excess weapons-grade plutonium and enriched uranium, mostly in Russia. Some was actually here in the U.S. Well, this $525 million supports two of the most important "swords into plowshares" agreements reached by the United States and Russia since the end of the Cold War. And the critical $200 million of it, although we have had at least one suggestion that we ought to virtually throw out the agreement that is already ready to be signed, which relates to the uranium, but I think that is not a very sensible thing to do, the critical $200 million is to be used to implement a bilateral plutonium agreement to dispose of 50 tons of weapons-grade plutonium that is currently on hand in Russia, 50 tons of weapons-grade plutonium which could make 15,000 to 20,000 nuclear weapons.

This $200 million does another job along the way. It leverages the nonproliferation contributions from others of the G-7 countries which are necessary in order if we are ever going to manage to get hold of all the plutonium that is around that might get loose among terrorists and rogue nations. The $150 million cut in these two nuclear nonproliferation programs is an extremely dangerous move, in my view, and it is certainly one that I cannot support.

Last week 317 of the Members of this House were concerned enough about the dangers of nuclear proliferation to vote in favor of deploying a national missile defense system that would cost us billions of dollars and do nothing about the possibility of terrorists getting hold of this kind of material. Today we are being asked to endorse a $150 million offset which will make more likely the transfer of weapons-usable plutonium from Russia to rogue nations like North Korea, Iraq, Iran and Libya, and surely make it more likely that it could fall into the hands of terrorists.

If we are serious about eliminating nuclear threats to our national security, and this is one way of eliminating a major nuclear threat, we should do all we can to keep nuclear weapons material from ever reaching terrorists or the rogue states. We should not cut the nuclear disarmament and nonproliferation programs. Please support the Obey amendment.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Obey amendment, and if the Obey amendment fails, in opposition to the supplemental.

Mr. Chairman, I oppose this emergency supplemental bill in its current form. I emphatically disagree with the offsets proposed by the committee. Before I address the troubling offsets included in this bill, let me comment on the nature of emergency supplemental appropriations, quote, unquote.

Emergency supplemental appropriations are by definition, and again, Mr. Chairman, I quote: discretionary appropriations that the President designates as emergency requirements and which are similarly designated by Congress in legislation subsequently enacted into law.

We anticipated the situation in which we now find ourselves and made provisions for it. Any spending designated as an emergency bill will result in discretionary spending caps being increased to accommodate the additional spending. That is in our rules.

We now are facing a serious situation which requires immediate action for American farmers who are encountering dire financial straits, and victims of natural disasters in Central America. These circumstances clearly fall in the category of needs that are urgent and immediate, unanticipated and essential; in other words, emergency requirements that deserve prompt action, without offsets.

American farmers, Mr. Chairman, are dealing with serious challenges that threaten their very existence. Not since the Dust Bowl days of the 1930's have farmers faced such severe economic difficulties. Forecasts for continuing low commodity prices in 1999 have significantly increased the demand for Department of Agriculture farm loans, as many farmers are being turned away from their normal sources of financing. The funding requested by the President is essential to finance the roughly $1.1 billion needed for spring planting.

Of equal importance, Mr. Chairman, is providing the necessary assistance to the victims of hurricanes Mitch and Georges. Mitch has already been described as the worst natural disaster in the history of the Western Hemisphere, causing over 9,000 deaths. Even before Mitch hit Central America, nearly one half of all Nicaraguans and Hondurans existed on a dollar a day or less. In the wake of Mitch's devastation it will be years before they can regain that level of poverty. This Congress needs to act expeditiously, quickly, decisively to provide relief for these victims.

Now I want to say my very good friend, the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN), the chairman of the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, stood up here just a little while ago when I was on the floor and he said the President cannot veto this bill. The President went to South America, the First Lady went to South America, some of us have gone to South America and said we are going to help, it is an emergency. We told our farmers the same thing.

My friends on the Republican side of the aisle, they make this mistake almost every year, that they have the President in a box from which he cannot extricate himself, that they are going to intimidate him, they are going to buffalo him, they are going to push him around. They wanted to push him around when the Mississippi overran its banks and thousands and thousands of Americans were displaced, and they said, "Well, we know you want the emergency aid. Yes, we know it's necessary. We know it's needed now. But we're going to put some things in the bill that we know you don't like and try to shove it down your throat."

It did not work.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HOYER. I yield to the gentleman from Florida who I know did not want to do this.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I would like to say to my friend that there is nothing in this bill that was done for that purpose. I want him to know that.

Mr. HOYER. Now I understand what the gentleman from Florida is saying, Mr. Chairman, but I respectfully disagree with him, not in the sense that he wants to shove something down his throat perhaps this time, but there are things in this bill that the President said, "I view them so seriously that I will veto this bill." Now, he has not said that personally, but the Secretary of Treasury said it, and we know he is one of the President's closest advisers.

I want to say, as the ranking member said, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), Both of us, of course, have absolutely unrestrained affection and respect for the chairman of our committee. We are pleased to have him as our chairman, and like his predecessor, Mr. LIVINGSTON, he did not want to do this. He stands here because the leadership has told him to stand here and defend this policy, which is bad policy, which is policy inconsistent with our rules, which is policy hoisted on the petard of their CATs.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER) has expired.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent for 2 additional minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Maryland?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, we have a number of other amendments that we have to consider this afternoon, and I am not going to object, but I think I will notify the Members that I have been very generous in allowing time extensions and in allowing Members to speak more than once on the same subject. I think in any future request on this amendment I will have to object, but I will not object to this one.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. I yield to the gentleman from Maryland.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, can I amend my request to an additional 5 minutes?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I wish the gentleman from Maryland would not.

The CHAIRMAN. The chair recognizes the gentleman from Maryland for 2 minutes.

Mr. HOYER. My point is this, and I will ask that the balance of my prepared comments be included in the RECORD. My point is this:

My colleagues, our neighbors sent us here to represent them and to represent America. They know we are going to play politics from time to time; that is the nature of this collegial body. But I was struck, as I said, when my friend from Alabama, who I also have great affection for and unlimited respect for, said that the President cannot veto this bill.

Why do they take this risk with peoples' lives and peoples' welfare? Why do they delay when they know that the President will veto this bill? He has shown us he will do it. He has done it before when the Mississippi floods came, and they said unless we take it their way, we are not going to give the folks in Mississippi and all up the Mississippi Delta the relief they need. We saw on television people floating around in their cities and towns.

Why do they do this? Why do they force the Committee on Appropriations to do it when their leadership on the Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) and others, and Mr. LIVINGSTON before him, said this is emergency spending, we ought to pass it, pass it now and give the relief where it is needed.

I thank the gentleman from Florida for not objecting to that extra time, and I want to say to my friend that this is an important piece of legislation, but it is also an important principle, and I would say to my chairman it is an important principle for the Committee on Appropriations itself and frankly we ought to stand as a committee and say to our friends who are not on this committee, when we have an emergency, when we need to act quickly, when we need to act without political controversy, this is the way to do it, the way the gentleman originally proposed, Mr. Chairman.

That is my point, and that is my hope for the future.

These provisions would jeopardize both this country's strong economic security and our Nation's efforts to keep weapons of mass destruction out of the hands of terrorists.

The provision to offset $648 million from money that was appropriated for the capitalization of multilateral development banks, alone will invite a veto from the White House. Treasury Secretary Rubin warned this committee of the negative impacts of this provision—significant pressure on MDB interest rates and destabilized currencies and markets in developing countries around the world.

Just last Congress, we appropriated $525 million for the safe disposition of fissionable material from Russia. Now, less than a year later, the Republican leadership has proposed to rescind a critical portion of those funds.

This will severely impede efforts to continue the dismantlement of Russian nuclear warheads and the safe disposition of plutonium extracted from their nuclear weapons. This, to say the least, is a devastating possibility. What perception do we leave the Russian negotiators with if this money is refused?

Just last week, this House passed H.R. 4 which calls for U.S. policy to deploy a national missile defense system. How can we turn around and take away funding that will assist in the deactivation of Russian warheads and keep fissionable materials out of the hands of rogue states and terrorists.

Mr. Chairman, to conclude, I cannot support the offsets included in this bill. I, therefore, must oppose it.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, this debate has gone on for a while. Most of us, virtually all of us, agree that the supplemental, the motives of the supplemental, are appropriate. We ought to have a supplemental to relieve the needs that are met in that bill. But the offsets, the offsets are the issue. We do not need, we should not need offsets at all on this supplemental appropriations bill. Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the offsets that are given to us today, specifically the cuts in the Russian plutonium disposal program, the World Bank and other development aid.

I sit on the Committee on Armed Services which is charged with providing for our Nation's security, and from where I sit these offsets are bad for our national security.

□ 1515

Last week, the House passed the bill to commit us to deploy a national missile defense system. Such a system is designed to defend against a limited ballistic missile attack, meaning a handful of missiles, from, at most, a North Korea or Iran.

That national missile defense system would cost somewhere between $18 billion and $28 billion. Last week, we committed $18 billion to $28 billion, or said we would commit that amount, to a narrow response to a limited threat.

This week, this bill cuts $150 million from a program designed to prevent excess Russian plutonium from ending up in the hands of terrorists.

Mr. Chairman, what are we doing here? What kind of defense are we providing our country when we gut a key nonproliferation program to keep nuclear materials away from terrorists, yet commit billions to an untested system to intercept missiles? It does not make sense to me.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. ALLEN. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Chairman, it has been mentioned earlier in the debate today that the Russians have over 200 metric tons. If they are inclined to sell to rogue or to terrorist groups, they would still have 150 tons after subtracting the 50 metric tons. So if they are inclined to do it, they can do it with or without this rescission.

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, the point is that this $150 million can allow us to acquire and dispose of, safely enough, fissile material to make 20,000 nuclear weapons. To take that material potentially out of the hands of terrorists is a major advance. There is no point to cutting this $150 million.

This bill also cuts funds to promote economic stability overseas and raise the standard of living in poorer countries. Our national security depends on our economic security. We do our prosperity a disservice by cutting vital funding from multilateral development banks, food aid, Russia and Eastern Europe.

Congress must not reject a cheap, wise and effective first line of defense against terrorism and nuclear weapons when just last week we chose to move ahead to a more expensive and technologically dubious line of defense.

I would just go back, I know it has been mentioned before but the Secretary of Energy Mr. Richardson has said since the Department of Energy has already negotiated an agreement to purchase uranium from Russia for $325 million, the entire cut, this entire $150 million, would have to come from the $250 million appropriated to dispose of Russian plutonium.

This is a very serious matter. I do not understand the other side. It seems clear to me dismantling Russian nuclear warheads and disposing of plutonium is solidly in the national interest. I urge my colleagues to support the Obey amendment and make the right vote for our national security.

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I just wish to add my thoughts to the remarks that have already been made. I will not take the full 5 minutes, Mr. Chairman.

Strictly, I am troubled and I say this to the chairman of the committee that my understanding is that, in fact, this committee has had every ability of working and bringing to us a basically contest-free nonprovocative motion here and that the leadership on that side has in fact imposed on us this debate and this particular decision that we must now make.

I think that the American public ought to know that and ought to know that the committee is perfectly capable of functioning and bringing things forward in a nonpartisan manner but that it is the party over there that chooses to make this into a partisan issue several days after some left Hershey under the misguided belief apparently that some chocolate was going to resolve everything and get people working on the same plane. If we are talking about doing what is in the best interest of this country's national security, then simply the vote that we took last week on national missile defense is a step away from that. It is technologically not feasible at present. The costs have not been considered and the impact it would have on treaty negotiations, I think, was not served well and not considered appropriately.

I would compound that today by saying that we are not going to put non-proliferation in the forefront of our national security interests. We are instead going to move and cut monies for a reduction in the plutonium and uranium. I think it sends the wrong message internationally. I think it sends the wrong message to the American people. In our first line of defense, we should be setting our priorities where the greatest danger lies, and we clearly are not doing that through this action.

Mr. Chairman, in closing I would note that by destabilizing the economies in Asia and elsewhere we do not do anything for our national security. This particular attempt is not in the interest of our people and I think that the motion of the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) ought to pass and I think we ought to move forward with that amendment.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Obey amendment to eliminate the funding offsets in this bill. We should not appropriate this money by putting the burden directly on the backs of our Social Security recipients.

The FY99 omnibus bill passed last October included $525 million for two Russian programs, $325 for highly enriched uranium and $200 million for plutonium disposition.

The highly enriched uranium agreement was to be signed this week with the arrival of the Russian Prime Minister. However, with his visit being canceled, the use of this $325 million remains in doubt.

Furthermore, the plutonium disposition initiative was funded at the $200 million level, but with no request from the Administration, nor any information on how the funding will be used.

Today, we have immediate needs in Central America to be funded through this bill. There is no evidence either from the Administration or the Members from the other side of the aisle, that the $200 million will be spent in fiscal year 1999. Although negotiations have begun, it appears doubtful, at best, that such funds would be spent during this fiscal year. And, although it is unlikely that any of the funds would be used in fiscal year 1999, we leave in tact $50 million which will remain available. That is $50 million in addition to the $25 million appropriated in the regular budget process—for a total of $75 million.

Once the negotiations are completed, the Administration plans to expend the $200 million over the next 2 to 3 years. I am certain we can work with the Administration once they have a plan in place to provide the necessary funds to make sure this program is adequately funded.

The record is clear. The House and Senate have consistently supported U.S. programs to protect Russian nuclear weapons materials that could fall into the hands of terrorists or rogue nations. We have supported efforts to make sure Russian scientists will not be lured away by terrorists or rogue nations. And we have supported efforts to upgrade the Soviet-designed reactors to prevent another Chernobyl type accident.

Mr. Chairman, people are suffering in Central America. Let's do the right thing and vote to provide funding for those in immediate need. But let's offset this bill, so we don't have to put the burden on those who rely on Social Security.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 201, noes 228, not voting 4, as follows:

[Roll No. 68]

AYES—201

Abercrombie	Boyd	DeFazio
Ackerman	Brady (PA)	DeGette
Allen	Brown (CA)	Delahunt
Andrews	Brown (FL)	DeLauro
Baird	Brown (OH)	Deutsch
Baldacci	Capps	Dicks
Baldwin	Capuano	Dingell
Barcia	Cardin	Dixon
Barrett (WI)	Carson	Dooley
Becerra	Clay	Doyle
Bentsen	Clayton	Edwards
Bereuter	Clement	Engel
Berkley	Clyburn	Eshoo
Berman	Conyers	Etheridge
Berry	Costello	Evans
Bishop	Coyne	Farr
Blagojevich	Cramer	Fattah
Blumenauer	Crowley	Filner
Bonior	Cummings	Ford
Borski	Danner	Frank (MA)
Boswell	Davis (FL)	Frost
Boucher	Davis (IL)	Gejdenson

Gephardt	Markey	Rothman
Gonzalez	Martinez	Roybal-Allard
Gordon	Mascara	Rush
Green (TX)	Matsui	Sabo
Gutierrez	McCarthy (MO)	Sanchez
Hall (OH)	McCarthy (NY)	Sanders
Hastings (FL)	McDermott	Sandlin
Hilliard	McGovern	Sawyer
Hinchey	McKinney	Schakowsky
Hinojosa	McNulty	Skelton
Hoefel	Meehan	Smith (WA)
Holden	Meek (FL)	Snyder
Holt	Meeks (NY)	Spratt
Hooley	Menendez	Stabenow
Hoyer	Millender	Stark
Inslee	McDonald	Strickland
Jackson (IL)	Miller, George	Tanner
Jackson-Lee	Minge	Tauscher
(TX)	Mink	Thompson (CA)
Jefferson	Moakley	Thompson (MS)
John	Mollohan	Thurman
Johnson, E. B.	Moore	Tierney
Jones (OH)	Moran (VA)	Towns
Kanjorski	Murtha	Turner
Kaptur	Nadler	Udall (CO)
Kennedy	Napolitano	Udall (NM)
Kildee	Neal	Velazquez
Kilpatrick	Oberstar	Vento
Kind (WI)	Obey	Visclosky
Klecza	Olver	Waters
Klink	Ortiz	Watt (NC)
Kucinich	Owens	Waxman
LaFalce	Pallone	Weiner
Lampson	Pascrell	Weldon (PA)
Lantos	Pastor	Wexler
Larson	Payne	Weygand
Lee	Pelosi	Wise
Levin	Phelps	Woolsey
Lewis (GA)	Pickett	Wu
Lipinski	Pomeroy	Wynn
Lofgren	Price (NC)
Lowey	Rahall
Lucas (KY)	Rangel
Luther	Reyes
Maloney (CT)	Rodriguez
Maloney (NY)	Roemer

NOES—228

Diaz-Balart	Hunter
Dickey	Hutchinson
Doggett	Hyde
Doolittle	Isakson
Dreier	Istook
Duncan	Jenkins
Dunn	Johnson (CT)
Ehlers	Johnson, Sam
Ehrlich	Jones (NC)
Emerson	Kasich
English	Kelly
Everett	King (NY)
Ewing	Kingston
Fletcher	Knollenberg
Foley	Kolbe
Forbes	Kuykendall
Fowler	LaHood
Franks (NJ)	Largent
Frelinghuysen	Latham
Galleghy	LaTourrette
Ganske	Lazio
Gekas	Leach
Gibbons	Lewis (CA)
Gilchrist	Lewis (KY)
Gillmor	Linder
Gilman	LoBiondo
Goode	Lucas (OK)
Goodlatte	Manzullo
Goodling	McCollum
Goss	McCrery
Graham	McHugh
Granger	McInnis
Green (WI)	McIntosh
Greenwood	McIntyre
Gutknecht	McKeon
Hall (TX)	Metcalf
Hansen	Mica
Hastings (WA)	Miller (FL)
Hayes	Miller, Gary
Hayworth	Moran (KS)
Hefley	Morella
Heger	Nethercutt
Hill (IN)	Ney
Hill (MT)	Northup
Hilleary	Norwood
Hobson	Nussle
Hoekstra	Ose
Horn	Oxley
Hostettler	Packard
Houghton	Paul
Hulshof	Pease

Peterson (MN)	Sanford	Tancredo
Peterson (PA)	Saxton	Tauzin
Petri	Scarborough	Taylor (MS)
Pickering	Schaffer	Taylor (NC)
Pitts	Sensenbrenner	Terry
Pombo	Sessions	Thomas
Porter	Shadeegg	Thornberry
Portman	Shaw	Thune
Pryce (OH)	Shays	Tiahrt
Quinn	Sherwood	Toomey
Radanovich	Shimkus	Traficant
Ramstad	Shuster	Upton
Regula	Simpson	Walden
Reynolds	Skeen	Walsh
Riley	Smith (MI)	Wamp
Rivers	Smith (NJ)	Watkins
Rogan	Smith (TX)	Watts (OK)
Rogers	Souder	Weldon (FL)
Rohrabacher	Spence	Weller
Ros-Lehtinen	Stearns	Whitfield
Roukema	Stenholm	Wicker
Royce	Stump	Wilson
Ryan (WI)	Sununu	Wolf
Ryun (KS)	Sweeney	Young (AK)
Salmon	Talent	Young (FL)

NOT VOTING—4

Fossella	Slaughter
Myrick	Stupak

□ 1541

Mrs. ROUKEMA, Mr. FLETCHER, and Mr. HALL of Texas changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Mr. MEEKS of New York changed his vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

□ 1545

Mr. WALSH, Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) for the purposes of holding a colloquy.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I would like to first thank the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), chairman of the Subcommittee on VA, HUD and Independent Agencies of the Committee on Appropriations and also the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the full committee chairman, for the opportunity to work on disaster assistance funds.

I say to the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH) that today I was prepared to offer a second amendment which would have transferred the Disaster Assistance For Unmet Needs Program from the Department of Housing and Urban Development to FEMA because of the various problems associated with HUD management and the ineffectiveness of this critical program.

However, after discussions with the gentleman from New York and his staff, I will not offer this amendment. Instead, I will look forward to working with the gentleman during the Conference of this bill and make this a reality.

During the Senate Appropriations Committee markup of the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill, Senators BOND and MIKULSKI successfully offered this same amendment which would have transferred funds from this important program to FEMA, the one agency which has primary responsibility for assisting and responding to all natural disasters and for administering the most primary programs of disaster assistance.

As the gentleman knows, my congressional district recently suffered a 500-year flood which resulted in tens of millions of dollars in damage to homes, property, and infrastructure. During this one-day flood, nearly 600 homes and 100 businesses were destroyed, and many more lives were devastated.

Many of the families impacted by the flood were on fixed incomes and were simply unable to rebuild and move on with their lives. While current FEMA programs have been able to provide some temporary assistance, most of the families impacted are relying on this program to receive additionally needed buy-out assistance.

Unfortunately, HUD's track record has been disappointing. In particular, HUD has been too slow in releasing funds, and they have demonstrated their unwillingness to shed more light on how grant awards are made. In short, HUD is simply the wrong agency to administer this program.

I ask the gentleman from New York (Mr. WALSH), will he be willing to work with me during the conference to see that the funding is transferred to FEMA and to direct FEMA to work to ensure that communities with legitimate unmet needs, like those in South-Central Kansas, receive such assistance as is necessary and appropriate to compensate homeowners who are eligible to receive the buy-out assistance?

Mr. WALSH, Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, let me first thank the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) for his hard work in the area of disaster assistance. I know personally that he has been active and a vocal advocate in making sure that both FEMA, and in particular this committee are fully aware of the legitimate and urgent need for additional flood disaster assistance in Kansas.

I, too, share the same concerns that the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) has expressed regarding the current management of this vital program, and I look forward to working with the gentleman from Kansas during conference to see that this program is managed more effectively.

Furthermore, I plan to work with both FEMA and the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) to ensure that the State of Kansas and, in particular, Butler, Cowley, and Sedgwick counties, receive such assistance as is necessary and appropriate to compensate homeowners who are eligible for the much-needed buy-out assistance.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from New York.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the bill through page 15, line 15 be considered as read, printed in the RECORD and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The text of the bill from page 2, line 13 through page 15, line 15 is as follows:

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT INSURANCE FUND PROGRAM ACCOUNT

For additional gross obligations for the principal amount of direct and guaranteed loans as authorized by 7 U.S.C. 1928-1929, to be available from funds in the Agricultural Credit Insurance Fund, $1,095,000,000, as follows: $350,000,000 for guaranteed farm ownership loans; $200,000,000 for direct farm ownership loans; $185,000,000 for direct farm operating loans; $185,000,000 for subsidized guaranteed farm operating loans; and $175,000,000 for emergency farm loans.

For the additional cost of direct and guaranteed farm loans, including the cost of modifying such loans as defined in section 502 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, to remain available until September 30, 2000: farm operating loans, $28,804,000, of which $12,635,000 shall be for direct loans and $16,169,000 shall be for guaranteed subsidized loans; farm ownership loans, $35,505,000, of which $29,940,000 shall be for direct loans and $5,565,000 shall be for guaranteed loans; emergency loans, $41,300,000; and administrative expenses to carry out the loan programs, $4,000,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

CHAPTER 2

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

IMMIGRATION AND NATURALIZATION SERVICE

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

ENFORCEMENT AND BORDER AFFAIRS

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses, Enforcement and Border Affairs" to support increased detention requirements for Central American criminal aliens and to address the expected influx of illegal immigrants from Central America as a result of Hurricane Mitch, $80,000,000, which shall remain available until expended and which shall be administered by the Attorney General: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

CHAPTER 3

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

MILITARY PERSONNEL

RESERVE PERSONNEL, ARMY

For an additional amount for "Reserve Personnel, Army", $8,000,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended: Provided, further, That of such amount, $5,100,000 shall be available only to the extent that an official budget request for a specific dollar amount, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress.

NATIONAL GUARD PERSONNEL, ARMY

For an additional amount for "National Guard Personnel, Army", $7,300,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended: Provided further, That of such amount, $1,300,000 shall be available only to the extent that an official budget request for a specific dollar amount, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress.

NATIONAL GUARD PERSONNEL, AIR FORCE

For an additional amount for "National Guard Personnel, Air Force", $1,000,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY

For an additional amount for "Operation and Maintenance, Army", $69,500,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY

For an additional amount for "Operation and Maintenance, Navy", $16,000,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, MARINE CORPS

For an additional amount for "Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps", $300,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR FORCE

For an additional amount for "Operation and Maintenance, Air Force", $8,800,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, DEFENSE-WIDE

For an additional amount for "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", $46,500,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OVERSEAS HUMANITARIAN, DISASTER, AND CIVIC AID

For an additional amount for "Overseas Humanitarian, Disaster, and Civic Aid", $37,500,000: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

CHAPTER 4

BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT

AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

INTERNATIONAL DISASTER ASSISTANCE

Notwithstanding section 10 of Public Law 91-672, for an additional amount for "International Disaster Assistance" for necessary expenses for international disaster relief, rehabilitation, and reconstruction assistance, pursuant to section 491 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, $25,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

OTHER BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

ECONOMIC SUPPORT FUND

Notwithstanding section 10 of Public Law 91-672, for an additional amount for "Economic Support Fund", in addition to amounts otherwise available for such purposes, to provide assistance to Jordan, $50,000,000 to become available upon enactment of this Act and to remain available until September 30, 2001: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

CENTRAL AMERICA AND THE CARIBBEAN

EMERGENCY

DISASTER RECOVERY FUND

Notwithstanding section 10 of Public Law 91-672, for necessary expenses to address the effects of hurricanes in Central America and the Caribbean and the earthquake in Colombia, $621,000,000, to remain available until September 30, 2000: Provided, That the funds appropriated under this heading shall be subject to the provisions of chapter 4 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, and, except for section 558, the provisions of title V of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(d) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)): Provided further, That up to $5,000,000 of the funds appropriated by this paragraph may be transferred to "Operating Expenses of the Agency for International Development", to remain available until September 30, 2000, to be used for administrative costs of USAID in addressing the effects of those hurricanes, of which up to $1,000,000 may be used to contract directly for the personal services of individuals in the United States: Provided further, That up to $2,000,000 of the funds appropriated by this paragraph may be transferred to "Operating Expenses of the Agency for International Development Office of Inspector General", to remain available until expended, to be used for costs of audits, inspections, and other activities associated with the expenditure of the funds appropriated by this paragraph: Provided further, That funds appropriated under this heading shall be obligated and expended subject to the regular notification procedures of the Committees on Appropriations: Provided further, That funds appropriated under this heading shall be subject to the funding ceiling contained in section 580 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in Division A, section 101(d) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)), notwithstanding section 545 of that Act: Provided further, That none of the funds appropriated under this heading may be made available for nonproject assistance: Provided further, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended: Provided further, That the entire amount shall be available only to the extent an official budget request for a specific dollar amount that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

DEBT RESTRUCTURING

Notwithstanding section 10 of Public Law 91-672, for an additional amount for "Debt Restructuring", $41,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That up to $25,000,000 may be used for a contribution to the Central America Emergency Trust Fund, administered by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development: Provided further, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE

FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT

FOREIGN MILITARY FINANCING PROGRAM

Notwithstanding section 10 of Public Law 91-672, for an additional amount for "Foreign Military Financing Program", for grants to enable the President to carry out section 23 of the Arms Export Control Act, in addition to amounts otherwise available for such purposes, for grants only for Jordan, $50,000,000 to become available upon enactment of this Act and to remain available until September 30, 2001: Provided, That funds appropriated under this heading shall be nonrepayable, notwithstanding section 23(b) and section 23(c) of the Arms Export Control Act: Provided further, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended.

GENERAL PROVISION—THIS CHAPTER

SEC. 301. The value of articles, services, and military education and training authorized as of November 15, 1998, to be drawn down by the President under the authority of section 506(a)(2) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, shall not be counted against the ceiling limitation of that section.

CHAPTER 5

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

FOREST SERVICE

RECONSTRUCTION AND CONSTRUCTION

For an additional amount for "Reconstruction and Construction", $5,611,000, to remain available until expended, to address damages from Hurricane Georges and other natural disasters in Puerto Rico: Provided, That the entire amount is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended: Provided further, That the amount provided shall be available only to the extent that an official budget request that includes designation of the entire amount as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress: Provided further, That funds in this account may be transferred to and merged with the "Forest and Rangeland Research" account and the "National Forest System" account as needed to address emergency requirements in Puerto Rico.

CHAPTER 6

OFFSETS

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

FOREIGN ASSISTANCE AND RELATED PROGRAMS

PUBLIC LAW 480 PROGRAM AND GRANT ACCOUNTS (RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under Public Law 105-277 for the cost of direct credit agreements for Public Law 480 title I credit, $30,000,000 are hereby rescinded.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY
ATOMIC ENERGY DEFENSE ACTIVITIES
OTHER DEFENSE ACTIVITIES
(RESCISSION)

Of the amount appropriated under this heading in P.L. 105-277, the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999, $150,000,000 are rescinded.

EXPORT AND INVESTMENT ASSISTANCE
FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT
TRADE AND DEVELOPMENT AGENCY
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this heading in Public Law 105-277, $5,000,000 are rescinded.

BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT
AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT
DEVELOPMENT ASSISTANCE
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this heading in Public Law 105-118 and in prior acts making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs, $40,000,000 are rescinded.

OTHER BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
ECONOMIC SUPPORT FUND
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this heading in Public Law 105-277 and in prior acts making appropriations for foreign operations, export financing, and related programs, $17,000,000 are rescinded.

ASSISTANCE FOR EASTERN EUROPE AND THE BALTIC STATES
(RESCISSION)

Of the unobligated balances of funds available under this heading, $20,000,000 are rescinded.

ASSISTANCE FOR THE NEW INDEPENDENT STATES OF THE FORMER SOVIET UNION
(RESCISSION)

Of the unobligated balances of funds available under this heading, $25,000,000 are rescinded.

MILITARY ASSISTANCE
FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT
PEACEKEEPING OPERATIONS
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this heading in Public Law 105-277, $10,000,000 are rescinded.

MULTILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE
FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT
INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS
CONTRIBUTION TO THE INTERNATIONAL BANK FOR RECONSTRUCTION AND DEVELOPMENT
GLOBAL ENVIRONMENT FACILITY
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this heading in Public Law 105-277, $25,000,000 are rescinded.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read. The Clerk read as follows:

REDUCTION IN CALLABLE CAPITAL
APPROPRIATIONS
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under the headings "Contribution to the Asian Development Bank", "Contribution to the Inter-American Development Bank", and "Contribution to the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development" for callable capital stock in Public Law 96-123 and in prior acts making appropriations for foreign assistance and related programs, a total of $648,000,000 are rescinded.

AMENDMENT NO. 4 OFFERED BY MR. TIAHRT

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 4 offered by Mr. TIAHRT:

Page 15, line 25, after the dollar amount, insert the following: "(increased by $195,000,000)".

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, the bipartisan Tiahrt-Goode-Toomey amendment will guarantee that this House will stand for integrity by keeping its promise to protect Social Security.

I want to first thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, for his commitment to this country and for his dedication to the House of Representatives. His commitment to our national defense and to our national interest is second to none.

I also want to thank the chairman for selecting me to join others in the congressional delegation he sent to Central America to survey the mass destruction brought about by Hurricane Mitch. I will never forget the stories I heard firsthand or the human trauma and unspeakable devastation that hit our neighbors to the south.

Mr. Chairman, each of us who have worked hard to balance the budget can take great pride in what we have achieved. For the first time in a generation, we have balanced the budget. The CBO estimates confirm that we will have a surplus in fiscal year 1999. However, current projections for the surplus are made up of revenues that are completely derived from the FICA tax which employees and employers pay in to cover Social Security obligations.

Why does this matter? It matters because, if we do not reduce spending by $1 for each $1 in new spending in the emergency bill, the money will be taken from Social Security, just plain and simple.

That is why I am offering this amendment today, to fully protect Social Security and to prevent this Congress from sending to the President a bill that will use money intended for Social Security but to pay for this foreign aid package.

To offset the remainder of this bill, I have chosen the same account the Committee on Appropriations selected to offset 50 percent of the bill. It is the callable capital account. This is an account that the World Bank may draw on in case of defaults on international loans. The callable capital account has over $12 billion in unobligated, underspent funds.

During the nearly 40 years of history, this account has never been used for its intended purpose. However, this account has been used previously as an offset.

In 1994, former Representative Vic Fazio successfully used $900 million in this fund to offset funding for disaster relief in California. I am simply following the lead of the Committee on Appropriations and the precedent set by a former Member from the other side of the aisle.

Mr. Chairman, I came to Congress from the aerospace industry, and I served 2 years on the Committee on National Security, and I understand very well the problems with our underfunded military. Even the President recognizes the need for additional funds. That is why this is appropriate. It is appropriate to use a foreign aid account to pay for the foreign aid disaster bill and not a Department of Defense account.

To my friends on the Committee on National Security, I will say, if we are unable to offset emergency bills, there will be no money available to cover the supplement for our Nation's defense.

So why do I come to the floor today with this amendment? My goal is to improve upon this bill. The Committee on Appropriations agreed to find offsets for 85 percent of the bill because they wanted to act responsibly and not grab over $1 billion from Social Security. My amendment simply goes the distance on the path towards financial integrity.

Other outside groups also see the significance of providing offsets for this foreign aid emergency bill in order to protect Social Security.

The policy director of the Concord Coalition, Robert Bixby in his letter to me stated "tapping into the Social Security surplus for emergencies only leads to a breakdown in fiscal discipline. . . We therefore heartily commend your efforts to ensure that the FY 99 Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill is fully offset."

In the 60 Plus Association letter to me, they said, they "enthusiastically endorse" this amendment. The United Seniors said they "strongly support" this amendment.

Each of these groups realize the importance of fully offsetting this foreign aid bill. They have heard the promises made by the President and by Congress that we would protect Social Security. That is what the Tiahrt-Goode-Toomey amendment does, fully protects Social Security.

If my colleagues agree that we should avoid using Social Security to pay for foreign aid spending, then support this amendment. If my colleagues agree that keeping Social Security safe from 85 percent of this bill is good, then they must conclude that protecting 100 percent of Social Security from this bill is even better. Mr. Chairman, it is not just the most prudent path politically, it is the right thing to do for our seniors, ourselves, and our children.

I encourage my colleagues to join with the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODE) and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY) and myself and support our bipartisan amendment.

Mr. GOODE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I want to talk just a few minutes in support of this amendment. I fully concur and commend the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) for standing up in a courageous way to fully offset this supplemental.

I can tell my colleagues, if I went back to the Fifth District of Virginia and said they have a choice between a callable capital account and Social Security, overwhelming support in the district would be in favor of Social Security.

I have heard those words repeated roundly in these halls a lot this year and a lot last year. We have heard it on the hustings all across this country. This is an opportunity to say, yes, we are going to go with Social Security first, even in supplemental situations where there is an emergency.

Mr. UPTON. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Tiahrt amendment. I have to say, and I mentioned this earlier today on the House floor, when a number of us met with the Speaker and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the new chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, earlier this year, we talked about this bill and how we would like to support it but, for a number of reasons we were not able to.

Much to the credit of Speaker Hastert, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the committee, and now the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT), we are really offsetting all of the costs of this supplemental appropriation bill. Because of that, we are not adding to the debt. We are not adding to the deficit. We are looking to make this bill work in the right way. I think all of our colleagues should support this bill and this amendment to make it even stronger than the committee reported out. I rise in strong support.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. UPTON. I yield to the gentleman from Texas.

Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, we have got to support the Tiahrt amendment. It is important that we fully, fully put aside the Social Security funds. But the Tiahrt amendment is simple, fair, and fiscally responsible.

Some of my colleagues are concerned that this amendment would affect our defense programs. With our forces committed and fighting in Kosovo, our military must be strengthened, and everybody knows that this administration has slashed military spending. We know troop levels are dangerously low, retention is short, recruiting is down, and morale is at the bottom of the barrel.

I agree Congress must step forward and reverse these trends by putting more money in our defense budget. Our fighting men and women deserve the best.

This amendment does nothing to harm this goal. The Tiahrt amendment takes $195 million of foreign aid money from a $12 billion bank account that has never been used. It takes no money away from defense. No Member should oppose taking $195 million from a $12 billion nondefense account that is not being used for anything.

I would also like to make clear that this is not a military emergency. The defense portion of this bill is a reimbursement for disaster assistance by our National Guard which it provided to our neighbors in Central America.

□ 1600

It is money that has already been spent. It is not an emergency and, therefore, should not be funded as one. I understand the concerns that some of my colleagues have, but in this case offsetting $195 million from nondefense accounts is practicable, is reasonable and is fiscally responsible, not dangerous.

We are in Washington to be responsible. The Tiahrt amendment simply allows us to keep our promise to the American people that we will stop big government spending. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment today. It is good for America.

Mr. UPTON. Reclaiming my time, Mr. Chairman, I would just like to point out that this is a small step but it is a small step in the right direction. Full accountability, full offsets, keeping our promise to the American taxpayer is something that I think we all believe in here, and if we are going to be a fiscal conservative and think about the dollars going out, we have to support this amendment to make sure it is 100 percent pure.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I am going to say this only once. Do my colleagues know how many dollars are saved for Social Security by the Tiahrt amendment? Not one dime. Do my colleagues know how many dollars are saved that would otherwise be spent under the Tiahrt amendment? Not one dime. Do my colleagues know how many dollars are saved that would otherwise be added to the deficit if the Tiahrt amendment passes? Not one dime.

The fact is that callable capital to our international financial institutions, is appropriated but it is never spent. There is never an outlay expenditure. When we measure the deficit, what we measure is not what the government thinks about spending. What we measure is what the government actually spends, and that is called an outlay.

If we take a look at this committee report, if we take a look at the Congressional Budget Office scoring of this bill, we will see that the Tiahrt amendment saves not one dime for Social Security or the deficit or anything else because this money was not scheduled to be outlaid. The only way that we can measure savings is on the outlay side. And since there were never going to be any outlays, there are no savings.

The gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT), by his amendment, is suggesting to the House that $195 million will not be spent that otherwise would be spent. That is false. Callable capital, by its nature, is never meant to be spent. So if anyone says that they are saving one dime for Social Security or saving one dime for the surplus or the deficit by the Tiahrt amendment, they are telling this House something that simply is not true.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. OBEY. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. FARR of California. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me, and I rise in opposition to the Tiahrt amendment. And with all due respect, I went on the same trip with the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) to Honduras, but his amendment does not help the situation in Honduras nor does it help the situation at home.

We have letters from the Department of Treasury, we have letters from the Bretton Woods committee suggesting that his amendment would indeed create financial risk. The logic of saying that we are going to protect Social Security when we are going to put the whole market at financial risk is just not practical.

The bill, as the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) just indicated, does not fully offset the outlays in terms of new spending, because the bill will be measured by outlays, not by the Tiahrt amendment. This amendment does damage, not good; it does not protect and it does not get the funds to Central America which need it badly right now.

Mr. Chairman, I urge opposition to the Tiahrt amendment.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, and in closing, let me simply say this bill, if it passes, will actually add $445 million to the deficit, and the Tiahrt amendment, if it is adopted, will not save one dime of that number.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words and, hopefully, in the process of doing so, have a dialogue with my friend, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TODD TIAHRT).

I would hope in the process of this discussion I might urge my colleague to consider, at least consider, withdrawing his amendment. Let me explain why I would even begin to suggest that this might be appropriate when I know very well how serious the gentleman is about this amendment and how hard he has worked to develop it.

The circumstances in Central America are critical circumstances involving humanitarian efforts that very much relate to our efforts to build relations south of our border. At the peak following that disaster we had some 5,000 troops in the region. We have flown nearly 1,000 humanitarian air sorties there. We have rescued over a thousand people from floods. The military was involved in building temporary bridges that allowed lifelines, food and medicine, to be delivered. Indeed, there are hundreds of temporary structures built by those military personnel in an effort to respond to this emergency.

These are not classic military activities, but, nonetheless, we raised the American flag there in defense of the well-being of a sizable population of our neighbors for reasons well beyond just the humanitarian reasons alone. The American military is oftentimes the only one who can respond quickly enough and effectively enough to get the life saving job done.

In this case we are talking about the prospects of an offset that arguably is not really an offset. It is very clear when we are dealing with callable capital that we do not impact funds that might be available for Social Security, and I would urge us to be very careful about further discussion about that possible implication.

The reason for my touching on the edges of suggesting that the gentleman might consider responsibly to withdraw the amendment involves the fact that at this very moment American troops and materiel are involved in an incursion in Kosovo, a very, very serious circumstance where, in combination with our allies in NATO, we are involved in an effort that could cost not hundreds of millions of dollars, but a billion dollars or more.

Let me make this point to my colleague. Indeed, the amendment that the gentleman has before us could be a very serious precedent that could impact future requirements as it relates to Kosovo.

One of the most impressive experiences I have had in the time I have been in Congress has taken place over the last 10 days, an experience in which the President of the United States has invited Members from both bodies to the White House and, together, we have spent almost 10 hours discussing questions which swirl around how we meet the challenges in Kosovo and the Balkans. Democrats and Republicans from both bodies argued on both sides of our being involved. It was a very, very healthy discussion, bringing us to the point where there was a very healthy debate last evening in the other body, after which, finally, a vote took place in which support was given for America's effort, along with our NATO allies, in that region.

Today, we find ourselves in a circumstance where, indeed, action is moving forward. It is very important that the debate we have from this point forward be as nonpartisan, as positive as possible, and as nonsensational as possible. And, indeed, we must recognize as we go forward that there will be very real military costs. There will be a bill one day soon that will request a supplemental that may involve the kinds of dollars that I was describing earlier, maybe as much as $2 billion.

Indeed, if one were to begin to talk about offsetting that expenditure, either from social programs, from callable capital or otherwise, we could find ourselves in a debate that could undermine our ability to respond to that very critical circumstance.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) has expired.

(By unanimous consent, Mr. LEWIS of California was allowed to proceed for 2 additional minutes.)

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, this is the very time that we need to bring the House together with a unified voice in support of our troops in Kosovo and in the Balkans and, indeed, exercise our responsibility to lead in the world at this very important moment.

So I would urge my colleague to consider the question, a precedent, that says a $195 million expenditure for an emergency in Latin America, asking for offsets in a very special category, could lead to a circumstance where $2 billion becomes the question and should there be an offset. I would ask my colleague to recognize that this may very well be before us in a very short period of time, and I would urge the gentleman to respond, if he would, briefly.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LEWIS of California. I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, first of all, I want to thank the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), chairman of the Subcommittee on Defense of the Committee on Appropriations, who is very knowledgeable about the extreme needs we have in our defense at this point in time. The gentleman brought a very sobering point; that there is currently activity going on in Kosovo where our young men and women are at risk, and I hope that we will all keep them in our thoughts and prayers.

Mr. Chairman, I am very proud of the job our soldiers have done in Central America in meeting the immediate disaster needs. My concern is that if we do not find offsets now, we will never be able to achieve the future requirements that we need for our defense, and that is why I wanted to offer this amendment. But I thank the gentleman from California for the opportunity.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I guess the point that needs to be repeated is that callable capital does not provide real offsets that provide real funding for the military.

Indeed, if we go forward with this approach, we will be further taking these kinds of monies out of the hide of our basic military requirements. If we find ourselves later attempting to pay for the Kosovo requirements in a similar fashion, it could undermine many a critical program entirely across our military base. I urge the gentleman to reconsider his amendment, otherwise I urge my colleagues to vote "no" on the gentleman's amendment.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

I stood up, Mr. Chairman, to talk again about the multilateral banks and to talk about callable capital and to try and urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle not to identify this as meaningful and real offsets. However, before I do that, I would like to join with my colleague, the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), in asking that we do nothing at this point that would prevent us from coming back with a supplemental that we may need in case we have to expand our operations or support our operations in Kosovo.

I think that is real. He is absolutely correct. We have spent a number of hours with the President, Republicans and Democrats alike, listening to and understanding what is going on there. And I think that he has done a favor to all of us by pointing out that we do not want to take this kind of action without understanding the seriousness of it.

Beyond that, I think that at this moment every member of the Congressional Black Caucus, every member of the Hispanic Caucus, every member of the Asian Caucus should be on this floor. They should be on this floor right now because what they are seeing is a precedent that will destroy the ability of developing countries to be able to have any kind of reasonable economic development and to develop.

I think every member of those caucuses, who have fought for so many years to try and be of assistance to these developing countries and develop markets there for our own economy, should come to this floor and help to make the argument why this should not go forward.

□ 1615

What is the reason for this when everybody understands now that this is not real capital, that this simply is money that would not be spent, that it is not money that is going to be added to the budget? Then why are they doing it? If they cannot answer that question, then they should not proceed with this.

This is not money that can be used to reduce the budget in any way. This is like a guarantee that in the event they are not able to pay back their loans it could be used. So if in fact the money is not going to reduce the budget, if in fact they are literally putting their foot on the necks of the most vulnerable countries in the world who desperately need the assistance of the multilateral banks, if they understand what we are trying to do in Africa and in Asia and in Central America, why then would they proceed with literally diminishing their ability to try and develop and to be independent and to feed their people and to provide markets for us? Why would they do it? It just does not make good sense.

And so, I am going to ask them, in addition to the argument that has been made about Kosovo and the possibility that we will have a supplemental bill on the floor to help out, to also think about what I am saying. Why would anybody in their right mind want to do it if they are not going to yield any dollars for them?

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. WATERS. I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentlewoman from California for yielding. And I would like to remind her that this is a precedent that was established in 1994 when a previous bill came to the floor and $902.4 million was taken out of callable capital.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, no, that is not correct.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, will the gentlewoman yield?

Ms. WATERS. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, let me simply say the statement that this is similar to what happened in 1994 is again totally, absolutely wrong. What happened in 1994 was very, very different. It did not involve rescinding one dime of obligated callable capital.

I would simply recite from the Secretary of the Treasury the following from his letter. He says, "Some have cited the 1994 rescission as a precedent for this goal. The 1994 action and the current proposal are not analogous. In 1994, the U.S. had not subscribed to paid-in capital and callable capital which were rescinded. The current proposal, however, would reach back to capital to which we have formerly subscribed and on the basis of which we have exercised voting rights for many years. This proposal has rightly become a concern of the markets."

If any Member says that this is identical to what had happened in 1994, they are either ill-informed or they are misleading the House.

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Tiahrt-Goode-Toomey amendment. Last week the House Committee on the Budget, on which I have the privilege to serve, approved the budget resolution that saves the entire Social Security surplus, 100 percent of payroll taxes, and 100 percent of interest for future budgets. It is a budget resolution we will debate on this very floor tomorrow, and it stops the reckless practice of spending Social Security payroll taxes on non-Social Security programs.

My fellow committee members and I proudly held a press conference last week declaring that this Congress for the first time would no longer spend the Social Security surplus. And we are right. Over the next 10 years, the budget resolution locks away $1.8 trillion for our seniors' retirement both for Social Security and Medicare; and that is $200 billion more than the President called for in his budget.

This budget is an important first step towards our ultimate goal of real, long-term structural reform of our Nation's retirement system; and I hope my colleagues will join me in supporting this budget later this week.

But would it not be ironic if the House passes an emergency appropriations bill that spends today's Social Security money in the same week that it passes a budget resolution that tries to save future Social Security funds? And that is exactly what will happen if the House does not adopt the Tiahrt-Goode-Toomey amendment that fully offsets the supplemental emergency appropriations bill. We have got an obligation to ensure that that does not happen.

The $1.3 billion emergency supplemental appropriations bill as written offsets all but $195 million used to reimburse the Defense Department for its response to Hurricane Mitch. Any spending not offset in this bill will come from the Social Security surplus because the Federal Government still has an on-budget deficit in fiscal year 1999. The only surplus is the Social Security surplus.

My objection is not the Defense Department. It should be reimbursed for its work. My objection is certainly not the Committee on Appropriations. They have worked hard to offset the vast majority of the emergency spending in this bill. But we have come so close. Just 15 percent of the bill is not offset. And we should finish the job.

Our amendment finishes the job. It offsets the remaining $195 million in emergency spending by rescinding budget authority for an account already used to offset in this bill. The Callable Capital Account has over $12 billion in unused budget authority. It has not been used this decade. That is why democratic Congress used this same account as an offset in 1994.

Mr. Chairman, I consistently told senior citizens in Pennsylvania's 15th Congressional District that Congress should not spend Social Security dollars on anything other than retirement. And that is exactly what we should do.

I urge my colleagues to vote for the Tiahrt-Goode-Toomey amendment.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TOOMEY. I yield to the gentleman from Kansas.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Pennsylvania for yielding.

I want to say, Mr. Chairman, that there is some impression out here that there is no money that is going to change hands here, that we are going to write a check to Central America but there is no money that is going to leave the Callable Capital Account and how this money will miraculously reappear down in Central America.

We are going to write a check to Central America and it is not going to bounce. The money is going to come from somewhere. It is either going to come from the surplus or callable capital. If it comes from the surplus, it has to come out of Social Security. It is really that simple.

I want to step back in time to 1994. In 1994, this Congress committed capital stock to the Callable Capital Account of $902.4395 million. It was committed to the Callable Capital Account. But in the piece of legislation that was called the Fiscal Year 1994 Disaster Supplemental Appropriations, we rescinded that. We took the money back.

Now, they want to say it is completely different. We were going to send capital stock, $902.4 million, and then we took it back, we rescinded it back; and now they want to say they did not have anything to do with it and it is not like it is this time. But if we look at the votes, it passed with a significant margin, 415-2.

Now, the gentlewoman said that I would like to have my foot on the neck of developing countries? Well, just a couple years ago the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) joined with the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR) and with the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and they voted for it. They voted for the very same thing they are arguing against today. And they are trying to demonize it somehow I guess by saying I want to put my foot on the neck of developing countries. Nothing could be further from the truth.

What I want to do is make sure that when we send money down to Central America that it does not come from Social Security. I want to find unobligated money, money that we can use to save Social Security. And that is what I have done with this amendment, and I urge its passage.

Mr. LaFALCE. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I am in opposition to the Tiahrt amendment. Let me try to address some of the points that have been made.

First of all, with respect to the so-called 1994 rescission. I think the distinguished gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) has pointed out the definite distinction that exists between the present case and 1994. He also cited the letter from Secretary Rubin that says, "it is like apples and oranges, you cannot compare the two".

But most importantly, the vote that he referred to was the vote in favor of the final supplemental bill. There never was a discreet vote on the particular rescission in question, and so I hardly think that that is analogous. It certainly is not precedential on today's vote.

Secondly, I do want to commend the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) because he understands the significance of what we are doing today. We might be unable in the future if we act on behalf of the Tiahrt amendment and we act on the basis of the Tiahrt amendment's underlying rationale to ever pass necessary emergency supplemental appropriations without wreaking havoc with prior past commitments. This is a dangerous precedent to get into.

Perhaps more important than anything else, it is imperative that we understand that we live in a very fragile global economy. The House Committee on Banking and Financial Services attempted in early 1997 to develop a legislative framework to deal with this fragile global economy by passing IMF legislation. It was from early 1997 until October of 1998 that we were able to pass that authorizing and appropriating legislation so that our multilateral development institutions could more appropriately deal with the deteriorating global economy.

In other words, this Congress played Russian roulette with the global economy. And we had a lot of problems in Russia, in Brazil, in addition to Asia. And now they want to do the same thing. They want to say the United States has made commitments, we have paid in those commitments, we have voted on the basis of those commitments because our voting rights are coextensive with the commitments that we have entered into, subscribed to, and paid.

And now they want to renege on them. They want to pull the carpet from underneath the IMF, the World Bank, the Asian Development Bank, the Inter-American Development Bank, etc. They want to play more Russian roulette with the global economy. This is a dangerous game to enter into.

That is why I am so pleased that the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) spoke against it. I understand he can speak for himself. The chairman of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services (Mr. LEACH) strongly opposed this I have been advised. He can speak for himself. The chairman of the Committee on Appropriations (Mr. YOUNG of Florida) might want to oppose this, too.

Clearly, Secretary Rubin said that he would strongly recommend a veto of the bill with a rescission of $640 million of callable capital. This adds $195 million more. It goes from terrible to far, far worse. This is not just veto bait. This is an absolute veto. Do not play this dangerous game.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I think we are coming to the end of this debate. I hope so because we do have other amendments.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I would have to say that I am somewhat reluctant because the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) is a very important member of our conference, a very important member of the Committee on Appropriations, and a very thoughtful and studious Member. And I do not disagree with what he is trying to do here by way of offset. But I have to tell my colleagues that I do disagree with what he is offsetting.

For some years now, starting in fiscal year 1995 up through 1999, we have had deployments of American forces overseas in my opinion some very questionable deployments that have been very costly to the American taxpayer.

In that time period, we spent $5.2 billion in Iraq, and that is after Desert Storm was over. $9 billion in Bosnia. That was a deployment that was supposedly going to last for a year but is still going on today. It was supposedly going to cost a billion dollars. It has already cost us $9 billion. In Haiti, Somalia, Rwanda, Cuba, Korea and others we have spent another billion dollars for deployments of U.S. forces.

In the fiscal year 2000 budget sent here by the White House, there is another $1.8 billion for Bosnia, another $1.1 billion for Iraq. That does not include the $300 million that we used in Desert Fox in that 3-day campaign against Saddam. And this total does not include what is going on in Kosovo today. And this whole thing in Kosovo could cost as much in one deployment as all these other numbers that I have mentioned because the situation in Kosovo could become far, far more dangerous and serious than what we have dealt with so far.

The point I am making here by reciting these numbers, we were asked to offset most of these monies and most of them were offset from the budget of the Army and the Navy and the Air Force and the Marine Corps.

□ 1630

We already have a declining investment in our national security. We already have many airplanes that cannot fly because of a lack of spare parts. We have housing needs for our troops that are terrible, places that Members would not let one of their kids live and they would not live but some of our kids in the military are living. We have 11,000 of our kids on food stamps. That is not right. We need to do more for our military and the men and women who serve in the military.

I have stated as chairman of this committee, I am going to object to offsetting money for the Defense Department when it is used in a national security deployment or an emergency other than for our own national defense requirements. And so I would say to the gentleman from Kansas that I do not really like to oppose his amendment, but we have got to make a stand somewhere on the issue of national defense. Our party in this Congress has made a strong statement on national defense.

Tomorrow during the debate on the budget, Members will find that there is a very serious problem with national defense, not so much from the standpoint of budget authority but the outlay figure is going to be unworkable. We have got to put a stop to offsetting anything from the defense budget. We need to be increasing our investment in our national defense. I do not want to set the precedent that we are going to offset these type of deployments. This was a true emergency. American soldiers went to Central America, and they saved lives and they made it possible for people to have sanitary conditions. They made it possible to get medical care. This money is to replace the funds that they spent.

At this point in the RECORD I want to insert a letter from General Wilhelm describing the trip that our delegation took to Honduras. It provides insight into the terrible conditions there and the great job our troops did. I have eliminated some portions of his letter as a matter of confidentiality.

Mr. Chairman, I must reluctantly oppose the Tiahrt amendment on the principle of we are not doing enough today for our national security effort, we need to do more, and we have got to stop raiding the budget as it relates to national defense deployments.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE,

U.S. SOUTHERN COMMAND,

Miami, FL, March 8, 1999.

Hon. C.W. BILL YOUNG,

Chairman, Majority Members, Committee on Appropriations, Washington, DC.

DEAR CHAIRMAN YOUNG: Mr. Chairman, I am deeply grateful for the personal interest that you have taken in our humanitarian and disaster relief operations in Central America. I regret that other obligations prevented you from traveling to the region this past weekend, but the committee and its interests were well represented by Congressmen Hobson, Tiahrt and Farr. I wanted to take just a moment to share with you my impressions of the visit and the status of Department of Defense humanitarian assistance/disaster relief operations.

While enroute to Honduras on Friday, I gave the delegation a detailed overview of DOD activities in the region to date. I started with our life saving and life sustaining activities during the first 30 days of the crisis when members of our Armed Forces plucked 1,052 men, women and children literally from death's door, delivered three and a quarter million pounds of food to communities cut off from the rest of their countries and the world by flood waters, and provided 65 tons of medical supplies and the clean water needed to successfully stave off feared epidemics of cholera, typhus and vector borne diseases which would have claimed many more lives. To place the disaster in an historic perspective, I mentioned that the 17,000 plus dead and missing in Central America equate to all of our losses in the Korean War. I stressed, however, that these grim statistics are parts of a closed chapter in our humanitarian assistance and disaster relief operations. I emphasized that four months have passed since Hurricane Mitch unleashed as much as seven feet of rain in less than five days on portions of Northern Honduras and turned it into an inland sea; that the waters have subsided, the dead have been recovered and buried, and that Hondurans, Americans and the international community have been working around the clock to replace despair with hope and restore some degree of normalcy to the region. The bottom line as I expressed it to the delegation was that rather than the absolute desolation and devastation that they would have seen during late October and early November, they would see an unfolding success story as key infrastructure is restored or recreated. Over the next two days, as we drove through Tegucigalpa and overflowed or visited hundreds of miles of the North Coast, I hope these observations were reinforced.

Upon our arrival in Tegucigalpa on Friday we immediately boarded helicopters and conducted an aerial and ground tour of key bridge and other rehabilitation sites in and around the Capital City. The members were given a bird's eye view of a representative sample of the projects that were undertaken to reconnect Tegucigalpa with the rest of the country. This was an early priority for forces from the U.S., Mexico and other international participants in the relief effort. The effort in and around the Capital was sustained by the U.S. after withdrawal of other international contingents in mid-November. Among other projects, the members viewed the Juan Molina Bridge which will be a key point of interest during the Presidential visit. Upon landing, the USAID representative gave the CODEL a guided tour of temporary resettlement housing, after which we proceeded to the Presidential Palace for an extended and very significant meeting with President Flores that I will discuss later in some detail.

On the second day of the visit we again boarded U.S. Army and National Guard Blackhawk helicopters, one of which was piloted by a Chief Warrant Officer who had flown some of the critical early life saving missions. His inflight commentary was invaluable. During our lengthy overflight of the north coast the delegation was able to view at least a cross section of the infrastructure repairs that have been made throughout Central America during the second or "rehabilitation" phase of our operations. We landed and walked across bridges built by our engineers. We watched commerce laden 18-wheel tractor-trailers rumble over culvert bypasses that U.S. troops have built over rivers pending the reconstruction of permanent bridges. The members took the time to flag down passing pickup trucks and talk about conditions in Honduras with the simple people from the countryside who have been most affected by the disaster. I'm sure they will pass along to you the comments made by "mainstream" Central Americans about our presence and what it has achieved.

Later in the day, we landed in northeastern Honduras and the members had the opportunity to visit a base camp established by members of the Guard and Reserve who are supporting the third and final phase of our engagement, the expanded New Horizons Exercise program. During this phase approximately 23,000 engineers, medics and support personnel from the Guard and Reserve will deploy to the region in two-three week increments during which they will build 33 schools and 12 clinics, drill 27 high capacity wells, repair and rehabilitate more bridges, bypasses and secondary roads and conduct medical, dental and veterinary outreach programs that will touch from 70,000 to 100,000 Central American men, women and children in remote parts of the countryside. I expect the members will describe to you the outstanding organization of the base camps, the uniformly high morale and positive attitudes of the troops involved in this undertaking, and the relevance of the work they will do.

I would like to mention two specific events that took place during the visit that I considered to be particularly meaningful. The first was the CODEL's visit with President Flores on Friday evening.

I was pleased and surprised when the 45-minute planned visit by the CODEL stretched out for an hour and a half, going well into the evening. I have never seen the President as relaxed, cordial or communicative as I saw him Friday night. Congressman Hobson speculated that perhaps this was because he found himself in the company of fellow elected officials as compared and contrasted with career diplomats and senior military officers. In sum, I think the members of the Delegation built a remarkable instant rapport with President Flores, put him at ease, and received from him a very personal, open and unabridged assessment of conditions past, present and future in Honduras.

The second event was a "casual conversation" that Congressman Hobson and I had with * * *. This exchange was significant because it involved a member of the private sector, well placed in the business community, with no real personal or professional ties to the Flores administration. Congressman Hobson asked * * * very directly what he, as a businessman, thought the United States should and should not do for Honduras. I found * * * 15 minute answer very instructive and more than a little bit reassuring from a DOD standpoint. * * * stated emphatically, that our emphasis should be on infrastructure repair and development. He mentioned specifically reinstallation of bridges and repair of secondary and tertiary farm-to-market roads. He stated emphatically that we should not give Honduras "checks". In his words "we are lousy managers," and he went on to assert that between local politics and bureaucracy there was reason for concern that this type of aid would not accomplish the purposes for which it is intended. I should add that * * * had absolutely nothing disparaging to say about the Flores administration. In fact, he later volunteered to me that he thought this was a fundamentally honest government doing its best to cope with a difficult situation. Congressman Hobson and I took these comments on board with considerable interest because this gentleman had no ax to grind. This was another example of the value of congressional visits. The conversation between Mr. Hobson and * * * was essentially one that took place between two businessmen. They spoke the same language and it provided some unique perspectives on the issues and decisions that confront us.

I believe that my testimony before Chairman Lewis and the members of the Western Hemisphere Subcommittee last week was timely and their questions were very relevant. This visit was a useful adjunct. I'm sure that the points that I emphasized at the hearing and to this CODEL will come as no surprise. First, I think DOD resources are being applied in precisely the right way in Central America. We arrived in force on the front end of the crisis and provided the emergency support and assistance that only DOD can provide. We are now concluding the second phase of our involvement during which we have exploited our unique expeditionary capabilities, assisting the host nations to regain their equilibrium and restoring their ability to provide for the essential health and welfare needs of their people. Finally, as the third phase unwinds we will revert to our normal engagement activities but at a higher tempo and intensity. At the end of this phase we will resume normal activities in the region and complete the DOD disengagement that has occasionally eluded us at other times in other places. I am firmly convinced that if we skillfully play this hand out, at the end of the day we will emerge with a significantly strengthened posture in the region and with a "good will account" on which we may be able to write checks from some time to come.

Mr. Chairman, as you know better than most, none of this has been free. During the three phases of the operation, DOD will write checks totaling about $215.3M. I hope that you will be able to provide supplemental funding for these unanticipated and unfunded requirements. If required to provide offsets, I'm afraid there will be little recourse other than to extort funds from our readiness accounts and other programs that support and sustain our regional strategies. As you know, time is of the essence because at this moment important accounts that support other crucial worldwide engagement programs have been frozen to underwrite our expenses in Central America. As examples, because the $50M Overseas Humanitarian Disaster and Civic Aid (OHDACA) account is encumbered, we lack resources to pursue important, high visibility humanitarian demining programs throughout our region and around the world. Because the $20M CINCs Initiative Fund (CIF) is similarly committed, I have been unable to proceed with the publication of a crucial human rights handbook and training program that is designed to help the Colombian military overcome its deficiencies in that very contentious area. These are merely illustrative of stalled initiatives in Southern Command. The list could go on and on with other examples for EUCOM, PACOM, CENTCOM and ACOM.

I learned this morning that you are considering a visit to the region, perhaps during the third week of this month. I hope this can be arranged and I am clearing my calendar to accompany you, assuming I can wrangle an invitation. I believe you would gain valuable insights by observing what has been done and what is being done by DOD and others to help Central America get back on its feet. As I mentioned to Congressmen Hobson, Tiahrt and Farr on several occasions, it is important that we not lose sight of the fact that during the decades of the 70's and 80's Central America was engulfed by civil wars and was anything but a bastion of democracy. Today, all the nations are led by heads of state who serve at the pleasure of the people and all have market economics. However, these institutions are fragile and immature. We need to help them over the rough spots, and there is more than a little self-interest at stake. As I asserted in my annual posture statement, "In a larger strategic context, this unparalleled theater engagement opportunity may stem waves of migrants who might otherwise seek to rebuild their lives in the United States or neighboring countries." Again, many thanks for your interest in our region and for your support of DOD.

Very respectfully,

C.E. WILHELM,
General, U.S. Marine Corps,
Commander in Chief, U.S. Southern Command.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of personal privilege.

The gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) took the floor—

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman will suspend. A question of personal privilege may not be raised in the Committee of the Whole.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to proceed for 1 minute to correct the record.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California to speak out of order?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, reserving the right to object, I wonder if I could inquire whether this relates to the debate. It is getting late. There are other amendments to be considered. I am not going to object if it relates to the debate that we are having, but if it is on a personal matter, the gentlewoman might want to take it up with the Member in question.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I would not be here unless it related to the debate that we are involved in.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS) is recognized for 1 minute.

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Kansas indicated that I had voted for such an action as he is prescribing for the offsets. There is a letter that has been disseminated by Secretary Rubin that says, "The 1994 action and the current proposal are not analogous. In 1994, the U.S. had not subscribed the paid-in and callable capital which were rescinded. The current proposal, however, would reach back to capital to which we have formally subscribed and on the basis of which we have exercised voting rights for many years. This proposal has rightly become a concern of the markets."

For the record, it should be clear that it is not analogous and that I and others did not vote for money that had already been appropriated.

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

(Mr. CALLAHAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CALLAHAN. Mr. Chairman, let me once again address the chair, as I think the rules tell us we should do, and to sort of give a brief history of where we are with respect to the amendment of the gentleman from Kansas.

The Republican Conference and others came to us and asked us to offset this emergency supplemental spending bill. Originally I was opposed to it, but when we finally agreed to it, we found areas within our scope of jurisdiction in foreign operations to offset every single penny of foreign assistance. We found ways to offset the necessary money for Jordan. We found ways to offset all of the money for the problems with respect to aid to Central America, and we found them within our own jurisdiction, our own little pot of money that we have that we call foreign operations. I think that that was a responsible thing to do and it is exactly what we did.

Now comes the gentleman from Kansas, and I know his mission is noble and I do not question that, but I think if he wants to find offsets, he should recognize that those of us on this small subcommittee of the Congress and the Committee on Appropriations have found our offset within our jurisdiction, within our little area of responsibility. Now he is saying, take some more money out of foreign assistance and give it to the military. Maybe that is right, maybe it is wrong. I think it is wrong. If he wants to find offsets from some other area, that is fine with me. But I think that history will show us that for the last 4 years that we have acted very responsibly with respect to foreign assistance. We have cut the President's request every year by more than $1 billion every year since I have been chairman of this subcommittee. We are probably going to cut his budget even more so this year, maybe as much as 3 or $4 billion. We are doing the responsible thing. We did exactly what the people of our own conference requested; we found offsets. We found them within our area of jurisdiction.

I think if the gentleman from Kansas wants to find additional moneys to offset the military portion of it, he should do it elsewhere. I happen to agree with the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) with respect to the fact that we are going to have to have another supplemental bill in just a few short months to handle this situation in Kosovo. And to raid the foreign operations account which has been handled in an admirable and I think efficient manner during the last 4 years is wrong.

I would urge my colleagues to vote against the Tiahrt amendment.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the requisite number of words.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Tiahrt amendment. As chairman of the Committee on International Relations, I cannot support gutting the funding of the International Financial Institutions. I want to remind my colleagues that these financial institutions help guarantee the IRAs of millions of Americans whose mutual funds are invested in Asia. Currently we have a financial crisis in Asia that the financial institutions are key to combating. We are currently conducting military operations in Iraq and in Kosovo. We cannot afford an Asian crisis on top of those costly operations. This is the wrong time to undercut our financial institutions which are supporting reforms in Indonesia and in South Korea. In Korea, we face a crisis in North Korea and the strength of our South Korean ally's economy is critical to deterring aggression in that area.

I join with the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN) in strongly opposing this amendment. Cutting callable capital is not the way to save a dime but can trigger yet a third crisis that could involve our troops in Asia. Let us stick with the bill as drafted by the gentleman from Florida, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

I commend the gentleman from Kansas for defending Social Security. I support that goal. But cutting callable capital for these institutions will not save one dime for Social Security. Let us work on reductions in other accounts not directly related to our Nation's security.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the debate on this amendment be limited to 15 minutes and that the time be equally divided, with the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) controlling 7½ minutes and that I would control the other 7½ minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. It is understood that the limitation is on the amendment and any amendments thereto.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Yes, that is correct.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) will each control 7½ minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT).

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SHADEGG).

Mr. SHADEGG. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise in very strong support of the bipartisan Tiahrt-Goode amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I want to begin by complimenting the Committee on Appropriations on their work. They did a tremendous job of offsetting 85 percent of this supplemental appropriation and they are to be complimented for that. But in point of fact, it is possible to offset the balance, to offset 15 percent. I think the most eloquent spokesman on that point was my Democratic colleague the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. GOODE) who pointed out quite clearly that if we went home to Americans and asked them, do they want this additional $195 million which would be offset by the bipartisan Tiahrt-Goode amendment, do they want that taken out of the callable capital account, an account which has never been used by the World Bank, or do they want that taken out of Social Security, their answer would be very clear, they do not want it taken out of Social Security, they want it taken out of the callable capital account.

There is a very good reason for that. This is an account which is there for the World Bank to draw on as a backstop. But as the gentleman from Alabama (Mr. CALLAHAN) pointed out earlier, the United States is unique in the world in its funding of this account. Every other country participating in this account pledged their credit to fund the account if ever called upon. The United States by contrast put up the money. The money is sitting there and right now not being used for any purpose. It can clearly be used to offset the remaining 15 percent of the bill, of the emergency spending bill, and protect Social Security.

For the gentleman from Alabama who says we should not do this and for the chairman of the Committee on International Relations, I would point out that in 1994 an amendment passed this House, sponsored by Mr. FAZIO of the other side, going into the callable capital account to the tune of $902 million. Now, if it was okay in 1994 to dip into that fund for $902 million, tell me why then it is not appropriate to keep our word to the American people on Social Security, to dip into it now for a total of $843 million which is the figure which would occur if the Tiahrt amendment passes?

The simple truth is that we can dip into that account, the callable capital account, and protect Social Security. To my friend from the other side who was very offended that we are breaking our word to the world by not funding this account, where is it more important, that we would break our word, which, by the way, we are not breaking our word because we have put up the cash—the rest of the world has only put up their promise—but what about our promise to the American people that we would fund the Social Security trust fund?

I suggest that the Tiahrt amendment keeps faith with the American people. It keeps faith with our national accounts. The callable capital account is an account which has never in its 40-year history been dipped into. I suggest that Members of this body interested in protecting Social Security without a risk should support the bipartisan Tiahrt-Goode amendment.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I have the great privilege of representing a congressional district that has more people receiving Social Security checks every month than almost everybody else in this Chamber. I can promise Members that I would not cast a vote or take a position here that in my opinion would be detrimental to the Social Security program. To the contrary, I recall a few years back when Ronald Reagan was President, we had a very large tax increase to save the Social Security, and despite much criticism from many people in my district, I voted for that as a commitment to Social Security.

Tomorrow we are going to be debating the budget resolution where we talk about how much we will set aside for Social Security. I am going to support every effort to protect the Social Security program and to set aside all of the FICA tax because that is why we created that tax in the first place. We are dealing with fiscal year 1999 money here. We are not dealing with next year's budget surpluses or anything like that. We are dealing with fiscal year 1999 money.

I ask my colleagues to oppose this amendment. The bill as presented by the committee which the House has supported to this point is a good bill. The offsets are reasonable and responsible. I am concerned, as I said just a few minutes ago, that we would begin the precedent over again of offsetting from our defense requirements and our defense needs and the needs of the men and women who serve in our military. I do not want to begin the precedent of offsetting their extraordinary deployments that they are required to attend.

Mr. Chairman, I ask for not only opposition to this amendment but I ask for support of the bill. Let us get this bill into conference and let us get the bill to the President and let us get the support to our friends in Central America where the commitments have been made.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume. I would just like to remind Members of the House that half this bill is currently offset by the callable capital account. That is a total of 85 percent of this bill that is offset. I do not find any reason why we should not offset the full amount.

I noted that the gentlewoman from California says she has a letter from Secretary Rubin. I have the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. What happened in 1994 was that the increases to capital stock going into the capital account was rescinded under the disaster bill. That vote passed by 415-2.

So a precedent was set then, and I think I am just following that precedent was set, I am following what the committee has done before, and I would encourage my colleagues to vote for the Tiahrt amendment. I think it is sound fiscal policy, it is pay-as-you-go policy, I feel strongly about these offsets that they are good offsets, and it is very much needed for the disaster down in Central America.

So I would ask for support for the Tiahrt-Goode-Toomey amendment.

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. TIAHRT. I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Chairman, I simply applaud the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT) for offering this amendment because to me what this amendment is about is simply asking the question: "Can you be one half pregnant?" I do not think that one can be. Someone either is or they are not, and what he has boldly said here is that either we are going to set aside every dime for the things that we say we are going to set aside for or we are not, because if not, though this number is small, we run down a very slippery slope on the things we end up spending for and end up not spending for.

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TIAHRT).

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. TIAHRT. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 164, noes 264, not voting 5, as follows:

[Roll No. 69]

AYES—164

Aderholt
Archer
Armey

Bachus
Ballenger
Barcia

Barr
Bartlett Barton

Bass
Billbray
Blunt
Boehlert
Boehner
Brady (TX)
Bryant
Burr
Camp
Campbell
Cannon
Castle Chabot
Chambliss
Chenoweth
Coble
Coburn
Collins
Combest
Condit
Cook
Cooksey
Cox
Crane
Cubin
Cunningham
Davis (VA)
Deal DeLay
DeMint
Dickey
Doggett
Doolittle
Duncan
Dunn
Ehlers
Ehrlich
English
Everett
Ewing
Fletcher
Foley
Forbes
Fossella
Franks (NJ)
Gallegly
Ganske
Gekas
Gibbons
Gilchrest
Gillmor
Goode

Goodlatte
Graham
Granger
Green (TX)
Green (WI)
Greenwood
Gutknecht
Hall (TX)
Hastings (WA)
Hayes
Hayworth
Hefley
Herger
Hill (MT)
Hilleary
Hoekstra
Horn
Hostettler
Hulshof
Hutchinson
Inslee
Isakson
Istook
Jenkins
Johnson, Sam
Jones (NC)
Kingston
Kucinich
LaHood
Largent
LaTourette
Lazio
Lewis (KY)
Linder
LoBiondo
Lucas (OK)
Manzullo
McCollum
McHugh
McInnis
McIntosh
McIntyre
Metcalfe
Mica
Moran (KS)
Morella
Nethercutt
Ney
Northup
Norwood
Nussle
Ose

NOES—264

Abercrombie
Ackerman
Allen
Andrews
Baird
Baker
Baldacci
Baldwin
Barrett (NE)
Barrett (WI)
Bateman
Becerra
Bentsen
Bereuter
Berkley
Berman
Berry
Biggert
Billrakis
Bishop
Blagojevich
Bliley
Blumenauer
Bonilla
Bonior
Bono Borski
Boswell
Boucher
Boyd
Brady (PA)
Brown (CA)
Brown (FL)
Brown (OH)
Burton
Buyer
Callahan
Calvert
Canady
Capps
Capuano Cardin
Carson
Clay
Clayton

Clement
Clyburn
Conyers
Costello
Coyne
Cramer
Crowley
Cummings
Danner
Davis (FL)
Davis (IL)
DeFazio
DeGette
Delahunt
DeLauro
Deutsch
Diaz-Balart
Dicks
Dingell
Dixon
Dooley
Doyle
Dreier
Edwards
Emerson
Engel
Eshoo
Etheridge
Evans
Farr
Fattah
Filner
Ford
Fowler
Frank (MA)
Frelinghuysen
Frost
Gejdenson
Gephardt
Gilman
Gonzalez
Goodling
Gordon
Goss
Gutierrez

Packard
Paul
Pease
Peterson (MN)
Petri
Pitts
Portman
Quinn
Radanovich
Royce
Ryan (WI)
Ryun (KS)
Salmon
Sanford
Scarborough
Schaffer
Sensenbrenner Sessions
Shadegg
Shaw
Shays
Sherwood
Shimkus
Smith (MI)
Smith (NJ)
Smith (TX)
Souder
Stearns
Stump
Sununu
Sweeney
Tancredo
Taylor (MS)
Taylor (NC)
Terry
Thornberry
Thune
Tiahrt
Toomey
Upton
Wamp
Watkins
Watts (OK)
Weldon (FL)
Weller
Young (AK)

Hall (OH)
Hansen
Hastings (FL)
Hill (IN)
Hilliard
Hinchey
Hinojosa
Hobson
Hoeffel
Holden
Holt
Hooley
Houghton
Hoyer
Hunter
Hyde
Jackson (IL)
Jackson-Lee
(TX)
Jefferson
John
Johnson (CT)
Johnson, E. B.
Jones (OH)
Kanjorski
Kaptur
Kasich
Kelly
Kennedy
Kildee
Kilpatrick
Kind (WI)
King (NY)
Klecza
Klink
Knollenberg
Kolbe
Kuykendall
LaFalce
Lampson
Lantos
Larson
Latham
Leach
Lee

Levin	Ortiz	Smith (WA)
Lewis (CA)	Owens	Snyder
Lewis (GA)	Oxley	Spence
Lipinski	Pallone	Spratt
Lofgren	Pascrell	Stabenow
Lowey	Pastor	Stark
Lucas (KY)	Payne	Stenholm
Luther	Pelosi	Strickland
Maloney (CT)	Phelps	Talent
Maloney (NY)	Pickering	Tanner
Markey	Pickett	Tauscher
Martinez	Pombo	Tauzin
Mascara	Pomeroy	Thomas
Matsui	Porter	Thompson (CA)
McCarthy (MO)	Price (NC)	Thompson (MS)
McCarthy (NY)	Pryce (OH)	Thurman
McCrery	Rahall	Tierney
McDermott	Rangel	Towns
McGovern	Regula	Trafigant
McKeon	Reyes	Turner
McKinney	Rivers	Udall (CO)
McNulty	Rodriguez	Udall (NM)
Meehan	Roemer	Velazquez
Meek (FL)	Rogers	Vento
Meeks (NY)	Ros-Lehtinen	Visclosky
Menendez	Rothman	Walden
Millender-	Roukema	Walsh
McDonald	Royalb-Allard	Waters
Miller (FL)	Rush	Watt (NC)
Miller, Gary	Sabo	Waxman
Miller, George	Sanchez	Weiner
Minge	Sandlin	Weldon (PA)
Mink	Sawyer	Wexler
Moakley	Saxton	Weygand
Mollohan	Schakowsky	Whitfield
Moore	Scott	Wicker
Moran (VA)	Serrano	Wilson
Murtha	Sherman	Wise
Nadler	Shows	Wolf
Napolitano	Shuster	Woolsey
Neal	Simpson	Wu
Oberstar	Sisisky	Wynn
Obey	Skeen	Young (FL)
Olver	Skeltson

NOT VOTING—5

Myrick	Sanders	Stupak
Peterson (PA)	Slaughter

□ 1704

Messrs. HINOJOSA, HILL of Indiana, SCOTT, FARR of California, GEORGE MILLER of California and Mrs. MINK of Hawaii changed their vote from "aye" to "no."

Messrs. GILCHREST, DAVIS of Virginia and BOEHLERT changed their vote from "no" to "aye."

So the amendment was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the remainder of the bill through page 36, line 10, be considered as read, printed in the RECORD, and open to amendment at any point.

The CHAIRMAN. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Florida?

There was no objection.

The text of the remainder of the bill through page 36, line 10, is as follows:

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS AND PROGRAMS
(RESCISSION)

Of the funds appropriated under this heading in Public Law 105-277, $10,000,000 are rescinded.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

PAYMENTS TO AIR CARRIERS

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

(RESCISSION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

Of the budgetary resources provided for "Small Community Air Service" by Public Law 101-508 for fiscal years prior to fiscal year 1998, $815,000 are rescinded.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION
STATE INFRASTRUCTURE BANKS

(RESCISSION)

Of the available balances under this heading, $6,500,000 are rescinded.

FEDERAL TRANSIT ADMINISTRATION
TRUST FUND SHARE OF TRANSIT PROGRAMS

(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

(RESCISSION OF CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION)

Of the budgetary resources provided for the trust fund share of transit programs in Public Law 102-240 under 49 U.S.C. 5338(a)(1), $665,000 are rescinded.

INTERSTATE TRANSFER GRANTS—TRANSIT

Of the available balances under this heading, $600,000 are rescinded.

GENERAL PROVISION—THIS TITLE

SEC. 1001. Division B, title I, chapter 1 of Public Law 105-277 is amended as follows: under the heading "Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide", strike "$1,496,600,000" and insert in lieu thereof "$1,456,600,000".

TITLE II

SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS AND RESCISSIONS

CHAPTER 1

THE JUDICIARY

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For an additional amount for "Salaries and Expenses," $921,000, to remain available until expended.

DEPARTMENT OF STATE AND RELATED AGENCIES

RELATED AGENCY

UNITED STATES INFORMATION AGENCY

BUYING POWER MAINTENANCE

(RESCISSION)

Of the unobligated balances available under this heading, $20,000,000 are rescinded.

CHAPTER 2

UNITED STATES COMMISSION ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

For necessary expenses for the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom, as authorized by title II of the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (Public Law 105-292), $3,000,000, to remain available until expended.

EXPORT AND INVESTMENT ASSISTANCE

EXPORT-IMPORT BANK OF THE UNITED STATES

(RESCISSION)

Of the unobligated balances of funds available under this heading, $25,000,000 are rescinded.

CHAPTER 3

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES

(RESCISSION)

Of the funds made available under this heading in Public Law 105-83, $6,800,000 are rescinded.

OFFICE OF THE SPECIAL TRUSTEE FOR AMERICAN INDIANS

FEDERAL TRUST PROGRAMS

For an additional amount for "Federal Trust Programs", $21,800,000, to remain available until expended, of which $6,800,000 is for activities pursuant to the Trust Management Improvement Project High Level Implementation Plan and $15,000,000 is to support litigation involving individual Indian trust accounts: Provided, That litigation support funds may, as needed, be transferred to and merged with the "Operation of Indian Programs" account in the Bureau of Indian Affairs, the "Salaries and Expenses" account in the Office of the Solicitor, the "Salaries and Expenses" account in Departmental Management, the "Royalty and Offshore Minerals Management" account in the Minerals Management Service and the "Management of Lands and Resources" account in the Bureau of Land Management.

CHAPTER 4

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

EMPLOYMENT AND TRAINING ADMINISTRATION

STATE UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE AND

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE OPERATIONS

Under this heading in section 101(f) of Public Law 105-277, strike "$3,132,076,000" and insert "$3,111,076,000" and strike "$180,933,000" and insert "$164,933,000".

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

HEALTH RESOURCES AND SERVICES

ADMINISTRATION

FEDERAL CAPITAL LOAN PROGRAM FOR NURSING

(RESCISSION)

Of the funds made available under the Federal Capital Loan Program for Nursing appropriation account, $2,800,000 are rescinded.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

EDUCATION RESEARCH, STATISTICS, AND IMPROVEMENT

(RESCISSION)

Of the funds made available under this heading in section 101(f) of Public Law 105-277, $6,800,000 are rescinded.

RELATED AGENCY

CORPORATION FOR PUBLIC BROADCASTING

For an additional amount for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, to remain available until expended, $30,600,000 to be available for fiscal year 1999, and $17,400,000 to be available for fiscal year 2000: Provided, That such funds be made available to National Public Radio, as the designated manager of the Public Radio Satellite System, for acquisition of satellite capacity.

CHAPTER 5

CONGRESSIONAL OPERATIONS

ARCHITECT OF THE CAPITOL

CAPITOL BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

HOUSE OFFICE BUILDINGS

HOUSE PAGE DORMITORY

For necessary expenses for renovations to the facility located at 501 First Street, S.E., in the District of Columbia, $3,760,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the Architect of the Capitol shall transfer to the Chief Administrative Officer of the House of Representatives such portion of the funds made available under this paragraph as may be required for expenses incurred by the Chief Administrative Officer in the renovation of the facility, subject to the approval of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives: Provided further, That section 3709 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (41 U.S.C. 5) shall not apply to the funds made available under this paragraph.

O'NEILL HOUSE OFFICE BUILDING

For necessary expenses for life safety renovations to the O'Neill House Office Building, $1,800,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That section 3709 of the Revised Statutes of the United States (41 U.S.C. 5) shall not apply to the funds made available under this paragraph.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS—THIS
CHAPTER

SEC. 501. (a) The aggregate amount otherwise authorized to be appropriated for a fiscal year for the lump-sum allowance for the Office of the Minority Leader of the House of Representatives and the aggregate amount otherwise authorized to be appropriated for a fiscal year for the lump-sum allowance for the Office of the Majority Whip of the House of Representatives shall each be increased by $333,000.

(b) This section shall apply with respect to fiscal year 2000 and each succeeding fiscal year.

SEC. 502. (a) Each office described under the heading "HOUSE LEADERSHIP OFFICES" in the Act making appropriations for the legislative branch for a fiscal year may transfer any amounts appropriated for the office under such heading among the various categories of allowances and expenses for the office under such heading.

(b) Subsection (a) shall not apply with respect to any amounts appropriated for official expenses.

(c) This section shall apply with respect to fiscal year 1999 and each succeeding fiscal year.

CHAPTER 6

POSTAL SERVICE

PAYMENTS TO THE POSTAL SERVICE FUND

For an additional amount for "Payments to the Postal Service Fund" for revenue forgone reimbursement pursuant to 39 U.S.C., 2401(d), $29,000,000.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT

UNANTICIPATED NEEDS (RESCISSION)

Of the funds made available under this heading in Public Law 101-130, the Fiscal Year 1990 Dire Emergency Supplemental to Meet the Needs of Natural Disasters of National Significance, $10,000,000 are rescinded.

CHAPTER 7

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT

COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS

Notwithstanding the 6th undesignated paragraph under the heading "COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT—COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS" in title II of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-276; 112 Stat. 2477) and the related provisions of the joint explanatory statement in the conference report to accompany such Act (Report 105-769, 105th Congress, 2d Session) referred to in such paragraph, of the amounts provided under such heading and made available for the Economic Development Initiative (EDI) for grants for targeted economic investments, $250,000 shall be for a grant to Project Restore of Los Angeles, California, for the Los Angeles City Civic Center Trust, to revitalize and redevelop the Civic Center neighborhood, and $100,000 shall be for a grant to the Southeast Rio Vista Family YMCA, for development of a child care center in the City of Huntington Park, California.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

Under this heading in Public Law 105-276, add the words, "to remain available until September 30, 2000," after $81,910,000."

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS ACT

SEC. 2001. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 2002. (a) LOAN DEFICIENCY PAYMENTS FOR CLUB WHEAT PRODUCERS.—In making loan deficiency payments available under section 135 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7235) to producers of club wheat, the Secretary of Agriculture may not assess a premium adjustment on the amount that would otherwise be computed for club wheat under the section to reflect the premium that is paid for club wheat to ensure its availability to create a blended specialty product known as western white wheat.

(b) RETROACTIVE APPLICATION.—As soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Agriculture shall make a payment to each producer of club wheat that received a discounted loan deficiency payment under section 135 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7235) before that date as a result of the assessment of a premium adjustment against club wheat. The amount of the payment for a producer shall be equal to the difference between—

(1) the loan deficiency payment that would have been made to the producer in the absence of the premium adjustment; and

(2) the loan deficiency payment actually received by the producer.

(c) FUNDING SOURCE.—The Secretary shall use funds available to provide marketing assistance loans and loan deficiency payments under subtitle C of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7231 et seq.) to make the payments required by subsection (b).

TITLE III

TECHNICAL CORRECTIONS

SEC. 3001. The Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(a) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended—

(a) in title III, under the heading "Rural Community Advancement Program, (Including Transfer of Funds)", by inserting "1926d," after "1926c,"; by inserting "306C, and 306D" after "381E(d)(2)" the first time it appears in the paragraph; and by striking "306C," as provided in 7 U.S.C. 1926(a) and 7 U.S.C. 1926C,"

(b) in title VII, in section 718 by striking "this Act" and inserting in lieu thereof "annual appropriations Acts",

(c) in title VII, in section 747 by striking "302" and inserting in lieu thereof "203", and

(d) in title VII, in section 763(b)(3) by striking "Public Law 94-265" and inserting in lieu thereof "Public Law 104-297".

SEC. 3002. Division B, title V, chapter 1 of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277) is amended under the heading "Department of Agriculture, Agriculture Research Service" by inserting after "$23,000,000," the following: "to remain available until expended,".

SEC. 3003. The Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(d) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended—

(a) in title II under the heading "Burma" by striking 'headings "Economic Support Fund" and' and inserting in lieu thereof 'headings "Child Survival and Disease Programs Fund", "Economic Support Fund" and',

(b) in title V in section 587 by striking "199-339" and inserting in lieu thereof "99-399",

(c) in title V in subsection 594(a) by striking "subparagraph (C)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (c)",

(d) in title V in subsection 594(b) by striking "subparagraph (a)" and inserting in lieu thereof "subsection (a)", and

(e) in title V in subsection 594(c) by striking "521 of the annual appropriations Act for Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs" and inserting in lieu thereof "520 of this Act".

SEC. 3004. Subsection 1706(b) of title XVII of the International Financial Institutions Act (22 U.S.C. 262r-262r-2), as added by section 614 of the Foreign Operations, Export Financing, and Related Programs Appropriations Act, 1999, is amended by striking "June 30" and inserting in lieu thereof "September 30".

SEC. 3005. The Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(e) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended—

(a) in the last proviso under the heading "United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Administrative Provisions" by striking "section 104(c)(50)(B) of the Marine Mammal Protection Act (16 U.S.C. 1361-1407)" and inserting in lieu thereof "section 104(c)(5)(B) of the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 (16 U.S.C. 1361-1407)".

(b) in section 354(a) by striking "16 U.S.C. 544(a)(2))" and inserting in lieu thereof "16 U.S.C. 544b(a)(2))".

(c) The amendments made by subsections (a) and (b) of this section shall take effect as if included in Public Law 105-277 on the date of its enactment.

SEC. 3006. The Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(f) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended—

(a) in title I, under the heading "Federal Unemployment Benefits and Allowances", by striking "during the current fiscal year" and inserting in lieu thereof "from October 1, 1998, through September 30, 1999";

(b) in title II under the heading "Office of the Secretary, General Departmental Management" by striking "$180,051,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$188,051,000";

(c) in title II under the heading "Children and Families Services Programs, (Including Rescissions)" by striking "notwithstanding section 640 (a)(6), of the funds made available for the Head Start Act, $337,500,000 shall be set aside for the Head Start Program for Families with Infants and Toddlers (Early Head Start): Provided further, That";

(d) in title II under the heading "Office of the Secretary, General Departmental Management" by inserting after the first proviso the following: "Provided further, That of the funds made available under this heading for carrying out title XX of the Public Health Service Act, $10,831,000 shall be for activities specified under section 2003(b)(2), of which $9,131,000 shall be for prevention service demonstration grants under section 510(b)(2) of title V of the Social Security Act, as amended, without application of the limitation of section 2010(c) of said title XX:"

(e) in title III under the heading "Special Education" by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph the following: "": Provided further, That $1,500,000 shall be for the recipient of funds provided by Public Law 105-78 under section 687(b)(2)(G) of the Act to provide information on diagnosis, intervention, and teaching strategies for children with disabilities";

(f) in title II under the heading "Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund" by striking "$322,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$180,000";

(g) in title III under the heading "Education Reform" by striking "$491,000,000" and inserting in lieu thereof "$459,500,000";

(h) in title III under the heading "Vocational and Adult Education" by striking "$6,000,000" the first time that it appears and inserting in lieu thereof "$14,000,000", and by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph the following: "": Provided further, That of the amounts made available for the Perkins Act, $4,100,000 shall be for tribally controlled postsecondary vocational institutions under section 117";

(i) in title III under the heading "Higher Education" by inserting after the first proviso the following: "Provided further, That funds available for part A, subpart 2 of title VII of the Higher Education Act shall be available to fund awards for academic year 1999-2000 for fellowships under part A, subpart 1 of title VII of said Act, under the terms and conditions of part A, subpart 1:";

(j) in title III under the heading "Education Research, Statistics, and Improvement" by inserting after the third proviso the following: "Provided further, That of the funds appropriated under section 10601 of title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, as amended, $1,000,000 shall be used to conduct a violence prevention demonstration program: Provided further, That of the funds appropriated under section 10601 of title X of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, as amended, $50,000 shall be awarded to the Center for Educational Technologies to conduct a feasibility study and initial planning and design of an effective CD ROM product that would complement the book, We the People: The Citizen and the Constitution";

(k) in title III under the heading "Reading Excellence" by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph the following: "": Provided, That up to one percent of the amount appropriated shall be available October 1, 1998 for peer review of applications";

(l) in title V in section 510(3) by inserting after "Act" the following: "or subsequent Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations Acts"; and

(m)(1) in title VIII in section 405 by striking subsection (e) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(e) OTHER REFERENCES TO TITLE VII OF THE STEWART B. MCKINNEY HOMELESS ASSISTANCE ACT.—The table of contents of the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 11301 et seq.) is amended—

"(1) by striking the items relating to title VII of such Act, except the item relating to the title heading and the items relating to subtitles B and C of such title; and

"(2) by striking the item relating to the title heading for title VII and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"TITLE VII—EDUCATION AND TRAINING.".

(2) The amendments made by subsection (m)(1) of this section shall take effect as if included in Public Law 105-277 on the date of its enactment.

SEC. 3007. The last sentence of section 5595(b) of title 5, United States Code (as added by section 309(a)(2) of the Legislative Branch Appropriations Act, 1999, Public Law 105-275) is amended by striking "(a)(1)(G)" and inserting in lieu thereof "(a)(1)(C)".

SEC. 3008. The Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(g) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended: (a) in title I under the heading "National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, Operations and Research, (Highway Trust Fund)" by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph "": Provided further, That notwithstanding other funds available in this Act for the National Advanced Driving Simulator Program, funds under this heading are available for obligation, as necessary, to continue this program through September 30, 1999".

SEC. 3009. Division B, title II, chapter 5 of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277) is amended under the heading "Capitol Police Board, Security Enhancements" by inserting before the period at the end of the paragraph "": Provided further, That for purposes of carrying out the plan or plans described under this heading and consistent with the approval of such plan or plans pursuant to this heading, the Capitol Police Board shall transfer the portion of the funds made available under this heading which are to be used for personnel and overtime increases for the United States Capitol Police to the heading "Capitol Police Board, Capitol Police, Salaries" under the Act making appropriations for the legislative branch for the fiscal year involved, and shall allocate such portion between the Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives and the Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper of the Senate in such amounts as may be approved by the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate".

SEC. 3010. Section 3027(d)(3) of the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (49 U.S.C. 5307 note: 112 Stat. 366) as added by section 360 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(g) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is redesignated as section 3027(c)(3).

SEC. 3011. The Departments of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as contained in division A, section 101(b) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended—

(a) in title I, under the heading "Legal Activities, Salaries and Expenses, General Legal Activities", by inserting "and shall remain available until September 30, 2000" after "Holocaust Assets in the United States"; and

(b) in title IV, under the heading "Department of State, Administration of Foreign Affairs, Salaries and Expenses", by inserting "and shall remain available until September 30, 2000" after "Holocaust Assets in the United States".

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments to the bill?

AMENDMENT NO. 1 OFFERED BY MR. BENTSEN

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. Bentsen: Page 36, after line 10, insert the following new section:

SEC. 3012. None of the funds made available in this Act or any other Act may be used to release from detention any criminal alien subject to mandatory detention pending removal from the United States.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida reserves a point of order. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, the amendment that I am offering today, which the gentleman has reserved a point of order against, would prohibit the use of any funds in this act or any other act for the release of criminal aliens from detention centers run by the Immigration and Naturalization Service. This would only apply to criminal aliens subject to mandatory detention who are pending removal from the United States.

With the passage of the 1996 immigration reform law, Congress and the President placed a high priority on removing noncitizen criminals from the United States. This bipartisan reform law mandated detention of criminal aliens until their removal and provided the Immigration and Naturalization Service with two additional years to implement the law. It is worth noting that since 1996, Congress has doubled the funding for detention and deportation to $730 million.

In February of this year, reports surfaced that the INS planned to release criminal aliens, many of whom are being held on felony charges. Specifically, the INS issued a memorandum on January 8, 1999, which alerted field offices of a shortfall in detention space funding and offered guidelines for the release of criminal aliens who comprise the vast majority of the INS detainees awaiting deportation.

In response, the INS eastern region's regional director released a draft plan in early February to free 1,550 criminal aliens under a point system that would give priority to those with the least serious convictions. Among those eligible for release under the proposal were criminal aliens who had been convicted in U.S. courts for such crimes as drug trafficking, assault, burglary, counterfeiting and alien smuggling.

After much congressional criticism, INS Commissioner Meissner reversed the agency's plan. However, it is incomprehensible why such an idea was considered in the first place. Quite simply, it is imperative that the INS continue to detain and remove criminal aliens subject to the mandatory detention requirements of the 1996 immigration law. To do so effectively, it is important to disallow the use of all INS funding alternatives, including funds appropriated in previous budgets from being used for the release of criminal aliens, not just those contained in the bill before us today.

The amendment I am offering would thus codify the stated plans of Commissioner Meissner who said before the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims on February 25, 1999, that INS will not now release any aliens subject to mandatory detention under section 303 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996.

□ 1715

Mr. Chairman, the fact is that the INS has been woefully inadequate in dealing with this problem. I know there are a lot of concerns about the IRAIRA law as it relates to certain resident aliens and people who were in the country legally, but this applies to people who enter the country illegally and who then commit either a felony or a misdemeanor and then are subject to deportation.

In my State of Texas, in the State of Florida, in California, in the eastern region of this country, this has been a serious problem. The INS has not been very good at getting back to us.

Earlier this year my colleagues, both Republicans and Democrats, from the Houston area, wrote to Commissioner Meissner asking that she address this problem. She did not respond to us until today, when I received a letter from her, coincidentally. In that letter, actually, it was from her Director of Congressional Relations, in the letter they did state that they have reversed the policy.

It states that various options are being explored which will give the agency some relief, both in the short-term and long-term detention, including the possibility of seeking additional funding or the restoration of temporary period custody rule release authority; that is, they want to go back to releasing people who have been convicted of felonies. That is unacceptable to the constituents in my district. I think it would be unacceptable to most Members' constituents in their districts.

So while it is unfortunate that the point of order will probably be raised on this, the fact remains that this is the only game in town right now. If we are not going to get around to dealing with this until we take up the fiscal year 2000 appropriations bill, how do we know that the INS is not going to go back and change their policy once again?

I appreciate the chairman not wanting to load up his bill with a lot of amendments, but if this was the fiscal year 1999 bill, this would have been a straight limitation which I would have offered. At that time we did not know this was going to be a problem.

This does not add any new money. It does something that I think the Congress has already spoken on. I would hope the gentleman would not raise this point of order, and we could go ahead and have this adopted on a voice vote by the committee and move on.

POINT OF ORDER

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) continue to reserve his point of order?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman is recognized on his point of order.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I make a point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law, constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill, and it violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states, in pertinent part, "No amendment to a general appropriations bill shall be in order if changing existing law." This amendment does not apply solely to the appropriation under consideration, and as much as I believe in what the gentleman is trying to do, and I think through the regular process we can do it, I must ask for a ruling of the Chair on this point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) wish to respond to the point of order?

Mr. BENTSEN. The only thing I will say is, I am disappointed that my colleague, the gentleman from Florida, would do this. We have an opportunity to address this today. There is no guarantee that the committee of jurisdiction would get around to it. It is unfortunate. This is a real problem, but so be it.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule on the point of order.

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) makes a point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

As stated at page 131 of House Practice, to avoid legislating a limitation must apply solely to the funds in the bill under consideration and may not be applied to funds appropriated in other acts.

The amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) explicitly addresses funds in other acts. The provision therefore constitutes legislation, and the point of order is sustained.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 OFFERED BY MR. BURTON OF INDIANA

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, I offer amendment No. 2.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will designate the amendment.

The text of the amendment is as follows:

Amendment No. 2 offered by Mr. BURTON of Indiana:

At the end of title II (page 26, after line 2), insert the following new section:

SEC. 2003. (a) AUTHORITY TO MAKE PAYMENTS.—Subject to the provisions of this section, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to enter into agreements to make payments for the settlement of the claims arising from the deaths caused by the accident involving a United States Marine Corps EA-6B aircraft on February 3, 1998, near Cavalese, Italy.

(b) DEADLINE FOR EXERCISE OF AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall exercise the authority under subsection (a) not later than 90 days after the date of the enactment of this Act.

(c) SOURCE OF PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, of the amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for the Department of the Navy for operation and maintenance for fiscal year 1999, the Secretary shall make available $40,000,000 only for emergency and extraordinary expenses associated with the settlement of the claims arising from the accident described in subsection (a), unless the agreements made pursuant to the authority granted in subsection (a) provide for payments over a longer period.

(d) AMOUNT OF PAYMENT.—The amount of the payment under this section in settlement of the claims arising from the death of any person associated with the accident described in subsection (a) may not exceed $2,000,000.

(e) TREATMENT OF PAYMENTS.—Any amount paid to a person under this section is intended to supplement any amount subsequently determined to be payable to the person under section 127 or chapter 163 of title 10, United States Code, or any other provision of law for administrative settlement of claims against the United States with respect to damages arising from the accident described in subsection (a).

(f) CONSTRUCTION.—The payment of an amount under this section may not be considered to constitute a statement of legal liability on the part of the United States or otherwise as evidence of any material fact in any judicial proceeding or investigation arising from the accident described in subsection (a).

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the gentleman's amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) reserves a point of order on the amendment.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, while I will not contest the point of order because this is legislating on an appropriations bill, I thought this issue was important enough to bring it before this body right now.

On February 3 of last year, near Cavalese, Italy, a Marine pilot inadvertently ran into a gondola on a ski lift and killed 20 people. It has been an international incident ever since.

While I agree and fully support the ruling of the court-martial that those pilots were not in error in this horrible tragedy, I do believe that we owe those people who died some monetary damages. We owe their families some monetary damages.

We have spent $20 million repairing the gondola and the ski lift and the other things that were damaged near Cavalese, Italy, but we have not done really very much to take care of the people who were really hurt by this horrible tragedy, the families of those people.

The Italian court system takes between 3 and 10 years to settle these kinds of claims. It seems to me relatively inhuman to make these people wait that long before we pay them the damages to which they are entitled. They are suffering a great deal right now.

I do not know what kind of message it sends to the world when we take care of the ski lift but we do not take care of the Human tragedy that was involved. It is my opinion that the Defense Department has about $68 million in unobligated funds from prior years from which to draw this money. We are talking about a maximum of around $1 to $2 million for each one of the families that were involved. I would just say to my colleagues, although I know there is going to be a point of order that is going to be sustained on this, that we ought to do something about this in the very near future.

I would urge the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, the chairman of the Committee on Armed Services, to do what they can to make sure reparations are dealt with in a very timely fashion. We do not want these people to suffer for another 3 to 10 years because this thing is being dragged out. Yell.

Obviously, Mr. Chairman, the United States was at fault. There is no question about that. While the pilots may not have been at fault, those maps did not have the gondola on them, did not have the ski lift on them. The altimeter on the plane, there is some question about whether or not it was working. When they flew into that valley, even though there was an optical illusion, there were other factors that factored into this that caused this tragedy to occur.

I would just like to say before I yield to my colleague, the gentleman from Indiana, the United States owes a responsibility to the people of Italy that were harmed by this terrible tragedy, and we ought to make restitution as quickly as possible.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. I yield to the gentleman from Indiana.

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank my colleague, the gentleman from Indiana, for bringing this measure. I would like to inform the Members about this issue with the ski lift in Italy.

When the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) made a comment about the monies have been paid for the damage to the ski lift, we put monies aside, there was $20 million, but those monies have not been accessed. The ski lift has been replaced, the owner-operator has gone through the claims process in Italy, and it has not yet been adjudicated, so the $20 million has not been accessed. I wanted to clarify that point.

We have a Status of Forces agreement in Italy, and for the claims process, the Navy has jurisdiction. Right now when there is a claim, they are to go through the Italian government. Through the Status of Forces agreement, we, the United States, pay 75 percent and Italy pays 25 percent, but they are to go through the adjudicative procedures through the Italian government.

Right now, because we have that agreement in place, I will give advice to my colleagues, let us permit the adjudication to go through the Status of Forces agreement.

I would say to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON), I applaud him and recognize his efforts, and the image that it shows around the world, but I would ask the gentleman to let us go through the adjudicative procedures that we have under our Status of Forces agreement in Italy.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, let me just conclude by saying that the process the gentleman from Indiana just alluded to could take 3 to 10 years. I think that is too long. The other body passed this resolution that I am talking about, this amendment, yesterday. I think it was Senator ROBB that sponsored it. It passed, I think, without any opposition whatsoever.

Those people who are suffering, and their families who are suffering right now, should not have to wait for an adjudication process that is going to go on for 3 to 10 years. They suffered enough. We need to get on with it.

POINT OF ORDER

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) continue to reserve his point of order?

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order against the amendment because it proposes to change existing law and constitutes legislation on an appropriations bill, and therefore violates clause 2 of rule XXI.

The rule states, in pertinent part, "An amendment to a general appropriations bill shall not be in order if changing existing law." The amendment gives affirmative direction in effect.

I ask for a ruling from the Chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is prepared to rule.

Does any other Member wish to be heard on the point of order?

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) makes a point of order under clause 2 of rule XXI that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) changes existing law. The amendment changes existing law by, among other things, waiving provisions of existing law and imposing new duties on the Secretary of Defense.

Accordingly, the point of order is sustained.

Mr. McINTOSH. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, let me say, as somebody who is a strong supporter of the amendment that the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. TODD TIAHRT) brought to this Floor, that as we get ready to vote on final passage of this bill, we need to step back and ask ourselves what it is we are voting on.

We did not choose to further offset the defense spending with other savings from nondefense, but I think we need to look at what the committee has done. They have done a great job of saving over $1 billion from the social security trust fund, essentially, because that is where that money comes from if we do not offset it. We need to recognize that and praise them for that work.

Today we have seen the President order bombings in Kosovo. All of us realize that while the President has made that decision and ordered the military to engage, we in Congress will be asked later to find the money to pay for that, and that it will become increasingly difficult to do so without jeopardizing our national defense.

In the final analysis, Mr. Chairman, I would like to urge my colleagues, all of us who share a desire to save social security, to recognize the good job that the committee has done in finding offsets for the domestic spending. More than $1 billion has been offset. That means more than $1 billion has been saved for the social security trust fund. They have done that without the help of the President, without the help of the White House, without the help of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle. They deserve to be recognized for putting social security as a top priority in this bill.

Although I was a supporter of the Tiahrt amendment, I thought it was the right thing to do. I am also prepared and think the right thing for us to do today is to vote yes on final passage, and recognize that we have begun a very arduous task of saying that we are going to make sure that we offset spending, make sure that we save social security by offsetting those requests for additional spending, and recognizing that we have to preserve that trust fund.

Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his good work, and I would urge all my colleagues to vote yes on this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments?

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I will not take the 5 minutes. I simply want to say, in light of the comments by the previous speaker, that repeating a misstatement of fact does not make it a fact, no matter how many times that misstatement is repeated.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I move to strike the last word.

Mr. Chairman, I do so to compliment the Chairman for having presided in this Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union in a very professional and magnificent fashion.

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments?

If not, the Clerk will read the final two lines of the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

This Act may be cited as the "1999 Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act".

□ 1730

The CHAIRMAN. Are there any further amendments to the bill?

If not, under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE) having assumed the chair, Mr. PEASE, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the bill (H.R. 1141) making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes, pursuant to House Resolution 125, he reported the bill back to the House.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on passage of the bill.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 220, nays 211, not voting 3, as follows:

[Roll No. 70]

YEAS—220

Aderholt	Gilchrest	Oxley
Archer	Gillmor	Packard
Army	Gilman	Pease
Bachus	Goodlatte	Peterson (PA)
Baker	Goodling	Petri
Ballenger	Goss	Pickering
Barrett (NE)	Graham	Pitts
Bartlett	Granger	Pombo
Barton	Green (WI)	Pomeroy
Bass	Greenwood	Porter
Bateman	Gutierrez	Portman
Becerra	Hansen	Pryce (OH)
Bereuter	Hastert	Quinn
Berry	Hastings (WA)	Radanovich
Biggert	Hayes	Ramstad
Billbray	Hayworth	Regula
Billirakis	Herger	Reynolds
Bliley	Hill (IN)	Riley
Blunt	Hill (MT)	Rogan
Boehlert	Hilleary	Rogers
Boehner	Hinojosa	Rohrabacher
Bonilla	Hobson	Ros-Lehtinen
Bono	Hoekstra	Roukema
Boswell	Horn	Royce
Brady (TX)	Hostettler	Ryan (WI)
Bryant	Houghton	Ryun (KS)
Burr	Hulshof	Saxton
Burton	Hunter	Scarborough
Buyer	Hutchinson	Sensenbrenner
Callahan	Hyde	Sessions
Calvert	Isakson	Shadegg
Camp	Istook	Shaw
Canady	Jenkins	Shays
Cannon	Johnson (CT)	Sherwood
Castle	Johnson, Sam	Shimkus
Chambliss	Jones (NC)	Shuster
Chenoweth	Kasich	Simpson
Coble	Kelly	Skeen
Coburn	King (NY)	Smith (MI)
Combust	Kingston	Smith (NJ)
Cook	Knollenberg	Smith (TX)
Cooksey	Kolbe	Souder
Cox	Kuykendall	Spence
Crane	LaHood	Stearns
Cubin	Largent	Stump
Cunningham	Latham	Sununu
Danner	LaTourette	Sweeney
Davis (VA)	Lazio	Talent
Deal	Leach	Tauzin
DeLay	Lewis (CA)	Taylor (NC)
DeMint	Lewis (KY)	Terry
Diaz-Balart	Linder	Thomas
Dickey	LoBiondo	Thornberry
Doolittle	Lucas (OK)	Thune
Dreier	Manzullo	Tiahrt
Duncan	McCollum	Toomey
Dunn	McCrery	Trafficant
Ehlers	McHugh	Upton
Ehrlich	McInnis	Walden
Emerson	McIntosh	Walsh
English	McKeon	Wamp
Everett	Metcalf	Watkins
Ewing	Mica	Watts (OK)
Fletcher	Miller (FL)	Weldon (FL)
Foley	Miller, Gary	Weldon (PA)
Forbes	Minge	Weller
Fossella	Moran (KS)	Whitfield
Fowler	Morella	Wicker
Franks (NJ)	Nethercutt	Wilson
Frelinghuysen	Ney	Wolf
Gallegly	Northup	Young (AK)
Ganske	Norwood	Young (FL)
Gekas	Nussle
Gibbons	Ose

NAYS—211

Abercrombie	Berkley	Brown (FL)
Ackerman	Berman	Brown (OH)
Allen	Bishop	Campbell
Andrews	Blagojevich	Capps
Baird	Blumenauer	Capuano
Baldacci	Bonior	Cardin
Baldwin	Borski	Carson
Barcia	Boucher	Chabot
Barr	Boyd	Clay
Barrett (WI)	Brady (PA)	Clayton
Bentsen	Brown (CA)	Clement

Clyburn	Kaptur	Peterson (MN)
Collins	Kennedy	Phelps
Condit	Kildee	Pickett
Conyers	Kilpatrick	Price (NC)
Costello	Kind (WI)	Rahall
Coyne	Klecza	Rangel
Cramer	Klink	Reyes
Crowley	Kucinich	Rivers
Cummings	LaFalce	Rodriguez
Davis (FL)	Lampson	Roemer
Davis (IL)	Lantos	Rothman
DeFazio	Larson	Roybal-Allard
DeGette	Lee	Rush
Delahunt	Levin	Sabo
DeLauro	Lewis (GA)	Salmon
Deutsch	Lipinski	Sanchez
Dicks	Lofgren	Sanders
Dingell	Lowey	Sandlin
Dixon	Lucas (KY)	Sanford
Doggett	Luther	Sawyer
Dooley	Maloney (CT)	Schaffer
Doyle	Maloney (NY)	Schakowsky
Edwards	Markey	Scott
Engel	Martinez	Serrano
Eshoo	Mascara	Sherman
Etheridge	Matsui	Shows
Evans	McCarthy (MO)	Sisisky
Farr	McCarthy (NY)	Skelton
Fattah	McDermott	Smith (WA)
Filner	McGovern	Snyder
Ford	McIntyre	Spratt
Frank (MA)	McKinney	Stabenow
Frost	McNulty	Stark
Gejdenson	Meehan	Stenholm
Gephardt	Meek (FL)	Strickland
Gonzalez	Meeks (NY)	Tancredo
Goode	Menendez	Tanner
Gordon	Millender	Tauscher
Gutknecht	McDonald	Taylor (MS)
Hall (OH)	Miller, George	Thompson (CA)
Hall (TX)	Mink	Thompson (MS)
Hastings (FL)	Moakley	Thurman
Hefley	Mollohan	Tierney
Hilliard	Moore	Towns
Hinchee	Moran (VA)	Turner
Hoeffel	Murtha	Udall (CO)
Holden	Nadler	Udall (NM)
Holt	Napolitano	Velazquez
Hooley	Neal	Vento
Hoyer	Oberstar	Visclosky
Inslee	Obey	Waters
Jackson (IL)	Olver	Watt (NC)
Jackson-Lee	Ortiz	Waxman
(TX)	Owens	Weiner
Jefferson	Pallone	Wexler
John	Pascrell	Weygand
Johnson, E. B.	Pastor	Wise
Jones (OH)	Paul	Woolsey
Kanjorski	Payne	Wu
	Pelosi	Wynn

NOT VOTING—3

□ 1750

Messrs. HERGER, RADANOVICH, RYUN of Kansas, SENSENBRENNER, GUTIERREZ, ROGAN, BARTON of Texas, MCINNIS, MANZULLO, GRAHAM, POMEROY and MINGE changed their vote from "nay" to "yea."

Mr. JOHN and Mr. REYES changed their vote from "yea" to "nay."

So the bill was passed.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

APPOINTMENT OF MEMBERS TO PRESIDENT'S EXPORT COUNCIL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). Without objection, and pursuant to the provisions of Executive Order Number 12131, the Chair announces the Speaker's appointment of the following Members of the House to the President's Export Council:

Mr. EWING of Illinois,

Mr. ENGLISH of Pennsylvania, and

Mr. PICKERING of Mississippi.
There was no objection.

EXPRESSING SUPPORT OF HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES FOR MEMBERS OF U.S. ARMED FORCES ENGAGED IN MILITARY OPERATIONS AGAINST FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I offer a resolution (H. Res. 130) expressing the support of the House of Representatives for the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia, and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration in the House, with the previous question ordered to its adoption without intervening motion except for 1 hour of debate, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on International Relations and the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on Armed Services or their designees.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the resolution.

The Clerk read as follows:

H. RES. 130

Whereas the President has authorized United States participation in NATO military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia;

Whereas up to 22,000 members of the Armed Forces are presently involved in operations in and around the Balkans region with the active participation of NATO and other coalition forces; and

Whereas the House of Representatives and the American people have the greatest pride in the members of the Armed Forces and strongly support them: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives supports the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and recognizes their professionalism, dedication, patriotism, and courage.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE), the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), the gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN), and the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. GEJDENSON) each will control 15 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE).

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Mr. SPENCE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the resolution. While I have deep reservations about the direction of our policy in the Balkans and the wisdom of intervening on the ground in Kosovo, I have no reservations whatsoever about the patriotism, dedication, professionalism and courage of the men and women who serve this country in uniform.

Indeed, since 1992, when American pilots began to conduct no-fly-zone operations over Bosnia, and sailors began to enforce a maritime exclusion zone around the former Yugoslavia, hundreds of thousands of our soldiers, sailors, airmen and Marines have served with distinction in operations in and around the Balkans. Their record of service is a source of pride to all of us. These young people truly deserve and represent the best America has to offer.

The operations now underway over Yugoslavia represents a new chapter. Though these attacks have been meticulously planned and undoubtedly are being conducted with consummate skill, they are perhaps more dangerous than any previous operation in the Balkans.

□ 1800

The President has rightly spoken of the risks to our personnel, for they are real and considerable. What we are witnessing in the skies over Serbia is unquestionably a war. Now, more than ever, our armed forces in and around the Balkans need and deserve our support.

They also deserve the backing of a sound policy. Even if the air campaign now underway is successful, it will merely be the opening move in Kosovo. The next step is the deployment of NATO and United States ground troops in the midst of a civil war where the Kosovars are committed to independence and when the Serbs are determined to preserve what they regard as their historic homeland.

Thus, there is neither an end date nor an achievable end-state in Kosovo. This is an open-ended mission where success is impossible to define, as is the mission of our troops.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution and send a clear message to our men and women of the strong support we have for them as they place their lives in danger in the skies over Yugoslavia.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, if there is ever an issue that brings this Congress together, it is a commendation for the men and women who fight for this country and who serve in its armed forces. And if there is ever a message to the other countries in this world that democracy, with all its debates, divisions and sometimes heated arguments, that it is moments like this when we do come together to support the men and women that carry out the foreign policy of the United States when it requires military action.

It would be unthinking not to have reservations about a policy that uses force and puts our people in harm's way. I think every Member who is responsible worries about the consequences of that action. But what is clear is if we do not continue on the policy that President Clinton has initiated, we would find more death and destruction in Kosovo.

Today, as we are on this floor, there are a quarter of a million refugees. There are thousands already dead. Do we wait to respond until there are tens of thousands or hundreds of thousands dead? Do we wait until the quarter million refugees become a million or a million and a half refugees?

I say we cannot do that. And so I am privileged to be here and join with my colleagues to commend the armed forces for their role in this, their heroism, their technical proficiency. And I commend the President for his leadership in solving the problems and fighting to stop the killing, which may not solve all problems on earth but will certainly give the people of Kosovo an additional chance for life.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I am pleased to rise in support of this resolution, and I thank the distinguished gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE) for taking the initiative of introducing this resolution.

Earlier today we received reports, and the President has confirmed those reports, that operation Noble Anvil, a military air operation, is now underway over Serbia.

This is the time to put aside all of our differences and any doubts that we may entertain about our policy and it is time to unite behind brave men and women who are now involved in a very serious and risky military mission in defense of our national interests. These include bringing stability to a strategically important part of Europe, preventing further human suffering, and maintaining the credibility of the North Atlantic Alliance.

Mr. Speaker, I wish to emphasize that while I fully support the NATO air campaign to end Milosevic's brutal attacks upon the Albanian majority of Kosovo, this is a decision that many of us have come to with great reluctance. I fervently wish that our diplomacy that has been underway for more than a year to end the tragic and needless bloodshed in Kosovo had worked. Regrettably, as we saw earlier in this decade in Bosnia, Milosevic only heeds the language of military might.

With this military operation underway, we should do everything that we can to ensure that our pilots and those who support them are successful and that they return safely and that their time in harm's way be kept as short as possible. They represent the finest aspects of our Nation: determination, courage, and steadfastness under the most difficult of conditions.

Although our pilots are aware of the dangers they now face as they carry out their missions over Serbia, the most demoralizing thing for our military personnel is not knowledge of the risks posed by the enemy they are facing but knowledge of any dissent on the home front about the nature of their mission.

So I urge my colleagues, let us today by this resolution indicate that we in the Congress are united in our prayers to them and to their families for a safe, swift, and successful end to this air operation. It is important that we recognize that this is not a unilateral military action by our Nation but a military operation authorized by the 19 nations represented by the North Atlantic Council and ordered by the Secretary General of NATO, Javier Solana, and while our armed forces are taking the lead in this first wave of attacks, they will be joined by armed forces of other NATO allies as this operation progresses. We extend our prayers and our support to those personnel and to their families.

Accordingly, Mr. Speaker, I urge our colleagues to join in wishing our airmen and women Godspeed.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of the resolution that is before us, a resolution that supports the members of the United States armed forces who are engaged in military operations in Yugoslavia. They are not by themselves. This is part of a NATO force. Nineteen nations have banded together to urge and cause Milosevic of Yugoslavia to come to the table and do what is right for international peace. Fourteen of the 19 nations are operating today in one way or another in supporting this effort.

I support our troops engaged in this. I support those brave airmen and those who support them on the ground. On a more personal note, I am privileged to represent Whiteman Air Force Base in Missouri, which sent several B-2s as part of this mission. I am told by sources in the Pentagon that they did well and that they are returning back to Whiteman Air Force Base unscathed.

This is an important measure. This is important not only for us in this House of Representatives to support and recognize the professionalism and dedication and patriotism of those airmen and those involved in this operation, but I support what we are doing there.

The Balkans are a tinderbox. World War I started there. The United States is a leader in NATO, and NATO has as its goal and task to bring and keep peace and stability in Europe. There is a great deal at stake: the stability of Europe, the possibility of a wider war, refugees in the hundreds of thousands, eventual involvement not only of NATO but of other allies, such as Greece and Turkey, if violence in Kosovo spreads to the surrounding countries.

There are no easy choices in this, but I support the President's decision of this very, very difficult and dangerous mission. And though it is difficult and though it is dangerous, it is the only alternative open to us.

I applaud those in uniform, and I hope that the people in America, all across the land, will understand and thank those for their dedication, their professionalism, their patriotism, for they are doing a great deal in the effort to bring peace to a very unhappy part of the world.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I was sitting there writing my note and not ready to speak, but I will do it off the cuff.

I am vehemently opposed to us going into Kosovo, and I will explain why. But making that statement, now that we are engaged in Kosovo, I will do everything in my power to support the President. I will also tell my colleagues why.

The President did not give us that courtesy when I was fighting in Vietnam. He continued protesting in countries that killed many of my friends. I myself was shot down by a Russian SAM. Now, that may not bother my colleagues, but it did bother me that the President was protesting in Russia.

We need to get behind every one of our men and women. I do not care about my colleagues here, and I do not care about them over here, and I do not care about my Senate colleagues. I care about those kids we are asking to send in harm's way. And let me tell my colleagues why I am opposed to this.

First of all, a majority of the Russian military feel that they need to overthrow the Russian Government. These are the hard-liners that support Milosevic. Milosevic is terrible, but so is Tudjman and so is Izetbegovic. All three of them need to go. And I predict that within this year we are going to see a major coup in Russia because of what we are doing. If I was the head of North Korea, I would come tomorrow if we get tied in Kosovo. If I was Saddam Hussein, I would come tomorrow.

We are in 52 wars, Mr. Speaker, in this world. Some of them far more damaging than Kosovo. I am very, very concerned of what is going to happen over there as far as past foreign policy. I look at Somalia, to where the President changed the policy of humanitarian to going after Hadeed and then he drew down our forces, and after our military said we cannot do that because this makes us vulnerable. He did it anyway. And then they asked for armor because they could not get in. Seventeen hours, I watched it last night on television, that it took us to get to our troops; and we lost 22 rangers.

People ask me, "What is it like to work with somebody you cannot trust?" That is an important question.

I do not trust this President to get us out of Kosovo. I do not trust him to get us out of Yugoslavia, no more than I expect him to get us out of Haiti, because we are still there spending $20 million a year building roads and bridges, which is coming out of defense.

So, yes, Mr. Speaker, I am dead set against this. But you also have my pledge to do everything I can to help the President to get our kids back.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Ms. DELAURO).

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, Yugoslav President Milosevic's continuous failure to embrace peace and his brutal actions against ethnic Albanians in Kosovo have precipitated today's military strikes. As our armed forces seek to bring a measure of justice to a troubled region, I want to join my colleagues in expressing strong support for the brave men and women of the U.S. military.

I am saddened that Mr. Milosevic rejected appeals for peace. We rightly consider the use of force only with the greatest reluctance. But our hand has been forced by his atrocities, mass murder of civilians and forcing whole communities from their homes. If left unchecked, he will continue his crimes in Kosovo.

Sadly, history has shown us what genocide looks like. Slaughtering ethnic Albanians, many of them defenseless citizens and civilians, forcing hundreds of thousands of Albanians to flee their homes as refugees, point to the grave humanitarian nature of the situation in Kosovo. Worse, Milosevic's aggression in Kosovo could jeopardize stability in the region by spreading to neighboring countries such as Macedonia or Albania. If the U.S. does not act now, the crisis in Kosovo will only grow worse.

The situation in Kosovo is serious and the challenges our troops face are great. I know that our armed forces are well-trained and that they will once again make us proud. Our prayers are with them and with their families as they work to counter aggression and to foster peace.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. ROHRABACHER), a member of our Committee on International Relations.

Mr. ROHRABACHER. Mr. Speaker, I support this resolution and I support our troops. And that is what this resolution is about. But a greater support for us would be to insist that before we send our troops into action, as they are today, that there be a reasonable and understood long-term game plan in place prior to sending these young people, our young defenders, off to fight so far from home and in a cause that has little to do with our national security.

□ 1815

Yes, we support our troops, but let us all together also send this message to the people of the world. We are not going to send our troops all over the world and garrison the rest of this planet for the stability of the rest of the world. Let Europeans, for example, provide the troops necessary for the stability that they need in their own backyard. Yes, there is a case that there is Serbian genocide that is taking place. The Serbs are committing genocide against these Kosovars as they did against the Bosnians in their attacks against the Slovenians and the Croats under the dictatorship of Milosevic and it is intolerable. We recognize the Kosovars and their right for self-determination and independence. Yet we do not have the courage to lay the diplomatic foundation for a long-term solution before we order our troops into harm's way. Something is terribly wrong here. We should not be the policeman of the world. Our troops, they deserve to be applauded which we are doing, but we should not accede and tell the world that they have a blank check on the use of our troops to create their stability for them. Four years ago and $10 billion ago, we were told that sending our troops to Bosnia would be a 1-year operation and $2 billion in cost. They are still there. This vote tonight is done to applaud our troops, but it is not a blank check. It is a message of support for our troops.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Mrs. TAUSCHER).

Mrs. TAUSCHER. I thank the ranking member of the Committee on Armed Services for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to strongly urge my colleagues to vote for this resolution that expresses our support for the troops in the Balkans. We have the finest fighting men and women in the world. Their spirit, commitment and dedication is unrivaled.

In December, I visited our troops keeping the peace in Bosnia and Macedonia. I was impressed by the work that they have done to help the people of Bosnia and Macedonia transition to a peaceful society and by the pride that they take in their work.

Our men and women in the military are now confronting another great challenge. They have again answered their country's call to service. At this time of great courage and sacrifice, our best thoughts and prayers are with them. The President made the right decision to initiate air strikes against Yugoslavia. Slobodan Milosevic has continually refused efforts to reach a peaceful settlement in Kosovo. It is now time to display the resolve of the international community.

Mr. Speaker, let us pass this resolution and show our sailors, soldiers, airmen and marines that they have the support and appreciation of a grateful Nation.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from Jacksonville, FL (Mrs. FOWLER).

(Mrs. FOWLER asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. FOWLER. Mr. Speaker, this is a sobering moment. American military pilots and air crews are now in harm's way. I had previously expressed my strong reservations about the President's plan to influence events in Serbia. Now, however, our troops are engaged in a military conflict. As always, they are performing their job with the utmost professionalism and dedication and it is incumbent upon us to demonstrate our fullest support for them. I join my colleagues in doing so here and am praying, as I know we all are, for their safe return.

I would hope that every Member of this House will work together to ensure that our military personnel in the Balkans have every resource they need to perform their assigned mission as effectively as possible and are able to return home soon. I hope we are successful in this effort and that Mr. Milosevic will soon sign a peace agreement.

I urge all of my colleagues to support this most timely and appropriate resolution.

Mr. GEJDENSON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. HOYER).

Mr. HOYER. I thank the ranking member for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this resolution. Our young men and women in the Armed Forces are carrying out their duties with courage and professionalism, and they deserve our praise and our complete support.

In my view, however, it is not enough to support our military in carrying out the mission given to them. I rise, as well, Mr. Speaker, to support the very mission itself. The mission is to save lives, to stabilize a region, to save lives that certainly would be lost if we again delayed taking this decisive action. The reports about what Serbian forces were doing in Kosovo in the last few days are clearly horrendous, the separation of men from women and children, the reported mass execution of the former and desperate flight of the latter.

The mission is also asserting U.S. leadership when Europe needs that leadership. Our allies are with us and they need us. Like it or not, Europe cannot and does not do it alone. It is in our national interest to avoid even the perception of a vacuum in our leadership capabilities. That could lead to challenges which we cannot foresee now, which we cannot predict, but clearly which would likely put our military men and women at even greater risk if allowed to happen.

Mr. Speaker, everyone says that we cannot be the world's policeman and I agree. But when there is a need for action and when that action can so clearly be effective and when the military can use its resources to minimize the risks involved, then we should act. Tyrants around the world cannot and must not have the false impression of knowing that we will not go after them because we cannot go after everyone. The fact that we could respond should give them pause.

Mr. Speaker, I have been one on this floor who in years past have said in Bosnia that we should have acted. In my opinion had we in Europe acted sooner, thousands, yes, tens of thousands of lives may have been saved.

I support the troops. I support the mission.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LEACH) the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services and a member of our committee.

Mr. LEACH. I thank my dear colleague for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, last week the House of Representatives considered several resolutions on the Balkans. This gentleman voted to oppose intervention. Last night, I explained my concerns relating to the lack of the end game as well as the lack of relevance in my judgment of use of air power in a part of the world which has heavily engaged for much of this century in guerilla warfare.

This resolution is poignantly appropriate because it respects and reflects respect for our troops. But it should be understood by this body that the difficulties that our troops are in are much greater today and will be much greater tomorrow than they were yesterday, not simply because engagement is active today but we are changing the nature of our involvement. This is a bench mark change. We have moved from a peacekeeping role to a peace-enforcing role. That means we have moved from the role of being part of a NATO force acting as a police function to part of a NATO force choosing sides in certain civil war types of setting.

This means that our troops will now become more targets than simply intermediaries. Therefore, it is extraordinarily important that all of us recognize that there is reason to reflect great respect for those troops that are being put in harm's way. But to the degree that foreign policy should be considered morality in action, we should also be clear to recognize that means have to be part of the goals. To the great credit of the President, the goals of the United States in this intervention are quite admirable. The question that remains, however, is whether the means to achieve those goals will escalate the conflict or cause diminution of circumstance.

Mr. Speaker, let me just conclude by saying that I think this evening it is very important that this Congress move forth with this kind of resolution, and I strongly endorse it. But I also think that it be very important that we recognize that a change in policy has occurred of stellar significance and that it is our obligation to continue to review and appraise policies as they develop and to commit ourselves to doing the best we can to advance approaches that deescalate rather than escalate conflict in the Balkans.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, tonight this House, Democrats and Republicans, unite in support of the men and women of our armed forces and those of our NATO allies who are now engaged in one of the most challenging and dangerous missions of recent times. The dangers of this action are indeed great. But the dangers of inaction are even greater. The decision to act was perhaps the most difficult foreign policy decision our President has confronted. The moral leadership in the free world that we have exhibited through the years is being indeed tested by President Milosevic. With thousands of people fleeing Kosovo and with thousands of lives hanging in the balance, the United States has chosen to stand up against aggression and genocide. Our action is consistent with our moral responsibility, it is consistent with our commitment to our NATO allies, and it is consistent with our efforts to secure the peace and stability of Europe where two world wars have begun.

May our prayers tonight be for the safety of our soldiers, our sailors and our airmen, and may God bless America.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL).

(Mr. PAUL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the committee as well as our leadership for bringing a resolution to the floor that is one that I can support. It is supporting of the troops but it does not go that one step further to rubber-stamp a foreign policy that is very questionable, so I appreciate that very much.

But in another sense, I think it is awful strange that every time we do find our troops in harm's way that we need to come to the House floor to reassure ourselves that we support the troops. I have never been challenged, and I take controversial votes on occasion, and I have never seen another Member challenge anybody as being unpatriotic and not supportive of our troops. So it sort of bewilders me a little bit that we always have to say, "We support the troops." I think that should go without saying.

Nevertheless, we do have this resolution on the floor, and I will support it. But I just wonder why that occurs, that we feel compelled to do so. I think sometimes it is because we have not met up to our responsibilities, because we have allowed our troops to be placed in harm's way, and usually in an improper manner. We have not done this properly according to the Constitution. The President did not get permission from the House and the Senate. We may have a little bit of a guilt feeling about having these troops placed in harm's way without the proper permission, and, therefore, we have to reassure ourselves that we are taking care of the troops.

Now, if we really want to support our troops, I think we would defend the sovereignty of this country, we should provide for a strong national defense and we certainly should avoid putting our troops in harm's way. The real question that comes up is by putting the troops in this region right now, we are invading the sovereignty of a nation which is very questionable. This is not done very often. Yet Serbia is a sovereign nation. They are involved in a civil war, and there are bad guys on both sides. For us here in the Congress to decide who the good guys and who the bad guys are is not possible, nor is it our job.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LEWIS).

Mr. LEWIS of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I am a man of peace, not of war. I am a believer in the philosophy and the discipline of nonviolence. I am a disciple of the teachings of Gandhi, Thoreau and Martin Luther King, Jr. But there comes a time when force and military might become necessary to put an end to madness. It was Gandhi who said, "Noncooperation with evil is as much a moral obligation as is co-operation with good." Mr. Speaker, we cannot sit idly by while thousands of people are murdered in Kosovo.

Today, President Clinton took bold, forceful, and decisive action to stop the slaughter of innocents in Kosovo. We have a moral obligation, a mission and a mandate to prevent a modern day holocaust. I am hopeful that our military action will be swift and sudden, that it will be compelling, and that it will persuade the Serbs that peace is the more excellent path.

Mr. Speaker, my thoughts and prayers today are with our men and women in uniform. May they return home to their friends and families safe, sound and secure in knowing that, through their actions, they have saved the lives of countless men, women and children.

□ 1830

Mr. Speaker, I support this resolution.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the distinguished gentleman from New York (Mr. HOUGHTON), a member of our committee.

(Mr. HOUGHTON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOUGHTON. Mr. Speaker, I am not going to take long. To me it is very simple.

I absolutely support the members of the armed forces, I support our President, I support the mission. I do not think there is a single person around here who does not see this as one of the most difficult decisions we can make. But make it we must, and we may not be divided. We must not be divided.

Mr. Speaker, I support this particular House Resolution 130 wholeheartedly.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. BOSWELL).

(Mr. BOSWELL asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOSWELL. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) for this opportunity to say just a couple of words. As my colleagues know, it is tough when a leader has to lead, and I think we are in that position. We are the only superpower, and we got a lot of responsibility to go with it. None of us who have ever been in harm's way wants to see somebody in harm's way, but, as my colleagues know, some of them have had experiences, and I respect everybody that has had experiences in life; some of them I have had. But I had the opportunity to walk on the grounds of Dachau and Bergen-Belsen and so on and look at what took place there and before they became shrines and before they became memorials, and I said in my heart: This is so wrong. Pray Lord, it will never happen again.

So, Mr. Speaker, as I see what is going on over there these last many months, people talking to us about it, we do not really have a choice. If we are the Nation that I believe us to be, then we must stand up and do something even though as difficult as it may be.

So, Mr. Speaker, I support our troops, I support our President's decision, and I know it is hard, but I hope that they return safely and the mission is over soon.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. GILCHREST).

Mr. GILCHREST. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding this time to me, and I would like to express in the strongest terms possible my sentiments of this resolution tonight in the House of Representatives, that it is a heartfelt, gut wrenching resolution from every Member of the House of Representatives to everyone in the world about the United States commitment to this effort now underway and that it is not an act of war, it is an act of peace, a gesture of justice, and we appeal to the leaders of the world that the United States is carrying out the commitment that we had at the end of World War II that this will never happen again. The seeds of despair, the crime of genocide, will be stopped.

This, Mr. Speaker, this resolution is a gesture on our part to the parents, the wives, the children of the men and women in harm's way in this air strike. We, as Members of the House, come together to share their anguish. This resolution is a statement to Mr. Milosevic and people like him around the world that we are resolute in our relentless determination to end cruel injustice and genocide.

Mr. Speaker, we are here tonight to express in the strongest way possible that we, with the unity of the full House and this country, that our support for our troops and this mission is unequivocal.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. ENGEL).

Mr. ENGEL. Mr. Speaker, I certainly support the resolution, I support our armed forces, our brave men and women, and I support the President in his courageous decision.

This morning I showed a picture that I wanted to in advance and say it again. I apologize to my colleagues, the American people, if they are offended by this picture, but I think it has to be shown because this to me tells us why we are in Kosovo.

This is the picture of one of the victims, a dead Albanian child. Let me read for my colleagues what it says. It says his mother will never have to see him this way, they killed her too. Every night, while most of our children sleep in the comfort of a warm bed, Albanian homes in a place called Kosovo are being raided, and innocent people are being massacred, many of them children, all in the name of ethnic cleansing.

That is what is going on. That is why we, as leaders of the world, have to be in Kosovo, to stop genocide on the continent of Europe. That is why NATO has to be there, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which is concerned about North America and Europe, to stop genocide. It is in U.S. national interests to stop genocide and in the U.S. national interest to stop a wider war because, if we did nothing, surely the war would expand and possibly engulf NATO allies such as Turkey and Greece and Hungary and other countries such as Albania and Macedonia and Bulgaria.

So once again, as the leaders of the free world, we are doing the right thing.

Mr. Milosevic has broken every agreement that he has accepted. He signed an agreement in October, and he violated it. Thousands and thousands of people have been displaced from their homes. There are a quarter of a million refugees, 100,000 in the past 2 weeks alone. People are being slaughtered. Innocent civilians, unarmed civilians, men, women and children lined up and shot into a pit. This has to stop.

I am proud of our Armed Forces. Support the resolution.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDI).

Mr. TANCREDI. Mr. Speaker, on March 11, as a freshman Member of this body, I witnessed one of the most profound debates on the issue as to whether or not we should allow the President to move ahead on his plan to attack Yugoslavia. I was on the losing side of that debate. I believed that the decision was wrong; I believe that it is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I am still convinced that the decision is a mistake, and I could not in good conscience say otherwise. Now, however, the trigger has been pulled and we cannot put the bullet back into the chamber.

Our only course of action is to, in fact, pray for the safe return of our Armed Forces now engaged and pray also that we do not use this as a criteria for future involvement of a similar nature because I can assure my colleagues that if, in fact, everything I have heard tonight as to the reasons why we are here, why we are doing what we are doing in Yugoslavia, if that is what we are going to use for interaction, if that is what we are going to use as a reason to put our forces in harm's way, I have a list of countries about, oh, as long as my arm that I can get for my colleagues that fit everyone of those criteria, and I hope and pray that we do not go there.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

(Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDREWS. I thank the ranking member for yielding this time to me, Mr. Speaker.

I rise in strong support of the resolution. I speak as someone who has some grave doubts about the underlying policy but no doubt at all about my admiration and respect for the men and women in uniform who represent us so ably tonight. Our hearts and our prayers are with them, and our hearts are also with those who sit at home with their hearts in their throats waiting for the phone to ring with news about what has happened to their loved ones. It is our prayer that when that phone rings in houses and apartments all over America and around the world that the news will be good and the voice will be the voice of their father, or their mother, or their brother, or their sister, or their son and their daughter saying:

I am safe, I am well, and I am coming home soon.

Mr. Speaker, I would also hope that Members would do more than just come to the floor on days like this when we commend the efforts of our troops, but they would also come to the floor on days when we decide how much to pay our troops, come to the floor and support our efforts when we decide the quality of life for their families in bases around the world, would come to the floor and support the efforts that will give them the safest planes and the most accurate missiles and the most sure defense systems as well. Honoring our troops is not simply something we should do in times of grave national crisis; it is something that we should do every week and every day and every month with every dollar that we commit to their well-being and their safety.

I am pleased to join with colleagues from all around the country on both sides of the aisle in sending our prayer of support, but adding an admonition that we stand by our people not just tonight, but in the weeks and months to come.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. TRAFICANT).

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, I support our troops. I support air and logistics support, not ground troops. And I believe we better be very careful before we commit ground troops into this region. Milosevic definitely must be challenged, and I would like to say to this body that there will not be a long-term solution of lasting peace without dealing with the issue of independence that was recommended to this body in 1986.

Mr. Speaker, I want to quote the intelligence report:

Without independence for Kosovo, there will be revolution and bloodshed, and that bloodshed will be American as well if it is allowed to escalate.

I support our troops; I am sure they will do a great job; and I support the efforts of our Congress in working with this issue and dealing with a tough technical subject.

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. BONIOR).

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I thank my friend from New York (Mr. CROWLEY) for yielding the time and my friend from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) for sharing his time with me.

Mr. Speaker, tens of thousands of Albanian Kosovars are trudging through the mud and the snow in a desperate trek to safety, and behind them the troops of Slobodan Milosevic are shelling their villages, are slaughtering their livestock and are setting their homes a flame. In burning the homes of innocent people in Kosovo, Milosevic is also igniting a much broader conflict. It is one that threatens to spread throughout the Balkans and beyond.

Mr. Speaker, that is why America and NATO allies are acting now to put a stop to this human catastrophe, to douse the flames of war before they spread and to demonstrate NATO's resolve for peace in Kosovo. Bombing the forces of Milosevic entails significant risk, but the risk of doing nothing is even greater. We learned that lesson in Bosnia where western inaction allowed things to generate into terrible atrocities.

Mr. Speaker, over the past year we have worked very hard to facilitate a just settlement for the people of Kosovo and Yugoslavia, but Milosevic has refused to compromise, he has ignored our overtures for peace, and he has broken his promises. Even as we speak, he intensifies his campaign of violence and intimidation and ethnic cleansing. Just since Friday his troops have forced 25,000 families, Albanian Kosovars, from their homes.

□ 1845

We have all seen the pictures, old people and children struggling down a dirt road clutching the few possessions that they carry. Some have not been so lucky. Many Albanian Kosovars have been executed by Serbian forces merely because of their ethnic heritage.

This slaughter cannot, must not continue. Our forces will strike hard and have struck hard to deter his aggression, eliminate his offensive military capabilities and show him decisively that the only sensible choice is the path to peace.

Mr. Speaker, twice this century and throughout the Cold War American soldiers have fought bravely to protect freedom and democracy in Europe. We gather in this chamber tonight to express our pride and our support for them as they engage in this important mission once again. Our prayers are with them as they risk their lives so that others might live in safety and in freedom.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Nebraska (Mr. BEREUTER), the distinguished chairman of our Subcommittee on Asia and the Pacific.

(Mr. BEREUTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, today is a tragic day. It will undoubtedly be the beginning of a tragic scenario. I think the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) asked an interesting question. Why is it he said, that we repeatedly are up here on the House Floor under the compulsion to express our support for our men and women in the armed services? I think it probably has something to do with we have had too many military deployments recently which were based on very questionable premises, ill-informed, ineptly handled and for which there was no exit strategy, and here we are again facing the same kind of deployment problems.

In Kosovo we are trying to coerce a peace agreement between two sides which do not agree with the objectives of that peace agreement. As a result of the American and NATO air strike today, the Serbians are now going to be more supportive for Milosevic.

Now, certainly America's objectives in Kosovo are honorable and humane. There is no doubt about that, but I believe that contrary to what is expected, with this armed action against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia we are actually going to see a further destabilization in the Balkans. A fragile country, the Republic of Macedonia, or the Former Yugoslavian Republic of Macedonia, if you prefer, will be subjected to further destabilization. I also believe we are going to accelerate the kind of violence by Serbian forces in the next few days against the Albanian ethnics in Kosovo. That is almost inevitable.

Bombing will not do what we hope it will do. Bombing or air power never wins wars: it never settles things on the ground. It takes ground troops. So we will go through this air strike phase against missile sites and air defense systems, then we will accelerate the air attacks against strategic targets, and, I predict, unfortunately that within 2 months, probably in a far shorter time than that, we will be involved with ground troops in Kosovo and there will be Americans among them.

We do need to support our troops, by all means, because they are now going to be there for a very long time as ground troops in a hostile environment. There is no exit strategy prepared or easily possible from this unhappy quagmire.

I also think we have to decide when it is indeed in our vital national interest to be involved in humanitarian efforts that we want to support. Why not in the civil and ethnic or racial conflicts in the Caucasus? Why not in Central Asia? Why not in Rwanda or Congo or Eritrea and Ethiopia? I ask those questions of my colleagues, but I do support the resolution and the men and women of our armed forces and I know we all do.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

(Mr. HASTINGS of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, perhaps my colleague for whom I have the greatest esteem I can answer most immediately, we do not have a NATO treaty with Rwanda. We do not have a NATO treaty with Eritrea and with Ethiopia.

I stand to support our military this evening. I stand to support them not only this evening but in their being ready in the future. For those of us that have stood here and asked for deployment, we have a responsibility to put our money where our mouth is.

All of us pray for the safe return of our troops. These brave Americans are keeping our commitment to our allies in NATO. They are discharging a great humanitarian purpose.

A week ago, I saw a report on television where a 12-year-old boy had the responsibility of taking care of six of his siblings because his mother and father had been slaughtered. Our troops tonight are standing with those children to give them a chance for freedom. The commander in chief of this country is standing with those children this evening and our 18 allies in NATO are standing with them, too. Support our troops.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT), the Speaker of the House.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HASTERT. I yield to the gentleman from Nebraska.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Illinois for yielding.

Mr. Speaker, I just want to answer my distinguished friend the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS). We have no NATO agreement with Kosovo, with Yugoslavia or Macedonia either.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, certainly tonight is a grave time for this country. It is a time that any time our armed services, our young men and women, confront an enemy in service of this country is a time that we must focus on and we must pray for their strength and safety, and we are there.

We can debate the reasons why we are there and we can talk about if it is good or it is not good. We can talk about the problems that we have seen in that area, namely Kosovo, but we are there. I would like to take this opportunity to offer my personal appreciation and strong support for our men and women. They are in the skies over Kosovo and Serbia as we speak. They are risking their lives for certainly the ideal of democracy and safety and decency, and our hearts and our prayers certainly go with them.

We know how dangerous their mission is, and we strongly urge all Members to give their whole-hearted support to this resolution.

I would like to commend those brave young men and women for their selfless sense of honor and duty to their country. Each is a modern hero, an example of why America is truly a great Nation, and we wish them godspeed in their mission and certainly a safe return. The hearts of all Americans, and prayers, are with them.

Mr. HOEFFEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY).

(Mr. CROWLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support for our brave men and women of our armed forces which are now involved in the military operations against Serbian military targets in the former Yugoslavia.

The military action we have undertaken has three objectives: First, to demonstrate the seriousness of NATO's opposition to aggression and its support for peace.

Second, to deter President Milosevic from continuing and escalating his attacks on helpless civilians by seriously punishing such actions.

Thirdly, to damage Serbia's capacity to wage war against Kosovo in the future by diminishing its future capabilities.

Mr. Speaker, as we have seen numerous times in the past, the only language that Mr. Milosevic understands is that of force. Therefore, I believe it is imperative that he be assured of our firm resolve to continue military action until Serbian forces halt their campaign of murder and repression and comply with the demands of the international community.

Mr. Speaker, I believe military intervention is the right course of action and we must remember that these actions carry with them considerable risk. And so we must remember those young men and women of our armed forces and pray for their safe and speedy return.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Utah (Mr. COOK).

Mr. COOK. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from New York (Chairman GILMAN) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the resolution supporting our armed forces engaged today in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. Like my colleagues, my thoughts and prayers are with these men and women for their safe and swift return.

However, I am very distressed that again Congress was not consulted until the bombers were virtually on their way. Today's action reinforces the continued circumvention of the War Powers Act. Although I deplore the genocide and ethnic cleansing that is being waged by the Serbs against ethnic Albanians in Kosovo, I am very concerned that we are being drawn into a situation that will require ground troops.

The situation in Bosnia has continued for many years and while things may have improved there, no exit strategy is in sight. This action in regards to Kosovo appears to be headed in exactly the same direction and with much higher risks. It is imperative that congressional approval be sought by the administration before this action escalates.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

(Mr. KIND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank the ranking member, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, like everyone in this House tonight I rise in support of this resolution and join in offering my thoughts and prayers to the young men and women in American uniform and to all those military personnel from the other 18 NATO nations who are committed to restoring the peace in Kosovo.

Once again, they are called upon to carry out a dangerous military mission to bring peace and stability to Europe. I believe this is the right policy at the right time and for the right reason.

The people of Kosovo are good and decent people who do not deserve to be murdered and forced from their homes by Milosevic's army. I am proud of our men and women in the military who will carry out their duties professionally, honorably and courageously. May they all return home to their families safely.

If we have learned anything from the 2nd World War, it is that the United States of America cannot stand idly by while atrocities and genocidal practices are being committed against defenseless civilians.

The action taken today is not unilateral. All 19 members of NATO agreed that the time has come to stop Milosevic's campaign of terror in Kosovo in order to prevent further tragedy and to stabilize the greater Balkan region.

In this matter, the danger of inaction far outweighs the risk of action. If we can learn any lesson from both World War I and World War II, it is that the U.S. can and must take a leadership role to stop tyranny and atrocities that threaten innocent people and the free world.

But ultimately, it is not NATO that is acting today, but individual men and women in the uniforms of the United States Armed Forces, as well those of our allies. These soldiers sailors and airmen are in harm's way, and we must support them to the fullest.

We should not delude ourselves in thinking that air strikes and other military actions in the Balkans will be as safe as the actions we have taken recently in Iraq. The situation in Kosovo is far more complex, and our actions there may result in casualties and even loss of life.

Let us hope the military action is successful and those men and women can return home soon.

Mr. LATOURETTE. The Chair announces that the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPENCE) has 1 minute remaining and the right to close. The gentleman from New York (Mr. GILMAN) has 2½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) has 4½ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. HOFFEL) has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE), the chairman of the Committee on the Judiciary and a member of our committee.

(Mr. HYDE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HYDE. Mr. Speaker, some years ago we had a Member of Congress named Ben Blaz. He was from Guam, and he was a military man. He was a general in the Marine Corps, and he told me, he said, there is nothing worse for an infantryman to be climbing up a hill and look back over his shoulder and seeing that nobody is there.

Well, we want to tell our fighting forces in Kosovo and in Yugoslavia tonight that we are there. We are constantly reminded of the heavy, heavy price that freedom extracts from us. The brave men and women that are willing to risk their lives in a far away land to resist genocide are living proof that patriotism and valor are still the defining characteristics of our fighting people.

The finest speech I have ever heard in 25 years in Congress was delivered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. ACKERMAN) last week over there on this issue. He reminded us that when the Holocaust occurred we all said never again, never again.

Well, again is happening right now. It is happening in Kosovo, where thousands of people are massacred and other thousands of people, elderly and infants, are roaming the snowy mountains because they have been dispossessed. It is happening again.

I do not know how we turn our back on that and walk away if it is within our power to stabilize the situation and stop the killing.

So that is what this is about. We can debate the policy again and again and again, but we are there and the genocide is there and we do have a national interest in halting the killing. We have a human interest in halting the killing. So I want to express my pride, I want to express my prayers for the fighting men and women who are in the front lines paying the price, halting the genocide and doing the Lord's work.

□ 1900

I am proud of our military. Diplomats are fine, lawyers are great, but in the last analysis, it is the soldier that pays for freedom, and we ought to be thanking God on our knees that we have such men.

Mr. GILMAN. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HYDE) for his very excellent words in support of this resolution.

Mr. HOFFEL. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the final minute of my time.

This clearly is a good resolution that deserves all of our support, Mr. Speaker. We all support our fighting forces at this time of their need. This military action is the right thing to do for at least three reasons:

First, we need to stop this brutal dictator, Milosevic, from plunging Europe into an even deeper cycle of unrest and instability and violence; secondly, we need to prevent a humanitarian crisis from deepening, affecting the innocent civilians in Kosovo; and thirdly, we need to act to support our national credibility and NATO's credibility in this measure.

We all support the resolution, compliment our fighting men and women, and wish them God speed.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, we are here discussing a resolution to commend the American military forces. This is as it should be. We have also discussed and heard words explaining why we are leading the NATO forces in doing what we are doing, for humanitarian purposes, for purposes of keeping NATO strong, for purposes of keeping the Balkans from erupting onto a wider war or conflict.

Let us talk about the troops for a minute. Let us talk about those young men and those young women who day in and day out wear the uniform of our country. Let us think of them not just tonight, let us think of them at other times, not just our committee but all of us, regardless of the committee on which we serve.

They are the cream of the crop. They are the seed corn of the future of American democracy, the young men, young women who raise their right hand and swear to uphold the Constitution and do their duty. That is the bottom line of young America. I am so proud of them.

Here they are being called upon to fulfill a very dangerous mission, yes.

They are those in the air forces of our country, the Air Force, Marines, Navy. But I am sure that all men and women in the military are in our thoughts and prayers tonight.

As fewer and fewer people wear the uniform, fewer and fewer sons and daughters and grandsons and nephews and nieces, there seems to be a growing gap between American civilians and between those who defend our freedoms.

Let us not just think of those in our United States forces this evening, let us think of them at other times. Let us think of them at the times we debate the budget, when we discuss what we should do for their pay, for their barracks, for their families, for their housing, for their housing allowances. We want to do better for them than we have in the past.

In a democracy, it is often difficult to show appreciation for those in the military. Rudyard Kipling, the poet laureate of Great Britain many years ago, penned a poem entitled "Tommy," reflecting the fact that the soldier, the Redcoat, was out of sight, out of mind, until there was trouble at hand.

He penned and wrote, "It is Tommy this and Tommy that, and throw him out, the brute, but it is 'Savior of our country' when the guns begin to shoot."

Let us keep the young people of our forces, whether they be in Fort Leonard Wood, Whiteman Air Force Base, any post or base throughout this world, in our thoughts, in our minds, in our prayers, and in our votes on this floor when it comes to supporting them, not just tonight by this vote, but by votes and debate and help in the days ahead.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, the mission of our Committee on Armed Services is to properly provide for our military people. The chairman of our Subcommittee on Military Procurement is the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER).

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) is recognized for 1 minute.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Speaker, in a couple of minutes we are going to tell these wonderful people who protect America, our uniformed service personnel, how much we respect them. We are going to tell them that with this vote. But in the next several weeks, we are going to have a chance to show them how much we support them and how much we respect them.

I hope every Member here will vote to close that 13½ percent pay gap that exists between them and the private sector, and help to get those 10,000 service personnel off food stamps. I hope every Member here will vote for a defense budget and for supplemental budgets to pay for that $1.7 billion worth of ammo that we are short in the Army, and to pay for the equipment that our personnel need, and to pay for some of the spare parts we need to get those planes off the ground that right now are grounded.

These are our finest citizens, and I hope in the next several weeks we are going to show that and demonstrate that in the best way we know how. That is when we vote to support them.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, I am troubled by events taking place far away in the Balkans today. The brutal aggression and "ethnic cleansing" that have been long perpetrated by Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic must come to an end. Today, the military forces of NATO, led by the United States, struck at the heart and means of this miscreant aggression.

Too many lives in past conflicts have been lost because of inaction. Imagine how different the world might have been had the world stood up sooner to an Adolf Hitler or a Heideiki Tojo. We are once again at one of those historical crossroads. It is necessary and proper that the United States and our NATO Allies force the hand of Milosevic toward the end of just governance and human decency. The Serbian military's brutality in the name of a 610-year-old vindication is childish and historically indefensible. Today, with God's help, we aim to set things right.

In bi-partisan fashion, I stand in strong support of our President's decision and applaud his courage. I stand in strong support to our brave troops, our gallant allies and all their faithful families as we begin to embark on this endeavor to stop the senseless violence. Let's hope that President Milosevic will get the message and return to the table of peace.

Mr. ORITZ. I rise today in support of the resolution before us, in support of our young men and women in uniform serving in the European theater, and in support of NATO's decision to use force to try and change dictator Slobodan Milosevic's mind about continuing his holocaust in Kosovo.

As the Ranking Democrat on the Armed Services Readiness Committee, I have been in the Bosnia/Southeastern European theater several times over the past few months and have spent significant time talking to our troops over there.

In Bosnia, when we sent troops to keep the peace there, we were not quite sure how that would turn out, but we knew that doing nothing was unacceptable. The soldiers I have talked to in Bosnia have told me that they know their mission is successful because the fighting has stopped and they now see children playing in the street.

The United States has a large responsibility in this world. The lessons of WWII taught us that unchecked aggression and man's inhumanity to others will not simply stop. Someone must step in to stop them. That is one of the fundamental reasons NATO was created, to stop unchecked aggression by dictators.

Generally, people across the country cannot find Kosovo on a map and do not yet understand why slaughter after slaughter in a place far, far away can invoke the military might of the United States. That is unfortunate. The truth of the matter is that the effects of this unchecked aggression have already begun to spill over the borders of Kosovo and Bosnia into Italy, Hungary, Greece and Turkey. These are NATO allies and we have a responsibility to them.

Our troops are presently engaged in a hostile action, and the House of Representatives, and the entire Congress, owes them our respect and our support.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in support of the NATO Air strikes aimed at preventing any further loss of lives in the embattled Serbian province of Kosovo. It is clear that all reasonable diplomatic avenues had been exhausted and military action was inevitable. The United States and NATO have an obligation to uphold the basic standards of human rights and hold Serbia and its leadership to the October 1998 agreement which they made and which they have blatantly disregarded. Furthermore, seizing upon the withdrawal of the OSCE monitors as an opportunity to unleash another round of assaults on the civilian population of the Kosovo region is unacceptable.

Leaders of the ethnic Albanian majority Kosovars will settle for autonomy today, but plainly want complete independence for their region. The Serbian leader Slobodan Milosevic continues to adamantly stand opposed today to Kosovo's pleas, even autonomy for Kosovo, which he rejected after years of such status in the late 1980's. Serbia's Milosevic's ethnic cleansing crusade has claimed the lives of thousands of innocent civilians since the renewed military action in 1998. This Serbian aggression can not be overlooked. The actions carried out by the Milosevic regime certainly has the potential to undermine the Bosnian Peace Accords and spill over into neighboring countries, such as Macedonia, Albania, Turkey and Greece. I will remind my colleagues that this small trouble spot on the map in Eastern Europe was the spark for past World Wars.

After months of peace talks and violations of cease-fire agreements, Milosevic continues to launch attacks and mass genocide against the Kosovars in Serbia. As a result, by October 1998, up to 275,000 civilians had fled their homes. Some have immigrated to the Yugoslav republic of Montenegro; others crossed the border into Albania or Macedonia, but most stayed in Kosovo and have been subject to genocide by Milosevic's Serb troops. The latest outbreak of fighting has created a new refugee crisis, with about 60,000 people a new fleeing their homes in the last couple of weeks.

Ironically, as the integration of Central Europe into NATO occurs, the United States can not sit back and allow this type of conduct. This flies into the fact of NATO's agreements and purpose. Such events, if unaddressed, will seriously undermine NATO's credibility and role within Europe. Mass genocide must not be tolerated. For moral reasons independent of our pre announced alliances much less in the face of it. NATO was not formed and maintained for parade purposes. When it is necessary and needed member nations must act to fulfill its mission. The irony of this crisis is two-fold. Nobody likes to send anyone into a situation with the possible loss of their lives. But right now innocent lives such as the elderly, women and children are being lost at the hands of Slobodan Milosevic's Serbian forces.

I support our troops and this justified and necessary mission in attempt to end the genocide and protect the basic human rights for the Kosovars and Serbian compliance with the basic cease fire agreements that they have pledged to agree to in October of 1998.

Mr. EWING. Mr. Speaker, last week, I voted against the resolution authorizing the deployment of United States military troops to Kosovo. Although the House ultimately approved the resolution, my concern that we are entering into this operation without a well-defined mission, and, more importantly, a strategy to remove our troops remains.

Despite the many different opinions on this situation, it is now time for every American to stand unified behind our men and women in uniform.

We must not, however, yield to the emotion of the moment. To protect our sons and daughters it is vital that the President, and the Congress, together, continue to act prudently to not only preserve the lives of innocent Kosovars but our young men and women abroad.

I only ask that we, as one nation, offer our thoughts and prayers for the families, and the safe return of these brave young Americans.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). All time for debate has expired.

Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the previous question is ordered on the resolution.

The question is on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, on that, I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 424, nays 1, not voting 9, as follows:

[Roll No. 71]

YEAS—424

Abercrombie	Burr	Dickey
Ackerman	Burton	Dicks
Aderholt	Buyer	Dingell
Allen	Callahan	Dixon
Andrews	Camp	Doggett
Archer	Campbell	Dooley
Armey	Canady	Doolittle
Bachus	Cannon	Doyle
Baird	Capps	Dreier
Baker	Capuano	Duncan
Baldacci	Cardin	Dunn
Baldwin	Carson	Edwards
Ballenger	Castle	Ehlers
Barcia	Chabot	Ehrlich
Barr	Chambliss	Emerson
Barrett (NE)	Chenoweth	Engel
Barrett (WI)	Clay	Eshoo
Bartlett	Clayton	Etheridge
Barton	Clement	Evans
Bass	Clyburn	Everett
Bateman	Coble	Ewing
Becerra	Coburn	Farr
Bentsen	Collins	Fattah
Bereuter	Combest	Filner
Berkley	Condit	Fletcher
Berman	Conyers	Foley
Berry	Cook	Forbes
Biggert	Cooksey	Ford
Bilbray	Costello	Fossella
Bilirakis	Cox	Fowler
Bishop	Coyne	Frank (MA)
Blagojevich	Cramer	Franks (NJ)
Bliley	Crane	Frost
Blumenauer	Crowley	Gallagher
Blunt	Cubin	Ganske
Boehlert	Cummings	Gejdenson
Boehner	Cunningham	Gekas
Bonilla	Danner	Gephardt
Bonior	Davis (FL)	Gibbons
Bono	Davis (IL)	Gilchrest
Borski	Davis (VA)	Gillmor
Boswell	Deal	Gilman
Boucher	DeFazio	Gonzalez
Boyd	DeGette	Goode
Brady (PA)	Delahunt	Goodlatte
Brady (TX)	DeLauro	Goodling
Brown (CA)	DeLay	Gordon
Brown (FL)	DeMint	Goss
Brown (OH)	Deutsch	Graham
Bryant	Diaz-Balart	Granger

Green (TX)	Mascara	Sabo
Green (WI)	Matsui	Salmon
Greenwood	McCarthy (MO)	Sanchez
Gutierrez	McCarthy (NY)	Sanders
Gutknecht	McCollum	Sandlin
Hall (OH)	McCrery	Sanford
Hall (TX)	McDermott	Sawyer
Hansen	McGovern	Saxton
Hastert	McHugh	Scarborough
Hastings (FL)	McInnis	Schaffer
Hastings (WA)	McIntosh	Schakowsky
Hayes	McIntyre	Scott
Hayworth	McKeon	Sensenbrenner
Hefley	McKinney	Serrano
Herger	McNulty	Sessions
Hill (IN)	Meehan	Shadegg
Hill (MT)	Meek (FL)	Shaw
Hilleary	Meeks (NY)	Shays
Hilliard	Menendez	Sherman
Hinchey	Metcalfe	Sherwood
Hinojosa	Mica	Shimkus
Hobson	Millender-	Shows
Hoefel	McDonald	Shuster
Hoekstra	Miller (FL)	Simpson
Holden	Miller, Gary	Sisisky
Holt	Miller, George	Skeen
Hooley	Minge	Skelton
Horn	Mink	Smith (MI)
Hostettler	Moakley	Smith (NJ)
Houghton	Mollohan	Smith (TX)
Hoyer	Moore	Smith (WA)
Hulshof	Moran (KS)	Snyder
Hunter	Moran (VA)	Souder
Hutchinson	Morella	Spence
Hyde	Murtha	Spratt
Inslie	Nadler	Stabenow
Isakson	Napolitano	Stark
Istook	Neal	Stearns
Jackson (IL)	Nethercutt	Stenholm
Jackson-Lee	Ney	Strickland
(TX)	Northup	Stump
Jefferson	Norwood	Sununu
Jenkins	Oberstar	Sweeney
John	Obey	Talent
Johnson (CT)	Olver	Tancredo
Johnson, E. B.	Ortiz	Tanner
Johnson, Sam	Ose	Tauscher
Jones (NC)	Owens	Tauzin
Jones (OH)	Oxley	Taylor (MS)
Kanjorski	Packard	Taylor (NC)
Kaptur	Pallone	Terry
Kasich	Pascarella	Thomas
Kelly	Pastor	Thompson (CA)
Kennedy	Paul	Thompson (MS)
Kildee	Payne	Thornberry
Kilpatrick	Pease	Thune
Kind (WI)	Pelosi	Thurman
King (NY)	Peterson (MN)	Tiahrt
Kingston	Peterson (PA)	Tierney
Klecza	Petri	Toomey
Klink	Phelps	Towns
Knollenberg	Pickett	Traficant
Kolbe	Pitts	Turner
Kucinich	Pombo	Udall (CO)
Kuykendall	Pomeroy	Udall (NM)
LaFalce	Porter	Upton
LaHood	Portman	Velazquez
Lampson	Price (NC)	Vento
Lantos	Pryce (OH)	Visclosky
Largent	Quinn	Walden
Larson	Radanovich	Walsh
Latham	Rahall	Wamp
LaTourette	Ramstad	Waters
Lazio	Rangel	Watkins
Leach	Regula	Watt (NC)
Levin	Reyes	Watts (OK)
Lewis (CA)	Reynolds	Waxman
Lewis (GA)	Riley	Weiner
Lewis (KY)	Rivers	Weldon (FL)
Linder	Rodriguez	Weldon (PA)
Lipinski	Roemer	Wexler
LoBiondo	Rogan	Weygand
Lofgren	Rogers	Whitfield
Lowey	Rohrabacher	Wicker
Lucas (KY)	Ros-Lehtinen	Wilson
Lucas (OK)	Rothman	Wise
Luther	Roukema	Wolf
Maloney (CT)	Roybal-Allard	Woolsey
Maloney (NY)	Royce	Wu
Manzullo	Rush	Wynn
Markey	Ryan (WI)	Young (AK)
Martinez	Ryun (KS)	Young (FL)

NOT VOTING—9

Calvert	Myrick	Slaughter
English	Nussle	Stupak
Frelinghuysen	Pickering	Weller

□ 1924

So the resolution was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

Stated for:

Mr. WELLER. Mr. Speaker, on rollcall No. 71, I was inadvertently detained. Had I been present, I would have voted "yea."

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, I was unavoidably detained and missed the following rollcall vote: Rollcall vote No. 71, H. Res. 130. Had I been present, I would have voted "aye."

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SPENCE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on House Resolution 130, the resolution just agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from South Carolina?

There was no objection.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF H.R. 1150

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to remove my name as a cosponsor of H.R. 1150.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

INTERIM FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take from the Speaker's table the Senate bill (S. 643) to authorize the Airport Improvement Program for 2 months, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration in the House.

The Clerk read the title of the Senate bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. SHUSTER) briefly to explain the bill.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, this is a simple extension. We are taking the Senate's bill to extend the Airport Improvement Program for 2 months so that we can then deal with the major legislation in April or May. That is all this is.

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, I am happy to yield to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. DUNCAN).

(Mr. DUNCAN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this legislation.

On March 31, 1999, funding for the FAA Airport Improvement Program will be cut off. Last year, we attempted to pass a comprehensive long-term bill that would have extended AIP and FAA funding.

However, due to a breakdown in conference negotiations, only a short-term 6-month extension for the AIP was passed as part of the Omnibus appropriations bill.

In February of this year, the House passed H.R. 99, a six-month bill to extend AIP and fund FAA's operations and facilities and equipment programs through the end of FY 99.

H.R. 99 was passed so that AIP funding would not run out while we attempted to pass our long-term aviation reauthorization bill, AIR-21.

H.R. 99 was passed out of the House and sent to the Senate on February 3, two months prior to the expiration of AIP funding on March 31st.

In the shadow of this imminent deadline, last week the Senate passed a two-month extension bill that would fund AIP only through May 31st of this year.

The Senate bill also includes technical changes for the Military Airport Program and the small airport fund within AIP to allow them to work under the limited extension.

In addition, the Senate bill extends the War Risk Insurance program for two additional months. Its funding is also set to expire on March 31st. This is an important issue, especially in light of current events.

The House passed H.R. 98 in February, which extended the War Risk Insurance Program through 2004. If the Senate should pass H.R. 98, it is our intention that that bill extension for 5 years should take precedence over this two-month provision.

Finally, the Senate bill allows the FAA to consider a PFC application from Metropolitan Washington Airport Authority up to a limit of $30 million. Under current law, FAA is not allowed to consider a PFC application from MWAA.

Although this bill only extends the programs for two months instead of the House-passed six month bill, it is important that this bill pass so that funding for AIP does not lapse.

I urge you all to support this bill so that this short term measure is in place and funding for your local airports will remain in effect while we attempt to pass a long-term FAA reauthorization bill.

(Mr. OBERSTAR asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OBERSTAR. Mr. Speaker, it is regrettable that the other body did not act as responsibly and as promptly as this committee and this body did, but I do support this 2-month extension.

Further reserving the right to object, I want to observe with sadness the death of a good friend to airports, to this committee, and to the Congress, Ellis Ohnstad, the long-time employee of the FAA Airports Office, a constant source of good humor and solid information and support for our committee. We will miss him dearly.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to support passage of S. 643. S. 643 provides for a 2-month extension of the Airport Improvement Program (AIP) and authorization for other Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) programs through the end of the fiscal year 1999.

NAYS—1

Lee

In February, the House passed H.R. 99 which extended the AIP until the end of fiscal year 1999. The other body was unwilling to agree to a 6-month extension and sent to the House a 2-month extension. The House approach is still the preferable one, but with AIP due to lapse on March 31, a 2-month extension is better than letting the program expire.

It is disturbing to me that the other body continues to play political games with AIP. AIP funds critical safety, security, and capacity projects at airports throughout this country. The stop-go-stop approach taken by the other body to this issue has caused administrative inefficiencies at the FAA and, more importantly, doubt for airports in moving forward on projects. I am particularly concerned about northern states where the lack of commitment to a full-year program threatens the construction season.

It is my hope that another extension will not be needed since the Transportation and Infrastructure Committee on March 18th passed H.R. 1000, the Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st Century, known as AIR-21. With leadership support and assistance, we should be able to move this bill forward for floor consideration shortly.

H.R. 1000 meets four pressing challenges facing the aviation system: Capacity at our nation's airports; accelerating the modernization of the air traffic control system; promoting competition in the airline industry; and increasing safety in the aviation system.

We have tremendous needs especially in the airport system: renovating existing runways and taxiways; helping communities cope with noise problems; increasing capacity through projects like San Francisco's $1 billion runway project; and meeting airport requirements so the smaller airports can take advantage of technological breakthroughs like GPS/WAAS. AIR-21 meets these airport and other challenges and I look forward to working with Members of the House on its passage.

In the short-term, this extension is needed and I ask all Members to support S. 643.

Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the Senate bill, as follows:

S. 643

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Interim Federal Aviation Administration Authorization Act".

SEC. 2. EXTENSION OF AIRPORT IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.

(a) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 48103 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking from "$1,205,000,000" through the period and inserting "$1,607,000,000 for the 8-month period beginning October 1, 1998."

(b) OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY.—Section 47104(c) of such title is amended by striking "March" and inserting "May".

(c) LIQUIDATION-OF-CONTRACT AUTHORIZATION.—The Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 is amended by striking the last proviso under the heading "Grants-in-Aid for Airports, (Liquidation of Contract Authorization), (Airport and Airway Trust Fund)" and inserting "Provided further, That not more than $1,300,000,000 of funds limited under this heading may be obligated before the enactment of a law extending contract authorization for the Grants-in-Aid for Airports Program beyond May 31, 1999."

SEC. 3. AIRWAY FACILITIES IMPROVEMENT PROGRAM.

Section 48101(a) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(3) $2,131,000,000 for fiscal year 1999."

SEC. 4. FAA OPERATIONS.

Section 106(k) of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking from "$5,158,000,000" through the period and inserting "$5,632,000,000 for fiscal year 1999."

SEC. 5. REMOVAL OF THE CAP ON DISCRETIONARY FUND.

Section 47115(g) is amended by striking paragraph (4).

SEC. 6. EXTENSION OF AVIATION INSURANCE PROGRAM.

Section 44310 of title 49, United States Code, is amended by striking "March" and inserting "May".

SEC. 7. MILITARY AIRPORT PROGRAM.

Section 124 of the Federal Aviation Reauthorization Act of 1996 is amended by striking subsection (d).

SEC. 8. DISCRETIONARY FUND DEFINITION.

(a) AMENDMENT OF SECTION 47115.—Section 47115 of title 49, United States Code, is amended—

(1) by striking "25" in subsection (a) and inserting "12.5"; and

(2) by striking the second sentence in subsection (b).

(b) AMENDMENT OF SECTION 47116.—Section 47116 of such title is amended—

(1) by striking "75" in subsection (a) and inserting "87.5";

(2) by redesignating paragraphs (1) and (2) in subsection (b) as subparagraphs (A) and (B), respectively, and inserting before subparagraph (A), as so redesignated, the following:

"(1) one-seventh for grants for projects at small hub airports (as defined in section 41731 of this title); and

"(2) the remaining amounts based on the following:"

SEC. 9. RELEASE OF 10 PERCENT OF MWAAs FUNDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding sections 49106(c)(6)(C) and 49108 of title 49, United States Code, the Secretary of Transportation may approve an application of the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority (an application that is pending at the Department of Transportation on March 17, 1999) for expenditure or obligation of up to $30,000,000 of the amount that otherwise would have been available to the Authority for passenger facility fee/airport development project grants under subchapter I of chapter 471 of such title.

(b) LIMITATION.—The Authority may not execute contracts, for applications approved under subsection (a), that obligate or expend amounts totalling more than the amount for which the Secretary may approve applications under that subsection, except to the extent that funding for amounts in excess of that amount are from other authority or sources.

The Senate bill was ordered to be read a third time, was read the third time, and passed, and a motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

□ 1930

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on S. 643.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Pennsylvania?

There was no objection.

REMOVAL OF NAME OF MEMBER AS COSPONSOR OF HOUSE JOINT RESOLUTION 37

Mr. BARTON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to remove the name of the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. JOHN PORTER) from House Joint Resolution 37, the Tax Limitation Constitutional Amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

EXTENDING SELECT COMMITTEE ON U.S. NATIONAL SECURITY AND MILITARY/COMMERCIAL CONCERNS WITH PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

Mr. COX. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Rules be discharged from further consideration of the resolution (H. Res. 129) extending the Select Committee on U.S. National Security and Military/Commercial Concerns With the People's Republic of China, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 129

Resolved,

SECTION 1. EXTENSION OF SELECT COMMITTEE.

Section 2(f)(1) of House Resolution 5, One Hundred Sixth Congress, agreed to January 6, 1999, is amended by striking "April 1, 1999" and inserting "April 30, 1999 (or, if earlier, the date on which the Select Committee completes its activities)".

The resolution was agreed to.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

SPECIAL ORDERS

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BASS). Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, and under a previous order of the House, the following Members will be recognized for 5 minutes each.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. SCARBOROUGH addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

ORDER OF BUSINESS

MRS. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take my special order up at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New Jersey?

There was no objection.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mrs. ROUKEMA) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to bring to the attention of our colleagues and our people in the country to the outstanding anti-smoking program that the faculty at the Byrd Elementary School in Glen Rock, New Jersey, is providing for their students in cooperation with the New Jersey Breathes organization.

The highlight of the program was a school-wide assembly that I had the privilege of attending on Monday, March 22d, and during that assembly a 5th grade student, Katherine Sommer, was honored as the winner of a composition contest conducted as part of the anti-smoking effort.

Mr. Speaker, I want to read this winning essay so that my colleagues, their children and their grandchildren can benefit from the direct and lucid way that Katherine Sommer expressed her wisdom on the issue of smoking and young people. My reaction was, "out of the mouths of babes".

Here is her essay. It was entitled "Don't Smoke". Katherine Sommer began this way:

Things can happen. Some things can't be helped. Some things can. Some people die of old age, heart attacks, and many other things, but a lot of people die a long, horrible death. They die of smoking. It could happen to you if you make one bad decision. Think of it this way. If you choose to smoke, you will be doing something really stupid. You could get very sick or even die. That wouldn't be worth it, would it? The worst part is it would be all your own fault!

Mr. Speaker, I want to remind my colleagues that Katherine Sommer was speaking to her classmates.

Some teenagers and young children start smoking for some really silly reasons. Some kids may want to join a popular group at school, and think smoking will make them look older. Some girls think smoking will make them look cool and boys will like them even more. What they do not know is if what happened on the inside of your body happened on the outside, you would look really ugly.

If you think that most kids smoke, you're wrong. The average kid doesn't smoke. And if you're anywhere near average, you won't either. You could really hurt yourself. You could get lung cancer, throat cancer, gum cancer or lip cancer. These are only some of the horrible diseases that you can get from smoking. And think, you could die just from trying to be cool.

Another reason you may start smoking is that a family member or really good friend may already smoke. You might think that it's harmless. You may think, I'll try one smoke, and if I don't like it I won't have any more. Well, it's not that easy. Smoking is addictive. That means that once you start something, you can't stop. Once you try it, it could be too late.

I do not intend to smoke. You shouldn't either. Don't let anything interfere with your dreams. Just don't try smoking. It's not healthy.

That was Katherine Sommer, 5th grade, winning essay in Glen Rock, New Jersey. Again I want to say to my colleagues, out of the mouths of babes, a message for the ages.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. LIPINSKI) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. LIPINSKI addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DIAZ-BALART) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. DIAZ-BALART addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BLUMENAUER addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. ENGLISH addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. FILNER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. FILNER addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. SESSIONS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. SESSIONS addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

GOVERNMENT PENSION OFFSET REFORM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JEFFERSON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JEFFERSON. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to have the opportunity to provide this statement regarding the Government Pension Offset Reform legislation that I introduced today.

Pension offset reform is an important issue to me. It is an important issue for my constituents in Louisiana and it is an important issue for many State and local government employees across the Nation.

As many of my colleagues are aware, State and local government employees were excluded from Social Security coverage when the Social Security system was first established in 1935. These employees were later given the option to enroll in the Social Security System, and in the 1960s and the 1970s many public employees opted to join in.

Some local governments chose to remain out of the system. Their employees and spouses planned for their retirement according to the rules in effect. It is estimated that about 4.9 million State and local government employees are not covered by Social Security. Seven States, California, Colorado, Illinois, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Ohio and Texas, account for over 75 percent of the noncovered payroll.

Many of the State and local government employees that are covered by government pensions are or will be unfairly affected by the pension offset. As Members may be aware, the pension offset was originally enacted in response to the perceived abuses to the Social Security system resulting from the Goldfarb decision.

The Social Security system provides that if a spouse who worked and paid into the Social Security system died, the benefits were to be paid to the surviving spouse as a survivor benefit. Men were required to prove dependency on their spouses before they became eligible for Social Security benefits. There was no such requirement for women.

The Goldfarb decision eliminated the different treatment of men and women. The Court instead required Social Security to treat men and women equally by paying benefits to either spouse without regard to dependency.

Many of the men who would benefit from the Goldfarb decision were also receiving large government pensions. It was believed that these retirees would bankrupt the system, receiving large government and private pensions in addition to survivor benefits.

To combat this perceived problem, pension offset legislation was enacted in 1977. The legislation provided for a dollar-for-dollar reduction of Social Security benefits to spouses or retiring spouses who received earned benefits from a Federal, State or local retirement system. The pension offset provisions can affect any retiree who receives a civil service pension and Social Security, but primarily affects widows or widowers eligible for survivor benefits.

In 1983, the pension offset was reduced to two-thirds of the public employer survivor benefit. It was believed that one-third of the pension was equivalent to the pension available in the private sector.

The pension offset, aimed at high-paid government employees, also applies to public service employees who generally receive lower pension benefits. These public service employees include secretaries, school cafeteria workers, teachers' aids, and others who receive low wages as government employees. The pension offset as applied to this group is punitive, unfairly harsh and bad policy.

Government pensions were tailored to reduce benefits that were equal to many combined private pension-Social Security policies in the private sector for upper level government workers. However, this was not true for lower income workers, such as employees who work as secretaries, school cafeteria workers, teachers' aids, and others who generally receive lower pension benefits.

To illustrate the harsh impact of the pension offset, consider a widow who retired from the Federal Government and receives a civil service annuity of $550 monthly. The full widow's benefit is $385. The current pension offset law reduces the widow's benefit to $19 a month. Two-thirds of the $550 civil service annuity is $367, which is then subtracted from the $385 widow's benefit, leaving only $19. The retired worker receives $569, $550 plus $19, per month.

Proponents of the pension offset claim that the offset is justified because survivor benefits were intended to be in lieu of pensions. However, were this logic followed across the board, then people with private pension benefits would be subject to the offset as well. But this is not the case.

While Social Security benefits of spouses or surviving spouses earning government pensions are reduced by $2 for every $3 earned, Social Security benefits of spouses and surviving spouses earning private pensions are not subject to the offset at all. If retirees on private pensions do not have Social Security benefits subject to offset, why should retirees who work in the public service system?

Mr. Speaker, the pension offset has created a problem that cries out for reform. It will cause tens of thousands of retired government employees, including many former paraprofessionals, custodians or lunch room workers, to live their retirement years at or near the poverty level.

My office has received numerous calls, all from widows who are just getting by and desperately need some relief from the pension offset. During the 105th Congress I introduced the Government Pension Offset Repeal bill, H.R. 273. Thanks to the grassroots support for it, it received 183 votes. Today we introduced this bill with 119 cosponsors already, and I look forward with my colleagues to gaining passage of this important reform legislation.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New York (Mr. BOEHLERT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BOEHLERT addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

U.S. MILITARY ACTION TAKING PLACE IN SERBIA IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. PAUL) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAUL. Mr. Speaker, U.S. military forces are now bombing a foreign nation halfway around the world. This cannot be a proud moment for America. The reason given for doing so is that Serbian leaders have not done what we have told them to do.

Serbia has not invaded another country but is involved in a nasty civil war, with both sides contributing to the violence. There is no American security interest involved in Serbia. Serbia has not threatened us nor used any force against any American citizen.

□ 1945

As bad as the violence is toward the ethnic Albanians in Kosovo, our ability to police and stop all ethnic fighting around the world is quite limited and the efforts are not permitted under constitutional law. We do not even pretend to solve the problems of sub-Saharan Africa, Tibet, East Timor, Kurdistan, and many other places around the world where endless tragic circumstances prevail.

Our responsibility as U.S. Members of Congress is to preserve liberty here at home and uphold the rule of law. Meddling in the internal and dangerous affairs of a nation involved in civil war is illegal and dangerous. Congress has not given the President authority to wage war.

The House resolution regarding Kosovo was narrowly, reluctantly, and conditionally passed. It was a non-binding resolution and had no effect of law. Even if it did, the resolution dealt with sending troops as a peacekeeping force to Kosovo only if a peace agreement was signed. There was no mention of endorsing an act of war against Serbia. Besides, the resolution was not the proper procedure for granting war powers to a president.

The Senate resolution, now claimed to be congressional consent for the President to wage war, is not much better. It, too, was a sense of Congress resolution without the force of law. It implies the President can defer to NATO for authority to pursue a war effort.

Only Congress can decide the issue of war. Congress cannot transfer the constitutional war power to the President or to NATO or to the United Nations. The Senate resolution, however, specifically limits the use of force to air operations and missile strikes, but no war has ever been won with air power alone. The Milosevic problem will actually get worse with our attacks, and ground troops will likely follow.

It has been argued we are needed to stop the spread of war throughout the Balkans. Our presence will do the opposite, but it will certainly help the military-industrial complex. Peaceful and cooperative relations with Russia, a desired goal, has now ended; and we have provoked the Russians into now becoming a much more active ally of Serbia.

U.S. and NATO policy against Serbia will certainly encourage the Kurds. Every argument for Kosovo's independence can be used by the Kurds for their long-sought-after independence. This surely will drive the Turks away from NATO.

Our determination to be involved in the dangerous civil war may well prompt a stronger Greek alliance with their friends in Serbia, further splitting NATO and offending the Turks, who are naturally inclined to be sympathetic to the Albanian Muslims. No good can come of our involvement in this Serbian civil war, no matter how glowing and humanitarian the terms used by our leaders.

Sympathy and compassion for the suffering and voluntary support for the oppressed is commendable. The use of force and acts of war to pick and choose between two sides fighting for hundreds of years cannot achieve peace. It can only spread the misery and suffering, weaken our defenses and undermine our national sovereignty.

Only when those who champion our war effort in Serbia are willing to volunteer for the front lines and offer their own lives for the cause will they gain credibility. Promoters of war never personalize it. It is always some other person or some other parent's child's life who will be sacrificed, not their own.

With new talk of reinstituting the military draft since many disillusioned military personnel are disgusted with the morale of our armed forces, all Americans should pay close attention as our leaders foolishly and carelessly rush our troops into a no-win war of which we should have no part.

TRIBUTE TO DOROTHY IRENE HEIGHT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, in light of this being Women's History Month, the Congresswoman from California (Ms. LEE) will be on the floor later this evening on a special order on women of color.

Because of a prior commitment, I will not be here at that time. But I would like to use a few minutes to offer a few words concerning a great woman of color of this century, Dorothy Irene Height, President and CEO Emeritus of the National Council of Negro Women.

Dorothy Height has spent half a century of ground-breaking service to her country to African American women. She is one of the great civil rights and women's rights leaders of our time. And I emphasize both of those great missions in speaking about Dr. Height.

Today is Dr. Dorothy Irene Height's 87th birthday. Mentored by her predecessor, the great Mary McLeod Bethune, Dorothy Height has spent a lifetime mentoring black women.

Today was no leisure day for Dorothy Height. As the day began, she was here in this House protesting the majority's census proposal that knowingly undercounts children and people of color. Dorothy Height has spent a lifetime keeping on top of issues of the day like the census.

There are so many landmarks in her extraordinary career, I will not attempt to list them. Let me name a few of the great ones. She is the first national female civil rights leader of the modern era. That was clear when 10 civil right leaders got together in 1963 and decided that there would be the first mass march on Washington for civil rights of the 20th century.

There were 10 leaders. Only one of them was a woman. My colleagues can imagine who the others were, leaders like the heads of the NAACP and Urban League. And there was that one great woman, Dorothy Height, the President of the National Council of Negro Women.

To cite another landmark, when women's rights burst on the scene, Mr. Speaker, Dorothy Height was one of the first leaders to understand that there must be no cleavage between women's rights and African American rights, between race and sex.

Inevitably there was some confusion about how blacks were to see this great new movement of half of the population. It took real leadership to come forward and clear up this confusion. Dorothy Height was among the foremost who forged unity. She even helped to make good feminists out of black men, who have ever since been in the forefront of women's rights.

All the while she has been carrying the great domestic issues of our time, Dorothy Height has carried an international portfolio. She indeed is recognized today as a world leader on matters of women of color.

I come to the floor this evening to salute Dorothy Irene Height, who has made the National Council of Negro Women one of America's great coalitions. Black women's groups of every variety are united under the umbrella of the Council. Together they work to improve the lives of African American women.

In celebrating women of color this evening, we would do well to begin with the life and times and work of Dorothy Irene Height.

U.S. IS EMBARKING ON VERY DANGEROUS AND WRONG COURSE IN KOSOVO

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. DUNCAN) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, last August we bombed Afghanistan and Sudan, in bombing raids that most Americans have already forgotten. We rushed into that bombing without informing even the full Joint Chiefs of Staff and without congressional approval, and later found we had even bombed a medicine factory.

Last December we started bombing Iraq, once again bombing people that our own leaders tell us are not our enemies. Many press reports since then have confirmed that the White House rigged the UNSCOM report in a lame attempt to justify the Iraqi bombing.

Now we are going to drop bombs on Kosovo. We are spending billions and billions of hard-earned tax dollars in all these bombing campaigns. Yesterday I had a group of people in my office requesting $100 million more for Alzheimer's research. I told those people to just try to get the President to stop bombing for part of one day.

We are dropping bombs and making enemies out of people who want to be our friends. And we are doing all this in places where there is absolutely no threat to our national security and no vital U.S. interest at stake.

The Christian Science Monitor said a few weeks ago that there are wars or military conflicts going on right now in 46 different places around the world. Many of these situations are just as bad or worse than Kosovo right now. There have been 2,000 people killed in Kosovo in the last year. As bad as this is, columnist Charles Krauthammer pointed out on television Sunday that more people were killed recently in Ethiopia in just one day.

If we intervene in every place where there are human rights violations, we will have to go into even more places than the 46 where the Christian Science Monitor found military conflicts. We seem to be following a CNN foreign policy, going heavily into whatever situation is being emphasized on the national news at the moment.

We should try to be friends with all nations. But we do not have the resources to become the world's policeman, and we will make more enemies than friends if we become the world's bully.

And we cannot hide behind NATO. Everyone knows that this bombing in Kosovo would not be done if the U.S. did not insist on it. NATO was set up as a defensive organization. Now it is being turned into an offensive one, attacking a non-member nation that has not threatened us or any other country.

We are intervening in a civil war. It is as if one of our own States was attempting to secede and our military attempted to keep it in and some other country started bombing us. The Kosovo bombings have been attempted to be justified on the basis that the fighting will spread. This is ridiculous. Milosevic may be a tyrant, but he is not attempting to nor does he have the resources to spread worldwide. It is ridiculous to try to equate this situation to when we were fighting world communism. There is no similarity to Russia under Khrushchev or China under Mao Tse-Tung.

Former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger wrote a few days ago that U.S. intervention in Kosovo is a mistake. He said, "The proposed deployment in Kosovo does not deal with any threat to U.S. security as this concept has been traditionally conceived." He pointed out that "ethnic conflict has been endemic in the Balkans for centuries."

David Broder wrote in the Washington Post last week, "Sending in the military to impose a peace on people who have not settled ancient quarrels has to be the last resort, not the standard way of doing business."

This is a religious or ethnic conflict that we cannot resolve unless we stay for a very long time at a cost of many, many billions. The President promised we would be out of Bosnia by the end of 1996. This is now March of 1999, and we are still there. I was told by another Member of the House recently that we have now spent $20 billion in Bosnia.

We are about to get into a very dangerous situation. This is an European problem. It is not something that we should risk American lives over. Young Americans may be killed. We should not be so eager or willing to send our troops into this situation. We cannot afford to spend all these billions just to show that the President is a great world statesman or to make sure that he goes down in history as a great world leader.

Finally, Mr. Speaker, Thomas Friedman wrote recently in the New York Times these words:

Stop. Before we dive into sending American troops to sort out the Serbian-Albanian civil war in Kosovo, could we talk about this for a second? If ever there was a time for an honest reassessment of U.S. policy towards Bosnia and Kosovo, it is now. And what that reassessment would conclude is that we should redo the Dayton Accords, otherwise we are going to end up with U.S. troops in Bosnia and Kosovo forever, without solving either problem.

Mr. Friedman is right. We are embarking on a very dangerous and very wrong course.

HONORING WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH AND WOMEN OF COLOR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CUMMINGS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CUMMINGS. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor today to participate in the celebration of Women's History Month and women of color. I applaud my distinguished colleague from California (Ms. LEE) who will later on this evening be conducting an hour discussion on this celebration.

For more than 10 years, the month of March has been dedicated to the celebration of women in American history. This month affords us the opportunity to appreciate the accomplishments of women and the role they have played in history, American women and women of color who throughout history have proudly served in shaping the spirit of our Nation and shaping our lives, individually and collectively.

Today, empowered by this great legacy, American women serve in every aspect of American life, from social services to space exploration. The opportunities for American women are growing, and their efforts as mothers and volunteers, corporate executives and Members of Congress, law enforcement officers and administrators, construction workers and soldiers, educators and scientists, enrich all of us and make our country great.

□ 2000

Women continue to strengthen our Nation's social fabric as leaders in the home, the community, the workplace, and the government.

The challenges facing women in the next century are many. They are increasingly called upon to serve as caregivers to children and elderly relatives and must bear the weight of providing economically for their families. However, through their endeavors, women are producing a heightened national consciousness to meet the needs of our people.

As we honor the courageous legacy of our Nation's women of color and celebrate the diversity of their backgrounds, talents and contributions, I reflect upon one great woman that has placed her stamp on public service and who played an important role in my life, the Honorable Lena K. Lee, former Maryland House of Delegates member.

A coal miner's daughter, Delegate Lee earned her prominence in Maryland through her indomitable intellect, compassion and character. Ms. Lee was the third woman to receive a law degree from the University of Maryland Law School, a founder of the Maryland Legislative Black Caucus, and a member of the Maryland Women's Hall of Fame.

Teacher, principal, union leader, lawyer and legislator, Delegate Lee created a new vision of what African-American women could hope to achieve in Maryland and across this Nation. However, her impact would be much broader. She has touched the lives of many. Her leadership and noteworthy contributions in the fields of education, law and politics are well known in our State.

In the summer of 1982, I received a call from this woman known only to me by reputation. She praised my work in assisting young African-American law graduates in their efforts to pass the bar exam, as well as my community involvement. I had been working in my small law practice wondering how my career would proceed when this renaissance woman and legend in our community was calling to compliment me. As the one that influenced my decision to begin a political career in the Maryland House of Delegates, Lena K. Lee was my teacher in public life.

"Mentor" is defined as a wise and trusted guide. I can proudly say that Lena K. Lee is a mentor. I have served the citizens of the 44th District in Maryland as a member of the House of Delegates and then as Speaker Pro Tem of the Maryland General Assembly and now I stand on the floor of the United States Congress today as a Member of this body.

She exemplifies the very idea that no matter what your background or circumstances, one can achieve great success. However, upon arrival, she believes that one is a public servant, with a first and fundamental responsibility to those who are unknown, unseen, unappreciated and unapplauded. Her life is a model of the old adage that "to whom much is given, much is required."

She is a champion of justice and dynamic legislator that was instrumental in getting Morgan State College changed to Morgan State University and saving the Orchard Street Church, a site of the underground railroad, from destruction. When we needed a black caucus and a women's caucus in the Maryland legislature, a new Provident Hospital or any other improvement in our community, it was her unselfish public service that was at the creation. Whether the cause was the health of Maryland prisoners or rebuilding of Orchard Street Church or Morgan State's university status, it was public service that was at the forefront of her agenda.

Martin Luther King Sr. said, "You cannot lead where you do not go and you cannot teach what you do not know." She may not have known her influence on other people's lives but Delegate Lee has led and taught a countless number of Baltimoreans how to stand and fight for justice. And so tonight I publicly thank her for all that she has done not only to touch my life but to touch the world.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. BASS). Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. SMITH of Michigan addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BURTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. BURTON of Indiana addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. MILLER of Florida addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

BUDGET BLUEPRINT KEEPS FAITH WITH ALL GENERATIONS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, President Lincoln said, "You may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time." That observation is still true today. As complicated as our Federal budget is, most Americans know that the budget is not truly balanced until we take all of those extra Social Security taxes and no longer use them to make the deficit look smaller. The Republican budget which we will announce tomorrow and debate on this floor stops the practice of cooking the books with Social Security money and it does a lot more. I would like to present some of the highlights:

First, our budget blueprint ensures that every penny of Social Security taxes will be spent only for Social Security. For years, the conventional wisdom in Washington was that Social Security money in excess of current benefit payments could be used to finance deficit spending. So, while the baby boomers inched closer to retirement, folks in Washington were spending dollars borrowed from Social Security on other programs. And, worse, they were still running up big deficits, even counting Social Security money.

This has to stop. Under the Republican budget plan, it would. The President has promised to reserve 62 percent of the surplus for Social Security. This means that for a time, Social Security money would be spent on things other than Social Security. For example, the President's 30 new programs. In contrast, the Republican budget seals away every bit of the Social Security surplus.

Second, our budget blueprint keeps faith with the spending caps set in the Balanced Budget Agreement of 1997. When I came to Congress, forecasters were predicting $200 billion deficits growing to $600 billion by the year 2009. Now, strong economic growth and spending discipline mandated by the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 are projected to create ever-increasing surpluses, at least under the old way of keeping the books. But this is no time to let up. We must protect those surpluses by restraining the growth of Washington spending. The administration has been talking lately about a new virtuous cycle of surpluses and declining interest rates. There is no quicker way to return to a vicious cycle of deficit spending and higher interest rates than to abandon the hard-won spending caps from 1997. The Republican budget maintains our commitment to fiscal restraint.

Third, our budget blueprint begins the process of actually paying down the debt we are passing on to our children. Everyone would agree that we have a moral obligation to take care of our children. Part of this obligation is relieving our kids of the nearly $6 trillion Federal debt. This is what I call generational fairness. The Republican budget plan would maintain our commitment to generational fairness by continuing the start we made last year on paying down some of the debt.

How would this work? Under our plan, Social Security taxes would be collected and locked away until a reform plan was enacted that would actually preserve the Social Security system. Until a specific fix is worked out, those excess funds would be used to pay off bonds owned by the public. This means it would be easier to meet future obligations to Social Security. And, Alan Greenspan tells us, it means lower interest rates.

Fourth, our budget blueprint makes possible reductions in the tax burden on American families as additional revenues become available. Americans are overtaxed. The average American family pays more in taxes than they do for food, clothing, shelter and transportation combined. That is wrong. The Republican budget plan makes strengthening Social Security our first priority. Then, as more surplus dollars become available, we believe Americans should start getting some of their excess taxes back. They should be given back as an overpayment, because that is what they are. Our plan recognizes that extra taxes left in Washington will get spent on new government programs that most folks neither want nor need. When we allowed Washington to start taking taxes out of our paycheck, we never said to Washington, "You can keep the change."

In sum, our budget plan reflects the priorities of the American people. It safeguards 100 percent of the Social Security money, unlike the President's plan, and keeps faith with our Nation's seniors. Then, by preserving fiscal discipline, paying down debt and offering tax relief, this budget ensures lower interest rates and a stronger economy well into the 21st century. This keeps faith with our children. It is a budget I am proud to support.

ISSUES OF CONCERN REGARDING IMMIGRATION

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

TRIBUTE TO HOUSTONIANS ON OBSERVANCE OF WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, this is a month in which we honor women for the contributions that they have made to the United States and to our communities and our neighborhoods.

And so, Mr. Speaker, I would like to briefly acknowledge some of my neighbors in Texas, in Houston in particular, who I hope to be able to expand on their many contributions in weeks and months to come by tributes that I will submit to the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. But just for tonight briefly since I will also talk about another issue in the time allotted, let me pay tribute and acknowledge:

Christa Adair, the first secretary of the NAACP, who created opportunities for people to vote in Houston, Texas.

Luella Harrison, an outstanding teacher, pioneer and spokesperson in our community.

Mrs. Erma Leroy, another activist who has contributed along with her husband, Moses Leroy, to the labor movement in Houston.

Madgelean Bush who founded the Martin Luther King Community Center that today provides facilities for babies with HIV/AIDS.

Nellie Fraga who has championed Hispanic and Mexican rights but also cultural connections and exchange.

Mrs. Laurenzo, the owner of Ninfa's Restaurant, a businesswoman premier who has guided us to indicate and teach women that they too can be involved in business.

I pay tribute to those women among many others who have done such great things for our community with a special tribute as well to Mae Jemison who has pioneered into space and now has an office in the Houston area.

Mr. Speaker, I would also like to respond and indicate some issues of concern that I have as the ranking member of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims of the House Committee on the Judiciary. I was disappointed that the amendment today of my good friend the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) was not able to be debated. The gentleman from Texas offered an amendment to ensure that criminal aliens that were already incarcerated would not be released until deportation. I wanted the gentleman from Texas to have the opportunity to discuss and debate a very important issue. The issue was raised because of the $80 million that was included in the emergency supplemental appropriations bill that was to provide increased border enforcement and funds for 2,945 additional beds for the detention of criminal aliens from certain parts of Central and South America.

I am concerned that when money is given to an agency and it is given to the agency still with the sense that the agency is not functioning, that we need to debate the issue and get clarification. I think it is important that we should acknowledge, as was acknowledged, that any presupposed or any memo that suggested that the INS was prepared to release criminal aliens is obviously incorrect or has been withdrawn. I am disappointed that preliminary discussions about that were ultimately released to the public. But INS should own up to it and explain what that memorandum was about. They say it was about the fact that they did not have enough beds. In fact, in our own community, they have contracted out the need for facilities for incarcerating or keeping criminal aliens. What I would like to see is the Federal Bureau of Prisons move more expeditiously, although I know they are working toward doing this, in providing beds for criminal aliens so that they are not located particularly in neighborhoods and communities around the Nation.

I also believe it is important not just to give $80 million for the increased border enforcement, but we need trained Border Patrol agents, experienced Border Patrol agents. And so it is important that INS responds how they are going to ensure that the border enforcement patrol is well trained so that everyone is protected, both the Border Patrol agents as well as those they encounter.

I think it is equally important that we address the question that so many have approached me with, and, that is, the INS personnel, in terms of improvements, both in terms of their conditions but also, Mr. Speaker, in terms of the workings of the office, the delay, the treatment of those who come into the INS office.

My commitment to all of those who are commenting about the INS is that we are going to fix it. It is an agency that has an enormous responsibility. Mr. Speaker, this is a country of immigration but it is a country of laws. My colleagues have my commitment as ranking member of the Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims that we are going to address these concerns to the INS and make the United States known for a fair and balanced immigration policy while responding to the concerns of our constituents and our colleagues.

□ 2015

THE NEW DEMOCRATS WANT FISCAL DISCIPLINE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the minority leader.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, tomorrow on the House floor we will begin the budget process. We will debate in the full House for the budget resolution, and the budget resolution is the parameters under which we will pass the spending bills later on in the session. So this is the first attempt to get a look at what our budget is going to look like for the fiscal year 2000.

I rise today to talk about fiscal discipline and to urge fiscal discipline in that process, and I do so from the perspective of a Democrat, but a New Democrat, and I would like to explain that a little bit at the outset because I am a member of the New Democratic Caucus back here in Washington, D.C., but that is not something folks may necessarily be completely familiar with outside of Washington, D.C.

The basic premise behind the New Democrats is that the Democratic party needed to change to address some of the legitimate concerns that the American public had with our party. Essentially we in the New Democratic Caucus believe that the Democrats did have to make some changes in some of its policies in order to address the concerns the public had expressed with us and the reasons that we started losing elections, quite frankly. We had to understand some of the changes that were going on in society and some of the changes that were going on in government and address them in manners that had not been previously addressed, and one of the biggest ones is fiscal responsibility.

Now, as Democrats, we believe that government can, in fact, in certain areas be a positive force in peoples' lives. We can look to Medicare, Social Security, the interstate highway bill, the GI bill, laws that have protected our environment by cleaning up air and water; all of those areas have made a difference. So it is not that we do not believe, as some of our colleagues on the right, in the Republican party, sometimes believe, that government can ever do anything right; it is just that we believe that they need to do it in a fiscally responsible manner, and there is a variety of reasons for that.

First of all, all of the needs that we have as a society: education, defense, cleaning up and protecting the environment, medical research, taking care of our veterans, providing health care and pension security for our seniors are not one-time needs. Our generation is not going to be the only generation that is going to need to address those concerns. It is going to be ongoing in the future. And if we spend all of the money right now in this generation, we are going to be doing a grave disservice to future generations. In fact, that is more or less what happened in the 1980's.

Basically, as my colleagues know, there were a lot of compromises that were reached in this body in the 1980's, and I always characterize those compromises as being basically: Okay, we will take your tax cut if you take our spending increase, and we will just spend as much money as possible to make as many people as possible happy right now today. Put it on a credit card and forget about tomorrow.

Well, Mr. Speaker, I first got into politics in 1990 when I was elected to the Washington State Senate. Basically I got elected right about the time the bill came due, and I know how difficult it is to do what we need to do as a government when the previous members of a legislative body have spent all the money and then some. It is completely irresponsible, and it mortgages the future of our children. Future generations will need infrastructure, they will need money for transportation, they will need money for public education, for cleaning up the environment, and if we have spent it all, they will not have it.

So, being fiscally responsible should in no way be antithetical to the beliefs of the Democratic party. We need to emphasize it and make it a big priority.

One of the other problems with running up such a severe debt, other than spending all of the money that future generations could spend for needed and necessary programs, is that the more money we spend, the more debt we go into, the higher the interest payment. This is a concept that everybody in America understands whether it is a mortgage payment, a car payment, a credit card bill. We understand that not only do we have to pay back that money that we borrowed, but it keeps going up in the presence of interest that accumulates on our bill every month.

Mr. Speaker, I have a chart here that helps illustrate that problem in the Federal Government. Basically the third largest expenditure behind Social Security and national defense of our Federal Government is interest on the debt, $243 billion or 14 percent of the budget. That is money that does not go to educate our children, that does not go to provide health care for people in poverty, or seniors or people who need it. That does not go to help our environment, to help with medical research, to help with veterans, to do any of those things. It goes to pay for the irresponsible spending of those who went before us, and we should be keenly aware of that number because, as the deficit goes up, this number keeps going up as well.

And finally there is another benefit to being fiscally responsible that goes beyond this that the next chart, as I will demonstrate in a minute, reveals, and that is that basically, if we can pay down the Federal debt; because keep in mind this number here is a yearly number. We are running up a deficit on a yearly basis; we are getting close to balance, but we are not quite there, but more on that in a second. But we also at the same time are incurring overall debt. We are borrowing more and more money. So even if we get our budget balanced, one of the critical things we need to do is start paying down the debt. If we start paying down the debt, that helps interest rates go down, and if interest rates go down, there are benefits all across the economy, and I will demonstrate a few of them on the other chart.

One of the biggest ones that we can all relate to is a home mortgage, and basically if we can pay down the debt so that the public or the government sector is not gobbling up all the money, other people can have more access to it at a better rate. And my colleagues can see here, if you just reduce the mortgage interest rate on a 30-year fixed rate from 8 percent down to 6 percent, you can save yourself a great deal of money on the monthly payment, and over the course of a year you can save yourself a great, an even larger, sum of money.

So, Mr. Speaker, this is another problem with being fiscally irresponsible, all of which brings me to the budget that is going to be laid out here on the floor tomorrow by the majority party. It fails to be fiscally responsible. It is not just Democrats that have trouble being fiscally responsible in the past. It is Democrats and Republicans. One of the things I always try to say whenever people get into an argument over whose fault the debt is, as my colleagues know, is it the Reagan/Bush presidency or is it the Democratic Congress; as my colleagues know, I believe in saying it is both of their fault. They made the decisions to spend more money collectively than they can possibly cover. So it is not just one party or the other that is responsible for this, but now, as the budgets are being rolled out, if the Republican budget passes, it will be the Republicans who are responsible for further fiscal irresponsibility because their budget sounds themes that are eerily familiar: massive tax cuts totaling well over a trillion and a half dollars over the course of 15 years, at the same time accompanied by massive spending increases primarily in the areas of defense, and education and in some arguably laudable areas. Keep in mind, as I said earlier, this is not an argument against spending money. This is an argument of spending too much money and going into debt so that we create a fiscally irresponsible situation.

And lastly the last thing reflected in the current Republican plan is not only do they dramatically cut taxes and dramatically increase spending, but they also offer no plan at this point to do anything about entitlements, about Social Security and Medicare and Medicaid, all of which in their present framework are going to cost far more than the current budget structure could possibly accommodate. Medicare goes bankrupt in 2008, Social Security stops running a surplus in 2014 and goes bankrupt in 2032. All of those facts combine to make this Republican budget very fiscally irresponsible and to put us in a position of basically snatching defeat from the jaws of victory. We are just this close to balancing the budget.

Personally I do not think that we should count the surplus in the Social Security Trust Fund as income to reduce the overall deficit, so I do not think we have a balanced budget yet, but even if you do not count that money, we ran a $30 billion deficit this past fiscal year as opposed to the nearly $300 billion deficits that we were running in the early 1990's. So we are getting close.

I rise today basically as a New Democrat to urge fiscal discipline, urge us to get the rest of the way and to reject the Republican budget.

I have some of my colleagues here who are going to help me in this argument, and I will at this point yield to the gentleman from North Carolina.

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my friend from Washington State (Mr. SMITH) for organizing this special order this evening on an issue that is really so important not only this year to this Congress, but to the future of this country and to our children who have not yet been born. And he talked a few moments ago about a new Democrat. As my colleagues know, that is a group, a caucus, as he has shared, has been formed here in Congress of Democrats who believe in growth, who believe in funding education, but also believe that we should balance our budget, and keep our House in order and that we should reduce our public debt. To make sure that we have a good sound economy I think is a sound philosophy, and it is most important and it makes sense for American families, as he just talked about.

Before I came to Congress, as many of my colleagues know, I was the elected State superintendent of my State of North Carolina for 8 years. What they may not know is that prior to that I spent 19 years as a small businessman meeting payrolls, paying taxes. I knew what it was to go to the bank and borrow money if I had to, not only to expand, but to meet payroll if I had to on Friday if I had not collected enough of my sales during the week. So I know firsthand how important it is to keep your books sound and your numbers straight.

That is why it is so important, as I come to the floor this evening to join my colleagues in this special order because it is an issue I think we have to take about. Tomorrow we will be debating it on the floor and talk about fiscal discipline at the federal level that we had in North Carolina when I was there because I served for 10 years in the General Assembly at the State level. Four of those years I chaired the Appropriations Committee and had responsibility to write four balanced budgets, and Congress is now headed in that direction of getting our House in order.

Mr. Speaker, that is why the Republican budget resolution is so troubling to me. If we look at it, they are talking about a $800 billion tax cut over 10 years. It is too risky, it is too radical, and, in my opinion, too irresponsible. The Republican budget is a tax cut spree financed with fantasy surpluses yet to materialize.

If the economy should dip and we hope it does not, but we know what history tells us, guess what happens? There is no money. The American people remember the 1980's when we had huge deficits. We do not want to return to that. That would certainly be a mistake.

When the people of North Carolina sent me to Congress, they gave me simple marching orders. That was to help the Federal Government live within its means. And one of the first bills I voted on, major bills, was to balance the federal budget, and, as I have said earlier, as a former businessman you have to balance your budget, and if you cannot balance your budget and live within your means when you have a good economy, when do you get to do it? We must act now to pay down the debt when we have money, and that is the one thing that could stifle our economic growth and the expansion that we are enjoying and bring tremendous hardship on hard-working people all across America who have paid the price, who are now working hard and looking for us to do the things we ought to do that are right. Pay the debt down so, if we have another tough time, we can get through it.

Mr. Speaker, future generations of Americans deserve the opportunity to strive and achieve without the questioned burden of debt that our current consumption is creating. We are consuming a great deal right now. We owe it to the next generations to pay this debt down and make sure that our children and our children's children are not saddled with it. If we use projected surpluses as an excuse to enact massive tax cuts, we will have no resources available to pay for debt relief for our children or our grandchildren.

□ 2030

We will not be able to lower interest rates on homes and expand the economy in the 21st century.

Two more pressing crises, and I could list a whole bunch, but I only want to touch two facing America, and that is facing social security and Medicare. We have to invest in that and do it now, and the budget we will see tomorrow will not do that. It is a shell game. They show us how to increase revenues and expenditures for programs that are important to people for 3 to 5 years. At the end of that period they cut them off, because that is when all the big tax cuts kick in. What a cruel hoax to play on the American people.

Secondly, investing in education, so that the next generation of American leaders will have the kind of education they need to continue to grow this economy in the 21st century. Not one penny in their budget proposal for school construction, at a time when there is crying across this country for modernization and new school buildings.

We have a greater growth in school population for children in public schools than we have had in the history of this Nation. There are more children in school today, and yet, not one penny.

The Republican budget proposal cripples our ability, in my opinion, to rise to these challenges, and we have an opportunity tomorrow to do something about it. We have a chance to say no, no to the excesses, but yes to a responsible budget that will provide opportunities for our children, that will provide targeted tax cuts, that will help grow this economy, and help us move into the 21st century in a position to continue to be the great Nation that we are, and provide strength and hope to people around the world.

Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for this opportunity to be part of this special order.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. I thank the gentleman very much for those fine comments.

One quick comment before I recognize my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin. This is not easy. That is the reason it is called discipline. We all have people come back here and ask for a wide variety of programs and tax cuts.

I have always felt, I long for the day when somebody walks into my office and asks for $10 million or $20 million or $50 million for some program or tax cut, and I can look at them and say, that is a complete waste of money. That is not going to do any good for anybody, anywhere.

That is not true. Every dime we spend would do some good for some people. That is why we have to be disciplined to make sure we do not spend more money than we take in. The Federal budget is $1.7 trillion. We can do a lot and we should, but we should not give in to the pressure of taking it issue by issue and saying, we just have to spend the money. We have to think about the future, and think about the fact that it is their money that we are spending if we are not disciplined now.

Mr. Speaker I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH) for giving some time this evening to talk about a very important issue in regard to the budget resolution which is coming up tomorrow, which will have an impact on the course of fiscal policy on this Nation for years to come.

I just came from my office, watching on television. I am sure many people throughout the country heard the President's explanation of our involvement in Kosovo.

Now that military air strikes are underway in the Balkans again, I am sure my friends from Washington State, North Carolina, my friend, the gentleman from New Jersey, would extend our thoughts and prayers to the young men and women in American uniform who are once again being called upon to restore some peace and stability in Europe, along with the military personnel of the 18 NATO nations that have joined us unanimously in this policy.

It is never easy to order this type of action to place young lives in harm's way, but I believe that it is the right policy at the right time for the right reason.

As a student back in 1990, I had the opportunity of visiting Yugoslavia, and spent time in Kosovo, and I had a chance to meet a lot of Kosovar students and people there. These are good, decent people. They do not deserve to be murdered and forced out of their homes by Milosevic's army.

If we are to learn any lessons from the Second World War, it is that the United States of America is not going to stand idly by and watch atrocities and genocidal practices being committed against defenseless civilians.

Yet, it is the young men and women who are called upon yet again to do their duty, and I am very confident they are going to be able to do it professionally, with a great deal of loyalty, and courageously. May they all return home soon to their families and safely.

On to the subject at hand in regard to the budget resolution, when I came to this body a couple of years ago, I was proud to join the New Democratic Coalition, which is new but expanding after every election. It is a group that stands principally for fiscal responsibility, along with making investments to promote growth in this country, highlighting issues such as the advancement of technology and education and the work force, a heavy emphasis on education issues, but underlying all this is the need for fiscal restraint, fiscal responsibility, and fiscal discipline.

I, too, am concerned, as my friends, the gentleman from Washington State and the gentleman from North Carolina, are tonight about the ramifications of what is going to hit the Floor tomorrow and what is going to be debated tomorrow; the lack of fiscal discipline, the fiscally irresponsible decisions that are being made in the course of this budget resolution, and the long-term implications that that holds throughout the country.

My friend, the gentleman from North Carolina, indicated earlier that what is being proposed is over an $800 billion tax cut, most of which is backloaded. In fact, it will not kick in until those crucial years when the aging baby boomers start reaching retirement, start entering the social security and Medicare program.

If there is an economic downturn, it could reap devastating consequences for that generation and that generation of leadership having to do with serious revenue shortfalls at precisely the time when these very important programs, like social security and Medicare, will be facing their greatest challenge.

The gentleman from North Carolina also pointed out a very fundamental fact. I remember not so long ago when there were great knockdown, drag-out fights over budget resolutions and proposals that would extend out 3 years. Now we have entered this era that we are not just talking about a 1-year fiscal cycle or 2-year or 3-year fiscal cycle, but a 10- or 15-year fiscal cycle, and fiscal decisions being made on projections way out into the next century.

We are hard-pressed with the economic experts that we have, the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of Management and Budget, to even get the economic projections and numbers right over a 12-month period of time, let alone a 5- or 10-year period of time.

So these rosy scenarios, and they are certainly very optimistic, and hopefully they will come true, of projected budget surpluses of the tune of $4 to $4.5 trillion over the next 10 to 15 years, are I think a very dangerous and irresponsible calculation.

There are many warning signals, not only in our own domestic economy but in the international economic area, that could lead to a drastic downturn with the economic growth that we have fortunately been experiencing in recent years. If that downturn does happen, obviously it is going to affect revenue projections. It is going to affect other programs within the Federal budget.

If these budget surpluses do not in fact materialize and we lock into huge tax cuts that are now being proposed, we could find ourselves returning to the era of annual structural deficits that we are just now turning the corner and pulling out of from the 1980s and early 1990s.

I think the Democratic Party has a lot to be proud about and to talk about with regard to fiscal constraint and discipline that we have exhibited in the 1990s. Since the 1993 budget agreement, which was a very difficult vote for Democrats to take, many of them lost their seat because of it, there was not one Republican across the aisle who supported it.

In fact, many of their leadership were right here on the House Floor decrying that budget agreement, claiming that if it was enacted, that it would result in the next Great Depression in this country. But in fact, it has led to six consecutive years of budget deficits and now projected budget surpluses that are outside of the social security trust fund.

The truth is, and the American people and my constituents back home in western Wisconsin understand this fundamental fact, that all this talk about budget surpluses this year, next year, is really masking a social security surplus that the government is continuing to borrow from. We will not truly be running online budget surpluses until the fiscal year 2001, assuming, again, the economic projections do take place.

But I think the most fiscally responsible and prudent course of action to take now is a go slow and cautious approach, wait and see if in fact these budget surpluses do materialize before we start locking in on major fiscal policy changes.

One of the other things that disturbs me in regard to the budget resolution that we will be debating and voting on tomorrow is the fact that if we pass it and if it is implemented, we will be breaking a longstanding budget ruling of the 1990s called pay-as-you-go.

This is, I think, a very important reason why we have been able to practice fiscal discipline, why we have been able to reduce the Federal budget deficit over the last 6 years, and why we have the potential of going into the 21st century on a much firmer fiscal note.

Basically, pay-as-you-go means if you are going to offer any new spending or any new tax cuts, they have to be paid for by offsets in the already existing budget, meaning that you do not move forward on new spending or reduced taxes unless you can pay for it under the budget allocation as it exists.

That rule would have to be violated in passing the budget resolution that we face tomorrow. I think that would be disastrous. I think that would be the wrong step to be taking right now, when we are starting to make this turn into an era of potentially fiscally responsible and sound footing, so we can make a serious investment in saving social security and Medicare, but most of all, start making the attempt to reduce the national debt.

Right now it is at $5.5 or $6 trillion, going up, even today, and $3.7 trillion of that is publicly held, meaning that there is a government, Federal Government, obligation to pay back to individuals or corporations who are buying up Treasury notes and bonds. They have to come and they will come due. We have an obligation to pay it.

With the projected budget surpluses, we are in excellent shape now to start downloading that publicly held national debt of $3.7 trillion, which is, by the way, what Chairman Greenspan is consistently begging us to do every time he comes before congressional committees to testify.

We know how important the Federal Reserve has been in the economic activity we have experienced in this country. Why would paying down that national debt benefit us in regard to the Federal Reserve and monetary policy?

It is very simple. The Federal Reserve Chairman Greenspan tells us that if we can reduce our national debt burden, that would mean the Federal Government would not have to go into the private sector and continue to borrow funds from the private sector in order to meet our Federal obligations and our deficit obligations.

What would that mean? It would free up capital then in the private sector, and make it cheaper for individuals and companies to borrow for their own investment needs. It would enable the Federal Reserve and Chairman Greenspan to keep rates low, and to lower them even further.

That really is the true economic story of the last few years, the fact that we have reduced interest rates, which has enabled individuals and corporations to borrow money cheaper, to make investments, to form capital, to create jobs, that leads to the economic growth we have had, the low unemployment and the low inflation.

If there is one thing we should attempt to do, it is pass fiscal policy which will enable the Federal Reserve to keep rates low, and lower them even further. That is the big tax cut that all Americans can share in.

Virtually everyone at some time has to borrow some money for some reason. Whether it is credit card payments, whether it is home or car payments, student loans, whether it is farmers in the capital-intensive occupation that they are involved with, small and large businesses, they are all having to borrow money.

If we reduce the rate and the expense of borrowing it, that means more disposable money in their pockets. That is something that we should be striving for. That is where our priorities should really lie.

Unfortunately, that is not always politically sexy or politically juicy to take home to our constituents that we are representing. Tax cuts have always been popular and politically appealing, but unless we change that mindset in this body, unless we start becoming more concerned about the next generation, our children, and what type of fiscal inheritance they can expect, and less concerned about the next election, I am fearful that we are going to make bad decisions today that are going to affect my two little boys, who are just 2½ and 9 months old right now.

Most of what I do and the decisions that I make are done through their eyes; how is this going to affect them and their country in their century, the decisions that we make today. I think that is really what is at stake today. I think that is what the debate should be about tomorrow, how can we set the next generation up in the 21st century so that they do not have to face the burden of an exploding social security system or a Medicare system that is imploding because of the aging population in this country. That I think is the true challenge.

I appreciate the leadership and the effort that my friend, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH) is making, that other Members of the New Democratic Coalition have been making, my friend, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS), who is at the forefront of this issue, fighting about it every day. Perhaps we can change the mindset in this body and do the right thing, starting with this budget.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS), and I thank my friend, the gentleman from Washington State. It is good that this gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH) came to Washington. We are glad he is here.

I very much agree with the sentiments of my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND). I have daughters who are 6 and 4, and I do look at these decisions the same way. When I was fortunate enough to come here in 1990, we were borrowing $400 billion a year to run the Federal Government. This year we will take in approximately $100 billion more than we spend. Tomorrow and in many days that follow tomorrow we will make a choice as to what to do about that.

As my colleagues have said very clearly and very well here tonight, there are many temptations in the short run. Virtually everyone who visits us in the Capitol wants more money from the Federal Treasury in the form of programs, or they want to send less money to the Federal Treasury in the form of taxes.

□ 2045

I believe that we have to do something this year that is totally contrary to the political impulse, and that is to avoid instant gratification in exchange for what makes sense in the long run.

For us to do what is right here, I believe we need to make a choice that says no to an awful lot of things that are worthy of saying yes to. I wish that we could double college scholarship Pell Grants. I wish that we could spend more on cleaning up Superfund sites. I wish that we could do more to expand child care opportunities right now for people. I wish we could get rid of the marriage penalty and further cut the capital gains tax. I frankly think we should get rid of the estate tax as well.

We get a lot of votes and a lot of constituencies that would support everything that I just said. But I think the choice we have to make is whether or not we help people a little bit right now with a modest, almost symbolic tax cut, or whether we invest in their children's schools, defend their country through a stronger military, protect their environment, and most especially, assure that they will have a secure retirement with a Social Security check and a full health benefit through Medicare.

The choice that will be on this floor tomorrow is rather clear. Both sides in fact want to place the lion's share of the surplus into Social Security. We have different ways to do it. I frankly think the way that the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) is proposing is the right way to do it.

But the big difference is what to do with the rest of that surplus, and here is the difference: We choose Medicare in the Democratic Party. The majority party chooses a short-term reduction in taxes, which is alluring, which is popular, which is politically expedient, and which is wrong.

The most risky and difficult way, the most successful way, if you will, to let the deficit genie out of the bottle again is to start reducing taxes because it is a politically expedient and easy thing to do. It is a surefire recipe for higher interest rates, less confidence from the markets, and a return to the chaos that affected this country's economy when I arrived here nearly 10 years ago.

A lot of people deserve a lot of credit for bringing us to a point where we now have black rather than red ink. Our President deserves credit. Members of the majority party deserve credit. Members of our party deserve credit.

Most of the credit belongs to our constituents who get up every day, earn their living, send their tax dollars here, and sacrifice for their family and their community and their country. I would hate to see all of that sacrifice given away, eviscerated because of a need for short-term political expediency.

The right answer with that hundred billion dollars surplus is to fund the massive unfunded pension liability that was created for 30 years around here by putting it back into Social Security where it should never have been taken out. Then take the bulk of it, the remainder, and make Medicare sound for at least the next 10 years so that, when people retire, they understand that an illness is not a financial death sentence.

It is difficult to resist what is popular in the short run, but it is right, and it is necessary. The budgets that will come to this floor tomorrow compel us to make that choice: the next election or the next generation, a good headline tomorrow or a good retirement for the people that we represent today.

I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to put aside their partisanship, read these budgets, look through the eyes of young men and young women who are growing up in this country, and pass the resolution put forth by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) on behalf of the Democratic Party tomorrow.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, in terms of the budget, there are two key facts out there that are not getting a lot of headlines that need to be highlighted, because I think part of the problem and part of the rush towards spending all of this money or cutting taxes, one or the other, is the perception that we have these never-ending budget surpluses.

There are 2 key limitations to that fact that need to be pointed out. Number one, a significant portion of those budget surpluses is within the Social Security Trust Fund. That is not really surplus money. That is money, as the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) just pointed out, that we have to pay back to the Social Security Trust Fund. So to count it as income and spend it now is like spending money twice. That puts us into a fiscal irresponsible situation.

Second is the coming expense of the entitlements of Medicare and Social Security and, to a lesser extent, Medicaid. We all know the statistics on those. They are very dire.

Basically, there are more people who are going to be in the retirement community who are going to be eligible for Medicare and Social Security. They are living longer, and health care costs are going up, all of which is combined to create a situation where the expenses for entitlements are going to explode in the next 10 to 15 years and beyond.

My colleagues need to factor those two things in before they go passing a whole lot of money around thinking that we have surpluses that we do not in fact have and will not have in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. SNYDER).

Mr. SNYDER. Mr. Speaker, like a lot of Americans tonight and perhaps people all around the world, I have been spending my time channel surfing through the various networks and following what is going on overseas in Kosovo. The President spoke, as my colleagues know, within the last hour from the Oval Office about what is going on.

From the standpoint of those of us who are dealing with these budgetary issues now and will be voting on them tomorrow, as we recognize our young men and women and the sacrifices they are making tonight, they are flying in the budget decisions that were made in years gone by.

I hope tomorrow that our thoughts will be with those young men and women as we cast our votes on what we think the best budget is for the future of this country.

The issues that have gotten a lot of attention over the last several months about the budget have been issues involving family security, Medicare, and Social Security. One of my specific concerns about the votes that we have to make tomorrow is another part of the security of our senior citizens, and that is the veterans budget. Frankly, I think that the budget proposal that apparently was just filed here in the last few minutes is not adequate for veterans. It is very disappointing and perhaps more disappointing in view of what is going on overseas this evening and today.

Fortunately we will have the opportunity tomorrow to vote on a better budget for veterans. It will be the alternative offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT). It will not only add additional money to this next year's budget but will maintain that number through the next several years.

As the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND) did such a good job in discussing the problems of tax cuts down the line, unfortunately the budget document that we are going to be presented tomorrow takes money from, in my opinion, good programs in order to finance those tax cuts.

So we see that the budget tomorrow, with regard to veterans issues, it takes the President's budget, it adds $0.8 billion to it for the 2000 fiscal year, but then the number drops back down in 2001 and 2002 and 2003 and 2004.

So the veterans are being falsely, in my opinion, falsely fooled into thinking that somehow we have this great budget that is going to add money to their budget for their future, and it does not.

The number is inadequate for the fiscal year that we are considering, and then it is clearly even more inadequate in the years following because it drops back.

The budget of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) adds $1.8 billion to the veterans budget for the fiscal year we are considering and maintains that level over the future. The majority budget adds $0.8 billion to go to the budget for fiscal year 2000, and then that number drops back. I think that is not correct and not the proper way to treat our veterans.

What it demonstrates, though, is the importance of being fiscally responsible. We have some very real needs in this country, and I think Social Security and Medicare are appropriately at the top of the list. But veterans and our promises that we made to our veterans also should be at the top of that list, as should our national defense budget.

The more we take these dollars and, in my opinion, irresponsibly make promises to the American people that somehow we can do it all, we can fund everything, we can fund Medicare, we can fund Social Security, we can fund veterans, we can fund national defense, and, by the way, we can send all this money home to them, if we make those kinds of false promises, we do a disservice to our responsibilities down the line.

That is why I am pleased to be here tonight and support the efforts of this group in being fiscally responsible and voting for a budget that does not squander this opportunity to put away surpluses for the future of this country, for veterans, for national defense, and for our senior citizens.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mrs. NAPOLITANO).

Mrs. NAPOLITANO. Mr. Speaker, I join my colleagues to carry a message that we do need to invest in our future and not squander our resources on ill-conceived tax cuts.

We have heard it before and we are going to continue hearing it, the recession of the early 1990s has been replaced with a record-breaking strong economy. Years of budget deficits have finally been replaced with a surplus.

Now we need to determine what is the most responsible thing to do in these good economic times. Should we do what any prudent family would do when times are good, namely, pay down our debt and invest in our future, or should we spend away our surplus on massive tax cuts that mostly benefit those that do not need it, the wealthy?

Before I think of what we go through, I do not think it is very hard. The answer is very clear. That is why I support my party's policy of paying down the national debt and investing in America's future.

Let us dedicate the 62 percent we have talked about of the surplus towards safeguarding Social Security and 15 percent towards Medicare. This would ensure that Americans have access to Social Security benefits until at least the year 2055 and access to Medicare benefits until at least the year 2020.

While we work to safeguard Social Security and Medicare, let us also start getting serious about paying down the national debt. Public debt is now the highest it has ever been at $3.7 trillion, that is with a "t", and it is soaking up billions of tax dollars that could otherwise be used towards further strengthening Social Security, Medicare, investing in our schools and infrastructure and expanding health care services.

In 1998, 14 percent of our government spending went into paying the interest on our national debt. That comes to $3,644 for every family in America, $3,644. That is more money than was spent on the entire Medicare program.

The money spent on the interest payments on the national debt did not reduce the debt itself by one cent. It certainly did nothing to improve our health care, our schools, our drinking water, or to help small businesses succeed.

Let us stop wasting money on the national debt's interest payments. Now that we have overcome a history of budget deficits, it is time to use that economic strength we have built towards finally paying off the national debt.

In addition, we have put an end to wasteful spending by looking at how we do the furtherance of cutting the national debt. It is good for Americans because it would lead to a reduction in interest rates.

Now get this, a 2 percent dip in interest rates would cut home mortgages, the rates in home mortgages significantly. A family currently making monthly payments on a $150,000 home with a 30-year fixed income mortgage at 8 percent is paying $844 a month. If their interest rate drop to 6 percent, that monthly payment would be cut to $689, a savings of $155 a month. That is better than any tax cut the other side is proposing.

Now for college students, a 2 percent reduction in the interest rate would cut typical 10-year student loans for a 4-year public college by $4,263. That is an 8.5 percent reduction. For small business, a 2 percent interest rate could reduce a 5-year start-up loan on $200,000 by $11,280 over the life of the loan.

□ 2100

These are very real and significant savings that demonstrate how paying off the national debt can help working families.

The President has proposed a budget that will cut the debt, reducing it to $1.3 trillion. That would be the lowest national debt in proportion to GDP since 1916. I hope that my colleagues will join me in supporting our President's plan.

Common-sense fiscal discipline transformed the budget deficit into a surplus. Let us resist the temptation to spend our current surplus on tax cuts that will leave us ill-prepared to tackle the challenge of extending the life of Social Security and Medicare and reducing the national debt.

Just because the days of deficits are behind us does not mean that fiscal responsibility is obsolete. We need to continue on the course of maintaining a strong and healthy economy that will benefit all Americans, especially our children and future generations.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. One quick point, Mr. Speaker, and then I want to yield to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. MALONEY).

When looking at fiscal discipline issues, I think tax cuts are fine. I do not think that there is necessarily a prejudice against cutting taxes. I think in certain areas we need to do it. Nor do I think that tax cuts are any greater threat to our fiscal discipline than spending. I think too much spending leads to the problems we have just as much as too much tax cuts.

What I would emphasize in any budget is to look at the overall budget and keep one primary goal in mind: balance it. If we think that we can find room for some tax cuts by cutting spending someplace else, great, let us put it on the table, let us talk about it, and let us weigh those options. Whatever the spending program may be, whether it is veterans spending that the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. SNYDER) alluded to, or the capital gains tax cut and the marriage tax penalty that the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS) alluded to, put it on the table and talk about it.

The problem is, and what we have yet again with the Republican budget, they sort of throw everything on the table and promise they can do it all, all the tax cuts, all the spending increases, and just kick it off down into the future and let the credit card grow. That is the problem.

Nothing against tax cuts, but we need to weigh them against spending increases or decreases and figure out what is best, with one fundamental goal in mind: balance the budget and pay down the debt. We cannot do that if we promise away all the money in both directions.

With that, Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. MALONEY).

Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington (Mr. SMITH), and I think his final comments, and the motif of this special order, is fiscal responsibility and fiscal discipline. The day has finally arrived that we can stand here and say that we have a real opportunity to do the right thing in regard to fiscal responsibility.

If we look back over the past 30 years, we see what was the wrong thing to do, and it was done wrong on both sides of the aisle in this House and in this Congress at large. Thirty years we went without a balanced budget. We have accumulated a $5 trillion deficit. We raided the Social Security Trust Fund. We raided the Highway Trust Fund. The Congress raided the Land and Water Conservation Fund. Thirty years we have had a wrong direction. We have not made the right decisions; the decisions that are in the long-term interest of this country.

Today we are talking about doing the right thing. Tomorrow we will have the opportunity to vote on some budget resolutions, one of which, the one offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), I believe, does in fact do the right thing. It restores us to a path of fiscal responsibility.

Let me draw a straightforward analogy between a typical family and the budget decision that we have to make tomorrow. A typical family might, over the past years, have had some fiscal stress. They might have taken out a loan to help finance a young member of the family going to college; they might have taken out a loan to replace a car.

They now face the circumstance where they have a good time. They are in good economic times. They are at the end of a year and they are going to get perhaps a bonus. What do they do with that bonus? Do they pay down their car loan? Do they repay the student loan so that perhaps the next child in the family can go to college? Or perhaps they make a decision that they are going to take a fancy vacation, and they are going to spend their year-end bonus or the benefit of their fiscal good times on some other luxury.

That is the choice that this House faces tomorrow. Do we do the right thing? Do we pay down the deficit? Do we save our money for Social Security? Do we make sure that we have adequate provision for Medicare? Do we do the fiscally responsible thing, or do we kind of go on a holiday and find things that, sure, we would all love to do, but that frankly we cannot afford?

The answer, I think, is that we try to do the right thing. And when we look at what that right thing entails, it is very straightforward. We are proposing that 62 percent of the surplus be put aside to secure Social Security; that 15 percent of the surplus be put aside to secure Medicare for the future years. Those actions will extend the fiscal life of the Social Security program to the year 2050.

The proposal made by the majority party adds no additional years to the life of the Social Security program. The budget proposal of the gentleman from South Carolina will take us out to 2050.

Similarly for Medicare, the majority party will make a budget proposal tomorrow which will add no additional life to the Medicare trust fund. The proposal of the gentleman from South Carolina will bring us fiscal security in the Medicare program to the year 2020, and still leave us money to do targeted investments in things like education and make some responsible, affordable tax cuts: a tax cut for long-term care; the opportunity to make the research and development tax credit a permanent feature of the Tax Code, to encourage additional growth in economic progress in our country.

Tomorrow is a very important day in the history of this country. Tomorrow we have a choice, an irresponsible budget proposal containing an irresponsible tax, or a responsible budget proposal that looks to the long-term financial and social health of this country that includes targeted tax relief.

I sincerely hope that this House supports the proposal of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) and that we adopt a fiscally responsible budget resolution.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, it gives me pleasure at this point to yield to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE). He is a Blue Dog as well as a new Democrat. He has a budget proposal himself that I think is very fiscally responsible and I will be happy to hear about.

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Speaker, I agree that tomorrow will be a historic day in the House of Representatives. It will be historic in part because for the first time in 2 years we face the prospect of adopting a budget and the possibility that we will have a concurrent resolution with the Senate that actually is the type of budget resolution that we have held to passing.

In 1998 it turned out that the leadership of the institution was not capable of bringing up and passing a budget resolution. I think that was a tragic flaw that existed in the leadership of Speaker Gingrich in 1998, and I am pleased to see that we are moving past that stage here in 1999, at least I hope we are.

The question really, then, is what type of a budget will we end up with here in 1999? The thing that I would like to emphasize in our discussions this evening is that there are a variety of views as to how we should handle the possible abundance; the opportunity to make prudent decisions in a time of a possible budget surplus.

Essentially, we have three different choices that we will face tomorrow. The majority will be proposing that we take the entire surplus that is generated from various Federal operations, from revenue collection to the operation of agencies, but excluding Social Security and the post office, that we take that surplus and we return it to the taxpayers.

Now, this sounds good. I think all of us would like to do that. But then some of us ask, what about this national debt that we have? What about priorities that we have as a country? For some, the priorities are education, for others it is veterans, for others it is the environment, for some it is the defense of our Nation, for others it is agriculture, for others it is health care, and the list goes on.

We are spending here in 1999 substantially more money, by some counts $35 billion more, than what people are promising we can live by in the year 2000. And yet, from what I can tell, the Republicans and the Democrats in this body alike that are on the Committee on Appropriations feel this is an unrealistic position. So the question is, is it realistic to try to return all of this money or are we going to leave ourselves severely strapped? I daresay that there is not a person in this body that does not expect we would leave ourselves severely strapped.

Another approach is to invest the money in priority programs. And a third approach is to try to find a mix.

The Blue Dog Coalition, of which I am a member, it is a group of moderate to conservative Democrats, will propose a budget tomorrow that has a mix. In that sense it is similar to the budget proposed by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT). We propose taking 50 percent of the money that is in surplus and using it to reduce the $5.6 trillion debt; 25 percent of the money to be used as a tax reduction measure, or for tax reductions; and 25 percent for program priorities.

We feel that this is a responsible division of how the budget surplus ought to be used. It recognizes the needs that we face here in America, health care, education, defense, veterans, agriculture, environment and others. At the same time, it recognizes the responsibility that we have in a time of prosperity and affluence to pay down our national debt to the maximum extent possible, while at the same time trying to give a dividend to the taxpayers and meet the needs of our great Nation.

Mr. SMITH of Washington. Mr. Speaker, just in concluding the discussion this evening, as we are guided in our budget discussions, I think there should be some central principles. One of the most important principles in achieving fiscal discipline is to not play sort of the divide and conquer strategy; not get to the point where the sum of the parts adds up to more than we would like the whole to add up to.

We have heard about a variety of programs this evening. We have heard about a variety of tax cuts. There is merit to all of them. What we have to do in putting together a fiscally responsible budget is put them all on the table at the same time. I guess what I mean by divide and conquer, it is really more of a divide and pander strategy, which is to say we take each issue area which may be a priority for somebody, whether increased defense spending, increased education spending, increased spending for health care, an estate tax cut, a capital gains tax cut.

There are all groups out there, as well as individuals, who have their favorite. They come and talk to us about them and we want to make them happy. It is sort of the nature of being a Congressman that we want to make our constituents happy, so we want to promise all those things, and that is where we get into trouble.

What we have to say is if veterans are a big priority, then make it a priority and make it work in the budget. Make the sacrifices in other areas to make sure that we can do that. But we should not promise more than the budget can contain. That is what leads us to fiscal irresponsibility.

That is what, sadly, the Republican budget we are going to hear about tomorrow does. It promises all across the board and does not meet the test of fiscal discipline, getting us into the position of paying down our debt and be responsible to the future.

We are not the only ones who have needs. Future generations are going to have needs. Whether it is tax cuts or spending programs, if we take it all now, we will be mortgaging their future.

Mr. Speaker, I see the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) has joined us, so I will yield to him to talk also about fiscal responsibility. But I urge more than anything that we balance the budget and start paying down the debt. It is the responsible thing to do for our future.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Washington very much for yielding to me, and I very much appreciate his taking the time tonight in order to discuss the subject that we will be debating in earnest tomorrow.

I guess the one thing that he said that I want to overly emphasize is that if by chance we have surpluses, and most of us, I think, and most of the American people understand that when we owe $5.6 trillion, we really do not have a surplus to talk about. And since most of the surplus, in fact all of the surplus this year is Social Security trust funds, we in the Blue Dog budget that will be offered as a substitute tomorrow, we emphasize that we should take that money and pay down the debt with it and really do it. I believe we will have bipartisan support for doing that because everybody is talking about that.

□ 2115

But the one thing that some are not talking about, and this is why we will offer our substitute amendment, some are saying that we ought to take future surpluses. And it was not too long ago in this body that we had a difficult time estimating next year, and then we started 5-year estimations and projections of what surpluses and what the budget would hold, and now we are starting 10 and 15 years.

My colleagues, I believe it is very dangerous for the future of this country to base 15-year projections and say we are going to have a tax cut that will explode in the sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth and fourteenth year. That is not conservative politics, at least if they are a businessman or woman. We understand that they do not make those kind of decisions today based on what might happen tomorrow.

What we are going to be suggesting is, if in fact we do in the next 5 years achieve a surplus of the non-Social Security nature, let us put at least half of that down on the debt, let us pay an additional 50 percent down on the debt, and let us take 25 percent of that and let us meet the very real needs of which I know the gentleman from California is as concerned as I am about defense.

Let us put some real dollars in recognizing that, just as we have our young men and women in harm's way tonight, that it is extremely important that we give them the resources to do that which we ask them to do. And we cannot do that with the budget the majority is putting forward tomorrow, and everyone knows that.

It is time to get honest, and the Blue Dog budget will in fact get honest. And we will attempt, hopefully, to have a majority of this body agree with us.

REPORT ON RESOLUTION PROVIDING FOR CONSIDERATION OF H. CON. RES. 68, CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

Mr. LINDER (during the special order of Mr. SMITH of Washington), from the Committee on Rules, submitted a privileged report (Rept. No. 106-77) on the resolution (H. Res. 131) providing for consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 68) establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000 and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of the fiscal years 2001 through 2009, which was referred to the House Calendar and ordered to be printed.

TRIBUTE TO ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. BRINGLE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I am going to do a tribute to an admiral that we lost in San Diego, a four-star.

But I would also say, and I would say excluding what the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) has said, in 8 years, this is the most laughable oxymoron discussion I have heard in 8 years on the budget about saving Social Security and Medicare. I would like my colleague sometime to explain how the President takes $9 billion out of Medicare and then puts in 15 percent.

So we will have that debate tomorrow. But I do not disagree with the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) on a lot of the issues. But the other group, I am sorry, they are either naive or they just state their own opinion as fact and they are factually challenged.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to talk about Admiral William F. Bringle. He was a very good friend of mine. And he is like Will Rogers, that he is the kind of guy that never met a man that he did not like, for anyone that met Admiral "Bush" Bringle liked him.

Those of us that knew him would call him a leader's leader. Many of the aviators I have talked to and the admirals and the flag officers said that he was a pilot of all pilots. He was heroic in World War II, in Korea, in Vietnam. And one does not reach being a four-star admiral without some significance, Mr. Speaker.

Admiral Bringle passed away on Friday. We called him "Bush" Bringle. He had wavy, black bushy hair, and that is where he got his call sign that his wife Donnie gave to him. He won the Navy Cross, this Nation's second highest award. He won DFCs, with five different stars for five DFCs, Legion of Merit, and on and on and on.

His career spanned 35 years, Mr. Speaker. Retired astronaut Wally Schirra, who lives in his district in Rancho Santa Fe, said, "most become political and lose sight of the fact that the rest of the people have to look up to them." And that signifies Admiral Bush Bringle.

Vice Admiral Stockdale, best aviator he ever knew, I draw deference with Admiral Stockdale on that, but Admiral Stockdale was planning missions over Vietnam just before he was shot down with Bush Bringle. Admiral Stockdale said that "he was born for the profession that he served in for over 35 years, and that is a country both at peace and at war, and he served us well."

And he was commander of CV Division 7 in 1964, commander of 7th Fleet in 1967, commander of Pacific Fleet in 1970. He was in charge of nine aircraft carriers, 1,600 combat and support aircraft, and 85,000 military. Admiral Bernard Clarey: "Bush Bringle's leadership and style is just the Bringle touch."

Enlisted and officers alike respected and liked Admiral Bringle because of his leadership. Vice Admiral David Richardson called Admiral Bringle "one of the most admired naval officers and aviators dating since prior to World War II." His leadership was derived by example. He was a native of Covington, Tennessee. He was an Annapolis grad.

To tell my colleagues the kind of guy that he was, he played football. I think he was a whopping 170 pounds. He played football for Annapolis. And when he was playing against William & Mary, during the first play, one of his opponents broke his hip. That gentleman is now Walter Zable, who lives in Bush Bringle's district, and they became the best of friends.

He went through Pensacola, Florida in flight training and became an aviator in 1940, before most of us were born. He was in the Allied invasion in southern France, the Leyte Gulf, Iwo Jima, Okinawa, Korea. He was CO of the Hornet and the Kitty Hawk and commandant of midshipmen in Annapolis.

After his assignments with 7th fleet, Admiral Bringle was promoted with his fourth star. The last 3 years he served as U.S. Naval forces in Europe. Admiral Bush Bringle loved his country. But I want to tell my colleagues, he always spoke highly of his first love, not this country but his wife Donnie, his daughter Lynn, and his fighter pilot son Don Bringle.

Memorial services will be Monday at North Island Air Station in the chapel, and I wish those that are in San Diego can attend, Mr. Speaker.

Godspeed, Admiral Bringle, to you and your family.

Mr. Speaker, I include for the RECORD the following newspaper article:

ADM. WILLIAM BRINGLE DIES; CALLED AN AVIATOR'S AVIATOR—COLLEAGUES SAY HE KEPT COMMON TOUCH DURING HIS CAREER

(By Jack Williams)

Adm. William F. "Bush" Bringle, a heroic World War II aviator who kept the common touch in rising to commander of naval air forces in the Pacific Fleet and in Europe, died of pneumonia Friday. He was 85.

Adm. Bringle, who had lived in Rancho Santa Fe for the past 20 years, died at Scripps Memorial Hospital-La Jolla.

Known as "Bush" because of his thick curly hair, Adm. Bringle distinguished himself as an aviator's aviator, as one colleague called him, while rising through the officers' ranks.

In World War II, he took part in some pivotal engagements in the Pacific and European theaters, earning such medals as the Navy Cross, the Distinguished Flying Cross with Five gold stars and the French Croix de Guerre.

He also received the equivalent of three Legions of Merit in a naval career that spanned more than 35 years.

"Bush was the only four-star admiral I know who was loved by everybody in the Navy," said retired astronaut and Navy Capt. Wally Schirra. "Most become political and lose sight of the fact that the rest of the people have to look up to them."

"Bush was one we all liked, a dear friend of everyone in the U.S. Navy."

Retired Vice Adm. James Stockdale remembered Adm. Bringle as "an accomplished aviator, a natural, and he fell into the very profession he was built for—which was command at sea in time of war."

Added Stockdale: "He's one of my better all-time Navy all-stars."

As a commander of Carrier Division 7 beginning in 1964, Adm. Bringle was involved in the early stages of the Vietnam War. He was promoted in 1967 to commander of 7th Fleet naval air forces and in 1970 to commander of Pacific Fleet naval air forces.

In the latter role, based at North Island Naval Air Station, Adm. Bringle was in charge of a force that included nine aircraft carriers, some 1,600 combat and support aircraft and about 85,000 military personnel and civil servants.

He established sophisticated training facilities for pilots and maintenance personnel at Miramar Naval Air Station, paving the way for introduction of the F-14 fighter plane.

Adm. Bringle's Vietnam-era command was characterized by what Adm. Bernard A. Clarey called at the time "the legendary Bringle touch." Clarey also described Adm. Bringle as an aviator's aviator, stemming from his extraordinary rapport with fliers of all ranks and ages.

Stockdale recalled joining Adm. Bringle in planning an attack on a city near Hanoi in the Vietnam War. "It was a piece of beauty the way he was able to coordinate it and build confidence in the joint effort." Stockdale said.

Another Navy contemporary, retired Vice Adm. David Richardson, called Adm. Bringle "one of the most admired naval officers and aviators dating from World War II."

Said Richardson: "His leadership was derived from the examples he set and the way he handled people. And people responded beautifully to his leadership."

In 1961, as commander of the fledgling Kitty Hawk, Adm. Bringle took the supercarrier on its maiden voyage from the East Coast to its home base of San Diego. At more than 1,047 feet in length, the Kitty Hawk became the largest ship to enter San Diego harbor up to that time.

Adm. Bringle was a native of Covington, Tenn. He graduated in 1937 from the U.S. Naval Academy, where he starred as a speedy, sure-handed 170-pound end in football.

Hip and knee injuries played havoc with his football career, and decades later he underwent knee and hip replacements.

In his junior year at Annapolis, on the first play of a game with William & Mary, Adm. Bringle suffered a broken hip on what he considered a "cheap shot," a crack-back block.

Many decades later, while attending a cocktail party in San Diego, he met the man who claimed to be responsible for his pain: former William & Mary athlete Walter Zable, co-founder of Cubic Corp.

"They shook hands and became great friends," said Donald Bringle, Adm. Bringle's son.

Adm. Bringle underwent flight training at Pensacola, Fla., and was designated a naval aviator in December 1940.

Three years later, after flying observation and scouting patrols over the South Atlantic, he formed the Navy's first observation fighting squadron, VOF-1.

He received the Navy Cross for extraordinary heroism in action against enemy forces during the Allied invasion of southern France in August 1944.

His role in the invasion also earned him the French Croix de Guerre.

After the European action, Adm. Bringle led his squadron on close air support missions in the Pacific campaigns at Leyte, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

His squadron also identified targets for naval gunfire, and its success brought Adm. Bringle a Distinguished Flying Cross with gold stars, signifying five additional awards of that medal.

When the Korean War broke out in June 1950, Adm. Bringle was serving in Annapolis as aide to the superintendent of the Naval Academy. He resumed sea duty in 1953 as executive officer of the carrier Hornet.

Adm. Bringle became commandant of midshipmen at the Naval Academy in 1958, his last assignment before taking command of the Kitty Hawk.

During his last tour in San Diego, Adm. Bringle was honored by the Greater San Diego Chamber of Commerce military affairs committee and the San Diego Council of the Navy League for his contributions to the community.

The Navy League award came with a leather golf bag of red, white and blue design.

After his assignments with the 7th Fleet and the Pacific Fleet, Adm. Bringle was promoted to four-star admiral. His last three years of active duty were as chief of U.S. naval forces in Europe, based in London.

As a Rancho Santa Fe resident, Adm. Bringle enjoyed golf until his late 70s, when he underwent his second knee replacement. "He kept his competitive fires going by playing tennis into his late '50s," his son said.

Adm. Bringle was a member of the exclusive Early and Pioneer Naval Aviators Association, an honor society of some 200 members.

He is survived by his wife, Donnie Godwin Bringle; a daughter, Lynn Riegle of Thompson's Station, Tenn.; and a son, Donald of San Diego.

Memorial services are scheduled for 11 a.m. Monday at the North Island Naval Air Station chapel. Donations are suggested to the U.S. Naval Academy Alumni Association Fund, Alumni House, King George Street, Annapolis, MD 21402.

ADMIRAL WILLIAM F. BRINGLE, UNITED STATES NAVY, RETIRED

William Floyd Bringle was born in Covington, Tennessee, on April 23, 1913. He attended Byars-Hall High School in Covington, and Columbia Military Academy, Columbia, Tennessee, and entered the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Maryland, on appointment from his native state on July 6, 1933. As a Midshipman he was a member of the Naval Academy Football Team (N* award). He was graduated and commissioned Ensign on June 3, 1937, and through subsequent advancement attained the rank of Rear Admiral, to date from January 1, 1964; Vice Admiral, to date from November 6, 1967 and Admiral, to date from July 1, 1971.

After graduation from the Naval Academy in June 1937, he was assigned to the USS SARATOGA until February 1940, with engineering, communications and gunnery duties on board that carrier, operating in the Pacific. In April 1940 he reported to the Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Florida, for flight training, and was designated Naval Aviator in December of that year. Detached from Pensacola in January 1941, he joined the USS MILWAUKEE, and served as Senior Aviator on board that cruiser until December 1942. During the eight months to follow, he served as Commanding Officer of Cruiser Scouting Squadron TWO.

From September to November 1943 he had training at the Naval Air Station, Melbourne, Florida, and in December formed the first Observation Fighting Squadron (VOF-1) during World War II. He commanded that squadron throughout the period of hostilities. For outstanding service while in command of that squadron during the invasion of Southern France and Pacific operations in the vicinity of Sakishima, Nansei Shoto invasions of Luzon and Iwo Jima and operations in the Ikinawa and Philippine Islands areas, he was awarded the Navy Cross, the Distinguished Flying Cross with Gold Star in lieu of five additional awards and the Air Medal with Gold Stars in lieu of sixteen similar awards.

He is also entitled to the Ribbon with Star for, and facsimiles of, the Navy Unit Commendation awarded the USS MARCUS ISLAND and USS WAKE ISLAND and their Air Groups for heroic service in the Western Carolines, Leyte, Luzon, and Okinawa Gunto Areas. He was also awarded the Croix de Guerre with Silver Star by the Government of France for heroism while commanding Observation Fighting Squadron ONE during the Allied Invasion of Southern France in August 1944 before he moved his squadron to the Pacific.

After the Japanese surrender, from October 1945 until October 1946 he was Air Group Commander of Group SEVENTEEN, and when detached he returned to the Naval Academy for duty at Battalion Officer. He remained there until June 1948, then for two years was Air Group Commander of Carrier Air Group ONE, based on the USS TARAWA and USS PHILIPPINE SEA. Again at the Naval Academy, he served from June 1950 until July 1952 as a member of the Superintendent's Staff. The next year he spent as a student at the Naval War College, Newport, and from July 1953 to December 1954 served as Executive Officer of the USS HORNET (CVG-17).

In January 1955 he reported to the Navy Department, Washington, D.C., for duty as Head of the Operational Intelligence Branch in the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, and on August 24, 1955, was transferred to duty as Naval Aide to the Secretary of the Navy. He commanded Heavy Attack Wing TWO from August 1957 until June 1958, after which he had duty until August 1960 as Commandant of Midshipmen at the Naval Academy.

Ordered to the USS KITTY HAWK, building at the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, Camden, New Jersey, he served as Prospective Commanding Officer until she was placed in commission, April 29, 1961, then as Commanding Officer. In June 1962 he was assigned to the Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, Navy Department, where he served as Assistant Director of the Aviation Plans Division until January 1963, then was designated Director of that division. On April 6, 1964, he assumed command of Carrier Division SEVEN. "For exceptionally meritorious service as Commander Attack Carrier Striking Force SEVENTH Fleet and as Commander Task Group SEVENTY-SEVEN POINT SIX from March 29 to June 29, 1965, and as Commander Task Force SEVENTY-SEVEN from May 26 through June 27, 1965 . . ." he was awarded the Legion of Merit with Combat "V".

On July 12, 1965 he became Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans and Operations to the Commander in Chief, U.S. Pacific Fleet and was awarded a Gold Star in lieu of the Second Legion of Merit for exercising ". . . forceful supervision and outstanding direction over each of the many diverse and complex operations conducted by the Pacific Fleet . . ." In November 1967 he became Commander SEVENTH Fleet and for "exceptionally meritorious service . . ." was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal and Gold Star in lieu of a Second similar award for combat operations in Southeast Asia during the Vietnam conflict.

In March 1970 he became Commander Naval Air Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet, with headquarters at the Naval Air Station, North Island, San Diego, California. For ". . . his distinguished and dedicated service . . ." in that capacity, from March 1970 to May 1971, he was awarded a Gold Star in lieu of the Third Legion of Merit. In July 1971 he reported as Commander in Chief, U.S. Naval Forces, Europe and Naval Component Commander of the U.S. European Command with additional duty as United States Commander Eastern Atlantic. "For exceptionally meritorious service . . . from July 1971 to August 1973 . . ." he was awarded a Gold Star in lieu of the Third Distinguished Service Medal. The citation further states in part:

" . . . Admiral Bringle displayed inspirational leadership, outstanding executive ability and exceptional foresight in directing the complex and manifold operations of his command in the execution of United States national policy . . ."

Returning to the United States, Admiral Bringle had temporary duty at Headquarters Naval District, Washington, D.C. from September 1973 and on January 1, 1974 was transferred to the Retired List of the U.S. Navy.

In addition to the Navy Cross, Distinguished Service Medal with two Gold Stars, Legion of Merit with two Gold Stars and Combat "V", Distinguished Flying Cross with five Gold Stars, Air Medal with sixteen Gold Stars, the Navy Unit Commendation Ribbon with two stars, and the French Croix de Guerre with Silver Star, Admiral Bringle has the American Defense Service Medal; American Campaign Medal; European-African-Middle Eastern Campaign Medal with one operation star; Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal with four operation stars; World War II Victory Medal; Navy Occupation Service Medal, Europe Clasp; China Service Medal; National Defense Service Medal with bronze star; Armed Forces Expeditionary Medal with two stars, the Republic of Vietnam Campaign Medal; and the Philippine Liberation Ribbon.

Married to the former Donnie Godwin of Coronado, California, Admiral Bringle has two children, Rosalind Bringle Thorne and Donald Godwin Bringle. His official residence is 1639 Peabody Street, Memphis, Tennessee, the home of his mother.

TRADE DEFICIT

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from Ohio (Ms. KAPTUR) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. KAPTUR. Mr. Speaker, our scientists have just discovered a new fault line that exists underneath downtown Los Angeles. This fault line, called Puente Hills, is 25 miles long and 10 miles wide and it was invisible until recently. The 1987 Whittier Narrows quake, which caused eight deaths and $358 million worth of damage, was the result of a rupture of just 10 percent of the Puente Hills fault line. Obviously, this fault line has the potential to do a great deal of harm to the good people in Los Angeles and we would be foolish to ignore it.

But, Mr. Speaker, there is another fault line in America that is invisible to our eyes, the American economy. And the American workers are sitting on a fault line that is shifting below us; and, like many in Los Angeles, we are ignoring it, hoping it will go away. The fault line is our trade deficit. And as it grows, America is at greater risk of our very economic foundation being rocked.

We recently learned that the trade deficit grew to its highest level in the last decade, projected again this year at over $250 billion. According to the Commerce Department just this past month, $93.76 billion worth more of imports landed on our shores while our exports again fell. These are not just numbers. They are part of the shifting ground underneath America's economic feet. And for some, they could not escape the cracks in the ground.

I am talking about workers like the 6,000 at the Levi's plants, most of them women, that recently packed up and closed to ship manufacturing to undemocratic nations overseas. I am talking about the workers at Huffy Bicycle in Ohio who lost their jobs to Mexico's exploited workforce, or the thousands of workers at Anchor Glass or General Electric or Henry I. Siegel or VF Knitwear or Zenith Television or Dole Food, and the list goes on. They have seen the ground shift and they felt the earthquake. They have just seen some of the consequences of a growing trade deficit.

According to the Economic Policy Institute, between 1979 and 1994 nearly 2.5 million jobs in our country were lost to America's backward trade policy, which says to America's workers the solution for them is to work for shrinking wages and benefits and net worth in order to buy more imported products from places where workers have absolutely no rights.

The second consequence of the trade deficit is its crippling effect on wages here at home. Workers who lose their manufacturing jobs still have to find some way to feed, clothe, and educate their families; and usually that is in the form of a service job with a substantial pay and benefit cut.

The Economic Policy Institute points out that increasing imports from low-wage, undemocratic countries are contributing to decreasing wages of our workers. Our U.S. firms and workers are forced to cut their standards of living to compete. They cut wages or cut hours or cut benefits to reduce costs. And as a result, our workers are finding that their real buying power of their wages has been declining for almost 15 years. In fact, the growing gigantic trade deficit literally lops off a whopping 25 percent of the economic bang that would occur inside this economy if in fact our trade ledger was balanced.

Probably the biggest consequence of this deficit is what it does to our long-term competitiveness, as America writes off one industry after another: televisions, electronics, clothing, recently steel. We have seen how many parts of this economy have been savagely hit.

Mr. Speaker, this fault line in America cannot be ignored. We can see the consequences getting worse every year. But the people being hurt cannot afford high-powered lobbyists in this city. If we want American workers to be able to increase their net worth, save for their futures, invest in the stock market, start their own small businesses, we need to make sure our economic foundation is rock solid.

Mr. Speaker, we ignore this trade deficit, this fault line, at our own peril.

WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, first I want to thank my colleagues who have spoken so eloquently tonight about the importance of Women's History Month or who have submitted statements for the RECORD.

I want to especially thank my Republican colleague the gentlewoman from Maryland (Mrs. MORELLA) for being here this evening and also for submitting her statement on the RECORD for the contribution of African American women in America's history.

We are, in the month of March, proudly celebrating the achievements of all women in this Nation. I come this evening to take a few minutes to briefly talk about the history of Women's History Month and to celebrate the contributions of women, especially African American women, the contributions which they have made to this country and the world.

Back in 1978, the first Women's History Week celebration was initiated in Sonoma County, CA, which is now represented by a great woman, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY), who serves here with us in this Congress. It began in Sonoma County as a means of introducing students and teachers to the many contributions that women of all cultures have made to the building of this Nation.

Three years later, the idea of celebrating Women's History Week began to spread across this Nation and the National Women's History Project was created to provide technical assistance to educators and community organizers and to produce and distribute women's history materials.

In 1981, then Representative, now Senator BARBARA MIKULSKI, and Senator ORRIN HATCH cosponsored a joint congressional resolution proclaiming the week of March 8 National Women's History Week. The success of National Women's History Week and the availability of information on women's history necessitated expanding the celebration to a full month.

In 1987, the National Women's History Project petitioned Congress to expand the celebration to the entire month of March. The resolution was approved with bipartisan support in both the House and the Senate.

Today schools, communities, and workplaces celebrate the month with special curriculum and events. The popularity of women's history celebrations has sparked a new interest in uncovering women's forgotten heritage. It has allowed all Americans to learn more about women who have made a tremendous impact on our Nation's history.

□ 2130

Women's history is really a new way of looking at events and individuals that have made this country what it is today. History as it has been traditionally taught has virtually excluded women and people of color. One would think that someone would have noticed that half of the United States population is missing from our history. Textbooks, curricula and academic research has been silent about the impact that women and people of color have made. The silences have made women's accomplishments and contributions to American life invisible.

Mr. Speaker, the history of African-American women's participation in American politics must recognize our involvement in traditional political acts such as registering, voting and holding office, but also those nontraditional activities in which we engaged long before we had access to the ballot.

Because African-American women are simultaneously members of the two groups that have suffered the Nation's most blatant exclusions from politics, African American and women, our political behavior has been largely really overlooked.

African-American women organized slave revolts, established underground networks and even sued for the right to vote. Public records reveal that many African-American women were involved in the abolition movement and were active participants in the early women's rights movement. African-American women's political activities have largely been directed towards altering our disadvantaged status as African Americans and women and making sure that this country lives up to its responsibilities for equality and justice for all people.

Today, we look at African-American women holding political office as a very recent experience. African-American women who have previously served in this Congress include my mentor, our first African-American woman who served here, Congresswoman Shirley Chisholm, as well as Barbara Jordan, Yvonne Braithwaite Burke, Cardiss Collins, Katie Hall and Barbara Rose Collins. I stand here as the 171st woman, the 100th African American and the 19th African-American woman ever to have the privilege of serving in this body. I stand here because of those who came before us. I stand here as a result of the work of many of those individuals, and in the words of the Honorable Shirley Chisholm, "We all came here to serve as a catalyst for change."

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. I want to thank the gentlewoman for yielding, and I certainly want to thank the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) for giving us the opportunity to have a moment.

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Virginia.

TRIBUTE TO DR. YVONNE BOND MILLER

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to acknowledge this month as Women's History Month and to honor the contributions of a distinguished African-American woman, Dr. Yvonne Bond Miller.

Dr. Miller is the first black woman to serve in the Virginia House of Delegates and the first black woman to serve in the Virginia Senate. She is the first woman of any race to serve as chair of a Senate committee in the State of Virginia.

Mr. Speaker, Women's History Month is a time to recognize and give thanks to those women who dared to brave uncharted waters so that we may all fully participate in our society.

As we pay tribute to women for their vast contributions to our nation, I'd like to formally salute Dr. Miller as an educator and as the first African American woman to serve in the Virginia House of Delegates and Virginia Senate. She has been widely recognized for her work on behalf of children and under-represented persons. She understands the "double bind" and dual challenges facing women of color living in a society that marginalizes people by both gender and race. Despite those obstacles, she has risen above these circumstances and has made outstanding contributions to her community, always working to uplift persons with similarly disadvantaged status.

Yvonne Bond Miller was born in Edenton, North Carolina, the oldest of 13 children. She grew up in my home district of Norfolk and attended Booker T. Washington High School in Norfolk. Dr. Miller earned a Bachelor of Science degree from Virginia State College (now Virginia State University), a Master of Arts Degree from the Teacher's College at Columbia University, and then a Doctorate from the University of Pittsburgh. She is also a recipient of an Honorary Doctor of Laws Degree from Virginia State University.

She has had a distinguished career as an educator, teaching first in the Norfolk Public Schools and then at Norfolk State University from 1968 to present, where she is currently a Professor of Education. For seven years, she was the head of the Department of Early Childhood and Elementary Education at Norfolk State University. In addition to teaching, Dr. Miller has had an outstanding career in public service as a legislator. She was first elected to the Virginia House of Delegates in 1983, becoming the first African American woman in that body. Her accomplishments earned her a second term in 1985, and her career in the state legislature continued when she was elected to the Virginia Senate in 1987, becoming the first African American woman in the Virginia Senate as well. Since then, she has served with a meritorious record on several committees, including the Rehabilitation and Social Services Committee, where she is the first woman to chair a Virginia Senate committee. In addition, Dr. Miller has worked steadfastly on behalf of children and the otherwise underserved on Virginia's Youth Commission and Virginia Disability Commission.

Throughout her career as a legislator, Dr. Miller has demonstrated a consistent concern for the disadvantaged. She has worked hard in promoting education and early childhood issues, maintaining a living wage, and ensuring access to affordable health care. Dr. Miller's sense of justice, generosity, and dedication to the underprivileged carries over into her personal life as well. Most notably, she has established a scholarship fund at Norfolk State University for women returning to school. Her accolades are too numerous to describe in full, but it is no wonder that she has been honored with the Vivian C. Mason Meritorious Service Award from the Hampton Roads Urban League and the Social Action Award from the Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity.

So, as we honor today the contributions of African women to our nation, we must pay a special tribute to Yvonne Bond Miller for prevailing in the face of adversity as an African American woman and for working tirelessly on behalf of children and other marginalized persons so that they too may be able to contribute to their fullest potential. Women's History Month is a time to recognize and give thanks to those women who dared to brave uncharted waters so that we may all fully participate in our own society. Thank You, Mr. Speaker. And thank you, Yvonne Bond Miller.

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Speaker, given the fact that this is indeed Women's History Month, I would just include the names of some of the outstanding women who have served with distinction in my community, the community where I live, people like Ms. Mamie Bone, Ms. Devira Beverly, Martha Marshall, Cora Moore, Mildred Dennis, Mary Alice (Ma) Henry, Ida Mae (Ma) Fletcher, Julia Fairfax, Earline Lindsey, Nancy Jefferson, Rosie Lee Betts, Nola Bright, Dr. Claudio O'Quinn, Ms. Rachel Ridley, Artensa Randolph, Dr. Lucy Chapelle.

I would mentioned one other woman, two others, who have had tremendous impacts on my life—a woman, Mrs. Beadie King, who was the teacher in the first school that I attended which was a one-room schoolhouse where Ms. Beadie King taught eight grades plus what we call the little primer and the big primer at the same time. Many of the things that I know and learned, many of the values, many of the attributes that I think that I have developed have actually come from the teachings of Mrs. Beadie King. And so I pay tribute to her as an outstanding educator.

The other woman, Mrs. Mazie L. Davis, my mother, who probably more than any other single person contributed to my development, because it was she and my father who basically suggested to me that life has the potential of being for each one of us whatever it is that we would determine to make life.

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in salute of African American women.

African American women have a unique place in the history of our country. Fighting against racial and gender discrimination, we have had to fight two battles often at odds with each other. However, many African American women have not let race and gender prevent them from fighting for equality. These women's heroic efforts have forever changed American history. Women like Harriet Tubman who helped slaves escape via her underground railroad. Without Ms. Tubman many future African American doctors, politicians, lawyers, and teachers would not be alive.

Mr. Speaker so many African American women have been a part of our history: Sojourner truth, Coretta Scott King, Ida B. Wells to name a few. Today I would like to acknowledge one of those great African American female leaders—Juanita Shanks Croft.

Dallas native Juanita Craft fought for desegregation in Dallas and all over Texas. This onetime hotel worker, use the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) to fight legalized racism. She helped desegregate the University of Texas Law School, North Texas State University and the State Fair of Texas. She also helped desegregate many Dallas lunch counters, theaters and restaurants.

She worked with Christian Adair, who helped found the Houston chapter of the NAACP, to end segregation and promote African Americans. Because of their efforts, Hattie Mae White became the first black women elected to the Houston school boards in 1958. This also paved the way for the late Barbara Jordan to become the first African American woman and also the first African American since reconstruction elected to the Texas state Senate.

Ms. Craft served 25 years as the Dallas NAACP precinct chairperson. She helped found more than 100 chapters of the NAACP and helped Thurgood Marshall work on the U.S. Supreme Court case Smith vs. Allwright, which gave African Americans the right to vote in the Texas Democratic primaries in 1944. Ms. Craft was the first African-American woman to vote in Dallas and was elected to the Dallas City Council in 1975 at the age of 73.

Ms. Craft was a civil rights teacher to the young opening her home to anyone who wanted to learn about making change. Many of those young students today are teachers, lobbyists, community and civil rights activists and city officials.

Today her home in Dallas is a civil rights historic landmark where President Lyndon B. Johnson and Martin Luther King Jr. were once visitors.

I salute Juanita Craft's courage to fight for equality for African Americans. I salute her courage to teach others how to work for change. Through her legacy, we can see the battles which have been fought and can be proud of the progress our sisters have made so that we can attend any university, sit at any lunch counter, walk into any store and speak of this floor.

GENERAL LEAVE

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks on the subject of my special order this evening.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. DEMINT). Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from California?

There was no objection.

SOCIAL SECURITY AND THE BUDGET

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 6, 1999, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I come to the floor tonight with several of my colleagues who I think will be joining me, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) as well as the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM). I am in my fifth year as a Member of Congress from Oklahoma. I am also in my last term as a self-imposed term limit on myself.

One of the reasons I think that we only have 40 percent of the people voting in elections is that in fact there is a crisis of confidence in the Congress of the United States. I want to spend some time tonight outlining what we have heard many people say, whether it is the President in his State of the Union speech or others in terms about our budget, this so-called surplus that does not exist, explain to the American people why it does not exist and what it is really made of, and then talk about some of the facts of the last 3 or 4 years of what has gone on and what we can expect in the future if in fact we do not have honesty with the American public in terms of our budget, the budget process, and speaking honestly about where American tax dollars go.

I also might add that besides being a medical doctor who continues to practice and deliver babies on the weekends and the days that we are not in session, my original training is as an accountant. I can tell my colleagues, there is not an accountant in this country that would sign off on the books of the Federal Government. The reason is because it moves money around, it does not account for it, it uses the same money twice and then claims it as a surplus.

To start this discussion, I really want to try to explain to the American public the Social Security trust fund. Most people are paying 12.5 percent, half of it themselves, half of it by their employers, in to fund the Social Security system. At the present time, we have a significant excess number of dollars coming in above and beyond what is required to pay out benefits for our seniors under Social Security. What really happened is we are collecting more than we are spending in terms of Social Security dollars. What happens now is that the Federal Government uses the excess Social Security money to pay for more spending and to pay off publicly held debt. But as they pay off publicly held debt, they incur another debt and that is an IOU to the trust fund that says we will pay this back. That also incurs interest. The fancy way Washington talks about that is that that is a surplus. In fact it is only a surplus in that we have transferred the obligation to our children and grandchildren and they will pay that back through increased payroll taxes. So we put IOUs that are credited to the trust fund.

In 2013, we face a major problem, and that is the year in which the revenues that come into the Social Security trust fund will be less than the payments that we have to pay out. What is going to happen then? Social Security spends more than it collects. In order to pay all the Social Security benefits, Social Security is going to have to try to collect from the Federal Government on the IOUs, the money the Congress has borrowed. What happens? Having spent all the money, the Federal Government has to raise the income taxes or the payroll taxes on the people who are paying Social Security taxes just to meet the obligations.

That is borne out a little bit better when we actually see what the Social Security Administration says about what is going to happen to the fund. As you can see, all this in red is actually money coming in to Social Security in excess of what we are paying out. You will notice in 2013, we actually spend more money. But if you go out to the end of this graph, what you will see is we are getting close to $750 billion more a year in payments from general tax revenues, or increased raises in the tax paid on hourly wages in this country.

We have a terrible picture developing. I say all this because the politicians in Washington claim we have a surplus. There is no surplus. The money that they are using to pay down external debt is actually money they are going to be obligating our grandchildren for with a Treasury IOU that is interest-bearing. That money is a false surplus. All it is is the difference between what we paid out and what we have collected versus what we have spent more in other revenues that the Federal Government has taken in.

We are going to have only three options in 2013, and, better, we only have three options now to fix this problem: One, we can save 100 percent of the Social Security surplus and we can transition to a system that increases the earnings for all payments on Social Security between now and 2013 and thereafter. The annualized yield, the return on the investment on Social Security over the last 20 years, has been less than 1 percent. We would have been better to put it in a passbook savings account by 300 percent in terms of the power of compound interest. Had we done that, we would have displaced this day of reckoning where the imbalance in payments out versus revenue in would have been at least delayed another 10 to 12, maybe even 15 years, had they gotten some return.

I think the other point that needs to be made, why are we in trouble on Social Security? We are in trouble on Social Security because politicians easily spend your money without coming and saying, "We're going to give you an increased benefit but we're not going to tell you that your children and grandchildren are going to have to pay that back." How do they pay that back? They pay that back by lowering their standard of living and sending more of their hard-earned dollars to Washington to pay for the benefits today that we did not have the courage to tell the American public that for this benefit, this increase in benefit, we have to pay for it.

What is easy to do in Washington, I have found in 5 years, is to pass on a benefit and not be responsible for paying for it. It is called spin. The real thing it is called is a half-truth. A half-truth, my daddy taught me, was a whole lie. We have seen a lie.

The second option we have, we can repay the money from the trust fund by raising income taxes. We are at the highest rate of taxing the American public that we have ever been with the exception of World War II. Almost 22 percent of our gross domestic product is now consumed by taxes in this country. That is not a good option.

The third option is we can change the retirement system. We can delay the onset, we can decrease the benefits. That is just like we have done to the veterans. We promise one thing and then we deliver far less. It is not a principle of integrity to do something less than what you commit to do. So we only have three options when we are faced with Social Security. I want to just develop this for about another 5 minutes and then I will recognize the gentleman from Minnesota.

Now, we hear Washington say we have a surplus, but the fact is, is every day $275 million is added to the national debt. If we have a surplus, if we have more money coming in than we are paying out, how come the debt for our children and grandchildren is rising? It is because we are not honest in our bookkeeping. We are not honest about it. In 1997, each citizen's share of the national debt was $19,898. By the end of this year, every man, woman and child from baby to grandmom will owe $20,693. You cannot have a surplus and the debt rise. The question that the American people should ask when they hear the word surplus is, "Did the debt go down?"

There is another tricky word that the politicians use. They say publicly held debt. Because that is the debt that is external to the internal IOUs that the government has paid or made with Social Security.

□ 2145

So it is true that the external-held debt of the United States went down, but only because we took money from the Social Security Trust Fund and wrote another IOU. So the total debt in terms of the Social Security increased revenues or excess revenues have not changed at all. We have just decided we are not going to pay ourselves and we will slow down the pain to those people on the outside.

So less debt is held by the public; that is true, but the total debt is rising, and, as my colleagues can see, it is rising $275 million per day, and where I come from, $275 million is one whole heck of a lot of money. It is about enough to run the State of Oklahoma for a month. So, we are talking about huge sums of money.

Again, I would make the point Washington says we have a surplus. If we have a surplus, why is the debt that our grandchildren and children are going to have to bear rising? Why is it going up? It is because we are not honest in our bookkeeping.

Another way of looking at that, and this chart shows exactly what we have seen and heard about 1998, is what I call the politicians' surplus. Here is what we claim was a surplus, the Washington establishment. But, as my colleagues will note, here is the debt in 1997. What has happened to the debt? The debt went from $5,325 trillion to close to $5,440 trillion, almost a $120 billion increase. So, if the surplus was 60 some billion dollars, how come the debt went up $120 billion?

Look what is projected in 1999. We are going to have this great big surplus that everybody wants to save or spend in a certain way. But look what the debt projection is. These are not my numbers; these are from the Congressional Budget Office, a nonpartisan agency made up and influenced by both Democrats and Republicans, and they are saying the debt is going to continue to rise despite this surplus.

So, Mr. Speaker, I think we can see that there is a lack of honesty about our budget policy and there is only one answer. It is called restrained spending. We have to be fiscally disciplined in the money that comes to the Federal Government.

The other thing I have learned is that if we leave money in Washington, do my colleagues know what happens to it? It gets spent. Somebody always has a good idea on a way to spend the money, except the money we are spending now we are stealing from the Social Security system and we are transferring a lowered standard of living to our children.

And what we can see under President Clinton's budget, and this is real numbers by the Congressional Budget Office under the budget that he proposes to see that there is no surplus; the red indicates real deficit in terms of moneys in versus moneys out, and even though all sides of the aisle, Democrat, Republican and the President, are claiming the surplus, we can see from here that one does not exist. Even with a conservative plan that restrains spending we are still going to see a deficit up until about 2000. It may be that the economy is good enough that we may see a real surplus this year. But look at the difference if we restrain spending in terms of real surplus; in other words, something that will actually slow down the growth and the debt, decrease the debt, decrease or, in an inverse, increase the standard of living for our children, that if in fact we will restrain spending, that in fact we will markedly help the children of tomorrow.

Mr. Gutknecht.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for having this special order.

I think we need to put this in some historical context though of where we were just a few years ago when the gentleman, and I and the gentleman from South Carolina who is going to be joining us in a minute, when we were first sent here to Washington after the 1994 elections. The Congressional Budget Office then told us that we were looking at $200 billion deficits growing to nearly $600 billion by the year 2009, and that was using the Social Security surplus to make those deficits look even smaller. So in reality, using honest accounting, honest bookkeeping, those deficits were probably between 350 and over a trillion dollars that we are looking at in annual deficits.

That is where we were just a few years ago, and I think it is important to note how far we have come just in the last several years in part because we have had the fiscal discipline. We have eliminated 400 programs, we have cut the rate in growth in Federal spending by more than half, and that coupled with lowered interest rates that helped bring about the welfare reform, more people going back to work, a stronger economy; all of that has made it easier for us to get to what will be, I believe this year, the first real balanced budget; in other words, not using the Social Security surplus, the first real balanced budget I think this country has seen in many, many years.

Mr. COBURN. Let me add one thing.

I remember my first year in Congress. We rescinded and cut $70 billion worth of spending from this government that year, and I would tell my colleague that nobody in my district noticed that, and if we extrapolate $70 billion a year over the last 4 years, what we plainly see is the main reason that we are in surplus is what is 70 billion one year becomes 90 billion the next, becomes 120 billion the next, becomes 150, that that is worth about $160 billion in spending that is not happening today that would have happened had we not come in here and done a large rescission and also markedly cut the size of the government in 1995.

And so it is important to use that as a historical thing, that because we had fiscal discipline, that we, in fact, have an opportunity to truly lower the debt, not just the public debt, but all the debt, and that means creating a better future, creating opportunity, creating a standard of living that is going to be greater than what we have experienced for our grandchildren.

I yield back to the gentleman from Minnesota.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. The gentleman is correct. I mean that in the end of this debate sometimes we get so caught up with numbers and statistics, we all have charts now, and we can use percentages, and we can talk about dollars and so forth.

But in the end the gentleman is absolutely right. What this debate is about is about generational fairness, and I think we have got to be fair to our parents, and I always talk about in my town hall meetings the fact that I was born in 1951.

Mr. COBURN. Youngster; are you not?

Mr. GUTKNECHT. I do not feel quite so young any more, but I will tell my colleagues it is important because we are the peak of the baby boomers, and both my parents are still living, they are both on Social Security, they are both on Medicare, and the last thing I want to do is pull the rug out from under them.

But I also have three kids, and I worry about what kind of a country we are going to pass on to them, what kind of a standard of living are they going to enjoy.

And I want to get our colleague from South Carolina involved in this because something else the gentleman mentioned about using what Einstein called the most powerful force on earth, the magic of compound interest long term to allow individuals to save and invest for their own future. I have been told, and there are different numbers floating around, and it depends on which years you use, but, as my colleagues know, often we hear that Americans do not save enough for the future. But my colleague mentioned before that the average American between what they pay and what their employer pays into Social Security, they are saving about 12½ percent of their annual income.

Now the problem is not that Americans do not save enough. The problem is that we get such a lousy rate of return, and the number that I worked with usually and the average that I have seen provided by the Congressional Budget Office is for the last 30 or 40 years the average rate of return was 1.89 percent.

Now not many Americans would invest 12½ percent of their income into an IRA, or a 401(k), or even a savings account; can only earn 1.9 percent.

Mr. COBURN. It is interesting to note 1.9 percent is not in terms of real rate of return, that is not an inflation adjusted number, because when you do an inflation adjusted number, you go to .6 percent.

One last thing before the gentleman from South Carolina talks. I delivered 97 babies last year as a Member of Congress, and that is pure joy. But with that comes a heartache because I know that unless we change the environment in Washington that those children that I got to spank their back sides of and heard their first cry will never have the opportunity that my children had or I had as a youngster in this country.

I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. SANFORD. I thank the gentleman for doing so, and I thank him as well for convening this special order.

I want to follow up on what the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) said, which was touching on the whole power of compound interest which cannot be underestimated. In fact, I saw an article yesterday in the Washington Post that I wish I had brought with me about an older man that put a little bit of money in stocks and lived a very simple life and yet ended up with a whole lot to show for it.

What I think is interesting on that point though is somebody on my staff was kind enough to do this, and this is a home-done chart, so I guess we are saving the taxpayer money by not having a professional chart done, but it points out this power of compound interest because in 1937, and I did not realize this, Social Security actually ran a $766 million surplus. It is a pay-as-you-go system, so what is not spent ends up going into the general coffers the way it is now configured.

Now, if we grew that at about 10 percent, maybe that is too high a rate, maybe the appropriate number that the staffer should have picked would be 5 percent or 6 percent, but he picked 10 percent. Anyway, that would result today, that pot of money back in 1937, that $766 million pot of money, if it grew and compounded at about 10 percent, would end up today having about $1.17 trillion in your bank account.

And so when older folks at town hall meetings say to me, "Mark, you know we wouldn't even be having this problem on Social Security if you all had kept your hands off the money." Well, it turns out they are right because just that one year alone you would end up with $1 trillion.

Now 1938 the surplus was $365 million. If again you compounded and grew that over this long time period between now and then, you would end up with about $485 billion in the bank. Well, you add those 2 together, and you get 1.66 trillion.

In 1939, our surplus in Social Security was 590 million bucks. Again, if you grew and compounded that over time, you would end up with $680 billion.

And you do that in 1940; surplus then was $305 million. You grow that and compound that over time, you end up with $310 billion in the bank.

In 1941, our surplus was $760 million in payroll taxes. You grew that and compounded that over time, that would be $670 billion.

In 1942, and I will not over do this point, but the surplus then was $926 million. You grow and compound that over time, you would end up with basically about $700 billion in the bank.

You add all that up just over the 1,2,3,4,5,6 years, that is about $4 trillion.

Now the contention liability with Social Security is about $8 trillion. In other words, very quickly you could get to the point wherein the people in my town hall meetings are exactly right. If Washington had truly kept their hands off the money, if the money had been in an account and had grown and compounded over time, we would not be having this conversation tonight, which goes straight back to what the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) is getting at, which is this power of compound interest.

The other thought I wanted to pick up on for just 2 seconds is what the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) was talking about, and that is just plain honest accounting, and that is, if you look at the numbers, and again just to pick a couple of numbers, this is fiscal year 1994.

Now everybody thought we ran a deficit of about $200 billion. That would have been the number that was talked about. But what is interesting here is, as the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) very correctly pointed out, if you actually look at how much the debt went up, the debt went up by $293 billion. Same thing happened in 1995. It looked like it was 164, but if you look at how much the debt actually went up, it was 277. Same thing a year later.

□ 2200

The same thing a year later. Apparently it appeared as if our deficit was $100 billion, but if we look at how much the debt went up, it went up $261 billion. Even just this last year it appeared, now that we are in the black, that we ran a surplus of about $70 billion. Again, if we look at how much the debt actually went up, it actually went up by basically $100 billion.

That is not the kind of basic accounting that people use back home in their businesses. It is not the kind of basic accounting somebody uses in balancing the family checkbook. It clearly states we have a real problem with this stuff here in Washington.

I have some other weird charts here in my home-done log of charts, but I do not want to belabor that point. I want to talk about these because it is what we are talking about.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, we will come back to that in just a minute.

I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM) to comment on this situation.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding, and I have enjoyed listening. It just reinforces the things we do every day.

One of my colleagues once said that when we talk about all these numbers, people's eyes glaze over. It is, how does it affect them personally, and can the men and women at the Red Pig understand it. That is what I am going to try and do.

Once it was said that if we do not remember history, then we are likely to repeat it. I would like to take just a brief run, based on my colleague's 1 hour, and I will do it briefly. It is laughable, that Congress spends money, not the White House. We authorize, we appropriate; we authorize to spend it.

For 40 years, except for a small period of 1 term in the Senate, the Democrats have controlled the House and Senate, which controls all spending. When they say that they are fiscally responsible, that is an oxymoron. The debt was acquired, the deficit was acquired, and it put us on a negative road.

They have to spend. I feel sorry for my colleagues on the other side because they have to spend. By their party, they want big government because they believe government can do it better. That requires spending, and that increases taxes to pay for it. It is automatic. They have to spend that.

What I would like to do is take us on a walk through memory lane. When I came in in 1990, we said that enough was enough. We had the Gang of Seven. I don't know if Members remember that, for those who were not here. We shut down the House bank. We shut down the post office, because we knew that an individual here was dealing stamps. We set about to do the balanced budget. As a matter of fact, a lot of us wanted the Speaker to be changed at that point, so we could move ahead.

But my colleagues said in 1993 that it took courage for them to vote for that budget. It went by for me, because they said in 1993 their highest tax increase in the history of the United States is responsible for the economy today.

Let us take a look. In 1993, they promised a tax cut for what they call the middle class. First of all, there are no middle class citizens in this country, they are middle-income. I think we do a disservice to people by calling them middle class.

They said they would give tax relief for that group. They increased the tax in that budget. They increased taxes themselves by $270 billion. They cut defense $127 billion. They increased the tax on social security. They cut the COLA for veterans, they cut the COLAs for military. They had no welfare reform, they had no education reform.

When they had the White House, the House and Senate, did they have a minimum wage increase? Absolutely not. They said that was not the way to stimulate growth or jobs.

When we took the majority in 1994, we did away with the 1993 tax increase. We dissolved it. What did we do? The first thing, we gave back middle-income tax breaks. There are a whole host of ways we did that. People are enjoying that today.

We were not able to increase defense. It went down under that watch. That is one of the low points, I think, of our particular budget. But we took away the increase on social security tax. We reinstated our veterans' COLA. We reinstated our active duty military COLA, and while the Democrats put $100 million against us, while we were trying to save Medicare, and blasted us from the unions and all sides, at the end, the President signed our Medicare bill, after he vetoed it.

Because of welfare reform, the welfare reform we did in 1995, we have billions of dollars coming into the Treasury instead of going out. The average was 16 years. We changed that. So for them to say that they were responsible for the economy today is laughable.

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would yield, the gentleman is so right. Again, with my homemade charts here, I have another chart showing that exact point the gentleman is making, which is that Washington has been getting bigger raises than working families have gotten.

I do not want to bore people to death with a lot of numbers, but whether we start in 1993, we go to 1994, this is the rate at which money coming into

Washington has gone up. This is the rate at which people's pocketbooks, if you will, their earnings, have gone up. In every case, it is that red line, which is the money coming into Washington, that has been going up faster than money back home.

To say it another way, if we look at these two little lines, this is the rate at which Washington has been getting raises versus the rate at which the rest of America has been getting raises. So the gentleman is exactly right, the thing that is "balancing the books" up here has been hard-earned taxpayer dollars coming into Washington, as opposed to fiscal restraint.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. I thank the gentleman. The overall point I am trying to make is that Alan Greenspan, because of our tax relief, of us "balancing the budget," do Members remember when the President said, I can do it in 7 years, in 2 years, in 3 years? It is an arbitrary number. When we finally pinned the President down, three of his budgets increased the deficits by over $260 billion, with a forecast to $200 billion forever.

What we did is say no, a balanced budget is important. For them to say that they are fiscally responsible, I would ask Members, look at every bill on the Floor. The other side of the aisle will always want to increase the spending. They will say, we are cutting, we are cutting, except for one area, in defense. That is their cash cow. They also want to raise taxes to pay for it.

My last statement I would like to make, I would like Members to look up www.dsasusa.org, on the Web page. That stands for the Democrat Socialists of America. This is on the Web page, this is not the gentleman from California (Mr. DUKE CUNNINGHAM). In there is the Progressive Caucus.

In the socialist contract, they want government health care. What did they do when they had the leadership of the White House, the House and Senate? They want to cut defense in this Web page by 50 percent. What does the President do? He has cut it in half. They want to cut it 50 percent more. They want government control of education, private property; they want union control over small business; they want to increase socialized spending the highest ever. They want to raise taxes to the highest progressive tax ever, in this 12-point agenda. How do they pay for it? By increased taxes and cutting the military.

That is not what other forefathers meant when they talked about fiscal responsibility. We cannot do it by having government do it. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, I want to spend just a minute here going over the present budgets, if we can.

Mr. SANFORD. Before the gentleman does so, if the gentleman will yield for one more second, again, I want to follow up on the point of the gentleman from California.

Consistently, the way the rhetoric works around Washington, we would think that Republicans are trying to slash and burn and basically eliminate the city and eliminate all Federal functions. That is what I think is very interesting about this chart.

If we look at this line, would the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) tell me whether the line goes up or down? It is a one-way line, and that is going up. All Federal spending in Washington, D.C. has not been cut in real dollars or in nominal dollars. On the whole it has been going up. In 1994 it was $1.4 trillion. In fiscal year 1999, it is $1.7 trillion. The Republicans have not been cutting, eliminating. In fact, things have been going up in Washington.

Mr. COBURN. Actually, the gentleman makes my point. We have not done as good a job as we should have. We should have restrained spending more.

Let me spend a few minutes talking about the budget proposal of President Clinton and what has happened in 1999, and what has been projected. Then I want the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) to kind of talk on these budget items.

The other thing we hear, and I hope we get some time to spend on it, is Medicare. I know a lot about Medicare because I interact with Medicare every day as a physician. I know the ins and outs of it. I know what is good about it and what is bad about it.

The one thing I want the American public to know is the Congress, regardless of its politics, regardless of the rhetoric, nobody in Washington wants to do anything except enhance the viability of Medicare.

What I want to do is go through the budget for 1999, which we are operating under right now. By the end of this year, the fiscal surplus on social security, the amount of money taken in versus the amount of money taken out, is expected to be $127 billion.

If the government would have exercised fiscal discipline, we would have saved $126 billion. That is where this red line is. But we did not. Last year in the omnibus appropriations bill this Congress, over the threat of a government shutdown, spent $15 billion above what the budget caps had said we would spend in 1997, an agreement that the President agreed to and the Congress agreed to. They did not keep it.

What happens? Instead of a $127 billion surplus, it became $111. Now the President wants to spend another $1 billion on foreign aid. That takes us down to $110 billion in terms of social security.

We have a chance to have a real surplus this year because the revenues coming to the Federal Government, as the gentleman from South Carolina said, are rising. Why are they rising? It is called bracket creep. As people make more money, they move into a higher tax bracket, so therefore, the government takes more of our money. They reward us for working harder and earning more by taking a lot of that money away. What happens is the revenues to the Federal Government grow.

If we take the President's budget, the Congressional Budget Office estimates there will be $138 billion more in social security coming in than is paid out. Our idea is to not spend any of that on anything but social security, to solve the problems associated with Medicare and social security; to not spend any of it, to save 100 percent of it.

If we reject what the Republican budget plan is, the Congressional Budget Office anticipates right now that we will spend at least $5 billion of that $138 billion, bringing us down to only taking $5 billion out of the social security trust fund. We will only have $133 billion.

If we take what the President has proposed under his budget proposal, we will take another $20 billion of that and spend it. Remember, we all agreed in 1997 that we are not going to spend above the caps. We already have $35 billion proposed spending above the caps.

Finally, if we take the President's plan of saving 62 percent of the social security fund and spending 38 percent on new spending, what we get down to is actually, by all his plans, down to somewhere around 57 or 58 percent he wants to save.

If something is wrong, it is wrong all the time. If it is wrong to take the social security trust fund, and what that means is lowering the standard of living for our children and grandchildren, and placing a tremendous increased burden on them from a tax standpoint, it is wrong now, it was wrong before, as we have seen from the gentleman from South Carolina's chart, and it is wrong for the future.

There is no way we will ever solve this problem until we start being honest about what the word "surplus" means, until we start being honest about the social security trust fund, and we start being honest about the problems coming up with Medicare.

Nobody is proposing that we spend this money on anything except social security. It is true that we will reduce external debt with that, but the total debt will not go up if we do not spend this money, so it is important that we have the restraint on spending.

I yield to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT).

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding. I just want to read a couple of quotes.

In his 1998 State of the Union Address, President Clinton said, "Tonight I propose that we reserve 100 percent of the surplus, every penny of any surplus, until we have taken all the necessary measures to strengthen social security for the 21st century."

This year the President lowered the bar. This year he said, "I propose that we commit 62 percent of the budget surplus for the next 15 years to social security."

We took the President at his word. In the budget that we will debate tomorrow, the House Republican-passed budget will take 100 percent. That means that every single penny, for the first time I think perhaps in my lifetime, every penny of social security taxes will only go for social security.

What we will do with money that is not needed to pay those benefits is we will actually pay off some of the debt that is owed to the public.

□ 2215

The debt will still probably go up slightly.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, let me ask a question because the assumption in the partisan nature of this place is, if we say that money in there is a real surplus, then automatically money is going to go out of Washington to give a tax cut to the rich.

Does the gentleman know anybody in Washington in any area that is proposing to do that?

Mr. GUTKNECHT. No, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, in fact what we will do is make a determination of where we need to use that money. If it is shoring up Medicare, we will use it for shoring up Medicare.

But I will remind the gentleman and the American people that we had a commission that gave great recommendations on Medicare and how to save it, and the President rejected his own commission on what to do.

I think the gentleman has some things that are very important for us in discussing that in his charts.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. But first, Mr. Speaker, I think we have to establish that our priorities are very clear in our budget. First and foremost, we need to solve that problem. If the gentleman will put that chart up with the blue and the red bars which demonstrates where we are headed with the Social Security Trust Fund, it demonstrates why it is so important that we begin as soon as we can to say that every penny of Social Security taxes will go only for Social Security. We are going to do that this year. That is the most important thing.

Now if we find out come later in the year that there is more revenue available, then we should allow some of the families to keep some of what they earn. I happen to believe that if we do start talking about tax relief as this process goes forward, I believe that the first and foremost tax we ought to solve is this marriage penalty tax.

Every year about 21 million American families pay a penalty for being married. They pay extra taxes to the tune of an average of about $1,200 per family just because they are married. That is my own personal opinion. That has nothing to do with the rich versus the poor. That has nothing to do, in my opinion, with right versus wrong.

But the gentleman asked about Social Security and Medicare. I might just point out we were talking earlier, and the gentleman from South Carolina I think will appreciate this particular chart and this quote. One of the things we believe long-term, I believe, is allowing individuals to take at least a portion of their FICA taxes and be able to invest for themselves in personalized retirement accounts and take advantage of what Einstein described as the most powerful force on earth, the magic of compound interest.

But I want to make it clear, the President has a slightly different scheme. What he wants to do is take taxpayer money and invest it directly in the stock market.

One of the people who has probably had more influence on fiscal policy, at least as it relates to the Federal Reserve and interest rates and all the things that have helped keep this economy strong, is a gentleman by the name of Alan Greenspan. I want to just read this quote and what he said about the President's scheme of investing taxpayer money without the permission of retirees directly in the stock market.

He said, and I quote, "Investing a portion of the Social Security Trust Fund assets in equities, as the administration and others have proposed, would arguably put at risk the efficiency of our capital markets and thus our economy. Even with Herculean efforts, I doubt if it would be feasible to insulate the trust funds from the political pressures." That is what Alan Greenspan said.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, everybody up here knows that that would happen, that political pressure would decide what and how that money was invested.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I just want to make it clear, we look at this as a possibility in the future of allowing people to invest for themselves, where on the other side the administration is saying, "Well, we will invest it for you." With that we see all the political pressures and really the tremendous number of potential conflicts of interest.

I mean what would the government do if they were one of the largest investors in Microsoft, for example? Could they pursue the antitrust suit that they are doing right now, or any antitrust suit?

In fact, it is estimated that if we went ahead with the scheme that the President was talking about, that within 10 years the Federal Government could own as much as 25 percent of all the stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, and we become more than the 800-pound gorilla. It is more like the 5,000-pound gorilla on Wall Street.

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN) will yield, I would just pick up where the gentleman from Minnesota leaves off now.

I think Alan Greenspan very correctly pointed out the dangers in collective investment. It sounds good, it sounds alluring, and that is, let us send all the money to Washington, let the experts take care of it.

But there are real dangers that come with that idea. This other idea, again we are talking about a gradual shift in that direction. It would take time. It is going to take a lot of debate in this place. But the idea of allowing people to invest a portion of their payroll tax in their own personal account does take advantage of this powerful compound interest and takes advantage of it in, I think, a special way that was highlighted in the Washington Post today.

In the Metro section of today's Washington Post, there is an article entitled, the "Munificence of an Unusual Millionaire". If I may, I would like to read just the first couple of paragraphs of this article.

Karl H. Hagen lived modestly and alone for much of his life, in his family's decaying farmhouse in Suitland. For 36 years, he worked for the Potomac Electric Power Co., painting signs and fences and doing other maintenance jobs.

He did indulge in a few passions, however, including travel, watercolor painting, reading, ballroom dancing, and investing in stocks and bonds.

The latter paid off in a big way.

Hagen, whose clothes came from thrift shops and who looked to acquaintances as though he might be homeless, managed to amass a fortune of about $3 million. When he died of a stroke last Thursday at the age of 89, he left his estate to three institutions that had earned his admiration: . . . Johns Hopkins University, the National Air and Space Museum and National Geographic Society.

I think that that says a lot about this simple thing of compound interest so well highlighted in today's Washington Post on the front page of the Metro section.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, what we are going to hear tomorrow, too, I think that is important in terms of Medicare, is that they want to take 15 percent of Social Security money and shift it over to Medicare. That may or may not be a good idea, but if we are going to preserve Social Security, the one way to do it is not to spend Social Security money on Medicare, because all we are going to do is undermine Social Security even further.

President Clinton's own chairman, Senator BREAUX, had this quote from the Wall Street Journal on March 12. "I think what we have on the table is a classic Clinton New Democrat reform, but there are entrenched people within the White House who do not want any change."

The fact is, if we are going to save Medicare, it is going to have to have some change. Politicians generally worry about changing something as important as Medicare. It takes real courage to solve the Medicare problem. But we have to change it if we are going to solve it. We can not solve it, and we can do the same thing to our children on Medicare as we have done on Social Security, and that is steal the money from somewhere else and then raise their taxes in the future.

Mr. Speaker, I just yield to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) on that point. I think he has a chart that talks about the amount of money that can be saved if we fiscally restrain spending.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, I would just point out a couple of charts, because there is going to be, I suspect, a rather heated debate tomorrow and for the next several weeks about who is doing a better job of saving Medicare and Social Security.

I think the numbers do speak for themselves. This is a chart, and again, these are not our numbers. These numbers actually are generated by the Congressional Budget Office. But it shows that over the next 10 years we are going to save $1.8 trillion for Medicare. The Clinton plan, which is rather complicated and difficult to explain, will save about $1.65 trillion over that period. There is a big difference.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, the difference is $150 billion.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Exactly. Mr. Speaker, that is a lot of money even around here.

Mr. COBURN. Right.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, let me point out, though, what some of the Congressional Budget Office people and what the Office of Management and Budget also said. They did not actually use the term "irresponsible". I want to show this article which appeared in the Washington Post last week, and they were both very, very critical of the Clinton plan. Basically, they described it as sort of a smoke and mirrors type plan.

Frankly, even the chairman and many of the Democrats who either served on or were very involved in the Medicare Commission essentially came to the same conclusion, that what the President was really proposing was nothing. He was proposing taking more general fund revenues to try and supplement Medicare, when really what we need with Medicare is not necessarily just more money. We need real reforms. We need to get under the hood, as Ross Perot used to say, and really fix this thing.

By doing what the President was doing, it was called irresponsible because it really, in some respects, only makes the problem worse over the long-term.

So I think we are going to have a good and healthy and heated debate about Medicare, but it is important to see what some experts have said. It is not just us. As I say, it is the Congressional Budget Office. It is OMB. It is columnist David Broder.

He wrote a column last week. It appeared in Sunday's Washington Post. The headline was "Medicare: Another Clinton failure?"

As we look through his plan, and it is described in detail here, and if people would like a copy, we can certainly make certain they can get a copy of it, but there have been many people who have studied the Clinton plan and they say this is a joke, and unfortunately it is kind of a sad joke for American seniors.

Mr. COBURN. Mr. Speaker, one of the things I do with my seniors who are on Medicare, I have actually asked them this at home when the President started talking about a drug benefit, we are talking about here we go again, politicians adding a benefit to a program that we cannot afford now. When we ask the seniors, "Do you want to increase the benefits associated with Medicare, and the way we are going to pay it is we are taking it away from your grandchildren," they uniformly say no.

But they also will say, "If you will spend wiser in Washington, maybe you can do more for me, because I am struggling." But they do not want their children and their grandchildren to have to pay for it.

So I want to thank the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT) and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD) for being here tonight. My purpose is not partisanship. My purpose is to make sure the American public knows that there are some of us here that are going to honestly talk about what the numbers are, honestly talk about being critical of both Republicans and Democrats in the past in terms of the mistakes that have been made that have been politically expedient.

I want to close this tonight with a statement that Martin Luther King said in his last speech in the Washington Cathedral not long before he was assassinated. What he said was is that "Vanity asked the question, is it popular? And cowardice asked the question, is it expedient? But conscience asked the question, is it right?"

The gentleman related to something, right versus wrong. For too long Washington has been asking the wrong question. What they have been saying is, is it popular, and is it expedient for my political career, versus is it right for our country, right for the future generation and the following?

I hope the Congress will have the courage to do what is right rather than what is expedient and what is popular. That is what we are sent up here to do.

RECOGNIZING THE ACHIEVEMENTS OF WOMEN OF COLOR

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, let me thank the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) for organizing the special order that was supposed to be on women's history, although it had been altered.

I would just like to offer my remarks for this evening. Let me also add that the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE) has certainly put her stamp on history through her outstanding work here in the House of Representatives and being the first African American woman to be elected to her district.

It is fitting indeed that we honor the achievements of women of color, who for too long were neglected in our Nation's history. In recent years, it has been exciting to watch school children learn about African American women of strength, courage, and dignity who shaped the course of history.

We can point with pride to women like Harriet Tubman who secretly guided over 300 slaves to freedom on the "Underground Railroad." She spent time working in my home State of New Jersey at Cape May between 1849 and 1852.

We honor the legacy of Sojourner Truth, who was freed from slavery by the New York State Emancipation Act of 1827, became famous in her lifetime as a preacher and abolitionist and lecturer. When war broke out, she raised money to buy gifts for the soldiers and went into Army camps and distributed them by herself.

We recall the contributions of Mary McLeod Bethune, who built Bethune-Cookman College in Florida and founded the National Council of Negro Women. She was the first black woman to receive a major appointment in the Federal Government.

□ 2230

She served as an adviser to President Franklin Roosevelt and to President Truman.

There have been so many remarkable women of color that it is impossible to pay tribute to all of them tonight. We have all had the opportunity to meet women who were personal heroines in our own lives, and I would like to pay tribute to three women who have had the greatest impact on my early life, African American women who have made a direct contribution to my growth and development. And these three women, other than my late mother and grandmother, have had a tremendous impact on my development.

The first one I would like to mention is Mrs. Madeline Williams, who was an adviser of the NAACP Youth Councils and College Chapter of the Oranges and Maplewood in New Jersey. When I was invited to join the NAACP as a college student she provided the opportunity for young people to become involved in civic activities and public service. She helped me develop an interest in civil rights at a time in history when we were all moved to become involved. I remain grateful to her for giving me the opportunity to become involved in civil rights and government affairs.

Another great woman who exerted an enormous positive influence on my life was Mrs. Mary Burch, founder of a group called The Leaguers, which helped young people from the inner city to become more involved in their activities in their cities.

Belonging to the Leaguers opened up a whole new world for young people like myself, a world from which we otherwise would have been excluded. Never before had we been able to have the opportunity to wear formal attire when I was a young boy; to learn the waltz and to attend cotillion dances in a ballroom. It was an uplifting experience which taught us about social graces and made us feel special.

The Leaguers sponsored many innovative programs. I recall as a teenager my excitement over my first real trip as a high school student away from home, to visit Philadelphia, through a Leaguer exchange program. Later, the student I visited, Joe Wade, stayed at my home in Newark. Forging friendships and relationships with young people from different cities was exciting, it was novel, and it was a great experience. This year we are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the founding of the Leaguers.

Finally, let me just mention another exceptional woman from New Jersey whom I was pleased to join at a celebration recently at her hundredth birthday at the YWCA in Montclair last week, and that is Mrs. Hortense Tate. Her career spanned seven decades of service through education as a teacher and guidance counselor, the enrichment and development of young women through the Montclair YWCA and the AKA sorority, and over 70 years of service to her church.

When I was a young teacher at Robert Treat School in 1957, Mrs. Tate guided me and inspired me. She comes from an outstanding family; her father worked his way up from a blue collar job to become a principal of an African American school in Topeka, Kansas. As we all know, the 1954 Supreme Court case was based on the Topeka Board of Education that said separate but equal is unconstitutional. He was acquainted with Booker T. Washington and George Washington Carver.

Mrs. Tate entertained Mary McLeod Bethune and Dorothy Height. Her son, Herb Tate, was a distinguished foreign diplomat, and her grandson, Herbert H. Tate, Junior, is President of the State of New Jersey Board of Public Utilities.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues join me in honoring these women of achievement who have, as the theme of this Women's History Month goes, "put their stamp on America." I am so pleased to have the chance to express my personal gratitude and admiration for women who have meant so much to me throughout my life. I would not be here if it were not for the faith, confidence and direction that these persons have had on my life.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to:

Ms. SLAUGHTER (at the request of Mr. GEPHARDT) for Wednesday, March 24th, on account of illness.

SPECIAL ORDERS GRANTED

By unanimous consent, permission to address the House, following the legislative program and any special orders heretofore entered, was granted to:

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. OLVER) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. LIPINSKI, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. BLUMENAUER, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. FILNER, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. JEFFERSON, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. KAPTUR, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. NORTON, for 5 minutes, today.

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, for 5 minutes, today.

(The following Members (at the request of Mr. DUNCAN) to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material:)

Mr. PAUL, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. DUNCAN, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan, for 5 minutes each day, today and on March 25.

Mr. BURTON of Indiana, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. MILLER of Florida, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. ENGLISH, for 5 minutes, on March 25.

Mr. GUTKNECHT, for 5 minutes, today.

Mr. BILIRAKIS, for 5 minutes, on March 25.

Mr. CUNNINGHAM, for 5 minutes, on March 25.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED

Bills of the Senate of the following titles were taken from the Speaker's table and, under the rule, referred as follows:

S. 437. An act to designate the United States courthouse under construction at 333 Las Vegas Boulevard South in Las Vegas, Nevada, as the "Lloyd D. George United States Courthouse" to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

S. 460. An act to designate the United States courthouse located at 401 South Michigan Street in South Bend, Indiana, as the "Robert K. Rodibaugh United States Bankruptcy Courthouse"; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to; accordingly (at 10 o'clock and 35 minutes p.m.), the House adjourned until tomorrow, Thursday, March 25, 1999, at 10 a.m.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Under clause 8 of rule XII, executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

1246. A letter from the Administrator, Farm Service Agency, Department of Agriculture, transmitting the Department's final rule—Recourse Loan Regulations for Mohair (RIN: 0560-AF63) received March 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Agriculture.

1247. A letter from the Assistant Secretary for Postsecondary Education, Department of Education, transmitting Final regulations—Graduate Assistance in the Areas of National Need, pursuant to 20 U.S.C. 1232(f); to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

1248. A letter from the Secretary of Education, transmitting Final Regulations—Assistance to States for the Education of children with Disabilities and the Early Intervention Program for Infants and Toddlers with Disabilities, pursuant to 20 U.S.C. 1232(f); to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

1249. A letter from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Department of Education, transmitting the Department's final rule—Demonstration Projects to Ensure Students with Disabilities Receive a Quality Higher Education. Notice of final priorities and invitation for applications for new awards for fiscal year (FY) 1999—received March 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

1250. A letter from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, transmitting the 1998 annual report on the Loan Repayment Program for Research Generally, pursuant to 42 U.S.C. 2541-1(i); to the Committee on Commerce.

1251. A letter from the Acting Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting the Department's final rule—Criteria and Procedures for DOE Contractor Employee Protection Program; Department of Energy Acquisition Regulations (RIN: 1901-AA78) received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1252. A letter from the Acting Assistant General Counsel for Regulatory Law, Department of Energy, transmitting the Department's final rule—Acquisition Regulation; Department of Energy Management and Operating Contracts and Other Designated Contracts; Final Rule—received March 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1253. A letter from the AMD—Performance Evaluation and Records Management, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Amendment of Section 73.202(b), Table of Allotments, FM Broadcast Stations. (Augusta, Wisconsin) [MM Docket No. 98-234, RM-9324] received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1254. A letter from the AMD—Performance Evaluation and Records Management, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Amendment of Section 73.202(b), Table of Allotments, FM Broadcast Stations. (Knox City, Texas) [MM Docket No. 98-236, RM-9344] received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1255. A letter from the AMD—Performance Evaluation and Records Management, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Amendment of Section 73.202(b), Table of Allotments, FM Broadcast Stations. (Pauls Valley and Healdton, Oklahoma and Krum, Texas) [MM Docket No. 98-50; RM-9247] Amendment of Section 73.202(b), Table of Allotments, FM Broadcast Stations. (Healdton, Oklahoma) [MM Docket No. 98-75; RM-9264] received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1256. A letter from the AMD—Performance Evaluation and Records Management, Federal Communications Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Amendment of Section 73.202(b), Table of Allotments, FM Broadcast Stations. (Manhattan, Montana) [MM Docket No. 98-233 RM-9316] received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1257. A letter from the Director, Regulations Policy and Management Staff, Food and Drug Administration, transmitting the Administration's final rule—List of Drug Products That Have Been Withdrawn or Removed From the Market for Reasons of Safety or Effectiveness [Docket No. 98N-0655] received March 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1258. A letter from the Director, Office of Congressional Affairs, U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, transmitting the Commission's final rule—Standard Review Plan on Foreign Ownership, Control, or Domination—received March 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Commerce.

1259. A letter from the Acting Director, Defense Security Cooperation Agency, transmitting reports in accordance with Section 36(a) of the Arms Export Control Act, pursuant to 22 U.S.C. 2776(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

1260. A letter from the Assistant Legal Adviser for Treaty Affairs, Department of State, transmitting Copies of international agreements, other than treaties, entered into by the United States, pursuant to 1 U.S.C. 112b(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

1261. A letter from the Assistant Legal Adviser for Treaty Affairs, Department of State, transmitting Copies of international agreements, other than treaties, entered into by the United States, pursuant to 1 U.S.C. 112b(a); to the Committee on International Relations.

1262. A letter from the Director, Selective Service, transmitting Activities under the Freedom of Information Act for calendar year 1998, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 552(d); to the Committee on Government Reform.

1263. A letter from the Under Secretary for Oceans and Atmosphere, Department of Commerce, transmitting a report on the activities of the Northwest Atlantic Fisheries Organization for 1998; to the Committee on Resources.

1264. A letter from the Acting Director, Office of Sustainable Fisheries, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, transmitting the Administration's final rule—Fisheries of the Caribbean, Gulf of Mexico, and South Atlantic; Coastal Migratory Pelagic Resources of the Gulf of Mexico and South Atlantic; Closure [Docket No. 961204340-7087-02; I.D. 031299A] received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Resources.

1265. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Sikorsky Aircraft Corporation (Sikorsky) Model S-76C Helicopters [Docket No. 99-SW-22-AD; Amendment 39-11083; AD 99-07-01] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1266. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; CFM International CFM56-5 Series Turbofan Engines [Docket No. 98-ANE-56-AD; Amendment 39-11079; AD 99-06-16] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1267. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; British Aerospace HP137 MK1, Jetstream Series 200, and Jetstream Models 3101 and 3201 Airplanes [Docket No. 98-CE-92-

AD; Amendment 39-11075; AD 99-06-11] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1268. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Agusta S.p.A. (Agusta) Model A109E Helicopters [Docket No. 99-SW-10-AD; Amendment 39-11080; AD 99-03-10] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1269. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Boeing Model 747-400, -400D, and -400F Series Airplanes [Docket No. 96-NM-171-AD; Amendment 39-11082; AD 99-06-18] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1270. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Change of Using Agency for Prohibited Area P-56, District of Columbia [Airspace Docket No. 98-AWA-4] (RIN: 2120-AA66) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1271. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Establishment of Class D Airspace and Modification of Class E Airspace; Bozeman, MT [Airspace Docket No. 98-ANM-19] received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1272. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Modification to the Gulf of Mexico High Offshore Airspace Area [Airspace Docket No. 97-ASW-24] (RIN: 2120-AA66) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1273. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; Dornier Model 328-100 Series Airplanes [Docket No. 98-NM-198-AD; Amendment 39-11078; AD 99-06-14] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1274. A letter from the Program Support Specialist, Aircraft Certification Service, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Airworthiness Directives; British Aerospace HP137 Mk1, Jetstream Series 200, and Jetstream Models 3101 and 3201 Airplanes [Docket No. 98-CE-102-AD; Amendment 39-11076; AD 99-06-12] (RIN: 2120-AA64) received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1275. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Revocation of Class E Airspace, Revision of Class D Airspace; Torrance, CA [Airspace Docket No. 98-AWP-34] received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1276. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Amendment to Class E Airspace; Alliance, NE [Airspace Docket No. 98-ACE-54] received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1277. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Amendment to Class E Airspace; Alliance, NE [Airspace Docket No. 98-ACE-54] received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1278. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Standard Instrument Approach Procedures; Miscellaneous Amendments [Docket No. 29487; Amdt. No. 1919] received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1279. A letter from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Department of Transportation, transmitting the Department's final rule—Standard Instrument Approach Procedures; Miscellaneous Amendments [Docket No. 29488; Amdt. No. 1920] received March 22, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

1280. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Taxation of fringe benefits [Rev. Rul. 99-12] received March 23, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

1281. A letter from the Chief, Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, transmitting the Service's final rule—Determination of Issue Price in the Case of Certain Debt Instruments Issued for Property [Revenue Ruling 99-17] received March 16, 1999, pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(1)(A); to the Committee on Ways and Means.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XIII, reports of committees were delivered to the Clerk for printing and reference to the proper calendar, as follows:

Mr. LINDER: Committee on Rules. House Resolution 131. Resolution providing for consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 68) establishing the congressional budget for the United States government for fiscal year 2000 and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of the fiscal years 2001 through 2009 (Rept. 106-77). Referred to the House Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 2 of rule XII, public bills and resolutions were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. SAXTON:

H.R. 1243. A bill to reauthorize the National Marine Sanctuaries Act; to the Committee on Resources.

By Mr. CRANE (for himself, Mr.

DOOLEY of California, Mr. MANZULLO, Mr. ARCHER, Mr. BEREUTER, Mr. ROYCE, Mr. SALMON, Mr. CLEMENT, Mr. HOUGHTON, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. BRADY of Texas, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. SHAW, Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut, Mr. HERGER, Mr. MCCRERY, Ms. DUNN, Mr. JEFFERSON, Mr. PORTMAN, Mr. ENGLISH, Mr. WATKINS, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. BOUCHER, Mr. DREIER, Mr. PRICE of North Carolina, Mr. BLILEY, Mr. MORAN of Virginia, Mr. OXLEY,

Mr. MINGE, Mr. KOLBE, Mr. POMEROY, Mr. CALLAHAN, Mr. LUTHER, Mr. EWING, Mr. BLUMENAUER, Mr. BOEHNER, Ms. LOFGREN, Mr. MCINTOSH, Mr. DAVIS of Florida, Mr. HASTINGS of Washington, Mr. JOHN, Mr. NETHERCUTT, Mr. SNYDER, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. SMITH of Washington, Mr. SHIMKUS, Mrs. TAUSCHER, Mr. REYNOLDS, Mr. SHOWS, Mr. KUYKENDALL, Mrs. NAPOLITANO, Mr. BAIRD, Mr. SKELTON, Mrs. BIGGERT, Mr. RAMSTAD, and Mr. MORAN of Kansas):

H.R. 1244. A bill to provide a framework for consideration by the legislative and executive branches of unilateral economic sanctions; to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committees on Ways and Means, and Banking and Financial Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. RUSH:

H.R. 1245. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to regulate the transfer of firearms over the Internet, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mrs. MALONEY of New York (for herself, Mr. PRYCE of Ohio, Ms. NORTON, Mrs. ROUKEMA, Mr. ABERCROMBIE, Mr. ALLEN, Ms. BERKLEY, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. BISHOP, Mr. BROWN of California, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. CUMMINGS, Ms. DUNN, Mr. FALEOMAVAEGA, Mrs. JONES of Ohio, Ms. MCKINNEY, Mr. FARR of California, Mr. FILNER, Mr. FROST, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. GUTIERREZ, Mr. JACKSON of Illinois, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Ms. KAPTUR, Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island, Ms. KILPATRICK, Mr. KUCINICH, Ms. LEE, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mrs. MEEK of Florida, Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD, Mrs. MINK of Hawaii, Mrs. MORELLA, Ms. ROS-LEHTINEN, Mr. RUSH, Mr. SHOWS, Ms. STABENOW, Mrs. THURMAN, Mr. TOWNS, Ms. VELAZQUEZ, Mr. VENTO, Mr. VIS-CLOSKY, Ms. WOOLSEY, Mr. WYNN, and Mr. GALLEGLY):

H.R. 1246. A bill to create a National Museum of Women's History Advisory Committee; to the Committee on Resources.

By Mr. STUMP (for himself and Mr. EVANS):

H.R. 1247. A bill to expand the fund raising authorities of the American Battle Monuments Commission to expedite the establishment of the World War II memorial in the District of Columbia and to ensure adequate funds for the repair and long-term maintenance of the memorial, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mrs. MORELLA (for herself, Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut, Mrs. KELLY, Mrs. MALONEY of New York, Ms. CARSON, Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. SHOWS, Mrs. MYRICK, Mr. SHAYS, Mrs. WILSON, Ms. MCKINNEY, Mr. MATSUI, Mr. McNULTY, Mr. ETHERIDGE, Ms. BERKLEY, Ms. LOFGREN, Mrs. JONES of Ohio, Mr. BOUCHER, Mrs. BIGGERT, Ms. DEGETTE, Mr. INSLEE, Ms. DANNER, Mr. LEACH, Mr. RANGEL, Mrs. CUBIN, Mrs. FOWLER, Mr. GILMAN, Ms. NORTON, Mr. LANTOS, Mr. WAXMAN, and Ms. GRANGER):

H.R. 1248. A bill to prevent violence against women; to the Committee on the Judiciary, and in addition to the Committees on Education and the Workforce, and Commerce, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. BARR of Georgia (for himself, Mr. NORWOOD, Mr. DEAL of Georgia, Mr. LINDER, Mr. CHAMBLISS, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mr. BISHOP, Mr. KINGSTON, Mr. COLLINS, Ms. MCKINNEY, and Mr. ISAKSON):

H.R. 1249. A bill to direct the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to establish a national cemetery for veterans in the Atlanta, Georgia, metropolitan area; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. LAFALCE (for himself, Mr. CONYERS, Mr. METCALF, Mr. BALDACC, Mr. HOUGHTON, Mr. HINCHEY, Mr. PICKETT, Mr. ENGLISH, Ms. LEE, Mr. PASTOR, Mr. RODRIGUEZ, Mr. DAVIS of Florida, Mr. STUPAK, Mr. HOLDEN, and Mrs. MINK of Hawaii):

H.R. 1250. A bill to amend the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 to clarify and improve the requirements for the development of an automated entry-exit control system, to enhance land border control and enforcement, and for other purposes; to the Committee on the Judiciary, and in addition to the Committee on Ways and Means, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. COOK:

H.R. 1251. A bill to designate the United States Postal Service building located at 8850 South 700 East, Sandy, Utah, as the "Noal Cushing Bateman Post Office Building"; to the Committee on Government Reform.

By Mr. ENGLISH (for himself, Mr. TRAFICANT, and Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania):

H.R. 1252. A bill to amend the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century to repeal the Interstate System Reconstruction and Rehabilitation Pilot Program; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. ENGLISH (for himself, Mr. CRANE, Mr. RAMSTAD, and Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut):

H.R. 1253. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to restrict the use of tax-exempt financing by governmentally owned electric utilities and to subject certain activities of such utilities to income tax; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FOLEY (for himself, Mr. HOUGHTON, and Mr. MCINNIS):

H.R. 1254. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow individuals a refund of up to 5 percent of the income tax otherwise payable for taxable year 1999; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FORD (for himself, Mr. CLEMENT, Mr. TANNER, and Mr. JENKINS):

H.R. 1255. A bill to amend the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965 to add Hickman, Lawrence, Lewis, Perry, and Wayne Counties, Tennessee, to the Appalachian region; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. FOSSELLA (for himself and Mr. MENENDEZ):

H.R. 1256. A bill to amend the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 to provide for an annual limit on the amount of certain fees which may be collected by the Securities and Exchange Commission; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. FROST:

H.R. 1257. A bill to amend title 49, United States Code, relating to continuation of operating assistance for small transit operators in large urbanized areas; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. HANSEN (for himself, Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, Mr. HILL of Montana, Mrs. CHENOWETH, Mr. RADANOVICH, Mr. SALMON, Mr. STUMP, Mr. HEFLEY, Mr. GIBBONS, Mr. SHADEGG, Mr. SIMPSON, Mr. POMBO, Mr. HUNTER, Mr. HAYWORTH, Mr. CALVERT, Mr. PETERSON of Pennsylvania, Mr. MCINNIS, and Mr. ROHRBACHER):

H.R. 1258. A bill to accelerate the Wilderness designation process by establishing a timetable for the completion of wilderness studies on Federal Lands; to the Committee on Resources.

By Mr. HERGER (for himself, Mr. SHAW, Mr. CRANE, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. HOUGHTON, Mr. ARCHER, Mr. MCCRERY, Mr. RAMSTAD, Mr. NUSSLE, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, Ms. DUNN, Mr. PORTMAN, Mr. ENGLISH, Mr. WATKINS, Mr. HAYWORTH, Mr. WELLER, Mr. HULSHOF, Mr. MCINNIS, Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky, and Mr. BILBRAY):

H.R. 1259. A bill to amend the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to protect Social Security surpluses through strengthened budgetary enforcement mechanisms; to the Committee on the Budget, and in addition to the Committees on Ways and Means, and Rules, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. BORSKI (for himself and Mr. OBERSTAR):

H.R. 1260. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the harbor maintenance tax and to amend the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 to authorize appropriations for activities formerly funded with revenues from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. HOBSON (for himself, Mr. KASICH, Mr. GREENWOOD, Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut, Ms. PRYCE of Ohio, and Mr. SAWYER):

H.R. 1261. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and title XIX of the Social Security Act to promote the purchase of private long-term care insurance by providing tax deductibility, State Medicaid flexibility, and information dissemination; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committee on Commerce, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. HOEKSTRA:

H.R. 1262. A bill to provide that existing facilities located on the Pentwater River in Michigan, are not required to be licensed by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission under part 1 of the Federal Power Act; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mr. HOEKSTRA (for himself, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CUNNINGHAM, Mr. COBURN, Mr. KOLBE, Mr. BRADY of Texas, Mrs. MYRICK, Mr. CAMP, Mr. BARR of Georgia, Mrs. CHENOWETH, Mr. SCHAFFER, and Mr. SANFORD):

H.R. 1263. A bill to require the Federal Government to disclose to Federal employees on each paycheck the Government's share of taxes for old-age, survivors, and disability insurance and for hospital insurance of the employee, and the Government's total payroll allocation for the employee; to the Committee on Government Reform.

By Mr. HOEKSTRA (for himself, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CUNNINGHAM, Mr.

COBURN, Mr. KOLBE, Mr. BRADY of Texas, Mrs. MYRICK, Mr. BARR of Georgia, Mrs. CHENOWETH, Mr. SCHAFER, and Mr. SANFORD):

H.R. 1264. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to require that each employer show on the W-2 form of each employee the employer's share of taxes for old-age, survivors, and disability insurance and for hospital insurance for the employee as well as the total amount of such taxes for such employee; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas (for herself, Mr. BROWN of California, Mr. COSTELLO, Mr. RANGEL, Mr. SCOTT, Mrs. MEEK of Florida, Ms. LEE, Mrs. JONES of Ohio, Ms. CARSON, Mr. OWENS, Mr. JEFFERSON, Ms. BROWN of Florida, Mr. HILLIARD, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Ms. KILPATRICK, Mr. WATT of North Carolina, Mr. CLYBURN, Mr. FORD, Mr. RUSH, Mr. MEEKS of New York, Ms. WATERS, Mr. WYNN, Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, Mr. CUMMINGS, Ms. NORTON, Mr. PAYNE, Mr. TRAFICANT, Mrs. MCKINNEY, Mr. HASTINGS of Florida, Mr. GORDON, Mr. ETHERIDGE, Mr. LARSON, Mr. WOOLSEY, Mr. LAMPSON, Mr. FROST, Ms. STABENOW, Mr. WEINER, Mr. TURNER, Mr. UDALL of Colorado, Mr. RODRIGUEZ, Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. SANDLIN, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. TOWNS, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. ORTIZ, Mr. CLAY, Mr. BISHOP, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN, Mrs. CLAYTON, Mr. DIXON, Mr. FATTAH, and Ms. MILLENDER-MCDONALD):

H.R. 1265. A bill to develop a demonstration project through the National Science Foundation to encourage interest in the fields of mathematics, science, and information technology; to the Committee on Science, and in addition to the Committee on Education and the Workforce, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. LEACH:

H.R. 1266. A bill to authorize appropriations for the payment of United States arrearages to the United Nations; to the Committee on International Relations.

By Ms. LOFGREN:

H.R. 1267. A bill to provide grants to local educational agencies that agree to begin school for secondary students after 9:00 in the morning; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. GARY MILLER of California:

H.R. 1268. A bill to amend title II of the Social Security Act to ensure the integrity of the Social Security trust funds by requiring the Managing Trustee to invest such trust funds in marketable obligations of the United States; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California (for himself and Mr. DEFAZIO):

H.R. 1269. A bill to amend the Federal Oil and Gas Royalty Management Act of 1982 to strengthen sanctions for violations of that Act relating to oil or gas royalties; to the Committee on Resources.

By Mr. MINGE:

H.R. 1270. A bill to authorize States and political subdivisions of States to control the management of municipal solid waste generated within their jurisdictions, and to exempt States and political subdivisions of States from civil liability with respect to the good faith passage, implementation, and enforcement of flow control ordinances; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Ms. NORTON:

H.R. 1271. A bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to prohibit discrimination in the payment of wages on account of sex, race, or national origin, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. NUSSLE:

H.R. 1272. A bill to amend the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act to allow State educational agencies and local educational agencies to establish and implement uniform policies with respect to discipline and order applicable to all children within their jurisdiction to ensure safety and an appropriate educational atmosphere in their schools; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. OXLEY (for himself and Mr. HALL of Texas):

H.R. 1273. A bill to require the Federal Communications Commission to repeal unconstitutional reporting and recordkeeping requirements, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Ms. PELOSI (for herself, Mr. RANGEL, Ms. ESHOO, Ms. KILPATRICK, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mr. MCDERMOTT, Mr. McNULTY, Mr. MATSUI, and Ms. WOOLSEY):

H.R. 1274. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide a credit for medical research related to developing vaccines against widespread diseases; to the Committee on Ways and Means, and in addition to the Committee on Commerce, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. PETERSON of Minnesota:

H.R. 1275. A bill to amend the Animal Welfare Act to prohibit the interstate movement of live birds for the purpose of having the birds participate in animal fighting; to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD (for herself, Mr. LUTHER, Mr. SHOWS, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. PASTOR, Mr. BROWN of California, Ms. LEE, Mr. STARK, Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, Mr. FILNER, Mr. DIXON, Mr. OLVER, Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, Mr. HINCHEY, and Ms. WOOLSEY):

H.R. 1276. A bill to amend the Truth in Lending Act to protect consumers from certain unreasonable practices of creditors which result in higher fees or rates of interest for credit cardholders, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services.

By Mr. SANDERS:

H.R. 1277. A bill to amend the National Labor Relations Act, to establish the National Public Employment Relations Commission, and to amend title I of the Employment Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to provide for joint trusteeship of single-employer pension plans; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. SMITH of Washington:

H.R. 1278. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to repeal the limitation on the estate tax deduction for family-owned business interests; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi:

H.R. 1279. A bill to designate the Federal building and United States post office located at 223 Sharkey Street in Clarksdale, Mississippi, as the "Aaron E. Henry Federal Building and United States Post Office"; to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

By Mr. TOWNS:

H.R. 1280. A bill to require the Consumer Product Safety Commission to ban toys which in size, shape, or overall appearance resemble real handguns; to the Committee on Commerce.

By Mrs. MALONEY of New York:

H.J. Res. 41. A joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States relative to equal rights for men and women; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DEFAZIO (for himself and Mr. METCALF):

H.J. Res. 42. A joint resolution to amend the War Powers Resolution; to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committee on Rules, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. MICA (for himself, Mr. GILMAN, Mr. TRAFICANT, Mr. ENGLISH, Mr. BACHUS, Mr. BARR of Georgia, Mr. DOOLITTLE, Mr. HUNTER, and Mr. BURTON of Indiana):

H.J. Res. 43. A joint resolution disapproving the certification of the President under section 490(b) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 regarding foreign assistance for Mexico during fiscal year 1999; to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Mr. BONILLA (for himself and Mr. NETHERCUTT):

H. Con. Res. 69. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress that the Government of Costa Rica should take steps to protect the lives of property owners in Costa Rica, and for other purposes; to the Committee on International Relations.

By Mr. BONILLA (for himself, Mr. ORTIZ, Mr. REYES, Mr. SKEEN, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. BILBRAY, Mr. PASTOR, Mr. KOLBE, and Mr. RODRIGUEZ):

H. Con. Res. 70. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that there should be parity among the countries that are parties to the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) with respect to the personal allowance for duty-free merchandise purchased abroad by returning residents, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CALLAHAN:

H. Con. Res. 71. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress that State and local governments and local educational agencies are encouraged to dedicate a day of learning to the study and understanding of the Declaration of Independence, the United States Constitution, and the Federalist Papers; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. HASTINGS of Florida:

H. Con. Res. 72. A concurrent resolution providing support to the United States Armed Forces in their efforts to halt the brutal ethnic cleansing of Kosovar Albanians; to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committee on Armed Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

By Ms. LOFGREN:

H. Con. Res. 73. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of Congress that secondary schools should consider starting school after 9:00 in the morning; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. MARKEY (for himself, Mr. BARRETT of Wisconsin, Ms. DEGETTE, Ms. ESHOO, Mr. GUTIERREZ, Ms. LEE, Mrs. LOWEY, Mrs. MALONEY of New York, Mr. MCGOVERN, Ms. MCKINNEY, Mr. MEEHAN, Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, Mr. NADLER, Mr. OWENS, Mr.

PALLONE, Mr. PAYNE, Mr. TIERNEY, and Ms. WOOLSEY):

H. Con. Res. 74. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress regarding maintenance of the nuclear weapons stockpile; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. PAYNE (for himself, Mr. WOLF, Mr. GILMAN, Ms. LEE, Mr. KILDEE, Ms. NORTON, Mrs. MEEK of Florida, Mr. TANCREDO, Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, Mr. WYNN, Mr. UPTON, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mr. KING, Mr. ROHRBACHER, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. TRAFICANT, Mr. BROWN of Ohio, Mr. ABERCROMBIE, Mr. FROST, and Mr. CANADY of Florida):

H. Con. Res. 75. A concurrent resolution condemning the National Islamic Front (NIF) government for its genocidal war in southern Sudan, support for terrorism, and continued human rights violations, and for other purposes; to the Committee on International Relations.

By Mr. SALMON:

H. Con. Res. 76. A concurrent resolution recognizing the social problem of child abuse and neglect, and supporting efforts to enhance public awareness of it; to the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

By Mr. SHOWS (for himself, Mr. LAMPSON, Ms. BERKLEY, Mr. SISISKY, Mr. ETHERIDGE, Mr. MOORE, Mr. LAHOOD, Mr. GOODE, Mr. SANDLIN, Mr. HOLDEN, Mr. MALONEY of Connecticut, Ms. DANNER, Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi, Mr. BALDACCI, Ms. DELAURO, Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island, Mr. ENGLISH, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. OLVER, Mr. PICKERING, Mr. DINGELL, Mr. FROST, Mr. BLILEY, Mr. COSTELLO, Mr. SHERMAN, Mr. CLEMENT, Mr. SPRATT, Mr. GUTIERREZ, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. FILNER, Ms. LOFGREN, Mr. THOMPSON of California, Mr. BUYER, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. QUINN, Mr. ROMERO-BARCELO, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. BERMAN, Mr. SNYDER, Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi, Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin, Mr. LEWIS of Georgia, Mr. BARR of Georgia, Mr. HILL of Indiana, Mr. HINCHEY, Ms. KILPATRICK, and Ms. MCKINNEY):

H. Con. Res. 77. A concurrent resolution expressing the sense of the Congress that a commemorative postage stamp should be issued by the United States Postal Service honoring the members of the Armed Forces who have been awarded the Purple Heart; to the Committee on Government Reform.

By Mr. COX (for himself and Mr. DICKS):

H. Res. 129. A resolution extending the Select Committee on U.S. National Security and Military/Commercial Concerns With the People's Republic of China; to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. SPENCE:

H. Res. 130. A resolution expressing the support of the House of Representatives for the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; considered and agreed to.

By Mr. GEJDENSON:

H. Res. 132. A resolution expressing the support of the House of Representatives for the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; to the Committee on International Relations, and in addition to the Committee on Armed Services, for a period to be subsequently determined by the Speaker, in each case for consideration of such provisions as fall within the jurisdiction of the committee concerned.

ADDITIONAL SPONSORS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were added to public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 51: Mr. FOLEY.

H.R. 52: Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania, Mr. MASCARA, Mr. ENGLISH, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. MURTHA, Mr. McNULTY, Mr. MEEHAN, Mr. LAFALCE, Mr. CRANE, Mr. GUTIERREZ, Mr. FROST, Mr. ENGEL, Mr. UNDERWOOD, Mr. STARK, Mr. ABERCROMBIE, Mr. KING, Mr. HOFFFEL, Mr. HOLDEN, Mr. BALDACCI, Ms. PELOSI, Mr. LOBIONDO, Mr. TIERNEY, Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. DINGELL, Mr. SERRANO, Ms. LEE, Mr. LAMPSON, Mr. COYNE, Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, Mr. BORSKI, Mrs. CHRISTENSEN, Mr. KANJORSKI, Mr. GREENWOOD, Ms. SANCHEZ, Mr. BASS, Mr. DIXON, Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. JEFFERSON, Mr. GOODLING, and Mr. FARR of California.

H.R. 66: Ms. BERKLEY and Mr. BILBRAY.

H.R. 82: Mr. FORBES and Mr. CANADY of Florida.

H.R. 86: Mr. CALLAHAN, Mr. SHOWS, Mr. BARRETT of Nebraska, and Mr. BALLENGER.

H.R. 110: Mr. BONIOR, Mr. DICKS, Mr. ENGLE, Mr. PALLONE, Mr. POMEROY, Mr. DEFAZIO, Mr. BOYD, Mr. BORSKI, and Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island.

H.R. 133: Mr. LOBIONDO, Mr. ROTHMAN, Mr. GARY MILLER of California, and Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin.

H.R. 150: Mr. GARY MILLER of California.

H.R. 170: Mr. CLYBURN, Mr. LIPINSKI, Mr. ENGEL, Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. SHERMAN, and Mr. DIXON.

H.R. 218: Mr. BARTLETT of Maryland, Mr. WATKINS, Mr. SAXTON, Mr. WAMP, and Mr. SPENCE.

H.R. 325: Mr. ALLEN, Mrs. MALONEY of New York, Ms. MCKINNEY, and Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi.

H.R. 347: Mr. SPENCE.

H.R. 355: Mr. GOODLING, Mr. FORBES, Ms. KILPATRICK, Mr. MEEKS of New York, and Ms. MCKINNEY.

H.R. 371: Mr. MORAN of Virginia and Mr. OBEY.

H.R. 407: Mr. RAHALL, Mr. HILLEARY, and Mr. STUMP.

H.R. 423: Mr. HILL of Montana.

H.R. 443: Mr. KENNEDY of Rhode Island, Mr. CAPUANO, Mr. EVANS, and Ms. LOFGREN.

H.R. 461: Mr. PICKERING.

H.R. 488: Mr. PALLONE.

H.R. 491: Mr. KLECZKA.

H.R. 500: Mr. BONILLA.

H.R. 501: Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Ms. PRYCE of Ohio, and Mr. INSLEE.

H.R. 523: Mr. PASCRELL.

H.R. 528: Mr. SCHAFFER.

H.R. 534: Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas.

H.R. 573: Mr. LARSON, Mr. DICKS, Mr. FARR of California, Mr. BARCIA, Mr. DOYLE, Mr. MARKEY, Mr. HASTERT, Mr. LUCAS of Kentucky, Mr. MARTINEZ, Mr. MOAKLEY, Mr. STENHOLM, Mr. WU, Mr. BECERRA, Mr. BURR of North Carolina, Mr. HINOJOSA, Mr. KLECZKA, Mr. KLINK, Mr. MURTHA, Mr. MATSUI, Mr. BAIRD, Mr. LUTHER, Mr. DIAZ-BALART, Mr. MOLLOHAN, Mr. FOLEY, Mr. ENGLISH, Mr. DOGGETT, and Mr. GILCHREST.

H.R. 574: Mr. METCALF.

H.R. 580: Mr. RANGEL.

H.R. 584: Mr. GUTKNECHT.

H.R. 590: Mr. SCHAFFER.

H.R. 610: Mrs. TAUSCHER.

H.R. 612: Mr. BONIOR and Mr. FARR of California.

H.R. 614: Mr. GANSKE.

H.R. 625: Mr. EVANS.

H.R. 670: Mr. HULSHOF and Mr. BASS.

H.R. 691: Ms. KILPATRICK.

H.R. 692: Mr. TALENT.

H.R. 693: Mr. HULSHOF.

H.R. 697: Mr. LINDER, Mr. DICKEY, Mr. RYUN of Kansas, Mr. JONES of North Carolina, and Mr. GARY MILLER of California.

H.R. 719: Mr. GILCHREST.

H.R. 732: Mr. BOUCHER, Mr. PHELPS, Mr. HOFFFEL, Mr. EVANS, Mr. ENGEL, Mr. NADLER, Mr. HINCHEY, Mr. UDALL of Colorado, and Mr. LIPINSKI.

H.R. 741: Mr. GARY MILLER of California.

H.R. 746: Mr. KLECZKA.

H.R. 750: Mrs. TAUSCHER.

H.R. 765: Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. STUMP, Mr. PICKERING, Mr. TRAFICANT, Mr. NETHERCUTT, Mr. ETHERIDGE, and Mr. BLUMENAUER.

H.R. 766: Mr. NUSSLE.

H.R. 772: Mr. GREEN of Texas, Mr. DIXON, and Ms. VELAZQUEZ.

H.R. 789: Mr. HINCHEY.

H.R. 797: Mr. FROST.

H.R. 798: Ms. LOFGREN, Ms. CARSON, Mr. CAPUANO, and Mr. MARTINEZ.

H.R. 815: Mr. ADERHOLT.

H.R. 832: Mrs. LOWEY.

H.R. 833: Mr. BURR of North Carolina, Mr. NEY, and Mr. SANDLIN.

H.R. 846: Ms. BERKLEY.

H.R. 847: Mrs. MINK of Hawaii, Mrs. THURMAN, Mr. FROST, and Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi.

H.R. 851: Mr. DICKEY, Mr. MOORE, Mr. PETRI, Mr. NEY, Mr. BURTON of Indiana, Mr. CALVERT, Mr. YOUNG of Alaska, Mr. THOMPSON of California, Mr. ADERHOLT, Mr. MINGE, Mr. TRAFICANT, and Mr. HINCHEY.

H.R. 860: Mr. HASTINGS of Florida and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.

H.R. 870: Mr. WICKER.

H.R. 894: Mr. LEWIS of Kentucky.

H.R. 922: Mr. LARGENT, Mr. PAUL, Mr. FORBES, and Mr. NUSSLE.

H.R. 925: Mrs. EMERSON.

H.R. 937: Mr. GARY MILLER of California.

H.R. 958: Ms. WOOLSEY and Mr. HOFFFEL.

H.R. 961: Ms. KILPATRICK.

H.R. 964: Mr. GILMAN and Mr. BOEHLERT.

H.R. 976: Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, Mr. CLAY, Mr. CUMMINGS, Mr. BOEHLERT, Mr. FOLEY, Mr. COOK, Ms. BERKLEY, Ms. PRYCE of Ohio, Mr. REYES, Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas, Mr. PITTS, and Mr. PRICE of North Carolina.

H.R. 987: Mr. SENSENBRENNER, Mrs. CHENOWETH, Mr. TANCREDO, Mr. GARY MILLER of California, Mr. HILL of Montana, Mr. HOBSON, Mr. COLLINS, Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, Mr. GOODLATTE, Mr. HILLEARY, Mr. ARCHER, Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin, Mr. MCINNIS, and Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina.

H.R. 1008: Mr. DELAHUNT, Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. NETHERCUTT, and Ms. MCKINNEY.

H.R. 1036: Mrs. BONO.

H.R. 1042: Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. NUSSLE, and Mr. NETHERCUTT.

H.R. 1044: Mr. MORAN of Kansas.

H.R. 1048: Ms. BROWN of Florida.

H.R. 1053: Mr. TIERNEY and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.

H.R. 1063: Mr. DAVIS of Illinois, Mr. BONIOR, Ms. NORTON, Mrs. MORELLA, Ms. KILPATRICK, Mr. WAXMAN, Mr. TOWNS, and Mr. MEEHAN.

H.R. 1071: Ms. KILPATRICK and Mr. PALLONE.

H.R. 1080: Ms. BERKLEY and Mr. HINCHEY.

H.R. 1082: Mr. LOBIONDO.

H.R. 1116: Mr. FROST and Mr. BRADY of Texas.

H.R. 1139: Mr. BENTSEN, Mr. CLYBURN, Mr. HOFFFEL, Mr. HINOJOSA, Ms. MCCARTHY of Missouri, and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.

H.R. 1145: Mrs. FOWLER.

H.R. 1146: Mr. SESSIONS.

H.R. 1160: Mr. MCINTOSH, Mr. HOLDEN, Ms. MCKINNEY, Ms. BERKLEY, Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts, and Mr. FARR of California.

H.R. 1195: Mr. SAM JOHNSON of Texas, Mrs. JOHNSON of Connecticut, and Mr. FRANKS of New Jersey.

H.R. 1214: Mr. FROST and Ms. SCHAKOWSKY.

H.R. 1217: Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas and Mr. CROWLEY.

H.J. Res. 34: Mr. KLINK.

H. Con. Res. 6: Mr. LANTOS.

H. Con. Res. 14: Mr. SISISKY, Mrs. THURMAN, and Mr. GOODLING.

H. Con. Res. 30: Mr. HILLEARY.

H. Res. 15: Mr. CONYERS.

H. Res. 41: Mr. KLINK, Ms. MCKINNEY, and Mr. McNULTY.

H. Res. 82: Mr. SANDERS.

H. Res. 97: Mr. MCGOVERN, Mr. BRADY of Pennsylvania, and Mr. KUCINICH.

H. Res. 106: Mr. TAYLOR of North Carolina, Mr. MEEKS of New York, Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon, Mr. MORAN of Virginia, Mr. HINCHEY, Mr. KILDEE, Ms. DANNER, Mrs. MINK of Hawaii, and Mr. PICKERING.

H. Res. 128: Mr. NEAL of Massachusetts.

DELETIONS OF SPONSORS FROM PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Under clause 7 of rule XII, sponsors were deleted from public bills and resolutions as follows:

H.R. 1150: Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California.

H.J. Res. 37: Mr. PORTER.

United States
of America

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, FIRST SESSION

Vol. 145

WASHINGTON, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 24, 1999

No. 47

Senate

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore (Mr. THURMOND).

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Today's prayer will be offered by a guest Chaplain, Father Robert J. Sweeney, National Chaplain of the American Legion, Greenwood Lake, NY.

PRAYER

The guest Chaplain, Father Robert J. Sweeney, National Chaplain of the American Legion, Greenwood Lake, NY, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray:

God of our fathers; throughout the history of this great and glorious Nation, our leaders have turned to You for guidance. On bended knee, from Bunker Hill to Gettysburg, our leaders have called upon Your consoling presence. Help us to realize that our Nation has been consecrated to Your service. Aware of the obligation that goes hand in hand with this responsibility, may we help all those in need.

We acknowledge that we are "one Nation under God." We seek Your righteousness. Stretch forth Your healing wings that we might follow Your example of healing and stretch forth our hands in a generous spirit, as we have heard: "It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20:35.

Omnipotent Father, be with the women and men of this Senate. Grant unto them Your grace; open their hearts and minds that they may hear the needs of their constituents and respond for the common good of all.

Send Your Spirit upon us and take away our doubts and fears that we might join together, without regard to political affiliations. Bless our Senators. May they be prudent and wise and ever aware of Your presence. May they always advance the cause of peace with justice throughout the world. Amen.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The able senior Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the distinguished President.

SCHEDULE

Mr. DOMENICI. On behalf of the majority leader, I would like to make the following announcement.

This morning, the Senate will begin consideration of S. Con. Res. 20, the budget resolution, with up to 35 hours for debate. Members should expect the next couple of days of session to be longer than usual, with rollcall votes beginning early each morning and continuing late into the evening. The cooperation of all Senators will be necessary in order for the Senate to complete its work prior to the beginning of the Easter recess. Senators who plan to offer amendments to the budget resolution should contact the managers of the bill in order to facilitate a smooth and orderly process during the consideration of the resolution.

I thank colleagues in advance for their cooperation.

Mr. President, yesterday my good friend, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, asked if he might make a statement this morning that he considers very important, historically. I yield the floor to let him make that statement. I yield him as much time as he desires.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I am grateful to my friend from New Mexico.

10TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE "EXXON VALDEZ" OIL SPILL

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, today is the 10th anniversary of the Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska.

I want to use this opportunity to reflect on the impact that disaster had on the land and people of my State.

I still remember traveling to Alaska to view the damage caused by the Exxon Valdez in Prince William Sound.

Believe me, Mr. President, it is a sight I never want to see again.

At that time, I referred to the huge oil slick battering against the shoreline as "the black blanket of the Exxon Valdez."

And while that spill caused serious damage to our wildlife, our environment and our people, that black blanket has had somewhat of a silver lining.

I refer to the Oil Pollution Act of 1990—OPA '90.

Congress and the Department of Defense are currently looking at implementing a "national missile defense system" to protect the United States from incoming ballistic missiles.

I consider OPA '90 to be the "National Oil Spill Defense System" that protects the United States from future oil spills.

OPA '90, as many Senators will recall, was signed into law on August 18, 1990.

It is important to note that OPA '90 has not been significantly revised since 1990—and at present, there has not been any push for comprehensive revisions.

It is a testament to the act itself that it has not needed major revisions.

Some of the provisions of OPA '90 were under consideration prior to 1989, but unfortunately, it took the Exxon Valdez spill to bring about a comprehensive approach to our national system of oil spill prevention and response.

Congress enacted OPA '90 only 17 months after the spill—a very short period of time given the scope of the legislation.

That landmark piece of legislation created a new national framework that focuses on both the prevention of spills and the response to spills.

It was written to reduce the chances we will ever have another spill of the magnitude of the Valdez—anywhere.

That act, and the actions it mandates, has already vastly improved the response system for lesser spills.

On a national level, OPA '90—

(1) Required the phase-in of double-hull oil tankers—which has begun and will be completed by the year 2015;

• This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Printed on recycled paper.

S3159

(2) Required improvements to vessel traffic systems and to vessel communications and warning equipment;

(3) Brought about stringent background checks and manning standards for tank vessels;

(4) Required the United States to seek better international oil spill prevention and response measures;

(5) Clearly defined the liability of tank vessel owners and operators;

(6) Required the creation of a national contingency plan and response system, as well as area contingency and response plans.

These prevention measures are vitally important if we are to ensure the safe transportation of oil in our waters.

As a result of OPA '90 spill response equipment must be pre-positioned in strategic locations all over the country.

By doing this, we greatly increase the response time for a future oil spill, God forbid it ever happens again.

The national and area contingency plans required by OPA '90 are the primary reason the response to oil spills has become so quick.

Unlike when the Valdez disaster occurred, if a spill occurs today, it should be literally a matter of minutes before a response plan is executed.

By requiring contingency plans, OPA '90 forces planning for potential spills in a comprehensive manner.

A large part of the credit for the implementation of the new plans should go to the Coast Guard and I have commended it for the tremendous work it has done in the past 10 years in developing the national and area plans.

In addition to the national measures put in place by OPA '90, it contained a number of measures specific to Alaska and Prince William Sound.

The act required the installation of a marker and light on Bligh Reef.

It required tankers in Prince William Sound to be escorted by at least two tugs and to have two local pilots on their bridge.

It required the creation of a vessel traffic system for Prince William Sound—including an alarm system to warn if vessels deviate from the designated navigation routes.

It prevents the Exxon Valdez tanker from ever entering Alaska water again—no matter what name it sails under or how many structural improvements it undergoes.

While this provision is largely symbolic, it goes to the heart of how Alaskans feel about the disaster and our state.

We take pride in keeping our environment and wildlife clean and safe, and we expect visitors to our state to do the same.

In addition to the regulatory requirements set forth in OPA '90, the act created two regional citizens' advisory councils.

These councils give Alaskans a voice in the development of oil spill prevention and contingency measures.

Over the past 10 years these councils provided dialogue allowing Alaskans and the oil industry to work beyond differences in a positive manner.

The main goal of all parties involved is the prevention of further disasters.

That is the only true way to ensure that we never have to clean oil off Alaska beaches again.

I have thanked the many Alaskans who have served on the regional citizens' advisory councils for the improvements they have helped bring into being.

They could have turned their backs on the oil industry, but they deserve a great deal of credit for choosing to work with the industry rather than trying to make a bad situation worse.

OPA '90 also required the creation of the oil spill recovery institute in Cordova.

The institute's mission is to evaluate the long term effects of the Exxon Valdez oil spill on the environment and the people and animals of Prince William Sound—and to refine the world's knowledge about arctic and subarctic oil spills.

Incidentally Mr. President, I have been to that institute in Cordova, and I must say that they are doing great things, and I encourage them to keep up the good work.

It took a number of years to secure the funding for the institute, but in 1996 we managed to create a dedicated fund.

For a 10 year period that began in 1996, the Oil Spill Recovery Institute will receive the annual interest from $22.5 million that is currently on deposit in the Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund.

The Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund was a centerpiece of OPA '90.

The law made "responsible parties" liable for the costs of cleaning up oil spills.

As you know, Mr. President, it is not always possible to obtain clean-up funds from responsible parties in time to adequately respond to spills.

The Oil Spill Liability Trust Fund was created to ensure that funds are available to respond to oil spills in the United States.

This is another area where the Coast Guard deserves credit for its superb efforts in recovering costs from responsible parties.

You will be glad to know that many of the species negatively affected by the oil spill are making a strong comeback.

Mother nature is responding.

I am pleased with the environmental efforts and the progress made in putting new prevention measures in place.

It is my hope that one day my grandchildren will be able to ask me "Grandpa, what's an oil spill?"

I think OPA '90, and the efforts of everyone involved in the oil industry, will help to bring about that wish.

Mr. President, I do not normally come before the Senate to talk about a terrible day, but I come today to talk in the spirit of remembrance. As I said, this is the 10th anniversary of the Exxon Valdez oilspill in my State. I want to use this opportunity to reflect on the impact that disaster had upon the people of my State and on Prince William Sound.

I remember that was just the beginning of the Easter recess and I had left for vacation with my family when I got that call that told me of this disaster, and I had to fight to get reservations to get back, but I did get back to my State. I flew to Prince William Sound to view the damage that was there. I had talked to my good friend, former Senator Henry Bellmon, Governor of Oklahoma, about that, and asked him if he had any advice. He said find some way to burn it.

I went down to the Valdez to see if there was something I might do to encourage that, following that advice. At the time I flew down by helicopter with the Commandant of the Coast Guard, Admiral Yost. We flew over a sickening black blanket on the Nation's largest inland sound. Prince William Sound is a place where I have spent a lot of time, fishing and traveling with friends. It is a beautiful place. Yet that day, that black blanket oozing out of the Exxon Valdez left a memory I shall never forget. That spill caused serious damage to our wildlife, to our environment, and to our people. It is hard, today, to remember anything except that great tragedy.

The wind kept spreading that oil. As a matter of fact, I flew up to Alaska with our friend, the oceanographer from the University of Alaska, Mr. Royer, who told me what was going to happen. He predicted correctly that that oil would go out of the Prince William Sound and start down the Aleutian chain. If it went through the pass in the chain, it was going to cause enormous damage to the breeding grounds for Alaska's fisheries.

It was a sad day, and I come today with a feeling of sadness.

In view of all the publicity that has been given to this terrible tragedy, I also want to talk about what I call the silver lining that came as a result of that spill. That silver lining was the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. We call it OPA '90. Congress and the Department of Defense are currently looking at implementing a national missile defense system to protect the United States from incoming ballistic missiles. I consider OPA '90 to be the national oilspill defense system that protects our Nation from future oilspills.

It was as a result of the terrible tragedy in our State that Congress enacted these provisions. As many Senators here will recall, that law was signed on August 18, 1990. It has not been revised since that time. I do not know of any push for any revisions. That is a testament to that act in itself, that it has not needed major revisions in this period.

Some of the provisions of OPA '90 were under consideration prior to that act, but unfortunately, they had no impetus. It took the Exxon Valdez disaster to bring about a comprehensive approach to our national system of oil-spill prevention and response. We enacted that bill just 17 months after the spill, really a very short time, given the scope of the legislation.

This landmark piece of legislation created a new national framework that focuses on both prevention of spills and response to spills. It was written to reduce the chances that we will ever have another spill of the magnitude of the Valdez anywhere under the American flag. That act, and the actions it mandates, has already vastly improved the response to lesser spills.

I want to point out some of the things it has done. We have greatly increased the response time—that is, decreased the time it takes—we have increased the ability to respond in time to spills that may take place in our waters. As a result of that act, we have spill response equipment pre-positioned in strategic locations all over the Nation. The national and area contingency plans required by OPA '90 are the primary reasons the response to oilspills has become so quick. Unlike when the Valdez disaster occurred, if a spill occurs today, it should literally be a matter of minutes before a plan is put into effect and executed. By requiring contingency plans in advance, OPA '90 forces planning for potential spills in a comprehensive manner.

Mr. President, the main goal of all parties involved in that act was the prevention of future disasters. That is the only true way we can ensure that we will keep the beaches in Alaska and throughout our Nation free of oil.

I have thanked many Alaskans who have served on the regional citizens advisory councils for the improvements they have helped bring into being.

Mr. President, at my request, that act was amended to assure that there would be specific Alaska provisions in it. In addition to the national measures put into place by OPA '90, it contained, at my request, a number of measures specific to Prince William Sound in Alaska. It required the installation of a marker and light on Bligh Reef. It required tankers in Prince William Sound to be escorted by at least two tugs and to have two local pilots on the bridge. It required the creation of a vessel traffic control system for Prince William Sound, including an alarm system to warn if vessels deviated from the routes they had designated at the time they left the pier.

It prevents the Exxon Valdez tanker from ever entering Alaskan waters again, no matter what name it sails under or how many structural improvements it undergoes. That provision is largely symbolic, but it goes to the heart of how Alaskans feel about that disaster.

The only true way to ensure that we will never have to clean Alaskan oil off Alaska beaches again is to implement the plans and maintain the systems that OPA '90 requires.

I hope that the Nation will not lose heart, that it will continue to fund the facilities and the pre-positioned equipment that we require. For a 10-year period that began in 1996, we have created in Alaska an Oilspill Recovery Institute in Cordova. We also have an oil-spill lab with a trust fund created to assure that funds are available to respond to oilspills throughout the United States.

Let me close by saying that I want to report to the Senate that many of the species that were affected by the oil-spill are making a strong comeback. Mother Nature in the sound is responding. The environmental efforts that we have made and the progress we have made with putting into effect the new prevention measures have, in fact, deterred future spills.

It is my hope that one day one of my grandchildren will ask me, Grandpa, what is an oilspill? I believe that we have gone a long way to making oilspills of the magnitude that I saw 10 years ago today a memory. I hope it remains a memory.

Mr. President, I thank my friend for yielding.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. AL-LARD). Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now proceed to consideration of S. Con. Res. 20, which the clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 20) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal years 2000 through 2009.

The Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the staff of the Senate Budget Committee, including fellows and detailees named on the list that I send to the desk, be permitted to remain on the Senate floor during consideration of S. Con. Res. 20.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask unanimous consent the list be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the list was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

STAFF LIST: SENATE COMMITTEE ON THE BUDGET

MAJORITY STAFF

Amy Call.
Jim Capretta.
Winnie Chang.
Lisa Cieplak.
Allen Cutler.
Larry Dye.
Beth Felder.

Rachel Forward.
Alice Grant.
Jim Hearn.
Bill Hoagland.
Carole McGuire.
Mieko Nakabayashi.
Maureen O'Neill.
Kristin Omberg.
Cheri Reidy.
Brian Riley.
Amy Smith.
Bob Stevenson.
Marc Sumerlin.
Winslow Wheeler.
Sandra Wiseman.
Gary Ziehe.

MINORITY STAFF

Amy Abraham.
Claudia Arko.
Jim Esquea.
Dan Katz.
Bruce King.
Lisa Konwinski.
Martin Morris.
Jon Rosenwasser.
Paul Seltman.
Jeff Siegel.
Barry Strumpf.
Mitch Warren.

ADMINISTRATIVE STAFF

Kelly Creighton.
Alex Green.
Sahand Sarshar.
Lamar Staples.
Lynne Seymour.
George Woodall.

Mr. DOMENICI. On behalf of Senator LAUTENBERG, I ask unanimous consent that Sue Nelson and Ted Zegers be granted the privilege of the floor during consideration of the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask consent the privilege of the floor be granted to the following members of my staff, of the Budget Committee staff on the Republican side: Austin Smythe and Anne Miller.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the presence and use of small electronic calculators be permitted on the floor of the Senate during consideration of the fiscal year 2000 concurrent resolution on the budget.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I assume we are now on the resolution and time is now running under the 35 hours that remain.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am quite sure my friend Senator LAUTENBERG would concur that we all know, more or less, what the issues are. We have gone through the Budget Committee and most of the major issues have been debated there and amendments offered—some accepted, some failed. I don't think there is really any reason we cannot finish at a reasonable time and take this recess if Senators on both sides cooperate.

I urge that on my side also. There is tentatively, on my side—I know when we talk to them that it is not going to remain this way, but they are talking about 30 or 40 amendments, almost all of which are sense-of-the-Senate amendments. We will never get out of here if that happens. Normally the minority has about twice as many. So add that up and we will have 120. We could just start voting now and we would not go home for the recess. So I urge we consider our own well-being and what is really necessary to get this job done.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I am constrained to say to the Senator from New Mexico, I thought I had problems on the supplemental bill.

To hear about this number of amendments is staggering.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am going to attend a hearing for about 25 or 30 minutes, and we will have a Budget Committee Senator down very shortly. In the meantime, Senator STEVENS is given whatever privileges I have.

I yield to Senator THURMOND as much time as he desires. I will give him that time off the bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Carolina.

BAD NATIONAL DEFENSE POLICY

Mr. THURMOND. Mr. President, bad national defense policy is about to get us into serious trouble—again. As I speak, United States Armed Forces are in direct danger because they are being used as social workers in a very dangerous country—Haiti. Most Americans will be greatly surprised that I am saying the United States Army is still in Haiti. Why are most Americans surprised? Because it has been more than 4 years since the September day in 1994 when the President sent a force of 20,000 troops to this island. Despite what the United States did in Haiti, not much has changed, except that the United States force has become tiny and in a great peril. No elected official has been able to bring peace or democracy to Haiti. Factional fighting has immobilized the government and stymied efforts at economic recovery. The factionalism has provoked assassinations and bombings reminiscent of the bad old days.

Fortunately, Congress has been put on-call by a voice of honesty coming from our uniformed ranks. Last month, General Wilhelm, Commander of the U.S. Southern Command, directly and honestly described the mounting danger surrounding his troops. The 500 United States military personnel left to help prop up Haiti are doing mostly social work and spending much of their time defending themselves from attack. Let me be clear about what kinds of work our troops in Haiti are doing. They are not fighting an enemy. They are involved in tasks like digging wells, providing medical services, and training police and military officers. Such work might be understandable if it contributed to stability. It is not. The 500 United States troops still in Haiti spend much of their energy just trying to protect themselves against those they came to help. Unfortunately, it is now difficult for the administration to accept a clearheaded understanding of these dire circumstances and call for a pullout. Doing so will concede the failure of a peacekeeping mission regularly touted as one of the shining achievements of recent years.

The list of the administration's failed peace missions is long and growing. I am unconvinced that trying to resuscitate these failed nation-states is in the U.S. vital interest. The costs of U.S. involvement in peacekeeping are not in our national interests and should be reduced. The price tag of the Bosnia mission, for example, has already hit $12 billion, with no end in sight. Haiti has cost more than $2 billion. However, today the 500 soldiers in Haiti—mostly Army reservists rotating through on short-term assignments—remain in Haiti at a cost of about $20 million last year.

The question is simple: Is it in the United States' best interest to have our troops in imminent danger, preoccupied with defending themselves against people whom they have come to help, who have shown little inclination for reform at a cost of $20 million annually to America? This is the path down which the administration has taken the United States. We are now involved in a steady run of civil wars without clear solutions which involve failed nation-states. We will soon drown in this kind of foolishness. Stemming civil wars should not be the main strategic challenge for the United States. These kinds of misadventures do not really engage the strategic interest of the United States. Certainly, such ill-conceived adventures do arrogantly endanger our troops.

Because of this, I call on the administration to swiftly withdraw the 500 service men and women who are currently in Haiti.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. STEVENS. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VOINOVICH). Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

The Senate continued with the consideration of the concurrent resolution.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, today we begin our annual pilgrimage to establishing a budget for the next fiscal year. The first year of the new millennium is almost upon us, and we are moving at a fairly rapid pace to get this budget into place, as contrasted to some of the experiences we have had in the past. I commend our chairman, Senator DOMENICI, for his lending the urgency that he has to getting this job underway.

Lest it be misunderstood, Mr. President, that does not mean I agree with everything that we have come up with. But we are moving the ball, as they say, and we will have a chance to amend or debate the budget resolution as it passed the Budget Committee.

As we begin our work on a budget for a new century and a new era in our Nation's economic history, we do it with the knowledge and the satisfaction that at long last, America has put its fiscal house in order.

At the same time, we still face serious long-term questions. The key question facing Congress is whether we meet those challenges and prepare for the future, or whether we will yield to short-term temptation at tomorrow's expense.

Democrats are committed to focusing on the future. Our top priority is to save Medicare and save Social Security for the long term by reducing our debt and increasing national savings. We also want to provide targeted tax relief for those who need it most, and that is the average middle-class family in America. We want to invest in education and other priorities.

Our friends, the Republicans, have a different view. Their plan focuses on tax breaks, largely for the wealthy. These tax breaks, whose costs would increase dramatically in the future, would absorb resources that are needed to preserve and to save Medicare.

That, when you get right down to it, is really the main issue before the Senate: Should we provide tax cuts, many of which will benefit the wealthy, or use that money to save Medicare? It is as simple as that.

Of course, there is a lot more to the budget resolution before us, so let me take some time to explain why I, like every other Democratic member of the Budget Committee, strongly opposed this resolution. There are four primary reasons.

First, as I have suggested, it fails to guarantee a single extra dollar for Medicare. Instead, it diverts the funds needed for Medicare to pay for tax cuts that, again, benefit the wealthy fairly generously.

Second, it does nothing to extend the solvency of the Social Security trust fund. In fact, it could block President Clinton's proposed transfer of surplus funds to help extend solvency.

Third, I think it is fiscally dangerous. The resolution proposes tax cuts that begin small but that explode in the future. Some are around $13 billion in the first year the budget goes into place, up to $180 billion—$177 billion—expected in the tenth year, just when the baby boomers are beginning to retire.

And fourth, it proposes extreme and unrealistic cuts in domestic programs. These could devastate public services if enacted. More likely, Congress, in my view, is going to be unable to pass appropriations bills, and we will face a crisis at the end of this year that could lead to a complete Government shutdown.

I want to address each of these problems in turn, Mr. President.

Medicare's hospital insurance trust fund is now expected to become insolvent in the year 2008. It is critical that we address this problem and we do it soon. We need to modernize and reform the program to make it function more efficiently, but it is clear that also we will need additional resources.

As part of an overall solution, President Clinton proposed allocating 15 percent of projected unified budget surpluses for Medicare. This would extend the solvency of the trust fund for another 12 years, to 2020. Unfortunately, the budget resolution rejects that proposal. Instead of using projected surpluses for Medicare, it uses almost all of them for tax cuts. The budget resolution does not specify the details of the tax cuts because they will be drafted later in the Finance Committee. However, the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator ROTH, has said recently that he wants to provide a 10-percent cut in tax rates.

Under that proposal, the top 1 percent of Americans with incomes over $300,000, and average incomes of more than $800,000, would get a tax cut of more than $20,000. And those in the bottom 60 percent, incomes under $38,000, would wind up with $99, less than 100 bucks.

Other major GOP proposals for tax cuts, which involve estate taxes and capital gains taxes, are similarly regressive and unfair. Giving away disproportionate tax breaks to the wealthy would be bad enough, but the GOP tax breaks would come at the direct expense of Medicare, and that is wrong.

Under the Republican plan, not one penny of projected surpluses is guaranteed for Medicare. The resolution does reserve about $100 billion for unspecified uses over 10 years. But that is far less than the $350 billion the President wants for Medicare over 10 years. More importantly, none of the $100 billion is actually reserved for Medicare.

In fact, the chairman indicated that this amount may be used for unexpected emergencies or contingencies, and those alone could easily use up all this money. Emergency spending averages $9 billion a year, more than the resolution's annual reserve for each of the next 5 years. Even over 10 years, we can expect to consume at least 90 percent of this projected reserve to respond to emergencies.

Mr. President, the Republican refusal to provide additional resources for Medicare would have a direct impact on the millions of Americans who will depend on Medicare for their health services in the future. The resolution almost certainly would mean higher health care costs, higher copayments for the individuals, their share of the bill, higher deductibles—that means it does not kick in until the levels of costs directly to the individual have risen—and potentially lower quality health care services, and probably fewer hospitals, all because the majority insists on providing huge tax breaks for wealthier Americans.

Beyond Medicare, the second major problem with the Republican resolution is that it does nothing to extend the solvency of the Social Security trust fund. Currently, Social Security is projected to become insolvent by the year 2032. President Clinton is determined to extend the solvency until 2075 and has proposed specific policies to get us to the year 2055, as certified by Social Security actuaries.

The Republicans have been critical of the President's proposals to invest some of the Social Security funds in the private market and to transfer debt held by the public to the trust fund. Unfortunately, they propose nothing to increase the resources available to Social Security. In fact, their resolution is specifically designed to block the President's proposed transfer of surplus funds for Social Security.

The bottom line, when it comes to Social Security, is clear. President Clinton's budget extends solvency through the year 2055. The Republican plan does not add a single day of security.

The third major problem with the resolution is that it is fiscally risky. The resolution calls only for small tax cuts in the first year or two. But the cost of those tax cuts explode in the future. And by 2009, as I said earlier, when the baby boomers will begin retiring, the tax cuts will drain the Treasury of more than $180 billion in that year. That is not fiscal responsibility.

The final problem with the Republican plan is that it includes extreme cuts in programs for Americans here at home. Total nondefense discretionary programs—to be absolutely clear, the discretionary programs include defense and nondefense—total nondefense discretionary programs would be cut in the first year from $266 billion in the current year, not including emergency spending, to $246 billion in the year 2000.

One does not have to be a mathematician to recognize that is a significant change—from $266 billion to $246 billion in 1 year. Arithmetically, it looks like a 7.5-percent cut—and that does not sound like a lot—but the real cut in most programs would be much deeper. And I assure you that 7.5-percent cut, at a minimum, is a very significant, painful exercise for those who are depending on some of our Government programs. And I am not talking about wasteful programs; I am talking about fundamental programs like WIC and border guards and FBI agents and DEA agents.

Keep in mind, the resolution claims to increase or maintain funding for a handful of favored programs, like new courthouses, TEA 21, our transportation program, for the next 6 years, the census, National Institutes of Health, and some crime and education programs. Those are the protected programs.

That leaves the other unprotected programs facing cuts of about 11 percent—everything from environmental protection to the national parks, the FAA, the Coast Guard, the Immigration and Naturalization Service Border Patrol, FBI, NASA, job training, and Head Start. These are successful and important programs.

When we say that these cuts are going to be 11 percent in the first year, that is being pretty conservative, because we are ignoring the fact that the cuts increase significantly in the future to 27 percent in the year 2004, a 27-percent cut for the American people.

Just to put the picture straight, imagine a 27-percent cut in wages, a 27-percent cut in spending power. It would be an awful tragedy for most families.

Second, the 11-percent figure that we talked about in the first year represents a cut from 1999 levels. To make it clear, our fiscal year ends September 30 for 1999; and on October 1 we kick in with the budget for the year 2000. That does not anticipate any inflation impact.

Thirdly, there is another problem with the Republican budget. It significantly underestimates the outlays that would flow from its present levels of defense appropriations. If those outlays are estimated to be consistent with historical levels, the cuts in nondefense discretionary outlays would be as high as 21 percent in the first year.

I know that we are talking about a lot of different changes in the percentages. But it looks like the minimum could be 11 percent, and we could be looking at a figure as high as 27 percent in the nondefense discretionary programs.

Mr. President, I am going to give our Republican friends, the majority, the benefit of the doubt. I am going to, for the moment, not talk about the deeper cuts in the outyears. I am going to leave out, ignore, the effects of inflation. And I am not even going to consider this dramatic underestimate of defense outlays. I am going to start with this very conservative figure of 11 percent and consider what a cut of this magnitude would mean for domestic programs next year. Next year, again, starts October 1.

Here are a few examples, based on administration estimates:

That we would lose 2,700 FBI agents. I ask you, is this a time when it seems appropriate to be cutting back on FBI agents? When terrorism in this country is a real threat? When we are trying to stop crimes? We are adding crimes to the list of crimes that are going to be tried in Federal courts. So 2,700 FBI agents.

Thirteen hundred and fifty Border Patrol agents. We have heard from many of our colleagues, Republican and Democrat, who live in border States and talk about the problems they have from California, through New Mexico, through Arizona, Texas, about those who illegally cross the border, pleading for more help, pleading for an opportunity to contain this illegal immigration flow. We are talking about reducing Border Patrol agents to the tune of 1,350? How do our friends who represent those border States feel about this?

Drug agents: 780 DEA drug enforcement agents would be lost. Now, if there is a more distracting problem in our society than drugs, I don't know what it is. The overrunning of our young people by drug influences is something that we can't tolerate, that we search for solutions to, at our wit's end.

One thing we know: While having enough drug enforcement agents alone doesn't solve the problem, take them away and we will see what happens to the flow of illegal drugs into this country.

Ninety thousand, two hundred fewer workers, dislocated as a result of industry shifts, plant closings, et cetera, would receive training, job search assistance, and support services—90,000 people would be left without the training necessary to move to different job situations if their job is lost.

Thirty-four thousand low-income children would be without child care assistance.

Over 1.2 million low-income women, infants, and children would lose nutrition assistance every month. That program is commonly known as the WIC Program. It is a very effective program. In a country like ours, with the bounty that we have from lots of natural resources, industry progress, people who are skillful, intelligent, who are hard working, lots of people making money—we talk today about the billionaire class as we used to hear 40 years ago about the millionaire class—and we want to permit 1.2 million low-income women, infants, and children who need the nutritional assistance that this program offers to lose it? I will not stand by and let that happen.

FAA operations: Our aviation industry is booming. People cannot get seats in lots of situations. What do we worry about? We have lots of delays, we have concerns about safety and security and the lack of critical modernization technologies. FAA operations would be cut by almost $700 million. If we think the delays are bad now, hold on to your seat, because they are going to get worse.

Safety: We will focus on safety to make sure things are maintained, but we also want to protect ourselves against possible terrorist attacks, keeping people off the airplanes to make us more secure.

On the environment, roughly 21 Superfund toxic waste sites would not be cleaned up as a result of these cuts. They needlessly jeopardize public health.

Up to 100,000 children would lose the opportunity to benefit from Head Start. Head Start is an early preschool program that gives children who are typically from a disadvantaged situation a chance to understand the learning process, to get incentives to learn, to understand that learning is fun, that knowledge is beneficial. Take away that from 100,000 children? I don't know how we can do it. I don't know how, with a clear conscience, we can say, "Go ahead, listen, too bad, take your chances." We know who pays the price. All of us pay the price. It is only a matter of when. It is much cheaper to give these kids a head start than to later deal with those who might turn to crime or drugs as a way to work their way up the social and economic ladder.

We would eliminate 73,000 training and summer job opportunities for young people.

As I earlier said, these are conservative figures, yet these types of cuts are clearly painful. In my view, they are dangerous. Unfortunately, under this resolution, the problem gets dramatically worse in later years. By the year 2004, the nondefense reductions grow to about 27 percent. Again, that doesn't include the effects of inflation nor any underestimation of defense outlays which loom large in front of us now. We have to wonder whether the Republicans are serious about cutting domestic programs by 27 percent. It is hard to believe, especially when there are virtually no details provided about where those cuts would fall.

Some Republicans have argued that these cuts are required because of the discretionary spending caps which remain in effect through the year 2002. That is not true. Much of the program for domestic programs is created because the resolution increases military spending by $18.2 billion over last year's level. Since all discretionary spending is now under a single cap—that is, defense and nondefense—that extra money must come directly from domestic programs.

President Clinton has also made it clear that we should increase funding for high-priority discretionary programs such as education and the military once we save Social Security. By contrast, the Republican plan establishes unrealistically low discretionary spending levels that would apply, regardless of whether we approve Social Security reform legislation.

Cutting domestic programs by 27 percent in 2004 is not realistic. When it comes to cutting specific programs, Congress almost certainly will not follow through. The votes won't be there to do it.

In other words, this budget resolution is a roadmap to gridlock. The results could be disastrous. If we can't pass appropriations bills, we face the prospect of yet another Government shutdown. Nobody wants that, of course, but it could happen.

Why, then, are we considering a budget resolution that even some Republicans admit can't be enacted into law? The answer is simple: They are desperate to claim that they are for tax cuts. They just don't have a clue on how to pay for them. They don't want to guarantee Medicare a single new dollar, but they are still not even close to identifying sufficient offsetting savings to pay for their tax cuts.

We are left with a budget that deals with fantasy, a budget that everybody knows isn't going to be worth the paper it is written on. In the end, there is only one way out. The majority party, the Republicans, have to get real. They can't continue to insist on huge tax cuts if they are not willing to pay for them.

So, in sum, Mr. President, let me quickly recount the four reasons why I oppose this budget. I do it with respect for the chairman. We worked hard together, but we just could not agree on what a budget would look like.

First, it doesn't guarantee a single additional penny for Medicare. Instead, it takes money needed for Medicare and uses it for tax cuts that will benefit the wealthy.

Second, it does nothing for Social Security. In fact, it doesn't extend Social Security's solvency by a single day.

Third, it is fiscally risky. It calls for huge tax cuts whose costs explode in the future, just when the baby boomers will be retiring.

Finally, its cuts in domestic programs are extreme. If they were ever enacted, they would seriously disrupt important and essential public services. But, more likely, Congress will never really approve them and we will again be facing a disastrous threat of a Government shutdown.

For all of these reasons, Mr. President, I am deeply disappointed by this budget resolution. I hope that we are going to be able to work together and make what I consider badly needed improvements. We have 35 hours in which to determine what the outcome of our budget discussions are going to be like, what the result is going to be. I hope that we will be able to strike a balance that can get us a budget that can pass both Houses, which can also be approved by the President.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. KERREY. Mr. President I rise today to talk about the great progress we have made reducing our federal deficits. I am proud to have participated in and voted for three budget acts—in 1990, 1993, and 1997—which have radically altered the fiscal condition of the Federal government and the debate about how the public's hard-earned tax dollars should be spent.

When I arrived in the Senate 10 years ago, we had a deficit of $205.2 billion. We were awash in a sea of red ink. Budgeteers were predicting deficits as far as the eye could see. In fact, since 1989, our publicly-held debt has increased from $2 trillion to $3.7 trillion. Hundreds of billions of dollars of borrowing was needed every year to fund the Federal budget. This borrowing had two effects: it kept interest rates for all public borrowing higher than necessary and it caused the net interest costs of the U.S. government to rise as a share of total Federal spending.

After the enactment of these three budget acts—particularly the 1993 and 1997 budget acts—and on account of impressive gains in private sector productivity and growth, we were able to reverse the deficit trend. Deficits have continued to shrink since 1994—and we were able to celebrate our first unified budget surplus (counting Social Security) of $70 billion last year. I am hopeful that the Congressional Budget Office's August re-estimate will allow this Congress to celebrate its first real budget surplus since 1960.

Deficits are yesterday's problem. Today, budgeteers are telling us to expect budget surpluses as far as the eye can see. I am proud to say that we are able to celebrate the fruits of our fiscal restraint—not because we had to abide by an inflexible constitutional amendment—but because we had the sheer will and political courage to put ourselves on a spending diet. Americans should feel good about that. And my colleagues who took the tough votes on fiscal restraint should also feel good about the budget surpluses we are now enjoying.

Through our progress on controlling spending, we have also made some progress on entitlement and net interest expenditures. Back in 1994, I co-chaired the National Commission on Entitlement and Tax Reform. In its final report, the Commission predicted that "without changes to programs or increased taxes, entitlements and interest on the national debt are projected to consume all federal revenues by 2012. In 2030, entitlement spending alone will exceed all Federal receipts." The fiscal restraint that we have displayed in the succeeding 5 years has changed the short-term picture of entitlement and interest expenditures dramatically.

Today, about 53% of our Federal budget is spent on mandatory programs like Social Security and Medicare; 34% of our budget is dedicated to discretionary spending (like NASA, NIH, roads and bridges, and the armed forces); and 13% of the budget is spent on interest on our national debt. Depending upon whose numbers you look at—the Republican Budget Resolution, the President's budget, or the CBO projections—our fiscal discipline will allow us to pay down our publicly-held debt and reduce our net interest costs. These interest payments will continue to decline as a percentage of our total spending—from about 13% today to somewhere between 3 and 5 percent by 2009. Although discretionary spending will continue to decline as a percentage of total spending—this decline will occur more slowly than previously predicted. Over the next decade, discretionary expenditures will decline from about a third of total expenditures to about a fourth of total expenditures by 2009. And although mandatory spending will continue to rise as a percentage of total expenditures—from 53% today to 70% of spending by 2009—it will grow at a slower rate than we had previously predicted.

The strong growth in our economy and the subsequent strong growth in the taxable wage base has increased the solvency of our Medicare HI and Social Security OASDI Trust Funds. That same report from the Bipartisan Commission on Tax and Entitlement Reform predicted back in 1994 that with no changes, the HI Fund would be insolvent in 2001. But the latest statistics show that the HI Fund will be solvent until somewhere in the year 2010. Our 1994 report also noted that the Social Security would become solvent in 2029. In 1998, the Trustees of the Social Security Trust Funds announced that our strong growth would extend the solvency of the OASDI Trust Funds to 2032—and I have reason to believe that the short-term solvency of the Trust Funds will be extended even further after the Trustees release their 1999 report next week.

While we should pat ourselves on the back for our tough votes in 1990, 1993, and 1997, we must remember that our agenda remains unfinished. Today, I want to challenge the Senate to start tackling the last piece of unfinished business. I am, of course, referring to the biggest political problem facing our generation of legislators: how do we work together in a bipartisan manner to modernize, reform, and improve the Medicare and Social Security programs for our children and grandchildren? Our demonstrated fiscal responsibility has bought us some time—and some breathing room—to think about how we want to reform our safety net programs, restore solvency to our entitlement Trust Funds, and reduce the out-year proportions of the budget which finance our entitlement programs.

Although we've slowed the growth in our entitlement programs, it must not go unnoticed that this year we will spend $20 billion more in Medicare and Social Security benefits than last year—and next year we will spend $30 billion more than this year. That $30 billion increase in Medicare and Social Security benefits is more than our total combined expenditures on the State, Justice, and Commerce Departments during 1999. The additional money we will spend each year on Social Security and Medicare benefits will only begin to increase as the first Baby Boomers start retiring during the next decade.

The President's own budget outlines for us the troubling long-run budget projections for the Social Security and Medicare programs. Right now, we spend the equivalent of 4.5% of GDP on Social Security benefits and about 3.6% of GDP on Medicare and Medicaid. By the year 2050, we will be spending about 7.2% of GDP on Social Security benefits and 9.7% of GDP on Medicare and Medicaid benefits. This is a dramatic increase in entitlement expenditures—a doubling from 8.1% of GDP today to 16.9% of GDP in 2050. My Nebraska constituents need to know that the more we spend on entitlements, the fewer tax dollars will be available for the education and training of our children, or the research and development of new medicinal drugs, or space exploration. The analytical tables in the President's budget show that discretionary expenditures will continue to decline from about 7.6% of GDP today, to about 3.6% of GDP in 2075.

I want to challenge my colleagues to seize upon the opportunity to modernize, reform, and improve Medicare and Social Security during this era of budget surpluses. We need to think about helping people become less dependent on the government for their retirement security. For example, I support the idea of allowing individuals to have a payroll tax cut of 2 percentage points, which they could invest in individual accounts. But these individual accounts are not the end in itself—but the means to an end. The means to a more independent retirement—a retirement that involves the ownership of wealth and the creation of an asset that can be passed on to heirs. We need to decrease the demand of future retirees on the government by making changes to Social Security that reduce costs—but also provide retirement security.

Efforts to reduce the costs of the program are made harder by changes to the Social Security program enacted back in 1983. Some of my colleagues—particularly Senator MOYNIHAN—may remember that back in 1983, Congress agreed to "pre-fund" the Social Security benefits of the Baby Boom generation by allowing the program to take in more income than it needed to pay the benefits of current beneficiaries. This excess payroll tax money was supposed to flow into a Social Security Trust Fund. As we all know, this money was borrowed from the Trust Fund throughout most of the Reagan, Bush and Clinton years to finance the general operations of government. When Treasury starts paying back the money it borrowed from the Trust Fund in 2013, it will pay these IOUs with general revenues—meaning individual and corporate income tax dollars.

Most of my constituents are probably not aware that these changes in 1983 will give beneficiaries from the Baby Boom generation a claim on $6.85 trillion of income tax revenues—in addition to the payroll tax claim they already have on tomorrow's workers. The President is proposing to increase the Baby Boomers' claim on income tax dollars to over $30 trillion. I do not support this change—I believe that we have an obligation to make structural reforms to the program within the current payroll tax structure. I applaud many of my Democratic colleagues who have taken a courageous step in opposing this misguided effort to "save" Social Security through additional income tax dollars. But I want to remind my colleagues on both sides of the aisle that simply setting aside the surplus for Social Security or Medicare reform is not a reform plan—it is a debt reduction plan.

I encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to have an honest and open debate about the way we want to finance and reform the Social Security program. I believe that Congress and the President can and should work together to achieve real structural reforms in the program—and do so in a way that helps low-income Americans and that shares costs across all generations.

In addition, I would argue that we need to modernize the Medicare program to expand choice, increase competition, and include prescription drugs. As those of us who served on the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare know through painful experience, Medicare poses an even more difficult problem than Social Security reform. By providing health care coverage, it provides a second essential element of retirement security for older Americans, as well as serving as an important safety net for disabled Americans who can no longer work. Medicare spending is unpredictable and, to a certain extent, uncontrollable—spending growth is largely driven by the amount of health services that beneficiaries use, technological developments in medicine, and—particularly in the future—enrollment growth.

And to complicate matters further, the public is not yet ready to undertake a significant change to the Medicare program. They know how valuable the current program is to themselves, their parents and grandparents. They want to be sure that they have the same coverage, or better, when they retire. And they don't see the need to make hard decisions about spending and benefits.

We need to look at these difficult dynamics and make the difficult choices that are necessary to keep the Medicare program solvent while ensuring that we have the flexibility we need within the Federal budget to address other national priorities. Last week, I voted with nine other Commissioners to adopt a more competitively-based model for financing and administering the Medicare program. I think this type of reform will move us in the right direction by helping us control costs, and ultimately helping us improve benefits. We can't simply pour new general revenues into an un-reformed Medicare program, and wait to deal with the larger problems at a later date.

The surpluses that have appeared, in part due to our fiscal discipline, provide us with a unique opportunity to reform our growing entitlements burden. The choices involved in achieving Medicare or Social Security reform are tough—and may even require some tax increases or benefit cuts. The pain of tax increases or benefit cuts will be made much less harsh if we use these budget surpluses to help reform our Social Security and Medicare programs. I do not believe we should use the on-budget surpluses for a debt swap or for a large tax cut that will primarily go to high income individuals. We must avoid the instant gratification of a large tax cut at the expense of the delayed gratification that comes with reforming our entitlement programs and reducing the tax burden on future workers.

I look forward to working with the House, the Senate, and the President to complete this unfinished agenda.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, before the distinguished Senator from Nebraska, Senator KERREY, leaves the floor, I want to congratulate him on his efforts on behalf of sound fiscal policy and good principles for the future and a vision of the future which I believe is an exciting one if we will just bear with it and do what we must do.

It is pretty obvious from the comments he has made here that we ought to be able to reform Medicare and make it live and available for many decades to come. And we ought to do it this year. There is absolutely no reason why we cannot. All we need to know is what the President wants to do. The President has not told us what he wants to do. This budget resolution contains a very valid program, very live and very capable, if the committees can put it together. It doesn't put a plan together; it just says what the resources are and how much is available. I will go into that in a little more detail in my opening remarks, which I will not give now.

There are two Senators who would like to speak now. I ask, on our side, if Senator HELMS could proceed and then I see Senator KENNEDY here. I think he would like to proceed. I do not want to limit him. I wish to make my opening remarks after him and then we will try to stir up an amendment.

If others have opening remarks, I hope they will hurry down here, because I suggest we are talking about our recess. I want to tell you a little bit. What if we have 60 amendments? People will now say we have plenty of time; we have all day today, all day tomorrow, which is Thursday. We have Friday. But people want to start leaving. They say that is 35 hours, 15 each day; that will do it.

Mr. President, if we have 60 amendments, the vote time and the quorum time surrounding them, since they do not count, the vote time does not count and quorums do not count, that could be 20 hours on its own; 35 hours of debate plus 20 hours to vote, that is 55 hours. This would mean at least 5 full days, well into Sunday, because we do not actually use 15 or 20 hours out of a day. We try to do 8 or 9 or 10. But even if you stay late, you do not get in 15 hours.

So we have to limit our amendments. We are working on that on our side. We also, at some point, have to agree to take less time on amendments than the 2 hours allowed under the statute.

With that, I yield whatever time Senator HELMS needs and then a Democrat can proceed. It will be Senator KENNEDY. Then I would like to be recognized after Senator KENNEDY.

I yield the floor.

THE PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Carolina is recognized.

Mr. HELMS. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. HELMS pertaining to the introduction of S. 693 are located in today's RECORD under "Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.")

Mr. KENNEDY addressed the chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HUTCHINSON). The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield myself 15 minutes.

First of all, I want to express appreciation to the members of the Budget Committee and, in particular, to our ranking minority member, Senator LAUTENBERG, for the work that he and our other colleagues did in developing a series of positions in the Budget Committee. I will address one of those this morning and refer to another which I hope, over the course of the next couple of days, to come back to.

I think those who are interested in the Nation's priorities, as reflected in the Budget Committee, should read the transcript of the discussion and debate. I had the opportunity to do so. I think they will get a very clear indication, as a result of that review, as to exactly what the priorities were for the Democrats in the budget consideration, which was the preservation of Social Security and the preservation of Medicare.

During the course of debate and discussion, it becomes quite clear—and also by the votes—as to those who are strongly committed to that program. Over the next several hours, we will have a chance to move beyond the rhetoric and into the details of the budget itself. That is going to be quite revealing, Mr. President, because we will have a clear opportunity to make a judgment at the end of these 3 or 4 days as to the very strong position that has been taken by the Democrats in the preservation of Social Security and also the strong commitment that we have in the preservation of Medicare.

I know there are those who have said, "We have a certain amount of funds that have been allocated within this budget for Medicare; all we are waiting for is the President to make some judgment, make some recommendation." The President has made the most important recommendation, and that is to allocate 15 percent of the surplus to preserve the Medicare Program through the year 2020, some 12 additional years of security for the Medicare Program.

That will be the longest period of time of solvency for the Medicare system since the enactment of Medicare. I will take a few moments later on in the day to comment further on this when we talk about the particular amendment that I will offer, but we have seen over the history of Medicare where there have been interventions for the preservation of Medicare to continue it and continue it in a financially sound way.

Now we have heard the President of the United States say we ought to allocate the resources that are going to preserve this for another 12 years and give it the greatest solvency we have had in the history of the Medicare Program, and then let's get about trying to put in place the kind of reforms that will be sound, taking into consideration the various recommendations that have been made by the Medicare Commission, a few which make sense and others with which I take serious issue. We will have an opportunity to examine those.

I hope our Republican friends—who virtually have been silent in proposing Medicare recommendations, other than to use the 15 percent that the President has recommended and allocate it for tax breaks for wealthy individuals—I hope that they will, during the time that we are out here at least, review with us what their recommendations are, what their proposals are, what their solutions are, rather than constantly harp on the President. He has taken a giant step forward in the allocation of solvency for the Medicare system, and he has also indicated, now that the Medicare Commission has reported, that he will make future recommendations.

If we were to accept the recommendations of our Republican friends, there will be very little in the till at the end of the day to provide protections for our senior citizens. That, I think, is a glaring, glaring loophole in this budget proposal, and one which I know the ranking member of the committee, Senator LAUTENBERG, will address with an amendment and Senator CONRAD with another excellent amendment. And I will offer an amendment, along with others, to give focus and attention to these issues.

There will be a very clear indication, hopefully at the end of the day, as to what really are the priorities for this body in terms of the future of the Medicare system.

Every budget is a statement of national priority. Every budget is really the investment in the future, but the year 2000 budget is extremely important, not just because it is the first year of the new millennium, but this budget will determine whether the large surplus will be used wisely for the benefit of all or squandered on tax preferences that disproportionately benefit the few.

The President, in his program, after the preservation of funding for Social Security and Medicare, also targeted tax programs that others will address later in the course of this debate. I think those are in areas of very special needs—providing assistance to families with the disabled, child care, and other areas. We will have a chance to review those. They all recognize what is urgent and of great importance, and that is the preservation of Social Security, the preservation of Medicare, and then the targeted tax cuts.

This budget will determine whether Medicare will offer the protections that are so essential for senior citizens in the years ahead. This is the budget that will determine whether we keep medical care in Medicare.

The Republican budget resolution is a thinly veiled assault on Medicare and I think an affront to every senior citizen who has earned the right to affordable health care through a lifetime of hard work. It is a proposal to sacrifice the future of Medicare in order to finance the tax cuts for the wealthy.

Equally as serious is the Republican attempt to privatize Medicare, to misuse the current financial problems of Medicare as an excuse to turn the program over to the tender mercies of the private insurance companies. Of course, there is where the problem started in the 1960s.

This is the same extreme agenda the Republicans pursued unsuccessfully in 1995, 1996, and it was an agenda rejected by President Clinton and Democrats in Congress and the American people, but now our Republican friends are at it again.

According to the most recent projections of the Medicare trustees, if we do nothing else, keeping Medicare solvent for the next 25 years will require benefit cuts of almost 20 percent—massive cuts of hundreds of billions of dollars.

The President's plan makes up most of that shortfall, without any benefit cuts, by investing 15 percent of the surplus in Medicare. This investment avoids the need for any benefit cuts in Medicare for at least the next 21 years. It also gives us the time to develop the policies that can reduce the Medicare costs without also reducing the health care that the elderly need and deserve.

But Republicans in Congress have a different agenda for the surplus. They want to use it to grant the undeserved tax breaks for the wealthiest individuals and corporations in our society regardless of what happens to Medicare. Republicans on the Budget Committee had a clear opportunity to preserve, protect and improve Medicare. All they had to do was adopt the President's proposal for investing the 15 percent of the surplus in Medicare.

Instead of protecting Medicare, they use the surplus to pay for billions of dollars in new tax breaks. You do not need a degree in higher mathematics to understand what is going on here. The Republican budget, I believe, is Medicare malpractice.

Every senior citizen knows and their children and grandchildren know, too, that the elderly cannot afford cuts in Medicare. They are already stretched to the limit, and sometimes beyond the limit, to purchase the health care they need. The out-of-pocket payments by those over 65 now is almost the same percent of what it was prior to the time of the passage of Medicare. They just cannot afford to have the significant and sizable increases that would be assumed if we are not going to provide this 15 percent. Because of the gaps in Medicare and the rising health care costs, Medicare now covers only 50 percent of the health bills of senior citizens.

On average, senior citizens spend 19 percent of their limited income to purchase the health care they need, a larger proportion of what they had to pay before Medicare was enacted a generation ago. Many have to pay more as a proportion of their income. By 2025, if we do nothing, that proportion will have risen to 29 percent—29 percent, Mr. President.

Too often, even with today's Medicare benefits, too many senior citizens have to choose between putting food on the table, paying the rent, or purchasing the health care they need.

The typical Medicare beneficiary is a single woman, 76 years old, living alone, with an annual income of approximately $10,000. She has one or more chronic illnesses. She is a mother and a grandmother. Yet, we want to cut her Medicare benefits in order to pay for tax breaks for the wealthy.

These are the women who will be unable to see a doctor, who will go without needed prescription drugs or without meals or heat, so that wealthy Americans, earning hundreds of thousands of dollars a year, can have additional thousands of dollars a year in tax breaks. This is the wrong priority. And America knows it is the wrong priority—even if Republicans in Congress do not.

We all recall that 4 years ago Republicans in Congress also tried to slash Medicare to pay for new tax breaks for the wealthy. They tried to slash Medicare by $270 billion to pay for $240 billion in tax cuts for wealthy individuals and corporations. We all remember. It was not that long ago.

Mr. President, under the GOP proposal, senior citizens would have seen their premiums skyrocket an additional $2,400 for elderly couples over the budget period. The deductible that senior citizens pay to see a physician would have doubled. The Medicare eligibility age would have been raised to 67. Protections against extra billing by doctors would have been rolled back.

I can remember the debates we had on that, Mr. President, where you effectively have double billing, where they go on and they take what they get from Medicare, and then they send you another bill on top of that. We spent a long time to address that particular issue. And now it would be reopened again.

Under the guise of preserving Medicare, Republicans had proposed to turn the program over to private insurance companies and force senior citizens to give up their family doctors and join HMOs. But President Clinton and Democrats in Congress stood firm against these regressive proposals, and they were not enacted into law.

Now the Republicans on the Finance Committee and Ways and Means Committee are at it again. They are already drafting new so-called reforms for Medicare. No details have been revealed, but the funds already earmarked for tax breaks for the wealthy under the Republican budget mean there is no alternative to harsh cuts in Medicare.

As we debate these issues this week, the Republican response is predictable. They will deny they have any plans to cut Medicare. They will talk about $190 billion additional over the period of time. The $190 billion they will say they are giving additional. That is just to keep the program going. If you cut any of that, you are providing additional kinds of cuts in Medicare. That is what the budget figures themselves show.

Mr. President, they will deny they have any plans to cut Medicare. The American people will not be fooled. They know that the President's plan will put Medicare on a sound financial footing for the next 2 decades without the benefit cuts, tax increases, and raising the retirement age.

They also know the Republican plan will take the surplus, intended for Medicare, and squander it on the tax breaks. They know that the Republican plan for Medicare benefits means benefit cuts for the elderly, not the honest protection of our senior citizens.

This week the Democrats will offer amendments to assure this year's budget protects Medicare, not destroys it. Under our proposal, all the funds the President has proposed to earmark for Medicare will be placed in the Medicare trust fund.

Our proposal will assure the solvency of Medicare for the next 21 years without benefit cuts or tax increases or raising the retirement age. Republicans will have a chance to vote on whether they are sincere about protecting Medicare. The vote on our proposal will test whether they care more about senior citizens or tax breaks.

The Republicans also try to confuse the issue. They will say it is wrong to put the surplus into Medicare. I say the workers of this country are the ones who earned this surplus. They want to use it to protect and preserve Medicare.

Our Republican friends say that dedicating 15 percent of the surplus will not solve Medicare's financial problems beyond 2020. That is true. But assuring the solvency of Medicare for the next 21 years is a giant accomplishment and a clear statement of our national priorities, and it gives us time to develop longer-term programs that will bring down Medicare costs while protecting beneficiaries.

If we fail to dedicate the surplus to Medicare, the only alternative is harsh benefit cuts and steep payroll tax increases to make up the resources that our Democratic plan provides. The choice is clear. Congress must act to preserve the Medicare benefits that seniors depend on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

Mr. KENNEDY. Fine.

Mr. DOMENICI. I will give additional time.

Mr. KENNEDY. I see my friend and colleague on the floor, the Senator from California. I will come back later in the day.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, thank you for recognizing me.

I note the presence of Senator BOXER. I have not given any opening remarks, and we are trying to line up some amendments.

Mrs. BOXER. I am happy to wait. Please.

Mr. DOMENICI. But that will not preclude opening statements if the Senator has some.

Mrs. BOXER. No problem.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am convinced that, for some obvious reason, the President and some on the other side of the aisle do not want to fix Medicare. I think it might be fair to say they would rather have an issue than to fix it. It is not true of everybody, obviously. I have heard a number of Senators on both sides saying this is the year to reform Medicare. And, clearly, it can be reformed and fixed. There is no question about it. We saw that 10 Members out of 17—bipartisan—came up with a proposal.

I am hoping that after this budget resolution is completed—everybody knows there is plenty of latitude within this budget resolution to reform Medicare; there is nothing about this resolution that denies the opportunity to reform it, repair it, fix it, for many decades to come—I am hopeful that perhaps the White House will tell us what their plan is. I think some of us, in due course, might like to sit down and talk to the President about it. We have all been very, very busy, and clearly this issue has, instead of getting the attention it deserves, sort of slid by, and here it sits with accusations and insinuations instead of reform.

Having said that, I would like to talk just a little bit before I give my remarks about the policy for our Nation for the next 10 years. I would like to make sure that everybody understands this is the only bill or resolution that, under the law, has a time limit and has a limit on how much you can speak on amendments.

That means that, literally, the time will run out, and the more amendments we have, obviously, the more time it is going to take, because every vote and every quorum call does not count against this statutory timeframe. So if we are not careful and do not try to work together, we could be here well into Saturday, which I do not think anyone wants. We want to get our work done.

I have just stated for the RECORD, so nobody will misunderstand, that we have the rest of today and the rest of tomorrow—and then that is Thursday night. Many think we want to be finished by that time. With the amount of time it takes to vote and the amount of time for debate, we could have very little done by tomorrow night and still have 20 hours left, I guess, or 25, 21. But clearly it puts us a long way from finishing.

I hope amendments will be germane. I intend this year, in a way that will challenge the Senate, to raise some issues about germaneness if some of the proposals have no impact on the budget and are just here to be provocative and to have a vote on something.

Having said that, Mr. President, fellow Senators, I suggest that the United States of America's fiscal policy, economic policy, as far as our Nation's jobs and there being an abundance of jobs for our people, as far as there being good and even better jobs for our people, if they are educated and have some basic skills, when we look at our policy today—our fiscal, economic, monetary policy—we are in absolutely fantastic condition versus the rest of the industrial world.

In fact, we read with genuine concern—not enthusiasm but concern—how a great country like Germany is in the condition they are in. And, frankly, it bears talking about for a minute, because the United States is, and our economy is, strong and vibrant, because essentially we have a probusiness policy in many respects as compared with those who seek under other policies to compete in this world.

We have low taxes compared to Germany. We have many things that promote our competitiveness and help our businesses, large and small, compete, make money, hire people, pay them better, and pay more taxes.

We ought to look out and see what is going wrong in the other parts of the world where their economies aren't working. It is profoundly troublesome to see that the third largest economy in the world, Germany, is floundering. Watch what people are saying. They are saying: "We are overtaxed. We don't have any freedom with reference to labor policies." They are saying: "We have the longest holidays, the longest vacations, people retire the earliest, they start to work later." That great productive country, built mostly on the high productivity of their people, is faltering.

We ought to learn from that. We ought to look at the next decade and say, How do we keep this prosperity going? I want to say right upfront, regardless of what the White House says about this budget, one way to make sure this prosperity machine and our jobs continue into the next decade is to recognize that there is a genuine surplus besides the Social Security surplus, and we ought to think about how do we use that to make sure that America continues with a prosperity machine and growth.

I submit that to put on hold cutting taxes for the American people is the wrong way to ensure that growth, prosperity, and the creation of jobs. Our opposition, the Democratic Party and the White House, can use every bit of language they can muster to talk about us having the wrong approach to tax cuts. Nobody knows what the tax cuts are going to be under this budget resolution, because the committees of this Congress have to make that decision.

They can get up and talk about tax cuts for the rich all they want, but there is room in this budget resolution to fix the marriage tax penalty. There is room to fix the research credits that our American businesses ought to take. We ought to make it permanent and say they are there so you can grow and prosper and make more and more breakthroughs. There is allowance there for a capital gains change. Yes, there is money there, if it is the will of the Congress, to cut marginal rates.

To say this budget resolution, in that regard, is to cut the taxes of the rich is untrue. Unequivocally, we believe when there is a surplus that is this big, and an American economy that we want to continue to flourish and grow—we have been told there are only three things you can do with a surplus for the good of America.

They are, one, applying the surpluses to the debt to reduce the debt held by the public. People such as Alan Greenspan say if you could find a way to do that, that is the best way. We have put $1.8 trillion of this surplus, every cent of the Social Security surplus, against the debt.

The President bragged about his budget, reducing the debt held by the public, and how putting money in trust funds but not spending it and waiting to redeem it later with an IOU would reduce the public debt. He said it recently again as he summarized an answer to a question. He reduces the debt held by the public less than this budget because he doesn't put it on the debt. He puts it somewhere where it can be spent. As a matter of fact, in the first 5 years of the President's budget, he spends more than the whole surplus that was accumulated during that period of time, the whole onbudget surplus, that which could be used for tax cuts. Because it doesn't necessarily belong to seniors, he spends more than the accumulation of that surplus in this budget.

Now, frankly, there are some who will say the President's budget isn't before the Senate. We are going to make sure it is brought before us. Let's see if we can vote on it, because the President has been claiming things about his budget that are not true. Let me start with one.

There is not one nickel, not one penny, not one dollar, in this budget for prescription drugs. As a matter of fact, there are no new expenditures for Medicare in his budget because he decided to put the surplus away so you couldn't use it for anything else and put it in a trust fund that is not spent for Medicare. Two Cabinet members have told us there is not a nickel in here to be spent on prescription drugs. You wouldn't believe that. That means you have to reform the program to get the prescription drugs.

Mr. President, the Republican budget does a great job with reference to Medicare as compared to the President's. We anxiously await a real plan. Since I don't think there really is one here, we anxiously await his plan. We anxiously await the plan of those on the other side who are critical.

Let's see what their plan is. We increase Medicare spending $200 billion more than the President over the next decade. He cuts about $20 billion over the next 10 years, but he would say it is just removing payments from hospitals. That is where the money goes for the Medicare people of this country: It goes to hospitals, doctors, x ray equipment, MRIs, and all the other things. We don't cut that $20 billion; it is still in the budget. On top of that, about $100 billion of the surplus is left unused—$100 billion—to be used in our budget, if necessary, for a Medicare reform package.

I remind Members that the 10 members of the special committee on Medicare, which the President wholeheartedly joined last year in saying let's let them tell us how to do it, didn't even use any extra money and they covered the poor with prescription drugs through the reform of the program. I am not suggesting that the whole thing can be fixed that way, but I give you that example, and we left $100 billion there for that purpose.

We can go on. But I will proceed now to just evaluate our budget, little by little. First of all, we are beginning to ask the Senate to vote also on whether they want to save and apply to the debt 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. We do that. The reason it is important is because the President doesn't do it.

Now, the President, in the first few years of this, spends Social Security money. But he says if you wait 15 years, there will be enough of it to make Social Security's trust fund whole. Year by year, he uses portions of it until some point out in the future when the amount is small and then he leaves it all in the trust fund.

As I see it, we are going to confront the issue of Medicare here on the floor. We are going to be delighted and pleased to tell the senior citizens of this country that very major Medicare reform awaits the cooperation of the President and that there is ample resources in this budget to take care of that.

I compliment the distinguished Senator from Maine, Ms. SNOWE. She encouraged and got passed unanimously with every Democrat supporting it this source of money that won't be used for anything else but can be used, if desired, to help reform the Medicare.

Let me quickly tick through what we do that we are proud of. One, the budget accounts for every penny of the Social Security trust fund and leaves it in the budget unspent to reduce the debt. Later on, we will introduce legislation to make it near impossible to spend it.

We followed the leadership of the President, the minority leader, and many others, who said maintain the fiscal discipline established in the 1997 agreement. The minority leader challenged us: Don't break the caps, don't break the agreement we entered into 3 years ago. Stick to the caps.

We did that. Now, watch, as the debate progresses; there will be innumerable amendments saying they want more money in domestic accounts. Our question will be, if you are going to stick with the caps, as recommended by your own leader on the minority side, what are you going to cut to make sure you can pay for more than we provided? We provided the caps, the exact amount required by law. Incidentally, some think a budget resolution is in control of these budget spending limits. That statute says if you violate them without changing the law, you will cut every program in the Government. It is called a sequester to enforce the agreed-upon limits.

We return to the American taxpayer overpayments they made to the Federal Government, not only because they are entitled to it, but they should not wait 15 years for a tax cut, as implied or recommended by some. We create a non-Social Security surplus of more than $100 billion, which I have just described. It preserves the Social Security surplus balances of $1.8 trillion over the next decade. It is not touched in the expenditure or the tax side of this budget because it belongs to the Social Security trust fund for use in reform and certainly not to spend.

It is interesting on that score, while I am moving along, that nobody is going to vote for the President's budget because, as a matter of fact, in the first 5 years he spends $158 billion of the surplus belonging to Social Security. After they all vote down here to keep 100 percent, how are they going to vote for the President's budget when it spends it?

The budget resolution has another challenge in it for us. We do not put a wall up between the defense expenditures and domestic expenditures because things are tight. Senators want the opportunity—and the Budget Committee members wanted to preserve the opportunity—to argue over defense numbers versus domestic numbers. We will see some amendments today that will seek to take money from defense and spend it on something else; that is, if the amendments offered in committee are offered here. That probably won't pass no matter on what you are going to spend the money on the domestic side because we are on the verge of a war, and I am quite sure everybody would be frightened to take money out of defense for domestic programs at this point. But we will probably hear the argument.

So we have increased spending on national security. And, yes, for those who say it is too tight a budget, I repeat, we followed the admonition of the minority leader who said, "Don't break the caps," and it is a fixed dollar number. We used the number. We divvied it up among all the programs of Government. Some don't like the way we apportioned it, but I will tell you that we decided to put more in education, knowing that it will not go for categorical programs in education of the past but will go down to the local level to be spent on reform measures, so long as there is accountability as one of the qualities.

We put $3.3 billion more in the first year and $28 billion over the next 5 years. That is over and above the $100 billion we would expend in the next 5 years. That is far in excess of what the President was able to do. Yet, the President said, "I am bound by the same caps and I am following them." So we are following them also. We just decided other parts of Government could be cut more than he suggested, and we put it in priorities like defense and education.

And, yes, the President speaks of what values do you reflect in the budget. I have just expressed them. The taxpayers—we worry about them. One of our values is to see that they don't overpay their Government. Secondly, we want more for education. We are in an era of reform, and we are willing to say let's put more in because it will be helpful to reform the educational process. We said the President didn't put in enough for veterans. We put in $1.1 billion more for veterans. That is our value. How can you take the medical system for veterans and cut it and not give it a slight increase, which everybody knows it needs? We fully funded all the crime prevention laws, the trust-funded money that goes into crime prevention. These are good priorities.

There will be some who will stand up and say, yes, they are good, but you had to reduce foreign aid. Well, so be it. If we are going to all live by the same numbers, then let's all talk about priorities. I remind everyone, if they want to exceed the targets, those caps, those limits on expenditures, clearly they need 60 votes to do it because it violates the Budget Act. That is how important it is. It is a major hurdle because we wanted fiscal responsibility. I am willing to listen to how difficult it will be to live within those limits. I understand it is. I don't have a solution right now because I don't see how you can report a budget resolution out that violates the budget law of the land. I don't see how you can do that. I choose not to do that. The committee chose overwhelmingly not to do that.

I might just suggest, if people are wondering about where the money might come from to establish the right priorities and still have to reduce other programs, the GAO recently reviewed the budget and they have a high-risk series which lists 26 areas in this budget this year—nearly 40 percent—which have been high risk for 10 years. High risk, by definition, is programs that are vulnerable to waste, fraud and error. We leave them there. For the most part, we increase them every year, and we ask GAO to tell us which are the risky programs that we probably won't get our dollar's worth from. Then we do nothing about it.

Second, it is clear that some programs won't grow and will remain at the 1999 level and will have to be reduced below a freeze, as the President's budget requested. We are going to take some of where he cut and reduced. I suggest that the committees and the administration take to heart the Government Performance and Results Act, which specifically identifies low-performing and inefficient programs. I am sure some Senators are hearing for the first time that such lists and assessments and evaluations exist.

This resolution assumes reduced funding for political appointees in the administration. It assumes some mandatory savings scored to appropriators in the area of the SSI Program and child support and enforcement.

The resolution assumes repeal of the depression era and arcane Davis-Bacon and Service Contract Act and other administrative savings.

The resolution assumes that Ginnie Mae will become a private operation and its auction creates nearly $2.8 billion in offsets next year.

And, yes, the resolution assumes some of the administration's proposed offsets, fees, are assumed for various agencies in the Federal Government—FSIS and the President's proposed $200 million broadcasters lease fee.

In the area of mandatory savings. The resolution does not assume any of the President's nearly $20 billion reductions in Medicare over the next five years. Medicare spending will indeed increase from $195 billion this year by over $200 billion to a total of $395 billion in 2009, an annual increase of 7.3 percent.

And the resolution assumes $6.0 billion in additional resources will be allocated to the Agriculture Committee to address the issue of depressed incomes in that sector.

Finally, the resolution assumes that expiring savings provisions in 2002, that were enacted in the 1997 Balanced Budget agreement, will be extended. This applies to all such provisions except expiring Medicare savings provisions. Between 2003 and 2009 these provisions would save less than $20 billion.

For revenues the resolution assumes that tax reductions will be phased in and over the next five years will return overpayments to the American public of nearly $142 billion and $778 billion over the next ten years. For 2000, paid for tax cuts of up to $15 billion are possible.

How these tax reductions are carried out will of course be determined by the Finance Committee and ultimately the Congress and the President.

However, I believe elimination or reduction in the marriage penalty could easily be accommodated within these levels as well as extension of expiring R&D tax credits, self employed health insurance deductions, certain education credits and or general reductions in tax rates phased in over time.

Finally, the resolution, being cautious, over a 10 year period, projects a non-budget surplus of over $100 billion. This money could be needed for unexpected emergencies or contingencies, it also could support the cost of funding transition costs for Medicare reform, or if nothing else it will continue to further retire debt held by the public.

Two procedural issues need to be noted—a rule change as it relates to defining emergencies and a clarification that when there is an on-budget surplus, those amounts are not subject to pay-go rules.

Let me close by saying that under this resolution, debt held by the public will decline by nearly $463 billion more than under the President's budget.

This is true even if one treats the President's government equity purchases as debt reduction.

Why do we reduce debt more than the President?

First, the President spends $158 billion of the Social Security surplus over the next 5 years. In contrast, the committee reported resolution saves the entire Social Security surplus.

And second, let me remind the Senate of one other thing about the President's spending proposal which may surprise many—his spending costs more than the resolution's assumed tax reductions. This is true over both the 5 year and 10 year period.

The President's budget spends 35 percent of the Social Security surplus over the next five years on programs unrelated to Social Security or Medicare.

The resolution before us today assumes that we return to the American taxpayer their overpayments and this sum of money is less smaller than the President's spending increases.

That is why we can save the entire Social Security surplus and why he can not.

That is also why the administration is opposed to the Social Security lock box idea, because that would stop them from spending the Social Security surplus.

We will have more to say about the President's budget plan later in the debate, when we let the full Senate consider whether they want to support his budget plan or not.

For now however, what is before the Senate is S. Con. Res. 20. It is a good resolution. It is a reasonable resolution.

Once again it does four things:

It protects 100% Social Security surpluses.

It maintains the fiscal discipline this Senate overwhelmingly supported in 1997 and was most recently reaffirmed by the minority leader.

It returns to the American public their tax overpayments.

And finally, it prudently and cautiously projects on-budget surpluses for further debt reduction or for supporting unexpected emergencies, and possible transition costs for true Medicare reform like the one recently voted on by 11 of the 17 members of the National Commission on the future of Medicare.

It is a good start on budgeting into the next century.

Mr. President, I will also comment on those from the agricultural sectors. We got your letter and your concerns of a bipartisan nature. The resolution assumes $6 billion in additional resources to be allocated to the Agriculture Committee to address issues of the depressed parts of the agricultural community.

I am going to stop at this time and merely indicate that this debate will proceed. Amendments will be forthcoming. I am hopeful that when the day ends, we will have a budget resolution similar to this one, and let's see how the year evolves as we try to implement it.

I yield the floor.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I thank the chairman. I have an understanding that we are going to go from side to side. At this point, I yield to the Senator from California.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from California is recognized.

Mrs. BOXER. Thank you so much, Mr. President. I thank the chairman and the ranking member, Senator LAUTENBERG.

I was so pleased to be a member of the Senate Budget Committee in the House. I was on the House Budget Committee for 6 years. To me, the Budget Committee is very important, because what we in essence do is present a roadmap for the priorities of this country. I think it is key to the people, the decisions we make here. How much are we going to spend on education? How much are we going to spend on Social Security, Medicare? How much are we going to spend on the military? And on and on—Border Patrol. Every single item comes under scrutiny in the Budget Committee. Although we may not make detailed recommendations, we essentially say to the American people—and we have to feel good about what we do—this is how we are going to spend the taxpayers' money and we hope you will be pleased with it.

Mr. President, I am not pleased with what we do about Medicare in this budget. That is what brings me to my feet today.

The President took the leadership on this budget when he challenged Congress—Members on both sides of the aisle—to save Social Security and Medicare and to do something about the low rate of savings in America today. So he came forward with a very good suggestion. He said set aside 62 percent of the surplus for Social Security, set aside 15 percent of the surplus for Medicare, and set aside 12 percent of the surplus for targeted tax cuts, which will help our people increase their savings for the future.

The good news is that both sides of the aisle have agreed on Social Security. Both sides in the Senate have agreed to set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus every year for Social Security. The bad news is that nothing—I say “nothing”—was done for Medicare by the Republicans in this committee. We tried to work with them. Senators LAUTENBERG and CONRAD spoke eloquently on the point and offered a number of amendments. They will do so again. Yet, on a straight party line vote, we were unable to budge our Republican friends.

I have to say this: Having seen a parent wind up in a very difficult position in a nursing home and having seen her be able to hold her head up high because she has Social Security and Medicare, they are twin pillars of the social safety net. Why do I say this? Because if you ask our elderly what they fear, what they fear is getting sick and they cannot rely on their Medicare. If their Medicare becomes out of reach for them, if it no longer protects them, then they will have to use their Social Security to pay for their health care costs, and they will wind up in very bad shape.

So, to me, you can't stand up with a straight face and say you are helping seniors in this country, you are helping our people get through their golden years, if you do not help Medicare, as well as Social Security.

There are those on the other side who we will hear say, “Oh, these Democrats. All they want to do is throw money at Medicare. They don't want to reform it.” That isn't so. But we do know we need to do both. We need to set aside funds from the surplus to get us through these years coming for Medicare; also, let's look at the reforms of the program.

As Senator KENNEDY said, the proposal we will put before the Senate will save Medicare through the year 2020. That is nothing to scoff at. Then we have the time to work on the reforms. We need to make sure that those reforms, in fact, are good reforms and that “reform” does not become another word for “repeal.” We don't want to repeal Medicare. We don't want to change Medicare in such a way that it no longer is that peace of mind for our seniors. We want to fix it so that it continues to work.

I hope it will be different on the Senate floor than it was in the committee. Shockingly, almost every vote, almost every vote—I will not say every amendment, but certainly every vote—to save Medicare was a straight party line. We see more and more of it. I see Senator MURRAY on the floor, a member of this committee, who was talking to me about how shocked she was that in the markup of the Patients' Bill of Rights it was party line all the way. What has become of us?

These are issues we should work together on. I am sad that we are not able to do it. On the other hand, I recognize that there are legitimate differences between the parties. It is for the people to judge as to who they feel is going to keep Medicare going.

I want to share a couple of charts with you. It seems to me that what we ought to be doing in this budget is securing America's future. In the budget we envision, and the kind of amendments we will be offering, we want to do a few things. We want to save Social Security. I again credit my Republican friends. We have worked together. This is done.

We also want to strengthen Medicare. Mr. President, it is not done in this budget. There isn't a slim dime set aside for Medicare, despite the fact that we were talking about last year what we would do with the tobacco tax, should it be enacted. Members on the other side of the aisle said: If you have extra funds, save Medicare. I don't know what happened. We will hear more about that in the debate as it unfolds.

Also, we should cut taxes to help ordinary Americans save. Those kinds of targeted tax cuts, more modest than the ones in the budget before us, are the ones we ought to be supporting. So, yes, we support tax cuts, but we want them to go to ordinary Americans who need those tax cuts. Yes, we want to strengthen Medicare by setting aside 15 percent of the surplus for Medicare.

I think it is stunning to look at this budget. This is what this budget does with the surplus vis-a-vis Medicare and tax cuts. My Republican friends will say, “Well, we do spend money on Medicare.” Yes, they spend the money. But nothing out of the surplus—nothing to address the problem in the future once we have a problem.

The good news story is that we are living longer. This is good. All the work we do around here to increase spending on health research is paying off. All the investment we make in the private sector and make in high technology is paying off. People are living longer. This is good; this isn't something to be sad about. But yet it has to be addressed. If we don't address it, we not only hurt the aging population, but the children of the aging population whose problem it will be when mom and pop can no longer afford health insurance—and they may be uninsured—or have to dip into their pocket to a great extent when hit with a disease.

Just take a look at this. I ask the question, Is it fair? Is it fair? Tax cuts—$1.7 trillion; zero investment in Medicare out of the surplus. I don't see how this could be supported. Senators LAUTENBERG, CONRAD, KENNEDY, and others will be offering us an opportunity to do something about this. I hope we will.

I have a final chart that I want to show.

So you say to yourself, OK, the Republicans are giving these tax cuts out of the surplus; not a dime for Medicare. Who is getting the benefit? My friends, I have to tell you, if you earn over $833,000 a year, you are going to get a good benefit from this Republican tax plan because you are going to get an average of $20,697 back a year.

In other words, the top 1 percent will average $20,697 a year back in their taxes. That is twice as much almost as the minimum wage. And we can't get support from the other side of the aisle to raise the minimum wage. People who get up and work hard, get dirt under their fingernails every day, earn about $11,000 a year. We can't get anyone to raise it again.

But look at this, folks: $20,697 average back to the top 1 percent every year, and the bottom 60 percent of taxpayers, that is, whose income is below $38,000, get back $99. This is paid for by essentially ignoring Medicare. I say to my friends: $99 a year; yes, it is good to get that back. But how far does that go when mom and dad call you and say, "My Medicare premiums just went up a huge amount. You have to help me; I can't pay the premium"? I say that $99 will be gone pretty darned quick.

So I just don't think it is fair. I respect my friends. They think this is good policy. I know they believe it in their hearts. As a matter of fact, shockingly—I had an amendment in the committee. Do you know what it said? It said that the substantial benefits of the Tax Code, of any Tax Code that winds its way through here, should go to the first 85 percent of taxpayers rather than the top 15 percent. And to my shock, my dear colleagues on the other side would not even let us vote. They had a substitute. They did not like it. They supported it last year, but they said this year times are different. They do not support it now.

So the reason I love this debate, on the one hand, is there are such clear differences in the philosophy of the parties, as evidenced by the votes that were taken in the Budget Committee. But I have to say I was disappointed. Even an amendment I offered—and I know, again, my colleagues will speak on their own amendments—that simply said without adding a penny let's make sure we fund afterschool programs out of the increase in the education budget, except for one colleague, every Republican voted it down. One Republican colleague joined me, but it failed on an 11-11 vote. They will not even say that afterschool care should be a priority within the education budget, because the philosophy is let the local government decide.

What if the local government decided to spend it to put a shower in the principal's office instead of on afterschool? I think there ought to be some accountability for the tax dollars we send back. We are not saying you have to use it. We are saying if you apply for the funds, whether it is for afterschool or more teachers in the classroom—we could not even get a vote "yes" on that one. So I am proud to be here today to stand up for the priorities I started off talking about: Saving Social Security—which I give my friends credit for, we do—or strengthening Medicare, which they do not do. We are going to offer some amendments, so we hope they will do it. And to cut taxes, not for the wealthiest Americans, but for ordinary Americans.

I want to say a word to my colleague, Senator LAUTENBERG. He and Senator DOMENICI may not agree, but they get along and it is a wonderful thing for us to see. Because, as tough as it is to disagree on these issues, there is a certain friendship and comity that pervades that committee because of their example. I thank them for that. I hope my colleague, Senator LAUTENBERG, will rethink his decision to retire because we will miss him too much.

But the amendments that he will offer symbolize what he is about, which is standing up and fighting for the little people, the people who need us. Before Medicare, we had old men and women destitute, destitute. And my friend, Senator LAUTENBERG, is an example of the American dream when he tells me the story of his mother who ran a bakery. She was widowed and she raised her family.

He served his country. He became a very successful businessman, and against his own economic interests, takes positions here that are for the good of the people. As he stands up and talks about Medicare, I know it is from the heart. I hope we will follow his leadership. I hope we will get a bipartisan vote to save Medicare.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am going to yield as much time to Senator GRAMM as he would like, although I am going to ask him in the interest of others to do a little less than the 1 hour he would give to his class in economics over there at Texas A&M.

But I want to read something to the Senate before I yield to him, just in response to my good friend, Senator BOXER from California. She suggested we would not accept her resolution with reference to what the tax cut should be all about. Let me read what the committee adopted unanimously. I think it is a pretty good definition of what we ought to do with the tax cut:

It is the sense of the Senate that this concurrent resolution on the budget assumes any reductions in taxes should be structured to benefit working families by providing family tax relief and incentives to stimulate savings, investment, job creation, and economic growth.

I think those are the kinds of things we all ought to be looking at in a tax package as it moves its way through.

I yield to Senator GRAMM.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BURNS). The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I am going to talk mostly about Social Security and Medicare, but I want to answer two of the points that our dear colleague from California raised. First, she says, Is it fair to give a tax cut and to give nothing to Medicare? The Domenici budget gives this big tax cut and gives nothing to Medicare. Let me just change the question a little. It is not, Is it fair? The question is, Is it true? And the answer is no.

Let me just ask our colleagues to look at page 54 of the report on the concurrent budget resolution for the fiscal year 2000. This is the budget reported from the Budget Committee. It provides, beginning this year, for Medicare, $194.6 billion, and by 2009 that has risen to $394.2 billion. So the Domenici budget provides $199 billion of additional money for Medicare by the end of the 10-year period.

Let me just make two points. No. 1, Medicare has never grown by more than it grows under the Domenici budget. No. 2, no program has ever grown as much as Medicare grows over this 10-year period. There is not one cut in one Medicare benefit in the Domenici budget. In fact, the President's budget cuts the Medicare Program. The Domenici budget fully funds it.

So we all have a right to our opinions, but we do not have a right to our facts.

Mrs. BOXER. Will the Senator yield for a retort?

Mr. GRAMM. I will be happy to yield.

Mrs. BOXER. What I said clearly is of course there is funding there for Medicare. I said: Out of the surplus. There was nothing out of the surplus. I was very clear to state of course the committee takes care of Medicare under the current condition, but doesn't take anything out of the surplus.

Mr. GRAMM. I thank the Senator for the clarification, but the point is every penny of this $199 billion is out of the surplus because, if it were not provided, that money would be in the surplus. The point is, and I want to be sure nobody is confused, the Domenici budget provides full funding for Medicare over the next 10 years. It has not one cut in one benefit anywhere for Medicare. In fact, no budget in the history of America has provided the funding increase for Medicare that is provided in this budget, and no program, except the buildup for a war effort, in the history of mankind has ever provided the increase we provide for Medicare. So no one should get the impression that in any way this budget does not fully fund Medicare. It does.

Second, and I do not want to get off on this same old debate, dragging the same old dead cat across the table, but it is always an amazing thing to me that when Democrats talk about tax cuts, they think it is always for rich people. When I heard the story, that Senator DOMENICI's mama was out picking lettuce and she started having Senator DOMENICI, and they took her in the house and Senator DOMENICI was born in this house. I don't know why anyone would think Senator DOMENICI does not love working people. I don't know why our Democrat colleagues, most of whom are very wealthy people, why they have this monopoly on loving poor people and Senator DOMENICI, the child of an immigrant family, somehow he does not love working people.

Let me tell you what the whole paradox is about. Our colleagues on the Democrat side of this body have discovered that we have a progressive income tax. Senator DOMENICI, what that means is that American workers in the bottom half of the income scale pay virtually no income taxes. And people who are in the higher income brackets pay very high levels of income taxes.

So, for example, if we had an across-the-board tax cut where we reduced everybody's taxes by 10 percent, a proposal that was made by John F. Kennedy who, last time I looked, was a Democrat—of course he believed that rising tides lift all boats. I don't know if Democrats still believe that. It was President Kennedy, in 1961, who proposed an across-the-board tax cut. "Let's get America moving again" was the Kennedy slogan.

When you cut taxes across the board, there are two things that everybody ought to understand, because our Democrat colleagues are going to go on and on and on about it. No. 1 is, some people do not get a tax cut if you cut income taxes across the board. Why? Because they don't pay income taxes. Some people don't get Medicare because they are not senior citizens. Some people don't get welfare because they are not poor. Some people don't get Senate salaries because they don't work for the Senate. But tax cuts are for taxpayers. You don't pay taxes, you don't get a tax cut.

Secondly, some people will get a bigger tax cut with an across-the-board tax cut than others. That shouldn't come as any shock, because some people pay more income tax than others. This budget does not make this judgment; this budget simply provides money for a tax cut. We will decide in the Finance Committee what it is.

I personally support an across-the-board tax cut. If you want to figure out how much you get—it is very simple and couldn't be fairer, in my opinion—take the amount you pay, take 10 percent of it, that is how much you would save if we had a 10 percent across-the-board tax cut. If you don't pay any income taxes, you don't get any tax cut. If you pay a little income taxes, you get a little tax cut. If you pay a lot of income taxes, you get a lot of tax cuts, but you don't get back what you don't pay. Simple formula.

Let me talk about my two issues.

The President, 2 years ago, said in the State of the Union Address a brilliant line—"Save Social Security first." It was a brilliant line. Everybody stood up and applauded. We waited a whole year and the President never told us how to save Social Security first, last, or ever—never had a program. It was simply a bumper sticker, a slogan. Then this year the President said, "Oh, the year has come for us to save Social Security." He said, "Don't just save it first; save it now." We all stood up, standing ovation. We all applauded.

And we had a big conference down at the White House. One of my Democrat colleagues was smart enough not to go. He had already figured out that this was a political sham. But I went. I sat through all these meetings. I sat in a meeting with the President. We had about 60 Members of Congress there. He went around the room and asked people their opinion, agreed with everybody. Then, when we left, we waited for a program.

Finally, the program came. Let me say, not to mince words but to be precise with the English language, it was a total and complete political cop-out. It was a political punt. It was a program that basically said: We are not going to make any decision other than we are going to claim that we are locking all this money away for Social Security. I am going to explain how the hoax works.

The second issue that is a major disappointment in the President's budget and the President's proposal is Medicare. I was appointed to the Medicare Commission led by Senator BREAU, a Democrat. We put together a bipartisan coalition to save Medicare. The President killed the Commission. Then he makes a proposal that does not give Medicare a dime, not a dime of new resources. It simply reduces debt and gives Medicare credit for it in a sort of nebulous IOU that can't be spent for 15 years, and can only be spent then if we raise taxes or cut other spending to redeem the IOUs.

I want to talk about Social Security and Medicare the way Bill Clinton does it. A lot of my colleagues have racked their brains to try to figure out how the President saves Social Security. Let me explain it to you. I have a chart here, and I hope people can follow it.

What I show on the first chart is plotting out over time the Social Security surplus, which starts out here at the current level of $137.6 billion and then it grows over time. That is the amount of money we are taking in, in Social Security taxes, that we are not spending on benefits, plus the interest we are earning on the IOUs that Social Security has from the Federal Government.

In addition to the Social Security surplus, we have a general budget surplus from the rest of government that is shown here as B. The total budget surplus, counting the Social Security surplus and the non-Social Security surplus, is the combination of the two I have shown in blue here.

Here is what the President does. The President takes the Social Security surplus, which this year is $137.6 billion. They have a guy over in the Treasury who puts into a computer the number $137.6 billion, and out in West Virginia there is this little Federal office with a steel filing cabinet. They have a printout machine, and this prints out this IOU for $137.6 billion. I have seen them on television—at least a man and a woman working there. They may have 10,000 people, but I have seen only 2. The guy normally does it. He goes up and he takes it off the machine, tears it off, takes the perforated edges off, and takes the carbon copy off. Then he puts it in that metal filing cabinet. This is an IOU from the Government to the Social Security Administration. This literally happens. That is the $137 billion.

The problem is, we do not have $137 billion, because the unified surplus, when you add the two together, Social Security and non-Social Security, is only $134.6 billion, because we are running an actual deficit in the non-Social Security part of the budget of $2.9 billion.

What the President does is, he takes the $134.6 billion we have in cash and he says: Let's take 62 percent of that. That 62 percent is shown in light green here. That is 62 percent of the total budget surplus. He says: Let's spend 38 percent of that. Now, that is $52.3 billion.

Remember, every penny of this surplus is Social Security, but in his budget he spends $53 billion of this surplus. Then he says: We are going to give Social Security $83.5 billion. So they already have this IOU in West Virginia for the blue, the Social Security surplus, and now we are going to give them an IOU for the green, 62% of the unified surplus, which of course came from the Social Security surplus.

So what we do, we start with $137.6 billion in Social Security surplus. We don't really have it. We are $2.9 billion short, because we already spent that. The President prints out an IOU in West Virginia, and then he takes $134 billion, every penny from Social Security, and he spends $52 billion of it. Then he takes $83 billion that is left and gives it to Social Security again.

You might ask, how, with $134 billion, do you give Social Security $221 billion? Well, how you do it is, you give them $137.6 billion and you already have spent $2.9 billion so you have $134 billion. You spend another 38 percent of it, and that leaves you with $83 billion, and you gave that to Social Security.

So what the President has done is double-counted $83.5 billion of the Social Security surplus.

The amazing thing to me is that Senator DOMENICI, Senator LAUTENBERG, and I have seen many budgets come and go, and we know we have seen administrations, Democrat and Republican, who made rosy assumptions about the future—of course, nobody knew what was going to happen in the future—that did all kinds of things, but nothing of the scale of double-counting the Social Security trust fund. In the 20 years in the House and the Senate that I have watched budgets come and I have watched them go—more go than come, in many cases—I have never before seen the level of dishonesty that exists in the budget President Clinton has submitted this year.

It is not rosy assumptions about the future, it is plain fraudulent bookkeeping.

The amazing thing to me—having appeared on television with senior officials of the Clinton administration to talk about this issue, having listened to them in testimony—is how educated people who have credibility independent of serving in the Clinton administration can come before the public and come before the Congress and defend this; it is totally beyond my comprehension.

It is totally beyond my ability to understand the willingness of people to say something that they know, because every one of them took freshman accounting in college—if a freshman economic student at Harvard had proposed this double-counting scheme, our dear colleague, Larry Summers, the smartest guy in the Clinton administration, would have given him an F. And yet poor Larry Summers is dragged on CBS television to defend double-counting bookkeeping.

Having gone through it, let me just show you some of the manifestations of it. If you take the President's budget, he claims that he is locking away $5.8 trillion for Social Security in the future. Remember, these are all IOUs, and it does not make any difference whether you have one or you have a cigar box full. They all are commitments for which we are going to raise taxes, cut spending, or borrow money in the future. But I am simply talking about gimmicks.

The President claims $5.8 trillion that he has put in the Social Security trust fund. But yet when you look at what he has actually locked away, it is only $2.2 trillion. Let me just show you the numbers from his own budget.

This is the first document that comes from the Social Security Administration, and it shows the President's proposal:

Under the President's plan, the Social Security trust fund will rise from $864 billion to $6.6 trillion, an increase of $5.8 trillion during the year 2000 to 2014.

That is what the President says he is doing, locking away $5.8 trillion for Social Security. But when you actually look, I say to Senator DOMENICI, at the President's budget from the Office of Management and Budget, there is a "Social Security lockbox transfer used to redeem debt." They are not redeeming $5.8 trillion, the amount set aside for Social Security, they are redeeming $2.183 trillion.

What happened to the other $3.6 trillion? It is missing. You cannot find it in their books. What happened to it? It is a funny thing about double-counting bookkeeping, you can double count all you want, but when you finally open up the box, you only have in there what you put in there. That is basically what the President does.

When our colleagues on the Democratic side of the aisle say the President does these great things for Social Security, what he does for Social Security is double count the entries he is making in the Social Security trust fund, but nothing the President does in any way will pay any benefit past 2012 because at that point we open this box, and all it has is IOUs. Then we have to raise taxes or cut spending or cut Social Security benefits, or we have to borrow money to pay for it.

Finally, let me read you a quote. Probably the best summary of the Clinton Social Security proposal was in a major article by David E. Rosenbaum in the New York Times on March 24. Here is his summary of what he calls "the shell game" in the Clinton Social Security proposal. Listen to this quote. He is talking about the Clinton plan on Social Security:

The plan does nothing more than throw new IOUs at the problem and avoids tough choices needed to keep subsequent generations from having to pay the bills for the retirement of the baby boomers.

What is being called a plan to save Social Security is, in fact, a phony bookkeeping scheme to double count the number of IOUs put into Social Security. Not only is it fraudulent, but it is a hoax, because the IOUs in Social Security do nothing to pay benefits. You cannot pay benefits with IOUs. You have to have money, and the only way you can get money is to tax or to cut spending or to borrow the money from the general public.

The second hoax in the Clinton budget is the hoax of Medicare. This year, the President killed the Medicare Commission report, and his alternative to it was to send an IOU to Medicare. He said, going back to this surplus, "Look, we started out with $134 billion and we gave $221 billion of it to Social Security. That worked great. Having taken 134 and given 221 of the 134 to Social Security, why don't we give 15 percent to Medicare? It worked great for Social Security, let's do it for Medicare."

So what he does is he sends this meaningless IOU to Medicare only, as Senator DOMENICI was the first to discover, there is a big caveat on this IOU, and that is, you cannot spend it. He does not provide any new benefits.

He talks about drug benefits and how wonderful it would be to have them, but he provides not one penny for drug benefits. None of this money can be spent under the President's budget. It is simply a meaningless IOU. I guess we will open another office in West Virginia and we will hire people and they will print out the IOU for Medicare and put it in a metal filing cabinet, but does it fund one prescription drug? No. Does it pay for one day in the hospital? No. Does it pay for one home health care visit? No.

If it does not do any of those things, what good is it? It is good because it is a political weapon. The President can say, "I gave 15 percent of the surplus to Medicare." You cannot spend it. It will not buy any of these things, but I did it.

The point is, Senator DOMENICI could have done all these things, and more, if he were willing to use phony bookkeeping. But thank goodness he is not willing to use phony bookkeeping. He did fund—fully fund—for 10 years Medicare.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. GRAMM. Let me make a concluding point, and then I will be happy to yield.

The President had a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to save Social Security this year, and he did not do it. The President had a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity with a bipartisan commission to plant the seeds to save Medicare, and he did not do it. To use a parody on a very famous commercial, the Presidency is a terrible thing to waste, and President Clinton has wasted Presidential leadership on Medicare and Social Security with phony programs that serve no purpose except to mislead the American public and to prevent real debate on these issues.

I will be happy to yield.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I want to ask the Senator, in terms of the President transferring some balances into the Medicare trust fund and taking IOUs back, we all know right now there is an assessment of when the Medicare Program will stop generating enough money to pay its bills. Remember, that date is 2008—

Mr. GRAMM. That is right.

Mr. DOMENICI. When there will be less money coming in than the bills calling for it.

Does the President's plan change that fact?

Mr. GRAMM. No. In fact, it provides no new money in the year 2008 to cover that deficit.

Mr. DOMENICI. Thank you.

Mr. GRAMM. I say, in conclusion, that the Domenici budget has a real process to lower the debt limit that the Government operates under to assure that not one penny of Social Security money will be spent on anything else. We will have a vote on that lockbox. Many people who say, "We want to stop the plundering of Social Security," will have an opportunity to do it, because the Domenici proposal will stop Social Security money being spent for any other purpose. I intend to support it.

I congratulate Senator DOMENICI. And I yield the floor.

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I ask that Senator MURRAY of Washington be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington, Senator MURRAY, is recognized.

Mrs. MURRAY. I thank my colleague from New Jersey, the ranking member on the Budget Committee, who has worked with us for a number of years in putting together these budgets. I join my colleagues in wishing him well on his retirement and thank him for the work he has done for so many people throughout his career.

Mr. President, I rise today to express my strong opposition to the pending fiscal year 2000 budget resolution that is before us here today and my deep concern and disappointment with the priorities that have been laid out in this budget. I remind my colleagues that budgets are not about today; they are about tomorrow. Failure to establish a framework for Federal spending that focuses on the future is a serious mistake.

Last week during the consideration of the resolution in the Budget Committee, I was really amazed at our lack of focus on investing in our future and our complete disregard for the impact of the decisions we were making on hard-working families. The mistake that we all made during committee consideration was our failure to put a human face on our discussions. We simply lost sight of the human and social costs of our decisions.

The focus of this budget that is before us and the focus of the debate in committee seemed to be based solely on politically expedient tax cuts. There was no discussion on extending the solvency of Social Security or Medicare and what our failure to address these issues will mean for working families. There was no attempt to address the shortfalls in our investment in public education, our public health, environment, veterans health care, child care, food safety, Older Americans Act, Medicare, Medicaid. These are not just spending programs, these are investments in our quality of life and in our future economic security.

When we talk about education, a lot of the talk we hear on the floor is jargon—jargon—about flexibility and block grants and Federal mandates. No one talks about walking into a classroom of 40 young children and looking into their faces as they struggle to learn. I cannot say strongly enough, there are human costs to the decisions that we are making in this budget.

I have talked to children our decisions affect. I have talked to their teachers and their parents. I know they are not interested in political double-talk. What they want to know is, What are we doing to prepare them for the challenges of the next century? What are we doing to invest in our young children so that they have the ability to get a job when they graduate? Are we addressing the huge class sizes that our children face every day and their inability to learn math and reading and science? Are we addressing the issue of the crumbling schools that many of our children go to every day? Are we addressing the fact that our teachers need to be educated and trained to be able to teach the skills that we require of them today?

That is what parents and students and communities and business leaders are looking for in this budget. That is what we have failed to address.

I see the same lack of focus in dealing with Medicare. I am glad there is a bipartisan agreement to protect the Social Security trust fund. That one step alone will do a lot to restore integrity to the program and return confidence to the Social Security system. However, I am very troubled by the lack of commitment to Medicare.

In reviewing the committee's report to accommodate the resolution, the priority appears to be one thing, and that is tax cuts. The resolution assumes tax cuts totaling almost $700 billion over 10 years but very little mention of how we are going to invest the surplus in providing equal, affordable health care for our Nation's senior citizens. Again, this resolution places a higher priority on compensation as opposed to investment.

I want to know how we are going to explain to an 83-year-old widow that Congress has decided that a tax cut is more important than providing her with quality, affordable health care.

The fastest growing segment of our population living in poverty is those over the age of 65. All of the investments we have made, from Social Security to Medicare to the Older Americans Act, that have ensured a quality standard of living for those over 65, are jeopardized by a simple fact, and that simple fact is that the population over 65 is increasing faster than we are ready for. We have an opportunity, with the surplus in front of us, to invest a portion of that into Medicare in order to extend the solvency without making devastating and dangerous cuts.

Reform of Medicare must be carefully considered and executed. We cannot change the program overnight without harmful implications. The budget resolution we are dealing with here today fails to address the immediate and long-term problems of Medicare, and, once again, there is no discussion of the human cost of the decisions we are making.

I have spoken with that 83-year-old widow who sometimes has to choose between hundreds of dollars a year in prescription drugs and food. How do I explain that, under this, she could face an additional $2,498 a year in Medicare premiums? How do you justify increasing the burden on individuals whose average income is slightly less than $13,000 a year?

I ask my colleagues to stop and reconsider their priorities. I have heard some of my colleagues talking about the need to return the "people's money" to the people. Well, I agree. Families have worked hard and paid their taxes with the belief that Medicare would provide for their parents as well as themselves when they retire. Medicare allows the elderly independence and dignity in the final years of their lives. I believe investing the surplus into Medicare is returning the people's money to the people.

As I stated earlier, I am pleased that there is a bipartisan commitment to save the Social Security trust fund surplus. This will allow greater flexibility in reforming the system and improving current benefits. And I was pleased with the bipartisan support for the amendment I offered in committee regarding the impact of Social Security reform on women.

Up until now, the only discussion about women and Social Security reform has been very vague statements about "taking care" of them. I believe that very few understand the unique circumstances of women who, throughout their working life and in retirement, face very different decisions and circumstances, where women tend to be out of the workforce to raise their children, or later on in life to take care of elderly parents, where women earn, on the average, 75 cents on the dollar of what men do; when we look at Social Security reform and realize right now that Social Security is based on the top 35 years of income, and for many women who do not work 35 years, their income is averaged by adding a number of zeros into that calculation because they have not worked those years.

We have to use this opportunity to make sure that how these decisions are made does not negatively impact women. It is actually this lack of understanding of women in the workforce that has resulted in many more women who are living in poverty today after the age of 65. Single older women are more than twice as likely as men to face poverty today.

The bipartisan support of my amendment in committee has encouraged me to offer an amendment to the pending resolution which I hope my colleagues will again support. We have to use reform and this added financial flexibility to address the specific shortfalls in the current structure that penalize women and oftentimes leave them in poverty following the death of their spouse.

My amendment would simply illustrate the support of the Senate for using reform as a mechanism, not just at protecting the status quo but actually improving the economic security of older women. I hope that the same commitment to address the needs of women in reform prevails when I offer this amendment in the next several days.

Finally, Mr. President, I want to caution my colleagues about the dangers we face when fiscal policy development breaks down into partisan politics. We will not be successful unless we have a bipartisan effort. I urge my colleagues to think carefully about the constituents they have met and the people who have come to them asking them for help and support. We need to stay focused on these faces and remember that the budget is not just about economic or policy decisions but about decisions with real consequences and real human costs.

I am hopeful that as this budget process continues we can redirect our efforts and shift our priorities from short-term diversions to savings and investing in the future. We have made the tough decisions that have given us a budget surplus today. Like every family, we cut back and for several years maintained strict fiscal discipline. Let's follow the example of many families and use our surplus to invest and save—not to rush out to spend on lavish vacations or luxury items. Let's use basic common sense in deciding on the priorities of the first budget of the millennium.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, Senator ABRAHAM will have some comments and then our first amendment. How much time does the Senator desire?

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, 15 minutes. I believe I can make an opening statement and comments on the amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield 15 minutes to the Senator from Michigan.

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, let me begin by acknowledging, as others have, the work and accomplishment of our Senate Budget Committee, and particularly the work of our chairman, in putting together this budget which we are debating today.

A lot of people have tried to take credit with respect to the remarkably strong fiscal position we find ourselves in today. But I remind all of our colleagues that when, in 1995, this Senator arrived, notwithstanding tax increases and other such devices, we still were considering budgets with deficits as great as $200 billion for as far as the eye could see. We had one leader in the Senate, the chairman of the Budget Committee, who said, We are not going to allow that to happen; we are going to begin to strengthen the economy and tighten the belt in ways that eliminate the budget deficit.

I am proud to be a member of the committee and never to have voted for anything but a balanced budget since I became a part of that committee. I attribute that to our chairman and his staff for the hard work they have done to craft documents that have moved us in this direction.

Let me just briefly outline the budget we are looking at here today for the benefit of our colleagues who may be perhaps reaching the wrong conclusions as to what it contains on the basis of some of the speeches we have heard today. I want to set the record straight. Our budget accomplishes a number of important priorities. First, it sets aside every single dollar of the Social Security surplus so that we can use that Social Security surplus for exactly what the public expects us to use it for, and that is to fix Social Security and to ensure its long-term solvency. Later, I will offer an amendment here which will ask the Senate to take a position in support of the kind of protection and lockbox mechanism that will guarantee that every one of those Social Security dollars is used for that purpose.

Second, this budget makes important investments in two areas of public policy where I think there is a broad consensus of support, both inside the Senate as well as across America. One of those areas is education. This budget acknowledges a greater Federal investment in the support of education in our country. It does not dictate how those dollars will be spent, obviously. I think a lot of us feel they ought to be spent in the classroom.

With the budget chairman here, I ask if he could respond. I believe, Mr. Chairman, that this budget, in fact, increases education spending not only over its baseline increase but even beyond what has been proposed by prominent education advocates such as the President, is that not correct?

Mr. DOMENICI. The Senator is absolutely correct. In the first year, we recommended that $3 billion, in addition to what the President recommended, be spent for education, and over 5 years, $28 billion in new money on top of about $100 billion in the programs today.

We do express our concern in the event this money were used in the traditional way that we have done for the last 25 years of telling them exactly how to do it with a lot of strings. We are hoping it will move down to the classroom level with only accountability as to what the Federal Government requires.

Mr. ABRAHAM. I thank the Budget Committee chairman. I ask our colleagues to take note of this.

We have already heard people come to the floor and talk about how this budget doesn't do enough for education, while at the same time they are now saying it is the President who cares about investment in education.

This budget invests more in education than the President of the United States has proposed by a very substantial amount over the next 5 years. We will have a chance later to debate how that investment should be made.

I agree with the chairman of the Budget Committee—we want fewer "Washington knows best" solutions and more people at the local level making decisions as to how to use the dollars. It is the Republican's budget, not the President's, that puts more money in education.

Another investment that I think we all, particularly today, have to acknowledge is important is a greater investment in national security. Obviously, the current events in the Balkans once again remind us that America must have a sufficient investment in our security to be able to meet international challenges we confront.

To give the Senate an idea of exactly what we confront with respect to national security today, let me use one statistic. That is the decrease in levels of manpower and weaponry in just the last 8 years. Eight years ago, we engaged in Operation Desert Storm, an accomplishment of great military significance. If we had to do that again today, we would find ourselves severely strapped both with respect to the percentage of our total Armed Forces that would be needed to initiate that effort, as well as the amount of weapons from our total arsenal that would be needed. In fact, I believe it would take about 90 percent of today's Army, two-thirds of our fighter wings, two-thirds of our aircraft carriers, and the entire U.S. Marine Corps based on those current sizes today to replicate what we did in 1991.

If that doesn't demonstrate to us the need for a greater investment in national security, I don't know what does. If we need further arguments, I think we need only to look so far as the reinlistment rates which are, as everyone in this body knows, not at the level we require. We need to have better pay and better benefits, pension benefits, and so on, for our Armed Forces in order to encourage more people to join and to stay in the Armed Forces. We have already taken a step in that direction earlier this year, but we need to back up the Soldiers' Bill of Rights with budget authority to be able to move forward. That is what this budget does over the next few years.

Finally, I want to talk about two other things. This budget sets aside money not at all connected to Social Security, but, rather, surpluses wholly unrelated to our Social Security payroll taxes for the purpose of reducing the tax burden on the people who pay taxes in this country. What we are talking about is very simple: More money is coming into the Federal Treasury than even the biggest liberal spenders anticipated. It is coming faster than the IRS can count it. It is building up a surplus that is wholly unconnected to Social Security.

The question is, What should we do with some of those dollars? This budget sets aside a very substantial amount of money, but certainly not all of that money, for tax relief. Some say this isn't right; the money should be used for more spending programs, new spending programs, or it should go in some way to reduce the tax burden of people who are already paying the taxes. We don't agree. We think this money constitutes an overpayment. It is more money than we expected. If you make an overpayment, you ought to get a refund. That is what this budget reflects. The refunds ought to go to the people who are making the overpayment. In my judgment, at least in some way, it ought to reflect approximately the percentage of their overpayment. To treat this as suddenly a tax break for a special interest group is simply missing the point.

We didn't just shut down a program to be able to finance a tax cut. We didn't make a transfer from one beneficiary group to another in order to be able to afford a tax cut. We said we are taking the money that is coming in and returning it to the American public. The Finance Committee, not the Budget Committee, will make that decision. We think at least a very substantial part of those surplus dollars ought to be used to help allow the people who created this surplus the chance to keep a little bit more of what they earn.

Finally, I want to talk about Medicare briefly, because I find the repeated comments with respect to this budget's failure to address Medicare to be so erroneous that they require a response. This budget puts more money into Medicare over the next 5 years than I believe was proposed by the President, and I will defer, again, to the Budget chairman when I have a chance here to clarify that. Unlike the President, we don't cut Medicare over the next 5 years. Furthermore, we set aside over $130 billion in this budget to be used precisely on things like fixing Medicare, that so many of our colleagues seem interested in doing.

The one thing we haven't done here that I want to address, we didn't say that we are just sort of going to use general tax revenues in order to stabilize and offset or postpone the insolvency of the Medicare Part A trust fund. We didn't do that here. I don't think that would be an appropriate precedent for us to set. We need to fix the Medicare Part A trust fund to make it work. It is broken. We all know that.

There was a Medicare commission and 10 out of 17 people, on a bipartisan basis, agreed that there was a way to do that—in fact, a way that wouldn't even cost as much with respect to Medicare expenditures. They couldn't get 11 votes for that final outcome, but they got 10—including two Members of this body, including the Member selected by the President to chair the Medicare commission, and in my judgment—I am sorry, four Members of this body and two on each side of the aisle.

The point is this, Mr. President. The idea that instead of putting together a plan to reform and make Medicare work, the idea to say we are simply going to throw more money into this without any concrete proposal as to how to spend the money, I think is a mistake.

In any event, I think this budget addresses the priorities. It locks away money for Social Security and every single penny that Social Security generates in surplus. It increases our investment in education and in national security. It allows us to give people who have paid more taxes than we expected the chance to get a little bit of that back. Finally, it sets aside considerable amounts of money to address our Medicare problems. For that reason, I support it.

How much time do I have left?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has used 10 minutes.

AMENDMENT NO. 143

(Purpose: Providing a framework for the protection of Social Security Surpluses for current and future beneficiaries)

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Michigan [Mr. ABRAHAM], for himself, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mr. LOTT, Mr. ROTH, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. GREGG, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. SANTORUM, and Mr. CRAIG, proposes an amendment numbered 143.

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . FINDINGS; SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE PROTECTION OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY SURPLUSES.

(a) The Congress finds that—

(1) Congress and the President should balance the budget excluding the surpluses generated by the Social Security trust funds;

(2) Reducing the Federal debt held by the public is a top national priority, strongly supported on a bipartisan basis, as evidenced by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan's comment that debt reduction "is a very important element in sustaining economic growth," as well as President Clinton's comments that it "is very, very important that we get the Government debt down" when referencing his own plans to use the budget surplus to reduce Federal debt held by the public.

(3) According to the Congressional Budget Office, balancing the budget excluding the surpluses generated by the Social Security trust funds will reduce debt held by the public by a total of $1,723,000,000,000 by the end of fiscal year 2009, $417,000,000,000, or 32 per cent, more than it would be reduced under the President's fiscal year 2000 budget submission;

(4) further according to the Congressional Budget Office, that the President's budget would actually spend $40,000,000,000 of the Social Security surpluses in fiscal year 2000 on new spending programs, and spend $158,000,000,000 of the Social Security surpluses on new spending programs from fiscal year 2000 through 2004; and

(5) Social Security surpluses should be used for Social Security reform or to reduce the debt held by the public and should not be used for other purposes.

(b) It is the sense of Congress that the functional totals in this concurrent resolution on the budget assume that Congress shall pass legislation which—

(1) reaffirms the provisions of section 13301 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 that provides that the receipts and disbursements of the Social Security trust funds shall not be counted for the purposes of the budget submitted by the President, the congressional budget, or the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, and provides for a Point of Order within the Senate against any concurrent resolution on the budget, an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that violates that section.

(2) Mandates that the Social Security surpluses are used only for the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform or to reduce the Federal debt held by the public, and not spent on non-Social Security programs or used to offset tax cuts.

(3) Provides for a Senate super-majority Point of Order against any bill, resolution, amendment, motion or conference report that would use Social Security surpluses on anything other than the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform or the reduction of the federal debt held by the public.

(4) Ensures that all Social Security benefits are paid on time.

(5) Accommodates Social Security reform legislation.

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, this amendment attempts to embody a principle I discussed in my remarks and which we in the Budget Committee, I think, within the committee at least, indicated we desired to see happen, which is the creation of a lockbox mechanism into which we would make sure every Social Security surplus dollar would go, so it could not be used for any purpose other than to fix Social Security or, until such a Social Security fix was developed and passed, to reduce the national debt.

This is a sense-of-the-Senate amendment. I want to make that clear. It is not a substantive amendment, per se. But, Mr. President, we all agree that saving Social Security is our No. 1 priority in this Congress. The President, both in his 1998 and his 1999 address, said we should save the Social Security surplus and use it—in this year's speech, he said we should use it to reduce Federal debt, to ensure that it is not squandered on other spending. This amendment embodies that principle in the form of a sense-of-the-Senate amendment and outlines the course by which I think we can accomplish that in the most appropriate fashion.

Indeed, Mr. President, this budget resolution agrees with that prioritization and allows for the entire surplus of Social Security to be protected and to substantially reduce the Federal debt held by the public. I thank the chairman of the Budget Committee with whom I have worked on this amendment, and I thank Senator ASHCROFT who joined me in offering that, who I think will both speak to this at some point.

This is a very straightforward proposal, one I think will best protect the surplus and strengthen our economy so that the future of Social Security can be best ensured.

Let me outline some of the provisions. It would strengthen the off-budget status of Social Security as well as provide for additional points of order against any bill, amendment, resolution, or conference report that would violate this off-budget treatment.

Second, it would create a subcategory of the gross Federal debt limit, the debt held by the public. If this proposal were ultimately put into effect through law, we would then cap that publicly held debt at the current level of $3.6 trillion. We would also then mandate the reduction of that debt level in fiscal years 2000, 2001, and every 2 years thereafter, by the same amount as the Social Security trust fund surplus in those years.

These limits would be automatically adjusted as projected Social Security trust fund surpluses change, so as to ensure that we do not force ourselves to reduce the publicly held debt by a greater amount than we actually have available in the Social Security surplus, as well as to ensure that windfall Social Security surpluses would be protected from being raided. The proposal would also allow for a one-time adjustment to accommodate Social Security reform, should the Congress enact such reform.

This proposal, if it were actually passed into law, would reduce publicly held debt from $3.6 trillion to $2.4 trillion by the year 2009. I believe that is an even greater reduction than what the President's framework proposal suggested. It thereby locks away a larger portion of the Social Security surplus.

To that end, I might add that the budget resolution we have before us contains advisory caps on the publicly held debt limits which mirror those contained in this proposal. However, I believe it is necessary for the Congress to go beyond those advisory caps and to commit itself to reducing this publicly held debt and locking away the Social Security surplus from being spent on other programs. That is why I am joined by 11 colleagues, including Senators DOMENICI and ASHCROFT, as well as the majority leader and the chairman of the Finance Committee, Senator ROTH, in offering a sense-of-the-Senate amendment which will state that it is our intention to pursue such a course of action.

This amendment would state that it is our intention to pass legislation to reaffirm the off-budget status of the Social Security trust fund, mandate that the Social Security surplus only be used for the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform, or the reduction of debt held by the public, and provide for protection such as points of order against any legislation which would try to circumvent those protections, ensure the Social Security benefits continue to be paid in full and on time, and accommodate Social Security reform.

We think this makes sense. We think it is consistent with colleagues on both sides of the aisle who have been talking about it for an extensive period of time. We think it made sense in this budget resolution to go on record saying this is the direction in which we are going to head. It is one thing to talk about saving Social Security and making sure that Social Security surpluses aren't spent, making sure we reduce the public debt with Social Security surpluses, and so on; but I think talk is one thing, action is another.

I suggest that the passage of this amendment which I have offered with my colleagues would be the sort of action that would set us on the right course to make sure that ultimately we do in fact protect the Social Security surpluses so they can only be used to fix Social Security or to pay down the national debt.

With that, Mr. President, I will yield the floor. I know other colleagues here want to speak on this issue, and in due course, as we go back and forth, I am sure they will. I thank the budget chairman and the current occupant of the manager's chair, and I thank our ranking member as well, for the opportunity to speak.

Ms. MIKULSKI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I rise not to rebut the amendment by the Senator from Michigan but to make an opening statement about this budget and certain very crucial items in it.

I compliment Senator LAUTENBERG for his strong advocacy as the ranking member of the Budget Committee and his longstanding championship for those people who have been left out and left behind. Sir, I thank you for your role not only in this budget but what you do every day in the Senate.

Through the best efforts, I am very concerned that the fiscal year 2000 budget resolution really does not adequately address the solvency of Social Security, nor does it address adequately the solvency of Medicare—the two most important programs that the United States has, domestically, and the ones that Americans universally rely upon and plan their life around having in a reliable way, that has reliability and continuity, and that the entire private sector assumes will be there as they plan private sector products.

Now, preserving Social Security and Medicare must be our Nation's top priority, and I believe the original efforts by the Lautenberg group were there. What we have before us today, I believe, does not protect Social Security.

Now, we say a lot in the Senate about family values. Well, I believe there is a value that comes out of the Judeo-Christian ethic I believe in, and it is called honor your father and honor your mother. I believe it is not only a good commandment to live by, I think it is a good commandment to govern by.

We should not only have it in our prayer books. We should have it in the Federal checkbook. This is why I am so adamant that we must save Social Security first and preserve the solvency of Medicare.

When we look at Social Security, we want to make sure that we protect those who have the least resources with them—those without pensions, those without IRAs, those without 401(k)s. These are the people who we know represent, as we speak, now, over 40 million people. If there are 40 million Americans without health insurance, you had better believe they are going to be the same 40 million who do not have 401(k)s. To them "K" means Kellogg, and it is a cereal. It is not a life security system.

I am particularly concerned about women. And I am particularly concerned about both men and women who, at the end of the day and near the end of their lives, will have no reliable pension program to look out for them.

This is what the Social Security issue is all about. I want to be sure that in any debate we have—whether it is on the budget, or whether it is the Social Security bills—I want to ensure that Social Security is universal and portable, that it is a guaranteed benefit, that it is inflation proof, and looks out, as I said, for those who do not have anything else going for them.

I have a particular interest in this as it affects women. That is because I truly believe that Social Security is a woman's issue. Without it, over half of all elderly women would now be living in dire poverty. Yes. Women today are working more outside the home, yes, and earning more than past generations. But in reality, their lifetime earnings, access to pensions, and ability to save continues to be less than men. That is why Social Security is a woman's issue. Let me elaborate.

First of all, women live longer. The life expectancy rate for women is 65, 4 years longer than for men. That means they will need income security for a longer period of time. Also, the equity that we placed in Social Security is absolutely crucial. Why? Because right now women do not get equal pay for equal work, making 70 percent of what men make for similar jobs. They will get less Social Security because their benefits are based in part on wages. That means the hard-working female x ray technician who puts in 40 hours a week might take home $28,000 a year instead of the financial worth that her male counterpart has.

We need a Social Security system, too, that women can count on, that respects values of work inside the home and acknowledges it in retirement. This is why the spousal benefit is so crucial and why we need to preserve it. Women move in and out of the paid marketplace to do some of the most important work—raising children and caring for elderly parents and their relatives. Take, for instance, someone who works in an office as an executive assistant. She got her high school diploma, didn't go to college, worked full time for 5 years, but leaves the workforce to raise her children. She might do that for 7 years and then return part time. Notice that she lost 7 years in her contribution, and then is a part-time wage earner, and then often has to go back at an entry wage. This woman needs to know that Social Security is there for her, and that she is not penalized for what she did, which was the unpaid work for providing the most invaluable service to America; that is, raising America's children.

Certain ideas have been proposed to reforming Social Security which would have a devastating impact on women. Having reliance on private retirement accounts would hurt women disproportionately. Again, women earn less money, unequal pay, leave the paid workforce to raise children, or care-give, and would have less to "invest." Reducing the Social Security COLA would hurt women. And there are other reforms.

But the point that I make is that Social Security as it now stands is the best deal for women. Sure, we need to make reforms. Sure, we need to look at the other ideas. That is why we should not cut or dramatically alter Social Security. Sure, it can pay benefits into 2032. But we have to look ahead to be sure that there is solvency of Social Security.

That is why we support the Lautenberg effort. We want to be sure that for women who have worked all of their lives, in the home or outside the home, there will be a guaranteed benefit with a full cost of living, that it will have a progressive benefit formula that helps the low-income wage earners, and that there is a spousal and survivor benefit for married women, divorced and widowed. The only way we can do that is if we take the surplus and put 62 percent aside, and also 15 percent for Medicare. Otherwise, this is a hollow budget full of promise and hollow on opportunity.

Mr. President, I salute the efforts of Senator LAUTENBERG. I am deeply disturbed that we are not setting aside 62 percent as we talked about. I do not believe the other party adequately protects Social Security, adequately protects Medicare, and I believe that ultimately the American people will wake up to this.

As it stands now, I will vote no for this budget.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I will take a couple of minutes with the agreement of the Senator from Minnesota just to respond, A, to say thank you to my dear friend and colleague for her complimentary remarks, but even more importantly than that—because flattery is nice, but effectiveness is even better—and the Senator from Maryland has been a known, strong advocate for the things that she believes in.

I greet Senator MIKULSKI each time I see her with the knowledge that she has enhanced our view of what life is really about by bringing a perspective that comes from the women's side that is so often left out. She knows also too well that she hits a familiar tone with me when she talks about Social Security, because my father died before my mother was 36 years old. She had nothing but bills and an obligation to my 12-year-old sister and an 18-year-old son who had already enlisted in the Army to support her. She did it by sheer dent of hard work and will.

If we had in that family, going back now—we are talking about 1943—the benefit of a Social Security Program, a check coming in that would kind of help relieve not only the fiscal financial obligations, but the anxiety that accompanies the worry about that, if we had Medicare or Medicaid in those days when my father died at the age of 43, a strapping handsome man—cancer overtook him, and he died leaving doctors bills. So we had not only enormous grief, but the obligation to pay off the doctor and hospital bills that were accumulated with no insurance program.

So when we talk about Social Security, we talk about women who are typically those left most often with the smallest share of assets, because of the way we are structured. We need to make sure that Social Security is going to be there. We need to make sure that Medicare is going to be solvent for a number of years. Yes. We are not disagreeing with the need to reform and improve, if possible, but to make sure that it is equitably distributed. We need time. We need the assurance that the programs are going to be there.

I for one will jump on the reform-and-improve bandwagon as soon as we have a good vehicle to take us along.

So I thank the Senator from Maryland for her comments.

I see my friend also from California was so nice before to give me credit for some things I probably don't deserve. But, nevertheless, the credit is nice to get.

I thank both Senators.

I yield the floor.

Mr. GRAMS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. DEWINE). The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I wanted to take about 15 seconds.

We have heard time after time from speaker after speaker on the other side of the aisle that somehow the Republican budget doesn't protect or set aside money for Social Security. We set aside all the Social Security surpluses. It is earmarked in a lockbox for Social Security. So that is not what we are saying. One good thing about our budget is we don't spend it. The President, under his budget, spends $158 billion of the Social Security surplus. Our budget doesn't. So I think we do a better job on securing and saving Social Security.

I would like to yield to my friend from Missouri.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Thank you very much, Mr. President. I thank the Senator from Minnesota.

I rise in support of the resolution offered by Senator ABRAHAM that has been called the Abraham-Domenici-Ashcroft Social Security amendment. That protects our strong support for saving Social Security.

It expresses our strong support for protecting Social Security. I am grateful for the opportunity to cosponsor this amendment, which will put the Senate on record in favor of protecting the Social Security surplus and not invading it for spending for other Governmental programs.

The Senator from Minnesota is absolutely correct. The President's budget over the next 5 years would spend $158 billion of the Social Security surplus—not the general Governmental surplus but the Social Security surplus. Social Security is a national, cultural and, I might add, legal obligation. Social Security is our most important social program, a contract between the Government and its citizens. Americans, including 1 million Missourians, depend on this commitment. This is more than just a Governmental commitment. We have a responsibility as a culture to care for the recipients of Social Security—the elderly and other individuals in regard to Social Security who are its beneficiaries. Social Security is the only retirement income for most of the seniors in this country. It is our obligation, passed down from generation to generation, to provide retirement security for every American.

As individuals, all of us care about Social Security because we know the benefits it pays to our mothers and fathers, relatives and friends. And we think of the Social Security taxes we and our children pay—up to 12.4 percent of our income. We pay these taxes with the understanding that they help our parents and their friends, and we hope that our taxes will somehow, someday make it possible to help pay for our own retirements.

In my case, thinking of Social Security brings to mind friends and constituents such as Lenus Hill of Bolivar, Missouri, who relies on her Social Security to meet living expenses. Billy Yarberry lives on a farm near Springfield and depends on Social Security. And there is Reverend Walter Keisker of Cape Girardeau, who will be 100 years old next July and lives on Social Security. The faces of these friends make Social Security have a special, personal meaning to me.

Whenever I meet with folks in Missouri, I am asked, "Senator, you won't let them use my Social Security taxes to pay for the United Nations, will you?" Or, "Why can't I get my full benefits if I work after 65?" Or, "You know I need my Social Security, don't you?"

And then there are the letters on Social Security I get every day.

Ed and Beverly Shelton of Independence, Missouri, write:

Aren't the budget surpluses the result of Social Security taxes generating more revenue than is needed to fund current benefits? Therefore, the Social Security surplus is the surplus! . . . Yes, we are senior citizens and receive a very limited amount of Social Security. We are children who survived the Great Depression and World War II so we know how to stretch a dollar and rationed goods—just [listen to this] wish Congress were as careful with spending our money as we are!

These concerns are why I am cosponsoring this amendment, which will express the Senate's view that we must put an end to the practice of using surpluses in the Social Security trust funds to finance deficits in the rest of the Federal budget.

This resolution—the Abraham-Domenici-Ashcroft resolution—puts the Senate on record as supporting legislation that would accomplish the following:

(a) Reaffirming the provisions of section 13301 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990. This section provides that the Social Security trust funds shall be off budget.

(2) Mandating that the Social Security surpluses are to be used only for the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform, or to reduce the federal debt held by the public, and not spent on non-Social Security programs or used for tax cuts.

(3) Providing for a Senate super-majority point of order against any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that would use Social Security surpluses on anything other than the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform, or to reduce the federal debt held by the public.

That is very important. We include in this proposal not just a statement that we want to reserve Social Security for the right purposes, but we want to create a point of order that makes out of order a proposal that we spend Social Security to cover deficits in other parts of the Government.

Additionally, this particular measure ensures that all Social Security benefits are paid on time.

I am in favor of two provisions that will accomplish these objectives. First, I am a cosponsor of the Abraham-Domenici lockbox provision, which will lock away Social Security surpluses by ratcheting down the publicly held debt by the amount of our Social Security surpluses. This resolution puts the Senate on record in favor of this legislation.

In addition, Senator DOMENICI and I have introduced the Protect Social Security Benefits Act, which would make it out of order for the Senate to pass, or even debate, a budget that uses Social Security surpluses to finance deficits in the rest of the budget.

Under this proposed legislation, a three-fifths vote in the Senate would be required to overcome this point of order, thereby making it extremely difficult to use the Social Security surplus to fund new deficit spending. We must make clear that the Federal Budget should be balanced without counting any Social Security surpluses.

Social Security should not finance new spending. But that is exactly what has happened in the past, is now happening, and will continue happening in the future, unless changes are made. The funding of Federal deficits in Government spending generally by consuming Social Security surpluses must end.

Walling off the trust funds is the first step, not the only step, needed to protect Social Security. This is the right way to start the effort to improve Social Security so it is strong for our children and grandchildren.

To do this, we need to be honest, realizing that, for now, time is on our side to make thoughtful improvements. Social Security does now and will in the near future accumulate annual surpluses.

Together, income from payroll taxes and interest is greater than the amount of benefits being paid out. The Social Security trustees believe that these surpluses will continue each year for the next 14 years. In that time, a $2.8 trillion total surplus will accumulate.

In the year 2013, however, when more baby boomers will be in retirement, annual benefit payments will exceed annual taxes received by Social Security through taxes and interest to the fund. As a result, Social Security will run an annual deficit. By 2021, annual benefit payments will exceed annual taxes received by Social Security and interest earned on the accumulated surpluses. Then, by the year 2032, Social Security payroll taxes will not only be insufficient to pay benefits; the surpluses will be used up. Social Security will be bankrupt. That is, even counting the notes in its fund, incapable of meeting the demand for benefits.

In recent years, Social Security surpluses have been used to finance deficit spending in the rest of the Federal budget. Take fiscal year 1998 for example. The Social Security surplus was $99 billion. The deficit in the rest of the Government budget was $29 billion. So $29 billion—or 30 percent of the Social Security surplus—financed other Government programs that were not paid for with general tax revenues. This occurred despite President Clinton's promise to save "every penny of any surplus" for Social Security.

For next year, this money shuffling is even greater. According to CBO, the President's budget dips into the Social Security surplus to the tune of $158 billion over 5 years to pay for government spending.

This kind of money shuffling must end. I cannot go back to Lenus Hill or Billy Yarberry and tell them that I stood by silently as the government devoted spent $158 billion of their retirement money to pay for the President's new spending initiatives somewhere else. We must stop the dishonest practice of hiding new government deficits with Social Security surpluses.

This amendment is designed to express the sense of the Senate that we must not use surpluses in the Social Security trust funds to pay for deficits in the rest of the federal budget. Three times Congress has passed laws that tried to take Social Security off-budget. These efforts have called for accounting statements that require the government to keep the financial status of Social Security separate from the rest of the budget. But these efforts are inadequate unless Congress puts in place safeguards that protect surpluses in Social Security from financing new government spending.

This amendment will put the Senate on record in favor of helping us save the trust funds, by directing the entire Social Security surplus to shrink the publicly held federal debt. Reducing the publicly held debt would cut annual interest costs that now cost $200 billion and 15 percent of entire federal government budget. Eliminating this interest costs would provide more flexibility to address the long-term financing difficulties Social Security now faces that could someday jeopardize payment of full benefits.

This amendment is designed to express our support for protecting the Social Security system. More importantly, it is designed to protect the American people from attempts to spend our retirement dollars on current government spending. While I value the Social Security system, I value the American people, people like Lenus Hill and the 1 million other Missourians who receive Social Security benefits and depend on them more. I value those individuals far more than I value the system. My primary responsibility is to them. This amendment will protect the Social Security system and the American people first.

Mr. President, I send another amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is a pending amendment, the Chair would inform the Senator.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, being made aware of the pending amendment which is now before the Senate, I withdraw my request to send an amendment to the desk.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Kriz Ardizzzone, Tevi Troy, and Jim Carter, members of my legislative staff, be granted the privilege of the floor during the pendency of the budget resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Minnesota for his excellent work. I look forward to working with him as we bring this budget to the American people. I believe it has the potential of being the best budget in years.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I appreciate the kind words of the Senator from Missouri.

NATIONAL SCHOOL VIOLENCE VICTIMS' MEMORIAL DAY

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that S. Res. 53 be discharged from the Judiciary Committee and the Senate now proceed to its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the resolution.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 53) to designate March 24, 1999, as "National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day."

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the resolution.

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I rise today to express my support for Senate Resolution 53, which declares March 24, 1999 as "National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day."

As a number of my colleagues noted, the past year has been a grim one for educators, parents, and students. The tragic events in schools in Arkansas, Kentucky, and Oregon shocked the conscience. I'm thankful that in my home state of Virginia, no one was killed at school in 1998. But this past summer in Richmond, a volunteer and teacher were wounded by gun fire from a fourteen-year-old student. All of these events were terrible blows to families and friends in each community. I hope today's resolution will give some solace to those communities, who will know that the Congress has not forgotten them.

For the nation as a whole, these events were a terrible blow as well, and I believe Congress has an obligation to follow up with a commitment to preventing future school violence because while schools are a relatively safe place for our children, the events of the past year have shaken our confidence. School children have written to me expressing the fear that they will be attacked, and I know their parents have similar fears. We cannot expect our children to achieve their best in such an environment.

We've already taken a number of steps that I hope will help allay these fears. Later this year, more than $165 million in school safety grants will be awarded by the Department of Justice's Community Oriented Policing Services program. I want to thank my colleagues, particularly Senators GREGG and HOLLINGS, for supporting efforts last year to increase funding for this program, which I initiated in 1997. I ask my colleagues to support funding for this important program again this year.

Later this year, as we consider juvenile justice reform legislation and the reauthorization of the Elementary and Secondary Schools Act, I will be looking at other ways to help make our schools safer, and I look forward to working with my colleagues on that effort as well. Students should worry about their next test, not about their safety. Fear should not be a part of any school's curriculum.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I want to take just a brief moment to thank my colleagues for passing this resolution marking today as National School Violence Victims Memorial Day.

Let me tell you why this day is so important to me and to the citizens of Butte, Montana.

Butte fifth grader Jeremy Bullock was 11 years old when he and his twin brother Joshua left for school together as they always did. The day was April 12, 1994. Jeremy didn't come home from school that day. He was shot and killed on the playground, leaving family and a community forever changed.

By recognizing March 24th as National School Violence Victims Memorial Day we will be honoring the memory of Jeremy Bullock and countless other children, families and communities by saying clearly, with one voice that we as Americans will meet the challenge of eradicating violence from our schools.

So, today and every day, let us always remember Jeremy Bullock. For, though he is gone, his memory will always linger and help to fuel our work.

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, I rise this evening to join my colleague, Senator LINCOLN, my other colleague in the Senate, to honor our Nation's children and citizens who have been victimized by school violence.

The Senate just adopted Senate Resolution 53 which designates March 24, today, as "National School Violence Victims Memorial Day." As you know, 1 year ago today at the Westside Middle School in Jonesboro, AR, five children and one teacher lost their lives to an inexplicable and cowardly act of violence. Ten others were left wounded, and countless parents, relatives, and friends were left permanently scarred. In addition, the entire State of Arkansas was left numb with shock, horror, and grief.

I cannot express the loss and the pain that we feel as a result of this tragedy. But I ask you and my fellow colleagues in the Senate to reflect on the loss of Natalie Brooks, Paige Ann Herring, Stephanie Johnson, Britthney Verner, and Shannon Wright.

We hurt for these families. I know that the simplest things in life will forever cause them pain. For instance, I know that Floyd Brooks will never see another frog without thinking of the frog collection which his daughter Natalie was so proud of.

We remember that Paige Ann Herring was a very bright, intelligent 12-year-old girl who loved life and enjoyed it to the fullest through such activities as playing the piano, softball, volleyball, basketball, singing in the school choir. It saddens me, and I think all of us, so much that we will no longer hear her voice.

It is the little things. Stephanie Johnson believed that a ladybug's landing on her brought her good luck. And her mother knew that her prayers for peace were answered when she asked God for a sign that Steph was OK and then upon her next visit saw ladybugs on Stephanie's gravestone.

We remember today that Britthney Verner was an extremely caring and loving little girl who got good grades and loved daffodils.

I know that Mitchell Wright will never look at his son, Zane, without thinking of Zane's mother, Shannon, who gave her life to save the lives of her students.

I want these families to know that while we can never fully know the pain they feel today, we will certainly never forget their loved ones.

As I close, I want to give a special message to Zane Wright, Shannon Wright's infant son Zane.

Your mother was a genuine heroine. Scripture teaches us that there is no greater love than the love it takes to lay down your life for another. So whenever you wonder what you mother was like, remember her as an incredibly brave woman who loved others like few others in this world ever have.

In addition, to the families of the victims of school violence in Bethel, AK; Pearl, MS; West Paducah, KY; Edinboro, PA; Pomona, CA; Springfield, OR; and the rest of the Nation—we want them to know that we stand today to honor their loved ones.

Thank you, Mr. President.

I yield the floor to my colleague from Arkansas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Arkansas.

Mrs. LINCOLN. Thank you, Mr. President. And I thank my colleague from Arkansas.

Mr. President, I join my colleagues, all of my colleagues, here today, but especially my fellow colleague from Arkansas, Senator HUTCHINSON, in a very special effort to designate March 24, 1999, as National School Violence Victims Day.

As mentioned by my colleague, a year ago today the peaceful routine of a small middle school just outside of Jonesboro, in my home State of Arkansas, was forever changed. People across our country still grieve over the tragic shooting of four 11-year-old children and one 32-year-old schoolteacher of Westside Middle School.

The heartbroken families of victims Natalie Brooks, Paige Ann Herring, Stephanie Johnson, Britthney Verner, and teacher Shannon Wright still question why it happened. What prompted two boys at the tender ages of 13 and 11 to violence? What spurred them to shoot their schoolmates and their teacher? The answers may be beyond our comprehension.

Mr. President, the shooting at Westside Middle School is one of the gravest tragedies in the history of our State and our country. Though time has evoked some healing and renewed confidence, the children and teachers of Westside Middle School were apprehensive when returning to school last fall. Teachers had to comfort nervous children. Parents had misgivings. And playmates longed for their young friends. Having seen such young children fall to their death at the hands of classmates right before their very eyes, this brave community is having a hard time making sense of it all. We all are having a hard time making sense of it all.

Sadly, last year's tragedy in my home State is not an isolated event. Over the past 18 months, gun violence has claimed lives at schools in Pearl, MS, as mentioned by my colleague; West Paducah, KY; Edinboro, PA; Fayetteville, TN; Springfield, OR; and Richmond, VA. Each time as our country watched in horror, we wondered if this senseless violence would ever stop.

Mr. President, the picture painted by these images is ghastly indeed. Our Nation's schools are not just buildings where children and teachers spend their days. They are the cornerstones of our communities and the centers of young precious lives. Parents send their children to school day after day with the expectation that they will learn and that they will be safe. There are many things we can do in the Senate to curb school violence. We must not allow schools to become places to fear.

I urge this body to examine this escalating problem. And I urge each Senator to use National School Violence Victims Day to create a dialogue with school communities in their States. When an entire community works together to improve its schools, everyone benefits. Every child deserves the opportunity to attend a safe school where he or she may worry about math and science, not guns and violence.

Thank you, Mr. President.

I yield back the remainder of our time.

Mr. DODD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. DODD. I ask unanimous consent to be added as a cosponsor on the resolution offered by both of our colleagues from Arkansas. I commend them highly for this. I hope all of our colleagues will join them.

This is the kind of issue we need to speak out on. Incidents like these have caused great pain across the country. Yet, too often, the problem of school violence only receives attention at the moment a tragedy occurs.

So I commend both of my colleagues and ask to be added as a cosponsor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution be agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to S.Res. 53 appear at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S.Res. 53) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

S. RES. 53

Whereas approximately 10 percent of all public schools reported at least 1 serious violent crime to a law enforcement agency over the course of the 1996-97 school year;

Whereas in 1996, approximately 225,000 students between the ages of 12 and 18 were victims of nonfatal violent crime in schools in the United States;

Whereas during 1992 through 1994, 76 students and 29 non-students were victims of murders or suicides that were committed in schools in the United States;

Whereas because of escalating school violence, the children of the United States are increasingly afraid that they will be attacked or harmed at school;

Whereas efforts must be made to decrease incidences of school violence through an annual remembrance and prevention education; and

Whereas the Senate encourages school administrators in the United States to develop school violence awareness activities and programs for implementation on March 24, 1999: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate—

(1) designates March 24, 1999, as "National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day"; and

(2) requests the President to issue a proclamation designating March 24, 1999, as "National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day" and calling on the people of the United States to observe the day with appropriate ceremonies and activities.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

The Senate continued with the consideration of the concurrent resolution.

AMENDMENT NO. 143

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I rise to strongly support the safe-deposit box amendment to lock in any future Social Security surpluses to be used only for Social Security benefits, Social Security reform and national debt reduction. I am pleased to join Senators ABRAHAM, DOMENICI, and ASHCROFT in offering this amendment.

Mr. President, we all agree that Social Security is facing a fast-approaching crisis and fundamental reforms are needed to save and strengthen the nation's retirement system. The question is, how do we proceed?

President Clinton unveiled his Social Security proposal under his FY 2000 budget. The bottom line on his plan is that it allows the government to control the retirement dollars of the American people by investing it for them.

It does nothing, however, to save Social Security from bankruptcy. Worse still, despite his rhetoric of saving every penny for Social Security, President Clinton has proposed to take $158 billion in Social Security dollars to finance government programs unrelated to Social Security. Let me say that again—under the President's budget, he proposes to take $158 billion from the Social Security surplus fund and spend it on other unrelated government programs. That is not saving Social Security first.

The only positive aspect of his proposal is that the President has admitted the insolvency of Social Security and has recognized the power of the markets to generate a better rate of return, and therefore improve benefits.

The fundamental problem with our Social Security system is that it's basically a Ponzi scheme—that is, a pay-as-you-go pyramid that takes the retirement dollars of today's workers to pay benefits for today's retirees.

It has no real assets and makes no real investment. With changing demographics that translate into fewer and fewer workers supporting each retiree, the system has begun to collapse.

Social Security operates on a cash-in and cash-out basis. In 1998, American workers paid $517 billion into the system, but most of the money, $391 billion, was immediately paid out to 44 million beneficiaries the same year. That left a $126 billion surplus. The total accumulated surplus in the trust fund is $750 billion.

Unfortunately, this surplus is only on paper. The government has consumed all the $750 billion for non-Social Security related programs. All it has is the Treasury IOUs that fit in four ordinary brown accordion-style folders that one can easily hold in both hands.

So when Social Security begins to run a deficit, the government has to do a couple of things. The government has to either tighten its belt, raise taxes, or borrow more from the public, or it has to lower benefits or raise the retirement age.

There is a lot of double-counting and double talk in President Clinton's Social Security framework. The truth of the matter is the President spends the same money twice and claims that he has saved Social Security.

All the President has done is create a second set of the IOUs to the trust fund. It is like taking the money he owes Paul out of one pocket and applying it to the money he owes Peter in the other pocket, and then pretending that he has doubled his money and is now able to pay them both.

In addition, the President has proposed to spend $58 billion of Social Security money in FY 2000 for his new government spending. Over the next five years, he will spend $158 billion of Social Security money.

President Clinton's plan does not live up to his claim of saving Social Security. He has not pushed back the date for when the Social Security trust fund will begin real deficit spending. That date is still the same—2013. Social Security will have a shortfall that year and it the shortfall will continue to grow larger year after year.

By 2025, the shortfall will be over $360 billion a year and by 2035, it will explode to $786 billion, but by 2055, the deficit will run as high as $2.07 trillion.

Since the government has spent the surplus and has not set aside money to make up for this shortfall, it will have to raise taxes to cover the gap—something that economists estimate will require a doubling of the payroll tax.

The proposal by the President to have the government invest a portion of the Social Security Trust Funds is no solution. It would give the government unwarranted new powers over our economy, and it will not provide retirees the rate of return they deserve.

In last year's Humphrey-Hawkins hearing, I asked Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan whether we should allow the government to invest the Social Security Trust Funds in the markets, and if this is the right direction in which we should be going. Here are his exact words:

No, I think it's very dangerous . . . I don't know of any way that you can essentially insulate government decision-makers from having access to what will amount to very large investments in American private industry . . .

I am fearful that we are taking on a position here, at least in conjecture, that has very far-reaching, potential danger for a free American economy and a free American society.

It is a wholly different phenomenon of having private investment in the market, where individuals own the stock and vote the claims on management, (from) having government (doing so).

I know there are those who believe it can be insulated from the political process, they go a long way to try to do that. I have been around long enough to realize that that is just not credible and not possible. Somewhere along the line, that breach will be broken.

Mr. President, Chairman Greenspan is right. We should never venture out onto what the Chairman calls "a slippery slope of extraordinary magnitude."

It is going to take real reform, not Washington schemes, to help provide security in retirement for all Americans. The first essential step is to stop raiding from the Social Security Trust Funds, and truly preserve and protect the Social Security surplus to be used exclusively for Social Security. This is exactly what this safe-deposit box amendment will achieve. This amendment would first take Social Security completely out of the Federal budget and it requires the surplus to be used only for Social Security benefits, Social Security reform and debt reduction. It creates a super-majority point of order for using this surplus for other purposes. The amendment also ensures all Social Security benefits will be paid in full.

Many of us in Congress agree with the President that we should, and indeed must, devote the entire Social Security surplus to saving Social Security, not just to talk about it, but do it; not spend the money, but to set it aside. However, his plan does not do what he says while ours does. Again, I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Abraham amendment. This amendment expresses the sense of the Senate that the Social Security surpluses be used only for preserving and protecting Social Security, and that new procedural safeguards be enacted to ensure this outcome.

The Abraham amendment provides an important first step in saving Social Security, and is an excellent occasion to reflect on the issues before the Congress in preserving Social Security for the long-term. Social Security's financial problems of Social Security are well known, but bear repeating. In just 15 years, in 2013, Social Security benefit payments will exceed revenues, and Social Security will need to tap its Trust Fund.

Today's Trust Fund is relatively small, equal to about a year-and-a-half benefits and intended as a cushion in an economic downturn. However, the Trust Fund will swell over the next 15 years because of payroll tax surpluses and interest. Between 2013 and 2032, Social Security Trust Fund will need to spend over $6 trillion for benefits. But the Trust Fund is simply a claim on the U.S. Treasury. Future taxpayers—our children, our grandchildren, even our great grandchildren—will have to pay off this debt. Even so, the Trust Fund will be empty in 2032, and Social Security can pay only 75 percent of benefits from annual revenues.

Worse yet, the President has proposed to add even more debt to the Trust Fund. Although the President claims his plan would extend solvency to 2050, in fact the President would simply commit another $24 trillion of future Federal budgets to Social Security. David Walker, head of the General Accounting Office, delivered this stark assessment of President's proposal at a February 9th Finance Committee hearing: "It would be tragic indeed if [the president's] proposal, through its budgetary accounting complexity, masked the urgency of the Social Security solvency problem and served to delay much-needed action."

Most traditional fixes won't work, either. Social Security has faced financial crises before—in 1977 and again in 1983. Both times, the biggest part of the solution was a hike in payroll taxes. The result? Today, 80 percent of American families pay more in payroll taxes than income taxes (with the employer share factored in). And let's remember, Social Security taxes are on the first dollar of income—no deductions, no exemptions.

Mr. President, there is broad bipartisan agreement that there may be another way to preserve and protect Social Security benefits—personal retirement accounts. While proposals differ, personal retirement accounts would provide each working American with an investment account he or she owns. With even conservative investment in stocks and bonds and the power of compound interest, personal retirement accounts can provide a substantial retirement nest egg.

As Senator PAT MOYNIHAN, my colleague on the Senate Finance Committee, has pointed out, with annual deposits equal to just 2 percentage points of the current payroll tax, "A worker who spent 45 years with the Bethlehem Steel Company could easily find himself with an estate of half a million dollars. The worker could pass on that wealth to his or her heirs."

How remarkable!

Personal retirement accounts embody other enduring American values as well. Creating these accounts would give the majority of Americans who do not own any investment assets a new stake in America's economic growth—because that growth will be returned directly to their benefit. More Americans will be the owners of capital—not just workers.

Creating these accounts may encourage Americans to save more. Today, Americans save less than people in most countries, and even this low savings rate has declined in recent years. Personal retirement accounts will demonstrate how even small personal savings grow significantly over time.

Creating these accounts will help Americans to better prepare for retirement. According to one estimate, 60 percent of Americans are not actively participating in a retirement program other than Social Security. Indeed, most Americans have little idea of what they will need in order to retire when and how they want. Personal retirement accounts can help Americans—particularly Baby Boomers—better understand retirement planning.

And these accounts may point the way to a more flexible Social Security program. Today, Social Security is a "one-size-fits-all" program. People receive a fixed benefit based on earnings and the number of years worked, with the earliest benefits available at age 62. But if an individual takes early retirement but still wants to work, Social Security cuts his or her benefits. Personal accounts can be crafted to give individuals more control over retirement decisions, and eliminate the penalty for working.

Setting up a personal retirement accounts program will be a big job. Who will hold, manage, and invest the accounts? How much will it cost to run the program? What kinds of investment choices should be allowed? How to finance the accounts? The White House Conference should tackle each of these issues. Fortunately, there are proven models, such as the Federal Thrift Savings Plan, a pension savings and investment plan for Federal employees.

Indeed, I have introduced legislation, S. 263, the Personal Retirement Accounts Act of 1999, that would get accounts up and running with a portion of the budget surplus to answer just these questions.

Mr. President, personal retirement accounts have one other big promise. Poll after poll find that Social Security is the most popular Federal government program, deservedly so. But the same polls also show that many Americans, particularly young Americans, doubt they will receive benefits when they retire. Personal retirement accounts can provide the accountability and assurances that Americans are asking for, and restore the confidence of the American people in Social Security.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the Senator from Arizona, Senator McCAIN, be added as a cosponsor of the ABRAHAM amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I want to start by commending the distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee for his outstanding work in producing this budget. He has been such a leader in fiscal responsibility. Once again he has done an outstanding job in crafting this budget resolution. I am pleased to be a cosponsor of the amendment offered by my friend and colleague from Michigan, Senator ABRAHAM. This amendment would preserve and protect Social Security. I also commend Senator DOMENICI for his very innovative work in crafting this very important amendment.

President Clinton has proposed devoting 62 percent of the surplus over the next 15 years to shoring up Social Security. On the surface, that sounds good. After all, we are all committed to protecting Social Security. But let's take a closer look at the President's proposal.

On closer examination, the President's plan is nothing but a shell game. First, he devotes to the Social Security trust fund trust fund payroll taxes that already belong to Social Security. Then he lends this money to the Federal Government for new programs. The bottom line is that instead of preserving the money for Social Security, President Clinton actually ends up spending $158 billion of Social Security's money for programs completely unrelated to Social Security. Both the General Accounting Office and the Congressional Budget Office have pointed out the double counting and the other significant flaws in the President's proposal.

Social Security is currently running a surplus because the program is taking in more in payroll taxes than it is paying out in benefits. But, as the Presiding Officer well knows, this will not always be the case.

In 2013, payroll taxes will not be sufficient to pay benefits and the Social Security program will either have to raise taxes, cut spending, go further into debt, or use more general fund money, if we are to continue to meet our full obligation to Social Security beneficiaries. By the year 2030, the trust fund will be completely exhausted if we do not take steps to save the program. We certainly, given this dire picture, cannot afford to squander the Social Security surpluses by spending them on other programs.

The current Social Security surplus conceals the true picture of our national budget. But for the temporary Social Security surplus, the Federal Government would actually be running a $6 billion deficit this year. I want to repeat that. There is a lot of misunderstanding. A lot of people think that we actually have a surplus in this upcoming year. The fact is, the surplus is due entirely to the surplus in the Social Security trust fund. If we take out the Social Security surplus, we would in fact be running a $6 billion deficit.

The fact is, there is no real surplus in fiscal year 2000. We do not start to see real surpluses in the rest of the Government programs until the fiscal year 2001.

The amendment that I have cosponsored, which is before us today, expresses the sense of the Senate that we pass legislation that would lock in Social Security surpluses by mandating that trust fund dollars could be spent only for the payment of Social Security benefits for Social Security reform or to pay down our national debt. Under this lockbox proposal, Social Security funds could not be spent on non-Social Security programs. They also could not be used to finance tax cuts.

This legislation would establish in law a declining limit on the level of debt held by the public. These limits would decline in 2-year intervals by an amount equal to the Social Security trust fund surpluses for those years. Under this proposal, trust fund balances could be used to retire the debt, but not for new spending on programs unrelated to Social Security. The result of this innovative program is that public debt would decline by $417 billion. That is 32 percent more than it would under the President's proposal.

Mr. President, in 1998 alone, the Federal Government spent nearly $162 billion to make interest payments on our national debt. That amounts to more than 6.7 percent of total Federal spending. In passing this important legislation, we would free up this money that otherwise would have to be spent on interest payments on our national debt.

This amendment clearly affirms our commitment to preserving and protecting Social Security. It safeguards the Social Security trust fund from spending raids. It reduces our public debt. It lowers our interest payments.

I urge all of my colleagues to join me in supporting this very important initiative.

Once again, I commend the Senator from Michigan, Mr. ABRAHAM, and the Senator from New Mexico, Mr. DOMENICI, for their innovative approach in coming up with a program that will truly protect our Social Security surpluses.

I thank the Chair, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I will be offering an amendment. Have we dealt with the amendment of the Senator from Minnesota? I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. CRAPO. Reserving the right to object, I want to speak briefly on that amendment before we lay it aside, if possible, or can we come back to it?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I am pleased to join my good friends, Senators ABRAHAM, DOMENICI, and ASHCROFT, in supporting this amendment. I appreciate the courtesy allowing me to make these remarks before we set the amendment aside.

I particularly thank Senator DOMENICI for putting together a well-crafted budget that achieves the important principles of protecting Social Security, paying down the debt, and staying within the budget caps.

I have a very specific interest in the lockbox legislation that is being proposed, because over the last 6 years as I served in the House of Representatives, I advocated a lockbox concept which was, at that time, focused on taking the spending we save through budget battles and locking it away for paying down the national debt or reducing the deficit at that point in time, rather than allowing it to be spent on further Federal spending.

This lockbox legislation which I worked on in the House for the last 5 or 6 years passed the House four times, never to make it through the Senate or signed into law. So it is particularly pleasing to me to see the concept now being used as we move into a surplus environment in our budget process to allow us to lock away the Social Security surpluses and make sure that Congress does not continue the practices of the past in spending those surpluses on other Federal spending.

This amendment which is being discussed in this proposal recommends locking the Social Security surpluses by requiring that they are to be used to pay down the public debt, rather than allowing Congress to continue to spend those funds elsewhere. It is no different from what should happen under current practices when the entire Government runs a total surplus, but there is no mechanism to lock these funds away and prevent Congress from spending them.

Social Security surpluses help to pay for the rest of Government when it runs a deficit. Starting in 2001, it is expected that the Federal Government will run surpluses in the rest of the Government and will not rely on Social Security surpluses.

The amendment recommends establishing a declining limit on the level of debt held by the public. These limits would decline in 2-year intervals by the amount equal to the Social Security trust fund surpluses for those years, and those declining limits would dedicate Social Security surpluses to reducing the public debt, thereby not only reducing our debt but strengthening and stabilizing the Social Security trust funds at the same time.

The amendment also recommends establishing a 60-vote point of order against any legislation which results in the public debt limits specified in the law being exceeded.

This amendment reaffirms the off-budget treatment of Social Security and prohibits the inclusion of Social Security funds in budget totals.

A point I think that needs to be made is this: Today, across America, you hear many, many people calling for us to strengthen and protect Social Security. There are lots of different ideas being discussed about how we should accomplish that, but this proposed amendment does what everyone else is talking about. It makes it absolutely clear that those Social Security trust fund dollars will be set aside, they will be locked up, so they can be used for nothing other than reducing the public debt or funding a Social Security reform piece of legislation.

I do not see how anyone who professes to support stabilizing and strengthening our Social Security system cannot support this amendment. It is time we put into effect a lockbox mechanism to assure that neither this Congress, nor future Congresses, can take the Social Security trust funds and use them for any purposes other than that for which they were intended.

I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Does the Senator from Illinois want to respond to this amendment?

Mr. FITZGERALD. Mr. President, yes, I would like to speak to Senator ABRAHAM's amendment.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I will be happy, Mr. President, to yield to the Senator from Illinois.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. FITZGERALD. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of Senator ABRAHAM's amendment to ban our Government from continuing to plunder the Social Security trust funds. For many years, our Government has taken all of the money that goes into the Social Security trust funds, taken every cent and spent it on other programs. The fact of the matter is, there is now no money in the Social Security trust fund. There is just a pile of IOUs, and those IOUs do our country no good when we hit 2013 and Social Security taxes are insufficient to pay current benefits.

Come 2013, no matter what the balance of IOUs is in the Social Security trust fund, we are either going to have to cut benefits or raise taxes or dramatically increase our Government's borrowings in order to pay Social Security benefits. I applaud Senator DOMENICI, Senator ABRAHAM, and those who are working to ban our Government from plundering the Social Security trust fund.

I want to show the Senate what the President's budget projections are for the next few years and to raise some questions about those projections.

The President claims the budget will be in surplus through the year 2004 and is suggesting in the current fiscal year we will have a $79.3 billion surplus; next year, $117 billion; rising to a surplus of $207 billion in 2004.

There is a problem with this. As some may have noticed, our national debt is continuing to grow despite these proposed budget surpluses. In fact, if you look at the appendix to President Clinton's budget, which he claims is going to be in surplus from now until 2004, if you look in the back, you will find that our national debt is going to continue to rise.

I ask the Members of this body, Does it make any sense for our national debt to continue to rise when we have surpluses? How can our national debt rise if we have surpluses? Well, the answer to that question is, we do not really have surpluses. They are borrowing all of this money from the Social Security trust fund.

If you look back in history, we have borrowed $1.67 trillion from Government trust funds. And to date, as of the end of the last fiscal year, our Government had borrowed $730 billion from the Social Security trust fund. All that money that people all across the country have been paying for years in Social Security taxes, they knew some of it was going out to pay current benefits, but they also thought some of it was being set aside in a trust fund.

It turns out they have plundered that trust fund. There is no money in it except a bunch of IOUs. And when we borrow from these trust funds, it gets added to our national debt. So right now, people in this country are being told that we are running surpluses, but what they are not being told is that we are continuing to borrow from Social Security and other trust funds and that we are digging our hole deeper. We are making the national debt worse.

These are the amounts the President proposes to continue borrowing from the Social Security trust fund in his budget which makes projections out through 2004. This year he proposes borrowing $121 billion from the Social Security trust fund and $67 billion from other trust funds. That is the source of the surplus they have. But when you take that out, if you had an honest accounting, if the Government were not allowed to use deceptive accounting practices, it would be forced to show that, in fact, there is an ongoing deficit.

In any case, I applaud Senator ABRAHAM. He is absolutely on the right track. We need to protect the Social Security trust fund. That Social Security trust fund lockbox idea that Senator DOMENICI has worked on with many others is worthy of our pursuit. This is the only plan out there that will protect 100 percent of the Social Security trust fund.

I come from a banking background. For many years I worked in banking in my home State of Illinois. There is nothing more abhorrent to me than the notion of a trust fund being managed by the Government that is being raided by the Government. In our law in the private sector, the highest burden is imposed upon those who manage trust funds. Anybody who plundered a trust fund in the private sector would be sent off to prison. Any private employer in the United States who reached into their employees' pension fund and took all that money out and spent it on other programs would, under Congress' own laws, go to jail.

It is high time that Congress stop itself from raiding the Nation's pension funds, from raiding Social Security, and instead try to save the money that is going in there; do not spend it on other programs; do not touch it but treat it like a real trust fund. And I am delighted that we have made this effort. I think it will be a great fundamental breakthrough.

I applaud Senator DOMENICI and look forward to working with the rest of the Members of the Senate to achieve this very important goal.

Mr. President, thank you very much.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VOINOVICH). Who yields time?

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, we are going to offer an amendment, and we had worked out an understanding, one where we would have two Members on the Democrat side with an opportunity to speak. I expect to hear from Senator DURBIN after I am done.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask the Senator, are you going to offer an amendment while this amendment is still pending?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. We will set this aside. I ask—

Mr. DOMENICI. I wonder if you could tell us, if we leave things like they are, there is about how much time left on this amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 21 minutes 10 seconds. The Senator from New Jersey has 45 minutes.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Forty-five minutes on—

Mr. DOMENICI. This amendment.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. We looked at the amendment. I have not worked out an understanding yet. Why don't we take a couple minutes to see what we have there so we can be responsive. Is the debate wrapped up on your side?

Mr. DOMENICI. One more Senator wants to make brief comments, but that will be brief.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Is that Senator here now?

Mr. DOMENICI. I am willing to set it aside. I just wanted to see if we could understand how much time was still on it when we got back to it. But we can resolve that later.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I assume this is working off a 2-hour or 1-hour—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. First-degree amendments are covered by 2 hours.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Two hours. All right.

I ask unanimous consent that we lay aside the pending amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I want to speak before I offer my amendment, so I ask my time be taken off the bill itself.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has that right.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I thank you, Mr. President.

I want to try to organize a point of view here that is substantially different than we have heard for the past while, and I say that with all due respect to my colleagues. And I mean that sincerely.

We have developed in the Budget Committee, I think, an operating mode that says that everybody, every member of that committee, is entitled to respect for their point of view, with adequate time to discuss it. I have served on that committee for many years, and I think it is perhaps the most amiable, the most cooperative operation of the Budget Committee that I have seen. I commend the chairman, Senator DOMENICI, for his effort.

We have struck an agreement, kind of informally, about it, but it has worked. And we disagree sharply on points of view. And sometimes, as Senator DOMENICI has said, our faces get red. But he was warned, he told me, that red faces do not win amendments or win points of view. So we kind of dropped the red-face approach, the swollen veins, that kind of thing.

But here I will venture a little bit into dangerous territory, because what we have heard so far is the accusation of double counting and talking about the structure, not the significance, not the meaning, not the value of the program, but whether or not this counts doubly when we credit Social Security or credit Medicare by giving them Government IOUs. The U.S. Government IOUs have the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government.

I do not know where it is better, because I have met lots of people who have made lots of money. I was in the business world for years before I came to the Senate. I ran a big company, and a lot of the people I know who got surpluses, significant surpluses, invested them in Government bonds because they wanted to know that a certain part of their portfolios are protected by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government.

So even though interest rates are lower than you might normally get, that is the reserve, the kitty, as we call it sometimes, that they can always count on, no matter what happens with the stock market. So I do not know why it is such a sin to say to the Medicare trust fund or the Social Security trust fund, "Hey, invest your money in Government IOUs," because they are protected—first line—by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government.

To me, it makes sense, because to have the money lie there, funds lie there fallow, without gathering interest or return on the funds, depreciates the amount of spending that can be offered to beneficiaries in the later years.

I don't understand some of the scorn with which Government IOUs are treated. It doesn't make sense to me. I know and meet rich folks who keep much of their money in the U.S. Government IOUs.

In order to make the argument, there are some negatives applied with reference to those who made money paying the biggest taxes. If we have a tax reduction of 10 percent, why shouldn't the people who make all that money get a commensurate reduction, an equal reduction?

I want to confirm something because there is a question raised about whether a 10-percent tax cut is really there by direction of the Budget Committee. It certainly is not, because the Budget Committee doesn't have the right to do that; the Finance Committee does. And the chairman of the Finance Committee, the distinguished Senator from Delaware, Mr. ROTH, told Reuters that he was very much in favor of using the bigger-than-expected budget surplus to fund across-the-board income tax of 10 percent or more.

He goes on to say, "I don't think it's too big [the 10 percent income tax cut]; if anything, I would like to see it bigger."

That says something about someone of influence in the Republican Party and in this Senate. Again, he is a very distinguished Senator, long-serving Senator, and chairman of the Finance Committee. He is probably the most powerful Chair position that we have in the Senate.

He said it, 10 percent.

Now, back to where we were. Someone who earns an average of $800,000 a year, the top 1 percent of the income earners in the country, would get $20,000; and someone who earns $38,000 would get $99. The sarcastic or the sardonic tone that was used was if they made more, why shouldn't they get more? The difference is that when someone has earned $800,000, they don't need the $20,000 as much as the person who is making $38,000 or $39,000 needs some relief. Any family that has a $38,000-a-year income is not looking at luxury. They are not looking for a tax cut so they can buy a car or a boat.

I have heard it said that a rising tide lifts all boats. I know if you want to buy an expensive yacht, one that is over 100 feet long, the typical wait is 2 to 3 years. If someone has to wait 2 or 3 years to buy a yacht, I assure you that is quite a different position than someone who is making $700 or $800 a week supporting a family of four, trying to make sure that the kids can get an education, make sure there is a roof over their heads, and a decent homelife so they can enjoy some degree of the comforts of life. They can use the tax cuts.

Boy, I am for it 100 percent—targeted tax cuts to people who work hard and who need the money. I approve of the tax cuts that would support long-term care. I approve of the tax cuts that would support child care for modest-income people. Those are the kinds of tax cuts that distinguish this side of the aisle, the Democrats, from those on that side of the aisle.

I heard someone say something that struck me as being rather amusing—that the Democrats are the ones with the personal money. Some have it and some don't. That is true on both sides of the aisle. I am trying to think it through, but those I know who have worked hard to make their fortune earn respect for having done that, whether they are Republicans or Democrats. Some Members who didn't work hard but have money anyway are also decent people. It doesn't matter how much money you have; it is how much you have in your heart.

I come from a poor family, a family that hardly ever had a dinner together because we were always working in the store; one of us would be standing while the others were sitting and eating.

I have an understanding of what poverty or small incomes mean. I always thought that a good idea for incoming Senators and Congresspeople would be to spend a month or two in poverty, live in the kind of circumstances that we see in our cities and our rural communities. Live where you don't know what kind of food you will be able to give your children. Live where you don't know whether you will be disposed because you haven't paid the rent, and live where the best fun a child can have is to play ball in the street. We need a sprinkling of that in this place to bring an element of reality about what life is about and not talk about tax cuts for the rich in the same terms that we discuss tax cuts for hard-working people who need a little help with long-term care for a sick relative or an elderly parent. It is quite a different thing when we discuss things from that point of view.

The thing that matters most to modest-income people who have worked hard all their lives is to save Social Security. Turn the promise into reality, the promise that was made in 1935 when Social Security was conceived, the program that was conceived that said to people, work as hard as you can. Whether you work for a company and you lose your job along the way or you don't lose your job, Social Security is there for you. Full faith and credit of the U.S. Government will pay for it.

One of the worst afflictions we have in our society today, one of the worries we have, is that people are afraid they will lose their health insurance. It was said by one of my colleagues before, over 40 million people in this country are without health insurance. It is a devastating thought—the prospect of someone getting sick and not being able to maintain their health care coverage, watching not only their health go down the drain but their finances as well.

We have an obligation, I think, to make sure that every one of our citizens in this country has a chance at some kind of minimum health care, so they don't have to worry about going bankrupt if they run into an illness along the way.

AMENDMENT NO. 144

(Purpose: To ensure that Congress saves Social Security and strengthens Medicare before using projected budget surpluses for new spending or tax breaks)

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk, and I ask for its consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from New Jersey [Mr. LAUTENBERG] proposes an amendment numbered 144.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, add the following new section:

SEC. ____ SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE FIRST.

(a) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider—

(1) any bill, resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that would reduce revenues without offsetting them in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 until Congress first enacts legislation that—

(A) ensures the long-term fiscal solvency of the Social Security Trust Funds and extends the solvency of the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund by at least 12 years; and

(B) includes a certification that the legislation complies with subparagraph (A); or

(2) any bill, resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that would increase spending above the levels provided in this resolution, unless such spending increases are offset in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 until Congress first enacts legislation that—

(A) ensures the long-term fiscal solvency of the Social Security Trust Funds and extends the solvency of the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund by at least 12 years; and

(B) includes a certification that the legislation complies with subparagraph (A).

(b) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER.—

(1) WAIVER.—The point of order in subsection (a) may be waived or suspended only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) APPEALS.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under subsection (a).

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, this amendment stands for the proposition that before we spend a penny of any surplus we ought to work hard to save Social Security and Medicare. That is what our primary obligation ought to be.

This amendment would make it out of order to consider any new spending or revenue reductions before we have enacted legislation to ensure the long-term solvency of Social Security, and to extend the solvency of the Medicare hospital insurance trust fund by at least 12 years.

It has been said by our friends on the other side that we don't add a penny. Well, it is not so. We can disagree. I wouldn't call my friends on the other side dishonest if they disagree with me. I don't like it when we are called dishonest or deceptive or that the President of the United States is lying when he lays down a budget.

You can argue this thing from all sides of the discussion. Some think that OMB has a more reliable forecasting ability; some think CBO. We are obliged to respond to our needs by using CBO as a reference. The fact of the matter is, if there is a difference, it is not because someone is trying to cheat here or someone is being dishonest; it is a difference of view. Let the public hear it. Let the public listen to this debate.

As I look at things now, times are good today, but we still face tremendous long-term challenges. This is the time to deal with those challenges. We don't know how much of projected surpluses we will need. The Social Security trust fund is projected to become insolvent in 2032, and I don't hear many arguments about that.

At that point, revenues will only be sufficient to fund about three-quarters of the benefits that were initially promised. Mr. President, 2032 is not a long time in the scheme of things. It is long when you have as much white hair as I have, or as much as the chairman has, but it is only three decades away. Relatively small changes today can have a significant impact in the long run. If we wait too long, the changes necessary to establish long-term solvency may be too wrenching and too difficult to accomplish.

Meanwhile, Mr. President, Medicare's problems are even more urgent. The program's trust fund faces insolvency in 2008. That is not a long time away. We can't afford to wait much longer before we act to extend its life and to make those changes that would prolong the life of Medicare beyond even 2020, which we are trying to establish here.

This amendment simply asks the Senate to set its priorities straight. It says our first priority should be to save Social Security and Medicare. It says before we squander surpluses on new initiatives, on major tax cuts, let's do first things first and prepare for the future, because the retirement of millions of baby boomers and other younger Americans depends upon it. Once we have protected Social Security and Medicare, we can consider using any remaining surpluses for other purposes.

Mr. President, I want to be clear that this is not an anti-tax-cut amendment. Like the President, I strongly support targeted tax relief for middle-class families. I hope we are going to approve the child care and long-term tax credits that the President proposed, along with further tax cuts to promote savings. Nothing in this amendment would block those or any other tax cuts. The amendment simply says that before we use any of the surpluses—and I have to take one moment to remind everybody about where we were and where we are. In 1992, when President Clinton won the election, we were $290 billion in annual debt. Despite the optimistic forecasts of some, nobody really who thought a lot about the budget a year or two ago would have thought they would be looking at a potential budget surplus of over $100 billion in this year—$100 billion.

So I want to give credit where it is due. I don't always agree with the President. I don't agree, necessarily, with some of the budget proposals that his budget laid out before us. We voted against it in the Budget Committee. But the fact of the matter is, yes, with the work of people like Senator DOMENICI and others on the Republican side, as well as those of us on the Democratic side, we worked together in 1997, as I think we had never done before—at least in my memory here—to get a balanced budget in front of us, to get our fiscal house in order. It was a tremendous accomplishment. It is reflected in the confidence that people have in our stock markets and in investments in the country.

Mr. President, we can pass all kinds of tax cuts, but we must remember that all of these things come in priority order. This amendment, again, says before we use our surpluses, we should save Social Security and Medicare. So Congress can still pass as many tax cuts as it wants, even before we address those long-term problems—we would just have to pay for them—just so we don't use up projected surpluses. That should help give us the incentives we need to get the job done.

I also point out, Mr. President, that this amendment applies not just to tax cuts but also to new spending. We should not go on any big spending binges, even for worthy causes, until we know we have saved Social Security and Medicare. That is done in a prospective manner. It is a point in time when we can say with a degree of confidence that this is going to take care of the elongation of the life of Medicare; this is going to take care of the solvency of the Social Security program until 2075. That is what we want to do. We want to know that those things are accomplished, and it doesn't matter whether the spending on top of that is pursued through direct appropriations or through the Tax Code.

So, Mr. President, this amendment says let's keep our focus on the future, let's keep our priorities straight, let's save Social Security and Medicare first—that we do that before we pass either new spending or tax cuts that use projected budget surpluses. I hope we can assemble a point of view that constitutes agreement in that direction, and that we will join together and get enough votes from our friends on the other side of the aisle. I hope we can do it.

Mr. DORGAN. I wonder if the Senator will yield.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Yes, I am delighted to yield.

Mr. DORGAN. I found the presentation interesting. I ask the Senator from New Jersey, is it not the case that both of the proposals, the one from the majority side and the one from the minority side, coming from the Budget Committee, save all of the Social Security surplus, but the major difference is that the proposal offered by the Senator from New Jersey also proposes to move some resources to help deal with the Medicare issue?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. That is right.

Mr. DORGAN. As I ask that question, I intend to come to the floor following the Senator from Illinois and make a presentation on this issue of saving Social Security. I can recall a few years ago when dozens of people on the floor stood up and said that proposition is nothing but a gimmick. In fact, the proposal was to put in the Constitution a requirement that the Social Security revenues be considered part of ordinary revenues for the purpose of determining whether or not you have a budget surplus. I will come to the floor to talk about that.

I just say I am delighted that everybody apparently has now come to the same position on this question of whether we ought to save the Social Security surpluses for the purpose which they were intended in the first instance. But those of us who insisted that be done, against the wishes of those who wanted to put that practice in the Constitution about 3 or 4 years ago, were told our position was gimmickry.

It not only was not gimmickry, it was transcendental truth about what we ought to do with these resources. The Senator has it right, as does now the Senator from New Mexico: Let us save the Social Security surplus, but let us at the same time allow room, as the Senator from New Jersey does, to invest and strengthen Medicare at the same time. That is, I think, the purpose of the alternative offered by the Senator from New Jersey, which I think should commend it here to the Senate.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I thank my friend from North Dakota.

With that, Mr. President, I yield the floor. There is an understanding—just to confirm it—that the next speaker will also be from this side of the aisle. I assume the Senator from Illinois would have our amendment laid aside. Is that the idea?

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment be laid aside and I be allowed to address the bill.

Mr. DOMENICI. I didn't hear the request.

Mr. DURBIN. I asked that the amendment be laid aside for the purpose of a statement in support of the bill.

Mr. DOMENICI. Of course.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I thank the ranking Democrat on the committee, Senator LAUTENBERG from New Jersey, for his leadership. I also thank Senator DOMENICI for his leadership. We have disagreed, and in the course of my speech you will hear our areas of disagreement. My respect for him has not been diminished by those disagreements, and I continue to believe he is making a good-faith effort, as we all are, to come up with a responsible way to deal with our Federal budget in this challenging year. Oh, what a different challenge it is.

It was only 2 years ago on the floor of the Senate, we must recall, that we initiated the session by Senator ORRIN HATCH, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, coming to the floor and stacking up over the top of his head all of the deficit-ridden budgets of the last 30 years. He pointed scornfully at these budgets and said, "This Congress cannot contain itself and control its spending, and only with a constitutional amendment, the balanced budget amendment, giving to Federal judges and the courts the authority to stop Congress from spending, can we ever hope to reach the day where we will put deficits behind us and live in that wonderful land of milk and honey called surplus."

Well, here we are 24 months later with no constitutional amendment, no balanced budget amendment, no new authority in the Federal courts to restrain congressional spending, and we are debating a surplus. Now, I will concede, as my colleague from Illinois mentioned earlier, that the surplus in the initial years we are discussing is a surplus in trust funds, particularly the Social Security trust fund.

What that means, of course, is that employers and employees across America are paying more into the Social Security program than is needed to pay out to the beneficiaries. The excess is being saved for the eventuality that people like myself—the baby boomer generation—will live long enough to go to the Social Security window and pick up a check. We want to make sure there is some money there not only for ourselves but for others. The question is, What to do with the remainder of the surplus? If we are going to dedicate 62 percent of any surplus in the future to the Social Security trust fund, what will we do with the rest?

That is what this budget resolution debate is all about, because it comes down to some very basic choices. As a family's budget is a series of choices, so the Nation's budget is a series of choices. The choices that have been made by the Republican majority in presenting their budget resolution are different than those of us on the Democratic side. We believe, as they do, that at least 62 percent of all of the surpluses in the near future should be dedicated to making sure that Social Security is solvent. Not good enough that the program will be solvent until the year 2032. We want to have an extended life beyond that.

Then we get into our areas of controversy—a significant controversy for American families—because we believe on the Democratic side that 15 percent of any surpluses should then be dedicated to reducing the debt in Medicare, the health insurance program for the aged and disabled, a program that is literally a lifeline—for 40 million Americans will go broke in the year 2008 if Congress does not act. The Democrats believe that we need to commit ourselves to Medicare solvency and, therefore, we seek in our budget resolution to dedicate 15 percent of future surpluses to Medicare.

On the other side of the ledger is a stark contrast, because the Republican budget resolution does not dedicate one penny—not one penny—to Medicare. Instead, they want the money to go toward tax cuts. There can't be two more appealing words in the English language for a politician to utter than "tax cuts." To think that you could stand before an audience and say to them, "We are going to let you keep more of your money, the Government won't take it," is appealing.

I suppose we on the Democratic side could join in that chorus, but we don't believe that is a responsible course of action. We believe that we have an obligation to Medicare to make certain that its future is strong and is right. Before we suggest a tax cut of any magnitude to any person in America, first we must meet our responsibilities. The good part of meeting our responsibility is that we not only guarantee the future solvency of Medicare but at the same time we pay down the national debt.

Arranged before me here on the Senate floor are Senate pages, young people from high school who come here and work in the Senate, and do a great job. I am glad they are here. I am sure they are hoping that some of the laws that we will pass will make America a better place for them to live. This is a law which I think addresses the concern that they may not have today but they might in the future.

If we have our way, in the Democrat budget resolution, we will start reducing the national debt that we have to pay interest on every year. How much is the interest payment this year on the national debt? It is about $1 billion a day, $355 billion that we are paying with Federal tax dollars each year to service the national debt that has been accumulated over the history of the United States.

We believe on the Democratic side that we should set on a course of action dedicating money to Social Security and Medicare at the same time bringing down that national debt, so that we can see in the lifetime of the young people who serve as pages here a dramatic decline in the annual interest cost to the Federal Government. What it means for their generation is more money available, either for tax cuts or for programs they think are important for the future of this country. But we hope to give them that choice.

On the other side of the aisle, the Republican budget resolution says: "No. Let's not save the money. Let's not put the money in Medicare. Let's give it away as tax cuts."

In fairness to the chairman of the Budget Committee, he has not specified what kind of tax cut package he has in mind. Some Members of his party have already expressed themselves. For example, the House Budget Committee chairman, Mr. KASICH of Ohio, has suggested a 10-percent across-the-board tax cut. I want the American people to understand what that tax cut means to them as opposed to the Democratic budget which seeks to bring down the national debt and to make sure that Medicare is well funded.

The Kasich tax cut, the 10-percent tax cut, would mean for 60 percent of American working families an average of $8.25 a month in tax cuts. That is a lot of money to put away and to save up for a vacation. In all honesty, it is not enough money to pay for the cable TV bill. But there are those who believe—as I mentioned, Mr. KASICH, proposals on the Republican side—that is preferable, to give that sort of tax cut as opposed to putting the money into Medicare, as opposed to paying down the national debt. I think they are wrong.

I think, if you look at the alternatives, it is very graphically demonstrated that in this budget that we are presently considering—the Republican budget—there will be some $831 billion in tax breaks, and nothing for Medicare; not a penny for Medicare. That, I think, is a serious mistake. It is a serious mistake, because, frankly, for 40 million Americans it results in some very, very grave decisions. Some people say, "Well, Medicare is just a program for the elderly." I know better. I think most families do. It is not just for the elderly. It is for the children and grandchildren of the elderly to have the peace of mind that their parents and grandparents are going to have good, quality, affordable medical care. It meant a lot to my family, and I think it means a lot to families across America.

If we don't take the money that the Democrats propose in their budget resolution and put it into Medicare, I would suggest to you that the alternatives for that program are grim—cutting benefits for seniors, asking seniors and disabled Americans who are often on fixed incomes to shoulder substantially higher costs, significantly reducing payments to providers, well below the cost of providing quality medical care, or increasing payroll taxes. I don't want to be a party to that. I think that is one of the most onerous taxes in America. If we don't face our obligation to make sure Medicare is sound, it could lead to increases in payroll taxes.

There was a question raised by some as to whether or not the Democratic budget resolution will, in fact, do any good for Medicare. I have in my hand here a letter that was sent to Members of Congress that is offered by the Department of Health and Human Services, Health Care Financing Administration, which says quite clearly, yes, the Democratic budget resolution is good for Medicare. It will make sure that Medicare remains solvent up to 10 years beyond the date that we currently see solvency ending.

And, of course, if we face Medicare without these additional funds, take a look at what it does. In the area of provider cuts, to extend Medicare to 2020 without new investment, as the Democrats propose, and without benefit cuts of payroll tax increases, we would have to cut payments to providers by 18 percent or more. That is a cut in the Nation of $349 billion, and over 10 years in Illinois alone $14.3 billion.

I contacted the Illinois hospital administrators a few years ago when we were in the midst of the same debate, and said to the Illinois hospital administrators, if we have this kind of cut in Medicare payments, what will happen? For many of the hospitals dependent on Medicare—these are hospitals in rural areas, hospitals in the inner city—they would face closure. It is just that serious. The Illinois Hospital Health System Association tells me that even before the last round of cuts, 25 percent of Illinois hospitals were taking a loss on their in-patient Medicare costs.

If we don't act responsibly and adopt President Clinton's approach and the Democratic budget approach, if we don't put money in Medicare, hospitals all across America—in New Jersey, in New Mexico, in Maine, in States across America—are going to face the same kind of pressure.

Second, there are those who suggest let's put the burden of the cost of Medicare reform on the backs of the seniors and disabled. That might extend the solvency of Medicare, but at a very high cost. To date, on average, seniors pay 19 percent of their income to purchase the health care that they need. And Medicare is currently only paying half of their bills. Many seniors live on fixed incomes. The median total annual income of Americans over the age of 65 is a mere $16,000. And that is hardly a huge sum of money for people to survive. For seniors over 85 it plummets to $11,251. For the oldest and frailest in America, such as those using home health services, the average income is less than $9,000.

Can someone with this level of income really afford to pay more for Medicare so we can give tax cuts to some of the wealthiest people in this country? I think that is really not fair. I think most Americans would react the same: $8.25 in tax cuts for 60 percent of America's working families, is that really a valid tradeoff if we are going to impose greater burdens on seniors under the Medicare program?

Medicare reform may involve tough choices but it should not involve mean choices. Reform and investment are needed to strengthen Medicare. There are those who say if you just put the money in Medicare as the Democrats propose, they are just never going to reform the system. But the reality is, the Medicare program has grown. The number of beneficiaries has doubled since the program was created, and Americans are living longer. I think there is a fair argument to be made that one of the reasons Americans are living longer is because they now have access to quality health care after retirement.

There was a day, and I can remember as a child, when grandparents moved into the homes of your parents. It was expected. Then we tried to scrape up enough money to make sure medical bills were paid, and often they were not. Those days are behind us because of Social Security and Medicare. Before Medicare, less than 50 percent of retirees had health insurance. Now virtually every elderly American has health insurance.

So here is the priority question for us. How much do we value increased life expectancy? How much do we value the independence of seniors who can live confident that they will receive quality health care under Medicare? Are the people of my generation, who are working and contributing to the surplus, hopefully soon, willing to defer gratification of a tax cut of small magnitude to invest in a retirement insurance program for 40 million Americans? I think they are. The choice, of course, is whether or not we forgo the Republican tax cut and put the money into Medicare and reducing the national debt.

I would like to take that question to the American people by way of referendum. I think I know what the answer is. It is not just a Democratic idea. It was Alan Greenspan who came to Congress and said: Suppress the urge to cut taxes or to increase spending. You should, instead, reduce the national debt, the debt that is taking so much money in interest service payments each year. It is sound economics and it is sound for this country.

We need the strength to address the needs of the Medicare program. Changes will have to be made. But none of the programs being considered presently by the bipartisan Medicare Commission really save much money in the short term. Some of the proposals, such as raising the age of retirement, ask beneficiaries to pay a lot more. They even eliminate graduate medical education, so important to medical schools across America. We need to make sure there is an infusion of money into Medicare now to keep it strong. It is very unwise to enact large tax cuts, to commit to those tax cuts before we secure both Medicare and Social Security.

Let me say a word about one Medicare reform, too, that I have addressed in the past. I, for one, am opposed to the concept of raising the eligibility age for Medicare. Some have suggested we raise it to the age of 67 as a way of reforming Medicare. The reason for my opposition is personal and it is strong. I had a brother who retired from a well-paid job, working for a major company. He retired early. They promised him a pension and health care benefits. He ran into some problems with his health. He was required to have some major surgery and after his retirement with his company his plan canceled his health care benefits. It was before he reached the age of 65. He literally, then, had everything at risk in terms of his family's life savings and his plans for retirement because he had no health insurance protection and had to wait until he reached the age of 65 to qualify for Medicare.

There are too many Americans falling into this trap. I do not want to see us extend it. Instead, I think we need to have reforms in Medicare that are sensible and we need to have a budget that is dedicated to making certain that the surplus that we have now and in the near future is really focused on reducing the national debt and focused, first and foremost, on strengthening Social Security and Medicare.

Ask the American people: Would you give up the tax cut proposed on the Republican side of the aisle to guarantee that Medicare is going to be solvent for 10 more years? That we will not have to close hospitals? That we will not have to increase payroll taxes for Medicare? That we will not have to slash benefits? I think the answer will come back resoundingly: Stick with the programs that are so critical to millions of Americans. Make certain the Democratic approach in the budget resolution is the one that finally succeeds.

We can put off this tax cut debate to a later time, and let's hope our economy continues to grow so we can consider it. But before we do it, the tax cuts, if any, should be targeted to those who really need them, and we should make sure that Social Security and Medicare are still our highest priority.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GREGG). The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I yield myself 1 minute. I just want to say to Senator DURBIN, I did not know my colleague before he came to the Senate. Obviously, we do not agree on a lot of things. But I compliment him on his participation. He had, I think, many things going on, but he is a valued member of the committee and I think he lent some of that atmosphere, that we were all working very hard to get our job done. It was about as good a 3 days as I have spent on committee work, and I thank the Senator for his share in that.

Mr. President, this consent agreement has been cleared on the minority side and on our side.

I ask unanimous consent that at 3 this afternoon, the Senate proceed to a vote on or in relation to the Abraham amendment No. 143, to be followed by a vote on or in relation to the Lautenberg amendment No. 144, with the time between now and then equally divided in the usual form. Finally, I ask that no second-degree amendments be in order to the amendments.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the Chair.

Would the Senator like to use part of this 22 minutes? The Senator is free to speak on whatever he likes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, we have a magnificent contrast in approaches to the budget here this year, as we often have in the past.

The budget resolution that the Senator from New Mexico has presented to us is, in fact, a true balanced budget. The budget resolution presented to us by the President of the United States, in fact, spends more than 20 percent of the Social Security surpluses over the next 5 years on programs that are totally unrelated to Social Security.

The President has promised that all of the Social Security surpluses will go into the Social Security system. In fact, his budget does not keep that promise. The proposal before us from the Budget Committee and from the Senator from New Mexico does keep that promise and calls for the creation of a lockbox that prevents the spending of Social Security money for other purposes and for other programs.

Secondly, we do face a crisis in Medicare. The Medicare Part A hospital insurance trust fund will, in fact, go bankrupt in the year 2008, postponed by actions taken by the Congress just a year ago.

We have had as our creation a bipartisan Medicare Commission work on long-term solutions for Medicare over the course of the last year. A majority of the members of that Commission, but not a sufficient number, have voted for true reform in Medicare. That true reform has been blocked by the President who instead proposes simply a paper transfer, which will literally paper over the serious problems that Medicare faces until they are far more serious than they are today and provide a burden for our children and grandchildren that in all probability cannot be met.

The current issue of Newsweek puts this dilemma in graphic terms, stating:

Can the faltering Medicare system be saved? Probably not this year. The reason is politics. Democrats privately admit they do not want a Medicare deal because it would deprive them of a powerful campaign issue. What many Democrats want is a good issue, not good policy, and good policy is what is needed.

Good policy will be available. The politics are reflected in the amendment on which we will vote shortly from the Senator from Illinois that simply papers over the problem itself.

Third, tax relief. This budget resolution, sponsored by the senior Senator from New Mexico, calls for real tax relief for the American people to be taken out of the non-Social Security surplus over the course of the next decade. It gives that offer because it presumes the logical conclusion that if we have a surplus over and above a Social Security surplus, it means that the people of the United States have been overtaxed and that that money should stay in their pockets to be used in the way in which they wish.

The President's proposal, which actually increases taxes over the next decade by almost $100 billion, feels that the worst thing we can possibly do is allow Americans to spend more of their own money. Amendment after amendment, which we will be facing today and tomorrow and Friday, attempt not only to prevent tax relief from taking place this year, but prevent tax relief from taking place for 10 years, for 12 years and, in the case of one amendment we expect, for 75 years. The worst thing that could possibly happen, according to many on the other side, would be to provide tax relief for the American people out of a genuine non-Social Security surplus.

How do they do that? Partly by amendments such as the Durbin amendment, but primarily through the 70 or more new spending programs that the President has included in his budget, new spending programs that will spend money not only from the non-Social Security surplus but to the tune of more than $100 billion out of the Social Security surplus itself.

Mr. President, that is the improper way in which to go. We should deal with the Medicare crisis in a straightforward Medicare reform—a difficult debate but a solution that is actually possible, as indicated by one of the leading Members of the Democratic Party in this body, Senator BREAUX, in his chairmanship of that Medicare Reform Commission—through real Social Security reform. We must put the entire Social Security surplus aside in a lockbox so that it cannot be spent on all of the new and increased programs advocated by the President's budget. As a consequence, the Abraham amendment is a vitally important amendment and a key to the debate on this budget resolution.

To summarize, the budget resolution before us proposed by the Budget Committee, under the leadership of my friend, the senior Senator from New Mexico, the chairman, truly protects Social Security, truly balances the budget of the United States, and pays down the debt, truly anticipates Medicare reform that is substantive and not inform only, truly limits spending on other programs and truly returns the surpluses that are appropriately returned to the people of the United States to the taxpayers who now are overtaxed in a good economy to pay for them.

Mr. President, the Abraham amendment should be supported, the Durbin amendment should be rejected, and we should go forth and adopt this budget resolution, generally speaking, in the form in which it finds itself at the present time. It is only the first step. Many difficult steps remain. But if we do so, if, in fact, we limit our insatiable appetite for spending, I believe we can promise the American people a strong and growing economy for a considerable period of time in the future.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I have conferred with the distinguished Senator from New Jersey, Mr. LAUTENBERG, the ranking member of this committee, and we concur that I should seek unanimous consent of the Senate, and I so do, that the time that we use for the vote be counted against the basic budget resolution time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I thank the occupant of the Chair for the excellent suggestion, which is where I got the idea.

Mr. President, we had two people speak under the 22 minutes. Maybe the Senator from New Jersey would like to speak or someone else.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, how much time do we have remaining on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico has 9½ minutes, and the Senator from New Jersey has 18 minutes.

AMENDMENT NO. 144

Mr. DOMENICI. I am going to proceed for 3 or 4 minutes on my time awaiting the arrival of Senators with whom Senator LAUTENBERG is in touch.

First of all, everybody should know this amendment, offered by the distinguished Senator from New Jersey, is not germane to the budget resolution. So at an appropriate time, when all the time has been yielded back, I will raise a point of order, at which time I assume the Senator from New Jersey will seek to waive that.

I will suggest some things now about why our budget is right and why this amendment, even though it is not germane, is not the right thing to do. I want to start by quoting a Democratic Senator who spent a great deal of time and effort trying to reform the Medicare program. The amendment of the distinguished Senator from New Jersey says, "I like the spending part of Senator DOMENICI's budget," although I am sure he would not like to see it in effect for awhile. He said, "Leave that alone." If he had not done that, we would have said you can spend all the surplus. Obviously, he did that.

Then the Senator said, "You can't return any of this surplus tax money to the American taxpayer unless and until you have a reform for both Social Security and Medicare." Here is what one of the Democratic Senators, Senator BREAU from Louisiana, said:

Medicare must not be used as a wedge issue any longer. The question before this Congress is not whether to cut taxes or whether to save Medicare. That is not the choice we are facing. I support a tax cut [although he says targeted] and I am dedicated to saving Medicare. It is not an either/or proposition.

I am glad that is not the Senator from New Mexico making that statement, although I could make it. There is no question in my mind that is correct. As a matter of fact, it seems to this Senator that if all we had before us was the President's proposal on Medicare, which gradually, bit by bit—most of the proposals of the President's budget are going to be refused in the Senate. We are going to adopt the Abraham amendment. That says to the President: "You were not right in saying you were saving Social Security trust funds; you were saving only a part of it and you were spending a part of it." This first vote is going to say you cannot spend any of it and proposes how a lockbox might be structured if and when we can get the legislation up to vote on that.

Now we are talking about Medicare and, obviously, before we are finished here, no one is going to be for the President's Medicare proposals—or few are—because actually it does not do anything. It purports to do something, but it does nothing. It does not spend a penny on prescription drugs. As a matter of fact, it does not spend a penny of new money to fix Medicare at all.

The budget before us spends $190 billion to $200 billion more than the President and fully funds Medicare. It does not cut $20 billion out of Medicare, which the President cut out.

Then it says: "Let's get on with reform and fix it; let's stop talking about things in the air; let's put it on paper and let's start voting."

We say there is another $100 billion left over, not from Social Security, not for returning money to the taxpayers, another 100 that we say can be used, if needed, for Medicare.

That is going to solve Medicare well beyond the 12 years that the distinguished Senator from New Jersey seeks. He seeks a 12-year extension of the program. That program, which is described in our budget, can solve it for much longer than 12 years.

The problem is, we do not want to give the American taxpayers a break unless and until we have the reform accomplished, and we do not even have a proposal from the President of the United States. It is grossly unfair, in my opinion.

Clearly, the time has come to reward the taxpayers who have been working hard to keep this economy going, putting in more and more of their tax dollars. They ought to get some of it back. We ought to be for keeping the economy expanding and growing, producing jobs and vitality.

If you look around the world, West Germany is in trouble, and that means most of Europe is going to be in trouble, not just Asia, and we are going to be the bastion of growth and prosperity. We better be ready with some tax cuts for American business and for the American taxpayer if we want another 6 or 7 years of prolonged, sustained recovery. That is the kind of thing we ought to be doing, and it is done by this budget, leaving the Congress to decide what kind of tax reductions they want in the future.

This budget does not prescribe that. Certain Republicans have ideas, and certain Democrats have ideas. This Senator, my good friend from Louisiana, has ideas. His would be for targeted tax cuts. I do not know what the occupant of the Chair would be for, but he would have some.

Only one set of ideas is going to be passed. It is going to be passed ultimately by committees after debate and committee hearings and the like. The question is not whether some of us are for an across-the-board tax cut like John Kennedy was for; the question is, Are we going to provide anything for tax cuts? The Lautenberg amendment says no. I believe we should not adopt it, and we should get on with the budget format and plan contained in the budget before us.

I reserve the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield 6 minutes?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. If the Senator will just give me about 2 minutes to respond to Senator DOMENICI.

I just say that though the quote from Senator BREAU is that it is not an either/or proposition, the fact is that the Republican priority—and I will do the unheard of; I will hold up my own sign—that the Republican priority for the surplus has made it either/or. We have tax breaks for the 10-year period, over $800 billion, $831 billion, and Medicare, zero. So if we want to discuss what we are going to do for Medicare, I guess there is some thought that you can help it by giving it nothing, because that is what is planned. So if we are going to use the quote here, then I think we have to use it in the context of reality.

With that, since the Senator from Massachusetts had asked for the floor, Mr. President, I yield—how much time?

Mr. KENNEDY. Six minutes.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I yield 6 minutes to the Senator from Massachusetts.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I have listened over the course of the presentations earlier this morning about how the Republican budget is going to try and solve the problems in Medicare and also with regard to prescription drugs, and how inadequate the President's program has been in terms of resolving Social Security and Medicare. I am glad to hear the interpretations of my good friends on the other side.

The fact of the matter is, the President's program, in allocating the resources for Social Security with 62 percent of the surplus, has been basically endorsed by eight Nobel laureates in economics and over 100 economic professors, along with Alan Greenspan. If you listen to our colleagues out here, you would think it was a nondescript program. But the fact is, it is a solid program. It is a sensible program and a responsible program.

The chairman of the Budget Committee talks about all the money that is going to be there in Social Security. He talks about how they are going to add $190 billion to Medicare. They have to have it. They are not adding any money. That is what the cost of the program is going to be in the outer years. They do not dare cut back on that program. That is necessary for the very existence of the program over that period of time.

So when they come out and say, "We're adding all of this money and protecting the Medicare program," that is poppycock; otherwise, they would have to justify further cuts in the program. These are the best estimates for a continuation of the program at the present rate. That is all.

They have this wonderful other program that they talk about that is going to be available. I just refer our colleagues to the Budget Committee report for the concurrent resolution on the budget, and look on page 4, at about the middle of the page, about "Additional On-Budget Surpluses." They talk about:

It is estimated, at this time, that nearly $133 billion in on-budget surpluses could result if the resolution were . . . implemented.

That has been revised to $100 billion. Now, listen—listen—to this fund that is going to be there. At one moment it is for prescription drugs and at another moment it is for Medicare and at another moment it is for the transition to Medicare reform and at another moment it is for national disasters. Look what they say:

These additional funds, if estimates prove accurate, would further retire debt held by the public or could be made available to assist funding of any transition costs to implement reforms in the Medicare programs that would significantly extend the solvency of that program through a reserve fund mechanism adopted by the Committee. Alternatively, the on-budget surplus projected by the resolution could be needed for funding unexpected disasters and emergencies over this period.

It does not even refer to prescription drugs. It does not even mention it. You talk about double counting—you can come over to page 90, and you will see how they double count it over there. We will come back to that. You tie up that fund in terms of prescription drugs in such a way you will not even get an aspirin out of this particular proposal, Mr. President.

I just want to point out that they talk about the fund that they are going to have with the $100 billion surplus. It may be for emergencies. The Budget Committee knows you average $9- or $10 billion a year in that particular program. But if we look at the payout for the budget—and I just refer you to the budget, S. Con. Res. 20.

Look on page 5, look at line 18. For the year 2000, is there going to be anything in there for Medicare? No. It is $6 billion in debt. How about line 19, fiscal year 2001? Anything in there for Medicare transition? Anything in there for prescription drugs? Anything in there for emergencies? Zero. What about line 20, for the fiscal year 2002? Zero. What about for fiscal year 2003? Zero. What about for fiscal year 2004? There is $2,899,000,000. Isn't that something? This is their program for saving Medicare. This is their program, their own figures.

If I have ever heard something that makes absolutely no sense—how can any member of the majority in the Budget Committee stand up on this floor and say that they have anything worthwhile in here to protect Medicare?

I say to the Senator, it is $686 billion. Even if you use the whole $100 billion, it is $686 billion you are going to need over 15 years, so you do not have enough in here to even begin to save Medicare. All we are trying to get is honesty in budgeting.

Under the Democratic program, we take all 15 percent and set it aside. You can make these debatable points that, well, you can't really transfer the funds. Of course you can't. You have to change the law to be able to do it. But we understand what is being done out here, Mr. Chairman and Senators. We understand what is being done. We are allocating and indicating what our priorities are. And we are going to save Social Security on the one hand, and we are going to use that 15 percent for Medicare. And we are not going to use this $100 billion that does not provide a single cent for 5 years and can be used either for disasters or for any other program that has been outlined in the Budget Committee's report.

That is not saving Medicare. The amendment of the Senator from New Jersey, Senator LAUTENBERG, does the job. And the amendment of Senator CONRAD does the job. We will also have an opportunity to offer something that will do it.

So Mr. President, I think it is worthwhile going beyond the rhetoric and giving our Members a chance to look through both the report and the legislation to try and find out who really is interested in preserving Medicare. The votes that are going to be offered here later this afternoon, starting with Senator LAUTENBERG's, and Senator CONRAD's, will give us an opportunity to do that.

The principle set forth in the Lautenberg amendment goes to the heart of this budget debate: We should not liquidate the surplus by enacting tax cuts before we solve the significant financial problems facing Social Security and Medicare. I wholeheartedly agree. Placing Social Security and Medicare on a firm financial footing should be our highest budget priorities. The surplus gives us a unique opportunity to extend the long-term solvency of those two vital programs without hurting the vulnerable elderly who depend upon them. We should seize that opportunity. Two-thirds of our senior citizens depend upon Social Security retirement benefits for more than fifty percent of their annual income. Without it, half of the nation's elderly would fall below the poverty line. These same retirees living on fixed incomes rely upon Medicare for their only access to needed health care. For all of them, this budget does absolutely nothing. It does not provide one new dollar to support Social Security or to support Medicare. It squanders the historic opportunity which the surplus has given us.

On the subject of Social Security, the Republican budget is an exercise in deception. The rhetoric surrounding its introduction conveys the impression that the Republicans have taken a major step toward protecting Social Security. In truth, they have done nothing to strengthen Social Security. Their budget would not provide even one additional dollar to pay benefits to future retirees. Nor would it extend the life of the Trust Fund by one more day. It merely recommits to Social Security those dollars which already belong to the Trust Fund under current law. That is all their so-called "lockbox" does. By contrast, President Clinton's proposed budget would contribute $2.8 trillion new dollars of the surplus to Social Security over the next fifteen years. By doing so, his budget would extend the life of the Trust Fund by more than a generation to beyond 2050.

Not only does the Republican plan fail to provide new revenue to extend the life of the Social Security Trust Fund, it does not even effectively guarantee that the existing payroll tax revenues will be used to pay Social Security benefits. In essence, there is a trap door in the Republican "lockbox". Their plan would allow Social Security payroll taxes to be used to finance unspecified "reforms". This opens the door to risky schemes that would use the Social Security surplus to finance private retirement accounts at the expense of Social Security's guaranteed benefits. Such a privatization plan could actually make Social Security's financial picture far worse than it is today, necessitating deep benefit cuts. A genuine "lockbox" would prevent any such diversion of funds, but not the Republican version. A genuine "lockbox" would guarantee that those dollars would be in the Trust Fund when needed to pay benefits to future recipients. The "lockbox" in this budget does not.

While the Republicans claim that they too support using the surplus for debt reduction, they are still unwilling to use it in a way that will help save Social Security for future generations. There is a fundamental difference between the parties on how the savings which will result from debt reduction should be used. The federal government will realize enormous savings from paying down the debt. As a result, billions of dollars that would have been required to pay interest on the national debt will become available each year for other purposes. President Clinton believes those debt service savings should be used to strengthen Social Security. So do I. But the Republicans refuse to commit those dollars to Social Security. Their budget does nothing to increase Social Security's ability to pay full benefits to future generations of retirees.

Currently, the federal government spends more than 11 cents of every budget dollar to pay the cost of interest on the national debt. By using the Social Security surplus to pay down the debt over the next fifteen years, we can reduce the debt service cost to just 2 cents of every budget dollar by 2014; and to zero by 2018. Such prudent fiscal management now will produce an enormous savings to the government in future years. Since it was payroll tax revenues which made the debt reduction possible, those savings should in turn be used to strengthen Social Security when it needs additional revenue to finance the baby boomers' retirement after 2030. Rather than paying interest to bond-holding investors today, our plan would use that money to finance Social Security benefits tomorrow.

This is analogous to the situation of a couple with young children and a mortgage. They know they will have a major expense fifteen years down the road when their children reach college age. They use their extra money now to pay down their home mortgage ahead of schedule. As a result, in fifteen years the mortgage will be greatly reduced or even paid off. Thus, the dollars that were going to pay the mortgage each month will become available to finance college for the children. In the same way, the federal government is reducing its debt over the next fifteen years, so that it can apply the savings to Social Security when the baby boomers retire.

That is what the President's budget proposes. It would provide an additional $2.8 trillion to Social Security, most of it debt service savings, between 2030 and 2055. As a result, the current level of Social Security benefits would be fully financed for all future recipients for more than half a century. It is an eminently reasonable plan. But Republican members of Congress oppose it.

During the budget debate, the Republicans will proclaim that this year, unlike last year, Social Security tax dollars are not being used to pay for their tax cut. This year they are not proposing to loot billions of dollars from the Social Security Trust Fund. Undeniably a step in the right direction. But hardly sufficient progress. They are still unwilling to use the surplus to save Social Security, still unwilling to use surplus dollars to extend the ability of the Social Security Trust Fund to pay full benefits to future generations.

Sadly, the Republican response to the financial problems facing Medicare is the same. The crisis facing Medicare is much more severe than the financial problems facing Social Security. Medicare will become insolvent in less than a decade unless we take decisive action to extend it. President Clinton's budget would do that. It would devote fifteen percent of the surplus, nearly $700 billion, over the next fifteen years to financially strengthening Medicare. As a result, it would have sufficient resources to fully fund current health care benefits to at least 2020. This would give us the time which is necessary to gradually reform the program in a way which will protect the elderly beneficiaries who depend upon it. However, the Republicans rejected this initiative to save Medicare. Their budget will not extend the life of the Medicare Trust Fund for one day. I will have a great deal more to say later in the debate about the harm that this budget will do to Medicare.

The budget Republicans have brought to the floor does not provide one new dollar to finance Social Security or Medicare benefits. What it does provide is nearly $800 billion new dollars for tax cuts over the next decade. Tax cuts, not strengthening Social Security and Medicare, is their first priority. Budgets speak louder than words. The Republican budget tells us much more candidly than their rhetoric where the GOP's real commitment lies.

The Republican budget would devote $778 billion to tax cuts during the next ten years—before fixing Social Security, and before funding Medicare for the next generation. Those who wrote this budget were not thinking about the two-thirds of our senior citizens who rely on Social Security retirement benefits for more than half their annual income. They clearly were not thinking of the elderly who depend on Medicare for their only access to health care. The pleas of the elderly have fallen on deaf ears.

When the Republicans wrote this budget, they had a very different group of people in mind. While the budget itself does not specify the precise form of tax cut, the Republican leadership has already called for a 10% across-the-board tax rate cut. Such a tax cut would disproportionately benefit the nation's highest-income taxpayers. The Treasury Department's analysis of this proposal shows that the top one percent of earners would receive 35% of the benefits. The top twenty percent of earners would receive 65% of the benefits. By contrast, approximately 45 million Americans would get no benefit at all.

While an across-the-board income tax cut may sound fair at first hearing, it would in fact be grossly inequitable. Under the Republican leadership's proposal, sixty percent of American taxpayers would share just nine percent of the total tax savings, an average of less than $100 per person per year. Clearly, the Republicans are not thinking about the needs of working families and their elderly parents.

This amendment offered by Senator LAUTENBERG would set us on a different, more responsible course. It would prevent using the surplus to fund tax cuts until we have solved the financial problems facing Social Security and Medicare. This approach would preserve the resources which are needed to guarantee the long-term solvency of these two historic programs without harming future beneficiaries. It is the right thing to do.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Who yields time?

Mr. BAUCUS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I yield 8 minutes to the Senator from Montana.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I want to follow on the remarks of my good friend from Massachusetts, Senator KENNEDY, because I think he, with great articulation, hits the nail on the head. We are talking here not about gimmicks but what is the right way, the most solid way to put a budget together and to protect Social Security.

There is a right way; there is a wrong way. The Lautenberg amendment is the right way to preserve Social Security. The amendment of the Senator from Michigan is a good example of an idea that sounds good, but is the wrong way.

Mandated reductions in our Nation's debt limit are irresponsible. They are dangerous. They could hurt the very people that the proponents claim they want to help; namely, Social Security beneficiaries.

As a member of the Finance Committee, I understand very clearly the risks this amendment poses. Debt is incurred solely to pay expenditures that Congress has already authorized. The time to limit spending is when Congress is considering the underlying bills, whether they be appropriations bills or tax bills, not after the bills have already been enacted into law. By the time the debt limit is reached, the Government is already obligated to make payments and must have enough money to do so.

The debt obligations of the United States are recognized as having the least credit risk of any investment in the world. That credit standing is a precious asset for the American people and helps our economy by reducing the costs of borrowing.

Remember, the last time we came face to face with a debt limit crisis in November 1995, Moody's credit rating service placed Treasury securities on review for possible downgrade. They did this because it appeared possible for the first time in our Nation's history that the United States might be forced to default on our debt obligations. From the safest investment in the world, America overnight became comparable to that of countries which we do not hold in as high regard.

If the debt limit is reached and Congress cannot quickly obtain a supermajority to increase the limit, Treasury might easily be forced to stop honoring any payments. The largest single recurring monthly expenditure for the Treasury comes every month when Social Security checks are sent out.

The effect of this amendment, which is being touted as helping to preserve Social Security for the future, could easily be to force current beneficiaries to live without the monthly checks that so many depend upon for their livelihood. Those who support this amendment—that is, of the Senator from Michigan—seem to feel that we must in effect destroy Social Security in order to save it. Obviously, the majority of Members disagree.

I believe we can save Social Security for the future without putting current beneficiaries at risk of losing their monthly checks. We can do this not by supporting the Abraham amendment but by sticking to the budget enforcement tools that have successfully brought us this far, from a time of red ink as far as the eye could see to a day of projected budget surpluses.

That is why I support strongly the amendment offered by Senator LAUTENBERG. Simply put, we should reach agreement on a solution to the Social Security problem before we begin spending money we don't yet have. Until that happens, we should keep the pay-go rules and discretionary spending caps in place. This is the only way to truly save Social Security first.

I believe if we pursue this course we can make room in the budget for a number of critical priorities. In addition to saving Social Security, we can preserve Medicare. We all know that Medicare is in dire straits, worse shape than Social Security, and I am astounded that the majority party does not want to save Medicare, a program that is in worse shape even than Social Security.

I might also say that the balanced budget amendment which we passed a couple of years ago has a disproportionately detrimental effect on rural hospitals and rural doctors. In my State of Montana, rural hospitals lost 6.5 percent in 1997 in spite of the news that hospitals nationwide are making big profits—a 6.5-percent loss. That was before the balanced budget amendment cuts. If, as some suggest, we don't infuse the Medicare trust fund with some surplus moneys, there is a very real possibility that providers could suffer further cuts. If that happens, small rural hospitals will not just lose money, they will close.

For all the very real danger in the social security system, did you know that if we do nothing Medicare will be insolvent in about the next ten years? Think about that.

We are less than a decade away from allowing a major piece of our nation's security to wither on the vine.

Let's consider how quickly that date is coming. Only eight years ago, we launched Operation Desert Storm in Iraq. Ten years ago the Berlin Wall fell. Seems like yesterday, doesn't it?

And just a couple of years ago, Mr. President, Congress passed the Balanced Budget Act. In the BBA, we extended the life of the Medicare Trust Fund.

But we also implemented over $100 billion in cuts to health care providers. I hear about those reductions from Montanans every day.

Montana small rural hospitals lost 6.5 percent in 1997, in spite of news that hospitals nationwide were making a killing, 6.5 percent, Mr. President. And that was before the BBA cuts. If, as some have suggested, we don't infuse the Medicare Trust Fund with some surplus monies, there is a very real possibility that providers could suffer further cuts. If that happens small rural hospitals will not just lose money, they will close.

And patients—not just providers—will suffer. This Congress should do the responsible thing by not balancing the budget on the backs of Medicare patients and providers. The Senate should dedicate 15 percent of the budget surplus to save Medicare.

Mr. President, saving Social Security and shoring up Medicare must be our two top priorities.

I don't think that precludes us from passing targeted tax cuts, though. I think we can make room for tax cuts by getting rid of wasteful spending wherever it occurs.

Let me tell you a few tax cuts I will personally work for this Congress:

We should end the marriage penalty for Montana and American families.

We should provide tax cuts to promote education for our children. I will push this year to further expand the student loan interest deduction. I'll introduce legislation to encourage greater donations of computers and technology to schools. And I'll expand the lifelong learning credit so our workers can get the vital training they need to adapt to today's changing, global economy.

We should expand pension coverage particularly for our small business. Only one in five Montanans working for small businesses have access to retirement plans. I am introducing legislation to try to make pension plans more affordable and less complicated for small businesses and their employees.

And, as part of my safety net to help farmers weather these turbulent times, I am promoting a new farm savings account.

Mr. President, in conclusion, I believe that the pending amendment is the right way to go. We must save Social Security first. We should not use gimmicks like the "lock box" that could jeopardize our ability to issue social security checks and hurt the very people that we are trying to help.

Mr. President, I believe that, without such a gimmick, we can make room in the budget for what should be our three biggest priorities: Social Security, Medicare, and targeted tax cuts.

Let's seize this opportunity and do what's right for our country.

In summary, I am quite concerned about the priorities that are in the majority budget. A budget sets a country's priorities. For me, one of the main priorities should be saving Social Security, which, in effect, the majority budget does not do. Certainly we should help do what we can to save Medicare, to shore up Medicare, shore up the Medicare trust fund, which certainly the budget resolution before the Senate does not do.

We should not use gimmicks like lockboxes, and so forth. It may sound good, but they do not provide the benefits they purport to have.

I very much hope we adopt the amendment offered by the Senator from New Jersey, the amendment that sets the priorities that this country really needs and want.

I yield back the remainder of my time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time remains?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico has 3 minutes 32 seconds, and the other side has 3 minutes 17 seconds.

Mr. DOMENICI. Who wants to speak on the Democratic side?

Mr. KENNEDY addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I yield myself 1 minute 15 seconds.

Mr. President, I want to direct the chairman's attention to page 90 of the report. Here is the reserve fund for Medicare and the prescription drugs. I hope that anyone who believes we are really establishing a reserve fund in here for prescription drugs will take a little time to read it. We don't have the time to do so right now.

The point I want to make is this: When my good friend from New Mexico is talking about the $190 billion that is going to Medicare, as I mentioned, that is what will be necessary to just continue the program without any kind of adjustment. Then they have this $100 billion out there. In this report they say it can be used for prescription drugs, it can be used for disaster relief, it can be used for anything. Any time I hear someone come over and talk about a particular subject, it seems that they are using the same $100 billion for that particular purpose.

Now back to page 90 and restrictions placed here in terms of prescription drugs. There is absolutely no reason to expect there will be a prescription drug provision under this particular provision that has been added in the budget legislation. We will have an opportunity later in the afternoon to debate it, but there is nothing here to guarantee the availability of even one additional dollar for Medicare.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I will reserve as best I can the decibel level until later in the day when I feel more like arguing with the distinguished Senator from Massachusetts, but he will hear it before we are finished, as I will hear his.

The Republican package is by far better than anything the President of the United States has offered to the people of this country on Medicare. Let me suggest that maybe before we are finished, we will put the President's Medicare package before the Senate and see how many Senators vote for it. As a matter of fact, it doesn't pay a penny of prescription drugs and doesn't provide for any method or manner of doing it. The 15 percent of the surplus that is put in there is clearly identified as being placed in there to elongate the trust fund. But you can't spend it under the President's plan. You get back IOUs, which means generations to come will have to pay whatever it is that is spent on Medicare over the years.

We did better than the President in that he cut $20 billion out of Medicare and we did not during the next decade. When you add that together with more than $100 billion that is not allocated anywhere out of the surplus that can be used for Medicare reform, including prescription drugs, we have a very good package.

The only thing missing is a proposal, a reasonable proposal, by the President of the United States to put into effect the use of that money and the kinds of reforms that are suggested by the committee which worked so long and was one vote short of what they needed.

We can go on forever this year debating Medicare, but the truth of the matter is, we have a solution in mind. There are others who talk about the problem and indicate that it will be fixed in some miraculous way when they don't have a plan.

I yield the remaining time to the Senator from Michigan.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Michigan has 45 seconds.

Mr. ABRAHAM. I will speak quickly.

Our plan, which will be voted on, is a sense-of-the-Senate amendment that we should create a Social Security lockbox. This would make sure that any Social Security surplus dollars are used either to fix Social Security or pay down the national debt. People on both sides of the aisle have been claiming that is what they wanted to do. We just heard the first spokesperson in opposition to that raising issues that I think are very dubious complaints.

If you don't want to reduce the national debt and you want to spend the Social Security surplus, then vote against this amendment. However, I can't think of any other reason, other than that, to vote no on our amendment. This is a sense of the Senate to set us in the direction of making sure we protect those surpluses.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator has expired.

The Senator from New Jersey has 1 minute 48 seconds.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I don't think I will use all that time, but I will take a moment to respond in case my colleague from Massachusetts needs any shoring up.

The fact of the matter is that the reserve fund, this mythical reserve fund, that was going to be $132 billion has, by osmosis, shrunk to $101 billion and it is headed in the wrong direction.

If there is going to be any participation at all in establishing solvency for another 12 years for Medicare, we have to make our judgment based on where things stand, not the kind of things that are said in honest debate.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, the alternative under the Lautenberg amendment is, we will not have the tax cuts until we have the solvency of Social Security and Medicare. Is that the effect of the Lautenberg amendment?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. That is our amendment.

I yield back the remaining time.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield back all time I might have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask for the yeas and nays on the Abraham amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask unanimous consent it be in order for me to make a point of order against the Lautenberg amendment so we can stack that vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAPO). Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. The Lautenberg amendment is not germane to the budget resolution; therefore, I raise a point of order under section 305(b)(2) of the Congressional Budget Act.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congress-sional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable sections to that act for the consideration of the pending amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 143

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from Michigan.

The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. LUGAR) is absent because of a death in the family.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 99, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 58 Leg.]

YEAS—99

Abraham	Enzi	Lott
Akaka	Feingold	Mack
Allard	Feinstein	McCain
Ashcroft	Fitzgerald	McConnell
Baucus	Frist	Mikulski
Bayh	Gorton	Moynihan
Bennett	Graham	Murkowski
Biden	Gramm	Murray
Bingaman	Grams	Nickles
Bond	Grassley	Reed
Boxer	Gregg	Reid
Breaux	Hagel	Robb
Brownback	Harkin	Roberts
Bryan	Hatch	Rockefeller
Bunning	Helms	Roth
Burns	Hollings	Santorum
Byrd	Hutchinson	Sarbanes
Campbell	Hutchison	Schumer
Chafee	Inhofe	Sessions
Cleland	Inouye	Shelby
Cochran	Jeffords	Smith (NH)
Collins	Johnson	Smith (OR)
Conrad	Kennedy	Snowe
Coverdell	Kerrey	Specter
Craig	Kerry	Stevens
Crapo	Kohl	Thomas
Daschle	Kyl	Thompson
DeWine	Landrieu	Thurmond
Dodd	Lautenberg	Torricelli
Domenici	Leahy	Voinovich
Dorgan	Levin	Warner
Durbin	Lieberman	Wellstone
Edwards	Lincoln	Wyden

NOT VOTING—1

Lugar

The amendment (No. 143) was agreed to.

VOTE ON MOTION TO WAIVE THE BUDGET ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to waive the Budget Act in relation to the Lautenberg amendment No. 144. The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. LUGAR) is absent because of a death in the family.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas, 45, nays 54, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 59 Leg.]

YEAS—45

Akaka	Edwards	Levin
Baucus	Feingold	Lieberman
Bayh	Feinstein	Lincoln
Biden	Graham	Mikulski
Bingaman	Harkin	Moynihan
Boxer	Hollings	Murray
Breaux	Inouye	Reed
Bryan	Johnson	Reid
Byrd	Kennedy	Robb
Cleland	Kerrey	Rockefeller
Conrad	Kerry	Sarbanes
Daschle	Kohl	Schumer
Dodd	Landrieu	Torricelli
Dorgan	Lautenberg	Wellstone
Durbin	Leahy	Wyden

NAYS—54

Abraham	Fitzgerald	McConnell
Allard	Frist	Murkowski
Ashcroft	Gorton	Nickles
Bennett	Gramm	Roberts
Bond	Grams	Roth
Brownback	Grassley	Santorum
Bunning	Gregg	Sessions
Burns	Hagel	Shelby
Campbell	Hatch	Smith (NH)
Chafee	Helms	Smith (OR)
Cochran	Hutchinson	Snowe
Collins	Hutchison	Specter
Coverdell	Inhofe	Stevens
Craig	Jeffords	Thomas
Crapo	Kyl	Thompson
DeWine	Lott	Thurmond
Domenici	Mack	Voinovich
Enzi	McCain	Warner

NOT VOTING—1

Lugar

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote, the yeas are 45, the nays are 54. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is rejected. The point of order is sustained, and the amendment falls.

Mr. LOTT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Mississippi.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that all first-degree amendments to be in order to S. Con. Res. 20 must be offered by 12 noon on Thursday, March 25, 1999, and at 11:40 a.m. on Thursday, Senator LAUTENBERG be recognized to offer and lay aside amendments on behalf of Members on his side of the aisle, and at 11:50 a.m., Senator DOMENICI be recognized to offer and lay aside amendments on behalf of Members on this side of the aisle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I thank the managers, Senator LAUTENBERG and the chairman of the committee, Senator DOMENICI, for the work they are already doing, for the cooperation we have been receiving from Senator DASCHLE, and the fact that we started off last night with an agreement that we would have 35 hours remaining.

These Senators have worked through the debate this morning. We just had two back-to-back votes. Getting this agreement to have the first-degree amendments offered by 12 noon is also an important step in the right direction. I know they are going to continue to push aggressively.

Let me say to Members on both sides of the aisle, I know how prolific we are and how much we enjoy having amendments with our names on them. However, if we come up with 40 amendments on this side of the aisle and 40 amendments on that side of the aisle—80 amendments on top of the remaining 26 or 27 hours—we are not going to be able to make it by Friday.

In view of that, I have already made arrangements for my flight to be Saturday, not Friday. I also want to notify Members that in order to accomplish this goal of finishing up by Friday, we are going to have to go late—unless we can work out some other arrangement—Wednesday night and Thursday night, possibly Friday night. We already have presiding officers signing up for hours to go all night Wednesday and Thursday night. We only have a couple vacancies here. We have a 4 to 5 a.m. slot that will be left for somebody to sign on to. Maybe Senator BROWNBACK will sign up for that slot. We need to fill in these time blanks for both nights.

I know the managers are going to need help in order to get through this, especially if we have to go all night. I hope we can work out a way to avoid that, but it is going to take the cooperation of Members on both sides with the managers.

I am serious about doing this, not for punishment, but so we can do our work. I have Senators on both sides of the aisle coming up to me saying: "I really need to get out of here Thursday night." "Can I be gone by 1 Friday?" "I must be out of here by Friday night." In order to achieve that, we have to come to additional agreements, drop some amendments, and perhaps seriously go around the clock one night.

Please cooperate with the managers. You will have the chance on both sides to make your principal points, get votes on those amendments, and then we can move on to conclusion.

Thank you for the cooperation we have already received.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. First, I thank the distinguished majority leader for his assistance. I think that is a very good start.

I also ask unanimous consent that heretofore any votes that we have had, that the time used up on votes count against the total time under the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I, too, extend my appreciation to the Democratic leader, Senator DASCHLE, for the hard work he did to try to get people to understand that we do not want to deprive anybody at all of their opportunity to offer amendments, but we make the case, as we all heard from the majority leader, that we are prepared to stay here as late as necessary tonight. And Senator DOMENICI and I, as usual, have been working cooperatively. I just wonder whether the majority leader asked the freshman class over there whether they would stay all night. But I thank you.

I ask permission, if it is all right with the Senator from Missouri, if the Senator from Wisconsin, who has a fairly short 6-minute presentation to make, could be recognized at this time. Mr. DOMENICI. We have no objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Wisconsin is recognized.

Mr. KOHL. Thank you, I say to Senator LAUTENBERG and Senator ASHCROFT.

Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the budget resolution. This budget is senseless, arrogant, and dishonest.

If this were an employee, you would fire him. If this were a house guest, you would boot him. But since this is a budget, our only option is to vote it down—and spend the few hours we have left in this debate hammering out a fiscal plan of which we can be proud.

When I call this budget senseless, I mean it literally: The budget does not make sense. The United States is experiencing the longest peacetime economic expansion in our history. We are projected to run budget surpluses totaling almost $5 trillion over the next 15 years.

In good times like these, we ought to have the confidence to be bold, to pay our debts from the past, to solve the problems, like runaway entitlement spending, that will plague us in the future, and indeed, to invest wisely in a strong nation.

Instead, this budget makes a series of incomprehensible tradeoffs.

It increases funding for elementary and secondary education, while removing 100,000 young students from Head Start, and eliminating child care subsidies for 34,000 low-income children. If we follow this budget, we will be ready to teach children who, because we have neglected them in their first 5 years, are not ready to learn.

The budget increases spending for research into new diseases, while cutting spending for the vaccines that protect our children from old diseases.

The budget increases military spending beyond what the President wants, and cuts diplomatic spending below what the Secretary of State believes is feasible. We are sending the administration out into a world of shifting borders and allegiances armed with a stick too big to lift and a carrot too small to see.

The budget fully funds the Violent Crime Trust Fund and cuts 2,700 FBI agents. Now how do we reduce violent crime while also reducing the number of people specifically charged with fighting it?

And in perhaps the cruelest mismatch of all, this budget chooses an enormous tax cut over shoring up the Medicare Trust Fund. The budget trades a long-term policy of health and security, for those who really need it, for a short-term policy of giving cash to those who already have it.

These sort of confusing tradeoffs are enough for most of us to reject the budget. But these policy missteps are compounded by the fact that they are continued for many years.

The budget includes tax cuts that grow exponentially as far as the eye can see, and huge increases in military hardware purchases in contracts stretched out almost as far. Have we not learned from the past? This is the same combination of defense spending and tax cuts that led to the record budget deficits of the 1980s. Have we no respect for the future? It is the height of arrogance for politicians today to lock future generations into evermore expensive contracts and commitments.

And finally, the budget is dishonest. By the admission of several congressional leaders, there is no way the draconian cuts in domestic spending envisioned by this budget will last the year.

What that means is, sometime in November, we will all be voting for, and lamenting over, a hastily thrown together omnibus appropriations bill that funds all the needs this budget proposes to ignore.

That is a sloppy way to do our business. If these domestic programs are priorities—and I believe they should be—then we ought to discuss them now, plan for them now, budget for them now. It is dishonest to trumpet this budget as responsible spending, while fully expecting to spend irresponsibly and freely at the end of the year.

This budget is not evil; it is sloppy. It reflects priorities so misguided and mismatched that no one expects they will be implemented at the end of the day. The budget is not so much a crime as it is a mistake and a missed opportunity.

We had a chance to behave responsibly and wisely, using our current surplus and strong economy to underpin a visionary plan for this Nation's fiscal future. We could not have done something for the future, but instead we have a budget that, at best, will get some of us through tonight's 6 o'clock news sound bites. After that, it will be shoved aside for a last minute, unplanned and probably unwise spending spree.

So, let's not wait until tomorrow. Let's put this budget out of its misery now. Let's not stumble into the new century with a senseless spending plan. Let's adopt a fiscal framework that makes sense for old and young—that will stand today and in the future.

I thank you, Mr. President, and yield the floor.

Mr. ASHCROFT addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 145

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate that the Federal Government should not directly invest the social security trust funds in private financial markets)

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Missouri [Mr. ASHCROFT] for himself, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. GREGG, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. ENZI, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. ROTH, and Mr. WARNER, proposes an amendment numbered 145.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT INVEST THE SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS IN PRIVATE FINANCIAL MARKETS.

It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that the Federal Government should not directly invest contributions made to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund established under section 201 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 401) in private financial markets.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, the amendment which I have sent to the desk is a simple one. It is an amendment forbidding the Government to invest Social Security trust funds in the stock market.

We have talked a lot about Social Security in relation to the budget and that it is important that we not invade the Social Security trust fund to undertake spending to cover deficits in other areas, and that is really a way to protect the trust fund. This amendment is another way to protect the trust fund and to protect the retirement security of Americans from the risks of the stock market.

So this amendment expresses the sense of the Senate that the Federal Government should not invest the Social Security trust fund in the stock market. Having the Government invest the trust fund in the stock market is a gamble. It is a gamble Congress should be unwilling to make on behalf of the millions who receive and depend on Social Security to meet their retirement needs.

First, let me say that there is no more worthy Government obligation than ensuring that those who paid a lifetime of Social Security taxes will receive their full Social Security benefits. Social Security is our most important social program, and I believe it is a contract, an agreement between the citizens and their Government. Americans, including 1 million Missourians, depend on this commitment. And I am determined to ensure that Social Security meets that commitment.

The President has suggested, and for the first time in history, that the Government should invest as much as $700 billion worth of Social Security surpluses in the stock market. In my view, and in the view of many Missourians who depend on Social Security, this would unnecessarily gamble with the Social Security trust funds.

For more than 60 years, Social Security law has forbidden the trust funds from being invested in the stock market. The pending amendment will express our support for that law, making explicit what is now implicit, that this kind of governmental meddling into private markets should not be allowed to happen.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan says that investing Social Security funds in the market is bad for Social Security and, he says, bad for the economy. Now, when Alan Greenspan talks, virtually everyone listens. And Congress ought to listen.

Chairman Greenspan has said this plan "will create a lower rate of return for Social Security recipients," and he "does not believe that it is politically feasible to insulate such huge funds from a governmental direction."

I think what he is saying is it is not time to let some bureaucrat play broker-for-a-day with the Social Security trust fund. The last thing we need in America is the Federal Government directing the investment of Social Security trust funds based on some trendy politically driven notion of which industries or which countries or which policies are in political favor at the moment.

Of course, Alan Greenspan is not the only Government official entrusted with and ensuring our economic well-being who is gravely concerned or who has expressed grave concerns about this proposal. Arthur Levitt, the Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, the country's top investment official, has said,

We have an obligation to think long and hard about the implications of Social Security reform. Investing Social Security in the stock market, by its very nature involves heightened obligations, difficult questions and new challenges.

Chairman Levitt is worried about the "large-scale market effect." In other words, what does this proposal do to the market, including whether the Government would "have an even greater incentive, if not the market itself." We know that America has prospered because of free markets, not Government-directed markets. The prospect of the market trying to control market fluctuations is disturbing.

In this scenario, the Government could subsidize companies that were losing market value, regulate companies that pursued risky or innovative strategies, and pursue policies based on which companies would benefit. If the Federal Government tried to pick market winners and losers, all of us, companies and citizens alike, Social Security recipients, and those paying the taxes would end up as losers.

When officials of the stature of Chairman Greenspan and Levitt, officials who are responsible for the health of the Nation's economy and of the stock market, warn us when they speak, we ought to tread very carefully.

In addition to the concerns of the experts, I am listening to the concerns of individual Missourians. I recently received a letter from Todd Lawrence of Greenwood, MO, who wrote,

It has been suggested that the government would invest in the stock market with my Social Security money. No offense, but there is not much that the government touches that works well. Why would making my investment decisions for me be any different. Looking at it from a business perspective, would the owner of a corporation feel comfortable if the government were the primary shareholder?

Todd Lawrence understands what President Clinton apparently does not. No corporation would want the Government as a shareholder, and no investor would want the Government handling their investment.

Even if the Government were able to invest without adding new levels of inefficiency to the process, the Government putting Social Security taxes in the stock market adds an unacceptable level of risk to retirement. This risk is a gamble I am unwilling to make for the one million Missourians who are the recipients of Social Security. This amendment puts Congress on record that Government will not gamble Social Security in the stock market.

While I understand the impulse to attempt to harness the great potential of the stock market, significant Government involvement in the stock market could tend toward economic nationalization, excess Government involvement in private financial markets, and short-term, politically motivated investment decisions that could diminish Social Security's potential rate of return.

It is hard to overestimate how dangerous this scheme really is. Imagine, if you will, what would happen if the Government had $2.7 trillion in the market on Black Monday, October 19, 1987, when the stock market lost 22 percent of its value. The trust fund's owners, America's current and future retirees, would have lost a collective total of $633 billion that day alone. Imagine seniors who depend on Social Security watching television, watching the news of the stock market collapse, wondering, even fearing, their Social Security would be in danger.

While individuals properly manage their financial portfolios to control risk, the Government has no business taking these gambles with the people's money.

Even President Clinton has expressed skepticism with this idea. In Albuquerque last year, the President said the following,

I think most people just think if there is going to be a risk taken, I'd rather take it than have the government take it for me.

He was right then and he is wrong now. While Americans as individuals should invest as much as they can, as much as they can afford in their private equities to plan for their own retirements, the Government should stay out of the stock market.

I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this amendment.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SESSIONS). Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. ASHCROFT. I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kansas.

Mr. BROWNBACK. Mr. President, I rise to express my support for the amendment put forward by the Senator from Missouri. I join him in this amendment and I join him in the sentiment that he has put forward and articulated, I think very well, about the potential problems and pitfalls if we go this route of the Government investing the Social Security trust fund surplus in the stock market.

Now, a lot of us would say if we want to have private sector individuals take certain portions of their surplus and put them in investments they deem worthy and sound, that is one thing to consider; but when you have the Government looking at potentially investing $2.7 trillion over a period of time and directing that in the stock market, I think you are asking for a whole boat load of problems.

Having the Government invest the Social Security trust fund in the stock market, I believe, is dangerous because of the Government having cross-purposes when it frequently seeks to do various things.

We heard the Senator from Missouri talk about some "for instances." If we have a poor economy taking place and people are looking around saying what can we do to stimulate the economy, what we need to do is put more money in the stock market to stimulate its growth and hopefully that will stimulate the economy. People say, "Raid the trust fund and move it into the stock market." That may be a fine thing for macroeconomics, it may not be. It could be a very poor thing for Social Security and trust funds and pension funds. We should look at these as people's pension funds. That is just not a wise policy to take place.

We could also have all sorts of political pressures—the Senator from Missouri or the Senator from Kansas saying, "Not enough of this money is being placed by the Government into Kansas. I think they ought to be investing more money in Kansas rather than less money," so I start lobbying, or others do, to get the Government to invest more of the Social Security money, these pension funds of the American public, into Kansas.

That may be a good and laudable purpose. From my perspective, it is a great purpose. Is that the sort of thing we ought to be doing with our pension funds, though? Is that the sort of cross-purpose that we should invite by encouraging and allowing the Federal Government to invest money in the private stock market? I think not.

President Clinton has suggested that the Government invest up to $700 billion in surplus payroll taxes in the stock market. I applaud the President for recognizing the strength of our economy. I have to seriously question this proposal. The dangers of a Government-controlled economy are vast and they are far reaching. Socializing our free market economy through Government-controlled investments in the stock market would have a chilling effect on future economic growth. The markets would become more sensitive to the executive branch decisions and less sensitive to market forces and factors.

The potential abuses are easily seen, and I have already articulated a couple of them. Businesses that are not supportive of the administration could be punished and those that are supportive would be rewarded. Again, a cross-purpose with people's pension money—not a good idea.

Federal Reserve Chairman Greenspan has been previously quoted as saying he deems this to be a bad idea for Social Security and a bad idea for the economy.

I think his one quote bears repeating at this time because it goes to the heart of the issue. Alan Greenspan said he "does not believe that it is politically feasible to insulate such huge funds from a governmental direction."

Now, imagine that—$700 billion multiplied over time being directed by Government and an administration that might be at cross purposes with saying what is the best thing to do for these pension funds, or even if we had the best of purposes, you are going to invite manipulation taking place in the market with pension funds.

The last thing this country needs is the Federal Government directing the investment of Social Security funds based on politics. That is simply what we are inviting if we seek to have the Government do this investment. This is something private individuals should do. They should be allowed to do that on certain portions of it, but the Government should not.

Our amendment states that it is the sense of the Senate that the Government should not be allowed to invest the trust funds in the stock market. I hope all of our colleagues, seeing the dangers of this proposal, will vote in favor of our amendment.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. ENZI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Wyoming.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I would like to speak for 6 minutes on this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized for 6 minutes.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, I rise as an original cosponsor of the Ashcroft-Brownback amendment voicing opposition to the President's plan of having the Federal Government invest our Social Security funds in the stock market.

We all understand and, hopefully, agree that, if left unchanged, the future of Social Security is in jeopardy, as the program will begin running deficits in 2013 when 71 million baby boomers begin collecting retirement benefits. We know the number of retirees will double between 2008 and 2018, narrowing the ratio of workers to beneficiaries to less than 3-to-1. I point out that in 1950 there were 16 workers for every single beneficiary. We all know that all trust funds, if they even exist, will be completely exhausted in 2032.

We have a responsibility to save this program from a fate that everyone agrees will happen without change. The Ashcroft-Brownback amendment is a solid first step in assuring the American people that Congress is committed to fixing this problem, while preempting the President's "Big Brother" philosophy. I am deeply concerned by the message the President is sending to the American people. The very reason Social Security has a solvency problem is that it is a federally administered program with IOUs that are disguised as real trust funds.

The President wants to right a wrong with another wrong. Not only has he failed to provide Congress with actual reform legislation, the Social Security Administration has neglected its responsibility to make legislative recommendations to Congress as well. To think that the President now wants to embrace the benefits of private aggregate investment by playing the stock market and have Government select the winners and the losers is simply bad policy.

Last week, I spent 13 hours in executive session in the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee marking up S. 326, the Patients' Bill of Rights. We debated a sizable number of amendments. Members of the committee may have substantially disagreed on a majority of these amendments, but there was no conflict regarding individual control and choice over one's health care. It is a fundamental premise that respects each person's right to exert some control over decisions involving their own health.

During that debate, several of my Democratic colleagues touted patient control and choice. Why, then, why isn't that choice and control being extended to Social Security? Is a person's health care more sensitive or politically appealing than that person's Social Security? I have trouble separating the two. However, the President seems to have found a way to advocate consumer control and choice in health care while denying individuals that same right with their Social Security.

The lack of consistency in the President's message is disturbing. If the President really believes in personal control and choice, he should abandon the notion of federal government investment of America's retirement on the stock market and support personal investment accounts. That's choice. That's giving Americans some say in this debate. Taxpayers don't need big brother to make this decision nor do they want it to. But the President's plan would authorize the federal government to invest hard-earned payroll tax dollars on the stock market. No personal control, choice or say by the individual. The President needs to stop polling and start listening to what the majority of Americans want.

The Ashcroft/Brownback amendment is an insurance policy for the American people. It insures them that their Social Security will not be invested and managed by the federal government—an idea that's been condemned by Federal Reserve Chairman, Alan Greenspan; Comptroller General for the General Accounting Office, David Walker; and, Congressional Budget Office Director Dan Crippen—all three are federal agency heads. Is the President listening to them?

How about the labor community? I received a letter signed by 10 prominent labor unions—including the Teamsters, United Workers of America, United Steel Workers as well as the United Mine Workers indicating their opposition of "the President's proposal to allow the government itself to invest part of the Social Security Trust Fund surpluses in corporate stocks and bonds." Is the President listening to them?

While serving on the Senate Labor Committee, I rarely see organized labor and the business community agree. This issue, however, is one exception. The Alliance for Worker Retirement Security, which the National Association of Manufacturers founded last year, strongly criticized President Clinton's plan to have the government manage the investment of Social Security trust funds in the stock market. According to NAM, "government ownership—in other words, control of private enterprise—is a mockery of the principles on which this country is founded."

A majority of opinions agree that the President's message is flawed and that it constitutes bad policy. We often have trouble arriving at a consensus in the Senate. But since federal agency heads, the labor community and the business community share the same concern, this Administration and the Senate have a duty to listen.

I strongly support the Ashcroft/Brownback amendment and I'm pleased to be an original cosponsor. It shows that the Senate isn't turning a blind eye on this important policy decision. I urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to vote in favor of this amendment.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the Ashcroft amendment. This Sense of the Senate expresses the Senate's opposition to the Federal government directly investing the Social Security Trust Funds in the nation's financial markets, that is, making the Federal government or Social Security the owner of stocks and bonds.

The risks of this kind of investing are well known, but bear repeating. Put simply, many believe, with good reason, that there would be a strong, irresistible temptation by future Administrations or Congresses to invest according to political considerations, rather than seeking the best rate of return. Let us consider just a few of these ways. For example, some stocks might be avoided because of public policy concerns. For example, last year the State of Minnesota decided to divest tobacco stocks from its state employee pension fund, losing $2 million in the process. Others might want to invest in particular businesses to create or protect jobs.

But even if proponents of direct Federal investing are right that firewalls could be built to insulate Trust Funds investments from political considerations, such investing would almost certainly be contentious. Americans are very diverse, with diverse views, and groups would almost certainly organize to bring those views to bear on Trust Fund investing. Frankly, we need to solve Social Security's future problems, not add new ones.

Nonetheless, there is broad, bipartisan agreement that the future of Social Security may be improved by reaping higher returns from investments in the nation's securities markets, in stocks and bonds. The President has generally endorsed this approach, as well as many lawmakers, economists and other policy experts, and millions of average Americans. The issue is how to conduct such investments.

One promising approach is personal retirement accounts. While proposals differ, personal retirement accounts would provide each working American with an investment account he or she owns. With even conservative investment in stocks and bonds and the power of compound interest, personal retirement accounts can provide a substantial retirement nest egg.

Indeed, I have introduced legislation, S. 263, the Personal Retirement Accounts Act of 1999, that would get accounts up and running with a portion of the budget surplus.

Still others may have ideas to secure the benefits of investments for Social Security. In my view, the more ideas the better regarding investment—as long as the Federal government is not the owner of record.

AMENDMENT NO. 147

(Purpose: To use any Federal budget surplus to save Social Security and Medicare first)

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD] proposes an amendment numbered 147.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

After section 206, insert the following:

SEC. —. SAVE SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE FIRST LOCKBOX.

(a) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term “Social Security and Medicare lockbox” means with respect to any fiscal year, the Social Security surplus (as described in section 311(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974), and the Medicare surplus reserve, which shall consist of amounts allocated to save the Medicare program as provided in subsection (b).

(b) MEDICARE SURPLUS RESERVE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to adjustment pursuant to paragraph (2), the amounts reserved for the Medicare surplus reserve in each year are—

- (A) for fiscal year 2000, $0;
- (B) for fiscal year 2001, $3,000,000,000;
- (C) for fiscal year 2002, $26,000,000,000;
- (D) for fiscal year 2003, $15,000,000,000;
- (E) for fiscal year 2004, $21,000,000,000;
- (F) for fiscal year 2005, $35,000,000,000;
- (G) for fiscal year 2006, $63,000,000,000;
- (H) for fiscal year 2007, $68,000,000,000;
- (I) for fiscal year 2008, $72,000,000,000;
- (J) for fiscal year 2009, $73,000,000,000;
- (K) for fiscal year 2010, $70,000,000,000;
- (L) for fiscal year 2011, $73,000,000,000;
- (M) for fiscal year 2012, $70,000,000,000;
- (N) for fiscal year 2013, $66,000,000,000; and
- (O) for fiscal year 2014, $52,000,000,000.

(2) ADJUSTMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The amounts in paragraph (1) for each fiscal year shall be adjusted each year in the budget resolution by a fixed percentage equal to the adjustment required to those amounts sufficient to extend the solvency of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund based on the most recent Report of the Board of Trustees of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund (intermediate assumptions) through fiscal year 2020 or 12 years after the date of insolvency specified in the 1999 Report, whichever date is later.

(B) LIMIT BASED ON TOTAL SURPLUS.—The Medicare surplus reserve, as adjusted by subparagraph (A), shall not exceed the total budget resolution baseline surplus in any fiscal year.

(c) MEDICARE SURPLUS RESERVE POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any concurrent resolution on the budget (or amendment, motion, or conference report on the resolution) that would decrease the surplus in any of the fiscal years covered by the concurrent resolution below the levels of the Medicare surplus reserve for those fiscal years calculated in accordance with subsection (b)(1).

(d) ENFORCEMENT OF MEDICARE SURPLUS.—After a concurrent resolution on the budget is agreed to, it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that would cause a decrease in the Medicare surplus reserve in any of the fiscal years covered by the concurrent resolution.

(e) SOCIAL SECURITY OFF-BUDGET POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider a concurrent resolution on the budget, an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that violates section 13301 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

(f) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER.—

(1) WAIVER.—A bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report violating this section shall be subject to a point of order that may be waived or suspended only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) APPEALS.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under paragraph (1).

On page 46, strike section 204.

At the end of section 101, insert the following:

(7) MEDICARE SURPLUS RESERVE.—The amounts of the surplus that shall be reserved for Medicare are as follows:

- (A) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (B) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (C) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
- (D) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
- (E) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
- (F) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
- (G) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
- (H) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
- (I) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
- (J) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.

Increase the levels of Federal revenues in section 101(1)(A) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $25,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $13,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $18,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $31,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $57,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $58,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $59,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $56,000,000,000.

Change the levels of Federal revenues in section 101(1)(B) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $25,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $13,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $18,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $31,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $57,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $58,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $59,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $56,000,000,000.

Reduce the levels of total budget authority and outlays in section 101(2) and section 101(3) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $0;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $1,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $2,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $3,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $4,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $6,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $10,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $13,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $17,000,000,000.

Increase the levels of surplus in section 101(4) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.

Decrease the levels of public debt in section 101(5) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.

Decrease the levels of debt held by the public in section 101(6) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;

- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.

Reduce the levels of budget authority and outlays in section 103(18) for function 900, Net Interest, by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $0;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $1,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $2,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $3,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $4,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $6,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $10,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $13,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $17,000,000,000.

Reduce the levels in section 104(1) by which the Senate Committee on Finance is instructed to reduce revenues by the following amounts:

- (1) $0 in fiscal year 2000;
- (2) $59,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004; and
- (3) $320,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2009.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, the amendment that I am offering says simply, let us lock up in a safe-deposit box every penny of Social Security surplus and, in addition to that, 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare.

Mr. President, that is what this depicts: Social Security's and Medicare's first lockbox. Let's save the Social Security surplus over the next 10 years. That is $1.8 trillion. And we save every penny of the Social Security surplus each and every year.

In addition, we say let's also save 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare. These are the two top priorities of the American people. We say let's reserve funds for both of them. Let's make certain that there are sufficient resources to do the reforms that are necessary to strengthen and preserve both Social Security and Medicare.

As I have looked at the lockbox offered by our friends across the aisle, it seems to me that there is a deficiency. I call this “the broken safe,” because, while I commend our friends on the other side of the aisle for locking up the Social Security surplus, they forgot something. They forgot Medicare.

I am simply saying we ought to not only reserve the Social Security surplus for Social Security, but we ought to also provide for Medicare. Medicare is on the brink of insolvency. In fact, it is closer to going under than Social Security. So let's take the top priorities of the American people and put them at the top of the list for the Congress as well.

Let me make clear that under this plan we would have $1.8 trillion over the next 10 years for Social Security. We would have over $370 billion for Medicare. But those aren't the only priorities. And we understand there would also be money left over—some $385 billion over the 10 years—for top domestic priorities, including education, defense, and health care and, yes, tax relief for hard-pressed American families, but the difference is one of priorities.

If I could go to this next chart and show the comparison, under the plan that we are offering we are saving Social Security and Medicare first because we think those are the priorities of the American people. We save 100 percent of the Social Security surplus in every year. We save 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare. Overall, we are saving 77 percent of the unified surplus in comparison to 62 percent in the Republican plan. That means we are paying down more of the publicly held debt than the plan offered by our friends across the aisle. In fact, we will pay down $300 billion more of the publicly held debt under the plan that I am offering in this amendment than the plan of our colleagues on the other side of the aisle.

So, over 15 years, we reserve $700 billion for Medicare, over $370 billion for 10 years, but over 15 years over $700 billion for Medicare. Our friends on the other side, on the other hand, have tax cuts of over $700 billion over that same period. But they have not one dime of the surplus saved for Medicare.

Mr. President, we think that is a mistake.

If we look at the combination and compare the two plans, here is what we see. The Republican plan is in blue. The plan I am offering is in red. In the years 2000 to 2004, the Republican plan would save $768 billion. We would save $833 billion for Social Security and Medicare. And over a 10-year period, the Republican plan would save about $1.8 trillion. We would save $2.155 trillion, because not only again are we protecting every dollar of the Social Security surplus for Social Security, but in addition we are reserving funds out of the surplus for Medicare. Why? Because no part of the Federal budget is in greater danger than Medicare. And, yes, we need to reform the program.

In addition to that, we need to put additional resources into Medicare to extend its solvency. Right now we know that Medicare is threatened by the year 2008. What is going to happen? What is going to happen to the millions of Americans who rely for their health care on the Medicare system? Not only is it important to our grandparents, it is important to their children, because what happens if the health care of their parents are not provided for? What happens if the promise is not kept? I think we all understand what happens. The responsibility and the debts shift, and the children will be put in an impossible position as well.

I believe this amendment reflects the priorities of the American people. The Republican plan basically says save money for Social Security. I commend them for that part of the plan. But almost all of the rest of the money they say is reserved for a tax cut will go disproportionately to the wealthiest among us.

We say those are not the priorities of the American people. Instead, we ought to save every dollar of the Social Security surplus. But we also ought to reserve 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare. That will still leave nearly $400 billion available for high-priority domestic concerns like education, defense, health care, and, yes, for tax relief as well.

That we believe reflects the priorities of the American people better than those offered by the other side. They have in their plan over $800 billion reserved for tax cuts. They don't have one penny reserved out of the surplus for Medicare—not one penny. Mr. President, we don't think that is the right set of priorities.

I remind my colleagues of what they said last year in the Budget Committee debate. This is the chairman of the Budget Committee, the very able Senator DOMENICI. Last year he said this.

... Let me tell you, for every argument made around this table today about saving Social Security, you can now put it in the bank that the problems associated with fixing Medicare are bigger than the problems fixing Social Security, bigger in dollars, more difficulty in terms of the kind of reform necessary, and, frankly, I am for saving Social Security. But it is most interesting that there are some who want to abandon Medicare ... when it is the most precarious program we have got.

Senator DOMENICI was right then. What a difference a year makes. I wish this budget reflected those priorities.

He went on to say:

... [W]e are very concerned about the long-term effect our population demographics will have on Medicare, and we are of the strong opinion that the second objective of this budget should be to preserve Medicare.

... We think the best way to do something commensurate with the depletion in the budget is to pledge any extra resources we have, not generating programs, but, rather, putting them in Medicare where they ought to be.

Again, the distinguished Senator from New Mexico was absolutely right. We ought to put additional resources that come to us to secure Medicare for the future as well as Social Security.

And Senator GRAMM of Texas said just a year ago in the Budget Committee, and I quote:

... [W]hat would we do if we had a half a trillion dollars to spend? ... The obvious answer that cries out is Medicare.

... I think it is logical. People understood the President on save Social Security first, and I think they will understand save Medicare first.

... Medicare is in crisis. We want to save Medicare first.

That is Senator GRAMM of Texas, just a year ago. What has happened? Why is there not a dime of the surplus reserved for Medicare in the plan of our Republican friends? There is not one dime locked away for Medicare. They will say: But we do have a surplus of $100 billion that we have not spent, that is really for Medicare. But, you know what, they did not do anything to protect it for Medicare, not one thing. Nothing has been done to protect one penny of that $100 billion for Medicare.

Do you know what else, that money is also required for emergencies over the next 10 years. If we go back and look at the last 10 years, we know that $100 billion will be spent just for emergencies because we are spending about $9 billion a year for emergencies. Over the next 10 years, including debt service, we will use up that $100 billion of their reserve just for disasters.

That leads me to the conclusion that without question they have not locked up one penny of surpluses for Medicare. The $100 billion that they talk about has not been protected for Medicare, not a dime of it. And every penny of it will likely be used for disasters and other emergencies because that has been the historical record.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CONRAD. I would be pleased to yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. Even if they use the $100 billion, what part of the Medicare deficit would that make up?

It is my understanding that would not even begin to make a downpayment in terms of the financial insecurity of the Medicare trust fund. Could the Senator address that issue? Because I agree with the Senator, it has been pointed out by those on the other side about how much they have done for Medicare when, as the Senator has pointed out, there is not one additional cent, not one new cent. They are going to fund the program with $190 billion which would be expended on the Medicare for current services. But not one additional cent.

But even if they allocated the $100 billion for Medicare, given what the Medicare trust fund trustees have indicated was going to be a deficit of some $686 billion, how significant would that really be in terms of giving a guarantee to our elderly people in this country?

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, unfortunately, when you pierce the veil on this one, what you find is there is not anything left. There is not any part of that money that is protected for Medicare, not a dime. There is $100 billion that is not spent in their budget plan, but based on our history we know it will probably all go for disasters and emergencies. There will not be any money available to strengthen Medicare. There will not be any money available to extend the solvency of Medicare.

That is why I think this amendment is fundamentally important. Because we are saying: Yes, absolutely, save every penny of the Social Security surplus for Social Security. But, of the rest of the surplus, the non-Social Security surplus, we save 40 percent of it, lock it up, protect it by special budget points of order so it cannot be raided, it cannot be looted. It is there to strengthen Medicare.

These are the top priorities of the American people: Medicare and Social Security. We believe we ought to provide protection for both. That is the essence of my amendment and I hope my colleagues will support it.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield for one more question?

Mr. CONRAD. I will be pleased to yield.

Mr. KENNEDY. Could I ask the Senator to open up the copy of S. Con. Res. 20 to page 5? As I understand it, as you go down to lines 18, 19, 20 and 21, under the Republican budget, even for that fund that has been designated, $100 billion as I read that, there would be a deficit in the year 2000 of $6 billion; in fiscal year 2001 it is zero; in 2002 it is zero; in 2003 it is zero; and in 2004 it is only $2.8 billion.

So even under the proposal that our friends talk about, there will not be any funds available, as I understand this, for the next 5 years. So, whether you are talking about disaster relief or inadequate funding for Medicare, even with the kind of restrictions that have been put on this fund that might be used for prescription drugs, we are talking about 5 years where there really is not anything there.

Am I correct?

Mr. CONRAD. The Senator is exactly correct. He is reading the table exactly in the correct way. I might just say to my friend, the Senator from Massachusetts, really I think our friends across the aisle have about spent this $100 billion three or four times. Because, to anybody who comes to them and says there are any deficiencies in their budgets, they say we have $100 billion we have not spent.

Of course all that money, based on history, will go for emergencies and disasters, every penny of it. That is why they have not put one penny of the surplus into a Medicare lockbox, because they really want to spend that money two, three, or four times. They say to the Medicare people who are interested in Medicare, "We have that $100 billion. It will go for Medicare." They say to those who are concerned about disasters, "We have funded that. We have this hundred billion we have not spent. It's available for disasters and emergencies." They say to anybody else, "Your money is in that pot of $100 billion."

Surprise, surprise, there are going to be an awful lot of people lining up for that $100 billion who will find there is nothing there for them because the money has all gone for disasters and emergencies. That is really what it is reserved for. There is really not a penny of surplus that is lockboxed for Medicare—not a dime.

Mr. President, this amendment is an attempt to protect Social Security, to protect Medicare, to allow us to get ready for the challenge we face. We all understand Medicare is under enormous pressure. Social Security is under enormous pressure. Both of them need to be addressed. This is our opportunity.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I think Senator JUDD GREGG wants to speak about the amendment we set aside, and I yield him time for that at this point.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire is recognized.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I congratulate the Senator from New Mexico for this excellent bill. I think he has done a superb job of putting together a budget which is responsible and appropriate for the future of this country.

As long as we are on the subject, I also wanted to comment a little bit about the proposal of the Senator from North Dakota, because he keeps comparing some sort of lockbox concept on Medicare with the Social Security lockbox which is in our budget, which is in the Republican budget. You really cannot compare the two. You are comparing apples and oranges.

The Social Security lockbox that the Senator from New Mexico has created, along with the Senator from Michigan, Mr. ABRAHAM, is a real lockbox. It takes money which is being raised from the wage earner today under the FICA tax, the Social Security tax, and which is creating a surplus in the Social Security fund, and it keeps that money to benefit the Social Security fund. That is a very important point, because there is no money being proposed by the other side that comes from the Medicare fund which would be locked up and protected for Medicare.

What the other side is suggesting is that the Medicare trust fund should dip into the general fund, which, for Part A, is not traditionally done. And then we should take money from the general fund and transfer it over to support the Medicare trust fund. This is a whole new concept. It is an invasion of the general fund. It is a use of general tax revenues to support Medicare, Part A. That is the practical impact of the proposal of the other side.

If the other side really wanted to address Medicare, if it wanted to address it within the context of the revenue being raised by Medicare, if it wanted to have people who are paying Medicare premiums covered by Medicare, have those premiums fully ensure them, then the other side would have agreed with the Commission that was chaired by a Senator from the other side, Senator BREAUX. Because that Commission put forward a proposal which the majority of that Commission supported, including two of the Democratic Senators, which essentially put in place a structure to assure the solvency of Medicare. It was a good proposal. Yet when that proposal came forward, the rug was pulled out from under the chairman of that Commission, who was a Democrat, and the other members of that Commission, who had worked so hard to put together the proposal. A legitimate way of resolving the Medicare problem was essentially walked away from by the administration and by the other side of the aisle.

Now they come forward with this crocodile-tear approach relative to Medicare, which is exactly what it is. If they cared about Medicare, they would have supported the President's Commission. They would have supported the proposal from the President's Commission, and they didn't. They refused to do that. They certainly wouldn't be taking general funds to subsidize the Medicare Part A, which is what they are proposing under this. There is absolutely no comparison between what the Senator from New Mexico has done in absolutely protecting the Social Security trust fund under the lockbox, protecting FICA money to be used for Social Security, as compared with what is being proposed here by the Senator from North Dakota, which is to take general funds to support Medicare.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will please come to order.

Mr. GREGG. If you wanted to help Medicare, if you wanted to make it solvent, you would have supported the proposals that came out of that Commission, the majority of that Commission.

There is another point to make here. That is this: You have to look at what was actually proposed by the President to see whether or not there was a sincere effort to address this issue or whether there was a political effort to address this issue. On the issue of Social Security, the President's budget, as it was sent to us, would have spent $158 billion of Social Security funds for general operations of the Government. It would have invaded the surplus of Social Security to the extent of $158 billion. Senator DOMENICI and Senator ABRAHAM's proposal does not allow that to happen. They say the Social Security surplus shall be sacred; it shall be used for senior citizens.

They do not say, as the President has said and as the other side has said, if they are supporting the President's proposal, that the Social Security fund is only sacred to the extent that we want it to be sacred, but if we have some special program, whether it is building schools or spending money on defense or, I guess in the case of AL GORE, trying to correct the traffic problems in D.C., we are going to invade the Social Security fund to do that.

Specifically, they were going to invade the Social Security fund to the extent of $158 billion.

So there is an issue of truth in budgeting here that has to be addressed. Our budget honestly saves the Social Security fund. Their budget didn't save the Social Security fund at all. In fact, it invaded the fund for the purposes of operating the general Government. So there is a lack of consistency, as there is a lack of consistency on this Medicare hyperbole we are hearing from the other side, which is that they want to use the general fund to fund Medicare.

I originally rose to address, however, the amendment by Senator ASHCROFT, which I think is an extraordinarily good amendment. It addresses another element of the President's proposal on Social Security, which is that the Federal Government should become the shepherd of the marketplace, that we should essentially have a reverse nationalization or take the Federal trust funds of Social Security and nationalize the capital markets of this country by having the trustees of the Social Security trust fund invest in the capital markets, in the equity markets, and control those investments as a block.

This is a really terrible idea. I mean, bad ideas come through this place occasionally; really, too often bad ideas come through this place. But when a really bad idea comes through this place, everybody should be concerned. You don't have to listen to me to see what a bad idea this is. All you have to do is listen to Chairman Greenspan, who says that this would basically pervert the marketplace, pervert the flow of capital, and would inevitably lead to a diminution of our ability as a nation to be more competitive.

Or, if you want to listen to some other group that maybe is more liberal leaning, listen to the Democratic leadership of the UAW and the major labor unions of this country.

This is their statement relative to the investment of Social Security trust funds surpluses:

In particular, we are deeply troubled that stock market investments of the Social Security surpluses would result in public tax revenues being used to finance the construction of runaway steel mills in Thailand, apparel sweatshops in Malaysia, auto plants in New Mexico. . . .

The list goes on and on. They oppose that investment. Why do they oppose it? They oppose it because they do not want money of the trust fund being invested in stocks, which they deem to be undertaking political activity that is inappropriate. That is the whole reason not to do it, of course. They are making the case for why we should not have public investment in the stock market by the Social Security trustees.

The issue is this. If the Social Security trustees are going to invest and they are going to invest in the equity markets, they should do so in a manner which allows them to invest on the rate of return, not on the basis of some political issue. But the UAW and the USWA and the other labor unions are saying, no, any investment in companies that might be running a steel mill in Thailand or a sweatshop in Malaysia or an auto plant in Mexico or an electronics plants in China, that would be the wrong investment.

So we know exactly what is going to happen. The first time the Social Security trustees happen to invest in, let's say, a tobacco company, there is going to be a bunch of folks on this floor who are going to say: You cannot make that investment, Mr. Social Security trustee. You have got to abandon that investment. You have to let go of that investment no matter what the rate of return is.

So investments aren't going to be made on the basis of what the rate of return is. They are not going to be made for the best interests of retirees. They are going to be made for the best interests of what happens to be the political fad at the moment. That, of course, is why everyone agrees, except for the President and those who support his plan, that this is a really terrible idea. This is one of those really bad ideas that comes through here every so often and should be killed.

Of course, the Ashcroft amendment accomplishes that or at least makes a statement to that effect, that we should not go forward.

If you don't think this is a problem, think about the size of the amount of money that may be invested here. By the year 2035, you are talking about a $2.1 trillion investment, which would be controlled by the Social Security trustees; that investment being in private equities. This isn't the whole trust fund. This is just the percentage of the trust fund which would actually be invested in the private markets—$2.16 trillion. That is a huge function. Think of the impact that would have on the market if suddenly the Senate said: Well, Social Security trustees, you cannot invest in autos, because we are upset about the automobiles because of emissions; you cannot invest in some sort of food product, because we are upset that there may be a tainted food; you cannot invest in some activity involving electronics, because maybe there is a competition issue, such as Microsoft, you can't put any money in Microsoft.

What a perversion of the marketplace it would be if you had that amount of money being invested on the basis of political events. Yet we know that is what is going to happen, because we have already been told by the unions that they are going to make that case. If this ever occurs, they are going to argue that you shouldn't be able to invest that way. They are going to pick different companies that shouldn't be invested in.

As a practical matter, the opportunity for creating chaos in our capital markets is huge, if we go down the President's route of allowing the Social Security trustees to control the investment, to control the investment decisions as a unit, as a block. That is why those of us have been supporting—and this is on both sides of the aisle—personal accounts, which give individuals that decision, versus the Social Security trustees that decision. It makes so much more sense.

Yes, we should have some sort of investment of the Social Security trust funds in equities. Why? Because if you happen to be 25 years old today and you are working and you are paying FICA taxes, which happen to be very, very high taxes, you are never going to recover the amount of money you pay into the Social Security trust fund.

This is especially true if you are an African American. Why? Because the rate of return on those taxes that you are paying is extraordinarily low because, unfortunately, the benefit structure is so high and the generation that is about to retire is so large that they are going to take all that money before you can get there to retire. So your rate of return represents basically a negative rate of return, if you are about 20 to 25 years old. If you happen to be 25 to 35 years old, it is about 1.1 percent. If you are 35 to 45 years old, it is about 2.5 percent. Terrible rates of return.

We do need to invest the Social Security trust fund in something other than what it is presently being invested in so that we can get a better rate of return. What is the logical place to do it? It is to put it in equity markets. But how you do it is the key. You cannot do it by giving that control over that investment to the Social Security trustees, because then you create an incentive for a perversion of the marketplace by having the market adjusted by whatever happens to be the local political fad at the time. Rather, you have to give control over the investment decision and ownership, most importantly over the asset, to the retiree, so that when you pay your taxes in FICA, you know that some percentage of those taxes—you are actually going to own that retirement benefit. If you die before you turn 60, your estate will get that benefit, and during your lifetime, you are going to be able to make the decisions on how that benefit is invested so that the investments get the best return for you, not the political return for some labor union or some fad of the moment.

This proposal by Senator ASHCROFT is an excellent one. It is only a sense of the Senate, but I think it is a shot across the bow of an element of the President's proposal on Social Security that needs to be made, and I strongly support it. I hope it will receive strong support in the Senate.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I want to finish the unanimous consent request. I was interrupted because it had not been cleared.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

I ask unanimous consent that the votes occur on, or in relation to, the following four first-degree amendments at the conclusion, or yielding back, of time, and that no second-degree amendments be in order prior to the conclusion of the votes: Ashcroft amendment No. 145; Conrad amendment No. 147 regarding Social Security; a Bond amendment regarding the President's budget; and a Kennedy amendment regarding Medicare.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I am not sure when we will vote on that. I am going to have to leave for a little while. Senator KENNEDY has not argued and we have not responded, and I have not responded yet to Senator CONRAD. Of course, Senator BOND wants to talk about the President's budget and let us have a vote on it.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. And the Senator from New York.

Mr. DOMENICI. And the distinguished Senator from New York wants to speak.

Mr. KENNEDY. I had a chance to talk about some of the matters during the course of the afternoon, so I will be glad to work out a reasonable time with the floor manager.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, maybe we can just start and take a little—I say to Senator BOND, how much time does the Senator think he needs? I do not want to limit you.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, if I may respond, my initial presentation will not be over 12 to 15 minutes, at the most. When we had debate on this in the committee, a number of others wanted to join in. I do not know whether there will be others who want to join either on my side or the other side. But to answer the chairman's question, I personally need only about 15 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. Does anybody on the Democratic side have an idea of how long they would want to speak?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Five minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. We will get to you in a minute. We will give you time to speak in favor of the Conrad amendment.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Five minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. In opposition to the President's budget, does anybody have any idea how much time? Fifteen minutes? A total of 30 minutes on the President's budget sounds about right.

Mr. KENNEDY. Twenty minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator KENNEDY wants 20 minutes. Why don't we just say if you take 20, we will allocate 20.

Mr. President, I say to Senator CONRAD, is he finished? Does he want more time?

Mr. CONRAD. Yes, I would like more time after I hear the argument of the distinguished chairman.

Mr. DOMENICI. Senator MOYNIHAN wants 5 minutes on the Conrad amendment; right?

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Yes.

Mr. REED. Less than 10—10 will be fine, but I will try to be quicker.

Mr. DOMENICI. Did the Senator say 5 is enough or 10?

Mr. REED. Ten.

Mr. DOMENICI. I am trying to see if we can start voting by 6:30. That will help some of our Senators, and I am sure it will help Senators on the other side.

Mr. GRAMM. Some of us need time to respond to the Conrad amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. Adding up all this, it seems to me we need collectively among us 1 hour 45 minutes, which could put us in a position to start voting at a quarter of 7. Can we set that as the time that we are going to start voting on these amendments in the order we have already agreed, and we will allocate the time as per the discussion here?

Mr. CONRAD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Does the Senator from New Mexico yield the floor?

Mr. DOMENICI. I will be pleased to yield.

Mr. CONRAD. I want to make sure we have an equivalent amount of time on both sides. I don't know what you have taken down in terms of response on the Conrad amendment, but we want to make certain we have an equivalent amount of time on our side to answer.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, the only thing is, the Senator has had a long time to already talk, and we have not had any time to talk.

Mr. CONRAD. I understand. But now we are in a unanimous consent posture, and if we are going to do that, to get unanimous-consent we are going to have to have an equivalent amount of time or there will not be a unanimous-consent agreement.

Mr. DOMENICI. I cannot set the time, then. What I will ask—we all understand most of the players are here—why don't we do it this way: The managers, respectively, can allocate the time, as per this understanding, to each Senator rather than entering into a consent agreement that binds us at this point. I think we are pretty close to having enough time.

Mr. CONRAD. We will be ready to vote, then, at approximately 7 o'clock.

Mr. DOMENICI. Approximately, but I don't know that we want to set that at this point. Approximately, the word should go out.

Mr. CONRAD. Fair enough.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senator FITZGERALD be added as a cosponsor to the Abraham amendment, which we agreed to earlier. I mistakenly did not ask for that, and I should have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I will indicate that when I return I want to argue a few moments with reference to the Conrad amendment, but in the meantime, what I am going to do is ask Senator GRAMM if he will manage the bill for me. He has been here, so he can just as well accomplish what I have. That means at this point, we will recognize Senator BOND and set aside the previous amendments, as per the understanding we had heretofore.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Missouri is recognized.

Mr. BOND. I thank the Chair, and I thank my distinguished chairman.

Mr. CONRAD. May I intercede with a parliamentary inquiry?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. What is the pending business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Conrad amendment was debated and has been set aside.

Mr. CONRAD. How did the Conrad amendment get set aside?

Mr. DOMENICI. It was set aside by consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Conrad amendment was set aside by unanimous-consent.

Mr. CONRAD. There was not consent on this side for setting aside the Conrad amendment.

Mr. GRAMM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, as I understand the discussion that Senator DOMENICI just had, the target was to try to finish all of these amendments at 6:30. Obviously, since we are going back and forth and sharing the time, the Senator, and anyone else, can debate his amendment.

The objective was and the unanimous-consent request which was agreed to, as I understand, was that between now and 6:30, we would have these amendments offered, but you can debate your amendment at any point and anyone on your side can debate it, and Senator DOMENICI and I will debate it. We have been setting aside amendments to stack them, and that, I understand from the Chair, is where we are. No one is trying to preclude the Senator from debating his amendment.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. There is apparently a misunderstanding on a UC for a 6:30 deadline.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is not an agreement.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. None exists.

Mr. GRAMM. That was the target that was set.

Mr. CONRAD. If I might just state, there was not consent granted to go off the Conrad amendment, and the reason consent was not granted is we have two Senators who have been here for a considerable amount of time waiting to talk about the Conrad amendment. We allowed the other side to speak to their pending amendments. I twice gave consent for the other side to argue the amendment of Senator ASHCROFT, and then it returned to a discussion on the Conrad amendment.

I think it is only fair that those Members who are here be given a chance to address the Conrad amendment. They were here for that purpose, and then we go to the Bond amendment, which is on a different matter and is a different amendment. So I ask, in fairness, that those Senators who are here, specifically Senator REED of Rhode Island, and the Senator from New York, be given an opportunity to discuss the Conrad amendment which is the pending business. I did not give consent to going off my amendment to go to the next amendment.

Mr. GRAMM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, we want to do everything we can to satisfy every Member. No one is trying to deny the distinguished Senator the right to debate his amendment. But it is my understanding that there was a unanimous consent request, and that it was granted, so that we could set the amendment aside and offer these other amendments so that they would all be pending simultaneously and that we would have the vote at approximately 6:45. No one agreed to the specific time, but the general principle was largely agreed to.

On that basis, it is my understanding that Senator BOND has been recognized. If that is not the case, if the Chair could give us a ruling. We want to follow the regular order. And no one is trying to be unfair in any way.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Conrad amendment was set aside, but a call for the regular order will bring it back.

AMENDMENT NO. 147

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I call for the regular order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the CONRAD amendment.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

Amendment No. 147 previously proposed by the Senator from North Dakota [Mr. CONRAD].

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I ask that Senator REED be recognized for 10 minutes to speak on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is recognized.

Mr. REED. Thank you, Mr. President.

I thank the Senator from North Dakota for yielding time to speak about his amendment, the essence of which is protecting both the Social Security trust fund and also the Medicare fund.

One of the deficiencies in the Republican budget before us today is a failure to seize a historic opportunity to strengthen the Medicare program in the United States. I argue it is not just an opportunity, but it is a necessity. This is the program that benefits countless Americans, it is the program that is strongly supported by all Americans and it is the program that is facing serious challenges, serious structural challenges.

One thing we can do at this moment to ensure that we have the opportunity to effectively address the issue of Medicare is to, in fact, invest dollars into the Medicare program today. But, regrettably, the Republican budget proposal, rather than doing that, would reserve budget surpluses for tax cuts, denying us the opportunity today to strengthen the Medicare system.

We have come a long way since 1993 when we were looking each year at soaring annual deficits in the order of $300 billion or more. Today, we are facing a unified surplus. With that unified surplus, we can do many things. But I believe one of the principal things we must do is strengthen both the Social Security system and the Medicare system. Senator CONRAD's amendment goes a long way toward achieving that goal.

Because of our prudent fiscal decisions over the last 6 years, we have seen a growing economy. We have seen growing prosperity. All of this is contributing to a future, we anticipate, of unified budget surpluses. Simply to step back now and say the work is done, now we can simply initiate tax cuts, misses the point. And that point is, we have to protect, we have to ensure the longevity, the stability, the predictability of the Social Security system and the Medicare system.

Now, of the two, the Medicare system faces the most immediate threat. By the year 2008, the trust funds are projected to become insolvent. This is a situation that requires immediate action. The most prudent thing to do is to reserve the resources to meet this impending situation of insolvency. There are, as I said before, millions of Americans who depend upon it, and not just those direct beneficiaries.

We have come—all of us have come—to a sense of appreciation and, in fact, consideration that if any of our relatives, our mothers, our fathers, our aunts or uncles, would be sick, they would have the Medicare system to fall back on. That allows young families the freedom to know that the health care of their parents will be protected. It gives them the freedom to concentrate on their own needs and the needs of their children. So this is not just a situation with respect to seniors; this is a situation that affects all Americans.

We tried in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 to make changes to prolong longevity of the Medicare trust fund. Today, we are beginning to realize that some of these changes have created negative consequences. In fact, we are looking to make some adjustments so that we can guarantee quality health care for all of our seniors.

We have come to know that we have to make structural changes in Medicare, but it has to be done carefully and thoughtfully. We have also come to appreciate, I hope, that we must have the resources available, because the health care needs of seniors are not going to go away. In fairness, and in keeping faith with seniors, we have to make sure those resources are available.

We will have to make hard choices about the structure of the Medicare program. But these choices will be infinitely more difficult if we take the path that is suggested by the budget resolution, that is, if we deny additional resources to the Medicare program.

I argue that in order to keep the faith of our seniors and our whole population, we have to make sure that we use the projected surplus to strengthen the Medicare system, and that the idea of using the surplus to finance tax cuts, while we face an impending crisis in Medicare, is the wrong policy. We have to, as I said before, ensure that we have the resources to confront the situation we face. And the situation we face, frankly, is one where the demands on Medicare will increase. We know that. Part of it is as a result of demographics.

Today, 39 million Americans are beneficiaries in the Medicare program. But by the year 2032, 78 million Americans will be eligible for Medicare. In terms of the sheer volume of new beneficiaries, we have to start reserving sufficient funds to meet their needs now. Not to do that, and to dissipate those funds through tax cuts, I think, might provide momentary benefits, but in the long run we will regret this.

We have to also recognize the fact that seniors will live longer, probably 6 years longer than they have in the past, so that the issues of health care for seniors will not get smaller in the future; they will become more and more important.

For all of these reasons, it is important today to recognize that we must maintain the strength and the resources for the Medicare program. That is why the amendments we are debating today, to a degree Senator CONRAD's, in some respects Senator KENNEDY's amendment, go to the simple truth: We have, through very difficult decisions over the last several years, reached a situation where we have a unified budget surplus. The question is whether we will take that surplus and strengthen Medicare, make it available for the next generation of Americans, and give us the opportunity to make structural changes, not out of dire necessity but because it will provide additional strength to the Medicare program. Or we will take these resources and dissipate them through tax cuts, which will not strengthen the Medicare system. In fact, when the system develops increased stresses and strains in the future, the budget resolution will leave us without the resources to step into the breach and do what we must do—keep the promise to our seniors, keep the promise to those who have relied upon and continue to rely upon Medicare.

So I urge careful consideration of these amendments. I hope, at the end of the day, we will have a budget that recognizes the opportunity and the necessity to invest in Medicare today so that it is there tomorrow for all of our citizens.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, normally we would go back and forth, but Senator MOYNIHAN is here and doesn't have a lengthy statement. As a courtesy to him I want to allow him to speak now and then have the rotation come back to me.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I thank my good friend from Texas.

Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment of my friend from North Dakota, Senator CONRAD. He proposes a budget point of order against the use of the Social Security surplus for new spending or tax cuts. He would also devote 15 percent of the unified surplus to Medicare.

There is broad agreement in the Senate that the Social Security surplus must be protected. Senator CONRAD's approach, in my view, is the right one, unlike a competing proposal under discussion. That proposal would create a new declining debt ceiling on debt held by the public. Inadvertently, but inevitably, it would jeopardize the credit of the United States by hampering the ability of the Treasury to meet the obligations of the Government, absent any financial crisis, but merely as a mechanical result of a bill.

Happily, our colleagues on the other side of the aisle have not brought the proposal to the floor yet, but the budget resolution includes "advisory levels" for such a new debt limit, and the Committee Report states that "it is assumed that separate and apart from the budget resolution a statute will be enacted to enforce these levels."

A simple explanation: We are going to buy down the debt. It is entirely correct that we should do so. However, anything can happen—a drought to the Midwest, a correction in the markets, a rise in the price of imported oil. In such an event, the revenues of the Government, although growing, will not have grown quite fast enough to have the debt being retired drop to the required level. In that circumstance, that perfectly prosperous economy, perfectly stable government, could find itself in default.

We have shut down the U.S. Government any number of times in the course of our history. We have never defaulted on our debt. It is the most secure instrument in the world. There is no reason whatever to put it in jeopardy at a time when we are making it even more secure by bringing the debt down to normal levels.

I hope we will not do that.

I ask unanimous consent that a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY,
WASHINGTON, DC,
March 17, 1999.

Hon. DANIEL PATRICK MOYNIHAN,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR PAT: Thank you for inquiring about the impact of the new debt limits contained in the Social Security Surplus Preservation Act. I appreciate the opportunity to respond to your question. In brief, I am deeply concerned that these limits could preclude the United States from meeting its future financial obligations to repay maturing debt and to honor payments—including benefit payments—and could also run the risk of worsening a future economic downturn.

It has been this Administration's view that fiscal restraint is best exercised through the tools of the budget process. Existing enforcement tools such as the pay-go rules and the discretionary spending limits in the Budget Enforcement Act have been key elements in maintaining fiscal discipline in the 1990's. Debt limits should not be used as an additional means of imposing restraint. Debt is incurred solely to pay expenditures that have previously been authorized by the Congress and for the investment of the Federal trust funds. By the time the debt limit is reached, the Government is obligated to make payments and must have enough money to do so.

If Treasury were prohibited from issuing any new debt to honor the Government's obligations, there could be permanent damage to our credit standing. The debt obligations of the United States are recognized as having the least credit risk of any investment in the world. That credit standing is a precious asset of the American people. Even the appearance of a risk that the United States of America might not meet its obligations because of the absence of necessary debt authority would be likely to impose significant additional costs on American taxpayers. Yet, in November 1995, a debt crisis was precipitated when Government borrowing reached the debt limit and in January Moody's credit rating service placed Treasury securities on review for possible downgrade.

As you know, there is currently a statutory limit on the amount of money that Treasury can borrow in total from both the public and from Federal trust funds. The proposed "lockbox" provision would add a new statutory limit on debt to the public.

The proposed new debt limit runs the risk of precipitating additional debt crises in the future. Although the proposal adjusts the debt ceiling for discrepancies between the actual and projected Social Security surpluses, it does not make similar corrections for unanticipated developments on the non-Social Security side of the budget. While our forecasts have been conservative, the current forecast of the non-Social Security budget could prove too optimistic because of changes in the economy, demographics, or countless other factors. This could cause the publicly held debt to exceed the new debt limit.

Furthermore, even if the debt limit appears sufficient because it covers the annual debt level—measured from end-of-year to end-of-year—it could easily be inadequate for the Government to meet its obligations at a given point during the year. Under normal circumstances, every business day, Treasury makes payments—including Social Security payments on certain days. In any given week, Treasury receives revenues, makes payments, and refinances maturing debt. Weekly and monthly swings in cash flow can easily exceed on-hand cash balances. When this occurs, Treasury then borrows from the public to meet its obligations. If the amount of publicly held debt were to reach the level of the debt limit—or if the debt limit were to decline to below the level of publicly held debt—Treasury could be precluded from borrowing additional amounts from the public. If Treasury could not borrow to raise cash, it is possible that it could simply have to stop honoring any payments—including Social Security payments.

In this case, Treasury could be prohibited from issuing any new debt to redeem maturing debt. Every Thursday, approximately $20–23 billion of weekly Treasury bills mature and, every month, an additional $60–85 billion in debt matures. These securities must either be paid off in cash or refinanced by issuing new debt. Treasury could be put in the position of having to default for the first time on our nation's history.

Congress could defuse the debt limit problems by immediately voting to raise the debt ceiling. Under the "lockbox" proposal, however, it would take sixty votes in the Senate to do so. As past experience indicates, obtaining a super-majority for this purpose is often time-consuming and difficult. Moreover, this requirement would greatly enhance the power of a determined minority to use the debt limit to impose their views on unrelated issues.

Finally, the proposed debt limits could run the risk of worsening an economic downturn. If the economy were to slow unexpectedly, the budget balance would worsen. Absent a super-majority vote to raise the debt limit, Congress would need to reduce other spending or raise taxes. Either cutting spending or raising taxes in a slowing economy could aggravate the economic slowdown and substantially raise the risk of a significant recession. And even those measures would not guarantee that the debt limit would be not be exceeded. A deepening recession would add further to revenue losses and increases in outlays. The tax increases and spending cuts could turn out to be inadequate to satisfy all existing payment obligations and keep the debt under the limit, worsening a crisis.

To summarize, these new debt limits could create uncertainty about the Federal government's ability to honor its further obligations and should not be used as an instrument of fiscal policy. While we certainly share the goal of preserving Social Security, this legislation does nothing to extend the solvency of the Social Security trust funds, while potentially threatening the ability to make Social Security payments to millions of Americans. I will recommend that the President veto the bill if it contains the debt limit provisions. If you have any additional questions, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Sincerely,

ROBERT E. RUBIN.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I want to speak on the pending amendment by Senator CONRAD, and then I understand the distinguished ranking member of the Budget Committee wants to speak on the Conrad amendment. Then we will set the Conrad amendment aside, if there is no objection, and yield to Senator BOND, who will offer his amendment. If anyone wants to give an immediate response, they can. Then we will yield to Senator KENNEDY, let him offer his amendment. At that point, Senator DOMENICI will be back to speak on the Conrad amendment. If Senator CONRAD wants to respond, he can. Then we are at least at that point closing in on a vote of all these amendments. None of this is agreed to, but follows that general parameter. If no one objects to it, let me proceed.

Mr. BOND. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. GRAMM. I am happy to yield.

Mr. BOND. May I inquire of the Senator from Texas if there is immediate response or discussion of my amendment when we get around to it? Would it be possible to respond at that time?

Mr. GRAMM. Certainly.

Mr. BOND. Since we seem to be wanting to keep things in the same context, it would be appreciated.

Mr. GRAMM. Let me yield to Senator CONRAD and then I want to speak.

Mr. CONRAD. I just want to make clear that at the end of this discussion I want a chance to respond to any points that might have been raised in objection to the Conrad amendment before we go to another amendment.

Mr. GRAMM. The only problem will be that Senator DOMENICI wants to speak and he is not here. We are simply trying to accommodate everyone in terms of offering amendments and having a debate.

In any case, there are always limits to what we can do. We will do the best we can.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. ABRAHAM). There are time limits under the budget rules for discussion of amendments. If an amendment is set aside, that does not terminate the time that is still available.

Mr. GRAMM. How much time have we run off of the CONRAD amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator CONRAD has 28 minutes remaining on the amendment, and those who speak in opposition have 60 minutes remaining.

Mr. GRAMM. I certainly will not take 60 minutes.

Mr. President, in the Budget Committee we had a series of amendments and they all had a common theme: Do anything with the surplus except give it back to working Americans.

We had an amendment that said you could not give a tax cut until you had fixed Social Security for 75 years—that would be the year 2074, so you could not do a tax cut before the year 2074; you could not give a tax cut to working people until Medicare was fixed for a similar period. You could not give a tax cut until Jesus came back. You could not give a tax cut until Bosnia and Serbs and Bosnia and Croats routinely met, fell in love, got married and, like the lion and the lamb, lay down together.

When you listen to all this rhetoric and all these amendments, what they have in common is not all the things that have to happen before a tax cut, but what they have in common is our Democrat colleagues do not want working Americans to get any of the non-Social Security surplus back.

We find ourselves with the highest tax burden in American history. When you take Federal, State, and local taxes, 31 cents out of every dollar earned by every American goes to government and taxes. With the history of our country, such as at the peak of the war effort in World War II in 1944 when we had the largest defense spending in American history and the highest tax burden in American history prior to today, even with the highest tax rate in American history, our Democrat colleagues would say: "Defer tax cuts until the year 2074, defer tax cuts until all the problems of the world are solved, defer tax cuts."

The point is, they are not for letting working Americans keep some of the money that we are now taking from them above the level needed to pay the taxpayers' bills. Remember that every penny of the Social Security surplus by the pending budget will be set aside and locked away for Social Security. Now, this is the newest variant of this "anything but tax cuts" amendment. This variant says, "Don't give the money to tax cuts; reduce the debt and then give an IOU to Medicare."

I want to remind my colleagues that this doesn't provide a dime for Medicare.

Not one penny of this money can be spent under the budget. If we adopted this amendment, Medicare would not have one nickel that it doesn't have now. It would have an IOU from the Federal Government. But how would we pay the IOU? We would pay it by raising taxes, by cutting spending, by cutting Medicare, maybe, or by borrowing money from the general public. But nothing we do today in giving an IOU to Medicare provides any money for Medicare either today or in the future.

So this is not a real transfer of resources. When our dear colleague from Rhode Island on the Budget Committee says we need to give the resources to Medicare, no resources are given to Medicare in the budget of the United States. If you look at that budget, which has a $199 billion increase, the amendment offered by the distinguished Senator from North Dakota doesn't change one penny of spending for Medicare over this period. In fact, what the Senator from North Dakota is doing is not changing Medicare spending, not providing any new benefit, not paying any old bill; he is simply giving Medicare an IOU.

Now, what is the net product of this IOU? That is the point I want to get to. The net product of this IOU is not more money for Medicare; the net product of this IOU is that in the year 2009, Medicare insolvency will occur unless we pass a reform bill, like the Breaux reform, which I strongly support and supported as a member of the bipartisan Medicare Commission. Unless we do something that is a real reform, in the year 2009 we are going to have to raise payroll taxes, or raise general taxes, or we are going to have to cut spending, or we are going to have to borrow money, whether or not we give an IOU to Medicare. Nothing in the Senator's amendment changes the amount of money that is available in the 10-year budget for Medicare.

But what is changed by the amendment? Medicare is no better off, no worse off; it has an IOU. We already have many IOUs to Medicare because of our commitment to the program. It is probably the second most popular program in American history and one to which we are all committed. Nothing changes for Medicare. No new resources are available to Medicare. No hard choices are avoided in Medicare. But what is changed? Well, what is changed is that this amendment will reduce the amount of money that is available for tax cuts by $320 billion. That is what this amendment is about. The actual change in the budget as a result of this amendment is to reduce the amount of money that is available for tax cuts.

So what are we doing here? This is an amendment that has only one substantive effect; that is, it reduces our ability to eliminate the marriage penalty. Americans meet and fall in love and get married, only to discover that they pay the Federal Government, on average, $1,400 a year for the right to be married. Knowing the Presiding Officer's wife, I know she is worth $1,400 a year, but I believe—and so does the Presiding Officer—that she ought to get the $1,400, not the Federal Government. In fact, I know the wife of the distinguished Senator from North Dakota, and I know she is worth $1,400 a year, and we want her to have the money. We don't understand why the Senator from North Dakota doesn't think she ought to have it instead of the Government. In any case, that is a matter of personal choice.

The point is, what we are doing here does nothing for Medicare, but it affects our ability to repeal the marriage penalty. There are many people who believe it is not right to force farmers and ranchers to sell the farm and sell the ranch when papa dies. He spent his whole life building up the farm or the ranch and put every penny of after-tax money he ever had into the farm or ranch. When he dies, the children have to sell the farm or ranch to give the Federal Government 55 cents out of every dollar. We want to end that.

The amendment of the Senator from North Dakota doesn't help Medicare a bit, but it takes away from our ability to exempt farms and ranches from this confiscatory death duty and exempts small businesses from this confiscatory death duty. We believe we ought to have an across-the-board tax cut.

Now, we know many of our Democrat colleagues don't believe we should have an across-the-board tax cut, and they very quickly point out, well, with an across-the-board tax cut, some people don't get a tax cut. That is true. But across-the-board tax cuts are for people who pay taxes. So everybody who pays taxes would get an across-the-board tax cut, and people who pay a lot of taxes would get 10 percent of that back. People who pay a little would get 10 percent of that back, and they would both be happy to have it back.

Now, what the Senator from North Dakota is saying is that he would rather not repeal the marriage penalty, or repeal or reduce the inheritance tax, or have a tax cut across the board, or any of the many other ways we could give this money back, because he would rather it not go back to the taxpayers. So the net effect of this amendment is that it doesn't change Medicare, doesn't change a single spending figure over the 10-year budget; it gives Medicare a meaningless IOU, basically. But what is changed, what is substantive, is that it lessens our ability to reduce the tax burden for working Americans by $320 billion.

Let me make one final point on this. Let me give you the advantage of giving some of this non-Social Security surplus back to taxpayers rather than having the Government keep it and ultimately spend it. We all remember last year when President Clinton stood at the rostrum of the House and said:

Social Security first. Every penny of this surplus will go to Social Security. I won't allow it to go on tax cuts, I won't allow it to be spent.

Yet, the President, as a tribute for adjourning, required that $21 billion of it be spent. Every penny of it came right out of Social Security. So if we don't give this non-Social Security surplus back—or at least part of it—to workers, we are going to end up squandering it; we are going to end up spending it.

Now, the advantage of giving it back is, first, it is their money to begin with. This money came from the working people. The economy is doing better because they are working and saving and investing more. Why should they not get some of the benefit—in fact, a very small percentage under our budget?

Another thing is important. If we need the money back, we can take it back. But if you spend it on a bunch of new programs creating a bunch of new constituencies, it is gone; you will never get it back. How many Government programs have we ever eliminated in American history? Virtually none.

So I just want to urge my colleagues, when they listen to the debate on this amendment, to remember that these amendments aren't about denying a tax cut until 2074 to save Social Security, or put off a tax cut until Medicare's problems are forever solved, or to wait until the second coming and let Jesus worry about it, or to wait until world peace is enshrined. That is not what these amendments are about. These amendments are about some of us not wanting to give people a tax cut. That is what it is about.

So if you think that out of the massive surpluses we are projected to have over the next 10 years, giving a modest tax cut to working Americans in things like repealing the marriage penalty, reducing or repealing the death tax, and giving a little across-the-board tax cut to everybody—if you think workers deserve some of the benefits of the good economy and the impact it has had on taxes, rather than giving every penny of it to the Government, then you want to vote no on this amendment, and you want to vote no on a whole series of amendments, each of which is going to be tied to some other issue, like research to prevent meteorites from causing tidal waves or destroying New York City—or it will go on and on and on. But the bottom line is, this is about tax cuts.

And our colleagues are desperate. They want to spend the money. They want to do everything with the money except give a little of it back. That is where we have a disagreement.

Do not be confused. This doesn't have anything to do with Medicare. Nothing in this amendment in any way provides another nickel to pay Medicare benefits. Nothing in this amendment changes the Medicare numbers in this budget at all. This simply reduces debt; God's work, if it really happened. But what it does is give a meaningless IOU to Medicare. We already have written Medicare so many IOUs that we will never pay back the ones we have written. If you want to, give them a cigar box full. And, if it makes you feel better, great. But still, it is a promise to pay money. It is not money.

So I hope our colleagues will reject this amendment and realize it is not about Medicare. It is not about Social Security. It is not about meteorites. It is not about the second coming. It is about taxes. Some people are against them. Other people are for them.

That is what the vote will be about.

I reserve the remainder of our time.

Mr. CONRAD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I will yield such time as the Senator from North Dakota needs.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

I have been delighted at hearing the description of my amendment by the Senator from Texas. He has probably the greatest imagination in the Chamber. Unfortunately, his imagination has been working overtime, because his description of my amendment has virtually nothing to do with my amendment. The Senator from Texas suggests that my amendment is to prevent a tax cut. That is not the purpose of my amendment. My amendment is very clear. My amendment provides a lockbox that reserves every penny of the Social Security surplus for Social Security. It then goes to the next step and reserves 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare because Medicare is in imminent danger.

I point out that the Senator from Texas knew that last year. I don't know what happened in the last year that has caused him to forget it. But here is what he said last year. What a difference a year makes. He said:

... [w]hat would we do if we had a half a trillion dollars to spend?

He said then:

The obvious answer that cries out is Medicare.

... I think it is logical. People understood the President on save Social Security first and I think they will understand save Medicare first.

... Medicare is in crisis. We want to save Medicare first.

The Senator from Texas said that last year. This year, the budget that he is advocating doesn't save one penny of the surplus for Medicare. That is where the difference lies. He wants all of the non-Social Security surplus to go for an across-the-board tax cut.

Where does that go? Guess where that goes. That goes to the richest among us. Here is what the top 1 percent gets in his proposal. They get $20,000 of tax cut. What happens to the bottom 60 percent? They get on average $99.

Maybe that is why now the Senator from Texas doesn't want to lock up and protect one penny of surplus for Medicare, because he wants to send it back not to Dicky Flatts. He wants to send it back to Dicky Flatts' wealthy friends, 20,000 bucks apiece to them; $99 to the rest of the people. The vast majority of the people, the top 1 percent, get $20,000. The bottom 60 percent get $99 on average.

Mr. President, the Senator from Texas suggests there is no money available for a tax cut under the Conrad amendment. That is not my amendment.

That is a great speech. It is a great political argument. The only problem with it is that it is not true. It doesn't have anything to do with my amendment.

Let's be honest. Let's be honest. What does the Conrad amendment do with the surplus over the next 10 years? Over the next 10 years the surplus is $2.6 trillion. Under my amendment, the $1.8 trillion that comes from Social Security would be reserved for Social Security.

Second, another $376 billion would be reserved to strengthen Medicare.

Interestingly enough, last year the Senator from Texas said what happens if you have a windfall? The first priority ought to be Medicare. This year, he doesn't want to provide one thin dime out of the surplus for Medicare. He wants it all to go to a tax cut, an across-the-board tax cut that has this result. I don't think that is the priority of the American people to give a $20,000 tax cut to folks who are in the top 1 percent, people who have an average income of $833,000. I don't think that is a priority of the American people. Not one dime of surplus for Medicare, but provide it all to a tax cut for people who earn $833,000, give them $20,000, when Medicare is the program that is in the deepest trouble. What sense does that make? Let's go back to what the Conrad amendment provides, because the Senator from Texas talks about an amendment that is not the amendment that is before the body. It doesn't prevent tax relief. It doesn't prevent correcting the marriage penalty. The Senator from Texas knows better.

The amendment that I have offered offers of the $2.6 trillion of surplus over the next 10 years $1.8 trillion that comes from the Social Security surplus which goes to Social Security; $376 billion goes to Medicare. That leaves nearly $400 billion that is available for tax relief and for domestic priorities like education and defense and health care and, yes, tax relief. In fact, you could easily accommodate taking care of the marriage penalty under my amendment. You could provide other forms of targeted tax relief under my amendment, because those are the priorities of the American people. Save Social Security, dedicate every penny of the Social Security surplus for Social Security, and then 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare, because it needs money, a need that the Senator from Texas himself recognized just a year ago. In addition to that, $400 billion available over the next 10 years for high priority domestic needs like education and defense, and yes, money available for tax relief as well.

Mr. President, that is what this amendment provides, not the description given by the Senator from Texas that bore absolutely no relation to the amendment that is before us.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CONRAD. I would be happy to yield for a question.

Mr. KENNEDY. I know the time has moved along, so I will just take a moment. If I understand the Senator's amendment effectively, what will be the situation under your amendment with regard to the continued solvency of the Medicare system? As I understand it, besides strengthening Social Security, one of the purposes was to extend solvency of the Medicare system in order to permit time to consider sensible reforms. Will the Senator just tell me this: Under the Conrad amendment, what is the life expectancy of the Medicare system, and what would it be without the Conrad amendment under the budget resolution that is now before the Senate?

Mr. CONRAD. The Senator from Massachusetts asks a good question. The simple answer to the Senator is: By locking up additional funds for Medicare, we would be in a position at a later point, because we cannot do that in the context of the budget resolution, to extend the solvency of the Medicare system for at least another 12 years. That is the goal of this effort; to first lock it up and protect it so it cannot be diverted for some other purpose and then, when we get at a later point where we can make transfers which we are precluded from doing in a budget resolution, to then extend the solvency of the Medicare system. That is what this is all about: Protecting, strengthening Medicare, as well as strengthening Social Security.

Mr. KENNEDY. Is it the position of the Senator, when you have the extension of the Medicare system, that at that time there would be the opportunity to consider the kinds of other reforms that might continue the Medicare system even beyond the 2020 period?

Mr. CONRAD. That is exactly correct. As the Senator may know, as a member of the Finance Committee I have voted repeatedly to reform Medicare in order to further extend its solvency. But it is my conviction, and I think the failure of the Medicare Commission so indicates, the need is for additional resources into Medicare. We also need to reform that system. But without additional resources I do not believe we will succeed in extending the solvency of the Medicare system.

So, there is really a two-part test here, to reform the system and to provide additional resources. If we do not protect them, if we do not lock them up, I assure you, Senators like our colleague from Texas will take the money and he will send it back to those who are earning over $833,000 a year. He will send them a $20,000 check and we will find our grandparents and our parents, who are dependent on Medicare for their health care, are not going to have it. That is the choice before the body. That is the choice before the body.

Mr. KENNEDY. I have a final question, if I could, of the Senator. Would this, now, be the longest period of financial security for the Medicare system that we would have had since, actually, Medicare has been established? It is my understanding with the additional revenues we would effectively guarantee the financial security of the Medicare system for the longest period since the Medicare system has been established.

Mr. CONRAD. That is correct, because this would extend it at least another 12 years beyond 2008 to 2020. With the new projections that are coming in, I believe it will be extended even beyond that.

That is fundamentally the question and the choice before this body. What are we going to do with these surpluses? Our friends on the other side of the aisle say: Social Security and tax cuts. We are saying in this amendment: Yes, Social Security, every dime of Social Security surplus for Social Security. But then let's provide additional resources to strengthen and preserve Medicare. And then, yes, let's also have funds that are available for high-priority domestic needs like education and health care and, yes, defense. And also have resources to provide some tax relief. I put marriage penalty right at the top of the list. That is provided for in this amendment.

Mr. KENNEDY. May I just ask a final question of the Senator? I notice in the report itself, under "Revenues" on page 75, it states this in the third paragraph:

The net tax cut in the Committee-reported resolution can accommodate a substantial tax cut package (the contents of which will be determined by the tax-writing committees), which may include across-the-board cuts in tax rates. . . .

The sentence does continue and list others, but it lists, No. 1, across-the-board tax cuts. Is that the kind of tax cut, if we were moving in that direction, the Senator believes would be the fairest to working families and to small farmers and the smaller business men and women of this country?

Mr. CONRAD. I do not think it would be the fairest. In fact, if you have a 10 percent across-the-board cut, the results are what I have shown here. For the top 1 percent, those whose income is over $800,000 a year, they get $20,000. The bottom 60 percent get, on average, relief of $99.

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

Mr. CONRAD. I am happy to yield to the ranking member.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. We are not surprised by incomes that exceed $1 million, $5 million, $10 million—some of the top corporate executives in this country, some of the athletes, some of the people in entertainment. So if someone earned $10 million in a year and the tax rate was 39.6 percent for income tax, and if there was roughly a 4-percent decline in that, so that person then would have—if they earned $10 million, they would get $400,000 in tax relief? Is that the way the calculation is, as you see it?

Mr. CONRAD. That is roughly the calculation. It is hard to see that as fair.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I think Michael Eisner in 1 year earned $50 million. He might get a couple of million in tax relief. Is that not right?

Mr. CONRAD. That is correct.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Would this amendment cause us to have to wait 75 years before tax cuts could be put in place?

Mr. CONRAD. No. Absolutely not. As I indicated, we are protecting Social Security by reserving every penny of the Social Security surplus. We are also reserving a substantial part of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare. But that which remains, which is about $400 billion over the next 10 years, is available for high-priority domestic needs including education, health care and defense, and for tax relief.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. So the thing that triggers this is whether or not we prepared Social Security and Medicare for its survival. That is the triggering mechanism that enables other things to be considered—tax cuts, targeted tax cuts or other programs to be exercised, is that right?

Mr. CONRAD. It is all really a question of priorities. How should these surpluses be used? Our view is, the priorities of the American people are to safeguard Social Security, to safeguard Medicare, to provide for education and defense and health care, and also tax relief. The other side says there are only two priorities. They say the priorities with these surpluses are Social Security—and I commend them for that. But then they say virtually all the rest of the money ought to go for tax cuts. When you look at what they are proposing, the Senator from Texas was very clear. He likes across-the-board. The chairman of the Finance Committee has indicated he likes the 10 percent across-the-board.

That is not fair. That is not fair. It is not the priorities of the American people. That is why this amendment is important.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, how much time do we have left on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota has 11 minutes 20 seconds. The Senator has Texas has 45 minutes, approximately.

Mr. GRAMM. Will the Senator from North Dakota yield?

Mr. CONRAD. Not on my time I will not yield.

Mr. GRAMM. Yield on my time. We have been very good in going back and forth. We have almost an hour. We have a few minutes. Would it not make sense to let us speak—let me say a few words, let Senator DOMENICI speak, and then continue this, rather than shutting us out? If you want to do it, you obviously have the right under the rules.

Mr. KENNEDY. May I just ask one final question?

If we do not do what is included in the Conrad amendment, if we are looking at the financial security of Medicare to the year 2020, is it the understanding of the Senator that we would have to somehow find $686 billion that would either have to be a combination of tax increases or benefit cuts in order to reach the $686—in order to ensure that the Medicare trust fund would be financially sound by 2020, if we do not accept the Conrad amendment?

Mr. CONRAD. I suppose what we could do is write to these folks to whom Senator GRAMM is going to send the money and ask them to make voluntary contributions so the Medicare system could go forward. I do not think that would work very well, probably.

The problem, the fundamental question before us, is, How do we use these surpluses? I think the priorities of the American people are very clear. They have told us: Social Security, Medicare, education, health care, defense, and, yes, tax relief. Those are their priorities, and that is what this amendment represents.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Has the Senator from North Dakota yielded the floor?

Mr. CONRAD. I do.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. SMITH of Oregon). The Senator from Texas.

Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, I want to be careful in what I say. But our colleague suggested that we be honest.

I want to be very honest. What we have before us is a totally phony amendment. Let me go through and explain why. Let me touch a couple points.

First of all, this save Social Security business and lock the money away for Social Security, that didn't come from Bill Clinton. That came from PETE DOMENICI. That is in the budget before us. I want to thank Senator DOMENICI for that.

Let me just run down the list of things here. First of all, our dear colleague brought out a quote from me about using money from Medicare. To paraphrase Paul Harvey, let me tell you the rest of the story.

Last year, our Democrat colleagues were trying to raise taxes on the poorest among us, on a tax where 60 percent of the tax was paid for by Americans who made $25,000 a year or less. It was a cigarette tax. The claim that the Government had the right to part of the money was that people smoke. They get smoking-related diseases and it costs us money in Medicare.

So Senator DOMENICI and I said, If you are going to collect money in cigarette taxes and you suddenly have this giant windfall—as one of the lawyers, I guess, of these people that our dear colleagues talk about, these rich people, said, “This is like winning a lottery,” talking about the millions of dollars that had gone from the settlements—Senator DOMENICI and I said last year, Well, if you are going to tax tobacco and you are going to impose the tax on people making $25,000 a year or less that pay the bulk of tobacco taxes—they are concerned about poor people today, but last year they were raising their taxes—Senator DOMENICI and I said, Well, if you are going to do that, at least spend the money on Medicare for health care.

Now, when it was clear they weren't going to be able to spend it on all their social programs, their amendment died. But that is where that quote came from, if we are going to be honest.

Let me make it clear that all this business about “the Domenici budget does not provide a penny for Medicare,” not so. The Domenici budget provides more money for Medicare than any budget ever written in American history. It provides $199 billion of new money. It funds every penny for Medicare. The President proposed cutting Medicare funding by $20 billion over the same period. So this is not about Medicare. This is about tax cuts, and it is about politics.

Now, this “richest among us”—I do not understand people who love capitalism and hate capitalists. I do not understand people who love investment but hate the people who make investments. I don't make $1 million a year. If I were really productive, maybe I would. But let me just tell you the trick behind all these charts. The trick behind all these charts is that tax cuts are for taxpayers. So if you don't pay any income taxes and we cut income taxes, you don't get a tax cut. Some people say, Well, that's not fair; I don't pay income taxes, but if they are going to give a tax cut, I ought to get some of the money.

Well, ask working people. Do they get Medicaid? No. Do they get food stamps? No. Do they get housing subsidies? No, because they are not poor. Those programs are not for working people. Tax cuts are for working people. So if you don't pay any taxes, you don't get any tax cuts.

Now to this business about what if somebody makes $800,000 a year and they get a $20,000 tax cut. Outrage. Well, if they get a $20,000 tax cut, it meant they paid $200,000 of taxes. So if I paid $20,000 of taxes and I get a $2,000 tax cut, why shouldn't somebody who paid $200,000 get a $20,000 tax cut? Do we have to debate every issue by trying to pit Americans against each other? What is wrong with people making money? What is wrong with people being rich? They didn't make the money by stealing it from somebody.

They made it by producing something of value and selling it. I would just like to say that we get tired of having the people who are making $1 million a year tell us about tax cuts for rich people.

I don't get it. Senator DOMENICI is from an immigrant family. I told the story earlier about him almost being born in a lettuce patch where his mama was picking lettuce. Neither of my parents went to high school. Suddenly we care about rich people and our colleagues, many of whom are rich, are going to protect people against rich people.

Here is the point. Why not give everybody a tax cut? This bill does not give an across-the-board tax cut. It just provides money for tax cuts. Obviously, one of the ones that will be debated, everybody will get a chance to give their speech about these outrageous rich people who paid $1 million a year in taxes and we want $2 million. We want every penny they have. We want to put them in prison. The point is, with an across-the-board tax cut, you get 10 percent, whatever you pay, you get 10 percent of it back.

If that hurts your feelings, you live in the wrong country. It doesn't hurt my feelings.

Final points and I will get out of Senator DOMENICI's way. Senator KENNEDY asked, What does this do to the lifespan of Medicare? Well, let me tell him. Nothing is the answer, zero, zip. The lifespan of Medicare is supposedly to 2008, but it is only to 2008 because President Clinton took part of the cost out of the trust fund and put it into general revenue. So Medicare already went broke. But it is 2008 today and, if this amendment were adopted, it would still be 2008, because this amendment provides not one nickel, one penny, one million, one billion, nothing to Medicare. It gives Medicare a meaningless IOU, and we still have to cut spending or raise taxes or borrow money in order to pay it.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, let me correct the Senator. He didn't even give them an IOU. He just reduced the debt.

Mr. GRAMM. That is right, and claims that they get credit for it.

Mr. DOMENICI. Correct.

Mr. GRAMM. Well, let me say that this is a phony amendment in every respect except one. It has nothing to do with Medicare. It doesn't have any impact on Medicare. Normally in these amendments, you have all this folderol and meaningless stuff at first, but when you get to the last page and the last paragraph, you get to the bottom line. What this amendment does is, it reduces the levels of funds in section 104(1) by which the Senate Committee on Finance is instructed to reduce revenues.

So what this amendment is about is denying people a tax cut. Our colleagues are for tax cuts in general, even though both our colleagues voted for the last amendment which would have denied any tax cut. They are for them in general. They are for eliminating the marriage penalty in theory. They are for changing inheritance taxes in theory. But when it gets right down to giving somebody a tax cut, they are against it.

Why are they against it? As long as we have been asked to be honest, they are against it because they want to spend this money. They are against it because they want to spend this money on programs, just as they did last year when we busted the budget by $21 billion and stole every penny of it right out of the Social Security trust funds and they voted for it.

So let's not be deceived. I was asked to be honest and I wasn't going to be, because I didn't want to be unkind. But since I have been asked to be honest, let me be honest. This is a phony amendment. It has nothing to do with Medicare and everything to do with denying tax cuts. Our colleagues on the left side of this Chamber want to spend this money, and we don't want them to spend it. We want people to have it back.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. How much time do we have on the amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico has 35 minutes 20 seconds. The Senator from North Dakota has 9 minutes 57 seconds.

Mr. DOMENICI. Let me assure Senators here on the floor, I do not intend to use 35 minutes. I am fearful if I say anything, we will have to hear the same song and dance over again from the other side. We have heard it about 10 times today, but that is all right.

First of all, we all know what this is about. Last year the President of the United States said to the Congress, Democrat and Republican, we have taken Medicare out of politics. Let us move arm in arm and let us fix Medicare. Everybody said great. The President was active in this regard, and he said, let us have this commission look at it. We have taken it out of politics, because we want to fix it.

The truth of the matter is, the President decided to make Medicare a political issue in his budget this year. He didn't wait around for the commission. He made it a political issue in his budget.

Those who are now arguing on the floor about the budget we produced in committee are continuing the political fight rather than a factual fight.

I want to say a couple of things. There is a lot to get excited about here, but I promise myself I will not do that, other than I will say to my good friend, you should never, never have put the Social Security lockbox money in the same lockbox with yours. If you would like to have a second lockbox and call it yours, you are welcome to do it. But it is a fraud to put it in the same lockbox with the Social Security trust fund. It is nothing similar to it. It has no relationship to it, and all it does is say, "We're going to reduce the debt more than the Republicans want to, and we're hoping that by reducing that debt, there will be money available for Medicare." That is it plain and simple.

In case anybody is interested, on this chart, this red line is the President's debt reduction for which he is taking credit and have Nobel laureates saying it is great. The committee bill before you is the blue line which reduces the debt $400 billion more than the President, which, incidentally, is more than the distinguished Senator is going to take out of the tax cut to make a case—not a case for Medicare—a case against giving back to the American people any of their hard-earned money.

This amendment, which will fall because it is not germane, is an antitax amendment. Let me tell you, I am tired of Democrats getting up and saying, "We don't want to vote for tax relief because Republicans are talking about an across-the-board tax cut." I am tempted to offer an amendment to strike the 10-percent tax cut from this tax cut and put in marriage penalty and any other family-related tax cuts. Take it out. Let's see if they are for it then.

What will the argument be? The argument can't be 10 percent because it is not even mentioned in this resolution. What they can get up and say is, "We have a better idea for tax cuts than the Republicans." And we say, "Wonderful, if you do, that's fine." But it is not a wonderful idea to cut the tax cut almost in half and claim you are for tax cuts and you did something for Medicare when, as a matter of fact, all we need to do for Medicare is to get the Democrats and the President—and I will not include every Democrat because there are some who already know what they want to do—but all we need to do is get them to tell us what we ought to do for Medicare.

This idea that my friend, Senator KENNEDY, got up and said, "We are in the red $860 billion over," I don't know how many years, Mr. President, that is saying if the program stays just like it is and there is no reform, that is what we would need to keep it going like it is.

Let me assure you that not even the distinguished Senator who is proposing this so-called Medicare amendment thinks we should leave the Medicare program like it is. In fact, there is a quote—we are going to find it in a minute—where the distinguished Senator said Medicare does not have a chance to survive unless we reform it. That is what he was saying last year.

Reforming it means you save money by making the program more efficient, less apt to have fraud injected into the program and, yes, being realistic. There are those who say this commission that worked on this didn't come up with a good product and they used that one idea. Thirty years from now, the age for receiving Medicare will go up piecemeal, and in 30 years, it will be up 2 years. Maybe they can fix that if they are serious. But, Mr. President, that reform package saved enough money to pay a prescription benefit. They did not need to take away this tax cut to do it. They had $61 billion left over from reform, and they said, "Let's use it for prescription drugs."

Any talk on the floor that the Conrad amendment is going to fix Medicare like it has never been fixed before is pure, absolute demagoguery and speculation at the highest. Nobody has any idea what that is going to do for Medicare, if it is even available for Medicare. It might not even be there. It can be spent for anything else.

I submit, talking about what the American people want most and coming down here and telling us that 20 times does not mean that that is what they are getting in that amendment by my good friend, Senator CONRAD, because it is not doing what he says the American people want. If you look at it, it does not accomplish what he continually claims the American people want.

Frankly, I believe we ought to get serious and we ought to take the politics out of this, but if you do not want to, we will take this one as far as we can because we understand what is right, what is fair, and what is fair to future generations, not just our senior citizens.

From my standpoint, the truth of the matter is, this is plain and simple: an effort to increase taxes that would otherwise be reduced by $320 billion over 10 years. What is really incredible about it is that it does not provide $1 for Medicare. Not one. It reduces the debt of the United States temporarily until it is spent by someone with no real way of saying it is to go to Medicare because there is no way to do that.

It is no lockbox; it is a wish box. In fact, you should take it out of my lockbox and make your own wish box out of it, and maybe mine should be green and yours should be—I don't know what color—surely a shade of yellow, something slightly brown, something like that.

In any event, all this amendment purports to do is to reduce the debt held by the public because the Senator could not even put it into the Medicare fund, as the President did, in his phony budget because if he did that, he would have to raise the gross debt of the United States and would be vulnerable here on the floor for having done that, so it doesn't even do that.

I understand my friend, Senator CONRAD, is anxious to get up and talk again. He has made so many arguments today, I don't know if he needs any more, but the Senate accommodates him because that is the way the budget process works.

Let me conclude. The budget before us fully funds Medicare assuming no reform. Reform will save a lot of money, and there will be money around from these numbers in this budget which is fully funded. We do not cut the $20 billion that the President does, and regardless of what they say on that side, within the 10-year period, there could be up to $100 billion. And if we get on with reform, that $100 billion will be available. If we wait around forever with no proposal, then who knows.

I believe we are going to get serious. The President is going to send us a package. I only hope he does not send us one that is irresponsible because of this debate. I don't think he will. He understands the issue. We can get on to doing Medicare right, not act like this amendment fixes it.

Mr. CONRAD addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, let me just say, sometimes voices are raised here on the floor, mine included. But let there be no mistake, I have great respect for the chairman of the Budget Committee.

Mr. DOMENICI. And I for you.

Mr. CONRAD. I appreciate that, and absolute affection for the Senator from New Mexico as well. We have a disagreement. I think both of us are being honest and direct about that disagreement.

Let me be clear. The Senator from New Mexico says that my amendment does not fix Medicare. That is true. That is absolutely true. My amendment does not fix Medicare; it does not solve the problem. But my Medicare amendment, or the part of my amendment that deals with Medicare, does make a difference, because it reserves funds to strengthen Medicare—nearly $400 billion over the next 10 years.

The lockbox offered by our friends across the aisle does not provide one penny of the surplus for Medicare. They say, in answer, "But we fund Medicare." Yes, of course they fund Medicare. That is a budget requirement. Of course they fund it. But in the surpluses that are projected over the next 10 years, they are not setting aside one penny of that surplus to strengthen Medicare. That is a deficiency of their proposal.

Let's go back to what the Conrad amendment really does. The Conrad amendment reserves, in a lockbox, every penny of the Social Security surplus over the next 10 years for Social Security.

No. 2, the Conrad amendment takes $370 billion over the next 10 years of non-Social Security surplus and reserves that for Medicare. That is a critical first step to solving and resolving the Medicare crisis.

No. 3, we still then have about $400 billion left over the next 10 years to deal with high-priority domestic needs—education and health care and, yes, defense and, yes, tax relief—$400 billion that is available for those categories.

Our friends on the other side say that is not what we want to do. They say, we just want the money for Social Security and tax cuts, nothing out of the surplus—nothing out of the surplus—for defense, for education, for Medicare. Well, we do not believe those are the priorities of the American people. That is the difference. And that is what this amendment is about.

I ask my colleagues, just for a moment, to suspend partisanship on both sides and really look at what this amendment says—not to the characterization of the Senator from Texas. His characterization was his imagination working overtime. It is what he hoped my amendment said, not what my amendment does say. The argument that he made was an argument not against the amendment that is before us but an argument against an amendment that he wished I was offering.

My amendment does pay down the publicly held debt more than the budget resolution—by about $300 billion. My proposal pays down publicly held debt more than what is being offered on the other side.

I think that is a good priority as well. So not only do we strengthen Social Security, strengthen Medicare, or at least make it possible to strengthen Medicare and also provide for high-priority domestic needs such as education, health care, defense, and tax relief, but we also are in a position to further pay down the public debt. Because every economist who has come before us in the Budget Committee, in the Finance Committee, has told us that that is the highest priority of all—pay down this publicly held debt, to put us in a position to keep interest rates down, to have a stronger economy for the future.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and reserve my time.

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my time come off the budget resolution itself and not off the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I want just a few minutes to respond.

Mr. President, I rise in strong support of Senator CONRAD's lockbox amendment, which reserves approximately 45 percent of the non-Social Security budget surplus for Medicare over the next 10 years.

Mr. President, we have heard a lot about the Republican lock box here on the floor. But so far, it's been all conversation and no action and no amendment. Nothing was offered in Committee, except for a sense of the Senate that merely endorses current law. And we don't expect to see anything on the floor.

What we have before us is a budget that spends nearly every dollar of the projected $1 trillion surplus on tax cuts. And the numbers don't lie.

On page 5 of the budget resolution, the amounts of surpluses remaining after the Republican tax cut are as follows:

A $6 billion on-budget deficit in 2000;
A surplus of zero in 2001;
A surplus of zero in 2002;
A surplus of zero in 2003; and
A small $3 billion on-budget surplus in 2004.

Mr. President, nothing in this budget is reserved for Medicare, although the program goes bankrupt in just eight years. But Senator CONRAD's amendment would correct this obvious oversight by reserving approximately 45 percent of the onbudget surplus for Medicare over the next 10 years.

This amendment is more than rhetoric, Mr. President. And it's more than a press release. It's a new Senate rule that reserves $707 billion for the Medicare program over the next 15 years. That's fully $707 billion more than the Republican budget.

Over ten years, this amendment would reduce debt by over $300 billion more than the Republican plan. Over the long-term, these reserves would be instrumental in crafting a comprehensive Medicare reform package that modernizes the program for the 21st century.

In the Budget Committee mark-up last year, Chairman DOMENICI stated that "for every dollar you divert to some other program you are hastening the day when Medicare falls into bankruptcy." Well, Mr. President, we are one year closer to bankruptcy but a giant step back from where we were last year, when this program was a priority for both Republicans and Democrats.

Not only does our lockbox do more to protect Medicare and reduce debt, it also has a stronger lock and more responsible enforcement procedure for both Social Security and Medicare.

Mr. President, we enforce the lockbox through the tried and true mechanisms of the pay-go rules. If Congress attempts to spend part of the Social Security surplus or Medicare reserve, the sequester rules of the Balanced Budget Act would make automatic spending cuts in order to keep the reserve intact.

But in their budget, Republicans have weakened the pay-go rule by allowing all funds not saved for Social Security to be used for tax cuts, right away, regardless of whether we ever act to reform Social Security and Medicare. Our lockbox, however, creates a powerful incentive for Congress to address the long-term problems of Social Security and Medicare by prohibiting surpluses outside of the lockbox from being used until we reform Social Security and Medicare.

To sum up, Mr. President, the Republican budget ignores Medicare, but the Democratic lockbox protects both Social Security and Medicare. The Republican budget reduces public debt, but our lockbox reduces it more. The Republican budget does nothing to further protect Social Security, but our proposal adds a new super-majority point of order to make certain that Social Security surpluses remain out of the budget. And finally, the Republican budget puts tax breaks first and tax breaks only, but our lockbox puts Social Security and Medicare first.

Mr. President, this is an easy choice. Our proposal is better for Social Security, better for Medicare, and better for debt reduction. And our proposal is a more responsible alternative to a Republican budget that does absolutely nothing to protect or strengthen Medicare.

Mr. President, I think securing Social Security, the Social Security trust fund, the Medicare trust fund, is of great help. And whether issuing more IOUs or not, we could put cash in there. And if we left it in cash, then what we would do is lose the purchasing power that is eroded by inflation or that would fail to replenish the fund as the number of recipients grows, even though the promise is made to each individual.

But it also does something else, I think. What it does do is it attempts to secure longer life for Social Security and for Medicare, to at least remove it from the likelihood that the appropriators one day—someday in the future, if things get tough—would be able to say, "Well, listen, we just can't afford to do that. We're going to legislate reductions in the benefits." And I think it is the right way to go.

Mr. President, I must take a couple minutes because one of the things that I find terribly bothersome here is the fact that we are now down to where we are saying, "stole money," "phony accounting," "fraud," and the Director of the OMB—a brilliant, educated man—was called the "most deceptive witness to ever appear before the Finance Committee" by one of our Senators.

I think that that language ought to be out of order because it accomplishes nothing except to get everybody a red neck. That is what happens. We all get excited about it because we are offended, insulted, by the trivial language that goes through this place when we are talking about something so serious.

"Taxes on poor people" it was proposed because we were going to impose a burden on the tobacco users for the amount of the health care system that they used. "Taxes on poor people," the plea was. "We've got to feel sorry for those people who are going to pay more for their tobacco, for their cigarettes," even though they have consumed more of our health care costs in the country in lost productivity, et cetera; it is estimated as much as $100 billion a year. "Poor people, they are addicted to tobacco; and, therefore, we ought not to ask them to pay more for the programs they use."

I agree with that of sorts, but, on the other hand, in the State of Texas, $15 billion was accepted by the State of Texas as a resolution, a settlement of the case they had against the tobacco companies—$15 billion. And I did not hear anybody say, "Well, Texas ought not to take that money because ultimately the consumers, the smokers, are going to pay for it." I did not hear anybody say that when tobacco companies raise the price of cigarettes 45 cents a pack, "Oh, what a pity for those poor people to have to pay it." Of course, it goes into the profits of the tobacco companies, but I did not hear anybody pleading the case for those poor people who are going to pay it.

I heard a description of capitalists who hate capitalism. Well, you are looking at one. You are looking at one. And there is one sitting in the chair of the President, as well, a capitalist. He made his money through hard work and diligence. And I know, in my discussions with his wife, how she tends the business while he serves the country.

I came from a poor immigrant family. And I was struck by the comparison between the Senator from New Mexico and myself. I was born at home, but it was not in rural country: it was in New Jersey. I was born at home. The doctor came to visit and delivered this beautiful package to my mother. That is what happened. But I did not have the benefit of the hospital, and she didn't either. And maybe that is the result of what we have here.

But the fact is, I came from immigrant parents. I came from a father who worked in a silk mill. And perhaps that was the reason that this man, at 43 years of age, died of colon cancer. He was a weight lifter, he played basketball, he wrestled, he loved the outdoors, and he ate healthy foods, even in the 1930s when no one was talking about it. And my father would laugh at you if you smoked, but he died very young. He died young because he worked in a place that is believed was unhealthy to work in. There was no OSHA protection. There was nothing against fumes or film or dust in those mills.

My uncle worked in the same industry. My father was 43. My uncle died when he was in his early 50s. And my grandfather, who worked in this same business, died in his early 50s. I know what it is like to have come from the other side of the tracks.

I helped create one of the great businesses in America. And I brag here for a moment. And, please, I hope everybody will forgive this immodesty. We started the company without a dime, two other friends and I. Those two were brothers, and their father, as my father, worked in the silk mill. His health, however, was better and was not harmed. None of us had 15 cents to call our own, and we created a business that today employs 33,000 employees, and has one of America's most successful records for return on investment to the investors. If you invested $300 in my company in 1961—we went public—it is worth almost $2 million today. So I am a capitalist.

I served my country 3 years in the military, and I was in Europe during the war despite my youthful appearance. The fact of the matter is I did ev-everything I was supposed to, and I did it the old-fashioned way—by working hard. It took us a long time to build that business, but we did succeed.

I used to serve with the Hall of Famer here, Bill Bradley, a great, great Senator, a great person, who was a member of the Basketball Hall of Fame. New Jersey was the only State in the whole country that had two Hall of Famers. I was a member of the Hall of Fame of information processing. You should have seen the kids running after me for my autograph. We were the only two.

I got there because I helped create not just a company but an industry. So I know a capitalist when I see one, and I like them because they contribute and they create jobs. As I mentioned, 33,000 people work for ADP today. I don't know where they would have had jobs elsewhere, but they like their jobs in that company.

When you disparage attempts to say we have a progressive system, that is what has made this country great. People pay their taxes based on their ability to pay and pay the lowest tax rate on a relative basis that we have seen in this country. Yes, there is more tax being paid because we have more people earning more money. It was never dreamed that people would be worth $30 billion or $10 billion.

One of the reasons I am worried about abolishing an inheritance tax is a guy leaves his heirs $30 billion, and the heirs have to do nothing but sit there, accumulate interest worth $1.5 billion a year, and pretty soon they own a large part of America and you can't take it away.

When we describe people as having ulterior motives or being of lesser character than others, I think it is the wrong way to go. I don't think it is a good example for people across America or children who might be interested. This is an honorable body and everyone on that side of the aisle or this side of the aisle I consider an honorable person.

Do we have differences? Absolutely. I think we have to tone down the rhetoric. I guess I have to tone down the decibels of my voice.

Whether or not we feel sorry for the farmer, for the rancher, who when he or she sells their property has to pay a tax, then we ought to feel just as sorry for the guy who owns the hotdog stand on the boardwalk in Atlantic City who works and supports his family that way. What is the difference between the person who owns a retail store or the person who owns a farm? There isn't any, in my view. That is my perspective, living in the most densely populated State in the Union.

I plead with my colleagues. I agree with Senator CONRAD. I think we have to make sure that Social Security is protected. My friends on the Republican side—and we all talk about PETE DOMENICI, Senator DOMENICI, affectionately, as well as respectfully. The fact is we differ with him, because I don't see one thing in this Republican budget that says we are going to put 5 cents in Medicare. They say nothing about it. Wishful thinking.

They will continue present levels of funding; OK. The fact of the matter is that doesn't help protect Medicare in the years ahead.

I will yield back the floor, much to the distress of the listening audience.

Mr. DOMENICI. Before I yield back any time I have on the amendment, I want to say I hope I didn't say anything that prompted the Senator to worry about whether I was levying a personal attack on the Senator. I don't believe I was. If I did, I apologize.

Let me ask unanimous consent—and this has been cleared with Senator LAUTENBERG—that the time on all amendments from this point on be reduced to 1 hour equally divided and the time on second-degree amendments be reduced to half an hour equally divided.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. I yield to Senator BOND who has been patiently waiting to give us the President's budget so we can vote on it.

AMENDMENT NO. 151

(Purpose: To propose the President's budget)

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk, and I ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The bill clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Missouri [Mr. BOND] proposes an amendment numbered 151.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. (The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, I apologize, but I want to take a break from the fascinating discussions, the dissertations on autobiographical materials, and raise a new subject. I will talk about the budget. I apologize for making this major shift in the direction of the debate, but I am offering today the President's budget.

We offered this in the Budget Committee because a lot of people have been talking about the President's budget. Unfortunately, nobody has offered it here to date. I thought we ought to have an opportunity to discuss it.

Some of our colleagues waxed very eloquent in the Budget Committee on the benefits of the President's budget. Of course, people who know budgets know that they are just basically a bunch of numbers, but those numbers do have consequences. When people talk about how great the President's budget is, when it comes time to vote on it, nobody seemed to want to do that in the Budget Committee, so I thought I would give all of our colleagues an opportunity to vote.

As I look at the President's budget plan, it reminds me of the so-called garbage boat, the garbage barge that floated in the Atlantic a few years ago. Everybody kept saying how important it was to get the garbage buried someplace but nobody wanted the barge to land on their shores. A lot of our colleagues have talked about how important and how wonderful the President's plan is, but no one wants to take custody of it, nobody wants to take responsibility for it.

I suggest that this substitute would be a great opportunity for somebody who wants to work from the principles and the ideas of the President's plan to vote for it. Then we can move forward and work on it.

Why do our friends on the other side keep running away from the President's plan? The problem comes up when we move away from talking about general principles, platforms, and commitments and start talking about the details of the plan. I agree we ought to talk about principles, but principles are not enough. We have to get down to the point of talking about some plans, some numbers.

In the Senate, we vote on a plan, not on some vague statements claiming to be principles. I am from Missouri and, of course, our motto is "Show Me." Show me how these principles translate into a budget. That is what this amendment is all about. This is putting before the Senate the actual numbers that the President has set out to implement the details of his budget plan outlined to us and to the Nation just a month and a half ago. It is a vote on the specific plan proposed by the President.

Now, let's take a look at what the President's plan does. This is just in summary, and there are a lot of things we can say about it. First and foremost, the President's plan breaks the budget discipline we worked so hard to achieve, the spending caps we agreed to in the balanced budget amendment that helped get control over spending and produced a surplus. These caps would be shattered by the President's plan.

We would not have any surplus to be worrying about if we had not, under the leadership of our distinguished chairman of the Budget Committee, Senator DOMENICI, fought and fought against plans that were vetoed, against objections from the other side, against every manner of obstacle, finally to get a plan in place which capped spending and produced a budget, where we are reducing the deficits and moving toward a surplus in the future.

This has been stated by many observers as one of the reasons why there has been some strength in the economy, because after years of watching a totally undisciplined Federal spending machine raise the deficit and build on the debt of this Nation, we finally are getting spending under control.

We have had good monetary policy. Our fiscal policy has been a disaster.

Under the leadership of Chairman DOMENICI, we have finally gotten a handle on the fiscal policy. But the President's budget plan proposes to spend $30 billion more than we agreed to in the balanced budget amendment. He breaks the cap. This is going back to the old spend and spend and spend proposals that put us in the position where we have run up trillions of dollars of debt on our children's and our grandchildren's credit cards.

I think it is very important that we focus on the budget caps. The plan goes against the principles we supposedly agreed to around here. I was very interested that, on February 28, the distinguished minority leader was being questioned by Cokie Roberts on the "This Week" program. When asked if we should keep the caps, his response was, "Absolutely." Cokie Roberts says, "So you are against breaking the caps?" Senator DASCHLE says, "Absolutely. I think we've got to live within those caps. We set them out. We all voted for them, agreed to them. We knew the ramifications when we did so. We know what kind of a surplus we are going to enjoy if we have them. I think we ought to stick with them."

Well, that is a strong statement of principle in favor of the caps. I agree with it. But that principle is violated by the budget plan submitted by the President. That is why I think we are going to see a significant number of Members on the other side of the aisle vote against the President's plan, because the plan does not carry out the principles that he has so widely espoused and been so roundly cheered for espousing.

Here is another principle from the President himself. This is from the State of the Union Message, January 27, 1998. Within the first portion of the remarks, he said:

If we balance the budget for next year, it is projected we will have a sizable surplus in the years immediately after. What should we do with the projected surplus? I have a simple four word answer: save Social Security first. Tonight, I propose that we reserve 100 percent of the surplus—that is, every penny of any surplus—until we have taken all the measures necessary to strengthen the Social Security system for the 21st century.

That was one time I was pleased to stand up and applaud the President, because I agreed with that principle. I agreed with the principle that we ought to take the money from the surplus, the surpluses we are seeing now, and apply them against Social Security. But what does the President's plan do? The President's plan, as outlined in the budget—you have heard about the devil being in the details. Man, that is an understatement when it comes to the President's budget, because it is full of devils. You can imagine what you call a place that is full of devils. There is a place named for that. That is what the President's budget is. The President's plan would spend a whopping $158 billion of the Social Security surplus on the President's big spending schemes.

Let me show you this chart. Here is an opportunity to take a look at the difference in the two plans. Here is the plan before us, Senator DOMENICI's plan, "The Fate of the Social Security." It says here is the surplus. Here is the President's plan. He says we can save this much, and then we want to invest some in equities. I believe Senator ASHCROFT addressed that equity question. He wants to have the Federal Government investing in the stock market and taking control, potentially, of companies through ownership—a new form of nationalization, a national economic scheme that would make a central planner of the Marx or Lenin era salivate with anticipation. And then the President wants to spend $158 billion out of that surplus. That, Mr. President, is not saving the Social Security surplus for Social Security.

These are some of the specifics of the plan. That is why we need an up-or-down vote on the President's plan, not on some vague statement by the President on the principles. That is why I have offered the plan.

Let's talk a little bit about Medicare. We have heard that the President does wonderful things about Medicare. Well, you know, I was very interested. I want to look at this because the President's plan cuts about $9 billion out of Medicare for the next 5 years to pay for new spending programs.

Mr. President, in my State, if you freeze hospital payments and you squeeze down on the money that the providers are getting, you are on the verge of doing something disastrous. Many of the small rural hospitals and rural health care providers in my State are at the point where they can no longer stay in business if the reimbursements are ratcheted down. The system has fatal flaws in it that need to be corrected. Throwing money at a fatally flawed system will not save it, and ratcheting it down further is going to wind up having small rural hospitals closed, having rural hospitals no longer able to take Medicare patients. It is going to wind up in denying Medicare to the people who most need it.

If we are serious about Medicare reform—and I hope we all are—we had better go to work on the recommendations made by the bipartisan members of the Medicare Commission, led by our colleagues, Senators BREAUX and KERREY on the other side, with the active leadership of Senators GRAMM and FRIST on our side, and others, because throwing money at Medicare is not going to save a system that is fatally flawed.

I wish to clear away some of the chaff that has been thrown out in discussions about Medicare by citing a fellow who I believe is a rather credible observer, David Broder. On March 15, he wrote an article that appeared in the St. Louis Post Dispatch, talking about the fury of some of the Finance Committee members in the Senate. He explained it. He said:

The committee had just received prepared testimony saying in unusually blunt language that Clinton, far from cracking the Medicare problem, may be making it worse. Dan Crippen, the director of CBO, said that by transferring $350 billion from the anticipated budget surpluses to the Medicare trust fund, the Clinton plan would "delay the date of insolvency."

But the transfer would do nothing to address the underlying problem: "Rapid growth in spending for Medicare. . . will still outstrip anticipated revenues."

Listen to what Broder said:

The prescription drug benefits Clinton touted (but left out of his budget because he has no way to pay for them) "would be popular with beneficiaries," Crippen said, "but the additional program costs would be large."

Broder goes on to opine:

By raising expectations, Clinton has made the Medicare problem worse.

David M. Walker, the head of GAO, was even more biting. By proposing a large-scale shift of general revenues to a program now largely financed by payroll taxes, Walker said, the Clinton proposal "could serve to undermine the remaining fiscal discipline associated with a self-financing trust fund concept."

Meantime, he said, "it has no effect on the current and projected cash-flow deficits" in Medicare and "would not provide any new money to pay for medical services." The Clinton program, he said, "does not include any meaningful program reform that would slow spending growth. . . . At the same time, it could strengthen pressure to expand Medicare benefits in a program that is fundamentally unsustainable in its present form."

There you have it. You have the President's budget plan, which is smoke and mirrors as far as Medicare goes. We have had the testimony before the Budget Committee from the Director of CBO and the Director of the General Accounting Office. It does nothing for Medicare. It provides some transfer of trust fund balances and shifts money back and forth with funny accounting. It gives new life to that old meaning that, "I'm from the Federal Government, trust me. I am going to shuffle notes around and claim that we have solved some problems."

The Clinton plan puts more IOUs into Social Security that will increase the debt held by the public. It is likely that the plan that he has presented will actually increase the debt that my son and the children and grandchildren of this country will have to carry for the rest of their lives. By raising the debt, it does nothing to save Social Security; it just increases the burden. Oh, yes. And taxes. At a time when we are looking at surpluses, he increases taxes so there will be more money to spend. This is a real plan. These are not principles. This is what his plan does. If there are some in this body who think that the President outlined the right way to go, I would say show me. Show me your support for it. Here is what it does. Show me if you are willing to vote for it.

Mr. President, I don't know a lot of our colleagues who want to endorse a plan like that. I certainly wouldn't. But I appreciate the opportunity to give them the chance to speak up for the President's plan.

I thank the Chair. I reserve the remainder of my time.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, will the Senator yield? Does the Senator intend to use the remainder of his time?

Mr. BOND. I would be happy to yield to any of my colleagues, or turn the time over to our distinguished chairman to allocate to such colleagues if they wish to speak on related areas. I would be happy to have the chairman of the committee allocate the time to any of our colleagues.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, how much time do we have?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 14 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. We have 14 minutes under the agreement on first-degree amendments. How much time would the Senator like? The Senator can have 14 minutes. There is still time on the bill.

Ms. SNOWE. No. Actually less, I say to the chairman. Mr. President, I want to speak on one facet of this issue, and I will speak again later. I thank the chairman. I appreciate his yielding me this time.

I had intended to address the entire issue of the budget resolution as a member of the Budget Committee, because I think this was an extraordinary process in the Budget Committee. I want to commend the chairman of the Budget Committee, Senator DOMENICI, for doing an outstanding job, and for his exceptional leadership in balancing the many issues that came before the Budget Committee in crafting a budget that strengthens and improves some areas of the budget, preserves the Social Security surplus, and also addresses an issue that the debate is now apparently focusing on, and that is, of course, the issue of Medicare.

The reason I decided to take to the floor at this time is because I thought it was important to talk about the issue of the Medicare prescription drug benefit in the budget resolution. First of all, I was somewhat surprised to hear the tenor of the debate that has occurred on the floor with respect to a particular provision—the reserve fund for the Medicare prescription drug benefit program that is included in the budget resolution.

I should point out that it was the reserve fund that will provide for the assurance and the guarantee that if we get a Medicare reform package, we will also be able to fund a prescription drug benefit program. Thanks to the chairman of the Budget Committee, who was willing to agree to use the onbudget surpluses as a way to preserve the prescription drug benefit program. I had offered an amendment in the committee that provided for a reserve fund for the prescription drug benefit program so that we would not have to have the 60-vote hurdle on the floor of the Senate in order to provide funding for that program. The very fact that we have a reserve fund in this current budget resolution allows for a prescription drug benefit program and gives all the more certainty that is going to occur.

We include language that that prescription drug benefit program is also contingent on a reform package that would advance the solvency of the Medicare program. I think we all agree that is of necessity, given the fact that the Part A program is going to go bankrupt by the year 2008. Given the fact that we now have a reserve fund for the prescription drug benefit program in this budget resolution, I think it will give confidence and will serve as a catalyst for reform of the Medicare program.

But what is also important here in this debate this evening—that is why I decided to take to the floor tonight at this time, I say to my colleagues and to the Senator from Oregon, Senator WYDEN—is to restore some bipartisanship and stability to this debate on this particular issue. The fact is my amendment which created the reserve fund for the prescription drug benefit program and Medicare garnered the support of all of the Democrats and all of the Republicans on the committee. It received a bipartisan vote of 21 to 1 in the Budget Committee—almost unanimous support for this provision. It received bipartisan support for this new Medicare prescription drug benefit, if legislation that reforms the Medicare program is reported out of the Senate Finance Committee.

Crafting that reserve fund ensures that there will be a prescription drug benefit program of some kind using the onbudget surpluses.

But what is important here this evening is to underscore the fact that it received overwhelming bipartisan support in the committee, because we recognize that there is a glaring need for prescription drug coverage in the Medicare package in the Medicare benefit program. Senator WYDEN and I will be working with senior citizens groups and health care experts over the coming weeks to develop bipartisan legislation to try to see what we can do to ensure that coverage is provided. But currently it is important for Members to understand that there is a reserve fund in this budget resolution for that very purpose.

I am somewhat surprised to hear the statements that have been made here on the floor of the Senate suggesting that somehow there is no coverage for a prescription drug program, that there is no way that there is any money for Medicare or the drug benefit program when nothing could be further from the truth. The fact is that was one of the issues in the Budget Committee that received overwhelming bipartisan support. That is the way we want to keep it. Senator WYDEN and I will be working to do just that, because we know that it is absolutely imperative that we provide this benefit to the senior citizens of this country.

Medicare currently does not provide that benefit. Yet, 12 percent of the elderly in this country are the ones who spend more than a third of all of the costs of prescription drugs in this country. So, therefore, we need to provide some kind of comprehensive package and benefit program for our senior citizens on how we do that. We plan to work on it over the weeks and months ahead.

But I do think it is important for Members to realize that there is a reserve fund for this purpose in this budget. It is not IOUs, as in the President's plan, I might add. In fact, as part of my amendment, it prohibits the transfer of these IOUs to the Medicare trust fund as proposed by the President. So they can't allow a transfer. That is an artificial benefit to the Medicare program. It doesn't essentially do anything to the Medicare program. I think we all recognize that. And, therefore, there is a prohibition against the transfer of IOUs to the trust fund, because it is not going to do anything to enhance the solvency of the Medicare trust fund. In fact, to the contrary.

We are going to try to do everything that we can, not only to use the onbudget surpluses, but any other additional funding that could be available to ensure that there will be permanent funding of the prescription drug benefit program in the future. We think it is absolutely essential. We think it is a priority. That is why it is in this budget resolution. And thanks to the leadership of the chairman of the Budget Committee, it happens to be there.

I hope Members will in no way denigrate what is in the committee resolution, because, if this provision wasn't in the budget resolution, we would have no way of assuring that there would be funding of the prescription drug benefit program that we addressed in the Medicare reform in this session of the Congress.

Mr. President, I hope that we understand exactly what is in this budget resolution.

I hope we do not make this a partisan debate. Many of us have worked across the aisle to ensure that we maintain bipartisanship when it comes to the reforming of the Medicare program. We hope we can preserve that approach. We will continue to do everything that we can to ensure that is the case. That is why I am pleased to have been able to work with Senator WYDEN to see how we can further develop initiatives to ensure that prescription drug benefit program does get funded in this budget and in this reform effort of the Medicare program in the future.

I want to make sure Members understand. If this reserve fund was not in the budget resolution, which was supported on a bipartisan basis, there would be absolutely nothing for prescription drugs. Because the President did not provide anything for prescription drugs. There was not one penny that was provided for, as far as this benefit is concerned, in his budget; not even a plan. So there was no mechanism and this reserve fund establishes this mechanism. It was supported by almost everybody on the Senate Budget Committee.

Now I will be pleased to yield to my colleague from Oregon, Senator WYDEN.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I thank my colleague from Maine.

Mr. DOMENICI. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. WYDEN. I will be happy to yield to the chairman.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I know everyone is wondering when we are going to vote. I ask unanimous consent we will start rollcall votes at 8 o'clock and we will have at that time stacked—you can write this up for me in more eloquent language if it needs it—Ashcroft, Conrad, Bond, and I assume it is Wellstone-Johnson or Johnson-Wellstone, and if we have time we will call Senator SPECTER down before that and have that one. Those will be at least the four that will be stacked and we will see what happens after that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Is it the intention of the chairman that we have these votes consolidated, the first one maybe the regular 15, and then 10-minute votes after that?

Mr. DOMENICI. I think what I ought to do is let that sink in around here first before we see if anyone would really complain to a shortened timeframe.

I thank Senator WYDEN for yielding to me.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I yield up to 10 minutes off the resolution to our colleague from Oregon.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Oregon.

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from New Jersey for giving me this time, and also, before he leaves, the chairman of the full committee, Senator DOMENICI. Since I have been here, both Senator LAUTENBERG and Senator DOMENICI have worked very closely with me on a special passion I have in terms of public service, which is health care. I thank them for all their assistance.

Let me also say to the Senator from Maine, I am so glad she has been willing to put in all this time on this issue because it seems to me, colleagues, that after the Medicare Commission it is especially important that the Senate demonstrate that it is possible to take on this Medicare issue in a bipartisan fashion. The reserve fund that Senator SNOWE and I have developed, that will be perfected tomorrow, is going to allow for a significant step forward in Medicare reform. It is an addition to the Medicare program that is so important to the vulnerable elderly, but also will ensure it is responsibly financed.

Suffice it to say, the legislation Senator SNOWE and I have pursued is not going to be seen as perfection to partisans on either side. But I will tell you the seniors that we represent, and there are more than 20 percent of them who spend over $1,000 a year out of pocket on their prescription medicine, they are going to say this legislation is a significant step forward.

We have millions of older people in this country who are walking on an economic tightrope. They are balancing their food costs against their medical bills and their medical bills against their housing expenses. They do not want to see the Senate spend its time bickering about Medicare reform. They want to see, as Senator SNOWE has just said, the Senate get serious about real reform as we have tried to do with the overwhelming vote that we got in the Budget Committee on the question of prescription drugs.

I think it is well understood we are literally on the cusp of a pharmaceutical revolution today. A lot of the therapies and the drugs and devices today constitute perhaps the very best health care preventive program we could have in our country, because what they do is prevent unnecessary hospitalizations. They keep older folks out of these acute care facilities.

I say to the Senate today, if we can take the first step, the first step in the next couple of days, with this breakthrough in Medicare in terms of covering pharmaceutical services, I think it will also constitute a breakthrough in terms of preventive health care, because I believe a lot of these new medicines can prevent hospitalizations and costly institutional care.

As the Senator from Maine has indicated, the heart of our bipartisan proposal is to stipulate that a portion of the onbudget surplus could be used to meet the needs of vulnerable older people. I will also say I think as the Senate Finance Committee goes forward with this issue—because, of course, it will be their job to actually craft a number of the details of this legislation—it will be possible for the Senate Finance Committee to look at a variety of ways to fund this important breakthrough in Medicare reform. But the bottom line is they will have some options in looking at this issue because, as part of the budget process, we will have set out a general outline, the overall parameters of what really would be after the Medicare Reform Commission has reported—and we have seen the frustrations that surround it. We can then say to the country we at least have made the beginnings of real Medicare reform, responsibly financed.

I will also say I think as we go forward we ought to make some tough choices with respect to this drug benefit. Perhaps not all of our colleagues agree, but I happen to think the Senate should not say that Lee Iacocca ought to have access to the same kind of prescription benefit as would an elderly woman, a 78-year-old who has Alzheimer's, an income of $13,000 a year, and a prescription drug bill out of pocket of $2,000. I do not think we ought to treat those two the same. But that is an issue we can talk about as this legislation goes forward.

I indicated I would be brief. I want to wrap up by thanking our colleague from Maine, Senator SNOWE. She and I have been active in these senior issues since our days in the House of Representatives. I want to tell her I think it is especially helpful that she has been willing to come forward and lead this kind of bipartisan effort after the frustrations of the Medicare Commission so we can show the country we are at least making a beginning.

I know a number of our other colleagues care greatly about this issue. Senator KENNEDY from Massachusetts has been a leader in this effort to extend prescription drug coverage as well. He and I both feel strongly that the key to getting started with this issue is to use a portion of the onbudget surplus to make sure seniors, vulnerable seniors, will have access to this benefit.

I think there is a reason that the Senate Budget Committee voted 21 to 1, I believe, for this benefit. We are going to refine it in the next day or so, but I think we are showing the country we can expand coverage for the vulnerable and do it in a responsible way. I hope our colleagues will support our effort in the next day or so as we move to a final vote on that.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, may I have 2 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I want to congratulate our friends and colleagues from Maine and from Oregon for their focus on the issue of prescription drugs. I look forward to the proposal that we are going to have tomorrow.

I am looking through the reserve fund language now. There are a number of constraints on the reserve fund. For example, before that reserve fund can be triggered, there has to be the guarantee that there is going to be financial solvency for Medicare from anywhere from 9 to 12 years, without any revenues from the President's program or other sources.

I wonder how we could possibly meet that requirement without having dramatic and significant cuts in the Medicare program. I welcome the opportunity to have a reserve fund that can really do the job on this issue. I welcome the chance to work with our colleagues to make sure that it is done. Hopefully, we can do it in a way that is going to be meaningful, because we do not want to represent that we are making significant progress in the area of expanding access to prescription drugs without really doing so.

I know the Senators from Maine and Oregon are really interested in the substance of it. I know they want to do the right thing. The current proposal is unacceptable, but I look forward to supporting efforts to make sure that we get a substantial downpayment to provide prescription drugs in Medicare this year.

Mr. LAUTENBERG addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I want to respond to the amendment which was offered by the Senator from Missouri, who had essentially presented President Clinton's budget recommendations to us. I want to make note of a couple of things.

While I support the direction of the President's budget, I am going to oppose this amendment, because I believe it isn't a serious attempt to enact the President's plan. Rather, I see it as a transparent political gimmick that has been reviewed in our committee and voted upon. Democrats, like Republicans, voted against the budget. That does not mean we are against the general theme or the thrust of the President's budget. There are things in the budget that we want to examine specifically.

Frankly, I think it is pretty obvious that it is designed to discredit the President's budget. It dismisses the contribution to Medicare that we have established in some of the amendments we tried to offer in the Budget Committee discussions on the budget resolution.

What I heard said was that if we are serious about reform, then we ought to get on with it. The fact that we are going to increase the longevity of Medicare from 2008 to 2020, a period of 12 years, is dismissed as casual, trite—"chaff" was the word that was used—as not being serious. On the other hand, what I heard the Senator say is that he was looking at reform. He thought there was a good program that was proposed there, a proposal that would take higher deductibles, higher co-pays, perhaps reducing some of the hospital availability.

That sounded like what the Senator was proposing in terms of his view of what we had to do with Medicare, that his reform was designed to, other than adding financial stability to it, to do these other things.

Well, maybe he wants to discuss the Medicare reform this evening, because it looks like, in its present condition, some of the changes in the program would be fairly painful to the Medicare beneficiaries.

One of the things I do not think I made clear in my remarks before, when I responded to the challenge to capitalists, one of the things that causes me to want to pay my share, whatever that fair share is, to support the programs that this country offers, like health care through Medicare, like a chance at an education, like a chance at a job, like a chance to bring children up in a safe environment—that is why we have our police program adding 100,000 policemen to the streets of our cities—like adding teachers, like reducing class size, I want to live in that kind of a country. I want to live in the kind of a country that says people who are in the middle, people who are hard-working, people of modest income, people are not looking at this society and saying: Wow, it is really unfair; those guys, those people at the top, get everything, and we are left with the dregs.

Not so. That is why this country, despite its growth, its absorption of different cultures and ethnicities, is able to get on so relatively peacefully. Why? It is because people believe they have a chance at success. That is the way I want to do it. I want to make my contribution. It is made by way of taxes. It is made by way of other things that many of us do, whether it is philanthropic activity or otherwise.

I want to do it, because I want to do it for my children. I do not want them to live in a society where everybody is so angry that they want to take it out on my family and other families. We have enough of that violence on our streets and in our communities. I want to get rid of that.

You either pay or you hire security guards or you make sure your burglar alarm is on every minute of the day and night. That is the condition we have arrived at.

I see a lessening of that. I see a lessening, very frankly, of the racial distrust that exists. It is not perfect by a longshot. That is what I see as America.

I am happy to say that if you make $800,000, you pay and you don't get a $20,000 rebate. I want to trust this Government that those of us here have a share of running and say, OK, we will watch you; we will watch the way you spend the money and so forth. But I do not see the kinds of result that others talk about here at times, throwing your money to the Government where they put it down the drain, where they squander it on things, where they just disregard the importance of the resource. I don't see it.

What I see is that this is a trick tactic. This presentation of the President's budget is designed to embarrass Democrats, and the majority is proposing an amendment that they intend to oppose. This is an amendment that is being offered that is going to be opposed by the offerer. That should make it clear enough that this is political hijinks and not a serious amendment.

We should not spend our time debating every dot and comma in the President's budget, because every one of us can find something to criticize in that budget. Republicans have the luxury of not presenting a budget that goes into the same level of detail as the President's budget. Their budget, the Republican budget, is a rough outline, and that is what we should be debating here—basic principles, broad outlines of the budget. I think it is clear that there is broad Democratic support for the framework in the President's budget.

The President wants to reserve 77 percent of projected surpluses to reduce debt, save for Social Security and Medicare, and I think that is the right approach for our future. But the BOND amendment is not asking us to support the general approach of the President's budget. It is asking us to support the entire budget, that presumably means that every single item in that budget is satisfactory.

Mr. President, if I can lift it, I want you to take a look at the President's budget. This is the size of the President's budget. It has 1,291 pages, and that is what we are being asked to approve tonight in this gimmicky amendment that we are looking at.

I think the public sees through this. Certainly Senators see through it, even some of those who are on the side of the proposers. I ask if any Senator wants to endorse every single number in this volume. I doubt it.

I turn to page 105 of the budget. It says that we should provide $400 million for the Dairy Recourse Loan Program. There might be some in here who like that program, but I bet you that the majority are not going to like it, and I am not sure we should be endorsing that specific kind of a figure here today.

There are literally thousands of other very specific numbers in this budget, and nobody here is fully familiar with it. Nobody is going to agree to all of these numbers and these conclusions. But that does not mean we are repudiating the general theme of the President's budget, and no one should be confused about that.

I am going to ask my Democratic colleagues to join me, and all those who want to make sense out of what we are doing here and want to be serious, to vote against this amendment because it is, again, designed, I think, to be hijinks, tricks, gimmicks.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair. The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BROWBACK). The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, does the distinguished Senator from Oregon desire to ask the Senate something?

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I have an amendment that Senator SARBANES and I wish to offer. It will take but a few minutes, if we can do that. I think it will be accepted by both sides.

Mr. DOMENICI. We have agreed that we are going to vote at 8 o'clock. We have another amendment to take up. I hope you will not take too long. Do you think you can do it in 2 minutes?

Mr. SARBANES. Two each?

Mr. DOMENICI. Two each, that makes 4. Go ahead.

AMENDMENT NO. 152

(Purpose: To express the Sense of the Senate on providing adequate foreign affairs funding.)

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the pending amendment is laid aside. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Oregon [Mr. SMITH], for himself and Mr. SARBANES, proposes an amendment numbered 152.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following new section and number it accordingly:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON PROVIDING ADEQUATE FUNDING FOR U.S. INTERNATIONAL LEADERSHIP.

(a) FUNDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) U.S. international leadership is essential to maintaining security and peace for all Americans;

(2) such leadership depends on effective diplomacy as well as a strong military;

(3) effective diplomacy requires adequate resources both for embassy security and for international programs;

(4) in addition to building peace, prosperity and democracy around the world, programs in the International Affairs (150) account serve U.S. interests by ensuring better jobs and a higher standard of living, promoting the health of our citizens and preserving our natural environment, and protecting the rights and safety of those who travel or do business overseas;

(5) real spending for International Affairs has declined more than 50 percent since the mid-1980s, at the same time that major new challenges and opportunities have arisen from the disintegration of the Soviet Union and the worldwide trends toward democracy and free markets;

(6) current ceilings on discretionary spending will impose severe additional cuts in funding for International Affairs; and

(7) improved security for U.S. diplomatic missions and personnel will place further strain on the International Affairs budget absent significant additional resources.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that additional budgetary resources should be identified for function 150 to enable successful U.S. international leadership.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, my friend from Maryland and I rise today to offer a sense of the Senate out of the concern for the 150 account out of the U.S. budget. It is an account that funds our efforts abroad, our foreign relations.

As we speak this evening, bombs are falling on Serbia. I simply note that there are a lot of bombs falling in the world today. It seems like more all the time. Yet, since the mid-1980s, our foreign affairs budget has fallen by 50 percent.

I supported the President last night. It was a difficult decision. We are picking among bad options, but, frankly, a good option for us is to wage more peace, a little less war. It seems to me we ought to find a way to limit within the caps but recognize the value to this country of waging peace through diplomacy.

Senator SARBANES and I have held hearings, at the instruction of the chairman, on the 150 account in the last Congress and share a concern about the direction of the 150 account and stand together today to offer this and hope that the Senate can find the resources to do better by our efforts at waging peace.

I turn to my colleague from Maryland, Senator SARBANES, and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Mr. SARBANES. Mr. President, I thank the able Senator from Oregon for joining in this initiative. This is an effort to focus attention on the need to provide adequate funding for International Affairs, the so-called 150 account, which is essential for maintaining our security and building peace. U.S. international leadership requires effective diplomacy, which is in many ways our first line of defense. If we do it effectively, we do not have to resort to using our military strength.

I want to make it very clear that the chairman of the Budget Committee has been sensitive to this problem. We appreciate the constraints within which the committee has had to work, and in the past the chairman has been responsive to our concern.

Secretary Albright, of course, has just made some very strong statements about how pressed and handicapped she feels by the funding levels proposed in this budget. This amendment is an effort to show that the Members of this body recognize the importance of providing the necessary resources for the conduct of U.S. diplomacy, and our intention, as we move through this budget process, to find additional funds with which to address the programs in the 150 account.

We have an urgent and sustained requirement to provide for upgrades in embassy security. We do not want to take that out of the other international programs, because that account is already at rock bottom—indeed, below rock bottom.

Mr. President, recently I received a letter from the Coalition for American Leadership Abroad, which stated in part:

We are deeply concerned that over the last decade our institutions, programs, and the necessary resources to support diplomacy, America's front line in today's world, have been seriously impacted by budget cuts. Our organization, the Coalition for American Leadership Abroad (COLEAD), a nonpartisan coalition of 37 non-profit foreign affairs organizations, seeks to support and strengthen American engagement in world affairs. We believe that we should not withdraw from the world and that American leadership in world affairs is not only vital for our national interests and security but also to build a better world community. We should not turn our backs on the 95% of mankind beyond our borders.

U.S. funding for our diplomatic effort, in its many forms, has decreased by some 50% in real terms over the past dozen years. We are especially concerned about the projected downward trend in the foreign affairs budget for the next three years. Thus, we need to restore a rational sense of balance and proportion to our funding allocations for programs that preserve and protect our interests abroad. Effective American diplomatic leadership cannot exist without resources. We strongly believe that the time has come to examine American interests and programs in order to develop a broad bi-partisan consensus which would gain public and leadership support. We need to develop a better and wider consensus about how best to support these efforts in terms of institutions and resources. Our goal should start and end with a stronger America abroad, rather than a weaker nation in world affairs.

Mr. President, hopefully, as we work through this budget process over the coming weeks and months, we will be able to find a way to respond to the challenges that we are facing with respect to the various programs and policies that are contained in the 150 account.

As Secretary Albright has pointed out, there is a clear and present danger to American safety, prosperity, and values if we do not adequately address the resource question.

I am very hopeful that we will be able to come to grips with this in a realistic way, and I appreciate the initiative of my distinguished colleague from Oregon in this regard. This is simply a call to begin confronting this problem as we move down the budget path. I am pleased to join in support of this amendment.

Finally, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that an article by Robert Oakley be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the article was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, March 16, 1999]

NICKELS AND DIMES FOR THE STATE DEPARTMENT

(By Robert Oakley)

There is an urgent need for the president, the Office of Management and Budget, the State Department and Congress to increase funding for the newly reorganized foreign policy establishment. This need starts with the unbudgeted security improvements of some $10 billion identified by the Crowe Report but does not stop there. As it is, a large part of the additional—but inadequate—funding already requested for security will come at the expense of substantive personnel and operations, which are already hurting badly. This is directly contrary on Adm. Crowe's warning that "additional funds for security must be obtained without diverting funds from our major foreign affairs programs."

In the immediate aftermath of the African embassy bombings, the State Department consulted with OMB and agreed upon an FY 1999 emergency supplemental request of $1.4 billion for immediate security needs in Nairobi. Dar es Salaam and worldwide, including more than $250 million for additional security personnel. For FY 2000, OMB has approved the request of an additional one-time security increase for the State Department of $3 billion, using the gimmick of an advance appropriation "borrowed" from FY 2001-2005. This is far below what Adm. Crowe recommended. Moreover, this approach is almost certain to damage seriously through FY 2005 the continuing substantive operations of the reorganized State Department (including the U.S. Information Agency, the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and the Agency for International Development), given the ceilings currently stipulated by OMB and the balanced-budget act.

One has heard and read a great deal during the past year about serious problems of readiness, morale, retention and recruitment of the top-flight men and women of our armed forces. Action has been taken to correct these problems. We have also heard about accumulated difficulties affecting our intelligence agencies. Here, again, major increases in funding have been provided to assist the CIA. No such action has been taken, and none appears envisaged for the foreign affairs agencies, although we are in a period of relative peace rather than under the threat of the Cold War. The last assignment cycle of the Department of State had 3,300 vacant positions but only 2,700 people to fill them.

There is no question that our military and intelligence personnel and operations have been seriously stressed by the large number of unexpected crises over the past decade (Somalia, Haiti, Bosnia, Kosovo, Sierra Leone, Congo, etc.), yet deployments of military forces have been matched by the need for additional civilian personnel in equal or greater proportion. Conflict, prevention, containment and resolution require civilian personnel from the State Department, USIA and AID. They not only manage their own, new programs but also assist the United States and other military forces and international and non-governmental organizations to take the comprehensive approach required for success.

This involves much more than important negotiations by experienced diplomats such as Dick Holbrooke, Chris Hill and their teams. It also means humanitarian assistance, monitoring of human rights, promotion of democracy, processing of refugees and controlling displaced persons outside this country, and rehabilitation of economic, political and security institutions.

Aside from the crises and conflict-related civilian activities, there have also been increased requirements to promote U.S. business interests in the era of globalization, protect U.S. citizens, generate cooperation by other governments in preventing the proliferation of weapons of mass destruction and confronting narcotics, terrorism and organized crime, and deal with pollution and disease before they threaten the United States. Much of this is mandated by Congress. All of this is important for U.S. national interests.

Prominent senior statesmen have recently completed two major studies of the State Department and the conduct of foreign affairs for the Stimson Center and the Center for Strategic and International Studies. They identify major shortcomings and call for major improvements in our civilian foreign affairs agencies. This will require substantial additional funding, yet the trend has been and apparently will continue to be the other way. The security problem highlighted by Adm. Crowe's report, his followup letter and public comments is only part of this growing problem.

Some say that OMB and Congress are not really interested in more money for foreign affairs because the matter does not have the domestic political appeal and support that our military and intelligence establishments enjoy. Let us hope that this is not the case. It is very doubtful that the large numbers of American people who travel or have business interests abroad, or who worry about the global economy and the global environment, feel this way. They would understand and support an increase for combined State Department operations and security. The amount needed is small compared with increases for the Defense Department. The State Department must fight harder in requesting what it really needs, and the president must reinforce the request so that Congress will be able to debate and decide upon what to approve.

Mr. FEINGOLD. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment (Amendment # 152) being introduced today by the Senators from Oregon [Mr. SMITH] and Maryland [Mr. SARBANES].

This amendment expresses the Sense of the Senate that the resources identified in the underlying budget resolution for Function 150 (International Affairs) be sufficient to enable successful U.S. international leadership.

Mr. President, this is an enormously important amendment that comes at a critical time. Function 150 encompasses the majority of our international programs including the operating budget of the Department of State. Representing barely one percent of our entire federal budget, our investment in Function 150 is the American investment in our national security.

The post-Cold War era has brought with it new challenges and new responsibilities for the world's only remaining superpower. Yet real spending for International Affairs has declined more than 50 percent since the mid-1980s.

Mr. President, national security can not be viewed solely through a defense lens, but also must comprise all the critical preventative measures offered through an active foreign affairs program. This means continuing to be active in fighting the spread of disease and drugs, providing adequate nutrition for children and families, and pursuing U.S. goals in arms reduction. I also believe we should continue to make appropriate contributions to the multilateral institutions, in particular the United Nations, on which the United States relies.

In short, Mr. President, only through committed support to both diplomacy and defense can we utilize all the tools available to us to protect our national security and advance our overseas interests.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question occurs on agreeing to the amendment.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. No objection.

Mr. President, I just say that I commend both the Senator from Oregon and the Senator from Maryland for offering this. I think that it is appropriate that we, as we assert our military might into the world arena, try to establish the fact that we obey and want to see the rule of law observed, and yet we do not always pay our bills as we should. I think that is kind of a contrary action to be taking. So I know the chairman is going to agree with me.

As I see members of our committee, I say to Senator DOMENICI, I see people who are thoughtful and working hard, regardless of which side of the aisle. We can get argumentative at times, but I am proud to work with the members of the Budget Committee. I am particularly, obviously, impressed with the work that is done by my colleagues on my side, but that does not mean that I am not equally as impressed with what happens with colleagues on the other side. It is just that we disagree on some things.

So I wanted to make that statement. Mr. Chairman?

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. I have no objection to the resolution. I hope that we can find the resources that are alluded to. I do not think there should be any false hope. It will be very difficult, unless they somehow or other decide to do something completely different from this budget. I regret that we had to establish priorities.

But I have great empathy. Since we live in this very tumultuous world, we do want our foreign policy to be funded as well as possible. We will work together and, hopefully, you will succeed. Thank you very much.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 152) was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, we are going to go on to the next amendment, which I understand is an amendment regarding veterans. But I just want to take 3 or 4 minutes and talk about the President's budget. I note my good friend, Senator LAUTENBERG, was talking about Senators should not use words like "embezzlement" and that kind of thing to describe other people's motives. I do not think he should use the word "gimmick" either. He called this proposal a gimmick. It is no gimmick at all.

In the committee, we just adopted the President's budget by a sense of the Senate. In this one, they actually prepared a budget that looks like our kind of budget; that is, the President's budget. It took a lot of time. We used the Congressional Budget Office, and it is right. If you want the President's budget, in a broad sense, you vote aye on the Bond amendment.

Frankly, it is difficult for me to see those who have been praising the President with reference to two very, very important things—Social Security and Medicare—vote against this budget, because I do believe that is a recognition that on neither count does the President's budget do what it says. Because I believe if it was a good Social Security proposal and a good Medicare proposal, those who are advocates for those two programs on the other side would be voting for it even if the rest of it was not right up to snuff because those are the big issues.

The truth of the matter is, 100 Senators already said, in an early vote, on Senator ABRAHAM's amendment—100 Senators—the President's approach to saving the Social Security trust fund is wrong. Now, they might want to turn around and vote for the budget anyway, but they already said, "We don't want to spend $158 billion of the Social Security's money on programs." That was the vote.

Senator BOND says, "Do you like the President's budget enough to vote for it?" That is one of the things you would be voting for. I guarantee you, if that budget of the President's really fixed Medicare, there would be no one on the other side who would be voting against this, because they would be ashamed and embarrassed to find somebody to ask them, "How come you voted against this wonderful fix, reform, saving of the Medicare system by the President?" It is because it does not do that. That is why.

So I do not think we need a lot of time trying to find excuses. It is a pure, simple vote, up or down. Do you want the President's budget, with all its claims for Social Security and Medicare, or do you not? I do not think there would be very many Senators who say they do. And that ought to take care of the issue once and for all as to this President running around saying what he does and what we don't do. Now, he can talk about what we don't do, but he surely can't talk about what he does. I guess he can, but he would have to acknowledge, if he wants to be fair, that nobody in the Senate agrees with him.

I yield the floor.

AMENDMENT NO. 153

(Purpose: To increase funding in FY 2000 for veterans' health care by taking an across-the-board cut in all discretionary programs, except veterans and defense)

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I have an amendment I send to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from South Dakota [Mr. JOHNSON] for himself, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. KERRY, Mr. REID and Mr. JEFFORDS, proposes an amendment numbered 153.

Mr. JOHNSON. I ask unanimous consent the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 31 line 23 strike "44,724,000,000". and insert "46,724,000,000".

On page 31 line 24 strike "45,064,000,000". and insert "47,064,000,000".

On page 38 line 15 strike "8,033,000,000". and insert "10,033,000,000".

On page 38 line 16 strike "8,094,000,000". and insert "10,094,000,000".

At the appropriate place insert the following:

"(A) It is the sense of the Senate that the provisions in this resolution assume that if CBO determines there is an on-budget surplus for FY 2000, $2 billion of that surplus will be restored to the programs cut in this amendment.

"(B) It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying this budget resolution assume that none of these offsets will come from defense of veterans, and to the extent possible should come from administrative functions."

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. JOHNSON. I ask unanimous consent that my legislative director, Dwight Fettig, be permitted on the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSON. I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Minnesota,

Mr. WELLSTONE, be added as a cosponsor of this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSON. As well as the Senator from North Dakota, Mr. CONRAD, and the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. KERRY, and the Senator from Nevada, Mr. REID.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I think we can engage in this debate in a relatively brief amount of time. But it is, I think, an issue that is fundamental. I applaud the Budget Committee chairman, Mr. DOMENICI, for working to try to find ways to augment the veterans' health care budget for the coming fiscal year.

The Presidential budget called for a flatline budget going on for 4 years. We have had 3 years already in the flatline budget at the VA, despite the fact that we have an enormous number of World War II age vets needing a greater amount of medical care and that we have increased inflation in health care costs.

The independent budget, prepared by prominent veterans organizations in this country, has proposed conservatively that we need an additional $3 billion for veterans' health care in the coming year. Chairman DOMENICI has provided for a $1 billion increase. I applaud him for that but recognize that still falls far short of where we need to go.

It is clear, from testimony that this Congress has received, that if we do not make some further adjustments upward we are going to wind up with a train wreck in terms of veterans' health care. We are going to wind up with mandatory employee furloughs, a severe curtailment of services, or the elimination of programs and, inevitably, facility closures around this country.

The amendment pending before the Senate would add the additional $2 billion to provide for that $3 billion increase for fiscal year 2000. The offset would come from an across-the-board reduction in the nondefense discretionary budget for this year.

Along with that goes a sense of the Senate that states:

(A) It is the sense of the Senate that the provisions in this resolution assume that if CBO determines there is an on-budget surplus for FY 2000, $2 billion of that surplus will be restored to the programs cut in this amendment.

(B) It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying this budget resolution assume that none of these offsets will come from defense or veterans, and to the extent possible should come from administrative functions.

We clearly have a crossroads we need to deal with here, Mr. President. We have to make some decisions now whether this country will remain committed to our veterans, remain committed to the people who have given us the ability to speak here on this floor.

Earlier this year, we passed S. 4 having to do with retaining the best, the brightest of our military personnel. It seems to me that this follows on in that same general logic, recognizing that it is futile for us to ask our military personnel to stay with us, to continue to put their lives at risk, to put up with all the hardships that they and their families suffer serving in our military, if they look around and find we have reneged on our commitment to their fathers, to their uncles, to the generations that have gone before them.

If we do that, we undermine our very attempt earlier on this year to retain these people in our military service. At a time when we are yet again undertaking a military action, in Kosovo, where the best and brightest of our military personnel are, in many instances, jeopardizing their lives once again for us, it seems to me it is not asking too much for our Senate to provide for a full health care budget, adequate to meet the needs of our U.S. military veterans.

I hope we will be able to continue this level of funding in future years. This amendment applies only to fiscal year 2000. We will have further opportunities to talk about what needs to be done next year as we deal with the budget resolution again, as we deal with the appropriations process, as, hopefully, projected budget surpluses will occur and we will have those opportunities to use those kinds of surpluses for offsets that will make sense.

However, it appears to me that the amendment, put together with the extraordinary assistance of the Senator from Minnesota, Mr. WELLSTONE, and his staff, as well as with the budget staff, creates an offset that is as painless as we can provide while, at the same time, providing for this $2 billion infusion that is so badly needed, if, in fact, we are going to live up to our word to our American veterans.

Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of my time and yield such time as he may consume to the Senator from Minnesota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I thank my colleague, Senator JOHNSON from South Dakota. We have been working pretty closely with the veterans community and, in particular, from the time they came out with their independent budget. I have read that very carefully and I think this work by Veterans of Foreign Wars, DAV, PVA, and AmVets is a very important document. I might also add that many other organizations all around the country have added their strong support to this independent budget.

In addition to talking about the independent budget, let me discuss what the veterans community has said based upon their own very careful assessment of this. We start off with the President's flatline budget which is woefully inadequate. Let me say right away as a Democrat, I think the budget is woefully inadequate, and certainly the President's budget was no way to say thanks to veterans.

The Budget Committee has called for an increase of $1 billion, but that still leaves a $2 billion shortfall. I want to also quote from a letter from the Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs to the Senate Budget Committee which pointed out that the VA is facing $3 billion in costs above and beyond what was proposed in the President's budget. That would make it $2 billion right now given the $1 billion increase we have in the budget resolution.

I will quote the precise figures from the Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee:

* * * an additional $1.26 billion to meet unanticipated spending requirements; an additional $853.1 million to overcome the effects of inflation and other "uncontrollables" in order that it may contain current services; and at least $1 billion in additional funding to better address the needs of aging, and increasingly female, veterans population.

In other words, our own Senate Veterans' Committee, under the able leadership of Senator SPECTER and Senator ROCKEFELLER, has basically echoed the same analysis of the independent budget. This is specific and it bears out what I have heard from veterans at rallies. The veterans community is very galvanized on this question. I have heard stories or received letters from veterans at our office—I am sure Senator JOHNSON gets the same kind of letters from the veterans community.

The budget resolution goes a third of the way toward covering this cost. We need to go all the way for the veterans community. We don't ask our troops to take a third of a hill, we don't ask them to win a third of a battle, and in this particular budget we ought not to go just a third of the way toward providing the resources so that we can get good medical care to veterans in this country.

Both in the President's proposal and in the budget resolution that we have before the Senate, the veterans are not a top priority. There is no doubt whatever that we should be doing much better. This amendment that we introduce tonight does the job.

Let me put this in personal terms for a moment. I don't want to see a good friend, Lyle Pearson from North Mankato—a decorated World War II vet, past commander of the national Disabled American Veterans—I don't want to see him in a position where he doesn't receive the kind of decent health care coverage that he deserves. I don't want to see an ever aging veterans population not receiving the kind of assisted care they will need. Many of our veterans are elderly.

The question is, How will we respond to that? I don't want to see a third of the homeless population continue to be veterans, many of them struggling with substance abuse problems, many of them struggling with posttraumatic syndrome, many of them Vietnam vets. I think we can do better. I don't want to see the kind of backlog we have right now.

Let me just simply talk about veterans in Bangor, ME, who were concerned after a VA inspector general report noted their outpatient clinic had a 10-month backlog of new patients. Things were so bad last fall that the clinic couldn't see walk-in patients or urgent-care patients and there was a 4-month wait to see the clinic's part-time psychiatrist.

Veterans in Iowa are facing the possible closure of one of three major veterans hospitals because of the budget shortfalls. The Veterans Under Secretary of Health, Kenneth Kizer, warned that the VA health care system is in a "precarious situation." Under Secretary of Health for the Veterans' Administration, Ken Kizer, went on to say that the proposed fiscal year 2000 budget—and he was talking about the President's budget—posed very serious financial challenges and that it would require a number of different things that might happen if, in fact, we don't provide adequate funding. Among them:

... mandatory employee furloughs, severe curtailment of services or elimination of programs and possible unnecessary facility closures.

Let me be really clear about the amendment we have introduced. The veterans community was asked by the Congress—they are always asked—to give their positive proposal about what we need to do to have a budget that will serve their needs so that we can live up to our commitment to veterans. We have the independent budget. It was done well. We have a Senate Veterans' Affairs Committee which came out with its own report that said we have a $3 billion shortfall here between what the veterans community needs by way of a real investment in health care and veteran services and other services, versus the President's budget proposal. The President's budget proposal was unacceptable.

Now the Budget Committee brings a resolution before the floor and adds an additional $1 billion, but we are still $2 billion short. We ought not to go just a third of the way. We ought not to make estimates that make it clear that if we are really serious about our commitment to veterans, we are going to make up this $3 billion debt. We ought not say that and then not reflect that in our budget resolution.

My colleague, Senator JOHNSON, has done an excellent job of summarizing the offset, and I do not need to repeat it. I conclude this way: I have never, in my 8 years in the Senate, seen the veterans community so galvanized and so focused on any question. There is a tremendous amount of anger. People are smart. Four years of flatline budgets have not served the veterans community well. This budget by the President and what we have in the Budget Committee resolution does not go far enough. It doesn't do the job. It does not enable us to live up to our commitment to veterans. I feel very strongly about this.

This amendment we have introduced tonight provides the funding that will make sure we have the health care and decent services. It lives up to the very words that all of us have spoken as Senators. If we are serious about our commitment to veterans, then we have an opportunity to show that commitment and to vote for this resolution that Senator JOHNSON and I and other Senators have introduced.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, I want to take a few minutes today to share with my colleagues my support of this amendment—offered by my friend from South Dakota, Senator JOHNSON—an amendment which would increase funding for veterans health care services by $2 billion for Fiscal Year 2000. I believe that this funding level is necessary for the VA to provide the high quality of care it promises our nation's veterans. It is absolutely critical that we reverse the downward trend in VA health care funding and address the abhorrent deficiencies that exist currently in our VA health care system. We, as a nation, must keep our commitments to ensure that our nation's veterans receive consistent, high-quality, and reliable health care services.

I am convinced we cannot fulfill these commitments under the current level of funding provided both in the Administration's budget request and in the Chairman's mark which came out of the Budget Committee. I have expressed my concern in a number of letters to the Administration, both before and after their budget numbers came over to Congress—as I know many of my colleagues in both the House and Senate have done—about the Administration's decision to maintain a flat-lined budget for VA health care for the fourth consecutive year.

I also recently met with VA Under Secretary of Health Kenneth Kizer to make him aware of the severe effects that this level of funding has had already in Massachusetts. I told him that many of our VA hospitals and clinics are under serious budget strain and cannot provide sufficient care to the many veterans who need—and rightly deserve—to receive it. I expressed my concern that VA Hospital Directors have contacted me to say that, if they have to incorporate the same cuts in the coming fiscal year as they did this year, they will be forced to close wards, eliminate programs, and reduce staff. In fact, this already is happening.

In the Brockton, Massachusetts VA hospital, service providers have made it clear to me and my staff that they aren't able at times to provide adequate care for their patients. They are being forced to move psychiatric patients out into the community long before they are ready. The hospitals are unable to sufficiently help homeless veterans struggling with substance abuse problems. All of these troubles in taking care of our veterans are the result of one problem—today there is not enough money to care for those veterans who so badly need our help.

Our Northampton VA hospital—which has a nationally renowned reputation for its care of combat-wounded veterans—is facing the same challenges as the hospital in Brockton. They have a Post Traumatic Stress Disorder Unit there in Northampton—the only one of its kind in the entire Northeast. Veterans come hundreds of miles to find help in either putting their lives back together or keeping them from falling apart. The unit is always filled to capacity and requires a full-time, experienced staff that can address the needs of veterans who go there. But because we aren't doing right by our veterans, that unit is in jeopardy. Three years ago, this unit had a dedicated staff of twenty. Today, it has fourteen. There is only one overnight nurse to deal with 25 combat veterans. I don't believe this Senate can say that the quality of care in that unit has not been diminished.

These examples are part of a far broader crisis in veterans health care. Consider the VA nurses who haven't seen a substantial vacation for as long as they can remember and haven't received pay raises in five years, years when our economy has been growing in leaps and bounds. Put that crisis into a larger context: we have to ensure that adequate incentives exist for VA health care providers so that the VA can recruit and retain highly skilled staff.

As U.S. military personnel are going over to defend U.S. national interests in Kosovo, we must do all we can to let them know that their country is united behind them. We must do this for all the brave men and women who served and who have served our nation. Veterans are the brave men and women who already have served our nation, who have been on the front lines fighting for the freedoms Americans care about so deeply. How can we ask today's soldiers to represent our values around the globe if we're not willing to provide adequate health care services for those who have already made the sacrifice? How can we give so little to those who have already given so much to their country?

These are questions that I don't believe any of us want to ask. They are not ones that our country should be asking—Americans everywhere deserve a different and better debate than this one.

Mr. President, when the VA Under Secretary of Health asserts in a memo that the VA's flat-lined health care budget "poses very serious financial challenges which can only be met if decisive and timely actions are taken," I believe that there is one critical action we must take. We must provide a significant increase over the Administration's request for VA health care. We ought to begin listening to our veterans and listening to those who care for them. We ought to provide the level of investment the national veterans service organizations have endorsed in their Independent Budget for FY 2000—$3 billion over the Administration's request—the level of investment I believe is so badly needed just to fund the programs we already have while ensuring that future programs can address the needs of an aging veterans population.

Mr. BAUCUS addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I know that each Senator has his own story and experience with respect to problems of veteran health care in his or her home State. I am just going to take a couple of minutes to explain some problems that rural States have with which I am particularly familiar.

Today I spoke to Tom Pouliot. Who is Tom? Tom is a vet from my hometown of Helena, MT. He is also the national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Let me tell you a story that Tom has explained to me, which I know is a major problem in rural States. I say "rural." I mean really rural. I am not talking about eastern rural, although veterans in all parts of the country obviously need health care, and aren't getting the health care that they need. But I am talking about western rural, west of the 100th meridian where it doesn't rain, where the distances between towns are vast.

Let me tell you a story I repeat sometimes to my colleagues.

When the First Lady was in Montana not too many years ago, she got off the plane, and says, "This isn't rural. This is mega-rural. This is hyper-rural." I mean, for those who haven't been in the West west of the 100th meridian, I don't know, with all due respect, that one gets the sense of just how rural it is until you are there.

What is the problem? The problem is that tonight we can vote to increase veterans' health care by an additional $2 billion. That is the amendment offered by the Senator from South Dakota, Mr. JOHNSON.

Why do I think that is a good idea? It is a good idea because the VA has had a flatline appropriations for veterans' health care for 3 consecutive years. Just think of it. For 3 consecutive years, there has been no increase for veterans' health care, something that is very important and desperately in need of. I believe that a fourth year of flatline health care budget would be deeply irresponsible.

Let me explain a couple of reasons why. Not only Tom, but I and others who have visited the VA facilities in Montana, of which there are not many, found this problem firsthand. I asked the VA in Montana to visit Miles City, Billings, and Helena, so they could get a firsthand look of what veterans face in getting the health care that they need.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All of the time of the proponent of the amendment has expired. The Senator from New Mexico controls 5½ minutes at this point in time.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 4 more minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. We have a vote at 8 o'clock. It is ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. That is 5 minutes from now. I am asking for 4 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. It is four votes.

Mr. BAUCUS. Just 4 minutes. That is not 8 o'clock. That is 5 minutes from now.

Mr. DOMENICI. I haven't spoken on either amendment.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I ask for 1 minute.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask that we vote at 8:01.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, in a nutshell, the problem is this: Veterans in Montana get appointments at Fort Harrison and other veterans facilities. They drive hundreds of miles for the appointments. They get there, and it is canceled. They have to get in their car, or have someone drive them back to their home hundreds of miles away again. This is very common. Why? Because of personnel cuts. It is going to get worse unless we increase the veterans' health care budget.

Tonight I plead with my colleagues to support the Johnson amendment. Give our veterans a break. Men and women who have fought so hard for America, particularly our elderly vets, who in, say, World War II, or in the Korean war, fought for America. Here we are increasing the defense budget. We are not helping veterans' health care. That is just not right.

All we are asking is to take a little bit of a nick out of the defense budget, just a little, and increase veterans' health care just a little.

As I mentioned, there has been no increase in the last 3 years. This budget this year has no increase. That will be the fourth year. Let's just add a little bit to veterans' health care. I think it is the right thing to do for America's veterans.

I thank the Senator from New Mexico for the extra minute.

I yield the floor.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Mr. FEINGOLD and Senator ROBB be added as cosponsors to the Johnson amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. JOHNSON. As Senator WELLSTONE expressed so eloquently, this adjustment would allow for the VA to keep up with medical inflation and for them to retain the needed employees that they need to deliver these services. It would allow for new medical initiatives the Congress had been pushing the VA to begin, including hepatitis C screenings and emergency care services. It would allow for addressing long-term care costs, funding for homeless veterans, in compliance with any Patients' Bill of Rights legislation this Congress enacts.

Mr. President, I reserve the balance of my time. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wonder if I might ask unanimous consent that we set aside this amendment temporarily while an NIH amendment is offered by Senator SPECTER.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. WELLSTONE. Reserving the right to object, Mr. President. What is the request? Is it that we lay aside our amendment so our colleague could offer an amendment on NIH?

Mr. DOMENICI. Yes.

Mr. WELLSTONE. No objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Pennsylvania is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 157

(Purpose: To provide for funding of biomedical research)

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. SPECTER], for himself, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. DEWINE, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. JOHNSON, Ms. MIKULSKI, and Mr. LAUTENBERG, proposes an amendment numbered 157.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title II, insert the following:
SEC. __. RESERVE FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the Senate, revenue and spending aggregates and allocations may be revised under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 for legislation disallowing a Federal income tax deduction for any payment to the Federal Government or any State or local government in connection with any tobacco litigation or settlement and to use $1,400,000,000 of the increased revenues to fund biomedical research at the National Institutes of Health.

(b) REVISED AGGREGATES.—Upon the consideration of legislation pursuant to subsection (a), the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may file increased aggregates to carry out this section. These aggregates shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as the aggregates contained in this resolution.

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, we have been accorded the opportunity to offer this amendment slightly out of turn, and I had already asked my distinguished ranking member, Senator HARKIN, to come to the floor. The amendment is with Senator HARKIN as the principal cosponsor.

The thrust of this amendment is to provide the financial base to increase funding in the National Institutes of Health by $2 billion this year. The budget resolution had increased the budget authority by $600 million. This amendment seeks to increase that budget authority by another $1.4 billion and applies as an offset to the provision to disallow tax deductions from the settlement of cigarettes, which would yield in excess of $1.4 billion, the amount which is covered in this amendment.

In November 1998, 46 States agreed to a settlement with the tobacco industry requiring the tobacco companies to pay the States some $206 billion over 25 years. Four other States had settled separate lawsuits with the tobacco companies. The Internal Revenue Service considers those settlement payments as tax deductible business expenses, and this deduction effectively reduces the amount tobacco companies pay by 25 to 30 percent. Obviously, the tobacco companies will write off these payments as business expenses on their Federal tax returns. The amount of funding for next year, the year 2000, is $1.8 billion.

When we look for offsets to fund matters like increased funding for the National Institutes of Health, it is obviously a very difficult matter with the type of budget constraints that we are under. And in searching the nooks and crannies of the potential offsets, a very diligent staff came up with the idea that the deductibility of these payments was of lesser public policy importance than to increase the funding for the National Institutes of Health.

Now, public policy obviously depends upon someone's vantage point, and to have a change in law that would deny a tax deduction is not easy for anyone concerned. But where you have the kinds of funds that are involved in the tobacco settlement, and where you had a much larger figure being talked about for the Federal settlement, and where you have all of the money going to the States, and the Federal Government doesn't get any of the funds as determined by the emergency appropriations bill that we voted on last week on an amendment that Senator HARKIN and I offered, I think that all factors considered, it is a fair and just and equitable consideration. That is especially true in a context where you have tobacco being the cause of so many major health ailments in the United States. So in searching for a way to find an offset, we have come up with the idea of disallowing this as a tax deduction, which would provide the full funding in fiscal year 2000 for this $1.4 billion.

Now, with respect to the justification for increasing NIH funding, Mr. President, I think that is a matter which virtually speaks for itself. The National Institutes of Health is the crown jewel of the Federal Government. The advances that have been made in the National Institutes of Health covering a range of ailments is just nothing short of marvelous.

It is worth just a moment to run through the list of ailments that NIH is studying where such magnificent progress has been made: Alcoholism; Alzheimer's disease; Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis, also called Lou Gehrig's disease; AIDS; arthritis; asthma; autism; cancers of so many different classifications, such as breast cancer, cervical cancer, prostate cancer, and other cancers; cystic fibrosis; deafness and communications disorders; dental diseases; diabetes; digestive disease; epilepsy; heart disease; hemophilia; hepatitis; Huntington's disease; kidney ailments; liver disorders; lung disease; macular degeneration; osteoporosis; Parkinson's disease; schizophrenia; scleroderma; stroke; sudden infant death syndrome. That is not even a complete list.

I might comment, Mr. President, that the efforts made by various interest groups, where people suffer from a variety of ailments, is really overwhelming as those groups come to Washington to lobby for an increase in funding for the National Institutes of Health. We had a resolution introduced by the distinguished Senator from Florida, Senator MACK, several years ago calling for the doubling of NIH over the course of 5 years, and it passed 98-0.

Two years ago, when Senator HARKIN and I sought to increase the budget resolution by $1.1 billion, we found it was defeated by 63-37. Last year, when we offered an increase in the budget resolution by $2 billion, it was defeated, my recollection is, by a vote of 57-41. When it comes to translating druthers to dollars, we have not seen the kind of support for NIH funding that I think is really warranted, given all the facts of the case.

We have some 19 cosponsors on the resolution to increase funding by some $2 billion. But, in the course of soliciting our colleagues for cosponsorship on this amendment, we found substantially less than that number stepping forward. When it comes to illness, when you have a loved one with Parkinson's, or a parent with Alzheimer's, or a family member with cancer, or one of the ailments yourself such as heart disease, no sum of money within conception is too much, and is really not enough to really move to conquer that disease. At the National Institutes of Health they do perform miracles.

In the course of last November, NIH came out with disclosures on research on stem cells, which has the potential to be a veritable fountain of youth. The estimate has been given on Parkinson's disease, to be within the range of conquering Parkinson's within 5 years, perhaps 10 years at the outside. As these stem cells replace other disease cells in the body, the sky is the limit as to what can be accomplished. But all of this takes money.

There are still a limited number of research grants which are awarded by the National Institutes of Health, and an increase of $2 billion will be the best spent money which the Federal Government could allocate.

We all know we have a budget in excess of $1.7 trillion, a staggering sum of money. And it is a question of priorities. This, I suggest, is at the top of the line.

Mr. President, if I may, I see my distinguished colleague, Senator HARKIN, has come to the floor. But recognition is determined by the Chair, so I simply yield the floor.

Mr. DOMENICI addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT

Mr. DOMENICI. We are going to vote at 8:01. Before we proceed, let me ask unanimous consent, so everybody will know where we are going. This has been cleared with the two leaders, and Senator LAUTENBERG obviously, and whoever else needs to be conferred with.

I ask unanimous consent that the next four votes occur in a stacked sequence, with 2 minutes between each vote for an explanation, 1 minute on each side, that the other votes in the voting sequence be limited to 10 minutes each.

I further ask that when the Senate resumes the concurrent resolution at 9 a.m. on Thursday there be 10 hours remaining for consideration.

However, for the information of all Senators, these votes will be the last votes of the evening. But any Senator who wishes to remain, we plan to be here open for business all night, if it is necessary. If Senators want to come and offer amendments, we will be here. If they will come and offer them tonight, they will be stacked for an orderly hour tomorrow.

I am hopeful that some Senators—a few—will avail themselves of that time. But I am certain that it will not be 4 o'clock in the morning with Senators still around offering amendments. That is why we proposed the unanimous consent as we have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, if I might say to my colleague, I support the unanimous consent agreement. I want to point out to Senators who are interested in offering amendments that we are here as long as amendments are going to be offered. If there are none offered at the conclusion of the votes, then we are going to be prepared to close shop, as we say. As long as amendments are offered, we are here. If they are not, we are closing up. But there will not be time to drag out tomorrow. We are willing to work all night, if necessary. But we are going to conclude with 10 hours tomorrow, which would then be roughly 35 hours' worth of time spent.

With that, I assume, Mr. President, that the unanimous consent request was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I want to ask the distinguished Senator, Senator JOHNSON—Senator SPECTER is on the floor—has he joined as a cosponsor of the amendment?

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be listed as an original cosponsor. We have surveyed our committee members. Senator THURMOND, may we list you as an original cosponsor?

Mr. THURMOND. Yes.

Mr. SPECTER. Senator THURMOND, and also Senator TIM HUTCHINSON as cosponsors.

Mr. DOMENICI. I think anybody who wants to join this amendment ought to join it. We are going to let you have a vote, but not without my making an observation about it.

I have been asked not to use strange words to describe amendments. So I will try to be very accurate.

This is a feel-good, do-nothing amendment, and the veterans of the United States ought not think that they are getting $2 billion. As a matter of fact, there is $1.1 billion more than the President in this budget. But, for some, whatever you put in—I should have put $4 billion in. Then we want $7 billion.

The truth of the matter is, this amendment is a do-nothing, feel-good amendment because it requires that we cut some other programs, following the format of the budget. That would mean we would have to cut education, environment, NIH, international affairs, housing, WIC—all of which we heard complaints all day long have been cut too much already. Nonetheless, this amendment chooses to cut none of them and just says we will find it in an allowance, which means all these programs will be cut for this $2 billion.

I do not think that is right. But neither do I want Senators to vote against veterans. So let us all vote "aye" and have a great big hurrah about the amendment.

I ask for the regular order.

VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 145

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired. The question is on agreeing to the Ashcroft amendment.

The yeas and nays have been ordered.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. LUGAR), is absent because of a death in the family.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. HUTCHISON). Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced, yeas 99, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 60 Leg.]

YEAS—99

Abraham	Byrd	Edwards
Akaka	Campbell	Enzi
Allard	Chafee	Feingold
Ashcroft	Cleland	Feinstein
Baucus	Cochran	Fitzgerald
Bayh	Collins	Frist
Bennett	Conrad	Gorton
Biden	Coverdell	Graham
Bingaman	Craig	Gramm
Bond	Crapo	Grams
Boxer	Daschle	Grassley
Breaux	DeWine	Gregg
Brownback	Dodd	Hagel
Bryan	Domenici	Harkin
Bunning	Dorgan	Hatch
Burns	Durbin	Helms

Hollings	Lincoln	Sarbanes
Hutchinson	Lott	Schumer
Hutchison	Mack	Sessions
Inhofe	McCain	Shelby
Inouye	McConnell	Smith (NH)
Jeffords	Mikulski	Smith (OR)
Johnson	Moynihan	Snowe
Kennedy	Murkowski	Specter
Kerrey	Murray	Stevens
Kerry	Nickles	Thomas
Kohl	Reed	Thompson
Kyl	Reid	Thurmond
Landrieu	Robb	Torricelli
Lautenberg	Roberts	Voinovich
Leahy	Rockefeller	Warner
Levin	Roth	Wellstone
Lieberman	Santorum	Wyden

NOT VOTING—1

Lugar

The amendment (No. 145) was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 147

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There will now be 2 minutes of debate equally debated on the Conrad amendment.

The Senate will be in order.

The Senator from North Dakota is recognized.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair.

Madam President, this amendment is very direct. It creates a lockbox to protect every dollar of Social Security surplus for Social Security. In addition, it creates a lockbox to add 40 percent of the non-Social Security surplus for Medicare.

Medicare is in danger. It is on the brink of insolvency. It is time not only for reform of Medicare, but to add additional resources so the promise of Medicare can be kept.

In addition, this amendment will pay down the debt by $300 billion more than the budget resolution alternative. I ask my colleagues to support this amendment to create a safe lockbox, not only for Social Security but for Medicare. That leaves sufficient resources—

Mr. BURNS. Madam President, the Senate is not in order. The Senator should be heard.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired, but because the Senator from Montana is correct, the Senator may take another 3 seconds to finish.

Mr. CONRAD. I thank the Chair, and I thank my colleague from Montana.

This leaves sufficient resources for $400 billion over the next 10 years for high-priority domestic issues, like education and defense, as well as room for tax reduction. But, fundamentally, it puts Social Security and Medicare first.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Madam President, this amendment is an anti-tax-relief amendment, plain and simple. Compared to the chairman's mark, which is before you, this amendment increases taxes by $320 billion over 10 years.

As to Medicare, let us get it straight once and for all. What is really incredible is that there is no lockbox for Medicare. There is a wish box. All we do with the money that is claimed for Medicare is apply it against the debt so that it can be spent by anyone anytime. As a matter of fact, if it is done to reduce the debt so as to strengthen the economy, our budget does more than the President plus this amendment by way of deficit reduction.

There is not one nickel in it that is spent on Medicare. It is a wish and a hope. We don't even know we need $320 billion over 10 years.

It violates the Budget Act because it is not germane to the budget, and the vote will be on a motion to waive, which I recommend Senators vote no on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, pursuant to section 904 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, I move to waive the applicable sections of the act for the consideration of the pending amendment, and I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the motion to waive the Budget Act in relation to the Conrad amendment No. 147. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. LUGAR) is absent because of a death in the family.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The yeas and nays resulted—yeas 45, nays 54, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 61 Leg.]

YEAS—45

Akaka	Edwards	Levin
Baucus	Feingold	Lieberman
Bayh	Feinstein	Lincoln
Biden	Graham	Mikulski
Bingaman	Harkin	Moynihan
Boxer	Hollings	Murray
Breaux	Inouye	Reed
Bryan	Johnson	Reid
Byrd	Kennedy	Robb
Cleland	Kerrey	Rockefeller
Conrad	Kerry	Sarbanes
Daschle	Kohl	Schumer
Dodd	Landrieu	Torricelli
Dorgan	Lautenberg	Wellstone
Durbin	Leahy	Wyden

NAYS—54

Abraham	Fitzgerald	McConnell
Allard	Frist	Murkowski
Ashcroft	Gorton	Nickles
Bennett	Gramm	Roberts
Bond	Grams	Roth
Brownback	Grassley	Santorum
Bunning	Gregg	Sessions
Burns	Hagel	Shelby
Campbell	Hatch	Smith (NH)
Chafee	Helms	Smith (OR)
Cochran	Hutchinson	Snowe
Collins	Hutchison	Specter
Coverdell	Inhofe	Stevens
Craig	Jeffords	Thomas
Crapo	Kyl	Thompson
DeWine	Lott	Thurmond
Domenici	Mack	Voinovich
Enzi	McCain	Warner

NOT VOTING—1

Lugar

The PRESIDING OFFICER. On this vote the yeas are 45, and the nays are 54. Three-fifths of the Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, the motion is not agreed to. The point of order is sustained, and the amendment falls.

AMENDMENT NO. 151

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We will proceed to the amendment by Senator BOND. There will be 2 minutes equally divided.

The Chair recognizes the Senator from Missouri.

Mr. BOND. Thank you, Madam President.

This amendment is an opportunity for all of our friends who think that the President's budget outlines the plan which we should follow to express themselves by voting for it. The President has said we must save the entire surplus to save Social Security, but the actual details of the plan takes $158 billion out of Social Security over the next 5 years.

The President and the minority leader have said that we need to stay in the caps. This budget plan breaks the caps by $38 billion. These are the actual details. These are the actual plans and the absolute numbers that we think come from the President's budget.

For our friends who believe that the President's budget is a preferable means of charting our spending programs for this coming year, I say vote for this.

I believe it does not fix Medicare. It ignores Medicare. It spends money that should be put into the retiring debt from the Social Security surplus, and I urge my colleagues to vote no.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. GREGG). The Senator from New Jersey is recognized.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I think by the description the Senator just offered he tells you what he thinks. He is offering this amendment and saying vote no. What he wants the Democrats to do is to be tricked into moving on this.

Here is one part of it—1,291 pages. If anyone wants to vote for this without inspecting it, unless all of you have reviewed it in detail and have decided that whatever you are concerned about is taken care of in here.

This is not a sincere amendment being offered. What this is, I think, is political chicanery. I urge my opponents to vote against it.

Mr. BOND. I agree.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I move to table the amendment.

Mr. DOMENICI. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. LUGAR), is absent because of a death in the family.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 97, nays 2, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 62 Leg.]

YEAS—97

Abraham	Feingold	Mack
Akaka	Feinstein	McCain
Allard	Fitzgerald	McConnell
Ashcroft	Frist	Mikulski
Baucus	Gorton	Moynihan
Bayh	Graham	Murkowski
Bennett	Gramm	Murray
Bingaman	Grams	Nickles
Bond	Grassley	Reed
Boxer	Gregg	Reid
Breaux	Hagel	Robb
Brownback	Harkin	Roberts
Bryan	Hatch	Rockefeller
Bunning	Helms	Roth
Burns	Hollings	Santorum
Byrd	Hutchinson	Sarbanes
Campbell	Hutchison	Sessions
Chafee	Inhofe	Shelby
Cleland	Inouye	Smith NH
Cochran	Jeffords	Smith OR
Collins	Johnson	Snowe
Conrad	Kennedy	Specter
Coverdell	Kerrey	Stevens
Craig	Kerry	Thomas
Crapo	Kohl	Thompson
Daschle	Kyl	Thurmond
DeWine	Landrieu	Torricelli
Dodd	Lautenberg	Voinovich
Domenici	Leahy	Warner
Dorgan	Levin	Wellstone
Durbin	Lieberman	Wyden
Edwards	Lincoln
Enzi	Lott

NAYS—2

Biden Schumer

NOT VOTING—1

Lugar

The motion to lay on the table the amendment (No. 151) was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 153

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 153 offered by Senator JOHNSON. There is 1 minute on each side equally divided.

The Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I respectfully disagree with the chairman's characterization of the amendment. This amendment tonight will put the Senate on record for the first time in support of full funding for veterans' health care. No budget resolution guarantees funding. That is part of the appropriations process. But this amendment will open the door. This amendment will open the door for consideration on the part of the appropriators for the full funding for veterans' health care that is so badly needed.

I yield to the Senator from Minnesota for 30 seconds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, what is meaningful about this amendment is it provides the necessary funding for decent health care for veterans. And the veterans community will hold all of us accountable. This is a very meaningful vote, I say to my colleagues.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who rises in opposition?

The Senator from New Mexico.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, there is no one in opposition. So I am going to speak.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Mexico is recognized.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I ask that Senators SPECTER, JEFFORDS, HUTCHINSON, MURKOWSKI, and myself be made original cosponsors.

Mr. President, while there is no assurance that veterans' health care is going to be increased by $2 billion, we already increased it $1.1 over the President's budget. I believe everybody should vote for this amendment, nonetheless.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota.

Is there a request for the yeas and nays?

Mr. JOHNSON. I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment of the Senator from South Dakota. On this question, the yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. NICKLES. I announce that the Senator from Indiana (Mr. LUGAR) is absent because of a death in the family.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber who desire to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 99, nays 0, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 63 Leg.]

YEAS—99

Abraham	Enzi	Lott
Akaka	Feingold	Mack
Allard	Feinstein	McCain
Ashcroft	Fitzgerald	McConnell
Baucus	Frist	Mikulski
Bayh	Gorton	Moynihan
Bennett	Graham	Murkowski
Biden	Gramm	Murray
Bingaman	Grams	Nickles
Bond	Grassley	Reed
Boxer	Gregg	Reid
Breaux	Hagel	Robb
Brownback	Harkin	Roberts
Bryan	Hatch	Rockefeller
Bunning	Helms	Roth
Burns	Hollings	Santorum
Byrd	Hutchinson	Sarbanes
Campbell	Hutchison	Schumer
Chafee	Inhofe	Sessions
Cleland	Inouye	Shelby
Cochran	Jeffords	Smith (NH)
Collins	Johnson	Smith (OR)
Conrad	Kennedy	Snowe
Coverdell	Kerrey	Specter
Craig	Kerry	Stevens
Crapo	Kohl	Thomas
Daschle	Kyl	Thompson
DeWine	Landrieu	Thurmond
Dodd	Lautenberg	Torricelli
Domenici	Leahy	Voinovich
Dorgan	Levin	Warner
Durbin	Lieberman	Wellstone
Edwards	Lincoln	Wyden

NOT VOTING—

Lugar

The amendment (No. 153) was agreed to.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wish to call to the attention of the Senate technical corrections to certain descriptions contained in Senate report 106-27, which accompanies the Concurrent Resolution on the Budget for FY 2000.

On page 266, the description of the Conrad amendment should read:

(3) Conrad amendment to increase revenues relative to the Chairman's mark by $320 billion, to require that any revenue reduction be offset with spending reductions or revenue increases, to create a Medicare Surplus Reserve, and to create a new 60-vote point of order in the Senate against legislation that would reduce that reserve.

On page 273, the description of the Lautenberg amendment should read:

(27) Lautenberg amendment to increase revenues relative to the Chairman's mark by $320 billion, to require that any revenue reduction be offset with spending reductions or revenue increases, and to create a Medicare Surplus Reserve.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, today, the Senate begins consideration of a budget for the fiscal year that begins on October 1. When it passes, it will be only the second budget in the last 30 years that will be balanced.

That will be a tremendous achievement considering that it was as recently as 1995 that President Clinton sent Congress a budget that would have produced annual deficits in the range of $200 billion for the foreseeable future. The budget recommended to us by the Budget Committee will effectively balance the budget, and it will do so even without relying on the surplus from the Social Security trust fund. The small deficit that is projected now is likely to be eliminated once the Congressional Budget Office updates its revenue estimates this summer.

Mr. President, the budget we have before us will ensure that the Social Security surplus is set aside so that it cannot be spent on other government programs—$1.8 trillion over the next 10 years. Many of us may have heard President Clinton promise to do the same, but when he sent his budget to Capitol Hill we found that he is actually proposing to raid the Social Security trust fund for $158 billion over the next five years alone. Moreover, we found that the President's plan to deposit 62 percent of the unified budget surplus into the trust fund was nothing more than an accounting gimmick. According to the Comptroller General, David Walker, "the changes to the Social Security program [recommended by the President] will thus be more perceived than real: although the Trust Funds will appear to have more resources as a result of the proposal, in reality nothing about the program has changed." In other words, the Clinton plan fails to delay the cash-flow problem expected in the year 2013 by a single year.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan also voiced opposition to the President's risky plan to invest a portion of the Social Security Trust Funds in the stock market, noting that "even with Herculean efforts," he doubted that investment decisions could be insulated from political pressures. The Clinton plan would allow federal bureaucrats to play politics with people's retirement savings. That is wrong.

By contrast, our budget will not put Social Security at risk. It will protect the Social Security surpluses so that they cannot be raided for the President's other spending initiatives.

Our budget will help preserve Medicare, as well. It will increase spending on the nation's health care program for seniors by an average of $20 billion a year for the next 10 years. That is in lieu of the $9 billion reduction in Medicare spending that the President's budget recommends.

Mr. President, we will cut the public debt in half over the next decade by abiding by the spending limits Congress and the President agreed to two years ago. The Clinton budget, by contrast, would bust the spending limits by more than $20 billion this year alone and result in only half as much debt reduction over the next decade.

Most importantly, the Senate budget proposes to return the rest of the emerging surpluses to taxpayers. Congress would still have to pass a separate bill later in the year that sets out precisely what form the tax relief would take, but there are many ideas. They range from a 10 percent across-the-board reduction in income-tax rates to more targeted relief, like repeal of the marriage penalty, elimination of death taxes, and reductions in capital-gains taxes. There are other ideas, too. Any of them is preferable to President Clinton's plan to raise $100 billion in new taxes and fees even though budget surpluses are mounting.

Although we have succeeded in balancing the unified budget, we still have two very different visions of where we should be headed. The President has proposed myriad new spending programs—77 new programs in his State of the Union address—paid for out of the Social Security surplus, Medicare, and new taxes and fees. The Senate budget protects Social Security and Medicare, and abiding by the spending limits approved just two years ago, we begin to pay down the debt and provide long overdue tax relief to the American people.

I believe the Senate's approach is a better one. I hope my colleagues will join me in voting aye.

Several Senators addressed the Chair.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, let me just say, according to the unanimous consent agreement, we are going to stay here so long as Senators want to offer amendments. They can either offer them and/or pull them, set them aside, or they can offer them and debate them tonight. I am going to have to leave shortly, but I will have somebody in my stead. We were not finished with the SPECTER amendment. I assume it is the regular order. It is not?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. REID. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. DOMENICI. Sure.

Mr. REID. In the morning—and I am confident this is appropriate, cleared with the manager of the bill on this side—we would like to line up three amendments that we will offer in order of Democrat-Republican-Democrat—in the right order.

Mr. DOMENICI. Do that tonight?

Mr. REID. It would be appropriate so people will be here in the morning to do their work. It was suggested Senator KENNEDY would offer the first Democratic amendment, after that a Daschle and Dorgan, after that one by John Kerry. That should get us through this side a good part of the morning.

Mr. DOMENICI. We are not going to have any votes before 11. And you are suggesting if we are making a list in the morning, those are the three that your side wants?

Mr. REID. First thing in the morning. Otherwise people will offer whatever they want tonight.

Mr. DOMENICI. But we will offer in between, ours, also.

Mr. REID. That is right. So I am saying those would be the three first Democratic amendments in the morning.

Mr. DOMENICI. So how would we do that? Whatever we take tonight would be set aside in any event, and then we would say when they are finished they would be set aside and the first three amendments to be taken up for votes tomorrow would be—

Mr. REID. I would say to the manager of the bill, it just allows more order here so people know when they should come so we are not waiting around for people to do things.

So, if I could, or if you would ask that in the form of a unanimous consent request, it would be appreciated.

We will try to have three also in the morning. We don't have any lack of amendments. There will be plenty. We will be glad to accommodate in that regard.

Mr. REID. Could we do that, I say to my friend from New Mexico, a unanimous consent request, if that happened in the morning, Republican and Democrat, six amendments? Those would be the first six? I mentioned the three Democrats, and you would have any that you believe are appropriate for Republican amendments.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, let's try that.

When we convene in the morning—

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is the Senator propounding a unanimous consent request?

Mr. DOMENICI. I am going to. Sometimes it takes a little while. I am getting tired and sleepy.

The only amendment that could be ahead of all of this would be Senator SPECTER's amendment. And if you have not used all your time tonight, you will get some in the morning.

Mr. HARKIN. That's right.

Mr. DOMENICI. So when that is finished, when they have completed the pending amendment, then I ask unanimous consent that the next six amendments be alternatively spread between Democrat and Republican and that the three Democrat amendments, when they are supposedly to be called up, will be first—

Mr. REID. First, Senator KENNEDY; second, Senators DASCHLE and DORGAN; and third, Senator JOHN KERRY.

Mr. DOMENICI. Could you tell us what the second one is?

Mr. REID. One is dealing with agriculture.

Mr. DOMENICI. OK. Then the Republicans will appropriately assign their amendments. We will make our own arrangements on this side as to which ones go when.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, is the pending business the Specter amendment?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. CRAIG. The Senator from Iowa would debate that; is that the intent at this time? Would the Senator from Iowa mind if I introduced and laid aside an amendment at this moment? It would take me a half minute.

Mr. HARKIN. Yes, of course.

AMENDMENT NO. 146

(Purpose: To modify the pay-as-you-go requirement of the budget process to require that direct spending increases be offset only with direct spending decreases)

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to introduce an amendment without laying the Specter amendment aside. That amendment is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report the amendment.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. CRAIG], for himself, Mr. KERREY, Mr. HELMS, and Mr. INHOFE, proposes an amendment numbered 146.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title II, add the following:

SEC. . REQUIREMENT TO OFFSET DIRECT SPENDING INCREASES BY DIRECT SPENDING DECREASES.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Surplus Protection Amendment".

(b) IN GENERAL.—In the Senate, for purposes of section 202 of House Concurrent Resolution 67 (104th Congress), it shall not be in order to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that provides an increase in direct spending unless the increase is offset by a decrease in direct spending.

(c) WAIVER.—This section may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(d) APPEALS.—Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to any provision of this section shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by, the appellant and the manager of the concurrent resolution, bill, or joint resolution, as the case may be. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required in the Senate to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this section.

(e) DETERMINATION OF BUDGET LEVELS.—For purposes of this section, the levels of direct spending for a fiscal year shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the Senate.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, this is a pay-go style amendment that would be applied to all new mandatory spending. I would seek to debate that in the morning, and I ask unanimous consent that it be laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Iowa for yielding.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 157

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, may I ask the chief cosponsor of the Specter amendment how much time is left on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa has 15 minutes on the proponent's side of the amendment.

Mr. HARKIN. Five zero?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Fifteen.

Mr. HARKIN. I thought we had an hour at a time, and I thought the only person who spoke on it is Senator SPECTER. How much time do we have on our amendment?

Mr. DOMENICI. It was cut in half by unanimous consent.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. By a previous order, the time on the amendment was reduced to an hour evenly divided, and the Senator from Pennsylvania consumed 15 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, I wonder if when the Senator is finished, obviously, we will not have used any time—we haven't yet, have we?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct.

Mr. DOMENICI. I do not know whether we would do that tonight or not. But Senator HUTCHINSON would like to follow that with 5 minutes. I would ask consent that he be allowed 5 minutes following that amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DOMENICI. He will be joined in that 5 minutes, 2 minutes that you requested of me.

Mr. REID. Reserving the right to object, there have been arrangements made on this side for tonight—

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. I believe I have the floor. I just hope this time is not running against my 15 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time is not being charged the Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. I thank the President.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I say to the manager of the bill, both managers of the bill, it is my understanding that on this side tonight the order of offering amendments was going to be Senator DODD, Senator REED, Senator GRAHAM, two for Senator GRAHAM; is that right?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Right.

Mr. REID. Then following that, Senator BOXER, if she chose, for a couple of amendments. And Senator SCHUMER also had one after Senator BOXER.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. OK.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, a further inquiry. What does that do tomorrow to voting? Does this mean those are the first votes?

Mr. DOMENICI. The first votes we have decided upon, the three that the Senator asked me for.

Mr. DODD. So these will come after the first?

Mr. DOMENICI. In some order. Let me just say to the Senator, I understand what you have agreed to among yourselves, but the Senate hasn't agreed to that.

Mr. REID. We certainly understand that.

Mr. DOMENICI. What we would like to do is ask, on our side, if we might see if there are any Republicans that want to offer amendments, and they ought to be able to be worked into that.

Mr. REID. We understood that.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I agree with that.

Mr. DOMENICI. Why don't we attempt to do that. Who do we have on our side that has anything this evening? Senator COLLINS, you have an amendment? OK. So we—

Mr. DODD. Why doesn't Senator HARKIN start talking?

Mr. DOMENICI. HARKIN is going to go, and then Senator COLLINS. Then you can go after that.

Mr. DODD. Are you going to stay and listen to the debate?

Mr. DOMENICI. I am going to have somebody in my stead who will whisper everything to me in the morning when I arrive.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I know the hour is late. I do not want to take from Senator HARKIN's time. I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to speak for 2 minutes as in morning business. Senator BRYAN is a grandfather for the first time today, and I would like to take a couple minutes to recognize my friend.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DOMENICI. I don't object, but I would like to couple that with—do you want to go now or after he finishes his time?

Mr. REID. He has agreed that I could speak prior to him.

Mr. DOMENICI. Then immediately following the completion of your debate, then I would like Senator HUTCHINSON—Senator, how much time did you want with Senator HUTCHINSON? Why don't we give you 2, if you wanted 1.

Mrs. LINCOLN. One or 2 minutes.

Mr. DOMENICI. That they be allowed to speak for 7 minutes, and then we will proceed with whatever order is decided here.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I yield to the Senator from Florida.

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that three congressional fellows in my office, Sean McCluskie, Matt Barry, and Angela Ewell-Madison, be granted the privilege of the floor during further consideration of the legislation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Nevada.

CONGRATULATIONS TO SENATOR BRYAN

Mr. REID. Mr. President,

How confusing the beams from memory's lamps are;

One day a bachelor, the next a grandpa.

What is the secret of the trick?

How did I get old so quick?

—by Ogden Nash.

Mr. President, my friend, RICHARD BRYAN, is a grandfather today for the first time. His lovely wife Bonnie and he are extremely excited. Their oldest son, who is a cardiologist in Reno, at 5:30 eastern time last evening had a baby, their first child, and Senator BRYAN's first grandchild.

I can't think of a person I know who is a better role model for a child than Senator BRYAN. I hope he and Bonnie have all the happiness that a grandchild can bring. I know that they will. I hope this beautiful boy, Conner Hudson Bryan, will follow in the footsteps of his father and enter public service.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

The Senate continued with the consideration of the concurrent resolution.

AMENDMENT NO. 157

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I yield myself 10 minutes.

I am pleased to join my chairman, Senator SPECTER, in offering this amendment. Two years ago, the Senate went on record, 98 to 0, committing to double the NIH budget over 5 years.

Last year, Senator SPECTER and I were able to make good on that pledge by providing the biggest increase ever for medical research. We worked hard to make it happen. I thank all my Senate colleagues for working with us on that historic accomplishment.

The omnibus appropriations bill for this year contains a $2 billion, or a 15-percent, increase for the National Institutes of Health. That 15 percent puts us on track to meet our commitment to double the NIH budget for 5 years, which, I repeat, was voted on here 98 to 0.

Unfortunately, if we pass this budget resolution as it is, we will fall far short of the 15-percent increase necessary to maintain that commitment.

This budget resolution shortchanges Americans' health and shortchanges our efforts to control health care costs and keep Medicare solvent in the long run.

At the same time that this budget shortchanges basic investments in health care, the budget before us increases the Pentagon budget by $18 billion—$8.3 billion more than the President's request—to defend America against some ill-defined international threat.

What this budget should do is spend at least $2 billion more to defend us against the very real threats here at home every day—the threat of cancer, the threat of Alzheimer's, the threat of diabetes, the threat of osteoporosis.

Recently, under the leadership of Senator SPECTER, we had a hearing, and one of our witnesses was Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf. He was in town to urge Congress to increase its investment in medical research. He understands better than most that we cannot mount a strong defense without adequate resources. While we made some progress last year, we still have a long way to go.

Under the budget before us, NIH will only be able to fund about one in four meritorious research proposals. Those are research proposals that have gone through the peer review process deemed worthy of investigation. Only one in four will be funded.

In the next 30 years, the number of Americans over age 65 will double. Medical research is essential to help reduce the enormous economic and social burdens posed by chronic diseases that impact our elderly from Alzheimer's and arthritis to cancer and Parkinson's and stroke.

Take Alzheimer's disease. It alone costs the Nation over $100 billion a year. We know that simply delaying the onset by 5 years could save us over $50 billion a year. Delaying the onset of heart disease by 5 years would save over $69 billion a year. That is why I often say to my colleagues and others, if you really want to save Medicare, invest in medical research. That will take care of the looming deficit in Medicare. We are on the verge of breakthroughs in these and other areas. Now is the time to boost our investment to make sure that our Nation's top scientists can turn these opportunities into realities.

In addition to funding more research grants, another area that is critical to making the breakthroughs we know are possible is making sure we have state-of-the-art laboratories and equipment. However, most of the research is currently being done in laboratories built in the 1950s and 1960s.

According to the most recent National Science Foundation study, 47 percent of all biomedical research performing institutions classified the amount of biological science research space as inadequate, and 51 percent indicated they had an inadequate amount of medical research space. So the need is great.

Our amendment is very simple. It ensures that the budget resolution will provide a $2 billion increase to the National Institutes of Health for fiscal year 2000, and it is fully paid for. It is paid for by the very industry that has caused most of the death and disease in this country.

As I said before, Mr. President, tobacco kills more Americans each year than alcohol, car accidents, suicides, AIDS, homicides, illegal drugs, and fires all put together.

Simply put, our amendment turns tobacco profits toward the cure for the cancer, emphysema, and heart disease that it causes.

During the dealings that led to the tobacco settlements, the tobacco lawyers made sure that all the payments they made to the States would be considered "normal and necessary business expenses." But there is nothing ordinary about this settlement. The tobacco industry has peddled a product that has killed millions of Americans through their deceptive advertising and sales practices. As a result of that loophole in the settlement, the tobacco industry can write off 35 percent of their entire settlement payment. That means American taxpayers, not big tobacco, will have to cough up as much as 35 percent of the cost, $2 billion this year alone, and continuing the next 25 years of the tobacco settlement.

In effect, the tobacco settlement is a $70 billion tax on the American people. What our amendment says is that basically the tobacco companies will not be able to deduct from their Federal taxes the amount of money that they pay to the States for this settlement. The American people have paid enough. To make them pay an additional $70 billion to cover up for the tobacco companies' tax deductions for their settlements is adding insult to death and injury.

Let me add one other thing, Mr. President. I have heard there is some misinformation floating out there about our amendment. Let me be clear. Our amendment would have absolutely no impact on the amount of settlement funds going to the States. The settlement has a clause that requires a dollar-for-dollar reduction in payments to the States if additional taxes are raised on tobacco and spent by the States, if the money is remitted to the States. Not one penny of the SPECTER amendment would go to the States but would all go to the National Institutes of Health. Therefore, it in no way violates that provision of the settlement.

Mr. President, I have a letter dated today from the Congressional Research Service that makes it very clear that our amendment does not violate the master settlement agreement made between the States and tobacco companies. I ask unanimous consent that the letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MEMORANDUM

To: Senate Committee on Appropriations, Attention: Mary Dietrich.

From: Stephen Redhead, Specialist in Public Health, Domestic Science Policy Division.

Subject: MSA Federal Legislation Offset.

Under Section X of the Master Settlement Agreement (MSA), annual payments to states are subject to a federal tobacco-legislation offset: If new federal legislation that requires tobacco companies to make payments ("settlement payments, taxes, or any other means") to the federal government is enacted on or before November 30, 2002, and some portion of that money is made available to the states as (i) unrestricted funds, or (ii) earmarked for health care (including tobacco-related health care), those payments may be offset, dollar for dollar, from the annual payments to states.

S. Con. Res. 20 proposes federal legislation that would disallow the tobacco companies' federal income tax deduction for the MSA payments and use $1.4 billion of the resulting revenues to fund biomedical research at the National Institutes of Health (NIH). There is some concern that such legislation might lead to a reduction in the MSA payments to states by triggering the federal tobacco-legislation offset.

Although legislation disallowing a federal income tax deduction for tobacco settlement payments meets the Section X definition above, earmarking a portion of the funds for NIH research would not appear, by itself, to satisfy the criterion that money be "made available" to the states. NIH awards grants to individual researchers and research institutions under a variety of grant programs, but not to states.

S. Con. Res. 20 might very possibly lead to a reduction in state settlement payments because of the MSA's volume-of-sales adjustment, which links the payments to the number of packs of cigarettes sold. If the companies are disallowed the federal tax deduction, then they will have to increase prices to raise the necessary revenue to pay the taxes. The companies have already increased prices by 75 cents a pack over the past 2 years, which appears to have reduced consumption. If the additional price increase further depresses consumption, then under the volume-of-sales adjustment the states' payments will be reduced proportionately.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, let me close by saying that we went on record 98-0 to double the NIH budget over the next 5 years. Last year, Senator SPECTER and I and others were able to put that 15-percent increase in there to get us on that road. This budget this year pulls the rug out from under that.

The people of America want us to invest in medical research. They want us to double the NIH budget. They believe it is important.

In a recent poll taken of the American people, more than 67 percent support doubling the research budget at NIH; 85 percent said it is important for us to maintain our leadership in medical research; 61 percent of the American people polled said they would be willing to pay $1 more a week in taxes to increase health research. The support is there.

There is no reason why the tobacco companies ought to be able to deduct from their Federal taxes the money that they are giving to the States in that settlement. They wrote it in that agreement, but that does not bind us.

This amendment does not violate the agreement. What it does is it saves the American taxpayers over $70 billion that they will have to pay to save the tobacco companies their money.

This amendment also saves Medicare—by putting this money into medical research to help solve the diseases of Alzheimer's, osteoporosis, arthritis, and diabetes. If you want to save Medicare, adopt the Specter amendment. If you want to save the taxpayers money, adopt the Specter amendment. If you want to save peoples' lives, adopt the Specter amendment.

Mr. President, how much time do we have remaining on our side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Five minutes 22 seconds.

Mrs. FEINSTEIN. Mr. President, today I am pleased to sponsor the amendment to increase funding for health research by $2 billion. I do so because we must confront disease as seriously as we confront war. This means we must support our brightest minds, we must have a clear battle plan and we must find the resolve to win the war against disease.

This amendment comes on the heels of several previous efforts. First, in 1997, the Senate adopted the Mack-Feinstein amendment 98 to 0, urging Congress to double the budget of the National Institutes of Health over 5 years. Second, last year, Congress gave the National Institutes of Health an increase of 15 percent, funding NIH at $16 billion, the first step toward doubling. Third, on February 2, when we learned that the President's FY 2000 budget proposed only a 2 percent increase, not even enough to keep up with inflation, I wrote the President and urging instead that NIH funding be doubled by 2004.

It is a sad comment on our nation that the National Institutes of Health in FY 1999 can only fund 31 percent of grant applications. The National Cancer Institute can only fund 31 percent. This is less than one-third of applications worthy of funding. This low funding rate leaves a vast wealth of knowledge unobtained, unexplored, diseases not cured and not treated.

There are many scientifically promising areas of research to which these funds could be devoted. They include gaining a clearer understanding of neural development; improving identification of inherited mutations which contribute to cancer risk; better understanding the interplay between genetics and environmental risk factors; uncovering the causes of over 5,000 known rare diseases affecting over 20 million Americans.

In cancer, a special interest of mine, the President requests only a 2 percent increase in FY 2000. NCI Director Dr. Richard Klausner has said that with this minimal increase, NCI would fund 10 percent fewer grants, according to the February 12 Cancer Letter. The National Cancer Advisory Board said this budget will "seriously damage the National Cancer Program."

Last September, the Senate Cancer Coalition which I cochair, held a hearing for the Cancer March who said that cancer has reached epidemic proportions and if current rates continue, one quarter of our population will die from cancer. Because of the aging of the population, the incidence of cancer will reach "staggering proportions" by 2010, with increase of 29 percent in incidence and 25 percent in deaths, at a cost of over $200 billion per year. They argued that these compelling statistics call for raising funding for cancer research to $10 billion by 2003, a 20 percent increase each year.

The National Cancer Institute has identified 5 promising areas of research in its FY 2000 "bypass budget." They are as follows: (1) Cancer genetics, identify and characterize every major human gene predisposing to cancer. (2) Preclinical models of cancer, study genes and effects of alterations of them in animals; (3) Diagnostic technologies, to improve the sensitivity of technologies to detect smaller numbers of tumor cells; (4) Better understanding the unique characteristics of cells and why it turns into a cancerous cell.

There are still many—too many—diseases for which we have no cure. This year, 1.2 million cases will be diagnosed this year and 563,100 Americans will die. But we spend one-tenth of one cent of every federal dollar on cancer research. The mortality rates for many cancers, like prostate, liver, skin and kidney, continue to increase. AIDS has surpassed accidents as the leading killer of young adults; it is now the leading cause of death among Americans ages 25 to 44. Diabetes and asthma are rising. 40,000 infants die each year from devastating diseases. Seven to 10 percent of children are learning disabled. Birth defects affecting function occur in 7% of deliveries or 250,000 of births.

The baby boom generation is getting older. Over the 30 years, the number of Americans over age 65 will double. As our population ages, we are seeing an increase in chronic and degenerative diseases like arthritis, cancer, osteoporosis, Parkinson's and Alzheimer's. For example, the 4 million people with Alzheimer's Disease today will more than triple, to 14 million, by the middle of the next century—unless we find a way to prevent or cure it. Health care costs will grow exponentially and we see that in part reflected in our budget debates over Medicare and Medicaid expenditures. The total annual cost of Alzheimer's today is $100 billion. By delaying the onset by 5 years, we can save $50 billion annually.

In January, we learned from the Institute of Medicine's study, The Unequal Burden of Cancer, that not all segments of our population benefit fully from our advances in understanding cancer. African-American males develop cancer 15 percent more frequently than white males. Stomach and liver cancers are more prevalent among Asian Americans. Cervical cancer strikes Hispanic and Vietnamese American women more than others. Many ethnic minorities experience poorer cancer survival rates than whites. American Indians have the lowest cancer survival rates of any U.S. ethnic group. This study reported that by 2050 there will be no majority population in the U.S. And our hearings of the Cancer Coalition have revealed that minorities are underrepresented in cancer clinical trials.

Discoveries from health research can reduce health care costs. Cancer costs the economy $104 annually; heart disease, $128 billion; diabetes, $138 billion. Research can cut costs. A delay in the onset of stroke could save $15 billion and a delay in the onset of Parkinson's disease could save $3 billion annually. For every $1.00 spent on measles/mumps/rubella vaccine, $21.00 is saved. For the diphtheria/tetanus/pertussis vaccine, $29 is saved. Reducing hip fractures, the cause of one in five nursing home admissions can cut nursing home costs by $333 million in one year alone. Delaying the onset of hearing impairment by 5 years in the 30 percent of adults age 65 to 75 who have impairment, can save $15 billion annually.

The United States is the world's leader in developing sophisticated treatments for illnesses and diseases, in making important medical discoveries and in improving human life expectancy. Yet, we are spending only three cents of every health care dollar spent in this country on health research. NIH's budget is less than one percent of the federal budget.

Funding NIH like a yoyo discourages the medical community from pursuing research. It is like a damper on ideas, on promising lines of scientific pursuit, that get snuffed out while being born. The National Academy of Sciences has said that we are not producing enough research scientists. That is in part due to the lack of assurance that health research has the priority it deserves.

We can do better.

The public is with us. A 1998 Research America poll found that most Americans support doubling funding for medical research in 5 years and over 60 percent of people in 25 states said they are willing to contribute another $1.00 per week in taxes for health research.

Mr. President, when President Franklin Roosevelt dedicated the new National Institutes of Health research facility on October 31, 1940 in the middle of World War II, he said, "We cannot be a strong nation unless we are a healthy nation. And so we must recruit not only men and materials but also knowledge and science in the service of national strength . . . I dedicate [this Institute] to the underlying philosophy of public health; to the conservation of life; to the wise use of the vital resources of the nation." That challenge is no less important today as it was in 1940.

I believe the public wants us to launch a war on disease and that the public sees medical research as an important priority of their federal government. I urge passage of this amendment.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I reserve the remainder of the time for Senator SPECTER in the morning, and I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who seeks time?

AMENDMENT NO. 159

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate on TEA-21 funding and the States)

Ms. COLLINS. I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside and send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Maine [Ms. COLLINS] proposes an amendment numbered 159.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:
SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON TEA-21 FUNDING AND THE STATES.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) on May 22, 1998, the Senate overwhelmingly approved the conference committee report on H.R. 2400, the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century, in a 88-5 roll call vote;

(2) also on May 22, 1998, the House of Representatives approved the conference committee report on this bill in a 297-86 recorded vote;

(3) on June 9, 1998, President Clinton signed this bill into law, thereby making it Public Law 105-178;

(4) the TEA-21 legislation was a comprehensive reauthorization of Federal highway and mass transit programs, which authorized approximately $216,000,000,000 in Federal transportation spending over the next 6 fiscal years;

(5) section 1105 of this legislation called for any excess Federal gasoline tax revenues to be provided to the States under the formulas established by the final version of TEA-21; and

(6) the President's fiscal year 2000 budget request contained a proposal to distribute approximately $1,000,000,000 in excess Federal gasoline tax revenues that was not consistent with the provisions of section 1105 of TEA-21 and would deprive States of needed revenues.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution and any legislation enacted pursuant to this resolution assume that the President's fiscal year 2000 budget proposal to change the manner in which any excess Federal gasoline tax revenues are distributed to the States will not be implemented, but rather any of these funds will be distributed to the States pursuant to section 1105 of TEA-21.

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I rise to offer a sense-of-the-Senate resolution to give the Senate the opportunity to express its clear commitment to ensuring that Federal gasoline tax revenues in fiscal year 2000 be distributed to the 50 States in accordance with the formula in the 1998 highway bill, the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century—or TEA-21 bill, as it is frequently called.

Mr. President, let me explain the action that has prompted my amendment and my concern. President Clinton's fiscal year 2000 budget contains a proposal which essentially changes the gas tax rules in the middle of the game. The President would distribute approximately $1 billion in higher-than-expected Federal gas tax revenues to a variety of transportation projects, rather than following the formula in the current law. Instead of distributing these extra moneys to the States, as required by the 1998 highway bill, enacted only 9 months ago, the President would divert these funds to other projects.

To be precise, section 1105 of last year's highway bill expressly provides that any additional Federal gas tax revenues above the levels envisioned in the act should be distributed to 50 States under the highway bill's formulas. These funds are extremely important to the States. They support a variety of important transportation programs authorized by the TEA-21 bill.

It now appears that the Federal Government will receive roughly $1.5 billion in extra Federal gasoline tax revenues next year. The President, however, proposes to take $1 billion of these extra revenues and spend them on a variety of Federal transportation programs, contravening current Federal law.

Mr. President, if the full $1.5 billion were allocated to the States under existing law, the State of Maine would receive roughly $7 million in much needed additional highway funds in fiscal year 2000. Under the President's proposal, however, which diverts $1 billion of these gasoline tax funds, the State of Maine would receive only $3.4 million in extra highway funds. This is a reduction of more than 50 percent in the funds that would otherwise be allocated to the State of Maine.

In short, if President Clinton's proposal were implemented, the State of Maine would lose approximately $3.6 million in critically needed Federal highway funds next year. The President's plan is unfair to Maine, it is unfair to the other States, and it should not be implemented. It changes course midstream in a way that harms our States' ability to meet their transportation needs. States should be able to rely on the Federal Government to abide by the commitment that it made only last May.

Mr. President, I am very pleased that the Budget Committee's report accompanying the budget resolution states as follows:

The committee-reported resolution does not assume the President's proposal to change the distribution of additional Highway Trust Fund revenues under TEA-21.

My sense-of-the-Senate resolution simply clarifies this language and reiterates the intent behind it. That is, that we should follow the dictates of the 1998 highway bill and allow any and all extra Federal gas tax moneys to go to the States under the terms and the conditions of the highway law.

Approving the sense-of-the-Senate resolution would allow the Senate to clearly express its disapproval of the President's plan. We should not change the rules. We should follow the allocation in the highway bill. We should keep the promise that we made just last May.

I yield the floor.

Mr. DODD. I am listening to the argument the Senator has made, and I am curious. Is there a chart or list that would inform us how our States would be doing under this different formula of which we ought to be aware?

Ms. COLLINS. I am happy to attempt to produce that information for the Senator from Connecticut.

It is a concern of many States that they would receive less money under the President's budget than they would receive if the highway bill were allowed to just work under current law.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, if my colleague would yield further, coming from the Northeast and New England, we have recently seen stories in newspapers of gas prices going up in the peak travel season for our States. I think it may be national in scope, but we feel it particularly in the Northeast.

I commend my colleague from Maine for making this proposal. I think it can be a great help, particularly when we find the battle over some of the formulas, and where need exists. Certainly the Senator from Maine has a great need with a lot of roads, a lot of highways, and a relatively small population.

It is an important amendment. I commend her for that. I might join her as a cosponsor in it.

Ms. COLLINS. I very much welcome the support of the Senator from Connecticut.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, it is my understanding that in terms of the manager, the chairman of the Budget Committee, this is acceptable. As far as I am concerned, it would be acceptable on our side. Therefore, it is fair to say we will accept it.

Ms. COLLINS. I urge adoption of the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HUTCHINSON). The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 159) was agreed to.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. I move to reconsider the vote.

Ms. COLLINS. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Ms. COLLINS. I thank the chairman and the ranking minority member of the Budget Committee for their cooperation.

Mr. DODD. I want to take note. I think it was my persuasive arguments that persuaded the ranking Democrat to support the amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 160

(Purpose: To increase the mandatory spending in the Child Care and Development Block Grant by $7.5 billion over five years, the amendment reduces the resolution's tax cut and leaves adequate room in the revenue instructions for targeted tax cuts that help families with the costs of caring for their children, and that such relief would assist all working families with employment related child care expenses, as well as families in which one parent stays home to care for an infant)

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside, and I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Connecticut [Mr. DODD], for himself, and Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. KOHL, and Mr. KERRY, proposes an amendment numbered 160.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 3, strike beginning with line 5 through page 5, line 14, and insert the following:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,455,992,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,513,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,586,965,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,650,257,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,683,438,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,737,646,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,807,517,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,870,515,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.
Fiscal year 2001: —$6,716,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: —$52,284,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: —$30,805,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: —$47,184,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: —$60,639,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: —$107,275,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: —$133,754,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: —$148,692,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: —$175,195,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,426,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,457,294,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,488,477,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,562,013,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,614,278,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,667,843,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,699,402,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,754,567,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,815,739,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,875,969,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,408,292,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,455,992,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,513,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,584,066,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,640,426,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,668,608,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,717,883,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,782,697,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,842,699,000,000.

On page 28, strike beginning with line 13 through page 31, line 19, and insert the following:

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $244,390,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $248,088,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $251,873,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $257,750,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $264,620,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $267,411,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $277,886,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $277,674,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $287,576,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $287,384,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005:

(A) New budget authority, $299,942,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $300,126,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006:

(A) New budget authority, $306,155,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $306,593,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007:

(A) New budget authority, $312,047,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $312,948,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008:

(A) New budget authority, $325,315,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $326,766,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009:

(A) New budget authority, $335,562,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $337,104,000,000.

On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5 and insert the following:

(1) to reduce revenues by not more than $0 in fiscal year 2000, $136,989,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004, and $762,544,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2009; and

PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Amy Sussman, a fellow in my office, be allowed privileges of the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. I ask unanimous consent that my colleagues Senator JEFFORDS of Vermont, Senator KENNEDY, Senator KOHL, Senator WELLSTONE, Senator MURRAY, Senator BINGAMAN, Senator JOHNSON, and Senator KERRY of Massachusetts be added as cosponsors to this amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, many of my colleagues may know that 9 years ago my colleague from Utah and I offered and authored the Child Care and Development Block Grant Act of 1990.

Year after year, we have talked about this important program and about what a difference we think it has made in the lives of working families.

Any Member of this body who has spent time in his or her State over the past 2 months enters this debate about budget priorities knowing with absolute certainty that very few issues weigh as heavily on the minds of parents across this country than how their children are being cared for. Parents worry they can't afford to take time away from work to be with their children. When they must work, they worry that the child care they need will be unavailable, unaffordable, or unsafe. It is a constant daily struggle for parents with young children in this country. It is a constant source of concern for parents all across the Nation.

Helping these families does not require inventing a slew of new programs. We already have the Child Care and Development Block grant, a program that works and that enjoys strong bipartisan support.

This block grant is a model of flexibility. It provides direct financial assistance to help families pay for child care. It does not dictate where that child care must be provided. Parents can choose a child care center, they can have a home-based provider, a neighbor, a church, a relative, whatever they think is best for their child.

In our opinion, this is an excellent program. In fact, its only downside is that the level that it is currently funded at reaches far too few families in this country. As a result of underfunding, the child care block grant—now almost a decade old—can only serve 1 out of every 10 children. This graph highlights that: Out of every 10 children who are eligible, only 1 today can actually take advantage of the child care block grant.

Consequently, States have had to employ various strategies to ration the subsidies that these block grants provide.

Almost all States without exception have lowered their income-eligibility requirements far below the federally allowed level—85 percent of the State's median family income, or approximately $35,000.

I notice the presence of our colleague from Ohio, and I know as a former Governor how he wrestled with these issues. I think he knows very graphically what I am about to describe for other colleagues. The Presiding Officer was a Governor and he can appreciate this as well.

Because of underfunding, over 20 states have cut off all assistance to families of three earning over $25,000. Fourteen States have cut assistance for families earning over $20,000. Seven States are even more stringent: Wyoming, Alabama, Missouri, Kentucky, Iowa, South Carolina, and West Virginia cut off subsidies for families earning more than $17,000 a year—half the income level that is allowed for under Federal law.

What is the effect of this? What happens? In some States, subsidies are only provided to parents on or moving off welfare. Working families out there living on the margin can't get any help. This is not what I think any of us intended to have happen.

This graph shows that 52 percent of the child care needs of working families cannot be met with current funding schemes. They are either locked out by strict State income eligibility requirements, they are locked out by long waiting lists, or they are locked out by subsidies that are too low to pay for the child care they need.

Even with these strict income eligibility requirements, as I mentioned, many States have long waiting lists. How bad are the waiting lists? In California, 200,000 children are on waiting lists for child care slots. In the State of Texas, it is 36,000; Massachusetts, 16,000; Pennsylvania, almost 13,000; Alabama, 19,000; Georgia, 44,500.

Other States ration their limited child care dollars by paying child care providers far below the market rate—again, trying hard to guard these dollars carefully.

For example, my own State of Connecticut has been unable to raise the payment rates for child care providers for 7 years. Even during a robust economy, we have not been able to increase the pay of child care providers because of the lack of funding in the child block grant program. It isn't hard to see that paying unrealistically low rates makes providers reluctant to accept subsidized children. It also isn't hard to see that this practice jeopardizes the ability of families who do get assistance to find good quality child care.

When you look at the astronomical costs of child care, you can see how all of these rationing practices put families in a crisis.

Let me draw the attention of my colleagues to this last chart here. These are annual child care fees across the country for children of selected ages. I have picked a cross section, with some of the highest and some of the less costly States, to give examples. I have broken it down by the cost of an infant, which is the highest child care cost, a 3-year-old, and a 6-year-old. The highest-cost State is Massachusetts. In Massachusetts, to take care of a 1-year-old child, the annual cost is $11,860; for a 3-year-old, it is $8,840; for a 6-year-old, it is $6,660. If you go down the list, I have done North Carolina, Florida, Minnesota, Texas, Colorado, and California.

Consider these numbers for a minute and recall what I showed you about how States have lowered the financial eligibility criteria down to as low as $17,000. It means that if you live in one of the states with strict income eligibility, you might earn $21,000 and not qualify for the subsidy, but still be paying $8,580 for the care of an infant. If you make $21,000 and have an $8,500 yearly child care bill—you are getting close to paying 50 percent of your gross income to care for one child.

If my colleagues would like, I will have this information before the vote tomorrow for each State to give Members some idea on what the waiting lists are like, to get some sense of how important an issue this is for the families living in your States.

Without help in paying the $4,000 to $11,000 a year that child care can cost, low-income working families are forced into the untenable position of placing their children in an unsafe, makeshift child care arrangement or forgoing employment.

Unfortunately, what we have before us is a budget that chooses to ignore this problem. I say, with all due respect, to those who have to draft these budgets, what we have before us is a budget that disregards these needs.

We are being asked to endorse a budget that doesn't just fail to provide for an increase in child care funding but in fact would cut discretionary child care spending by $122 million in fiscal year 2000—cutting off assistance to some 34,000 children in the first year, and up to 79,000 by the fifth year of the program—in order to pay for tax cuts for the more affluent citizens in our society.

I have heard my colleagues all across this Chamber repeatedly say that they only want to return the surplus to working families. That is hard to argue. But that is what this amendment does. Working people need this.

This amendment provides an additional $7.5 billion over 5 years for the Child Care and Development Block Grant, which goes directly to families to help them pay for child care—by a church, by neighbors, by family members. We pay for this funding increase by reducing the proposed $800 billion tax cut by the same $7.5 billion over 5 years. I don't think that is too big a chunk out of that for a very serious program which needs help.

We also make a non-binding statement that if there is a tax cut, we want a tax credit for child care that helps all working families as well as all parents who stay home to care for an infant.

That is a critically important issue if you are in the working poor category. If you are down at the $15,000 to $25,000 income level, a non-refundable tax credit is not very valuable to you because you probably have little or no tax bill. Without making the credit refundable, you don't get much benefit.

I hope, Mr. President, that my colleagues will seriously consider this amendment. Too often these amendments come up and people sort of blow by them, and just march in lockstep.

If we don't adopt this amendment, we will be very limited in the type of child care funding increases we can seek this year. If it is not in the budget as part of a mandatory spending, I'm essentially closed out for the year.

Others have said in the past, "Don't make it mandatory. Take your best shot in the discretionary spending and fight over appropriations that." I have tried that over the years, I say to my colleagues. You just don't win. And this year will be harder than ever because, as you know, we have about a 12 percent across-the-board cut in non-defense discretionary programs. For me to get $7.5 billion over 5 years in a discretionary nondefense appropriations battle, is not going to happen.

You have to ask yourself a tough question: Regarding that $800 billion tax cut, as important as it is to many of you, would you mind reducing it by $7.5 billion over 5 years to try to make a difference here for working families who need child care?

You also have to ask if tax credits should go to all working families and stay-at-home parents. Low-income families in both these situations make tough choices and they ought to have the backing of their representatives in Congress, in my view.

I ask my colleagues who are here this evening, or others who may be watching the debate, before the vote tomorrow, to please take a hard look at this amendment and see if you can find a way to be supportive of it. This is the only opportunity we will have to really deal with this issue, and unless it is included in this budget resolution, it is essentially off the table. That is it for the 106th Congress. This is our one opportunity to do something to help these families.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, Senator DODD and I offer this amendment to do more to help working families secure quality child care.

Child care is one of the most important challenges facing the Nation. The need to improve the affordability, accessibility, and quality of child care is indisputable. Every day, millions of parents go to work and entrust their children to the care of others. An estimated 13 million children under 6 years old are regularly in child care.

Every working parent wants to be sure that their children are safe and well cared for. Yet child care can be a staggering financial burden, consuming up to a quarter of the income of low-income families. Child care can easily cost between $4,000 and $10,000 for one child. But about half of all young children live in families with incomes below $35,000. And two parents working full-time at the minimum wage earn only $21,400. These parents—working parents—constantly must choose between paying their rent or mortgage, buying food, and being able to afford the quality care their children need.

Existing child care investments fall far short of meeting the needs of these parents and their children. Today, 10 million low-income children theoretically qualify for services under current Federal child care programs. But because of lack of funding, only one in ten of these children actually receive it. The need is great and a ratio like that is unacceptable.

Making sure that all children receive quality care especially in the early years, is one of the best possible investments in America's future. We know the enormous human potential that can be fulfilled by ensuring that all children get adequate attention and stimulation during the first three years of life. Quality child development increases creativity and productivity in our workforce. There is less need for remedial education and less delinquency. Safe, reliable care offers stable relationships and intellectually stimulating activities. Child care that fulfills these goals can make all the difference in enabling children to learn, grow, and reach their potential. If we are serious about putting parents to work and protecting children, we must invest more in child care help for families.

President Clinton has put families first by giving child care the high priority it deserves. Senate Democrats have proposed an increase in our commitment to child care by at least $7.5 billion in mandatory spending over the next 5 years, almost doubling the number of children served from 1 million to 2 million in 2005.

The benefits from investing in children are substantial and many. A lifetime of health costs are lower when children are supervised, educated about their health, and taught to develop healthy habits. Parents' productivity improves when they know that their children are well cared for. Education costs decrease when children enter school ready to learn. By expanding child care and child development programs, we invest in children, their future, and the country's future.

Yet this budget resolution allots no funds for increased child care and development programs. In fact, the Republican budget slashes funds for critical programs for children. It denies 100,000 children the Head Start services that help them come to school ready to learn. It makes it impossible to reach the goal of serving a million children in Head Start by 2002. The message contained in the budget resolution is clear—children are not a priority.

The Nation's children and families deserve a budget that invests in the right priorities—not the priorities of the right wing. This Republican budget makes children a non-priority—and gives high priority to an $800 billion tax cut for the wealthy. Those priorities are wrong for children, wrong for Congress, and wrong for the Nation.

Now, when we have a large national surplus and a strong economy, it is time to invest in our most valuable resource—our children. I urge my colleagues to support this amendment.

Mr. VOINOVICH addressed the Chair.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, parliamentary inquiry: Are we going back and forth to each side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is no order. However, there is an amendment pending.

Mr. REED. I ask unanimous consent to lay the amendment aside. My amendment is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I think it is informal to go back and forth.

Mr. REED. I withdraw my unanimous consent request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair thanks the Senator.

The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the pending amendment be set aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 161

(Purpose: Use on-budget surplus to repay the debt instead of tax cuts.)

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Ohio [Mr. VOINOVICH] proposes an amendment numbered 161.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(The text of the amendment is printed in today's RECORD under "Amendments Submitted.")

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, we are debating a budget resolution in the Senate that will provide an outline for our Nation's spending for the next fiscal year. With the assurances of the Republican leadership, we will be sticking to our guns on the spending caps that we agreed to in the 1997 balanced budget agreement. And we will lock away the Social Security trust funds in a lockbox.

Earlier today, the Senate reaffirmed its commitment to Social Security, voting unanimously 99 to 0 that current and future Social Security trust funds should remain only for Social Security. It was the right thing to do. But incredibly, President Clinton has threatened to veto a similar measure, the Abraham-Domenici Social Security lockbox bill. It is unconscionable for the President to undermine the efforts of Congress to save Social Security just so he can use the Social Security surplus to pay for his pet projects.

As cosponsor of the lockbox legislation, I believe it represents a golden opportunity to show that Washington is serious about keeping its word to our seniors and future retirees. Since the Senate voted 99 to 0 this afternoon, I expect that all of my Democratic colleagues will vote for the Social Security lockbox bill when it comes to the floor and urge the President not to veto this legislation.

The Senate meanwhile will have to make some tough budget choices in fiscal year 2000, and we will have to do more with less. It is not going to be easy, because we have so many competing demands chasing so few dollars—demands such as military pay and readiness, education, and perhaps Medicare. And, yes; now that the President has started to bomb Kosovo we may need a lot more money to pay for a brand new war.

I would like to remind my colleagues this evening that the cost of that war is coming out of the Social Security surplus. The money to pay for that war is being paid for out of the Social Security surplus.

I also recognize that we may have to deal with emergencies as they occur. I applaud the chairman of the Budget Committee for drafting a resolution that addresses those needs. Under his leadership, Senator DOMENICI has acknowledged that we must reserve $131 billion, or what I would like to call a rainy day fund, that may only be used—let me stress—may only be used for Medicare, agriculture, Federal emergencies, or debt reduction.

While the chairman and I agree on that point, I do respectfully have a difference of opinion on using the onbudget surplus for tax cuts.

The amendment that I am offering is a simple one. It takes the tax cuts proposed in the budget resolution and uses the money to pay down the debt. Let me say again, under my amendment, we would take the $778 billion in tax cuts and use the money to pay down the debt. If my amendment is adopted and we use the onbudget surplus for debt reduction, then publicly held debt will drop from $3.68 trillion today to $960 billion by the year 2009.

Mr. President, we can't let this opportunity pass by, because if we look at this chart, we can see how vital it is to bring down our debt. This is what our debt was back in 1940. As you will notice, at the end of the Vietnam war, this debt skyrocketed, like Senator Glenn going up in the STS-95. Once we commingled the Social Security surplus with the general funds of this country, we started to use that surplus and borrow money to pay for tax reductions and spending increases. We now have increased that debt. When I was mayor of the city of Cleveland back in 1979, it was $750 billion at that time. It is $5.6 trillion today, almost a 600-percent increase in the national debt.

Why should we do this rather than use this money to reduce taxes?

First of all, if we pay down the debt, we are going to decrease our massive interest payments on the national debt.

No. 2, we will expand the economy.

No. 3, we will lower interest rates for families.

No. 4, we are going to have less need for future tax hikes. It will decrease the overall interest paid on the debt.

Right now, this is hard to believe, but we are spending over $600 million per day—do you hear me—per day, just to service the interest on the national debt.

Let's look at what that means. Most of the American people are not aware of what is going on here. Here are the entitlements, 54 percent; net interest, look at this, 14 percent of the money going for net interest; national defense, 15 percent; and nondefense discretionary, 17 percent.

Look at what has happened. When Janet, my wife, and I got married back in 1962, we were spending 6 cents per dollar on the interest. Today it is 14 cents.

The next chart, let's look at what that interest is doing. The interest on the national debt, as you can see, is a little bit below defense. But look at Medicare. We are spending more money today in the United States of America on the interest on national debt than we are on Medicare. And for education, we are spending five times more money on interest than we are on education. And for medical research, we are spending 15 times more money on interest than on the National Institutes of Health. That is what is going on today.

No. 2, it will expand the economy.

No. 3, it will lower the interest rate for individual families.

As Alan Greenspan attests, a decreasing national debt will bolster a strong economy and allow individual interest rates to fall.

Everybody who is an expert—talk to Dan Crippen, of the Congressional Budget Office, or David Walker, who is the new Comptroller General at GAO. Ask them: If you have a surplus, what should you do with it? They will come back and say, "Reduce the national debt."

These lower interest rates give middle-class Americans the ability to purchase homes. That is what keeps interest rates down. They are able to refinance mortgages and buy automobiles. The savings gives them some real money to either save, invest, or put it back into the economy.

With the low-interest rates that we have enjoyed, over 17 million Americans have refinanced their homes since 1993. Just think of the people that you know who have refinanced their homes because we have kept interest rates down. If we pay off or reduce the national debt, those rates will continue to come down. These homeowners have saved millions of dollars in mortgage payments per year. In fact, one of my staff members refinanced his modest duplex home in 1998. By refinancing, his yearly savings will be $2,160 a year. That is more than $50,000 he is going to save over the 25 years left on his mortgage.

If we could lower interest rates by 1 percentage point, an average family buying a home could save over $25,000 on a typical mortgage. Mr. President, that is a win-win for the American people. We will have less debt over our heads, and Americans will have more of their own money in their pockets in order to be able to buy things that they need for their families.

Finally, the fourth reason is that if we reduce the national debt, it will lower the amount of taxes necessary to run the Government. As the debt decreases, so does the overall cost of running the Government. This would allow us to maintain the current level of Government services and accommodate an increase in the use of those services by the baby boomers. It would also lessen the demand for future tax hikes that would result in a de facto tax cut for American people. Just think if we could bring the amount of the net interest payments down, that money would be available for other things we need to spend money on. Or, in the alternative, the opportunity to reduce taxes.

From a public policy point of view, let's be serious in terms of our debt. You have a 10-year projection on an $800 billion reduction in taxes. We are going to have a tough time balancing the budget this year. We may not have a surplus. Next year we will be lucky to have a surplus. One thing we do know is if we use the money to reduce the debt and we do not spend it on more programs, or we do not use it to reduce taxes, we will not be in the position, if the economy doesn't go the way we expect it to, to have to go back to the American people and say: Folks, we gave you a tax cut, but we are going to have to take it back because our projections were wrong. Folks, we are spending money on programs, and by the way, we are going to have to cut those programs because these 10-year projections we have are not working out.

I want to say one thing and I think it is important. Mr. President, 5-year projections may be reasonable; 10-year projections, if you talk to CBO, they would tell you they could swing $300 billion over this period of time. I think what we need to do is understand we have a tough budget situation that, if we lock up Social Security and do not touch it as we have in the past, we are going to have a couple of tough years ahead of us. Rather than projecting out 10 years and talking about what we are going to be doing with the money, I think if we do have that additional money, let's pay down the national debt.

The last thing I would like to say is this: I just had a new granddaughter last week, Veronica Kay Voinovich. While I was campaigning in Ohio last year I talked about my first grandchild, Mary Faith. Her gift, when she was born on December 26, 1996, from this Government, was a bill for $187,000, interest on a debt that was racked up before her life, on something that she had nothing to do with. And we are asking her to pay for it. I think it is criminal. I think it is criminal that we have not been willing to pay for the things that we wanted, that we borrowed the money, and we have had an attitude: We have ours, let them worry about theirs.

That is not the legacy that was left to me and I do not want that legacy for my granddaughters or for the other grandchildren here in the United States of America.

We have a wonderful opportunity. For the first time, we can see the light to really do something that is responsible in dealing with this budget to get ourselves back on track, so going into the next century, the next 10 years are going to be good years for our country.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Who yields time?

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I take time from what would normally be the opposition. I want to take this opportunity to say to the Senator from Ohio that we think that is pretty clear thinking. Paying down the debt—he is right. I heard his remarks. He recounts what we have heard from the economists, Greenspan included, about the most important way to get our fiscal house in order and that is to pay down the debt. If we keep going like things are projected, we could be through with public debt in about 15 years.

We would be, within 15 years, at the debt level in 1917. And no, I don't remember it; I have read about it.

But within a couple of years thereafter we could be out of public debt, which would be such a bonus for all of our succeeding generations, including our grandchildren. I congratulate the Senator. Is this his second grandchild? The second. One of mine, my 3-year-old grandchild, was watching television tonight and he said to his mother, "Papa looks mad." And then he said, "No, I think papa is happy."

Anyway, we do it for them. I think the amendment of the Senator is a very positive amendment and I hope it will get full support.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to lay aside the pending amendment to consider my amendment which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 162

Mr. REED. I have an amendment at the desk and ask it be called up.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Rhode Island [Mr. REED], proposes an amendment numbered 162.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

On page 3, strike beginning with line 5 through page 5, line 14, and insert the following:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,438,628,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,461,410,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,538,283,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,592,543,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,656,146,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,689,262,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,743,602,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,813,532,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,876,549,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.
Fiscal year 2001: —$4,019,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: —$46,866,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: —$25,035,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: —$41,606,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: —$54,750,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: —$101,451,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: —$127,798,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: —$142,677,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: —$169,161,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,433,486,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,462,731,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,494,665,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,567,714,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,619,458,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,673,026,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,704,594,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,759,769,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,820,952,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,881,193,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,408,292,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,438,628,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,461,410,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,538,283,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,589,644,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,646,315,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,674,432,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,723,839,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,788,712,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,848,733,000,000.

On page 21, strike beginning with line 20 through page 23, line 11, and insert the following:

(9) Community and Regional Development (450):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $11,898,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,273,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $9,141,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,931,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $9,077,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,919,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $9,243,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,232,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $9,217,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $9,694,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005:

(A) New budget authority, $9,213,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $9,121,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006:

(A) New budget authority, $9,219,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $8,755,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007:

(A) New budget authority, $9,223,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $8,751,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008:

(A) New budget authority, $9,232,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $8,739,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009:

(A) New budget authority, $9,237,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $8,722,000,000.

On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5.

Change $142,034,000,000 to $117,526,000,000.

Change $777,587,000,000 to $713,363,000,000.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, this evening I rise to offer an amendment along with Senator SARBANES, Senator KERRY of Massachusetts, and Senator MURRAY, to restore funding for regional development programs to the levels that are set forth in the President's budget. Unfortunately, the budget resolution which we are considering today would reduce the funding for community and regional development programs by $88.7 billion over 10 years. This is compared to the President's budget request.

For example, in fiscal year 2000, spending for community and regional development programs would be reduced from $11.9 billion to $5.3 billion, a cut of 55 percent. In fiscal year 2001, spending for these programs would be reduced from $9.1 billion to $2.7 billion, a cut of 70 percent.

Then, between the years 2002 and 2009, spending reductions each year are approximately 78 percent below the President's request. In effect, this budget before us would eviscerate community and regional development programs. These programs are at the heart of our efforts to invest in America, in our cities, in our rural areas, and to do so in a way that gives maximum flexibility to local mayors, Governors, and community officials.

My amendment would increase spending for community development programs by $88.7 billion over these 10 years to essentially meet the President's projections. It would be offset by reducing the amount of tax cuts, currently $778 billion, contained in this budget resolution. My amendment not only restores funding for community and regional development, it will still leave approximately $700 billion for tax cuts.

I am deeply troubled by these cuts in community development programs because they will undermine the progress that our cities and rural areas have been making over the last several years. In fact, in many cities there is an urban renaissance. Where they are beginning to clean up blighted areas, they are beginning to attract new investment in the center cities. They are beginning to develop and sustain a mature culture and the arts. All of this is a result of investments through many of these programs which stand to lose out tremendously in this proposed budget resolution.

One of the indications of a reviving urban area in the United States is the fact that crime, violent crime particularly, has fallen more than 21 percent since 1993, and property crimes have dropped to the lowest point since 1973. I argue this is not simply the result of better police activity. This is because the cities are now able to reinvest and reinvigorate their communities, their neighbors. In so doing, they give positive incentives and positive hope for people.

All this is happening. And all of this will stop happening quite dramatically if we make such a devastating cut in community development and regional development programs.

Let me suggest the particular programs that would be affected by these massive cuts. First is the Community Development Block Grant Program; then there is the section 108 program loans for cities and communities; there is the Economic Development Administration and their grants to States and communities; there is FEMA disaster assistance, which is part of this program; then there is brownfield redevelopment programs, which help aid the remediation of environmentally troubled areas so they can be redeveloped for use by cities and communities; and then there is the lead hazard reduction grants, which are a critical problem in many parts of this country, particularly urban areas; then there is the community development financial institutions fund; the Neighborhood Reinvestment Corporation; and the Rural Community Advancement Program. All of these programs would see devastating cuts.

Let me for a moment talk about some of the particular programs that are subject to this very threatening budget resolution. First is the Community Development Block Grant Program. We are all familiar with this program. It provides grants to States and to communities on a formula basis, the type of programmatic initiatives for new housing and community development.

One of the virtues of this program, one of the reasons it is embraced by both sides of the aisle, conceptually, is the fact that it gives flexibility to the States and to the cities to decide how they want to use these funds. It is not a mandate from Washington. It is not a categorical program that makes them jump through all sorts of hoops. It gives them the flexibility to meet the demands that they deem most critical.

These funds have been used to reconstruct and rehabilitate housing and provide homeownership assistance and opportunity. In fact, between 1994 and 1996, over 640,000 housing units have been rehabilitated or constructed with CDBG funds—over 640,000 housing units. These are housing units typically for low-income Americans, for seniors, for people with disabilities. Without this type of investment, I daresay there would not be a lot of construction, particularly in some of the older neighborhoods in our cities and in rural areas. With these funds, we have been able to stimulate the kinds of construction and renovation and renewal that are so essential to the fabric of our communities.

These funds were also used to provide services related to the Welfare-to-Work Program. They are used to help assist in terms of drug suppression, to aid people with drug problems; child care monies are used and involved here; crime prevention and education—all of these programs would be subject to severe cuts.

They also assist tremendously community-based organizations, those organizations in rural areas and urban neighborhoods that are doing the job of trying to give people hope and opportunity and also leveraging private dollars to make sure that what we do has effect, not just here in Washington but on the streets of every city and every rural area of this country.

This program has many manifestations. In my home State of Rhode Island, in Bristol, they used CDBG money to fund the acquisition of basic medical examination equipment, to set up a clinic and a senior housing facility, providing better health care and doing it in a way which adds to the quality of life for these seniors.

In the State of New Mexico, they boast a new state-of-the-art facility to train students for jobs in high tech. This facility was funded with $600,000 in CDBG money. Again, it illustrates how flexible and useful these funds are, because they have been used by local communities to assist local training programs to meet local demands for certain types of employees. It is a very, very valuable program.

In South Carolina, CDBG funds were used for 27 economic development projects in rural areas, including such things as bringing water and sewer systems to communities that desperately needed them. Last year, approximately 4,000 communities throughout this country benefited from $4.6 billion in CDBG funding. Indeed, this funding alone leverages additional private investment. In fact, it has been estimated that for every $1 of CDBG money, there is $3 of private investment. As a result, last year, reasonably and, I think, conservatively, we estimate that the CDBG Program leveraged an additional $18.4 billion in private funds.

It also creates jobs, because when you invest in cities, when you invest in rural areas, when you do it in conjunction with other Federal programs, other State programs, you can create jobs. In fact, it has been estimated that in 1996, CDBG was responsible for creating about 133,000 jobs.

In view of all of this tremendous productivity, efficiency, and effectiveness, it seems to me remarkable and counterintuitive, indeed, that we would be cutting this program by about 78 percent, effectively rendering it useless.

There is another program that should be considered, too. That is the section 108 program. The section 108 program has been very critical to many urban areas in this country because what it does is, it allows cities to leverage their annual CDBG funds to borrow additional monies to increase the amount of investment dollars they have on hand for housing rehabilitation, for economic development, for public works projects. Indeed, it allows specifically a city or a community to take their CDBG allotment and leverage that for five times more dollars through this loan program. Securing their borrowing are the annual proceeds of their CDBG allocation.

I raise the question: What is going to happen to these communities if we slash this funding dramatically? I suggest that their financing situation would be critical. They would either have to find some other way to secure these loans, or they would have to immediately pay off these loans or they would be in default. This would be a staggering blow to many communities. Ultimately, what it would do, together with the cuts in the overall CDBG Program, it would drive up property taxes in many cities and rural areas.

The irony here is that we are using billions of dollars to cut Federal taxes, with the idea of providing tax relief, which, I think, in a way could drive up taxes in certain communities. In fact, we all know the property tax is much more regressive than income tax, than the Federal tax. We could have the unintended consequences, for many people throughout this country, of making their tax situation worse, depriving the cities of the opportunity to maintain a tax base, to stabilize it, and to attract new business, to attract new investment because of a stable tax base. This is absolutely bad policy, and it should be rejected.

Let us talk about another program that is subject to these draconian cuts. That is the Economic Development Administration. This agency provides valuable assistance, again, to States and communities so they can do projects which will accelerate their economic growth and create more jobs. In my home State of Rhode Island, we work closely with the EDA to provide funds to help us make the final cleanup and transition of a former Navy base, Quonset Point, Davisville, on Narragansett Bay, so they can be developed for industrial expansion. Without EDA grants to do things like extending sewer lines, taking down an obsolete water tower, the State would not be in a position, as it is today, to offer that property for economic development.

Again, this is a program which goes right to the direct needs of cities to create jobs and to invest in their communities and States and to do these types of investments. It would be reduced dramatically.

Brownfield redevelopment: We have brownfield redevelopment that is absolutely necessary for the urban areas of this country. It is necessary because we have areas that need environmental remediation, not only to make them more aesthetically pleasing but also to provide the opportunity for reinvestment, redevelopment for jobs; again, to strengthen the urban tax base and to do so in a way that creates jobs, increases the tax base, and also counteracts what is a growing problem everywhere, increasing urban sprawl. If we can revitalize and make attractive again parcels in center cities for commercial expansion, we will lessen the pressure on suburban areas. This, too, can be done and has to be done in conjunction with many things. One of them is the Brownfield Grant Program. That, too, is on the chopping block.

Lead hazard reduction grants: In my home State of Rhode Island, we have a major hazard with lead paint and children, a major public health problem, a public health problem that is one I think we are embarrassed to admit, but it is there. It is there particularly in older communities, not just in urban areas but older rural communities.

Most of the paint that was created years ago had a lead base. It was put up everywhere. Kids now are exposed to that paint and exposed to other sources of lead. It has been estimated that nearly 5 percent of American children, age 1 to 5, approximately 1 million children, suffer from lead paint poisoning. That is an outrage in this country.

Our programs to combat it, to reduce it, would be subject to severe limitations, because HUD's Office of Lead Hazard Control would not have the resources—the meager resources, I might add—today that they are using to try to help communities reduce the lead hazard throughout this country.

Now, these are just a sample of the programs that would be eviscerated by this proposed budget resolution, that would be reduced over the next 10 years, dramatically, would be rendered perhaps ineffectual and totally without purpose in many instances. That is why I think we have to restore these funds and do so by taking funds away from the proposed tax cuts that are embedded within this budget resolution.

There will be some procedural arguments, I am sure, raised about my amendment, perhaps budget points of order, but really I think what we have to consider here is the substance. We cannot afford to stop investing in our cities and our rural areas. This budget does precisely that. It says to America's cities and America's rural areas: We are no longer going to invest in you; you are on your own; good luck; but what we are going to do is reduce taxes, Federal taxes.

I don't think we should abandon our cities and our rural areas. Certainly my amendment could accommodate both—a tax cut, together with the continued investment in the rural areas of America and also in our urban centers.

I feel compelled to restore these cuts. I feel that the substance of this amendment should triumph over procedural rules that might be imposed against it. As we go forward, I hope that others will feel the same way, too, because, frankly, we are charting a course with this budget resolution that would, I think, lead to, if not the ruin of our cities and rural areas, certainly it would lead to the lack of progress that we have seen over the last several years.

I hope when this amendment is considered that it will be supported as a way in which we can send clearly a signal to all of our cities and to our rural areas: We will not abandon you; we will continue to support you; we will continue to share with you resources that you may use in your wisdom to improve the quality of life of your cities, of your rural areas and, in so doing, improve the quality of life of this great country.

I yield the floor.

Mr. CRAPO addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that we lay aside the pending amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

AMENDMENT NO. 163

(Purpose: To create a reserve fund to lock in additional non-Social Security surplus in the outyears for tax relief and/or debt reduction.)

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Idaho [Mr. CRAPO], for himself and Mr. GRAMS, proposes an amendment numbered 163.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. —. RESERVE FUND FOR INCREASED ON-BUDGET SURPLUS IN THE OUT-YEARS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Any additional on-budget surplus exceeding the level assumed in this resolution during the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2009 as reestimated by the Congressional Budget Office shall be reserved exclusively for tax relief or debt reduction.

(b) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may reduce the spending and revenue aggregates and may revise committee allocations by taking the additional amount of the on-budget surplus referred to in subsection (a) for tax relief or debt reduction in the period of fiscal year 2001 through 2009.

(c) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—When the Senate is considering a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that uses the additional on-budget surplus reserved in subsection (a) for additional Government spending other than tax relief or debt reduction, a point of order may be made by a Senator against the measure, and if the Presiding Officer sustains that point of order, it may not be offered as an amendment from the floor.

(2) SUPERMAJORITY.—This point of order may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the members, duly chosen and sworn.

(d) BUDGETARY ENFORCEMENT.—Revised allocations and aggregates under subsection (a) shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

Mr. CRAPO. I thank the Chair.

Mr. President, I am pleased tonight to join with my good friend, Senator GRAMS of Minnesota, in offering an amendment that will help provide taxpayers relief from their tax obligations, as well as debt reduction for the American people.

Back when Senator GRAMS and I both served in the House of Representatives together and, I might add, at the same time we served with you, Mr. President, in the House of Representatives, we noticed a very interesting peculiarity in the budget process: When the House or the Senate reduced spending or adjusted spending downward in the budget, all that really happened was those particular projects or programs were eliminated or reduced, but the spending never was reduced and the deficits that we were dealing with at that time never really was reduced.

The deficit spending did not end. All that happened was that through some very intricate budget processes, those reductions in spending got reallocated to other spending proposals.

So we came up with an idea back then called the lockbox. We passed it four times in the House of Representatives as an effort to try to make sure that when the House or the Senate reduced spending, that reduced spending went to reduce the deficit and was not slid over into or moved over into other spending.

Now we have reached a point at which we have actually ended the deficits that we were working on 4 or 5 years ago, and we are dealing with surpluses. But the lockbox concept has gained significant support and is now proving to be a very valuable tool in dealing with the budget in a surplus climate.

Today, we have already adopted a very important lockbox amendment relating to Social Security. It was offered by a number of Senators. The primary sponsor was Senator ABRAHAM. That amendment provided that Social Security surpluses would be locked away in a lockbox and would not be allowed to be spent by Congress on other spending, in essence. That was an important first step.

We are now debating many different aspects of a very important budget. There is a debate as to what to do with the Social Security surplus and, as I indicated, we made a big step today in locking up that surplus so that it does not get squandered by Congress in other areas. That will stabilize and strengthen the Social Security trust funds.

As you know, the debate today, tomorrow, and probably the rest of the week, will show there is a debate underway on whether to reduce the national debt or to engage in significant tax relief for the American people or whether to allocate some of the surplus to those needed and important areas, such as our national defense or education or Medicare and other areas of needed concern.

But among that debate, Senator GRAMS and I believe that it is very important that we focus on what is going to happen with the surpluses in the future.

Senator DOMENICI has shown courage in producing a budget that is going to protect Social Security, it is going to pay down the public debt, it is going to stay within the budget caps, and it is going to provide an opportunity for needed critical tax relief. But on July 15, 1999, the Congressional Budget Office is going to update its economic and budget forecast for the fiscal year 2000 and beyond.

It is our expectation that this report will forecast an onbudget surplus that is even in excess of the current CBO estimates. If this is true and if that develops and we see even larger surpluses than we are now expecting, and after we have now put together a budget that allocates it as we think proper among tax relief, debt retirement, needed spending on the items that I have indicated and protection of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds, and if we still see a growing surplus, we believe that this unanticipated surplus should be set aside, should be put into another lockbox and be authorized to be used for only further tax relief or further debt retirement.

Our amendment will create a lockbox, a reserve fund in addition to the non-Social Security surpluses so that we lock in the additional non-Social Security surpluses, and in the out-years 2001 through 2009, those additional unexpected surpluses that are non-Social Security surpluses would then be made available to be taken from this lockbox only for tax relief or debt retirement.

These excess surpluses could then benefit the American people in the best way possible and would then be protected from further raiding by Congress for big spending. These unanticipated surpluses could not be used for other types of proposals, and it would guarantee the American people that we would see the retirement of debt or the increase of tax relief as they have been asking for. We have had some other speeches recently on the floor tonight about the critical importance of recognizing the national debt that has grown over the last little while.

The Senator from Ohio talked about his grandchildren, and all of us have talked about the fact that our children and our grandchildren are today being expected to pay the debt that we have grown over the last few decades. That is wrong. This bill will help assure that these unanticipated surpluses, if they develop, will be utilized for that debt retirement.

What about the current quality of life? With the tax rates now the highest they have been in a peacetime circumstance in America, the only time tax rates have ever been higher in America is during war. We are now siphoning off from the economy so much for the excessive Federal spending that we are jeopardizing the current quality of life of our children and our grandchildren because their families have to pay such heavy and excessive tax burdens.

It is these two key problems—the excessive taxes and the excessive debt rate that we have in this country—to which we should dedicate these unanticipated surpluses. Taxes are still too high and still too cumbersome and still impact America's working families too heavily. I urge all our colleagues to support this needed and valuable amendment. It would utilize the critical lockbox concept to put into place one more parameter on our budget negotiations this year to assure if our economy does stay strong and we see those surpluses in the future we do not now anticipate, that we can set them aside for retirement of our national debt and reduction of the tax burden on all Americans.

I yield the floor at this time to my good colleague from Minnesota, because I know he is here and would like to speak further on this issue.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota is recognized.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I rise to strongly support the tax relief and debt reduction lockbox amendment offered by my good friend, Senator CRAPO of Idaho. We have worked a long time together, as he mentioned, both in the House and now in the Senate. We need to continue to push these efforts to reduce the tax burdens on Americans.

This amendment would lock in any additional non-Social Security surplus into the outyears for tax relief and/or for debt reduction.

Before I speak on this amendment, I would like to take this opportunity to commend Chairman DOMENICI for his leadership in crafting and delivering this well-balanced budget. I believe this budget blueprint is a great achievement of this Congress and it will ensure our continued economic growth and prosperity as we move into the next century.

Mr. President, protecting Social Security, reducing the national debt and reducing taxes are imperative for our economic security and growth. Our strong economy has offered us an historic opportunity to achieve this three-pronged goal.

Chairman DOMENICI has ably showed us in his budget how we can provide major tax relief while still preserving Social Security and dramatically reducing the national debt.

President Clinton has proposed to spend over $158 billion of the Social Security surplus in his budget over the next 5 years for unrelated Government programs, instead of protecting Social Security.

This budget includes a safe-deposit box to lock in every penny of the $1.8 trillion Social Security surplus earned in the next 10 years to be used exclusively for Social Security.

Stopping the Government from raiding the Social Security Trust Fund is an essential first step to ensure that Social Security will be there for current beneficiaries, baby boomers and our children and grandchildren. I am pleased that this is the No. 1 priority under this budget.

It is also notable, Mr. President, that under this budget, the debt held by the public will be reduced dramatically, much more than what President Clinton has proposed in his budget.

This budget also reserves nearly $800 billion of the projected non-Social Security surplus—the tax overpayments of working Americans—for tax relief. This is the largest tax relief that has been enacted since the leadership of President Ronald Reagan.

As one who has long championed major tax relief, I am pleased that we have finally achieved some meaningful proposal in reducing our tax burden again.

Not only does this budget fund all the functions of the Government, but it also significantly increases funding for our budget priorities, such as defense, for education, for Medicare, for agriculture, and others.

In addition, Mr. President, unlike President Clinton's budget, which has broken the spending caps by over $22 billion, this budget maintains the fiscal discipline by retaining the spending caps.

There are those who claim we cannot avoid breaking the caps as we proceed to reconcile this budget. But I say if we do our job to oversee Government programs, we will know which areas can be streamlined and which program funding can be better shifted to new priorities. Let's make sure we do our job to justify all Government funds are wisely spent.

I am particularly pleased, Mr. President, that this budget has included one of my proposals which would allow us to lock in for immediate tax relief any additional on-budget surplus as re-estimated in July by the Congressional Budget Office of fiscal year 2000.

I believe this amendment offered by Senator CRAPO and myself is solid protection for the American taxpayers. I thank Chairman DOMENICI also for including my proposal in his budget as well.

As the economy continues to be strong, we may have more revenue windfalls to come in the outyears that are above and beyond what this budget resolution has assumed. We also need to lock in these windfalls and we also need to return these tax overpayments to hard-working Americans.

The logic for this amendment is fairly simple. Despite a shrinking Federal deficit and a predicted on-budget surplus, the total tax burden on working Americans is at an all-time high. It is still imperative to provide major tax relief for working Americans and address our long-term fiscal imbalances.

We need to give back any additional on-budget surplus generated by economic growth to working Americans, and we need to do it in the form of tax relief and debt reduction.

That is exactly what our amendment intends to achieve. This amendment would lock in any additional non-Social Security surplus—again, not Social Security surplus, but income tax surplus—that may be generated in the outyears which exceed the levels assumed under this budget.

All we are saying is, if our economic growth produces more increased revenues than we expect, these revenues should be reserved and protected for the taxpayers in the form of tax relief and/or debt reduction. It should not be there for the Government to spend it as it pleases.

One question we should ask ourselves before we decide how to spend any non-Social Security surplus is where the budget surplus comes from. The CBO has showed us precisely where we will get our revenues in the next 10 years.

The data indicates that the greatest share of the projected budget surplus comes directly from income taxes paid by the taxpayers. Again, this is their money. There is no excuse not to reserve it and then return it to the people who paid it.

If we don't lock in this surplus to the taxpayers, we all know that Washington will soon spend it all, leaving nothing for tax relief or the vitally important task of maintaining our long-term fiscal health.

Such spending will only enlarge the Government. It will only make it even more expensive to support in the future. And it will create an even higher tax burden than working Americans bear today.

Mr. President, I applaud the creation of the safe-deposit box for future Social Security surpluses to protect retirement security for our Nation's retirees.

But I also believe we need to create a safe-deposit box of a similar mechanism to lock in any additional on-budget surplus for tax relief and/or debt reduction beyond the fiscal year 2000 reestimate that is in the resolution.

The Congressional Budget Office reports that by 2012, we will have eliminated all the debt held by the public and we will begin to accumulate assets. By 2020, the share of net assets to GDP is expected to reach 12 percent. This is great news.

However, I believe we should use some of the on-budget surplus from the general fund to accelerate debt reduction. Currently we pay about $220 billion a year in interest. We saw from Senator VOINOVICH, in his charts, tonight how much we are spending every year just to pay the interest on the debt.

The sooner we eliminate the debt, the more revenue we will have in hand to reform Social Security, to reduce our tax burden and to finance our priority programs. This amendment will help us to achieve that goal.

We have also heard some say that Americans do not want tax relief. I hear that often: "Americans don't want tax relief." Clearly they are completely out of touch with working Americans, and this is not what I hear when I listen to Minnesotans when I am at home.

A poll conducted by Pew Research Center shows that 53 percent of the American people say that the budget surplus should be used for a tax cut. Fifty-three percent want a tax cut. Only 34 percent say that it should be used for additional Government programs.

An Associated Press poll taken by ICR is even more specific. The following question was asked:

President Clinton and Congress have predicted big budget surpluses in the next few years. Both sides want to set aside more than half of the surplus to bolster Social Security, but they disagree on how to spend the rest.

The question goes on:

Which one of the following uses of the remainder of the surplus do you favor most: paying down the national debt, cutting taxes, or spending more on government programs?

The results of that survey: 49 percent said cutting taxes, 35 percent said to pay down the debt, and only 13 percent said that they wanted to spend more on Government programs.

There was another question that was also asked. And the question was:

Some Republicans want a 10% tax cut for everyone. President Clinton prefers tax credits for specific things like child care or taking care of disabled parents. Which approach do you like better?

And the answer: 50 percent said they want a 10-percent cut for everyone, 44 percent want tax credits for specific things.

Mr. President, Americans' message is loud and clear. They want—and deserve—major tax relief.

Again, my biggest fear is that without the lockbox, the Government will spend the entire additional on-budget surplus generated by working Americans. Last year's omnibus appropriations legislation was a prime example of how the Social Security surplus was spent by Congress.

This year's supplemental threatens to be equally abusive if we cannot agree on any offsets.

Mr. President, as I conclude tonight, we must protect the interests of our taxpayers. We must secure the future for our children's prosperity. This amendment would allow families, again, the opportunity to keep just a little more of their own money and to provide a good downpayment on debt relief. I urge my colleagues strongly to support this amendment.

Thank you very much. I yield the floor.

Mr. CRAPO addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate from Idaho.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to a period of morning business, with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ALLEGATIONS OF SPYING AT LOS ALAMOS, SANDIA, AND LAWRENCE LIVERMORE LABORATORIES

Mr. DOMENICI. Mr. President, for decades Los Alamos, Sandia, and Lawrence Livermore have attracted the greatest scientists in the world. That has not changed with the end of the Cold War; the knowledge and skills in those laboratories are unequaled in the world and the envy of the world—for that reason, others will always try to gain that information. The directors and scientists have, since the inception of the laboratories, been cognizant of the fact that they are the target of spying.

As we consider how to respond to these recent allegations—and some steps have been taken including: the initiation of an aggressive counter-intelligence program at the laboratories that has had its funding increase substantially in the last 24 months and we have halted a declassification initiative until its implementation can be reviewed—we have to ensure that our actions do not undermine the excellence of the laboratories.

Interactions with experts outside the laboratories and outside the United States are critical to the pursuit of scientific knowledge and underpin the vitality of the laboratories. Cutting off those interactions will cause the capabilities at the laboratories to fade with time until, at some point, no one would spy on our labs there wouldn't be anything worthwhile in them.

I have been briefed by:

The Director of Central Intelligence;

The Director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation;

Department of Energy officials, and others on the recent allegations of spying by the Chinese at Los Alamos National Laboratory. I will await the final report of the panel of experts appointed by the Administration before I assess what damage has been done by this latest episode, but some facts are evident.

We do know, without doubt, that China's intelligence program against the United States has yielded some results—they have gained access to classified nuclear weapons design information. However, we do not know how much information they have gained or how much that information benefited their nuclear weapons program.

I must also say that it is unclear how China gained that information. The Chinese do target our nuclear weapons laboratories, but they also target other potential sources of the same information including other parts of the government, its contractors, and the military branches.

It is also unclear how useful information China may have gained, about the W-88 in particular, is to China. The W-88 is extremely advanced; the product of fifty years of our best scientific and engineering know-how. In many ways, China's nuclear weapons program is not capable of utilizing the W-88 design.

That is not reassuring when you look out over the coming decades, and in any case, knowing where our years of work led our designers will allow the Chinese to avoid some of the mistakes we made, but the Chinese do not currently have warheads anything like the W-88.

Despite the fact that the Chinese capability today does not come anywhere near matching ours, the Chinese nuclear weapons program is threatening. China does share its nuclear weapons technology with others along with its missile technology, and it continues to develop more advanced nuclear weapons designs.

Chinese nuclear capabilities threaten its neighbors and limit the opportunities to pursue broad arms control agreements—for example, Russian negotiations on a START III treaty will be strongly influenced by the growing Chinese capability on Russia's eastern border, and India continues to develop more advanced nuclear weapons partly in response to China's program.

I will say very little about the allegations against a specific scientist at Los Alamos. However, given what we know about China's intelligence program, it is not unreasonable to assume that scientists at all three weapons labs have knowingly or unknowingly been approached to provide classified information to China or its intermediaries. The laboratories are cognizant of that threat. Frankly, I don't know if the steps the laboratories, working with the Department of Energy and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, are taking are sufficient to prevent espionage at our laboratories.

I have met with Director Freeh I, and he assures me that the FBI is doing all it can in this regard. I am certain that, no matter what steps we take, the Chinese and others will continue their efforts.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Tuesday, March 23, 1999, the federal debt stood at $5,645,199,129,224.03 (Five trillion, six hundred forty-five billion, one hundred ninety-nine million, one hundred twenty-nine thousand, two hundred twenty-four dollars and three cents).

One year ago, March 23, 1998, the federal debt stood at $5,539,833,000,000 (Five trillion, five hundred thirty-nine billion, eight hundred thirty-three million).

Five years ago, March 23, 1994, the federal debt stood at $4,559,372,000,000 (Four trillion, five hundred fifty-nine billion, three hundred seventy-two million).

Ten years ago, March 23, 1989, the federal debt stood at $2,737,055,000,000 (Two trillion, seven hundred thirty-seven billion, fifty-five million).

Fifteen years ago, March 23, 1984, the federal debt stood at $1,465,084,000,000 (One trillion, four hundred sixty-five billion, eighty-four million) which reflects a debt increase of more than $4 trillion—$4,180,115,129,224.03 (Four trillion, one hundred eighty billion, one hundred fifteen million, one hundred twenty-nine thousand, two hundred twenty-four dollars and three cents) during the past 15 years.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 21

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I regret that because of my father's funeral in Mississippi yesterday, I was not present in the Senate to vote on S. Con. Res. 21, authorizing the President of the United States to conduct military air operations and missile strikes against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (Serbia and Montenegro). Had I been present, I would have voted "aye" on the resolution.

The authorization is carefully limited and is designed to permit the participation of military forces of the United States, in concert with NATO allies, in an action to respond to a clear threat to the security and stability of Europe and indirectly to our own security interests.

It is my hope that this action will serve to signal the willingness of the United States government to keep its commitments under the NATO treaty and to be a force for peace and freedom in the region sought to be protected by the alliance.

FRANCESCO (GHEIB) GHEBRESILLASSIE RETIRES

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, Francesco Ghebresillassie plans to retire after 32 years of service to the Senate. That is quite a record, and it deserves notices from those of us who depend so heavily upon—and are never disappointed by—Gheib and the men and women who work with him.

Since 1987, he has been Manager of the Production Services Branch of Central Operations under the Sergeant at Arms. In that role, he has supervised all the activities of the Micrographics and Production Services sections. He came to that post step by step, working his way from machine operator to computer operator to shift supervisor. By 1975, he was responsible for two work shifts and for the operations in two buildings.

Thereafter, as Hardware Manager, he was responsible for keeping the Senate current with technological changes in the computer arena, refining our procedures, and working with vendors. Later on, as User Support Manager and Production Services Manager, he emphasized quality service to the staff who sit at the thousands of computers within our Senate offices. He has been responsible for interaction with them, and has improved the tech support they have needed to deal with the rapid pace of change in the cyber world. Gheib has also supervised the staff who maintain our microfilm documents for posterity.

Needless to say, today's Senate is quite a different institution from the one to which Gheib came in 1967. One of the ways it has changed for the better has been the technological modernization of which Gheib has been a part. Because of his labors, and the diligence of those who have worked with him over the years, we have been able to better serve the folks back home in ways that were not possible three decades ago.

As we congratulate Gheib on his retirement, I want to also acknowledge his wife, Theresa, who works for our colleague from Wisconsin, Senator KOHL. We wish for them and for their daughters, Lisa and Ayesha, all the good things the future can bring.

CONNIE SULLIVAN RETIRES

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, Connie Sullivan, who has served as Reprographic Manager in the Service Department since 1989, plans to retire in June. This will be a significant loss for the Senate. For the past decade, she has been responsible for all phases of the Reprographics Division—more recently known as Printing, Graphics, and Direct Mail—within the Sergeant at Arms office.

Connie has been with the Senate for 24 years. She came here in February, 1975 from the House of Representatives as a Composer Technician in the newly created "Composing Room," which was part of the Printing Section of our Department. You can imagine the technological changes Connie has seen since then, when she was asked to assume the duties of Composer with oversight for all the typesetting and layout functions of the Composing Room.

In the restructuring of the Service Department in 1984, when the Composing Room became the Pre-Press Section, Connie was promoted to supervisor. In a subsequent reorganization in 1986, she was again promoted to Operations Branch Head. That was a well-deserved recognition of her long experience with the growth and integration of services and, especially, the development of the Pre-Press section from conventional typesetting and layout to desk-top publishing and a full-color graphics operations.

In that regard, Connie has been one of the people who have helped the Senate enter fully into the information age. We are able to keep in closer touch with our constituents, and they with us, and that has a positive impact on just about everything we do here.

So on behalf of the Senate, I want to thank Connie for all her years of service and wish her many happy years of time with her family, her garden, and the enduring satisfaction of a job well done.

RUSSELL JACKSON RETIRES

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, there are today only four Senators who were here in 1965 when Russell Jackson first came to the Senate to work as an elevator operator. He has observed this institution, both its changes and its continuity, for a long, long time. Now, as he retires as Senior Manager of Central Operations, I want to thank him, on behalf of the entire Senate, for a lifetime of service.

Early on, Russell interrupted his work here for a different kind of service, in the U.S. Army, but he returned to the Senate to work with the Office of the Superintendent. Within that Office, he worked his way up the ladder by doing it all: evening shift, day shift, staff assistant, supervisor, office manager, and senior service officer.

Within the confines of the Senate family, we all know how important is the coordination of office moves, the maintenance of our furniture inventory, and all the other operations of the Superintendent's Office. Russell had a hand in it all, and also served as liaison between the Superintendent and our Senate offices.

Since 1987, Russell has been Director of the Service Department, a division that is little known to the outside world but so essential to all of us in the Senate. His leadership there brought technological changes to meet the Senate's increasing demands for charts, graphs, exhibits, and the enormous amount of daily work that keeps our offices in contact with constituents and the media. At the same time, he updated personnel practices to boost both productivity and morale, and to open advancement opportunities through an evaluation process and cross training for staff.

The Senate, and the constituents whom we are here to serve, owe him a debt of gratitude. And I know my colleagues join me in wishing him a wonderful retirement.

KOSOVO

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, at this moment, U.S. forces under NATO command are conducting air strikes against Serbia. And they have my full support and endorsement as they go into battle. We all hope that bombing Serbia ends the cycle of violence between the Serbs and ethnic Albanians in that region.

Yesterday, I voted against authorizing the use of force because the President refused to explain to Congress and the American people how his goals would be achieved by bombing, and what our plan would be after the bombing stops—if Milosevic refuses to yield. I still do not see how bombing Serbia will bring about peace or end the atrocities being committed. I do not see how bombing Serbia will lead to the Administration's goals of greater political autonomy to Kosovo, the withdrawal of most Serbian military forces, protection of minorities, and a more equitable ethnic representation among local police. That being said, I fully support our troops and I'm confident they will carry out their mission successfully.

We should all support our troops and hope that we have not started down a slippery slope where the President insists that in order to protect our credibility or NATO's credibility we have to send in U.S. ground troops. The U.S. officially recognizes that Kosovo is part of Serbia, which along with Montenegro, forms the sovereign state of the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia. And Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic has made it clear that Serbia does not want foreign troops on its soil. President Clinton, however, is bombing Serbia in order to force Serbia to agree to a peace accord which U.S. troops would be put on the ground to enforce—as an occupation force, not a peacekeeping force.

There is an ongoing civil war between the Serbs and the ethnic Albanians and the combatants have not exhausted their will to fight. So when the President talks about sending 4,000 American military men and women to Kosovo, he is talking about making peace not keeping peace. The Kosovo Liberation Army is fighting for independence; the Serbs are fighting for complete control by Belgrade. While the Kosovars have accepted the U.S.-supported plan, neither side enthusiastically embraces the U.S.-supported plan of limited autonomy. This is a recipe for disaster.

The President's decision to use NATO to attack Serbia fundamentally changes the nature of NATO. NATO has never attacked a country that has not threatened its neighbors or a member of the alliance. I do not think we should fundamentally change the nature of one of the most successful military alliances in history without a debate.

Mr. President, I support our troops. And the best way that I can support them at this time is to declare that I will do everything in my power to make sure that U.S. troops are not put on the ground in Kosovo.

TRIBUTE TO CAPTAIN DOROTHY C. STRATTON

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President I rise today to recognize the outstanding accomplishments and distinguished service of Captain Dorothy C. Stratton, U.S. Coast Guard Reserve (Ret), on this her 100th birthday. She has served her country with honor as an educator, naval officer and public official.

Born in Brookfield, Missouri, Captain Stratton earned a Bachelor of Arts from Ottawa University in Ottawa, Kansas; a Master of Arts in Psychology from the University of Chicago; and a Doctorate of Philosophy in Student Personnel Administration from Columbia University. Captain Stratton joined Purdue University as the Dean of Women and Associate Professor of Psychology in 1933, becoming a full professor in 1940.

In June, 1942, with our nation embroiled in war, Professor Stratton left Purdue to join the Women Appointed Volunteer Emergency Service (WAVES). She was assigned as the Assistant to the Commanding Officer of the U.S. Naval Training Station in Madison, Wisconsin. Due to the military's pressing need for personnel, Congress authorized the Women's Reserve of the U.S. Coast Guard. The Act creating the Women's Reserve was signed into law by President Roosevelt on November 23, 1942, and within hours, Stratton became the first director of the new organization. She was the first female officer accepted for service in the history of the U.S. Coast Guard. She rose from Lieutenant Commander to the rank of Commander on January 1, 1944 and to the rank of Captain one month later.

One of Captain Stratton's first acts as Director of the U.S. Coast Guard Women's Reserve was to coin the famous name that would distinguish them from the Navy WAVES and the Army WACS. In a memo to the Commandant ADM Russell R. Waesche, Stratton explained: "The motto of the Coast Guard is 'Semper Paratus—Always Ready.' The initials of this motto are of course, SPAR. Why not call the members of the Women's Reserve SPARS? . . . As I understand it, a spar is often a supporting beam and that is what we hope each member of the Women's Reserve will be." Admiral Waesche agreed, and the rest, as they say, is history.

Captain Stratton led over 10,000 volunteers who responded to their nation's call for help between 1942 and 1946. She completed her service as Director of the SPARS in January, 1946 and was awarded the Legion of Merit. She then served as Director of Personnel for the International Monetary Fund from 1946 to 1950, and as the National Executive Director of the Girl Scouts of America from 1950 to 1960.

Mr. President, I wish to congratulate Captain Dorothy Stratton and to thank her for all she has done for this great country of ours. She is a shining example to us all, and it is truly a pleasure to wish her a happy birthday today.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT

Messages from the President of the United States were communicated to the Senate by Mr. Williams, one of his secretaries.

EXECUTIVE MESSAGES REFERRED

As in executive session the Presiding Officer laid before the Senate messages from the President of the United States submitting sundry nominations which were referred to the appropriate committees.

(The nominations received today are printed at the end of the Senate proceedings.)

MESSAGES FROM THE HOUSE

At 1:00 p.m., a message from the House of Representatives, delivered by Mr. Hays, one of its reading clerks, announced that the House has passed the following bills and joint resolutions, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H.R. 4. An act to declare it to be the policy of the United States to deploy a national missile defense.

H.R. 70. An act to amend title 38, United States Code, to enact into law eligibility requirements for burial in Arlington National Cemetery, and for other purposes.

H.R. 130. An act to designate the United States courthouse located at 40 Centre Street in New York, New York, as the "Thurgood Marshall United States Courthouse."

H.R. 416. An act to provide for the rectification of certain retirement coverage errors affecting Federal employees, and for other purposes.

H.R. 751. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at 504 West Hamilton Street in Allentown, Pennsylvania, as the "Edward N. Cahn Federal Building and United States Court-house."

H.R. 1212. An act to protect producers of agricultural commodities who applied for a Crop Revenue Coverage PLUS supplemental endorsement for the 1999 crop year.

H.J. Res. 26. Joint resolution providing for the reappointment of Barber B. Conable, Jr. as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian.

H.J. Res. 27. Joint resolution providing for the reappointment of Dr. Hanna H. Gray as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

H.J. Res. 28. Joint resolution providing for the reappointment of Wesley S. Williams, Jr. as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

The message also announced that the House has agreed to the following concurrent resolutions, in which it requests the concurrence of the Senate:

H. Con. Res. 37. Concurrent resolution concerning anti-Semitic statements made by members of the Duma of the Russian Federation.

H. Con. Res. 44. Concurrent resolution authorizing the use of the Capitol Grounds for the 18th annual National Peace Officers' Memorial Service.

H. Con. Res. 47. Concurrent resolution authorizing the use of the Capitol Grounds for the Greater Washington Soap Box Derby.

H. Con. Res. 50. Concurrent resolution authorizing the 1999 District of Columbia Special Olympics Law Enforcement Torch Run to be run through the Capitol Grounds.

H. Con. Res. 52. Concurrent resolution authorizing the use of the East Front of the Capitol Grounds for performances sponsored by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

H. Con. Res. 56. Concurrent resolution commemorating the 20th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act.

The message further announced that the House has passed the following bill, without amendment:

S. 314. An act to provide for a loan guarantee program to address the Year 2000 computer problems of small business concerns, and for other purposes.

The message also announced that pursuant to the provisions of 15 U.S.C. 1024(a), the Speaker appoints the following Members of the House Joint Economic Committee: Mr. SANFORD of South Carolina, Mr. DOOLITTLE of California, Mr. CAMPBELL of California, Mr. PITTS of Pennsylvania, and Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin.

The message further announced that pursuant to section 3 of Public Law 94-304, as amended by section 1 of Public Law 99-7, the Speaker appoints the following Members of the House to the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe: Mr. HOYER of Maryland, Mr. MARKEY of Massachusetts, Mr. CARDIN of Maryland, and Ms. SLAUGHTER of New York.

The message also announced that pursuant to the section 2(a) of the National Cultural Center Act (20 U.S.C. 76h(a)), the Speaker appoints the following Member of the House to the Board of Trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts: Mr. GEPHARDT of Missouri.

The message further announced that pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 96-388, as amended by Public Law

97-84 (36 U.S.C. 1402(a)), the Speaker appoints the following Members of the House to the United States Holocaust Memorial Council: Mr. LANTOS of California, and Mr. FROST of Texas.

The message also announced that the House agrees to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 68) to amend section 20 of the Small Business Act and make technical corrections in title III of the Small Business Investment Act.

MEASURES REFERRED

The following bill was read the first and second times by unanimous consent and referred as indicated:

H.R. 70. An act to amend title 38, United States Code, to enact into law eligibility requirements for burial in Arlington National Cemetery, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Veterans Affairs.

H.R. 130. An act to designate the United States courthouse located 40 Centre Street in New York, New York, as the "Thurgood Marshall United States Courthouse"; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

H.R. 416. An act to provide for the rectification of certain retirement coverage errors affecting Federal employees, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

H.R. 751. An act to designate the Federal building and United States courthouse located at 504 West Hamilton Street in Allentown, Pennsylvania, as the "Edward N. Cahn Federal Building and United States Courthouse"; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

The following concurrent resolutions were read and referred as indicated:

H. Con. Res. 37. Concurrent resolution concerning anti-Semitic statements made by members of the Duma of the Russian Federation; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

H. Con. Res. 56. Concurrent resolution commemorating the 20th anniversary of the Taiwan Relations Act; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

MEASURE PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

The following bill was read the first and second times and placed on the calendar:

H.R. 4. An act to declare it to be the policy of the United States to deploy a national missile defense.

EXECUTIVE AND OTHER COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications were laid before the Senate, together with accompanying papers, reports, and documents, which were referred as indicated:

EC-2302. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Revision of Class E Airspace; Pampa, TX" (Docket 98-ASW-57) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2303. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; Boeing Model 737-100, -200, -200C, -300, -400, and -500 Series Airplanes" (Docket 99-NM-09-AD) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2304. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; Boeing Model 757 Series Airplanes" (Docket 96-NM-12-AD) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2305. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Airworthiness Directives; British Aerospace Model BAC 1-11 200 and 400 Series Airplanes" (Docket 98-NM-27-AD) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2306. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Amendment to Class E Airspace; Garden City, KS" (Docket 98-ACE-59) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2307. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Amendment to Class E Airspace; Liberal, KS" (Docket 98-ACE-60) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2308. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Amendment to Class E Airspace; Lebanon, MO" (Docket 98-ACE-10) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2309. A communication from the Program Analyst, Office of the Chief Counsel, Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Amendment to Class E Airspace; Stockton, MO" (Docket 99-ACE-7) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2310. A communication from the Chief of Regulations and Administrative Law, United States Coast Guard, Department of Transportation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Safety Zone: Storrow Drive Connector Bridge (Central Artery Tunnel Project), Charles River, Boston, MA" (Docket 01-99-015) received on March 8, 1999; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

EC-2311. A communication from the Director of the Office of Regulatory Management and Information, Environmental Protection Agency, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Control of Air Pollution From New Motor Vehicles; Compliance Programs for New Light-Duty Vehicles and Light Trucks" (FRL6312-9) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2312. A communication from the Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, Department of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Regulations for Administrative and Visitor Facility Sites on National Wildlife Refuges in Alaska" (RIN1018-AE21) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2313. A communication from the Assistant Secretary for Fish and Wildlife and Parks, Department of the Interior, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Seasonal Closure of the Moose Range Meadows Public Access Easements in the Kenai National Wildlife Refuge" (RIN1018-AE58) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

EC-2314. A communication from the Secretary of Energy, transmitting, a draft of proposed legislation entitled "The Energy Policy and Conservation Act Amendments"; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

EC-2315. A communication from the Secretary of Energy, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Department's report on the Price-Anderson Act; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

EC-2316. A communication from the President and Chief Executive Officer of the Overseas Private Investment Corporation, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Corporation's Annual Performance Plan for fiscal year 2000; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

EC-2317. A communication from the Administrator of the U.S. Agency for International Development, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Agency's Annual Performance Plan for fiscal year 2000; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

EC-2318. A communication from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Department's report on the National Institutes of Health Loan Repayment Program for Research Generally for 1998; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

EC-2319. A communication from the Assistant Secretary for Civil Rights, Department of Education, transmitting, pursuant to law, the annual report of the Office for Civil Rights for fiscal year 1998; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

EC-2320. A communication from the Director of the Regulations Policy and Management Staff, Food and Drug Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "List of Drug Products That Have Been Withdrawn or Removed From the Market for Reasons of Safety or Effectiveness" (Docket 98N-0655) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

EC-2321. A communication from the Assistant Secretary of Labor, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Dipping and Coating Operations" (RIN1218-AB55) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

EC-2322. A communication from the Secretary of the Federal Trade Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Commission's Annual Report to Congress for fiscal year 1998; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

EC-2323. A communication from the Administrator of the Panama Canal Commission, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Commission's annual report under the Freedom of Information Act for fiscal year 1998; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

EC-2324. A communication from the Rules Administrator of the Federal Bureau of Prisons, Department of Justice, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Birth Control, Pregnancy, Child Placement, and Abortion" (RIN1120-AA31) received on March 4, 1999; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

EC-2325. A communication from the Director of the Policy Directives and Instructions

Branch, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Nonimmigrant Visa Exemption for Certain Nationals of the British Virgin Islands Entering the United States Through St. Thomas, United States Virgin Islands" (RIN1115-AF28) received on February 18, 1999; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

EC-2326. A communication from the Executive Director of the Committee for Purchase From People Who are Blind or Severely Disabled, transmitting, pursuant to law, a list of additions to the Committee's Procurement List dated March 10, 1999; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

EC-2327. A communication from the Director of the United States Office of Personnel Management, transmitting, a draft of proposed legislation entitled "The Retirement Coverage Error Correction Act"; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

EC-2328. A communication from the Secretary of Health and Human Services, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Department's report entitled "Electrocardiogram Transportation Payments"; to the Committee on Finance.

EC-2329. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Determination of Issue Price in the Case of Certain Debt Instruments Issued for Property" (Rev. Rul. 99-17) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Finance.

EC-2330. A communication from the Chief of the Regulations Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Department of the Treasury, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Examination of Returns and Claims for Refund, Credit, or Abatement; Determination of Correct Tax Liability" (Rev. Proc. 99-19) received on March 17, 1999; to the Committee on Finance.

EC-2331. A communication from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Department's report on an estimation that the limitation on the Government National Mortgage Association's authority to make commitments for fiscal year 1999 will be reached before the end of the year; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-2332. A communication from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Office of Public and Indian Housing, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Public Housing Agency Plans" (RIN2577-AB89) received on March 18, 1999; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-2333. A communication from the Assistant General Counsel for Regulations, Office of Housing, Department of Housing and Urban Development, transmitting, pursuant to law, the report of a rule entitled "Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act (RESPA) Statement of Policy 1999-1 Regarding Lender Payments to Mortgage Brokers" (RIN2502-AH33) received on March 18, 1999; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

EC-2334. A communication from the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Environmental Security, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Defense Environmental Response Task Force report for fiscal year 1998; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2335. A communication from the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Science and Technology, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Annual Report of the Strategic Environmental Research and Development Program for fiscal year 1998; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2336. A communication from the Deputy Under Secretary of Defense for Science and Technology, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Annual Report of the Scientific Advisory Board of the Strategic Environmental Research and Development Program; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2337. A communication from the Director of the Office of the Secretary of Defense, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Department's report entitled "Extraordinary Contractual Actions to Facilitate the National Defense"; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2338. A communication from the Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology, transmitting, pursuant to law, the Department's "Report on Restructuring Costs Associated with Business Combinations" dated March 1, 1999; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EC-2339. A communication from the General Counsel of the Department of Defense, transmitting, a draft of proposed legislation entitled "The Military Pay and Retirement Reform Act"; to the Committee on Armed Services.

EXECUTIVE REPORT OF COMMITTEE

The following executive report of committee was submitted on March 24, 1999:

By Mr. HELMS, from the Committee on Foreign Relations:

Treaty Doc. 104-6 (Exec. Rept. 106-1)

TEXT OF THE COMMITTEE RECOMMENDED
RESOLUTION OF ADVICE AND CONSENT

Resolved (two-thirds of the Senators present concurring therein),

SECTION 1. SENATE ADVICE AND CONSENT SUBJECT TO CONDITIONS AND UNDERSTANDINGS.

The Senate advises and consents to the ratification of the Convention on Nuclear Safety, done at Vienna on September 20, 1994 (Senate Treaty Document 104-6), subject to the conditions of section 2 and the understandings of section 3.

SEC. 2. CONDITIONS.

The advice and consent of the Senate to ratification of the Convention on Nuclear Safety is subject to the following conditions, which shall be binding upon the President:

(1) CERTIFICATION ON THE ELIMINATION OF DUPLICATIVE ACTIVITIES.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 45 days after the deposit of the United States instrument of ratification, the President shall certify to the appropriate committees of Congress that the United States Government will not engage in any multilateral activity in the field of international nuclear regulation or nuclear safety that unnecessarily duplicates a multilateral activity undertaken pursuant to the Convention.

(B) LIMITATION.—The United States shall not contribute to or participate in the operation of the Convention other than by depositing the United States instrument of ratification until the certification required by subparagraph (A) has been made.

(2) COMMITMENT TO REVIEW REPORTS.—Not later than 45 days after the deposit of the United States instrument of ratification, the President shall certify to the appropriate committees of Congress that the United States will comment in each review meeting held under Article 20 of the Convention (including each meeting of a subgroup) upon aspects of safety significance in any report submitted pursuant to Article 5 of the Convention by any State Party that is receiving United States financial or technical assistance relating to the improvement in safety of its nuclear installations.

(3) LIMITATION ON THE COST OF IMPLEMENTATION.—

(A) LIMITATION.—Notwithstanding any provision of the Convention, and subject to the requirements of subparagraphs (B), (C), (D), and (E), the United States shall pay no more than $1,000,000 as the portion of the United States annual assessed contribution to the International Atomic Energy Agency attributable to the payment of the costs incurred by the Agency in carrying out all activities under the Convention.

(B) RECALCULATION OF LIMITATION.—

(i) IN GENERAL.—On January 1, 2000, and at 3-year intervals thereafter, the Administrator of General Services, in consultation with the Secretary of State, shall prescribe an amount that shall apply in lieu of the amount specified in subparagraph (A) and that shall be determined by adjusting the last amount applicable under that subparagraph to reflect the percentage increase by which the Consumer Price Index for the preceding calendar year exceeds the Consumer Price Index for the calendar year three years previously.

(ii) CONSUMER PRICE INDEX DEFINED.—In this subparagraph, the term "Consumer Price Index" means the last Consumer Price Index for all-urban consumers published by the Department of Labor.

(C) ADDITIONAL CONTRIBUTIONS REQUIRING CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL.—

(i) AUTHORITY.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), the President may furnish additional contributions to the regular budget of the International Atomic Energy Agency which would otherwise be prohibited under subparagraph (A) if—

(I) the President determines and certifies in writing to the appropriate committees of Congress that the failure to make such contributions for the operation of the Convention would jeopardize the national security interests of the United States; and

(II) Congress enacts a joint resolution approving the certification of the President under subclause (I).

(i) STATEMENT OF REASONS.—Any certification made under clause (i) shall be accompanied by a detailed statement setting forth the specific reasons therefor and the specific uses to which the additional contributions provided to the International Atomic Energy Agency would be applied.

(4) COMPLETE REVIEW OF INFORMATION BY THE LEGISLATIVE BRANCH OF GOVERNMENT.—

(A) UNDERSTANDING.—The United States understands that neither Article 27 nor any other provision of the Convention shall be construed as limiting the access of the legislative branch of the United States Government to any information relating to the operation of the Convention, including access to information described in Article 27 of the Convention.

(B) PROTECTION OF INFORMATION.—The Senate understands that the confidentiality of information provided by other States Parties that is properly identified as protected pursuant to Article 27 of the Convention will be respected.

(C) CERTIFICATION.—Not later than 45 days after the deposit of the United States instrument of ratification, the President shall certify to the appropriate committees of Congress that the Comptroller General of the United States shall be given full and complete access to—

(i) all information in the possession of the United States Government specifically relating to the operation of the Convention that is submitted by any other State Party pursuant to Article 5 of the Convention, including any report or document; and

(ii) information specifically relating to any review or analysis by any department, agency, or other entity of the United States, or any official thereof, undertaken pursuant to Article 20 of the Convention, of any report or document submitted by any other State Party.

(D) REPORTS TO CONGRESS.—Upon the request of the chairman of either of the appropriate committees of Congress, the President shall submit to the respective committee an unclassified report, and a classified annex as appropriate, detailing—

(i) how the objective of a high level of nuclear safety has been furthered by the operation of the Convention;

(ii) with respect to the operation of the Convention on an Article-by-Article basis—

(I) the situation addressed in the Article of the Convention;

(II) the results achieved under the Convention in implementing the relevant obligation under that Article of the Convention; and

(III) the plans and measures for corrective action on both a national and international level to achieve further progress in implementing the relevant obligation under that Article of the Convention; and

(iii) on a country-by-country basis, for each country that is receiving United States financial or technical assistance relating to nuclear safety improvement—

(I) a list of all nuclear installations within the country, including those installations operating, closed, and planned, and an identification of those nuclear installations where significant corrective action is found necessary by assessment;

(II) a review of all safety assessments performed and the results of those assessments for existing nuclear installations;

(III) a review of the safety of each nuclear installation using installation-specific data and analysis showing trends of safety significance and illustrated by particular safety-related issues at each installation;

(IV) a review of the position of the country as to the further operation of each nuclear installation in the country;

(V) an evaluation of the adequacy and effectiveness of the national legislative and regulatory framework in place in the country, including an assessment of the licensing system, inspection, assessment, and enforcement procedures governing the safety of nuclear installations;

(VI) a description of the country's on-site and off-site emergency preparedness; and

(VII) the amount of financial and technical assistance relating to nuclear safety improvement expended as of the date of the report by the United States, including, to the extent feasible, an itemization by nuclear installation, and the amount intended for expenditure by the United States on each such installation in the future.

(5) AMENDMENTS TO THE CONVENTION.—

(A) VOTING REPRESENTATION OF THE UNITED STATES.—A United States representative—

(i) will be present at any review meeting, extraordinary meeting, or Diplomatic Conference held to consider any amendment to the Convention Amendment Conferences; and

(ii) will cast a vote, either affirmative or negative, on each proposed amendment made at any such meeting or conference.

(B) SUBMISSION OF AMENDMENTS AS TREATIES.—The President shall submit to the Senate for its advice and consent to ratification under Article II, Section 2, Clause 2 of the Constitution of the United States any amendment to the Convention adopted at a review meeting, extraordinary meeting, or Diplomatic Conference.

(6) TREATY INTERPRETATION.—

(A) PRINCIPLES OF TREATY INTERPRETATION.—The Senate affirms the applicability to all treaties of the constitutionally-based principles of treaty interpretation set forth in condition (I) in the resolution of ratification of the INF Treaty, approved by the Senate on May 27, 1988.

(B) CONSTRUCTION OF SENATE RESOLUTION OF RATIFICATION.—Nothing in condition (I) of the resolution of ratification of the INF Treaty, approved by the Senate on May 27, 1988, shall be construed as authorizing the President to obtain legislative approval for modifications or amendments to treaties through majority approval of both Houses of Congress.

(C) DEFINITION.—As used in this paragraph, the term "INF Treaty" refers to the Treaty Between the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics on the Elimination of Their Intermediate-Range and Shorter Range Missiles, together with the related memorandum of understanding and protocols, done at Washington on December 8, 1987.

SEC. 3. UNDERSTANDINGS.

The advice and consent of the Senate to the Convention on Nuclear Safety is subject to the following understandings:

(1) DISMANTLEMENT OF THE JURAGUA NUCLEAR REACTOR.—The United States understands that—

(A) no practical degree of upgrade to the safety of the planned nuclear installation at Cienfuegos, Cuba, can adequately improve the safety of the existing installation; and

(B) therefore, Cuba must undertake, in accordance with its obligations under the Convention, not to complete the Juragua nuclear installation.

(2) IAEA TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—

(A) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(i) since its creation, the International Atomic Energy Agency has provided more than $50,000,000 of technical assistance to countries of concern to the United States, as specified in section 307(a) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 (22 U.S.C. 2227(a)) and in provisions of foreign operations appropriations Acts;

(ii) the International Atomic Energy Agency has budgeted, from 1995 through 1999, more than $1,500,000 for three ongoing technical assistance projects related to the Bushehr nuclear installation under construction in Iran; and

(iii) the International Atomic Energy Agency continues to provide technical assistance to the partially completed nuclear installation at Cienfuegos, Cuba.

(B) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—The Senate urges the President to withhold each fiscal year a proportionate share of the United States voluntary contribution allocated for the International Atomic Energy Agency's technical cooperation fund unless and until the Agency discontinues the provision of all technical assistance to programs and projects in Iran and Cuba.

SEC. 4. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this resolution:

(1) APPROPRIATE COMMITTEES OF CONGRESS.—The term "appropriate committees of Congress" means the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate and the Committee on International Relations of the House of Representatives.

(2) CONVENTION.—The term "Convention" means the Convention on Nuclear Safety, done at Vienna on September 20, 1994 (Senate Treaty Document 104-6).

(3) NUCLEAR INSTALLATION.—The term "nuclear installation" has the meaning given the term in Article 2(i) of the Convention.

(4) STATE PARTY.—The term "State Party" means any nation that is a party to the Convention.

(5) UNITED STATES INSTRUMENT OF RATIFICATION.—The term "United States instrument of ratification" means the instrument of ratification of the United States of the Convention.

INTRODUCTION OF BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

The following bills and joint resolutions were introduced, read the first and second time by unanimous consent, and referred as indicated:

By Mr. HELMS (for himself and Mr. TORRICELLI):

S. 693. A bill to assist in the enhancement of the security of Taiwan, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

By Mr. GRAMM (for himself and Mrs. HUTCHISON):

S. 694. A bill to authorize the conveyance of the Naval Weapons Industrial Reserve Plant No. 387, Dallas, Texas; to the Committee on Armed Services.

By Mr. CLELAND (for himself and Mr. COVERDELL):

S. 695. A bill to direct the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to establish a national cemetery for veterans in the Atlanta, Georgia, metropolitan area; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

By Mr. WELLSTONE:

S. 696. A bill to require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to submit to Congress a plan to include as a benefit under the medicare program coverage of outpatient prescription drugs, and to provide for the funding of such benefit; to the Committee on Finance.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 697. A bill to ensure that a woman can designate an obstetrician or gynecologist as her primary care provider; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI:

S. 698. A bill to review the suitability and feasibility of recovering costs of high altitude rescues at Denali National Park and Preserve in the state of Alaska, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself and Mr. BAUCUS):

S. 699. A bill to protect the public, especially senior citizens, against telemarketing fraud, including fraud over the Internet, and to authorize an educational campaign to improve senior citizens' ability to protect themselves against telemarketing fraud; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself and Mr. INOUE):

S. 700. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to designate the Ala Kahakai Trail as a National Historic Trail; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mr. MOYNIHAN (for himself and Mr. SCHUMER):

S. 701. A bill to designate the Federal building located at 290 Broadway in New York, New York, as the "Ronald H. Brown Federal Building"; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

By Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. INOUE, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. KENNEDY, Ms. MIKULSKI, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 702. A bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to prohibit discrimination in the payment of wages on account of sex, race, or national origin, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. INHOFE, and Mr. HELMS):

S. 703. A bill to amend section 922 of chapter 44 of title 18, United States Code; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. KYL (for himself, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. HATCH, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. INOUE, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mrs. LINCOLN, and Mr. ABRAHAM):

S. 704. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to combat the overutilization of prison health care services and control rising prisoner health care costs; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. ASHCROFT:

S. 705. A bill to repeal section 8003 of Public Law 105-174; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mrs. MURRAY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mrs. BOXER, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. REID, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. KERRY, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mr. DODD, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. INOUE, Mr. LIEBERMAN, and Mr. SARBANES):

S. 706. A bill to create a National Museum of Women's History Advisory Committee; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

By Mr. GRASSLEY (for himself, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. REED, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. BRYAN, Mr. DODD, Mr. KOHL, and Mr. REID):

S. 707. A bill to amend the Older Americans Act of 1965 to establish a national family caregiver support program, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

By Mr. DEWINE (for himself, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. CHAFEE, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. KERRY, and Mr. KERREY):

S. 708. A bill to improve the administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the Nation's abuse and neglect courts and the quality and availability of training for judges, attorneys, and volunteers working in such courts, and for other purposes consistent with the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself and Mr. DASCHLE):

S. 709. A bill to amend the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 to establish and sustain viable rural and remote communities, and to provide affordable housing and community development assistance to rural areas with excessively high rates of outmigration and low per capita income levels; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

By Mr. LOTT (for himself, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. HUTCHISON, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. CRAIG, and Mr. MURKOWSKI):

S. 710. A bill to authorize the feasibility study on the preservation of certain Civil War battlefields along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself and Mr. STEVENS):

S. 711. A bill to allow for the investment of joint Federal and State funds from the civil settlement of damages from the Exxon Valdez oil spill, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

By Mr. LOTT (for himself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. BREAUX, and Mr. WYDEN):

S. 712. A bill to amend title 39, United States Code, to allow postal patrons to contribute to funding for highway-rail grade crossing safety through the voluntary purchase of certain specially issued United States postage stamps; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

SUBMISSION OF CONCURRENT AND SENATE RESOLUTIONS

The following concurrent resolutions and Senate resolutions were read, and referred (or acted upon), as indicated:

By Mr. LOTT (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. ALLARD, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mr. BAUCUS, Mr. BAYH, Mr. BENNETT, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. BOND, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. BRYAN, Mr. BUNNING, Mr. BURNS, Mr. BYRD, Mr. CAMPBELL, Mr. CHAFEE, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. COCHRAN, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. CRAPO, Mr. DEWINE, Mr. DODD, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. EDWARDS, Mr. ENZI, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mrs. FEINSTEIN, Mr. FITZGERALD, Mr. FRIST, Mr. GORTON, Mr. GRAHAM, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. GREGG, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. HATCH, Mr. HELMS, Mr. HOLLINGS, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. INOUE, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. KERREY, Mr. KERRY, Mr. KOHL, Mr. KYL, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LAUTENBERG, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. LIEBERMAN, Mrs. LINCOLN, Mr. LUGAR, Mr. MACK, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. MCCONNELL, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mr. MOYNIHAN, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. REED, Mr. REID, Mr. ROBB, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. ROTH, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. SHELBY, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. SMITH of Oregon, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. STEVENS, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. THOMPSON, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. WARNER, Mr. WELLSTONE, and Mr. WYDEN):

S. Res. 74. A resolution expressing the support of the Senate for the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia; considered and agreed to.

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. HELMS (for himself and Mr. TORRICELLI):

S. 693. A bill to assist in the enhancement of the security of Taiwan, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Foreign Relations

TAIWAN SECURITY ENHANCEMENT ACT

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, today on behalf of the distinguished Senator from New Jersey, Mr. TORRICELLI, and myself, I am sending to the desk a bill entitled "The Taiwan Security Enhancement Act."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The bill will be received.

Mr. HELMS. I thank the Chair.

This bill is to do the best we can to ensure that the United States is fulfilling its obligations to the Republic of China as specified by the Taiwan Relations Act.

Mr. President, this has been done reasonably well for about 20 years, but recent trends disclose the need for efforts by the United States to be stepped up, hence the introduction of this bill by Senator TORRICELLI and me. There will undoubtedly be further additions to the sponsorship of this bill. In any case, as you know, the Pentagon, last month, delivered to the Congress a report entitled "The Security Situation in the Taiwan Straits." Frankly, I found this report exceedingly disturbing.

For openers, the report stated that Red China has been and will continue to deploy a large number of missiles directly across the strait from Taiwan. In fact, according to media reports, China already has more than 150 such missiles aimed at Taiwan and plans to increase the number to 650 during the next few years.

Taiwan has virtually no defenses against such missiles. In 1995 and 1996, Red China proved beyond a shadow of a doubt a willingness to use these missiles, at a minimum to intimidate Taiwan.

I think Americans should also be concerned about Chinese missiles. In late November, the Chinese People's Liberation Army conducted exercises consisting of mock missile attacks on United States forces in South Korea and in Japan. The Pentagon report, to which I just referred, also makes clear that mainland China's vast quantitative edge over Taiwan in naval and air power, coupled with China's ongoing modernization drive, will prove overwhelming in any sort of military confrontation. The Pentagon report concluded that Taiwan's future success in deterring Chinese aggression will be—and I quote from the report—"dependent on its continued acquisition of modern arms, technology and equipment and its ability to deal with a number of systemic problems" such as logistics.

This is precisely where the United States had better step in, Mr. President, because the United States is the only power in the world that can assure that Taiwan can continue to acquire the weapons it needs and deal with its systemic problems.

The question is, Will we do it? Communist China has coupled its military buildup and threats against Taiwan with increased pressure on the United States to limit or to cease our arms sales to Taiwan. This is reminiscent of 1982 when the Reagan administration yielded to Chinese pressure and mistakenly agreed to limit and gradually reduce our arms sales to Taiwan in the regrettable August communique.

President Clinton, similarly, last summer caved in to Beijing's three noes—no, no, no. Will arms sales to Taiwan be sacrificed next? I put a question mark after it because I hope the administration will recover from its lack of foresight of last summer.

In any event, if one listens to administration officials, who somehow seem incapable of commenting on arms sales to Taiwan without mentioning the 1982 communique, or the administration's refusal to sell submarines to Taiwan on the flimsy pretext that those submarines are offensive, I think one will get some idea of where the United States arms sales to Taiwan will be if we do not now stand steadfast.

Let me explain. Sections 3(a) and 3(b) of the Taiwan Relations Act compel us, oblige us, to provide defensive arms to Taiwan based solely upon the judgment of the United States regarding Taiwan's needs, meaning that Beijing's opinion doesn't count. Given China's threatening military buildup, it is unlikely that Taiwan's legitimate needs are going to go down soon. Nor should U.S. arms sales go down, Mr. President.

Moreover, it is high time to begin a discussion of whether the United States ought to be doing more in the way of exchanges in training and planning with Taiwan's military. The Taiwan military has operated in virtual isolation for 20 years, and this has certainly contributed to some of the systemic problems alluded to in the Pentagon report, to which I referred just a moment ago.

Taiwan's military does not exercise with us. They do not plan with us. When the Red Chinese missiles were flying over Taiwan in 1996 and our carriers went to the strait, the Taiwan military had no direct or secure way of communicating with the United States fleet, none whatsoever. The question is, Do we want to be stuck in that situation again? While the Secretary of Defense and other top officials can rub elbows in Beijing and possibly have champagne, the State Department prevents any other officer above the rank of colonel setting foot on Taiwan.

In addition to being outrageous, this cannot help having a corrosive effect on our joint ability to deter conflict in the Taiwan Strait over time.

All of this is why I have introduced, with Senator TORRICELLI, the Taiwan Security Enhancement Act, which has three main thrusts. Let me briefly identify each of them.

One, the Taiwan Security Enhancement Act seeks to ensure that our friends in Taiwan will have the necessary equipment to maintain their self-defense capabilities as required by the Taiwan Relations Act. It does this by prohibiting any politically motivated reductions in arms sales to Taiwan pursuant to the 1982 communique and by authorizing the sale to Taiwan of a broad array of defense systems, including missile defense systems, satellite early warning data, diesel submarines, and advanced air-to-air missiles.

Secondly, the Taiwan Security Enhancement Act, which I have just introduced, seeks to bolster the process for defense sales to Taiwan. The bill does this in several ways. It requires an increase in staffing at the currently overworked technical section at the American Institute in Taiwan. It also requires the President to report to Congress annually on Taiwan's defense requests and to justify any rejection or postponement of arms sales to Taiwan.

These actions are not currently taken and the President and the Congress need to get more involved in the process, precisely as the Taiwan Security Enhancement Act, which I just introduced, will require.

Third, the Taiwan Security Enhancement Act will redress some of the deficiencies in readiness resulting in part from the 20-year isolation of Taiwan's military. This will be achieved by supporting Taiwan's increased participation at United States defense colleges, requiring the enhancement of our military exchanges and joint training, and establishing direct communication between our respective militaries.

All of this will merely implement section 2(b)(6) of what? It will implement the Taiwan Relations Act, which calls for the United States—not Taiwan, but the United States—to maintain a capacity to resist any resort to force or coercion that would jeopardize Taiwan.

How can we maintain that capacity over the long run if we can't even communicate with Taiwan's military—obviously, we can't—or if we do not do joint planning and training with Taiwan's military?

I can hear it now. Some are going to say this is provocative. They will claim that doing these things will upset the United States relationship with China. This is true. The Red Chinese won't like this bill. But I think we all know, Mr. President, that many of the things called for in this legislation must be done at the earliest possible time.

China's behavior—let me be clear—mainland China's behavior is a clear warning that it is time for the United States to be much more serious about maintaining a posture of deterrence in the western Pacific and in protecting our loyal, long-time friends in the Republic of China on Taiwan.

By Mr. GRAMM (for himself and Mrs. HUTCHISON):

S. 694. A bill to authorize the conveyance of the Naval Weapons Industrial Reserve Plant No. 387, Dallas, Texas; to the Committee on Armed Services.

CONVEYANCE OF THE NAVAL WEAPONS INDUSTRIAL RESERVE PLANT NO. 387, DALLAS, TEXAS

• Mr. GRAMM. Mr. President, along with Senator KAY BAILEY HUTCHISON, I am introducing legislation today which will authorize the Secretary of the Navy to transfer ownership of the property known as the Naval Weapons Industrial Reserve Plant #387, located in Dallas, Texas, to the City of Dallas. This legislation allows the Navy to divest itself of property no longer needed to accomplish the Navy's mission, while enabling the City of Dallas to maintain and develop the facilities in the best interests of the citizens of the Metroplex.

The Navy Weapons Plant in Dallas is adjacent to Naval Air Station Dallas, which was closed by the Base Closure and Realignment Commission of 1993. Years ago, the work performed at the plant directly supported the Navy and its missions, but today, the Navy no longer needs the facility. With all of our military services struggling to meet today's unprecedented number of peacekeeping, humanitarian assistance, and sanctions enforcement operations, the Navy and the taxpayer cannot afford to maintain a facility that is no longer needed. The legislation I introduce today relieves the Navy of the costs of ownership while ensuring that the citizens of North Texas are allowed to use the facilities for public benefit.

The bill will permit the City of Dallas to continue its special relationship with Northrop Grumman Corporation, the current contract tenant. Northrop Grumman utilizes the facility primarily to manufacture commercial aircraft components and systems. As one of America's premier aerospace and defense companies, Northrop Grumman's operations in Dallas are vital to our national economy and security, as evidenced by their annual economic impact of $840 million. Northrop Grumman's current operations at the plant provide direct employment for 5,600 Texas workers, while another 16,800 indirect jobs are created in the metropolitan area. This bill gives the City of Dallas the opportunity to assure the continuation of jobs, growth, and opportunity at the plant when the Navy leaves the area. This is precisely the kind of public-private partnership that will be the foundation for prosperity in the future. I ask my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 694

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. LAND CONVEYANCE, NAVAL WEAPONS INDUSTRIAL RESERVE PLANT NO. 387, DALLAS, TEXAS.

(a) CONVEYANCE AUTHORIZED.—(1) The Secretary of the Navy may convey to the City of Dallas, Texas (in this section referred to as the "City"), all right, title, and interest of the United States in and to parcels of real property consisting of approximately 314 acres and comprising the Naval Weapons Industrial Reserve Plant No. 387, Dallas, Texas.

(2)(A) As part of the conveyance authorized by paragraph (1), the Secretary may convey to the City such improvements, equipment, fixtures, and other personal property located on the parcels referred to in that paragraph as the Secretary determines to be not required by the Navy for other purposes.

(B) The Secretary may permit the City to review and inspect the improvements, equipment, fixtures, and other personal property located on the parcels referred to in paragraph (1) for purposes of the conveyance authorized by this paragraph.

(b) AUTHORITY TO CONVEY WITHOUT CONSIDERATION.—The conveyance authorized by subsection (a) may be made without consideration if the Secretary determines that the conveyance on that basis would be in the best interests of the United States.

(c) EXCEPTION FROM SCREENING REQUIREMENT.—The conveyance authorized by subsection (a) shall be made without regard to the requirement under section 2696 of title

10, United States Code, that the property be screened for further Federal use in accordance with the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (40 U.S.C. 471 et seq.).

(d) CONDITION OF CONVEYANCE.—The conveyance authorized by subsection (a) shall be subject to the condition that the City—

(1) use the parcels, directly or through an agreement with a public or private entity, for economic purposes or such other public purposes as the City determines appropriate; or

(2) convey the parcels to an appropriate public or private entity for use for such purposes.

(e) REVERSION.—If, during the 5-year period beginning on the date the Secretary makes the conveyance authorized by subsection (a), the Secretary determines that the conveyed real property is not being used for a purpose specified in subsection (d), all right, title, and interest in and to the property, including any improvements thereon, shall revert to the United States, and the United States shall have the right of immediate entry onto the property.

(f) INTERIM LEASE.—(1) Until such time as the real property described in subsection (a) is conveyed by deed under this section, the Secretary may continue to lease the property, together with improvements thereon, to the current tenant under the existing terms and conditions of the lease for the property.

(2) If good faith negotiations for the conveyance of the property continue under this section beyond the end of the third year of the term of the existing lease for the property, the Secretary shall continue to lease the property to the current tenant of the property under the terms and conditions applicable to the first three years of the lease of the property pursuant to the existing lease for the property.

(g) MAINTENANCE OF PROPERTY.—(1) Subject to paragraph (2), the Secretary shall be responsible for maintaining the real property to be conveyed under this section in its condition as of the date of the enactment of this Act until such time as the property is conveyed by deed under this section.

(2) The current tenant of the property shall be responsible for any maintenance required under paragraph (1) to the extent of the activities of that tenant at the property during the period covered by that paragraph.

(h) ENVIRONMENTAL REMEDIATION.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the City shall not be responsible for any environmental restoration or remediation that is required with respect to the real property to be conveyed under subsection (a) as a result of activities of parties other than the City at the property before its conveyance under this section.

(i) DESCRIPTION OF PROPERTY.—The exact acreage and legal description of the real property to be conveyed under subsection (a) shall be determined by a survey satisfactory to the Secretary. The cost of the survey shall be borne by the City.

(j) ADDITIONAL TERMS AND CONDITIONS.—The Secretary may require such additional terms and conditions in connection with the conveyance under subsection (a) as the Secretary considers appropriate to protect the interests of the United States.●

By Mr. CLELAND (for himself and Mr. COVERDELL):

S. 695. A bill to direct the Secretary of Veterans Affairs to establish a national cemetery for Veterans in the Atlanta, Georgia, metropolitan area; to the Committee on Veterans' Affairs.

LEGISLATION TO ESTABLISH A NATIONAL CEMETERY FOR VETERANS IN ATLANTA, GEORGIA

● Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, today I am pleased to offer an important piece of legislation designed to address a critical need of Georgia's veterans and their families.

One of the greatest honors our country provides for a veteran's service is the opportunity to be buried in a national cemetery. It is logical that a veteran's family would want to have the grave site of their loved one close by. They want to be able to place flowers or a folded American flag by the headstone of their father, mother, sister or brother. Georgia veterans' families deserve such consideration. The establishment of a new veterans national cemetery in the Atlanta metropolitan area is one of my highest legislative priorities.

The current veterans population in Georgia is estimated to be nearly 700,000, with over 400,000 residing in the Metro Atlanta area. One state currently has two cemeteries designated specifically for veterans, in Marietta and Andersonville. Marietta National Cemetery has been full since 1970, and Andersonville National Historic Cemetery is located in southwest Georgia, at a considerable distance from most of the states veterans population.

The large population of veterans' families in Metro Atlanta and North Georgia is not being served, and we need to change that. Abraham Lincoln once said: 'All that a man hath will he give for his life; and while all contribute of their substance the soldier puts his life at stake, and often yields it up in his country's cause. The highest merit, then, is due to the soldier.'

We owe it to our veterans to provide a national veterans cemetery close to their home.

I have been pursuing this matter for over 20 years, since I was head of the Veterans' Administration, now called the Department of Veterans' Affairs. Nationally, there are over 300,000 vacancies in national cemeteries for veterans, but in Georgia, there are no such vacancies. The only option these veterans have in Andersonville, a national historic cemetery which is operated by the National Parks Service, not the VA, and is more than 100 miles away from the Metro Atlanta area. This deeply concerns me, especially when one considers that Georgia has the highest rate of growth in terms of military retirees in the Nation, and that the majority of these veterans reside in Metro Atlanta. We really must do better for our veterans.

In 1979, when I was head of the VA, our studies documented that the Atlanta metropolitan area was the area having the largest veterans population in the country without a national cemetery. Later that same year, I announced that Metro Atlanta had been chosen as the site for a new VA cemetery, which was to be opened in late 1983. The Atlanta location was chosen after an exhaustive review of many sites, including consideration of environmental, access, and land use factors, and most importantly, the density of veterans population. Unfortunately, the Reagan Administration later withdrew approval of the Atlanta site. Over the years since then, Atlanta has repeatedly been one of the top areas in the United States most in need of an additional national cemetery.

Mr. President, the bill I am introducing today is simple. It requires the Department of Veterans Affairs to establish a national cemetery in the Atlanta metropolitan area. It also requires the VA to consult with appropriate federal, state, and local officials to determine the most suitable site.

I believe this bill is a necessary first step toward the eventual establishment of a national cemetery to meet the needs of Atlanta's veterans and their families. Admittedly, several factors must be resolved before the cemetery can be established. A site must be found and funding must be made available. However, we must move swiftly to resolve this problem so that a critical element of our commitment to the Nation's veterans can be met.

I am hopeful that the Senate will take favorable action on my bill during this Congress. I want to thank my colleague from Georgia, Senator COVERDELL, for joining me in this important effort, and Representative BARR for sponsoring the companion bill in the House of Representatives.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 695

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. ESTABLISHMENT.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Veterans Affairs shall establish, in accordance with chapter 24 of title 38, United States Code, a national cemetery in the Atlanta, Georgia, metropolitan area to serve the needs of veterans and their families.

(b) CONSULTATION IN SELECTION OF SITE.—Before selecting the site for the national cemetery established under subsection (a), the Secretary shall consult with—

(1) appropriate officials of the State of Georgia and local officials of the Atlanta, Georgia, metropolitan area; and

(2) appropriate officials of the United States, including the Administrator of General Services, with respect to land belonging to the United States in that area that would be suitable to establish the national cemetery under subsection (a).

(c) REPORT.—As soon as practicable after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report on the establishment of the national cemetery under subsection (a). The report shall set forth a schedule for such establishment and an estimate of the costs associated with such establishment.●

Mr. COVERDELL. Mr. President, today I am proud to join my esteemed colleague from Georgia, Senator CLELAND, to introduce once again a very important piece of legislation authorizing a new National Cemetery in the Atlanta, Georgia, metropolitan area. For many years Georgia has had a pressing need for a new national cemetery for veterans. With the leadership of my friend from Georgia who, I might add, has been working to make this a reality for about twenty years, we hope to pass this bill this year for our nation's veterans.

Mr. President, Georgia has one of the fastest growing veterans populations in the country. Currently, about 700,000 veterans call Georgia home with well over half, about 440,000, living in the Metro-Atlanta region; the area where this new cemetery would be built. However, the only national cemetery in the area has been full since 1970. Furthermore, the only other veterans cemetery in the state is operated by the National Parks Service, not the Department of Veterans' Affairs, and is in Andersonville, a town in southwest Georgia far from the concentration of Georgia veterans.

Mr. President, I believe we clearly demonstrate the need for a new national cemetery in Georgia. VA studies have concurred the need for this cemetery and, in fact, Atlanta was chosen as a site for a new cemetery in 1983. It is now time to build this needed tribute.

Burial in a national cemetery is a deserving honor for our nation's veterans, but it is becoming increasingly difficult to bestow upon them, especially in Georgia. This bipartisan legislation seeks to remedy this situation. Mr. President, by focusing on areas across the country with pressing needs for more burial slots, Congress can increase access to the honor of burial in a national cemetery. Georgia is such an area. By passing this measure, Congress would help veterans, and their families, find a burial place befitting their patriotic service to this great land.

By Mr. WELLSTONE:

S. 696. A bill to require the Secretary of Health and Human Services to submit to Congress a plan to include as a benefit under the Medicare program coverage of outpatient prescription drugs, and to provide for the funding of such benefit; to the Committee on Finance.

MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE ACT OF 1999

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999, a bill that calls for a full prescription drug benefit for all of America's senior citizens within the Medicare program.

This bill is the Senate companion to H.R. 886, which was introduced by Congressman BARNEY FRANK of Massachusetts earlier this month and which already has 22 House cosponsors.

One of the beauties of the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999 is its simplicity. The Act does four things. First, it directs the Secretary of Health and Human Services to study the establishment of an outpatient prescription drug benefit under Medicare that provides for full coverage of outpatient prescription drugs. Second, the Secretary will determine the sufficiency of the estate tax to fund the costs of that outpatient drug benefit. Third, the Secretary must submit a report to Congress within six months that includes a legislative proposal to provide for full coverage of outpatient prescription drugs. Finally, the bill transfers Federal estate tax revenues to the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund where those monies will be placed in a separate Outpatient Prescription Drug Account to pay for this coverage.

Mr. President, now more than ever, a Medicare prescription drug benefit is needed. When Medicare was first adopted the program was designed to reflect typical private health insurance which often did not include outpatient prescription drugs. Then and since, the pharmaceutical industry has opposed a prescription drug benefit in order to protect its profits without regard to America's senior citizens. Even today, the industry is unwilling to shed some of its profits to allow all senior citizens access to needed prescription drugs. But the time has come for Congress to say "no" to the undue influence of drug companies in Washington and "yes" to Medicare prescription drug coverage.

Why has the need for the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999 become so acute? The reasons are well known. First, the cost of prescription drugs has skyrocketed in recent years. Last year alone, prices increased an estimated 17%. This increase in drug costs hits seniors disproportionately.

A 1998 study by the minority staff of the House Government Reform Committee found that older Americans without prescription drug insurance pay on average twice as much as the discounted prices drug companies offer large scale purchasers like HMOs, pharmaceutical benefit managers and government agencies. Even more astounding are comparisons that show the price of some drugs are up to 15 times higher for seniors. Recalcitrance on the part of the pharmaceutical industry and the Congress has not only forced seniors to pay for drugs out of their own pockets, but the price seniors pay is a national disgrace.

The burden on seniors is hard for them to avoid. More than ¾ of Americans aged 65 and over are taking prescription drugs. The average senior citizen takes more than four prescription drugs daily and fills an average of 18 prescriptions a year. Older Americans take significantly more drugs on average than the under-65 population. One-third of all drugs are prescribed for senior citizens even though seniors account for only 12% of the population.

Not only do older Americans spend almost three times as much of their income (21%) on health care as do those under the age of 65 (8%), but prescription drugs are the largest single source of out-of-pocket expenses for health services paid for by the elderly—more than doctor visits or hospital admissions. The primary reason for this is that Medicare does not cover outpatient prescription drugs.

It is totally unacceptable that 37% of seniors, nationally, have no prescription drug coverage and another 15–20% have totally inadequate coverage. In my state of Minnesota, where Medicare HMO drug coverage without additional cost is virtually nonexistent, close to 65% of seniors have no outpatient drug coverage at all.

The result of this drug pricing inequity and excessive cost burden frequently leads seniors to discontinue their medications against medical advice, to lower the dose they take to make their prescriptions last longer, or to take their medicines as prescribed but then skimp on food and other necessities. Whichever path is taken results in a decrease in health and an increased likelihood of an expensive hospital intervention. That is why we need the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999. Not to provide this benefit is being penny-wise and pound foolish.

Minnesota seniors and others who live in states adjacent to Canada and Mexico often travel hundreds of miles and cross international borders to obtain drugs at prices only available in this country when negotiated by volume purchasers. Mildred Miller, a 78 year old constituent of mine from Minneapolis, found it necessary to travel to Canada and to send a friend to Mexico in order to afford the Tamoxifen her doctor in Minnesota had prescribed. And she is not alone.

For some seniors the high price of outpatient prescription drugs has not yet been a burden. They are the lucky ones who are members of Medicare HMOs in counties where the Medicare reimbursement rate to HMOs has been high enough to allow a prescription drug benefit, or are fortunate to be wealthy and healthy enough to be able to purchase one of the three Medigap policies that include a prescription drug benefit, or have drug coverage under health insurance benefits provided by former employers.

But for those for whom the high price of drugs has not yet been a burden, the future isn't particularly bright. Medicare HMO reimbursement rates are being reduced and many HMOs have cut back or completely cut out their drug benefit. Medigap policies that cover prescription drugs are expensive, have high $250 deductibles, 50% copays, and caps on benefits of $1250 or $300 per year. Health care benefits offered by former employers are becoming less and less common and less generous.

The good alternatives today are out of reach of most senior citizens. For example, in Minnesota, a Medicare-Choice prescription drug coverage option with 20% copay, no deductible, and no cap costs $130 per month. It is no wonder that from Maine to Minnesota to the state of Washington and down to Texas, America's senior citizens are forced to leave the country so they can afford to take the medicines they need. What they find are essentially the same prescription drugs at half of price. With the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999, they won't have to flee their own country.

What is needed is a comprehensive prescription drug benefit that includes outpatient drugs—the same sort of prescription drug benefit available to members of Congress—with no cap, reasonable deductibles and reasonable copays. That is what this legislation calls for.

An important aspect of the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999 is that it calls for a full prescription drug benefit—not one capped at a certain limit. Medicare today doesn't limit the number of necessary doctor visits or the number of needed operations—and it shouldn't. Prescription drugs now are as critical as those doctor visits or operations and it is unconscionable for necessary drugs not to be covered just as fully. If we limit the maximum benefit, we penalize the sickest and most frail elderly who have the greatest need and require the greatest number of prescription medications.

I expect that other Medicare prescription drug bills will be offered in this Congress, but I fear they will not provide the full protection seniors really need. If you have a major life threatening illness or multiple chronic diseases (something that is hard to predict before it happens), your monthly drug bill will quickly exceed the oft cited figure of a $1500 annual maximum. With such coverage, the sickest and most needy seniors will quickly find themselves out of the benefit. As I travel about the state of Minnesota, I frequently hear stories of elderly citizens saddled with prescription drug costs in excess of $300 per month who are trying to make ends meet on a monthly income of $1,000. That is why full drug coverage is so important.

What is also important to know is that the cost of providing a full prescription drug benefit is affordable and not that much more than the cost of a limited benefit. In 1998, the Lewin Group estimated that a Medicare prescription drug benefit in 1999 with a $250 deductible, a 20% copay and a $1500 annual cap would cost $13 billion. The same plan with no annual cap, providing full protection, would cost $17 billion. Revenues from the estate tax, which will fund the benefit, are estimated to be in the $19 billion to $23 billion range. That is more than enough to provide full coverage the full benefit.

Finally, Mr. President, let me say a few words about why using the estate tax to pay for a Medicare prescription drug benefit makes a lot of sense. Many members of Congress have argued that the estate tax is no longer needed for general revenue. If so, there is a great deal of logic in using it for a prescription drug benefit under Medicare. The estate tax today applies only to individual estates that are worth more than $650,000 and to estates of married couples worth more than $1 million. Over the next seven years the amount exempt from the estate tax will rise to $1 million for individuals and $2 million for couples. Well over 90% of the estate tax comes from wealthy individuals who were 65 or older at the time of their death. Most of these people were receiving medical care and benefiting from Medicare coverage. Thus, this bill recycles back into the Medicare program—for badly needed prescription drug coverage for all—money from people who benefited from their Medicare entitlement but were not in financial need of it. That only makes sense. For it is more important to preserve and expand the Medicare program than it is to provide tax cuts for the richest Americans.

Mr. President, it is unconscionable that America's senior citizens have such difficulty obtaining the fruits of the scientific advances made by America's pharmaceutical industry. Every day we delay, millions of senior citizens struggle to determine how they will be able to afford their next prescription refill. The time to end that struggle is now. That is why I am introducing the Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999 today.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 696

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Medicare Prescription Drug Coverage Act of 1999".

SEC. 2. STUDY AND LEGISLATIVE PROPOSAL TO CONGRESS.

(a) STUDY.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services shall conduct a study with respect to the establishment of an outpatient prescription drug benefit under the Medicare program that provides for full coverage of outpatient prescription drugs for Medicare beneficiaries.

(b) ADDITIONAL MATTERS STUDIED.—In conducting the study under subsection (a), the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall include a determination of whether Federal estate tax revenues, transferred to the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund by reason of the amendments made by section 3 of this Act, are sufficient, in excess of the amount required, or insufficient to defray the costs of such outpatient prescription drug benefit.

(c) REPORT TO CONGRESS.—Not later than 180 days after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Health and Human Services shall submit to Congress a report containing a detailed description of the results of the study conducted pursuant to this section, and include in such report a legislative proposal to provide for such outpatient prescription drug benefit.

SEC. 3. TRANSFER OF FEDERAL ESTATE TAX REVENUES TO MEDICARE PROGRAM TO OFFSET COSTS OF PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT.

(a) TRANSFER TO FEDERAL HOSPITAL INSURANCE TRUST FUND.—Section 1817(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395i(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking “and” at the end of paragraph (1),

(2) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (2) and inserting “; and”, and

(3) by inserting after paragraph (2) the following new paragraph:

“(3) the taxes imposed by chapter 11 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 with respect to estates of citizens or residents reported to the Secretary of the Treasury or his delegate on tax returns under subtitle F of such Code, as determined by the Secretary of the Treasury by applying the applicable rate of tax under such chapter to such estate.”.

(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF SEPARATE ACCOUNT FOR OUTPATIENT PRESCRIPTION DRUG BENEFIT.—Section 1817 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395i) is amended by adding at the end the following new subsection:

“(l) OUTPATIENT PRESCRIPTION DRUG ACCOUNT.—

“(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is hereby established in the Trust Fund an expenditure account to be known as the ‘Outpatient Prescription Drug Account’.

“(2) CREDITING OF FUNDS.—The Managing Trustee shall credit to the Outpatient Prescription Drug Account such amounts as may be deposited in the Trust Fund pursuant to subsection (a)(3).

“(3) USE OF FUNDS.—Funds credited to the Outpatient Prescription Drug Account may only be used to pay for outpatient prescription drugs furnished under this title.”.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section apply to payments received by the Secretary of the Treasury on or after the date of the enactment of this Act for taxes imposed by chapter 11 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

By Mrs. BOXER (for herself and Ms. SNOWE):

S. 697. A bill to ensure that a woman can designate an obstetrician or gynecologist as her primary care provider; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

THE WOMEN'S ACCESS TO CARE ACT

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, last week, the Senate Health, Education, Labor and Pensions Committee marked up managed care reform legislation. Unfortunately, this markup was characterized by the partisan politics that have plagued this issue for over a year now.

I fear that this squabbling shows no signs of letting up, and I expect it to carry over onto the floor of the Senate. The result may be no action at all. And that, Mr. President, would be a tragedy. There are many individuals who need to be protected from some of the outrageous practices of managed care networks, and as long as we argue, they are not being helped.

It is time to move beyond the squabbling and get something done. Do not get me wrong. I strongly support and am a cosponsor of the Patients' Bill of Rights Act, introduced by Senator DASHCUE. I have no intention of renouncing my support for this excellent bill. Many of its provisions are based on a bill I introduced in 1997.

But, I do believe that we need to start reaching across the aisle to find common ground in those areas where this is agreement. So, today, I am introducing, along with Senator SNOWE, the Women's Access to Care Act—to guarantee that women in managed care plans can designate their ob/gyn as their primary care physician.

Let me tell you, Mr. President, why this bill is so important, and I will start with this basic fact: Many women consider their ob/gyn their principal doctor. According to a 1993 Gallup Poll, 72 percent of women had a regular physical examination in the previous two years from an ob/gyn. And, three-fourths of all women object to restricted access to their ob/gyn.

But, managed care companies are not paying attention.

Sometimes, a managed care company requires a woman to get a referral in order to see her ob/gyn. Or, a managed care plan allows a woman to see an ob/gyn without a referral only under limited circumstances—such as for only a few visits each year or for only certain medical conditions. Or, a managed care network does not allow a woman's ob/gyn to refer her to a specialist.

All of these hurdles placed between a woman and her doctor mean that a woman has to get a referral from another doctor just to see her doctor, and that she must, for all practical purposes, have two doctors.

Let me give you an example that will illustrate how absurd this is.

A 39-year-old woman—who considers her ob/gyn as her doctor—is in the office for a routine check-up. The ob/gyn discovers a lump in the woman's breast and tells her that she needs to get a mammogram. But, because the woman is under the age for automatic coverage of mammograms, she can only get one if her doctor says it is medically necessary. But, the managed care plan does not consider the ob/gyn as the woman's doctor—even though she does. So, this woman has to go find a primary care doctor just to get that doctor to okay a mammogram. And, the ob/gyn certainly cannot refer her to a specialist about the lump in her breast.

That, Mr. President, is silly. It makes no sense. And, it is not even good health policy. According to the Commonwealth Fund, a woman whose ob/gyn is her regular doctor is more likely to have had a complete physical exam, a blood pressure reading, a cholesterol test, a clinical breast exam, a mammogram, a pelvic examination, and a Pap smear.

In other words, a woman is more likely to receive the health care she needs when she can see her ob/gyn. Why? Because many women consider their ob/gyn their principal doctor.

The bill that Senator SNOWE and I are introducing today recognizes this fact. The Women's Access to Care Act would provide a woman in a managed care plan with three options.

First, she could designate an ob/gyn as her primary care physician. She would have the same right of access to—and the doctor would have the same right of referral as—any other primary care physician.

Second, she could continue the practice common today. That is, she could designate a general practitioner as her primary care physician. But, if she does, she must be allowed to see an ob/gyn without a referral for all routine gynecological care and pregnancy related services. And, the ob/gyn could refer the woman to a specialist for any other needed gynecological care.

Third, we would say that a woman could designate both an ob/gyn and a general practitioner as her primary care provider. Sometimes a woman considers her ob/gyn as her doctor but does not want to close off access to a general practitioner for other health care needs.

Finally, Mr. President, let me briefly address what is known as direct access to an ob/gyn. Allowing a woman to go directly to her ob/gyn without a referral would be an important step forward. But, keep in mind that it is not the full story. Even if the direct access were unlimited and unfettered, it would not allow an ob/gyn to refer a woman to the specialist she needs. To do that requires allowing an ob/gyn to be designated as a primary care physician.

Mr. President, I believe the Women's Access to Care Act is a common sense approach that recognizes the reality of the way many women receive—and want to receive—their health care. It is also an opportunity to break through the partisan logjam on managed care and enact something meaningful to help the women of America.

I urge my colleagues to join me and Senator SNOWE in this bipartisan effort.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 697

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Women's Access to Care Act”.

SEC. 2. AMENDMENTS TO THE EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT INCOME SECURITY ACT OF 1974.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Subpart B of part 7 of subtitle B of title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1185 et seq.), as amended by the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277), is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 714. ACCESS TO OBSTETRICAL AND GYNECOLOGICAL CARE.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—If a group health plan, or a health insurance issuer in connection with the provision of health insurance coverage, requires or provides for a participant or beneficiary to designate a participating primary care provider—

“(1) the plan or issuer shall permit such an individual who is a female to designate a participating physician who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology as the individual's primary care provider in lieu of or in addition to the designation by such individual of a provider who does not specialize in obstetrics and gynecology as the primary care provider; and

“(2) if such an individual has not designated a physician who specializes in obstetrics or gynecology as a primary care provider, the plan or issuer—

“(A) may not require authorization or a referral by the individual's primary care provider or otherwise for coverage of routine gynecological care (such as preventive women's health examinations) and pregnancy-related services provided by a participating health care professional who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology to the extent such care is otherwise covered, and

“(B) may treat the ordering of other gynecological care by such a participating health professional as the authorization of the primary care provider with respect to such care under the plan or coverage.

“(b) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in subsection (a)(2)(B) shall waive any requirements of coverage relating to medical necessity or appropriateness with respect to coverage of gynecological care so ordered.”

(b) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The table of contents in section 1 of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 (29 U.S.C. 1001 note), as amended by the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277), is amended by inserting after the item relating to section 713 the following new item:

“Sec. 714. Access to obstetrical and gynecological care.”

SEC. 3. AMENDMENTS TO THE PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE ACT.

(a) GROUP MARKET.—Subpart 2 of part A of title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300gg-4 et seq.), as amended by the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277), is amended by adding at the end the following new section:

“SEC. 2707. ACCESS TO OBSTETRICAL AND GYNECOLOGICAL CARE.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—If a group health plan, or a health insurance issuer in connection with the provision of health insurance coverage, requires or provides for an enrollee to designate a participating primary care provider—

“(1) the plan or issuer shall permit such an individual who is a female to designate a participating physician who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology as the individual's primary care provider in lieu of or in addition to the designation by such individual of a provider who does not specialize in obstetrics and gynecology as the primary care provider; and

“(2) if such an individual has not designated a physician who specializes in obstetrics or gynecology as a primary care provider, the plan or issuer—

“(A) may not require authorization or a referral by the individual's primary care provider or otherwise for coverage of routine gynecological care (such as preventive women's health examinations) and pregnancy-related services provided by a participating health care professional who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology to the extent such care is otherwise covered, and

“(B) may treat the ordering of other gynecological care by such a participating health professional as the authorization of the primary care provider with respect to such care under the plan or coverage.

“(b) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in subsection (a)(2)(B) shall waive any requirements of coverage relating to medical necessity or appropriateness with respect to coverage of gynecological care so ordered.”

(b) INDIVIDUAL MARKET.—The first subpart 3 of part B of title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 300gg-51 et seq.) (relating to other requirements), as amended by the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277) is amended—

(1) by redesignating such subpart as subpart 2; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 2753. ACCESS TO OBSTETRICAL AND GYNECOLOGICAL CARE.

“The provisions of section 2707 shall apply to health insurance coverage offered by a health insurance issuer in the individual market in the same manner as they apply to health insurance coverage offered by a health insurance issuer in connection with a group health plan in the small or large group market.”

SEC. 4. AMENDMENTS TO THE INTERNAL REVENUE CODE OF 1986.

Subchapter B of chapter 100 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 is amended—

(1) in the table of sections, by inserting after the item relating to section 9812 the following new item:

“Sec. 9813. Access to obstetrical and gynecological care.”; and

(2) by inserting after section 9812 the following:

“SEC. 9813. ACCESS TO OBSTETRICAL AND GYNECOLOGICAL CARE.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—If a group health plan, or a health insurance issuer in connection with the provision of health insurance coverage, requires or provides for a participant or beneficiary to designate a participating primary care provider—

“(1) the plan or issuer shall permit such an individual who is a female to designate a participating physician who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology as the individual's primary care provider in lieu of or in addition to the designation by such individual of a provider who does not specialize in obstetrics and gynecology as the primary care provider; and

“(2) if such an individual has not designated a physician who specializes in obstetrics or gynecology as a primary care provider, the plan or issuer—

“(A) may not require authorization or a referral by the individual's primary care provider or otherwise for coverage of routine gynecological care (such as preventive women's health examinations) and pregnancy-related services provided by a participating health care professional who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology to the extent such care is otherwise covered, and

“(B) may treat the ordering of other gynecological care by such a participating health professional as the authorization of the primary care provider with respect to such care under the plan or coverage.

“(b) CONSTRUCTION.—Nothing in subsection (a)(2)(B) shall waive any requirements of coverage relating to medical necessity or appropriateness with respect to coverage of gynecological care so ordered.”

SEC. 5. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsection (c), the amendments made by this Act shall apply with respect to plan years beginning on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) SPECIAL RULE FOR COLLECTIVE BARGAINING AGREEMENTS.—In the case of a group health plan maintained pursuant to 1 or more collective bargaining agreements between employee representatives and 1 or more employers ratified before the date of enactment of this Act, the amendments made by this Act shall not apply to plan years beginning before the later of—

(1) the date on which the last collective bargaining agreements relating to the plan terminates (determined without regard to any extension thereof agreed to after the date of enactment of this Act), or

(2) January 1, 2000.

For purposes of paragraph (1), any plan amendment made pursuant to a collective bargaining agreement relating to the plan which amends the plan solely to conform to any requirement added by this Act shall not be treated as a termination of such collective bargaining agreement.

(c) INDIVIDUAL MARKET.—The amendment made by section 3(b) shall apply to health insurance coverage offered, sold, issued, renewed, in effect, or operated in the individual market on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

SEC. 6. RULE OF CONSTRUCTION.

Nothing in this Act shall be construed to require a participating physician to accept designation as a primary care provider.●

By Mr. MURKOWSKI:

S. 698. A bill to review the suitability and feasibility of recovering costs of high altitude rescues at Denali National Park and Preserve in the state of Alaska, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

HIGH ALTITUDE RESCUES AT DENALI NATIONAL PARK AND PRESERVE IN THE STATE OF ALASKA

● Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation that would require the Secretary of the Interior to report to Congress on the feasibility and desirability of recovering the cost to taxpayers of rescuing high altitude climbers on Mt. McKinley in Denali National Park and Preserve in the State of Alaska.

Mr. President, Denali National Park and Preserve attracts approximately 355,000 visitors per year who come to see the wildlife, the grandeur of our State, and to gaze at America's highest peak. Most are unaware that while they are taking in the breathtaking vista that is Mt. McKinley, there are approximately another 1,100 persons per year that are attempting to attain the 20,320 summit.

Climbing Mt. McKinley is certainly no easy walk in the Park. A typical year sees a dozen major rescue incidents and one or two fatal accidents. Extreme and unpredictable weather on Mt. McKinley make high altitude rescues very dangerous and very expensive.

Over the last few years the National Park Service has actively and successfully worked to reduce the loss of life and injury to climbers who have attempted to climb this mountain. The NPS spends more than $750,000 per year for education; pre-positioning supplies and materials at various altitudes on the mountain; the positioning of a special high altitude helicopter in the Park; and actual rescue attempts.

Just last year the military and the Park Service spent four days and $221,818 rescuing 6 sick and injured

British climbers who disregarded warnings and advice from park rangers stationed on the mountain. This rescue included what is probably the world's highest short haul helicopter rescue at 19,000 feet and entailed a very high level of risk for the rescue team. This is just one example of many rescues the Park Service conducts each year on Mt. McKinley.

Mr. President, I personally do not feel that the American taxpayer should be left with the bill for rescues on this mountain. The Federal Government does not force these climbers to climb; they engage in this activity voluntarily and with full knowledge of the risks. While I admire the courage and tenacity of mountain climbers, I do not think it is fair to divert scarce park funds from services that benefit the majority of park visitors for the purpose of providing extraordinarily expensive services to a small number of users who put themselves in harm's way with their eyes wide open. Mountain climbers are a special breed who are proud of their self-sufficiency and independence—and rightly so. For that reason I think they should recognize the simple equity of paying their fair share of the public costs of their sport.

As a result of a recent field hearing on this issue, I found that while I have received many letters of support, there are a few stalwart individuals who do not agree with my point of view and have raised some legitimate questions. That is why I want the Secretary of the Interior to look at the feasibility and desirability of some sort of a cost recovery system that puts a minimal burden on climbers, whether it be an insurance requirement, bonding, or any other proposal. The pros and cons of these cost recovery mechanisms need to be carefully explored before we act.

Last but not least, Mr. President, I want the Secretary to evaluate requiring climbers to show proof of medical insurance so that hospitals in Alaska and elsewhere are not left holding the bag as they sometimes are under present circumstances. It is a good neighbor policy that should be put into effect at the earliest opportunity.●

By Mr. WYDEN (for himself and Mr. BREAUX):

S. 699. A bill to protect the public, especially senior citizens, against telemarketing fraud, including fraud over the Internet, and to authorize an educational campaign to improve senior citizens' ability to protect themselves against telemarketing fraud; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE TELEMARKETING FRAUD AND SENIORS PROTECTION ACT

Mr. WYDEN. Mr. President, online consumer purchases are exploding, having topped more than $8 billion last year. But the goldrush in cyberbuying is likely to carry along with it a boom in cyberfraud. As with telemarketing fraud, fraudulent schemes over the Internet are increasingly aimed at seniors—some of our most vulnerable citizens. Congress can help head-off this cybercrime by extending our current telemarketing laws to encompass fraud on the Net. That is the purpose of the legislation I am introducing today.

In response to the staggering $40 billion consumers lose in telephone fraud each year, Congress passed the 1998 Telemarketing Fraud Prevention Act. I strongly supported that effort. The new law builds upon the four federal laws enacted since the early 1990s that deal directly with telemarketing fraud. The 1998 law stiffens penalties for telemarketing fraud by toughening the sentencing guidelines—especially for crimes against the elderly, requires criminal forfeiture to ensure the booty of telemarketing crime is not used to commit further fraud, mandates victim restitution to ensure victims are the first ones compensated, adds conspiracy language to the list of telemarketing fraud penalties so that prosecutors can find the masterminds behind the boiler rooms, and will help law enforcement zero in on quick-strike fraud operations by giving them the authority to move more quickly against suspected fraud.

The 1998 law is a good step forward but it's not enough to deal with today's digital economy. As more Americans—and especially seniors—go online, cyberscams are proliferating. The Congressional crackdown on telemarketing fraud will only encourage cyberscammers to migrate to the Net unless the law gets there first. That is the purpose of the legislation I am pleased to introduce today with Senator BAUCUS.

The Telemarketing Fraud and Seniors Protection Act, which I introduced last year as S. 2587, simply extends current law against telemarketing fraud to include the same crimes committed over the Internet. The approach expands the existing law applicable to mail, telephone, wire, and television fraud to fraud over the Internet, and its enforcement would follow the same division of labor there is today between the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and the Department of Justice. The bill would apply the same tough penalties that Congress enacted in 1998 to cyberscams. The growth of Internet telephony makes it more attractive for cyberscammers to set up shop offshore, beyond the reach of U.S. law. My bill would address this problem by allowing law enforcement to freeze the assets and deny entry to the United States of those convicted of cyberfraud.

The bill takes special aim against those attempt to defraud one of our most vulnerable groups—our senior citizens. Seniors are the target for more than 50 percent of telemarketing fraud. Although telemarketers convicted of fraud face stiff penalties—a minimum of 5–10 years in jail and restitution payments to their victims, we also need to better educate and inform senior citizens on how to avoid becoming victims of telemarketing fraud in the first place, and how to assist law enforcement in catching the perpetrators.

The legislation would also authorize the Administration on Aging, through its network of area agencies of aging, to conduct an outreach program to senior citizens on telemarketing fraud. Seniors would be advised against providing their credit card number, bank account or other personal information unless they had initiated the call unsolicited. They would also be informed of their consumer protection rights and any toll-free numbers and other resources to report suspected illegal telemarketing.

Mr. President, the Federal Trade Commission is off to a good start against cyberscammers. Some of the operations the FTC has targeted are not companies at all, but merely websites that promise consumers everything from huge new consulting contracts to the elimination of bad credit reports. They may use scare tactics to frighten consumers into sending important personal financial information and hundreds of dollars for services the consumer will never see, or attempt to lure consumers with the promise of helping them cash in on the Internet explosion. The FTC also has a strong operation going against junk e-mailers. My legislation will complement and strengthen the FTC's effort to target telemarketing fraud over the Internet and especially when such fraud is aimed at seniors.

I am pleased to be joined in this effort by Senator BAUCUS. This legislation is similar to that which Rep. Weygand has introduced in the House of Representatives. I urge my colleagues in the Senate to cosponsor this important legislation, and ask unanimous consent that a copy of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 699

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

TITLE I—TELEMARKETING FRAUD AND SENIORS PROTECTION ACT

SEC. 101. SHORT TITLE.

This title may be cited as the "Telemarketing Fraud and Seniors Protection Act".

SEC. 102. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

- (1) Telemarketing fraud costs consumers nearly $40,000,000,000 each year.
- (2) Senior citizens are often the target of telemarketing fraud.
- (3) Fraudulent telemarketers compile into so-called "mooch lists" the names of consumers who are potentially vulnerable to telemarketing fraud.
- (4) According to the American Association of Retired Persons, 56 percent of the names on such "mooch lists" are individuals age 50 or older.
- (5) The Department of Justice has undertaken successful investigations and prosecutions of telemarketing fraud through various operations, including "Operation Disconnect", "Operation Senior Sentinel", and "Operation Upload".

(6) The Federal Bureau of Investigation has helped provide resources to assist organizations such as the American Association of Retired Persons to operate outreach programs designed to warn senior citizens whose names appear on confiscated "mooch lists".

(7) The Administration on Aging was formed, in part, to provide senior citizens with the resources, information, and assistance their special circumstances require.

(8) The Administration on Aging has a system in place to inform senior citizens of the dangers of telemarketing fraud.

(9) Senior citizens need to be warned of the dangers of telemarketing fraud before they become victims of such fraud.

SEC. 103. PURPOSE.

It is the purpose of this title to protect senior citizens, through education and outreach, from the dangers of telemarketing fraud and fraud over the Internet and to facilitate the investigation and prosecution of fraudulent telemarketers.

SEC. 104. DISSEMINATION OF INFORMATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services, acting through the Assistant Secretary of Health and Human Services for Aging, shall publicly disseminate in each State information designed to educate senior citizens and raise awareness about the dangers of telemarketing fraud and fraud over the Internet.

(b) INFORMATION.—In carrying out subsection (a), the Secretary shall—

(1) inform senior citizens of the prevalence of telemarketing fraud targeted against them;

(2) inform senior citizens how telemarketing fraud works;

(3) inform senior citizens how to identify telemarketing fraud;

(4) inform senior citizens how to protect themselves against telemarketing fraud, including an explanation of the dangers of providing bank account, credit card, or other financial or personal information over the telephone to unsolicited callers;

(5) inform senior citizens how to report suspected attempts at telemarketing fraud;

(6) inform senior citizens of their consumer protection rights under Federal law; and

(7) provide such other information as the Secretary considers necessary to protect senior citizens against fraudulent telemarketing.

(c) MEANS OF DISSEMINATION.—The Secretary shall determine the means to disseminate information under this section. In making such determination, the Secretary shall consider—

(1) public service announcements;

(2) a printed manual or pamphlet;

(3) an Internet website; and

(4) telephone outreach to individuals whose names appear on so-called "mooch lists" confiscated from fraudulent telemarketers.

(d) PRIORITY.—In disseminating information under this section, the Secretary shall give priority to areas with high concentrations of senior citizens.

SEC. 105. AUTHORITY TO ACCEPT GIFTS.

The Secretary of Health and Human Services may accept, use, and dispose of unconditional gifts, bequests, or devises of services or property, both real and personal, in order to carry out this title.

SEC. 106. DEFINITION.

For purposes of this title, the term "State" includes the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands.

TITLE II—TELEMARKETING FRAUD OVER THE INTERNET

SEC. 201. EXTENSION OF CRIMINAL FRAUD STATUTE TO INTERNET.

(a) EXTENSION.—Section 1343 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by—

(1) by inserting "(a)" before "Whoever";

(2) in subsection (a), as so designated, by striking "or television communication" and inserting "television, or Internet communication"; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following:

"(b) For purposes of this section, the term 'Internet' means collectively the myriad of computer and telecommunications facilities, including equipment and operating software, which comprise the interconnected worldwide network of networks that employ the Transmission Control Protocol/Internet Protocol, or any predecessor or successor protocols to such protocol, to communicate information of all kinds by wire or radio."

(b) CONFORMING AND CLERICAL AMENDMENTS.—(1) The section heading of such section is amended to read as follows:

"§1343. Fraud by wire, radio, television, or Internet."

(2) The table of sections at the beginning of chapter 63 of that title is amended by striking the item relating to section 1343 and inserting the following new item:

"1343. Fraud by wire, radio, television, or Internet."

SEC. 202. FEDERAL TRADE COMMISSION SANCTIONS.

(a) RULEMAKING TO APPLY SANCTIONS.—The Federal Trade Commission shall initiate a rulemaking proceeding to set forth the application of section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 45), and other statutory provisions within its jurisdiction, to deceptive acts or practices in or affecting the commerce of the United States in connection with the promotion, advertisement, offering for sale, or sale of goods or services through use of the Internet, including the initiation, transmission, and receipt of unsolicited commercial electronic mail.

(b) INTERNET DEFINED.—In this section, the term "Internet" means collectively the myriad of computer and telecommunications facilities, including equipment and operating software, which comprise the interconnected world-wide network of networks that employ the Transmission Control Protocol/Internet Protocol, or any predecessor or successor protocols to such protocol, to communicate information of all kinds by wire or radio.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself and Mr. INOUE):

S. 700. A bill to amend the National Trails System Act to designate the Ala Kahakai Trail as a National Historic Trail; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

ALA KAHAKAI NATIONAL HISTORIC TRAIL ACT

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, along with my senior colleague from Hawaii, Senator DAN INOUE, today I am introducing legislation to authorize designation of the Ala Kahakai ("Trail by the Sea"), on the Island of Hawaii, as a National Historic Trail.

The Ala Kahakai is the modern name for an approximately 175-mile portion of the ancient shoreline footpath, the Ala Loa ("Long Trail"), that once circumscribed the island of Hawaii. The Ala Loa served as the major land route connecting more than 600 communities of the island kingdom of Hawaii between the 15th and 18th centuries. It is associated with many prehistoric and historic housing areas, most of the royal centers and temples of the island, a number of major battles, and the facilitation of government functions such as tax collection.

Of more recent significance, a key section of the trail is associated with the series of events that unfolded between 1779 and 1820 that had lasting consequences for Hawaiian cultural evolution: Captain Cook's landing and subsequent death at Kealahou Bay in 1779; Kamehameha's rise to power and consolidation of the Hawaiian Islands under monarchical rule; the death of Kamehameha I in 1819, followed by the overthrow of the ancient religious system, the kapu; and, finally, the arrival of the first Western missionaries in 1820.

Interest in preserving this important Hawaiian cultural legacy has been growing since the 1970s, when the State of Hawaii began developing Na Ala Hele ("Trails for Walking"), a proposal for cooperative management of the statewide trail system. In 1988, the concept evolved into the Hawaii Statewide Trail and Access System, whose mission is to develop trail access while conserving Hawaii's environmental and cultural heritage.

The Na Ala Hele planning process called for the development of a demonstration trail for each of Hawaii's major islands, including a 35-mile demonstration trail on the Big Island of Hawaii. In introduced legislation (P.L. 120-361) in 1992 proposing that NPS study whether an expanded, 175-mile version of the Big Island trail, the Ala Kahakai, should be incorporated into the National Trails System.

Pursuant to P.L. 120-461, the National Park Service undertook a study to evaluate the desirability and feasibility of establishing the Ala Kahakai as a national trail. In January 1998, after a long process of consultation with federal, state, local authorities and other interests, and after a period of public review, the study ("Ala Kahakai National Trail Study and Final Environmental Impact Statement") was completed. In August 1998, the Secretary of the Interior, with the concurrence of the National Park System Advisory Board, endorsed the study's principle recommendation that the Ala Kahakai be designated a National Historic Trail.

According to the study, the trail meets all of the three criteria for historic trail designation. To wit: it must be a trail or route established by historic use and must be historically significant as result of that use; it must be of national significance with respect to any of several broad facets of American history, such as trade and commerce, exploration, migration and settlement, or military campaigns; and, it must have significant potential for public recreational use or historical interest based on historic interpretation and appreciation.

In addition, the study suggested that the trail not only qualifies for designation as a National Historic Trail, but that it has the potential to be designated a National Scenic Trail (although to do so would trivialize its historical and cultural significance) and may well be eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

The study presented four alternatives for the management of the Ala Kahakai: (a) no action, (b) a national historic trail (continuous), (c) a state historic trail, and a national historic trail (discontinuous)—ultimately recommending alternative “b” as the best means to preserve and restore the trail and maximize public access to the entire route. The preferred alternative assumes recognition of a continuous route that, over time, could become continuous on the ground.

It is fairly clear that reestablishing the 175-mile route is physically possible. Although some parts of the trail have been covered by lava, eroded by tides, or otherwise sustained damage from natural and human processes, these sections can be bridged through recreational trail links. In some cases, the trail can be rebuilt using traditional construction methods.

About half (93 miles, or 53 percent) of the proposed trail is in local, state, or federal government ownership, and 82 miles cross private lands. Of the latter, 16 miles have been dedicated, through planning requirements, as public land. Of the remaining 66 miles of trail on private lands, as much as 35 miles are classified as “ancient trail” and thus claimable as state-owned under Hawaiian law. For the remaining sections of trail that are not ancient trail, or for which the state’s claim has been forfeited in some way, landowner participation would be entirely voluntary.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to support this legislation, which is key to preserving and interpreting an important Hawaiian legacy that is threatened by time, neglect, and modern activity. The Ala Kahakai boasts more cultural and historical resources than any other trail in the National Trails System. Its designation as a national historic trail would help us preserve one of the most important and evocative legacies of Hawaii’s indigenous history and culture. I hope that Congress will act quickly on this measure, to ensure that the trail can be developed as a resource for all Americans to enjoy.

Thank you, Mr. President. This measure is supported by State and local authorities as well as a wide spectrum of community organizations. I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill, a letter of support from Hawaii Governor Ben Cayetano, as well as the Department of Interior’s Record of Decision on this issue be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 700

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Ala Kahakai National Historic Trail Act”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds that—

(1) the Ala Kahakai (Trail by the Sea) is an important part of the ancient trail known as the “Ala Loa” (the long trail), which circumscribes the island of Hawaii;

(2) the Ala Loa was the major land route connecting 600 or more communities of the island kingdom of Hawaii from 1400 to 1700;

(3) the trail is associated with many prehistoric and historic housing areas of the island of Hawaii, nearly all the royal centers, and most of the major temples of the island;

(4) the use of the Ala Loa is also associated with many rulers of the kingdom of Hawaii, with battlefields and the movement of armies during their reigns, and with annual taxation;

(5) the use of the trail played a significant part in events that affected Hawaiian history and culture, including—

(A) Captain Cook’s landing and subsequent death in 1779;

(B) Kamehameha I’s rise to power and consolidation of the Hawaiian Islands under monarchical rule; and

(C) the death of Kamehameha in 1819, followed by the overthrow of the ancient religious system, the Kapu, and the arrival of the first western missionaries in 1820; and

(6) the trail—

(A) was used throughout the 19th and 20th centuries and continues in use today; and

(B) contains a variety of significant cultural and natural resources.

SEC. 3. AUTHORIZATION AND ADMINISTRATION.

Section 5(a) of the National Trails System Act (16 U.S.C. 1244(a)) is amended—

(1) by designating the paragraphs relating to the California National Historic Trail, the Pony Express National Historic Trail, and the Selma to Montgomery National Historic Trail as paragraphs (18), (19), and (20), respectively; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

“(21) ALA KAHAKAI NATIONAL HISTORIC TRAIL.—

“(A) IN GENERAL.—The Ala Kahakai National Historic Trail (the Trail by the Sea), a 175 mile long trail extending from Upolu Point on the north tip of Hawaii Island down the west coast of the Island around Ka Lae to the east boundary of Hawaii Volcanoes National Park at the ancient shoreline temple known as ‘Wahaulu’, as generally depicted on the map entitled ‘Ala Kahakai Trail’, contained in the report prepared pursuant to subsection (b) entitled ‘Ala Kahakai National Trail Study and Environmental Impact Statement’, dated January 1998.

“(B) MAP.—A map generally depicting the trail shall be on file and available for public inspection in the Office of the National Park Service, Department of the Interior.

“(C) ADMINISTRATION.—The trail shall be administered by the Secretary of the Interior.

“(D) LAND ACQUISITION.—No land or interest in land outside the exterior boundaries of any federally administered area may be acquired by the United States for the trail except with the consent of the owner of the land or interest in land.

“(E) PUBLIC PARTICIPATION; CONSULTATION.—The Secretary of the Interior shall—

“(i) encourage communities and owners of land along the trail, native Hawaiians, and volunteer trail groups to participate in the planning, development, and maintenance of the trail; and

“(ii) consult with affected Federal, State, and local agencies, native Hawaiian groups, and landowners in the administration of the trail.”.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBERS,

Honolulu, July 1, 1998.

Subject: Congressional Nomination of the Ala Kahakai National Historic Trail on Hawaii.

JOHN J. REYNOLDS,

Regional Director, National Park Service, Pacific West Region, Pacific Great Basin Support Office, San Francisco, CA.

DEAR MR. REYNOLDS: This letter is in regards to the potential inclusion of the historic Ala Kahakai alignment on the island of Hawaii as a part of the National Trail System. Senator Daniel K. Akaka and Senator Daniel K. Inouye introduced federal legislation in 1992, that authorized the National Park Service (NPS) to conduct a National Trail Study and Environmental Impact Statement (NTS/EIS) for the United States Congress, to determine if the Ala Kahakai qualified as a National Historic Trail and to also determine the feasibility of implementing the project.

During the NTS/EIS process, NPS conducted four informational meetings on the island of Hawaii to solicit public sentiment on the possible National Trail status and on the four proposed management scenarios identified in the draft NTS/EIS. The final NTS/EIS recommends inclusion of the Ala Kahakai in the National Trail System, through implementation of Alternative B, which establishes NPS administration and oversight of the trail in coordination with the state and county. The State of Hawaii concurs with Alternative B, but with the following concerns: (1) Congressional approval of Ala Kahakai as a National Trail, without the commensurate funding, may actually contribute to the decline of the associated natural and cultural resources due to the probable resulting increase in public demand for access to the trail and related resources, and (2) it is also imperative that the concerns of native Hawaiians and adjacent private landowners are addressed during development of the management plan.

I commend the NPS in their treatment of the Ala Kahakai in the NTS/EIS, and support Congressional approval of the National Trail designation. The Ala Kahakai is a very significant cultural and recreational resource, and a formal partnership among all the participating agencies, Hawaiian cultural representatives, landowners, trail user groups and individuals will help to assure the sustainability of this valuable historic trail.

With warmest personal regards,

Aloha,

BENJAMIN J. CAYETANO.

FINAL ENVIRONMENTAL IMPACT STATEMENT—RECORD OF DECISION

Summary: Pursuant to §102(2)(C) of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 and the regulations promulgated by the Council on Environmental Quality (40 CFR Part 1500), the Department of the Interior, National Park Service has prepared this Record of Decision for the Final Environmental Impact Statement for the National Trail Study for Ala Kahakai. This 175-mile trail is located parallel to the western and southern shoreline of the Island of Hawaii, from Upolu Point on the north to the eastern boundary of Hawaii Volcanoes National Park. This document is a concise statement of decisions made, alternatives considered, basis for the decision, and mitigating measures developed to avoid or minimize environmental impacts.

Recommendation: This National Trail Study (Study) and Final Environmental Impact Statement (FEIS) were prepared to provide the United States Congress and the public with information about the resources in the study area and how they relate to criteria for the National Trails System (System). The decision on whether to designate the Ala Kahakai as a National Historic Trail will be made by Congress after transmittal of the Study and Record of Decision (ROD) by the Secretary of the Interior. The National Park Service (NPS) recommends Alternative B, National Historic Trail (continuous), as the environmentally preferred alternative (and which is described in the FEIS for which the Notice of Availability was published in the Federal Register on April 29, 1998). Out of four alternatives identified and analyzed, the recommended alternative offers the best opportunity to protect trail resources, educate the public about the history and significant of the island shoreline trail, or ala loa, and the Hawaiian culture, and provide high quality recreation. The Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) for the Study did not recommend on alternative. The DEIS was issued in July 1997, and the public review period ended on October 17, 1997.

Findings: The NPS concludes that the Ala Kahakai meets the three criteria as a National Historic Trail as outlined in the National Trails System Act. The NPS also concludes that establishing a continuous trail is physically feasible.

The NPS concludes that desirability of recognizing the trail rest on two key items: first; communities along the way, native Hawaiians, and landowners all be involved in planning and implementing the trail; and second, adequate funding must be ensured at the time the trail is designated to protect cultural and natural resources. If the trail is designated without adequate funding at the outset, resources may be more threatened by unregulated increase public use then they already are.

The National Park System Advisory Committee agreed at their November 1997 meeting that the Ala Kahakai does have National Historic Significance based on the criteria developed under the Historic Sites Act of 1935.

Recommended Alternative: Under this alternative, National Historic Trail (continuous), Alternative B, the trail would be recognized as a continuous route and over time would become continuous on the ground. Intact segments of the prehistoric and historic ala loa would be preserved and protected in place. These segments would be linked with later trails or reconstructed trails, as feasible, to create a continuous trail. It is anticipated that, once records of title are reviewed, most of the trail will be owned in fee simple by the state and reserved for use of the public under the Highways Act of 1892. The NPS would administer and have oversight of the trail in close coordination with the state and county. Nonfederally-owned portions of the trail would become official components of the National Trail only through agreements with landowners or land managers.

The NPS would prepare a management plan with the active involvement of native Hawaiians, landowners, trail users, and other interested groups and individuals. An advisory council would be appointed by the Secretary of the Interior. The National Trail would be interpreted as a portion of the ancient ala loa and as a traditional cultural property of continuing importance to native Hawaiians. The management plan would include a uniform marker for identifying the trail. State and local agencies, private landowners, local groups, and individuals would manage the trail on the ground. Natural, cultural, and ethnographic resources would be inventoried and protected before trail segments would be promoted for public use. No Federal land acquisition is anticipated (it is expected that any legislation designating the trail would include language prohibiting land acquisition except with the consent of the owner). All current State and County land use regulations would continue to apply to lands adjacent to the trail.

Estimated federal costs for this alternative (presented in the FEIS in 1997 dollars) are as follows: management plan and initial brochure, $275,000; phased costs (archaeological surveys and ethnography, trail identification, restoration, and construction), trailhead and campsite development, facility planning) $3,679,000; and annual operations cost, $265,000.

Other Alternatives Considered: Three other alternatives were considered. The No-Action Alternative, Alternative A, would result in continuing the present conditions. The Ala Kahakai would remain as the 35-mile state demonstration trail. Piecemeal trail and resource protection would be reactionary as development or other threats occur. The trail would be a disconnected series of trail segments emphasizing lateral shoreline access. Over time, as records of title are researched for various reasons, most of the 175-mile trail would be owned in fee simple by the state and reserved for public use, but the ala loa and its role in the lives of ancient and contemporary Hawaiians would not be consistently recognized and interpreted. There would be no overall administration of the trail as a unified whole as part of a system of island trails.

The State Historic Trail Alternative, Alternative C, would require state legislation to recognize the 175-mile trail as a continuous portion of the ala loa. The legislation would outline the requirements of a state management plan and the needs for protection of resources. It is anticipated that the state trails and access program, Nā Ala Hele, would administer the trail. To achieve the vision for the trail, the state would need to appropriate funds specifically for the planning, protection, development, interpretation, and maintenance of the trail. Since the state is likely to own most of the trail in fee simple, this alternative would appear to be viable.

The National Historic Trail (discontinuous) Alternative, Alternative D, would be similar to Alternative B, except that the trail would be recognized as a continuous route, but only intact prehistoric and historic sections would be protected and interpreted for the public. The trail would not be continuous on the ground.

Four additional options were considered but rejected as non-viable.

Basis for the Recommendation: In 1992, the U.S. Congress enacted legislation providing for a study of the potential inclusion of the Ala Kahakai into the System. National Trail Studies must determine whether a trail meets eligibility requirements and whether it is feasible and desirable to add it to the System. The NPS found the trail meets the eligibility criteria, and determined it to be feasible and desirable to designate it as a unit of the System if certain conditions are met.

In addition, National Trail Studies analyze a range of conceptual alternatives for managing the trail, including a no-action, a national trail, and other feasible alternatives. It is NPS policy to fulfill its conservation planning-impact analysis and other stewardship obligations through preparing an EIS for National Trail Studies. Also as a matter of policy, the NPS recommends an alternative, fully recognizing that Congress is the decision-making body.

Each alternative in the Ala Kahakai FEIS considers natural, cultural, scenic and visual, and recreational resources, and the socio-economic environment. Of the four alternatives, the recommended alternative offers the best opportunity to protect trail resources, educate the public about the history and significance of the ala loa and the Hawaiian culture, and provide high quality recreation. It would treat the 175-mile trail as a single system, rather than as a series of unrelated segments, providing a context for protection and interpretation. This approach would better protect the resources than the piecemeal approach provided under Alternative A, No-Action, or the segmented approach under Alternative D, National Historic Trail (discontinuous). Under the No-Action Alternative, trail resources could be lost to continuing development and lack of public awareness of trail resource values. Opportunities would be lost to interpret the Ala Kahakai as part of the ala loa. Further, Alternative C, State Historic Trail, may appear to be a likely management scenario (since the state anticipates that it will own most of the trail once land titles are investigated), but the State does not appear to have the funds or enough staff to plan for and manage the entire trail. The recommended alternative would allow NPS administration, coordination, oversight, and technical assistance to bolster state and local management of the trail.

Measures to Minimize Harm: The FEIS addresses conceptual management options for the Ala Kahakai. Supplementary conservation planning and impact analysis would be necessary, in conjunction with preparing a management plan; tiered environmental documents for specific trail projects would be prepared as they occur and as appropriate. The FEIS includes practicable means at a programmatic level to avoid or minimize environmental harm. For instance, it is essential that no section of trail be opened for public use unless and until a management plan, prepared in concert with landowners and native Hawaiians along the segment, is completed and maintenance and protection of cultural and natural resources provided for. Cultural resources and traditional cultural properties would be identified and ethnographies prepared. Native Hawaiian cultural experts would advise on planning and managing the trail. Native Hawaiians, landowners, communities along the way, trail users, and others would be involved in planning for and managing the trail. Natural resources (which are often perceived as cultural resources to Native Hawaiians) would be inventoried and measures taken to protect archaeological sites and threatened and endangered species before any portion of the trail is promoted for public use. Anchialine ponds would be identified and inventoried and a range of protection measures considered before encouraging trail use near them. Effects of trail use on cultural and natural resources would be monitored as feasible and appropriate.

Public Review: The DEIS was developed after public scoping through five public meetings, numerous agency and organization meetings, distribution of meeting summaries, and a newsletter series. Alternatives were developed through a workshop process, and an initial opportunity for public contributions was afforded through a newsletter with response form. The DEIS was issued in late July 1997 and the public review period ended on October 17, 1997. Also during this period the NPS conducted four public meetings and received 67 written comments during the 60-day public review period. The FEIS (noticed in the Federal Register on April 29, 1998) included responses to 39 letters from agencies, landowners, organizations, and individuals who raised specific issues. In general, the landowners who commented on the DEIS preferred the No Action Alternative, and the organizations and individuals who responded preferred the National Historic Trail (continuous) Alternative. No significant new issues were raised which would require the development of a new alternative, although the FEIS clarified the impacts to land use section, the intent of Alternative B, and revised the cost estimate. The 30-day no-action period began on April 3, 1998 and ended on May 4, 1998.

During the no-action period, two typographic corrections were noted (and are incorporated by reference):

1. On page 39, the abbreviation for MLCD is several times.

2. On page 49, the name "Kekaha Kai" is misspelled.

Also during this period several comments were received. These communications neither surfaced new issues or concerns, nor provided information to add to the FEIS. However, since the FEIS provided the first public opportunity to review the NPS recommendation, all comments received are summarized below to ensure that Congress and interested parties are fully apprised of all views. Moreover, all written communications received during the entire environmental compliance process are on file in the NPS's Pacific Great Basin Support Office in San Francisco.

COMMENTS SUPPORTING THE RECOMMENDATION

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service supported the recommendation and expressed interest in working with the NPS, the state, and all cooperators on management strategies to protect endangered plants and animals, and their habitats, if the trail is designated a National Historic Trail.

A Hawaii County Council member supported the recommendation; his letter is attached to the Record of Decision at the request of Senator Daniel Akaka.

E Mau Nā Ala Hele, a non-profit trails support group, supported the recommendation and emphasized the need for local control and management.

Wailea Property Owners' Association generally supported the recommendation, but noted concerns for litter, waste, and crime, and requested that the trail be non-motorized.

Several individuals wrote, e-mailed, or telephoned their support for the recommendation.

COMMENTS SUPPORTING OTHER OPTIONS

The President of Ka Ohana O KaLae, a Puna District kinship group, rejected all alternatives because the coastal area "must fall under jurisdiction of the Native Hawaiian tenant living in that particular portion of ahupuaa."

Waikoloa Resort supported Alternative A and indicated it would not cooperate with Federal designation of the trail.

Kona Kohala Resort Association supported Alternative A and expressed concern about increased landowner burden under the recommended alternative.

Chalon International continued to question not including the entire "Cordy report" in the FEIS.

Kamehameha Schools Bernice Pauahi Bishop Estate reiterated their belief that the Ala Kahakai is a collection of fragmented remnants and thus opposed designation of a National Trail along the Hawaii coastline.

Skycliff Investment, L.L.C. questioned the listing in Appendix G of 0.89 miles of the Ala Kahakai passing over their property. As new owners they did not have the opportunity to comment on the DEIS. They cautioned avoidance of regulatory taking without compensation and asked to be consulted on any developments related to the Ala Kahakai Study.

The Hawaii Leeward Planning Conference restated concerns noted in the FEIS.

Oceanside 1250 wrote three letters: one commented on other letters included in the FEIS; the other two restated concerns noted in the FEIS.

Conclusion: The National Trail Study, Draft and Final EIS, and Record of Decision will be transmitted to Congress by the Secretary of the Interior. The decision on whether to designate the Ala Kahakai as a National Historic Trail will be made by Congress.

U.S. SENATE,
Washington, DC, April 24, 1998.

SUPERINTENDENT,
Pacific Great Basin Support Office, National Park Service, San Francisco, CA.

DEAR SUPERINTENDENT: Please include the enclosed remarks of J. Curtis Tyler III, Council Member, County Council of Hawaii, as part of the public comment record on the National Trail Study and Final Environmental Impact Statement for the Ala Kahakai.

Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Aloha pumehana,

DANIEL K. AKAKA,
U.S. Senator.

Enclosure.

COUNTY COUNCIL,
COUNTY OF HAWAII,
Hilo HI, April 13, 1998.

Re: Final EIS, Ala Kahakai, Hawai'i Island.

DANIEL K. AKAKA,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR AKAKA: I have reviewed a copy of the above referenced study and wish to submit the following brief comments:

As a Native Hawaiian and an elected public official, I encourage the Congress and National Park Service to include Ala Kahakai in the National Trail System. I believe that, as both a traditional cultural and public resource, this trail is totally unique and of enormous significance and value. Therefore, its conservation and protection are extremely important, not only to present and future generations of Native Hawaiians, but to the general public as well.

I believe that inclusion of this trail will afford greater opportunities to attract the resources necessary to conserve and protect it. This is especially important in light of the fiscal and other constraints now being experienced in the State of Hawaii.

I am aware that some feel inclusion may further compromise this special asset, but I am confident that, as long as the trail remains a part of the public trust, and there is a willingness and open mechanism to consider and implement the perspectives and wishes of local residents, including Native Hawaiians, the end result will be superior to leaving this matter only in the hands of state and local governments.

Finally, I wish to commend you and all those who have worked on this project. In my opinion, the work has been done in a sensitive and thorough manner, and demonstrates a true commitment on your part to seek and ensure that the life of this land will continue to be perpetuated in that which is pono.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this important matter. Please do not hesitate to contact me if I can be of further assistance.

Sincerely,

J. CURTIS TYLER, III,
Council Member, District 8.

By Mr. MOYNIHAN (for himself and Mr. SCHUMER):

S. 701. A bill to designate the Federal building located at 290 Broadway in New York, New York, as the "Ronald H. Brown Federal Building"; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

RONALD H. BROWN FEDERAL BUILDING

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I rise with my colleague Senator SCHUMER to introduce a bill to honor and remember a truly exceptional American, Ronald H. Brown. The bill would designate the newly constructed Federal building located at 290 Broadway in the heart of lower Manhattan as the "Ronald H. Brown Federal Building."

It is a fitting gesture to recognize the passing of this remarkable American, and I would ask for my colleagues' support for this legislation to place one more marker in history on Ron Brown's behalf.

Ron Brown had a great love for enterprise and industry as reflected in his achievements as the first African-American to hold the office of U.S. Secretary of Commerce. His was also a life of outstanding achievement and public service: Army captain; vice president of the National Urban League; partner in a prestigious law firm; chairman of the Democratic National Committee; husband and father. And these are but a few of the achievements that demonstrated Ron Brown's spirited and sweeping pursuit of life.

To have held any one of these posts in the government, and in the private sector, is extraordinary. To have held all of the positions he did and prevail as he did, is unique. Ron Brown was tragically taken from us too soon; we are diminished by his loss. I cannot think of a more fitting tribute to this uncommon man.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the Ronald H. Brown Federal Building Designation Act of 1999, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 701

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. DESIGNATION OF RONALD H BROWN FEDERAL BUILDING.

The Federal building located at 290 Broadway in New York, New York, shall be known and designated as the "Ronald H. Brown Federal Building".

SEC. 2 REFERENCES.

Any reference in a law, map, regulation, document, paper, or other record of the United States to the building referred to in section 1 shall be deemed to be a reference to the "Ronald H. Brown Federal Building".

• Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I am honored to join my colleague, the Senior Senator from New York, PAT MOYNIHAN, to introduce this bill to honor Ronald H. Brown, a gifted and committed public servant. This legislation, which we offer in concert with a similar measure authored by our friend and House colleague Congressman Charles Rangel, would designate the newly constructed Federal building at 290 Broadway in Manhattan as the "Ronald H. Brown Federal Building."

A New Yorker raised on Lennox Avenue in Harlem, Ron Brown loved his country and ultimately gave his life in service to it. An Army captain, vice-president of the National Urban League, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Ron Brown became the first African-American to serve as Secretary of Commerce in 1993, breathing new life and purpose into that agency. President Clinton, in praising Brown's work there, once told Commerce Department employees that Brown "was one of the best advisors and ablest people I ever knew."

Brown's life was marked by a passion, and determination, to ensure that the promise of liberty and opportunity rang true for all Americans. At the Urban League and then at the DNC, he worked ceaselessly to promote civil rights and economic development for minorities. Later as Secretary of Commerce, Ron Brown traversed the globe in efforts to remove trade barriers and reinforce the American values of fair labor practices and human rights.

Less than three years ago, we lost Secretary Brown and 32 American businessmen, Commerce employees, and military personnel in a tragic plane crash in Croatia. Today we offer this measure as our tribute. A uniquely talented and beloved man, Ron Brown is sorely missed.

By Mr. HARKIN (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. KERRY, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. INOUE, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. KENNEDY, Ms. MIKULSKI, and Mrs. MURRAY):

S. 702. A bill to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to prohibit discrimination in the payment of wages on account of sex, race, or national origin, and for other purposes; to the committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

FAIR PAY ACT OF 1999

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, there is perhaps no other form of discrimination that has as direct an impact on the day-to-day lives of workers as wage discrimination. A recent survey of working women found receiving fair pay is one of their top concerns. When women aren't paid what they're worth, we all get cheated. That's why we are introducing the Fair Pay Act of 1999—to ensure equal pay for work of equal value for all Americans.

The Equal Pay Act of 1963 prohibits sex-based discrimination in compensation for doing the same job. However, this statute fails to address other major parts of the pay equity problem such as job segregation. Current law has not reached far enough to combat wage discrimination when employers routinely pay lower wages to jobs that are dominated by women. More than 30 years after the passage of the Equal Pay Act, women's wages still seriously lag behind their male counterparts' wages. The central problem is that we continue to undervalue and underpay work done by women.

The Fair Pay Act is designed to pick up where the Equal Pay Act left off. The heart of the bill seeks to eliminate wage discrimination based upon sex, race or national origin. This important legislation would amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to make it illegal for employers to discriminate against women and minorities by paying them less in jobs that are comparable in skill, effort, responsibility and working conditions.

The Fair Pay Act would apply to each company individually and would prohibit companies from reducing other employees' wages to achieve pay equity. Seven states have passed and implemented laws to close the wage gap for state employees and they didn't go bankrupt doing it. Canada also passed similar pay equity laws that apply to both the government and private sectors.

Wage gaps can result from differences in education, experience or time in the workforce and the Fair Pay Act in no way interferes with that. But just as there is a glass ceiling in the American workplace, there is also a "Glass Wall" encountered by women who have similar skills and have the similar responsibilities as their male counterparts, but still do not receive the same pay.

For example, a study of Los Angeles County employees showed social workers were paid $35,000 a year while probation officers were paid $55,000. That's a $20,000 difference, although the jobs required similar skills, education and working conditions. This is what the Fair Pay Act aims to fix.

A February 1999 report by the Institute for Women's Policy Research and the AFL-CIO found that families lose an average of $3,446 a year because of unequal pay in female-dominated jobs. That's $420,000 over a lifetime of the average woman.

Mr. President, persistent wage gaps for working women and people of color and the earnings inequality these gaps connote translate into lower pay, less family income and more poverty for working families. The solution, long overdue, is fair pay for women and minority workers.

Please join us in support of Fair Pay Act of 1999.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill and a summary of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 702

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE AND REFERENCE.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the "Fair Pay Act of 1999".

(b) REFERENCE.—Except as provided in section 8, whenever in this Act an amendment or repeal is expressed in terms of an amendment to, or repeal of, a section or other provision, the reference shall be considered to be made to a section or other provision of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 201 et seq.).

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Wage rate differentials exist between equivalent jobs segregated by sex, race, and national origin in Government employment and in industries engaged in commerce or in the production of goods for commerce.

(2) The existence of such wage rate differentials—

(A) depresses wages and living standards for employees necessary for their health and efficiency;

(B) prevents the maximum utilization of the available labor resources;

(C) tends to cause labor disputes, thereby burdening, affecting, and obstructing commerce;

(D) burdens commerce and the free flow of goods in commerce; and

(E) constitutes an unfair method of competition.

(3) Discrimination in hiring and promotion has played a role in maintaining a segregated work force.

(4) Many women and people of color work in occupations dominated by individuals of their same sex, race, and national origin.

(5)(A) A General Accounting Office analysis of wage rates in the civil service of the State of Washington found that in 1985 of the 44 jobs studied that paid less than the average of all equivalent jobs, approximately 39 percent were female-dominated and approximately 16 percent were male dominated.

(B) A study of wage rates in Minnesota using 1990 Decennial Census data found that 75 percent of the wage rate differential between white and non-white workers was unexplained and may be a result of discrimination.

(6) Section 6(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 prohibits discrimination in compensation for "equal work" on the basis of sex.

(7) Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 prohibits discrimination in compensation because of race, color, religion, national origin, and sex. The Supreme Court, in its decision in County of Washington v. Gunther, 452 U.S. 161 (1981), held that title VII's prohibition against discrimination in compensation also applies to jobs that do not constitute "equal work" as defined in section 6(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938. Decisions of lower courts, however, have demonstrated that further clarification of existing legislation is necessary in order effectively to carry out the intent of Congress to implement the Supreme Court's holding in its Gunther decision.

(8) Artificial barriers to the elimination of discrimination in compensation based upon sex, race, and national origin continue to exist more than 3 decades after the passage of section 6(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Elimination of such barriers would have positive effects, including—

(A) providing a solution to problems in the economy created by discrimination through wage rate differentials;

(B) substantially reducing the number of working women and people of color earning low wages, thereby reducing the dependence on public assistance; and

(C) promoting stable families by enabling working family members to earn a fair rate of pay.

SEC. 3. EQUAL PAY FOR EQUIVALENT JOBS.

(a) AMENDMENT.—Section 6 (29 U.S.C. 206) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(h)(1)(A)(i) Except as provided in clause (ii), no employer having employees subject to any provision of this section shall discriminate, within any establishment in which such employees are employed, between employees on the basis of sex, race, or national origin by paying wages to employees in such establishment in a job that is dominated by employees of a particular sex, race, or national origin at a rate less than the rate at which the employer pays wages to employees in such establishment in another job that is dominated by employees of the opposite sex or of a different race or national origin, respectively, for work on equivalent jobs.

"(ii) Nothing in clause (i) shall prohibit the payment of different wage rates to employees where such payment is made pursuant to—

- "(I) a seniority system;
- "(II) a merit system; or
- "(III) a system that measures earnings by quantity or quality of production.

"(iii) The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall issue guidelines specifying criteria for determining whether a job is dominated by employees of a particular sex, race, or national origin. Such guidelines shall not include a list of such jobs.

"(B) An employer who is paying a wage rate differential in violation of subparagraph (A) shall not, in order to comply with the provisions of such subparagraph, reduce the wage rate of any employee.

"(2) No labor organization or its agents representing employees of an employer having employees subject to any provision of this section shall cause or attempt to cause such an employer to discriminate against an employee in violation of paragraph (1)(A).

"(3) For purposes of administration and enforcement of this subsection, any amounts owing to any employee that have been withheld in violation of paragraph (1)(A) shall be deemed to be unpaid minimum wages or unpaid overtime compensation under this section or section 7.

"(4) As used in this subsection:

"(A) The term 'labor organization' means any organization of any kind, or any agency or employee representation committee or plan, in which employees participate and which exists for the purpose, in whole or in part, of dealing with employers concerning grievances, labor disputes, wages, rates of pay, hours of employment, or conditions of work.

"(B) The term 'equivalent jobs' means jobs that may be dissimilar, but whose requirements are equivalent, when viewed as a composite of skills, effort, responsibility, and working conditions."

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 13(a) (29 U.S.C. 213(a)) is amended in the matter before paragraph (1) by striking "section 6(d)" and inserting "sections 6(d) and 6(h)".

SEC. 4. PROHIBITED ACTS.

Section 15(a) (29 U.S.C. 215(a)) is amended—
(1) by striking the period at the end of paragraph (5) and inserting a semicolon; and
(2) by adding after paragraph (5) the following new paragraphs:

"(6) to discriminate against any individual because such individual has opposed any act or practice made unlawful by section 6(h) or because such individual made a charge, testified, assisted, or participated in any manner in an investigation, proceeding, or hearing to enforce section 6(h); or

"(7) to discharge or in any other manner discriminate against, coerce, intimidate, threaten, or interfere with any employee or any other person because the employee inquired about, disclosed, compared, or otherwise discussed the employee's wages or the wages of any other employee, or because the employee exercised, enjoyed, aided, or encouraged any other person to exercise or enjoy any right granted or protected by section 6(h)."

SEC. 5. REMEDIES.

Section 16 (29 U.S.C. 216) is amended—

(1) by adding at the end the following:

"(f) In any action brought under this section for violation of section 6(h), the court shall, in addition to any other remedies awarded to the prevailing plaintiff or plaintiffs, allow expert fees as part of the costs. Any such action may be maintained as a class action as provided by the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure."

(2) in subsection (b), by striking "section 15(a)(3)" each place it occurs and inserting "paragraphs (3), (6), and (7) of section 15(a)"; and

(3) in the fourth sentence of subsection (b), by striking "No employees" and inserting "Except with respect to class actions brought under subsection (f), no employees".

SEC. 6. RECORDS.

(a) TECHNICAL AMENDMENT.—Section 11(c) (29 U.S.C. 211(c)) is amended by inserting "(1)" after "(c)".

(b) RECORDS.—Section 11(c) (as amended by subsection (a)) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"(2)(A) Every employer subject to section 6(h) shall preserve records that document and support the method, system, calculations, and other bases used by the employer in establishing, adjusting, and determining the wage rates paid to the employees of the employer. Every employer subject to section 6(h) shall preserve such records for such periods of time, and shall make such reports from the records to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, as shall be prescribed by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission by regulation or order as necessary or appropriate for the enforcement of the provisions of section 6(h) or any regulation promulgated pursuant to section 6(h)."

(c) SMALL BUSINESS EXEMPTIONS.—Section 11(c) (as amended by subsections (a) and (b)) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"(B)(i) Every employer subject to section 6(h) that has 25 or more employees on any date during the first or second year after the effective date of this paragraph, or 15 or more employees on any date during any subsequent year after such second year, shall, in accordance with regulations promulgated by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under subparagraph (F), prepare and submit to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission for the year involved a report signed by the president, treasurer, or corresponding principal officer, of the employer that includes information that discloses the wage rates paid to employees of the employer in each classification, position, or job title, or to employees in other wage groups employed by the employer, including information with respect to the sex, race, and national origin of employees at each wage rate in each classification, position, job title, or other wage group."

(d) PROTECTION OF CONFIDENTIALITY.—Section 11(c) (as amended by subsections (a) through (c)) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"(ii) The rules and regulations promulgated by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under subparagraph (F), relating to the form of such a report, shall include requirements to protect the confidentiality of employees, including a requirement that the report shall not contain the name of any individual employee."

(e) USE; INSPECTIONS; EXAMINATIONS; REGULATIONS.—Section 11(c) (as amended by sub-sections (a) through (d)) is further amended by adding at the end the following:

"(C) The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission may publish any information and data that the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission obtains pursuant to the provisions of subparagraph (B). The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission may use the information and data for statistical and research purposes, and compile and publish such studies, analyses, reports, and surveys based on the information and data as the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission may consider appropriate.

"(D) In order to carry out the purposes of this Act, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall by regulation make reasonable provision for the inspection and examination by any person of the information and data contained in any report submitted to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission pursuant to subparagraph (B).

"(E) The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall by regulation provide for the furnishing of copies of reports submitted to the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission pursuant to subparagraph (B) to any person upon payment of a charge based upon the cost of the service.

"(F) The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall issue rules and regulations prescribing the form and content of reports required to be submitted under subparagraph (B) and such other reasonable rules and regulations as the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission may find necessary to prevent the circumvention or evasion of such reporting requirements. In exercising the authority of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission under subparagraph (B), the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission may prescribe by general rule simplified reports for employers for whom the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission finds that because of the size of the employers a detailed report would be unduly burdensome."

SEC. 7. RESEARCH, EDUCATION, AND TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAM; REPORT TO CONGRESS.

Section 4(d) (29 U.S.C. 204(d)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(4) The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall conduct studies and provide information and technical assistance to employers, labor organizations, and the general public concerning effective means available to implement the provisions of section 6(h) prohibiting wage rate discrimination between employees performing work in equivalent jobs on the basis of sex, race, or national origin. Such studies, information, and technical assistance shall be based on and include reference to the objectives of such section to eliminate such discrimination. In order to achieve the objectives of such section, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission shall carry on a continuing program of research, education, and technical assistance including—

"(A) conducting and promoting research with the intent of developing means to expeditiously correct the wage rate differentials described in section 6(h);

"(B) publishing and otherwise making available to employers, labor organizations, professional associations, educational institutions, the various media of communication, and the general public the findings of studies and other materials for promoting compliance with section 6(h);

"(C) sponsoring and assisting State and community informational and educational programs; and

"(D) providing technical assistance to employers, labor organizations, professional associations and other interested persons on means of achieving and maintaining compliance with the provisions of section 6(h).

"(5) The report submitted biennially by the Secretary to Congress under paragraph (1) shall include a separate evaluation and appraisal regarding the implementation of section 6(h)."

SEC. 8. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) CONGRESSIONAL EMPLOYEES.—

(1) APPLICATION.—Section 203(a)(1) of the Congressional Accountability Act of 1995 (2 U.S.C. 1313(a)(1)) is amended—

(A) by striking "subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6" and inserting "subsections (a)(1), (d), and (h) of section 6"; and

(B) by striking "206 (a)(1) and (d)" and inserting "206 (a)(1), (d), and (h)".

(2) REMEDIES.—Section 203(b) of such Act (2 U.S.C. 1313(b)) is amended by inserting before the period the following: "or, in an appropriate case, under section 16(f) of such Act (29 U.S.C. 216(f))".

(b) EXECUTIVE BRANCH EMPLOYEES.—

(1) APPLICATION.—Section 413(a)(1) of title 3, United States Code, as added by section 2(a) of the Presidential and Executive Office Accountability Act (Public Law 104-331; 110 Stat. 4053), is amended by striking "subsections (a)(1) and (d) of section 6" and inserting "subsections (a)(1), (d), and (h) of section 6".

(2) REMEDIES.—Section 413(b) of such title is amended by inserting before the period the following: "or, in an appropriate case, under section 16(f) of such Act".

SEC. 9. EFFECTIVE DATE.

The amendments made by this Act shall take effect 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act.

FAIR PAY ACT—SUMMARY

The bill amends the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to prohibit discrimination in wages paid to employees within a workplace in equivalent/comparable jobs solely on the basis of a worker's sex, race or national origin.

It requires employers to preserve records on wage setting practices and file annual reports with the EEOC. Reports would disclose the wage rates paid for jobs within the company as well as the sex, race and national origin of employees within these positions. Confidentiality of the names is mandated.

The bill exempts small businesses that have 25 employees or less the first two years and 15 employees or less after the second year the legislation is enacted.

It directs the EEOC to provide technical assistance to employers and report to Congress on the progress of the Act's implementation. However, it is up to the individual business to determine wages and job equivalency within the organization.

The bill includes non-retaliation protections for employees inquiring about or assisting in investigations related to the Act.

It prohibits companies from reducing wages to achieve pay equity.

By Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire (for himself, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. INHOFE, and Mr. HELMS):

S. 703. A bill to amend section 922 of chapter 44 of title 18, United States Code; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

BRADY ACT AMENDMENTS OF 1999

Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise to introduce a bill that I am calling the "Brady Act Amendments of 1999," which would remove "long guns" from the requirements of the National Instant Criminal Background Check System (NICS). I am pleased to be joined by my distinguished colleagues, Senators CRAIG, INHOFE, and HELMS, as original co-sponsors.

Mr. President, Congress has imposed many restrictions on firearms sales over the years, with no apparent effect on reducing crime. By contrast, the most effective crime fighting initiatives have been undertaken at the state and local levels. Many states have dramatically reduced crime by increasing their incarceration rates. Local governments, such as that of Richmond, Virginia, reduced crime rates by aggressively prosecuting cases involving possession of firearms by convicted felons and drug dealers—not by imposing any new restrictions on the purchase of firearms.

In fact, Mr. President, states that have fewer restrictions on the purchase of firearms have more favorable crime reduction trends than other states. Despite all of the favorable media fanfare over the Brady Act, states that were covered by its "waiting period" phase until the NICS went into effect late last year actually had worse crime trends than other states.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation notes that out of the total number of homicides in a recent reporting period that were committed with firearms, less than 7% were committed with rifles, and less than 7% were committed with shotguns. Out of the total number of homicides, rifles and shotguns each were used in 4%, while knives, which may be purchased without clearance by the NICS, were used in 13% of such cases.

Mr. President, my bill would amend the Brady Act to make the NICS apply not to firearms in general, but only to handguns.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have the text of my bill printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 703

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Brady Act Amendments of 1999."

SEC. 2. LIMITATION OF COVERAGE OF BRADY ACT TO HANDGUNS.

Subsection (t) of section 922 of chapter 44 of Title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking "firearm" in paragraphs (1), (2), (4), (5), and (6), and the first time it appears in paragraph (3), and inserting in lieu thereof "handgun."

By Mr. KYL (for himself, Mr. JOHNSON, Mr. HATCH, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. INOUE, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. DORGAN, Mr. SESSIONS, Mr. CLELAND, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mrs. LINCOLN, and Mr. ABRAHAM):

S. 704. A bill to amend title 18, United States Code, to combat the overutilization of prison health care services and control rising prisoner health care costs; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

FEDERAL PRISONER HEALTH CARE COPAYMENT ACT

• Mr. KYL. Mr. President, I rise to introduce the Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act, which would require federal prisoners to pay a nominal fee when they initiate certain visits for medical attention. Fees collected from prisoners subject to an order of restitution shall be paid to victims in accordance with the order. Seventy-five percent of all other fees would be deposited in the Federal Crime Victims' Fund and the remainder would go to the Federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP) and the U.S. Marshals Service for administrative expenses incurred in carrying out this Act.

Each time a prisoner pays to heal himself, he will be paying to heal a victim.

Most working, law-abiding Americans are required to pay a copayment fee when they seek medical attention. It is time to impose this requirement on federal prisoners.

The Department of Justice supports the Federal inmate user fee concept, and worked with us on crafting the language contained in this Act.

To date, well over half of the states—including our home states of Arizona and South Dakota—have implemented state-wide prisoner health care copayment programs. Additionally, the following states have enacted this reform: Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Mississippi, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, and Wisconsin. Additional states are considering implementing copayment programs.

Copayment programs have an outstanding record of success on the state level.

Tennessee, which began requiring $3 copayments in January 1996, reported in late 1997 that the number of infirmary visits per inmate had been cut almost in half. In August 1998, prison officials in Ohio evaluated the nascent state copayment law, finding that the number of prisoners seeing a doctor has dropped 55 percent and that between March and August the copayment fee generated $89,500. In Arizona, there has been a reduction of about 30 percent in the number of requests for health care services.

Copayment programs reduce the overutilization of health care services without denying necessary care to the indigent. By discouraging the overuse of health care, the Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act should (1) help prisoners in true need of attention to receive better care, (2) benefit taxpayers through a reduction in the expense of operating a prison health care system, and (3) reduce the burden on corrections officers to escort prisoners feigning illness to health care facilities is reduced.

The Act prohibits the refusal of treatment for financial reasons or for appropriate preventive care.

Congress should follow the lead of the states and provide the federal Bureau of Prisons with the authority to charge federal inmates a nominal fee for elective health care visits. The federal system is particularly ripe for reform. According to the 1996 Corrections Yearbook, the system spends more per inmate on health care than virtually every state. Federal inmate health care totaled $354 million in fiscal year 1998, up from $138 million in fiscal year 1990. Average cost per inmate has increased over 36 percent during this period, from $2,483 to $3,363.

Before I conclude, I would like to thank my colleague Senator JOHNSON for his support and assistance with this legislation. Additionally, I appreciate the assistance of the Arizona Department of Corrections, and the office staff of Sheriff Buchanan in helping me draft this reform.

I look forward to continuing to work with the Department of Justice, the Bureau of Prisons, and colleagues on both sides of the aisle, to implement a fee-for-medical-service-program—a sensible and overdue reform—for federal prisoners.

• Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, I am pleased today to join Senator KYL in introducing the Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act. The Kyl-Johnson bill will require federal prisoners to pay a nominal fee when they initiate certain visits for medical attention. Fees collected from prisoners will either be paid as restitution to victims or be deposited into the Federal Crime Victims' Fund. My state of South Dakota is one of 34 states that have implemented state-wide prisoner health care copayment programs. The Department of Justice supports extending this prisoner health care copayment program to federal prisoners in an attempt to reduce unnecessary medical procedures and ensure that adequate health care services are available for prisoners who need them.

My interest in the prisoner health care copayment issue came from discussions I had in South Dakota with a number of law enforcement officials and US Marshal Lyle Swenson about the equitable treatment between pre-sentencing federal prisoners housed in county jails and the county prisoners residing in those same facilities. Currently, county prisoners in South Dakota are subject to state and local laws allowing the collection of a health care copayment, while Marshals Service prisoners are not, thereby allowing federal prisoners to abuse health care resources at great cost to state and local law enforcement.

I want to thank Senator KYL for working with me on specific concerns raised by South Dakota law enforcement officials and the US Marshals Service that I wanted addressed in the bill. I sincerely appreciate Senator KYL's willingness to incorporate my language into the Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act that allows state and local facilities to collect health care copayment fees when housing pre-sentencing federal prisoners.

I also worked with Senator KYL to include sufficient flexibility in the Kyl-Johnson bill for the Bureau of Prisons and local facilities contracting with the Marshals Service to maintain preventive-health priorities. The Kyl-Johnson bill prohibits the refusal of treatment for financial reasons or for appropriate preventive care. I am pleased this provision was included to pre-empt long term, and subsequently more costly, health problems among prisoners.

The goal of the Kyl-Johnson Federal Prisoner Health Care Copayment Act is not about generating revenue for the federal, state, and local prison systems. Instead, current prisoner health care copayment programs in 34 states illustrate the success in reducing the number of frivolous health visits and strain on valuable health care resources. The Kyl-Johnson bill will ensure that adequate health care is available to those prisoners who need it, without straining the budgets of taxpayers.

By Mr. ASHCROFT:

S. 705. A bill to repeal section 8003 of Public Law 105-174; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

HOME PAGE TAX REPEAL ACT

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, Daniel Webster argued to the Supreme Court in McCulloch v. Maryland that the power to tax involves the power to destroy. Chief Justice Marshall was so taken with Webster's argument that he made it the central premise of his landmark opinion for the Court. Fully cognizant of the potential for abuse inherent in the power to tax, the framers carefully circumscribed this power. The Constitution limits the tax power to the Congress and requires revenue bills to originate in the House of Representatives, the body most responsive to the people. The notion that unelected bureaucrats could levy taxes absent any congressional authority would have been a complete anathema to the framers. It is a long way from "no taxation without representation" to taxation without notice, representation or even participation from the Congress.

Unfortunately, the National Science Foundation appears to have forgotten that the power to tax belongs to the Congress and to Congress alone. Since 1992, the National Science Foundation has employed a private sector firm to registering second-level domain names, which are the unique identifiers that precede ".com" or ".org." In 1995, the National Science Foundation amended its agreement with the firm to allow it to charge a $100 registration fee, and a $50 renewal fee. If those fees had been designed simply to allow the private firm to cover its costs and make a modest profit they would be unproblematic. However, that is not what happened here. The National Science Foundation, without any congressional authority, required the private firm to set aside 30 percent of the total fees collected and turn them over to the National Science Foundation's Intellectual Infrastructure Fund. In short, without any congressional authorization, the National Science Foundation levied a substantial tax (at greater than a 42-percent rate) on a necessary item for doing business on the Internet.

Allowing this agency action to go unremedied would set a terrible precedent. Why should any agency suffer through the vagaries of the appropri-tions process if it can just impose its own taxes? As long as the agency has a monopoly over a necessary permit or license, it can set just about any tax rate it pleases. The agency could then use these tax revenues to fund its activities without too much concern for the appropriators and authorizers in Congress.

The potential for abuse in such unauthorized and unconstitutional taxes was not lost on the Federal District Court that heard a challenge to the National Science Foundation's actions. The Court correctly determined that the National Science Foundation's actions amounted to an unconstitutional tax. Remarkably, Congress, rather than taking the National Science Foundation to task for its arrogation of taxing authority, actually ratified the Foundation's actions in a provision in last year's supplemental appropriations bill. The message this sends to federal agencies is intolerable. It creates a perverse and unconstitutional incentive for agencies to impose unauthorized taxes with every reason to believe that a Congress that has never seen a revenue source it did not like will ratify its misbehavior.

What is more, the National Science Foundation's actions and Congress' ratification of those actions are inconsistent with the spirit of the Internet Tax Moratorium Act we passed last year. At the same time that we are telling States and localities that they cannot impose discriminatory taxes on the Internet, Congress is ratifying a 42% tax on the registration of domain names. Congress must be consistent with respect to Internet taxation. We must act to repeal the ratification of this unconstitutional tax. The bill I introduce today, the Home Page Tax Repeal Act of 1999 does just that. It sends a clear message that Congress will not tolerate taxation of the Internet and will not allow federal bureaucrats to wield the power of taxation.

Finally, let me be clear that my criticism of the National Science Foundation's actions in levying this tax should not be mistaken for criticism of the policies they have pursued or of the uses to which they have put the revenues. I am fully supportive of efforts to ensure that we study the growth of the Internet and that the infrastructure supporting the Internet keeps up with rapid growth of this incredible medium. Indeed, spending for these purposes is so clearly justified that I have every confidence that sufficient funds will be appropriated through the normal appropriations process. But that is the process that should be followed. Allowing an agency to short-circuit that process and impose unconstitutional taxes—even with the best of motives—is simply unacceptable. The power to tax is indeed the power to destroy. The power to tax is oppressive enough in the hands of elected officials who must face the voters. That same power in the hands of unelected bureaucrats is intolerable. On behalf of the people we represent, Congress should reclaim its proper constitutional authority and reject—not ratify—this unconstitutional tax.

By Ms. SNOWE (for herself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mrs. MURRAY, Ms. MIKULSKI, Mrs. BOXER, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. REID, Mr. BIDEN, Mr. AKAKA, Mr. KERRY, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mr. DODD, Mr. DURBIN, Mr. TORRICELLI, Mr. INOUE, Mr. LIEBERMAN, and Mr. SARBANES):

S. 706. A bill to create a National Museum of Women's History Advisory Committee; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

ADVISORY COMMITTEE FOR THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF WOMEN'S HISTORY

• Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, in honor of Women's History Month, today I am introducing legislation to create an Advisory Committee for the National Museum of Women's History. I am pleased to be joined by 17 of my colleagues: Senators HUTCHISON, MURRAY, MIKULSKI, BOXER, COLLINS, ROCKEFELLER, REID, BIDEN, AKAKA, KERRY (MA), ASHCROFT, DODD, DURBIN, TORRICELLI, INOUE, LIEBERMAN, and SARBANES.

For far too long, women have contributed to history, but have largely been forgotten in our history books, in our monuments, and in our museums. It is long past time that the roles women have played be removed from the shadows of indifference and given a place where they can shine.

The bill we are introducing today will create a 26 member Advisory Committee to look at the following three issues and report back to Congress concerning (1) identification of a site for the museum in the District of Columbia; (2) development of a business plan to allow the creation and maintenance of the museum to be done solely with private contributions and 3) assistance with the collection and program of the museum.

It is important to note that this bill does not commit Congress to spending any money for this museum. The Committee's report will tell us the feasibility of funding the museum privately. And I believe that the Museum's Board has shown that they have the ability to do just that.

The concept for the National Museum of Women's History (NMWH) was created back in 1996. Since that time, the Board of Directors, lead by President Karen Staser, has worked tirelessly to build support and interest for this project. And judging by the fact that they have raised more than $10.5 million for the project, lent their support to the moving of the Suffragette statue from the crypt to the Rotunda, and raised $85,000 for that effort, I'd say they are well on their way to success.

They have also spent a lot of time answering the question "why do we need a women's museum when we have the Smithsonian." The first answer to that comes from Edith Mayo, Curator Emeritus of the Smithsonian National Museum of American History, who notes that since 1963 only two exhibits—two—were dedicated to the role of women in history.

The fact is, in the story of America's success, the chapter on women's contributions has largely been left on the editing room floor. Here's what I mean: Many of us know that women fought and got the vote in 1920, with the ratification of the 19th Amendment to the Constitution. But how many know that Wyoming gave women the right to vote in 1869, 51 years earlier, and that by 1900 Utah, Colorado and Idaho had granted women the right to vote? Or that the suffragette movement took 72 years to meet its goal? And few know that the women of Utah sewed dresses made from silk for the Suffragettes on their cross country tour.

History is filled with other little known but significant milestones: like the first woman elected to the United States Senate was Hattie Wyatt Caraway from Louisiana in 1932. That Margaret Chase Smith, from my home state of Maine, was the first woman elected to the US Senate in her own right in 1948, and in 1962 became the first woman to run for the US Presidency in the primaries of a major political party. Or that the first female cabinet member was Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor for FDR.

How many people know that Margaret Reha Seddon was the first US woman to achieve the full rank of astronaut, and flew her first space mission aboard the Space Shuttle "Discovery" in 1985, twenty three years after the distinguished former Senator from the State of Ohio, John Glenn completed his historic first flight in space?

And I can guarantee you more people know the last person to hit over .400 in baseball—Ted Williams—than can name the first woman elected to Congress—Jeannette Rankin of Montana, who was elected in 1916, four years before ratification of the 19th Amendment gave women the right to vote.

Hardly household names. But they should be. And with a place to showcase their accomplishments, perhaps one day they will take their rightful place beside America's greatest minds, visionary leaders, and groundbreaking figures. But until then, we have a long way to go.

Whatever period of history you chose—women played a role. Sybil Ludington, a 16-year-old, rode through parts of New York and Connecticut in April of 1777 to warn that the Redcoats were coming. Sacajawea, the Shoshone Indian guide, helped escort Lewis and Clark on their 8000 mile expedition. Rosa Parks, Jo Ann Robinson and Myrlie Evers played important roles in the civil rights movement in the 50's and 60's. And as we move into the 21st century, the role of women—who now make up 52 percent of the population—will continue to be integral to the future success of this country.

In fact the real question about the building of a women's museum is not so much where it will be built—although that remains to be explored. And it's not even who will pay for it—as I've said, it will be done entirely with private funds. The real question when it comes to a museum dedicated to women's history is, where will they put it all!

I would argue that we have a solemn responsibility to teach our children, and ourselves, about our rich past—and that includes the myriad contributions of women, in all fields and every endeavor. These women can serve as role models and inspire our youth. They can teach us about our past and guide us into our future. They can even prompt young women to consider a career in public service—as Senator Smith of Maine did for me.

Instead, today in America, more young women probably know the names of the latest super models than the names of the female members of this Administration's Cabinet. That is why we need a National Museum of Women's History, that is why I am proud to sponsor this legislation, and that is why I hope that my colleagues will join us in supporting the creation of this Advisory Committee as a first step toward writing the forgotten chapters of the history of our nation. •

By Mr. DEWINE (for himself, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. CHAFEE, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. LEVIN, Mr. KERRY, and Mr. KERREY):

S. 708. A bill to improve the administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the Nation's abuse and neglect courts and the quality and availability of training for judges, attorneys, and volunteers working in such courts, and for other purposes consistent with the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE STRENGTHENING ABUSE AND NEGLECT COURTS ACT OF 1999

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999, a bill to improve the administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the juvenile and family courts, as well as the quality and availability of training for judges, attorneys and guardian ad litem. I am joined in this introduction by Senator ROCKEFELLER, and I thank him for all of his hard work on behalf of abused and neglected children and I look forward to working with him as we move forward with this legislation.

I have been involved with children's issues for over two decades, not just as the father of eight, but also as a local county elected official. I know the kinds of problems that exist at the ground level, and I think it's very important that we work together to address them.

This is especially true today, as opposed to a couple of years ago, because the child welfare agencies and the courts have an important new task—the implementation of the Adoption and Safe Families Act.

Almost one and a half years ago, Congress passed this historic piece of legislation, which was designed to encourage safe and permanent family placements for abused and neglected children—and to decrease the amount of time that a child spends in the foster care system. With this law, we make it clear that the health and safety of the child must come first when making any decision for a child in the abuse and neglect system. This law shortens the time line for children in foster care. Specifically, the law requires initiation of proceedings to terminate parental rights for any child who has been in the foster care system for 15 of the last 22 months.

These timelines are very important. Foster care was meant to be a temporary solution—but for too many children foster care has become a way of life. However, the institution of these timelines has created additional pressure on an already overburdened court system.

To give you an idea of the burden that already exists, consider this: When the Family Court was established in New York in 1962, it reviewed 96,000 cases the first year. By 1997, the case load had increased to 670,000 cases.

A September 1997 report by the Fund for Modern Courts found that Family Court judges were overburdened and forced to provide, quote, “assembly line justice”—because they only had a few minutes to review each case. The report found that in Brooklyn, cases receive an average of 4 minutes before a judge on a first appearance and little more than 11 minutes on subsequent appearances. The report concluded that, quote: “It is easy to understand how a tragedy can result from decisions made based on so little actual time in court.” End of quote.

And that's not the only problem in the system. In Cuyahoga County, Ohio, the juvenile court identified 3,000 cases that were open, but inactive. In most of these cases, the child had been charged with a minor crime, but never had his or her case scheduled for trial. But more than 100 of these cases involved children who remained in foster care for months or even years, despite the fact that a judge had ordered them to be returned home to their parents.

Another problem faced in Cuyahoga County, and in many other places, is the missing file. Until recently, the court had no central clerk's file, so there was no way of tracking the location of a particular file. If the file could not be found on the day of a hearing or review, it would result in a postponement, adding months to a child's stay in foster care. It is undisputed that children need permanency as quickly as possible. It is simply unconscionable that children should be trapped in foster care by a Dickensian nightmare of paperwork.

And you also have to wonder where the lawyers, case workers and guardians for these children were—and what they were doing as these cases dragged on for months or even years longer than necessary. It is a symptom of the overburdened child welfare system and the lack of resources available for everyone involved—the child welfare agencies, the attorneys, the guardians, the courts. It's not their fault, but it's not tolerable either.

We, collectively—as public servants, and as a society—must do better.

Some abuse and neglect courts have already found innovative ways to eliminate their backlog of cases and move children toward permanency. One example is in Hamilton County, Ohio, where the Juvenile Court, under the leadership of Judge David Grossmann, has instituted a system that successfully has reduced the amount of time a child spends in care. Hamilton County added hearing officers so that more time could be spent on each case—leading to better quality decision making and reduced case loads. The court also developed a computer tracking system so that the judge could have essential information on each case at his or her fingertips, and the “missing file” would no longer be a bar to permanency.

The state of Connecticut has also created an innovative way of dealing with the backlog of cases in its child welfare system. The Child Protection Session is a court dedicated to settling the most difficult abuse and neglect cases—contested cases of abuse and neglect and termination of parental rights proceedings. Connecticut has recognized that these types of cases need to be handled expeditiously, and as a result of the special session, these cases are now being handled in months, rather than years, to the benefit of all of the children involved.

The General Accounting Office (GAO) recently reported to Congress the results of its review of juvenile and family courts performance in achieving permanence for children. GAO identified three elements that are essential to successful court reform.

(1) Judicial leadership and collaboration among the child welfare participants.

(2) Timely information regarding the court's operations and processing of cases; and

(3) Sufficient financial resources to initiate and sustain reform.

The Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999 incorporates all of these elements. The bill provides competitive grants to courts to create computerized case tracking systems and to encourage the replication and implementation of successful systems in other courts. The bill also provides grants to courts to reduce pending backlogs of abuse and neglect cases so that courts are able to comply with the time lines established in the Adoption and Safe Families Act.

The bill also includes a provision to allow judges, attorneys and court personnel to qualify for training under Title IV-E's existing training provisions. Finally, the bill includes a provision that would expand the CASA program to underserved and urban areas so that more children are able to benefit from its services.

When Congress passed the Adoption and Safe Families Act, I said that the bill is a good start, but that Congress will have to do more to make sure that every child has the opportunity to live in a safe, stable, loving and permanent home. One of the essential ingredients in this process is an efficiently operating court system. After all, that's where a lot of delays occur. As well-intentioned as the strict time lines of the Adoption and Safe Families Act are, mandatory filing dates won't be enough to promote permanency if the court docket is too clogged to move the cases through the system. We need to provide assistance to the courts so that administrative efficiency and effectiveness are improved and the goals of the Adoption and Safe Families Act will be more readily achieved. I encourage my colleagues to support this legislation and I am committed to pushing for its timely consideration.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that a copy of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 708

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the “Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999”.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) Under both Federal and State law, the courts play a crucial and essential role in the Nation's child welfare system and in ensuring safety, stability, and permanence for abused and neglected children under the supervision of that system.

(2) The Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-89; 111 Stat. 2115) establishes explicitly for the first time in Federal law that a child's health and safety must be the paramount consideration when any decision is made regarding a child in the Nation's child welfare system.

(3) The Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 promotes stability and permanence for abused and neglected children by requiring timely decision-making in proceedings to determine whether children can safely return to their families or whether they should be moved into safe and stable adoptive homes or other permanent family arrangements outside the foster care system.

(4) To avoid unnecessary and lengthy stays in the foster care system, the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 specifically requires, among other things, that States move to terminate the parental rights of the parents of those children who have been in foster care for 15 of the last 22 months.

(5) While essential to protect children and to carry out the general purposes of the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997, the accelerated timelines for the termination of parental rights and the other requirements imposed under that Act increase the pressure on the Nation's already overburdened abuse and neglect courts.

(6) The administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the Nation's abuse and neglect courts would be substantially improved by the acquisition and implementation of computerized case-tracking systems to identify and eliminate existing backlogs, to move abuse and neglect caseloads forward in a timely manner, and to move children into safe and stable families. Such systems could also be used to evaluate the effectiveness of such courts in meeting the purposes of the amendments made by, and provisions of, the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997.

(7) The administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the Nation's abuse and neglect courts would also be improved by the identification and implementation of projects designed to eliminate the backlog of abuse and neglect cases, including the temporary hiring of additional judges, extension of court hours, and other projects designed to reduce existing caseloads.

(8) The administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the Nation's abuse and neglect courts would be further strengthened by improving the quality and availability of training for judges, court personnel, agency attorneys, guardians ad litem, volunteers who participate in court-appointed special advocate (CASA) programs, and attorneys who represent the children and the parents of children in abuse and neglect proceedings.

(9) While recognizing that abuse and neglect courts in this country are already committed to the quality administration of justice, the performance of such courts would be even further enhanced by the development of models and educational opportunities that reinforce court projects that have already been developed, including models for case-flow procedures, case management, representation of children, automated interagency interfaces, and "best practices" standards.

(10) Judges, magistrates, commissioners, and other judicial officers play a central and vital role in ensuring that proceedings in our Nation's abuse and neglect courts are run efficiently and effectively. The performance of those individuals in such courts can only be further enhanced by training, seminars, and an ongoing opportunity to exchange ideas with their peers.

(11) Volunteers who participate in court-appointed special advocate (CASA) programs play a vital role as the eyes and ears of abuse and neglect courts in proceedings conducted by, or under the supervision of, such courts and also bring increased public scrutiny of the abuse and neglect court system. The Nation's abuse and neglect courts would benefit from an expansion of this program to currently underserved communities.

(12) Improved computerized case-tracking systems, comprehensive training, and development of, and education on, model abuse and neglect court systems, particularly with respect to underserved areas, would significantly further the purposes of the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 by reducing the average length of an abused and neglected child's stay in foster care, improving the quality of decision-making and court services provided to children and families, and increasing the number of adoptions.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(a) ABUSE AND NEGLECT COURTS.—The term "abuse and neglect courts" means the State and local courts that carry out State or local laws requiring proceedings (conducted by or under the supervision of the courts)—

(1) that implement part B and part E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 620 et seq.; 670 et seq.) (including preliminary disposition of such proceedings);

(2) that determine whether a child was abused or neglected;

(3) that determine the advisability or appropriateness of placement in a family foster home, group home, or a special residential care facility; or

(4) that determine any other legal disposition of a child in the abuse and neglect court system.

(b) AGENCY ATTORNEY.—The term "agency attorney" means an attorney or other individual, including any government attorney, district attorney, attorney general, State attorney, county attorney, city solicitor or attorney, corporation counsel, or privately retained special prosecutor, who represents the State or local agency administering the programs under parts B and E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 620 et seq.; 670 et seq.) in a proceeding conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court, including a proceeding for termination of parental rights.

(c) ATTORNEY REPRESENTING A CHILD.—The term "attorney representing a child" means an attorney or a guardian ad litem who represents a child in a proceeding conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court.

(d) ATTORNEY REPRESENTING A PARENT.—The term "attorney representing a parent" means an attorney who represents a parent who is an official party to a proceeding conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court.

SEC. 4. GRANTS TO STATE COURTS AND LOCAL COURTS TO AUTOMATE THE DATA COLLECTION AND TRACKING OF PROCEEDINGS IN ABUSE AND NEGLECT COURTS.

(a) AUTHORITY TO AWARD GRANTS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), the Attorney General, acting through the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention of the Office of Justice Programs, shall award grants in accordance with this section to State courts and local courts for the purposes of—

(A) enabling such courts to develop and implement automated data collection and case-tracking systems for proceedings conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court;

(B) encouraging the replication of such systems in abuse and neglect courts in other jurisdictions; and

(C) requiring the use of such systems to evaluate a court's performance in implementing the requirements of parts B and E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 620 et seq.; 670 et seq.).

(2) LIMITATIONS.—

(A) NUMBER OF GRANTS.—Not less than 20 nor more than 50 grants may be awarded under this section.

(B) PER STATE LIMITATION.—Not more than 2 grants authorized under this section may be awarded per State.

(C) USE OF GRANTS.—Funds provided under a grant made under this section may only be used for the purpose of developing, implementing, or enhancing automated data collection and case-tracking systems for proceedings conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court.

(b) APPLICATION.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—A State court or local court may submit an application for a grant authorized under this section at such time and in such manner as the Attorney General may determine.

(2) INFORMATION REQUIRED.—An application for a grant authorized under this section shall contain the following:

(A) A description of a proposed plan for the development, implementation, and maintenance of an automated data collection and case-tracking system for proceedings conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court, including a proposed budget for the plan and a request for a specific funding amount.

(B) A description of the extent to which such plan and system are able to be replicated in abuse and neglect courts of other jurisdictions that specifies the common case-tracking data elements of the proposed system, including, at a minimum—

(i) identification of relevant judges, court, and agency personnel;

(ii) records of all court proceedings with regard to the abuse and neglect case, including all court findings and orders (oral and written); and

(iii) relevant information about the subject child, including family information and the reason for court supervision.

(C) In the case of an application submitted by a local court, a description of how the plan to implement the proposed system was developed in consultation with related State courts, particularly with regard to a State court improvement plan funded under section 13712 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (42 U.S.C. 670 note) if there is such a plan in the State.

(D) In the case of an application that is submitted by a State court, a description of how the proposed system will integrate with a State court improvement plan funded under section 13712 of such Act if there is such a plan in the State.

(E) After consultation with the State agency responsible for the administration of parts B and E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 620 et seq.; 670 et seq.)—

(i) a description of the coordination of the proposed system with other child welfare data collection systems, including the Statewide automated child welfare information system (SACWIS) and the adoption and foster care analysis and reporting system (AFCARS) established pursuant to section 479 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 679); and

(ii) an assurance that such coordination will be implemented and maintained.

(F) Identification of an independent third party that will conduct ongoing evaluations of the feasibility and implementation of the plan and system and a description of the plan for conducting such evaluations.

(G) A description or identification of a proposed funding source for completion of the plan (if applicable) and maintenance of the system after the conclusion of the period for which the grant is to be awarded.

(H) An assurance that any contract entered into between the State court or local court and any other entity that is to provide services for the development, implementation, or maintenance of the system under the proposed plan will require the entity to agree to allow for replication of the services provided, the plan, and the system, and to refrain from asserting any proprietary interest in such services for purposes of allowing the plan and system to be replicated in another jurisdiction.

(I) An assurance that the system established under the plan will provide data that allows for evaluation (at least on an annual basis) of the following information:

(i) The total number of cases that are filed in the abuse and neglect court.

(ii) The number of cases assigned to each judge who presides over the abuse and neglect court.

(iii) The average length of stay of children in foster care.

(iv) With respect to each child under the jurisdiction of the court—

(I) the number of episodes of placement in foster care;

(II) the number of days placed in foster care and the type of placement (foster family home, group home, or special residential care facility);

(III) the number of days of in-home supervision; and

(IV) the number of separate foster care placements.

(v) The number of adoptions, guardianships, or other permanent dispositions finalized.

(vi) The number of terminations of parental rights.

(vii) The number of child abuse and neglect proceedings closed that had been pending for 2 or more years.

(viii) With respect to each proceeding conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court—

(I) the timeliness of each stage of the proceeding from initial filing through legal finalization of a permanency plan (for both contested and uncontested hearings);

(II) the number of adjournments, delays, and continuances occurring during the proceeding, including identification of the party requesting each adjournment, delay, or continuance and the reasons given for the request;

(III) the number of courts that conduct or supervise the proceeding for the duration of the abuse and neglect case;

(IV) the number of judges assigned to the proceeding for the duration of the abuse and neglect case; and

(V) the number of agency attorneys, children's attorneys, parent's attorneys, guardians ad litem, and volunteers participating in a court-appointed special advocate (CASA) program assigned to the proceeding during the duration of the abuse and neglect case.

(J) A description of how the proposed system will reduce the need for paper files and ensure prompt action so that cases are appropriately listed with national and regional adoption exchanges, and public and private adoption services.

(K) An assurance that the data collected in accordance with subparagraph (I) will be made available to relevant Federal, State, and local government agencies and to the public.

(L) An assurance that the proposed system is consistent with other civil and criminal information requirements of the Federal government.

(M) An assurance that the proposed system will provide notice of timeframes required under the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-89; 111 Stat. 2115) for individual cases to ensure prompt attention and compliance with such requirements.

(c) CONDITIONS FOR APPROVAL OF APPLICATIONS.—

(1) MATCHING REQUIREMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—A State court or local court awarded a grant under this section shall expend $1 for every $3 awarded under the grant to carry out the development, implementation, and maintenance of the automated data collection and case-tracking system under the proposed plan.

(B) WAIVER FOR HARDSHIP.—The Attorney General may waive or modify the matching requirement described in subparagraph (A) in the case of any State court or local court that the Attorney General determines would suffer undue hardship as a result of being subject to the requirement.

(C) NON-FEDERAL EXPENDITURES.—

(i) CASH OR IN KIND.—State court or local court expenditures required under subparagraph (A) may be in cash or in kind, fairly evaluated, including plant, equipment, or services.

(ii) NO CREDIT FOR PRE-AWARD EXPENDITURES.—Only State court or local court expenditures made after a grant has been awarded under this section may be counted for purposes of determining whether the State court or local court has satisfied the matching expenditure requirement under subparagraph (A).

(2) NOTIFICATION TO STATE OR APPROPRIATE CHILD WELFARE AGENCY.—No application for a grant authorized under this section may be approved unless the State court or local court submitting the application demonstrates to the satisfaction of the Attorney General that the court has provided the State, in the case of a State court, or the appropriate child welfare agency, in the case of a local court, with notice of the contents and submission of the application.

(3) CONSIDERATIONS.—In evaluating an application for a grant under this section the Attorney General shall consider the following:

(A) The extent to which the system proposed in the application may be replicated in other jurisdictions.

(B) The extent to which the proposed system is consistent with the provisions of, and amendments made by, the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-89; 111 Stat. 2115), and parts B and E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 620 et seq.; 670 et seq.).

(C) The extent to which the proposed system is feasible and likely to achieve the purposes described in subsection (a)(1).

(4) DIVERSITY OF AWARDS.—The Attorney General shall award grants under this section in a manner that results in a reasonable balance among grants awarded to State courts and grants awarded to local courts, grants awarded to courts located in urban areas and courts located in rural areas, and grants awarded in diverse geographical locations.

(d) LENGTH OF AWARDS.—No grant may be awarded under this section for a period of more than 5 years.

(e) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Funds provided to a State court or local court under a grant awarded under this section shall remain available until expended without fiscal year limitation.

(f) REPORTS.—

(1) ANNUAL REPORT FROM GRANTEES.—Each State court or local court that is awarded a grant under this section shall submit an annual report to the Attorney General that contains—

(A) a description of the ongoing results of the independent evaluation of the plan for, and implementation of, the automated data collection and case-tracking system funded under the grant; and

(B) the information described in subsection (b)(2)(I).

(2) INTERIM AND FINAL REPORTS FROM ATTORNEY GENERAL.—

(A) INTERIM REPORTS.—Beginning 2 years after the date of enactment of this Act, and biannually thereafter until a final report is submitted in accordance with subparagraph (B), the Attorney General shall submit to Congress interim reports on the grants made under this section.

(B) FINAL REPORT.—Not later than 90 days after the termination of all grants awarded under this section, the Attorney General shall submit to Congress a final report evaluating the automated data collection and case-tracking systems funded under such grants and identifying successful models of such systems that are suitable for replication in other jurisdictions. The Attorney General shall ensure that a copy of such final report is transmitted to the highest State court in each State.

(g) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section, $10,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004.

SEC. 5. GRANTS TO REDUCE PENDING BACKLOGS OF ABUSE AND NEGLECT CASES TO PROMOTE PERMANENCY FOR ABUSED AND NEGLECTED CHILDREN.

Part E of title IV of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 670 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

“SEC. 479B. GRANTS TO REDUCE BACKLOGS OF ABUSE AND NEGLECT CASES.

“(a) IN GENERAL.—Subject to the amount appropriated under subsection (f), the Secretary shall make grants to State courts or local courts for the purposes of—

“(1) promoting the permanency goals established in the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-89; 111 Stat. 2115); and

“(2) enabling such courts to reduce existing backlogs of cases pending in abuse and neglect courts, especially with respect to cases to terminate parental rights and cases in which parental rights to a child have been terminated but an adoption of the child has not yet been finalized.

“(b) APPLICATION.—A State court or local court shall submit an application for a grant under this section, in such form and manner as the Secretary shall require, that contains a description of the following:

“(1) The barriers to achieving the permanency goals established in the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 that have been identified.

“(2) The size and nature of the backlogs of children awaiting termination of parental rights or finalization of adoption.

“(3) The strategies the State court or local court proposes to use to reduce such backlogs and the plan and timetable for doing so.

“(4) How the grant funds requested will be used to assist the implementation of the strategies described in paragraph (3).

“(c) USE OF FUNDS.—Funds provided under a grant awarded under this section may be used for any purpose that the Secretary determines is likely to successfully achieve the purposes described in subsection (a), including temporarily—

“(1) establishing night court sessions for abuse and neglect courts;

“(2) hiring additional judges, magistrates, commissioners, hearing officers, referees, special masters, and other judicial personnel for such courts;

“(3) hiring personnel such as clerks, administrative support staff, case managers, mediators, and attorneys for such courts; or “(4) extending the operating hours of such courts.

“(d) NUMBER OF GRANTS.—Not less than 15 nor more than 20 grants shall be awarded under this section.

“(e) AVAILABILITY OF FUNDS.—Funds awarded under a grant made under this section shall remain available for expenditure by a grantee for a period not to exceed 3 years from the date of the grant award.

“(f) REPORT ON USE OF FUNDS.—Not later than the date that is halfway through the period for which a grant is awarded under this section, and 90 days after the end of such period, a State court or local court awarded a grant under this section shall submit a report to the Secretary that includes the following:

“(1) The barriers to the permanency goals established in the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 that are or have been addressed with grant funds.

“(2) The nature of the backlogs of children that were pursued with grant funds.

“(3) The specific strategies used to reduce such backlogs.

“(4) The progress that has been made in reducing such backlogs, including the number of children in such backlogs—

“(A) whose parental rights have been terminated; and “(B) whose adoptions have been finalized.

“(5) Any additional information that the Secretary determines would assist jurisdictions in achieving the permanency goals established in the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997.

“(g) DEFINITION OF ABUSE AND NEGLECT COURT.—In this section, the term ‘abuse and neglect court’ has the meaning given that term in section 3(a) of the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999.

“(h) APPROPRIATION.—Out of any money in the Treasury of the United States not otherwise appropriated, there are appropriated for fiscal year 2000 $10,000,000 for the purpose of making grants under this section.”.

SEC. 6. TRAINING IN CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT PROCEEDINGS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 474(a)(3) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 674(a)(3)) is amended—

(1) by redesignating subparagraphs (C), (D), and (E) as subparagraphs (D), (E), and (F), respectively; and

(2) by inserting after subparagraph (B), the following:

“(C) 75 percent of so much of such expenditures as are for the training (including cross-training with personnel employed by, or under contract with, the State or local agency administering the plan in the political subdivision, training on topics relevant to the legal representation of clients in proceedings conducted by or under the supervision of an abuse and neglect court (as defined in section 3(a) of the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999), and training on related topics such as child development and the importance of developing a trusting relationship with a child) of judges, judicial personnel, law enforcement personnel, agency attorneys (as defined in section 3(b) of such Act), attorneys representing parents in proceedings conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court (as so defined), attorneys representing children in such proceedings, guardians ad litem, and volunteers who participate in court-appointed special advocate (CASA) programs, to the extent such training is related to provisions of, and amendments made by, the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-89; 111 Stat. 2115), provided that any such training that is offered to judges or other judicial personnel shall be offered by, or under contract with, the State or local agency in collaboration with the judicial conference or other appropriate judicial governing body operating in the State.”.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) Section 473(a)(6)(B) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 673(a)(6)(B)) is amended by striking “474(a)(3)(E)” and inserting “474(a)(3)(F)”.

(2) Section 474(a)(3)(D) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 674(a)(3)(D)) (as redesignated by paragraph (1)(A)) is amended by striking “subparagraph (C)” and inserting “subparagraph (D)”.

(3) Section 474(c) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 674(c)) is amended by striking “subsection (a)(3)(C)” and inserting “subsection (a)(3)(D)”.

SEC. 7. STATE STANDARDS FOR AGENCY ATTORNEYS.

Section 471(a) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 671(a)) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (22), by striking “and” at the end;

(2) in paragraph (23), by striking the period and inserting “; and”; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

“(24) provides that, not later than January 1, 2001, the State shall develop and encourage the implementation of guidelines for all agency attorneys (as defined in section 3(b) of the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999), including legal education requirements for such attorneys regarding the handling of abuse, neglect, and dependency proceedings.”.

SEC. 8. TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR CHILD ABUSE, NEGLECT, AND DEPENDENCY MATTERS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary of Health and Human Services, in coordination with the Attorney General, shall provide the technical assistance, training, and evaluations authorized under this section through grants, contracts, or cooperative arrangements with other entities, including universities, and national, State, and local organizations. The Secretary of Health and Human Services and the Attorney General should ensure that entities that have not had a previous contractual relationship with the Department of Health and Human Services, the Department of Justice, or another Federal agency can compete for grants for technical assistance, training, and evaluations.

(b) PURPOSE.—Technical assistance shall be provided under this section for the purpose of supporting and assisting State and local courts that handle child abuse, neglect, and dependency matters to effectively carry out new responsibilities enacted as part of the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-89; 111 Stat. 2115) and to speed the process of adoption of children and legal finalization of permanent families for children in foster care by improving practices of the courts involved in that process.

(c) ACTIVITIES.—Technical assistance consistent with the purpose described in subsection (b) may be provided under this section through the following:

(1) The dissemination of information, existing and effective models, and technical assistance to State and local courts that receive grants under section 4 concerning the automated data collection and case-tracking systems and outcome measures required under that section.

(2) The provision of specialized training on child development that is appropriate for judges, referees, nonjudicial decision-makers, administrative, and other court-related personnel, and for agency attorneys, attorneys representing children, guardians ad litem, volunteers who participate in court-appointed special advocate (CASA) programs, or parents.

(3) The provision of assistance and dissemination of information about best practices of abuse and neglect courts for effective case management strategies and techniques, including automated data collection and case-tracking systems, assessments of caseload and staffing levels, management of court dockets, timely decision-making at all stages of a proceeding conducted by, or under the supervision of, an abuse and neglect court, and the development of streamlined case flow procedures, case management models, early case resolution programs, mechanisms for monitoring compliance with the terms of court orders, models for representation of children, automated inter-agency interfaces between data bases, and court rules that facilitate timely case processing.

(4) The development and dissemination of training models for judges, attorneys representing children, agency attorneys, guardians ad litem, and volunteers who participate in court-appointed special advocate (CASA) programs.

(5) The development of standards of practice for agency attorneys, attorneys representing children, guardians ad litem, volunteers who participate in court-appointed special advocate (CASA) programs, and parents in such proceedings.

(d) TRAINING REQUIREMENT.—Any training offered in accordance with this section to judges or other judicial personnel shall be offered in collaboration with the judicial conference or other appropriate judicial governing body operating with respect to the State in which the training is offered.

(e) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to carry out this section $5,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004.

SEC. 9. GRANTS TO EXPAND THE COURT-APPOINTED SPECIAL ADVOCATE PROGRAM IN UNDERSERVED AREAS.

(a) GRANTS TO EXPAND CASA PROGRAMS IN UNDERSERVED AREAS.—The Administrator of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention of the Department of Justice shall make a grant to the National Court-Appointed Special Advocate Association for the purposes of—

(1) expanding the recruitment of, and building the capacity of, court-appointed special advocate programs located in the 15 largest urban areas;

(2) developing regional, multijurisdictional court-appointed special advocate programs serving rural areas; and

(3) providing training and supervision of volunteers in court-appointed special advocate programs.

(b) LIMITATION ON ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENDITURES.—Not more than 5 percent of the grant made under this subsection may be used for administrative expenditures.

(c) DETERMINATION OF URBAN AND RURAL AREAS.—For purposes of administering the grant authorized under this subsection, the Administrator of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention of the Department of Justice shall determine whether an area is one of the 15 largest urban areas or a rural area in accordance with the practices of, and statistical information compiled by, the Bureau of the Census.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to make the grant authorized under this section, $5,000,000 for fiscal year 2000.

● Mr. ROCKEFELLER. Mr. President, I rise today to join Mr. DEWINE in his introduction of the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act. I would like to thank Mr. DEWINE for his leadership on behalf of vulnerable children, including our bipartisan work on this legislation. Work on this legislation is based on the bipartisan work of the Senate coalition that supported the 1997 Adoption and Safe Families Act.

A unique bipartisan coalition formed in 1997 worked hard to forge consensus on the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997. This law, for the first time ever, establishes that a child's health and safety must be paramount when any decisions are made regarding children in the abuse and neglect system. The law was the most sweeping and comprehensive piece of child welfare legislation passed in over a decade. It promotes safety, stability and permanence for all abused and neglected children and requires timely decision-making in all proceedings to determine whether children can safely return home, or whether they should be moved to permanent, adoptive homes. More specifically, the law requires a State to move to terminate the parental rights of any parent whose child has been in foster care for 15 out of the last 22 months.

Throughout the process of developing the Adoption Act we heard about the vital role the Nation's abuse and neglect courts play in achieving the goals of safety and permanence for children. We also heard that these courts were seriously overburdened and challenged by insufficient resources. Now, nearly a year and a half after the passage of the law, courts are struggling to meet the guidelines. Judges and child welfare professionals in my state of West Virginia tell me that the law is helping move children through the system more quickly, that the accelerated timelines are, indeed, essential for the protection of children, and that the effect of this is that the courts are becoming even more overburdened. We are hearing this same type of feedback from other judges and child advocates around the country.

These courts—and the judges, lawyers and other court personnel—make some of the most difficult and important decisions made by any members of the judiciary. Adjudications of abuse and neglect, terminations of parental rights, approval of adoptions, and life-changing determinations require the appropriate level of information, thoughtfulness and care. Judges throughout the country, like West Virginia's Chief Justice Margaret Workman, are committed to the fair and efficient administration of justice in these cases. In 1987, just over 2 million children, nationally, were reported or neglected. By 1997, this number had swelled to well over 3 million children. During this period, my own state of West Virginia experienced a 100% increase in child abuse cases. These staggering increases in child abuse have placed an unconscionable burden on these courts.

Working within their own communities, judges, attorneys, volunteers from the Court Appointed Special Advocates (CASA) programs and others have found creative and effective new ways to eliminate their caseload backlogs and move children more efficiently and safely through the court system. In West Virginia, Judge Workman and others have developed a comprehensive plan to increase the accountability and efficient administration of abuse and neglect cases. In Cincinnati, Ohio, Judge Grossman's abuse and neglect courts have implemented state-of-the-art computer tracking systems which help them smooth the legal paths of children in foster care.

Even when courts have the dedication and initiative to implement these innovative reforms, they simply cannot do it without sufficient resources. The purpose of the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act is to help remove the burdens on an ever greater number of courts by increasing both their efficiency and their effectiveness. The bill provides much needed resources and allows state and local communities the flexibility to develop their own solutions to administrative problems and caseload backlogs. In January of this year, the General Accounting Office released a report conducted at the request of Ways and Means Subcommittee on Human Resources Chairman SHAW, which concluded that there are three essential ingredients for successful court reform, all of which are incorporated in this Act. There are four ways this bill will help abuse and neglect courts better serve children and families.

The bill first provides a program of grants to states and local courts for the implementation of computerized case-tracking systems, similar to the one Judge Grossman created in Ohio. Through the establishment of such systems, courts are able to more easily track how long a child spends in foster care and the status of their cases. When courts have such "user-friendly" access to vital case information children truly benefit—they move more quickly through foster care and on to adoptive homes or other permanent placements. This grant program will enable state and local courts to design similar computer systems, to replicate models that have proven successful in other jurisdictions and to receive technical assistance as they implement their new programs.

A second important provision of the bill is the grant program that provides State and local courts the resources they need to eliminate the backlog of abuse and neglect cases. Throughout the discussions on the Adoption and Safe Families Act, we heard from dozens of judges and advocates who said that far and away the biggest problem facing their courts was the overwhelming backlog of these cases. Without creative ways to eliminate these backlogs, and with the tightened timeframes we created with the new law, the judges emphasized that children's cases will simply not move through the court system in a timely manner. Each court may have their own effective approach to eliminating such backlogs. For some, hiring additional staff may be necessary. For others, creating a "Night Court" or "Saturday Court" to hear these cases would work. Still others may need to restructure duties of court personnel. This bill will provide grants to those court projects that are designed to result in the effective and rapid elimination of current backlogs to smooth the way for more efficient courts in the future.

The Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act also recognizes that judges, attorneys, court personnel, law enforcement representatives, guardians-ad-litem and all others who participate in abuse and neglect proceedings can benefit from continuing education opportunities, improved training and the development of models for effective practice in these settings. The Act, therefore, extends federal reimbursement for training that is currently provided to agency caseworkers to judges, attorneys and key court personnel who must make decision effecting the lives and future of vulnerable children. In addition to this basic, necessary training for court personnel, we hope it will also foster between cooperation between child welfare agencies and court personnel that is imperative to make system work to ensure the health and safety of children.

Finally, the bill provides for an expansion of the successful CASA—Court Appointed Special Advocates—volunteer program. This superb volunteer program has demonstrated its ability to improve outcomes for abused and neglected children. CASA are volunteers specially trained to speak for the best interests of children who have been abused or neglected. There are over 710 CASA programs nationwide, whose volunteers represented nearly 200,000 children last year alone. Recently, the Department of Justice recognized CASA as an "Exemplary Program". CASA has been operating in West Virginia since 1991 with programs currently serving children in 13 of our counties. Of course, there is more work to be done so that children in all 55 West Virginia counties, and all underserved areas throughout the country can benefit from the services of these trained and dedicated volunteers. In fact, despite CASA's phenomenal volunteer commitment and national praise by courts, and community leaders, 70% of the children in foster care are still without CASA representation. This bill will begin to address this gap by providing a $5 million grant to expand its programs into under-served areas and to improve its ability to recruit, train and supervise volunteers.

When we talk about how to help abused and neglected children in this country, our abuse and neglect courts are too often left out of the discussion. With the numbers of abused and neglected children rising dramatically—in West Virginia alone child abuse reports have doubled—from 13,000 in 1986 to over 26,000 in 1996—we need to include every system in our efforts to make a difference. The courts play a crucial role and I am confident that the Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act will be a valuable step in making our courts stronger, more efficient and more able to effectively address the needs of our Nation's most vulnerable children. I ask that my colleagues join us in this important effort.

I ask that a fact sheet about the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The material follows:

FACT SHEET—STRENGTHENING ABUSE AND NEGLECT ACT OF 1999

A bill to improve the administrative efficiency and effectiveness of the Nation's abuse and neglect courts and the quality and availability of training for judges, attorneys, and volunteers working in such courts, and for other purposes consistent with the Adoption and Safe Families Act of 1997.

SECTION 1, 3, & 3: TITLE, FINDINGS, AND DEFINITIONS

The Strengthening Abuse and Neglect Courts Act of 1999

SECTION 4: GRANTS TO COURTS FOR COMPUTER AUTOMATION AND CASE TRACKING SYSTEMS

A program to provide competitive state and local grants to abuse and neglect courts to create computerized case tracking systems, and to encourage the replication and implementation of successful systems in other court systems. Grant will be awarded based on eligibility criteria designed to encourage applications from both state and local courts, and a balance of urban and rural courts. Guidelines will also ensure that successful models can be disseminated to other courts. Applicants will need to include evaluation plans as part of the grant request.

Grant program is $10 million, with a 25% state matching requirement, but a hardship exemption.

SECTION 5: GRANTS TO REDUCE BACKLOGS OF ABUSE AND NEGLECT CASES

A program to provide grants to court systems to reduce pending backlogs of abuse and neglect cases so that courts are able to comply with the time frames established in the Adoption and Safe Families Act. Competitive grants will be awarded to court systems to reduce backlogs by using night court sessions, hiring additional personnel to manage reduce caseloads, or other innovative strategies.

Grant program is $10 million, and courts can use funding for up to 3 years.

SECTION 6: TRAINING FOR JUDGES AND COURT PERSONNEL

A provision to allow judges, attorneys, and court personnel to qualify for training under Title IV-E's existing training provisions, which is a federal-state matching program set at 75%-25%.

CBO to score provision.

SECTION 7: STATE STANDARDS FOR AGENCY ATTORNEYS

States shall develop and encourage by January 1, 2001, basic guidelines for education and training needed to handle abuse and neglect cases within the state and local court systems.

SECTION 8: TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE FOR CHILD ABUSE, NEGLECT AND DEPENDENCY MATTERS

A program for competitive grants, administered by HHS in coordination with the Attorney General, to provide technical assistance to state and local courts to carry out their new responsibilities, including efforts to speed the process of adoption of children.

Technical assistance will be $5 million for each year, from 2000 to 2004, for a five year total of $25 million.

SECTION 9: GRANTS TO EXPAND THE COURT-APPOINTED SPECIAL ADVOCATES (CASA) PROGRAM IN UNDERSERVED AREAS

A special grant program to expand the well-respected CASA program to the most needy areas, including the 15 largest urban areas and regional programs for rural areas.

A single start up grant of $5 million in 2000.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself and Mr. DASCHLE):

S. 709. A bill to amend the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 to establish and sustain viable rural and remote communities, and to provide affordable housing and community development assistance to rural areas with excessively high rates of outmigration and low per capital income levels; to the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs.

THE RURAL AND REMOTE COMMUNITY FAIRNESS ACT

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, today I rise to introduce the Rural and Remote Community Fairness Act. This Act will lead to a brighter future for rural and remote communities by establishing three new programs that will address the unique economic and environmental challenges faced by small communities in rural and remote areas across this country. I am pleased that this legislation is co-sponsored by the Minority Leader, Senator DASCHLE.

The bill authorizes up to $100 million a year in grant aid from 2000 through 2006 for any communities across the nation with populations of less than 10,000 which face electric rates in excess of 150 percent of the national average retail price. The money can go for electricity system improvements, energy efficiency and weatherization efforts, water and sanitation improvements or work to solve leaking fuel storage tanks.

The bill also amends the Rural Electrification Act to authorize Rural and Remote Electrification Grants of an additional $20 million a year to the same communities. The grants can be used to increase energy efficiency, lower electricity rates or provide for the modernization of electric facilities.

The bill also establishes a new program providing rural recovery community development block grants. This will provide for the development and maintenance of viable rural areas through the provision of affordable housing and community development assistance for rural areas with excessively high rates of outmigration and low per capita income levels.

This nation has well-established programs for community development grants. The majority of these programs were established to help resolve the very real problems found in this Nation's urban areas. However, our most rural and remote communities experience different, but equally real, problems that are not addressed by existing law. Not only are these communities generally ineligible for the existing programs, their unique challenges, while sometimes similar to those experienced by urban areas, require a different focus and approach.

The biggest single economic problem facing small communities is the expense of establishing a modern infrastructure. These costs, which are always substantial, are exacerbated in remote and rural areas. The existence of this infrastructure, including efficient housing, electricity, bulk fuel storage, waste water and water service, is a necessity for the health and welfare of our children, the development of a prosperous economy and minimizing environmental problems.

There is a real cost in human misery and to the health and welfare of everyone, especially our children and our elderly from poor or polluted water or bad housing or an inefficient power system. Hepatitis B infections in rural Alaska are five times more common than in urban Alaska. We just have to do better if we are to bring our rural communities into the 21 Century.

The experience of many of Alaskans is a perfect example. Most small communities or villages in Alaska are not interconnected to an electricity grid, and rely upon diesel generators for their electricity. Often, the fuel can only be delivered by barge or airplane, and is stored in tanks. These tanks are expensive to maintain, and in many cases, must be completely replaced to prevent leakage of fuel into the environment. While the economic and environmental savings clearly justify the construction of new facilities, these communities simply don't have the ability to raise enough capital to make the necessary investments.

As a result, these communities are forced to bear an oppressive economic and environmental burden that can be eased with a relatively small investment on the part of the Federal government. I can give you some examples: in Manley Hot Springs, Alaska, the citizens pay almost 70 cents per kilowatt hour for electricity. In Igiugig, Kokhanok, Akiachak Native Community, and Middle Kuskokwim, consumers all pay over 50 cents per kilowatt hour for electricity. The national average is around 7 cents per kilowatt hour.

Further, in Alaska, for example, many rural villages still lack modern water and sewer sanitation systems taken for granted in all other areas of America. According to a Federal Field Working Group, 190 of the state's villages have "unsafe" sanitation systems, 135 villages still using "honey buckets" for waste disposal. Only 31 villages have a fully safe, piped water system; 71 villages having only one central watering source.

These are not only an Alaskan problem. The highest electricity rates in America are paid by a small community in Missouri, and communities in Maine, as well as islands in Rhode Island and New York will likely qualify for this program. Providing safe drinking water and adequate waste treatment facilities is a problem for very small communities all across this land.

What will this Act do to address these problems? First, the Act authorizes $100 million per year for the years 2000-2006 for block grants to communities of under 10,000 inhabitants who pay more than 150% of the national average retail price for electricity.

The grants will be allocated by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development among eligible communities proportionate to cost of electricity in the community, as compared to the National average. The communities may use the grants only for the following eligible activities:

Low-cost weatherization of homes and other buildings;

Construction and repair of electrical generation, transmission, distribution, and related facilities;

Construction, remediation and repair of bulk fuel storage facilities;

Facilities and training to reduce costs of maintaining and operating electrical generation, distribution, transmission, and related facilities;

Professional management and maintenance for electrical generation, distribution and transmission, and related facilities;

Investigation of the feasibility of alternate energy services;

Construction, operation, maintenance and repair of water and waste water services;

Acquisition and disposition of real property for eligible activities and facilities; and Development of an implementation plan, including administrative costs for eligible activities and facilities.

In addition this bill will amend the Rural Electrification Act of 1936 to authorize Rural and Remote Electrification Grants for $20 million per year for years 2000–2006 for grants to qualified borrowers under the Act that are in rural and remote communities who pay more than 150% of the national average retail price for electricity. These grants can be used to increase energy efficiency, lower electricity rates, or provide or modernize electric facilities.

This Act makes a significant step toward resolving the critical social, economic and environmental problems faced by our Nation's rural and remote communities. I encourage my colleagues to support this legislation.

For the information of the Senate and the public, the bill can also be obtained from the Internet at: <http://thomas.loc.gov>.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 709

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Rural and Remote Community Fairness Act."

TITLE I—RURAL AND REMOTE COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-383) is amended by inserting at the end the following new title:

"TITLE IX—RURAL AND REMOTE COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS

"FINDINGS AND PURPOSE

"SEC. 901. (a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds and declares that—

"(1) a modern infrastructure, including efficient housing, electricity, bulk fuel, waste water and water service, is a necessary ingredient of a modern society and development of a prosperous economy with minimal environmental impacts;

"(2) the Nation's rural and remote communities face critical social, economic and environmental problems, arising in significant measure from the high cost of infrastructure development in sparsely populated and remote areas, that are not adequately addressed by existing Federal assistance programs;

"(3) in the past, Federal assistance has been instrumental in establishing electric and other utility service in many developing regions of the Nation, and that Federal assistance continues to be appropriate to ensure that electric and other utility systems in rural areas conform with modern standards of safety, reliability, efficiency and environmental protection; and

"(4) the future welfare of the Nation and the well-being of its citizens depend on the establishment and maintenance of viable rural and remote communities as social, economic and political entities.

"(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this title is the development and maintenance of viable rural and remote communities through the provision of efficient housing, and reasonably priced and environmentally sound energy, water, waste water, and bulk fuel and utility services to those communities that do not have those services or who currently bear costs for those services that are significantly above the national average.

"DEFINITIONS

"SEC. 902. As used in this title:

"(1) The term 'unit of general local government' means any city, county, town, township, parish, village, borough (organized or unorganized) or other general purpose political subdivision of a State, Guam, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Republic of Palau, the Virgin Islands, and American Samoa; a combination of such political subdivisions that is recognized by the Secretary; and the District of Columbia; or any other appropriate organization of citizens of a rural and remote community that the Secretary may identify.

"(2) The term 'population' means total resident population based on data compiled by the United States Bureau of the Census and referable to the same point or period in time.

"(3) The term 'Native American group' means any Indian tribe, band group, and nation, including Alaska Indians, Aleuts, and Eskimos, and any Alaskan Native Village, of the United States, which is considered an eligible recipient under the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act (Public Law 93-638) or was considered an eligible recipient under chapter 67 of title 31, United States Code, prior to the repeal of such chapter.

"(4) The term 'Secretary' means the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

"(5) The term 'rural and remote community' means a unit of local general government or Native American group which represents or contains a population not in excess of 10,000 permanent inhabitants, and that has an average retail cost per kilowatt hour of electricity that is equal to or greater than 150 percent of the average retail cost per kilowatt hour of electricity for all consumers in the United States, as determined by data provided by the Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration.

"(6) The term alternative energy sources include non-traditional means of providing electrical energy, including, but not limited to, wind, solar, biomass, geothermal and tidal power.

"(7) The term 'average retail cost per kilowatt hour of electricity' has the same meaning as 'average revenue per kilowatthour of electricity' as defined by the Energy Information Administration.

"AUTHORIZATIONS

"SEC. 903. The Secretary is authorized to make grants to rural and remote communities to carry out activities in accordance with the provisions of this title. For purposes of assistance under section 906, there are authorized to be appropriated $100,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2000 through 2006.

"STATEMENT OF ACTIVITIES AND REVIEW

"SEC. 904. (a) Prior to the receipt in any fiscal year of a grant under section 906 by any rural and remote community, the grantee shall have prepared and submitted to the Secretary a final statement of rural and remote community development objectives and projected use of funds.

"(b) In order to permit public examination and appraisal of such statements, to enhance the public accountability of grantees, and to facilitate coordination of activities with different levels of government, the grantee shall in a timely manner—

"(1) furnish citizens information concerning the amount of funds available for rural and remote community development activities and the range of activities that may be undertaken;

"(2) publish a proposed statement in such manner to afford affected citizens an opportunity to examine its content and to submit comments on the proposed statement and on the community development performance of the grantee;

"(3) provide citizens with reasonable access to records regarding the past use of funds received under section 906 by the grantee; and

"(4) provide citizens with reasonable notice of, and opportunity to comment on, any substantial change proposed to be made in the use of funds received under section 906 from one eligible activity to another.

The final statement shall be made available to the public, and a copy shall be furnished to the Secretary. Any final statement of activities may be modified or amended from time to time by the grantee in accordance with the same procedures required in this paragraph for the preparation and submission of such statement.

"(c) Each grantee shall submit to the Secretary, at a time determined by the Secretary, a performance and evaluation report, concerning the use of funds made available under section 906, together with an assessment by the grantee of the relationship of such use to the objectives identified in the grantee's statement under subsection (a) and to the requirements of subsection (b). The grantee's report shall indicate its programmatic accomplishments, the nature of and reasons for any changes in the grantee's program objectives, and indications of how the grantee would change its programs as a result of its experiences.

"(d) Any rural and remote community may retain any program income that is realized from any grant made by the Secretary under section 906 if (1) such income was realized after the initial disbursement of the funds received by such unit of general local government under such section; and (2) such unit of general local government has agreed that it will utilize the program income for eligible rural and remote community development activities in accordance with the provisions of this title; except that the Secretary may, by regulation, exclude from consideration as program income any amounts determined to be so small that compliance with this subsection creates an unreasonable administrative burden on the rural and remote community.

"ELIGIBLE ACTIVITIES

"SEC. 905. (a) Eligible activities assisted under title may include only—

"(1) the provision of assistance, including loans, grants, and services, for low-cost weatherization and other cost-effective energy-related repair of homes and other buildings;

"(2) the acquisition, construction, repair, reconstruction, or installation of reliable and cost-efficient facilities for the generation, transmission or distribution of electricity for consumption in a rural and remote community or communities;

"(3) the acquisition, construction, repair, reconstruction, remediation or installation of facilities for the safe storage and efficient management of bulk fuel by rural and remote communities, and facilities for the distribution of such fuel to consumers in a rural and remote community or communities;

"(4) facilities and training to reduce costs of maintaining and operating generation, distribution or transmission systems to a rural and remote community or communities;

"(5) the institution of professional management and maintenance services for electricity generation, transmission or distribution to a rural and remote community or communities;

"(6) the investigation of the feasibility of alternate energy sources for a rural and remote community or communities;

"(7) acquisition, construction, repair, reconstruction, operation, maintenance, or installation of facilities for water or waste water service;

"(8) the acquisition or disposition of real property (including air rights, water rights, and other interest therein) for eligible rural and remote community development activities; and

"(9) activities necessary to develop and implement a comprehensive rural and remote development plan, including payment of reasonable administrative costs related to planning and execution of rural and remote community development activities.

"(b) Eligible activities may be undertaken either directly by the rural and remote community, or by the rural and remote community through local electric utilities.

"ALLOCATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF FUNDS

"SEC. 906. For each fiscal year, of the amount approved in an appropriation Act under section 903 for grants in any year, the Secretary shall distribute to each rural and remote community which has filed a final statement of rural and remote community development objectives and projected use of funds under section 904, an amount which shall be allocated among the rural and remote communities that filed a final statement of rural and remote community development objectives and projected use of funds under section 904 proportionate to the percentage that the average retail cost per kilowatt hour of electricity for all classes of consumers in the rural and remote community exceeds the national average retail cost per kilowatt hour for electricity for all consumers in the United States, as determined by data provided by the Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration. In allocating funds under this section, the Secretary shall give special consideration to those rural and remote communities that increase economies of scale through consolidation of services, affiliation and regionalization of eligible activities under this title.

"REMEDIES FOR NONCOMPLIANCE

"SEC. 907. The provisions of section 111 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 shall apply to assistance distributed under this title."

TITLE II—RURAL AND REMOTE COMMUNITY ELECTRIFICATION GRANTS

After section 313(b) of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, add the following new subsection:

"(c) RURAL AND REMOTE COMMUNITY ELECTRIFICATION GRANTS.—The Secretary is authorized to provide grants to eligible borrowers under this Act for the purpose of increasing energy efficiency, lowering or stabilizing electric rates to end users, or providing or modernizing electric facilities in rural and remote communities that have an average retail cost per kilowatt hour of electricity that is equal to or greater than 150 percent of the average retail cost per kilowatt hour of electricity for all consumers in the United States, as determined by data provided by the Department of Energy's Energy Information Administration.

"(d) For purposes of subsection (c), there is authorized to be appropriated $20,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2000–2006."

TITLE III—RURAL RECOVERY COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS

The Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (42 U.S.C. 5301 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"SEC. 123. RURAL RECOVERY COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANTS.

"(a) FINDINGS; PURPOSE.—

"(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

"(A) a modern infrastructure, including affordable housing, wastewater and water service, and advanced technology capabilities is a necessary ingredient of a modern society and development of a prosperous economy with minimal environmental impacts;

"(B) the Nation's rural areas face critical social, economic, and environmental problems, arising in significant measure from the growing cost of infrastructure development in rural areas that suffer from low per capita income and high rates of outmigration and are not adequately addressed by existing Federal assistance programs; and

"(C) the future welfare of the Nation and the well-being of its citizens depend on the establishment and maintenance of viable rural areas as social, economic, and political entities.

"(2) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this section is to provide for the development and maintenance of viable rural areas through the provision of affordable housing and community development assistance to eligible units of general local government and eligible Native American groups in rural areas with excessively high rates of outmigration and low per capita income levels.

"(b) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

"(1) ELIGIBLE UNIT OF GENERAL LOCAL GOVERNMENT.—The term 'eligible unit of general local government' means a unit of general local government that is the governing body of a rural recovery area.

"(2) ELIGIBLE INDIAN TRIBE.—The term 'eligible Indian tribe' means the governing body of an Indian tribe that is located in a rural recovery area.

"(3) GRANTEE.—The term 'grantee' means an eligible unit of general local government or eligible Indian tribe that receives a grant under this section.

"(4) NATIVE AMERICAN GROUP.—The term 'Native American group' means any Indian tribe, band, group, and nation, including Alaska Indians, Aleuts, and Eskimos, and any Alaskan Native Village, of the United States, which is considered an eligible recipient under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (Public Law 93-638) or was considered an eligible recipient under chapter 67 of title 31, United States Code, prior to the repeal of such chapter.

"(5) RURAL RECOVERY AREA.—The term 'rural recovery area' means any geographic area represented by a unit of general local government or a native American group—

"(A) the borders of which are not adjacent to a metropolitan area;

"(B) in which—

"(i) the population outmigration level equals or exceeds 1 percent over the most recent five year period, as determined by the Secretary of Agriculture, and,

"(ii) the per capita income is less than that of the national nonmetropolitan average; and

"(C) that does not include a city with a population of more than 15,000.

"(6) UNIT OF GENERAL LOCAL GOVERNMENT.—

"(A) IN GENERAL.—The term 'unit of general local government' means any city, county, town, township, parish, village, borough (organized or unorganized), or other general purpose political subdivision of a State; Guam, the Northern Mariana Islands, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, and American Samoa, or a general purpose political subdivision thereof; a combination of such political subdivisions that, except as provided in section 106(d)(4), is recognized by the Secretary; the District of Columbia; and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

"(B) OTHER ENTITIES INCLUDED.—The term also includes a State or a local public body or agency (as defined in section 711 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970), community association, or other entity, that is approved by the Secretary for the purpose of providing public facilities or services to a new community as part of a program meeting the eligibility standards of section 712 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1970 or title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

"(C) GRANT AUTHORITY.—The Secretary may make grants in accordance with this section to eligible units of general local government Native American groups and eligible Indian tribes that meet the requirements of subsection (d) to carry out eligible activities described in subsection (f).

"(d) ELIGIBILITY REQUIREMENTS.—

"(1) STATEMENT OF RURAL DEVELOPMENT OBJECTIVES.—In order to receive a grant under this section for a fiscal year, an eligible unit of general local government, Native American group or eligible Indian tribe—

"(A) shall—

"(i) publish a proposed statement of rural development objectives and a description of the proposed eligible activities described in subsection (f) for which the grant will be used; and

"(ii) afford residents of the rural recovery area served by the eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups or eligible Indian tribe with an opportunity to examine the contents of the proposed statement and the proposed eligible activities published under clause (i), and to submit comments to the eligible unit of general local government, Native American group or eligible Indian tribe, as applicable, on—

"(I) the proposed statement and the proposed eligible activities; and

"(II) the overall community development performance of the eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups or eligible Indian tribe, as applicable; and

"(B) based on any comments received under subparagraph (A)(ii), prepare and submit to the Secretary—

"(i) a final statement of rural development objectives;

"(ii) a description of the eligible activities described in subsection (f) for which a grant received under this section will be used; and

"(iii) a certification that the eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups or eligible Indian tribe, as applicable, will comply with the requirements of paragraph (2).

"(2) PUBLIC NOTICE AND COMMENT.—In order to enhance public accountability and facilitate the coordination of activities among different levels of government, an eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups or eligible Indian tribe that receives a grant under this section shall, as soon as practicable after such receipt, provide the residents of the rural recovery area served by the eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups or eligible Indian tribe, as applicable, with—

"(A) a copy of the final statement submitted under paragraph (1)(B);

"(B) information concerning the amount made available under this section and the eligible activities to be undertaken with that amount;

"(C) reasonable access to records regarding the use of any amounts received by the eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups or eligible Indian tribe under this section in any preceding fiscal year; and

"(D) reasonable notice of, and opportunity to comment on, any substantial change proposed to be made in the use of amounts received under this section from 1 eligible activity to another.

"(e) DISTRIBUTION OF GRANTS.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—In each fiscal year, the Secretary shall distribute to each eligible unit of general local government, Native American groups and eligible Indian tribe that meets the requirements of subsection (d)(1) a grant in an amount described in paragraph (2).

"(2) AMOUNT.—Of the total amount made available to carry out this section in each fiscal year, the Secretary shall distribute to each grantee the amount equal to the greater of—

"(A) the pro rata share of the grantee, as determined by the Secretary, based on the combined annual population outmigration level (as determined by Secretary of Agriculture) and the per capita income for the rural recovery area served by the grantee; or

"(B) $200,000.

"(f) ELIGIBLE ACTIVITIES.—Each grantee shall use amounts received under this section for 1 or more of the following eligible activities, which may be undertaken either directly by the grantee, or by any local economic development corporation, regional planning district, non-profit community development corporation, or statewide development organization authorized by the grantee:

"(1) The acquisition, construction, repair, reconstruction, operation, maintenance, or installation of facilities for water and wastewater service or any other infrastructure needs determined to be critical to the further development or improvement of a designated industrial park.

"(2) The acquisition or disposition of real property (including air rights, water rights, and other interests therein) for rural community development activities.

"(3) The development of telecommunications infrastructure within a designated industrial park that encourages high technology business development in rural areas

"(4) Activities necessary to develop and implement a comprehensive rural development plan, including payment of reasonable administrative costs related to planning and execution of rural development activities.

"(5) Affordable housing initiatives.

"(g) PERFORMANCE AND EVALUATION REPORT.—

"(1) IN GENERAL.—Each grantee shall annually submit to the Secretary a performance and evaluation report, concerning the use of amounts received under this section.

"(2) CONTENTS.—Each report submitted under paragraph (1) shall include a description of—

"(i) publish a proposed statement of rural development objectives and a description of the proposed eligible activities described in subsection (f) for which the grant will be used; and

"(A) the eligible activities carried out by the grantee with amounts received under this section, and the degree to which the grantee has achieved the rural development objectives included in the final statement submitted under subsection (d)(1);

"(B) the nature of and reasons for any change in the rural development objectives or the eligible activities of the grantee after submission of the final statement under subsection (d)(1); and

"(C) any manner in which the grantee would change the rural development objectives of the grantee as a result of the experience of the grantee in administering amounts received under this section.

"(h) RETENTION OF INCOME.—A grantee may retain any income that is realized from the grant, if—

"(1) the income was realized after the initial disbursement of amounts to the grantee under this section; and

"(2) the—

"(A) grantee agrees to utilize the income for 1 or more eligible activities; or

"(B) amount of the income is determined by the Secretary to be so small that compliance with subparagraph (A) would create an unreasonable administrative burden on the grantee.

"(i) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $50,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2000 through 2006."

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation to help address the economic malaise that has gripped certain rural and remote areas of our country and the problems arising from the high cost of developing and maintaining infrastructure in remote communities. The legislation will provide grants to rural communities suffering from out-migration and low per-capita income and will help ensure that remote communities are not unfairly penalized by the high cost of services, such as water, waste water, fuel and utility services. I want to thank my colleague from Alaska, Senator MURKOWSKI, for his work on this legislation. His contribution in addressing these problems is most welcome.

Rural areas of our Nation continue to experience vast fluctuations in their economic well-being due to their dependence on worldwide agricultural markets. The link between global economic forces and local economic conditions is nowhere as pronounced as it is in rural America. And yet, rural communities are often those least capable of weathering the severe periodic downturns that occur in global markets.

Statistics bear out these fluctuations in economic activity, but they fail to fully capture the human suffering that lies just beyond the numbers. Economic downturns lead to the migration away from farm-dependent, rural communities, further stifling economic opportunities for those left behind. The 1990 Census highlighted these migratory trends, and I anticipate that similar trends will be captured by the upcoming Census, as well.

In short, the bandwagon of prosperity that has carried many Americans along through the past decade has left many rural areas standing by the wayside. If this trend continues, more and more young people will be forced to leave the towns they grew up in for opportunities in urban areas. In towns like Webster, Sisseton, and White River, South Dakota, we are seeing farm families broken up, populations decline, and main street businesses close their doors. While there is no doubt that economic growth in our urban areas has benefited our Nation, the disparity of economic development between our rural and urban areas cannot be ignored. If nothing is done to address the economic challenges facing these areas, we will jeopardize the future of rural America.

That is why Senator MURKOWSKI and I are introducing legislation to provide the Nation's rural areas with the resources necessary to make critical investments in their future and, by doing so, to create economic opportunities that will help them sustain a valuable and important way of life. While Federal agencies, such as the United States Department of Agriculture's Office of Rural Development and the Economic Development Administration, provide assistance for rural development purposes, there are no Federal programs that provide a steady source of funding for rural areas most affected by severe out-migration and low per-capita income. For these areas, the process of economic development is often most arduous. The Rural and Remote Community Fairness Act of 1999 will provide the basic, long-term assistance necessary to aid the coordinated efforts of local community leaders as they begin economic recovery efforts to ensure a bright future for rural America.

Specifically, the Rural and Remote Community Fairness Act of 1999 will provide a minimum of $200,000 per year to counties and Indian tribes with (1) out-migration levels of one percent or more over a five-year period, (2) per-capita income levels that are below the national average, and (3) borders that are not adjacent to a metropolitan area. This legislation authorizes the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development to set aside $50 million in Community Development Block Grant funding for this purpose. The money, which is already included in the agency's budget, will be allocated on a formula basis to rural counties and Indian tribes suffering from out-migration and low-per capita income levels.

County and tribal governments will be able to use this federal funding to improve their industrial parks, purchase land for development, build affordable housing and create economic recovery strategies according to their needs. All of these important steps will help rural communities address their economic problems and plan for long-term growth and development.

In addition to addressing the problems of out-migration from low per-capita income areas, this legislation also focuses on the unique problems associated with those communities located in areas with high energy costs. Specifically, the legislation sets aside $100,000,000 for weatherization efforts, the construction of cost-efficient power facilities and fuel storage facilities, energy management programs, water and waste water facilities, the acquisition or disposition of real property for rural and remote development activities, and for the implementation of a comprehensive rural and remote development plan.

Mr. President, the Rural and Remote Community Fairness Act of 1999 holds great potential for revitalizing many of our nation's most neglected and vulnerable areas. I urge my colleagues to support its enactment this Congress.

By Mr. LOTT (for himself, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. BREAUX, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. CRAIG, and Mr. MURKOWSKI):

S. 710. A bill to authorize the feasibility study on the preservation of certain Civil War battlefields along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

VICKSBURG CAMPAIGN TRAIL BATTLEFIELDS
PRESERVATION ACT OF 1999

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, on February 20, 1899, the 56th Congress took an important step toward preserving one of our nation's most significant historical resources when it established the Vicksburg National Military Park. The campaign and siege at Vicksburg, the "Gibraltar of the Confederacy," was a pivotal moment in American History. As the gateway to the Mississippi River, the region was of vital strategic importance to both the South and the North. For this reason, the Vicksburg engagement is heralded as one of the most brilliant offensive campaigns ever fought on U.S. soil.

Every year, the Vicksburg National Military Park plays host to over one million visitors who are able to take advantage of this national historic treasure. Like many other National Parks, Vicksburg contributes to the cultural, recreational, scenic, and economic vitality of the region.

As America celebrates the centennial anniversary of the Park's founding, it is important to recognize that a number of other campaign related sites throughout Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Tennessee, used by both the Union and Confederate Armies during the 1862 to 1863 Vicksburg conflict, are in desperate need of study, interpretation, management, and protection.

These are sites that have been listed as historically significant properties on both state and national registries. Unfortunately, many of these same sites, buildings, fortifications, earthworks, and other landmarks along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail route have been identified by the National Trust for Historic Preservation as being among the 11 most endangered historic places in America. The Mississippi Heritage Trust, based in Jackson, also named the Campaign Trail as one of its highest priorities and placed the Vicksburg Trail on its list of most threatened historic areas in the state.

Mr. President, that is why I am introducing legislation today to authorize the Park Service to conduct a feasibility study on the Vicksburg Campaign Trail. A study that will identify options for preserving some of our nation's most important Civil War battlefields and sites.

At the outbreak of the American Civil War, President Abraham Lincoln gathered his ranking civil and military leaders to develop a strategy for ending the war. While seated around a large table examining a map of the nation, Lincoln made a wide sweeping gesture with his hand, and then placed his finger on the map at Vicksburg. He said, "See what a lot of land these fellows hold of which Vicksburg is the key. The war can never be brought to a close until that key is in our pocket."

It was a crucial for the Federal government to regain control of the lower Mississippi River. The goal was to enable troops, supplies and commerce to flow unhindered from the Northwest. Taking the Gibraltar of the Confederacy would sever vital Southern supply routes, achieve a major objective of the Anaconda Plan, and effectively seal the doom of the Confederate capital in Richmond.

Even with Major General Ulysses S. Grant leading the charge, Vicksburg would prove a tough nut to crack. Its powerful Southern batteries were trained on the river and an 8 mile-long swath of earthworks guarded all land based approaches. The reinforced line consisted of nine major forts connected by trenches and rifle pits manned by a garrison of 30,000 troops and 172 mounted guns. These fortifications posed the greatest challenge to Union domination of the Mississippi River.

The campaign to capture Vicksburg, to "pocket the key" to Union victory, lasted 18 months and involved more than 100,000 soldiers. It was here that entire regiments of black soldiers wore the uniform of the United States Army for only the second time in American history. The battle of Vicksburg also involved a number of historic naval engagements between Union gunboats and Confederate warships.

After months of frustration and failure to capture the Confederate bastion, General Grant marched his force of over 45,000 men down the west side of the Mississippi River. With the assistance of the U.S. fleet, Union troops crossed the river below Vicksburg and swiftly moved deep into Mississippi. After five fierce battles, the state capital of Jackson was taken. The Union Army then turned west and marched along the rail line towards Vicksburg. Lt. Gen. John C. Pemberton led the defense of Vicksburg and held the Rebel line for some time. Pemberton refused to succumb to unconditional surrender even after 47 days of siege. He finally relinquished the city on July 4, 1863 after securing paroles for his resistance forces.

Mr. President, many historians consider the battle of Vicksburg to be the most decisive campaign of the Civil War. It was also the most complex combined operation ever undertaken by American armed forces prior to World War II. In fact, the Vicksburg Campaign is required study at the United States Military Academy, the Army War College, and the Commanding General Staff College. These are the men and women who will eventually lead our armed forces. Rather than just read about the conflict in textbooks, troops from military units throughout the country ride the battlefields to experience first hand the tactics of war.

At a time when the movie "Saving Private Ryan" is recognized for its true-to-life depiction of the battlefield on Omaha Beach, Normandy, France, our nation must continue to reflect on the hardships suffered here on our own soil. Those suffered by soldiers and civilians throughout the North and South.

The Vicksburg campaign is truly an example of the pathos of war here on America's shores. Brother fought against brother on opposite sides of the battle lines. In defense of ideals each held dear. During the siege, soldiers fed off the land while the civilian population lived underground to escape the constant bombardment of Union guns—enduring exposure, sickness, and little food. It was a military operation where tens of thousands of lives were lost.

Vicksburg is also an illustration of the healing and reunification that followed Reconstruction. Union and Confederate veterans joined forces to establish Vicksburg National Military Park. We owe these former combatants a debt of gratitude for their efforts. Not only for their distinguished bravery during the most trying of times, but also for the vital legacy they left us all.

Now it is our solemn duty to safeguard the memory of those who fought so dearly during the many battles that occurred to secure Vicksburg by studying the entire campaign trail. For its contribution to our understanding of the Civil War and for its continued influence on American history. This great contest encompassed a vast geographical region. Battle related sites are scattered throughout Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Tennessee. While some landmarks have been lost to age and neglect, it is not too late to protect the hundreds of remnants associated with the campaign that remain to tell the story.

Mr. President, the non-partisan measure offered today is also a key. The key to protecting our national heritage. This bill will begin a much needed process to protect the integrity of the many historic venues associated with the battle of Vicksburg that still exist. Literally hundreds of miles of roads, fields, and bayous were covered by Yankee and Rebel troops during this engagement. To truly understand and appreciate this historic conflict, it is important to look beyond the confines of the Vicksburg National Military Park as it exists today. The 106th Congress needs to build upon the legacy our forefathers left us by developing a comprehensive plan leading to the eventual preservation of the many endangered sites along the four state campaign trail. This Congress needs to authorize this much needed study—the second key. President Lincoln got the first key over one hundred years ago.

Now that 136 years have past, the current President needs the second key.

Without Congressional action, historians, soldiers, re-enactors, and tourists will forever lose direct access to the many at-risk landmarks and battlefields along the Vicksburg campaign route that have not yet disappeared. Sites, that while inexorably linked by time and honor, will simply vanish into the wind without the development of coordinated and comprehensive preservation strategies. Sites where the true experience of history will only be left to words.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to join with me in support of this non-partisan measure. Let us take this first and necessary step to protect our national heritage for those who have gone before us and for those yet to come.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 710

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Vicksburg Campaign Trail Battlefields Preservation Act of 1999".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) there are situated along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail in the States of Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Tennessee the sites of several key Civil War battles;

(2) the battlefields along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail are collectively of national significance in the history of the Civil War; and

(3) the preservation of those battlefields would vitally contribute to the understanding of the heritage of the United States.

(b) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this Act is to authorize a feasibility study to determine what measures should be taken to preserve certain Civil War battlefields along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) CAMPAIGN TRAIL STATE.—The term "Campaign Trail State" means each of the States of Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, and Tennessee, including political subdivisions of those States.

(2) CIVIL WAR BATTLEFIELD.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The term "Civil War battlefield" means the land and interests in land that is the site of a Civil War battlefield, including structures on or adjacent to the land, as generally depicted on the Map.

(B) INCLUSIONS.—The term "Civil War battlefield" includes—

(i) the battlefields at Helena and Arkansas Post, Arkansas;

(ii) Goodrich's Landing near Transylvania, and sites in and around Lake Providence, East Carroll Parish, Louisiana;

(iii) the battlefield at Milliken's Bend, Madison Parish, Louisiana;

(iv) the route of Grant's march through Louisiana from Milliken's Bend to Hard Times, Madison and Tensas Parishes, Louisiana;

(v) the Winter Quarters at Tensas Parish, Louisiana;

(vi) Grant's landing site at Bruinsburg, and the route of Grant's march from Bruinsburg to Vicksburg, Claiborne, Hinds, and Warren Counties, Mississippi;

(vii) the battlefield at Port Gibson (including Shafer House, Bethel Church, and the ruins of Windsor), Claiborne County, Mississippi;

(viii) the battlefield at Grand Gulf, Claiborne County, Mississippi;

(ix) the battlefield at Raymond (including Waverly, (the Peyton House)), Hinds County, Mississippi;

(x) the battlefield at Jackson, Hinds County, Mississippi;

(xi) the Union siege lines around Jackson, Hinds County, Mississippi;

(xii) the battlefield at Champion Hill (including Coker House), Hinds County, Mississippi;

(xiii) the battlefield at Big Black River Bridge, Hinds and Warren Counties, Mississippi;

(xiv) the Union fortifications at Haynes Bluff, Confederate fortifications at Snyder's Bluff, and remnants of Federal exterior lines, Warren County, Mississippi;

(xv) the battlefield at Chickasaw Bayou, Warren County, Mississippi;

(xvi) Pemberton's Headquarters at Warren County, Mississippi;

(xvii) the site of actions taken in the Mississippi Delta and Confederate fortifications near Grenada, Grenada County, Mississippi;

(xviii) the site of the start of Greirson's Raid and other related sites, LaGrange, Tennessee; and

(xix) any other sites considered appropriate by the Secretary.

(3) MAP.—The term "Map" means the map entitled "Vicksburg Campaign Trail National Battlefields", numbered _____, and dated _____.

(4) SECRETARY.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of the Interior, acting through the Director of the National Park Service.

SEC. 4. FEASIBILITY STUDY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary shall complete a feasibility study to determine what measures should be taken to preserve Civil War battlefields along the Vicksburg Campaign Trail.

(b) COMPONENTS.—In completing the study, the Secretary shall—

(1) enter into contracts with entities to use advanced technology such as remote sensing, river modeling, and flow analysis to determine which property included in the Civil War battlefields should be preserved, restored, managed, maintained, or acquired due to the national historical significance of the property;

(2) evaluate options for the establishment of a management entity for the Civil War battlefields consisting of a unit of government or a private nonprofit organization that—

(A) administers and manages the Civil War battlefields; and

(B) possesses the legal authority to—

(i) receive Federal funds and funds from other units of government or other organizations for use in managing the Civil War battlefields;

(ii) disburse Federal funds to other units of government or other nonprofit organizations for use in managing the Civil War battlefields;

(iii) enter into agreements with the Federal government, State governments, or other units of government and nonprofit organizations; and

(iv) acquire land or interests in land by gift or devise, by purchase from a willing seller using donated or appropriated funds, or by donation;

(3) make recommendations to the Campaign Trail States for the management, preservation, and interpretation of the natural, cultural, and historical resources of the Civil War battlefields;

(4) identify appropriate partnerships among Federal, State, and local governments, regional entities, and the private sector, including nonprofit organizations and the organization known as "Friends of the Vicksburg Campaign and Historic Trail", in furtherance of the purposes of this Act; and

(5) recommend methods of ensuring continued local involvement and participation in the management, protection, and development of the Civil War battlefields.

(c) REPORT.—Not later than 60 days after the date of completion of the study under this section, the Secretary shall submit a report describing the findings of the study to—

(1) the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources of the Senate; and

(2) the Committee on Resources of the House of Representatives.

(d) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this Act $1,500,000.

By Mr. MURKOWSKI (for himself and Mr. STEVENS):

S. 711. A bill to allow for the investment of joint Federal and State funds from the civil settlement of damages from the Exxon Valdez oil spill, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

CIVIL SETTLEMENT OF DAMAGES FROM THE "EXXON VALDEZ" OIL SPILL.

• Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, we are ten years older, but are we ten years wiser since the Exxon Valdez oil spill?

With the anniversary of the Nation's worst oil spill occurring today, the question most asked by national media is how the environment and wildlife of Alaska has fared. In fact, just last week on a "60 minutes" story this exact question was asked. It was asked not only by the network doing the story, but by the Alaskans being interviewed.

What's particularly frustrating is that in many cases it is still not possible to give informed answers.

In the years since 11.3 million gallons of crude oil bubbled into the sea, the Exxon Valdez Oil Spill (EVOS) Trustees Council has had nearly $800 million of the eventual $900 million that Exxon will pay at their disposal to fund scientific studies. Those studies should have determined the health of marine life, wildlife and the ecosystem of Prince William Sound. But according to the latest summary of scientific studies, while it is possible to say that some species have or are recovering, it is not possible to give a full accounting.

According to a report from the council last month very little is known about the health of cutthroat trout, Dolly Varden, rockfish or Kittlitz's murrelets. And there is only slightly more information on the health of killer whales, pigeon guillemots, cormorants, and common loon, harbor seals and harlequin ducks.

While it is heartening that the Sound appears to be recovering sooner than many thought likely, and that herring and salmon stocks are recovering as are bald eagles and river otters, it is frustrating that more hard scientific data has not been gathered.

That is why, Mr. President, I rise to introduce legislation, on behalf of myself and Senator STEVENS, that will provide for more science to be done on the impacted spill area. The legislation I am introducing will allow for a higher rate of interest to be earned through outside investments of the settlement funds from the Exxon Valdez oil spill.

The legislation specifies that the interest on investments received under this new authority must be used to support marine research and economic restoration projects for the fishing industry and local fishermen. If the trustees choose to use this authority, an additional $20 million to $30 million could be generated for research and restoration between now and 2001.

The legislation further requires the trustees to present a report to Congress recommending a structure the trustees believe would be most effective and appropriate for the administration and expenditure of remaining funds and interest received. This provision is also consistent with comments from the public suggesting that an independent science-oriented board should control the process of funding science projects, rather than trustees who represent agencies that may be seeking project funding.

I, for one, believe the Council's priorities have been misplaced which has necessitated this legislation. They have been unwilling to admit that science does not yet provide many mitigation answers; instead, the spill trustees have decided to go on a land buying spree as an alternative.

This is a mistake, Mr. President.

In a State where 68 percent of all land is federally owned and where individuals own less than 1 percent of all property, the trustees have allocated $416 million of the initial $900 million court settlement just for land acquisitions. They have nearly completed the purchase of 647,000 acres in and around Prince William Sound and just recently voted to set aside an additional $55 million to fund acquisitions, literally, forever even though most of the land being bought was not directly affected by the spill.

Alaska Natives worked for decades to win the 1971 land settlement that gave them control of 44 million acres of Alaska. Now, in less than a quarter of a century, Natives have lost much of the land they had fought to gain—a good part of the Native lands in the region have been reacquired through the actions of the trustees. It is ironic, indeed, that the United States purchased Alaska for $7.2 million in 1867 and that 60 times more money already has been committed to buy back parts of it.

Back in 1994 when $600 million of the settlement was still uncommitted, I urged the trustees to commit the bulk of the settlement to a "permanent fund" that would provide a perpetual source of significant funding for research or mitigation projects. I also urged the trustees to utilize the expertise of the University of Alaska in undertaking those studies. I warned that if too much funding was allocated to land acquisition, or spent on marginal science, less money would be available to fund sound studies to shed light on the mysteries affecting commercial and sport fisheries and marine life and wildlife in the Sound.

In the intervening years we have seen General Accounting Office audits documenting that the trustees have paid on average 56 percent above government-appraised value for the lands it has acquired. We've seen a situation this year where the trustees paid nearly $80 million for lands on Kodiak Island, while the Department of the Interior set the value of those same lands at about one-third that amount when it came to funding revenue sharing payments to the Kodiak Island Borough.

While the trustees recently voted to place about $115 million of the settlement aside to provide interest to fund future scientific studies, I believe the earnings from all of the roughly $170 million still owed by Exxon should be devoted to pay for marine research and monitoring including applied fisheries research. I believe this approach will give us answers, not leave us guessing, about what is happening to the Sound and what we can do to improve the habitat of the region. The legislation we introduce today will begin to address this need.

Long after the Sound has healed its wounds, those lands bought by the trustees will be lost forever to economic activity and to the Native heritage. Nowhere could this be clearer than the example of one Native corporation that agreed to sell its lands with the intent to invest in a perpetual trust to help children go to school and provide solutions to other problems. Instead it was pressured to make a one time payment to each shareholder.

The longest-lasting legacy of the tragedy may be that some of the Natives find themselves like the Biblical Esau who sold his birthright to Jacob for a mess of pottage and bread. When the meal was gone so was his heritage. When that one-time payment has been spent, what will have been gained and what will pass on to their children?

Today, another tragedy is clear, we still do not have the answers to the effects of the spill, even though we had the wherewithal to have obtained them.

Mr. President, immediately following the spill, I sponsored a provision in the Oil Pollution Act of 1990, which was passed by Congress, to create Regional Citizens Advisory Councils, giving local residents the authority and the resources to improve all aspects of oil transport planning and cleanup. Patterned after a concept then in place at the Port of Sullom Voe in the North Sea's Shetland Islands, there is no question that the oversight and creativity that the councils engendered have done the most to make Alaska's oil transportation system the best in the world.

It is time for Congress to act again today, to ensure that we have the resources to obtain the best science available in understanding Prince William Sound. I believe this bill will allow us to do just that. ●

● Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I join Senator MURKOWSKI in introducing this bill to allow greater interest to be earned on funds from the civil settlement between Exxon and the State of Alaska and the Federal Government resulting from the 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill. This is another silver lining from the spill.

Under the civil settlement, Exxon has paid $900 million to the State of Alaska and Federal Government. The settlement established the Exxon Valdez Oil Spill Trustee Council to administer these funds. The Trustee Council is comprised of three Federal and three State representatives.

While I disagree with the Council's decisions to spend much of the funds to acquire land in Alaska, I was pleased by their decision on March 1, 1999 to dedicate $115 million for an endowment for marine research, monitoring, and restoration.

Our bill would allow the Council to invest these funds outside the court registry, where it would earn greater interest than under the court's authority. The bill is similar to the legislation we pursued during the 105th Congress. We are encouraged that the Trustee Council has directed its Executive Director to work with us on this measure, and we will keep an open mind when those discussions begin.

I also intend to explore whether we can merge the EVOS research endowment with the North Pacific Marine Research endowment I created last year with funds received by the Federal Government in the case involving Dinkum Sands oil lease revenue. The EVOS funds can only be used in the spill area, while the Dinkum Sands funds can be used for research relating to any of the marine waters off Alaska. Merging the two would maximize research benefits for Alaska and the Nation, and minimize potential duplication.

In 1997, we established the 19-member North Pacific Research Board to prepare the marine research plan for the Dinkum Sands funds. In 1998, however, during the first year of funding, we simplified the approach so that the University of Alaska has the responsibility for preparing the plan, and the plan must then be approved by the State of Alaska, the Department of the Interior, and the Department of Commerce. Our goal is to update the North Pacific Research Board so that the University will have the central role, but the other entities on the North Pacific Marine Research Board will also have an advisory role in the long term in setting the research priorities.

During our work on this, we will also see whether it is possible to merge the EVOS research endowment with the Dinkum Sands endowment. The bill that Senator MURKOWSKI and I are introducing is the critical piece of the puzzle that will allow greater interest to be earned on the EVOS marine research endowment whether or not we are ultimately able to merge the two.●

By Mr. LOTT (for himself, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. BREAUX, and Mr. WYDEN):

S. 712. A bill to amend title 39, United States Code, to allow postal patrons to contribute to funding for highway-rail grade crossing safety through the voluntary purchase of certain specially issued United States postage stamps; to the Committee on Governmental Affairs.

THE "LOOK, LISTEN, AND LIVE STAMP ACT"

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, today I, along with Senators HUTCHISON, BREAUX, and WYDEN, introduce the "Look, Listen, and Live Stamp Act." This bill would authorize the U.S. Postal Service to establish a special-rate postage stamp to promote highway-rail grade crossing safety.

There are approximately 150,000 public crossings in America today, the majority of which are equipped with only passive warning devices. In 1998, there were 3,446 grade-crossing collisions involving motor vehicles resulting in 1,950 serious injuries and 422 deaths. A motorist is 40 times more likely to die in a crash involving a train than in a collision involving another motor vehicle. Most recently, this nation witnessed the horror of the Amtrak grade-crossing collision in Bourbonnais, Illinois last week.

Sadly, Mr. President, grade-crossing deaths are preventable. Unfortunately, the cost of separating or eliminating all of these crossings would run into the trillions of dollars, and even the cost of equipping every crossing with the most effective active warning devices would run into the billions of dollars. While the railroad industry and Federal, state, and local governments are slowly reducing the number of grade-crossings and improving others, the process will take decades to complete. Also, about half of all collisions at highway-rail grade crossings occur at crossings equipped with active warning systems in place: flashing lights, bells and gates.

To save lives now, we must intensify our efforts to educate our citizens on the hazards of, and proper method for, crossing a railroad track. The "Look, Listen, and Live Stamp Act" would promote this worthy cause in two ways. First, the stamp itself, and its display in post offices throughout America, would serve as a reminder to all to treat the crossing of a railroad track as a life or death situation. Second, it would provide an additional source of revenue to the Department of Transportation to fund Operation Lifesaver programs. Operation Lifesaver is non-profit, nationwide public education program dedicated to reducing collisions, injuries, and fatalities at intersections where America's roadways meet railways and along railroad rights-of-way. "Look, Listen, and Live" is an Operation Lifesaver slogan intended to remind motor vehicle drivers how to protect their lives when they approach a highway-rail grade crossing.

Mr. President, the bill would authorize the U.S. Postal Service to sell the stamp at up to 25 percent more than the cost of a first-class stamp, with the difference going to the Department of Transportation to provide additional Operation Lifesaver funding. U.S. Postal Service customers could choose to buy these special stamps, and thereby contribute to this worthy cause, or continue to purchase regular first-class stamps at the going rate. The choice would be theirs. Most importantly, the stamp will provide a constant reminder of the need to exercise caution in crossing railroad tracks. Public memory of the Bourbonnais, Illinois incident, and similar fatal collisions, will fade as media interest shifts to new topics. Operation Lifesaver's public awareness programs are an effort to change driver behavior, but additional reminders, such as this stamp, are required.

The lives lost by a driver's careless crossing of a railroad track are usually those in the motor vehicle, but many times include the passengers and crew members of the train. Even when the train crew survives, they are haunted by the memories of helplessly watching these needless deaths. This is a nationwide problem, but a March 22, 1999, USA Today article detailed the dangers of this problem in my home state of Mississippi. I want to dedicate this bill to the families of the victims of the Amtrak "City of New Orleans" collision in Bourbonnais last week, especially to the families of the five victims from Mississippi: June Bonnin and Jessica Tickle of Nesbit, Mississippi, Lacey Lipscomb and Rainey Lipscomb of Lake Cormorant, Mississippi, and Sheena Dowe of Jackson, Mississippi.

Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to join me in cosponsoring this bill.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 712

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "Look, Listen, and Live Stamp Act".

SEC. 2. SPECIAL POSTAGE STAMPS TO BENEFIT HIGHWAY-RAIL GRADE CROSSING SAFETY.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Chapter 4 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by inserting after section 414 the following:

"§414a. Special postage stamps for highway-rail grade crossing safety"

"(a) In order to afford the public a convenient way to contribute to funding for highway-rail grade crossing safety, the Postal Service shall establish a special rate of postage for first-class mail under this section.

"(b) The rate of postage established under this section—

"(1) shall be equal to the regular first-class rate of postage, plus a differential of not to exceed 25 percent;

"(2) shall be set by the Governors in accordance with such procedures as the Governors shall by regulation prescribe (in lieu of the procedures under chapter 36); and

"(3) shall be offered as an alternative to the regular first-class rate of postage.

"(c) The use of the special rate of postage established under this section shall be voluntary on the part of postal patrons.

"(d)(1) Amounts becoming available for highway-rail grade crossing safety under this section shall be paid by the Postal Service to the Department of Transportation for Operation Lifesaver. Payments under this section shall be made under such arrangements as the Postal Service shall by mutual agreement with the Department of Transportation establish in order to carry out the purposes of this section, except that, under those arrangements, payments to the Department of Transportation shall be made at least twice a year.

"(2) For purposes of this section, the term 'amounts becoming available for highway-rail grade crossing safety under this section' means—

"(A) the total amounts received by the Postal Service that the Postal Service would not have received but for the enactment of this section, reduced by

"(B) an amount sufficient to cover reasonable costs incurred by the Postal Service in carrying out this section, including those attributable to the printing, sale, and distribution of stamps under this section, as determined by the Postal Service under regulations that it shall prescribe.

"(e) It is the sense of Congress that nothing in this section should—

"(1) directly or indirectly cause a net decrease in total funds received by the Department of Transportation for Operation Lifesaver below the level that would otherwise have been received but for the enactment of this section; or

"(2) affect regular first-class rates of postage or any other regular rates of postage.

"(f) Special postage stamps under this section shall be made available to the public beginning on such date as the Postal Service shall by regulation prescribe, but in no event later than 12 months after the date of the enactment of this section.

"(g) The Postmaster General shall include in each report rendered under section 2402 with respect to any period during any portion of which this section is in effect information, concerning the operation of this section, except that, at a minimum, each report shall include—

"(1) the total amount described in subsection (d)(2)(A) which was received by the Postal Service during the period covered by such report; and

"(2) of the amount under paragraph (1), how much (in the aggregate and by category) was required for the purposes described in subsection (d)(2)(B).

"(h) This section shall cease to be effective at the end of the 2-year period beginning on the date on which special postage stamps under this section are first made available to the public."

(b) REPORT BY THE COMPTROLLER GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES.—Not later than 3 months (but not earlier than 6 months) before the end of the 2-year period referred to in section 414a(h) of title 39, United States Code (as amended by subsection (a)), the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to Congress a report on the operation of such section. Such report shall include—

(1) an evaluation of the effectiveness and the appropriateness of the authority provided by such section as a means of fund-raising; and

(2) a description of the monetary and other resources required of the Postal Service in carrying out such section.

(c) TECHNICAL AND CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—

(1) TABLE OF SECTIONS.—The table of sections for chapter 4 of title 39, United States Code, is amended by striking the item relating to section 414 and inserting the following:

“414. Special postage stamps for breast cancer research.

“414a. Special postage stamps for highway-rail grade crossing safety.”.

(2) SECTION HEADING.—The heading for section 414 of title 39, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

“§414. Special postage stamps for breast cancer research.”.

ADDITIONAL COSPONSORS

S. 223

At the request of Mr. LAUTENBERG, the name of the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 223, a bill to help communities modernize public school facilities, and for other purposes.

S. 327

At the request of Mr. HAGEL, the name of the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. KERREY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 327, a bill to exempt agricultural products, medicines, and medical products from U.S. economic sanctions.

S. 333

At the request of Mr. LEAHY, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. LAUTENBERG) was added as a cosponsor of S. 333, a bill to amend the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 to improve the farmland protection program.

S. 345

At the request of Mr. ALLARD, the name of the Senator from Michigan (Mr. LEVIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 345, a bill to amend the Animal Welfare Act to remove the limitation that permits interstate movement of live birds, for the purpose of fighting, to States in which animal fighting is lawful.

S. 348

At the request of Ms. SNOWE, the name of the Senator from Vermont (Mr. LEAHY) was added as a cosponsor of S. 348, a bill to authorize and facilitate a program to enhance training, research and development, energy conservation and efficiency, and consumer education in the oilheat industry for the benefit of oilheat consumers and the public, and for other purposes.

S. 443

At the request of Mr. LAUTENBERG, the names of the Senator from New York (Mr. MOYNIHAN), the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN), the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KERRY), and the Senator from Massachusetts (Mr. KENNEDY) were added as cosponsors of S. 443, a bill to regulate the sale of firearms at gun shows.

S. 459

At the request of Mr. BREAUX, the name of the Senator from South Dakota (Mr. JOHNSON) was added as a cosponsor of S. 459, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to increase the State ceiling on private activity bonds.

At the request of Mr. HATCH, the name of the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 459, supra.

S. 470

At the request of Mr. CHAFEE, the name of the Senator from Ohio (Mr. VOINOVICH) was added as a cosponsor of S. 470, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow tax-exempt private activity bonds to be issued for highway infrastructure construction.

S. 472

At the request of Mr. GRASSLEY, the name of the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CLELAND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 472, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide certain medicare beneficiaries with an exemption to the financial limitations imposed on physical, speech-language pathology, and occupational therapy services under part B of the medicare program, and for other purposes.

S. 531

At the request of Mr. ABRAHAM, the name of the Senator from Vermont (Mr. JEFFORDS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 531, a bill to authorize the President to award a gold medal on behalf of the Congress to Rosa Parks in recognition of her contributions to the Nation.

S. 565

At the request of Mr. COVERDELL, the name of the Senator from Idaho (Mr. CRAIG) was added as a cosponsor of S. 565, a bill to provide for the treatment of the actions of certain foreign narcotics traffickers as an unusual and extraordinary threat to the United States for purposes of the International Emergency Economic Powers Act.

S. 569

At the request of Mr. GRASSLEY, the name of the Senator from Wyoming (Mr. ENZI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 569, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to exclude certain farm rental income from net earnings from self-employment if the taxpayer enters into a lease agreement relating to such income.

S. 596

At the request of Mrs. BOXER, the name of the Senator from Minnesota (Mr. WELLSTONE) was added as a cosponsor of S. 596, a bill to provide that the annual drug certification procedures under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 not apply to certain countries with which the United States has bilateral agreements and other plans relating to counterdrug activities, and for other purposes.

S. 597

At the request of Mr. SMITH, the name of the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 597, a bill to amend section 922 of chapter 44 of title 28, United States Code, to protect the right of citizens under the Second Amendment to the Constitution of the United States.

S. 617

At the request of Ms. COLLINS, the name of the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. THURMOND) was added as a cosponsor of S. 617, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for coverage under the medicare program of insulin pumps as items of durable medical equipment.

S. 632

At the request of Mr. DEWINE, the name of the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 632, a bill to provide assistance for poison prevention and to stabilize the funding of regional poison control centers.

S. 636

At the request of Mr. REED, the name of the Senator from Maryland (Ms. MIKULSKI) was added as a cosponsor of S. 636, a bill to amend title XXVII of the Public Health Service Act and part 7 of subtitle B of title I of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 to establish standards for the health quality improvement of children in managed care plans and other health plans.

S. 660

At the request of Mr. BINGAMAN, the names of the Senator from Nevada (Mr. REID), the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. AKAKA), and the Senator from Mississippi (Mr. COCHRAN) were added as cosponsors of S. 660, a bill to amend title XVIII of the Social Security Act to provide for coverage under part B of the medicare program of medical nutrition therapy services furnished by registered dietitians and nutrition professionals.

S. 668

At the request of Mr. SANTORUM, the name of the Senator from North Carolina (Mr. HELMS) was added as a cosponsor of S. 668, a bill to encourage States to incarcerate individuals convicted of murder, rape, or child molestation.

S. 676

At the request of Mr. CAMPBELL, the name of the Senator from Hawaii (Mr. INOUE) was added as a cosponsor of S. 676, a bill to locate and secure the return of Zachary Baumel, a citizen of the United States, and other Israeli soldiers missing in action.

S. 689

At the request of Mr. GRASSLEY, the name of the Senator from New York (Mr. MOYNIHAN) was added as a cosponsor of S. 689, a bill to authorize appropriations for the United States Customs Service for fiscal years 2000 and 2001, and for other purposes.

SENATE JOINT RESOLUTION 14

At the request of Mr. HATCH, the name of the Senator from Ohio (Mr.

VOINOVICH) was added as a cosponsor of Senate Joint Resolution 14, a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States authorizing Congress to prohibit the physical desecration of the flag of the United States.

SENATE RESOLUTION 53

At the request of Mr. DODD, his name was added as a cosponsor of Senate Resolution 53, a resolution to designate March 24, 1999, as "National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day."

SENATE RESOLUTION 54

At the request of Mr. FEINGOLD, the name of the Senator from New Jersey (Mr. LAUTENBERG) was added as a cosponsor of Senate Resolution 54, a resolution condemning the escalating violence, the gross violation of human rights and attacks against civilians, and the attempt to overthrow a democratically elected government in Sierra Leone.

SENATE RESOLUTION 68

At the request of Mrs. BOXER, the names of the Senator from Wisconsin (Mr. FEINGOLD) and the Senator from Oregon (Mr. SMITH) were added as cosponsors of Senate Resolution 68, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate regarding the treatment of women and girls by the Taliban in Afghanistan.

SENATE RESOLUTION 71

At the request of Mr. ABRAHAM, the names of the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. HAGEL) and the Senator from California (Mrs. FEINSTEIN) were added as cosponsors of Senate Resolution 71, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate rejecting a tax increase on investment income of certain associations.

SENATE RESOLUTION 74—EXPRESSING THE SUPPORT OF THE SENATE FOR THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES WHO ARE ENGAGED IN MILITARY OPERATIONS AGAINST THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA

Mr. LOTT (for himself, Mr. DASCHLE, and all other Senators) submitted the following resolution; which was considered and agreed to:

S. RES. 74

Whereas the President has authorized United States participation in NATO military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia;

Whereas up to 22,000 members of the Armed Forces are presently involved in operations in and around the Balkans region with the active participation of NATO and other coalition forces; and

Whereas the Senate and the American people have the greatest pride in the members of the Armed Forces and strongly support them: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate supports the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and recognizes their professionalism, dedication, patriotism, and courage.

AMENDMENTS SUBMITTED ON MARCH 23, 1999

EMERGENCY SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATIONS ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 1999

BINGAMAN AMENDMENT NO. 125

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. BINGAMAN) proposed an amendment to the bill (S. 544) making emergency supplemental appropriations and rescissions for recovery from natural disasters, and foreign assistance, for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999, and for other purposes; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ FINDINGS AND SENSE OF SENATE REGARDING SEQUENTIAL BILLING POLICY FOR HOME HEALTH PAYMENTS UNDER THE MEDICARE PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds the following:

(1) Section 4611 of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 included a provision that transfers financial responsibility for certain home health visits under the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.) from part A to part B of such program.

(2) The sole intent of the transfer described in paragraph (1) was to extend the solvency of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund under section 1817 of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395i).

(3) The transfer described in paragraph (1) was supposed be "seamless" so as not to disrupt the provision of home health services under the medicare program.

(4) The Health Care Financing Administration has imposed a sequential billing policy that prohibits home health agencies under the medicare program from submitting claims for reimbursement for home health services provided to a beneficiary unless all claims for reimbursement for home health services that were previously provided to such beneficiary have been completely resolved.

(5) The Health Care Financing Administration has also expanded medical reviews of claims for reimbursement submitted by home health agencies, resulting in a significant slowdown nationwide in the processing of such claims.

(6) The sequential billing policy described in paragraph (4), coupled with the slowdown in claims processing described in paragraph (5), has substantially increased the cash flow problems of home health agencies because payments are often delayed by at least 3 months.

(7) The vast majority of home health agencies under the medicare program are small businesses that cannot operate with significant cash flow problems.

(8) There are many other elements under the medicare program relating to home health agencies, such as the interim payment system under section 1861(v)(1)(L) of such Act (42 U.S.C. 1395x(v)(1)(L)), that are creating financial problems for home health agencies, thereby forcing more than 2,200 home health agencies nationwide to close since the date of enactment of the Balanced Budget Act of 1997.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the Health Care Financing Administration should—

(1) evaluate and monitor the use of the sequential billing policy (as described in subsection (a)(4)) in making payments to home health agencies under the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.);

(2) ensure that—

(A) contract fiscal intermediaries under the medicare program are timely in their random medical review of claims for reimbursement submitted by home health agencies; and

(B) such intermediaries adhere to Health Care Financing Administration instructions that limit the number of claims for reimbursement held for such review for any particular home health agency to no more than 10 percent of the total number of claims submitted by the agency; and

(3) ensure that such intermediaries are considering and implementing constructive alternatives, such as expedited reviews of claims for reimbursement, for home health agencies with no history of billing problems who have cash flow problems due to random medical reviews and sequential billing.

LEAHY (AND OTHERS)
AMENDMENT NO. 126

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. LEAHY for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, and Ms. COLLINS) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

On page 2, between lines 20 and 21, insert the following:

AGRICULTURAL MARKETING SERVICE

For an additional amount to carry out the agricultural marketing assistance program under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (7 U.S.C. 1621 et seq.), $200,000, and the rural business enterprise grant program under section 310B(c) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1932(c)), $500,000: Provided, That the entire amount shall be available only to the extent an official budget request for $700,000, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to Congress: Provided further, That the entire amount is designated by Congress as an emergency requirement under section 251(b)(2)(A) of such Act.

On page 37, between lines 9 and 10, insert the following:

FARM SERVICE AGENCY

EMERGENCY CONSERVATION FUND

Of the amount made available under the heading "EMERGENCY CONSERVATION PROGRAM" in chapter 1 of title II of the 1998 Supplemental Appropriations and Rescissions Act (Public Law 105-174; 112 Stat. 68), $700,000 are rescinded.

LINCOLN (AND OTHERS)
AMENDMENT NO. 127

Mr. STEVENS (for Mrs. LINCOLN for herself, Mr. HUTCHINSON, and Mr. WYDEN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

On page 7, between lines 8 and 9, insert the following:

GENERAL PROVISION, THIS CHAPTER

SEC. ____ CROP INSURANCE OPTIONS FOR PRODUCERS WHO APPLIED FOR CROP REVENUE COVERAGE PLUS.—(a) ELIGIBLE PRODUCERS.—This section applies with respect to a producer eligible for insurance under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) who applied for the supplemental crop insurance endorsement known as Crop Revenue Coverage PLUS (referred to in this section as "CRCPLUS") for the 1999 crop year for a spring planted agricultural commodity.

(b) ADDITIONAL PERIOD FOR OBTAINING OR TRANSFERRING COVERAGE.—Notwithstanding the sales closing date for obtaining crop insurance coverage established under section 508(f)(2) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(f)(2)) and notwithstanding any other provision of law, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation shall provide a 14-day period beginning on the date of enactment of this Act, but not to extend beyond April 12, 1999, during which a producer described in subsection (a) may—

(1) with respect to a federally reinsured policy, obtain from any approved insurance provider a level of coverage for the agricultural commodity for which the producer applied for the CRCPLUS endorsement that is equivalent to or less than the level of federally reinsured coverage that the producer applied for from the insurance provider that offered the CRCPLUS endorsement; and

(2) transfer to any approved insurance provider any federally reinsured coverage provided for other agricultural commodities of the producer by the same insurance provider that offered the CRCPLUS endorsement, as determined by the Corporation.

GRAMM AMENDMENT NO. 128

Mr. GRAMM proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. . (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, none of the amounts provided by this Act are designated by Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

(b) An additional amount of $2,250,000,000 is rescinded as provided in section 3002 of this Act.

GRAMM AMENDMENT NO. 129

Mr. GRAMM proposed an amendment to amendment No. 128 proposed by him to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the end of the bill, add the following:

SEC. . (a) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, none of the amounts provided by this Act are designated by Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985.

MURKOWSKI AMENDMENT NO. 130

Mr. MURKOWSKI proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following:

SEC. . GLACIER BAY.—No funds may be expended by the Secretary of the Interior to implement closures or other restrictions of subsistence or commercial fishing or subsistence gathering in Glacier Bay National Park, except the closure of Dungeness crab fisheries under Section 123(b) of the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999, (section 101(e) of division A of Public Law 105-277), until such time as the State of Alaska's legal claim to ownership and jurisdiction over submerged lands and tidelands in the affected area has been resolved either by a final determination by the judiciary or by a settlement between the parties to the lawsuit."

ROBB (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 131

Mr. ROBB (for himself, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. BINGAMAN, Ms. FEIN-STEIN, and Mr. KERREY) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

On page 27, between lines 11 and 12, insert the following:

SEC. 203. (a) AUTHORITY TO MAKE PAYMENTS.—Subject to the provisions of this section, the Secretary of Defense is authorized to make payments for the settlement of the claims arising from the deaths caused by the accident involving a United States Marine Corps EA-6B aircraft on February 3, 1998, near Cavalese, Italy.

(b) DEADLINE FOR EXERCISE OF AUTHORITY.—The Secretary shall make the decision to exercise the authority in subsection (a) not later than 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) SOURCE OF PAYMENTS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, of the amounts appropriated or otherwise made available for the Department of Navy for operation and maintenance for fiscal year 1999 or other unexpended balances from prior years, the Secretary shall make available $40 million only for emergency and extraordinary expenses associated with the settlement of the claims arising from the accident described in subsection (a).

(d) AMOUNT OF PAYMENT.—The amount of the payment under this section in settlement of the claims arising from the death of any person associated with the accident described in subsection (a) may not exceed $2,000,000.

(e) TREATMENT OF PAYMENTS.—Any amount paid to a person under this section is intended to supplement any amount subsequently determined to be payable to the person under section 127 or chapter 163 of title 10, United States Code, or any other provision of law for administrative settlement of claims against the United States with respect to damage arising from the accident described in subsection (a).

(f) CONSTRUCTION.—The payment of an amount under this section may not be considered to constitute a statement of legal liability on the part of the United States or otherwise as evidence of any material fact in any judicial proceeding or investigation arising from the accident described in subsection (a).

HELMS AMENDMENT NO. 132

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. HELMS) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

On page 30, between lines 10 and 11, insert the following:

CHAPTER 7

DEPARTMENT OF STATE RELATED AGENCY

UNITED STATES COMMISSION ON INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM

For necessary expenses for the United States Commission on International Religious Freedom, as authorized by title II of the International Religious Freedom Act of 1998 (Public Law 105-292), $3,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That the amount of the rescission under chapter 2 of title III of this Act under the heading "CONTRIBUTIONS TO INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS" is hereby increased by $3,000,000.

GRASSLEY AMENDMENT NO. 133

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. GRASSLEY) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

On page 24, line 2, after "expended." insert the following: "Provided further, That from unobligated balances in this account available under the heading 'climate and global change research', $2,000,000 shall be made available for regional applications programs at the University of Northern Iowa consistent with the direction in the report to accompany Public Law 105-277."

On page 38, line 13, strike "$2,000,000" and insert "$1,000,000".

STEVENS AMENDMENT NO. 134

Mr. STEVENS proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

On page 27, line 12, insert the following:

SEC. . Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a military technician (dual status) (as defined in section 10216 of title 10) performing active duty without pay while on leave from technician employment under section 6323(d) of title 5 may, in the discretion of the Secretary concerned, be authorized a per diem allowance under this title, in lieu of commutation for subsistence and quarters as described in Section 1002(b) of title 37, United States Code.

STEVENS AMENDMENT NO. 135

Mr. STEVENS proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the end of Title II of the bill insert the following:

"SEC. . A payment of $800,000 from the total amount of $1,000,000 for construction of the Pike's Peak Summit House, as specified in Conference Report 105-337, accompanying the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for fiscal year 1998, P.L. 105-83, and payments of $2,000,000 for the Borough of Ketchikan to participate in a study of the feasibility and dynamics of manufacturing veneer products in Southeast Alaska and $200,000 for construction of the Pike's Peak Summit House, as specified in Conference Report 105-825 accompanying the Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriations Act for fiscal year 1999 (as contained in Division A, section 101(e) of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)), shall be paid in lump sum and shall be considered direct payments, for the purposes of all applicable law except that these direct grants may not be used for lobbying activities."

GREGG AMENDMENT NO. 136

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. GREGG) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place in title II insert:

SEC. . Section 617 of the Department of Commerce, Justice, and State, the Judiciary, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1999 (as added by section 101(b) of division A of the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999 (Public Law 105-277)) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (a) and inserting in lieu thereof the following:

"(a) None of the funds made available in this Act or any other Act hereafter enacted may be used to issue or renew a fishing permit or authorization for any fishing vessel of the United States greater than 165 feet in registered length, of more than 750 gross registered tons, or that has an engine or engines capable of producing a total of more than 3,000 shaft horsepower as specified in the permit application required under part 648.4(a)(5) of title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, part 648.12 of title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, and the authorization required under part 648.80(d)(2) of title 50, Code of Federal Regulations, to engage in fishing for Atlantic mackerel or herring (or both) under the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 U.S.C. 1801 et seq.), unless the regional fishery management council of jurisdiction recommends after October 21, 1998, and the Secretary of Commerce approves, conservation and management measures in accordance with such Act to allow such vessel to engage in fishing for Atlantic mackerel or herring (or both)."; and

(2) in subsection (b), by striking "subsection (a)(1)" and inserting "subsection (a)".

DASCHLE AMENDMENT NO. 137

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. DASCHLE) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place at the end of Title II, insert:

SEC. . The Corps of Engineers is directed to reprogram $800,000 of the funds made available to that agency in Fiscal Year 1999 for the operation of the Pick-Sloan project to perform the preliminary work needed to transfer Federal lands to the tribes and state of South Dakota, and to provide the Lower Brule Sioux Tribe and Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe with funds to begin protecting invaluable Indian cultural sites, under the Cheyenne River Sioux Tribe, Lower Brule Sioux Tribe, and State of South Dakota Terrestrial Wildlife Habitat Restoration Act.

STEVENS AMENDMENT NO. 138

Mr. STEVENS proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

In the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following new section:

"SEC. . OPERATIONAL SUPPORT AIRCRAFT MULTI-YEAR LEASING DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.

(a) AUTHORITY TO LEASE.—Effective on or after October 1, 1999, the Secretary of the Air Force may obtain transportation for operational support purposes, including transportation for combatant Commanders in Chief, by lease of aircraft, on such terms and conditions as the Secretary may deem appropriate, consistent with this section, through an operating lease consistent with OMB Circular A-11.

(b) MAXIMUM LEASE TERM FOR MULTI-YEAR LEASE.—The term of any lease into which the Secretary enters under this section shall not exceed ten years from the date on which the lease takes effect.

(c) COMMERCIAL TERMS.—The Secretary may include terms and conditions in any lease into which the Secretary enters under this section that are customary in the leasing of aircraft by a non-governmental lessor to a non-government lessee.

(d) TERMINATION PAYMENTS.—The Secretary may, in connection with any lease into which the Secretary enters under this section, to the extent the Secretary deems appropriate, provide for special payments to the lessor if either the Secretary terminates or cancels the lease prior to the expiration of its term or the aircraft is damaged or destroyed prior to the expiration of the term of the lease. In the event of termination or cancellation of the lease, the total value of such payments shall not exceed the value of one year's lease payment.

(e) OBLIGATION AND EXPENDITURE OF FUNDS.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law,

(1) an obligation need not be recorded upon entering into a lease under this section, in order to provide for the payments described in subsection (d) above, and

(2) any payments required under a lease under this section, and any payments made pursuant to subsection (d) above, may be made from—

(A) appropriations available for the performance of the lease at the time the lease takes effect;

(B) appropriations for the operation and maintenance available at the time which the payment is due; and

(C) funds appropriated for those payments.

(f) OTHER AUTHORITY PRESERVED.—The authority granted to the Secretary of the Air Force by this section is separate from and in addition to, and shall not be construed to impair or otherwise effect the authority of the Secretary to procure transportation or enter into leases under a provision of law other than this section."

ENZI (AND BINGAMAN) AMENDMENT NO. 139

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. ENZI for himself and Mr. BINGAMAN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place in title II of the bill, insert the following:

"SEC. . For an additional amount for the Livestock Assistance Program under Public Law 105-277, $70,000,000. Provided, That the entire amount shall be available only to the extent an official budget request for $70,000,000, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress: Provided further, That the entire amount is designated by Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of such Act." and;

An additional amount of $250,000,000 is rescinded as provided in Section 3002 of this Act.

BINGAMAN (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 140

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. BINGAMAN for himself, Mr. ENZI, and Mr. DOMENICI) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place in title II of the bill, insert the following:

"SEC. . DEDUCTION FOR OIL AND GAS PRODUCTION.

"(a) DEDUCTION.—Subject to the limitations in subsection (c), the Secretary of the Interior shall allow lessees operating one or more qualifying wells on public land to deduct from the amount of royalty otherwise payable to the Secretary on production from a qualifying well, the amount of expenditures made by such lessees after April 1, 1999 to—

"(A) increase oil or gas production from existing wells on public land;

"(B) drill new oil or gas wells on existing leases on public land; or

"(C) explore for oil or gas on public land.

"(b) DEFINITIONS.—For purposes of this section—

"(1) the term 'lessee' means any person to whom the United States issues a lease for oil and gas exploration, production, or development on public land, or any person to whom operating rights in such lease have been assigned;

"(2) the term 'public land' has the same meaning given such term in section 103(e) of the Federal Land Policy and Management Act of 1976 (43 U.S.C. 1702(e)); and

"(3) the term 'qualifying well' means any well for the production of natural gas, crude oil, or both that is on public land and—

"(A) has production that is treated as marginal production under section 631A(c)(6) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

"(B) has been classified as a qualifying well by the Secretary of the Interior for purposes of maximizing the benefits of this section.

"(c) SUNSET.—The Secretary of the Interior shall not allow a deduction under this section after—

"(1) September 30, 2000;

"(2) the thirtieth consecutive day on which the price for West Texas Intermediate crude oil on the New York Mercantile Exchange closes above $18 per barrel; or

"(3) lessees have deducted a total of $123,000,000 under this section—whichever occurs first.

"(d) ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS.—For necessary expenses of the Department of the Interior under this section, $2,000,000 is appropriated to the Secretary of the Interior, to remain available until expended.

"(e) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—The entire amount made available to carry out this section—

"(1) shall be available only to the extent an official budget request for $125,000,000, that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement as defined in the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended, is transmitted by the President to the Congress, and

"(2) is designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of such Act; and

An additional amount of $125,000,000 is rescinded as provided in Section 3002 of this Act.

DOMENICI (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 141

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. DOMENICI for himself, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mrs. HUTCHISON, and Mr. BINGAMAN) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

On page 23, between lines 8 and 9, insert the following:

SEC. . PETROLEUM DEVELOPMENT MANAGEMENT.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Emergency Oil and Gas Guaranteed Loan Program Act".

(b) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) consumption of foreign oil in the United States is estimated to equal 56 percent of all oil consumed, and that percentage could reach 68 percent by 2010 if current prices prevail;

(2) the number of oil and gas rigs operating in the United States is at its lowest since 1944, when records of this tally began;

(3) if prices do not increase soon, the United States could lose at least half its marginal wells, which in aggregate produce as much oil as the United States imports from Saudi Arabia;

(4) oil and gas prices are unlikely to increase for at least several years;

(5) declining production, well abandonment, and greatly reduced exploration and development are shrinking the domestic oil and gas industry;

(6) the world's richest oil producing regions in the Middle East are experiencing increasingly greater political instability;

(7) United Nations policy may make Iraq the swing oil producing nation, thereby granting Saddam Hussein tremendous power;

(8) reliance on foreign oil for more than 60 percent of our daily oil and gas consumption is a national security threat;

(9) the level of United States oil security is directly related to the level of domestic production of oil, natural gas liquids, and natural gas; and

(10) a national security policy should be developed that ensures that adequate supplies of oil are available at all times free of the threat of embargo or other foreign hostile acts.

(c) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) BOARD.—The term "Board" means the Loan Guarantee Board established by subsection (e).

(2) PROGRAM.—The term "Program" means the Emergency Oil and Gas Guaranteed Loan Program established by subsection (d).

(3) QUALIFIED OIL AND GAS COMPANY.—The term "qualified oil and gas company" means a company that—

(A) is incorporated under the laws of any State;

(B) is—

(i) an independent oil and gas company (within the meaning of section 57(a)(2)(B)(i) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986); or

(ii) a small business concern under section 3 of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 632) that is an oil field service company whose main business is providing tools, products, personnel, and technical solutions on a contractual basis to exploration and production operators who drill, complete, produce, transport, refine and sell hydrocarbons and their by-products as their main commercial business; and

(C) has experienced layoffs, production losses, or financial losses since the beginning of the oil import crisis, after January 1, 1997.

(d) EMERGENCY OIL AND GAS GUARANTEED LOAN PROGRAM.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established the Emergency Oil and Gas Guaranteed Loan Program, the purpose of which shall be to provide loan guarantees to qualified oil and gas companies in accordance with this section.

(2) LOAN GUARANTEE BOARD.—There is established to administer the Program a Loan Guarantee Board, to be composed of—

(A) the Secretary of Commerce, who shall serve as Chairperson of the Board;

(B) the Secretary of Labor; and

(C) the Secretary of the Treasury;

(e) AUTHORITY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Program may guarantee loans provided to qualified oil and gas companies by private banking and investment institutions in accordance with procedures, rules, and regulations established by the Board.

(2) TOTAL GUARANTEE LIMIT.—The aggregate amount of loans guaranteed and outstanding at any 1 time under this section shall not exceed $500,000,000.

(3) INDIVIDUAL GUARANTEE LIMIT.—The aggregate amount of loans guaranteed under this section with respect to a single qualified oil and gas company shall not exceed $10,000,000.

(4) MINIMUM GUARANTEE AMOUNT.—No single loan in an amount that is less than $250,000 may be guaranteed under this section.

(5) EXPEDITIOUS ACTION ON APPLICATIONS.—The Board shall approve or deny an application for a guarantee under this section as soon as practicable after receipt of an application.

(f) REQUIREMENTS FOR LOAN GUARANTEES.—The Board may issue a loan guarantee on application by a qualified oil and gas company under an agreement by a private bank or investment company to provide a loan to the qualified oil and gas company, if the Board determines that—

(1) credit is not otherwise available to the company under reasonable terms or conditions sufficient to meet its financing needs, as reflected in the financial and business plans of the company;

(2) the prospective earning power of the company, together with the character and value of the security pledged, provide a reasonable assurance of repayment of the loan to be guaranteed in accordance with its terms;

(3) the loan to be guaranteed bears interest at a rate determined by the Board to be reasonable, taking into account the current average yield on outstanding obligations of the United States with remaining periods of maturity comparable to the maturity of the loan; and

(4) the company has agreed to an audit by the General Accounting Office, before issuance of the loan guarantee and annually while the guaranteed loan is outstanding.

(g) TERMS AND CONDITIONS OF LOAN GUARANTEES.—

(1) LOAN DURATION.—All loans guaranteed under this section shall be repayable in full not later than December 31, 2010, and the terms and conditions of each such loan shall provide that the loan agreement may not be amended, or any provision of the loan agreement waived, without the consent of the Board.

(2) LOAN SECURITY.—A commitment to issue a loan guarantee under this section shall contain such affirmative and negative covenants and other protective provisions as the Board determines are appropriate. The Board shall require security for the loans to be guaranteed under this section at the time at which the commitment is made.

(3) FEES.—A qualified oil and gas company receiving a loan guarantee under this section shall pay a fee in an amount equal to 0.5 percent of the outstanding principal balance of the guaranteed loan to the Department of the Treasury.

(h) REPORTS.—During fiscal year 1999 and each fiscal year thereafter until each guaranteed loan has been repaid in full, the Secretary of Commerce shall submit to Congress a report on the activities of the Board.

(i) SALARIES AND ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—For necessary expenses to administer the Program, $2,500,000 is appropriated to the Department of Commerce, to remain available until expended, which may be transferred to the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Trade Development of the International Trade Administration.

(j) TERMINATION OF GUARANTEE AUTHORITY.—The authority of the Board to make commitments to guarantee any loan under this section shall terminate on December 31, 2001.

(k) REGULATORY ACTION.—Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Board shall issue such final procedures, rules, and regulations as are necessary to carry out this section.

(l) EMERGENCY DESIGNATION.—The entire amount made available to carry out this section—

(1) is designated by Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (2 U.S.C. 901(b)(2)(A)); and

(2) shall be available only to the extent that the President submits to Congress a budget request that includes designation of the entire amount of the request as an emergency requirement.

LOTT AMENDMENT NO. 142

Mr. STEVENS (for Mr. LOTT) proposed an amendment to the bill, S. 544, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following: "that the presiding officer of the Senate should apply all precedents of the Senate under Rule 16, in effect at the conclusion of the 103rd Congress."

AMENDMENT SUBMITTED ON MARCH 24, 1999

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

ABRAHAM (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 143

Mr. ABRAHAM (for himself, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. ASHCROFT, Mr. LOTT, Mr. ROTH, Mr. VOINOVICH, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. GREGG, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. HAGEL, Mr. SANTORUM, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. MCCAIN, and Mr. FITZGERALD) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 20) setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal years 2000 through 2009; as follows:

SEC. XX. FINDINGS; SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE PROTECTION OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY SURPLUSES.

(a) The Congress finds that—

(1) Congress and the President should balance the budget excluding the surpluses generated by the Social Security trust funds;

(2) reducing the federal debt held by the public is a top national priority, strongly supported on a bipartisan basis, as evidenced by Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan's comments that debt reduction "is a very important element in sustaining economic growth," as well as President Clinton's comments that it "is very, very important that we get the government debt down" when referencing his own plans to use the budget surplus to reduce federal debt held by the public;

(3) according to the Congressional Budget Office, balancing the budget excluding the surpluses generated by the Social Security trust funds will reduce debt held by the public by a total of $1,723,000,000,000 by the end of fiscal year 2009, $417,000,000,000, or 32 per cent, more than it would be reduced under the President's fiscal year 2000 budget submission;

(4) further according to the Congressional Budget Office, that the President's budget would actually spend $40,000,000,000 of the Social Security surpluses in fiscal year 2000 on new spending programs, and spend $158,000,000,000 of the Social Security surpluses on new spending programs from fiscal year 2000 through 2004; and

(5) Social Security surpluses should be used for Social Security reform or to reduce the debt held by the public and should not be used for other purposes.

(b) It is the sense of Congress that the functional totals in this concurrent resolution on the budget assume that Congress shall pass legislation which—

(1) Reaffirms the provisions of section 13301 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 that provides that the receipts and disbursements of the Social Security trust funds shall not be counted for the purposes of the budget submitted by the President, the congressional budget, or the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, and provides for a Point of Order within the Senate against any concurrent resolution on the budget, an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that violates that section.

(2) Mandates that the Social Security surpluses are used only for the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform or to reduce the federal debt held by the public, and not spent on non-Social Security programs or used to offset tax cuts.

(3) Provides for a Senate super-majority Point of Order against any bill, resolution, amendment, motion or conference report that would use Social Security surpluses on anything other than the payment of Social Security benefits, Social Security reform or the reduction of the federal debt held by the public.

(4) Ensures that all Social Security benefits are paid on time.

(5) Accommodates Social Security reform legislation.

LAUTENBERG AMENDMENT NO. 144

Mr. LAUTENBERG proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, add the following new section:

SEC. ____ SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE FIRST.

(a) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider—

(1) any bill, resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that would reduce revenues without offsetting them in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 until Congress first enacts legislation that—

(A) ensures the long-term fiscal solvency of the Social Security Trust Funds and extends the solvency of the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund by at least 12 years; and

(B) includes a certification that the legislation complies with subparagraph (A); or

(2) any bill, resolution, motion, amendment, or conference report that would increase spending above the levels provided in this resolution, unless such spending increases are offset in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 until Congress first enacts legislation that—

(A) ensures the long-term fiscal solvency of the Social Security Trust Funds and extends the solvency of the Medicare Hospital Insurance Trust Fund by at least 12 years; and

(B) includes a certification that the legislation complies with subparagraph (A).

(b) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER.—

(1) WAIVER.—The point of order in subsection (a) may be waived or suspended only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) APPEALS.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under subsection (a).

ASHCROFT (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 145

Mr. ASHCROFT (for himself, Mr. BROWNBACK, Mr. GREGG, Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, Mr. ABRAHAM, Mr. ENZI, Mr. INHOFE, Mr. ROTH, and Mr. WARNER) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT INVEST THE SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS IN PRIVATE FINANCIAL MARKETS.

It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that the Federal Government should not directly invest contributions made to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund established under section 201 of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 401) in private financial markets.

CRAIG (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 146

Mr. CRAIG (for himself, Mr. KERREY, Mr. HELMS, and Mr. INHOFE) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title II, add the following:

SEC. ____ REQUIREMENT TO OFFSET DIRECT SPENDING INCREASES BY DIRECT SPENDING DECREASES.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Surplus Protection Amendment".

(b) IN GENERAL.—In the Senate, for purposes of section 202 of House Concurrent Resolution 67 (104th Congress), it shall not be in order to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that provides an increase in direct spending unless the increase is offset by a decrease in direct spending.

(c) WAIVER.—This section may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(d) APPEALS.—Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to any provision of this section shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by, the appellant and the manager of the concurrent resolution, bill, or joint resolution, as the case may be. An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members of the Senate, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required in the Senate to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under this section.

(e) DETERMINATION OF BUDGET LEVELS.—For purposes of this section, the levels of direct spending for a fiscal year shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the Senate.

CONRAD AMENDMENT NO. 147

Mr. CONRAD proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

After section 206, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SAVE SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE FIRST LOCKBOX.

(a) DEFINITION.—In this section, the term "Social Security and Medicare lockbox" means with respect to any fiscal year, the Social Security surplus (as described in section 311(b)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974), and the Medicare surplus reserve, which shall consist of amounts allocated to save the Medicare program as provided in subsection (b).

(b) MEDICARE SURPLUS RESERVE.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to adjustment pursuant to paragraph (2), the amounts reserved for the Medicare surplus reserve in each year are—

- (A) for fiscal year 2000, $0;
- (B) for fiscal year 2001, $3,000,000,000;
- (C) for fiscal year 2002, $26,000,000,000;
- (D) for fiscal year 2003, $15,000,000,000;
- (E) for fiscal year 2004, $21,000,000,000;
- (F) for fiscal year 2005, $35,000,000,000;
- (G) for fiscal year 2006, $63,000,000,000;
- (H) for fiscal year 2007, $68,000,000,000;
- (I) for fiscal year 2008, $72,000,000,000;
- (J) for fiscal year 2009, $73,000,000,000;

- (K) for fiscal year 2010, $70,000,000,000;
- (L) for fiscal year 2011, $73,000,000,000;
- (M) for fiscal year 2012, $70,000,000,000;
- (N) for fiscal year 2013, $66,000,000,000; and
- (O) for fiscal year 2014, $52,000,000,000.

(2) ADJUSTMENT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—The amounts in paragraph (1) for each fiscal year shall be adjusted each year in the budget resolution by a fixed percentage equal to the adjustment required to those amounts sufficient to extend the solvency of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund based on the most recent Report of the Board of Trustees of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund (intermediate assumptions) through fiscal year 2020 or 12 years after the date of insolvency specified in the 1999 Report, whichever date is later.

(B) LIMIT BASED ON TOTAL SURPLUS.—The Medicare surplus reserve, as adjusted by subparagraph (A), shall not exceed the total budget resolution baseline surplus in any fiscal year.

(C) MEDICARE SURPLUS RESERVE POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any concurrent resolution on the budget (or amendment, motion, or conference report on the resolution) that would decrease the surplus in any of the fiscal years covered by the concurrent resolution below the levels of the Medicare surplus reserve for those fiscal years calculated in accordance with subsection (b)(1).

(d) ENFORCEMENT OF MEDICARE SURPLUS.—After a concurrent resolution on the budget is agreed to, it shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that would cause a decrease in the Medicare surplus reserve in any of the fiscal years covered by the concurrent resolution.

(e) SOCIAL SECURITY OFF-BUDGET POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider a concurrent resolution on the budget, an amendment thereto, or a conference report thereon that violates section 13301 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990.

(f) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER.—

(1) WAIVER.—A bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report violating this section shall be subject to a point of order that may be waived or suspended only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) APPEALS.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under paragraph (1).

On page 46, strike section 204.

At the end of section 101, insert the following:

(7) MEDICARE SURPLUS RESERVE.—The amounts of the surplus that shall be reserved for Medicare are as follows:

- (A) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (B) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (C) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
- (D) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
- (E) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
- (F) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
- (G) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
- (H) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
- (I) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
- (J) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.

Increase the levels of Federal revenues in section 101(1)(A) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $25,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $13,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $18,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $31,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $57,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $58,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $59,000,000,000; and

(10) Fiscal year 2009: $56,000,000,000.
Change the levels of Federal revenues in section 101(1)(B) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
 - (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
 - (3) Fiscal year 2002: $25,000,000,000;
 - (4) Fiscal year 2003: $13,000,000,000;
 - (5) Fiscal year 2004: $18,000,000,000;
 - (6) Fiscal year 2005: $31,000,000,000;
 - (7) Fiscal year 2006: $57,000,000,000;
 - (8) Fiscal year 2007: $58,000,000,000;
 - (9) Fiscal year 2008: $59,000,000,000; and
 - (10) Fiscal year 2009: $56,000,000,000.
- Reduce the levels of total budget authority and outlays in section 101(2) and section 101(3) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
 - (2) Fiscal year 2001: $0;
 - (3) Fiscal year 2002: $1,000,000,000;
 - (4) Fiscal year 2003: $2,000,000,000;
 - (5) Fiscal year 2004: $3,000,000,000;
 - (6) Fiscal year 2005: $4,000,000,000;
 - (7) Fiscal year 2006: $6,000,000,000;
 - (8) Fiscal year 2007: $10,000,000,000;
 - (9) Fiscal year 2008: $13,000,000,000; and
 - (10) Fiscal year 2009: $17,000,000,000.
- Increase the levels of surplus in section 101(4) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
 - (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
 - (3) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
 - (4) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
 - (5) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
 - (6) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
 - (7) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
 - (8) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
 - (9) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
 - (10) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.
- Decrease the levels of public debt in section 101(5) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
 - (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
 - (3) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
 - (4) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
 - (5) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
 - (6) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
 - (7) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
 - (8) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
 - (9) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
 - (10) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.
- Decrease the levels of debt held by the public in section 101(6) by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $3,000,000,000;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $26,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $15,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $21,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $35,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $63,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $68,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $72,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $73,000,000,000.

Reduce the levels of budget authority and outlays in section 103(18) for function 900, Net Interest, by the following amounts:

- (1) Fiscal year 2000: $0;
- (2) Fiscal year 2001: $0;
- (3) Fiscal year 2002: $1,000,000,000;
- (4) Fiscal year 2003: $2,000,000,000;
- (5) Fiscal year 2004: $3,000,000,000;
- (6) Fiscal year 2005: $4,000,000,000;
- (7) Fiscal year 2006: $6,000,000,000;
- (8) Fiscal year 2007: $10,000,000,000;
- (9) Fiscal year 2008: $13,000,000,000; and
- (10) Fiscal year 2009: $17,000,000,000.

Reduce the levels in section 104(1) by which the Senate Committee on Finance is instructed to reduce revenues by the following amounts:

- (1) $0 in fiscal year 2000;
- (2) $59,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004; and
- (3) $320,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2009.

COVERDELL AMENDMENT NO. 148
(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. COVERDELL submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

At the end of title III, add the following:

SEC. ____ RESTRICTION ON RETROACTIVE INCOME AND ESTATE TAX RATE INCREASES.

(a) PURPOSE.—The Senate declares that it is essential to ensure taxpayers are protected against retroactive income and estate tax rate increases.

(b) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report, that includes a retroactive Federal income tax rate increase.

(2) DEFINITION.—In this section—

(A) the term “Federal income tax rate increase” means any amendment to subsection (a), (b), (c), (d), or (e) of section 1, or to section 11(b) or 55(b), of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, that imposes a new percentage as a rate of tax and thereby increases the amount of tax imposed by any such section; and

(B) a Federal income tax rate increase is retroactive if it applies to a period beginning prior to the enactment of the provision.

(c) SUPERMAJORITY WAIVER.—

(1) WAIVER.—The point of order in subsection (b) may be waived or suspended only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(2) APPEALS.—An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under subsection (b).

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section takes effect on January 1, 1999.

GRAMS AMENDMENT NO. 149

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. GRAMS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

At the appropriate place in the resolution, insert the following new section:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON SAFE-DEPOSIT BOX FOR THE ACCUMULATED ASSETS OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY TRUST FUNDS.

SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the Congress should create a safe-deposit box to lock in all the accumulated Social Security surplus in the Social Security Trust Funds by gradually reducing government spending to ensure this surplus be used exclusively for Social Security.

GRAMS (AND CRAPO) AMENDMENT NO. 150

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. GRAMS (for himself and Mr. CRAPO) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

In lieu of the matter proposed to be inserted, insert the following:

SEC. ____ RESERVE FUND FOR INCREASED ON-BUDGET SURPLUS IN THE OUT-YEARS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Any additional on-budget surplus exceeding the level assumed in this resolution during the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2009 as reestimated by the Congressional Budget Office shall be reserved exclusively for tax relief or debt reduction.

(b) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may reduce the spending and revenue aggregates and may revise committee allocations by taking the additional amount of the on-budget surplus referred to in subsection (a) for tax relief or debt reduction in the period of fiscal year 2001 through 2009.

(c) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—When the Senate is considering a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that uses the additional on-budget surplus reserved in subsection (a) for additional Government spending other than tax relief or debt reduction, a point of order may be made by a Senator against the measure, and if the Presiding Officer sustains that point of order, it may not be offered as an amendment from the floor.

(2) SUPERMAJORITY.—This point of order may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the members, duly chosen and sworn.

(d) BUDGETARY ENFORCEMENT.—Revised allocations and aggregates under subsection (a) shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

BOND AMENDMENT NO. 151

Mr. BOND proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000.

(a) DECLARATION.—Congress determines and declares that this resolution is the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000 including the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2001 through 2004 as authorized by section 301 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents for this concurrent resolution is as follows:

- Sec. 1. Concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000.
- Sec. 2. Recommended levels and amounts.
- Sec. 3. Social Security.
- Sec. 4. Major functional categories.

SEC. 2. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years 2000 through 2004:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

- Fiscal year 2000: $1,406,025,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2001: $1,445,309,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2002: $1,507,935,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2003: $1,562,820,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2004: $1,631,839,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

- Fiscal year 2000: $11,046,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2001: $10,612,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2002: $10,609,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2003: $9,952,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2004: $9,490,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

- Fiscal year 2000: $1,546,344,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2001: $1,584,835,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2002: $1,645,262,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2003: $1,715,370,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2004: $1,769,129,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

- Fiscal year 2000: $1,531,949,000,000.
- Fiscal year 2001: $1,561,030,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,631,887,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,699,388,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,777,965,000,000.

(4) DEFICITS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the deficits are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $125,924,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $115,721,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $123,952,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $136,568,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $146,126,000,000.

(5) PUBLIC DEBT.—The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $5,778,600,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $5,999,800,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $6,234,000,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $6,498,400,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $6,765,100,000,000.

(6) DEBT HELD BY THE PUBLIC.—The appropriate levels of the debt held by the public are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $3,532,443,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $3,398,722,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $3,215,290,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $3,034,629,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $2,824,701,000,000.

SEC. 3. SOCIAL SECURITY.

(a) SOCIAL SECURITY REVENUES.—For purposes of Senate enforcement under sections 302, 602, and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the amounts of revenues of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $468,020,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $487,744,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $506,293,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $527,326,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $549,876,000,000.

(b) SOCIAL SECURITY OUTLAYS.—For purposes of Senate enforcement under sections 302, 602, and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the amounts of outlays of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $262,175,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $283,322,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $272,819,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $282,098,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $275,846,000,000.

SEC. 4. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

Congress determines and declares that the appropriate levels of new budget authority, budget outlays, new direct loan obligations, and new primary loan guarantee commitments for fiscal years 2000 through 2004 for each major functional category are:

(1) National Defense (050):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $280,525,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $283,261,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $300,207,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $284,991,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $301,966,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $293,701,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $312,360,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $303,803,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $321,228,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $313,787,000,000.

(2) International Affairs (150):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $16,111,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $16,728,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $16,375,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $17,510,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $15,514,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $17,755,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $17,449,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $17,421,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $18,633,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $17,643,000,000.

(3) General Science, Space, and Technology (250):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $19,279,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $18,773,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $19,476,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $19,140,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $19,406,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $19,283,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $19,373,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $19,135,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $19,369,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $19,163,000,000.

(4) Energy (270):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $1,165,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $148,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $1,315,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $—605,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $1,056,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $52,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $1,106,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $—15,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $842,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $—155,000,000.

(5) Natural Resources and Environment (300):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $24,592,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $24,084,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $23,964,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $24,242,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $23,894,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $23,971,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $23,985,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $24,119,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $23,998,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $23,960,000,000.

(6) Agriculture (350):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $15,155,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $13,554,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $13,007,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $11,400,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $11,240,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $9,489,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $11,456,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $9,762,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $11,474,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $9,986,000,000.

(7) Commerce and Housing Credit (370):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $11,098,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $5,752,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $11,819,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $6,917,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $15,580,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $11,265,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $15,649,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $11,878,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $15,022,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $11,493,000,000.

(8) Transportation (400):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $54,233,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $48,054,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $54,505,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $50,370,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $55,546,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $50,716,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $57,826,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $52,706,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $59,047,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $53,799,000,000.

(9) Community and Regional Development (450):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $11,898,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,900,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $9,141,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,931,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $9,077,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,919,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $9,234,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,232,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $9,217,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $9,694,000,000.

(10) Education, Training, Employment, and Social Services (500):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $67,427,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $64,315,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $69,342,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $68,734,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $68,902,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $69,111,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $70,490,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $70,413,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $70,806,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $70,439,000,000.

(11) Health (550):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $157,699,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $153,576,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $166,827,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $165,390,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $176,310,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $177,172,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $188,429,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $189,416,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $202,009,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $202,815,000,000.

(12) Medicare (570):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $207,313,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $207,342,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $219,958,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $220,098,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $228,786,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $228,414,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority,
$248,871,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $248,998,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority,
$266,671,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $266,850,000,000.
(13) Income Security (600):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority,
$256,590,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $259,635,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority,
$268,839,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $271,765,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority,
$282,063,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $285,263,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority,
$291,119,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $295,138,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority,
$301,746,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $303,967,000,000.
(14) Social Security (650):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $95,790,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $95,791,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $80,518,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $80,518,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority,
$104,023,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $104,023,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority,
$103,449,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $103,449,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority,
$122,837,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $122,837,000,000.
(15) Veterans Benefits and Services (700):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $43,786,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $43,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $44,439,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $44,877,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $44,980,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $45,304,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority, $45,526,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $45,864,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority, $45,875,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $46,287,000,000.
(16) Administration of Justice (750):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $26,616,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,608,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $26,988,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $27,189,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $27,160,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $27,146,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority, $26,901,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $27,044,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority, $26,924,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $26,995,000,000.
(17) General Government (800):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $13,785,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $14,850,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $14,583,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $14,732,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $14,294,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $14,431,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority, $14,383,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $14,270,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority, $14,353,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $14,427,000,000.
(18) Net Interest (900):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority,
$278,294,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $278,294,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority,
$279,933,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $279,933,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority,
$282,562,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $282,562,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority,
$282,562,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $282,562,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority,
$292,566,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $292,566,000,000.
(19) Allowances (920):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $0.
(B) Outlays, $1,365,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $3,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $2,299,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $6,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $4,425,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority, $9,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $7,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority, $12,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $9,900,000,000.
(20) Undistributed Offsetting Receipts
(950):
Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority,
$-35,012,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $-35,012,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority,
$-39,401,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $-39,401,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority,
$-43,115,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $-43,115,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority,
$-38,226,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $-38,226,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority,
$-38,488,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $-38,488,000,000.

SMITH (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 152

Mr. SMITH of Oregon (for himself, Mr. SARBANES, and Mr. FEINGOLD) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

At the appropriate place in the bill, insert the following new section and number it accordingly:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON PROVIDING ADEQUATE FUNDING FOR U.S. INTERNATIONAL LEADERSHIP.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—
(1) U.S. international leadership is essential to maintaining security and peace for all Americans;
(2) such leadership depends on effective diplomacy as well as a strong military;

(3) effective diplomacy requires adequate resources both for embassy security and for international programs;

(4) in addition to building peace, prosperity and democracy around the world, programs in the International Affairs (150) account serve U.S. interests by ensuring better jobs and a higher standard of living, promoting the health of our citizens and preserving our natural environment, and protecting the rights and safety of those who travel or do business overseas;

(5) real spending for International Affairs has declined more than 50 percent since the mid-1980s, at the same time that major new challenges and opportunities have arisen from the disintegration of the Soviet Union and the worldwide trends toward democracy and free markets;

(6) current ceilings on discretionary spending will impose severe additional cuts in funding for International Affairs; and

(7) improved security for U.S. diplomatic missions and personnel will place further strain on the International Affairs budget absent significant additional resources.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that additional budgetary resources should be identified for function 150 to enable successful U.S. international leadership.

JOHNSON (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 153

Mr. JOHNSON (for himself, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mr. CONRAD, Mr. KERRY, Mr. REID, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. MURKOWSKI, Mr. FEINGOLD, Mr. ROBB, Mrs. HUTCHISON, Mr. HUTCHINSON, Mr. INHOFE, Ms. COLLINS, Mr. HATCH, Ms. SNOWE, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. SPECTER, Mr. GRAMS, Mr. CRAIG, Mr. GRASSLEY, and Mr. DOMENICI) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

On page 31 line 23 strike "44,724,000,000". and insert "46,724,000,000".

On page 31 line 24 strike "45,064,000,000". and insert "47,064,000,000".

On page 38 line 15 strike "8,033,000,000". and insert "10,033,000,000".

On page 38 line 16 strike "8,094,000,000". and insert "10,094,000,000".

At the appropriate place insert the following:

"(A) It is the sense of the Senate that the provisions in this resolution assume that if CBO determines there is an on-budget surplus for FY 2000, $2 billion of that surplus will be restored to the programs cut in this amendment.

"(B) It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying this budget resolution assume that none of these offsets will come from defense or veterans, and to the extent possible should come from administrative functions."

ENZI (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 154

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. ENZI (for himself, Mr. GRASSLEY, and Mr. THOMAS) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE THAT AGRICULTURAL RISK MANAGEMENT PROGRAMS SHOULD BENEFIT LIVESTOCK PRODUCERS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) extremes in weather-related and natural conditions have a profound impact on the economic viability of producers;

(2) these extremes, such as drought, excessive rain and snow, flood, wind, insect infestation are certainly beyond the control of livestock producers;

(3) these extremes do not impact livestock producers within a state, region or the nation in the same manner or during the same time frame or for the same duration of time;

(4) the livestock producers have a few effective risk management tools at their disposal to adequately manage the short and long term impacts of weather-related or natural disaster situations; and

(5) ad hoc natural disaster assistance programs, while providing some relief, are not sufficient to meet livestock producers' needs for rational risk management planning.

(b) It is the sense of the Senate that any consideration of reform of federal crop insurance and risk management programs should include the needs of livestock producers.

ENZI AMENDMENT NO. 155

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. ENZI submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON ELIMINATING THE MARRIAGE PENALTY AND ACROSS THE BOARD INCOME TAX RATE CUTS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) The institution of marriage is the cornerstone of the family and civil society;

(2) Strengthening of the marriage commitment and the family is an indispensable step in the renewal of America's culture;

(3) The Federal income tax punishes marriage by imposing a greater tax burden on married couples than on their single counterparts;

(4) America's tax code should give each married couple the choice to be treated as one economic unit, regardless of which spouse earns the income; and

(5) All American taxpayers are responsible for any budget surplus and deserve broad-based tax relief after the Social Security Trust fund has been protected.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that—

(1) Congress should eliminate the marriage penalty in a manner that treats all married couples equally, regardless of which spouse earns the income; and

(2) Congress should implement an equal, across the board reduction in each of the current federal income tax rates as soon as there is a non-Social Security surplus.

COVERDELL (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 156

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. COVERDELL (for himself, Mr. TORRICELLI, and Mr. ABRAHAM) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title III, add the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING INCENTIVES FOR SMALL SAVERS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) in general, the Federal budget will accumulate nearly $800,000,000,000 in non-Social Security surpluses through 2009;

(2) such a level of surplus afford Congress the opportunity to return a portion to the taxpayers in the form of tax relief;

(3) the Federal tax burden is at its highest level in over 50 years;

(4) personal bankruptcy filings reached a record high in 1998 with $40,000,000,000 in debts discharged;

(5) the personal savings rate is at record lows not seen since the Great Depression;

(6) the personal savings rate was 9 percent of income in 1982;

(7) the personal savings rate was 5.7 percent of income in 1992;

(8) the personal savings rate plummeted to 0.5 percent in 1998;

(9) the personal savings rate could plummet to as low as negative 4.5 percent if current trends do not change;

(10) personal savings is important as a means for the American people to prepare for crisis, such as a job loss, health emergency, or some other personal tragedy, or to prepare for retirement;

(11) President Clinton recently acknowledged the low rate of personal savings as a concern;

(12) raising the starting point for the 28 percent personal income tax bracket by $10,000 over 5 years would move 7,000,000 middle-income taxpayers into the lowest income tax bracket;

(13) excluding the first $500 from interest and dividends income, or $250 for singles, would enable 30,000,000 low- and middle-income taxpayers to save tax-free and would translate into approximately $1,000,000,000,000 in savings;

(14) exempting the first $5,000 in capital gains income from capital gains taxation would mean 10,000,000 low- and middle-income taxpayers would no longer pay capital gains tax;

(15) raising the deductible limit for Individual Retirement Account contributions from $2,000 to $3,000, would mean over 5,000,000 taxpayers will be better equipped for retirement; and

(16) tax relief measures to encourage savings and investments for low- and middle-income savers would mean tax relief for nearly 112,000,000 individual taxpayers by—

(A) raising the starting point for the 28 percent personal income tax bracket by $10,000 over 5 years;

(B) excluding from income the first $500 in interest and dividend income ($250 for singles);

(C) exempting from capital gains taxation the first $5,000 in capital gains taxes; and

(D) raising the deductible limit for Individual Retirement Account contributions from $2,000 to $3,000.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this budget resolution and legislation enacted pursuant to this resolution assume that—

(1) Congress will adopt tax relief that provides incentives for savings and investment for low- and middle-income working families that assist in preparing for unexpected emergencies and retirement, such as—

(A) raising the starting point for the 28 percent personal income tax bracket by $10,000 over 5 years;

(B) excluding from income the first $500 in interest and dividend income ($250 for singles);

(C) exempting from capital gains taxation the first $5,000 in capital gains taxes; and

(D) raising the deductible limit for Individual Retirement Account contributions from $2,000 to $3,000; and

(2) tax relief as described in this subsection is fully achievable within the parameters set forth under this budget resolution.

SPECTER (AND HARKIN) AMENDMENT NO. 157

Mr. SPECTER (for himself and Mr. HARKIN) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title II, insert the following:

SEC. ____ . RESERVE FUND.

(a) IN GENERAL.—In the Senate, revenue and spending aggregates and allocations may be revised under section 302(a) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 for legislation disallowing a Federal income tax deduction for any payment to the Federal Government or any State or local government in connection with any tobacco litigation or settlement and to use $1,400,000,000 of the increased revenues to fund biomedical research at the National Institutes of Health.

(b) REVISED AGGREGATES.—Upon the consideration of legislation pursuant to subsection (a), the Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may file increased aggregates to carry out this section. These aggregates shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as the aggregates contained in this resolution.

ROTH (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 158

(Ordered to lie on the table.)

Mr. ROTH (for himself, Mr. BREAU, Mr. FRIST, Mr. KERREY, Mr. GRAMM, Mr. DOMENICI, Mr. NICKLES, Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. HATCH, and Mr. THOMPSON) submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by them to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING THE MODERNIZATION AND IMPROVEMENT OF THE MEDICARE PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds the following:

(1) The health insurance coverage provided under the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.) is an integral part of the financial security for retired and disabled individuals, as such coverage protects those individuals against the financially ruinous costs of a major illness.

(2) Expenditures under the medicare program for hospital, physician, and other essential health care services that are provided to nearly 39,000,000 retired and disabled individuals will be $232,000,000,000 in fiscal year 2000.

(3) During the nearly 35 years since the medicare program was established, the Nation's health care delivery and financing system has undergone major transformations. However, the medicare program has not kept pace with such transformations.

(4) Former Congressional Budget Office Director Robert Reischauer has described the medicare program as it exists today as failing on the following 4 key dimensions (known as the "Four I's"):

(A) The program is inefficient.

(B) The program is inequitable.

(C) The program is inadequate.

(D) The program is insolvent.

(5) The President's budget framework does not devote 15 percent of the budget surpluses to the medicare program. The federal budget process does not provide a mechanism for setting aside current surpluses for future obligations. As a result, the notion of saving 15 percent of the surplus for the medicare program cannot practically be carried out.

(6) The President's budget framework would transfer to the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund more than $900,000,000,000 over 15 years in new IOUs that must be redeemed later by raising taxes on American workers, cutting benefits, or borrowing more from the public, and these new IOUs would increase the gross debt of the Federal Government by the amounts transferred.

(7) The Congressional Budget Office has stated that the transfers described in paragraph (6) which are strictly intragovernmental, have no effect on the unified budget surpluses or the on-budget surpluses and therefore have no effect on the debt held by the public.

(8) The President's budget framework does not provide access to, or financing for, prescription drugs.

(9) The Comptroller General of the United States has stated that the President's medicare proposal does not constitute reform of the program and "is likely to create a public misperception that something meaningful is being done to reform the Medicare program".

(10) The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 enacted changes to the medicare program which strengthen and extend the solvency of that program.

(11) The Congressional Budget Office has stated that without changes made to the medicare program by the Balanced Budget Act of 1997, the depletion of the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund would now be imminent.

(12) The President's budget proposes to cut medicare program spending by $19,400,000,000 over 10 years, primarily through reductions in payments to providers under that program.

(13) While the recommendations by Senator John Breaux and Representative William Thomas received the bipartisan support of a majority of members on the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare, all of the President's appointees to that commission opposed the bipartisan reform plan.

(14) The Breaux-Thomas recommendations provide for new prescription drug coverage for the neediest beneficiaries within a plan that substantially improves the solvency of the medicare program without transferring new IOUs to the Federal Hospital Insurance Fund that must be redeemed later by raising taxes, cutting benefits, or borrowing more from the public.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the provisions contained in this budget resolution assume the following:

(1) The resolution does not adopt the President's proposals to reduce medicare program spending by $19,400,000,000 over 10 years, nor does this resolution adopt the President's proposal to spend $10,000,000,000 of medicare program funds on unrelated programs.

(2) Congress will not transfer to the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund new IOUs that must be redeemed later by raising taxes on American workers, cutting benefits, or borrowing more from the public.

(3) Congress should work in a bipartisan fashion to extend the solvency of the medicare program and to ensure that benefits under that program will be available to beneficiaries in the future.

(4) The American public will be well and fairly served in this undertaking if the medicare program reform proposes are considered within a framework that is based on the following 5 key principles offered in testimony to the Senate Committee on Finance by the Comptroller General of the United States:

- (A) Affordability.
- (B) Equity.
- (C) Adequacy.
- (D) Feasibility.
- (E) Public acceptance.

(5) The recommendations by Senator Breaux and Congressman Thomas provide for new prescription drug coverage for the neediest beneficiaries within a plan that substantially improves the solvency of the medicare program without transferring to the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund new IOUs that must be redeemed later by raising taxes, cutting benefits, or borrowing more from the public.

(6) Congress should move expeditiously to consider the bipartisan recommendations of the Chairmen and the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare.

(7) Congress should continue to work with the President as he develops and presents his plan to fix the problems of the medicare program.

COLLINS (AND DODD) AMENDMENT NO. 159

Ms. COLLINS (for herself and Mr. DODD) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:
SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON TEA-21 FUNDING AND THE STATES.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) on May 22, 1998, the Senate overwhelmingly approved the conference committee report on H.R. 2400, the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century, in a 88-5 roll call vote;

(2) also on May 22, 1998, the House of Representatives approved the conference committee report on this bill in a 297-86 recorded vote;

(3) on June 9, 1998, President Clinton signed this bill into law, thereby making it Public Law 105-178;

(4) the TEA-21 legislation was a comprehensive reauthorization of Federal highway and mass transit programs, which authorized approximately $216,000,000,000 in Federal transportation spending over the next 6 fiscal years;

(5) section 1105 of this legislation called for any excess Federal gasoline tax revenues to be provided to the States under the formulas established by the final version of TEA-21; and

(6) the President's fiscal year 2000 budget request contained a proposal to distribute approximately $1,000,000,000 in excess Federal gasoline tax revenues that was not consistent with the provisions of section 1105 of TEA-21 and would deprive States of needed revenues.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution and any legislation enacted pursuant to this resolution assume that the President's fiscal year 2000 budget proposal to change the manner in which any excess Federal gasoline tax revenues are distributed to the States will not be implemented, but rather any of these funds will be distributed to the States pursuant to section 1105 of TEA-21.

DODD (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 160

Mr. DODD (for himself, Mr. JEFFORDS, Mr. KENNEDY, Mr. WELLSTONE, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. BINGAMAN, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mr. KOHL) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

On page 3, strike beginning with line 5 through page 5, line 14, and insert the following:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,455,992,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,513,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,586,965,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,650,257,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,683,438,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,737,646,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,807,517,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,870,515,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.
Fiscal year 2001: —$6,716,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: —$52,284,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: —$30,805,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: —$47,184,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: —$60,639,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: —$107,275,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: —$133,754,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: —$148,692,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: —$175,195,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,426,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,457,294,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,488,477,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,562,013,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,614,278,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,667,843,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,699,402,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,754,567,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,815,739,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,875,969,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,408,292,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,455,992,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,513,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,584,066,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,640,426,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,668,608,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,717,883,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,782,697,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,842,699,000,000.

On page 28, strike beginning with line 13 through page 31, line 19, and insert the following:

Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $244,390,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $248,088,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $251,873,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $257,750,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $264,620,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $267,411,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority, $277,886,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $277,674,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority, $287,576,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $287,384,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005:
(A) New budget authority, $299,942,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $300,126,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006:
(A) New budget authority, $306,155,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $306,593,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007:
(A) New budget authority, $312,047,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $312,948,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008:
(A) New budget authority, $325,315,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $326,766,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009:
(A) New budget authority, $335,562,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $337,104,000,000.

On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5 and insert the following:

(1) to reduce revenues by not more than $0 in fiscal year 2000, $136,989,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004, and $762,544,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2009; and

VOINOVICH AMENDMENT NO. 161

Mr. VOINOVICH proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

On page 3, line 10, increase the amount by $7,433,000,000.

On page 3, line 11, increase the amount by $53,118,000,000.

On page 3, line 12, increase the amount by $32,303,000,000.

On page 3, line 13, increase the amount by $49,180,000,000.

On page 3, line 14, increase the amount by $62,637,000,000.

On page 3, line 15, increase the amount by $109,275,000,000.

On page 3, line 16, increase the amount by $135,754,000,000.

On page 3, line 17, increase the amount by $150,692,000,000.

On page 3, line 18, increase the amount by $177,195,000,000.

On page 4, line 5, increase the amount by $7,433,000,000.

On page 4, line 6, increase the amount by $53,118,000,000.

On page 4, line 7, increase the amount by $32,303,000,000.

On page 4, line 8, increase the amount by $49,180,000,000.

On page 4, line 9, increase the amount by $62,637,000,000.

On page 4, line 10, increase the amount by $109,275,000,000.

On page 4, line 11, increase the amount by $135,754,000,000.

On page 4, line 12, increase the amount by $150,692,000,000.

On page 4, line 13, increase the amount by $177,195,000,000.

On page 4, line 18, decrease the amount by $165,000,000.

On page 4, line 19, decrease the amount by $1,566,000,000.

On page 4, line 20, decrease the amount by $3,892,400,000.

On page 4, line 21, decrease the amount by $6,114,000,000.

On page 4, line 22, decrease the amount by $9,232,000,000.

On page 4, line 23, decrease the amount by $13,931,000,000.

On page 4, line 24, decrease the amount by $20,801,000,000.

On page 4, line 25, decrease the amount by $29,114,000,000.

On page 5, line 1, decrease the amount by $38,871,000,000.

On page 5, line 6, decrease the amount by $165,000,000.

On page 5, line 7, decrease the amount by $1,566,000,000.

On page 5, line 8, decrease the amount by $3,892,000,000.

On page 5, line 9, decrease the amount by $6,114,000,000.

On page 5, line 10, decrease the amount by $9,232,000,000.

On page 5, line 11, decrease the amount by $13,931,000,000.

On page 5, line 12, decrease the amount by $20,801,000,000.

On page 5, line 13, decrease the amount by $29,114,000,000.

On page 5, line 14, decrease the amount by $38,871,000,000.

On page 5, line 19, increase the amount by $7,598,000,000.

On page 5, line 20, increase the amount by $54,684,000,000.

On page 5, line 21, increase the amount by $36,195,000,000.

On page 5, line 22, increase the amount by $55,294,000,000.

On page 5, line 23, increase the amount by $71,869,000,000.

On page 5, line 24, increase the amount by $123,206,000,000.

On page 5, line 25, increase the amount by $156,555,000,000.

On page 6, line 1, increase the amount by $179,806,000,000.

On page 6, line 2, increase the amount by $216,066,000,000.

On page 6, line 6, decrease the amount by $7,598,000,000.

On page 6, line 7, decrease the amount by $62,282,000,000.

On page 6, line 8, decrease the amount by $98,477,000,000.

On page 6, line 9, decrease the amount by $153,771,000,000.

On page 6, line 10, decrease the amount by $225,640,000,000.

On page 6, line 11, decrease the amount by $348,846,000,000.

On page 6, line 12, decrease the amount by $505,401,000,000.

On page 6, line 13, decrease the amount by $685,207,000,000.

On page 6, line 14, decrease the amount by $901,273,000,000.

On page 6, line 18, decrease the amount by $7,598,000,000.

On page 6, line 19, decrease the amount by $62,282,000,000.

On page 6, line 20, decrease the amount by $98,477,000,000.

On page 6, line 21, decrease the amount by $153,771,000,000.

On page 6, line 22, decrease the amount by $225,640,000,000.

On page 6, line 23, decrease the amount by $348,846,000,000.

On page 6, line 24, decrease the amount by $505,401,000,000.

On page 6, line 25, decrease the amount by $685,207,000,000.

On page 7, line 1, decrease the amount by $901,273,000,000.

On page 37, line 2, decrease the amount by $165,000,000.

On page 37, line 3, decrease the amount by $165,000,000.

On page 37, line 6, decrease the amount by $1,566,000,000.

On page 37, line 7, decrease the amount by $1,566,000,000.

On page 37, line 10, decrease the amount by $3,892,000,000.

On page 37, line 11, decrease the amount by $3,892,000,000.

On page 37, line 14, decrease the amount by $6,114,000,000.

On page 37, line 15, decrease the amount by $6,114,000,000.

On page 37, line 18, decrease the amount by $9,232,000,000.

On page 37, line 19, decrease the amount by $9,232,000,000.

On page 37, line 22, decrease the amount by $13,931,000,000.

On page 37, line 23, decrease the amount by $13,931,000,000.

On page 38, line 2, decrease the amount by $20,801,000,000.

On page 38, line 3, decrease the amount by $20,801,000,000.

On page 38, line 6, decrease the amount by $29,114,000,000.

On page 38, line 7, decrease the amount by $29,114,000,000.

On page 38, line 10, decrease the amount by $38,871,000,000.

On page 38, line 11, decrease the amount by $38,871,000,000.

On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5 and lines 15 through 19.

Strike section 201.

REED (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 162

Mr. REED (for himself, Mr. SARBANES, Mr. KERRY, and Mrs. MURRAY) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

On page 3, strike beginning with line 5 through page 5, line 14, and insert the following:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $1,438,628,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,461,410,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,538,283,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,592,543,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,656,146,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,689,262,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,743,602,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,813,532,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,876,549,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.

Fiscal year 2001: —$4,019,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: —$46,866,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: —$25,035,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: —$41,606,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: —$54,750,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: —$101,451,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: —$127,798,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: —$142,677,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: —$169,161,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,433,484,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $1,462,731,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,494,665,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,567,714,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,619,458,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,673,026,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,704,594,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,759,769,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,820,952,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,881,193,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,408,292,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $1,438,628,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,461,410,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,538,283,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,589,644,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,646,315,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,674,432,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,723,839,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,788,712,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,848,733,000,000.

On page 21, strike beginning with line 20 through 23, line 11, and insert the following:

(9) COMMUNITY AND REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT (450):

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $11,898,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,273,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $9,141,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,931,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $9,077,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,919,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $9,243,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $10,232,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $9,217,000,000.
 (B) Outlays, $9,694,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2005:
 (A) New budget authority, $9,213,000,000.
 (B) Outlays, $9,121,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2006:
 (A) New budget authority, $9,219,000,000.
 (B) Outlays, $8,755,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2007:
 (A) New budget authority, $9,223,000,000.
 (B) Outlays, $8,751,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2008:
 (A) New budget authority, $9,232,000,000.
 (B) Outlays, $8,722,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2009:
 (A) New budget authority, $9,237,000,000.
 (B) Outlays, $8,722,000,000.
 On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5.
 Change $142,034,000,000 to $117,526,000,000.
 Change $777,587,000,000 to $713,363,000,000.

CRAPO (AND GRAMS) AMENDMENT NO. 163

Mr. CRAPO (for himself and Mr. GRAMS) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ RESERVE FUND FOR INCREASED ON-BUDGET SURPLUS IN THE OUT-YEARS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Any additional on-budget surplus exceeding the level assumed in this resolution during the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2009 as reestimated by the Congressional Budget Office shall be reserved exclusively for tax relief or debt reduction.

(b) ADJUSTMENTS.—The Chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the Senate may reduce the spending and revenue aggregates and may revise committee allocations by taking the additional amount of the on-budget surplus referred to in subsection (a) for tax relief or debt reduction in the period of fiscal year 2001 through 2009.

(c) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—When the Senate is considering a bill, resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report that uses the additional on-budget surplus reserved in subsection (a) for additional Government spending other than tax relief or debt reduction, a point of order may be made by a Senator against the measure, and if the Presiding Officer sustains that point of order, it may not be offered as an amendment from the floor.

(2) SUPERMAJORITY.—This point of order may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by an affirmative vote of three-fifths of the members, duly chosen and sworn.

(d) BUDGETARY ENFORCEMENT.—Revised allocations and aggregates under subsection (a) shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

GRAHAM AMENDMENT NO. 164

Mr. GRAHAM proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE CONCERNING RECOVERY OF FUNDS BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IN TOBACCO-RELATED LITIGATION.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Federal Tobacco Recovery and Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit Resolution of 1999".

(b) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The President, in his January 19, 1999 State of the Union address—

(A) announced that the Department of Justice would develop a litigation plan for the Federal Government against the tobacco industry;

(B) indicated that any funds recovered through such litigation would be used to strengthen the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.); and

(C) urged Congress to pass legislation to include a prescription drug benefit in the medicare program.

(2) The traditional medicare program does not include most outpatient prescription drugs as part of its benefit package.

(3) Prescription drugs are a central element in improving quality of life and in routine health maintenance.

(4) Prescription drugs are a key component to early health care intervention strategies for the elderly.

(5) Eighty percent of retired individuals take at least 1 prescription drug every day.

(6) Individuals 65 years of age or older represent 12 percent of the population of the United States but consume more than 1/3 of all prescription drugs consumed in the United States.

(7) Exclusive of health care-related premiums, prescription drugs account for almost 1/3 of the health care costs and expenditures of elderly individuals.

(8) Approximately 10 percent of all medicare beneficiaries account for nearly 50 percent of all prescription drug spending by the elderly.

(9) Research and development on new generations of pharmaceuticals represent new opportunities for healthier, longer lives for our Nation's elderly.

(10) Prescription drugs are among the key tools in every health care professional's medical arsenal to help combat and prevent the onset, recurrence, or debilitating effects of illness and disease.

(11) While Federal litigation against tobacco companies will take time to develop and execute, Congress should continue to work to address the immediate need among the elderly for access to affordable prescription drugs.

(12) Treatment of tobacco-related illness is estimated to cost the medicare program approximately $10,000,000,000 every year.

(13) In 1998, 50 States reached a settlement with the tobacco industry for tobacco-related illness in the amount of $206,000,000,000.

(14) Recoveries from Federal tobacco-related litigation, if successful, will likely be comparable to or exceed the dollar amount recovered by the States under the 1998 settlement.

(15) In the event Federal tobacco-related litigation is undertaken and is successful, funds recovered under such litigation should first be used for the purpose of strengthening the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and second to finance a medicare prescription drug benefit.

(16) The scope of any medicare prescription drug benefit should be as comprehensive as possible, with drugs used in fighting tobacco-related illnesses given a first priority.

(17) Most Americans want the medicare program to cover the costs of prescription drugs.

(c) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that funds recovered under any tobacco-related litigation commenced by the Federal Government should be used first for the purpose of strengthening the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and second to fund a medicare prescription drug benefit.

GRAHAM (AND OTHERS) AMENDMENT NO. 165

Mr. GRAHAM (for himself, Mr. FEINGOLD, and Ms. SNOWE) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON OFFSETTING INAPPROPRIATE EMERGENCY SPENDING.

It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that—

(1) some emergency expenditures made at the end of the 105th Congress for fiscal year 1999 were inappropriately deemed as emergencies; and

(2) Congress and the President should identify these inappropriate expenditures and fully pay for these expenditures during the fiscal year in which they will be incurred.

LAUTENBERG AMENDMENT NO. 166

Mr. LAUTENBERG proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE, REDUCING THE PUBLIC DEBT, AND TARGETING TAX RELIEF TO MIDDLE-INCOME WORKING FAMILIES.

It is the sense of the Senate that the provisions of this resolution assume that—

(1) Congress should adopt a budget that—

(A) reserves the entire off-budget surplus for Social Security each year; and

(B) over 15 years, like the President's budget, reserves—

(i) 77 percent, or $3,600,000,000 of the total surplus for Social Security and Medicare;

(ii) 23 percent, or $1,000,000,000 of the surplus for—

(I) investments in key domestic priorities such as education, the environment, and law enforcement;

(II) investments in military readiness; and

(III) pro-savings tax cuts for working families;

(2) any tax cuts or spending increases should not be enacted before the solvency of Social Security is assured and Medicare solvency is extended twelve years;

(3) the 77 percent or $3,600,000,000 of the total surplus for Social Security and Medicare should be used to reduce the publicly held debt; and

(4) any tax cuts should be targeted to provide tax relief to middle-income working families and should not provide disproportionate tax relief to people with the highest incomes.

LAUTENBERG (AND LEAHY) AMENDMENT NO 167

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for himself and Mr. LEAHY) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; and follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON REAUTHORIZING THE COPS PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) as of December 1998, the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Program had awarded grants for the hiring or redeployment to the nation's streets of more than 92,000 police officers and sheriff's deputies;

(2) according to the United States Bureau of Justice Statistics, the Nation's violent crime rate declined almost 7 percent during 1997 and has fallen more than 21 percent since 1993; and

(3) enhanced community policing has significantly contributed to this decline in the violent crime rate.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Program should be reauthorized in order to provide continued Federal funding for the hiring, deployment, and retention of community law enforcement officers.

FEINSTEIN AMENDMENTS NOS. 168–169

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mrs. FEINSTEIN) proposed two amendments to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; and follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 168

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE.

It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that funds will be provided for legislation—

(1) to provide 50-50 matching grants to build new schools, and to reduce school sizes and class sizes, so that—

(A)(i) kindergarten through grade 5 schools serve not more than 500 students;

(ii) grade 6 through grade 8 schools serve not more than 750 students; and

(iii) grade 9 through grade 12 schools serve not more than 1,500 students; and

(B)(i) kindergarten through grade 6 classes have not more than 20 students per teacher; and

(ii) grade 7 through grade 12 classes have not more than 28 students per teacher; and

(2) to enable students to meet academic achievement standards, and to enable school districts to provide remedial education and terminate the practice of social promotion.

AMENDMENT NO. 169

At the end of title III, add the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON SOCIAL PROMOTION.

It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that funds will be provided for legislation—

(1) to provide remedial educational and other instructional interventions to assist public elementary and secondary school students in meeting achievement levels; and

(2) to terminate practices which advance students from one grade to the next who do not meet State achievement standards in the core academic curriculum.

REID AMENDMENT NO. 170

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mr. REID) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; and follows:

At the appropriate place, insert:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING SOCIAL SECURITY NOTCH BABIES.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) the Social Security Amendments of 1977 (Public Law 95-216) substantially altered the way social security benefits are computed;

(2) those amendments resulted in disparate benefits depending upon the year in which a worker becomes eligible for benefits; and

(3) those individuals born between the years 1917 and 1926, and who are commonly referred to as “notch babies” receive benefits that are lower than those retirees who were born before or after those years.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution and legislation enacted pursuant to this resolution assume that the Congress should allow workers who attain age 65 after 1981 and before 1992 to choose either lump sum payments over 4 years totaling $5,000 or an improved benefit computation formula under a new 10-year rule governing the transition to the changes in benefit computation rules enacted in the Social Security Amendments of 1977.

BOXER AMENDMENT NO. 171

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mrs. BOXER) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; and follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON FUNDING FOR AFTER SCHOOL EDUCATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds the following:

(1) The demand for after school education is very high. In fiscal year 1998 the Department of Education's after school grant program was the most competitive in the Department's history. Nearly 2,000 school districts applied for over $540,000,000.

(2) After school programs help to fight juvenile crime. Law enforcement statistics show that youth who are ages 12 through 17 are most at risk of committing violent acts and being victims of violent acts between 3:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. After school programs have been shown to reduce juvenile crime, sometimes by up to 75 percent according to the National Association of Police Athletic and Activity Leagues.

(3) After school programs can improve educational achievement. They ensure children have safe and positive learning environments in the after school hours. In the Sacramento START after school program 75 percent of the students showed an increase in their grades.

(4) After school programs have widespread support. Over 90 percent of the American people support such programs. Over 450 of the nation's leading police chiefs, sheriffs, and prosecutors, along with presidents of the Fraternal Order of Police, and the International Union of Police Associations support government funding of after school programs. And many of our nation's governors endorse increasing the number of after school programs through a Federal of State partnership.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that Congress will provide $600,000,000 for the President's after school initiative in fiscal year 2000.

MURRAY (AND KENNEDY) AMENDMENT NO. 172

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mrs. MURRAY) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; and follows:

On page 3, strike beginning with line 5 through page 5, line 14, and insert the following:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,289,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,456,068,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,507,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,586,777,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,650,486,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,683,892,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,736,436,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,805,797,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,865,565,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.

Fiscal year 2001: –$7,358,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: –$52,208,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: –$30,811,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: –$47,372,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: –$60,412,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: –$106,822,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: –$134,964,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: –$150,412,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: –$177,195,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,426,931,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $1,457,794,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,489,177,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,562,248,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,614,578,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,668,643,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,697,402,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,752,567,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,813,739,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,873,969,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,408,292,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,289,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,456,068,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,507,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $1,583,878,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,640,655,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,669,062,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,716,673,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,780,977,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,840,699,000,000.

On page 23, strike beginning with line 14 through page 25, line 3, and insert the following:

Fiscal year 2000:

(A) New budget authority, $67,373,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $63,994,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $68,049,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $65,430,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $68,995,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $66,947,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $75,069,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $70,023,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $78,948,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $74,262,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005:

(A) New budget authority, $80,264,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $78,118,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006:

(A) New budget authority, $78,229,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $79,643,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007:

(A) New budget authority, $79,133,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $78,909,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008:

(A) New budget authority, $80,144,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $79,389,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009:

(A) New budget authority, $80,051,000,000.

(B) Outlays, $79,059,000,000.

On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5 and insert the following:

(1) to reduce revenues by not more than $0 in fiscal year 2000, $137,750,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004, and $767,552,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2009; and

MURRAY AMENDMENT NO. 173

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mrs. MURRAY) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the end of title III, add the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON WOMEN AND SOCIAL SECURITY REFORM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) without Social Security benefits, the elderly poverty rate among women would have been 52.2 percent, and among widows would have been 60.6 percent;

(2) women tend to live longer and tend to have lower lifetime earnings than men do;

(3) during their working years, women earn an average of 70 cents for every dollar men earn; and

(4) women spend an average of 11.5 years out of their careers to care for their families, and are more likely to work part-time than full-time.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that—

(1) women face unique obstacles in ensuring retirement security and survivor and disability stability;

(2) Social Security plays an essential role in guaranteeing inflation-protected financial stability for women throughout their old age;

(3) the Congress and the Administration should act, as part of Social Security reform, to ensure that widows and other poor elderly women receive more adequate benefits that reduce their poverty rates and that women, under whatever approach is taken to reform Social Security, should receive no lesser a share of overall federally-funded retirement benefits than they receive today; and

(4) the sacrifice that women make to care for their family should be recognized during reform of Social Security and that women should not be penalized by taking an average of 11.5 years out of their careers to care for their family.

HOLLINGS AMENDMENT NO. 174

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mr. HOLLINGS) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

Strike Titles 1 and 2 of the resolution and insert the following:

TITLE I—LEVELS AND AMOUNTS

SEC. 101. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years 2000 through 2009:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,442,647,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,508,276,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,563,318,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,634,149,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,710,896,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,790,713,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,871,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,956,209,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $2,045,710,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,424,759,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,451,764,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,481,268,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,544,059,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,597,397,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,665,402,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,705,251,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,770,344,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,840,865,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,910,187,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,406,584,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,431,899,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,449,260,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,512,261,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,566,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,631,828,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,674,724,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,737,435,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,810,214,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,880,338,000,000.

(4) DEFICITS OR SURPLUSES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the deficits or surpluses are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: —$4,605,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $10,748,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $59,016,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $51,057,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $67,549,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $79,068,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $115,989,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $133,965,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $145,995,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $165,372,000,000.

(5) PUBLIC DEBT.—The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $5,637,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $5,710,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $5,739,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $5,776,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $5,792,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $5,794,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $5,755,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $5,696,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $5,615,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $5,510,500,000,000.

(6) DEBT HELD BY THE PUBLIC.—The appropriate levels of the debt held by the public are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $3,511,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $3,371,900,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $3,175,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $2,979,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $2,756,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $2,507,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $2,211,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,886,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,539,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,168,200,000,000.

SEC. 102. SOCIAL SECURITY.

(a) SOCIAL SECURITY REVENUES.—For purposes of Senate enforcement under sections 302, and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the amounts of revenues of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $468,020,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $487,744,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $506,293,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $527,326,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $549,876,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $576,840,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $601,834,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $628,277,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $654,422,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $681,313,000,000.

(b) SOCIAL SECURITY OUTLAYS.—For purposes of Senate enforcement under sections 302, and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the amounts of outlays of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $327,256,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $339,789,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $350,127,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $362,197,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $375,253,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $389,485,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $404,596,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $420,616,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $438,132,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $459,496,000,000.

SEC. 103. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

Congress determines and declares that the appropriate levels of new budget authority, budget outlays, new direct loan obligations, and new primary loan guarantee commitments for fiscal year 2000 through 2009 for each major functional category are at the CBO March Baseline On-Budget totals for BA and outlays, committee allocations and resolution aggregates.

BOXER AMENDMENT NO. 175

Mr. LAUTENBERG (for Mrs. BOXER) proposed an amendment to the concurrent resolution, S. Con. Res. 20, supra; as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON TAX CUTS FOR LOWER AND MIDDLE INCOME TAXPAYERS.

It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that Congress will not approve an across-the-board cut in income tax rates, or any other tax legislation, that would provide substantially more benefits to the top 10 percent of taxpayers than to the remaining 90 percent.

NOTICE OF HEARING

COMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I would like to announce for the public that a hearing has been scheduled before the Subcommittee on Forests and Public Land Management of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

The hearing will take place on Wednesday April 14, 1999, at 2:00 p.m. in room SD-366 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building in Washington, DC.

The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony on S. 415, a bill to amend the Arizona Statehood and Enabling Act in order to protect the permanent trust funds of the State of Arizona from erosion due to inflation and modify the basis on which distributions are made from the funds, and S. 607, a bill to reauthorize and amend the National Geologic Mapping Act of 1992.

Those who wish to submit written statements should write to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC 20510.

AUTHORITY FOR COMMITTEES TO MEET

COMMITTEE ON ENERGY AND NATURAL RESOURCES

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources be granted permission to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, for purposes of conducting a full committee hearing which is scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony on Nuclear Waste Storage and Disposal Policy, including S. 608, the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1999.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON ENVIRONMENT AND PUBLIC WORKS

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Environment and Public Works be granted permission to conduct a hearing on voluntary activities to reduce the emission of greenhouse gases Wednesday, March 24 at 9:30 a.m., Hearing Room (SD-406).

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent on behalf of the Committee on Governmental Affairs to meet on Wednesday, March 24, 1999, at 9:30 a.m. for a hearing on the Independent Counsel Act.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON INDIAN AFFAIRS

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate Committee on Indian Affairs be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999 at 9:30 a.m. to conduct a Hearing on S. 399, the Indian Gaming Regulatory Improvement Act of 1999. The Hearing will be held in room 485 of the Russell Senate Office Building.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on the Judiciary be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999 at 10:00 a.m. in room 226 of the Senate Dirksen office building to hold a hearing on: "S.J. Res. 3, A Proposed Constitutional Amendment to Protect Crime Victims."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

COMMITTEE ON RULES AND ADMINISTRATION

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Committee on Rules and Administration be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999 at 9:30 a.m. to receive testimony on campaign contribution limits.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SELECT COMMITTEE ON INTELLIGENCE

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Select Committee on Intelligence be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999 at 2:00 p.m. to hold a closed hearing on Intelligence Matters.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON AIRLAND FORCES

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Airland Forces of the Committee on Armed Services be authorized to meet on Wednesday, March 24, 1999, at 2:00 p.m. in open session, to receive testimony on Army modernization programs.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON CRIMINAL JUSTICE OVERSIGHT

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Criminal Justice Oversight, of the Senate Judiciary Committee, be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999 at 2:00 p.m. to hold a hearing in room 226, Senate Dirksen office building, on: "The Effect of State Ethics Rules on Federal Law Enforcement."

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON EUROPEAN AFFAIRS

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on European Affairs be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999 at 2:00 p.m. to hold a hearing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON NATIONAL PARKS, HISTORIC PRESERVATION AND RECREATION

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on National Parks, Historic Preservation and Recreation of the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources be granted permission to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, for purposes of conducting a subcommittee hearing which is scheduled to begin at 2:00 p.m. The purpose of this hearing is to receive testimony on S. 323, a bill to redesignate the Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument as a national park and to establish the Gunnison Gorge National Conservation Area, and for other purposes; S. 338, a bill to provide for the collection of fees for the making of motion pictures, television productions, and sound tracks in units of the Department of the Interior, and for other purposes; S. 568, a bill to allow the Department of the Interior and the Department of Agriculture to establish a fee system for commercial filming activities in a site or resource under their jurisdictions.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON PERSONNEL

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Personnel of the Committee on Armed Services be authorized to meet on Wednesday, March 24, 1999, at 10:00 a.m., in open session, to receive testimony on active and reserve military and civilian personnel programs in review of the defense authorization request for fiscal year 2000 and the future years defense program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON SECURITIES

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Securities of the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999, to conduct a hearing on "fees collected under the Securities Act of 1933" and "Securities Exchange Act of 1934".

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

SUBCOMMITTEE ON WESTERN HEMISPHERE, PEACE CORPS, NARCOTICS AND TERRORISM

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Subcommittee on Western Hemisphere, Peace Corps, Narcotics and Terrorism be authorized to meet during the session of the Senate on Wednesday, March 24, 1999, at 10:00 am, to hold a hearing.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

CONFERRING OF THE FRENCH LEGION OF HONOR ON WORLD WAR I VETERANS

• Mr. SCHUMER. Mr. President, I rise today to salute our veterans of the First World War as the French government confers the Legion of Honor, its highest honor, on those living American veterans who served on French soil during World War I. I salute these brave men and women for their courage and for their sacrifice. For the past eighty years, they have taught several generations of Americans what it means to be a hero and what it means to be an American.

Our World War I veterans fought because they believed in something beyond themselves, a greater good. They fought to preserve the best of humanity—democracy, compassion, and liberty. Unfortunately, their fight exposed them to the worst of humanity, the first modern war, with its machine guns, its trenches, its very inhumanity.

"The Great War," "The War to End All Wars" is what they called it. It was so terrible, so inhuman that we believed that a calamity of that magnitude could never happen again. But it did. The Great War became known as World War I as a second inhuman war consumed our world.

Today, we owe it to those who fought in World War I, who we promised that it would never happen again, that we will make sure that it doesn't. These medals and this promise are for our World War I veterans and for everyone who fought alongside them in the trenches.

I offer this promise to our veterans, but I also ask for their help in keeping it. I ask them to teach their grandchildren and their great-grandchildren about what it meant to fight for such a great and costly cause. Together, we can make sure that our children and our children's children never have to fight another Great War. •

RECOGNITION OF THE LIFE UNIVERSITY RUNNING EAGLE HOCKEY TEAM

• Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, I am delighted to have this opportunity to congratulate the Life University Running Eagle Hockey team on their remarkable season. Georgia fans all across the country have had the pleasure of watching this team take its third consecutive American Collegiate Hockey Association Division II National Championship.

Head Coach Dan Bouchard has, in only three seasons, led the Life ice hockey team to one national runner-up position in the 1995-96 inaugural year and two division II national titles in the two subsequent years. This season brought the Running Eagles an impeccable record with 20 wins, 1 tie and only 5 losses. Through pool play and the championship round, Life had 5 wins, no losses, and averaged 6 goals a game.

Life University is fortunate to have an individual of the caliber of Dan Bouchard coaching their hockey team. Not only are he and his assistant coaches teaching their players hockey skills, but important lessons for life—courage, stamina, tenacity and dedication. Although he has enjoyed great success throughout his coaching career, his achievements go far beyond his great talent in coaching. He was a second round draft pick for the Boston Bruins in the 1970 American Hockey League where he was the co-winner of the Happs Holmes Trophy which honors the top goalie in the AHL. Coach Bouchard moved to the National Hockey League in 1972 where he gained a number of honors. In 1976, he was chosen to play for Team Canada and in 1979 he co-founded the Atlanta Sports Carnival which fund raises for leukemia research at Emory University. I would be hard pressed to enumerate all of his magnificent life achievements and contributions to Life University, the Marietta community and to all of the athletes whose lives he has touched.

In this year's championship game the team quickly jumped ahead with a 4-1 lead in the second period against Michigan State, thus setting the tone for defeat. With a final score of 6-2, they claimed their third national title. The Most Valuable Player award went to the Running Eagles' Mark Brodeur who scored 12 goals and had six assists for a total of 18 points. He led the tournament in scoring.

Mr. President, I ask that you and my colleagues join me in recognizing and honoring the dedication and hard work of the athletes and coaches of the Life University Running Eagles. They have displayed their skills and dedication to excellence in hockey throughout this entire season and I extend my best wishes to them and congratulate the Life University Athletic Department on their continued success.●

TRIBUTE TO MERRILL S. PARKS JR.

• Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to recognize the life and achievements of Mr. Merrill S. Parks Jr., the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Special Agent in charge of Connecticut, who recently passed away after a brief illness at the age of 55.

Merrill Parks began his career with the FBI 29 years ago in Montana after graduating from Memphis State University. He quickly moved on to serve in the FBI's New York division where he worked from 1971 to 1975. While there, he became a supervisory Special Agent overseeing the investigation of organized crime and white-collar crime.

Special Agent Parks's success as an investigator earned him a reputation as an expert in dealing with organized crime. By 1979, Special Agent Parks had been reassigned to the FBI headquarters in Washington, D.C. to manage the bureau's national program of identifying and infiltrating organized crime. He also initiated a long-term program that dealt with combating money laundering.

One of Special Agent Parks most widely profiled accomplishments was his leadership of what became known as the Pizza Connection case. His experience and knowledge of the inner-workings of crime families led to the successful prosecution of Mafia-connected drug dealers who sold heroin through pizza parlors and bakeries.

In 1986, Special Agent Parks was reassigned as an Assistant Special Agent in charge of Houston's FBI office. The Houston area had been witnessing a growth of Mexican organized crime groups attempting to distribute drugs throughout the United States, and Special Agent Parks's expertise was enlisted to help curb their illegal activities. Within the first year, under the guidance of Special Agent Parks, the Houston office solved 32 drug-related kidnappings.

The course of Merrill Parks's career eventually brought him to Madison, Connecticut in 1994, where he made his home with his wife, Patricia. In that year, he was also appointed to head the FBI's Connecticut office.

Vigorous in his determination to stop the flow of drugs and violence within our communities, Special Agent Parks faced the new task of eliminating gangs. Sadly, Connecticut, like so many other states, has experienced an emergence of gangs and gang-related crime in recent years. Special Agent Parks's work in Connecticut was no less impressive and, as with his previous assignments, he was, once again, successful. In his first year working in Connecticut, Special Agent Parks infiltrated one of the state's most infamous gangs, the Latin Kings, and arrested numerous gang leaders.

Realizing that gangs were a long-term problem, he created a task force that for three years continued to monitor and collect evidence on gang activity. Finally, in 1997, federal charges were brought against 20 Latin King members throughout the state, and his hard work ultimately led to the prosecution of dozens, helping to rid our streets of gang violence.

Mr. President, although Merrill Parks only lived in Connecticut for a short five years, the contributions he made to the state and the protection of its residents will be long remembered. I appreciated his willingness to always keep me and my staff informed of recent developments within his office and his obvious concern for making Connecticut a safer place to live. His stay was brief but his accomplishments were many and on behalf of myself, and the entire state of Connecticut, I would like to offer our sincere thanks for his outstanding efforts. Merrill Parks is survived by his wife, Patricia, a son, Andrew, and a daughter, Meredith. I would like to extend my heartfelt condolences to each of them on the passing of an outstanding father, husband, and law enforcement officer.●

SUBMISS

• Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, today I ask that the second portion of Mark A. Bradley's article on the disappearance of the U.S.S. Scorpion be printed in the RECORD. The first portion of this article, which was featured in the Spring/Summer volume of the Journal of America's Military Past, appeared in yesterday's RECORD. Mr. Bradley was awarded the James Madison prize by the Society for History in the Federal Government for this article. I will ask that the third and final portion of this article be printed in tomorrow's RECORD.

The material follows:

SUBMISS: THE MYSTERIOUS DEATH OF THE U.S.S. "SCORPION" (SSN 589), PART II (By Mark A. Bradley)

While the theory of Russian involvement is tantalizing, it is highly unlikely that the Soviet Navy possessed the capability in May 1968 to hunt down the Scorpion. Although the Soviets were on the brink of commissioning two new classes of hunter-killer and ballistic missile submarines—the Victor I and the Charlie I—fully able to contend with American sea power, they still relied heavily at that time on their vintage diesel Whiskey class submarines to shadow and challenge hostile warships. Slow and lacking advanced weapons and sophisticated electronics, the outdated Whiskeys were no match for the Scorpion.

Similarly, the Soviet's Echo II class nuclear submarine had limited capabilities. Although the Echo II was armed with conventional antisubmarine torpedoes, her main weapons were surface-to-surface missiles. According to U.S. intelligence estimates, the Echo II required over 25 minutes to surface and fire, ample time for the Scorpion to parry an attack and to launch one of her own. Moreover, the United States Navy did not begin to decommission its Skipjack class submarines until 1986. Until then, the surviving five remained in firstline service, an unlikely practice for the Navy to maintain if it knew or suspected that the Soviets so easily had hunted down and killed the Scorpion nearly 20 years before.

After rejecting Soviet involvement, the Court similarly discounted sabotage, a collision with an undersea mountain, a nuclear accident, a structural failure, a fire, an irrational act by a crew member, a loss of navigational control and, with far less certainty, a weapons accident. Although it found no direct evidence that one of the submarines' own torpedoes had exploded, the Court noted that on December 5, 1967, the Scorpion had confronted an accidentally activated Mark 37 torpedo in one of its firing tubes and had sidestepped disaster by expelling it before it could detonate.

Her standard method for deactivating a "hot run"—the Navy's term for an accidentally activated torpedo with a live warhead—was to flood the tube with cold water, keeping the torpedo cool, and turn the warship in a U turn more than 170 degrees, activating an anti-circular homing device that shut down the projectile's motor. Then her crew would drain the tube, install a propeller lock and jettison it. Small and battery powered, the Mark 37 was a wire-guided anti-submarine torpedo that had a disturbing history of accidentally activating, particularly during testing. In May 1968, the Scorpion had 14 Mark 37s in an arsenal that included two Mark 45 ASTOR torpedoes with nuclear warheads and 7 other conventional projectiles.

She also had a new commander. When he took over the Scorpion on October 17, 1967, Francis Atwood Slattery was 36 years old. From West Paris, Maine, he had graduated from Annapolis in 1954 and was a member of the Naval War College's class of 1967. A former executive officer on U.S.S. Nautilus, "Frank" Slattery was among a very small cadre of technically gifted officers the Navy had tapped for elite nuclear submarine duty. After promotion to the rank of commander on October 2, 1967, the Scorpion was his first command.

His newness to command showed in December when navy inspectors gave the Scorpion an unsatisfactory rating after she failed a series of casualty drills involving her nuclear torpedoes and again in January when she engaged in an advanced submarine versus submarine exercise and received the lowest tactical grade of all the participants. Nevertheless, by the time she was deployed to the Mediterranean in February, the Navy rated her fully ready and, by March, she was praised by the 6th Fleet Command Staff for being a well-trained, well-run submarine. By April 1968, seven of her 12 officers and 61 of her 87 enlisted men were fully qualified in submarines, and the Court found no ground to blame either her officers or her enlisted men for what happened on May 22.

As Admiral Austin closed his investigation and submitted his inconclusive findings, the Mizar found the Scorpion in the early morning hours of October 28, 1968, and began photographing the wreckage. Once all the photographic and sound recordings were collected, Admiral Austin reconvened his court in early November and asked a special Technical Advisory Group comprising scientists and veteran submariners to pore over the newly discovered physical evidence. Admiral Thomas Moorer, the Chief of Naval Operations, earlier had created this group to provide technical expertise to the Court.

Headed by Dr. John Craven, the naval scientist who in 1966 led the team that retrieved a hydrogen bomb that had plummeted into the Atlantic near Palomares, Spain, after two U.S. Air Force planes collided, and assisted by the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D.C., the technical experts first examined the acoustical recordings and made a startling discovery—the Scorpion had been heading east, instead of west toward Norfolk, when the first cataclysmic explosion erupted. The advisors estimated that the first sound to register on SOSUS had been caused by at least 30 pounds of TNT detonating 60 feet or more below the surface and theorized that the Scorpion had been engaged in a hastily ordered U-turn in a desperate attempt to disarm a hot run torpedo that exploded and caused uncontrollable flooding. According to Craven, the hot run scenario was the only one that fit all the evidence.

In a December 16, 1984, article published in the Virginian-Pilot & Ledger-Star, Craven related that the photographs indicated that the Scorpion's torpedo room was still intact and had not been crushed by water pressure as she spiraled toward her watery grave. In that interview, Craven said he believed the torpedo room did not implode, pointing out that it was the first part of the Scorpion to flood after the explosion and already had filled with water when the submarine began to sink. Noting the absence of visible damage from outside the hull, he added that a torpedo probably detonated inside the compartment instead of in one of the submarine's six firing tubes.

Craven also noted that the photographs showed that several access hatches to the torpedo room were open. This meant they probably were pushed out by internal pressure. The other SOSUS recordings were sounds of the Scorpion's various compartments collapsing and buckling as she bent like a piece of taffy as she sank below her crush depth and slammed into the ocean floor at a speed estimated to between 25 and 35 knots per hour.

Although the Court discovered that Schade's May 20 operational order did not specify whether the Scorpion's torpedoes were to be fully armed, it seems likely that Slattery would have exercised his discretion and ordered them ready as she approached the Soviet ships. If so, this would have been the first time in over a year that the Scorpion had engaged in an operation which required her tactical torpedoes to be fully loaded. She would have done so with a new torpedo gang and weapons officer. All her torpedo men had been replaced since her last operation, and her weapons officer had been relieved during her Mediterranean deployment.

The Court speculated that the Scorpion probably had begun disarming her torpedoes by the time she broadcast her final message on the evening of May 21 because of the Navy's strict policy forbidding submarines from entering Norfolk with fully armed warheads. If so, the investigators theorized that something as simple as a short in a piece of testing equipment accidentally could have activated one of the Mark 37's batteries and triggered a hot run. Left with only seconds to react, Slattery would have ordered the Scorpion into the abrupt U-turn she was making when the torpedo exploded and filled her with rushing sea water.

Almost immediately, the Navy's Bureau of Weapons challenged the hot run theory and commissioned its own study to undermine it. The Bureau's position was supported by Admiral P. Ephraim Holmes, the commander of the Navy's Atlantic Fleet, and Vice Admiral Schade. Both pointed out that there was no visible torpedo damage to the Scorpion's hull in any of the thousands of photographs taken by the Mizar and Trieste II, that her weapons room showed no signs of a cataclysmic explosion that would have followed as the warship's torpedoes erupted in a massive chain reaction, and that her torpedo firing doors were tightly shuttered. Moreover, former crew members were unable to identify any objects in her debris field that came from her torpedo room.

Admiral Schade, a veteran World War II submariner and holder of both the Navy

Cross and the Silver Star, told the Court that he believed the Scorpion simply was lost after she flooded and sank below her designed operating capacity. Although unsure of how the flooding started, Schade speculated that it happened while the submarine was at 60 feet or at periscope depth and that she already was full of water by the time she began to sink. In a letter to Admiral Austin, he wrote that he believed that the most likely cause of the disaster was an accident involving the submarine's trash disposal unit.

Located in the Scorpion's galley, her trash disposal consisted of an inner door separated from highly pressurized sea water by a basketball-sized valve connected to a 10½-inch tunnel. Although the inner door was supposed to be mechanically prevented from opening while trash was being flushed, and the crew was trained to use a bleed valve to make sure no pressurized sea water was outside before ejecting waste, a broken system or valve coupled with human error could have unleashed a fatal chain of events as a torrent of high-pressure sea water roared through the submarine. Pouring through the Scorpion's galley and swamping her operations center, the rushing cascade would have overwhelmed her pumps, washed over and shorted out her electric control panels, flooded over her huge battery several decks below and exploded into a deadly mist of fiery hydrogen and poisonous chlorine gas. With her crew dead or unconscious and water pressure squeezing her as she plunged deeper and deeper, the Scorpion would have imploded as she rocketed nearly two miles to the ocean's floor.

Vice Admiral Robert Fountain (Ret), the former executive officer on the Scorpion from 1965 until 1967, supports this theory. In a recent interview, Fountain explained that the Scorpion normally came up to periscope depth to expel her trash and that she especially would have needed to do so after completing an underwater intelligence operation. He also pointed out that the submarine had experienced flooding because of her trash disposal unit before. Some of the photographs taken by the Mizar and Trieste II appear to back Fountain's claim. These show that all the submarine's identifiable debris is from her operations center where her galley was located, and that a large section of her hull is missing where her huge 69-ton battery was stored.

The Austin Court considered this theory and determined it was possible but "not probable" without further comment. Moreover, the several witnesses testified that they believed the warship's safety systems would have deployed to save her if she was flooding that close to the surface. This assessment might have been right if the Scorpion's safety systems were fully working and certified, but they were neither.

The Scorpion's safety systems were a direct product of the worst submarine disaster in American history—the loss of U.S.S. Thresher and her entire crew of 112 sailors and 17 civilians on April 10, 1963. It is impossible to overestimate what the Thresher's loss meant to the Navy. A public relations nightmare during the very dangerous middle years of the cold War, the Thresher's abrupt demise during test dives 220 miles off Cape Cod shattered the myth of the service's technological invincibility—much like the Challenger's explosion did to NASA's some 23 years later—and caused acute embarrassment and unwelcome political oversight. Not only did it deprive the Navy of its most advanced submarine, but the disaster also spawned a round of congressional hearings and newspaper editorials questioning the design, testing and safety of the service's underwater nuclear fleet.

To combat these criticisms and regain its prestige, the Navy instituted its Submarine

Safety Program (SUBSAFE). First initiated in May 1963 and formalized that December, SUBSAFE was designed to ensure the Thresher was not repeated. After months of exhaustive hearings, which produced 12 volumes and 1,718 pages of evidence, the service's experts traced the Thresher's sinking to a series of failed silver-braze joints and pipes that set into motion a deadly chain of catastrophic events that ended with the warship's main systems flooded and her ballast system unable to muster enough air to send her to the surface. The investigators concluded that once the submarine dove to her test depth of 1,300 feet, water pressure ruptured her pipes and created a two inch leak. This sent an unstoppable stream of icy water over her control panels that her crew was unable to stop because they could not reach her centralized shutoff valves in time. It stopped her reactor and sent her backwards and downwards as she lost all power. Unable to blow enough air into her ballast tanks through her narrow pipes—moisture in her pipes had frozen, blocking her air vents—the Thresher imploded as she fell over 8,000 feet to the bottom.

In the wake of this, the Navy's Bureau of Ships and the Ship Systems Command placed depth restrictions on all the service's post-World War II submarines—the Scorpion was limited to a depth of 500 feet instead of her standard operating depth of 700 feet—and ordered their inspectors and workmen to begin the time-consuming and expensive task of examining and replacing faulty sea water hydraulic piping systems and rewelding possible faulty joints in over 80 submarines. They also ordered the improvement of flood control systems by increasing ballast tank blow rates and the installation of decentralized sea water shutoff valves.

By the time SUBSAFE was instituted, the Scorpion was in dry-dock at the Charleston Naval Shipyard for her first and last full overhaul. Arriving on June 10, 1963, and remaining until April 28, 1964, she had nearly completed her repairs by the time the yard's command received orders to implement the new safety requirements. Although workmen inspected the Scorpion's hull and replaced many of her welds, they were not authorized to install emergency sea water shut-off valves. Moreover, the Naval Sea Systems Command deemed the interim emergency blow system the yard constructed unsuitable for service and ordered it disconnected. The Navy decided to defer installing these two systems until early 1967, the date of the Scorpion's next scheduled overhaul.

By then, the Navy had spent over $500 million on SUBSAFE and estimated that it needed at least another $200 million more to certify all its submarines. In addition, severe outside pressures were forcing the Navy to rethink how best to allocate its already stretched resources. Faced with fighting an increasingly protracted war in Vietnam while meeting the unchanging demands of maintaining America's global security obligations at a time when the Soviets decided to expand and transform their navy into a full-blown blue water fleet, the service's high command began to grope for new ways to meet its backbreaking obligations.

Confronted now with the urgent need to launch more warships and to keep the ones it already had at sea, the Navy decided to delay installing full SUBSAFE systems in many of its older submarines. What prompted this shift started with a series of confidential memoranda and messages drafted in 1966 as the Navy sought ways to reduce the time its submarines spent in dry dock meeting SUBSAFE's requirements. A Naval Sea Systems Command study of that era revealed not only the rising costs of this program but that approximately 40 percent of the average submarine's time was spent undergoing reconditioning instead of serving at sea.

The Navy's leadership was clearly worried by the political fallout these statistics would generate. On March 24, 1966, the Commander of Submarine Squadron 6—the Scorpion's unit—drafted a memorandum to Admiral Schade, Commander Submarine Force, Atlantic Fleet that candidly admitted that "the inordinate amount of time currently involved in routine overhauls of nuclear submarines is a recognized source of major concern to the Navy as a whole and the submarine force in particular and stands as a source of acute political embarrassment." The memorandum blamed the Navy's Bureau of Ships and the managers of the service's shipyards for these problems and complained about the shortage of skilled workers needed to complete the overhauls, their poor planning in ordering critical materials on time, and the overall magnitude of what SUBSAFE required. It also warned that the Scorpion's next scheduled reconditioning in November 1966 "will establish a new record for in overhaul duration." •

SMALL FARM RIDER AMENDMENT

• Mr. REED. Mr. President, I want to speak briefly about an amendment regarding OSHA inspections of small farms, which I was prepared to offer to S. 544, the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill. To expedite the consideration of this emergency legislation, I withdrew my amendment, but I want my colleagues to know that I will continue to press this issue.

As other Senators may know, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, by statute, can enforce health and safety rules and investigate accidents on farms or businesses of any size.

However, a rider prohibiting OSHA from expending funds to carry out its statutory duty with respect to small farms has been attached to Department of Labor appropriations bills for the past several years. Small farms are those that employ ten or fewer workers and do not maintain a camp for temporary employees.

I want to emphasize that this prohibition extends even to the investigation of fatal, work-related accidents. I am not speaking of malicious acts leading to deaths on the job—law enforcement authorities are capable of addressing those circumstances. I am speaking of deaths caused by preventable health and safety hazards—hazards that no agency other than OSHA has the capacity to address.

Since the death of a sixteen-year-old Rhode Islander in an accident on a small farm in 1997, I have worked to address this issue.

Mr. President, it is heartbreaking for a parent to send a child off to a summer job only to see him die in an accident, and it is infuriating for these parents to wonder whether other youngsters now working on that job are safe.

I am sensitive to the concerns that some Senators will have about protecting the interests of family farms. That is why I have attempted to only moderately amend the current rider. Indeed, my amendment only allows

OSHA access to small farms if there is a death, and only for investigation, not punitive action.

I have advanced this proposal in the hope of disseminating information about the causes of fatalities in order to prevent repeat tragedies and to bring a sense of closure to families who lose a loved one.

When I raised this issue during the markup of the Safety Advancement for Employees (SAFE) Act in the Labor and Human Resources Committee during the last Congress, several of my colleagues expressed a willingness to work with me on this issue. Regrettably, there is little the authorizing committee can do, because the problem stems from an appropriations rider, and an appropriations bill is where a correction should be made.

Mr. President, agriculture is one of the most hazardous industries in the United States today. We should take at least this minimal step to ensure the safety of agricultural employees.

Last Fall, the National Research Council (NRC), an arm of the National Academy of Sciences (NAS), issued a report entitled Protecting Youth at Work. Among its recommendations was the following related to small farm safety:

To ensure the equal protection of children and adolescents from health and safety hazards in agriculture, Congress should undertake an examination of the effects and feasibility of extending all relevant Occupational Safety and Health Administration regulations to agricultural workers, including subjecting small farms to the same level of OSHA enforcement as that applied to other small businesses.

Mr. President, it is the opinion of the NAS panel that small farms should be subject to the same level of enforcement as all other small businesses. In comparison to this recommendation, my proposed amendment is moderate, because, again, my amendment only allows an OSHA inspection on a small farm following a fatal accident. The inspection could not result in fines or any other OSHA enforcement.

During consideration of the SAFE Act in the 105th Congress, the Labor Committee voted for a provision requiring an NAS peer review of all new OSHA standards. Today, we have a report from the NAS making recommendations on OSHA enforcement on small farms. I hope that colleagues will keep that in mind and that they will remember that my amendment is not as extensive as the NAS recommendation.

Mr. President, some have criticized my amendment as unfair to small farm owners. I am mystified by their argument. The only small farms to be impacted would be those where an employee dies in a work related accident. Then, the only imposition the business would face would be an investigation: no fines, no enforcement, and no regulation. If information could be disseminated to prevent just one of the 500 deaths that occur annually in the agriculture industry, I believe this minor inconvenience would be worth it. I know my constituents who lost their son feel that way, and I would venture to guess that many other families would feel that way too.

Mr. President, I want to thank Senator SPECTER, Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, for his good faith efforts to address this issue. His commitment to continue working with me was a major reason for my decision not to proceed my amendment on the Supplemental Appropriations bill. I look forward to working with the Senator from Pennsylvania and other concerned Senators in the months ahead.●

HONOR VICTIMS OF SCHOOL VIOLENCE BY ENACTING THE SAFE SCHOOL SECURITY ACT

● Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I rise today to state that today marks the first anniversary since the tragic school shooting in Jonesboro, Arkansas. We all remember hearing about the gun shots fired by two young boys hiding in the woods—shots that led to the tragic death of four of their classmates and a Jonesboro teacher. March 24th will forever be ingrained in our memories as the day our children's safety at school was threatened in a way we could hardly imagine.

One of the bills I introduced recently was aimed at keeping our kids in school. But solving the truancy problem is only one of the issues we must work together to tackle. Not only do we need to keep our kids in school, we need to keep our kids in school safe! The Safe School Security Act I introduced last week is intended to do just that.

Children should not have to fear for their safety while attending our public schools. At a time when violent crime in the nation is decreasing, ten percent of our public schools reported at least one serious violent crime during the 1996-97 school year. Because of this level of violence, 29 percent of elementary, 34 percent of junior high and 20 percent of high school students fear that they will be a victim of crime while at school. The school yard fist fight is no longer a child's worst fear: 71 percent of children ages 7 to 10 say they worry about being shot or stabbed. In fact, 13.2% of high school seniors reported being threatened by a weapon between 1995 and 1996. We all know that a violent environment is not a good learning environment.

Educators and law enforcement know that technology is the key to preventing and reducing crime in our schools. Most of us understand the importance of protecting our assets, yet we have neglected to protect our biggest investment of all: our school children. The Safe School Security Act would establish the School Security Technology Center at Sandia National Laboratory and provide grant money for local school districts to access the technology developed and tested by the lab. Because Sandia is one of our nation's premier labs when it comes to providing physical security for our nation's most important assets, it is fitting that Sandia would be chosen to provide security to our school districts throughout our nation.

Increased school security not only reduces violent crime, it reduces truancy and property crime. The latest technology was recently tested in a pilot project involving Sandia Labs and Belen High School in Belen, New Mexico and the results were astounding. After two years, Belen High School experienced a 75 percent reduction in school violence, a 30 percent reduction in truancy, an 80 percent reduction in vehicle break-ins and a 75 percent reduction in vandalism. More important, Belen realized a 100% reduction in the presence of unauthorized people on the school grounds. Also, Belen saw insurance claims due to theft or vandalism at the high school drop from $50,000 to $5,000 after the pilot project went into effect. Clearly, the cost of making our schools safer and more secure is a good investment for our nation.

The School Security Technology Center will partner with the Law Enforcement and Corrections Technology Center in Georgia to facilitate the transfer of available security technology to schools that could benefit the most from such technology. The School Security Technology Center will also provide security assessments for schools so they do not spend limited school resources on security tools that do not work. This bill will authorize $10,000,000 for schools to access the technical assistance from Sandia and to purchase security tools that fit their needs.

This one year anniversary of the horrible tragedy in Jonesboro should make it clear to everyone that it is time to focus on making our kids feel safe in school and ultimately putting kids first.●

SENATOR EDWARD M. KENNEDY'S REMARKS AT THE AMERICAN IRELAND FUND NATIONAL GALA

● Mr. DODD. Mr. President, last week, on the eve of Saint Patrick's Day, the American Ireland Fund recognized Senator KENNEDY for his life-long commitment to the Irish people and to peace in Northern Ireland. Senator HATCH and myself had the honor of introducing Senator KENNEDY that night. Today, I rise to recognize Senator KENNEDY for his work on behalf of peace and justice here in the United States and around the world, particularly in Ireland.

Before Ireland was in fashion, Senator KENNEDY was its loyal friend. Throughout the adult lives of most of the members of this body, Senator KENNEDY, his sister United States Ambassador to Ireland Jean Kennedy Smith, and members of their family have worked tirelessly, day in and day out, to better the lot of the least fortunate of their fellow men and women. Senator KENNEDY's efforts regularly reach across the borders of nation, race and religion.

It was only natural, then, that the conflict and injustice in Northern Ireland would make a claim on Senator KENNEDY's conscience. His unceasing interest in achieving peace in Northern Ireland was, and is, the one constant over the many ups and downs on the still bumpy road to resolving that conflict. He labors both as a distinguished representative of the United States, and as a loyal son of Ireland.

Reflecting on the way Senator KENNEDY has led so many of his colleagues down the tortured path that must inevitably lead to peace, I am reminded of the figure of the great Irish poet, William Butler Yeats, standing amidst the portraits of his contemporaries in the Dublin municipal gallery of art, and urging history to judge him not on this or that isolated deed but to:

Think where man's glory most begins and ends;

And say my glory was I had such friends.

Mr. President, I, and many others, are most grateful to be able to call Senator KENNEDY both a colleague and a friend.

In recognition of the honor he received last week from the American Ireland Fund, Mr. President, I ask that the remarks he gave that evening be printed in the RECORD.

The remarks follow:

Thank you, Chris Dodd and Orrin Hatch, for those kind words. Bertie Ahern, Kingsley Aikens, Loretta Brennan Glucksman, Father Gerry Creedon, friends, family—and fellow immigrants!

I just wish my parents could have been here. Mother would have loved everything you said—and Dad wouldn't have believed a word of it!

There's an old Irish saying that half the lies your opponents tell about you are not true.

But when your friends tell lies like that—it's beautiful.

It is an especially great honor to accept this award in the presence of so many of those who were essential to the success of the Good Friday Agreement.

The shamrock has three leaves, and I'm convinced that the peace agreement would never have been possible without the strong support at all the critical moments of the three greatest friends of Ireland in America—President Bill Clinton, Vice President Al Gore, and our truly indispensable peacemaker, Senator George Mitchell.

I welcome Bertie Ahern back to Washington. He deserves great credit for his own leadership during the peace negotiations and in the succeeding months.

I also pay tribute to the leaders of the Northern Ireland political parties who are here—John Hume and Seamus Mallon, Gerry Adams, David Trimble, Lord Alderdice, and Monica McWilliams. And I especially congratulate John Hume and David Trimble for the well-deserved Nobel Peace Prize.

I also welcome Secretary of State for Northern Ireland Mo Mowlam. And I salute Prime Minister Tony Blair, and many other Irish and British officials for their courage and determination not only in reaching the peace agreement, but in moving it forward, inch by inch, day by day.

I'm reminded of the lines of Robert Frost that President Kennedy loved, "I have promises to keep, and miles to go before I sleep."

I am very grateful for this honor and my heart is very full this evening. In truth, I owe a great deal to two others in our family—my sister Jean, the Ambassador who won the hearts of the Irish people all over again for our family. She made her own indispensable contributions to the peace process, and I know how much she looks forward to working with all of you on the Irish Festival she's planning at the Kennedy Center a year from now.

And, of course, my brother Jack. In fact, it's because of President Kennedy that all of us are here this evening. During his visit to Ireland in 1963, he joined with President de Valera in creating the American Irish Foundation, to encourage closer ties between Irish Americans and Ireland.

A quarter century later, the merger with Tony O'Reilly and Dan Rooney's Ireland Fund created the world's largest private organization supporting constructive change in all of Ireland, North and South. So I say to all of you, well done—Erin Go Bragh!

Jack would have enjoyed this evening. He was always ready to share his love of Ireland and all things Irish, especially with those, like so many of us, who have the map of Ireland on our faces. And he would have admired your skill in turning our ties of heritage and history into practical avenues of peace and prosperity for both our peoples.

The bonds between America and Ireland have flourished from the beginning. There might never have been a United States of America without the timely support from Ireland two centuries ago. As President Kennedy told the Doil on his visit to Ireland in 1963, Irish volunteers played so dominant a role in our Revolutionary Army that Lord Mountjoy lamented in the British Parliament, "We have lost America through the Irish."

It is often forgotten that more than half of the 44 million Americans of Irish descent are Protestant. The impact on America of Scotch-Irish settlers from what is today Northern Ireland was profound. They made and continue to make immense contributions to our country. Andrew Jackson was of Ulster Presbyterian stock, and proud of it. Eleven other Presidents of the United States were of Scotch-Irish heritage, including President Clinton.

Now, in our own day and generation, by facilitating the peace process, Irish Americans have a priceless opportunity to give something back to Ireland in return for all that Ireland has given us.

To the Unionists in Northern Ireland, we say that we are your brothers and sisters, not your enemies. The vast majority of Irish Catholics in America bear you no ill-will. Our hope is that as your ancestors did for America, you will help to lead the way to peace for Northern Ireland.

Many able leaders in the past devised what they thought were lasting solutions for Ireland. We know the high price that Ireland—and Britain, too—have paid because of those failed solutions and the endless seeds of repression, famine, partition and violence they sowed.

It is the clear lesson of that tragic history that no settlement will last unless it is based on equality and mutual respect. These are the twin pillars of peace. The Nationalist community will never accept a role of subservience to Unionism. And the Unionist community will never accept a role of subservience to Nationalism.

We know how far we have already come towards these goals because of the Good Friday Agreement. People on both sides in Northern Ireland understand that progress best of all, because they see the true meaning of peace in their lives and their communities. The ascent to a peaceful future is nearly won, and they know how much is at risk. They are determined not to slide backward into the violent past—and they reject political leadership that would take them back.

We talk of a thirty-year conflict. But its roots go back not 30 years, but 300 years, not one generation but 10 generations, before the Mayflower landed at Plymouth Rock.

The Good Friday Agreement is the best new beginning of all those 300 years, and the people of Ireland and Northern Ireland know it. It was endorsed by decisive votes in both parts of Ireland as a clear mandate to their leaders, and history will not deal kindly with any leader who fails this test, or any others who return to the bomb and the bullet.

The task now facing the Irish and British Governments and political leaders in Northern Ireland is to build greater momentum for full implementation of the Agreement. Clearly, there has been welcome recent progress. Last month, the Northern Ireland Assembly approved the designation of the Northern Ireland Departments and the group of cross-border bodies. Last week, Britain and Ireland signed historic treaties for closer ties.

Further progress in these areas is dependent on full implementation of all aspects of the agreement. We commend the work of General de Chastelain's independent commission on decommissioning, and we look forward to the important meetings taking place this week in Washington and in the weeks ahead.

Inevitably, there will be new difficulties beyond this current one. But implementation of the Agreement offers the best way forward and the best yardstick to judge the policies and actions of all involved. The goal of peace is best served by prompt action on the Agreement. Those who take risks for peace can be assured of timely support by President Clinton, Congress, and the American people.

Not all the guns have remained silent. The carnage inflicted on the town and people of Omagh last August was a grim reminder that, in spite of all that has been achieved, there are still some who subscribe to violence. As recently as yesterday, the cowardly murder of Rosemary Nelson reminds us anew of the urgency of our task. The horror of these atrocities unites all the people of Ireland and Great Britain, and friends of Ireland everywhere, in a determination that such tactics of terrorism will never again be tolerated or condoned.

Sectarian attacks, punishment beatings, and other acts of violence must also stop. They serve only to inflame division, recrimination and pressures to respond in kind. Resort to violence is unacceptable. It is time to say enough is enough is enough is enough. It is time to replace hate with hope.

We see the signs of progress in many ways. There is growing confidence that a new police organization will soon be born in Northern Ireland, capable of attracting and deserving the support of all parts of the community. The Patten Commission has a mandate to produce these new arrangements for fair law enforcement, accountable and to fully representative of the society. Its report is due this summer. So progress on this critical issue is being made.

Prisoners have been released. The British have reduced their troop levels to the lowest point in twenty years. Surely, only those for whom too long a sacrifice has made a stone of the heart can fail to see that the future lies with peace.

We are heartened by the establishment of the Human Rights Commissions and we look forward to close cross-border co-operation on these vital issues. We also count on early progress on the review of the criminal laws, and the dismantling of emergency legislation.

As preparations for the 1999 marching season begin, the situation at Drumcree remains disturbing. We call on all involved to respect and uphold the decisions of the Parades Commission, and to recognize that progress can only be made on the basis of negotiation and agreement.

The Ireland of our dreams is no longer a poor country. The dark side of emigration from Ireland now belongs to history. There is still poverty in Ireland, as there is in America. But we are witnessing one of the great miracles of economics, as the romantic Ireland of the past transforms itself into the high-tech Ireland of the future. Yeats would have appreciated it. In Easter 1916, a terrible beauty was born. At Easter 1999, an entrepreneurial beauty is being born before our very eyes.

But the modern transformation of Ireland also means that we can no longer rely on the naturally renewing ties between Ireland and America created by successive waves of immigrants. We must work together all the harder, therefore, on both sides of the Atlantic to keep our ties strong and vital. The growth of student educational exchanges between our youth can have a primary role—through college Junior Years Abroad, in summer schools, in the Mitchell and Fulbright Scholarships, and in the expansion of Irish Studies in American universities and American Studies in Ireland.

Important though economic performance is, the challenges of the twenty-first century will come increasingly in the realm of the mind, the spirit, and the imagination, where Ireland's strengths are especially great. In an increasingly global world, the contributions of peoples and nations will be measured by how well they enrich our common humanity. Ireland has enormous potential to be one of the brightest stars in this new worldwide firmament, and this challenge is an area in which the American Ireland Fund is playing a vigorous and impressive role.

Starting before World War II, it was the custom of Eamon de Valera to speak to his Irish kinfolk in other lands, especially in the United States, and to tell them year by year on St. Patrick's Day of the progress being made to build the Ireland of our dreams—an Ireland, he said, that "is destined to play, by its example and its inspiration, a great part as a nation among the nations." His dream has long been our dream too, and how beautiful it is to see it coming true, as we dedicate ourselves anew to one of the truly great friendships in human history, the friendship of America and all of Ireland.

In closing, let me say a final word to our friends from Northern Ireland who are here. It is natural that we focus on the problems of the moment. But we do not overlook all that is good about your land—the ability of the people, their remarkable work ethic, their culture, and the vast potential of both communities that will be unleashed by a peaceful future.

We know the achievements of your leadership, which have brought you to this threshold of that future. President Kennedy would call you profiles in courage twice over—for your political courage in facing this extraordinary challenge, and for your very real personal courage in facing physical danger every day.

You've been asked to do a great deal already, and you've done it well. Now, you're asked to do even more, because we know you will not fail. Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God. Thank you very much.●

ANTI-SEMITISM IN RUSSIA

• Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to voice my condemnation of anti-Semitic statements given by Communist Party members of the Russian Duma. I believe that this is an important issue that must be addressed.

The Russian Federation vowed to fight against such discrimination when joining the Organization on Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE). In order to maintain this commitment, the Russian Duma must censure those in its ranks failing to comply with the recognized OSCE resolution.

In the U.S., Congress has joined international organizations and the world community in denouncing the anti-Semitic statements. House Concurrent Resolution 37 asserts that Congress condemns the statements; commends President Boris Yeltsin and other members of the Russian Duma for rebuking the anti-Semitic statements; and reiterates our firm belief that such discrimination is counterproductive to efforts toward true peace and justice. Furthermore, in dialogue with Russian leaders the U.S. has the opportunity to combat this hate-filled rhetoric. I believe it is of the utmost priority that the anti-Semitic statements be given proper attention in discussions with Russian leaders.

I urge my colleagues to join me in not only supporting House Concurrent Resolution 37, but also in signing onto the letter to Vice-President AL GORE raising the issue of anti-Semitism with Prime Minister Primakove.●

50TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY OF BARBARA AND HAROLD HARRIS

• Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I rise today to recognize Barbara and Harold Harris on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Barbara Harris has dedicated herself to educating young people in America in the principles of representative government, imparting to them the virtues of citizenship and democracy, developing in them the values of leadership and civic responsibility.

She has pursued this dedication throughout her career, first as an educator in public schools where her personal interest and commitment shaped the lives of thousands of students, and subsequently as a co-founder of the Congressional Youth Leadership Council and the National Youth Leadership Forum, bold initiatives to carry her message of achievement and citizenship to tens of thousands of the Nation's best and brightest young adults; This Congress and the Nation are indebted to her for these efforts and for her contribution to enhancing our two centuries old experiment in self-government. Throughout this distinguished career, Barbara has benefited from the dedication, strength, and devotion of her beloved husband Harold.

I ask my fellow colleagues to please join me in congratulating Barbara and

Harold on this most auspicious occasion.●

RECOGNITION OF THE OREGON PARTNERSHIP

• Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I rise today in recognition of an extraordinary group of people in my state who are working each day to protect our children and teenagers from the dangers of alcohol and drug abuse.

The Oregon Partnership, led by Executive Director, Judy Cushing, is the only nonprofit statewide network of drug prevention services available to every community—rural and urban—throughout Oregon.

While we may talk about the importance of drug abuse prevention programs on the floor of the Senate, the staff at the Oregon Partnership are turning words into action with very limited federal resources. Their accomplishments and allegiance to the thousands whom they serve, deserves respect and additional federal support.

Formed in 1993, the Partnership is governed by a volunteer, 12-member Board of Directors and has a statewide volunteer base of 500 educators, parents, youth, health professionals, business and faith leaders. Together, they share a common goal—to help the young people of Oregon help themselves and their peers—to lead productive and drug-free lives.

Through these combined efforts, this group of dedicated volunteers is truly a partnership. With 73 coalitions that reach across the state of Oregon, the Partnership empowers communities at a grassroots level through a strong support network of resources including media relations assistance, event planning and training that targets the local needs of each community. In addition, the Partnership's resource center provides communities and families with materials that provide answers to questions about alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. The Partnership also maintains a website that provides details about other available resources, materials and programs.

Recognizing that information is only effective when it is available, the Oregon Partnership houses the only statewide 24-hour helpline with person-to-person contact every day. The HelpLine/YouthLine currently responds to 2,000 calls per month from substance abusers, family members and friends who are searching for referral assistance and information about treatment programs and services within their local area.

What is truly exemplary about the Oregon Partnership, is that it provides these services through its network of volunteers. More than fifty professionally trained volunteers provide confidential counseling, information and local treatment referral for chemical dependence and other addictions. Sixty percent of the volunteers are college and graduate students pursuing counseling careers.

Mr. President, I believe that the Oregon Partnership is an example of what Congress intended for the use of federal drug prevention dollars. Unlike any other program in our state, the Oregon Partnership is the resource that serves as the link that keeps the chain from prevention programs to treatment strong. The Oregon Partnership is our first line of defense and the kind voice at the end of the phone that says, "Yes, we can help."

For these reasons and many more, I would like to take this opportunity to formally thank the directors, members and volunteers of the Oregon Partnership for their dedication and gracious, generous service to the people of Oregon as they work to eliminate drug abuse throughout our state: Judy Cushing, Joyce Adams-Malin, Lloyd Duncan, Jennifer Fogelman, Jill Showalter, Kaleen Deatherage, Penny Labberton, Elizabeth Buskirk, Mary Ellen Apostol, Michelle Kromm, Ericka Zietlow, Jennie Donnelly, Karla Bate-man.●

DEMINE MINING IN NICARAGUA AND HONDURAS

• Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, last night, the Senate passed the Supplemental Appropriations bill, which, among other things, contains funding for hurricane relief for Central America. I am very pleased that the Supplemental also specifies that up to $2,000,000 should be made available for humanitarian demining activities in Nicaragua and Honduras. Hurricane Mitch has greatly exacerbated the problem of anti-personnel landmines in both countries. An estimated 100,000 mines were placed in the Nicaraguan-Honduran border area in the 1980's by Sandanista and Contra soldiers. Demining activities to date have been diligent, but painstakingly slow, as over 70,000 mines continue to threaten the population.

While the problem has certainly been very serious, at least the areas which contained these mines in both countries were reasonably well known. Until Hurricane Mitch, that is. Mudslides and the tremendous volume of water that accompanied the hurricane have carried mines into areas not previously contaminated. Two Nicaraguan civilians were killed last fall by a mine in an area never thought to hold them previously. A U.S. Army study confirmed the new threat in many areas of Nicaragua.

Imagine, Mr. President, the impact on reconstruction efforts in these devastated countries if an American or other foreign national working to rebuild the infrastructure should be injured or killed by a mine.

Other Senators may be surprised to hear that one of the most effective ways to demine these areas is the use of man-dog teams. The explosive material in mines emit a gas, which dogs can be trained to detect. Once a mine is detected, the dog is trained to immediately stop and sit, and conventional demining can begin. Conventional demining amounts to metal detection, a painstakingly slow process which may detect thousands of discarded metal items for every mine found. Most surface area scanned for mines never had any to begin with. But the fear of mines keeps native populations from utilizing the land. Dogs can radically speed the process, and focus the efforts of human deminers into areas which actually contain mines.

The Marshall Legacy Institute, responding to a request from the Inter-American Defense Board, has proposed putting additional man-dog teams into Central America to speed the reconstruction process. The proposal has the support of the Humane Society, and I hope the Administration will give serious consideration to supporting this proposal with these supplemental funds.●

TRIBUTE TO A UTAH NATIVE

Mr. BENNETT. Mr. President, I rise today to note a significant event in the life of a native son of Utah and for those of us here in Washington. After working for over thirty years in government and private service, Anthony T. Cluff is leaving the leadership role he has held at one of the preeminent trade groups in Washington, The Bankers Roundtable.

Few individuals have contributed so much to this city.

Tony worked as an economist at the Treasury Department and later with the American Bankers Association and the Securities Industry Association. Then he spent 8 years on Capitol Hill as a member of the Senate Banking Committee staff and served several years as Minority Staff Director under Senator John Tower of Texas. He also served as a staff member to my father here in the Senate.

For nearly two decades he has steered the association that represents the nation's leading banks—The Bankers Roundtable and its predecessor, the Association of Reserve City Bankers. During his tenure, he has elevated the prominence of the group, enhanced its message and provided his members with important professional guidance. Under his leadership, the Roundtable expanded its range of activities and took leadership roles in interstate banking legislation, payments system regulation, environmental liability reforms and addressing the challenges of new technology for the banking industry. Most of all, Tony imparted to the association and its staff his values of hard work, doing what is right and speaking the truth; these values are reflected in the approaches that the association takes in working with government.

Tony Cluff was born in Logan, Utah, and has maintained his ties to Utah despite spending most of his time in Washington. For though he has many responsibilities here, many of his family and friends remain in Utah and the West.

With long service to his country and to the industry he has represented, Tony is leaving The Bankers Roundtable to pursue other interests that will afford him more time to write, to be with his children and grandchildren and to enjoy life a bit more. He leaves his work "on top," with an unblemished record and with the knowledge that there are many in this city and throughout the country indebted to him.

I want to wish Tony and his family the very best and express my thanks for all that he has done.●

KOSOVO RESOLUTION

● Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, on Tuesday morning, the President made it clear that efforts to achieve a negotiated political solution to the Kosovo crisis had failed and that military action in the form of NATO conducted air strikes employing US military equipment and personnel was imminent. Although I am very disappointed that the President did not include congressional leaders much earlier in this important debate, the fact remains that the President has begun the process, under his authority as Commander-in-Chief, which will lead to air strikes and will put the men and women of our armed forces in harm's way. My vote supporting S. Con. Res. 21 was, therefore cast, for the express purpose of conveying support for our troops who, at this moment, are ready to risk their lives on this very dangerous mission. My vote should not be interpreted as an endorsement of or authorization for any escalation to more extensive involvement, such as the introduction of ground troops in this conflict. Indeed, before any such escalation of our military commitment in this crisis is contemplated, I believe the President should give Congress a more significant role in the debate than we have thus far and address many critical questions regarding US military involvement. Specifically, the President must clearly explain what US national security interests are at stake, the mission objectives of our military action, the cost and duration of the deployment, and overall exit strategy. Failure to consult with Congress on these important issues in a timely fashion would significantly affect the extent of my support for any subsequent, broader US involvement.●

SEVERE DROP IN PORK PRICES

● Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, I ask that two letters be printed in the RECORD. Senator BOND and I worked on an amendment to the supplemental appropriations bill that would help the plight of the hog farmers in the state of Missouri and across the nation.

The Missouri Farm Bureau, the Missouri Pork Producers, the American Farm Bureau, and National Pork Producers Council requested our assistance, and we have responded by working with the Appropriations Committee to get an amendment included in the supplemental appropriations bill that makes $250 million available for farmers struggling to survive the severe drop in pork prices. Under the amendment, the U.S. Department of Agriculture would be provided with $150 million new funds and would be given the authority to use another $100 million, that the USDA already has, to help hog farmers.

It is the understanding of those of us that have offered this amendment today that the majority of the funds available to the Secretary of Agriculture will be used on behalf of our nation's pork farmers. Last year, all of the major commodity groups received disaster assistance, but the hog farmers received nothing.

The letters from the Missouri Farm Bureau, the American Farm Bureau, and the National Pork Producers Council define further the farmers' interest in our amendment.

The letters follow:

MISSOURI FARM BUREAU FEDERATION,
Jefferson City, MO, March 18, 1999.

Hon. JOHN ASHCROFT,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

Hon. CHRISTOPHER BOND,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATORS ASHCROFT AND BOND: On behalf of Missouri Farm Bureau, the state's largest general farm organization, I am writing to express our strong support of your efforts to make additional funding available to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for economic disaster payments to pork producers. We believe that waiving the existing cap on USDA Section 32 funds and appropriating an additional $150 million to Section 32 will pave the way for the Secretary of Agriculture to provide much-needed relief to pork producers.

According to the University of Missouri, cash receipts for the U.S. pork industry are expected to average less than $9 billion in 1998, a reduction of over $4 billion from the 1997 level of $13.2 billion. Although hog prices have recovered from the historic lows experienced over the October 1998-January 1999 period, they remain far below the average cost of production. Economists have now estimated the market failed to reflect normal supply and demand conditions last Fall when hog prices plummeted to 8 cents per pound. Studies indicate that under normal supply and demand conditions prices would have fallen to between $25.87 a hundredweight and $29.41 a hundredweight.

Funds that will be available for direct payments under Section 32 will not compensate pork producers for all the staggering losses experienced in recent months. However, these funds will enable producers to relieve some financial pressure making it easier to survive until profitability returns.

It is critical the Secretary of Agriculture understand the purpose of the pending amendment is to supplement existing Section 32 funds and provide emergency assistance to pork producers. We encourage the Secretary to work with Members of Congress and the agricultural community to develop the guidelines under which the funds will be administered. We do not support using the same parameters used for the recent Small Hog Operator Program.

Thank you for your leadership on this issue.

Sincerely,

CHARLES E. KRUSE,
President.

MARCH 18, 1999.

Hon. JOHN ASHCROFT,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR ASHCROFT: The American Farm Bureau Federation and the National Pork Producers Council commend you for your efforts to help pork producers who have suffered due to the lowest prices since the Great Depression.

We support your amendment to the FY 1999 supplemental appropriations bill, which would provide $150 million to USDA for additional aid to hog farmers. As you well know, U.S. pork producers lost over $2.5 billion in equity in 1998 and are expected to lose another $1 billion in equity in 1999. The nation's pork producers are facing another difficult year due to continued depressed prices and are looking to Congress for direction with regard to the recent economic disaster faced by the U.S. pork industry.

AFBF and NPPC appreciate your efforts on behalf of the nation's pork producers and look forward to working with you on behalf of agriculture.

Sincerely,

DEAN KLECKNER,
President, American Farm Bureau Federation.

JOHN MCNUTT,
President, National
Pork Producers
Council.●

EXTENDING THE PERIOD FOR WHICH CHAPTER 12 OF TITLE 11, UNITED STATES CODE, IS REEN- ACTED

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of H.R. 808, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 808) to extend for 6 additional months the period for which chapter 12 of title 11, United States Code, is reenacted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 808) was considered read the third time and passed.

AMENDING THE SMALL BUSINESS ACT

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to the consideration of H.R. 774, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 774) to amend the Small Business Act to change the conditions of participation and provide an authorization of appropriations for the women's business center program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection to the immediate consideration of the bill?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. BOND. Mr. President, today we in the United States Senate have an opportunity to take an important step in strengthening the Women's Business Center Program at the Small Business Administration. The "Women's Business Center Amendment Act of 1999" authorizes SBA to make grants totaling up to $11 million annually to Women's Business Centers throughout the United States.

During the past decade, the number of women-owned small businesses has exploded. Women-owned small businesses are the fastest growing segment of our nation's business community. Years ago, there was an advertising campaign slogan proclaiming that women "had come a long way." I find that slogan very applicable to the plateau now reached by women entrepreneurs. During this time, women business owners have established themselves as a key component of our small business community, which has been the engine driving our economy during the 1990's.

The research foundation arm of the National Association of Women Business Owners (NAWBO) has conducted studies which show that women no longer are having more trouble than men obtaining bank loans. However, obtaining a loan does not guarantee a business' success. In fact, many small businesses that start out well capitalized end up failing. Success of a small business is usually dependent on the owner's management capabilities. Women's Business Centers offer help to women entrepreneurs who are looking to start a business or who already have a business by providing them with business and education training, including marketing, finance, and management assistance.

For the past three years, I have worked with Senator DOMENICI Senator KERRY, and members of the Committee on Small Business first to save and later to expand the Women's Business Center Program. In 1996, when the Administration sought to zero-out the budget for the program, I helped lead the effort to earmark funds for the program within the SBA FY 1997 budget. Senator DOMENICI, Senator KERRY and I sponsored the "Women's Business Centers Act of 1997," which expanded the program from $4 million to $8 million per year. This bill was incorporated into the "Small Business Reauthorization Act of 1997" (Public Law 105-135).

Last year, I sponsored the "Year 2000 Readiness and Small Business Programs Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998," which included an increase from $8 million to $12 million and made other reforms in the Women's Business Center Program. This bill passed the Senate unanimously; unfortunately, the House of Representatives was not able to act on the bill before Congress adjourned. In light of the pressing demand to expand the authorization for the Women's Business Center Program, I applaud the Chairman of the House Committee on Small Business, JIM TALENT, and the Committee's ranking Democrat, NYDIA VELÁZQUEZ, for their efforts to push through House-passage of the bill so quickly this year.

The "Women's Business Center Amendments Act of 1999" brings us a giant step closer to achieving our goal of having at least one Women's Business Center up and running in each of the 50 states. Under this bill, SBA will be able to continue to fund the existing 35 eligible Centers and provide seed funding to new eligible applicant Centers in states not yet served by the program.

The bill authorizes $11 million for Fiscal Year 2000 for the Women's Business Center Program; however, the Administration has requested $9 million. This summer I intend to work closely with Senator KERRY on legislation to allow Women's Business Centers that have completed their initial three or five year Women's Business Center grants with SBA to apply for another five year grant to allow them to be able to continue to provide the high level of service they are currently delivering to women small business owners. Our initiative may require an increase in SBA's budget for the Women's Business Center Program for FY 2000, and I intend to study very closely the financial needs of the program. As a member of the Appropriations Committee, I will urge my colleagues to support an increase in the FY 2000 budget for the program, if necessary, that will allow it to expand and meet the needs of the growing number of women-owned small businesses. I strongly believe we must pursue this course even if that means pushing for an increase above the amount requested in the President's budget request.

Mr. President, it is critical that the Senate vote to approve the "women's Business Center Act of 1999," so that the Federal government can continue to help make small business ownership a reality for women entrepreneurs. I urge my colleagues to support this important bill.

Mr. KERRY. Mr. President, today the Senate will vote on H.R. 774, the Women's Business Center Amendments Act of 1999. This bill will make small but important changes to the Women's Business Center program. First, similar to the bill that Senator CLELAND and I introduced last Congress, it will raise the authorization for the centers from $8 million to $11 million. Secondly, the bill changes the matching requirements for centers; instead of raising two non-Federal dollars for every Federal dollar in the third, fourth and fifth years, centers will only be required to raise one non-Federal dollar for every one Federal dollar. I support this bill, thought I would prefer that the authorization and funding were increased to $12 million to make it consistent with the legislation our Committee passed last year. This program has been very successful in helping women start and grow businesses and it deserves generous funding.

Women-owned businesses are increasing in number, range, diversity and earning power. They constitute more than one-third of the 20 million small businesses in the United States, and account for some $3 trillion in annual revenues to the economy. Addressing the special needs of women-owned businesses serves not only entrepreneurs, but also the economic strength of this nation as a whole.

This bill further ensures that new and potential women business owners, who otherwise might be excluded from the economic mainstream of society, are afforded every opportunity to succeed through the Small Business Administration's Women's Business Centers program.

Centers are faced with the challenging task of teaching business basics and providing practical support and realistic encouragement. Massachusetts has an excellent example of a Women's Business Center—the Center for Women & Enterprise (CWE) in Boston. Andrea Silbert is a tireless executive director who effectively raises money, forges partnerships and designs thorough training and mentoring programs to help women entrepreneurs. When CWE trains an entrepreneur, she learns how to approach a lender for a loan, learns how to manage her business, and gains an understanding of the hows and whys of marketing. Nationwide, women should have access to this type of quality, comprehensive training.

It is clear that the centers are having a positive social and economic impact on the lives of many women and the communities which they serve. New clients continue to be racially and ethnically diverse: Some 40 percent are members of minority groups. About half are married, and half are single, widowed, divorced, or separated.

While this bill addresses some important issues, I am concerned about the unresolved problem of sustainability. How can established, effective centers that are at the end of the five-year Federal funding cycle continue to provide the same quality of services without the Federal contribution? It's their bread and butter, and it's indispensable leverage that helps centers raise the obligatory matching funding.

Agnes Noonan, executive director of the Women's Economic Self-Sufficiency Team (WESST corp.) in New Mexico recently reinforced this point when she testified before the Senate Committee on Small Business. With an 89 percent growth in the number of women-owned businesses over the last decade and a 161 percent increase in revenues, it is sound economic policy for the Federal government to support programs which facilitate the training and development of women business owners. It follows that we would be wise to safeguard the investment that has been made to date in the infrastructure of women's business centers around the country.

I believe we should find a fair way to let these centers recompute for the base funding. And we should do it this calendar year, before it's too late and the centers have lost their Federal funding and are out of business. I will be introducing a bill to allow Women's Business Centers to recompute for Federal funding in mid-April, when we return from the Easter recess. I hope that my colleagues with strong Women's Business Centers in their states will join me in sponsoring recompetition legislation.

Mr. President, I thank my colleagues for their continuing efforts to expand policies that allow women entrepreneurs to grow and thrive.

Mr. CRAPO. I ask unanimous consent that the bill be considered read a third time, and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the bill be printed at the appropriate place in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 774) was considered read a third time and passed.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—H.J. RES. 26, H.J. RES. 27, H.J. RES. 28

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed en bloc to the consideration of the following resolutions which are at the desk: H.J. Res. 26, H.J. Res. 27, and H.J. Res. 28. I further ask consent that the Senate proceed to their consideration en bloc, and I further ask consent that the joint resolutions be read the third time and passed, the motions to reconsider be laid upon the table, and the above occur en bloc.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REAPPOINTMENT OF BARBER B. CONABLE, JR. TO THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the resolution.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (H.J. Res. 26) providing for the reappointment of Barber B. Conable, Jr. as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

The joint resolution (H.J. Res. 26) was considered read the third time and passed.

REAPPOINTMENT OF DR. HANNA H. GRAY TO THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the next resolution.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (H.J. Res. 27) providing for the reappointment of Dr. Hanna H. Gray as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

The joint resolution (H.J. Res. 27) was considered read the third time and passed.

REAPPOINTMENT OF WESLEY S. WILLIAMS, JR. TO THE BOARD OF REGENTS OF THE SMITHSONIAN INSTITUTION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the next resolution.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A joint resolution (H.J. Res. 28) providing for the reappointment of Wesley S. Williams, Jr. as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution.

The joint resolution (H.J. Res. 28) was considered read the third time and passed.

ORDER FOR STAR PRINT

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the report to accompany S. 92 be star printed with the changes that are at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

EXPRESSING THE SUPPORT OF THE SENATE FOR THE MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES WHO ARE ENGAGED IN MILITARY OPERATIONS AGAINST THE FEDERAL REPUBLIC OF YUGOSLAVIA

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the resolution submitted earlier today by Senator LOTT regarding support of troops engaged in military operations in Yugoslavia be considered agreed to, the preamble be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that all Senators be added as cosponsors of the resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The resolution (S. Res. 74) was agreed to.

The preamble was agreed to.

The resolution, with its preamble, reads as follows:

Whereas the President has authorized United States participation in NATO military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia;

Whereas up to 22,000 members of the Armed Forces are presently involved in operations in and around the Balkans region with the active participation of NATO and other coalition forces; and

Whereas the Senate and the American people have the greatest pride in the members of the Armed Forces and strongly support them: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Senate supports the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia and recognizes their professionalism, dedication, patriotism, and courage.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

EXECUTIVE CALENDAR

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to executive session to consider the following nominations on the Executive Calendar: Nos. 17, 19, 20, and 22.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAPO. I further ask unanimous consent the nominations be confirmed, the motions to consider be laid upon the table, the President be immediately notified of the Senate's action, and the Senate then return to legislative session.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The nominations considered and confirmed en bloc are as follows:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

William Lacy Swing, of North Carolina, a Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service, Class of Career Minister, to be Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary of the United States of America to the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Robert A. Seiple, of Washington, to be Ambassador at Large for International Religious Freedom.

The following-named Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service, Class of Career Minister, for the personal rank of Career Ambassador in recognition of especially distinguished service over a sustained period:

Mary A. Ryan, of Texas

FOREIGN SERVICE

The following-named Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service of the Department of Agriculture for promotion in the Senior Foreign Service to the classes indicated: Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service of the United States of America, Class of Career Minister:

Warren J. Child

Career Members of the Senior Foreign Service of the United States of America, Class of Minister-Counselor:

Mary E. Revelt

John H. Wyss

The following-named Career Members of the Foreign Service of the Department of Agriculture for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service to the class indicated: Career Members of the Senior Foreign Service of the United States of America, Class of Counselor:

Weyland M. Beeghly

Larry M. Senger

Randolph H. Zeitner

The following-named Career Member of the Foreign Service for promotion into the Senior Foreign Service, and for appointment as Consular Officer and Secretary in the Diplomatic Service, as indicated: Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service of the United States of America, Class of Counselor:

Danny J. Sheesley

LEGISLATIVE SESSION

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume legislative session.

ORDERS FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1999

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it stand in adjournment until 9 a.m. on Thursday, March 25. I further ask that on Thursday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of the proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the Senate then resume consideration of S. Con. Res. 20, the concurrent budget resolution.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. CRAPO. For the information of all Senators, the Senate will reconvene on Thursday at 9 a.m. and immediately resume consideration of the budget resolution, with 10 hours remaining for consideration. Members should once again expect a busy day of debate and votes on remaining amendments to the budget bill, with a possibility of completing action on this legislation by late Thursday night. The cooperation of all Members will again be necessary in order to ensure a smooth and orderly process during the budget debate. The leader would also like to announce that if the Senate completes action on the budget resolution Thursday night, there would be no rollcall votes on Friday.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. CRAPO. Mr. President, I now ask unanimous consent that the Senate resume consideration of the budget resolution to allow the consideration of two amendments to be offered by Senator GRAHAM, and following his remarks, the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2000

The Senate continued with the consideration of the bill.

Mr. GRAHAM addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Florida is recognized.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I have two amendments that I will submit. First is in the form of a sense-of-the-Senate amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 164

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate that funds recovered from any Federal tobacco-related litigation should be set-aside for the purpose of first strengthening the Medicare trust fund and second to fund a Medicare prescription drug benefit)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Florida [Mr. GRAHAM] proposes an amendment numbered 164.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. —. SENSE OF THE SENATE CONCERNING RECOVERY OF FUNDS BY THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT IN TOBACCO-RELATED LITIGATION.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This section may be cited as the "Federal Tobacco Recovery and Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit Resolution of 1999".

(b) FINDINGS.—The Senate makes the following findings:

(1) The President, in his January 19, 1999 State of the Union address—

(A) announced that the Department of Justice would develop a litigation plan for the Federal Government against the tobacco industry;

(B) indicated that any funds recovered through such litigation would be used to strengthen the medicare program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.); and

(C) urged Congress to pass legislation to include a prescription drug benefit in the medicare program.

(2) The traditional medicare program does not include most outpatient prescription drugs as part of its benefit package.

(3) Prescription drugs are a central element in improving quality of life and in routine health maintenance.

(4) Prescription drugs are a key component to early health care intervention strategies for the elderly.

(5) Eighty percent of retired individuals take at least 1 prescription drug every day.

(6) Individuals 65 years of age or older represent 12 percent of the population of the United States but consume more than 1/3 of all prescription drugs consumed in the United States.

(7) Exclusive of health care-related premiums, prescription drugs account for almost 1/3 of the health care costs and expenditures of elderly individuals.

(8) Approximately 10 percent of all medicare beneficiaries account for nearly 50 percent of all prescription drug spending by the elderly.

(9) Research and development on new generations of pharmaceuticals represent new opportunities for healthier, longer lives for our Nation's elderly.

(10) Prescription drugs are among the key tools in every health care professional's medical arsenal to help combat and prevent the onset, recurrence, or debilitating effects of illness and disease.

(11) While Federal litigation against tobacco companies will take time to develop and execute, Congress should continue to work to address the immediate need among the elderly for access to affordable prescription drugs.

(12) Treatment of tobacco-related illness is estimated to cost the medicare program approximately $10,000,000,000 every year.

(13) In 1998, 50 States reached a settlement with the tobacco industry for tobacco-related illness in the amount of $206,000,000,000.

(14) Recoveries from Federal tobacco-related litigation, if successful, will likely be comparable to or exceed the dollar amount recovered by the States under the 1998 settlement.

(15) In the event Federal tobacco-related litigation is undertaken and is successful, funds recovered under such litigation should first be used for the purpose of strengthening the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and second to finance a medicare prescription drug benefit.

(16) The scope of any medicare prescription drug benefit should be as comprehensive as possible, with drugs used in fighting tobacco-related illnesses given a first priority.

(17) Most Americans want the Medicare program to cover the costs of prescription drugs.

(C) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that funds recovered under any tobacco-related litigation commenced by the Federal Government should be used first for the purpose of strengthening the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund and second to fund a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, this resolution—"The Federal Tobacco Recovery and Medicare Prescription Drug Benefit Resolution of 1999"—urges the Administration to set aside funds from any Federal tobacco-related litigation for the primary purpose of strengthening the solvency of the Medicare Trust Fund and second to help pay for a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

In the President's January 19, 1999 State of the Union Address he announced that the Justice Department was preparing a litigation plan to take tobacco companies to court and that the funds recovered from such an effort would be used to strengthen the Medicare program.

The details of the Justice Department's litigation plan are still not known at this time. However, the United States Senate should be on record as to how any funds recovered should be spent.

It is my belief that our first priority must be to shore up the Medicare Trust Fund which, by the most recent estimates of the Congressional Budget Office, shows the program going into insolvency in 2010.

The second use of these funds should then go to help defray the costs of a Medicare prescription drug benefit.

While this resolution states clearly as to how these funds ought to be spent, a few things must be made clear:

1. This resolution must not impede our efforts to address the immediate need among seniors for access to affordable prescription drugs. We must do something now and must not use this resolution as an excuse not to act now.

2. The funding mechanism for this benefit is not a tax, is not a payroll increase, is not a premium increase and does not tap into the "surplus".

Some of you might ask the question, "Why should we look to the tobacco industry to fund a Medicare prescription drug benefit?"

The answer to this question is clear. Tobacco companies produce a product that is responsible for millions of deaths and billions of dollars worth of tobacco-related illness in this country. Taxpayers should not be forced to pay for what the tobacco industry is primarily responsible for.

Medicare alone is estimated to incur more than $10 billion in expenses for the treatment of tobacco-related illness every year. This figure reflects what Medicare covers. What this figure does not reflect is the amount of money paid out of the pockets of beneficiaries for all the outpatient prescription drugs needed for the treatment of tobacco-related illness that Medicare does not cover. The types of drugs I am referring to include:

Zyban—The only prescription drug available to assist smokers in quitting. This would be a key element in a smoking cessation and broader prevention strategy.

Bronchodilators—used in the treatment of emphysema.

Nitroglycerin—used in the treatment of angina pectoris (reduction in blood flow to the heart).

Cholestyramine and Colestipol—used in the treatment of high cholesterol.

Calcium Channel Blockers/Diuretics/Beta Blockers/Vasodilators—used in the treatment of high blood pressure.

The use of tobacco products and the cost of treatment is draining the Medicare program. But it is costing Medicare beneficiaries their lives.

According to the American Cancer Society, individuals who smoke have double the heart attack risk of non-smokers. Cigarette smoking is the biggest risk factor for sudden cardiac death. And smokers who have a heart attack are more likely to die and die suddenly (within an hour) than are non-smokers.

These are real costs that real people face every day.

Combine these sobering facts with the overwhelming desire among nearly all our colleagues, the Nation's leading policy experts, and most importantly, beneficiaries of the program, that prescription drugs must be included in any reform of the Medicare program. The need for prescription drugs is undeniable. Just listen to some of the facts:

80 percent of retired persons take a prescription drug every day.

Annual drug expenditures for the average Medicare beneficiary are approximately $600.

While individuals 65 or older represent 12 percent of the U.S. population, they consume more than one-third of all prescription drugs.

Excluding the cost of premiums, drugs account for almost one-third of the elderly's health costs and expenditures.

Approximately 10 percent of Medicare beneficiaries account for nearly half of all drug spending among the elderly.

By 2007, the Health Care Financing Administration projects that drug costs will make up over 8 percent of total health care spending (in 1996 this figure was 6 percent).

Combine this need with the fact that in a recent study published in the journal Health Affairs, approximately one third of all Medicare beneficiaries have no prescription drug coverage at all.

And the two-thirds of Medicare beneficiaries that reportedly do have coverage (through supplemental programs such as Medigap or employee-based retirement health plans) have coverage that is not uniform, often limited, and frequently very expensive.

A recent study conducted by the League of Women Voters and the Kaiser Family Foundation, in which over 6,500 of current and future Medicare beneficiaries were interviewed on their views of reforming the Medicare program, found that after fraud, waste, and abuse, the number one concern for beneficiaries is access to affordable prescription drugs.

Advances in biotechnology and genetic engineering have brought about a true revolution in the care and treatment of patients. What once seemed science fiction in 1965 is today's scientific reality.

In today's, and tomorrow's, health care system, prescription drugs are an integral part of every health care professional's medical arsenal.

But these advances in technology have come at a price. A price that, for many seniors, is not affordable. Or even worse, forces them to make decisions nobody should face.

Decisions about purchasing drugs or paying the rent. Or skipping doses of a prescription or reducing the dosage to make it last longer—decisions that can often have serious health consequences.

What good are the best drugs in the world if nobody can afford them or they bankrupt people trying to do the right thing?

This is where this resolution makes a difference. This resolution says that we ought to find a way to pay for prescription drugs. To pay for them in a manner that is fiscally responsible.

As I noted earlier, this resolution does not guarantee a Medicare prescription drug benefit since it is contingent upon a successful litigation effort by the Justice Department.

And, the size and scope of a benefit funded by such a recovery would be dependent on the size of the recovery.

To give my colleagues a sense of the potential size of a successful litigation effort, and using the recent State tobacco settlement as a benchmark, we could expect a Federal lawsuit that could match or exceed the $206 billion settlement of the States.

So this is no small undertaking and has the potential to have far reaching, positive consequences for the Medicare program.

This resolution would also prioritize the types of prescription drugs that ought to be funded. First priority would go to funding drugs used in the treatment of tobacco-related illness. If additional funds are available, the range of drugs could then be expanded.

I want to re-iterate that this resolution should not be used to take this distinguished body off the hook for addressing the immediate need among seniors for affordable prescription drugs.

We must continue to work to find a way to handle this problem now. Our resolution, if adopted, would provide momentum for this effort and for the Justice Department's litigation efforts.

Finally, this resolution has the support of the nation's largest senior membership organization, the American Association of Retired Persons.

I urge my colleagues to support this resolution.

Mr. President, last week, we had very heated debate on the question of whether the Federal Government should designate a portion of the tobacco settlements received by the 50 individual States and require them to use those designated funds for certain specific purposes. By more than a 2-to-1 margin, the Senate rejected that proposal.

There were a number of reasons why the Senate rejected that proposal. I think they were strong and compelling reasons. They included the fact that the States had initiated these litigations against the tobacco industry without the assistance of the Federal Government, that the States were acting responsibly in utilizing the tobacco funds; and I believe a persuasive reason was the fact that the Federal Government announced its intention to initiate its own litigation against the tobacco industry for its loss of revenue through programs such as Medicare to tobacco-related diseases.

This amendment builds upon that debate of last week. It builds, also, upon a statement that was made by the President in his January 19 State of the Union Address in which the President stated that the Justice Department was preparing a litigation plan to take tobacco companies to court, and that the funds recovered from that effort would be used to strengthen the Medicare program. The details of the Justice Department litigation plan are still unknown at this time. However, I think it is appropriate that the Senate should be on record as to how these funds, when recovered, should be utilized.

It is my belief that the first priority must be to strengthen the Medicare system, and that the most appropriate method of achieving that objective is to provide that the first call of any recovery from a Federal tobacco litigation would be to replace those funds in the Medicare trust fund that have been excessively expended in order to treat tobacco-related afflictions.

Second is that those funds should be used to commence a Medicare prescription drug benefit. Why is it appropriate that the second call for these funds should be to fund a prescription medication benefit? These reasons include that a substantial amount of the expenditures for tobacco-related diseases end up having a pharmacological cost, and some of the most used and most expensive medications are those which are related to the treatment through prescription medication of tobacco-related diseases. Zyban, for instance, is the only prescription drug available to assist smokers in quitting their addiction. Other drugs that relate to bronchitis, used for treatment in emphysema, nitroglycerin, and used for treatment of angina pectoris, a disease frequently associated with tobacco use, are examples of the types of prescription medications that are utilized in large part because of a tobacco affliction. The use of tobacco products is costing Medicare by draining its resources. But it is costing the Medicare beneficiaries potentially their lives.

According to the American Cancer Society, individuals who smoke have double the heart attack risk of non-smokers. Therefore, they are more likely to require the medication associated with heart disease. Cigarette smoking is the biggest risk factor for sudden cardiac death. Smokers who had a heart attack are more likely to die, and die suddenly, than non-smokers. These are real costs, these are real people whose lives are at stake.

Mr. President, just listen to some of the facts in terms of the use by our Medicare beneficiary population of prescription medication—medication which today is not covered by the Medicare program. Eighty percent of retired persons take at least one prescribed drug every day.

Annual drug expenditures for the average Medicare beneficiary is $600. While individuals 65 or older represent only 12 percent of the United States population, they consume more than one-third of all prescription drugs. Excluding the cost of premiums, drugs account for almost one-third of the elderly's health costs and expenditures. Approximately 10 percent of Medicare beneficiary accounts for nearly half of all drug spending among the elderly.

By the year 2007, the Health Care Finance Administration projects that drug costs will make up over eight percent of total health care spending. This compares to 6 percent as recently as 1996.

Mr. President, these are all reasons why it is appropriate that as the Federal Government commences its litigation to recover the cost that the Federal Government has expended through programs such as Medicare, that the first use of these funds should be to strengthen Medicare, and the second use should be to commence the funding of a prescription drug benefit.

This proposal is receiving the strong support of groups which represent the interests of older Americans. The AARP has officially endorsed the concept of utilizing recoveries from the tobacco litigation by the Federal Government for purposes of strengthening Medicare and then providing for a prescription drug benefit.

The American Association of Retired Persons is a strong voice in support of this proposal.

Mr. President, I urge that my colleagues give their support in adopting this amendment.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD a letter from the American Association of Retired Persons.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

AARP,

Washington, DC, March 24, 1999.

Hon. BOB GRAHAM,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR GRAHAM: Thank you for the opportunity to review the "Affordable Prescription Drugs for Seniors Resolution" that you plan to offer during the Senate's debate of the FY 2000 Budget Resolution. I want to commend you for your leadership in calling the Congress's attention to the issue of the high cost of prescription drugs and the difficulties older Americans have because outpatient prescription drugs are not included in Medicare's benefit package.

Since Medicare was created over 30 years ago, prescription drugs have become more and more central to the delivery of high quality health care. As a result most health insurance plans for workers cover prescription drugs. Medicare, however, does not. A huge challenge before us is to find an affordable way to provide prescription drug coverage to Medicare beneficiaries in whatever health care plan they choose.

Your resolution presents a way to help finance a prescription drug benefit through earmarking a portion of funds recovered from any tobacco-related federal litigation. AARP views this idea as a constructive effort to address a very serious problem for millions of Medicare beneficiaries. For years, the Medicare program has borne the cost of caring for people with tobacco-related illnesses. It, therefore, seems fair and reasonable that this health insurance program get a share of funds recovered from a Justice Department lawsuit to fund a needed benefit. However, as you point out, your proposal is contingent upon successful federal litigation.

Providing Medicare beneficiaries with a prescription drug benefit is an important issue for AARP and we are pleased that your resolution begins to address this. We look forward to working with you and other Members of Congress on a bipartisan basis to investigate approaches for providing a Medicare prescription drug benefits and to address the high cost of prescription drugs. Please feel free to contact me or have your staff contact Tricia Smith or Mila Becker of our Federal Affairs Health Team at (202) 434-3770.

Sincerely,

HORACE B. DEETS,
Executive Director.

AMENDMENT NO. 165

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate that the Congress and the President should offset inappropriate emergency funding from fiscal year 1999 in fiscal year 1999.)

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I send an amendment to the desk, which is cosponsored by Senators SNOWE and FEINGOLD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CRAPO). The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Florida (Mr. GRAHAM), for himself, and Mr. FEINGOLD, and Ms. SNOWE, proposes an amendment numbered 165.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of title III, insert the following:
SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON OFFSETTING INAPPROPRIATE EMERGENCY SPENDING.

It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that—

(1) some emergency expenditures made at the end of the 105th Congress for fiscal year 1999 were inappropriately deemed as emergencies; and

(2) Congress and the President should identify these inappropriate expenditures and fully pay for these expenditures during the fiscal year in which they will be incurred.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. President, we learned last year that five years of fiscal austerity and economic growth had transformed a $290 billion deficit into the first budget surplus in more than a generation.

I am dedicated to strengthening the nation's long-term economic prospects through prudent fiscal policy.

This discipline helped to create favorable economic, fiscal, demographic and political conditions to address the long-term Social Security and Medicare deficits that will accompany the aging of our nation's population.

These deficits threaten to undo the hard work and fiscal discipline of recent years as well as undermine our potential for future economic growth.

But that success did not give the Congress license to return to the free-spending ways of the past—especially since 100 percent of the surplus was the result of surpluses in the Social Security Trust Fund.

We owe it to our children and grandchildren to save this money until Social Security's long-term solvency is assured.

Unfortunately, Mr. President, the last legislative action of the last Congress made a mockery of our promises to be fiscally disciplined.

In the waning hours of last fall's budget negotiations, we passed a $532 billion Omnibus Appropriations Bill.

Included in that was $21.4 billion in so-called "emergency" spending.

Since that $21.4 billion could be approved without offsets, that funding came right out of the surplus—reducing it from $80 billion to $59 billion.

That action would have been more palatable had all of the supposedly "emergency" funds been allocated for true emergencies.

But while some of the $21.4 billion was used to fund what had traditionally been accepted as emergencies—necessary expenditures for sudden, urgent or unforeseen temporary needs—much of it was not.

For example, the Y2K computer problem received $3.35 billion.

And $100 million went to a new visitors center at the Capitol.

These projects might be worthy. They might be mandatory.

But to label them "emergency" threatens to undermine efforts to safeguard the surplus of Social Security.

Even worse, this budgetary slight of hand was also used to increase funding for projects that had been funded in the regular appropriations process.

For example, after previously allocating $270.5 billion for defense, Congress provided an additional $8.3 billion in "emergency" defense spending in the Omnibus Appropriations Bill.

And that's not all.

Because these pseudo-emergency spending provisions were included in an Omnibus Appropriations Conference Report, they could not be removed without sending the entire funding package down to defeat.

Members of both Houses were left with an unpalatable choice: shut down the government, or steal from our children's and grandchildren's Social Security surplus.

Mr. President, that's not a choice. It's a national disgrace.

It is vital that we institute an emergency spending process that responds quickly to true emergencies without opening the door to misuse.

We must establish procedural safeguards to deter future Congresses from misusing the emergency spending process.

We should not attach any emergency spending to non-emergency legislation or designate emergency spending measures that do not meet the definition of an emergency.

Mr. President, in February I was pleased to join Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE of Maine in introducing legislation that will protect our newly won budget surplus from false, emergency budgetary alarms.

We proposed three reforms.

First, to create a point of order, similar to the Byrd Rule, that prevents non-emergency items from being included in emergency spending.

This will enable members to challenge the validity of any individual item that is designated an emergency without defeating the entire emergency spending bill.

Second, to require a 60-vote supermajority in the Senate for passage of any bill that contains emergency spending, whether it is designated an "emergency" spending bill or not.

This will encourage Congress to either pay for supplemental appropriations or make sure they represent a true emergency.

And third, to make all proposed emergency spending subject to a 60-vote point of order in the Senate.

This rule will help to prevent non-emergency items from ever being included in emergency legislation.

But even if passed, our legislation will not be the total cure for Congress' budding addiction to emergency spending.

In the short term, it is vital that we immediately replenish the surplus with the funds that were "borrowed" last fall.

On the day after passage of the Omnibus Appropriations Act—October 21, 1998—I wrote the President and asked that the federal government commit itself to restoring funding the non-traditional "emergency" items during this fiscal year.

I did not receive a response.

So in January, I again wrote to the President and made the same request for a commitment to fiscal discipline.

Once again, I have not received a response.

And on January 18, 1999, Roll Call published an opinion piece of mine in which I asked the President to address this subject in his State of the Union address.

He did not.

Fortunately, the United States Constitution says that the Congress need not wait for the President.

We can—and must—take the steps necessary to restore the budget surplus to its previous levels.

And we must do that now, before the urge to spend the surplus becomes a full-fledged addiction.

To that end, tonight I am introducing a Sense of the Senate Resolution that starts the process of rectifying last fall's budgetary process.

Its message is simple: Congress and the President should restore those funds that were inappropriately deemed as emergencies and taken from the budget surplus.

Mr. President, as we debate the first post-deficit Budget Resolution in more than a quarter-century, it is vital that the American people know that we will maintain the fiscal discipline that has helped to produce our favorable economic climate.

Fiscal responsibility means taking responsibility for our mistakes—and ensuring that we do not misuse our emergency spending powers.

The next Congress that leaves the door wide open to raids on the surplus will be the one that passes on more debt—and a less secure Social Security system—to our children and grandchildren.

Mr. President, we have heard much today—and I particularly commend you and Senator GRAMS of Minnesota for the amendment that you just offered—on the subject of locking up the non-Social Security surplus in excess of that which is currently anticipated. We have considered several proposals throughout the day today. I anticipate other proposals of a similar nature will be considered tomorrow. I believe there is a strong resolve among the Members of the Senate to protect both the Social Security surplus and the non-Social Security surplus and to use it for appropriate purposes.

I might say personally that I believe the first use of the money should be to reduce the enormous national debt that we have accumulated over the last 30 years, and I will advocate that be the priority purpose. Unless we first direct our attention to protecting the surplus itself, there won't be anything left, no matter how tightly it is contained in a lockbox to be used for any of these desirable ends. So our first goal must be to focus on how can we protect the surplus itself, and then see that the surplus is used for appropriate purposes.

Recently, Senator OLYMPIA SNOWE and myself introduced legislation which was intended to close one of the loopholes which you, Mr. President, have just alluded to. That was a major source of leakage of the surplus as recently as October of last year. That was the inappropriate use of the so-called "emergency appropriations account." Certainly there are emergencies. We have a policy that where there are emergencies defined as being "unexpected events," particularly of a scale that is beyond the capacity of a local community to appropriately respond without Federal assistance, that for those true emergencies we do not require that there be an offset in spending, or a tax increase to pay for them. The problem is that last October an appropriate public policy for true emergencies was stretched out of recognition by having many other items which had never in the past been thought of as emergencies included in that emergency account, and suddenly over $21 billion was expended. It was expended in a way, Mr. President, because it was included in a conference committee report that was not subject to amendment that was no way to excise, to apply a scalpel to cut out those inappropriate items.

The amendment that we are offering in the form of a sense of a Senate would commit this Senate to first analyst those items in that $21 billion emergency expenditure that is outside the traditional definition of an emergency, and we would commit ourselves in this fiscal year and in the next two fiscal years when expenditures of those funds are provided for pursuant to our action in October to find offsets. That is, we would not continue to treat them as emergencies. Just because we made a serious error last fall, we are not committed to continuing to repeat that error this year, next year, and two years from now.

Let me just illustrate with this graph why I think focusing on protecting the surplus is so critical.

In 1998, we had a total Social Security surplus of the $99 billion. The first thing that came off the top of that $99 billion was that we had a $27 billion deficit in the non-Social Security account. The first use of the Social Security surplus in 1998 was to pay the deficit, and the rest of the budget. Then in addition to that, in 1998, we designated $3 billion as emergency outlays, which meant that we didn't have to either find new taxes to pay for them, or cut spending someplace else to replace these emergency expenditures. They came out of the surplus. What started out as a $99 billion surplus ended up as a $69 billion surplus. So effectively, $30 billion that should have gone to protect the Social Security fund was drained away to pay for deficit elsewhere in the Federal Government, and for emergency accounts.

In 1999, we start with a Social Security surplus of $127 billion. Again, the first call on that was to pay the deficit in the rest of the Federal Government, which, fortunately, has significantly shrunk from $27 billion year before to $3 billion in the year 1999. But what ballooned was the emergency account. This is where that October raid on the surplus showed up in our 1999 account with a $13 billion hit against the Social Security surplus.

Last year we lost $16 billion that should have gone to protect the solvency of the Social Security fund and was used to fund other Federal deficits, emergencies, a significant proportion of which were emergencies in name only.

We have already started to "cook the cake" for the year 2000 where we are projecting a non-Social Security deficit of $5 billion.

I was pleased with some of the remarks that our Presiding Officer made earlier this evening in which he indicated that maybe when the next estimate of our national fiscal position based on the strength of the economy is made we will in fact not face this $5 billion deficit in fiscal year 2000. I hope his prophesy comes to be.

But we also have already added $5 billion by the emergency, so-called emergency, expenditures of October of 1998, to the year 2000 fiscal year. So, with a $138 billion Social Security surplus, we are going to be reducing it by $10 billion to pay off deficits elsewhere and these emergency accounts.

So the amendment we are offering states that we commit ourselves that we will first closely scrutinize those items which were listed as an emergency in October of 1998, and for those that do not meet the test of being a true emergency, that we will commit ourselves to find appropriate offsets to pay for those emergencies and not use them as a further raid against the Social Security system and against the surplus which is to provide for its solvency.

Mr. President, I anticipate that not only on this legislation but on other legislation which will be presented by the budget and the Governmental Affairs Committee, we will be considering some fundamental changes in the way in which we deal with emergency appropriations so we will not ever repeat the larceny against the Social Security trust fund and against the surpluses which support it that occurred late at night in October of 1998.

I urge my colleagues to take the first step towards overcoming the indignity that we committed to the Social Security system last October by committing ourselves to restore to the Social Security surplus those expenditures which were inappropriately listed as emergencies.

I urge the adoption of this amendment when it comes before the Senate tomorrow.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Jersey.

AMENDMENTS, NOS. 166 THROUGH 175

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I send the following amendments to the desk. I ask that they all be considered as offered and laid aside and that related statements be printed in the RECORD at the appropriate place.

The amendments are as follows: One from Senator LAUTENBERG, one from Senator SCHUMER, two from Senator

FEINSTEIN, one from Senator HARRY REID of Nevada, two from Senator MURRAY, one from Senator HOLLINGS, and two from Senator BOXER.

I ask, as I earlier said, they be considered as offered and laid aside.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the Senator's request for consideration of the amendments which were just read is agreed to. The amendments will then be laid aside.

The amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 166

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate on saving Social Security and Medicare, reducing the public debt, and targeting tax relief to middle-income working families.)

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON SAVING SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE, REDUCING THE PUBLIC DEBT, AND TARGETING TAX RELIEF TO MIDDLE-INCOME WORKING FAMILIES.

It is the sense of the Senate that the provisions of this resolution assume that—

(1) Congress should adopt a budget that—

(A) reserves the entire off-budget surplus for Social Security each year; and

(B) over 15 years, like the President's budget, reserves—

(i) 77 percent, or $3,600,000,000 of the total surplus for Social Security and Medicare;

(ii) 23 percent, or $1,000,000,000 of the surplus for—

(I) investments in key domestic priorities such as education, the environment, and law enforcement;

(II) investments in military readiness; and

(III) pro-savings tax cuts for working families;

(2) any tax cuts or spending increases should not be enacted before the solvency of Social Security is assured and Medicare solvency is extended twelve years;

(3) the 77 percent or $3,600,000,000 of the total surplus for Social Security and Medicare should be used to reduce the publicly held debt; and

(4) any tax cuts should be targeted to provide tax relief to middle-income working families and should not provide disproportionate tax relief to people with the highest incomes.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, earlier we considered an amendment that asked the Senate to endorse every line in the President's budget.

This amendment asks the Senate to endorse only the general principles of that budget and its proposals for using projected budget surpluses.

The President's budget calls for no net increase in spending and no net tax cut until we have acted to reform Social Security. It is vital that we make Social Security our top priority so that the program will still be strong when our children and grandchildren are ready to retire.

The amendment I have now proposed would address what many describe as the President's other budget, his framework for using projected budget surpluses once we have taken care of Social Security.

This amendment lays out the President's overall principles, which are designed to prepare our Nation for the next century.

The amendment says that Congress should reserve the entire off-budget surplus for Social Security and, over 15 years, allocate: 77 percent or $3.6 trillion of the total surplus for Social Security and Medicare; and 23 percent of the surplus, or $1 trillion, for investments in key domestic priorities, such as education, the environment, and law enforcement; investments in military readiness, and pro-savings tax cuts for working families.

The amendment also says that tax cuts or spending increases should not be enacted before the solvency of Social Security is assured and Medicare solvency is extended 12 years.

In addition, the amendment states that the 77 percent or $3.6 trillion of the total surplus for Social Security and Medicare should be used to reduce publicly held debt. That would provide great dividends for our economy. Reducing the future debt burden and future interest costs would essentially provide a tax cut for our children.

And, finally, the amendment says that any tax cuts should be targeted to provide tax relief to middle-income working families and should not provide disproportionate tax relief to people with the highest incomes.

Mr. President, this framework emphasizes saving for the future. It's fiscally responsible. It would help protect Social Security and Medicare. And it calls for tax relief and investments where they are most needed.

The amendment does not endorse every dot and comma of the President's budget. But it would endorse the overall priorities of that proposal.

I hope my colleagues will support it.

AMENDMENT NO. 167

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate that the COPS Program should be reauthorized)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON REAUTHORIZING THE COPS PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) as of December 1998, the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Program had awarded grants for the hiring or redeployment to the nation's streets of more than 92,000 police officers and sheriff's deputies;

(2) according to the United States Bureau of Justice Statistics, the Nation's violent crime rate declined almost 7 percent during 1997 and has fallen more than 21 percent since 1993; and

(3) enhanced community policing has significantly contributed to this decline in the violent crime rate.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Program should be reauthorized in order to provide continued Federal funding for the hiring, deployment, and retention of community law enforcement officers.

AMENDMENT NO. 168

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate regarding school construction grants, and reducing school sizes and class sizes)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE.

It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that funds will be provided for legislation—

(1) to provide 50-50 matching grants to build new schools, and to reduce school sizes and class sizes, so that—

(A)(i) kindergarten through grade 5 schools serve not more than 500 students;

(ii) grade 6 through grade 8 schools serve not more than 750 students; and

(iii) grade 9 through grade 12 schools serve not more than 1,500 students; and

(B)(i) kindergarten through grade 6 classes have not more than 20 students per teacher; and

(ii) grade 7 through grade 12 classes have not more than 28 students per teacher; and

(2) to enable students to meet academic achievement standards, and to enable school districts to provide remedial education and terminate the practice of social promotion.

AMENDMENT NO. 169

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate on the social promotion of elementary and secondary school students)

At the end of title III, add the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON SOCIAL PROMOTION.

It is the sense of the Senate that the assumptions underlying the functional totals in this resolution assume that funds will be provided for legislation—

(1) to provide remedial educational and other instructional interventions to assist public elementary and secondary school students in meeting achievement levels; and

(2) to terminate practices which advance students from one grade to the next who do not meet State achievement standards in the core academic curriculum.

AMENDMENT NO. 170

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate regarding social security "notch babies")

At the appropriate place, insert:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING SOCIAL SECURITY NOTCH BABIES.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) the Social Security Amendments of 1977 (Public Law 95-216) substantially altered the way social security benefits are computed;

(2) those amendments resulted in disparate benefits depending upon the year in which a worker becomes eligible for benefits; and

(3) those individuals born between the years 1917 and 1926, and who are commonly referred to as "notch babies" receive benefits that are lower than those retirees who were born before or after those years.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution and legislation enacted pursuant to this resolution assume that the Congress should allow workers who attain age 65 after 1981 and before 1992 to choose either lump sum payments over 4 years totaling $5,000 or an improved benefit computation formula under a new 10-year rule governing the transition to the changes in benefit computation rules enacted in the Social Security Amendments of 1977.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the Social Security notch causes 11 million Americans born between the years 1917-1926 to receive less in Social Security benefits than Americans born outside the notch years.

The notch inequity is a direct result of changes made by Congress in 1977 to the Social Security benefits formula.

It is important that we restore the confidence of the notch victims and show them that we in Congress will accept responsibility for any error that was made.

While we must save Social Security for the future, we have an obligation to those who receive less than individuals who were fortunate enough to have been born just days before or after the notch period.

Many notch babies, through no fault of their own, receive more than $200 less per month than their neighbors.

It is time for us to right this wrong. I recently introduced legislation—the Notch Fairness Act of 1999—that proposes using any projected budget surplus to pay a lump sum benefit to notch babies.

While we have a surplus, let's fix the notch problem once and for all and restore the confidence of the millions of notch babies across this land.

Government has an obligation to be fair. I don't think we have been in the case of the notch babies.

Please join my efforts to correct the inequity created by the Social Security notch.

AMENDMENT NO. 171

(Purpose: To ensure that the President's after school initiative if fully funded for fiscal year 2000)

At the end of title III, insert the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON FUNDING FOR AFTER SCHOOL EDUCATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds the following:

(1) The demand for after school education is very high. In fiscal year 1998 the Department of Education's after school grant program was the most competitive in the Department's history. Nearly 2,000 school districts applied for over $540,000,000.

(2) After school programs help to fight juvenile crime. Law enforcement statistics show that youth who are ages 12 through 17 are most at risk of committing violent acts and being victims of violent acts between 3:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. After school programs have been shown to reduce juvenile crime, sometimes by up to 75 percent according to the National Association of Police Athletic and Activity Leagues.

(3) After school programs can improve educational achievement. They ensure children have safe and positive learning environments in the after school hours. In the Sacramento START after school program 75 percent of the students showed an increase in their grades.

(4) After school programs have widespread support. Over 90 percent of the American people support such programs. Over 450 of the nation's leading police chiefs, sheriffs, and prosecutors, along with presidents of the Fraternal Order of Police, and the International Union of Police Associations support government funding of after school programs. And many of our nation's governors endorse increasing the number of after school programs through a Federal of State partnership.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that Congress will provide $600,000,000 for the President's after school initiative in fiscal year 2000.

AMENDMENT NO. 172

(Purpose: To fully fund the Class Size Initiative, the amendment reduces the resolution's tax cut by ten billion dollars, leaving adequate room in the revenue reconciliation instructions for targeted tax cuts that help those in need and tax breaks for communities to modernize and rebuild crumbling schools)

On page 3, strike beginning with line 5 through page 5, line 14, and insert the following:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $2,435,289,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,456,068,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,507,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,586,777,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,650,486,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,683,892,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,736,436,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,805,797,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,865,515,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be changed are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.
Fiscal year 2001: —$7,358,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: —$52,208,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: —$30,811,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: —$47,372,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: —$60,412,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: —$106,822,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: —$134,964,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: —$150,412,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: —$177,195,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,426,931,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,457,794,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,489,177,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,562,248,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,614,578,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,668,643,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,697,402,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,752,567,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,813,739,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,873,969,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,408,292,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,435,289,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,456,068,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,532,507,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,583,878,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,640,655,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,669,062,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,716,673,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,780,977,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,840,699,000,000.

On page 23, strike beginning with line 14 through page 25, line 3, and insert the following:

Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $67,373,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $63,994,000,000.

Fiscal year 2001:

(A) New budget authority, $68,049,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $65,430,000,000.

Fiscal year 2002:

(A) New budget authority, $68,995,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $66,947,000,000.

Fiscal year 2003:

(A) New budget authority, $75,069,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $70,023,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004:

(A) New budget authority, $78,948,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $74,262,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005:

(A) New budget authority, $80,264,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $78,118,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006:

(A) New budget authority, $78,229,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $79,643,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007:

(A) New budget authority, $79,133,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $78,909,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008:

(A) New budget authority, $80,144,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $79,389,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009:

(A) New budget authority, $80,051,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $79,059,000,000.

On page 42, strike lines 1 through 5 and insert the following:

(1) to reduce revenues by not more than $0 in fiscal year 2000, $137,750,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004, and $767,552,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2009; and

AMENDMENT NO. 173

(Purpose: To express the sense of the Senate on women and Social Security reform)

At the end of title III, add the following:

SEC. ____ SENSE OF THE SENATE ON WOMEN AND SOCIAL SECURITY REFORM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Senate finds that—

(1) without Social Security benefits, the elderly poverty rate among women would have been 52.2 percent, and among widows would have been 60.6 percent;

(2) women tend to live longer and tend to have lower lifetime earnings than men do;

(3) during their working years, women earn an average of 70 cents for every dollar men earn; and

(4) women spend an average of 11.5 years out of their careers to care for their families, and are more likely to work part-time than full-time.

(b) SENSE OF THE SENATE.—It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that—

(1) women face unique obstacles in ensuring retirement security and survivor and disability stability;

(2) Social Security plays an essential role in guaranteeing inflation-protected financial stability for women throughout their old age;

(3) the Congress and the Administration should act, as part of Social Security reform, to ensure that widows and other poor elderly women receive more adequate benefits that reduce their poverty rates and that women, under whatever approach is taken to reform Social Security, should receive no lesser a share of overall federally-funded retirement benefits than they receive today; and

(4) the sacrifice that women make to care for their family should be recognized during reform of Social Security and that women should not be penalized by taking an average of 11.5 years out of their careers to care for their family.

AMENDMENT NO. 174

(Purpose: To continue Federal spending at the current services baseline levels and pay down the Federal debt)

Strike Titles 1 and 2 of the resolution and insert the following:

TITLE I—LEVELS AND AMOUNTS

SEC. 101. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

The following budgetary levels are appropriate for the fiscal years 2000 through 2009:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution—

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,401,979,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,442,647,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,508,276,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,563,318,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,634,149,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,710,896,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,790,713,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,871,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,956,209,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $2,045,710,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,424,759,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,451,764,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,481,268,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,544,059,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,597,397,000,000.

Fiscal year 2005: $1,655,402,000,000.

Fiscal year 2006: $1,705,251,000,000.

Fiscal year 2007: $1,770,344,000,000.

Fiscal year 2008: $1,840,865,000,000.

Fiscal year 2009: $1,910,187,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,406,584,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,431,899,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,449,260,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,512,261,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,566,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,631,828,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $1,674,724,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,737,435,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,810,214,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,880,338,000,000.

(4) DEFICITS OR SURPLUSES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the deficits or surpluses are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: —$4,605,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $10,748,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $59,016,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $51,057,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $67,549,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $79,068,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $115,989,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $133,965,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $145,995,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $165,372,000,000.

(5) PUBLIC DEBT.—The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $5,637,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $5,710,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $5,739,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $5,776,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $5,792,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $5,794,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $5,755,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $5,696,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $5,615,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $5,510,500,000,000.

(6) DEBT HELD BY THE PUBLIC.—The appropriate levels of the debt held by the public are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $3,511,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $3,371,900,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $3,175,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $2,979,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $2,756,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $2,507,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $2,211,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $1,886,400,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $1,539,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $1,168,200,000,000.

SEC. 102. SOCIAL SECURITY.

(a) SOCIAL SECURITY REVENUES.—For purposes of Senate enforcement under sections 302, and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the amounts of revenues of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $468,020,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $487,744,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $506,293,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $527,326,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $549,876,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $576,840,000,000.
Fiscal year 2006: $601,834,000,000.
Fiscal year 2007: $628,277,000,000.
Fiscal year 2008: $654,422,000,000.
Fiscal year 2009: $681,313,000,000.

(b) SOCIAL SECURITY OUTLAYS.—For purposes of Senate enforcement under sections 302, and 311 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the amounts of outlays of the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $327,256,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $339,789,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $350,127,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $362,197,000,000.

Fiscal year 2004: $375,253,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2005: $389,485,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2006: $404,596,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2007: $420,616,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2008: $438,132,000,000.
 Fiscal year 2009: $459,496,000,000.

SEC. 103. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

Congress determines and declares that the appropriate levels of new budget authority, budget outlays, new direct loan obligations, and new primary loan guarantee commitments for fiscal year 2000 through 2009 for each major functional category are at the CBO March Baseline On-Budget totals for BA and outlays, committee allocations and resolution aggregates.

AMENDMENT NO. 175

(Purpose: To ensure that the substantial majority of any income tax cuts go to middle and lower income taxpayers)

At the appropriate place, insert the following:

SEC. . SENSE OF THE SENATE ON TAX CUTS FOR LOWER AND MIDDLE INCOME TAXPAYERS.

It is the sense of the Senate that the levels in this resolution assume that Congress will not approve an across-the-board cut in income tax rates, or any other tax legislation, that would provide substantially more benefits to the top 10 percent of taxpayers than to the remaining 90 percent.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL 9 A.M. TOMORROW

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there is no further debate at this time, under the previous order, the Senate will stand adjourned until the hour of 9 a.m., Thursday, March 25, 1999.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 11:24 p.m., adjourned until Thursday, March 25, 1999, at 9 a.m.

NOMINATIONS

Executive nominations received by the Senate March 24, 1999:

THE JUDICIARY

WILLIAM HASKELL ALSUP, OF CALIFORNIA, TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA, VICE THELTON EUGENE HENDERSON, RETIRED.

J. RICH LEONARD, OF NORTH CAROLINA, TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF NORTH CAROLINA VICE W. EARL BRITT, RETIRED.

CARLOS MURGUIA, OF KANSAS, TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE DISTRICT OF KANSAS, VICE SAM A. CROW, RETIRED.

MARSHA J. PECHMAN, OF WASHINGTON, TO BE UNITED STATES DISTRICT JUDGE FOR THE WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON, VICE WILLIAM L. DWYER, RETIRED.

FOREIGN SERVICE

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES INFORMATION AGENCY FOR PROMOTION IN THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE TO THE CLASSES INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF CAREER MINISTER

BRIAN E. CARLSON, OF VIRGINIA

MARJORIE ANN RANSOM, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

E. ASHLEY WILLS, OF TEXAS

CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF MINISTER-COUNSELOR

ROBERT J. CALLAHAN, OF ILLINOIS

WILLIAM DARREL CAVNESS, JR., OF GEORGIA

JEREMY F. CURTIN, OF MARYLAND

CHRISTIAN FILOSTRAT, OF NEW YORK

HELENA KANE FINN, OF NEW YORK

LINDA JEWELL, OF NEW JERSEY

WILLIAM P. KIEHL, OF PENNSYLVANIA

BARBARA C. MOORE, OF OREGON

PAMELA H. SMITH, OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

CORNELIUS C. WALSH, OF VIRGINIA

LEONARDO M. WILLIAMS, OF VIRGINIA

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE FOR PROMOTION IN THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE TO THE CLASSES INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF CAREER MINISTER:

DALE V. SLAGHT, OF NEW JERSEY

CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF MINISTER-COUNSELOR:

DAVID K. KATZ, OF CALIFORNIA

SAMUEL H. KIDDER, OF WASHINGTON

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBERS OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE FOR PROMOTION INTO THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, AS INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF COUNSELOR:

WILLIAM A. BREKKE, OF SOUTH DAKOTA

MICKEY R. FRISBY, OF OKLAHOMA

CAROL MURRAY KIM, OF VIRGINIA

AUGUST MAFFRY, OF VIRGINIA

ALAN R. TURLEY, OF CONNECTICUT
 ERIC R. WEAVER, OF VIRGINIA

CONFIRMATIONS

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate March 24, 1999:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE

WILLIAM LACY SWING, OF NORTH CAROLINA, A CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF CAREER MINISTER, TO BE AMBASSADOR EXTRAORDINARY AND PLENIPOTENTIARY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA TO THE DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO.

ROBERT A. SEIPLE, OF WASHINGTON, TO BE AMBASSADOR AT LARGE FOR INTERNATIONAL RELIGIOUS FREEDOM.

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, CLASS OF CAREER MINISTER, FOR THE PERSONAL RANK OF CAREER AMBASSADOR IN RECOGNITION OF ESPECIALLY DISTINGUISHED SERVICE OVER A SUSTAINED PERIOD:

MARY A. RYAN, OF TEXAS

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FOR PROMOTION IN THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE TO THE CLASSES INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF CAREER MINISTER:

WARREN J. CHILD, OF MARYLAND

CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF MINISTER-COUNSELOR:

MARY E. REVELT, OF FLORIDA

JOHN H. WYSS, OF TEXAS

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBERS OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE FOR PROMOTION INTO THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE TO THE CLASS INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBERS OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF COUNSELOR:

WEYLAND M. BEEGHLY, OF VIRGINIA

LARRY M. SENDER, OF WASHINGTON

RANDOLPH H. ZEITNER, OF VIRGINIA

THE FOLLOWING NAMED CAREER MEMBER OF THE FOREIGN SERVICE FOR PROMOTION INTO THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE, AND FOR APPOINTMENT AS CONSULAR OFFICER AND SECRETARY IN THE DIPLOMATIC SERVICE, AS INDICATED:

CAREER MEMBER OF THE SENIOR FOREIGN SERVICE OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, CLASS OF COUNSELOR:

DANNY J. SHEESLEY, OF VIRGINIA.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

INTRODUCTION OF THE INTERNET GUN TRAFFICKING ACT OF 1999

HON. BOBBY L. RUSH

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Internet Gun Trafficking Act of 1999. Currently, unlicensed individuals are able to sell and unlicensed buyers are able to buy firearms over the Internet. Moreover, web site operators, who are not licensed gun dealers, facilitate firearms transactions between buyers and sellers. Web site operators run web sites which provide space for unlicensed individuals to post guns for sale. The web sites give names, phone numbers and/or e-mail addresses of sellers, to allow potential buyers the opportunity to contact the sellers directly for the purchase of firearms. These transactions, while facilitated by the web site operator are not monitored by the web site operator, thus occurring out of anyone's eyesight, including law enforcement. As a result, many individuals, including children and felons are able to purchase firearms illegally and evade the law.

My bill will end the unlicensed selling of guns over the Internet. Web site operators who offer firearms for sale or otherwise facilitate the sale of firearms listed or posted over the Internet, must become federally licensed firearm manufacturers, importers or dealers. Additionally, as an aid to law enforcement, licensed firearm dealers-web site operators are required to notify the Secretary of the Treasury of their web site address, as would any individual who operates a web site which offers for sale or otherwise facilitates the sale of firearms.

Furthermore, to ensure legal firearm transactions over the Internet, individuals who on behalf of other persons, lists or posts firearms for sale over the Internet will have to establish themselves as "middlemen." All guns sold from the "middleman's" web site, must be shipped directly to the "middleman." The "middleman" is then required to transfer the firearms to the buyer in accordance with federal firearm laws, including laws which require that firearms are shipped directly to a licensed dealer in the unlicensed buyer's state. The "middleman" is prohibited from providing any information which would facilitate direct contact between the seller and the buyer. Finally, unlicensed individuals who offer firearms for sale over the Internet may only transfer those firearms directly to the web site operator.

I hope that my introduction of the Internet Gun Trafficking Act of 1999 will call attention to the need to regulate gun sales in this new era of Internet firearm transactions.

CONGRATULATIONS TO THE 1998 NEW MEXICO PARENTS OF THE YEAR

HON. HEATHER WILSON

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mrs. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to bring to your attention the recipients of the 1998 New Mexico Parents of the Year award. This award is administered by the New Mexico Parent's Day Coalition. As we recognize these parents, I thank them for the role they play in strengthening and restoring the foundation of our country—the family.

Jerry and Debbie Dixon, Albuquerque
Joe and Lori Chavez, Santa Fe
Dr. Oscar and June Marquardt, Alamogordo
Carl and Donna Londene, Albuquerque
John and Belina Ortiz, Bosque Farms
Charles and Karen Cooper, Albuquerque
Nemesio and Marylou Martinez, Los Lunas
Arthur and Lou Jauriqui, Albuquerque
Glenn and Oma Warwick, Las Cruces
Pastor Ira and Diane Shelton, Albuquerque
Duc Vu and Nghi Nguyen-Vu, Albuquerque
Please join me in thanking these parents for their dedication to raising good citizens and their contribution to New Mexico's future.

TRIBUTE TO JIM HLAFFKA

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to congratulate the Bunker hill basketball coach, Jim Hlafka for attaining his 700th career win this past February 23rd.

Jim Hlafka, who is 65 years old, has been the Bunker Hill basketball coach for 40 years now. By coaching 700 games to victory, he became a member of an elite group of only 10 other coaches from Illinois who have attained this goal. Not only did Hlafka attain his own goal that evening, he coached the Bunker Hill Minutemen to victory in the 80th annual Macoupin County Boys Tournament.

Corey Elliot, a member of the team that won the County Championship, said that "[i]t's an honor to play for him." It is also an honor for me and all of Bunker Hill to be represented by one of the best high school coaches in the state of Illinois.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON SCHOOL OF MEDICINE RANKED NATION'S TOP PRIMARY-CARE MEDICAL SCHOOL

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I am proud to announce that US News and World Report recently ranked the University of Washington's School of Medicine as number one in primary care.

Many teaching programs at the University's School of Medicine were also ranked in the top five, including a number one rank in rural medicine, number one in family medicine, number four in women's health, and number five in AIDS instruction. Overall, the University of Washington's medical school was ranked ninth in the country.

The most exciting and creative research is taking place at the University of Washington. In fact, only two other medical schools receive more funding from the National Institutes of Health. I can safely assert that the best primary care doctors of the 21st Century are the current students at the University of Washington.

Congratulations to the outstanding students, teachers, researchers, and faculty of the University of Washington's School of Medicine. Your commitment to excellence is second to none.

HONORING SUSAN GLASER

HON. ALCEE L. HASTINGS

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I would like to enter into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD the following statement which was delivered to the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom when they honored Ms. Susan Glaser of West Palm Beach, Florida.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Washington, DC, March 18, 1999.

WOMEN'S INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE FOR PEACE AND FREEDOM,
West Palm Beach, Florida

It is my great pleasure to join with you in honoring Susan Glaser. During the time Susan was employed in my office, she worked tirelessly on behalf of people in need of Social Security benefits, Medicare and federal housing assistance. She was particularly effective at helping first generation Americans adjust to the complexities of life in this country. Widely known as a concerned, compassionate person, Susan always presented a positive image for me when representing me at public events.

I congratulate WILPF for giving Susan the recognition she deserves. She has spent a lifetime fighting for all the things we truly care about. She has always been an effective organizer, drawing the attention of her fellow citizens to the need for refugee aid and food and shelter for the homeless. Susan has also been noted for her history on the front lines of the Civil Rights movement and for speaking out against the injustices perpetrated on the peoples of Central America.

I am glad to add my voice to the many others who are singing Susan's praises today. She is a wonderful person who truly deserves the many accolades she receives. Congratulations, Susan! I am very, very proud of you!

In Peace,

ALCEE L. HASTINGS,
Member of Congress.

• This "bullet" symbol identifies statements or insertions which are not spoken by a Member of the Senate on the floor.

Matter set in this typeface indicates words inserted or appended, rather than spoken, by a Member of the House on the floor.

MEDICARE REFORM CUT OFF AT THE KNEES BY CLINTON AND DEMOCRATS

HON. DOUG BEREUTER

OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, this Member highly commends this March 20, 1999, editorial from the Omaha World-Herald regarding President Clinton's actions on Medicare Reform. Because of the imminent crisis that Medicare faces in the near future, I am very disappointed that the President has chosen to play politics with such an important issue instead of finding real solutions to preserving Medicare.

[From the Omaha World-Herald, Mar. 20, 1999]

CUT OFF AT THE KNEES

When President Clinton torpedoed the recommendation of a majority of the members of his bipartisan commission on Medicare reform, his action raised the question of whether he ever intended the commission to succeed.

Clinton has been demagoguing the Medicare issue ever since before the 1996 election, when Republicans in Congress proposed slowing the growth of Medicare spending from 10 percent a year to 7 percent. The President won re-election, in part, by persuading some voters that the Republicans wanted to destroy Medicare and forsake the elderly.

After the election, the GOP insisted that Clinton must take the lead if he wanted Republican help in repairing the program, which is headed for bankruptcy as the cost of providing doctor and hospital care for retirees outraces available revenues. Clinton responded with the classic bureaucratic evasion. He named a commission to study the problem.

The need for reform is indisputable. Medicare is funded by payroll taxes and income taxes. The worker-to-beneficiary ratio was 4-to-1 when the program was enacted in 1965. That ratio will be cut in half by 2030, when aging baby boomers will swell the ranks of Medicare recipients. By then nearly 80 million people will be eligible for Medicare. That's double today's number.

Meanwhile, medical care has become more sophisticated and expensive. Medicare is projected to go bankrupt in 2008—and that's before the impact of baby boomer retirements is felt.

Spokesmen for the elderly have been pressuring government to expand the benefits, adding coverage for prescription drugs. What started out as providing doctor's services and hospitalization would become a full-service health program, not only covering catastrophic care but also paying for routine services that people used to assume were their own responsibility.

The bipartisan commission recommended changes that have been ordered by some congressional leaders, among them Sen. Bob Kerrey, D-Neb. Changes include raising the eligibility age in small steps to age 67 over the next quarter of a century. The commission also said that people ought to be able to receive Medicare coverage through private plans, nearly 90 percent of which would be subsidized by Medicare dollars. Such changes could save $500 billion by 2030, the commission said.

Clinton rejected the plan, although he said some parts of it had promise. He characterized it as a reduction in benefits, which he said is not permissible. Ten members of the commission had supported the recommendation, with 11 votes needed. The 10 consisted of eight Republicans and two Democrats, Kerrey and Sen. John Breaux of Louisiana, who co-chaired the commission.

Instead of savings $500 billion, Clinton said, the government needs to spend an additional $700 billion through 2020. "Medicare cannot provide for the baby boom generation without substantial new revenues," Clinton said.

Taxpayers ought to cringe at the prospect. Clinton said the new money will be provided by future budget surpluses. By siphoning 15 percent of projected surpluses, Clinton said, the government can fund his proposed expansion of Medicare.

That is based on an implied assumption that the economy is recession-proof, which has no basis in fact or history. When the spending in a program is accelerating out of control, government should at least question the assumptions that are behind the growth. Clinton's solution is to find more money. He is confident that it will be there. Yet neither he nor anyone else, a year or two ago, saw the revenue tide coming. And even if payroll and income taxes could generate enough revenue to cover the rising cost of Medicare, that does not mean it is right to let the program's budget spiral upward indiscriminately.

Health care for the elderly is a legitimate concern of government. But it is not evil for politicians to decide that government may have to be more efficient in subsidizing such care. Neither is it evil to suggest that a major expansion in benefits isn't affordable at the very time a big increase in recipients is projected.

At one point, with senators like Kerrey and Breaux taking the political risks of looking for an actuarially defensible solution, it seemed that a genuine, compassionate, affordable and bipartisan plan of action could be arrived at. Now that Clinton and their fellow Democrats on the commission have cut Kerrey and Breaux off at the knees, that possibility, regrettably, has become less likely.

THE ELDRED HOUSE

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this time to applaud the efforts of the Illinois Valley Cultural Heritage Association to place the famous James J. Eldred stone house in Eldred, IL in the National Register of Historic Places.

Built 138 years ago, this three-story house was made from natural bluff limestone by James J. Eldred who is a descendant of a historic English family. The Eldred house is the largest of nine area limestone houses and was known for the elaborate parties that took place there. Soon this house will be renovated and used as a museum of American Indian and farm history.

I wish the Illinois Valley Cultural Heritage Association the best in their efforts to secure the Eldred House's rightful place in history.

DAVID HORSEY WINS BERRYMAN CARTOONIST OF THE YEAR AWARD

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I am delighted to announce that one of my constituents, Mr. David Horsey, recently won the Berryman Cartoonist of the Year Award from the National Press Foundation.

American newspapers have traditionally carried political cartoons, much to the delight of their readers. While it usually takes political pundits hundreds of words to express an idea or assert an opinion, political cartoonists have the difficult task of capturing timely political issues in just a few deft strokes of the pen. One of the masters of this art form is Mr. David Horsey.

Mr. Horsey, a Seattle native, has worked at the Seattle Post-Intelligence's since 1979. Many readers turn to his drawings first thing in the morning, in order to enjoy his pungent and unique interpretation of the political scene. His cartoons never fail to show, literally, the affairs of the day with his own flair and style.

I am so pleased that Mr. Horsey's work was honored by the National Press Foundation. I look forward to many more years of brilliant commentary in his cartoons. Since Mr. Horsey is dedicated to the truth, we can only hope that his caricatures of politicians become more forgiving.

JUDGE HENRY E. HUDSON TAKES THE BENCH IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

HON. FRANK R. WOLF

OF VIRGINIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. WOLF. Mr. Speaker, on March 19, 1999, Henry E. Hudson was sworn to a bench in Fairfax County Circuit Court during an investiture ceremony. He was assisted in the enrobing by his son, Kevin.

Judge Hudson brings a lifetime of wisdom and legal experience to his new task. He has previously served in Virginia as a deputy sheriff, assistant commonwealth's attorney, commonwealth's attorney, assistant U.S. attorney, U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia and as director of the U.S. Marshals Service. He also practiced law in the private sector for a number of years and served on important federal and state boards and commissions.

A lifelong Virginian and member of the Arlington County Volunteer Fire Department, Judge Hudson continues a proud tradition of service to the people and respect for the rule of law. The judge, his wife, Tara, and their son Kevin make their home in northern Virginia.

We in Virginia and in America are fortunate to have people of Judge Hudson's capabilities serving on the bench.

178TH ANNIVERSARY OF GREEK
INDEPENDENCE DAYHON. MICHAEL E. CAPUANO

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. CAPUANO. Mr. Speaker, it is with great respect and profound admiration that I rise today to pay tribute to Greece on the occasion of its 178th anniversary of independence. Greece is a country rich in history and culture which has not only dramatically influenced its own people but people throughout the world.

March 25th is a date that will forever live in the hearts and minds of Greeks and Greek-Americans. After suffering more than 400 years of oppression under the Ottoman Empire, the people of Greece commenced a revolt on this day in 1821. Many dedicated, patriotic Greeks lost their lives in the struggle which lasted over 7 years. Ultimately, the freedom Greeks aspired to was courageously achieved, and the modern day Greece was born.

Greece has influenced our society in many ways. Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, and our Founding Fathers found inspiration in the writings and ideals of Greek philosophers Plato and Aristotle. The Founding Fathers searched antiquity for an appropriate model for democracy, and found it in ancient Athens. No doubt, without Greece's influence, the United States would be a completely different country today.

Historically, Greece has been a dedicated United States ally. A fierce supporter during World War II, Greek soldiers fought beside Americans to preserve democracy and independence. For almost half a century, Greece has stood beside the United States as an active and important member to NATO. Greece has consistently proved to be a valuable player in preserving security in the Mediterranean. Just recently, Greece held a significant role in negotiations between the Republic of Cyprus and Turkey to deter deploying Russian missiles on the Cypriot island, thereby thwarting an international incident.

One could not live in the United States for too long without experiencing first hand the impact Greece has had on American society. Greek-Americans have significantly contributed to American culture and economy. Nearly 7,000 people in the Eighth Congressional District of Massachusetts are of Greek descent. Throughout the neighborhoods in Boston, Woburn, Cambridge, Chelsea, Belmont and my hometown of Somerville, Greek-Americans are one of the most active groups in politics and community service. The Hellenic Cultural Center, the Greek Orthodox Church and other Greek-American organizations in the district are working to improve education, healthcare, and the environment.

The Greek people also take pride in their heritage. In my district alone several events will take place to commemorate Greek Independence Day. From the grand parade in Boston to the small town festivities, Greek-Americans will be celebrating their freedom.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I hope the United States will continue to cultivate relationships both culturally and economically with our Greek neighbors, and I again offer my congratulations to all Greeks as they celebrate Greek Independence Day.

HONORING COLORADO GIRLS
STATE BASKETBALL A CHAMPIONS—CHERAW HIGH SCHOOLHON. BOB SCHAFFER

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. SCHAFFER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to extend my heartiest congratulations to the Cheraw High School girls basketball team on their impressive Colorado State A Championship. The victory, a 58-45 win over Prairie High School, was a superb contest between two talented and deserving teams. In championship competition, though, one team must emerge victorious, and Cheraw proved themselves the best in their class—truly second to none.

The State A Championship is the highest achievement in high school basketball. This coveted trophy symbolizes more than just the team and its coach, Charles Phillips, as it also represents the staunch support of the players' families, fellow students, school personnel and the community. From now on, these people can point to the 1998-1999 girls basketball team with pride, and know they were part of a remarkable athletic endeavor. Indeed, visitors to this town and school will see a sign proclaiming the Girls State A Championship, and know something special had taken place here.

The Cheraw basketball squad is a testament to the old adage that the team wins games, not individuals. The combined talents of these players coalesced into a dynamic and dominant basketball force. Each team member also deserves to be proud of her own role. These individuals are the kind of people who lead by example and serve as role-models. With the increasing popularity of sports among young people, local athletes are heroes to the youth in their home towns. I admire the discipline and dedication these high schoolers have shown in successfully pursuing their dream.

The memories of this storied year will last a lifetime. I encourage all involved, but especially the Cheraw players, to build on this experience by dreaming bigger dreams and achieving greater successes. I offer my best wishes to this team as they move forward from their State A Championship to future endeavors.

IN HONOR OF THE LATE CHARLIE
PARKERHON. KAREN MCCARTHY

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. MCCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor the memory of Charlie "Yardbird" Parker as the Charlie Parker Memorial Site is dedicated at 17th Terrace and Vine Street in my hometown of Kansas City, Missouri. Charlie Parker was a bebop innovator. He not only shaped the sound of modern jazz in the 1940s, but he has also served as an inspiration to all jazz musicians since that time. His alto sax virtuosity marked the zenith of the jazz age and set a standard for other musicians to aspire to.

Charlie Parker's family settled in Kansas City, Missouri, in 1927, when Parker was only 7 years old. While growing up there, he pursued his musical education on the stages of Kansas City. By 1936, when Charlie Parker turned 16, Kansas City music had begun to influence the national jazz scene. Parker was a big part of this explosion, having obtained his union card at the age of 14. He spent a few years idolizing and studying Lester Young's saxophone playing, and then continued his studies under Buster Smith, one of the early stars of Count Basie's Reno Club band and Walter Page's Blue Devils. By 1938, Parker was playing in the Jay McShann band, the last great band to play in Kansas City, as the principal soloist. The McShann band's national success after 1944 meant that Parker would no longer play in Kansas City.

It was in New York that Charlie Parker got his nickname of "Yardbird" because he loved to eat fried chicken. From the time he arrived in New York until he passed away on March 12, 1955, his success escalated. As the news of his passing spread, "Bird Lives" began to appear all over New York and the nation because his fans refused to let him die. Although he is buried in Lincoln Cemetery in Kansas City, he lives on in the hearts of jazz lovers everywhere. From March 25th through the 27th the nation's ears will focus on Kansas City, where some of Charlie Parker's contemporaries will gather to remember the great jazz legend at the American Jazz Museum in the 18th and Vine Historic Jazz District. Max Roach, Dr. Billy Taylor, Jay McShann, Milt Jackson, Claude "The Fiddler" Williams, and Ernie Andrews are a few of the internationally acclaimed artists who are participating in the Symposium and Concert celebration.

This weekend's dedication of the new Charlie Parker Memorial will remind us all of this great musician and inspire the jazz musician in all of us to hum a little bebop: "Hello, Little Girl, don't you remember me? I mean, been so long, but I had a break you see." (from "Hootie Blue," recorded for Decca Records by the Jay McShann Orchestra, April 30, 1941, Parker's first commercial recording session).

HONORING HENRIETTA PRESNALL

HON. DALE E. KILDEE

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. KILDEE. Mr. Speaker, I stand before you today to recognize the accomplishments of Mrs. Henrietta Presnall, of Flint, Michigan. On Friday, March 26, friends and family will gather to honor the career of this remarkable woman, who is retiring from Sears Corporation after 23 years of dedicated service.

A native of Chattanooga, Tennessee, Henrietta moved to Flint and married James Presnall in 1968. She attended Charles Stewart Mott Community College and graduated in 1973 with an Associates Degree in Nursing. Upon graduation, she joined Heritage Manor Nursing Home as a Nurses' Aide. On July 26, 1976 she joined Sears and Roebuck Corporation as a part-time salesperson. Henrietta received numerous recognitions for outstanding work ethics and customer service, from her superiors as well as her customers. Henrietta was promoted to the position of Sears Service and Product Maintenance Agreement Lead Person, then she was later promoted to Technician Secretary for the Sears Service Center, leading to her current position as Cashier Accountant.

Henrietta is often found using her personal skills in the community as well. She is involved with groups such as Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Flint, The Fair Winds Girl Scout Council, Zeta Phi Beta Amica Sorority, and the Michigan Women's National Bowling Association. In 1971, Henrietta became a member of the Foss Avenue Baptist Church, where she faithfully serves as a member of the Senior Usher Board, Foss Avenue Catering Committee, and the MLA fellowship Sunday School class.

I know that Henrietta would want to point out that the love and support of her family have contributed greatly to her success. She is very proud of her children, Veronica and Lucetia, grandsons Demetrice and Trevino, granddaughter Elexus, and of course, her husband, James Presnall.

Mr. Speaker, it is indeed a privilege for me to rise today before my colleagues in the 106th Congress to join me in congratulating Henrietta Presnall on her retirement. I wish her continued success in all her endeavors.

INTRODUCTION OF THE MATH AND SCIENCE PROFICIENCY PARTNERSHIP ACT

HON. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the Mathematics and Science Proficiency Partnership Act. The purpose of this legislation is to improve mathematics and science education for students in kindergarten through 12th grade as well as to train mathematics and science teachers.

My legislation, which has 52 cosponsors, accomplishes its objective by forging a unique partnership between students, parents, teachers and the business people in their communities.

In years past, America's schools served as unilateral learning centers where students studied, graduated and then entered the workforce. The demands of the information age and the global economy now compel U.S. educators and business people to band together in the national interest. Schools and businesses need to be partners to educate our children. Otherwise, our nation will see its preeminence in information technology implode as other nations expand their high-tech driven economies.

Already there are alarming trends. When it comes to mathematics and science education U.S. high school seniors need to be better prepared. Compared to their international peers, American high school seniors ranked near the bottom of the Third International Mathematics and Science Study (TIMSS) that was released last year. This poor performance holds true for both mathematics and science as well as for moderate-level and top-level students.

Mathematics and science are the disciplines that have created the Internet and have driven the Information Age. Two of the fastest growing job areas, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, are computer technology and health services. Both fields demand a strong background in mathematics and science.

As the Subcommittee on Basic Research's Ranking Member, I have had several discussions with representatives from the information technology community. These business people in the high-tech field have expressed their frustration in not being able to find qualified job applicants. In fact, one in ten positions in information technology is currently unfilled, according to the Information Technology Association of America. One in three job applicants tested by U.S. companies lacks the reading or mathematics skills for the job as reported by the American Management Association.

The Mathematics and Science Proficiency Partnership Act will help reverse the trends of poor test performance by U.S. students and empower businesses to enrich the pool of job applicants.

The purpose of this legislation is to improve math and science education in urban and rural areas by establishing partnerships between participating schools and businesses. My bill authorizes the National Science Foundation (NSF) to award 10 partnership grants through its Urban and Rural Systemic Initiative programs. The NSF Director will make five grants to urban areas and five grants to rural areas. Each grant will not exceed $300,000 and the total amount authorized is $3 million.

The purpose of these partnership grants is to train teachers and to improve teaching for students in math, science and information technology. The grants will be awarded to schools that have established partnerships with businesses.

Eligibility of the partnership grants will be based on how well the participating schools and businesses have forged their partnerships. Ways that businesses can participate with schools include: setting up college scholarships for promising math and science students, establishing jobsite mentoring and internships programs and donating computer software and hardware to their participating schools.

The legislation directs the NSF Director to conduct a long-range study on the students who have participated in the partnership grant scholarship program and their ability to land and to retain jobs in the fields of mathematics, science and information technology.

Mr. Speaker, I am gratified by the support the Mathematics and Science Proficiency Partnership Act has already received and urge all Members to cosponsor this important legislation that will help prepare today's American students for tomorrow's workplace.

CONGRATULATIONS TO JERRY BELL

HON. HEATHER WILSON

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mrs. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to bring to your attention the works of Jerry Bell, an outstanding volunteer for Noon Day Ministry in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Jerry Bell volunteers her time to the homeless at Noon Day Ministry. Noon Day Ministry serves approximately 300 homeless men, women and children four days a week. Jerry's commitment to volunteer work comes from a strong family support system that instilled the value of helping others. By those who work with Jerry she is described as the organizer, the person who really keeps the place in shape. By those she serves, Jerry is known for providing more than lunch. She offers hugs, a pat on the shoulder and a kiss on the cheek—the sincere message of caring for another.

Please join me in thanking Jerry Bell for her caring contributions to individuals, families and our community of Albuquerque, New Mexico.

LITTLE BOSTON BRANCH OF THE KITSAP REGIONAL LIBRARY WINS BEST SMALL LIBRARY AWARD

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, I am honored to announce that The Little Boston branch of the Kitsap Regional Library system is the best small library in America.

Little Boston recently won the 1998 Service Award for Excellence from the National Public Library Association. This library is unique because it is located on the Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribe's reservation and is frequented by patrons who live both on and off the reservation.

Public libraries are the great equalizer in our society as they ensure free and unlimited access to invaluable educational resources for anyone who simply has the desire to learn. Libraries enhance the knowledge of not only ourselves, but also the world around us. Great libraries, like Little Boston, deserve our utmost praise and recognition. Employees continually go above and beyond the call of duty with their exceptional service to its patrons and commitment to provide enriching and informative information to everyone in the community.

Congratulations, again, to The Little Boston Library for your commitment to excellence.

THE PARENT HELP LINE

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Parent Help Line of Springfield, Illinois for their extraordinary contributions to their community.

This volunteer organization's primary function is to help parents become better parents by providing advice, support, and referrals to various community agencies. The Parent Help Line is funded by several different sources including St. John's Hospital Foundation, Ronald McDonald Charities of Central Illinois and Ameritech.

Currently, the Parent Help Line consists of 25 volunteers who respond to about 100 calls per month. While these numbers may not seem significant, each one of those hundred calls has helped a parent and child come closer together through the support of their community. Recognizing the utmost importance that parents play in the development of not only their children, but of the future of our great country, the Parent Help Line helps parents meet parenting challenges head on.

Again, I would like to thank the volunteers and contributors of the Parent Help Line for the outstanding devotion they have shown towards our nation's greatest asset—our children.

TO DIRECT THE SECRETARY OF VETERANS AFFAIRS TO ESTABLISH A NATIONAL CEMETERY FOR VETERANS IN THE ATLANTA, GEORGIA METROPOLITAN AREA

HON. BOB BARR

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to announce the introduction of a very important piece of legislation which is vital to all veterans in the state of Georgia. Through the bill I am introducing today, the Secretary of Veterans Affairs will develop a national cemetery for veterans in the Atlanta, Georgia metropolitan area. This bill is co-sponsored by the entire Georgia Delegation, and Senators CLELAND and COVERDELL have introduced a companion bill in the Senate.

I want to thank the other Members of the Georgia delegation for their support of our efforts. Congressmen COLLINS, NORWOOD, KINGSTON, LINDER, CHAMBLISS, DEAL, LEWIS, ISAKSON, BISHOP, and Congresswoman MCKINNEY realize the importance of this issue to Georgia's veterans.

I urge my colleagues in the House to support this effort not just on behalf of the veterans in Georgia but veterans across our nation.

Our nation has a sacred obligation to fulfill the promises we made to our veterans when they agreed to risk and, in many cases, give their lives to protect the freedoms we all enjoy. One of those promises was a military burial in a national cemetery.

In 1994, the Department of Veterans Affairs released its "Report on the National Cemetery System." The Atlanta area was listed within the top 10 areas in the country with the greatest need for burial space. This need has only increased significantly in the past few years. Establishing a national cemetery in Georgia would provide veterans and their families accessibility and the recognition they deserve.

Georgia currently has only one national cemetery, located in Marietta. However, this cemetery has been full since the 1970s. The nearest national cemeteries accepting burials are located in Alabama and Tennessee. In addition to meeting the needs of veterans living in Georgia, placing a new national cemetery in the Atlanta area will alleviate the increasing demands on the cemeteries in Tennessee and Alabama.

Neither of these sites in Tennessee and Alabama is reasonably accessible to most of the more than 700,000 veterans living in Georgia, including some 450,000 veterans in the Atlanta metropolitan area.

This legislation is supported by Pete Wheeler, Commissioner of the Georgia Veteran's Association, and by the Georgia Disabled American Veterans, the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and other veterans' groups. I ask all veterans groups to support this legislation because it is only appropriate for Georgia's heroes to be allowed to be laid to rest in their home state.

This has been a long awaited process for Georgia veterans. These men and women deserve a proper resting place. The legislation we are introducing today is an important first step in creating a new national veterans cemetery.

LEGISLATION TO PROMOTE FAIR COMPETITION IN ELECTRICITY MARKETS

HON. PHIL ENGLISH

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. ENGLISH. Mr. Speaker, today, I am introducing legislation I sponsored last year that would promote fair competition in electricity markets. Many states have passed or are considering plans to allow customers to choose among competing providers of electricity. Although action on certain aspects of competition should be left to states, the federal government needs to address competition issues as they relate to the Internal Revenue Code.

The use of tax-exempt bonds and other tax exemptions granted to government-owned utilities are a significant problem in integrating them into the competitive marketplace. Such exemptions, in the context of competition, subsidize the costs of a competitor, giving it an unfair advantage against all private, tax-paying participants. I believe that if government-owned utilities want to compete in the open marketplace, then they must be restricted in issuing tax-exempt bonds and should give up income tax exemptions on sales outside their traditional service territory. Tax-free financing and exemption from federal income taxes pose no problem to electric competition if, and only if, government-owned utilities limit the use of these subsidies to serving their traditional service areas.

My legislation, The Private Sector Enhancement and Taxpayer Protection Act of 1999, addresses these concerns by prohibiting tax-free bonds from being used to finance generation and transmission by government-owned utilities if such utilities choose to compete in open electricity markets. If such utilities elect to do so, any sales outside of their traditional service area should be, like other commercial operations, subject to federal income tax.

This legislation will not affect government-owned utilities that do not elect to sell generation or provide transmission in the new competitive marketplace. Since the vast majority of municipal utilities, of which there are more than 2,000, do not generate electricity, this bill will not affect them. This bill does not affect rural electric cooperatives or federal government utilities. My bill attempts to address the issue of large government-owned utilities that want to act like, and compete with, taxpaying entities in the electric marketplace. In a somewhat similar approach, the Administration has addressed the issue in their FY2000 budget proposal.

I believe my legislation is a balanced, fair approach to establishing a level playing field for all power companies with none enjoying any special tax or financial advantages. I look forward to working with the Administration and my colleagues on this important issue.

COMMEMORATING THE 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF FR. GILBERT G. ARCISZEWSKI'S PRIESTLY ORDINATION

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Fr. Gilbert G. Arciszewski, pastor of Our Lady Queen of Peace Catholic Church on the 40th anniversary of his priestly ordination.

Fr. Arciszewski is representative of the high caliber of priests from the Milwaukee Archdiocese. He is a lifelong resident of the community and has served in leadership positions of various churches in the Milwaukee area since his ordination.

Fr. Arciszewski is a product of Milwaukee's near South Side. He is proud of his Polish-American heritage. He and his predecessor, the late Msgr. Alphonse Popek, traveled many of the same paths to Queen of Peace church, growing up in the same neighborhoods, and going to the same schools, beginning with St. Adalbert's elementary. The Popek and Arciszewski families lived only a few blocks from each other.

Fr. Arciszewski studied canon law at St. Francis Seminary and was ordained May 30, 1959 at St. John Cathedral by Archbishop William E. Cousins. He served as associate pastor of St. Helen, Milwaukee, June 1959 to July, 1966, and St. Alexander, Milwaukee, July, 1966 to March, 1975, when he became pastor of St. Casimir.

By coincidence, the celebration of his 25th anniversary of ordination in 1984 coincided with the 500th anniversary of the death of St. Casimir.

In February of 1987, Fr. Arciszewski was assigned pastor of Our Lady Queen of Peace Catholic Church where he has served since. Among the many milestones observed at Our Lady Queen of Peace was the marriage of Frankie Yankovic, the polka legend, to his wife Ida.

Mr. Speaker, on this the 40th anniversary of his ordination, I would like to recognize the contributions and commitment to the church and community demonstrated by Fr. Arciszewski.

TRIBUTE TO PATRICIA LOGOLUSO

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Patricia ("Patty") Logoluso on the occasion of her retirement from the Madera County Board of Supervisors. Patty has a long standing record of dedicated involvement in Madera County.

Patty Logoluso was born and raised in Madera. Patty along with her two older brothers and two sisters lived on the family farm in southern Madera. Her mother and father, Ben and Esther Bishel, taught their children the values of thrift and hard work. By the age of 12, Patty was already playing an active role in the daily operation of the farm.

Despite her responsibilities on the farm, Patty made time to participate in school sports such as volleyball, basketball, baseball and track. In 1963 she became a finalist at the Junior Olympics. Patty was also a member of the California Association of American Athletes. She showed an early interest in government becoming involved in Student Council, and held various offices throughout her elementary years. Patty's high school years were even more active, and with the support of her parents, she ran for Freshman Class vice-president, she later became president the following year. Additionally she was a member of the North Yosemite League of Student Councils, Commissioner of Awards, and Student Court Reporter. She was also a member of the California Scholarship Federation and was named Soroptimist Girl of the Month.

Patty's dedication to her family and community has always been evident. Since 1973, she has been a member of the Madera County Farm Bureau and in 1985, became a member of the Raisin Bargaining Association, the Italo American Club, Inc., and the Statue of Liberty Ellis Island Foundation. From 1978 to 1992 she served on numerous school site councils involved with principal selection committees and the Evaluation Committee for the High School State Report.

In January of 1996, Patty was honored by Governor Pete Wilson, when he appointed her to fill an unexpired term of the Board of Supervisors, District 1. In November of 1996, Patty was elected as County Supervisor of District 1 on her own merit. In her time as Supervisor she has served on the Fresno Madera Area Agency on Aging, Interagency Children and Youth Services Council, CSAC Policy Committee for Agriculture and Natural Resources, Economic Development Commission and the Foreign Trade Zone Advisory Board.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Patty Logoluso on the occasion of her retirement from the Madera County Board of Supervisors. For the past six years Patty has been a valuable asset to the public. I urge all of my colleagues to join me in wishing Patty best wishes for a bright future and continued success.

REMEMBERING THE MASSACRE AT HALABJA

HON. STENY H. HOYER

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to remember a horrifying event in our world's recent history. Eleven years ago, Saddam Hussein bombed the Kurdish town of Halabja with chemical weapons. Clouds of poison gas including mustard gas and sarin were rained down on Saddam's own people, merely because they were Kurds.

This heinous act resulted in the death of over 5,000 innocent civilians and injury to approximately 10,000 others. However, Halabja was neither the first nor the last of the chemical warfare attacks Saddam Hussein unleashed against the Iraqi Kurds. Throughout 1988, Saddam's brutal regime continued to use chemical weapons against its own people. In only 6 months, over 200 Kurdish villages were attacked and 25,000 people were killed by chemical weapons during the vicious Anfal Campaign. This campaign ultimately led to the destruction of 4,500 Kurdish villages and the death of 500,000 Kurdish people. More than 200,000 Kurds remain missing and 500,000 have been internally displaced.

Although the people of Halabja undoubtedly suffered beyond words when this horrifying event occurred 11 years ago, their children and their children's children will feel the effects of this one action of Saddam Hussein for generations to come. For, 11 years hence, the Halabja attack has not really ended. Many people in the region continue to suffer from respiratory problems, eye conditions, neurological disorders, skin problems, and cancers. All of these effects are attributable to long-term damage to DNA caused by the chemicals used by Saddam in the attack.

The Iraqi regime has never expressed remorse for Halabja, nor have Saddam Hussein and his thugs ever been called to account for these crimes they have committed against their own citizens. We do know that whether in attacks on Iraqis or neighboring states, inhumanity is precisely the common element of Saddam Hussein's policies. We must never forget the innocent people who died and those who continue to suffer from Saddam's ruthlessness.

INTRODUCTION OF THE BORDER IMPROVEMENT AND IMMIGRATION ACT OF 1999

HON. JOHN J. LaFALCE

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. LaFALCE. Mr. Speaker, in the 105th Congress, I introduced legislation to amend section 110 of the Immigration Reform Act of 1996 that mandated an automated entry-exit border control system by October 1, 1998. My bill, H.R. 2955, not only sought to correct the problems at the northern and southern borders that would have been created by hasty implementation of section 110, but also took a deliberate approach to analyzing the problem and determining the best solutions.

Today, I am reintroducing an updated version of that bill for consideration during the 106th Congress. Much has happened since last session's introduction of H.R. 2955, but the need for this legislation has not waned. My intent in introducing this bill is not only to correct a flaw, but to reignite debate and discussion as we work toward a final resolution of this critical problem. The response and enthusiastic support for this effort last year—culminating in delay of section 110's implementation until March 2001—demonstrates unmistakably that Congress views this as a serious problem that needs a permanent fix. My bill will accomplish that.

First, the bill would allow an entry-exit system to be implemented only at airports. INS has created an automated system now in use at several airports. But, the expense and lengthy set-up phase for that system highlighted the need to delay the deadline for implementation at other airports to give the Attorney General enough time to effectively integrate the system at every airport where aliens enter the United States. Further, it specifically excludes land borders or sea ports from the system created by section 110. In effect, it repeals section 110 with respect to land borders and sea ports. Finally, it contains an exception for any alien for whom documentation requirements at airports have been waived under the Immigration and Nationality Act, primarily Canadians.

Second, the bill requires the Attorney General to submit a report to Congress one year after enactment on the difficulties of developing and implementing an automated entry-exit control system as presently prescribed in section 110, including arrivals and departures at land borders and sea ports. The study must assess the total cost and practical feasibility of various means of operating such an entry-exit system.

Third, the bill increases the number of INS border inspectors in each fiscal year, 2000–2002, by not less than 300 full-time persons each year. These new INS inspectors must be equally assigned to the northern and southern borders. Similarly, Customs inspectors must also be increased at the land borders by not less than 150 full-time persons in each fiscal year, 2000–2002, and the Customs inspectors in each year must be evenly assigned to the northern and southern borders.

Section 110 of the 1996 Immigration Reform Act mandated that an automated entry-exit system be established that would allow INS officers to match the entrance date with exit dates of legally admitted aliens. Congress included this section at the last minute during the House-Senate conference with the intent of solving the problem of overstaying visa holders—aliens who enter the United States legally but overstay their allotted time. Because the U.S. does not have a departure management system to track who leaves the United States, a new entry-exit system was thought to be the best vehicle to solve the problem.

In the rush to complete the bill before the end of the fiscal year on September 30, 1996, conferees did not have time to give this provision the scrutiny it deserves. Any attempt to install a documentation system will bring intolerable chaos and congestion to a system already strained.

As representative of the 29th district of New York, I have a particular interest in the problem of delays and congestion at our northern border crossings. My district, which includes Buffalo and Niagara Falls, has more crossings than any other district along the border. In a relatively small area, we boast four highway bridges and two railroad bridges. I know from personal experience the problems that delays and congestion can cause at these crossings.

Last year, more than 116 million people entered the United States by land from Canada. Of these, more than 76 million were Canadian nationals or United States permanent residents. And more than $1 billion in goods and services trade crossed our border daily. To implement section 110 as it now stands would not only impede this traffic flow, it would contravene the United States-Canada Shared Border Accord which was intended to facilitate increased crossings of people and goods between our two countries.

Moreover, it is important to recognize the sense of borderless community that those living on the United States and Canadian sides of the border experience on a daily basis. Friends, family, and business associates travel easily, indeed seamlessly, across this invisible border to shop, enjoy theater and restaurants, athletic events, and other recreational opportunities. And, during last year's long struggle over this issue, I learned that many of my southern border colleagues represent districts that have similar experiences and stories about interrelated cross-border communities that otherwise would be injured by section 110.

Mr. Speaker, I believe my bill comprehensively addresses the problematic issues that are found in section 110. It is critical that section 110 as it currently stands be amended in order to avoid unnecessary chaos at both the northern and southern land borders and sea ports and give INS the necessary time to implement in an effective and affordable manner the current automated system at all airports. An automated entry-exit system elsewhere must not be implemented without careful consideration of the many issues involved. The Border Improvement and Immigration Act of 1999 will provide us with the necessary time and information for making a reasoned decision on whether to go forward with such a system.

ON THE "ZZZZZ'S" TO "A'S" ACT

HON. ZOE LOFGREN

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. LOFGREN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce the "Zzzz's to A's Act" and to draw attention to an important issue for high school students across the United States.

Those of us who have teenagers know how tough it is to get them out of bed early in the morning. My 14-year-old and 17-year-old are bright, eager students. But you would never know it when they have to wake up at the crack of dawn. They feel wiped out instead of raring to go.

I knew there had to be an explanation, other than laziness or rebellion. My answer came a year ago, when I read about scientific findings confirming that puberty changes the body's sleep cycle in such a way that makes it difficult—if not impossible—for most teens to fall asleep before 10 p.m. and to awaken early in the morning. Scientists also report that teens need more sleep than they will ever need again in life—at least 8 to 10 hours a night.

It doesn't take a rocket scientist—or a sleep scientist, in this case—to put these two facts together and realize that when high schools start before 8 a.m., kids are in class when they are sleepy. This sleep deprivation has harmful effects on learning abilities. It can lead to academic, behavioral, and psychological problems. Sleep deprivation also puts teens at risk for accidents and injuries, especially when driving.

There's a simple solution: adjust high school hours to be in sync with teenagers' body clocks. As a mother I saw the need for change, and, as a Member of Congress I thought I could help. Today, I am reintroducing legislation to put teens in school during their most alert hours.

My bill, called the "Zzzzz's to A's Act", could do more for improving education and reducing teen crime than many other more expensive initiatives. It encourages school districts to consider pushing back starting times—not shortening the school day. My bill would make it easier for districts to do so by providing a federal grant up to $25,000 to help cover administrative and operating costs associated with changing hours.

A number of school districts across the country are looking at adjusting their hours, and handful already have. The districts in Minnesota, Arizona, and Kentucky that now start classes later have seen grades improve and student aggression decline.

In addition to boosting academic performance, adjusting school hours helps mitigate the problem of juvenile crime. It keeps teens off the streets during the late afternoon hours when they are most likely to commit or be the victim of crime. FBI data shows that almost half of all violent juvenile crime occurs between 2 p.m., and 8 p.m., when many adolescents are without supervision.

My "Zzzzz's to A's" legislation has been endorsed by the nation's leading sleep researchers and by organizations from the National Sleep Foundation to Kids Safe Education Foundation and Rock the Vote.

Teens are paying a heavy price for following the old adage "Early to bed, early to rise." It's time for high schools to synchronize their clocks with their students' body clocks so the teens can go from "Zzzzzz's" to "A's."

THE 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE NORTHSHORE SCHOOL DISTRICT

HON. JAY INSLEE

OF WASHINGTON

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. INSLEE. Mr. Speaker, this year the Northshore School districts celebrates its 40th Anniversary. I am honored to commemorate such a wonderful event.

The Northshore School District is responsible for over 20,000 students in King and Snohomish Counties, and is the eighth largest school district in Washington State. It's current board members, Jean Fowler, Tim Barclay, Sue Paro, Kirby Larson, and B.Z. Davis, devote countless hours of selfless service to the most valuable resource in this country—our children. Through their involvement, board members ensure that Northshore students have the knowledge and skills to be successful and productive citizens in the 21st Century.

Thank you, Northshore School District Board, for your commitment to education and congratulations, again, on your 40th Anniversary.

COMMON SENSE APPROACH TO SANCTIONS

HON. PHILIP M. CRANE

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. CRANE. Mr. Speaker, today, I am pleased to join with so many of my colleagues on a bipartisan basis in reintroducing legislation, the "Enhancement of Trade, Security, and Human Rights through Sanctions Reform Act," intended to establish a common sense procedural framework for consideration of future U.S. unilateral sanctions.

Sanctions reform is necessary because the proliferation of unilateral economic sanctions is causing lasting damage to America's reputation as a reliable supplier in the global marketplace. It is estimated that U.S. sanctions cost $15 to $19 billion annually in lost U.S. exports and over 200,000 high-wage U.S. jobs.

Moreover, experience has shown us that unilateral sanctions don't work. A wide variety of leading U.S. foreign policy experts, think tanks, and government studies have concluded that unilateral sanctions are costly and counter-productive, particularly in a global economy, where technology, capital equipment, financing, and farm commodities are freely available from U.S. competitors.

Last year, the Glenn Amendment, which required the President to impose sanctions in response to India and Pakistan's nuclear tests, showed the weakness of relying on unilateral sanctions as an all-purpose foreign policy tool. The threat of sanctions, which were U.S. law prior to the testing, failed to deter India or Pakistan from conducting their tests, but would have cost the United States a major wheat sale if Congress had not intervened last year to grant the President waiver authority.

The legislation I am introducing today seeks responsible reform of the decision making process associated with U.S. unilateral sanctions. The bill's primary goal is to ensure that Congress and the Administration have better information for more informed decision-making on sanctions bills and initiatives.

Before imposing a unilateral sanction, the bill requires Congress and the President to request relevant information and address certain common-sense questions. Among them are the following. Is the proposed unilateral sanction likely to be effective? Is the sanction aimed at a clearly-defined and realistic objective? What are the economic costs for American industry and agriculture? Will the sanction undermine other U.S. security, foreign policy, and humanitarian objectives, such as relations with our key U.S. allies? Have potential alternatives, such as multilateral sanctions or diplomatic initiatives, been tried and failed?

My colleagues and I who are sponsoring this legislation today intend to work quickly to move the legislation through the legislative process. Without the information that this bill would provide us about future sanctions, we risk taking action that is not in our interest and has a very small chance of success. This bill is about establishing effective procedures that will lead to effective results in the way we respond to behavior by nations with which we have concerns. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

TRIBUTE TO BURLINGTON COUNTY FIRST ASSISTANT PROSECUTOR MICHAEL E. RILEY

HON. JIM SAXTON

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Speaker, on February 19, 1999, the County of Burlington in New Jersey lost a dedicated public servant. Someone who has tirelessly fought for justice, the rights of victims, and heightened the awareness of domestic violence, Michael E. Riley will truly be missed.

After 19 years of public service to Burlington County, Mike Riley has stepped down as First Assistant Prosecutor to enter private practice. During his tenure, Mike became well known as one of New Jersey's most respected trial attorneys. Described as the most experienced prosecutor in New Jersey, Mike successfully prosecuted nine capital murder cases, never losing a single homicide case, the most in Burlington County history.

Outside of the courtroom, Mike was involved with many important civic groups. Mike was Co-Chair of the first Domestic Violence Working Group and was the first Director of the Burlington County Narcotic Task Force. Additionally, Mike shared his experience and expertise with others. He served as an adjunct professor at Widener Law School for 10 years and has served on the faculty of Monmouth College and Burlington County College.

Many accolades can be bestowed upon Michael E. Riley, but I think the most honored one was summed up by a colleague when he stated that Mike "can't be replaced." This truly demonstrates the respect that Mike has among his peers.

On behalf of the people of Burlington county, I thank Michael E. Riley for his dedicated service to the County of Burlington and wish him well in his future endeavors.

A TRIBUTE TO JUDY KENNEDY

HON. HEATHER WILSON

OF NEW MEXICO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mrs. WILSON. Mr. Speaker, I wish to bring to your attention the dedicated service of Judy Kennedy who recently retired after 18 years of service at the Juvenile Detention Center in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Judy Kennedy was a teacher and Education Director at the Juvenile Detention Center. Ms. Kennedy's career has many milestones including American Correctional Association certification, expansion of classrooms, additions for special education services, drug and alcohol education just to name a few. She worked to establish the Continuation School for kids who cannot return to regular schools due to their history of suspension or expulsion. Ms. Kennedy recognized that these kids are part of our community, and that we need to give them a chance to be contributing members of our community. She worked with kids that others would consider "throwaways."

Ms. Kennedy touched the lives of many children. It has been sighted in many articles about at-risk kids, "one of the most important factors in changing their lives is a caring adult." Judy Kennedy is that caring adult.

TRIBUTE TO ALFRED GINSBURG

HON. GEORGE RADANOVICH

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Alfred "Al" Ginsburg on his retirement from the Madera County Board of Supervisors. Supervisor Ginsburg has served the Board of Supervisors for 24 years.

Al Ginsburg is a native Californian born in Tulare County. The Ginsburg family then moved on to Chowchilla where Al attended Chowchilla elementary schools and Chowchilla High School. Al then graduated from Fresno State College, now known as California State University, Fresno, with a degree in business administration. From 1948 to 1950 Al owned and operated a family shoe store, but in 1950 he became a full time farmer, this was before his interest in government brought him into the political arena.

Al Ginsburg has served the people of Madera County in many capacities, serving as an elected leader and devoting his time to community service. Al served as a member of the Chowchilla city council for 16 years, several times during the 16 years, he held the position of Mayor. He also served on the Chowchilla High School Board for 10 years and served as a member of the Madera County Civil Service Commission for 12 years. Al was also a member of the Local Agency Formation Commission and the Local Transportation Commission and Authority.

During his time on the Madera County Board of Supervisors, Al has taken on numerous tasks. Al served as a member of the County Supervisors Association of California, CSAC, and presently serves as a member of the Board of Directors. Al is a current member of the CSAC Public Finance and Operations Policy Committee. He has also been a member of the Regional Council of Rural Counties Board of Directors. A resident of Madera County for 67 years, Al Ginsburg is in his sixth term as a Member of the Board of Supervisors.

Mr. Speaker, I rise today to pay tribute to Al Ginsburg on the occasion of his retirement from the Madera County Board of Supervisors. Al Ginsburg leaves behind a proud legacy of community service. I urge my colleagues to join me in wishing Al Ginsburg many years of continued success.

TRIBUTE TO BAY VIEW HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE TEAM

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, it is with immense pride and pleasure that I rise to congratulate the students, parents, teachers and faculty who contributed to the championship season recorded by the Bay View High School (BVHS) debate team in the Wisconsin High School Forensic Association's (WHSFA) annual State Debate Tournament held at UW-Oshkosh on January 28th and 29th.

I applaud the efforts of affirmatives Kimberly Malak and Robert Croston, and negatives Benita Anderson and Corey Scott for their wonderful individual and team accomplishments.

Additionally, the affirmative team shares the honor of an undefeated record with the affirmative team from Cedarburg. Both finished with 7-0 records. Bay View's winning score was 12 wins and two losses. Other Milwaukee Public Schools (MPS) teams participating at the tour-namment were Rufus King High School, which placed 4th overall, and Juneau Business High School.

The 1998-99 season for the Bay View High School debate team was historic. The varsity team won an invitational tournament held at Sheboygan South High School for the first time since 1995. The team also successfully defended its 1997 City Championship First Place Trophy on December 11, 1998. After qualifying at the district debates for participating in the WHSFA State Tournament earlier in January, the Bay View team was matched against others from across the state in what many consider the premier debate tournament of the year.

The team has been coached by Mr. Ray Lane since the 1995-96 season. Mr. Daemien Morscher, a 1993 BVHS graduate, National Merit Scholar, and former member of the debate team, is serving as assistant coach. Other members of the team include Daniel Brandt, Kenneth Dunbeck, Steven Finch, Matt Hickling, Leonard Wilson, Robert Woodliff, and Winston Woods. Ben Silver also participated in some tournaments.

Mr. Speaker, it is an honor to salute the talent and commitment of the Bay View High School debate team on its outstanding season, which I bring before you in commendation.

SOCIAL SECURITY

HON. BERNARD SANDERS

OF VERMONT

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to call your attention to an article printed in the March edition of the Labor Party Press.

[From the Labor Party Press, Mar. 1999]

DON'T BLOW AWAY SOCIAL SECURITY

SOCIAL SECURITY BASICS

Under Social Security, workers contribute a certain amount of their pay into the system through their work life. They then earn entitlement to family benefits when they retire, become disabled, or die.

Social Security is funded through payroll taxes (FICA, or Federal Insurance Contribution Act) on both the employee and employer. Currently each pays 6.2 percent on all wages and salaries up to a maximum of $68,400 in income. The payroll taxes we pay today finance the benefits for today's retirees. From the money we contribute, the government writes Social Security checks and mails them to beneficiaries.

Any extra money collected through payroll taxes goes into a Social Security Trust Fund. Until the 1990s, the Social Security Trust Fund was relatively small. However, it has ballooned in size in the past decade—and in fact has helped create the much celebrated "balanced budget."

Some 44 million Americans receive benefits from Social Security. Thirty million of these are the elderly and their dependents, 6 million are the disabled and their dependents, and 7 million are the survivors of deceased workers.

About 92 percent of people over 65 receive Social Security benefits. Since 1935, when the labor movement helped force passage of Social Security, the program has dramatically reduced poverty among the elderly and disabled. Unfortunately, though, some people who really need it—like farmworkers—still aren't entitled to Social Security.

WHAT'S GOOD ABOUT SOCIAL SECURITY

Social Security has dramatically cut poverty among the elderly and disabled. While about 12 percent of seniors currently live in poverty, without Social Security, 42 percent would be poor. About two-thirds of the elderly rely on Social Security to provide over half their retirement income. Social Security is especially essential since the U.S. does not require employers to provide pensions.

Social Security is progressive. Those who have been paid high salaries throughout their lives will get a much smaller percentage of their salary replaced by Social Security than those who have worked all their lives in low-wage jobs. An average wage-earner retiring in 1997 will get back about 44 percent of his or her earnings from Social Security. A high wage-earner gets back about 25 percent. And a low wage-earner gets about 80 percent.

Social Security benefits just about everyone. About 92 percent of people over 65 get Social Security. It's a program that working-class, middle-class, and poor people can all get behind.

Social Security is efficient. Because it is run entirely by the federal government, puts all the money into one pool and invests it in one place. Social Security only spends about one percent of benefits on administration.

WHAT OTHER COUNTRIES DO BETTER

All seven major industrialized countries (Japan, Canada, United Kingdom, U.S., Germany, France, and Italy) have systems that are, like ours, pay-as-you-go. Today's workers support today's retirees.

Italy, Germany, and France spend 12-14 percent of their gross domestic product to support retirees. The U.S. spends 6.9 percent. Japan, Canada, and the UK pay slightly less than us.

In the U.S., the average-earning worker can expect to get 42-44 percent of his or her income replaced on retirement. In Germany, France, and Italy the rate is 50 percent.

In the U.S., Germany, and Japan, retirement age is now 65. It's lower in France, Italy, and Canada. In the U.K., it's 65 for men and 60 for women. (The U.S. retirement age is slated to go up to 67 for people born after 1960.)

All the industrialized countries have programs to cover the healthcare costs of retirees, but American retirees have to pay more out of their pockets than seniors in the other six countries. Today, U.S. seniors pay a third of their medical costs themselves.

WHAT WE SHOULD DO ABOUT SOCIAL SECURITY

The Social Security system is quite sound, and with only minor modifications, it should stay that way. We don't have to institute privatization, raise the retirement age, cut benefits, reformulate the cost-of-living index, or increase the payroll tax on workers to "save" Social Security.

One modest and relatively painless change to Social Security would wipe out a big chunk of the shortfall that some are projecting: Eliminate the payroll-tax earning cap. Currently, the Social Security payroll tax is not paid on wages in excess of $68,400. Since the ranks of the very rich, have been growing, this has resulted in something of a drain on Social Security. In the early 1980s, 90 percent of all wages fell under the threshold. Now it's 87 percent, and it's expected to drop to 85 percent. Why not make it 100 percent?

Says economist Dean Baker: "If you eliminate the cap altogether, it would wipe out about three-quarters of the projected Social Security shortfall. The amount that will be paid out in Social Security benefits won't be that much more than before, because it's a progressive pay-out structure. Someone who earned a million or two in their lifetime might only get an annual Social Security payment of $50,000, say."

Another proposal the Labor Party has suggested: raise the payroll tax on employers—but not workers. Workers have seen a net drain on their incomes for the past couple of decades, and this would be one way to begin to tip the balance in the other direction.

INTRODUCTION OF LEGISLATION TO INCREASE PENALTIES FOR FALSE REPORTING AND INAC- CURATE ROYALTY PAYMENTS ON FEDERAL OIL AND GAS LEASES

HON. GEORGE MILLER

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Speaker, American taxpayers are being systematically cheated out of hundreds of millions of dollars by oil companies that do not pay the correct amount of royalties on the oil and gas they produce from public lands.

We can see evidence of this fraudulent behavior in several Congressional investigations, the Department of Justice litigation and a Clinton Administration Interagency Task Force report. Additionally, the Justice Department intervened in 8 of 19 qui tam cases filed by private individuals alleging hundreds of millions of dollars underpaid to the federal government. One company (Mobil) has settled with the federal government for $45 million. In addition, States (including Alaska, California, Alabama, Louisiana and Texas) have brought similar lawsuits that have been settled for almost $3 billion. The Interior Department is collecting more than $275 million on underpayments.

To correct the underlying problem, the Department of the Interior has tried—unsuccessfully—for the past three years to revise its rules to make it more difficult for oil producers to avoid paying accurate royalties. The proposed regulations would clarify long standing legal requirements requiring the industry's responsibility to pay the cost of marketing the public's oil and gas. But some oil producers have been systematically deducting those costs from the amounts they owe taxpayers. Under the new rules, these producers would be required to pay the correct amount—based on real-market sales—to the American people who own the oil and gas.

Instead of supporting this necessary corrective action, however, Congress has enacted legislative riders preventing the implementation of the new rules at a cost of more than $60 million a year, most of which would go to fund public education. The Senate is poised to extend this travesty on the Emergency Supplemental Appropriations bill, and the House is expected to go along in Conference Committee. Taxpayers should be distressed that Congress would rather side with industry rather than assure fair market value on the public's natural resources.

This larceny has gone on too long. It is time for the Congress to consider legislation that will assure prompt and accurate payment of royalties instead of providing cover to that portion of the industry that wants to shortchange taxpayers on their resources we all own.

That is why I am introducing legislation today that will impose a penalty of treble damages on any producer who chronically under-values royalty payments. If industry will not pay the correct amount voluntarily and fights efforts to issue legitimate rules to safeguard the public, then industry must know that abusers, when caught, will be punished.

For those in the industry who abide by the rules and pay the correct amount, this legislation has no effect. But on those who deceive and delay, this legislation will mean serious punishment.

This bill will require under payors to pay three times the amount they should have paid plus a $25,000 civil penalty for each violation. In addition, lessees found guilty of chronic repeated failure to pay correctly would be subject to an additional civil penalty three times the amount owed for a single violation. Finally, the bill would require the federal government to share such sums collected under the penalty provisions with the State in which the violation occurred, as happens with royalty payments overall.

This bill will not affect responsible companies in the oil and gas sector. Nevertheless, we must draw a bright line for companies that deliberately and repeatedly withhold revenues to the taxpaying public. Unfortunately, there is a history of underpayments in this field that requires a strong legislative response. I would hope the Congress ends its practice of ignoring these underpayments and instead takes actions on this legislation to assure that taxpayers receive the royalties they are due.

TRIBUTE TO BRIDGET MEYER

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Bridget Meyer, an extraordinary high school student who is being honored as a Young Woman of Excellence by the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame.

Bridget Meyer has been described by her teacher as someone who always gives one hundred percent and puts the feelings and concerns of others first. Bridget is a special young woman who, through difficulties with her family and finances, has worked every day after school to pay her rent. This alone is remarkable. However, when one considers that she's been doing this while maintaining a 4.0 grade point average and serving as Senior Class Vice President, the achievements of her young life are all the more amazing.

Bridget is a young woman who leads by example. Whether she is volunteering at Habitat for Humanity, Safe Rides or AIDS Awareness, Bridget is constantly giving of herself to make our community better.

Mr. Speaker, Bridget Meyer is an outstanding young woman who serves as a role model to her classmates, her family and her community. To those who say we live in a time when we lack heroes, they haven't met Bridget Meyers. I salute Bridget for her remarkable contributions and commitment to her community. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring her on being named a Young Woman of Excellence by the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame.

KNOW YOUR CUSTOMER

HON. RON PACKARD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. PACKARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to applaud the efforts of citizens in my district and across the country. Thanks to their unending efforts, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) recently retracted their proposed "Know Your Customer" rule. This proposal would have required banks to monitor their customers and snoop out information for federal government files.

According to the FDIC, the intent of the "Know Your Customer" rule was to ensure that banks and savings institutions have policies and procedures for screening transactions tied to criminal activities, such as money laundering or drug trafficking. In reality, this legislation would have created an Orwellian system of government. Our constituents recognized this and voiced their strong opposition to it.

We should not forget that Americans have the right to expect privacy protections. The fact is, under the "Know Your Customer" rule, banks would have been required to track money sources and report all "out-of-the-ordinary" transactions to the federal government. In other words, this would have allowed the banks and our government the right to snoop in our personal information. That is wrong! Good business practices should already allow banks to know their customers.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to thank American citizens for strengthening our democratic system of government by loudly voicing their opposition to this rule. "Know Your Customer" would have been a clear invasion of privacy of all citizens and I am pleased it has been retracted.

JOHN LEE SULLIVAN MAKES HIS MARK ON THE WORLDHON. BOB ETHERIDGE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. ETHERIDGE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to congratulate Caroline and Richard Sullivan of Charlotte, North Carolina. On March 7, 1999 at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte, they welcomed into the world their first child, John Lee Sullivan. There is nothing more wonderful and joyous than watching a child grow and I know that they will treasure every new day with their son. Faye joins me in wishing the Sullivans great happiness during this very special time of their lives.

CONSUMER CREDIT REPORT ACCU-RACY AND PRIVACY ACT OF 1999HON. LUCILLE ROYBAL-ALLARD

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to join eleven of my colleagues in introducing the Consumer Credit Report Accuracy and Privacy Act of 1999. My bill gives every American the right to examine and correct their credit reports free of charge.

The credit reporting industry affects the lives of virtually every working American. Information used in a credit report can affect the ability to obtain a job, credit card, insurance policy, or even a place to live. For this reason, it is imperative that the credit industry maintain accurate records on American consumers.

In spite of the fact that the reporting of false delinquencies, errors in personal demographic information, and missing credit accounts all have the potential to result in the denial of credit, only six states (Colorado, Georgia, Massachusetts, Maryland, New Jersey and Vermont) offer consumers free credit reports on request. For the rest of the nation, most consumers cannot obtain a free credit report until after they have already been denied credit or suspect they are a victim of fraud.

The fact that the three largest credit bureaus have 450 million files on individual consumers and process over 2 billion pieces of data every month presents a daunting challenge to maintain the most accurate records possible. Given these figures, the chance of acquiring inaccurate information is highly likely. In fact, some studies have shown that up to one third of credit reports could contain serious mistakes.

It is important to note that the credit reporting industry gathers its information without the direct consent of American consumers, and in turn, uses this information for its own profit through the sales of reports to credit grantors, employers, insurance companies, and landlords. Consumers should have the right to know what is being said about them, especially if the information will affect their overall credit standing.

My bill will also help to address the growing problem of identity theft. Increasingly, criminals are able to obtain personal credit reports and assume a consumer's credit identity. In the process, they are able to run up huge debts while ruining the unsuspecting victim's credit records. We could minimize this problem if consumers more regularly audited their own credit reports to find out who else has been looking at them.

This bill has the endorsement of the nation's key consumer advocacy organizations, including U.S. Public Interest Research Group, Consumer Action, Community Reinvestment Committee, Consumer Federation of America, Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now, and the National Community Reinvestment Coalition.

In closing, the Consumer Credit Report Accuracy and Privacy Act encourages consumers to be pro-active in reviewing and protecting their personal credit history from possible mistakes and fraud. My bill simply gives consumers the right to know what credit bureaus are saying about them without having to pay a fee for the privilege.

SIKHS WILL CELEBRATE 300TH AN-NIVERSARY—AMERICA SHOULD SUPPORT SIKH FREEDOMHON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, this April marks a very significant occasion, the 300th anniversary of the Sikh Nation. The occasion will be celebrated with a big march in Washington, with prayers, and in many other ways. Let us join with the Sikhs on this auspicious occasion and pray that they will soon enjoy the same freedom in their homeland, Punjab, Khalistan, that we enjoy here in America.

I would like to congratulate the Sikh Nation on this major milestone, which was brought to my attention by Dr. Gurmit Singh Aulakh, President of the Council of Khalistan. Many of us have been made aware of the brutal oppression of the Sikhs by the Indian government due to Dr. Aulakh's tireless efforts. I am pleased to note that Dr. Aulakh's office is organizing the march.

There are half of a million Sikhs in the United States. They have added to the richness of American life in many aspects of life and work. They have been productive, proud, law-abiding Americans. The Sikhs came to this country to enjoy the freedom that has made America the great country that it is. On this very special occasion for the Sikh Nation, let us honor those fine Americans by taking steps to help their Sikh brothers and sisters in Punjab, Khalistan enjoy the same freedom. That is the best way to prevent another Bosnia or Kosovo in South Asia.

Make no mistake, Mr. Speaker, there is no freedom for Sikhs, Christians, Muslims, Dalits, or other minorities in India today. The Indian government continues to practice a brutal oppression that has taken tens of thousands of Sikh, Christian, Muslim, and other human lives. Yet this brutal country continues to be among the top five recipients of U.S. aid.

Why are we using tax dollars to support this repressive government? Even with our budget surplus, this is a bad use of taxpayers' money. We should cut off this aid and declare our support for self-determination in the Indian subcontinent. The Sikhs of Khalistan, the Muslims of Kashmir, the Christians of Nagaland, and others seek only to decide their futures in the democratic way, by voting. As the beacon of freedom in the world, it is our moral duty to support this struggle for freedom. Let us take the occasion of the Sikh Nation's 300th anniversary to commit ourselves to full support for freedom for all people, starting with these few simple measures.

TRIBUTE TO BESSIE BAUGHN

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Bessie Baughn, an exceptional citizen of San Mateo County, California, who will be inducted into the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame on Friday, March 26, 1999.

Bessie Baughn's motto is: "If there's a need, I fill it." This explains the amazing list of boards and organizations which Bessie currently is an integral part of. She has been named the Volunteer of the Year twice, the Woman of Distinction, and the Woman of the Year.

Several of Bessie Baughn's achievements include founding the San Bruno Volunteer Services and Operation Video which provides videos to the residents of nursing homes. Bessie not only puts in time and energy, but also her own resources to help start and sustain these important programs and services. Bessie Baughn not only practices volunteerism, she preaches it as well. She writes a weekly column in the Independent where she encourages community work and volunteerism.

Mr. Speaker, Bessie Baughn is an outstanding woman and I salute her for her remarkable contributions and commitment to our community. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring her on being inducted into the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame.

INTRODUCING THE FAIR PAY ACT OF 1999

HON. ELEANOR HOLMES NORTON

OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. NORTON. Mr. Speaker, Senator TOM HARKIN and I are introducing the Fair Pay Act of 1999, a bill that would require employers to pay equal wages to women and men performing comparable jobs in an effort to remedy the pay inequities that women continue to endure. We introduce this bill simultaneously in both Houses as an indication of the preeminent importance many American families attach to equal pay today.

At 76 percent of a men's wage, women's wages and the wage gap remain totally unacceptable. The continuing disparity is especially untenable considering that a significant part of the narrowing of the gap since 1963 is because of a decline in men's wages over the decades. The Equal Pay Act (EPA) was passed in 1963, and by focusing on pay disparities where men and women were doing the same (or similar) jobs, has helped narrow the wage gap between men and women. The Fair Pay Act takes the Equal Pay Act an important step further and seeks to confront the pay disparity problem of the 1990's the way the EPA confronted the equal pay problem in the 1960's.

Why has equal pay, once considered a women's issue, gone to the top of the polls for American families today? American families are becoming deeply dependent on women's wages today. Even in two-parent families, 66% of the women work, and the number of female-headed households has more than doubled since 1970.

Although most American families today must rely heavily on women's wages, women continue to earn less than their male counterparts with comparable qualifications and duties. Women complete more schooling than men but still have not caught up with men in earnings. Much of what progress has been made can be traced to the earnings of a small group of professional or highly skilled women. The average woman—the woman who works in a historically underpaid traditionally female occupation—has seen little progress. Over her lifetime, a woman loses over $420,000 because of pay inequity, and collectively, women and their families lose more than $100 billion in wages each year because of wage discrimination.

The FPA recognizes that if men and women are doing comparable work, they should be paid a comparable wage. If a woman is an emergency services operator, a female-dominated profession, for example, she should be paid no less than a fire dispatcher, a male-dominated profession, simply because each of these jobs has been dominated by one sex. If a woman is a social worker, a traditionally female occupation, she should earn no less than a probation officer, a traditionally male job, simply because of the gender associated with each of these jobs.

The FPA, like the EPA, will not tamper with the market system. As with the EPA, the burden will be on the plaintiff to prove discrimination. She must show that the reason for the disparity is sex or race discrimination, not legitimate market factors.

As women's employment has become an increasingly significant factor in the real dollar income of American families, fair pay between the sexes has escalated in importance. There are remaining Equal Pay Act problems in our society, but the greatest barrier to pay fairness for women and their families today is a line drawn in the workplace between men and women doing work of comparable value. I ask for your support of the Fair Pay Act to pay women what they are worth so that their families may get what they need and deserve.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. FAY MARTIN JOHNSTON

HON. CHARLES W. "CHIP" PICKERING

OF MISSISSIPPI
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. PICKERING. Mr. Speaker, I would like to pay tribute to a remarkable lady, Mrs. Fay Martin Johnston. Mrs. Johnston was one of my constituents from Forest, Mississippi. She passed away on February 27, 1999.

Mrs. Johnston was born in Edwards, Mississippi and was a resident of Forest since 1941. Mrs. Johnston was the wife of the late Eric E. Johnston, Jr. He was the former editor and publisher of the Scott County Times newspaper, Mayor of Forest, and noted author of books related to Mississippi politics.

During World War II, Mrs. Johnston assumed publication of the Scott County Times newspaper when her husband was called into the Army. She literally "did it all"—writing, editing, and operating the printing press in order to get the paper published. Mrs. Johnston was a charter member of the Scott County Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and was actively involved in the Forest Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Johnston's pride and joy was her family that included daughters Carol (Mrs. Bob Lindley), and Lynn (Mrs. Ben Catalina) and their families, her son Erle "Bubby" Johnston III, and his wife.

Mr. Sid Salter, current editor and publisher of the Scott County Times said, "Fay Johnston was a great lady and matriarch of a great newspaper family in Mississippi. She and Erle dedicated their lives to this community and were good stewards of the newspaper. In return they had the respect of the community and many, many friends here. The Johnston family has left a great mark on this city and country."

The legacy Mrs. Johnston leaves behind may best be described as love of God, love of family, love of Mississippi and country, and certainly love of Scott County and the town of Forest. I wish to extend my sympathy to her family, while at the same time, express my appreciation for her life of service.

SAN FRANCISCO STATE UNIVERSITY'S 100TH ANNIVERSARY: A CENTURY OF OPPORTUNITY

HON. TOM LANTOS

OF CALIFORNIA
IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. LANTOS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to invite my colleague to join me in celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of San Francisco State University. The university was established on March 22, 1899. For three decades I had the privilege of serving as a professor of economics at this august educational institution, possibly the most ethnically diverse university in America. Then, as now, it had a commitment to provide a first-rate education to those who could not easily achieve one elsewhere—first and second generation immigrants and the working class.

My colleagues on the faculty of San Francisco State University are outstanding. They have received innumerable honors and awards over the years, including the Pulitzer Prize and the prestigious MacArthur "genius" grant. The all-round excellence of the faculty has created a curriculum renowned for its diversity. The creative writing, poetry, performing arts, film, and journalism departments are all nationally acclaimed. The masters program in biology was ranked first in the nation by the National Science Foundation for graduates who went on to earn doctorates. In the astronomy department, Professor Goeff Marcy and Paul Butler discovered two planets orbiting stars beyond our solar system in 1996, and they have discovered 10 more planets since then.

Though the faculty's academic strengths and excellent research are obvious, at San Francisco State teaching comes first. This school, which began as a teacher's college, retains its dedication to educating its students. Academic appointments are competitive, and as a result San Francisco State has been able to hire the best. Professors are hired for their teaching ability and dedication, generally carrying a course load of four classes.

Assigning teaching the number one priority has paid off in the classroom. Robert Corrigan, the excellent president of San Francisco State, says of the student experience: "Students get a better education here. They are in a classroom with someone with a doctoral degree and 20 years of teaching experience, and there might be only 25 students in the class."

During its century of service to the Bay Area, San Francisco State University has awarded 185,020 degrees. Its students have gone on to successful careers in every conceivable field, and even our current Mayor of San Francisco is a former student of the university. Graduates and faculty of San Francisco State have also served with us here in the Congress.

For the past hundred years San Francisco State University has educated and enriched the Bay area, the state of California, and our nation. I am honored to have contributed to this outstanding educational institution, Mr.

Speaker, and I am delighted on this auspicious anniversary to pay tribute to its tradition of diversity and excellence. San Francisco State is truly American in the best possible sense of the word—it provides the opportunity for anyone to excel. As an educator, as a member of the San Francisco State community, and as a Californian, I congratulate San Francisco State University on its first century.

TRIBUTE TO MRS. FATEMEH AZODANLOO

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I would like to bring to my colleagues attention the attached remarks on the condolences to the Rajavi and Azodanloo families, particularly to Mrs. Maryam Rajavi, Iran's President-elect, at their loss.

With great regret, I learned of the death of Mrs. Fatemeh Azodanloo at the age of 75. I offer my condolences to the Rajavi and Azodanloo families, particularly to Mrs. Maryam Rajavi, Iran's President-elect, at their loss. For the past 25 years, Mrs. Azodanloo was a comrade in arms in her daughter's struggle for human rights and democracy.

During both the shah and Khomeini eras, Mrs. Azodanloo was a firm supporter of the Resistance to establish democracy and human rights in Iran. She and her family were subjected to constant abuse by the shah's officers and the theocratic mullahs. In the early 70s, her son Mahmood was arrested for cooperating with the Mojahedin by Savak—the vicious secrete police of the shah. Until the overthrow of the shah, she was harassed and her house raided by Savak and its notorious officers on many occasions.

She came to know other Mojahedin family members during her visits to Mahmoud in the shah's prisons. Along with them, she began to expose the violation of human rights by the shah and to raise money for the families of political prisoners. During this period, her daughter Nargess, was arrested and later on executed by Savak. In the early 1970s, her daughter Maryam along with her other children made contact with the Mojahedin and began working for their democratic, humanitarian goals and ideals. During this period Mrs. Azodanloo helped her daughter Maryam, who had become a leader of the anti-shah student movement and a women's rights activist.

After the downfall of the shah in February 1979, the Azodanloo family home became known in Tehran as a center for exposing Khomeini's religious dictatorship. Mrs. Azodanloo expanded her efforts to spread the Mojahedin's ideas in defense of human rights and democracy. She took every opportunity to expose Khomeini and his despotism under the name of Islam. She was also active during her daughter Maryam's candidacy in the first parliamentary elections, in which she received 250,000 votes despite rampant rigging.

On June 20, 1981, in response to the Mojahedin's call, half a million people demonstrated in Tehran. The protest against violations of democratic rights was turned into a blood bath on Khomeini's order. From that night, the massacre of members and supporters of the democratic forces, particularly the Mojahedin, began. It was absolutely clear that the era of political activity had ended, and resistance was the only option. From then on, Mrs. Azodanloo, despite nearly 60, embraced an underground life. Despite the repressive atmosphere in Tehran, she lived in the Resistance's bases, obtaining necessary supplies and drawing up security plans.

At this time, her youngest daughter, Massoumeh, was wounded in an armed attack by Revolutionary Guards, who ambushed her house in order to arrest her and her husband. She was pregnant when arrested. She was brutally tortured, and at the age of 23 in September 1982, died under torture. Her husband, Massoud Izadkhah, was executed.

Despite her sorrow, Mrs. Azodanloo never gave up, and persisted in her resistance, encouraging the Mojahedin in their struggle. She remained among the movement's staunchest supporters, throughout the most difficult of times.

Mrs. Fatemeh Azodanloo escaped from Iran in 1985. She remained active on behalf of the Resistance outside Iran, and always held dear the resistance forces inside Iran and in the National Liberation Army on the Iran-Iraq border. At her request, a few months prior to her death, she left Paris for one of the NLA's bases on the Iran-Iraq border, where she died in the company of her children and grandchildren.

TRIBUTE TO MARION JOSEPH

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Marion Joseph, an extraordinary citizen of San Mateo County, California, who will be inducted into the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame on Friday, March 26, 1999.

Marion Joseph has devoted more than 38 years as a volunteer and a professional to improve the lives of California's youth. Marion has focused specifically on disadvantaged and special education students. In the early 1960's she designed and implemented a program that served more than 700 children a week and involved over 300 tutors in centers throughout the poorest sections of Sacramento.

During the 1970's she served on the Senior Executive Staff of the State Department of Education where she was a key architect of the California Master Plan for Education. Marion was critical to the School Improvement Plan, a plan which helped parents become more active in their child's education.

Marion is currently serving her second term on the State Board of Education and is affectionately called the "Paul Revere of Reading." Marion Joseph came out of retirement to find a solution to the problem of failing reading scores in California and the result of her extraordinary work was The Reading Lions Project.

Mr. Speaker, Marion Joseph is an outstanding woman. I salute her for her remarkable contributions and commitment to our community and I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring her on being inducted into the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame.

HONORING THE INDIANA
NATIONAL GUARD

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, the recent visit of French President Jacques Chirac to the Nation's Capital included the presentation of the Legion of Honor, an award created by Napoleon Bonaparte, to three veterans of the First World War. This serves to remind us that eighty years ago, in the Spring of 1919, thousands of "doughboys" of the American Expeditionary Forces in France were returning to the United States following the first major appearance of U.S. military forces on the stage of world affairs.

A weather-beaten newspaper clipping hails the arrival in New York City Harbor of a Navy transport ship, the Leviathan, carrying the 150th Field Artillery Regiment. ("Indiana Boys of Rainbow Welcomed Home," New York Times, April 23, 1919). They came back to U.S. soil after engaging in combat operations and then occupation duty with the famed 42d (Rainbow) Division. The Hoosier gunners, members of the old 1st Indiana Field Artillery, Indiana National Guard, landed in New York after having served in five major campaigns in France. These Hoosiers were among the first to arrive and among the last to leave before the occupation of postwar Germany became the responsibility of the Regular Army.

Today, more than 14,000 dedicated men and women are currently serving in units of the Indiana Army National Guard and Air National Guard. They continue the tradition of patriotism and selfless service of World War I's "Rainbow Hoosiers." They hold down full-time civilian employment; they maintain families; they are active in community life—and they devote whatever time is mandated to fulfill Federal standards in order to maintain the military skills that have a distinct impact on our National security. Their trained capabilities have helped make it possible for the United States to sustain its awesome global responsibilities. However, we cannot forget that the National Guard is also a community enterprise. The chances are excellent that almost any Hoosier has some relative or knows someone who is serving, or who has served, in the Indiana National Guard. More than 70,000 Hoosiers are National Guard family members.

The Indiana National Guard has a rock solid foundation. During the realignment and readjustment of military forces in the post-Cold War era, we have witnessed the high regard which the Indiana National Guard enjoys in the missions it has been called upon to perform, and the special tasks which it has assumed, as a consequence of increased reliance on National Guard and Reserve forces by the Department of Defense.

As examples, Mr. Speaker, let me share just some of the things the Indiana National Guard is doing: Both the Army and Air Guard units have been designated to receive advanced readiness training in order to be prepared for possible deployment at the leading edge of U.S. commitments throughout the world. Along with stepped-up homeland defense, and anti-terrorism and anti-drug missions, these are assignments which require serious and dedicated training. The Indiana Guard is involved in ongoing assistance missions, and over the last twelve months Hoosier Guard soldiers and airmen have lent a helping hand in Haiti, Hungary, Kuwait, Slovakia, and South Korea. The extraordinary range of military service being performed by the men and women of the Indiana National Guard is strong testimony to the reliance that is placed on them.

We should never forget that while the Indiana National Guard is responsive to its Federal mission, it also stands ready to respond to the call of our Governor for service in support and protection of the citizens of Indiana. The Indiana Guard was also in the forefront of the special National Guard task force organized to help provide security for the Atlanta Olympic Games in 1996.

The fighting men and women, the soldiers and airmen of today's Indiana National Guard, are worthy of those who, 80 years ago, proudly returned carrying the honors earned on European battlefields. As President Chirac reminds us by his public commendations, we should take time to remember and honor the soldiers of that era. Equally, we should pause as we approach the new millennium, to recognize today's successors to those "Hoosier Gunners" who served so bravely and honorably on the battlefields of France at the beginning of this century.

EXPOSING RACISM

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, in my continuing efforts to document and expose racism in America, I submit the following articles into the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

[From the Virginian-Pilot]

CONFEDERATE GROUP BATTLES FOR ITS FLAG

(By Linda McNatt)

In May 1997, two members of the Sons of Confederate Veterans confronted Ku Klux Klansmen in front of the Pensacola, Fla., judicial building.

Sworn to conduct themselves as Southern gentlemen, the SCV members asked the hooded Klansmen to put down what they believe is their Confederate battle flag.

"There were 20 of them, maybe," said Robert A. Young, who belongs to the Sons of Confederate Veterans. "This group of fellas came over from Louisiana. They were dressed up like ghosts. We didn't want the connection, and we told 'em so."

The peaceful confrontation made national news. The Klansmen didn't back down, but the SCV had made its point.

It wasn't the first time that the Sons of Confederate Veterans have defended the bright red flag with its blue cross and white stars.

And it's not likely to be the last. The flag, the SCV says, symbolizes the bravery of their ancestors who followed it through the smoke of battle.

But the same flag has been used by the Klan and other hate groups. For some African Americans, the Confederate flag represents terrorism, prejudice and hate.

That's why the Virginia General Assembly two weeks ago said "no flag" when it voted to allow the group, which has 6,000 Virginia members, to have a special state license plate.

The Sons of Confederate Veterans aren't happy. Members have said they might try to re-introduce the flag image. Bills have been changed before, they say, although they won't say how they plan to do it.

Or—if the Senate fails to consider anything but the blank plate with the name of the organization on it—the SCV may take the issue to court.

They're ready for a gentlemanly battle, they say. The Sons of Confederate Veterans was organized in 1896 as an offshoot of the United Confederate Veterans. Today, the mission of the group is to "preserve the history and the legacy" of the "citizen soldiers" who fought for the Confederacy in the War Between the States, from 1861 to 1865.

Proof of kinship to a Confederate soldier is required. The SCV allows blacks to join; in fact, they say, race has never been a question on their membership application. And they do claim black members, although no one at the national headquarters—an antebellum mansion in Columbia, Tenn.—can say how many of their 27,000 members worldwide are black.

Neither can Patrick J. Griffin III, SCV national commander and chief, of Darnestown, Md.

"We do not have a block on our application that asks for race," Griffin said. "I've never seen anything in this organization that questions race or religion. You either have an honorable Confederate ancestor or you don't."

The SCV, with 700 camps in 36 states, Europe and South America, accepts members as young as 12.

"We're trying to preserve an accurate view of Southern American history, to make sure the names of our ancestors are not sullied," Griffin said.

The group dedicates itself to preservation, to marking confederate soldiers' graves, to historical re-enactments. It holds regular meetings to discuss the military and political history of the Civil War. It publishes a bimonthly magazine, and it hands out two scholarships and a medical research grant each year.

Executive director Maitland Westbrook III said that the SCV is not "statistically oriented," so he can't say how many African Americans have benefited from SCV scholarships.

The organization has five full-time employees at national headquarters. None of them, currently, are black, Westbrook said, although the SCV has employed blacks in the past.

The SCV also spends a lot of time defending its heritage—including its symbol—the Confederate battle flag.

Collin Pulley Jr. of Courtland is national chief of heritage defense. In the last several months, he's complained about "anti-Southern" TV shows and objected to a rap CD that depicts a burning Confederate flag on its cover.

Since Wal-Mart quit carrying the flags after some customers complained, he's led a SCV campaign—unsuccessful so far—to persuade the discount chain to re-stock small Confederate flags his group uses on graves.

"It has been our position for the last two years not to carry the Confederate flag because, here at Wal-Mart, we do not stand for what that flag represents," said Marvin Deshommes, a buyer at the Bentonville, Ark., headquarters.

What the flag represents, the SVC says, is heritage, not hate. And the group is determined to reclaim its glory.

It succeeded in Maryland and, more recently, in North Carolina. Both states, and several others, allow SCV members to display the flag on license plates.

A federal judge ruled in Maryland in February 1997 that "The Confederate battle flag on special Maryland license plates is protected by the First Amendment and cannot be banned."

The SCV got a similar ruling in North Carolina last December. There, the protest was less about the flag and more about whether the organization was actually a "civic group." The SCV took it to court and won.

In Virginia, said Brag Bowling of Richmond, legislative liaison for the SCV, "We're exploring all options. We're deeply disappointed they took the flag off the license plate. We got nailed in the House. We want to see how it goes in the Senate."

It was likely the impassioned plea of Del. Jerrauld C. Jones, D-Norfolk, that swayed the House. Jones said the flag, often connected with hate and terrorism by many African Americans, had reminded him throughout his life of fear, anger and claims of racial supremacy.

The special license plate legislation passed, but without the flag. SCV members vow they have never used the flag for such purposes as Jones claimed.

But the flag is sometimes used as a symbol of "oppression, violence and brutality," said Janis V. Sanchez, professor of psychology at Old Dominion University.

"The argument is that the flag was appropriated by the KKK," Sanchez said. "But that doesn't change the fact that it is associated with the Klan and with slavery. The Civil War was about slavery, and that's what the Confederate flag stands for. It has been used by many people to send a signal to African Americans."

"I know the Sons of Confederate Veterans are saying that it represents their heritage, but they cannot separate the meanings."

The SCV claims that the Civil War wasn't about slavery; rather, it was about states' rights. More than 95 percent of the soldiers who fought for the South weren't even slave owners, they maintain.

More like 85 percent, said Dr. Harold D. Wilson, an ODU history professor.

At the time of the Civil War, there were 9 million people in the Southern states, Wilson said; 4 million of those were slaves. Of the remaining 5 million, 330,000—mostly white males—were slave owners. Wilson said he believes about 85 percent of the soldiers didn't own slaves.

Some blacks, he pointed out, did serve with the South. "In the North, blacks participated fully in the war; in the South, they were mostly servants or laborers," Wilson said. "There were great debates over whether blacks should fight for the Confederacy, and they were conducted mostly in a very private, sensitive manner."

What caused the Civil War? "In the upper Southern states, it probably was states' rights," Wilson said. "In the lower South, with its large plantations, it was more about slavery."

"What in the world does the battle flag represent? It was the military flag of the Confederacy. It represented the might of the Confederate government. To that part of the Confederacy where there were few slave owners, it may have represented something entirely different."

And that part of the Confederacy may well represent Virginia, Wilson admitted. The Confederate battle flag was first used by the Army of Northern Virginia, where there were few large slave owners compared to the deep South.

Should the Sons of Confederate Veterans be allowed to use the flag on its license plate?

The group has an ally it likely doesn't even know about. The Rev. Jeff Berry, national imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, said he believes it is their right.

Like the SCV, the Klan uses the flag to represent "heritage, not hate," said Berry, whose group was started by Confederate Gen. Nathan Bedford Forrest.

Unlike the SCV, non-whites are not allowed in the Klan. The two groups have no connection, Berry said. But the Klan, which says it believes first in the U.S. Constitution, says the SCV ought to be able to display the Confederate flag.

"If it isn't OK to fly the Confederate flag in the U.S., why is it OK for blacks to fly the African flag?" Berry said. "We would defend the right of the SCV to fly its flag. Nobody should be able to take that right away."

CHRISTIAN VILLAGE BURNED BY HINDUS—WAVE OF SECULAR VIOLENCE GOES BACK TO CHRISTMAS DAY

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I was very distressed to see an article in the March 19 issue of the New York Times reporting that in the village of Ranaloi in India, a mob chanting "Victory to Lord Ram" burned down 157 of 250 homes of Christians. I thank my good friend Dr. Gurmit Singh Aulakh for calling my attention to this atrocity, which unfortunately is not an isolated incident but part of a wave of anti-Christian violence that began on Christmas Day.

Since Christmas, several Christian churches, prayer halls, and religious missions were destroyed by Hindu extremists affiliated with the Bajrang Dal, a part of the VHP, a militant Hindu organization that belongs to the same family of organizations as the ruling BJP. The VHP also praised the Hindus who raped four nuns, calling them "patriotic youth" and denouncing the nuns as "antinational elements." In January a missionary and his two very young sons were burned to death in their jeep by a gang of Hindus chanting "Victory to Hanuman," then another nun was raped. In early February the bodies of two more Christians have been found in the state of Orissa. At least four priests have been murdered. In 1997, police broke up a Christian religious festival with gunfire. A country that engages in such practices should be declared a religious oppressor and perhaps a terrorist state.

This latest incident took place during the period of Lent, leading up to Easter. With Easter coming in April, followed soon after by the 300th anniversary of the Sikh Nation, we may now have the best opportunity to raise the consciousness of the world to the religious tyranny that exists just under the veneer of Indian democracy.

Although India has democratic elections, for Christians, Sikhs, Muslims, Dalits, and so many others, there is no democracy. No matter who they elect, the result is more killing and more oppression. Is this true democracy? As I have said before, this is not democracy. It is merely the opportunity to choose one's oppressors.

The only solution is freedom for all the people of South Asia. As the world's only superpower and the beacon of freedom for the world, the United States must do whatever it can to extend the blessings of liberty to all people living under tyrannical, intolerant leaders, even if they claim to be democratic. We should stop funding this repressive government with American aid, impose economic sanctions as we did against the apartheid regime in South Africa, and go on record urging India to allow a plebiscite—a free, democratic vote—in Punjab, Khalistan, in Kashmir, in Christian Nagaland, and throughout their polyglot state to decide the future political status of these regions. This is the only way to end the genocide, settle the differences, and finally bring lasting peace to this troubled tinderbox known as South Asia.

Freedom is not only America's founding principle, it is our mission. Let us carry that mission to the deserving peoples and nations of the subcontinent. We look forward to the day when the glow of freedom shines on all the people of South Asia and the world.

[From The New York Times, Mar. 19, 1999]

157 HOMES BURNED IN RELIGIOUS CLASH IN INDIA

(By Celia W. Dugger)

BHUBANESWAR, INDIA, MARCH 18.—Less than two months after a Hindu mob killed a Christian missionary from Australia and his two young sons here in the eastern state of Orissa, Hindus and Christians clashed in a village this week, and 157 of the 250 Christian homes were burned down, state officials say.

The officials said they presumed that Hindus set the fires on Tuesday, but have no solid evidence. Christian villagers interviewed by television reporters blamed Hindus, who they said shouted "Victory to Lord Ram," a Hindu god, as they set the fires. Thirteen people were wounded, three by gunfire, and the police have arrested more than 40 people, officials said.

The tensions in the village—Ranaloi, in southern Orissa—developed after someone painted a trident, symbol of the Hindu god Shiva, over a Christian cross on a boulder about a mile outside the village.

The violence is part of a growing number of attacks on Christians in India in the last year. Church officials and opposition political parties say the problem has worsened since the Hindu nationalist Bharatiya Janata Party became the head of a national coalition Government a year ago. Party leaders say they oppose the violence.

It is not clear who was responsible for the violence in Orissa, which is governed by the Congress Party. The state's Chief Minister, J.B. Patnaik, resigned after the killing of the missionary, Graham Staines, and his sons, Timothy, 10, and Philip, 6.

D.P. Wadhwa, the Indian Supreme Court Justice who was named by the Government to head an inquiry into the Staines killings, harshly criticized the central Government for failing to provide resources to investigate. The commission of inquiry, which was set up six weeks ago, is due to issue its findings in two weeks but has yet to field a team of independent investigators or to be given functional offices to work from.

The state police blamed a mob that they said was led by a man from the Bajrang Dal, a Hindu nationalist youth group that belongs to the same family of Hindu nationalist organizations as the Bharatiya Janata Party.

Leaders of the Bajrang Dal denied involvement, and said the violence was a backlash against what they called the Christians' deceitful efforts to convert impoverished, illiterate Indians.

INTRODUCTION OF H.R. 1214—DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS VETERANS' CLAIMS ADJUDICATION IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 1999

HON. LANE EVANS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Speaker, for years our Nation's veterans who submitted a claim to the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) for benefits associated with their military service, particularly service-connected disability compensation, have been forced to contend with a VA claims adjudication process which has been both too slow and too inaccurate. Too often the adjudication of a veterans' claim has taken not days, not weeks, not months, but years.

Recent information suggests that after waiting years for a decision, one out of three veterans may find that the decision made by VA was wrong. Untimely and inaccurate decision-making by the VA, and particularly the Veterans Benefits Administration (VBA), have been twin problems which have plagued veterans, veterans service organizations and Members of Congress who have sought to assist their veterans constituents.

While experience clearly indicated otherwise, VBA consistently reported that the quality of its work was nearly error free as measured by VBA. Between 1993 and 1997, VA was reporting an accuracy rate of 97%. This was unfortunately like the fox not only guarding the hen house, but also keeping the inventory of hens.

To his credit, the Under Secretary of Veterans Benefits, Mr. Joe Thompson instituted, on a trial basis, a new system for measuring the quality of the claims adjudication work performed by VBA. This new quality measure, the Strategic Technical Accuracy Review (STAR) was tested and used operationally in 1998.

STAR use has been focused on claims submitted by veterans which require the VA to rate the claim, make a determination as to whether a medical disability is service-connected or non-service-connected and determine the degree of disability manifest. Using the STAR methodology, the accuracy of various actions taken during the adjudication process are used to determine if the case was correctly or incorrectly decided. A case is either all right or all wrong. Using STAR, the accuracy rate was 64%—less than two out of three claims were correctly decided.

While STAR has provided a more realistic assessment of the quality of VA claims adjudication, STAR does not currently meet generally accepted governmental standards for independence and separation of duties. Reviews of regional office decisions are made by persons who are also decision makers. There is not sufficient staff provided for reviewing enough cases to make statistically valid accuracy determinations at the regional office level. In order to pinpoint errors, it is important to be able to identify regional offices which have specific high or low accuracy rates and to ascertain the reasons for discrepancies between regional offices.

In addition to the problems documented by the STAR report, VBA is facing the impending retirement of experienced senior staff and several years of staff reductions which have impeded VBA's ability to resolve increasingly complex cases in a timely and accurate manner.

One measure of quality, the percentage of decisions appealed to the Board of Veterans Appeals (the Board) which are either reversed or remanded back to the regional offices for further work, is particularly disturbing. During fiscal year 1998, 17.2% of the appealed decisions were reversed outright by the Board. An additional 41.2% of the appeals were remanded for further action by the regional offices. Another measure of accuracy is the integrity of data relied upon by the VBA. During 1998, the VA Inspector General issued a report finding that data entered into the VBA computer system was being manipulated to make it appear that claims were processed more efficiently than was actually occurring.

Problems are not confined to the Compensation and Pension Service. In reviewing VA's compliance with statutory financial requirements, the General Accounting Office (GAO) noted that VA's home loan program was unable to perform routine accounting functions and had lost control over a number of loans which were transferred to an outside loan company for continued loan servicing. VA was not able to obtain an unqualified audit opinion as a result of these deficiencies. On February 24, 1999, VA's Inspector General reported that the $400 million vocational rehabilitation program was placed at high risk after the Quality Assurance Program for that services was discontinued in 1995.

Because of the fundamental importance of accurate and effective claims processing and adjudication by VA regional offices, and the need for effective oversight of regional office claims processing and adjudication by the Veterans' Benefits Administration, in July of 1997, I requested the GAO to review the quality assurance policies and practices of the VBA. On March 1, 1999, GAO issued its report which determined that further improvement is needed in claims-processing accuracy. In particular, GAO has determined that VBA's quality assurance activities do not meet the standards for independence and internal control.

To assure that VBA's internal quality assurance activities meet the recognized appropriate governmental standards for independence, I have introduced H.R. 1214, which provides for the establishment within VBA of a quality assurance division which comports with generally accepted government standards for performance audits. In addition, my Additional and Dissenting Views and Estimates submitted to the Budget Committee for VA's fiscal year 2000 budget requests additional funding for 250 full time employees for VBA. It is my intention that if additional staff funding is provided, some of the additional staff be used to adequately staff this program.

While VBA has made some improvements by developing an accuracy measurement which focuses on VA's core benefit work—rating claims for benefits—further improvements are needed in claims processing. Currently, there is no formal division within VBA devoted to providing the policy and program oversight necessary to assure quality and accuracy of claims processing. The possible consequences of this for both veterans and taxpayers is troubling.

In fiscal year 2000, the VA will pay over $22 billion dollars in monetary benefits to veterans.

Yet only nine full-time employees are allocated to STAR to oversee the quality of the claims adjudication process. Without a mandated program of quality assurance, which meets generally accepted governmental auditing standards for program performance audits, impartial and independent oversight of the quality of claims adjudication decisions will not be assured.

With the establishment of independent oversight of the quality of claims adjudication decisions, veterans can have more confidence in the decisions made by VA and the number of claims which are remanded because of the poor quality of claims adjudication will be reduced. With better initial decisions and fewer remands for re-adjudication, veterans will receive a quicker and a more accurate response. More claims will be adjudicated correctly the first time. This will not occur overnight, but without an independent oversight of the quality of claims adjudication decisions it may never exist.

The "Veterans' Claims Adjudication Improvement Act of 1999", H.R. 1214, will help address these problems. It changes the way decisions concerning claims for compensation and pension, education, vocational rehabilitation and counseling, home loan and insurance benefits will be reviewed and evaluated. Employees who are independent of decision makers will be devoted to identifying problems in the decision-making process. By identifying the kinds of errors made by VA personnel, VBA managers will be able to take appropriate action. Hopefully, remand rates can be significantly reduced and veterans will find that VA makes the right decision the first time the claim is presented.

We cannot expect any improvement in the timeliness of claims adjudication unless the barriers to quality decision making are identified and addressed in a systemic fashion. Our nation's veterans deserve to have their claims for VA benefits decided right the first time. By enacting H.R. 1214, Congress can help put the VA claims adjudication process on the right track. Our veterans deserve no less. I strongly urge my colleagues to support the "Veterans' Claims Adjudication Improvement Act of 1999" and for Congress to give this measure quick and favorable consideration.

SEARCHING FOR SANITY ON SANCTIONS

HON. JOHN CONYERS, JR.

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. CONYERS. Mr. Speaker, I have been urging a solution to the Iraqi crisis which does not depend on the suffering of thousands of vulnerable and innocent people. To this end I support the easing of the economic sanctions on Iraq while simultaneously tightening the military embargo. The cost of our containment policy does not have to be the death of 5000 children a month, and in fact the American role in the embargo that causes such devastation undermines any containment we hope to achieve.

I would like to enter into the RECORD an excellent article from The Nation magazine which provides a fresh look at our Iraq policy. The article by Joy Gordon, "Sanctions as Siege Warfare," presents a critique of the recent escalation in the use of sanctions to solve diplomatic crises. By detailing the latest statistics regarding suffering in Iraq, it contends that the imposition of sanctions conflicts with the United Nation's historic mission to alleviate worldwide suffering. It presents the case that the "Iraqi experiment" has in fact failed and that such a comprehensive sanctions regime is both unviable and beyond the administrative capabilities of the UN. The unwieldy, inefficient and inconsistent bureaucracy of the Oil-for-Food program has ensured that the UN can not even fulfill its own acknowledged prerogative to deliver urgent humanitarian aid. The program was intended as a transition, emergency operation, not a sustained effort to feed 23 million people over decades. This program is in addition to restrictions placed on "dual use goods" (a label which includes pencils and other items needed for schools), which the nation needs to rebuild its sanitation, health and agricultural infrastructures. Even after some limited reform, Oil-for-Food is still unable to meet the most basic needs of the people of Iraq. Some in Congress disagree with that, but I ask them where is their evidence? The World Health Organization, the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, UNICEF, and the Secretary General of the UN have all found otherwise.

The horror of this situation was brought to my attention most eloquently by Denis Halliday, who recently quit his job as the Assistant Secretary General of the United Nations and the director of Humanitarian Affairs in Iraq over this precise issue. The work that Halliday has undertaken along with Phyllis Bennis of the Institute for Policy Studies, has made an important contribution to bringing the indescribable human crisis in Iraq to America's attention. (I single out the United States because much of the world already knew how bad the situation in Iraq was.)

Gordon's article describes the centrality of the United States' role in perpetuating sanctions, and most significantly, the misguided justifications which underpin US policy. The US, in its self-declared role as "world policeman," is turning increasingly to sanctions as a "non-violent" alternative to bombing campaigns. We should not allow starvation to become an alternative to diplomacy. In the long term, the implications for the general populace can be devastating. In Iraq, the interior had already been destroyed by nine years of conflict (nineteen, if one counts the Iran-Iraq war). The weak and young have suffered the most whilst those in power continue to live comfortably.

The supreme aim in Iraq, to remove Saddam Hussein, is itself unviable whilst the dictator remains bolstered by such powerful cadres and the people remain divided, mutually hostile and depoliticized. Gordon's article alludes to the fact that sanctions can only help achieve political objectives when tangible opposition movements and the apparatus for dissent already exist. This is why sanctions against South Africa were an effective tool for ending Apartheid; the African national Congress was an organized, credible, internal, popular democratic opposition. When such institutions do not exist, sanctions can be counter-productive as they have been in Iraq, perpetuating the state of crisis upon which dictatorships depend and fostering a legacy of bitterness towards the west.

It has often been said that you cannot achieve democracy by undemocratic means. I would add as a corollary that you also cannot inspire respect for human rights by undermining them. The article below shows how the sanctions on Iraq have been as war-like as war itself, and I hope it helps to establish new criteria that will make our policy both more humane and more effective.

[From the Nation, Mar. 22, 1999]

SANCTIONS AS SIEGE WARFARE

(By Joy Gordon)

As the case of Iraq has shown, there's more than one way to destroy a nation.

The continuing American bombing of Iraq has drawn attention away from the international debate over economic sanctions against Baghdad and their toll on the Iraqi people. yet the crisis these policies have engendered in Iraq raises crucial questions about the United Nations' growing reliance on sanctions as a device of international governance. Can this modern-day equivalent of siege warfare be justified in ethical or political terms? It is a question that goes to the very heart of the UN's dual commitment to both peacekeeping and humanitarian principles.

The role of the UN in the Iraqi sanctions regime has been convoluted and contradictory from the start. Articles 41 and 42 of the UN Charter empower the Security Council to use economic tactics to keep international peace (although before sanctions were imposed on Iraq in 1990, the UN had imposed them only twice, against South Africa and Rhodesia). At the same time, the UN has an explicit commitment to the Universal Declaration of Human Rights and to the many other documents that espouse the right of every person to health, food, drinking water, education, shelter and safety. Indeed, the UN has a decades-long history of humanitarian work by its many agencies—the World Health Organization, UNICEF, UNESCO, the Food and Agriculture Organization, HABITAT and others. Thus the UN has found itself in the awkward position of authorizing a sanctions regime that is causing massive human suffering among those least responsible for Iraqi policy, while at the same time trying to meet humanitarian needs and protect those populations most harmed by sanctions—women, children, the poor, the elderly and the sick.

Although there is controversy over the precise extent of human damage, all sources agree that it is severe. Voices in the Wilderness, an antisandictions activist group based in Chicago, has used the figure of 1 million children dead from the sanctions; the Iraqi government claims 4,000-5,000 deaths per month of children under 5. Even US Secretary of State Madeleine Albright does not contest how great the human damage has been, but has said, "It's worth the price." Richard Garfield, an epidemiologist at Columbia University who analyzes the health consequences of economic embargoes, calculates that 225,000 Iraqi children under 5 have died since 1990 because of these policies—a figure based on the best data available from UN agencies and other international sources. The Red Cross World Disasters Report says underweight births have gone from 4 percent in 1990 to 25 percent in 1998. While it is harder to calculate the impact of the economic devastation on adults, it is quite acute, particularly for women. In 1997 the Food and Agriculture Organization estimated that chronic malnutrition in the general Iraqi population was as high as 27 percent, with 16 percent of adult women under 26 undernourished and 70 percent of women anemic.

The Iraqi crisis shows how peculiarly unsuited the UN is to manage a sanctions regime. This is partly because it had imposed sanctions so rarely before and partly because of its longstanding commitment to alleviating poverty rather than causing it. The fact that the sanctions against Iraq are so extensive and so novel has forced the UN to generate from scratch an extraordinarily elaborate set of mechanisms to manage them, through which it attempts to reconcile its conflicting commitments.

From the beginning, the UN both predicted an impending humanitarian disaster and made moves to alleviate it. The UN began assessing the human damage immediately after the Persian Gulf War, when it made an initial, ill-fated proposal to allow Iraq to sell oil for food. The Security Council formed the "661 committee," consisting of representatives of each nation in the Security Council, to monitor the sanctions against Iraq established in SC Resolution 661. At the same time, the committee was also responsible for granting humanitarian exemptions to the sanctions. The result was that it put in place procedures that in fact functioned as obstacles to any smooth influx of food and medicine. A cumbersome sanctions bureaucracy scrutinized and approved or denied every contract, the proposed quantity of goods, their price and their intended use.

To sell humanitarian goods to Iraq, a company would submit an application to its national mission at the UN, which would then turn it over to the 661 committee. But the 661 committee did not publish any criteria for approval, and its meetings were closed sessions at which neither Iraq nor the vendors were allowed to have representatives present to answer questions or offer information in support of the contract. The application process typically took months, sometimes as long as two years. And the committee's rulings were inconsistent—the same goods sold by the same company might on one occasion be deemed permissible humanitarian goods and on another be flatly denied without explanation.

In addition, during this period all fifteen members of the committee had to approve exemptions by consensus; thus any nation could effectively exercise veto power or cause repeated delays of weeks or months simply by asking for more information. As a result, it was expensive and exasperating even to apply to sell food and medicine to Iraq. On small British company that sold medical supplies described the process: First, to talk to an Iraqi buyer, public or private, the seller had to apply for a license to negotiate, which could take three to four weeks. Once buyer and seller came to an agreement, the seller had to apply for a supply license, which could take up to twenty weeks. In the meantime, Iraq's currency would have devalued substantially, so the buyer might not be able to afford quantity of goods or might need more time to raise the additional hard currency. But that would require a change in the terms of the application, and any change in the application meant the whole process began again. Thus the red tape undermined Iraq's ability to import even those urgent humanitarian goods permitted under the sanctions.

While food and medicine were theoretically permitted during this time, "dual use" goods were flatly prohibited. Under the terms of the sanctions, "dual use" items are those that have civilian uses but also may be used by the military or more generally to rebuild the Iraqi economy. Dual-use goods include pesticides and fertilizer, spare part for crop-dusting helicopters, chlorine for water purification, computers, trucks, telecommunications equipment and equipment to rebuild the electrical grid. Anything that might go toward rebuilding the infrastructure, or toward economic poverty generally, is labeled "dual use." Yet Iraq's infrastructure had been devastated by massive bombing during the Gulf War, which destroyed or caused extensive damage to water treatment plants, dams, generators and power plants, pipes and electrical systems for irrigation and desalinization of agricultural land, textile factories, silos, flour mills, bakeries and countless other buildings and resources. While Iraq was in principle allowed to import food and medical supplies, it was prohibited from buying the "dual use" equipment needed to grow and distribute food, to treat and distribute potable water, and to generate and distribute electricity for irrigating crops, refrigerating food and operating hospital equipment. The damage to water treatment plants and water distribution networks caused, among other things, a cholera epidemic and increases in waterborne diseases, infant diarrhea, dehydration and infant mortality.

Although bureaucratic obstacles effectively prevented much humanitarian material from reaching Iraq, the UN did grant humanitarian exemptions and heeded some criticisms based on humanitarian concerns. At the urging of the UN Secretary General, the 661 committee streamlined many of its procedures. But the basic policies remained intact—humanitarian goods required prior approval, and the ban on dual-use goods remained in place. And when the UN's interest in security and humanitarian concerns came into conflict, the interest in security still trumped.

In 1996 the Security Council and Iraq agreed to an Oil for Food program (OFF), which provides a mechanism for the purchase of goods except where the 661 committee has a specific objection, and then monitors their distribution and use. Under OFF, Iraq was initially authorized to sell $2 billion of oil in any six-month period (the limit was later increased to $5.3 billion). The extensive presence of UN humanitarian agencies in Iraq (as well as UNSCOM) is funded by the oil sales themselves. There are more than 400 international UN staff in Iraq and another 1,300 Iraqis on the UN staff. In the northern sector of the country the UN has taken over an entire range of governmental functions on behalf of (and with the agreement of) the Iraqi government—including food distribution, agriculture, nutrition programs, distribution of medical supplies, dam repair, renovation of schools, installation of water pumps and the provision of printing equipment for school textbooks.

In the central and southern governorates, the mandate of the UN agencies is only to assist and monitor the government in such functions. Even so, UN staff determine whether resources are adequate to meet "essential needs" in a given area, and they document and confirm the equitable distribution of food, distribution and storage of medical supplies, and the use of water and sanitation supplies. Iraq submits proposals for every purchase with oil funds—every gear, pipe, chemical, valve, piece of plywood, steel bar and rubber tube, for a country of 22 million people, on which it proposes to spend the $2.9 billion expected to come from the current phase of Oil for Food. For each of these items, Iraq is required to specify not only the exact use but the particular end user—which grain silo will be using each of the conveyor belts Iraq wishes to purchase. Although the UN bureaucracy now processes these contracts quickly, there are still substantial delays when the seller fails to provide enough details in the application or when its nation's UN mission is slow to submit the paperwork.

The intricacy of the process for obtaining purchase and contract approval pales in comparison to the thoroughness with which each item is observed and documented once it arrives in Iraq. At the border, inspection agents under contract to the UN document the arrival of every item, verify quantity and quality, and conduct lab tests to confirm that the goods conform to the contract. Once the goods have crossed the borders, UN observers then confirm the transit of all goods, their storage and equitable distribution, and they document the end use. Finally, UN staff review the documentation of the hundreds of UN observers. All this is paid for by 2.2 percent of the Iraqi oil sales—as of November 1998, $207 million. Precisely because the system of verification is so thorough, the Security Council has been willing to grant permission for some dual-use goods to enter the country. The 661 committee has allowed purchases, for example, of chlorine gas for water purification and spare parts for crop-dusting helicopters because UN personnel were in Iraq to verify the location and use of each canister of chlorine and the installation of each helicopter part and the destruction of the old parts.

Relative to other UN programs around the world, those in Iraq are highly elaborate and expensive. Yet they do not come close to meeting the country's needs, according to the Secretary General's report of last fall. Although the quantity of chlorinated water is greater now, the water distribution system has deteriorated so much that by the time it arrives in people's homes, the water is not consistently potable. The emergency parts for electrical generators that do arrive merely slow down the deterioration of the electrical system, the power cuts are expected to be worse next year than this year. There are 210 million square meters of minefields, and the UN's three mine-detector dog teams (a total of six dogs) can barely make a dent.

It does not seem that the structure of the UN sanctions on Iraq could be duplicated in other situations. The expense of an elaborate bureaucracy, which closely monitors virtually all the goods Iraq has been permitted to purchase, is possible only because Iraq is paying for it. And that, in turn, is possible only because Iraq's wealth is so vast, and so easily converted to cash. Were it not for Iraq's wealth and the Security Council's success in tapping it, monitoring the sanctions regime and its humanitarian exemptions would cost far more than the UN could ever afford. Since most sanctioned countries—Yugoslavia, for example—don't have resources that can be tapped in the way Iraqi oil has been, it is hard to imagine that there could be many more sanctions-and-exemptions regimes of this scale.

While the sanctions against Iraq are in many ways anomalous, they nevertheless provide a graphic demonstration of how such extreme sanctions are implemented and justified. Just as the Gulf War offered a testing ground for new alliances and new weapons in the post-cold war world, the sanctions against Iraq have been an experiment in non-military devices of international governance. Both the United States and the UN are exhibiting a growing reliance on economic sanctions to achieve their aims around the world, even if in areas outside Iraq the sanctions regimes are somewhat less ambitious.

Although the UN had imposed sanctions only twice between 1945 and 1990, it has done so eleven times since then. But even this is very little in comparison with the frequency of US sanctions. Between 1945 and 1990 sanctions were imposed worldwide in 104 instances; in two-thirds of these, the United States was either a key player or the sanctions were unilateral actions by the United States with no participation from other countries. Since 1990 the United States' use of sanctions has increased by an order of magnitude. As of 1998, it imposed economic sanctions against more than twenty countries.

Even as it has been using sanctions on its own behalf, the United States has spearheaded many of the Security Council's recent sanctions efforts. While it would be incorrect to treat the Security Council as simply a naked tool of US hegemony (as much as Jesse Helms would like that to happen), the United States does have disproportionate influence both because of the veto power it holds as one of the five permanent members and because of its economic influence globally. And its leverage has only increased in recent years as Russia's willingness to exercise its veto power has been tempered by its dependence on the West for massive capital investment.

In 1990, sanctions appeared to be a nearly ideal device for international governance. They seemed to entail inconvenience and some political disruption but not casualties. Unlike the situation in Somalia, sanctions in Iraq did not involve troops. Because sanctions seemed to incur less human damage than bombing campaigns, peace and human rights movements found them attractive as well. Indeed, many of those opposing the Gulf War in 1990 urged the use of sanctions instead.

But what Iraq shows us is that it is now possible for sanctions to cause far more than inconvenience or international embarrassment. In the absence of a Soviet bloc as an alternative source of trade, it is now possible to construct a comprehensive sanctions regime that can absolutely break the back of any nation with a weak or import-dependent economy. Iraq has also demonstrated, quite graphically, that sanctions can cause fully as much human suffering as even a massive bombing campaign. Iraqi casualties from the Gulf War were in the range of 10,000 to 50,000. Casualties attributed to sanctions are anywhere from ten to thirty times that—and that's only counting the deaths of young children.

This ought to raise serious ethical concerns, since sanctions (like their low-tech predecessor, siege warfare) historically have caused the most extreme and direct suffering to those who are the weakest, the most vulnerable and the least political. At the same time, those who are affected last and least are the military and political leadership, who are generally insulated from anything except inconvenience and the discomfort of seeing "the fearful spectacle of the civilian dead," to use Michael Walzer's phrase. However devastating their effects on the economy and the civilian population may be, sanctions are rarely successful in achieving changes in governmental policy or conduct. Sanctions, like siege warfare, have generally been perceived by civilian populations as the hostile and damaging act of a foreign power. Sanctions, like siege warfare, have generally resulted in a renewed sense of national cohesion, not domestic pressure for political change. The most generous scholarship on this issue holds that in the twentieth century, sanctions achieved their stated political goals only about one-third of the time. But even that figure is disputed by those who point out that in most of these cases there were other factors as well; a more critical estimate places the success rate at less than 5 percent. In the other "success" cases—such as South Africa, which is often cited to show that "sanctions can work"—there were major factors other than sanctions. Many have suggested that the end of apartheid was due to internal political movements as much as to international sanctions. South Africa was also atypical in that those most affected by the sanctions also supported them. If not sanctions, then what? Is bombing preferable to sanctions as a device to "punish rogues" and enforce international law? Without the sanctions option, it is sometimes argued, the militarists will just say there is no longer an alternative to bombing. But the Iraq situation demonstrates that sanctions are not merely a "problematic" or "less than ideal" form of political pressure. Rather, they are an indirect form of warfare. Not only are they politically counterproductive, but sanctions directed toward the economy generally (as opposed to, say, seizing personal assets of leaders) are inherently antihumanitarian.

Denis Halliday, the former Assistant Secretary General of the UN, resigned in protest last fall, saying that he no longer wished "to be identified with a United Nations that is . . . maintaining a sanctions programme . . . which kills and maims people through chronic malnutrition . . . and continues this programme knowingly." His conclusion seems very like US Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun's position on the death penalty in his 1994 dissent in Callins v. Collins: For the death penalty to be constitutional, it must be applied equally in like cases; but at the same time, the sentencing judge must have the option of granting mercy based upon the circumstances. These two requirements, Blackmun reasoned, are irreconcilable, and no amount of "tinkering" will somehow make the contradiction dissolve. Likewise, no amount of tinkering will make sanctions anything other than a violent and inhumane form of international governance. It is hard to articulate any greater good that can justify the deliberate, systematic imposition of measures that are known to increase chronic malnutrition, infant mortality and the many varieties of human damage that impoverishment inflicts.

SENSE OF HOUSE REGARDING HUMAN RIGHTS IN CUBA

SPEECH OF

HON. DAN BURTON

OF INDIANA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 23, 1999

Mr. BURTON of Indiana. Mr. Speaker, I would like to express my support for H. Res. 99. If you follow Cuban policy at all, I know you will agree with me that it is disappointing to see this Administration yield to this hemisphere's last remaining dictator, Fidel Castro. Not long ago, President Clinton announced a new proposal to loosen the trade embargo on the Government of Cuba. The embargo was codified because of the murder of unarmed American citizens. I believe that Castro has done nothing to warrant any reevaluation of the sanctions imposed on his regime. Now, almost three years later, the President has taken steps that not only breathe new life into the brutal Castro dictatorship, but he is trying to circumvent U.S. law.

Now, we learn that the Clinton Administration has decided to hold our American pastime hostage. If the President gets his way, the Baltimore Orioles will face a Cuban National team in Havana on March 28th of this year. It is appalling to me that the President is using baseball to push friendly relations with the Cuban dictatorship. This will be the first Major League Baseball visit to Havana since 1959, and it couldn't come at a worse time. A Cuban court has just convicted the island's four top opposition leaders for sedition.

Vladimiro Roca Antunez, Martha Beatriz Roque Cabello, Felix Bonne Carcases, and Rene Gomez Manzano were arrested in 1997 after petitioning the regime for immediate reforms and publishing a pamphlet entitled "The Homeland Belongs to Us All." In this pamphlet, they describe their hopes for a free and democratic Cuba. They were convicted for nothing more than expressing their opinions and speaking the truth. They are the Lech Walensas & Vaclav Havels of Cuba. Their trial and conviction came two weeks after Castro handed down his new Sedition Law to severely punish those who dare speak to foreign journalists or publicly criticize his revolution.

Under the new Sedition Law, they were arrested for holding news conferences with foreign journalists and diplomats, urging voters to boycott Cuba's one-party elections, warning foreigners that their investments would contribute to Cuban suffering, condemning Castro's grip on power, and criticizing Communist Party propaganda. Mr. Speaker, this sounds to me like a return to the gulags of Soviet communism and the horror of European fascism.

They were apprehended and jailed 1½ years ago for their "crimes". On top of the imprisonment and physical and mental mistreatment they endured for more than 600 days, the four freedom fighters were also forced to endure a Stalinist show trial. As a recent wire report observed, in keeping with the closed, totalitarian nature of the Castro regime, "Few Cubans and even fewer foreigners are allowed inside a Cuban courtroom. Trials tend to be closed and proceedings are rarely reported by the government-controlled media." But Castro eagerly allowed the cameras to roll during the trial of these four dissidents to send a message to the rest of the island: Anyone who threatens his regime will be punished severely. Cuban reporters are terrified of the new Sedition Law; it has empowered Castro's secret police to intensify their harassment of Cuba's already-stifled press.

The dissidents received prison sentences ranging from 3½ to 5 years. The independent Cuban Commission on Human Rights and National Reconciliation said that since Feb. 26, 1999, authorities had rounded up nearly 40 other dissidents and warned an additional 35 to remain at home during the March 1st trial. Officials from the U.S. Interest Section in Havana were denied access to the trial.

The State Department recently released this statement regarding the trial: "We strongly denounce these actions by the Cuban government, which reveal its utter disregard of the concerns of the international community." Yet, neither the president nor the secretary of state has taken any action to put muscle behind those words. In fact, underscoring its perverse misunderstanding of the situation, the State Department believes the trial and conviction of these four voices of freedom is the very reason we need more people-to-people contacts with Havana. The only thing more people-to-people contacts will do is further prop-up Castro's regime.

Finally, it should be noted that the Sedition Law was approved by Castro just weeks after the president's January announcement that he was easing the embargo.

Mr. Speaker, I must also report even more disturbing news to my colleagues. I believe we have an administration that is so hellbent on normalizing relations with Cuba that it is willing to overlook allegations of drug-trafficking.

On December 3, 1998, the Colombian National Police seized 7.5 tons of cocaine headed for Cuba, and eventually likely the United States and elsewhere. I have sent investigators down there who were able to put together the pieces of the puzzle in three days which our government, the ONDCP, DEA, CIA, and White House have either not been willing to do, or worse do not want to put together.

I have a letter from Barry McCaffrey which says there is no evidence that the Castro government is involved in drug-trafficking, ignoring the fact that Castro's brother, Raul, has been under indictment in Miami since the early 1990's for drug-trafficking and racketeering. Also, Ileana de la Guardia, the daughter of executed Cuban Colonel Tony de la Guardia, is currently involved in a court case in France where she alleges that drug trafficking reaches the "highest echelons" of the Cuban government.

What is the problem with this administration when it comes to Fidel Castro? Why does the White House continue to ignore the grim and brutal realities of Castro's dictatorship? I don't know the answer, but I believe it goes beyond a simple disagreement on policy. How we can turn a blind eye to Castro's behavior and even reward him is truly beyond me.

What is obvious is the fact that this White House will do anything to normalize relations with the last dictator in the Western Hemisphere. The White House wants to dilute and then eliminate the Burton-Helms Embargo; the White House is flouting the law, ignoring the will of the American people, and tossing aside four decades of bipartisan agreement on Castro. It is left to us in Congress to do what is right.

Mr. Speaker, I join my fellow cosponsors in support of H. Res. 99. Let's do everything we can to keep the heat on Castro and his gulags. As a Houston Chronicle editorial recently observed, "This is no time to play ball with Fidel Castro."

TRIBUTE TO KATHY ADAMSON

HON. ANNA G. ESHOO

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Ms. ESHOO. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Kathy Adamson, an extraordinary citizen of San Mateo County, California, who will be inducted into the San Mateo County Women's Hall of Fame on Friday, March 26, 1999.

A native of Redwood City, Kathy Adamson has been a foster parent to more than four hundred children ranging in age from newborn to sixteen. Children in her temporary care have included drug exposed infants, shaken babies, toddlers, children with Attention Deficit Disorders, and adolescent girls. Kathy's home became a hospice for terminally ill infants, many of whom died in her loving arms. Since 1995 she has worked with San Mateo County Mental Health as an independent contractor, providing a variety of programs designed to help support parents and children in need. In recognition of her professionalism, her exceptional work and her compassion, Kathy was elected President of the San Mateo County Foster Care Association.

Mr. Speaker, Kathy Adamson is an outstanding woman and I salute her for her remarkable contributions and commitment to our community. I ask my colleagues to join me in honoring her on being inducted into the San Mateo County Woman's Hall of Fame.

TRIBUTE TO ROBERT "PETERBO" BANKHEAD

HON. BENNIE G. THOMPSON

OF MISSISSIPPI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Speaker, I stand here today to pay tribute in memory of Mr. Robert "Peterbo" Bankhead, who recently passed. He was not only a County Supervisor in my district, the 2nd Congressional District, but also a personal and dear friend to me. It is very hard to effectively portray in a short amount of time to you the true heart, spirit, and countless deeds of Mr. Robert "Peterbo" Bankhead.

Mr. Robert "Peterbo" Bankhead was born on August 30, 1999. He attended Humphreys County High School in Belzoni, Mississippi where he was a member of the first class to graduate from Humphreys County High School. He graduated from Mississippi Valley State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Criminal Justice in 1977. Additionally, he graduated from MATC (Milwaukee Area Technical College) with a degree in the Culinary Arts. He opened Peterbo's Restaurant in 1974 in Isola, Mississippi where it remains today. During the life of Robert Bankhead, he received several social and community awards for his countless hours, and dedication. He was life-time member of Mississippi Valley State Alumni, the Mississippi Restaurant's Association, and served as Beat 1 Supervisor for Humphrey County for two consecutive terms.

Robert will always be remembered as a person willing to go the extra mile. In closing, Mr. Speaker I would like to say that Robert has made a tremendous contribution to the future of America. His work was pivotal and instrumental in the overall success of my 1996 and 1998 campaign. My prayers go out to his family and his contributions will be remembered in Mississippi, specifically the 2nd Congressional District for years to come.

A BLOOMIN' GOOD FAMILY AND THEIR BLOOMIN' GOOD BUSINESS

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, all around Washington the crocuses and forsythia are starting to bloom, and for some it is a daily ritual to see whether or not the famed cherry blossoms have started to hail the true start of spring. The people of Saginaw, Michigan, may not have the same early blooms or the Tidal Basin ritual, but they have something better—McDonald's Nursery which is celebrating its 70th anniversary this week.

Seventy years ago, Dr. Francis J. McDonald, a dentist with a vision for the beauty of nature, started McDonald's Nursery as a hobby. He bought five acres of land off Seidel Road with a 400-year old beech tree on it. He dug a well that to this day supplies water to the nursery, and with his children, Joe, Jim, Mary, Catherine and Tom, he planted trees. Today those trees provide a forty foot tall memorial to his legacy. With his wife Mary, he moved the family to what would become one of the most famous nurseries in this part of Michigan.

Nursery products were sold out of the front yard at the beginning. During World War II, while sons Joe and Jim served in the military, he expanded the nursery buying more property with an eye towards the growing suburban area. When Joe returned home, a landscape division was started, and then in 1946 a garden store. The seasonal nursery business turned into a Christmas business in 1955, so that it is now a year-round operation with its biggest months in December and May.

Today, McDonald's Nursery has 112 employees and sales of nearly $4 million. It has gone through thirteen expansions, and now covers 210 acres in Thomas Township, with an 18-acre lake providing irrigation. The McDonald family has made its mark on the Saginaw business community as leaders to be admired and emulated.

Starting from Francis McDonald's hobby, to Tom McDonald telling friends at a Chamber of Commerce dinner that they sell "every bloomin' thing"—a phrase which became the nursery's hallmark, this is a business that we are privileged to have in the Saginaw community. Mr. Speaker, I urge you and all of our colleagues to join me in congratulating McDonald's Nursery on its 70th anniversary, and in wishing that their new slogan, "McDonald's Nursery 70 Years and Growing" holds as much promise as the first bloom of spring.

TELECOMMUNICATIONS MERGERS

HON. TOM DeLAY

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I would like to commend the antitrust division of the Department of Justice for approving the SBC-Ameritech merger. As the telecommunications industry continues to evolve in the aftermath of the Telecommunications Reform Act of 1996, the promise of that act can be fulfilled only if regulatory agencies remove the eye shades of New Deal regulation and begin to view the competitive landscape of tomorrow with a fresh look. This is precisely what the Department has done this week.

However, I was not pleased to learn that, unlike mergers in other competitive industries, telecommunications mergers such as the SBC-Ameritech venture must jump through several hoops before the deal is done. Not only does the Department of Justice conduct its traditional antitrust review, these mergers often must receive the blessing of multiple local and state agencies as well as the Federal Communications Commission. A reasonable person might assume that once the Department of Justice has issued a clean bill of antitrust health for a proposed merger, that venture has passed the smell test. I hope that same reasonable person would share the concern that I have after reading this week that the FCC may hold this merger, and others like it, hostage under some ransom-guided interpretation of the so-called "public interest" standard.

Mr. Speaker, the underlying premise of the Telecommunications Reform Act we passed in the 104th Congress was to break down the artificial barriers of regulation so that the marketplace would choose the winners and losers in this vital industry. We appear to be a long way from the realization of that promise when regulatory bodies handcuff the invisible hand of our free market system.

I would strongly urge the FCC to follow the lead of the DOJ and quickly approve this merger.

JEROME JANCZAK 1999 PAL JOEY AWARD WINNER

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in tribute to Jerome "Jerry" Janczak, of Milwaukee, the recipient of the 1999 Pal Joey Award from the St. Joseph Foundation, Incorporated.

Jerry Janczak, a true product of Milwaukee's south side, is the youngest of eleven children born to his Polish immigrant parents. He attended Catholic grade school and high school, where he was an accomplished athlete. Shortly after graduating from high school, Jerry enlisted in the United States Air Force, where he served until 1955. While stationed in Florida, he met his future wife, Grace. They were married in 1954.

Jerry worked for many years as an employee of Milwaukee County, with the House of Corrections, the Sheriff Department and the Probate Court where he remained until his retirement in 1988.

That same year, Jerry was honored by the South Side Business Club as their "Man of the Year" and was given the "Special Award" by the St. Joseph Foundation.

Jerry and Grace have two children, Michael and Thomas, and six grandchildren. Jerry's love of sports and competition, which he passed down to his children, led him to develop a part-time trophy and awards business in 1972, which still operates today. Besides his family and business, Jerry's hobbies include golf, bowling, sheephead and traveling throughout his home state, Wisconsin.

He is active in many civic and religious organizations, including his parish, St. Mary Magdalen, the South Side Business Club, St. Joseph Foundation, the Milwaukee Society Polish National Alliance, Polish Festivals, Inc., and the secret International Mushroom Pickers Society (IMPS.)

Jerry has given valuable time, energy and resources to make Milwaukee's south side and the Polish community stronger and has set a fine example for all to follow. For these reasons, he is truly deserving of the 1999 Pal Joey Award.

Congratulations, Jerry and Grace. Keep up the excellent work. May God continue to bless you and yours.

COMMENDING DR. W.C. WIEDERHOLT

HON. ROBERT A. UNDERWOOD

OF GUAM

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, For more than a century the Chamorros on Guam have suffered by Lytico and Bodig. There is hardly a family on the island who has not had a relative die of one of these terrible diseases. During the past 40 years, many researchers have come to Guam to investigate the diseases, and to try and find the cause and subsequent treatment for Lytico and Bodig. One of these researchers is Dr. W.C. Wiederholt who first came to Guam in 1994 at the invitation of Dr. Kurland of the Mayo Clinic. His mission was to complete the mandated functions of the University of Guam/Mayo Grant and to evaluate the possibilities of writing a five-year grant. The University of Guam/Mayo grant activities had gone awry for many reasons, and it appeared as if the research on Lytico and Bodig would once again come to a halt. However, Dr. Wiederholt pressed on undaunted despite the obstacles. He took a sabbatical leave from the University of California at San Diego and remained in Guam for almost six months. He brought the project back on track and provided much needed neurology services. Dr. Wiederholt also conducted some pilot studies to gather data for the new grant application.

Under Dr. Wiederholt's leadership, and with the collaborative efforts of a group of world-renowned neuroscientists, the University of Guam and the University of California at San Diego were awarded a $10.8 million grant in 1996 to study "Age-related neurodegenerative disease in Micronesia." The project employs nine local people, and provides practical sites for social work and nursing students, as well as internship opportunities for Guam medical students. In addition, the project provides support to students at all grade levels preparing theses or dissertations about Guam's neurodegenerative diseases, aging concerns and caregiver issues.

Under Dr. Wiederholt's guidance, the project has moved into a new dimension and is exploring, among many potential causes, how familial predisposition or susceptibility might interact with environmental factors in causing the disease. It is hoped that through Dr. Wiederholt's research, more effective methods for detection, treatment and ultimately the prevention of this disease will be developed for the benefit of the people of Guam.

Guam has become Dr. Wiederholt's home for at least seven months out of the year. Not only does he make initial diagnoses of neurological diseases and furnishes follow-up services to all patients, he also provides courtesy consultations to Guam's community physicians and the Veterans Affairs Center.

Dr. Wiederholt's dedication to the people of Guam is highly admirable and deserves our sincerest gratitude. On behalf of the people of Guam, I say to you Dr. Wiederholt, Si Yu'os Ma'ase.

IN HONOR OF PAULINE "POLLY" HAMMACK

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, it is with a heavy heart that I now take this moment to recognize the life and contributions of Pauline "Polly" Hammack. Sadly, Colorado lost this leading citizen earlier this year. While family and friends remember Polly's remarkable life, I, too, would like to pay tribute to this great American citizen and friend.

Born on June 22, 1919 in Vine, Tennessee, Polly spent most of her professional life as an employee of Denver Dry Goods beginning in the fall of 1966. She would retire as an Assistant Store Manager and Personnel Director 20 years later.

In addition to her distinguished service with Denver Dry Goods, Polly long played an active and leading role in Colorado politics. For many years, Polly has been a familiar and energetic presence on various political campaigns. Most significantly, she was instrumental in President George Bush's presidential campaign efforts both in 1988 and 1996. She also served on the State Board of Republican Women for an extended period of time. In spite of being afflicted by severe illness during the last election cycle, Polly maintained an active role in Colorado politics by way of the telephone. Her commitment to America, even in times of personal ailment, is truly admirable and deeply commendable.

As friends and family remember Polly's remarkable life, I am confident that the pain they feel at her passing will subside. Although all who have had the privilege to know Polly are worse off in her absence, I am hopeful that each will take solace in the knowledge that they are a better person for having known her.

It is with this, Mr. Speaker, that I say thank you to Polly for her dedication to America. I am hopeful that her husband Wayne, her children Wayne and Barbara, her grandsons Richard and Douglas, her sister Mildred, and her daughter-in-law Mary will find comfort in this difficult time.

INTRODUCING THE STOCKPILE STEWARDSHIP RESOLUTION

HON. EDWARD J. MARKEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing a resolution to express the Sense of Congress regarding the direction of the U.S. program to maintain the safety and reliability of the nuclear weapons stockpile in the post-Cold War era.

The Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty, which President Clinton signed in 1996, bans all nuclear explosions in order to promote nuclear disarmament and nonproliferation "by constraining the development and qualitative improvement of nuclear weapons and ending the development of advanced new types of nuclear weapons." The treaty requires us to maintain the safety and reliability of our nuclear weapons without explosive tests. It does not require us to spend $60 million for new submarine warhead designs. It does not require us to spend $198 million on underground "subcritical" nuclear tests and preparing for banned explosive tests at the Nevada Test Site. It does not require us to spend $466 million on fusion explosion experiments that could lead to hydrogen bombs that don't need uranium or plutonium, which would be a non-proliferation nightmare. And it certainly does not require us to spend $5.5 million for a new National Atomic Museum, colocated with the Anderson-Abruzzo International Balloon Museum.

These and other projects are an expensive jobs program for nuclear scientists, in the guise of keeping unneeded weapons design, testing, and manufacturing capability. They are inconsistent with our commitment to nuclear disarmament in the Nonproliferation Treaty and with the purposes of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty. Faced with our massive investment in nuclear weapons research, other nations are slowing arms reductions and keeping their own nuclear weapons development programs, thus putting our real security at risk.

The safety and reliability of the nuclear weapons stockpile can be maintained with a more modest program of surveillance of the warheads and occasional remanufacturing when necessary. The resolution I am introducing today expresses support for such a custodianship program that protects our national security without wasting money or providing cover for new nuclear weapons programs that will prolong the Cold War and undermine the unsteady international nuclear non-proliferation regime. The resolution expresses the Sense of Congress that the nuclear weapons stockpile can be maintained with a program that is far smaller, less expensive, and does not require facilities or experiments that are likely to be used for warhead design or development. The resolution thus urges the Secretary of Energy to redirect the program for custodianship of the nuclear weapons arsenal toward less costly and less provocative methods that are consistent with United States treaty obligations.

I hope this resolution will serve as a useful vehicle for educating the Congress and the public about the nature of the current stockpile stewardship program and for promoting consideration of less costly and less destabilizing alternatives. I urge my colleagues to join in co-sponsoring this resolution, and moving towards a more sound nuclear policy.

SENATE COMMITTEE MEETINGS

Title IV of Senate Resolution 4, agreed to by the Senate on February 4, 1977, calls for establishment of a system for a computerized schedule of all meetings and hearings of Senate committees, subcommittees, joint committees, and committees of conference. This title requires all such committees to notify the Office of the Senate Daily Digest—designated by the Rules committee—of the time, place, and purpose of the meetings, when scheduled, and any cancellations or changes in the meetings as they occur.

As an additional procedure along with the computerization of this information, the Office of the Senate Daily Digest will prepare this information for printing in the Extensions of Remarks section of the Congressional Record on Monday and Wednesday of each week.

Meetings scheduled for Thursday, March 25, 1999 may be found in the Daily Digest of today's RECORD.

MEETINGS SCHEDULED

APRIL 14

9:30 a.m.

Commerce, Science, and Transportation
To hold hearings to examine the published scandals plaguing the Olympics.
SR-253

Indian Affairs

To hold oversight hearings on the implementation of welfare reform for Indians.
SR-485

2 p.m.

Energy and Natural Resources
Forests and Public Land Management Subcommittee

To hold hearings on S. 415, to protect the permanent trust funds of the State of Arizona from erosion due to inflation and modify the basis on which distributions are made from those funds; and S. 607, reauthorize and amend the National Geologic Mapping Act of 1992.
SD-366

APRIL 20

9:30 a.m.

Energy and Natural Resources
To hold hearings on S. 25, to provide Coastal Impact Assistance to State and local governments, to amend the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments of 1978, the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, the Urban Park and Recreation Recovery Act, and the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act (commonly referred to as the Pittman-Robertson Act) to establish a fund to meet the outdoor conservation and recreation needs of the American people; S. 446, to provide for the permanent protection of the resources of the United States in the year 2000 and beyond; and S. 532, to provide increased funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund and Urban Parks and Recreation Recovery Programs, to resume the funding of the State grants program of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and to provide for the acquisition and development of conservation and recreation facilities and programs in urban areas.

SD-366

Indian Affairs

To hold oversight hearings on the implementation of the Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act.
SR-485

APRIL 21

9:30 a.m.

Indian Affairs

To hold hearings on S. 401, to provide for business development and trade promotion for native Americans, and for other purposes.
SR-485

Armed Services

Readiness and Management Support Subcommittee
To hold hearings on the readiness of the United States Navy and Marines operating forces.
SR-222

2 p.m.

Energy and Natural Resources

Forests and Public Land Management Subcommittee

To hold oversight hearings to review the Memorandum of Understanding signed by multiple agencies regarding the Lewis and Clark bicentennial celebration.
SD-366

APRIL 27

9:30 a.m.

Energy and Natural Resources

To resume hearings on S. 25, to provide Coastal Impact Assistance to State and local governments, to amend the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments of 1978, the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, the Urban Park and Recreation Recovery Act, and the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act (commonly referred to as the Pittman-Robertson Act) to establish a fund to meet the outdoor conservation and recreation needs of the American people; S. 446, to provide for the permanent protection of the resources of the United States in the year 2000 and beyond; and S. 532, to provide increased funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund and Urban Parks and Recreation Recovery Programs, to resume the funding of the State grants program of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and to provide for the acquisition and development of conservation and recreation facilities and programs in urban areas.
SD-366

APRIL 28

9:30 a.m.

Indian Affairs

To hold oversight hearings on Bureau of Indian Affairs capacity and mission.
SR-485

MAY 4

9:30 a.m.

Energy and Natural Resources

To resume hearings on S. 25, to provide Coastal Impact Assistance to State and local governments, to amend the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act Amendments of 1978, the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965, the Urban Park and Recreation Recovery Act, and the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration Act (commonly referred to as the Pittman-Robertson Act) to establish a fund to meet the outdoor conservation and recreation needs of the American people; S. 446, to provide for the permanent protection of the resources of the United States in the year 2000 and beyond; and S. 532, to provide increased funding for the Land and Water Conservation Fund and Urban Parks and Recreation Recovery Programs, to resume the funding of the State grants program of the Land and Water Conservation Fund, and to provide for the acquisition and development of conservation and recreation facilities and programs in urban areas.
SD-366

Indian Affairs

To hold oversight hearings on Census 2000, implementation in Indian Country.
SR-485

MAY 5

9:30 a.m.

Indian Affairs

To hold oversight hearings on Tribal Priority Allocations and Contract Support Costs Report.
SR-485

MAY 6

9:30 a.m.

Energy and Natural Resources

To hold hearings to examine the results of the December 1998 plebiscite on Puerto Rico.
SH-216

MAY 12

9:30 a.m.

Indian Affairs

To hold oversight hearings on HUBzones implementation.
SR-485

MAY 19

9:30 a.m.

Indian Affairs

To hold hearings on S. 614, to provide for regulatory reform in order to encourage investment, business, and economic development with respect to activities conducted on Indian lands.
SR-485

SEPTEMBER 28

9:30 a.m.

Veterans' Affairs

To hold joint hearings with the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs to review the legislative recommendations of the American Legion.
345 Cannon Building

Wednesday, March 24, 1999

Daily Digest

HIGHLIGHTS

The House passed H.R. 1141, Emergency Supplemental Appropriations.
The House agreed to H. Res. 130, expressing support for the U.S. Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Senate

Chamber Action

Routine Proceedings, pages S3159–S3308

Measures Introduced: Twenty bills and one resolution were introduced as follows: S. 693–712, and S. Res. 74.

Page S3246

Measures Passed:

National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day: Committee on the Judiciary was discharged from further consideration of S. Res. 53, to designate March 24, 1999, as "National School Violence Victims' Memorial Day", and the resolution was then agreed.

Pages S3180–82

Chapter 12 U.S.C. Extension: Senate passed H.R. 808, to extend for 3 additional months the period for which chapter 12 of title 11 of the United States Code is reenacted, clearing the measure for the President.

Page S3299

Small Business Authorization: Senate passed H.R. 774, to amend the Small Business Act to change the conditions of participation and provide an authorization of appropriations for the women's business center program, clearing the measure for the President.

Pages S3299–S3300

Smithsonian Board of Regents Appointment: Senate passed H.J. Res. 26, providing for the reappointment of Barber B. Conable, Jr. as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, clearing the measure for the President.

Page S3300

Smithsonian Board of Regents Appointment: Senate passed H.J. Res. 27, providing for the reappointment of Dr. Hanna H. Gray as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, clearing the measure for the President.

Page S3300

Smithsonian Board of Regents Appointment: Senate passed H.J. Res. 28, providing for the reappointment of Wesley S. Williams, Jr. as a citizen regent of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, clearing the measure for the President.

Page S3300

Support for Armed Forces in Yugoslavia: Senate agreed to S. Res. 74, expressing the support of the Senate for the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia.

Page S3300

Congressional Budget: Senate began consideration of S. Con. Res. 20, setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal years 2000 through 2009, taking action on the following amendments proposed thereto:

Pages S3161–80, S3182–S3240, S3301–08

Adopted:

By a unanimous vote of 99 yeas (Vote No. 58), Abraham Amendment No. 143, to express the sense of Congress on the protection of Social Security surpluses for current and future beneficiaries.

Pages S3177–80 S3182–86, S3195

Smith (of Oregon)/Sarbanes Amendment No. 152, to express the sense of the Senate on providing adequate funding for United States international leadership.

Pages S3218–20

By a unanimous vote of 99 yeas (Vote No. 60), Ashcroft Amendment No. 145, to express the sense of the Senate that the Federal Government should not directly invest the social security trust funds in private financial markets.

Pages S3197–99, S3225

By a unanimous vote of 99 yeas (Vote No. 63), Johnson Amendment No. 153, to increase funding in fiscal year 2000 for veterans health care by taking an across-the-board cut in all discretionary programs, except for veterans and defense.

Pages S3220–23, S3226–27

Collins Amendment No. 159, to express the sense of the Senate on Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA–21) funding and the States.

Pages S3231–32

Rejected:

Bond Amendment No. 151, in the nature of a substitute. (By 97 yeas to 2 nays (Vote No. 62), Senate tabled the amendment.)

Pages S3214–18, S3226

Pending:

Specter/Harkin Amendment No. 157, to provide for funding of biomedical research at the National Institutes of Health.

Pages S3223–25, S3228–31

Craig Amendment No. 146, to modify the pay-as-you-go requirement of the budget process to require that direct spending increases be offset only with direct spending decreases.

Page S3228

Dodd Amendment No. 160, to increase the mandatory spending in the Child Care and Development Block Grant by $7.5 billion over five years, the amendment reduces the resolution's tax cut and leaves adequate room in the revenue instructions for targeted tax cuts that help families with the costs of caring for their children, and that such relief would assist all working families with employment related child care expenses, as well as families in which one parent stays home to care for an infant.

Pages S3232–34

Voinovich Amendment No. 161, to use on-budget surplus to repay the debt instead of tax cuts.

Pages S3234–36

Reed Amendment No. 162, to provide for certain Federal revenues, total new budget authority, and total budget outlays.

Pages S3236–38

Crapo/Grams Amendment No. 163, to create a reserve fund to lock in additional non-Social Security surplus in the outyears for tax relief and/or debt reduction.

Pages S3238–40

Graham Amendment No. 164, to express the sense of the Senate that funds recovered from any Federal tobacco-related litigation should be set-aside for the purpose of first strengthening the medicare trust fund and second to fund a medicare prescription drug benefit.

Pages S3301–03

Graham Amendment No. 165, to express the sense of the Senate that the Congress and the President should offset inappropriate emergency funding from fiscal year 1999 in fiscal year 1999.

Pages S3303–05

Lautenberg Amendment No. 166, to express the sense of the Senate on saving Social Security and Medicare, reducing the public debt, and targeting tax relief to middle-income working families.

Pages S3305–06

Lautenberg (for Schumer) Amendment No. 167, to express the sense of the Senate that the Community Oriented Policing Services (COPS) Program should be reauthorized in order to provide continued Federal funding for the hiring, deployment, and retention of community law enforcement officers.

Page S3306

Lautenberg (for Feinstein) Amendment No. 168, to express the sense of the Senate regarding school construction grants, and reducing school sizes and class sizes.

Page S3306

Lautenberg (for Feinstein) Amendment No. 169, to express the sense of the Senate on the social promotion of elementary and secondary school students.

Page S3306

Lautenberg (for Reid) Amendment No. 170, to express the sense of the Senate regarding social security "notch babies", those individuals born between the years 1917 and 1926.

Page S3306

Lautenberg (for Boxer) Amendment No. 171, to ensure that the President's after school initiative is fully funded for fiscal year 2000.

Page S3306

Lautenberg (for Murray) Amendment No. 172, to fully fund the Class Size Initiative, the amendment reduces the resolution's tax cut by ten billion dollars, leaving adequate room in the revenue reconciliation instructions for targeted tax cuts that help those in need and tax breaks for communities to modernize and rebuild crumbling schools.

Pages S3306–07

Lautenberg (for Murray) Amendment No. 173, to express the sense of the Senate on women and Social Security reform.

Page S3307

Lautenberg (for Hollings) Amendment No. 174, to continue Federal spending at the current services baseline levels and pay down the Federal debt.

Pages S3307–08

Lautenberg (for Boxer) Amendment No. 175, to ensure that the substantial majority of any income tax cuts go to middle and lower income taxpayers.

Page S3308

During consideration of this measure today, the Senate also took the following action:

Three-fifths of those Senators duly chosen and sworn not having voted in the affirmative, Senate rejected motions to waive certain provisions of the Congressional Budget Act with respect to the consideration of the following amendments:

By 45 yeas to 54 nays (Vote No. 59), Lautenberg Amendment No. 144, to ensure that Congress saves Social Security and strengthens Medicare before using projected budget surpluses for new spending or tax breaks.

Pages S3187–88, S3191–96

By 45 yeas to 54 nays (Vote No. 61), Conrad Amendment No. 147, to use any Federal budget surplus to save Social Security and Medicare first.

Pages S3199–S3214, S3225–26

Subsequently, a point of order that the amendments were in violation of the Congressional Budget Act was sustained, and the amendments thus fell.

Page S3326

A unanimous-consent agreement was reached providing for further consideration of the budget resolution and amendments to be proposed thereto, on Thursday, March 25, 1999.

Page S3328

A further unanimous-consent agreement was reached providing that when the Senate resumes consideration of the budget resolution on Thursday, March 25, 1999, there be 10 hours remaining.

Page S3224

Executive Reports of Committees: Senate received the following executive report of a committee:

Report to accompany the Convention on Nuclear Safety done at Vienna on September 20, 1994 (Treaty Doc. 104-6). (Exec. Rept. No. 106-1)

Pages S3244-45

Nominations Confirmed: Senate confirmed the following nominations:

William Lacy Swing, of North Carolina, to be Ambassador to the Democratic Republic of the Congo.

Robert A. Seiple, of Washington, to be Ambassador at Large for International Religious Freedom.

The following-named Career Member of the Senior Foreign Service, Class of Career Minister, for the personal rank of Career Ambassador in recognition of especially distinguished service over a sustained period:

Mary A. Ryan, of Texas.

A routine list in the Foreign Service.

Pages S3301, S3308

Nominations Received: Senate received the following nominations:

William Haskell Alsup, of California, to be United States District Judge for the Northern District of California.

J. Rich Leonard, of North Carolina, to be United States District Judge for the Eastern District of North Carolina.

Carlos Murguia, of Kansas, to be United States District Judge for the District of Kansas.

Marsha J. Pechman, of Washington, to be United States District Judge for the Western District of Washington.

Routine lists in the Foreign Service.

Page S3308

Messages From the House:

Pages S3242-43

Measures Referred:

Page S3243

Measures Placed on Calendar:

Page S3243

Communications:

Pages S3243-44

Executive Reports of Committees:

Pages S3244-45

Statements on Introduced Bills: Pages S3246-76

Additional Cosponsors: Pages S3276-77

Amendments Submitted: Pages S3277-90

Notices of Hearings: Page S3290

Authority for Committees: Pages S3290-91

Additional Statements: Pages S3291-99

Record Votes: Six record votes were taken today. (Total—63). Pages S3195-96, S3225-26

Adjournment: Senate convened at 9:30 a.m., and adjourned at 11:24 p.m., until 9 a.m., on Thursday, March 25, 1999. (For Senate's program, see the remarks of the Acting Majority Leader in today's Record on page 3301.)

Committee Meetings

(Committees not listed did not meet)

APPROPRIATIONS—FBI/DEA

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, State, and the Judiciary concluded hearings on proposed budget estimates for fiscal year 2000, after receiving testimony in behalf of funds for their respective activities from Louis J. Freeh, Director, Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Thomas A. Constantine, Administrator, Drug Enforcement Administration, both of the Department of Justice.

APPROPRIATIONS—SECRETARY OF THE SENATE/SERGEANT AT ARMS/CBO

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on the Legislative Branch concluded hearings on proposed budget estimates for fiscal year 2000, after receiving testimony in behalf of funds for their respective activities from Gary Sisco, Secretary of the Senate; James W. Ziglar, Senate Sergeant at Arms and Doorkeeper; and Dan L. Crippen, Director, Congressional Budget Office.

AUTHORIZATION—DEFENSE

Committee on Armed Services: Subcommittee on Airland concluded hearings on proposed legislation authorizing funds for fiscal year 2000 for the Department of Defense, focusing on Army modernization, and the future years defense program, after receiving testimony from Louis Caldera, Secretary of the Army; Gen. Dennis J. Reimer, USA, Chief of Staff of the Army; Maj. Gen. Thomas J. Plewes, USAR, Chief, Army Reserve; and Maj. Gen. Roger C. Schultz, USARNG, Director, Army National Guard.

AUTHORIZATION—DEFENSE

Committee on Armed Services: Subcommittee on Personnel concluded hearings on proposed legislation authorizing funds for fiscal year 2000 for the Department of Defense, focusing on active and reserve military and civilian personnel programs, and the future years defense program, receiving testimony from Rudy de Leon, Under Secretary of Defense for Personnel and Readiness; Patrick T. Henry, Assistant Secretary of the Army for Manpower and Reserve Affairs; Carolyn H. Becraft, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Manpower and Reserve Affairs; Ruby B. DeMesme, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Manpower, Reserve Affairs, Installations, and Environment; Lt. Gen. David H. Ohle, USA, Deputy Chief of Army Staff for Personnel; Vice Adm. Daniel T. Oliver, USN, Chief of Naval Personnel and Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Manpower and Personnel; Lt. Gen. Jack W. Klump, USMC, Deputy Chief of Staff for Manpower and Reserve Affairs; and Lt. Gen. Donald L. Peterson, USAF, Deputy Chief of Air Force Staff for Personnel.

FORCE PROTECTION

Committee on Armed Services: Subcommittee on Seapower concluded hearings to examine littoral force protection and power projection in the 21st century, after receiving testimony from Rear Adm. John B. Nathman, USN, Director, Air Warfare Division; Rear Adm. Michael G. Mullen, USN, Director, Surface Warfare Division; Rear Adm. Robert C. Williamson, USN, Director, Office of Program Appraisal; Maj. Gen. Dennis T. Krupp, USMC, Director, Expeditionary Warfare Division; and Brig. Gen. Jan C. Huly, USMC, Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations.

SEC FEE COLLECTIONS

Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs: Subcommittee on Securities concluded hearings to examine the fee collections and funding structure of the Securities and Exchange Commission pursuant to the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, focusing on registration, transaction, and merger and tender offers fees, after receiving testimony from Arthur Levitt, Chairman, Securities Exchange Commission; Marc E. Lackritz, Securities Industry Association, Washington, D.C.; and Lee Korins and Arthur Kearney, both of the Security Traders Association, and Robert Seijas, Specialist Association of the New York Stock Exchange, all of New York, New York.

NUCLEAR WASTE STORAGE/DISPOSAL

Committee on Energy and Natural Resources: Committee concluded hearings to examine nuclear waste storage and disposal policy, including S. 608, to direct the Secretary of Energy to develop an integrated management system for spent nuclear fuel and high level nuclear waste, focusing on a disposal management system, an interim storage facility, user fee collection, and the geologic repository at Yucca Mountain, after receiving testimony from Senators Grams, Reid, and Bryan; Representatives Gibbons and Berkley; Shirley Ann Jackson, Chairman, Nuclear Regulatory Commission; Lake H. Barrett, Acting Director, Office of Civilian Radioactive Waste Management, Department of Energy; John G. Strand, Michigan Public Service Commission, Lansing, on behalf of the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners; Erle Nye, Texas Utilities Company, Dallas, on behalf of the Nuclear Energy Institute; and Michael Mariotte, Nuclear Information and Resource Service, Washington, D.C.

NATIONAL PARKS

Committee on Energy and Natural Resources: Subcommittee on National Parks, Historic Preservation, and Recreation concluded hearings on S. 323, to redesignate the Black Canyon of the Gunnison National Monument as a national park and establish the Gunnison Gorge National Conservation Area; S. 338, to provide for the collection of fees for the making of motion pictures, television productions, and sound tracks in units of the Department of the Interior; and S. 568, to allow the Department of the Interior and the Department of Agriculture to establish a fee system for commercial filming activities in a site or resource under their jurisdictions, after receiving testimony from Stephen Saunders, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Interior for Fish and Wildlife and Parks; Jack Craven, Director of Lands, Forest Service, Department of Agriculture; Philip H. Voorhees, National Parks and Conservation Association, Clark Rector, Jr., American Advertising Federation, and Daniel L. Jaffe, Association of National Advertisers, Inc. all of Washington, D.C.; Matthew Miller, Association of Independent Commercial Producers, Inc., New York, New York; Victor S. Perlman, American Society of Media Photographers, Inc., Princeton Junction, New Jersey, on behalf of the American Society of Media Photographers and North American Nature Photography Association; and Marlene Zanetell, Gunnison County, Colorado.

VOLUNTARY GREENHOUSE GAS MITIGATION

Committee on Environment and Public Works: Committee concluded hearings to examine voluntary greenhouse gas mitigation activities issues, including actions and programs in the United States, issues related to the design of a voluntary action crediting program, and S. 547, to authorize the President to enter into agreements to provide regulatory credit for voluntary early action to mitigate potential environmental impacts from greenhouse gas emissions, after receiving testimony from Eileen Claussen, Pew Center on Global Climate Change, and Tia Nelson, Nature Conservatory, both of Arlington, Virginia; Dale A. Landgren, Wisconsin Electric Power Company, Milwaukee; Richard L. Sandor, Environmental Financial Products, Chicago, Illinois; and John Passacantando, Ozone Action, and Raymond Keating, Small Business Survival Committee, both of Washington, D.C.

COLOMBIA THREAT TO U.S. INTERESTS AND SECURITY

Committee on Foreign Relations: Subcommittee on Western Hemisphere, Peace Corps, Narcotics and Terrorism concluded hearings on Colombia's threat to United States interests and regional security, focusing on U.S.-Colombia counternarcotics efforts, after receiving testimony from Rand Beers, Assistant Secretary for International Narcotics and Law Enforcement Affairs, and Jack Leonard, Deputy Assistant Secretary for the Western Hemisphere, both of the Department of State.

EUROPEAN UNION

Committee on Foreign Relations: Subcommittee on European Affairs concluded hearings on issues relating to the European Union, focusing on internal reform, enlargement, and a common foreign policy, after receiving testimony from E. Anthony Wayne, Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for European and Canadian Affairs; and Lily Gardner Feldman, Georgetown University Center for German and European Studies, Jeffrey Gedmin, American Enterprise Institute, and Peter W. Rodman, Nixon Center for Peace and Freedom, all of Washington, D.C.

INDEPENDENT COUNSEL ACT

Committee on Governmental Affairs: Committee concluded hearings on the future of the Independent Counsel Act, after receiving testimony from Lawrence E. Walsh, Crowe and Dunlevy, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, former Independent Counsel, Iran-Contra Investigation; Samuel Dash, former Chief Counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee and former Ethics Advisor to Whitewater Independent Counsel Kenneth Starr, and Julie R. O'Sullivan, former Assistant Prosecutor—Whitewater Investigation, both of the Georgetown University Law Center, Washington, D.C.; and Kenneth G. Gormley, Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

CRIME VICTIMS PROTECTION

Committee on the Judiciary: Committee concluded hearings on S.J. Res. 3, proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States to protect the rights of crime victims, after receiving testimony from Paul G. Cassell, University of Utah College of Law, Salt Lake City; Steven J. Twist, VIAD Corp.,

Scottsdale, Arizona; and Beth A. Wilkinson, Latham & Watkins, Washington, D.C.

STATE ETHICS RULES EFFECT ON FEDERAL LAW ENFORCEMENT

Committee on the Judiciary: Subcommittee on Criminal Justice Oversight concluded hearings on the effect of State ethics rules on federal law enforcement, focusing on section 530B of title 28 of the United States Code, which requires Department attorneys to comply with state laws and rules, and local federal court rules, governing attorneys in each State where such attorney engages in that attorney's duties, the Citizens Protection Act, and potential abuse of power, after receiving testimony from Eric H. Holder, Jr., Deputy Attorney General, Zachary W. Carter, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of New York, P. Michael Patterson, United States Attorney for the Northern District of Florida, Richard L. Delonis, Assistant United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan, on behalf of the National Association of Assistant United States Attorneys, all of the Department of Justice; John Smietanka, Law Office of John Smietanka, Grand Rapids, Michigan, former Principal Associate Deputy Attorney General; John R. Justice, Chester, South Carolina, on behalf of the National District Attorneys Association; G. Andrew McKay, DSFX, International, Washington, DC, on behalf of the American Corporate Counsel Association; and Geoffrey C. Hazard, Jr., University of Pennsylvania American Law Institute, Philadelphia.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTION LIMITS

Committee on Rules and Administration: Committee held hearings to examine issues relating to the financing of federal election campaigns, focusing on campaign costs and time, the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1974, equitable competition for challengers, corruption, the costs of television media, and negative campaigning, receiving testimony from former Senator Dan Coats, Verner, Lipfert, Bernhard, McPherson, and Hand, Washington, DC; Karen Sheridan, SMY Media, Inc., and John R. Lott, Jr., University of Chicago School of Law, both of Chicago, Illinois; and Demaris H. Miller, McLean, Virginia.

Hearings recessed subject to call.

INDIAN GAMBLING REGULATORY ACT

Committee on Indian Affairs: Committee concluded hearings on S. 399, to amend the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act, focusing on minimum standards for Indian gaming nationwide, and fair fee assessments by the National Indian Gaming Commission, after receiving testimony from Montie R. Deer, National Indian Gaming Commission, Raymond C.

Scheppach, National Governors' Association, and Richard G. Hill, National Indian Gaming Association, all of Washington, DC.

INTELLIGENCE

Select Committee on Intelligence: Committee held closed hearings on intelligence matters, receiving testimony from officials of the intelligence community.

Committee will meet again tomorrow.

House of Representatives

Chamber Action

Bills Introduced: 38 public bills, H.R. 1243–1280; and 15 resolutions, H.J. Res. 41–43, H. Con. Res. 69–77, and H. Res. 129, 130, 132, were introduced.

Pages H1694–97

Reports Filed: Reports were filed today as follows:

H. Res. 131, providing for consideration of H. Con. Res. 68, establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000 and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2009 (H. Rept. 106–77);

Page H1694

Emergency Supplemental Appropriations: The House passed H.R. 1141, making emergency supplemental appropriations for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1999 by a yeas and nays vote of 220 yeas to 211 nays, Roll No. 70.

Pages H1607–60

Rejected:

Stenholm amendment that sought to strike language that requires the entire additional amount for Farm Service Agency salaries and expenses to be designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement (rejected by a recorded vote of 77 yeas to 345 nays with 2 voting “present,” Roll No. 67);

Pages H1626–31

Obeys amendment made in order by the rule and printed in House Report 106–76 that sought to strike funding rescissions used as offsets from the Department of Agriculture, Department of Energy, Callable Capital Account for Multilateral Development Banks, and Export-Import Bank; and

Pages H1631–45

Tiahrt amendment numbered 4 and printed in the Congressional Record that sought to fully offset the emergency supplemental appropriations bill by increasing the rescission in the Callable Capital Account for Multilateral Development Banks by $195 million (rejected by a recorded vote of 164 yeas to 264 nays, Roll No. 69).

Pages H1647–55

Points of order sustained against:

The Stenholm amendment that sought to strike language on pages 2 through 13 that requires the funding amounts to be designated by the Congress as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 251(b)(2)(A) of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985, as amended;

Pages H1625–26

The Bentsen amendment numbered 1 and printed in the Congressional Record that sought to prohibit any funds to be used to release from detention any criminal alien subject to mandatory detention pending removal from the United States; and

Pages H1657–58

The Burton amendment numbered 2 and printed in the Congressional Record that sought to authorize the Secretary of Defense to make available funds and enter into agreements to make payments for the settlement of claims arising from the deaths caused by a Marine Corps helicopter at a ski area near Cavalese, Italy.

Pages H1658–59

H. Res. 125, the rule that provided for consideration of the bill, was agreed to by a voice vote.

Pages H1604–07

President's Export Council: The Chair announced the Speaker's appointment of Representative Ewing, English, and Pickering to the President's Export Council.

Page H1660

Support for Members of the Armed Forces Engaged in Military Operations: The House agreed to H. Res. 130, expressing support of the House of Representatives for the members of the United States Armed Forces who are engaged in military operations against the Federal Republic of Yugoslavia by a yeas and nays vote of 424 yeas to 1 nay, Roll No. 71.

Pages H1660–69

Extension of Airport Improvement Program: S. 643, to authorize the Airport Improvement Program for 2 months—clearing the measure for the President.

Pages H1669–70

Select Committee re Military/Commercial Concerns with China: The House agreed to H. Res. 129, extending the Select Committee on U.S. National Security and Military/Commercial Concerns with the People's Republic of China until April 30, 1999.

Page H1670

Senate Messages: Message received from the Senate today appears on page H1599.

Referrals: S. 437, to designate the "Lloyd D. George United States Courthouse" and S. 460, to designate the "Robert K. Rodibaugh United States Bankruptcy Courthouse" were referred to the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Page H1693

Quorum Calls—Votes: Two yea and nay votes and three recorded votes developed during the proceedings of the House today and appear on pages H1630–31, H1644–45, H1654–55, H1660, and H1668–69. There were no quorum calls.

Adjournment: The House met at 10:00 a.m. and adjourned at 10:30 p.m.

Committee Meetings

EPA'S PROPOSED PLANT PESTICIDE RULE

Committee on Agriculture: Subcommittee on Risk Management, Research, and Specialty Crops and the Subcommittee on Department Operations, Oversight, Nutrition, and Forestry held a joint hearing to Review the EPA's proposed Plant Pesticide Rule. Testimony was heard from James V. Aidala, Associate Assistant Administrator, Office of Prevention, Pesticides, and Toxic Substances, EPA; and public witnesses.

COMMERCE, JUSTICE, STATE, AND JUDICIARY APPROPRIATIONS

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, State, and the Judiciary held a hearing on Bureau of the Census and on Immigration and Naturalization Service. Testimony was heard from Kenneth Prewitt, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce; and Doris Meissner, Commissioner, Immigration and Naturalization Service, Department of Justice.

DEFENSE APPROPRIATIONS

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on Defense met in executive session to hold a hearing on Ballistic Missile Defense. Testimony was heard from Lt. Gen. Lester L. Lyles, USAF, Director, Ballistic Missile Defense Organization, Department of Defense.

The Subcommittee also met in executive session to hold a hearing on Special Access Programs. Testimony was heard from departmental witnesses.

LABOR-HHS-EDUCATION APPROPRIATIONS

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education held a hearing on the Corporation for National and Community Service; the National Mediation Board; the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service; the U.S. Institute of Peace; the Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission; and Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission. Testimony was heard from Harris Wofford, President, Corporation for National and Community Service; Magdalena G. Jacobson, Chairwoman, National Mediation Board; C. Richard Barnes, Director Designee, Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service; Richard H. Solomon, President, U.S. Institute of Peace; and Mary Lu Jordan, Chairman, Federal Mine Safety and Health Review Commission.

VA-HUD-INDEPENDENT AGENCIES APPROPRIATIONS

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies held a hearing on Office of Science and Technology Policy, and on the Department of Defense-Civil, Cemetery Expenses, Army. Testimony was heard from Neal Lane, Director, Office of Science and Technology Policy; and Joseph W. Westphal, Assistant Secretary of the Army, Civil Works, Department of Defense.

HEDGE FUNDS—BANK LENDING AND OTHER TRANSACTIONS

Committee on Banking and Financial Services, Subcommittees on Financial Institutions and Consumer Credit held a hearing on bank lending and other transactions with hedge funds. Testimony was heard from the following officials of the Federal Reserve System: Laurence H. Meyer, member, Board of Governors; and William J. McDonough, President, Federal Reserve Bank of New York; and Michael J. Brosnan, Deputy Comptroller, Department of the Treasury.

AMERICA'S HEALTH: PROTECTING PATIENTS' ACCESS TO CARE

Committee on Commerce: Subcommittee on Health and Environment held a hearing on America's Health: Protecting Patients' Access to Quality Care and Information. Testimony was heard from public witnesses.

OVERSIGHT—MEXICAN COUNTER NARCOTICS EFFORTS

Committee on Government Reform: Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy, and Human Resources held an oversight hearing on Mexican Counter narcotics Efforts: Are We Getting Full Cooperation? Testimony was heard from Jeff Weitzman, Canine Enforcement Officer, Orlando Field Division, U.S. Customs Service, Department of the Treasury; Thereon Bowman, Chief of Police, Arlington, Texas; and public witnesses.

REGULATORY COSTS AND BENEFITS

Committee on Government Reform: Subcommittee on National Economic Growth, Natural Resources and Regulatory Affairs held a hearing on "Should Agencies Be Allowed To Keep Americans In The Dark About Regulatory Costs and Benefits?" Testimony was heard from Representative Bliley; G. Edward DeSeve, Deputy Director, Management, OMB; and public witnesses.

OVERSIGHT—ANTHRAX VACCINE INOCULATION PROGRAM

Committee on Government Reform: Subcommittee on National Security, Veterans' Affairs and International Relations held an oversight hearing on the Anthrax Vaccine Inoculation Program. Testimony was heard from the following officials of the Department of Defense: Sue Bailey, Assistant Secretary, Health Affairs; Lt. Gen. Ronald R. Blanck, USA; Deputy Surgeon General Todd Fisher, USN; and Lt. Gen. Charles H. Roadman, II, USAF; and public witnesses.

U.S. POLICY TOWARDS NORTH KOREA—PENDING PERRY REPORT

Committee on International Relations: Held a hearing on U.S. Policy Towards North Korea and the Pending Perry Review. Testimony was heard from public witnesses.

U.S.-CUBA RELATIONS

Committee on International Relations: Subcommittee on Western Hemisphere held a hearing on U.S. Cuba-Relations: Where Are We and Where Are We Heading? Testimony was heard from Michael Ranneberger, Director, Office of Cuban Affairs, Department of State; and public witnesses.

MISCELLANEOUS MEASURES

Committee on the Judiciary: Ordered reported the following bills: H.R. 850, Security and Freedom through Encryption (SAFE) Act; H.R. 769, Madrid Protocol Implementation Act; H.R. 1189, to make technical corrections in title 17, United States Code; H.R. 1027, amended, Satellite Television Improvement Act; H.R. 46, Public Safety Officer Medal of Valor Act of 1999; and H.R. 441, Nursing Relief for Disadvantaged Areas Act of 1999.

The Committee also approved proposed Immigration Subcommittee Rules of Procedure for private immigration bills and private claims bills and other pending Committee business.

MISCELLANEOUS MEASURES

Committee on the Judiciary: Subcommittee on Commercial and Administrative Law approved for full Committee action the following bills: H.R. 916, to make technical amendments to section 10 of title 9, United States Code; and H.R. 462, to clarify that government pension plans of the possessions of the United States shall be treated in the same manner as State pension plans for purposes of the limitation on the State income taxation of pension income.

The Subcommittee also began markup of H.R. 833, Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1999.

Will continue tomorrow.

CONCURRENT BUDGET RESOLUTION

Committee on Rules: Granted, by voice vote, a structured rule on H. Con. Res. 68, establishing the Congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000, and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2009, providing three hours of general debate with two hours equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget and one hour on economic goals and policies equally divided and controlled by Representative Saxton and Representative Stark. The rule waives clause 4(a) of rule XIII (requiring a three-day layover of the committee report) against consideration of the bill. The rule considers the amendment printed in part 1 of the Rules Committee report as adopted upon adoption of the resolution. The rule makes in order only those amendments printed in part 2 of the Rules Committee report to be offered only in the order specified, only by the Member designated, debatable for forty minutes each equally divided between the proponent and an opponent, and shall not be subject to amendment. The rule waives all points of order against the amendments except that if an amendment in the nature of a substitute is adopted, it is not in order to consider further substitutes. The rule provides that upon the conclusion of consideration of the concurrent resolution for amendment, for a final period of general debate not to exceed ten minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget. The rule permits the chairman of the Budget Committee to offer amendments in the House to achieve mathematical consistency pursuant to section 305(a)(5) of the Budget Act. Finally, the rule suspends the application of House Rule XXIII (relating to the establishment of the statutory limit on the public debt) with respect to the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000. Testimony was heard from Chairman Kasich and Representatives Hunter, Dunn, Graham, Spratt, Minge, Clement, Mink, Defazio, Stenholm, John, Filner, Brown of Florida and Guterrez.

HOME PAGE TAX REPEAL ACT

Committee on Science: Subcommittee on Basic Research held a hearing on Home Page Tax Repeal Act. Testimony was heard from Representative Terry; Larry Rudolph, General Counsel, NSF; and public witnesses.

DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY BUDGET REQUEST—RESULTS ACT IMPLEMENTATION

Committee on Science: Subcommittee on Energy and the Environment held a hearing on fiscal year 2000 Budget Authorization Request: Department of Energy—Results Act Implementation. Testimony was heard from the following officials of the Department of Energy: Gregory H. Friedman, Inspector General; John R. Sullivan, Director, Strategic Planning Budget and Program Evaluation, Office of Policy and International Affairs; and Gwendolyn Cowan, Director, Office of Procurement and Assistance Policy, Office of Procurement and Assistance Management, Office of Management and Administration; and Susan D. Kladiva, Associate Director, Energy, Resources, and Science, Resources, Community, and Economic Development Division, GAO.

RANGE MODERNIZATION

Committee on Science: Subcommittee on Space and Aeronautics held a hearing on Range Modernization, Part 1. Testimony was heard from Major Gen. Robert C. Hinson, USAF, Director, Operations, Air Force Space Command, U.S. Air Force, Department of Defense; Loren Shriver, Deputy Director, Launch and Payload Operations, Kennedy Space Center, NASA; and public witnesses.

OVERSIGHT—OIL POLLUTION ACT

Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, Subcommittee on Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation and the Subcommittee on Water Resources and Environment held a joint oversight hearing on the Oil Pollution Act of 1990. Testimony was heard from Adm. James M. Loy, USCG, Commandant, U.S. Coast Guard, Department of Transportation; Elaine Davies, Deputy Director, Office of Emergency and Remedial Response, EPA; David Kennedy, Director, Office of Response and Restoration, National Ocean Service, NOAA, Department of Commerce; and public witnesses.

COUNTERINTELLIGENCE—CHINESE ESPIONAGE ISSUES AT LABORATORIES

Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence: Met in executive session to hold a hearing on Counterintelligence and Chinese Espionage Issues at Department of Energy Laboratories. Testimony was heard from departmental witnesses.

Joint MeetingsVETERANS PROGRAMS

Joint Meeting: Senate Committee on Veterans' Affairs concluded joint hearings with the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs to review the legislative recommendations of certain veterans organizations, after receiving testimony from Cecil Aultman, AMVETS, Lanham, Maryland; Richard M. Throckmorton, America Ex-Prisoners of War, Arvada, Colorado; George C. Duggins, Vietnam Veterans of America, Washington, D.C.; and Robert F. Norton, Retired Officers Association, Alexandria, Virginia.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS FOR THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1999

(Committee meetings are open unless otherwise indicated)

Senate

Committee on Appropriations: Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, State, and the Judiciary, to hold hearings on proposed budget estimates for fiscal year 2000 for the Federal Communications Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission, 10 a.m., S-146, Capitol.

Subcommittee on Treasury and General Government, to hold hearings on proposed budget estimates for fiscal year 2000 for the Department of the Treasury, 10 a.m., SD-138.

Subcommittee on Transportation, to hold hearings on proposed budget estimates for fiscal year 2000 for the United States Coast Guard, Department of Transportation, 10 a.m., SD-124.

Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, to hold hearings on the Wye Package and terrorist attacks of United States citizens in Israel, 10:30 a.m., SD-192.

Committee on Armed Services: to hold closed hearings to receive testimony on alleged Chinese espionage at Department of Energy laboratories, 2:15 p.m., S-407, Capitol.

Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs: to hold hearings on bankruptcy reform proposals focusing on financial services, 9:30 a.m., SD-538.

Subcommittee on Housing and Transportation, to hold oversight hearings on challenges facing the Federal Housing Administration Single Family Insurance Fund, Department of Housing and Urban Development, 2 p.m., SD-538.

Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation: Subcommittee on Aviation, to hold hearings on proposed legislation dealing with modernizing air traffic control programs, 10 a.m., SR-253.

Subcommittee on Surface Transportation and Merchant Marine, to hold hearings on issues relating to grade crossing safety, 10 a.m., SD-106.

Subcommittee on Communications, to hold hearings on satellite reform issues, 2 p.m., SR-253.

Committee on Energy and Natural Resources: business meeting to consider the nomination of Robert Wayne

Gee, of Texas, to be an Assistant Secretary of Energy (Fossil Energy), and the nomination of Carolyn L. Huntoon, of Virginia, to be an Assistant Secretary of Energy (Environmental Management); to be followed by oversight hearings on the economic impacts of Kyoto Protocol to the Framework Convention on Climate Control, 9:30 a.m., SD-366.

Committee on Foreign Relations: to hold hearings on issues relating to United States-Taiwan relations, 10 a.m., SD-419.

Committee on Governmental Affairs: Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management, Restructuring and the District of Columbia, to hold oversight hearings to examine multiple program coordination in early childhood education, 10 a.m., SD-342.

Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions: Subcommittee on Public Health, to hold hearings on issues relating to bioterrorism, 9:30 a.m., SD-430.

Select Committee on Intelligence: to hold closed hearings on pending intelligence matters, 2 p.m., SH-219.

Committee on the Judiciary: business meeting to consider pending calendar business, 10 a.m., SD-226.

Subcommittee on Youth Violence, to hold hearings on the President's proposed budget request for fiscal year 2000 for Office of Justice Programs, Department of Justice, 2 p.m., SD-226.

House

Committee on Appropriations, Subcommittee on Commerce, Justice, State, and the Judiciary, on SBA, 10 a.m., and on Drug Enforcement Programs, 2 p.m., H-309 Capitol.

Subcommittee on Defense, on Members of Congress and Public Witnesses, 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., H-140 Capitol.

Subcommittee on Energy and Water Development, on Bureau of Reclamation, 10 a.m., 2362-B Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Foreign Operations, on AID Administrator, 10 a.m., 2359 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Interior, on Department of Energy: Conservation, 10 a.m., B-308 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education, on National Council on Disability; the National Commission on Libraries; and the Armed Forces Retirement Home, 10 a.m., and on Medicare Payment Advisory Commission and the NLRB, 2 p.m., 2358 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government, on Office of National Drug Control Policy, 10 a.m., 2362 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on VA, HUD, and Independent Agencies, on Corporation for National and Community Service, 9:30 a.m., H-143 Capitol.

Committee on Armed Services, to continue hearings on the fiscal year 2000 National Defense authorization budget request, 9:30 a.m., 2118 Rayburn.

Committee on Banking and Financial Services, Subcommittee on Capital Markets, Securities, and Government Sponsored Enterprises, hearing on Technology and Banking, 10 a.m., 2128 Rayburn.

Committee on Commerce, to mark up H.R. 851, Save Our Satellites Act of 1999, 10:45 a.m., 2123 Rayburn.

Committee on Education and the Workforce, Subcommittee on Early Childhood, Youth, and Families, hearing on H.R. 1150, Juvenile Crime Control and Delinquency Prevention Act of 1999, 1:30 p.m., 2175 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Employer-Employee Relations, hearing on Expanding Affordable Health Care Coverage: Benefits and Consequences of Association Health Plans, 9:30 a.m., 2175 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, hearing on Latex Allergies and the Healthcare Industry: Do OSHA's Actions Confuse or Clarify? 2:30 p.m., 2261 Rayburn.

Committee on Government Reform, hearing on "Dietary Supplement Health and Education Act: Is the FDA Trying to Change the Intent Of Congress?" 10 a.m., 2154 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Criminal Justice, Drug Policy, and Human Resources, hearing on "A Record Trade Deficit: How Can the U.S. Government Prevent a Looming Trade Crisis?" 2 p.m., 2247 Rayburn.

Committee on House Administration, hearing on United States Capitol Police Management, 4 p.m., 1310 Longworth.

Committee on International Relations, hearing on Russian Foreign Policy: Proliferation to Rogue Regimes, 10 a.m., 2172 Rayburn..

Subcommittee on International Operations and Human Rights, to mark up H. Res. 128, condemning the murder of human rights lawyer Rosemary Nelson and calling for the protection of defense attorneys in Northern Ireland, 1:30 p.m., 2172 Rayburn.

Committee on the Judiciary, Subcommittee on Commercial and Administrative Law, to continue markup of H.R. 833, Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1999, 10:30 a.m., 2141 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Courts and Intellectual Property, oversight hearing on Patent Reform; and on the Patent and Trademark Office Reauthorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000, 2 p.m., 2226 Rayburn.

Subcommittee on Immigration and Claims, oversight hearing on the benefits to the American Economy of a more educated workforce, 9:45 a.m., 2237 Rayburn.

Committee on Science, to consider the following: H.R. 209, Technology Transfer Commercialization Act of 1999; H.R. 1184, Earthquake Hazards Reduction Authorization Act of 1999; H.R. 1183, Fastener Quality Act Amendments Act of 1999; and Committee Oversight Agenda for the 106th Congress, 10 a.m., 2318 Rayburn.

Committee on Small Business, Subcommittee on Government Programs and Oversight, hearing on women's business enterprises, 10 a.m., 2360 Rayburn.

Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, Subcommittee on Ground Transportation, oversight hearing on the Office of Motor Carriers, 10 a.m., 2167 Rayburn

Committee on Veterans' Affairs, Subcommittee on Benefits, oversight hearing on the Veterans Benefits Administration, 10 a.m., 340 Cannon.

Subcommittee on Oversight and Investigations, hearing to examine the Department of Veterans Affairs management of the Federal Employees' Compensation Act program, 9:30 a.m., 334 Cannon.

Committee on Ways and Means, Subcommittee on Social Security, hearing on Social Security's Goals and Criteria for Assessing Reforms, 10 a.m., 1100 Longworth.

Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, executive, hearing on Fiscal Year 2000 Budget: All-Source Analysis, 1 p.m., H-405 Capitol.

Joint Meetings

Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe: to hold hearings to examine certain issues concerning the return of property confiscated by fascist and communist regimes to their rightful owners in post-communist Europe, 10 a.m., 2255, Rayburn Building.

Next Meeting of the SENATE

9 a.m., Thursday, March 25

Next Meeting of the HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

10 a.m., Thursday, March 25

Senate Chamber

Program for Thursday: Senate will continue consideration of S. Con. Res. 20, setting forth the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal years 2000 through 2009.

House Chamber

Program for Thursday: Consideration of H. Con. Res. 68, concurrent resolution on the budget (structured rule, 3 hours of debate).

Extensions of Remarks, as inserted in this issue

HOUSE

Barcia, James A., Mich., E552
 Barr, Bob, Ga., E539
 Bereuter, Doug, Nebr., E536
 Burton, Dan, Ind., E546, E551
 Capuano, Michael E., Mass., E537
 Conyers, John, Jr., Mich., E549
 Crane, Philip M., Ill., E541
 DeLay, Tom, Tex., E553
 English, Phil, Pa., E539
 Eshoo, Anna G., Calif., E543, E544, E546, E552
 Etheridge, Bob, N.C., E544
 Evans, Lane, Ill., E548

Hastings, Alcee L., Fla., E535
 Hoyer, Steny H., Md., E540
 Inslee, Jay, Wash., E535, E536, E538, E541
 Johnson, Eddie Bernice, Tex., E538
 Kildee, Dale E., Mich., E537
 Kleczka, Gerald D., Wisc., E539, E542, E553
 LaFalce, John J., N.Y., E540
 Lantos, Tom, Calif., E545
 Lofgren, Zoe, Calif., E541
 McCarthy, Karen, Mo., E537
 McInnis, Scott, Colo., E553
 Markey, Edward J., Mass., E554
 Miller, George, Calif., E543
 Norton, Eleanor Holmes, D.C., E545

Packard, Ron, Calif., E544
 Pickering, Charles W. "Chip", Miss., E545
 Radanovich, George, Calif., E539, E542
 Roybal-Allard, Lucille, Calif., E544
 Rush, Bobby L., Ill., E535
 Sanders, Bernard, Vt., E542
 Saxton, Jim, N.J., E541
 Schaffer, Bob, Colo., E537
 Shimkus, John, Ill., E535, E536, E538
 Thompson, Bennie G., Miss., E547, E552
 Towns, Edolphus, N.Y., E544, E546, E548
 Underwood, Robert A., Guam, E553
 Wilson, Heather, N.M., E535, E538, E542
 Wolf, Frank R., Va., E536

Congressional Record

provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed at one time. ¶Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available on the Wide Area Information Server (WAIS) through the Internet and via asynchronous dial-in. Internet users can access the database by using the World Wide Web; the Superintendent of Documents home page address is http://www.access.gpo.gov/su_docs, by using local WAIS client software or by telnet to swais.access.gpo.gov, then login as guest (no password required). Dial-in users should use communications software and modem to call (202) 512-1661; type swais, then login as guest (no password required). For general information about GPO Access, contact the GPO Access User Support Team by sending Internet e-mail to gpoaccess@gpo.gov, or a fax to (202) 512-1262; or by calling Toll Free 1-888-293-6498 or (202) 512-1530 between 7 a.m. and 5 p.m. Eastern time, Monday through Friday, except for Federal holidays. ¶The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $165.00 for six months, $325.00 per year, or purchased for $2.75 per issue, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $141.00 per year, or purchased for $1.50 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O. Box 371954, Pittsburgh, PA 15250-7954, or phone orders to (202) 512-1800, or fax to (202) 512-2250. Remit check or money order, made payable to the Superintendent of Documents, or use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, or GPO Deposit Account. ¶Following each session of Congress, the daily Congressional Record is revised, printed, permanently bound and sold by the Superintendent of Documents in individual parts or by sets. ¶With the exception of copyrighted articles, there are no restrictions on the republication of material from the Congressional Record.

The public proceedings of each House of Congress, as reported by the Official Reporters thereof, are printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate