PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 146 WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 2000 No. 34

House of Representatives

The House met at 10 a.m. and was called to order by the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PEASE).

DESIGNATION OF THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore laid before the House the following communication from the Speaker:

WASHINGTON, DC,
March 23, 2000.

I hereby appoint the Honorable EDWARD A. PEASE to act as Speaker pro tempore on this day.

J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, the Reverend James David Ford, D.D., offered the following prayer:

We are grateful, O merciful God, that You are with us wherever we are and whatever we do. We know that Your spirit gives us forgiveness for the ways of our past, direction for the path ahead, and the comforting assurance that we are never alone.

We gain strength from the words of the Psalmist:

''Be still, and know that I am God,
I am exalted among the nations,
I am exalted in the Earth.
The Lord of hosts is with us;
The God of Jacob is our refuge.''

May Your good word, O God, be with all Your people, and give them the peace and confidence that You alone can give. In Your name we pray. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

Mr. MCNULTY. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to clause 1, rule I, I demand a vote on agreeing to the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the Chair's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Mr. MCNULTY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

The point of no quorum is considered withdrawn.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. HUTCHINSON) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. HUTCHINSON led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Lundregan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed with an amendment in which the concurrence of the House is requested, a bill of the House of the following title:

H.R. 5. An act to amend title II of the Social Security Act to eliminate the earnings test for individuals who have attained retirement age.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain ten 1-minute speeches per side.

PASS THE COLOMBIAN AID PACKAGE

(Mr. BALLENGER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BALLENGER. Mr. Speaker, each week that we delay the passage of the Colombia aid package costs America the lives of 1,000 of its children. That means every day we sit here and do nothing about the drug trade from Colombia, 143 of our young people will die from drug-related causes. In the time it takes us to debate and vote on the aid package, 12 children will succumb to drug addiction.

In 1998, 5 million young people in this country required treatment for drug addiction, and nearly 600,000 required an emergency room visit. In the United States, there are 1.6 million drug-related arrests annually, and over half of our prison population has committed drug related crimes. Even more disturbing, while the average age of marijuana users is increasing, heroin abusers are getting younger.

Seventy-five percent of all the heroin entering this country comes from Colombia. Delaying this aid package will only bring in more.

Mr. Speaker, we have worked hard to stop the genocide in other countries. We now have the duty to stop the senseless slaughter of a generation of young Americans. If we love our children as much as we claim, then we must pass the Colombia aid package, and soon.

PACT: PARENTS OF ABDUCTED CHILDREN TOGETHER

(Mr. LAMPSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LAMPSON. Mr. Speaker, today I rise to talk about Lady Catherine Meyer, wife of the British Ambassador to the United States and mother of Constantin and Alexander, and the organization she has formed called PACT, Parents of Abducted Children Together.

Constantin and Alexander left for a summer holiday with their father in Germany in 1994, and their father has kept them in Germany ever since. In the last 6 years, Lady Meyer has only seen her sons for a total of about 24 hours. Lady Meyer formed PACT to help American parents gain at least basic access rights to their children.

Today I will join my colleague, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT), in introducing a concurrent resolution urging signatories to uphold the Hague Convention on the civil aspects of international child abduction. This resolution was introduced today with over 90 original cosponsors, a powerful statement on the importance of this issue. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. CHABOT) and I may be the legs and the feet to move this legislation through the House, but Lady Meyer is truly its heart and soul.

Mr. Speaker, children should be a nonpartisan issue, and I urge the House to pass this resolution and bring our children home.

UPHOLDING THE CONSTITUTION

(Mr. GIBBONS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GIBBONS. Mr. Speaker, earlier this week the United States Supreme Court ruled that the President had illegally exceeded the power granted to him under the Constitution. In his quest to regulate every aspect of American life and society, the President issued an executive order in 1996 granting the Food and Drug Administration the power to regulate tobacco marketing. However, Congress never gave the President, this administration nor his agency the authority to issue these regulations.

Mr. Speaker, I am relieved that the United States Supreme Court has upheld the Constitution and the basic tenets of our democracy. But, Mr. Speaker, I am also worried, worried that what the Clinton administration will continue to do is usurp the powers granted to this Congress.

Mr. Speaker, we need to ensure that the balance of power as envisioned by our Founding Fathers is maintained.

I yield back the monocratic attempts of this current administration to govern by edict and executive order, rather than by democratic principles.

REFORM OF JUSTICE DEPARTMENT NEEDED NOW

(Mr. TRAFICANT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TRAFICANT. Mr. Speaker, after 80 Americans were killed at Waco, the Justice Department investigated the Justice Department. When half of the Weaver family was shot down and killed, the Justice Department investigated the Justice Department. When serious charges concerning top government officials accused of doing business with Chinese nationals to influence our election was brought to the Justice Department, they looked the other way and did not investigate.

Unbelievable. The hen house fox in America investigates the hen house fox.

Now, Mr. Speaker, we reformed welfare, the IRS, and I am submitting a bill to reform the Justice Department. I am asking Rush Limbaugh to read it carefully, Michael Reagan, Tom Pope, Blanquita Cullum, Ron Verb, Tom Joyner, and help me from the outside like you did with the IRS.

I yield back the lack of oversight on the Justice Department of the United States.

AMERICANS FACING LOSS OF PERSONAL PRIVACY

(Mr. HUTCHINSON asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. Speaker, each day in the newspaper we read or hear of the news of yet another account of how Americans have a growing concern about invasions of their own personal privacy.

Today in the USA Today, the headline reads, ''Filesafe, health records may not be confidential.'' It says, ''Most patients assume that what they tell their doctor is confidential, but it might not be. Blame the loss of privacy on the Internet or on the growing use of computer records.''

Mr. Speaker, more and more Americans are voicing their concern about the loss of their own personal privacy. They are alarmed at the accessibility of medical records, their financial information, how it is being used. They want to know how they can get on the Internet without strangers downloading personal information about them. In today's information society, all of these issues are hopelessly interwoven.

This Congress should adopt privacy legislation. The best approach is the bipartisan Privacy Protection Commission, which I introduced along with the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN). A Supreme Court Justice said the most cherished right of civilized man is the right to be left alone. In this Congress, we need to address that, and I urge my colleagues to consider that legislation.

PROPOSED BUDGET NEGLECTS CHILDREN AND SENIORS

(Ms. WOOLSEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, every policy decision we make here in the House affects our children, and today we are going to consider a Republican budget resolution that does not consider the needs of our children.

Their budget resolution increases the national defense budget by over $17 billion in the year 2001, while increasing education spending by only $2 billion. That is $15 billion less. What a disgrace.

We spend billions of dollars each year on nuclear weapons, but we have to scrape together money for new schools, we have to scrape together money for critical school breakfast programs. It is wrong. It is wrong for our children, it is wrong for our Nation.

Our children need us to invest in their future. They need us to invest in education, they need Social Security and Medicare protected for their future, and they need the national debt paid down. By the way, this works to help our seniors also.

The Republican budget resolution takes care of millionaires and their risky tax breaks, but it does not take care of our seniors and our children.

PORNOGRAPHY: A CANCER EATING AWAY AT THE AMERICAN FAMILY

(Mr. LARGENT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. LARGENT. Mr. Speaker, I stand this morning appalled at a cancer that is eating away at the American family. That cancer is illegal pornography.

Federal law prohibits interstate transportation and distribution of this material. Through the Internet, the family rooms and home offices of our Nation have turned into the worst porn shop you can imagine. The fact is that America's children and families have been assaulted by more obscene, lewd, and disgusting material than imaginable just 8 years ago. For instance, when a child doing research types in whitehouse.com, what do they see? Illegal pornography.

The revenues that illegal pornography rakes in are more than all the money generated by rock and country music combined. And how has the Department of Justice responded? We have seen a drop in the rate of prosecutions of illegal pornography of nearly 75 percent since 1992.

Mr. Speaker, I urge my colleagues to call on the Department of Justice to begin aggressively prosecuting illegal pornography for the long-term health of our children and the soul of our country.

AMERICA DESERVES A RESPONSIBLE BUDGET

(Ms. DELAURO asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DELAURO. Mr. Speaker, once again the Republican leadership has designed a budget that is completely out of touch with the needs and the values of middle class families. Even conservative members of their own party claim that the GOP budget is too spendthrift.

The Republican budget is a reckless plan that fails to extend the life of Social Security and Medicare by even one day. Instead of strengthening these pillars of retirement security, the Republican budget spends the surplus on $250 billion in tax cuts for the wealthiest people in this country. It is irresponsible, and it is wrong.

The Democrats have provided an alternative which strengthens and preserves Social Security and Medicare, provides targeted tax cuts to working middle class families who need it the most, provides a prescription drug benefit for all seniors, focuses on education and lowering class size and increasing discipline and accountability and standards. We can do this and still lower the national debt, lower the interest rates, and provide that targeted tax cut relief to the middle class.

The American people deserve a budget that is responsible and that is fair, not what has been concocted by the Republican leadership.

ENFORCEMENT OF OBSCENITY LAWS NEEDED

(Mr. PITTS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PITTS. Mr. Speaker, pornographers in this country make more money than rock and country music combined. Pornographers bring in more dollars in a year than all Broadway productions, all theater shows, all ballet, jazz and classical music combined. And this administration is doing almost nothing about it.

The Supreme Court has ruled that obscenity is not protected by the First Amendment. Federal law prohibits interstate transportation and distribution of obscenity. But since 1992, prosecutions for interstate distribution and sale of illegal pornography are down 75 percent. In all of 1997, there were only six prosecutions by all 93 U.S. Attorneys.

The cause and effect between pornography and crime, violence against women and children, rape and child abuse, is clearly established. The President and the Department of Justice should enforce the law, not ignore it.

AN IRRESPONSIBLE BUDGET

(Mr. BACA asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to speak about the budget. The Republican budget contains tax breaks for the wealthy while ignoring working Americans, which I think is irresponsible. It is not a fiscally oriented budget that looks toward the future.

It contains deep cuts in domestic spending. The Republican budget would cut FBI agents and Drug Enforcement agents, college scholarships, air traffic controllers, and programs for women and children.

By contrast, the Democratic plan invests in education, our future in preparing our working force for the 21st Century. It reduces class sizes, protects our senior citizens, builds schools, provides college scholarships, provides affordable drug prescriptions, preserves Social Security and Medicare and pays down the deficit in a responsible manner before spending and emptying the bank account.

□ 1015

The Democratic plan looks toward the future and a sensible, balanced tax relief. It is an investment in support and strength of our Social Security and Medicare, and it pays off the debt. It provides everyone with an opportunity to succeed and work hard. It provides our children, our senior citizens who are less fortunate.

PORKER OF THE WEEK AWARD

(Mr. HEFLEY asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, last week the world watched as five cloned piglets were introduced before an international news core. Scientists cheered the achievement as a scientific and medical breakthrough. Maybe the American people should have cheered as well since we paid for a good bit of that research with $2 million of our tax dollars.

The Advanced Technology Program, a corporate welfare program managed by the Department of Commerce, gave a grant to the company responsible for cloning the piglets. The company, PPL Therapeutics, claims it needs taxpayer assistance because it cannot find private backing for cloning research. It will certainly be interesting to see if that company shares its profits with the American taxpayers now that they have found success.

In this modern-day nursery rhyme, five little piggies got cloned, and the American public got taken to market. The ATP gets my ''Porker of the Week'' Award.

BUDGET AND DEBT REDUCTION

(Mr. SHOWS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHOWS. Mr. Speaker, I want to talk about the upcoming budget debate and the opportunity we have to pay off our debt.

Did my colleagues know that reducing our national debt would provide a tax cut in itself to millions of Americans because it will restrain and lower interest rates? Did my colleagues know that more than 25 percent of our individual income taxes go to paying off interest on our national debt? We can greatly restructure our budget and get our real tax savings to America if we pay off the debt now.

Did my colleagues know that more than $1.2 trillion is held by foreign investors? In 1998, the U.S. Government paid $91 billion in interest payments to these foreign investors.

We must reduce this drain and create a stronger global economy for American business and agriculture.

This is the right thing to do. Let us give our children a strong America. Let us pay off the national debt. I urge everyone to take an honest look at the Blue Dog Coalition's proposal. I believe it would put us on the right track.

SOUND ENERGY POLICY NEEDED FOR ECONOMY, NATIONAL SECURITY, AND LOWER GAS PRICES

(Ms. DUNN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. DUNN. Mr. Speaker, working Americans across the country are paying the highest prices at the pump at any time since World War II. More and more of their hard-earned dollars are spent on gasoline, leaving far less dollars to be spent on their loved ones.

But the lack of any energy policy by the Clinton-Gore administration has put not only our economic security at risk but our national security as well. The United States relies on foreign imports at this point for 56 percent of its crude oil needs today. That compares to 35 percent during the Arab oil embargo in 1973. Think what that would mean to the United States if that supply were suddenly cut off.

The Clinton-Gore energy policy will just make things worse before they get better. The Department of Energy estimates that in 20 years the United States will be dependent on foreign imports for 65 percent of our crude oil needs.

We must have a sound energy policy to provide for America's economic and national security interests and lower prices at the pumps.

SUPPORT THE STAMP OUT CANCER REAUTHORIZATION ACT

(Mr. BASS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. BASS. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing the Stamp Out Cancer Reauthorization Act. Now, this bill would extend for an additional 2 years the breast cancer research stamp program enacted by us in the last Congress.

Now, this is a 40-cent stamp used normally for 33-cent postage. The excess revenue raised is used to provide funding for breast cancer research at NIH.

As of last month, almost 160 million stamps had been sold, raising $11.3 million for breast cancer research. 182,800 new cases of breast cancer are estimated for the year 2000; and, sadly enough, there will be 41,200 deaths expected.

Breast cancer remains the most common form of cancer among women. We need every dime we can to promote research in this important field. Please join me in cosponsoring this bill, which I plan to introduce today.

TIME TO MOVE FORWARD ON GUN LEGISLATION IS NOW

(Mr. FORD asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. FORD. Mr. Speaker, next month, very soon, we will unfortunately mark the 1-year anniversary of the tragedy at Columbine High School. Unfortunately, sensible gun control or legislation still languishes here in the Congress.

Forty-three percent of households in America with children have guns. Nothing is wrong with that. It would seem to me, though, that those of us in this Congress, in the face of horrors and tragedies around the Nation, would feel compelled to act.

In my home State of Tennessee, 95 percent of background checks for those who wish to purchase guns take place within 2 hours. Only 5 percent require additional information from law enforcement authorities.

Is it that much of an inconvenience, I say to those Members of the other side and even on my side, those in the National Rifle Association, and those in the gun lobby community? Is it that much to wait to ensure that we are able to cut down on human loss? Is it that much to wait to ensure that children, indeed, would be safer?

The conferees in the House and Senate have not met since August. I applaud the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LOFGREN) for bringing a motion to instruct the conferees to meet. Let the leadership in the House and Senate call the meeting of the Senate conferees. Let us do right by our children.

FISCAL YEAR 2000 BUDGET RESOLUTION

(Mr. GUTKNECHT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Speaker, later today we are going to have a heated debate about the next Federal budget. We have already heard that some of our friends on the left are saying there are tax cuts for the rich. I guess if one is married, one is considered rich because we do make room to eliminate the marriage penalty tax. I guess if one owns a small business or if one is a farmer, I guess they consider one rich because we do make it easier in terms of estate taxes.

But the really good news about this Federal budget, and I hope Members are paying attention, is that this year, in this fiscal year, we will spend in the Federal budget $1,780 billion. Under the budget we are proposing, we are talking about spending $1,820 billion. That is a 2.2 percent increase. That is the smallest increase in my adult life.

More importantly, Mr. Speaker, the Bureau of Labor Statistics tells us that this year the average family budget will grow at 4.9 percent. Now, when is the last time we have had a Federal budget that grew at half the rate of the average family budget? This is a good budget. It is fair. It has been evenly crafted. I hope Members will join me in supporting it.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Pursuant to clause 8, rule XX, the pending business is the question of the Speaker's approval of the Journal of the last day's proceedings.

The question is on the Speaker's approval of the Journal.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 345, nays 58, not voting 31, as follows:

ANNOUNCEMENT REGARDING AMENDMENT PROCESS FOR H.R. 2418, ORGAN PROCUREMENT AND TRANSPLANTATION NETWORK AMENDMENTS OF 1999

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, this afternoon a ''Dear Colleague'' letter will be sent to all Members informing them that the Committee on Rules is planning to meet the week of March 27 to grant a rule which may limit the amendment process on H.R. 2418, the Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network Amendments of 1999.

Any Member who wishes to offer an amendment should submit 55 copies and a brief explanation of the amendment by 12 noon on Tuesday, March 28, to the Committee on Rules in Room H–312 in the Capitol. Amendments should be drafted to the text of the bill as reported by the Committee on Commerce.

Members should use the Office of Legislative Council to ensure that their amendments are properly drafted and should check with the Office of the Parliamentarian to be certain their amendments comply with the rules of the House. Again, this is the Organ Procurement and Transplantation Network Amendments of 1999.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOSS. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, we are talking about the organ transplant bill?

Mr. GOSS. The gentleman is correct.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Is this the bill that we will eventually work on, unlike the budget that we are voting on today that was constructed at 3 o'clock this morning without anybody testifying on it?

Mr. GOSS. Reclaiming my time from the distinguished gentleman, the ranking member of the Committee on Rules, who I am delighted to see this morning again, I will assure the gentleman, to the best of my knowledge, this will proceed in the normal way of the Committee on Rules business and should be discovered on your desk at the Committee on Rules meeting time as we normally do at the daylight hour.

We will hopefully proceed through a hearing process and hopefully proceed through the rulemaking process in a timely fashion with the cooperation of the gentleman's minority party.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOSS. Of course, I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. MOAKLEY. I appreciate my friend yielding. I have not seen him since 3 o'clock this morning, and also the wonderful chairman we have here, I have not seen him since 3 o'clock this morning.

Mr. DREIER. Why did the gentleman leave so early?

Mr. MOAKLEY. I had to catch a bus, but the only thing I want to be sure is that all the efforts that we go to in getting ready for this piece, if this is going to be the bill that we are ultimately going to vote on, unlike the budget bill that was put before us at 2:30 this morning, after being constructed in the dark of night in some den by I do not know who, but that bill never saw a committee, and it was never voted on by a committee. I want to make sure that is the way it is going to go.

Mr. GOSS. Reclaiming my time, I can assure the gentleman that is my understanding. We are fortunate to have the chairman of the Committee on Rules here who can give the gentleman further assurance. I shall yield to him.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. GOSS. I yield to the gentleman from California.

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, let us not have a vote on his assessment.

Mr. MOAKLEY. I thank the gentleman.

Mr. DREIER. I thank my friend for yielding. Let me assure my colleague, who was in his office I know last night at 8:29 last evening, the gentleman received 99.9 percent of this budget package that we had. And I know that the gentleman spent the following several hours carefully scrutinizing this legislation. I think that he will find when we have this vote today it is a very responsible, appropriate way to move ahead with this.

I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. GOSS. Reclaiming my time from the chairman, I yield further to the distinguished ranking member.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, there was an additional $5 billion added that was not in the bill when we heard it.

Mr. DREIER. I do not know about $5 billion that was added.

Mr. MOAKLEY. The gentleman does not know that. Maybe we should take more time to look at it.

Mr. DREIER. We looked closely at it.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I reclaim my time and assure the distinguished gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY) that the next piece of business we hope to see on the floor which I am about to call up will give us the opportunity to discuss further matters of interest that he has raised.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET, FISCAL YEAR 2001

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, by direction of the Committee on Rules, I call up House Resolution 446 ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the resolution, as follows:

H. RES. 446

Resolved, That at any time after the adoption of this resolution the Speaker may, pursuant to clause 2(b) of rule XVIII, declare the House resolved into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 290) establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2001, revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000, and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2005. The first reading of the concurrent resolution shall be dispensed with. Points of order against consideration of the concurrent resolution for failure to comply with clause 4(a) of rule XIII are waived. General debate shall not exceed three hours, with two hours of general debate confined to the congressional budget equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget, and one hour of general debate on the subject of economic goals and policies equally divided and controlled by Representative Saxton of New Jersey and Representative Stark of California or their designees. After general debate the concurrent resolution shall be considered for amendment under the five-minute rule. It shall be in order to consider as an original concurrent resolution for the purpose of amendment under the five-minute rule the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in part A of the report of the Committee on Rules accompanying this resolution. That amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be considered as read. All points of order against that amendment in the nature of a substitute are waived. No amendment to that amendment in the nature of a substitute shall be in order except those printed in part B of the report of the Committee on Rules. Each amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by a Member designated in the report, shall be considered as read, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, and shall not be subject to amendment. All points of order against the amendment printed in part B of the report are waived except that the adoption of an amendment in the nature of a substitute shall constitute the conclusion of consideration of amendments to the amendment in the nature of a substitute made in order as original text. After the conclusion of consideration of the concurrent resolution for amendment and a final period of general debate, which shall not exceed 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget, the Committee shall rise and report the concurrent resolution to the House with such amendment as may have been adopted. Any Member may demand a separate vote in the House on any amendment adopted in the Committee of the Whole to the concurrent resolution or to the amendment in the nature of a substitute made in order as original text. The previous question shall be considered as ordered on the concurrent resolution and amendments thereto to final adoption without intervening motion except amendments offered by the chairman of the Committee on the Budget pursuant to section 305(a)(5) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to achieve mathematical consistency. The concurrent resolution shall not be subject to a demand for division of the question of its adoption.

SEC. 2. Rule XXIII shall not apply with respect to the adoption by the Congress of a concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) is recognized for 1 hour.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, for the purposes of debate only, I yield the customary 30 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), my friend, pending which I yield myself such time as I may consume. During consideration of this resolution, all time yielded is for the purpose of debate on this issue only.

Mr. Speaker, House Resolution 446 is a structured rule, which is fairly typical for bringing forward the annual congressional budget resolution. For a number of years, we have gotten into the very good habit of managing debate on the budget by asking that all amendments be drafted in the form of substitutes so that Members could consider the whole picture as we debate and weigh our spending priorities. This rule continues that tradition and wisely so.

We have gone to great lengths with this rule to juggle the competing needs of having a full debate on a range of issues and perspectives without allowing the process to become so unwieldy that it breaks down of its own weight.

In that regard, I think the rule is fair in making in order five substitute amendments reflecting an array of points of view.

Specifically, the rule provides for 3 hours of general debate, with 1 hour specifically designated for discussion of economic goals and policies as described by the Humphrey-Hawkins provisions of the current law.

Two hours of the debate time shall be equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget, and 1 hour shall be equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON) and the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK).

The rule waives clause 4(a) of rule XIII, requiring a 3-day layover of the Committee report, against consideration of the resolution. The rule makes in order an amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in Part A of the Committee on Rules report as an original concurrent resolution for the purpose of amendment.

This new base text makes a number of technical and substantive changes to the underlying resolution, changes that were discussed and negotiated throughout the day yesterday. This text is available to Members in the Committee on Rules report, which was filed last night.

The rule waives all points of order against this amendment. The rule further makes in order only those amendments printed in Part B of the Committee on Rules report. I would note that, of those five substitutes I mentioned, four are sponsored by Members of the minority.

Those amendments may be offered only in the order specified in the report, only by a Member designated in the report, and they shall be considered as read, they shall be debatable for the time specified in the report equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, and they shall not be subject to amendment.

The rule waives all points of order against the amendments except that, if an amendment in the nature of a substitute is adopted, it is not in order to consider further substitutes.

The rule provides for a final period of general debate not to exceed 10 minutes equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on the Budget to occur upon conclusion of consideration of the concurrent resolution for amendment.

The rule permits the chairman of the Committee on the Budget to offer amendments in the House necessary to achieve mathematical consistency.

Finally, the rule suspends the application of House Rule XXIII relating to the establishment of the statutory limit on the public debt with respect to the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001.

Mr. Speaker, thanks to the effort of our congressional majority, we have emerged from decades of deficits; and we are now operating in a brave new world of surplus. But that does not mean we can or should now abandon our commitment to fiscal discipline. In fact, it is when the sky looks most blue that we should be thinking about how best to shovel out from the mountain of debt we have incurred and prepare for the next rainy day, which inevitably we know will come.

So I am delighted to be bringing forward to the House, House Concurrent Resolution 290, the fiscal year 2001 fiscal budget blueprint. This document, although not binding as a law, sets forth the guideposts that will dictate the path we take for the rest of this session of Congress as we complete our budgeting work.

The budget reflects conservative principles and lays the groundwork for continued success in our mission of paying down the debt, protecting Social Security, shoring up Medicare, strengthening the national defense and education, and offering meaningful tax relief to our seniors, our families, and our small businesses.

This budget outlines $1 trillion in deficit reduction while taking the Social Security trust fund completely off the table and while opening the door for Congress to provide realistic prescription drug coverage for Medicare beneficiaries. At the same time, we have gone further than the President in the area of defense, something that is so critical in this changing world and at a time when we are asking so much of our men and women in uniform and those in our intelligence activities.

Mr. Speaker, I commend the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) and his committee for the work they have done. I particularly share their interest from a process standpoint in seeking ways to enforce the fiscal discipline this budget document outlines. I am delighted that we have been able to work out an arrangement that meets the concerns of some Members about setting aside surplus moneys up front for further debt reduction even while we make sure that we have provided the resources necessary so the appropriators can bring forward legislation that brings to life our commitments in key areas.

This rule brings that negotiation to fruition, and we have now put in place a process so that the issue of debt reduction will continue to be addressed as we move through this year's spending process. That is good news all around for all Americans. This is a fair rule. I urge Members to support it.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me the customary 30 minutes and I yield myself such time as I may consume.

(Ms. SLAUGHTER asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition to this rule. This resolution has never seen the light of day. This is not the resolution that the Committee on the Budget worked over for a few months. It is certainly not the resolution that the Committee on Rules held hearings on for several hours yesterday. In fact, I have talked to Members who have been here much longer than I, and they can recall no time in which a bill has come to the floor under those circumstances.

It arrived at 2 in the morning, hours after the final vote when the majority of the Members of this House had left the Hill. The ink will barely be dry when the leadership makes Members vote on this document. How many Members will see this new substitute before they have to vote? I would note that these are not technical changes. The majority has added $3 billion for science, still below what the President requested. The new resolution calls for $5 billion in unspecified cuts all to be announced later, and this is a travesty. The measure changes reconciliation numbers and includes two new points of order. It even changes the public debt limit though the rules of the House prohibit changing that number from what is reported by the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. Speaker, we have been down this road with this budget process time and time again. The leadership in this body reminds me of the bridal contestants in the television show ''Who wants to marry a millionaire.'' They know it is a charade, but they are going through the motions anyway. This budget is as unrealistic as the failed budgets from 1998 and 1999. This proposed budget by the majority maintains a single-minded obsession with large tax cuts. It does nothing to extend the solvency of Social Security and Medicare for a single day and cuts funding for critical education, housing, and environmental protection programs.

In 1998, the majority party in the House and Senate failed to pass a budget resolution for the first time since the creation of the congressional budget process. In 1999, the budget adopted by the majority called for draconian cuts in appropriations to finance a huge $792 billion tax cut for the wealthy. This budget was disregarded by the majority almost as soon as they began the appropriations process.

When the final appropriations bill passed Congress in November, 2 months into the fiscal year, appropriated spending overran the budget resolution by $43.8 billion. In both 1998 and 1999, the American people rejected these same unrealistic cuts in essential Federal spending and excessive tax cuts for the very rich. Why on earth does the majority party believe the American people will suddenly change their minds and reject essential government services like Social Security and Medicare in favor of benefits for the wealthiest among us?

The definition of folly is to repeat what has failed and expect it to succeed, and that is just what this resolution does. It assumes that Congress will cut nondefense spending by $7 billion below this year's level and by $20 billion below the level needed to make up for inflation. Congress must then keep its foot on the brake for 4 more years, eventually taking nondefense spending $114 billion below the level of current purchasing power.

Compounding the problem of calling for implausible program cuts is the fact that the resolution already spends some of the Social Security surplus. The resolution's $200 billion tax cuts overwhelm the $114 billion reduction in the purchasing power of domestic appropriations. As a result under the resolution, the non-Social Security surplus is virtually gone by the year 2003. By 2004, the Government begins spending the Social Security surplus. And by 2010, the measure spends $68 billion of the Social Security money.

We have a choice. We can substitute this budget for one that extends the solvency of Social Security and Medicare, repays the national debt by the year 2013, provides targeted tax cuts to working families, invests in domestic priorities such as school modernization and improved access to health insurance for families.

I would like my colleagues to reflect for a moment. The surpluses on our horizon offer an extraordinary opportunity to pay down our large public debt which would be the ultimate tax cut. They allow us to make Social Security and Medicare sound and solvent for future generations. They mean that we can close the gaping hole in Medicare coverage and they make it possible for us to do more for education at all levels.

Unfortunately, this proposed budget resolution squanders this opportunity and jeopardizes the progress that we have made in eliminating the annual deficits and paying down the public debt. This measure also passes up the opportunity to put Social Security, Medicare, and the Nation as a whole on sound fiscal footing.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 15 seconds. I would urge Members to pay very close attention to debate on the five substitutes we have made in order, four of them being from the other side of the aisle. Members need to know that under the process of this rule as I stated, once a substitution passes, we are not going to continue any others. In the vernacular, that means there are no free votes.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the distinguished gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), the chairman of the Committee on Rules.

(Mr. DREIER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DREIER. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this rule. I think it is important for us to note that this rule in fact puts into place what has been the case under both Democratic control of this institution and Republican control. What we have done is we have made four Democratic substitutes in order, one Republican substitute in order. We have been able to provide an opportunity for a wide range of proposals, to be very fairly debated. We listened up in the Committee on Rules to authors of those substitutes. They have indicated their willingness to be supportive of what it is we are trying to do here by moving ahead with a very fair and open debate, and I believe that it is in fact that.

99.9999 percent of this package was provided by the Committee on the Budget. We had the package placed in the hands of the minority and other Members of the Committee on Rules by 8:30 last night, and we did in fact make a modification. It deals with increasing spending for science. I happen to think that is a very high priority. For me as a Californian it is very important for us to do that. So let me just say that the rule is fair. The rule provides the minority with four opportunities to offer substitutes; the majority with one opportunity. So I think it should continue to enjoy very strong bipartisan support.

Let me move beyond the debate that we have going on right here to talk for just a few moments about the issue of the budget itself. I have found, maybe this is just my perspective as a Californian, that the American people very much want to see an end to the extraordinary partisanship that goes on, the partisan bickering which we have seen back and forth, just listening to some of the speeches that have been made and criticism of this very fair rule. They do not like those sorts of partisan attacks, and I hope very much that we can bring an end to that kind of harsh partisanship, and I think we have evidence of it coming to an end by simply looking at this budget.

Frankly, just take the example of education. Republicans and Democrats alike want to improve our public schools. This budget actually increases by almost 10 percent over last year the level of funding for schools. That is a $20 billion increase over 5 years. As we develop policies to go with those resources, we need to make sure that every American child has a chance to learn the skills and knowledge to succeed in our new 21st century economy.

Now, let us take another issue on which we have bipartisan agreement, national defense. Most Democrats, I am happy to say, now agree with what we Republicans have been saying for years, that we must bolster our national security spending so that we can get every soldier, sailor, and airman and their families and their children off of food stamps and into quality housing.

Let us look at a third issue, Social Security. This budget shows how Republicans and Democrats now stand together to ensure that the Social Security surplus is never again spent on other government programs. I am very happy to say that it is under this Republican leadership, under the strong leadership of Speaker Hastert, we have successfully protected every dollar of the Social Security surplus for the past 2 years, and this plan now does that for an additional 5 years. This is clearly the basis for long-term bipartisan retirement security reform.

Republicans and Democrats stand together to increase medical research. This budget dedicates $1 billion more than last year to find cures that will ease the pain of millions of American families. Republicans and Democrats stand together on key science initiatives, as I was saying. When we pass this rule, we will ensure that the science and space programs funded in this budget are supported at a level needed to continue the cutting-edge science and space work that go on in places like the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Southern California and other fine facilities throughout the region that I am privileged to represent.

Now, Republicans and Democrats do agree on a wide range of very important priorities. But of course, there is still quite a bit of politics left. There is a difference between the basic philosophy of the competing budgets with the five substitutes that we will have today. Republicans believe that the Government has an important role in helping to address many problems, but we never lose sight of the fundamental fact that America is great because of the American people, families, entrepreneurs, neighborhoods, businesses and farmers, not the Federal Government.

What does this mean in a budget? It means that while we work hard to address education, medical research, national defense, retirement security, and health care, we also set something aside for families. The Republican budget helps families by paying down $1 trillion in public debt by 2005 and retiring the entire debt by 2013. This will provide a tremendous boost to ensuring a strong, stable, vibrant economy for our children and grandchildren.

The Republican budget also provides some tax relief for American families, senior citizens, small businesses and farmers. Make no mistake, this budget spends a lot of money. As I said, we increase spending on education, health care, medical research, defense and science. But we believe that families should be in that priority list as well so that they have a little more of their own money to spend on school clothes for the kids, college tuition, or a new home computer. With half of American households participating in financial markets today, our Nation has what we like to call an emerging investor class. More than ever before, the American people recognize that they have a direct stake in policies focused on expanding economic prosperity, including smart tax relief.

Mr. Speaker, the investor class supports pro-growth, pro-investment tax reductions because they know that America's strength, our prosperity, is driven more by the emerging Internet economy and the NASDAQ, the wonder of NASDAQ and the companies involved there, than the Federal bureaucracy that exists here in Washington, DC.

This is a very, very good budget that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) is going to be moving forward here. I think that this rule deserves again strong bipartisan support by providing all these alternatives to our colleagues, and we can move ahead focusing on the areas of agreement and we can have what the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) describes as a full, vigorous, tough debate on these areas of disagreement.

I urge support of the rule and our budget package.

□ 1115

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT).

(Mr. GEPHARDT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, judging from comments by the campaign of Governor Bush, this Republican budget abandons conservatives. If we take a close look at the details of this budget, it is clear that this budget also abandons middle-class families. In their haste to embrace massive fiscally irresponsible tax cuts, Republicans are abandoning Social Security, Medicare, and fiscal responsibility.

Despite their talk about how much they care about seniors, the Republican budget does nothing to strengthen the retirement security for current and future retirees.

This Republican budget does nothing to extend the life of Social Security and Medicare. It does not provide one dime to strengthen the Social Security or Medicare trust funds. They ignore the looming shortfall that threatens the future retirement security of all Americans.

The Republican budget fails to propose a Medicare prescription drug benefit to cover all seniors. The cost of prescription drugs is hurting all seniors. This is not a problem which is just limited to low-income retirees.

The Republican budget does not help middle-class seniors. Their budget says that they need to be spending themselves into poverty with prescription drug costs before they get Medicare coverage of prescription drugs.

To make matters worse, I understand at 3:00 a.m. in the morning, the funding that was in their budget to support a Patients' Bill of Rights was taken out. So I suppose that priority will also be lost.

The Republican budget abandons the fiscal responsibility that we worked so hard to achieve and tries to turn back the clock to the early 1990s. They threaten the balanced budget and efforts to pay off the debt by the year 2013.

The analysis by the Democratic staff of the House Committee on the Budget found that the Republicans would spend some of the Social Security surplus by 2004 and as a result we would be revisited by on-budget deficits if we enact this budget once again.

The Republican budget proposes deep cuts in investments in education, health, and veterans affairs, putting our children and others even further behind.

One may ask, why this abandonment? The Republican budget sacrifices fiscal responsibility on the altar of massive tax cuts. The Republican budget proposes $150 billion in tax cuts now, $50 billion after the smoke clears, and then possibly another $50 billion in tax cuts for the wealthy and special interests if revenues increase.

The American people rejected these massive tax cuts that threaten our economic progress and retirement security last year, in last year's budget debate. Clearly, Republicans still have not gotten the message. The American people want a budget plan that pays off the debt, extends the life of Social Security and Medicare, provides a prescription drug plan for all seniors, and addresses our pressing health and educational priorities.

So this is not the right budget. We need to vote against the rule and vote against this budget. Let us reject this budget and protect the surplus for the priorities of working families.

I urge my colleagues to vote against this budget and for our alternative that puts families first and keeps our fiscal house in order.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 6 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Speaker, I am frankly kind of astounded by what I have just heard because I thought that was a speech laying in the bottom of the desk drawer from 6 years ago. It is so far from representing reality, I am really stunned.

I want to say what the budget does. I think the people will be very surprised when they hear about what we have in this budget.

First of all, this will be the second year, I think in my lifetime, that the politicians in Washington kept their mitts off of Social Security. That never happened before. In 1995, we were running $175 billion deficits; and they were projected to be as far as the eye could see, and here we are for the second year in a row, because of the leadership of people in this House, we are not going to touch the Social Security surplus. We are locking it up. We are saying to senior citizens, we are not going to take one dime of it and use it for any other spending like my colleagues on the other side of the aisle did for all of my lifetime.

We are saying we are not going to touch it. We are going to lock it up. We are going to put an electric fence around it, and it will only be used to pay for Social Security benefits or to pay down debt. We are the first group of leaders in this town to keep our mitts off of Social Security in decades. It is amazing.

Secondly, in terms of Medicare, not only are we going to have a reform agenda on Medicare to try to strengthen Medicare, but we have money set aside so that our poorest senior citizens can have access to prescription drugs; $40 billion worth of potential resources to both reform Medicare, strengthen Medicare and to provide a prescription drug benefit to our poorest seniors who cannot afford to go to the pharmacy because they do not have any money. That is in this budget.

Thirdly, we are going to pay down a trillion dollars in the publicly held debt. Did my colleagues hear what I said? We are going to pay down $1 trillion of the debt that is owed to the public in this country.

Now, if Regis was here and he was flashing this up on the wall about being a millionaire, everybody in the gallery would be standing up and cheering; but the fact is I think they will be cheering when they realize that by paying down a trillion dollars in the publicly held debt we are lifting a huge burden off the backs of our children.

When we came to this body in 1995 and took our majority, the guiding star was the future of our children. We are beginning to carry through with our promises, which is unusual for politicians.

Fourthly, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) just said that we do not have any tax relief for the middle class. I have to send him our budget because the first thing we passed around this House was to ease the marriage penalty so that when people get married they do not get punished for getting married. Now that is not something that does not apply to the middle class. Most of the people who are going to benefit are middle-class couples who got married, who are not going to be punished anymore because they got married. This budget will accommodate that.

In addition to that, if one is a senior citizen and they have decided to work, in this town we have a formula: if they work, we punish them.

Well, we just passed a bill through this House that I think received total support from everybody in this House that said if seniors work we are not going to take away their Social Security benefits.

Who does that apply most to? People at the lower end of the economic spectrum.

Now, say someone is a little family farmer. We just had a thousand farmers show up in this town. We are saying that when they die, they are not going to have to visit the undertaker and the IRS on the same day. They can take their family farm, and they can give it to their kids.

Is that not what we want in America? I think so.

Someone owns this little pharmacy, they are struggling every day to make it, they make their dollars, they get old, they want to pass it on to their kids, that is the American dream. To say that that does not reflect a middle-class value, I mean, come on, shame. We know better than that.

There are going to be more programs for tax relief for all Americans. If someone is self-employed and they want to get health insurance, we are going to make that available to them. If one is a mother and father that has their kid in a school where their kid is not safe and not learning, we are going to give them incentives so they will be able to save so their kid can go to the school of their choice.

It is going to be in this budget. It is all provided for.

We strengthen defense, and we also strengthen education. We also continue our historic increases in investments at the National Institutes of Health to help people fight the diseases that afflict them with heart, with cancer, and with lung.

I am astounded. I believe in a good old-fashioned, fair fight, but let us just fight on the facts. Let us not make stuff up. Let us not scare people.

The question today is whether we are going to advance the reform agenda in Washington or whether we are going to continue to be obstacles in this town to the need to reform and pare down government and prioritize government and clean up waste, fraud and abuse and protect Social Security and provide tax relief.

If one is for the reform agenda, they will support this budget. I know that for the period of the next, I do not know, 6 or 7 hours, we are going to hear a lot of code words: risky, dangerous, irresponsible. Those are code words for more bureaucracy. They are code words for more standing in line. They are code words for more frustration. They are code words for higher taxes.

That is fine, but let us not just make stuff up out of the thin air.

Mr. Speaker, I hope some of my colleagues will have the good sense to fight this fair. If they want more spending, great; say it. If they want higher taxes, fine; say it. That is what the fight ought to be on.

This is a budget we should all support.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. MOAKLEY), the ranking member of the Committee on Rules.

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my dear colleague, the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER), for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, last week things were looking pretty good around here. Last week the Republican members of the Committee on the Budget showed the world their proposed budget. They gave people plenty of time to read it, and they were not ashamed of it.

Last night, all that changed. Last night, or this morning, at 2:00 a.m. this morning, the real Republican budget came out. But unless one is a member of the Committee on Rules, they did not see the Republican budget until 2:00 this morning, just hours before its coming up for a vote.

Mr. Speaker, these days the only creatures that stir in the middle of the night, long after the sun goes down, are vampires and members of the Committee on Rules. Eighty percent of the members' meetings on the Committee on Rules do not start until the lights have to be turned on, and from the looks of some of these bills, Mr. Speaker, I could see why. They read a lot better in the dark.

This budget does nothing to save Social Security or Medicare or help seniors with the Medicare prescription drug plan. The chairman of the committee said that 99.9 percent of this was the same budget. Let me say some of the other parts of that budget.

Some of the changes are pretty big, Mr. Speaker. This was all done after the hearing concluded. They went back into this room somewhere, and they changed the public debt limit, which is a violation of the Budget Act. They promised to cut $5 billion, but they did not say where they were going to cut it from. They added $3 billion for science, which still is far less than the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) would have added if his amendment was made in order.

They still did not do much more middle-class families.

They added two brand-new points of order. They changed the reconciliation directives. They changed the provision dealing with health care and Patients' Bill of Rights. They changed the reserve fund for thrift savings plans and benefits. These were all done, Mr. Speaker, after the hearing had been concluded for hours.

This bill that we are voting on today never appeared before the Committee on the Budget.

So I urge my colleagues to reject this budget and send it back and let the Committee on the Budget who have expertise in this field really have a chance to look at it and do something about Social Security and Medicare, and preferably earlier in the day.

☐ 1130

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, may I inquire of the time available on both sides.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) has 11 minutes remaining and the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) has 19 minutes remaining.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the ranking member of the Committee on the Budget.

(Mr. SPRATT asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, last year, for the first time in 40 years, we balanced the budget without including the surplus and Social Security. We balanced it to the tune of $704 million. Having reached this milestone, we made a vow on both sides of the aisle when we brought our budget resolution to the floor last year that we would not get back into an on-budget deficit again, we would not slip back into borrowing from the Social Security trust fund. We would use the surplus, we said, in the Social Security trust fund instead to buy up existing Treasury bonds and notes, reduce debt rather than create new Federal debt.

To accomplish that purpose we both trotted out something we called ''lockboxes,'' a portentous name. When you got through all the boilerplate, both of them came down to this. You have a point of order. If somebody brought to the House floor a resolution, like this resolution, a budget resolution, and it dipped into Social Security again, went into deficit, you could raise a point of order.

Now, to the American people, that suggests summary dismissal. It disposes of the question. But in truth, the Committee on Rules in the House is the task master at waiving points of order.

We have before us today a rule that ought to be subject to a point of order if we take the lockbox seriously, because this rule waives all points of order. This rule permits a budget resolution to come to the floor that, in our opinion, would wipe out the surplus in 3 years and, in the 4th and 5th years, 2004, 2005, and subsequent years, it would put us back into deficit again, put us back into borrowing from Social Security.

This simple chart, this simple arithmetic on this chart shows you why. The Republicans claim that they have $110 billion surplus over the next 5 years. But the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) just showed that they intend to use $40 billion for a prescription drug benefit, and we welcome them to the fold on this issue, because we think it needs to be done. So they have matched us. They have $40 billion for a Medicare benefit.

In addition, the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) has said on repeated occasions in committee markup, yesterday in the Committee on Rules, last night on the floor, that they will have a tax cut of $150 billion, plus $50 billion more, and if CBO says there are more revenues, they will go up still more. When you factor in that additional $50 billion, the $40 billion for Medicare prescription drugs, guess what? The surplus disappears in 3 years and we are back in deficit, back into borrowing from Social Security.

So this in simple arithmetic is the argument why this rule should be voted down. Vote it down. Make the Republicans bring back to the floor a budget resolution that safely is in surplus, and not this one, which clearly puts us in danger of backsliding into deficit and borrowing again from Social Security.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. TIERNEY).

Mr. TIERNEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman from New York for yielding me time to speak in opposition to this rule.

Mr. Speaker, this rule is restrictive. Although there are claims that it is allowing all debate on all points of view, it, in fact, does not do that.

I spent a considerable amount of time with my staff putting together a substitute amendment that certainly would have allowed this debate to be expanded out to talk about tax fairness and the kind of investments we need to keep our economic growth and to keep families secure in this country. I think it was a point of view that deserved to be debated, deliberated and voted upon.

We ought not to have just a debate about whether we are going to have incredibly huge tax cuts that favor only a small segment of already wealthy individuals and corporations, or a situation where people talk about taxing some more.

We have within this trillions of dollars of budget a huge amount of unnecessary and unwarranted advantages that are given to special interests. If we were to recapture those, we can do the two things that we need to do in this country, invest in our economic growth, in education and job training, in health care and retirement security, and research and development, in infrastructure, and, at the same time, have the kind of fairness we need.

Mr. Speaker, we need to have this process go back to the drawing board and come out again.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KIND).

(Mr. KIND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, I do not have a problem with the rule, but I do have a problem with the budget resolution offered by the Republican Party today. Yogi Berra should be with us here today, because it is ''deja vu all over again.'' Last year it was a $800 billion risky tax cut scheme, this year it is a $1 trillion 10-year risky tax cut scheme.

You would think that the Republican leadership would get it eventually and start listening to the American people about where our priorities should lie. But the problem is not that they do not get it, the problem is that they cannot sell it. They could not sell it last year when it was a $800 billion tax cut, they are not going to be able to sell it this year with a $1 trillion tax cut.

They can't sell it because the American people won't buy it. The American people understand if these projected budget surpluses do in fact materialize, although there is no guarantee they will, now is the time to take care of existing obligations, to shore up Social Security, Medicare, and pay down the $5.7 trillion national debt. That is the fiscally responsible and fiscally disciplined approach.

It is sad that when the Republican leadership and members on the committee had an opportunity to vote for their presidential nominee's fiscal plan, a $1.5 trillion tax cut scheme, they were all ducking for cover, hiding under their desks and trying to flee the budget room in order to avoid having to vote on that issue.

But the saddest commentary of all is that a contemporary American comic strip is more reflective of the values of the American people today than the governing majority party in the House of Representatives. I do not know how many of my colleagues had the opportunity to see the Doonesbury article that appeared about a week ago, but I think it tells the story very, very well.

It opens up with a scene of men with one guy saying, ''Heads up, he is coming this way.''

Another gentleman, ''Try not to make eye contact.''

And an empty hat, which I suppose depicts Governor Bush. Then Governor Bush saying, ''Hi, fellows, I'm George Bush and I'm asking for your support. If you vote for me I will give a huge tax cut. How is that for a straight deal, huh?''

''Well, I'm not sure. I mean, I can see how the wealthy might get excited. They'd be averaging $50,000. But it wouldn't mean much to a guy in my bracket.''

Another gentleman says, ''Besides, I care a lot more about shoring up Social Security and Medicare and paying down the national debt.''

''Yeah, didn't fiscal responsibility used to be a Republican issue?''

Then Governor Bush: ''But, but, you do not understand. I am offering you something for nothing. Free money. Don't you want free money?''

Then another gentleman: ''Sure, but not until we pay our bills.''

''Right.''

Governor Bush: ''What is the matter with this country?''

The last gentleman: ''I guess we have grown up a lot as a people. I know I have.''

Now, I am not saying the Doonesbury comic strip should set fiscal policy in this Nation, but I do believe, sadly, this comic strip better reflects the values of the American people and why we should support the Democratic alternative today.

I certainly didn't come to this Congress in order to leave a legacy of debt for my two little boys or for future generations.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. SHERMAN).

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, today we enjoy the fruits of fiscal responsibility and an expanding economy. This budget resolution, thrown together at 3 in the morning in the dark of night in a secret room, this budget resolution puts all that at risk. Why? To support huge tax cuts that threaten to bust budget and endanger Social Security and Medicare.

The only good thing that can be said about this resolution is that it is slightly less fiscally irresponsible than the plan put forward by Governor George Bush, to which Senator MCCAIN responded that it represented fiscal irresponsibility.

What kind of tax cuts are we asked to risk Social Security and Medicare for? We saw earlier this month, when the Republican tax bill provided three-quarters of the benefits to 1 percent of the richest Americans.

Mr. Speaker, in his earlier speech, the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman KASICH) invoked the sacred name of Regis Philbin. What game are we playing here?

The Republicans are not playing the game who wants to be a millionaire or who wants to marry a multimillionaire. They have a new game, who wants to risk Social Security to give huge tax breaks to multi-multi-multimillionaires.

Let us not play that game. Let us reject this rule and reject the Republican budget resolution and return to fiscal responsibility.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. SCARBOROUGH)

Mr. SCARBOROUGH. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me time.

I love listening to these budget debates every year. It is like back to the future. It is like deja vu all over again. Unfortunately for the Democrats, they seem to be what Paul Simon called a one trick pony. It is the same thing over and over and over again.

Except this year they have got three trick ponies. They have MediScare. They talk about how Republicans are going to destroy Medicare and Social Security. They have class warfare, talking about massive tax cuts for the rich, and Americans are not going to buy it. Well, heck, Democrats are buying it. One hundred Republican and Democrat Senators last night supported stopping penalizing senior citizens for earning money. They supported the marriage tax penalty reduction, bought and sold for by Democrats. God bless America. Everybody is doing it.

They also spend without care. Every one of their substitutes spends more and taxes more than the Republican budget.

Now they are reading cartoons. That is how sad it has gotten. I understand, because you know, in 1995, when we got here, they were doing the same class warfare argument, saying that we were going to destroy the economy. You cannot balance the budget in 7 years without destroying the economy and killing the middle class.

Yet Alan Greenspan came to the Committee on the Budget and testified if you all would pass this Balanced Budget Act, I predict Americans will see unprecedented growth over the next 5 to 7 years. Greenspan said it in 1995. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) had the courage and vision to follow through with it, as did the Republican Congress. We did it, and you know what? It was not 7 years later. Five years later we balanced the budget. We gave the middle class Americans the strongest economic boom in over a generation. And we did something else. For the first time in a generation, this Congress did not steal from Social Security in their budget.

Yet these same Democrats that come to the floor today, that have the nerve to call themselves protectors of Social Security, were the very ones while in power for 40 years, stole from Social Security.

Mr. Speaker, I remember when some of us in 1995 said we could balance the budget and not steal from Social Security's trust fund, we were called radical extremists. Five years later, the budget is balanced; and we are keeping Social Security solvent by keeping our hands off of it.

I will tell you what, this year continues what we have done for the past 5 years. The gentlewoman from New York defined folly as repeating what has failed and expecting it to succeed. They have repeated the same class warfare arguments. They have repeated the same arguments of fear. They have repeated the same arguments of risky schemes. And their arguments have failed.

It is time to look at what has happened because of the vision of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the Committee on the Budget's vision, and this Congress' vision. We have balanced the budget. We have saved Social Security. And we have given tax cuts to middle class Americans.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA).

Mr. BACA. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak on the budget rule. I am totally against the budget debate and the budget rule. I think it is wrong for America. We just heard the debate right now, and we talked about keeping the budget balanced. It is not just about keeping the budget balanced today. We are talking about a solvent budget, a budget that will be there for the future as well, protecting our children for today, investing in our future, protecting Social Security, taking down the debt, taking care of drug prescriptions, taking care of what we need to do.

It is easy to get up here and talk about a balanced budget. Yes, we can talk about it today, but what is the impact it will have on the future? That is what is so important right now. It is being fiscally responsible, taking that budget and doing what needs to be done. We are not doing that.

The Democrats have a budget proposal right now that deals with taking care of the American people, working families; taking care of investing in our future, protecting as well what we need to do, and that is to make sure that we have good education, quality education, scholarships that will be available. It is investing in the future.

I ask my colleagues to vote against this rule.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, may I ask again where we stand on the time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) has 8 minutes remaining; the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) has 9½ minutes remaining.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding me this time.

Again, I did not have time before, but I think I should call to the attention of the House, in light of what the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) said earlier, that this resolution offered by the Republicans does not provide for the abolition of the Social Security earnings test. If it did, on page 33 of the concurrent resolution of the budget under function 650, Social Security over the next 5 years would have to be adjusted by $20 billion. They do not adjust it. They do not provide for this waiver, repeal of the earnings test, despite what the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) just said.

Now, this is an example of doing something hurriedly, doing something slipshod and not attending to important detail. They are not doing what they are purporting to say that it does.

We had the same problem last year. We had a military pay raise on the floor, retiree increases; and the budget resolution did not reflect those, did not account for those.

Mr. Speaker, I call it to the attention of the House. Function 650 is unadjusted, does not reflect the cost that over the next 5 years if we are going to repeal the earnings test, we have to add $20 billion in outlay expenditures by the Social Security Trust Fund. Everybody should know that when voting on this rule.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS), a distinguished member of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

The minority leader's speech today was a speech taken out from something he said 5 or 6 years ago, and the speech I just heard from the distinguished ranking member of the Committee on the Budget reminds me of straining out gnats and swallowing camels. We set aside $200 billion for tax cuts. Now, we are told it is irresponsible. We are told it is outrageous. We are told it is something we cannot afford.

The fact is, in the next 5 years we are going to raise $10 trillion in revenues, and we are going to return to the American people $200 billion. The tax cut ends the marriage penalty. A good number of Democrats voted for that. The tax cut repeals Social Security earnings limit. All Democrats voted for that. The next tax cut, which a good number of Democrats voted for, reduces the death penalty. We are expanding educational savings accounts. We are increasing health care deductibility. We are providing tax breaks for poor communities, and we are strengthening private pension plans. Mr. Speaker, $200 billion out of $10 trillion, a 2 percent tax cut. But our colleagues on the other side of the aisle do not even want to return 2 percent.

Mr. Speaker, we protect Social Security. Last year was the first year since 1960 that a Congress did not spend Social Security reserves. We protect it in this budget we are in, and we protect it in the budget we are now voting on. We are strengthening Medicare. We are setting aside $40 billion for prescription drugs, $40 billion. That is what we are setting aside, and yet the minority leader said we were cutting Medicare.

We retire the public debt. Mr. Speaker, $1 trillion of public debt in the next 5 years, $1 trillion. It never happened under Democrat rule. We are doing it now, and it is in this bill. We are providing that tax fairness for families. It is not just returning revenue to the American people, but dealing with fairness. Couples should not have to pay taxes when they get married; seniors should not have to lose Social Security when they work. And we are restoring Americans defense; we are putting more money in education, science, and health. We are doing exactly what we should do.

Now, we are going to have 5 amendments come up and we are going to oppose 4 of them. We are going to oppose them because they do not meet these tests. We are going to protect Social Security; and if it does not do that, we will oppose that. We want Medicare prescriptions, $40 billion. If it is not there, we are going to oppose it. We want to retire debt. We have already retired $302 billion of debt. We are going to promote tax fairness, which on the other side of the aisle they seem to be opposed to. We are going to restore America's defense, and we are going to strengthen and support education and science. That is what we are going to do in our budget, and we are determined to succeed.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I was so struck by what the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) said just a moment ago, that this budget fails to take into account the repeal of the earnings test, and I want to yield to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) the rest of my time, save 1 minute, to sum up.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentlewoman for yielding, and I would inquire of anyone on this side who wants to explain why the $20 billion is not provided in function 650, spending by Social Security, to effect this policy that the chairman of the Committee on the Budget just claimed that he is accommodating. Where is it?

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPRATT. I yield to the gentleman from New Hampshire.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Speaker, Social Security is off-budget, is it not?

Mr. SPRATT. It is indeed.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Speaker, function 650 is a discretionary account, is it not?

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, function 650 is a discretionary account, but it also has an off-budget account.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Speaker, it does not include mandatories. We passed that bill unanimously in the House; it passed unanimously in the Senate. It will be signed by the President into law. It was initiated by the Speaker of this House, and it does not need to be included in function 650, because it is a mandatory outlay and not a discretionary fund.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I would advise the gentleman simply to look at page 33 and the gentleman will see there is an on-budget provision and an off-budget provision, and the off-budget provision is the Social Security benefit spending provision. It is $20 billion short. I mean this is government work, but $20 billion is still real money. It is a big mistake.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman will continue to yield, I think the point is clear, is eminently clear. All of Social Security spending is off-budget. Function 650 is a discretionary account. What we are voting on here today includes the incorporation of the Social Security earnings test to the extent that it needs to be included in this budget document. I think it is misleading to suggest that it was put together in a slipshod way when the gentleman knows that the legislation has already passed the House and the Senate and will be signed into law and that it will not have a material impact on discretionary outlays.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, reclaiming my time, I thank the gentleman for his explanation, although I think it falls short.

The fact of the matter is there is provision for off-budget spending. It is on page 33, function 654 and your report; and that function understates spending over the next 5 years by Social Security to the tune of $20 billion. Because my colleagues understate spending here in calculating how much debt reduction they will achieve in the purchase of our debt held by the public, they owe the State the accomplishment of debt reduction. That is a significant mistake, unless they want to say this is a waivable mistake; it is not. It is bad work. It is a good reason to vote against the rule and to take this thing back and clean up.

Let me go back to my chart. I did not have enough time to talk about it. This chart is simple arithmetic. In simple arithmetic, it shows my good friend, the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS), whom I have enormous respect for and who was just on the floor saying they are going to have a $200 billion tax cut. That is what the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) said in the Committee on Rules yesterday, and that is what he said repeatedly in our markup.

If they have a $200 billion tax cut, then they have to add $50 billion to the amount of tax reduction over the next 5 years. In addition, if they have a pharmaceutical benefit, a drug benefit in Medicare, they have to add $40 billion. And when they add those two things that they both claim are included, $50 billion and $40 billion, guess what? The surplus disappears.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPRATT. I yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. MARKEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this rule. This bill does not, in fact, reflect what the Committee on Budget did. Until the Committee on Rules stops rewriting budgets, we are going to be in a situation where neither the Committee on the Budget on the Democratic or Republican side or any House Members have had any real role in its construction. That is just plain wrong. This is the most important document which we produce.

Moreover, let me tell my colleagues that in the Committee on Budget they blocked our ability to put the Bush tax cut up as an amendment. They do not want to vote on it. It was not a pretty sight in the Committee on Budget; it was not a pretty sight in the Committee on Rules. Neither one of them put the Bush tax cut in order for us to be able to take a vote upon it. And there is a good reason why, because two-thirds of the Bush tax cut goes to the richest 10 percent of taxpayers. The richest 1 percent of taxpayers get an average of $50,000 tax cut. It does not leave enough money to shore up Social Security, Medicare, education, all the way down the line.

So I urge a vote against the rule so that we can debate this issue fairly, openly and freely; let us have an open vote on the Bush tax cut. It is the centerpiece of the economic claim which is being proposed by the other party. All of us should be allowed to vote upon it.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for his comments.

Let me go back just in conclusion to this chart so that everybody understands it. This is simple arithmetic. This is not smoke and mirrors. This takes their numbers, their assumption, their claims about what their budget resolution does and adds them up correctly. They claim that they are providing for a tax cut over 5 years of $200 billion, so we adjust their tax cut of $150 billion by $50 billion to show and allow for a tax cut of $200 billion, which is what they claim on the floor and in committee.

In addition, they claim on the chart that they just showed and through comments that they have just made that they too will have a pharmaceutical drug benefit for Medicare beneficiaries. They assume costs of that, they have it in a reserve fund, it is $40 billion. If they are going to claim it, they have to count it. They claim it, but do not count it. We count it. Add the $50 billion, add the $40 billion, adjust for debt service, and in 2003, the surplus of which we are all so proud which we want to protect, we do not want to backslide into Social Security, the surplus virtually vanishes. In 2004, there is a $6 billion deficit. We are $6 billion into Social Security again if this resolution is adopted. In 2005, it is down to $2 billion, and the subsequent years are just as bad. That is the consequence.

Now, we have tax cuts in our budget resolution, the Spratt substitute, the Democratic budget resolution. We provide for $50 billion net tax cuts over 5 years and $201 billion net tax cuts over 10 years. We think those are reasonable; and we believe that if our colleagues do the tax cuts that they are talking about that they are claiming, they are back in deficit, and that is why this rule should be voted down. Because it waives what we tried to establish as a major point of order last year in the lockbox when we said, we cannot bring a resolution, we cannot bring an appropriations bill.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, just to be sure both sides understand, could we have a statement of the times again, please?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS) has 5 minutes remaining; the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. SLAUGHTER) has 1 minute remaining.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Speaker, I want to tell my colleagues what is amazing about the chart we just saw. It is all made up. In fact, the numbers do not even add up. Talk about slipshod.

Let me tell my colleagues how they put these numbers together, and I give them credit for actually explaining how they come up with this chart. In their document, they say figures 2002 to 2005 are interpolated by the Democratic staff. That means made up, interpolated. Extrapolations for the second 5 years made by the Democratic staff. In addition to that, my good friend, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), on November 2 of last year, said that we will be $17 billion into the Social Security account, which, of course, never happened.

So he was wrong last year about arguing we were going to be into Social Security. His staff made up the numbers with extrapolations and interpolations. I am going to start including that language in my vocabulary.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Florida for yielding me the time.

Mr. Speaker, I rise to engage the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Rules, in a colloquy with respect to the points of order contained in the budget resolution.

The first point of order prohibits the inclusion of directed scorekeeping language, and the second prohibits the consideration of advanced appropriations above $23 billion in the fiscal year 2001.

My question is: Does either point of order preclude the consideration of H.R. 2563, a bill that provides advanced contract authority for the Woodrow Wilson Bridge?

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER).

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, I would say no, there is absolutely no point of order that precludes consideration of H.R. 2563.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I would further engage the gentleman from California. Does either point of order preclude the inclusion of H.R. 2563 with directed scorekeeping language in an appropriations bill?

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from California (Mr. DREIER).

Mr. DREIER. Mr. Speaker, it is important to note that, while the new directed scorekeeping point of order would affect the timely consideration of H.R. 2563 with directed scorekeeping language, there are several other points of order that would currently apply. I would make a commitment to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. DAVIS) that we will work together to craft a rule that would remove all obstacles to consideration of this important bill.

Mr. DAVIS of Virginia. Mr. Speaker, I appreciate the gentleman's assurance.

Mr. Speaker, I yield to the gentleman from Ohio, Mr. KASICH.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to complete the thought that the Republican budget does not use extrapolations and interpolations to cook numbers and make things up and make claims that never come true.

We will have an ending of the Social Security earnings limit. It will be paid for through this bill. It passed the House. It passed the Senate. It will be signed into law.

The fact is that, by the time we are at the end of this summer, we are going to have in the vicinity of $250 billion worth of tax relief for every American who pays taxes without any extrapolations, interpolations or any other hyperbolations that the Democrats may want to lay on this floor today. But they are my friends, and I appreciate their ingenuity. They are just wrong.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I am going to be calling a ''no'' vote on the previous question. If the previous question is defeated, I will offer an amendment to the rule to allow an up-or-down vote on Governor Bush's proposed tax cut. There has been a good bit of discussion about where the House stands on those tax cuts. I think the House should have the opportunity to go on record and end the speculation.

Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the amendment I would offer be printed immediately before the vote on the previous question. The vote on the previous question may be the only opportunity the House has to vote on Governor Bush's proposal.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentlewoman from New York?

There was no objection.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

AMENDMENT OFFERED BY MR. GOSS

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I offer an amendment.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amendment offered by Mr. GOSS: Page 2, line 10, after ''comply with'' insert ''clause 3(b) or''.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, this amendment waives clause 3(b) of House Rule 13, which requires each committee report to include specific vote information from that committee's markup session. All Members are familiar with that.

This amendment is necessary to address an inadvertent technical error in the report of the Committee on Budget to accompany H. Con. Res. 290. Specifically, on page 88 of the report, the rollcall vote on the motion to report the concurrent resolution fails to indicate how the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. HOOLEY) voted, although her vote is reflected in the total vote.

Again, this is an inadvertent technical error in the report that is not intended to be captured by clause 3(b) of House Rule XIII.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I include the amendment that I previously referred to, as follows:

AMENDMENT TO HOUSE RESOLUTION 446

On page 3, line 5, after ''Rules'' strike the period and add the following:

''or the amendment printed in section 3 of this resolution which shall be treated as if it were the last amendment printed in part B of said report.'' and

At the end of the resolution, add the following:

Section 3. Amendment to be offered by Representative Markey of Massachusetts.

Amend section 4 to read as follows:

SEC. 4. RECONCILIATION.

Not later than May 26, 2000, the House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to accommodate tax relief of $10,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, $483,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2002 through 2006, and $1,269,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2010.

Mr. GOSS. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the amendment and on the resolution.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on ordering the previous question on the amendment and on the resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The Chair will reduce to a minimum of 5 minutes the period of time within which a vote by electronic device, if ordered, will be taken on the question of agreeing to the amendment and to the resolution.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 220, nays 203, not voting 11, as follows:

Mr. CUNNINGHAM and Mr. KNOLLENBERG changed their vote from ''nay'' to ''yea.''

So the previous question was ordered.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Florida (Mr. GOSS).

The amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the resolution, as amended.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

Ms. SLAUGHTER. Mr. Speaker, on that I demand the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—yeas 228, nays 194, not voting 12, as follows:

☐ 1253

Mr. PORTER changed his vote from ''nay'' to ''yea.''

So the resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

A motion to reconsider was laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEASE). Pursuant to House Resolution 446 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the concurrent resolution, House Concurrent Resolution 290.

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the consideration of the concurrent resolution (House Concurrent Resolution 290) establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2001, revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000, and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2005, with Mr. BOEHNER in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The CHAIRMAN. Pursuant to the rule, the concurrent resolution is considered as having been read the first time.

Under the rule, the general debate shall not exceed 3 hours with 2 hours confined to the Congressional Budget equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking member of the Committee on the Budget, and 1 hour on the subject of economic goals and policies equally divided and controlled by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON) and the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK).

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) each will control 1 hour of debate on the Congressional Budget.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH).

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, one more time, it is probably going to be about five more times, I want to go through what we are presenting in this budget today. If I can just take us back a few years. I mean, it is pretty astounding that a Congress that was increasing spending through the roof, having deficits in the neighborhood of several hundred billion dollars, could reverse itself today under a policy that we believe as majority Republicans that, if we could just restrain the growth of the Federal Government, we could contribute mightily to the growth of this economy. That, in fact, has happened.

Starting in 1995, we made a commitment that we would relieve the burden that has been placed upon our children's backs. We do not believe that at the end of our lives our children should show up for the reading of the will to find out that what mom and dad left them was a big bagful of bills totalling into the trillions of dollars.

So we made a commitment that, frankly, was pretty amazing. As for me, I have held public office now for approaching 25 years. For those that gasp at that number, do not worry, I am leaving at the end of this year. I am going to retire. As you can see, I am, you know, tenderly young, even though I have been here so long. But what I can tell you, I can tell my colleagues that in politics, in the 25 years that I have been involved with it, it is very seldom that I have been able to see public officials put aside their own self-interests and instead adopt the community interest, the interest of the country.

We did that starting in 1995. And we had a rough road. We were outwitted at times. We were outspoken at times. We were out-PR'd at times, but that is soft stuff. That is not about results, and that is not about policy, and that is not about programs.

We kept our eye on the ball. And the eye on the ball was to balance the Federal budget. And starting in 1995, with our rollercoaster ride of emotions to try to get to a balanced budget, we demonstrated our commitment. I believe the chairman of the Federal Reserve, who sets the interest rates policies for this country, noted our commitment and gained confidence in what result we would produce here on Capitol Hill; and as a result, he lowered interest rates, which, of course, has allowed this economy to grow in a spectacular fashion with the wealth generated from this economy being shared by all Americans.

We get to 1997, and we make a budget agreement with the administration; and what we find in 1998 is the first balanced budget in a generation. In 1999, we wrote a budget that for the first time in my lifetime kept our mitts off the Social Security surplus.

The leadership of many members of the Committee on the Budget, most notably the gentleman from California (Mr. HERGER), with assistance of the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE), the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN), the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT), the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN), and the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU), there was an effort being made to say that we should not any longer grab the Social Security surplus and use it for anything other than protecting Social Security; that we should not take that Social Security surplus and use it on running any other department agency and bureau, because it is the people's money.

In 1999, we were able to achieve something that was even more significant than the balanced budget, it was not just balance the budget, but also put ourselves in a position where we would safeguard Social Security, keep our hands off it, put an electric fence around it, and say that the Social Security money should only be used to pay the benefits of Social Security recipients and kept in surplus to pay down the public debt until we solved long term the Social Security problems for both our baby boomers and their children.

For the second year, we will protect Social Security in that fashion. With the efforts of my good friend, the gentleman from the State of Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN), we will bring to this floor a bill that will provide that the politicians in this town cannot grab Social Security for any other purpose than paying down debt or paying benefits. That is a significant accomplishment, Mr. Chairman.

We are also very aware of the fact that the American people are saying, in an era of surpluses, we not only want Social Security to be protected but we would like Medicare to be strengthened.

I must say that Medicare is a program that is in trouble. I must say that the next President, elected next January, whether it is a Republican or a Democrat, must work with the Congress of the United States, leave the demagoguery, the name calling, and the political hyperbole behind, and begin to deal with the two giant issues of Social Security and Medicare so that we do not end up in generational warfare.

We are setting the stage for that to be able to happen, to solve that problem long term. We are strengthening Medicare; we are going to reform Medicare. We are going to improve Medicare, and with those reforms and improvements we will also provide for our neediest senior citizens a prescription drug benefit.

Now, we know that there are many seniors, and think about it for a second, they need the prescription drugs; they need to go to the pharmacy and many times it is a choice between the utilities, the trip down the street, the meal or a drug that their doctor has prescribed for them.

We believe, as Republicans, and I think are joined by our friends on the other side of the aisle, that our poorest senior citizens must have access to prescription drugs. This budget will provide it, while at the same time encouraging the preservation, strengthening, and reforming of Medicare; two significant accomplishments.

Thirdly, we also do something for our children. We will reduce the total publicly held debt over the next 5 years by $1 trillion. In 1995, our guiding star were the children, to lift that burden from their backs, to not ring up more debt, to begin to reduce the national debt. We already have a headstart on paying down that publicly held debt. Last year, we paid it down in the vicinity of $100 billion, but over the next 5 years we are going to have more momentum, and we achieve it by restraining the growth of spending in this town.

We do it and we take those savings and we use a large chunk of it, $1 trillion, to begin to pay down the publicly held debt.

I say today that we achieve it in large part by restraining the growth of government. Now people might call us names and say we are heartless. I have to say that when the Agriculture Department, the Justice Department, the Education Department, the Pentagon, and the Agency for International Development cannot even have their books audited to figure out how they are spending their money, is it not time we get back on the reform agenda and send money back home to people and to pay down some of the debt?

My great friend, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA), told me that in the bowels of the Department of Education there are 48 VCRs operating day and night to record television shows, and yet they cannot even add up their books.

Think the days of thousand-dollar hammers and screwdrivers and bolts are gone? Wrong. The Pentagon loses ships; they do not know where they are. Yet, they say we cannot restrain spending in this town? They are wrong, because they have gotten too addicted to the Potomac fever. They need the antidote, and the antidote are our children and our seniors.

So we restrain the growth in public spending, and we pay down a trillion in the public debt; and that then leaves us room for tax relief. Who does the tax relief go to? It goes to our senior citizens who are punished because they decide to go to work and earn more money so they can have more for themselves and more for their grandchildren.

We eliminate the penalty that they are now exposed to that says if they earn money they lose Social Security benefits. We also say to our farmers, our small businesspeople, that at the end of the day when they leave this earth they should not have to visit the undertaker and the IRS on the same day; that we are trying to ease the tax on inheritance, which is double and triple taxed. We are trying to say that if someone works a lifetime to build something, something I would like to build for my children Emma and Reese, that at the end of my life I would like to give them the fruit of my bounty, the fruit of my toil. Whatever burdens my wife and I experience, we want to pass on the good results to my children, and the Government should not take 55 percent of everything I have earned to spend it on what? More VCRs in the bowels of the Department of Education? I think not.

We want tax fairness for families. When people get married, they should not be punished for having a union. Today, if one pays their taxes individually, in too many cases they will have a lower tax burden to the Federal Government different than if they get married. We believe that that tax burden ought to be ended. We ought to ease the marriage penalty, and this House has already voted for it.

In addition to that, we believe that if one is self-employed they should be able to get the same insurance opportunities and the same tax provisions that are available to large companies so they can afford health insurance for themselves. So the fact is that we are going to have a variety of tax-cut measures that will pass this House, but these tax-cut measures come, once we have secured Social Security and Medicare and paid down some of the national debt, we want to send money back; we want to get it out of town because I want us all to understand one thing. If people get bigger, government gets smaller. If government gets smaller, people get bigger.

I believe in the 21st century, in the Information Age, on the edge of an incredible revolution, that it is the individual that we prize; that it is the individual who is paramount in our society, not bureaucracy and bureaucrats and standing in line. It is about speed. It is about innovation. It is about excitement.

The more power we have in our pockets, the more we can do for ourselves and our communities and our schools and our children; and that is why we are committed to cutting taxes, not at the expense of our seniors, not at the expense of our children; but we believe every day that we should reduce the size and scope of this Federal Government. Let it do the things that people cannot do or business cannot do for itself and use government in a limited fashion.

We believe we need to restore America's defense. Now, we do have a very strange time where we have a department whose books cannot be audited, yet we are giving them more money. Why? Because we do not want our people in uniform to pay the price for sloppy management inside the Pentagon. But I must say there is a crusade building in this House, on this side of the aisle, that we want that building changed; we want to force the services to work together; we want accountability and we intend to make every effort to secure that.

We will also strengthen support for education, trying to send more Federal dollars to meet the Federal mandate of special education. School districts are handicapped because the Federal Government ordered them to carry out a task but never provided the money. Because of the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. BASS), the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU), and the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE), we are going to provide more money for special education; and because of the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. PITTS) we are going to make sure that the remaining dollars are sent to the classroom so that flexibility is provided to our educators.

In addition, we are going to improve the National Institutes of Health and basic science research, because we think it is a priority of the Federal Government. It is a proper role for the Federal Government, and we are committed to the efforts to eliminate cancer, to improve the treatment for heart disease, to be able to deal with the pain that families experience in Alzheimer's. Yes, we are going to spend more money on the National Institutes of Health, and we are going to spend more money on basic science, because it was through basic science programs in the Pentagon that we got the Internet. It was not invented by any politician. It was developed through a basic science initiative so that computers could talk together through the Pentagon. Basic science is a proper role of this Federal Government.

Mr. Chairman, we are going to hear this budget called a lot of things: risky, reckless, irresponsible. They are code words, for me. They are code words for more bureaucracy, more standing in line. Is there anything you hate more than standing in line? More frustration, higher taxes. The fact is that there will be charges that we are somehow affecting these programs for the elderly. It is false.

The proof is in the pudding. We have secured them, like no one has in a generation.

The fact is, we believe that this budget that invests in limited priorities in the Federal Government, reduces the public debt, transfers wealth that we have given to government back to people and secures the programs not just for our seniors but for baby boomers and their children. We believe this is a budget that is consistent with the economic development that is going on in America today. There really is no reason for Members not to come and in a unanimous fashion support this budget.

I would ask my colleagues to think carefully about it. I think it is an outstanding blueprint, and I think it is consistent with those that believe in limited government, in strong economic growth in the private sector. So I would urge support of the Republican budget proposal.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, we have come a long way in 8 years. We have come from a deficit in 1992, a record deficit of $290 billion and deficits projected as far as the eye can see, to a surplus computed the same way of $175 billion and that has underlaid this phenomenal economy.

We are now at a fiscal fork in the road. We have wiped out the traditional deficit, the deficit in our annual budget. We have created surpluses in place of those deficits as far as the eye can see, but those surpluses only exist because of the way we keep books. We keep a cash set of books. If we had accrual accounting instead of cash accounting and if we recognized our liability to the Social Security program and the benefits promised to those working today and to the Medicare program and the benefits that it entails, we would be booking substantial costs to both of those programs; and I do not think we would be in surplus. We would be in deficit again.

There are many differences between our budget, the Democratic substitute, and their budget, the Republican budget. The resolution is on the floor today, but the main difference is this: we recognize our liability to Social Security and Medicare. They do not, and I will say why.

Our budget generates savings, too. We have a cumulative surplus over the next 5 years of $48 billion; over the next 10 years of $365 billion. We take the $365 billion surplus, a substantial share of it over the next 10 years, and we direct the Committee on Ways and Means to provide legislation so that $300 billion of that surplus will be taken out of the general fund and contributed to the Medicare Trust Fund so that it will be more solvent than ever; we think more solvent to the tune of at least 10 additional years.

We further direct the Committee on Ways and Means to reconcile legislation so that in 2011, 10 years from now, the total amount of debt savings that we are able to achieve because we have accumulated these surpluses over 10 years, the total amount of debt service, the reduction in interest on the national debt, will be computed, and that amount will then be transferred from the general fund to the Social Security trust fund for a period of years such that we can extend its life by 15 years. Those proposals have been made by the President. We put them in reconciliation language in our budget.

They simply do not have anything. They are saying they are going to leave the Social Security surplus alone, and we are too. Good policy, and we agree. They are saying they will pay down $1 trillion of debt. So will we, using the Social Security trust fund. But we are going further. We are extending the life of both programs, and that is the main difference between us and them.

We have shown in this budget resolution that we are presenting that we can cut taxes, by less, but significantly. We can pay down debt, $48 billion over the next 5 years, $365 billion over the 10-year period in time. We can do all of these things and still provide for the reasonable needs of our country. $20.5 billion more for education, for example, in our budget than their budget. More for community development. In fact, they cut community development by nearly $2.5 billion between this year and next year. The Community Development Block Grant, the Economic Development Administration that means so much to many of our districts, they slice it, $2.5 billion. We plus it up. More money for law enforcement in ours.

There is also an account that is vitally important, because this is not spending, this is an investment, more money for science, more money specifically for the National Science Foundation.

You know, Mr. Chairman, when we had our markup in the Committee on the Budget, one of our Members from Princeton, from New Jersey, who is a professor of physics at Princeton and knows something about science, offered an amendment to the budget markup which would have added $2.8 billion over 5 years. The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) made that amendment, $2.8 billion over 5 years, $675 million a year to Function 250, which provides for the National Science Foundation.

The Holt amendment was rejected. There was a compromise reached such that the committee did give him $100 million plus-up in the mark. But, you know, the arguments of the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) began to resonate apparently with the majority. Over the last week, something happened.

Last night, haunted by the persuasive arguments that the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT) made in our committee last week, a majority had some kind of an epiphany, because they came around, and after rejecting his requested increase in NSF, they put $3 billion, exactly what he wanted, even more, in the National Science Foundation function.

Mr. Chairman, in light of that, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. HOLT), to explain what we have also put in our budget resolution to accommodate an increase in scientific research and exploration.

Mr. HOLT. Mr. Chairman, I thank my good friend, the ranking member of the Committee on the Budget, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I want to see that the budget does not amount to a fiction. What we want is to see that we can maintain the kind of robust economy that stands behind our projections. We want to have an economy with real productivity growth. And what is behind that? New ideas and smart workers. It is necessary ingredients.

I thank the ranking member for the kind remarks, and I would like to extend my thanks to the chairman and to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. EHLERS) for helping to prevail on our colleagues to see the benefit of my amendment.

The strong economy that we enjoy today is due in large part to previous investments in research and education, and the increase that we now see in the budget at the 11th hour, or actually it was the 2 a.m. hour last night, in research, is most welcome. But that is only part of what we need.

We should approve the Democratic substitute budget which will provide for increased funding in education as well.

The Republicans' budget cuts the purchasing power of education by $8.5 billion over 5 years, it freezes funding at the 2000 level for 5 years, it would reduce funding for 316,000 low-income students to receive Pell Grants to attend college. Head Start would have to cut services to more than 40,000 students.

The Democratic alternative budget, on the other hand, rejects this Republican freeze for educational funding. It provides $4.8 billion more for education for 2001 than the Republican budget. Over 5 years, the Democratic budget provides $21 billion more than the Republicans.

So we have made a partial fix in research, but we need to do more in education, so that we can have the new ideas, the well-trained workforce, necessary for the kind of productivity growth that we have been enjoying.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) for a colloquy about prescription drugs.

(Mr. STARK asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I would like to enter into a colloquy with the distinguished ranking member.

Somewhere in this budget there is supposedly a reserve of $40 billion that is supposed to take care of Medicare and the pharmaceutical benefit and whatever, but I cannot seem to find it. Could the gentleman explain to me where that is?

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman will the gentleman yield?

Mr. STARK. I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, this budget resolution, the Republican resolution, sets up a so-called reserve fund. It basically says if and when the Committee on Ways and Means reports a prescription drug benefit for Medicare, along with, coupled to, Medicare reform, whatever that means, then $40 billion is provided for that purpose.

Unlike their resolution, our resolution has reconciliation language. That is the whole purpose of having the reconciliation power vested in the Committee on the Budget. We can use this resolution to tell committees they should change basic law to provide for things like drug benefits. We have directed it and we have put up $40 billion also.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, if I could further inquire of the distinguished ranking member the chances, I would like to ask the gentleman's opinion of the chances of the Committee on Ways and Means passing a prescription drug benefit, when just recently the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN) offered an amendment to provide a discount on prescription drugs to seniors at no cost to the Federal Government and every Republican voted no, and every Democrat, of course, voted yes. So the Republicans voted, the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON), the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH), the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER), right down the line, they voted to deny seniors a discount on prescription drugs when it would have had no budget impact at all.

Now, given that kind of compassion, and this is a word that comes out of Texas, given that kind of compassion, what do you think the chances are that the Republican-led Committee on Ways and Means would vote out a prescription drug benefit that would help anybody?

Mr. SPRATT. I take it the gentleman's question is rhetorical.

Mr. STARK. Oh, no, it is a question that I hope the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW) will answer to the seniors in Florida, and that the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH) will answer to the seniors in Arizona, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH) will answer to the seniors in Pennsylvania, and that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. WELLER) will answer to the seniors in Illinois, because they have denied their own constituents the chance to buy these prescription drugs which they so vitally need at no cost to the Federal Government.

What kind of assistance is that to your constituents, I ask the gentleman rhetorically? And the answer is they do not want any prescription drug benefit. They do not want to save Medicare as we know it. I think that should be pointed out in this debate today.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND).

(Mr. WEYGAND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WEYGAND. Mr. Chairman, I just would like to follow up on the great comments made by the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) and our ranking member, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

In 1965, this Congress took a bold move in policy. It set forth a program called Medicare, because the highest costs that were encountered by our seniors was the hospital stays. They deliberately went out and determined that, indeed, we as a budget, we as a Congress, should in fact develop that kind of a program.

Today, 35 years later, the highest costs that are being encountered and incurred by our seniors is the cost of prescription drugs. Yet when we put forward a program, a real program of reform, on how to pay for and provide for prescription drugs for our seniors, the Republicans on the Committee on the Budget turned it down.

As a matter of fact, what they did was they put together a double count kind of system of providing $40 billion for Medicare reform and prescription drugs, but they counted it in another fashion as a surplus. So they have double-counted it.

We indeed then put forward a program of providing $40 billion strictly for prescription drugs so that the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) and the Committee on Ways and Means and all the members of the Committee on Ways and Means could truly vote on and pass legislation that would reduce prescription drugs costs for our seniors.

We have been denied that. But, more importantly, our seniors have been denied that. This budget that is before you today does not provide one penny for prescription drugs. As a matter of fact, since they already made a mistake of $20 billion on the Social Security earnings limit portion of this budget, you know where that reserve fund will go to? $20 billion of it will go to making up for that mistake. Then we have even less for any kind of Medicare reform or prescription drugs.

Each one of us in our district knows the anecdotes, knows the stories, of seniors who have gone without paying their rent or paying for food to buy prescription drugs or the reverse. It is time to change that kind of situation for our seniors and make a bold move in leadership to truly give prescription drugs an opportunity to be lowered and to benefit our seniors.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. PRICE.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, recent calls for biennial budgeting have claimed that the budget process around here is broken and needs fixing. Well, I would like to suggest that the problem is less one of process, and more one of a failure on the part of the majority to produce realistic budget resolutions. What we need is not endless tinkering with the budget process. What we need is to use the existing process responsibly.

The Republican budget resolution before us today repeats patterns that are all too familiar to us from fiscal 1999 and fiscal 2000. It makes highly unrealistic domestic spending assumptions, like those that led to last year's budgetary train wreck. It relies on false assumptions about the level of cuts which can be absorbed by critical domestic accounts.

The only way the Republican plan can make room for its exorbitant $200 billion in tax cuts over 5 years—and that goes up to $1 trillion over 10 years—is to drastically undercut domestic programs that are critical for working families and for the most vulnerable among us.

In 2001 the Republican plan would cut non-defense domestic spending by $7 billion, compared to a freeze at the 2000 level. When you account for inflation, this represents $19.7 billion, or a 6.4 percent cut in purchasing power, from our current level of activity. By 2005, the Republican plan would cut non-defense domestic spending by $39.4 billion or 11.5 percent relative to the funding necessary to keep pace with inflation.

Mr. Chairman, we need to remember that since 1962, non-defense appropriations have grown by 2.8 percent annually above the rate of inflation. From 1996 to 2000, the Republican Congress has increased non-defense spending at an average rate of 2.5 percent above inflation. So how can we realistically expect to suddenly reduce non-defense spending, not only below the level needed to maintain constant purchasing power, but below even the current year's nominal spending level? The answer is we cannot expect to do that, we should not, and we are not being honest with ourselves if we suggest that we can.

I am not talking here merely about cuts to domestic programs in a generic sense. It is easy to talk about belt tightening, and we indeed do need to press the war against waste and fraud and abuse. But what is at stake here are large cuts to programs that serve as essential safety nets which help struggling families help themselves. We are talking about cutting 310,000 people out of the Women, Infants and Children nutrition program. We are talking about making Pell grants to 316,000 fewer students by 2005. We are talking about eliminating more than 40,000 children from Head Start.

By contrast, Mr. Chairman, the Democratic resolution is realistic and it is responsible. Under the Democratic alternative, we would pass our appropriations bills on budget, on time. Unlike the Republican resolution, we would extend the solvency of both Social Security and Medicare, and we would mandate the addition of a prescription benefit to Medicare. We would buy back publicly-held debt, not only with the entire Social Security surplus, but, unlike the Republican plan, with $365 billion of the non-Social Security surplus. And we would create room for a reasonable and well-targeted tax cut.

The Democratic plan is well-balanced, by reducing debt, protecting and strengthening Social Security and Medicare, providing targeted tax relief, and maintaining our investments in public education, research, transportation and affordable housing.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to adopt the Democratic alternative.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. SANCHEZ).

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Chairman, today I rise in support of my distinguished colleague's budget proposal which will provide prescription drug coverage and better access to the Department of Defense health system for Medicare-eligible military retirees.

This legislation upholds the obligation; and yes, we do have an obligation to those who have served. In Orange County alone, we have over 100,000 military retirees, and we need to provide these Americans the access to health care they deserve. It is time to do it, and this bill does it.

Fortunately, our society has been blessed with many leaders who imparted the values of leadership, responsibility, and loyalty while wearing the uniform of this country. For without their dedication to duty, we would not enjoy the many freedoms that America has to offer. Congress should keep the promises made to these brave men and women. We should vote yes on the Spratt substitute.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Connecticut for yielding me this time.

I would just like to bring us back down to earth and talk about what this budget achieves. This budget that we are talking about here protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus; it strengthens Medicare with a prescription drug plan by setting aside $40 billion; it retires the public debt by the year 2013; it promotes tax fairness for families, farmers and seniors; it restores America's defense systems; and it strengthens our support for education and science.

But what I would like to focus on today is Social Security. I think it is important to note where we have been on Social Security. Well, over the last 30 years, the Federal Government has been taking money out of the Social Security Trust Fund and spending it on other government programs. In fact, just last year alone, the President of the United States gave us a budget last year where he said, I want to take 62 percent of the Social Security Trust Fund and dedicate that to Social Security, but take 38 percent of the Social Security Trust Fund out of Social Security to spend on other government programs.

Well, last year we said enough is enough. Mr. Chairman, 100 percent of Social Security should go to Social Security.

So last year the President basically said, let us take $52 billion out of the Social Security Trust Fund, spend it on the creation of 120 other Federal Government programs.

Well, if we take this year's budget and take last year's rhetoric, we can see the difference between the two parties. Last year's rhetoric was this: a number of Members from the Democratic side of the aisle said on the same day, the Republican budget already dips in to the Social Security Trust Fund by more than $18 billion. The Republican budget has already spent $13 billion of the Social Security Trust Fund. The Republican budget raids Social Security by $24 billion. Another Member on the next day said the Republican budget takes $17 billion out of the Social Security Trust Fund. All remarks last year by Members of the other side.

Well, let us take a look at actually what happened. Last year, in 1999, guess what happens? We took zero money out of the Social Security Trust Fund. We locked away every penny of the Social Security Trust Fund. We are doing it again this year, and we are going to bring budget language to the floor that says never again will Congress go back to the days of raiding the Social Security Trust Fund.

Mr. Chairman, if we look at the President's budget, if we take out his Medicare cuts, if we take out his tax increases, the President is sending us another budget that takes $60 billion out of the Social Security Trust Fund.

Let us look at the facts. Let us not believe the hype. We have already stopped the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund, and we are going to continue to stop the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. MENENDEZ).

Mr. MENENDEZ. Mr. Chairman, I believe we are at a crossroads in our Nation's history. In front of us is every opportunity for a future so bright, so filled with promise that our children and grandchildren have a chance to live in a Nation where every person truly has the opportunity to reach their fullest potential, a Nation where every child is educated in a modern school, in smaller classes with an excellent teacher; a Nation where people who have worked a lifetime can retire with security and without worries; a safe Nation with guns off of our streets and away from our schools. We can achieve these things if we make the right choices today.

Mr. Chairman, I say to my colleagues, this Republican budget makes all the wrong choices. Its main goal is a $1 trillion tax cut that snuffs out the aspirations of all but the wealthiest among us. It cuts 310,000 low-income babies and mothers off the nutritional assistance they use to buy things like milk and baby food. It takes away home heating assistance from 164,000 poor families. It cuts financial aid from hundreds of thousands of students. It ends Head Start for 40,000 preschoolers. It does not extend Social Security and Medicare, not even for a single day. That is no way to lift people up, to give them a chance to make a brighter future.

Great nations recognize that families in trouble are families with untapped potential, not problems to be swept under the rug.

Mr. Chairman, we can pay off our debt, save Social Security and Medicare, give our children the education they deserve, and our seniors the retirement they have earned, and lift people up to join in the prosperity and opportunities of this country. But we cannot lift people up if they are buried under the mountain of debt the Republican plan would pass along to our children.

Mr. Chairman, let us reject the shortsighted choices of the Republican budget and pass a Democratic budget that will help us get to that even brighter future that is now well within our reach.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE), a member of the Committee on the Budget as well as the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Protect 100 percent of the Social Security surplus, strengthen Medicare with prescription drugs, retire the public debt by 2013, promote tax fairness, restore America's defense, and lets us strengthen and support education and science.

Let us talk Medicare. Here come the me-too Democrats. That is not what they were saying a month ago. The me-too Democrats a month ago were rushing in and saying the President has a fantastic prescription drug benefit. Well, let us look at that. Let us see what the prescription drug benefit did.

Well, the President in the first year cut Medicare. No money left for prescription drugs. Second year, $2 billion, but the President's plan did not start yet. The third year, a $100 million increase for Medicare according to the President's budget; no room for prescription drugs.

What does the Republican plan do? Mr. Chairman, $40 billion set aside for Medicare, and what do the Democrats do? Last night, rush in with a substitute, saying oh, me too, me too, me too. I want to give a prescription drug benefit that is real, not the President's that is not real, that cuts Medicare; and let us look at some of those cuts.

In order for the President to fund his Medicare benefit, it increases beneficiary costs, it cuts kidney dialysis, cutting prescription drug payments, cutting hospitals.

Let me tell my colleagues something. Out in rural America, out in Iowa, you close my hospital, you do not have health care, let alone the President's fake prescription drug benefit that did not even go into effect until 2004. So do not come in here and ''me-too,'' 2 months after the President stood right up here and promised America a drug benefit that was not even real. Do not come here 2 months later and claim credit for a prescription drug benefit that is a ''me-too'' with our Republican budget.

We welcome our colleagues in a bipartisan way to solve this problem, but do not tell us that this is where you have been, because you have been cutting benefits under Medicare. The President's plan did that. It is not real. Vote for the Republican plan for Medicare.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume to answer the gentleman and say, if the gentleman's proposal is real, why did he not put reconciliation directly to the Committee on Ways and Means and the Committee on the Budget? If your proposal is real, why did you not say here is $40 billion, not here is a reserve fund, if you can reform Medicare and if you can report a bill?

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Chairman, last year the Republicans in the House of Representatives beat their chests mightily to talk about a $792 billion tax cut over 10 years. That tax cut was so fiscally irresponsible that it was rejected throughout the country. We are back this year with the same situation, except now we will not even talk about it.

In our Committee on the Budget hearing I asked our chairman, what was the price tag over 10 years for this tax cut? I could not get a straight answer. But today, I understand that number has been put out here before the body. It is $200 billion over 5 years.

Now, the question that the public deserves to have the answer to here, and we ought to answer it for ourselves, is what is the 10-year cost of this tax cut?

Well, last year the $792 billion tax cut was $156 billion over 5 years. We are talking about $200 billion over 5 years. So the math is pretty simple. We are looking at a $1 trillion tax cut over 10 years.

Now, there are those up here that think we ought to use the projected surplus for massive tax cuts and some that want to go on a spending spree, and I reject both positions. We should take the lion's share of the projected surplus and use it to pay down this massive Federal debt. Why should we focus on paying down a $3.47 trillion Federal debt?

Consider these facts: in 1999, we spent $230 billion in interested payments, 13 percent of our discretionary spending. That is $3,644 per every family in America with four people. That is more than we spend on Medicare; it is slightly less than what we spent on national defense. Think of the things that we could do by paying down the debt and not having that interest payment. We can do a responsible tax cut. We spent $60 billion last year on education. We spent $230 billion in interest payments.

Paying down the debt has also been an offense to our wallets at home. Several economists, including the chairman of the Federal Reserve, Alan Greenspan, have said, that as we pay down the debt it has a positive impact on interest rates, as much as 2 points. Take a homeowner in my home State of Florida with a $115,000 mortgage. If his or her interest rate goes down by 2 points, that is a reduction of $155 a month in their mortgage payment. That is a better benefit than most of the tax cuts that are being proposed up here.

Mr. Chairman, let us stop playing games with the future of America.

This budget is not a responsible step towards paying down the debt and extending the solvency of Social Security and Medicare. In fact, under this plan, the Social Security surplus will be spent as early as 2004. The public does not want gargantuan tax cuts at the expense of paying down the debt and preserving Social Security and Medicare, and we should reject the resolution for that reason.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU), a distinguished member of the House Committee on the Budget and the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, we have a Republican budget on the floor here today, and it cannot be emphasized enough. It sets the right priorities; it protects ever penny of the Social Security surplus. It sets aside $40 billion for Medicare and makes sure that there is enough for prescription drug coverage for those that need it. It retires public debt. It promotes tax fairness by eliminating the marriage penalty, by making the Tax Code more fair for those seeking to purchase health insurance or send their children to school. It restores the strength of our defense system, and it invests in education and science as well.

The previous speaker spoke a little bit about the importance of retiring public debt, and I think he spoke the truth. It is important. It does help lower interest rates, and it does make a difference in our economy. But I think it is also important to remember where we started.

The President was not setting aside ever penny of the Social Security surplus a year ago; he was not making the commitment to pay down the debt that we have in this budget. Just 1 year ago, the President suggested that we spend 40 percent of the Social Security surplus. We have come a long way, and what a difference just a year makes.

In 1998, we paid down $50 billion in public debt. In 1999, over $80 billion in public debt retired. Last year, when the critics on the other side of the aisle said, no, you are not going to set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus, we proved them wrong. We not only did it, we paid down over $160 billion in debt.

With this Republican budget, we will bring the 4-year total of debt retirement to over $450 billion. Paying down debt to protect our future, to lower interest rates, to keep the economy growing, it does make a difference on every home mortgage someone has. It does make a difference in lowering the cost of college loans and lowering the cost of an automobile loan. It helps keep interest rates low, and it helps protect America's savings.

When one's interest rates are lower, those are funds that one never even has to send to Washington. We are paying down debt, over $450 billion in the most recent 4 years. But over the next 5 years, we will pay down over a trillion dollars in debt, paying down that debt to protect the public.

Now, the critics say, well, maybe we could pay down more debt if we did not cut taxes. We could pay down more debt if we did not eliminate the marriage penalty and kept penalizing married couples. We could, but that would be wrong. We could pay down more debt if we did not get rid of the Social Security earnings limit. We could, but that would be wrong. We could pay down more debt if we did not give individuals health insurance deductibility. We could, but it would be wrong.

We set aside over a trillion dollars over the next 5 years, and we can criticize and harangue and suggest that maybe we should keep raising taxes so that we can spend more.

My colleagues have heard the code words, risky scheme. My colleagues have heard the code words, it is a dangerous plan. Taxes are not high enough. The fact of the matter is those are code words for spending more and for keeping more of the money that the public sends here.

We are paying down over a trillion dollars in 5 years, and that is why my colleagues should support the Republican budget.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. HOEFFEL).

Mr. HOEFFEL. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from North Carolina for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, the budget resolution in front of us today has a misguided focus. It double counts. It cooks the books. It does not have enough debt reduction. It has unrealistic assumptions in terms of cuts and domestic programs. It has risky tax cuts, risky indeed. Because they are simply too big, and they risk the future of Social Security.

If the Republican budget resolution is fully implemented, it would use up all of the surplus funds and threaten the future of Social Security. But if it is not fully implemented, if they cannot make the domestic spending cuts of 10 percent over 5 years that they include in this document, then they are directly going to raid Social Security.

That is an important subject for us to focus on.

All of us know how important debt reduction is. There is bipartisan agreement on that fact. The question is who accomplishes it. Debt reduction is important. This year, 12 percent of our budget is going to pay interest debt service on our debt, $224 billion. That money crowds out private sector investment. It keeps interest rates artificially high.

If we can reduce that debt, we can free up money for tax cuts or other spending needs. If we can reduce government borrowing, then the private sector interest rates will be kept lower, and we will strengthen our economy. But we have got to have a realistic budget.

The Republican budget resolution in front of us calls for 10 percent reductions in domestic discretionary programs. That is across the board. But they pick on some particularly important programs such as the community in regional development function that would have a reduction in purchasing power over 5 years of one-third.

I do not believe there are enough votes on that side of the aisle to do that. I hope there are not enough votes on that side of the aisle to do that because of the pain that would cause.

Two years ago, I was a county commissioner, and I was dealing with community development block grants in a wealthy county, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania, which this year will get $7.5 million in CDBG grants. It gets about $20 million in requests from the townships, the bureaus, and the housing groups, the nonprofits in Montgomery County.

So the county commissioners can fund one-third of those requests presently. If this budget goes through and across-the-board cuts are made as envisioned by the Republicans, that money is going to drop 20 percent. Over 5 years, it will drop by one-third. We are not meeting the needs of the public. This budget does not work. We have got to vote ''no'' on it.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, our budget protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus, 100 percent. It does it in the next year's budget just as it is doing in this year's budget just as we did not spend any Social Security money last year. It strengthens Medicare with prescription drugs. We set aside $40 billion in the next 5 years. It retires debt, $1 trillion in the next 5 years. We have already retired $302 billion. It promotes tax fairness for families, farmers, and seniors.

The GOP tax plan ends the marriage penalty, repeals Social Security earnings limit, reduces the death tax, expands educational savings accounts, increases health care deductibility, promotes tax breaks for poor communities, and strengthens private pension plans. We set aside $200 billion in the next 5 years, just 2 percent of the budget in the next 5 years.

The Clinton plan came in with $96 billion of gross increases in taxes. The Republicans had zero. We do not have any taxes.

The Clinton plan increases taxes $10 billion in the next year. We provide tax relief of $10 billion in the year.

The Republican tax relief plan, over the next 5 years, $200 billion for the marriage penalty, the death tax, the educational savings account, health care deductibility, the community renewal, and pension reform. We set aside $50 billion in potential update. We want to make sure it is locked up for paying down debt or tax relief. We do not want it spent by the Democrats on the other side of the aisle.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, the Republican majority's fiscal year 2001 budget resolution before us today tests the bounds of fiscal reality while failing the tests of fiscal responsibility.

The Republican budget resolution is premised upon an unsustainable tax cut of $250 billion over 5 years and $1 trillion over 10 years, which absorbs the entire on-budget surplus and then some, while requiring untenable, unreasonable cuts in nondefense discretionary programs. These cuts amount to 11 percent in real terms in the funding of such things as community and regional development, health care, and the environment.

Further, the Republican budget does nothing to address the need for a prescription drug benefit and Medicare, does nothing to extend the solvency of Social Security and Medicare. If fully implemented, it fails to adequately reduce the debt.

In short, Mr. Chairman, the Republican budget is designed solely to provide huge tax cuts at the expense of proper investment and human resources and prudent debt reduction.

The Republican budget assumes that nondefense discretionary spending will be cut by $363 billion over 10 years, cuts such as 1,000 FBI agents, 800 Drug Enforcement Agents, and hundreds of Border Patrol Agents.

It means a retreat from our bipartisan efforts to double the funding for the National Institutes of Health. It means cutting Pell Grants for kids to go to college and Head Start for kids to begin to learn.

In reality, we know the Republicans will never achieve these cuts for two reasons. First, the American people oppose them; and, second, the Republicans themselves oppose them.

According to the Congressional Budget Office, between 1995 and 2000, Republican Congresses have increased discretionary spending faster than the rate of inflation. The majority knows that these cuts will never occur, but they provide cover for their huge tax cut which will ultimately eat through the on-budget surplus and into the Social Security surplus at the expense of Social Security solvency.

On Medicare, the Republicans offer lip service to the public's desire to a new prescription drug benefit with the so-called $40 billion reserve. During the Committee on Budget markup, that reserve was spent several times on prescriptions, Medicare reform, and debt reduction. But the fact is we can only spend it once.

Finally, the Republican budget fails in debt reduction. If fully implemented, the Republicans will use none of the on-budget surplus to pay down debt and spend a portion of the Social Security surplus for their tax cut. If history is any judge and the Republican majority fails to make huge discretionary spending cuts they propose, it will spend even more of the Social Security surplus.

So, Mr. Chairman, the budget before us will ultimately lead the Nation back to debt finance spending, doing nothing to extend the life of Social Security and Medicare, failing on prescription drugs for seniors, and failing on paying down the national debt adequately.

The Democratic substitute offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) is a far better fiscal plan for the Nation. It provides for tax relief, debt reduction far more than the Republicans offer, and investment in the Nation's priorities of education, health care, the environment, and economic development.

The Democratic substitute does so in a way which is fiscally prudent and solvent, dedicating 100 percent of the Social Security surplus and 40 percent of the on-budget surplus to paying down the national debt, $400 billion more than our Republican friends.

I encourage my colleagues to oppose the Republican budget resolution and adopt the resolution of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) has 32½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) has 34 minutes remaining.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), the vice chairman of the Committee on Budget.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, we are here today to discuss a budget which Republicans have put forward that, number one, is going to protect Social Security, 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. We are going to strengthen Medicare, and we are going to provide our Medicare beneficiaries with a real meaningful prescription drug plan.

We are going to retire over the next 5 years, under this budget, $1 trillion. By the year 2013, we are going to pay down all of the public debt that this country now owes.

We are going to promote tax fairness for families, for farmers, for small business people, and for seniors. We are going to restore America's defense. We are going to strengthen support for education and science.

I want to concentrate just a minute on the area of national defense. Let us look at where we were when this new majority came in in 1995. When the current administration and the Democratic Congress took over back in 1993, the budget for defense that year was $282 billion. Over the next 2 years, this administration and the Democratic-controlled Congress reduced spending for defense by $20 billion, down to $262 billion.

Well, what was the effect of that reduction in spending? Well, let me show my colleagues what happened. We have reduced the number of Army divisions from 18 to 10. We have reduced the number of fighter wings in the United States Air Force from 24 to 13. We have reduced the number of ships in the United States Navy from 546 down to 333.

Well, since this majority has been in control, we have been about the business of providing more money for the national security of this country. We have taken the Clinton budget since 1996 alone, and have increased it by almost $40 billion. This year, again, in the current budget that we are debating today, we are going to add $1 billion over the President's request for defense.

What are we doing with that money? Let us look at what we are going to do with that money. We today are competing in our military services with every Fortune 500 company in the country. We have got to provide our folks with the quality of life in the military services that is second to none, and we are going to do that.

We are going to provide them with pay raises. We are going to provide them with better housing. We are going to provide them with better recreational opportunities to be able to continue to attract the finest men and women that America has to offer.

We are going to make sure that, from a readiness standpoint, that those folks are the best trained forces in the world today; that our folk in the depots have the parts to repair the equipment; and that our forces are equipped with the latest technologically advanced weapons systems that the world has to offer.

We are the world's greatest country in large part because we are the world's strongest military power. This Republican budget maintains that commitment to the national security of this country.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I would say in response to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), by my reading of their budget, it pluses up the President's budget $1 billion this year and no more than $300 million in the out year. It basically tracks the Clinton budget.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. CLEMENT).

Mr. CLEMENT. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Democratic alternative to the budget resolution offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT). As a veteran, I urge my colleagues to support this alternative which keeps the promises to our veterans.

We have debated on a lot of different issues in the Committee on Budget, which I am a member of: education, national defense, social security, Medicare, health care, and a plan to retire the national debt.

But the fact is the Democratic alternative offers us more hope and more opportunity to accomplish our goals and objectives for the 21st century.

For 2001, the Democratic alternative provides $22 billion in appropriations for veterans' programs, $100 million more than the Republican plan. Over 5 years, the Democratic alternative provides $1 billion more than the Republicans.

In addition, the Democratic budget provides for an expansion of the Montgomery GI Bill education benefits, a key recruiting retention tool for the Armed Services. The value of these benefits has failed to keep up with the rising cost of higher education. Our budget increases the basic monthly GI bill benefit to nearly $700 for 2001, a 25 percent increase for the benefit level in current law.

Our veterans are growing sicker and older each year. As a result, their health care needs only will grow in the years to come. It is imperative that we fund the various mandates included in the Millennium Health Care and Benefits Act, which the overwhelming majority of my colleagues supported last year.

In addition to increasing funding for health care benefits, our alternative also provides for an increase in the benefits available to veterans under the Montgomery GI Bill. The erosion of purchasing power severely hampers the effectiveness of these education benefits in recruiting and retention at a time when all branches of the military are falling short of their recruiting goals.

America and our veterans need a Montgomery GI Bill for the new millennium. I urge my colleagues to join me in support of this alternative budget resolution.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA), a member of the Committee on the Budget and a member of the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

What does a Republican budget mean for our families? Very simply, it means that we start moving towards a debt-free Nation for our children. Now that we have balanced the budget, we will eliminate the $3.6 trillion public debt over the next 13 years.

It means a more secure retirement for our seniors. We stop the raid on Social Security, and we protect the Social Security surpluses into the future; a stronger effort to find cures for cancer and other life-threatening diseases, and a safer world while we fulfill our promise and our pledge to those who made it that way.

It also means more education dollars for our classrooms. It means more money for our kids; more money for learning, instead of bureaucracy and red tape.

We are committed to funding special education. We are committed to funding Title VI. What does that mean? It means that we are going to fund innovative education program strategies, the area that gives local school districts the most flexibility in educating their kids and spending their dollars to meet their needs.

We are going to make sure that we keep our commitment to those areas that have Federal facilities, military facilities, by increasing impact aid. These are areas that we are committed to because when we fund them, it gives flexibility to local school districts to meet the needs of their children and their schools.

It is a sharp contrast to the President's direction. The President's direction builds on the failed Washington approach which has given us 760 education programs spread over 39 different agencies, an education department that for 4 years will fail its audits. They have already failed two audits; they are going to fail the next two.

We give the Department of Education $35 billion per year to help educate our kids, and the thanks that we get is a department that does not even commit to the basics of balancing its books and providing us with a clean audit. They have failed two, and they are going to fail the next two.

They have a theft ring operating within the Department of Education requiring a vigorous investigation identifying where their computers and their electronic equipment is going.

They recently printed 3.5 million forms for financial aid. Only one problem, they printed the wrong ones. They recently notified 39 students that they got a great scholarship. The only problem is these 39 students did not qualify.

This is an agency that is out of control. We need to move away from the failed bureaucracy here in Washington and move these dollars to people who know the names of our children and empower them to make the decision for learning environments that will enable them to learn and succeed.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Michigan (Ms. RIVERS).

Ms. RIVERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Republican budget proposal as it is presented here today and in support of the Democratic proposal.

I am particularly concerned that the Republicans are not near as generous with American students as they claim to be. In fact, the Democratic proposal offers $20.25 billion more in spending for America's students than the Republican proposal on the floor at this time.

I am also concerned that the Republicans will actually do damage to many of the programs we support in this country. For example, much of the Republicans' claimed increase for special education exists on paper only. Although they claim to provide a $2.2 billion increase for 2001, only $200 million in real spending increases will be available to America's schools.

And this sleight of hand grows dramatically over the next 5 years. Despite claiming that they will add $20.3 billion in budget authority, this hollow $11 billion promise, they will have only $9.3 billion available in real dollars; this hollow proposal will not buy one book; it will not hire one teacher; it will not pay for $1 toward spending for special education.

But more importantly, as the Republicans put together this package, they are going to hurt other educational programs. If we follow their proposal and say that any additional monies are going to go to special education, what we find is that the other elementary and secondary education programs must be frozen at 2000 levels. What does that mean? It represents a real cut in purchasing power of almost 9 percent by the year 2005.

This represents a real loss of 316,000 fewer low-income students who could get Pell Grants, and Head Start would have to cut services to more than 40,000 children and their families. They are not raising educational spending. They are hurting educational programs.

Instead, I would urge Members to support the Democratic proposal which increases education funding. As an individual who served for the better part of a decade on a local school board, I am pleased to support the Democratic proposal. I believe the programs we are advancing will offer support to the activities of local school boards. We will, in fact, supplement, rather than supplant, the hard work that is going on in communities all across the country.

The Democratic proposal provides real spending increases, unlike the Republican proposal. The Democrats will provide dollars to move forward on the President's promise to hire 100,000 new teachers. The Democratic increase is enough to continue that 7-year initiative, and we can expect we will be able to support about 49,000 teachers in the third year of funding. Research has proven that adding new teachers and reducing class size produces real improvement in student achievement.

Democrats also provide dollars to renovate schools. The Democratic budget provides tax credits and funding to help low-income school districts to make needed repairs to crumbling schools, something we know is a problem all across this country. It provides for loans and grants to leverage nearly $8 billion for about 8,300 renovation projects.

We increase Pell Grants, Head Start, employment and training, and funding for all elementary and secondary education. Please support the Democratic plan.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN), a member of the Committee on the Budget, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. RYUN of Kansas. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Republican budget.

I want to direct my focus to defense and to education in particular, because the Republican budget does support our military families, those that have been suffering from low morale. The quality of life in the military has been allowed to fall to historic lows over the last 8 years while deployments have risen to historic highs.

The Republicans began to reverse this trend last year by following through with the first real dollar increases in defense in the last 15 years, and this year we will do it again. We are going to make those changes.

I want to talk specifically about an issue that not only affects our Nation's defense but our education as well, and that is impact aid. Impact Aid provides funding to educate children of our military personnel. Impact Aid gives parents that are serving in uniforms the assurance that their children are being educated while they are deployed throughout the world. The fine men and women of our Armed Services deserve the assurance that while they are away doing their job their children are being taken care of.

The Clinton-Gore budget wants to cut the funding by 16 percent this next year while providing for an overall increase in education spending. That cut is a slap in the face to the parents who are serving in the uniforms that serve our country.

The Clinton-Gore budget wants to cut education programs like Impact Aid that provide flexibility in and local control of education. Instead, it wants to increase the number of Federal mandates that are often left unfunded. Republicans want to invest in education by prioritizing their funding in a way that directly benefits children and allows local educators to make those decisions as to how that money is spent; whether it is in a classroom, whether it is for teachers, or perhaps new computers.

The Republican budget rejects new Federal mandates and prioritizes the best needs for our children. I urge adoption of the Republican budget.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume in response to the last speaker, the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN).

Every President while I have served here has sought to reduce Impact Aid, and I agree with him that we should increase it. I would say to him that its chances of being increased are far greater under our budget, with $20.5 billion over 5 years more for education, than their budget.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Chairman, this budget is based on a false assumption; and no better than Senator JOHN MCCAIN makes the observation that, indeed, this great surplus we think we have to give a big tax is problematic. Indeed, if we do that, we may indeed affect Social Security.

Mr. Chairman, this budget resolution before us promises much to farmers but delivers little. In this budget, programs for agriculture are weakened at a time when they should be strengthened. Discretionary spending for agriculture is cut. Resources needed to process claims and make timely loans are cut. Funds for programs to provide vital information to farmers are cut.

Over a 5-year period, this budget resolution cuts the purchasing power of agriculture by $1.6 billion. At a time when the Department of Agriculture field offices face staff shortages and funding squeezes, at a time when farmers face long lines at the service counters and delays in getting needed assistance, this budget cuts agriculture.

Mr. Chairman, American farmers as we know them are in peril. Commodity prices are down. The cost of farming is up. Foreign competition is unfair. The farm safety net is virtually nonexistent, and many farmers have borrowed to the brim. Yet the very offices that can help them are understaffed and overwhelmed.

While this budget resolution offers larger farm payments, it withholds the resources to administer those same programs. This budget resolution, with its wizardry and magical acts, gives something; but guess what, at the same time it takes it away.

Mr. Chairman, there is an answer. The Democratic alternative provides $4.7 billion more to agriculture in the fiscal year 2001. The Democratic alternative budget provides some $213 million more for agriculture than this resolution does for this year. Over a 5-year period, the Democratic alternative budget provides $1.8 billion more for agriculture than this provides.

This budget resolution gives farmers rights without any relief. It is a promise without any substance. It is an illusion. The Democratic alternative extends the solvency of Social Security and Medicare, repays the entire debt by the fiscal year 2013, and gives targeted tax cuts to working families.

The Democrat alternative is fiscally responsible. Mr. Speaker, reject this budget. Support the Democrat alternative. Our farmers and our citizens deserve better.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 15 seconds to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH), a member of the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on the Budget, so that he can respond to what was just said.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I agree with the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON) that ag and farmers deserve better. But I think it should be very clear that in our budget, unlike the budget of the President, we immediately put in $6 billion for use and then we add another $6 billion over the next 5 years for crop insurance to beef up that program. So, for the first time ever, we put in ahead of time $6 billion right away.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HERGER).

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Chairman, as this first point shows, this Republican Congress has ended the 30-year, $655 billion raid on Social Security.

As the next chart shows, regrettably, Congresses of the past raided Social Security to pay for unrelated Washington programs. This was wrong, and this Republican Congress has done something about it. Seniors deserve to have their Social Security protected.

First, Congress adopted the Contract with America that led to the first balanced budget in more than 30 years. We moved from $200-plus billion deficits to surpluses by 1998. But we knew and the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman KASICH) and the Republican leadership and the American public knew that we could do more.

With their support, the House passed, despite the opposition of the Clinton-Gore administration, legislation I sponsored, the Social Security lockbox, by an overwhelming 416–12 vote.

As this next chart shows, last year President Clinton and AL GORE only agreed to set aside 62 percent of the Social Security surplus and proposed to spend the other 38 percent, or $52 billion, of Social Security on risky spending schemes. But we knew 62 percent was not good enough and refused to allow this reckless Social Security raid to continue.

Even with the overwhelming endorsement of the Social Security lockbox vote, again this year the Clinton-Gore administration budget would have raided the Social Security Trust Fund by an additional $60 billion when the tax hikes and budget gimmicks were taken out.

The budget resolution we are considering here today reinforces our Social Security lockbox for fiscal year 2001 and beyond. I urge my colleagues to support our seniors by protecting their Social Security benefits, vote for this Republican budget resolution.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume to introduce the subject that the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), the ranking Democrat on the Committee on Armed Services, is going to address, because it deals with a major difference between our resolution and their resolution.

Our resolution contains $16.3 billion over the next 10 years specifically earmarked for health care initiatives for military retirees over the age of 65.

Our alternative includes the funding that would be necessary to cover the major provisions of H.R. 3655, a bill that was introduced by the gentleman from Hawaii (Mr. ABERCROMBIE) who is the ranking Democrat on the Military Personnel Subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) who is the ranking Democrat on the House Committee on Armed Services, and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR).

Over that 10-year period, our Democratic alternative provides $5.4 billion in Function 550 for a prescription drug initiative and $10.9 billion in Function 570, the Medicare function, to provide for what we call around here Medicare subvention, to make military retirees over the age of 65 able to use their Medicare benefits at military treatment facilities. This is a major initiative and a major distinction between our budget and their budget.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I am curious how much time the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) yielded to himself. How much did he consume?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) consumed 1½ minutes.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON).

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support the Spratt budget alternative that is offered this afternoon.

As a ranking member of the House Committee on Armed Services, I believe this alternative is the only one that addresses the critical need to improve access to health care services for our men and women in uniform and for our military retirees who have given so much to the Nation in the past.

I also want to express my disappointment that the Kasich budget does not provide adequate funding for our military. In my view, it shortchanges the military by at least $12 billion this year.

But let me speak about the Spratt budget and the military health care. Today I speak for those young men and young women, their families, and the military retirees who have given so very much to our Nation, because they are entitled to the best health care available from our Government.

The Spratt substitute is the only one that meets the obligation we owe our active duty members, our military retirees, and their families. I am pleased that the Spratt substitute embodies a bill that the gentleman from Hawaii (Mr. ABERCROMBIE) and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) and I have introduced, H.R. 3655, to provide access to quality health care services for our retirees and for active duty and their families.

H.R. 3655 is supported by the Military Coalition, an organization comprised of 28 nationally prominent associations representing more than 5½ million current and former members of the seven uniform services.

The Spratt substitute provides for a comprehensive approach to address the problem of access to military health care, particularly for retirees and family members over the age of 65. It includes a comprehensive mail order and retail pharmacy benefit for all military retirees. It includes an expansion of the Medicare subvention program so that Medicare-eligible retirees may be treated at military hospitals and have the cost of their care reimbursed by Medicare.

It includes the elimination of co-payments for active duty family members under TRICARE so that our active duty service members will have fewer out-of-pocket expenses.

It also includes expansion of the TRICARE program to remote locations so the service members not near military hospitals may receive better, more affordable health care.

Overall, this Spratt substitute provides over $16 billion over 10 years for military health care.

How many times, Mr. Chairman, have we heard military retirees say, do something to live up to the obligation? This does it. This provides the money therefor.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 10 seconds to say that, in our defense budget, we are going to be adding $17.4 billion more to our defense.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. SMITH) a member of the House Committee on the Budget and the Committee on Science and the Committee on Agriculture.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I say to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), my understanding is, I read in the Democrat Spratt budget that my colleagues are putting in the same amount that the President did at $306.3 billion, and the Republicans are putting $307.3 billion into the defense. How they divide it up, we were not as articulate as our colleagues are, but just the fact that we are upping them one on the military budget.

I would yield to the gentleman, but I only have a minute to talk about what I need to talk about, and that is where we are going on Social Security.

Too often I think Republicans want to move ahead and do not look back to how much they have accomplished. And what we have accomplished is significant since 1995, when we took the majority. We actually for the first time in almost 40 years quit using Social Security surplus for other Government programs.

What has happened is, in 1995, we were looking at on-budget deficits of approximately $300 billion. Today we have a surplus. We are moving ahead in the right direction.

I am disappointed that this budget, Republican, Democrat, nobody else, deals with the huge problem of really fixing Social Security. The Democrat budget says they are extending the life of Social Security and Medicare by 13 years and 10 years, respectively, but actually what they are doing is adding just two more giant IOUs to those trust funds. It does nothing to fix the program. That has got to be the challenge in the years ahead.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Chairman, I want to point out that the Kasich budget has not one cent in that budget for the military retirees and the Spratt budget does.

We have got to think of our military retirees. They have given us so much.

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, I agree. If the Spratt budget is the same as the budget of the President budget, we add an additional $1 billion to up that budget by, I think, $18 billion.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON).

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) please explain that, in his budget, we do take care of military retirees, as opposed to the Kasich budget, which does not.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute to say that that is absolutely correct and to further clarify the difference, the very slight difference, between our resolution and theirs, the budget of the President and theirs.

Over this year and next year, their budget would add $1 billion for defense. It would increase the President's request of $16.4 billion up to $17.4 billion.

When the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) says they provide $17.4 billion, that is a billion more than the President requested.

By the way, the President's request is $24.4 billion more than we provided for defense in 2001 when we did the Balanced Budget Agreement of 1997.

Over the 5-year period of time, both budgets provide about $1.6 trillion. The difference between our budget and theirs over that period of time is less than one-tenth of one percent.

When my colleagues add what we just provided, we are adding $16.3 billion on top of that, on top of that $1.6 trillion, $16.3 billion to go to military retirees and to be reconciled and designed for application to them by the House Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. BACA).

Mr. BACA. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, the Republican budget contains tax breaks for the wealthy while ignoring working Americans, which I think is an irresponsible and not a fiscally oriented budget that looks toward the future.

I believe the budget that has been presented right now from the Democratic side has specifics in terms of the dollars for each of the areas. I am not going to go into depth in that area, but I will go into areas that I feel impact our area.

The Republican budget cuts down domestic spending. The Republican budget cuts down the FBI agents and Drug Enforcement agents. This will open up a season for drug dealers. We already have enough drug dealers in our streets.

College scholarships. It will cut down college scholarships. This presents an opportunity of hope for many of our individuals to go to school. Many of our individuals will be dropping out if we do not provide the assistance.

The Republican party cuts down the air traffic controllers. We are already having a lot of problems with our flights every day, and every day we are looking at the emergency on that level. So if we cut down the funding in that area, look at the impact it has on many of us who fly in that area.

Programs for women and children. Women and children will be out on the streets. We look at the services that we need to provide there. There will be more latch-key kids with nowhere to go in my area or many other areas. There will also be a burden on our churches to take care of these individuals because we have not provided the assistance.

By contrast, the Democratic plan would invest in education. And it is a high priority. Education is the foundation. It affects behavior and attitudes. It prepares us for the working force of the 21st century. It reduces class size. It builds more schools. It provides scholarship opportunity. It protects our seniors. It provides affordable drug prescription. It preserves Social Security and Medicare that is very important to a lot of our seniors. And our seniors know that that is the one issue that they very much care about when we are talking about Social Security and we are talking about Medicare and protecting them.

It eliminates the marriage penalty on low-income households. It invests in public safety. It helps veterans as we just discussed earlier. Democrats have a responsible budget. It pays down the debt before spending and emptying the bank account. The Democrats look at the future. It saves for a rainy day, it is a sensible budget, it deals with tax relief, it deals with opportunities for all individuals of America. It provides for our children, our senior citizens, those who are less fortunate, for the middle class and for all working Americans.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER), a member of the Committee on the Budget as well as the Committee on Agriculture and the Committee on Education and the Workforce.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Chairman, I think one of the things that we need to come back and look at is that when the Democrats controlled Congress, we had deficits approaching $200 billion a year. Now we have surpluses, a surplus last year of $178 billion that we have used to pay down the publicly held debt. And so even the fact that they can have this discussion about talking about paying down the debt, it amazes me; and it is because of the work of the Republican Congress that they have been even able to talk about paying down the debt, which was really not part of their dialogue until we were able to balance the budget and to have the surpluses.

What does this budget do? First, it protects Social Security. Remember last year when the President wanted to spend 38 percent of Social Security on more and bigger government? We are saving 100 percent of Social Security. We are strengthening Medicare and prescription drugs, setting aside $40 billion for that over the next 5 years. The President had a plan. He has a plan that puts zero in next year, the year after that zero, the year after that zero and then the last 2 years of his plan, he begins to put in some money.

When you watch his plan, the cost skyrockets. Why? Because you have working people, a bricklayer, a teacher paying taxes to buy prescription drugs for the Ross Perots of the world. But we have set aside $40 billion for prescription drugs and for Medicare for help with our hospitals back home that we will be able to provide targeted relief for those who need it in a fiscally responsible way.

We also plan on retiring the public debt by 2013. Who wants to see a child born here and have the debt of $20,000 upon their back? We are going to eliminate that publicly held debt that has been passed on by the minority for years to our future generations. We are going to strengthen and support education. We put more money into education, more flexibility, more money coming right back to the classrooms where it can be used most effectively with local control.

We promote tax fairness for families, farmers and seniors. It is interesting, they are talking about the huge tax breaks. What we are talking about is tax breaks that have to do with relief and fairness. I can remember them talking about not wanting to pass the marriage penalty tax, not wanting to relieve that $1,400 penalty. We have been able to set aside money to make sure that our taxes are more fair while we are paying down the debt and certainly restore America's defense.

Let me say additionally, we are adding money to basic research and science, hoping to find cures for disease like cancer, diabetes, Alzheimer's disease. We have consistently increased our support for the National Institutes of Health well above what the Democrats have proposed.

I am very pleased with this budget. I certainly encourage my colleagues to vote against the Democratic budget and for the Republican budget.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. CARDIN).

Mr. CARDIN. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank my friend from South Carolina for yielding me this time. The budget speaks to priorities. The Republicans are not very subtle as to what their priority is all about. It is about a tax cut. We know that this budget, their budget, says that that is their top priority. We do not have the details as to how it would specifically be organized, but all we have to do is look to last year and know that it will be an irresponsible tax cut, reckless and benefit the most wealthy. And we know that it jeopardizes the Social Security and Medicare and our ability to reduce our national debt.

We could take a look at what Senator MCCAIN said when he said it is fiscally irresponsible to promise a huge tax cut that is based on a surplus that we may not have. To bank it all on the unending surpluses at the possible risk of the Social Security trust fund is our fundamental disagreement. We could not agree more with Senator MCCAIN.

Now, we have an alternative. The Democratic alternative makes it clear that our priority is to protect Social Security, Medicare, and reduce our national debt, to have targeted tax relief to those who really need it, to make sure that we can continue our investments in education and the priorities that are important for our economic progress to continue. Fortunately, the budget that the Republicans enacted last year did not become law. The irresponsible tax cut was vetoed by the President. It is interesting that that veto message was never brought up before this body for a veto override, because I think my Republican colleagues know how reckless that really was.

Mr. Chairman, we are going to have a choice in a few moments to speak to what we think the priority should be for our Nation. Should we put tax cuts first or should we put the Social Security Medicare and continuing our economic prosperity first? I urge my colleagues to defeat the Republican resolution and to pass the substitute.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds to respond with no disrespect, but I think some of what I heard was almost silly. The bottom line is we are reducing taxes in the next 5 years by 2 percent of total revenues. Out of $10 trillion, the gentleman from Maryland thinks we cannot afford $200 billion of tax cuts, some of which many of his members have even voted for. Of course we can afford to reduce taxes 2 percent. And we are doing it after we are paying down our debt. We are doing it after we are dealing with Social Security. We are doing it after we pay for Medicare payments and prescription drugs.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), a member of both the Committee on the Budget and the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I rise in strong support of the resolution today. I want to commend the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) for the work that he has done. I wish the chairman luck in his future endeavors. He has made a substantial difference here, and his leadership has been extraordinary.

The Republican budget pays down $1 trillion in debt, protects Social Security, strengthens Medicare, and increases funding for defense and education. With these priorities fulfilled, it is time to give back to Americans their hard-earned money. Promoting tax fairness is the subject. When the Government is running continuous on-budget surpluses and CBO is forecasting surpluses far into the future, it is now time to provide tax relief. If we cannot return the overpayment of taxpayers' money now at a time when we have surpluses and a strong economy, when can we?

It is obvious that money left in Washington will be spent. Why do I say that? The Clinton-Gore budget creates 84 new Federal programs, increases spending at twice the rate of inflation, and despite our surpluses the administration again proposes to raise taxes and fees on working families. Our Republican budget would return the surplus back to the American people who earned it and who deserve it.

The Republican budget provides at least $150 billion in tax relief, including the recently passed marriage penalty relief and small business tax relief. A very responsible $60 billion will be included for additional tax relief or further debt reduction. Let us look at facts. Facts are facts. American taxpayers are overpaying the Federal Government. This money does not belong in Washington, not to Washington bureaucrats. The budget is paid for by the hard work and the sweat of the American worker. With the strong economy and the Federal Government in the black, it is our responsibility to provide tax relief. The Republican budget is a responsible plan for our Nation's future. I urge my colleagues to support this budget resolution.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. BASS).

Mr. BASS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Budget Committee budget recommendation for fiscal year 2001. As was said by previous speakers, this is quite an extraordinary event which we can produce over a period of less than 5 years a budget that goes from deficit to not only to going to surplus but protecting 100 percent of that surplus for Social Security while strengthening Medicare and providing the resources that are necessary to provide prescription coverage for seniors; retiring potentially the entire public debt by the year 2013; at the same time promoting tax relief for families, farmers and seniors; providing significant increases in defense; and strengthening support for education and science.

I am here specifically to talk about one aspect of education that is of particular interest to me, and that is funding for the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act, commonly known as special education. When I came to Congress in 1996, total funding was just a little bit more than $3.5 billion, or about 5 percent of the total 40 percent mandated as required by law. I am pleased to say that in this budget this year, we have incorporated instructions to the appropriators to increase special education funding by a full $2 billion, which is almost 100 percent of what the entire funding was when I came to Congress in 1996.

Full funding of special education is good education policy. It is good policy for communities, for families, for school administrators, for those who are affected and participate in IDEA programs; but most importantly it is also a form of tax relief. For us to have failed to meet this unfunded mandate for so many years is inexcusable. What we do in this budget is move a long way towards meeting that obligation.

I stand here today as a proud supporter of the budget plan that we have here before us today; and for American families, for taxpayers, I urge the adoption of this budget.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GARY MILLER), a member of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I rise to speak in support of the House budget resolution. The American people need to know what we are really talking about here, $1.8 trillion of your money. The money does not belong to government. It is the money we took from you and you have asked us to spend wisely or allow you to keep it, in many cases. What we are talking about today and what the other side is arguing against is allowing you to keep a little of your hard-earned money. What we happen to think does not matter. It is what the American people happen to think and what they say.

I would like to read part of a letter written to me by Mr. Todd Kolber of Upland, California. His dad was a physician; his dad was raised poor and worked his way through college. He specialized in chemotherapy to help people with cancer. His father passed away. He wrote me:

''I am the son and executor of the estate that he worked so hard saving for and didn't get to enjoy. Today I am going to have the pleasure of writing two checks totaling nearly $1 million divided between the State and Federal Government. This is the most revolting and disgusting thing that I have ever had to do. When the CPA told me how much money the death penalty imposed on my dad's estate, I literally almost threw up. I was sick to my stomach.''

Mr. Kolber closes with the following question:

''Can you write me back with even one good reason that validates the usurpation of $1 million that was left by my dad to my family?''

I cannot justify this tax of 50 percent on this family. I cannot justify this tax on any American citizen. For this reason I urge my colleagues to do what is right, the right thing for Mr. Kolber and his family and the right thing for you and the constituents of my district who will undoubtedly find themselves in the same situation at some time. I urge my colleagues to vote for the budget resolution that begins to dismantle this unfair tax that does nothing for grieving families. It is wrong. We need to change it. The debate here should be focusing on the fact that this is your money. It is not our money. We got this money because we took this money from you. We are saving Social Security. We are saving Medicare and Medicaid. It is time for you to save a little bit for your family. If you want to buy shoes or clothes or whatever you want to do, you should have your money to do that.

Mr. Chairman, I include the following letter for the RECORD.

TODD M. KOLBER,
Upland, CA, March 7, 2000.

Representative GARY MILLER,
Diamond Bar, CA.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Today marks the 1st day of the 9th month since my dad passed away. He was a physician specializing in chemotherapy treatments for cancer patients. He grew up in a very poor family in Brooklyn, New York, and he still managed to put himself through school and become a doctor, without the help of the government I might add. His plan was to retire this summer, after doing so much good for his patients and our community, and spend time sailing the 15 year old 27 foot sailboat he bought two weeks before he died. He paid untold sums of money in taxes throughout his lifetime while working to the age of 65, a requirement necessary to save enough money to retire at a financial level that a physician deserves. While paying 50% of his income in taxes to the government, money that might otherwise have been used to fund an early retirement, he died.

I am his son and executor of the estate that he worked so hard saving for and didn't get to enjoy. Today I am going to have the pleasure of writing two checks totaling nearly one million dollars divided between the state and federal government. This is the most revolting and disgusting thing that I have ever had to do. When the CPA told me how much money the death penalty imposed on my dad's estate, I literally almost threw up. I was sick to my stomach. As a result of my dad's strong desire to save for his retirement the majority of his estate is in Individual Retirement Accounts and you know the tax consequences that creates when distributed to heirs, right? After all is said and done, the government will have taken over 50% of my dad's property and money.

I adamantly believe that the government's only societal role is to protect the rights, lives, and property of the law abiding. Period. All socialized legislation beyond that is an unnecessary intrusion into my life and a waste of my money.

The government already confiscates too much money through taxation by means of Income tax, Property tax, Capital Gains tax, Gasoline tax, Social Security tax, Medicare tax, Telephone tax, Hotel tax, Airline Ticket tax, Energy Tax, Entertainment tax and numerous other hidden Excise taxes that I continuously pay.

Having stated that, and inasmuch as you are supposed to be representing me, can you write me back with even one good reason that validates the usurpation of one million dollars that was left by my dad, to my family?

Sincerely,

TODD M. KOLBER.

Mr. BALDACCI. Mr. Chairman, first of all, I would like to point out that we are probably $200 billion or plus each year having to pay interest on the debt that we do have. I think what we need to do, and we owe it to the American public, is to reduce the debt and the interest on the debt that they are paying for and that we are all paying for and the children are going to be paying for and to begin to be responsible in addressing those issues in not allowing for a very large tax cut to benefit the very few in America at the expense of everybody else in America.

We know from hearing from small business people if we can reduce an interest rate by 1 point over a 30-year note that we are going to be able to save them $25,000 on $100,000. And businessmen are telling me if you do more to reduce the interest rates, to reduce the rates and the interest on the debt, that is going to mean more business for me, more purchases that people are going to be able to make, and by keeping our economy strong.

We have to keep our economy strong, because our economy has produced the benefits that we are now enjoying, and it was the American public through the hard work that they have been undergoing that have given us this opportunity; and we should not do it and jeopardize it on a very risky large tax scheme that does nothing for prescription drugs, that does nothing on the interest on the debt, that does nothing to preserve and protect Medicare or strengthen Social Security.

We need to be able to make sure that those are the programs that we take care of and the interest that we take care of, not on a very risky tax scheme that is going to benefit very few people.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the very distinguished gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), a member of the Committee on Armed Services and Chairman of the Republican Conference.

Mr. WATTS of Oklahoma. I thank my friend from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, we hear that giving people their money back is a risky thing. It is a risky thing for the economy not to give people their money back, because what happens is, if those dollars stay here in Washington, we then grow the Government and create more government; and then we have to take more money from the American people to feed those new government programs.

It is an amazing thing to me that someone would say that it is risky to give people their money back when you consider that the economy, the strength of the economy is driven by, or 70 percent of the economy is driven by consumer spending. So when you give people their money back to buy appliances, to buy food for the kids, to buy cars, or to buy new tires, to buy a new washer and dryer, to make the house payment, that is good for the economy. That is not risky.

Again, I repeat, it is risky to leave that money here in Washington. I think the Committee on the Budget has come up with a very responsible budget. It takes care of 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. It strengthens Medicare and prescription drugs.

It sets aside about $40 billion for the prescription drug benefit, retires the public debt by 2013. I think it is important that we pay down the public debt, that we get rid of that public debt and not strap our kids and our grandkids with that. It promotes tax fairness for families and farmers and seniors. So it benefits our farmers. It eliminates the marriage tax penalty.

We set aside a dedicated reserve fund of $50 billion for tax and debt relief only, rejects the $96 billion gross tax increases over the next 5 years by the Clinton and Gore budget, restores America's defense, puts more dollars in national defense, and strengthens support for education and science.

Again, I think the Committee on the Budget has come up with a very responsible budget.

One thing before I sit down, Mr. Chairman, I want to add, I just had a press conference with the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman KASICH), about 10 or 11 of us; we had a press conference talking about the waste, fraud and abuse and what the General Accounting Office has found in our Federal agencies. We looked through some of those reports.

We have a Dow that is approaching 11,000. The economy is good. Unemployment is low. And I hope we do not get complacent, because our economy is doing good and we have surpluses; and it still does not mean that the Federal Government is not wasting money or abusing taxpayers' dollars.

We should be good stewards of taxpayers. We have a lot of waste and a lot of abuse in this government that we can go at and go after and even create more tax revenue for the American people.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

I would say to my good friend, the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. WATTS), here is what we are concerned about. Here are the risks that we are really concerned about. The gentleman claims that he generated an on-budget surplus of $110 billion, but he is also claiming a tax cut of $250 billion. We have spread that tax cut out at the same rate as the gentleman increases the $150 billion tax cut over time. And when we look at the bottom line, when we add in the gentleman's $40 billion for Medicare, prescription drugs, add in the additional 50 for additional tax cuts, the surplus vanishes in the year 2003. It goes into the red in 2004 and stays in the red in 2005.

The bottom line, instead of being $110 billion of cumulative surplus instead is $11 billion and declining, because it has been in a deficit for 2 years. We are back in the Social Security fund, back into Social Security in 3 years if the gentleman does it this way. That is what is risky. That is what concerns us.

If somebody will show us this arithmetic is wrong, we will listen; but until then, we say this is what the budget leads us to, dangerously close to being in deficit again, back into the Social Security Trust Fund.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague from Connecticut for yielding me the time.

I would like to actually take a look at some of the numbers that the minority staff continues to bring on the floor of Congress. If you take a look at the numbers, they are trying to tell us that we are dipping into the Social Security surplus.

Take a look at these numbers. These numbers they made up. These numbers they made up. These numbers right here, the costs of the Medicare plan, they do not even add up on their chart. If you look at this chart, in their report, I noticed they took a little bit out of this on the chart.

They say, on this chart over here, that the figures in the year 2002 to 2005 are interpolated by the Democratic staff. In Webster's dictionary, interpolate, that means to alter by text, by insertion of a new matter deceptively or without authorization.

They go on to say that the extrapolations for the second 5 years are made by the Democratic staff.

Well, Mr. Chairman, if we take a look at these numbers, they are wrong. The numbers on the surplus are wrong. The numbers that they are making up are wrong. The numbers do not add up. It is an extrapolation. It is an interpolation, which the definition is simply stated here in Webster's Dictionary.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman will yield, I would ask the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) a question.

Mr. Chairman, what the gentleman is reading, the quote, is the footnotes in their own documents?

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, yes, absolutely.

Mr. SHAYS. So these are their own words?

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Yes.

If we take a look at the chart that the minority staff has prepared, the footnote of these two quotes on this chart, the figures on this chart are interpolated by Democratic staff. They are extrapolations for the second 5 years made by the Democratic staff.

If we look at the dictionary, interpolation means insert new or spurious matter in this manner, meaning insert, estimate or find an immediate term deceptively or without authorization.

That is what we see here with these numbers. They do not even add up their totals. The numbers that they are taking from the Republican budget, if we look at the Republican budget, they are different numbers. This does not add up.

Mr. Chairman, it is the same thing. Last year they said we were raiding Social Security. Guess what? We stopped the raid on the Social Security trust fund. Last year they said we were going to take $17 billion out of Social Security when we debated this bill last year.

Guess what happened? For the first time in 30 years this Congress actually stopped the raid on Social Security and put 100 percent of the Social Security money back in the Social Security trust funds.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, would the gentleman please tell us then what is the year-by-year impact of the $200 billion tax cut over the next 5 years so that we can put it in the chart correctly and we can tell what the bottom line properly is?

Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) to respond.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the fact that the gentleman has recognized that his numbers are interpolations; that his numbers are estimates.

Our numbers add up. Our numbers on the 5-year spendup, our numbers on the tax relief, do add up. If we take a look at the gentleman's surplus numbers, taken out of our budget, they are lower numbers as well. They do not add up.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, the gentleman has a year-by-year breakout for the $150 billion tax cut.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPRATT. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, yes, we do.

Mr. SPRATT. For the $50 billion tax cut that is additional to that, the gentleman has no year-by-year break out. That is all I am asking for, if we could see the year-by-year breakout of the $50 billion tax cut, too.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, to respond to the gentleman's question, in his chart he says in the first year that we have zero tax cuts. If we take a look at page 29 of the bill, we actually have $5 billion in tax cuts.

So looking at the legislation that we are here voting on right now, the chart that the gentleman has prepared is actually in error by $5 billion in the first year alone.

Mr. SPRATT. Well, we know that because the chart was changed last night at 1:00 a.m., and we received that information then.

We have adjusted the numbers, added the $50 billion to the $150 billion, and increased it at the same rate that the $150 billion tax cut was increased.

Using that method of interpolation, the budget is still $5 billion in deficit by 2004 and a billion dollars in deficit in 2005. We are using the gentleman's same numbers, the gentleman's same proportionate increases each year and we come up with that result.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT), who is a member of both the Committee on Science and Committee on Agriculture, as well the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, this has been an interesting debate but it almost is as if there is an echo in here. This debate certainly sounds like debates we have had around this House. Every year when the budget comes up, many of the same expressions, we are hearing terms like exploding tax cuts, risky tax cuts. Somehow I am not really certain what a risky tax cut is and especially when we look at what we are doing with this budget. All we are really doing is making room to eliminate the marriage penalty tax.

Now, nobody wants to debate that because we all know that it is incredibly unfair to say to married couples that they have to pay extra taxes just because they are married.

I do not think it is risky for us to say we are going to make room in our budget to eliminate that unfairness over the next 5 years. That is not risky.

Then we hear always, and this is a common refrain, that this is a tax cut for the rich. Well, I think the only tax cut that they can be talking about, because certainly what is being said is not that married people, just because they are married they are rich. Perhaps what is being talked about is reducing or eliminating the estate tax.

Now, currently, as we all know, it does not take very long for a small business person or a farmer to reach that threshold where their estate is going to pay 55 percent, 55 percent.

That is confiscatory.

How can it be risky to say it is wrong to say to a farmer or a small business person, to their families, that we are going to take away 55 percent of their estate after they reach a certain level?

If the tax relief that we have put into this bill is looked at, it is absolutely fair.

I am reminded of the story and I said it the other day, of the little red hen. Nobody wanted to help bake the bread.

No one wanted to help create the surpluses, but it is amazing how people argue about who is going to get the biggest slice.

This budget, Mr. Chairman, is absolutely fair, and for the first time in my adult lifetime we are actually allowing the Federal budget to grow at a slower rate, in fact about half the rate of the average family budget. If we do that over the next 5 years, if we control Federal spending, we are going to create big surpluses. Some of that surplus ought to go back to the people who pay the taxes.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PASCRELL).

Mr. PASCRELL. Mr. Chairman, I want to thank the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today to express my disappointment that once again our friends on the other side have chosen to offer what I consider to be a very irresponsible and unrealistic budgetary mirage rather than a real budget based upon real values.

Rather than work toward our common objectives, they have again put irresponsible tax cuts first. They have offered a budget that puts Social Security at risk, and for the same reasons backed off their proposals last summer, in 1999, in that particular budget, when they saw that Social Security was at risk.

Senator MCCAIN has repeatedly said this is a, quote/unquote, ''fiscally irresponsible approach.''

There is a simple question here: Are we better off now than we were 8 years ago? Are we better off with the fiscal discipline and key investments we started in 1993? The answer is yes, and we should not fail our values by endorsing the failed policies of the past.

Most importantly, the budget from our friends on the other side proposes cuts that just will not happen. Do they believe that by October of this year Head Start will be cut by 40,000 kids? Do they believe that if we provide for 300,000 less college students for Pell grants over the next 5 years, that that will be a part of the final budget? And do they believe that cutting home energy assistance to 160,000 families will actually be a reality in October? This budget is irresponsible. It is not a base from which to do our work here.

We believe in tax cuts, we believe in paying down our debt, we believe in allocating money for veterans health care and prescription drugs for seniors. We can do that. We should do it together. We agree on it.

Let us get down to business and do something today that will actually be useful when decisions must be made later this year. Let us adopt a budget blueprint that embraces all of our values, not one that ignores them.

I ask that Members support the Democratic substitute.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, could the chairman tell us who has the right to close and how much time is remaining on each side?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) has 6 minutes remaining, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) has 6½ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Connecticut has the right to close.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GREEN), a member of the Committee on Banking and Financial Services and the Committee on Science.

Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, my colleague from Minnesota a little while ago talked about the story of a little red hen. I was reminded of a different story. It is a story about the rooster who used to get up every morning and crow right before the sun came up. One morning the rooster overslept, and the sun came up anyway and the rooster was shattered and crushed.

I think our friends on the other side in the minority are like that rooster. They have been crowing, as they have been every year, about how Republican plans would hurt the debt, hurt Social Security and set us back. Yet, every year we have made great progress.

Here we are again. We are here today on the threshold of a chance to make history, paying down the debt, strengthening our retirement security system, making major new investments in the programs that families care about. With our budget plan, we will make sure that every family has the tools and the opportunity to pursue the American dream, and we do it in a responsible fashion, built on conservative values and conservative priorities.

I strongly urge my colleagues to support this great budget plan.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1½ minutes.

Mr. Chairman, one more time let me put our chart up. The reason we had zero in allocating the $50 billion tax cut to 2001 is that is what your resolution provided, until last night at 1 o'clock. Your resolution now provides $5 billion, no more in that particular year.

We have, therefore, taken that single number, the only one you provided in breaking out the tax cut, and we have increased the $50 billion tax cut at the same rate that your $150 billion tax cut increased it every year. The same proportion.

When you do that, in 2001 the tax cut becomes $15 billion. In 2002, the total tax cut becomes $29 billion. In 2003, it becomes $41 billion. In 2004, it becomes $55 billion. In 2005, it becomes $59 billion. The total tax cut over that period of time is $200 billion.

As a result, using simple arithmetic, as a result of those adjustments, just trying to figure out how your $200 billion tax cut would distribute, we get a bottom line that is $5 billion in deficit in the year 2004, and in the year 2005, still negative, minus $2 billion. You are back in deficit, back in the Social Security surplus.

If these numbers are wrong, come change them.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New York (Mr. SWEENEY), a member of the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the Committee on Banking and Financial Services, and the Committee on Small Business.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I am not a member of the Committee on the Budget and have not been part of the process that caused this incredible debt that caused this high taxation or that has caused repeated raids on the Social Security system, but I am proud to be part of the solution.

I am proud to support this budget which strengthens Medicare. I am proud to be part of this process that pays down the national debt. I am proud to support this budget that provides tax relief in the areas of marriage penalty tax, death tax, education, health care, and repeal of seniors' earning limitations.

I am proud to support this budget which strengthens national defense, strengthens education funding, aggressively attacks waste and fraud.

Lastly, I am proud to support this Republican budget which strengthens and protects Social Security and permanently ends the raid on that. I am proud to do that, Mr. Chairman, as the father of three children, because I am proud to give them the future and America's children the future they deserve.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, as I said at the outset, we have come a long way since 1992 when the budget was in deficit $290 billion. We have wiped out the deficit. Now we stand at a fiscal fork in the road, deciding whether or not we take on the second biggest and toughest problem, and that is the long-term solvency of Social Security and Medicare, or whether we take another fork and ignore those particular problems.

We have presented to the House a budget resolution which cuts taxes, not by as much as our Republican colleagues, but it is a significant tax cut, $50 billion net tax cut over 5 years, $201 billion over 10 years. We provide for tax cuts. We also pay down our mountainous national debt, at long last, $48 billion over 5 years in debt reduction, $364 billion over 10 years in debt reduction.

But we go further. Given the opportunity that we have, we step up to the problem of the long-term solvency of Social Security and Medicare by transferring over the next 10 years $300 billion into the Medicare trust fund, extending its life by 10 years, and then by transferring funds from the general fund into Social Security and extending its life by 15 years.

We do this, and at the same time we provide for things that the country needs. I come from a district where there are a lot of military retirees. I have heard their complaints about the kind of commitment we have made to them and the extent to which we have kept it. So, consequently, we have made room in our resolution to provide for a major increase in retiree health care benefits. We are going to say to them, Medicare subvention, we can do it. If you want to use your Medicare benefits at a military treatment facility, we have provided for it in this resolution.

Furthermore, for those over 65 who do not have a drug or pharmacy benefit anymore, we are going to reinstate it. We are going to fully fund the Abercrombie-Skelton bill.

When you look at these things, the $20.5 billion for education, the additional amounts we provide for law enforcement over and above what they provide, the realistic level of funding we provide for community and regional development, as opposed to their cut, which is $2.5 billion in CDBGs, EDA and these agencies that help us help the hardest hit parts of our country, there is no question about it, we have not just a balanced budget in the sense that the bottom line is in the black, thank goodness, but it is balanced as to its priorities. It is the better budget of the two, and I urge support for it.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina, Mr. PRICE.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I would like to engage the gentleman in a colloquy here about this tax cut debate we have been having.

I understand that one of our friends on the other side said there was no such thing as an irresponsible tax cut. That is a dangerous view. In fact, the tax cut proposed by George W. Bush, the Republican presidential candidate, seemed to fit that category very well, because our Republican friends refused to even allow us to vote on it in the Committee on the Budget.

This chart indicates where we are with these various tax cut proposals. The Republican tax cut proposal that is included in this budget would use the entire non-Social Security surplus and take us into deficit, into borrowing from the Social Security surplus to the tune of $68 billion over the 10 year period. It would just barely avoid doing that over the first 5 years and be $68 billion in the red over 10 years.

The Bush tax cut is even more irresponsible, $136 billion into the red in 5 years, and $376 billion over 10 years. So, it is not surprising, I suppose, that our Republican friends would not permit a vote on that.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I think that is a good presentation of exactly the point we have been trying to make all day long. We have called it risky and dangerous. What we are talking about is skating on thin ice. For the first 5 years, this resolution, which has $200 billion of tax reduction in it, comes perilously close to putting us back in deficit. If we do, we are back into the Social Security trust fund.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, the Democratic alternative does have responsible tax relief, targeted at the marriage penalty, targeted at the need to get school construction moving in this country, targeted at a number of important priorities. But it is balanced and responsible. That is the key point. It is balanced with the other priorities of shoring up Medicare and Social Security and paying down the national debt. It is that sort of balance that I think is missing in our Republican friends' resolution.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from South Carolina has 15 seconds.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, in the time remaining, I would urge every Member to look in earnest at these two proposals. We have made the House a budget proposal that pays down the debt, provides for tax relief, but also provides for the real needs of this country.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from Connecticut has 3¾ minutes to close this portion of the debate.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, only in Washington when you cut taxes by $200 billion in a $10 trillion revenue stream would people call it irresponsible.

Mr. Chairman, I yield the remainder of the time to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU).

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, it is never easy to put together a budget that spends $1.8 trillion. It is difficult to bring together all of the Members on this floor on either side of the aisle, talk through priorities, make tradeoffs and set forth a blueprint that talks about our broad vision for where this economy ought to be headed, for where Federal spending ought to be headed and for what we ought to be doing to protect the taxpayers of this country. But the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) has provided tremendous leadership to the Committee on the Budget; and I think it is worth reviewing, not just the record that he has established in setting these priorities, but where this budget is really going to take us.

Let us cut through the rhetoric a little bit and talk about what our priorities are. First and foremost, it is to set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus. This is not old hat. This is not an idea that Democrats or Republicans have been talking about for 4, 5, or 6 years. It was just last year that Republicans responded to the President's call to spend 40 percent of the Social Security surplus with a commitment that no longer will we take funds out of the Social Security surplus, that we will set aside every penny. We did it despite the calls of critics that we would not be able to do it. We did it because we had the will and determination to put forward spending bills that achieve that goal.

What else does this budget do? It sets aside funds for Medicare, for prescription drug benefit. We have heard a lot of scare tactics about losing benefits, Medicare or Social Security, trying to intimidate Members of this House, trying to intimidate the American people. But the fact is we have set aside $40 billion. If you just take a look at the allocations for Medicare, the red showing the President's set-aside for Medicare, the blue slowing the Republic plan for Medicare, there is a dramatic difference. If we have the wherewithal and will to pass bipartisan legislation in the Committee on Ways and Means, we will achieve historic Medicare reform and deliver that prescription drug benefit to those seniors in need.

Set aside Social Security surplus, protect Medicare, and pay down debt.

Look at the record on debt relief. This is not a projection; this is what has actually been done. In 1998, $50 billion. In 1999, over $80 billion. This fiscal year, $163 billion. Despite the fact that the critics on the other side said we were going to dip into the Social Security Trust Fund surplus, we did not. Over 4 years we have paid down over $450 billion in debt. It keeps interest rates low, it keeps the cost of one's home mortgage or car loan low, and that money never has to be sent back to Washington.

Critics say we could pay down more debt if we did not cut taxes. Well, of course, we could pay down a little more debt if we did not cut the marriage penalty, if we kept penalizing married couples; but that would be the wrong thing to do. If we did not eliminate the Social Security earnings ban, we could pay down a little bit more in debt, but that would be the wrong thing to do. If we did not give individuals health insurance deductibility just like we give to big corporations, we could pay down a little bit more in debt, but that would be wrong. We are supporting this historic tax relief for Americans, not because of what it does or does not add up to, but because of eliminating the marriage tax penalty, eliminating the death tax, because giving individuals health insurance deductibility is the right thing to do.

Even with this historic tax relief, we pay down debt over the next 5 years. Mr. Chairman, $1 trillion in debt paid down over the next 5 years. What a historic achievement, bringing public debt from over $3.9 trillion to well under $3 trillion over the next 5 years. That achievement will not just serve fiscal responsibility or serve our budget priorities well, but it will serve the American people well.

Mr. Chairman, this is the right set of priorities for America, from paying down debt and cutting taxes to investing in defense and funding our special education mandate. I urge my colleagues to support this vision, this set of priorities, and support the Republican resolution.

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to this Republican Fiscal Year 2001 Budget Resolution and in strong support of America's home healthcare agencies and patients. This resolution is skewed and misguided. It is a framework for disaster and for a return to the deficit spending of the 1980s. It is a political document designed to further the Majority's ill-advised tax cut agenda. Instead of focusing on strengthening Social Security, improving education, and extending Medicare, this budget will place our surplus in jeopardy through the risky tax cut scheme that was vetoed last year. I challenge the Republicans to take a stand for America and fund the programs Americans depend on.

One of those programs is home healthcare, which received some of the worst cuts in the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 (BBA). Home healthcare is vital to millions of people across this country. It allows patients to recover from illness or surgery and to receive treatment in the comfort of their own homes and in the security of their own families, instead of having to move into a nursing home or stay in a hospital. In addition, treating patients at home saves money for Medicare in the long run.

Home healthcare received attention last year because there was a pressing need to restore funding for ailing home healthcare agencies. This need has not diminished. An important provision in last year's budget resolution expressed support for delaying the automatic 15 percent cut in home healthcare funding upon implementation of the Prospective Payment System (PPS) and for the enactment of the PPS in a timely fashion. At the end of the year, the BBRA included a one-year delay of the 15 percent cut, in part due to the language in the Budget Resolution.

Today we are debating the FY 2001 Budget Resolution, and while I will not support final passage because of the misguided policies outlined in this resolution, I am somewhat encouraged by the home healthcare language it includes. However, I believe it is time for the Majority to show some courage and dedicate specific funds for home healthcare agencies.

This Budget Resolution contains a Sense of Congress that ''Congress and the Administration should work together to avoid the implementation of the 15 percent reduction in the prospective payment system and ensured timely implementation of that system.''

Instead of a Sense of Congress, I challenge the Majority to include $5 billion to eliminate the 15 percent reduction. It is time for the Majority to admit it made a mistake with the BBA and begin to fix that mistake.

I am extremely disappointed that the Republican Majority does not recognize the damage done by the BBA, especially to home healthcare. We are living in the most prosperous time in this nation's history. Our seniors deserve better than this budget.

Mr. SANDLIN, Mr. Chairman, today I address H. Con. Res. 290, the Republican budget resolution for FY 2001. Further, I would like to discuss the opportunities that the Blue Dog substitute provides. I am working to amend some of the inequities in the resolution drafted by my Republican colleagues.

In 1993, when President Clinton first came to office, the deficit stood at $332 billion. Beginning with the Deficit Reduction Act in 1993, the Administration worked its way to a surplus. By Fiscal Year 1998, the Congressional Budget Office (CBO) reported that total revenues exceeded spending by $70 billion, producing the first surplus in almost 30 years. This surplus allowed us to move our attention beyond the deficit and onto other pressing national problems.

Mr. Chairman today seniors make up a greater percentage of our population than ever before. The generation that made this nation great—that lifted us out of an economic depression, won both world wars and the cold war—is retiring by the millions and in need of care. This trend will continue with the fast-approaching retirement of the baby boom generation, placing an unprecedented strain on Social Security and Medicare—programs created by the Democrats for the people.

Medicare, the primary vehicle of health care for seniors, is threatened with insolvency by 2008. Population increases, coupled with rising health costs, have threatened to annihilate this program. However, we have an opportunity to change this.

The Blue Dog substitute, which I support, pays heed to these vital programs. This substitute promotes responsible budgetary policy by reserving half of the on-budget surplus for debt reduction and saving the entire Social Security surplus. While the Republicans budget uses the surplus for irresponsible tax cuts, we save Medicare and Social Security. We also establish a Medicare reserve of $40 billion over 5 years that could be used to finance reforms that extend solvency, create a prescription drug benefit, or allow for additional health care provider relief. Further, we take care of our rural health care programs by increasing funding for discretionary health care programs by $4.6 billion over the Republican budget.

The Blue Dog substitute will put the government on the path to completely eliminate the publicly held debt by 2012, one year earlier than the goal set forth by the President. Because the Republican plan spends the Social Security surplus for other purposes, it reduces less debt. Federal reserve Chairman Alan Greesnspan has stated that paying down the debt is crucial to preparing for the fiscal hurdles that face Medicare. It's clear that social Security, Medicare, Social Security and the national debt are intricately linked.

Mr. Chairman, another thing I simply cannot overlook is the lack of funding that the Republican budget resolution provides for education programs. The substitute I am supporting provides $15 billion more funding over the next five years for education than proposed in the Republican budget. These funding increases are targeted toward education reform initiatives. Although our children have no legislative voice, they represent our nation's future and deserve an investment in their education today.

Our budget should not only educate our children, but also protect their security in an increasingly dangerous world. I support a budget that will give this nation an appropriate level of military readiness. Mr. Chairman, several renegade nations have recently completed successful nuclear weapons testing. Although the Cold War has ended, the nuclear arms race continues to this day. With this concern in mind, the Blue Dog substitute provides $15 billion more in defense budget authority (over 5 years) than the Republican budget. In addition, the Blue Dog substitute takes care of veterans by providing funding for prescription drug benefits.

The Blue Dog budget also meets the agricultural and energy needs of this nation—areas of crucial importance in my district of East Texas. The Blue Dog substitute increases the baseline for mandatory agricultural programs by $23.6 billion over the next five years, in addition to providing $6 billion for assistance in fiscal year 2000. This increase provides funding for crop insurance legislation, long-term agricultural safety net and income support programs, and agricultural research. In contrast, the Republican budget does nothing to increase the agricultural baseline beyond the minimum necessary to fund crop insurance reform.

While the Republican budget cuts the energy function by $2.2 billion, the Blue Dog substitute includes funding for research to increase domestic energy production, develop alternative energy sources, and promote energy conservation. The Blue Dog budget prioritizes funding for energy initiatives critical to the economic vitality of this nation.

Although I have only highlighted a few differences between the Republican budget resolution and the Blue Dog substitute, it should be obvious that they are significant. I encourage my colleagues to vote for the blue Dog substitute, a budget with responsible priorities. This is our opportunity to vote for comprehensive fiscal change and support a budget that will improve the lives of our fellow Americans.

Mr. LIPINSKI. Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight to say a few words about the budget resolution. Unfortunately, I will not be able to vote for the resolution or any of the five alternatives put forth before us tonight, because none of them have a good combination of debt relief and spending priorities.

The Republican resolution offered by Mr. KASICH shortchanges important domestic programs by cutting non-defense discretionary spending by $6.9 billion over 2000 levels. This would mean that over 300,000 students will lose their Pell grants for college, and that almost 2,000 FBI and DEA agents will lose their jobs. In addition, the Kasich resolution does not provide near enough money for debt relief. Virtually all economists, including Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, have argued that there is almost no better way of improving the government's finances than reducing the debt. That is also why I am opposing the Democratic, Black Caucus, and Progressive Caucus alternatives, because they do not reserve enough money for debt reduction.

In contrast, while I support the Blue Dog's position on using one-half of the surplus debt reduction, I believe that their high spending on defense—even higher than the Kasich resolution—jeopardizes other discretionary spending. Specifically, I am particularly opposed to the Blue Dog substitute because of the cuts in transportation spending. Under this proposal, and that of the CATS substitute and the Black Caucus substitute, it would not be possible to honor the commitments Congress made in TEA 21 and AIR 21 transportation bills, thereby risking the safety of millions of motorists and air travelers.

I appreciate the hard work and effort that my colleagues put into their respective proposals, but unfortunately, I do not feel that any of these proposals have the right mix of savings for debt reduction and funding for our nation's infrastructure needs. Moreover, this and other recent budget resolutions have been composed of blue smoke and mirrors that do not reflect year-spending agreements, Rather, it is unfortunate that the budget resolutions have been and will continue to be breached during appropriation's negotiations between Congressional leaders and the White House. Hopefully, this and future Congress will break that cycle and lead us into the 21st Century in a fiscally responsible manner.

Mrs. LOWEY. Mr. Chairman, I oppose this Budget Resolution because I believe that, in this time of great prosperity and urgent needs, we can do better. We should be voting on a bipartisan and realistic budget resolution.

Instead, we have a resolution that doesn't secure the future of Social Security and Medicare, and doesn't focus on critical education, health, and consumer safety needs.

Under this resolution, our federal commitment to education would be $4.7 billion under the President's budget. The increases proposed are solely for elementary and secondary education, leaving no increase for critical needs in school modernization, professional development, Title I, and higher and adult education.

Under this resolution, the NIH would received a lower increase than necessary to continue our bipartisan effort to double funding for the world's premiere biomedical research institution. And this increase would mean that other, equally worthy health programs at CDC, SAMHSA, HRSA and related agencies would be at or below a freeze.

Under this resolution, programs like LIHEAP—so desperately needed this winter—would serve 164,000 fewer low-income families. Pell Grants would go to 316,000 fewer students by 2005; and more than 40,000 kids would be denied access to Head Start by 2005.

The fact is that this budget resolution sets us against each other. We cannot have tax cuts of the extraordinary magnitude being discussed unless we make deep cuts in programs that millions of Americans rely upon.

I believe maintaining a strong defense and providing meaningful tax relief does not need to come at the expense of vital programs that help get kids through college, translate scientific discoveries to patient care, and help families raise healthy kids. No one wins when we set program against program.

I hope we can avoid that destructive game and work together to provide strong support to the important and worthy efforts that Americans are calling on us to support. Together, we can improve the lives of the American people.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. Chairman, the greatest magician of all time was Harry Houdini. He was the first person to do the Straight Jacket Escape. In that one, Houdini allowed himself to be tied up in a straight jacket and hung upside down from the eaves of a tall building. Invariably, Houdini found some sensational way to escape.

The Republican majority has turned the budget process into an annual escape act. Each year, the Republicans march down here and tie themselves up in a straight jacket budget. Then they spend the next few months trying to escape from it. Invariably they fail and they resort to budgetary sleight-of-hand, smoke and mirrors and accounting gimmicks. Invariably, the appropriation bills are not passed and we are left with a last minute, take-it-or-leave-it, catch-all budget that funds most of the government.

This year's Republican budget is no exception. The budget the Republican Majority is advancing today is completely unrealistic. It calls for a $150 to $200 billion tax cut, but the only way they can achieve this is through draconian cuts in discretionary spending, which even they won't be willing to vote for when the appropriations bills reach the Floor.

The fact is that if the Majority actually implemented everything in their budget, the tax cuts would significantly exceed the projected non-Social Security surpluses for the next five years. This is irresponsible. We should use the budget surpluses to pay down the debt and extend the solvency of Social Security and Medicare.

The bottom line is this: The GOP budget is a straight jacket that Houdini himself couldn't escape from. I urge my colleagues to reject the Majority's budget and adopt the Spratt Substitute.

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Chairman, when I was growing up near Detroit, the Four Tops had a hit single called: ''It's The Same Old Song.'' Well, that could be the title of this Republican Budget Resolution. Because when you listen closely to what they're proposing you'll hear is the same old song they were singing this time last year.

What's in their budget? Over $1 trillion dollars in tax cuts for the wealthy over 10 years. And who gets stuck with the tab? You guessed it: America's families do.

Sound familiar? It ought to: this is what the Republicans tried to peddle to the American people last year. It's the same old song.

Well, I've got some news for the Republican leadership: the American people weren't dancing to it then and they're not dancing to it now. And what made their proposal a bad idea last year makes it an even worse one today.

It's the fact that while they wrote a tax cut for the rich into their plan, they wrote America's working families out.

Mr. Chairman, when I listen to working families back home in Michigan they're not telling me they want to cut taxes for the rich. No. What they're telling me is that they want to see us start paying down the debt. They're telling me they want us to strengthen Social Security.

What they're telling me is they want us to make Medicare efficient and modern—and that includes making sure it offers a prescription drug benefit.

But this budget plan not only fails to address any of those priorities—it would tie our hands so we couldn't respond to them in the future. And, if that's not enough, it would also slash needed investments to the tune of $114 billion dollars. That would knock the stuffing out of our efforts to provide clean drinking water and promote energy conservation.

It would rob us of the resources we need to enforce environmental protection laws the way they ought to be. And it doesn't stop there.

Under their plan, the WIC nutrition program would have to turn away three-quarters of a million pregnant women, new moms, babies and little children.

Mr. Chairman, if that's what George W. Bush calls compassionate conservatism I'd hate to see the other kind.

It's the same old song—and today we're saying that America's families deserve better.

What America's families want is a sensible, balanced budget that invests in America's future, not some ''golden oldie'' of a budget that would only repeat the mistakes of the past. What working families back home in Michigan want is a budget that's responsive—and responsible. We want a budget that enables us to strengthen Social Security. A budget that allows us to modernize Medicare. We want a budget that gives us the ability to pay down the national debt. Those are the priorities of the families I listen to.

And while the Republicans talk sometimes like they know the words—proposals like this remind us that they just can't carry the tune.

I urge you to vote ''no'' on the resolution.

Ms. MCCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Chairman, the American people have told us exactly what we're here to do: we are here to retire the national debt so our children aren't forced to pay our bills, we are here to maintain a balanced budget, we are here to ensure the long term solvency of Social Security and Medicare, we are here to relieve the tremendous burden from our nation's seniors by including basic prescription drug benefits in Medicare, we are here to invest in our children's future. We are her to offer prudent, targeted tax cuts for America's working families.

H. Con. Res. 290 abandons the middle-class family, disregards the plight of America's senior citizens, and sacrifices our hard won fiscal discipline. H. Con. Res. 290, if adopted, will spend us right back into deficit, thus jeopardizing the Social Security trust funds, and will fail to stabilize Medicare or improve the quality of health care. Not one single dime will be used to reduce our national debt. In fact, by 2004 the budget must dip into the Social Security trust funds in order to finance the massive tax cuts for special interests sought in the Republican measure.

Mr. Chairman, in 1999 our Federal Government spent 13 percent of its entire budget just paying off the interest on our national debt. Because of the Budget Act of 1994 and our continuing fiscal discipline to maintain a sound economy, we can pay off our debt by 2013. This must be our top priority. H. Con. Res. 290 jeopardizes paying off the debt and continuing our strong economy.

Mr. Chairman, I support the Spratt substitute because it pays down the debt, ensures the solvency of Social Security, invests in our children, and includes prescription drug coverage in Medicare. Throughout my district I am approached by seniors who express their frustrations with having to choose between medically needed prescription drugs and putting food on their table. Whether these seniors live in the public housing complex at Brush Creek Towers in the economically depressed central city or in the more affluent part of my district in Lee's Summit's John Knox Village, the astronomical cost of their medications is forcing them to make an impossible choice: food or medicine. This must not continue.

I strongly encourage my colleagues to reject H. Con. Res. 290, and vote to protect the Social Security trust fund. We must pay down the national debt. We need to ease the burden on our seniors and invest in our children, and provide for modest, prudent, targeted tax cuts for working families. Let's do what's right for the future of America.

Mrs. MINK of Hawaii. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the Republican budget resolution.

In order to make room for $150 billion of irresponsible tax cuts, the Republicans cut budget authority for nondefense discretionary programs by a total of $138 billion over 5 years below the baseline needed to maintain program levels. As a result, this would among other things: Cut 310,000 low-income women, infants, and children off WIC assistance in 2001 alone, and more in years thereafter; cut 1,000 FBI agents and 800 Drug Enforcement agents by 2005; cut LIHEAP to only 164,000 low income families in 2001, just as oil prices are skyrocketing; provide Pell grants to 316,000 fewer low-income students by 2005; eliminate Head Start for more than 40,000 children and their families by 2005; and raid the Social Security surplus to pay for its tax cuts.

It is time for the Republicans to stop trying to cut taxes on the backs of America's seniors, working families and children.

It is also time for the Republicans to stop claiming that we can't afford to spend more on important programs, like education and health, when they are pouring more and more money into defense.

We have 11 million children who are not covered by health insurance; we have a Head Start program so chronically underfunded that only 2 out of every 5 eligible children can get in; and we have 26,000 schools—serving 14 million kids—that need major repair or replacement.

This past fall, 53.2 million U.S. students returned to school. For the fourth year in a row, we set a record for enrollment rates—447,000 more children than last year. And public high school enrollment is expected to increase by 11 percent between 1998 and 2008—on top of a 16 percent jump since 1988.

Schools are straining to accommodate the influx of students, setting up classrooms in trailers, hallways and closets. The U.S. Department of Education estimates that 6,000 new schools must be built by 2006, at a cost of billions of dollars, to handle this overflow.

Yet the Republicans have chosen to cut non-defense discretionary spending, like education.

Furthermore, 46 percent of today's schools lack adequate electrical wiring to support the full-scale use of technology. And our schools are still suffering from a digital divide. Schools with 90 percent or more of minority students have less access to computers—17 students per computer compared with only 10 students per computer in schools with less than 25 percent minority students.

Yet, instead of focusing on these important issues, the Republicans are increasing defense spending by $17.4 billion.

The biggest percentage increase in the DOD budget (11 percent) is not for what is really needed, like pay raises or operations and maintenance. Countless numbers of our soldiers are on food stamps, but the Republican budget focuses more on building new weapons than helping to retain our soldiers, and to improve their quality of life.

Our long-term national security depends not just on how many bombs and missiles we build, but how well we can retain our soldiers and how we can prepare our children for the highly-competitive global economy they will face.

The Democratic alternative focuses on these important issues. It focuses on the needs of Americans by: Extending the solvency of both Social Security and Medicare and protecting 100 percent of the Social Security surplus; providing a voluntary prescription drug benefit for all schools through Medicare and issuing reconciliation instructions to the Ways and Means Committee to make it real; providing more debt reduction than the Republican budget by not spending all of the on-budget surplus. The Democratic alternative maintains on-budget surpluses for the next ten years, unlike the Republican budget. Thus, the entire debt would be eliminated by 2013 under the Democratic alternative; maintaining funding for non-defense discretionary programs at the level needed to adjust for inflation; Providing targeted tax cuts to average families of $78 billion over five years and $263 billion over ten years, and offsetting this cost by closing corporate loopholes and shutting down corporate tax shelters; and, by including initiatives to extend access to health care and health insurance and reforming the health care system for military retirees.

What we do in this budget will affect more than what we do next year—it will affect what we do years down the road.

We must prepare for our future. We must provide security for our Seniors. We must support our working families, and we must invest in our children. The Democratic alternative does that.

I urge my colleagues to vote against the Republican proposal and to support the Democratic alternative.

Mr. CALVERT. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in proud support of a responsible Fiscal Year 2001 Budget Resolution put forth by this Republican Congress. This budget provides the blueprint to do great things this year, including: Balancing the budget for the second consecutive year, eliminating the public debt by 2013, safeguarding Social Security, increasing defense spending, setting aside $40 billion for Medicare reform and prescription drug coverage, increasing elementary and secondary education funding by more than 9 percent and much more.

The Clinton-Gore administration's budget, submitted to Congress on February 7 this year, increases discretionary spending by over $39 billion. That is an increase of more than twice the rate of inflation—evidence that the Clinton-Gore-Gephardt alliance continues to support a ''government on autopilot'' approach.

Mr. Chairman, that is simply irresponsible. There is plenty of fat that can still be trimmed off Uncle Sam. Just because we have increasing surpluses does not mean all Government spending is responsible or justified. We need to continue to address the billions of dollars lost on waste, fraud, and abuse. We need to eliminate those programs that don't work and are a burden to the American taxpayers. This budget resolution will do that by restraining federal spending, setting aside funds for paying down the debt and saving Social Security.

This budget resolution will allow Americans to keep more of their hard earned dollars and allow us to keep our promises to the nation's youth, small businesses, parents and seniors.

In closing Mr. Chairman, I strongly encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to support the Fiscal Year 2001 Budget Resolution.

Mr. BALDACCI. Mr. Chairman, today, the House will vote to approve a Republican budget resolution which will set the priorities for spending in the next fiscal year. I will join many of my colleagues in opposing this irresponsible plan.

I have many concerns about the resolution. It fails to take the necessary steps to keep our economy going strong so that all parts of our country can benefit. It does not meet our national priorities of paying down the debt, preserving Social Security, providing targeted tax cuts for working families, and making crucial investments in important areas.

The majority's resolution calls for spending $114 billion less on domestic programs than is required simply to keep up with inflation. This could have a devastating effect. It would require us to stop providing LIHEAP assistance to 164,000 families; to cut-off 310,000 low-income women, infants, and children from WIC assistance; to give Pell grants to 316,000 fewer low-income students; to end Head Start services for more than 40,000 children and their families by 2005. These cuts do not match our national priorities, especially as we enjoy a significant non-Social Security surplus for the first time in decades. Moreover, at the same time it erodes support for important safety net programs, the majority's resolution provides for a $250 billion tax cut over the next 5 years, which could grow to up to $1 trillion over 10 years. These cuts are not targeted to working people, but rather would benefit primarily those who are most wealthy. I could not support such a plan.

Instead, I supported a substitute plan which would have paid off the national debt by 2013, provided $50 billion in targeted tax cuts, invested in domestic priorities, and extended the solvency of Social Security and Medicare. This plan struck me as being more balanced with regard to maintaining our fiscal discipline and planning for future needs. Unfortunately, it did not prevail.

We are fortunate to be enjoying a robust economy which has resulted in significant budgetary surpluses. Instead of splurging on expensive giveaways, we need to maintain fiscal discipline and keep an eye toward the challenges that are coming our way. Social Security and Medicare will soon be facing serious financial problems due to the huge demographic shift that will occur when the baby boomers retire. We must act now to prepare for that reality.

I also believe that we should use more of our surplus to retire our national debt. Currently, the federal debt is about $5.5 trillion. In 1998 alone, we paid about $243 billion just in interest on that debt. By paying down the debt, we could free up tens, if not hundreds of billions of dollars for more productive use. In addition, it would prepare the country for future fiscal challenges.

I am not opposed to tax cuts. The plan that I supported includes $50 billion in targeted cuts. Last year, I voted for approximately $100 billion in tax cuts that were signed into law. However, the $250 billion plan contained in this year's budget resolution runs the risk of not only eating up the entire budget surplus, but some of the Social Security surplus as well.

As we continue work on the budget this year, my goal remains to ensure that we maintain fiscal discipline to keep our economy going strong, to shore up Social Security and Medicare, to pay down the national debt, and to provide adequate funding levels for our domestic priorities. I look forward to working with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to achieve a budget of which all Americans can be proud.

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Chairman, this Member rises today to express his support for H. Con. Res. 290, the FY 2001 Budget Resolution, as approved by the House Budget Committee.

This budget resolution proposes $596.5 billion in total discretionary spending for fiscal year 2001, a $10.5 billion increase which amounts to half of the rate of inflation. In fact, the spending limits for most of the five budget alternatives offered today are relatively close in total spending. This Member votes for H. Con. Res. 290 only with the expressed understanding the resolution presents an overall guidance to the House on spending and revenues which he supports. However, this Member views the spending breakdown by categories as only advisory; he does not agree with several areas of this part of the committee's recommendations. Therefore this Member does not view himself as committed to the detailed budget function breakdown included in H. Con. Res. 290. Indeed, this Member intends to ask the leadership to make certain different recommendations to the Appropriation Committee as allocation decisions are made among its subcommittees.

Having said that, this Member is pleased that H. Con. Res. 290 provides an increase for the category education, training, employment, and social services programs. The resolution also includes a necessary increase for Medicare. Moreover, the budget category for transportation is adequate to permit spending of accumulated dollars in the highway trust fund and aviation trust fund, so these funds will not be diverted for other purposes. This Member strongly supports that concept. Also very importantly, the budget resolution stipulates that if a portion of a FY 2001 tax relief is vetoed by the president, the vetoed amount must be allocated toward debt reduction, not additional spending—in effect creating a debt reduction ''lockbox.'' In addition, H. Con. Res. 290 proposes to devote the entire amount of excess Social Security receipts (an estimated $166 billion in FY 2001) to a lockbox to prevent these Social Security funds from being used to finance other government programs.

Importantly, there is $8 billion over the next 5 years for crop insurance reform. It is this Member's hope that since the other body passed its version of crop insurance legislation today, we will have a conference committee appointed shortly and actually enact crop insurance reform well before FY 2001 begins. Furthermore, H. Con. Res. 290 includes $6 billion for a reserve fund to address potential agriculture emergencies during FY 2000. This fund will allow Congress the flexibility to quickly address agricultural emergencies within the framework of the budget throughout the year.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, this Member supports the Budget Committee version of H. Con. Res. 290 and urges his colleagues to vote ''aye.''

Mr. COYNE. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the budget resolution before us today.

This resolution, like many in recent years, makes unacceptable cuts in domestic discretionary spending to pay for unwise tax cuts and increased defense spending. This bill would hold domestic discretionary spending $114 billion below inflation over the next five years. That means that a number of important Government functions would be short-changed—maybe education, maybe veterans, maybe scientific research, or maybe air traffic control. I don't think that we should short-change any of those activities. In fact, I think that we need to invest more in the federal programs that will make this country safer, healthier, and more productive in the future.

In addition, this budget fails to do enough to pay down the national debt and shore up Social Security and Medicare. By providing such a large tax cut, this budget consumes the projected on-budget surpluses in just a few short years. In fact, according to Representative John Spratt, Ranking Member of the House Budget Committee, the tax cuts provided for in this budget resolution would start eating into the Social Security Surplus by 2004. That means the Government would pay down less on the debt than it otherwise would. That means the Government would do less to strengthen Social Security and Medicare. And that means that a comprehensive Medicare prescription drug benefit would be much harder to enact. I believe that paying down the debt and fixing Social Security and Medicare must come first.

Finally, I would like to point out that Congress has not adhered to similar budget resolutions passed in the last few years. It couldn't—these budgets required unrealistic and unacceptable levels of spending for important domestic programs like education and health care. Many Members, myself included, have pointed out how unrealistic these budget resolutions were when the House considered them in past years, but the Majority pushed them through without regard for our concerns—concerns which with hindsight appear to have been correct.

In conclusion, I urge my colleagues to reject this unrealistic and unwise budget. Instead, let us work together to produce a budget resolution which pays down the debt, strengthens Social Security and Medicare, provides a Medicare prescription drug benefit, and invests in the health and education of our people.

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Chairman, I rise to urge support for H. Con. Res. 290, the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001.

The budget allocations for transportation contained in this resolution are fully consistent with the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st century (TEA 21) and the Aviation Investment and Reform Act for the 21st century (AIR 21).

As a result, this budget resolution keeps faith with the American taxpayer and preserves the integrity of the transportation trust funds.

TEA 21

The resolution allocates to the Appropriations Committee sufficient budget authority and outlays to fully fund TEA 21, thereby ensuring that highway trust fund revenues are used for their intended purpose of improving our Nation's highway and transit systems.

In addition, the function 400 allocation in this resolution is sufficient to restore in fiscal year 2001 the 0.38 percent across-the-board cut that was imposed on highway and transit programs in fiscal year 2000.

Last year's Omnibus appropriations bill applied this cut to the highway and transit budget categories even though highway and transit spending was within the levels established by the TEA 21 firewalls. In effect, highway and transit spending was cut to cover a funding breach in the general discretionary budget category.

The House leadership has assured me that these funds will be restored in fiscal year 2001 so that, over the two-year period from 2000–2001, the link between highway trust fund revenues and spending that was established in TEA 21 will be maintained.

Not only does the resolution fully fund TEA 21, it assumes that all TEA 21 funds will be used according to the formula distribution that was agreed to in TEA 21.

The resolution also assumes that highway and transit programs are held harmless from, and not reduced by, technical differences between Office of Management and Budget and Congressional Budget Office scoring of the TEA 21 firewalls. Similar to last year, these technical scoring differences will be accommodated in a manner that does not reduce the guaranteed spending levels below those provided by TEA 21.

AIR 21

Regarding aviation, the budget resolution allocates to the Appropriations Committee sufficient budget authority and outlays to fully fund AIR 21, thereby ensuring that the taxes and interest credited to the airport and airway trust fund each year are used for their intended purposes and that the general fund contributes its fair share toward meeting aviation funding needs.

The 18 percent general fund contribution that is assumed both in AIR 21 and in this budget resolution is far less than the historical average of 30 percent.

It is important to note that this budget resolution ensures sufficient resources to fully fund Federal Aviation Administration operations, as well as aviation capital programs, and it does so without reducing funding for any other transportation program, such as Coast Guard and Amtrak.

This is because the function 400 allocations in this resolution have been increased to accommodate the funding increases in TEA 21 and AIR 21 without requiring reductions in any other function 400 programs.

Therefore, it is simply not accurate to say that TEA 21 or AIR 21 will force the Appropriations Committee to reduce funding for FAA operations, Amtrak, on Coast Guard. Funding for all of these programs has been accommodated within this budget resolution.

I congratulate the Budget Committee for restoring honesty to the budget process, and ending the use of the transportation trust funds to mask the deficit or fund other, non-transportation programs.

Given the commitment of the Senate majority leader and the chairman of the Senate

Budget Committee to fully fund AIR 21 without affecting other transportation programs, I am confident that the conference report on the budget resolution will likewise be fully consistent with TEA 21 and AIR 21.

Again, I urge you to support the fiscal year 2001 budget resolution as proposed by Chairman KASICH.

Mr. RADANOVICH. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the budget and to highlight the need for budget accountability in our federal agencies. Waste, fraud and abuse is rampant under the Clinton-Gore Administration and has plagued my own congressional district. $300,000 toilets and half-million dollar federal employee housing in Yosemite National Park demonstrate the gross misuse of taxpayer dollars by the National Park Service. This is an outrage.

The budget before us today provides federal agencies with needed funds. It is now up to the Administration to eliminate the blatant fiscal irresponsibility found in these agencies. By operating more efficiently, federal agencies can accomplish their purpose without flushing taxpayer dollars down $300,000 toilets.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the Republican Majority's socially and fiscally irresponsible budget resolution for fiscal year 2001. I strongly support the Democratic substitute, and urge Members to do the same.

This bill is socially irresponsible because it cuts non-defense discretionary spending $114 billion below inflation over the next five years. It does so in order to fund a fiscally irresponsible tax cut that could balloon to as much as $200 billion in five years, and over $1 trillion in ten years. This bill hurts the most needy Americans whom the Republican Party has traditionally ignored. It benefits the most wealthy, as well as the Republicans' special interest friends.

Let's take a close look.

Under the Majority's bill funding for critical education, training, employment, and social service programs is either frozen or cut, producing significant reductions in current service levels. Only special education is spared the sledgehammer. For example, by fiscal year 2005, 40,000 fewer children would be able to participate in Head Start; and 164,000 fewer low-income families would be able to receive LIHEAP assistance. In just one year, 316,000 fewer low-income students would be able to receive Pell Grants; and 310,000 fewer low-income women, infants, and children would be able to participate in the WIC program.

The bill would also slash Title I funding, forcing school districts to provide services to a smaller number of low-income students. The Clinton/Clay class size reduction initiative would be cut, leaving school districts with fewer resources to hire and train new teachers. After-school and summer programs established to help improve student achievement and reduce juvenile crime would be cut back, undermining vital school reform efforts.

Clearly, this budget abandons those most in need of Federal support. It also fails to address important national priorities such as securing Social Security and Medicare, and paying down the debt. None of this is necessary. The Democratic substitute shows why. Our substitute cuts taxes, but does so in a manner that targets the benefits to working families. Our substitute provides sufficient resources to invest in education and develop our communities. Our substitute would make Social Security and Medicare strong and solvent, while reducing the debt and preserving the hard-won budget surplus.

Mr. Chairman, for these reasons, I urge the rejection of the Republican Majority's budget resolution, and urge the adoption of the Democratic substitute.

Mr. VENTO. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong opposition to the GOP's Budget Resolution. Once again, we are confronted with a Republican budget that inserts risky tax cuts in place of a sound federal budget and the general welfare of our nation. The current reality of budget surpluses presents this Congress with a historic opportunity to help ensure the solvency of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds, pay down the national debt, and make necessary investments in our public infrastructure and education system. Yet, the Republicans continue to adhere to the mantra that tax cuts should drive the Congressional agenda, even with the certain risk of future deficits that results from such action. Moreover, they continue to show an inexplicable willingness to shortchange critical spending programs for millions of Americans to help pay for these tax cuts.

This second session of the 106th Congress should have at least learned from the mistakes of the first. Last year's GOP budget denied reality and insisted upon tax cuts beyond the performance of the growing economy. Finally, last November, after the public had resoundingly rejected those tax cuts, and through unusual manipulation of budgetary gimmicks, we were able to come to agreement. Today, just four months later, the Republicans seem to want to resuscitate that legislative farce.

Despite widespread public opposition to last year's irresponsible tax schemes, the Republicans are again seeking to facilitate large tax cuts. Numerous reports and studies have shown that these tax proposals will disproportionately benefit a very small, wealthy segment of Americans. In addition, these tax cuts will grow exponentially over the next ten years, completely obviating future surpluses and jeopardizing the fiscal prudence that has allowed us to start paying for our burgeoning national debt. Congress should be seeking ways to help all Americans share in this time of prosperity, not exacerbating income disparities between rich and poor. It is particularly unfortunate that the Republican leadership is prepared to implement cuts to environmental programs, Head Start, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Coast Guard, anti-drug activities, and the National Park Service to realize misguided tax breaks.

As another example of the skewed priorities in this Republican budget, five miles the resources have been dedicated to tax cuts as for a Medicare prescription drug benefit, and nothing has been devoted to the solvency of the overall Medicare program. Millions of Americans have no prescription drug coverage and the insurance that does exist is in many instances inadequate. Yet, this budget does little to address the financial burden of escalating drug costs or improve access for millions of middle income seniors. Furthermore, the Republican prescription drug proposal is a contingent fund, which means there are no guarantees. Without a substantial investment in Medicare, a new wave of retirees will quickly overburden the program. Congress should take advantage of this booming U.S. economy and ensure that this critical program is modernized to meet the needs of our nation's seniors.

Not surprisingly, this budget blueprint also fails to take any steps to extend the solvency of the Social Security program. In fact, this resolution is completely silent on the most important insurance challenge facing older Americans. Republicans have repeatedly rejected President Clinton's proposal to dedicate a portion of debt reduction savings to Social Security solvency, even though non-partisan actuaries have certified that the President's plan significantly extends the lifespan of the program. Still worse, this resolution fails to save the entire Social Security surplus solely for debt reduction. Walling off the surplus allows the federal government to pay down the national debt and then channel interest savings to other government programs. The so-called GOP ''lock box'' has broken hinges.

Education is a key area of investment in our future and in the engine of economic success that drives our nation. On the surface, the increase in funding for education seems like a step in the right direction. However, virtually all of this increase is for special education. The GOP plan essentially freezes funding for all other education initiatives, and that translates into a $1.1 billion cut in purchasing power for higher education, social service, and employment training programs. Make no mistake, ensuring the success of children with special needs should be a priority, but focusing only on this segment of students shortchanges the other education programs. All of our children could benefit from initiatives such as reducing class sizes, modernization of facilities and greater financial support for higher education. Unfortunately, this budget plan simply does not allow enough dollars to implement these important programs.

The Pentagon budget continues to mushrooms and consume over half of the total discretionary expenditures. With this resolution, defense spending would increase each year until reaching a whopping level of $328.9 billion in FY 2005. Of course, under the Republican plan, these increases in defense spending will be accompanied by decreases in other domestic social programs. Now is the time to reassess our national security goals and show that a strong military does not preclude other important spending initiatives. We need to eliminate unnecessary pork projects and Cold War era programs, reduce the U.S. nuclear weapons force to the START III level of 2,500, stop any further production of the budget busting F–22 fighter jets, and finally abandon the unsuccessful deployment of a national missile defense. We need smart soldiers and sailors, not just more smart weapons.

This budget resolution also reduces the government's ability to spend additional funds on important environmental initiatives. Funding programs such as the Lands Legacy Initiative would go a long way toward helping communities around the nation develop smart growth strategies, preserve open space and restore oft-neglected urban parks. While this resolution fails to look toward the future to solve today's problems, it also fails to look back at the huge maintenance backlog in our national parks. As a result, our parks will have to wait indefinitely for badly needed upgrades to facilities that serve millions of visitors each year.

The United States imports more crude oil now than at any other time in this nation's history, and gasoline, diesel and heating oil prices are reaching an all time high. Congress must develop solutions to reduce our dependence on foreign oil through energy research and conservation programs. Instead, this budget resolution reduces funds for these programs by almost one-third. The rise in home heating oil prices has also left our low-income families struggling to keep their homes warm. While energy bills have almost doubled as a result of price increases this past winter, the Republican's want to cut access to LIHEAP, an important federal heating assistance program. The volatility of the oil market is too great to rely on low heating oil prices to get our needy families through cold, harsh winters.

The budget resolution also does little to solve the many hardships that our family farmers face. Our nation is built upon and around an agrarian society, and owes must of its success to this agricultural sector. The resolution, which is akin to patching the holes in a boat when the hull must be replaced, provides money to farmers, but not to those who need the economic assistance most. It is inflexible and unworkable.

Finally, in regard to housing and community development allocations, the GOP budget is unrealistic at best or destined to gut core programs at worst. The very lack of specificity in most cases within the different functions should not give anyone comfort. For example, under Function 370, which covers housing credits, the allocation could lead one to wonder if the billion dollar slight will harm the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), one of the most successful homeownership programs in the world. Although the FHA has contributed to record homeownership rates by providing the opportunity for millions of Americans to own their first home, the GOP continues to attack this program!

As written, though I would again point to the lack of specificity, Function 450, Housing and Regional Development, could do nothing less than gut core rural, suburban and urban community development. Assessing only across the board reductions, CDBG, a core component of community upkeep and revitalization, faces a $1.1 billion cut in purchasing power and a $1 billion cut below the FY 2000 freeze level.

I am particularly concerned about Function 600, Income Security. While there may have been statements that the Section 8 outstanding would be fully renewed, a similar attitude to that taken in the past could prevail, whereby Section 8 continues to serve as a honey pot for those looking for money to spend on other, non-housing programs. Furthermore, presuming a full renewal of Section 8, this function is woefully inadequate to meet the needs in other accounts under this function. People will face serious harm if Congress were to actually implement the goals as encompassed by this GOP budget.

In sum, the budget does nothing to address the affordable housing crisis being faced across this nation. It does nothing to further community and economic development in neighborhoods across this nation. And it places in jeopardy the lives of millions of Americans who are served by the programs of housing, community development and homeownership.

I urge all members to vote no on this GOP budget resolution, as it does not reflect the priorities of the American people to strengthen Social Security and Medicare, reduce our national debt, and invest in necessary and important public programs.

Mr. PASTOR. Mr. Chairman, I rise today to support the ''Straight Talk Express!'' As you all will recall, the Presidential candidate from my home state, Arizona, took to the campaign trail and gave our country some ''Strait Talk'' on some important issues, including campaign finance reform, health care reform, veterans programs, defense spending, deficit reduction, and massive tax cuts.

But of all his ''Straight Talk,'' Candidate MCCAIN made one point perfectly clear. He called it irresponsible to propose and implement massive tax cuts in this time, or even in the near future. He believes, as do many people in this Chamber, that any significant tax reduction will only weaken Social Security and Medicare. And while it may give the wealthiest one percent of the people in our nation more spending change, it will do nothing to stimulate the economy, it will do nothing to pay down the debt which continues to drain precious funds away from important programs that can really help people, it will do nothing to ensure that a strong Medicare program exists as the baby boom generation begins to age, and a huge tax cut will do nothing to shore up a Social Security that many claim will be broke in thirty years.

But Candidate MCCAIN went a step further. He not only said that a huge tax cut will weaken Medicare and Social Security, he said that huge tax cuts will actually hurt Social Security and Medicare. And this doesn't mean it will hurt these programs—these words ''Social Security'' and ''Medicare.'' What it means is that it will hurt people. It will hurt the elderly woman in Yuma, Arizona who is trying to decide if she should turn off her air conditioner so she can pay her doctor, or if she will be able to go to the drug store and get her much needed medicine and still have enough to eat at the end of the month. It will hurt the elderly widower in Phoenix who has been saving for months, maybe even years, to finally visit his grandchildren in Tucson, but then has the unexpected illness that keeps him at home because he can't afford to pay his rent and his doctor's bills and his drug store bill.

My point is simple. We can talk of cutting taxes all we want, but, according to the ''Straight Talk Express,'' such a tax cut will cut into Social Security and Medicare. It will cut into the daily lives of our parents, and our grandparents, and it will cut into our own lives in just a few years when we reach that age of dependence.

This Republican budget makes irresponsible tax cuts. Over the next five years, this budget cuts $150 billion worth of taxes, with another $50 billion ''reserve tax cut fund,'' for a total of $200 billion in tax cuts. And there is another $40 billion ''reserve fund'' set up for Medicare reforms. If both these ''reserve funds'' are used as the authors of this Resolution intend, it will mean the Social Security surplus will be breached. We might give a little to Medicare, but it will be at the expense of Social Security. And while we give some wealthy businesses and super wealthy individuals a little extra money in their pockets, we will be taking it from the pockets of the elderly.

But worse, over the next ten years, it is projected that this budget resolution will cut taxes by $750 billion, with another $250 billion in a tax cut ''reserve fund.'' This is a $1 trillion tax cut! One trillion dollars!

Mr. Chairman, I support tax cuts. I support tax cuts when they make sense for our economy. When we needed to stimulate our economy and put some capital on the streets, we have done that, and I have supported it. And I could support tax cuts now, if I knew they were going to help that elderly lady in Yuma and that elderly man in Phoenix, and the plumber in Tucson who is trying to make this house payments and keep his two kids in good clothes and maybe put a little something away in case they have the opportunity to go to college. But I can't support this huge, massive tax cut proposal that I know will only go to line the pocket of multi-millionaires.

We should take this money, this $1 trillion, and use it for our people.

We should use it for education. We should make sure that every child in this country has a fair and equal chance to use his talents and intelligence and knowledge to make us a stronger nation in the long run. We should try and give every eligible child the opportunity to attend college. We should make sure that every child is taught to read, that every child is given the chance to learn about, enjoy and appreciate the arts and music, that every child has a place to go after school where he feels safe and can continue to learn. We should make sure that every child is given a fair chance to learn English and is not penalized because he can't. We should make sure that every child can go to a school where he is not afraid and his parents are never concerned that a classmate has come to school with a gun. We should make sure that every child is attending a school where the teachers still care and are trained in the newest techniques and are still motivated when they look into the wonders gleaming from a kid's eyes when he finally ''gets'' the math problem.

Could we not even give just a portion of this one trillion dollars to education?

And a trillion dollars would go a long way in our hopes of solidifying a strong and viable Social Security system beyond 2032. We have spent almost four years around here talking about how Social Security is going broke, yet we never do anything about it, except put it in a ''lockbox'' that is not made of steel, but only of worthless words. It's time to put our money where only our words have been. Let's take some of this $1 trillion and put it into Social Security and Medicare. Let's take the advice from the ''Straight Talk Express'' that rolled through this whole country winning the hearts and minds of people. They know we need to do something to strengthen Social Security. The people know we must do something to stabilize Medicare. Let's do it. And we have $1 trillion to use.

And finally, Mr. Chairman, we can use some of this $1 trillion to pay down the debt. When President Carter left office we owed $930 billion. When President Bush left office we owed $4.1 trillion. We borrowed ourselves out of a recession. And now, the American economy is the strongest economy in the history of civilization and we have the opportunity to pay back some of that money we owe. Our alternative is to continue to use more than ten percent of our money to pay only the interest on this debt. But this budget resolution only ignores this responsibility.

Mr. Chairman, the Presidential candidate from Arizona and I do not agree on a lot of things a lot of times. But we do agree that these will be irresponsible tax cuts. Let's use this money wisely. We owe it to ourselves, we owe it to our elderly, and we owe it to our children.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Fiscal Year 2001 Budget Resolution.

Building on last year's historic $1.7 billion increase in funding for veteran's health care, this year's budget continues to increase our commitment to veterans by providing an additional $1.3 billion.

Last year, I hosted the largest town meeting in the history of the Texas Hill Country. Over 1,400 veterans and concerned citizens came together to discuss the Administration's short-changing of veteran's medical care. The message was clear: veterans will stand up for what is right. And what is right, Mr. Speaker, is full funding for veterans' medical care. This budget moves us in that direction.

The Kerrville VA Hospital in my district provides health care to more than 16,000 veterans in Texas. This is just one hospital among hundreds across the nation that veterans depend on for their health care needs. With the $3 billion increases in the last two years, veterans can be assured that the high quality health care they deserve will continue.

Responsibility tells us that this finding is necessary. Commitment and dedication is what the men and women of the armed services have given to our country, and commitment and dedication to our veterans is what this budget rightly gives.

I urge my colleagues to support the resolution.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). All time allocated for the Committee on the Budget has expired.

The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN), as now the designee of the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON), and the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) each will control 30 minutes on the subject of economic goals and policies.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to show my colleagues a couple of charts regarding the budget. Last year, the President gave us a budget which said, he wanted to take $52 billion out of the Social Security surplus to spend on other Federal Government programs. We countered with a different budget which said, put all of the Social Security surplus back into Social Security. At this time during this debate on this bill last year, we had so many Members of the other side coming to Congress on the floor saying, we are going to raid Social Security. The Republican budget will raid $13 billion from Social Security. The Republican budget will raid $18 billion, $24 billion, $17 billion from Social Security.

Well, Mr. Chairman, here is what actually transpired last year.

For the first time in 30 years, this Congress stopped the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund. So when we hear the rhetoric now that we will be raiding Social Security again, remember they said that last year and here is what happened. We raided nothing from Social Security. In fact, for the first time in my lifetime, for the first time in 30 years, this Congress in 1999 stopped raiding the Social Security Trust Fund.

If we look at all past years dating back to 1969, the red ink, Congress, the President, both parties, I might add, dipped into the Social Security Trust Fund. Now, that is what we are offering the American people, an extension of this policy, of not raiding the Social Security Trust Fund.

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) and myself will be bringing legislation later this year to make sure that never again will Congress go back to the days of raiding the Social Security Trust Fund, that every dime we pay in Social Security taxes will actually go toward paying off our national debt and paying back the debt we owe to Social Security so Social Security can be a program that is solvent, not just for the current generation, but for the baby boomer generation and for their children.

Many things have been talked about regarding what the Democratic plan has done for the Social Security solvency of the Social Security Trust Fund. The President gave us a plan. Well, here is exactly what the President and the Democratic budget does with the Social Security Trust Fund. It simply takes a credit card and increases the credit limit. What they are doing is putting $300 billion of IOUs into the Social Security Trust Fund. It is illusory. It creates the illusion that we are going to increase the solvency of Social Security; yet according to the GAO, according to the Congressional Budget Office, it does not put one more penny into the Social Security Trust Fund. It gives us the illusion that we are fixing Social Security when, in actuality, here is what they are doing. They are taking the U.S. Government credit card, they are taking the limit and they are adding to it.

They are not changing the income to Social Security. They are simply saying, we are saving Social Security, extending solvency from the year 2034, crossing that out and making it solvent to the year 2050 by simply raising the credit limit on the Social Security credit card from $7.8 trillion to $28.6 trillion. No new income to Social Security, no changes in the Social Security program, just more IOUs into the Social Security Trust Fund, which gives the illusion of reform; but what in actuality it does is simply raise the credit limit to the Social Security credit card. It does nothing to reform Social Security.

Lastly, Mr. Chairman, I think it is very important to note, what did the President propose this year? Last year the President said, take 38 percent out of the Social Security Trust Fund, or $52 billion to spend on other government programs. This year, the President said, he is in favor, he agrees with the Republican Congress that we will stop raiding Social Security; but in order for the President's budget to add up, in order for the President's budget to work, to stop him from actually raiding Social Security, he does this: he takes the estimated surplus; then he increases taxes by $96 billion; he increases user fees by $19 billion; he cuts Medicare, skilled nursing facilities, home health agencies, hospitals; he cuts Medicare by $18 billion; and he has fantom interest savings of another $17 billion; cuts to Medicare, tax increases by $60 billion to keep the President from raiding Social Security.

If Congress, which it wisely will do, I believe, on a bipartisan basis, rejects these tax increases and Medicare cuts, then the President's budget will have raided Social Security by $60 billion.

This is what we are dealing with. We are simply trying to take rhetoric and divide it with truth. The truth is, this Congress, for the first time in a generation, last year actually stopped the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund. The other side said that would not be possible; the other side said it was not happening, but it did happen.

This budget attempts to do the same thing and move on to it, for once and for all, forever, stop raiding the Social Security Trust Fund, so that when one pays their Social Security taxes, it actually goes to Social Security. Pay off our national debt. This budget over the next 5 years alone pays off $1 trillion in national debt. If people are still paying their taxes after we stop the raid on Social Security, after we put money back into Medicare for prescription drugs and paid off our national debt, if they are still overpaying their taxes, the President is proposing to create 84 new government spending programs.

We are saying no to that. We are saying give hard-working Americans, working families their money back, by making the Tax Code more fair and simpler if they still overpay their taxes.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Many years ago distinguished legislators, Senator Humphrey and Congressman Hawkins, had the Humphrey-Hawkins bill which was to deal with unemployment and the right of all Americans to participate in our economy and the largest that this country has to offer. We have had success. Currently unemployment and inflation are low, and the average wages are rising; productivity is growing, and there is cause to celebrate. These economic gains were due largely to the policies of the last 7 years. But we may have met the numeric targets of Humphrey and Hawkins, but we still have a lot to do to meet the overreaching goals which the Joint Economic Committee is charged with researching and analyzing.

Despite the prosperity that we have experienced, the average after-tax income of the wealthiest families grows faster than that for all Americans. Some of my colleagues would like to argue that the Tax Code should not be used to redistribute income to the poor, and I will buy that; but we should also stop using the Tax Code to redistribute income to the rich, such as we have been doing.

Today, 2 million or 3 million people took home as much after-tax income as 100 million people in the lowest 38 percent of our population combined. That does not seem right. We have been ignoring these 100 million people. It has led us to some serious problems.

As the Republican budget would call for increasing defense $17 billion above the administration's request and above, in many instances, the request of the Defense Department branches themselves, this additional $17.5 billion could, indeed, provide Head Start to 2 million additional children; it could provide child care to 8 million additional children; it could provide, in addition, good high-quality 21st century after-school to close to 35 million additional children. Think what we could do for our children if we were willing to forego just one new weapons system that indeed the armed forces say they do not want.

In addition to being a budget-buster, this excessive defense spending forces us to shift priorities away from feeding and clothing and educating children, caring for the sick, the elderly and the poor. The Republicans, of course, have a solution to this problem: cut nondefense discretionary spending by 6 percent or $115 billion. Where are they going to get that money? Well, they are going to cut 310,000 low-income women off of WIC just next year. The Republicans will deny child care to over 12,000 children of working parents in 2001; they will eliminate Head Start services for more than 40,000 children and their families by 2005; and they are going to cut emergency energy assistance to 164,000 low-income families.

Now, that may be compassion, but with compassionate senior-friendly friends like that, who needs enemies?

The Republicans say they set aside money for reforming Medicare, but they did not; and as I said before, every Republican on the Committee on Ways and Means voted against providing a prescription drug benefit to seniors at no cost. This was free.

Now, I would invite the gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW), for instance, who has a lot of seniors in his district, to explain to the seniors. Come to the floor, I say to the gentleman from Florida, and I will give him time, and tell the seniors in Florida why he will not give them a discount on their prescription drugs such as we get, say, for the Veterans' Administration. Or the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH) where we have a lot of seniors to come and say why he voted against providing a drug benefit to seniors in Arizona, or the gentlewoman from Connecticut (Mrs. JOHNSON), and why she voted against it for seniors in Connecticut, or the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. ENGLISH), why the seniors in Pennsylvania should be hamstrung and have to pay twice the reasonable cost for their prescription drugs because he voted against a provision to provide a discount to seniors for their prescription drugs, and it would have no cost.

I know the Republicans do not want to spend any money and take it away from the tax cuts they want to give to the rich, but why can we not help all of the seniors at no cost? I would like any Republican to stand up and explain to the seniors of America why they oppose giving them a break on their prescription drug benefits. To me, that is not compassion, that is indifference and arrogance. The only answer could be is that they want to help those pharmaceutical companies, with big campaign contributions, to continue to make their outrageous profits on the backs of our poor elderly citizens. And to campaign for the White House on the basis of compassion with that kind of a record, to me, is a travesty; and I am sure that the American people will see through it.

The Democrats will offer several budgets. We are a broader coalition. We include more people. We have more than just rich people in our party.

My colleagues will hear some disagreement, and there will be different votes this afternoon. None of the budgets offered will increase defense spending, and particularly on unneeded, unwanted weapons and, in many cases, weapons that have been proven not to work. None of the budgets will cut programs to the needy and the elderly and children in our country at the rate the Republicans will.

This is a priority that we are establishing. This budget tells one what one's legislators believe in. Look at it carefully. The Democrats believe in helping all Americans in closing the income gap and educating our children and providing prescription drug benefits and good health care to all Americans.

The Republicans would give it to the 2 or 3 percent richest people and the largest campaign contributors only and let the poor people and the innocent children take the hind most. If that is what my colleagues want, and there may be some very rich people in the country who want it, fine, vote for Republican. But for those of my colleagues who want to help our seniors and children and provide education and medical care to all Americans, they better support the Democratic budget, because it is the humane, decent American thing to do.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I guess I should begin by suggesting to the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) that that was about the best political speech I ever heard on the floor. I am not sure what it had to do with the budget, but it was a great speech anyway.

The purpose of the Humphrey-Hawkins section of this budget debate is to reflect on perhaps what the economy is doing and what it is that the Federal Government has done in some way to effect that. I would just like to reflect on those thoughts for a few minutes here.

Mr. Chairman, the performance of the economy in recent years has been very, very strong, and I think that all Americans have noted for one reason or another, either because they watched job growth, perhaps they watched the rate of unemployment fall, or perhaps they have watched income go up. But the performance has been strong and people are working all across the country. It is very encouraging.

During the expansion, the Federal Reserve's policy has been gradually moving to price stability and has resulted in declines of inflation, which is hardly perceptible today, and as a result, lower interest rates, and, of course, the lowest unemployment in many decades. Those things have happened all at the same time.

Now, let me repeat, we do not usually hear about low rates of inflation, low unemployment, and low interest rates all at the same time. That is a very interesting phenomenon, and I think one that we ought to say if we have done something collectively to make that happen that, maybe, we ought to continue to do the things that made it happen.

The thrust of this policy has been very successful. Although I have some differences with recent explanations of Fed policy overall, over the last 2 decades, we have seen very successful economic growth with the exception of one 9-month period in 1990, 1991. The health of the economic performance has also generated higher than expected revenues for the Federal Government.

As a result, we get to have this discussion today about how we are going to spend money over the next fiscal year in the atmosphere of surpluses. State and local governments have also enjoyed a fiscal bonus from the combination of positive economic trends.

The benefits of the United States economic growth have also been seen outside the country, and this has produced very positive results for the citizens of our country as well as citizens of many other countries.

All of this, including the role of Chairman Greenspan, is more or less well recognized by most Americans. What is less well known is the specific policy framework which the Federal Reserve has used to achieve the positive results that I have just described.

Chairman Greenspan's exceptional leadership of the Fed is associated with the framework of policy-making known as inflation targeting. That is right. The Fed has had its sites set on creating an environment in which low rates of inflation will take place.

As the chairman and I have discussed at previous JEC hearings, the Federal Reserve has essentially adopted an informal policy of inflation targeting and used it to gradually reduce or squeeze inflation out of our economy.

Now, serious discussion of this policy might be useful to explain what the Fed under Chairman Greenspan has done and how it has fostered the extraordinary economic expansion we enjoy. Personal judgment and wisdom have played an important role, and that, of course, is the personal judgment of Chairman Greenspan. But the framework for policy-making is even more important. The success of Fed policy is a combination of several factors, but more understanding is needed about the basis of the policy framework itself.

Formal inflation targets are a narrow range of permissible increases in a broad-priced index expressed as annual percentage increases. For example, an inflation target could be defined as an increase in a retail price index of between, say, zero to 2 percent. We have been within that zero to 2 percent on many occasions for the last couple of years.

Price stability improves the operation of the price system and promotes economic and efficient growth.

As noted previously, during this expansion, inflation has been reduced, but unemployment has fallen as well. Low employment and low inflation, low rates of inflation are mostly unheard of or have been mostly unheard of in economic circles until the last decade or possibly a little bit longer.

In addition to its successful monetary policy, recently the Federal Reserve has made further strides toward increased transparency. Another important factor.

Perhaps my colleagues have noticed with me, however, that things have begun to change just a little. We have had five interest rate increases in the last year by the Fed.

In recent months, the public explanation of Federal policy has increasingly tended to shift from trends in price measures to tight labor market conditions and excessive economic growth related to GDP. In other words, the Fed now appears to be less targeted on inflation and more targeted on economic growth and potential GDP growth.

In other words, the recent explanations of Fed policy are reminiscent of the notion of a Phillips curve tradeoff, which essentially said that good economic growth always causes high rates of inflation. We have proven over the last decade that that is false, and, yet, there are indications that the Fed is returning to that framework for some reason.

This shift towards the view that solid labor market and economic conditions may increase the potential for inflation seems to be associated with the changing composition of the Federal Reserve Board. As new members have come on board, things have begun to change.

Although Chairman Greenspan has relatively new colleagues on the board that seem to have a somewhat Keynesian perspective, I hope he is able to avoid the mistakes that this point of view is prone to produce.

I hope that we will be able to continue on the path that we have, which has produced this budget situation where we can debate this budget in terms of a surplus rather than the deficits that persisted for so many years.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I move that the Committee do now rise.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LATOURETTE). The question is on the motion to rise offered by the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON).

The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

Messrs. FATTAH, PASCRELL, and MORAN of Virginia changed their vote from ''aye'' to ''no.''

Messrs. PICKERING, HILLEARY, LEWIS of Kentucky, LIPINSKI, BLAGOJEVICH, BALDACCI, BONILLA, COSTELLO, LARGENT, KILDEE, and Mrs. ROUKEMA changed their vote from ''no'' to ''aye.''

Mr. OXLEY changed his vote from ''present'' to ''aye.''

So the motion was agreed to.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) having assumed the chair, Mr. LATOURETTE, Chairman pro tempore of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the concurrent resolution (H. Con.Res. 290) establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2001, revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000, and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2005, had come to no resolution thereon.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE— SELECTION OF HOUSE CHAPLAIN

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Based on press accounts examined by the Chair, the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. HASTERT) is recognized for 1 hour on a question of personal privilege.

Mr. HASTERT. Mr. Speaker, I come to this well today following a long period of prayerful consideration. I want to talk to you about the choice of our next Chaplain, a man whose job it is to ask God's blessing on our work.

When I became your Speaker last year, I stood in this very spot and said that this House needed to heal. Impeachment had hardened the hearts of too many of our Members and ruptured the trust necessary for effective legislating.

Frankly, we had made progress toward that end. We successfully worked together to bring economic security to our country. We worked together to strengthen our schools and our national defense. And, working together, we lowered our rhetoric from this well and we returned some sense of civility to this chamber.

When I first heard that our current Chaplain wanted to retire, I decided I wanted to build on that growing sense of trust. Instead of simply appointing a Chaplain, as some of my predecessors had done, I appointed the largest and most bipartisan search committee in the history of this House.

I want to take a moment to describe that process because it has been much distorted in the last 4 months.

I knew that finding the right person would be difficult. Many religious faiths are represented in this House, and many of you had candidates you believed would be good for the job.

The Search Committee the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. GEPHARDT) and I created was asked to review the many applicants and to send to the leadership up to three unranked candidates for final consideration.

I suppose that the committee could have ignored those instructions and sent us only one candidate because they believed he or she far superior, that they stood out above all the other applicants. But they did not.

In fact, I learned early and recently that the search committee discussed that very option and rejected it. Instead, the committee, under the able leadership of the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY), a Catholic, and the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY), a Presbyterian, selected three outstanding candidates: Reverend Robert Dvorak, Father Tim O'Brien, and Dr. Charles Wright.

These names were sent to us in alphabetical order. There was no ranking of candidates. There was no first choice of the committee, as some would have the public believe. And, in fact, there could not be a first choice because the committee never set out to select a first choice.

The report to this House by the bipartisan co-chairman of the committee makes this fact abundantly clear. The truth is simple: each of the three candidates was deemed as acceptable to the search committee.

Along with Majority Leader ARMEY and Minority Leader GEPHARDT, I interviewed the three candidates sent to us by the bipartisan search committee. I was looking for a kind person with a caring heart. I was looking for a person who had extensive counseling and pastoral or parish experience. And I was looking for a person who Members of Congress could take their problems to and find reassurance and wisdom.

I was not looking for a particular denomination or faith, and I did not make my selection based on a candidate's religious doctrine or the past history of other House Chaplains. I was trying to be fair to all candidates.

While I found all three candidates to have impressive credentials, I was most impressed with the pastoral experience and personal warmth of Dr. Charles Wright, who for years has ministered to the needs of the Capitol Hill community. And, in addition, he had years of experience in the inner city, as well as the international community. He spent a long time trying to break down the walls of apartheid in South Africa and to seek common understanding between blacks and whites.

I made my selection based on that experience and the qualities that I found in him. No one other than the candidates themselves influenced my decision. Any suggestion to the contrary is simply wrong.

After the interviews and a period of reflection, I consulted with majority leader and the minority leader twice before I made my final decision.

In the first discussion, one preferred Dr. Wright and one preferred Reverend Dvorak. In the second discussion, one preferred Dr. Wright and one preferred Father O'Brien. The choice was not unanimous. But both signed off on the choice of Dr. Wright, and we issued a joint press release announcing the selection. I thought we had reached consensus.

Following our joint press statement, there were immediate charges of anti-Catholic bigotry, I was surprised and disappointed. Since there was no bias in the decision, I assumed that the disappointment held by some that a Catholic was not chosen would go away when people understood the truth. But I was wrong.

I then thought that once the search committee issued their report and laid out the facts of the selection process that the controversy would be over. Sadly, the facts were ignored and the controversy continued to be stoked.

It was then that I realized that a far more serious effort was afoot. Some were trying to take political advantage out of what was essentially a spiritual decision and charged me with anti-Catholic sentiment.

Is there anti-Catholic sentiment still alive in our country? In fact, is there anti-religious bias alive in our country? Sad as it is to admit, I believe the answer to both these questions may be yes.

This bias comes in many shapes and sizes. Whether it be television shows that hold the church in contempt, the activist who desecrates St. Patrick's Cathedral, or the so-called ''artists'' who denigrate important religious symbols, my friends, that is anti-Catholic and anti-religious bias.

Certainly, there are those who differ with some of the views held by the Catholic Church; and even some Catholics respectfully disagree with some Church positions.

I agree with the Catholic Church on many things. I agree with the Catholic Church that we should protect the unborn. I agree with the mission of the Catholic schools to help so many Catholic and non-Catholic students get a values-based education.

I wholeheartedly support the Catholic Church's great work to help the poor. And I believe that the Vatican should have a seat at the United Nations.

I have the greatest respect and admiration for the Pope, who has done so much to bring peace to our troubled world and played such a critical role in ending the scourge of communism in Eastern Europe.

I am a patient man. In my role as Speaker of the Whole House, I believe I should try to be especially patient and seek compromise and not confrontation. But even I did not easily take in stride carelessly tossed accusations of bigotry. Where I come from, such slander is an ugly business. I can only conclude that those who accuse me of anti-

Catholic bigotry either do not know me or are maliciously seeking political advantage by making these accusations.

The institution of this House means a great deal to me. I believe each of us, as Members of this House, should look out for this institution and treat it with respect.

As your Speaker, I feel a special burden to do so. It is with that conviction that I say to each of you that I believe the political maneuvering on this issue may have catastrophic unintended consequences, like children playing with matches.

In fact, in light of this controversy, some critics now advocate that we get rid of the Office of the Chaplain altogether. There are editorials being written to that effect in papers around this country. I ask each of you to search your heart: Is that what is good for this institution? I hope your answer is no.

But that, my friends, is where the political games could be taking us. I think to lose the Office of the Chaplain would be a grave mistake. Ever since the first prayer was offered in the Continental Congress on September 7, 1774, 2 years before the Declaration of Independence was written, Congress has been blessed by a daily prayer.

The daily prayer has served as a peaceful refuge for the partisan wrangling. It has bound disparate factions under the unifying theme of God's love.

The first amendment to the Constitution states clearly that ''Congress should make no law respecting an establishment of religion.'' But, at the same time, the rules and precedents of this House say that the Chaplain shall attend at the commencement of the House and open the same with prayer.

These contrary impulses signify two great American themes: Americans should have the freedom to practice any religion they want, but Americans also believe that this Nation was founded under God to fulfill a greater mission.

The House Chaplain must reflect both traditions. The Chaplain of the House must submerge his or her own doctrinal views while reaching out to all Members regardless of religious faith. He must say a prayer that unites us rather than divides us.

Our current House Chaplain, Jim Ford, has blessed us with daily prayers and counseled Members quietly with honesty and integrity.

Jim Ford is a Lutheran, but he does not preach Lutheran doctrine from the House pulpit.

His message is universal. In fact, Tip O'Neill, an Irish Catholic and our respected former Speaker, often called Jim Ford monsignor as a way to signify his approval of Ford's universal message. I believe that any representative of any religion can provide a similar universal message for the House of Representatives. My support for Charles Wright had nothing to do with Mr. Wright's denomination or his religious doctrine. Of the three candidates presented to me by the committee, I believed he had the best ability to help the Members of the House based on his extensive experience in counseling. I agree with our colleague Tony Hall, who first suggested to Dr. Wright that he apply, that first and foremost Charles Wright has a pastor's heart.

Sadly, it has become clear that the minority will never support Charles Wright to be the House Chaplain. I have waited more than 4 months in the hope that voices of reason would prevail. Charles Wright is a good and decent man. He would make an excellent chaplain. That is why I asked Leader GEPHARDT to allow him to meet with the Democratic Caucus and that is why our colleague TONY HALL, a man whose respect in this House is unmatched, made the same request. But those requests have not been fulfilled. Instead of hearing the positive voice of a Godly and caring man, the only voices we hear are whispered hints in dark places that his selection is the result of anti-Catholic bias.

My friends, in all my years in this Congress, I have never seen a more cynical and more destructive political campaign. That such a campaign should be waged in connection with the selection of the House Chaplain brings shame on this House.

During the interview process, DICK GEPHARDT explained very eloquently to one of the candidates that democracy was a substitute for war. He was warning the candidate that if he became the Chaplain, his flock would not always behave like folks on a Sunday afternoon picnic. He went on to say that unlike war, where men set out to destroy one another, in a democracy, we were constrained by a set of rules and a common decency. It was a moving and profound observation that I have often thought a lot about. But I must say that the history of this Chaplain issue over the last 4 months does not appear to be constrained by common decency. It looks a lot like war and it has an ugly face.

This institution, so important in the protection of our freedom, is more important than which one of us sits in that chair. In the light of this controversy, Charles Wright has told me that he does not want to serve as Chaplain in a divided House. I reluctantly agreed that I would accept his decision not to be our Chaplain. I regret that decision of Dr. Wright, but I understand it.

So where do we go from here? As Speaker of this whole House, I will act to stop those who want to persist in this unseemly political game. I will not allow this House to be torn apart and the office of Chaplain to be destroyed. Having formally received the resignation of Chaplain Ford, I am today under the authority granted to me under the rules and precedents of this House to fill vacancies naming Daniel Coughlin to serve as Chaplain of the House. Father Coughlin is the vicar of the Archdiocese of Chicago and comes with the highest recommendations from a man of God for whom I have great respect, my good friend Cardinal George of Chicago. I believe that Daniel Coughlin will bring to the House a caring and a healing heart. He has been a parish priest and spent the past several years counseling parish priests within the Archdiocese. He brings 40 years of ministerial experience to this House.

Daniel Coughlin is a Catholic. That does not make him more nor less qualified for the job. But I am proud of his historic appointment. I hope his appointment will help us to heal and that it will bring a sense of pride to the millions of Catholic men and women around this country who have had legitimate feelings of past discrimination which some in this House have sought to manipulate.

I urge all of my colleagues to get to know Father Coughlin. He is a good man who will provide this House with spiritual guidance and counseling support necessary to bring us together again. Let me say to every leader of this House and to every Member of this House: let us embrace our new Chaplain, put this episode behind us, and move forward to do the people's business.

RESIGNATION AS CHAPLAIN OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD) laid before the House the following resignation from the House of Representatives:

OFFICE OF THE CHAPLAIN,
HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
Washington, DC, March 23, 2000.

Hon. J. DENNIS HASTERT,
Speaker, House of Representatives, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: During the last 21 years it has been my privilege and honor to serve as Chaplain of the U.S. House of Representatives. I came to the House with a view that the practice of politics can be a noble vocation and should be considered a high calling and I leave with that view strengthened and with my admiration enhanced for the people who serve in government.

I write now to inform you that effective Thursday, March 23, 2000, I resign my office as Chaplain of the House of Representatives.

It has been a singular opportunity to be elected to the position of Chaplain and now to be named Chaplain Emeritus, as I have sought to serve all the Members of the House and to honor their political and religious traditions. The friendships that have begun here have nourished my life and my work and I leave with appreciation for our years together and with a salute for the opportunities of the future.

With every good wish, I remain.

Sincerely,

JAMES D. FORD,
Chaplain.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, and with regret, the resignation is accepted.

Mr. KLECZKA. Reserving the right to object, Mr. Speaker, I have an inquiry of the Chair. Is the Chair prepared to allot some time for this side of the aisle to be heard on this issue?

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair will entertain requests, and it depends on what the request is.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to be recognized for up to 15 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from North Dakota?

There was no objection.

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the Chaplain's resignation is accepted, with regret.

There was no objection.

CONCERNING THE CHAPLAIN SELECTION PROCESS

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) for 15 minutes.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Speaker, I thank my colleagues for allowing us to express our thoughts on this important matter. I would begin my thoughts by joining the Speaker's expression of regret about the resignation of Dr. Ford, who has served this institution so well and been a dear friend and an important chaplain to each of us. I thought that at some point, I might, as cochair of the chaplain selection process, have the opportunity to address the body as to the version, our version in the minority, of the events that have transpired throughout this chaplain selection process. I did not anticipate it coming today, in the middle of the budget vote; and I did not anticipate following the Speaker of the House, a person for whom I have considerable regard relative to his obviously heartfelt remarks just delivered. My remarks are not prepared. I ask you to bear with me.

I want to convey a deep sense of sorrow and regret that a process that began so honorably by the Speaker has ended in this fashion. Clearly, Speaker HASTERT wanted to capture the bipartisan efforts of other Speakers as the chaplain was selected but improve upon it. So when Speaker O'Neill asked the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations and the ranking member of the Committee on Appropriations to go and agree on a chaplain that he might then appoint, that was bipartisanship. It could have been improved upon and Speaker HASTERT set upon a process that did improve upon it. It had even broader involvement, eight minority, eight majority. We were even given a cochair opportunity. We were very, very pleased and heartened by this gesture by the Speaker, because we believe that the chaplain is the chaplain of the House, not the Speaker's chaplain, not the majority chaplain, but the chaplain for all of us.

We advanced with the work, and it was considerable. Thirty-eight resumes to pore through. We culled it down in a process that had more comity and agreement across the party aisle to 17 interviews. Going through the hours of interviews, we developed friendships across party aisles, members of the committee. I so enjoyed working with my cochair, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY), and each of the members, majority and minority alike.

We then got it down to six semifinalists working toward the list of three. And while the Speaker is absolutely correct, his letter to us says send up to three names, the discussion throughout was to send three names. And we did not seriously consider sending less than three names.

As the final balloting occurred, even though this had been a process utterly without partisanship, there were, and it is not surprising, party distinctions in the relative support behind the candidates.

The candidate that finished fourth had only Democrat support. The candidate that finished third, Dr. Wright, had Republican support, with 1½ Democrat votes and a token showing across the party aisle. Two candidates, Dr. Dvorak and Father O'Brien, had significant bipartisan support, with Father O'Brien having the first showing in terms of vote totals.

We did not rank these candidates. We decided not to rank them. Ranking involves making a judgment, who is the best one, who is the second best one. We thought all three were qualified individuals, but what was important was the bipartisan consensus behind them.

Again, this is the chaplain of the House. It was a bipartisan process; and, therefore, the degree of consensus behind the final three is very important to us in the selection process, because this determines really the candidates that were able to capture support across the party aisle.

In this respect, in my presentation to the Speaker, the Minority Leader, as they began their work of the final committee of three, I indicated that Father O'Brien had had the most support; that Dr. Dvorak had the second level of support; that Dr. Wright had the third level of support.

I believed that the discussions that followed also captured this sense of consensus behind O'Brien, consensus behind Dvorak, not consensus behind Wright. So there were two meetings, as the Speaker just indicated, largely because they did not come to closure the first time. And the second time, in a divided vote, we in the minority know how divided votes go, you lose them. And the selection was made, Dr. Wright; not a consensus selection.

Here is where I really hope you can understand where our hard feelings on this matter arise. We are asked to participate. We willingly participated. We cared a great deal about the chaplaincy, and we felt as though our view was ignored when the final decision was made. Majority only, once again. We felt that. We believed that.

You may disagree with that interpretation, but that is what we believed. Others had another feeling as well, and that is that in the passing over of the top candidate, a Roman Catholic priest, there had to be some other motives that were at issue that were untoward. Frankly, I did not have that view.

I felt that the problem was ignoring the bipartisan consensus for the candidate, that it did not have bipartisan consensus. We did not ask Dr. Wright to our caucus because Dr. Wright was not the issue for us. The process was the issue. The process was the problem.

In reacting to how the Speaker has resolved this matter, we look forward to getting to know Father Coughlin, if I have the name right. He is an individual we have not met. I think we can do better than this going forward.

I would ask each of us to seriously consider a resolution that will be offered this week by the gentleman from California (Mr. DOOLEY) that would call for the selection of the chaplain to be much in the same way as the selection of Inspector General.

At the end of the process, two votes, two for the majority, two for the minority. This is the chaplain of the House. This individual will be our minister. This individual will be our counselor. This individual will be our friend, not just the Speaker, not just the majority, but all of us.

And so next time, we will never let this happen again, next time. I would ask that we pass this resolution, changing the rules by which we deal with the chaplain and so that both sides have equal say.

Perhaps my deepest regret from this is, I felt a lot of good could come from the institution of the chaplain. I still have that hope for the institution and would only echo the Speaker's comments relative to the chaplain and what the chaplain might mean to this institution.

I look forward to working collectively under the newly announced chaplain and with the chaplains to come in the future, should I still be a Member of this body. I do think it might be one institution that can play an important role in restoring a greater degree of civility and trust between us.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. POMEROY. I yield to the gentleman from Missouri.

Mr. GEPHARDT. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding.

I would like to say a few things in regard to what the Speaker said. First, nothing in anyone's mind today is anything but concern for Dr. Wright. I am sorry that it has come to this. And I would hope that we would welcome the new Chaplain that has been appointed by the Speaker and try our level best to make his service in this Congress as positive as it possibly can be. I am very sorry that we have come to this point.

I tried in what we did in our committee with Majority Leader ARMEY and Speaker HASTERT to come to a bipartisan agreement on who the Chaplain would be. I had concerns when the process was announced that it would be maybe difficult to get to a bipartisan selection, but I hoped we could do that.

We have a different view of the facts of what happened in the meetings, but that is not important. When we finally got to the point where there was not complete agreement between all three of us, I asked to come back to the bipartisan committee so that both the Speaker and Dr. Wright knew exactly the feelings of the members of our committee. And I tried in the best way that I could to get those feelings across.

I have never said and never believed that there was bias of any kind in the making of this selection. And I have never said that.

I do believe that in the future, as the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) has just said, we can find a process that will ensure bipartisanship in the selection of this important office. I will certainly work toward that end.

I respect the Speaker's choice, and for my part and our part we will do everything in our power to welcome this new Chaplain and to make his service here a positive force for every Member of this body.

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. KLECZKA) rise?

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, since I was the one who asked Father Tim O'Brien to seek the chaplaincy, I would ask the courtesy of 2 or 3 minutes to make a few comments.

The SPEAKER. We will give the gentleman the courtesy of 2 to 3 minutes, but first let us have the courtesy of swearing in the Chaplain.

APPOINTMENT AS CHAPLAIN OF THE UNITED STATES HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

The SPEAKER. Pursuant to 2 U.S. Code, 75a-1, the Chair appoints Father Daniel Coughlin of Illinois to act as and to exercise temporarily the duties of Chaplain of the House of Representatives.

Will Father Coughlin please come forward and take the oath of office.

Father Daniel Coughlin appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office, as follows:

Do you solemnly swear that you will support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic; that you will bear true faith and allegiance to the same; that you will take this obligation freely, without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion; that you will well and faithfully discharge the duties of the office on which you are about to enter. So help you God.

COMMENTS ON FATHER TIM O'BRIEN

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I join with all of you in welcoming our new Chaplain, Father Coughlin, to the House of Representatives.

What I would like to do is spend a few moments not reopening the wounds of this, what I would term a sorry chapter in the House of Representatives, but I take the floor today to defend a family friend, a person who I asked to think about running for the post of Chaplain of the House of Representatives, Father Tim O'Brien, who I have known for over 30 years.

Father Tim O'Brien comes from the State of Wisconsin, born on a family dairy farm in Eden, Wisconsin. His ordination was from St. Francis Seminary in my district in Milwaukee. He was an associate pastor in a parish in my district. He went on to complete his education and received a doctorate, and he is a professor at Marquette University.

Because of his love of politics and this House and teaching young minds, he started on his own the Les Aspin Institute named after our former colleague Les Aspin. His intention in starting this program was to bring students from Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, here to Washington, DC, to work in our offices, to work for the agencies, to possibly work for some lobby firms, to get a hands-on feel for what the government is all about, so when they graduate and start their livelihood, in no matter what job it might be, they will understand what goes on here, and hopefully they will be a better citizen, hopefully they will be a better voter, or a voter, and possibly they might run for office.

Mr. Speaker, one of those interns who was in my office who has graduated from Marquette was the first Hispanic elected to the State legislature in Wisconsin who hales from my district. So I think the program is working.

So I said to Father O'Brien, ''Because of your love of the institution and government, consider becoming our Chaplain,'' and he did. He put his nomination and his application in, and in every step of the process he came out on top.

Oh, I tracked this process like a hawk. I talked to every member of that screening committee. How did Father O'Brien do? And you know what I heard repeatedly, time after time? Home run. A triple. Best of the lot. And, in the final analysis, he was the top pick of the committee.

Now, was that related to the leaders who made the choice of someone other than him? Yes. The gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) admitted that even though the formal paper did not have the ranking, he verbalized it, and so did the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY). So to say that we did not know who was the top candidate is not accurate.

One of the Republican leaders said, My gosh, I did not know the denominations of the candidates. That is not accurate. I personally talked to that leader on at least two occasions on the floor. I am just so hesitant to go and try to correct all the misstatements, because I think that opens up the issue again.

I want closure, like you. But here we have this Catholic priest, who just thought he would like to be the Chaplain. He thought he could do well for all of us in the House. And, since that time, he has been greatly maligned.

In Roll Call last week we read, Well, he does not have enough counseling experience. Well, he can weather that, because we all know as a colonel in the Army Reserves he counsels enlisted and officers every day he is on duty. As a faculty member, he counsels students and other faculty. He has counseled me and continues to do so. So it is not the idea of counseling.

But to go after this Catholic priest, who did nothing but want to be the Chaplain. There were rumors leaked, and I cannot point fingers because I do not know where they came from, that his home in Wauwatosa, Wisconsin, was purchased with some Federal funds. Naturally, the reporters descend on the poor guy like locusts. Is that true? Is it true? Is that true? Actually, it was not true.

He absconded with some money from a drug and alcohol program, one which he has never run, and the reporters again called him and descended. Is it true?

It is not, because I never was involved in such a program. I never got any funding. So I know full well that throughout the process this individual and his reputation have suffered also.

So, today, Mr. Speaker, we close the book on this sad chapter. But I ask my Republican colleagues not to rewrite history, because that we should not do. But I think there are some in this body that owe Father Tim O'Brien an apology. As we go on from today, I think I can be confident that not only Father Tim O'Brien has been vindicated, but a lot of us, with the appointment of our new Chaplain.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. BLILEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

There was no objection.

COMMENTS ON SELECTION OF HOUSE CHAPLAIN

Mr. BLILEY. Mr. Speaker, I, too, was not prepared to speak today, by I think the record does need some correction.

We met, as my cochair, the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY), said, we had endless meetings. We narrowed the 38 to 17. We narrowed those to six. Then we decided, we at the next meeting, we would reduce the six to three. We interviewed the 17, and then we re-interviewed the six.

We decided that we would send them, and ''we'' as a group, without instructions from the leadership on either side of the aisle, that we would send the names to the leadership unranked, and, as the Speaker said, in alphabetic order. And that is exactly what we did.

Now, the gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) and I met with the Speaker, the majority leader and the minority leader in the Speaker's rooms, and we presented the three names. The gentleman from North Dakota (Mr. POMEROY) and I both said we personally thought that Father O'Brien was the best. But that was our personal opinion, that was not the statement from the committee. The committee clearly intended that the decision be made by the three leaders, without any bias for what we had done. Our job was to go out and advertise, bring in applicants, interview them, narrow the field to three, and send the names up to be picked by the leadership.

This Speaker should be commended for opening the process. Three of the last four Democrat Speakers were Catholic. They never considered a priest. Over 50 years of the last 60-some in the history of this House, the Democrat party has been in charge. They never considered a priest.

So I think that we have said enough. The record was we did not rank these people, and the decision was to be made by the leadership without bias.

CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET—FISCAL YEAR 2001

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. UPTON). Pursuant to House Resolution 446 and rule XVIII, the Chair declares the House in the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the concurrent resolution, H. Con. Res. 290.

□ 1655

IN THE COMMITTEE OF THE WHOLE

Accordingly, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union for the further consideration of the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 290) with Mr. LAHOOD (Chairman pro tempore) in the chair.

The Clerk read the title of the concurrent resolution.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. When the Committee of the Whole House rose earlier today, 40 minutes of debate remained on the subject of economic goals and policies.

The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON) has 17½ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) has 22½ minutes remaining.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON).

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, before we were delayed for the proceedings that just concluded, I was involved with the gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) in carrying out the statutory rights that we have as members of the Joint Economic Committee to discuss the budget in the context of our economy and the various aspects of the economy that may have something to do with policies of our government.

I would like to turn to another subject. I discussed Fed policy at some length earlier, and I would like to spend a few minutes discussing one other set of issues that had to do with the potential effect of high oil prices on the economy as we move forward.

As I said before, overall economic conditions are strong. Rising oil prices and gasoline prices are one of several economic issues, however, that concerns millions of Americans.

This week Energy Secretary Richardson began a trip to OPEC nations to try to convince them to lower sky-high oil and gas prices. I believe the administration should release some oil from the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, like several other Members do, but there is another source of pressure also available to help American consumers.

A review of the situation reveals that U.S. taxpayer dollars are being provided to nations involved with the OPEC conspiracy to raise oil and gas prices. Consumers across America are outraged when they pull up to the pump and view each day or each week the rapid price increase in home heating fuel and gasoline prices over the last few months. In the section of the country where I live, that is the Northeast, I am from New Jersey, of course, we are especially hard hit because of our dependence on home heating oil.

OPEC's supply restrictions are a primary reason for these price hikes, I think all Americans know that today, and many Americans are justifiably angry at the oil producing nations and their allies. These citizens would be even more angry if they knew their hard-earned tax dollars were being funneled to key oil producing nations by the United States Government. That is right, billions of U.S. taxpayer dollars are being funneled to oil producers such as Algeria, Venezuela, Indonesia, and Mexico. These U.S. resources are first contributed to the international monetary fund, the IMF, and then lent to various nations at cut-rate rates.

The oil producers are now borrowing from the IMF at interest rates of about 4.7 percent, much lower interest rates than typical taxpayers can get on their home or their car or their credit card loans. Interest rates this low do not make any economic sense. Subsidies are being provided by taxpayers, our constituents, to these borrowing nations who are Members of OPEC who are forcing up the price of petroleum.

Many argue that this is a way to provide foreign aid or to promote U.S. interests. However, the IMF is not supposed to be an aid agency, and much of its activity does not reflect U.S. interests. Only a year ago I had to act to force the IMF to stop a planned mission to Iraq, another oil producing Nation that is also an enemy and on the U.S. list of states that sponsor terrorism.

If taxpayer subsidies to several of the oil-producing nations cause them to argue against OPEC supply reductions, this would be consistent with the argument that U.S. subsidies to the IMF and its borrowers were in our Nation's best interest. However, this is not the case. These oil producers cooperate with OPEC even after receiving IMF loans. In other words, they take our money and act against us anyway. In fact, at least four of these oil-producing nations have been among the most active borrowers of the IMF over the last 2 decades. One of these, of course, is Algeria, traditionally one of the hard-line price hawks in OPEC.

I am currently drafting legislation to address this situation, and I hope to have the grand support of Members from both sides of the aisle. We will address the situation by exerting pressure on oil-producing nations that are subsidized by U.S. taxpayers through the IMF. The U.S. Government should tell these countries in no uncertain terms that past aid extended through the IMF demands reciprocity now. The perpetual IMF borrowers should be reminded that the U.S. is the largest single source of IMF funds and that the U.S. will not support continued IMF borrowing by unfriendly nations. The U.S. Government, including the U.S. representative on the executive board of the IMF, should pressure oil-borrowing producers to undercut the OPEC cartel and let market forces lower oil prices. U.S. taxpayers are under no obligation, Mr. Chairman, to subsidize OPEC or its allies as they conspire to keep oil prices high.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The Chair will remind all Members to remove charts and exhibits from the well of the House when they are not being utilized in debate. The point is, if Members are not utilizing these, they should not be exhibited. When the Members come to the well, they can use them; but when they are not in the well, they should be removed.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE).

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Chairman, may I respond to the Speaker's comment before we go on?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman has 3 minutes. He may proceed.

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Chairman, I was the next speaker and had these charts up earlier, and I am the next speaker now, and that is why they are on the floor, in answer to the Chairman's announcement.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Chair will remind all Members to remove charts and exhibits from the well of the House when they are not being utilized in debate.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE).

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Chairman, we are embarked on a very important exercise this week, the adoption of the House budget resolution. I think that it is well that we keep in mind the state of our Nation's economy and the state of the Nation's debt as we proceed. So as a member of the Joint Economic Committee, I would like to review these matters in the context of the budget.

First, with respect to the debt, the United States currently has a debt of about $5.7 trillion, about $21,000 for every man, woman, and child in this country. And we can see, Mr. Chairman, how this debt has mushroomed since 1980. It has increased over fivefold, 570 percent, in fact, in a period of 20 years.

Now, Mr. Chairman, the previous person to address the House reminded us that we have seen good economic times. I would point out that during these good economic times we built the economy or strengthened it, if you will, on the backs of our children and our grandchildren. Now that we finally have an era when a balanced budget is possible, I think it is very important not to forget that even with a balanced budget, we still have $5.7 trillion of debt.

Balancing the budget in the year 2000 in no way wipes out the enormous size of this debt. Our first obligation, I submit, as we move ahead is to make sure that we responsibly use this surplus to pay down on this debt. We cannot say that we are doing that if we simply respect the integrity of the Social Security program. Yes, it may reduce some of this red ink in terms of what we owe to private investors or foreign investors in American bonds, but in no way does it diminish the debt that we owe all together. I submit that what we owe to the Social Security program is just as much debt as anything else that we owe.

Mr. Chairman, I know that my Republican colleagues like to try to paint over this with a happy scenario and neglect to explain that even with the 5-year projections that they have for their budget, that the size of the U.S. debt grows, let me emphasize that, that over the next 5 years, the size of the United States debt will grow to $5.9 trillion. This, I submit, is unconscionable. In a period of surplus, we ought to be reducing the debt that we owe, not seeing it expand to $5.9 trillion.

We have several different budget proposals that will be voted on this evening. I would like to point out the differences between three of them. This is how much is devoted to debt reduction over the next 10 years; that is, how much smaller will our debt be. The debt, unfortunately, will not shrink with the Republican proposal; it will shrink with the Democratic proposal, and it will shrink more dramatically with the Blue Dog Coalition proposal.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN).

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I sat in my office and I was listening to some of the debate today. I was meeting with different constituents, all coming up to ask for different things because of needs that they have, and I was somewhat astonished that we kept hearing about how only the Republican Congress put this national government back into surpluses. Well, I quite frankly do not agree with that. I just have to voice my opinion about that. I think that is just a real stretch here.

However, I do want to say that I will not vote for the Republican budget resolution and will support the Democratic alternative for lots of reasons. Yesterday on this floor I talked about renewable resources for gas so that we could go on with solar energy, wind, biomass; and I think that is an absolute necessity for this country. I think the veterans' mail order plan is absolutely something that has to be done, something that I have looked at and actually introduced. I think the extension of Social Security for 15 years, the Republican plan, does nothing in that area, Medicare by 10 years, and then the long-term tax credit for caregivers, and then also in education, reducing class size, renovation of schools, Pell grants, Head Start; we can go on and on. And as importantly as all of these expenditures are, so is paying down the debt.

Mr. Chairman, one of the reasons I come here today is to talk about an issue that I think has become a national interest; and obviously, it has caught people's attention, because everybody wants to talk about it now, and that is prescription drugs. Last year my colleagues and I on the Committee on Ways and Means actually offered a no-cost program to this country to have a prescription drug plan that would have cut the benefit or to have cut the actual drug cost in half. It was denied. We never even had the chance to talk about it last year.

Now, we have $40 billion in the Democratic budget, which I think is tied to a prescription drug benefit; and my understanding is that on the Republican side they have $40 billion reserve fund for an undefined prescription drug benefit and defined only if Medicare reform happens. If Medicare reform happens, as I know some on the other side would like to have, it changes how we see Medicare in this country. It actually potentially puts us in a voucher system, some people like to call it premium support.

So I cannot support something that is tied. Why, why are we going to hold our seniors hostage, hostage to Medicare reform to get a prescription drug benefit? Let us face it. We give them in the hospitals through health care already prescription drugs to make them better. We get them stabilized, we do everything that we possibly can, and then we send them home and we do nothing.

So please support the Democratic substitute.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON), the vice chairman of the Joint Economic Committee on which I serve.

The purpose of this Humphrey-Hawkins debate here is to talk about the law and how it relates to the Federal Government; and for educational purposes, the Humphrey-Hawkins law is the law that governs the Federal Reserve. We are here to talk about how these laws impact our economy.

The chairman of the Federal Reserve, in multiple testimony to Congress in both the House and the Senate, has said, and this is a quote from the chairman of the Federal Reserve, Alan Greenspan, January 26, 2000, testifying before the Senate Banking Committee. Chairman Greenspan said,

> My first priority would be to allow as much of the surplus to flow through and into a reduction of the debt to the public. If that proves politically unfeasible, I would opt for cutting taxes, and under no conditions do I see any room in the longer term outlook for major changes in expenditures.

Let us review what we are trying to accomplish in this budget. What we have accomplished just in the last few years alone is an unprecedented level of debt reduction, following Chairman Greenspan's advice. In 1998 we paid $51 billion off on the Federal debt. In 1999, $88 billion paid toward reducing the Federal debt. In the year 2000, this year alone, we are dedicating $163 billion toward reducing the national debt held by the public; and next year as we project, we will be dedicating $170 billion to reducing the public debt, for a grand total of paying off the Federal debt held by the public to zero in 12 years.

Mr. Chairman, this budget we are considering before us today is the most sweeping document this body has ever agreed to in a generation. We, for the first time in a generation, are stopping the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund.

The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) and I plan to bring legislation to the floor of Congress which says no longer can Congress ever go back to the days of dipping into the Social Security Trust Fund. We are going to use those surpluses to pay off the debt held by the public. In the first 5 years alone in this budget, we will pay off $1 trillion of debt. We will bring our public debt from $3.5 trillion down to $2.4 trillion in the next 5 years alone. This is what fiscal responsibility is all about. This is what we are achieving in this budget resolution we are having here. This is what Chairman Alan Greenspan is telling us to do.

Remember what he said after we get the debt paid off. He said, after you pay off the public debt, reduce taxes. Under no conditions spend more money.

So here is what we are doing. The priorities of this budget are basically this: first, stop raiding the Social Security Trust Fund. Second, pay off the national debt. And as we pay off the national debt, if taxpayers are still overpaying their taxes, give them their money back, rather than spend it on new programs in Washington. That is the division here.

What are we trying to do by giving people their money back after paying off the debt, after stopping the raid on Social Security? We are doing this: we are ending the marriage tax penalty so that those who are married do not have to pay taxes just for being married. We are repealing the Social Security earnings limit so seniors who want to go back into the workforce are not penalized by losing some of their Social Security benefit simply for trying to supplement their insurance income. We are reducing the death tax, so that small business owners, family farmers, can pass their businesses, their farms on to the next generation without the Government taking it away from them. We are expanding educational savings accounts so parents can pay for sending their children to schools, to private schools, to public schools, to college, to vocational technical colleges. We are increasing health care deductibility for the self-employed. For people who, if they do not get health insurance from their job, we are saying, you should be able to write your premiums off of your income taxes just like any other corporation can do.

We are providing tax breaks for poor communities to revive those urban, inner-city areas that are in despair that need a help on that rung of the economic ladder where they are at the bottom.

We are trying to strengthen pension plans so that workers who are changing jobs in a rapidly changing economy can bring their pensions with them as they change those jobs without fear of tax taking away their pensions, without fear of losing some of their pension when they change their jobs. This is the priority spelled out in this budget.

Mr. Chairman, the responsible budget is the Republican budget and a budget that pays off debt and lets people keep more of their own hard working money in the Republican budget.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. Doggett).

Mr. DOGGETT. Mr. Chairman, as the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. THURMAN) just pointed out, we offered the Republican majority an opportunity in the Committee on Ways and Means last fall in the Thurman-Doggett proposal to deal with this problem of prescriptions for our seniors. It was soundly rejected, as it is in this resolution.

Instead of addressing the price discrimination that our seniors face where, in Travis County, for example, on the five most commonly used drugs, those seniors who do not have insurance are paying 136 percent more than the most favored customers of the pharmaceutical industry, instead of addressing that discrimination which could be done for very little no cost to the federal government, the pharmaceutical industry's best friends in this Congress are blocking action.

What do they offer in this proposal as an alternative? A new welfare program. I can tell my colleagues that our seniors do not need another welfare program. What they need is an end to the discrimination that the pharmaceutical industry, backed by its many Republican supporters in this Congress, cause our American seniors to face with reference to getting the essentials for their health care.

But of course there is a medicinal aspect to this resolution. One can almost see in this resolution, coming out of the Old West, a dilapidated wagon with a banner that promises ''better health, restored youth, quality schools, more of one's money in one's pocket,'' this is the old time medicine man with ''tax cut elixir,'' the same old snake oil that pours out here every spring. We seem to have spring ritual, rite of spring in this House with this medicine man coming along most every year. It does not make any difference what the season is economically or the reason politically, there is always a tax cut for every need of this country. The same elixir that is offered every year at this time.

Mr. Chairman, they used to say, how do you spell relief? T-U-M-S. Now it is ''tax relief.'' What kind of tax relief does the ordinary American citizen get? Not much from this Congress.

We had the so-called ''marriage penalty relief.'' I do not know if my colleagues have noticed, but our Republican leadership devotes a lot more energy to the titles they put on their bills than what is in them. What did the marriage tax penalty bill do? Well, it gave most of its relief to people that do not incur any marriage tax penalty.

Yesterday, in committee, we considered the educational savings account that is to allow people to send their kids to elite private academies. It is not the kind of tax relief that benefits most American families. I believe in reasonable tax relief but it must be accomplished in a fiscally responsible way. And this resolution fails to do that.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, may I ask how much time is remaining on each side.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. SAXTON) has 7 minutes remaining. The gentleman from California (Mr. STARK) has 14 minutes remaining.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the chairman of the Committee on Budget.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the gentleman yielding me that skimpy amount of time, but I will try to do it in that time.

Mr. Chairman, I wanted to just talk for just a few minutes about the economic condition of our country. I wanted to say that it is amazing the prosperity that we are experiencing and continue to experience, with many Americans every day getting up and watching the market, reading the economic reports with disbelief.

I do not think this is just a wild happenstance that we have seen such economic growth and such economic progress. Number one, we have revived our tradition of free trade. When nations are able to trade across borders, it brings prosperity to everyone. That does not mean trade should supplant all values. But it does mean that the fundamental policy of free trade will lift all boats, as my friend Jack Kemp likes to say. He stole that, by the way, from John Kennedy. A free trade will, in fact, rise all boats.

Secondly, of course, we have had new markets. With the fall of the Berlin Wall and with the ability to trade in many parts of the world that we could not trade before, we have been able to, not only experience and promote free trade, but we have been able to practice it with more opportunity because more nations can avail themselves of a unique opportunity to practice free enterprise and free markets and free trade.

We also have had a policy of sound money. Obviously Alan Greenspan deserves a lot of the credit. But all of the Fed Board, and, frankly, even I will give credit today to Robert Rubin, the former Treasury Secretary, I think they always pursued the policy of sound money, which allowed this Nation and the Fed to pursue a policy of low interest rates, which has driven economic growth.

I also believe that the House, the Senate, and the President deserves a great amount of credit for the 1997 budget agreement, for our vigilance in wanting to keep government growth at a low rate to provide continual tax cuts to reduce some of the public debt.

But also, of course, has been the development of new technologies. We are on the edge of what is a remarkable revolution. It comes about every hundred years. How do we recognize it? We recognize it because industries grow off the major growth industries in these kinds of periods.

What we are seeing in biotech and with the communications and with all the information technologies is an amazing development of a new revolution that is driving the essential part of economic growth, which is greater productivity, the ability of people in the same amount of time with the same amount of resources to produce more.

With growing productivity, we begin to dampen the threat of inflation because we eliminate the bottlenecks. Increased productivity means more income for more workers, and it means more supply. When supply is consistent with demand and meets the wage growth, we lose the prospects of inflation.

Let me just give my colleagues a warning and a suggestion that I think the House ought to consider. We need to keep the incentives in place. We need to cut capital gains. Frankly, I think we ought to zero out the capital gains tax because we want people to have incentives to invest, risk take, and build this economy.

Secondly, we should do nothing destructive that damages this new economy. I want to applaud the commission that just met in Dallas for agreeing to extend the no tax of the Internet until at least 2006. We have obviously got to continue to promote free trade in the world.

In addition, the legal system in this country needs significant reform. We need a loser pays legal system with limits on the liabilities, the punitive damages that are strangling, not only medicine, education, all businesses in America, it is choking us, and it holds us back from even stronger economic growth.

Finally, Mr. Chairman, we also need to have a school choice program in America where mothers and fathers can send their kids to the best educational settings. With all those, I believe we can continue to grow.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. WATT) a member of the Committee on Budget.

Mr. WATT of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, if my colleagues review carefully the Republicans' budget, it really appears to be a massive shell game. They would have us believe that they can deliver massive tax cuts, extend the life of Social Security and Medicare, eliminate every dime of public debt, increase defense spending by massive amounts, not reduce other domestic programs, give prescription drug benefits. They sound like they used to accuse the Democratic Party of being, everything for everybody.

The problem is that the numbers system do not add up. There is not enough money to do all of this. So what one then has to do is figure out now what is their top priority, what will it be under all circumstances, regardless of what happens; and that is reducing taxes by unreasonable and massive amounts.

Now, what did Alan Greenspan say about this? One of the previous speakers put his quote up, and he said we ought to be paying down the debt. I was at the hearing where he testified, and he said we should not be giving tax cuts before we pay down the debt. That is the highest priority we have, paying down the debt. That is what is going to keep our economy moving and sustain the economy moving in the direction that it is going now.

Yet, do they put that at the top of the priority list? No. They put massive tax cuts ahead of paying down the debt. They want to be everything to everybody in this equation.

Mr. Chairman, when we look at the number of dollars that are projected in surplus, the money is simply not there to do all this. We should reject the Republican budget and pass some of the alternative budgets.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Maine (Mr. ALLEN).

Mr. ALLEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, last week, House Republicans held a press conference to announce that their budget would include $40 billion to help low-income elderly pay for their prescription drugs. Today the House Republicans present their budget. But they have already abandoned last week's $40 billion promise. The Republican budget contains no funds specifically reserved for a prescription drug benefit.

Instead, the resolution allows the chairman of the Committee on the Budget to allocate up to $40 billion of the non-Social Security surplus if a bill that reforms Medicare also provides coverage for prescription drugs. This is a separate reserve fund. If they did not create a separate reserve fund, their budget would have a deficit.

Furthermore, their prescription drug reserve is contingent upon a plan to reform the entire Medicare program by turning it over to HMOs. That is a nonstarter.

In short, to make room for huge tax cuts for the wealthy, they have abandoned seniors who are trying to stretch their Social Security checks and modest pensions to cover both food and medicine. It is wrong, and this budget should be rejected.

Our seniors do not need empty promises. They need relief now. They are 12 percent of the population, but they use one-third of all prescription drugs. We have done studies which show that, on average, seniors pay twice as much for their medications as the drug companies' best customers, the HMOs, the hospitals, and the Federal Government. They pay more than consumers in Canada or Mexico or anywhere else in the world.

Seniors need action now. They do not get it in the Republican budget. They need a universal prescription drug benefit under Medicare and an end to pharmaceutical company price discrimination. The Democratic budget has $40 billion committed to those goals, and the Republican budget does not.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. PELOSI).

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from California for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, here we are today debating the budget, which is the most important work that we have to do as Members of Congress. Our national budget should be a statement of our national values. We should spend our money on what is important to us. But it is hard to see how the Republican budget, the risky, irresponsible Republican budget is a statement of the values of the American people.

The differences between the two parties have been highlighted for us once again in today's debate on the budget resolution. While the Democrats fight for a budget that protects middle class values, extends the life of Social Security and Medicare trust funds, and enables families to meet their responsibilities at home and at work, the Republicans again have sacrificed fiscal responsibility for large and risky tax breaks.

Is it a statement of our national values to give a $200 million tax break to the wealthiest over the next 5 years while cutting $114 billion in domestic initiatives for education, health care, and the environment?

□ 1730

This downpayment that Republicans are making on the trillion dollar tax scheme proposed by candidate George W. Bush will result in 750,000 fewer women receiving WIC benefits, and that applies to women, infants, and children; 316,000 fewer Pell Grants; and 1,100 fewer FBI agents.

Is it a statement of our national values to give a Republican tax break over the next 10 years which will utilize all of the resources needed to pay down the debt, strengthen the Social Security and Medicare trust funds, and fund priority investments like education, child care and law enforcement?

We know that trading health care, education, and law enforcement for tax cuts does not match the priorities of many American people. It is not a statement of our national values and should be rejected by this House of Representatives.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Hawaii (Mr. ABERCROMBIE).

(Mr. ABERCROMBIE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ABERCROMBIE. Mr. Chairman, as the ranking member of the House Subcommittee on Military Personnel of the Committee on Armed Services, I rise today in strong support of the amendment offered by my dear friend and colleague, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

All Members who believe that we owe our military service members and their family members access to quality health care should support the substitute amendment being offered by the gentleman from South Carolina. The budget being proposed by the gentleman from South Carolina upholds the commitment to our armed forces personnel, particularly our military retirees who were promised health care in return for service to this great Nation.

I support the Democratic budget amendment because it embodies the spirit of H.R. 3655, a bill I introduced along with the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON), the ranking member of the House Committee on Armed Services, and the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR), to improve health care services for our Nation's service members, retirees, and their dependents.

I regret deeply that the Committee on the Budget failed to incorporate necessary authority for the Subcommittee on Military Personnel, enabling us to complete that which should be a bipartisan task. I have high regard for the commitment of the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER) on these issues. Last year's success on efforts regarding pay, promotion, and benefits in the context of recruitment, retention, and retirement demonstrated what can be done when we set aside partisan considerations. I intend to continue to work with the chairman to accomplish these goals.

But absent the Committee on the Budget preparing us for this, we have to go with the Democratic substitute in order to have our military retirees, our existing active duty members and their families receive the kind of health care that they have been promised. Our active duty troops and their families are having difficulty with access to military health care systems.

The budget alternative before us today would allow for the elimination of copays for active duty personnel and their families who are in the TRICARE Prime program. The amendment also increases access to health care.

Currently, families that receive care at a military treatment facility pay no co-payments. However, families that are not fortunate to live near a military treatment facility and use civilian health care providers in the TRICARE PRIME system must pay co-pays. This is not fair.

The amendment also increases access to health care for our military family members who are often living in remote, rural areas by expanding the TRICARE Prime Remote program. These families are doing some of the hardest duty in the military. We should ensure that these families are cared for, which means that they should not have to drive hundreds of miles to receive health care for which they are entitled. Their ability to access health care services is just as important.

Mr. Chairman, as our honored retired service members continue to age, their need for access to quality health care continues to grow. Today, thousands of our military retirees and their families are often going without the necessary medical care that they need and deserve because they have been shut out of the military health care system.

As you may know, under the current program, military retirees who reach the age of 65 are forced out of the TRICARE Program and receive their health care services through Medicare. For many of these retirees who were promised access to military health care for their lifetime, this has been a broken promise of their faith. Many of these retirees and their families were led to believe that they would have access to military health care services if they made a career of serving their nation.

Unfortunately, as the Department of Defense has drawn down and a number of military hospitals and clinics continue to close, space-available care remains elusive for most retirees. For these Medicare-eligible retirees, many of who are living on a fixed income, the prospects of costly medical care and high-priced pharmaceuticals is a scary proposition.

The alternative budget proposal before us today would allow us to restore the necessary access to quality health care for military retirees over age 65 and their families. The amendment includes a provision that would incorporate the expansion of the TRICARE Senior Prime program, more commonly known as Medicare Subvention. This three-year demonstration program, which will be completed at the end of the year, has been well received by the over 65 retirees. Expansion of this program within the Department of Defense will help a number of military retirees who live near military treatment facilities.

For those who may not live near a military treatment facility, the budget proposal includes funding to expand the current pharmacy benefits. Pharmacy costs for these individuals are often the largest share of health care spending. The average retiree over age 65 spends approximately $620 for prescriptions. For a retired enlisted noncommissioned officer and his family, pharmacy costs can sometimes be nearly 50 percent of their monthly income. Often these families are placed in a difficult and traumatic position of choosing between whether to purchase their prescription drugs or food on their table.

The substitute amendment before us today will improve access to the TRICARE program and enhance access to care for military retirees. I hope that my colleagues will support the Spratt budget amendment and uphold our moral obligation to provide for the health care of our nation's Armed Forces.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

(Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, the Republican budget returns to its old ways. The budget that is being offered to us ignores the wishes of the American public and caters to special interests. I would have thought the Republicans would have learned; but they did not, and they are back at it again.

The Republican leadership is offering a budget that fails to extend the life of Social Security and Medicare, that recklessly cuts taxes and squanders the surplus we have worked so hard to gain for the American public. At the same time, they are cutting Head Start and telling 40,000 children and their parents that they cannot participate in this very valuable program. They cut millions of funding from child care, even though families are having a more difficult time finding quality care for their children as more and more Americans find a place in the American work force for the sustainability of their families.

They make empty promises about fully funding special education, but they do so without providing the necessary funds to achieve that goal. They freeze higher education and training funds and cut the purchasing power by 9 percent over 5 years. That means that they deny Pell Grants to 316,000 students who desperately need that assistance to go on to higher education so they can participate in the American economy.

They fail to make the needed investments to fix crumbling and overcrowded schools. They fail to invest in boosting the skills and the knowledge of teachers while continuing to funnel money into scores of wasteful programs and dozens of tax loopholes that benefit those who least need it.

We, on the other hand, are offering a substitute and a clear alternative, a budget that supports millions of hard-working families; that protects Social Security and Medicare; that provides better care and real prescription drug coverage for all of our Nation's seniors with dedicated funds to do so; and that would direct sorely needed support to our schools, provide the resources necessary to help our children reach their highest academic potential.

When it comes to special education, we put our money where the Republicans' mouths are because we provide $4.8 billion more in our plan. We should support the Democratic substitute.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST).

(Mr. FROST asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. FROST. Mr. Chairman, it has been almost comical to watch Republican Member after Republican Member come to the floor today and read the same talking points off the same blue chart. Well, Mr. Chairman, in politics as in life, talk is cheap.

I was reminded of this fact earlier this week when I had the pleasure of speaking with a group of high school students. One of their major concerns, as we can all imagine, is the future of Social Security and Medicare. I remembered that the Republican talking points called this GOP budget ''senior friendly,'' Mr. Chairman. But these students wanted the facts, and the fact is that this Republican budget would have us spending the Social Security surplus in 4 years.

The fact is that this budget does not devote a single dime to extending the life of the Social Security and Medicare trust funds. Mr. Chairman, under the Republican budget, the Social Security Trust Fund would be insolvent just about the time these 17 and 18 year olds that I spoke to this week reach retirement age.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER).

(Mr. BUYER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BUYER. Mr. Chairman, I wish to issue a statement in response and in disagreement with the position of the gentleman from Hawaii (Mr. ABERCROMBIE) that only the Democrats' budget has a response to military health care. That is false.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, may I ask what the remaining time is?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Each side has 3 minutes remaining.

Mr. STARK. And the majority closes; is that correct, Mr. Chairman?

The CHAIRMAN. That is correct, the majority closes.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN).

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, there have been a lot of comments made on the floor, particularly by the majority, about how they have come around to not spending any of the Social Security surplus. I think in our debate we have made it clear if their budget is fully implemented, if they really do make the cuts in discretionary spending, the 11 percent real cuts they talk about, even with their huge tax cut they will still spend part of the Social Security surplus.

But I think history is an even better guide, and there are two points of history that I will bring up. One is that back in 1998 the Republicans brought their budget to the floor, which cut into the Social Security surplus, spent the Social Security surplus as part of their tax cut. They made the argument then that they were going to preserve 80 percent of the Social Security surplus, but they were going to spend 20 percent for a tax cut.

The second point of history that I think needs to be made clear is that since the Republicans have been in control of the Congress, and this is the whole time I have been here, the rate of spending, for nondefense discretionary spending, has gone up above the rate of inflation. As such, it would be hard to make the case that the Republican majority this year is going to actually cut nondefense discretionary spending by 6 percent and by 2003 by 11 percent.

Now, they may pursue that, and they may tell us they are going to do that; but history is working against them. So I think the protestations that they are not cutting into the Social Security surplus are rather hollow.

Mr. STARK. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS) to close the debate for us.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois (Mr. EVANS) is recognized for 1½ minutes.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Chairman, as the ranking Democrat on the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs, I rise in strong support for the substitute budget resolution offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the ranking Democratic Member of the House Committee on the Budget.

The Spratt budget resolution is a strong pro-veteran proposal that deserves the support of every Member of this body. It provides more discretionary spending in fiscal year 2001 for the Department of Veterans Affairs than either the budget proposed by the President or the budget resolution reported by the committee. With these additional funds, VA can better meet the medical needs of our Nation's aging veteran population.

Specifically, for fiscal year 2001, the Spratt alternative provides $22.3 billion in appropriations for veterans' programs, $100 million more than the Republican plan and $200 million more than the President's plan. Over 5 years, 2001 through 2005, the Spratt alternative provides $1 billion more than the Republican proposal for veterans' medical care.

Significantly, the Spratt proposal also increases the monthly GI bill benefit, which is mandatory spending. This increase in the educational benefit for veterans who have honorably served our Nation in uniform is clearly needed and long overdue.

This increase proposed by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) is an important first step in restoring our commitment to providing veterans a readjustment benefit for education which is worthy of their sacrifices to this country. Under this proposal, the basic educational benefit for veterans will increase from the current $535 a month for 36 months to nearly $700 a month.

Mr. SAXTON. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, this has been an interesting debate; but I would like to remind the last string of 1½ minute or 2-minute speakers on the other side that the purpose of the Humphrey-Hawkins discussion is to talk about the Federal Government and the potential effect the Fed has on the economy and the potential effect that our government has on the economy.

Let me make five points, five reasons why the economy is doing good. And maybe some people will feel good about it, I hope they will, because we have done some things right around here, both Republicans and Democrats, Members of the House and the administration.

I already talked about point number one. Lower inflation actually improves growth. And the Federal Reserve has gone out of its way to target inflation. It has brought interest rates down along with inflation and that has provided a lift for our economy.

Number two. Government spending has actually fallen as a percentage of GDP. This is an important point. As a matter of fact, in 1992, our government spent 22 percent of our GDP. Today, we spend 19.5 percent of our GDP. And members of the Committee on the Budget, led by the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), should say a cheer for themselves for that point.

Number three. Lower tax rates remain in place. In spite of the hyperbole coming from the other side about Republicans that want to the cut taxes, marginal rates are still lower than they were in the 1960s, the 1970s, or the 1980s; and it is a primary factor in helping us lift the economy.

Number four. Investment has worked to expand capacity, particularly technological change, which has increased productivity. American workers today produce more per man-hour and woman-hour than ever before because of the technological changes that have taken place, another important factor in improving our economy.

Finally, global competition and freer trade have fostered growth. As we have opened markets around the world, as we have encouraged exports to take place, we have opened those new markets and created new opportunities for businesses all across our country and, therefore, opportunities for workers all across our country, another major boost to our economy.

So, Mr. Chairman, when speaker after speaker gets up on the other side, they are ignoring the facts, they are ignoring the progress that we have made in terms of spending, in terms of taxing, in terms of fighting inflation. All of these are important factors that need to be discussed.

So I am pleased to have had the opportunity to close, Mr. Chairman, to make these points.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). All time for general debate has expired.

Pursuant to the rule, the amendment in the nature of a substitute printed in Part A of House Report 106–535 is considered as an original concurrent resolution for the purpose of amendment and is considered read.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

H. CON. RES. 290

Resolved by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring),

SECTION 1. CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001.

The Congress declares that the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000 is hereby revised and replaced and that this is the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001 and that the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2002 through 2005 are hereby set forth.

SEC. 2. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

Fiscal year 2002: $1,536,900,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,581,800,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,630,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,689,200,000,000.

(4) SURPLUSES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the surpluses are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $5,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $14,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $12,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $16,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $20,100,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $29,900,000,000.

(5) PUBLIC DEBT.—The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $5,640,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $5,710,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $5,787,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $5,869,900,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $5,944,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $6,007,800,000,000.

SEC. 3. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

The Congress determines and declares that the appropriate levels of new budget authority and budget outlays for fiscal years 2000 through 2005 for each major functional category are:

(1) National Defense (050):

Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $288,900,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $282,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $306,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $297,600,000,000.

SEC. 4. RECONCILIATION.

(a) LEGISLATION PROVIDING $150 BILLION IN TAX RELIEF OVER A 5-YEAR PERIOD.—The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill—

(1) not later than May 26, 2000;
(2) not later than June 23, 2000;
(3) not later than July 28, 2000; and
(4) not later than September 22, 2000;

that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $10,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $150,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005.

(b) SUBMISSIONS REGARDING DEBT HELD BY THE PUBLIC.—The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill—

(1) not later than May 26, 2000, that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the debt held by the public by $10,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2001; and

(2) not later than September 22, 2000, that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the debt held by the public by not more than $20,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2001.

SEC. 5. LOCK-BOX FOR SOCIAL SECURITY SURPLUSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) under the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, the social security trust funds are off-budget for purposes of the President's budget submission and the concurrent resolution on the budget;

(2) the social security trust funds have been running surpluses for 17 years;

(3) these surpluses have been used to implicitly finance the general operations of the Federal Government;

(4) in fiscal year 2001, the social security surplus will be $166 billion;

(5) this resolution balances the Federal budget without counting the social security surpluses;

(6) the only way to ensure that social security surpluses are not diverted for other purposes is to balance the budget exclusive of such surpluses; and

(7) Congress and the President should take such steps as are necessary to ensure that future budgets are balanced excluding the surpluses generated by the social security trust funds.

(b) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any revision to this resolution or a concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2002, or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that sets forth a deficit for any fiscal year.

(2) DEFICIT LEVELS.—For purposes of this subsection, a deficit shall be the level (if any) set forth in the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year pursuant to section 301(a)(3) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(c) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that legislation should be enacted in this session of Congress that would enforce the reduction in debt held by the public assumed in this resolution by the imposition of a statutory limit on such debt or other appropriate means.

SEC. 6. DEBT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX.

(a) POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any reported bill or joint resolution, or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would cause a surplus for fiscal year 2001 to be less than the level (as adjusted for reconciliation or other tax-related legislation, medicare, or agriculture as considered pursuant to section 4, 7, 8(a) or (c), 9, 10, 11, or 12) set forth in section 2(4) for that fiscal year.

(b) SPECIAL RULE.—The level of the surplus for purposes of subsection (a) shall take into account amounts adjusted under section 314(a)(2)(B) or (C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SEC. 7. SPECIAL PROCEDURES TO SAFEGUARD TAX RELIEF.

(a) ADJUSTMENTS TO PRESERVE SURPLUSES.—Upon the reporting of a reconciliation bill by the Committee on Ways and Means pursuant to section 4(a) or, the offering of an amendment to, or the submission of a conference report on, H.R. 3081, H.R. 6, or H.R. 2990, whichever occurs first, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House shall reduce to zero the amounts by which aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be reduced as set forth in section 2(1)(B) (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

(b) ADJUSTMENTS FOR REVENUE BILLS.—After making the adjustments referred to in paragraph (1), and whenever the Committee on Ways and Means reports any reconciliation bill pursuant to section 4(a) (or an amendment thereto is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted) or an amendment to H.R. 3081, H.R. 6, or H.R. 2990 is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted after the date of adoption of this resolution, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House shall increase the levels by which Federal revenues should be reduced by the reduction in revenue caused by such measure for each applicable year or period, but not to exceed, after taking into account any other bill or joint resolution enacted during this session of the One Hundred Sixth Congress that causes a reduction in revenues for such year or period, $10,000,000,000 in fiscal year 2001 and $150,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 8. RESERVE FUND PROVIDING AN ADDITIONAL $50 BILLION FOR ADDITIONAL TAX RELIEF AND DEBT REDUCTION.

(a) ADDITIONAL TAX RELIEF AND DEBT REDUCTION.—Whenever the Committee on Ways and Means reports any reconciliation bill pursuant to section 4(a) (or an amendment thereto is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted), or an amendment to H.R. 3081, H.R. 2990, or to H.R. 6 is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted after the date of adoption of this resolution (after taking into account any other bill or joint resolution enacted during this session of the One Hundred Sixth Congress that would cause a reduction in revenues for fiscal year 2001 or the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005) that would cause the level by which Federal revenues should be reduced, as set forth in section 2(1)(B) for such fiscal year or for such period, as adjusted, to be exceeded, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House may increase the levels by which Federal revenues should be reduced by the amount exceeding such level resulting from such measure, but not to exceed $5,155,000,000 in fiscal year 2001 and $50,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments, including reconciliation instructions set forth in section 4(a)).

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ADDITIONAL HEALTH-RELATED TAX RELIEF.—It is the sense of Congress that the reserve fund set forth in subsection (a) assumes $446,000,000 in fiscal year 2001 and $4,352,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 for health-related tax provisions comparable to those contained in H.R. 2990 (as passed the House).

(c) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON FEDERAL EMPLOYEES BENEFIT PACKAGE.—It is the sense of Congress that the reserve fund set forth in subsection (a) assumes $17,000,000 in fiscal year 2001 and $107,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 for legislation that permits Federal employees to immediately participate in the Thrift Savings Plan.

SEC. 9. RESERVE FUND FOR AUGUST UPDATE REVISION OF BUDGET SURPLUSES.

(a) REPORTING A SURPLUS.—If the Congressional Budget Office report referred to in subsection (c) projects an increase in the surplus for fiscal year 2000, fiscal year 2001, and the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 over the corresponding levels set forth in its March 2000 economic and budget forecast for fiscal year 2001, submitted pursuant to section 202(e)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House may make the adjustments as provided in subsection (b).

(b) ADJUSTMENTS.—Whenever the Committee on Ways and Means reports any reconciliation bill pursuant to section 4(a) (or an amendment thereto is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted), or an amendment to H.R. 3081, H.R. 6, or H.R. 2990 is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted after the date of adoption of this resolution that (after taking into account any other bill or joint resolution enacted during this session of the One Hundred Sixth Congress that would cause a reduction in revenues for such year or period) would cause the level by which Federal revenues should be reduced, as set forth in section 2(1)(B) for fiscal year 2001 or for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005, as adjusted, to be exceeded, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House may increase the levels by which Federal revenues should be reduced by the amount exceeding such level resulting from such measure for each applicable year or period (or for fiscal year 2000 may increase the level of the surplus and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments, including reconciliation instructions set forth in section 4(a)), but not to exceed the increase in the surplus for such year or period in the report referred to in subsection (a).

(c) CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE UPDATED BUDGET FORECAST FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001—The report referred to in subsection (a) is the Congressional Budget Office updated budget forecast for fiscal year 2001.

SEC. 10. RESERVE FUND FOR MEDICARE.

Whenever the Committee on Ways and Means or Committee on Commerce of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that reforms the medicare program and provides coverage for prescription drugs, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the aggregates and allocations of new budget authority (and outlays resulting therefrom) by the amount provided by that measure for that purpose, but not to exceed $2,000,000,000 in new budget authority and outlays for fiscal year 2001 and $40,000,000,000 in new budget authority and outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 11. RESERVE FUND FOR AGRICULTURE IN FISCAL YEAR 2000.

Whenever the Committee on Agriculture of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that provides income support to owners and producers of farms, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the allocation of new budget authority and outlays to that committee for fiscal year 2000 by the amount of new budget authority (and the outlays resulting therefrom) provided by that measure for that purpose not to exceed $6,000,000,000 in new budget authority and outlays for fiscal year 2000, $0 in new budget authority and outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2004, and $6,000,000,000 in new budget authority and outlays for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 12. RESERVE FUND FOR AGRICULTURE IN FISCAL YEAR 2001.

Whenever the Committee on Agriculture of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that provides risk management or income assistance for agricultural producers, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the allocation of new budget authority and outlays to that committee by the amount of new budget authority (and the outlays resulting therefrom) if such legislation does not exceed $1,355,000,000 in new budget authority and $595,000,000 in outlays for fiscal year 2001 and $8,359,000,000 in new budget authority and $7,223,000,000 in outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 13. APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF CHANGES IN ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.

(a) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments of allocations and aggregates made pursuant to section 7(b), 8(a) or (c), 9, 10, 11, or 12 for any measure shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

(b) EFFECT OF CHANGED ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.—Revised allocations and aggregates resulting from these adjustments shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) BUDGET COMMITTEE DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this resolution—

(1) the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority, revenues, deficits, and surpluses for a fiscal year or period of fiscal years shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives or the Senate, as applicable; and

(2) such chairman, as applicable, may make any other necessary adjustments to such levels to carry out this resolution.

SEC. 14. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON WASTE, FRAUD, AND ABUSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) while the budget may be in balance, it continues to be ridden with waste, fraud, and abuse;

(2) just last month, auditors documented more than $19,000,000,000 in improper payments each year by such agencies as the Agency of International Development, the Internal Revenue Service, the Social Security Administration, and the Department of Defense;

(3) the General Accounting Office (GAO) recently reported that the financial management practices of some Federal agencies are so poor that it is unable to determine the full extent of improper government payments; and

(4) the GAO now lists a record number of 25 Federal programs that are at ''high risk'' of waste, fraud, and abuse.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that the Committee on the Budget has created task forces to address this issue and that the President should take immediate steps to reduce waste, fraud, and abuse within the Federal Government and report on such actions to the Congress and that the resolution should include reconciliation directives to the appropriate committees of jurisdiction to dedicate the resulting savings to debt reduction and tax relief.

SEC. 15. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON PROVIDING ADDITIONAL DOLLARS TO THE CLASSROOM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) strengthening America's public schools while respecting State and local control is critically important to the future of our children and our Nation;

(2) education is a local responsibility, a State priority, and a national concern;

(3) a partnership with the Nation's governors, parents, teachers, and principals must take place in order to strengthen public schools and foster educational excellence;

(4) the consolidation of various Federal education programs will benefit our Nation's children, parents, and teachers by sending more dollars directly to the classroom; and

(5) our Nation's children deserve an educational system that will provide opportunities to excel.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Congress should enact legislation that would consolidate thirty-one Federal K–12 education programs; and

(2) the Department of Education, the States, and local educational agencies should work together to ensure that not less than 95 percent of all funds appropriated for the purpose of carrying out elementary and secondary education programs administered by the Department of Education is spent for our children in their classrooms.

SEC. 16. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING EMERGENCY SPENDING.

It is the sense of Congress that, as a part of a comprehensive reform of the budget process, the Committees on the Budget should develop a definition of, and a process for, funding emergencies consistent with the applicable provisions of H.R. 853, the Comprehensive Budget Process Reform Act of 1999, that could be incorporated into the Rules of the House of Representatives and the Standing Rules of the Senate.

SEC. 17. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON ESTIMATES OF THE IMPACT OF REGULATIONS ON THE PRIVATE SECTOR.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) the Federal regulatory system sometimes adversely affects many Americans and businesses by imposing financial burdens with little corresponding public benefit;

(2) currently, Congress has no general mechanism for assessing the financial impact of regulatory activities on the private sector;

(3) Congress is ultimately responsible for making sure agencies act in accordance with congressional intent and, while the executive branch is responsible for promulgating regulations, Congress should curb ineffective regulations by using its oversight and regulatory powers; and

(4) a variety of reforms have been suggested to increase congressional oversight over regulatory activity, including directing the President to prepare an annual accounting statement containing several cost/benefit analyses, recommendations to reform inefficient regulatory programs, and an identification and analysis of duplications and inconsistencies among such programs.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that the House should reclaim its role as reformer and take the first step toward curbing inefficient regulatory activity by passing legislation authorizing the Congressional Budget Office to prepare regular estimates on the impact of proposed Federal regulations on the private sector.

SEC. 18. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON BIENNIAL BUDGET.

It is the sense of the House that there is a wide range of views on the advisability of biennial budgeting and this issue should be considered only within the context of comprehensive budget process reform.

SEC. 19. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE AND PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICES FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.

(a) ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) 44.4 million Americans are currently without health insurance, and that this number is expected to rise to nearly 60 million people in the next 10 years;

(B) the cost of health insurance continues to rise, a key factor in increasing the number of uninsured; and

(C) there is a consensus that working Americans and their families will suffer from reduced access to health insurance.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON IMPROVING ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE INSURANCE.—It is the sense of Congress that access to affordable health care coverage for all Americans is a priority of the 106th Congress.

(b) PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICE FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 reformed Medicare home health care spending by instructing the Health Care Financing Administration to implement a prospective payment system and instituted an interim payment system to achieve savings;

(B) the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Balanced Budget Refinement Act, 1999, reformed the interim payment system to increase reimbursements to low-cost providers and delayed the automatic 15 percent payment reduction until after the first year of the implementation of the prospective payment system; and

(C) patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient do not receive supplemental payments in the interim payment system but will receive special protection in the home health care prospective payment system.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HOME HEALTH CARE.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(A) Congress recognizes the importance of home health care for seniors and disabled citizens;

(B) Congress and the Administration should work together to maintain quality care for patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient, including the sickest and frailest Medicare beneficiaries, while home health care agencies operate in the interim payment system; and

(C) Congress and the Administration should work together to avoid the implementation of the 15 percent reduction in the prospective payment system and ensured timely implementation of that system.

SEC. 20. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING MEDICARE+CHOICE PROGRAMS/REIMBURSEMENT RATES.

It is the sense of Congress that the Medicare+Choice regional disparity among reimbursement rates is unfair, and that full funding of the Medicare+Choice program is a priority as Congress deals with any medicare reform legislation.

SEC. 21. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON DIRECTING THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE TO ACCEPT NEGATIVE NUMBERS IN FARM INCOME AVERAGING.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) farmers' and ranchers' incomes vary widely from year to year due to uncontrollable markets and unpredictable weather;

(2) in the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, Congress enacted 3-year farm income averaging to protect agricultural producers from excessive tax rates in profitable years;

(3) last year, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) proposed final regulations for averaging farm income which fail to make clear that taxable income in a given year may be a negative number; and

(4) this IRS interpretation can result in farmers having to pay additional taxes during years in which they experience a loss in income.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that during this session of the 106th Congress, legislation should be considered to direct the Internal Revenue Service to count any net loss of income in determining the proper rate of taxation.

SEC. 22. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING THE STABILIZATION OF CERTAIN FEDERAL PAYMENTS TO STATES, COUNTIES, AND BOROUGHS.

It is the sense of the House that Federal revenue-sharing payments to States, counties, and boroughs pursuant to the Act of May 23, 1908 (35 Stat. 260; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of March 1, 1911 (36 Stat. 963; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of August 28, 1937 (chapter 876; 50 Stat. 875; 43 U.S.C. 1181f), the Act of May 24, 1939 (chapter 144; 53 Stat. 753; 43 U.S.C. 1181f–1 et seq.), and sections 13982 and 13983 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (Public Law 103–66; 16 U.S.C. 500 note; 43 U.S.C. 1181f note) should be stabilized and maintained for the long-term benefit of schools, roads, public services, and communities, and that providing such permanent, stable funding is a priority of the 106th Congress.

SEC. 23. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF THE NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) the year 2000 will mark the 50th Anniversary of the National Science Foundation;

(2) the National Science Foundation is the largest supporter of basic research in the Federal Government;

(3) the National Science Foundation is the second largest supporter of university-based research;

(4) research conducted by the grantees of the National Science Foundation has led to innovations that have dramatically improved the quality of life of all Americans;

(5) grants made by the National Science Foundation have been a crucial factor in the development of important technologies that Americans take for granted, such as lasers, Magnetic Resonance Imaging, Doppler Radar, and the Internet;

(6) because basic research funded by the National Science Foundation is high-risk, cutting edge, fundamental, and may not produce tangible benefits for over a decade, the Federal Government is uniquely suited to support such research; and

(7) the National Science Foundation's focus on peer-reviewed merit based grants represents a model for research agencies across the Federal Government.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the function 250 (Basic Science) levels assume an amount of funding which ensures that the National Science Foundation is a priority in the resolution; recognizing the National Science Foundation's critical role in funding basic research, which leads to the innovations that assure the Nation's economic future, and in cultivating America's intellectual infrastructure.

SEC. 24. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES.

It is the sense of Congress that the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission continue to carefully monitor the medicare skilled nursing benefit to determine if payment rates are sufficient to provide quality care, and that if reform is recommended, Congress should pass legislation as quickly as possible to assure quality skilled nursing care.

SEC. 25. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON SPECIAL EDUCATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) all children deserve a quality education, including children with disabilities;

(2) the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act provides that the Federal, State, and local governments are to share in the expense of educating children with disabilities and commits the Federal Government to pay up to 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure for children with disabilities;

(3) the high cost of educating children with disabilities and the Federal Government's failure to fully meet its obligation under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act stretches limited State and local education funds, creating difficulty in providing a quality education to all students, including children with disabilities;

(4) the current level of Federal funding to States and localities under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act is contrary to the goal of ensuring that children with disabilities receive a quality education;

(5) the Federal Government has failed to appropriate 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure per child with a disability as required under the Individuals with Disabilities Act to assist States and localities to educate children with disabilities; and

(6) the levels in function 500 (Education) for fiscal year 2001 assume sufficient discretionary budget authority to accommodate fiscal year 2001 appropriations for IDEA at least $2,000,000,000 above such funding levels appropriated in fiscal year 2000.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Congress and the President should increase fiscal year 2001 funding for programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Act by at least $2,000,000,000 above fiscal year 2000 appropriated levels;

(2) Congress and the President should give programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act the highest priority among Federal elementary and secondary education programs by meeting the commitment to fund the maximum State grant allocation for educating children with disabilities under such Act prior to authorizing or appropriating funds for any new education initiative;

(3) Congress and the President may consider, if new or increased funding is authorized or appropriated for any elementary and secondary education initiative that directs funds to local educational agencies, providing the flexibility in such authorization or appropriation necessary to allow local educational agencies the authority to use such funds for programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act; and

(4) if a local educational agency chooses to utilize the authority under section 613(a)(2)(C)(i) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act to treat as local funds up to 20 percent of the amount of funds the agency receives under part B of such Act that exceeds the amount it received under that part for the previous fiscal year, then the agency should use those local funds to provide additional funding for any Federal, State, or local education program.

SEC. 26. ASSUMED FUNDING LEVELS FOR SPECIAL EDUCATION.

It is the sense of Congress that function 500 (Education) levels assume at least a $2,000,000,000 increase in fiscal year 2001 over the current fiscal year to reflect the commitment of Congress to appropriate 40 percent of the national per pupil expenditure for children with disabilities by a date certain.

SEC. 27. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON A FEDERAL EMPLOYEE PAY RAISE.

It is the sense of Congress that the pay increase for Federal employees in January 2001 should be at least 3.7 percent.

SEC. 28. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING HCFA DRAFT GUIDELINES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) on February 15, 2000, the Health Care Financing Administration in the Department of Health and Human Services issued a draft Medicaid School-Based Administrative Claiming (MAC) Guide; and

(2) in its introduction, the stated purpose of the draft MAC guide is to provide information for schools, State medicaid agencies, HCFA staff, and other interested parties on the existing requirements for claiming Federal funds under the medicaid program for the costs of administrative activities, such as medicaid outreach, that are performed in the school setting associated with school-based health services programs.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) many school-based health programs provide a broad range of services that are covered by medicaid, affording access to care for children who otherwise might well go without needed services;

(2) such programs also can play a powerful role in identifying and enrolling children who are eligible for medicaid, as well as the State Children's Health Insurance programs;

(3) undue administrative burdens may be placed on school districts and States and deter timely application approval;

(4) the Health Care Financing Administration should substantially revise or abandon the current draft MAC guide because it appears to promulgate new rules that place excessive administrative burdens on participating school districts;

(5) the goal of the revised guide should be to encourage the appropriate use of Medicaid school-based services without undue administrative burdens; and

(6) the best way to ensure the continued viability of medicaid school-based services is to guarantee that the guidelines are fair and responsible.

SEC. 29. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ASSET-BUILDING FOR THE WORKING POOR.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) 33 percent of all American households and 60 percent of African American households have either no financial assets or negative financial assets;

(2) 46.9 percent of children in America live in households with no financial assets, including 40 percent of Caucasian children and 75 percent of African American children;

(3) in order to provide low-income families with more tools for empowerment, incentives, including individual development accounts, are demonstrating success at empowering low-income workers;

(5) middle and upper income Americans currently benefit from tax incentives for building assets; and

(6) the Federal Government should utilize the Federal tax code to provide low-income Americans with incentives to work and build assets in order to escape poverty permanently.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the provisions of this resolution assume that Congress should modify the Federal tax law to include Individual Development Account provisions in order to encourage low-income workers and their families to save for buying a first home, starting a business, obtaining an education, or taking other measures to prepare for the future.

SEC. 30. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF SUPPORTING THE NATION'S EMERGENCY FIRST-RESPONDERS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) over 1.2 million men and women work as fire and emergency services personnel in 32,000 fire and emergency medical services departments across the Nation;

(2) over eighty percent of those who serve do so as volunteers;

(3) the Nation's firefighters responded to more than 18 million calls in 1998, including over 1.7 million fires;

(4) an average of 100 firefighters per year lose their lives in the course of their duties; and

(5) the Federal Government has a role in protecting the health and safety of the Nation's fire fighting personnel.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) recognizing the Nation's firefighters and emergency services crucial role in preserving and protecting life and property, such Federal assistance as low-interest loan programs, community development block grant reforms, emergency radio spectrum reallocations, and volunteer fire assistance programs, should be considered; and

(2) additional resources should be set aside for such assistance.

SEC. 31. ENHANCED ENFORCEMENT OF BUDGETARY LIMITS.

(a) PROHIBITION ON USE OF DIRECTED SCOREKEEPING.—

(1) It shall not be in order in the House to consider any reported bill or joint resolution, or amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that contains a directed scorekeeping provision.

(2) As used in this subsection, the term ''directed scorekeeping'' means directing the Congressional Budget Office or the Office of Management and Budget to estimate any provision providing discretionary new budget authority in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations for a fiscal year for budgetary enforcement purposes.

(b) PROHIBITION ON USE OF ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS.—(1) It shall not be in order in the House to consider any reported bill or joint resolution, or amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would cause the total level of discretionary advance appropriations provided for fiscal years after 2001 to exceed $23 billion (which represents the total level of advance appropriations for fiscal year 2001).

(2) As used in this subsection, the term ''advance appropriation''means any discretionary new budget authority in a bill or joint resolution making general appropriations for fiscal year 2001 that first becomes available for any fiscal year after 2001.

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section shall cease to have any force or effect on January 1, 2001.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. No amendment to that amendment is in order except the amendments printed in Part B of the report. Each amendment may be offered only in the order printed in the report, may be offered only by the Member designated in the report, shall be considered read, shall be debatable for the time specified in the report, equally divided and controlled by the proponent and an opponent, and shall not be subject to amendment.

After conclusion of consideration of the concurrent resolution for amendment, there shall be a final period of general debate which shall not exceed 10 minutes, equally divided and controlled by the chairman and ranking minority member of the Committee on the Budget.

It is now in order to consider Amendment No. 1 printed in Part B of House Report 106–535.

AMENDMENT NO. 1 IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. OWENS

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Part B Amendment No. 1 in the Nature of a Substitute offered by Mr. OWENS:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001.

The Congress declares that concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001 and that the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2002 through 2005 are hereby set forth.

SEC. 2. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

The following budgetary levels are appropriate for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2005:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution:

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $2,026,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $2,097,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $2,171,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $2,262,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $2,352,000,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be reduced are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $96,800,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $109,700,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $129,994,500,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $154,043,480,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $182,241,520,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $1,548,700,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,618,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,918,041,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $2,272,878,500,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $2,693,361,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $1,525,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,589,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,883,202,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $2,231,594,300,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $2,644,439,200,000.

(4) SURPLUSES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the surpluses are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $20,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $20,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $20,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $20,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $20,000,000,000.

(5) PUBLIC DEBT.—The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $3,287,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $3,100,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $2,903,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $2,690,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $2,465,000,000,000.

SEC. 3. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

The Congress determines and declares that the appropriate levels of new budget authority and budget outlays for fiscal years 2001 through 2005 for each major functional category are:

(1) National Defense (050):
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $255,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $252,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $262,080,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $261,080,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003:
(A) New budget authority, $268,081,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $267,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004:
(A) New budget authority, $271,000,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $270,000,000,000.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 446, the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) and the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS).

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I rise to present the Congressional Black Caucus budget. I shall manage only a small part of the time.

The Congressional Black Caucus budget is a budget for maximum investment and opportunity. We are carrying forward the great Democratic Party traditions of Franklin Roosevelt's New Deal, Harry Truman's Marshall Plan and health care proposal, Lyndon Johnson's Great Society that produced Medicaid and Medicare.

As advocates for the Democratic Party mainstream philosophy, the Congressional Black Caucus sets forth this budget for maximum investment and maximum opportunities.

As we prepare the year 2001 budget, we are blessed by the long, warm rays of a sun of a coming decade of surpluses. Compassion and vision are no longer blocked by the spectre of budget deficits.

The conservative estimate is that there will be a $1.9 trillion non-Social Security surplus over the next 10 years. Using simple logic, we should be able to program and apply this year about $200 billion for the 2001 budget as this window of opportunity opens.

Investment for the future must be our first priority. Maximizing opportunities for individual citizens is synonymous with maximizing the growth and the expansion of a U.S. superpower economy.

It is the age of information, stupid. It is a time of a computer and a time of digitalization. It is the era of thousands of high-level vacancies because there are not enough information technology workers. With enlightened budget decisions, we can at this moment begin the shaping of the contours of a new cybercivilization.

The boldest and most vital proposal contained in the CBC budget is the Function 500. It is at the heart of our budget. Funding for school construction, responding to the fact that the American people in numerous polls have indicated that their number one priority for Federal budget action is education.

Each of the budgets being presented offer increases in education. Even the Blue Dog budget at one end of the spectrum of the Democratic Party offers a $21 billion increase in education. The Republican budget offers a slight increase, also.

But only the CBC budget has chosen to focus on the kingpin issue of school physical infrastructure. While we applaud the President's inclusion of $1.3 billion for our emergency repairs, we deem it to be grossly inadequate.

We support school financing via the Tax Code, also. However, most of the local education agencies cannot borrow money without a lengthy taxpayer referendum procedure. This CBC budget proposes a $10 billion increase for funding for school construction. This amount would be taken from the $200 billion surplus.

In addition to this 5 percent for infrastructure, and by ''infrastructure'' we mean wiring, repair, security, and new construction, the CBC budget also proposes another 5 percent, another $10 billion, to address other education, social service, and employment initiatives.

Only 10 percent of the overall surplus will be utilized for the all-important mission of investment in human resources, only 10 percent of this amount available above the Social Security surplus.

Other projected increases in our budget, and certainly the critical Function 500 section, include additional funding for Head Start, summer youth employment, TRIO programs, historically black colleges and universities, and community technology centers.

We oppose the Department of Education's elimination of certain vitally needed ongoing technical assistance and research programs. OERI projects should not be dumped into a general slush fund for the Department of Education.

The Department of Education's weak administration, with its bargain basement peer-review procedures, is not in a position to mount new programs on a timely basis. A better utilization of existing programs will be more efficient and more effective.

For the critically important welfare to work programs administered by the Department of Labor, the year 2001 budget assumes a life-and-death importance. Infant mortality rates in poor communities will continue to rise, and families will suffer needlessly unless there is an end to the current Federal permissive policy which allows States to pilfer funds from the poor and to use welfare contracts as political patronage.

The CBC proposes greater earmarking of funding connected with the chaotic welfare reform measures. A better funded and stronger Federal administration and direction is needed to restrain the greed and the neglect of our State governments.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this budget because it taxes too much, spends too much, and does not pay down enough debt.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I want to just take a few minutes to say that we really believe that today, in the consideration of all these budgets, that we would like to take the six themes that I know the gentleman from Texas (Mr. FROST) is so fond of. I am disappointed that he has left the floor. We wanted to take these six themes and kind of compare all the different budgets that are going to come to the House floor today against what we think is the best proposal.

If I could go through this again rather quickly. As my colleagues know, the Republican budget proposal will protect 100 percent of the Social Security surplus for the second year in a row. We will not dip into that surplus. We will use that Social Security surplus only for purposes of paying benefits and paying down the publicly held debt.

Secondly, we, in our budget, provide for the strengthening of Medicare, reform of Medicare, and also make money available for a prescription drug for the neediest of our senior citizens. We think it is absolutely vital that those who are needy have access to prescription drugs.

Thirdly, we also move to retire the publicly held debt over the next 5 years by $1 trillion. Now, some budgets are going to propose that we pay it down by more. Other budgets are going to propose that we pay it down by less.

We think that the trillion-dollar paydown, in combination with additional spending needs and with tax cuts, are the right formula. So we believe that not only should we move first to protect Social Security and Medicare, but we also believe that the trillion-dollar number is the right number to pay down public debt, thereby giving good signals to the Federal Reserve in terms of their interest rate policies.

Fourthly, we believe that we can have tax fairness. And we have a tax cut bill that approaches by the end of this summer, we believe, somewhere in the neighborhood of $250 billion. We provide for $200 billion in tax relief. That will provide tax relief to America's families by being able to ease the penalty on getting married that all too many couples face today; that, in fact, we will take small businesses and farmers and not force them to visit the undertaker and the IRS on the same day but begin to ease that penalty on success, ease that penalty that people experience when they try to pass their bounty on to their children.

We also believe that our senior citizens ought not to be penalized for their independence and hard work by cutting their Social Security as an offset to any dollar they earn. We think that is just a bogus idea that was cooked up here in Washington.

Furthermore, we think that it is important that we restore America's defense and also believe, however, that the message that the Black Caucus sends of one that this Pentagon needs reviewed and reformed is clearly a point of which we can all agree, and that we believe we need to support education and the National Institutes of Health and basic science research in the country.

So, today I would like to say that I think that this is the right formula. And if we can come with a formula that protects Social Security and strengthens Medicare and provides the prescription drug and pays down the public debt by a trillion dollars and provides significant tax relief while rebuilding our defense and education as a priority, we are going to be pretty close to what we think is the right formula.

I know that the Congressional Black Caucus comes to the floor every year with a budget, they lay it out there, and their priorities reflect the needs as they see them in this country. I want to offer my respect and congratulations to the members of the Black Caucus for their hard work. I know it is a tradition, and I am very thankful that they have the opportunity to come to the floor.

I do not want to stand here and say a number of negative things against their budget, because I think it reflects their priorities as they see them. We should study their budget and communicate with them; and perhaps at a later point we can improve on our priorities, we can have a better understanding of some of the priorities that they have. I hope that at some point, and maybe even in the conference committee, we can perhaps improve on our document.

But, nevertheless, I think that we should not approve that budget; and I think we ought to stick to the Republican proposal that we have today. I think it will provide for a continued strong economy, more power for individuals, and a sense of fairness for families and small businesses and our senior citizens in the country.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to how much time we have remaining?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) has 14½ minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) has 15 minutes remaining.

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to express my appreciation for the remarks of the distinguished gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), our brilliant and distinguished budget chairman, and tell him that we welcome criticisms of our budget; and we certainly would criticize the other budgets. We very much would like to see some dialogue take place between the people who put forward these budgets.

We think a $17 billion increase for defense over the President's already very generous increases shows that there is a basic misunderstanding as to what the world is all about and where America and the rest of the world is going.

It is brain power, stupid. It is brain power. Brain power drives everything else. It drives the military. It drives the economy. And if we do not invest in education, we will have beautiful high-tech ships out there that nobody can operate.

We would like to see some dialogue. If you would agree to take part of that $17 billion and put about $10 billion of it into education, school construction, computers and wiring of schools, I think you would do far more for defense than you are doing with the kinds of increases that are there.

Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time for the management of our bill to the distinguished gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN), chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus; and I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman control the time.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from New York?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

I thank the gentleman from New York for his help in substituting for us as we got to the floor.

Let me begin by thanking the distinguished chairman of the Committee on the Budget for all of his hard work and to assure him that we, the members of the Congressional Black Caucus, are very, very aware of the work that he has put into this budget, and we commend him for the work. I would also like to thank the Committee on Rules for working with us and helping us to bring our budget to this floor, because we think that we have some things worth discussing.

Mr. Chairman, if we fail to seize this moment to make investments that will allow our great Nation to surge forward in the creation of this new cybercivilization, then our children and grandchildren will frown on us and will lament the fact that we failed not because we lacked fiscal resources but our failures, our very devastating blunder was due to a poverty of vision.

Mr. Chairman, we are the custodians of unprecedented wealth in a giant economy. But we must not allow midget minds and tiny spirits to control our destiny. At a time when positive generosity is possible, such a proposal maximizes great selfishness.

The preparation of this budget for maximum investment and growth was guided by a set of 10 principles and assumptions set forth below.

Number one. We accept the general direction of the President's budget and the House Democratic Caucus. Families First is a motto we wholeheartedly endorse. However, more resources must be directed toward working families and the unique problems of African American families.

Number two. We view the projection of a $1.9 trillion surplus over a 10-year period as an overriding factor for the basic decisions to be made for fiscal year 2001. Common sense dictates that we approach this first year of the decade of budget surpluses with proposals for the most advantageous uses of one-tenth of the projected surplus.

Number three. Investment in the CBC-designated priorities should be our number one concern. We support a moderate plan to pay down the national debt. However, the President's blueprint moves too far and too fast with debt reduction at the expense of investment.

Number four. The protection of Social Security, Medicaid, and Medicare are among the highest priorities of the CBC.

Number five. In budgeting for each function, the CBC accepts the principles of a balanced budget. However, increases in CBC priorities must not be inhibited by present budget caps and conventional assumptions.

Number six. The CBC accepts the basic thrust of President Clinton's proposal for the distribution of the surplus. However, the CBC will insist that the emphasis in priorities must be shifted. At least 10 percent of the surplus should be devoted to investments in programs for education and a second 10 percent should be allotted for investments which benefit working families and for the safety net programs.

Number seven. Tax cuts, which must be taken from the 80 percent of the surplus which remains, are not a high priority of the CBC.

Number eight. Within the priorities earmarked by the President's budget in each function, the CBC will strive to target some portion of the proposed allocations to the special needs of working families.

Number nine. Budget allocations for necessary programs that currently do not exist are encouraged.

And, number 10, the currently stated CBC fiscal year 2001 priorities are education, housing, health, economic development, and livable communities.

Mr. Chairman, I believe that serious consideration of this budget is called for at this time. We believe it provides a blueprint for the launching of this new millennium.

NATIONAL DEFENSE (050)

Function in brief

Function 050 funds the pay and benefits of military and civilian personnel; operations and maintenance; research, development, testing, evaluation, engineering, and procurement of new weapons systems (including nuclear weapons and research provided by the Department of Energy); and military construction, including family housing; and other military-related activities.

The CBC believes that the Defense budget, with it current estimates consumes more than one-half of the discretionary spending of the Federal government's budget. While the Caucus wants to ensure that our men and women in uniform enjoy necessary and proper support from sufficient forces and the right equipment, training, and housing, we do not want this reality to prevail at the expense of our nation's other priorities.

GENERAL SCIENCE, SPACE, AND TECHNOLOGY (250)

Function in brief

Function 250 provides funding for general science and basic research, including the National Science Foundation; Department of Energy general science programs, particularly the high energy physics and nuclear physics programs; space flight, research and supporting activities.

The CBC maintains a significant overall Federal investment in science and engineering research and development while paring back support for those research initiatives which offer minimal public benefits and would be more appropriately financed by private industry.

HIGHLIGHTS

NASA—Funds the International Space Station at the level proposed by the President which allows for space based medical research and breakthroughs in medicine for diseases that greatly affect the African American community.

HBCU's—Provides additional funding for Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCU's) Minority University Research and Education Programs.

NSF—Provides additional funding for the Next Generation Internet initiative in order to connect HBCU's and other similarly situated educational institutions to the Internet.

Elementary, Secondary and information education—Provides additional funding to the Elementary, Secondary and Information Educational activity of the Educational and Human Resources appropriation of the NSF.

National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration—Provides additional funding for the Global Learning and Observations to Benefit the Environment Program (GLOBE).

TRANSPORTATION (400)

Function 400 includes ground transportation programs, such as the federal-aid highway program, mass transit, rail transportation, and the Interstate Commerce Commission; air transportation through the Coast Guard and Maritime Administration; and related transportation support activities.

Rather than cutting investment in the nation's transportation infrastructure, the CBC Alternative Budget maintains investment in these vital functions by funding them at the level of current services through fiscal year 2000. Public investment in transportation produces broad economic benefits, and our nation must have a safe and efficient transportation system for all people if the United States is to compete successfully in the 21st Century.

EDUCATION, TRAINING AND EMPLOYMENT SERVICES (500)

Function in brief

The boldest and most vital proposal contained in the CBC Budget is at the heart of this function: funding for school construction. Responding to the fact that the American people in numerous polls have indicated that their number one priority for federal budget action is Education, each of the budgets being presented offer increases in Education. But only the CBC Budget has chosen to focus on the kingpin issue of school physical infrastructure. While we applaud the President's inclusion of 1.3 billion dollars for ''emergency repairs,'' we deem it to be grossly inadequate. We support school financing via the tax code; however, most of the Local Education Agencies can not borrow money without a lengthy taxpayer referendum procedure. This CBC Budget proposes a 10 billion dollar increase over the President's Budget for school construction. This amount would be taken from the 200 billion dollar surplus. In addition to this five percent for infrastructure-wiring, repair, security, and new construction—the CBC Budget proposes another five percent, 10 billion dollars, to address other education, social service, and employment initiatives. Only ten per cent of the overall surplus would be utilized for the all important mission of investment in human resources.

Other projected increases include additional funding for Head Start, Summer Youth Employment, TRIO programs, Historically Black Colleges and Universities, and Community Technology Centers. We oppose the Department of Education's elimination of vitally needed ongoing technical assistance and research programs. OERI projects should not be dumped into a general slush fund. The DOE's weak administration with its bargain basement peer review procedures, is not in a position to mount new programs on a timely basis. A better utilization of existing programs would be more efficient and more effective.

For the critically important welfare to work programs administered by the Department of Labor, the Year 2001 Budget assumes a life and death importance. Infant mortality rates in poor communities will continue to rise and families will suffer needlessly unless there is an end to the current federal permissive policy which allows states to pilfer funds from the poor, and to use welfare contracts as political patronage. The CBC proposes greater earmarking of funding connected with the chaotic welfare reform ''measures.'' A better funded and stronger Federal administration and direction is needed to restrain the greed and neglect of state governments.

Function 750 provides funding for the law enforcement and anti-drug abuse activities of the Departments of Justice and Treasury; federal judicial, litigation, and correctional activities; criminal justice assistance grants to state and local governments; and legal services for the poor.

The CBC Caring Majority Budget understands the urgency of addressing the rising rate of crime in the United States. All credible research has shown that prevention and early intervention initiatives, combined with a continuum of services aimed at high-risk youth, best serve to reduced crime when compared to incarceration and other punitive approaches.

A comprehensive prevention strategy includes an investment in education and training resources as well as research and evaluation of model programs that offer non-punitive methods of crime reduction.

PRINCIPLES AND ASSUMPTIONS FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS MAXIMUM OPPORTUNITY AND INVESTMENT BUDGET FY'2001

CONGRESSIONAL BLACK CAUCUS

[Congressman James Clyburn, Chairman; Congressman Bennie Thompson, Chairperson—CBC Budget Task Force; Congressman Major R. Owens, Vice Chairperson, CBC Budget Task Force]

The mission of the Congressional Black Caucus is advocacy for those left out and forgotten: the poor in general and more specifically African Americans and other neglected minorities. To guide the budget preparation process and fully accomplish our mission we shall begin by adopting the following Principles and Assumptions:

1. We accept the general direction of the President's Budget and the House Democratic Caucus. ''Families First'' is a motto we wholeheartedly endorse; however, more resources must be directed toward working families and the unique problems of African American families.

2. We view the projection of a 1.9 trillion surplus over a ten year period as an overriding factor for the basic decisions to be made for the FY'2001 Budget. Common sense dictates that we approach this first year of the decade of budget surpluses with proposals for the most advantageous uses of one-tenth of the projected surplus.

3. Investment in the CBC designated priorities shall be our number one concern. We support a moderate plan to pay the national debt; however, the President's blueprint moves too far and too fast with debt reduction at the expense of investment.

4. The protection of Social Security, Medicaid and Medicare are among the highest priorities of the CBC; however, investments in the education and training of the present and future workforce will provide greater guarantees for the solvency of Social Security and the sound financing of health care than any other policies or actions under consideration.

5. In budgeting for each function, the CBC accepts the principles of a balanced budget, however, increase in CBC priorities must not be inhibited by present budget caps and conventional assumptions. We assume that there is waste in several key areas which may be transferred to enhance better investments for the future. We also assume that there are excessive revenue expenditures to continue corporate welfare which may be eliminated to increase funding for our designated priorities. And finally, we assume that one-tenth of the projected ten year surplus must be factored into the development of this budget for maximum opportunity and investment.

6. The CBC accepts the basic thrust of President Clinton's proposal for the distribution of the surplus; however, the CBC will insist that the emphasis in priorities must be shifted. At least 10 percent of the surplus should be devoted to investments in programs for education and a second 10 percent should be allotted for investments which benefit working families and for safety net programs.

7. Tax cuts, which must be taken from the 80 percent of the surplus which remains, are not a high priority of the CBC; however, since the current political power equation dictates the inevitability of a White House approved tax cut, the CBC must insist that the tax cuts not exceed the percentage of the surplus which is allocated for CBC priorities.

8. Within the priorities earmarked by the President's budget, in each function, the CBC will strive to target some portion of the proposed allocations to the special needs of working families, the poor and the African American Community. New market opportunities and minority contract set-asides must apply across the board—and special units should be funded to implement and facilitate the targeting of CBC designated constituents.

9. Budget allocations for necessary programs that currently do not exist are encouraged. The proponents must also later develop legislation for authorization as part of the process to sell the ideas and convince the President to place the item on his priority list at the time of the end-game negotiations. Proposals for new methods of proposal solicitation, peer review, technical assistance, etc. are also in order.

10. The currently stated CBC FY 2001 Priorities are: Education, Housing, Health, Economic Development and Livable Communities, Foreign Aid, Welfare and Low Income Assistance and Juvenile Justice and Law Enforcement. Some additions or subtractions from these categories are possible; however, they will remain as the basic frame-work for CBC Budget and Appropriations demands for the entire session of the 106th Congress. Members preparing budget functions should also consider promoting tactics and strategies which support the CBC's ongoing advocacy of these dollar allocation positions.

Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from the Virgin Islands (Mrs. CHRISTENSEN).

Mrs. CHRISTENSEN. Mr. Chairman, the health budget is a critical piece of our overall budget and agenda. It is defined by the glaring disparities in health status that exist for the African American community. HIV and AIDS have been our focus, but we also die from heart disease, cancer, diabetes, infant mortality, stroke, and other diseases in numbers greater than all other minority groups combined.

Mr. Chairman, this is an emergency. Specifically, this budget will include a minimum of $500 million for the CBC Minority HIV/AIDS initiative. In addition to continuing the programs already started, the increase will allow us to address HIV and AIDS in correctional facilities, increase funding to more vulnerable groups, increase prevention and treatment activities for sexually transmitted diseases and substance abuse, expand research, increase Medicaid funding, bring our programs to smaller cities and rural areas, and greatly increase the technical assistance that will enable our community-based organizations to take advantage of this important resource.

In the broader area of disparities, we will fund an expansion of the racial and ethnic approach to community health programs, to expand it beyond the existing 32 communities and enhance funding to the health careers opportunities program and National Health Service Corps to do better outreach and provide scholarships for young people of color to enter health profession schools. We would fully fund, also, the provisions of H.R. 1860, 2391, and 3250.

Mr. Chairman, with regard to our children, the CBC funds the continuation and strengthening of the Healthy Start program in communities of color and also provides for increased child care at $917 million. Mr. Chairman, the elimination of health disparities in African American communities and other communities of color is one of the most important challenges facing this country. For the sake of all of those who have been left behind in past centuries and for the sake of a fairer and healthier Nation, I ask my colleagues to support the CBC budget.

Mr. Chairman, I thank Chairman CLYBURN for yielding me this time to present the CBC Health Budget.

This is a critical piece of the overall Budget and Agenda. Our health is the necessary underpinning of everything else we aspire to accomplish to make our communities whole, and prepared to meet the challenges of the new Century and the Coming millennium.

What defines our Health Agenda and thus this budget are the glaring disparities in health status, and services that exist for the African American community and other communities of color. HIV and AIDS has been our focus, and rightfully so because of our overwhelmingly disproportionate numbers, and the devastation it has wrought in our communities.

But we also die and are disabled in far greater proportion than our representation in the population from heart disease, cancer, diabetes, infant mortality, stroke and other diseases in numbers greater than all other minority groups combined.

Our budget not only includes funding to address prevention and treatment for HIV/AIDS and related illnesses, and continue and expands capacity building within communities of color in this country for this disease, it will extend this effort to the international community. Beyond this it will better address some of the glaring infrastructure deficiencies that have caused the epidemic to take root, and the other diseases to have such adverse impact, severely reducing our life expectancy, in our communities in the first place.

Mr. Chairman, responding to our health needs is nothing less than an emergency, and a matter of national security.

We ask our colleagues to consider the CBC request in that light.

More specifically, this budget will include a minimum of $500 million for the CBC Minority HIV/AIDS initiative.

In addition to continuing the programs already started, the increase will allow us to address HIV and AIDS in correctional facilities, increase funding to more vulnerable and at-risk groups, such as women and youth, increase prevention and treatment activities for Syphilis, other sexually transmitted diseases and substance abuse which contribute greatly to this crisis, expand research, increase Medicaid funding to provide treatment at the earlier stages of HIV infection, bring our programs to smaller cities and rural areas, and greatly increase the technical assistance that limited many of our community based organizations from taking advantage of these important resources.

In the broader area of the disparities, we are asking for $162.3 million for REACH—Racial and Ethnic Approach to Community Health—to expand this program beyond the now 32 communities who have been provided the resources to improve their health outcomes. The CBC Budget will also enhance funding for the Health Careers Opportunities Program, and National Health Service Corps to do better outreach and provide scholarships for young people of color to enter health profession schools. We would fully fund the provisions of H.R. 1860, H.R. 2391, and H.R. 3250, to increase access for providers and patients of color into managed care, address the need for data, and diversity training in the health professions, and elevate the Office of Minority Health Research at NIH to a center.

Mr. Chairman, in all this, we have grave concern for the welfare of our children, and are committed to giving them the best possible start in life. The CBC Budget therefore funds the continuation and strengthening of Healthy Start in communities of color and other disadvantaged communities, in the amount of $130 million. This measure also provides, among other things, for increased child care. In this regard our request is above that of the Department, at $917 million.

Our communities are at great risk. The elimination of health disparities in African American communities and other communities of color is one of the most important challenges facing this country.

For the sake of all of those who have been left behind in past centuries, and for the sake of a fairer and healthier nation, I ask my colleagues to support the CBC budget.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Montana (Mr. HILL).

Mr. HILL of Montana. I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, I have only had the privilege of serving in this House for 4 years. Over these 4 years we have had this annual budget debate. What I have noticed is that my Democratic colleagues have come to the floor every one of those 4 years, and they have predicted doom and gloom over the Republican budget. They are the most pessimistic group of people I have ever met in my life.

When Republicans 4 years ago said that we wanted to balance the budget, this group cried crocodile tears saying that we were going to create great hardship in America. But they were wrong when they said that budget would threaten seniors. They were wrong when they said that budget would threaten Social Security. They were wrong when they said that budget would threaten the economy. The fact is the economy is now stronger, Social Security is more secure than ever, Medicare is more solvent than it has been in over a decade; and we are doing more to educate our children today than we ever have.

Just last year when Republicans said we were going to set aside 100 percent of Social Security for Social Security, they said that was impossible. But we did it. Some of those who were so strong in their opposition now cannot wait to stand in line to take credit for that effort. Two years ago, we said we could lower taxes and we could keep the economy growing. They said that tax cut was irresponsible, some said it was a risky scheme; and they said it would undermine government. They were wrong again.

I asked my constituents what should we do with this surplus. Here is what they said. They said protect Social Security so that Congress cannot raid it ever again in the future. They said pay down the debt. This budget pays down $1 trillion of the debt in 5 years, and pays it off entirely by the year 2015. They said to me, let us modernize Medicare. We have made it solvent now till the middle of the next decade, but let us modernize it. This budget sets aside $40 billion to do that. And then they said, let us make the Tax Code fairer than it has been. Get rid of this marriage penalty and the unfair death tax that is out there.

But bigger government and higher taxes were never on that list. But one or the other of every one of the Democrat alternatives either raises taxes or cuts Medicare or puts more IOUs in the Social Security Trust Fund, and that is wrong. They are wrong again. I say reject all of these Democrat plans and support the Republican budget.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

(Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, the budget we are trying to accomplish here has six very simple principles. We have been talking about these six principles today, but I want to talk about the Social Security portion of our budget, the most important aspect of this budget. This budget with Social Security starts on the work we tried to accomplish last year. If Members recall last year, Mr. Chairman, the President sent us a budget that said he would take 38 percent of the Social Security surplus out of Social Security to spend on the creation of other government programs, 120 to be specific, and keep 62 percent of the Social Security surplus in Social Security. Last year we said, no, that is not enough. One hundred percent of Social Security should go to Social Security. We, in fact, did that.

But last year during consideration of this budget resolution, many Members from the other side of the aisle were actually saying we were raiding Social Security, we were taking money out of Social Security. So what actually happened last year? We heard the rhetoric, and we are hearing it again today. Let us dispense with the rhetoric and look at the results. The results are that for the first time in a generation, this Congress actually stopped the raid on Social Security. If we look at the year 1999, last year, we stopped raiding Social Security. This year, in the year 2000, we stopped raiding Social Security. What we are trying to accomplish is to forever stop the raid on the Social Security Trust Fund with this budget, make sure that every penny of Social Security taxes actually go to Social Security.

I am going to be bringing a piece of legislation to the floor later with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the chairman of the Committee on the Budget, to pass a law to make sure that we never again go back to the days of raiding the Social Security Trust Fund and so that we take that money to pay back the debt we owe to Social Security and pay off the national public debt.

If we take a look at the President's plan, the President tries to give the illusion that he is actually increasing the solvency of Social Security; but what the President's plan actually only does, and I would like to add the Spratt budget's plan as well, is take the Social Security government credit card and add more money to the credit card limit. They are putting more IOUs into the Social Security Trust Fund, not committing an additional penny to paying benefits to Social Security. But they are simply saying, put more IOUs, raise the credit card limit to Social Security and hope the problem goes away.

Mr. Chairman, we need results. We need legislation that actually stops the raiding of Social Security. We need to pass this budget resolution.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I want to stand in strong support of the Congressional Black Caucus budget. This substitute shows that supporting good fiscal policy does not have to mean excluding low-wage workers, the poor, communities of color and African Americans. This budget increases domestic spending by 50 percent and spends 25 percent less on defense by cutting waste, fraud and abuse.

Let me highlight what we have proposed in the areas of housing and also in order to end the HIV/AIDS crisis abroad. First, the Congressional Black Caucus addresses these issues by investing $1 billion more for section 8 housing, $100 million more for the community development block grant program, and $350 million more for the HOME program. We also invest over $1 billion over 5 years to stop the spread of HIV and AIDS in countries hardest hit in sub-Saharan Africa and the Caribbean.

□ 1845

It funds H.R. 3519, the World Bank AIDS Marshal Trust Fund Plan. And we passed that last week out of the House Banking Committee. I stand in strong support for the CBC alternative.

Mr. Chairman, I commend my colleagues for their vision and leadership in bringing this to the floor.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Massachusetts (Mr. FRANK).

Mr. FRANK of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

I congratulate the caucus for a budget that very well represents what the priorities ought to be. We have a very wealthy Nation now. We have a greater degree of power disparity between the United States militarily and the rest of the world than we have ever seen in our history.

What this budget does is to make a sensible, prudent reduction in the amount of money spent on the military so that we can deal with the real threats to America's security to the problems of health, poverty, inadequate education. We have a real deadlock in this country right now. We have people telling us that we ought to participate more enthusiastically in the international economy for the World Trade Organizations and elsewhere.

As long as grave disparities persist within this country, as long as lower-income people, people working at the low end of the skill level feel threatened by it, we are not going to be able to go forward. This budget takes a very big set of steps forward towards creating within the United States by reducing the excess that the military has gotten the kind of social stability that we need as a framework for going forward.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). The gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN) has 4½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS) has 10½ minutes remaining.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE).

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time.

I would first like to compliment the Congressional Black Caucus on their budget. Every year since I have been in Congress, the CBC has come forward with a budget. It is not easy to do; but every single year, you have in a very responsible way outlined your priorities.

And, in fact, it has always amazed me that you have been able to do a better job than even, in some instances, over the last 7 years than our President has been able to do in outlining the priorities that you happen to believe in and putting real numbers with those priorities.

Your numbers add up. The concern I have with the President's budget, and it is probably the reason why the Congressional Black Caucus and so many others are providing substitute amendments is they do not agree with the priorities that the President has laid out. We did not agree with that either.

We felt it was important to protect 100 percent of the Social Security Trust Fund; to strengthen Medicare and provide a real prescription drug benefit within that; to retire the public debt entirely; to promote tax fairness for families, farmers, seniors; to restore America's defense, and to do it in a way that recognizes that people do come first; and strength for support for education and science.

Let me just talk about Medicare, because I think this is the one that probably is the most different. We have heard so many folks run to the floor today to talk about how their plan looks exactly like the Republicans, and there is a reason, because when the Democrats or through the President provided their original proposal, what we found out is that the way they paid for a prescription drug benefit was by cutting Medicare.

You cut Medicare in one side to pay for increases in another side, and those increases did not even take effect to the fourth year. So the President held this great Rose Garden ceremony and had a great 96-minute State of the Union address; and he said how we were all going to have prescription drug benefit and then didn't fund it in the budget he proposed 2 weeks later.

So I can understand why you would come forward with a substitute amendment, a substitute amendment that hopefully does not cut, as the President does, the kidney program, the hospital payments. As I said to a gentleman earlier today, you cannot close hospitals around this country and extend a prescription drug benefit and call that health care.

If my hospital in my hometown of Manchester, Iowa, closes, that is a 30-minute drive for everybody who lives in my town for every emergency that occurs in that town, and you can add up your own miles and minutes that that would occur. You cannot cut hospitals to give a prescription drug benefit. That is why we reject the President's budget, and I believe that is why you do, too.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Illinois. Mr. Chairman, we all know that budgets really are about priorities. And this budget presented by the Congressional Black Caucus speaks to the needs of millions of Americans who, in many instances, are left behind and left out of the great economic expansion we are experiencing.

It speaks to the needs of the 165,000 people in my congressional direct who live at or below the poverty line and millions of others throughout America. It speaks to the needs of individuals living in public housing and low-income communities. This budget is compassionate, comprehensive, and balanced.

This budget would provide 250 million additional dollars for community and migrant health centers who do an outstanding job of providing health care for the poor.

In reality, Mr. Chairman, this budget protects Medicare, Social Security, and small businesses and provides a prescription drug benefit for older Americans.

It lifts a lot of those considered to be at the bottom of the economic ladder, the working poor, children, older Americans. I am proud to support it and urge its adoption.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, might I clarify, we do have the right to close, is that correct? We may end up having 1 minute or 1½ minutes that we will be able to yield over. We will go through our speakers and see how much time we do have.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman is correct, he does have the right to close.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU).

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, the preceding speakers on this side talked a little bit about the vision and the values that are embodied in the Republican budget, setting aside every penny of Social Security, paying down debt. The gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE) talked about the importance of setting aside $40 billion, not just to cover prescription drug benefits but to improve and strengthen the Medicare system as well.

We have heard about the investments that we think are important to make in education and in defense and in basic science, and, of course, the tax relief that is in this budget, to make the Tax Code more fair and to reduce taxes for all Americans. And, unfortunately, that is one of the real shortcomings of the alternative being offered here, not only does it not lower taxes, it increases taxes, and that is just the wrong direction to take the country.

Let us, in fact, look where we have come over the past few years, even while cutting taxes. Under this Republican Congress, we have seen the public debt begin to decrease. We are actually making payments against the debt held by the public, reducing that debt and increasing America's financial security.

We can see clearly the red, increases in debt year after year under a Democrat Congress. The tide was turned in 1998. Shortly after we had a Republican Congress, clearly the amount of debt was lower and lower in 1996, 1997. And what has happened over the past 4 years? What a turn around. In 1998, we paid down over $50 billion in debt; 1999 paid down over $80 billion in debt; and in fact, with this Republican budget that is here on the floor today, we will reduce the debt held by the public $450 billion over just 4 years.

It gets even better, because over the next 5 years we will pay down a trillion dollars in public debt, reducing the public debt, keeping interest rates low, even while making the Tax Code more fair, eliminating death tax provisions, giving health insurance deductibility for those that are self-employed.

Those are the values that are embodied in the Republican budget, and that is why we should reject this alternative and support the resolution.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, if there is no objection, we have 1½ minutes of our time we can yield to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN) and allow him to distribute it.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Connecticut?

There was no objection.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, that means that according to my records we have 5 minutes left?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. That is correct.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, my understanding is we have 4½ minutes remaining?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. That is correct.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Maryland (Mr. WYNN).

Mr. WYNN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN) for yielding, and I also recognize the hard work of the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. THOMPSON) and the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS).

Mr. Chairman, I would like to rise in strong support of the CBC budget. The Congressional Black Caucus gives a progressive vision with an emphasis on education. We need to look to our future, and that means protecting education for our children. The CBC budget emphasizes an increase for Head Start to help our youngest children; an increase in Pell grants to help young people who are trying to go to college; and, critically, an increase in the 21st century schools programs that will enable us to provide care for young people after school to address the problem of crime and violence.

This is a progressive vision of a budget that will work for all Americans. I urge support of the CBC budget.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. BROWN).

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Chairman, America's veterans are not just Function 700 of the budget. They are the men and women who put their lives on the line protecting our freedom, and they need to be made a priority now, when they need our help the most.

I will never understand how Republicans can offer billions of dollars of tax cuts while our veterans are struggling for the services in health care that we promised them. The CBC budget offers our veterans the service that they have earned. It provides additional funds for medical research, nursing home construction, and the Montgomery GI bill, and the VA Center for Minority Veterans.

Mr. Chairman, we talk about a surplus; but we cannot have a surplus when we have not paid our bills. We owe the veterans. We should make them a priority, and I urge the support of the CBC budget substitute.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PAYNE).

(Mr. PAYNE asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, since we have such little time, we have heard about the domestic priorities which I support, I would just like to say that in light of the flooding in Mozambique we have requested $320 million to the Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance to support in that emergency. Also we are asking for emergency supplemental of $1.6 billion for the HIPC countries hit by the floods, such as Mozambique, South Africa, Madagascar, Zimbabwe, and Zambia.

We also ask to restore the Development Fund for Africa to $804 million. This budget also provides an additional $100 million for the African Development Fund; $10 million for the Great Lakes Initiative, designed to build a credible and impartial system of justice in that region. We support an additional $200 million for AIDS through the World Bank; $60 million for economic development to support democratic institutions in Haiti; and $1 million to support bilateral/multilateral efforts in Papua New Guinea and to help the United Nations administration resolve the conflict on the island of Bougainville.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, we are evaluating all of the budgets based on six basic principles. One is to protect Social Security surpluses. Another is to provide for prescription drugs. Another is to retire debt. Another is to promote tax fairness. Another is to restore America's defense and strengthen education, science and health care. That is why we oppose the budget that is coming before us.

With regards to tax cuts, we want to provide an end to the marriage penalty tax, repeal Social Security earnings limits, reduce the death tax, expand educational savings accounts, increase health care deductibility, provide tax breaks for poor communities, and strengthen private pensions.

The President regretfully came in with a gross tax increase of $96 billion. Republicans have no tax increase. This tax increase results in the fact that next year the President would increase taxes $10 billion; we would cut taxes $10 billion.

Finally, over 5 years, the President has a net tax cut of $5 billion. We have over $200 billion of tax relief.

The reason we have that is we want a marriage penalty tax elimination. We want to eliminate and phase out the death tax. We have educational savings accounts. We would have health care deductibility. We had community renewal and we want pension reform.

The bottom line for us is that we need to get our country's financial house in order. A tax cut is part of it. We are cutting down and reducing debt. We are saving Social Security. We are providing $200 billion in the next 5 years for a tax cut.

☐ 1830

It is only 2 percent of all revenues that are going to come in, $10 trillion, and we are asking this Congress to accept the fact that the taxpayers deserve a break of $200 billion in the next 5 years.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire of the Chair the time remaining?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. SHIMKUS). Each side has 2½ minutes remaining.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON).

Ms. EDDIE BERNICE JOHNSON of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of this substitute, and especially call attention to the section dealing with the National Science Foundation and NASA, which is the area that will have the potential of closing the digital divide. I will point out that the President's recommendations clearly took care of this area.

This is not a substitute for the President's proposal, it is a substitute for the Republican's proposal. If the President's proposal had been presented here today, we would have very little alteration to it.

So I rise in support of this substitute, in lieu of the fact that we have to speak on behalf of the people.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Chairman, the Congressional Black Caucus alternative budget is fiscally sound and family fair. It continues our stride towards debt elimination, one of those principles, while making a stand against poverty. It protects Social Security and Medicare, while giving priority to our families and our children.

Mr. Chairman, we are experiencing the longest economic expansion in the history of the United States. However, many people are left out of that. Housing is an example of that. In fact, The Washington Post said that people are sleeping in their cars making $60,000.

Mr. Chairman, in our proposal there is a reasonable proposal in section 8, $100 million, and it could go into $1 billion, and you could buy homes. That is the way you accumulate wealth.

Mr. Chairman, The Congressional Black Caucus Alternative Budget is fiscally sound and family fair.

It continues our stride towards debt elimination, while making a stand against poverty.

It protects Social Security and Medicare while giving priority to our families and our children.

Mr. Chairman, we are experiencing the longest economic expansion in the history of the United States.

However, despite this rosy economic picture, many are being left out.

One sign of this dichotomy is in the area of housing.

It should concern all of us that, according to a recent report in the Washington Post, a man earning Sixty Thousand Dollars a year can not afford housing in Silicon Valley.

He sleeps in his car.

The headline in a recent edition of the Christian Science Monitor is equally alarming, ''Hot economy, but more homelessness''.

Housing is basic.

Housing affects every person alive on this earth.

Everyone has to live somewhere.

The lack of adequate housing is a problem, but the lack of affordable housing is an even greater problem.

A growing number of poor households have been left to compete for a shrinking supply of affordable housing.

The Congressional Black Caucus Alternative Budget addresses this problem, and we do so without any new spending. No offsets are required.

In our Budget, we shift $100 Million of Section 8 Voucher Funds to a cash assistance program.

This program would be used to promote home ownership, and thereby, stabilize families, help create wealth and ultimately reduce the dependency on Section 8 funds.

Moreover, when leveraged against private sector dollars, this program is valued at least ten times the amount of the investment.

One Hundred Million Dollars multiplies to a Billion Dollars.

Mr. Chairman, housing is the most important asset for wealth accumulation.

Home ownership is a good way to ease ''Cost-burden.''

Home ownership instills pride in a family.

Home ownership provides dignity.

When one owns a home, they are more likely to take care of it, maintain it and keep it clean and presentable.

The Congressional Black Caucus Alternative Budget embodies prudent economic policies while putting people as priority. It deserves our support.

THE NATION'S ECONOMY IS ROBUST

The economy of the United States is strong and robust, however, the challenge of the Congressional Black Caucus to find ways to have more citizens benefit from the growth we are currently experiencing.

We are experiencing the longest economic expansion in the history of the United States. We have gone from record federal deficits to record surpluses. 20 million new jobs have been created in the last eight years, and we currently have the highest overall home ownership rate ever, the lowest unemployment rate in 30 years and the lowest poverty rate in 20 years. Based upon current projections, we can expect to eliminate the federal debt in ten years. In 1992, when my Class entered Congress, we faced a $290 billion deficit that was on the rise and spiralling out of control. Today, we are anticipating a surplus in the unified budget of almost $3 trillion over the next ten years and to eliminating the federal debt by the year 2015.

YET, MANY ARE BEING LEFT OUT

For at least twenty years, however, there has been a troubling trend emerging—a trend that affects the quality of life for many Americans. Income and wealth inequality—the disparity in incomes and wealth due to wages, accumulated wealth, equity, investments and returns, etc.—has increased in intensity. As a result of this trend, those who have more end up getting more, while those who have less end up merely treading water, or in some instances, getting less.

This is a disturbing trend because, even in this time of prosperity, many Americans still cannot afford to purchase healthy meals for their families night after night or afford decent housing or health care. Many still cannot afford education expenses and other means needed to better their lives. This is a disturbing trend because slightly less than one-third of Americans remain poor; many remain hungry; many remain homeless.

John C. Weicher, a Senior Fellow at the Hudson Institute notes that, ''Wealth is much more concentrated than income.'' The top 1 percent of U.S. households own roughly one-third of total household net worth, yet receive roughly 10 percent of income. On the other hand, some 20 percent of the poorest households have no net worth, and a few percent have negative net worth.

But, the most troubling aspect of this trend is that income and wealth inequality is often influenced by Government Policy—what Government does and does not do. This has been documented by reliable sources—the Internal Revenue Service, the Census Bureau, the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities and the Federal Reserve Board, among others.

WHAT IS THE TREND?

''By 1997, one Man, Bill Gates, was worth about as much as the 40 million American households at the bottom of the wealth distribution!''

According to Edward N. Wolff, a Professor of Economics at New York University and a leading authority on income and wealth inequality. ''In the 1970s, the level of wealth inequality in the United States was comparable to that of other, developed, industrialized countries.'' Since 1983, however, those with incomes in top 5 percent have steadily accumulated wealth and grown income. Persons with incomes in the lower brackets, however, have steadily fallen behind in wealth accumulation and income growth. As a consequence, according to Professor Wolff, the United States has now become the most unequal society with respect to the distribution of wealth among industrialized nations.

This inequality is reflected in the raw income and wealth data as well as by the inequity's apparent social impact. Recent Survey of Consumer Finances information assembled by the Federal Reserve Board, illustrates that the ''mean'' household net worth—adding together the net worth of the rich and poor alike, and then finding an average value—is close to $250,000. However, the ''median'' household net worth—ranking net worth values and finding the very middle value in the overall distribution—is slightly more than $60,000.

To further illustrate, in 1983, the top 1 percent of our population held 34 percent of total net worth, while the bottom 40 percent held .9 percent. Since then, the share of the top 1 percent has grown to nearly 40 percent, while the share of the bottom 40 percent has declined, to .2 of one percent. In 1998 dollar values, mean net worth of the top 1 percent was more than $7 million and has now grown to almost $8 million. On the other hand, the mean net worth of the bottom 40 percent was $47,000 in 1983, and currently has declined to $10,000—a precipitous decline in net worth!

Professor Edward Wolff in noting the trend toward the greater concentration of wealth, is mindful of the racial implications of this trend. More than 95 percent of the top one percent of wealth holders are White. Less than 1 percent are Black. Asians represent about 4 percent of the top one percent of wealth holders. The wealthiest 20 percent of households own 84 percent of the Nation's wealth. The top 2.7 million Americans—mostly White Americans—have as much income as the bottom 100 million persons in the Nation, which encompasses a sizeable portion of Black Americans. This wealth gap will likely continue to grow, especially if our economy remains strong and prosperous. The Center on Budget and Policy Priorities has concluded that both the top 2 percent and the top 20 percent of households are projected to receive a larger share of the after-tax income in the United States than in any previous year since data began to be collected.

WAGES ARE THE MOST IMPORTANT FACTOR AFFECTING INCOME

There is a close association between wealth and income. Income, however, is largely driven by wages. Moreover, there is greater inequality in the distribution of wages than in the distribution of income generally. Yet, while employment has been growing and unemployment falling, hourly wages—taking inflation into account—have remained stagnant. Due to the fact that wages have remained relatively stagnant, the overall gap in income distribution has widened.

WHITES EARN MORE AND HAVE MORE THAN BLACKS

More than one-fifth of Black households, about 21 percent, have incomes under $10,000 per year. Another 30 percent of Blacks have annual incomes above $10,000 but below $25,000. Thus, more than half of Black households have incomes below $25,000. On the other hand, only 11 percent of all Americans have incomes under $10,000, while 22 percent of all Americans have incomes between $10,000 and $25,000. The per capita income of all White Americans is $20,425, while the per capita income of Black Americans is $12,351. Asian Americans have a per capita income of $18,226, while Hispanics, the only group below Blacks, have a per capita income of $10,773.

THERE IS A RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN EDUCATION, INCOME, AND WEALTH

More education generally means more income and more wealth. Those with more schooling generally experience fewer bouts with unemployment and have higher earnings. Male college graduates today earn 92 percent more, on average, than male high school graduates. This compares to thirty years ago, when male college graduates earned 50 percent more than their high school counterparts. Female college graduates have a similar earnings advantage over those females with only a high school diploma. This advantage grew from 41 percent in 1970 to 76 percent in 1998.

While education generally means higher earnings, Black men and women college graduates do not always fare as well as White men and women college graduates. And, for women, Black or White, income disparities remain between them and their male counterparts.

HOUSING AN IMPORTANT ASSET FOR INCREASING WEALTH

Owner-occupied housing is the single most important asset that increases wealth. Indeed, almost two-thirds of the wealth of the bottom eighty percent of households is invested in their home. Yet, in the past decade, the percentage of owner-occupied housing as it relates to all assets has declined from more than 30 percent in 1990 to less than 24 percent in 1998. Mortgage debt has increased, from 21 percent of the value of homeowners' property in 1983, to 36 percent in 1995. This increase in debt relates to income and wealth inequality. Inasmuch as debt accounts for less than 10 percent of the assets of the top 1 percent of the population, it accounts for 71.7 percent of the bottom 80 percent of the population.

WHAT ARE SOME PROBLEMS RELATED TO INCOME AND WEALTH INEQUALITY?

Children are affected the most

Until 1993, there had been a steady decline in the number of children in poverty. This decline however, has slowed markedly, and worse yet, the children who remain in poverty are becoming poorer. Changes in government policies and practices have had severe impacts on children. Food stamps and cash assistance to families have in the past, been a vital part of helping to reduce the stinging pain of poverty. However, according to the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, in 1995, 88 children received food stamps for every 100 who were poor, while 57 children received cash assistance for every 100 such poor children. By 1998, only 72 out of 100 poor children received food stamps, and only 41 out of 100 poor children received cash assistance—the lowest proportion since 1970.

Housing is often not affordable or available

The lack of adequate housing is a problem, but the lack of affordable housing is an even greater problem. A growing number of poor households have been left to compete for a shrinking supply of affordable housing. Studies indicate that a dearth of some 4 million affordable housing units exists in the country.

Also, unfortunately, substandard housing is a way of life for millions across the Nation. As unimaginable as it may seem, in the year 2000, some 3 million renters and another 3 million owners of housing reside in homes without bathrooms or fully equipped kitchens, in homes with poor and dangerous electrical wiring, in homes with falling ceilings and peeling plaster and in homes that have little or no heat in the winter and little or no cooling in the summer. Overcrowding for many remains a harsh reality.

Recently, there have been record lows in mortgage interest rates, leaving many to believe that housing in the United States is more affordable than ever. That is not true. Despite lower mortgage rates, many people are unable to afford to purchase homes. This is because income growth for the poor and working poor has been limited. This group of Americans are ''cost-burdened'' under H.U.D. standards. That is, they spend more than 40 percent of their income for housing. Therefore, many in the ranks of the poor and working poor find themselves on a treadmill to nowhere when it comes to breaking into the home ownership market.

Much attention has been placed on low interest rates and ''affordable'' mortgages, but the rising prices of rental housing have been ignored. Families locked into paying spiraling rental costs have a more difficult time of improving the quality of their lives, lifting themselves up, warding off poverty, main streaming and laying a solid foundation for the future.

Homelessness is on the rise

For too long in America, the homeless have been those we do not want to see. We believed that the homeless were those who wanted to be homeless—vagrants and derelicts who just did not want to work to improve their situations. We now know better. We know that the causes of homelessness are poverty, joblessness, declining incomes, changing family structures and the lack of affordable housing.

While it is hard to obtain an accurate account of the homeless, some estimates suggest that there may be as many as one and a half million who are homeless in America on any given day. They are not vagrants and derelicts. According to a 1996 study by the Urban Institute, about one-fifth of the homeless are families, with children. Many are women, single, female heads of households. The average age of homeless adults is mid to late thirties. Many of the homeless have been jobless longer than they have been homeless. The homeless, in urban areas primarily, are also disproportionately minority. According to one estimate, 54 percent of the homeless are nonwhite persons.

The average homeless person experienced a range of health difficulties. More than half had at least one major health problem. Lethal problems like HIV/AIDS and tuberculosis occur with uncommon frequency among the homeless. At least half have had a problem with the debilitating diseases of alcohol and drug abuse. It is no wonder then that more than half of the homeless have suffered from depression and demoralization, many have a history of mental hospitalization. Suicide attempts, far too many, is a way of life. Homeless women with children are five times more likely to attempt suicide than other adults. Almost half of the homeless have answered this Nation's call in the Armed Services of the United States. A large number of these veterans, who happen to be homeless, suffer from post-traumatic stress disorder.

WHAT CAN THE CBC DO TO ADDRESS THESE CONCERNS?

While we cannot and must not rely solely on the Federal Government as the solution to our problems, we must be prepared to push our federal partners to provide more help with this problem. This pushing will not be easy, however, we know that the best way to stabilize our communities is by increasing home ownership and by providing a sufficient stock of affordable housing.

In July of last year, we convened our first Regional Housing Summit. There in Charlotte, North Carolina, we pledged to try to help create a million new African American homeowners. Home ownership is a good fundamental way to generate equity and wealth. Home ownership instills a sense of pride and dignity in families and communities alike. When people own homes, they are more likely to establish strong ties and commitments to the community, and because of those ties, are more inclined to become civically engaged.

One of the greatest barriers to home ownership, however, is credit. According to recent reports, a disproportionate number of African Americans are especially burdened by what the industry deems as ''bad credit.'' Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac have exercised important leadership in dealing with credit problems many African Americans face. This is the kind of leadership we need as we begin this new millennium.

So, what do we have to do? First, we need to join together and push the public and private sectors to help resolve the ''hurricane-like'' housing situations that African Americans face each and every day.

Second, we have to fight to preserve Section 8 Housing and to increase funding for the Community Development Block Grant Program—the largest source of federal funding for housing. We need to protect the Community Reinvestment Act—an act that has played a critical role in improving housing. We need to be strong advocates for the full funding of the Shelter Plus Care Program. Let us push for improvement in the Section 202/811 GAP Funding Program. Let us ensure that Congress extends the HOPE Six Program. Let us vow that our elderly are properly housed. We must push for adequate funding for Empowerment Zones and Enterprise Communities. If we advocate and fight for the provisions listed above, we will have taken measurable steps toward bringing more African Americans into the fold of home ownership and decent housing.

EXAMPLES OF RELATED GOVERNMENT POLICIES AND PRACTICES WE CAN INFLUENCE

Increasing the minimum wage or restructuring tax rates are obvious ways to increase income for those who have less. There are, however, other actions we can seek, actions that in some cases may be more achievable. The mortgage deduction program in the United States is an $83 billion program. Again, however, the largest beneficiaries of this program are those with more income and wealth. Those with less income and wealth get fewer benefits from this program Some $53 billion of the mortgage deduction program benefit those in the higher income brackets. The other $30 billion benefits those in the remaining income brackets. Thus, persons earning $40,000 and below get minimal benefits from the program.

Do persons like Bill Gates really need to participate in the mortgage deduction program? What harm would it do to the rich—what good might it do the working class—if the mortgage deduction program were changed to exclude those with incomes of a quarter of a million dollars or more and to ensure substantive benefits for those with incomes of $40,000 or less? The answer is no harm, but a lot of good!

Another example relates to how we spend money for housing programs. The President is seeking additional funds for Section 8 vouchers, and that, on its face, is a good thing. However, we have had generation upon generation of families, dislocated from the rest of society, isolated in public housing and, very often, dependent upon the government to provide them with a relatively decent place to live. Why not take some of those Section 8 funds and provide a suitable amount of cash assistance to these families—assistance that can be used to finance homes! If we do that, these families can begin the process of reducing their reliance on government and take the first step toward accumulating equity and wealth.

Investing in education can produce similar results. Education is a major contributor to net worth. According to reports, the average wealth of college graduates is 2.5 times the wealth of those with only a high school diploma. Moreover, a better educated population means a stronger and better work force, well into the future. We must develop programs and policies that provide lower income and working families with affordable educational options for our children.

For too long, the rich have gotten richer and the poor have gotten poorer, and America is less well off because of that trend. We, in the Congressional Black Caucus must work to reverse this trend. This rising tide of economic prosperity must lift many more boats. That is why it is important that we present and push an Alternative Budget. In so doing, we can send a critical message and lay the foundation for the enactment of authorizing and appropriations language that will impact Government policies and practices that will begin to reverse the severity of existing income and wealth inequality trends. By presenting and pushing an Alternative Budget, we can force policies and measures that benefit all of society, not just those who are better off.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Florida (Mrs. MEEK).

(Mrs. MEEK of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the only budget that has been submitted that will help the conscience of the American people.

Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Congressional Black Caucus' (CBC) substitute budget for FY 2001. Included in the CBC budget is an allocation for $150 million in support of lupus research and the delivery of lupus services. These funds will help to expand and intensify the research efforts of the NIH to diagnose, treat, and eventually cure lupus.

Lupus attacks the immune system. A patient's immune system loses its ability to tell the difference between foreign substances and the patient's own cells. As a result, the patient's immune system makes antibodies which end up attacking the patient's immune system. This can result in debilitating pain and fatigue, making it difficult for lupus victims to maintain employment and lead normal lives. Lupus can be fatal if not detected and treated early.

Thousands of women with lupus die each year. Lupus afflicts women nine times more than it does men, and has its most significant impact on women during the childbearing years. About 1.4 million Americans have some form of Lupus—one out of every 185 Americans. As estimated 1 in 250 African American women between the ages of 15 and 65 develop lupus.

Perhaps the most discouraging aspect of lupus for sufferers and family members is the fact that there is no cure. Lupus is devastating not only to the victim, but to family members as well. Research, treatment, education and financial support are essential so that we can help victims and their families cope until we are able to conquer this terrible disease.

I urge my colleagues to join us in providing this essential support for persons suffering from lupus and vote in favor of the CBC budget.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. HASTINGS).

(Mr. HASTINGS of Florida asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HASTINGS of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of this fundamentally fair and morally principled budget.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentleman from California (Ms. WATERS).

(Ms. WATERS asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the substitute budget.

I rise to support the alternative budget resolution presented by the Congressional Black Caucus (CBC). In particular, the CBC's alternative is significant for the funding allocated in the International Affairs portion of the budget resolution.

Between the fiscal years 2001 and 2005, the CBC budget resolution would allocate $43 billion more to International Affairs compared to the Republican budget resolution. This would provide essential funding to institutions such as the African Development Bank, the African Development Fund, the Child Survival and Disease Fund, and the Peace Corps.

This additional funding is critical particularly to ensure full funding for debt relief for heavily indebted poor countries.

Today, I am introducing the Limpopo River Debt Relief and Reconstruction Act to provide assistance to Mozambique and other countries of southern Africa that have been devastated by recent floods.

The Limpopo River Debt Relief and Reconstruction Act would completely cancel the debts owed by these countries to the United States and provide assistance for the repair and reconstruction of damaged infrastructure in these countries. Limpopo River Debt Relief and Reconstruction funding is essential to enable Mozambique and other southern African countries to provide for the needs of their people, repair their damaged infrastructure and rebuild their economies.

Debt relief is desperately needed by many other heavily indebted poor countries as well. The governments of these countries have been forced to make drastic cuts in basic services such as health and education in order to make payments on their debts.

Nigeria, for example, is a deeply impoverished country that would receive tremendous benefits from debt relief. Nigeria's per capita income is only $300 per year and the country spends no more than $5 per person per year on health services. Without debt relief, Nigeria's fragile democracy is in danger of collapse. Debt cancellation will give Nigeria a fresh start and a sound basis for a democratic future.

For these and many other important reasons, I urge my colleagues to support the Congressional Black Caucuses' alternative budget.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as she may consume to the gentlewoman from Ohio (Mrs. JONES).

(Mrs. JONES of Ohio asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. JONES of Ohio. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Congressional Black Caucus alternative budget.

Mr. CLYBURN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the other side for being so generous with their time this afternoon.

Mr. Chairman, to close this debate, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. THOMPSON), who sort of put this whole thing together for us.

(Mr. THOMPSON asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. THOMPSON of Mississippi. Mr. Chairman, first of all, let me thank the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN) for his leadership in directing the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) and myself to prepare this budget. This budget, as you have heard, clearly reflects the priorities of the Congressional Black Caucus. Those priorities reflect our district.

For too long this economic upswing has missed a lot of the people we represent. So our budget, offered in the nature of a substitute, clearly directs the resources of this country to those individuals who have been left out.

Mr. Chairman, this budget will increase the education budget over $10 billion. We have to do something about educating our children.

In addition to this, we have to work on housing. The gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON) talked about a housing initiative for home ownership. We support that home ownership initiative.

More than that, Mr. Chairman, this budget is a balanced budget. Unlike many budgets of the past, we understand fiscal integrity. So what we have offered, in addition to this balanced budget, is one that also provides modest tax cuts for working Americans.

Mr. Chairman, we also protect Social Security, Medicare, and, yes, we pay down on the national debt.

Mr. Chairman, the Congressional Black Caucus budget is a reasonable budget, and one I urge all my colleagues to support.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), the vice chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I, too, want to take a minute to commend the Black Caucus for putting this budget together and setting their priorities right. I have an historic black college in my district, Fort Valley State University, which I am very proud to represent and work very closely with those folks individually as well as through the university system to ensure their priorities are addressed. I have any number of good friends who are members of this caucus, and we appreciate the hard work that you all have done.

I want to talk for just a minute and remind folks again why we deem our budget to be the best. First of all, we are going to save and continue to protect Social Security by setting aside 100 percent of the Social Security surplus to pay the beneficiaries of Social Security. We are going to strengthen Medicare to include a prescription drug provision. We are going to retire the public debt. We are going to set it on course to be retired by 2013. In this budget, over the next 5 years we are going to retire $1 trillion worth of debt.

We are going to promote tax fairness for families, for small business people, for farmers, and for seniors. We are going to restore America's defense, and we are going to strengthen support for education and science.

I want to take just a minute to refer back to the defense budget that the President has submitted and show again what we have done with respect to plussing up the President's defense budget over the last 5 years. The red line represents the President's proposed budget. The blue line represents what we in this Congress have passed. The majority has made a real commitment to the defense of this country, and we continue to do so in this budget.

There is one particular provision that I want to make reference to that has an effect on everybody in this room, and it is the provision on impact aid. If you live near a military reservation, a military base of any sort, and you do not get the appropriate impact aid for your school system, then the ad valorem taxpayers in that jurisdiction wind up paying a penalty.

So what the President has done every year that this majority has been in Congress is to come in with a reduction in his budget for impact aid. What that is is a hidden tax on the landowners or everybody who resides close to a military base. We have got to have impact aid going to the school districts where our children are educated if they are going to get the quality education that we demand.

So what we have done over the last 5 years, what we again do in our budget this year, is to plus up the President's budget from an impact aid standpoint, so that we can ensure that all children, irrespective of whether their parents are in the military or not, will be able to get the quality of education that we dictate and demand.

I urge a ''no'' vote on the Black Caucus budget and a ''yes'' vote on the Republican budget.

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the substitute amendment to H. Con. Res. 290 offered by Representative CLYBURN.

In particular, I offer my enthusiastic support for the $225.5 million in funding the substitute provides to the National Telecommunications and Information Agency (NTIA). NTIA administers many important programs designed to begin closing the Digital Divide—the gap between those with access to the Internet and information technologies and those without. NTIA will also be active next year in encouraging meaningful improvements to the Nation's telecommunications infrastructure by giving directed research and program grants.

Mr. Chairman, I am encouraged that the Clyburn substitute allocates $97.5 million to NTIA's Digital Divide cluster of programs. The centerpiece of this cluster of programs is the allocation of $45.1 million to fund grants for the Technology Opportunities Program. The Technology Opportunities Program matches private contributions with government funds to promote the widespread availability of advanced telecommunications technologies. Dollars allocated through this program would be used to purchase equipment for building networks and linking networks to one another, connect communications networks such as the Internet, train people in the use of equipment and software, and purchase telephone links and access to commercial on-line services. With these projects, rural and low-income communities that may not otherwise have the means or opportunity, are able to tap into the wealth of information that is accessible via advanced telecommunications technologies and use this technology to improve the delivery of health care, public safety efforts and other services.

Another important allocation for part of the NTIA's Digital Divide cluster of programs is $50.0 million for the Home Internet Access Program. This new program would provide low-income individuals and families with the connections, training, and support necessary for full participation in today's information economy. The goal of the Home Internet Access program is to bridge the digital divide by providing targeted investments to bring these at-risk populations online.

Mr. Chairman, in addition to closing the Digital Divide, the Clyburn substitute would support NTIA's programs to support critical infrastructure projects. Specifically, the Clyburn substitute allocates $110.1 million for Public Telecommunications Facilities, Planning, and Construction. Grants funded by this allocation would assist communities in purchasing the equipment needed by local public broadcasting organizations to meet the 2003 FCC deadline for public broadcasting organizations to convert to digital transmission.

Mr. Chairman, the Digital Divide is a major socio-economic problem facing our nation today, and it threatens future opportunities for large segments of the population that lack access to the Internet and other new technologies. In the new digital age, it is vital that all Americans have access to the new telecommunications and information technologies, and the Clyburn substitute provides essential funding to meet this challenge.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS) as the designee of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. CLYBURN).

The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 70, noes 348, not voting 16, as follows:

Ms. DEGETTE and Messrs. PALLONE, ADERHOLT and BEREUTER changed their vote from ''aye'' to ''no.''

Messrs. KUCINICH, FARR of California, JACKSON of Illinois, and Mrs. NAPOLITANO changed their vote from ''no'' to ''aye.''

So the amendment in the nature of a substitute was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). It is now in order to consider amendment No. 2 printed in Part B of House Report 106–535.

AMENDMENT NO. 2 IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. DEFAZIO

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Part B Amendment No. 2 in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. DEFAZIO:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001.

The Congress declares that concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001 and that the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2002 through 2005 are hereby set forth.

SEC. 2. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

The following budgetary levels are appropriate for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2005:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution:

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $1,533,703,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,582,252,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,634,316,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,702,913,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,766,406,000,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be reduced are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $0.
Fiscal year 2002: $4,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $10,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $17,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $24,000,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $1,558,245,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,595,233,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,640,506,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,706,914,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,775,092,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $1,502,313,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,566,294,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,616,960,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,682,278,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,752,016,000,000.

(4) SURPLUSES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the surpluses are as follows:

Fiscal year 2001: $31,390,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $15,958,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $17,357,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $20,636,000,000.

SEC. 4. RECONCILIATION.

The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill not later than May 26, 2000, that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to increase the total level of revenues by $9,345,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $151,574,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 446, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, this is a debate about values and priorities. We are setting the scene for the entire spending of the budget of the United States of America, all the billions of dollars in taxes collected from our citizens. We want to see a change in the priorities.

Today, the United States ranks first in military spending. We spend five times as much as our strongest potential adversary, the Russians, who are pretty pathetic. Yet, the United States is tenth, tenth in per capita education spending. If we addressed what the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman KASICH) of the Committee on the Budget referred to earlier as sloppy management at the Pentagon with the 10 percent cut in exotic weapons procurement, keeping whole the readiness budget, keeping whole the housing, personnel, and other budgets, supporting our troops, we could be number one in the world in military spending by four and a half times instead of five times our next adversary.

But we could move from tenth to first in education. We could invest more in health care; in our veterans, fulfilling our obligations to them; infrastructure; schools; clean waters; sewers; transportation; housing. The list goes on.

The Republican budget assumes that all of those things I listed, except for the Pentagon, will be reduced by $19 billion below current levels of spending. Our budget, instead, would raise the levels of spending on education by more than $20 billion over the Republican levels. Health care would be dramatically increased. We would increase veterans over $2 billion over the Republican budget. Infrastructure, schools, clean water, sewers, housing, the list goes on.

This is about priorities, and it is about values, and it is about how we spend our people's money. We are proposing a budget that would spend the money more in line with the values of a majority of the American people.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, it is my pleasure to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA).

Mr. HOEKSTRA. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Georgia for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I think the most important thing that we compare this budget to the budget that the Republicans have proposed is that the Republicans have proposed a balanced, common sense approach.

What will this mean to the average American family? It means that we will have a debt-free Nation for our children. We have balanced the budget. The Republican budget will pay down the $3.6 trillion debt over the next 13 years. It means a more secure future for our seniors. We stop the 30-year raid on Social Security, and we preserve the Social Security surplus into the future.

It means a stronger effort to find cures for cancer and Alzheimer's. We are making a significant commitment to further research in the health area.

It means a safer world and fulfilling our pledge to those who made it that way. We are going to keep our commitment to our veterans.

We increase funding for education. What we do in education is we target those dollars so that, when the Federal dollars get down to the local level, it gives the local entities a maximum amount of flexibility to design the programs that best fit the needs of that community, that school, and the children in that area.

We increase funding for IDEA, the Individuals With Disabilities Education. We increase funding for title VI. This is innovative education programs. This is the most flexible dollars that come to a local school district.

We keep our commitment to defense by ensuring that those communities that have defense installations will get the Federal assistance that they need.

What does this mean? It means that we give local communities maximum flexibility. It is a very different approach than what the President is taking. The President's approach, the Democratic approach, is to develop more programs and run them through a bureaucracy in Washington and force local communities to accept programs that do not necessarily work, in many cases that do not work at all. We are running them through a bureaucracy that for 2 years has failed its audits and has told us that for 2 more years we can expect failed audits. It means that we are running $35 billion through this agency each and every year, and they cannot tell us where the dollars are going.

The Republican budget says and the Republican program says let us get these dollars back to a local community, let us give these dollars to local administrators, to parents and teachers that know the names of our kids.

It is not an issue of spending. It is an issue of getting maximum effectiveness for each and every dollar that we have committed to education.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Vermont (Mr. SANDERS).

Mr. SANDERS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Oregon for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the Progressive Caucus budget. Unlike the Republicans, progressives understand and have developed a budget which addresses the reality that millions of Americans today are working longer hours for lower wages; that this country has, by far, the most unfair distribution of wealth and income in the industrialized world; and that, while the wealthiest people have never had it so good, 20 percent of our children live in poverty, 44 million Americans lack health insurance, and millions more are unable to afford the prescription drugs they need.

This budget understands that many in the middle class are going deeply into debt to be able to send their kids to college and that we must significantly increase funding for education so that every child has the opportunity to succeed.

This budget understands that we do not need to give tax breaks to billionaires, spend huge sums of money on wasteful and unneeded weapons systems, or provide multinational corporations with $125 billion a year in corporate welfare.

Mr. Chairman, the progressive budget addresses two particular outrages that this Congress must deal with. First, we significantly increase funding for the veterans of this country who have put their lives on the line to defend this Nation, and we are proud to do that.

Secondly, this budget in a meaningful way begins to address the horrific Medicare cuts brought about by the so-called Balanced Budget Act of 1997, cuts which have caused terrible reductions in services for the elderly, in hospitals, home health care agencies, and nursing homes.

The bottom line is that when we talk about priorities, we do not give tax breaks to millionaires and billionaires and turn our backs on the elderly, the children, or the veterans. The Progressive Caucus budget is a sensible budget that meets the needs of the middle class and working families of this country and must be passed.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, it is my pleasure to yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. FLETCHER), a member of the Committee on the Budget and also a member of the House Committee on Agriculture.

Mr. FLETCHER. Mr. Chairman, we have heard a lot of rhetoric regarding this progressive budget. But let me say this, as I was listening, if Ronald Reagan had paid attention to this sort of rhetoric and allowed our national security to slip as much as what this progressive budget would be, I could imagine we would still have the Soviet Union, we would still have the Iron Curtain.

But let me talk about what our budget does. It protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus, strengthens Medicare with prescription drugs, $40 billion for that. It retires the publicly held debt by the year 2013. It strengthens education and science, and I want to talk specifically about science. It promotes tax fairness. Eliminating the marriage penalty tax is not to the wealthy, it is a fairness issue. It gets to the very values that we have in eliminating the earnings limit and decreasing the inheritance tax and allow farmers to pass on their farm from one generation to the next. It restores America's defense.

I want to talk a little bit about NIH funding, the National Institutes of Health. As we can see from this chart, we clearly show that the Republican priority over the Clinton-Gore priority and the Democratic priority has been to fund basic research, the kind of research that provides the cures to diseases that affect every family in this country.

Let me read a statement from the NIH: In these final years of the 20th century, we have seen an explosion of progress against cancer. We have begun to gather significant information from programs launched only 2 or 3 years ago, right during the time we increased the funding. With our recent funding increase, we have been able to launch innovative new programs that will have far-reaching effects into the next century.

I think about results from the breast cancer prevention trial, showing that we had a 49 percent reduction in the incident of primary breast cancer during the treatment period in women of high risk for the disease. Things like this that affect every single family in America.

Is there anybody out there that has not been affected by Alzheimer's disease?

We have one of the major centers at the University of Kentucky, the Sanders Brown Center for Aging that does a lot of research on Alzheimer's disease. NIH is very important to that institution providing money to back basic research. One day my hope is that we do not have any family affected by this disease that has such tragic effects.

Because of the increased funding, I am hopeful that one day, because of the Republican priorities, which stand for the values of making sure that we provide the health care for this Nation, that we are going to cure diseases like cancer, diabetes, and Alzheimer's disease.

So I encourage my colleagues to vote against this progressive budget, vote for the Republican budget. It provides the necessary basic dollars for science, education, national defense, paying down the debt, providing real tax relief and fairness, and protecting Social Security.

□ 1915

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. OWENS).

(Mr. OWENS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. OWENS. Mr. Chairman, I begin by congratulating the Progressive Caucus budget for going a long way toward strengthening our defense and our security because they recognize that education is the most important priority of our government.

It is brainpower that will carry us forward in the military sector, the economic sector, whatever. Brainpower. Viewing our schools and our education system as a giant mobilization for whatever the future brings.

In our Republican budget, and even to some degree in the President's budget, we are still making the same error that the Russians made. They were building tanks, millions and millions of tanks, for a war theater that had long ago left tanks behind. We are increasing defense by $17 billion in the Republican budget and increasing it by too much in the President's budget; and we are neglecting the place where we should mobilize for all kinds of contingencies, and that is education.

I want to congratulate the Progressive Caucus budget. I want to say the Blue Dogs' budget is impressive in the area of education. They have increased education in their budget. It is only the Democratic substitute that lags behind and the President that lags behind in terms of understanding that it is brainpower that is going to drive our future.

As we go into a cyber-civilization, where digitalization is the key to all activities, it is ''dot com'' all over the place. We need smarter and smarter people to run our economy.

Social Security is jeopardized if we have a workforce that cannot get out there and generate the income and we have to contract all our income-generating activities to foreign countries which have the people who can run our high-tech society.

We are way behind in our thinking. This was a golden opportunity. I think that we should look at education, defense, and economics as being inextricably interwoven. We cannot separate education out from the rest and education comes first.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. THORNBERRY), a member of the Committee on the Budget and the Committee on Armed Services.

Mr. THORNBERRY. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, anytime we have to try to put together a Federal budget, we have a number of priorities and demands, and we have to try to find the appropriate balance among those different demands and priorities. I think that the budget which the Committee on the Budget has recommended is a far superior budget to the substitute now being offered.

It starts out by making sure that we set aside 100 percent of the money we take from people in social security taxes and not let that money be spent for any other government program. It then goes on to strengthen Medicare and trying to set aside $40 billion so that we can modernize and improve Medicare to include a prescription drug benefit. I think all of us recognize that a system born in the 1960s needs to try to keep up with the changes of health care and this will allow us to do that.

It goes further to retire a billion dollars of debt over the next 5 years, and it will strengthen and increase support for education and science, including vital medical research.

It then has two other important priorities, I think, that are missing from the substitute now before us. The budget recommended by the Committee on the Budget has important provisions to have tax relief for American taxpayers. And I think it is very easy for those of us in Washington to forget whose money it is that we are talking about. We have got to remember that the Federal Government reaches into the pockets of hard-working Americans and takes away from them part of the money that they work hard each day to earn. We have to be sure that if we are going to do that, and take their money out of their pockets, that we spend that money better than they. I think that is a very difficult test for us to meet.

Federal taxes are now higher than they have been at any time since World War II, and one of the priorities of this budget is to allow people to keep more of the money that they earn.

Finally, this budget also has a priority to restore America's defenses. I believe that the first function, really, of the Federal Government, is to defend the country. So we have a 6 percent increase in defense spending, $1 billion more than the President.

Our armed forces are committed all around the world. Some of us would not choose to have those same commitments, but the fact is they are there. Texas National Guard people are today on station in Bosnia. And while I wish they were not there, it is essential that we provide them everything that they need to do their job.

But in addition to making sure we keep the commitments we have today around the world, we have to prepare for the future, and that means some investment; that means research; that means developing new kinds of systems to help protect us from incoming ballistic missiles, to help fight against the spreading of nuclear, chemical, biological and radiological weapons that are going all across the world.

It means we have to be prepared to deal with new kinds of threats, threats with computers and threats to our vital national infrastructure. New things are threatening our country, and we have to be prepared to defend against them.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY).

(Ms. WOOLSEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Chairman, how this Congress chooses to spend our Federal funds says a lot about who we are as people and as a Nation.

So what are we saying today? The Republican budget, which will cause 40,000 children to lose Head Start services by the year 2005, says that preschool services for low-income children just is not very important. On the other hand, the Progressive Caucus budget is the only budget resolution being offered today that will fully fund Head Start.

And should this Nation not increase funds for child care subsidies by $4 billion, as the Progressive Caucus budget does, instead of causing over 12,000 low-income children and their families to lose their child care subsidies, as the Republican budget does?

What priorities are being reflected when the Republican budget freezes funding for higher education, for training and employment programs? The progressive budget increases funding for education at every level, including education technology and after-school programs.

The Republican budget, which increases defense spending, while making deep cuts in domestic spending, says loud and clear that weapons are more important than people. Is that what this Nation is really about? Is that who we are as people? I am not, and I say that this Nation's national security should be measured by how we invest in our children, not weapons.

Our true national security depends on how well our children are educated. That is why I will be voting against the Republican budget resolution, and I will be voting for the progressive budget. I urge all of my colleagues to do the same.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from the 8th District of North Carolina (Mr. HAYES).

(Mr. HAYES asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HAYES. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time to speak about what is an excellent Republican budget.

This is a good budget. Maybe it is not a perfect budget, but it has balance. It meets critical needs. It addresses crucial policy issues. It saves every penny of Social Security for our seniors.

This budget provides generously for education, while stressing local decisions, local control, assuring opportunities for our public school system and for our children.

This budget wipes out the national debt in the very near future.

This budget restores our national defense and begins to mend broken promises made to our veterans and active duty personnel by this administration.

This budget addresses vital health care needs, strengthens Medicare, and provides assistance for seniors with prescription drugs.

Last but not least, the theme of my friends on the left is that Washington is more wise than the taxpayers are; Washington can spend taxpayers' money more wisely than they can. I respectfully disagree with this position. It is my belief that Americans can make better decisions than Washington can about how they spend their own money. Americans, and my folks in the 8th District, deserve tax fairness, and they deserve more of their own money to spend on their own needs.

This budget is good for North Carolina's 8th District and it is good for America. I recommend a ''yes'' vote for this fine Republican budget.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from New York (Ms. VELAZQUEZ).

(Ms. VELAZQUEZ asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. VELAZQUEZ. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong opposition to the House Republican budget and in support of the Progressive Caucus budget.

Mr. Chairman, at a time when our Nation is experiencing the most unprecedented economic expansion ever, more than 35 million Americans still live below the poverty level and have yet to experience benefits of this historic boom. Never in our Nation's history have so many had so much, and still the gap widens between this country's haves and have-nots. As the greatest industrial Nation in the world, this is a travesty; and changing this should be our top priority.

Instead of addressing this issue head on, the Republican budget fails to help those across ethnic communities that need the most help. It fails our seniors by providing nothing to strengthen Social Security or Medicare. It fails more than 300,000 low-income women dependent on programs like WIC and Head Start. It fails our youth by cutting student loans. And it fails our urban communities who want to help themselves by cutting funding for empowerment zones.

Republicans have sacrificed this Nation's working families all to fund another reckless scheme to benefit a wealthy few. My colleagues, the American people have been clear. They want Social Security fixed, they want better schools for their children, and they want all Americans to benefit from this current economic prosperity, not just the wealthy few who the Republicans carve out a special tax break for.

I ask my colleagues to vote ''no'' on this irresponsible budget that includes a risky tax proposal which leaves working families, American families, behind.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. GREEN), an outstanding freshman member of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Right now we are talking about the so-called progressive substitute amendment. That term, progressive, actually means something very specifically to me, because I come from the State of Wisconsin, where the Progressive Party perhaps reached its greatest heights. Our two statutes, our contribution to Statuary Hall, include Fighting Bob La Follette, really the father of the Progressive Party.

I would also say that that progressive tradition is alive and well in Wisconsin today. All of my colleagues know about what we are doing in the area of education reform and welfare reform. Well, it seems to me, from the Wisconsin perspective, if we want to talk about progressive themes and a progressive budget, the budget that we should be supporting, quite frankly, is not the so-called progressive substitute, but is, instead, this budget, the Republican budget plan. Because in my view that is the true Republican progressive plan.

Number one, it strengthens retirement security. It protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. It sets aside $40 billion to provide for prescription drug coverage. That is progressive, to me.

It promotes tax fairness, attacking some of the absurdities, some of the injustices in our Tax Code. It provides for reducing the marriage penalty. It provides for small business tax relief. And thanks to a sense of the Congress resolution that we added in the Committee on the Budget, it also takes care of one of the great problems that our farmers are facing in income averaging.

My colleagues may not be aware, but as the IRS is looking to implement the income averaging plan from the 1997 balanced budget agreement, they will not let farmers take into account years in which they lose money. Well, I have news for the IRS. Coming from the Midwest, I know that we have lots of family farms who are losing money.

That to me is a progressive plan. Our budget plan strengthens support for science and education. We increase education funding by 9.4 percent over last year; that is progressive. A difference between our budget and the so-called progressive plan is that our education funding is student centered, not bureaucracy centered.

Under our plan, we ensure that money leaves Washington, leaves the bureaucracy and gets in the hands of classrooms and communities all across the Nation. We believe that our budget plan is the true progressive plan, because it seeks to make sure that every American will have the tools and the opportunity to pursue the American dream; that is progressive.

Let us take a look quickly at the progressive budget plan. It is well-intentioned; however, it cuts $30 billion out of defense. How is that progressive? How is that progressive? How can you worry about progressive values if you are not secure? How can you worry about progressive values if your Nation is at risk?

The progressive plan also raises taxes by about $151 billion over 5 years. How is that progressive? As we all know, the tax burden that we are facing right now is the highest that we faced since World War II. We are paying wartime taxes at a time when we are supposedly at peace.

More and more families have to have two wage earners, not by choice, they have to have two wage earners just to make ends meet. And, yet, the progressive plan would increase their tax burden.

My friends, I do not believe it is progressive. I am afraid I believe it is regressive. It is going backwards. It is going back to the days of tax and spend. Look carefully at what our budget does. It strengthens the retirement security system by locking away 100 percent of the Social Security surplus and providing for prescription drug coverage; that is progressive.

It retires the debt by the year 2013 to hopefully keep interest rates down and keep the economy growing and keep those good jobs coming; that is progressive. It strengthens dramatically our investment in education and science; that is progressive. It promotes tax fairness for families and farmers and seniors, and, yes, it provides for defense. My friends, this is the progressive budget plan.

I urge you all to vote for it. I urge you all to reject the well-intentioned, but, I am afraid, regressive progressive budget plan.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) has 9½ minutes remaining and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) has 4½ minutes remaining.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds.

If it is progressive to cut taxes for the wealthy and continue huge corporate tax loopholes while taking the money out of the pockets and cutting the programs for middle-income and lower-income Americans, then, yes, your version of a budget is progressive. Our version of a budget puts money in the pockets of middle-income and working families, funds programs that are important to them. Yes, it does raise taxes on the largest corporations in the world that are skating on their taxes today and those who are the most wealthy who are doing very well.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. BROWN).

Ms. BROWN of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Progressive Caucus Budget. I want to talk about one of the most important pieces of this budget, housing. As we all know, home is where the heart is, but if we leave America's current housing crisis in the hands of our Republican counterparts, a lot of hearts and families will be broken.

Do not ever forget that in 1994 the Republicans wanted to abolish the Department of Housing in their Contract on America. At a time when we have seen economic expansions throughout the Nation, the Republican budget makes significant decreases in critical housing programs.

Our housing and development programs are some of the most important things that we do to help communities and working people help themselves. The progressive budget increases funding for community development, grants empowerment zones, and economic development.

This budget would help our cities develop sewer systems and help our local government rebuild schools and water treatment plants. This budget would make a real difference for the Americans who need it the most.

I want to make it clear that I will be voting for the progressive budget and against the Republican continual reverse Robin Hood, robbing from the poor and working people to give a tax break to their rich friends.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, could the Chair tell us the remaining time, please?

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) has 7½ minutes remaining and the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS) has 4½ minutes remaining.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I believe we have the right to close.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from Georgia has the right to close.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. HINCHEY).

Mr. HINCHEY. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman who was here just a few moments ago mischaracterizes the tax portion of the progressive budget. I think that ought to be noted. During the Eisenhower administration, corporations in this country paid about one-third of the taxes that are collected by the Federal Government, under the Republican-run Congress, that number has declined to one-eighth, therefore, all of that tax obligation has been transferred to working Americans.

The working Americans that he was complaining about are bearing a higher share of the burden, as a result of the tax policies that are contained within the Republican budget.

The progressive budget would create a much fairer system, a system which recognizes that working people ought to get tax relief, and that is what that budget does. Among the other deficiencies in the Republican budget, it fails to recognize the fact that we live in community and community obligations and responsibilities.

The progressive budget would help rebuild America by providing a rebuild America infrastructure program which would provide tens of billions of dollars to communities across our country to rebuild schools, highways, bridges, and to fund water supply and sewer treatment facilities, all of which are desperately needed in every community across America.

Furthermore, the progressive budget recognizes our responsibility to education. For the first time, it fully funds Head Start. Head Start is recognized as the most effective educational program ever devised. It gives little children an opportunity to get a head start with their education. The progressive budget does many things that are good for our communities. Let us support it.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GEORGE MILLER).

Mr. GEORGE MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me the time, and I thank him for introducing the progressive budget substitute.

There are many reasons to support this budget substitute: education, Head Start, the commitment to working people. But I would like to comment on fulfilling the long overdue commitment on public lands resources in this country.

Over 300 Members of the House have cosponsored legislation in this session which would reverse the shameful record of recent Congresses in severely underfunding programs to protect the public lands to promote recreation and resource protection.

The House Committee on Resources has reported out the Conservation Reinvestment Act by a 3–1 margin, and we are waiting for the Republican leadership to allow the full House to work its will on this historic bill.

In the meantime, the Republican budget perpetuates the failure of recent Congresses to protect threatened resources on behalf of future generations.

Congress made a promise to the American people 35 years ago: when we develop our offshore energy reserves, we will dedicate a small portion of the proceeds to the permanent protection of America's parks, wilderness, forests and other public lands.

So what happened? The leasing, exploration and development of the Outer Continental Shelf has proceeded for four decades, but the taxpayers and the Lands and Water Conservation Fund have been cheated. The money has been credited to the Land and Water Conservation Fund, but the Congress has refused to spend it year after year. And now the leaders of the Republican Party in this House are telling the American people that they want more offshore oil drilling off of California, off of New Jersey, off of Alaska, off of Florida, but still no willingness to live up to the promise they made in 1965 to protect our natural resources.

The Republican budget resolution that is before this House today perpetuates this larceny against the American public and American environment. Because the Republican budget ignores the Land and Water Conservation Fund, it ignores the current bill and it ignores what the American people said they want.

Eighty to 90 percent of the American people want the full funding of the Land and Water Conservation Fund. They want it in the North and the South, in the East and the West, and even in the Rocky Mountain West. These people want their resources protected, and the way that can be done is by fully funding the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

The substitute introduced by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) on behalf of the Progressive Caucus is a substitute that does that, and this Congress ought to support that effort tonight.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WATERS).

Ms. WATERS. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the alternative budget presented by the Progressive Caucus.

This resolution is a significant alternative for many reasons. Particularly, it is significant for the funding allocated to education, training, employment services, housing, and community development programs.

For Fiscal Year 2001, the progressive budget resolution will provide $9.13 billion more to education, training, and employment services and $15 billion more to community and regional development programs compared to the Republican budget resolution. This would provide essential funding to programs and institutions such as the Community Development Block Grant, the Economic Development Agency, the Bureau of Indian Affairs, historically black colleges and universities, summer youth employment, community technology centers, Head Start, and Pell Grants.

These programs are essential to enable America's most vulnerable citizens to improve their economic, educational, and housing circumstances.

Conversely, the Republican's budget resolution would cut those programs and other essential services such as Women, Infants and Children's nutrition program, known as WIC; the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program, the Child Care Block Grant, and Section 8 Housing.

The Republicans intend to cut these important programs in order to give unreasonable and massive tax cuts.

Unlike the Republicans' plan, the Progressive Caucus's alternative budget puts America's most vulnerable citizens first.

For this reason, I urge my colleagues to support the Progressive Caucus's alternative budget.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from South Dakota (Mr. THUNE).

Mr. THUNE. Mr. Chairman, it is not enough around here to be against something. We have to be for something.

What we have laid out here is our marker. It is what we believe in. The President told us what he believed in in his budget. Nobody around here wanted it, which is why we have all these alternative budgets.

The alternative budget in front of us right now is different from the press's but, in a lot of respects, it is the same. It increases spending and raises taxes, cuts defense. That is what they are for.

What we are saying what we are for in this budget is protecting 100 percent of the Social Security surplus, strengthening Medicare, providing $40 billion, and making possible a prescription drug program, retiring the public debt by the year 2013, paying it down, strengthening support for education, increasing spending on special-ed by $2 billion, and promoting tax fairness for families, farmers and seniors, getting rid of the marriage penalty, earnings limit for seniors, and also dealing with small business tax relief. These are the things that we believe in. And, also, making investment and rebuilding the defense system in this country, which has been badly neglected for the past several years.

That is what this debate is about. We all get to vote. Everybody has their day. Everybody gets to talk about what they believe in. We have heard what they believe in. This is what we believe in. This is our budget. This is our statement of priorities. This is our vision for the future: Paying down debt, locking up Social Security for our seniors, strengthening support for education, promoting tax fairness, and helping our families and farmers, and also making investment in agriculture.

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentlewoman from California (Ms. LEE).

Ms. LEE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO) for his leadership and his vision and thank the Progressive Caucus for putting forth this vision for a better America. I want to stand today in strong support of this budget.

Like the Congressional Black Caucus, the Progressive Caucus budget balances the budget, saves Social Security and Medicare, without excluding low-wage workers, the poor, and communities of color.

While poverty and unemployment have gone down, there are still millions of Americans who are not able to take advantage of this great economic boom. As a member of the Subcommittee on Housing and from northern California, I am particularly concerned about the rising cost of housing and access to affordable housing. The Joint Center for Housing Studies at Harvard University reports that because of the cost of housing, because it has actually outpaced wages, some renters are paying more for their housing today than they did for comparable units in the 1970s.

According to a February 12 Washington Post article which I will submit for the RECORD, the cost of housing is so high in northern California that software executives making over $53,000 a year are homeless and living out of their cars. In fact, the article cites one individual making $80,000 a year forced to live in a shelter. This is outrageous. The Progressive Caucus budget invests more in section 8 housing, homeless assistance, senior housing, housing for the disabled and other important housing programs.

This budget shows that during significant economic growth, we can invest where it is most needed, for education, for housing, the environment, foreign assistance, health care and violence prevention. This budget shows that sound fiscal policy does not have to leave out the poor, low-wage workers, communities of color, the disabled, our senior citizens, and our veterans. Let us make our peace dividend work here in America by ensuring our national security interest from within our own country as well as ensuring a safe and secure world. We must defend our country, not only from outside threats but from the threats of poverty and unemployment and income inequality and inadequate education and the growing gap between the rich and the poor.

Mr. Chairman, I include the following article for the RECORD:

THE HIGH-TECH HOMELESS; IN SILICON VALLEY, A DARK SIDE TO BOOMING ECONOMY

(By Mark Leibovich)

CUPERTINO, CALIF.—Each night, on the floor of a church that sits a few hundred yards from the campus of Apple Computer Inc., software executive Gordon Seybold unfurls a bedroll and attempts to sleep. It rarely comes. He often spends hours staring into blackness, wondering how Silicon Valley's wealth stampede could keep rushing past a man with his resume.

Last January, Seybold lost his job as a corporate sales manager for Oakland-based C2Net Software Inc., where he said he was on track to earn $125,000 last year, including commissions. He tried to find a new job, came close a few times, but ultimately turned up nothing after several months. In August, he was evicted from his $1,600-a-month apartment in West San Jose.

Since then Seybold, who holds three degrees and speaks five languages, has landed on the Silicon Skids, joining a fast-growing homeless population that might be the best credentialed in the nation.

They are marked by the same runs of bad luck, bad habits and bad decisions that lead to shelter doors anywhere. But Silicon Valley's homeless also provide a starkly different perspective on the giddy high-tech world, one that mocks every common mythology about this place. They are, in many cases, victims of the same aura of promise that keeps technology workers flooding here. Largely hidden and ignored—in shelters, on floors, in cars—their plights define this boom era just as aptly as any overnight geek tycoon.

If this were another place, at another time, it might be easier to reduce expectations, forget stock options and move to a place where tiny rooms don't rent for $1,200 a month. But it's hard not to wish big here. New millionaires get spawned in bull market litters—64 a day, by one count—and it imbues even homeless shelters with a gambler's sense of possibility.

''There's so much sudden wealth here, it's creating a Vegas mentality,'' said Barry Del Buono, executive director of the Emergency Housing Consortium, which operates seven shelters in Silicon Valley. ''A lot of our homeless are living on the hope this economy is creating. But people don't realize how brutal it can be here if you lose your footing.''

Or how the downward spiral can spin just as fast as the sudden-wealth machine. Seybold, 56 said he lost his job at C2Net in a mass layoff, though a company spokesman cited ''other factors.'' Whatever the reason, it caused him to become depressed, which hurt his employment prospects. So did his advancing age, an unspoken liability in a high-tech industry obsessed with the new and young. He spent last fall living in a 1984 Chevrolet van.

Today, Seybold is in a program for homeless men run by Cupertino Community Services. It provides career guidance, shelter and donated meals at a network of Silicon Valley churches, many of them nestled in neighborhoods of million-dollar homes. At night, his floormates keep him awake with their somnolent gunts and moans, which echo through the sanctuary in a chorus of unconscious unease.

''One of the drawbacks of sleeping in a big church room is that they have perfect acoustics.'' Seybold said. He stays in Silicon Valley because he has worked in technology for 25 years. ''There is 10 times more opportunity here than anywhere else for someone like me,'' he said, but added that he is thinking about leaving to join the Peace Corps. He recently took a job as a salesclerk at a drugstore in Cupertino. It pays $8.50 an hour.

RETHINKING FAILURE AS SUCCESS

Here, as elsewhere, accounts of becoming homeless often involve a unique, precipitating circumstance: a fire or a big rent increase; some physical or mental hardship. It is rare to find a homeless person who has had plenty of breaks and has done everything right.

But the pioneer's mentality of Silicon Valley can impose perverse interpretations on personal failure. In entrepreneurial circles, failure is said to be a valuable experience, laudable even. It can be the source of vital business lessons and proof of a pioneer's willingness to take chances. And in the strange calculus of the dot-com world, failure is success, as revealed by the stock prices of Internet companies that have never made a profit.

But that's a santized notion of failure, describing an entrepreneur's ability to make large amounts of money vanish, often someone else's. Technology workers who wind up homeless represent a baser notion of failure.

''This is the kind of failure that no one in Silicon Valley likes to think about,'' said Ray Allen, who runs the Community Technology Alliance, a San Jose organization that provides voice-mail service to local homeless people and online resources to community aid groups. ''The fact is, the technology industry is creating incredible wealth, and it's also creating incredible poverty.''

At its crux, this poverty is born of simple economics. The prosperity has sent the cost of housing soaring and pushed lower-income people, many of them employed, onto the * * * margins of society.

''We all have perceptions of what a homeless person is supposed to be like, and I'm not it,'' said Tom McCormack, 38, who works as a system engineer at CompuNet Systems Solutions Inc., a network-software firm in San Jose. He wears crisp blue dress shirts and earns $52,000 a year, which should be enough to pay for a low-rent place, but isn't when it's added to child-support payments and past credit-card debts.

McCormack faced desperate circumstances last spring when a roommate moved out of his San Jose apartment and his landlord doubled the rent to $1,600. ''I'm a workaholic and I didn't have much of a social network,'' he said. ''I had nowhere to go.'' He moved into his 1982 Subaru.

Until a few days ago McCormack lived at Inn-Vision, a beige concrete shelter tucked between the San Jose Arena and a cluster of auto body shops. His quarters were a 4-by-7-foot cubicle separated from 88 roommates by curtain walls, as in a military hospital ward. Rules are strict. Last week one of his shelter mates, Randall Condon, 46, a computer-networking expert, said he was written up by a shelter manager for leaving a book about non-Euclidian geometry on his bunk bed.

Last weekend McCormack reached his six-month limit at Inn-Vision and is back living in his Subaru. He spends hours at night lying in the back seat, reading books on computer programming by flashlight.

The question recurs: Why does he stay in Silicon Valley?

The answer recurs: ''This place is just full of opportunity,'' he said. ''This is where my brain food is.''

And prospective Cyber Cinderellas keep coming: ''This place has this incredible mystique,'' said Cathy Erickson, who runs the Georgia Travis Center, a drop-in office for homeless people in San Jose. ''People come from all over the world to expect instant success, instant hope. But there's only so long you can afford to stay in a hotel.'' She frequently tells them to go back where they came from.

HIGH-TECH HELPING HANDS

Cisco Systems Inc., the San Jose-based computer-networking giant, comes to the main Emergency Housing Consortium shelter to train prospective technology workers. And Mary Ellen Chell, the executive director of Cupertino Community Services, said one large technology company, the name of which she can't divulge, has inquired about housing new-to-town employees in its shelters. This symbiosis between Silicon Valley's wealth centers and its fringes underscores a precarious separation between the two.

While homeless populations are notoriously difficult to track and quantify, Silicon Valley's has risen steadily in recent years, local social service workers said. Nearly 20,000 people will experience a ''homeless episode'' this year in Santa Clara County, which covers most of Silicon Valley, up from about 16,000 five years ago.

But what's most striking is the increasing percentage of working people who now live in homeless shelters, a nationwide phenomenon that is poignantly evident in Silicon Valley. Since 1992, 250,000 new jobs have been created here and only about 40,000 new housing units have been built.

''If they were somewhere else, there's a good chance they'd be living in the suburbs,'' the Emergency Housing Consortium's Del Buono said. ''We turn out people every day who are making $60,000 a year.'' He said that about half of the consortium's 1,100 clients are employed. The biggest shelter, a converted office building that houses 250 people next to a San Jose industrial park, is open 24 hours, but is nearly empty at midday.

Many of Silicon Valley's shelter dwellers fit the conventional shopping cart prototype: hard-luck veterans, unemployed single mothers, the mentally or criminally deinstitutionalized. But talk to enough homeless people and a theme resonates—it doesn't take a lot of misfortune here to start a rapid descent.

''I have a good job and I can't believe I wound up without a place to live,'' said Tracy Ramirez, a customer service representative at Cyantek, which makes chemicals for the semiconductor industry. She lives half a mile from the main runway of San Jose Airport in a one-room, Emergency Housing Consortium ''transitional home,'' where she shares a bed with her 3- and 9-year-old daughters.

Ramirez, 35, earns $16.90 an hour, about $34,000 a year. She pays $600 a month in day-care costs, $300 a month in car payments. She also has a litany of other bills, expenses and debts trailing from her past, many accrued during a since-ended marriage. A bad credit history, a bankruptcy and an eviction last September inevitably kill her chances with landlords, aside from the fact that the Department of Housing and Urban Development considers $47,800 a year to be ''low income'' for a three-person household in Silicon Valley. She started getting anxiety attacks last summer.

Her mother, Carolyn Cabral, earns $14,80 an hour working on an assembly line at 3COM Corp. but can't afford a place closer than Mantica, a two-hour drive to her office in Santa Clara. Cabral, 59, who has worked 16 years at 3COM, wakes up at 3:15 a.m. to come to work in the valley. (The commute can reach three hours with traffic.) She could get a job closer to home, but says it would cut her pay by half.

''Silicon Valley is a victim of its own success,'' said Carl Guardino, chief executive of the Silicon Valley Manufacturers Group, the area's biggest high-tech industry trade organization. With an unemployment rate of 2.7 percent and average annual wages that are nearly $20,000 higher than the national average, it's impossible to deny the success.

It's of some consolation that shelters receive donations from tech zillionaires, especially during the holidays. In December, for example, a Yahoo Inc. employee gave $100,000 in stock to 10 social service agencies, said Maury Kendall, communications manager at the Emergency Housing Consortium. Last month, after local news outlets reported that pets belonging to homeless people could not stay in shelters, donations poured in, Kendall said. ''We just got $15,000 to start a kennel.''

But the housing crisis is clearly exacting a toll on humans, A study revealed this week that for the first time in five years, more people are leaving Santa Clara County than are arriving. While the difference was negligible—1,284 more people moved out than in—the lack of affordable housing has become the biggest obstacle that valley companies face in keeping and recruiting employees, Guardino said.

''We would like technology workers to drive their cars, not live in them.''

A FAST FREE-FALL

''There's a very thin line in Silicon Valley between being a director and being a derelict,'' said Randall Condon, the computer-networking expert encamped at San Jose's Inn-Vision. ''Everything here is accelerated—business cycles, wealth creation, and certainly the rate at which your life can fall apart.''

Condon was living in Olympia, Wash., where he had moved to be with a girlfriend and work at an Internet service provider. In November, as the relationship was ending, he lost everything in an apartment fire. He came to Silicon Valley because he had worked in technology for 20 years.

After a brief and futile search for a rental, Condon came to Inn-Vision. He sleeps—or tries to—in a large room with 43 other men, whom he collectively refers to as ''the snoring symphony.'' Condon, who has sad blue eyes and oily chestnut hair, said he tries to stay busy and positive.

On a rainy Monday in mid-January, he calls his existence ''tortuous.'' Libraries were closed for Martin Luther King Jr. Day, which denied him access to his prime job-seeking tool, the Internet. ''I'm a total cyber-cripple in here,'' he said.

But a postscript: Condon got a job last week, at a San Jose Internet start-up company where he says he will earn more than $80,000 a year, plus stock options. He won't name his new employer because he doesn't want people there to see this article. They don't know that he lives in a shelter.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT), a member of the Committee on the Budget.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Minnesota is recognized for 3 minutes.

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight in opposition to the Progressive budget and in favor of the common sense Republican budget. I do want to at least congratulate the progressives for their intellectual honesty. I may disagree with their conclusions, but at least I think they have been intellectually honest in bringing this budget forward. In fairness, what this budget does that they are proposing would cut $30 billion from defense. That is at a time when we have 265,000 troops in 132 different countries. Some of us do not believe that is the right thing to do. They increase spending by $38 billion in fiscal year 2001, and they raise taxes by about $9 billion this year and $151 billion over 5 years. That is their conclusion. That is the plan that they are offering. We respect that.

But let me talk a little bit about where we are. I told the story earlier about the little red hen. That was that little red hen that had the chicks and she found some wheat, she planted the wheat, she asked how many of her barnyard friends would help her grow the wheat. Not I, said the cow; not I, said the pig; not I, said the cat. No one wanted to help her grow the wheat. Then when it was time to harvest the wheat she asked for help. Not I, said the cow; not I, said the pig; not I, said the cat. When it was time to bake the bread, nobody wanted to help. Not I, said the cow; not I, said the pig; not I, said the cat. But when it was time to eat the bread, everybody wanted to be there.

Over the last several years, we have built up a surplus. We have done it by making some of those tough decisions. Now everybody wants to get in on the act and decide how we will divide that surplus. This is a common sense budget, but let us look at where we have been. If we would have stuck just to the spending levels that we were left when we came here as a majority in 1995, we would have spent an additional $625 billion. That is not my numbers, that is the Congressional Budget Office.

Let us compare where we are compared to what the President proposed. What the President proposed this year in additional discretionary spending was a 6.6 percent increase. We are proposing only 1.8 percent. You can see the inflation line. We are making tremendous progress. But I think this is the most important chart of all. For the first time in my adult lifetime, the Federal budget is going to grow at a slower rate than the average family budget over the next 5 years.

The average family budget according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics is going to grow by 4.6 percent annually and our total Federal budget is going to increase by 2.9 percent. What will happen? We will create enormous surpluses and we are saying, $1 trillion over the next 5 years ought to go to pay down debt, debt held by the public, about another third of it ought to go to strengthen Social Security and Medicare, and yes, make room for a prescription drug benefit. But the final third ought to go back to the people who pay the taxes.

Here is one other area where we differ. We do not believe that married couples just because they are married are rich. We do not think businesspeople and farmers just because they are farmers are rich. We believe this is a fair budget. We hope that you will support us in the common sense Republican budget and oppose the so-called Progressive budget.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. DEFAZIO).

The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. DEFAZIO. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 61, noes 351, not voting 22, as follows:

Messrs. RADANOVICH, PASTOR, PALLONE and HOLT changed their vote from ''aye'' to ''no.''

Ms. SLAUGHTER changed her vote from ''no'' to ''aye.''

So the amendment in the nature of a substitute was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). It is now in order to consider amendment No. 3 printed in part B of House Report 106–535.

AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. STENHOLM

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Amendment in the nature of a substitute No. 3 offered by Mr. STENHOLM:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

SECTION 1. CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001.

The Congress declares that the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2000 is hereby revised and replaced and that this is the concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2001 and that the appropriate budgetary levels for fiscal years 2002 through 2005 are hereby set forth.

SEC. 2. RECOMMENDED LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

The following budgetary levels are appropriate for each of fiscal years 2000 through 2005:

(1) FEDERAL REVENUES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution:

(A) The recommended levels of Federal revenues are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,405,500,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,509,718,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,557,246,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,610,844,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,610,757,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,738,810,000.

(B) The amounts by which the aggregate levels of Federal revenues should be reduced are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $0.
Fiscal year 2001: $5,082,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $6,254,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $7,556,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $8,281,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $9,919,000,000.

(2) NEW BUDGET AUTHORITY.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total new budget authority are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,475,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,527,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,569,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,619,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,704,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,753,000,000,000.

(3) BUDGET OUTLAYS.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the appropriate levels of total budget outlays are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $1,465,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $1,504,000,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $1,507,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $1,551,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $1,603,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $1,737,000,000,000.

(4) SURPLUSES.—For purposes of the enforcement of this resolution, the amounts of the surpluses are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $8,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $14,017,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $16,547,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $19,112,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $16,429,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $20,103,000,000.

(5) PUBLIC DEBT.—The appropriate levels of the public debt are as follows:

Fiscal year 2000: $5,640,300,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001: $5,710,600,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002: $5,766,007,000,000.
Fiscal year 2003: $5,866,788,000,000.
Fiscal year 2004: $5,947,471,000,000.
Fiscal year 2005: $6,018,197,000,000.

SEC. 3. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

The Congress determines and declares that the appropriate levels of new budget authority and budget outlays for fiscal years 2000 through 2005 for each major functional category are:

(1) National Defense (050):

Fiscal year 2000:
(A) New budget authority, $287,700,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $282,200,000,000.
Fiscal year 2001:
(A) New budget authority, $308,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $298,900,000,000.
Fiscal year 2002:
(A) New budget authority, $311,300,000,000.
(B) Outlays, $303,700,000,000.

SEC. 4. RECONCILIATION.

(a) SUBMISSIONS REGARDING REVENUES.—The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill—

(1) not later than May 26, 2000;
(2) not later than June 23, 2000;
(3) not later than July 28, 2000; and
(4) not later than September 22, 2000;

that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $5,082,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $35,680,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005.

(b) SUBMISSIONS REGARDING DEBT HELD BY THE PUBLIC.—The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill—

(1) not later than May 26, 2000; and that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the debt held by the public by not more than $8,189,000,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $80,580,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005.
(2) not later than September 22, 2000;

SEC. 5. USE OF CBO ESTIMATES IN ENFORCEMENT OF RESOLUTION.

For purposes of enforcing the budgetary aggregates and allocations under this resolution, the Chairman of the House Committee on the Budget shall, in advising the presiding officer on the cost of any piece of legislation, rely exclusively on estimates prepared by the Congressional Budget Office or the Joint Tax Committee, in a form certified by that agency to be consistent with its own economic and technical estimates, unless in each case he first receives the approval of the Committee on the Budget by recorded vote to use a different estimate.

SEC. 6. TAX CUTS AND NEW SPENDING CONTINGENT ON DEBT REDUCTION.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this resolution, it shall not be in order to consider a reconciliation bill pursuant to Section 4 of this resolution or any legislation reducing revenues for the period of fiscal years 2001 to 2005 or increasing outlays for mandatory spending programs unless there is a certification by Director of the Congressional Budget Office that the House has approved legislation which:

(1) ensures that a sufficient portion of the on-budget surplus is reserved for debt retirement to put the government on a path to eliminate the publicly held debt by 2013 under current economic and technical projections;

(2) legislation has been enacted which establishes points of order or other protections to ensure that funds reserved for debt retirement may not be used for any other purpose, except for adjustments to reflect economic and technical changes in budget projections.

SEC. 7. RESERVE FUND FOR AUGUST UPDATE REVISION OF BUDGET SURPLUSES.

(a) ALLOCATION OF INCREASED SURPLUS PROJECTIONS.—If the Congressional Budget Office report referred to in subsection (b) projects an increase in the surplus for fiscal year 2000, fiscal year 2001, and the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 over the corresponding levels set forth in its economic and budget forecast for 2001 submitted pursuant to section 202(e)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House shall make the adjustments as provided in subsection (c).

(b) CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE UPDATED BUDGET FORECAST FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001.—The report referred to in subsection (a) is the Congressional Budget Office updated budget forecast for fiscal year 2001.

(c) ADJUSTMENTS.—If the Committee on Ways and Means reports any reconciliation legislation or other legislation reducing revenues exceeding the revenue aggregates in section 2(1)(B), reduce the revenue aggregates in section 2(1)(A) and increase the amounts the revenues can be reduced by in section 2(1)(B) by an amount not to exceed one-quarter of the increased surplus. If the Committees on Agriculture, Appropriations, Commerce, National Security, or Ways and Means report legislation increasing spending above the allocation for that committee, increase the allocation for that committee and the aggregates set forth in sections 2(2) and 2(3) by an amount not to exceed one-quarter of the increased surplus.

(d) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments made pursuant to subsection (c) for any measure shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

SEC. 8. SAFE DEPOSIT BOX FOR SOCIAL SECURITY SURPLUSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) under the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, the social security trust funds are off-budget for purposes of the President's budget submission and the concurrent resolution on the budget;

(2) the social security trust funds have been running surpluses for 17 years;

(3) these surpluses have been used to implicitly finance the general operations of the Federal Government;

(4) in fiscal year 2001, the social security surplus will exceed $166 billion;

(5) for the first time, a concurrent resolution on the budget balances the Federal budget without counting the social security surpluses;

(6) the only way to ensure that social security surpluses are not diverted for other purposes is to balance the budget exclusive of such surpluses; and

(7) Congress and the President should take such steps as are necessary to ensure that future budgets are balanced excluding the surpluses generated by the social security trust funds.

(b) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any revision to this resolution or a concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2002, or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that sets forth a deficit for any fiscal year.

(2) DEFICIT LEVELS.—For purposes of this subsection, a deficit shall be the level (if any) set forth in the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year pursuant to section 301(a)(3) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SEC. 9. DEBT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX.

(a) POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any reported bill or joint resolution, or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would cause a surplus for fiscal year 2001 to be less than the level (as adjusted pursuant to section 7) set forth in section 2(4) for that fiscal year.

(b) SPECIAL RULE.—The level of the surplus for purposes of subsection (a) shall not take into account any adjustment made under section 314(a)(2)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SEC. 10. RESERVE FUND FOR MEDICARE.

If the Committee on Ways and Means or Committee on Commerce of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that reforms medicare, provides coverage for medicare prescription drugs, or adjusts medicare reimbursement for health care providers, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the aggregates and allocations of new budget authority (and outlays resulting therefrom) by the amount provided by that measure for that purpose, but not to exceed $2,000,000,000 in new budget authority and $2,000,000,000 in outlays for fiscal year 2001 and $40,000,00,000 in new budget authority and $40,000,000,000 in outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 11. RESERVE FUND FOR AGRICULTURE.

(a) FISCAL YEAR 2000.—If the Committee on Agriculture of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that provides income support to owners and producers of farms, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the allocation of new budget authority and outlays to that committee for fiscal year 2000 by the amount of new budget authority (and the outlays resulting therefrom) provided by that measure for that purpose not to exceed $6,000,000,000 in new budget authority and $6,000,000,000 in outlays for fiscal year 2000, $0 in new budget authority and outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2004, and $6,000,000,000 in new budget authority and $6,000,000,000 in outlays for the period of fiscal years 2000 through 2004 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

(b) FISCAL YEAR 2001.—If the Committee on Agriculture of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that provides risk management or income support or other assistance for agricultural producers, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the allocation of new budget authority and outlays to that committee by the amount of new budget authority (and the outlays resulting therefrom) if such legislation does not exceed $4,998,000,000 in new budget authority and $4,354,000,000 in outlays for fiscal year 2001 and $24,761,000,000 in new budget authority and $23,610,000,000 in outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 13. APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF CHANGES IN ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.

(a) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments of allocations and aggregates made pursuant to section 10, 11, or 12 for any measure shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

(b) EFFECT OF CHANGED ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.—Revised allocations and aggregates resulting from these adjustments shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) BUDGET COMMITTEE DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this resolution—

(1) the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority, revenues, deficits, and surpluses for a fiscal year or period of fiscal years shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives or the Senate, as applicable; and

(2) such chairman, as applicable, may make any other necessary adjustments to such levels to carry out this resolution.

SEC. 14. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING BUDGET ENFORCEMENT.

It is the sense of Congress that legislation should be enacting enforcing this resolution by—

(1) establishing a plan to eliminate the publicly held debt by 2012;

(2) setting discretionary spending limits for budget authority and outlays at the levels set forth in this resolution for each of the next five years; and

(3) extending the pay as you go rules set forth in Section 252 of the BBEDCA for the next ten years.

SEC. 15. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING THE STABILIZATION OF CERTAIN FEDERAL PAYMENTS TO STATES, COUNTIES, AND BOROUGHS.

It is the sense of the House that Federal revenue-sharing payments to States, counties, and boroughs pursuant to the Act of May 23, 1908 (35 Stat. 260; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of March 1, 1911 (36 Stat. 963; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of August 28, 1937 (chapter 876; 50 Stat. 875; 43 U.S.C. 1181f), the Act of May 24, 1939 (chapter 144; 53 Stat. 753; 43 U.S.C. 1181f–1 et seq.), and sections 13982 and 13983 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (Public Law 103–66; 16 U.S.C. 500 note; 43 U.S.C. 1181f note) should be stabilized and maintained for the long-term benefit of schools, roads, public services, and communities, and that providing such permanent, stable funding is a priority of the 106th Congress.

SEC. 16. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON DIRECTING THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE TO ACCEPT NEGATIVE NUMBERS IN FARM INCOME AVERAGING.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) farmers' and ranchers' income vary widely from year to year due to uncontrollable markets and unpredictable weather;

(2) in the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, Congress enacted 3-year farm income averaging to protect agricultural producers from excessive tax rates in profitable years;

(3) last year, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) proposed final regulations for averaging farm income which fail to make clear that taxable income in a given year may be a negative number; and

(4) this IRS interpretation can result in farmers having to pay additional taxes during years in which they experience a loss in income.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that during this session of the 106th Congress, legislation should be considered to direct the Internal Revenue Service to count any net loss of income in determining the proper rate of taxation.

SEC. 17. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON ESTIMATES OF THE IMPACT OF REGULATIONS ON THE PRIVATE SECTOR.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) the Federal regulatory system sometimes adversely affects many Americans and businesses by imposing financial burdens with little corresponding public benefit;

(2) currently, Congress has no general mechanism for assessing the financial impact of regulatory activities on the private sector;

(3) congress is ultimately responsible for making sure agencies act in accordance with congressional intent and while the executive branch is responsible for promulgating regulations, Congress ultimately can and should curb ineffective regulations by using its oversight and regulatory powers; and

(4) a variety of reforms have been suggested to increase congressional oversight over regulatory activity, including directing the President to prepare an annual accounting statement containing several cost/benefit analyses, recommendations to reform inefficient regulatory programs, and an identification and analysis of duplications and inconsistencies among such programs.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that the House should reclaim its role as reformer and take the first step toward curbing inefficient regulatory activity by passing legislation authorizing the Congressional Budget Office to prepare regular estimates on the impact of proposed Federal regulations on the private sector.

SEC. 18. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING EDUCATION REFORM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) strengthening America's public schools while respecting State and local control is critically important to the future of our children and our Nation;

(2) education is a local responsibility, a State priority, and a national concern;

(3) a partnership with the Nation's governors, parents, teachers, and principals must take place in order to strengthen public schools and foster educational excellence;

(4) the consolidation of various Federal education programs will benefit our Nation's children, parents, and teachers by sending more dollars directly to the classroom;

(5) our Nation's children deserve an educational system that will provide opportunities to excel; and

(6) our children and society will benefit from States and local educators working together with the Federal Government to raise standards and improve educational opportunities, particularly for America's poorest children.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Federal funding should be increased to States and local schools, with funds targeted to the poorest schools;

(2) the role of Federal education policy is to raise standards for all children, and close the achievement gap between groups of students;

(3) legislation should be enacted which gives States and local schools flexibility with Federal funds coupled with increased accountability for performance and results, including the requirement that states to ensure that all students have fully qualified teachers; and

(4) the Federal Government should demand increased student performance, with consequences for schools and school districts that continuously fail.

SEC. 19. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON SPECIAL EDUCATION.

(a) Congress finds that—

(1) all children deserve a quality education, including children with disabilities;

(2) the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act provides that the Federal, State, and local governments are to share in the expense of educating children with disabilities and commits the Federal Government to pay up to 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure for children with disabilities;

(3) the high cost of educating children with disabilities and the Federal Government's failure to fully meet its obligation under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act stretches limited State and local education funds, creating difficulty in providing a quality education to all students, including children with disabilities;

(4) the current level of Federal funding to States and localities under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act is contrary to the goal of ensuring that children with disabilities receive a quality education;

(5) the Federal Government has failed to appropriate 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure per child with a disability as required under the Individuals with Disabilities Act to assist States and localities to educate children with disabilities; and

(6) the levels in function 500 (Education) for fiscal year 2001 assume sufficient discretionary budget authority to accommodate fiscal year 2001 appropriations for IDEA at least $2,000,000,000 above such funding levels appropriated in fiscal year 2000.

(b) It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Congress and the President should increase function 500 (Education) fiscal year 2001 funding for programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Act by at least $2,000,000,000 above fiscal year 2000 appropriated levels;

(2) Congress and the President should give programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act the highest priority among Federal elementary and secondary education programs by meeting the commitment to fund the maximum State grant allocation for educating children with disabilities under such Act prior to authorizing or appropriating funds for any new education initiative;

(3) Congress and the President should, if new or increased funding is authorized or appropriated for any education initiative, provide the flexibility in such authorization or appropriation necessary to allow local educational agencies the authority to use such funds for programs under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act; and

(4) if a local educational agency chooses to utilize the authority under section 613(a)(2)(C)(i) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act to treat as local funds up to 20 percent of the amount of funds the agency receives under part B of such Act that exceeds the amount it received under that part for the previous fiscal year, then the agency should use those local funds to provide additional funding for any Federal, State, or local education program.

SEC. 20. SENSE OF THE CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE AND PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICES FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.

(a) ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) 43.4 million Americans are currently without health insurance, and that this number is expected to rise to nearly 60 million people in the next 10 years;

(B) the cost of health insurance continues to rise, a key factor in increasing the number of uninsured; and

(C) there is a consensus that working Americans and their families and children will suffer from reduced access to health insurance.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON IMPROVING ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE INSURANCE.—It is the sense of Congress that access to affordable health care coverage for all Americans is a priority of the 106th Congress.

(b) PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICE FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 reformed Medicare home health care spending by instructing the Health Care Financing Administration to implement a prospective payment system and instituted an interim payment system to achieve savings;

(B) the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1999, reformed the interim payment system to increase reimbursements to low-cost providers, added $900 million in funding, and delayed the automatic 15 percent payment reduction for one year, to October 1, 2000; and

(C) patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient do not receive supplemental payments in the interim payment system but will receive special protection in the home health care prospective payment system.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HOME HEALTH CARE.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(A) Congress recognizes the importance of home health care for seniors and disabled citizens;

(B) Congress and the Administration should work together to maintain quality care for patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient, including the sickest and frailest Medicare beneficiaries, while home health care agencies operate in the interim payment system; and

(C) Congress and the Administration should work together to avoid the implementation of the 15 percent reduction in the interim payment system and ensure timely implementation of the prospective payment system.

SEC. 21. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON EMERGENCY SPENDING.

It is the sense of Congress that as a part of a comprehensive reform of the budget process the Committees on the Budget should develop a definition of and a process for, funding emergencies consistent with the applicable proviso of H.R. 853, the Comprehensive Budget Process Reform Act of 1999 that could be incorporated into the Rules of the House of Representatives and the Standing Rules of the Senate.

SEC. 22. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON MEDICARE+CHOICE PROGRAMS/REIMBURSEMENT RATES.

It is the sense of Congress that Medicare+Choice regional disparity among reimbursement rates are unfair; and that full funding of the Medicare+Choice program is a priority as Congress deals with any medicare reform legislation.

SEC. 23. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES.

It is the sense of Congress that the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission continue to carefully monitor the medicare skilled nursing benefit to determine if payment rates are sufficient to provide quality care, and that if reform is recommended, Congress pass legislation as quickly as possible to assure quality skilled nursing care.

MODIFICATION OF AMENDMENT IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE NO. 3 OFFERED BY MR. STENHOLM

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the amendment in the nature of a substitute be modified.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Clerk will report the modification.

The Clerk read as follows:

Modification of amendment in the nature of a substitute No. 3 offered by Mr. STENHOLM:

Line 9, strike $55,960,000,000 and insert $55,020,000;

Line 13, strike $54,060,000,000 and insert $57,360,000;

Line 17, strike $55,360,000,000 and insert $58,760,000;

Line 21, strike $56,300,000,000 and insert $58,800,000;

Line 25, strike $56,330,000,000 and insert $58,800,000.

□ 2015

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 446, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) and a Member opposed each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 2 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, for 4 years, the Blue Dogs have offered an honest, fiscally responsible budget. We were the first to talk about balanced budgets without counting Social Security surpluses. We are the folks who consistently have hounded our colleagues about debt reduction. Why have we obsessed on this one topic? Because, just as tax dollars are your money, as is so often said by Members on this floor and at home, so is the $5.6 trillion debt your debt, and it is unconscionable to continue to pass that burden on to our children and grandchildren.

In a release just delivered to my office, the highly respected Concord Coalition says, ''We believe the Blue Dog alternative provides the best overall budgetary framework for the next 5 years.''

Last year the Blue Dog budget established the 50–25–25 rule in dealing with any non-Social Security surpluses: 50 percent to debt reduction, 25 percent to tax cuts, 25 percent to spending priorities. This substitute we now consider continues that philosophy.

We retire the debt by 2012, 1 year earlier than any other proposal considered in the House today. We reject all budget gimmicks, like unrealistic caps or baselines, insecure lockboxes, backloading, and directed scorekeeping. We protect 10 percent of the Social Security trust funds. We provide for fiscally responsible tax cuts. We also respond to critical program needs in agriculture, in defense, for veterans and military retirees, in education and health care, including Medicare.

We are proud of this budget, and we are proud of the influence which we think our small band of relentless true believers have had on this body over the past number of years. We encourage Members on both sides of the aisle, regardless of your label, to listen seriously to the next 40 minutes of debate to see if you do not agree with us, and with the Concord Coalition, that this is the most reasonable and responsible and doable budget on the floor today.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the substitute.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) is recognized for 20 minutes.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to my good friend, the gentleman from California (Mr. HERGER).

Mr. HERGER. Mr. Chairman, balanced budget security for America's future, a GOP plan. I would like to go down this, if I could, to outline the six points of the Republican plan.

Number one, protects 100 percent of Social Security surplus. All of the $166 billion Social Security surplus is off limits to Clinton-Gore spending. This will be the second year in a row that Republicans will be protecting the Social Security surplus.

Secondly, we strengthen Medicare with prescription drugs. It sets aside $40 billion to help needy seniors afford their prescription drugs, and it rejects the $18.2 billion Clinton-Gore Medicare cuts.

Point three, it retires the public debt by 2013. It pays off more than $1 trillion of public debt over the next 5 years. Our budget has already repaid $302 billion since 1998.

Our next point, it promotes tax fairness for families, farmers, and seniors. It provides for the House-passed marriage penalty an average of $1,400 per married couple and small business tax relief, education and health care assistance amounting to $150 billion, and it rejects the $96 billion gross tax increase over 5 years in the Clinton-Gore budget.

Number five, it restores American defense, 6 percent more than last year's for overdeployed Armed Forces. The GOP defense budget provides $1 billion more than the Clinton-Gore plan.

Finally, number six, it strengthens support for education and science, 9.4 percent for elementary and secondary education, IDEA increases of nearly $2 billion. It fights cancer, AIDS and diabetes and other diseases with $1 billion more for NIH, and also $1 billion for basic research into biology, science, engineering, and math.

In addition, Mr. Chairman, our Federal public debt stands now at $3.6 trillion. This equates to $56,000 for the average family of four. This year nearly $1,000 in taxes from every man, woman, and child in the United States will be used just to pay the interest on the debt.

The Republican budget resolution sends our Nation on the path towards eliminating public debt by paying off $1 trillion over the next 5 years. Paying off public debt makes good sense. It makes more money available in the private sector and saving and for investment in health.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 5 seconds to respond in saying that this was great rhetoric we just heard, but it has nothing to do with the budget we are now discussing.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. MINGE).

Mr. MINGE. Mr. Chairman, the critical question this evening as we debate the budget is how much are we doing to reduce our Nation's debt?

The budget that is before us, the Blue Dog Coalition budget, clearly comes out ahead. To understand this, we have to begin by understanding the size of the Nation's debt. It now stands at about $5.7 trillion. My good friend from California, the previous speaker, talked about the debt that is held by Federal trust funds. Well, that is all very interesting, and he is talking about limiting the debt to Social Security.

Well, that is interesting. But that does not mean it is not debt. If you look at the Republican budget that is under consideration tonight, you will find that at the end of 5 years the debt that we owe, that is that the United States of America owes, is up to $5.9 trillion. We are not reducing debt. All we are doing is what we are supposed to do with the Social Security trust fund, we are not invading it.

Now, the Blue Dog Coalition budget is going to reduce the Nation's debt in a significant way. Over a 10-year projected period of time it would reduce the debt, and this includes the debt owed to Social Security, by $428 billion. We are also doing the same things that our colleagues on the Republican side talk about, prescription drugs and so on. We are not neglecting that. But we are reducing our debt by $428 billion, whereas the Republican proposal is increasing that debt by $84 billion over that 10-year period of time.

I believe that this is a stinging indictment of the budget that the majority is trying to pull over our eyes. This is not a budget that they proposed that meets the demands of the American people, that we protect our children and grandchildren from this enormous $5.9 trillion debt that has been accumulated.

I would like to ask my colleagues how they can explain that, when they are done, the debt will be $5.9 trillion over 5 years.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, I would just like to quickly reiterate and correct the math from the past speaker. If you look at the debt at the end of the 5-year window, the debt by the Republican budget resolution, the total debt subject to limit is actually lower than the debt in the Blue Dog budget, subject to limit, at the end of the 5 year window.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. BASS).

Mr. BASS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, I appreciate the opportunity to rise in support of the Committee on the Budget budget and in opposition to the Blue Dog budget, with all due respect to what I think is a good effort to deal with the issue of debt retirement. However, as is the case in all budgets, we need to achieve balance. I just want to reiterate that what our budget does, most importantly, is to set aside 100 percent of the entire surplus in Social Security for Social Security. That will result in the reduction in the national debt of over $1 trillion over 5 years.

Now, we need to talk apples and apples here. I think, unfortunately, we had a 10-year budget cycle last year. We are back to 5 years this year. We should stick with 5 years, because it is as easy to predict the budget 5 years from now or 6 years from now as it is to predict the weather 6 or 7 days from now. We know with our budget we will strengthen Medicare and provide a prescription drug coverage for seniors; and, if we fail to do it, those resources will go into debt reduction as well.

Our budget will retire the entire public debt, if you believe in projections that go way out, by the year 2013, and our budget balances the issues of debt reduction and a stronger defense with the need to promote tax relief for working Americans. Never have taxes been higher than they are today. As we strive to deal with making a balance in a budget surplus environment, some portion of that budget surplus has to go to tax relief, to eliminate the marriage tax penalty, to eliminate the Social Security earnings limit, just to name a couple of them.

Lastly, what our budget does, and it is so important, is to strengthen support for education and science, most notably to increase funding for IDEA by over $2 billion.

Mr. Chairman, I respect the Blue Dog budget, but I think that our budget is a more balanced budget that will meet the needs of the American people.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arkansas (Mr. BERRY).

Mr. BERRY. Mr. Chairman, I rise tonight in support of the Blue Dog substitute and in opposition to the Republican budget resolution.

The Republican budget is plain and simple, it is irresponsible. Basically their budget adds up to $800 billion in tax cuts that they pay for at the expense of everything else in the budget, especially at the expense of future generations and our Nation's seniors. It puts Social Security and Medicare at risk.

The Blue Dog budget protects our Nation's seniors. It increases funding for discretionary health care programs by $4.6 billion over the Republican budget. This higher funding level will allow for increased funding for rural health care programs, health research, and other programs to expand access to health care.

The Blue Dog budget establishes a Medicare reserve of $40 billion over the next 5 years and $150 billion over the next 10 years. This reserve could be used to extend the solvency of Medicare, create a prescription drug benefit and provide provider relief that is desperately needed by our hospitals.

The Blue Dog budget allocates 25 percent of the debt reduction dividend of the savings and interest on the debt held by the public to provide additional resources for Medicare reform after 2010. We need to do what is right for our Nation's seniors and for our Nation's children and pass the Blue Dog budget.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. GARY MILLER).

Mr. GARY MILLER of California. Mr. Chairman, there has been a lot of debate today. Our budget clearly protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. Our budget strengthens Medicare and prescription drugs. I am going to save retiring the debt to last because I think that is an important issue here. Our budget promotes tax fairness, our budget restores America's defense where it should be, and our budget strengthens and supports education.

The reason we are here today with our debt is because the Democrats controlled this Congress from 1962 to 1994, and every dollar they took in, they spent $1.20. Since Republicans took over Congress, since 1994, for every new dollar we took in, we only spent 50 cents.

But that is not the main issue today. I rise to draw attention as to why we should not pass this amendment, and that is because this amendment puts the Federal budget on auto pilot again. We need to reform government; we need to get rid of the waste.

Let me show my colleagues one agency we could attack to get rid of much of the waste, and that is HUD. HUD is losing taxpayer dollars in huge amounts by keeping large inventories of foreclosed FHA houses. Just let me list a few of the statistics that we have.

The Federal Housing Administration, FHA mortgage insurance paid out almost 77,000 claims, or $6 billion, in 1998. There is no reform for that. That cost is passed on to consumers in higher premiums. In 1997, single-family homes stayed in Federal inventory on an average of 5.4 months; in 1998 it was 6.6 months; and in 1996, they had 25,000 single-family homes in inventory; and in 1998 it increased to 40,000; and in 1999, it was 50,000.

The HUD single-family inventory was valued at $1.9 billion in 1996, and it increased in value to $3.3 billion in 1998. Fifteen percent of HUD inventory properties are held longer than 12 months. The industry average out there has about 3 months in inventory for 12 months. In 1996, the average loss for property was $28,000. In 1998, the average loss had increased to $31,700. The average loss in 1999 was $32,470. If we multiply 50,000 properties in inventory by an average loss of $32,470, it is $1.6 billion.

This is a bad proposal. Let us take government off auto pilot. Let us give people their money back. Let us give people tax cuts. Let us not say that we are going to take the money that belongs to taxpayers and we are going to continue to invest it in programs that do not work. Let us change the Federal Government, and the best way to change the Federal Government is get the money out of Washington. We can do it two ways. Are we going to continue to have government on auto pilot, or are we going to give hard-working people their money back to do what they think they should do with it? This is a bad proposal.

The focus on paying down debt by 2012 compared to our proposal, paying it down by 2013 only changes the focus from the issue of putting government on auto pilot. We need to take it off auto pilot, we need to reform government, we need to get the waste and abuse out of government.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Chairman, American families deserve an honest budget based on realistic and conservative estimates of the surplus, a budget that takes a responsible approach to protecting Social Security and to ensuring that our children will not inherent a big national debt.

The Blue Dog Democrat budget protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus for Social Security. It commits the projected surplus 50 percent to paying down the national debt, 25 percent to saving Social Security and Medicare, and 25 percent to tax relief. It is not fancy, it is not gimmicky, and it does not make promises that it cannot deliver. Most importantly, it is an honest budget that is good for our future.

The Blue Dog budget contrasts sharply with the Republican budget. The Blue Dog budget adopts a more conservative estimate of the surplus. After all, this good economy may not go on forever. The Blue Dog budget makes a stronger commitment to paying off our $5 trillion national debt, rather than risking our historic opportunity to give our children a debt-free America. The Blue Dog budget is stronger on national defense and veterans' health care.

The Blue Dog budget offers a realistic promise that not only will we keep our hands out of the Social Security Trust Fund, but that we will be prepared to put more in it when the baby boom generation retires and those deficits begin to mount in the trust fund. Finally, the Blue Dog budget guarantees that the tax relief we grant will be targeted to working, middle-income families who deserve to have their fair share of the prosperity of this new economy.

Mr. Chairman, I say to my colleagues, do the right thing and support the Blue Dog Democrat budget.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG).

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time. I would just like to say I have the greatest respect for the Blue Dogs; I think they honestly approach things in a straightforward fashion. I just think they are a little shy when it comes to the amount of money that they are getting back to the taxpayer.

With taxes at an all-time high and non-Social Security surpluses growing, we need to provide tax relief to the hard-working Americans who earned it. The Blue Dog budget, as I understand it, would provide a net tax cut of only $36 billion over the next 5 years. That will not even begin to pay for the marriage penalty relief; it will not pay for the Social Security earnings limit or the small business tax relief bills that have been demanded by the American people.

The Republican budget provides tax relief of at least $150 billion over the next 5 years, and an additional $60 billion for tax relief or debt reduction. The Republican budget is a responsible plan for all Americans. We have set our Nation on a course to pay down the public debt, to protect Social Security, to provide needed funds for Medicare reform and with prescription drug coverage. With these priorities met, how can we not justify providing tax relief for the American worker?

Mr. Chairman, this is not our money. It does not belong to Washington bureaucrats; it does not belong to Members of Congress. This budget is paid for by the hard work and the sweat of the American worker. Americans know how better to spend their money than a micromanaging Washington bureaucrat.

By lowering taxes, we will be telling the American people they are more important than bloated government bureaucracy. The Federal tax burden is at an all-time high, as I have said; and taxpayers frankly have overpaid. If we cannot give them their money back now, with the Government in the black and taxes at an all-time high, when the economy is strong, when can we do it?

Mr. Chairman, I urge a no vote on this amendment so that we can give the taxpayers what they rightly deserve.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. PETERSON).

Mr. PETERSON of Minnesota. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Texas for yielding me this time.

I rise today to speak to the agriculture part of the Blue Dog budget. Those of us from farm country, and I think we all ought to listen up and look at what is in this budget for agriculture. As we all know, we have a big problem out in farm country. Farmers are having a tough time. The Blue Dog budget increases the baseline for mandatory agriculture programs by $23.6 billion over the next 5 years, in addition to the $6 billion that is in the Republican budget, as well as ours. The increase in the agriculture baseline will provide funding for crop insurance legislation, initiatives to provide long-term agricultural safety net and income support programs, including dairy.

I would point out to my good friend from Wisconsin, this budget has money to extend the price supports for the program for dairy, and the Republican budget does not. We also have money for agriculture research, expanded conservation research programs. So we have the money to do the kinds of things that we need to do in agriculture.

The Republican budget does not provide any increase in the agriculture baseline beyond the increase necessary to fund crop insurance reform. I want to repeat that. There is no increase in the Republican budget for the baseline, which is going to be very important to us when we move out into doing something meaningful for agriculture in the future. There are no funds in the Republican budget to improve the agriculture safety net by providing any kind of income support program, which we all know we are going to need.

So support the Blue Dog budget, because we provide a greater commitment to agriculture with over $16 billion more than the Republican version over the next 5 years.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), the vice chairman of the Committee on the Budget, a gentleman who has worked long and hard on agriculture issues.

Mr. CHAMBLISS. Mr. Chairman, I want to say, as I said last night, that this budget is not a bad budget. It has a lot of provisions in it that I really like, particularly when it comes to agriculture and defense, two issues which I have a very keen interest in.

But there is a problem here. There are a couple of problems with this budget that need to be addressed; and if those were addressed, it would certainly make it a much better budget.

First of all, there is too much spending. The budget that the Republicans have put forward, really we had hoped would not spend as much money as we do, but we spend $595 billion. The Blue Dog budget spends $606 billion over the next 5 years, and those are uncontrollable expenses out there.

From an agricultural perspective, I agree with the gentleman that we have to work towards a safety net. I am not sure we know what the answer to it is, but some of the things that are in your budget I think do head us down that direction.

But there is one other problem with the agricultural portion in your budget that really ought to be addressed, that is, my farmers want a balance. They want a balance between some sort of income security and some sort of tax relief. The number one issue with my farmers outside of income is estate tax relief, and there is not enough room in the Blue Dog budget to provide for real meaningful estate tax relief.

Now, we are going to get there eventually. I think we are going to wind up working together to get there because I know my colleagues' feelings on that; and I think it is something that ultimately we are going to be able to get together on that is going to be extremely beneficial for farmers. But unless my Democratic colleagues address those major issues in the budget, it simply does not provide for the things that we provide for in the Republican budget that create that balance in agriculture country.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 5 seconds.

I would remind my friend from Georgia that our budget provides a better death tax than the budget that our Republican colleagues are supporting. Our budget does.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD).

(Mr. BOYD asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Stenholm substitute, better known as the Blue Dog budget.

Mr. Chairman, the cornerstone of this budget is debt reduction, and the Republican budget guarantees only $8 billion of their own budget surplus for debt reduction over 5 years. The Blue Dog budget, in contrast, provides $85 billion of their own budget surplus for debt reduction. The Blue Dog budget pays down 30 percent of the publicly held debt over the next 5 years. The Republican budget, in contrast, has most of its debt reduction after 2005.

Secondly, the Blue Dog budget provides realistic domestic discretionary spending levels. The Republican budget calls for a $20 billion inflation-adjusted cut in domestic spending. I say to my colleagues, the 5 years that the Republicans have been in control of this Congress, the average nondefense discretionary spending has increased by 2½ percent. We all know that a $20 billion inflation-adjusted cut is unreasonable. The Blue Dog budget recognizes this and provides for realistic budget-spending levels.

Thirdly, the Blue Dog has five spending-priority areas. Number one is defense, and it provides $15 billion more than the Republican budget in defense.

Fourthly, veterans. It provides over $3 billion more; agriculture, over $2 billion more; education, over $15 billion more; and health care, over $4 billion more than the Republican budget.

In addition to all of this, the Blue Dog budget provides over $36 billion over the next 5 years in tax relief. I say to my colleagues to support the Blue Dog budget, support realistic spending levels that will not require gimmicks in the appropriations process later this year. This is a fiscally-responsible budget, and it provides responsible tax relief.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, may I inquire as to how much time is remaining.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) has 8 minutes remaining; the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) has 8½ minutes remaining.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY).

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Chairman, I thank my colleague for yielding me this time.

The Republican budget as we have heard tonight has six key features, and I want to take a moment to talk about one of them, which is tax relief for hard-working Americans. When we talk about Federal taxes, it is useful to consider the overall context of the Federal budget here.

Let us remember, Federal spending is higher than it has ever been. Federal taxes are higher than any peacetime in our Nation's history. As we heard earlier, about 21 percent of our entire economic output goes to the Federal Government.

What the Republican budget does is it says after we set aside all of the Social Security funds for Social Security and to retire debt and after we pay down $1 trillion in debt over the next 5 years and after we set aside $40 billion of additional funding for Medicare over the next 5 years, and after rebuilding our national defense and reprioritizing funding for elementary and secondary education; after all of that, there is still an unprecedented surplus projected as far as the eye can see.

When taxpayers are paying more money than it takes to fund all of that, then it is obvious to me that taxes are just too high. So the Republican budget offers a modest but a meaningful measure of tax relief and tax fairness. We need to lower taxes and restore to working Americans some more of their freedom to decide how they want to spend their own money.

Our colleagues with this amendment are offering a tiny, little, merely symbolic, but not a real meaningful tax cut. It is just not enough.

Let us remember, when the Federal Government takes people's money away from them, it is taking part of their freedom away. This is money that the government takes from hard-working Americans that they will never be free to spend for themselves as they see fit. It is money that takes time to earn and that means time taken away that folks could spend doing other things like maybe spending more time with their children, maybe caring for an elderly family member, maybe volunteering in their community, or just enjoying some leisure time.

At a time of already huge government spending, record high Federal taxes, it is unconscionable at this point not to provide the American people with the opportunity to keep a little bit more of the money that they earn.

The Republican budget strikes the right balance. No more raiding of the Social Security surplus for the second consecutive year. Funding America's priorities like national defense and education, retiring a trillion dollars of debt over 5 years in tax relief for an overtaxed Nation.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to reject this amendment with its puny, little tax cut and, instead, support the Republican budget.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Louisiana (Mr. JOHN).

Mr. JOHN. Mr. Chairman, truly a budget debate is strictly over priorities, priorities on what one does with one's money. The indisputable champion of debt reduction is the Blue Dog budget, $5.7 trillion, $21,000 for every man, woman, and child to pay off our national debt, $354 billion in interest.

Let me give my colleagues an idea of what that means. That is 100 times more than we spend on cancer research. It is six times more than we pay for salaries for the military, 15 times the size of the veterans' budget. The debt simply should be the priority.

The Republicans say that they pay off the debt by 2013. But their plan allots $50 billion over 5 years towards debt reduction, but it provides a loophole that says that they can use it for tax cuts. I do not understand that.

Let us give a true tax cut. Pay down the debt, keep interest rates low. The Blue Dog plan is the champion.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2½ minutes to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Wisconsin for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, when I sent out my legislative questionnaire, my constituents wanted me to protect Social Security and not spend the surplus. My constituents wanted prescription drug assistance. They wanted us to pay down the debt, and they wanted tax fairness. They wanted a tax cut. That is what our budget does. That is why we see absolutely no reason at all to have any other budget but the one we have.

What have we done? In the year 1999, the last year, we do not spend Social Security. We are not spending it in this year's budget, and we are not spending it in next year's budget. That is in our budget plan.

When we were elected in 1994 and took office in 1995, we were looking at public debt going up $34 billion, $48 billion, $67 billion. That is what we were looking at. Our plan changed that so it goes down rather than up. Public debt is going down.

In fact, what happened is, not only is it going down, it would have continued to go up but we are actually reducing public debt significantly.

What have we paid back? We paid back $51 billion in 1998, $88 billion in 1999, $163 billion in the year we are in now, for $332 billion of debt payment down, and in our budget another $170 billion in the budget to come. That has left us as well the opportunity, out of $10 trillion, to have a $200 billion tax cut.

I am absolutely amazed that we cannot cut 2 percent of our revenue in the next 5 years. We get $10 trillion, and we cannot cut $200 billion? We can, and we do.

We have a marriage penalty tax elimination. We reduce the death tax. We have educational savings account. We have health care deductibility, community renewal, and pension reform. Not a tax cut for the wealthy, as my colleagues would imply, but a tax cut for the middle class.

Then we make sure that, if we get additional surplus, we do not allow Democrats, frankly, to spend it. We set it aside for further debt reduction and more tax cuts. This is a sensible budget. We do not need another one.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. HILL), the newest member of the Indiana Basketball Hall of Fame.

(Mr. HILL of Indiana asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HILL of Indiana. Mr. Chairman, for many years, people in Washington, Democrats and Republicans, have not been writing budgets that use real numbers. The majority's budget we are considering today is more of the same old song and dance, spend money the government does not have and make promises Congress cannot keep.

The budget we are asked to vote on today sets spending levels that we all know will not address our national priorities and forces us to take money from Social Security and increase the national debt.

I am a fiscal conservative Democrat who believes we should write a budget that uses real numbers and makes promises Congress can actually keep. The Blue Dog budget does this. It proves we can write a realistic budget that addresses the national priorities both parties share.

For example, the Blue Dog proposal makes a serious commitment to our national defense and to the men and women who serve in the military. It provides $15 billion more than the Republicans do and the administration's plan and $10 billion for veterans. The Blue Dog budget also calls for a $40 billion tax relief. The American people need it, and we can afford this. It gives families, farms, and small business owners much needed tax relief but within a framework of fiscal responsibility.

The organizing principle behind this Blue Dog budget is restoring fiscal responsibility to a government that has been spending more than it has taken in over the years. It pays off the national debt faster than any other budget proposal the House will consider today.

The moral thing to do is to relieve our children and our grandchildren of this debt. I urge my colleagues to support this Blue Dog budget resolution.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Texas (Mr. Stenholm) has 5½ minutes remaining. The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN) has 3½ minutes remaining.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR).

Mr. TAYLOR of Mississippi. Mr. Chairman, article 1, section 8 of the United States Constitution gives Congress the authority to provide for the common defense. It goes on to say that no money can be drawn from the Treasury except by appropriation by Congress.

For more than a decade, the budget for national defense has decreased. In particular, for the past 6 years, a Democratic President has asked for far too little, and the Republican Congress has achieved almost all of the debt reduction at the expense of our Nation's defense.

The result is its shrinking Navy fleet, almost 300 ships, aging weapons systems, the shortchanging of our men and women in uniform, the delay of their paychecks so that it will go on next year's bill instead of this.

In human terms, it means people like Harry Schein, a Marine Corps lance corporal has to work two part-time jobs to make ends meet and to take care of his son. It means that people like Lisa Joles, the wife of a United States Marine, has to pick up used furniture on the side of the road to take care of her and other Marine families.

But do my colleagues know, it gets worse. Our military retirees who were promised a lifetime of free health care if they served our country honorably for 20 years are being told they cannot come to the base hospital anymore.

The Blue Dog budget increases defense spending over the Republican proposal by over $4 billion a year. One billion dollars of that would fulfill the promise of lifetime health care to our military retirees. That proposal has been endorsed by over 24 veterans organizations.

The other $3 billion can go to address the pay problems. It can go to address the aging weapons systems. It can go to take care of readiness.

The promise that was made to our service members and military retirees are more important than the promises that were made over a steak dinner and cocktails to some big contributor for a tax break.

Tonight my colleagues get to decide which they think are more important.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield 30 seconds to the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. BISHOP).

Mr. BISHOP. Mr. Chairman, I support the Blue Dog budget very simply because it provides debt reduction with savings to Social Security and Medicare, priority spending for education, veterans, agriculture, defense, health care and prescription drugs, and provides responsible tax relief from the death tax, the marriage penalty, and it gives deductions for health care to the self-employed. It is a good budget. It is fiscally responsible, and we just ought to pass it.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Chairman, the caps are right. The budget we will consider next recognizes the gimmicks in the budget that we are considering at the base bill.

The reason my colleagues can claim all of the things that they claim regarding debt is they are back end loading. They are in fact double counting in areas in which many of them who have been speaking do not truly appreciate what their committee has done. They are back end loading.

It is true when we talk about Social Security and our tax cuts, it is true, ours are puny compared to theirs. The problem is that theirs explodes in 2014 when the Social Security drain will become real. When the baby boomers become retirees and begin drawing Social Security, that is when their tax cut will become a problem that the Blue Dogs wish to avoid. I wish they would recognize that.

We have been criticized for too much spending, but at the same time folks on this side have said we agree with your military spending. We agree with your defense spending. We agree with your spending for veterans. They cannot have it both ways. Ours is the most responsible.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 5 seconds to rebut.

The difference between the Blue Dog budget and the Republican budget is that the Blue Dog budget cuts less taxes and spends more money.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU).

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, one of the previous speakers, the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY), described very clearly what the fundamental difference is between these two budgets.

The Republican budget, after we set aside every single penny of the Social Security surplus, and after we set aside $40 billion for medical care reforms and prescription drug coverage, and after we pay down $1 trillion in debt over 5 years, and after we fund critical needs and defense, $2 billion more for the unfunded mandate of special education costs, after we invest in veterans' health care, only then do we recognize the importance of letting Americans keep a little bit more of their own money.

The Blue Dog budget just does not understand this. It is a minuscule tax cut over 5 years.

Let us look at the difference, the difference in values here. This is the tax relief in the Republican budget and the marriage penalty. Now, we could pay down a little bit more debt if we wanted to keep penalizing married couples simply because they chose to get married, but that would be wrong.

Repeal the Social Security earnings limit. We could pay down a little bit more debt if we wanted to keep punishing those seniors that want to be a productive part of the workforce, but that would be terribly wrong.

We could keep taxing family farms and small businesses, send them to the IRS and the undertaker on the same day, but that would be wrong.

We could decide not to give individuals health insurance deductibilities just like we give to big corporations, but that would be wrong.

Sure, we could pay down a little bit more debt in addition to the trillion dollars in debt over 5 years, but that would be wrong.

We fundamentally recognize that what we need to do is not just reduce the tax burden on citizens in this country, which is at an all-time high, but we need to make the Tax Code more fair through health insurance deductibility, eliminating the death tax, repealing the earnings limit, and expanding the opportunity to invest in IRAs and education savings accounts. The Republican proposal does just that.

Reject this amendment that does not treat the American taxpayer fairly and support the Republican resolution.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. SISISKY).

(Mr. SISISKY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SISISKY. Mr. Chairman, I didn't now whether I was going to get into this debate or not. But after listening to everything that has been said today, I think I have to. Make no mistake about it: I support the Blue Dog Budget.

The Blue Dog Budget is the most balanced plan of any before us. It eliminates the public debt more quickly than any other plan. It makes room for responsible tax cuts. It provides realistic discretionary spending. It makes Medicare work better. It saves 100% of the Social Security surplus.

It addresses many other problems, ranging from agriculture to health care for military retirees, in better ways than any other option.

But what is of major importance to me is—over the next five years, it increases defense discretionary spending by $32 billion over the inflated baseline.

What's good about that is that it's $15 billion more than the Republican budget.

What's problematic is that it still doesn't meet unfunded requirements submitted by the service chiefs. To do that, you would need to add at least $15 billion a year for the next five years. And while not going that far, the Blue Dog Budget clearly moves us closer to meeting our requirements. And let me tell you why that's important.

Our fleet admirals say they need more than 350 ships to carry out the missions assigned today. But we're not building enough ships.

The Army is trying to build a force that is both more maneuverable and more lethal—in order to respond to current contingencies.

But we're forcing them to achieve that goal by canceling systems and undercutting current capabilities. There's not enough money. And the future of the Air Force depends on whether we can afford the development of two new planes, the F–22 and joint strike fighter.

You know what's so great about those two planes? They have the capabilities and characteristics to ensure that their pilots always come home. You only have to think back to Kosovo, where we lost two aircraft and no pilots, to see how important that is.

Nevertheless, with money so tight, I'm afraid we may postpone one of the programs simply to harvest the money for other defense programs. I hope it doesn't come to that, but that's how desperate the situation really is.

Not only are we short of money, we're short of people. We've negated our commitments to health care.

The net result is that veterans and military retirees—from families who have served this country for many generations—are telling their sons and daughters: ''Don't go into the service, they don't keep their promises.'' That's a very sad state of affairs.

It's a state of affairs that the Blue Dog budget tries to remedy, in part, by adding nearly $7 billion more for military retiree health care, and $10 billion more for veterans programs, than the Republican plan. I could go on and on. There are so many constructive solutions in the Blue Dog budget.

Unless you have a political agenda that carries you off in some other direction, this should be the easiest budget to vote for.

I ask you to support responsible, constructive solutions that will strengthen our nation at home and abroad. Vote ''yes'' on the Blue Dog budget.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. TANNER).

(Mr. TANNER asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. TANNER. Mr. Chairman, it has been a long day, and I think almost everything has been said, just not everyone has had a chance to say it.

I think it would be wise to remind ourselves that a budget and a budget resolution is merely a forecast of future economic events with an attending set of priorities based thereon.

It has been very well pointed out by the speakers before me that this country is right now laboring with a 13 percent mortgage on us. Over $300 billion a year. Now, my colleagues, no rational businessperson on earth, with a 13 percent mortgage on his business, would not make it a priority, when he came into some extra money, to reduce that staggering overhead.

My colleagues say the American people are overtaxed. We agree. And the reason they are overtaxed is because they are lugging around a 13 percent mortgage on themselves and their country.

Now, President Eisenhower said one time that he considered no money here in Washington a surplus as long as the Nation's children had a debt. And I know that all my colleagues have a priority of tax relief for the here and now, but the Blue Dog budget has a priority for tax relief for the then and there.

It is simply wrong to leave this country to our children, our posterity, with water so dirty that fish cannot live in it, air so polluted people cannot breathe it, and a 13 percent mortgage on it that they are going to have to strain and struggle and pay for eternity. That is simply wrong.

Our priority is debt reduction first, funding the programs we need to for the military; for the agriculture sector; for veterans; for education and for health care. It is a balanced budget. Tax relief for some; but more importantly, tax relief for those who follow.

This country will be stronger if we adopt the Blue Dog budget.

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH), the chairman of the Committee on the Budget.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, let me first of all pay tribute to the Blue Dogs, because I think what the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) said early on is right. I think the Blue Dogs have made an enormous contribution in this House towards the effort of being able to balance a budget and pay down debt.

I am, however, a little bit mystified with this budget because I have always felt that the Blue Dogs did not like the tax cuts because they wanted to pay down more debt. And in this budget they do not have the tax cuts, and they do not even pay down as much debt as we do. They went into the spending mode. We actually pay down $25 billion more than the Blue Dogs do.

But I want to pose a challenge to the Blue Dogs, because I am hopeful that we are going to beat their budget, and I am hopeful ours will pass. I think my colleagues ought to like our budget. It does cut a lot of taxes, but it pays down a trillion dollars in debt; and it does restrain spending, and it does protect Social Security. So I would ask my colleagues to think about it when we get to final passage.

But I also want my colleagues to know that today we unveiled, I think it was 170,000 general accounting reports today on waste, fraud and abuse in the Federal Government. And the Committee on the Budget is going to start an effort to try to root out that waste in order to make this government more efficient. And we need the Blue Dogs. We need all my colleagues to participate with us, and we invite them to participate with us through the Committee on the Budget. If Members want to come and sit with us, we would like to deputize them.

I think on a bipartisan basis we ought to attack the waste and the fraud and the abuse, and set our priorities. And the things that touch my colleagues' hearts, the poverty, they touch all our hearts too. So let us prioritize; but at the same time, let us clean it up and let us do it together.

Mr. DINGELL. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the Blue Dog budget which balances fiscal responsibility with the need to adequately fund programs addressing our national priorities and needs. The Blue Dog budget is a responsible plan that balances the budget and retires public debt without tapping into the Social Security trust fund.

Mr. Chairman, I am particularly pleased the Blue Dog budget provides needed funding to expand the Montgomery G.I. bill. The Armed Forces face serious recruiting problems. In order to meet our defense needs, the Armed Forces must have the tools it needs to draw men and women into uniform. The Montgomery G.I. bill has proven to be the military's most valuable recruiting tool. Unfortunately, the combination of a substantially devalued G.I. bill, which now pays only 36 percent of the cost of receiving a 4-year college education, and expanded Federal financial assistance to college-bound students without military service has crippled the G.I. bill's effectiveness.

Recent recruiting gimmicks such as psychedelic humvees, Spike Lee advertisements, drag racers, or desperate cash giveaways are not the answer to these problems. Nor is conscription. Congress would best help our Armed Forces by improving the G.I. bill. Providing access to higher education in exchange for national service is the right thing to do. A strong G.I. bill helps veterans and their families, aids our national defense, and strengthens the economy.

Last year, my colleague, LANE EVANS and I introduced the Montgomery GI Bill Expansion Act (H.R. 1071) to ensure that our All-Volunteer Armed Forces had the ability to attract recruits, and, at the same time, provide veterans with the skills they need to better our economy and their lives. The Blue Dog budget wisely provides funding to expand the G.I. bill in line with H.R. 1071 and will restore the MGIB's value both as a meaningful readjustment benefit and an effective recruiting incentive.

Mr. Chairman, the Blue Dog budget is good for America's veterans and soldiers and is a solid blueprint for our Nation's future. Unlike the Republican budget that would foolishly squander the surplus, the responsible Blue Dog budget pays down the national debt. It will put the nation on a course to eliminate the publicly held debt by 2012 with a strong, immediate commitment to debt reduction. In addition to this, it provides for needed investments in our Nation's health, establishing a $40 billion Medicare reserve fund that can be used to fund Medicare reform and a prescription drug benefit for our seniors.

Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to do the right thing for veterans, soldiers and our nation's future. Vote for the Blue Dog budget.

Mr. MOORE. Mr. Chairman, I rise today in strong support of the conservative Blue Dog substitute to H. Con. Res. 290, the fiscal year 2001 budget resolution, because it establishes a responsible fiscal framework for Congress to maintain a true balanced budget and to eliminate our national debt.

The majority's budget resolution calls for $596.5 billion in discretionary spending for fiscal year 2001, which is 2 percent more than the current levels. This budget protects funding for some education programs, veterans, and the NIH; however, it does so at the expense of other domestic priorities—most of which would be cut by the majority, on average, by nearly 10 percent. While I commend the majority's discipline on setting spending levels and prioritizing funding for some of our most pressing domestic needs, I am disappointed about the insistence on passing huge tax cuts that jeopardize our efforts to save Social Security, protect Medicare, and pay down the national debt.

Additionally, the majority plan sets no funding aside to extend the solvency of Social Security one single day. While the majority plan creates a ''reserve'' that could be used to fund Medicare reform or provide a prescription drug benefit; however, how these funds might be used are undefined. Finally, the majority plan provides little, if any room for debt reduction; they allow for a $150 billion tax cut that could explode to almost $250 billion if the majority uses its $40 billion Medicare ''reserve'' for tax cuts and the additional $50 billion reserve for tax cuts. Worse, if both reserves are used, all on-budget surpluses would be wiped out and there would be a $7 billion on-budget deficit in fiscal year 2004.

The majority's budget resolution clearly guides us down the wrong fiscal path by proposing risky tax cuts that will return us to an era of fiscal deficits and exploding national debt, without extending Social Security solvency, protecting Medicare, or reducing any of our national debt.

Similarly, the Democratic alternative does not do enough to focus on this nation's most pressing needs. While this substitute preserves Social Security and Medicare for the long run, begins paying down our national debt and provides targeted tax relief, it forsakes immediate attention to these needs by unnecessarily increasing discretionary spending levels by calling for $19.2 billion in spending increases for fiscal year 2001 and $118.3 billion more in discretionary budget authority than the majority's plan over five years. Like the majority budget resolution, the Democratic alternative directs our fiscal resources away from Social Security away from Medicare and away from debt reduction.

The conservative Blue Dog budget, by contrast, sets out responsible budgetary policy that achieves and maintains a true balanced budget raiding Social Security. The Blue Dog budget reserve half of the on-budget surpluses for debt reduction rather than spending it on tax cuts or new programs. This will allow the budget to remain balanced without dipping into the Social Security trust fund even if optimistic budget projections don't materialize. The Blue Dog budget divides the remaining half on the on-budge surplus between tax reduction and shoring up our nation's commitment to our other domestic priorities—education, veterans, health care and a strong national defense.

Mr. Chairman, the conservative Blue Dog budget, by prudently and responsibly allocating our resources, will allow this nation to maintain our unprecedented economic growth. This budget gets back to basic and common sense principles that most American families follow in their daily lives: Paying our debts; don't spend money we don't have; and provide for basic needs.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting the conservative Blue Dog budget substitute.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute, as modified, offered by the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 171, noes 243, answered ''present'' 1, not voting 19, as follows:

(A) New budget authority, −$50,100,000,000.
(B) Outlays, −$50,100,000,000.

SEC. 4. RECONCILIATION.

(a) SUBMISSIONS REGARDING REVENUES.—In addition to changes in revenues included the House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill—

(1) not later than May 19, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $4,100,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $50,700,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005;

(2) not later than May 19, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $578,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $12,984,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005;

(3) not later than May 19, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $2,353,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $45,750,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005;

(4) not later than May 26, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $5,200,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $26,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005;

(5) not later than June 23, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $500,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $15,600,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005;

(6) not later than July 28, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $476,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $7,718,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005; and

(7) not later than September 22, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the total level of revenues by not more than: $0 for Fiscal Year 2001, and $113,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005;

(b) SUBMISSIONS REGARDING DEBT HELD BY THE PUBLIC.—The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill—

(1) not later than May 26, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the debt held by the public by not more than $10,000,000,000 for Fiscal Year 2001; and

(2) not later than September 22, 2000 that consists of changes in laws within its jurisdiction sufficient to reduce the debt held by the public by not more than $40,000,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2002 through 2005.

(c) SUBMISSIONS REGARDING MEDICARE.—The House Committee on Ways and Means shall report to the House a reconciliation bill not later than September 22, 2000 that reforms the medicare program and provides coverage for prescription drugs, but not to exceed $4 billion in new budget authority and $4,000,000,000 in outlays for fiscal year 2001 and −$2,000,000,000 in new budget authority and −$2,000,000,000 in outlays for the period fiscal years 2001 through 2005.

SEC. 5. SPECIAL PROCEDURES TO SAFEGUARD TAX RELIEF.

(a) ADJUSTMENTS.—

(1) Upon the reporting of a reconciliation bill by the Committee on Ways and Means pursuant to section 4(a) or, the offering of an amendment to, or the submission of a conference report on, H.R. 3081, H.R. 6, or H.R. 2990, whichever occurs first, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House shall reduce to zero the revenue aggregates set forth in section 2(1)(B) (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

(2) After making the adjustments referred to in paragraph (1), and whenever the Committee on Ways and Means reports any reconciliation bill pursuant to section 4(a) (or an amendment thereto is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted or an amendment to H.R. 3081, H.R. 6, or H.R. 2990 is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted after the date of adoption of this resolution, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House shall increase the levels by which Federal revenues should be reduced by the amount of revenue loss caused by such measure for each applicable year or period, but not to exceed, after taking into account any other bill or joint resolution enacted during this session of the One Hundred Sixth Congress that causes a reduction in revenues for such year or period, $ in fiscal year 2001 and $ for the period of fiscal year 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

(b) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments made pursuant to subsection (a)(1) for any measure shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

SEC. 6. RESERVE FUND FOR AUGUST UPDATE REVISION OF BUDGET SURPLUSES.

(a) REPORTING A SURPLUS.—If the Congressional Budget Office report referred to in subsection (b) projects an increase in the surplus for fiscal year 2000, fiscal year 2001, and the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 over the corresponding levels set forth in its economic and budget forecast for 2001 submitted pursuant to section 202(c)(1) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House may make the adjustments as provided in subsection (c).

(b) CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET OFFICE UPDATED BUDGET FORECAST FOR FISCAL YEAR 2001.—The report referred to in subsection (a) is the Congressional Budget Office updated budget forecast for fiscal year 2001.

(c) ADJUSTMENTS.—If the Committee on Ways and Means reports any reconciliation bill pursuant to section 4(a) (or an amendment thereto is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted), or an amendment to H.R. 3081, H.R. 6, or H.R. 2990 is offered or a conference report thereon is submitted after the date of adoption of this resolution that, after taking into account any other bill or joint resolution enacted during this session of the One Hundred Sixth Congress that causes a reduction in revenues for such year or period, would cause the level by which Federal revenues should be reduced, as set forth in section 2(1)(B) for fiscal year 2001 or for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005, to be exceeded, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget of the House may increase the levels by which Federal revenues should be reduced by the amount exceeding such level resulting from such measure for each applicable year or period, but not to exceed the increase in the surplus for such year or period in the report referred to in subsection (a).

(d) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments made pursuant to subsection (c) for any measure shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

SEC. 7. SAFE DEPOSIT BOX FOR SOCIAL SECURITY SURPLUSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) under the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, the social security trust funds are off-budget for purposes of the President's budget submission and the concurrent resolution on the budget;

(2) the social security trust funds have been running surpluses for 17 years;

(3) these surpluses have been used to implicitly finance the general operations of the Federal Government;

(4) in fiscal year 2001, the social security surplus will exceed $166 billion;

(5) for the first time, a concurrent resolution on the budget balances the Federal budget without counting the social security surpluses;

(6) the only way to ensure that social security surpluses are not diverted for other purposes is to balance the budget exclusive of such surpluses; and

(7) Congress and the President should take such steps as are necessary to ensure that future budgets are balanced excluding the surpluses generated by the social security trust funds.

(b) POINT OF ORDER.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any revision to this resolution or a concurrent resolution on the budget for fiscal year 2002, or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that sets forth a deficit for any fiscal year.

(2) DEFICIT LEVELS.—For purposes of this subsection, a deficit shall be the level (if any) set forth in the most recently agreed to concurrent resolution on the budget for that fiscal year pursuant to section 301(a)(3) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SEC. 8. DEBT REDUCTION LOCK-BOX.

POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any reported bill or joint resolution, or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon, that would cause a surplus for fiscal year 2001 to be less than the level (as adjusted) set forth in section 2(4) for that fiscal year.

(b) SPECIAL RULE.—The level of the surplus for purposes of subsection (a) shall not take into account any adjustment made under section 314(a)(1)(C) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

SEC. 9. RESERVE FUND FOR AGRICULTURE IN FISCAL YEAR 2001.

If the Committee on Agriculture of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that provides risk management or income assistance for agricultural producers, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may increase the allocation of new budget authority and outlays to that committee by the amount of new budget authority (and the outlays resulting therefrom) if such legislation does not exceed $ in new budget authority and $ in outlays for fiscal year 2001 and $ in new budget authority and $ in outlays for the period of fiscal years 2001 through 2005 (and make all other appropriate conforming adjustments).

SEC. 10. RESERVE FUND FOR RETIREMENT SECURITY

Whenever the Committee on Ways and Means of the House reports a bill or joint resolution, or an amendment thereto is offered (in the House), or a conference report thereon is submitted that enhances retirement security through structural programmatic reform and the creation of personal retirement accounts, the chairman of the Committee on the Budget may—

(1) increase the appropriate allocations and aggregates of new budget authority and outlays by the amount of new budget authority provided by such measure (and outlays flowing therefrom) for that purpose;

(2) reduce the revenue aggregates by the amount of the revenue loss resulting from that measure for that purpose; and

(3) make all other appropriate conforming adjustments.

SEC. 11. APPLICATION AND EFFECT OF CHANGES IN ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.

(a) APPLICATION.—Any adjustments of allocation and aggregates made pursuant to section 9 or 10 for any measure shall—

(1) apply while that measure is under consideration;

(2) take effect upon the enactment of that measure; and

(3) be published in the Congressional Record as soon as practicable.

(b) EFFECT OF CHANGED ALLOCATIONS AND AGGREGATES.—Revised allocations and aggregates resulting from these adjustments shall be considered for the purposes of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 as allocations and aggregates contained in this resolution.

(c) BUDGET COMMITTEE DETERMINATIONS.—For purposes of this resolution—

(1) the levels of new budget authority, outlays, direct spending, new entitlement authority, revenues, deficits, and surpluses for a fiscal year or period of fiscal years shall be determined on the basis of estimates made by the Committee on the Budget of the House of Representatives or the Senate, as applicable; and

(2) such chairman, as applicable, may make any other necessary adjustments to such levels to carry out this resolution.

SEC. 12. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING THE STABILIZATION OF CERTAIN FEDERAL PAYMENTS TO STATES, COUNTIES, AND BOROUGHS.

It is the sense of the House that Federal revenue-sharing payments to States, countries, and boroughs pursuant to the Act of May 23, 1908 (35 Stat. 260; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of March 1, 1911 (36 Stat. 963; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of August 8, 1937 (chapter 876; 50 Stat. 875; 43 U.S.C. 1181f), the Act of May 24, 1939 (chapter 144; 53 Stat. 753, 43 U.S.C. 1181f–1 et seq.), and sections 13982 and 13983 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (Public Law 103–66; 16 U.S.C. 500 note; 43 U.S.C. 1181f note) should be stabilized and maintained for the long-term benefit of schools, roads, public services, and communities, and that providing such permanent, stable funding is a priority of the 106th Congress.

SEC. 13. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON DIRECTING THE INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE TO ACCEPT NEGATIVE NUMBERS IN FARM INCOME AVERAGING.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) farmers' and ranchers' income vary widely from year to year due to uncontrollable markets and unpredictable weather;

(2) in the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, Congress enacted 3-year farm income averaging to protect agricultural producers from excessive tax rates in profitable years;

(3) last year, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) proposed final regulations for averaging farm income which fail to make clear that taxable income in a given year may be a negative number; and

(4) this IRS interpretation can result in farmers having to pay additional taxes during years in which they experience a loss in income.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that during this session of the 106th Congress, legislation should be considered to direct the Internal Revenue Service to count any net loss of income in determining the proper rate of taxation.

SEC. 14. SENSE OF THE HOUSE ON ESTIMATES OF THE IMPACT OF REGULATIONS ON THE PRIVATE SECTOR.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that—

(1) the Federal regulatory system sometimes adversely affects many Americans and businesses by imposing financial burdens with little corresponding public benefit:

(2) currently, Congress has no general mechanism for assessing the financial impact of regulatory activities on the private sector;

(3) Congress is ultimately responsible for making sure agencies act in accordance with congressional intent and while the executive branch is responsible for promulgating regulations, Congress ultimately can and should curb ineffective regulations by using its oversight and regulatory powers; and

(4) a variety of reforms have been suggested to increase congressional oversight over regulatory activity, including directing the President to prepare an annual accounting statement containing several cost/benefit analyses, recommendations to reform inefficient regulatory programs, and an identification and analysis of duplications and inconsistencies among such programs.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that the House should reclaim its role as reformer and take the first step toward curbing inefficient regulatory activity by passing legislation authorizing the Congressional Budget Office to prepare regular estimates on the impact of proposed Federal regulations on the private sector.

SEC. 15. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON PROVIDING ADDITIONAL DOLLARS TO THE CLASSROOM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress finds that—

(1) strengthening America's public schools while respecting State and local control is critically important to the future of our children and our Nation;

(2) education is a local responsibility, a State priority, and a national concern;

(3) a partnership with the Nation's governors, parents, teachers, and principals must take place in order to strengthen public schools and foster educational excellence;

(4) the consideration of various Federal education programs will benefit our Nation's children, parents, and teachers by sending more dollars directly to the classroom; and

(5) our Nation's children deserve an educational system that will provide opportunities to excel.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Congress should enact legislation that would consolidate thirty-one Federal K–12 education programs; and

(2) the Department of Education, the States, and local educational agencies should work together to ensure that not less than 95 percent of all funds appropriated for the purpose of carrying out elementary and secondary education programs administered by the Department of Education is spent for our children in their classrooms.

SEC. 16. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING TAX RELIEF.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds that this concurrent resolution dedicates $272,800,000 over 5 years to reduce the tax burden on American families.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that these funds should be used to—

(1) eliminate the marriage penalty by enacting into law the provisions of H.R. 6;

(2) increase access to health care by enacting into law the revenue provisions of H.R. 2990;

(3) provide tax relief to small business owners by enacting into law the revenue provisions of H.R. 3832;

(4) repeal the 1993 tax increase on Social Security benefits;

(5) expand educational opportunities by expanding Education Savings Accounts;

(6) repeal the 1993 4.3 cent tax increase on motor fuels;

(7) repeal the ''death tax''.

SEC. 17. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING SOCIAL SECURITY REFORM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) For more than 30 years, the Social Security Trust Fund has been used to mask on-budget deficits and this year the debt to the Social Security Trust Fund will exceed $1 trillion,

(2) While the debt held by the public will decrease over the next 10 years, the debt owed to the Social Security Trust Fund will continue to increase and the national debt is projected, by the Congressional Budget Office, to increase to more than $6 trillion by Fiscal Year 2006.

(3) By 2014, in order to pay benefits, the Social Security Trust Fund will begin redeeming the certificates of debt that are currently held and if nothing is done to reform the system before then, Congress will be forced to implement emergency provisions that either raise taxes, increase publicly held debt, or cut benefits,

(4) Although the Social Security Trust Fund has been taken off-budget, the only true way to prohibit Congress and the President from borrowing from the surpluses of the Social Security Trust Fund is to return those surpluses to workers today in the form of rebates to be used solely for the purposes of personal retirement accounts,

(5) Personal Retirement Accounts are the key to true retirement security and wealth creation that is owned and controlled by the worker, not the government.

(6) Only through Personal Retirement Accounts can this country achieve a fully-funded retirement program, and not one dependent on the taxation of the next generation.

(7) Sec. 10 of this concurrent resolution provides the necessary authority to accommodate structural Social Security reform that includes personal retirement accounts within the Fiscal Year 2001 budget.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that prior to the adjournment of the 106th Congress that Congress should enact structural Social Security reform that includes personal retirement accounts.

SEC. 18. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING THE MODERNIZATION AND IMPROVEMENT OF THE MEDICARE PROGRAM.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) The health insurance coverage provided under the Medicare Program under title XVIII of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 1395 et seq.) is an integral part of the financial security for retired and disabled individuals, as such coverage protects those individuals against the financially ruinous costs of a major illness.

(2) During the nearly 35 years since the Medicare Program was established, the Nation's health care delivery and financing system has undergone major transformations. However, the Medicare Program has not kept pace with such transformations.

(3) Former Congressional Budget Office Director Robert Reischauer has described the Medicare Program as it exists today as failing on the following four key dimensions (known as the ''Four I's''):

(A) The program is inefficient.

(B) The program is inequitable.

(C) The program is inadequate.

(D) The program is insolvent.

(4) The recommendations by Senator JOHN BREAUX and Representative WILLIAM THOMAS received the bipartisan support of a majority of members on the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare.

(5) The Breaux-Thomas recommendations provide for new prescription drug coverage for the neediest beneficiaries within a plan that substantially improves the solvency of the Medicare Program without transferring new IOUs to the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund that must be redeemed later by raising taxes, cutting benefits, or borrowing more from the public.

(6) Sec. 4 of this concurrent resolution provides the necessary authority to accommodate structural Medicare reform within the Fiscal Year 2001 budget.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that:

(1) Congress should work in a bipartisan fashion to extend the solvency of the Medicare Program and to ensure that benefits under that program will be available to beneficiaries in the future.

(2) The recommendations by Senator BREAUX and Congressman THOMAS provide for new prescription drug coverage for the neediest beneficiaries within a plan that substantially improves the solvency of the Medicare Program without transferring to the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund new IOUs that must be redeemed later by raising taxes, cutting benefits, or borrowing more from the public.

(3) Congress should move expeditiously to consider the bipartisan recommendations of the Chairmen of the National Bipartisan Commission on the Future of Medicare.

SEC. 19. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING FOREIGN AID.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) The nation of Israel has been a reliable and dependable ally to the United States.

(2) The United States' support for Israel is vital to achieving peace in the Middle East.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that aid to Israel should not be reduced.

SEC. 20. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING DEPARTMENT AND AGENCY AUDITS AND WASTE, FRAUD, AND ABUSE.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) Each branch of government and every department and agency has a fiduciary responsibility to ensure that tax dollars are spent in the most efficient and effective manner possible and to eliminate mismanagement, waste, fraud, and abuse.

(2) A minimal measure of whether a department or agency is upholding its fiduciary responsibility is its ability to pass an audit.

(3) The most recent audits, for Fiscal Year 1998, revealed that six major agencies—the Department of Agriculture, Defense, Education, Justice, and Transportation, and the Agency for International Development—could not provide financial statements that could be independently audited.

(4) Mismanagement, waste, fraud, and abuse cost American taxpayers billions of dollars.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that no agency or department which has failed its most recent audit should receive an increase in their budget over the previous year, unless the availability of the increased funds is contingent upon the completion of a complete and successful financial audit.

SEC. 21. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING TITLE X FUNDING.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) The title X of the Public Health Service Act family planning program provides contraceptives, treatment for sexually transmitted diseases, and sexual counseling to minors without parental consent or notification.

(2) Almost 1,500,000 American minors receive title X family planning services each year.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that organizations or businesses which receive funds through Federal programs should obtain parental consent or confirmation of parental notification before contraceptives are provided to a minor.

SEC. 22. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING INTERNATIONAL POPULATION CONTROL PROGRAMS.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) There is international consensus that under no circumstances should abortion be promoted as a method of family planning.

(2) The United States provides the largest percentage of population control assistance among donor nations.

(3) The activities of private organizations supported by United States taxpayers are a reflection of United States priorities in developing countries, and United States funds allow these organizations to expand their programs and influence.

(4) The United Nations Population Fund (UNFPA) has signed contracts with the People's Republic of China (PRC) which persists in coercing its people to obtain abortions and undergo involuntary sterilizations.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that—

(1) United States taxpayers should not be forced to support international family planning programs;

(2) if the Congress is unwilling to stop supporting international family planning programs with taxpayer dollars, the Congress should limit such support to organizations that certify they will not perform, or lobby for the legalization of, abortions in other countries; and

(3) United States taxpayers should not be forced to support the United Nations Populations Fund (UNFPA) if it is conducting activities in the People's Republic of China (PRC) and the PRC's population control program continues to utilize coercive abortion.

SEC. 23. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING HUMAN EMBRYO RESEARCH.

(a) FINDINGS.—The House finds the following:

(1) Human life is a precious resource which should not be created or destroyed simply for scientific experiments.

(2) A human embryo is a human being that must be accorded the moral status of a person from the time of fertilization.

(b) SENSE OF THE HOUSE.—It is the sense of the House that Congress should prohibit the use of taxpayer dollars for the creation of human embryos for research purposes and research in which human embryos are knowingly destroyed, a prohibition which also excludes support for stem cell research which depends upon the intentional killing of a living human embryo.

SEC. 24. SENSE OF THE HOUSE REGARDING FUNDING OF UNAUTHORIZED PROGRAMS.

(a) The House finds that—

(1) Each year, the House Appropriations Committee provides funding to hundreds of programs whose authorization has expired or were never authorized by an Act of Congress.

(2) For Fiscal Year 2000, there were 247 programs funded in 137 laws totaling over $120 billion whose authorization had expired.

(3) Rule XXI of the Rules of the House of Representatives prohibits the funding of an appropriation which has not been authorized by law.

(4) The House Rules Committee typically waives Rule XXI when considering general appropriation bills.

(5) The respective authorizing committees have not made reauthorization of unauthorized programs a priority.

(6) The lack of congressional oversight over the years, some as late as 1979, has led to the deterioration of the power of the respective authorizing Committees and thus the loss of congressional oversight and fiscal responsibility, which is a blow to the voters of America and their role in the process.

(7) The lack of congressional oversight over the years has led to the shift of power away from the Legislative Branch toward the Executive Branch and unelected federal bureaucrats.

(b) It is the sense of the House that—

(1) Congress should pass, and the President should sign into law, legislation to amend the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 to require Congress to fund programs that are currently unauthorized at 90 percent of prior fiscal year levels.

(2) Congress should pass, and the President should sign into law, legislation to require the Congressional Budget Office to prepare budget baselines based on the figures where unauthorized programs are frozen and funded at 90 percent of current levels.

SEC. 25. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON FULLY FUNDING OF SPECIAL EDUCATION.

(a) Congress finds that—

(1) all children deserve a quality education, including children with disabilities;

(2) the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act provides that the Federal, State and local governments are to share in the expense of educating children with disabilities and commits the Federal Government to pay up to 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure for children with disabilities;

(3) the high cost of educating children with disabilities and the Federal Government's failure to fully meet its obligation under the Individual with Disabilities Education Act stretches limited State and local education funds, creating difficulty in providing a quality education to all students, including children with disabilities;

(4) the current level of Federal funding to States and localities under the Individual with Disabilities Act is contrary to the goal of ensuring that children with disabilities receive a quality education;

(5) the Federal Government has failed to fully fund the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act and appropriate 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure per child with a disability as required under the Individual with Disabilities Act to assist States and localities to educate children with disabilities;

(6) the levels in function 500 (Education) for fiscal year 2001 assume sufficient discretionary budget authority to accommodate fiscal year 2001 appropriations for IDEA at least $11 billion above such funding levels appropriated in fiscal year 2000, thus, fully funding the Federal Government's commitment to special education;

(7) the levels in function 500 (Education) to accommodate the fiscal year 2001 appropriation for fully funding IDEA may be reached by eliminating inefficient, ineffective and unauthorized education programs.

(b) It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Congress and the President should increase function 500 (Education) fiscal year 2001 funding for programs under the Individual with Disabilities Act by at least $11 billion above fiscal year 2000 appropriated levels, thus fully funding the Federal Government's commitment;

(2) Congress and the President can accomplish the goal by eliminating inefficient, ineffective and unauthorized education programs.

SEC. 26. ACTION PURSUANT TO SECTION 302(b)(1) OF THE CONGRESSIONAL BUDGET ACT.

(a) COMPLIANCE.—When complying Section 302(b)(1) of Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee on Appropriations of each House shall consult with the Committee on Appropriations of the other House to ensure that the allocation of budget outlays and new budget authority among each Committee's subcommittees are identical.

(b) REPORT.—The Committee on Appropriations of each House shall report to its House when it determines that the report made by the Committee pursuant to Section 301(b) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 and the report made by the Committee on Appropriations of the other House pursuant to the same provision contain identical allocations of budget outlays and new budget authority among each Committee's subcommittees.

(c) POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report providing new discretionary budget authority for Fiscal Year 2001 allocated to the Committee on Appropriations unless and until the Committee on Appropriations of that House has made the report required under paragraph (b) of this Section.

SEC. 27. CHANGES TO HOUSE RULES.

(a) Rule XIII(f)(1)(B) of the Rules of the House Representatives is amended by striking the section and inserting the following:

''(B) a list of all appropriations contained in the bill for expenditures not currently authorized by law along with the last year for which the expenditure was authorized, the level of expenditures authorized that year, the actual level of expenditure that year, and the level of expenditure contained in the accompanying bill (This provision shall not apply to classified intelligence or national security programs, projects or activities).''

(b) Rule X 2.(d) of the Rules of the House of Representatives is amended by adding at the end of section (b) the following and redesignating (C) as (D):

''(C) give priority consideration to including in its plan the review of those laws which are currently unauthorized and outline how the Committee intends to authorize currently unauthorized programs under its jurisdiction.''

SEC. 28 SENSE OF THE CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE AND PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICES FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.

(a) ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(B) the Omnibus Consolidated and Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act,

1999, reformed the interim payment system to increase reimbursements to low-cost providers, added $900 million in funding, and delayed the automatic 15 percent payment reduction for one year, to October 1, 2000; and

(C) patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient do not receive supplemental payments in the interim payment system but will receive special protection in the home health care prospective payment system.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HOME HEALTH CARE.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(A) Congress recognizes the importance of home health care for seniors and disabled citizens;

(B) Congress and the Administration should work together to maintain quality care for patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient, including the sickest and frailest Medicare beneficiaries, while home health care agencies operate in the interim payment system; and

(C) Congress and the Administration should work together to avoid the implementation of the 15 percent reduction in the interim payment system and ensure timely implementation of the prospective payment system.

SEC. 29. REDUCTION OF PUBLICLY-HELD DEBT.

(a) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this section to ensure that the fiscal year 2000 on-budget surplus is used to reduce publicly-held debt.

(b) REDUCTION OF PUBLICLY-HELD DEBT.—

(1) POINT OF ORDER AGAINST CERTAIN LEGISLATION.—Except as provided by paragraph (2), it shall not be in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report if—

(A) the enactment of that bill or resolution as reported;

(B) the adoption and enactment of that amendment; or

(C) the enactment of that bill or resolution in the form recommended in that conference report.

would cause a decrease in the on-budget surplus for fiscal year 2000.

(2) EXCEPTION.—The point of order set forth in paragraph (1) shall not apply to a bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion of conference report if it—

(A) reduces revenues;

(B) implements structural social security reform; or

(C) implements structural medicare reform.

(3) WAIVERS AND APPEALS IN THE SENATE.—

(A) WAIVERS.—Paragraph (1) may be waived or suspended in the Senate only by the affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn.

(B) APPEALS.—(i) Appeals in the Senate from the decisions of the Chair relating to paragraph (1) shall be limited to 1 hour, to be equally divided between, and controlled by, the mover and the manager of the bill, joint resolution, amendment, motion, or conference report, as the case may be.

(ii) An affirmative vote of three-fifths of the Members, duly chosen and sworn, shall be required in the Senate to sustain an appeal of the ruling of the Chair on a point of order raised under paragraph (1).

(c) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The provisions of this section shall cease to have any force or effect on October 1, 2000.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 446, the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU) and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU).

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

This is a budget proposal that highlights the vision and the priorities of the conservative Members of the House. It establishes a clear benchmark for fiscal responsibility, for commitment to our national security, and for lowering the tax burden on the American people.

We pay down over a trillion dollars in Federal debt over the next 5 years. We offer tax relief for all Americans that makes our Tax Code more fair.

We have a commitment to a strong defense that meets the priorities that have been outlined by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and we do not just set aside funds for Medicare or talk about Social Security.

We make a commitment to real reform of these programs, to strengthen them, not just for today's beneficiaries, but for future retirees and our children as well.

We set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus, and this is an idea that while it seems somewhat new was first offered in the conservative budget 2 years ago. But we go further than that. We endorse proposals to let employees control a portion of their own payroll taxes, empower the individual to invest in their own retirement security, and give them the peace of mind that comes from knowing that that savings will be there for them when they retire. We invest in priorities. As I mentioned, national defense, which over 15 years has been allowed to decay year on year. We saw our first real increase in defense spending last year. This budget increases our defense priorities up to a higher level than any other budget offered in this session. We make a commitment to veterans' health care, $1 billion above last year's spending. And we make a greater commitment to special education, the largest unfunded mandate on the books today, than any other budget that has been offered before us today, over $2.4 billion in immediate additional funding for special education, and make clear that this is our number one education priority to fully fund the special education mandate.

And once we fund these priorities, once we set aside the entire Social Security surplus, once we set aside funds to honestly reform and strengthen Medicare and provide prescription drug coverage, then we reduce taxes in a way that makes the Tax Code more fair for every American. We eliminate the marriage penalty entirely. We eliminate death taxes entirely, not because we are concerned about one income group or another but because we recognize that it is unfair to take 55 percent of what anyone in America wants to leave to their descendants whether they are rich or poor or otherwise.

We eliminate not just the Social Security earnings limit, but we repeal the 1993 increase on the taxes on Social Security beneficiaries. We expand IRA savings opportunities, educational savings opportunities, and cut the gasoline tax, the tax increase imposed as part of the biggest tax increase in this country's history that raised the price of gasoline at the pump. We roll back that tax as well.

Mr. Chairman, this is a budget that is committed not just to fiscal responsibility and lower taxes, not just to a real commitment to national defense; but it is committed to reform, reforming and strengthening Social Security and Medicare in a way that we recognize needs to be done on a bipartisan basis.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. DAVIS).

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Chairman, I think we have finally reached the point in this debate where we are getting to the facts. And I think we need to start off with the central fact that has finally been established tonight and that is the size over 10 years with respect to the tax cut. Let me start by reminding everyone about a statement that was made during the presidential campaign that we need to honor, both Democrats and Republicans, or it will come back to haunt us. It is a statement by Senator JOHN MCCAIN. He said,

> It's fiscally irresponsible to promise a huge tax cut that is based on a surplus that we may not have. To bank it all on unending surpluses at the possible risk of the Social Security trust fund is our fundamental disagreement.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIRMAN PRO TEMPORE

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman will suspend.

Members are reminded that the rules of the House do not permit such quoting of Senators.

The gentleman may proceed.

Mr. DAVIS of Florida. Mr. Chairman, that concludes the quote with respect to a presidential candidate, but here is the point. There has been no even attempt tonight to rebut the statement that the tax cut that we are dealing with here over 10 years exceeds $1 trillion. This exceeds the tax cut that we adopted here last year and ultimately failed, and it will fail again ultimately. The reason it will fail is because what the American public expects us to do is to use the lion's share of this projected surplus to pay down the Federal debt, to preserve Social Security and Medicare for the future, to contribute to lower interest rates; and because it is simply the right thing to do, we should not pass this enormous Federal debt on to our children and grandchildren.

We can do a responsible tax cut, we can do responsible spending, we can invest in education and defense; but we need to take the lion's share of the projected surplus and pay down the Federal debt. That is why this particular proposal should be defeated. It is why the underlying budget resolution should be defeated.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, it is my pleasure to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY).

Mr. TOOMEY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the CATs budget for many reasons, but in particular I would like to emphasize the principal statement that this budget makes regarding true, meaningful Social Security reform by acknowledging the need to create personal savings accounts. What we are talking about in this budget is first of all that the CATs budget sets aside every penny of Social Security surplus dollars for Social Security, not to be spent on other programs. We do that because we recognize we have got a sacred obligation to honor the promise we have made to senior citizens, those who are at or near retirement. They need to have this program ensured for their benefit.

But we also acknowledge that that alone does not solve the problems facing our Social Security system. But one way to solve that problem is to allow younger workers the opportunity to take a portion of the payroll tax they already pay and put that into accounts that they would own and control. They could invest and that savings would grow and provide the basis for their future benefits and their retirement, giving them more security and a better retirement than the current system promises and cannot deliver. This would be a permanent solution to the unfunded liability problem of Social Security. It would grant unprecedented freedom to working people who currently do not have the opportunity to make this kind of savings because the payroll tax takes it away from them.

We know this will cost money. This CATs budget is honest enough to acknowledge that it will cost money and create a mechanism that would provide the flexibility to fund that transition of one of our most important programs in the history of this government to one that would have long-term financial stability and provide enormous freedom to the working people of America.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

The gentleman has explained that his resolution, which we are trying to understand over here because there is a huge paucity of information about it, but he said that it provides more for defense; but I think it probably forgets an essential element. There is something in the Democratic resolution that we will bring up shortly that distinguishes it sharply from what is being proposed here and, that is, we have specifically included in our resolution $16.3 billion over 10 years specifically for health care initiatives for military retirees who are over the age of 65. We have not forgotten defense, and in particular we have not forgotten the men and women who fought to make this country free. We provide for them. We keep the promises that were made to them by military health care. We put the money in function 550 and function 570. We provide $5.4 billion for a prescription drug initiative, $10.9 billion to allow Medicare eligible military retirees simply to go to a military treatment facility and use their Medicare benefits to gain admission. Today most of those over the age of 65 are not able to be treated there.

I would like to ask the gentleman if he makes any provision anywhere in his resolution for these men and women who are military retirees.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPRATT. I yield to the gentleman from New Hampshire.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, we have a number of Members that are going to talk about the defense provisions, the increase for funding of defense that is in this bill, the billion additional dollars for veterans' health care that is in this bill, and the fact that it represents $187 billion in real increases, in investment in the men and women serving in our armed services over 5 years. That is an unprecedented investment as compared to any of the budgets on this floor, whether it is yours or any other budget.

So I think that the commitment is there, it is delineated clearly in the resolution, and it is a substantial increase. And it is based on the recommendations of President Clinton's own Joint Chiefs that pointed out that there is an enormous unfunded mandate in operations and maintenance and in materiel and in procurement. That is where we are focused, on the technology and the resources necessary to provide adequate defense when we are deploying more military than ever before. I thank the gentleman for yielding.

Mr. SPRATT. Reclaiming my time, the point still remains, you have put all this additional money into defense and forgotten the men and women who fought to defend this country. We in our resolution, everybody should know this, have included $16.3 billion, $5.4 billion for a prescription drug initiative for Medicare retirees and another $10.9 so that they can use their Medicare benefits at military treatment facilities. We are doing something about subvention. We have put it in a budget that is balanced and pays down the debt and also provides a modest tax cut.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Oklahoma (Mr. COBURN).

Mr. COBURN. This is not a bidding war for the veterans. As a matter of fact, right now for every veteran we spend $4,000 more per veteran than we spend on the average Medicare patient in this country. So if we are going to spend more money into the VA system we have now that is not offering them the care, not giving them equivalent care, not offering them quality care that they could get in the private sector, you are throwing money down a rat hole. The fact is we spend $4,000 per year per veteran more than we do for the same person in Medicare. So yes, we may not direct it the way that your budget directs it; but the fact is we recognize that there is not an efficient system out there and that needs to be changed. Every veteran in this country needs to be given a card. Go get your health care wherever you want because we have an obligation to you. And if we did that, we can deliver the same health care for about 30 percent less than we are doing in the VA system now.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, if I could respond to the gentleman on my own time, this is not about the Veterans' Administration health care system. This is about retiree health care at military treatment facilities, base hospitals, not VA hospitals. However, I would add, if I can continue on my own time, that we do better in our resolution by veterans who have a claim, I think, on the Federal Government for the services they have rendered and the promises we have made. We have more than a billion dollars provided over 5 years than they have provided in their resolution for veterans' health care. We have an additional $16.5 billion for retiree health care.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER) who understands probably better than anyone else in Congress the scope and the nature of the unmet needs of our men and women serving in the armed forces.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for his compliment which is undeserved, but let me tell my friend from South Carolina where we really have an obligation to those men and women and those service veterans of World War II who are departing at the rate of about 30,000 a month. Most of those folks now have young people, sons and daughters, serving in our armed forces around the world. I will tell him the best way to serve them, and I will tell him how this budget serves them.

We are short on ammunition. We are short on spare parts. We have so few precision munitions for our pilots, most of them do not even get a chance to train with one before they are sent into battle. We have a shortage on shipbuilding. We are building to a 200-ship Navy. We are short on military construction. I have got one of those veterans that the gentleman from South Carolina talked about. He is my uncle. But one thing he has got in his house is an old picture on the wall. That picture is of my cousin, Son Stillwell, who was killed in Korea along with 50,000 other people because the United States was not ready to fight.

The budgets that President Clinton has been presenting to the United States have taken us into a state of unreadiness where we cannot win a major war without massive casualties on our side. The best service we can give to those senior veterans is to make sure that their children have the ammo, the spare parts and all the other things that they do not have right now to be able to fight effectively and to survive and come home. With the $45 billion in extra money that this budget provides on defense, which the Democrat budget does not provide, of course you have got the head space for the gentleman from Indiana (Mr. BUYER), who is chairman of the Subcommittee on Personnel, to work a beautiful health care plan along with having something called ammunition.

The tragedy of the Democrat budget is it makes the service choose between having ammunition for the young people who are out there defending the country and having health care for the senior retired people.

☐ 2145

That is a choice that we should not make them have to come to.

I thought the gentleman was going to come with a Democrat budget that would offer $40 billion, maybe $50 billion above this baseline Clinton budget on national defense, and he did not do it.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HUNTER. I yield to the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I thought the gentleman in the well, who is one of the strongest proponents and advocates of defense in this House, and I sit on the same committee with him, week after week he has bemoaned how much the President had sought in defense for next year and the next 5 years. I thought surely the gentleman would persuade his conference, the Republicans, to come forward with a resolution that provided more for defense.

What do we get? One-tenth of 1 percent over the next 5 years. That is all the increase the gentleman could muster.

Mr. HUNTER. Mr. Chairman, reclaiming my time, over the last 5 years we have provided $45 billion above the President's budget.

The commandant of the Marine Corps said it best. He said if we had not provided it, the Marines would be the 9–1 force instead of the 911 force for this Nation.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM).

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, I first want to commend the CATs. I guess that is permissible for a dog to do because their budget enforcement mechanisms are something that I totally support. I think they are right on target and I think their criticisms of the base bill are right on target and we agree with them.

We look at their defense numbers. They are making a move in the right direction there, and I appreciate the fact that they are talking about Social Security in a much more honest and realistic way than most folks have talked about it today.

My concerns with their budget stem from their funding for agriculture at the committee level. I believe that is totally inadequate, given the problems of rural America and agriculture, and I happen to disagree with that.

I also disagree in the area of veterans. As the gentleman from Mississippi (Mr. TAYLOR) so eloquently explained the Blue Dog position on military retirees and veterans, I happen to believe the CATs are inadequate in that area, but there again we can do as we have been doing all day. We can nitpick around.

That is not nitpicking. That is serious. My primary opposition to their budget stems again in the area of the tax cut and the size of it. Here again, I commend them because they are honest in saying that theirs is $270 billion over the next 5 years, which amounts to something like over a trillion dollars over 10, and that is an honest presentation and they are very honest in coming forward with that and they believe in that.

I happen to not believe in that, for a fundamental reason and it goes back to Social Security. I have joined with the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD), I have joined with the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. KOLBE) and others in working in a bipartisan way on a long-term Social Security reform bill, and anyone that has spent any amount of time whatsoever knows that every year we delay in fixing Social Security for the long-term, every day we delay it makes it that much more difficult. 2014 is the magic day. That is when the surpluses we are all wanting to give away tonight, that is when they no longer are surpluses and that is when somebody in the Congress in 2014 is going to have to deal with it.

That is why I think it is fiscally irresponsible. With all due respect to those that believe otherwise, it is fiscally irresponsible to give back money today that we are going to need in the Social Security system in 2014, particularly since we are talking about projected surpluses.

How many times have we heard it, both sides of the aisle tonight, people talking about these surpluses like they are real? They are projected. They may or may not occur in 2006.

If they pass their budget and it becomes law and we do have a tax cut that benefits today, the people today that we are now in the longest peacetime economic expansion in the history of our country, people are doing well, they are paying taxes, but what if that stops in 2006?

More importantly, I ask all of my colleagues to start looking at the numbers of 2014. My primary opposition tonight to their bill is the 2014 problem that comes with tax cuts in the area of a trillion dollars over the next 10 years, which they advocate.

Anyone that has spent any time looking at the long-term problems of Social Security know we really cannot afford that. That is why with all due respect, I say to those who advocate tax cuts in this area that we are talking about tonight, in my judgment it is the most fiscally irresponsible thing that we could be doing.

They disagree. I respect that. I commend them for the things in their budget. They are honest. They are going at it. I just cannot bring myself to vote for this kind of a tax cut for two reasons. Their names are Chase and Cole, mine and Cindy's 4½ year old and 2½ year old grandsons. I resolved four and a half years ago that I did not want them to look back 65 years from tonight and say if only my granddad would have done what in his heart he knew he should have done when he was in the Congress we would not be in the mess we are in today.

That is why I would strongly oppose the CATs resolution on that one issue. I commend them on the other areas where they are very honest, and am offering some potential bipartisan support.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I certainly thank the gentleman for his supportive words about many elements in our budget, and I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. STEARNS).

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Chairman, tonight we will talk about this and we will vote a little after midnight. A lot of my colleagues have their minds made up. So what can I say tonight to perhaps change their minds and have a realistic picture of this budget?

The gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), Mr. DAVIS, and others on this side talk about these huge tax cuts. Let us get real. This is $270 billion over 5 years. What is that, 20-some-billion a year? And we are spending $2 trillion a year.

The spending alone is going up at 9 percent. Last year, between 1999 and the year 2000 budget we spent 9 percent with emergency supplementals. The people in this House should be embarrassed that spending is increasing at 9 and 10 percent a year, with emergency supplementals, and we are talking about a tax cut, a tax cut of $24 billion a year.

Let us look at what Federal Reserve Chairman Greenspan said, appointed FBI Clinton administration, ''My first priority would be to allow as much of the surplus to flow through into a reduction of debt to the public. If that proves politically infeasible, I would opt for cutting taxes. And under no condition do I see any room in the longer term outlook for major changes in expenditures.''

''I would opt for cutting taxes.'' This is an objective individual who is trying to say reduce spending.

Now this budget by the CATs is the only budget that we are going to vote on tonight that has 302(B) allocations restraint. It actually puts restraints. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) was kind enough to acknowledge that.

I hope everybody in the House realizes that the CATs budget is going to restrain spending. If spending is not restrained around here, it is going to continue at 9 percent; 9 and 10 percent means that in 7 years this budget is going to double. Instead of $2 trillion we are talking about $4 trillion.

The other last point I want to make is our Nation's seniors would benefit because it repeals the 1993 tax increase on Social Security. So those who are going to vote against the CATs budget are going to vote with the Clinton administration on the tax increase on Social Security.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, what concerns me, and I think many on my side of the aisle, about this proposal is that it looks a lot like 1981.

First of all, what we have is an enormous tax cut, $270 billion over 5 years, bigger than anybody has yet proposed for this period of time.

We have shown earlier today how if one tries to fit a $200 billion tax cut over 5 years into the other numbers assumed in the Republican budget resolution, the base bill, it goes into deficit. In 2003, the surplus vanishes. In 2004 and 2005, the budget is in the red. This would go even deeper.

It avoids the deficit only by having enormous cuts in nondefense discretionary spending. Right out of the box, this particular resolution, the CATs resolution, proposes an immediate cut of $16 billion; $16 billion between this year and next year in nondefense discretionary spending.

Look at last year and ask if that is realistic. Look at 1998 and ask if that is realistic. Look at the entire period of the 1990s. Just 1996, since the Republicans have been in control of the House, we have had an annual rate of increase in nondefense discretionary spending of 2.5 percent real increase.

So what is being assumed here is an abrupt, radical about face, a cut of a magnitude in one year we have not been able to achieve in any recent year that I can recall. The whole surplus is being bet. All of this that we have worked to accomplish and achieve and have finally been able to succeed on, it is all going to be bet on a big tax cut and very unrealistic discretionary spending cuts.

If those discretionary spending cuts are not attained politically here on the House Floor in the Congress, because of presidential vetoes or for whatever reason, we are in the red again, big time and in a hurry. That is what is scary about this resolution.

It promises a lot, sure. I would like to go home and talk about $270 billion in tax relief over the next 5 years, but I could not realistically tell my people that we could make those cuts when I have been here 18 years and I have not seen the Congress, Democrat or Republican Congress, muster the will to make cuts of that magnitude.

I think this is a very risky venture. I think extremely thin ice is being skated on, and I think the budget that we have worked so hard to get in the black is being put back in the danger zone, back in the zone where we are likely to be in deficit. Once we go into deficit, we are right back into the Social Security trust fund. That is where this resolution leads us.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD), who understands that only in Washington and only in a Democrat budget is repealing taxes on Social Security beneficiaries called spending.

Mr. SANFORD. Mr. Chairman, with that lead-in, I will simply pick up on the Social Security portion and I would say to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) in particular has been magnificent in his leadership on Social Security. The gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY) touched on just a moment ago the issue of Social Security and personal accounts, and that is what personally gravitates me towards the CATs budget, what it does to get us off dead center, a dead center that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), I will not say on the left by any means, but on the Democratic side has been what the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. TOOMEY) and others have been on the Republican side, and that is how do we get off dead center on Social Security?

To this budget's credit, it moves us forward because it begins this process of personal accounts. It is a sense of Congress, which is a small start, and it is a point of order for personal accounts but that is, again, a step in the right direction that we very, very much need.

Last year Washington borrowed $100 billion from Social Security and they did it without a lot of fanfare. Most of the folks back home I talked to do not even know that it happened and those that did, at most they wrote a letter to their Congressman or their Senator but they did not march on Washington. We had truckers in town last week. We had farmers in town last week, all protesting different things going on in Washington and yet this is sort of the quiet secret that is kept under the rug. It is something that I think would be brought about with simple private property rights.

The only thing that will in the long run protect Social Security balances are private property rights. So what this budget does is it sets up for the first time a move toward a system of personal accounts wherein, for instance, Social Security money, surplus Social Security money, would be rebated back to the people paying Social Security taxes to begin their own personal Social Security savings account, and by doing so would protect it because it would be out of Washington.

I think that that is a very small step but important step that we have to take in this debate.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3½ minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, you will recall that two years ago this House failed to adopt a concurrent budget resolution. It was the first time in the 26-year history of the Budget Act that Congress failed to adopt a budget.

It disrupted the appropriations process and made it much more difficult for the entire House to complete any of its legislative business in an orderly way.

Then again last year we adopted a budget but it was an unrealistic budget. It was shot full of holes with gimmicks and blue smoke and mirrors. It treated things like the decennial census, that has been going on since 1790, as an emergency. We did not complete action on the appropriations bills until well after the fiscal year had begun. We failed the American people again.

Now again this budget resolution is equally unrealistic.

It is so filled with assumptions that we know will not be met that it is not fair to the American people to even propose it, never mind pass it, on the floor of the House.

We know it is not a real budget. We know that what this is is not serious legislation, but political expediency. We would probably be better off doing what we did in 1998 without a budget resolution; whether it be the Republican leadership budget or the CATs budget, which are not all that substantively different. These Republican budgets start with the wholly unrealistic assumption that we will be able to hold non-defense discretionary outlays to $114 billion below inflation over the next 5 years. That is not going to happen.

Next year alone, as the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) suggested, we will have to cut nearly $20 billion below the level needed just to keep level with inflation. Yet we know that the Congress has increased nondefense appropriations faster than inflation every year since 1996. Who are we kidding?

If we were honest with the American people, we would admit that we have no intention of cutting Federal law enforcement or education or environmental programs, or veterans care. You name it, we are not going to cut it. We are going to do what our constituents demand that we do, and at least keep these programs level with inflation.

Who are we kidding? Ourselves? Why are we proposing a budget that we know we are not going to hold to? Maybe we are planning on putting all this money into the supplemental, hiding it, shifting it from fiscal year 2001 to fiscal year 2000. Maybe that will be this year's gimmick. But it is not right to the American people to be deceiving them in this way. The main problem is that to accommodate a tax cut in the range of $200 billion, whether it be the Republican leadership budget or the CATs budget, we know that we are putting in place a situation where we are going to be cutting revenue by almost $1 trillion over 10 years.

Those tax cuts are not fair. They are not fair to the American people. But, most importantly, they are not fair to our children. We have an opportunity today to pay off the debt that we incurred in the 1980s, to pay down that debt, to eliminate that debt by the year 2013. As well as the quarter of a trillion dollars in interest we have to pay every year on that debt. If we do not, our children have to pay off that debt. What could be more immoral than to pass that debt on to our children? What could be worse than to say to our children that they are going to have to pay for our retirement and our health care when we retire? We would not do that to our own children. Let us not do it to America's children. Oppose this budget.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 30 seconds to emphasize that only in Washington do people fail to realize that improving performance by 1, 2 or 3 percent per year is not just realistic, but it is expected, year after year after year. Those that say it is unrealistic to achieve any reduction at all in overall government spending are the same ones that said we could not balance the budget in 1994, the same ones that said we could not pass welfare reform in 1996, the same ones that said it was unrealistic and unattainable to set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus. They have been proved wrong time and again.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Kansas (Mr. RYUN).

Mr. RYUN of Kansas. Mr. Chairman, I rise today as a member of the Committee on the Budget who believes we can meet not only spending caps, but we can pay down public debt, and we can do better for our defense as well as provide for tax relief to our working families.

This substitute provides enough tax relief to eliminate the marriage penalty, to provide greater access to health care, to expand choice in education, to give seniors relief by repealing the 1993 tax increase on Social Security benefits, and to give small businesses tax relief to keep our economy moving forward and to end the unfair death tax that penalizes savings.

Unfortunately, there are those on the other side that would like to call this risky and irresponsible. I ask them to talk to the hard-working people of my district in Kansas who believe that they should have relief, and ask them also to tell this to the hard-working people in their district who deserve to have some additional tax relief.

As a member of the Committee on Armed Services, I have also seen the effects on morale caused by the years of neglect of our fine military personnel by this present administration. We have military families that are on food stamps; one family member is often deployed throughout the world on endless peacekeeping missions, with little time to spend at home. And there has been a failure to provide new equipment and spare parts as well as quality health services. This resulted in a dangerously low readiness, as well as serious problems with regard to recruiting and retention. We should never, never forget that providing for the common defense of our country is our first duty.

For those who say this substitute cannot be done, I say you have not tried hard enough. I urge my colleagues to support the CATs substitute.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. ANDREWS).

(Mr. ANDREWS asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. ANDREWS. Mr. Chairman, I thank my friend from South Carolina for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, my friends who offer this budget have done a great public service, because I think they have shed some light upon the underlying dilution of the majority's Republican resolution that is the base bill. The base bill says that we are going to bring in $171 billion more over the next 5 years than we take in. Then it proceeds to spend $268 billion more than we take in, a $97 billion gap.

What they say to the American public is we can reduce your taxes by $200 billion and provide a prescription drug benefit under Medicare, and we can increase defense spending and increase some other spending, all to the tune of $268 billion. So, see, your surplus is $171 billion, but your additional giveaways are $268 billion.

To the credit of the alternative of the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU), you do not do that. The Sununu alternative tells the truth. It says in order to do those things, to have the prescription drug benefit and pay down the debt and cut taxes, one has to make very significant cuts in the budget. That is an honest proposition with which I disagree.

The proposition of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) and the proposition of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) are honest. They say that to pay down the debt you basically have to leave taxes alone and leave spending alone and that will work.

The underlying bill is a repetition of the dilution of 1981. It says you can have your cake and eat it too; you can have your cake and bake it too; you can have your cake and give it away too, that you can increase Medicare, increase defense, cut taxes, and spend more money than you bring in. I think the priorities of this resolution are wrong in the CATs budget, but they are internally consistent.

The truth is the way to pay down the debt is to essentially leave spending alone, the way the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) does, to leave taxes alone, the way the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) does, not rely upon rosy scenarios, and pay down the national debt. I oppose this, but support the alternative of the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield 1½ minutes to the gentleman from Colorado (Mr. TANCREDO), who understands leaving spending on autopilot and taxing at a higher level than ever in the history of our country is no way to run the Federal Government.

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Chairman, among the many other positive aspects of the Conservative Action Team budget that I am up here to applaud and support is something that is a little less sexy perhaps than tax cuts, a little less easy to understand perhaps than increases in defense appropriations or anything else; but it is something, nonetheless, that we need to address, and this CATs budget does, in fact, address it for the first time in a long time, the first time, as far as I know, ever, and that is the practice of providing funds, authorizing every single year, year in and year out, money for unauthorized programs.

There is a process in this House that we are supposed to go through. The rule says that we cannot fund programs that are not authorized. Yet, year after year after year this has happened. Republicans, Democrats, it does not matter. This is not the way to provide fiscal responsibility. It is shirking our responsibility, if anything.

For example, of the programs that we have been appropriating for but are not authorized, I just bring these few to your attention. The National Endowment for the Arts, $98 million funding received this year. It has not been authorized for 7 years. The National Endowment for Humanities has not been authorized for 7 years. The Federal Communications Commission, for 9 years. Family planning programs have not been authorized for 15 years. Power Marketing Administration, 16 years.

Some of these are wonderful programs. They may be the most important things we do. But the fact is, unless we let the authorizing committees review what they are supposed to do, review them every few years, and unless we allow them to do it, we will never know.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from New York (Mr. CROWLEY).

(Mr. CROWLEY asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. CROWLEY. Mr. Chairman, once again, we are debating a budget that does not strengthen social security or Medicare. In fact, none of the non-Social Security surplus is earmarked specifically for Medicare. The American people have made themselves heard loud and clear: they want Congress to save Social Security and Medicare, add a voluntary prescription drug program to Medicare, help our schools and help our children. Instead, we once again are seeing a bill that will provide tax cuts for the wealthy and cuts spending for programs that help our children.

How can Republicans claim to be pro-education when they will eliminate Head Start for more than 40,000 children and their families by 2005? We already have a long waiting list for families wanting to get their children into Head Start and this budget will only lengthen that list. Additionally, this budget would deny college access to 316,000 low-income students by 2005. In my district, Pell Grants are what enable many students to continue on to college.

Another area of concern to me in the Republican Budget is the cut to the LIHEAP program. As we all know, it has been a cold winter and with oil prices rapidly increasing, many families and especially senior citizens, are being forced to choose between heat and food.

In my district, one building that house senior citizens had no heat for 3 days before they contacted my office and we had the heat turned back on. At a time when oil prices are climbing higher, we must not cut LIHEAP assistance, as the Republican budget does, to 164,000 low-income families.

There are several Democratic substitutes that not only pay down the debt and shore up Social Security, but also increase funding for education programs.

My colleagues highlight their commitment to fully funding special education, yet when Democrats offered an amendment to provide full funding of the federal governments maximum authorized contribution for special education, Republicans diluted it to only a Sense of the Congress Amendment that Congress should provide this funding. If we should, why did they not vote to put it in the budget?

The Democratic Substitutes all provide a voluntary prescription drug benefit for seniors, provides targeted tax cuts to hard working families, and maintains or increases funding for non-defense discretionary programs. I urge my colleagues to vote against the Republican budget and support the democratic alternatives.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. PRICE).

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Chairman, this afternoon we talked about the Republican majority's budget resolution and some of the risks that it would pose. Their $200 billion tax cut in the first 5 years would take us into the red by 2004.

Well, if you are worried about that risky venture, just look at this CATs budget. It proposes a $270 billion tax cut in the first 5 years. Still not as much, I must say, as George W. Bush's proposed tax cut, which our Republican friends refused to vote on, but still $270 billion in the first 5 years, enough to eat up the entire non-Social Security surplus and to require renewed borrowing from the Social Security surplus. So the proposed tax cut is reckless. It bets the store on doubtful projections, which I think are simply not risks that our country ought to take.

Secondly, we talked this afternoon about the unrealistic assumptions about our domestic obligations and how the Republican budget assumes devastating and unrealistic declines in domestic investments, in education, in law enforcement, across the board.

Well, if you are worried about that set of cuts, look at this CATs budget. It goes even deeper. In fact, $16.5 billion deeper in 2001 alone.

I invite my colleagues to contrast the Democratic budget substitute, which is reasonable, which is balanced. It will provide a targeted, affordable tax cut. But it will also extend the solvency of both the Medicare and the Social Security trust funds. It will mandate the addition of a prescription drug benefit to Medicare. And it will use not only the entire Social Security surplus to buy down the publicly-held debt, but in fact will apply over $300 billion of the non-Social Security surplus to that same critical purpose.

Support the Democratic substitute.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I am pleased to yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. SHADEGG).

(Mr. SHADEGG asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHADEGG. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time. I want to thank my colleague from New Hampshire for his hard work on the CATs budget. He has put in tremendous effort and drawn up what I believe is by far the best budget presented here tonight.

But I also want to begin by addressing this notion that appears to exist in Washington, D.C., and nowhere else in the world. Every single business in America and every single business in the world understands that each year you must do more with less. They also understand that the way you can do that is through improvements in efficiency and productivity. Indeed, every single report which now analyzes productivity in America shows that we as a society are becoming more productive, year after year after year.

In the last 2 years alone, we have grown more productive by 3 percent per year. That means that Ford Motor Company or General Motors or Motorola produces a better product year after year at a lower cost. Yet in government, nowhere else in all of the world do we say Oh, no, we can't do more with less, we have to do less with more. So you hear our colleagues on the other side decry the budget and say it cannot be done.

I would again compliment my friend from New Hampshire for pointing out that the people who say this cannot be done, that we can never deliver more government services because of improvements in efficiency or productivity, are the same people who said we could not balance the budget, the same people who said we could not accomplish welfare reform, and the same people who say the American people do not deserve a penny of tax relief.

Let us talk about what this budget does. Number one, it protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus.

Number two, as the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SANFORD) just pointed out, it provides the reform for Medicare by providing individual retirement accounts.

Let us talk about what it does for defense, since that is the number one priority of the government. It provides the strongest national defense of any of the budgets.

But, most importantly, and I want to compliment my friend the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM), it does what is critically important: It contains real budget enforcement. We cannot continue to pass budgets which are a fraud.

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Chairman, we have before us a conservative budget that sets the right priorities, represents a vision of a good number, a very large portion of the Members of this House. It starts by setting aside every single penny of the Social Security Trust Fund surplus, a vision that was criticized when it was first offered 2 years ago in a conservative budget. It pays down $1 trillion in debt over 5 years. That is four times more than this budget contains in tax relief. It strengthens the national defense, and it provides support for real bipartisan reform of both Social Security and Medicare. Finally, it offers unprecedented support for paying for the unfunded mandate of special education that burdens cities and towns at the local level all over this country; unprecedented, meant to fully fund that special education mandate.

After we have done all of these things, after we have paid down $1 trillion in debt, set aside for Social Security and done real reform on Medicare and Social Security, then we do cut taxes. We could pay down more in debt if we decided not to lift the tax increase on Social Security beneficiaries. Sure, we could pay down a little more debt if we did that; but if we did that, it would be wrong. We could pay down a little bit more debt if we did not think we should eliminate the marriage penalty, but penalizing a couple simply because they choose to get married is wrong.

In the Democrat budget and in the Blue Dog budget, there was no real effort to deal with that serious problem. We could pay down a little bit more debt if we decided that individuals should not get to deduct their health insurance costs, like big businesses can.

The final question I ask my colleagues is what hoops do the American people have to jump through to get a Tax Code that treats them a little bit more fair. I think we should support this resolution, and we should reject the notion that the American people cannot deal with their own money.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU).

The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the ayes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

The vote was taken by electronic device, and there were—ayes 78, noes 339, not voting 17, as follows:

Mr. KASICH and Mr. SMITH of New Jersey changed their vote from ''aye'' to ''no.''

Mr. STUMP and Mr. GRAHAM changed their vote from ''no'' and ''aye.''

So the amendment in the nature of a substitute was rejected.

The result of the vote was announced as above recorded.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). It is now in order to consider amendment No. 5 printed in Part B of House Report 106–535.

AMENDMENT NO. 5 IN THE NATURE OF A SUBSTITUTE OFFERED BY MR. SPRATT

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. The Clerk will designate the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The text of the amendment in the nature of a substitute is as follows:

Part B Amendment No. 5 in the nature of a substitute offered by Mr. SPRATT:

Strike all after the resolving clause and insert the following:

TITLE I—BUDGETARY PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ON THE BUDGET FOR 2001 AND COVERING 2000–2010.

The Congress declares that the concurrent resolution on the budget for 2000 is hereby revised and that the concurrent resolution on the budget for 2001, including the appropriate budgetary levels for 2002 through 2010, is hereby set forth.

SEC. 102. RECOMMENDED AGGREGATE LEVELS AND AMOUNTS.

(a) ON-BUDGET LEVELS (EXCLUDING SOCIAL SECURITY AND THE POSTAL SERVICE FUND).—

For purposes of enforcement of this resolution, the following budgetary levels are appropriate for each year 2000 through 2010:

[In billions of dollars]

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
New budget authority	$1,475.2	$1,541.9	$1,578.2	$1,634.3	$1,696.2	$1,762.4
Outlays	1,459.2	1,496.5	1,555.9	1,610.4	1,672.2	1,739.2
Revenues	1,465.5	1,512.3	1,564.8	1,620.4	1,680.0	1,744.9
Revenue change	0.0	−2.6	−6.5	−9.1	−12.6	−19.2
Surpluses	6.3	15.8	8.9	10.0	7.8	5.7
Publicly held debt	3,472.3	3,312.1	3,131.3	2,942.0	2,740.8	2,524.0

	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010
New budget authority	$1,815.1	$1,873.4	$1,947.4	$2,022.0	$2,102.4
Outlays	1,786.8	1,841.6	1,920.4	1,995.4	2,077.9
Revenues	1,819.5	1,896.9	1,980.7	2,072.5	2,169.3
Revenue change	−23.0	−25.7	−29.3	−34.0	−39.0
Surpluses	32.7	55.3	60.3	77.1	91.4
Publicly held debt	2,265.2	1,967.7	1,650.2	3,102.2	926.8

(b) UNIFIED BUDGET SURPLUSES AND REDUCTION IN THE PUBLICLY HELD DEBT.—Congress declares that on-budget surpluses and the surpluses in the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Trust Funds (Social Security trust funds) shall be devoted exclusively to reducing the debt held by the public. The cumulative ten-year on-budget surpluses of $365.0 billion set forth in subsection (a), combined with the estimated cumulative ten-year off-budget (Social Security) surpluses of $2,265.8 billion, will retire 73 percent of the publicly held debt by 2010 and all of it by 2013.

SEC. 103. MAJOR FUNCTIONAL CATEGORIES.

The Congress determines and declares that the following are the appropriate levels of new budget authority and budget outlays for each major functional category for each year 2000 through 2010:

(a) National Defense (050):

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
New budget authority	$288.9	$305.3	$309.0	$315.4	$323.1	$331.4
Outlays	$282.5	$297.2	$301.6	$309.1	$317.3	$327.8

	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010
New budget authority	$340.1	$349.0	$358.2	$367.6	$377.3
Outlays	$332.4	$338.2	$351.7	$361.4	$371.0

(b) International Affairs (150):

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
New budget authority	$20.1	$20.3	$20.2	$20.3	$20.6	$21.3
Outlays	$15.5	$17.6	$1‘6.6	$16.7	$17.0	$17.2

	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010
New budget authority	$21.7	$22.2	$22.5	$22.9	$23.2
Outlays	$17.4	$17.9	$18.4	$18.9	$19.4

(c) General Science, Space, and Technology (250):

	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005
New budget authority	$19.3	$20.8	$20.4	$20.6	$20.8	$21.1
Outlays	$18.4	$19.6	$20.1	$20.3	$20.8	$20.8

	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010
New budget authority	$21.5	$21.9	$22.3	$22.8	$23.2
Outlays	$21.1	$21.5	$21.9	$22.3	$22.8

(d) Energy (270):

(b) POLICY ASSUMPTIONS.—(1) Within the framework of this budget resolution, which provides for the extension of the solvency of the social security and medicare trust funds, the policy of this resolution is that there shall be gross tax relief of $5.6 billion and net tax relief of $2.6 billion in 2001, gross tax relief of $77.8 billion and net tax relief of $50.0 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2005, and gross tax relief of $263.3 billion and net tax relief of $201.0 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2010, including by illustration and not limitation provisions that—

(A) mitigate the marriage penalty on middle-income families and the application of the individual alternative minimum tax to middle-income taxpayers;

(B) expand the earned income credit to mitigate the marriage penalty on low-income households and to increase the credit for families with three or more children;

(C) facilitate financing of school construction and renovation;

(D) increase credits and deductions of tuition for post-secondary education;

(E) expand deductions and credits for medical insurance and the cost of long-term care;

(F) provide patient protections contained in the Dingell-Norwood Patient's Bill of Rights Act;

(G) foster community redevelopment and combat urban sprawl;

(H) reduce estate taxes, especially on decedents owning small businesses and family farms;

(I) encourage and expand retirement savings accounts; and

(J) extend credits that promote employment opportunities for welfare beneficiaries and low-income workers.

(2) The resolution assumes that $7.0 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2005 and $14.6 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2010 of the revenues forgone as a result of these new tax provisions may be offset by reinstating Superfund taxes; $9.8 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2005 and $24.2 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2010 may be offset by repealing or restricting some of the unwarranted deductions, credits, exemptions, and exclusions whose repeal or restriction were proposed by the President in submission of his budget for fiscal year 2001; and $11.0 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2005 and $23.5 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2010 may be offset by provisions restricting abusive tax shelters and other provisions proposed by Mr. Rangel in the motion to recommit H.R. 3832.

(3) The resolution also assumes $40 billion over fiscal years 2001 through 2005 and $155 billion through fiscal year 2010 for a medicare prescription drug benefit and cost-sharing protections. The resolution assumes voluntary prescription drug coverage for all Americans age 65 or older, in which not less than 50 percent of the cost of the benefit, based on the price of the prescription drugs, is borne by the Government. Beneficiaries also will pay monthly premiums. Beneficiaries with annual incomes below 150 percent of poverty ($12,525 for a single person; $16,875 for a couple) will not pay premiums, and those with annual incomes below 135 percent of poverty ($11,273 for a single person; $15,188 for a couple) are protected from the plan's cost-sharing requirements.

(c) FLEXIBILITY FOR THE COMMITTEE ON WAYS AND MEANS.—If the reconciliation submission by the Committee on Ways and Means alters the Internal Revenue Code in ways that are scored by the Joint Committee on Taxation as outlay changes, as through legislation affecting refundable tax credits, the submission shall be considered to meet the revenue requirements of the reconciliation directive if the net cost of the revenue and outlay changes does not exceed the revenue amount set forth for that committee in subsection (a). Upon the submission of such legislation, the chairman of the House Committee on the Budget shall adjust the budget aggregates in this resolution and allocations made under this resolution accordingly.

(d) EXTENDING THE SOLVENCY OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY AND MEDICARE TRUST FUNDS.—

(1) The purpose of this subsection is to extend the solvency of Social Security by at least 15 years and to extend the solvency of Medicare by at least ten years.

(2) Not later than June 22, 2000, the Committee on Ways and Means shall submit legislation to the House Committee on the Budget providing for the annual transfer from the General Fund of the Treasury to the Hospital Insurance (Medicare Part A) Trust Fund of an amount equal to $300 billion from 2001 to 2010. Such funds shall be derived from the on-budget surplus over that ten-year period.

(3) Not later than June 22, 2000, the Committee on Ways and Means shall submit legislation to the House Committee on the Budget providing for the annual transfer from the General Fund of the Treasury to Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, starting in 2011, of an amount equal to the reduction in unified budget Net Interest outlays in 2010 below the level of unified budget Net Interest outlays in 2000. Under this resolution, that reduction is expected to equal $148.9 billion.

(4) Provisions of legislation that only carry out the requirements of paragraphs (2) or (3) shall not be considered extraneous to a reconciliation bill under section 313 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974.

(e) REPORTING OF RECONCILIATION BILL.—After receiving the legislation submitted under subsections (a), (b), and (d), the House Committee on the Budget shall report to the House a reconciliation bill carrying out all such recommendations without any substantive revision.

SEC. 105. SOCIAL SECURITY LOCKBOX.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) under the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990, the social security trust funds are off budget for purposes of the President's budget submission and the concurrent resolution on the budget;

(2) the social security trust funds have been running surpluses each year for seventeen years, and until this year, these surpluses have been borrowed to fund the operations of the Federal Government;

(3) this resolution balances the Federal budget without including the social security surpluses in each year from 2000 through 2010;

(4) balancing the Federal budget exclusive of the social security surplus will strengthen the Nation's financial condition so that it is better prepared to ensure the long-term solvency of the social security program.

(b) POINT OF ORDER.—It shall not in order in the House of Representatives or the Senate to consider any revision to this resolution or a concurrent resolution on the budget for any fiscal year between 2001 and 2010, or any amendment thereto, or conference report thereto, or any reported bill or joint resolution or any amendment thereto or conference report thereon that sets forth or causes an on-budget deficit for any fiscal year.

SEC. 106. ALLOCATIONS TO THE COMMITTEE ON APPROPRIATIONS.

(a) TREATMENT OF OASDI ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES.—In addition to amounts in this resolution, allocations to the Committee on Appropriations shall include the following amounts, which are assumed to be used for the administrative expenses of the Social Security Administration, and those allocations shall be considered to be allocations made under section 302 of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974:

	2000	2001
New budget authority	$3.175	$3.400
Outlays	$3.202	$3.370

(b) SPECIAL ALLOCATION FOR LANDS LEGACY INITIATIVE.—

(1) Except as provided in paragraph (2), $1.4 billion in discretionary new budget authority and $1.0 billion in discretionary outlays included in this resolution shall not be allocated to the Appropriations Committee for 2001.

(2) Prior to consideration by the House of Representatives or the Committee of the Whole of any appropriations measure, amendment, or motion providing $1.4 billion in new budget authority for 2001 for: Federal land acquisitions; conservation-related grants to states, tribes, and localities; and ocean and coastal conservation programs, the chairman of the House Committee on the Budget shall increase the allocation for 2001 of the House Committee on Appropriations by $1.4 billion in new budget authority and by the outlays flowing therefrom.

SEC. 107. APPLICABILITY OF ADJUSTMENTS.

Section 314(c) of the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 shall apply as though the adjustments described in sections 104(c) and 106(b) were adjustments under section 314(a) of that Act.

TITLE II—SENSE OF CONGRESS PROVISIONS

SEC. 201. SENSE OF CONGRESS THAT CONGRESS AND PRESIDENT AGREE ON DISCRETIONARY CAPS BASED ON REALISTIC LEVELS.

It is the sense of Congress that Congress and the President adopt discretionary caps based on the levels set forth in this resolution in order to control spending, establish sound budgeting projections and policies, and avoid budgeting gimmicks.

SEC. 202. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ASSET BUILDING FOR THE WORKING POOR.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) 33 percent of all American households and 60 percent of African American households have no or negative financial assets;

(2) 46.9 percent of all children in America live in households with no financial assets, including 40 percent of Caucasian children and 75 percent of African American children;

(3) in order to provide low-income families with more tools for empowerment, incentives which encourage asset-building should be established;

(4) middle and upper income Americans currently benefit from tax incentives for building assets; and

(5) the Federal Government should utilize the Federal tax code to provide low-income Americans with incentives to work and build assets in order to escape poverty permanently.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the provisions of this concurrent resolution assume that Congress should modify the Federal tax law to include provisions which encourage low-income workers and their families to save for buying a first home, starting a business, obtaining an education, or taking other measures to prepare for the future.

SEC. 203. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE AND PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICES FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.

(a) ACCESS TO HEALTH INSURANCE.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) 44.4 million Americans are currently without health insurance, and that this number is expected to rise to nearly 60 million people in the next 10 years;

(B) the cost of health insurance continues to rise, a key factor in increasing the number of uninsured; and

(C) there is a consensus that working Americans and their families will suffer from reduced access to health insurance.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON IMPROVING ACCESS TO HEALTH CARE INSURANCE.—It is the sense of Congress that access to affordable health care coverage for all Americans is a priority of the 106th Congress.

(b) PRESERVING HOME HEALTH SERVICE FOR ALL MEDICARE BENEFICIARIES.—

(1) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(A) the Balanced Budget Act of 1997 reformed Medicare home health care spending by instructing the Health Care Financing Administration to implement a prospective payment system and instituted an interim payment system to achieve savings;

(B) the Medicare, Medicaid, and SCHIP Balanced Budget Refinement Act, 1999, reformed the interim payment system to increase reimbursements to low-cost providers and delayed the automatic 15 percent payment reduction until after the first year of the implementation of the prospective payment system; and

(C) patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient do not receive supplemental payments in the interim payment system but will receive special protection in the home health care prospective payment system.

(2) SENSE OF CONGRESS ON ACCESS TO HOME HEALTH CARE.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(A) home health care for seniors and disabled citizens is vitally important;

(B) Congress and the Administration should work together to maintain quality care for patients whose care is more extensive and expensive than the typical Medicare patient, including the sickest and frailest Medicare beneficiaries, while home health care agencies operate in the interim payment system; and

(C) Congress and the Administration should work together to avoid the imposition of the 15 percent reduction in the prospective payment system and ensure timely implementation of that system.

SEC. 204. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING MEDICARE+CHOICE PROGRAMS/REIMBURSEMENT RATES.

It is the sense of Congress that the Medicare+Choice regional disparity among reimbursement rates is unfair, and that full funding of the Medicare+Choice program is a priority as Congress deals with any medicare reform legislation.

SEC. 205. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING THE STABILIZATION OF CERTAIN FEDERAL PAYMENTS TO STATES, COUNTIES, AND BOROUGHS.

It is the sense of Congress that Federal revenue-sharing payments to States, counties, and boroughs pursuant to the Act of May 23, 1908 (35 Stat. 260; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of March 1, 1911 (36 Stat. 963; 16 U.S.C. 500), the Act of August 28, 1937 (chapter 876; 50 Stat. 875; 43 U.S.C. 1181f), the Act of May 24, 1939 (chapter 144; 53 Stat. 753; 43 U.S.C. 1181f–1 et seq.), and sections 13982 and 13983 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (Public Law 103–66; 16 U.S.C. 500 note; 43 U.S.C. 1181f note) should be stabilized and maintained for the long-term benefit of schools, roads, public services, and communities, and that providing such permanent, stable funding is a priority of the 106th Congress.

SEC. 206. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF THE NATIONAL SCIENCE FOUNDATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—The Congress Finds that—

(1) Recognizing the importance of the National Science Foundation, during the Budget Committee markup, the Holt amendment was offered which would have increased budget authority by $675 million in fiscal year 2001 and by $3.9 billion over five years and increased outlays by $170 million in fiscal year 2001 and by $2.8 billion over five years in Function 250 (General Science, Space and Technology) to reflect greater funding for the National Science Foundation;

(2) recognizing the National Science Foundation's importance during the markup, the Committee accepted a modified Holt amendment which succeeded in increasing the Chairman's mark for Function 250 by $100,000,000 in budget authority for 2001;

(3) further recognizing the National Science Foundation's importance and the wisdom of the original Holt amendment, the Rules Committee approved a substitute which changed the budget resolution, as approved by the Budget Committee, to increase budget authority for the National Science Foundation by an additional $.5 billion in 2001 and $3.0 billion over five years and to increase outlays by $0.1 billion in fiscal year 2001 and by $2.2 billion over five years to reflect increased funding for the National Science Foundation;

(4) even with the increases approved in the Rules Committee substitute for function 250, the outlays levels in this Democratic concurrent budget resolution are still above the levels in the House Republican budget resolution, as modified by the Rules Committee substitute, by $200 million for fiscal year 2001 and $1.3 billion over five years (2001–2005);

(5) the National Science Foundation is the largest supporter of basic research in the Federal Government;

(6) the National Science Foundation is the second largest supporter of university-based research;

(7) research conducted by the grantees of the National Science Foundation has led to innovations that have dramatically improved the quality of life of all Americans;

(8) because basic research funded by the National Science Foundation is high-risk, cutting edge, fundamental, and may not produce tangible benefits for over a decade, the Federal Government is uniquely suited to support such research; and

(9) the National Science Foundation's focus on peer-reviewed, merit-based grants represents a model for research agencies across the Federal Government.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the function 250 discretionary levels assume an increase for National Science Foundation that is sufficient for it to continue its critical role in funding basic research, cultivating America's intellectual infrastructure, and leading to innovations that assure the Nation's economic future.

SEC. 207. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING SKILLED NURSING FACILITIES.

It is the sense of Congress that the Medicare Payment Advisory Commission should devote particular attention to the medicare skilled nursing benefit to determine if payment rates are sufficient to provide quality care and to determine if reforms in payment are required. If reforms are recommended, Congress should pass legislation expeditiously to assure quality skilled nursing care.

SEC. 208. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON THE IMPORTANCE OF SPECIAL EDUCATION.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) all children deserve a high quality education, including children with disabilities;

(2) the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act provides that the Federal, State, and local governments are to share in the expense of educating children with disabilities and commits the Federal Government to pay up to 40 percent of the national average per pupil expenditure for children with disabilities; and

(3) the discretionary levels in this concurrent resolution for function 500 (Education) are above the levels in the House Republic Budget Resolution by $4,800,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 and by $20,600,000,000 over five years (fiscal years 2001 to 2005).

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that the higher discretionary levels for function 500 (Education) in this budget resolution compared with the Republican resolution recognize the importance of special education by allowing Congress to provide sufficient increases for special education while also funding the President's other top educational priorities.

SEC. 209. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON A FEDERAL EMPLOYEE PAY RAISE.

It is the sense of Congress that the pay increase for Federal employees in January 2001 should be at least 3.7 percent.

SEC. 210. SENSE OF CONGRESS REGARDING HCFA DRAFT GUIDELINES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) on February 15, 2000, the Health Care Financing Administration in the Department of Health and Human Services issued a draft Medicaid School-Based Administrative Claiming (MAC) Guide; and

(2) in its introduction, the stated purpose of the draft MAC guide is to provide information for schools, State medicaid agencies, HCFA staff, and other interested parties on the existing requirements for claiming Federal funds under the medicaid program for the costs of administrative activities, such as medicaid outreach, that are performed in the school setting associated with school-based health services programs.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) many school-based health programs provide a broad range of services that are covered by medicaid, affording access to care for children who otherwise might well go without needed services;

(2) such programs also can play a powerful role in identifying and enrolling children who are eligible for medicaid or for the State Children's Health Insurance programs;

(3) undue administrative burdens may be placed on school districts and States and deter timely application approval;

(4) the Health Care Financing Administration should substantially revise or abandon the current draft MAC guide because it appears to promulgate new rules that place excessive administrative burdens on participating school districts;

(5) the goal of the revised guide should be to encourage the appropriate use of Medicaid school-based services without undue administrative burdens; and

(6) the best way to ensure the continued viability of medicaid school-based services is to guarantee that the guidelines are fair and responsible.

SEC. 211. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON CORPORATE WELFARE.

It is the sense of Congress that the Committees on the Budget of the House of Representatives and the Senate should hold hearings on H.R. 3221, the Corporate Welfare Commission Act of 1999.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. Pursuant to House Resolution 446, the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) and a Member opposed each will control 20 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, we have considered a number of budget resolutions today. Naturally I think the one we are now presenting is the best of the lot. I want to give the Members of the House five strong reasons that this resolution is the best of the lot.

First of all, prescription drug coverage, a gaping hole in Medicare for many years, we need to close it. We provide reconciliation instructions and $40 billion to the Committee on Ways and Means with the directive to do it. We provide seniors with prescription drug coverage.

Education, the difference between our resolution and the base resolution is clear and distinct, $20.5 billion more for education over the next 5 years.

Debt reduction. Our resolution would lead to debt reduction cumulative surpluses of $48 billion over the next 5 years, $364 billion over the next 10 years.

Social Security and Medicare solvency, the two are directly related. We extend the solvency of Social Security, and we extend the solvency of Medicare. The base bill does not.

Finally, the clear distinct and very important distinction, civilian and military retirement. We provide $16.5 billion to keep the promises we have made to military retirees, particularly those reaching the age of 65 who have not been able to use their Medicare benefits at military treatment facilities.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Rhode Island (Mr. WEYGAND), going to the first aid that I mentioned, prescription drugs, a distinct difference between us and the base bill.

(Mr. WEYGAND asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WEYGAND. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from South Carolina for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, Paul and Judy came to me about a year and a half ago. They were both retired. He was 70. She was 66. About 4 years ago, when they retired, they thought their small pension and their Social Security check would be enough for them. They both had open heart surgery. They both had high blood pressure problems.

Now, after 4 years of retirement, Paul is going back to work part time, and his wife is going back to work part time to pay for their $8,350 a year of prescription drugs. They need relief now.

There are seniors that are in New Jersey, California, Washington, Rhode Island, wherever it may be. There are seniors across this country that want relief now for prescription drugs.

□ 2245

Our plan clearly does that. We reconcile it. We direct Ways and Means to come up with a plan. We put aside, truly, $40 billion over the next 5 years for prescription drug coverage. The Republican plan does not do that. It is elusive, it is smoke and mirrors, it puts it in a reserve fund that is dwindling as we speak today because of a $20 billion error in the way they reconciled their own bill.

Paul and Judy need that relief now, not smoke and mirrors. They need the Democrat alternative that truly addresses the problem, sets aside the money, and comes up with a solution now for Medicare. This takes leadership. This takes courage. This takes bringing us into the 21st century, rather than keeping us in the 20th century.

If we are to make a difference for our seniors, this is the way we can start today. This is a budget proposal that has teeth, has leadership, and will provide the seniors the kind of relief they need. If we are serious about this, no matter what side of the aisle we are on, this is the alternative and this is the plan that will get us to that solution.

I implore my colleagues, forget about the bias between one plan or the other, think about the people in our districts that are truly like Paul and Judy and resolve the prescription drug plan today with our alternative.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. RYAN).

Mr. RYAN of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I want to applaud the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) on putting together a budget, but I want to talk about what the base budget does, the goals we are accomplishing here.

First, we are protecting 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. We protected Social Security last year, we are going to do it again, and we are going to do it ad infinitum. We are strengthening Medicare by adding a prescription drug benefit to it; $40 billion to Medicare. We are retiring the entire public debt by the year 2013. We are promoting tax fairness for families, farmers and seniors. We are restoring America's defense capabilities. And we are strengthening support for education and science.

But I want to talk about Social Security. What are we doing on Social Security? Well, last year the President said on Social Security, let us take 38 percent out of the trust fund and spend it on other government programs and dedicate just 62 percent to Social Security. That was not good enough. And we countered last year by saying lock away 100 percent of Social Security funds for Social Security.

Guess what? That is what we achieved this year. This Congress achieved the stop on the raid of the Social Security Trust Fund for the first time in 30 years. That is what we are accomplishing here. The reforms in the underlying bill, in the budget resolution on Social Security are real reforms.

The reforms in the Spratt budget on Social Security, and on Medicare, for that matter, are phony reforms. They are simply nothing more than adding more paper IOUs to the Social Security and Medicare trust funds. It is kind of like having a credit card, but our income does not change. We do not get more money on our FICA taxes, we do not get more money on our paycheck; but our credit card limit goes up.

That is what the Spratt budget does for Social Security. It simply says increase the limit on the credit card, but do not increase the income to the beneficiary. It does not add one extra penny to Social Security or Medicare. It just transfers IOUs to the two programs to give us the illusion that we are reforming Social Security and Medicare. It lulls us into thinking we are actually making a difference in Social Security and Medicare. My fear is that it will delay the important reforms to Social Security and Medicare that we so dearly need.

Mr. Chairman, the underlying budget, the Republican budget resolution, is the serious plan. It is the plan that locks away Social Security for now and future generations. It is the plan that pays off the entire national public debt in 13 years, a trillion over the next 5 years. It is the plan that lets people continue to keep more of their hard-earned money if they still overpay their taxes. It is a plan that fixes our problems in education and science. It is the plan that puts money back into our vital national defense interests. It is the plan for America's future for the 21st century.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 3 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, no challenge faces our country like the challenge of education. We, in our budget resolution, rise to that challenge. We pay down the debt, we provide for tax cuts, but we also provide for priority spending on things like education, which we believe the American people want.

What is the difference between our resolution and the base bill? $20.5 billion more in our resolution for education.

Mr. Chairman, I yield the balance of my 3 minutes to the gentleman from North Carolina (Mr. PRICE), who was a college professor at Duke University before coming here; and to the gentlewoman from Oregon (Ms. HOOLEY), who was a high school teacher before coming here, to talk about the difference between our resolution and the base bill.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and the gentleman is certainly correct that there is no greater area of contrast in these two budgets than in the area of education.

This is a time when we need to be renewing our commitment to public education, our investments in public education so it becomes an engine of opportunity for all of our people. And what do our Republican friends do? Well, they freeze most education programs for a period of 5 years in this budget. They have a small increase for special education, which is mainly budget authority that cannot be spent. It is a kind of a hollow promise. And then the rest of the education budget is basically frozen.

Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. I yield to the gentlewoman from Oregon.

Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon. Mr. Chairman, one of the things we talk about all the time is how important education is. And what this budget does, the Democratic substitute, is actually put money where our mouths are. That is the most important investment we can make, is in our children.

One of the things I find ironic about the Republican budget is that they cut 40,000 children out of Head Start, for example. And yet all the research shows us that that is the vital age for children to learn, and it is so important for them to have a good start.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Reclaiming my time, the gentlewoman is absolutely correct.

If there were ever a successful program in getting children ready to learn it is Head Start. Why over the next 5 years we would want to actually cut that program escapes me.

Then we look at the other end of the educational spectrum, Pell grants, these cuts would require that 316,000 fewer students receive Pell grants.

Ms. HOOLEY or Oregon. If the gentleman will continue to yield, again this is one of those areas where we say that to succeed with the new technologies and the new kind of markets that we have, it is vitally important that we provide a higher education and some training, and yet again the Republican budget cuts 316,000 students out of the opportunity to go to college.

Mr. PRICE of North Carolina. Again reclaiming my time, I would point out that, by contrast, our Democratic alternative makes room for as much or more for special education, that is, education for disabled and handicapped children. It lets us get going on school construction in low-income and high-growth areas with an innovative tax plan, and it lets us proceed to hire these 100,000 new teachers, skilled teachers to get class size down in the early grades.

Ms. HOOLEY of Oregon. And the reason it is so important to hire 100,000 new teachers is because they are for kindergarten through third grade. And we know if children have smaller classroom sizes, they learn better and it follows them all the way through.

So let us put our money where our mouths are and vote for a budget that funds education.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. NUSSLE).

Mr. NUSSLE. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

It is interesting. I would like to focus on this prescription drug benefit and Medicare benefit that the Democrats are now rushing in at the last minute and providing. Interestingly enough, Paul and Judy, just a few months ago, I would say to my friend, did not get squat from the President. Did not get squat. In fact, when the President came here, Paul and Judy did not get a prescription drug benefit.

The President promised that, but it did not start until the fourth year. And the ultimate is that Paul and Judy's hospital probably had to close because of the provider cuts that went in order to fund this so-called prescription drug benefit that the President put into his budget.

So what did the Democrats do at the last minute, last night? They rushed in and said, oh no, we cannot do that. So, me too, $40 billion, just like the Republicans put into their plan. And now they come in and say, but we have a reconciliation protection.

Do my colleagues know what that means? That means that the committee is instructed to do the work. But if it is not done, the Democrats can spend that $40 billion anywhere they want. The Republicans have a reserve fund for their $40 billion. It has to be spent for Medicare reform with a prescription drug benefit.

Those are the facts. They can run as fast as they want from the President's budget, but the President did not provide a prescription drug benefit that was real. It included provider cuts that were real. And now they run from that, but they run in here with a weaker proposal.

Let us support the Republican plan that gives Paul and Judy and the people across this country the opportunity to have a real prescription drug benefit and a real Medicare reform that not only makes sure that prescription drug benefits are available but makes sure that our hospitals and our doctors and our health care providers are able to keep giving them quality health care.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume to tell my colleagues that the third thing we would emphasize about our budget is debt reduction; that we provide for a Medicare prescription drug benefit; that we provide $20.5 billion more for education, but we also reduce spending and we save $48 billion in cumulative surpluses over the next 5 years. $364 billion.

This side has said repeatedly they are paying the debt down by $1 trillion. So are we. We are all going to use the Social Security surplus, $976 million over the next 5 years, to pay down debt held by the public. But we have $48 billion more in debt reduction over the next 5 years.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. BENTSEN) to talk about the difference between our budget and the base budget when it comes to debt reduction.

(Mr. BENTSEN asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. BENTSEN. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, there is a big difference between the Republican and the Democratic budgets, and one of those big differences is the amount of debt that is paid down. The Republican budget does not use one cent of the on-budget surplus to pay down the national debt, whereas the Democratic budget uses 40 percent of the projected on-budget surplus to pay down the national debt, on top of the Social Security surplus, which both budgets, to be honest, propose paying down the debt.

But then there is a key difference as well, and that is that the Republican budget is predicated on unsustainable cuts in domestic discretionary spending that the Republican Congresses themselves, since 1995, have failed to make.

The Congressional Budget Office, in its most recent report, found that the Republican Congresses had increased nondefense discretionary spending above the rate of inflation, which is contrary to what they have in their budget. Therefore, combined with the trillion dollar tax cut that is in here, the Republican budget would end up not only eating through the on-budget surplus but would also go into the Social Security surplus. So, actually, they are paying down far less debt than what we propose in the Democratic budget.

I am glad, quite frankly, that the Republicans have come around to this way. When we had the budget markup last year, I proposed we dedicate all the surplus, both on-budget and off-budget to paying down the debt, and I was told that was not a good idea. And in 1998, the Republicans proposed using, I think it was either 10 or 20 percent of the Social Security surplus for a tax cut and then dedicating the rest of it.

It is a little bit like a tent meeting and everybody has gone and gotten religion now and they have come back and they want to pay down the debt. But the bottom line, when we compare the two, the Democrats pay down far more than the Republicans in debt.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU).

Mr. SUNUNU. Mr. Chairman, let us be clear about where we really were a year ago and who was making statements about setting aside the surplus, setting aside 100 percent of the Social Security Trust Fund surplus. It cannot possibly be more clear.

The President's budget, which we had a vote on on this very House floor, only received two votes because he was spending 38 percent of the Social Security surplus. And it was the Republican budget that, for the first time ever set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus. This year we are going to do it again for a historic third year in a row, set aside every penny of the Social Security surplus, create a reserve fund for Medicare, not just prescription drug coverage, but honest reforms, as well.

We are going to retire a historic level of the public debt, a trillion dollars over 5 years; promote a much fairer Tax Code; and make essential investments in defense, in veterans' health care, and in education.

But the previous speaker spoke a little bit about retiring debt, and they are talking about this budget being reckless. Well, let us take a look and see how reckless this budget is and how reckless Republican budgets of the past several years have been, paying down over $50 billion in debt 2 years ago, 1998; in 1999, paying down over $80 billion of the public debt.

Fiscal Year 2000, we are in the midst of it, we will pay down over $160 billion in debt. And in the budget we have brought to the floor here today, we are paying down over $170 billion in debt. $450 billion in debt retirement. And this is what the other side would term ''reckless''?

I do not think this is reckless. This is historic. This is an unprecedented commitment to paying down debt. A trillion dollars in debt relief over 5 years in this very budget. This is reckless? I do not think this is reckless. This is an historic commitment to reducing public debt. And that means lower interest rates for every American on home mortgages and car loans and student loans.

One to two percent lower interest rates on $100,000 home mortgage is $10,000 or $20,000 over a 20-year mortgage, $30,000 over a 30-year mortgage, money that never has to get sent to Washington, that the electorate never has to ask for us to return it back to them because we are in a charitable mood.

Lowering interest rates, tens of thousands of dollars of savings for average American families. I do not think this is reckless at all.

I think, instead, it is reckless to oppose tax fairness as the Democrat proposal has done; to oppose eliminating the marriage penalty; to oppose giving individuals health insurance deductibilities so that they can have a fair playing field with large corporations, that is reckless; to oppose repealing the Social Security earnings limit; to oppose expanding opportunities for retirement savings or education savings. That is reckless when we want to trap a family into leaving their child in a family school.

This is a budget of responsibility. It sets the right tone on debt retirement and it strengthens our country.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, there is a very significant difference between our bill and the base bill. We have something in our bill that there is no semblance of in the base bill, and that is $16.3 billion to provide for military retirees' health care at military treatment facilities.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Virginia (Mr. MORAN).

Mr. MORAN of Virginia. Mr. Chairman, there are two groups I want to talk about. It is easy to beat up on Federal employees. After all, we are their bosses and they really cannot fight back. And maybe that is why they have had to contribute over $200 billion in the last few years toward deficit reduction. But at 3 a.m. last night, it was decided to require Federal employees to pay another $1.2 billion toward their retirement costs.

But worse than the way we treat Federal employees is the way we treat military retirees in this bill. It is wrong. We have brochures that are as current as 1991 that promise free lifetime quality health care if they will contribute 20 years of their life serving their country, defending their country.

And they took that promise. And now when they turn 65, they are out in the cold, no health care coverage, they get at the back of the line.

Well, the Democratic budget brings them in from the cold, provides full Medicare coverage, provides the same kind of prescription drug coverage that we provide enlisted personnel and their families.

I have got to tell my colleagues, if they vote for the Republican budget, they had better be willing to look in the face of our military retirees and explain why a politically appealing tax cut was more important than keeping their promise to them.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 10 seconds to the gentleman from California (Mr. CUNNINGHAM).

Mr. CUNNINGHAM. Mr. Chairman, I am a combat veteran and a veteran. I support the Republican budget, and so do other veterans.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. GUTKNECHT).

Mr. GUTKNECHT. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman from Connecticut for yielding me the time.

Mr. Chairman, we have heard all throughout the day and actually for several years now this recurring theme from the people on the other side about reckless, exploding, risky tax cuts for the rich.

Well, let us talk about the tax relief that is in our bill and let us let the American people decide just how risky or reckless and how much this really is for the rich.

We are talking about ending the marriage penalty tax. We believe fundamentally it is wrong to say they ought to pay extra taxes just because they have a marriage license. We think that is wrong.

We think it is wrong that Social Security recipients have this earnings limit and have to pay among the highest tax rates of any working people in America.

We think it is wrong that families have to visit the IRS and the undertaker in the same week.

We think it is wrong that we have a confiscatory tax of 55 percent on estates we have been paying taxes every year.

We think it is wrong that we are not making it easier for expanded education savings accounts. We want to increase the health care deductibility for self-employed for farmers, small business people.

We want to provide tax relief and breaks for poor communities. And we want to strengthen private pension plans.

Now, if those are tax cuts for the rich, if those are risky schemes, well, then let us have more of it.

Let us compare our plan to the Clinton-Gore plan. In the first year, the Clinton-Gore plan actually increases net taxes by $10 billion. We provide $10 billion of tax relief.

If we look at over 5 years, we are talking at least $200 billion in tax relief. We hope to increase that as additional surpluses go up. The President provides $5 billion in tax relief for the first 5 years.

This is not a risky plan. This is a common sense plan. But it is really a debate between those who believe in tax relief for working families; and ultimately, at the end of the day, it is a debate between two world views. It is a debate between those who believe that we know best and can spend the people's money smarter than they can and those of us who believe that they know best and they can spend their own money smarter than we can.

This is a common sense budget. The tax relief that is contained in this budget is really common sense. I think once the American people understand it is not just about numbers, it is about basic fairness.

I would ask my colleagues on the other side which of these tax relief provisions do they want to take away, the marriage penalty tax, the death tax, education savings accounts, health care deductibility, community renewal, or pension reform? Which of those is so unfair? How do they benefit the rich?

They are going to have to answer those questions if they vote against this budget. Because it is a common sense budget and the tax relief that is contained in here is common sense.

I think once the American people understand what we have put into this bill, they will demand the Republican budget.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 4 minutes.

Mr. Chairman, the fifth point that we would make about our budget as opposed to the base budget deals with Social Security and Medicare.

There is a distinct difference, indeed there is a chronic difference, between the way we deal with Social Security and Medicare and the way they deal with it.

First of all, our budget protects, preserves, and defends the Social Security Trust Fund. Over the next 5 years, we are going to rack up $48 billion in surpluses under our budget. What do these ensure? They ensure that the Social Security Trust Fund will remain intact and untouched.

The Republican resolution, on the other hand, puts the budget back in the danger zone, on thin ice, close to the edge.

We have been talking about this chart all day long. The numbers can be argued over, but we have run the numbers different ways and the chart stands uncontradicted.

To begin with, to do what they propose, to achieve this surplus that they claim of $17 billion, $110 billion over the next 5 years, they have got to do $117 billion in real reduction in discretionary spending over the next 5 years. That has not been done over the last 10 when we had deficits. It is not likely to be done over the next 5. And if it is not done, if that assumption is not met, the budget is back in the red again. It is that simple.

Secondly, even if that unlikely assumption were somehow met, if you claim a drug benefit for Medicare which you have got on all your posters, if you claim it, you have got to count the cost of it. That is $40 billion. And if you claim that you are going to do a $200 billion tax cut, then you have got to calculate in your calculation of the surplus the $200 billion tax cut.

And when you put the $40 billion for Medicare prescription drugs and the $200 billion tax cut over 5 years into this budget, the surplus is wiped out in 2003 and you are in the red, back into Social Security in 2004 and 2005. Our budget stays out of Social Security, it stays in the black; it has a $48 billion cushion over that 5-year period of time. That is the first reason ours is better for Social Security.

By the way, we would also buy back Treasury bonds. With the surplus built up in Social Security, we would pay down debt held by the public. We will pay down $976 million of debt just as you will with your proposal, so long as you stay out of Social Security; and over 10 years we will pay down $2.3 trillion in debt, and by the year 2013 we will wipe out the public debt if we abide by the budget that we are proposing.

Now, there is a second, more important, reason that our budget is better for Social Security, Medicare and distinctly different from the base budget. The Republican budget does not add a dime to Social Security or Medicare over the next 5 years or 1 day to the solvency of either program. Over the next 10 years, our budget contributes $300 billion out of the surpluses that we will accumulate. It takes $300 billion from the general fund and puts that money into the Medicare trust fund.

I have heard this talk over here about IOUs. If anybody has a government bond lying around that is an IOU and he would like to put it somewhere, I will be glad to receive it. It has a lot of value to it. It gives you secured status. We are going to put $300 billion in government bonds into the Medicare trust fund paid for, a net addition to national savings out of the general fund. And in 2011, we propose to calculate how much we have saved in the way of debt service on the last year and take that amount of money and transfer it into the Social Security Trust Fund. As a result, we extend the solvency of Medicare by 10 years and the solvency of Social Security by 15 years. These are profound differences and good reasons to vote for our substitute over the base bill.

Mr. Chairman, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself 20 seconds to point out that our colleagues on the other side of the aisle had 40 years to spend the Social Security surplus and this side of the aisle ended that practice. In the very footnotes of the chart just referred to, Democrats admitted they interpolated and they extrapolated to get their figures. In other words, they guessed.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the distinguished gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. WELDON) from the Committee on Armed Services.

(Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the base budget bill. As one of the few classroom teachers in this body, who ran a chapter 1 program for 3 years in an urban school district, I am strongly in favor of this budget because of what it does for education. We focus on teachers. We focus on kids. We do not focus on bureaucracy. I am proud of what this budget does in terms of Social Security and Medicare, what it does to pay down the public debt. But I am most proud of what this budget and what this part of the Congress and the House has done for our defense.

The other side talks about rebuilding our defense. Over the past 5 years, Mr.

Chairman, it has been this side who has increased defense spending by $43.1 billion over the President's request. Even the former Clinton Secretary of Defense, Bill Perry, just 2 months ago acknowledged if we had not done that, we would be in a devastating position right now as this President tries to recapture a $15 billion increase and that is not enough.

This President has committed our troops to deployments 34 times in 8 years, versus 10 times in the previous 40 years. None of those 34 deployments were budgeted for. All the money for those deployments came out of an already decreasing defense budget. Our morale has never been lower. Our retention rates for pilots in the Air Force and Navy is hovering at 15 percent. Our ability to recruit young people, except for the Marine Corps, is going unmet by all the services. We are sending aircraft carriers into harm's way with five and 600 sailors short.

We have military personnel on food stamps. That is the legacy of this administration even though we have increased defense spending by $43 billion over the past 5 years. This budget reinvests in defense and makes a commitment to our military. But it does something else, Mr. Chairman, that no one has talked about tonight in any of the budgets and is not even mentioned in the budget that my good friend and colleague is offering tonight on behalf of the minority.

We talk about police and both budgets spend billions of dollars on law enforcement. We buy vests for police. We talk about teachers; 100,000 new teachers. What does your budget do for the 1.2 million men and women who are domestic defenders, our fire and emergency services personnel? What statement does your budget make about the 32,000 fire and EMS departments that have responded to every flood, every tornado, every earthquake, every disaster our country has? Your budget has zilch, zero, nada, nothing. Our budget for the first time ever recognizes the brave heroes of America who respond to our domestic problems, the 1.2 million men and women, 85 percent of whom are volunteers, in every one of your congressional districts, that day in and day out supports the job of protecting our American people. Even though we lose 100 of these people a year, you say nothing. We provide support for them.

For that reason, I say vote for the Republican base budget bill.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself enough time to answer one question the gentleman put to me with respect to fire personnel and emergency personnel. This budget, the base budget, cuts FEMA, the account in which FEMA is included, function 450, by $2.8 billion between this year and next year, and over 5 years by $18.3 billion. That is what you are cutting out of function Community and Regional Development.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SPRATT. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. WELDON of Pennsylvania. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman would know anything about FEMA, none of that money goes to local fire and emergency response. None of it. Not one dime of it. The gentleman needs to get his facts straight.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield 90 seconds to the gentlewoman from North Carolina (Mrs. CLAYTON).

(Mrs. CLAYTON asked and was given permission to revise and extend her remarks.)

Mrs. CLAYTON. Mr. Chairman, the Democratic budget does many things. It is both prudent and caring. Certainly it pays down the debt by the year 2013 and certainly it protects Medicare, it protects Social Security; and yes, it does a sufficient amount of investment in our military and our retirees who have served our country well. But in addition to that, it invests in education. It also does something that the Republican budget does not do. It cares about its most vulnerable people, those people who are left out of the bountiful plenty of prosperity that we are enjoying. It cares about legal immigrants. It cares about the poorest of the poor trying to get day care going to work. It invests in after-school programs. It invests and brings up the shelter and provision caps for food stamps. It makes it even for all States.

Not only is the Democratic budget a prudent one, but it says American prosperity should be for everyone. I invite my colleagues to make sure that everybody is included in this prosperity. The Democratic budget does that.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to my great friend, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. HOEKSTRA).

Mr. HOEKSTRA. I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

Mr. Chairman, what does the Republican budget mean for you and your family? It means a debt-free Nation for our children. In education it means more dollars for our classrooms and more dollars for our children instead of dollars for bureaucracy and redtape.

□ 2320

The distinction could not be more clear. The Democratic alternative wants to force on our local schools programs and mandates that do not work. They want to build our schools, hire our teachers, buy the technology, feed our kids breakfast, dictate the curriculum, teach our kids about sex, teach them about drugs, teach them about art, feed our kids lunch, and then they want to test them. Other than that, they believe in local control.

And then they are going to move all of those programs and move those decisions for each one of those areas into a department in Washington that for 2 years has failed its financial audits, has told the American people give us $35 billion per year, but we are not going to take the time or the energy to be able to account where that money is spent. That is wrong.

The alternative is providing resources to local schools to tailor solutions to meet the needs of our local school districts, to meet their particular needs, a vision that gives decision-making and discretion to local administrators, to parents and teachers, the people that know our kids' names and know their needs. The differences could not be clearer.

Are we going to move decision-making to the Department of Education here in Washington, or are we going to leave the decision-making at the local level? It is time to support the Republican budget. It increases spending and investment in education, but it preserves and builds educational excellence through local decision-making, not through decision-making based here in Washington.

Support this budget. It is the right thing to do. It builds on what we know works and walks away from that which we know that does not work.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself the balance of my time.

I ask the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) if I could borrow one of his charts.

This is the chart I wanted to hold and borrow, because I think throughout this debate the gentleman sort of indirectly unwittingly complimented us. The only thing the gentleman got wrong on this whole chart is a GOP plan, because if the gentleman goes down the items on this chart, the gentleman will see that our budget resolution does everything the gentleman says, except we do it better.

It protects 100 percent of the Social Security surplus. I just explained that. We have a $48 billion cushion that keeps you out of Social Security, strengthens Medicare with prescription drugs. We have reconciliation. We do not say report a bill that has structure reforms and then you can have the $40 billion. We say just do prescription drugs, get it done. Retire the public debt by 2013, we do it. Promote tax fairness, give us a break. We have got a $50 billion net tax cut. Read the language of it.

We have the AMT correction in it. We have mitigation of the marital penalty in it. We have deductibility of college tuition in it. We have tax fairness and tax relief for families. Restore America's defense? Come on. There is one-tenth of 1 percent over the 5 years difference between what the gentleman is providing for defense than what we are providing for defense.

Add in the $16.3 billion that we are providing for retiree health care, and we are way ahead of the gentleman. Finally, strength and support for education and science. We match you in science. And we are $20.5 billion ahead of you in education. You ought to vote for us.

I rest my case and I yield back the balance of my time.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). The gentleman from Ohio has 3 minutes remaining to close.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to make sure we have another one of these charts made so we can present it to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) tomorrow.

Mr. Chairman, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee (Mr. WAMP) for his closing comments.

(Mr. WAMP asked and was given permission to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WAMP. Mr. Chairman, I thank the gentleman very much for yielding the time. It is an honor to come and close this debate today. I know later tonight as we close up this great debate on the budget this year that we are going to give proper recognition to the gentleman from Ohio (Chairman KASICH), but I think over the last 15 years, as many have labored in the fields for a more responsible approach on the Federal level, there is not a person in the United States Congress that deserves more credit for bringing us to a balanced budget than the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH).

He is a genuine man, and everyone in this institution I think respects and appreciates the gentleman. Do not take too much of my time. We are going to do this again a little later on. We are going to do that again.

I admire the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT), but I have to tell you, I spent the first half of my life as a Democrat for 20 years. And I spent the second half of my life as a Republican, and I joined the Republican party in 1980 because I felt like the Federal Government was growing too big and out of control in some respects, and we needed to restore more accountability to Washington, D.C.

I would say as a member of the Committee on the Budget and the Committee on Appropriations that this majority has hit its stride in balance, fairness. And I think this budget is the best product that we have come up with in the 5½ years that we have had an opportunity to present our way.

My 13-year-old son is in the Chamber tonight. He will be 13 Sunday. And I really believe that this issue, I have heard reckless tax cuts all night long, but let me tell you when I was in born in 1957, the American people paid less than 10 percent to the Government at all level combined. And today it is almost half.

When my son is at my age, at the current pace, three-fourths of what he makes is going to go to the Government at some level, and that is reckless. That is the truth.

We need to bring more accountability to this process of where we are going to restrain government growth. That is what this budget does. Greenspan knows it. He says it, the economy is the goose laying its golden egg. And we have to restrain the growth of spending.

The Democratic substitute here actually grows discretionary spending at twice inflation. We cannot continue to do that. Tax fairness, ladies and gentlemen, time has come, and Democrats and Republicans are agreeing that we need to reduce the tax burden on working families in this country. And I am proud of this budget, because it is fair and reasonable.

I come from sort of the center here to say that it is time that we all come together around this budget, live within our means, fuel the economy, save Social Security, protect 100 percent of it, strengthen Medicare, do all we can with that prescription drug benefit, retire that public debt in a bipartisan way, give some tax relief to the American families while we can. If we do not do it now, with unprecedented surpluses, we will never do it. We have to do it now. Let us come together.

Yes, we are not restoring America's defense. We need to do more, I say to the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT). We need do a lot more, because we got people spread all over the world overdeployed, underpaid, ill-equipped. We need to do more, but a billion dollars is at least a step in the right direction and invest in education and science.

Let us pass this budget tonight.

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the Democratic substitute to the budget resolution.

I want to commend the ranking member, Mr. SPRATT for working to make the Democratic substitute a plan that pays down the debt, protects the future of Social Security and Medicare, and helps our low-income families.

During this period of economic good times, it may be difficult to comprehend that across America, 28 percent of families with three or more children are living in poverty.

But the fact is, poverty rates for families with three or more children are much higher than for smaller families.

By providing them with an increased tax credit, this expansion of the EITC for families with three or more children recognizes the economic difficulties of raising a large family today.

Expanding the earned income tax credit for these larger families is a common-sense tax policy; a policy that will directly benefit 7.7 million kids whose hard-working parents are struggling to climb the economic ladder out of poverty.

In closing, Mr. Chairman, today we have a choice between the Republican budget, which gambles away the surplus on risky tax cuts and jeopardizes crucial programs such as Social Security and Medicare, or the Democratic substitute, which protects these programs and gives a boost to millions of hard-working American families.

I urge my colleagues to vote for the Democratic substitute and invest in the future of all Americans.

Mr. EVANS. Mr. Chairman, as the Ranking Democrat on the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, I rise to express my strong support for the substitute budget resolution offered by the gentleman from South Carolina, Mr. SPRATT, the Ranking Democratic Member of our House Budget Committee. The Spratt budget resolution for fiscal year 2001 is a strong pro-veteran proposal. It deserves the support of every Member of the House.

The budget authored by Congressman SPRATT provides more discretionary spending in fiscal year 2001 for the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) than either the budget proposed by the President or the budget resolution reported by the Committee. With these additional funds, VA can better meet the medical care needs of our nation's aging veterans population. Specifically for fiscal year 2001, the Spratt alternative provides $22.3 billion in appropriations for veterans' programs, $100 million more than the Republican plan and $200 million more than the President's request. Over five years (2001–2005), the Spratt alternative provides $1 billion more than the Republican proposal.

Significantly, the Spratt proposal also increases the basic monthly education benefit veterans will receive under the Montgomery GI Bill (MGIB). Educational benefits provided under the MGIB are mandatory spending. This increase in the basic monthly education benefit for veterans who have honorably served our nation in uniform and then pursue post-secondary education is an important first step in restoring our commitment to provide veterans a readjustment benefit for education which is worthy of their service to our nation.

Under the Spratt proposal the basic educational benefit for veterans will increase from the current $536 per month for 36 months to nearly $700 per month. This is a well-deserved and much needed 25 percent increase in MGIB education readjustment benefit for veterans. As the gentleman from South Carolina knows, I believe the MGIB benefit should be increased more than has been proposed in the resolution which he has authored. This proposed increase, however, is a strong, positive step to achieving the goal of providing a more meaningful education benefit for our nation's veterans than is provided today.

MIGB enhancements are long overdue. I strongly agree with the report of the Congressional Commission on Servicemembers and Veterans Transition Assistance, which concluded ''. . . an opportunity to obtain the best education for which they qualify is the most valuable benefit our Nation can offer the men and women whose military service preserves our liberty.'' I applaud the Commission's bold, new plan for the MGIB. This proposal, however, must be further strengthened and enhanced if the MGIB is to fulfill its purposes as a meaningful readjustment benefit and as an effective recruitment incentive for our Armed Forces. Since the implementation of the Montgomery GI Bill on July 1, 1985, there have been significant economic and societal changes in America that mandate revisions in the structure and benefit level of this program.

In the House, MGIB legislation has been introduced by Mr. STUMP, Chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee, and together with Mr. DINGELL, I introduced my own bill, H.R. 1071, the Montgomery GI Bill Improvements Act of 1999, to provide benefits for two tiers of service members, those who enlist for a minimum of 4 years (Tier I) and those who enlist for less than 4 years (Tier II). Benefits for Tier I would pay for full cost of tuition, fees, books and supplies, plus provide a subsistence allowance of $800 per month of full-time college studies for up to 36 months. Tier II would increase the basic benefit under the MGIB to $900 per month.

According to an analysis performed by the Congressional Research Service last year, the mean earnings of workers 18 years or older in 1998 were $23,320 for high school graduates, $27,618 for those with some college or an Associate's degree and $43,255 for those with a Bachelor's degree. The analysis then calculated the average federal income tax for these workers, using 1999 tax rates for single taxpayers, and using the standard deduction of $4,300 and the personal exemption of $2,750. These figures are listed in the table below.

This information confirms our common sense understanding of the importance of education. Education is of benefit to individual servicemembers and veterans and to American society in general. Servicemembers and veterans who have earned through their honorable military service a meaningful readjustment benefit which provides the opportunity to obtain a higher education will be more productive, earn more and based on their increased earnings pay higher taxes.

	High school graduate	Some college or associate's degree	Bachelor's degree only
Average Annual Earnings	$23,320	$27,618	$43,255
Average Federal Income Tax	2,441	3,086	6,796

The economic impacts are compelling. Servicemembers and veterans who attain a Bachelor's degree pay back 36 percent more in federal tax revenues each year. If the policy rationale for an MGIB benefit increase is not a strong enough argument on its own, it is obvious that an increase would, in essence, be self-funded as well. These calculations, unfortunately, are not given commensurate weight when Congress evaluates cost under pay-as-you-go requirements.

As illustrated by the Congressional Research Service, the amount of education that individuals receive has an important influence on their experience in the labor market. For example, those who have completed more years of schooling typically experience less unemployment than other workers do. In addition, workers' earnings generally increase as their level of education increases. These relationships have held up over time, and in some instances, have intensified. Workers with a bachelor's degree are much better off today, compared to less-educated workers, than they were some two decades ago. The average male college graduate earned about 50 percent more than the average male high school graduate during the latter half of the 1970s. In contrast, the premium paid to males with college degrees in 1998 was 92 percent. The average wage advantage of female college graduates over female high school graduates grew from about 41 to 76 percent.

Of immediate concern is the ineffectiveness of the MGIB as a readjustment program for servicemembers making the transition from military service to a civilian society and workforce. While costs of higher education have soared, nearly doubling since 1980. GI Bill benefits have not kept pace. In fact, during the 1995–96 school year, the basic benefit paid under the MGIB offset only a paltry 36 percent of average total education costs. A disappointingly low usage rate of 51 percent for 1998 confirms the inadequacy of the current program's benefit levels.

Young men and women who serve in our Armed Forces have the option of enrolling in the MGIB when they enter the military. This includes their agreement to a $100 per month pay reduction during the first twelve months of service, for a total contribution of $1,200. Once their initial term of service has been honorably served, a veteran is eligible to receive the basic monthly educational benefit of $536 each month he or she is enrolled in full-time college study. The benefit continues for up to 36 months. Assuming he or she is enrolled for a typical nine-month academic year, the veteran's total benefit for that year is $4,824. With this modest amount he or she is expected to pay for tuition, fees, room and board.

The average annual cost of tuition and basic expenses at a four-year public college is $8,774 for commuter students and $10,909 for students who live on campus according to the College Board. Not surprisingly, the same annual costs for four-year private colleges are even higher: $20,500 for commuter students and $23,651 for residents. The disparity between these ever-increasing costs and a veteran's ability to pay for them is clear. This disparity recently prompted key military and veteran organizations to join together with organizations representing colleges to form the ''Partnership for Veterans' Education.'' The coalition launched an energetic campaign calling for Congress to at least increase the basic benefit under the MGIB to $975 per month, enough to cover the $8,774 average annual cost of attending a four-year public college as a commuter student.

In addition to inadequate benefit levels, the unsatisfactory usage rate is also a result of the inflexible structure of the present program. Under today's law, benefits are generally paid only on a monthly basis and may not be used for specialized courses, such as computer training; provided by for-profit and nonprofit entities that do not meet the current definition of ''educational institution.'' As a result, veterans' education and training choices are limited, and they are not permitted to use their GI Bill benefits if they want to take advantage of the many excellent technology-related courses sponsored by companies like Microsoft or Novell. This is precisely the type of training that is important now and will be even more important in the future.

The current structure of the MGIB served the veterans during the second half of the 20th century very well. However, the MGIB must now be re-examined in the context of a January, 1999 report by the Departments of Commerce, Labor, and Education, the Small Business Administration, and the National Institute for Literacy. This report, entitled ''21st Century Skills for 21st Century Jobs,'' has important implications for veterans entering the civilian workforce. Emphasizing the importance to the nation of investing in education and training, the report concluded changes in the economy and workplace are requiring greater levels of skill and education than ever before. It predicted eight of the ten fastest growing jobs in the next decade will require college education or moderate to long-term training, and jobs requiring a bachelor's degree will increase by 25 percent. The report also noted workers with more education enjoy greater benefits, experience less unemployment and, if dislocated, re-enter the labor force far more quickly than individuals with less education. It also reports that, on average, college graduates earn 77 percent more than individuals with only a high school diploma. If America's veterans are to successfully compete in the challenging 21st century workforce, they simply have to have the ability to obtain the education and training critical to their success. As noted by the Transition Commission, ''. . . education will be the key to employment in the information age.'' Although the current GI Bill provides some degree of assistance, it is a key that opens very few doors, and it is my belief that all the doors of educational opportunity must be open to our veterans.

According to the 1997 Department of Defense report entitled ''Population Representation in the Military Services,'' 20 percent of the new enlisted recruits for that year were African American, 10 percent were Hispanic, 6 percent were other minorities, including Native Americans, Asians, and Pacific Islanders, and 18 percent were women. The report further notes that, although members of the military come from backgrounds somewhat lower in socioeconomic status than the U.S. average, these young men and women have higher levels of education, measured aptitudes, and reading skills than their civilian counterparts. These young people, most of whom do not enter military service with financial or socioeconomic advantages, have enormous potential, and it is in the best interests of the nation they be given every opportunity to achieve their highest potential. Access to education is the key to achieving that potential. It is also important to remember that, through the sacrifices required of them through their military service, this group of young Americans—more than any other—earns the benefits provided for them by a grateful nation.

Of equal concern to me as a member of the Armed Services Committee is the MGIB's failure to fulfill its purpose as a recruitment incentive for the Armed Forces. Findings of the 1998 Youth Attitude Tracking Study (YATS) confirm that recruiters are faced with serious challenges, and these challenges are likely to continue. This survey of young men and women, conducted annually by the Department of Defense, provides information on the propensity, attitudes and motivations of young people toward military service. The latest YATS shows the propensity to enlist among young males has fallen from 34 percent in 1991 to 26 percent in 1998, in spite of a generally favorable view of the military. In addition to a thriving civilian economy, which inevitably results in recruiting challenges, the percentage of American youth going to college is increasing and the young people most likely to go to college express little interest in joining our Armed Forces. Interestingly, these same youth note that if they were to serve in the military, their primary reason for enlisting would be to earn educational assistance benefits.

The study concluded the propensity to enlist is substantially below pre-drawdown levels and, as result, the services would probably not succeed in recruiting the number of young, high-ability young men and women they needed in FY 1999. High-ability youth, defined as those who have a high school diploma and who have at least average scores on tests measuring mathematical and verbal skills. The Department of Defense tells us about 80 percent of these recruits will complete their first three years of active duty while only 50 percent of recruits with a GED will complete their enlistment. GAO notes that it costs at least $35,000 to replace a recruit who leaves the service prematurely. The report states these findings underscore the need for education benefits that will attract college-bound youth who need money for school, a segment of American young people we conclude are now opting to take advantage of the many other sources of federal education assistance. The current structure and benefit level of the MGIB must be significantly amended if these high quality young men and women are to be attracted to service in our Armed Forces.

The Army missed its enlistment goals in FY 1998 and 1999. Additionally, for the first time since 1979, the Air Force missed its goal in FY 1999, and will likely miss again this year. Although the Navy and Marine Corps are currently meeting their objectives, it is getting more difficult each year. The continuing recruiting and retention challenges necessitate our taking quick and effective action. Even though the Army and Navy are recruiting more GED holders than in the early 1990s, all Services are meeting or exceeding the DoD recruit quality benchmarks of 90 percent high school diploma graduates and 60 percent scoring above average on the enlistment test. But this quality does not come inexpensively. The Services have increased their enlistment bonus and advertising budgets and added additional recruiters to meet the challenge. The cost to recruit has grown by over 50 percent in just the last five years.

Percent of Objective

Service	1998			1999
	Actual	Objective	Percent	Actual	Objective	Percent
Army	71.8	72.6	99	68.2	74.5	92
Navy	48.4	55.3	88	52.6	52.5	100
Marine Corps	34.3	34.3	100	33.7	33.7	100
Air Force	31.7	30.2	105	32.7	34.4	94
DoD Total	186.2	192.3	97	187.2	195.1	96

Many factors have come together to create what may soon become a recruiting emergency. First, our thriving national economy is generating employment opportunities for our young people. Additionally, young Americans increasingly understand a college education as the key to success and prosperity. In 1980, 74 percent of high school graduates went to college but, by 1992, that percentage has risen to 81 percent and is increasing. As a result, the military must compete head-to-head with colleges for high-ability youth. As I have mentioned already, the percentage of young Americans who are interested in serving in the Armed Forces is also shrinking. Make no mistake about it—the strength of our Armed Forces begins and ends with the men and women who serve our nation. Just as education is the key to a society's success or failure, it is also key to the quality and effectiveness of our military forces—and the MGIB increases included in this substitute budget resolution are a step in the right direction toward providing that key.

Veterans are not using the MGIB benefits they have earned through honorable military service, and high-ability, college-bound young Americans are choosing not to serve in the Armed Forces. Significant changes in the MGIB readjustment program will increase program usage and will enable the military services to recruit the smart young people they need. Accordingly, several bills have been introduced in both the House and the Senate during the 106th Congress that would significantly improve the MGIB. The Senate has twice passed legislation that included numerous changes designed to enhance educational opportunities under the MGIB. In the House, MGIB legislation has been introduced by Mr. Stump, Chairman of the House Veterans' Affairs Committee. Together with Mr. DINGELL, I introduced H.R. 1071, the Montgomery GI Bill Improvements Act of 1999.

The brave men and women who serve in America's Armed Forces deserve, and have indeed earned, far better than the inadequate educational assistance program now available to them. I strongly urge my fellow colleagues to support this substitute budget resolution and the policy it represents of demonstrating a continued national commitment to our veterans.

Mr. Chairman, I rise today in support of the Democratic Substitute to the Budget Resolution for FY 2001.

Once again, the Republicans have presented a budget that would betray middle-class working families. Instead of supporting our communities, their proposal would make deep cuts in investments in education, healthcare and veterans programs. They even fail to include a Medicare prescription drug plan for all seniors.

At a time when America's farm economy is suffering, the Republicans have cut discretionary spending for agriculture, making the agriculture programs impossible to administer. If the field office staff cannot do their jobs, farmers do not get their money. The Republican plan, if adopted, could mean that fewer and fewer farmers will actually get the help they need and that Congress has approved in a timely fashion. The Democratic Substitute does not forget the farmers who work so hard to keep America prosperous.

The Democratic Substitute also extends Social Security and Medicare solvency while paying down the national debt. We care about the future of these important programs not just for the present, well into the future. Instead of ignoring a growing need in our country, Democrats also include a prescription drug benefit for all Medicare recipients beginning in FY 2001.

The Republican proposal would provide Pell Grants to 316,000 fewer low-income students by 2005 and eliminate Head Start for 40,000 children and their families by 2005. Why are the Republicans giving tax breaks to the wealthy and penalizing families who need help the most?

As the Ranking Member of the Veterans' Affairs Committee, I am appalled that the Republican resolution does not provide any funding over the next five years to improve health care for military retirees over the age of 65, not even funds to pay for prescription drug coverage. However, the Democratic Substitute provides funds to improve health care for military retirees and directs the Armed Services Committee to provide prescription drug coverage and better access to the DoD health system for Medicare-eligible military retirees. It also includes a well deserved increase in funding for the Montgomery G.I. Bill, which will help us recruit and retain high quality personnel for our armed forces. I applaud Ranking Member SPRATT for including this at my urging.

I ask my colleagues to reject the misguided Republican proposal. Vote for the substitute that helps working families—vote for the Democratic substitute.

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, just about a month ago, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Gen. Henry Shelton, testified that guaranteeing life-time health care is not only important to keeping the promises made to those who have dedicated their careers to military service, but also to attract and retain quality personnel today. This issue is tied to the readiness of our Armed Forces, and will be one of the top defense issues Congress will have to address this year. In truth, I was surprised to see that the Republican budget resolution does not provide any funding over the next five years to improve health care for military retirees over the age of 65, not even funds to pay for prescription drug coverage. The Democratic alternative budget, however, does not dodge this issue.

Currently, military retirees 65 or older lose guaranteed access to the Department of Defense (DOD) health care system. The Democratic budget funds two major initiatives the Republican resolution ignores: a permanent and nationwide expansion of Medicare Subvention, and a guarantee that these retirees have access to the Department of Defense's prescription drug plans. These are the major provisions of H.R. 3655 that are geared to Medicare-eligible military retirees. H.R. 3655 is a comprehensive military health care bill introduced by Representatives NEIL ABERCROMBIE, IKE SKELTON, and GENE TAYLOR.

The Democratic alternative directs the Armed Services Committee to write legislation to improve health care benefits for Medicare-eligible military retirees, and includes mandatory funding for both initiatives: $10.9 billion over ten years for Medicare Subvention, and $5.4 billion over ten years for prescription drug coverage. The prescription drug initiative is treated as an entitlement so it will not have to compete every year with other defense priorities for discretionary funds.

The Military Coalition, which represents many different uniformed services and veterans' organizations and more than 5.5 million current and former members of the Armed Forces and their families, supports H.R. 3655 and has commended the Democratic budget for including this funding. The Military Coalition states that the military retiree health care provisions of the Democratic Alternative ''are important steps toward fulfilling the commitment of health care for life that was promised uniformed services retirees as an inducement to dedicate themselves to careers in uniforms.'' The entire text of their letter is included for the record.

If the Democratic budget resolution is passed by the House, the following is the report language which will accompany our reconciliation directive to the Armed Services Committee:

REPORT LANGUAGE TO ACCOMPANY SEC. 104 OF THE DEMOCRATIC ALTERNATIVE BUDGET RESOLUTION

Section 104 issues a reconciliation directive to the Armed Services Committee for $16.3 billion for the 2001–2010 period. The Budget Committee assumes that the additional funding made available will be used to extend and improve the Department of Defense health care system to Medicare-eligible retirees. The year by year amounts are as follows:

For fiscal year 2001, $437,000,000;
For fiscal year 2002, $699,000,000;
For fiscal year 2003, $990,000,000;
For fiscal year 2004, $1,426,000,000;
For fiscal year 2005, $1,848,000,000;
For fiscal year 2006, $2,069,000,000;
For fiscal year 2007, $2,126,000,000;
For fiscal year 2008, $2,184,000,000;
For fiscal year 2009, $2,243,000,000; and
For fiscal year 2010, $2,301,000,000.

The Budget Committee believes these amounts are consistent with the provisions of H.R. 3655 that apply to Medicare-eligible military retirees. H.R. 3655, which was introduced by Reps. Neil Abercrombie, Ike Skelton, and Gene Taylor, is a comprehensive bill that addresses the health care needs of active duty personnel, military retirees, and their families. The active-duty provisions of this legislation that are funded within the President's budget are also accommodated within the budget resolution. Specifically, $10.9 billion is consistent with the funding required to meet the bill's provision to extend Medicare Subvention nationwide by January 1, 2006. In addition, $5.4 billion is to meet the bill's provision to provide access to the Department Defense's prescription drug programs for all retirees, including Medicare-eligible retirees. All of the funds are mandatory expenditures.

The $10.9 billion is displayed in Function 570 (Medicare) and the $5.4 billion is displayed in Function 550 (Health). While the amounts provided by the Budget Committee conform with the major provisions of H.R. 3655, the Armed Services Committee has sole jurisdiction over this legislation, and may provide the benefits in the manner and function(s) it thinks best.

Last year, even though the Democratic alternative did not pass, it provided the impetus to increase funding for veterans' health care by $1.7 billion. Win or lose, the Democratic alternative is a strong message to retirees and a strong step forward for the Abercrombie-Skelton-Taylor legislation. As a cosponsor of H.R. 3655, I hope the Democratic alternative will spur Congress to pass this important legislation.

ALEXANDRIA, VA.
March 23, 2000.

Hon. JOHN SPRATT,
Ranking Minority Member, House Budget Committee, O'Neill House Office Building, Washington DC.

DEAR REPRESENTATIVE SPRATT: The Military Coalition, a consortium of nationally prominent uniformed services and veterans organizations, representing more than 5.5 million current and former members of the seven uniformed services, plus their families and survivors, would like to express its gratitude for the proposed budget alternative that you introduced this week. We appreciate your leadership in proposing an additional $16.3 billion over the next ten years to improve access to military health care for the most aggrieved group—Medicare-eligible uniformed services beneficiaries.

Although the Coalition would have preferred the House Budget to completely fund health care for life for retirees as provided for in H.R. 2966, we recognize that your budget proposal will provide for immediate and demonstrable progress toward this goal by providing funding for the TRICARE Senior Prime program and making the military BRAC pharmacy benefit available to all Medicare-eligible retirees. These are important steps toward fulfilling the commitment of health care for life that was promised uniformed services retirees as an inducement to dedicate themselves to careers in uniform.

Again, thank you for your strong support, for which we are most grateful. It's our hope that you and other members of Congress will not stop with these first, substantial steps, but will continue to address this issue next year, and every year thereafter, until full equity is achieved for those retired members who have done so much to protect the democracy that their countrymen enjoy.

Sincerely,

THE MILITARY COALITION.

Mr. POMEROY. Mr. Chairman, I rise in strong support of the alternative budget resolution offered by the Ranking Member of the Budget Committee, Mr. SPRATT, and in opposition to H. Con. Res. 290. The Spratt alternative, in contrast to the majority plan, extends the solvency of Social Security and Medicare; pays down more publicly held debt; provides targeted tax relief for working families; and makes a real commitment to providing prescription drug coverage for senior citizens. For these reasons, I urge my colleagues to support the Spratt alternative and to oppose H. Con. Res. 290.

The Spratt alternative saves 100 percent of the surplus generated by Social Security for Social Security. The majority plan, if you assume that the so-called reserve funds for additional tax cuts and Medicare are spent, actually drains more than $60 billion of the Social Security surplus over the next ten years. Even if you assume that the reserve funds are not spent and that Social Security surplus is not tapped, the Republican budget still fails to extend the life of either Social Security or Medicare by even one day. In contrast, the Spratt alternative extends Social Security by 15 years by crediting the trust fund with the interest savings generated by the Social Security surplus. With regard to Medicare, the Republican resolution adds nothing to the solvency of the program while the Spratt alternative adds ten years by reserving $300 billion of the on-budget surplus for Medicare.

The Spratt alternative makes debt reduction the top fiscal priority rather than exploding tax cuts. The Chairman of the Federal Reserve and countless other economists have advised Congress that paying down the debt is the best thing we can do to maintain our strong economy. Eliminating the debt and lowering interest rates is also the best thing Congress can do for working families. Lower interest rates cut mortgage payments by $2,000 for families with a $100,000 mortgage. The cost of care loans and student loans would also be reduced. Paying down the debt is effectively a large tax cut that also lifts a financial burden from our children and grandchildren.

In addition paying down the debt and extending the life of Social Security and Medicare, the Spratt alternative provides targeted tax relief for working families. The Spratt budget allocates more than $210 billion for tax cuts that would allow Congress to enact marriage penalty relief, estate tax relief for family farmers and small business people, full deductibility of health insurance for the self-employed, and tax credits for higher education. By targeting resources to families trying to make ends meet, the Spratt alternative is able to deliver significant tax relief while protecting other key priorities.

When it comes to prescription drugs, the Spratt alternative makes a hard commitment of $40 billion over the next five years to provide Medicare prescription drug coverage for all senior citizens. The Spratt alternative will not only allow prescription drug coverage for all senior citizens, it will protect low-income seniors from any cost-sharing requirements. The majority plan, on the other hand, does not actually dedicate resources for a new prescription drug benefit. Rather, the resolution creates a $40 billion reserve fund that depends on improved future budget projections.

Finally, the agriculture function in the Spratt alternative is superior to the majority plan. The Spratt budget provides $6 billion in farmer income assistance for fiscal year 2000 and $7.2 billion to reflect the House-passed crop insurance. Unlike the GOP resolution, which freezes discretionary agriculture spending for the next five years, the Spratt budget provides a responsible increase so that critical agriculture research, trade development and marketing programs may continue. The Spratt budget also ensures that USDA will have sufficient administrative resources to deliver key farm programs such as crop insurance as well as income and disaster assistance.

In summary, Mr. Chairman, I urge my colleagues to support the Spratt alternative and oppose H. Con. Res. 290.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore. All time has expired.

The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute offered by the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

The question was taken; and the Chairman pro tempore announced that the noes appeared to have it.

RECORDED VOTE

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I demand a recorded vote.

A recorded vote was ordered.

LAST BUDGET RESOLUTION FOR REPRESENTATIVE JOHN KASICH

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, this is the last budget resolution that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) will bring to the House floor after many years. As he leaves the House, he leaves a large void.

I came here with him in 1983. I can speak from personal experience because I served on the same committee with him from the day we first arrived here. As a matter of fact, the reason I am on the Committee on Armed Services is that, when the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) did not get on it, he went to Bob Michael, raised hell, they went to Tip O'Neill, and Tip and Bob Michael agreed to enlarge the committee by two people. I got one seat. The gentleman from Ohio got the other.

I have enjoyed his company. I have enjoyed his friendship. I have admired his commitment to public service, his energy, his effervescence, that infectious boyish smile that, after all these years, has not gone away. In fact, with the addition of twins, it has really blossomed back again. We are going to miss him on the floor, in the gym, committee room, and everywhere.

I can say this genuinely, no one that I know of in the 18 years I have been here brought more fervor to the support of an issue and yet less spite than the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH). No one in my recollection has been better in the well of the House, somebody one always wanted to have on one's side, better on his feet particularly extemporaneously than the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH). Nobody has been better liked in the 18 years I have been here on both sides of the aisle.

He has made a great contribution to this House, one of the great institutions of the republic, and to this country. I am sorry to see him leave after this term. He is not gone yet. I do not want to write his obituary too soon.

I am sorry to see him leave, and I am assuaged to some extent by the feeling I do not think I have seen the last of him in public office.

It has been a pleasure working with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) and serving with him, and we are going to miss him.

Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from Connecticut (Mr. SHAYS).

Mr. SHAYS. Mr. Chairman, the hour is late. But on this side of the aisle, there are some of us who remember 1989 and the first budget of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH). He had 29 Members who supported him. But he never gave up. He never gave up. He did it in such a fresh way.

This is the last budget of the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH). What a legacy he has left us. What a legacy he has left his wife and his daughters, Emma and Reese. The gentleman from Ohio dealt with a lot of numbers, but numbers were never important to him. It was people, the friends he has here, the people he cares about in this country.

I know the gentleman from Ohio has a dream to transfer the power and the money and the influence out of Washington back home to local communities. I think he set us on our way. We love the gentleman from Ohio a lot.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). A final period of general debate is now in order. The gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) and the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT) each will control 5 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from South Carolina (Mr. SPRATT).

Mr. SPRATT. Mr. Chairman, I would waive my time, but I will save 30 seconds just in case I have to answer something that the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. KASICH) may have to say. I have no purpose in using the 5 minutes time.

Mr. Chairman, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. KASICH. Mr. Chairman, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Chairman, it is with a fond memory that I do look back to 1989 when I first announced to my staff, after sitting through one of those contentious budget fights that, yes, I think we have got to write our own budget. We came here to the floor and I offered the budget and we got 30 votes.

I remember walking back to my office, and everybody had their heads down. I walked in, and I said, Can you believe how great we did? We had 29 other people in this House think that we had a budget worth voting for.

Every year, we fought; and we got more and more support. All we were trying to do then was to reduce the deficits, something everybody in this House was concerned about, because we all care about what is going to happen to our children. We want our children to have a great opportunity to have the kind of life that we have.

Tonight is pretty amazing. We spent, what, I guess almost 12 hours fighting. We were fighting about a lot of detail. We should be doing a little bit more celebrating for what we have been able to achieve as Republicans and Democrats alike.

I mean, we are going to bring up a budget tonight, and we are going to pay down over the next 5 years about a trillion dollars of the publicly held debt. That is a trillion dollars that we are not going to have on the backs of our children when we all leave here. It is astounding when we think about it.

Working together, we decided we were going to keep our hands off of Social Security. We struggled to get there. The President laid out his plan. We laid out ours. We fought with one another a little bit. At the end of the day, where are we? We are not raiding Social Security.

I want to give a number of my colleagues on the Democrat side of the aisle some credit for their fight on Medicare prescription drugs. But I also want to give people on my side of the aisle the credit for also developing innovative and creative and imaginative programs on Medicare.

What is going to happen by the end of this year, we will have a prescription drug program for the neediest of our seniors. No senior citizen should be so poor as they get older in life to not be able to get the magic of modern medicine today to extend their lives and so that their children can celebrate their life as they get older. We all deserve a quality life at the end, and we are going to be able to do that.

As much as we squabble about tax cuts, we did pass the earnings test on this floor unanimously, I believe, where we said that seniors should not be punished for working extra hours and trying to have some independence.

I think, frankly, our seniors are perhaps our greatest untapped resource because they have the wisdom. Many of them have the energy to use the wisdom to make for a better country.

Would it not be great to combine our seniors with our young children who are often neglected? We need to think about a program like that.

At the same time, we are also going to make an effort with the gentleman from California (Mr. CONDIT) and his efforts with the gentleman from Illinois (Mr. SHIMKUS) to try to cut the penalty on people who have small businesses and family farms. It is the right thing to do.

At the same time, we are going to spend more money on education and try to rebuild our Nation's defense.

But I hope that all of us will work to better define America's interest throughout the world. The Cold War is over. We have got to be more innovative and creative in foreign policy and with our national defense.

For the future, we are going to have a new President very soon. It is going to be a new President in a new millennium. What an opportunity.

I think we ought to take the opportunity to put aside a lot of our partisan differences for this reason. We have a generational problem, do we not, so many baby boomers getting to retire and not enough children to work to pay all the bills.

We have health care crisis in this country. I believe that we have got to adopt more market-oriented solutions to the problems of health care and Social Security.

I also think we have got to make this government more effective, more efficient so that we can have respect and regard for it so that what it does it can do well, like our National Institutes of Health which are a real gem, and not just in the United States but, frankly, for the whole world.

□ 2400

I also believe that the greatest civil rights issue of the 21st century is the education of our children, and I think we have to search our hearts to make sure that our children are set free. No child should have to walk through a bunch of drug dealers in this country to get a decent education and to be safe, and we have to do it together.

Then, finally, finally, my colleagues, we have to continue to provide the incentives for savings and investment. And I say to my colleagues that we are on the edge of an incredible revolution, and I hope we will embrace the new economy, not inhibit it.

One final word, my colleagues, and that is this: if you are a Member here and you believe something, and we have a lot of dreamers, we could start with the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. LEWIS), who we just saw not long ago when he recelebrated walking across that bridge in Selma, Alabama, that was his dream. But we are all dreamers here. That is why we are here. I just leave you with one thought. If you dream, if you believe, if you have passion, if you have to stand alone, so be it. If your cause is just, a crowd will form and you can change the world. Go for it.

The CHAIRMAN pro tempore (Mr. LAHOOD). Under the rule, the Committee rises.

Accordingly, the Committee rose; and the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. PEASE) having assumed the chair, Mr. LAHOOD, Chairman pro tempore of the Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union, reported that that Committee, having had under consideration the concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 290) establishing the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2001, revising the congressional budget for the United States Government for fiscal year 2000, and setting forth appropriate budgetary levels for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2005, pursuant to House Resolution 446, he reported the bill back to the House with an amendment adopted by the Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the rule, the previous question is ordered.

The question is on the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The amendment in the nature of a substitute was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the concurrent resolution.

Under clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

CLINTON-GORE FAILED ENERGY CRISIS

(Mr. STEARNS asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. STEARNS. Mr. Speaker, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Companies, or OPEC, in its capacity as an oil cartel or monopoly, has been a critical factor in driving prices of oil from approximately $11 a barrel in 1998 to a high of $30 a barrel last month. These are levels that we have not seen since the Persian Gulf War.

Foreign countries that export oil to the United States have been engaged in a price-fixing scheme which has driven the average price at the pump to almost $2 in some parts of this country. Yet, the Clinton-Gore administration has done nothing to stop this, even with the OPEC strategy of price control. Even Energy Secretary Bill Richardson admits his administration, his department, was ''caught napping.''

Once again, the leadership in the White House has been lax, and foreign nations have taken advantage of our apparent weakness.

We passed a plan yesterday with Republican leadership. So I urge the administration to adopt our plan and fight this oil cartel.

LA BELLA MEMORANDUM

Mr. Speaker, last week, someone at the Justice Department leaked the La Bella memo to the press. The La Bella memo is a 94-page document calling on the Attorney General to appoint an Independent Counsel to investigate the White House. The memo also spells out all of the ways that Janet Reno and her political advisors avoided any thorough investigation of the 1996 campaign fundraising scandal. A year after he was brought in to head the campaign fundraising investigation, La Bella concluded that Janet Reno and her political advisors had used ''gamesmanship'' and ''legal contortions'' to avoid a thorough investigation. He also concluded that the result was a double standard for the President, the Vice President, the First Lady and Harold Ickes, protecting them from any real investigation.

There is something seriously wrong at the Justice Department when career prosecutors are not allowed to follow the facts wherever they lead. The result is an investigation that has no credibility. There are numerous examples of the failed investigation:

The President and Vice President were never thoroughly questioned. Can you imagine—the Justice Department failed to ask the President a single question about James Riady and foreign money. They didn't ask the Vice President any questions about the Buddhist Temple fundraiser. Unbelievable!

The Justice Department has apparently never asked the White House to turn over hundreds of thousands of e-mails that have never been reviewed.

Central figures in the scandal, like John Huang and Charlie Trie, have received light sentences without giving up useful information to the Justice Department.

Mr. Speaker, we have a right to know whether the Justice Department has done a thorough and credible job investigating the 1996 campaign fundraising scandal. The Justice Department has already leaked the La Bella memo to the press. They should now turn it over to congress, so that we can see if Janet Reno has allowed her career prosecutors to do their job.

Congressional Record

PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 106th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 146 WASHINGTON, THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 2000 No. 34

Senate

The Senate met at 9:30 a.m. and was called to order by the President pro tempore [Mr. THURMOND].

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Lloyd John Ogilvie, offered the following prayer:

Gracious Father, Giver of every good gift for our growth as Your people, we acknowledge our utter dependence on You. All that we have we received from You. You sustain us day by day, moment by moment. We deliberately empty our minds and hearts of anything that does not glorify You. We release to you any pride, self-serving attitude, or willfulness that we may have harbored in our hearts. We ask You to take from us anything that makes it difficult not only to love but to like certain people. May our relationships reflect Your initiative love and forgiveness.

We commit to You the work of this day. Fill this Chamber with Your presence and each Senator with Your power that whatever is planned or proposed may bring our Nation closer to Your righteousness in every aspect of our society. You are our Lord and Savior. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The Honorable CHUCK HAGEL, a Senator from the State of Nebraska, led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE ACTING MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HAGEL). The acting majority leader.

SCHEDULE

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, today the Senate will be in a period for morning business until 11 a.m. By previous consent, the Senate will proceed to a vote on the Wellstone amendment No. 2888 at 11 a.m. with 2 minutes equally divided prior to the vote. Following that vote, the Senate will immediately vote on final passage of the bill. Therefore, Senators may expect the first votes of the day at approximately 11 a.m. This afternoon, the Senate may begin consideration of any other Legislative or Executive Calendar items cleared for action.

MEASURES PLACED ON THE CALENDAR—H.R. 3081 AND S. 2267

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I understand there are two bills at the desk due for a second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bills by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 3081) to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to provide tax benefits for small businesses, to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to increase the minimum wage, and for other purposes.

A bill (S. 2267) to direct the National Institute of Standards and Technology to establish a program to support research and training in methods of detecting the use of performance-enhancing substances by athletes, and for other purposes.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I object to further proceedings on these bills at this time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the rules, the bills will be placed on the calendar.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I had reserved 10 minutes for morning business. My friend from Nevada has a comment he wants to make.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I express my appreciation to the Senator. I want to speak now and use some of the leader's time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. I appreciate the courtesy of my friend from Colorado. He and I have worked together on many different issues.

EXPORT ADMINISTRATION ACT

Mr. REID. Mr. President, this morning I want to talk about export controls. We all brag and are enthused about what is going on in the high-tech industry in America. There are stories we can tell of friends who have made huge amounts of money in the new economy.

It is truly unbelievable and remarkable what we can do today. This little thing I carry in my pocket has all my addresses and phone numbers. It has in it a dictionary. It has in it a calculator. It has in it the Old and New Testaments. It is unbelievable what is in this little, tiny thing I carry around in my pocket. With the flick of my hand, I can get anything I want out of this.

While we are talking a good game in Washington, we are not doing a good job to support this strong economy and to make sure the high-tech industry is allowed to continue.

We need to pass the Export Administration Act. We have not passed it. As a result—and it will happen if we do not pass a law—this industry is going to go someplace else with the jobs. The Bureau of Export Administration and the Defense Department are still conducting their business as if we were in the cold war. The cold war is over, and we have to really understand the economic and political world has changed dramatically.

Last year, Senators GRAMM, ENZI, and JOHNSON, together with the leader, Senator LOTT, agreed to move forward the Export Administration Act before the end of 1999. Each one of those Senators has lived up to what they said they would do. They have tried to move the bill forward. The chairman of the Banking Committee, Senator GRAMM, has worked very hard to move this legislation forward. Senators ENZI and JOHNSON have worked hard. The majority leader has tried to move this legislation forward.

Frankly, the majority is unable to join together to allow us to move this bill forward. It was on the floor for an hour or so 2 weeks ago. I repeat, it is not for lack of trying by Senators GRAMM, ENZI, and JOHNSON. They all worked in good faith and have tried to accommodate everyone.

When the bill passed out of the Banking Committee, it had the full support of the committee, while still protecting our national security. I am afraid, due to the serious disagreements within the majority, this bill will not come to the floor anytime soon. That is really too bad.

I have the greatest respect and admiration for the ability of Senator GRAMM of Texas to legislate. He has done many things from the time he was in the House to his time in the Senate. I hope he can use some of the experience and wisdom he has to move this forward. The majority must move this bill. I do not believe we are living up to what is necessary for this burgeoning economy if we do not move this legislation.

A couple days ago, I met with members of the high-tech industry. They voiced concerns about the need to update our export policies. They said it was one of their two or three top concerns and, frankly, a few Members of the majority are stopping our Nation's progress in this area.

As with many issues, I often hear Congress will best serve the public and industry by doing nothing at all. That is simply not true. This is one of the areas in which we can be of great help to the high-tech community, in export controls. It is essential. There are currently a number of U.S. products that cannot compete with our foreign competitors due to export control limitations, not because of national security interests but because of the slow review process in Congress. We are trying to change that. That is what I am talking about.

In June of 1999 and January of this year, with the urging of the minority leader, Senator DASCHLE, myself, and others, the administration agreed to ease the level of controls which are referred to as MTOPS—million theoretical operations per second. MTOPS. We, as well as those in the computer industry, were elated by the news.

However, as it stands now, there is a 6-month congressional review period for raising the level of MTOPS. The Banking Committee bill reduces the time from 180 days to 60 days. This is a step in the right direction. But I, along with Senator BENNETT of Utah, Senator DASCHLE, Senator KERRY of Massachusetts, Senator MURRAY, Senator BINGAMAN, Senator KENNEDY, and Senator BOXER, believe a further reduction is necessary; that is, to 30 days. There is an amendment pending, if this bill ever comes back up, to change it to 30 days. I am confident it will be adopted overwhelmingly.

The reality of the situation is, by limiting American companies to this degree, we are not only losing short-term market share but we are allowing foreign companies to make more money and, in turn, create better products in the future, to which we will never catch up. This could lead to the eventual loss of our Nation's lead, and it is an absolute lead in computer technology, which has propelled the United States to the good economic standing we are experiencing today. The issue of updating our export controls is critical to our Nation's economy and the success of our high-tech industry.

I urge the majority to move this bill forward, to allow the amendment process, and let's get on with it. The cold war is over. People must understand the cold war is over. If American companies can make more money overseas, they will simply invest more money into research and development there, and that is wrong.

I extend my appreciation to my friend from Colorado for allowing me to proceed.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, there will now be a period for the transaction of morning business not to extend beyond the hour of 11 a.m. with time to be equally divided between the Senator from Idaho, Mr. CRAIG, or his designee, and the Senator from Illinois, Mr. DURBIN, or his designee.

Under the previous order, the Senator from Idaho, Mr. CRAIG, shall be in control of the first half of time.

The Senator from Colorado.

THE OIL CRISIS

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I would like to proceed in morning business for about 10 minutes. I would like to add my comments to those of my colleagues who spoke yesterday who were concerned about the rising cost of fuel. Many of my friends and colleagues have spoken to the issue of our rising dependency on foreign oil. This morning, I would like to take a little different perspective and talk a little bit about how the crisis affects the backbone of American commerce, which is the backbone of the American trucking industry.

Over 95 percent of all commercial manufactured goods and agricultural products are shipped by truck at some point. Mr. President, 9.6 million people have jobs directly or indirectly related to trucking. In addition, trucking contributes over 5 percent of America's gross domestic product which is the equivalent of $272 billion in the economy every single year. Over 6.7 billion tons of goods are shipped in this Nation every year. Those are staggering numbers. I use them to emphasize the impact that trucks have in America.

I know the trucking life myself. I started driving when I was 21, when I got out of the service. I put myself through college by driving an 18-wheeler. Last year, I decided to renew my commercial driver's license in the State of Colorado and I attended a truck-driving school to do that. I have a small tractor trailer so I know firsthand the impact of the increase of fuel. Paying the bill for 200 gallons of fuel in a truck is not like filling up the family car, and these long-line trucks, by the way, fill up every day.

Last week, while the Senate was in recess, I spent the week making deliveries in a truck along Colorado's Front Range. I did it so I could see and hear firsthand what truckers, as well as shippers and other related businesses, are going through. At diners, gas stations, and delivery points, they told me from their perspective it is much worse than anyone in Washington may imagine.

While I was driving, I met a man named Wesley White from Oregon who said he was on his last run. He couldn't afford to continue fueling his truck. He had been a policeman for over 20 years and at the end of his police service he retired, took his pension, and bought a truck with the intent of going into business for himself. But, this time around when he gets home he is going to park the truck for good. Without the income from delivering goods, he is not going to be able to make his truck payments. He will lose the business of the truck and he will also lose his pension which he used to buy the truck.

Wesly is not alone. Three times in the last 2 months, hundreds of truckers from all over the United States have come to Washington to ask for help. I attended the first rally in February, and I went to another one yesterday. One thing I did learn, when these people come to Washington, they are not here to complain about profit margins or stock prices. They are here because their very livelihood is on the line.

I have to tell you, Mr. President, I never met a trucker who wanted a handout. They want a job, a fair shake, and fairness from Congress. One trucker I met at the last rally I went to had a wife and two small children. The four of them were actually living in the sleeper of the truck because the increased price of diesel fuel did not leave them enough money at the end of the month to even pay house rent.

Unfortunately, this administration has ignored the plight of these hard-working Americans. The administration has got us into this mess by the total lack of any energy policy. They stand in the way of domestic oil production, they refuse to release Federal fuel stockpiles to drive the cost of fuel down, and they continually lock up public lands so we cannot explore for new resources. Now faced with skyrocketing diesel prices, they still do nothing of substance, instead they are hoping the OPEC oil ministers will reverse their strategy to limit production and increase fuel prices.

We fought the gulf war, as you and I know, and this is how we get repaid. In fact, in a rather strange twist of fate we are now also dependent on Iraqi oil.

Instead of increasing our own resources, the Secretary recently went to the Middle East, hat in hand, to beg for fuel. Now administration officials are coming before Congress to propose we study alternative energy resources. I have news for them. Trucks don't run on solar and they don't run on wind; they run on diesel. Everything we buy, eat or wear is delivered on a truck. If they stop rolling, very simply this Nation also comes to a stop.

Even if OPEC increases production, the effect on the American consumers will be months away, we need immediate relief. In that context, I recently introduced S. 2161 entitled ''The American Transportation Recovery and Highway Trust Fund Protection Act of 2000.'' This bill would temporarily suspend the Federal excise tax on diesel fuel for 1 year, or until the price of crude oil is reduced to the December 31, 1999, level. It would replace lost revenues with moneys from the budget surplus in the general fund while protecting the highway trust fund. The bill has bipartisan support, with 12 cosponsors. Even at that, we know it is only a short-term solution.

The real problem is our dependency on foreign oil. All the negotiations this administration is doing to get OPEC to open its spigots is not more than a Band-Aid approach to the problem that will continually revisit us as long as we are dependent on foreign oil. The administration has known this and the danger to our national security since 1994. Senator MURKOWSKI spoke to that yesterday.

It is unfortunate we, as a global superpower, are reduced to begging. More forceful actions are needed and must be taken to expose the severity of the problem and to address it now and in months to come. We cannot simply stand by and do nothing.

We can do better. We should be opening new oil fields. We should be doing better incentive work to keep the stripper wells from closing, and certainly we should renew our efforts in oil shale and other renewable fuels that can be turned into gasoline oil. Most of all, we have to untether ourselves from Mideast oil.

Mr. President, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Washington.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, a number of my Republican colleagues have spoken on the floor about the absence of an energy policy on the part of the Clinton-Gore administration. I believe that description is only half right. It is true the Clinton-Gore administration has no express energy policy that would lead or even contribute to U.S. energy independence. But the Clinton-Gore administration, on the other hand, does have a very significant implicit energy policy. Under that policy, it discourages or prohibits exploration for either oil or natural gas over extensive and increasingly large areas of our country.

Under that implicit energy policy, it proposes to reduce the amount of hydroelectric power we have and, in fact, to treat hydroelectric power as though it were not renewable.

Under that implicit energy policy, it has given us an increasing dependence each year on foreign sources for petroleum products, now at 55 or 56 percent, and inevitably directed at 65 percent or two-thirds of that oil. Implicitly, it has given us an energy policy that resulted last month in the largest single trade deficit in the history of the United States, due, in major part, to imports of petroleum products and a trade deficit that will inevitably continue to increase.

So suddenly we do have a short-term explicit energy policy. It is to send the Secretary of Energy of the United States of America, hat in hand, to countries in Latin America, in Southwest Asia, and now most recently into Nigeria, to plead with these countries to lower the cost of the oil they send to us. This is a total abdication of the appropriate policy of an administration interested in the trade balance of the United States and in energy independence for the United States.

Mr. President, what is the answer to this question? Obviously, in the short term our hands are relatively tied. We do, however, have one option in front of us which we can engage immediately that will provide at least modest relief to the American people during the course of this energy crisis, and that is the elimination—whether permanent or temporary—of the 4.3-cent motor vehicle fuel tax that was imposed by the President and the Congress in 1993. I am convinced we should follow that course of action. It is urgent for everyone. It is overwhelmingly urgent for the airlines of the United States that operate in a highly competitive atmosphere. They are being brutally punished, along with their passengers, with the increased airfare caused by that tax.

This is an option the Congress could and should take up and pass with extreme promptness. However, in the long run, the more important solution is a longer-term solution. That solution lies on two sides: the supply of energy for the people of the United States to use and the way in which we use that energy with appropriate conservation measures.

From the point of view of supply, when we deal with petroleum alone, we should change policies which have discouraged production in the United States—policies of regulation and taxation and hostility that have closed down existing sources of supply in various parts of the United States.

We should very seriously consider and move toward the creation of new sources of supply rather than cutting them off and prohibiting them, whether they are in the North Slope of Alaska or in various parts of the lower 48 States of the United States. We need to do this in order to have any leverage with the rest of the world with respect to the prices it charges us for petroleum supplies. This policy should apply not only to petroleum but to natural gas as well.

Second, I am convinced we should continue to encourage and should encourage even more the production of at least supplements to our petroleum supply that are totally within the control of the United States and that are renewable in nature. Ethanol perhaps ranks as No. 1 on this particular list. It can be produced by American grain. It adds to our supply, and it is, of course, completely within our own control, and it enriches the people who provide these agricultural commodities.

Next, from the point of view of conservation, I point out the utter and insane folly of proposing to remove dams from the Snake River that produce renewable and environmentally benign electric power. If those dams are removed, as many in the administration wish to do, we will end up putting 700,000 trucks on the roads of the northwestern part of the United States each and every year more than are on those roads at the present time—major trucks that carry grain and other products for export. The idea that we should be using all of that additional amount of diesel and gasoline fuel is simply, in my view, beyond reasonable consideration.

Finally, I believe we have to aim at the way in which we as Americans use power, and particularly motor vehicle fuels. Last July, for the first time in several years, this body was asked once again by me and by other Senators to go back to the successes of the 1970s and to reestablish a Government program to improve the energy efficiency of our automobiles and small trucks, the so-called CAFE standards. In the 1970s, this was one of the most successful programs—the single most successful governmental program—in history. We came close to doubling the average mileage of our passenger automobiles during that period of time. This crisis would not be a crisis; it would be an unmitigated disaster had those who perceived it not established and implemented those policies of the 1970s. But in the early 1980s, we abandoned that policy, and we have abandoned it ever since.

We have even gone so far in this body and in the other body to prohibit any study of increasing CAFE standards, as far as small trucks are concerned, and even automobiles at any time in the immediate future. When we voted on that proposition last July, 40 Members of this body—not a majority but a very substantial minority—voted in favor of it before there was a crisis. Now the crisis is upon us. Now we have people wondering why it is our small trucks and SUVs are so energy inefficient. People are being punished by the lack of foresight of this administration and having the cost of operating those vehicles increase exponentially, and it is often not affordable.

I am convinced that in addition to providing a greater degree of supply from sources within the United States we must, once again, focus on making our use of that energy and particularly making petroleum energy more efficient. The best way we can do that is by going back to the CAFE standard regime we had a generation ago in the United States and doing what is technologically quite feasible to do by increasing anywhere from 20 to 50 percent the efficiency of the engines that use petroleum products. That would be a true energy policy—an energy policy both for the short term and the long term, a policy which is totally and completely lacking in the Clinton-Gore administration at the present time.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Maine.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today to join many of my colleagues in expressing my deepest concern about the problem concerning energy and the cost of energy to many working Americans, and certainly to my constituents in the State of Maine.

We have been plagued by a significant surge in increases at the pump—certainly during the wintertime in the State of Maine concerning oil prices, home heating oil prices that more than doubled within a 1-month period, not to mention the gasoline prices we are seeing and the tremendous spike in those prices, as well. And, even according to the Department of Energy's own information, we will not expect an abatement of those prices by the end of the year. In fact, we can expect to have continuously high prices in terms of gasoline.

We know that the OPEC countries are going to be meeting on Monday, 4 days from now. We hope the administration and the Congress sends an unequivocal message that they rethink their unconscionable policy of keeping a very low level of production when it comes to petroleum products.

We know that a year ago in October they made a decision to limit production when it came to oil. The administration was well aware of the fact that the OPEC cartel had made a deliberate and concerted decision to limit the production of oil. Even last fall, the Department of Energy's own report indicated that we could expect a 40-percent rise in home heating oil prices, and if it was a severe winter, a 30-percent rise in home heating oil prices. That was more than a 70-percent increase projected by the Department of Energy with respect to home heating oil prices. That was anticipated by our own Department of Energy last October.

In fact, my constituents in the State of Maine faced a 100-percent increase in home heating oil prices—a 100-percent increase. Yet we had silence from the administration—silence when the OPEC cartel made this decision to limit the production of oil without any apparent reason, and without any rationale.

Then the Department of Energy anticipated we could have up toward a 70-percent increase in home heating oil prices. In fact, we face a 100-percent increase. Yet there was a deafening silence from the administration when it came to the types of policies that could mitigate the burden the surging prices imposed on working Americans.

Here we are today anticipating what might or might not happen on Monday, the kinds of decisions made by the OPEC cartel. I hope the administration is working very hard to send a strong message that the OPEC cartel should reconsider its policy. Its policy is all the more shocking when we consider the men and women all across this country who defended the freedom of democracy for countries such as Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, that the United States lost 147 American lives, 458 were wounded, and 23 were taken prisoner in the struggle during the Persian Gulf war.

I think it is entirely appropriate for Congress and the administration to press OPEC in terms of the kind of decision they should be making on Monday. The administration also should consider predicating foreign assistance to some of these foreign countries that are part of the decisionmaking of the OPEC cartel, such as Mexico, whom we bailed out 5 years ago when it came to the peso crisis to the tune of $13.5 billion. We were prepared to bail them out up to the tune of $20 billion to ease the economic hardship imposed on their people. It is no different now.

Or Indonesia and Nigeria, for whom the President is proposing $256 million in economic assistance because these are countries in transition. Again, our assistance should be predicated on their cooperation.

Those are the kinds of issues we must confront. In the short term, we have to deal with the reality of what is happening at the gas pump. I hope Congress will give consideration to recommendations that will be made by many who have been working on this issue to suspend the 4.3-cent gas tax which many Members opposed back in 1993 because we didn't think this was a hardship we should impose on the American people.

Beyond that, if the price of gasoline is going to surge upwards of $2—which it is already doing in California—we should clearly suspend all of the taxes on diesel and gasoline because it is that important to our economy and to Americans in all parts of the country, not just in one region; it will be in all regions.

When the Department of Energy says it would undoubtedly be too late to deflect domestic gasoline prices on their way to record nominal levels and may be too little to reduce prices much by the end of the year 2000, clearly we have something to be concerned about.

No one really knows even if OPEC will make a positive decision on Monday. I am concerned about the decision they will make on Monday or if they decide to have other meetings.

What does that all mean if this does not translate into lower prices at the gas pump this summer? We clearly will have problems. I know my State will have problems. It is a tourist State. We rely on tourism. It is the second biggest industry in the State of Maine.

I think we have to be prepared. I hope we do fashion a policy that is contingent upon what the price might be, irrespective of the decision made by OPEC. That is a decision the administration is not prepared to make, and they are not even prepared to take a step forward in any direction. The President announced last week: We will do a reserve in the Northeast but we need to do an environmental impact study; it needs legislation from Congress.

Senator DODD introduced legislation in which many joined because we think it is a prudent policy to set up a reserve in the Northeast to mitigate the impact of high price increases or an interruption in oil supply. What is so difficult about that? The President can't even take that step. He says there are a lot of contingencies involved. In effect, we don't have anything from this administration to address this problem. We don't have an energy policy.

Congress is going to have to take the concerted steps necessary to address these problems in the short term to be sure these are short-term solutions. We also have to look at the long term. I did support the CAFE standard issue that Senator GORTON addressed today as well. Obviously, the costs have been significant to this country in terms of transportation. We need to get better fuel efficiency with respect to automobiles and minivans.

We also should look at providing some incentives for the marginal producers in this country, the small producers, about which Senator HUTCHISON has also talked, as well. Congress will have to take the lead because it is clear that this administration is not intending to in any respect. Beyond anticipating we will have this problem this year, the administration has been virtually silent. I hope they make the message very clear to the OPEC countries about how important their decision will be on Monday.

Beyond that, we also have to be prepared for any contingencies in the future that these prices might not decline in the short term or for the reminder of this year. Frankly, it is not just my word, it is the word of the Department of Energy.

Again, I hope we will be taking actions in the next few days irrespective of what the decision might be from the OPEC nations.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BUNNING). The Senator from Idaho.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I have come to the floor today, as has the Senator from Maine, to speak about the energy crisis our country finds itself in. Let me use those words again: energy crisis.

A week and a half ago, Senator SNOWE was before my subcommittee testifying on some key legislation she has introduced. The Senator from Maine recognizes the phenomenal impact high energy costs have on her State. Whether it is home heating or the transportation systems that drive her industries, she has recognized it clearly and early on announced to this administration there was a problem coming and encouraged them to change their policy. Yet they have done nothing.

As I listened to the Senator from Maine this morning, she spoke very clearly about what this country needs to do. I strongly support the words she has stated for the RECORD.

When the Clinton-Gore administration came to town in 1993, it announced its intent to drastically alter the way the Nation used energy, especially fossil fuels. Remember, briefly, the President and the Vice President determined that through the use of a broad-based Btu tax, they would drive us away from our most abundant and economical fuels to a renewable solar wind or biomass system. The objective has remained a hallmark of this administration's energy policy. That is all they have wanted to talk about until now.

Their policy now is to send the Secretary of Energy abroad with a tin cup, begging at the wells of foreign energy producers, asking them to please turn on their tap. We will know next Monday whether the begging of Bill Richardson and the energy policy of this administration has worked.

President Clinton promised early when he came to town that the tax he proposed, $72 billion over 5 years, was going to be fair, it was going to be healthful, it was going to force down dependency on foreign oil, and do the right things for consumers. In fact, it would have unfairly punished energy-intensive States such as mine, Western States where transportation needs and movements spread across broad expanses in agricultural States such as mine. The American Petroleum Insurance Institute and the National Association of Manufacturers predicted the tax would hurt exports, reduce GDP in this country by $38 billion, and destroy some 700,000 jobs. Yet the administration wouldn't listen. They drove on, pushing the tax issue.

Clinton and Gore claimed the tax was needed to balance the budget and fund large new spending programs to offset the negative impact of the tax. They also claimed the use of crude oil imports would fall dramatically, by 400,000 barrels a day.

At that time, DOE's own projections predicted the tax would shave oil import growth by less than one-tenth after 10 years. DOE predicted by the year 2000, Americans would depend on foreign oil for three-fifths of their total crude oil requirements.

The American Petroleum Institute testified before the Energy Committee on which I sit. It said:

> . . . even if imports were to fall by the full 400,000 barrels a day claimed by the administration, the cost of $34 billion in lost GDP is excessive relative to other alternatives for improving energy security. Using the administration's optimistic predictions, the cost of the Btu tax works out to be about $230 a barrel.

That is right, $230 a barrel. In the end, Congress refused. Thank goodness we listened to the experts. We didn't listen to the politics of the Clinton-Gore administration, and we said no. Hopefully, in the next few days we will also reverse something that was largely a Clinton-Gore initiative and that was the 4.3-cent-per-gallon gas tax that our consumers are now paying.

The Clinton-Gore administration's obsession with the use of fossil fuel reduction has actually put us in the position we find ourselves today. What does our President say? On March 7 of this year, he said:

> Americans should not want them [oil prices] to drop to $10 or $12 again because that . . . takes our mind off the business of . . . alternative fuels, energy conservation, reducing the impact of all of this on global warming.

Mr. President, we should not take our minds off energy conservation. That is good policy. We should not take our minds off alternative fuels, that is also good policy. But saying you are going to tax hydrocarbons out of existence and now finding this Nation pushing itself into an inflationary mode, finding our costs going up dramatically because of your policies, it was wrongheaded then and it is wrongheaded now. And we know it.

What has happened since 1993? Domestic oil production is down 17 percent. Domestic crude oil consumption is up 14 percent. Dependence on foreign oil sources of crude oil has risen to 56 percent of our total crude requirements.

In 1973, during the Arab oil embargo, our dependence on foreign crude was 36 percent of our crude oil requirement.

Iraq is our fastest growing source for U.S. crude imports, about 700,000 barrels a day. I have one thing to say to the President: Shame on you. Shame on you for the absence of policy and the clear knowledge that you had, that all of us had, that this kind of dependency would ultimately result if we did not push and we did not drive toward a more effective domestic policy to increase production and find all the other effective conservation uses we could find.

The Clinton-Gore administration, while making much of the increase in efficiency, greater use of renewables from biomass, and other things, ignores the very fundamental fact that a large part of our energy use cannot be addressed by these measures. Sure, it is an important part of the blend but a very small percentage of what is absolutely and necessarily needed.

Of course, those of us who come from agriculture recognize the importance of crude oil feed stocks to the chemical industry and the products they produce, which results in the high quality of agriculture production in our country. The administration fails to encourage domestic oil production and the production of coal and natural gas that now leads us to this point.

The administration has refused to acknowledge the vast reserves of oil and gas offshore, in Alaska and the Rocky Mountain overthrust area. Of course, we, the consumers, are now paying the price.

The Clinton-Gore administration recently announced a ban on future exploration on most of the Federal Outer Continental Shelf until the year 2012. Can you imagine that? Here we are, increasingly dependent on foreign sources, and the President turns his back on some of the largest reserves left in this country to be explored by some of the finest technology in environmentally sensitive ways that we now know, to bring oil into production in the Outer Continental Shelf.

In 1996, the administration resorted to the use of the Antiquities Act to lock up 23 billion tons of mineable low-sulfur, high-quality coal in Utah. The story goes on and on.

I would argue the Clinton-Gore administration has acted in other ways designed to force us away from the use of all of these resources that are so abundant and so available to us and wise for us to use. At the present rate, we are now demonstrating our unwillingness to produce at the local, national level. We will be 56-percent dependent, moving into 60-percent dependent in very short order.

The U.S. Forest Service has issued road construction policies that are designed to restrict the energy industry's ability to explore for oil and gas on Forest Service lands.

The Clinton-Gore administration has vetoed legislation that would have opened the coastal plain of the remote Alaska National Wildlife Reserve denying the Nation access to an estimated 16 billion barrels of domestic crude oil.

The administration has ignored a report prepared by the National Petroleum Council, requested by the Energy Secretary, explaining how the Nation can increase production and use of domestic natural gas resources from about 22 trillion cubic feet per year to more than 30 trillion cubic feet per year over the next 10 to 12 years.

The Clinton-Gore administration has shown little interest in solving our domestic energy problems until now as foreign oil producers have forced crude oil prices to over $30 per barrel and gasoline prices to almost $2 per gallon—double prices of only little more than a year ago.

I would argue that the Clinton-Gore administration has acted in other ways designed to force us away from the use of readily available, relatively inexpensive fossil fuels. It has chosen especially to vilify and deny the use of our most abundant national energy resource—coal. My distinguished friend from West Virginia, Senator ROBERT BYRD spoke eloquently yesterday on this subject and I want to add a few thoughts to his.

The U.S. has the world's largest demonstrated coal reserve base and accounts for more than 90 percent of our total fossil energy reserves.

At present rates of recovery and use, U.S. reserves will last more than 270 years.

Coal is used to generate over 56 percent of our electricity supply—and about 88 percent of the Midwest's electricity needs.

Coal use for electric power has risen more than 250 percent since 1970 while sulfur dioxide emissions have decreased to 21 percent below 1970 levels and introduction of new cleaner coal combustion technologies will continue to push emissions of all types down.

Electricity from hydro represents about 10 to 12 percent of our electricity needs.

Nuclear powerplants meet about 20 percent of our total electricity demand.

Yet the Clinton-Gore administration takes a dim view of these sources and has taken steps to reduce their use.

In November 1999 the Environmental Protection Agency sued several coal burning utilities claiming they made major modifications to their facilities without applying for New Source Review permits. Utilities maintain that the modifications fall within the ''routine maintenance'' exception to the new source rule, and that EPA had routinely approved such actions in the past.

EPA is discussing the notion that new source review should include ''voluntary'' regulation of CO_2—which is not a poisonous gas and which is not regulated by any part of the Clear Air Act.

EPA recently changed the toxics release inventory to require electric utilities to report chemical release data. The level at which reporting is required for Mercury was lowered by an order of magnitude. In making these changes EPA presented no studies or supporting rationale for why nearby communities should suddenly be concerned about such releases. Nevertheless, the reports will be widely published thereby placing utilities at the top of the list of ''dirty'' facilities.

In 1993, EPA concluded that coal combustion wastes (fly ash, bottom ash, slag waste, and other combustion products) from electric utility generation do not warrant hazardous waste regulation. EPA appears now to be prepared to reverse an EPA staff decision that coal combustion wastes do not warrant regulation as ''hazardous.''

In 1998, EPA issued revised Nitrogen Oxides New Source Performance Standards for all new and existing utility and industrial boilers. It based its standard on a single, very expensive control system regardless of boiler and fuel type.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt has talked openly about ''tearing down dams'' in the West to restore habitat for fish, ignoring the power and transportation benefits they provide. And, the administration is imposing new, often impossible criteria that must be met before federal licenses can be reissued. Many existing hydro projects will seek relicensing over the next several decades.

Finally, the Clinton-Gore administration continues to threaten veto of legislation designed to create a permanent nuclear waste storage facility and which fulfills a longstanding promise by the federal government to create such a facility. Without a federal storage facility, U.S. nuclear generating stations, which are running out of onsite storage capacity may be forced to shut down their operations.

There are too many more examples of the Clinton-Gore administration's failure to produce a coherent, balanced national energy plan. It almost seems they are trying to create crisis after crisis in the hope that a magical solution will rise from the chaos—fat chance. Solving these problems requires tough choices and I suggest that we begin now by pursuing a number of short to long term objectives.

We should work with our Western Hemisphere neighbors to help them increase their crude oil production.

We should provide relief to consumers by cutting taxes on fuels derived from crude oil, such as the 4.3-cents a gallon tax and the 24-cent a gallon tax on highway diesel fuel and taxes on fuels for air, rail and barge transportation.

We need to step away from punitive, command and control environmental regulations and move toward performance based regulatory concepts that offer the regulated community opportunities to find flexible approaches to reducing emissions of legally regulated contaminants.

Finally, we need to face up to the fact that we are part of the problem. Our unwillingness to develop our own abundant oil, gas and coal resources dooms us to greater dependence on foreign sources, especially for crude oil. We must make the conscious choice to carefully find and develop our resources while protecting our environment.

CROP INSURANCE

Mr. HAGEL. Mr. President, I rise in support of S. 2251, the Risk Management for the 21st Century Act regarding crop insurance reform, I am an original co-sponsor of this important legislation and I thank my colleagues Senators BOB KERREY and PAT ROBERTS for their leadership on this issue.

Crop insurance reform has been a major, bipartisan legislative effort for farm state Senators. Reforming crop insurance is vital to America's agricultural producers and to the rural economies in all of our ag-producing states. We need to pass this legislation today.

The need for crop insurance reform has been a common denominator in my conversations with all of Nebraska's agricultural producers and agribusinesses, as I am sure it has for my colleagues as they have spoken with ag-producers across the country.

Every commodity organization and farm group that I've spoken with has urged Congress to reform and improve America's crop insurance programs.

Why is crop insurance important? By increasing and expanding private crop insurance coverage, ag producers can make long-term market decisions without being devastated by short-term economic downturns.

If we can assist in making crop insurance—an important risk management tool—more affordable and expansive, we will help producers weather the bad times.

S. 2251 makes a number of important changes to the crop insurance system that will benefit America's ag producers.

This bill establishes a new premium assistance formula to encourage producers to increase their crop insurance coverage by making higher levels of coverage more affordable, and increases the level of coverage farmers can purchase.

It will ease actual ''production history'' rules so that farmer's insurance coverage is less likely to be artificially depressed by successive years of bad weather.

This legislation will reduce the potential for insurance fraud and abuse with strong program compliance provisions.

It includes new pilot projects for livestock insurance, specialty crops, and coverage reinsured through futures markets.

By passing the Risk Management for the 21st Century Act we can help eliminate some of the uncertainty and instability in farm operations, thus allowing farmers to plan for the long-term.

Additionally, this legislation should help Congress and the American taxpayers reduce the need for disaster-assistance packages for our ag producers, and the costs associated with him.

If we can help provide farmers with the management tools they need to plan for their future, there will be less of a need to rely on future emergency supplemental appropriations bills when bad times strike.

I again thank Senators ROBERTS and KERREY and their staffs for their diligence in spearheading crop insurance reform, and acknowledge Senate Agriculture Chairman LUGAR for his leadership in getting this bill out of the Agriculture Committee and onto the floor of the Senate for a vote.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation. I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Under the previous order, the Senator from Illinois controls the time until 11 a.m., of which the Senator from Montana, Mr. BAUCUS, shall have 10 minutes.

The Senator from Washington.

WHAT REALLY MATTERS IN EDUCATION

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, 2 weeks ago, I sat through several days of discussion on education policy as we marked up the Elementary and Secondary Education Act in the Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions Committee.

Just last week, I went home and visited schools across Washington State and met with administrators, teachers, parents, and students.

The discussions we had here in Congress and the discussions I had in those classrooms could not have been more different. No wonder so many educators and parents are frustrated with Congress. Too often, what they hear from Congress has nothing to do with the real challenges they are facing.

While some of my colleagues were pushing their agenda of block grants and vouchers here in Washington, DC, the teachers I met with in Washington State were concerned about their ability to teach the basics and maintain discipline in their classrooms.

While these same colleagues of mine sought to diminish accountability, the parents I met with want us to insist that we have the highest possible academic standards in safe and modern classrooms.

While these same colleagues of mine were figuring out ways to shift resources away from meeting specific needs, the students I met with were wondering when there would be enough fully qualified teachers in their classrooms to help them get the individual attention they need to succeed.

Those parents, teachers, and students were shocked when I told them that my amendment to guarantee money for smaller class sizes was rejected by members of the Education Committee. It just does not make sense to them.

I wish that when we discussed ESEA, we had a few of those teachers sitting in the room with us. And whenever the discussion drifted to things that are far from the realities in today's classrooms, I wish those teachers were here to stand up and bring the discussion back to the real challenges our students face, day-in and day-out.

Today, too many teachers see overcrowded classrooms, children who arrive with basic needs unmet, jammed hallways, and tougher curriculum requirements.

Today, too many parents see teachers who are overworked—teachers who spend so much time on discipline it is hard for them to give every child the time and attention they need.

Today, too many students feel their needs are lost and their education is not a priority. All of us want to make sure that schools are safe centers of learning.

To reach their potential, our kids need real help now. They need the common sense solutions that we know can help them succeed.

It is simple. We know what works in education. We know what it takes to help children reach their potential. It is not a great mystery. These are the things that years of research have shown us are effective. They are the things that parents, teachers, and community leaders know make a difference. To show how simple this is, I have listed those ingredients we know work.

I am proud that Democrats are focusing on results with a commonsense agenda. We know that if we want children to succeed in school, they need a highly-motivated, fully-qualified teacher. We know they need a safe and modern classroom. We know they need a small, uncrowded class in which to learn. We know they need a focus on the basics. We know they need high standards and discipline. We know they need support from family and adults. We know they need resources for the classroom.

These are the commonsense policies that serve America's children—the policies that improve education and get results.

But unfortunately, this Congress is ignoring these proven approaches. They are ignoring what works. They do not want money to be targeted to these essential ingredients. They do not want us to focus on making sure that every school has guaranteed resources in each of these areas.

Many of us want to use these key ingredients to make the best schools possible. We want to guarantee that every school has the resources it needs. We want to change our schools—for the better—so we can get the results parents, students, and teachers are demanding.

Some have proposed block grants as the cure-all for education. Today, our nation's education policy guarantees that specific resources will be targeted to meeting specific needs. That is how responsible budgeting is done. That is how we ensure accountability.

But this Congress is working toward eliminating those guarantees. They do not want money to be guaranteed for reducing class sizes or for technology training for teachers or for modernizing schools. They want to eliminate all of those guarantees, create a pot of money, and give it to the States.

One teacher asked me: ''Are there any studies that show that giving all the money to States in block grants actually improves education?''

Of course not. In fact, 35 years ago the American people made the national Government a partner in education because they realized that State and local governments cannot do it all on their own.

Public schools are one of the foundations upon which our democracy is built, and we need to do a better job of helping them perform at the highest levels.

Most disconcerting about these proposals for block grants is they are simply a blank check policy that will diminish the guarantee that education resources go to the students who need them most. Money that currently goes to hiring and training teachers and helping students with special needs—under these proposals could be used ''for any education purposes''—anything from building a new lockerroom to redecorating office space.

In response to many who want a better education, some have proposed vouchers. What will that do? Without a doubt, it will drain scarce dollars away from public schools where 90 percent of America's children are trying to learn. Vouchers plans shift taxpayer dollars away from public schools to private and religious schools.

One parent in Washington told me last week: ''I don't want you to give me a few hundred dollars to send my kid to another school. I want you to make my school work better.''

The real question, and the one we are failing to answer, is: How can we work in partnership with states, educators, and parents to make sure that every student gets the things they need to reach their potential?

Many of my colleagues are asking the wrong question. they ask: How can the Federal Government's role in education be eliminated? They are talking about process, when we should be focusing on results.

This Congress should be asking: How can the Federal Government support local schools? How can we meet our national education priorities, like making sure every child can read, write, and use a computer?

And how can we help school districts do the things that are hardest for them to do, like hiring new teachers and building new schools?

I am afraid some of my colleagues aren't looking for ways to answer these questions. I am afraid they just want to gut our national education partnership.

In this country, we already have local control over education. State and local school districts set the curriculum. They hire the staff. States set standards and certify teachers. States and localities raise and spend 93 percent of all education funding. A lack of local control is not the problem. It is a lack of sufficient support and resources.

States, school districts, parents, and teachers are demanding that we, at the Federal level, work in partnership to ensure our kids get a good education. What matters to parents is that their kids get the best education possible. Parents don't care how the workload is divided. They care about results. And Democrats are focused on results.

One of the problems with block grants is that—in the budgeting process—they always end up getting cut because those dollars are not longer tired to a specific need. With block grants, our kids end up with fewer educational resources than they had before. In fact, we are already seeing a move underway to give our students fewer resources.

The Republican budget plan passed out of the House could jeopardize our ability to meet the needs in America's schools. Their plan could jeopardize our ability to keep hiring new teachers to make classrooms less crowded. They could jeopardize our ability to provide afterschool programs, to ensure safe and drug-free schools, to modernize old schools, and to build new ones.

Their plan could result in having $2.6 billion less for education than the President has requested. We shouldn't be shortchanging America's students, but I am concerned that is what the House Republican budget plan would do.

In fact, according the Congressional Budget Office, the Republican budget plan doesn't even keep up with inflation for key domestic investments, like education.

Parents, teachers and students in my home State—and across the country—are asking for help in education.

They want us to work in partnership with them to help their children reach their potential.

They want us to support the commonsense solutions that produce real results for our students.

And when they hear Members of this Congress talking about things that really don't make a difference in the classroom, they get pretty frustrated.

After meeting with and listening to so many frustrated parents and educators, I have come to the floor today to carry their message.

They want us to: Focus on what works. They want us to support the things that make a difference for children in the classroom. And they want us to work together in partnership with State and local educators to help children learn to meet the challenges of the new millennium.

I urge my colleagues to hear these calls loud and clear, to respond by bringing the debate here in Congress back to the realities that teachers, students and parents see in their classrooms every day across this country, and to pass a budget that follows our recipe for success by investing in the resources that every student needs.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

FAMILY FARMERS

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I support the pending amendment, which, as I understand, is the Wellstone amendment, a sense-of-the-Senate resolution commending the many farmers—the thousands of farmers and their families—who came to Washington over the last few days to rally in support of what I would call a sensible, sane, rational, and compassionate farm program that would support our farm families throughout this country.

We had farmers from every State. In fact, I listened to one farmer from Alaska who was here, a dairy farmer. So the rally actually was a national rally, one that encompassed all parts of our country.

What I heard, in talking to these farm families from across America, was a plaintive cry for us to have a farm policy in America that recognizes the essential worth, the essential importance, of having a structure of agriculture based upon family farming—widely dispersed, broadly based—rather than having a vertical structure characterized by conglomerates and huge vertical integrators that does not respond to the needs of local areas.

What these farm families were expressing was a frustration, a frustration borne out of their life experiences in knowing that what they have done and what their parents and grandparents before them had done in agriculture, knowing that this had benefited not only our Nation but had benefited the areas in which they lived. Because we had a lot of farm families in rural areas, we had prosperous small towns and communities. We had businesses in those communities. We had good schools and churches. We had a sense of community in rural America. Out of this structure in rural America came the sons and daughters who went on to colleges—land grant colleges, many of them—and who then became some of the great leaders of our country.

I need not remind those in this body of some of the great leaders in our own Senate who came from rural America, small towns and communities, farm families. I just saw our distinguished former majority and minority leader, Senator Dole, come across the floor. He comes from Russell, KS. You can't find a much smaller town than that. He has dedicated his life to public service. He is a great friend of mine and was a great leader in the Senate. I wonder how many more leaders we will get in this country coming from small towns and rural America when all these small towns have dried up, when there are no more opportunities there.

I think what I heard at this rally was this frustration. The farm families know what they have contributed to the well-being of our country and our communities. Yet now they are being decimated. They see their neighbors, one by one, being driven off the farm because of the economic structure we have in America. In 1998, two Iowa State University economists reported that as many as one-third of Iowa farmers would face serious financial problems if the farm economy did not improve. They would either restructure their operations or go out of business entirely. That was one out of three estimated in 1998.

Earlier this year, an updated study by the same economists concluded that as many as half of all Iowa farmers are classified as financially weak or severely stressed; that is, every other farmer in the State of Iowa is in real trouble.

A couple of farm families spoke to me when I was at the rally on the Mall in response to something I had heard, saying that their churches, which used to be packed on Sunday morning—all the pews were filled—are now half empty, that they can't even afford to pay their own minister any longer. They have a circuit rider who rides to three or four churches a week. So they lack that kind of pastoral counseling upon which families have come to rely. Indeed, we are seeing a wholesale selling out of our farm and ranch families and our rural communities. The stakes are very high.

I heard this great frustration from all of these farm families. Their question to us is: What are you going to do? Is this just some inevitable, invisible hand that is doing this, or are the laws of our country structured so they discriminate unfairly against family farmers? I think the latter is true. There is no invisible handwriting that farm families are a relic of the past, that our farmers have to get bigger and bigger and bigger, that our small towns have to dry up. I think it is because of policies we set in the Congress. I think those policies have to change.

The farm bill we have now, the so-called Freedom to Farm bill, has been a wreck. There is only one good part of it, and that is planting flexibility. That is all. The rest of it has been a wreck. The Federal Government has sent out over $15 billion in emergency money in the past 2 years. That is not counting what we sent out under the regular farm bill itself. Of course, that money was needed by the bankers, by the chemical and fertilizer dealers, by the repair shops, by the fuel dealers, by the landlords. A lot of that money went out not to save the farmer but to save the very people about whom I speak: the bankers, chemical and fertilizer dealers, repair shops, and the landlords. In fact, a lot of that money went to farmers who didn't even plant a crop last year. Tell me if that makes sense.

The bailout packages we have had over the last couple of years have been bailouts for the Freedom to Farm bill and not for our farmers. That was a record amount of money we sent out last year. What did it get us? Is the farm economy any healthier? No.

USDA tells us if we don't pass an emergency package again this year, net farm income is going to fall by 17 percent compared to last year. Tell me what farmer can afford to take another 17-percent cut. That is net farming; that is not gross. That is what they used to clothe and feed their families and buy some new equipment, pay the mortgage, and hopefully set aside a little bit for the children to go to college.

So it looks as if we will have to come up with another emergency package again this year. That is not a farm program. That is not a farm bill. That is lurching from one emergency to the next. Again, our farmers are the victims.

I was hopeful that this year we could have some hearings and a debate on the Freedom to Farm bill to see what changes we could make in it to get to a rational system of farm supports, a farm program combining conservation, storage payments, better loan rates, some shorter term set-aside programs, so we would have a balanced package, the prices at the farmgate would be higher, so the farmers could get their money from the marketplace and not from a Government paycheck. That is the debate we need. Yet that debate is not going to happen this year. We are not going to have the hearings, and we will not have the debate.

Quite frankly, the frustration felt by most of these farm families is going to continue to fester and grow. I think we will see even more frustration in rural America because we lack the will and, quite frankly, we lack the leadership to redress the failed Freedom to Farm bill.

I compliment the Senator from Minnesota for his sense-of-the-Senate resolution. I believe the farm families who took money out of their own pockets, which they could ill afford to do—they got on buses; they came here and endured rain and cold weather, slogging around in mud and water to make their case known to Congress, exercising their first amendment rights to petition their Government—did what is in the best tradition of America. I hope their voices and the frustration we heard will not go unheeded. I hope we can understand that we have an obligation in this body and in the other body to address the plight of what is happening in rural America today.

I come from a small town of 150 people. I remember growing up as a child when we had an elevator, we had a grocery store, a hardware store, and a small implement dealer. They are all gone now. They are all gone. I am not saying we have to save every town of 150 people. But it is not only those towns. It is those towns of 2,000, 3,000, or 5,000 people that are also going under, because I believe we don't have an adequate farm program that will enable our farmers to get a better price in the marketplace.

Again, I support this resolution. I commend the farmers who came here. I hope and trust we can hear their plea and do something about changing the failed Freedom to Farm bill.

I also wish to say I hope after this vote at 11 o'clock we can have a resounding vote in support of the crop insurance bill that is before us. We need to fix the Crop Insurance Program.

I commend Senator ROBERTS from Kansas and Senator KERREY from Nebraska for their leadership in this area.

The Crop Insurance Program needs to be changed. We put $6 billion in the budget last year for that. I believe it will be a very strong part of helping farmers get through some of these tough times that we have right now. It is not the answer to all of the problems in the farm communities, but it is a part of it.

Hopefully, with this modified crop insurance bill, we can go to conference with the House right away and get it to the President by May. I will for my part do everything I can with the conferees on our side to expedite the conference. There are not that many differences between the House and the Senate bill—a few, but nothing we can't work out in a timely manner.

I hope we can get this crop insurance bill through. I hope we can get a resounding vote for it, and at least send some hope to our family farmers that at least in the area of crop insurance and revenue insurance coverage we are going to pay some attention.

I yield the floor. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

CONCLUSION OF MORNING BUSINESS

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, morning business is closed.

RISK MANAGEMENT FOR THE 21ST CENTURY ACT

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will now resume consideration of S. 2251, which the clerk will report by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2251) to amend the Federal Crop Insurance Act to improve crop insurance coverage, to provide agricultural producers with choices to manage risk, and for other purposes.

Pending:

Wellstone Amendment No. 2888, to express the sense of Congress regarding the Rally for Rural America and the rural crisis.

AMENDMENT NO. 2888

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. L. CHAFEE). Under the previous order, there will now be 2 minutes of debate equally divided prior to the vote on amendment 2888.

The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Two minutes for each side?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Two minutes equally divided.

Mr. WELLSTONE. Mr. President, this is a sense-of-the-Congress amendment. It thanks the people who came here for the rally for rural America. It makes it clear that the Congress has heard their plea and that we will respond with a clear and strong message to alleviate the agricultural price crisis, to ensure competitive markets, to invest in rural education and health care, and to ensure a safe and secure food supply for all.

The crop insurance bill is a good bill. I thank my colleagues for the work. I want to make sure with this amendment we are clear this is just the first step. We need to do much more. We hear the people who came. We commend them for coming. Many of them came by bus from Minnesota and many other States. We are committed to taking some important action that will make a positive difference.

That is what this sense-of-the-Senate amendment is all about. When colleagues vote for this, I think it is a strong vote. We will come back with specific proposals which will be a part of what I think this amendment calls for.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I commend the distinguished Senator from Minnesota for his amendment. On our side of the aisle, we are hopeful that Members will vote for the amendment.

I simply add, we do hear loudly and clearly the voices of those who participated in the rally for rural America. This very day, the Senate will take action, we believe, to at least answer a part of the problem of a strong safety net for the income of farmers in our country. Indeed, $6 billion of taxpayer resources will be devoted, given Budget Committee action, to the safety net for our producers in the event we take timely action. I stress the timely aspect of that.

As all Senators note, we have tried very hard, working with the distinguished ranking member, Senator HARKIN, with the cooperation of Senator WELLSTONE, concerning those who have pioneered this effort—Senator ROBERTS, Senator KERREY, and others—to bring about something I hope will be almost unanimous.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired. The question is on agreeing to amendment No. 2888. The yeas and nays have been ordered. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 99, nays 1, as follows:

[Rollcall Vote No. 43 Leg.]

The amendment (No. 2888) was agreed to.

Mr. WELLSTONE. I move to reconsider the vote.

Mr. LUGAR. I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

FURTHER MODIFICATION TO AMENDMENT NO. 2887

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, two clerical errors were made in the manager's amendment adopted yesterday. I ask unanimous consent that the manager's amendment, as adopted, be amended to correct these two clerical errors.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The further modification is as follows:

On page 5, line 9, after ''2000,'' insert ''wild''.

On page 14, line 14, strike ''13'' and insert ''15''.

On page 15, line 12, strike ''2'' and insert ''4''.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading and was read the third time.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, H.R. 2559 is discharged from the Agriculture Committee and the Senate will proceed to its immediate consideration. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 2559) to amend the Federal Crop Insurance Act to strengthen the safety net for agricultural producers by providing greater access to more affordable risk management tools and improved protection from production and income loss, to improve the efficiency and integrity of the Federal crop insurance program, and for other purposes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, all after the enacting clause is stricken and the text of S. 2251, as amended, is inserted.

Under the previous order, the question is on the engrossment of the amendments and third reading of the bill.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am very hopeful that this bill can, at long last, make crop insurance work for all regions of our nation. It includes creative provisions to bring new producers under its protections, and to bring new crops under its protections. The compromise worked out yesterday protects what the Midwest wanted while reaching out to other regions and producers.

Historic participation in New England has been very low—this bill helps address this issue. Crop insurance will give our producers one more tool to help manage risk—risks from ice storms, droughts, flood, hail and other natural disasters.

I want to thank Senators ROBERTS and KERREY for their leadership and willingness to include our region, so that we can all now vote together for this effort.

Chairman LUGAR and Ranking Member HARKIN were faced with a very difficult challenge—leadership of the Agriculture Committee, as I well know, can be a very difficult balancing act. Also the Democratic leader and his staff—Zabrae Valentine—were extremely helpful in delicate negotiations.

Bev Paul with Senator KERREY, Mark Halveson with Senator HARKIN, Dave Johnson, Keith Luse, Michael Knipe and Andy Morton with Chairman LUGAR, put in very long hours in this massive effort. Ken Ackerman, of USDA, provided excellent technical advice in this complex area. Senator CONRAD and his staff Scott Carlson put a huge amount of effort into this.

I am grateful that the Leahy, Torricelli, Schumer, Rockefeller, Reed, and Kennedy amendment was included in the managers' package.

The Senate has spoken in a united voice on this amendment and it is crucial that it be included in any conference report.

Mr. ROBB. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Risk Management for the 21st Century Act. This bill contains some welcome new tools to help manage risk on the farm. It is not a perfect bill, but it is a very good bill. Virginia farmers will have more risk management tools available to them than ever before, and these tools will be able to cover more crops than ever before, making the crop insurance system more equitable and more available.

In particular, I thank the members of the Agriculture committee for their hard work on this bill. I know that the discussions have been contentious, and that different regions of the country view risk management in entirely different ways. I for one am thankful that the necessary compromises were made to bring this bill forward for a vote. It is gratifying to know that on the important issues, and this is a very important issue, that we can still work together and do what is necessary to improve the lives of the people we represent.

So, I say thank you Chairman LUGAR, and Senators KERREY, ROBERTS, GRAHAM, LINCOLN, LEAHY and MACK, the rest of the committee, and all of your staffs. You have done the hard work. The country, our food supply, and our farmers will all benefit.

I yield the floor.

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President I rise today as one of the proud co-sponsors of S. 2251, ''The Risk Management for the 21st Century Act.''

This bill offers much-needed changes in the area of risk management for farmers and ranchers. Managing risk in agriculture has become perhaps the most important aspect of the business. Agricultural producers who are able to effectively manage their risk are able to sustain and increase profit. An effective crop insurance program will provide farmers and ranchers possibilities for economic sustainability in the future and help them out of the current financial crisis.

The federal government can help facilitate a program to unite the producer and the private insurance company. The control must be put ultimately in the hands of the agricultural producer. Although he cannot control risk, an effective management plan will help him to manage the effects of risks, such as weather, prices and natural disasters.

This bill addresses the inadequacies of the current crop insurance program. The problems and inconsistencies with the current program make it both unaffordable and confusing to agricultural producers. Costly premiums are the biggest problem. In years of depressed market prices, crop insurance, though badly needed, is simply unaffordable for farmers.

This bill inverts the current subsidy formula, in order to provide the highest levels of subsidies to producers at the highest levels of buy-up coverage, and thus alleviate the unaffordable premiums. It also allows for the revenue policies to be fully subsidized.

Another important provision in this bill is a pilot program to reward producers for risk management activities.

It will allow producers to elect to receive a risk management payment or a crop insurance subsidy. The risk management payments will be given to those producers that utilize any two of several activities, including using futures or options, utilizing cash forwards, attending a risk management class, using Agricultural Trade Options or FFARRM accounts or reducing farm financial risk. This bill also takes into account lack of production histories for beginning farmers or those who have added land or use crop rotation. This will make it possible for those producers to get a foot in the door and receive affordable crop insurance.

Many times, especially in Montana, multi-year disasters occur. This bill helps producers that take a blow several years in a row, which reduces their Annual Production History (APH). If a producer has suffered a natural disaster during at least 3 of the preceding 5 years and their APH was reduced by at least 25 percent they may exclude one year of APH for every five years experience. During this time, the producer's APH may increase without limit back up to the level before the multi-year disaster began.

Specialty crops such as canola or dry beans, are another important addition to this bill. The Risk Management Agency (RMA) is now authorized to spend up to $20 million each fiscal year to create partnerships for developing and implementing specialty crop risk management options. Additionally, the Non-Insured Assistance Program (NAP) area trigger has been removed. The Secretary now has the authority to provide assistance for specialty crops without any requirement of an area loss. Before, producers were penalized in the case of a disaster for planting alternative crops if their neighbors continued to plant traditional commodities. I would like to thank my colleague, Senator BAUCUS, for his hard work on getting the provisions for specialty crops in this bill.

This bill will ultimately put more control in the hands of active producers by including four active producers on the Federal Crop Insurance Commission (FCIC) Board. The board would also include nine private insurance industry experts the Under Secretary for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services, the Under Secretary for Rural Development, and the Chief Economist of USDA. In addition, it mandates that the Board Chairperson be one of the non-governmental members. These are important steps to ensure that the new program is run for the producers by the producers.

This bill is an important tool to reform the current crop insurance program into a risk management program, designed to help the producer in the long-term. It is vital to find a solution to provide a way for farmers to stay in agriculture. They must be able to continue to produce and distribute the world's safest food supply at a profitable margin.

Mr. President, I look forward to working with Senators ROBERTS and KERREY, as well as Senator LUGAR on this important piece of legislation. I believe this bill will pave the way for massive crop insurance reform and help agricultural producers out of this economic crisis.

Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. SMITH of Oregon. Mr. President, I am pleased to take this opportunity to speak briefly in support of this legislation, S. 2251, the Risk Management for the 21st century Act. Clearly, this bill represents a good compromise between the major risk management proposals that have been discussed here in the Senate in recent months. I command my colleagues—specifically Senator LUGAR, Senator KERREY, and Senator ROBERTS—for producing legislation which enjoys broad support in the agricultural community and is unquestionably needed during these times of crisis on the family farm.

As we all know, these are not the best of times for farming. Like their counterparts in other natural resources industries, farmers by and large have not equitably shared in the remarkable prosperity we have seen in recent years. Most farmers are faced with another year of low commodity prices on the Horizon. I know that for wheat growers in Oregon, this is the third year of historic low prices. At the same time, the rising costs of production—fueled by energy price spikes, an extremely tight labor market, and incredibly burdensome regulations and government mandates—continue to squeeze the farmer's bottom line. We need to work together to ease this price pressure on farmers and we need to act quickly. Opening up trade, relieving estate tax burdens, seriously reviewing some of the labor and environment regulations that seek to make farmers felons—these are just a few of the issues we need to address to turn around the fortunes of America's farmers. The development of more practical risk management tools is another. That is exactly the promise S. 2251 offers us today—not a fix-all, but a significant and necessary step on the road to farm recovery.

S. 2251 improves the federal crop insurance system in several key ways. First, it makes higher levels of coverage more affordable. By raising premium subsidies, we will offer farmers the chance to help themselves today and avoid an expensive federal bailout tomorrow. Second, this bill will make crop insurance more effective for farmers experiencing successive years of disaster, by changing the way production history is calculated. In Oregon, we are blessed that we have not had widespread and recurring natural disasters, such as my colleagues have described in the Dakotas. However, we have had recent recurring flood problems in certain areas of my State—the Tillamook Bay area and the Harney County Lakes Basin, for example. This bill will address some of the problems producers have had in getting a fair accounting of their production. Finally, and perhaps most significantly for Oregon, this bill has a number of provisions designed to assist specialty crop producers. My State has a number of specialty crops—from nursery products in the Willamette Valley to tree fruits in the Columbia Gorge and southern Oregon to potato and onion growers in the east. With $20 million annually set aside for specialty crop risk management pilot projects, this bill represents a substantial effort to make federal crop insurance relevant to producers of nonprogram commodities. I believe this attention to the needs of specialty crop producers is an overdue but welcome change.

Once again, I commend my colleagues for their work on this legislation and for their willingness to listen to concerns and suggestions from those of us not on the Agriculture Committee. Much work remains to be done before I think we can say that we have truly kept our promise to farmers under Freedom to Farm, but his is an important step in that direction. I look forward to voting in favor of this bill, and I hope that we will have before us in relatively short order a conference agreement as well. It is vital we get this legislation passed and take advantage of the budget authority we have provided for this purpose.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise to express my support for H.R. 2559, the ''Federal Crop Insurance Act''. Today the Senate will approve a $6 billion crop insurance reform bill designed to increase premium subsidies for farmers who buy more comprehensive coverage and expand the availability of crop insurance for specialty crops. The reforms in this legislation will enable farmers in Rhode Island and across the country to obtain more crop insurance coverage and reduce income losses due to natural disasters.

I and my colleagues from the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic opposed last year's farm disaster bill because it did not provide adequate relief to farmers in our region who were hit by the terrible drought conditions of 1999. The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) found that four states in the Northeast, including Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland, and Delaware, experienced the driest growing season in their histories. From April through July, Rhode Island was the driest it has been in 105 years of record-keeping by NOAA's National Climatic Data Center.

Unfortunately, forecasters at the National Weather Service are predicting continued drought conditions this year, because we are starting out with a deficit of rainfall and, even with the snowstorms of January, winter precipitation was 3.5 inches below normal for our region.

The prospect of another long dry summer makes this crop insurance reform bill all the more important. I know that people may not always think of the Northeast when they think of farming. But in my small state alone there are about 700 farms. Farmers in Rhode Island grow vegetables, turf, nursery stock, cranberries, strawberries, and potatoes. My state is also home to many orchards and dairy farms. Many of our crops are not insurable under the current federal crop insurance program, and that's why I strongly support the significant investment in research and development of new specialty crop policies provided by this bill.

I also support provisions in the bill to remove the ''area trigger'' for the Non-insured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP). I believe broader NAP eligibility is one of the most effective ways to assist farmers in the eastern United States who face severe production losses due to drought, floods, or other disasters.

Currently, NAP crops are eligible for assistance when: (1) expected ''Area Yield'' for the crop is reduced by more than 35 percent because of natural disaster; and 2) individual crop losses are in excess of 50% of the individual's approved yield, or the producer is prevented from planting more than 35 percent of the acreage intended for the eligible crop.

These criteria have proven to be unworkable in many eastern states, both in terms of program accessibility and timeliness of payments. For individual growers of specialty crops, typically grown on small acreage, a loss of as little as 20% can be devastating, especially given the high per-acre value of these crops. Moreover, the process of verifying area yield reductions is cumbersome and exceedingly time-consuming, resulting in waiting periods of several months or, in some cases, more than a year for payment.

Giving the Secretary of Agriculture broader discretion over delivery of NAP program funds will streamline the approval process and make direct assistance available to thousands of farmers whose substantial losses do not meet NAP criteria under the current area trigger. I am pleased that removal of this trigger is among the many valuable reforms in the bill before us today.

Finally, I was proud to join several of my Senate colleagues from the Northeast to offer an amendment to provide $60 million for expanded education and outreach for farmers in states with low levels of crop insurance participation, as well as research and development of new crop insurance policies for currently uninsured crops in these states. Our amendment would also set aside $66 million for farmers in underserved states to participate in the bill's proposed risk management pilot project which allows farmers to choose between traditional crop insurance and a direct payment for adopting new risk management practices such as farm diversification, futures contracts and options, creation of conservation buffers, soil erosion control, and irrigation management. While offering increased income to farmers for whom crop insurance has not worked well, the pilot will test whether incentive payments can encourage producers to adopt new risk management strategies that are good for the environment. I thank the distinguished Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture for making this amendment part of the overall package we will vote on today, and I urge the Senate conferees to ensure that this important provision remains in the bill after conference with the House. Otherwise, I will likely oppose the conference report when it comes before the Senate. Together with the substantial new funding for research and development of specialty crop insurance policies, this amendment will ensure that we have a farm policy that is truly national in scope.

With the passage of this legislation we will give farmers the tools they need to manage their risk more effectively, and possibly reduce the need for Congress to pass massive farm disaster packages year after year. At the same time, we recognize the contribution and needs of farmers in every region of the country, who not only feed the world but preserve a way of life that makes our nation stronger and protects our precious open spaces from the encroachment of development and urban sprawl.

I urge my colleagues to support the Federal Crop Insurance Act.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I want to express my personal thanks and deep appreciation for adoption of an amendment to the Senate's crop insurance bill which would authorize crop insurance coverage for the 2001 and future rice crops for losses due to drought and saltwater intrusion.

The rice language was included in the Chairman's floor amendment which the Senate approved yesterday.

I want to thank Senator LUGAR and Senator HARKIN sincerely for agreeing to the amendment. My sincere appreciation also goes to Senator KERREY and to Senator ROBERTS for accepting the provision.

Senator LANDRIEU, Senator LINCOLN and I have been working together for several weeks to help our rice growers who have been experiencing a prolonged drought. It has been my privilege to work with Senator LANDRIEU and Senator LINCOLN in addressing the absence of rice crop insurance coverage for the drought and saltwater intrusion perils.

Currently, the rice crop insurance policy does not include coverage for losses due to drought and saltwater intrusion. A meeting about the current policy and how to address the absence of coverage was held with our staff, grower representatives and USDA's Risk Management Agency. The willingness to meet and the attention given to the situation at the meeting and subsequent to it by Mr. Ken Ackerman, the RMA's Administrator, and his staff are also sincerely appreciated.

To ensure that drought and saltwater intrusion coverage are provided in time for the 2001 rice crop and prior to the USDA policy change deadline, legislation was prepared which is now in the Senate's crop insurance bill. In order for a crop insurance policy change to become effective, it must be adopted by November 30, which is USDA's annual deadline for such changes.

With the rice crop insurance language being only in the Senate bill, it is my hope that it will be retained in conference with the House. I take this opportunity to urge the Senate's conferees to keep the rice crop insurance provision in the final conference bill.

Insurance coverage for rice crop losses due to drought and saltwater intrusion is an important risk management tool for rice growers to have available to them. Again, I express deep personal appreciation for the Senate approving inclusion of the bill language which Senator LANDRIEU, Senator LINCOLN and I have worked on, which we strongly support and which we submitted for the Senate's consideration.

Thank you, Mr. President.

NONCONTIGUOUS UNITS

Ms. COLLINS. Mr. President, I have heard from many Maine potato farmers that one barrier to their using the crop insurance program is the inability to insure the crops of a farm that may consist of several non-contiguous units under one policy. Therefore, I was pleased to see that The Risk Management for the Twenty-first Century Act authorizes pilot programs to allow farmers to receive premium discounts for using whole farm units or single crop units of insurance and to cross State and county boundaries to form insurable units. This provision has the potential to significantly help farmers in Maine and I appreciate your efforts to ensure its inclusion in the crop insurance bill. I hope, too, that you will make every effort to retain this provision in the bill that emerges form conference.

Mr. ROBERTS. A major purpose of this bill is to make crop insurance more available to our Nation's farmers. I understand the importance of the provision you cite to farmers in your State and will work hard to see that is retained.

Ms. COLLINS. Again, I appreciate the assistance of my good friends, Senators LUGAR and ROBERTS, who chair the Agriculture Committee and Subcommittee on Production and Price Competitiveness, respectively. A pilot program that could allow farmers to combine noncontiguous units under one policy and to receive premium discounts could be extremely beneficial to my State. I hope that we can strongly encourage the U.S. Department of Agriculture to give Maine every consideration as a location for such a pilot program.

Mr. LUGAR. The pilot programs authorized in this bill are a tool to find new ways to improve crop insurance for farmers. I agree that the USDA should give every consideration to including farmers in Maine in such a pilot program. I would also commend the Senator from Maine's efforts to work with us in crafting a bill that address the concerns of farmers in her state.

Mr. ROBERTS. I agree that Maine appears to be an excellent candidate for such a pilot program. I thank the Senator for bringing this important matter to our attention.

Mr. ASHCROFT. Mr. President, first, I commend the bipartisan efforts of the Agriculture Committee. In S. 2251 the committee has produced a bill which will deliver much needed expansion and improvement of the federal crop insurance program. Additionally, I appreciate Senators ROBERTS and KERREY for accepting a proposal I put forward that will establish a commission to examine reform issues over the long term.

Missouri farmers are hurting. Prices for cotton, soybeans, corn, rice, and almost all commodities dropped so low last year that University of Missouri economists predicted grain farmers could face prices almost as low as those seen in 1986. The Senate responded to the crisis strongly by supporting a disaster assistance package worth about $9 billion in 1999. The Senate now has the opportunity to assist farmers by helping them protect their losses that are due to bad weather and market fluctuations. Our farmers need more affordable crop insurance, to obtain higher levels of coverage and revenue protection.

Missourians, like farmers in many other sates, are diversifying their agricultural production and increasingly focusing on specialty crops. S. 2251 also provides a realistic basis for expanding and improving insurance for specialty crops.

As good as this bill is, I offered, and Senators ROBERTS and KERREY graciously accepted, a provision that would establish a commission to review the effect of the changes made in traditional crop insurance and the addition of a pilot project for alternative risk programs. The Federal Crop Insurance Improvement Commission will report to Congress in 2 years with its findings. The Commission strengthens the public-private partnership that farmers rely on to deliver crop insurance by bringing together Government officials, economists, farm interests, and insurers to review various proposals. As we review farm policies down the road, I want to have the input of those that are actually out there ''in the field.''

Again I thank my Senate colleagues from Kansas and Nebraska for bringing this important issue to the Senate floor. I want farm families to be able to encourage their children to continue the traditions of family farming and agri-business. The crop insurance reform detailed in S. 2251 puts us one step closer to that goal.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I commend the managers of this bill and all those who worked hard to forge this agreement to help address the continuing crisis facing American farmers. However, I regret that I cannot vote for this legislation, S. 2251, the Risk Management for the 21st Century Act.

Over the last 2 years, the Congress was forced to spend more than $15 billion of taxpayer dollars in emergency disaster assistance to farmers. Proponents of this bill claim that if S. 2251 is enacted, the need to pass ad hoc emergency farm relief would be avoided. However, even with passage of this bill, these same proponents are not willing to voice their opposition to further emergency spending should Congress be forced to consider additional relief measures for farmers.

This bill, at a cost of $6 billion, is more of an expanded federal subsidy for crop coverage, rather than thorough and necessary reform of the larger problems stemming from our nation's farm policies. It has become clear that the 1996 Freedom to Farm bill failed to alleviate the heavy reliance by the farming community on federally subsidized programs and financial assistance. However, instead of turning back the clock and increasing subsidies, we should be working for responsible reform of farm policies. That is why I voted in favor of Senator WELLSTONE's amendment which calls for broader reform.

Even with the expanded coverage and more affordable insurance premiums for farmers called for in this bill, Congress does not have the assurance that other problems, such as fluctuations in the market or limited trade opportunities, will not create additional burdens on farmers requiring another costly congressional budgetary response.

Mr. President, this bill also includes provisions that appear capricious and unnecessarily bureaucratic. Five new regional centers will be established at a price tag of $30 million, and new pilot programs are authorized to develop and market risk management tools. I support efforts to evaluate innovative risk management options or to ensure that farmers understand changes to insurance coverage and options. But why should we spend taxpayer money on new information centers when this information is already available and accessible through local USDA offices? And, the private sector is in no way prohibited from exploring opportunities to develop and market new products to manage risk.

Mr. President, I agree with the fundamental principle of this bill, that farmers need to have risk management tools to allow them to prepare for, and deal with, crop losses and disaster-related problems. However, I am not convinced that this bill will do much more than increase taxpayer burdens and only partially solve a much bigger problem facing our nation's farmers.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my remarks be placed in the RECORD immediately following passage of S. 2251.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Indiana.

Mr. LUGAR. I ask for the yeas and nays on final passage.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The bill having been read the third time, the question is, Shall the bill pass? The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there any other Senators in the Chamber desiring to vote?

The result was announced—yeas 95, nays 5, as follows:

The bill (H.R. 2559), as amended, was passed, as follows:

Resolved, That the bill from the House of Representatives (H.R. 2559) entitled ''An Act to amend the Federal Crop Insurance Act to strengthen the safety net for agricultural producers by providing greater access to more affordable risk management tools and improved protection from production and income loss, to improve the efficiency and integrity of the Federal crop insurance program, and for other purposes.'', do pass with the following amendment:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE; TABLE OF CONTENTS.

(a) SHORT TITLE.—This Act may be cited as the ''Risk Management for the 21st Century Act''.

(b) TABLE OF CONTENTS.—The table of contents of this Act is as follows:

Sec. 1. Short title; table of contents.

TITLE I—CROP INSURANCE COVERAGE

Sec. 101. Quality adjustment.
Sec. 102. Prevented planting.
Sec. 103. Payment of portion of premium by Corporation.
Sec. 104. Assigned yields.
Sec. 105. Multiyear disaster actual production history adjustment.
Sec. 106. Noninsured crop disaster assistance program.
Sec. 107. Crop insurance coverage for rice.

TITLE II—RESEARCH AND PILOT PROGRAMS

Sec. 201. Research and pilot programs.

Sec. 202. Research and development contracting authority.

TITLE IV—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Sec. 401. Improved risk management education.
Sec. 402. Sense of the Senate regarding the Federal crop insurance program.
Sec. 403. Sense of Congress on Rally for Rural America and rural crisis.

TITLE V—EFFECTIVE DATES; TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY

Sec. 501. Effective dates.
Sec. 502. Termination of authority.

TITLE I—CROP INSURANCE COVERAGE

SEC. 101. QUALITY ADJUSTMENT.

Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) is amended by striking paragraph (6) and inserting the following:

''(6) QUALITY ADJUSTMENT POLICIES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall offer coverage that permits a reduction in the quantity of production of an agricultural commodity produced during a crop year, or any similar adjustment, that results from the agricultural commodity not meeting the quality standards established in the policy.

''(B) ELECTION NOT TO RECEIVE COVERAGE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A producer may elect not to receive quality adjustment coverage.

''(ii) PREMIUM REDUCTION.—In the case of an election described in clause (i), the Corporation shall provide a reduction in the premium payable by the producer for a plan of insurance in an amount equal to the premium for the quality adjustment coverage, as determined by the Corporation.

''(C) REVIEW OF CRITERIA AND PROCEDURES.—The Corporation shall—

''(i) contract with a qualified person to analyze the quality loss adjustment procedures of the Corporation; and

''(ii) based on the analysis, make adjustments in the quality loss adjustment procedures of the Corporation necessary to more accurately reflect local quality discounts that are applied to agricultural commodities insured under this title, taking into consideration the actuarial soundness of the adjustment and the prevention of fraud, waste, and abuse.''.

SEC. 102. PREVENTED PLANTING.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) (as amended by section 101) is amended by inserting after paragraph (6) the following:

''(7) PREVENTED PLANTING.—

''(A) ELECTION NOT TO RECEIVE COVERAGE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A producer may elect not to receive coverage for prevented planting of an agricultural commodity.

''(ii) PREMIUM REDUCTION.—In the case of an election described in clause (i), the Corporation shall provide a reduction in the premium payable by the producer for a plan of insurance in an amount equal to the premium for the prevented planting coverage, as determined by the Corporation.

''(B) EQUAL COVERAGE.—For each agricultural commodity for which prevented planting coverage is available, the Corporation shall offer an equal percentage level of prevented planting coverage.

''(C) AREA CONDITIONS REQUIRED FOR PAYMENT.—The Corporation shall limit prevented planting payments to producers in the area in which the farm is located that are generally affected by the conditions that prevent an agricultural commodity from being planted.

''(D) SUBSTITUTE COMMODITY.—

''(i) AUTHORITY TO PLANT.—Subject to clause (v), a producer that has prevented planting coverage and is eligible to receive an indemnity under the coverage may plant an agricultural commodity, other than the commodity covered by the prevented planting coverage, on the acreage originally prevented from being planted.

''(ii) NONAVAILABILITY OF INSURANCE.—A substitute agricultural commodity planted under clause (i) for harvest in the same crop year shall not be eligible for coverage under a policy or plan of insurance under this title or for noninsured crop disaster assistance under section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333).

''(iii) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER REQUIREMENTS.—The producer of a substitute agricultural commodity under clause (ii) shall remain eligible for the benefits described in subsection (b)(7).

''(iv) EFFECT ON ACTUAL PRODUCTION HISTORY.—If a producer plants a substitute agricultural commodity under clause (i) for a crop year, the Corporation shall assign the producer a yield, for that crop year for the commodity that was prevented from being planted, equal to 60 percent of the producer's actual production history for that commodity for purposes of determining the producer's actual production history for subsequent crop years.

''(v) EFFECT ON PREVENTED PLANTING PAYMENT.—If a producer plants a substitute agricultural commodity under clause (i) before the latest planting date established by the Corporation for the agricultural commodity prevented from being planted, the Corporation shall not make a prevented planting payment with regard to the commodity prevented from being planted.

''(E) RELATIONSHIP TO OTHER LAW.—This paragraph shall supersede subsection (h)(7) to the extent that this paragraph is inconsistent with subsection (h)(7).

''(F) CROP YEARS.—This paragraph shall apply to each of the 2001 through 2004 crop years.''.

(b) APPLICATION.—The amendment made by subsection (a) shall be reflected in the rates for applicable plans of insurance not later than the 2001 reinsurance year.

SEC. 103. PAYMENT OF PORTION OF PREMIUM BY CORPORATION.

(a) EXPECTED MARKET PRICE.—Section 508(c) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(c)) is amended by striking paragraph (5) and inserting the following:

''(5) EXPECTED MARKET PRICE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For the purposes of this title, the Corporation shall establish or approve the price level (referred to in this title as the 'expected market price') of each agricultural commodity for which insurance is offered.

''(B) AMOUNT.—The expected market price of an agricultural commodity—

''(i) except as otherwise provided in this subparagraph, shall be not less than the projected market price of the agricultural commodity, as determined by the Corporation;

''(ii) may be based on the actual market price of the agricultural commodity at the time of harvest, as determined by the Corporation;

''(iii) in the case of revenue and other similar plans of insurance, shall be the actual market price of the agricultural commodity, as determined by the Corporation; or

''(iv) in the case of cost of production or similar plans of insurance, shall be the projected cost of producing the agricultural commodity, as determined by the Corporation.''.

(b) PREMIUM AMOUNTS.—Section 508(d)(2) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(d)(2)) is amended by striking subparagraph (C) and inserting the following:

''(C) In the case of additional coverage at greater than or equal to 65 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, but less than 75 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount of the premium shall—

''(i) be sufficient to cover anticipated losses and a reasonable reserve; and

''(ii) include an amount for operating and administrative expenses, as determined by the Corporation, on an industry-wide basis as a percentage of the amount of the premium used to define loss ratio.

''(D) In the case of additional coverage equal to 75, 80, or 85 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount of the premium shall—

''(i) be sufficient to cover anticipated losses and a reasonable reserve; and

''(ii) include an amount for operating and administrative expenses, as determined by the Corporation, on an industry-wide basis as a percentage of the amount of the premium used to define loss ratio.''.

(c) PAYMENT OF PORTION OF PREMIUM BY CORPORATION.—Section 508(e) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(e)) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

''(1) IN GENERAL.—

''(A) MANDATORY PAYMENTS.—For the purpose of encouraging the broadest possible participation of producers in the crop insurance plans of insurance described in subsections (b) and (c), the Corporation shall pay a part of the premium in the amounts determined under this subsection.

''(B) DISCRETIONARY PAYMENTS.—For the purpose of encouraging the broadest possible participation of producers, in the case of a plan of insurance approved by the Corporation under subsection (h), the Corporation may pay a part of the premium as determined under this subsection.''; and

(2) in paragraph (2), by striking subparagraphs (B) and (C) and inserting the following:

''(B) In the case of additional coverage less than or equal to 50 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount shall be equal to the sum of—

''(i) 60 percent of the amount of the premium established under subsection (d)(2)(B)(i); and

''(ii) the amount of operating and administrative expenses determined under subsection (d)(2)(B)(ii).

''(C) In the case of additional coverage at 55 percent or 60 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount shall be equal to the sum of—

''(i) 45 percent of the amount of the premium established under subsection (d)(2)(B)(i); and

''(ii) the amount of operating and administrative expenses determined under subsection (d)(2)(B)(ii).

''(D) In the case of additional coverage at 65 percent or 70 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount shall be equal to the sum of—

''(i) 50 percent of the amount of the premium established under subsection (d)(2)(C)(i); and

''(ii) the amount of operating and administrative expenses determined under subsection (d)(2)(C)(ii).

''(E) In the case of additional coverage equal to 75 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount shall be equal to the sum of—

''(i) 55 percent of the amount of the premium established for coverage at 75 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price under subsection (d)(2)(D)(i); and

''(ii) the amount of operating and administrative expenses determined under subsection (d)(2)(D)(ii).

''(F) In the case of additional coverage equal to 80 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount shall be equal to the sum of—

''(i) 38 percent of the amount of the premium established for coverage at 80 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price under subsection (d)(2)(D)(i); and

''(ii) the amount of operating and administrative expenses determined under subsection (d)(2)(D)(ii).

''(G) In the case of additional coverage equal to 85 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price, or a comparable coverage for a plan of insurance that is not based on yield, the amount shall be equal to the sum of—

''(i) 28 percent of the amount of the premium established for coverage at 85 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield indemnified at 100 percent of the expected market price under subsection (d)(2)(D)(i); and

''(ii) the amount of operating and administrative expenses determined under subsection (d)(2)(D)(ii).

''(H) Subparagraphs (A) through (G) shall apply to each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004.''.

(d) REVENUE COVERAGE FOR POTATOES.—Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) is amended by striking paragraph (3) and inserting the following:

''(3) EXCLUSIONS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Insurance provided under this subsection shall not cover losses due to—

''(i) the neglect or malfeasance of the producer;

''(ii) the failure of the producer to reseed to the same crop in such areas and under such circumstances as it is customary to reseed; or

''(iii) the failure of the producer to follow good farming practices (as determined by the Secretary).

''(B) REVENUE COVERAGE FOR POTATOES.—No plan of insurance provided under this title (including a plan of insurance approved by the Board under subsection (h)) shall cover losses due to a reduction in revenue for potatoes except as covered under a whole farm plan of insurance, as determined by the Corporation.''.

(e) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 508 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508) is amended—

(1) in subsection (e), by striking paragraph (4); and

(2) in subsection (g)(2)(D), by striking ''(as provided in subsection (e)(4))''.

SEC. 104. ASSIGNED YIELDS.

Section 508(g)(2)(B) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(g)(2)(B)) is amended—

(1) by striking ''assigned a yield'' and inserting ''assigned—

''(i) a yield'';

(2) by striking the period at the end and inserting ''; or''; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(ii) a yield determined by the Corporation, in the case of—

''(I) a producer that has not had a share of the production of the insured crop for more than 2 crop years, as determined by the Secretary;

''(II) a producer that produces an agricultural commodity on land that has not been farmed by the producer; and

''(III) a producer that rotates a crop produced on a farm to a crop that has not been produced on the farm.''.

SEC. 105. MULTIYEAR DISASTER ACTUAL PRODUCTION HISTORY ADJUSTMENT.

Section 508(g) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(g)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(4) TRANSITIONAL ADJUSTMENT FOR DISASTERS.—

''(A) DEFINITION OF A PRODUCER THAT HAS SUFFERED A MULTIYEAR DISASTER.—In this paragraph, the term 'a producer that has suffered a multiyear disaster' means a producer (or a successor entity through which the actual production history of the producer can be traced) that has suffered a natural disaster during at least 3 of the immediately preceding 5 crop years that resulted in a cumulative reduction of at least 25 percent in the actual production history of the crop of an agricultural commodity.

''(B) ELIMINATION OF CERTAIN YEARS OF PRODUCTION HISTORY.—Notwithstanding paragraph (2), effective beginning with the 2001 crop year, for the purpose of calculating the actual production history for a crop of an agricultural commodity, a producer that has suffered a multiyear disaster with respect to the crop may exclude 1 year of production history for each 5 years included in the actual production history calculation of the crop for which the producer purchased crop insurance.

''(C) CORPORATION'S SHARE OF CHANGED COSTS.—In the case of an exclusion under subparagraph (B), in addition to any other authority to pay any portion of premium, the Corporation shall pay—

''(i) the portion of the premium that represents the increase in premium associated with the exclusion;

''(ii) all additional indemnities associated with the exclusion; and

''(iii) any amounts that result from the difference in the administrative and operating expenses owed to an approved insurance provider as the result of an exclusion in actual production history under this paragraph.

''(D) INCREASE IN ACTUAL PRODUCTION HISTORY AFTER EXCLUSIONS.—In the case of a producer that has received an exclusion under subparagraph (B), the Corporation shall not limit the increase of the actual production history based on the producer's actual production of the crop of an agricultural commodity in succeeding crop years until the actual production history for the producer reaches the level for the crop year immediately preceding the first year of the multiyear disaster.

''(E) TERMINATION OF EXCLUSION AUTHORITY.—The authority to apply this paragraph to a producer shall terminate with respect to the first crop year in which crop insurance is available to the producer that adequately insures against natural disasters that occur in multiple crop years, as determined by the Corporation.

''(F) REINSURANCE YEARS.—This paragraph shall apply to each of the 2001 through 2004 reinsurance years.''.

SEC. 106. NONINSURED CROP DISASTER ASSISTANCE PROGRAM.

(a) OPERATION AND ADMINISTRATION OF PROGRAM.—Section 196(a)(2) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333(a)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(C) COMBINATION OF SIMILAR TYPES OR VARIETIES.—At the option of the Secretary, all types or varieties of a crop or commodity, described in subparagraphs (A) and (B), may be considered to be a single eligible crop under this section.''.

(b) RECORDS AND APPLICATION DATE.—Section 196(b) of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333(b)) is amended—

(1) in the second sentence of paragraph (1), by striking ''at such time as the Secretary may require.'' and inserting ''not later than March 15.'';

(2) by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

''(2) RECORDS.—To be eligible for assistance under this section, a producer shall provide annually to the Secretary records of crop acreage, acreage yields, and production for each crop, as required by the Secretary.''; and

(3) in paragraph (3), by inserting ''annual'' after ''shall provide''.

(c) LOSS REQUIREMENTS.—Section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333) is amended by striking subsection (c) and inserting the following:

''(c) LOSS REQUIREMENTS.—

''(1) CAUSE.—To be eligible for assistance under this section, a producer of an eligible crop shall have suffered a loss of a noninsured commodity as the result of a cause described in subsection (a)(3).

''(2) ASSISTANCE.—On making a determination described in subsection (a)(3), the Secretary shall provide assistance under this section to producers of an eligible crop that have suffered a loss as a result of the cause described in subsection (a)(3).

''(3) PREVENTED PLANTING.—The Secretary shall make a prevented planting noninsured crop disaster assistance payment to a producer if the producer is prevented from planting more than 15 percent of the acreage intended for the eligible crop because of a cause described in subsection (a)(3), as determined by the Secretary.

''(4) AREA TRIGGER.—The Secretary may provide assistance to individual producers without any requirement of an area loss.''.

(d) NEW ELIGIBLE CROPS.—Section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333) is amended—

(1) in subsection (d)(1)—

(A) by inserting ''(except as provided in subsection (j))'' after ''percent''; and

(B) by inserting ''determined under subsection (e)'' after ''for the crop'';

(2) by redesignating subsection (j) as subsection (l); and

(3) by inserting after subsection (i) the following:

''(j) NEW ELIGIBLE CROPS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to paragraph (2), if a producer produces an eligible crop that is new to an area (as determined by the Secretary), a payment for the producer shall be computed by substituting the following percentages of yields for the percentages of yields specified in subsection (d)(1):

''(A) In the case of the first crop year of the eligible crop produced by the producer, 35 percent of the established yield for the crop determined under subsection (e).

''(B) In the case of each of the second through fourth years of the eligible crop produced by the producer—

''(i) 45 percent of the established yield for the crop determined under subsection (e); or

''(ii) if the producer received a payment under this section for the first crop year of the eligible crop produced by the producer, 35 percent of the established yield for the crop determined under subsection (e).

''(2) TEMPORARY INELIGIBILITY.—If a producer of an eligible crop described in paragraph (1) receives a payment under this section in both the first and second crop years of the eligible crop, the producer shall be ineligible for a payment under this section until the producer has successfully produced the crop for at least 3 consecutive crop years with no loss reported, as determined by the Secretary.''.

(e) SERVICE FEE.—Section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333) (as amended by subsection (d)) is amended by inserting after subsection (j) the following:

''(k) SERVICE FEE.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—To be eligible to receive assistance for an eligible crop for a crop year under this section, a producer shall pay to the Secretary (at the time at which the producer provides reports under subsection (b)(3)) a service fee for the eligible crop in an amount that is equal to the lesser of—

''(A) the equivalent of the per policy fee for catastrophic risk protection available under section 508(b)(5) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(b)(5)); or

''(B) $200 per producer per county, but not to exceed a total of $600 per producer.

''(2) WAIVER.—The Secretary shall waive the service fee required under paragraph (1) in the case of a limited resource farmer, as defined by the Secretary.

''(3) USE.—The Secretary shall deposit service fees collected under this subsection in the Commodity Credit Corporation Fund.''.

(f) CROP YEARS.—This section and the amendments made by this section shall apply to each of the 2001 through 2004 crop years.

SEC. 107. CROP INSURANCE COVERAGE FOR RICE.

Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) (as amended by section 102(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(8) SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR RICE.—Notwithstanding any other provision of this title, beginning with the 2001 crop of rice, the Corporation shall offer plans of insurance, including prevented planting coverage and replanting coverage, under this title that cover losses of rice resulting from failure of irrigation water supplies due to drought and saltwater intrusion.''.

TITLE II—RESEARCH AND PILOT PROGRAMS

SEC. 201. RESEARCH AND PILOT PROGRAMS.

The Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''SEC. 522. RESEARCH AND PILOT PROGRAMS.

''(a) GENERAL PROVISIONS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, the Corporation may conduct research, surveys, pilot programs, and investigations relating to crop insurance and agriculture-related risks and losses based on proposals developed by the Corporation or by an approved insurance provider to evaluate whether the proposal or new risk management tool is suitable for the marketplace and addresses the needs of producers of agricultural commodities.

''(2) PRIVATE COVERAGE.—Under this section, the Corporation shall not conduct any activity that provides insurance protection against a risk if insurance protection against the risk is generally available from private companies.

''(3) COVERED ACTIVITIES.—The activities described in paragraph (1) include insurance on losses involving—

''(A) reduced forage on rangeland caused by drought or insect infestation;

''(B) livestock poisoning and disease;

''(C) destruction of bees due to the use of pesticides;

''(D) unique special risks related to fruits, nuts, vegetables, and specialty crops in general, aquacultural species, and forest industry needs (including appreciation);

''(E) loss of timber due to drought, flood, fire, or other natural disaster;

''(F) other agricultural products as determined by the Board;

''(G) after October 1, 2000, insurance coverage for livestock and livestock products;

''(H) subject to paragraph (7), after October 1, 2000, wild salmon; and

''(I) subject to paragraph (7), after October 1, 2000, loss of or damage to trees or fruit affected by plum pox virus (commonly known as 'sharka'), including quarantined trees or fruit.

''(4) SCOPE OF PILOT PROGRAMS.—The Corporation may—

''(A) offer a pilot program authorized under this title on a regional, State, or national basis after considering the interests of affected producers and the interests of, and risks to, the Corporation;

''(B) operate the pilot program, including any modifications of the pilot program, for a period of up to 4 years;

''(C) extend the time period for the pilot program for additional periods, as determined appropriate by the Corporation; and

''(D) provide pilot programs that would allow producers—

''(i) to receive premium discounts for using whole farm units or single crop units of insurance; and

''(ii) to cross State and county boundaries to form insurable units.

''(5) EVALUATION.—After the completion of any pilot program under this section, the Corporation shall evaluate the pilot program and submit to the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate, a report on the operations of the pilot program, including the evaluation by the Corporation of the pilot program and the recommendations of the Corporation with respect to implementing the program on a national basis.

''(6) FUNDING.—The amount of funds used to carry out research and pilot programs that are established after the date of enactment of this section (other than subsection (b)(2)) shall not exceed—

''(A) in the case of fiscal year 2001, $10,000,000;

''(B) in the case of fiscal year 2002, $30,000,000;

''(C) in the case of fiscal year 2003, $50,000,000; and

''(D) in the case of fiscal year 2004, $60,000,000.

''(7) FISCAL YEARS.—Paragraphs (3)(E), (3)(G), (3)(H), (4), and (6) shall apply to each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004.

''(8) RELATION TO OTHER LAWS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The terms and conditions of any policy or plan of insurance offered under this section that is reinsured by the Corporation shall not—

''(i) be subject to the jurisdiction of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission or the Securities and Exchange Commission; or

''(ii) be considered to be accounts, agreements (including any transaction that is of the character of, or is commonly known to the trade as, an 'option', 'privilege', 'indemnity', 'bid', 'offer', 'put', 'call', 'advance guaranty', or 'decline guaranty'), or transactions involving contracts of sale of a commodity for future delivery, traded or executed on a contract market for the purposes of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.).

''(B) EFFECT ON CFTC AND COMMODITY EXCHANGE ACT.—Nothing in this paragraph affects the jurisdiction of the Commodity Futures Trading Commission or the applicability of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1 et seq.) to any transaction conducted on a contract market under that Act by an approved insurance provider to offset the approved insurance provider's risk under a plan or policy of insurance under this section.''.

SEC. 202. RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CONTRACTING AUTHORITY.

Section 522 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (as added by section 201) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(b) RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT CONTRACTING AUTHORITY.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Subject to section 523(a), to obtain the best research and analysis concerning any significant issue pertaining to crop insurance, including outreach and education, pilot programs, or the development of a new plan of insurance, the Corporation may use only the authority provided by this section and funds made available under section 516(b)(2)(A) to—

''(A) contract on a competitive basis with qualified persons;

''(B) reimburse research costs associated with product development; and

''(C) reimburse costs associated with the reassessment and modification of plans of insurance.

''(2) ALTERNATIVE RATING METHODOLOGIES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall enter into contracts with qualified persons to study and develop alternative methodologies for rating plans of insurance for catastrophic risk protection and higher levels of additional coverage under subsections (b) and (c), respectively, of section 508, and rates for the plans of insurance, that take into account—

''(i) producers that elect not to participate in the Federal crop insurance program; and

''(ii) producers that elect to obtain only catastrophic risk protection.

''(B) PRIORITY.—The studies conducted under this paragraph shall provide priority to agricultural commodities with—

''(i) the largest average acreage nationwide; and

''(ii) the lowest percentage of producers that purchase additional coverage.

''(C) FUNDING.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall fund the studies conducted under this paragraph from funds in the insurance fund available under section 516(b)(2)(A).

''(ii) AMOUNT.—There are authorized for the studies conducted under this paragraph—

''(I) in the case of each of fiscal years 2001 and 2002, $1,000,0000; and

''(II) in the case of each of fiscal years 2003 and 2004, $250,000.

''(D) FISCAL YEARS.—This paragraph shall apply to each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004.

''(3) RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PRIORITIES.—The Corporation shall establish, as 1 of the highest research and development priorities of the Corporation, the development of a pasture, range, and forage program to promote land stewardship.

''(4) STUDY OF MULTIYEAR COVERAGE.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall contract with a qualified person to conduct a study to determine whether offering plans of insurance that provide coverage for multiple years would reduce fraud and abuse by persons that participate in the Federal crop insurance program.

''(B) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this section, the Corporation shall submit to the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate a report that describes the results of the study conducted under subparagraph (A).''.

SEC. 203. CHOICE OF RISK MANAGEMENT OPTIONS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 522 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (as amended by section 202) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(c) CHOICE OF RISK MANAGEMENT OPTIONS.—

''(1) DEFINITIONS.—In this subsection:

''(A) AGRICULTURAL COMMODITY.—The term 'agricultural commodity' means each agricultural commodity specified in section 518—

''(i) for which catastrophic risk protection or additional coverage is available under this title, other than solely this section; and

''(ii) that is selected by the Secretary in a manner that—

''(I) encourages the maximum number of participants in the program under this subsection;

''(II) provides a mixture of program, specialty, and regional crops;

''(III) gives consideration to agricultural commodities with low crop insurance participation rates; and

''(IV) results in not less than 15 percent of payments being made to producers in States in which—

''(aa) there is traditionally, and continues to be, a low level of Federal crop insurance participation and availability; and

''(bb) the Secretary of Agriculture determines that the State is underserved by Federal crop insurance.

''(B) APPLICABLE CROP.—The term 'applicable crop' means each of the 2002 through 2004 crops of an agricultural commodity produced by a producer.

''(C) APPLICABLE YEAR.—The term 'applicable year' means the year in which—

''(i) the applicable crop is produced on the farm of a producer; and

''(ii) the producer elects to receive a risk management payment or crop insurance premium subsidy under this subsection.

''(D) REGULATED EXCHANGE.—The term 'regulated exchange' means a board of trade (as defined in section 1a of the Commodity Exchange Act (7 U.S.C. 1a)) that is designated as a contract market under section 2(a)(1)(B) of that Act (7 U.S.C. 2a).

''(2) RISK MANAGEMENT PAYMENTS.—

''(A) OFFER.—The Corporation shall offer either to make either risk management payments or to provide crop insurance premium subsidies for each of the 2002 through 2004 crops of an agricultural commodity in accordance with subparagraph (B).

''(B) TERMS.—Not later than the sales closing date for obtaining coverage for an agricultural commodity for each applicable year, an eligible producer may elect to receive, with respect to the agricultural commodity—

''(i) a risk management payment under this subsection; or

''(ii) a crop insurance premium subsidy, including a catastrophic risk protection subsidy, under this subsection.

''(3) RISK MANAGEMENT PAYMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—In the case of a producer that elects to receive a risk management payment for an applicable crop of an agricultural commodity under this subsection, the Corporation shall make a risk management payment to the producer that covers the agricultural commodity produced by the producer for the applicable crop.

''(B) BASIS FOR PAYMENT.—The amount of a risk management payment shall be determined in accordance with paragraph (5).

''(4) QUALIFYING RISK MANAGEMENT PRACTICES.—To be eligible for a risk management payment under this subsection for an applicable crop of an agricultural commodity, a producer shall obtain or use for the applicable crop a qualifying risk management practice from at least 2 of the following categories:

''(A) CROP INSURANCE CATEGORY.—A producer may purchase coverage for an agricultural commodity under a private plan of insurance or a Federal plan of insurance that is not subsidized.

''(B) MARKETING RISK CATEGORY.—

''(i) FUTURE OR OPTION.—A producer may enter into a future or option for an agricultural commodity produced on the farm of the producer for the applicable crop on a regulated exchange that is (as determined by the Corporation)—

''(I)(aa) in the case of a future, at least 1 regulated futures contract (as defined in section 1256(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986); and

''(bb) in the case of an option, at least 1 listed option (as defined in section 1256(g) of that Code); and

''(II) a hedging transaction (as defined in section 1256(e)(2) of that Code) involving an agricultural commodity that is used to reduce production, price, or revenue risk.

''(ii) AGRICULTURAL TRADE OPTION.—A producer may purchase, on other than a regulated exchange, an agricultural trade option for the applicable crop of an agricultural commodity produced on the farm of the producer that (as determined by the Corporation)—

''(I) provides coverage for at least 10 percent of the estimated monetary value of the agricultural commodity;

''(II) is an equity option (as defined in section 1256(g) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986); and

''(III) is a hedging transaction (as defined in section 1256(e)(2) of that Code) involving an agricultural commodity that is used to reduce production, price, or revenue risk.

''(iii) CASH FORWARD OR OTHER MARKETING CONTRACT.—A producer may enter into a cash forward or other type of marketing contract for at least 20 percent of the monetary value of an agricultural commodity produced on the farm of the producer for the applicable crop, as determined by the Secretary.

''(iv) MARKETING THROUGH COOPERATIVES.—A producer may market at least 25 percent of an agricultural commodity produced by the producer through a cooperative that is owned by agricultural producers.

''(C) FINANCIAL RISK CATEGORY.—

''(i) TRUST.—A producer may make a deposit of an amount equal to at least 10 percent of the payments of the producer for the applicable year under the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7201 et seq.) into a trust authorized by statute for eligible farming businesses that may be established to accept tax deductible contributions.

''(ii) AGRICULTURAL MARKETING AND RISK MANAGEMENT EDUCATION.—A producer may attend and complete in the applicable year an agricultural marketing or risk management class or seminar approved by the Corporation.

''(iii) FINANCIAL RISK REDUCTION.—A producer may reduce farm financial risk by reducing debt in an amount that reduces leverage or by increasing liquidity, as determined by the Secretary.

''(iv) DIVERSIFICATION.—A producer may address production or financial risk by—

''(I) diversifying production on the farm of the producer by producing at least 1 additional commodity on the farm;

''(II) significantly increasing farm enterprise diversification in the applicable year, as determined by the Secretary;

''(III) maintaining an integrated farming system with a substantial degree of diversification, as determined by the Secretary; or

''(IV) implementing a transition to organic farming.

''(D) FARM RESOURCES RISK CATEGORY.—

''(i) CONSERVATION PRACTICES.—A producer may implement new or existing conservation practices consisting of—

''(I) nutrient management;

''(II) integrated pest management;

''(III) conservation tillage;

''(IV) conservation buffers; or

''(V) other conservation practices that are appropriate for the farm, as determined by the Secretary.

''(ii) AGRICULTURAL CONSERVATION MANAGEMENT PLAN.—A producer may develop a plan to mitigate financial risk associated with resource conservation through practices consisting of—

''(I) nutrient management;

''(II) integrated pest management;

''(III) soil erosion control;

''(IV) conservation buffers;

''(V) soil residue management;

''(VI) water quantity or quality management; or

''(VII) other conservation practices that are appropriate for the farm, as determined by the Secretary.

''(iii) AGRICULTURAL RESOURCE IMPROVEMENTS.—A producer may invest in the improvement or development of 1 or more of the following capital land improvements on the farm of the producer to reduce production risk:

''(I) Irrigation management.

''(II) Watershed management structures.

''(III) Planting trees for windbreaks or water quality.

''(IV) Soil quality management options.

''(V) Animal waste management structures.

''(VI) Other land improvements, as determined by the Secretary.

''(E) OTHER CATEGORY.—A producer may engage in any other risk management practice approved by the Secretary.

''(5) DETERMINATION OF RISK MANAGEMENT PAYMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall determine the amount of a risk management payment for an agricultural commodity produced on the farm of a producer for an applicable crop taking into consideration the expenditure by the producer on the risk management practices obtained or used by the producer.

''(B) MAXIMUM PAYMENT.—No payment shall be made in excess of an amount equal to the national average of the previous year's liability for all catastrophic risk protection policies.

''(C) FUNDING.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Subject to clause (ii), there are authorized to be expended to carry out this subsection from the insurance fund under section 516(a)(2)(C) not more than $500,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2002 through 2004.

''(ii) ANNUAL LIMITATION.—Not more than $200,000,000 may be expended in any fiscal year to carry out this subsection.

''(6) ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS.—

''(A) CERTIFICATION.—A producer shall submit to the crop insurance agent or approved insurance provider a risk management practices form that certifies, in accordance with standards prescribed by the Secretary, the qualifying risk management practices and associated costs that were obtained or used by the producer during the applicable year.

''(B) COMPLIANCE.—The Corporation may perform random audits of producers that obtain a risk management payment to ensure that the producers obtained or used the qualifying risk management practices described in the form.

''(C) VIOLATION OF TERMS OF RISK MANAGEMENT PAYMENT.—If a producer has accepted a risk management payment or crop insurance premium subsidy for an applicable year and the producer fails to comply with subparagraph (A), or to carry out a qualifying risk management option elected by the producer under paragraph (4), with respect to the applicable year, the producer—

''(i) shall refund to the Corporation an amount equal to the risk management payment; and

''(ii) may be subject to debarment from loans and payments for a period of not to exceed 5 years, as provided in section 506(n)(3)(B).

''(D) ASSIGNMENT AND SHARING OF BENEFITS.—

''(i) ASSIGNMENT OF BENEFITS.—Assignment of a benefit provided under this subsection shall be carried out as provided in section 8(g) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act (16 U.S.C. 590h(g)).

''(ii) NOTICE.—The producer making the assignment, or the assignee, shall provide the Corporation with notice, in such manner as the Corporation may require, of any assignment.

''(iii) SHARING OF BENEFITS.—The Corporation shall provide for the sharing of benefits under this subsection among all producers that are at risk in the production of an applicable crop on a fair and equitable basis.

''(7) FISCAL YEARS.—This subsection shall apply to each of fiscal years 2002 through 2004.''.

(b) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—Section 516(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(a)) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

''(1) DISCRETIONARY EXPENSES.—There are authorized to be appropriated for fiscal year 1999 and each subsequent fiscal year such sums as are necessary to cover—

''(A) the salaries and expenses of the Corporation; and

''(B) the expenses of approved insurance providers incurred in carrying out section 522(c).''; and

(2) in paragraph (2)—

(A) in subparagraph (A), by striking ''and'' at the end;

(B) in subparagraph (B), by striking the period at the end and inserting ''; and''; and

(C) by adding at the end the following:

''(C) risk management payments authorized under section 522(c) in an amount not to exceed $500,000,000 for the period of fiscal years 2002 through 2004, of which not more than $200,000,000 may be expended for any 1 fiscal year.''.

SEC. 204. OPTIONS PILOT PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 191 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7331) is amended—

(1) in the first sentence of subsection (a), by striking ''2002'' and inserting ''2004'';

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) in the first sentence, by striking ''100 counties, except that not more than 6'' and inserting ''300 counties, except that not more than 25''; and

(B) in the second sentence, by striking ''2002'' and inserting ''2004''; and

(3) in subsection (c)(2), by inserting before the semicolon the following: ''during any calendar year in which a county in which the farm of the producer is located is authorized to operate the pilot program''.

(b) FUNDING.—From amounts made available under section 516(a)(2)(C) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(a)(2)(C)) (as added by section 203(b)(2)(C)) for the choice of risk management options pilot program, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation shall transfer to the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out the amendments made by subsection (a) $27,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2002 through 2004.

SEC. 205. RISK MANAGEMENT INNOVATION AND COMPETITION PILOT PROGRAM.

Section 522 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (as amended by section 203(a)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(d) RISK MANAGEMENT INNOVATION AND COMPETITION.—

''(1) PURPOSE.—The purpose of the pilot program established under this subsection is to determine what incentives are necessary to encourage approved insurance providers to—

''(A) develop and offer innovative risk management products to producers;

''(B) rate premiums for risk management products; and

''(C) competitively market the risk management products.

''(2) ESTABLISHMENT.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall establish a pilot program under which approved insurance providers may propose for approval by the Board risk management products involving—

''(i) loss of yield or revenue insurance coverage for 1 or more commodities (including commodities that are not insurable under this title as of the date of enactment of this section, but excluding livestock);

''(ii) rates of premium for the risk management product; or

''(iii) underwriting systems for the risk management product.

''(B) SUBMISSION TO BOARD.—The Board shall review and approve a risk management product before the risk management product may be marketed under this subsection.

''(C) DETERMINATION BY BOARD.—The Board may approve a risk management product for subsidy and reinsurance under this title if the Board determines that—''(i) the interests of producers of commodities are adequately protected by the risk management product;

''(ii) premium rates charged to producers are actuarially appropriate (within the meaning of section 508(h)(3)(E));

''(iii) the underwriting system of the risk management product is appropriate and adequate;

''(iv) the proposed risk management product is reinsured under this title, is reinsured through private reinsurance, or is self-insured;

''(v) the size of the proposed pilot area is adequate;

''(vi) insurance protection against the risk covered by the proposed risk management product is not generally available from private plans of insurance that are not covered by this title; and

''(vii) such other requirements of this title as the Board determines should apply to the risk management product are met.

''(D) CONFIDENTIALITY.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—All information concerning a risk management product shall be considered to be confidential commercial or financial information for the purposes of section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code.

''(ii) STANDARD.—If information concerning a risk management product of an approved insurance provider could be withheld by the Secretary under the standard for privileged or confidential information pertaining to trade secrets and commercial or financial information under section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, the information shall not be released to the public.

''(3) MARKETING OF RISK MANAGEMENT PRODUCTS.—

''(A) DEFINITION OF ORIGINAL PROVIDER.—In this paragraph, the term 'original provider' means an approved insurance provider that submits a risk management product to the Board for approval under paragraph (2).

''(B) AUTHORITY TO MARKET.—If the Board approves a risk management product under paragraph (2), subject to subparagraph (C), only the original provider may market the risk management product.

''(C) FEE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—An approved insurance provider (other than the original provider) that desires to market a risk management product shall pay a fee to the original provider for the right to market the risk management product.

''(ii) AMOUNT.—The original provider shall determine the amount of the fee under clause (i).''.

SEC. 206. EDUCATION AND RESEARCH.

Section 522 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (as amended by section 205) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(e) EDUCATION AND RESEARCH.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation shall establish the programs described in paragraphs (2) and (3), respectively, for the 2001–2004 fiscal years, not to exceed the funding limitations established in paragraph (4).

''(2) EDUCATION AND INFORMATION.—The Corporation shall establish a program of education and information for States in which—

''(A) there is traditionally, and continues to be, a low level of Federal crop insurance participation and availability; and

''(B) the Secretary of Agriculture determines that the State is underserved by Federal crop insurance.

''(3) RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT.—The Corporation shall establish a program of research and development to develop new approaches to increasing participation in States in which—

''(A) there is traditionally, and continues to be, a low level of Federal crop insurance participation and availability; and

''(B) the Secretary of Agriculture determines that the State is underserved by Federal crop insurance.

''(4) FUNDING.—The following amounts shall be transferred from funds made available in section 516(a)(2)(C) for the Choice of Risk Management Options pilot program—

''(A) for the Education, Information and Insurance Provider Recruitmant program in paragraph (2), $10,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004.

''(B) for the Research and Development program in paragraph (3), $5,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004.''.

SEC. 207. CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.

(a) Section 508 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508) is amended—

(1) by striking subsection (m); and

(2) by redesignating subsection (n) as subsection (m).

(b) Section 516(b)(2)(A) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(b)(2)(A)) is amended by striking ''exceed $3,500,000 for each fiscal year.'' and inserting ''exceed—

''(i) in the case of each of fiscal years 2001 and 2002, $4,500,000;

''(ii) in the case of each of fiscal years 2003 and 2004, $3,750,000; and

''(iii) in the case of each subsequent fiscal year, $3,500,000.''.

(c) Section 518 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1518) is amended by striking ''subsection (a) or (m) of section 508 of this title'' and inserting ''section 508(a), 522, or 523''.

TITLE III—ADMINISTRATION

SEC. 301. BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF CORPORATION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 505 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1505) is amended by striking subsection (a) and inserting the following:

''(a) BOARD OF DIRECTORS.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The management of the Corporation shall be vested in a Board of Directors, subject to the general supervision of the Secretary.

''(2) COMPOSITION.—The Board shall consist of—

''(A) 4 members who are active agricultural producers with or without crop insurance, with 1 member appointed from each of the 4 regions of the United States (as determined by the Secretary);

''(B) 1 member who is active in the crop insurance business;

''(C) 1 member who is active in the reinsurance business;

''(D) the Under Secretary for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services;

''(E) the Under Secretary for Rural Development; and

''(F) the Chief Economist of the Department of Agriculture.

''(3) APPOINTMENT AND TERMS OF PRIVATE SECTOR MEMBERS.—The members of the Board described in subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C) of paragraph (2)—

''(A) shall be appointed by, and hold office at the pleasure of, the Secretary;

''(B) shall not be otherwise employed by the Federal Government;

''(C) shall be appointed to staggered 4-year terms, as determined by the Secretary; and

''(D) shall serve not more than 2 consecutive terms.

''(4) CHAIRPERSON.—The Board shall select a member of the Board described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C) of paragraph (2) to serve as Chairperson of the Board.

''(5) OFFICE OF RISK MANAGEMENT.—The Office of Risk Management shall provide assistance to the Board in developing, reviewing, and recommending—

''(A) new plans of insurance and pilot projects under this title that are proposed by the Office or by a private insurance provider;

''(B) terms of the Standard Reinsurance Agreement;

''(C) rates for plans of insurance under this title; and

''(D) other issues involved in the administration of Federal crop insurance, as requested by the Board.

''(6) EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR; STAFF.—

''(A) EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR.—An executive director appointed by the Secretary, with the concurrence of the Board, shall—

''(i) assist the Board, as provided in subparagraph (C); and

''(ii) report to the Secretary.

''(B) STAFF.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A staff of 4 individuals appointed by the Executive Director shall report to the Executive Director.

''(ii) QUALIFICATIONS.—An individual described in clause (i) (except the Executive Director) shall be knowledgeable and experienced in quantitative mathematics and actuarial rating.

''(C) FUNCTIONS.—The Executive Director and staff appointed under this paragraph shall—

''(i) assist the Board in reviewing and approving policies and materials with respect to plans of insurance or other materials authorized or submitted under section 508, 522, or 523;

''(ii) provide at least monthly reports to the Board on crop insurance issues, which shall be based on comments received from producers, approved insurance providers, and other sources that the Executive Director and staff consider appropriate;

''(iii) review policies and materials with respect to—

''(I) subsidized plans of insurance authorized under section 508; and

''(II) unsubsidized plans of insurance submitted to the Board under section 508(h);

''(iv) make recommendations to the Board with respect to approval of the policies and materials, including recommendations with respect to the disapproval of any policies and materials that contain terms or conditions that promote fraud;

''(v) make recommendations to the Board to encourage cooperation between United States attorneys, the Corporation, and approved insurance providers to minimize fraud in connection with an insurance plan or policy under this title;

''(vi) review and make recommendations to the Board with respect to methodologies for rating plans of insurance under this title; and

''(vii) perform such other functions as the Board considers appropriate.

''(D) FUNDING.—

''(i) INSURANCE FUND.—From amounts in the insurance fund under section 516(c)(1), effective for fiscal year 2001, $500,000 shall be available to pay the salaries and expenses of the Executive Director and staff appointed under this paragraph.

''(ii) SALARIES AND EXPENSES.—Subject to the availability of appropriations, the Risk Management Agency shall transfer $500,000 for fiscal year 2001, and $1,000,000 for each subsequent fiscal year, at the beginning of the fiscal year to the Executive Director for the salaries and expenses of the Executive Director and staff appointed under this paragraph.''.

(b) SUBMISSION OF POLICIES AND MATERIALS TO BOARD.—Section 508(h) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(h)) is amended—

(1) by striking paragraphs (1) through (4) and inserting the following:

''(1) IN GENERAL.—In addition to any standard forms or policies that the Board may require be made available to producers under subsection (c), a person may propose to the Board—

''(A) loss of yield or revenue insurance coverage on an individual, area, or a combination of individual and area basis, for 1 or more agricultural commodities;

''(B) rates of premium for a proposed or existing policy; and

''(C) underwriting systems for a proposed or existing policy.

''(2) SUBMISSION OF PROPOSALS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subparagraph (B) and paragraph (3), a proposal submitted to the Board under this subsection may be prepared without regard to the limitations of this title, including limitations—

''(i) concerning actuarial soundness;

''(ii) concerning levels of coverage;

''(iii) concerning rates of premium;

''(iv) that the price level for coverage for each insured commodity must equal the expected market price for the commodity as established by the Board; and

''(v) that an approved insurance provider shall provide coverage under a policy throughout a State for all commodities if the approved insurance provider elects to provide any coverage in the State.

''(B) MAXIMUM ALLOWABLE SUBSIDY.—The payment by the Corporation of a portion of the premium of the policy approved by the Board under this subsection may not exceed the amount that would otherwise be authorized under subsection (e).

''(3) STANDARDS.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Board shall approve a proposal under this subsection for subsidy and reinsurance if the Board finds that the proposal adequately ensures that—

''(i) the interests of producers of commodities are adequately protected;

''(ii) premiums charged to producers are actuarially appropriate;

''(iii) the underwriting system included in the proposal is appropriate and adequate; and

''(iv) the proposal is reinsured under this title, is reinsured through private reinsurance, or is self-insured;

''(B) RATES OF PREMIUM.—A proposed rate of premium (including the part of premium paid by the Corporation) shall be considered to be actuarially appropriate if the rate is sufficient to cover projected losses and expenses, a reasonable reserve, and the amount of operating and administrative expenses of the approved insurance provider determined under subsection (d)(2).

''(C) PROPOSED UNDERWRITING PLANS.—A proposed underwriting plan—

''(i) may be on an area or individual farm basis; and

''(ii) shall, at a minimum, specify factors such as yield history for the farm or region, soils and resource quality for the farm, and farm production practices.

''(D) REINSURANCE.—

''(i) FEDERAL REINSURANCE.—The Corporation shall, to the maximum extent practicable, make reinsurance available to an approved insurance provider under this subsection.

''(ii) PRIVATE OR FEDERAL REINSURANCE.—An approved insurance provider may—

''(I) obtain private reinsurance for the proposal;

''(II) obtain reinsurance for the proposal under this title; or

''(III) self-insure the proposal.

''(E) ACTUARIALLY APPROPRIATE.—The Board shall prescribe standards for determining whether premium rates are actuarially appropriate considering the risk inherent in the proposed product.

''(4) REVIEW AND APPROVAL BY BOARD.—With respect to any policy or other material submitted to the Board after October 1, 2000, under this subsection, the following guidelines shall apply:

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The policy or other material shall be reviewed by the Board in accordance with subparagraphs (C) and (D).

''(B) MULTIPLE INSURANCE AGREEMENTS.—The Corporation may enter into more than 1 reinsurance agreement simultaneously with the approved insurance provider to facilitate the offering of the new policy.

''(C) PROCEDURES FOR SUBMISSION AND REVIEW.—The Corporation shall promulgate regulations that establish procedures for the submission and review by the Board of proposals submitted to the Board under this subsection, including—

''(i) the standards applicable to a proposal under paragraph (3) (including documentation required to establish that a proposal satisfies the standards);

''(ii) procedures concerning the time limitations provided under this paragraph; and

''(iii) procedures that provide an applicant the opportunity to present the proposal to the Board in person.

''(D) REVIEW BY THE BOARD.—

''(i) PERIOD FOR APPROVAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a proposal submitted to the Board shall be considered to be approved unless the Board disapproves the proposal by the date that is 60 business days after the later of—

''(I) the date of submission of the completed proposal to the Board; or

''(II) the date on which the applicant provides to the Board notice of intent to modify the proposal under clause (ii)(IV).

''(ii) NOTICE OF DISAPPROVAL.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 15 days before the date on which the Board intends to announce disapproval of a proposal, the Board shall provide the applicant, by registered mail, with notice of intent to disapprove the proposal.

''(II) RIGHT TO MODIFY.—An applicant that is notified under subclause (I) may modify the proposal.

''(III) ORIGINAL APPLICATION.—For the purposes of this clause, any modified proposal shall be considered to be an original proposal.

''(IV) NOTICE OF INTENT TO MODIFY.—Not later than 5 business days after receipt of a notice under subclause (I), an applicant that intends to modify the proposal shall so notify the Board.

''(E) TIMING.—In establishing procedures under this subsection, the Board shall prescribe a reasonable deadline for the submission of proposals that approved insurance providers expect to market during the reinsurance year.

''(F) CONFIDENTIALITY.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—A proposal submitted to the Board under this subsection (including any information generated from the proposal) shall be considered to be confidential commercial or financial information for the purposes of section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code.

''(ii) STANDARD OF CONFIDENTIALITY.—Except as provided in clauses (iii) and (iv), if information concerning a proposal could be withheld by the Secretary under the standard for privileged or confidential information pertaining to trade secrets and commercial or financial information under section 552(b)(4) of title 5, United States Code, the information shall not be released to the public.

''(iii) EXCEPTION FOR PURCHASERS OF PLANS OF INSURANCE.—Clause (ii) shall not apply in the case of an approved insurance provider that elects to pay a fee to sell a plan of insurance developed by another provider under paragraph (5).

''(iv) APPROVED PROPOSALS.—In lieu of publication in the Federal Register, a general summary of the content of the proposal shall be made available to other approved insurance providers at the time at which the proposal is approved by the Board, consisting of a description of—

''(I) the identity of the approved insurance provider;

''(II) the coverage provided; and

''(III) the area to be covered by the approved proposal.'';

(2) by striking paragraphs (6), (8), and (10); and

(3) by redesignating paragraphs (7) and (9) as paragraphs (6) and (7), respectively.

(c) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 516(b)(1) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(b)(1)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (B), by striking ''; and'' and inserting a semicolon;

(2) in subparagraph (C), by striking the period at the end and inserting a semicolon; and

(3) by adding at the end the following:

''(D) the salaries and expenses of the Executive Director and staff appointed under section 505(a)(6) for fiscal year 2001, but not to exceed $500,000 for the fiscal year; and''.

SEC. 302. GOOD FARMING PRACTICES.

Section 508(a)(3) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)(3)) (as amended by section 103(d)) is amended in subparagraph (A)(iii) by inserting after ''good farming practices'' the following: '', including scientifically sound sustainable and organic farming practices''.

SEC. 303. SANCTIONS FOR PROGRAM NONCOMPLIANCE AND FRAUD.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 506 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1506) is amended by striking subsection (n) and inserting the following:

''(n) SANCTIONS FOR PROGRAM NONCOMPLIANCE AND FRAUD.—

''(1) FALSE INFORMATION.—A producer, agent, loss adjuster, approved insurance provider, or other person that willfully and intentionally provides any false or inaccurate information to the Corporation or to an approved insurance provider with respect to a policy or plan of insurance under this title may, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing on the record, be subject to 1 or more of the sanctions described in paragraph (3).

''(2) COMPLIANCE.—A person may, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing on the record, be subject to 1 or more of the sanctions described in paragraph (3) if the person is—

''(A) a producer, agent, loss adjuster, approved insurance provider, or other person that willfully and intentionally fails to comply with a requirement of the Corporation; or

''(B) an agent, loss adjuster, approved insurance provider, or other person (other than a producer) that willfully and intentionally fails to comply with a requirement of the Standard Reinsurance Agreement.

''(3) AUTHORIZED SANCTIONS.—If the Secretary determines that a person covered by this subsection has committed a material violation under paragraph (1) or (2), the following sanctions may be imposed:

''(A) CIVIL FINES.—A civil fine may be imposed for each violation in an amount not to exceed the greater of—

''(i) the amount of the pecuniary gain obtained as a result of the false or inaccurate information provided or the noncompliance with a requirement of this title; or

''(ii) $10,000.

''(B) DEBARMENT.—

''(i) PRODUCERS.—In the case of a violation committed by a producer, the producer may be disqualified for a period of up to 5 years from receiving any monetary or nonmonetary benefit provided under—

''(I) this title;

''(II) the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7201 et seq.), including the noninsured crop disaster assistance program under section 196 of that Act (7 U.S.C. 7333);

''(III) the Agricultural Act of 1949 (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.);

''(IV) the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.);

''(V) the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1281 et seq.);

''(VI) title XII of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3801 et seq.);

''(VII) the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921 et seq.); and

''(VIII) any law that provides assistance to a producer of an agricultural commodity affected by a crop loss or a decline in the prices of agricultural commodities.

''(ii) OTHER PERSONS.—In the case of a violation committed by an agent, loss adjuster, approved insurance provider, or other person (other than a producer), the violator may be disqualified for a period of up to 5 years from participating in any program, or receiving any benefit, under this title.

''(4) ASSESSMENT OF SANCTION.—The Secretary shall consider the gravity of the violation of the person covered by this subsection in determining—

''(A) whether to impose a sanction under this subsection; and

''(B) the amount of the sanction to be imposed.

''(5) DISCLOSURE OF SANCTIONS.—Each policy or plan of insurance under this title shall provide notice about the sanctions prescribed under paragraph (3) for willfully and intentionally—

''(A) providing false or inaccurate information to the Corporation or to an approved insurance provider; or

''(B) failing to comply with a requirement of the Corporation or the Standard Reinsurance Agreement.

''(6) INSURANCE FUND.—Any funds collected under this subsection shall be deposited into the insurance fund under section 516(c)(1).''.

(b) CONFORMING AMENDMENTS.—Section 516(c) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(c)) is amended by striking paragraph (1) and inserting the following:

''(1) IN GENERAL.—There is established the insurance fund, which shall include (to remain available without fiscal year limitation)—

''(A) premium income;

''(B) amounts made available under subsection (a)(2); and

''(C) civil fines collected under section 506(n)(3)(A).''.

SEC. 304. OVERSIGHT OF AGENTS AND LOSS ADJUSTERS.

Section 506(q) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1506(q)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(3) OVERSIGHT OF AGENTS AND LOSS ADJUSTERS.—The Corporation shall—

''(A) develop procedures for an annual review by an approved insurance provider of the performance of each agent and loss adjuster used by the approved insurance provider;

''(B) oversee the annual review conducted by each approved insurance provider; and

''(C) consult with each approved insurance provider regarding any remedial action that is determined necessary as a result of the annual review of an agent or loss adjuster.

''(4) COMPLIANCE REPORTS.—Not later than the end of each fiscal year, the Corporation shall submit, to the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives, the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate, and the Board, a report concerning compliance by approved insurance providers, agents, and loss adjusters with this title, including any recommendations for legislative or administrative changes that could further improve compliance.''.

SEC. 305. ADEQUATE COVERAGE FOR STATES.

Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) (as amended by section 107) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(9) ADEQUATE COVERAGE FOR STATES.—

''(A) DEFINITION OF ADEQUATELY SERVED.—In this paragraph, the term 'adequately served' means having a participation rate that is at least 50 percent of the national average participation rate.

''(B) REVIEW.—The Board shall review the plans of insurance that are offered by approved insurance providers under this title to determine if each State is adequately served by the plans of insurance.

''(C) REPORT.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 30 days after completion of the review under subparagraph (B), the Board shall submit to Congress a report on the results of the review.

''(ii) RECOMMENDATIONS.—The report shall include recommendations to increase participation in States that are not adequately served by the plans of insurance.''.

SEC. 306. RECORDS AND REPORTING.

(a) CONDITION OF OBTAINING COVERAGE.—Section 508(f)(3)(A) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(f)(3)(A)) is amended by striking ''provide,'' and all that follows through ''sought'' and inserting ''provide annually records acceptable to the Secretary regarding crop acreage, acreage yields, and production for each agricultural commodity insured under this title''.

(b) COORDINATION AND USE OF RECORDS AND REPORTS.—Section 506(h) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1506(h)) is amended—

(1) by striking ''The Corporation'' and inserting the following:

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation''; and

(2) by adding at the end the following:

''(2) COORDINATION AND USE OF RECORDS AND REPORTS.—

''(A) COORDINATION.—The Secretary shall ensure that recordkeeping and reporting requirements under this title and section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333) are coordinated by the Corporation and the Farm Service Agency—

''(i) to avoid duplication of records and reports;

''(ii) to streamline procedures involved with the submission of records and reports; and

''(iii) to enhance the accuracy of records and reports.

''(B) USE.—Records submitted under this title and section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333) shall be available to agencies and local offices of the Department, appropriate State and Federal agencies and divisions, and approved insurance providers for use in carrying out this title, that section, and other agricultural programs and related responsibilities.''.

SEC. 307. FEES FOR PLANS OF INSURANCE.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Section 508(h) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(h)) is amended by striking paragraph (5) and inserting the following:

''(5) FEES FOR PLANS OF INSURANCE.—

''(A) FEES FOR EXISTING PLANS OF INSURANCE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Effective beginning with the 2001 reinsurance year, if an approved insurance provider elects to sell a plan of insurance that was developed by another approved insurance provider and the plan of insurance was approved by the Board before January 1, 2000, the approved insurance provider that developed the plan of insurance shall have the right to receive a fee from the approved insurance provider that elects to sell the plan of insurance.

''(ii) AMOUNT.—The amount of the fee that is payable by an approved insurance provider for a plan of insurance under clause (i) shall be—

''(I) for each of the first 5 crop years that the plan is sold, $2.00 for each policy under the plan that is sold by the approved insurance provider;

''(II) for each of the next 3 crop years that the plan is sold, $1.00 for each policy under the plan that is sold by the approved insurance provider; and

''(III) for each crop year thereafter that the plan is sold, 50 cents for each policy under the plan that is sold by the approved insurance provider.

''(B) FEES FOR NEW PLANS OF INSURANCE.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—Effective beginning with the 2001 reinsurance year, if an approved insurance provider elects to sell a plan of insurance that was developed by another approved insurance provider, the plan of insurance was approved by the Board under this subsection on or after January 1, 2000, and the plan of insurance was not available at the time at which the plan of insurance was approved by the Board, the approved insurance provider that developed the plan of insurance shall have the right to receive a fee from the approved insurance provider that elects to sell the plan of insurance.

''(ii) AMOUNT.—

''(I) IN GENERAL.—Subject to subclause (II), the amount of the fee that is payable by an approved insurance provider for a plan of insurance under clause (i) shall be an amount that is—

''(aa) determined by the approved insurance provider that developed the plan; and

''(bb) approved by the Board.

''(II) APPROVAL.—The Board shall not approve the amount of a fee under clause (i) if the amount of the fee unnecessarily inhibits the use of the plan of insurance, as determined by the Board.

''(C) PAYMENTS.—The Corporation shall annually—

''(i) collect from an approved insurance provider the amount of any fees that are payable by the approved insurance provider under subparagraphs (A) and (B); and

''(ii) credit any fees that are payable to an approved insurance provider under subparagraphs (A) and (B).

''(D) EXCEPTIONS.—In the case of a policy developed by an approved insurance provider that does not conduct business in a State—

''(i) the approved policy may be marketed in the State by another approved insurance provider if the approved insurance provider marketing the policy pays any fee for marketing the policy imposed by the developing provider; and

''(ii) the developing provider shall not deny payment of a fee by another provider to maintain full marketing rights of the approved policy.''.

(b) FUNDING.—Section 516 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516) (as amended by sections 301(c) and 303(b)) is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)(1), by adding at the end the following:

''(E) payment of fees in accordance with section 508(h)(5)(C).''; and

(2) in subsection (c)(1)(A), by inserting ''and fees'' after ''premium income''.

SEC. 308. LIMITATION ON DOUBLE INSURANCE.

Subsection (m) of section 508 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508) (as redesignated by section 207(a)(2)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(3) LIMITATION ON DOUBLE INSURANCE.—The Corporation may offer plans of insurance or reinsurance for only 1 agricultural commodity produced on specific acreage during a crop year, unless—

''(A) there is an established practice of double-cropping in an area, as determined by the Corporation;

''(B) the additional plan of insurance is offered with respect to an agricultural commodity that is customarily double-cropped in the area; and

''(C) the producer has a history of double cropping or the specific acreage has historically been double-cropped.''.

SEC. 309. SPECIALTY CROPS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) (as amended by sections 201 through 203) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''SEC. 523. SPECIALTY CROPS.

''(a) RESEARCH REGARDING THE DEVELOPMENT OF NEW OR REVISED CROP INSURANCE POLICIES.—To encourage the development of new or revised crop insurance policies and other materials for specialty crops by qualified private entities, and the submission of those insurance policies and other materials to the Corporation under section 508(h), the Specialty Crops Coordinator may—

''(1) make grants on a competitive basis for the research and development of plans of insurance for underserved specialty crops;

''(2) reimburse research costs associated with product development; and

''(3) enter into contracts on a competitive basis for the research and development of plans of insurance for underserved specialty crops.

''(b) PARTNERSHIPS FOR DEVELOPMENT OF RISK MANAGEMENT TOOLS FOR SPECIALTY CROPS.—

''(1) PURPOSE.—The purpose of this subsection is to authorize the Specialty Crops Coordinator, on behalf of the Corporation, to enter into partnerships with qualified public and private entities for the purpose of increasing the availability of risk management tools for producers of specialty crops.

''(2) AUTHORITY.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—For each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004, the Corporation may use not more than $20,000,000 from funds in the insurance fund under section 516(c)(1) to enter into partnerships with the Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service, the Agricultural Research Service, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and other appropriate public and private entities with demonstrated capabilities in developing and implementing risk management and marketing options for specialty crops.

''(B) EXCLUSION.—Amounts necessary to carry out subparagraph (A) shall not be counted toward the limitation on research and development expenses established in section 516(b)(2)(A).

''(3) OBJECTIVES.—The Corporation may enter into a partnership under this subsection to—

''(A) enhance the notice, and timeliness of notice of weather conditions, that could negatively affect specialty crop yields, quality, and final product use in order to allow producers to take preventive actions to increase end-product profitability and marketability and to reduce the possibility of crop insurance claims;

''(B) develop a multifaceted approach to pest management to decrease inputs, decrease the development of pest resistance, and increase the effectiveness of pest prevention applications;

''(C) develop a multifaceted approach to fertilization to decrease inputs, decrease excessive nutrient loading to the environment, and increase application efficiency;

''(D) develop or improve techniques for planning, breeding, growing, maintaining, harvesting, storage, and shipping that will address quality and quantity challenges for specialty crops and livestock associated with year-to-year and regional variations;

''(E) provide assistance to State foresters or equivalent officials for the prescribed use of burning on private forest land for the prevention, control, and suppression of fire; and

''(F) develop other risk management tools that specialty crop producers can use to further increase their economic and production stability.

''(c) TIME PERIODS FOR PURCHASE OF COVERAGE FOR SPECIALTY CROPS.—

''(1) SALES CLOSING DATE.—The sales closing date for obtaining coverage for a specialty crop under this title may not expire before the end of the 120-day period beginning on the date of the final release of materials for policies from the Risk Management Agency and the Specialty Crops Coordinator.

''(2) PURCHASE DURING INSURANCE PERIOD.—A producer of a specialty crop may purchase new coverage or increase coverage levels for the specialty crop at any time during the insurance period, subject to a 30-day waiting period and an inspection by the insurance provider to verify acceptability by the insurance provider, if the Corporation determines that the risk associated with the crop can be adequately rated.

''(d) STUDIES OF NEW SPECIALTY CROP INSURANCE POLICIES.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Corporation and the Specialty Crops Coordinator authorized under section 507(g) shall jointly conduct studies of the feasibility of developing new insurance policies for specialty crops, including policies based on the cost of production or adjusted gross income, quality-based policies, or an intermediate program with a higher coverage and cost than the catastrophic risk protection offered on the date of enactment of this section.

''(2) SUBMISSION OF RESULTS.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this section, and annually thereafter, the Corporation and the Specialty Crops Coordinator shall submit to Congress a report containing the results of the studies required under this subsection.

''(e) FISCAL YEARS.—Subsections (b) and (c) shall apply to each of fiscal years 2001 through 2004.''.

(b) REPORT ON COVERAGE OF NEW AND SPECIALTY CROPS AND METHOD FOR PROVISION OF CATASTROPHIC RISK PROTECTION.—Not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Agriculture shall submit to the President, the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate a report assessing—

(1)(A) the progress made by the Department of Agriculture in expanding crop insurance coverage for new and specialty crops; and

(B) the plans of the Department to continue to expand coverage for additional crops; and

(2)(A) whether provision of catastrophic risk protection by private sector insurance providers—

(i) has resulted in a uniform quality of risk protection services in all regions of the United States; and

(ii) has fulfilled the goal of increased participation in the Federal crop insurance program, particularly in States with traditionally low crop insurance participation rates and States with a high proportion of specialty crops; and

(B) whether, particularly in States described in subparagraph (A)(ii), the Secretary should resume direct provision of catastrophic risk protection and performance of loss adjustment functions through local offices of the Department.

SEC. 310. FEDERAL CROP INSURANCE IMPROVEMENT COMMISSION.

Section 515 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1515) is amended to read as follows:

''SEC. 515. FEDERAL CROP INSURANCE IMPROVEMENT COMMISSION.

''(a) DEFINITION.—In this section the term 'Commission' means the Federal Crop Insurance Improvement Commission established by subsection (b).

''(b) ESTABLISHMENT OF COMMISSION.—There is established a Commission to be known as the 'Federal Crop Insurance Improvement Commission'.

''(c) MEMBERSHIP.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Commission shall be composed of the following 15 members:

''(A) The Under Secretary for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services of the Department.

''(B) The manager of the Corporation.

''(C) The Chief Economist of the Department or a person appointed by the Chief Economist.

''(D) An employee of the Office of Management and Budget, appointed by the Director of the Office of Management and Budget.

''(E) A representative of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners, experienced in insurance regulation, appointed by the Secretary.

''(F) Representatives of 4 approved insurance providers or related organizations that provide advisory or analytical support to the crop insurance industry, appointed by the Secretary.

''(G) 2 agricultural economists from academia, appointed by the Secretary.

''(H) 4 representatives of major farm organizations and farmer-owned cooperatives, appointed by the Secretary.

''(2) TIME OF APPOINTMENT.—The members of the Commission shall be appointed not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of the Risk Management for the 21st Century Act.

''(3) TERM.—A member of the Commission shall serve for the life of the Commission.

''(d) DUTIES.—The Commission shall review and make recommendations concerning the following issues:

''(1) The extent to which approved insurance providers should bear the risk of loss for federally subsidized crop insurance.

''(2) Whether the Corporation should—

''(A) continue to provide financial assistance for the benefit of agricultural producers by reinsuring coverage written by approved insurance providers; or

''(B) provide assistance in another form, such as by acting as an excess insurer.

''(3) The extent to which development of new insurance products should be undertaken by the private sector, and how to encourage such development.

''(4) How to focus research and development of new insurance products to include the development of—

''(A) new types of products such as combined area and yield and whole farm revenue coverages; and

''(B) insurance products for specialty crops.

''(5) The use by the Corporation of private sector resources under section 507(c).

''(6) The progress of the Corporation in reducing administrative and operating costs of approved insurance providers under section 508(k)(5).

''(7) The identification of methods, and of organizational, statutory, and structural changes, to enhance and improve—

''(A) delivery of reasonably priced crop insurance products to agricultural producers;

''(B) loss adjustment procedures;

''(C) good farming practices;

''(D) the establishment of premiums; and

''(E) compliance with this title (including regulations issued under this title, the terms and conditions of insurance coverage, and adjustments of losses).

''(e) COMMISSION OPERATIONS.—

''(1) CHAIRPERSON; VOTING.—The Under Secretary for Farm and Foreign Agricultural Services of the Department of Agriculture shall—

''(A) serve as Chairperson of the Commission; and

''(B) vote in the case of a tie.

''(2) MEETINGS.—The Commission shall meet regularly, but not less than 6 times per year.

''(3) DISCLOSURE.—To the extent that the records, papers, or other documents received, prepared, or maintained by the Commission are subject to public disclosure, the documents shall be available for public inspection and copying at the Office of Risk Management.

''(f) FINAL REPORT.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 2 years after the date of enactment of the Risk Management for the 21st Century Act, the Commission shall submit to the Committee on Agriculture of the House of Representatives and the Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry of the Senate a final report on the review under subsection (d).

''(2) COPIES.—The Commission shall provide copies of the final report to—

''(A) the Secretary; and

''(B) the Board.

''(3) INTERIM REPORTS.—To expedite completion of the work of the Commission, the Commission may submit 1 or more interim reports or reports on 1 or more of the issues to be reviewed.

''(g) TERMINATION.—The Commission shall terminate on the earlier of—

''(1) 60 days after the date on which the Commission submits the final report under subsection (f); or

''(2) September 30, 2004.

''(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as are necessary to carry out this section.''.

SEC. 311. HIGHLY ERODIBLE LAND AND WETLAND CONSERVATION.

(a) HIGHLY ERODIBLE LAND.—Section 1211(3) of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3811(3)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (C), by striking ''or'' at the end;

(2) in subparagraph (D), by striking the period at the end and inserting ''; or''; and

(3) by adding at the following:

''(E) crop or revenue insurance, or a risk management payment, under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq).''.

(b) WETLAND CONSERVATION.—Section 1221(b)(3) of the Food Security Act of 1985 (16 U.S.C. 3821(b)(3)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(E) Crop or revenue insurance, or a risk management payment, under the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq).''.

SEC. 312. PROJECTED LOSS RATIO.

Section 506(o) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1506(o)) is amended by striking paragraph (2) and inserting the following:

''(2) PROJECTED LOSS RATIO.—The Corporation shall take such actions, including the establishment of adequate premiums, as are necessary to improve the actuarial soundness of Federal multiperil crop insurance made available under this title to achieve—

''(A) during the period beginning on October 1, 1998, and ending with the 2001 crop year, an overall projected loss ratio of not greater than 1.075; and

''(B) beginning with the 2002 crop year, an overall projected loss ratio of not greater than 1.0.''.

SEC. 313. COMPLIANCE WITH STATE LICENSING REQUIREMENTS.

Section 508 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508) (as amended by section 207(a)(1)) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(n) COMPLIANCE WITH STATE LICENSING REQUIREMENTS.—Any person that sells or solicits the purchase of a policy or plan of insurance or adjusts losses under this title, including catastrophic risk protection, in any State shall be licensed and otherwise qualified to do business in that State, and shall comply with all State regulation of such sales and solicitation activities (including commission and anti-rebating regulations), as required by the appropriate insurance regulator of the State in accordance with the relevant insurance laws of the State.''.

TITLE IV—MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

SEC. 401. IMPROVED RISK MANAGEMENT EDUCATION.

Title IV of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 (7 U.S.C. 7621 et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following:

''SEC. 409. IMPROVED RISK MANAGEMENT EDUCATION FOR AGRICULTURAL PRODUCERS.

''(a) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

''(1) CENTER.—The term 'Center' means a Risk Management Education Coordinating Center established under subsection (c)(1).

''(2) LAND-GRANT COLLEGE.—The term 'land-grant college' means any 1862 Institution, 1890 Institution, or 1994 Institution.

''(b) PROGRAM.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall carry out a program to improve the risk management skills of agricultural producers, including the owners and operators of small farms, limited resource producers, and other targeted audiences, to make informed risk management decisions.

''(2) PURPOSE.—The program shall be designed to assist a producer to develop the skills necessary—

''(A) to understand the financial health and capability of the producer's operation to withstand price fluctuations, adverse weather, environmental impacts, diseases, family crises, and other risks;

''(B) to understand marketing alternatives, how various commodity markets work, the use of crop insurance products, and the price risk inherent in various markets; and

''(C) to understand legal, governmental, environmental, and human resource issues that impact the producer's operation.

''(c) COORDINATING CENTERS.—

''(1) ESTABLISHMENT AND PURPOSE.—The Secretary shall establish a Risk Management Education Coordinating Center in each of 5 regions of the United States (as determined by the Secretary) to administer and coordinate the provision of risk management education to producers and their families under the program in that region.

''(2) SITE SELECTION.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall locate the Center for a region at—

''(i) a risk management education coordinating office of the Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service that is in existence at a land-grant college on the date of enactment of this section; or

''(ii) an appropriate alternative land-grant college in the region approved by the Secretary.

''(B) LAND-GRANT COLLEGES.—To be selected as the location for a Center, a land-grant college must have the demonstrated capability and capacity to carry out the priorities, funding distribution requirements, and reporting requirements of the program.

''(d) COORDINATING COUNCIL.—

''(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—Each Center shall establish a coordinating council to assist in establishing the funding and program priorities for the region for which the Center was established.

''(2) MEMBERSHIP.—Each council shall consist of a minimum of 5 members, including representatives from—

''(A) public organizations;

''(B) private organizations;

''(C) agricultural producers; and

''(D) the Regional Service Offices of the Risk Management Agency in that region.

''(e) CENTER ACTIVITIES.—

''(1) INSTRUCTION FOR RISK MANAGEMENT PROFESSIONALS.—Each Center shall coordinate the offering of intensive risk management instructional programs, involving classroom learning, distant learning, and field training work, for professionals who work with agricultural producers, including professionals who are—

''(A) extension specialists;

''(B) county extension faculty members;

''(C) private service providers; and

''(D) other individuals involved in providing risk management education.

''(2) EDUCATION PROGRAMS FOR PRODUCERS.—Each Center shall coordinate the provision of educational programs, including workshops, short courses, seminars, and distant-learning modules, to improve the risk management skills of agricultural producers and their families.

''(3) DEVELOPMENT AND DISSEMINATION OF MATERIALS.—Each Center shall coordinate the efforts to develop new risk management education materials and the dissemination of such materials.

''(4) COORDINATION OF RESOURCES.—

''(A) IN GENERAL.—Each Center shall make use of available and emerging risk management information, materials, and delivery systems, after careful evaluation of the content and suitability of the information, materials, and delivery systems for producers and their families.

''(B) USE OF AVAILABLE EXPERTISE.—To assist in conducting the evaluation under subparagraph (A), each Center shall use available expertise from land-grant colleges, nongovernmental organizations, government agencies, and the private sector.

''(f) GRANTS.—

''(1) SPECIAL GRANTS.—Each Center shall reserve a portion of the funds provided under this section to make special grants to land-grant colleges and private entities in the region to conduct 1 or more of the activities described in subsection (e).

''(2) COMPETITIVE GRANTS.—Each Center shall reserve a portion of the funds provided under this section to conduct a competitive grant program to award grants to both public and private entities that have a demonstrated capability to conduct 1 or more of the activities described in subsection (e).

''(g) NATIONAL AGRICULTURE RISK EDUCATION LIBRARY.—The National Agriculture Risk Education Library shall—

''(1) serve as a central agency for the coordination and distribution of risk management educational materials; and

''(2) provide a means for the electronic delivery of risk management information and materials.

''(h) FUNDING PROVISIONS.—

''(1) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There is authorized to be appropriated to carry out this section $30,000,000 for fiscal year 2001 and each subsequent fiscal year.

''(2) DISTRIBUTION.—

''(A) NATIONAL AGRICULTURE RISK EDUCATION LIBRARY.—For each fiscal year, of the funds made available to carry out this section, 2.5 percent shall be distributed to the National Agriculture Risk Education Library.

''(B) CENTERS.—For each fiscal year, the remainder of the funds made available to carry out this section shall be distributed equally among the Centers.

''(C) ADMINISTRATION BY LAND-GRANT COLLEGES.—The land-grant college at which a Center is located shall be responsible for administering and disbursing funds described in subparagraph (B), in accordance with applicable State and Federal financial guidelines, for activities authorized by this section.

''(3) PROHIBITION ON CONSTRUCTION.—

''(A) LOCATION OF CENTERS.—Each Center shall be located in a facility in existence on the date of enactment of this section.

''(B) PROHIBITION.—Funds provided under this section shall not be used to carry out construction of any facility.

''(i) EVALUATION.—The Secretary, acting through the Cooperative State Research, Education, and Extension Service, shall evaluate the activities of each Center to determine whether the risk management skills of agricultural producers and their families are improved as a result of their participation in educational activities financed using funds made available under subsection (h).''.

SEC. 402. SENSE OF THE SENATE REGARDING THE FEDERAL CROP INSURANCE PROGRAM.

It is the sense of the Senate that—

(1) farmer-owned cooperatives play a valuable role in achieving the purposes of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) by—

(A) encouraging producer participation in the Federal crop insurance program;

(B) improving the delivery system for crop insurance; and

(C) helping to develop new and improved insurance products;

(2) the Risk Management Agency, through its regulatory activities, should encourage efforts by farmer-owned cooperatives to promote appropriate risk management strategies among their membership;

(3) partnerships between approved insurance providers and farmer-owned cooperatives provide opportunity for agricultural producers to obtain needed insurance coverage on a more competitive basis and at a lower cost;

(4) the Risk Management Agency is following an appropriate regulatory process to ensure the continued participation by farmer-owned cooperatives in the delivery of crop insurance;

(5) efforts by the Risk Management Agency to finalize regulations that would incorporate the currently approved business practices of cooperatives participating in the Federal crop insurance program should be commended; and

(6) not later than 180 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation should complete promulgation of the proposed rule entitled ''General Administrative Regulations; Premium Reductions; Payment of Rebates, Dividends, and Patronage Refunds; and Payments to Insured-Owned and Record-Controlling Entities'', published by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation on May 12, 1999 (64 Fed. Reg. 25464), in a manner that—

(A) effectively responds to comments received from the public during the rulemaking process;

(B) provides an effective opportunity for farmer-owned cooperatives to assist the members of the cooperatives to obtain crop insurance and participate most effectively in the Federal crop insurance program;

(C) incorporates the currently approved business practices of farmer-owned cooperatives participating in the Federal crop insurance program; and

(D) protects the interests of agricultural producers.

SEC. 403. SENSE OF CONGRESS ON RALLY FOR RURAL AMERICA AND RURAL CRISIS.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress finds that—

(1) on March 20–21, 2000, thousands of rural citizens, working families, and those representing the environmental and religious communities traveled to Washington, D.C., to participate in the Rally for Rural America;

(2) a broad coalition of over 30 farm, environmental, and labor organizations that are concerned that rural America has been left behind during this time of prosperity participated in organizing the Rally for Rural America;

(3) although the majority of America has reaped the benefits of the strong economy, rural Americans are facing their toughest times in recent memory;

(4) the record low prices on farms and ranches of the United States have rippled throughout rural America causing rural communities to face numerous challenges, including—

(A) a depressed farm economy;

(B) an escalation of mergers and acquisitions;

(C) a loss of businesses and jobs on rural main street;

(D) erosion of health care and education;

(E) a decline in infrastructure;

(F) a reduction of capital investments; and

(G) a loss of independent family farmers;

(5) the Rally for Rural America urged Congress to reform the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act of 1996 (Public Law 104–127) to formulate rural policies in a manner that will alleviate the agricultural price crisis, ensure fair and open markets, and encourage fair trade;

(6) thousands of rural citizens have advocated farm policies that include—

(A) a strong safety net for all agricultural producers;

(B) competitive markets;

(C) an investment in rural education and health care;

(D) protection of natural resources for the next generation;

(E) a safe and secure food supply;

(F) revitalization of our farm families and rural communities; and

(G) fair and equitable implementation of government programs;

(7) because agricultural commodity prices are so far below the costs of production, eventually family farmers will no longer be able to pay their bills or provide for their families;

(8) anti-competitive practices and concentration are a cause of concern for American agriculture;

(9) rural America needs a fair and well reasoned farm policy, not unpredictable and inequitable disaster payments;

(10) disaster payments do not provide for real, meaningful change; and

(11) the economic conditions and pressures in rural America require real change.

(b) SENSE OF CONGRESS.—It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) the participants in the Rally for Rural America are commended and their pleas have been heard; and

(2) Congress should respond with a clear and strong message to the participants and rural families that Congress is committed to giving the crisis in agriculture, and all of rural America, its full attention by reforming rural policies in a manner that will—

(A) alleviate the agricultural price crisis;

(B) ensure competitive markets;

(C) invest in rural education and health care;

(D) protect our natural resources for future generations; and

(E) ensure a safe and secure food supply for all.

TITLE V—EFFECTIVE DATES; TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY

SEC. 501. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c)(2) and section 502(a), this Act and the amendments made by this Act take effect on the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) DELAYED OBLIGATION.—The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation shall not obligate funds to carry out subsection (c)(2) and the amendments made by sections 102, 103, 105, 106, 201 through 207, 309, and 310 until October 1, 2000.

(c) REGULATIONS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Agriculture shall promulgate regulations to carry out this Act and the amendments made by this Act.

(2) INDEMNITY PAYMENTS FOR CERTAIN PRODUCERS OF DURUM WHEAT.—

(A) IN GENERAL.—Except as otherwise provided in this paragraph, notwithstanding section 508(c)(5) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(c)(5)), a producer of durum wheat that purchased a 1999 Crop Revenue Coverage wheat policy by the sales closing date prescribed in the actuarial documents in the county where the policy was sold shall receive an indemnity payment in accordance with the policy.

(B) BASE AND HARVEST PRICES.—The base price and harvest price under the policy shall be determined in accordance with the Commodity Exchange Endorsement for wheat published by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation on July 14, 1998 (63 Fed. Reg. 37829).

(C) REINSURANCE.—Subject to subparagraph (B), notwithstanding section 508(c)(5) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(c)(5)), the Corporation shall provide reinsurance with respect to the policy in accordance with the Standard Reinsurance Agreement.

(D) VOIDING OF BULLETIN.—Bulletin MGR–99–004, issued by the Administrator of the Risk Management Agency of the Department of Agriculture, is void.

(E) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This paragraph takes effect on October 1, 2000.

SEC. 502. TERMINATION OF AUTHORITY.

(a) EFFECTIVE DATE.—This section and the amendments made by this section take effect on September 30, 2004.

(b) REPEAL.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The amendments made by sections 102, 103, 105, 106, 203(b), and 310 are repealed.

(2) APPLICABILITY.—The Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1501 et seq.) and section 196 of the Agricultural Market Transition Act (7 U.S.C. 7333) shall be applied and administered as if the provisions described in paragraph (1) had not been enacted.

(3) CONFORMING AMENDMENT.—Section 508(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1508(a)) is amended by redesignating paragraph (8) (as added by section 107) and paragraph (9) (as added by section 305) as paragraph (7) and paragraph (8), respectively.

(c) PILOT PROGRAMS.—Section 522 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (as added by sections 201, 202, 203, 205, and 206) is amended—

(1) in subsection (a)—

(A) in paragraph (3)—

(i) in subparagraph (D), by adding ''and'' at the end;

(ii) by striking subparagraphs (E) and (G);

(iii) in subparagraph (F), by striking ''; and'' and inserting a period; and

(iv) by redesignating subparagraph (F) as subparagraph (E);

(B) by striking paragraphs (4), (6), and (7); and

(C) by redesignating paragraphs (5) and (8) as paragraphs (4) and (5), respectively;

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by striking paragraph (2); and

(B) by redesignating paragraphs (3) and (4) as paragraphs (2) and (3), respectively; and

(3) by striking subsections (c), (d), and (e).

(d) BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF CORPORATION.—Section 516(b)(1) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(b)(1)) (as amended by sections 301(c) and 307(b)(1)) is amended—

(1) in subparagraph (C), by inserting ''and'' after the semicolon;

(2) by striking subparagraph (D); and

(3) by redesignating subparagraph (E) as subparagraph (D).

(e) SPECIALTY CROPS.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—Section 523 of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (as added by section 309(a)) is amended—

(A) in subsection (b)—

(i) by striking paragraph (2); and

(ii) by redesignating paragraph (3) as paragraph (2);

(B) by striking subsections (c) and (e); and

(C) by redesignating subsection (d) as subsection (c).

(2) REPORT.—Section 309 of this Act is amended by striking subsection (b).

(f) FUNDING.—Neither the Secretary of Agriculture nor the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation may use the funds of the insurance fund under section 516(c)(1) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act (7 U.S.C. 1516(c)(1)), the funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation, or funds under any provision of law to carry out a provision repealed or struck by this section.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

There being no objection, the Presiding Officer (L. CHAFEE) appointed Mr. LUGAR, Mr. HELMS, Mr. COCHRAN, Mr. COVERDELL, Mr. ROBERTS, Mr. HARKIN, Mr. LEAHY, Mr. CONRAD, and Mr. KERREY conferees on the part of the Senate.

COMMENDATION OF STAFF

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, I commend the staff of Senator ROBERTS, particularly Mike Seyfert; Senator KERREY's staff, Bev Paul; Senator HARKIN's staff, Mark Halverson and Stephanie Mercier; Senator GRASSLEY's staff, Mark Reisinger; my own staff, Andy Morton, Michael Knipe, Chimene Dupler, Bob Sturm, Dave Johnson, Keith Luse, and Terri Nintemann; Senator COCHRAN's staff, Hunt Shipman; and Senator DASCHLE's staff, Zabrae Valentine, who made very instrumental contributions to this bill.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I want to thank the Chairman for his leadership and work with all of us on the Agriculture Committee and in the Senate as a whole to bring this bill along to this point. It is a good bill and it will provide a lot of needed help to our nation's farmers and rural economy. I also want to thank and congratulate my colleagues, especially Senator KERREY and Senator ROBERTS, for their fine efforts. I too express my gratitude for the hard work and dedication of all the staff as mentioned by Chairman LUGAR, who have contributed to crafting this important piece of legislation.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I congratulate Senator LUGAR, the chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, and Senator ROBERTS, on the bipartisan work that was done on this legislation. While it didn't get a 100-percent vote, I think they should be commended for keeping their commitment made last fall to get crop insurance to the floor. Senator LUGAR, in his usual way, has worked very hard to bring all divergent views together. I thank the Senator for this important legislation.

Mr. DASCHLE. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. LOTT. I am happy to yield to the Senator.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I associate myself with the remarks of the majority leader. Senator LUGAR, in the committee as well as on the floor, demonstrated once again why he is admired on both sides of the aisle as a leader in agriculture. This was not easy for him, beginning last year. He maneuvered the committee and brought the Senate to a point where we successfully completed our work.

I congratulate the Senator, and especially I congratulate Senators ROBERTS, KERREY, CONRAD, and others who had a role to play in bringing the Senate to this point. Our thanks to all Senators for their cooperation. I am grateful for the opportunity to have completed this work.

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, let me add, thanks, too, to Senator KERREY and others involved on the Democratic side of the aisle. It was truly a bipartisan effort. I think they should be congratulated. I hope when it comes out of conference it will have 100-percent support.

SENATOR TED STEVENS—ALASKAN OF THE CENTURY

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I wish to comment at this time about one of the most effective and respected Senators in this Chamber. He can be ferocious in trying to get his work done, but he always winds up doing it with a smile on his face. He quite often acts as a typical trial lawyer making his case against the opposing counsel or pleading his case to the jury. Of course, we enjoy referring to him sometimes as the ''Tasmanian devil.'' When he comes to the Senate floor wearing his Tasmanian devil tie, look out; he is ready to do the people's business in quick order.

For more than 30 years, the Alaskan of the Year Committee has named an Alaskan of the year who has significantly affected the character and the development of the 49th State. Thus, it is no surprise that in 1974 Senator STEVENS, along with the newspaper publisher, was named ''Alaskan of the Year.'' Recently, the Alaskan of the Year Committee set out to name the Alaskan of the Century.

I inquired of the Senator from Alaska, which century? The past century for past favors or the present century for expected ones? With the usual sense of humor, he deferred to maybe the past century.

Mr. President, 88 names of great Alaskans appeared on the first ballot. The second ballot contained 12; the third ballot contained 3. On the final ballot, Alaska's senior Senator, who has served so well in this body, TED STEVENS, was named ''Alaskan of the Century.''

What a great honor. On Saturday night, in Anchorage, AK, surrounded by family and friends, this great honor, Alaskan of the Century, will be conferred on Senator STEVENS. Senator STEVENS has had a role in every significant event in Alaska for the last half century, whether it be as a youth working for Alaskan statehood or his mastery in crafting and shepherding through Congress the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act, landmark legislation for which there is no other precedent.

It would take all day to list the great many things Senator STEVENS has accomplished during his 31 years serving in the Senate, and even longer to list all of his friends. Mr. President, not only is TED STEVENS a great Senator and a great Alaskan, he is, above all, a loyal friend to all who know him. Even in the heat of battle, when it gets tough around here, in the next minute or the next hour, he is lovingly trying to do something to help his previous opponent, whether it be in the leadership of his own party or across the aisle in the other party.

His 6 children and 10 grandchildren, and his wife, Catherine, who is special in her own way, know for sure that Senator TED STEVENS, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, senior Senator for the 49th State, is indeed worthy of the honor he will receive this week as Alaskan of the Century.

His service in the military, his service in that State, his service of bringing that State into the Union, his service as a Senator, and his service as chairman of the Appropriations Committee is truly unique. I offer my personal congratulations. I know I speak for all of my colleagues in applauding TED STEVENS.

I don't know how in the world we would even pick a Mississippian of the century. There have been so many great ones in this past century, but in Alaska, it is obvious: The man for that job and for that honor is TED STEVENS. Thank you, TED, for what you do for your country and for your State. We are proud.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, let me say with enthusiasm how completely this Senator agrees with the statement made by the majority leader. Ted STEVENS is one who is admired, I say even loved, by colleagues on both sides of the aisle. We have worked with him; we have admired his work; we have seen on so many occasions he has effectively led not only the Appropriations Committee but the Senate itself in bringing together the kind of consensus, the kind of compromises, for successful legislative action.

We all joke about his temperament. We sometimes say it is hard to understand how a guy from so cold a State could be so hot under the collar. I have to say, as Senator LOTT has noted, he is quick to respond and quick to find ways with which to overcome his frustrations, as we all face them and deal with them on both sides of the aisle.

Alaskans have every right to be proud. They have every reason to nominate and name this individual as Alaskan of the Year. Indeed, he is an Alaskan of the Century. We are proud to work with him, proud to call him a colleague, proud in this case to call him our chairman, and proud of the fact that Alaskans recognize him for the unique talents and the unique dedication and the unique leadership that he provides not only his State as an Alaskan, but his country as a Senator. I congratulate him on this special occasion.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alaska.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I thank both leaders for their kind comments about the honor I will receive on Saturday at home. I have been humbled and confused by the decision of those who voted. Having been in our State now for over the last half of the last century, I have known a great many great people who have contributed to our State during the period of the century. For instance, I refer to my first senior partner, E.B. Collins, of Fairbanks, AK, who came to Alaska before the turn of the last century and was a gold miner in Nome. When he was unsuccessful, he walked from Nome to Fairbanks. That is a good 1,500 miles. He read law in an attorney's office, became an attorney, and by 1913 he was named the Speaker of the first territorial House of Representatives. I worked with him and he gave me great advice in the first days when I went to the State.

There are so many others who have been so effective and have done so much for the State that I find it hard to accept the honor.

I intend to make a speech, of course, about that when I get home on Saturday, and point out the number of people who have done the work for which I get credit. Many of them are right here in this room.

We have been, really, very successful in trying to defend the proposition that once Alaska became a State, it should be an equal among equals in our National Government. It has taken many hours on the floor to ask for and receive the support of the Senate to defend the proposition that a new State is entitled to the same benefits, the same prerogatives, as those States that were in the Union ahead of it. I am but the third Senator who has ever served the State of Alaska. My colleague is the fifth. We are unique in the sense we are still a young State. Our State has been a member of the Union only 9 years longer than I have been in the Senate.

It is a distinguished privilege to be here. I am certain this award is being given to me because I am a Member of the Senate and because I am alive and others are not. But I do respect those who made the judgment. I question it, but I respect them, and I do thank my colleagues for what they have done today recognizing that.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I will take the opportunity, as the junior Senator from Alaska, to make a few comments relative to the designation by Alaskans of Senator TED STEVENS, Alaskan of the Century. For years we have been proclaiming the Alaskan of the Year. This is an extraordinary designation to honor an extraordinary individual.

When I first came to the Senate in 1980, as a freshman with virtually no experience in the legislative process, I had an opportunity to have an extended discussion with Senator STEVENS. He suggested the best position for the State of Alaska would be for him to give up his position, his longstanding seniority on the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, so I could serve on that committee, and he vacated that spot. He could be not only the chairman of the Appropriations Committee but senior member of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee and could be chairman if he so chose. But he chose to leave that committee and make an opening available to me. Now I have the honor of serving in that capacity. But it was a sacrifice for him. It was a sacrifice he made on the basis of what was good for Alaska that he pursued the appropriations process, the Governmental Affairs Committee on which he served and continues to serve, as well as the Commerce Committee.

I might add, with his seniority he has the option of serving as chairman of those committees, as well as of the Rules Committee, I believe. So he is really in an extraordinary position of seniority within this body. As a consequence of that, the contribution he has made, it is quite fitting Alaskans have selected him the State's Man of the Century. I do not believe there is a more deserving individual in our State. That is evidenced by the support Senator STEVENS has received in this nomination.

I am going back to Alaska tomorrow, along with our House colleague, Representative DON YOUNG, to acclaim, if you will, the recognition of Senator STEVENS and his wife Catherine in receiving this award.

He has been a central figure in our young State's history. It has been a time of unparalleled changes in the 49th State. The remarkable thing is that TED, while he has become a figure of national prominence, has not lost his interest and relationship with Alaskans. When we became a State in 1959, we had a lot of catching up to do. Senator STEVENS has been very active in ensuring that Alaska catch up. The rest of the States have been around 100, 150 years, some of them 200 years, but ours has not.

While TED currently ranks sixth in the Senate in overall seniority, second among Republicans—and is just one of 109 Senators who have served in this body for more than 24 years—he still can be found meeting every Alaskan Close-Up student group, talking with residents about health concerns and meeting villagers about their rural sanitation needs.

In his 36-year legislative career—four years in the Alaska House of Representatives and now in his 32nd year in the U.S. Senate, TED has played the largest single role in seeing Alaska, a territory of just 210,000 people 41 years ago, grow into a vibrant, modern state that has more than tripled in population.

In the state's House he crafted legislation to help the state recover from the devastating 1964 Good Friday earthquake. As majority leader in the state's House and Speaker pro tempore, he helped Fairbanks residents recover from the massive flooding they faced in 1967. And in 1989–90 he and I worked together to help craft federal legislation to help Alaska recover from the aftereffects of the 1989 wreck of the Exxon Valdez oil tanker in Prince William Sound.

His encyclopedic knowledge of Federal-Alaska State relations is legendary in Washington. In the Senate, which has lost much of its institutional memory in the past decade, TED is able to offer insights on everything from passage of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline Act in 1974, to the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act of 1971. He can talk about passage of the Magnuson Fisheries Conservation Act of 1978—a law now justly named after him—to passage of the Alaska Lands Act in 1980. Those four laws are the keys to shaping the direction of Alaska as we enter the 21st century. His recollection of events is so extraordinary not only because he helped draft the Alaska Statehood Act, while serving as a legislative counsel at the Department of the Interior starting in 1956, but because he served as chief counsel and solicitor for the Interior Department in Alaska in 1960—helping to get the young State off and running after Statehood in 1959.

I won't take this Chamber's time to talk about the Senator's early life, or even his impressive military career, where he served as a Flying Tiger in the U.S. Air Force in China during World War II—service that helped form his comprehensive knowledge of the military, which has been such a help to him in shaping our Nation's Armed Forces budgets over the past two decades from his post on the Senate Appropriations Committee.

I do want to speak a bit about what it has been like working with Senator STEVENS. While we have disagreed on only a handful of issues over the past 20 years, TED STEVENS has truly given of his time and shared his great knowledge and expertise to help me to represent the citizens of our State. He has selflessly given guidance and counsel to help our delegation reach a common accord on what is best for Alaskans. And I can't personally thank him enough for his many kindness. We have truly worked together to help our small State, one that sports just three electoral votes, have a voice in the direction of our Nation. It has not always been easy.

We have had to battle those who have no knowledge of what life is truly like in Alaska, whether we are trying to save our timber industry in Southeast Alaska, or trying to protect our rights to access our natural resources—Alaska's main means of supporting our citizens and our State government. We are working together to win the right to produce oil, without environmental damage, from North America's last great storehouse of energy—the Arctic coastal plain.

While TED served eight years as assistant Republican leader (whip) handling key national issues, especially defense matters, he has been willing to put aside personal ambition for the good of his State. Many forget that TED sacrificed his seniority on the Commerce Committee to move to the Energy and Natural Resources Committee during the key fight over the Alaska lands act. He then moved back to Commerce to represent Alaska fishermen—proof positive that TED always puts Alaska first. During his years on the Appropriations Committee, he has battled hard to make sure Alaska receives its fair share of Federal funding—money needed to help Alaska provide basic services to its citizens—piped water and sanitary sewers, roads and schools that Americans elsewhere take for granted.

Today I, join with all Alaskans, to thank him for his skill, drive, and dedication and congratulate him on the honor he will justly receive this weekend. I also offer him a heart-felt wish for many, many more years of service to the State and the Nation. Nancy joins me in congratulations to both TED and Catherine on this honor. It's been a great privilege working with you my friend.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to congratulate my friend and colleague, TED STEVENS, on being named Alaskan of the Century. From his efforts to achieve Alaskan statehood to his work on behalf of the State of Alaska, TED STEVENS has dedicated his life to public service and proven his leadership both in his home state and in the United States Senate. I know of no one more deserving of this honor. I am proud to have the opportunity to know and work with him and I extend him my heartfelt congratulations on this momentous occasion.

MORNING BUSINESS

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, on behalf of the leader, I ask unanimous consent the Senate now proceed to a period of morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the following exceptions: The first 60 minutes under the control of Senator DURBIN or his designee, the second 60 minutes under the control of Senator CRAIG or his designee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DURBIN. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Surely.

Mr. DURBIN. My intention is to speak for 10 minutes, and then I will be happy to exchange time, whatever is appropriate under the rules, so the Senator from Alaska can have his 15 minutes at that point.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that pending the statement by my good friend, Senator DURBIN, I be recognized for 15 minutes. I intend to enlighten my colleagues on the facts and fiction of ANWR, the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge, an issue coming up in the budget and an issue coming up in a legislative package we are proposing. I thank my friend.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Illinois.

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be recognized to speak in morning business for 10 minutes.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, just in case there is a session tomorrow, I ask unanimous consent I be excused from any rollcalls until Monday, next Monday morning.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FITZGERALD). Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Alaska.

GUNS

Mr. DURBIN. Mr. President, hardly a day goes by that we do not hear of another tragic shooting across America. The latest news from Texas is still sketchy, but the results are horrible: Four people who apparently were injured by gunfire in a church and the assailant taking his own life with a gun. It is a constant reminder. Only 2 or 3 weeks ago, a Michigan first grader took a loaded handgun to school and killed his little classmate. That is America today, a nation of some 300 million weapons.

On Capitol Hill, the debate over guns and their future really gets pretty heated and inflammatory on both sides, and the parties are at it. Frankly, as I travel across the State of Illinois and I talk with people from other States, I believe the families in this country get it. They understand what this is all about. They appreciate what we can and cannot do to make things better.

They do not believe for a second that we can pass a law that will end gun violence in America. That is beyond us. I wish we could. I do believe there are things we can do to make America a safer place.

Some want to argue between the possibilities of increased enforcement of current laws and closing loopholes which allow people to get guns who should not have them. That is a false choice. This Senator wants both. The people who misuse guns should be prosecuted and imprisoned, no questions asked. By the same token, we should do everything in our power to keep guns out of the hands of criminals, people with a history of violent mental illness, and children. I think we need both—zero tolerance and zero loopholes. I do not think it is a choice. We need both. If we go after both in an aggressive bipartisan approach, we can start to see the numbers come down on gun violence; we can have a little more peace of mind about our kids going to school and coming home safe and sound at the end of the day.

Last year, we had a bill on the floor of the Senate after the Columbine massacre which focused on two major points: If you buy a gun at a gun store in America, they do a background check. They will figure out whether or not you can legally own a gun. That is the Brady law. The Brady law has been successful.

It is hard to believe, but true, that people with a history of committing crimes and felonies, people who have outstanding arrest warrants—not very bright, I might add—show up at gun stores trying to buy guns. We do not want that to happen. We want to stop them.

There is a role there for the Federal Government in having this law. There is a bigger role for State and local law enforcement in making sure those people who have outstanding arrest warrants, for example, are prosecuted. That is what happens when you go to a gun store.

We also know in America one can buy guns at gun shows. There is a loophole there: There is no background check. If you happen to have a problem under the law—let's say a felony record or perhaps a history of mental illness or you are too young—you do not go to the gun store where they enforce the law, you go to the gun show where they do not. That is the loophole we want to close. That was in the law that was passed last year in the Senate. The vote was 49–49, incidentally. Vice President GORE cast the deciding vote. We sent the bill over to the House where it has languished for almost a year. Nothing has happened.

The second thing that was in that law, which I think most Americans would agree is common sense, was: Is there a way for those who own guns to store them safely? The answer is obviously yes. It involves trigger locks. You may have heard that Smith & Wesson, the largest handgun manufacturer in the United States, suggested they will start selling trigger locks automatically with their handguns. It is common sense they will give to the gun owner the wherewithal to make their gun childproof.

Some people say: It is the middle of the night and a burglar comes to the door; I am fumbling around trying to find the key—you can decide what you do at night. When you go off to work and leave the gun behind with children in the house or when other kids visit, don't you want to lock it up so a kid cannot get his hands on it and shoot himself or a playmate?

That is what trigger locks are all about. That was the second major part of the bill that passed the Senate last year and still languishes in the House of Representatives.

What is so radical about those two suggestions: That a gun show will try to find out whether or not you are legally eligible to own a gun before they sell it to you; that if you are going to sell a gun in America, it is with a trigger lock so it can be safer?

It is time for us to cool down the political rhetoric around here—and let me be the first to volunteer because I feel very strongly about this—and try to see if maybe there is some common ground. If the people on one side want more enforcement, such as Operation Exile, which is working in some cities across America, I will support it, I will vote for it.

I want more enforcement, too. In fact, I am going to offer an amendment in the Budget Committee which is going to say to my colleagues, Democrats and Republicans: Let's put some money into this. Let's show that we believe in enforcement and prosecution on a bipartisan basis. This is not a partisan issue. I do not want criminals roaming the streets, gang bangers shooting up the streets of Chicago or my hometown of Springfield. I am ready to push for more prosecution and enforcement, without question. Let's put the money into more ATF agents and more prosecutors to get that job done.

I will concede to the other side that prosecution and enforcement are important. Let's do it. This Democrat will stand with Republicans to get that done.

I ask in return that Republican Senators take a look at what we passed last year. Some, including the Presiding Officer, voted for it, and I am very proud that he did. We need more. We need to have Senators on both sides of the aisle to come forward and say, yes, trigger locks make sense; let's make them part of America's landscape to protect children; and those who will also say that gun shows should not be exempt from the basic laws of this country.

There are other things we can talk about in terms of sensible, commonsense gun control. I do not know if we will get them accomplished this year, but certainly I hope that before the first anniversary of the Columbine tragedy, this Congress will end its gridlock on the gun control issue. The people of this country expect more. They do not want to see this historic Chamber grind to a halt because of a special interest group in this town. They want to see goodwill on both sides of the aisle.

I will say this: If we fail, if we do nothing, if another day, another week, and another month go by with the tragic headlines we see so often about killings in churches and schools and day-care centers, if that happens, the American people will be justifiably angry in this election. They should hold all candidates accountable.

Members of the House of Representatives, Members of the Senate, and the two men who are likely to be the leading candidates for President of the United States—all of us, I should say—should be held accountable to answer the basic question: When you had the chance serving in the U.S. Congress, what did you do? Did you try to do anything to make this country safer, to make certain that when I walk out on the streets of my town or send my little boy or girl to school, I have a little more peace of mind?

We have the ability; we have the opportunity. The question is whether we can summon the political will. One cannot turn on the television in this town, and probably in others, without seeing ads from one special interest group or the other that wants to get us tangled up in some theoretical debate about the second amendment and the future of gun control.

I hope this Congress, and particularly this Senate, can get beyond the theory into the reality. The reality is: Over 40 percent of Americans own guns; there are over 300 million guns now in our Nation of some 275 million people; and even the gun owners believe intensely in sensible and responsible gun control. They believe guns should be stored safely, that those who own them should know how to use them, and they should be kept out of the hands of the wrong people. That is a consensus among gun owners, not to mention those who do not own guns who feel even more strongly about the same issues.

I hope this Congress, which tends to lurch back and forth from minor but somewhat important issues, will focus on a major and very important issue: Making America a safer place.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The bill clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

ANWR

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to address an issue that is very close to Alaska, Senator STEVENS, our Representative YOUNG, and myself. It represents the myth associated with ANWR and the realization that Alaska has been producing almost 25 percent of the total crude oil that has been produced in this Nation for the last 23 years or thereabouts.

I have here a map of Alaska that shows the pipeline and gives you a dimension of the magnitude of this particular area of our State. It is necessary that you recognize, as we address the disposition of allowing exploration in ANWR, that this was established as a responsibility that only Congress could address in releasing this particular area for exploration.

I am going to give you an opportunity to view a map of Alaska. Alaska is a pretty big piece of real estate. On a map, if you overlayed Alaska on the United States, it would extend from Canada to Mexico and from Florida to California. We have the Aleutian Islands that go out almost 2,000 miles. The breadth of the State from the pipeline alone at Prudhoe Bay to where the pipeline ends at Valdez is 800 miles. It is a big piece of real estate.

Until a few years ago, we had four time zones in the State alone. When Senator STEVENS or I go back to the State, we just begin our travel. We have a very small segment of the State that has a road system. This entire western area is without any roads, with the exception of a few miles in Nome and Kotzebue, and the villages.

We are not connected to the continental United States, as you can see. Our neighbor to the right, Canada, constitutes a barrier—a foreign country; a good friend—from the rest of the United States. We have our southeastern part where our State capital is in Juneau, roughly 700 miles from our largest city, Anchorage. Our second largest city, Fairbanks, is 400 miles to the north of Anchorage.

I go into this detail because it is important, as we look at the issue of ANWR, to keep it in perspective. I am going to refer to the chart behind me because I think it represents an appropriate comparison.

Let me advise my colleagues of a couple facts.

One, ANWR is going to be in the budget. We are going to be addressing the budget in the coming weeks. It is going to be in there at an anticipated revenue forecast of about $1.5 billion to the Federal Treasury. You can evaluate the pros and cons of that. It is also going to be in the Republican package that we are preparing to try to do something meaningful about the energy crisis in this country, which the current administration has not done.

They have no energy policy, as evidenced by their inability to address what they are going to do with hydro.

Some want to tear the dams down. What are they going to do with the electric industry? Obviously, Carol Browner wants to close half a dozen coal-fired plants, with no indication where we are going to pick up the alternative. Our nuclear situation is such that we cannot address what we are going to do with our nuclear waste, yet the nuclear industry contributes 20 percent of our energy in this country.

If you look at gas, you may assume, as some do, that all we have to do is plug into it. If you read the National Petroleum Council report on gas, you have to recognize a harsh reality: We are using about 20 trillion cubic feet of gas a day. In another 10 to 15 years, we will be using 31 trillion cubic feet a day. We do not have the infrastructure to deliver the anticipated demand. It just isn't there. It is going to require over $1 trillion—the industry figures $1.5 trillion—in the next decade, and that is only if we have access to areas where we are likely to find gas.

Much of the overthrust belt—which is the Rocky Mountains—65 percent of that has been removed from exploration. So where do we go? We go offshore; we go to Louisiana; we go to Texas; we go, to some extent, to Colorado and Wyoming, but we do not have an aggressive plan.

But we have an opportunity, in my State of Alaska—a significant opportunity—and that is ANWR.

What is the significance of ANWR? ANWR is shown on this map in this little tight corner, over here by the Canadian border. It looks small on this map, but it is in proportion.

There are those who say: Good heavens, you are going to jeopardize this area for exploration.

What we, as Alaskans, have not been able to portray—because the media will not pick up on it, and people are evidently not interested enough to recognize the proportion here—this is ANWR. This is 19 million acres, as shown by this little spot up here. It is as big as the State of South Carolina, a pretty big hunk of real estate. What have we done with this?

In 1980, we made some permanent designations. We created the refuge, the arctic refuge: 9.5 million acres in perpetuity. We went up and created a wilderness: 8 million acres in this area that is shown on the map marked with the slices.

But we left for Congress's dictate 1.5 million acres, so-called 1002 areas, up here. The reason we left it is, Congress was concerned there might be major deposits of hydrocarbons in this area, just like there were in Prudhoe Bay.

Let's look at Prudhoe Bay for a moment because there is an interesting parallel here. Prudhoe Bay is where the oil development is today. Let's look at Prudhoe Bay today and let's look at the traditional oil development and a picture that is an actual scene showing Prudhoe Bay and the animal activity that surrounds the area.

I show you a picture taken some years ago, but it represents the heart of Prudhoe Bay. There you see the pipeline. You see the oil derricks, and you see the caribou.

There is a degree of compatibility there. The reason it is there, obviously, is nobody is shooting these animals; nobody is running them down. There are no snow machines. It is summertime. There is no threat. They feel very much at home.

These are nomadic herds that move in and out, but there is a compatibility. We have seen a tremendous growth in this western arctic herd since we developed this area. The reason we have seen that is there are no guns allowed in the area. These animals are protected. They prosper, as they should. To suggest somehow they are in jeopardy defies reality. When we started oil drilling in Prudhoe Bay, there were 3,000 or 4,000 caribou in this herd. There are over 18,000 today. That is just a fact associated with experience that we have already had. Prudhoe Bay's technology is 30 years old. We can do a better job if we are allowed in here.

What is the footprint going to be if we indeed are allowed to open up ANWR? The footprint is estimated by the industry to be 2,000 acres out of all of ANWR's 19 million acres. That is what we are looking at. We are keeping the refuge, we are keeping the wilderness, and we are making a determination.

What does it look like when they are drilling in the area? This is what we would like to communicate to the American people. It is a pretty tough environment. There it is. We have a well under construction. This is not in ANWR because there is no entry or activity allowed. It is a typical scene in the Arctic in Prudhoe Bay. This is an ice road. They don't allow anything on the tundra in the summertime, but the ice roads stay there about 9 months of the year because you are way above the Arctic Circle, nearly 400 miles. It is a harsh environment.

That is a typical rig. When the disposition of this is made one way or the other, what is going to be left? Well, let's look at it in the summertime. Same site, summertime activity is gone; ice road is gone. There you have it, Mr. President: the tundra, a spigot; that's it.

I always think of my good friend, Senator Mark Hatfield. Mark Hatfield, it is safe to say, was a pacifist. He said: I will vote for ANWR any day of the year rather than send our troops in danger in the Mideast to keep oil flowing from neighbors we cannot count on.

All right. Where are we? This is an extraordinary chart. This marks from where our increasing oil exports are coming. Ironically, they are coming from Iraq. Last year, we imported 300,000 barrels a day from Iraq. This year we are importing 700,000 barrels a day. How many people remember 1990 and 1991? Do you know what happened over there? We fought a war. We fought a war to keep Saddam Hussein from invading Kuwait. What did that cost us? That cost us 147 American lives. We had 448 wounded. We had 23 taken prisoner. That is a cost.

We had another cost. What has it cost the taxpayers of this country since that war was over? What has it cost us in the last 10 years, from 1991 until today, to keep Saddam Hussein fenced in, enforcing the no-fly zone, enforcing, if you will, the embargoes, putting the fleet over there? We added it up. It is $10 billion. That is what it has cost the American taxpayer: 147 lives, 448 wounded, 23 prisoners, $10 billion.

Where are we getting our oil now? The fastest increasing imports are from our old buddy, Saddam Hussein. Isn't that ironic?

Look at the national security interests of this country. We are today 56-percent dependent on imports. When we fought this war, we were 47- to 49-percent dependent. I think the President will recall, in 1973, we had an energy crisis in the country. We called it the Arab oil embargo. We had gasoline lines around the block in this Nation. People were inconvenienced. So Congress acted. At that time we were 37-percent dependent on imported oil. Congress set up the Strategic Petroleum Reserve and said we would never approach 50 percent. We are going to take action. We never got 100 days supply of oil in SPR. We got a 56-day supply. That is what it is now.

Now there are proposals we should take oil out of SPR for the national crisis that we have on oil prices. That is very dangerous because if you take it out of SPR, you still need more imported into the country. And your good neighbors, the Saudis and the Mexicans, know it; the Venezuelans, you have less leverage. If we are ever going to take anything out of SPR, we should have a certification from the Secretary of Defense that it does not jeopardize our national security because you can only pull about 4 million barrels a day out of SPR.

The point is—and it is a very important one—go very slow with the Strategic Petroleum Reserve because after that, you don't have a backup. So here we are, depending on Saddam Hussein today. I find it inexcusable. This administration has no energy policy. They hope this won't be an issue in the campaign. They hope the issue will go away, and they hope the Secretary of Energy is going to be successful in his efforts to go around with that tin cup and try and get more production.

Let's see what he has done so far. He went over to Saudi Arabia about 10 days ago and said: We have an emergency in this country. They said: Well, we will have a meeting on March 27. We will address greater oil production then. He said: No, you don't understand; we have an emergency now. We fought a war over here. We kept Saddam Hussein out of Kuwait. They said:

I'm sorry. We are going to have a meeting on March 27, and we will address it then.

He got stiffed by the Saudis. So he went to Mexico and said: We need more production. The Mexicans said: Well, we appreciate that. We would like to help you, but you have been buying oil at $11, $12, $13 a barrel. Our economy went in the bucket. Where were you? The Secretary said: Well, we bailed you out of the tesobonos. We had a tremendous refinancing commitment for Mexico. They said: Sorry. We got stiffed.

So where did the Secretary go next? Well, he went over to some of the other countries. Nigeria, you might get a little out of Nigeria. I don't know.

Here is the superpower of the world, a Nation that is the most productive and has become the most dependent on imported oil. Make no mistake about it, we have to conserve. We have to have alternative energy. We have to develop the technology, but we have to be realistic. If somebody drove here, somebody came in on an airplane, they are going back the same way. We don't have the technology now for hydrogen. Fuel cells won't do it. Four percent of our energy is alternative. I wish it were more. Some of you came in here in a sports vehicle. Gasoline, at $1.70 a gallon, is going to shoot a pretty good hole in a $100 bill when you fill up that 40-gallon tank. What are we doing about it? We are hoping the problem will go away.

It is not going to go away. It is going to get worse. We are going to be held hostage again and again. So our alternative is greater production in the U.S. Keep the jobs at home, keep the dollars at home, and for heaven's sake, why can't we do it? We have the technology; we have the know-how.

We have a very active, extreme environmental community that is opposed to any resource development on public land, whether it be grazing, whether it be timber—timber, of course, is renewable—whether it be mining, whether it be oil and gas.

This administration doesn't have a policy. They want to tear down the dams. They won't do anything about nuclear. Nuclear is 20 percent of our energy in this country. They don't have a policy.

We are trying to do something about it. I am chairman of the Republican Energy Task Force. We have a legislative package, short-term, interim, and long-term. We are proposing to do away with the gasoline tax and not jeopardize the highway trust fund. It can be done. If gasoline gets up to $2 a gallon, or thereabouts, I am of the opinion that we ought to do away with all of the tax. That is a little over 18 cents a gallon.

We have a positive approach. We are going to stimulate development and on public land and on offshore areas. We are going to stimulate development of our agricultural potential in ethanol. My good friend, Senator GRASSLEY, has been a proponent of that for some time. We need all the domestic sources of energy we can get—the sooner the better—to get off this kick of paying tribute to Saddam Hussein.

Do not be misled. We have an opportunity to open up an area. We can do it safely. We have the technology.

I am going to counter some of the myths that are associated with ANWR.

Some ask: What do you want to open this area for because all of this Arctic coast is available? It is not available. That is truly a myth. With the exception of the area between the Colville and the Ganning Rivers, which is owned by the State of Alaska—this little area in here—more than 1,000 miles of the Arctic coastline is closed. That is just the harsh fact.

What you have over here is a rather interesting piece of real estate because it happens to be an old naval petroleum reserve, now called the Petroleum Reserve Alaska.

For heaven's sake, if you can't initiate exploration of a petroleum reserve that was designated in the 1900s or thereabouts, where can you? What an irony. There have been a few leases here. There is some production in there. But where the independents wanted to lease, the Department of Interior wouldn't put up the area for lease. As a consequence, that is an unrealistic statement. It is not factual because this is the Coastal Plain that borders clear around to here, and a very small portion is open. That happens to be State land. The Federal lands are not open. The Department of Interior won't issue a permit. They won't put up a proposed bid. That is just the fact.

Let's move a little further.

The State of Alaska will get 90 percent of the royalties.

That is not true. The royalties are split 50–50, just like they are in Oklahoma or Louisiana or any other State.

Somebody said Alaska's indigenous people are against all oil exploration in the Coastal Plain. That is very inaccurate. There are Inupiaq people in one Eskimo village called Katiovik that sits right here.

I have another chart that shows you a greater portion of where this little village is. It is the only community within ANWR. They strongly support onshore exploration for oil and gas. That is in their backyard.

Let me give you another example. We have a group called the Gwich'in near the Canadian border who are opposed to opening ANWR.

It is kind of interesting. I am going to ask that this be printed in the RECORD. The Gwich'in at one time offered to lease all of their land of 1.799 million acres to the oil industry for exploration. The only problem is the oil industry didn't find any interest there. So they didn't opt to purchase the leases. Maybe they should have. Since that time, the Gwich'in, for the most part, have been funded by the national environmental groups and the Sierra Club.

It is kind of interesting that one of the prominent members' names, Sarah James, is on the lease. They are free to choose. But, by the same token, the reality of what they were prepared to do at one time is kind of inconsistent with what they have chosen to do now.

This is a copy of the lease that I ask unanimous consent to be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIVE VILLAGE OF VENETIE,
March 21, 1984.

To whom it may concern:

This letter is authorization for Donald R. Wright, as our consultant, to negotiate with any interested persons or company for the purpose of oil or gas exploration and production on the Venetie Indian Reservation, Alaska; subject to final approval by the Native Village of Venetie Tribal Government Council.

Edward Frank, First Chief; Allen Tritt, Second Chief; Virginia Henry, Secretary; Gideon James, Treasurer; Lincoln Trill, Robert Frank, Sr., Lawrence Roberts, Sarah James, Calvin Tritt, Council Members.

NATIVE VILLAGE OF VENETIE

REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS FOR OIL & GAS LEASES

The Native Village of Venetie Tribal Government hereby gives formal notice of intention to offer lands for competitive oil and gas lease. This request for proposals involves any or all of the lands and waters of the Venetie Indian Reservation, U.S. Survey No. 5220, Alaska, which aggregates 1,799,927.63 acres, more or less, and is located in the Barrow and Fairbanks Recording Districts, State of Alaska. These lands are bordered by the Yukon River to the South, the Christian River to the East, the Chandalar River to the West and are approximately 100 miles west of the Canadian border on the southern slope of the Brooks Range and about 110 miles East of the Trans-Alaska Pipeline. Communities in the vicinity of the proposed sale include Arctic Village, Christian and Venetie. Bidders awarded leases at the sale will acquire the right to explore for, develop and produce the oil and gas that may be discovered within the leased area upon specific terms and provisions established by negotiation, which terms and provisions will conform to the current Federal oil and gas lease where applicable.

Bidding Method

The bidding method will be cash bonus bidding for a minimum parcel size of one-quarter of a township, or nine (9) sections, which is 5,760 acres, more or less, and a minimum annual rent of $2.00 per acre. There shall be a minimum fixed royalty of twenty percentum (20%).

Length of Lease

All leases will have an initial primary term of five (5) years.

Other Terms of Sale

Any bidder who obtains a lease from the Native Village of Venetie Tribal Government as a result of this sale will be responsible for the construction of access roads and capital improvements as may be required. All operations on leased lands will be subject to prior approval by the Native Village of Venetie Tribal Government as required by the lease. Surface entry will be restricted only as necessary to protect the holders of surface interests or as necessary to protect identified surface resource values.

Prior to the commencement of lease operations, an oil and gas lease bond for a minimum amount of $10,000.00 per operation is required. This bonding provision does not affect the Tribal Government's authority to require such additional unusual risk bonds as may be necessary.

Bidding procedure

Proposals must be received by 12:00 p.m. sixty (60) days from the date of this Request for Proposals, at the office of the Native Village of Venetie Tribal Government, Attention, Mr. Don Wright, S.R. Box 10402, 1314 Haldiver Way, Fairbanks, Alaska 99701, telephone (907) 479–4271.

Additional information

A more detailed map of reservation lands and additional information on the proposed leases are available to the bidders and the public by contacting Mr. Don Wright at the office identified above.

Dated this 2nd day of April, 1984.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, this lease is from the native village of Venetie. It has the signatures of Sarah James and a number of others. It is dated April 2, 1984, and it specifically states that the acreage offered under the lease is 1,799,927.65 acres, U.S. Survey 5220.

That is where we are relative to the issue of some of the folks who feel that this is not in their interest, but by a long shot that is not all the people.

I point this out not to condemn the attitude of my constituents but just to point out a reality that at one time they were willing to sell their interest in leasing this land for oil and gas, and now, to a large degree, their public relations efforts are funded by the Sierra Club and others.

I will submit at a later time the specific financial contributions that are paid to the Gwich'in by the various environmental organizations.

What is happening in Alaska is a molding of our State into the image that much of America's environmental community would like to see established as opposed to the reality associated with the population of our State, some 700,000, and the fact that we are the new kids on the block. We have been a State for 41 years. We don't own our own land.

Here is the land ownership in Alaska, unlike Illinois or California or any other State. We have 368 million acres in our State.

What is it made up of? Let's look at private land ownership in our State: 5 million acres; less than 2 percent. Why is that? Because the Federal Government owns it. OK? We have 51 million acres of national parkland; 76 million acres of Fish and Wildlife land; 23 million acres of U.S. Forest Service; and 57 million acres of wilderness forever locked up.

How much is enough? Where is the balance?

This is the Bureau of Land Management alone controls 65 million acres. The State has 104 million acres in State land. The State is so lucky. It must have had a fortune teller. This little piece of land right here is what funds our State, the land it had when it became a State.

The Natives finally gave land to residents of Alaska. The Natives got 43 million acres. But the Federal Government owns our State. That is just the reality.

Some say we need to save ANWR for our grandchildren. We need to know if oil is there. If there isn't, it is not going to be developed. You have to find a lot of oil in Alaska before drilling. Otherwise you can't afford to drill it. If they cannot produce 5,000 barrels a day, the cost is not economical.

Prudhoe Bay came in. It is 30-year-old technology. It is a pretty big footprint. We went from there to Endicott. Endicott is up in this area.

The significance is that when it came on it was the tenth largest producing field in the United States. It came in at a little over 100,000 barrels a day. Today, it is the seventh largest producing field. The footprint is 56 acres because it is all directional drilling from one spot. It makes sense in Alaska, but the costs are high. We could do a better job if we had an opportunity over here.

As a consequence of whether we need this oil now or later, we had better find out whether it is there or not. They can only do that through exploration. Then they can make a decision.

As a consequence of this, we run into one other argument, which really bewilders me because it is so unrealistic. They say, well, the Coastal Plain may only have a 200-day supply of oil, and that is not worth developing.

Let me tell you a little bit about it. First of all, Prudhoe Bay was supposed to have 9 billion barrels of oil. It has been producing now for 23 years. We have had a total of 12 billion barrels from Prudhoe Bay in the last 23 years. We were supposed to get 10 billion barrels. It is still producing at a million barrels a day. It is good for another 10 years with the technology that we have.

When you say this only has a 200, do you know what you are implying? An unrealistic argument because you are saying the rest of our domestic oil production would stop. That is totally unrealistic. A two-hundred-day supply, but that is assuming the rest of the oil is produced domestically in this country is going to stop. First of all, it is not going to stop; is it? That is an argument so full of holes that it defies imagination.

Let me show you what happens when we bring oil on line from Alaska and what it does to our imports because I think it states in no uncertain terms the reality associated with the opportunity we have now.

Let's recognize what has happened here. This body passed ANWR 5 years ago, in 1995.

The President vetoed it. Had he not vetoed it, today we would have had a lease sale and we would know what the prospects for a major discovery were. We might be within a very short time of production.

Somebody says opening ANWR will not have any impact. Wrong. Here is the proof. This chart identifies our imports in 1975, 1976, 1977, and 1978. They were going up dramatically, 6 or 7 million barrels a day. We developed Prudhoe Bay in 1976, the current field we have. We can see when it came online and production increased, imports dropped dramatically, it was a major contribution. It was 2 million barrels a day, 25 percent of our total domestic production.

To open up Prudhoe Bay, it took this Senate meeting in this Chamber with a tied vote. Vice President Spiro Agnew broke the tie. That is why we have Prudhoe Bay today. That is why we have production of 20 to 25 percent of our crude oil. That is reality.

Don't be misled by the myths. We are not going to destroy the Coastal Plain. We are not going to destroy the caribou. We are only going to allow activity in the wintertime when the caribou come through and calve. As the picture demonstrates, caribou are healthy for the most part. Do not suggest we cannot address our concern over the migratory Porcupine caribou herd; we can do it if given the opportunity.

Somebody says ANWR oil will be exported and not reduce our dependency. I have received a letter from BP that says they are curtailing their small amount of exported oil.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the letter be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the letter was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

BP AMOCO CORP.,
Washington, DC, March 23, 2000.

Hon. FRANK H. MURKOWSKI,
Chairman, Committee on Energy and Natural Resources, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: I would like to respond to your inquiry regarding BP Amoco's plans concerning Alaska North Slope oil exports. Pending completion of contracts due at the end of April, at this time we do not have subsequent plans to export.

We applaud the Administration and the Congress for its wisdom to permit the market to work and to remove an historical penalty imposed on Alaska North Slope oil. The West Coast is part of the global crude market. The ultimate destination of Alaskan crude has no effect on either West Coast supply or gasoline prices. Once our acquisition of ARCO is complete, we would expect to run all of our Alaska crude through ARCO's excellent West Coast refining and marketing network.

Sincerely,

LARRY D. BURTON,
Vice President.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. That situation may be resolved by the takeover by Phillips of ARCO. BP did not have on the west coast any refineries. ARCO did.

To make a long story short, with BP acquiring ARCO refineries, there will not be a surplus on the west coast. I think the amount varied. There were up to 60,000 barrels a day at one time. I have been assured as a consequence of the change, the purchase by Phillips of ARCO, that the little oil that was exported will be terminated simply because it will be utilized by BP in their refinery.

Some say any development in Alaska would be environmentally damaging. People might not like oil fields, but Prudhoe Bay is the best oil field in the world. We can do a better job if we can get into ANWR; there is no question about it.

They say the Coastal Plain is unspoiled. Let me say something about the Coastal Plain. It is not unspoiled. In one sense, there is an Eskimo village there. Those people live there. There are a couple of radar sites that are, and for all practical purposes have been abandoned. This section of the State is pretty remote. One cannot find anything much more remote than this particular area of our State. It is probably one of the better areas if one were looking for less of an impact on mankind and animal-kind.

Some ask what will happen to the birds. Most of the birds are near the lakes. Birds come in, they migrate. The issue isn't that there are no birds in ANWR, because there are.

Some ask about the polar bears. They den on the ice; they do not come ashore. A few do. Do you know what we have done to save the polar bear? We don't allow the white man to shoot the polar bear in our State. You can't shoot them. That is the greatest threat they have. The native people can keep them for subsistence. A white man can go to Canada or Russia and take a polar bear. So that is a bogus argument. We are protecting the polar bear. To suggest a little exploration is going to threaten the polar bear is a specious argument.

This is what the press and the public do not digest. I guess we have a hard time communicating that reality.

Here is another picture of our friends taking a walk. Three bears are walking on top of the pipeline. Why are they walking on the pipeline? Because it is easier than walking in the snow. They don't get their feet cold or damp. It is just easier.

The predictions that were associated with developing Prudhoe Bay have not come true. They said: You are putting a fence across Alaska; the caribou and the moose will never cross it. When you put a hotline in permafrost, it will sink to China.

These things never happened. That pipeline is one of the construction wonders of the world. It has been bombed, shot at, dynamited, not to mention having withstood earthquakes. We had a bad accident with a ship called the Exxon Valdez. It was the fault of the crew. We had a 10-and-a-half-wide channel, and they ran on to a rock because they were drinking coffee and not paying attention. That is a harsh reality of that. Then they took on a little alcohol and everything was lost.

The public ought to understand reality. I would love to debate some of the extreme environmentalists because they don't know what they are talking about, but they won't give me the courtesy or the chance. They refuse to let me participate in any of their gatherings. We have a letter that gives an idea of the extent to which some of the environmentalists go to generate public opinion. They are entitled to that, but by the same token, we are entitled to communicate some of the tactics.

In a letter from the Sierra Club, Friday, January 2000, called ''The New Millennium Action Special Edition,'' it says:

This February 5th, the Sierra Club, together with the Alaska Wilderness League, the Wilderness Society, the National Audubon Society, is hosting another National Arctic Wilderness Week in Washington. Supporters from grass roots are key in protecting the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge and its fragile Coastal Plain. This gathering will help arm you with the skills and knowledge you need to build support in your community.

They give hands-on training. They will provide you with opportunities for training. You will learn how to intensify your skills in lobbying, message development, meetings, communications and legislative advocacy. All are worthwhile and appropriate.

It says further: We've got you covered.

That is the last paragraph: ''We know your time is valuable so we don't ask you to cover all your expenses for the trip.''

A trip from where? A trip from Alaska, that's where. It is expensive, about a $1,000 to get here from Alaska. It also says that you need to pay a $40 registration fee, but if you don't have it, some scholarships are available. Where does that money come from? The Wilderness Society and the Sierra Club of course:

> We'll pay for your travel to Washington, DC, your hotel, two in a room, a continental breakfast each morning and several dinners. Unfortunately, space is limited so hurry up. To find out if you are eligible phone the Sierra Club.

I don't know any development groups that have that kind of money to do that kind of lobbying. Nevertheless, that is reality. It is fair game. Just make sure the public knows about it. Many of these people have never been to ANWR. That is what bothers me. I have been there. I take a group of Senators up there every year so they can see for themselves and make their own evaluation as they represent their State.

One of the things I will conclude with: If you are from the Northeast corridor and you are sick and tired of high prices for heating oil, you haven't seen anything yet. The Northeast corridor is just getting started. And here is why.

This is the harsh reality of where we are today. Our crude production is represented by this gray line. It is roughly 6 million barrels a day domestically, this is down from 7.5 million. So our crude production is dropping. It is dropping significantly. The crude oil production is dropping and the petroleum demand is going up. What is happening here is the crude oil production has dropped about 17 percent, and the petroleum demand, which is the black line, has gone up 14 percent. So we have a shortfall. So we have to make up the difference.

We have had the heating oil crisis in the Northeast corridor. There was an assumption we would have a cold winter. We didn't. There was an assumption we would have storage. A funny thing is, 20 percent of the crude oil storage in the Northeast corridor has been eliminated because it did not meet legitimate environmental concerns, as well as 15 percent of the heating oil storage. These are old tanks that didn't meet specs and were not rebuilt.

We have lost 37 refineries in this country in the last decade. Why? The refinery business is not too attractive for a lot of reasons. You have Superfund exposures, you have EPA requirements, you have a situation where the return on investment is questionable. Many of the majors have gone out of the refining business because of the consequences associated with that.

So you have a situation now where the Northeast corridor better look out for their high electric bills. This winter it was high heating oil bills, but it is going to be electric bills this summer. Only 3 percent of the Nation's electricity comes from oil-fired generating plants, but that is not true in the Northeast corridor. It is nearly one-third. New England relies on fuel oil for about a third of its power generation. Just a small handful of those plants will be setting the electric prices in the region during the periods of high demand. This is going to cost Northeast residents millions of dollars. So what do they want us to do about it? Do they want us to import more oil, or do they want us to relieve our dependence by producing safely and domestically?

The arguments I get from all of the Northeast groups: You can't open ANWR. You cannot do it safely. They are breathing the fire of the radical environmental movement that wants three things: They want a cause, they want dollars, and they want membership. They sell America short—especially America's ingenuity and our technical ability. The fact is, we can produce energy here at home. They will not debate me. They refuse, they absolutely refuse.

So this is what is going to happen in the Northeast corridor. I hope the newspapers and their editorial writers start figuring this out because it is going to happen. Remember when you heard it first.

Electricity establishes a rate structure from a uniform price. Under that method, the central dispatchers first tap generation offering to sell electricity at the lowest price. But as the demand goes up, air-conditioning use goes up, and you are going to see the more costly generating powerplants come on line. Those are the ones that are oil fired.

The power purchasers pay all bidders the price charged by the last powerplant called into service. In many cases, the final unit will be an old, oil-fired plant which will charge a rate higher because of the higher oil prices. All other non-oil-burning plants will reap a windfall profit because they will be paid as if burning oil. That is the way the process works. I hope somebody can take heed of what I am telling you. New England relies on 30 percent fuel oil for its own power generators.

What do they want us to do? They say: Alternative energy. Fine. Let's do it. What are we going to do? Four percent is what we produce currently.

Let's spend more on development. We are. We do not have the hydrogen technology yet.

In the meantime, we have an opportunity for domestic relief, and I implore those people up there to seize that opportunity. It is as if they are born with their eyes closed, and they keep them closed to the reality that we can open these areas safely. They say: The Senator from Alaska comes to the floor and his motivation is selfish.

Sure, I represent my State. Sure, this is in my State. But my State doesn't consume it. Sure, we get half the revenue, just like Oklahoma or any other area. But this is domestic energy for domestic jobs paying domestic taxes and providing for the national energy security of this Nation.

Some of these other folks would rather have us import it from Saddam Hussein. That is where it is coming from, 700,000 barrels a day, from a country where we lost 147 servicemen fighting a war.

So we are going to be facing higher prices. Non-oil-burning plants are going to reap a huge windfall. New England is going to take it and they are going to scream and ask why we are not doing something about it. It has been estimated an oil plant that offered electricity at $37 a megawatt hour for power 1 year ago is probably going to be seeking a price of $75 or more because they are going to have to buy oil on the open market. Remember, oil has gone from $10 to over $30. That is significant.

There are a couple of other factors a lot of people overlook. There is an inflation factor. They figure every time oil goes up $10, it contributes about ½ percent to inflation. We have seen the truckers come to Washington. They came twice. Do you know why they were here? Because they cannot pass on the increased price of diesel fuel. They are stuck. They are going out of business.

Wait until you see the farmers when they start fueling up to plant their crops. They are going to be screaming. They will be driving their tractors to Washington. They will want relief. The relief of this administration is to go beg for more oil production in the Mideast. I find it inexcusable.

We concern ourselves with the deficit in the balance of payments, $300 billion a year. That means we are buying more from countries than they are buying from us. But of the $300 billion, $100 billion is the cost of imported oil. We are sending our jobs overseas. We have seen employment in the domestic oil industry drop dramatically.

It is important that Members understand what has happened to this country and to our ability to maintain a growing industry that we have become so dependent on, and what a poor job we have done on it. What we have done, under this administration, is to simply import more oil, propose more taxes. I think the administration's tax proposal is about $2.5 billion this year.

We have seen the gas tax, 4.3 cents a gallon. I would like to do a little short review because I remember 1993. I remember when the Republicans lost control of this body and the Democrats took control and the administration came in with a huge Btu tax—British thermal unit—a tax on energy. We defeated that tax then. It is a good thing we did. But we also had a 4.3 cent-per-gallon gas tax and that was not going to go into the highway trust fund. That was proposed to go into the general fund.

We had a vote. Every Republican voted against it. We had six Democrats join us. The vote was tied. Vice President AL GORE broke the tie, and that is why we have the 30-percent increase in the gas tax that went on in 1993 at 4.3 cents a gallon. Our Vice President, who broke that tie, deserves accolades, if you will, because he bears that responsibility. We are living with it today, and it has cost the taxpayers somewhere in the area of $43 million.

That gives us some idea of the background of how we got to where we are and what kind of a policy this administration has toward our energy crisis. They hope it will go away. There is so much finger pointing around here that one cannot believe it.

The Secretary of Energy the other day said an interesting thing. He said: We were caught by surprise; we were caught napping.

Come on. Let's recognize facts, and facts are that in 1994 the independent petroleum producers were concerned about our dependence on imports. They solicited Secretary Brown under the Trade Expansion Act and asked him to do an evaluation of the national security risk, and he did. As a consequence of that, even the President acknowledged our energy dependence on the Mideast and our oil imports affect the national security interests of the Nation.

He did that. What happened? Nothing. There was no relief. So we went along even more. In any event, nothing was done. Time went on. We became more dependent. As a consequence, we found ourselves in a situation last March where many of us became concerned. We became so concerned that we wrote a bipartisan letter to the Secretary of Commerce, Secretary Daley.

I have the letter dated March 21 to our President. I am going to quote what he said in November after he received the report from the Department of Commerce by Secretary Daley. He said:

> I'm today concurring with the Department of Commerce's finding that the Nation's growing reliance on the imports of crude oil and refined petroleum products threaten the Nation's security because they increase U.S. vulnerability to oil supply interruption.

He was on notice in 1994.

To bring my colleagues up to date, in March of last year a bipartisan letter went to Secretary Daley asking him to again initiate, under the Trade Expansion Act, an evaluation of the danger to our national security because of our increased dependence on imports. That was done. It was delivered to the White House in November of last year, and the White House either did not open their mail, sat on it, or put it at the bottom of the stack. In any event, they have refused to release that report.

Clearly, it is going to say the same thing. The national security of our Nation is at risk because of our increased dependence on imported oil. I am told we are looking at billions of dollars of increased appropriations this year for the military so they can have fuel for our defense. We have another case of this administration refusing to recognize reality. It is as though they want to get out of town before this becomes a political issue or before the American people understand the danger of what is happening because of our increased dependence on imported oil.

The chairman of the Armed Services Committee, JOHN WARNER, the chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, JESSE HELMS, our majority leader, TRENT LOTT, and I as chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, all wrote a letter to the President asking him why he has not opened that report he received in November from the Secretary of Commerce. We asked why he has not shared that with the American people, and to tell us whether our national security is at risk because of our increased dependence, again on our old buddy, Saddam Hussein. How ironic. What goes around comes around.

Last year, we had 300,000 barrels a day from Saddam Hussein; this year, 700,000 barrels a day. The fastest growing source of our imports is coming from Iraq. I will say it again and again and again. In 1991, we lost 147 lives, 448 soldiers were wounded, 23 were taken prisoner, and the U.S. taxpayers paid $10 billion to fence in Saddam Hussein.

Where does this oil go? It goes to the United States—to you and me, and for our airplanes and cars. Where does the money go? Do you think it goes to the people of Iraq? It goes to Saddam Hussein who controls the flow of that money. Do you know where most of it goes? It goes to the Republican Guard that guards him and keeps him alive. He has probably had more assassination attempts than we know. But he takes good care of those people. How does he do it? He has one source of cash-flow—oil. I just cannot accept the policies of this administration to enrich that man.

We have the farmers, and we have the truckers. Mr. President, have you flown lately? Have you looked at your airplane tickets? They put on a surcharge. Nobody can figure out what the ticket costs anyway. If it is a short trip, it is $20. If it is a long trip, it is $40.

Have you received a FedEx package lately? There is a surcharge added.

Pretty soon, the American people are going to wake up. A surcharge is going to be on everything. They say: Oil really hasn't affected inflation. Don't be too sure it has not hit yet.

Do my colleagues think we will get relief? We will see what happens on Monday. Anything that happens on Monday is 8 weeks getting to your gas station. That is the harsh reality.

The policy of this administration is more imports. That is it. They never learn by history: 37-percent dependent in 1973; 47-percent dependent when we fought the war in the Persian Gulf; 56-percent dependent now; 65-percent, according to the Department of Energy, in the year 2015 to 2020. Does it behoove us to take action now? I think so.

I told you a little bit about exploration and production. Here is what happened in our employment in energy: 405,000 employed is down to 293,000. That is the position we are in.

Our oil production domestically dropped from about 7 billion to about 6 billion in this period of time because we don't have an aggressive posture. It is not that we do not have oil and gas. This administration will declare victory, I guess, on the 27th if OPEC releases more oil. But I think Americans are going to have to ask a basic question, a simpler question, and that is: Will the administration's actions decrease our oil dependence or increase it? That is the basic question, and the American people ought to understand it.

Next Monday is March 27, and they say there will be an increase in foreign production of another 1 million to 2 million barrels. Then the administration—the Secretary of Energy and the President—is going to claim victory. They will say: We have more oil.

How hollow, because it is going to increase our dependence, it is going to give them more leverage. We are going to have another crisis. They said OPEC could never get together and did not have the discipline. They did. They got together. They would rather sell their oil at a higher price than sell less oil, obviously. They would like to see it somewhere at $20 to $25 to keep us on the hook. That is the thought.

I encourage the American people to ask: Is this in our national interest to swallow the administration's claim of victory? If indeed there is a significant increase coming, if we swallow the administration's claim of victory that it is in the Nation's interest to become more dependent on imported oil, or strike out with an aggressive posture based on American technology and American can-do spirit to develop resources at home in the overthrust belt in my State of Alaska?

I implore my colleagues who want to speak on behalf of America's environmental community, to know what they are talking about. I ask them to get up to ANWR and Prudhoe Bay and take a look at it. See what we have done and look at some other oil fields. Just do not take the word of the self-anointed environmental groups that have a mission. That mission is membership, dollars, and a cause.

I am not suggesting they do not make a significant contribution. The problem is that they refuse to recognize that we are going to be needing crude oil—petroleum products—for a long time. They refuse to recognize that we are better off developing domestically than importing it. They refuse to recognize where we are getting our imports, the significant role of our rock. They refuse to recognize the role of the lives we lost in the Persian Gulf war. They refuse to recognize we have done a pretty good job in developing oil and gas resources. We can do a better job, if given the opportunity.

I do appreciate the time that has been allotted to me today.

I think it is important to recognize that, in all honesty, we do not have an oil policy, we do not have an energy policy. I fear my colleagues from the Northeast are going to be exposed to substantial increases in electricity.

I have the obligation to proceed with electric reliability bills, electric restructuring. But the fact is, they are going to be dependent on fuel oil making electricity. The price is going to be a lot higher than they have ever had before. People are going to be asking, What are you doing about it to relieve the problem? I hope their answer is not solely to increase imports.

I again extend my willingness to travel to the Northeast corridor, my willingness to meet with the editorial writers of the Northeast papers that continually misrepresent facts. I encourage them to give us an opportunity to be heard. I encourage them to come on up and take a look and spend the money so they can objectively make recommendations and decisions upon those to whom they and their papers and their media extend themselves.

I would like them to know that our Governor, and our delegation would love to have you. We will treat you with a level of hospitality that you will find quite suitable and quite comfortable. You might want to bring some long underwear though.

Give us an opportunity to contribute to this country.

The last thing I want to say is, we became a State in 1959. That was 41 years ago, or thereabouts. The rest of the country established their land patterns 100, 150 years ago. We are still trying to develop an economy. We have 700,000 people. We are trying to develop a university. We don't have any roads across our State. The Federal Government owns it. We are dependent on natural resources. Our fish are renewable. Our timber is renewable. We also have a lot of oil and gas.

MEASURE RETURNED TO CALENDAR—S. 2251

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, on behalf of the leader, I ask unanimous consent that S. 2251 be placed back on the Senate calendar.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT AGREEMENT—S.J. RES. 14

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that at 1:30 p.m. on Monday the Senate begin consideration of S. J. Res. 14 regarding the flag desecration and it be considered under the following time agreement:

At 1:30 p.m. Monday, following the reporting of the resolution by the clerk, Senator MCCONNELL be recognized to offer an amendment in the nature of a substitute regarding a statute, and it be limited to 2 hours equally divided in the usual form, and an additional 30 minutes under the control of the Senior Senator from West Virginia, Mr. BYRD, with no amendments in order to the substitute, and, if agreed to, it be considered original text for the purpose of further amendments;

Further, following the debate on the McConnell amendment, Senator HOLLINGS be recognized to offer his first-degree amendment regarding campaign spending limits, with no amendments in order to the amendment and time limited to 4 hours equally divided in the usual form, with 1 of the 4 hours under the control of Senator MCCAIN;

Further, that no motions to commit or recommit be in order or any additional amendments;

Further, that at 9:30 a.m. on Tuesday, the Senate resume the Hollings amendment for up to 2 hours of their designated debate time, equally divided;

Further, that at 11:30 a.m. on Tuesday, there be up to 60 minutes equally divided between the chairman and the ranking minority member of Judiciary for general debate on the joint resolution;

And, finally, that following the debate on the amendments, the amendments be laid aside, with votes to occur on or in relation to the amendments in the order in which they were offered, beginning at 2:15 p.m. on Tuesday, with 4 minutes for debate prior to each vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. BUNNING). Without objection, it is so ordered.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. MURKOWSKI. In light of this agreement, there will be no further votes today. The next vote will occur on Tuesday, at 2:15 p.m.

Mr. President, let me again thank you for your courtesy, and that of the clerks, who listened to me intently. I understand there may be some more morning business time available. I invite my colleagues to engage in the debate on the subject of ANWR at any time they appear on the floor, in my office, or outside.

Mr. President, I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

NUCLEAR WASTE STORAGE

Mr. MURKOWSKI. Mr. President, I alert my colleagues that an extraordinary thing happened yesterday in the House of Representatives. The House accepted the Senate bill on nuclear waste without amending the Senate bill.

As the occupant of the Chair knows, oftentimes the House has a little difference of opinion on what is good for the country. The bill we passed in the Senate on nuclear waste had certainly a vigorous debate in this body. There were 64 votes recorded for the legislation which would resolve what to do with our high-level nuclear waste and how to proceed with the dilemma associated with the reality that the Federal Government had entered into a contract in 1998 to take this waste from the electric-power-generating units that were dependent on nuclear energy. This is the high-level rods that have partially reduced their energy capacity and have to be stored. We have had this continued buildup of high-level waste adjacent to our reactors.

The significance of this is that this industry contributes about 20 percent of our power generation in this country. There are those who don't favor nuclear energy and, as a consequence, would like to see the nuclear industry come to an end. But they accept no responsibility for where the power is going to be made up. Clearly, if you lose a significant portion, you will have to make it up someplace else.

The point of this was to try to come to grips with a couple of things. One is that the ratepayers have paid the Federal Government $15 billion over an extended period of time to take the waste in 1998. The second issue is the cost to the taxpayers because since the Federal Government has failed to meet the terms of the contract and honor the sanctity of the contract agreement, there are damages and litigation from the power companies to the Federal Government. That cost is estimated to be somewhere in the area of $40 to $80 billion to the taxpayer in legal fees associated with these claims that only the court will finally adjudicate.

By passing the Senate bill in the House—I believe the vote was 275—indeed, it moved the issue closer to a resolve. Many in this body would like to not address it. That is irresponsible, both from the standpoint of the taxpayer and from the standpoint of the sanctity of a contractual commitment. If we don't do it, somebody else is going to have to do it on a later watch.

The difficulty is, nobody wants the nuclear waste. But if you throw it up in the air, it is going to come down somewhere.

France reprocesses theirs. The French learned something in 1973, during the Arab oil embargo. They learned that they would never be held hostage by the Mideast oil barons and be subservient to whatever the dictates of those oil nations were and what it cost the French economy in 1973. As a consequence, they proceeded towards the development of a nuclear power capability second to none. About 92 percent France's power is generated by nuclear energy. They have addressed the issue of the waste by reprocessing it through recycling, recovering the plutonium, putting it back in the reactors, and recovering the residue. The residue, after you take the high-level plutonium out, has a very short life. It is called vitrification.

In any event, we are stuck still. We can't resolve what to do with our waste. But we have a bill that has moved out of the House. It is our bill. I have every belief it will go down to the White House. We will have to see if the President wants to reconsider his veto threat in view of the energy crisis we have in this country now and the fact that the administration does not have an energy policy, let alone the willingness to address its responsibility under the contractual terms to accept the waste. If the administration chooses to veto it, we have the opportunity for a veto override. In this body, we are two votes short.

I encourage my colleagues, particularly over this weekend as they go home, to recognize that this issue is going to be revisited in this body. If they have nuclear reactors in their State and they don't support a veto override, they are going to have to wear the badge, the identification of being with those who want to keep the waste in their State. That is where it will stay. It will stay in temporary storage near the reactors that are overcrowded and that were not designed for long-term storage. It will never get out of their State unless we come together and move this legislation, if the President does not sign it now that it has gone through the House and Senate.

Unfortunately, this would put the waste ultimately in Nevada where we have had 50 years of nuclear testing out in the desert, an area that has already been pretty heavily polluted. We have spent over $7 billion in Nevada at Yucca Mountain where we are building a permanent repository. Quite naturally, the Nevadans, my colleagues, will throw themselves down on the railroad track to keep this from happening.

But the point is, you have to put it somewhere. In my State of Alaska, we don't currently have any reactors.

As chairman of the Energy Committee, my responsibility is to try to address this national problem, with a resolve. What we have, obviously, is this legislation that has passed both the House and the Senate. It will be back. It will be revisited. I encourage my colleagues to recognize that we have a responsibility to address this on our watch. If we put it off, somebody else is going to have to address it. It is going to cost the taxpayer more. Now is the time, since we finally have a bill that has gone through the House and Senate.

The interesting thing is, had the House taken up our bill and amended it, we would be hopelessly lost because there would be a filibuster on appointment of conferees. It would take 9 days or something like that. It could not be done.

That didn't happen in the House. I commend the Speaker, Denny Hastert, for keeping a commitment. I commend our leader, Senator LOTT, who made a commitment that we were going to bring this up. Not only did we bring it up but we passed it.

I alert my colleagues, again, what goes around comes around. We are going to get this back. If you are against it, you had better come up with something else that is a better idea. Otherwise, it will stay in your State. If you want to get it out of your State in a permanent repository, you had better get behind this bill, if we have to go for a veto override.

I thank the Chair and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, are we in morning business at this time?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We are in morning business, and the Senator from Idaho controls 60 minutes.

ENERGY CRISIS

Mr. CRAIG. Mr. President, earlier today I came to the floor, as did several of my colleagues, to discuss what I believe is now nearing a crisis in our country; that is, the tremendous runup in the price of energy that we have watched for well over 3 months creep up on the reader boards at the local gas station or in fuel bills for those in homes heated with fuel oil.

A lot of Americans are scratching their heads and saying: What is happening? Last year, at this time out in Northern Virginia, I purchased regular gasoline for 78 cents a gallon. There was a bit of a price war going on at that time that probably bid the price down 10 or 12 cents, but there is no question that America's driving public a year ago was paying at least 100 percent less, in some instances, than they are paying today.

It is right and reasonable to ask why? What has happened? What happened is obvious to many who watched the energy issue. I serve on the Energy Committee. For the last several years, we have become quite nervous about the fact that we as Americans have grown increasingly dependent on foreign sources of crude oil to fuel the economy of this country. Several speakers on the floor today, and over the past several days, have talked about a dependency that has gone up from 30-plus percent in the 1970s to over 55 percent today for oil flowing in from outside the United States.

Why is that happening? Why don't we have a policy stopping it? Why are all these things happening at a time when our economy is doing so well?

This morning I joined some of my colleagues to discuss some of the whys. This country, for at least the last 8 years, has been without an energy policy. When the current Secretary of Energy, Bill Richardson, came to that seat, I asked him in his confirmation hearing: If we don't have an energy program, can't we at least have an energy policy that looks at all aspects of the energy basket—both, of course, crude oil for the hydrocarbons and for all that it provides for our country, a recognition of electrical generation in this country, both nuclear, hydro, and certainly coal fired and oil fired? He assured me that would be the case.

Of course, today, that simply isn't the case. In the budgets this Department of Energy has presented to this Congress in the last 2 years, there has been a tremendous increase in the money the Clinton-Gore administration has wanted to allocate for solar and wind, but they have constantly dropped the research dollars on hydro production or clean coal production for the use of coal in the firing of our electrical generating facilities.

While all of that has been going on, there has been something else that I find fascinating and extremely disturbing: a progressive effort to lock up exploration and development of our public lands and public areas where the last of our oil reserves exist. The administration has not tried to encourage domestic production. In most instances, they have openly discouraged it or they have set the environmental bar so high that no one company can afford to jump over it.

Over the course of the last 5 or 6 years, we have seen a tremendous number of our production companies leave this country. In fact, the CEO of one company sat in my office 5 years ago in a rather embarrassing way saying: Senator, after having been in this country drilling, developing, and producing oil and gas for almost 100 years, my company is being forced to leave the United States if we want to stay profitable or productive.

Of course, that company did largely go overseas. That is an American company and they will be producing oil and gas. But they are, in most instances, producing for a foreign government, and they don't control their supply. Most importantly, that supply is not a U.S. supply. It is a foreign supply being brought into this country, dramatically changing our balance of trade. Of course, many of those nations are members of OPEC or are other oil-producing nations that are, in part, causing the problems our consumers are currently experiencing.

I have found it fascinating over the last several years as we have watched this administration refuse to acknowledge our vast reserves of oil and gas, offshore, and in Alaska. The Senator from Alaska, chairman of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee, was on the floor to speak for the last hour about one of the great remaining reserves in northern Alaska that could be tapped, and tapped in a sound and safe environmental way so the beautiful area would not be damaged. Literally, tens of thousands of barrels a day of oil could be produced from that region of our country and brought into the lower 48 to be refined and sold.

The Rocky Mountain overthrust belt in my area of the country is largely now off limits to further exploration and production. Yet in the 1970s and the early 1980s a lot of the new domestic production in our country came from the overthrust belt areas of Wyoming and Colorado.

We have seen the Clinton administration recently announced a ban on any future exploration of many areas of the Outer Continental Shelf, where some of the largest oil reserves exist today, all in the name of the environment. Even though some of the great new technologies have allowed the kind of development in the Gulf of Mexico and other areas where the chance of a spill is almost nonexistent today. In fact, the greatest concern for a spill is not drilling and development and transfer onshore of crude oil; it is the shipping in the great supertankers from all around the world. That is where the greater risk to our oceans exist, not offshore oil production. Yet this administration, all in the name of the environment, says, no, we will not develop our offshore capabilities.

In 1996, the administration resorted to the little-used Antiquities Act. I mentioned that earlier this morning. They made 23 billion tons of low-sulpher mineable coal off limits to production in southern Utah. The U.S. Forest Service issued road construction policies designed to restrict the energy industry's ability to explore for gas and oil on Forest Service lands. The Clinton-Gore administration has vetoed legislation that would have opened the coastal plain, as I mentioned, in the remote Alaska National Wildlife Refuge, where an estimated 16 billion barrels of domestic oil may be found.

The administration has ignored a report prepared by the National Petroleum Council requested by the Energy Secretary explaining how the Nation can increase production and use of domestic natural gas resources from about 22 trillion cubic feet per year to more than 30 trillion cubic feet per year over the next 10 to 12 years.

Doable? Yes. Environmentally sound? Yes. A clean fuel source? Yes. Then why aren't we doing it? Because we have an administration that is hostile to the idea of actually producing in this country and providing for this country, and their 8 years of record clearly show that.

The Clinton-Gore administration has shown little interest in solving these kinds of domestic problems and, as a result, as I mentioned earlier, we have watched our dependence on foreign crude tick up to 56 percent of our total crude demand. The price last year of a barrel of crude was around $10 and peaked last week at somewhere near $34 a barrel.

Did we see it coming? You bet we did. Has the administration known it? Yes, they have. On two different occasions, and in two very well-developed reports over the last several years, that message has been so clearly sent to this administration.

Why would they ignore it? There are probably a lot of reasons, and I have already expressed some of those reasons why this country cannot use its energy resources.

Yesterday, my distinguished friend from West Virginia, Senator ROBERT BYRD, spoke eloquently on the floor on this very subject. Of course, his State of West Virginia is a great coal State, a great producing State. The United States has the world's largest demonstrated coal reserve base and accounts for more than 90 percent of our total fossil energy reserve. In other words, we have more coal than any other country. Yet we have an administration that truly wants to deny the use of it or the development of technologies that will cause it to be burned in an ever increasingly clean way.

At the present rate of recovery and use, U.S. coal reserves can last us for more than 270 years. Let me repeat that. For 270 years, we can be self-sufficient at our current level of coal consumption. Of course, we all know the technology that will develop over that period of time that might well make the use of fossil fuels unnecessary at some point in the distant future.

Coal is used to generate over 56 percent of our electrical supply and about 88 percent of the Midwest's electrical needs. Coal use for electrical power has risen more than 250 percent since 1970, while sulfur dioxide emissions has decreased to 21 percent below the 1970 level.

While there has been a dramatic increase in the use of coal, there has been a dramatic drop in coal-fired emissions. Why? Technology, the application of technology, the kind of combustion technology that has continued to drive down emissions and make continued use of coal economically attractive.

Why shouldn't we be putting more research dollars into even better technology? Of course, we should, but it does not show up in this administration's budget. Not at all. They want windmills and solar cells. The last I checked, to provide electricity for Los Angeles with solar energy, one has to cover the whole State of Arizona with solar panels. President Clinton, don't you understand that would be environmentally unsound? It would not make a lot of sense and would not be a very, shall we say, aesthetically valuable thing to do.

Somehow they are caught in this mythical illusion: Pop up a solar cell, put a propeller on the end of a stick, tie a generator to it, and the world is going to light up. We simply know that is not the case when it comes to the kinds of energy we need to fuel our households and drive our industries. That kind of energy has to be of large capacity. It has to have the ability to peak and supply our needs during high-demand periods. Of course, it says little for the need of America's farmers and ranchers when they go to the pump this year to find out their energy costs have now doubled.

What about nuclear? Nuclear drives 20 percent of our electrical needs, and yet this administration is the most antinuclear administration in the history of this country. They have on every occasion attempted to block the effective storage of nuclear waste, high-level waste, the kind that comes from nuclear generation of electricity. They are basically saying to the electricity industry, the power industry, at least the generating industry: Don't build any more nuclear plants, even though there are no emissions from such plants. If you want to strive to get to the clean air standards that we want in our unattainment areas, you cannot do it any other way than to assure that we at least maintain the 20 percent of our electricity being generated by nuclear power.

What does that mean? It means we have to bring newer reactors online, safer reactors with new technology. Yet this administration will not invest in the necessary research.

In November of 1999, the Environmental Protection Agency sued several coal-burning utilities claiming they made major modifications in their facilities without applying for new source review permits. Utilities maintain that the modifications fell within the routine maintenance provisions that had been provided and grandfathered into the Clean Air Act in 1990.

What kind of a message does a central government send to the generating industries of this Nation? It tells them: We will not stick by the rules; we will not play by the rules; we are interested in politics at this moment, EPA politics, environmental politics; we are not interested in the pocketbooks of the consumer or, more important, the strength of the economy, even though the utility industries are providing ever cleaner sources of energy.

EPA is discussing the notion that new-source review should include voluntary regulation of CO2, which is not a poisonous gas and which is not regulated under the Clean Air Act. President Clinton, don't you understand that you cannot keep beating this economy and our energy supplies over the head with these silly notions and expect the economy to remain productive?

EPA recently changed the toxic release inventory, or the TRI, to require electric utilities to report chemical release data. The level at which reporting is required for mercury was lowered by an order of magnitude. In making these changes, EPA presented no studies or supporting rationale for why nearby communities should suddenly be concerned about such releases. Nevertheless, the reports will be widely published, thereby placing utilities at the top of the ''dirty'' facilities list.

Again I say to the President: From where are you coming? What is the game? Because it appears you are attempting to game this issue.

In 1993, EPA staff concluded that coal combustion waste, or fly ash, bottom ash, slag waste, or other combustion products, from electric utility generation do not warrant hazardous waste regulation. Yet, EPA at the behest of the environmental community seems to be about to overrule the staff recommendation. The story goes on and on.

Here is the other message. Out in my area of the country, a very large portion of the electric generating capacity comes from hydropower. We dam up rivers and we put generators in the face of the dams and we generate large quantities of renewable clean electricity.

Ever since Secretary Babbitt took office, he has been running around the country trying to find a dam to blow up. On numerous occasions, he said: I would like to blow up a really big dam. That is what the Secretary of Interior wants as his legacy. What kind of a legacy is that? I think it is called a cave man mentality legacy. Give everybody a candle and send them to a cave? Come on, Bruce Babbitt. You know the tremendous value of clean hydroelectric generation. Some 15 to 18 percent of our market blend today is hydro.

In my area, it is much larger than that. Do we need to modify our dams to save fish? Do we need to make them operate more efficiently with new technology? Absolutely we do. And we are doing that. Already we are putting in new fish-friendly turbines at Bonneville Dam at the lower end of the Columbia River. We are going to work our way up the Columbia-Snake Rivers system and that marvelous hydro facility that fuels the States of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, and Montana. No, Mr. Babbitt, we ''ain't'' going to blow up any really big dams.

It is going to be kind of refreshing when that man leaves office to leave that silly mentality by the wayside.

Technology? Yes, you bet. Bring on the new technology. But shouldn't we be encouraging clean fuel, renewable resource technology of the kind that is so abundant in the West today?

I could talk a good deal more about this, but what I hope we accomplish is a reduction in the overall fuel cost of this country by eliminating the 4.3-cent Gore tax. That is right, that is AL GORE'S tax. He is the one who sat in the Chair and broke the tie and caused the tax to become law. I want him to get the credit for raising the cost of energy in this country by that vote.

Here is something else I want to close with today that is added frustration as to why this country finds itself increasingly in an energy dilemma. The Clinton-Gore administration embraces the Kyoto Protocol. What is the Kyoto Protocol? It is the misguided result of concern by scientists around the world—and by all of us—that our world may be getting warmer as a result of the generation of greenhouse gases.

We all know that we have phenomenal long-term cycles in our country of warming and cooling. Once upon a time ago, there was an ice age. Prior to that, there was a warm period. Those 5,000- to 10,000-year cycles are very evident throughout geologic time. We know, as a fact, we get warmer. We know, as a fact, we get colder. Right now we are getting warmer.

The question is, Does the presence of man on the globe and what we are doing to our climate cause us to get warmer or does it cause us to get a little warmer under a normal warming cycle? We don't know that yet. Yet this administration, in the absence of science, and in the full-blown presentation of world environmental politics, said: Let me tell you what we are going to do. We are going to put all kinds of restrictions on the United States and other developed nations. We are going to tax the use of hydrocarbons. We want those lessened in their use. To do that, we are going to drive up the cost. AL GORE thinks the internal combustion engine is a really bad idea. He's said so on numerous occasions.

But what they did not recognize was the double kind of impact that would result from driving up the costs through taxes and limiting production at a time when the world was not ready to shift away from conventional forms of energy.

The Kyoto Protocol would require the United States to vastly reduce the use of oil, natural gas and coal, and achieve emission reduction standards when, frankly, the rest of the world would not have to play—or at least the rest of the newly developing world that will be the largest generators of greenhouse gases.

Thank goodness this Senate, in July of 1997, stood up, in a very bipartisan way, and said: No, Mr. President. No, Mr. Vice President. Your idea and the protocol is wrongheaded. We are going to stand together as a nation. More importantly, we are going to convince the rest of the world to go with us. If we are going to develop this kind of policy, we will all share equally.

What we ought to be doing, with our tremendous talents, is developing the technology for the rest of the world to use to clean up their air and to clean up their water. We should not ask them to sacrifice. We should not ask the people of developing nations to live with less than we have simply because we do not want them to use their resources for the purpose of advancing their economies. Yet that is exactly what this President and this Vice President have said by the proposal of and the endorsement of the Kyoto Protocol.

Our Senate said no, on a vote of 95–0. Thank goodness we did. It had a chilling effect. In fact, I have not heard AL GORE mention Kyoto once in the last 6 months. Why? Because he knows he has created a tremendous liability for himself politically, when the American public really understands what would have happened if the protocol had become law, and those kinds of standards and those kinds of taxes had been placed on the American consumer on the eve of a dramatic runup in the cost of crude oil that has resulted from our OPEC neighbors getting their political act together.

We will be back next week. Stay tuned.

On Monday of this coming week, on the 27th, the OPEC nations meet. Bill Richardson has been running around, all over the world, with his tin cup, begging them to turn on the oil. They turned them off 6, 8 months ago—or turned them down by several millions of barrels of production a day. They may open them a little bit. But my guess is, their goal is to keep crude oil prices well above $20 a barrel, which means the price at the pump will remain high. It may come down some this summer—and I hope it does. I hope we can jawbone them. I hope we can convince them, through good foreign policy, that wise economic policy dictates that they ought to increase production.

Yesterday, the House spoke very clearly. It said to the OPEC nations: If we are going to provide for your defense, as we have in the past, maybe you need to help us provide for some of our energy needs. All of that is a part, in combination, of what we ought to be involved in and what we ought to be talking about. I think our consumers would expect nothing less of us because, clearly, energy policy is a Government responsibility in this country, especially if there is policy that is negative in its impact on the ability of the private sector to produce an abundant source of low-cost energy to the consuming public.

This is an issue that will not go away because every day, when the consumer goes to the gas pump, and sticks his or her credit card in it, and pulls out 10, 12, 15, 20 gallons of gas, they are going to feel the impact. If you go out to buy new carpeting, if you go out, as a farmer, to buy pesticides, herbicides, and insecticides—all with a hydrocarbon base—you are going to find out that this runup in cost is having a dramatic impact on the economy and, ultimately, could have an impact on the lifestyle of all American citizens.

We must act. I hope we act both with short-term and long-term policy that is sensible, environmentally sound, but recognizes that energy abundance in this country has been the key to our tremendous economic successes down through the decades.

With that, I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. VOINOVICH). The Democratic leader.

THE MINIMUM WAGE

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, today the distinguished and esteemed Senator from Massachusetts and I are reintroducing the Democratic proposal to raise the minimum wage.

For those familiar with the legislation, they know that our legislation—the bill being reintroduced this afternoon—raises the minimum wage by $1 over 2 years, to $6.15 an hour. It is a modest but badly needed bill. It is overdue. It has already passed in the House, as most of our colleagues know, by an overwhelming margin, with strong bipartisan support. It deserves equally strong and bipartisan support in this Chamber.

Among the many people who support our proposal are America's religious leaders—the U.S. Catholic Conference, the United Church of Christ, the Jewish Council for Public Affairs, the American Friends Service Committee, the Unitarian Association of Congregations, the Episcopal Church, the Methodist Church, and many more religious organizations. There are Republicans and Democrats in this coalition of religious leaders, and all have joined together in supporting the effort to raise the minimum wage by $1 an hour over 2 years.

A job isn't only a source of income. A job, frankly, is a source of pride—or it should be. The Catholic Conference tells us that the minimum wage ought to reflect the principles of human dignity and economic justice. That is what it ought to reflect. There ought to be more to a minimum wage than simply what pay you get. There ought to be a sense of dignity and a sense of pride and a sense of accomplishment. There ought to be a feeling of goodwill in a workplace. But today's minimum wage precludes much of that. The U.S. Catholic Conference is right, the minimum wage today denies dignity, it denies economic justice.

When you adjust the increased cost of living, the real value of the minimum wage today is almost $2.50 below what it was in 1968. This chart reflects, very graphically, what we are talking about. This shows the value of the minimum wage over the years.

We started in 1968, with a value of the minimum wage, in today's dollars, at $7.66. But look what has happened. We come down now to the year 2000, and we have a minimum wage value of slightly over $5.

But look what has been happening to the trendline representing the value of the minimum wage, in the last couple years. While there have been peaks the trend is actually going down. Next year, the value of the increase, in constant dollars, will be $4.90—almost $3 below what it was 30 years ago.

Is it any wonder people are working two and three jobs? Is it any wonder we have lost some of the value, some of the dignity, some of the economic justice that was concomitant with the minimum wage of 30 years ago?

What is remarkable is that all we are asking with this increase is to bring it to $5.85 next year. This proposal, as you can see, is still below the value of the minimum wage in 1968. That is what is disconcerting. If we do not raise the minimum wage by the end of the year, every single penny of the value of the 1996 increase will be erased by increases in the cost of living.

As the chart shows, at one time we were able to increase the value of the minimum wage. Now, we would like to bring the wage back to its value in 1996. But look what happens. If we do not raise the wage, we will have eliminated entirely the previous increases of the minimum wage.

I think people ought to remember, all we are trying to do is to maintain virtually the status quo. We are not even able to bring it up to where it should be. So forget economic justice, dignity—working families are living in poverty.

The Senate passed the welfare reform legislation several years ago. We said we want to dignify work. We want to reward work. We want to ensure that people who work get the rewards that otherwise they would get on welfare. Look what has happened. As the minimum wage continues to decline, the poverty line continues to go up. So even with the minimum wage increase, minimum wage workers are going to be below the poverty line. How does that reward work? How does that keep people off welfare? If this gap continues to spread, where is the economic justice?

Under our proposal, a full-time minimum-wage worker would earn $12,792 a year. That is an increase of $2,000. That doesn't sound like a lot of money. As I noted, right now minimum wage workers are below the poverty line. But the fact is, $2,000 would buy 7 months of groceries for a family of four.

I was in a grocery store not long ago. Somebody came up to me, a total stranger, and said: I know you are Senator DASCHLE. I hate to interrupt. I know you are out there buying your groceries. I am just one person, but I want to thank you. I want to thank you for trying to fight for the minimum wage increase because I am a minimum wage worker. I have two jobs. I have no health insurance. I have a daughter who is very sick. You don't know me, and you may never see me again. I'm telling you, Senator DASCHLE, I need that money, without it I don't know what I am going to do.

You remember conversations like that. That brings life to charts like this.

It is very troubling to me that, as we fight over the minimum wage this year, we are fighting about that worker, working two jobs, trying to stay above the poverty line with a sick daughter. We are trying to decide in the Senate today whether we are going to make this worker wait another year and lose $1,200 over that period of time in this era of economic growth and vitality.

What do we say to that man in that grocery store: Look, I am glad you are working two jobs. I am sorry your daughter is sick? We want you to stay off welfare? And while we have more and more people becoming billionaires in this country, we are going to make you wait 1 more year to get that full $1 increase in minimum wage, even though it is $3 below what it was in 1968?

I can't do that. I don't know how anybody can do that. But that is what we are asking. That is why we care so much about this fight now. We didn't have the chance to bring it up last year. We forced it on the bankruptcy bill. Now the House, because I believe we forced that action last year, has acted, as they should, on minimum wage. I have some real problems with the House-passed tax package, but they acted appropriately on the minimum wage.

Why, in Heaven's name, given the economic strength we have in this economy, given the extraordinary increase we have seen in income at just about all levels but the lowest, why would we make that man, or anybody like him, wait 3 years rather than 2 to get a $1 increase so that he might be able to stay above the poverty line?

Recently, my State created 17,000 new jobs. Unemployment is lower now than it has been in 30 years. Yet we hear our colleagues say this somehow is going to hurt small business. This age-old argument has been so totally ripped apart by virtually every credible source. The Wall Street Journal, Business Week—hardly the mouthpiece of a liberal agenda—now say the 1996 predictions about job loss, the last time we increased the minimum wage, could not have been further from the truth. They were wrong. We have created more jobs in my State and in every State. Unemployment is lower, not higher. There is no question whatsoever, we can create more jobs and still provide dignity in the workplace.

Of what value is a job if you need four of them to survive? Of what value can a job be if you can't even buy health insurance for your children?

The other argument we hear so often is that minimum-wage workers are teenagers, or that they are part-time people, who pay for cars and CD players, who will be working in a high paying job someday. Again, the facts could not be more the opposite: Seventy percent of all minimum-wage workers are in their twenties or older; 60 percent of minimum-wage workers today are women in that age category; 40 percent of minimum-wage workers today are the sole breadwinners in their families.

You hear these arguments over and over again: The minimum wage costs jobs. These jobs are for teenagers. That is just bunk. There is absolutely no truth to these assertions that we hear over and over again. We are talking about people who walk up to me in grocery stores telling me about their kids, telling me they have more than two jobs, telling me that unless they get this increase in the minimum wage, they don't know how they are going to survive. What an irony—talk of survival in a period of unprecedented growth and prosperity.

I am hopeful that somehow over the course of the next couple of weeks we can reach an agreement. The House has acted on an overwhelmingly bipartisan basis. The Senate ought to go to conference. We ought to resolve this minimum wage issue. But we ought to accept the fact that we have no real argument to ask that person or anybody else to wait 3 years for a $1 increase in the minimum wage when they need it so badly right now. I am very hopeful that we can work out a procedural arrangement whereby every single person this year can count on a minimum wage increase within 2 years.

The average family now works an additional 265 hours a year just to maintain the same standard of living they had at the beginning of this decade. That is an additional 6 weeks a year that parents could be spending with their children that they are not. How much more in that direction should we be going? Three hundred hours more a year to maintain the status quo; 7 or 8 weeks a year that parents ought to be spending with their kids that they are now spending on a second or third job?

The distinguished Senator from Massachusetts and I, and so many of our colleagues, have said if we do anything this year, if we really mean what we say about economic justice and about dignity in the workplace and keeping people off welfare and addressing the real needs of working families, there is nothing more important than ensuring an increase in the minimum wage, this year, over 2 years. It ought to be over 1 year, but if we can't do it in 1 year, the compromise was, well, then let us at least try it in 2. If we can't do it in 2 years, I don't know how we turn to those working those extra hours, those extra weeks, with any sense of compassion or understanding for their circumstances.

I ask whether or not it could be a bipartisan goal that we sign and pass a measure before Mother's Day this year. What better opportunity to tell those women who make up 40 percent of the minimum wage workforce and who head households that we are going to give you some help. We are going to do all we can to keep you off welfare. We are going to try to put a little more dignity into the workplace, and we are going to provide the kind of economic justice we all say is important to us.

I have admired Bob Dole for a lot of reasons, but one thing he once said, while he was the Republican leader, is something we ought to remember again and again. He said:

> I never thought the Republican Party would stand for squeezing every nickel out of the minimum wage.

That wasn't something Senator KENNEDY or I said or anybody else on our side said. That was the Republican leader who said it wasn't the role of the Republican Party to squeeze every nickel out of the minimum wage.

I hope the majority will not squeeze every last nickel from this minimum wage either. I hope they will join us. I hope they will remember the families below the poverty line. I hope they will remember where we are and from where we have come, when it comes to dignity, economic justice, and the minimum wage today. I hope they will join us in passing this 2-year bill before Mother's Day.

Let's sign it into law. Let's send the right message.

Mr. KENNEDY. Will the Senator yield?

Mr. DASCHLE. I am happy to yield to the senior Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Does the Senator agree with me that here we are on Thursday afternoon, early afternoon, 2:45, most Americans are out working. The Senate, as I understand the schedule, will not be voting until next week on Tuesday. It is Thursday afternoon. Does the Senator agree that we have an opportunity to debate this this afternoon, and, if there were additional questions, we could debate it on Friday where, again, most Americans are working? We could stay here, doing our business, and then vote sometime on Friday or Friday afternoon, that we could dispose of this issue in a timely way? Will the Senator not agree with me that someone who bears a responsibility—as well as the majority leader, in terms of a schedule—that this particular issue could be easily disposed of this afternoon, or on tomorrow, without interrupting the Senate schedule?

Mr. DASCHLE. The distinguished Senator from Massachusetts is absolutely right. We have declared now an end of official business. We are in morning business this afternoon. We are not going to be in session tomorrow. We will be taking up the flag amendment on Monday and voting on it on Tuesday. But we are told there is not time to bring this matter to the floor. Yet tomorrow is a perfectly opportune time for us to be debating and talking about this. We would love nothing more than to have a good debate. Let's talk about whether or not this affects jobs. Let's talk about whether or not this is for teenagers or for working mothers and working families. Let's entertain amendments.

The fact is, we wouldn't have debated this last year were it not for the extraordinary efforts made by the Senator from Massachusetts who offered this amendment to a bankruptcy bill. That is what triggered the action in the Senate. I believe that is what triggered the action in the House. Now we are in a situation where we are prepared to split the bankruptcy conference from the minimum wage conference. But unless we have a vehicle with which to go to conference, it is very hard for us to conference a minimum wage that has never been considered in the Senate.

How can we go to conference without a vehicle? That is unheard of. I think Daniel Webster would be rolling over in his grave trying to understand what the modern Senate has done to the process. The process, as I used to understand it is you pass a bill in the Senate, you pass it in the House, it goes to conference, you work out the differences, and you bring it back. We haven't passed a minimum wage bill in the House.

The distinguished Senator is right. We are introducing this bill. We could bring it up today. We could have a vote on it tomorrow.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield, this is an issue on which I believe every Member of this body has voted at one time or another. It is not an extraordinary, complex issue, as issues go that we deal with. This is a rather basic issue and a rather fundamental issue. As the leader pointed out, it is basically a question of whether we are going to respect the dignity of those who want to work and can work, who are willing to work 40 hours a week, 52 weeks of the year.

Institutionally, we have voted, if my memory serves me correctly, over the history of this, probably 10 to 14 times. It is not a new issue. Members know what the dimensions of this particular question are really about.

The Senator, as I understand it, would agree with me that it wouldn't take a very long period of time to permit the Senate to express its will on whether they believe there should be an increase in the minimum wage.

As I understand the leader's position, he introduced this legislation. It is 50 cents this year; it is 50 cents next year. If we don't see this increase, we will see that the increase we provided in the 1996–1997 period will effectively be wiped out. It will be about the lowest period in the history of the country in terms of the purchasing power of the minimum wage at a time perhaps of greatest prosperity.

Does the Senator find that is something that is difficult to explain to people back in his own State of South Dakota, as I do in Massachusetts, and who wonder why we aren't willing to take some action?

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, the Senator is so right. This is a $2,000 increase. That $2,000 increase is probably made, in the case of many American entrepreneurs, in a matter of moments, minutes, or hours. We are talking about a $2,000 increase over the course of a couple of years. That is what we are talking about. These people are already struggling to retain some form of dignity in the workplace. They are determined not to go back on welfare. They are determined to try to find ways to ensure that their children have the quality of life we all dream about as Americans.

As the Senator said, how ironic it is that at a time when we have more billionaires in this country than we have ever had in our Nation's history, at a time when income has gone up exponentially for the top 20 percent of those in this country, at that very time we see potentially the lowest level of purchasing power the minimum wage has ever brought about in our Nation's history. What an incredible irony that is.

The Senator is absolutely right. I appreciate his calling attention to that.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, if the Senator will yield for a question, something perplexes me.

Is the Senate in session tomorrow?

Mr. DASCHLE. The Senate is not in session tomorrow.

Mr. BAUCUS. Are there going to be votes on Monday?

Mr. DASCHLE. There are not any votes on Monday. We will not have any votes now until Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. BAUCUS. Has the Senate had many votes lately on Mondays or Fridays?

Mr. DASCHLE. I do not recall the last time we had a vote on Monday or Friday.

Mr. BAUCUS. Is there any reason the Senate cannot meet, do its business, and vote on matters of importance on Mondays and Fridays?

Mr. DASCHLE. The Senator from Montana raises a very good point. It used to be that we considered a workweek working 5 days. The workweek is becoming more and more 3 days. Not only that; our work periods are only 3 weeks. Then there is no workweek at all. It is a remarkable juxtaposition.

First of all, we have a limited time each week. Then we have these periods for which there is no legislative work. Then we are told we don't have time to bring up the minimum wage. We don't have time to bring up issues that are of importance to families all across this country.

The Senator is absolutely right.

Mr. BAUCUS. Maybe the Senator can answer another question.

I think the Senator may have a good answer for this. But I don't. Why is it that the Senate spends so much time debating campaign contributions and campaign expenses at such astronomical and almost exponential rates so they can get elected but doesn't want to be here to do the Nation's work?

Can the Senator explain that discrepancy?

Mr. DASCHLE. I wish I could. All I know is that if you take what it costs to get elected to the Senate and divide it over the number of legislative days, it comes out to millions of dollars per day. It is a remarkable change in the circumstances we face since I have come to the Senate.

Mr. BAUCUS. Isn't it true that people at home who elect us want us to do the Nation's work? Isn't that what the people at home expect us to do?

Mr. DASCHLE. We are talking about minimum-wage workers working 40 hours and sometimes 80 hours a week. If we are not in session long enough to address the concerns they have, it seems to me, we will have a lot of explaining to do to a lot of those people who are wondering: If they are working that long, why can't we work a 5-day week?

Mr. BAUCUS. Didn't we just get a pay raise that went into effect this year?

Mr. DASCHLE. It was a cost-of-living increase.

Mr. BAUCUS. It went into effect this year.

I compliment the Senator. I compliment both Senators for what they want to do. I want to join them. To me, it is a tragedy that the Senate is not doing the Nation's work, particularly on an issue such as the minimum wage. I commend the Senators.

Mr. DASCHLE. The Senator makes a good point. I defended the cost-of-living adjustment. I think there are times when we have to recognize we want people in public service. But if we want to bring about the kind of cost-of-living increases that we understand we need at our salary level, I think everyone would also understand the need for a cost-of-living adjustment for minimum-wage workers to at least stay equal to the poverty line, and to at least give them some encouragement not to go back on welfare.

I appreciate very much the Senator from Montana pointing out that matter.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I see others who wish to address the Senate.

On this issue of the scope of what we are talking about and increasing the minimum wage 50 cents and 50 cents, as I understand it, all Americans combined earn about $4.2 trillion per year. The impact of a $1 wage increase over 2 years would be one-fifth of 1 percent of the national payroll. This is effectively what we are talking about.

If the leader has given up the floor, I ask for recognition on my own right.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I yield the floor.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, I see others who desire to be recognized. But

I want to at this time join with our leader, Senator DASCHLE, in the introduction of this measure. He has pointed out that it is 50 cents this year and 50 cents next year. That is a very modest increase.

We have been debating this issue for the last 2½ years. We have been denied the opportunity to bring this up to the Senate. We have been told by Republican leadership, day in and day out, that we haven't the time to debate this issue, that this is a complex issue that will impact inflation, that it will impact employment.

These are very important macroeconomic issues. We need time to debate.

Let the record show that our Democratic leader and others introduced this measure this afternoon. We are prepared this afternoon, on a Thursday in late March, to consider this legislation and deal with amendments, as we have done day in and day out over the period of the last 2 and a half years since we introduced minimum wage legislation. But we are prepared to deal with those arguments and finally take action.

We are being denied the opportunity as elected officials of our respective States to be able to have a vote on the increase in the minimum wage because of process, because of procedures, and because of the rules of the Senate. That is so today. But it isn't always going to be that way. As the leader pointed out, we are strongly committed to getting a vote on this measure as soon as we possibly can. We would like to do it in an orderly way so Members can participate in the debate and offer amendments. We can reach a final resolution. But if we are denied that opportunity, we are going to find a way or means to insist that the Senate address this particular issue.

I will just take a few moments to review exactly where we are in terms of the people about whom we are talking and those who would be the beneficiaries of this particular action.

We have taken action at other times in our history in order to provide for and to say to those who are working at different levels of our economy 40 hours a week for 52 weeks of the year that they are not going to have to live in poverty. That is what this is all about.

Are we going to say in the United States of America that men and women who work 40 hours a week, 52 weeks of the year, who play by the rules, are not going to have to live in poverty in the year 2000 and 2001, when we have this extraordinary prosperity? We say yes; the other side says no. That is a principal difference between our two parties on this issue. The American people ought to understand it.

If TOM DASCHLE were the majority leader, we would be debating and acting on this issue this afternoon in the Senate. But we are not. We are denied it because of the Republican position. Our leader has pointed out, all Members, Republicans and Democrats, were quite willing, without delay, without any kind of prolonged debate, to take the cost-of-living index increase of $4,600 without delay, which is what our Republican friends want us to do, delay the increase of the $1 minimum wage over 3 years. We didn't hear any of them say during the debate on the increase in the cost of living of $4,600: Spread that out.

No, no, no, we took that quickly.

We want for those working, who are needy and who are poor and who are struggling, we are saying we will spread out your increase of $1 over 3 years. How does anyone dignify that position?

We can see what has happened. The bottom fifth of families have fallen behind some 6 percent. This is from 1979 through 1999, over the last 20 years. Middle-income families are working harder. Generally, additional members of the family are going into the workforce. These middle-income families have seen a 5 percent increase in income. But most of them are working longer.

The United States of America today has workers working over 50 hours more a year than any other industrial society in the world. They are working harder and barely hanging on. Look what has happened to the top 5 percent of income families, those earning $246,000 versus the bottom 20 percent earning $12,500. Of the bottom 20 percent, many are minimum wage earners, with incomes of $10,000 or less.

Look what has been happening in the workforce during this period. People have always said the real issue in question for wage increase is productivity. There must be an increase in productivity for a wage increase. Look what has happened regarding productivity and the American worker. The real value of the minimum wage drops as productivity grows. We have had one of the greatest spurts in American productivity in the history of this Nation by American workers in recent years. At the same time, the real value of the minimum wage has collapsed. We have a dramatic increase in productivity, with more goods being produced by these workers, and they are still getting paid less and less.

What is the possible justification for that? Every indicator we have—the size of employment, the impact on inflation, the issues of productivity—all come to the same conclusion, that this Nation at this time as never before can afford an increase in the minimum wage. That is what this is about.

Finally, as the leader has pointed out, we have found now in order to get some action in the House of Representatives in the Senate of the United States, our Republican leader said we are going to ''piddle'' out an increase in the minimum wage over 3 years. We will take 3 years. However, we will provide $75 billion in unpaid for tax expenditures.

I hope we don't hear from the other side about being responsible economically. Mr. President, that is $75 billion for 3 years.

That wasn't good enough for the House of Representatives. Do you know what they said? We will give you 2 years, but we have $122 billion in unpaid-for tax cuts where 94 percent of the benefits go to the top fifth. Is that not interesting? We have to take care of the small little mom-and-pop stores; we have to help them out. We are interested in doing that. We would work with our Republican friends in terms of the mom-and-pop stores. Our Democratic leader indicated a willingness to do that. We did it in the last minimum wage increase. We are glad to take modest steps in order to be able to do that. We heard we are going to have some tax expenditures in order to protect the mom-and-pop stores. Except under this tax cut, mom-and-pop stores aren't helped; 94 percent goes to the top fifth.

Maybe that goes over in some areas of the country, but we want our friends on the other side to know this issue will not go away.

When we have that kind of action that has been taken previously, a delayed minimum wage increase spread out over 3 years, added to a $75 billion in unpaid-for tax expenditures, it makes me wonder. How many times have we come on the floor of the Senate saying: Let's do something about Head Start; let's do something about immunization, or on mental health. How much will it cost? Is it paid for? Is it paid for? Is it paid for? Well, you are not getting that, Senator.

I don't know what happened to that particular position where we have now $75 billion and $122 billion in play, holding that minimum wage hostage to benefit the wealthiest individuals in this country.

Can we justify that? Is it a position that is defensible? I don't believe so. It is wrong. Fundamentally, it is wrong.

This issue is basically a women's issue because the majority of those who receive the minimum wage are women. It is a children's issue because many women who are receiving the minimum wage have children. This is about the quality of life. As the Council of Economic Advisers has pointed out, the children in minimum-wage families spend 22 hours a week less with their parents than they did 20 years ago.

When we talk about the minimum wage, it is a family issue. It is a civil rights issue because many of the people who earn the minimum wage are people of color. And it is a fairness issue because it says in the United States we stand for men and women who work hard, play by the rules, and they ought not to live in poverty. We believe the overwhelming majority of Americans support it.

I thank our leader for bringing this matter to the Senate again and for all of the leadership he has provided. I am proud to stand with some of my colleagues on this side who have stood for that kind of increase and for the brave few on the other side who have joined. As the leader has pointed out, we will have this issue up one way or the other. It will come back again and again and again until we get fairness in our society for working men and women.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Montana.

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I hope people listened to the words of the Senator from Massachusetts. He couldn't be more right on; namely, it is the right thing to do. Purely and simply, it is the right thing to do. For that reason only I urge Members of the Senate and my colleagues to take requisite action to get to the issue, pass the minimum wage, and do the right thing, which is pass this very significant increase in minimum wage.

TRIBUTE TO SEAN-MICHAEL MILES

Mr. BAUCUS. Mr. President, I want to pay tribute to a young man, Sean-Michael Miles. Slightly over a year ago, his life was taken tragically in an automobile accident in Bozeman, MT, while he was home celebrating the Christmas holidays with his family. Everyone privileged to know Sean was touched by his contagious zest for life. He was among the very best to emerge from our State, from ''The Last Best Place.'' He was a shining star. He is my friend.

Sean's father and I grew up as neighbors. We went to school together and remained close friends ever since. I might add, Sean's grandmother, affectionately known as Granny Miles, was one of my baby sitters. I know this family well. Their strength and love for one another is an inspiration to all of us who know them. Sean-Michael's future was as bright as one could imagine. He graduated at the top of his class in Bozeman High School in 1997 and was selected by his classmates to deliver the commencement address. That same address, filled with familiar compassion for our Native American heritage, is still talked about today. Such was its honesty, its power, its celebration of promise.

At Princeton University, where Sean was in his second year, he was admired as an exceptional writer, an accomplished artist and musician. Perhaps a classmate put it best: Sean was totally brilliant and completely humble, a cool combination.

Following his graduation from Princeton, Sean intended to return to his beloved Montana and commit himself to a career dedicated to writing and the preservation of our last remaining wildlands. Sean enjoyed considerable gifts, and was truly living up to them.

Sean wanted to make the world a better place, and believed completely that one person can truly make a difference. There was no cynicism in his life. He befriended the friendless, and remembered the forgotten. Above all, he was making a difference. It is a loss beyond Montana's boundaries as well. Professor John McPhee of Princeton echoed such sentiments:

> By my lights, Sean-Michael Miles was the best that we can do—bright, responsive, hardworking, clear in expression, clear in thought, and with a personality immediately likable, immediately demanding respect. We will all miss him terribly.

Sean enjoyed a way with words. I would like to share a small piece of his brilliant work.

After climbing atop a remote buffalo jump, he discovered the ''drive lines'' that the Native tribes of our region used centuries ago to funnel herds of bison over the cliff's edge. Looking out beyond that edge, toward the vast expanse of the Absoorka Beartooth Wilderness, Sean wrote:

> Whenever I think of the changes sweeping over Montana like a spring storm, a lump forms in my throat. My first breath was drawn from mountain air.
>
> Yet I know that this land may pay a price for being beautiful, as change advances, carrying with it the prospect of loss. It is a land I desperately love. It is a part of me. It hurts so much to care so much. Yet as a Westerner, I am invited to breathe it all in deeply each day.
> Despite change and loss, a drive line containing wisdom offered through memories stretches before me. For now I am satisfied to walk along its path, eyes fixed on what remains a geography of hope.

Sean-Michael Miles was proud to live his entire life surrounded by the majestic spine of mountains that he fondly referred to with the Blackfeet phrase, ''the backbone of the world.''

Sean's death casts a dark shadow over the future of those of us who knew and loved him. Yet it is the light he offers that we commemorate today.

I have risen today to announce that I will create a fellowship in Sean's name that will focus on the conservation issues that were so dear to him. I am also pleased and honored to announce that the first Congressional Fellow serving in this prestigious position will be Sean's beloved sister Michelle. Her younger sister, Shaleen, once served as Democratic page on the floor of the Senate. So today, Michelle, who is sitting behind me, I welcome you to my staff, and I know that you bring with you your brother's finest qualities. May the legacy of Sean-Michael Miles, who walked with the silent feet of reverence through the wilds, forever serve as a source of inspiration for generations to come.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Georgia.

MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

Mr. CLELAND. Mr. President, prescription drugs currently constitute the largest out-of-pocket health care cost for seniors. Over 85 percent of Medicare beneficiaries take at least one prescription medicine, and the average senior fills eighteen prescriptions per year.

Because prescription drug coverage was not a standard part of health insurance when Medicare was enacted 35 years ago, many seniors must pay for the high cost of prescription drugs out of their own pockets. We are now facing a crisis of monumental proportion for many older Americans.

The simple fact is, the high cost of today's modern medicines and the absence of Medicare coverage have placed needed medications out of reach for too many seniors. Most older Americans must juggle daily costs like groceries and utilities with paying for medicine. They are being forced to compromise by buying only a portion of the needed medications, too often making their treatment regimens incorrect and ineffective. Without the proper medication and dosage for conditions such as high blood pressure, diabetes, and heart problems, seniors may find themselves faced with even more costly hospitalizations and compromised health.

Recently, I received a letter from Reverend Lois Congdon of Decatur Georgia. Reverend Congdon wrote to me about her impending retirement. She told of her expensive drug treatment costs and the coverage she was currently receiving under her employer-based insurance plan. Without her current salary, and once she is placed on Medicare, Reverend Congdon will no longer be able to afford her expensive prescription drugs. Even supplemental prescription coverage such as medigap offers only limited benefits and is too expensive for most seniors. Currently only one-fourth of Medicare enrollees have supplemental drug insurance and the number of firms offering such coverage has declined by 25 percent in the last four years alone.

Last month, I cosponsored legislation to provide similar prescription drug coverage for military retirees. The bill would enable military retirees over age 65 to use the National mail order pharmacy program for drug coverage. However, affordable prescription drug coverage is a benefit that all seniors should be able to obtain, not just armed service men and women. Seniors make up 12 percent of our nation's population and they purchase over one-third of all prescription drugs in America. Most older Americans live on fixed incomes of $15,000 a year which is adjusted slightly for inflation each year. However, for far too long, the rate of increase in prescription drug costs has exceeded the rate of inflation. This situation has created a need more urgent than ever to strengthen the Medicare Program with a prescription drug plan, and thereby protect millions of American seniors from more costly hospitalizations and treatments.

Expanding Medicare by adding a prescription drug benefit will bring the program in line with the realities of modern medicine. Prescription drug coverage is essential to the delivery of 21st century medicine. These medicines keep people healthy, independent, and out of the hospital. To not include prescription benefits in Medicare today is akin to not including a major form of treatment such as a surgical procedure when Medicare was established in 1965. It is absolutely unthinkable. Too many seniors lack dependable drug coverage and their health is being compromised. I am committed to providing Medicare coverage for prescription drugs, and promise to continue fighting for America's seniors. The Congress must move forward expeditiously to adopt legislation to accomplish this important objective.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. FITZGERALD). The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. ROTH. I thank the Chair.

(The remarks of Mr. ROTH and Mr. MOYNIHAN pertaining to the introduction of S. 2277 are located in today's RECORD under ''Statements on Introduced Bills and Joint Resolutions.'')

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MEASURE READ THE FIRST TIME—S. 2284

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I understand that S. 2284, introduced earlier today by Senator DASCHLE, and others, is at the desk, and I ask for its first reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the bill for the first time.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2284) to amend the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 to provide for an increase in the Federal minimum wage.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. I thank the always generous clerk.

I now ask for its second reading and object to my own request on behalf of the other side.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. If the distinguished Chair understands that, he understands more than I do. But the matter is now concluded. Once again, I suggest the absence of a quorum. And thank Heaven for Mr. Dove.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, what is the business before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate is in morning business.

Mr. GORTON. With any time limitations?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are none.

PIPELINE SAFETY

Mr. GORTON. Mr. President, last week the city of Bellingham was the site of a Senate field hearing on pipeline safety. This hearing comes after the unspeakable tragedy that took place when three young boys were killed after a gasoline pipeline exploded in Bellingham on June 10.

I want to share with you my thoughts from the hearing and outline future congressional action as the Senate Commerce Committee prepares to reauthorize the Office of Pipeline Safety this year.

Unfortunately, my Senate Commerce Committee colleagues were unable to attend last Monday's hearing in Bellingham, but I believe the committee has no greater priority than to making sure the pipelines running underneath our schools, neighborhoods, churches, and senior centers are safe.

Pipeline safety concerns aren't unique to Washington. We're seeing States such as Texas, Wisconsin, Florida, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania respond to various local pipeline issues from oil spills and leaks to siting battles. In the last decade, there were 3,917 liquid fuel spills and natural gas leaks, averaging roughly one per day. These accidents resulted in 201 deaths, close to 3,000 injuries and $778 million in property damage. And for the first time, a National Pipeline Safety Conference will be held in Washington, D.C. next month.

Though the sacrifice is one that no family and no community should have to make, the tragedy in Bellingham would be even worse if we did not learn from it and apply those lessons to try to prevent other accidents. To this end, last week's hearing was invaluable.

While the cause of the explosion remains under investigation, here's what we do know:

We know that many people in Bellingham were unaware that a pipeline was even running through their neighborhood.

We know that the Office of Pipeline Safety ignored enhanced safety requirements, including increased inspections inside pipes, in highly populated and environmentally sensitive areas as Congress required in 1992 and 1996.

We learned that cities through which the Olympic Pipelines Company line runs have tremendous concerns with the integrity of the pipelines, and have had problems getting information and cooperation from the company.

We know that the National Transportation Safety Board has criticized OPS for its poor record of responding to NTSB recommendations. NTSB Chairman Jim Hall has even said, ''There's no indication that the Office of Pipeline Safety is in charge or that its regulations, its inspections, its assets, its staffing and its spirit are adequate to the task.''

We know that right now, the power to oversee and regulate the safety of the millions of miles of pipelines running underneath our communities rests with the federal Office of Pipeline Safety under the supervision of the Department of Transportation. And in the case of implementing pipeline safety standards in Washington State they have failed miserably.

We learned that only a handful of States have the power to implement tougher safety standards, and when States are given this authority, their safety record is equal if not greater to that of OPS.

So, where does this leave us?

State government, local government, and citizen groups in Washington State were quick to answer the wake-up call from Bellingham and examine what they could do to improve pipeline safety. What they found was that while there are significant actions Washington can take to prevent and respond to accidents, such as improving the State's call-before-you-dig requirements, increasing public awareness, and training emergency response personnel, there is a lot the state cannot do with respect to prescribing safety standards because Federal law preempts state regulations.

Today is already March 23. We know this is going to be a short legislative year. Many will say we won't have the time to address this issue this year. I disagree. Congress is due to reauthorize the Office of Pipelines Safety and we've been told the administration will submit its proposal to Congress any day now.

Senator MURRAY and I are supporting legislation to give states greater authority in adopting tougher pipeline safety standards. Given the Office of Pipelines Safety's failure to make pipeline safety a priority, its reluctance to cede any authority to states, I feel we must move forward.

When I asked both the Office of Pipeline Safety and the NTSB last week to take a position on our pipeline legislation, the answer was less than clear. After listening to the painful and damaging testimony that scourged OPS's safety record and failure to comply with congressionally-mandated safety requirements, I was speechless at their unwillingness to relinquish oversight authority to the states. The State of Washington, the people of Bellingham and communities along the pipeline route are ready and capable of implementing tougher safety standards. I demand OPS to take a firm position on this pipeline legislation.

I also request that my good friend and colleague, Senator JOHN MCCAIN, chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, schedule a vote on the various pipeline safety proposals.

As I have said before, this pipeline legislation may not be perfect, and I believe we need to do some more listening before we arrive at the final pipeline safety proposal. NTSB officials highlighted the complexities of regulating pipelines that pass through a number of States. They made their case as to why they should retain sole authority to regulate interstate pipelines. But it was an unpersuasive case. I encourage the Office of Pipeline Safety to consider my proposal to allow States which have at least 90 percent of a pipeline passing through their borders, to have greater authority in setting and implementing its own safety and inspection standards.

As Senator MURRAY and I await the administration's proposal, we agree that the following proposals must be included in the final legislation:

Allow States greater authority to adopt and enforce safety standards for interstate pipelines, particularly in light of the absence of meaningful federal standards.

This increase in authority should be accompanied by an increase in grants to States to carry out pipeline safety activities.

Improve the collection and dissemination of information about pipelines to the public and to local and State officials responsible for preventing and responding to pipeline accidents. This includes ensuring that operators are collecting the information necessary to accurately assess and respond to risks. The public should be informed about where pipelines are, what condition they are in, when they fail and why they fail.

Adopt more stringent national standards for pipeline testing, monitoring, and operation.

Ensure congressional mandates are followed, and make sure there are sufficient resources to enforce regulations.

Invest more in research and development to improve pipeline inspections.

Create a model oversight oil spill advisory panel in Washington State. This body would have the authority to not only respond, but to initiate the development of pipeline safety measures.

I have long believed that those closest to the problem are in a better position to help develop the solution. Families in Washington state, and across the country, have already paid to high a price for us to miss this opportunity to put higher federal safety standards into law.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Minnesota.

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, is the Senate currently in morning business with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

OIL PRICES AND ENERGY POLICY

Mr. GRAMS. Mr. President, I rise to talk this afternoon about this country's overall energy policy or, more truthfully, to talk about the lack of this country's overall energy policy.

With fuel prices continuing their rise to levels that threaten farmers, truckers, families, and, in fact, our entire economy, I felt I needed to come to the Senate floor for a few minutes to discuss this very important issue.

As my colleagues know, I come from a rural State that is heavily dependent on agriculture. When farmers in Minnesota are hurting, it has an impact on businesses, on families, and individuals far removed from the fields of our family farms. Because Minnesota is a large State and so heavily reliant upon agriculture, it is also reliant upon truckers to move products to market and to bring products to communities. It is also important to note that Minnesota is well known as one of our Nation's coldest States, a State where many residents rely on fuel oil to heat their homes. These realities are a few examples of why crude oil prices and supplies are so important to the people of my State. They are also examples of why, since coming to the Congress in 1993, I have been a strong critic of the Department of Energy's failure to strengthen our Nation's energy policies.

In the late 1970s, our Nation responded to the energy crisis by creating the Department of Energy and charging it with developing a stable energy policy that would decrease our reliance on foreign sources of energy. At the time, our Nation was reliant on foreign oil for about 35 percent of our needs. When DOE was created, with its charge to create an energy policy to make us more energy independent, our reliance on foreign fuels was 35 percent. Despite the countless billions of dollars taxpayers have invested in the Department of Energy over the past two decades, our Nation is now roughly 60 percent reliant on foreign energy sources, and that reliance is growing and growing rapidly.

That's one of the reasons why I'm an original cosponsor of S. Res. 263, which calls on both the administration and Congress to undertake steps which will lead to a long-term reduction of our reliance on foreign sources of energy. Among those steps, the resolution calls on the administration to review all programs, policies, and regulations that place an undue burden on domestic oil and gas producers. I believe this is an important aspect of the DOE's failure to reduce reliance on foreign energy sources. Sadly, this administration's opposition to virtually all exploration and production activities on public lands has rendered our nation's domestic producers incapable of responding to supply shortages. That is why we are in the position we are in today. In fact, since 1992, U.S. oil production has been reduced by 17% while our consumption of oil has increased by 14%. In 1990, U.S. jobs in oil and gas exploration and production were roughly 405,000—today those jobs have been reduced to roughly 290,000 a 27% decline in jobs in energy-related fields. In 1990, the United States was home to 657 working oil rigs. Today, there are only 153 working oil rigs scattered across the Nation—a decline of 77 percent; again, a reason the United States did not respond to shortages in supply. During a recent hearing before the Senate Budget Committee, I asked Energy Secretary Bill Richardson if he would consider supporting the exploration of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge (ANWR), which is estimated to hold enough oil to offset 30 years of imports from Saudi Arabia. In his response, he indicated that he believes we have sufficient areas for exploration on federal lands without developing ANWR. We have opportunities, he says, to go onto other Federal lands and do the exploration. If we do, the question is, Why haven't we? If that is the case, then why has the Clinton administration failed to move forward in allowing expanded exploration and production activity on those Federal lands instead of leaving us vulnerable to the OPEC nations?

Why has this administration waited until an oil price crisis has gripped our nation before suggesting increased development of domestic oil and gas reserves on public lands? Why does this administration still maintain it's opposition to exploring our nation's most promising oil reserves like ANWR? And why does this administration maintain opposition to exploration in the United States based on environmental considerations but has no reservations about calling on other nations to do so?

For some reason, this administration seems to believe that it is an environmentally friendly proposition to expect other nations to produce our oil for us. The United States has some of the most stringent environmental standards for oil exploration and production—standards that aren't embraced by many of the oil producing nations of the world. I simply cannot see how sending our nation's energy secretary across the world to beg for increased oil production every time we have a supply problem is sound energy, economic, or environmental policy. I do not connect the two.

I believe it's also important to note that this administration is currently engaged in a number of other activities that severely limit our nation's ability to increase our energy independence. First, this administration's failure to remove nuclear waste from civilian nuclear reactors threatens to shut down nuclear power plants across the country. In Minnesota, the DOE's inaction may force the premature closure of the Prairie Island Nuclear Generating Facility. If it should close, Minnesota will lose 20% of its generation capacity. At the same time, this administration is attempting to breach hydropower dams in the Pacific Northwest—dams that are crucial to the energy needs of that region. In each of these situations, consumers will be forced to rely more heavily upon fossil fuels to replace the loss of clean energy technologies. As if that weren't enough abuse of America's energy consumers, the Clinton administration has undertaken a number of activities that have severely impacted the ability of utilities to turn to coal-fired plants to meet the energy demands of consumers. And I need not remind any of my colleagues of the lack of infrastructure in our nation to dramatically increase our use of natural gas as a reliable, base-load source capable of replacing hydropower, nuclear, and coal-fired generation.

What continues to amaze me is how this administration sends its ''yes men'' in front of Congress to pledge support for each of these generation technologies. I do not hear the administration telling Congress they want to eliminate coal-fired generation. But the EPA is doing its best to regulate coal plants out of business. I have never heard the administration say they want to close down nuclear plants, but I have yet to see them lift a finger to keep them operating. When anyone in this body confronts the administration with the impending brown outs and energy price increases its policies are going to force, all its representatives can say is that they're working on it and they support renewable energy technologies.

Well, I too, am a strong supporter of renewable energy technologies. I've been a strong proponent of the development and promotion of ethanol and biodiesel as a means of reducing our reliance on foreign oil and improving the environment. I was a cosponsor of legislation signed into law last year extending the tax credit for electricity generated from wind and expanding that tax credit to electricity generated from poultry waste. I have written letters in each of the past two years to Senate appropriators supporting significant increases in renewable energy programs, and I was one of 39 Senators to vote in support of a $75 million increase for renewable energy programs last year. I wrote to President Clinton this year asking him to include more money for renewable energy programs in his budget. However, I know that simply calling for increased funding for renewable energy can't even approach the loss of generation in hydropower, nuclear, coal, and other sources that this administration has pursued through its energy policies.

I'd like to believe that this administration has a grasp on the long-term energy needs of our nation and has plans for meeting those needs, but the actions of the administration and the DOE's failures on the spectrum of energy challenges prove otherwise.

That's why, in a letter to Secretary Richardson last week, I urged him to take immediate actions to allow for both on and offshore oil and gas exportation and production in states that want to do so. I urged him to take immediate steps to ensure that nuclear power plants such as Minnesota's Prairie Island Facility are not forced to shut down due to DOE inaction. I urged him to work with the Department of Interior to resist attempts to reduce the use of hydropower. And I urged him and the administration to undertake an immediate review of all regulations that impose undue burdens on the development of domestic energy sources that could reduce our reliance on foreign oil.

Long ago, the Congress charged the U.S. Department of Energy with the job of reducing our nation's reliance on foreign oil and establishing a long-term, stable energy policy to guide our economy for decades to come. It goes without saying that the Department has failed miserably in that, its most basic mission.

I look forward to working with my colleagues in the coming days, weeks and months in enacting a number of both short-term and long-term responses to the needs of farmers, truckers, the elderly, and all energy consumers. I've been a strong supporter of renewable energy technologies and increased funding for the Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program—or LiHEAP. I strongly support the efforts of my colleagues to increase domestic oil and gas exploration and production on public lands, including offshore reserves and the tremendous potential of ANWR. I remain committed to finding a resolution to our nation's nuclear waste storage crisis—as crisis that threatens to shut down nuclear plants and further weaken our nation's domestic energy security. And I'll continue to be one of the Senate's strongest critics of the Department of Energy's unbelievable neglect of the long-term energy needs of our nation.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. the Senator from Tennessee.

THE 17TH ANNIVERSARY OF PRESIDENT REAGAN'S STRATEGIC DEFENSE INITIATIVE

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, seventeen years ago today President Reagan first committed his administration and the country to the concept of a National Missile Defense. He rightfully viewed the concept of Mutually Assured Destruction—the prevailing strategic concept of the day—as dangerous to this Nation. President Reagan understood that the only way to protect the American people and our homeland was through common sense, straight talk, and a strong, credible defense, not threats of mutual annihilation. While President Reagan and his Strategic Defense Initiative were mocked by critics, he remained steadfast in his vision and his belief that the American people could achieve anything they committed themselves to doing.

Seventeen years later the United States remains vulnerable to missile attack, but from newer and more likely threats, some of which we may not be able to deter: accidental launches, terrorist groups, and rogue states. The United States Intelligence Community and outside expert groups like the Rumsfeld Commission tell us that the threats are real and growing. Less than two years ago North Korea launched a three-stage missile over Japan, demonstrating a North Korean capability to send a missile with a nuclear, biological or chemical weapon to the United States. Meanwhile, other rogue states like Iran, Iraq, and Libya are developing similar capabilities.

Despite these real dangers, the current administration has kept the American people vulnerable to attack by failing to vigorously pursue missile defense programs started by previous Republican administrations. It has put the fate of our country and our people in the hands of the 1972 ABM Treaty—a treaty signed with a country that no longer exists, which was written for a vastly different strategic environment, and which codified the concept of Mutual Assured Destruction.

It is imperative that the United States aggressively pursue Ronald Reagan's vision of an American homeland free and safe, protected from intimidation, blackmail, and attack by missile-armed adversaries. We can start by putting greater effort and resources into programs like the National Missile Defense program—which has already demonstrated through actual tests that missile defense is technologically feasible—a fact acknowledged privately by defense officials, and publicly by Secretary of Defense Bill Cohen following the most recent test when he stated that ''the technology is certainly proving to be on the right track.''

The United States should also continue to develop other initiatives which will complement our ground based system and provide for a multi-layered defense. I'm talking specifically about a sea-based system mounted on Navy Aegis cruisers that can be placed off an adversary's coast and destroy enemy missiles immediately after launch; or the Airborne Laser program that seeks to destroy missiles during their ascent; and a space-based system that can shoot down ballistic missiles in the outer atmosphere and vacuum of space.

I might also take this opportunity to compliment the Center for Security Policy and the Heritage Foundation that made valuable contributions in the discussion toward these alternatives.

The key to such a system is working with the Russians to allay their concerns, address their fears, and modify the ABM treaty to accommodate a robust, multi-layered national missile defense. We must try to convince the Russians that they share the threats we face—limited attacks or threats by rogue states—and that our missile defense plans in no way undercut their strategic deterrent. But ultimately, whether Russia is convinced or not, America must do what is necessary to protect itself.

I am concerned that the Clinton administration is currently negotiating changes to the ABM Treaty that will not allow us to fulfill these plans; that they are negotiating to make limited changes to the treaty that will sound good in an election year but will prevent us from building the robust, multi-tiered missile defense we need. This would be unsatisfactory and irresponsible. Marginal changes to the ABM Treaty will only keep America vulnerable to missile attack, mislead the public about their safety, and tie the hands of the next Administration that may choose to do what is right, not politically or diplomatically expedient.

Finally, we must work with our Allies to address their concerns, interests, and our mutual defense obligations. We stood guard together during the dark days of the Cold War and eventually defeated communism. We must stand together again now and face the threats of the post-cold-war era.

Only through a sustained commitment to a national missile defense system—which can defend the American people from these horrible weapons of mass destruction—can the government fulfill its first responsibility of defending the United States. This is the right and sensible thing to do, and the American people are capable of achieving it. President Reagan understood that almost twenty years ago today.

Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, on several occasions I have discussed missile defense programs and the importance of moving as quickly as possible to develop and deploy missile defense systems—both theater and national—to protect forces that are deployed around the world and our citizens here at home. Of all the programs designated as ''Major Defense Acquisition Programs'' by the Office of the Secretary of Defense, only the Airborne Laser program has distinguished itself by being on schedule and on budget while meeting or exceeding all of its technical requirements. The spectacular performance of this program is the standard all defense programs should aspire to.

Our debates on defense programs usually focus on budgets, schedules, performance, requirements, and threats, but seldom do we pause to recognize success; more specifically, we hardly ever acknowledge the human component of success.

The many accomplishments of the Airborne Laser program did not just happen by accident. Rather, the program has succeeded because of the human element; because of the many people who, over the course of the last three decades, have advanced our science and engineering to the point where the United States will be able to put chemical lasers on 747 aircraft and use them to defend America, its interests, and its deployed forces.

Most recently, the Airborne Laser program has succeeded because of the leadership of Col. Mike Booen and Dr. Paul Shennum, both of whom will be leaving the program in April after having driven the Airborne Laser program forward for the last four years. They deserve special recognition for their efforts.

Colonel Booen was named Deputy Airborne Laser Program Director in the summer of 1996 and promoted to Director in November of that year. While Colonel Booen has been an energetic and tireless advocate for the Airborne Laser program and its people, his latest achievements are just the most recent in a notable career that includes early promotions, academic recognition as a distinguished graduate of the Air Force Academy, and assignments as a Defense Department Manned Space Flight Engineer and Deputy Chief of the Secretary of the Air Force's Staff Group. In recognition of his success Colonel Booen has been selected to become the next Director of the Air Force's System Program Office for the Space-Based Infrared System. It is an assignment of critical importance to our nation's security, and I look forward to continuing to work with Colonel Booen as he resuscitates that program.

Over a distinguished career of 40 years with Boeing, Dr. Paul Shennum has developed a reputation as a leader who leads with energy and integrity, embraces change, encourages innovation, and challenges people to contribute more than they thought they could. Dr. Shennum is one of the rare program managers who can be counted on to provide factual answers when asked a question. He does not give evasive responses, however convenient they may sometimes be for his company or the Pentagon. His straightforward approach with the Pentagon, Congress, and within his industry team has been instrumental in the Airborne Laser's outstanding program performance. I wish him the best in his well-deserved retirement.

The Booen-Shennum team has succeeded because both of these men understand what the word ''leadership'' means. They know it involves fixing on an objective, setting high, but realistic, standards, and leading the government and industry components of the Airborne Laser team effectively to that objective. They have refused to accept excuses for work that hasn't met their standards. They have inspired their colleagues to accomplish more than many thought possible. They appreciate effort, but expect results.

And it is results, unparalleled in any other defense program, that Mike Booen and Paul Shennum have given us.

Colonel Booen and Dr. Shennum have demonstrated how a government-industry team should act. This program is not a team in name only, thanks to the constant efforts of Colonel Booen and Dr. Shennum. They have caused the team members, including the various defense contractors, industry and government employees to really work together to achieve a common goal.

In their relentless pursuit of excellence, Col. Mike Booen and Dr. Paul Shennum have reminded us that America's defense programs will ultimately succeed or fail because of the people involved. I congratulate them and thank them for doing such a great job.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

MILLENNIUM DIGITAL COMMERCE ACT

Mr. THOMPSON. I ask that the Chair lay before the Senate a message from the House to accompany S. 761.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

Mr. THOMPSON. I ask unanimous consent that the Senate disagree to the amendments of the House, agree to the request for a conference with the House, and the Chair be authorized to appoint conferees on the part of the Senate.

Mr. REID. I object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

MEASURE READ THE FIRST TIME—S. 2285

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I understand that S. 2285 is at the desk, and I ask for its first reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the bill for the first time.

The bill clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2285) instituting a Federal fuels tax holiday.

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I now ask for its second reading, and I object to my own request.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The objection is heard.

The bill will be read the second time on the next legislative day.

ORDERS FOR MONDAY, MARCH 27, 2000

Mr. THOMPSON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today it adjourn until the hour of 12 noon on Monday, March 27, 2000. I further ask consent that on Monday, immediately following the prayer, the Journal of proceedings be approved to date, the morning hour be deemed expired, the time for the two leaders be reserved for their use later in the day, and the Senate begin a period of morning business until 1:30 p.m. with Senators permitted to speak for up to 10 minutes each, with the exception for the following: the first 45 minutes under the control of Senator DURBIN, or his designee; the second 45 minutes under the control of Senator THOMAS, or his designee.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. THOMPSON. For the information of all Senators, following the morning business period at 1:30 on Monday, the Senate will begin consideration of S.J. Res. 14 regarding the desecration of the flag. Under the agreement reached earlier, two amendments will be debated during Monday's session of the Senate.

As announced, no rollcall votes will occur on Monday, and therefore the votes in relation to those amendments are scheduled for 2:15 on Tuesday. Any Senators interested in debating this important measure should be prepared to do so on Monday or early Tuesday.

Again, the next scheduled rollcall vote will occur beginning at 2:15 on Tuesday.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, prior to leaving the floor, I hope the leader gets the message that we have a lot of work to do. There was a dialog that went on in the Chamber today talking about the many things that need to be done. Minimum wage was talked about at some length. I also remind the majority that there are other things we need to get to work on. We are not doing anything related to education. We have health care delivery problems that need to be addressed, including Patients' Bill of Rights, prescription drugs for seniors, and Medicare.

There are other things that may not sound as important but are just as important. I met again today with some high-tech people. I know the Senator from Tennessee has spent some time on the Export Administration Act. I hope the majority will allow us to move forward on that legislation. It is extremely important to the high-tech industry, which is the flagship that is now driving this economy.

The minority is ready to work day and night on all these issues. The reason I am so concerned is I have worked since my time in the Senate with Senator BYRD. He has been whip, he has been majority leader, minority leader, chairman as well as ranking member of the Appropriations Committee, and many other positions, but I have worked with him my entire 14 years in the Senate on the Appropriations Committee. I know how long it takes to work the appropriations process. We have 13 appropriations bills we must move, and it must be done before October 1.

We don't have a budget yet. We have 13 subcommittees with the appropriators waiting to move their bills. We cannot do it until we get a budget. I don't think we are at a point of desperation yet, but there is a lot of work to do and not much time to do it. I hope the majority allows the Senate to move forward on all these important things as quickly as possible.

TRIBUTE TO RICHARD BEST—AN AMERICAN HERO

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, Tom Brokaw's recently released a best-selling book, ''The Greatest Generation'' is a tribute to the contributions of the millions of Americans who grew up during the Great Depression, then went on to fight and win WWII.

I suggest that most Americans will agree that Mr. Brokaw's father's generation is one of unique and lasting significance.

Having lived through that dark hour when totalitarian regimes in Europe and Asia threatened the survival of our republic, and having witnessed the sacrifices unhesitatingly borne by our servicemen, I must confess that I, like most of that generation, can never take our liberties for granted.

More than a half-century removed from victory in WWII, in retrospect I am convinced that far too many Americans have forgotten (or perhaps never learned) how bleak the prospects for our success appeared to be in the spring and early summer of 1942.

Victory was not preordained, and our fate might well have been vastly different had it not been for the heroic actions of U.S. Navy Lieutenant Richard Best and others like him who won that decisive victory at the Battle of Midway in June 1942, reversing a decade of previously unchecked (and largely unchallenged aggression) by the Japanese Imperial Navy.

Mr. President, to understand fully the heroic nature of Lieutenant Best's heroism, it is essential to understand the events leading up to the battle. Prior to Midway, American forces in the Pacific had endured a devastating series of losses and withdrawals that had crippled the U.S. Pacific Fleet.

Beginning with almost 3,600 casualties at Pearl Harbor in December 1941, Americans witnessed the fall of Hong Kong, Singapore, and Rangoon to battle-hardened Japanese forces; the collapse of a spirited defense of Battan by American and Filipino forces; and finally, the devastating loss of Corregidor, the island at the entrance of Manila Bay—an island that the United States had heavily fortified and which had been dubbed the ''Gibraltar of the East.''

These losses led many Americans to the conclusion that Japan's success in the Pacific was inevitable. Some voices at home began to call for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from the Pacific theater so that we could first concentrate on winning the war against fascism in Europe.

After the selfless and courageous action of Lieutenant Best on June 4, 1942, and the American victory at the Battle of Midway, it became clear that America would not abandon the Pacific theater to an unprovoked aggressor. Instead, America would stand and fight.

Mr. President, the Japanese plan of attack on Midway was designed as part of the largest operation in the history of the Imperial Japanese Navy. Anticipating complete surprise and equipped with four fast carriers, Kaga, Akagi, Soryu, and Hiryu, the First Carrier Striking Force had reason to expect a crushing victory. The early action of the battle seemed to justify that confidence.

The first action saw three successive waves of American torpedo bombers attack the Japanese carriers. While avoiding damage to their carriers, Japanese fighters and antiaircraft guns quickly managed to shoot down 35 of the 41 American aircraft.

Following these devastating losses, two squadrons of United States dive bombers from the U.S.S. Enterprise swooped down on the Japanese carriers. Leading the Enterprise's Bombing Squadron Six, a group of 15 Dauntless SBD aircraft was their commanding officer, Lieutenant Richard Best (later lieutenant commander).

Regarded as one of the Navy's most skilled dive-bomb pilots. Lieutenant Best took the point attacking the well-defended Japanese flagship, The Akagi. With precision, he delivered his bomb on the flight deck of the powerful carrier, scoring the first direct hit, one that would eventually lead to the sinking of the ship.

Of the 15 planes in his squadron, only Lieutenant Best and four others returned to the Enterprise that day. After refueling and rearming, Lieutenant Best soared into the air again. This time he was searching for the Hiryu, the one Japanese carrier that had managed to survive the day's earlier fighting.

According to the Naval Historical Center, Richard Best scored a second direct hit against the Hiryu, helping to deliver a devastating blow the overconfident and seemingly invincible Japanese Navy.

In addition to being the only American pilot to score two successful direct hits on Japanese carriers at the Battle of Midway, there was something else remarkable about Lieutenant Best's courage that day. At the time of the attack, he was physically weakened and suffering from severe lung damage. Doctors later diagnosed him as suffering from tuberculosis, a condition that would (1) prevent him from ever flying again and (2) would cause him to spend the next two years recovering in Navy hospitals.

For his actions at Midway, Lieutenant Commander Best received the Navy Cross in 1942, the second highest military award presented to members of the Naval Service. It now appears that this award was based on incomplete information and that at the time, the Navy was not aware (1) that Best was the only pilot who scored two direct hits and (2) that he was suffering from tuberculosis.

Since then, a number of distinguished retired Naval officers, including Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, have ''weighed-in'' in support of awarding Dick Best the Congressional Medal of Honor. Should the Department of the Navy and the Department of Defense determine that an upgrade of the Navy Cross is appropriate I will unhesitatingly support it.

Mr. President, tomorrow night, at a dinner in New York City, the International Midway Memorial Foundation, will celebrate the 90th birthday of Dick Best and honor him for his selfless and courageous conduct in the Battle of Midway. While I am unable to be present, I certainly extend my gratitude and respect for his incredible heroism that day.

HONORING THE DEDICATION OF RICE-TOTTEN STADIUM, MS VALLEY STATE UNIVERSITY

Mr. LOTT. Mr. President, I rise to recognize the importance of this weekend in my home State of Mississippi. On March 25th, Mississippi Valley State University (MVSU) will rededicate and rename its football complex. Formerly known as Magnolia Stadium, the Rice-Totten Stadium will honor two of MVSU's great athletes and two ambassadors for the Itta Bena school.

Jerry Rice is a legend—not only in Mississippi, but throughout the world. After completing an extraordinary career at Valley, Jerry went on to become the greatest professional wide receiver ever. During his time with the San Francisco 49ers, Jerry dazzled fans with his ability to make the impossible look easy, broke numerous NFL reception records, and led his team to multiple Super Bowl Championships.

Willie Totten is one of collegiate athletics's greatest competitors. From 1983–1986 Willie led Valley to the top of Division I–AA football. He also raised the bar by which all college offenses are now judged. Today, almost every college football team utilizes a strong pass-oriented offense game plan, but that hasn't always been the case. Football fans have Willie to thank for showing us how exciting passing over 50 times a game can be. Following a solid career with the Buffalo Bills, Willie served the future of competitive athletics as a college and high school coach.

I believe it's only fitting that MVSU recognize and honor Jerry Rice and Willie Totten for their accomplishments and achievements by naming Magnolia Stadium after them. Although I will not be able to attend the rededication ceremony, I wish MVSU, Jerry Rice, Willie Totten, their families, and those associated with the University they celebrate this occasion.

THE VERY BAD DEBT BOXSCORE

Mr. HELMS. Mr. President, at the close of business yesterday, Wednesday, March 22, 2000, the Federal debt stood at $5,727,734,275,348.06 (Five trillion, seven hundred twenty-seven billion, seven hundred thirty-four million, two hundred seventy-five thousand, three hundred forty-eight dollars and six cents).

One year ago, March 22, 1999, the Federal debt stood at $5,642,227,000,000 (Five trillion, six hundred forty-two billion, two hundred twenty-seven million).

Five years ago, March 22, 1995, the Federal debt stood at $4,844,513,000,000 (Four trillion, eight hundred forty-four billion, five hundred thirteen million).

Ten years ago, March 22, 1990, the Federal debt stood at $3,022,412,000,000 (Three trillion, twenty-two billion, four hundred twelve million).

Fifteen years ago, March 22, 1985, the Federal debt stood at $1,708,934,000,000 (One trillion, seven hundred eight billion, nine hundred thirty-four million) which reflects a debt increase of more than $4 trillion—$4,018,800,275,348.06 (Four trillion, eighteen billion, eight hundred million, two hundred seventy-five thousand, three hundred forty-eight dollars and six cents) during the past 15 years.

KEEP OUR PROMISES TO AMERICA'S MILITARY RETIREES ACT OF 2000

Mr. BURNS. Mr. President, I rise today in support of S. 2003, Keep our Promises to America's Military Retirees Act of 2000.

This is an important step in providing the men and women who serve our nation with a benefit our government promised them when they entered the military and, a promise that our government broke. It is our duty to restore these benefits.

There are still a few of us who serve in the Senate that wore our country's uniform in time of war and in time of peace that know of the hardships placed on the military people and their families. We also know, first-hand, of the promises made by our government to our service men and women. This bill is just a small step in restoring one of those most important promises—health care for military retirees. There are military retirees in my State of Montana that drive hundreds of miles to get their health care. There are some living a few miles from Malmstrom AFB, who cannot get an appointment on base. Mr. President, these are the folks that we promised to take care of it they spent 20 years of their lives defending our freedom.

We have a long way to go and much more to be done for our military personnel, active duty, retired, as well as our veterans. As chairman of the Appropriations subcommittee on Military Construction, I place a high priority on providing the active duty men and women and their families with adequate homes and facilities to work and live in. Mr. President, we have the best trained and the most highly educated military in the world—we must make a commitment to provide them with the tools necessary to do their jobs, with the salaries and benefits to recruit and retain them and with adequate homes and facilities to live and work. Just as these people honor their country with their commitment, this country must honor our commitment to them. With anything less, we lose these valuable people.

I encourage my colleagues to support S. 2003.

ADDITIONAL STATEMENTS

DAY OF HONOR OBSERVANCE

● Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I rise today to wholeheartedly support a resolution to designate May 25 as ''Day of Honor 2000,'' to recognize African American and other minorities who fought so valiantly during World War II. I would like to take this opportunity to encourage nationwide participation in this Day of Honor Observance.

African Americans and other minorities fought and died in World War II to protect the freedom and liberty that we so often take for granted. Too often during the war and in years since, these brave men and women were subjected to unfair discrimination and have never received the recognition they deserve.

In 1941, we lived in an era in which African Americans could not eat at a lunch room counter with others, or drink from the same water fountains. Yet, we felt no hesitation in asking these same Americans to fight for democracy. As a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, I see firsthand the sacrifices that our men and women in the armed forces make to preserve America's freedom. How much harder must it have been to make these same sacrifices fifty years ago. We owe them more than we can ever repay, and for this reason I wholeheartedly support a resolution and encourage nationwide participation in recognizing those African Americans who helped to preserve the liberty that has made our country great.

Pittsburgh will be joining cities across the nation who will host a ''Day of Honor Observance'' on March 15, 2000, as part of the effort to recognize these citizens to whom we owe so much. I will be participating in this observance and I encourage you to join me in honoring those who put their lives on the line so that we might be free.●

JOHN AND MICHAEL DONOGHUE—FATHER & SON NEW ENGLAND PRESS ASSOCIATION HALL OF FAMERS

● Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, today I am pleased to recognize two outstanding Vermont journalists, both affiliated with my alma mater, St. Michael's College, and both recently elected to the New England Press Association Hall of Fame. This prestigious honor recognizes lifetime achievements in journalism. I am well acquainted with the work of both, and know that this recognition is well deserved.

The late John D. Donoghue was the first Public Relations/Sports Information Director at St. Michael's, the first chairman of the Journalism Department there, was a music and arts critic for 35 years at the Burlington Free Press, and Executive Editor of the Vermont Catholic Tribune. During his tenure as professor and journalist, John Donoghue worked through his association with the New England Press Association and Vermont Press Association to improve professionalism within the industry, and fought for the public's right to know. He was a trailblazer among journalists from my home state, and his legacy continues in Vermont, across the United States, and in the foreign press, through his students who have successfully pursued journalism careers.

Michael Donoghue has served Vermonters for three decades as a journalist at the Burlington Free Press, and in the tradition of his father, teaches journalism at St. Michael's College. During Mike's tenure at the Free Press, he has been at the center of efforts to improve reporters' access to information, thus increasing Vermonters' access to their government. Mike helped lead the effort to allow cameras into Vermont courts, was a leader in efforts to improve the Vermont Public Records Law, has successfully fought to keep court records open, and recently was one of four Americans invited to Ireland to make presentations on Freedom of Information after that country adopted such a law. He is a past President of the Vermont Press Association, and active in several national journalism organizations. At the Burlington Free Press, he has proven to be among Vermont's most versatile reporters, covering everything from sports to politics to the court beat with expertise.

In honor of this outstanding father and son duo, I ask that the article Dedication Runs in the Family for Donoghues, from the Saturday, February 12, issue of the New England Press Association Daily News, be printed in the RECORD.

[From the NEPA Daily News, Feb. 12, 2000]

DEDICATION RUNS IN THE FAMILY FOR DONOGHUES

(By Jaclyn Tammaro)

They have always said ''like father like son,'' and NEPA board member Mike Donoghue and his late father, John D. Donoghue, are a perfect example.

Both were honored by NEPA last night for their strong commitment and contributions to community journalism.

Mike Donoghue, who lives in Vermont, has written for the Burlington Free Press for 30 years, covering a variety of news. Recently, he began specializing in sports reporting.

In what Donoghue calls his ''spare time,'' he teaches journalism classes at St. Michael's College in Vermont. In 10 of the 15 years he has taught there, he has been a co-adviser to the award-winning student newspaper, The Defender.

Aside from his work with NEPA, the Burlington Free Press and St. Michael's College, Donoghue has also served as an officer of the Vermont Press Association for 20 years, mainly pressing the issue of camera use in Vermont's courtrooms.

The last 13 years, he has taken the position of volunteer executive director. In this seat, he ran meetings and dealt with newspaper comments.

''I've tried to improve professionalism in Vermont and move it to the rest of New England'' Donoghue said.

On a national level, Donoghue is state chairman of Project Sunshine, a society for professional journalists. As chairman, he has testified for the release of public records and has tried to improve various laws.

His job as journalism educator at St. Michael's College has allowed him to become a member of the Journalism Education Committee.

A member of NEPA since 1996, Donoghue has served as chairman of the Publications Committee, and has chaired the legislative and membership services committees.

''NEPA is a vital organization,'' he said. ''Approximately 1,500 people come to Boston each winter to hear topnotch speakers and to see the best work in six neighboring states being honored. The convention is a tribute to the organization and a highlight of New England journalism each year.''

Donoghue said he is strongly motivated by his wife, Ann Marie. ''If it wasn't for her, I wouldn't be doing this,'' he said.

Donoghue shared some memories about the contributions of his father, John D. Donoghue. A former NEPA board member, John Donoghue was an arts and entertainment critic for the Burlington Free Press for 35 years. He also worked as an editor for the Vermont Catholic Tribune for four years, before retiring.

Involved in journalism education like his son, John Donoghue served as the first chairman of journalism at St. Michael's College.

Both father and son have shown a strong dedication to the field of journalism and their contributions have been recognized by NEPA's Hall of Fame.●

ANNIVERSARY OF JONESBORO TRAGEDY

● Mr. HUTCHINSON. Mr. President, tomorrow, March 24, is the 2-year anniversary of the day on which Natalie Brooks, Paige Ann Herring, Stephanie Johnson, Brittheny Varner, and Shannon Wright were the victims of senseless violence at the Westside Middle School in Jonesboro, AR. Today, I rise simply to offer my condolences to their families and friends and to the other victims of that tragedy. They are, and will continue to be, in my thoughts and prayers.●

COMMEMORATION OF GREEK INDEPENDENCE

● Mr. REED. Mr. President, I am honored to rise today to acknowledge and celebrate the 179th anniversary of Greek Independence. On March 25, 1821, courageous Greeks, poorly armed but imbued with an ancient calling for democracy, initiated a revolution that would successfully end 400 years of oppression by the Ottoman Empire. I am proud to join my distinguished colleagues as a cosponsor of Senator SPECTER's Senate Resolution 251 which designates Saturday ''Greek Independence Day: A National Day of Celebration of Greek and American Democracy.''

The achievements of Greek civilization in art, architecture, science, philosophy, mathematics, and literature became legacies for succeeding generations living around the world. But it was the idea of democracy, born in Athens over two thousand five hundred years ago, that signaled the beginning of a lasting revolution to which we as Americans are eternally grateful.

As citizens of the United States, we are proud to recognize the contributions of Greek culture in the creation of our great nation. The Founding Fathers, deeply inspired and influenced by Hellenic ideals, developed our representative democracy from the example of the ancient Greeks. As U.S. democracy flourished, its principles inspired citizens in other nations, sparking revolutions across time and space, from France in 1789 to Portugal in 1974.

As vital as the culture of ancient Greece was to the formation of our nation, modern Greek culture continues to enrich our society today. I can speak firsthand of the significant contributions that Greek-Americans make in my home state of Rhode Island. They serve our communities in many professions and continue to contribute to the state through their hard work and active citizenship.

Greece's commitment to democracy has been essential in fostering stability and supporting the ideals of freedom and equality among its neighbors in the Balkans and in the Mediterranean region. Today, the United States supports Greece in its call for fellowship and peace in the Balkan peninsula and on the divided island of Cyprus. I applaud the Greek people for their commitment to the protection of democratic principles in these regions.

Therefore, on the day marking the 179th anniversary of the revolution for independence, I congratulate all Greeks and Greek-Americans and express my appreciation for their contributions and those of their ancestors.●

IN RECOGNITION OF TC DRAYTON

● Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, I take this opportunity to recognize one of Charleston, South Carolina's finest and feistiest community activists, Thelma ''TC'' Drayton. People who have known my friend TC over the years will tell you that nothing, and I mean nothing, stands in her way in spurring the East Side community to action. Thanks in large part to TC's hurricane-force commitment, the at-risk neighborhood where she has lived for 53 years is cleaner, safer and more in control of its destiny. Last week, the community acknowledged her many contributions when Agape Ministries established the TC Drayton Award for volunteerism to be presented each year.

Volunteers in search of encouragement during tough times need look no further than TC's example. Like Charleston's East Side, which developers have begun to acquire an appetite for, TC Drayton is up against a formidable foe these days. She is fighting her battle against lung cancer with characteristic force and optimism. She hopes to retire from her job as community liaison with the city of Charleston and devote more time to volunteer projects. One that is closest to her heart is a new Agape project known as COAT—Coalition of Older Americans Task Force. TC has always been quick to lend a hand to older members of her church family at Friendship Baptist and would like to extend her reach to other seniors in need.

We all wish TC a speedy recovery and a chance to touch even more lives in Charleston. She is a credit to South Carolina, deserving of all the accolades that she receives.●

CALVIN COLLEGE KNIGHTS

● Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I rise today to congratulate the Calvin College Knights on their recent athletic success. On Saturday, March 18, 2000, Calvin College's Men Basketball team completed their ''storybook'' season by winning the Division III Men's National Championship. The National Championship is the Men's second since 1992 and the third for Calvin College in the last two years. The Calvin Women's Cross Country team captured the National Title in 1998 and 1999.

With only two seniors on their roster, the young Knights opened the season by winning the Lee Pfund Classic in Wheaton, Illinois. After the tournament, Calvin began play in the competitive Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association, the nation's oldest athletic conference, where they compiled a perfect 17–0 record. Included in this total were two thrilling victories over arch-rival Hope College. For the uninitiated, this intrastate rivalry has the ability to make or break either school's season. Sports Illustrated has noted that the rivalry between these ''two Division III schools in Western Michigan, is the equal of Duke-North Carolina, Georgetown-Syracuse or any of the big Division I rivalries,'' and Tim Russert announced the outcome on ''Meet the Press'' this year.

The drama and success of the regular season served as a prelude to the NCAA Tournament. Calvin's first tournament game was an overtime cliff-hanger against Franklin in which Nate Burgess, of Grand Rapids, MI, tipped in the winning basket with 3.6 seconds left. This basket allowed Calvin to advance to the ''Sweet 16'' for the first time since 1993. After two lopsided victories, Calvin relied on the last minute of heroics of Bryan Foltice, of Grandville, MI, who hit a running jumper as time expired to propel Calvin into the National Championship game.

The Championship game against the University of Wisconsin Eau Claire featured a torrid first half, clutch plays in the waning minutes and a well-balanced attack in which five Knights scored in double figures. With this 79–74 victory, Calvin concluded the season with a 22-game winning streak, and became only the sixth Division III school to have won two national championships.

The season became even sweeter when Jeremy Veenstra, of Kalamazoo, MI, and Aaron Winkle, of Lake City, MI, were named to the Final Four All-Tournament team. In addition, Winkle was both an All-American and Academic All-American. I know my Senate colleagues will join me in saluting Calvin College for their extraordinary individual achievements and their National Championship. Go Knights!

Mr. President, I ask that the team roster be printed in the RECORD.

The material follows:

TRIBUTE TO DAVE McDUFFEE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Dave McDuffee on his receiving the Merrimack Chamber of Commerce Organization of the Year award. This award recognizes one organization or business which is dedicated to reaching out to the community.

At the helm of any corporation, there is always one individual who stands out as beacon which lights the path for fellow workers to follow. Dave is such an individual. As President of McDuffee Insurance, Dave has learned that a solid business structure rests on the surrounding community.

Dave's working career has been dedicated to both the insurance business and the community. In 1981, Dave started his own insurance agency with offices in Pepperell, Massachusetts and Merrimack, New Hampshire. A few years later, he added another office in Dover. Dave's business, which began with himself and a secretary, has grown to be the largest independently owned agency in New Hampshire with nearly 40 employees. With effort, dedication, and hard work, Dave has built a growing empire in its own right. Few men could do as he has done without his courage and drive.

Additionally, Dave has managed to place his agency at the forefront of community affairs. Dave is a firm believer in people and businesses coming together for the betterment of the community. He strongly urges members of his board to participate in community events and activities. His agency has been a sponsor of the Merrimack Chamber's golf tournaments, MYA teams, and numerous other charities.

It is an honor to represent Dave McDuffee in the United States Senate. Mary Jo and I wish you the best of luck in your future endeavors. May you always continue to inspire those around you in their dedication to the community.●

TRIBUTE TO THOMAS PESCHKE

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Master Chief Thomas Peschke upon his retiring from the United States Naval and Marine Corps. Thomas has faithfully served his country and its citizens for more than thirty years. As a Navy veteran myself, I know firsthand the dedication and hard work that this entails. Thomas is one who has exhibited integrity, courage, honor, and leadership, and has gained the respect of his peers, and superiors. He is truly an example by which future generations can set their compass as they sail into the future.

I wish Thomas much happiness as he embarks upon his new journey in life. He will be greatly missed. Thomas, it has been a pleasure to represent you in the United States Senate. I wish you the best of luck in your future endeavors. May you always continue to inspire those around you.●

TRIBUTE TO THE ROCHESTER FIRE DEPARTMENT

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to the brave men and women of the Rochester Fire Department, whose quick thinking and willingness to put their lives on the line for their fellow citizens helped save the lives of three families trapped inside their burning apartment building.

The fire that engulfed the apartment building on 19 Sumner Street the night of January 11th could have resulted in the loss of many lives. Instead, the families that lived there, including two very young children, are alive and recovering today because the men and women of the Rochester Fire Department risked their lives to save these families. We often forget just how much these courageous people risk in the service of others. As they go to work each and every day, firefighters are taking the ultimate risk so they can protect and serve their neighbors.

Despite their heroic deeds, the men and women of the Rochester Fire Department remain humble about their amazing rescue. Ask any of them and they will tell you they were merely ''doing their job'', and they would do it again if someone else's family needed help. Their unselfishness, professionalism, and dedication keep all of us safe.

I thank the men and women of the Rochester Fire Department for their bravery and hard work. It is truly an honor to serve them and all of the firefighters in our great state.●

TRIBUTE TO CINDY TAYLOR

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise to pay tribute to Cindy Taylor upon the occasion of her being recognized as the Merrimack Chamber of Commerce 1999 Business Person of the Year. Cindy has faithfully served the chamber and its members for the past two years, and she has become an example for other volunteers to follow.

Her position with the Public Service Company of New Hampshire inspired Cindy to become involved with the chamber in 1998. She was almost immediately nominated as the ambassador at various chamber events. In 1999, Cindy became vice president of membership for the chamber. With Cindy at the helm, the committee increased its numbers by 20%. During this period, Cindy also co-chaired the annual banquet committee. This position required an extensive amount of effort in planning and executing the celebration. Cindy's participation in any project guarantees organization, dedication and quality. She is one whose input is valued on all projects, and who desires to hear the opinions of others. She is truly a team-player, and was subsequently nominated as Chamber President for the year 2000.

Cindy, it is a pleasure to represent such a valuable woman from New Hampshire in the United States Senate. Mary Jo and I wish you the best of luck in your future endeavors. May you always continue to inspire those around you.●

TRIBUTE TO TERRY WHEELOCK

● Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, I rise today to pay tribute to Terry Wheelock upon the occasion of his receiving the Merrimack Chamber's Presidential Award. Terry has been with the Chamber for many years, and he has proven himself to be an integral asset. Terry has invested much effort, time, and dedication to chamber events and meetings. His love of the game of golf has aided the chamber through fund-raising tournaments. His personality fills the group with enthusiasm, and his talents constantly gain praise from his peers. His warmth and personality have been a constant positive influence for those around him. Mary Jo and I applaud his devotion and hard work for the Merrimack Chamber.

Terry, it is a pleasure to represent you in the United States Senate. I wish you the best of luck in you future endeavors. May you always continue to inspire those around you.●

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS

The following petitions and memorials were laid before the Senate and were referred or ordered to lie on the table as indicated.

POM—442. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of West Virginia relative to an amendment to the Constitution regarding taxation; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 5

Whereas, Separation of powers is fundamental to the United States' form of government; and

Whereas, Section eight, article one of the Constitution of the United States of America vests the Congress, the legislative branch of government, with the power to lay and collect taxes; and

Whereas, The duty and responsibility of the judiciary is to interpret law, not to create law; and

Whereas, Recent federal court decisions, including Missouri v. Jenkins of 1990, have resulted in the judicial branch levying taxes or increasing the amount of taxes imposed upon our citizenry to raise revenue sufficient to support various court orders or federal mandates; and

Whereas, These federal courts, through their mandates, have strayed from the provisions of the Constitution of the United States of America and the separation of powers doctrine and have intruded into the legitimate public policy making function of the states; and

Whereas, Taxation is and must remain the exclusive prerogative of elected representatives in the legislative branch of government, and not be subject to imposition by an appointed judiciary; and

Whereas, Numerous other states have petitioned the Congress of the United States to propose an amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America reiterating that the federal courts are prohibited from levying or increasing taxes without the representation of the people; and

Whereas, The Legislature of the State of West Virginia reaffirms in no uncertain terms that the power and authority to levy or increase taxes is and should continue to be retained by the citizens, who do delegate that power and authority explicitly to their duly elected representatives in the legislative branch of government, with such representatives being responsible and accountable to those who have elected them; therefore, be it

Resolved by the Legislature of West Virginia: That in accordance with the provisions of article five of the Constitution of the United States of America, the West Virginia Legislature hereby petitions the Congress of the United States to adopt an amendment to the Constitution of the United States of America, for submission to the states for ratification, a new article providing substantially as follows:

''Neither the Supreme Court nor any inferior court of the United States shall have the power to instruct or order a state or a political subdivision thereof, or an official of such a state or political subdivision, to levy or increase taxes''; and, be it

Further Resolved, That the West Virginia Legislature requests the Legislatures of the states who have not yet done so to make a similar petition to the Congress of the United States; and, be it

Further Resolved, That the Clerk of the house of Delegates is directed to send copies of this resolution to the presiding officers of both houses of the legislature in each of the other states in the union, to the Clerk of the United States House of Representatives, to the Secretary of the United States Senate, to the President of the United States, to the Vice president of the United States and to members of West Virginia's congressional delegation.

POM–443. A joint resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Washington relative to Migratory bird predation on salmonid stocks; to the Committee on environment and Public Works.

HOUSE JOINT MEMORIAL 4026

Whereas, The state of Washington has embarked on a major salmon recovery effort as reflected in significant legislation enacted in 1998 and 1999; and

Whereas, The state of Washington has formulated a state-wide strategy to recover salmon; and

Whereas, The state of Washington has spent and is prepared to spend millions of dollars to protect and restore salmon populations; and

Whereas, The state of Washington is aggressively pursuing salmon recovery through a comprehensive undertaking in partnerships with federal agencies, Indian tribal nations, local governments, nonprofit organizations, and others; and

Whereas, The national marine fisheries service has listed under the federal endangered species act a number of salmon species that live in evolutionarily significant units within Washington state; and

Whereas, Predation by certain migratory birds such as the Caspian Tern is widely viewed as a significant issue for recovery of listed fish species throughout Washington inland and coastal waters; and

Whereas, The federal migratory bird treaty act of 1918, 16 U.S.C.A. Sec. 703 et seq., has proven ineffective in managing migratory bird predation on salmonids; and

Whereas, Washington's efforts toward salmon recovery, while addressing nearly all the factors that have led to the decline of salmon, cannot currently, because of federal law, effectively address predation by these migratory birds; and

Whereas, Public confidence and support of Washington's salmon recovery efforts will be diminished unless the interaction among migratory birds and salmonid populations is better understood and site-specific conflicts are addressed;

Now, Therefore, Your Memorialists respectfully pray that Congress pass legislation that amends the federal migratory bird treaty act of 1918, 16 U.S.C.A. Sec. 703 et seq., to provide a more effective means to allow for the protection and restoration of salmonid populations.

Congress is further urged to:

(1) Fund joint federal and state research on migratory and resident predatory bird interactions with salmonids, especially site-specific investigations to determine the significance of migratory and resident bird predation on adult and juvenile salmonids for stock recovery, and to develop a cohesive conservation plan that balances protection of both migratory and resident birds and salmonids;

(2) Grant at least limited management authority for state and federal agencies to remove those migratory and resident birds preying on listed fish stocks at areas of restricted fish passage;

(3) Prohibit the relocation of predatory bird nesting areas that could result in shifting predation to salmonid stocks that need recovery in other geographic areas.

Be it Resolved, That copies of this Memorial be immediately transmitted to the Honorable William J. Clinton, President of the United States, the United States House of Representatives Committee on Resources, the United States Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation, the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and each member of Congress from the State of Washington.

POM–444. A resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Michigan relative to the low-income housing tax credit; to the Committee on Finance.

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 138

Whereas, The Congress of the United States created the low-income housing tax credit as an incentive for developers and investors to provide affordable rental housing. Under this program, states are authorized to allocate federal tax credits in block grant form. The awarded tax credits may be taken annually for 10 years by developers and investors to offset federal taxes otherwise owed on their income; and

Whereas, Low-income families cannot afford to construct and rehabilitate apartments. The low-income housing tax credit program leverages about $7 billion in investments each year and produces approximately 75,000 apartments. These apartments rent at prices affordable to low-income working families, the elderly, and people with special needs; and

Whereas, Low-income housing tax credit apartments help stabilize neighborhoods by improving housing quality and supply. They rent out quickly because the need for them is so much greater than the supply created under the present housing credit volume limit; and

Whereas, Despite rapid growth in the economy and in states' low-income housing needs, the present housing credit limit, $1.25 per state resident, has not been adjusted for inflation since the program was created in 1986. Consequently, states are severely shortchanged in their capacity to produce badly needed urban and rural low-income apartments. Every year, another 100,000 low-cost apartments, more than the housing credit replaces, are demolished, abandoned, or converted to market rate use; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate, That we memorialize the Congress of the United States to enact legislation to increase the cap on the low-income housing tax credit and index it in accordance with the Consumer Price Index; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives, the President of the United States Senate, and the members of the Michigan congressional delegation.

Adopted by the Senate, March 15, 2000.

POM–445. A concurrent resolution adopted by the Legislature of the State of Arizona relative to federal redesignations of land in Arizona; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

HOUSE CONCURRENT MEMORIAL 2003

Whereas, efforts are underway within the current administration to redesignate millions of acres of western lands as National Monuments or Forest Service roadless areas, including more than one million acres in Arizona alone. The Secretary of the Interior has requested the President to designate nearly a dozen sites in the West as National Monuments under the 1906 Antiquities Act. Additionally, there is a recent proposal to redesignate forty million acres of federal lands under a ''roadless areas'' policy within the United States Forest Service; and

Whereas, these proposals, which would bypass input and consent from the public, the states and even the Congress, would result in the redesignation of lands in Arizona without any consideration of state or local interests. The people of Arizona, the Arizona Legislature and the Congress of the United States have not considered, debated or approved the federal redesignations that are proposed by the administration; and

Whereas, instead of working as a partner to help local communities define and achieve their conservation goals, the federal government proposes unilateral actions that would affect this state and exclude citizens from determining or even having a voice in land management decisions in their communities; and

Whereas, land management and conservation efforts are best administered and managed at state and local levels of government. Failure by the federal government to recognize and respect this basic tenet would leave this state no recourse but to turn to the judicial system to halt the further redesignations of federal land in this state.

Wherefore your memorialist, the House of Representatives of the State of Arizona, the Senate concurring, prays:

1. That the President, the Secretary of the Interior and the Congress of the United States take action to prevent the designation of any additional National Monuments or Forest Service roadless areas in this state without full public participation and an express act of Congress.

2. That the recipients of this Memorial convey to the Arizona Legislature their plan to consider this request.

3. That the Secretary of State of the State of Arizona transmit a copy of this Memorial to the President of the United States, the United States Secretary of the Interior, the President of the United States Senate, the Speaker of the United States House of Representatives and each member of Congress from the State of Arizona.

POM–446. A joint resolution adopted by the Assembly of the State of California relative to Sudan; to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION NO. 38

Whereas, According to the United States Committee for Refugees an estimated 2,000,000 people have died over the past decade due to war and war-related causes and famine, while millions have been displaced from their homes and separated from their families; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government's war policy in southern Sudan, the Nuba Mountains, and the Ingessena Hills has brought untold suffering to innocent civilians and is threatening the very survival of a whole generation of southern Sudanese; and

Whereas, The people of the Nuba Mountains and the Ingessena Hills are at particular risk, because they have been specifically targeted and, as a consequence, they are deliberately prevented from receiving international food aid, resulting in manmade famine, and are the targets of routine bombing of their civilian centers, including schools, hospitals, and areas where religious services are being held; and

Whereas, The Convention for the Prevention and the Punishment of the Crime of Genocide, adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1948, defines ''genocide'' as official acts committed by a government with the intent to destroy a national, ethnic, or religious group, and this definition also includes ''deliberately inflicting on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction, in whole or in part''; and

Whereas, By that definition, the National Islamic Front government is deliberately and systematically committing genocide in southern Sudan, the Nuba Mountains, and the Ingessena Hills; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government has systematically and repeatedly obstructed peace efforts of the Intergovernmental Authority for Development over the past several years; and

Whereas, The Declaration of Principles put forth by the Intergovernmental Authority for Development mediators is the most viable negotiating framework to resolve the problems in Sudan and to bring lasting peace; and

Whereas, Humanitarian conditions in southern Sudan, especially in Bahr al-Ghazal and the Nuba Mountains, deteriorated in 1998, largely due to the National Islamic Front government's decision to ban United Nations' relief flights from February through the end of April in that year and the government continues to deny access to certain locations; and

Whereas, an estimated 2,600,000 southern Sudanese have been at risk of starvation in southern Sudan and the World Food Program currently estimates that 4,000,000 people are in need of emergency assistance; and

Whereas, The United Nations-coordinated relief effort, Operation Lifeline Sudan, failed to respond in a timely manner at the height of the humanitarian crisis and has allowed the National Islamic Front government to manipulate and obstruct the relief efforts; and

Whereas, The relief work in the affected areas is further complicated by the National Islamic Front's repeated aerial attacks on feeding centers, clinics, and other civilian targets; and

Whereas, Relief efforts are further exacerbated by looting, bombing, and killing of innocent civilians and relief workers by government-sponsored militias in the affected areas; and

Whereas, these government-sponsored militias have carried out violent raids in Aweil West, Twic, and Gogrial counties in Bahr el Ghazal/Lakes Region, among others, killing hundreds of civilians and displacing thousands; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government has perpetrated a prolonged campaign of human rights abuses and discimination throughot the country; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government-sponsored militias have been engaged in the enslavement of innocent civilians, including children, women, and the elderly; and

Whereas, The now common slave raids being carried out by the government's Popular Defense Force militias are undertaken as part of the government's self-declared jihad (holy war) against the predominantly traditional and Christian south; and

Whereas, According to the American Anti-Slavery Group of Boston, there are tens of thousands of women and children now living as chattel slaves in Sudan; and

Whereas, These women and children were captured in slave raids taking place over a decade by militia armed and controlled by the National Islamic Front regime in Khartoum—they are bought, sold, branded, and bred; and

Whereas, The Department of State, in its report on Human Rights Practices for 1997, affirmed that ''reports and information from a variety of sources after February 1994 indicate that the number of cases of slavery, servitude, slave trade, and forced labor have increased alarmingly''; and

Whereas, The enslavement of people is considered in international law to be a ''crime against humanity''; and

Whereas, Observers estimate the number of people enslaved by government-sponsored militias to be in the tens of thousands; and

Whereas, Former United Nations Special Rapporteur for Sudan, Gaspar Biro, and his successor, Leonardo Franco, reported on a number of occasions the routine practice of slavery and the complicity of the Government of Sudan; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government abuses and tortures political opponents and innocent civilians in the north and many northerners have been killed by this regime over the years; and

Whereas, The vast majority of Muslims in Sudan do not subscribe to the National Islamic Front's extremist and politicized practice of Islam and moderate Muslims have been specifically targeted by the regime; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government is considered by much of the world community to be a rogue state because of its support for international terrorism and its campaign of terrorism against its own people; and

Whereas, According to the Department of State's Patterns of Global Terrorism Report, ''Sudan's support to terrorist organizations has included paramilitary training, indoctrination, money, travel documentation, safe passage, and refuge in Sudan''; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government has been implicated in the assassination attempt of Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak in Ethiopia in 1995 and the World Trade Center bombing in 1993; and

Whereas, The National Islamic Front government has permitted Sudan to be used by well-known terrorist organizations as a refuge and training hub over the years; and

Whereas, The Saudi-born financier of extremist groups and the mastermind of the United States embassy bombings in Kenya and Tanzania, Osama bin-Laden, used Sudan as a base of operations for several years and continues to maintain economic interests there; and

Whereas, On August 20, 1998, United States Naval forces struck a suspected chemical weapons facility in Khartoum, the capital of Sudan, in retaliation for the United States embassy bombings in Nairobi and Dar es Salaam; and

Whereas, Relations between the United States and Sudan continue to deteriorate because of human rights violations, the government's war policy in southern Sudan, and the National Islamic Front's support for international terrorism; and

Whereas, In 1993, the United States government placed Sudan on the list of seven states in the world that sponsor terrorism and imposed comprehensive sanctions on the National Islamic Front government in November 1997; and

Whereas, The struggle by the people of Sudan and opposition forces is a just struggle for freedom and democracy against the extremist regime in Khartoum; and

Whereas, On June 16, 1999, the United States House of Representatives adopted House Concurrent Resolution 75, introduced by Representative Don Payne (D–NJ), with only one dissenting vote, condemning the Government of Sudan for ''deliberately and systematically committing genocide''; and

Whereas, In Congress, both the Senate and House of Representatives have introduced the Sudan Peace Act, a bill to facilitate famine relief efforts and a comprehensive solution to the war in Sudan that would, among other specific measures, condemn slavery and other human rights abuses by the Government of Sudan; support the Inter-Governmental Authority on Development sponsored peace process; increase pressure on combatants to end slavery and human rights abuses; and protect humanitarian operations, separating civilians from combatants, and reducing food diversion; and

Whereas, This act passed in the Senate by unanimous consent on November 19, 1999; and

Whereas, Representative Christopher Smith (R–NJ), Chairman of the Subcommittee on International Operations and Human Rights has written that, in addition to sponsoring terrorism, mass murder, enslavement, and other grave crimes against its own people, ''the regime has also been identified as among the world's most egregious violators of the fundamental right to freedom of religion''; and

Whereas, Secretary of State Madeleine Albright has stated that the Sudanese regime has an ''. . . appalling human rights record, including torture, religious persecution, and forced imposition of sharia (Islamic) law. And it has prolonged a vicious and inhumane war, not hesitating to enslave, starve and bomb civilians in violation of international humanitarian law''; and

Whereas, The Los Angeles Times stated on October 23, 1999 that ''The Clinton Administration considers the Sudanese government to be a brutal dictator and by far the worst offender in an atrocity-filled regional, religious and ethnic war that has claimed as many as two million lives''; and

Whereas, The Center for Religious Freedom of Freedom House, a vigorous proponent of democratic values and a steadfast opponent of dictatorships of the far left and far right founded in 1941 by Eleanor Roosevelt, Wendell Willkie, and others, declares that ''the religious and ethnic genocide now occurring in Sudan has destroyed many . . .

STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. ROTH (for himself and Mr. MOYNIHAN):

S. 2277. A bill to terminate the application of title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 with respect to the People's Republic of China.

PERMANENT NORMAL TRADE RELATIONS WITH THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I rise today for myself and Senator MOYNIHAN to introduce legislation that will make normal trade relations with the People's Republic of China permanent when China accedes to the World Trade Organization. The legislation I am introducing is the same as that sent up by the administration. It is a clean bill, and I believe we should keep it that way.

Last year, the Chinese made a series of bold commitments to United States negotiators to open their market in return for WTO accession. In sector after sector—and by a date certain—the Chinese have pledged to open their markets to foreign goods, investment and services. These openings represent an unparalleled opportunity for U.S. farmers, manufacturers, and service providers to expand their exports into a rapidly growing market.

Those commitments will help move the Chinese economy toward a rules-based system and end many forms of state control. In essence, China has conceded that its future depends on the replacement of its communist-style economy with an open, market-oriented system based on the rule of law. Indeed, in a number of sectors, economically backward China will be more open to American exports than some of our developed-country trading partners in Asia and Europe.

What must the United States give away in terms of access to our market in return for China's pledge to enact these sweeping reforms? The answer is as striking as it is simple: absolutely nothing. The cost of our access to China's market is simply to comply with our own WTO obligations. Indeed, for the United States to reap the benefits of China's open markets once it joins the WTO, the only act necessary is passage of this legislation. This legislation will thus end the annual normal trade relations renewal process required by the Jackson-Vanik provisions in current trade law.

Some believe we must retain the annual renewal process because it gives us leverage in checking China's conduct on a number of fronts. But the annual debate on renewing normal trade relations has not been a very effective means of achieving any of the goals we all share with respect to China: peaceful settlement of the Taiwan question; enhanced human rights, religious freedom and stronger worker rights for the Chinese people or curbing China's irresponsible behavior on security matters. But the active involvement of United States firms in China can only help open that society and reinforce the changes already under way in China toward free markets and a rules-based society.

The enormous benefits of enacting permanent normal trade relations, on the other hand, are clear. Just as clear is the huge cost of failing to do so. In passing PNTR, American workers, farmers and exporters will gain access to market-opening concessions the Chinese made to our negotiators after 13 long years of hard negotiations.

If we fail to pass PNTR, then every member economy of the World Trade Organization will gain such access except the United States. Our European, Japanese and Asian competitors could not hope for a more lucrative gift, and all at the expense of our farmers and workers.

Here is what Leonard Woodcock, many years the President of the United Auto Workers, had to say in support of PNTR 2 weeks ago:

American labor has a tremendous interest in China's trading on fair terms with the U.S. The agreement we signed with China this past November marks the largest single step ever taken toward achieving that goal. The agreement expands American jobs. And while China already enjoys WTO-based access to our economy, this agreement will open China's economy to unprecedented levels of American exports, many of which are high-quality goods produced by high-paying jobs.

With that sentiment I most strongly agree.

What about the rights of Chinese workers themselves? On this point I agree with Mr. Woodcock, as well. To be sure, nothing in the U.S.-China trade agreement requires that free trade unions be formed in China. Yet the WTO does not require this of any of its 136-member countries, and the WTO is the wrong instrument to use to achieve that goal. We should, instead, be asking a more important question: Are Chinese workers better off with this agreement? The answer is a resounding yes.

With so little to lose in ending the annual renewal process and so much to gain by enacting PNTR, I would hope this body will pass this legislation overwhelmingly.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Mr. President, I rise with enthusiasm to join our chairman in introducing this measure which is word for word as the President sent to us on March 8. In doing so, he put the matter clearly enough. He said:

The Agreement will dramatically cut import barriers currently imposed on American products and services. It is enforceable and will lock in and expand access to virtually all sectors of China's economy. The Agreement meets the high standards we set in all areas, from creating export opportunities for our businesses, farmers, and working people, to strengthening our guarantees of fair trade.

I point out, sir, that the negotiations that have led us to this point have taken 13 years. They began prior to the creation of the World Trade Organization, under its predecessor, the GATT. It has been hard slogging, painful, detailed work, but it has come to a conclusion.

China wants into the WTO, the World Trade Organization. The price is to give us access to her markets. She has access to ours; hence, the imbalance of our trade, which is enormous just now.

I say, sir—and I think it would be agreed to—this will be very likely the most important legislative decision we have made in a decade or will make for a decade. At issue is the opening of American and world markets, which followed the calamitous conditions brought about by the Smoot-Hawley tariff in 1930. The opening began by Cordell Hull, in the form of the reciprocal trade agreements.

Every President since has expanded and continued this process. You see it all around you in unprecedented prosperity in those countries which first participated.

Now China wishes to do so. The condition is that we share in the Chinese market. It could not be more simple. We are not giving them anything they do not now have. They are giving us the treatment that is required by a member of the World Trade Organization.

Just this morning, the Wall Street Journal reported, in a Wall Street Journal/NBC poll, that a solid majority of Democrats—almost 2 to 1—is in favor of this legislation. I am hesitant to tell my revered chairman that Republicans do not do as well. But on balance, the American people sense this. They have had the experience of it for three generations now.

Let's do it.

We had a fine hearing today. We had wonderful testimony from respected scholars on the subject—Merle Goldman from the Fairbanks institution—well, from Boston University—Nelson Graham, East Gates Ministries International, who is the son of the Rev. Billy Graham, and Michael A. Santoro, a professor from Rutgers.

The case is so clear, it should not be obscured or delayed. It is up to us. I think there is going to be another hearing, at least. I believe it is the intention of the chairman to have a legislative markup and, as we say, actually reporting out a bill in about a month's time.

Mr. ROTH. I say to the distinguished leader, it is my intent to bring this up at least within a month.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. At least within a month.

Mr. ROTH. I think the sooner we can move on it, the better off we are. I expect this legislation to be adopted with overwhelming bipartisan support.

Mr. MOYNIHAN. Exactly so. It should. I do not think we can name it for you, but it certainly will be one of the great measures you have achieved in a long career, not yet concluded. I would observe that it took some prodding to get the legislation sent up to us. In his State of the Union Address on January 27, 2000, the President called upon Congress to pass legislation authorizing PNTR for China ''as soon as possible this year.'' It took almost two months to get the Administration to produce a draft of the legislation, which the President formally transmitted to Congress on March 8.

But we have it now, and the President is fully committed to this, and we ought to move swiftly.

I want to clarify one important point: passage of this legislation will not determine whether China enters the WTO. China will enter the WTO regardless of Congress' action with respect to PNTR. But until we grant China PNTR, we cannot enter in to a full WTO relationship with China, which means that we cannot reap the full benefits of the trade agreement.

This is because the WTO—under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade 1994, the General Agreement on Trade in Services and the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights—requires that WTO members grant each other immediate and unconditional normal trading relations status. We do not do so now with respect to China.

China's trade status is conditioned on an annual review of China's compliance with the so-called Jackson-Vanik freedom-of-emigration provisions of the Trade Act of 1974. The President makes a determination by the third of June each year, which is then subject to review by the Congress. Because of this conditionality, the trade treatment that we currently accord China is insufficient under WTO rules. Until we grant China PNTR, we must invoke the WTO's so-called ''non-application'' provision—that is, Article XIII of the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization—meaning that WTO benefits will not apply.

Simply put, we must grant China permanent normal trade relations status in order to reap the benefits that the United States, its workers and its companies will gain from China's entry into the WTO. And we ought to do so promptly.

Mr. ROTH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2277

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. TERMINATION OF APPLICATION OF TITLE IV OF THE TRADE ACT OF 1974 TO THE PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA (CHINA).

(a) PRESIDENTIAL DETERMINATIONS AND EXTENSION OF NONDISCRIMINATORY TREATMENT.—Notwithstanding any provision of title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 (19 U.S.C. 2431 et seq.), the President may—

(1) determine that such title should no longer apply to China; and

(2) after making a determination under paragraph (1) with respect to China, proclaim the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment (normal trade relations treatment) to the products of that country.

(b) CHINA'S ACCESSION TO THE WORLD TRADE ORGANIZATION (''WTO'').—Prior to making the determination provided for in subsection (a)(1) and pursuant to the provisions of section 122 of the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S.C. 3532), the President shall transmit a report to Congress certifying that the terms and conditions for China's accession to the WTO are at least equivalent to those agreed between the United States and China on November 15, 1999.

SEC. 2. EFFECTIVE DATES.

(a) The extension of nondiscriminatory treatment pursuant to section 1(a)(1) shall be effective no earlier than the effective date of China's accession to the WTO.

(b) On and after the effective date under subsection (a) of the extension of nondiscriminatory treatment to the products of China, title IV of the Trade Act of 1974 shall cease to apply to that country.

By Mrs. LINCOLN:

S. 2278. A bill to reauthorize the Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program Act of 1994; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

JUNIOR DUCK STAMP CONSERVATION AND DESIGN PROGRAM AUTHORIZATION ACT

Mrs. LINCOLN. Mr. President, I am pleased to be here today to introduce the ''Junior Duck Stamp Conservation and Design Program Authorization Act''. The Junior Duck Stamp program gives youth a valuable opportunity to study waterfowl and learn about environmental conservatism through the arts.

I believe we have an unique opportunity to instill in our children a love of the outdoors and must encourage our children by example to protect our natural resources for future generations. Through my own personal experiences in the outdoors, I have learned to value and appreciate the joys of hunting and fishing and look forward to raising my twin boys with the proper respect for the environment so that they too will enjoy a lifetime of experiencing one of America's greatest treasures.

The Junior Duck Stamp Reauthorization Act provides us with one of these opportunities to instill the importance of conservation in our nation's children. This legislation will reauthorize a program which helps teach children to love and respect the environment, while encouraging artistic development. By concentrating on nature, students have an opportunity to appreciate our country's great natural resources and explore their own talents.

The Junior Duck Stamp program allows students from elementary to high school to research any species of North American waterfowl and portray it artistically. Students then may enter their design in a state contest. The ''Best of Show'' winners at the state level are then sent to Washington D.C. for a national competition. The first place national winner receives a $2500 scholarship award and his/her design is used to create a Federal Junior Duck Stamp each year. Proceeds from the sale of the stamp, which costs $5, are then invested back into the program.

The Junior Duck Stamp Program was originally developed through the Fish and Wildlife Service with a grant from the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation. The program was expanded by Congress in 1994 and authorized through the year 2000. In 1998, more than 42,000 students entered the art contest. It is estimated by educators who work with the program, that for every student who enters the contest, ten other students actually participate in the curriculum.

I encourage my colleagues to join with me in supporting legislation which will continue the Junior Duck Stamp Program and encourage conservation practices and appreciation of the outdoors in our children.

S. 2279. A bill to authorize the addition of land to Sequoia National Park and for other purposes; to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

DILLONWOOD SEQUOIA GROVE BILL INTRODUCTION

Mrs. BOXER. I am pleased to introduce legislation to expand the boundary of Sequoia National Park to include Dillonwood Grove.

The 1,540-acre Dillonwood Grove is the largest privately owned stand of giant sequoias and borders the southern boundary of Sequoia National Park.

The Dillonwood and Garfield Groves together form one of the five largest giant sequoia groves in the world. The Garfield Grove is already in the Park. Management of these groves as a single unit as part of the National Park will reunite the 3,085-acre Dillonwood-Garfield Grove, historically separated in name only.

For more than one thousand years, the massive trunks of Dillonwood's giant sequoias have towered above the headwaters of the North Fork of the Tule River at the foot of Moses Mountain in California's southern Sierra Nevada.

Home to mountain lions and bears, Dillonwood's canyons and steep mountain ridges funnel wind currents flown by some of the last California condors seen in the wild.

More than a thousand years ago, Indians gathered at a high-elevation summer camp below Dillonwood's granite outcroppings.

In the late 1800s, early settlers operated a mill on the site. Today a healthy, 120-year-old giant sequoia forest is rising among the ancient monarch trees. No second-growth giant sequoia forest of this age is currently fund anywhere in the Park.

The Save-the-Redwoods League has negotiated an option to purchase the Dillonwood Grove for $10 million, based on its appraised value. This funding will be equally matched by federal and non-federal sources.

I am pleased that my Republican colleague Congressman RADANOVICH introduced the identical bill in the House last week. I also want to thank my colleague Senator FEINSTEIN for cosponsoring my bill.

Dillonwood's rich natural and cultural heritage will be an important and significant addition to the legacy of our national parks. I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2279

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. ADDITION TO SEQUOIA NATIONAL PARK.

(a) IN GENERAL.—As soon as practicable after the date of enactment of this Act, the Secretary of the Interior shall acquire by donation, purchase with donated or appropriated funds, or exchange, all interest in and to the land described in subsection (b) for addition to Sequoia National Park, California.

(b) LAND ACQUIRED.—The land referred to in subsection (a) is the land depicted on the map entitled ''Dillonwood'', numbered 102/80,044, and dated September 1999.

(c) ADDITION TO PARK.—On acquisition of the land under subsection (a), the Secretary shall—

(1) add the land to Sequoia National Park;

(2) modify the boundaries of Sequoia National Park to include the land; and

(3) administer the land as part of Sequoia National Park in accordance with all applicable law (including regulations).

By Mr. MCCONNELL:

S. 2280. A bill to provide for the effective punishment of online child molesters; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

CYBERMOLESTERS ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, as we are all aware, the Internet has revolutionized communication and business. However, it also provides a new tool for some very traditional villains: child molesters. Unfortunately, loopholes in the current law allow some of these predators to escape without any real consequences. For this reason I have introduced the Cybermolesters Enforcement Act to ensure that these new on-line molesters are brought to justice.

It is already a federal crime to cross state lines to sexually molest a minor. In recent years the number of people using the Internet to violate this law has skyrocketed. In the last two years alone the FBI's cybermolester caseload his increased by 550 percent.

Most cybermolesters are well-educated, middle-class, and have no previous criminal record. As a result, many judges are giving them laughably light sentences. Ironically, the purveyors of child-pornography receive a ten-year mandatory sentence, but those who use the Internet to meet children and act out pornographic fantasies often receive no jail time at all. We need to end the double standard that gives lighter sentences to a special set of privileged criminals. The Cybermolesters Enforcement Act takes a measured approach to this problem by imposing a five-year mandatory minimum sentence without changing the maximum sentence already contained in the law.

I would like to thank the high-tech industry for their help in drafting this bill. In particular, I would like to thank the Law Enforcement Security Council of the Internet Alliance. This broad-based internet industry coalition is doing important work in the fight against online crime, and helped to ensure that this bill will not burden Internet service providers.

The Cybermolesters Enforcement Act addresses a real and chilling threat to our children. It is supported by the FBI's ''Innocent Images'' program, which is on the front lines of the battle against on-line pedophiles. It doesn't create any new federal crimes or regulations. It simply takes a common sense step to ensure that we bring today's high-tech child molesters to justice. I hope my colleagues will join me in co-sponsoring this important legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that this article by George Will outlining this problem be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

[From the Washington Post, Jan. 23, 2000]

NASTY WORK

(By George F. Will)

To visit a crime scene, turn on your computer. Log on to a list of ''bulletin boards'' or real-time chat rooms, which come and go rapidly. Look for names like ''Ilovemuchyoungerf'' (''f'' stands for females) or ''vryvryvrybrlylegal'' or ''Moms'nsons'' or ''likemyung.''

The Internet, like the telephone and automobile before it, has created new possibilities for crime. Some people wielding computers for criminal purposes are being combated by FBI agents working out of an office park in Calverton, Md.

The FBI operation, named Innocent Images, targets cyber-stalkers seeking sex with children, and traffickers in child pornography. As one agent here says, ''Business is good—unfortunately.'' Criminal sexual activity on the Internet is a growth industry.

In many homes, children are the most competent computer users. They are as comfortable on the Internet as their parents are on the telephone. On the Web, children can be pen pals with the entire world, instantly and at minimal cost. But the world contains many bad people. Parents should take seriously a cartoon that shows two dogs working on computers. One says to the other, ''When you're online no one knows you're a dog.''

A child does not know if the person with whom he or she is chatting is another child or a much older person with sinister intentions. The typical person that the agents call a ''traveler''—someone who will cross state lines hoping to have a sexual encounter with a child—is a white male age 25–45. He has above-average education—often an advanced degree, and he can find his way around the Internet—and above-average income, enabling him to travel. Many ''travelers'' are married.

But these cyber-stalkers do not know if the person with whom they are chatting is really, as they think, a young boy or girl, or an FBI agent. Some ''travelers'' who thought they had arranged meetings with children have been unpleasantly surprised, arrested, tried and jailed.

Since the first arrest under Innocent Images in 1995, there have been 487 arrests of ''travelers'' and pornographers, and 409 convictions. Most of the 78 nonconvictions are in cases still pending. The conviction rate is above 95 percent. However, the FBI is distressed by light sentences from some judges who justify their leniency by the fact that the offenders are socially upscale and first offenders. (Actually, probably not: How likely is it that they get caught the first time they become predators?) Lenient judges also call the crime ''victimless'' because it is an FBI agent, not a child, receiving the offender's attention.

Agents are trained to avoid entrapment, and predators usually initiate talk about sexual encounters. But children implicitly raise the subject by visiting such chat rooms. Most children recoil when sexual importunings become overt. (''When you come to meet me, make sure you're not wearing any underwear.'') But some importunings, including gifts and sympathetic conversation about the problems of children, are cunning, subtle and effective.

Publicity about Innocent Images may deter some predators, but most are driven to risk-taking by obsessions. America Online and other service providers look for suspect chat rooms and close those they spot, but they exist in such rapidly changing profusion that there are always many menacing ones open.

Digital cameras, and the plunging price of computer storage capacity for downloaded photographs, have made this, so to speak, the golden age of child pornography. The fact that the mere possession of it is a crime does not deter people from finding, in the blizzard of Internet activities, like-minded people to whom they say things like, ''I'm interested in pictures of boys 6 to 8 having sex with adults.''

A booklet available from any FBI office, ''A Parent's Guide to Internet Safety,'' lists signs that a child might be at risk online. These include the child's being online for protracted periods, particularly at night. Being online like that is the unenviable duty of FBI agents running Innocent Images.

Each of the FBI's 56 field offices has an officer trained to seek cyber-stalkers and traffickers in child pornography. Ten offices have Innocent Images operations. Agents assigned to Innocent Images can spend as many as 10 hours a day monitoring the sexual sewer that is a significant part of the ''information superhighway.'' So the FBI looks for ''reluctant volunteers'' who, while working, are given psychological tests to see that they are not becoming ''damaged goods.'' Whatever these agents are being paid, they are underpaid.

By Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire:

S. 2281. A bill to name the United States Army misssile range at Kwajalein Atoll in the Marshall Islands for former President Ronald Reagan; to the Committee on Armed Services.

LEGISLATION TO RENAME KWAJALEIN TESTING ATOLL FOR PRESIDENT RONALD REAGAN

• Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire. Mr. President, twenty years ago, President Ronald Reagan took office with daunting tasks before him. A year before, the Soviet Red Army had invaded Afghanistan, and Soviet proxy forces were challenging U.S. allies and interests in Central America, in Africa, and elsewhere. American hostages were still being held in Tehran, and the United States was suffering an acute crisis of confidence. Faced with an expansionistic Soviet Union that intimidated the Free World with nuclear weapons and a Communist ideology spread by Soviet-supported insurgencies and armed coups, President Reagan dedicated his Administration to resisting this global menace and toward winning the Cold War.

President Reagan rejected the notion that the Soviet Union would modify its belligerence if only allowed to match U.S. military strength. He rejected the idea that the Evil Empire was indivisible, by implementing the Reagan doctrine, which met the Soviet proxy challenge in the Third World in Afghanistan, Nicaragua and Angola, and by funding Solidarity in Poland.

On March 23, 1983, President Reagan set forth a broad vision of building a space-based defense, the Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI), to free the American people from the threat of nuclear annihilation and to protect the public from an accidental nuclear launch initiated by the Soviet Union or by a rogue state or actor. The critics labeled it ''Star Wars'' after the blockbuster hit by the same name and scoffed that it would never work. They publicly floated the notion that SDI was only a bargaining chip for arms control negotiations. America held its breath while President Reagan, remaining faithful to his vision, turned down President Gorbachev's offer at Reyjavik, because it would have meant the end of SDI. Reagan refused to give up his dreams of assured survival to replace assured destruction.

Yet only twenty years earlier, President John F. Kennedy, after the Soviet launching of Sputnik, promised to put a man on the moon, and the Apollo program was born. Today, as the technology to intercept incoming missiles is being tested, Reagan's vision, like that of John F. Kennedy, is being realized, and the irrational notion of mutual assured destruction (MAD) pushed by arms control zealots is being dealt a mortal blow.

Progress towards a national missile defense has not been impeded primarily by technical limitations, but rather by political obstruction, foot-dragging and by restraints of an imprudent treaty signed with a power that no longer exists. The ABM Treaty signed with the now-defunct USSR denies effective antimissile protections for the United States. As a result, the American people continue to remain undefended in the event of a missile attack.

Since the fall of the Berlin Wall more than 10 years ago, and the collapse of the Soviet empire, Russia continues to pursue programs and policies that place the U.S. in conflict with the Russian Government, especially in the area of weapons of mass destruction and nuclear war-fighting. There is also rapid proliferation of ballistic missile and nuclear technology world-wide.

In recognition of President Reagan's dedication to providing America with protection from her enemies, I ask my colleagues in the Senate to join with me in supporting the renaming of the Army Missile Testing Range in the Republic of the Marshall Islands as the Ronald Reagan Strategic Defense Initiative Test Site at Kwajalein Atoll.

I would like to point out that Kwajalein is a valuable national asset with a prime location for space surveillance, the ability to handle both long and short-range missions, and a suite of radars unsurpassed for assesssing missile intercepts. In 1986, President Reagan isssued Proclamation 5564, implementing the Compact of Free Association between the two nations, a key element of which granted the U.S. Department of Defense leasing rights to the Kwajalein Atoll for development of a national missile defense program, or the Strategic Defense Initiative. SDI was Ronald Reagan's greatest dream, and I believe that most of us look forward to its near-term fulfillment.

The Marshallese legislature in February of 1999 decided to commemorate President Reagan in this manner by enacting Resolution 85. Therefore, I think it only fitting that the Senate concur in this tribute to a great President, leader and patriot, and a man, who because of his courage in attacking the conventional wisdom of his era, and because of his extraordinary and courageous vision, has changed the course of history.

I am also including in the RECORD a fitting tribute to President Reagan by Winston Churchill which describes the impact that SDI had on the Soviet empire.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill and additional material be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2281

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. NAMING OF ARMY MISSILE TESTING RANGE AT KWAJALEIN ATOLL AS THE RONALD REAGAN STRATEGIC DEFENSE INITIATIVE TEST SITE AT KWAJALEIN ATOLL.

The United States Army missile testing range located at Kwajalein Atoll in the Marshall Islands shall be known and designated as the ''Ronald Reagan Strategic Defense Initiative Test Site at Kwajalein Atoll''. Any reference to that range in any law, regulation, map, document, record, or other paper of the United States shall be considered to be a reference to the Ronald Reagan Strategic Defense Initiative Test Site at Kwajalein Atoll.

FROM THE REMARKS OF WINSTON S. CHURCHILL, MP, AT THE OPENING OF AN EXHIBITION OF HIS GRANDFATHER'S PAINTINGS AT THE RONALD REAGAN PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARY, DECEMBER 1992

Mr. President, You have made reference to Sir Winston Churchill's Iron Curtain speech at Fulton, Missouri, in 1946, but more than any other single person, it was you who brought about the collapse of the Iron Curtain and the demise of the ''evil empire.''

Historians will ponder the intriguing fact that in 1979 electorates on both sides of the Atlantic simultaneously smelled a rat. They sensed that if things were allowed to drift on through the 1980s as they had so disastrously in the 1970s, with the West in full retreat in the face of Soviet expansionism in Africa, Asia and Latin America, the free world be heading for catastrophe.

Accordingly, the U.S. and British electorates placed you and Margaret Thatcher in office—and what a formidable partnership you forged! You inspired NATO with a new resolve. You strengthened the defenses of the West. You made clear that the bugle would no more sound ''retreat!''

When you unveiled your Strategic Defense Initiative, it was mockingly dubbed ''Star Wars'' and dismissed by all too many in both our countries as pure Hollywood hype. Fortunately, there were a few people who believed it would work.

I believe that when the history of this cataclysmic period comes to be written, it will be seen that it was SDI—more than any other factor—that broke the Soviet camel's back by convincing the incumbents of the Kremlin that they could no longer afford to compete militarily with the United States as their economy could no longer bear the burden.

All mankind owes you a debt of gratitude for bringing the Cold War to an end, for putting the arms race in reverse and for promoting reconciliation between East and West, so that today we all live in a safer world.●

By Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mr. INOUYE):

S. 2282. A bill to encourage the efficient use of existing resources and assets related to Indian agricultural research, development and exports within the United States Department of Agriculture, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

THE NATIVE AMERICAN AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT AND EXPORT ENHANCEMENT ACT OF 2000

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, today I am pleased to be joined by Senator TIM JOHNSON in introducing the Native American Agriculture Research, Development and Export Enhancement Act of 2000 to encourage the development of the Indian agricultural sector. This bill will help make efficient use of Federal agriculture research, development and export resources in the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Agriculture has been a central part of the Native American culture, way of life, self sufficiency, and economies from time immemorial. This is still true today with many Indian tribes using agriculture and agribusiness to sustain their livelihoods and economies.

There are some 55 million acres of Indian lands in the United States, approximately 2 percent of all lands in the country, with nearly 47 million of these acres made up of crop and range land.

Indian agriculture production is not limited to just farming and ranching, it also includes such diverse products as timber and forest goods, fish and seafood, bison, wild rice, fruits and nuts, cotton and a host of other Native-made and gathered products.

Agriculture constitutes the second largest revenue generator and employer in Indian country but often takes a back seat to other initiatives in the development of tribal resources and economies. By reinvigorating the Indian agriculture sector we can develop the value-added industries to provide food security, as well as increase employment and raise incomes in Indian communities.

Although there are many programs within the Department of Agriculture for which tribal and individual Indian producers are eligible, Indian producers have not fully benefitted from these programs because of a lack of thoughtful coordination and attention within the Department.

In fact, these is now pending a class action lawsuit filed by Indian farmers against the Department charging discrimination and neglect in the availability and use of funds, programs, and services.

This bill will afford Indian farmers and producers the same benefits, assistance and organization that non-Indian producers currently enjoy by promoting the coordination of existing agriculture and related programs within the Department to provide maximum benefit to Indian tribes and their members.

It is my hope that this initiative will encourage intertribal, regional, and international trade and business development in order to assist in increasing productivity, access to specialty markets, export promotion, marketing assistance, access to capital, and at the same time help facilitate agricultural ventures with non-Indian entities.

Under the provisions of this bill, a Native American Research, Development, and Export Office would be established within the Department and would have a Director appointed by the Secretary to ensure the intra-agency and inter-agency coordination of programs that assist Indian agriculture and economic development.

This bill is not intended to reduce, rather than create, more federal bureaucracy. Therefore, this office will be formed using funds already appropriated to the Department.

Within this office, the Director would establish the Native American Trade and Export Promotion Program to help coordinate and cooperate with the other appropriate Federal agencies to promote Indian agriculture and related value-added industries.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2282

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Native American Agricultural Research, Development and Export Enhancement Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Clause 3 of section 8 of article I of the United States Constitution recognizes the special relationship between the United States and Indian tribes.

(2) Beginning in 1970, with the inauguration by the Nixon Administration of the Indian self-determination era, each successive President has reaffirmed the special government-to-government relationship between Indian tribes and the United States.

(3) In 1994, President Clinton issued an executive memorandum to the heads of all Federal departments and agencies that obligated all such departments and agencies, particularly those that have an impact on economic development, to evaluate the potential impacts of their actions on Indian tribes.

(4) The United States has an obligation to guard and preserve the agricultural and related renewable resources of Indian tribes in order to foster strong tribal governments, Indian self-determination, and economic self-sufficiency among Indian tribes.

(5) Despite the availability of abundant natural resources on Indian lands and a rich cultural legacy that accords great value to self-determination, self-reliance, and independence, Native Americans suffer higher rates of unemployment, poverty, poor health, substandard housing, and associated social ills than those of any other group in the United States.

(6) Reservation-based Indians tend to be the most rural of any minority group. They tend to be geographically isolated, resource limited, and the least likely of any farm group to receive payment or loans from the United States.

(7) Indian land represents close to 55,000,000 acres, or about 2 percent of the United States land base, with nearly 47,000,000 of these acres consisting of range and cropland.

(8) Indian agriculture constitutes the second largest revenue generator and employer in Indian country and is not limited to farming and ranching, but often includes such products as forestry, bison, wild rice and fruits, cotton, tobacco and other Native-made or grown products.

(9) Because of the lack of Federal intra-agency and inter-agency coordination in agriculture programs and policies, the development of Indian agriculture and related tribal business and economic development potential has been hindered.

(10) It is estimated that about 20 percent of reservation grazing land and about 70 percent of cropland is leased to non-Indian producers.

(11) American Indians today use their lands and natural resources for agriculture and agribusiness to provide food and other staples for consumption, improving their economic self-sufficiency, agriculture income and reservation employment.

(12) Although there are many programs within Department of Agriculture for which tribal and individual Indian producers are eligible, Indian producers have not fully benefited from these programs because of insufficient coordination within the Department of Agriculture.

(13) The United States has an obligation to assist Indian tribes with the creation of appropriate economic and political conditions with respect to Indian lands to—

(A) encourage investment from outside sources that do not originate with the tribes; and

(B) facilitate economic ventures with outside entities that are not tribal entities.

(14) The economic success and material well-being of Native American communities depends on the combined efforts of the Federal Government, tribal governments, the private sector, and individuals.

(b) PURPOSE.—It is the purpose of this Act to—

(1) promote the coordination of existing agricultural and related programs within the Department of Agriculture to provide the maximum benefit to Indian tribes and their members;

(2) encourage intertribal, regional, and international trade and business development in order to assist in increasing productivity and the standard of living of members of Indian tribes and improving the economic self-sufficiency of the Indian tribes;

(3) through improving the administration of Federal program, improve the access of Indian tribes to capital, specialty markets, export promotions, and marketing assistance that non-Indian agriculture producers currently have access to;

(4) improve the development and coordination of Indian agriculture and related value-added industries to promote self-sustaining Native economies and communities; and

(5) promote economic self-sufficiency and political self-determination for Indian tribes and members of Indian tribes.

SEC. 3. DEFINITIONS.

In this Act:

(1) ELIGIBLE ENTITY.—The term ''eligible entity'' means an Indian tribe, a tribal organization, a tribal enterprise, a tribal marketing cooperative, or any other Indian-owned business.

(2) INDIAN.—The term ''Indian'' has the meaning given that term in section 4(d) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b(d)).

(3) INDIAN GOODS AND SERVICES.—The term ''Indian goods and services'' means—

(A) goods produced or originated by an eligible entity; or

(B) services provided by eligible entities.

(4) INDIAN-OWNED BUSINESS.—The term ''Indian-owned business'' means an entity organized for the conduct of trade or commerce with respect to which at least 50 percent of the property interest of the entity is owned by Indians or Indian tribes (or a combination thereof).

(5) INDIAN TRIBE.—The term ''Indian tribe'' has the meaning given that term in section 4(e) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b(e)).

(6) SECRETARY.—The term ''Secretary'' means the Secretary of Agriculture.

(7) TRIBAL ENTERPRISE.—The term ''tribal enterprise'' means a commercial activity or business managed or controlled by an Indian tribe.

(8) TRIBAL ORGANIZATION.—The term ''tribal organization'' has the meaning given that term in section 4(l) of the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act (25 U.S.C. 450b(l)).

SEC. 4. NATIVE AMERICAN RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT AND EXPORT OFFICE

(a) IN GENERAL.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established within the Department of Agriculture a Native American Agricultural Research, Development 'and Export Office (referred to this Act as the ''Office'').

(2) DIRECTOR.—The Office shall be headed by a Director of the Native American Agricultural Research, Development and Export Office (referred to in this Act as ''Director'') to be appointed by the Secretary. The Director shall be compensated at a rate not to exceed that for level V of the Executive Schedule under section 5316 of title 5, United States Code.

(b) DUTIES OF THE SECRETARY.—

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Director, shall ensure the coordination of all programs that provide assistance to Native American communities within the following 7 mission areas of the Department of Agriculture:

(A) Farm and foreign agricultural services.

(B) Food, nutrition, and consumer services.

(C) Food safety.

(D) Marketing and regulatory programs.

(E) Natural resources and environment.

(F) Research, education and economics.

(G) Rural development.

(2) ACTIVITIES.—In carrying out paragraph (1), the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall ensure the coordination of, or, as appropriate, carry out—

(A) activities to promote Indian agricultural programs, including the development of domestic and international trade programs;

(B) activities to facilitate water and waste programs, housing, utility and other infrastructure development with respect to Native American communities;

(C) activities to provide assistance to Indian tribal college programs;

(D) activities to implement rural economic development programs for Native American communities; and

(E) activities to promote food and nutrition services for Native American communities.

(3) INTERAGENCY COORDINATION.—In carrying out Department of Agriculture programs, the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall coordinate with other Federal agencies, including the Department of Energy, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Justice, the Department of Commerce, or any other Federal agency responsible for administering related Indian programs.

(4) ASSISTANCE.—In conjunction with the activities described in paragraph (2), the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall provide—

(A) financial assistance, technical assistance, and administrative services to eligible entities to assist those entities in—

(i) identifying and taking advantage of business development opportunities; and

(ii) complying with appropriate laws and regulatory practices; and

(B) such other assistance as the Secretary, in consultation with the Director, determines to be necessary for the development of business opportunities for eligible entities to enhance the economies of Indian tribes.

(5) PRIORITIES.—In carrying out the duties and activities described in paragraphs (3) and (4), the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall give priority to activities that—

(A) provide the greatest degree of economic benefits to Indians; and

(B) foster long-term stable economies of Indian tribes.

SEC. 5. NATIVE AMERICAN TRADE AND EXPORT PROMOTION.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary, acting through the Director, shall establish and implement a Native American export and trade promotion program (referred to in this section as the ''program'').

(b) COORDINATION OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS AND SERVICES.—In carrying out the program, the Secretary, acting through the Director and in cooperation with the heads of appropriate Federal agencies, shall ensure the coordination of Federal programs and services that are designed to—

(1) develop the economies of Indian tribes; and

(2) stimulate the demand for Indian goods and services that are available from eligible entities.

(c) ACTIVITIES.—In carrying out subsection (b), the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall ensure the coordination of, or, as appropriate, carry out—

(1) Federal programs that are designed to provide technical or financial assistance to eligible entities;

(2) activities to develop promotional materials for eligible entities;

(3) activities for the financing of appropriate trade missions;

(4) activities for the marketing of related Indian goods and services;

(5) activities for the participation of appropriate Federal agencies or eligible entities in international trade fairs; and

(6) any other activity related to the development of markets for Indian goods and services.

(d) TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE.—In conjunction with the activities described in subsection (c), the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall provide technical assistance and administrative services to eligible entities to assist those entities in—

(1) identifying appropriate markets for Indian goods and services;

(2) entering the markets referred to in paragraph (1);

(3) complying with foreign or domestic laws and practices with respect to financial institutions concerning the export and import of Indian goods and services; and

(4) entering into financial arrangements to provide for the export and trade of Indian agricultural and related products.

(e) PRIORITIES.—In carrying out the duties and activities described in subsections (b) and (c), the Secretary, acting through the Director, shall give priority to activities that—

(1) provide the greatest degree of economic benefits to Indians; and

(2) foster long-term stable international markets for Indian goods and services.

By Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself, Mr. JOHNSON, and Mr. INOUYE):

S. 2283. A bill to amend the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century to make certain amendments with respect to Indian tribes; to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

THE INDIAN TRIBAL SURFACE TRANSPORTATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined by Senator TIM JOHNSON in introducing today a bill to make needed clarifications in the law to aid in the administration of the Indian Reservation Road and Bridge Program to better meet the transportation needs in Indian country.

There is an enormous need for physical infrastructure on Indian lands throughout the country. This infrastructure is necessary for Indian tribes and their citizens to carry out emergency services, law enforcement, and the transportation of goods and services.

In addition, physical infrastructure is just as important for Indian communities as it is for other communities because Indian economies are still in need of significant investment and private sector activity.

When entrepreneurs or investors are calculating whether to invest in any community they look first to see if basic building blocks are there: roads, highways, electricity, potable water, and other factors.

So for Indian communities an efficient federal roads financing and construction system holds the key to healthier economies and higher standards of living for their members.

In 1998, Congress enacted the Transportation Equity Act of the Twenty-First Century (''TEA–21'') to authorize Federal surface transportation programs with the goals of improved highways, increased safety, protecting the environment, and increased economic growth.

In passing TEA–21, Congress approved several Indian amendments that I was happy to propose to require a negotiated rule-making to determine the allocation formula to allow the kind of flexibility needed for an Indian country-wide formula; as well as a provision to ensure that all TEA funds set aside for Indians would be made available to tribes that choose to enter contracts under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975, P.L. 93–638, as amended.

On October 20, 1999, the Committee on Indian Affairs, which I chair, held an oversight hearing on the Indian reservation roads program and TEA–21. From testimony and other evidence presented it is evident that there remain serious obstacles to a more efficient functioning of TEA–21 in Indian communities. I am sorry to say that one of the obstacles appears to be the administration of the program by the Bureau of Indian Affairs itself.

The Indian reservation roads program is set up in such a way that the roads funding is transferred from the Department of Transportation's Federal Highway Administration [FHWA] to the Bureau of Indian Affairs, which in turn allocates the funds to Indian tribes based on a pre-existing formula.

Although reservation roads compose 2.63 percent of the Federal highway system, less than 1 percent of Federal aid had been allocated to Indian roads.

This bill would remove the so-called ''obligation limitation'' contained within TEA–21 and in effect would allow the already-authorized funds for Indians to reach the intended beneficiaries.

In 1999, the amount of funds that reached the Indian communities was $34 million less than that authorized in TEA–21 because of the obligation limitation.

This bill also authorizes the Federal Lands Highway Program to establish a Pilot Program to contract directly with Indian tribes for the administration of these tribes' roads programs. By allowing tribes to voluntary enter this program, it is intended that a better use can be made of existing resources and at the same time encourage Indian tribal self-determination.

Under current law, the BIA is authorized to use ''up to 6 percent'' of the roads funding for oversight and administration of the Indian roads program. If it was not clear in 1998, it should be clear now that these funds are not intended to be available to subsidize other BIA roads operations nor are they intended to be used for any other purposes.

The bill I am introducing today contains an amendment that clarifies the ''up to 6 percent'' language by reiterating Congress' intention that the figure was and is intended as a maximum, not a minimum, funding level with regard to BIA administrative costs.

Finally, with regard to the option to tribes to administer these funds and programs, the bill clarifies that all Indian reservation roads program funds are to be made available to Indian tribes which want to assume the administration of their reservation roads program under Public Law 93–638.

The bill also seeks to eliminate the current redundancy is required health and safety certification by allowing tribes the option of meeting statutorily required Health and Safety Standards without the need for a second, duplicative effort by the BIA. It is important to note that the standards themselves will not change, nor will the need for tribal compliance with those standards change.

Mr. President, that is a brief description of the amendments in this bill, and I urge my colleagues to support them.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2283

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Indian Tribal Surface Transportation Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. AMENDMENTS RELATING TO INDIAN TRIBES.

(a) OBLIGATION LIMITATION.—Section 1102(b) of the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (23 U.S.C. 104 note) is amended—

(1) in paragraph (7), by striking ''and'' at the end;

(2) in paragraph (8), by striking the period and inserting ''; and''; and

(3) by adding at the end thereof the following:

''(9) under section 1101(a)(8)(A).''.

(b) PILOT PROGRAM.—Section 202(d)(3) of title 23, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

''(C) FEDERAL LANDS HIGHWAY PROGRAM DEMONSTRATION PROJECT.—

''(i) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary shall establish a demonstration project under which all funds made available under this title for Indian reservation roads and for highway bridges located on Indian reservation roads as provided for in subparagraph (A), shall be made available, upon request of the Indian tribal government involved, to the Indian tribal government for contracts and agreements for the planning, research, engineering, and construction described in such subparagraph in accordance with the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act.

''(ii) EXCLUSION OF AGENCY PARTICIPATION.—In accordance with subparagraph (B), all funds for Indian reservation roads and for highway bridges located on Indian reservation roads to which clause (i) applies, shall be paid without regard to the organizational level at which the Federal lands highway program has previously carried out the programs, functions, services, or activities involved.

''(iii) SELECTION OF PARTICIPATING TRIBES.—

''(I) PARTICIPANTS.—

''(aa) IN GENERAL.—The Secretary may select not to exceed 12 Indian tribes in each fiscal year from the applicant pool described in subclause (II) to participate in the demonstration project carried out under clause (i).

''(bb) CONSORTIA.—Two or more Indian tribes that are otherwise eligible to participate in a program or activity to which this title applies may form a consortium to be considered as a single tribe for purposes of becoming part of the applicant pool under subclause (II).

''(II) APPLICANT POOL.—The applicant pool described in this subclause shall consist of each Indian tribe (or consortium) that—

''(aa) has successfully completed the planning phase described in subclause (III);

''(bb) has requested participation in the demonstration project under this subparagraph through the adoption of a resolution or other official action by the tribal governing body; and

''(cc) has, during the 3-fiscal year period immediately preceding the fiscal year for which participation under this subparagraph is being requested, demonstrated financial stability and financial management capability through a showing of no material audit exceptions by the Indian tribe during such period.

''(III) PLANNING PHASE.—An Indian tribe (or consortium) requesting participation in the project under this subparagraph shall complete a planning phase that shall include legal and budgetary research and internal tribal government and organization preparation. The tribe (or consortium) shall be eligible to receive a grant under this subclause to plan and negotiate participation in such project.''.

(c) ADMINISTRATION.—Section 202 of title 23, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end thereof the following:

''(f) INDIAN RESERVATION ROAD, ADMINISTRATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, not to exceed 6 percent of the contract authority amounts made available from the Highway Trust Fund to the Bureau of Indian Affairs shall be used to pay the administrative expenses of the Bureau for the Indian reservation roads program and the administrative expenses related to individual projects that are associated with such program. Such administrative funds shall be made available to an Indian tribal government, upon the request of the government, to be used for the associated administrative functions assumed by the Indian tribe under contracts and agreements entered into pursuant to the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act.

''(2) HEALTH AND SAFETY ASSURANCES.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, an Indian tribe or tribal organization may commence construction that is funded through a contract or agreement under the Indian Self-Determination and Education Assistance Act only if the Indian tribe or tribal organization has—

''(A) provided assurances in the contract or agreement that the construction will meet or exceed proper health and safety standards;

''(B) obtained the advance review of the plans and specifications from a licensed professional who has certified that the plans and specifications meet or exceed the proper health and safety standards; and

''(C) provided a copy of the certification under subparagraph (B) to the Bureau of Indian Affairs.''.

S. 2286. A bill to establish the Library of Congress Financial Management Act of 1999, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Rules and Administration.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT ACT OF 1999

● Mr. COCHRAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2286

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Library of Congress Financial Management Act of 1999''.

TITLE I—LIBRARY OF CONGRESS REVOLVING FUND

SEC. 101. AVAILABILITY OF FUND FOR SERVICE ACTIVITIES.

The Librarian of Congress is authorized—

(1) to establish Fund service units to carry out Fund service activities; and

(2) to make the library products and services constituting Fund service activities available for purchase through Fund service units at rates estimated by the Librarian to be adequate to recover the direct and indirect costs of the activities, with respect to each Fund service unit, over a reasonable period of time.

SEC. 102. FUND SERVICE ACTIVITIES.

The Fund service activities that may be conducted by Fund service units are—

(1) preparation of research reports, translations, analytical studies, and related services for departments and other entities of the Federal Government;

(2) centralized acquisition of publications and library materials in any format, information, research, and library support services; training in library and information services; and related services for departments and other entities of the Federal Government;

(3) decimal classification development;

(4) gift shop and other sales of items associated with collections, exhibits, performances, and special events of the Library of Congress;

(5) location, copying, storage, preservation and delivery services for library document and audio-visual materials, not including basic domestic interlibrary loan services; and international interlibrary lending;

(6) special events and programs; performances, exhibits, workshops, and training; and

(7) cooperative acquisitions of foreign publications and research materials and related services on behalf of participating institutions.

SEC. 103. LIBRARY OF CONGRESS REVOLVING FUND.

(a) ESTABLISHMENT.—There is established in the Treasury of the United States a fund to be known as the Library of Congress Revolving Fund. The Fund shall be available to the Librarian of Congress without fiscal year limitation, for the conduct of Fund service activities operated by the Library on a cost-recovery basis. Obligations for Fund service activities are limited to the total amounts specified in the appropriations act for any fiscal year. The Fund shall consist of amounts deposited under subsection (b) and credits under subsection (c).

(b) CAPITAL; AMOUNTS DEPOSITED.—The Fund shall consist of—

(1) amounts from funds appropriated to the Library of Congress that the Librarian may temporarily transfer to the Fund for capitalization of the Fund, in which case the Fund shall reimburse the Library for amounts so transferred before the period of availability of the Library appropriation expires;

(2) any amounts transferred as capital from the fund authorized under section 207(b)(2) of Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1998 (Public Law 105–55) (as such section was in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act);

(3) any obligated, unexpended balances existing as of September 30, 2000, or the date of enactment of this Act, whichever is later, attributable to the activities specified in section 102 that the Library conducts, which balances the Librarian may transfer to the Fund notwithstanding the requirements of section 1535(d) of title 31, United States Code;

(4) upon the transfer of an activity of the Library of Congress to a Fund service unit, the difference between—

(A) the total value of the supplies, inventories, equipment, gift fund balances, and other assets of the activity; and

(B) the total value of the liabilities (including the value of accrued annual leave of employees) of the activity; and

(5) any amounts appropriated by law for the purposes of the Fund.

(c) CREDITS.—The Fund shall be credited with all amounts received by Fund service units with respect to Fund service activities, including—

(1) fees, advances, and reimbursements;

(2) gifts or bequests of money or property for credit to the Fund;

(3) receipts from sales and exchanges of property;

(4) payments for loss or damage to property;

(5) receivables, inventories, and other assets; and

(6) amounts appropriated by law.

(d) ADVANCES OF FUNDS.—Participants in Fund services activities shall pay by advance of funds in all cases where it is determined by the Librarian that there is insufficient capital otherwise available in the Fund. Advances of funds also may be made by agreement between the participants and the Librarian.

(e) INDIVIDUAL ACCOUNTING REQUIREMENT FOR FUND SERVICE UNITS.—Separate accounts of the Fund shall be maintained with respect to individual Fund service units.

(f) EXCESS FUNDS.—Any unobligated and unexpended balances in the Fund that the Librarian determines to be in excess of amounts needed for activities financed by the Fund shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States as a miscellaneous receipt. For the purpose of the preceding sentence the term ''amounts needed for activities financed by the Fund'' means the direct and indirect costs of the activities, including the costs of purchasing, shipping, and binding of books and other library materials; supplies, materials, equipment and service needed in support of the activities; salaries and benefits; general overhead; and travel.

(g) MULTIYEAR CONTRACTING AUTHORITY.—In the operation of Fund activities, the Librarian is authorized to enter into contracts for the lease and acquisition of goods and services (including severable services) for a period that begins in one fiscal year and ends in the next fiscal year, and to enter into multiyear contracts for the acquisition of property and services, in the same manner and to the same extent as the head of an executive agency may enter into such contracts under sections 303L and 304B, respectively, of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act (41 U.S.C. 253l and 254c).

(h) ANNUAL REPORT.—Not later than March 31 of each year, the Librarian shall submit to Congress an audited financial statement for the Fund for the preceding fiscal year. The audit shall be conducted in accordance with Government Auditing Standards for financial audits issued by the Comptroller General of the United States.

SEC. 104. DEFINITIONS.

As used in this title—

(1) the term ''departments and other entities of the Federal Government'' means any department, agency or instrumentality of the United States Government, including executive departments, military departments, independent establishments, wholly owned Government corporations, and entities in the legislative and judicial branches, and includes any department, agency or instrumentality of the District of Columbia government;

(2) the term ''Fund'' means the Library of Congress Revolving Fund established under section 103;

(3) the term ''Fund service activities'' means the library information products and services described in section 102;

(4) the term ''Fund service unit'' means an organizational entity of the Library of Congress that, at the direction of the Librarian, is partially or fully sustained through the Fund; and

(5) the term ''Librarian'' means the Librarian of Congress.

SEC. 105. REPEAL.

Section 207 of the Legislative Branch Appropriations Act, 1998 (Public Law 105–55) is repealed.

SEC. 106. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title shall take effect on October 1, 2000.

TITLE II—CATALOGING PRODUCTS AND SERVICES

SEC. 201. AVAILAB1LITY OF CATALOGING PRODUCTS AND SERVICES.

(a) IN GENERAL.—The Librarian of Congress is authorized to make cataloging products and services, created by the Library of Congress, available for purchase at prices that reflect as closely as practicable the cost of distribution over a reasonable period of time. The amounts received for such products and services shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the appropriation for salaries and expenses of the Library of Congress, to remain available until expended for necessary distribution of such products and services.

(b) DEFINITION.—As used in this section, the term ''cataloging products and services'' means those bibliographic products and services, in any format now known or later developed, that are used by libraries and library organizations, including other Library-created data bases, and related technical publications.

SEC. 202. REPEAL.

The paragraph beginning ''The Librarian of Congress'' under the heading ''PUBLIC PRINTING AND BINDING'' in the first section of the Act entitled ''An Act making appropriations for sundry civil expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June thirtieth, nineteen hundred and three, and for other purposes'', approved June 28, 1902 (2 U.S.C. 150), is repealed.

SEC. 203. EFFECTIVE DATE.

This title and the amendment made by this title shall take effect on October 1, 2000.

TITLE III—LIBRARY OF CONGRESS TRUST FUND BOARD AMENDMENTS

SEC. 301. ADDITION OF BOARD MEMBER.

The first sentence of the first paragraph of the first section of the Act entitled ''An Act to create a Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, and for other purposes,'' approved March 3, 1925 (2 U.S.C. 154) is amended by inserting ''and vice chairman'' after ''chairman.''

SEC. 302. TEMPORARY EXTENSION OF BOARD MEMBER TERM.

The first paragraph of the first section of such Act (2 U.S.C. 154) is amended by inserting after the first sentence the following: ''Upon the request of the chairman of the Joint Committee on the Library, any member whose term has expired may continue to serve on the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board until the earlier of (A) the date on which such member's successor is appointed, or (B) the end of the two-year period beginning on the date such member's term expires.''.

SEC. 303. TRUST FUND BOARD QUORUM.

The third sentence of the first paragraph of the first section of such Act (as amended by section 302) (2 U.S.C. 154) is amended by striking ''Nine'' and inserting ''Seven''.●

By Mr. L. CHAFEE (for himself and Mr. REID):

S. 2287. A bill to amend the Public Health Service Act to authorize the Director of the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences to make grants for the development and operation of research centers regarding environmental factors that may be related to the etiology of breast cancer; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

BREAST CANCER AND ENVIRONMENTAL RESEARCH ACT OF 2000

Mr. L. CHAFEE. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined today by Senator HARRY REID in introducing the Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Act of 2000. This bill would establish research centers that would be the first in the nation to specifically study the environmental factors that may be related to the development of breast cancer. The lack of agreement within the scientific community and among breast cancer advocates on this question highlights the need for further study.

It is generally believed that the environment plays some role in the development of breast cancer, but the extent of that role is not understood. The Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Act of 2000 will enable us to conduct more conclusive and comprehensive research to determine the impact of the environment on breast cancer. Before we can find the answers, we must determine the right questions we should be asking.

While more research is being conducted into the relationship between breast cancer and the environment, there are still several issues that must be resolved to make this research more effective.

There is no known cause of breast cancer.—There is little agreement in the scientific community on how the environment affects breast cancer. While studies have been conducted on the links between environmental factors like pesticides, diet, and electromagnetic fields, no consensus has been reached. There are other factors that have not yet been studied that could provide valuable information. While there is much speculation, it is clear that the relationship between environmental exposures and breast cancer is poorly understood.

There are challenges in conducting environmental research.—Identifying links between environmental factors and breast cancer is difficult. Laboratory experiments and cluster analyses, such as those in Long Island, New York, cannot reveal whether an environmental exposure increases a woman's risk of breast cancer. Epidemiological studies must be designed carefully because environmental exposures are difficult to measure.

Coordination between the National Institutes of Health (NIH), the National Cancer Institute (NCI), and the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences (NIEHS).—NCI and NIEHS are the two institutes in the NIH that fund most of the research related to breast cancer and the environment; however, comprehensive information specific to environmental effects on breast cancer is not currently available.

This legislation would establish eight Centers of Excellence to study these potential links. These ''Breast Cancer Environmental Research Centers'' would provide for multidisciplinary research among basic, clinical, epidemiological and behavioral scientists interested in establishing outstanding, state-of-the-art research programs addressing potential links between the environment and breast cancer. The NIEHS would award grants based on a competitive peer-review process. This legislation would require each Center to collaborate with community organizations in the area, including those that represent women with breast cancer. The bill would authorize $30 million for the next five years for these grants.

''Genetics loads the gun, the environment pulls the trigger,'' as Ken Olden, the Director of NIEHS, frequently says. Many scientists believe that certain groups of women have genetic variations that may make them more susceptible to adverse environmental exposures. We need to step back and gather evidence before we come to conclusions—that is the purpose of this bill. People are hungry for information, and there is a lot of inconclusive data out there, some of which has no scientific merit whatsoever. We have the opportunity through this legislation to gather legitimate and comprehensive data from premier research institutions across the nation.

According to the American Cancer Society, each year 800 women in Rhode Island are diagnosed with breast cancer, and 200 women in my state will die of this terrible disease this year. We owe it to these women who are diagnosed with this life-threatening disease to provide them with answers for the first time.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting and cosponsoring this important legislation, and ask unanimous consent that the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 2287

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the ''Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Act of 2000''.

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

The Congress finds as follows:

(1) Breast cancer is the second leading cause of cancer deaths among American women.

(2) In 1999, 175,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer, and more than 43,000 are expected to die from this disease.

(3) The National Action Plan on Breast Cancer, a public private partnership, has recognized the importance of expanding the scope and breadth of biomedical, epidemiological, and behavioral research activities related to the etiology of breast cancer and the role of the environment.

(4) To date, there has been only a limited research investment to expand the scope or coordinate efforts across disciplines or work with the community to study the role of the environment in the development of breast cancer.

(5) In order to take full advantage of the tremendous potential for avenues of prevention, the Federal investment in the role of the environment and the development of breast cancer should be expanded.

SEC. 3. NATIONAL INSTITUTE OF ENVIRONMENTAL HEALTH SCIENCES; AWARDS FOR DEVELOPMENT AND OPERATION OF RESEARCH CENTERS REGARDING ENVIRONMENTAL FACTORS RELATED TO BREAST CANCER.

Subpart 12 of part C of title IV of the Public Health Service Act (42 U.S.C. 285L et seq.) is amended by adding at the end the following section:

''SEC. 463B. RESEARCH CENTERS REGARDING ENVIRONMENTAL FACTORS RELATED TO BREAST CANCER.

''(a) IN GENERAL.—The Director of the Institute, after consultation with the advisory council for the Institute, shall make grants to public or nonprofit private entities for the development and operation of not more than 8 centers for the purpose of conducting multidisciplinary and multi-institutional research on environmental factors that may be related to the etiology of breast cancer. Each such center shall be known as a Breast Cancer and Environmental Research Center of Excellence.

''(b) RESEARCH, TRAINING, AND INFORMATION AND EDUCATION.—

''(1) IN GENERAL.—Each center under subsection (a) shall, with respect to the purpose described in such subsection—

''(A) conduct basic epidemiologic, population-based and clinical research outreach activities;

''(B) develop protocols and conduct for training, including continuing education programs, of physicians, scientists, nurses, and other health and allied health professionals; and

''(C) disseminate information to such professionals and the public.

''(2) STIPENDS FOR TRAINING OF HEALTH PROFESSIONALS.—A center under subsection (a) may use funds under such subsection to provide stipends for health and allied health professionals enrolled in programs described in subparagraph (B) of paragraph (1).

''(c) COLLABORATION WITH COMMUNITY.—Each center under subsection (a) shall establish and maintain ongoing collaborations with community organizations in the geographic area served by the center, including those that represent women with breast cancer.

''(d) COORDINATION OF CENTERS; REPORTS.—The Director of the Institute shall, as appropriate, provide for the coordination of information among centers under subsection (a) and ensure regular communication between such centers, and may require the periodic preparation of reports on the activities of the centers and the submission of the reports to the Director.

''(e) REQUIRED CONSORTIUM.—Each center under subsection (a) shall be formed from a consortium of cooperating institutions, meeting such requirements as may be prescribed by the Director of the Institute.

''(f) DURATION OF SUPPORT.—Support of a center under subsection (a) may be for a period not exceeding 5 years. Such period may be extended for one or more additional periods not exceeding 5 years if the operations of such center have been reviewed by an appropriate technical and scientific peer review group established by the Director of the Institute and if such group has recommended to the Director that such period should be extended.

''(g) GEOGRAPHIC DISTRIBUTION OF CENTERS.—The Director of the Institute shall, to the extent practicable, provide for an equitable geographical distribution of centers under this section.

''(h) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—For the purpose of carrying out this section, there is authorized to be appropriated $30,000,000 for each of the fiscal years 2001 through 2006. Such authorization is in addition to any other authorization of appropriations that is available for such purpose.''.

By Mr. ABRAHAM:

S. 2288. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 and the Social Security Act to repeal provisions relating to the State enforcement of child support obligations and the disbursement of such support and the require the Internal Revenue service to collect and disburse such support through wage withholding and other means; to the Committee on Finance.

THE COMPASSION FOR CHILDREN AND CHILD SUPPORT ENFORCEMENT ACT OF 1999

Mr. ABRAHAM. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Compassion for Children and Child Support Enforcement Act. This important legislation would ensure that children from single parent households will have the financial support necessary for a healthy, happy and secure childhood.

Mr. President, over one quarter of today's American children live in a single-parent household. These children are more likely to live in poverty than children living in homes where both parents are present. Children growing up in a state of poverty suffer from far reaching, long-term effects: inadequate education, lack of access to quality health care and instability arising from lack of affordable housing frequently leads to poorer health, lower earning potential and greater instability as an adult.

Tragically, the financial hardship endured by many of these children is avoidable—simply put, Mr. President, these children are suffering because their absent parent has chosen to shirk his parental obligations and refuse to provide his child with the financial support he or she deserves and so desperately needs. According to the Federal Office of Child Support in its preliminary report for 1998, over $50 billion in accumulated unpaid child support is due to over 30 million children in the United States. This dismal statistic is due to the 23 percent collection rate in cases handled by overwhelmed state agencies.

Of the children living in a household with only one present parent, 40 percent are not eligible for child support because paternity has not been established or a support order has not been issued by the courts. Of the remaining 60 percent with established paternity and a support order, only half actually receive any financial support from their absent parent and more than half will not receive the full amount of their support payments.

The Compassion for Children and Child Support Enforcement Act would work to decrease the rate of delinquent child support payments and increase the rate of paternity establishment.

Mr. President, the Department of the Treasury is in the unique position to address problems arising from a lack of resources, organization and communication which frequently arise in child support cases involving two or more jurisdictions, by allowing the Internal Revenue Service to collect child support in the same manner that taxes are collected and then disburse the payments to the custodial parents with penalties and interest if applicable. The IRS is already the most effective means by which child support is collected under the entire state/federal child support program nexus through its system of federal tax intercepts.

By taking over responsibility of enforcing all child support orders through routine withholding of support from obligated parents and the use of the enforcement tools at its disposal to collect from delinquent parents, the Department of Treasury would significantly reduce the demands on State judicial resources now devoted to child support enforcement. And, Mr. President, by reducing the drain on State resources in the area of support enforcement, States would be able to better focus on establishing paternity for the 40 percent of children currently unable to even file for a support order due to lack of recognized paternity.

Congress failed again and again to find a way to ensure that families receive the child support that is owed to them by deadbeat parents. Despite reforms in 1984, 1988, 1993 and most recently in 1996, there have not been any significant improvements in the rate of child support collections.

The Compassion for Children and Support Enforcement Act represents a unique opportunity to pass effective and efficient child support enforcement legislation which creates state /federal partnerships by capitalizing on the strengths of the governments, agencies and networks already in place. Chairman HYDE has already introduced this legislation in the House of Representatives, where it enjoys the bipartisan support of 21 cosponsors. It is my sincerest hope that my colleagues in the Senate will follow the lead of the House and demonstrate their support for ensuring that our children receive the financial support necessary for them to grow into healthy and productive citizens.

By Mr. GRASSLEY:

S. 2289. A bill for the Relief of Jose Guadalupe Tellez Pinales; to the Committee on the Judiciary.

PRIVATE RELIEF BILL

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, today I am introducing a private relief bill on behalf a constituent of mine, Jose Pinales.

His family and friends call him Lupe, and a private relief bill is his only hope to avoid being separated from the people and the country he loves. Lupe was brought to the United States sixteen years ago, when he was two years old, by his uncle, Miguel Landeros. Mr. Landeros, now a U.S. citizen, never formally adopted Lupe. Not until recently did Lupe learn that he was not a U.S. citizen, when he tried to enlist in the United States Marines, to serve what he believed was his country.

The United States is the only country Lupe knows. It's the country he loves, and wishes to serve. Lupe grew up reciting the pledge of allegiance to the United States along with the rest of the children in his class at Jefferson Elementary School. He is now a Senior at Fort Madison High School in Iowa, and works part-time as he prepares to graduate this spring. This young man has almost completed a milestone in his life and has a dream of joining the United States Marines upon graduation. It wasn't until Lupe sought to fulfill this dream did he learn that not only was he not a U.S. citizen, but he was in possible danger of being forced to go to Mexico, a country where the people and customs are foreign to him. He doesn't even speak the language.

Faced with Lupe's plight, the generous people of Fort Madison have rallied together asking for our support in passing a private relief bill for him. My office has been inundated with letters and petitions from citizens imploring us to allow Lupe to fulfill his dream and serve our great nation and not be forced to a country he doesn't know.

Lupe is a fine example of what an American citizen should be. His love and respect for his country are to be admired and rewarded. So, I ask you to join me and the citizens of Iowa, and allow Jose to serve his country by supporting this legislation.

By Mr. GRASSLEY (for himself and Mr. REID):

S. 2290. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to clarify the definition of contribution in aid of construction; to the Committee on Finance.

LEGISLATION TO CLARIFY THE TAX TREATMENT OF CONTRIBUTIONS IN AID OF CONSTRUCTION

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, today I am introducing legislation on behalf of myself and the senior Senator from Nevada, Mr. REID, to clarify that water and sewage service laterals are included in the definition of contributions in aid of construction (CIAC). The bill clarifies current law by specifically stating that ''customer service fees'' are CIAC. It maintains current treatment of service charges for stopping and starting service (not CIAC). Because this is a clarification of current law, the effective date for the bill is as if included in the original legislation, which is section 1613(a) of the Small Business Job Protection Act of 1996.

The need for this legislation is brought about because the Department of Treasury has issued proposed regulations to provide guidance on the definition of CIAC. Despite the fact that Congress specifically removed language concerning ''customer services fees'' in its amendment in 1996, the Department added the language back into the proposed regulation specifying that such fees are not CIAC. They then defined the term very broadly to include service laterals, which traditionally and under the most common state law treatment would be considered CIAC.

The Senator from Nevada and I, along with many of our colleagues here in this chamber, worked hard over the course of a number of years to restore the pre-1986 Act tax treatment for water and sewage CIAC. In 1996, we succeeded in passing our legislation. It was identical to pre-1986 law with three exceptions. Two of the changes were made in response to a Treasury Department request. The third removed the language dealing with ''service connection fees'' primarily because of potential confusion resulting from the ambiguity of the term. The sponsors of the legislation were concerned that the IRS would use this ambiguity to exclude a portion of what the state regulators consider CIAC.

As part of our efforts, we developed a revenue raiser in cooperation with the industry to make up any revenue loss due to our legislation, including the three changes. This revenue raiser extended the life, and changed the method, for depreciating water utility property from 20 year accelerated to 25-year straight-line depreciation. As a consequence of this sacrifice by the industry, our CIAC change made a net $274 million contribution toward deficit reduction.

It is my belief that the final revenue estimate done by the Joint Committee on Taxation on the restoration of CIAC included all property treated as CIAC by the industry regulators including specifically service laterals. In an October 11, 1995 letter to me, the Joint Committee on Taxation provided revenue estimates for the CIAC legislation. A footnote in this letter states, ''These estimates have been revisited to reflect more recent data.'' The industry had only recently supplied the committee with comprehensive data, which reflected total CIAC in the industry including service laterals.

I urge my fellow Senators to join with us in supporting this clarification of current law.

By Mr. DASCHLE:

S. 2291. A bill to provide assistance for efforts to improve conservation of, recreation in, erosion control of, and maintenance of fish and wildlife habitat of the Missouri River in the State of South Dakota, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Environment and Public Works.

THE MISSOURI RIVER RESTORATION ACT OF 2000

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, the Missouri River is one of our nation's greatest natural resources. Millions of visitors travel to the river each year to hunt, camp and fish. Millions more Americans rely on the Missouri's federal dams for affordable electricity. And, tens of thousands of South Dakotans depend upon the river as their only source of clean drinking water.

The river is rich in history. For thousands of years, Native Americans have lived along the river, and countless sites of deep spiritual and cultural importance to tribes line its shores. The river was also part of the route used by Lewis and Clark as they explored our nation. As we approach the bicentennial of that journey, it is expected that millions of Americans will visit the Missouri River to retrace their steps.

Because the river is so important to the economy of our nation and to its heritage, it is critical that we meet head-on the growing array of challenges that it is facing. That is why I am introducing the Missouri River Restoration Act of 2000. This legislation will provide critically needed resources to ensure that future generations will continue to benefit from the river as we do today.

I am deeply concerned by the dramatic changes that we have witnessed since the construction of four federal dams on the river in South Dakota decades ago. These dams, which have prevented billions of dollars of flood-related damage downstream to cities like St. Louis, have altered the natural flow of the river. Sediment that used to be carried downstream, giving the river its nickname of ''Big Muddy,'' is now being deposited in South Dakota's reservoirs, Lake Oahe, Lake Sharpe, Lake Francis Case and Lewis and Clark Lake.

The siltation of the river is having a dramatic impact. In the cities of Pierre and Ft. Pierre, it has raised the water table and flooded shoreline homes. Already, Congress has had to authorize a $35 million project to relocate hundreds of affected families, and the Corps of Engineers has been forced to curtail the generation of electricity at Oahe dam in the wintertime to prevent additional flooding. In the town of Springfield, the economy has suffered a decline in tourism because few boaters can navigate the tons of silt that have clogged the river.

The problem will only grow more serious in the future. Each year, the river's tributaries deliver more than 40 million tons of sediment to the reservoirs. It is estimated that in less than 75 years, Lewis and Clark lake—the smallest of the reservoirs—will fill with sediment completely. The lake, and the development and recreation the lake has created for cities like Springfield and Yankton, will disappear altogether.

The economic impact of these changes on South Dakota would be very serious. Currently, visitors to counties bordering the Missouri River spend over $85 million each year. Anglers spend over $200 million in the state, and support more than 5,400 jobs. The loss of the Missouri's fisheries to sedimentation and the decline in the number of visitors to the river would have grave economic consequences. Furthermore, limitations imposed on electrical generation and flood control caused by sedimentation will have a dramatic impact in states throughout our region, as electricity prices and damages from flooding increase.

In addition to the problems caused by the siltation of the river, the river has faced a growing amount of erosion. While erosion is natural on all rivers, its pace has picked up on the Missouri due to the operation of the dams. Erosion has destroyed thousands of acres of farmland and is a serious threat to irreplaceable sites of spiritual importance to Indian tribes. Thousands of sites, ranging from burial grounds to campsites, are found up and down the Missouri River in South Dakota. It is unacceptable to let them wash away into the river. We must respect all those who came before us, and preserve this part of our nation's heritage.

Last January, Governor Bill Janklow, Lower Brule Sioux Tribe Chairman Mike Jandreau and I hosted a Missouri River Summit in the city of Springfield to bring together the best minds in the state to find a solution to these pressing problems. Over 400 South Dakotans attended this meeting and provided their thoughts and ideas. Virtually all those in attendance agreed that there is a critical need for more resources to improve conservation, to stop erosion and to help communities better utilize the river. The Missouri River Restoration Act of 2000 will help us to meet these goals as soon as possible.

This legislation, which I have developed in consultation with Governor Janklow of South Dakota, Chairman Jandreau and other state leaders, would establish a $200 million federal trust fund to provide the resources necessary to address the critical needs of the Missouri River watershed. Of these funds, 30 percent would be set aside for projects in Indian reservations or administered by Indian tribes.

Trust fund revenues would be administered by a 25-member ''Missouri River Trust'' composed of all the river's major stakeholders. Each of South Dakota's nine Indian tribes would appoint one member, as would the Three Affiliated Tribes of North Dakota. The remainder would be appointed by the Governor, and must equally represent environmental, agricultural, hydropower and other river interests. In consultation with appropriate federal agencies, the Trust must develop a plan for the use of trust fund revenues that will reduce the siltation of the river by improving conservation in fragile riparian lands, better protect Indian cultural and historical sites, reduce erosion and improve our ability to recreate on the river. It will also be responsible for reviewing grant proposals to meet these goals.

Funding decisions would be made by a 5-member Executive Committee. To ensure that its decisions are balanced and represent the best interests of the state, the Executive Committee must be composed of members representing tribal, hydropower, agricultural, environmental and state government interests.

By establishing a trust fund and administrating board that effectively represents all stakeholders, we can provide South Dakota with the tools it needs to preserve the Missouri River for generations to come. I hope my colleagues will give this important legislation their support.

I ask unanimous consent that an editorial from the Sioux Falls Argus Leader be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

MISSOURI RIVER TRUST FUND IS WORTHY IDEA

GOOD MANAGEMENT IS VITALLY IMPORTANT TO STATE'S ECONOMY

Nothing has chiseled South Dakota's personality and tailored its economy quite like the Missouri River. Though, it geographically divides the state into East River and West River, it is the lifeblood that unites the state as one.

The powerful waters of the Missouri River, which once determined survival for early settlers, are central today to the state's economic well-being and its quality of life.

Growing communities like Sioux Falls—and smaller towns like Pipestone, Minn.—look to the river as a future water source to sustain residential and industrial growth.

Yet, riverside landowners have seen acres of their property swept away by the unruly river while others watch tons of silt clog the channel, increasing lowland flooding and killing recreational opportunities.

The millions of tons of silt that accumulate in the river also have negatively affected wildlife and recreation.

Properly managed, its waters can nurture the environment, enhance recreation and tourism opportunities and support growing communities.

However, the practices that controlled the Missouri River in past decades do not necessarily well serve state residents today. With the dawn of the 21st century, it's time to rethink and revamp policies established in the 1940s and '50s.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has begun tweaking longstanding practices to improve habitat for fish and birds along North America's largest reservoir system. It also has developed a plan to address the sediment buildup near Pierre and Fort Pierre.

It is unacceptable, however, to allow the problems to be addressed in a piecemeal fashion. The reasons are clear. Consider:

Visitors spent an estimated $85.2 million in 1998 on lodging, food and beverage in countries along the Missouri River.

In 1996, anglers on South Dakota waterway spent $206.4 million in the state, generated more than $8 million in state sales taxes, and supported more than 5,400 jobs.

Last year, 1.6 million people visited recreation areas along the Missouri River to hike, hunt, fish and participate in water sports.

More than 300,000 South Dakotans will ultimately receive clean and safe drinking water from the Missouri River through the Mid-Dakota, Mni Wiconi, WEB and proposed Lewis and Clark water systems.

The four hydroelectric dams of the Missouri River provide cheap, clean hydroelectric power to about 3.5 million people in the Missouri River Basin. Rural customers benefit the most from this low-cost power supply.

If something isn't done soon, tourism, recreation and hydropower generation will be hobbled. Homeowners and businesses will be hurt.

To this end, we support Tom Daschle, D–S.D., who is pressing federal legislation to create a ''Missouri River Trust Fund'' to protect and enhance the river. The fund would support efforts to reverse the sediment buildup and short erosion that have taken place on the river since construction of federal dams in the 1960s. It also would pay for improvements in recreation, conservation and the protection of cultural sites. It would also extend the ability of the dams to generate affordable electricity for the region.

A trust fund would ensure that a steady source of revenue would be available to address the problems for years to come.

Daschle is rallying support of federal, state, local and tribal leaders and wants to secure the first installment this year.

The sooner the better.

S. 2262

At the request of Mr. LOTT, the name of the Senator from Michigan (Mr. ABRAHAM) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2262, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to institute a Federal fuels tax holiday.

S. 2263

At the request of Mr. LOTT, the name of the Senator from Michigan (Mr. ABRAHAM) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2263, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to institute a Federal fuels tax holiday.

S. 2265

At the request of Mrs. HUTCHISON, the name of the Senator from New Hampshire (Mr. SMITH) was added as a cosponsor of S. 2265, a bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to preserve marginal domestic oil and natural gas well production, and for other purposes.

S. CON. RES. 87

At the request of Mr. SMITH of New Hampshire, the name of the Senator from Michigan (Mr. ABRAHAM) was added as a cosponsor of S. Con. Res. 87, a concurrent resolution commending the Holy See for making significant contributions to international peace and human rights, and objecting to efforts to expel the Holy See from the United Nations by removing the Holy See's Permanent Observer status in the United Nations, and for other purposes.

S. RES. 87

At the request of Mr. DURBIN, the name of the Senator from Nebraska (Mr. KERREY) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 87, a resolution commemorating the 60th Anniversary of the International Visitors Program

S. RES. 263

At the request of Mr. ASHCROFT, the name of the Senator from Maine (Ms. SNOWE) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 263, a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that the President should communicate to the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (''OPEC'') cartel and non-OPEC countries that participate in the cartel of crude oil producing countries, before the meeting of the OPEC nations in March 2000, the position of the United States in favor of increasing world crude oil supplies so as to achieve stable crude oil prices.

S. RES. 276

At the request of Mr. REED, the name of the Senator from Oregon (Mr. WYDEN) was added as a cosponsor of S. Res. 276, a resolution to express the sense of the Senate that the conferees on the Violent and Repeat Juvenile Offender Accountability and Rehabilitation Act should submit the conference report on the bill before April 20, 2000, and include the gun safety amendments passed by the Senate.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION 98—URGING COMPLIANCE WITH THE HAGUE CONVENTION ON THE CIVIL ASPECTS OF INTERNATIONAL CHILD ABDUCTION

Mr. DEWINE (for himself, Mr. HELMS, Mr. THURMOND, Mr. WARNER, Mr. ROCKEFELLER, Mr. ROBB, Mr. THOMAS, Mr. DODD, Ms. LANDRIEU, Mr. HATCH, and Mr. STEVENS) submitted the following concurrent resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations:

S. CON. RES. 98

Whereas the Department of State reports that at any given time there are 1,000 open cases of American children either abducted from the United States or wrongfully retained in a foreign country;

Whereas many more cases of international child abductions are not reported to the Department of State;

Whereas the situation has worsened since 1993, when Congress estimated the number of abducted and wrongfully retained American children to be more than 10,000;

Whereas Congress has recognized the gravity of international child abduction in enacting the International Parental Kidnapping Crime Act of 1993 (18 U.S.C. 1204), the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act (28 U.S.C. 1738a), and substantial reform and reporting requirements for the Department of State in the fiscal years 1998–1999 and 2000–2001 Foreign Relations Authorization Acts;

Whereas the United States became a contracting party in 1988 to the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction (in this concurrent resolution referred to as the ''Hague Convention'') and adopted effective implementing legislation in the International Child Abduction Remedies Act (42 U.S.C. 11601 et seq.);

Whereas the Hague Convention establishes reciprocal rights and duties between and among its contracting states to expedite the return of children to the state of their habitual residence, as well as to ensure that rights of custody and of access under the laws of one contracting state are effectively respected in other contracting states, without consideration of the merits of any underlying child custody dispute;

Whereas Article 13 of the Hague Convention provides a narrow exception to the requirement for prompt return of children, which exception releases the requested state from its obligation to return a child to the country of the child's habitual residence if it is established that there is a ''grave risk'' that the return would expose the child to ''physical or psychological harm or otherwise place the child in an intolerable situation'' or ''if the child objects to being returned and has attained an age and degree of maturity at which it is appropriate to take account of the child's views'';

Whereas some contracting states, for example Germany, routinely invoke Article 13 as a justification for nonreturn, rather than resorting to it in a small number of wholly exceptional cases;

Whereas the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC), the only institution of its kind, was established in the United States for the purpose of assisting parents in recovering their missing children;

Whereas Article 21 of the Hague Convention provides that the central authorities of all parties to the Convention are obligated to cooperate with each other in order to promote the peaceful enjoyment of parental access rights and the fulfillment of any conditions to which the exercise of such rights may be subject, and to remove, as far as possible, all obstacles to the exercise of such rights;

Whereas some contracting states fail to order or enforce normal visitation rights for parents of abducted or wrongfully retained children who have not been returned under the terms of the Hague Convention; and

Whereas the routine invocation of the Article 13 exception, denial of parental visitation of children, and the failure by several contracting parties, most notably Austria, Germany, Honduras, Mexico, and Sweden, to fully implement the Convention deprives the Hague Convention of the spirit of mutual confidence upon which its success depends: Now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Senate (the House of Representatives concurring), That Congress urges—

(1) all contracting parties to the Hague Convention, particularly European civil law countries that consistently violate the Hague Convention such as Austria, Germany and Sweden, to comply fully with both the letter and spirit of their international legal obligations under the Convention;

(2) all contracting parties to the Hague Convention to ensure their compliance with the Hague Convention by enacting effective implementing legislation and educating their judicial and law enforcement authorities;

(3) all contracting parties to the Hague Convention to honor their commitments and return abducted or wrongfully retained children to their place of habitual residence without reaching the merits of any underlying custody dispute and ensure parental access rights by removing obstacles to the exercise of such rights;

(4) the Secretary of State to disseminate to all Federal and State courts the Department of State's annual report to Congress on Hague Convention compliance and related matters; and

(5) each contracting party to the Hague Convention to further educate its central authority and local law enforcement authorities regarding the Hague Convention, the severity of the problem of international child abduction, and the need for immediate action when a parent of an abducted child seeks their assistance.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise today to submit a resolution urging compliance with the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction. Joining me in introducing this resolution are Senators HELMS, WARNER, THURMOND, ROBB, ROCKEFELLER, THOMAS, DODD, LANDRIEU, and HATCH. Congressmen NICK LAMPSON of Texas and STEVE CHABOT of Ohio have introduced a similar measure in the House.

The Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction sets forth the legal mechanism for returning internationally abducted children to their countries of habitual residence, where custody can then be decided. Fifty-four countries, including the United States are signatories to the Convention.

According to the State Department, each year the United States sends an estimated 90% of kidnapped children back to foreign countries. But, the rate at which other nations belonging to the Convention return American children is much lower. A State Department report singles out several countries for their noncompliance with the accord, including Austria, Honduras, Mauritius, Mexico and Sweden. Notably absent from the report, however, was Germany, which also has established a disturbing pattern of noncompliance. According to ''Insight Magazine,'' State Department records show that of the 243 Hague cases filed in Germany, there were only 40 court-ordered returns.

Last fall, the General Accounting Office (GAO) testified before the House International Relations Committee on their preliminary review of the federal government's response to international parental child abduction. They cited noncompliance with the Hague Convention on the part of other countries as one of the problems with our federal government's response to international parental kidnappings. According to GAO's testimony: ''The State Department acknowledges that more systematic and aggressive diplomatic efforts are needed to address problems with the Hague Convention.'' The GAO also noted that while increased diplomatic efforts are needed, recommendations developed by the State Department and Department of Justice to rectify the noncompliance problem ''seek to review, study, and explore Hague implementation issues, but fail to identify how these activities will actually help solve Hague implementation problems.''

What we have to remember in any case where a parent abducts a child is that each of these cases involves the destruction of a family. A good illustration of this is what happened to Tom Sylvester of Cincinnati, the father of a little girl named Carina, whom he has seldom seen since his ex-wife abducted her from Michigan in 1995, and took her to Austria. The day after the kidnapping, Mr. Sylvester filed a complaint with the State Department and started legal proceedings under the terms of the Hague Convention. An Austrian court heard his complaint, and the court ordered the return of Carina to Mr. Sylvester. However, this court order was never enforced and Carina's mother took the child into hiding. Eventually, though, when Carina's mother surfaced with the child, the Austrian courts reversed their decision on returning Carina to her father, finding that Carina had ''resettled into her new environment''—a decision clearly contrary to the terms of the Hague Convention.

While the State Department recently has indicated some willingness to work more aggressively through diplomatic channels in individual cases, like that of Tom Sylvester, we must do more to improve compliance with the Hague Convention overall. The resolution we are introducing today encourages all of the contracting parties, particularly those countries that consistently violate the Convention—namely Austria, Germany and Sweden—to comply fully with both the letter and the spirit of their obligations under the Convention. In order to improve compliance rates, the resolution urges all Hague signatories to educate their judges and law enforcement personnel about the Convention. And, finally, this resolution urges countries to return children under the Convention, without reaching the underlying custody dispute, and to remove barriers to parental visitations.

Mr. President, as a parent and grandparent, I cannot begin to imagine the nightmare that so many American parents face when their children are kidnapped by a current or former spouse and taken abroad. But, tragically, this is a very real and daily nightmare for hundreds of parents right here in this country. That's why the resolution I have introduced is critical to encouraging the safe return of children to the United States. It gives us an opportunity to help make a positive difference in the lives of children and their families. I urge my colleagues to support it with their cosponsorship.

SENATE RESOLUTION 277—COMMEMORATING THE 30TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE POLICY OF INDIAN SELF-DETERMINATION

Mr. CAMPBELL (for himself, Mr. MCCAIN, Mr. JOHNSON) submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs:

S. RES. 277

Whereas, the United States of America and the sovereign Indian Tribes contained within its boundaries have had a long and mutually beneficial relationship since the beginning of the Republic;

Whereas the United States has recognized this special legal and political relationship and its trust responsibility to the Indian Tribes as reflected in the Federal Constitution, treaties, numerous court decisions, federal statutes, executive orders, and course of dealing;

Whereas Federal policy toward the Indian Tribes has vacillated through history and often failed to uphold the government-to-government relationship that has endured for more than 200 years;

Whereas these Federal policies included the wholesale removal of Indian tribes and their members from their aboriginal homelands, attempts to assimilate Indian people into the general culture, as well as the termination of the legal and political relationship between the United States and the Indian Tribes;

Whereas President Richard M. Nixon, in his ''Special Message to Congress on Indian Affairs'' on July 8, 1970, recognized that the Indian Tribes constitute a distinct and valuable segment of the American federalist system, whose members have made significant contributions to the United States and to American culture;

Whereas President Nixon determined that Indian Tribes, as local governments, are best able to discern the needs of their people and are best situated to determine the direction of their political and economic futures;

Whereas in his ''Special Message'' President Nixon recognized that the policies of legal and political termination on the one hand, and paternalism and excessive dependence on the other, devastated the political, economic, and social aspects of life in Indian America, and had to be radically altered;

Whereas in his ''Special Message'' President Nixon set forth the foundation for a new, more enlightened Federal Indian policy grounded in economic self reliance and political self determination;

Whereas this Indian self determination policy has endured as the most successful policy of the United States in dealing with the Indian Tribes because it rejects the failed policies of termination and paternalism and declared that ''the integrity and right to continued existence of all Indian Tribal and Alaska native governments, recognizing that cultural pluralism is a source of national strength.''

Now Therefore be it Resolved, That the Senate of the United States recognizes the unique role of the Indian Tribes and their members in the United States, and commemorates the vision and leadership of President Nixon, and every succeeding President, in fostering the policy of Indian Self-Determination.

Mr. CAMPBELL. Mr. President, I am pleased to be joined by Senator MCCAIN and Senator TIM JOHNSON in submitting today a resolution to commemorate the anniversary of a little-noticed but critical event that took place 30 years ago this summer.

In July 1970, President Richard M. Nixon delivered his now-famous ''Special Message to the Congress on Indian Affairs'' that revolutionized how our nation deals with Native governments and Native people from Florida to Alaska, from Maine to Hawaii.

With centuries of ill-conceived and misdirected federal policies and practices behind us, I am happy to say that the Nixon Indian policy continues as the bedrock of America's promise to Native Americans.

In his Message to Congress, the President made the case for a more enlightened federal Indian policy. Citing historical injustices as well as the practical failure of all previous federal policies regarding Indian Nations, President Nixon called for the rejection of both the ''termination'' policy of the 1950s and the ''excessive dependence'' on the federal government by Indian tribes and people fostered by federal paternalism.

Nixon observed that ''[t]he first Americans—the Indians—are the most deprived and most isolated group in our nation. On virtually every scale of measurement—employment, income, education, health—the condition of the Indian people rank at the bottom.''

Thirty years later, Indians continue to suffer high rates of unemployment, are mired in poverty, and still rank at or near the bottom of nearly every social and economic indicator in the nation.

Nonetheless, there is cause for hope that the conditions of Native Americans are improving, however slowly.

The twin pillars of the policy change initiated in 1970 are political self determination and economic self reliance. Without doubt, the most enduring legacy of the 1970 Message is the Indian self determination policy best embodied in the Indian Self Determination and Education Assistance Act of 1975, amended several times since then.

This Act, which has consistently been supported, promoted, and expanded with bipartisan support, authorizes Indian tribes to assume responsibility for and administer programs and services formerly provided by the federal government.

As of 1999, nearly 48% of all Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) and 50% of all Indian Health Service (IHS) programs and services have been assumed by tribes under the Indian Self Determination Act.

With this transfer of resources and decision making authority, tribal governments have succeeded in improving the quality of services to their citizens, have developed more sophisticated tribal governing structures and practices, have improved their ability to govern, and have strengthened their economies.

Self determination contracting and compacting have improved the efficiency of federal programs and services and at the same time have devolved control over these resources from Washington, D.C. to the local, tribal governments which are much more in tune with the needs of their own people.

As steps are taken to provide tribes the tools they need to develop vigorous economies and generate tribal revenues, our policy in Congress and across the federal government should be to encourage and assist tribes to expand self determination and self governance into other agencies and programs, and in the process help Native people to achieve real and measurable success in improving their standard of living.

The challenge of the Nixon Message was not only to the federal government but to the tribes themselves: that by building strong tribal governments and more robust economies, real independence and true self determination can be achieved.

Our experience has shown that any cooperative efforts between the United States and the tribes must include a solemn assurance that the special relationship will endure and will not be terminated by the fits and starts of periodic economic success enjoyed by some Indian tribes.

President Nixon wisely realized that the mere threat of termination results in a tendency toward an unhealthy dependence on the federal government which has plagued Native people for decades. As President Nixon himself knew, Native people are not hapless bystanders in this process. His Message recognized that the story of the Indian in America is one of ''endurance, survival, of adaptation and creativity in the face of overwhelming obstacles.''

This persistence and tenacity by Native people have been the foundation in forging a more enlightened Indian policy and with the assistance of the United States will, I am confident, result in true self determination for Native people in the United States.

I urge my colleagues to join me in recognizing the Nixon Message and the combined efforts of Natives and non-Natives alike in making Indian self determination a reality.

REMOVAL OF INJUNCTION OF SECRECY—TREATY DOCUMENT NO. 106–23

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on behalf of the distinguished majority leader, as in executive session, I ask unanimous consent that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the following convention transmitted to the Senate on March 23, 2000, by the President of the United States: International Plant Protection Convention (IPPC), Treaty Document No. 106–23.

I further ask that the convention be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The message of the President is as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to acceptance, I transmit herewith the revised International Plant Protection Convention (IPPC), adopted at the Conference of the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations at Rome on November 17, 1997. In accordance with Article XIII of the existing IPPC, the revised text will enter into force for all contracting parties 30 days after acceptance by two-thirds of the contracting parties.

The revisions are designed to bring the IPPC into line with modern practices and concepts, and to establish new mechanisms to promote the development and adoption of international phytosanitary standards.

It is my hope that the Senate will give prompt and favorable consideration to this Convention, and give its advice and consent to acceptance by the United States, subject to the two proposed understandings set forth in the accompanying report, at the earliest possible date.

WILLIAM J. CLINTON.

THE WHITE HOUSE, March 23, 2000.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I may proceed in morning business for such time as I may require.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

KOSOVO AMENDMENT

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on March 9, I advised the Senate of my intention to offer an amendment on Kosovo to the supplemental, assuming that legislation comes up. If not, I will consider other avenues of legislation to incorporate the basic structure of this amendment.

I have been joined in this effort by a thoughtful and well-respected number of my colleagues; indeed, the distinguished Senator from Alaska, who just departed the floor, and the distinguished Senator from Hawaii.

I placed a draft copy of the amendment in the RECORD at that time and invited comment and constructive criticism. I am so pleased to report that has happened in abundance.

I am here today to report to the Senate there has been an increasing interest in this amendment—positive, in most instances. I will refer to one bit of very constructive criticism momentarily.

We have taken into consideration the views of many. I will be putting in today's RECORD an amendment which shows certain modifications, technical modifications, which I hope will meet some of the very fine constructive ideas I have received.

To summarize, the amendment would require our European allies to fulfill a certain percentage of the commitments they have made to provide assistance and police personnel to Kosovo before the entire $2 billion contained in the supplemental for United States military operations in Kosovo would be made available.

The amendment would allow for the provision of 50 percent of the money—over $1 billion—immediately for the use of the Department of Defense. But the remainder would be dependent on a certification by the President of the United States that our allies had provided a certain percentage of their commitments of assistance to Kosovo.

If the President is not able to make that certification by June 1, then the remaining $1 billion could be used only to conduct the safe, orderly, and phased withdrawal of our troops from Kosovo—not a cut and run; not a fixed timetable; I repeat, a safe and orderly phased withdrawal.

Again, I have been pleased by the response that has been generated by this amendment. It is clear, we have already achieved our first goal of focusing attention on this very serious problem in Kosovo.

Actions on the part of our allies are being taken at an accelerated rate, and much more detailed information on such actions, past and present, are becoming available daily.

For example, this past week I received letters from Lord Robertson, the Secretary General of NATO, and Dr. Bernard Kouchner, the head of the UN Mission in Kosovo, outlining the increased efforts of burdensharing of certain allies.

According to the letter I received from Dr. Kouchner—I would like to quote a paragraph—I quote:

> I very much appreciate the efforts that you have made so far which have been instrumental in improving our budget situation. Existing donor pledges have now been honored. The next challenge will be to get new donor pledges and to ensure that the pledges for the reconstruction budget of 17 November 1999 do materialize.

Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the letters from Lord Robertson and Dr. Kouchner be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks, with certain other documents that I will attach, and letters.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibits 1 and 2.)

Mr. WARNER. In addition, I had the opportunity to meet yesterday with Ambassador Guenter Burghardt, the European Commission representative in Washington, who provided me with valuable information on the contributions of the EU, particularly their efforts to streamline their process for providing assistance.

Several weeks ago, it was very difficult to get accurate information on what had been pledged by our allies—not that they were withholding it; people just could not find it, in many instances, and put it into writing—and almost impossible to get data on what had actually been supplied to Kosovo.

Now we are clearly making progress on this front, but more remains to be done.

I asked for constructive criticism. And within the hour, by pure coincidence, because I planned to deliver these remarks, came a letter from our former distinguished majority leader, and my very close friend and mentor, Senator Robert Dole.

I ask unanimous consent to print a letter from Senator Dole in the RECORD following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 3.)

Mr. WARNER. Senator Dole wrote:

> Accordingly, I would urge you to consider, at a minimum, allowing a Presidential waiver authority based upon compelling national security needs.

That sort of thing is often done. We carefully considered that. But after consultation with my cosponsors and many others, we decided not because it would make the amendment so weakened that it loses its purport. Therefore, I say respectfully to my former leader that that I cannot do. However, he has made other suggestions. And by pure coincidence and timing, they have been incorporated in the revised amendment, which I will file as a part of these remarks.

For example, he said:

> That said, I believe in principle that you are entirely right to try to hold the Administration's feet to the fire to ensure that the United States continues to lead, while at the same time preventing it from shouldering an inordinate share of the international burden in the Balkans. The devil is in the details, however, and I am concerned that some of the targets identified in your amendment simply cannot be met, and that the European powers are being held to a higher standard than the United States. For example, is it realistic for the United States and/or Europeans to be required to disburse 33 percent of the funds needed for Kosovo reconstruction by June 1, 2000?

Prior to receiving this letter, we had made technical changes from ''disbursed'' to ''obligated or contracted for.'' This gives the flexibility that is needed to obviate the problems raised by Senator Dole and others.

These technical changes, if I may enumerate them, give added flexibility to the President of the United States in making this very important certification. We have not, in my judgment, diminished in any way the strength of this amendment, but it has given added flexibility. No. 1, it makes it clear that the performance we are seeking on the part of the allies is to be evaluated, as we put in our amendment, ''on the aggregate.'' Performance of one nation which falls short, one nation which may not be able to make it, will not prevent the President from making the required certification. No. 2, we require that reconstruction and humanitarian assistance must be, as I said, obligated or contracted for. That point we covered in the recitation of Senator Dole. This is in recognition that even if the money has been set aside for Kosovo, some of these projects ''spend out'' at a slow rate.

These are the types of constructive changes that have come to my attention and we have incorporated them. We are still working on this. As I say, I have also been engaged in discussions with a number of administration officials over the past 2 weeks.

Last Friday, I had a productive meeting with the National Security Adviser, Sandy Berger, on the eve of his departure on this important trip the President is now undertaking. We were joined by OMB Director Jack Lew and Under Secretary of Defense, Walter Slocombe. As a result, of some of the technical information relayed to me at that meeting—it was a very good meeting—I have redrafted my amendment to take into account some of the concerns that were raised. While I think it is fair to say the redraft which I and my cosponsors have agreed to will not satisfy all the concerns of the administration, I believe our consultations are making progress.

I ask unanimous consent to print the latest version of my amendment in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 4.)

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, the bottom line for the United States and for the other nations involved in KFOR—that is the entire military operation in Kosovo—is the current safety and well-being of our troops being deployed there—U.S. troops and those of some 35 other nations are involved and the formulation of a timetable, safety first, but the formulation of a timetable. We can't do it right now, but if the purport of this amendment is met, we will be able in the reasonable future to formulate a timetable for the establishment of the infrastructure, both economic and security, which will allow for the safe return of our troops and those of other nations to their respective homes.

Today, I had the opportunity to meet in my office with the Italian Minister of Defense, for example. He shares the common goal of this amendment.

We are now one day away from the 1-year anniversary of the start of the NATO war on behalf of Kosovo, on behalf of human rights. The world could not have stood by idly and watched the killing and the rape and the pillaging of that nation and done nothing. It was a challenge to figure out what to do. On a number of occasions, I consulted with General Clark. Indeed, I was with him in part of that campaign, watching the operations he directed, and directed very skillfully. We could not have done nothing.

This is an appropriate time for reflection and assessment. What have we accomplished and what remains to be done? Clearly, the large-scale ethnic cleansing has stopped and hundreds of thousands of Kosovar Albanian refugees have returned to their homes. For this, NATO should be proud of their military action.

But what better way to express our pride in their successful accomplishment of that military mission than for the United States, in concert and partnership with its allies, to come forward in a timely manner and meet the commitments to solidify the military gains? None of us are totally satisfied. A regrettable chapter relates to the Serbian people who lived in those areas, many of whom have left after the cessation of the 78-day campaign. But I think the KFOR troops are doing their best to provide equal protection and that we are continuing to address that situation because we have to have an evenhanded policy. Human rights, to be successful, has to be implemented evenhandedly.

Yes, the fighting has stopped. Unfortunately, the violence continues. Recent events in Mitrovica and in the vicinity of the Presevo Valley are cause for great concern. Bottom line, until there is an economic structure in place, together with a security structure, we will not see substantial progress in creating peaceful, civil society in Kosovo. Until that happens, under the administration's current plan, U.S. troops could remain indefinitely in Kosovo.

Earlier this week, General Reinhardt, the commander of KFOR, said—and I believe I am quoting him accurately—that he believed KFOR troops would be in Kosovo for up to a decade. To make such a declaration at this time, I say, with respect to this fine professional military officer whom I have met—I met him in Pristina about a month ago, right in his office—I repeat, to make such a declaration at this time I find unacceptable. This is one of the motivating factors behind the amendment I have proposed. We cannot let General Reinhardt or anyone else set a timetable of a decade. We need to see more progress on the civil implementation side.

The U.N., the E.U., and the OSCE must move more swiftly to fulfill their responsibilities for rebuilding Kosovo, and our European allies must provide the assistance and personnel they have promised to provide if these goals are to be achieved. Time is of the essence.

The amendment I and others have placed before the Senate is but one approach to deal with the situation in Kosovo. I know other colleagues have their own approaches on this issue, not necessarily dissimilar. We share common goals. In particular, I commend Senator ROBERT BYRD, who has proposed a concept for rapid turnover of the KFOR mission to the European allies.

I now ask unanimous consent that the editorial by Senator BYRD be printed in the RECORD following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See Exhibit 5.)

Mr. WARNER. It outlines in full his concepts, which are very interesting. I have been on the Senate floor with Senator BYRD so many times. He is a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee. No one takes to heart more dearly the welfare of the men and women of the Armed Forces and their families than Senator BYRD. He is concerned about their welfare as am I. We have joined together at a meeting in the White House, I think some 3 weeks ago, to discuss this very subject.

He spoke up with great courage and determination to the President and the Secretaries of State and Defense. It was quite an interesting meeting. What we cannot allow to happen is for the current situation in Kosovo to drift on for a decade. I say no. There are problems. Those problems are surmountable if we work together. They must be addressed. They must be addressed in a timely manner.

I hope the amendment in its present form, revised, will contribute to this goal. I, once again, encourage my colleagues and others to come forward with any constructive suggestions they may have. I continue to say that this Senator—I think I can speak for my cosponsors—is going to stand firm, firm in furtherance of the goals of human rights in Kosovo, in furtherance of remaining as a vital partner of NATO, in furtherance of creating a record to show that NATO can handle peacekeeping missions. To do that, we need more timely assistance from those who have committed to provide the infrastructure of economics and security.

I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

EXHIBIT NO. 1

SECRETARY GENERAL, NATO,
Bruxelles, March 15, 2000.

Senator JOHN WARNER,
Chairman, Senate Armed Services Committee, Russell Senate Office Building, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

MY DEAR JOHN: I am glad we had the chance to talk by phone yesterday. As I noted, I share your concern that the Allied nations need to react more swiftly and forcefully to the current challenges in Kosovo. I have been pressing hard to ensure that nations provide additional forces for KFOR.

Dire press reports notwithstanding, progress has in fact been made. Let me give you an update on what steps are being taken.

On force levels for Kosovo, the European Allies are now stepping up their contributions.

Italy has agreed to provide a manoeuvre battalion of two companies for a limited time period.

France is putting under NATO command two companies that had already been dispatched to Kosovo on short notice under national authority, and is adding one further company. Together, these three companies will form a new French manoeuvre battalion.

This still leaves a shortfall of three companies relative to the needs in theatre as identified by the Supreme Allied Commander, General Clark, and the KFOR Commander General Reinhardt. I have been in direct contact with several Allied governments, and General Clark and the Military Committee Chairman Admiral Venturoni have been in touch with Chiefs of Defense. As a result of these contacts, a further five countries have indicated that they are seriously considering sending additional forces to Kosovo.

Even before the addition of these forces, European nations are contributing a majority of the forces on the ground in Kosovo. The following figures relate to forces to theatre on 13 March. While these figures fluctuate by small amounts on a daily basis, the overall ratio of forces has been fairly constant for some time.

EU nations makes up 60.3 percent of all the forces in Kosovo.

European nations—leaving aside Russia and the CIS states—make up 69.2 percent of the forces in Kosovo.

Adding in Russia and the other CIS states, European nations account for 80 percent of all the forces in theatre.

The remainder is made up by Argentina, Jordan, the United Arab Emirates, Morocco, Canada and, of course, the United States, for a total of 38 nations contributing to KFOR.

On the civil implementation side, there has also been some notable progress:

The European Union has started to disburse 45 million Euro ($43.6 million) of the 360 million Euro ($349 million) pledged to UNMIK for the year 2000. Several NATO members states have also increased their financial contributions to both UNMIK and the KPC.

Germany, Italy and Turkey have strengthened their civil police contingents to Kosovo, and the United Kingdom has agreed to provide additional judiciary officials.

Let me emphasize in providing you this data that I am only reporting to you what I have been told as Secretary General. Implementation is key, and I will continue to press hard to make sure that nations follow through both on their KFOR contributions and on civil implementation.

With these points in mind, I have to convey to you my firm belief that it would be wrong for NATO right now to have a reduction or limitation on the U.S. commitment, just as the situation in Kosovo is becoming more challenging and the European Allies, who are already carrying a large load, are beginning to do even more.

This is particularly true when looking at the situation in the Presevo Valley, which is adjacent to the U.S. sector in Kosovo. I hope the U.S. will play a strong role in heading off a potential crisis there. The U.S. forces did a superb job today in raiding a number of support bases in Kosovo for extremists operating in southern Serbia. We need that kind of effective military presence to continue.

On a related point, I understand your concerns for not deploying American forces away from these Southeastern trouble spots to help reinforce other Allies in Mitrovica. But I would not want to see the U.S. position cast in stone as a means of justifying lack of routine responsiveness to the operational commander. Such a position would be at odds with the principle of unity of command, which is essential to the effective of NATO forces in multinational operations over the long term.

I appreciate your ongoing concern for the success of the KFOR operation. I am working very hard to ensure that the European Allies hold up their end of the bargain—in both the military and the civil implementation areas—and am counting on you and your colleagues to help maintain the valuable U.S. contribution.

All the very best.

GEORGE.

EXHIBIT NO. 2

U.N. INTERIM ADMINISTRATION,
MISSION IN KOSOVO,
Pristina, March 18, 2000.

Hon. JOHN WARNER,
Chairman, Committee on Armed Services, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR: Let me first of all thank you whole heartedly for your unfettered support and assistance as Chairman of the Armed Services Committee: the kind of tough questioning that took place as a result of your interventions have been instrumental in helping UNMIK achieve some of its objectives.

I want to give you an update on the situation regarding the Kosovo Consolidated Budget, which is now in considerably better shape than it was earlier in the year. Donor pledges made at the end of last year have now crystallized into cash in the bank. Recently the Kosovo Budget has received contributions from the United States, the UK, France, Japan, and the European Union. As you will see from the attached tables, it is now estimated that the budget has sufficient cash to carry us through the summer. Furthermore our revenue collection is now improving. In particular, the European Union has already paid in some of its contributions, and clear and rapid procedures are in place for the remaining of the Union's contributions to be paid in (another more than Euro 55 Millions will be transferred to the Kosovo Budget in the next three months). Further, and as planned, the Union will contribute over Euro 240 Millions for reconstruction in 2000.

I would however also stress that there were never sufficient pledges to cover the whole of the needs for the year 2000. there is still an uncovered gap of about 35 million DEM, as per attached table, and any assistance you can extend to us to cover that gap will be deeply appreciated by this mission.

I very much appreciate the efforts that you have made so far which have been instrumental in improving our budget situation. Existing donor pledges have now been honored. The next challenge will be to get new donor pledges and to ensure that the pledges for the reconstruction budget of 17 November 1999 do materialize.

I look forward to a continued dialogue with you, and I hope to see you soon.

Sincerely,

BERNARD KOUCHNER,
Special Representative of the Secretary General.

KOSOVO CONSOLIDATED BUDGET 2000 BUDGET UPDATE

BACKGROUND ON THIS WEEK'S UPDATE

Attached are documents that detail donor pledges and domestic revenue. Tables 1, 2, and 3 review donor pledges to date. Table 4 projects cash flow through mid-June 2000. Tables 5 through 9 review revenue estimates and actual collections. Table 10 reviews budget 2000 revenue estimates and summarizes donor support.

Noteworthy items are:

Donor pledges have started to arrive.—Since the last report we confirm that roughly DM 76.9 million of donor pledges for budgetary support are either in our account or en-route, including (see Table 2):[1] United States—DM 24.2 million; Great Britain—DM 15.9 million; France—DM 3.5 million; Japan—initiated transfer of DM 13.7 million; European Union—initiated transfer of DM 19.6 million. A further £35 million is expected shortly.

Cash Needs.—The recent influx of cash will allow the Kosovo Consolidated Budget to continue functioning until mid-June (see Table 4). Kosovo's cash requirements will be met through September 2000 upon receipt of the European Union's pledge of £35 million.

Revenue collections improve.—The last two weeks witnessed a 55 percent increase in collections (from DM 5.8 year-to-date to DM 9.8 million). Two factors appear to drive this increase. First, sales and excise tax collection at the Montenegro Administrative Boundary Line (ABL) has become operational, collection over DM 756,684 in the last two weeks. Collections at the ABL has the direct effect of capturing lost revenue through that crossing, and an indirect effect of re-diverting trucks back to previously established border points for collection. Second, customs collections are slightly higher because vehicle registration requires proof of customs payment on imported cars. The former is expected to continue, while the latter is a short-run effect that will dissipate. (See Table 7.)

Pledge shortfall.—There still remains a pledge shortfall of DM 38.5 million, based on revised revenue estimates (see Table 10, Part 2).

WASHINGTON,
March 22, 2000.

Hon. JOHN WARNER,
U.S. Senate,
Washington, DC.

DEAR JOHN: To follow up on our recent conversation, I would like to share a few further thoughts regarding the Administration's proposed supplemental spending bill for the Balkans.

You and I have worked together on Balkan issues for many years and have more often than not agreed on the policy direction that should be taken. We have frequently shared a critical view of the Clinton Administration's policies and their implementation. In addition, we have always agreed that the President of the United States has the ultimate responsibility to carry out U.S. foreign policy according to our national security objectives, which include a strong and effective NATO.

As you know, my support for U.S. military and other operations in the Balkans is based on the firm belief that democratization and stability in the region must be achieved, and that the U.S. troop deployments in Bosnia and Kosovo are vital to these goals. To this end, I am concerned that, as drafted, the amendment that you are introducing to the Administration's supplemental bill would, based solely upon the action or inaction of a third party (our European allies), prohibit the President from maintaining a U.S. troop presence—even though he may have determined this presence to be in our country's national interest. In my view, this legislative restriction would tie the hands of the President in a sphere of power that clearly lies within the prerogative of the executive branch of the U.S. government. Accordingly, I would urge you to consider, at a minimum, allowing a Presidential waiver authority based upon compelling national security needs.

Second, I am concerned that your amendment could, albeit unintentionally, adversely affect our role in NATO and our relations with our Alliance allies. Our credibility within NATO and our strong bilateral relations with each of our allies in the Alliance could be damaged by policies that link our presence in the Balkans to extraneous factors, as opposed to our national and collective European security objectives.

That said, I believe in principle that you are entirely right to try to hold the Administration's feet to the fire to ensure that the United States continues to lead, while at the same time preventing it from shouldering an inordinate share of the international burden in the Balkans. The devil is in the details, however, and I am concerned that some of the targets identified in your amendment simply cannot be met, and that the European powers are being held to a higher standard that the United States. For example, it is realistic for the United States and/or the Europeans to be required to disburse 33 percent of the funds needed for Kosova reconstruction by June 1, 2000?

In my view, the Congress and those of us who support stronger U.S. leadership in the international arena should focus more on exerting direct pressure on the Administration to implement policies that promote democratization, political stability, and security in the Balkans. The issue, it seems to me, is not so much whether our troops are deployed in the region, but what they are actually doing on the ground. While the United States and its allies can point to a number of successes in Bosnia and Kosova, severe problems remain. At times, it even seems as though we are taking steps backwards. For example, I wholly disagree with the Administration's failure to support General Clark's recent effort to deploy U.S. troops in Mitrovica. The troops putatively in charge of that sector of Kosova have clearly failed to perform their mission to create a stable security environment. While their actions have not put them in the league of their predecessors in Bosnia's now infamous UNPROFOR, continuation on their current course will almost certainly lead to a de facto partition of Kosova—a highly destabilizing situation that would put our troops at even greater risk. A resumption of large-scale conflict may then follow. I would therefore urge you and others in the Congress to do your utmost to ensure that the Pentagon takes stronger action to get this situation in hand as quickly as possible.

A second example can be found in Bosnia, where the U.S.-led equip-and-train program for the Federation forces has floundered. As you know, in 1996, the Administration secured Senate majority support for the U.S. troop deployment in Bosnia based on President Clinton's written commitment to equip and train the Federation forces. In the past four years, the United States has done far too little to honor this commitment. When the war in Bosnia ended, an Administration-commissioned assessment determined that, to maintain adequate defenses, the Federation needed equipment that would cost an estimated $800 million to $1 billion. To date, only $250 million in equipment and training has been provided to the Federation. Of this, the U.S. contribution was only $100 million in Congressionally mandated drawdown authority. Beyond these initial sums, the Administration has neither proposed nor sought significant funding for the program. In my view, the Congress should provide additional drawdown authority for the purchase of the major equipment and provision of the training that remain necessary for Bosnia to be able to defend itself. It should also immediately increase FMF funding so that the equipment we have provided thus far can be adequately maintained.

Thank you for giving me this opportunity to share my views. I wish you every success as you continue your leadership in the Senate.

Thank you.
Sincerely,

BOB DOLE.

SEC. . (a) Of the amounts appropriated in this Act under the heading ''OVERSEAS CONTINGENCY OPERATIONS TRANSFER FUND'' for military operations in Kosovo, not more than 50 percent may be obligated until the President certifies in writing to Congress that the European Commission, the member nations of the European Union, and the European member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have, in the aggregate—

(1) obligated or contracted for at least 33 percent of the amount of the assistance that those organizations and nations committed to provide for 1999 and 2000 for reconstruction in Kosovo;

(2) obligated or contracted for at least 75 percent of the amount of the assistance that those organizations and nations committed for 1999 and 2000 for humanitarian assistance in Kosovo;

(3) provided at least 75 percent of the amount of the assistance that those organizations and nations committed for 1999 and 2000 for the Kosovo Consolidated Budget; and

(4) deployed at least 75 percent of the number of police, including special police, that those organizations and nations pledged for the United Nations international police force for Kosovo.

(b) The President shall submit to Congress, with any certification submitted by the President under subsection (a), a report containing detailed information on—

(1) the commitments and pledges made by each organization and nation referred to in subsection (a) for reconstruction assistance in Kosovo, humanitarian assistance in Kosovo, the Kosovo Consolidated Budget, and police (including special police) for the United Nations international police force for Kosovo;

(2) the amount of assistance that has been provided in each category, and the number of police that have been deployed to Kosovo, by each such organization or nation; and

(3) the full range of commitments and responsibilities that have been undertaken for Kosovo by the United Nations, the European Union, and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), the progress made by those organizations in fulfilling those commitments and responsibilities, an assessment of the tasks that remain to be accomplished, and an anticipated schedule for completing those tasks.

(c) If the President does not submit to Congress a certification and report under subsections (a) and (b) on or before June 1, 2000, then, beginning on June 2, 2000, the 50 percent of the amounts appropriated in this Act under the heading ''OVERSEAS CONTINGENCY OPERATIONS TRANSFER FUND'' for military operations in Kosovo that remain unobligated (as required by subsection (a)) shall be available only for the purpose of conducting a safe, orderly, and phased withdrawal of United States military personnel from Kosovo, and no other amounts appropriated for the Department of Defense in this Act or any Act enacted before the date of the enactment of this Act may be obligated to continue the deployment of United States military personnel in Kosovo. In that case, the President shall submit to Congress, not later than June 30, 2000, a report on the plan for the withdrawal.

EUROPE'S TURN TO KEEP THE PEACE

(By Robert C. Byrd)

A year ago, American and NATO warplanes began 78 days of air assaults that halted the murderous assault of Slobodan Milosevic on the Kosovar Albanians. If the United States has learned anything in the nine months of peacekeeping that followed, it should be that once again we are proving to be a lot better at waging war than we are at managing peace. Kosovo today appears to be on the verge of unraveling.

American and NATO peacekeepers skirt danger daily. Reconstruction has been negligible. Mr. Milosevic remains firmly in control in Serbia and, by most reckoning, is stepping up his effort to foment trouble along the border between Serbia and Kosovo. In the latest eruption of violence, ethnic Albanian insurgents have begun attacking Serbs across the border in Serbia.

The administration's response to this deepening crisis? Stern words to the Albanians, urgent pleas to our allies for more troops and money, and a request to Congress for a supplemental $2 billion to continue American peacekeeping business as usual in Kosovo.

Is that really the best we can do?

I see three options we can practically consider at this juncture.

We can stay the course, reacting to events as they occur and hoping for the best as we settle into a semi-permanent role of soldiers on patrol and cops on the beat. We can pick a date and simply pull American troops out of Kosovo. Or Congress can give the administration unequivocal direction and a reasonable period of time—say three months—to craft a framework for turning the Kosovo peacekeeping operation over to our European allies. Congress can then examine the plan, gauge the progress being made, and vote either to stay or to go.

It is my firm belief that the United States should take steps to turn the Kosovo peacekeeping operation over to our European allies. NATO undertook the Kosovo mission with an understanding that Europe, not America, would shoulder the peacekeeping and reconstruction duties. The United States, with its outstanding military forces and weaponry, effectively won the war; the European allies were to keep the peace.

But now, as the United Nations interim administration in Kosovo teeters on the brink of bankruptcy, NATO allies are squabbling over the need for military reinforcements, and the international police that were supposed to help bring law and order remain undermanned, underfinanced, and unable to cope.

If Congress agrees to the administration's request for additional financing for Kosovo, it should be with the clear understanding that the money is tied to a plan for establishing an all-European peacekeeping force. The plan should have benchmarks, like numbers of European troops to be added to the forces by particular dates, and Congress should have an opportunity to vote on whether to keep troops in Kosovo if those benchmarks are not being met.

Removal of American troops from Kosovo need not be abrupt and need not mean that the United States is turning its back on the victims of Slobodan Milosevic. We can continue to support humanitarian relief and can provide support in military logistics, communications, intelligence and effective command.

It is just possible that the Europeans will excel at peacekeeping duties in Kosovo if ever they are allowed to emerge from the overwhelming shadow cast by the United States. Unfortunately, we will never know if we do not tie further American investment in Kosovo to a rock-solid plan to turn the peacekeeping operation over to them—sooner rather than later.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

AGAINST LIFTING THE TRAVEL BAN ON LIBYA

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, on Wednesday of this week, a team of State Department officials departed for Libya as part of a review of the travel ban that has been in effect since 1981.

State Department officials will be in Libya for 26 hours in the next few days, visiting hotels and other sites. They will then prepare a recommendation for the Secretary to help her determine if there is still ''Imminent danger to . . . the physical safety of United States travellers,'' as the law requires in order to maintain the ban.

Because of the travel ban, American citizens can only travel to Libya if they obtain a license from the Department of the Treasury. In addition, the State Department must first validate a passport for travel to Libya.

The travel ban was imposed originally for safety reasons and predates the terrorist bombing of Pan Am Flight 103. But lifting the ban now, just as the two Libyan suspects are about to go on trial in the Netherlands for their role in that atrocity, will undoubtedly be viewed as a gesture of good will to Colonel Qadhafi.

Indeed, just after the State Department announced that it would send this consular team, a Saudi-owned daily paper quoted a senior Libyan official as saying the one-day visit by the U.S. Team was a ''step in the right direction.''

The official said the visit was a sign that ''the international community was convinced that Libya's foreign policy position was not wrong and there is a noticeable improvement in Libya's relations with the world.''

I have been in contact with many of the families of the victims of Pan Am Flight 103, and they are extremely upset by the timing of this decision. The families want to know why the Secretary of State is making this friendly overture to Qadhafi now—just six weeks before the trial in the Netherlands begins. They question how much information the State Department will be able to obtain by spending only 26 hours in Libya. They wonder why the Department cannot continue to use the same sources of information it has been using for many years to make a determination about the travel ban.

These courageous Americans have waited for justice for eleven long years. They feel betrayed by this decision. They have watched with dismay as our close ally, Great Britain, has rushed to reestablish diplomatic relations with Libya, before justice is served for the British citizens killed in the terrorist bombing. The State Department denies it, but the families are concerned that the visit signals a change in U.S. policy, undermines U.S. sanctions, and calls into question the Administration's commitment to vigorously enforce the Iran Libya Sanctions Act. That Act requires the U.S. to impose sanctions on foreign companies which invest more than $40 million in the Libyan petroleum industry, until Libya complies with the four conditions specified by the UN Security Council.

The bombing of Pan Am Flight 103, in which 188 Americans were killed, was one of the worst terrorist atrocities in American history. The State Department should not have sent a delegation to Libya now and it should not lift the travel ban on Libya at this time. The State Department's long-standing case-by-case consideration of passport requests for visits to Libya by U.S. citizens has worked well. It can continue to do so for the foreseeable future.

ORDER FOR ADJOURNMENT

Mr. THOMPSON. If there is no further business to come before the Senate, I now ask that the Senate stand in adjournment under the previous order following the remarks of Senator BYRD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection it is so ordered.

The distinguished Senator from West Virginia.

ALASKA'S MAN OF THE CENTURY

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, it gives me great pleasure to acknowledge my good friend Senator TED STEVENS' special honor as Alaska's Man of the Century, which I understand will be awarded to him this Saturday in Anchorage.

Speaking as a Senator from the State of West Virginia, it is a fitting tribute, I believe, for a man whose life has been devoted to Alaska since long before Alaska became a State.

Calvin Coolidge once said:

> No person was ever honored for what he received. Honor has been the reward for what he gave.

Calvin Coolidge was a man of few words.

The Bible says:

> A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver.

Calvin Coolidge spoke words that were fitly stated. Senator TED STEVENS has given much to Alaska, and he has given much to the Nation. He has given much to the Senate. He served his nation in war as a pilot in the 14th Air Force in World War II. As chairman of the Defense Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations, which he also leads with great distinction, and as a cofounder of the Senate Arms Control Observer Group, Senator STEVENS has continued to look after U.S. national security interests and the men and women who serve, as he did, in the uniform of her armed forces.

Senator TED STEVENS has served his nation well in war, and he has served his nation well in peace, upholding the laws of the land as an attorney, as a U.S. attorney, and as a solicitor for the Department of the Interior. He has served in the executive branch of Government working as an assistant to the then Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Mr. Seaton, to create and pass legislation making Alaska the Nation's 49th State.

I am proud to have voted to support the entry of both Alaska and Hawaii into the National Union. I am the only person on Capitol Hill who voted for statehood for both Alaska and Hawaii. I believe that is right. I was in the House when I voted for statehood for Alaska.

Senator STEVENS has been a leader in the legislative branch as a Senator from Alaska, looking out first, last, and always for the unique interests of his unique State, as well as for the interests of the Nation while serving as the assistant Senate Republican leader, serving as the Republican whip, and serving as chairman of the Appropriations Committee. His legislative accomplishments in behalf of Alaska are many—many—and they reflect the challenges of living, working, and traveling in a State that possesses half of the coastline of the United States, some of the most varied and spectacular terrain in the Nation, ranging from giant glaciers to volcanoes, and some of the most punishing weather, as well as some of the most delightful weather, on the planet.

The old adage says that cream rises to the top, and it is safe to say then that Senator STEVENS is the cream of the cream, the very best, for he has risen to the top of every profession, every endeavor, every challenge that he has ever tackled. His fellow Alaskans will add the cherry on top of the cream of the cream by recognizing his multitudinous accomplishments, his supreme dedication, and his deep passion for service when they bestow upon Senator STEVENS the very distinct honor of naming a very special man, Senator STEVENS, Alaska's Man of the Century.

Now the century is not over yet. I hope the people of Alaska understand that. Our own people need to understand that as well. The century is not over yet, nor is the second millennium. It is still going on. The new millennium will begin next year, not this year, and the new century will begin next year, not this year. But this is the man, the Man of the Century for Alaska.

Although he was not born in the earliest years of this century, his legacy for Alaska is more than enough to span the century and to reach into the next century as well.

Senator STEVENS is a worthy representative of his great State. He is the kind of Senator whom the framers of the Constitution had in mind when, on July 16, 1787, they reached the Great Compromise out of which came this, the greatest Senate of the world in all of the history of man.

His sometimes fiery temper matches the fiery volcanoes that rim the Aleutians, while his dogged persistence mirrors the inexorable push of the icy glaciers of the frozen North. His understanding of the appropriations process is as thorough as an Alaskan snowfall, blanketing every nook, every cranny, every corner of the budget. But his warm and courteous consideration of his colleagues and his staff reflects the loyalty and the teamwork necessary to survive in the cold wastes of faraway Alaska.

I know him to be a worthy competitor. I know him to be a loyal friend, a man of his word. What more can a man say? And only the Man of the Century could be like this man. He is an honest speaker of even the hardest and difficult truths, a man of surprising compassion and unexpected mirth. I am proud to see him honored. I wish I could be in Alaska when he is honored. I would like to just have a few minutes in Alaska to speak about this man to his own people. They know him best. The Bible says:

> A prophet is not without honour save in his own country, and house.

But you see how this man's own house, how his own country, how his own State, how his own constituents, how his own people who know him best, how they honor him. I am proud to see him honored. I hope he enjoys the good wishes and the attention that will be his on Saturday.

Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said this:

> Through our great good fortune, in our youth our hearts were touched with fire. It was given us to learn at the outset that life is a profound and passionate thing. While we were permitted to scorn nothing but indifference, and do not pretend to undervalue the worldly rewards of ambition, we have seen with our own eyes, beyond and above the gold fields, the snowy heights of honor, and it is for us to bear the report to those who come after us.

TED STEVENS of Alaska surely has a heart touched early by the fire of public service. That flame has fueled his passion through a long and distinguished career which continues to burn brightly. But the report on Senator STEVENS is already in. From his fellow Alaskans. And they view him admiringly. And in their eyes he has crowned the snowy heights of honor. And in my eyes he has also.

> ''How far away is the temple of fame?''
> Said a youth at the dawn of the day.
> He toiled and strove for a deathless name;
> The hours went by and the evening came,
> Leaving him old and feeble and lame,
> To plod on his cheerless way.
>
> ''How far away is the temple of good?''
> Said another youth at the dawn of the day,
> He toiled in the spirit of brotherhood,
> To help and succor as best he could.
> The poor and unfortunate multitude,
> In its hard and cheerless way.
>
> He was careless alike of praise or blame,
> But after his work was done,
> An angel of glory from heaven came
> To write on high his immortal name,
> And to proclaim the truth that the temple of fame
> And the temple of good are one.
> For this is the lesson that history
> Has taught since the world began;
> That those whose memories never die,

But shine like stars in the human sky,
And brighter glow as the years go by,
Are the men who live for man.

I did not write the poem, but I dedicate it to my good and dear friend, Alaska's Man of the Century, TED STEVENS.

May God continue to bless him and his family always.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, will the Senator yield?

Mr. BYRD. Yes.

Mr. STEVENS. I am once again humbled by the words of my good friend from West Virginia. There is no man, I think, in history who knows more about the Senate, and loves and serves it better, than the Senator from West Virginia. The honor to be here and serve with him is honor enough for this Senator.

I am still humbled by the award I will receive on Saturday night. But I am warmed by the Senator's comments, and thank him for his comments about this honor I will receive.

Believe me, I think if there is a Man of Two Centuries, it is the Senator from West Virginia.

Mr. BYRD. Thank you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Virginia.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, with complete humility, may I ask to be associated with the remarks of the distinguished Senator from West Virginia on behalf of our colleague.

I have had the privilege of serving both with the Senator from West Virginia and the Senator from Alaska. This is my 22nd or 23rd year, I think. I have lost count. But in those years, I have come to so respect both Senators. As we look at life in the Senate, there are no moments that are more cherished, no more well deserved than when a colleague rises at his or her own initiative to speak from the heart, as our distinguished Senator from West Virginia has done. He evoked the great quote from the Bible about the prophet without honor. But I would say to my friend from West Virginia, I have never thought of Senator STEVENS—until this moment—as being a prophet, but I have always thought of him with honor.

Although we are from the same side of the aisle, we have had very strong and vigorous debate in dissent, but I have never left the Chamber with less than the feeling that it has been a fair fight, and an honest fight, having even greater respect for our distinguished colleague.

How richly he deserves this honor. Like you, I say to the Senator, I only wish I could be there. But we will be there in spirit.

I thank my colleagues.

Mr. BYRD. We will.

I thank the Senator.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY, MARCH 27, 2000

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the Senate will stand in adjournment until Monday, March 27, 2000, at noon.

Thereupon, the Senate, at 4:53 p.m., adjourned until Monday, March 27, 2000, at 12 Noon.

EXTENSIONS OF REMARKS

THE ''CHILD SUPPORT FAIRNESS AND FEDERAL TAX REFUND INTERCEPTION ACT OF 2000''

HON. MICHAEL N. CASTLE

OF DELAWARE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. CASTLE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to introduce the ''Child Support Fairness and Federal Tax Refund Interception Act of 2000.'' This legislation expands the eligibility of one of our most effective means of enforcing child support orders—intercepting the Federal tax refunds of parents delinquent in paying their court-ordered financial support for their children. Under current law, the Federal tax refund offset program operated by the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is limited to cases where the child is either a minor or a disabled adult.

It goes without saying that a parent who brings a child into this world is responsible for providing for that child's physical needs regardless of any conflict with the child's custodial parent. Last July, I received a letter from Lisa McCave of Wilmington, Delaware. She wanted to know where the justice was in the IRS allowing her husband to collect a $2,426 tax refund when he still owed her nearly $7,000 in back child support just because her son is no longer a minor and is not disabled.

Since her son was three, Ms. McCave has had to work two jobs to make up for child support installments that were never paid. She has spent the better part of her time away from work tracking down her former husband, who has often quit his job as soon as his wages were garnished to repay this debt. Now, she is trying to pay off $55,000 in parent loans she incurred to send her son to college. Mr. Speaker, we all know the answer to Lisa McCave's question. Under the current law, there is no justice in limiting the eligibility for this tax intercept program to minors and disabled adults.

The good news is that we can correct this injustice. Improving our child support enforcement programs is neither a Republican nor a Democrat issue—it is an issue that should concern all of us. According to recent government statistics, there are approximately 12 million active cases where a child support order requires a noncustodial parent to contribute towards the support of his/her child. Of the $13.7 billion owed pursuant to these orders in 1998, only half have been paid. Similar shortfalls in past years bring the combined delinquency total to $35.3 billion. I am confident we can all agree to fix this injustice in our Federal tax refund offset program and help some of our most needy constituents receive the financial relief they are owed.

I would like to clarify for everyone's benefit that this legislation does not create a cause of action for a custodial parent to seek additional child support. The existing program merely helps custodial parents recover debt they are owed for a level of child support that was set by a court after both sides had the opportunity to present their arguments about the proper size of the child support.

The Federal tax refund offset program is responsible for retrieving nearly one-third of all back child support collected. The time has come to make it a greater success. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this legislation and thank the Ways and Means Committee for its commitment to moving this bill to the House floor for debate in the near future.

HONORING THE GOLDEN APPLE SCHOLARS AWARD PROGRAM AND MS. SARAH OBERMARK FROM ILLINOIS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, today I commend the 2000 Golden Apple Scholar award winners from my district. The Golden Apple Scholars program is to recruit talented high school juniors who want to become teachers.

I would like to take the opportunity to recognize Ms. Sarah Obermark from Bond Community High School in Sorento, Illinois. Teachers, like parents, have a unique opportunity—to touch the life of a child. I can't think of a more rewarding experience.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, I was a former high school teacher. I want to wish Sarah all the same joy and success that I shared in my teaching career.

CONGRATULATING ALISON LITTELL McHOSE

HON. MARGE ROUKEMA

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. ROUKEMA. Mr. Speaker, I congratulate Alison Littell McHose for her work on the behalf of unwed mothers and their infant children. Mrs. McHose has been chosen as the honoree at the annual dinner dance held by Birth Haven, a compassionate and supportive shelter for unwed mothers. Her selection comes in recognition of the extensive work Mrs. McHose has done on behalf of Birth Haven, including her efforts to secure funding from the New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services.

It should come as no surprise that Alison Littell McHose is dedicated to public service and helping those less fortunate than herself. She is the daughter of my good friends state Senator Robert Littell and Virginia Littell, former chairwoman of the New Jersey Republican State Committee. The Littells raised their daughter with a clear sense of responsibility to the community around her, and instilled in her their own firm values, sense of dedication and fearlessness of hard work.

Mrs. McHose has worked as a legislative aide in her father's Senate office in Franklin, NJ, for 4 years, handling budget issues, constituent case work, news releases, speeches and correspondence. As part of her duties, she acted as liaison between Birth Haven and Senator Littell, who chairs the State Senate Budget and Appropriations Committee. Mrs. McHose helped Birth Haven secure state grants of $40,000 in the fiscal 1999 state budget and $50,000 in the 2000 budget. In addition, she was instrumental in handling the case of a former Birth Haven resident who needed state assistance.

Mrs. McHose's work with Birth Haven led to a strong personal interest in the organization. She has visited the facility and made extensive donations of supplies needed by the residents and volunteered her time.

Located in Newton, New Jersey, Birth Haven is a shelter for homeless pregnant women, able to house up to nine women simultaneously in a home-like setting where meals and housework are shared. The women, mostly in their teens or early 20's, are given proper prenatal care and counseling and enrolled for benefits such as Medicaid and the Women, Infants and Children nutrition program. Those without a high school diploma are required to attend class or seek a GED. Courses in homemaking, parenting and job-seeking skills are available as well. Some of the residents were homeless before they became pregnant. Others were kicked out of their homes by parents or boyfriends.

Mrs. McHose's work on behalf of Birth Haven and in Senator Littell's office are only her most recent accomplishments in public service. She was previously a policy council director in education and health care for a grassroots organization in Washington. She also spent four years at the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Treasury Department under the Bush administration.

Active in her community, she is vice-chairwoman of both the Franklin Economic Development Committee and the Franklin Business Development Corporation. She is a founding member of the Franklin Historical Society, a member of the capital campaign committee of the Sussex County YMCA, and an active member of the Junior League of Morristown. She also edits a nationally distributed family publication, Living Age.

Mrs. McHose is a graduate of the University of Maryland and Pope John XXIII High School in Sparta. She and her husband, Morgan, are the parents of a 2-year-old son, Logan, and make their home in Franklin.

I ask my colleagues to join me in congratulating Mrs. McHose on her work on behalf of unwed mothers and their infant children, and in wishing her the best as she continues to address the needs of those less fortunate than herself.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. ALLEN BOYD

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, on Wednesday, on March 22, 2000, I was unavoidably detained, causing me to miss roll call votes 58, 59, 60, 61, 62 and 63.

I ask that the RECORD reflect that had I been present I would have voted ''yea'' on rollcall vote 58, ''nay'' on rollcall vote 59, ''yea'' on rollcall vote 60, ''yea'' on rollcall vote 61, ''nay'' on rollcall vote 62, and ''yea'' on rollcall vote 63.

LIFE UNIVERSITY RUNNING EAGLES—NAIA CHAMPIONS, AGAIN

HON. BOB BARR

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pride and admiration I recognize the Life University Running Eagles Men's Basketball Team from Marietta, Georgia. On Monday, March 20, 2000, the NAIA Division I Defending Champion Running Eagles defeated Georgetown College (KY) to win a second NAIA Championship in as many years. This marked the first time in nearly a decade an NAIA team had won back-to-back titles. This was also the third time in four years Life University had captured the NAIA Championship.

Excellence has become the hallmark of Life University sports; but the school excels also in academic pursuits. Life University was founded in 1974 as Life Chiropractic College, and achieved university status in 1997. It has a 26-year history of producing graduates, from a wide variety of degree programs, with the study of Chiropractic remaining its primary focus.

For their achievements, I want to congratulate all of the members of the Men's Running Eagles team, their Coach Roger Kaiser, and the President and Founder of Life University, Dr. Sid E. Williams.

HONORING THE CHAMPION JACKSON COUNTY LADY BLUE DEVILS

HON. BART GORDON

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the outstanding season of the Jackson County Lady Blue Devils basketball team, which recently captured the 2000 Tennessee Secondary School Athletic Association Class AA Girls Basketball Tournament championship.

This is the high school's first championship season since winning the small school tournament way back in 1973. Last year the team lost in the tournament final and used that experience to win this year's tournament.

At 29–7, this year's Lady Blue Devils team displayed a tenacious will to win. This championship season will forever be remembered by each of those talented players who proved that hard work and dedication pay rich dividends.

Members of the championship team are Heather Davidson, Joanna Chaffin, Becca Focer, Jessica Smith, Sarah Jane Breidert, Andrea Davidson, Emily Lane, Lacy Sircy, Ashley Hopkins, Deanna Apple, Alyssa Bowman, Jennifer Harris, and managers Faith Henshaw, Stephanie Clayton and Lucy Anderson. Head coach Jim Brown and assistant coaches Kevin Bray and Barbara Brown, with the support of principal Herbert Leftwich, did a magnificent job preparing the team for this year's stellar season.

Jackson County is proud of its Lady Blue Devils, and I congratulate each of these young ladies for a job well done.

RURAL HEALTH CARE PROTECTION ACT OF 2000

HON. MATT SALMON

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SALMON. Mr. Speaker, I rise to introduce the Rural Health Care Protection Act of 2000. Among other things, the bill mandates that Medicare+Choice enrollees cannot be held liable by contracted or non-contracted providers for any claims that are unpaid by a Medicare+Choice plan. It also allows the insurance commissioner of a state to apply to the Secretary of HHS for reimbursement for all valid, unpaid provider claims. And, the legislation establishes HCFA as a creditor for Medicare+Choice Amos that go bankrupt.

The need for this legislation is clear. In Arizona, Premier HMO recently announced it was insolvent. Roughly 20,000 seniors have left Premier to return to traditional Medicare (which provides no prescription drug benefit) or have enrolled in an alternative Medicare HMO. Unfortunately, nine Arizona counties no longer have an HMO option. We need to make sure that Medicare+Choice enrollees are not held responsible when bankrupt HMOs fail to pay providers' claims.

Under current law, the Health Care Financing Administration (HCFA) has the discretion, but is not required, to provide direct reimbursement to health care providers when an HMO fails to make payments for providers' claims. Quite often HCFA makes payments only where Medicare+Choice HMOs continue to operate. If an HMO becomes insolvent, doctors, hospitals, and others are often left unpaid for services already rendered.

In 1997 Congress passed the Balanced Budget Act which included a provision to expand choices for Medicare beneficiaries through the new Medicare+Choice program. It was anticipated that the program would lead to a wider variety of health plan choices for beneficiaries in all areas of the country—particularly in rural counties. Unfortunately, there was never a plan to deal with organizations who could not maintain financial solvency. And HCFA has not recognized the need to protect Medicare beneficiaries from defunct health plans—even though they are the financing arm for Medicare.

Even worse, HCFA's regulations have added to the problem by making it more difficult for HMOs and other like organizations to enter the Medicare Choice program. They make it tough to get in the program and do little for beneficiaries once the HMOs leave. As of last year, there were only 262 health plans across the Nation that participated in the Medicare+Choice program, 84 less than 1998. According to the American Association of Health Plans, nearly 700,000 beneficiaries have had their Medicare+Choice coverage disrupted since the program's inception.

Seniors shouldn't be left holding the bag when health plans go bankrupt. The Rural Health Care Protection Act would ensure that the government fulfills its promise to those seniors who have chosen to participate in the Medicare+Choice program. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this legislation.

HONORING THE AMERICAN LEGION JEFFERSON POST 141 2ND SQUAD CHAPLAIN, HOWARD PHILLIPS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, today I commend the American Legion, Jefferson Post 141, from Mt. Vernon, Illinois and their Squad Chaplain, Mr. Howard Phillips.

For 27 years, Mr. Phillips has been the Squad Chaplain. He has presided over 800 military funerals for our veterans. He never asks for any compensation for his time or services. I wanted to tell him that he makes this soldier very proud. Thank you Howard.

CONGRATULATING JANIE PFEFFERKORN, OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI ON HER RECOGNITION BY THE ''DAUGHTERS OF SUNSET''

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, on Saturday March 25, 2000, Janie Pfefferkorn is being honored by the Sikeston, Missouri ''Daughters of Sunset'' at their 16th Annual Recognition Program. I would like to extend my congratulations to Janie who is being recognized on this day for her community involvement.

Janie was the valedictorian of her senior class at Chafee High School in Chafee, Missouri. She attended Central Methodist College and Southeast Missouri State University. She is the co-founder of the 1996 Christian block Party which evolved into the Mission Missouri. Today Janie is the executive director of Mission Missouri.

Janie is currently affiliated with the Missouri School for the blind Board of Directors, Bootheel Healthy start, Breast Cancer support Group, Sikeston Middle School, the Diabetes Foundation-Missouri Delta Hospital Advisory Board, the Sikeston Area Chamber of Commerce President's roundtable, and the Ministerial Alliance and inter-Agency Council of Scott County.

Janie also has bee active in lifelong faith-based learning, receiving training as a Precept Inductive Bible Study Teacher and Group Leader and completing workshops on church growth, discipline training, outreach, administration, new membership integration. Janie also trained in family learning for parents of children with disabilities and has facilitated and participated in support group settings to address addictive behaviors and dysfunctional relationships.

Janie is married to Dr. David Pfefferkorn. They are the proud parents of four beautiful girls, Molly, Corrie Jo, Abby and Maggie, and the proud grandparents of twins girls, Bylie and Kylie.

Congratulations, Janie, on your recognition by the ''Daughters of Sunset.'' Your lifelong dedication your community of Sikeston, Missouri is an inspiration to us all.

MEXICO BEACH PROPERTY BOUNDARY

HON. ALLEN BOYD

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, today, along with my Florida colleague Representative JOE SCARBOROUGH, I am introducing legislation that is intended to correct a boundary mistake made on a map in the Department of Interior's 1988 Report to Congress: Coastal Barrier Resources System. The map was subsequently adopted by Congress in the 1990 Coastal Barrier Improvement Act.

The St. Joe Company owns 45 acres east of the City of Mexico Beach, Florida. In 1988, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (the ''Service'') proposed certain additions and modifications to the Coastal Barrier Resources System (CBRS). This proposal was accompanied by maps which depicted the existing boundaries of the CBRS as well as the proposed additions and modifications. However, while the maps expressly reported to show the existing CBRS boundaries, at least one of them instead contained a boundary line that erroneously included about 45 acres of St. Joe property. Because the boundary was unintentionally misdrawn neither the property owner nor Congress was given notice of this action. In 1990, Congress enacted the Coastal Barrier Improvement Act. The CBRS maps adopted by Congress with the 1990 Act included the erroneous boundary line from the Service's proposed map.

Several years after the Mexico Beach property was mistakenly included in the CBRS, St. Joe representatives discovered the mistake while examining maps at the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Last year, representatives of St. Joe met with Department of Interior and Service officials to discuss the mistake. As a result of those discussions a letter was written to the Company from the Acting Director of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, Gary Frazier, acknowledging that a boundary mistake had been made and stating that the Service would not object to legislation to correct the mistake. Specifically, Mr. Frazier sated:

The Service recognizes that in the 1988 Report to Congress the inclusion of the property in question was not identified as a boundary change for this unit, either in the accompanying map or text of the Report. Regrettably, this meant that neither the property owner nor Congress was provided with adequate notice of the boundary change reflected in the revised map for P–31. Therefore, because of this error in the Report and the equities associated with this specific situation, the Service would not oppose future legislative action to remove the 45 acres owned by the St. Joe Company from the System.

The St. Joe Company has taken the proper steps in approaching the Department of Interior and the Service about this problem. Representative SCARBOROUGH and I are taking the next step in this process by introducing legislation to correct this mistake. It has been over ten years since Congress enacted the legislation which adopted the new map misdrawing the boundary of the Mexico Beach property. Therefore, I urge the House to act expeditiously on this legislation.

SOUTHWIRE COMPANY'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. BOB BARR

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BARR of Georgia. Mr. Speaker, it all started with one man's dream of bringing electricity to rural Georgia. Roy Richards, Sr. wanted to supply his mother and grandmother with electricity, and from that dream, he founded Soutwire Company in Carrollton, Georgia, exactly 50 years ago. On March 23, 1950, Southwire started cranking out wire with 12 employees. Two years later, the company had shipped 5 million pounds of wire and had doubled its plant size. Southwire has continued to grow, and has become a world leader in the manufacture of wire and cable.

In 1992 Southwire opened the D.B. ''Pete'' Cofer Technology Center. For the past five years, the center has witnessed development of the next generation of power cables—superconductors. A trio of 30-meter cables now provides power to three of the company's manufacturing plants. Southwire continues on its path of quality assurance and will remain a giant in the world of wire and cable.

I salute Southwire Company on its 50th Anniversary, and I am proud to count it as an outstanding employer, business, and community citizen in the 7th Congressional District of Georgia.

HONORING THE DISTINGUISHED CAREER OF JOHN ED MILLER

HON. BART GORDON

OF TENNESSEE

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. GORDON. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the outstanding career of John Ed Miller, who is retiring from BellSouth on March 31 after working more than 30 years with the company. John Ed has not only had a distinguished career with BellSouth, but he has also been an outstanding civic leader in the Middle Tennessee area.

John Ed began his long telephone career with BellSouth soon after his graduation from Vanderbilt University in 1966. He progressed through a number of assignments in the Nashville and Birmingham offices before assuming his present position as BellSouth's corporate and external affairs vice president for Tennessee.

John Ed has also taken an active role in his Middle Tennessee community. He serves and has served on numerous civic boards and organizations, demonstrating his concern and love for Middle Tennessee. His tireless dedication to these organizations has truly made Middle Tennessee a better place to live.

His leadership and vision at BellSouth will be sorely missed. I congratulate John Ed Miller on his outstanding career and wish him well in his retirement.

OIL PRICE REDUCTION ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. MATT SALMON

OF ARIZONA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 22, 2000

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3822) to reduce, suspend, or terminate any assistance under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and the Arms Export Control Act to each country determined by the President to be engaged in oil price fixing to the detriment of the United States economy, and for other purposes:

Mr. SALMON. Mr. Chairman, it is well known that, for close to a year, countries from the OPEC cartel and other oil-producing countries have conspired to steal from Americans by artificially inflating the price of oil. It has had a dramatic effect on the life of every American and threatens the state of our economy. It takes more to fill our gas tanks, it is more costly to fly, and even grocery prices have risen significantly. For example, we pay an extra $10 every time we go to a gas station to fill our tanks. This year, increased gas and oil prices will cost the average family an alarming $700. In my home state of Arizona, higher gas prices will cost the Paradise Valley Union School District up to $60,000 more to bus kids to and from school this year.

Unfortunately, the President's response has been tepid at best. Energy Secretary Bill Richardson recently admitted, ''it is obvious that the federal government was not prepared. We were caught napping. We got complacent.'' The Administration, which seems to have no problem attacking American companies they suspect of being a monopoly, refuses to use its current legal arsenal to sanction foreign countries that collude in monopolistic alliances to fleece the American people.

Last year, I requested that Congress look into OPEC's price fixing scheme. And last night, Congress took a small step towards helping American consumers by passing H.R. 3822, which encourages the President to use his current authority to stop OPEC from inflating gas prices. But, I believe we can, indeed we must, do more.

First and foremost we should have included a mechanism in this legislation to penalize countries for gouging our constituents. Secondly, we should have repealed the 4.3 cent gas tax that President Clinton and Vice-President GORE included in their tax increase package of 1993. And finally, we should have examined cost effective ways to increase domestic oil production.

Looking forward, we need to pursue the development of alternative energy sources that will reduce our dependence on foreign oil. To that end, we should support tax credits for people who purchase environmentally friendly, energy efficient solar heating equipment. We should also support funding for research on solar, wind, biofuels, geothermal, and other environmentally friendly alternative forms of energy.

Perhaps we will revisit this matter when our constituents are paying $2.50 for a gallon of gas. H.R. 3822 is a first step towards resolving the current crisis. But, Congress should have done more. Americans should not have to pay more at the gas pump, or for groceries, or to heat their homes, simply because we did not do enough to stop foreign nations from artificially increasing the price of oil. We've been far too passive for too long.

CONGRATULATING ELDER ANTHONY G. GREEN I, OF SIKESTON, MO, ON HIS RECOGNITION BY THE DAUGHTERS OF SUNSET

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, on Saturday, March 25, 2000, Elder Anthony G. Green I is being honored by the Sikeston, MO Daughters of Sunset at their 16th Annual Recognition Program. I would like to extend my congratulations to Elder Green who is being recognized on this day for his community involvement.

Elder Green is a graduate of Sikeston High School. He earned an associate degree in engineering from ITT Technical Institute in St. Louis, MO and is currently attending Green Memorial Biblical University and Andersonville Baptist Seminary. Elder Green is currently chief executive officer and pastor of Rhema World Breakthrough International Ministries of Cape Girardeau, MO and is president of the Sikeston Branch of the NAACP. He was also honored by the Department of Justice National Symposium on Civil Rights in Washington, DC.

Elder Green is the cofounder and editor-in-chief of the African American Informant, Inc. Newspaper of Sikeston, MO. His many community activities include the Neighborhood Improvement Association, Martin Luther King, Jr. Day Celebration Co-Coordinator, Citizens Home Mission tutor and mentor, Green Memorial Biblical University Board of Directors, and the Hundred Men Rally Committee speaker and co-coordinator. Elder Green also is a member of various organizations including the NAACP, Justice League, Weed & Seed Steering Committee, Jurisdictional Djutancy Church of God in Christ, and Bootheel Healthy Start.

Elder Green has received training in a number of fields, including Community Development Training Ad Hoc Group Against Crime, Advisory Council Legislation Training, Missouri Division of Family Service—seminar on recognizing child abuse, and Southeast Missouri State University seminars in time management, cultural diversity, and conflict resolution.

Elder Green is married to Vanissa McCauley-Green and is the father of one son, Anthony Green II.

Congratulations, Elder Green, on your recognition by the ''Daughters of Sunset.'' Your lifelong dedication to family and community is truly inspirational.

TRIBUTE TO MICHELLE RAKERS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, today I commend a former constituent of mine, Michelle Rakers of Aviston, Illinois. Michelle now plays trumpet for the elite United States Marine Band.

As one of eleven children, Michelle comes from a very musically inclined family where all her siblings played an instrument. Michelle's determination is a testament to her success. Let me explain. She auditioned five times before she was selected as a member of the band. She never took no for an answer. I want to congratulate her for her success and thank her for her determination—we can all learn a lesson from her example.

IN HONOR OF KRISTEN STRYKER

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Kristen Stryker of Canton. Kristen has been named as one of Ohio's top two student volunteers for the year 2000 in the fifth annual Prudential Spirit of Community awards.

Kristen, an eighth grader at Faircrest Middle School, has a vegetable garden in her backyard. The harvest from this garden is donated to needy Native Americans in her area. Kristen's grandmother is 50 percent Native American and through this Kristen feels a connection to those who share her heritage. When she heard that the nearby Allegheny Indian Center was a beneficiary of the national ''Plant a Row for the Hungry'' program, Kristen was eager to participate. After planting rows of zucchini, yellow squash and green and purple beans, she worked 1 hour every morning and evening from March through August weeding, watering and mulching the garden. The people who received the vegetables were able to enjoy the health benefits and the Allegheny Indian Center was able to purchase other necessary items with the money saved. Now Kristen hopes to encourage her 4–H club to adopt ''Plant a Row for the Hungry'' as its countywide service project. ''I think this project has helped me become more sensitive to the needs of others,'' says Kristen.

Kristen was nominated by Stark & Summit Counties Extension 4–H in North Canton, OH for her ingenious service project. As as State honoree she will receive $1,000, an engraved silver medallion, and an all-expense paid trip in May to Washington DC.

Please join me in honoring Kristen for her outstanding leadership and service in her community.

RECOGNITION OF TERRY WARD AS RECIPIENT OF DISTINGUISHED CAREER INTELLIGENCE MEDAL

HON. BUD SHUSTER

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHUSTER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to recognize an honor for distinguished public service being accorded today to Terry Ward, a former constituent of mine. The Central Intelligence Agency is honoring Mr. Ward for over thirty years of distinguished government service in a wide range of dangerous and sensitive intelligence assignments in Southeast Asia, Europe, and Latin America.

Mr. Ward was born in Altoona, Pennsylvania and graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1961. Following ROTC training, Mr. Ward joined the U.S. military and joined the U.S. Embassy staff in Laos. In 1964, Mr. Ward was transferred to the CIA's Western Hemisphere Division. During the next thirty years, Mr. Ward served his country honorably and well in numerous dangerous overseas assignments in Latin America.

In my capacity as a Member of the House Intelligence Committee, I met Terry when he served in Honduras. I saw first-hand how he contributed in significant ways to fighting the efforts of the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua to destabilize its democratic neighbors. Contrary to some new reports, Terry worked hard to ensure that U.S. assistance to the Nicaraguan democratic resistance was closely managed and appropriately directed. Today, Nicaragua is a democratic ally and trading partner of the United States in no small measure to the efforts of Terry and other officers who served in the CIA's clandestine service in Central America during the 1980s.

As some may know, Mr. Ward was one of the subjects of a 1995 CIA Inspector General investigation into allegations of improper conduct by CIA officers in Guatemala in the deaths of U.S. citizen Michael Devine and Guatemalan terrorist Efrain Bamaca. The IG report, and a subsequent review by President Clinton's Intelligence Oversight Board found no information whatsoever that any employee of the CIA was either involved in the murder of Mr. Devine or in the disappearance of Bamaca. After the IG report was published, Mr. Ward was effectively forced to retire from government service by then-DCI John Deutch.

When Dr. Deutch announced his disciplinary decisions regarding the Guatemala inquiry on September 29, 1995, he stated that Mr. Ward was ''respected'' and ''otherwise had made important contributions throughout his career.'' Importantly, Dr. Deutch said that he intended that Mr. Ward's retirement would involve ''no loss of appropriate recognition for previous service.''

Despite what you might have read in some newspapers during the past few weeks, Mr. Ward is one of the unsung heroes of the Cold War. These press accounts note that he served as the CIA's station chief in Honduras from 1987–89—what they don't say is that his efforts there and elsewhere in Central America during the mid to late 1980s contributed significantly to the strengthening of democratic governance in Honduras, Nicaragua and El Salvador.

These unsung heroes of our intelligence community neither ask for nor expect the American people to know how they protect us from terrorists, narco-traffickers and other threats to our nation's security. The CIA's recognition today of Terry Ward's honorable service to his country is long overdue and fully merited. I applaud DCI George Tenet for doing the right thing for our country and for those who bravely serve its interests in our clandestine service.

CHUCK LEWIS WAS A TRUE HERO

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to ask that we all pause for a moment to remember a man who will live forever in the hearts of all who knew him and many who didn't. Chuck Lewis will be remembered as a wonderful entrepreneur and mentor. He had a great love of the outdoors and of skiing. His wife, Penelope, and children, C. Randall, Christina and Vonda, brought him endless joys.

Chuck was a native of Colorado and attended the University of Denver. His fiscal wizardry led him to the ski industry where he was able to turn around the troubled Eldora Mountain Resort. Lewis was also a former chairman of the Colorado Wildlife Commission, founder of Cooper Mountain and model rancher. He is regarded by many as the best chairman of the Colorado Wildlife Commission, because he cared about nature and people.

Chuck Lewis is remembered as a person who would cherish any moment he could squeeze out of his busy schedule to spend on a river with a fly rod in his hand. He had a wonderful touch for people. His family and friends will miss the man that they enjoyed spending time with. The rest of us will miss the man who exemplified the selflessness that so few truly possess. But, when we lose a man such as Mr. Lewis, being missed is certainly no precursor to being forgotten.

EXPRESSION OF SORROW FOR THE VICTIMS OF THE MASSACRE IN THE VILLAGE OF CHATI SINGHPORA

HON. DAVID E. BONIOR

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my profound sorrow at the horrific massacre of 35 Sikh men in the Kashmiri village of Chati Singhpora.

Today in Chati Singhpora, 35 families are mourning the loss of their fathers, their brothers and their sons. These men are victims of an inhumane war, suffering an unspeakable death before the eyes of their loved ones. The assassins who inflicted this punishment upon the families of Chati Singhpora are unknown. Regardless of their nationality and religion, they have covered this Kashmiri village with the blood of their victims and have taken 35 innocent men from the arms of their loving families.

Hundreds of villages like Chanti Singhpora are trapped, guilty only of unfortunate geography. I call upon all people to end the slaughter of innocents, to halt the violence which has divided Kashmir, and to search for common ground upon which a just and lasting peace may be erected. No more families should know such horror. I ask all of my colleagues here today to pledge themselves to peace in Kashmir, and to stop at nothing until the bloodshed has ended.

CONGRATULATING HARRY G. SHARP, III, OF SIKESTON, MO. ON HIS RECOGNITION BY THE DAUGHTERS OF SUNSET

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, on Saturday, March 25, 2000, Pastor Harry G. Sharp, III is being honored by the Sikeston, MO Daughters of Sunset at their 16th Annual Recognition Program. I would like to extend my congratulations to Harry who is being recognized on this day for his community involvement.

Harry is the son of Ruth Felker and the late H. Garwood Sharp, Jr. and is one of six generations of the Sharp family who have lived and been involved in the community of Sikeston, MO. Harry is the pastor of the Smith Chapel United Methodist Church in Sikeston. As the pastor of Smith Chapel and an active member of the Sunset community, Harry appreciates the work of those generations that helped make Sikeston a better place to live.

Graduating from Sikeston High School, Harry attended and earned a degree from Westminster College and Florida State University. He is a Vietnam era veteran of the Army Corps of Engineers, has taught mathematics at Florida State and Spelman College, operated a consulting business in Atlanta, taught physics at Sikeston and Kelly High School, and consulted with the Sharper System. After two tours in the Army, Harry joined IBM Corporation in St. Louis.

During most of his adult life, Harry has been involved in mission and outreach activities in countries from Korea to Russia, Haiti to Hayti, and he has found that people are much the same everywhere. His travel experience includes passing a peace pipe with the Menominee Indians one year before our Nation's bicentennial and talking about what this country has meant to each of us. Whether it was working with folks in the coal mining regions of Appalachia, hurricane ravaged people in the Caribbean, orphans in Korea, or refugees from Nicaragua, Harry found that volunteer hands accomplished much more than government programs.

An early supporter of Sikeston area organizations such as Weed & Seed, Bootheel Healthy Start, and Save Our Children, Harry has continued his family's active involvement in their community. Harry has observed that his involvement as the pastor of a church in Sunset has prompted many people who didn't know each other to meet, enjoy fellowship, and strengthen ties across the community of Sikeston. To quote Harry's words, ''There are very few problems here, or anywhere, that cannot be solved if we just sit down to a meal of fellowship with one another.''

Harry and his wife Anita returned to Sikeston in 1993. His son, Woody, brought his family to Sikeston the following year providing the enjoyment of three grandchildren. Anita's son and daughter attend college in Georgia, and the couple has an adopted Russian daughter who has been part of Sikeston and has hosted Anita and Harry in Russia.

Congratulations, Harry, on your recognition by the Daughters of Sunset. Your lifelong dedication to family, community and fellowship is an inspiration to us all.

HIGHLAND COUNCIL CHAPTER OF THE CATHOLIC FRATERNAL LIFE INSURANCE

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to commend a great organization in my district, the Highland Council Chapter of the Catholic Fraternal Life Insurance organization. Catholic Fraternal Life is a 115 year old, member owned, life insurance organization. It is also the largest volunteer organization in the United States, with 10 million members, representing thousands of volunteers.

The Highland Council recently participated in the ''Hearts and Hands'' project by adopting a needy family for Christmas. They were able to donate $600 dollars in gifts for this family. Catholic Fraternal Life represents the true meaning of Christmas. They are a shining light for all of us to follow.

IN HONOR OF JACOB KASKEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Jacob Kaskey of Olmsted Falls. Jacob has been named as one of Ohio's top two student volunteers for the year 2000 in the fifth annual Prudential Spirit of Community awards.

Jacob, a senior at Olmsted Falls High School, initiated a coloring book and crayon drive to benefit homeless children staying at various shelters in area. Jacob was awakened to this need during one of his regular visits to help serve meals at a homeless shelter. It was a cool night, too cold for the children to play outside, they had nothing to do. ''A toy could not be found for mile,'' Jacob said. He mentioned this problem to his minister, he was told that a lack of toys is a common problem in shelters. Jacob decided to help. But rather than toys—which are not permitted to leave the shelter—he collected coloring books and crayons. He enlisted the help of his classmates and others to help. He wrote letters and made personal visits to area businesses asking for donations of money and coloring books. Jacob received a very strong response. When they delivered the books to the shelter Jacob and his volunteers stayed to serve dinner and play with the children.

Jacob was nominated by his high school for his outstanding service to the community. An effort which needed to be recognized. As a State honoree he will receive $1,000, an engraved silver medallion, and an all-expense-paid trip in May to Washington, DC.

Please join me in honoring Jacob for his outstanding leadership and service in his community.

RECOGNITION OF GREEK INDEPENDENCE

HON. DAVID E. BONIOR

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BONIOR. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to recognize the 179th anniversary of Greek Independence.

In March of 1821, Alexandros Ypsilantis led his small band of troops across the Prut River into Ottoman-held Moldavia. Much like the men and women who fought for our own nation's independence, the soldiers who followed Ypsilantis came from all corners of the Ottoman territories, from all classes of Greek society, and from all walks of life. They traversed the waters of the Prut toward an enemy that vastly outnumbered them, and toward an empire which posed an almost insurmountable obstacle to the pursuit of freedom.

Though they were defeated, the courageous efforts of Ypsilantis and his troops planted a seed in the hearts of thousands of Greeks. This seed grew into a flourishing movement toward religious freedom, a re-inspired sense of cultural identity, and a long awaited return to the democratic ideals which were born in ancient Greece. On March 25, 1821, a series of revolts spread across northern Greece and the Peloponnese with the unified purpose of establishing Greek sovereignty. Today, 179 years later, Greeks throughout the world pause in thanks to their ancestors for returning to them the basic rights of representation and civil and religious freedom that we all assume to be our birthrights, but which are truly blessings.

I would like to congratulate Greece and the Greek-American community for their renewed freedom, and I ask you to join with me in wishing them an upcoming century of peace, prosperity, and self-determination.

A TRIBUTE TO THE COLLEGE OF JOURNALISM AND COMMUNICATIONS AT THE UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA

HON. KAREN L. THURMAN

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. THURMAN. Mr. Speaker, the College of Journalism and Communications at the University of Florida is celebrating two very important anniversaries this year—the introduction of journalism courses at the university 75 years ago and the remarkable man who founded the journalism school 50 years ago, the late Mr. Rae O. Weimer.

Mr. Rae Weimer's vision and dedication to journalism guided the formation of the journalism school in 1949 and later the transition of the school into an actual college in 1967. He went on to serve as the first dean of the College of Journalism and Communications.

Today, in many ways, Mr. Weimer's legacy remains visible throughout the College. The building where the College is housed bears his name, and the remarkable growth of the College and caliber of the faculty and students are considered a testament to his vision and leadership.

People who had the privilege of knowing and working with Mr. Weimer compliment his uncompromising commitment to quality journalism.

Among Mr. Weimer's many admirers is Brent Williams, a graduate of the College and the Director of Development and Community Relations at the University's public TV and radio stations. He describes Mr. Weimer as a man ''totally committed to the students.''

He speaks fondly of Mr. Weimer's gentle manner in dealing with students struggling to perform to the best of their abilities. He was known to meet with students to encourage them to do better. His uplifing and supportive pep talks helped the students to believe in themselves and excel.

Mr. David Flagg, another graduate of the College who is a former state legislator and now the director of government relations for Shands HealthCare, said Mr. Weimer often talked to students about a reporter's role as ''gatekeeper'' and impressed upon the students the importance of responsible and unbiased reporting.

Mr. Weimer's newsroom experience often guided him in knowing how to best prepare students for careers in journalism and communications. He emphasized ''hands-on'' as well as academic preparation for both faculty members and students.

Today, the College's undergraduate and graduate programs provide extensive opportunities for hands-on journalism experience in print, television, radio and in news media.

I've had the pleasure of being interviewed many times by student reporters at the university's radio and television stations and The Independent Florida Alligator. The students work hard, ask pointed questions and produce thorough, accurate and informative stories.

This shows me that the students at the University of Florida's College of Journalism and Communications are getting a first-rate education. They are also providing a valuable community service.

In addition to Mr. Weimer's remarkable contribution, many other people deserve recognition for the College's achievements, including the three deans who came after him and built upon his vision: Dr. John Paul Jones, Jr., Dr. Ralph L. Lowenstein and, currently, Dr. Terry Hynes.

''Celebration 2000'' is a tribute to all of them, including the students and faculty members over the last 75 years who have played a role in the College's outstanding growth and climb to national stature.

The University of Florida College of Journalism and Communications consistently ranks among the top 10 journalism schools in the country and students place prominently in a variety of national and regional collegiate journalism competitions.

The list is also getting longer of distinguished alumni.

This year, the College's Alumni of Distinction Awards for 2000 were presented to Dennis Kneale of Forbes magazine; Rene S. ''Butch'' Meily, vice-president of the public relations firm of Rubenstein Associates; Yvette Miley, executive producer of WTVJ–TV in Miami; W. Richard ''Dick'' Monroe, vice-president for environmental affairs for DARDEN Restaurants (Red Losbster and The Olive Garden); Joan Ryan, a columnist for the San Francisco Chronicle; and Carol A. Sanger, vice president of corporate communications and external affairs for Federated Department Stores, Inc.

These fine men and women represent merely a small sampling of the hundreds of successful graduates from the College who are now leaders in newsrooms and businesses throughout this community, the State of Florida and the entire country. They are all proof that the University of Florida's College of Journalism and Communications provides students with the skills they need to build successful careers in journalism, public relations, advertising and other professions.

That's the real measure—far and above national rankings and awards—of a college's educational quality. After all, as the University's capital campaign makes clear, ''It's performance that Counts.''

Many thanks to all of you for making this College among the best in the country and for maintaining a steadfast commitment to educational excellence.

CONGRATULATING MISSIONARY GEARLENE (GERRI) LUTTRELL, OF SIKESTON, MO ON HER RECOGNITION BY THE DAUGHTERS OF SUNSET

HON. JO ANN EMERSON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. EMERSON. Mr. Speaker, on Saturday, March 25, 2000, Gearlene (Gerri) Luttrell is being honored by the Sikeston, MO Daughters of Sunset at their 16th Annual Recognition Program. I would like to extend my congratulations to Gerri who is being recognized on this day for her community involvement.

Gerri is the daughter of Mattie Riggs and the late Hershel Riggs, Sr. and is a long time resident of Sikeston, MO. Gerri is the mother of four children, D'Ann, Delisa, Cheryl and Derek. She attended O'Brannon High School in New Madrid, MO and Richland High School in Gray Ridge, MO where she graduated in 1962. Gerri went on to graduate from the Licensed Practical School of Nursing in Sikeston, MO in 1964 and was employed with Missouri Delta Medical Center for over 20 years. Gerri retired from the Delta Medical Center this past December.

Gerri is a member of Travelers Rest Missionary Baptist Church, pastored by Minister Sylvester Morgan. She is a member of the adult choir and holds the position of minister of music. In March 1999, Gerri accepted her call into the Preaching and Teaching Ministry. Gerri is also a member of the Daughters of Sunset and is the vice president and minister of music for Mission Missouri Organization.

Congratulations, Gerri, on your recognition by the Daughters of Sunset. Your lifelong dedication to the health of your community and to the ministry in Sikeston, MO is an inspiration to us all.

TRIBUTE TO LINDSAY NICHOLS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to commend Lindsay Nichols from my hometown of Collinsville, Illinois. Lindsay was named as one of Illinois' top student volunteers for the year 2000 in the fifth annual Prudential Spirit of Community Awards.

Lindsay is a 17 year-old senior at Collinsville High School. She launched a month-long drive to encourage responsible pet adoption and to collect donations of soda cans, paper towels, pet food, and cash for the benefit of two Humane Shelters in our community.

I heartily applaud Lindsay for her initiative in seeking to make our community a better place to live, and for the positive impact she has on the lives of others. She has demonstrated a level of commitment and accomplishment that is truly extraordinary in today's world. Lindsay's actions show that young Americans can and do play important roles in our communities and that the American spirit is alive and well in the actions of our younger generation. Thank you Lindsay.

HONORING A MILITARY HERO

HON. JOEL HEFLEY

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, today I pay tribute to my constituent, Bill Crawford, who was one of our Nation's distinguished military heroes and one of my community's great treasures. Bill passed away on March 15 at the age of 81, having led an exemplary life that took him from being a small-town grocery delivery boy to a recipient of the nation's highest military honor.

As an Army private in the fall of 1943, Bill was on a scouting mission near Altavilla, Italy when he encountered an enemy machine-gun nest prepared to fire at his platoon. Without orders, Bill advanced to within yards of the German fighters, threw a grenade into the pit from which they were firing and saved his platoon.

Private Crawford then turned his valor on not one, but two, additional machine-gun nests firing at American soldiers. He was able to overtake both German encampments and turn the captured machine-guns on fleeing German soldiers.

When United States forces moved ahead, Crawford stayed behind to care for a friend who had been injured. He was captured by German soldiers and spent 19 months as a prisoner of war.

Presumed dead, Crawford was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously on May 11, 1944. Maj. Gen. Terry Allen presented the award to Bill's grieving father at Camp Carson, just 30 miles from Bill's hometown of Pueblo, CO.

Two months after Private Crawford's Medal of Honor was presented to his father, the family received news that Bill was alive. One year later, Private Crawford was released from prison.

After his release, Bill returned to his Colorado roots. He met and married his wife Eileen, and began a family that eventually included two children, five grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. He returned to military service, much of it as an Army recruiter in his home town of Pueblo.

Bill ended his career at the U.S. Air Force Academy, where he worked as a janitor and served as a mentor to the students. The cadets at the Academy loved Bill and paid tribute to his distinguished military career by asking him each spring to present the ''Outstanding Cadet'' award to a member of the graduating class.

On May 30, 1984, Bill was presented with an honor of his own. President Ronald Reagan was the commencement speaker that day at the graduation ceremonies at the U.S. Air Force Academy. During his speech, President Reagan turned his attention to Bill, who was crisply dressed in his military uniform, and hung the Medal of Honor around his neck. Seventeen years after his retirement from the military, and 40 years after his heroism at Altavilla, Bill was finally presented with his Medal of Honor award.

As a Medal of Honor recipient, Bill distinguished himself through exemplary service to this nation. He answered the call to arms and bravely faced hazardous duty, hand to hand combat and imprisonment by the German army.

He was also dedicated to his family and his community. He was an extraordinary man, who displayed humility, kindness and love in all that he did. We will miss this gentle man in Colorado Springs, and we extend to his family our sincere condolences.

Our Nation bids farewell to one of her great heroes and I bid farewell to a friend.

NATIONAL POISON PREVENTION WEEK

HON. THOMAS G. TANCREDO

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. TANCREDO. Mr. Speaker, today marks the beginning of National Poison Prevention Week, an event each and every parent ought to mark in big, bold letters on their calendar. Ever since 1962, we've set aside one week each year to raise awareness about accidental poisonings and how to prevent them. But we also know poison prevention is a round-the-clock, day-in, day-out concern. Between two and four million poisonings occur each year, sending thousands to the hospital. Most accidental poisonings occur in the home, and more than half of the victims each year are children. It is critical we all learn how to prevent children from accidentally gaining access to these products.

The theme of this year's poison prevention campaign is ''Children Act Fast. So Do Poisons.'' Poisonings can occur in the blink of an eye, when parents or caregivers are briefly distracted by the telephone or doorbell, leaving curious children alone for a split second. Because poisons act quickly, quick action is needed to save the child's life. Often, the first and best response is to call the nearest Poison Control Center or local emergency personnel. Time after time they are quickly able to determine what the child has swallowed and what's the best remedy.

How do they do it? How do they do it so fast? And most miraculously, how do they do it while a distraught parent waits and prays on the phone? Do these heroes have encyclopedic memories? No, but they have the next best thing. They have access to a comprehensive electronic database called POISINDEX® which identifies and provides ingredient information with 1.2 million entries for commercial, pharmaceutical and biological substances. It also provides treatment protocols—or antidotes—for poisons. Every day, emergency teams are tapping into POISINDEX® to get answers while a life hangs in the balance.

I am proud to have MICROMEDEX and their 500 employees which provide such important products in my district. It is especially appropriate we recognize the value of this under-appreciated database as Congress prepares to take steps to prevent database piracy. MICROMEDEX, of Englewood, Colorado and the producer of POISINDEX®, has grave concerns that unless we close a gap in the law its work could be stolen, an act of piracy that could endanger the safety of many people.

Some might argue that the more widely we distribute information about poisons and their antidotes, the better. Although this notion is well intended, it is also misguided and could have serious consequences. Scientific knowledge is constantly moving forward, and as a result, medical information can rapidly go out-of-date. The POISINDEX® team of 125 industry expert editors is dedicated—as a business and as corporate citizens—to providing unbiased information of unsurpassed breadth and depth. For 25 years they have invested a lot of time, money and effort doing precisely that. The problem is, a commitment to the integrity of the information is not necessarily shared by people who would pirate the contents of POISINDEX® and distribute or sell them on the Internet or elsewhere. This is the type of ''sweat of the brow'' databases that Congress needs to prevent from being pi rated.

If POISINDEX® can be copied and distributed by pirates, it raises a truly frightening specter: the emergency team searching frantically for information, only to find it is incomplete, out-of-date or inaccurate. Imagine yourself as the parent in that nightmare.

Legislation pending before the House, H.R. 354, of which I am a cosponsor, will prevent database piracy and ensure that POISINDEX® will continue to help save lives. By preventing piracy, H.R. 354 maintains the incentives database publishers need to stay in business. It also encourages competition within this growing industry, which will lead to the creation of more high quality products.

Yes, POISINDEX® is an extreme example with potentially extreme consequences. But even in less dire cases, the principle is the same. Unless we do something about database piracy, we will undermine the commitment of producers to build and maintain the integrity and accuracy of the databases we depend on every day.

We can all be grateful to MICROMEDEX for creating and maintaining such a vital product, and for showing how accurate information can literally save lives. It is the most graphic example I can imagine of how poison prevention and database protection go hand-in-hand.

I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this year's National Poison Prevention

Week and timely action on H.R. 354. We must prevent database piracy and maintain the integrity of databases that are critical to us all. We owe that to every child and every parent who picks up that phone in their moment of distress.

HONORING NOTU ON ITS 50TH BIRTHDAY

HON. DAVE WELDON

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, the Naval Ordnance Test Unit (NOTU) in Florida's 15 Congressional District is celebrating its 50th birthday this year, and I want to extend my congratulations to the men and women who work at NOTU today, and to those who have supported its vital mission in the past.

In 1956, NOTU became the site for all test firings of the Fleet Ballistic Missile Program, launching first from land and then from submerged submarines a continuous series of Polaris, Poseidon, and, today, Trident missiles. Although NASA and Air Force space launches are the most publicized, the Navy is the largest user of the Eastern Range at Cape Canaveral, conducting over half of the missile firings on the Range.

NOTU's anniversary happens to fall in the same year as the 100th anniversary of the U.S. Submarine Force. On October 12, 1900, the U.S. Navy commissioned the first submarine, the U.S.S. Holland, so this year is even more special for the people of NOTU. I'm pleased that there is an effort underway in Congress to honor this important national achievement, and I am a proud cosponsor of House Resolution 397 that does just that.

But it gets even better—this year is also the 50th anniversary of the first launch from Florida's Space Coast. Bumper 8, a captured German V–2 rocket, was launched on July 24, 1950 at 9:28 a.m.

We'll be celebrating all three of these important anniversaries on April 1 in Florida, one of several events planned, and I want to thank everyone involved—including NOTU, the 45th Space Wing, NASA's Kennedy Space Center, the aerospace industry, and a very supportive community—for their hard work during this important trio of anniversaries.

NOTU continues to be a vital part of Florida's Space Coast. They have played a role in the rich heritage of Florida for half a century, and I know they will continue to serve this nation with honor for another half century and beyond.

GOLDEN APPLE SCHOLAR AWARDS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to commend the 2000 Golden Apple Scholar award winners from my district. The Golden Apple Scholars program is to recruit talented high school juniors who want to become teachers.

I would like to take the opportunity to recognize Ms. Shalonda Carr from Lanphier High School in Springfield, Illinois. Teachers, like parents, have a unique opportunity to touch the life of a child. I can't think of a more rewarding experience.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, I was a former high school teacher. I want to wish Shalonda all the same joy and success that I shared in my teaching career.

TRIBUTE TO THE SIMI VALLEY HIGH SCHOOL ACADEMIC DECATHLON TEAM

HON. ELTON GALLEGLY

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. GALLEGLY. Mr. Speaker, today I pay tribute to the California State Champion Simi Valley High School Academic Decathlon Team.

The Simi Valley team's win this past weekend was impressive, beating last year's National Champions by a mere 21 points. Last year's National Champions also hail from my district—Moorpark High School. The two have been trading the Ventura County title for the past eight years, and now have the distinction of trading the California State title.

Next month, Simi Valley High School will travel to San Antonio, Texas, where they will compete against 37 other schools from across the United States in an attempt to capture the National Champion title for Ventura County for the second consecutive year.

The nine-student Simi Valley High School team is representative of the best and brightest our country has to offer. They have been accepted to such universities as Harvard and Stanford. Seniors David Bartlett, Steve Mihalovitz, Cary Opal, Jeff Robertson, Jennifer Tran, Michael Truex, Justin Underhill, Randy Xu and junior Kevin White are truly America's future leaders. Their coach, Ken Hibbitts, is a dedicated educator who deserves equal praise for a phenomenal job of preparing his students.

Whatever the outcome in San Antonio, Simi Valley High School has proven that Ventura County is an educational powerhouse. They have also proven that Ventura County students and teachers have the dedication and perseverance to be the best they can possibly be. It takes months of studying from early morning to late at night to prepare for these competitions. Jobs, friends and family are placed on the back burner.

Coach Hibbitts says his team has the dedication and determination to win a national award. They will be champions either way.

Mr. Speaker, I know my colleagues will join me in congratulating the California State Champion Simi Valley High School Academic Decathlon Team for its impressive win this week, and in wishing the team great success in the national championships.

HONORING THE MARCH ON SELMA

HON. MICHAEL P. FORBES

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. FORBES. Mr. Speaker, it's truly an honor to join those distinguished colleagues who traveled to Alabama for the 35th anniversary of the March on Selma and to honor the people who struggled for so many years to bring equality and civil rights to all Americans.

This year, my daughter came with me to retrace the steps of the civil rights movement. Together, we walked arm in arm over the Edmund Pettus Bridge. This is the same bridge where my good friend and colleague, Congressmen JOHN LEWIS, and others were met by brutal police and vicious dogs as they attempted to march from Selma to Montgomery. These brave souls prevented from Freedom of Movement by those charged to uphold the laws.

Together, my daughter and I sat in the 16th Street Baptist Church where four young innocent girls were kill by a bomb. A bomb thrown out of fear and hate, in a sad attempt to frighten and intimidate. These four young children doing nothing more than exercising their First Amendment right to Freedom of Religion.

Together, my daughter and I stood in front of a charred bus in which young men and women sat as it was set ablaze by people of Birmingham. Courageous people, known as the Freedom Riders, who were traveling throughout the South protesting segregation laws. Beaten for engaging in lawful civil disobedience.

Together, my daughter and I met so many men and women that fought so bravely and proudly and sacrificed themselves for something they believed in. We met Fred Shuttlesworth in front of a statue of himself, and heard him recount his personal experiences of the movement. We were inspired and humbled as he spoke of things he endured.

We sang spirituals with Bettie Mae Fikes at the Civil Rights Memorial—feeling the strength of her voice and emotion. The words touching our very souls.

We listened to the words of Coretta Scott King. We heard of her own struggles and those of her husband to ensure dignity and equality for all people.

As we traveled together throughout the South, I looked into my daughter's eyes. She is now in college—still though, my little girl. And, I knew why these men and women were fighting so hard, so bravely, for so long. They were fighting for not just for themselves—but for the future. The future of their children. The future of my children—of my daughter.

These men and women of all ages, creeds, and races sacrificed themselves in both mind and body. Some of them died merciles deaths at the hands of hatred. I pray that those who lost their lives are looking down on us today and know that they made the difference. They changed direction of this country. They changed the future of this country.

Thirty-five years ago, black and white children did not go to school together. Black men and white men did not use the same water fountain or eat at the same restaurant counter.

Today, Americans are electing people of all races to political office, and these men and women are working together to represent everyone. But, so much more needs to be done.

We cannot rest. We cannot stop. We cannot give up until all people, of all races, of all faiths are equal.

To ensure that we do not forget. That we do not stop. We must educate our children and our children's children.

One of the most memorable events during this trip was meeting Mrs. Mobley. Mrs.

Mobley was the mother of Emmett Till, the young black man that was lynched after being accused of whistling at a white woman. Mrs. Mobley said, as she looked at myself and my colleagues, ''I now know why God has kept me alive for so long.''

We, as the generation that took part and remembers the civil right movement, have a duty. We must educate our children. Our children, black, white, Hispanic, Asian and Native American must know the sacrifice that our fellow men and women made to advance all of us. We must not allow their efforts to fade into history. Their struggle must not become just another paragraph in our history books. We must keep the memories alive.

So Mr. Speaker, I stand before you today to say: I Remember and I will not stop.

IN RECOGNITION OF THE 2ND ANNUAL FINDING YOUR ROOTS CONFERENCE, AN AFRICAN AMERICAN FAMILY HISTORY RESEARCH PROJECT IN OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA

HON. BARBARA LEE

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Ms. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise today in recognition of the 2nd Annual Finding Your Roots Conference, an African American Family History Research Project taking place on Saturday, March 25, 2000, in Oakland, California

Genealogical research helps bridge the racial divide, brings understanding between races, and provides for the powerful ''sankofa'' experience of recognizing our past to better understand who we are today. Therefore, it is my belief that this conference is a wonderful testimony to the complexity and the magnificence of the human experience.

This event is designed to raise awareness within the African American community about the importance of tracing one's ancestry, particularly those whose ancestors were original depositors of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company. Freedman's was created by Congress and President Lincoln in 1865 for emancipated slaves. Unfortunately, Freedman's went bankrupt when 95% of the bank's money was borrowed and never repaid by white Americans. This conference will also provide opportunities for African Americans and all American families to share their ancestral information with each other.

The conference is co-sponsored by the California Genealogical Society, African-American Genealogical Society of Northern California, Legacy Jubilee Arts, Mid-Peninsula NAACP, Oakland Temple Family History Center, Center for Urban Black Studies and the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Additional participating organizations include the Evergreen Missionary Baptist Church and the Voices of Evergreen Choir and the Morningstar Baptist Church. The featured speakers of the conference include Senior Research Consultant of the Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah, Ms. Marie Taylor and award-winning broadcaster Mr. Darius Gray, who has traced his own family's ancestry back to the 1700's. Together, Ms. Taylor and Mr. Gray have been working on a project to extract one million names from Freedman's deposit records.

''Finding Your Roots'' it is truly a valuable resource for all and I encourage everyone to begin finding their own roots today.

MAKE DUBAI INVESTMENTS PAY ITS BILLS

HON. MAC COLLINS

OF GEORGIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. COLLINS. Mr. Speaker, today I am introducing legislation to apply pressure to Dubai Investments, a very profitable joint stock public holding company in the United Arab Emirates (UAE), to pay its debts to American companies. The proposal is directed toward the government of the UAE, because both the government of Dubai and Sheikh Hamdan bin Rashid al-Maktoum, the deputy ruler of Dubai, are founding investors and major stockholders in Dubai Investments—a rogue company that utilized unethical business practices left over 100 Georgians.

The Dubai Investment/United Arab Emirates Debt Repayment Act of 2000 addresses the situation that brought this issue to my attention—Dubai Investments' refusal to fulfill the terms of its contract with Pascoe Building Systems, Inc. Pascoe was once a mid-sized manufacturer with over $20 million in annual sales. Today, Pascoe's doors are shut as a result of Dubai Investments' failure to fulfill its contractual compensation obligation. My legislation will prevent the pending sale of F–16 fighter aircraft to the UAE until the President certifies that Dubai Investments has fulfilled its obligations under its agreements with Pascoe Building Systems, Inc.

It is time for Congress to defend American businesses against rogue foreign corporations that intend never to pay their bills. I encourage my colleagues to support The Dubai Investments/United Arab Emirates Debt Repayment Act of 2000.

GOLDEN APPLE SCHOLAR AWARDS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to commend the 2000 Golden Apple Scholar award winners from my district. The Golden Apple Scholars program is to recruit talented high school juniors who want to become teachers.

I would like to take the opportunity to recognize Mr. Allen Dixon from Lanphier High School in Springfield, Illinois. Teachers, like parents, have a unique opportunity—to touch the life of a child. I can't think of a more rewarding experience.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, I was a former high school teacher. I want to wish Allen all the same joy and success that I shared in my teaching career.

A PROCLAMATION RECOGNIZING THE 57TH ANNIVERSARY OF GLADYS AND WILLIAM KEY

HON. ROBERT W. NEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I commend the following article to my colleagues:

Whereas, Gladys and William Ney will celebrate their 57th Anniversary today, March 24, 2000;

Whereas, Gladys and William declared their love in a ceremony before God, family and friends in Bellaire, Ohio;

Whereas, 2000 will mark 57 years of sharing, loving, working together and raising a family of two children, three grandchildren and two great-grandsons;

Whereas, may Gladys and William be blessed with all the happiness and love that two can share and may their love grow with each passing year;

THEREFORE: Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to congratulate the Neys on their 57th anniversary. I ask that my colleagues join me in wishing this special couple many more years of happiness together.

COLORADO'S FIRST LADY RECEIVES EDGAR F. ''DADDY'' ALLEN AWARD

HON. SCOTT McINNIS

OF COLORADO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. McINNIS. Mr. Speaker, I wanted to take this moment to recognize an exceptional woman, Colorado's First Lady, Frances Owens. On June 9th, she will receive the Edgar F. ''Daddy'' Allen Award, the highest honor presented by the Easter Seals. Frances is the recipient of this award because of her work on behalf of children and for supporting many programs that benefit the well-being of the state's youth. The award is named for the founder of The National Easter Seals Society, who was nicknamed ''Daddy'' by the children he helped. Mrs. Owens emulates the goals and objects of ''Daddy'' Allen.

Mrs. Owens has volunteered her time to many charitable organizations. She sits as Honorary Chair for several organizations including, Habitat for Humanity's Women's Build, the Osteoporosis Foundation's America Walks for Strong Women, Recording for the Blind and Dyslexic, Samaritan's Purse, ArtReach and the Colorado Historical Society. Mrs. Owens also served as Honorary Chair for the first Early Childhood Intervention Awareness Day and sits on the Board of the Children's Hospital Cardiac Care Center. Most importantly, Mrs. Owens enjoys spending time as a mother of three children.

It is obvious why First Lady Frances Owens was chosen as the recipient of the Edgar F. ''Daddy'' Allen Award. I think we all owe her a debt of gratitude for her service to the state. Because of Mrs. Owens' dedication, it is clear that Colorado is a better place.

HONORING THE ROTARY CLUB OF WESTCHESTER

HON. STEVEN T. KUYKENDALL

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. KUYKENDALL. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize an important organization within my district, the Rotary Club of Westchester. Tomorrow the Rotary Club of Westchester will celebrate its 50th anniversary as a valuable member of the community.

For the last 50 years, the Rotary Club of Westchester has provided generous support to various programs throughout the community. Its members are community and professional leaders who have been active in education and literacy, scholarship programs, student exchange programs, and book sales to benefit the local region.

As the Rotary Club of Westchester holds its 50th Anniversary Gala this Saturday, Richard Jones will also be celebrating a milestone. Dick Jones is the last remaining charter member who is still active in the organization, and he has achieved a remarkable 100 percent attendance for 49 consecutive years. Dick has helped make the Rotary Club of Westchester the fine organization that it is today. He is a Paul Harris Fellow, a Westchester Patron, served as rotary president, and is a Lifetime Achievement Award recipient. I commend Dick for his commitment to the Rotary Club of Westchester and thank him for his service to the community.

I congratulate the members of the Rotary Club of Westchester on achieving this milestone. It is a valuable member of the Westchester community and its contributions are appreciated. I wish the Club continued success for the future.

TRIBUTE TO NEW BERLIN WEST HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL TEAM

HON. GERALD D. KLECZKA

OF WISCONSIN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. KLECZKA. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to commend the New Berlin West High School Boys' Basketball team, which won the Division II State Championship on March 18, 2000. These impressive young men brought home the first state title in school history, and were only the 27th school in tournament history to win a championship in their first try. With an outstanding 26–0 record, the Vikings swept their way to the Woodland Conference title, State title, and a Number One ranking in state polls. I would like to offer my heartfelt congratulations to the entire team, including Head Coach Jeff Lewiston and All-State Honorable Mentions John and Jason Chappell, for a job well done. The students, faculty and staff of New Berlin West High School, as well as the greater communities of New Berlin, Waukesha County, and the 4th Congressional District, have reason to be proud.

GOLDEN APPLE SCHOLAR AWARDS

HON. JOHN SHIMKUS

OF ILLINOIS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SHIMKUS. Mr. Speaker, I rise before you today to commend the 2000 Golden Apple Scholar award winners from my district. The Golden Apple Scholars program is to recruit talented high school juniors who want to become teachers.

I would like to take the opportunity to recognize Ms. Rachel Ladage from Taylorville High School in Taylorville, Illinois. Teachers, like parents, have a unique opportunity to touch the life of a child. I can't think of a more rewarding experience.

As you know, Mr. Speaker, I was a former high school teacher. I want to wish Rachel all the same joy and success that I shared in my teaching career.

IN MEMORY OF THE LATE MARY NEY

HON. ROBERT W. NEY

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. NEY. Mr. Speaker, I honor today the memory of Mary A. Ney, who passed away on March 19, 2000.

Mary was a member of St. John's Catholic Church. She and her husband, Thomas J. Ney, Sr. had one son and Mary had three stepsons and six step-grandchildren.

Mr. Speaker, it is a privilege for me to pay my last respects to a lady who gave so much of herself to her community, her church and her family. Mary will be missed by all whose lives she touched.

IN HONOR OF GREEK INDEPENDENCE DAY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I recognize Greek Independence Day, March 25, 2000.

During the rule of the Ottoman Empire from the fifteenth through nineteenth centuries, the Greek people never lost sight of their distinct identity and deep devotion to their Orthodox Church, whose clergy played a critical function in maintaining their language and religion. As the eighteenth century ended, the Greeks began organizing a struggle for their freedom. On March 25, 1821, Bishop Germanos called for all to join the campaign for Greek independence. Despite overwhelming odds, thousands of Greeks throughout the region responded to this inspiring call and fought heroically.

The combination of Greek sacrifice and bravery with the help of foreign volunteers succeeded by the end of the 1820s in establishing an independent Greek state. The Greek-American community offers a cultural bridge between the two countries and takes pride that Greek ideals contributed to America's revolution before Greeks themselves had the chance to follow a related and successful campaign for freedom.

This year, Greek Independence Day will be celebrated in Cleveland with an annual parade led by his Eminence Metropolitan Maximos of the Diocese of Pittsburgh. The parade will be a celebration of the Greek struggle for independence that took place 179 years ago. Parade Committee Chairperson Toula Spirtos stressed the value of this event when she said, ''We owe it to our children to preserve those ideas for which the fighters of 1821 shed blood to win and our fathers shed sweat and tears to preserve for us.''

My fellow colleagues, please join me in celebrating Greek Independence Day.

HONORING PAT HALBERSTADT

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I proudly honor a wonderful citizen and community member from my Congressional District in California. My friend Pat Halberstadt will be recognized this weekend by the Sister City Association of Garden Grove.

This is a local grassroots, citizen-directed effort to promote international understanding and build bridges between communities. The association carries on a relationship with Garden Grove's sister city, Anyang, South Korea. In a city that is home to so many Korean Americans, the association is to be commended for its work.

Pat Halberstadt is known for her work with the Boys & Girls Club of Garden Grove. In fact, I think it's fair to say that without Pat, there wouldn't be a Boys & Girls club there.

Pat has lived in Garden Grove all her life—perhaps that's why she cares about our community so much. Her dedication knows no bounds and goes above and beyond the call of duty.

Because of her work, we can provide a safe, high-quality source of activities and resources for our children and young people after school and for their families. Pat is also recognized for her expertise in her field, and has been asked to serve on numerous state, county and local boards.

Mr. Speaker, we are so grateful to Pat for all she's given our community's kids, and I am proud to honor her in Congress today.

HONORING KATHRYN ELIZABETH GRANAHAN DURING WOMEN'S HISTORY MONTH

HON. JOSEPH M. HOEFFEL

OF PENNSYLVANIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. HOEFFEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to celebrate Women's History Month by recognizing the contributions of an important figure from my home area. Kathryn Elizabeth Granahan had an extensive career in public service as a former Congresswoman and Treasurer of the United States.

Kathryn Granahan first served as supervisor of public assistance in the Pennsylvania State Auditor General's Department and the liaison officer between that department and the Department of Public Assistance. She also was a member of the national board of the Woman's Medical College of Pennsylvania. She forayed into national politics as a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1960. Kathryn Granahan was first elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1956 by a special election held after her husband, representative William Thomas Granahan, passed away. She filled the vacancy for that Congress and then was elected three more times, serving a total of eight years.

Kathryn Granahan, the first woman elected to Congress from the Philadelphia area, demonstrated leadership and resolve during her time in this body. She eventually became Chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Subcommittee on Postal Operations and took the lead in sponsoring important and controversial legislation. Kathryn Granahan was at the forefront of the fight against pornography in the mail. She introduced legislation to increase criminal penalties for perpetrators who sought to send pornographic material in the mail and she strengthened the power of the Post Office to impound such mail. She also contributed to the Supreme Court guidelines on obesity.

Kathryn Granahan served on the Committee on the District of Columbia, the Committee on Government Operations, and the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service. Among other important votes for housing for veterans, an increase in wages for federal employees and increased funding for federal agencies, she voted for the monumental Civil Rights Act of 1957.

After the 1960 Census it was determined that Philadelphia would lose one of its seats in the House of Representatives. Her seat was chosen for elimination. However, as compensation, President Kennedy appointed Kathryn Granahan as Treasurer of the United States. She served as Treasurer for three years before resigning in October of 1966 due to health reasons. She passed away in Morristown, Pennsylvania in July, 1979.

I am proud to acknowledge Kathryn Granahan and her accomplishments, both for Pennsylvania and for Women's History Month.

WORLD TB DAY

HON. CONSTANCE A. MORELLA

OF MARYLAND

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. MORELLA. Mr. Speaker, this Friday is World TB Day, and it reminds us that we are still not safe from this devastating disease. Although we have long known a treatment for TB, the sad truth is that this year, it will kill more people than any other year in history.

TB is the biggest infectious killer of young women in the world. In fact, TB kills more women than any single cause of maternal mortality—more than childbirth or AIDS.

In the developing world, tuberculosis also destroys girls' and women's futures. TB tends to attack its victims in their most productive years, often killing or sickening the primary breadwinner of a family. In order to pay for medical costs and generate income, families frequently take their young girls out of school and put them to work. TB often means the loss of educational opportunity for girls of poor families.

In some parts of the world there is a great stigma attached to contracting TB. This leads to increased isolation, abandonment and divorce of women. According to WHO, recent studies on India found that 100,000 women are rejected by their families because of TB every year. In Nepal, there are numerous stories of young widows with no income and no prospects for another marriage turning to prostitution in order to support their families.

Currently an estimated one third of the world's population including some 10–15 million people in the United States are infected with the TB bacteria. Because TB is an infectious disease which can be transmitted simply by breathing in TB bacteria, there is no way to stop TB at national borders. The only way to eliminate TB here in the U.S. is to control it abroad.

It is crucial that we act immediately to control the spread of TB worldwide. There is only a small window of opportunity available to us to do so. If we fail to act now, resistant strains of TB will continue to develop which will be incredibly costly and possibly even impossible to treat. The Foreign Operations SC has led in the effort to make TB control a global priority for the U.S. Now is the time to ratchet up that effort.

Yesterday, my colleague, SHERROD BROWN and I introduced H.R. 4057, the Stop TB Now Act which calls for a U.S. investment of $100 million in international TB control in fiscal year 2001. An investment of $100 million would jump start effective TB control programs in those countries with the highest TB rates. If we do not invest in international TB control now when we have the means to cost-effectively control this disease around the globe, we may lose that opportunity altogether, and see a surge of MDR–TB that becomes a nearly uncontrollable plague. I urge my colleagues to cosponsor this important legislation.

A TRIBUTE IN HONOR OF CHARLIE REAGAN

HON. JAMES A. BARCIA

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. BARCIA. Mr. Speaker, I honor a fine gentleman, Mr. Charlie Reagan of my home town of Bay City, Michigan, on the occasion of his retirement from the Social Security Administration. As our area Congressional Liaison for Social Security matters, Charlie has been an invaluable resource for the constituents of the Fifth Congressional District, which I am proud to represent in Congress today.

Charlie was born in Gladwin, Michigan and has a long history of contributing to our community, both in his capacity as a representative of the Social Security Administration and as a citizen and community leader.

Charlie graduated from the former Bay City Handy High School and later, from my alma mater, Saginaw Valley State University. In 1968, he became one of our nation's most honored citizens, when he joined the United States Army. He served two years in Anchorage, Alaska, and was honorably discharged in 1970.

Charlie began his career with the Social Security Administration [SSA] prior to his service in our nation's armed forces, and upon his discharge, rejoined the agency in Bay City. In 1973, he was transferred to the Quality Assurance Group in Chicago, and in 1975, was promoted to Supervisor in the Muskegon SSA office. In 1982, we were fortunate to welcome Charlie to the Saginaw SSA office, where he has helped countless men, women and children with their Social Security rights and benefits.

Not only has Charlie's career effectively served the greater public interest, he has been involved in our community as a private citizen as well. Charlie and his wife of twenty-eight years, Beverly, are both members of St. John's Episcopal, where Charlie has served as Senior Warden, Junior Warden and Usher Coordinator. Both he and Beverly are members of the Education For Ministry at the Church. Charlie has, for many years, lent his services to helping the United Way in our community, where he has chaired the Combined Federal Campaign program. Charlie has also been involved in the Social Security Find Program, which helps sons and daughters find their parents and grandparents. And in 1999, Charlie received an award from the Office of the Inspector General, Office of Investigations for his service in bringing to justice individuals who commit Social Security fraud.

In his retirement, it is my understanding that Charlie intends to spend some quality time with his wife, Beverly, and their son, Christopher. Charlie is an avid racquetball player and dedicated crossword puzzle fan, so I fully expect him to continue with his favorite hobbies. It is also my understanding that Charlie has plans to build a state-of-the-art hot rod, much to the dismay of his wife. I wish Beverly much luck in this endeavor.

Mr. Speaker, I invite you and our colleagues to join with me in congratulating Mr. Charlie Reagan on the occasion of his retirement, and thanking him for his selfless service to our community. I wish him, and his family, continued success in all his future endeavors.

100TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BOROUGH OF HIGHLANDS, NJ

HON. FRANK PALLONE, JR.

OF NEW JERSEY

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to pay tribute to my constituents in the Borough of Highlands, NJ, as this community celebrates its 100th anniversary. To commemorate this great occasion, a centennial dinner was held yesterday evening at Bahr's restaurant, since 1917 an institution in this community located on beautiful Sandy Hook Bay.

Mr. Speaker, we stand at the threshold of a new century. At the last turn of the century, Highlands became a borough, having separated from Middleton Township. But, the history of the area goes back a great deal further. The first Europeans to see Highlands were Giovanni Verrazano and his crew aboard the Dauphine. The first map of the Highlands area was made by the Spaniard Diego Ribero, who called the area now known to us as Sandy Hook as Cabo De Arenas (cape of sands) and the Navesink/Shrewsbury River as Rio de Santiago. It was on September 2, 1609, that Henry Hudson first saw the Highlands area. The name of this explorer continues to be a household name in the Borough as the regional high school serving the young people of the area is Henry Hudson Regional High School.

Throughout the Colonial and Revolutionary eras, many of the illustrious names still recalled throughout Monmouth County, New Jersey and the nation were associated with Highlands. Richard Hartshorne, for whom Hartshorne Woods County Park is named, settled in Highlands in 1678. In 1778, the British General Clinton retreated through Highlands after his defeat in the Battle of Monmouth, a major turning point in America's War for Independence. In 1782, Captain Joshua Huddy was hanged at Water Witch.

Phillip Freneau, known as the ''poet of the Revolution,'' wrote a poem called ''Navesink'' focused on the Highlands hills. James Fennimore Cooper served in the Navy doing shore patrol of the Raritan Bay area during the years 1805–11, and in 1830 this great American writer would produce The Water Witch, whose setting is the Highlands hills. (Water Witch Avenue is to this day one of the borough's thoroughfares.) In 1872, the noted engraver Granville Perkins came to Highlands to sketch several scenes for the first edition of Picturesque America. In 1876, William Cullen Bryant published the Centennial Edition of Picturesque America in which Highlands was featured in the picture and text as the leading site. In 1875, Walt Whitman visited Highlands and wrote two poems, ''Fancies at Navesink.'' In 1889, Harper's magazine writer F.E. Fryatt visited Highlands and wrote extensively of its beauty, sites and quaint way of life. That same year, the noted writer Gustav Kobbe visited Highlands and described town life, writing the first description of the clamming industry.

Perhaps the best known landmark of Highlands is the Twin Lights, which holds a commanding position overlooking Sandy Hook Bay and the gateway from the New Jersey/New York Harbor area to the Atlantic Ocean. The first single beacon lighthouse was built in 1765. It was in 1828 that the first Twin Lights were built. In 1841, the south tower of the Twin Lights received a Fresnel lens. In 1862, the present Twin Lights were constructed, and in 1889 the south tower was fitted with an electric arc light to produce 25,000 candle power output. In 1924, an incandescent lamp replaced the arc light, to produce 9,000,000 candle power output. The Twin Lights were deactivated and shut off in 1952, and in 1965 it was made a National Historic Site.

Highlands has been throughout its history a major transportation hub. In 1832, the steamboat Saratoga was the first to serve Highlands from New York City, ushering in the steamboat age which ran for 100 years. In 1865, the Long Branch and Sea Shore Railroad began its run between Long Branch and Spermaceti Cove steamboat dock, bringing New York City vacationers to the Jersey Shore. During the 19th and early 20th centuries, rail and trolley service helped bring people to Highlands and on to other transportation infrastructure. In 1872, the first Highlands-Sea Bright bridge was opened (although it was struck by a sloop and wrecked three years later.) The current drawbridge along Route 36, built in 1932 and called the Million Dollar Bridge, has proven much more durable in our present-day transportation age.

Today, Highlands is still well known for its fishing industry and marinas. In 1947, the Highlands boat basin was renovated. Although the age of steam ships has passed into memory, Highlands today is the site of ferry service that continues to provide round trip transportation to New York for commuters and day-trippers.

Through the years, members of diverse religious denominations found a home in Highlands, as members of various denominations established meeting places, often in people's homes. Today, the Borough is the home to a number of houses of worship with deep roots in the community.

During the 19th and 20th centuries, the community developed a strong system of schools and other public services as the quality of life and sense of community continued to improve. Residential communities took shape and a strong commercial life was established. Highlands Borough was established in name in 1900. Twelve years later, the Water Witch section officially became part of the Borough. Also in 1912, the waterfront area bounded by Bay Avenue, Shrewsbury Avenue and Miller Street was filled in and streets were laid out for houses to be built. Throughout the 20th century, Highlands developed its fame and renown as home of some of the Jersey Shore's best seafood restaurants, as well as charming bed-and-breakfast establishments.

At the time of Highlands' founding in 1900, the United States Census listed a population of 848 persons. By the time of the 2000 Census is completed, it will indicate that the community has grown by a factor of six. The people of Highlands have played an important role in the history of our country, state and nation, involved at every stage of our history from the earliest days. In the last 100 years, The Borough has survived and rebounded from natural disasters, such as nor'easters and hurricanes, as well as fires and other disasters. It even enjoyed a brief period of notorious fame during Prohibition as a center for illicit trade on water and land for illegal whiskey.

On this great occasion, I want to express my best wishes to Mayor Richard W. O'Neil, Council Members John Bentham, Dolores Monohan Howard, Sherry Ruby and Robert M. Rauen, and all of the dedicated men and women who make the Borough services work day-in and day-out.

Mr. Speaker, it is a great privilege and an honor for me to pay tribute to the Borough of Highlands, a beautiful community with an unsurpassed location, a place with a proud history, a bright future and many, many great people.

GREEK INDEPENDENCE DAY

HON. CAROLYN B. MALONEY

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. MALONEY of New York. Mr. Speaker, it is with profound pleasure that I speak today in honor of the 179th Anniversary that marks Greece's declaration of independence from the Ottoman Empire. Greece had remained under the Ottoman Empire for almost 400 years. Even though they were deprived of all of their civil rights during this time they continued to educate their children in their culture, their language, and their religion under the threat of death. On March 25, we celebrate this courage on the 179th Anniversary of freedom and independence in Greece.

I wish we had more to celebrate—to be able to celebrate on Greek Independence Day the return of the Elgin Marbles to their homeland. Taken from Greece in 1806, these ancient sculptures from the Acropolis of Athens have been on view in the British Museum. In this age of open communication, friendship, and a unified Europe, lets hope that these marbles will soon be returned to their home.

This year the Greek Independence Day parade will be honoring His Eminence Archbishop Demetrios, Primate of the Greek Orthodox Church of America. I join with my Hellenic neighbors in honoring him on the auspicious occasion of the Greek Independence Day Parade.

I am very fortunate and privileged to represent the largest Hellenic community outside of Athens, one of the most vibrant communities of Hellenic Americans in this country. It is truly one of my greatest pleasures as a Member of Congress to be able to participate in the life of this community, and the wonderful and vital Hellenic American friends that I have come to know are one of its greatest rewards.

While commemorative resolutions are no longer allowed in the House, there is enormous support for Greek Independence Day among my colleagues. In 1993, inspired by the strong Hellenic American presence in my own congressional district, I co-founded, and now Co-Chair, the Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues. The Caucus is composed of seventy-two, bipartisan members who are committed to bringing the voices of Hellenic Americans to the floor of the U.S. Capitol. Since its beginning in 1993, the Congressional Caucus on Hellenic Issues has grown in both size and strength to foster and improve relations between the United States and Greece. The Hellenic Caucus serves to strengthen the voice of Hellenic Americans in promoting legislation, monitoring and arranging briefings on current events, and disseminating information to all Congressional Members on such important developments as the renewed talks between Greek Cypriots and Turkish Cypriots, U.S. aid to Greece and Cyprus, and the continued conflict in the Aegean.

In the coming year, may we see peace in the Aegean, justice in Cyprus, peace in Northern Greece, and the restoration of human rights to the many cultures and people suffering throughout the world. As we celebrate the 179th anniversary of Greek Independence and the special bond of friendship between our two countries, I would like to leave you with a quote from Percy Shelley, ''We are all Greeks! Our laws, our literature, our art, have their roots in Greece.''

AIDS IMPACT ON LATIN AMERICANS AND HISPANICS

HON. CHARLES A. GONZALEZ

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. GONZALEZ. Mr. Speaker, it is important to note that AIDS is a global issue. What happens overseas always affects what happens in the U.S. It is in America's national interest to ensure that we do all we can to assist all countries in addressing HIV/AIDS, not only because of the potential for a tremendous loss of life, but for economic, political and security reasons.

Globally, about 2.6 million people worldwide will die of AIDS this year, the most of any years since the epidemic began, according to a report by the United Nations AIDS program. About 16.3 million people have already died of AIDS since 1981. In addition, about 5.6 million new infections with the human immunodeficiency virus (HIV) will occur this year, raising the number of people currently living with the disease to about 33.6 million, with more than 23 million of those individuals being in sub-Saharan Africa. More than 1.3 million individuals living with HIV and AIDS are in Latin America and some 360,000 are in the Caribbean. It is estimated that some 920,000 individuals living with HIV and AIDS are in North America.

Some 300,000 Americans are infected with HIV and do not know it since they have never been tested for HIV infection. Sadly, my own city of San Antonio has experienced over 3,704 cases of people with AIDS; 53% of these people have died. This means that over 1,950 people in San Antonio have died from this disease. Of the reported cases of AIDS in San Antonio, 48% are in the Hispanic community, 39% are White and 11% are Black. The majority of San Antonio's population is of Hispanic origin and maintains close ties with Mexico and other countries in Central and South America. Many return to visit, to work and live, and then return to the United States. Many of my constituents are very interested in reuniting with their families, bring family members to the U.S. to visit or become U.S. citizens.

AIDS has affected Hispanics in San Antonio more than in most other communities around the country. One thing we can all do is to continue to educate our friends and relatives about AIDS, not only as to its causes but also on its impact on our local, national and global community. We can also push for increased funding for research and treatment of this deadly disease.

Our efforts targeting African Americans here in the United States, and our efforts to address AIDS in Africa and elsewhere are to be commended and expanded. We must do more for those most in need, and we must do more to prevent HIV from becoming a problem in those areas where it has not yet established itself. To do any less is to allow a disease that we can prevent. And we must begin now to look at how we address AIDS in Latin America so that we can prevent it from becoming the next epicenter of the epidemic. Public health practices have shown that it is much more effective to prevent an illness than to treat an illness. Clearly, what we do now in our efforts to address HIV will affect the quality of our lives tomorrow.

We must fight the complacency that is threatening our efforts to address HIV and AIDS in the U.S. and worldwide. Yes, new drug combination therapies have prolonged the lives of many Americans who have access to them, who can afford them, and who can tolerate them. Unfortunately, not all have access or can afford them. Imagine how difficult it will be for those in countries outside the U.S. whose average health care expenditures are less than a few hundred dollars a year to pay for drugs which can cost up to $14,000 a year in the United States.

Unfortunately, many of our leaders are still afraid to discuss HIV/AIDS in public. This silence is also evident in many Latin American countries where AIDS is just starting to take hold. This silence only leads to continued denial that AIDS is affecting Latinos, and it will only lead to additional infections and deaths. By not publicly discussing HIV/AIDS, we send a message to our community that AIDS is not an issue of concern to us or that it is taboo. The number of cases, new infections, and deaths in our community have shown that our silence has been deadly.

The Congressional Hispanic Caucus, of which I am a member, is proud of its role in securing additional funding and in providing leadership in this area. But we have a long way to go. We need the Hispanic community, especially our Hispanic leaders both here in the U.S. and in other countries, to expand their efforts. The Congressional Hispanic Caucus believes that health issues that disproportionately affect Latinos must be addressed openly and publicly. The Caucus understands the importance of public leadership in addressing HIV/AIDS as a means to educate the public of the impact that HIV/AIDS is having on the Latino community both here and internationally.

I offer these comments to honor those from the Hispanic and other communities who have lost their lives to this dreaded disease and to remind the House, the country and the world that AIDS is indeed threatening the lives of a wide variety of people.

HONORING TAESOO ''TOM'' KIM

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I proudly recognize a wonderful citizen and community member from my Congressional District in California. Taesoo ''Tom'' Kim will be recognized this weekend by the Sister City Association of Garden Grove.

This is a local grassroots, citizen-directed effort to promote international understanding and build bridges between communities. The association carries on a relationship with Garden Grove's sister city, Anyang, South Korea. In a city that is home to so many Korean Americans, the association is to be commended for its work.

Tom Kim has dedicated many, many years in service to our community.

He is currently a member of the Advisory Council for Democratic Unification of Korea. His leadership and volunteerism have included terms as President of the Korean Chamber of Commerce of Orange County and many years as the chair of the Korean Festival of Orange County. Mr. Kim can also be thanked for his work to found the first Korean Festival of Orange County.

He has served as the President of the Sister City Association, and his dedication to international understanding and the relation between our sister cities has always been clear. He proudly served as the liaison between Garden Grove and Anyang, Korea in order to form the sister city relationship we are so proud of today.

His service on the board of the Garden Grove Chamber of Commerce and the city Parks and Recreation Commission tell us what we already know, that Tom is a true leader and a friend to Garden Grove.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Tom for all he's given, and I am proud to honor him in Congress today.

IN HONOR OF ROBERT MORVILLO

HON. JERROLD NADLER

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. NADLER. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Mr. Robert Morvillo, a distinguished lawyer from the city of New York. Tonight, Mr. Morvillo will receive the prestigious Norman S. Ostrow Award, from the New York Council of Defense Lawyer. The Norman S. Ostrow Award is a symbol of the New York Council of Defense Lawyers' aspirations, namely the defense of liberty and the preservation of individual rights. Past recipients include such notable attorneys as Arthur Liman and Charles Stillman. I am pleased that Mr. Morvillo will soon join these distinguished ranks.

A former president of the New York Council of Defense Lawyers, Mr. Morvillo graduated from Colgate University in 1960, and received his Juris Doctor from Columbia Law School in 1963. In 1964 he was admitted to the Bar in New York State and has appeared in federal courts across the country, as well as the U.S. Supreme Court.

Mr. Morvillo has had an extensive and impressive career beginning in 1963 when he worked as a Law Clerk to William B. Herlands, U.S. District Judge for the Southern District of New York. From 1964–1968 Mr. Morvillo was an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York. He then went on to become an associate at Reavis & McGrath, currently known as Fullbright & Jaworski. In 1970 Mr. Morvillo served for 1 year as the Chief Trial Assistant for the U.S. Attorney in Charge of Frauds Unit, and then served 2 years as Chief, Criminal Division, U.S. Attorney's Office, Southern District of New York. From 1973 up to the present, Mr. Morvillo has been a Principal of Morvillo, Abramowitz, Grand, Iason & Silberberg.

In addition to these achievements, Mr. Morvillo lectured at Columbia Law School from 1973 to 1985, and since 1982 he has been the columnist of ''White Collar Crime'' for the New York Journal. He is a member of both the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the New York State and American Bar Association. From 1992 to 1996 Mr. Morvillo sat on the Board of Trustees for the Columbia Law School Association and he sat on the Board of Trustees for the Federal Bar Council from 1989 to present. He has been a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers since 1990, and is currently the Chairman of the American College of Trial lawyers, New York Downstate Committee.

Mr. Speaker, I salute Robert G. Morvillo for his many years of dedication and hard work defending liberty and preserving individual rights.

ANNUAL WEEK OF CLASSROOM TEACHER CELEBRATION

HON. ROBERT A. UNDERWOOD

OF GUAM

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Speaker, in my district of Guam, we have a wealth of talented and devoted educators responsible for teaching more than 33,000 students each year. It is unfortunate, however, that only a handful are actually recognized for their diligence and commitment to educating our children. In reality teachers can never be honored enough for their hard won successes. At times, it may seem like teachers may feel they have a thankless job with minimal or no recognition. At times, teachers may feel their efforts in the classroom seem inconsequential and go unappreciated. At times, teachers may feel like they are in a profession which no longer holds the prominence it once did.

It has been said that teaching is the most unappreciated profession. Conversely, it has also been said that teaching is the most self-gratifying profession. As a long-time educator, I understand the daily quandaries that teachers encounter—the limited resources, the financial constraints and the juggling of school staff to make certain that the needs of every student are met. As a parent, I can certainly appreciate the challenges and sacrifice they face to get the best education readily available for our children. Thus, teachers rarely receive the commendation they deserve.

On March 19–25, 2000, the Annual Week of the Classroom Teacher Celebration officially commences on Guam. During this week, 91 teachers from 17 schools will be formally recognized. The appreciation of the dedication of all educators island-wide will be spotlighted as the following teachers are recognized:

Kyma Scadlock (Andersen Elementary), Donna Rhodes (Andersen Elementary), Fumi Marquez (Andersen Elementary), Debra Hall (Andersen Elementary), Martha Sudo (Andersen Elementary), Arlene B. Cruz (Mt. Santa Rosa Elementary), Betty Santos (Mt. Santa Rosa Elementary), Tarslia Muth (Mt. Santa Rosa Elementary), Marina Pangelinan (Mt. Santa Rosa Elementary), Katherine Rives (Mt. Santa Rosa Elementary), Tina Buendicho (Inarajan Elementary), Amy Holland (Inarajan Elementary), Brigida Agustin (Inarajan Elementary), Sr. Teresa Cruz (Inarajan Elementary), Jerry Nartia (Inarajan Elementary), Rosario Quinata (Inarajan Elementary), Diana Dungca (Astumbo Elementary), and Mark Olin (Astumbo Elementary).

Yvonne Rado (Astumbo Elementary), Elaine Ulloa (Astumbo Elementary), Fred Fensler (Astumbo Elementary), Denis Watabayashi (John F. Kennedy High School), Susan Seay (John F. Kennedy High School), Barbara Roberto (John F. Kennedy High School), Roberta Abadahay (John F. Kennedy High School), Collette Beausoleil (John F. Kennedy High School), Abigail Carbullido (John F. Kennedy High School), Gloria Estampador (Jose Rios Elementary), Rebecca Benavente (Jose Rios Elementary), Ivy Baleto (Jose Rios Elementary), Valerie Quinata (Jose Rios Elementary), Elizabeth Apiag (Jose Rios Elementary), Ray Leon Guerrero (Jose Rios Elementary), Gwendolyn Taimanglo (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Irene Mafnas (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), and Diono Rolando (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School).

Ann Aguon (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Marien Taitano (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), John Shook (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Shery Nixt (Maria Ulloa Elementary School), Marilyn VanderWeide (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Esther Keone (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Danilo Dimag (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Amafael Silvestre (F.B. Leon Guerrero Middle School), Erlinda Arriola (Lyndon B. Johnson, Elementary), Lynette Quitugua (Lyndon B. Johnson Elementary), Tricia Gumba (Lyndon B. Johnson Elementary), Lolita Siguenza (Lyndon B. Johnson Elementary), Lanee Lim (Lyndon B. Johnson Elementary), Carmelita Guiterrez (Finegayan Elementary), Denise San Nicolas (Finegayan Elementary), John Wagganer (Finegayan Elementary), Josephine Opinion (Finegayan Elementary), and Gwendolyn Perez (Finegayan Elementary).

Diane Pegarido (Marcial Sablan and Elementary), Alma Neglerio (Marcial Sablan Elementary), Sharon DeVera (Marcial Sablan Elementary), Marybelle Iglesias (Marcial Sablan Elementary), Ninfa DeVerra (Marcial Sablan Elementary), Betsy Bonhoff (Ordot/Chalan Pago Elementary), Rosalyn Jurinario (Ordot/Chalan Pago Elementary), Daisy San Miguel (Ordot/Chalan Pago Elementary), Leah Fernandez (Ordot/Chalan Pago Elementary), Dolores Cayanan (Ordot/Chalan Pago Elementary), Dawn Reyes (Inarajan Middle School), Davia Gofigan (Inarajan Middle School), Norval Marsh (Inarajan Middle School), Therese Iglesias (Inarajan Middle School), Barbara Blas (Inarajan Middle School), Carmen Bermudes (Oceanview Middle School), Curtis Ibbotson (Oceanview Middle School), and Joseph Leon Guerrero (Oceanview Middle School).

Larry Kennedy (Oceanview Middle School), Marissa Quitugua (Oceanview Middle School), Patty Bamba (Oceanview Middle School), Ritana Guerrero (P.C. Lujan Elementary), Maaria Y. Cruz (P.C. Lujan Elementary), Agnes Rivera (P.C. Lujan Elementary), Peter Pangelinan (P.C. Lujan Elementary), Annette Payne (P.C. Lujan Elementary) Doris Baza (Talofofo Elementary), Richard Cruz (Talofofo Elementary), Marie D.C. Taimanglo (Talofofo Elementary), Rita R. Anderson (Talofofo Elementary), Elizabeth R. Pablo (Talofofo Elementary), Estella C. Simon (Talofofo Elementary), Claire Santos (Daniel L. Perez Elementary), Shelly Hughes (Daniel L. Perez Elementary), Janice Banks ((Daniel L. Perez Elementary), Rowena Dimla (Daniel L. Perez Elementary), and Yolanda Rosal (Daniel L. Perez Elementary).

The Annual Week of the Classroom Teacher Celebration is sponsored by the University of Guam Association for Childhood Education International, the Guam Department of Education, and the Department of Defense Schools. Throughout the week, numerous activities are scheduled at the various schools, culminating with an awards ceremony at the Guam Hyatt Regency Hotel on March 25, 2000.

Teachers are the pillars of our educational system. They provide the foundation and support to foster education of our children. They inspire our children to strive further in academics. They help mold and shape students into knowledgeable young adults.

Good teachers help students realize their potential for success and foster self-confidence. They have a personal commitment to help students become a whole person, equipped with the knowledge, self-confidence, and respect they need to compete and excel in today's ever changing world.

And, there must be a concerted commitment to our children's educational health and well-being. This commitment must be a partnership among educators, parents, and the administrators. As a majority of our students have become successful individuals in their own rights, such success would not have been possible without such a commitment and partnership. We are only as strong as our weakest link. Therefore, we must continue to work hard to help our future generation attain success. No one aspect of education is the panacea for its process. To achieve success, everyone must work together.

I take great pride and pleasure in joining my island community saluting Guam's educators for their hard work and dedication to the development and cultivation of our children's education. Dangkalu Na Si Yu'os Maase. Keep up the good work.

HONORING FREDERICK W. CLARK, JR., FROM MASSACHUSETTS

HON. JOHN JOSEPH MOAKLEY

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. MOAKLEY. Mr. Speaker, today I honor a young man that I have had the privilege of knowing and working with for many years. Frederick W. Clark, Jr., my district director in Boston, is being honored this evening by the Boston Jaycees as one of their Ten Outstanding Young Leaders of 2000. At a time when many despair that young leaders and solid role models are hard to find, I am happy to say I know one such young person.

Fred is a loyal friend, a devoted family man, and a genuinely easy person to work with. Neither his family, nor his coworkers, is surprised that he was chosen for this award. They have seen his selfless commitment to service.

Between his job and working on behalf of various groups. Fred often sacrifices time with his wife Carrie and their two sons, Justin and Derek. I remember a story Fred once told me about his son, Justin. One evening after a long day, Fred came home to find little Justin was a little cranky and feeling a bit neglected. When Fred told him it was time to go to bed, Justin had a better suggestion. Justin looked Fred in the eye and said, ''Go to a meeting''! I hope that Justin and Derek understand that while Daddy is often very busy serving the needs of other people, he loves them very much. They should be proud of their father and honored to share him with the world. I know I am.

Fred has been involved in many important issues for my constituents for many years. I hope he is proud of his hard work and involvement in numerous building projects in and around Boston. Fred's hands have helped shape the construction of the New Federal Courthouse, the Evelyn Moakley Bridge, the expansion of the World Trade Center, and the construction of the Moakley Center for Technological Applications at his alma mater, Bridgewater State College. He has fought for the historic preservation of the Customs House, the Old South Meeting House, and Faneuil Hall. He worked tirelessly for the citizens of Walpole during the sludge landfill debate. Fred also provided critically important legal research during the lawsuit involving Massachusetts and the 1990 Census. In fact, his hard work help lay the groundwork for Massachusetts' prevailing in the historic census Supreme Court case.

But it is not just these grand issues to which Fred devotes himself. Indeed, I know that he takes great pleasure in helping a veteran in Brockton get his benefits, helping students in Taunton find financial aid, and helping people find safe and affordable housing in South Boston.

Fred has always enjoyed a commitment to politics and to public service. He has been involved in political campaigns at all levels. He ran his father, Fred Sr.'s successful election and re-election to the Board of Selectmen in his hometown of Easton. He has run many of my campaigns for re-election to the U.S. House of Representatives. In 1988, he worked at the Democratic Convention in Atlanta and helped organize Governor Mike Dukakis's campaign for President in St. Louis, MO. Fred enjoys all levels of campaign activities, from designing political messages and strategies, to organizing efforts to get people out to vote, to walking the neighborhoods doing literature drops. He believes in good old-fashioned democracy and feels lucky to be a part of it. He leads by his example of hard work and devotion to the causes he supports.

Fred has proven himself to be a wonderful son and brother, a caring and devoted husband and father. His loyalty and commitment to his friends and coworkers has earned him their continued admiration and support.

Fred has been my dear friend, my trusted advisor, and a tireless advocate for my constituents. I have watched him grow both, professionally and personally. I have been blessed by his service. I hope he will pause to reflect and enjoy this well-deserved acknowledgement of his hard work and dedication.

PERSONAL EXPLANATION

HON. LYNN N. RIVERS

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Ms. RIVERS. Mr. Speaker, I inadvertently voted ''yes'' on rollcall vote 41—H.R. 3081. It was my intention to vote ''no'' on rollcall vote 41—H.R. 3081.

INTRODUCTION OF THE SAVE MONEY FOR PRESCRIPTION DRUG RESEARCH ACT OF 2000

HON. FORTNEY PETE STARK

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. STARK. Mr. Speaker, I introduce the Save Money for Prescription Drug Research Act of 2000, a bill to deny tax deductions to drug companies for certain gifts and benefits, but not product samples, provided to physicians and to encourage use of such funds for pharmaceutical research and development.

In its January 19, 2000 issue, the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA) published a critical examination of the extent to which physicians interact with the pharmaceutical industry. The study found that U.S. drug companies spend more than $11 billion per year on drug promotion and marketing that is, an estimated $8,000 to $13,000 per physician is spent on drug company gifts every year. These promotions include ''gifts'' such as free meals, travel subsidies, sponsored teachings, drug samples, and recreational benefits such as sporting event tickets and golfing fees, to name just a few. According to JAMA's analysis, physician-industry interactions appear to affect prescribing and professional behavior and should be further addressed at policy and education levels.

Over the years, I have personally received numerous examples of outlandish drug company gifts to physicians. One memorable example came from a physician who sent me a sample of perks he received over the course of one week. The week started with an invitation to the horse races—including a private suite, lunch and open bar from noon to 3:00 pm. Only a day later, he was offered free dinner at a fine restaurant where meals averaged $25/plate, and on the next day he received major league baseball tickets for the entire family.

As yet another example of industry-physician interaction. I would like to insert in the RECORD, a March 9, 2000 USA Today article. This article describes a growing trend among advertising and marketing firms to sponsor physician continuing medical education courses that doctors in 34 states need to keep their licenses. These marketing firms are paid by drug companies and often hire faculty to teach these courses and educate medical professionals about their sponsors' products. This provides drug companies with another opportunity to impact physician prescribing practice and attitudes while increasing their company profits.

At my request, the Congressional Research Service (CRS) last December completed an analysis of the tax treatment of the pharmaceutical industry. The conclusion of that report is that tax credits contributed powerfully to lowering the average effective tax rate for drug companies by nearly 40% relative to other major industries from 1990 to 1996. For this reason, I introduced the Prescription Price Equity Act of 2000 to deny research tax credits to pharmaceutical companies that sell their products a significantly higher prices in the U.S. as compared to their sales in other industrialized countries. The U.S. government already provides lucrative tax credits to the pharmaceutical industry in this country, making additional tax deductions seem particularly unnecessary.

The pharmaceutical industry reaps billions in profits every year and certainly does not need excessive tax breaks. Fortune magazine rates the pharmaceutical industry as the most profitable business in America. The average compensation for 12 drug company CEOs was $22 million in 1998. Likewise, CRS reported that after-tax profits for the pharmaceutical industry averaged 17%—three times higher than the 5% profit margin of other industries.

Although U.S. drug companies claim their exorbitant profits are justified by the high cost of research and development, pharmaceutical companies generally spend twice as much on marketing and administration as they do on research and development. In fact, some companies are guilty of spending even more than twice as much on advertising/administration expenses. For example, Merck & Pfizer spent only 11% of revenues on R&D in 1997, and spent more than twice that amount (28%) on administration and marketing making available an abundance of funds for generous drug company ''gifts.''

Research and development is a much more important pharmaceutical expenditure than the billions of dollars wasted on drug company gifts to physicians. Our nation has reaped great rewards as a result of pharmaceutical research; pharmaceutical and biotech research have discovered life-saving cures and treatments for ailments that afflict our society. But drug companies can do more. If the pharmaceutical industry would stop wasteful spending on promotions and spend instead on R&D, think of all the additional lives that could be saved.

Currently, one third of Medicare beneficiaries have no coverage for prescription drugs and two-thirds of beneficiaries have no coverage or unreliable drug coverage. Over half of our most vulnerable are above the poverty level. That's why I've introduced H.R. 1495, Access to Prescription Medications in Medicare Act. This bill provides a universal, comprehensive Medicare drug benefit with a $200 deductible and 20% coinsurance for seniors up to $1,700 per year. Seniors with very high drug expenses get 100% of their drug costs paid by Medicare (i.e., stop-loss) after $3,000 in annual out-of-pocket spending.

The need for this bill is clear. Denying the pharmaceutical industry the ability to deduct expenditures for certain gifts and benefits to physicians is a critical step in providing Americans with access to more life-saving drugs. By redirecting drug company promotional expenditures to their R&D budgets, the American public should reap the benefit of increased medical breakthroughs. To the extent the companies do not redirect these expenditures to R&D, the denial of the tax deduction will help finance a Medicare prescription drug benefit to ensure that our nation's seniors and disabled have access to the medications they need.

A TRIBUTE TO COL. JOSEPH D. HUGHES, JR.

HON. MIKE McINTYRE

OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. McINTYRE. Mr. Speaker, today I pay tribute to Col. Joseph D. Hughes, Jr., who is retiring from the North Carolina National Guard after 37 years of service to the Tar Heel State.

As superintendent of the Maneuver Area Training Equipment Site at Fort Bragg, NC for the past 11 years, Colonel Hughes has been responsible for a variety of tasks, including supervision of essential personnel and maintenance of defense equipment. Through each of these duties, Colonel Hughes has performed admirably and thoroughly. In addition, Colonel Hughes has worked with my Fayetteville district office on a variety of issues to assist the citizens of the seventh congressional district. For his service to our region, our State, and our Nation, I am thankful, and we all should be grateful.

President John F. Kennedy once said, ''For those to whom much is given, much is required. And when at some future date when history judges us, recording whether in our brief span of service we fulfilled our responsibilities to the state, our success or failure, in whatever office we hold, will be measured by the answers to four questions: First, were we truly men of courage . . . Second, were we truly men of judgment . . . Third, were we truly men of integrity . . . Finally, were we truly men of dedication?'' Colonel Hughes will truthfully be able to answer each of these questions in the affirmative. He is indeed a man of courage, judgment, integrity, and dedication.

Colonel, as you enter this next stage of your life, may the time with your family and loved ones be blessed and plentiful. May your memories be proud and positive, and may your life continue to be enriched with peace, joy and heartfelt thanks from your neighbors, friends, and loved ones.

IN HONOR OF SHERRILL'S BAKERY

HON. DENNIS J. KUCINICH

OF OHIO

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. KUCINICH. Mr. Speaker, today I honor Sherrill's Bakery, the ''Fine Pastry, Fine Foods'' bakery located at 233 Pennsylvania Ave., in Washington, DC. Sherrill's Bakery has fed Capitol Hill and countless visiting tourists from throughout the nation for generations.

Established in 1922, Sherrill's Bakery has changed hands once to current owner, Dorothy Paletto, known to her employees as Dottie. Dottie and her mother, affectionately known as ''Miss Lola,'' have owned the bakery since 1941. The recipes are their own special recipes, reminiscent of a time when all restaurants were family-owned, when everybody knew your name and you knew theirs. Along with Dottie, Miss Lola, the remarkably loyal staff of Tommie Kennedy (who has worked at Sherrill's since 1941), Yolanda, and Patrick serve as the wait staff, with Leon and Ivory holding the honors in the kitchen.

Upon entering the restaurant you are pulled into a comfort zone, a laid back atmosphere where you talk to the wait staff about more then just your order. It's more than just a restaurant; it's a community, with a common bond of enjoying Sherrill's unique ambiance and tasty delights. Sherril's Bakery is just like returning to your favorite neighborhood restaurant from your youth, always there and never changing. For all the changes that have taken place, on Capitol Hill and its immediate neighborhoods, the one constant has been Sherrill's Bakery.

The bakery serves breakfast, lunch, and dinner. It is open 7 days a week, Monday through Friday, from 6 am until 6 pm. Saturdays hours are from 7 am until 6 pm, and on Sundays the bakery is open from 7 am until 4 pm. On weekends, the line of customers stretch out the door.

Sherrill's Bakery is my favorite restaurant here on Capital Hill; I go there faithfully every morning since it reminds me of my favorite neighborhood diners back in Cleveland, Ohio. The wait staff recognizes regular customers like me and my regular waiter, Patrick, is quick to promptly place my breakfast order, which he knows by heart: two slices of plain wheat toast, a bowl of oatmeal and a cup of hot water with a slice of lemon on the side. Three bucks the entire meal, the best bargain anywhere.

In 1990, a film documentary was done on the bakery for the Public Broadcasting Service. The PBS documentary was nominated for an Emmy Award for best documentary, finishing in second place. Many celebrities have relaxed in the dusty diner with dingy windows and neon lights. Celebrities such as actors Mike Farrell (from M*A*S*H*) and Robert Bedford, California State Senator, Tom Hayden; Rock 'n' Roll legend, Sam Moore of Sam & Dave; Apollo 11 astronaut, Buzz Aldrin; and former California Governor and current Oakland Mayor, Jerry Brown, have all spent time in its timeless booths and on its counter stools. Sherrill's has also been the subject of several in-depth news articles and profiles, most notably in the New York Times, the Washington Post, the Washington Times, and Roll Call.

Please join me honoring Sherrill's Bakery for their wonderful food and presence here on Capitol Hill.

HONORING MRS. ESTER GEDDIS

HON. EDOLPHUS TOWNS

OF NEW YORK

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. TOWNS. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Mrs. Ester Geddis, an educator, entrepreneur, wife, parent, and a pillar of her community. I honor her today because she has devoted her life to serving the needs of others.

Mrs. Geddis was born the tenth of eleven children to Enoch and Geneva Pringle in South Carolina. Upon the completion of her formal education in Charleston, SC, Ester married her husband, James Geddis, in 1959. That union has given her two daughters, Ava Gaillard and Felisa Geddis-Hawkins, adopted son Antonio L. Litmon, granddaughters Heaven and Joy Hawkins, and son-in-law Jerome Gaillard.

Mrs. Geddis attended Brooklyn College in the midst of marriage and motherhood, where she received her bachelor of science degree in education in 1977. Upon completion of her education, Mrs. Geddis began her career in education in 1978 as a classroom teacher in the Children and Youth Department at Kingsborough Psychiatric Center. She was then promoted to the position of educational supervisor in 1986. Mrs. Geddis went on to serve as educational supervisor at Brooklyn Children's Center, and then as supervisor for the Department of Aging's Foster Grandparent program, where she has remained until her retirement.

Mrs. Geddis has been actively involved in the Lions Club for over 20 years. She has been a member in the East New York Lions Club, East Brooklyn Lions Club, and she is currently active in the Central Brooklyn Lions Club. She also has always been a member of the Riverside Club. She has also been an active member of the First Baptist Church of Crown Heights for 25 years.

Mrs. Geddis' hard work had not gone unnoticed. She was listed in ''Who's Who In America—1980,'' and ''Who's Who In The World—1990.'' The Concerned Women of Brooklyn recognized her with an award for her dedicated service, and the Riverside Club presented her with their Achievement Award for Outstanding Achievement in Business and Profession.

Because she knows what hard work and dedication can do, Mrs. Geddis founded E & E Catering in 1980, along with her partner Ermine Myers. In addition to catering many events for me, through E & E Catering, Mrs. Geddis has had the opportunity to nourish many distinguished persons, including President Nelson Mandela, Mayor David Dinkins, Reverend Herbert Daughtry, and numerous others as well as civic, private, and community organizations.

Mrs. Geddis has traveled to Africa and many other continents. However, it was in Africa where she gained many friends and met many people whom she helped and sponsored over the years. It can truly be said that all of the many people who have been in the company of Mrs. Ester Geddis have truly been blessed and inspired by her undying spirit and love.

Mrs. Ester Geddis is more than worthy of receiving this honor, and Mr. Speaker, I hope that all of my colleagues will join me today in honoring this truly remarkable woman.

IN MEMORY OF HOLLIS M. KETCHUM

HON. IKE SKELTON

OF MISSOURI

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. SKELTON. Mr. Speaker, it is with deep sadness that I inform the House of the death of an outstanding Missourian, Hollis Ketchum of Jefferson City. He was 81.

Hollis Ketchum was born July 4, 1918, in Downing, MO, a son of Ellis and Melvina Donaldson Ketchum. He graduated from Downing High School and Kirksville State Teachers College. As an Army veteran of World War II, Mr. Ketchum received two Purple Hearts and a Bronze Star with Oak Leaf Clusters. He entered the Army Reserve and then transferred to the Missouri National Guard. He retired at the rank of colonel after 34 years of military service.

Prior to entering the service, Mr. Ketchum taught school in Schuyler County for 4 years. Upon his return from the war, he was employed at the Division of Liquor Control for 19 years, serving as the director for 12 years. After that, he was employed by the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States for 18 years and acted as director of field activities for the last 10 years.

Mr. Ketchum was an active member of his community. He belonged to the First Baptist Church, Jefferson Lodge 43, Capital Shrine Club and the Moolah Temple in St. Louis. Additionally, he was a member and past president of the National Conference of State Liquor Administrators, the Missouri State Skeet Association, Capital City Square Dancers Association, and the United Sportsman Club.

I know the members of the House will join me in extending heartfelt condolences to his family: his wife, Bobbie Nail; his daughter, Jackie Soltys; his son, Randy Ketchum; his stepson, Dr. Roger Nail; his stepdaughter, Patricia Stokes; his brother, two grandchildren and five step grandchildren.

TRIBUTE TO MR. AND MRS. PHIL AND CHARLOTTE PETERSON

HON. CARRIE P. MEEK

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mrs. MEEK of Florida. Mr. Speaker, it is indeed a great privilege to pay tribute to Phil and Charlotte Peterson, who will be feted by hordes of friends and admirers this Sunday, March 26, 2000, beginning at 6:30 p.m. at historic Miami Shores Country Club. If there was ever a dynamic duo that genuinely enhances the good name and stellar reputation of a particular community, then Phil and Charlotte would admirably fit that billing.

Phil Sheridan Peterson, Jr. was born in Sturgeon Bay, WI and comes from a very distinguished lineage. Named after his grandfather, the legendary General Philip Sheridan, Phil faithfully upholds to this very day the tradition of duty to country and honor to God that buttressed the much-heralded exploits of his granddad. Growing up during the Depression era and losing his mother at the tender age of three, Phil had to quickly become the steady hand and exemplar to three other younger siblings, a sister and two brothers.

His wife Charlotte, on the other hand, was delicately schooled in the appreciation of music and the arts. As fate would have it, she met Phil when she was barely 12 years old, while picking cherries to contribute to her family's sustenance at a Wisconsin orchard managed by him. It was indeed love at first sight, and as she is wont to say: ''* * * from that day on, I've been working for him ever since.''

As World War II unleashed its fury, young Phil, then a fresh high school graduate, unhesitantly responded to his country's call to duty and joined the U.S. Navy. His tour of service sent him to the Baltic Sea where he soon braved numerous air raids, sea battles and killer storms that wrecked havoc on his fleet ships, tragically claiming the lives of some 1,200 brave Americans. Having survived the war's harrowing ordeals. Phil Peterson returned home a much-decorated hero and thereby earned his rightful niche in the annals of the greatest generation of Americans who ever lived.

Upon his discharge from the U.S. Navy, Phil went back to school to finish his education at the University of Wisconsin where he became an extraordinary feature on the school's football and wrestling team. During this time Charlotte was also at the end of getting her college degree. Upon graduation from college, Phil and Charlotte got married on December 27, 1947. Through this union they were blessed with five wonderful children, who are now themselves successful and productive adult members of society.

While they managed to get back and tend to the family Peterson orchard farm in Wisconsin, their adventurous spirit soon propelled their relocation in Florida's Key West, finally settling down in what was then called Miami's model community of ''Liberty City.'' Working as entrepreneurs for the first Harley Davidson's motorcycle franchise in South Florida, Phil and Charlotte found time to immerse themselves in key leadership positions helping several civic organizations, such as the American Red Cross, the Muscular Dystrophy Association, Easter Seals, the Covenant House, Toys for Underprivileged Children, St. Jude's and Miami Children's Hospital, Shelters for Abused Women, Miami Rescue Mission, Ronald McDonald House, Paralyzed Veterans of America, the Florida Motorcycles Dealers Association, the Knights of Columbus, St. Vincent de Paul Society, and many local schools.

Phil & Charlotte Peterson truly epitomize the preeminence of ordinary and decent folks who have tried to do their level best toward contributing to the amelioration of their community and the welfare of their fellow human beings. Indeed, we have tremendously benefitted from their unique brand of tireless commitment and generosity.

In fact, Phil's first-hand experience, thorough knowledge and solid reputation at Harley Davidson motivated him to address the varied issues and complex problems surrounding America's burgeoning motorcycle business. Accordingly, his compelling testimonies before the U.S. Congress paved the way for shedding light on the devious schemes of fast-buck entrepreneurs who were illegally dumping foreign-made substandard motorcycles in the American market. His expert observations subsequently led to the adoption of important pieces of initiatives that have now become our nation's laws in this area.

In their own quiet but dignified way, Phil & Charlotte Peterson have been and continue to be our community's consummate activists. They genuinely abide by the dictum that those who have less in life, through no fault of their own, deserve the help of community leaders to help them get back up and lead normal, productive lives. Friends and admirers are oftentimes touched by their unique sincerity and selfless giving. The numerous accolades from various organizations represent an unequivocal testimony of the utmost respect and admiration they both enjoy from our community.

Their word is their bond to those who have dealt with them not only in their moments of triumphal exuberance, but also in their quest to help us transform our community into the kind of a caring neighborhood where the young and the old, the rich and the poor, the mighty and the humble converge together to hasten the emergence of the spirit and optimism that nobly represent the true character of America.

I am deeply honored to extend my best wishes and utmost gratitude to Phil & Charlotte Peterson for what they have done to our community. They truly exemplify a genuine leadership whose courage and kindheartedness appeal to our noblest character as a nation.

OIL PRICE REDUCTION ACT OF 2000

SPEECH OF

HON. LOIS CAPPS

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Wednesday, March 22, 2000

The House in Committee of the Whole House on the State of the Union had under consideration the bill (H.R. 3822) to reduce, suspend, or terminate any assistance under the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 and the Arms Export Control Act to each country determined by the President to be engaged in oil price fixing to the detriment of the United States economy, and for other purposes:

Mrs. CAPPS. Mr. Chairman, I am an original cosponsor of the Oil Price Reduction Act. We simply must take some common sense steps to reduce the price of gas. In my district, which normally has some of the highest gas prices in the country, gas now costs over $2 per gallon. My constituents are hurting and need help.

In its original form, H.R. 3822 would have allowed the Administration to halt arms sales to countries that are gouging American consumers by raising oil prices. But the House leadership has weakened the bill and now it only counsels diplomacy.

I'm all for diplomacy and have encouraged the Administration to forcefully engage all the OPEC countries about this issue. But diplomacy has its limits. Simply put, this country should seriously reexamine our policy of selling arms to countries that seek to gouge American consumers and hurt our economy.

And to add insult to injury, these are some of the same countries that American men and women risked their lives for in the Persian Gulf war. Today, thousands of dedicated soldiers, sailors, airmen and women continue putting their lives on the line to keep Saddam at bay and these countries safe.

I will vote for this bill, but we need to take a much firmer stance with the OPEC nations. For example, while the original bill would allow the administration to restrict arms sales, I might have gone further and required that arm sales be halted. Amendments to that effect won't be allowed in today's debate.

In addition, I am very disappointed that the House is not going to be voting on other key issues to address high gas prices.

I believe we should stop exporting Alaskan oil to foreign countries and I have cosponsored legislation to do that. While our gas prices have doubled over the last year, we send 60,000 barrels of oil a day to Asia. If not exported, this oil would go to the west coast. We should be voting to halt those exports and give American families the benefit of American oil.

We should also consider proposals to swap oil out of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve. Making available oil from the SPR could offset the shortages produced by the OPEC countries production cuts. This would weaken OPEC's ability to unilaterally raise our gas prices.

Finally, we should be aggressively developing renewable energy sources and alternative fuels. This would reduce our reliance on foreign fuels, while at the same time helping to preserve our environment.

But we must also make sure we don't do certain things that would not lower the price of gas, but would reduce safety on our roads and threaten the Central Coast economy and environment.

For example, some have advocated getting rid of the 4.3 cents federal gas tax. That won't help consumers who have seen a gallon of gas double in price. And it would cost California alone over $1.7 billion over the next 2 years in funds to build and maintain our roads and bridges. This funding has provided for the installation of call boxes on Highway 166 near Santa Maria and will support the widening of the dangerous Highway 46 near Paso Robles in my district.

Others have advocated more oil drilling off the California coast. This would be a huge mistake—most of the oil there is for making roads and tar, not gasoline. And new oil drilling threatens to devastate the local economy and environment.

Mr. Chairman, we need to take some serious steps to address high gas prices and I am deeply disappointed that the House will only be allowed to vote today on one, largely symbolic gesture. The American people deserve a lot more than that.

HONORING ALICE RUMBAUGH

HON. LORETTA SANCHEZ

OF CALIFORNIA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Ms. SANCHEZ. Mr. Speaker, I proudly recognize a wonderful citizen and community member from my Congressional District in California. Alice Rumbaugh will be recognized this weekend by the Sister City Association of Garden Grove.

This is a local grassroots, citizen-directed effort to promote international understanding and build bridges between communities. The association carries on a relationship with Garden Grove's sister city, Anyang, South Korea. In a city that is home to so many Korean Americans, the association is to be commended for its work.

And it is clear why Alice Rumbaugh was chosen for this honor. Alice is a master teacher who has proved her dedication to teaching our children to appreciate Hispanic culture. She was key to the establishment of the Spanish culture program at Pacific High School, a program that now travels throughout the district.

Alice's colleagues, and all our city students, are fortunate to have the opportunity to take advantage of these resources and of Ms. Rumbaugh's tireless work.

She is an award-winning educator, a master educator who has never given up in her efforts to inspire and empower her students. She is also known for her work as a mentor and a peer leader among her colleagues. Ms. Rumbaugh has been honored repeatedly for her innovation and excellence in her field.

Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Alice for her work. I am proud to honor her in Congress today.

SALUTING THE NCAA DIVISION III NATIONAL CHAMPION CALVIN COLLEGE KNIGHTS

HON. VERNON J. EHLERS

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. EHLERS. Mr. Speaker, it is with great pleasure that I rise today to honor the NCAA Division III National Basketball Champion Calvin College Knights from Grand Rapids, Michigan. The Knights capped off their magical season on March 18, by defeating a very strong and talented Wisconsin-Eau Claire squad in the championship game, 79–74. The Knights finished their dream season with a 30–2 overall record enroute to the school's second national basketball title.

Under the tutelage of fourth-year Head Coach Kevin VandeStreek and assistants Tim VanDyke and Chris Fear, the Knights provided excitement every time they hit the floor this season. Not only did these young men provide numerous memorable moments for the Calvin faithful, they did so with a strong sense of teamwork both on and off the floor.

Members of the 1999–2000 Calvin College Knights include Kyle Smith, Bryan Foltice, Jon Potvin, Aaron Winkle, Dave Bartels, Nate Burgess, Nate Karsten, Tim Bruinsma, Jason DeKuiper, Jeremy Veenstra, Brian Krosschell, Nick Ploegstra, Jon VanderPlas, Derek Kleinheksel, Josh Tubergen, and Rob Dykstra.

National championships are becoming the norm at Calvin College. In addition to the men's basketball championship, the women's cross country team has captured national titles the past two seasons. And if there were a championship for fans, Calvin would also be in the running for that title. Calvin College fans, also known as the best fans anywhere, are also to be commended for the tremendous support they provide to the student-athletes that represent Calvin College.

Mr. Speaker, I ask my colleagues to join me today in saluting these young men for their fine conduct and stellar play throughout this storybook season. Not only did they serve as fine representatives for Calvin, they also served as ambassadors for all of West Michigan and for their league, the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Congratulations and best wishes to everyone associated with the Calvin College Knights!

TURKEY REMAINS A STRATEGIC U.S. ALLY

HON. ROBERT WEXLER

OF FLORIDA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Thursday, March 23, 2000

Mr. WEXLER. Mr. Speaker, President Clinton's trip to South Asia, home to one-fifth of the world's population and to two nuclear powers, reminds us of the volatility of the world around us. It reminds us as well of our obligation, as the world's remaining superpower and as the world's greatest exponent of democracy, to seek a strengthening of the democratic principles wherever we are.

Over the years, we have forged a network of allies who have shared this burden with us, often at considerable human and economic cost to themselves. Few of our allies have been as important to us as Turkey.

During the Cold War era, Turkey guarded NATO's southern flank. For five decades, Turkey stood as a bulwark against the Soviet Union's southern expansion. Its soldiers stood side by side with ours in Korea and its land was utilized by our armed forces for bases.

During the Gulf War, Turkey was integral to our strategy for blunting and then defeating the aggression launched by Saddam Hussein. Turkish bases were the launching pad for the northern attacks and our large base at Incirlik continues to offer protection for Iraqi opposition as part of Operation Northern Watch. Turkey's alliance with us cost it $35 billion in foregone trade and pipeline fees—a sum whose equivalence in the U.S. context would be $900 billion.

Today, even as the Cold War is a decade gone, Turkey remains one of our most steadfast and crucial allies. Their contributions to the United States, and the policies we seek to implement remain crucial to us. Let me offer several examples:

Turkey is the only secular democracy in the Islamic world. At a time when Islamic fundamentalism and its attendant anti-American stance are on the rise, Turkey provides a model for the co-existence of Islam and a pluralistic society.

Turkey is central to the containment of Saddam Hussein and ultimate removal of him from office. There can be no successful anti-Saddam strategy without the full involvement and support to Turkey.

Turkey was the first Muslim nation to recognize Israel and remains one of only a few Muslim nations to establish full diplomatic relations with that nation. The two have forged close military and political linkages that serve as a means to help bring peace and security to the Middle East.

Turkey will be home to new pipelines carrying oil and gas from the Caspian Basin to U.S. and Western markets. Turkey is integral to our long-term energy security.

Turkey is partnering with the United States in an effort to provide economic and technical support to the emerging democracies from the former Soviet Union in order to help ensure their economic viability and democratic future.

Turkey works with the United States in trying to stabilize the situation in the Balkans, and Turkey has taken the lead in trying to rebuild Bosnia.

Mr. Speaker, the above examples demonstrate the fundamental importance of maintaining, and in fact expanding, strong U.S.-Turkish economic, defense and political ties.

I am pleased that we continue to have a good and strong relationship with Turkey. It is vital in today's volatile world that such relations continue.

Congressional Record The public proceedings of each House of Congress, as reported by the Official Reporters thereof, are printed pursuant to directions of the Joint Committee on Printing as authorized by appropriate provisions of Title 44, United States Code, and published for each day that one or both Houses are in session, excepting very infrequent instances when two or more unusually small consecutive issues are printed at one time. ¶Public access to the Congressional Record is available online through GPO Access, a service of the Government Printing Office, free of charge to the user. The online database is updated each day the Congressional Record is published. The database includes both text and graphics from the beginning of the 103d Congress, 2d session (January 1994) forward. It is available on the Wide Area Information Server (WAIS) through the Internet and via asynchronous dial-in. Internet users can access the database by using the World Wide Web; the Superintendent of Documents home page address is http://www.access.gpo.gov/su docs, by using local WAIS client software or by telnet to swais.access.gpo.gov, then login as guest (no password required). Dial-in users should use communications software and modem to call (202) 512–1661; type swais, then login as guest (no password required). For general information about GPO Access, contact the GPO Access User Support Team by sending Internet e-mail to gpoaccess@gpo.gov, or a fax to (202) 512–1262; or by calling Toll Free 1–888–293–6498 or (202) 512–1530 between 7 a.m. and 5:30 p.m. Eastern time, Monday through Friday, except for Federal holidays. ¶The Congressional Record paper and 24x microfiche will be furnished by mail to subscribers, free of postage, at the following prices: paper edition, $179.00 for six months, $357.00 per year, or purchased for $3.00 per issue, payable in advance; microfiche edition, $141.00 per year, or purchased for $1.50 per issue payable in advance. The semimonthly Congressional Record Index may be purchased for the same per issue prices. Mail orders to: Superintendent of Documents, P.O. Box 371954, Pittsburgh, PA 15250–7954, or phone orders to (202) 512–1800, or fax to (202) 512–2250. Remit check or money order, made payable to the Superintendent of Documents, or use VISA, MasterCard, Discover, or GPO Deposit Account. ¶Following each session of Congress, the daily Congressional Record is revised, printed, permanently bound and sold by the Superintendent of Documents in individual parts or by sets. ¶With the exception of copyrighted articles, there are no restrictions on the republication of material from the Congressional Record.
